Life-saving Award . . . Emile Monette, centre, who last week was the recipient of a medal and certificate from the Canadian Electrical Association at their Toronto meeting, in recognition of his having saved the life of a fellow worker, Edouard Girard, seen on the right. The incident occurred on May 4 of last year when Mr. Girard inadvertently touched a live wire while working on a pole. Mr. Monette found him hanging from the pole and rendered first aid, including mouth-to-mouth respiration later lowering the victim to the ground from where he was rushed to hospital with second and third degree burns. Ch. of Commerce discourse heard on industrial growth

Lachute Chamber of Commerce members were addressed last week on a subject uppermost in the thoughts of progress-minded citizens, namely, the Promotion of Industrial Growth. The speaker was Réal Gariépy, economist and industrial commissioner for the Municipality of Chomedey. The meeting was under the chairmanship of Jos. Santini, Chamber of Commerce president.

The growth of industry is achieved, firstly, by promoting new manufactures in a given area, and, secondly, by assisting the expansion of existing industries. It is not, in itself, a final objective, but a means of fulfilling the productivity of a community; nor is it the only means, for industry is only one factor in the well balanced political economy.

According to this speaker, in the typical Canadian municipality an industry employing 100 workers sums up to: 427 more residents, 131 new households, 66 school pupils, 187 motor vehicle registrations, 117 other workers, 393 additional telephones, 3 new retail establishments and $393,000 yearly retail sales. In addition to these revenues, of course, are taxes; and one acre of industrial land returns more to the municipality than an acre of residential lots in proportion to the municipal services required.

To Entice Industry

Before venturing into industrial promotion, a municipality must be familiar with its economic area and must also know the industry it is seeking — for there are plants and factories of all varieties, and it is important to ascertain those which can be established on a sound basis in any given area.

Methods and procedures to enlist new industries were described by Mr. Gariépy. The creation of an industrial loan fund and the terms of its application, and various sources of financing were mentioned. The formation of a committee or body for this purpose, the establishment of a fund, the acquisition and maintenance of an industrial land site, and finally, actual promotion and negotiation — these are the steps of procedure.

To Foster Parent Enterprise

If it is desirable to promote new ventures, it is equally imperative to keep the industries we already have. The speaker here emhasized that it was important to understand their problems, to encourage their expansion.

"If we are an industrial province this does not imply that all municipalities can be industrialized to the same degree. But even a municipality with limited possibilities of development can participate in over-all promotion of its surrounding area, for few such centres are absolutely isolated. Prosperity in one part usually contributes to prosperity in contiguous parts, concluded Mr. Gariépy.

The speaker was introduced by Notary Richard Valois and thanked by Roger E. Régimbal, personnel director of the Dominion Ayers industries.

LHS teacher appointed to Prov'l committee

Miss Elizabeth Stanton, B.A., M.A., who was last week appointed to the Board of Secondary Education, a committee of the Superior Council of Education for the Province of Quebec. Miss Stanton is a graduate of McGill University and obtained her M.A. degree from the University of Chicago in 1959. She has been the English specialist at Lachute High School since 1952 and will continue in this position along with her other teaching activities.

Residence gutted, family homeless in recent fire

The single storey cement-block house of Mr. and Mrs. Ulysse Mercier, of 339 Catherine Street, was destroyed by intense heat and fire early Thursday morning of last week, leaving five persons homeless; five older children were not living with their parents at the time of the fire, the loss of which was only partly covered by insurance.

The fire department was summoned at 6.39 a.m. and Chief Don McCulloch who lives only a short distance away, was first on the scene. He reported the three children were in a car and both parents were just leaving the smoke and heat-filled building. Mr. Mercier re-entered the house for a third time with Chief MacCulloch and seconds after they left it, the entire building was engulfed in flames.

The main fire was centred near the ceiling at one end of the house and was believed caused by overheated pipes from the space heater. Flames were all through the saw-dust insulation in the attic and took a considerable time to extinguish. The entire contents of the building were destroyed by heat so intense it ignited wall-paper some distance from the actual fire.

The family managed to get partially dressed before leaving the burning building and made good their escape with only the clothes on their backs. Firemen were at the scene until shortly after eight o'clock. Loss was estimated to be in excess of $5,000.

Ste. Anastasie Parish priest to address United Ch. service

The Lachute United Church, through its Board of Session, has invited the Rev. Father Léopold Godbout, priest-in-charge of the Ste. Anastasie Parish Roman Catholic Church, to address the United Church congregation on Sunday, February 7. Subject of the address will be "The Vatican Councils". This invitation follows the pattern of the ecumenical climate of the present day, when members of the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches are joining together in services of prayer and worship.

"The invitation to Father Godbout is the first such joint Christian witness in the community and marks the end of the long silence between the two denominations since the time of the Reformation", stated the Rev. Harold Thompson, minister of the United Church.

In February of last year, representatives of the Roman Catholic clergy from the various parishes in this community were guests at a meeting of the Argenteuil Ministerial Association.

In November, 1962, the Rev. Wesley Ball, of Morin Heights United Church addressed the Ste. Anastasie Catholic League, at which time he was introduced by Canon Maurice Matte, diocesan chaplain of the League. More recently, several members of the Catholic clergy were present at the farewell party for the Rev. Wilson Bridge.

Father Godbout assumed his duties in the Ste. Anastasie parish in August of last year. He was born in St-Damien de Bellechasse in 1904 and following his elementary education, worked for several years before entering the seminary in St. Victor de Beauce. He was ordained into the priesthood in Ottawa in 1932 but has always practised his ministry in Quebec. He served as national chaplain to the J.O.C. (Young Catholic Workers) for eight years and was director of a retreat house for several years, also having served as priest in Sherbrooke before being assigned to the St. Jerome Diocese.

Police Chief Hébert returns to duty

Members of the municipal council attending a special session of Council on Thursday evening of last week voted to re-instate former Police Chief Jean-Louis Hébert, conforming with the judgment recently handed down by the Municipal Affairs Commission. The judgment, which was dated January 18, ordered the municipality to re-engage chief Hébert and re-imburse him his salary from the time he was relieved of his duties in January of last year.

The motion was made by Ald. Dr. Roger Dumais and seconded by Ald. Laurier Carrière. Mayor Dr. Zoel Saindon welcomed Chief Hébert back to the employ of the town and insisted on proper co-operation in the department so as to continue to provide efficient police service.

Ald. Linton W. Armstrong, Chairman of the Police and Fire Committee, also greeted the re-instated chief at the meeting. In commenting on the Council's action following the meeting, Ald. Armstrong stated "a satisfactory agreement was reached between Chief Hébert and the present police force, and I am sure all will work together in the best interests of the town." Chief Hébert assumed his duties on Monday morning.

New Hydro offer for Grenville re-installations

Hydro-Québec has submitted a new offer of $135,000 damages to the Municipality of Grenville, to compensate for public works and re-vamping of services due to higher water levels caused by the Carillon Dam.

The offer is $10,000 higher than Hydro's original figure. The municipality, however, requested $150,000 for expense involved in these changes.

The councillors took acknowledgment of this latest gesture through its legal advisor, Vincent Drouin, M.P. for Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes. Mayor Rolland Landriault declared the corporation would reach no decision on the Hydro-Québec offer until the next regular council meeting on February 3. Negotiations have meanwhile been continued.

C.S.N. topics on labor and social affairs

A series of six discussions for the working populace of this district is planned by the C.S.N. (Confédération des Syndicats Nationaux), to be held in the Ayersville church basement on February 9-16-23 and March 2-9-16.

Miss Gabrielle Hotte, a speaker in the C.S.N. educational service, will spark the topics dealing with social and labor conditions, which are open to all workers, their wives and younger members of the community about to enter the labor force.

Discourses and films in this series will deal with problems of unemployment, automation, consumer credit and standards of education for the salaried classes — subjects claimed helpful to all workers regardless of their trade or craft.

Other discussions are planned for the future, in regard to the possibilities of new industries in Lachute, also on the subject of planned family financing.

Information is available from the C.S.N. office at 169 Bethany Street (tel. LO 2-8313).

Riverboat skipper, County sheriff, died Sunday

Capt. Ernest Abbott Johnson, 84, believed to be the last Ottawa River-boat skipper, died at his home Sunday in L'Orignal.

Capt. Johnson had also served as sheriff of Russel and Prescott Counties.

He was master of river boats during the Lower Ottawa River's days as a bustling commercial artery. His father was captain of the sidewheeler Empress, which used to run from Ottawa to Grenville with an orchestra entertaining passengers in the dining salon.

Council Clippings

Five tenders from car dealers were opened at Council meeting last week. These bids, on supplying a five-ton truck, were held over, when it was considered that the purchase of a grader was more immediately essential. Offers were received from Welden Motors, Lacasse Automobile, Lachute Farm Equipment, Pollock & Graves, Noble Motors and Levasseur Automobile. Prices ranged from $5,150 to $7,100.

The firm of Bégin, Charland & Valiquette, which was retained for a "scientific valuation" of properties here some years ago, gave information on the Barron property, stating this had been originally valued at $54,000 but had later been reduced in consideration of its characteristics as farm property.

In reply to a desire expressed by Council to purchase a strip of land along Berry Street, the C.P.R. authorities replied that this was not for sale. It is available for rental, however, at $26 a month; but if the town gives no decision, the C.P.R. will close this area to public use. . . The land is 260 feet long and 25 feet wide. The town will seek some agreement on sub-rental to the hotels, garages, etc., whose customers largely occupy this parking space; but if no agreement is reached, the corporation will rent the land itself and install parking meters.

Michel Malacket asked for a credit note on his water tax, since he claimed some of his apartments had been unoccupied since November 1963. The request will be investigated. An adjustment will be made also in valuation of the J. C. Wilson Company properties, due to demolition of a house owned by the company at 100 Princess Street.

Ronald Hébert and Rodolphe Denault, employees of the town, were given salary increases, while similar reports from Eugène Farmer and André Bergeron were referred to the committees in charge of their respective departments.

Council agreed on a grant of $372 to the pee-wee hockey club which will represent Lachute and Brownsburg in an international tournament at Quebec this month. The sum will go towards regulation outfits, windbreakers, etc., in the category of a publicity investment.

Mayor Dr. Z. Saindon chaired the Council sitting, from which Ald. Bélanger was the only member absent.

Local resident found dead

The body of Mrs. George Hutchin, 49, was discovered by her husband at noon on Friday of last week, in the basement of their Bethany Street home.

The former Ellen M. Brown, Mrs. Hutchin had been under a doctor's care. The funeral service was held on Monday with interment in Lachute.

Council apathetic to new factory proposal

A proposal to establish a plant for the manufacture of women's sports wear has failed to enthuse Lachute's industry-minded councillors, by reason of the company's demands, and risks involved for the town corporation.

The company concerned has suggested that the town should buy the vacant McOuat building (T. McOuat & Son Ltd., at the corner of Princess and Millway), also make the needed repairs and replace the heating system — for which the company would buy back the building on a monthly rental basis.

The aldermen found it strange that the company should not deal directly with the owners of the vacant building, rather than expect the town to act as intermediary and assume all the risks involved.

Mayor Saindon gave information that the factory would employ 25 workers at the start. Only three of these would be expert operators from Montreal, the rest would be engaged locally. According to other information, the McOuat building would be worth around $25,000, including a strip of land along the river bank.

Although at first sight the proposition seemed unreasonable, negotiations will doubtless be continued, with possible modification of the terms suggested.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

By-law 205 on store hours reverberated in Council again last week. A letter from Jos. Santini, president of the Chamber of Commerce, asked the councillors to defer their proposed amendment, since the Chamber is drawing up a new schedule of business hours. Antoine Malaket also reminded the Council that he had a list of storekeepers anxious to do business on Thursday evenings. . . In order to please everybody (!) the city fathers commissioned Ald. Masson to meet those interested and to report back on a majority viewpoint.

Town Council will acquire for public usage the new official flag — the 11-point maple leaf approved by Ottawa, not the 13-point version made in Japan. The number and size to be ordered, will be decided upon and ratified at next Council sitting. . . One alderman facetiously hoped the Council would not lose as much time getting the flag as Ottawa had taken to adopt it!

The citizens of Brownsburg were shocked to hear Police Chief Richard Bell had suffered a stroke and was paralyzed on his right side. Only 33 years of age, Chief Bell was treated at the Argenteuil Hospital and later transferred to Notre Dame Hospital, Montreal. Constable André Roy is presently in charge of police duties in Brownsburg, assisted by Cst. Guy Frappier on a part-time basis. It goes without saying the population of the entire district hope for a speedy recovery and return to his duties.

Riel Rebellion veteran passes; had long, colorful war record

William John Hale, well-known in this district and for many years a resident of the Seigniory, passed away at the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital on Friday evening. He was 99 years of age.

Mr. Hale was born in Hartfield Barracks, Bristol, England. His father's regiment moved from Bristol to Bermuda and his family went with him when William was only a few days old. They later were transferred to Halifax, and in 1885 the regiment left for Egypt, for the relief of Khartoum, where General Gordon was surrounded and needed help desperately.

In 1884, William joined the Halifax Fusiliers (Volunteers), and in 1885 left for the Riel Rebellion. When this was over he took his discharge and attempted to join the Royal North-west Mounted Police, with which he remained for six months, but due to his being ¼ inch under height, they could not keep him. He then returned to Halifax until 1887, when he joined the permanent force known as the I.S.C. (Infantry School Corps), with which he served approximately nine years at Fredericton, N.B. He then came to Quebec and joined the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery; he later took his discharge from this unit and proceeded to Montreal where he joined the 5th Royal Scots, which later became the 5th Royal Highlanders. He remained with them until 1918. During this period he served in the South African war and returned here in 1902. In August 1914 with the 5th Royal Highlanders he was attached to the 13th Battalion; he was colorsergeant in charge of recruiting and remained in Canada until 1915, when he became attached to the 42nd Battalion R.H.C. and proceeded overseas with them. He served in France from October 1915 until 1917, being discharged in 1918.

Sgt. Hale was an Honorary Life Member of the Black Watch and its oldest living member. On the recent appearance of the Black Watch Band at Lachute Spring Fair he proudly accompanied them in good health and fine spirits.

He was also an Honorary Life Member of Argyle Masonic Lodge No. 65 in Montreal, and a member of the "Over 80 Club" of Legion Branch 70, Lachute.

Among his prized medals were that of the S.A. War with bars depicting Cape Colony, Paardeberg, Dreifontein and Johannesburg; the 1914 service medals and Mons Star, together with others for long service and efficiency.

Mr. Hale had been honored on many occasions and while living until recent years in this district, was a frequent visitor to town and betrayed his age by his soldierly step and youthful appearance.

Mrs. Hale, the former Ada Hope Blevin, of Liverpool, England, predeceased him in 1949.

A daughter Ethel (Mrs. H. Brown) of Montreal, passed away in 1933 and a son James died in March 1964.

Left to mourn his passing are his daughters Margaret (Mrs. M. Hands), of Ottawa; Isabel (Mrs. W. Rolfe), of Greenfield Park and Mabel (Mrs. Thos. Harris), of Brantford, Ont.; with two sons William, of Toronto, and Richard, of Montreal. There are 15 grandchildren and 41 great grandchildren.

A short Masonic service was held on Monday evening.

The funeral service was conducted in the MacKimmie Funeral Chapel on Tuesday afternoon, by the Rev. H. Thompson. The remains were placed in the vault and burial will take place in the spring at Lachute Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were members of Legion Branch 70, Comrades E. Evans, R. St. Laurent, R. Giles, L. Bryson, J. Duncan and F. Bradford.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

Some of you may remember the article on tents I wrote about in mid-December. This was a story of a gent who had purchased one of the super-sale types that come from these surplus stores every once in a while. After little use, this "tent" just about fell apart, turned spotted and so on. Trying to get some sort of satisfaction was as usual a waste of time. I received a letter from the Canadian Canvas Goods Manufacturing Association about this column. They have evidently taken this to be a Canadian tent, so they asked for explanations, etc. I said at the time of writing it was too bad buyers in this country had no chance of getting any help from sales of this type. I also stated that even though it was supposed to be a name brand, the chance of this company being on this continent was pretty remote. Naturally the Association is concerned about this, but seeing as it was not of Canadian manufacture then it appears to be out of their hands. However I would like to pass this information on from them. "Quote": It is the aim of our association to develop standards of quality which are acceptable to the consumer. All Canadian Manufacturers of tents are willing to stand behind any article which shows defects of fabric or manufacture if the article has been used in accordance with the manufacturers instructions. There are of course many imported products which do not measure up to the acceptable standards. The moral of course is 'Buy Canadian'," end of quote. This is just what I have been beefing about so much and so long. Why we continue to be taken in by some of the phony advertising on the imported objects is beyond me, but we still do. Maybe the Canadian article is a little more expensive at first, but in the long run it will be much cheaper.

Some of the local "bird-feeder" groups have been telling me of Cedar Waxwings being seen in goodly numbers just now. Just why they should show up just at this time is one of those things we don't know, maybe this heralds an early spring. Boy what a hope I have, thinking of the good fishing we are going to have. But seriously, a Bittern was supposedly seen around St. Eustache. We all know these birds are strictly water type birds, they must have open water, with plenty of aquatic life in order for the bird to live. Yet here this bird is, flying around in sub-zero temperatures. Beats me. This is really funny as these birds cannot take extremes in weather, but this one seems to be getting along okay. This past couple of years have seen so many warm-weather birds visiting us, that no one really knows just what can be seen. I'm expecting to hear about warblers and so on. Who knows. . .

The Remington Arms Company have come up with a new gun; it is being developed now, so it will be some time before they put it out on the market. I believe it is a 358 calibre, boy is this a big — a real moose, bear, hippo, and up type. Get this into the hands of some jerk and trees will fall by the cord. I really have my doubts on this one as it is being made the same as the 600 model carbine, very short and light for this calibre, being only 7½ pounds. It should be just what the moose hunters want, not too much weight and so forth. I haven't had a chance to even see this new gun, but just as soon as this opportunity shows up, I'm going to try it out. If anyone sees a jet going through the air, it will be me, at least I think this is what will happen. Just have to wait and see though, with so many new guns on the market with considerably less recoil than the older types, I may be fooled.

There should be plenty of snow-shoeing just now, however a couple of tips for some of you who are just going out. Take it easy for a while, break yourself in easily at first. Just as everything else, you have to condition yourself by degrees, so don't think you can start off by walking twenty miles. I think the best conditioning is to get on some quiet road with not too much traffic. Here you can amble along getting used to the shoe itself. I know just how tough it can be walking in soft snow, especially if you have stopped to brew a cup of tea for yourself and your legs stiffen up.

I believe we all know the interest that has been shown by everyone on the fate of the Whooping Cranes, some good news for a change. There are now 42 of them flying around and this seems to have been the best year for them in the last quarter century. A total of 32 nested in the Wood Buffalo National Park in the North West Territories last spring, and high hopes are held for them this year. Isn't it funny how certain types of birds and animals get down to the point of extinction, then we stupid humans decide to do something about it. In this case it was almost too late but for many years everything has been done to help these birds, and it may be that it is going to pay off this time. The next time we may not be so lucky. Of course all manners of excuses have come up as to why these birds were disappearing, but I believe this has been due only to man, so it should be him that attempts to get them back.

Rabbits are once more showing up. With the scarcity of them this past fall, anyone getting a feed was lucky. Of course they will be safe from the shooters right now, so they should be right back in high gear by next fall, this should be the end of another cycle so we will probably be overrun with them. Then nature steps in to slow things down, and that is it. Strange how this is done, isn't it. Too many of anything and nature steps in to weed out the sickly. Cruel, but necessary.

Our fishing association had themselves a day down at St. Placide last week-end. While not having the best of weather they did manage to have 90 fishermen there. Some good catches were taken, and I believe they all had a good time. There is talk of another derby during the month of February, this I do not know about for sure, but will try and let you know in plenty of time. This is one good way to keep interest in the association at a high peak. Let's hope they do not have to contend with the weather again.

A few reports have been coming in on Trout fishing through the ice; last year a few lakes were opened as an experiment, having been tried and found to be good, the government has opened a few more lakes. These are nearer this area, so it is possible for a fisherman to get there without too much lost time. The way it was with these lakes being much farther north, it took a long week-end to really get settled in. After all you have to find out the areas, and this does take time. The Lac Simon area seems to be pretty well known to many of the men in this immediate district, so they should have luck. As usual all the ice fishing areas have been good. I was shown some Perch that had been taken out of the Ottawa above Point-au-Chene, these sure were wonderful fish. I guess they would weigh about a pound to a pound-and-a-half — real eating fish. More Calico Bass have been taken near the Dam at Carillon. For anyone catching these for the first time, I hope you will try eating them as they are really good. Once you have tasted them, I don't think you will have any more doubts on their edibility.

Fishing is not too far away now — I mean the stream and lake type. Boy won't it be great to wade a creek hoping for a fish. So you want to know what brings this all on, OK, I was checking my lures and reels the other night. How about you, done anything since last fall? I wonder if you left your mono lines on the spinning reels. I hope not as I think one of the dirtiest jobs going is to get this off after it has melted into the spool and gears. Of course this doesn't happen too often but all it needs is a little fuel oil, nail polish remover, etc., to do the trick. As for the dirt that will have collected in your reels, well you sure won't get any Good Housekeeping awards for them I'm sure. Better start doing something about them. I guess you think I'm nuts talking fishing tackle just now, but believe me fooling around with it sure helps to pass the winter. Just think of all the dreams you could have on the good ones you hope to catch and some of the ideas you can come up with. Maybe you can make a couple of extra baits, real snappers; so what happens come spring, well you just throw them away. . . I know I do anyway. But good tackle should be looked after, it really doesn't take much, and when you consider the many hours of joy you can get out of it, then it's worth that little time spent.

SKI TRAILS

By Ross Cole,
Director, Ayers Ski School

Ski Tips — It is interesting to note how often skiers have come into the shop and complained of snow sticking to the base of their skis. After a little investigation, I find that ice has formed on the soles of the skis therefore giving a rough surface for the snow to adhere to.

The most common error most skiers make, is in taking their skis out of a warm car or chalet and throwing them directly on the snow without giving them sufficient time to climatize to the outside temperatures. Directly this is done, the warm ski melts the snow and then freezes, forming ice on the running surfaces of the skis. This of course, leaves the skier with the hard task of scraping the ice from the skis when a little caution on their part, such as leaning them up against a ski rack or building for 15-20 minutes could prevent it.

Ski School News — Last week we mentioned more than 25 women showed up for the "Housewives Special". To be exact, 53 women registered for the program to make an overwhelming success. Of this number, approximately 35 were placed in the beginners classes and it was interesting to note how many were schussing the beginners slopes after their first lesson, at the rate they were progressing, it won't be long before they are all taking the lift to the top of the mountain and really enjoying the thrill the sport has to offer.

I think a note of congratulations should go to all these women and their husbands (who most probably were left to make their own lunches), for making this six week program the success it is.

Ram Ski Club News — This past Sunday marked the beginning of the racing schedule for the club. A Junior and Senior Slalom was run using the newly purchased Walkie-talkies. This new communication set-up without the use of troublesome wires proved to be the answer to the Racing Officials problems. In the past, races had to be stopped part way through and sometimes cancelled with a break in communications. Now they can be run smoothly and efficiently.

The racing results were as follows:

Girls — 8 and Under

1. Andrea Thompson	16.4 sec.
2. Joan Syversky	20.0 sec.
3. Sherill Syversky	55.2 sec.

Girls — 8-11

1. Janice Humphries	27.8 sec.
2. Marionne Rivington	32.5 sec.
3. Patsy Chalmers	49.0 sec.

Girls — 12-16

1. Carolyn Summers	44.4 sec.
2. Debbie McCaffrey	48.8 sec.
3. Susan Sugden	1.073 sec.

Ladies Open

1. Rachel Barbour	50.1 sec.
2. Carol Collins	58.5 sec.
3. Rhoda Syversky	1.023 sec.

Ladies — Over 30

1. Rachel Barbour	50.1 sec.
2. Rhoda Syversky	1.023 sec.
3. Diane Saxton	1.072 sec.

Boys — 8 and Under

1. David Saxton	24.5 sec.

Boys 8-11

1. Daniel Brousseau	28.5 sec.
2. David Donaldson	29.4 sec.
3. Blair Barbour	30.8 sec.

Boys 12-16

1. Mark Racine	34.9 sec.
2. Glen Syversky	36.0 sec.
3. Steve Assaly	36.8 sec.

Men's Open

1. Don Barbour	30.8 sec.
2. Jean Beauchamp	33.5 sec.
3. Blair Vessie	36.2 sec.

Men — Over 30

1. Don Barbour	30.8 sec.
2. Syd Syversky	39.4 sec.
3. Jack Doyle	41.1 sec.

Award Pins — This coming Sunday at 12.30, a silver award test will be held for holders of the bronze award. Anyone wishing to try for their Silver, please register in the Ski Shop before noon.

CURLING

Activities in Brownsburg

The Schoolboy Bonspiel held in Brownsburg last Saturday wound up with some exciting pressure-packed games and a good turn-out of parents and friends to see the boys in action. Rosemere, with Arnold McLean, skip, along with third, Bill Burns; Brian McLean, second and lead, Dave Keating, rolled up most impressive scores against the rinks they met to wrap up the title for the day. Congratulations, fellows, nice curling. Mike Lambert's quartet, with Alan Vowles, Terry Hamilton and Sean Hall were in there fighting and came up with the consolation. The runner-up was another rink from Rosemere skipped by Derek Patterson. Unfortunately Derek's third was unable to come but Garry Fisher, second, and Rick Piatt, lead, took over for him and the trio made an excellent showing. The day was a big success thanks to Gerry Tomalty, Ken Ball and his helpers and the school-girls who were kind enough to assist the Ladies' Branch of the Club in the kitchen. George Dixon, our soft drink dispenser behind the "bar", also deserves a hand.

The afternoon curlers have received several invitations to "friendlies" at various clubs recently, including:

Rosemere, January 27 — Mrs. R. Keatley, Mrs. A. McCulloch, Mrs. J. Broadfoot and Mrs. G. Lacasse.

Royal Montreal, February 9 — Mrs. K. B. Bourne, Mrs. W. G. Richardson, Mrs. R. Sugden and Mrs. W. Mann.

Lachine, February 10 — Mrs. S. Rose, Mrs. W. Hazel, Mrs. M. Lafleur and Mrs. F. Bauer.

Montebello, Club de Granite, February 11 — Mrs. S. Hall, Mrs. G. Tomalty, Mrs. K. Ball and Mrs. J. Boulais.

Buckingham, February 18 — Mrs. C. Low, Mrs. W. Dimock, Mrs. A. Stewart and Mrs. E. Laurin.

Busy life you are leading, ladies, no wonder you have to get up at the "crack of dawn" to get your housework done.

Don't forget the Laurentian Zone Legion play-downs at the Brownsburg Club on February 7. There should be some interesting games to watch.

The Consolation of the Invitation Mixed Bonspiel in Alexandria last Saturday was won by Andrew Hardy, skip, Iris Hardy, Syl Hall and Muriel Hall. The runners-up were Kilgour Hardy, Joyce Atkins, Dave Atkins and Ruth Hardy. Nice curling, folks.

The Winter Carnival will be here before we know it. Have you remembered to sign up for the evening "Mixed Curling" that will be played Carnival week?

LACHUTE 1884 CURLING CLUB

Our Lachute rink of Art Lobel (skip), Don McFaul, Lionel Rendell and Carl Rodger, winners of the Western zone in the MacDonald Brier lost two extremely close games to the Southern zone winners, Elmer Black, of Howick. The scores were 6 to 4 and 7 to 6. Our boys are to be congratulated on their fine showing.

Two Lachute rinks, winners of Centre No. 12, to travel to the Ottawa Hunt Club on February 2 to play against the winners of Centre 31 in the Governor-General's "Two Rink" total-score playdowns. The winners of Centres 12 and 13 will play off against the winners of Centres 10 and 11 on our Lachute ice on February 3.

The MacKimmie Memorial Mixed Bonspiel — the 29th successive playing — was completed on Thursday night. Bill White (skip), Mrs. Jean Stein, Jim Hay and Mrs. Myrtle Kettyle won out over Don Bradley (skip), Miss Elizabeth Burress, Bill Haldimand and Mrs. Joyce Rendell. Prizes were presented to the winners and runners-up by Wm. S. MacKimmie, and the MacKimmie Ladies and their helpers served refreshments to the large number in attendance. President Don McFaul thanked the MacKimmie families for their generous efforts, much appreciated by the club year after year. This is the only bonspiel in which the ladies team with the men and it is the most popular one of the year. A mixed bonspiel of the knock-out type started on January 29 and will be completed on February 12.

Our ice will be used by the Hawkesbury Curling Club on Saturday evening, February 6. Plans are also being worked out to see if Montreal West and Hawkesbury Clubs would like to join our club in a week-end bonspiel later in February, as both these clubs lost their buildings through fire.

Last Saturday night's fun should be remembered as the gala night of the year. Many members went to a great deal of effort to make or acquire costumes for the masquerade. The judges, Walter Tierney, Donald Rodger and Stewart Jones had no easy task to come up with seven prize winners.

The best costumes of the masquerade went to Mrs. Syd Drew in an excellent costume "5x5" while husband Syd was dressed as a buccaneer.

The prizes for originality went to Don Hay dressed as a French-Marquis and to Mrs. Jean Stein as an Indian squaw, complete with a papoose slung from her shoulders.

The funniest prize went to a group of eight members portraying a chain gang. Each was tied to the next with a leg chain and all had jail-bird costumes and carried the tools of a chain gang, including a small weighted curling stone attached to the metal chain.

Mrs. Irene Rutherford was awarded a prize for best actor, being costumed as Liberace, as was Tom Johnston, portraying a "Belle of the Ball".

Had there been 20 prizes to be awarded it would have been easy to choose that many deserving contestants.

The entertainment "Irma La-Douce and her gals" brought the house down! The parts were all taken by men who, without any rehearsal, tried to outdo each other in a display of the delights of the Parisienne night life. To those responsible for the highly successful "Saturday night", our warm appreciation and hearty thanks.

Emmett Lowe's Orchestra gave their usual excellent performance and greatly pleased everyone present. They're a treat.

Lachute Ladies' CURLING Activities

On Thursday, January 28 the finals of the President's Bonspiel were played with the rink of Do Fraser, skip; Agnes Jones, third; Flo Underhill, second and lead Peg Simon defeating skip Hazel Cottingham; Eileen Rutherford, third; Lucille Davidson, second and lead Ruth Minor. At the close of the game, sherry was served by the Reception Committee to an excellent turnout of members; followed by an enjoyable tea. The reason for this gala atmosphere was a well-planned surprise for Leona MacKimmie, Bobby McFaul, Eileen Rutherford and Lena Bradshaw who are leaving this week for Arvida to take part in the play-downs for the "Diamond D" bonspiel. This "party" was a well-kept secret and it was a joy to see the surprised expressions on these girls' faces when they were presented with attractive pins. In the absence of our president, Mrs. Edmond McFaul, the pins were presented by Mrs. Tom Johnston. Once again we wish you good curling and good luck.

Mrs. Bill MacKimmie and Mrs. Albert Ogilvie presided at the tea, and the convener was Mrs. Agnes Jones.

Now taking place is the Club Bonspiel, with everyone putting their best broom forward.

The report from the rinks in "away" games, such as the "Sewell", Sherbrooke, Rosemere, Glenmore, the Laurentian, is that there were some wins and some losses, but all agreed that a really good time was enjoyed by all.

Decoy contest is innovation at Cdn. Sportsmen's Show

An Open Decoy-Maker's Contest will be an attractive new event at the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show in March. The use of decoys has long been a means of luring waterfowl well within shooting range and is thus regarded as a conservation measure. It effectively eliminates long shots, reduces cripples, and helps to save the duck population.

Consistent with the decoy-making, there will be a contest in duck calling. Featured will be hand-carved and painted waterfowl decoys, both in the gunning classes of marsh and diving duck blocks, as well as decoys of the decorative type. Following the judging of the decoys, they will be on exhibit throughout the Sportsmen's Show.

The committee of judges will include the well-known author of "Ducks, Geese and Swans of North America", F. H. Kortright, President of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show; Director of the Niska Waterfowl Research Station, Professor Cringan; Curator of the National Aeronautics Museum, Kenneth Molson, an ardent duck hunter and decoy collector; and William Mackey, outstanding American collector and author of a new book on decoys. Saturday afternoon the Duck Calling Contest will be held in the Sports Demonstration Area, and it is expected that some of Canada's top guides and duck hunters will compete.

Obviously, the success of this new venture will be dependent largely upon the interest shown by the many fine Canadian and U.S. carvers and callers. It is hoped that those wishing to compete will write at once for entry forms to Mr. R. J. Mitchele, Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, 85 King Street East, Toronto. While entries will be accepted until March 10, the display arrangement manager must have a good idea of the space required at the earliest possible date to ensure a fair positioning of the decoys entered.

CONTRACT AWARDED

Halifax (CP) — Cambrian Construction Limited of Montreal, has been awarded a $1,064,000 contract for a new five-storey federal office building in west-end Halifax. It will house offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, National Film Board, finance and defence departments.

Safety Council planning drastic life-saving action

With reports incomplete, the Canadian Highway Safety Council estimates the 1964 toll of human life on Canada's highways as 4,500, with more than 130,000 people injured.

"Normal progression established over the last decade," stated CHSC, "indicates a traffic death toll in 1965 of 4,800, accompanied by 140,000 people injured and an economic loss to the nation of half a billion dollars."

W. Arch Bryce, Council executive director, in a year-end statement, said, "The motor car served Canadians well in 1964. More than seven million licensed drivers could so testify. Of those, 6,000,000 drove with credit to themselves and with consideration for others."

Mr. Bryce believed the price paid on our roads and streets was high, much higher than necessary. "As we enter 1965 we can be sure that greater use than ever will be made of the motor vehicle. More than 300,000 new teen-age drivers will seek licenses and mingle with the stream of seasoned drivers. Senior drivers past 65 years of age, pensioned and with leisure, will remain on our roads in increasing numbers."

Mr. Bryce termed death and injury in road traffic "a tragic waste". He indicated nation-wide plans to slash Canada's road toll.

In co-operation with provincial and local safety organizations, CHSC intends to take drastic steps to stem the steady, apparently inevitable sapping of the life blood of the nation, he reported. "The objective is to reduce the rising death toll by 500 lives, not only to hold the accident rate at its present frightening level but to reduce it."

Efficient handling of the problem, like any other practical business, industrial or social problem, depended on education — the young, the old, the driver, the pedestrian; enforcement — control and direction of the driver and pedestrian; engineering — safer vehicles, safer roads, satisfactory signing and signalling.

Mr. Bryce said, "Industry has proven that great factories can complete millions of hours without a single lost-time accident. Must society, with the individual responsible for his own safety, prove less reasonable? Perhaps we don't really care, some of us, whether we live or die. Perhaps we still think that ours is a charmed life. The accident will happen to someone else!

"If, in 1965, we can strive to remain alive and to prevent harm coming to others because of our carelessness, the goal of the Council in saving lives will be assured."

Local association again sponsoring contest for conservation essays

J. B. S. Muard, Chairman of the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations' Education Committee, announces, for a fourth consecutive year, an Essay Contest on conservation of our renewable natural resources. The contest is open to all school children and members of 4-H Clubs, Young Naturalists, Young Agriculturists, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and other youth organizations in the Province of Quebec.

As last year, the contest is sponsored locally by the Argenteuil Fish and Game Association and all essays should be sent to the Association Secretary, Jean Luc Chaloux, Brownsburg Sub. 1, prior to March 12. Committee members are Jos. Santini and André Barsalou, while the contest judges are Don Titman and Fernand Berthiaume.

Last year, the Sterling Pollock trophy and a $100 award was won by Pat Taylor, of Lachute High School, who topped the province in the English competition and Michel Berthiaume, of l'Ecole Secondaire de Lachute, was awarded third prize in the French competition.

Contestants are asked to submit essays with not less than 100 words and not more than 400 words. The themes of the contest to be selected are:

For the category of 14 years and under:

Recreation in the Forest

The pleasure of living in the forest.

A family having a pleasure trip in the forest.

OR

Your Favorite Wild Animal

Give a short description of your favorite wild animal. What can you do to help its survival?

For the category of 15 years and over:

Survival in the Forest

If you ever get lost in the forest one day, what would you do?

OR

The Game Laws

It is forbidden by the law to hunt deer or moose during the night with a jacklight.

In your opinion, what are the reasons which justify this game law?

Thirty-four prizes in cash, for an amount of $460 will be given to winners. Two very attractive trophies will also be presented.

Grand Prize: Boy or Girl — $100.00 and Trophy.

Winners in each category for boys and girls will receive the following prizes:

First Prize: $25; 2nd Prize: $15; 3rd Prize: $10; Honorable Mention: $5.

Same prizes will be awarded to French contestants. The trophies are the Sterling Pollock Trophy for the best English essay and the Gaetan Benoit Trophy for the best French essay. The trophy will be held for one year by the winner's school or organization and the winner will receive a miniature trophy for his or her permanent possession. A souvenir gift will be given to the teacher of each contest winner.

Province-Wide Contest

The contest covers the entire province of Quebec and it is sponsored in each district by a regional or local fish and game association, which is a member of Federation. The committee appointed by the fish and game association will be responsible to select the two best essays, from the Education Committee of Federation before April 15, 1965. All essays submitted must show the contestant's name, age and address, name of school, grade, and must include the teacher's name. In the case of other youth organizations, the name of the organization and its chief local officer must be shown on the registration form.

Carnival Queen to be chosen at Hawkesbury

The Rotary Club of Hawkesbury is sponsoring the choosing of a Carnival Queen and an Amateur Nite to be held at the Hawkesbury Memorial Centre, 8 p.m., Wednesday, February 10. The judges for the Carnival Queen are as follows: Mrs. Gérard Chenier, Mrs. Noel Berthiaume, Mrs. Paul Lavoie, Mrs. Yvan Seguin, and Miss Yvonne Thauvette.

The Hawkesbury District High School Band, under the direction of John Roebuck, has graciously offered to render a number of musical selections during the evening. Spanky Gray and his orchestra will accompany all the amateur talent. After the crowning of the Queen, a Rock & Roll Dance will be held for the teenagers. The Strangers, a well-known local Rock & Roll band will provide the music.

All the citizens of Hawkesbury and district are cordially invited to attend this gala evening.

Memorial service for Churchill in Morin School

A Memorial Service for the late Sir Winston Churchill was held at the school last Friday. The Service was conducted by the Rev. H. G. Baugh, of the Anglican Church; Rev. R. McCullough, of the United Church and Padré Bill, of the RCAF Station, Lac St. Denis. The speakers were the Commanding Officer of the Station, W/C L. Dupuis and the principal, Mr. R. Williams.

Pupils of the Catholic school of Morin Heights attended the service, and Father Giraldeau also assisted.

A recording of the voice of Sir Winston was played during the service. Attending the service was the Mayor of Morin Heights, M. G. Watchorn, and the Inspector of Schools of the Department of Education, Mr. Allan Young.

'The Science Fair'

By Sandra Hall

Competition is a healthy part of school activity today, whether it be academically or scholastically. This year the Rotary Club of Brownsburg-Lachute has promoted a Science Fair for all schools in the county of Argenteuil, both English and French. A project may show original research or be a demonstration of a biological, chemical, physical, mathematical or technical principle. Examples of such projects are the toy motor, the working of a doorbell, the nature of sound waves, the formation of a volcano, or mutations in bacteria. Any student attending a school where the Science Fair is being held is qualified to enter, providing he or she is of high school standing. Teachers at these schools are usually more than willing to offer any advice to a student who may be seeking information.

The purpose of a Science Fair is to promote an interest in mathematics and science through award competition in study projects.

Exhibits are judged by committees of scientists, educators, engineers, doctors, and other specially qualified men and women in the community. Prizes will be donated by our local industries. The owners of the better science projects will be encouraged to enter the Science Fair at the University of Montreal. This is the Fourth Annual Canada-Wide Science Fair. It will be held this year on May 6, 7, and 8. Two over-all best awards — one each for boys and girls — consist of expense-paid trips to the International Youth Science Fortnight in London, England. A total of four first awards will be offered: one to each boy and girl placing first in biological and physical sciences. Four second place, four third place, and a minimum of ten general proficiency awards will be made to those designated by the Canada-Wide Science Fair Committee whose decisions will be final.

I am sure the satisfaction that the student earns from his achievements far outweighs the great amount of spare time spent in preparation for the event.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

BIRTHS

"There lives in our hearts memories
That will never fade away,
Memories that shall always linger
Where time can't take away."

'The Sports Scene'

Basketball:

On Friday evening, the St. Eustache senior teams were entertained by Brownsburg. The girls' game was fairly close until the middle of the second quarter when Brownsburg began to "open up". The scores mounted for each side, but our girls held their lead until the end of the game, winning by a score of 36-21. Our forwards were passing and shooting well; Linda Tomalty scored 20 points and Carolyn Summers picked up nine. It was the guards though (Cathy Bourne, Allison Rose, and Bonnie Anderson), who thwarted St. Eustache's offensive attack. Diane Cruise played an outstanding game for Brownsburg while alternating from guard to forward.

The boys' game was exciting from beginning to end. Brownsburg held a slight lead during the first half. By the end of the third quarter when both teams were making almost every shot, our boys had pulled ahead by ten points. Then, with only forty-five seconds left, St. Eustache made their comeback. They scored five quick baskets to tie the tally before the conclusion of regular play. During the three-minute overtime period, Brownsburg, led by the shooting of Winston Dixon and Vernon Thompson, pulled out in front by ten points. The final statistics showed the score to be Brownsburg 59, St. Eustache 49, with Marc Racine and Winston Dixon scoring 17 points each, and Vernon Thompson scoring 15.

On Saturday morning, Lachute played our junior teams. As the Lachute boys brought only six players, when one of them was fouled out, they soon fell behind. By the end of the game, Brownsburg was ahead by a score of 58-30. Terry Hamilton was our high scorer with 29 points. Dickie Moore and Michael Taylor played good defensive games.

The junior girls contest also found Brownsburg ahead 55-21. Lachute had a difficult time getting through the defensive guarding of Beverly Bauer and Audrey Jackson at the same time, they were snowed under by the scoring of Rosemary Steere, Debbie Campbell, and Valerie Brown.

Curling:

On Saturday, a curling bonspiel was held at the Brownsburg Curling Rink. Ten schools entered teams. Rosemere High School won the event and our school used three teams, one of which placed second in the finals. This Brownsburg team consisted of Michael Lambert, Alan Vowles, Terry Hamilton, and Sean Hall.

Skiing:

A ski club is being organized in our school. Plans are being made to take a racing team to Ste. Agathe in the next month. This sounds like a day of fun for all concerned.

Miss Joan Zimmer, of Montreal, was a week-end guest at her home here.

Mrs. A. Potter, of Montreal, visited friends here on Tuesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Stephens spent the week-end in Ottawa visiting with Mr. Campbell Stephens and Miss Kathryn Stephens.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Cowley and family; Misses Rosemary Steere and Janice Broadfoot were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Freeborn, in Pointe-aux-Trembles.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Petley were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bridge in Montreal.

Mrs. Wm. Brown left Dorval by air on Wednesday last for Lake Worth, Florida, to be with Mr. and Mrs. J. Maitland. Mrs. Maitland is quite ill. Best wishes for a speedy recovery from her many friends in Brownsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. E. MacLeod, of Pierrefonds, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Barker. Mrs. W. Townsend accompanied them home and will be their guest for a couple of weeks.

Friends of this community wish to express their sympathy to Mrs. R. Creswell, whose uncle, Mr. L. Ferguson, of St. John, N.B., passed away on Sunday.

Calumet resident died recently

The community of Calumet was saddened by the death of Ernest Nixon in the Argenteuil Hospital on December 30, 1964. In his 66th year, he was born in Rawcliffe, and was the second son of the late Henry Nixon and his wife, Margaret Karr.

He was predeceased by his wife, Florence Lee, some twenty years ago and leaves to mourn his passing his sons, Melvin, of Rawcliffe and Gordon, of Lachute; two brothers, Edmond, of Grenville, and Eddy, of St. Philippe, and two grandchildren.

The funeral service was held in the MacKimmie Funeral Chapel and interment in the Calumet cemetery, the service conducted by the Rev. Thompson. The pallbearers were Charlie Nixon, Clifford Nixon, Alton Nixon, Albert Gauley, Ewen Arthurs and Marcel Debeau.

Brownsb'g mayor declares February Charity month

WHEREAS the annual campaign of the Laurentian Federation of Charities will be held throughout the Laurentians, from March 7 to March 22, 1965;

WHEREAS it is obvious to proclaim that fact publicly and to encourage every citizen to support this drive by giving their time, their active participation and their money;

THEREFORE, by the present, it is declared and proclaimed that the month of March 1965 shall and will be known in the Village of Brownsburg as "THE MONTH OF CHARITY".

— Mayor Jas. B. Donaldson

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

WARWICK — The family of the late W. H. Warwick wish to express their sincere thanks to their many friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy during their recent bereavement.

Officers elected at annual meeting of Brownsburg Red Cross Society

At the annual meeting of the Brownsburg branch of the Canadian Red Cross, N. E. Smillie presented the slate of officers for this year.

Past president, G. H. Quinn; president, Jacques Racine; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Omer Legault; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. Thos. Tomlinson; secretary, Mrs. Gordon Tomalty; treasurer, Mrs. Ross Keatley.

Local representatives, Mrs. M. Reid, Mrs. D. Charron and Mrs. R. Lafleur.

Financial Campaign — Joint-chairman D. N. Atkins and Remi Raymond.

Blood Donor Clinic, Mrs. Wm. Morrow.

Sick Room and Loan Cupboard Supplies — Mrs. R. Lafleur, Mrs. Omer Legault and F. R. Vowles.

Veteran's Welfare chairman, Sydney Seary.

Water Safety, Mr. J. Binner.

Publicity, Mrs. Lloyd Roberts.

Women's Work, Mrs. Fred Barker.

Appreciation was extended to Canadian Industries, Boyd's Express and all others who have helped during the past year.

Jacques Racine was appointed delegate to the Red Cross Annual Convention.

Mrs. Fred Barker reported 1,427 articles had been shipped to headquarters. These consisted of children's clothes, knitted sweaters, socks, etc.; also included were 10,000 swabs.

The Red Cross room, upstairs, in the Social Club will be open every Friday between 2 and 3.30 p.m.

So ladies, how about oiling up the sewing machine and polishing the knitting needles and helping the Red Cross help someone less fortunate.

WATCHMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS.

Student Nurse . . . Linda MacKimmie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doug MacKimmie, of Lachute, a first-year student at the Royal Victoria Hospital School of Nursing, was among a group of students who recently visited the Montreal Association for the Blind. Above, Linda looks on while Mrs. Florence Petrie teaches Charlene Webb and Paul Acres the Cuisinaire method of arithmetic, which lets children divide, multiply and calculate by means of different shaped pieces of wood.

HAVE FAITH

It is a requirement for life

"By means of this (faith) the men of old times had witness borne to them." They pleased Jehovah God because of their faith that they backed up by works. Works of faith today produce similar results.

Read of the expanding Christian activity of Jehovah's witnesses in the 1965 "Yearbook of Jehovah's Witnesses". Avail yourself also of daily Bible study through the section "Daily Texts and Comments."

A joint meeting of the Montreal Presbyterial United Church Women and members of the Montreal Presbytery will be held in Wesley United Church, Notre Dame de Grace, on Wednesday, February 17, beginning at 7.30 p.m.

An address by the Right Rev. Ernest Marshall Howse, S.T.M., PhD., Moderator of the United Church of Canada, will highlight the meeting. This will be the only public meeting to be held during the Moderator's coming visit to Montreal. It is the first such meeting held in Montreal since his appointment by the General Council at a meeting held in Newfoundland last September.

Included among those participating in the program will be Rev. Dr. R. Graham Barr, President, Montreal and Ottawa Conference; Rev. Victor C. Rose, Chairman, Montreal Presbytery; Rev. Donald J. Miller, Minister, Wesley United Church; Rev. J. Ralph Watson, Secretary, Montreal Presbytery; Rev. Dr. R. Douglas Smith; Mrs. B. K. Wasson, President, Montreal Presbyterial United Church Women. The Choir of Wesley United Church under the direction of the organist Mr. N. W. Beauchamp will be present.

Registering at 9.30 a.m. that day Montreal Presbyterial United Church Women will hold their Third Annual Meeting in Wesley United Church.

Miss Phyllis Haslam, Executive Secretary, Elizabeth Fry Society will be the guest speaker during the afternoon session.

During dinner M. L'Abbe Jean Martucci, General Secretary, Pavilion of Unity, Exposition 1967, will speak.

Taking part in the day's program will be Mrs. B. K. Wasson, Mrs. A. A. Morrison, President of Montreal and Ottawa Conference; United Church Women, Mrs. Delbert Dupre, Mrs. R. Douglas Smith, Mrs. V. W. G. Wilson, Mrs. G. Johnson, Mrs. Paul S. Smith and Mrs. D. Scoates who is the meeting's convener.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

HEAT AND THE SUN

From childhood I have been given to understand that all the heat we get on this earth comes from the sun. I can well believe this on a sweltering day in July. But here is what puzzles me.

Why is it that in late December we can have temperatures up to 45 and 50 (remember last Christmas?) At this time of the year the sun is at its lowest ebb, sticking close to the horizon and setting shortly after 4 p.m.

Now, in March, when the days are much longer and the sun very strong, we can have below zero temperatures — (13 below on March 4th 1936 or '37 in Montreal and 33 below at Bouchervile the previous night.) I know because I was there. The 13th was a very bright sunny day but did the sun produce any heat? Not a bit!

So there are lots of things that I don't know about, lots of things. About ten years ago I remember telling Watchman readers about one cold night in Lost River. It was so cold that the flames in my cookstove froze solid and I had to thaw them out with a blow-torch. I put a bucket of hot water outside the cabin door and it froze so quick that the ice was still warm. Don't believe me, huh? That was the night my teeth chattered so much they upset the glass of water they were in.

By the way, does anybody want to buy a nice 1964 calendar, practically new — only one leaf torn off. No reasonable offer refused.

Be Seein' Ya!

— Uncle Walt

APPRECIATION

I wish to extend my thanks and appreciation to relatives, friends and neighbors for their gifts, cards, visits and telephone calls; also special thanks to the nursing staff and doctors who attended me during my stay in the Argenteuil Hospital in Lachute.

Dr. John C. MacKimmie and Dr. Marc Papineau were in Montreal attending the Course in Diabetes Mellitus and Clinical Endocrinology given February 1-3, under the auspices of the Post-Graduate Board of the Royal Victoria Hospital. Dr. Martin M. Hoffman and Dr. Eleanor E. McGarry were Joint Chairmen of the Course, which emphasized treatment and diagnosis of diabetes and diseases of the thyroid and parathyroid and other endocrine disorders. Dr. Grant Liddle, Department of Medicine, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee, gave a special lecture entitled "Endocrine Syndromes produced by Tumors of Nonendocrine Tissues". All other lectures were given by members of the staff of the Royal Victoria Hospital.

The Bible Today

When Christian workers are forced to leave a nation, "the Bible remains to witness," Dr. Robert T. Taylor, general secretary of the American Bible Society, told a meeting in New York City recently, reports the Lutheran Witness.

When Christian schools are forced to close, Dr. Taylor said, "the Bible carries on its basic work of Christian education.

"In a world which is often suspicious of anything exported by the west, the Bible speaks for mankind, not for any particular nation or culture but for the eternal message of the Holy Spirit."

Distribution of the Bible, the secretary emphasized, is "the No. 1 priority in Christian enterprise today."

W.I. activities for January

Arundel—The January meeting of the Women's Institute was conducted by the Convenor of Citizenship, Mrs. Gibbons, who held a written contest on Canadian geography and current events. The roll-call was answered by naming a well-known personality, preferably Canadian. Plans for a Valentine party were discussed for the February meeting.

Brownsburg — An interesting account was given by County President, Mrs. Charles Stephens, on a visit she enjoyed at the Women's Institute meeting near London, Ont., where her daughter is a member, and films were shown on "Quality of a Nation" by Mrs. G. Connelly, one of their members. The roll-call was answered by all members giving their age in French. Recent activities included a donation made to the Grace Dart Hospital; the catering of a wedding of a member's daughter, and a future date set for a Spring millinery course.

Dalesville - Louisa — An interesting talk was given by County President, Mrs. C. Stephens, bringing the members up to date on Women's Institute work in general. The roll-call was answered by members giving ideas on what to do in different emergencies.

Frontier — The good and bad points of "Retirement at Age of 65" was given by the Publicity Convener. Activities included a donation to the Children's Hospital and the Lachute High School Lampada. A contest on news events was held and work accomplished on three plays.

Jerusalem - Bethany — This branch answered the roll-call by naming a floral emblem or a flower of a Province or Country. The members enjoyed a game of "Password"; arrangements for a hat course in the Spring, the making of a quilt and a donation of $5.00 to Lachute High School Lampada.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. Blossom Kennedy wishes to thank her many friends for cards, flowers and gifts received during her recent stay in hospital. Special thanks to the members of the Maple Avenue Baptist Church.

APPRECIATION

I wish to express my thanks to the hospital staff and all friends and relatives who visited me and sent cards of good wishes during my stay in the Argenteuil Hospital.

If your family is too big for the beetle, and too shy for the bus, you've just given yourself the best reasons for looking into the Volkswagen 1500.

Some families outgrow our beetle. Nature.

And some people will never get used to the idea of being seen in our Station Bus. Human nature.

So it was second nature for us to bring out the Volkswagen 1500.

We made the 1500 to seat five people. Or an almost infinite number of small, dirty faces.

And to get everyone where they want to go at a clip that's almost undignified for us to mention.

(Our TS engine zips from a standing start to 50 mph in 12 seconds.)

But we didn't get carried away completely.

We got a good grip on ourselves. And left the 1500's engine in the rear over the drive wheels.

And we cool it with air instead of that well known wet stuff. And you still don't have to buy anti-freeze because we still don't have any radiator.

So don't let a beetle or a bus owner say you're not driving a VW when you pull up in a 1500.

You might have a little more family. And you might have a little less bravado.

But you've got as much Volkswagen.

Of Many Things

By Ambrose Hills

EDUCATION IN HOSPITAL

A hernia of the gullet and some other afflictions landed me in Winnipeg General Hospital. By good fortune I always seemed to be bedded down next to a farmer. Shifted from ward to ward four times, I was teamed with a farmer thrice and a diesel engineer once. I learned a lot.

I've been an armchair student of farming for a long time. In fact, the two books I chose for reading while in there were Fat of The Land, and Louise Bromfield's book on the pleasures and miseries of life on the farm, which he titled, From My Experience. I was able to check the theories in these books against the practical knowledge of the Manitoba farmers.

They jibed, almost every time.

For example, it is advisable to have some cows or beef cattle around where your pigs feed. Cattle are great producers of vitamin B12, which the pigs seem to need. All my farmer wardmates had noticed that pigs did better following steers, but weren't quite sure why. They learned these things by experience and by sharp observation. I learned also, from farmers, that if you don't have a deep freeze, you can keep pork just fine by salting it well, wrapping in brown paper, and then burying it in the oat bin!

In the hospital I learned a lot about farmers, too. They make good patients, and the nurses love them. They take afflictions in their stride, just as they have learned to take bad weather or rust or saw fly. One pretty young nurse told me she would rather care for two farmers than one city man anyday. "They've got more courage," she said.

This city sissy was forced to agree as he squirmed under her probing needle.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Home chores and other work

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Chores should be part of every school child's daily life. These should include necessary tasks such as doing his own bed and taking a turn with setting the table or doing the dishes and also jobs which attract volunteers — such as running an errand or answering the phone. Gradually most youngsters get satisfaction not just from praise for being useful but from a sense of achievement in a job well done.

There are several steps in training a child in responsibility. The little boy or girl will often work with mother at picking up toys and putting them away. Soon he can do this himself, with a little supervision and appreciation when he has completed his work. The older a child grows the less direction should be required. The goal is an imaginative, disciplined individual who gets under the load of his fair share of work, and once in a while does a useful job for the family on his own initiative.

All honest work, in and outside the home, is worthy of honor. Let us, as parents place the emphasis, not just on "How much money is paid for this work?" but on "What is worth doing is worth doing well!"

If mother looks on her role apologetically as "just a housewife," instead of as a homemaker, how can she expect her child to think highly of housekeeping tasks? They get their cue from her. If she experiments with new, more efficient ways of doing her work, if she tries out new recipes and food combinations and takes pride in arranging a bouquet or caring for house plants, the labor of the mother in the home acquires new dignity in the eyes of the rest of the family.

A child's attitude to labor includes the way he thinks of his father's work, too. Unfortunately, in our civilization with its drift of population to large cities, many children know very little about their dad's work day. If at all possible, it is a valuable experience for a child to have a visit to the place where he toils and then a son or daughter will have a picture of how he earns the money for the family.

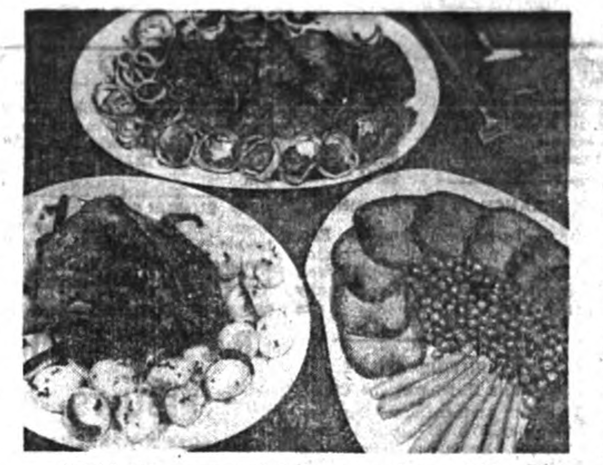
An increasing number of married women are earning too, either full time or part time, outside the home. Each individual case is different, but social workers are doubtful about the wisdom of mothers of pre-school children hiring a "mother substitute" so that they can work full time. Good Nursery Schools are to be commended for their assistance. In cases of necessity, where the family needs this extra money, father and children should assist to lighten mother's load of household tasks.

The little child is interested in the postman's call, the visit of the milkman and the delivery man. Mother makes the lot of these workers pleasant when she teaches her son or daughter courtesy to those who serve them. Parents who are good citizens also train their child in respect for the law when they show politeness to individual policemen.

A child is fascinated by activity. Given any encouragement at all, a small boy or girl will offer to help mother with different household tasks. When they are older, and school and sports and other interests fill their hours, they will not be so eager to assist. It is the wise mother who accepts the offer to help when it is made.

PAINTING HINT

Kitchens and bathrooms are subject to more moisture than any other rooms in your home. So, it's a good idea to paint them with moisture resistant paint, says the Paint Industry Council. One of the best is semi-gloss enamel. Not only will it stand up under the wear and tear of the moisture normally produced in these rooms, but it can be easily cleaned with soap and water.



Nutritionists recommend that we use these nutritious and economical variety meats often. They may be included in our menus in many ways . . . for example, pan fried liver with onions (top); stuffed baked beef heart (lower left); boiled, fresh or pickled, beef tongue (lower right).

— Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa

Cooking "Variety Meats"

Variety meats have long been regarded as delicacies by food epicures. When variety or organ meats are mentioned some people are apt to turn up their noses in disdain. The main reason for such an adverse reaction is probably that many do not know how to prepare and serve them properly.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, have tested many ways of cooking variety meats and have developed some excellent methods for each type.

Follow these instructions and you will be amazed how your family will look forward to eating variety meats at least once a week.

Types of Liver

Liver is the best known and most popular of the variety meats. It is a tender meat although there is some variation in the tenderness and flavor of the different types.

Beef Liver is less tender than calf or lamb liver. It is coarse grained with a pronounced flavor.

Calf or Veal Liver is the most tender and the mildest flavored liver. It is considered the choicest liver and is usually the most expensive.

Lamb Liver is less tender than calf liver and is mild flavored.

To Prepare and Serve Liver

Wipe the liver well before cooking. Remove the skin by inserting a sharp knife under it and pulling or scraping the skin away from the meat. Carefully cut out the tubes with sharp pointed scissors.

All types of liver may be pan fried. Coat the liver with seasoned flour. Brown in a small amount of fat about one minute over high heat. Then turn and cook over moderate heat, 2 to 3 minutes on each side. After browning partly cover the pan. This will make the liver more juicy. Liver may be cooked to the medium done stage, that is until it is light pink in the centre or to the well done stage when the pink color has just disappeared. Do not overcook liver as it will become tough.

Pan-fried liver may be served with fried bacon and onions. It may be fried without flour in the bacon fat as you would fry steak.

Calf and baby liver are tender enough to be broiled. Brush slices of liver with melted fat. Place on cold rack of broiler pan so that the liver is 3 inches from the heating unit. Broil 4 to 5 minutes each side. Brush second side with fat after turning.

Beef and pork liver are good braised. Coat slices with seasoned flour. Brown in a small amount of fat for 1 minute over high heat. Reduce the heat. Add some liquid (water or tomato juice) to cover, about 1 cup liquid per pound of liver. Cover closely and cook slowly on top of stove or in the centre of a moderately slow oven (325°F.) for 25 to 30 minutes.

For more information on variety meats, write for the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture booklet "Meat, How to Buy — How to Cook". Send 75 cents, cheque or money order, to the Queen's Printer, Ottawa.

Kidney — For Variety

Variety meats should appear more often on your dinner table as they are nutritious and less expensive than most meats. They supply valuable quantities of iron and are good squrces of vitamin A and the B vitamins. Besides liver, variety meats include kidney, heart, tongue, sweet breads, brains and tripe.

Types of Kidney

Kidneys differ in flavor and tenderness and all are not cooked the same way.

Beef Kidney is not as tender as other types and has a strong flavor.

Veal Kidney is similar to beef kidney but is milder flavored.

Pork Kidney has a characteristic strong flavor.

Lamb Kidney has a mild flavor.

Beef and pork kidneys will have a milder flavor if they are covered with cold, salted water (1 tablespoon salt to 4 cups water) and allowed to soak for 1 hour in the refrigerator before cooking.

For a different, but colorful tasty treat, the home economists, Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, suggest "Kidney and Mushroom Stew".

Kidney and Mushroom Stew

2 Pounds beef kidney; 1 cup chopped onion; ½ pound sliced mushrooms; 2 tablespoons butter; 3 tablespoons flour; 1 teaspoon sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; dash pepper; ½ teaspoon thyme; 1 can (20-ounce) tomatoes.

Soak kidney in salted water (1 tablespoon salt to 4 cups water) in refrigerator, for 1 hour. Rinse and dry. Remove fat, tubes and membrane. Cut in bite-size pieces. Sauté onion and mushroom in melted butter until limp, about 5 minutes. Add kidney and brown on all sides. Stir in flour. Add remaining ingredients and stir until well blended. Cover pan, reduce heat and simmer gently until kidney is tender, 30 to 35 minutes. Serves 6.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Looking for your first job is not as harrowing an experience as it may seem in the weeks before you start doing it. There are a few things you can do that will help give you some assurance when you are actually sitting across a desk from a prospective employer.

The first is to decide why you want any particular type of job and what you can bring to it. Take into account any special training you have and any working experience. Consider also your own long-range job hopes.

If you are uncertain about what you want to do or what you are suited to do, talk to friends who work, to the National Employment Service, or to employment agencies.

Learn About Firm

If you find several possibilities you think you are suited for, find out something about them in advance. Know something about the firm's products and services, its employment practices and its standing in the community.

Then send a letter of application which is brief, neat and preferably typewritten. Phone to find out the correct name and title of the person to whom the letter should go. The letter should give some indication of your interest in the job, qualifications and interest in the company.

Include a brief resumé listing your name, address, age, education, special training, work experience, work in volunteer organizations and any special skills or hobbies.

When you think your letter has been received, phone for an interview. If you are sent an application blank, fill it out completely and return it promptly.

At an Interview

Be on time for an interview, and be prepared to be patient if you are kept waiting.

Wear neat clothing and make-up that is appropriate. This is not the time for elaborate dresses and hairdos.

Do not smoke unless you are invited to, and possibly not then.

The interviewer will direct the conversation, but be prepared to have him ask you about yourself and why you think you should have the job. Have a copy of your resumé with you, whether you have already sent one or not.

Listen carefully to what you are told about the job, and answer questions directly, briefly and to the point.

Stress your qualifications and your interest in the job rather than any financial or personal need.

If you have any questions about the job, ask them before you discuss salary and benefits.

Do not prolong the interview; be ready to leave when the interviewer indicates the conversation is over.

Through it all try to relax, be pleasant, smile and muster your best manners. In some cases, it may be a good idea to send a very brief note thanking the interviewer for seeing you.

A dessert treat "as nice as pie"

With children in the house, it's a good idea to have a wide selection of recipes for toothsome desserts. Little ones who get temperamental about eating their meat and vegetables can become remarkably co-operative when they realize there is something delicious to follow. The old nursery warning "No meat, no dessert!" usually works wonders with finnicky children, provided the promised dessert is really special.

Both you and your family will love this recipe for gingerbread pie. Made with rich, dark molasses, it is a delightful dessert for cold winter days. The topping is a special treat — a crisp, spicy meringue flavored with cinnamon and cloves. It has eye and palate appeal, and the children will love it.

If you wrap gingerbread pie in foil and store it in an air-tight tin or in the refrigerator, it will stay moist and scrumptious for several days, ready for immediate use at lunch or tea time.

Gingerbread Pie

Serves 6 to 8

1¼ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour; 1 teaspoon baking powder; ½ teaspoon baking soda; ½ teaspoon cinnamon; ½ teaspoon ginger; ½ teaspoon salt; ¼ cup shortening; ¼ cup granulated sugar; 1 egg; ½ cup table molasses; ½ cup hot water; 2 egg whites; a few grains of salt; 2 tablespoons granulated sugar; ½ teaspoon cloves; ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). Grease a 9-inch pie pan. Sift together the flour, baking powder, the ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ginger and salt. Cream shortening with ¼ cup sugar, add egg and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in molasses. Blend in alternately the combined dry ingredients and hot water, beginning and ending with hot water. Pour into greased pie plate. Bake in preheated oven for about 30 minutes or until done.

Meanwhile, beat egg whites with a pinch of salt until stiff but not dry. Beat in granulated sugar, gradually; continue beating until well-blended. Beat in cloves and cinnamon; fold in vanilla.

Spread evenly on top of hot "pie" and bake 15 minutes longer, at 350 deg. F.

What borrowers should know

HERE IS A guarantee that will command wide attention among borrowers and among lenders in Canada: "So long as present monetary policy is unchanged, and I can't emphasize this too strongly, loans now on our books at 6% or less, and future loans of appropriate term and risk, would be unaffected by the removal of the ceiling." This, comments The Financial Post, is the statement of a man clearly in a position to see that what he says goes — W. Earle McLaughlin, president of Canada's biggest bank, the Royal Bank of Canada.

His words should help put an end to concern in some quarters that scrapping the 6% ceiling on chartered bank loan charges would lead to higher borrowing costs at the banks. The facts of competition suggest that even in times of tight money, bank lending charges, if unrestricted, would be kept below those offered by most other lenders. Bank credit, in fact, might well be more readily available to a wider range of borrowers in periods of monetary restraint for the simple reason that because the banks could then charge more, they could also attract savings by paying more.

Mr. McLaughlin also makes a point extremely pertinent to the owners or partners of smaller businesses. He says: "With removal of the ceiling on loan rates, banks can enter new fields of lending and in so doing force down rates in markets which the ceiling now protects from bank competition. This is especially important to small and moderate-sized business borrowers." Removal of the 6% limit on bank charges is one of the key recommendations of the Porter Royal Commission on Banking. The Porter report urged a total overhaul of the entire legislative framework within which our credit-granting institutions operate. This question merits the widest possible discussion by men of intellect and stature, to ensure that our governors don't get bogged down and produce a Bank Act revision that leaves our financial machinery far behind the needs and realities of the present-day economy.

To trim a wick

In the not-so-distant past, a daily family chore was to clean the chimney and trim the wick of the oil lamp. Faced with such a chore today, the vast majority of teen-agers would neither know how to begin nor why. Electricity has almost eliminated the oil lamp, together with many other tedious household chores of a bygone age. Against the background of history, this has happened in a relatively short space of time. According to the Canadian Electrical Association, which ths year marks its 75th anniversary, Canada is one of the most highly electrified nations in the world.

It is difficult to date the beginning of the electrical age. Did Faraday who invented principles of the electric motor start it? Or Bell? Or Edison? Did it begin for Canadians in Brantford, or Cornwall or Pembroke or Victoria? Many people and places played important parts in the early days of electricity in Canada. One thing is certain: Canadians entered the electrical age with more gusto than most of the world's people. Electricity has been the dominating influence in the lives of Canadians and the development of Canada in this century.

Not only is there much electricity in Canada, but for the consumer it is relatively inexpensive. In Canada, electricity costs much less today than it did a half century ago. It is only fractionally higher in cost than it was before World War II, a distinct departure from the usual upward curve of everyday needs. Since 1956, the consumer price index on electrical appliances had declined 14.7% while the general price index has increased 15.3%.

The relatively low cost of electricity has made it practical for all to take advantage of the work-saving equipment available. Electrical conveniences — lights, stoves, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, radios, television, telephones, and a host of household appliances which now total more than 80 — all contribute to easier, more comfortable living.

If this were all that had been achieved by the industry, it would be impressive enough; but in addition it has provided the energy which has made our industrial development possible. It has, in fact, been the greatest single influence in the emergence of our industrial development and our high standards of living.

All this has been achieved within the life-span of the Canadian Electrical Association which began in 1891. Mindful as it is of past achievements, the Association, which unites producers and distributors of electricity with producers of electrical equipment, is looking to a future where new marvels of electricity will rival the replacement of the oil lamp by the electric light.

Barriers dropped on automobiles

CANADA HAS done away with its tariffs against United States automobiles and parts in what may turn out to be a landmark in its economic relations with its big neighbor.

Subject to congressional approval, the U.S. will take a similar step.

Already there is speculation that this principle may be extended to other industries.

Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson signed the auto industry agreement at the LBJ ranch in Texas. Like the state in which it was initialed, it is a big undertaking.

For Canada, it means the tariff of 17½ per cent on cars and up to 25 per cent on orginal automobile parts imported from the United States is wiped out. Replacement parts are still protected. The U.S. administration will submit to Congress a measure abolishing the U.S. tariff of 6¼ per cent on Canadian cars and 8½ per cent on auto parts from Canada.

The new agreement replaces a complicated Canadian tariff incentive plan launched in 1963 and designed to step up sales of Canadian-made automobile parts in the U.S. This plan aroused considerable hostility across the border, with Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges in the forefront of those voicing their dislike.

Toppling these trade barriers won't necessarily mean Canadian car prices will drop to the level of those in the U.S. But Industry Minister Drury predicts a gradual "narrowing" of the gap in prices between the two countries.

For Canada the agreement means sacrificing some $50,000,000 annually in tariffs on cars and car parts. But it hopes for far bigger gains through expanded automobile production during the next three or four years.

There's one catch. You can't cross the border and bring a car back with you duty-free. The duty-free clause is restricted to manufacturers.

Asked to comment on the prospects of similar agreements in other industries, Mr. Pearson said: "The automotive industry lends itself to this kind of agreement more than any other industry. But it will be worth while looking at it to see if we can apply this technique to other industries. . ."

And Mr. Drury said if the plan works then the same principles might be applied to other industries.

It will be interesting to see if the plan does live up to expectations and if it is the forerunner of wider-ranging dropping of trade barriers.

Viewpoints and perspectives

STATESMEN NEEDED — We need more statesmen and less politicians. We need those who hold the dignity of their position and the honor of their country above all. We need men of courage who can look fearlessly ahead without bowing to monetary returns and favors for carrying out the task which each has taken an oath to do.

— Huntingdon (Que.) Gleaner

LET'S CHECK CARS — Statistics on automobile accidents in the province prove that in the bulk of the province about 10 percent of these accidents are caused by faulty cars. We feel that the time has come to institute some kind of compulsory car check so that the auto as well as the driver can be proven safe to be allowed on our highways.

Interests and action of 'Churchill, the schoolboy'

By Nancy Cleaver, "For Parents Only" columnist

"What was Churchill like when he went to school?" How many boys and girls have asked their parents this question since the death of England's greatest statesman?

It is not an easy question to answer. Churchill, even as a very small boy with the nickname "Carrots," from his flaming red hair, was constantly in trouble. He was endowed with an exceptional amount of energy, he was an individualist with original ideas which he insisted on testing, and he was a non-conformist, rebelling against rules which his schoolmates accepted.

His first schooldays were spent at Ascot, after a short unsatisfactory period with a tutor who attempted to teach him mathematics, and had to depart from his task for a rest cure. Ascot was a small, expensive seminary which prepared boys for private school life, which in England is called Public School training. When Churchill had been at Ascot only a few weeks, a visitor to the school noticed, at recess, a small red-haired boy running at full speed in wide circles, closely pursued by a junior instructor.

To the question, "Who on earth is that?" the headmaster replied, "Young Churchill . . . it's the only way to keep him quiet."

When Churchill went on to Harrow, he cared nothing for the popular ideal of a schoolboy who was a star athlete in competitive group games. He, himself, was an expert in fencing and enjoyed swimming. Disliking football, when it was compulsory, on one occasion he devised a way to get out of having to play it during examination week. By digging around, Churchill discovered that there was an old, forgotten rule that there should be no football during this time.

He persuaded his friend, Jack Milbanke, to refuse to play, too, and to climb into his bunk with a good book and enjoy himself. They risked a good caning from their superiors. Churchill was no stranger to this form of discipline. Harrow had never had pupils who acted in this unpopular fashion. But technically Churchill and his companion were on sound ground and got away with their perverse behaviour.

"Churchill as a schoolboy had an inquiring mind," E. D. W. Chaplin wrote in his book, "Winston Churchill and Harrow". Roxeth House, near Harrow, was supposed to be a favorite meeting place for ghosts and young Churchill decided he would find out for himself if there was any truth in these rumors. There was said to be a secret tunnel to the house at the bottom of a nearby old well filled with trash. This he considered a good place to begin his investigation and he decided the best and fastest way to clear the trash was with a bomb.

He bought chemicals with his allowance, and finally built a fair-sized bomb. After placing the bomb in the well, he lit the fuse. Nothing happened. He waited a short time before climbing down into the well, and just then the bomb exploded. An older lady who happened to be looking over the fence towards the haunted house heard a loud noise, saw black smoke and a small boy come flying out of the well and ran to help him. His face was blackened and a bit burned, his clothing ruined, but he was not downhearted. Later the school authorities took a dim view of this escapade but the schoolboy adventurer judged it as "successful."

No parent can point to Winston Churchill's school record and say to a son or daughter, "See how he studied hard and led his class." The truth is that Churchill would not work at any subject unless it interested him and he was convinced of its value. He steadily resisted mastering Latin. Not until his years as a public speaker did he memorize telling Latin phrases to use in his famous speeches. In his own book "My Early Life" he points out, "By being so long in the lowest form I gained an immense advantage over cleaverer boys. They all went on learning Latin and Greek and splendid things like that. But I was taught English."

Throughout his life Churchill paid a high tribute to his English teacher, Mr. Somervell. Under his three years drilling, Churchill said, "I got into my bones the essential structure of the ordinary British sentence — which is a noble thing." In the thousands of words appearing in the daily

Conservatives Face A Crisis

The magnitude of the leadership crisis facing the Conservative party broke into the open last week. Growing discontent with the policies of the old chieftain, John Diefenbaker, brought rural MPs from Ontario and the prairies to the side of those who are demanding an immediate leadership convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker was confronted by the newest and greatest challenge to his position within hours of his return from a West Indies vacation. It had its immediate cause in the flag debacle, and the defection of up to 10 Quebec Tory MPs, led by Leon Balcer. But the roots go all the way back to the abortive palace revolt which preceded the 1963 election, when Mr. Diefenbaker lost such key back-up men as Davie Fulton, Donald Fleming, George Hees and Douglas Harkness.

It is one of the great ironies of Canadian politics that the Conservatives find themselves gripped by another of their perennial leadership crises at a time when the Liberal government might be expected to be vulnerable at the polls.

It now appears, however, that despite scandals involving some of the Quebec figures of the Liberal party, Prime Minister Pearson's position has not been noticeably weakened.

The extent of the public's loss of confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker can be gleaned from the most recent Gallup Poll, testing voter preferences between him and Mr. Pearson.

Asked to name which of the two men would make the best Prime Minister, 46 per cent. chose Lester B. Pearson and only 23 per cent. selected the Tory leader. At the time of the 1963 election which dislodged the Conservative government, Mr. Diefenbaker had the edge in personal preference of voters, 40 per cent. to 33 per cent. for Mr. Pearson.

It would seem, thus, that Mr. Diefenbaker has lost nearly half his personal following among Canadians since the last election. Among Conservatives, the poll shows that only 64 per cent. of Tories choose Diefenbaker over Pearson.

Such massive defection, which can only be compared to the flight of Republican voters to the Democrats in the last U.S. presidential election, is unparalleled in recent Canadian political history.

The drift away from Mr. Diefenbaker started in the big cities, chiefly Toronto and Vancouver, just before the 1962 election. It gained momentum in Quebec during the bicultural debate and the flag controversy and now appears to have penetrated the last bastion of Diefenbaker power — rural Ontario and the prairies.

One of the strategies now being followed to build up pressure for a leadership convention is a letter sent to all Conservative groups by the party's Quebec wing. The letter asks Tories across the country to write national president Dalton Camp to say whether they think Mr. Diefenbaker should stay or quit.

George Hogan of Toronto, a former national PC association vice president, said the party might not survive the next 30 days if the national executive did not take control from the parliamentary caucus (which favors Mr. Diefenbaker) and decide on a convention.

Gordon Aiken, MP for Ontario's Parry Sound-Muskoka riding, along with Peterboro's Fred Stenson, Gerald Baldwin of Peace River in Alberta, Gordon Fairweather of the New Brunswick riding of Royal and Siegfried J. Enns of Manitoba's Portage-Neepawa all have either expressed dissatisfaction with Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership or said they favor a convention.

For Mr. Diefenbaker and the Conservative party, 1965 will be a year of decision. The question is no longer, will Mr. Diefenbaker go, but when.

SUGAR AND SPICE . . .

— By BILL SMILEY

He Was Forever England

With his usual superb sense of timing, Winston Churchill chose to die during a rather dull winter period when it was possible to attract the attention of the entire world without fear of anyone stealing the scene from him.

It was time to go. There is nothing more pitiable than a great man reduced to dotage and senility. He was spared this.

Despite the avalanche of anecdotes and eulogies and reprints of his speeches, I don't think there was deep and widespread sorrow at his demise. Certainly, there was none of the heart-in-throat grief that accompanied the death of President Kennedy.

It was more of a nostalgic sadness, a sense of the loss of an institution. One can imagine the English feeling like this when Queen Victoria died, after 80-odd years on the throne.

Quite a man was Sir Winston. And just that. Not a superman, but a man.

And that was why he was able to seize and shake and straighten the hearts of the free world, with his courage and his tears, his defiance and his prayers, during those days when Europe, and the world, were threatened with "a thousand years of darkness."

Most of us have several elements in our character. Churchill was a kaleidoscope of the colors of life. He was reactionary and reformer; he was earthy realist and poet; he was dreamer and doer; he was selfish and selfless; he was arrogant and humble. He was part pirate, part prophet; part imperialist and part imp. He was ruthless, but he wept easily. He was a hundred other things, just as contradictory.

I was 19 when the "phoney war" ended, and the German legions smashed through Belgium, and life suddenly became very real. And I shall never forget the thrill, the sense of hope and of resolution, that surged through us when the lion's growl rasped over the Atlantic on the airwaves, "We shall never surrender." It's difficult to realize that he was 65 then, an age when most men are retiring from life and the struggle.

I saw the old fire-eater once, and was almost trampled to death in the process. It was on an airstrip in Normandy, in the summer of 1944, a few weeks after the invasion.

We were drawn up on parade in the dust and heat, officers in front, other ranks in the rear, and we stood there, muttering curses, for half an hour.

Suddenly a little two-seater scout plane popped over the horizon and squatted 60 feet in front of us. The pilot climbed out. We could see his air-vice-marshall's stripes and grumbled our disgust for all brass. Then the back cockpit opened and a vast, cherubic visage, with a cigar in it, beamed at us.

He came out of the thing like a baby whale coming out of a chicken's egg. He stood on the wing, grinning. He stuck up two fingers in the world-famous V-sign, but with just a suggestion of the service-man's naughty gesture which looked much the same but meant something quite different.

Then he waved, an embracing wave that said, "Come on in closer." Our total complement of officer pilots was almost wiped out when the rear ranks surged through, around and over us, to cluster within touching distance of the old warhorse.

He talked for five minutes, earthy vocabulary Caesar employed when addressing his legions. And then he was off, the incredibly foolish and gallant old man, hopping to another airfield, risking his skin to have a look at us and let us have a look at him.

And human he was! My favorite story is the one involving Lady Astor, the hard-nosed, sapt-tongued old aristocrat. She became enraged during an argument with Churchill, and fired what she thought was the parting shot, "If you were my husband, I'd poison your coffee." To which the great man replied promptly and politely, "Madame, if you were my wife, I'd drink it."

We shall not see his like again.

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

This week, I have the pleasure of introducing to you a new member of the College staff, Peter Hamilton. You will likely be seeing and hearing Peter quite frequently, for in addition to other duties, he will be doing extension work in animal science.

Before coming to Macdonald, Peter was TV commentator for "Country Calendar" in the Maritimes, and before that, he was in turn an agricultural representative, a livestock fieldman, and an instructor at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College.

Peter graduated from Macdonald in 1947, and has his Master's degree in Animal Nutrition from the University of Maine. Incidentally, his father spent his boyhood years at Shawville in Pontiac County, and later farmed near North Hatley in the Eastern Townships before moving to Nova Scotia. So, in a sense, Peter has come back home.

The Dairy Herd Improvement program has done wonders to increase milk production and cut costs in Northern New York State. This was my impression from a quick trip south of the border with Peter Hamilton and Professor John Moxley. We were organizing a bus tour for the fourth year agricultural students.

Our host for the day, County Agent Dave Wentworth, took us to four farms all close to the Town of Canton. St. Lawrence County has some good agricultural land but much of it is quite rough with stone outcrops. Most farms there are dairy, selling on a blended market for a little over $4.00 cwt.

Our first call was at the farm of John Rich. His seventy cows averaged 15,300 lbs. each last year. The second call was at Max Fischer's whose herd average is 13,600 for fifty cows.

Another stop was at the farm of the Canton Technical and Agricultural College. The enthusiastic young herdsman is proud of the increase from 14,800 lbs. to 16,500 lbs. in two years. Fifteen years ago, the herd average was 9,000 lbs. A progress chart on the milk house door makes a dramatic story.

All these herds are on D.H.I.A. Although all the credit for these excellent records cannot be given to the work of the Association, it has given these men the tools with which to cull the herd, build a sound feeding program, and pick out their weak spots in herd management.

The New York Dairy Herd Improvement Association is a Co-operative effort. Groups of 20 to 25 dairymen hire a supervisor who, once a month, weighs and samples the milk from each cow, checks the hay and silage fed, notes the feeding of concentrates, goes over the breeding records.

Each month, the dairyman gets back a report. It shows the daily and total production and fat test of every cow in the herd, and the value of her milk above feed costs. If it is time for her to be bred or dried off, there is a mark opposite her name. And there is a recommended amount of concentrates to feed, based on roughage quality, milk and butterfat yield. In addition, useful figures for month-by-month comparisons are provided — total income over value of feed, pounds of milk produced for each farm worker and dollar returns above feed costs for each worker.

For this service, John Rich pays about $350 a year and feels it is money well spent. There is a lower-cost plan where the owner does his own sampling.

Two things we noticed all these farms had in common. All were practising "lead" feeding of concentrates and all were using hay and corn silage of exceptional quality. John Rich told us that he finished haying on June 23. Two men have barn driers.

The fourth farm we visited has a herd average only 8,000 lbs.; this family is re-organizing after a disastrous fire a year ago. The interesting point here is the free-stall arrangement in the new barn. It looks good, but I would like to see others before passing judgment.

At the county farm, the bred heifers are wintering outside with no more shelter than a grove of trees. They are fed only hay and silage, and water through a hole in the ice of the pond. But they are in good shape, and didn't suffer when the temperature went to 30° below two or three weeks ago.

'Land of the Lion', C-I-L film shows recent Safari

"Land Of The Lion", a 29-minute, color documentary of an African Safari by two Canadians is now available to interested organizations for showing, free of charge.

The film, produced by Alan Grayston for Canadian Industries Limited, takes the viewer on a big game hunt in Kenya with Jean Roch Beaudoin, winner in the C-I-L Safari Contest and his companion John Dunn, both of Sherbrooke, Que.

The C-I-L Safari Contest, conducted in the fall of 1963 through C-I-L ammunition dealers across Canada, saw 34 contestants win 30 rifles and shotguns, two Canadian hunting trips for two, and two all-expense paid African Safari trips for two. Beaudoin, winner of one of the grand prizes, chose Dunn as his companion and made the trip to Kennya in June of 1964. John Morrison, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., winner of the other grand prize, chose the cash alternative.

Montreal photographer Alan Grayston met the pair in Nairobi and filmed their hunting adventures. Sten Cedergren, the white hunter in charge of the expedition, described it as one of the most successful safaris in Kenya in recent years. Beaudoin and Dunn took all the trophies they had listed on their hunting agenda. They both got their lion and leopard, and in the process collected a few unexpected thrills.

"The greatest experience of my life" was how Beaudoin described his 21-day hunting trip through Kenya's mountains and plains.

Beaudoin downed his black maned lion in the Masai area of Kenya, which is famous for its native lion hunters. Black maned lions are considered to be the finest lion trophy, and Beaudoin's was the first of the year to be taken in Kenya. In recognition of this achievement, the camp boys accorded him an impromptu lion dance.

A leopard provided Beaudoin with his greatest thrill during the safari. The bait had been set in a tree and the party had settled down in a blind to await the arrival of this nocturnal beast. However, the leopard arrived earlier than expected and was stalking the hunters when Jean Roch spotted it and made the kill. This tense, quick action is shown in the film.

The viewer can see, via the telephoto lens, how John Dunn stalked and shot his zebra, and is also able to spend a few tense moments with Dunn as he tracks down an African buffalo.

While the film deals mostly with the hunting adventures of Beaudoin and Dunn, it includes a number of sequences on African wildlife and native dances.

Prints of "Land Of The Lion", and the French version "Pays du Lion" are now available to clubs and other organizations and may be obtained free of charge.

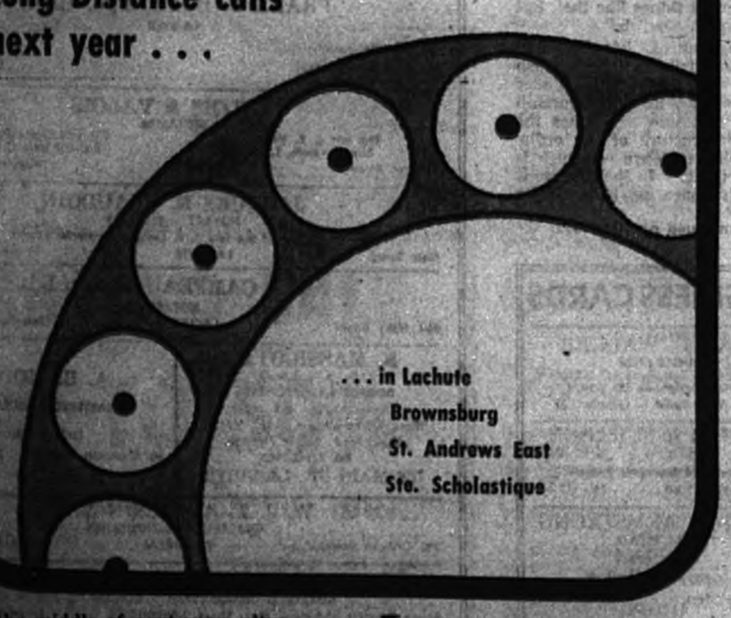
You'll be dialing your own Long Distance calls next year . . .



. . . in Lachute
Brownsburg
St. Andrews East
Ste. Scholastique

By the middle of next year, ultra-modern Direct Distance Dialing (DDD) will bring the speed and ease of local dial service to most Long Distance calling in this area. DDD is the modern answer to the ever-growing need for faster, simpler and more convenient communications.

The complex equipment, to be installed well ahead of DDD day, is completely automatic and will enable your calls to go through to almost any telephone on the continent in a matter of seconds.

Introduction of Direct Distance Dialing in a community requires a lengthy program of pre-conversion work. So there will be a lot of telephone activity in your area during the coming months. We'll keep you posted from time to time as work progresses.

DDD in the most progressive step in telephony since dial service. We are looking forward to bringing you this new truly modern telephone service and we hope you're looking forward to having it.

"Churchill – the schoolboy"

press during the days between his death and his burial, no world figure has had so many or so sublime English sentences quoted. This man was a master of both the written and spoken word.

In later years Churchill made twenty pilgrimages back to Harrow on its Songs Night. The six hundred boys there were honored at these visits of one of their poorest scholars and one of the greatest figures of all time.

He must have sorely tried Dr. Welldon, the headmaster in his day. But this man, in spite of the boy's breaches of conduct, took him into his house and tutored him. Who can guess how great a debt is owed to Dr. Welldon, Mr. Somervell and other teachers who influenced Churchill in his years of schooling?

Let us encourage our children's curiosity about the youth of Churchill by going to the public library and borrowing, or buying a family copy, for your home bookshelf, one of the many fine biographies, such as Robert Lewis Taylor's "Churchill". Older people who lived during the days of World War II can never forget this man who inspired the Free World to struggle against such odds. Our boys and girls should know him, not only as a schoolboy but in the years which he described: "If the Commonwealth last for a thousand years, men will say, "This was their finest hour".

Association to study fire protection role in various Forestry Schools

Ottawa — The role of forestry schools in forest fire protection in Canada will be discussed at the 13th annual meeting of the Associate Committee on Forest Fire Protection of the National Research Council here in early February.

The deans of the four forestry faculties of the Universities of New Brunswick, Laval, Toronto and British Columbia will attend the committee meeting for the first time. Forest protection officials from the ten provinces and interested federal government agencies will hear details of the forest fire protection courses now being given in university forestry faculties.

Reports will be given on the study conducted during the past year by the Aeronautical Establishment of the National Research Council in co-operation with the fire research sub-committee and the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, to determine the effectiveness of present methods of dropping water on fires from aircraft, and how to get the most for each dollar spent.

The committee will hear results of tests held during April and May 1964 at the Petawawa Forest Experiment Station of the Department of Forestry on the use of an aircraft-borne infrared scanner in the detection of fires. The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests supplied the aircraft and pilot, and the Department of Forestry carried out the research in co-operation with the manufacturer of the scanning equipment.

The use of chemical fire retardants and suppressants, slash disposal and prescribed burning methods to reduce forest fire danger and aid natural forest regeneration, and the role of the fire control working group of the North American Forestry Commission, will be among the various aspects of forest fire research to be reviewed at the meeting.

The committee consists of representatives of the provincial forest protection services, industrial forestry associations, the federal Department of Forestry, the Department of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources, and the National Research Council.

The Chairman is A. W. Braine, director of forest protection, Manitoba Department of Mines and Natural Resources. D. J. Learmonth, head of forest and wildlife protection, National Parks Branch, is vice-chairman. Joint secretaries are D. E. Williams, head of fire control, forest research branch, Department of Forestry, and Dr. K. Sumi of the fire section, building research division, National Research Council.

Local distributors receive Pioneer plaques

M cOuat distributorshi p largest in company president informs convention delegates

The annual convention of Pioneer Saws Limited was held in Peterborough from January 18 to 21, and was attended by Jim and Colin McOuat, of Pioneer Chain Saws Inc., Lachute, distributors for the Pioneer chain saw line in Quebec, New Brunswick, and a portion of Nova Scotia, and Herb Graham, manager of the Maritime office.

The four-day meeting drew together representatives of the company from coast to coast in Canada, and on the last two days of the meeting the Canadians were joined by distributors from the United States.

At the closing banquet of the convention, J. D. Mendell, president and general manager of Pioneer Saws Ltd., presented each Canadian distributor with a plaque commemorating the 25th anniversary of the company and outlined the part which each distributor has played in the successful history of the company.

In making the presentations, Mr. Mendell said: "Pioneer Chain Saws Inc. started as a dealer in the early days when chain saws were not considered as a pulp cutting tool, as they are today. However, as the industry evolved they expanded with it, and became a distributor for, first, the eastern portion of Quebec and later the whole of the province of Quebec, when they opened a branch office in Quebec City.

"At a later date, through the necessity of changing distributors in New Brunswick, their territory was expanded to include that province, and they opened a branch office in Moncton to cope with expanding market demands.

"Due to the high potential of their territory, Pioneer Chain Saws Inc. are our biggest distributor, and base their success on their dealer organization and the service they render to both dealer and consumer", Mr. Mennell said in closing.

Quebec Office . . . Jim McOuat is seen receiving the anniversary plaque from Mr. Mennell, for display in the Quebec City office.

Maritime Office . . . Herb Graham, a well-known former resident of this community and manager of the Moncton, N.B. branch of Pioneer Chain Saws Inc., who received the plaque for the maritime office from Mr. Mennell.

Awarded Anniversary Plaque . . . J. D. Mennell, president and general manager of Pioneer Saws Ltd., a subsidiary of Outboard Marine Corporation of Canada Ltd., presents the company's 25th anniversary plaque to Colin McOuat, of Pioneer Chain Saws Inc., during the closing banquet of the annual company convention held recently in Peterborough.

Grader purchase postponed

Subsequent affairs at special meeting of Lachute Council

At a special meeting chaired by Mayor Saindon on Monday evening, on the advice of Hubert Pilon, municipal engineer, it was decided to postpone the purchasing of a grader to cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. Mr. Pilon considered that, unless the need of such equipment were very pressing, it would be preferable to hire a machine at around $10 an hour, rather than to saddle the exchequer with annual costs of $7,000 to $8,000. Few municipalities of this size own their own graders, he argued; they prefer to rent one.

The majority of the aldermen concurred, and it was decided to pigeon-hole the tenders received.

Centre d'Art

The matter of a grant to the Centre d'Art was discussed for several minutes, and it was finally decided to await the drawing-up of the budget. It appears that the Centre is actually without financial resources, and it was urged by Ald. Masson to advance $300 or $400 to this institution immediately as forerunner to a grant.

Ald. Bélanger countered with a suggestion to offer the Auditorium basement as premises for the Centre's activities. But Mayor Saindon felt that the spot was quite unsuitable, besides which, several other organizations make use of the space for meetings. The question was finally held over.

Fuel Oil

L. Jos. Dumais, as spokesman for the affiliated oil dealers of this town, suggested that the corporation should divide equally among the dealers who pay taxes its orders for fuelling of town buildings. The suggested rate is standard domestic cost of 15 cents a gallon less 3 cents discount — this price to be adjusted to market variations. The present cost to the municipality is 14½ cents, but the offer of the dealers' association would eliminate all worry, with an "automatic delivery" plan.

Mr. Dumais was authorized to

Year of full activity in Lachute Scouts and Cubs

The local Boy Scout organization, sponsored by Argenteuil Branch 70 of the Royal Canadian Legion, is enjoying one of the best years on record. The Scout Hall on Princess Street, so kindly put at the disposal of the Scouts by the J. C. Wilson Co. Ltd., has been a tremendous encouragement to the leaders.

The Scouts have never been fortunate in having a full slate of active and dedicated leaders. Some 115 persons in all are involved in the local activities. The 1st Lachute Troop has George Gordon as Scoutmaster, George Armstrong and Reg Stansfield as Assistant Scoutmasters. Blair Vessie, Queen's Scout, is a capable Troop Leader, and some 30 boys are divided into four patrols.

The 1st Lachute Wolf Cub Pack is in charge of Arnold Berry, Cubmaster, and Mrs. Jean Stein and Mrs. Enid Dixon as assistants. Scout Richard Paulsen is a faithful Scout Representative Assistant. There are 28 Cubs in training in this pack. They recently had a combined sleigh drive, Hus-Ski ride, and skating party at the Younkie Farms, where Mr. and Mrs. Wes Younkie entertained the boys and served them refreshments.

The Iroquois Pack of some 35 boys is led by Mr. George Young, Cubmaster, ably assisted by Mrs. Don McFaul, and Doug Johnson, Scout Peter Clarke is the Scout Representative Assistant to this pack. The keen spirit shown by all the boys keeps the leaders busy in instruction and in passing tests and badges.

Behind the Scenes

Behind the scenes we find the Group Committee, which is responsible for the over-all operation of the local activities — supplying a meeting place, qualiifed leaders, finances, transportation, also guidance, encouragement and advice.

Ernie Gordon is chairman; Charlie Duncan ("Mr. Scouting") is secretary-treasurer; Stewart Jones, transportation and leaders; Edmund McFaul, badge controller; and Messrs. Paddy Creith, Lloyd Bryson, Floyd Bradford and Roger Barsalou, committee members.

Scout Week

These willing workers are busy organizing for the annual financial drive to take place in the week of February 21-28. Funds are required to see that the Scout Hall is kept in repair — for heating of the hall, insurance, electricity, etc. The local organization must supply funds for the operation of the District Council, the Quebec Provincial Headquarters, and for the Dominion Headquarters.

The Group Committee solicits the help of approximately 50 local citizens to aid in the annual canvass, and to these men they are greatly indebted for their willing co-operation year after year. The citizens of Lachute and district will be visited during Scout Week, February 21-28.

Drowning through ice, two deaths accidental

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bertrand, who were drowned when their car plunged through the river ice at La Baie, near St. Andrews. The inquest was under the chairmanship of Dr. J. C. MacKimmie, joint district coroner.

Joseph Bertrand, 51, and his wife, 50 years of age, lost their lives when they drove their car onto the river Sunday afternoon, January 10, to take a look at some fishing cabins on the ice. They were accompanied by four of their children, one of whom, Réjean, recounted to the coroner how the family car nosed down when the ice cracked beneath them. The boy and his brother were in the front seat with their father; two sisters were in the back, with their mother. Réjean told how he tried to open the door but was unable, whereupon he lowered the window of the door, and managed to save himself and to help the other three children to escape. . . His father had been driving between 15 and 20 miles an hour, and there appeared no sign of danger.

It was established at the inquest that Mr. Bertrand had approached the river by the entrance to Fernand Ouellette's beach and fishing grounds. He had paid no admission fee, since he was merely a visitor. The accident occurred around Pointe aux Roches.

Mr. Ouellette, owner of the right of way, stated there was a notice inside the toll cabin requesting motorists to follow the established roads on the ice; but this year, due to lack of snow and clear trails, cars had taken random routes onto the river. When the mishap occurred he was occupied in towing three fishing cabins into position, and he affirmed that on January 10 the ice was 15 or 18 inches thick where he was installing the cabins. According to Mr. Ouellette, ice 15 inches thick will support 15 tons; also, vehicles must not be driven more than 22 miles an hour, no matter how thick the ice. Fishing had been open since December 8 last, when the ice was 9 inches and considered safe for the public.

Other witnesses were the Rev. Marc Blondin, of Montreal, a brother of a religious order, who was skating nearby at the time of the mishap; Gérard Martineau, Léon Lavoie and Hans Staub, all of Lachute, who were near the scene of the accident; Pierre Bertrand, who identified the bodies of his parents; and Officer Gilles Lavigne, of the Provincial Police.

Roger Lagarde, QC, was crown attorney at the hearing of the evidence.

Brownsburg appoints interim police chief

By Harry McCosh

Brownsburg — At the regular meeting of the Brownsburg Council on February 1, monthly vouchers were approved amounting to $4,366.34.

The Council passed a motion that a vote of thanks be sent to the Lachute Fire Department for their valuable assistance during the fire at the Hotel des Quatres Chemins on January 10; and that thanks be expressed, through this medium of communication, to all those who served hot refreshments to the firefighters or who helped in the actual fighting of the fire.

After approving the police report, the Council appointed André Roy as Chief of Police on an interim basis, until further developments occur in the condition of Richard Bell, who is at present in Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal, recovering from a stroke.

The Council approved a motion changing rates charged by the town for the thawing of water pipes. The new charges, which become effective immediately, are: — basic charge of $3, in addition to a charge of $1.69, each, for two men, with a minimum of one hour; on all night calls, a three-hour minimum, and time-and-a-half charged for additional hours; on Sundays, double wages charged, and the three hour minimum remains in effect.

The Council decided to ask the contractor of the new Town Hall to brick in the windows in the cells of the jail at the new building. The original windows were designed for ordinary glass.

On a motion by Councillor Harold Barber, the Council approved the purchase of a new photocopier valued at $1,145, providing that the new machine proved satisfactory in a test run

City engineer appointed for Lachute

With a forward view to various projects now facing this municipality, and the complexity of their nature, Town Council finally decided to engage a permanent city engineer. The services of Hubert Pilon (of Arsenault and Garneau, consulting engineers, Montreal) have been retained for this position.

Terms of the appointment stipulate that Mr. Pilon shall serve as interim director of the department for one year; that he shall organize an engineering department within the town administration; and if necessary, train an official to succeed him as director. Salary of the new official is set at $10,000 a year, plus $4,000 for car expenses, instruments and other incidentals.

Works Pending

A deciding factor in this move was recent correspondence, firstly from the Department of Natural Resources approving plans for a dam on Williams Creek to retain a reserve water supply, and secondly from the Canadian Underwriters Association deploring the fact that the town had delayed the overhauling of its water mains.

Duties Assigned

Duties outlined for the new engineer are: (1) To oversee, estimate, and regulate the maintenance and repair of town properties and installations, including street paving, sidewalks, sewers, waterworks, buildings, etc. (2) To prepare estimates for various requests for grants. (3) To ensure the application of building regulations.

The communication from Canadian Underwriters stated that Lachute's water distribution system was below the required standards, and requested the municipality to draw up an entire plan of the present mains. Failing compliance with these requests, there was strong possibility there would be an increase in fire assurance rates, the Underwriters warned.

The new town engineer will assume his job immediately.

Sequel to charge of maltreatment; St. Hermas case

A St. Hermas couple charged with exposing one of their children to treatment injurious to mind or body, either temporarily or permanently, were sentenced to a nominal fine of $1 each by Justice Omer Côté, in sessions of the peace at St. Jerome.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Côté felt that the accused, Mr. and Mrs. André St. Pierre, had already suffered severely in publicity surrounding the case. . . Attorney for the defendants was Vincent Drouin.

The charge dates back to November 1963, when information led the Provincial Police to investigate the St. Pierre home. They learned that in periods during summertime one of the children was kept chained in a stable. It was revealed in the trial, however, that the child slept in the house at nights.

Catholic cleric addressed Rotary

On Thursday last, the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club was fortunate in having the Rev. Father Viau, of St. Jerome, as guest speaker.

Father Viau came prepared to speak in French but, since most club members are English-speaking and his speech was not one which could be easily translated, decided to hold a "question and answer" session. This proved to be a popular decision. His answers to questions such as, "What can be expected as a result of the Ecumenical Council?", and "How is the Roman Catholic Church adapting itself to modern day life?" gave his audience a greater insight into the quiet revolution which is taking place within all Christian faiths. Father Viau's understandng and frank answering of these and other controversial questions, showed that the churches are not dormant, but rather very much alive and aware of the problems besetting modern man.

The appreciation of all club members for the opportunity to discuss such subjects with someone of Father Viau's calibre, was expressed by Rotarian George Desfosses, who presented the speaker with a Certificate of Appreciation.

Council Clippings

At Town Council last week, in regular statutory session, the city fathers acted upon a taxpayer's suggestion to engage two patrolmen (adults) at St. Alexandre and St. Julien school crossings.

Members of the Council were presented with copies of the Centre d'Art's annual report of activities, accompanying the usual request for a grant.

Town authorities and their legal counsel, Roger Lagarde, QC, will meet legal advisors of Gaëtan Leclair relative to water tax on his Martine Apartments, also the counsel for W. M. Cottingham, on the question of damages to his property caused by construction of the filtration plant.

A circular letter from the Department of Health, sent to all municipalities, advises householders that it is wise to boil all water for human consumption at this time of year.

Council received a quotation of $500 from Bégin, Charland & Valiquette for a complete valuation of the Barron property. Or if the services of this firm are engaged for a general municipal valuation, a $200 reduction will apply on the above offer.

A sum of $1,500 to the Social Service, and exemption of business tax to the Centre d'Art, were gratefully acknowledged by these organizations. The Laurentian Charities Federation asked permission to hold its annual campaign from March 10 to 27, and concurring with the Federation's request, Mayor Saindon declared the month of March as "Charity Month".

Council endorsed a copy of a resolution from St. Jerome to the Laurentian Autoroute Commission requesting that access and exit roads around St. Jerome be kept open to traffic, as previously.

Council granted a right of way to Gatineau Power Company for a power line at Adélard Patry's on the Sinclair montée.

Contract to Lucien Bellefeuille for garbage removal was approved at $350 a week, after a bid from another firm in Fabreville had been received for this job. However, the local contractor will also see to burying and covering garbage at the dumpsite.

The police and fire committee were authorized to enroll one constable and one fireman for a special course in first-aid to alcoholics, to be given at St. Jerome, at a cost of $7 per "pupil".

Held over for study were three tenders for a mechanical grader, also a proposed salary increase to Lucien Denault, chief operator at the filtration plant. Payment of $499.90 to the Richelieu Club for rental of land for snow disposal this winter, also bills amounting to $23,470, were given formal approval.

New by-law on store hours, amendment on dance halls

By majority sentiment and Council verdict, it appears that local stores will do business Thursday evenings, and will open also every week-day evening during the month of December. This is the outcome of a poll taken among the merchants by Ald. Philippe Masson acting on request of the Council.

Ald. Masson reported 50 merchants in favor of this plan, 15 merchants opposed, and nine who expressed willingness to follow a majority ruling — 74 storekeepers having been contacted for their opinion.

Notice of motion was given to amend By-law 205 in conformity with these wishes.

Council to Amend Contentious By-law

Another town by-law, one which prohibits Sunday dancing in grills, is up for amendment. Four local hotelkeepers made the request, and a notice of motion was presented when the councillors agreed to amend the measure.

According to claims made by some of the hotelmen, young people are going out of town Sunday evenings and dancing in outside establishments. The practice has been prohibited here for 10 years or so, and hotelmen have voiced their protest on several occasions. Certain aldermen agreed that the hotel business was highly taxed, and that young people went dancing in neighboring grills on Sunday afternoons since they had no such entertainment in their own town.

Mayor Dr. Z. Saindon observed that he had consulted with the Catholic clergy on the subject. He further remarked that alcohol and gasoline "do not mix", and that young motorists driving home from outside dance halls constitute a real danger on the highways.

Catholic priest occupied Protestant pulpit

A large congregation assembled Sunday, February 7, in Lachute United Church to hear the Rev. Father Léopold Godbout speak on the subject of "The Vatican Council". He spoke of the new era of understanding between Protestants and Roman Catholics, and suggested ways in which further good-will could be continued. The first suggestion was to worship together more often. This had been well begun on this Sunday, for Father Godbout had been joined at the United Church by many of his parishioners and the teaching Sisters. His second suggestion had to do with meetings of Protestant and Catholic men's and women's groups, for discussions and fellowship. He hoped that this meeting of Christians might bring greater understanding of each other's beliefs.

In the accompanying picture, Stewart Jones, an elder of Lachute United Church, and the Rev. W. H. Thompson, minister, welcome Father Godbout to the pulpit of the United Church.

Change of pulpits . . . The Rev. Father Léopold Godbout, parish priest of Ste. Anastasie Roman Catholic Church, photographed in the pulpit of the Lachute United Church with the Rev. W. Auto club formed; motor sport rally this Saturday

The Lachute Motor Sport Club, formed approximately a month ago, is sponsoring a car rally this Saturday evening, February 13, starting at 7.30 o'clock. Entrance fee is $1 per car and entrance forms can be picked up at the Shell Service Station, Main Street. The rally is expected to take two hours and to cover approximately 40 miles.

A meeting of the organization will be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Windsor Hotel. Those interested are invited to attend. President of the club is David Pollock, and the club's aims are to promote motor sport and good driving habits in the community.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

The caretaker of the municipal properties, including Lachute's memorial park, suggested to Town Council asphalting of the footpaths and repainting of the souvenir guns in the park this spring. With both ideas we heartily concur. . . He also suggested, however, to remove the fountain. With this we disagree. A fountain is a beauty spot in any city park; and Lachute is no exception. We would rather capitalize on this asset, and embellish it as a greater attraction in this restful scene.

By BOB ATCHISON

I wonder if any of the operators of the snow machines being used around just now have ever given any thought to the damage some of them are doing. A great many calls from irate landowners on some of the happenings, have been received. To try and give you all of them would take the whole column, but here are a few. Cutting fences rather than work a little to get gates open, either by pulling wire so tight with the machines themselves to raise or lower the fence, or by breaking posts, etc. I would assume that these operators are sane people, but hearing things like this you begin to wonder. Of course the owners of these machines are not to blame alone; some of this may be done by them, but we do have to consider the people renting them, and this, I believe, is where the trouble is. It's too bad that this has to happen, and my guess is that some of the land owners are going to take the law into their own hands, and this just could be costly to the machine owners.

Still on these machines, no doubt you read of the lady getting hit on the head with a wolf trap; at least it was supposed to be a wolf trap, but it sure could have been a deer trap. I am not really surprised at this happening, only surprised at it not being more common. There are plenty of such traps around, and this may give you some idea of what to look for. You are going to have to use your eyes to spot them, but once having done this you could mark them for others. The first real tough one is the deadfall type. This is a tree cut so that it just hangs over a deer trail in such a manner that even touching a wire strung across the path will bring tons of tree down on you. Deadly, believe me. You won't have to worry too much about this one for if you do hit a trip wire, then you won't know it. This is a big game outfit, and certainly not for wolves. Another real beaut is the set gun; this is usually an old shotgun, set along a run in some hidden spot, with fine wire tied to the trigger then strung along the trail so anyone hitting it will fire the gun. Hit this and you'll have to pick buckshot out of yourself. Believe it or not this is still a popular outfit with the deer poachers. Another is the old pit method, usually a deep pit dug into the earth, covered with broken logs etc., then covered with a fine layer of earth, not too dangerous, you'll only get broken legs out of this one. The best of all though is the one called the hang trap, this is a tree of medium size bent over with a heavy wire loop hanging down hidden by brush, with a wire from the top of the tree to a small peg in the ground or on a tree. This is a real dilly, sure to get a broken neck out of this one, before taking off into orbit. I know you are going to laugh at some of these but believe me they are no laughing matter, so before you go blasting off over the snow, take it easy to get your bearings. It could pay off.

I haven't mentioned the poaching that has been going on in this area in the false hopes that something would be done about it, but no such luck. Dogs are running deer around St. Philippe; snow machines in the bush late at night, NOT just for running around either. Jack-lighting is going on in a big way. This has always been big business and it is getting bigger every day. Almost every spot has its own gang — Calumet, where I have been told venison can be bought if you are in the know; trout are still on the menu around Arundel, and I believe many more places I'm not sure of. The strange part of this is that only in a few cases are these killers from this area, most of them would be from around Montreal; you know the bit, rent a snow machne for the week-end and get themselves a couple of deer from some yard. Easily done.

With the lack of concern shown for our wildlife it is a wonder we have anything at all. Maybe one of these days though we will wake up to this sad fact. This I'll admit is not too common, but while talking to a gent the other day, he mentioned the fact that he had killed his deer the first day of this past season, but had killed three others for friends on later dates. Even though this gent had no license to kill deer, he had gone out with his friends to do just that. Strange just how things work isn't it. I just can't figure this out at all. I know this man shot these deer as a favor, if it can be called that, but to me it was just a case of blood lust. I believe if a hunter can't get his own game he should do without.

I wrote of the Quéont Wild Duck projects last fall, and have just received some more information from them. Instead of waiting for the government to do something, they have banded a group of clubs together in the hope they can help the Wild Duck population. How to build marsh, boxes, feeding areas, etc., is all covered by their brochures; anyone wanting to get in on this on his own, can do so by contacting Wild Duck Project, 975 Woodroffe Ave., Ottawa 13, Ontario. They have some valuable information, for instance last fall a hunter killed a Black duck and on cleaning it found the flesh contained what looked like small white worms. He naturally contacted the Rideau Fish and Game Club, who in turn got in touch with the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. On being examined the bird was found to contain a worm called Sarcosporidiosis, a rare protozoa attack affecting Blacks, Mallards, and some mammals. It can be recognized as resembling white grains of rice in the meat. When this condition is found in cattle, the meat is condemned, and it has not been proven that it will not affect humans too, so. . .

The fishing is excellent in our area, Perch of good size along with good Pike and in a couple of cases Doré, all having been reported. These are all found around the St. Placide area or if you want to go farther afield, then Calumet, Pointe-au-Chene and all along that stretch of river. However it is still Missisquoi Bay for the Doré. I saw some pictures of a catch there last week-end, real beauties. I understand there will be another derby around the Bay this Sunday, the 14th. You might take along the family too, you know your wife would have a grand time with the other ladies that go. On top of this you can get everything needed to make your day a joy, and you can even get yourself a feed of beans after all the fish have been counted. Better visit Hawkesbury too, just to make sure, Duggans Dew, Screech, Black Blast or whatever you want to call it, comes in handy on a cold day, as anti-freeze for the car.

It certainly looks as though all the Snow Owls have gone, even though plenty of feed is around for them. I imagine even they couldn't take the heavy gunning for them. I do know a number of them have been killed for trophies, but when they find out the cost of having these birds mounted, then you know what happens to them. My idea of a trophy is to see something like this flying around. A great sight indeed.

I don't know how some of you will like this, but what would you call a human like this? Imagine anyone setting out small traps in the snow, covering the snow with grain, and catching Hungarian Partridge. Not pleasant to think of is it? Imagine the suffering these birds have to go through when they are not killed outright. Maybe hours of this too. All for a feed of wild bird. Not for most of us, I think.

* * *

As you all know, I have already started talking of the spring fishing so naturally this also includes rods and reels. I had a preview of a new reel on the market in this country although it is not new overseas. It is much the same as the Duco B or Ambidex, quality made, and with good service facilities. This goes a long way in the performance of any reel. There was even a good Japanese reel, new and I think untried as yet. Maybe just as well to pass up on this one for a year or so, you know the Japanese do make good products, but it is no one but ourselves to blame for some of the junk put upon our markets. Price is the main thing, so the solution is to do is buy better, buy Canadian; possibly more money [illegible] buy better. . .

Lachute Ladies' CURLING Activities

Once again, our Visitors' Day bridge and tea was a huge success. This busy day took place on Tuesday, February 2 — and was well attended by all the members. Taking part in the curling activities were a total of twelve rinks from Outremont, Town of Mount Royal, Brownsburg, Caledonia, Thurso, Lorraine, Baie d'Urfé, St. Sauveur, Chantecler, Lachute and two rinks from Hawkesbury. The winning rinks were Hawkesbury, Thurso and St. Sauveur. The Reception Committee was on hand to welcome the visitors and serve coffee before the start of the games and as each game ended the players were served sherry followed by a most delicious luncheon. The committee deserves praise for a well-planned and tasty lunch. The table was nicely decorated by Gerry Butterfield, with a timely St. Valentine's Day motif. After the luncheon and presentation of prizes, the bridge players seemed to have been having some good games, if the hilarity coming from some of the tables was any indication, and the prize-winners were Gladys Muir and Julie Heggie. To conclude the fun and games tea was served and a most inviting tea it was, with delectable cakes and cookies. Mrs. Keith Clarke and Mrs. George McGibbon were the conveners and Mrs. Stuart McFaul and Mrs. Roy Fraser presided at the table.

The Challenge games took place last week and the results will be given in next week's issue, as well as the finals of the Club Bonspiel.

We are very happy that our confidence and pride in the curling abilities of Leona MacKimmie and her rink were not misplaced. It was a really tremendous achievement to have competed in such a big bonspiel and only lose out in the finals. We followed the results from day to day of the "Diamond D" which took place in Arvida, and shared in the tension that the girls must have been undergoing, despite the fun and fellowship that accompanies these bonspiels. Congratulations to you all, Leona, Bobby McFaul, Eileen Rutherford and Lena Bradshaw.

Congratulations also to Don Bradley and Art Lobel for winning the 91st Governor-General Championships which took place in Ottawa.

Boy! This week we really have news! Lachute's double-rink team won the Governor-General's Trophy at the Ottawa Hunt Club. This was the 91st playing for the cup, and Lachute's first time to win it. On Wednesday evening the Lachute teams defeated Ottawa Hunt Club teams 11 to 8 and 8 to 5 in some very excellent curling. This took our teams into the finals against Wentworth Curling Club teams from Montreal. The finals were played on the Ottawa Hunt Club ice before a large gallery of spectators.

Don Bradley's team took 2 points on the first end while Art Lobel's team took 4 points on the first end. As it turned out, I would say this was the winning point of the game. Art Lobel got his score up to 7 to 1, but then Jack Little of Wentworth whittled the lead down to 2 points difference, while on three occasions K. Bishop, the Wentworth skip against Don Bradley, evened the score.

In the 12th end Don Bradley took out K. Bishop's last rock to count 3 on that end and Jack Little conceded the game at this stage to Art Lobel, who was lying 2 shots with both skips yet to play but with Art Lobel having last rock. So it got written into history that Lachute won the 91st playing of the Governor-General's Trophy with a combined two-team score of 22 to 16 points. Art Lobel's team were doubly happy over their win against Jack Little's team of Wentworth, because it was the same team that knocked Art's squad out of the Jubilee quarter-finals at Three Rivers some two weeks ago.

All played exceptionally well, and Lachute can be very proud of Don Bradley (skip), Keith Warwick, Doug MacKenzie and Lester Cheslock — Art Lobel (skip), Don McFaul, Lionel Rendell and Carl Rodger. The teams were entertained with their wives or lady friends at Government House by His Excellency Governor-General Vanier, who presented the cup to the winners.

Those who drove to Ottawa to encourage the boys were Mrs. Don Bradley, Mrs. Keith Warwick, Miss Shirley Pollock, Mrs. Lionel Rendell, Leonard Gain, Romeo Charron, Syd Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Pollock and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Jones. It was a wonderful play-off to watch. Hearty congratulations go to each and every player.

On Saturday night, February 6, the Hawkesbury Curling Club used our Lachute ice for an evening curling session.

SKI TRAILS

By Ross Cole,
Director, Ayers Ski School

Ski Tips

Last week we were having some very cold temperatures in the below freezing range. In skiing, I noticed a few skiers with frozen ears or noses, and brought it to their attention. The only way to keep this in check is on the buddy system; there is no way to feel whether or not you have a frozen nose or ear and you must rely on fellow skiers to tell you. I recommend to skiers on very cold days to keep an eye on your fellow skiers and warn them if they see a white spot starting.

Remember, there is approximately one-degree drop in temperature for every mile per hour of wind, so if you are skiing against a 10 m.p.h. breeze at 10 m.p.h. on your skis and the still temperature is -10°F, in reality the temperature is -30°F, and it doesn't take long for your flesh to freeze at these temperatures.

The best way to bring superficial freezing of the skin back to normal, is by placing your bare hand over the spot without rubbing. If it is the fingers or hands, place them under your armpits. Under NO circumstances should you rub snow or even place snow on the frozen part, this is an "old grandmother's tale" and should never be done. This article is too limited to explain the reason why; ask a member of the "Canadian Ski Patrol" the next time you see one on the hill — they are experts on Winter First Aid and would be very happy that you showed an interest in prevention.

Lachute Junior B's at top of league

The Junior B hockeyists, maintaining a high calibre of performance all season, have sewn up the league championship for Lachute, as the schedule nears completion. Last Sunday the team defeated Ste. Adele to the decisive tune of 10-0.

This team will meet Calumet Seniors next Sunday at 3 p.m. in a game in the Brownsburg Arena.

CURLING Activities in Brownsburg

The Laurentian Zone Legion playdowns, February 7, drew a large crowd to the club to watch the battle for the rink to represent the District in the Provincial playdowns at Bel-Aire Curling Club, February 18 to 20.

The winner: Lachute — Syd Drew (skip), Dick MacLean, Bud Langille, Ed McFaul.

Runner-up: Ste. Agathe — J. Nagy, J. P. Villeneuve, P. Marier, S. Sauvage.

Consolation: Brownsburg — Syl Hall, I. Martin, G. Gates, R. Summers.

Runner-up: Lachute — Dee Graham; F. Pringle, W. Bradshaw, L. Kettyle.

The President's Bonspiel, a round-robin for afternoon curlers, finished February 2 with Mrs. R. Keatley (skip), Mrs. W. Dimock, Mrs. R. Lafleur and Mrs. D. Graham the winning rink.

Runners-up were Mrs. P. Villard, Mrs. G. Tomalty, Mrs. J. Broadfoot and Mrs. P. Cumbers.

"Cub Curling" at the Brownsburg Social Club started last Friday, and Harold Hewitt was on the ice with the "curlers of tomorrow" at 5.30 p.m. . . On Saturday the "die-hards" were there at 9 a.m. and, believe it or not, curling went on until 5 p.m.

Last Tuesday a rink from Brownsburg was invited to Lachute for Visitors' Day and to play in their "friendly". A delicious lunch and tea was served and the day turned out to be a most pleasant one. On the following day a number of ladies from Lachute were at Brownsburg "open house", some to try out our ice before having tea.

The second Club Competition is now in play. This is a "knock-out and consolation", with thirds skipping and skips playing third.

In the playdowns for the rink to represent the Brownsburg Curling Club in the Colts (six-year curlers and under), Wyman Hazel (skip), Gerry Tomalty, Dave Atkins and Bob Tomalty defeated Malcolm Cairns, Bob Armstrong, Bob McGuire and Jim Murdoch.

Wednesday or Thursday of this week, the Lady Gilmour will be played in Brownsburg ice. So far there are seven entries from the Centre. This is a single rink mixed competition, and the finals will be played in Ottawa, February 26 and 27.

* * *

On February 15, the Men's Senior and Junior Bonspiels will get underway. The Senior rinks will be made up of skips and thirds, the Junior, seconds and leads.

Remember, this Saturday, February 13, there will be a "pot-luck" supper at the club, followed by dancing to an orchestra. All members and their friends are invited — but don't forget to bring some of the "pot-luck"!

Legion District 12 winners . . . A Lachute rink skipped by Syd Drew won out in the Canadian Legion District 12 curling bonspiel held Sunday in Brownsburg. Ten teams were entered in the event, representing branches from Lachute, Brownsburg, Montebello, Ste. Agathe and St. Jerome. The winning team, seen here receiving their trophy from Yves Rolland, Dow sales manager at St. Jerome, are — Syd Drew (skip), Dick MacLean, Bud Langille and Ed McFaul, along with Andrew Hardie, organizer of the event. In the final game the local rink defeated a team from Ste. Agathe, skipped by John Nagy, 8-4, to win the event and the district position in the Provincial Championships, to be held February 26-27 in St. Hilaire. Including playdowns in their own branches, a total of 19 teams took part in this district.

by Secretary-treasurer Vincent Charbonneau.

The Council then passed a motion by Councillor Léon Guénette supplying an assistant for Mr. Charbonneau during extra heavy duties involved in moving into the new hall, and in making out the tax lists.

On a motion by Councillor Germain Doth, the Council decided to ask quotations on a new truck for the town, and to seek offers from prospective buyers on the Sanivan which is no longer being used by the town.

Discussion on the new budget was then set aside for the next meeting, on February 8.

Funeral held for late resident

Mrs. George Hutchin

The death of Mrs. George Hutchin occurred at her home on January 29. The deceased was formerly Ellen Brown, a lifelong resident of Lachute. She leaves to mourn her loss her loving husband, her mother, Mrs. Nora Brown, of Lachute, seven sisters and two brothers — Mrs. Norman Hodge (Alma), Mrs. M. Lees (Elsie), Mrs. E. Jackson (Lily), Mrs. George Gain (Stella), Mrs. Wesley Armstrong (Eva), all of Lachute. Mrs. Victor Stubbs, (Freda), of Montreal, Miss Alice Brown, of Montreal, Russel and George of Lachute.

The funeral service was held Monday, February 1, from the chapel of the MacKimmie Funeral Home, conducted by the Rev. W. H. Thompson.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. George Gain, Victor Stubbs, Perley McArthur, Willie Boa, Cecil Graham and Clarence Carpenter. Interment took place in the Lachute Cemetery.

Bereavement in local family

The late Sylvio Bazinet

The death occurred last Saturday of Mr. Sylvio Bazinet, a 70-year-old resident of the Brownsburg Road, who died after a period in hospital.

The late Mr. Bazinet is mourned by his wife, the former Isabel Davidson, also by his son, Elmer Bazinet, two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held Tuesday afternoon from the Menard parlors, the remains being taken to the Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

SCHOOL — Brownsburg High News

'The Sports Scene'

By David McCaffrey

Both the senior girls' and boys' teams from our school were victorious when they played basketball in Grenville on Friday evening. In the boys' game, which ended 58-36, Winston Dixon put the most balls in the basket for Brownsburg, scoring 30 points. Linda Tomalty and Susan Sugden, who has been missing for three weeks with an injury, were the high Brownsburg scorers in the girls' game which we won 60-16.

Saturday was a day of basketball at B.H.S. Games were held from 10 a.m. until 5.45 p.m. The first game featured the junior boys from Brownsburg against those from Rosemere. The score was close "all the way". However, in the final seconds of play, Rosemere scored the basket which won the game for them by a score of 31-30. George Chalmers and Cecil Humphries played especially well in their defensive positions during this game.

In the junior girls' game, Brownsburg broke away in the initial quarter and held onto their lead until the conclusion of the contest, when they were ahead by 16 points (29-13). Rosemary Steere and Debbie Campbell, our high scorers, didn't seem to have half as much trouble getting through Rosemere's defence, as the Rosemere forwards had getting past the Brownsburg guards of Audrey Jackson, Linda Cowan and Beverly Bauer.

In the third game, Royal George High School defeated our junior boys 37-26. Brownsburg held a lead in the first quarter but from the middle of the second period R.G.H.S. was in control. Brownsburg missed the height of Dickie Moore, who was unable to play. Sean Hall played a good game, both offensively and defensively.

The junior girls then played Royal George, winning by 33-27. This was perhaps the hardest game they have had all year. The senior girls, too, had a "close call" against R.G. The lead changed hands several times during the game, but at the final whistle, we were ahead by two points (33-31).

The last game was between the junior boys from R.G.H.S. and B.H.S. The score was fairly even during the first quarter. However, Royal George fell behind in the second period of play when Brownsburg began to "move". Mark Racine and Wayne Seary started to score from the fine offensive plays of Winston Dixon, who, by the way, scored 25 points himself. During the last quarter the play was fairly even, and Brownsburg was able to hold onto its lead, winning by a score of 59-38.

Next Saturday a tournament of junior boys' teams will be held in Brownsburg. Everyone is invited to come and watch these games.

"Carnival Week"

By Sandra Hall

Carnival week is again coming up. This year the carnival runs from February 19-27. Brownsburg High School plans to get into the carnival spirit with a snow sculpturing contest, which is being sponsored by the school newspaper staff. The paper, "The Triumph", has shown a profit; thus, the staff are able to sponsor such a contest.

Each grade from one to eleven, has already chosen a subject suitable for snow sculpture. The exhibits will be judged on February 18 by teachers who are not involved in the sculpturing. There will be two exhibits chosen: from grades one to six, and from grades seven to eleven. The two winning classes will be rewarded with an ice cream party.

Grade one are planning to make a fanciful snowman; grade two "Humpty-Dumpty", Grade three "The Old Woman in a Shoe", while grade four will weave their geography into their making of an igloo. Grade 5A and grade 5B will inculcate history in their sculptures: grade 5A making the famous historical Champlain habitation, while grade 5B sculpture an Indian in a canoe. Grade six plan to build a Roman house; grade seven are attempting an Eskimo fishing through a hole in the ice; grade eight "A" will build a ship, and grade eight "B" will make a country church. In grade nine A a guillotine will be attempted, while grade nine B plan a snow tribute to the late Sir Winston Churchill. Grade ten A will sculpture Anne Boleyn, and grade ten B will attempt a 1964 Lincoln Continental. Grade eleven plan to build a "Model T". Thus, we can look forward to a busy two weeks of snow sculpturing, as the pupils and teachers alike endeavor to build, from snow and ice, their various designs. The awards for the winners — ice cream.

Claim for Damages

Dated February 4, a claim was received by the town corporation for damages to W. M. Cottingham's property, in the amount of $150,000. Submitted by his attorneys, the firm of Taschereau, Dussault & Drouin, of Quebec City, the claim demands attention of the town authorities within 15 days of its issue. . . A consultation between Mr. Cottingham's lawyers and those of the town corporation is set for February 11.

Federation funds allotted $92,400 to services in '64

The Laurentian Federation of Charities is launching its third annual campaign.

The member agencies of this Federation depend on the public generosity to receive the necessary funds to fulfill their mission. Contributions made during the previous campaigns were well utilized, and the Federation expresses gratitude on behalf of all these services.

In the present month, "special names" will be visited by authorized persons to receive their subscription in the name of the Federation. An official receipt will be issued for income tax purposes.

The Federation anticipates a generous response from everyone who is called upon, and expresses its thanks in advance on behalf of the underprivileged members of the community.

During 1964 the Federation was privileged to allot the following amounts to affiliated organizations:

St. Vincent de Paul Soc.	$11,400
Clothing Work Shops	3,100
Family Services	16,000

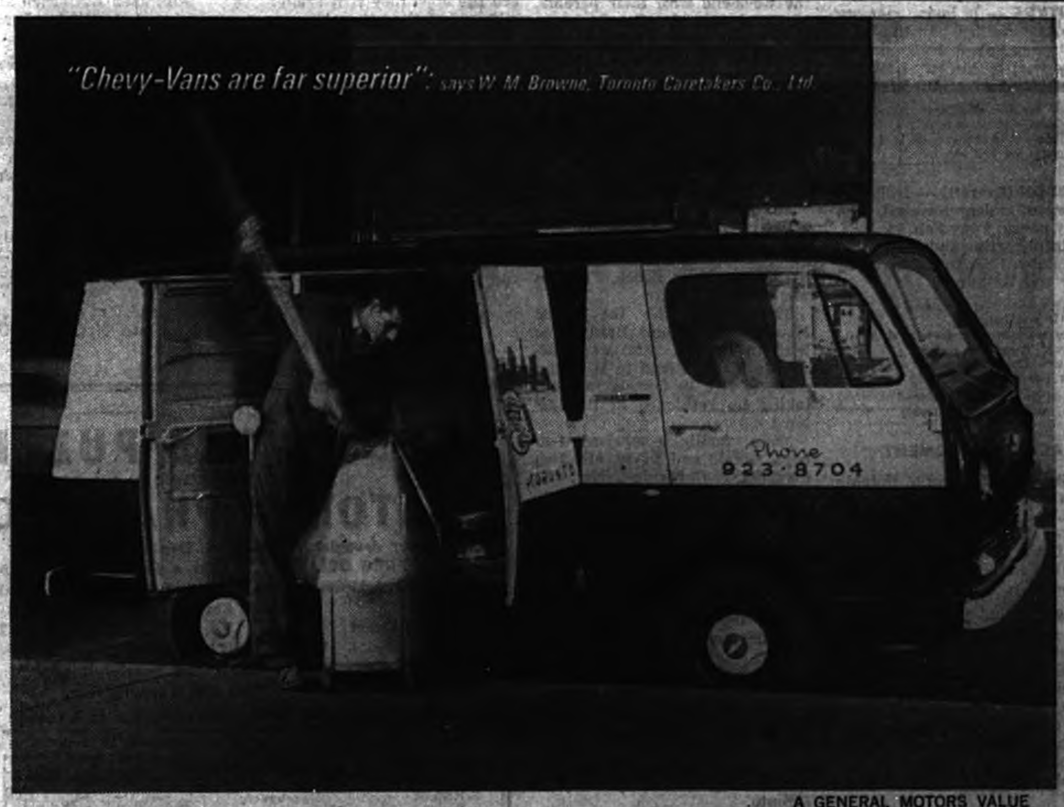
"Chevy-Vans are far superior": says W. M. Browne, Toronto Caretakers Co., Ltd.



A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Multi-stop city driving calls for CHEVROLET
workpower

Says W. M. Browne, Toronto Caretakers, Toronto, Ontario. "We have used panel trucks of various makes for the past 15 years. Nine months ago we put six Chevy-Vans into service and, from our experience with these, we have purchased six more.

"Accurate comparative analysis of our vehicle operation proves Chevy-Vans to be most economical. The six-cylinder engine is really lively with plenty of power. Gas mileage is very good and has given us a substantial saving per unit.

"Manoeuvrability in city traffic is excellent, resulting in reduced time between calls. Mechanically, Chevy-Vans have proved to be first-class—we have had no failures.

"In summary, I would say that Chevy-Vans are far superior to any units we have previously operated."

The late Mrs. J. Maitland

The death of Mrs. J. Maitland, a well-known lady resident of Brownsburg, occurred on February 4 at the Good Samaritan Hospital, West Palm Beach, Fla. She was in her 71st year.

The deceased lady, the former Miss Mary Margaret Brady, was born in Ireland. She was married to Mr. Maitland in 1918 and came to live in Canada in 1921, taking up residence in Brownsburg.

Their family comprised two boys, Gerald and David, also two daughters, Christine (Mrs. L. Baccardax), all of Brownsburg, and Isabel (Mrs. C. Alexander), of Toronto. They, with a brother, David Brady, of Belfast, Ireland, a sister, Mrs. Wm. Brown, of Brownsburg, her husband and numerous relatives remain to mourn the passing of a loving and devoted wife, mother and friend.

Service was conducted by the Rev. T. Richards, in the Brownsburg United Church last Monday.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. J. Duncan, W. Brady, J. Murdoch, E. Gagné, O. Gagné, all of Brownsburg, and J. Brown, of Toronto.

IN MEMORIAM

MacINTYRE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Austin, who passed away Feb. 9, 1959. — Ever remembered by his loving wife, Hilda.

"I miss you more than anyone knows
As each year the loneliness grows;
The tears in my eyes I'll wipe away
But the ache in my heart is here to stay;
I wanted to be the first to go
But since this could not be so,
I pray the Lord will let you be
There awaiting at the gate for me."

MacINTYRE — In loving memory of a dear father, Austin, who passed away Feb. 9, 1959. — Ever remembered by his daughter, Eileen, son-in-law Gary, and children.

"The cover of life's book is closed
For the "Daddy" we loved so well,
But loving thoughts of a life well spent
Are what the pages tell;
He wouldn't want us to sorrow now
He would be disturbed by our tears,
But I'm sure somehow he'd like to know
We loved him down through the years."

MacINTYRE — In loving memory of a dear father, Austin, who passed away Feb. 9, 1959. — Ever remembered by his son, Leonard, and daughter-in-law, Joyce.

"No need for formal tribute
For one who was so dear,
But just a word of thanks dear Lord
For the years we had him here."

McGIBBON (Everett) — In loving memory of a dear husband, who quietly passed away Feb. 14, 1964. — Painful parting and sadly missed by Ruby. Ever remembered by Annie and Arthur.

"I wish so much that life could be
Just as it was before,
That you were in your favorite chair —
As I walk 'round the room,
What I would give to hear your voice,
And see you smile again."
(His heart was saddened with the loss of Leslie)

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

HUTCHIN — Mr. George Hutchin wishes to express his sincere thanks to his many friends and relatives for their acts of kindness, flowers and expressions of sympathy in his recent sad bereavement.

LAFOREST — Mrs. Donat Laforest and family wish to express deepest appreciation to those who were so kind and thoughtful during their recent bereavement by sending cards, flowers, offerings, visits to the funeral parlor, and attendance at the funeral. (To all who omitted to register at the funeral parlor, our personal gratitude.)

Pioneer resident of Shrewsbury was member of old Arg'tl Rangers

An impressive Anglican service, conducted by the Rev. C. R. Lang, was held Monday at the MacKinnie Funeral Home for the late John A. Good, of Shrewsbury. Mr. Good, in his 90th year, was the last resident of his generation of the original pioneer settlers of Shrewsbury.

Born July 26, 1875, he was the son of the late Capt. William Good and Mary Anne Oborne. His wife, Emily Seaward, predeceased him in 1939. As his father before him, John Good was an ardent cavalry man, attached to the famous Argenteuil Rangers and, with his horse "Charlie", took a keen interest in attending the various military camps throughout the province each year.

Known throughout the County, he will be remembered for his quiet and kindly manner, truly one of nature's gentlemen. Some will remember him most of all with his fiddle at the Orange dances in years gone by. He was a member of Shrewsbury L.O.L. 716 for over 50 years, and master of this lodge for a time. The late Mr. Good was honored by a special service of the Orange order on Sunday evening, February 7. He was a devoted Anglican and People's Warden of St. John's Church, Shrewsbury for 50 years. He also served as municipal councillor for 12 years.

The respect and esteem with which he was held was evidenced by the numbers attending the services. The remains were placed in the Lachute Cemetery vault for burial in the spring.

He is survived by his son, Clarence, and grandchildren, Robin and Bonnie.

Arundel

Mr. Percy Staniforth left last week for a vacation in Florida.

Week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crone, of Rockway, were Miss Linda Crone, of Candiac, Que., Miss Janet Roughton, Miss Audrey Dillon, Mr. Barry Roughton and Mr. Roy Crone, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith and family, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Staniforth.

The annual Ice Carnival will be held at the Arundel Rink on Friday evening February 19, commencing at eight o'clock. Come one, come all and have a good time.

The annual meeting of the Arundel United Church was held last week with Rev. Mr. McCullough, of Morin Heights, presiding. In each department the reports were read indicating a successful year, including that of Finances. The election then took place, all officers being re-elected for another term.

The monthly meeting of the Arundel Branch, Women's Institute, was held last Tuesday evening. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Alvin Graham, Mrs. Bulley presided. Routine business was dealt with, and the meet which took the form of a Valentine party, was turned over to the entertainment committee. A successful and interesting quiz was held under the leadership of Mrs. Owen Rathwell, and was much enjoyed. Husbands of some of the members attended as guests, and the members expressed the hope they visit again! At the end of the entertainment program, all adjourned for a supper under the capable leadership of Mrs. Gordon Cooke, Mrs. Roy Staniforth thanked the members who had acted as hosts to the officers, and the meeting was then adjourned.

APPRECIATION

I wish to thank relatives, friends and neighbors for cards, flowers and kindnesses shown while I was in the Montreal General Hospital. Also thanks to the Rev. W. H. Thompson and the Rev. H. Baugh.

Mrs. Olive Morrison

Lake Keatley

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones and family, of Thurso, visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. MacVicar, on Sunday.

Mr. Ross Pounden and a friend, from Montreal, spent the week-end with his father, Mr. Nat Pounden.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAndrew, of Montreal, were recent week-end guests of Mrs. McAndrew's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Stewart.

Miss Joan Heffernan spent the week-end at "Hidden Brook" Cottage on Lake McLeod.

Mr. and Mrs. Skates Smith left recently to spend some time in Florida, also visiting Mr. Skates' brother.

Best wishes are extended to Miss Evelyn Chisholm for a speedy recovery after her recent accident.

Deepest sympathy is extended to the husband and family of the late Mrs. Bill Williams, of L'Orignal, Ont., who passed away suddenly.

Mr. and Mrs. Coral Young visited Mr. and Mrs. Manly Chisholm recently.

Couple wed Saturday at Lachute United Church

Brown - Armstrong

The marriage of Beverley Carol, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linton W. Armstrong, and Glen William, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Brown, took place on Saturday, February 6, in the Lachute United Church. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough, assisted by the Rev. W. H. Thompson, performed the ceremony. Mr. L. Hopkins was the organist, and the church was decorated with white and yellow gladioli and mums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length fitted gown of white silk brocade with long sleeves and a rounded train from the shoulders of white peau-de-soie with a wide border of white brocade. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Susan Rogerson, as maid of honor, wore a full-length gown of green velvet, with headdress to match, and the bridesmaids, Miss Bonnie MacKimmie, Miss Donna Haggerty and Miss Donna Hagerty, wore full-length gowns of gold velvet, also with headdresses to match. The attendants carried round bouquets of yellow roses, and wore long white gloves.

Mr. Ronald Nagle was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Robert Armstrong, Mr. David Bradley and Mr. Gary Dudley.

The reception was held at La Lorraine Motel, where the tables were decorated with yellow and white mums. Seated at the parents' table were the parents of the bride and groom, the grandmothers of the bride and groom, the Rev. Mr. Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, and the Rev. Mr. Rosborough. The latter proposed the toast to the bride.

Following the reception the happy couple left for a short trip, the bride wearing a suit of pink crochet with black accessories. They will live in Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Kenneth Duncan, of Malone Bay, N.S.; Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Young, of Quebec; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Young, of Chambly; Mr. and Mrs. J. Innis, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Vickers, Mr. and Mrs. N. Malouf, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. James and Mr. Chris Chisholm, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. E. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Boyd, of Ottawa; and Mr. Robt. Cromie, Mr. Len Dean and Mr. P. McPhail of the RCMP, Ottawa.

February meeting of Red Cross

At the February meeting of the Lachute Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, held Wednesday of last week in the United Church hall, Mrs. Fernand Legault, president, occupied the chair, and Mrs. Bert McGibbon gave a report for the Work Committee, stating that one consignment of swabs had already been sent in to Montreal headquarters this year.

Among other matters discussed were the final arrangements for Lachute's two delegates, Mrs. Roger Regimbal and Mrs. Douglas Randall, to attend the annual meeting of the Red Cross Quebec Division, on February 19-20, in Montreal. Their reports of these two days will be of interest to all members.

Historian heard at clergy meeting

Dr. G. R. Rigby was the guest speaker at the February meeting of the Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association. After an illuminating description of Christian symbolism in medieval churches, illustrated by slides, a question period followed, and appreciation was expressed for Dr. Rigby's presentation.

Annual report on hospital bed loan organization

At the recent annual meeting of the "Bed and Chair Loan Organization", Mrs. George Y. Deacon, president and treasurer, gave her report on hospital beds and sides for the year 1964.

She told the meeting that during the current year seven beds were in use. There were three out during the entire year, in each case being used in one home, also two others out for the greater part of the year, each in two homes.

Altogether, Mrs. Deacon reported, the beds went into 12 homes for a total of 2,059 days, an average of nearly 229 days for each of the nine beds.

The report concluded with a concise yet detailed financial statement, and a reminder to those who have sickness to contend with at home that this service is available at all times for their assistance.

February meeting of Catholic women

The director, the Rev. Father Mailloux, was present at the February meeting of the C.W.L., and Miss Lydia Lowe presided over the business session. Mrs. C. McGill and Mrs. P. Soumis accepted co-convenership of the St. Patrick's Supper; Mrs. M. Peters is convener of tickets, and Mrs. O. Stephens convener of decorations.

A short talk on a group discussion program was given by Mrs. M. Gendron. The subject taken from the "League" Magazine, "Socialization — Its Meaning, and Application in Civic and Family Life", will be studied in small conversational groups at some future meetings.

The members' annual broomball game, which will be played at the Lions' Rink in February, followed by a bean supper, is under the convenership of Mrs. R. Hebert.

Mayor to open Egyptian Art exhibition Sunday at Centre

Next Sunday, February 14, at 3 p.m., the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil will present its first art exhibition of 1965. This will offer a remarkable display of 32 paintings from the tombs of the Pharaohs of Ancient Egypt, the birthplace of our civilization.

These works of art are color reproductions, of course. But they are of such value that they truly translate the subtle color harmonies of these early Egyptian artists who decorated the tombs of the Pharaohs more than 3,500 years ago.

This exhibition is distributed by the National Gallery of Canada, and has been organized with the assistance of the UNESCO.

Guided Visits

A new system of guided visits has been planned by the Centre d'Art in the presentation of its art exhibitions this year. A recorded commentary in both languages will provide better understanding and further appreciation of the works exhibited. A free catalogue supplied by the National Gallery of Canada is also available.

Invitation to Schools

A special invitation is extended to school teachers and their pupils, to visit this most interesting art exhibition.

The opening will take place Sunday at 3 p.m., with Mayor Dr. Z. Saindon as patron. The public are invited to this ceremony, at the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil, 360 Main Street, Lachute.

This exhibition of ancient Egyptian art will be seen daily from 2 to 5 p.m., February 14 to 28. Admission is free.

Service, Junior grade

DEMAND FOR SERVICES does not seem at the moment to be diminishing: employment in the service industries, where people work for pay, is on the increase according to labor statistics, and it is suspected that there are always jobs left unfilled in those areas where people work for love.

Strangely, in spite of the great community efforts of the men's service clubs, in the youth field girls are far more apt than boys to be engaged in good works. Why should service at that age seem all too often to be a feminine prerogative ?

In a hospital in a small city young female volunteers dressed in pink and white and known as candy-stripers, are developing a sense of community responsibility and making a contribution of time and effort. There is no comparable boys' group, although in that hospital the snack bar, for instance, depends on volunteer help and there is no reason why boys could not take their turn in its staffing.

Some months back it was reported that boys in one neighborhood had become a "troublesome element." There was a meeting with municipal authorities at which the boys were invited to voice their complaints. And their complaints were distilled into that age-old cry of youth: "There's nothing for us to do."

It is not likely that the solution will be to build million-dollar recreation centres on all corners where the pool halls used to be, althuogh this is not to imply that such centres are not beneficial. There is nothing wrong in recreation, of which everyone needs a certain amount.

A long time ago, however, civilized societies discovered that there is greater merit in doing things for others. Humanity will be the loser if the world ever reaches that point of over-organization where everything is satisfied by making a cash donation. There should be left a place for service.

The boys should have a part in it. They don't need to wait until they are old enough to be Rotarians or to join the Richelieu or Lions Club.

Sewage: the controversy still boils

THE SEWAGE LAGOON method of disposing of a small community's waste is considered a boon in many parts of North America, The Financial Post says. It has made a sewage treatment system financially possible in places which could never have afforded a mechanical plant. Sewage lagoons have multiplied rapidly in North America. Since they were first generally introduced in the late 1950's about 1,600 have been installed in the U.S. and 400 in Canada, mostly in the Prairie provinces.

But a medical authority sees them as a serious potential menace to health and his paper, reported in The Financial Post last November, has stirred up controversy across the country. Scores of newspapers printed summaries of The Post report, and many wrote editorials asking whether their townships' lagoons were in fact a hidden menace. The Saskatchewan Department of Health, in response to newspaper enquiries that followed The Post's article, published a full statement intended to reassure the 250 communities in that province which have built lagoons. An Ontario community suspended work on a new lagoon until it got assurances from an international firm of sanitary engineers that in its particular case there should be no danger to health. Several sanitary engineers came out strongly in favor of lagoons, emphasizing that careful control of both design and operation is needed to prevent the lagoons becoming a health danger. The lagoons are not, therefore, the engineers agreed, as cheap as they appear to be at first sight. Some engineers agreed, too, that much more research is needed from the medical side to make sure that sewage plants, both mechanical and lagoon types, do not become sources of serious infection.

The article which stirred up this storm reported views published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal by Dr. James McAnulty, former director of the West Kootenay Health Unit. His case rests mainly on these arguments: Lagoons breed mosquitoes, which pick up viruses from waterfowl feeding there and then infect humans. While lagoons "clean" sewage they kill few, if any, of the viruses, such as those causing infectious hepatitis, present in the waste fed into them.

Buying happiness

"MONEY WON'T BUY happiness, but if you're going to be miserable anyway you might as well be rich," Fred Allen, the late, great comedian, once said.

As with so many of the things Allen used to say, it wasn't simply a joke. There was a certain amount of wisdom mixed with the wit.

But now, it seems, scientists have found a flaw in the statement. A University of Chicago sociologist says a four-year study has shown that money can buy happiness.

Dr. Peter Rossi, 44-year-old director of the university national opinion research centre, says the happiest man is young, wealthy and married.

Money and age are the two most important happiness factors, he says.

"When you're young, you've got 15 or 20 years ahead of you to answer the question: 'What have I done ?' But older people suffer chronic illness, loss of powers and vigor, an accumulation of desperation and disappointment. They haven't got those years ahead of them. They say it constantly — 'If I had my life to live over, I wouldn't make the same mistakes !' "

That seems to sum up the age factor. As for money, Dr. Rossi supports his argument by stressing the unhappiness of people who haven't got money.

He says the working-class city Negro in the United States is his "unhappiest" man."

"He's at the bottom of the totem pole. He's poor, he's unhealthy, he has no job security. To be a lower-class Negro in urban areas is to be in a really punishing situation."

Statistical information of this sort is fine, but it's a good idea to remember that the conclusions are based on averages. We all know someone who is married, has money, is young and is still miserable. And it's not difficult to find an old bachelor with little money who will insist he's quite happy.

The real point would seem to be that if you marry the right girl, work at something that gives you a sense of accomplishment as well as enough money to get along on, you've got a head start in the happiness department.

But, then, who needs a computer to tell you that ?

Viewpoints and perspectives

SPORTS GOAL SET — If it (sport) is to serve any useful purpose, other than sideline entertainment, it must involve physical participation. . . . First we must convince our young people that a winning team is only an end in itself. . . Let us teach all our youngsters to play for the love of the game — the first team will then automatically take care of itself.

Bulletin for charitable donations available from Taxation Department

The Federal Department of National Revenue is reminding charitable organizations of Information Bulletin No. 17 of December 1962 which deals with charitable donations and clarifies what is, and what is not, allowable under the Income Tax Act. The Bulletin is available to all charitable organizations, including churches, on request from the local District Taxation Offices.

"Test-checks in different parts of the country have shown that some taxpayers are making claims to which they are not entitled," said the Minister, the Hon. E. J. Benson. "I think this is due, in most cases, to a misunderstanding of the law. However, some taxpayers are submitting claims for donations they didn't really make."

Mr. Benson went on to restate the Department's policy that every taxpayer must be treated equitably, fairly, and uniformly. "That means," he said, "that everyone should be able to take full advantage of all the deductions to which he is entitled under the law but that no one be granted preferred treatment for this means that other taxpayers must then bear more than their fair share of taxation."

The Information Bulletin lists certain types of donations for which income tax deductions cannot be granted under existing law even though the object of the gift may be of a charitable nature. The list is not all-inclusive but the items mentioned are those which are most frequently claimed improperly.

Among donations that do not qualify as "charitable donations" for tax deductions are: donations to charitable organizations outside Canada; donations to individuals; the value of merchandise where its cost has been charged as an expense of business; donations of old clothes, furniture, etc.; tuition fees to private schools; amounts paid for card parties, bingos, lotteries, etc., although they may be held for the benefit of charity.

The Bulletin points out that an undertaking to pay a donation over a period of years does not entitle the donor to the total deduction in the year in which the undertaking is given. A deduction may only be claimed in the years in which the payments are actually made to the charitable organization.

The maximum amount which can be claimed for charitable donations is 10 percent of a person's income. Test-checks show that some taxpayers automatically claim the full ten percent, regardless of the amount actually contributed.

"In the past few years we had to disallow a number of claims because they could not be substantiated," said Mr. Benson. We hope that by providing more information to the public there will be a substantial reduction in the number of disallowances we have to make and we will be able to speed up refunds which would be delayed pending investigation."

When Killing Has To Stop

The Canadian Parliament, sometime after it resumes sitting in mid-February will debate a government motion to abolish the death penalty for murder. Because the cabinet has decided to allow a free vote with MPs not bound by party lines, the proposal has thus become a matter of conscience for every MP.

What are the chances that the death penalty which has been sparsely carried out in Canada in recent years, will now be abolished?

The prospect for abolition is now considered about fifty-fifty. Most members of the cabinet, including Prime Minister Pearson, are believed to favor abolition. Opposition leader John Diefenbaker also will likely vote for abolition.

The only party which officially favors abolition are the New Democrats. The Creditistes are mainly opposed, while Liberal and Tory ranks are split about even.

The cabinet's decision to give MPs the opportunity of a free vote came late in 1964, and coincided with the action of the British House of Commons which voted for abolition in one of its first moves under the new Labor government.

The death penalty — except for treason — is on its way out all over the world. Only France and Spain retain capital punishment in Europe. Nine American states have abolished it.

There have been no hangings in Canada since Prime Minister Pearson took office nearly two years ago, and only 14 executions were carried out under the five years of the Diefenbaker government. Nine men are at present under sentence of death in Canada — five in Quebec, two in New Brunswick and one each in Alberta and B.C.

Whatever the merits of the death penalty as a deterrent to murder, there are no figures to prove its effect. Its abolition in various countries has led to neither increases nor decreases in the murder rate. Even the present Canadian compromise of calling for the death penalty only for capital murder, and not for unpremeditated killings, has had no statistical effect on the crime rate of this country.

Those who argue for abolition of the death penalty, and I am one of them, do not do so out of any sense of sympathy for killers. Protection of society must be our first concern.

The question can be asked, however, what good does the death penalty do?

Its harmful effects on society are there for all to see. I have witnessed two executions and believe it is savagery made all the more gruesome by its official sanctioning. It will always be morally wrong to take a life. Innocent men and women have died because of it. Execution of the murderer does not restore life to his victim. But it does reduce society to his level.

The main argument for retention of capital punishment is that it is a deterrent. It obviously doesn't work out that way. The twisted sex monster, the dope-crazed gunman, the scared kid holding up a filling station — they're not thinking of the consequences of their actions when they commit murder.

If only the problem were that simple. If only all inhuman acts could be forestalled by setting up deterrents against them. But until all of us are reasoning, reasonable human beings, our responsibilities will never be discharged simply by killing off the unreasoning.

Ask information on psychic experiences

Box 4022, Stn. "E",
Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Sir:

The Metaphysical Society concerns itself with the varied manifestations of psychic phenomena, and is interested in any experiences with extra-sensory perception which Canadians may have had.

Would you be so kind as to print this letter in order that any of your readers who has experienced supernormal incidents, and would care to tell about them, might write to the Society. All such letters would receive personal replies, and would either be kept confidential or recorded in our publications, according to the writer's preference.

Anyone who would like to contribute an incident should try to state the date and place of the occurrence, giving as much detail as possible. Information on ethnic origin is also helpful for cross reference purposes, but this is entirely up to the writer.

Yours truly,

(Mrs.) J. McCann, Secretary,
The Metaphysical Society

SUGAR AND SPICE . . .

— By BILL SMILEY

Bad? It's Even Verse!

There's no better indoor sport than versifying. And there's no better versifyer around these days than George Bain. Find out for yourself. Read this book, "I've Been Around. . . And Around and Around and Around and . . . ".

Bain is a newspaper man with a lively eye for the ridiculous, and he has been around. Washington, Ottawa and London come under his guns, and he seldom misses when he lines up his rhymes and fires a parody of anything from a folk song to a Gilbert and Sullivan snatch.

He's also a wicked man with a pun. To wit: a chapter entitled "How To Get Down From A Duck, Elder You Know Or You Don't." In this chapter, he's talking about an elder-down vest presented to a high dignitary. Bain continues, "No doubt, somewhere in the frozen North, there is now a proud elder duck strutting around with his little bald chest stuck out, envy of every duck for miles around." And he adds a verse,

Said a chap to the proud donor duck,
"To what do you credit your luck?"
Said the duck, "Goodness knows,
But one must I suppose,
Assume that I showed lots of pluck."

Just a sample from a rattling good book, a combination of rueful humor and satire with an edge to it.

This business of writing verses is fascinating to some people. Me, for one. Every so often I get the urge, and burst into rhyme that has the readers of this column wincing, or running to the bathroom, gagging. Don't worry, not this week.

But just by sheer coincidence, I have come across some old verses (not mine) that consolidate my opinion that the English language is about the most illogical in the world. The following effort is dedicated to English teachers and the poor, baffled devils of foreigners who are trying to learn the crazy stuff.

The wind was rough
And cold and blough;
She kept her hands within her mough.
It chilled her through,
Her nose grew blough
And still the squall the faster flough.
And yet, although
There was no snough,
The weather was a cruel fough.
It made her cough
(Pray do not scough);
She coughed until her head blough ough.

What's that? You want more? I think you're out of your mind, but there's that old folk saying, particularly applicable these winter days:

It's not the cough
Wot carries you off.
It's the coffin
They carry you off in.

Several of the very few clean limericks in the world also reveal the oddity of the English tongue. For instance,

At fifty-five minutes past eight,
The kids at a feverish reight
Are seen rushing toward school.
And you'll find, as a rhool,
It's because they're afraid they'll be leight.

Aw, come on. You don't REALLY want another! Well, I just happen to have:

A streetcar conductor once said
To a car full of people, "My hald
Has such a bad ache
That I fear it will brache.
Oh, I wish I were home and in baid."

There you are. A brand new party game. Think of the fun you'll have on these long winter evenings with things like,

A man on a picnic said. "Please
Don't be cross if perchance I should snease:
I've observed from my youth
That the horrible trouth
Is it's caused by the scent of the trease.

Got the idea. Let's try making one up. It'll be lousy, but . . .

A sailor, attempting to skl,
Ran his head right into a tri.
Although almost dead,
He angrily sead,
"It ain't near as soft as the sl."

There. That ought to give you a few sleepless nights.

Journey towards truthfulness

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

The journey towards becoming a truthful person is one parents are eager their child should take. In their own daily lives they may "tell white lies" or deceive another person in a business deal, but they do not want a son or daughter of theirs to be branded "a liar". How can fathers and mothers understand that it is no easy matter for a child to learn to be truthful?

Recently it was our privilege to discuss the problem of lying with a psychiatrist who is employed by the Board of Education in one of our largest Canadian cities. Many of her suggestions were thought-provoking. It was pointed out to us in this interview that truthfulness is a habit which a child must learn, an attitude he must gradually adopt.

In this learning process many children will make mistakes. Both parents and children may suffer much unnecessary shame and unhappiness. This can be avoided if the parents remember that it is a learning process and if they know what can be expected of children at different ages. But in addition, it is wise to put the emphasis on teaching the child to love the truth rather than on telling the truth.

It is important that parents avoid an over-severe home discipline. A child who fears extreme punishment, is sorely tempted to lie in order to avoid the consequences of his mis-deed, if he thinks he will not be caught.

A very bright twelve-year-old said: "I learned long ago that it is crazy to steal, but it seems to me that it is crazy to tell the truth — I get into more trouble when I tell the truth than when I tell lies."

Some parents try to encourage truthfulness by punishing lightly or not at all the child who "fesses up," and punishing heavily if he deceives them. This system may apparently work for a time, but there is a wiser method. A child can be helped to accept the fact that truth may cause immediate trouble, but in the long run it pays. He who loves the truth can bear temporary inconvenience or even suffering for truth's sake.

Parents must also be careful that their standards of behaviour are within the reach of the child at each stage of his growth. Then he will not be tempted to lie from fear of punishment, or fear of disappointing his parents. Too high standards in honesty lead to difficulties.

One outstanding illustration of this was the case history of a little boy who was the only child of strict parents. They loved him but never showed him any signs of warm affection. His father was the caretaker of a large apartment house and often came into conflict with the children of the district. The boy was very unhappy because these youngsters called his father "an old crab" and often ridiculed his parent in front of him.

When this situation became unbearable, Tom reacted by searching for some way to get his companions' favor. He knew his popularity as "the old crab's son" was at a low ebb. Most of his chums had spending money, but Tom's allowance was equally divided into one half for Sunday School collection and one half which must be saved. Unlike his friends he had no money to buy "treats" but he knew there was money from the milk fund in the teacher's desk. By stealing he made a desperate bid to get money to buy candy for his chums.

The teacher came back to the room for a book she had forgotten and caught Tom red-handed. He denied that he was really stealing, but insisted he was looking for the drawing he had made that day. In spite of cross-examination in front of the class next morning he stuck to his story.

Poor little boy! Already insecure and unhappy in his family life, and unable to hold his own in his play group, he was now marked as "thief and "liar". It was a long time before Tom recovered from this bitter experience. It hindered rather than helped his progress toward truthfulness.

Teachers and parents often fail to realize that humiliation and hopeless failure are bad medicine for normal children. They are absolutely poisonous in a wholesome way! Parents want their child to learn to tell the truth, but they should make this learning as easy and as satisfying as possible. If a child is encouraged to love and respect truth, he will in all probability grow into a trust-worthy adult whose word is as good as his bond.

Valentines were for the birds in early Roman romance

The birds and bees were well aware of Valentine's Day long before this romantic occasion first blossomed in ancient Rome around 25 B.C.

On every February 14, in pre-Christian Rome — the date the birds began their mating in that part of the world — the Feast of Lupercalia was held. As part of the festival, young maidens fashioned love missives out of parchment and placed them in a large urn. Young Roman swains drew a name from the jar and courted the lass during the ensuing year.

By 1840, an English publisher named George Kershaw was making Valentines that were to endure and become collector's items more than a hundred years later.

About the mid-nineteenth century, too, sweethearts began to use a newly-published best-seller, the "Valentine Writer". This book offered a variety of verses of petition and response (both favorable and unfavorable) which the sender copied by hand onto the Valentine.

By 1880 the trend was away from fine lace and the lettering that appeared on Valentines had become more distinct. In the final decade of the nineteenth century Valentines rose to a sunburst of elaborate mechanical greetings, most of them German, in many shapes — ranging from battleships to picnics-in-the-park.

Oddly enough, the difference in appearance between the antiques in the collection of old cards and some of this year's Valentines is very slight. A number of persons still prefer to send and receive "old-fashioned" Valentines which closely resemble those of the last century.

The selection of Valentines this year, also includes high styled modernistic cards, bright juvenile cut-outs as well as traditional Valentines.

The custom of remembering favored persons on February 14, has been extended beyond the exchange of Valentines by sweethearts. "Most people buy Valentines to send to mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, in-laws and other relations and friends", says a greeting card executive. "In the old days, Valentines were considered marriage proposals, but today they're warm and friendly greetings and remembrances to friends. It is also the one occasion during the year when a girl can send a card to a male acquaintance, intimating interest, without being considered forward."

Canadians will buy and send over 30 million Valentines, this year; the season is second only to Christmas in gift and card buying.

9th Pilgrimage to Holland for war dead relatives

Ottawa, Ont. — The Royal Canadian Legion has announced that the ninth pilgrimage to Holland, for relatives of Canadian war dead buried there, leaves Montreal on Sunday, May 2.

Some 140 pilgrims will be based at Bergen-Op-Zoom and Holten during the eight days in Holland. Both of these areas are sites of Canadian cemeteries. While in Holland, the Canadian visitors will be guests of Dutch families.

The Netherlands War Graves Committee, a private organization responsible for the pilgrimages, will also provide financial assistance to next-of-kin in necessitous circumstances. A fixed amount has been set aside so that parents, who otherwise might never make the trip, may visit their son's grave. While the fund is limited, it is possible that individuals might be assisted to the full extent of the cost.

To date, over 650 relatives have taken the pilgrimage to Holland where 6,331 Canadians lie buried.

Kitchen hints

To remove excess fat from soup, drop in a lettuce leaf. The fat will saturate the leaf which can be thrown away.

When lemons become hard, don't throw them out. Pour boiling water over them and let stand for about 10 minutes before removing water and reaming or squeezing.

To reclaim oversalted soup, slice a raw potato into it. Let soup simmer about 10 minutes and then discard potato which will contain a lot of the salt.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

With cotton fabrics and some patience you can make your own three-dimensional pictures.

The best place to look for suitable fabric is in a drapery and upholstery fabric department. Cotton drapery material lends itself well to the craft because of its texture and because it will give when it is stuffed.

The best materials to choose are those with a design large enough to be cut for quilting without overlapping a repeated motif.

Cut out the area you want to use as your picture. Place it face down and cover the back with a thin layer of quilting cotton and a piece of medium-weight tartalan or crinoline, cut to the same size.

Pin or baste the layers together and quilt on the right side with a sewing machine. Stitch around figures in the picture, using thread to match their colors.

Use Cotton Filler

Turn the picture over and make small slits in the crinoline behind the stitched figures. Use a small pick to stuff additional cotton fille in these areas to give the figures a raised, three-dimensional effect. Large figures in the picture can be stuffed to stand out as much as one-half inch.

Staple the quilted picture to a piece of corrugated cardboard or building board and frame it. Simple, wide frames are most effective, and the fabric will show to best advantage without glass.

You can produce a collage effect, with a slightly different technique combining designs from several prints. You might use animals, flowers, landscape figures or abstract figures from different fabrics.

Arrange the cut-outs on a background fabric which can be plain or a co-ordinated print. Follow the same quilting and padding steps as outlined above, but in addition, be sure to use a narrow satin stitch around each cutout to prevent fraying.

Single Figure

If you prefer, you can use a single large motif cut from a fabric; appliqué it to a solid color background fabric and quilt it. A floral or fruit, landscape or fanciful pattern are possible choices.

Drapery fabrics offer you a range of colors and designs. For traditionalists there are scenic prints done by artists such as Grandma Moses, or Currier and Ives designs. Picasso prints are available in fabrics for modern art enthusiasts. Or choose any pattern which appeals to you.

You can put a white edge around your picture easily by cutting white-faced cardboard to fit your frame, and cutting a rectangle out of the centre to whatever size you want the matte to be.

If the picture is not as big as the centre of the frame you want to use, use a matte, and then back matte and picture with cardboard to put them in the frame.

Household hint

Display relics of old river craft

Ottawa — A new museum displaying a collection of polished remnants of about 20 early river vessels which operated on the Ottawa River, was opened in the Capital last week by the Underwater Society of Ottawa.

Scuba diver members of the Society collected the remnants during 26 weeks of diving in the Ottawa River. They spent four months restoring and polishing them.

Included in the collection are pieces of ribbing from the French brig l'Outaouaise sunk by the British in the 1760's.

The new "Wheelhouse Maritime Museum" is the Society's contribution to the 1967 centennial celebrations.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY, Macdonald College

I have just attended my first 4-H banquet. It was at Shawville, in Pontiac County. I was most impressed. This was the annual "do" when all the members entertain their parents and invited guests at a full-scale social function.

The leaders sat back and left the entire show in the hands of the members. With Club President Gary Hodgins in the chair, several took on the various responsibilities. One looked after the seating of the guests; others, in the course of the evening, proposed toasts, responded, introduced and thanked speakers, received the year's awards and trophies. Of course, it wasn't all done "perfectly", but who cares? We were all gaining experience and self-confidence.

And that's what counts. True, it is fun and an honor having the best calf at the fall fair. But far more enduring are the side benefits of learning to be a good citizen, of developing leadership, of running the organizations which are the life-blood of our communities, of exploring careers.

Few will one day own farms of their own. But the experience, confidence, prestige and sense of responsibility gained in club work will stand these young people in good stead wherever the future may take them.

I hope that they will not undervalue this training and their farm background. The agricultural industry is hungry for educated people who have had farm experience. This spring, for example, there are four jobs waiting for every agricultural graduate of Macdonald College. And good jobs, too. Many employers are offering salaries over $5,000 to start.

It is not so surprising when you consider that one out of every three positions in Canada can be connected with agriculture in some way. And there are just not enough students coming in from outside the cities to fill them.

Only ten weeks to seeding — and more bills to pay. The supply of seed looks generally good, and the price not much different from last year, except in some lines.

Drought conditions and the short feed situation throughout eastern Canada have had an effect on seed crops, particularly those produced in and for the east. A rapidly developing demand for feed grains coupled with a shortage of high quality material suitable for seed is having a strong effect on prices being bid for pedigreed oats and barley seed.

In forage seeds, however, the overall trend is to slightly lower prices with the exception of Birdsfoot trefoil and Climax timothy. Certified alfalfas are still about the same as last year but recent exports will put pressure on some varieties. Although a small crop, Red clover is much lower due to a lack of expected demand in the U.K. this year. Ladino clover is in normal supply but Alsike prices are somewhat higher in response to a strong overseas demand.

Common timothy, in spite of bad harvest conditions, is a little easier than in 1964. Certified Climax, however, is again a short crop and with the demand increasing year by year, supplies will be scarce and prices at an all time high. Other forage grasses, including brome and orchard, are cheaper, with Saratoga brome grass available in greater quantity. Meadow fescue will be higer priced but demand for this grass is rapidly diminishing.

A great shortage of Birdsfoot trefoil seed will result in the highest-ever prices for 1965. The drought-curtailed Ontario crop was largely moved to the U.S.A. this autumn to satisfy an unprecedented demand for this legume for long term seedings in the Soil Bank program in the mid-western states. There was no European seed this year to augment supplies so the result will be a supply of trefoil seed somewhere in the region of 50% of a normal crop.

In corn, the early hybrids are in good supply, but stocks of late hybrids are smaller than expected because of last autumn's early frost.

Meteor Montcalm, 2-door hardtop. One of the Ford Family of Fine Products, built in Canada Certain features are optional at extra cost.

Meteor has the year's most beautiful styling! Every detail announces styling leadership . . . the gleaming full-width grille, the distinctive symmetry of the extended fender line, the impressive sweep of the trunk deck. No car in its class surpasses the magnificence of the new Meteor.

Meteor has inspired new spirit in its performance! This year, Meteor has the powerful new 240 cubic inch "Avenger" Six, a smoother-running, quieter engine that squeezes extra miles out of every gallon. Meteor offers a smooth 3-speed dual range automatic transmission that you can pair with the "Avenger" Six or the sparkling 352 and 390 V-8's. The 3-speed and 4-speed manual transmissions are fully synchro-mesh in all forward gears. A long, 123-inch wheelbase and a new "torque-box" frame construction reduce road shock and vibration to an amazingly low level. Meteor's cushioned but positive-handling ride results from improved all-coil suspension.

Meteor surrounds you with luxurious comfort! Deep-pile carpeting, richly beautiful upholsteries, padded dash, wide padded arm rests and curved side-window glass for more shoulder room. There's a new suspended accelerator pedal, a new double-edged key and a push-button door-locking system. Meteor's trunk has a lower sill for more space but less lifting distance.

You have more choices in choosing a Meteor! There are three Meteor series — Montcalm, Rideau 500 and Rideau in eleven exciting models. Test-drive Meteor at your Mercury dealer's. You'll find that no other car in the popular-priced field measures up to the 1965 Meteor!

Annexation by-law is ruled null and void

If Lachute Town wishes to proceed with its annexation of part of the neighboring Parish of St. Jerusalem, it now appears the municipality will have to initiate completely new proceedings. In short, a court judgment has ruled the annulment of By-law 237 adopted by this town; and by virtue of this reversal, Quebec order-in-council No. 1018 authorizing the by-law, has no effect to make the ruling legal.

The judgment was handed down by Justice Camille L. De Martigny, district magistrate, who heard the case for annulment presented by Mr. Clifford Sweeney.

In his ruling, Judge De Martigny notes that "the Court is convinced that the major irregularity, which is the basis of this litigation, was committed by the council of the Parish of St. Jerusalem, which failed to follow procedures required by the Cities and Towns Act, namely — to have approved the by-law before calling for a referendum, or to have rejected it, which would have obviated the calling of a referendum.

The judgment continues: "The Town of Lachute was also at fault in having neglected to secure the petition specified in Article 42-A; and the Council knew, or should have known, that the resolution by the Parish of St. Jerusalem was prematurely passed. Not having received the said petition, the Town should definitely not have adopted the by-law (237). . . It must accordingly pay the costs."

Irregularities, Omissions

It is recalled that, around August 7, 1963, the Town adopted By-law 237 to annex a portion of the adjoining Parish. After its adoption, a copy of the enactment was sent to the St. Jerusalem Council. A referendum of electors in the territory involved, was held September 23 and 24, 1963; the result was 219 votes in favor and 148 against (with 2 spoiled votes).

This referendum was held, however, before the St. Jerusalem Council had approved or disapproved of the by-law, and was therefore premature, illegal, null and void — according to Judge De Martigny.

According to the magistrate, also, the referendum was held when a great many summer cottage-owners, entitled to vote, were unable to do so. Moreover, the original By-law 237 was amended on a simple resolution on December 10, 1963; this was rescinded by a further resolution, and the by-law amended again by a resolution dated January 29, 1964.

The Legal Action

The judge concluded by noting that these irregularities and omissions "nullified absolutely the by-law adopted by the Town of Lachute, authorized by the lieutenant-governor in council and published in the Quebec Official Gazette of May 30, 1964."

The lawsuit was conducted almost entirely on the basis of documents submitted, and written arguments produced at request of the tribunal. It was not completed until February 5, however, with a formal confirmation by the attorneys that the territory described in the order-in-council was precisely that which was outlined in the by-law.

January report — 39 accidents and 12 local fires

Reporting for the month of January, the municipal police department listed nine arrests and 39 traffic accidents, two of which caused personal injuries.

There were 274 calls received at headquarters during the month, and 23 investigations made. Traffic tickets brought $208 in fines, and total revenues from this and other sources amounted to $350.60.

The department took possession of its new police vehicle and a car rental lease with Lacasse Automobiles was terminated.

Council gave a contract to Lachute Flooring Reg. for $164 to re-lay floors in two offices and a toilet in the police quarters.

Fire Report

The fire department reported a busy month with 17 calls answered — 12 in Lachute; two in Ayersville and St. Jerusalem, respectively; one each in Chatham, Brownsburg and St. Hermas. Fire losses in Lachute were estimated at $3,200. Revenues for out-of-town services were $1,875, and remuneration to the firemen $812.

Council allotted a sum of $800 for the purchase of various items of equipment, including 500 feet of 1½-inch hose, tarpaulins, signal lights, etc.

Fellow Rotarian honored . . . Dr. G. R. (Reg) Rigby was honored last week by the Rotary Club in appreciation of his work as author of the volume, "A History of Lachute", and of his generosity in assigning this effort to the benefit of the club, who will apply the proceeds and profits to carrying out their service work. Dr. Rigby is here seen receiving an engraved plaque from the club president, Rotarian Phil Grant, of Brownsburg.

A mammoth effort — Scouts' toy repair shop

Group Committee plans Scout Week campaign

The annual Scout Week activities will commence with a church service. The 1st Lachute Troop, under the leadership of Mr. George Gordon, the 1st Lachute Wolf Cub Pack under Cubmaster Arnold Berry, and the Iroquois Pack led by Cubmaster George Young, will attend the Lachute United Church service at 10 a.m., on February 21.

It is reported that the Girl Guides and Brownies will attend the morning devotions at the Presbyterian Church, where new colors are to be dedicated and presented to the Guides.

A Mammoth Task, Sidelight to Scouting

The Bignell family, Peggy and Tom, with assistance from (Mary) Mrs. Ernest Gordon, and two sisters-in-law of Mrs. Bignell who hail from Montreal, form a very capable and hard-working team to collect, repair and distribute toys and dolls for the local Scout and Cub organization. This very worthy work commences early in the fall and reaches a fevered pitch of activity by Christmas time. You have to see it to believe, what a wonderful job these dedicated people do. The toys, trucks, tricycles and a variety of dolls and games are carefully repaired, gaily painted and neatly packed in cellophane or plastic bags before being transported to needy children. Approximately 85 families had their Christmas brightened by receiving parcels, also four boxes were sent to Sister Damien Bernard at the Convent and two boxes to the Argenteuil Hospital to cheer up the stay of young fry while recuperating in hospital. The Group Committee is greatly indebted to the Bignells and their helpers for this gigantic task.

Scout Week Campaign

The Group Committee is busy finalizing plans and organization for the Scout Week financial campaign, which will take place from February 21 to 28. It takes approximately $1,000 per year to meet the budget, which includes such items as an assessment from the District Council, the Provincial Boy Scout Headquarters and Dominion Headquarters, the heating of the Scout Hall, insurance, maintenance, and the assisting of some Scouts to go to camp, who would not otherwise be able to attend.

So "be prepared" to make a small investment in the youth of today, who are being trained to become the leaders of tomorrow. Please welcome the Scout canvasser when he calls at your door.

New history of Prescott-Russell

The French edition of the History of Prescott and Russell Counties is now available at the office of the County Clerk, Isidore Rouleau, at L'Orignal, Ont. The price per copy is $6.

The copies in English will be available as soon as translation and printing are completed — according to a recent announcement in the Eastern Ontario Review, Vankleek Hill.

Ch. of Commerce plans trade fair and other projects

The Chamber of Commerce directors, chaired by President Jos. Santini, accepted a suggestion of their promotion committee to stage an industrial and business exhibition in the local arena next fall.

The suggestion for a trade fair was enthusiastically accepted at a meeting last week, and information will be gathered from organizations and communities which have sponsored ventures of this kind. The aim will be to display local manufactures and dealers' products featured by local firms, with live entertainment, amusements and contests to spark an interesting program.

The Chamber of Commerce will also approach the town authorities to hold a Clean-Up Week at the beginning of May. The tourist information kiosk will be operated again next summer season. The promotion committee also gave a report on a proposed merchant-member group in Lachute to organize business promotions among the stores.

Flag ceremony at Lac St. Denis

On Monday afternoon a ceremonial parade was held at RCAF Station, Lac St. Denis, on the occasion of the raising of the new Canadian flag. This ceremony was attended by school children of the unit. Refreshments were served in the Officers' Mess after the ceremony.

Not to blame! . . When two bridesmaids at a recent wedding spelled their Christian and surnames both identically with the exception of one letter — it looked suspiciously like an error on the part of Watchman proofreaders. As expected, we had phone calls intimating just that. . . However, this was not the case. It was just a strange coincidence; and yes, the newspaper report was correct.

Mental test for pyromaniac responsible for local fires

A 33-year-old former Lachute resident, Romuald Durocher, was ordered to undergo a mental examination on Monday of last week, after being arraigned on almost a dozen charges of arson which caused an estimated $267,000 in fire loss. The majority of the fires were in the Lachute area, and fire department authorities here have pointed out that a number of fires not included in the list of charges have also been attributed to the accused.

Appearing before Judge T. A. Fontaine, the accused was alleged to have set the fires over a nine-year period, mainly in Lachute. The most serious fires, however, occurred in St. Paul L'Ermite, near Montreal. According to evidence presented by lawyers for the defence, Durocher was mentally unbalanced and derived pleasure from seeing buildings burn. This was confirmed by evidence presented by the crown prosecutor; however, both lawyers requested that the contents of a medical document be withheld so as not to prejudice the children of the accused.

Judge Fontaine ordered the accused to appear on March 9, at which time the results of the mental examination would be known.

Lachute's Fire Chief Don MacCulloch reported that several of the local fires had been investigated by men from the Canadian Underwriters Association and that evidence had been compiled in some of the cases. In addition to the following list of fires, all of which the accused has been charged with, local firemen also answered two calls to the accused's residence on St. Jean Street, Sandy Hill; one on Ayers Street, Ayersville; and two fires in the accused man's car. There were other fires which aroused the suspicion of the fire department; however, no connection could be attached to any person.

Fires for which the accused has been charged are as follows:

June 8, 1956, at 108 Wilson Street, Lachute — $225.50 damage;

June 19, 1957, at 190 Main Street, Lachute — $687.75 damage;

April 4, 1959, fire on Cedar Street, Lachute, at the home of Gilles Fournier — $200 damage;

February 21, 1960, also in Lachute — $601 damage;

February 26, 1963, at the home of Roger Lachapelle, Notre-Dame-des-Plaines — $20,000 damage;

Three fires at the firm of Industries Gilbert, St. Paul l'Ermite, where the accused was employed; total damage set at $232,000;

In addition to this, three fires at the firm of Charlebois et Fils, a local sash and door plant, where the accused was employed prior to moving to the Montreal area.

New flag unfurled in public places; ceremony held at Lachute High School

Canada's new flag was raised without ceremony on local municipal and federal buildings, and in the memorial park in Lachute, but was more fittingly honored at an impressive ceremony at Lachute High School. . . Proceedings got underway before the afternoon classes, when the entire student body gathered in front of the school.

The Royal proclamation was read by Miss Jennifer Hooker, who unfurled the flag, to the applause of the students, teachers and onlookers in attendance. The Rev. W. H. Thompson opened the ceremony with a short prayer in which he gave "thanks for the new symbol of our nation — the Maple Leaf flag. We would remember those who laid the foundation of our land and those who have sacrificed their lives in its service." he said.

James W. McGibbon, chairman of the Lachute Board of Protestant School Commissioners, then addressed the gathering, saying in part:

"Today, we have unfurled a truly Canadian flag. It is a symbol of a young and rapidly growing country, a country of which we can be truly proud. There is no other country on this earth that has an equally vast expansion of land and natural resources.

"This red and white flag has special significance to us, especially right here in Lachute. The maple leaf has been associated with Canadians as early as 1700, if not before. — Where else in Canada are maple leaves more abundant than right in Argenteuil County?

"Now that we have a truly Canadian flag which represents a young and vibrant country, let us make it a real symbol of our future. . . This can only happen when we recognize, appreciate and honor 'Our Flag'. May we never, at any time, hesitate to salute it."

Prior to the return to classes, Mr. F. H. J. Royal, Lachute High School principal, said in his concluding remarks:

"On this date we are raising, for the first time in our history as a country, a 'national flag', a flag designed specially for and representative of our Canada.

"Heraldic symbols still have, and will continue to have, a real meaning in our civilization. There are those people who say 'Why do we need a flag?' They might just as foolishly say 'Why do we need a country?'

"There are others who may wish to boycott this flag because it was not the flag of their choice. But as long as we have democratic principles in this country, we must continue to uphold the will or wish of the majority. This is now our flag, let us recognize it as the symbol of our country which we can serve and look to with respect. And know this: if you never disgrace your flag, it will never disgrace you.

"We copy and often improve many things from our American neighbors. The respect and honor we give to our flag could be an excellent example."

B'burg Council matters include property, equipment and personnel

By Harry McCosh

Brownsburg — At the adjourned meeting of Brownsburg Council on February 8, with pro-mayor Gerald Vowles in the chair, several matters concerning private individuals or firms were dealt with.

The Council considered an offer of sale from Sylvio Labelle, for a piece of property on the corner of Bank and Lafleur Streets which would enable the town to eliminate the awkward turn at this corner and to build necessary sidewalks along these streets. The Council decided to visit the scene at a later date before deciding on the purchase of this property.

Another local citizen, who had been called to the meeting to discuss the findings of a surveyor whom the town had hired in an effort to settle a dispute over property on St. Georges Street, maintained that the letter from the surveyor confirmed his position. As several parts of the letter were ambiguous, the Council decided to wait until spring and ask the surveyor and other interested parties to come to a future meeting, to try to settle the dispute.

Council turned down an offer from Sanitank Incorporated, Montreal, to clean out the catch-basins of the sewer system at a rate of $15 per hour. The engagement of a street-sweeper from the same firm was referred to the Roads Committee for further consideration.

A representative from J. C. Blouin & Fils Inc., of Trois Rivières, presented samples of street and traffic signs to the Council, in the hopes of supplying the town with new signs throughout. Council asked the representative to supply them with a list, including prices, of all available

By BOB ATCHISON

For the past few years, boating has certainly been growing in popularity, and it appears that this year is going to be the best ever for the owners of new outfits. All manner of new equipment for safety, comfort and even economy, is showing up. This is nautrally all to the benefit of boating enthusiasts, and I believe attendance at the motor boat shows will set a record this year. It also may be, we'll have an economical outboard motor some time in the future; of course, with everything being power-plus, this will be a big order for the engineers, but I think they can do it. One thing I have noticed though — smaller and cheaper outfits are becoming more prevalent; maybe there is going to be a change there too.

One thing that really hit me: for those persons wishing to water ski, and being of the chicken variety, they can now do this sitting in a chair! It is called a "ski lounge", but it is really a chair mounted on pontoons; not too much danger of tipping over either. It is steered just like the old-type planes — you know, with a "joy stick". You don't even get wet when you cut loose from your boat, as the pontoons keep you high and dry. . . They must have had me in mind when they developed this one!

To try and give you the latest in boats would be a waste of time, so I can only suggest you take in all the motor boat shows you can; it will certainly be worth your while this time. If you happen to see this one don't faint when you see the price tag — a Mercury stern-drive diesel. This must be economical to run, but it sure isn't to buy. But then, nothing is, that is worthwhile. The Evinrude have 15 models to choose from, and believe me, if you can't pick one out of this group, you'd better quit before you see the rest of the show. But do go, and see everything.

Birds are still very much in the news, with sightings of almost every type of bird, even a Red-Wing blackbird (no comment). However, there has been a lot of talk of starlings in other parts of the country, and they are supposed to be early arrivals. We must have been very lucky, because these birds have been with us since the beginning of January; and I know some of them stayed right here during all the cold. Great numbers of mice are roaming around, so now we are getting a few more hawks, etc. We did have a few of them around before, but they seem to have been joined by many others; there's free food available for them, anyway. I spotted a very large flock of the little Snow Birds. Not too many of these have been in the district for a good long time. There are a few shrike with us, not the Northern shrike, but his smaller brother, the Lesser. These birds seem to be disappearing also; maybe it is not cold enough for them.

Remember the bittern which I mentioned had been seen around the St. Eustache area? At the time I had my doubts of its identity and told you why I thought it would not be a bittern. Well, it was. The reader telling me of this, came up to see me last week, with the bird. He had found it dead. It showed no marks of injury, so I guess the cold finally got to it. Too bad; just when we think we are going to have new birds with us, they up and leave.

A lady told me of being able to watch a lynx cleaning out the woodpile of mice, etc. Right near her home, she watched this cat for about 20 minutes without its being alarmed. From her comments she wouldn't mind having one of these as a mouser. Pretty hard to train a pet like this, I would imagine! It's a good idea though.

As most of you know, not too much information comes out of the propaganda bureau of the government. I think maybe it is classified information to almost everyone. But one thing may be good about this. Whenever new ministers have been appointed, there has invariably been reams of publicity given out as to what he is going to do — not try, mind you, but DO. It just could be this new minister is really taking a long, hard look around his department, then one of these days a clearcut decision will be made, no if's, and's or but's, just straight talk. Won't that be a change? Maybe while he is looking at this, he also could scrutinize some of these supposed cancellations of leases. This mess should be cleared up, sometime.

Our lake and stream fishing is really getting close. Only a couple of more months to go; that won't be too long. Now, I know I have written a lot about getting those repairs done before the season opens. This is going to be repeated until you DO get it done. . . Right now is a good time to check that handle; it could be very loose. There are a couple of things to do that may help tighten this up: Soak the whole handle in water for a while. Overnight won't be too long; even at this, it may not swell up to the tightness you want. There's only one thing left to try now — take all the corks off the rod, wrap fine thread around the butt, then try and replace the corks. Don't run them right on, as you have to glue them first, but try them to see if they fit. If this doesn't work, then a new handle is the thing. The whippings on the eyes may also be frayed or loose; you can replace them with a good nylon thread. Cover it with varnish and then you are set. However, if they are not too worn, then just varnish them; this MAY hold all summer. If any of the ferrules are loose, then heat the ferrule with a candle or match. Don't apply too much heat to the ferrule at once, but let it build up, until the glass starts to putty, then pull the ferrule off. Wrap some thread around the rod where the ferrule goes on, then heat the rod as before, pushing the ferrule on very gently. Do not use too much heat! Then let it cool before trying it on the other part of the rod. This should take care of your glass rods; just clean them up a little, and you've got a new outfit.

The reels are pretty important, so don't leave these too long. There may be new parts needed. Leaving this too late, you may be out of luck for some time. As usual, don't try and save your old mono lines; they're not really worth it. They're so cheap that it is not worth losing a lure costing a dollar or more, due to a poor line. . . Nets can be looked at. These do rot, and can be repaired very easily with nylon casting-line. Even your handles will loosen on them too, so just follow the same procedure as for the rod handle. . . Tackle boxes will have to be cleaned up, and in some cases you will find rust on the baits and even in the boxes. Naturally these will all have to be cleaned. Test your swivels and the hooks too; rust plays funny tricks with these, and they are very easily replaced. . . Throw your old leaders away also; these take a lot of beating and strain, and they cannot be repaired satisfactorily. As for your tackle boxes, you may even have to give them a coat of paint. Try aluminum, as this is the best, don't put too much on either, as it will not take much to cover the bottom. . . That's all for this time — so get busy.

Strange as it may seem, rabies is still in the news, not in this part of the country, but west of us. From information gathered, even the cold weather has not stopped this outbreak. I don't believe it can be called anything but an outbreak. However, it does point out the fact that we must not take chances with any animal that does no appear to be acting in a normal manner.

* * *

A visitor from the States called on me this past week, and as usual the conversation turned to wildlife. I endeavored to give him a picture of our situation, but he could not believe it. As he pointed out, "Surely your governments know the mess and trouble we made of everything in this field for many years, and how long it has taken to get things more or less back to normal?" At one time, as he stated, wildlife was for everyone, and what happened to it was of not much concern. Limits were non-existent, and seasons so-so. . . You know, listening to all this, we in Quebec can take heart; we are really following in the footsteps of Uncle. And before too long we may follow his example to improve matters. — A wonderful thought isn't it; but nothing more.

Pee-Wee team to Ancient Capital . . .

Above is the Lachute Pee-Wee line-up which will take part in the international tournament at Quebec City. So far, the youngsters have met success all round, defeating Hawkesbury, Grenville, Ottawa and Outremont (St. Germain) teams.

The boys will leave Lachute station Monday, February 22, at 9.35 a.m., reaching Quebec at 1.30, where they will be taken in charge by their escorts for a stay in the Ancient Capital. In their first game, Tuesday morning, they will play against the Pee-Wees from Leaside, Ont.

The local squad includes — Kenneth Lowe (goaler), André Gravel, Yves Tessier, André Barselou, Bruce MacLean, Alain Cousineau, François Monette, Denis Richer, Dan Lowe, Denis Painchaud, Pierre Mongeon, John Cleland, George Elkington, Jacques Lupien, Michel Bélisle and Raymond Malette.

Lachute Ladies' CURLING Activities

The finals of the Club Bonspiel were played among the lady curlers last week and the winners were Linda York (skip), Gladys Vessie, Peg Wilson and Dorothy Joyce.

Two of our rinks sashayed off to Cornwall last week through sleet, hail and snow to compete for the Courtauld Trophy. The Cornwall Club are wonderful hosts and the girls had a very gay time, from all reports. The teams from Lachute taking part in this keenly fought-for trophy were Jean Stein, Pearl Cairns, Doris Drew and Norma Rogers, together with Gladys Muir, Jean McOuat, Pat Walker and Dorothy Joyce. Gladys Muir's rink won two of their three games, and Jean Stein won three games, bringing home the Courtland Trophy, which is a beautiful silver tray. . . How about that? Congratulations to all.

Here are the results of the Challenge games, intended for last week's column: The winners of the Wilson Pins were Doris Drew (skip), Jean Stein, Pearl Cairns and Myrtle Kettyle, defeating Doris Fraser (skip), Ethel Wilson, Norma Rogers and Peg Simon. The rink of Agnes Jones (skip), Peg Wilson, Grace White and Pearl Paul retained the Broomstick Pins by winning over Julie Heggie (skip), Betty Milnes, Vi Clarke and Gerry Butterfield.

The Wilson Spoons Bonspiel is now in progress.

'B' Bantam Winners . . .

LACHUTE 1884 CURLING CLUB

The final game in the Dunany Cup Bonspiel was played on Friday night, February 12. The winning rink, with Linton Armstrong (skip), Lionel Rendell, Bob Bailly and John Simon, scored an 8-7 victory in a well played match against Keith Warwick (skip), Fred Royal, Willie Wilson and M. Laberge. Congratulations to the winners.

This week, the first games in the final round of the Club Championship will be played. This has been a most popular bonspiel, with new teams entering in each round to make a total of 21 rinks participating.

The bonspiel for the "Pat Lid" badges will also commence this week. The Canadian Branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club presents the badges each year to clubs who donate to the "Pat Lid Fund". This fund, administered by the "Branch", provides the loan of curling stones, free, to clubs until such times as they can afford their own sets.

Memories from the Past

Echoes out of the past! One of our senior members received a very interesting item of news in a letter from a former Lachute resident. The author of the letter, Miss Ruby Parsons, will probably be remembered by quite a number of the members. Miss Parsons, now residing in Renfrew, Ont., is the daughter of the engineer who came to Lachute to construct the Ayers Dam On completion of the dam, he, like most newcomers, remained in Lachute. Miss Parsons, among papers belonging to Mr. Parsons, found a reference to curling in the early days in this area. . .

In 1881 the final game in the District Medals Bonspiel was played between the Renfrew Curling Club, Ontario, and the Carillon Curling Club, Quebec. This was a two-rink competition, one game was played at Renfrew the other on the ice of the Ottawa River at Carillon; the result is not known. The Royal Caledonian Curling Club, instituted on July 25, 1838, in Scotland, were the sponsors of the District Medals Bonspiel, which I understand was conducted by the "Branch" covering an area similar to the present-day one. As previously mentioned, it was a two-rink competition and was one of the earliest. The Lachute Curling Club, or rather the third phase of the Club, the 1919 phase, were winners of this bonspiel no less than six times. Six medals hang in the men's lounge in the Club. Two of the medals are undated, but the remaining four are engraved as follows: 1920, won by Lachute against Outremont; 1924, against Thistle; 1931, from Pointe Claire; and from St. George in 1932. There are at least three members of our Club today who can remember, and who participated in the game against Outremont in the winter of 1920. This bonspiel has not been held since 1939.

I guess the membership of the Club was as proud of the achievements of its members then as it is today, in the winning of the 1965 Governor General's Trophy by the Lachute eight!

Business Girls' Bonspiel . . .

The Business Girls' Section of the lady curlers held their seventh annual bonspiel on Saturday, February 13. Eight rinks competed for a handsome trophy donated by the Bank of Montreal. The winners were a rink from the Town of Mount Royal, Brownsburg being the runners-up. The trophy was presented by Mr. D. M. Hay, manager of the Lachute branch of the Bank of Montreal. Glen more won the prize for the single high game.

Seen above are Miss Lulu Miller and Mr. Hay, representing the B. of M., and the winning foursome from Town of Mount Royal.

Mrs. E. McFaul joined the Business Girls for luncheon, and Mrs. MacKimmie presided at the tea table. It was generally agreed that this bonspiel was a highly successful event.

Resuscitation of choking child

C-I-L "Contact" of February 8 records that two Brownsburg plant employees recently saved the life of a four-year-old girl found choking in a parked automobile.

Richard Racine and Albert Brown, hearing cries of distress from the girl who had been left unattended in the family car, rushed to the scene and immediately applied mouth-to-mouth respiration.

After the girl showed signs of revival she was taken to the Argenteuil Hospital for medical care.

Both men became acquainted with the techniques of mouth-to-mouth respiration during resuscitation courses conducted recently at Brownsburg Works.

C-I-L acquires Valleyfield plant

Ottawa, Feb. 9 — The Federal Government has approved the sale of the de Salaberry Plant of Canadian Arsenals Limited, Valleyfield, Que., to Canadian Industries Liimted. The action followed the recommendation of the Minister of Industry, the Hon. C. M. Drury, and resulted from negotiations carried out by the Department of Defence Production.

A spokesman from the Department said that C-I-L's experience in the production of explosives and propellants was a major factor in the acceptance of the proposal to purchase. While it will continue to produce supplies required for national defence, Canadian Industries Limited, it is understood, plans to augment its current workload with commercial products which it can manufacture at Valleyfield.

Brownsburg High News

By David McCaffrey

On Friday evening, the Lachute senior teams visited B.H.S. to play basketball. A large crowd of spectators was present for the girls' game. Brownsburg needed the win to clinch first place in the league (and, thus, a trip to the provincial tournament), while Lachute needed a victory to tie our team in the O.V.S.A.A. standings.

The lead changed hands constantly, but at the end of the first half, Brownsburg had gained a three-point advantage. During the second half, however, Brownsburg, due to poor passing, fell behind. Their final efforts were to no avail, for at the final whistle Lachute was still ahead by 33-30. Susan Sugden, Linda Tomalty, and Wanda White were the outstanding players for Brownsburg.

The senior boys played the second game of the night. The play was almost even during the first quarter, but from then on Brownsburg was in control. Winston Dixon and Marc Racine, stars of the game for Brownsburg, were backed by the playing of Wayne Seary, Peter Ferland and Gary Taylor; together the boys scored 74 points, (74-50).

On Saturday, the annual O.V.S.A.A. junior basketball tournament, which ended the season for the boys' team, was held in the B.H.S. gymnasium. Brownsburg played Lachute in the first game. Our boys jumped ahead in the first quarter, but by half time Lachute had nearly evened the tally. Lachute held on until the last quarter when, with several of their players fouled out, they fell behind, eventually losing by a score of 46-39.

In the second game, Rosemere, the league-leader all year, was upset by St. Eustache. Rosemere, however, managed to win the consolation round against Lachute.

In the fourth game of the tourney, Brownsburg met St. Eustache in the tournament finals, for the tournament trophy. Both teams, determined to win, played their hardest; as a result the score remained even during the first quarter. Brownsburg broke away in the second period and by half time were ahead by 12 points. This lead was further increased until, in the dying minutes of the third quarter, St. Eustache started to come back. Their efforts continued into the last quarter but Brownsburg's defence eventually stopped the Lake of Two Mountains team. Time ran out with Brownsburg ahead 44-36. Dickie Moore played a good defensive game, along with Sean Hall. The whole team, under Mr. Tompkins' instruction, functioned well on offence.

Next Saturday the junior girls' tournament will be held in Brownsburg. Again, all spectators are invited to attend.

Week's Activities

By Sandra Hall

The third edition of the B.H.S. newspaper, "The Triumph", went on sale Thursday, February 11. This edition contains two new ideas in the way of columns: the first is the French section, for which volunteer students from grades three to eleven wrote short paragraphs on a familiar subject. It is hoped that the project will encourage more interest in French for students. The second is a "Primary Elements" section. Previously, most of the news topics originated from the grades seven to eleven atmosphere; in this section, the elementary grades add their news. Slowly but surely the "Triumph" is growing up to have all the characteristics admired in a school newspaper.

The art in the newspaper is one of the attracting factors. The cover of the Valentine issue, which was done by Earle Donaldson, is a beautiful Valentine scene. Gerald Vowles also draws for the paper, and in this issue, has drawn several Valentine designs. Grades one and two cannot be forgotten. Their creative ideas for Valentine cards were an interesting part of the paper. The newspaper staff hopes to be able to put out two more issues this year — an Easter and a Graduation edition.

On Saturday, February 13, B.H.S. had a Valentine Dance in the school gymnasium. This was sponsored by the Students' Council and the proceeds will go towards some new project. "Jerry and the Electrons", our local band, played at the dance.

The Students' Council is also sponsoring a film entitled "Spartacus", on Thursday, February 18. The film is open to the public and will be shown in the gymnasium. The movie, which begins at 7 o'clock, will last for 3½ hours. There will be an admission charge.

The snow sculpturing contest will also hold its final judging this week, on Thursday, February 18.

This week will be a busy one at B.H.S., but we hope a gratifying one.

CURLING

Activities in Brownsburg

The pot-luck supper was a great success, and all your reporter has to say is — mighty good "pot-luck"!

Last Wednesday the rinks headed for Lachine, and Cedarview were prepared to challenge anybody but not to risk their necks on the icy highways. Smart of you ladies to stay home.

February 20 will be all-day curling by employees of the Bank of Nova Scotia, from branches between Ottawa and Montreal. This is their yearly bonspiel, formerly held at the Hawkesbury Curling Club.

Carnival mixed curling will start February 22. This will be "Open House Week" at the club, so try to come up and support your friends. Some of the "seconds" that were moved up to "thirds" this year, will be "skips" in this bonspiel — just bet they show the "behind the glass" curlers a thing or two!

Congratulations to Grant Tomalty (skip), Phyllis Tomalty, Bob Sugden and Peggy Sugden. They will represent this Centre for the Lady Gilmour Trophy. Nice curling, folks!

On February 23, Mrs. G. McGibbon (skip), Mr. R. Cruise, Mrs. R. Lafleur and Mrs. G. Picard will travel to Thurso to play in a "friendly".

Dates to remember — February 24, the afternoon lady curlers' next "friendly". . . March 1 will see the start of the Men's Knock-out and Consolation competition. March 7 to 13, Brownsburg Men's Open bonspiel. . . March 22 to April 2, the Club's mixed bonspiel. Also we would like to mention one of our neighbors, Lachute, will be holding their Men's Open, March 19 to April 3.

signs, for their consideration at a later date.

After considering two applications, the Council agreed to hire Sylvio Charlebois as a part-time police constable, thus easing the burden of Police Chief André Roy who has been working seven-day weeks during the illness of Richard Bell.

Police Chief Roy advised the Council that a suitable pole could be bought from Domtar Limited for $81.85, delivered, for use for the police radio. The Council approved the purchase of one pole.

After hearing an estimate of $250 from Mr. Elmer Campbell for the repair of the motor of the municipality's 1957 Chevrolet truck, Council decided to make the necessary repairs. Mr. Campbell was also asked to present, at the next meeting, an estimate of the cost of replacing the box on the town's Sanivan with a steel box.

An application from the Minor Hockey Association for the Council's payment of part of the cost of sending a Lachute hockey team, which included three Brownsburg boys, to Quebec City to participate in the tournament there, was turned down by the Council in accordance with a by-law forbidding such payments.

The Council spent the remainder of the meeting working on the new budget, before adjourning until February 15.

Red Cross branch at Brownsburg

The February meeting of the Brownsburg Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, was held in the Social Club on Monday evening.

Mr. Jacques Racine, the president, occupied the chair. Mrs. F. Barker, in her report on women's work, stated that the first shipment for this year was made last week to Montreal headquarters; this consisted of 189 articles of sewing and 16 knitted items.

Mrs. R. Lafleur reported a bed and mattress, one cane and three pairs of crutches had been requested from the loan cupboard.

Delegates to the annual convention, to be held in Montreal on February 18-19, are Mr. Jacques Racine and Mrs. L. Roberts.

Fine weather for ice-fishing event last Sunday

Around 110 enthusiasts, favored by fine weather, took part in the ice-fishing derby at La Baie, organized last Sunday by the Argenteuil Fishing & Hunting Association. This is the second event of its kind held by the Association this season at Fernand Ouellette's property on the Ottawa River.

First prize for the day's catch was won by Henri-Paul Campeau, of St. Philippe, with a pike weighing 4 lbs. 12 ozs., while Miss Jacqueline Ouimet, of Lachute, won the top prize for ladies, with a pike of 1 lb. 2 ozs. The Molson prize for the greatest number of "scrub" specimens caught, was won by H. Dubeau, of Brownsburg.

Claude Larocque, on behalf of the Association, was the prime organizer of this successful outing.

Mr. Kenneth Batty, of Montreal, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Batty.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Swail over the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. S. Kilpatrick and daughter, Debby, Mr. and Mrs. E. Wood and family, Miss Christine McLaren, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Thornicroft, all of Montreal.

Valentine Dance

Under the leadership of Mrs. Owen Rathwell and Mrs. Arthur Batty, the Girl Guides held a successful "Valentine Hop" at the Tree Chalet on Saturday night. Despite the icy roads, there was a good attendance. Round and square dancing was the order of the evening, the old-time sets being called by Arthur Craig, who left nothing to be desired. Refreshments brought the evening to a close.

Icy roads still prevail, curtailing activities quite a bit, but we hope as the weather improves so will our social life. In the meantime, it is fortunate there have been no local accidents to report.

Weir

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to Mr. Huntly Schippel and Miss Lois Gray, who were married in the Church of the Redeemer last Saturday.

Lachute townsman former resident of St. Lin, Que.

The late Norman Lloyd

Following a lengthy illness, Mr. Norman Lewis Lloyd passed away at his home in Lachute on Saturday, January 23.

Mr. Lloyd was born in St. Lin, Que., on January 3, 1884, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lloyd. In 1913 he was married to Miss Emma Ewan, of Mascouche, Que. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church in New Glasgow, Que., and latterly of the Lachute United Church. For many years he served as a trustee on the New Glasgow School Board, and also a term on the St. Lin Town Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd lived in St. Lin until his retirement in 1947, when they moved to Lachute. As a friend and neighbor, Mr. Lloyd will be missed by all who knew him for his kindly nature and cheerful disposition.

Funeral services were held on Monday, January 25, from the chapel of the J. P. MacKimmie Funeral Home, and conducted by the Rev. H. Thompson. Interment was in Lachute. Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Fred Alexander, John Black, Stanley Boyd, Douglas Simon, Simon Wilson and William Wilson.

Left to mourn his passing are his wife, his son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Lloyd, four grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. G. Bennett of Montreal, and Mrs. J. Murray of Toronto. A brother, Herbert, predeceased him in 1963.

Annual meeting of St. Francis Parish

At the annual meeting of the Church of Saint Francis, the rector congratulated the congregation on the excellent progress made during the past year, and appointed Mr. Malcolm Beaton of Shawbridge as rector's warden, while Mr. Leonard Fisher was re-elected people's warden and honorary verger.

Mr. Gordon Raffignon, as treasurer, presented an excellent report, showing value of the property as $95,208. Mr. W. Weary was re-elected vestry clerk, and Mr. Gerald Hinds, auditor. Delegates to Synod are Lionel Brittle and Murray Cassils.

Mr. Brittle was elected Chairman of the Board, with T. P. Howard, QC, as the vice-chairman. Appreciation was expressed to Mr. G. Kirby, retiring chairman, for his leadership while in office.

Mrs. John H. Molson presented the report of the Women's Guild showing a highly successful year, the highlight being the Christmas bazaar. A vote of thanks was expressed to the members.

Special donations were given to the Mission Budget, the Anglican Women's Training College, Nesbitt Home, the Theological College and to a student from Uganda.

The rector, the Rev. H. G. Baugh, thanked all those who had been associated with the work during the year. It was decided that discussion would take place at the next meeting on resolutions being presented to Synod this year.

School of Ballet in Brownsburg, Loisirs sponsored

Brownsburg — Due to transportation difficulties, and spurred by the students' and parents' enthusiasm, the Loisirs of Brownsburg enlisted the services of the Argenteuil School of Ballet, which opened its courses January 9 in Brownsburg. Several of the pupils have been with the Lachute groups for three, four or five years. The Brownsburg Academy is located at the Bouchard School.

The professor of the Brownsburg Academy of Ballet, Miss Lucille Dubreuil, needs no introduction to these parts, now having been with the Argenteuil School of Ballet for some five years. Her work is of high calibre and her teaching is interesting. Canadian born, Miss Dubreuil entered ballet studios at an early age and continued her training in Montreal, Toronto and England, finally gaining her advanced teacher's diploma from the Royal Academy of Dancing. She is a member of the Imperial Society of Dancing Teachers. . . It was also through the sheer hard work and determination of Mrs. E. F. Gow, that ballet has been brought to this district.

Now that these courses are available, parents of Brownsburg should have their children take advantage of such training. Ballet is one of the oldest of arts; it is discipline for the body and the mind.

The Catholic School Commission have granted the use of the Bouchard School for a period of 30 weeks in the 1965 season. Classes are held every Saturday morning from 9.30 to 12.30. There is no special age requirement, pupils may start from five years up. Your child can make his debut any Saturday morning, but sooner the better.

Parents interested may please contact Mrs. E. F. Gow (LO 2-6102), Mr. Rémi Raymond (LE 3-6627), or Mr. Roger Martel (LE 3-4168) of the Brownsburg Loisirs.

— Jehovah's Witnesses —

WHO IS JEHOVAH?

Since "there are many 'gods' and many 'lords'," the true God has a personal name to distinguish him from all other gods; "Thou alone, whose name is Jehovah, art the Most High over all the earth." And referring to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, God said to Moses: "But by my name Jehovah I was not known to them." Jesus made this name known to his followers: "I have made your name manifest to the men you gave me." Jehovah's Witnesses today likewise make known Jehovah's name: "Ye are my witnesses, said Jehovah, and I am God." — Exodus 6:3; Psalm 83:18; Isaiah 43:10-12; John 17:6; 1 Corinthians 8;5.

Jesus' prayer, "Our father which art in heaven, Hallowed by Thy name, may Thy Kingdom come, and may Thy will be done on earth, just as it is done in heaven." . . . What was Jesus' Father's name? It was JEHOVAH.

WHAMMO

Lachute district residents may be interested in hearing about a practical demonstration that raised some scientific eyebrows recently — though I hope it never happens here!

A group of professors at a major technical institute were holding a conference on "component reliability," a matter of considerable importance in these space-age days.

One engineering professor fidgeted while the discussion rambled on at length in profound scientific terms. Finally he lumped up, grabbed a nearby telephone, and slammed it against the wall.

As the dust settled, he asked one of his startled colleagues to pick up the phone and dial Operator. The operator answered immediately.

"Now that, gentlemen," he said triumphantly, "is reliability."

AIM TO BE HEARD

If folks sometimes have difficulty hearing you over the telephone, it may require only a slight twist of the wrist to make your voice come in loud and clear. Seeing television performers talk or sing over microphones that may be located 18 inches from the mouth or suspended overhead out of sight may give us the impression that we can do the same with the telephone. We may carelessly talk with the telephone transmitter held anywhere from beneath the chin to above the nose.

But the telephone is not a broadcasting device. It is an instrument designed for personal — and private — conversation. It has been engineered to operate most efficiently when you speak directly into the mouthpiece — with your lips about an inch away.

You need speak only in normal tones to be heard clearly . . . if you hold the telephone directly in front of your mouth and speak into the transmitter.

Bell Telephone m'gr introduces newest Science aid to students

A new scientific research program on speech is now available to Quebec and Ontario high school students.

Sponsored by the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, the program is aimed at especially adept students showing an interest in a scientific career.

For the academic year 1964-65, the program consists of two basic manuals and a variety of test instruments enabling both students and teachers to conduct research work on the physical and biological characteristics of the human voice.

The Bell Telephone scientific aids program was introduced recently by local Bell Telephone manager B. A. Parent, to a group of district teachers at l'école secondaire in St. Jerome.

In his introduction, Mr. Parent explained that his company was vitally aware of the need for basic research throughout Canadian industry. "Our future economic welfare depends on our ability to develop first-class scientists," he said. "We shall consider ourselves fully rewarded if our scientific aids are instrumental in opening new horizons to some of our Quebec and Ontario students."

Bell engineer Jacques Brunelle gave the demonstration. Responsible for the program in co-operation with the Bell Telephone was Réal Germain, director of studies for the St. Jerome School Commission.

Progress report on GM plant at Ste. Therese

Oshawa — The building construction phase of the $120,000,000 Canadian expansion program by General Motors, announced last March, is more than two-thirds completed, according to E. H. Walker, president of the company.

Three new plants — at Ste. Therese West, Windsor and Oshawa — will begin "pilot runs" within the next few months and will be ready for production next summer at the start of the 1966-model year.

At Ste. Therese, the new passenger car assembly plant and its administration building are nearly closed in. The erection of steel for the power house has begun. The parking lots and the railway siding are in the course of preparation. The building contains more than 1,000,000 square feet of floor space.

The Ste. Therese plant will employ about 1,000 people initially and an estimated 2,500 when capacity production is reached.

How a child learns

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"I wish I knew how a child learns," an anxious mother exclaimed to a friend. "My husband is determined that our daughter Mary shall play the piano. She seemed mildly enthusiastic about it when she started her lessons over a year ago. Now she is neglecting her practising and I am at my wits end to know what to do with her."

Have you ever felt like Mary's mother? Have you been puzzled as to what to do because you are not sure just what are the steps in learning? How does a child learn?

To begin with, he must want to learn himself. Mother or dad desiring him to learn is no substitute for his own inner urge. It is doubtful whether any kind of music lessons, forced on an unwilling pupil, will ever be successful, no matter how keen a father may be for his child's musical training.

Children desire to learn about the world in which they live. Most of the questions they ask, all day long, are prompted by a genuine thirst for knowledge. It is a great pity when parents or teachers are too busy or too weary to satisfy this quest for information.

Learning is dependent on three main factors — the desire to learn, the capacity of the individual and the repetition of the lesson. Capacity to learn is the ability which the child has within himself. This is something inherent in him — a fixed thing. A child is born either with or without special kinds of ability. Thus it is of great importance that parents and teachers, as far as possible, look on each child as a separate individual, a little different from any other person.

The wise parent does not label her children as "quick" or "slow" by the yardstick of their standing in school reports. John may only rate a "B" or "C" in his written work but may be in the "A" class in the woodwork class or have an exceptional knack in working with machines.

Although the capacity for learning is fixed, the two factors — the desire to learn, and repetition of the lesson can vary greatly. A child with medium capacity, who is "on fire" to learn, and willing to go over and over a lesson until he has mastered it, will equal, if he does not surpass, the performance of a more gifted child with no such eagerness to learn. In the honor group in any school may be found pupils, not only with high IQ's but with exceptional powers of persistence in studying their lessons.

Never forget the old axiom "Learn to do by doing." A child learns through activity. Not what mother or teacher says but what he himself does counts. John may often watch Dad turn off the water and replace a worn washer in the tap by a new one but not until he himself has done this can he claim that he has learned this small plumbing task.

Young and old are thrilled by a sense of achievement of learning something worthwhile. Everyone likes warm and sincere praise. This pride in accomplishment and enjoyment of commendation are two important incentives to learning.

Mother and Dad know their child is born with certain capacities, they recognize that he himself must desire to know and he himself must concentrate on his own lesson, but parents can set a good example by being eager for new knowledge themselves. They can provide opportunities for "learning by doing," and be generous with honest praise. Understanding is so important in a home! Mother and Dad can best aid son or daughter because they know how all true learning takes place.

Household hints

Place fish fillets on lettuce leaves before placing in a pan for baking. This prevents fish from sticking to pan. Discard lettuce before serving.

About one half of the vitamin C contained in a can of peas is in the vegetable and about one half is in the juice. Use that juice with beef or chicken bouillon as a soup, gravy or as a base for gelatine salads.

Pipe cleaners are ideal to free the jets of a gas burner when they become clogged. They are also excellent for cleaning combs.

Canned salmon recipes offer variety for good eating and strained budgets

Pink Salmon brightens up winter meals with wonderful change of pace dishes that will delight the family and ease the strained household budget.

Budget-minded housewives will welcome this bright collection of salmon recipes, designed especially to whet jaded winter appetites while they help economical menu plans for the family.

Everybody's favorite, salmon loaf, takes on an intriguing new look for winter — a cheery red glow of tempting paprika graces the loaf top, and every savory bite carries a tantalizing trace of this subtle spice.

The loaf is equally delicious served hot or cold, so there's no need to worry about wasted leftovers. Just pop a cold slice between two slices of bread, add a crisp, crunchy lettuce leaf, a dollop of mayonnaise or creamy salad dressing, two or three slices of tangy dill pickle, and you have a special treat for schoolday lunches.

Look over this collection of salmon recipes, choose one suited to your family's tastes, make it, then sit back and wait for the praise that will follow when hungry diners taste the first delicious bite.

Salmon Cakes

1 (1-pound) can Pink Salmon; 2 cups warm mashed potatoes; salt and pepper; 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion; 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley; 1 egg, slightly beaten; 1 tablespoon melted butter; and milk to moisten.

Drain and flake salmon, removing bones. Add mashed potatoes, salt and pepper, onion and parsley. Combine lightly. Add beaten egg, melted butter, and enough milk to moisten. Shape mixture into round cakes. Place in buttered pan and bake in hot oven, 450 deg. F., 10 to 15 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 6 servings.

Salmon Paprika

1 (1-pound) can Pink Salmon; 2 eggs, beaten; ½ cup evaporated milk; ¾ cup mashed potatoes; 1 cup chopped celery; 2½ tablespoons chopped green pepper; 2 tablespoons chopped parsley; 2 tablespoons ketchup; ½ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon black pepper; ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper; ¼ teaspoon paprika and 1 tablespoon butter.

Beat eggs slightly, add milk. Mash salmon and juice together, not removing bone. Add to milk mixture. Add potatoes and mix well. Add remaining ingredients; place in well-greased loaf pan. Sprinkle with more paprika and dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven, 350 deg. F., for 45 minutes. May be served hot or cold.

Salmon Pie

Pastry for 2-crust, 9-inch pie; 2 (1-pound) cans Pink Salmon; 3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced; 2 teaspoons dill seed; salt and pepper; 2 tablespoons butter; 1 cup medium white sauce and 1 egg, beaten.

Line pie plate with pastry. Add half the salmon. Top with sliced eggs. Sprinkle with dill seed, salt, pepper and chunks of butter. Top with white sauce. Put in rest of salmon. Cover with pastry top. Seal edges, prick top and brush with beaten egg. Bake in hot oven, 425 deg. F., 30 to 35 minutes or until well-browned. Makes 6 servings.

Salmon Hash

¼ Cup butter or margarine; 1 medium onion, chopped; 1 medium green pepper, chopped; 1 cup chopped celery; ¾ cup chili sauce; salt and pepper to taste; 2 (1-pound) cans Pink Salmon, drained and flaked; 2 cups diced, cooked potatoes.

Melt butter in frying pan. Add onion, green pepper and celery. Fry 10 minutes or until slightly tender. Stir in sauce and seasonings. Bring to a boil. Stir in salmon and potatoes. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Makes about 6 servings.

Misleading labels raise the ire of consumers everywhere, and usually get a lot more attention than the properly informative ones. For instance, when the Consumers Association of Canada issued a recent report on misleading labels on bedsheets the story was widely printed in our newspapers.

The CAC report covered 20 brands and singled out sheets imported from Japan and Spain as being "loaded with dressing, and after washing have shrunk as much as nine inches in length." It also criticized lack of essential information on sheet packages such as finished size, thread counts, shrinkage and color fastness.

However, although the CAC's complete report singled out Canadian-made sheets as showing the proper information, this fact was not as widely publicized. Another point that failed to receive widespread publicity was that, with the exception of the aforementioned imports, all sheets tested were of good quality cloth.

Imports from the U.S.A. were criticized for labelling unhemmed lengths not the "finished" length as given by Canadian makers. Canadian-made sheets, as a matter of fact, more than measured up to the various tests, yet the resulting publicity failed to mention this.

The CAC concluded with hints on buying and caring for sheets which stressed careful attention to labels. On this point I would like to list a few others which apply to purchases of bedsheets, or any other consumer product.

1. Deal with retailers you know and trust, people who stand behind what they sell.

2. Buy reputable brands made by companies whose names are sacred to them.

3. Look for tags which show standards, by manufacturers who are proud to say "We made it."

4. Read labels and directions. They were put there to help you by an expert such as an appliance engineer, a home economist or a fabric specialist.

5. "Guarantee" is a big word. Find out what it covers and who stands behind it.

6. Insist on the quality you pay for and return goods that are badly made or unsatisfactory.

Consumers who follow these rules will never accept a label such as the following which was recently printed in a Canadian trade publication as a perfect example of how not to write an informative label:

"100 per cent Rayon, exclusive of decoration. Remove all trimmings. Hand wash separately in lukewarm suds. Mild Soap. Wash quickly — do not soak. Squeeze — do not rub or twist. Rinse well. Roll and knead in a towel. Remove immediately and shake out wrinkles. Place wrong side over a padded ironing board.

"IMPORTANT — Smooth to shape with a dry turkish towel, beginning with the outer edges, then up and down the material. When almost dry, press on the wrong side. Do not sprinkle or press two damp surfaces together. FOR BEST RESULTS DRY-CLEAN."

The reporter who unearthed this weirdie said: "We defy anyone to follow the directions and still maintain either sanity or the merchandise." Incidentally, the merchandise in question was not made in Canada.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Organization won't guarantee the success of a party, perhaps, but it can give a hostess peace of mind and a chance to enjoy her guests.

There are a few simple rules which help make things run smoothly.

The first is to prepare everything possible ahead of time. Be sure there are enough ash trays, glasses, cups.

If you are serving snacks or sandwiches, don't put them all in one place, scatter them in small lots around the room. If you are planning to serve buffet, it's a good idea to plan seating arrangements so that guests can be in small groups to eat.

If you have a specialty food you can use, you might serve it regularly at parties, make a kind of trademark of it. But don't experiment with new foods — try interesting recipes on your family first.

Conversation Pieces

Set foods and utensils on a serving table as attractively as possible, perhaps with candles. You can sometimes use a salad as part of your decorations instead of flowers or fruit.

If you are serving coffee to mobile guests, you may find it works best to do your pouring in the kitchen. Then you can probably make enough coffee ahead of time and keep it warm on the stove. Lump sugar is handiest at a party.

If you have a bar, put it as far from the entrance as possible to encourage your guests to move around, and to prevent a traffic jam at the door.

If you are well organized, you'll be able to follow one prime rule for any hostess. You should try to greet every guest, to talk to every guest during the party and be accessible during the party.

Give Them Jobs

You should introduce the first few guests to everyone in the room, but after that, introduce them only to the nearest people. You'll stop conversation if you try to introduce each newcomer to everyone there.

If you see someone alone, one way to help him join the party is to give him something to do. Ask him to empty ash trays, serve sandwiches, help serve accessories with the coffee.

Toronto caterer Claire Drier has a dessert recipe which she says can be used as a colorful centrepiece on a serving table.

Ingredients are: drained cubed pineapple, drained mandarin oranges, sour cream with a dash of salt, 1½ cups shredded coconut, 1½ cups baby marshmallows. She says you can use almost any fruit you like.

Mix the ingredients in a well-buttered dish to mold them, then turn it out on a footed cake stand. You can trim the sides with daisies made of the orange segments.

Cdn. woollens received smaller share of sales

Canadians used more woven wool fabrics during the first half of 1964 than in the corresponding period of the previous year, but share of the market filled by domestic mills was reduced.

Canadian Textiles Institute reports that total Canadian market for wool fabrics in the first six months of 1964 was 27.9 million square yards, compared with 24.8 million in the first half of 1963. Domestic mills filled 62.8% of the market, instead of 65.6%.

The Institute reports the total annual market for woven wool textiles in all forms — fabrics, blankets, and garments — but all of these figures are not available on a semi-annual basis.

Deplores apathy to home accidents

"Unless the Canadian public shakes off its apathy and realizes its responsibility, more than 4,500 Canadians will die in accidents other than on the road in 1965," declared W. E. Austin of Oshawa, Ont., president of the National Safety League of Canada.

Mr. Austin's estimate did not include industrial accidents. He pointed out that the League was doing all it could to bring about public awareness of the dangers of accidents off the highway. "It comes as a shock to many," he said, that, next to the highway, the home is the most dangerous location. Too many people think of the home as a haven of safety, but the opposite is true."

Mr. Austin also emphasized the need for strict care in sports and recreation, on the farm, on and in the water, and where children are concerned. "We simply must pay more attention to the perils that surround us. While the accidents in non-traffic areas are not increasing unduly, too many fatalities and injuries occur there each year, and too many of them need never happen," he said.

Mr. Austin is assistant to the president of General Motors of Canada. He was chairman for a series of NSL meetings in Ottawa in mid-January, where non-traffic safety were discussed with NSL executives and provincial safety council managers.

Eastern Canadian hardwaremen compare 1965 kitchen appliances — a blender and an electric knife, with utensils and tools used in Canadian homes 100 years ago. Both the old and the new were on display at the Canadian Hardware Show. Left to right are: Lachute hardware dealer George W. Deacon with a new blender model, R. R. Robertson of Beloeil with a 100-year-old apple peeler, and R. M. Boisvert, also of Beloeil, with a new electric-powered knife.

One flag — one nation?

"FROM AND AFTER the fifteenth day of February in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and sixty-five," Canada bears a somewhat different complexion, as a nation under the aegis of a distinct and independent flag. Last Monday was a red-letter day in Canada's history, for by royal proclamation on that date we became a country of one national and official emblem.

While public ceremonies were held in the Capital and in major urban centres, it was fitting also that in Argenteuil County, in schools and official buildings, the occasion was suitably commemorated; for Canada's flag is not only for state and inter-state affairs, it is a symbol to be recognized and revered at home, in smaller centres of population; to be loved and saluted by the younger citizenry and in the future, to fill its inspirational and patriotic role, as is the case in other nations of the world.

History, we pray, may never record the bitterness that has preceded the settlement of this question. The rancour is a painful memory of our immediate past; but happily, in the centuries of the human story, this turmoil will be but a ripple in the record of our nationhood. Time is a venerable healer. . .

But more than this we dare to hope for. With one or two discordant but scattered murmurs, the new flag is now generally accepted. Its thorniest opponents, the Royal Canadian Legion, have voiced their gracious acquiescence. Even the leader of the Loyal Opposition can no longer persist in his hard-headed disapproval. And in Quebec, where Commonwealth ties are a sore spot in a troubled land, the maple leaf was joyously hailed from the very first until its final acceptance (and every Canadian elector knows the time and cost of that lengthy interim). From this emblem, fanatics can erase no symbol of colonialism; nor can they defile it, without rank treason. Here, then, is a nucleus, at least, for Canadian unity that has been so badly shaken. Here, a rallying point for new adventures in mutual harmony. . . Is it too much to visualize, that Canada's new flag may be a sign-post to a far deeper concern with the things that count — understanding, co-operation and national progress?

Finest dreams in February

A SNOW-BOUND Westerner claims that February would be intolerable but for the seed catalogues which deliver spring early in the form of rutabagas and radishes, hollyhock and hyacinth — says a seasonable comment in The Printed Word. The Westerner says he dreams his finest gardens in February, watches them ripen lushly during March storms, and when the snow finally melts he need not bother gardening at all, for he has already had his enjoyment through anticipation!

He asserts that while he is not a practical gardener he has learned a great deal about it. One evening at a party he spoke so glowingly of gardens and talked so knowingly about them that an editor in the gathering asked him to consider writing a daily garden column. Anyone with such a knowledge of garden lore and so many new ideas about it would make good reading, the editor said, and it would increase circulation of the paper.

"But it is years since I've been near a garden," the Westerner confessed a little sheepishly, "and I can't be one hundred per cent sure my ideas would work."

That is the trouble with some ideas about gardening and politics. Those that may sound best and appear most promising, frequently have one slight shortcoming: they don't work. Voters, however, are not as wise as editors, and will accept dreams in place of reality and hang the consequences.

Incidentally, did you know that a few grains of salt sprinkled on cabbage plants will get rid of the cabbage worm? . . . Isn't it surprising how often, in gardening and other things, it helps to have a few grains of salt close at hand? — concludes this bright little comment.

Agriculture and industry — inter-dependent

THE CANADIAN FARM is no longer a closed shop. Its products are no longer available only in its immediate area. Today a complex but continual movement of agricultural produce moves to and from the farm. The western harvest is consumed in Quebec, while potatoes from the Atlantic provinces are eaten in the west. Unbridled competition, improved services, modern roads, quick delivery and perfect equipment, place at the service of Agriculture a reliable system of transport from one end of the country to the other. — These facts have been brought to mind in the current National Salon of Agriculture, at the Montreal Show Mart.

Of 100 shipments of merchandise across the country, 35 of them have some connection with Agriculture. If you take into account the raw products of the farm, these are said to be responsible for 15% of all trucking industry revenue. Add to these figures those of farm products manufactured, and equipment needed for farm production, and one quickly understands what Canadian transport owes to Agriculture.

We in North America, live in a century of well packed parcels. From the smallest article to the largest piece of equipment, everything is delivered well wrapped, tied, solid, ready to face the handlings, the bumps, the transfers. And often the packing is quite complicated.

Agriculture cannot avoid this problem, which, for food products, is essential. The vast manufacturing industry (creameries, canneries, abattoirs, etc.) and that of marketing (wholesale and retail, as well as the farm itself, requires packaging in all its forms and materials worth $400 million per year. This same packaging covers a series of complex designs and operations. The farm needs packaging more and more, and packaging will always need the farm.

Agriculture and many lines of industry are well-nigh inseparable.

Viewpoints and perspectives

COMMON AILMENT? — In considering the drive against gobblygook, we are reminded of the patient who asked the doctor to tell him in plain English what was the matter with him. The doc replied that he was just plain lazy. The patient then asked now could the doc give him the medical term so that he could tell his friends!

CALL FOR LEADERSHIP. — It is going to take something more than just a hundred years to make Canada a nation. Someone with the courage of his convictions has got to stand up and tell this country what it needs, and then be willing to fight for what he believes is right. — Stanstead (Que.) Journal

PUBLICITY PAYS. — Fisheries Minister Robichaud told the Commons this week of new regulations which require that no seal shall be skinned before it is dead. . . Deeds of thoughtless cruelty are not forgiven, but they have to be known, to be dealt with. Publicity has brought a better day to the ice floes of the seal.

— Campbellton (N.B.) Tirbune

PLEA FOR ELDERLY. — It is time to take another look at the wealth over which some politicians like to exhibit so much enthusiasm. How about (using it) for more beds for more aged people? Or are they to increase faster than the beds which can be created by our wealth?

— Gibsons (B.C.) Coast News

CALL FOR UNITY — In time, we are sure, the new Canadian flag, choice of our House of Commons supported by at least some members of all Canadian parties, will be flown proudly and the bitter argument over its origin will be forgotten. The sooner the better.

85 YEARS AGO

February, 1880 —

Grand Trunk Railway employees have been called upon to renew their temperance pledge for the year.

The list will soon be issued for a new election in this county. Let every loyal and patriotic citizen reserve his name and vote for the Hon. Mr. Abbott.

Lachute market prices — butter 15c lb.; cheese 12c; hay $5.50 ton; corn 60c bushel; oats 35c bushel; potatoes 45c bag; oysters 35c quart.

The Dominion Telegraph office, in the store of Messrs. Fish & Ireland, was opened this week with Miss L. Sharpe in charge.

The young men of Dalesvile, encouraged by the Lachute O.Y.B. Band, have started an opposition band, with instruments obtained from A. and S. Nordheimer, Ottawa.

WATCHMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS.

50 YEARS AGO

February, 1915 —

The bill to incorporate the Lachute Protestant Cemetery has now been referred to the parliamentary committee on Public Bills.

Messrs. John Calder and D. McGibbon, of McGill, were recent guests of their parents.

Mr. Henry Giles, as chairman of the School Commissioners, has received a cablegram from Sir Geo. H. Perley in England, expressing thanks for congratulations on his knighthood.

Councillors Muir and Cleland were returned unopposed in St. Jerusalem elections. In Chatham, Amedée Maisonneuve was chosen as mayor, and Ira McFaul and Procule Lepine as councillors.

Mr. H. Slater, M.P.P., visited his constituents in Brownsburg and Grenville during the recent holiday season.

25 YEARS AGO

February, 1940 —

The Speight Meat Market on Main Street changed hands last week, and is now owned by H. Parizeau, butcher, of Brownsburg. Mr. Speight has occupied this spot for 17 years; he was formerly in premises now occupied by Argenteuil Bazaar Store.

A sample of the K. of C. "army huts" is being operated on St. Denis Street, Montreal, where large numbers of soldiers gather from units stationed in the city.

Confronted by a life-sized gibbet on Main Street, local citizens may think themselves transported back to the days of the French Revolution. . . However, the gibbet is just a stunt to advertise Boris Karloff in "The Man They Could Not Hang", appearing at Rex Theatre.

Morin Heights — Paul Baumel has completed his ski tests, and is now a qualified ski instructor.

The new Alpine Inn opens this week at Ste. Marguerite, replacing the hostelry which burned down last November. Cottingham Supply Co. filled the order for Curtis windows throughout the new structure.

John Bates has taken over the Calumet - Harrington mail route, driven for the past 14 years by R. McCulloch.

Bombs Over Vietnam

The threat of all-out war in Southeast Asia loomed greater last week in the wake of the U.S. attacks on North Vietnam. The sudden decision to bomb Communist bases in the North indicates the United States has decided to try and strengthen its rapidly deteriorating military position in South Vietnam.

President Johnson thus appears to have thrown overboard —at least for the time being— the idea of negotiating with the Communists.

For Canada and other U. S. allies, the chief consequence of American reaction in North Vietnam rests in the possibility we will be asked to take part in military operations if the war escalates any further.

The prime motive for this would not be in the importance of whatever military aid Canada could render, but in the presentation of a united Western front against the Asian Communists.

There is still considerable hope in Canada that Vietnam can somehow be neutralized and kept out of the turmoil and skullduggery of international politics.

Following the collapse of the French regime in Indochina in the 1950s, the Geneva concords were supposed to have guaranteed the existence of the newly independent states of Vietnam — both South and North — as well as Laos and Cambodia.

The Eisenhower administration didn't have much faith in the neutralization theory, but President Kennedy went for it in a big way.

The Kennedy administration reversed U. S. policy by supporting neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma in Laos.

The first step toward the neutralization of South Vietnam was made when the White House backed the coup which overthrew the Diem Regime. Efforts were made to placate left-leaning Cambodia.

On paper anyway, things should have eased up in Southeast Asia as a result of Washington's new attitude. However, this isn't what happened.

In Laos, the neutralist regime has been under military attack by Communist forces aided from North Vietnam and Red China. Cambodia has become nothing more than a stooge for Peking. In South Vietnam, the Johnson administration's only alternative to carrying on the bloody war seems to be a complete Communist takeover in the country.

The fatal flaw in the neutralization theory was, of course, Red China. Although Peking supported the Geneva Accords, the Red Chinese interpretation of "neutralization" is Communist control of Southeast Asia.

As a result, it's somewhat ludicrous to witness the unhappy mien of American officials at Washington and U-N cocktail parties when they are told by their foreign colleagues that Southeast Asia must be neutralized and the U. S. must withdraw.

The American officials are uncomfortable and annoyed because no one wants the neutralization of Southeast Asia more than the U. S. State Department and President Johnson. The big question is how to achieve it.

Even if Washington were to agree to a complete pullout in South Vietnam in order to end our losses there, this would not solve anything. The pressure from Peking would merely be transferred to Thailand and after that to other Asian countries including India.

Thus, the American problem is not how to get out of South Vietnam, but how to keep Asia and its teeming millions from falling under the control of a determined Communist regime in Peking.

SUGAR AND SPICE . . .

— By BILL SMILEY

From Everywhere They Come

I've had a preview of what I'm going to feel like when my daughter is married. I've just been through two piano recitals. Not by Glenn Gould, or Van Cliburn, or Artur Rubinstein. No. By Hugh Smiley.

Marrying off your daughter must be just like it. A heady brew of emotion and exhaustion, bills and bouquets, that leaves you feeling like a caterpillar that has been run over, but not quite killed, by a tractor.

In short, you wind up absolutely flat, but rather proud that you're not dead.

The first recital was at the Conservatory, in the city. We picked the date six weeks before. And, boy, can we pick 'em. It was 18 below zero. And the humidity and wind gave it a discomfort index of 47 below.

The Old Girl was sick. Physically, mentally, spiritually. I was sick sympathetically. We figured 35 relatives, tried and true, and five friends to whom I owed money, would turn up.

Bless the human race, and all dear friends. We had 150 bodies in the place, straggling in, on such a night, from all over the country. Some made a round trip of 500 miles to hear the kid play.

It was a curious combination of characters in the audience. Basic were the relatives who live in the city, and their friends. They made up the two score we had expected.

But then they started to trickle in: old college friends; old fighter pilots; old weekly editors; my son's former public school principal; the chap who has the mortgage on my house; the fellow who handles my column; the orthodontist who straightens my daughter's teeth; a girl I hadn't seen since we went skinny-dipping at a beach party 20 years ago. And they all, bless them, brought their wives, and, or husbands, children and friends.

Last but not least came my sisters. One drove for six hours, in 20-below weather, with her daughter, to make it. The other came the same distance by train, with two kids. Neither knew the other was coming. Neither had seen the great artist since he was picking-up-and-kissing size.

It was heart-warming, to say the least. And I was a very proud father and husband, when it was over. A proud father because my son showed a poise and polish I wish I'd had at that age, and a competence I've never had at any age. A proud husband, because my wife had crawled out of what she claimed was her death-bed, to get there, and looked better than anybody, despite the facts that she's lived with me for 18 years, and coached the kid for ten.

Next day at noon, we hiked for home, 90 miles, and went through the whole thing again that night. A recital in the home town. It was not 20 below, for a change. It was 30 below. But 500 people left their television sets, and shivered through the knifing night to hear my young virtuoso, as he doesn't like to be called.

What impressed me most about the whole weekend was the kindness of people. My sister-in-law wanted to hold a reception for the whole mob, in the city. Our neighbor insisted on making the sandwiches for the bash at home. Even my wife got carried away and told me, during one lapse, that I was a good husband and father, which shook me up a bit.

The only thing that's bothering me is the kid's attitude. One of my misguided friends sent him a bottle of champagne. A dear lady sent him ten bucks. And perhaps worst of all, he got a clutch of fan mail.

After the weekend, we had a heavy fall of snow. I told him to get out and shovel the driveway. I handed him a shovel. He handed it right back and asked, "How many fan letters did you get this week, Pops?" I shovelled.

Skilled and unskilled labor available now for home repairing, redecorating and remodelling

It wasn't so long ago that many phases of business and industry in Canada had a tendency to hibernate, like the bear, until the cold weather was over. Seasonal unemployment was accepted as a natural by-product of the climate, as something no one could do anything about. It took the first sweet scent of spring to get these activities under way.

Now things are different. The number of jobs tackled in spite of the cold, increases every winter. More and more houses are built, and it is no longer a strange sight to see bricklayers, carpenters and roofers working in sub-zero weather. Large-scale construction projects are now closed in and work continues throughout the long winter months.

The construction industry is but one example of activity which no longer submits automatically to the onslaught of winter. In manufacturing, while layoffs still occur to some extent in the winter period, the practice of layoffs at this time on a traditional basis is becoming a thing of the past. The manufacturer is scrutinizing his operations to see if things which habitually have been done only in spring and summertime, can also be carried out in the winter.

Recently the Port Arthur National Employment Service office surveyed 30 employers in 10 seasonal industries in connection with this problem and results show that something can be done about reducing seasonal unemployment.

Already, remedies in operation include the following: the dovetailing of certain industrial operations, re-organization of production schedules, diversification of products or activities, stock-piling of raw materials and sometimes of finished products, deferring of maintenance or repair work until the slack season, and calling of tenders in fall and winter so that procuring of construction materials can be proceeded with.

The answer to this seasonal problem is not to be found alone in manufacturing and construction however, for no one is more important in the attack on seasonal unemployment than the householder.

Any painting and decorating planned for next spring or summer could no doubt be carried out just as well right now — to advantage, in fact, when one considers the well-filled labor market available as it is at present. Tradesmen, as well as unskilled workers, may be hard to find for a job only a few months from now.

Similarly the present labor market is of advantage to those considering home repairs, remodelling, overhauling, upholstering, etc. The "little things", too, mean a job for someone: Householders might as well have that cupboard built or that floor sanded now — and avoid a scramble for suitable workers in the "popular season" later on.

If industry, labor, employer, consumer and Government all work together to reduce seasonal unemployment, the desired result will be achieved. "Old Man Winter" can't be beaten, but the difficulty he causes can be alleviated. Every effort, however small, will mean greater prosperity to the community and greater stability of the national economy.

Take up the seasonal slack, put your plans to practice

Employment figures up in Argenteuil County

"Most heartening is the news that the dire prediction 'this community would face the worst winter for unemployment this year', has proven wrong. So far wrong indeed that winter unemployment has decreased by about 8% compared to last year," according to Jos. Santini, manager of the local National Employment Office.

As of January 31, 1965, 762 men and 158 women through the region of Lachute local office, were registered for work for a grand total of 820 applicants on the labor market, as compared to the same period last year when 811 men and 198 women were looking for employment.

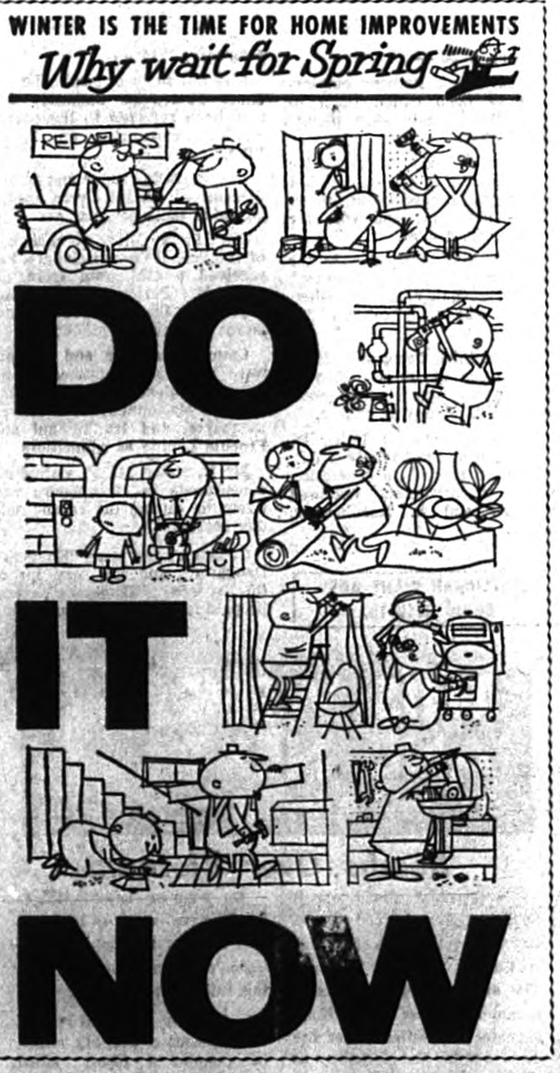
The National Employment Office is tabulating results of the "Do It Now Campaign". The results are most satisfactory and must be specially gratifying to those who take an active part in the Winter Employment Campaign including industries, business men and citizens in general.

It seems to be the fate of many important national campaigns that they tend to "die out" at the local level. This is unfortunate, but in many ways not surprising. There are so many appeals for help nowadays that it is understandable that we pass some of them by. An appeal to help 50,000 people in some far off land hasn't the impact of an appeal to assist just a few persons right here in our own community.

It is this fact that makes the local aspect of the "Do It Now" Winter Employment Campaign so important because, although what you do may have some bearing on Canada's economy, even more important still it is apt to have a direct effect on the livelihood of your friends down the street.

This is one campaign that should not "die out" at the local level. The benefits affect, not someone miles away, but the citizens that make up our community.

Do it now. That is good advice when it comes to work which can be done during winter months. Later on, in the spring, conditions will change and you may find yourself unable to get the job done.



Are you doing your part to help?

Merchants! Landlords! Home Owners! Are you doing your part to help the National Unemployment Service Winter Employment Campaign? Seasonal unemployment is everybody's business. It hurts the whole community. But, if we co-operate, we can all help to solve the problem.

Perhaps you plan to redecorate in the spring. Why not do it now when men are available? What about that repair or clean-up job that you have been planning? You can get the men now, and they may not be available when warm weather comes.

Look around and see if you cannot find some work that will give employment and that you can have done now. If we can find jobs for unemployed workers now the difficult period will pass with the coming of spring. Call the National Employment Service for additional information.

Please do it now!

Advertisers can fill your needs, serve you well

Every winter Lachute is faced by the problem of seasonal unemployment, and at this season the National Employment Service is running a campaign to find jobs for unemployed workers.

If we all co-operate in trying to provide work — in doing certain jobs now when men and materials are available instead of putting them off until spring when men will be scarce — we can help solve this problem. Remember, no community can be fully prosperous unless everybody is employed.

Have you any decorating or reconditioning to be done? Couldn't you undertake those repairs or alterations you are planning, NOW?

It is surprising how much work can be found if we all arrange to do those things now which we have been planning to do at some future date. If you know of a job, call your advertising tradesman on this page, who will be glad to fill your needs.

Prov'l tourist branch headquarters newly inaugurated in Quebec City

The Hon. Gérard Cournoyer, Minister of Tourism, Fish and Game, and the Hon. René Saint-Pierre, Minister of Public Works, jointly, inaugurated the building known as the Tourist House, at 12 Sainte-Anne Street, Quebec City. This is the name given to the historic edifice which now houses all the services that make up the Tourist Branch.

Ideal Location

During the course of their addresses, the ministers pointed out that the building was magnificently located, facing Place d'Armes, to render service to a large number of tourists and travellers. The majority of the tourists who travel throughout the province are motorists, and those who arrive in the ancient capital via Routes 2 or 3 or via the Trans-Canada Highway end up on Laurier Boulevard, Grande-Allée and Saint-Louis Street.

There can be no doubt about the importance of this location factor, Mr. Cournoyer pointed out, if one glances at the statistics. "In fact, our tourist information personnel on Sainte-Anne Street dealt with 67,282 tourists who visited our information office during 1964, compared with 47,816 during the previous year. This is an increase of 40.7 percent. During the months of July and August last, 44,241 travellers sought brochures and information at the Tourist House.

Magnificent Renovation

For his part, Mr. Saint-Pierre stressed the fact that, in addition to wanting to house the services engaged in promoting tourism in functional quarters worthy of "la Belle Province", the Public Works Department also wanted to contribute to the restoration of the old part of the city. The architects were able to give the building back its former appearance thanks to an excellent photograph dating from 1861 and to a drawing by Montreal engraver R. A. Sproule, representing Place d'Armes in 1832. Over the years, the building naturally had undergone numerous transformations, and no one will regret the disappearance of the colonade and turrets which masked the facade of the edifice when it was acquired by the Quebec Government.

During the renovation work, a remarkable stone arch was uncovered inside the building, and this arch now constitutes the main decorative element of the reception hall.

Under One Roof

The responsibilities of the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game, created at the beginning of April 1963, were divided into two large sectors, the Tourist Branch and the Fish and Game Branch, the latter being responsible for continuing the work which had been carried out by the former Department of Game and Fisheries (except in the field of commercial fisheries, which were placed under the Department of Industry and Commerce).

The Tourist Branch is composed of all the services which made up the former Tourist Bureau, except the development of roadside parks, which now comes under the Parks Division. In other words, it is responsible for all the direct instruments of information: advertising campaigns, brochures and other publications, participation in exhibitions, maintenance of permanent and seasonal reception centres, etc. The Hostelry Division also comes under the Tourist Branch, since the cuisine and the hospitality factors are of prime importance.

All the services of the Tourist Branch are now located at 12 Sainte-Anne Street, working under one roof. The result has been a better co-ordination of work and greater speed in its execution. An organization which in addition to its other responsibilities, is charged with the task not only of providing exact and speedy information to tourists, but also of providing newspapers, magazines and other publications on the continent with the photographs and travel features they need, must be ready to prepare and send out information very rapidly.

Historic Building

The Tourist Branch issue a 12-page brochure to all guests describing the origin of the building, construction of which was begun in 1805. It was to be one of the most active centres of social life in the ancient capital for almost a century. Construction of the building was completed in 1808, but it was inaugurated only three years later. It then bore the name of "Union Hotel and Coffee House".

The brochure recalls some of the social events of the day that were held in this building: concerts, recitals, etc. The building also served as a chapel for the Baptists of Quebec and as a temporary prison for American officers captured in 1812.

The complete history of the building is too long to be described here, but it should be recalled that, some twenty years ago, the Provincial Government and the City of Quebec maintained a tourist information counter on the ground floor of the building. A happy return to former times.

Prov'l government to classify all hotels, restaurants

Quebec — The Department of Tourism, Fish and Game is at present making a careful study of hotel and restaurant classification. The Minister, Hon. Gérard Cournoyer, in a recent speech delivered in the Laurentians, announced that such a classification would probably come into being within a few months. This is a question of vital importance to the tourist industry, especially in view of the rapidly approaching 1967 World Fair.

The task is a delicate one, and is generally carried out by private firms. This, for instance, is the case with the "Guide Michelin", published by a well-known French tire-making business. Obviously, a classification of quality standards cannot please everyone, especially among those it directly concerns, and could lead to accusations of preference. This is probably why, until now, neither hotel organizations nor Government agencies have been willing to have anything to do with classification.

"We can't back away from the job forever", said Mr. Cournoyer. "Our Tourism Branch already publishes an accommodation list", he continued. "This list is given out in an attractive, convenient booklet. However, all establishments are included in it, regardless of their nature and the services they offer. It is not a true guide for making travel plans."

A Montreal firm specializing in surveys, Les Cadres professionnels, Inc., has been commissioned by the Department to make a detailed survey of the matter and to submit suggestions. A formula based on the highest standards will be evolved from the survey data, from information already gathered by the Department's Hostelry Service, and from results of previous studies by the Tourist Branch.

Truck drivers rap car operators

Failure to signal properly, failure to dim lights, and close following or "tailgating" are the worst faults of passenger-car drivers, according to collective opinion of a poll of truck drivers who spend long hours on the road each week.

Among other errors common to passenger car drivers, say the truckers, are failure to pass a slow-moving car, excessive speeding, ignoring yellow or solid "do not pass" lines, crossing the centre line.

One of their most significant points was a strong desire for better law enforcement. One driver pleaded: "Let the police be seen."

Here are more things which make the big-rig drivers see red: no tail-lights, daydreaming at the wheel, drivers with children or dogs in their laps, lane straddling, stopping in a right-hand lane to make a left turn.

But the biggest sin in their eyes is tailgating. Truck drivers, supposed to keep their vehicles 500 feet away from others, grind their teeth when they become aware of a passenger car hovering close to their rear end. They have seen enough "run under" wrecks, where car tops are sheared off and passengers decapitated, to make them extremely nervous of tailgaters. So next time you're stuck behind a big truck, remember that its driver is just as concerned as you are. He sees you back there swishing about his tailgate. And he fervently hopes you'll stay out of his way, while doing his best to keep out of yours.

Postage stamp will honor Winston Churchill

Sir Winston Churchill will be honored on a special Canadian postage stamp to be issued late this summer, according to the Hon. John R. Nicholson, Postmaster General.

This will be the first time in the history of the Canada Post Office that a stamp has been produced to honor a person who was neither a member of the Royal Family nor a Canadian. Mr. Nicholson explained that Sir Winston's tremendous contributions to the Commonwealth and his many associations with this country were adequate reasons for a departure from normal policy.

August 12 has been chosen as the date of issue. It was on this day in 1941 that Sir Winston and President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Atlantic Charter. The signing took place aboard a warship in Placentia Bay, on the southeast coast of Newfoundland. The date also coincides with the first Quebec Conference, where in 1943 Sir Winston met with President Roosevelt and Canadian leaders to plan the prosecution of the war.

This makes a total of 13 new stamps to be issued in 1965.

The sparkling green of the great outdoors is in scarce supply at this time of year, but don't let that stop you from picture-taking.

In recent years, with the development of new high-speed films and versatile cameras, the amateur photographer is not limited to outdoor picture-taking only. In some instances you can even forget about flash and flood lights, and shoot black and white, or color, indoors with natural light.

Mother leaning down to caress the baby, junior playing with his toys, grandfather caring for his treasured collection of pipes — those are just a few of the hundreds of photos it's possible to take indoors. And, because your subjects may not even notice your taking of their pictures until after the shutter is snapped, you'll have honest, natural moods that would be difficult to achieve with floods or flash.

Natural light can take many forms. For example, it may be soft light from a nursery window, harsh glare from a livingroom fixture, or the glow of a single candle.

The intensity of natural light is sometimes tricky to judge. In some cases there is more light than you think and on other occasions there may be less. A light meter is particularly useful when shooting with natural light. It will give you a quick, accurate statement of light and a combination of settings at which to shoot the picture.

Many types of cameras can be used for this type of photography, but the 35 mm cameras, with their fast lens and speedy handling, are especially suitable.

When picturing people, try to have them stand so that light from a window falls directly on them. Consider, also, the color of the room: dark walls mean more exposure, light walls less.

Most natural light shots are made at low shutter speeds, where the slightest jar would blur the picture. So squeeze, don't punch, the shutter release. Keep a steady, firm grip on the camera. Better still, mount your camera on a tripod or hold it on a piece of solid furniture. Practice is the answer.

Be sure to take more than one exposure of each shot, varying the settings each time. That way, you'll have a margin of safety — and the certainty of getting the type of picture you want.

Quebec produces less than half its own beef. This fact bothers me, and that's why I took in the conference of the Meat Packers Council of Canada at Quebec City last week.

The opportunities for increased meat production in the east was the theme. The talks were excellent and fact-filled. We got a picture of a wide-open market, and optimistic long-range price forecasts. . . But no one spelled out clearly why there should not be more than just a "moderate increase" in beef production in Quebec in the years ahead.

For the coming year, R. G. Marshall from the University of Guelph forecasts no great change in prices. Marketings will remain at a high level. He said that cattle numbers are no longer building up, but it may be a year or two before these adjustments are reflected in a major upswing in cattle prices.

But the longer term outlook is very bright. "Raising our sights beyond the next year or two, we have reason to start reaching for the rose-colored glasses," he said. "The long term prospects for the cattle industry appear to be almost that of having the cake and eating it, too."

Prof. Marshall commented on the large increase in the number of Ontario feedlots. "Corn, coupled with new management practices, appears to be the prime mover," he said.

The extent of the present Quebec market was thoroughly surveyed by W. W. Lasky, General Manager of Canada Packers. While the human population in this province is 28.9% of the total, Quebec produced in 1963 only 11.7% of the Canadian production of cattle. "We estimate that there are shipped into Quebec province each week from 8,000 to 10,000 carcasses."

"It is in the major urban areas that the largest deficiency exists," Mr. Lasky said. "Here the chief demand is for the Red and Blue brand top butcher steers and heifers and top quality cows. There is also a demand for processing types of beef to supplement the Quebec production."

Speaking of grades, Mr. Lasky noted that only 12.4% of Quebec production graded Red or Blue brand, while 50.2% was canner cows. This is a reflection of the dairy character of the Quebec industry.

In veal, Quebec produces an important surplus. In addition to the traditional outlets in Ontario, New York and the Maritimes, sizeable quantities have been exported to Europe in recent years. The demand is for a light-colored, milk-fed product. Mr. Lasky sees a wonderful opportunity for improved quality production.

In summarizing, Mr. Lasky said, "If the economics of producing larger quantities of beef and pork are sound, there is a large market right on the doorstep."

Later in the program, Dr. Ernest Mercier, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, outlined the policy of the Quebec Government.

Dr. Mercier said, "The authorities of the Department of Agriculture and Colonization do believe beef cattle raising should be moderately emphasized in Quebec.

"The livestock production and the agricultural economy of the province is already centred on dairying. The dairy cow brings in from two to four times more income per year than the beef cow does. The farms are small, The climate is suited to dairy farming.

"However, there are possibilities of developing larger farm units suitable for beef production in the Abitibi and Temiskaming districts. The department has undertaken a beef cattle development program in these two districts to provide feeders for the Montreal region.

"The farmers engaged in the production of special crops should not only purchase feeders from Northwest Quebec but should also feed cross-bred beef x dairy animals."

So these are the market possibilities and the official reasons why the market won't be filled. Perhaps, as someone said, the beef industry will have to wait until we have learned to grow feed cheaply and in excess of the needs of the dairy industry.

Quebec road map marks anniversary in C'dn history

Quebec — Each year, the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game, when reprinting the Quebec road map, choose a subject which marks the anniversary of an important event in Canadian history to illustrate the cover of this publication. Last year, for example, the theme chosen was the conference held at Quebec in 1864 during which the basis of Canadian Confederation was laid.

This year marks the 300th anniversary of the arrival in Canada of Jean Talon, the first intendant of New France to come to the shores of the Saint Lawrence, and of the Carignan-Salières Regiment.

Armed with wide powers, Jean Talon went to work to make this colony self-sufficient. He promoted livestock breeding, the growing of flax, stimulated the fisheries, established industries, promoted mining and opened up a naval shipyard. The Carignan-Salières Regiment was sent to Canada to fight the Iroquois, and some of its officers, once retired, were granted seigniories and thus contributed to the growth of the colony.

Talon did not wait to arrive at Quebec to begin his mission. He left his ship along the Beaupré coast and undertook to personally visit each of the settlers in the region. Artist L. R. Batchelor, in one of his paintings preserved at the Public Archives of Canada, shows the intendant as he visited one of the first homes in New France, and the cover of the road map will be drawn from this picture.

"We wanted the 1965 edition of our road map to recall this phase of our history", explained the Minister of Tourism, Fish and Game, Hon. Gérard Cournoyer, "because Jean Talon's years in America, according to the most serious historians, can be considered as the golden age of New France."

WHAT A BREAK FOR YOUTH!

With each week that passes prospects for centennial celebrations are becoming more promising, yet if they were to achieve little more than move young Canada from one coast to the other over the next few years through the sponsorship of the Student Exchange Travel Program, Canada's one hundredth birthday will have been honored in a most suitable manner.

A report on my desk informs me that hundreds of young people who took part in the pilot program have written to express their enthusiasm for the opportunity to know Canada better, which their 1964 travel and inter-provincial visits afforded them.

When you try to analyse it, the project seems like a colossal undertaking. The objective however, to establish a better understanding among Canadians, is to be commended.

Details of how this youth travel adventure was launched are interesting. Early last year, Milton L. Sinclair, CN passenger sales representative in the Ottawa ticket office, was asked to prepare individual itineraries for the students who would participate. At the same time, he prepared 3,000 sleeping car tickets for those who would require this accommodation. Together the railways and Claude Brouillard, project planning officer for the youth travel scheme, planned each move in detail.

Fourteen section cars were assigned and the first travellers to be chosen were organized in groups of 24 accompanied by two chaperones. The program will be expanded and it is expected that by the end of the centennial year some 30,000 teen-agers will have benefitted from the exchanges.

1964 Pilot Program Dual Scheme

On the one part, the Centennial Commission, which is the federal agency responsible for promoting interest in the centennial celebrations and for planning and implementing programs and projects befitting the occasion, awarded grants totalling $92,750 to some fifteen national organizations already engaged in youth exchange programs, so that they might expland their activities in this field.

The second aspect of the program involved a federal-provincial arrangement whereby 936 high school students travelled to provinces other than their own in 1964. Under this scheme, the federal government undertook to pay the travel costs from point of departure to point of arrival and return, plus a $20 contribution to the provinces for each towards reception costs. The provincial government, on the other hand, agreed to look after the selection of participants and chaperones, to find host families for the visiting students, and to arrange interesting programs and side trips for their guests.

The Centennial Commission also arranged special one-day programs for groups stopping in Ottawa while en route. Cabinet ministers and Members of Parliament were invited to meet their young constituents whenever possible. The Commission also prepared and distributed evaluation questionnaires to all participants and provided each of them with an attractive travel bag bearing the inscription "Centennial Travel/Voyageurs du centenaire."

To those young people who will be privileged to participate in this great travel adventure we echo the wishes of the Centennial Commission and the CN, "Bon Voyage".

Plan pleasure from window boxes

By A. R. Buckley,
Plant Research Institute, Ottawa

It's too bad that many people don't know what beautiful effects may be obtained by use of window boxes in various designs and combinations. Those few who do practice the art rely on the conventional plantings of petunias or geraniums and never vary their choice of plants from one year to another.

Good, well-planted window boxes not only provide enjoyment to apartment dwellers or other plant lovers with no gardens, but also serve as an over-all embellishment of the community.

Garages and offices, too, should make use of the window box or hanging basket not only to help toward a more beautiful area but to improve business relations.

The size of the window box is usually governed by space available, but a box shouldn't be used at all unless it can be deep enough or wide enough to accommodate plants. A good size is 10 inches at the top and 8 inches wide at the bottom and 6 to 8 inches deep. Wider and deeper boxes are better but they are sometimes too cumbersome if they are longer than three feet.

Use cured board or waterproof plywood not less than ¾ of an inch thick. Thinner boards are apt to become warped and are less likely to keep out the heat of the sun, which is a factor to consider when the window box is in full sunlight.

A number of half-inch holes spaced 6 to 9 inches apart in two rows should be drilled in the bottom of the box to provide drainage. Use a wood preservative for treating the wood but select one that will not harm plants. Some preservatives such as creosote might prove to be harmful. The box may be painted on the outside but not on the inside unless painting is done well in advance of planting. Fresh paint is harmful to plant roots.

Boxes may be lined with a light metal but should never be built entirely of metal. A metal box, especially in midsummer will become so hot you cannot touch it and the plants inside may be literally cooked. However, a large metal box with a wooden plant box placed in it is ideal. The inner box should be placed on a shallow layer of gravel so that drainage is unaffected. Such a box will not drip or dirty the window sill.

Supports for window boxes when they are to be attached to buildings should be substantial enough to prevent any possibility of being torn out. When these boxes are full of soil they are very heavy and people have been seriously hurt from falling plant boxes.

Planters or window boxes attached to the house present other problems. They are often made without provision for drainage and consequently the soil becomes sour after a very short time. Therefore drainage with stones or bricks must be added before the box is filled with soil.

A fool and his money are soon invited places.

Hoist at Brownsburg —

Two-year special tax to pay surveyor's bill

Brownsburg residents can expect an increase in taxes when they receive their 1965 bills. On February 15, Town Council approved a special tax of 30 cents per $100 of evaluation for two years, beginning in 1965, for the purpose of paying the outstanding bill of $26,835 to the firm of Delorme & Carrier for surveying done, and for plans made in 1961-'62 for the installation of a water filtration system which was rejected in a plebiscite in 1964.

This bill has remained unpaid while the Council has unsuccessfully attempted to arrange for Mr. Delorme to attend a Council meeting to discuss the amount of the bill. Several members of the Council felt that the surveyors had done more work than their original contract had stipulated, and that the final bill should be reduced by 25 per cent.

Further discussion among the Council members, however, revealed that the Council had failed to give adequate instructions to the surveyors, and that they had not, in fact, over-stepped their contract. Secretary-treasurer Vincent Charbonneau reported that Mr. Delorme had advised him that this was the final bill, and that he (Mr. Delorme) was too busy with other projects to attend a Council meeting. Thus, Council approved the special tax which, in two years, will pay the bill.

Other Business

In other business, Council made an offer of 20 cents per square foot to Mr. Sylvio Labelle for a piece of property on the corner of Bank and Lafleur Streets. The purchase of this property would enable the town to lessen the turn on Bank Street and to build a sidewalk along that street. A decision on the offer is expected before the March 1st meeting.

Council, after hearing estimates from Mr. Elmer Campbell, approved the replacement of the box on the town's Sanivan with a steel box and a hoist. The changeover, which will cost less than $2,000, will provide the municipality with a practically new truck.

Mayor James Donaldson reported that railings would be installed at the town hall, at a cost of $234. The railings will have one-inch posts with five-eighths-inch vertical bars, of which each second bar will be twisted.

On a motion by Councillor Gerald Vowles, Council approved the purchase of a new 4½' x 9' Maple Leaf flag from La Compagnie d'Auvents des Marchands Ltée, Montreal.

Council also approved the purchase of a new Smith-Corona typewriter, costing $256.50, from Walker-Kingsbury Inc., Lachute, for the office of the secretary-treasurer.

Stole automobiles for joy-riding

A 19-year-old resident of the Dalesville area was arrested last week by local Q.P.P. officers and charged with the theft of six cars in the Lachute vicinity — all of which were recovered, as they were used only for "joy-riding". The accused appeared in St. Jerome court on Friday last, and was sentenced to 15 days in jail.

Rural blaze ousts family, six children

A farm dwelling on the St. Jerusalem road was burned Saturday night, and the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Guy Poirier and their family of six children, were homeless as the result of a blaze which started in an oil heater.

Details of the fire were learned from neighbors, Dr. and Mrs. Geo. Coombes, who live about ¾-mile from the site. This couple, approaching their home around 10 p.m., saw smoke and the glow of fire. They drove to the neighboring dwelling, and about the time of their arrival, the house burst into a mass of flame. Mrs. Poirier had aroused her six children and hustled them outdoors. The youngsters (the eldest only eight years of age) were standing scantily clad in the snow and sub-zero weather, when Dr. and Mrs. Coombes took them to their home and gave them shelter and hot drinks.

Mr. Poirier, the father and husband, was in Lachute and, hearing of the blaze, enquired of the local police and fire headquarters to learn the whereabouts of his family. Police went to the scene, sometime after midnight, but in the meantime the mother and her six children, bundled into a car with blankets and warm clothing, had been conveyed by Dr. and Mrs. Coombes to the home of Mrs. Poirier's parents in Montreal.

The property was owned by Henry Coogler, of Laval West. Previous owner was Lawrence Lachapelle, watchmaker and jeweller of Lachute. Only the two chimneys of the frame house remain standing, and the loss is only partly covered by insurance.

Armed robbery, theft, gambling cases in court

Two 19-year-old district residents recently pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery in a Staynerville restaurant, the theft of a lawn mower in Grece's Point, and the theft of $700 in cash and merchandise from a home in Brownsburg. Sentence will be handed down in St. Jerome court on March 5.

Five local residents, including the proprietor of a small restaurant, were recently arrested by local Q.P.P. officers and charged with gambling. All were released, and will appear in St. Jerome court at a later date.

Fines, permits suspended; drivers in two fatalities

The drivers of vehicles in two separate accidents, who on January 13 were found criminally responsible at coroner's hearings, were last week sentenced in St. Jerome court after both pleaded guilty to the charges.

Sylvio Ouellette, a resident of St. Janvier, was sentenced to a fine of $150 and his driver's license was suspended for six months, in a case resulting from the death of Gérard Cloutier, 43, of Lachute. The accident occurred December 15 on the road to St. Andrews East.

According to evidence presented at the inquest, Mr. Cloutier crashed into the rear of Mr. Ouellette's truck, which had stalled partially on the highway to St. Andrews East, a short distance from the Lachute limits. The truck carried a load of hay, and stalled while turning into a driveway. Witnesses testified that the truck was angle-wise on the highway; it was without lights, and was on the road for a considerable length of time prior to the accident, which occurred at 5.30 p.m. Prior to having been held criminally responsible by the jury, Mr. Ouellette had been charged under the motor vehicle act with failing to provide adequate warning at the site of his stalled truck, and for not having such warning devices on his vehicle.

A similar sentence was handed down in the case of Valdis Rulicofs, 45, a resident of Montreal, and in addition to the $150 fine and six-months license suspension, an additional three-month suspension of permit was given for an impaired driving charge.

Mr. Rulicofs was charged in connection with an accident which led to the death of Miss Maria Lundon, a 46-year-old native of Finland and long-time resident of Montreal. The victim was instantly killed during the late afternoon of December 24 near Green Lake, when the car driven by Rulicofs swerved out of control near White's Restaurant and rolled down a steep embankment. Mr. Rulicofs testified that after the mishap he climbed the hill and waited 45 minutes for a passing motorist who rendered assistance.

Deadline March 1 for new plates

Cpl. J. P. Dallaire, of Provincial Police headquarters, asks publication of due warning to car and truck owners — that Monday next, March 1, is the deadline for new license plates. Owners of vehicles failing to comply with the deadline, will be subject to intervention of traffic officers in this area of jurisdiction.

Century-old citizen at Rockway Valley

The family and friends of Mr. Emery Boyer gathered at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Croft, of Rockway Valley, last Saturday evening to celebrate his 100th birthday.

Says Mr. Boyer, "Many things happen in one century," and he has indeed the right to affirm that he has witnessed more "history-in-the-making" than most people. Born February 22, 1865, in Prescott, Ont., Mr. Boyer has lived through the wars that have shaped our present world. But to this he can add the years of peace which have separated these troubled periods. Well can he remember the early growth of Canada as a nation, the years that led to her increasing maturity, as he looks forward to seeing her Centennial year in 1967.

Photographed only a few years ago

When Mr. Boyer married Hélène Godin in 1891, they moved to Rouge Valley, where he spent most of his life on a farm. Like the Old Testament patriarchs, Mr. Boyer has seen several generations grow into the family tree. With nine children (of whom eight are still living), 50 grandchildren, 158 great-grandchildren, and 20 great-great-grandchildren, he is truly a New Testament patriarch. Left to mourn his wife in 1944, he went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Croft, his present home.

When asked to account for his longevity, he joyfully replies with any number of quotes from the Bible, which is his source of strength. Says he, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Few are the men of such a ripe age to whom young people will go with enthusiasm for practical advice and find understanding.

His relatives and friends salute Mr. Boyer ("Grandpa") on this notable occasion.

Lachute District Shrine Club active

40-Year humanitarian record in work of Shriners' Hospitals

A highlight of the Karnak Temple's history was the receipt of a recent proclamation from the Imperial Potentate, O. Carlyle Brock, of Chicago, making 1965 "Canadian Shrine Hospital Year", in recognition of the 40th anniversary of the opening of the first Canadian units of the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children in Montreal and Winnipeg.

The proclamation points out that more than 16,500 children have been cured or aided materially by these two Shriners' Hospitals, and that the nine Temples of Canadian Shriners have contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars and an untold number of hours of service.

The proclamation closes by asking support of all members of the Shrine organization in Canada to further acquaint the Canadian public with the wonderful work of the Shriners' Hospitals in ministering to the needs of crippled children.

The Montreal Unit of the Shriners' Hospital is naturally much better known in these parts, and here the variety of religious faiths presents no problem, anymore than does the color of the skin. Being situated in the Province of Quebec, it is natural that approximately three-quarters are of the Roman Catholic faith. Religious leaders of the various persuasions visit the wards regularly, and are made most welcome.

During the past five years, the Lachute District Shrine Club has sponsored no less than eight children, who have received treatment and assistance in the Montreal hospital, and there are several more who are scheduled to enter the hospital for free treatment within a short period of time. The percentage of Roman Catholic patients from this district appears to have been much higher than the provincial average; to date, every one of the crippled children sponsored by the local Shriners had been of that faith.

Shriners' Hospitals all specialize in the tratment of little crippled and financially handicapped children. At these hospitals any child under 15 afflicted with a congenital deformity (club feet, hip dislocation, spinal curvature, absence of limb, multiple digits, etc.) or any other deformity or disease requiring orthopedic surgery, is treated without charge, regardless of race, color or creed, providing the child is normal mentally and the parents or guardians are unable to bear the financial burden of treatment.

Monday through Friday, the school-age children, with books under arm, in wheel chair or bed, attend school in one or other of the modern class rooms where studies, in English or French, are maintained during their hospitalization. In hospital, the goal is that of "one big happy family" and this is easily attainable, so much so that the children generally view their departure with regret.

Individuals, groups or organizations wishing to visit the Shriners' Hospital in Montreal are requested to contact any member of the Lachute District Shrine Club.

High official speaks at local function; commends support of Lachute Shriners

The 9th annual Valentine Dance sponsored by the Lachute District Shrine Club was held in the Masonic Temple on Saturday, February 13, and members of the organization reported an excellent turn-out of citizens from the surrounding area, as well as from Montreal and other centres. The dance was held under the chairmanship of Donald Heggie; this year's president is Colin C. McOuat.

Walter E. Montgomery, the Illustrious Potentate of Karnak Temple, Montreal, was invited to address the gathering, and following are extracts from his remarks:

"While the Shriners' propensity for having fun is well known to the public, it should be known that there is no activity of any Shrine Temple or Shrine Club that does not reflect their intense interest in what has come to be called over the years, 'The World's Greatest Charity' — and I refer to the group of 17 Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children spread over the entire North American Continent. Of these, two are located in Canada, one in Winnipeg and the other right here in our own jurisdiction in Montreal, of which your club here in Lachute is such a staunch supporter.

"In addition there are three Burns Institutes being built in Boston, Cincinnati and Dallas, so that the charitable work of the Shriners can be expanded to include medical research into childhood burns, which occur so frequently and are so devastating to the child and a severe financial burden to the family.

"The Shrine, with 835,000 members, often is called 'The Playground of Masonry'. An Imperial Potentate of the Shrine characterized the Shrine's bouyant philosophy this way: 'Pleasure without intemperance, hospitality without rudeness and jollity without coarseness'. And if another concept is ever added I am sure it will be 'Charity without Fanfare'.

"The Shriners who participate in the famous Shrine parades and administer the Shrine circuses and football games, all carry with them the vision of little children who will know happiness because of their efforts.

"I am deeply grateful for the personal support you have shown to our 'Hospital on the Hill', through which the Lachute Shriners have over the years been able to sponsor and help so many children from this area without any expense whatsoever to their families.

"So next time you see the red fez of a Shriner in a parade, let it remind you that the two Canadian hospitals since their inception 40 years ago have passed through their portals 16,400 little Canadian children of all faiths and from every province, who have been returned to their homes to pursue useful lives — which except for the help of the Shriners, would have not been possible."

The Montreal Karnak Temple has just signed a contract with Frank Wirth of New York City for the Shrine Circus to appear again this year, starting May 22nd at the Forum. This is the 26th consecutive year the Shrine Circus has performed each spring at the Atwater Avenue showplace.

Died suddenly at Mille Isles

The sudden death of a young Mille Isles citizen, Gerald Pollock, 26 years of age, occurred Saturday while he was working on an oil-burning heater in his garage. Coroner Dr. J. C. MacKimmie was notified here, and when asphyxiation was ruled out as cause of the young man's death, it was believed he had succumbed to a heart seizure or other natural cause. The body was brought to Lachute, and an autopsy was later ordered.

Mis-impression on water impurity

A formal letter from the Department of Health to all municipalities, was read at the Council meeting recently. The report on this reading was mistaken as a general warning to all consumers to boil their drinking water at this season — which sparked various enquiries to the County Health Unit here.

This warning does not apply to Lachute, Brownsburg or any municipalities with a controlled water supply; and it is regretted that readers gathered this impression. It applies to water systems which, through mid-winter shortage of supply, might be drawing on additional sources of water unapproved by the health authorities.

The Lachute system supplies no water which is not filtered and chlorinated, and therefore the warning has no application here.

Sentenced for assault, robbery

Gontrad Lapierre, a St. Jerome resident, was last week sentenced to spend time in jail, following his conviction for assault and robbery on a St. Jerome taxi driver.

The incident occurred in Mille Isles in early January, and charges were laid by the local Q.P.P. detachment.

Vandalism attributed to teen-agers; guards posted at school-crossings

Six youngsters of the Lachute district have been picked up and questioned by municipal police in connection with in excess of $450 damage to parked cars belonging to MacDonald's BA Service Station. The acts of vandalism occurred some time towards the middle of last week, to cars parked in the yard of the former army drill hall on Robert Street. Several others are being questioned by Capt. Réal Chartrand, who is heading the investigation. The persons questioned range in age from 10 to 15 years.

The Lachute United Church was again entered by miscreants on Monday afternoon, but little damage of any consequence was reported. (Another such incident was reported at the Baptist Church).

School crossing guards have been hired by the Lachute Council for the St. Alexandre and St. Julien Schools. The guards will be stationed on the corners of Barron-Grace and Hamelin-Wilson. The action follows continued efforts by Capt. Réal Chartrand to have these two school crossings protected. No decision has been made on the crossing patrols continuing their duties for the afternoon periods.

By BOB ATCHISON

The latest news on the Whooping Cranes is good. As some of you may know, one of them, a young male, had a broken wing. Now there is an excellent chance he will be able to fly again. The crane (named Ganus) was placed under an anaesthetic and underwent a three-hour operation, his wing was pinned and wired together by steel wire. This is the first time such an operation has been attempted. It will take many months of treatment and therapy before the bird is fully recovered. Normally the wing would have been amputated, thus ending his flying career, but as there are so few of these birds surviving, it was decided to perform this operation; the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife were the people who arranged it. . . Wonderful to think of this bird being able to live naturally once more.

Some of the local bird feeders have been wandering out into the bush to give the birds around an extra treat. Naturally, with this poor walking weather not much distance was covered, but at least some seed was scattered, along with some suet sticks. I watched a very funny thing the other morning coming down into town. You know just how slippery it is, so you can imagine how bad it would be to try and navigate a steep slope like the one on the other side of the river. Well, two partridges tried this, just as I was coming along, and I don't think I have seen anything as funny for a long time. It was hard to say if these birds were walking or sliding, one thing will be sure, they are going to be bare on the rump after that jaunt. They couldn't even get traction on the ice to start flying. I imagine I could have walked right up on them. They didn't like it one bit, either.

Now this is another bird story, and I like it. Imagine throwing out a slice of bread; you know the centre is picked out of this before anything else. Now imagine a big fat pigeon latching on to this. He picked it up by the crust, started to fly away with it, and ended up with a collar around his neck! Jerry Dunne was telling me of this, and he says the pigeon was so startled it just about shut off all engines at the time, and only after a great deal of fluttering did it manage to get up to a roof, where a lot of time was spent in getting the collar off.

A couple of weeks ago, I mentioned the new 350 being put on the market by Remington. At the time I said it was a 358; this is not so, I goofed. I have more information on this gun, sent along by Ron McLeod of Remington. It is known as the Remington 600 Magnum Carbine. The literature on this is revealing. Take the ballistics: a 200-grain bullet at 300 yards, the velocity is 1,730 feet per second, the energy or hitting power is 1,325 pounds; in the 250-grain it is a shade slower, but a much harder hitter, velocity is 1,660 at 300 yards, slower than the 200-grain, but it hits at 1,530; some wallop. The overall length is 37¼ inches; the woodwork is all laminated. . . This appears to be some brush gun; with weights in bullets of this grain and calibre, nothing will deflect it, unless it is a mountain itself. I hope to try it out very shortly, so will have more information then.

I think most of you have heard of or used Sealy fish hooks, and know them to be good. For fly work they are tops, and I've seen many imitations. This company is now going into the reel business. They have been developing reels for the past three years, and are now putting them out on the market. Much the same as the Duco B, or the Ambidex, all for spinning. Naturally I have been very interested, and have finally seen some of them. Quality workmanship, along with top materials, will all contribute to good fishing. They are, as all English rods, changeable from left to right hand wind with very little work. I know, of course, you can buy reels for a left or right-hand person, but all for the same price you get this ambidex type; it's for me. These types of reels (spinning) have been used in England and Europe for many, many years, so you can forget about this claim that the Americans were the first to make them; this is not so. These reels were originally designed for thread-line fishing, that is, extra light lines, from a ¼ lb. up to 4 lbs., and that was the heaviest. I know one of the better fishermen in this area uses nothing but 2-lb. test. All you have to do, is ask Dan Simmons how he likes these very light lines, and you'll get a big surprise. Of course, you don't use the 2 lbs. to throw your lures out at first, you must have a shocking line ahead of this, that is, a line capable of taking a sudden shock as the lure goes out, so splice on a piece of 4 or 6 lb. line, about 20 feet of it, to the 2 lb. That should end all your worries about your baits. Try it.

Another very fine product for the fisherman, is an extension net, and this is a very good outfit. The rod on the handle extends out about 4 feet, making, in all, a handle of about 8 feet. A good boat net, and not too heavy, something that has been needed for a long time. Of course, you know there are plenty of new lures too; some of them will scare the hell out of any fish for sure! I spotted some Bass Bug poppers that were doozies; powered with a very small battery, they are supposed to wiggle in the water, without going forward. Boy, it's getting to be a sorry state of affairs when you can't even wiggle your own baits! There is also a reel that has no spool, you just use the line spool that comes with the product when you buy it; made in Canada, too. I don't know just how this would work; maybe it's a good buy.

As usual, the ice fishing is good in this area; some excellent catches of perch and pike are being taken. With the weather getting a little warmer during the daytime, it's a very nice pastime. One thing that may be of some use to you — as you all know, the glare of the sun on the ice can give you a severe headache, so if you have sun glasses, better take them along the next time you go out. In every report sent out by the government, our fishing has been getting better each week; this also applies to other areas, of course. Especially Missisquoi Bay, where some good catches of doré have and are being taken. Incidentally, a lot of bass have been caught — Rock, and even one Large Mouth; not to say anything of the Calico — plenty of these have been showing up.

Squirrels are really in evidence these days, and they hit the feeders hard. When they are around the birds have little chance, but I don't think they will mind too much for this time. I haven't seen any of the black variety, that were so numerous at this time last year; where they might have gone I don't know.

* * *

I had a call the other day about a little hen canary that keeps laying eggs. From information I have been able to gather, there is nothing that can be done for this. Every once in a while a hen canary will do this; so far there seems to have been no cure — not even mating seems to help. I thought possibly the shortage of cuttle bone might clear this up, and was told that this does help the odd time, but not too often. The cause seems to have nothing to do with a shortage in diet or anything like this.

LACHUTE 1884 CURLING CLUB

Sitting behind the plate glass, the elder curlers have had a tendency to shake their heads and exclaim, possibly with memories of past achievements, that competition curling today is strictly for the younger man. The House of Seagram, by introducing their new bonspiel, have deprived the head-shakers of the excuse by which they consoled themselves. The first annual National Seniors' Curling Championship for the Seagram's Stone is now underway. This competition requires that the minimum age of competitors will be 55.

The response from the Centre, which includes Lachute, was not exactly overwhelming for this first year. Let us hope that the results of the current bonspiel will attract a larger entry in future years. Rinks from Thurso and Lachute played the deciding game at the Brownsburg Club on Thursday evening of last week. The Lachute rink — Linton Armstrong (skip), Don Hay, Edgar Pollock and George Muir — were the victors. There are four divisions in the province, and the next phase of the bonspiel for the home rink will be the round-robin playdowns of the Montreal division, which will be held on March 4-5-6.

Carl Rodger, Doug MacKenzie, Les Cheslock and Don Parker were runners-up for the Centre in the "Colts" competition. The final game was played in the Brownsburg Club on Friday evening. Their opponents, a rink from Alexandria Club, won with a score of 13 to 12. Condolences; better luck next year!

During the past week Lachute has been well represented in the following bonspiels — Lancaster Mixed, Montebello Granite Mixed, and the men's bonspiel at Ste. Agathe.

The "Pat Lid" and the Club Championship bonspiels are now in progress at the Club.

Hockey highlight next Sunday

In the Sunday (2 p.m.) hockey tilt at Brownsburg Arena, which is listed as a carnival attraction in that community, the Lachine Beavers will meet the Lachute Brownsburg Bombers in their final game of the Laurentian Senior League schedule.

The local team holds second place at this stage, while Lachine is fourth. The Lachine management however is optimistic for a win on Sunday — with key players, who have been laid off with injuries, back on their line-up. . . This should be an interesting feature for local fans, as a prelude to the league play-offs.

On Saturday, February 13, a giant slalom for Juniors was held, with great success. The children taking part in the season's Racing Program were prominent in the winners' list. Mr. Don Penington, of Hawkesbury, chairman of the racing committee, did an outstanding job of organizing and running this program.

Wynn Jones of Lachute took top honors, with Vernon Thompson of Brownsburg placing second, a full 2.4 seconds behind the winner. In the girls, Carolyne Summers of Brownsburg led the field, with Susan Sugden taking second position, 2.6 seconds behind.

Following is a list of the standings:

Boys, 12-16 — Wynn Jones, 2 Vernon Thompson, 3 Marc Racine.

Girls, 12-16 — 1 Carolyne Summers, 2 Susan Sugden, 3 Debbie McCaffrey.

Boys, 9-11 — 1 Michael McCaffrey, 2 Bill Lapp, 3 David Brousseau.

Girls, 9-11 — 1 Janice Humphries, 2 Patsy Chambers.

Boys, 8 and under — 1 Robby Reade.

Girls, 8 and under — 1 Andrea Thompson, 2 Wendy Reade, 3 Joan Siversky.

This past Saturday night was a big occasion for the Ski Club. A movie was presented by the rewnowned ski cinemetographer, John Jay. The film, titled "Persian Powder", took the members on a tour of the Persian Alps; Teheran, the capital of Iran; Taos, New Mexico; Mt. Snow, Vermont; Vail, Colorado; Aspen, Colorado; and many other ski areas around the world.

The evening was rounded out with a meal at the Ski Center and a torchlight parade down the mountain, put on by the Ski Instructors and Ski Patrol. All in all, this second social event of the season proved to be a big success, with a lot of credit due to Bill Jones and Guy Leger, of Lachute, and their social committee, and to Dow Brewery for the loan of the film.

Ski Tips

Many skiers have the problem of falling quite frequently while skiing on steeper terrain than they are used to. I would say their problem would fall into two main essentials of skiing. Most skiers when they get into a slope they can't handle, have a tendency to sit back on their heels and lean into the hill. The first case causes the skis to run out from under the skier, and he cannot get forward again to regain his balance. In the second case, when a skier leans into the hill, the tendency is for the weight to be placed on the uphill ski, which is against all the principles of physics.

The next time you have a chance to see an instructor descending a steep slope, take a good look at his body position and you will notice he keeps his weight toward the tips of his skis over the balls of the feet, and he leans over the downhill ski, away from the hill.

If skiers would keep these principles in mind, they would never again lose control or fall on their skis.

Ladies' curling

On Thursday, February 18, the Dudley Kerr Trophy bonspiel was played by two rinks from Lachine versus two from Lachute. The Lachute teams, skipped by Pearl Comba and Lena Bradshaw won by a combined total of 20, against 18 by Lachine. The next game in this bonspiel will take place on Thursday, the 25th, at the Alpine Club, which has challenged Lachute for the trophy. The Dudley Kerr is a bonspiel for players who have been curling for five years or under. . . Good luck, Lachute.

The Wilson Spoons bonspiel stirred (ugh) up a lot of exciting games, and the finals which took place on Friday, 19th, produced a real "storm in a teacup"! The rink skipped by Jean Stein, with Annie McFaul, Amy McMahon and Ruth Hamilton, won against Elinor MacKimmie (skip), Vi Clarke, Bobby McFaul and Elma Riley. There was a good turnout to witness the finals, and tea was enjoyed by all at the close.

Don't forget the monthly meeting, which takes place in the clubhouse on Monday March 1, at 2.30.

The Match Committee bonspiel is now in progress.

CURLING
Activities in Brownsburg

With Carnival Week in full swing and the Mixed Curling going on, the spectators at the club have been treated to some fine exhibitions of the game. Don't forget to take advantage of "open house" this week, and come up to watch some of the games.

Last Saturday employees from branches of the Bank of Nova Scotia held their annual bonspiel at the club — 48 curlers taking part in this bonspiel, which was run off in three sections. Many favorable comments were heard on the excellent condition of the ice and the fine dinner, served by the ladies in the kitchen. The winners, all from the "Scotia Curling Club of Montreal", were:

"A" Event — H. Richardson (skip), G. Bouthillette, W. Carmichael, F. Hocquard.

"B" Event — H. Legallais (skip), Mrs. Legallais, F. Baillie, W. Penny.

"C" Event — E. Belliveau (skip), G. Castonguay, R. Gagnon, M. Broekstra.

The second Club Competition, a knock-out and consolation with "thirds" skipping and "skips" playing lead, saw Mrs. H. Hewitt skip her rink to a win on February 15, with Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. W. C. Morrow, and Mrs. A. Hardie.

The Consolation winners were Mrs. W. Dimock (skip), Mrs. R. Sugden, Mrs. D. Graham and Mrs. S. Rose.

The Vice-President's bonspiel, played in two sections, is now underway, the play-offs to take place March 1.

On February 25, Mt. Bruno will meet Brownsburg on local ice for the Ted Thompson Trophy.

March 2 will see the start of the Challenge bonspiel between the Business Girls and the Afternoon Curlers. This is a keen competition, so be sure to sign up for it.

The Men's Senior and Junior bonspiel saw Gerry Tomalty (skip), G. Gagne, D. Troop and J. Duncan come up on top for the Seniors, and J. Lemay (skip), H. White, P. Cumbers and D. Smith for the Juniors. These games saw many spectators behind the glass, and a repeat next year is a must.

Cub curling is turning out to be most popular, and the young fellows don't seem to get enough of it. Harold Hewitt has been working like a beaver to make it a success, but he is hardly a "Paul Bunyan" and he does not happen to have a Blue Ox to help him; so how about a few volunteers to assist Harold in clearing the ice at the Social Club after snowstorm? . . . In the Canada Schoolboy curling held in Fredericton recently, Quebec did not do too well. With a little co-operation from the community Baloo, what are our hopes in "La Belle Province" in the future?

Redcaps triumph in tug-of-war

The St. Philippe Redcaps took the honors in Ste. Monique in a tug-of-war tourney, eliminating Ste. Monique, St. Janvier, and St. Jerome. . . The Redcaps hope to retain their title in an engagement billed for March 7 next in St. Philippe.

Magic Tom, celebrity of TV, emcee for local talent show

"Magic Tom" Auburn of Channel 12's "Surprise Party" is a busy man, but not so busy that he could not make a personal appearance at the Lachute High School auditorium, coming Saturday, March 13, to perform for the audience and act as master of ceremonies for the local Talent Show.

This event is being sponsored by Unit 5 of Lachute United Church Women. The committee in charge reported that, last Saturday afternoon, a total of eighteen acts were auditioned in the church as a try-out for the coming Talent Show. It is expected that all these acts will be featured in this portion of the program, to include a variety of singing, dancing, and musical instruments.

The main star of the show is no stranger to TV viewers, nor to many residents of this area, as "Magic Tom" has been a summer resident of Lake Barron for a number of years.

It has been said there is an aura of magic about this man — not the magic of "bunnies-in-the-hat", but the magic of a child's face when in his proximity.

Tickets for the event are now on sale; admission is 50 cents for children of school age or under, and 75 cents for adults. All children of pre-school age must be accompanied by an adult.

How It Started

"Dunninger's Magic Book" and a bout with scarlet fever at the age of eight, more or less started things rolling for Magic Tom. As he grew, his skill with magic grew, and in 1939, Tom was booked into the Tic Toc Club, a long-vanished Montreal night-spot. Then came World War II, entertaining troops, and, at the end of the conflict, Sergeant Tom Auburn was back in civvies and back to the world of show business.

Theatres, supper clubs and CBC-TV's "Fun Time" filled the remaining years; then came CFCF-TV and "Surprise Party".

A non-smoker and a non-drinker, Tom is married with two children, Darlene (17) and Byron (13). Tom is honorary president of the Montreal Chapter of the Society of American Magicians, and was instrumental in the organization of the local chapter of AGVA, the American Guild of Variety Artists.

Magic Tom Auburn, once quizzed about "Surprise Party", called the show "my biggest challenge yet". The adults and youngsters who know him seem to think this challenge has been more than met!

Week's Activities

By Sandra Hall

A familiar topic to everyone lately is our new flag. Probably the final decision made on our Canadian flag was the most important step in this new era of Canadian history. B.H.S. has also publicly received the new "Maple Leaf."

On Wednesday, February 17, the Women's Institute of Brownsburg, represented by Mrs. Mason Crosby, Education convener, and Mrs. C. Prosser, president, presented our principal, Mr. J. Leggitt, with the new Canadian flag. The presentation took place at the beginning of the Home & School Association's regular meeting. A large number of teachers and parents were in attendance. During the presentation Mrs. Crosby and Mr. Leggitt each spoke briefly on the subject of the flag.

Students of B.H.S. will also be a part of this historical event. On Wednesday, February 24, Mrs. M. Crosby and Mrs. C. Prosser will again visit the school. At an assembly for Grades 1-7 the flag will again be presented. The honored guests will no doubt discuss the meaning and significance of the "Maple Leaf" with the students.

As planned, the snow sculpturing was judged at B.H.S. on Friday afternoon. The judges must have had considerable difficulty as the competition in the elementary grades was quite keen. The results showed Grade 3 as the first-place winners. Their exhibit of "Old Woman in a Shoe" surrounded by little people was very well done. They worked under the direction of Mrs. Burk, their teacher.

Second place in the contest went to Grade 5-B, for their earnest work on a "Canoe and a Voyageur". Mr. Keith Armstrong, their teacher, capably supervised the work. Both grades will receive, as a reward, an ice-cream party, compliments of the B.H.S. newspaper, "The Triumph".

Although the students in Grades 3 and 5 were the winners of the contest, pupils in the other elementary grades also deserve praise for their earnest efforts in snow sculpturing.

Carnival Week is well under way, and B.H.S. hopes that everyone finds themselves in the Carnival spirit.

A ski meet was held at Mont Ste. Agathe on February 15 for high school students in the area. A team consisting of six boys and six girls was sent to represent our school in the racing, and since the occasion took place on a holiday, it was decided to take up a busload of other interested students. Although we did not rank in the competition, everyone had fun skiing on unfamiliar trails.

Last Wednesday, our school hockey team played against Grenville at the local arena. The game, which could not be called exciting, ended 20-6 in our favor. This Wednesday both our hockey and broomball teams will play against l'Ecole Bouchard as part of the Carnival Week activities.

On Friday afternoon, all pupils in grades one to nine were excused from school to take part in the skating races at the nearby rink. After the racing was over, the students were permitted to skate until four o'clock.

A local citizen, Mr. Hewitt, has taken it upon himself to build a small curling rink beside the Social Club. The rink is to be used by school students under the age of 14; that is, those who are too young to join the high school curling program at the community rink.

In basketball this week, the Brownsburg seniors played host to Ste. Agathe. The girls' game, which ended 55-7 in Brownsburg's favor, was fairly slow and unexciting. Susan Sugden, Linda Tomalty and Bonnie Anderson were the high scorers with 22, 12, and 8 points, respectively.

In the senior boys' game, Brownsburg had a slight lead at the end of the first quarter, which was increased to 63-19 by the final whistle. Winston Dixon headed the Brownsburg attack with 24 points, while Wayne Seary and Marc Racine added their share with 14 and 10 points, respectively.

On Saturday, the Ottawa Valley School and Athletic Association held the junior girls' basketball tournament here in Brownsburg. Four teams (Lachute, Brownsburg, Rosemere and St. Eustache) were entered in the competition. After a slow start, Brownsburg finally downed Rosemere 31-10 in the first game... Then Lachute defeated St. Eustache 42-32... The third game, or losers' match, was won by St. Eustache 33-28... Then the final championship game was played between Brownsburg and Lachute. In the first quarter B.H.S. pulled ahead. Their lead was further increased during the next two quarters. Lachute made a last effort in the fourth quarter, and for a while it seemed that they would catch up, but time ran out with Brownsburg ahead 59-48 — and the tournament champions of the O.V.S.A.A. league.

February activities reported by Argenteuil County W.I. branches

Arundel — Members of this W.I. branch answered the roll-call by naming "a favorite chore you would like to have your husband help you with". The meeting took the form of a Valentine party with games and contests enjoyed. Arrangements were made for a July bazaar. Discussion was held on the choice of a play to be put on at the meetings. A sewing class is to be held in March.

Brownsburg — This meeting was under convenership of the Education Group, who had for their speaker, Mr. John Rutherford, chairman of the local school board and a member of the Laurentian Regional School Board, who gave an enlightening talk on the need of a Regional High School. Films correlating this talk were shown by Mr. John Leggitt, the school principal. Arrangements were made for the annual meeting and banquet in March. A donation was sent to the Retarded Children's School.

Dalesville - Louisa members discussed a forthcoming play, also chose a nominating committee. Complaints concerning some food products to be brought before the Consumer Section of the C.A.C. were discussed. The roll-call was answered by each member producing their lunch done up in Valentine boxes; these were auctioned, the proceeds going to Women's Institute funds.

Frontier branch had as their guest speaker Mrs. Agnes Morrison, who spoke on "Antiques". Seven new members joined this branch. Plays were discussed, and decided upon.

Jerusalem - Bethany. — The roll-call at this branch was answered by each member giving her choice of vocation, if she were today a teen-ager. A talk was held on TV broadcasting.

Morin Heights — The Nominating Committee was selected at this meeting. Ladies from the branch helped at the Red Cross blood clinic at St. Sauveur des Monts.

Pioneer. — Two films were shown at Pioneer branch, "The Quality of a Nation" and "The Queen's Plate". Tickets were distributed among members for a drawing of an oil painting. Cheer packages and Valentine cards were sent to shut-ins.

Upper Lachute - East End members answered their roll-call by showing a home-made Valentine. Winner of the best Valentine was Mrs. K. Hanley. An original play was heard, written by Mrs. Rigby, to be worked on for the drama contest. The ladies held a "quilting bee" in January, and two more are to be held this month.

District NEWS

FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Arundel

Mrs. Frank Davis and Mrs. Roy Staniforth were delegates to the third annual meeting of the Presbyterial of the Montreal U.C.W., held last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Carslay and family, and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kitts and family, of Ste. Rose, were week-end guests of Mrs. Frank Davis.

The Laurentian Lodge No. 81 will hold their next monthly meeting in their new Temple. Friends wish the organization success in their new location.

The Rouge River Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion held a successful old-fashioned sleigh drive last week. After the drive a bean supper was held and a special bingo brought a delightful evening to a close.

U.C.W. Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Arundel U.C.W. was held last week, with the president, Mrs. Frank Davis, in charge. An interesting program was held under the leadership of Mrs. Gibbons, who had prepared a quiz on the book, "God and His Purpose". Refreshments were served, bringing the meeting to a close. The hostesses were Mrs. Robert Allan, Mrs. Jensen and Mrs. Leslie Cooke.

Day of Prayer

Lady readers are reminded that the World's Day of Prayer will be observed in the Arundel United Church on Friday afternoon, March 5, at 2.30. The speaker will be Mrs. Jessie McNeil.

Successful Ice Carnival

The annual ice carnival was held on Friday evening last and, despite the cold weather, there was a gala crowd to enjoy every minute of this event. The costumes were varied, some amusing and some beautiful. After the judges had decided on the winners, all adjourned to the school, where the Carnival Queen was chosen, in the person of Miss Patsy Courte.

A pie-eating contest created much merriment, and was won by Mr. S. Swail. Altogether there was fun for everyone, and "a good time was had by all." Refreshments brought the evening to a close.

The judges were Mr. Wm. Barton, Dr. Flanagan and Mrs. J. Boyd. (It is hoped to publish the list of prize-winners in next issue.)

Bell Falls

Mr. Nathan Arthurs, of Toronto, and Miss Carol Arthurs, of Montreal, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Arthurs; they also attended the funeral of their grandfather, the late Mrs. Joseph Arthurs, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Campbell are on a trip to Niagara Falls to visit Mrs. Campbell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Doug MacLeod.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brunet spent the week-end visiting in Ottawa.

Miss Donna Eastwood spent the week-end visiting Miss Ann Staniforth in Harrington.

The sympathy of this community is extended to the wife and family of the late Mr. Joseph Arthurs, who passed away at his home on Wednesday last, after a long illness.

Friends wish a speedy recovery to Mr. Ernest MacRae, following his painful accident with a snow motor; he is a patient in the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury.

Mr. Reg Page, of Ottawa, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Page.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of a dear sister, Ella, who passed away Feb. 26, 1955. — Ever remembered by Harvey and Janet.

"Memories keep you ever near"

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of a dear sister, Ella, who passed away Feb. 26, 1955. — Sadly missed by her sister Faye, and brother-in-law, Bobby.

"Like falling leaves, the years slip by,
But memories of you will never die."

DIXON — In loving memory of Howard, who left us Feb. 29, 1964. — Lovingly remembered by Foster and Muriel.

"There's a smile we will always remember,
A voice we will always recall,
The memory to cherish forever
Of one so dear to us all."

SEARY — In loving memory of Mother, Charlotte Seary, who died Feb. 21, 1945; also Father, Michael Seary, who died March 9, 1964. Always remembered — The Family.

"Softly the leaves of memory fall, Gently we gather and treasure them all."

STEWART — In fond and loving memory of dear Mother (Nellie Bertha), who passed away March 1, 1965. — Always remembered by her daughter, Catherine.

"A little prayer keeps me in touch
With a wonderful mother I loved so much;
Your memory, dear Mother,
will never grow old,
It's locked in my heart with letters of gold."

TASSE — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away Feb. 25, 1961. — Always remembered and sadly missed by Catherine and Ruby.

"Fourteen years seem a long time, Dad,
Since you were called away;
But to those who love and miss you
It's just like yesterday."

WARD — In loving memory of a dear wife, Laura, who passed away Feb. 28, 1961. — Ever remembered by her husband.

"The world changes from year to year
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I loved
From memory pass away."

WARD — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Laura Ward, who passed away Feb. 28, 1961. — Lovingly remembered by daughter, son-in-law, grandchildren; Velma, Bud, April, Terry, Judy.

"Her memory is our keepsake
With which we'll never part,
God has her in his keeping,
We have her in our heart."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

HALE — The family of the late William John Hale wish to extend their sincere thanks to the Royal Canadian Legion, the Lachute Masonic Lodge, and numerous friends, for kindnesses extended them in their recent bereavement.

MacDONALD — Mr. William MacDonald and family express sincere thanks to relatives and friends for messages of sympathy in the passing of a dear wife and mother. Also for beautiful floral tributes, cards, visits and attendance at the funeral. Special thanks to Miss Heather Bates and Mrs. Eulene Barnes, of Smith Clinic, for being so kind to Mrs. MacDonald.

Textile plant is new industry at Alexandria

Alexandria — Canada's newest textile operation was officially opened at Alexandria, Ont., just recently when Viateur Ethier, MP for Glengarry-Prescott, pressed a remote control button to start production of Square C Textiles Ltd. plant.

The company is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Consolidated Textiles Ltd., of Montreal, producers of synthetic and blended fibres.

The new plant will have two operations, one a weaving plant for producing synthetic fibre fabrics, and the other a dying and finishing plant. The operations are segregated, and total work space exceeds 95,000 feet.

The plant now employs more than 100 persons, and 200 are expected to work there by the end of the first year. Alexandria district residents make up 90 per cent of the employees. They were trained during the fall under the government training program for the unemployed.

Location of the plant in an excess-labor area, as designated by the federal government, qualifies the company for benefits such as tax incentives.

Plan $13½-million CIP expansion '65

Montreal, Feb. 10 — E. B. Hinman, president of Canadian International Paper Company, has announced the company will undertake a $13,500,000 program of capital expenditures in mills, plants and woodlands divisions throughout Canada during 1965. This brings the total for capital expenditures in the last four years to $45,000,000.

CIP and its subsidiaries operate in all provinces and employ 14,000 people on a permanent basis in their coast-to-coast activities.

More than $11,000,000 will be spent for major projects of a capital nature in mills and plants, with an additional $2,000,000 earmarked for CIP's woodlands operations. The company's pulp and paper mills in Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick share in a joint program totalling $8,000,000.

The converting and allied operations of CIP, including Facelle Company Limited in Toronto, together have projected expenditures of $3,500,000.

Ex-Navy personnel organize clubs

We, the Royal Canadian Naval Association (RCNA), are looking for ex-naval personnel to start Naval Clubs in their towns or areas. Do you like to have your own clubrooms, friendly get-togethers, Naval reunions with your ex-shipmates — bring along your wives or sweethearts for an evening or week-end of entertainment? Well, you are the men and women we are looking for.

We have Naval Clubs from Halifax to Vancouver, and we require more and more. We grow stronger every day and hope to grow as strong as other Veteran organizations. If you are interested and would like more information on starting your own club, please contact the following:

Pee-Wees downed at Quebec

News came through from Quebec on Tuesday that the Pee-Wee entry from Lachute in the international hockey tournament at Quebec Carnival were defeated that day, by 10-2. It happened their opposing team was from Guelph, a much superior entry in the series.

District members attend U.C.W. Presbyt'l meeting

Eighty-five churches were represented by over 850 women at the third annual meeting of Montreal Presbyterial United Church Women. The president, Mrs. B. K. Wasson, led the meeting, held last week in Wesley United Church, N.D.G.

The evening session was a joint meeting of Montreal Presbyterial U.C.W. and members of the Montreal Presbytery, an occasion which has not been duplicated in the past. The guest speaker was Rt. Rev. E. M. Howse, moderator of the United Church of Canada.

During the afternoon business meeting the reports of officers and committee chairwomen of the Montreal Presbyterial Executive were reviewed.

Miss Phyllis Haslam, of the Elizabeth Fry Society, Toronto, spoke on "Our Responsibility to Today's Teenagers". Teens feel that adults look only at their minority who are unable to conform, and do not credit their majority for their accomplishments. She reminded the ladies of the tremendous capacity for service of these teenagers. The most significant lack in the lives of teenagers today is "love", she said.

The dinner speaker, M. L'abbé Jean Martucci, is the secretary-general of the Christian Pavilion, Expo '67. He reported the aim of the Pavilion is to indicate the presence of the Church in the World. The Pavilion will not be a triumph of churches, he declared, it will rather be the church proclaiming Christian witness to the whole world. It is anticipated that thirty million visitors will explore the Pavilion, a tremendous and complicated co-operation of seven churches.

The evening service address was given by the Moderator. Dr. Howse reviewed the role of women in religious life from the days of the Old Testament, to New Testament, to Modern Times. The challenge of the church today cannot be met without the women. Men and women cannot be two segments of the church, he reminded. They are one, a company committee.

From This District

The election of officers was conducted by Mrs. A. A. Morrison, the president of Montreal and Ottawa Conference United Church Women. Mrs. C. Duncan, of Lachute, was elected regional vice-president of the Ottawa Valley Region.

Representatives from area churches included — Mrs. E. McFaul, Mrs. G. Muir, Mrs. E. Pollock, Mrs. W. H. Thompson, Mrs. George Paul, Mrs. J. R. McOuat, Mrs. James Bates, Mrs. M. McAskill, Mrs. G. Gordon, Mrs. M. Evans, Mrs. George Deacon, Mrs. A. Taylor, Miss J. McArthur, all of Lachute.

Mrs. F. B. Davis, Mrs. R. Staniforth, of Arundel.

Mrs. Howard Elliott, Mrs. Arthur MacAllister, Miss Sadie McOuat, of Brownsburg.

Mrs. Roy Williams, Mrs. P. Phillips, Mrs. G. Watchorn, Mrs. L. Kilpatrick, Mrs. E. Kneeland, of Morin Heights.

Mrs. Frank Davis, of Arundel, took part in the "Echoes of 1964" reporting on a special program for youth held in the Arundel Church. Mrs. Lyle Kilpatrick, of Morin Heights, told of a school lunch project.

Wed in Ottawa

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Andrew Rathwell Morrison following their marriage in the Chapel, Ottawa Civic Hospital, on Saturday, January 30. The officating minister was the Rev. J. A. Winters. The organist was Mr. Leonard Foss. The bride is the former Mary Wainright Lowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Lowe, of Kemptville, Ont. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Edward Morrison and the late Mrs. Morrison, of Lachute. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. T. A. R. Stanley, and her niece, Miss Grace Stanley, of Edwards, Ont. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. David Jones, of Arundel, Que. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison are making their residence in Ottawa.

— Jehovah's Witnesses —

How well do you know the Bible?

Could you tell the story of the Bible, from beginning to end, in such simple, modern language that even a child could understand it? That is just what you will find in the book —

FROM PARADISE LOST TO PARADISE REGAINED.

Besides, the book is so beautifully illustrated, you could almost relate the account from the pictures. Get your copy today; price only 75c. — Ask any one of Jehovah's Witnesses you may happen to meet.

Nadon-Seary nuptials at Brownsburg Catholic Church

The marriage of Gail Constance, daughter of Mrs. Iola Seary, and Gilles Nadon, son of the late Mr. Albert Nadon and of Mrs. Sam Bayles, took place January 30 in the St. Louis de France Catholic Church at Brownsburg.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Joe Cumbers, was in a floor-length gown of white silk organza and Alençon lace, fashioned with a fitted bodice appliquéd with lace, having a scoop neckline, and elbow-length sleeves. The bell-shaped skirt had panels of Alençon lace, with back fullness falling into a short train. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held by a spray of lily-of-the-valley, and she carried a single red rose.

Mrs. Gaetan Girard, as matron of honor, was in a gown of cerise velvet. She wore a matching velvet circlet and carried a bouquet of carnations.

Little Miss Lynn Girard, as flower girl, was in a bouffant frock of cerise velvet. She wore a matching velvet circlet and carried a basket of carnations.

Mrs. Seary, the bride's mother, was in a mallard blue knit dress. She wore a black ostrich hat, black accessories and a corsage bouquet of carnations.

The reception was held at the Brownsburg Legion Hall, where the tables were decorated with red roses. Mr. Bradley Seckar, of Toronto, proposed the toast to the bride.

Following the reception, the happy couple left for the Laurentians, the bride travelling in a cerise velvet dress under a grey faille coat with a sapphire mink collar. She wore a velvet petal hat in cerise tones, black accessories and a corsage bouquet of white carnations. They will reside in Brownsburg.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Norman Cameron, of Manacouagan; Mr. Bradley Seckar, of Toronto; Miss Carol Ann Amos, of Aylmer; Mr. and Mrs. Jean Maurice Lalonde, of Hawkesbury; Miss Janice Connelly and Mr. and Mrs. William Boa, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morrissette, of Masson; and Mrs. Yvette Grand-Maison, of St. Placide.

Day of Prayer observance here in Angl. church

(Contributed)

The greatest privilege afforded to mankind today is fellowship with Almighty God. We may come to God, through the most powerful name in heaven or on earth — Jesus, His son, who came to be our Saviour and wield the mightiest weapon ever known — prayer. God is the One who holds this great universe in His hands and under His control, and yet He invites mankind to come and commune with Him, not only in times of stress and trouble but in our joyous accomplishments as well.

For 38 years the Women's World Day of Prayer has been held on the first Friday of Lent. On this Day of Prayer, March 5, 1965, women in six continents and in a hundred languages will be asking in the words of the Theme, "What Doth the Lord Require?" Although answered by Micah, the prophet, almost 3,000 years ago, God's requirements are still the same today — that we be just and kind and live in quiet fellowship with God — the greatest privilege afforded. Why do we not make use of this privilege today and see what God can and will do?

This World Day of Prayer service was written and prepared by Mrs. Pearl Walker McNeil, a gifted and distinguished American Negro woman, whose husband, the Rev. Dr. Jesse Jai McNeil is minister of Metropolitan Baptist Church, Pasadena, California. In recognition of her exceptional service in various fields of co-operative endeavor, at home and abroad, Mrs. McNeil has been awarded many honors and distinctions. Participation in this service should be a blessing.

Locally, the service will be held in the St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute, under the direction of the women of the People's Church, with all the churches taking part, on Friday, March 5, commencing at 2.30 p.m. All are welcome.

Papineau chosen for welfare study

Calgary — The Canadian Welfare Council has just concluded an agreement with ARDA (Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Administration) to undertake case studies of families in four low-income rural areas of Canada, as part of its long-range study of poverty in Canada.

Reuben C. Baetz, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council, said that the four regions to be studied are the Interlake area of Manitoba; Lanark County in Eastern Ontario; Pontiac, Gatineau and Papineau Counties in Western Quebec; and Inverness County in Nova Scotia.

"A good deal of statistical material has already been gathered', Mr. Baetz said, "but in this study we will be employing the 'photographic' approach — the 'slice of reality'. We are going to get right into people's homes, find out from them what their economic and social opportunities are, how they feel about their situation, and what they are doing, or plan to do, about it. Then we can relate this information to the statistics and, hopefully, make some contribution to an understanding of what poverty is and how better to deal with it. As much as possible we will work with local and provincial agencies throughout."

The work will begin immediately. Interviewing will begin on March 15 and the final report will appear by June 30.

Regional study directors for three of the areas have been appointed, two of them from the staff of the Canadian Welfare Council. Dr. Marie Hamel, executive secretary of the French Commission of the Canadian Welfare Council, will be regional study director for the Counties of Pontiac, Gatineau and Papineau. Dr. Hamel, who is also editor of the Council's French-language magazine Bien-être Social canadien, is a graduate of the University of Montreal and the University of Ottawa.

Earns promotion in transport firm

A former Lachute citizen, Arthur Gauley, has been appointed terminal manager for McKinlay Transport Ltd., at their Ottawa terminal. With some 15 years' experience in the transport business, "Art" Gauley has served in different capacities including long-distance driving, maintenance and dispatching. Before joining McKinlay Transport in 1961, he served a number of years with Boyd's Express Ltd., in Lachute. He is the holder of Safe Driving Awards from Markel Insurance and the Transportation Safety Association of Ontario.

Mr. Gauley succeeds Russ Trenouth, who has been transferred to a larger terminal at Windsor, Ont.

'Transportation Tomorrow' is topic at Rotary Club

Rotary Club members were addressed by Mr. E. W. Wakefield, representative of Canadian Pacific, Montreal, at their recent meeting at La Lorraine Motel.

Speaking on the subject "Transportation Tomorrow", Mr. Wakefield said that it is his opinion that the railroads will play the leading role in the transportation of the future. Comparing the railways' ability to carry two and three times as much traffic at one time as other modes of transport, Mr. Wakefield pointed out that the transfer of heavy trucks and the movement of new automobiles from factories to destination on rail cars would make the highways safer for the private automobile, and less costly for governments to maintain.

He referred to the many changes that might be expected in rail transportation during the next few years, including oil-fired-gas-turbine and atomic powered locomotives, containerization, as well as additional improvements in freight car equipment, plus other innovations.

The speaker also referred to Bill C-120 which incorporates the major recommendations of the MacPherson Royal Commission on Transportation, now before Parliament. "If enacted", he said, "it will constitute the first important step to place the railway industry, for the first time in 75 years, in a position where it can compete in a commercial environment". "Competition, not regulation", he said, "must be relied upon to achieve efficiency in the transportation of tomorrow".

Referring to the future of the air industry, Mr. Wakefield said that beyond the still-to-come era of supersonic commercial air travel is the prospect of hypersonic flight. "There is", he said, "the possibility of global rockets capable of vertical take-off and of carrying 170 passengers and 18 tons of cargo at 17,000 miles an hour 125 miles above the earth." "Such rockets," he said, "are envisaged as having four decks, each equipped with 43 individual passenger couches". "During a few minutes of the half-hour flight from Montreal to Tokyo, for example, passengers would experience weightlessness, but their couch belts would prevent them from floating around in the rocket". "The most distant point on the globe", he continued, "would be reached in 45 minutes".

Mr. Wakefield also referred to the DC8 and the increase in air-cargo, which he believes will continue to expand in the coming years.

Mr. Wakefield concluded his address by stating: "Canadian Pacific still has confidence in the future of Canada and its ability to provide a full range of transportation today, tomorrow and in the years to come".

60th Anniversary at Rotary meet this week

The 60th anniversary of the founding of Rotary will be marked this week by the Rotary Club of Brownsburg-Lachute, who will be hosts to the Hawkesbury Rotary Club, with Rod Dewar, of Station CJAD, Montreal, as guest speaker.

President Phil Grant, in announcing the club's anniversary meeting, said, "The local Rotary club joins a world-wide celebration planned by more than 11,800 Rotary clubs and 560,000 Rotarians in 127 countries. The occasion will be marked by men of diverse languages, religions, and political beliefs, but with a common bond in the Rotary ideal of serving others."

The first meeting of the world's first Rotary club was held on February 23, 1905, in Chicago. It brought together the founder, Paul Harris, a lawyer, with three of his business acquaintances: a mining engineer, a merchant tailor, and a coal dealer. In the early days of Rotary, it was agreed that only one representative form each business or profession in the community would be admitted, a principle of membership that continues today.

As its 60th year begins, Rotary is growing at the approximate rate of one club a day. The organization's notable growth indicates the strong appeal of Rotary fellowship and service to men of different vocational backgrounds.

APPRECIATION

I would like to express my sincere thanks for the farewell tea given for me by Mrs. Omer Gagné and Mrs. Peter Cruise. I also extend my appreciation to friends and neighbors for the lovely gifts.

Brotherhood Week, February 21-28 —

"Are we not all one?"

A COMMITTEE of the Commons is endeavoring to frame a law to prevent dissemination through the mails of hate literature without infringing on civil liberties and the right of free speech. The task is a formidable one and, unfortunately, even if all the legal obstacles are surmounted, not much will have been accomplished.

The fact that such a law is considered necessary is a forlorn admission of the susceptibility of humans to this particular type of venom. It is an admission that Canadians are not propaganda-proof when it comes to racial and religious bigotry. Unfortunately, this is true.

The only reason certain demented groups spend time and money sending hate literature through the mails is that many people read it and in some it produces the desired result. In far too many of us there seems to be a strongly developed tendency to believe the worst of other races and religions, no matter how implausible the allegations against them may be.

This is why the situation can never be corrected by legislation. Even if it proves possible to stop the circulation of hate-mail, no government will ever find a way to prevent the spreading of bigotry by word of mouth. The only true defence against such poison is for each individual to immunize himself against it. This requires honest soul-searching and an earnest resolve to cleanse the heart of spiritual grime.

There is no better time than the observance of Brotherhood Week (February 21-28) to undertake such self-examination. If we concede that we are not qualified to question the wisdom of the Creator in putting on earth peoples different to ourselves, where can we start the process of accepting them as brothers?

The longest journey starts with a single step, and the first moves in the conquest of bigotry are simple enough. Most decisive step is to vow never to repeat rumors or gossip obviously manufactured to put other races and religions in a bad light. Those who relay such gossip to us should be told in no uncertain terms that they are offensive. This takes courage but it makes the thoughtless purveyor of gossip think twice.

A great deal can be done with children, who have no built-in prejudices but tend to assume those exhibited by their parents. They should be encouraged to cherish friends of any race, creed or color and in their own homes, at least, should never hear a word of hate or disparagement spoken against any other race or religion. By this alone great strides could be made toward the goal of a true world brotherhood in a single generation.

During his visit to India late last year, Pope Paul asked a group of leaders of oriental religions, "Are we not all one in this struggle for a better world?"

We aren't — yet. But we could be.

To boost Canadian exports

CANADA'S economic health depends heavily on sales abroad. Boosting manufacturing exports is one of the main preoccupations of the trade department.

With this end in view it is offering a bargain-price deal for industries to exhibit their wares at 45 foreign trade fairs this year.

For the companies, the requirements are easy. All a firm has to do is to make its products available for exhibit at a fair, man its display booth and pay 25 per cent of the floor-space rent for the display. A firm's contribution rises by 25 per cent each year for subsequent displays.

The trade department ships the products, sets up the display and brings home any unsold products.

Another approach consists of specialized trade missions. At least 27 such missions will be sent abroad — or brought into Canada from other countries — as part of the department's drive in 1965 to open up new markets for Canadian goods.

The importance of exports, especially of manufactured goods, was pointed up by the recent report of the Economic Council of Canada. It said failure to increase them could cause serious balance-of-payments troubles.

The council says manufactured exports advanced at an annual average of 1.3 per cent a year. But this is not enough, the council warned. Exports of manufactured products should be climbing at a rate of 10 per cent annually.

Canada's deficit on trade in goods and services was $557,000,000 in 1963. It is expected final figures will show a deficit of about the same amount for 1964.

Any moves to wipe out or reduce this deficit balance should be welcome to the business community. But surprisingly enough the trade department has found many firms haven't any great enthusiasm for the trade fair proposition.

Until a few years ago, said a departmental spokesman, most firms had to be dragged "protesting and screaming" into exhibiting. Now interested firms are lined up waiting to go into certain shows. But others still require a sales pitch by the department.

The outcome of the drive to boost Canada's exports will be watched with interest by government officials as well as by the business community.

"Get-it-done" approach needed

AS RESPONSIBLE citizens, Canadians should inform themselves to the greatest possible extent on all important aspects of political principles, programs and processes. Canadian businessmen should participate fully in the selection, nomination and election of candidates to public offices at all levels of government and be prepared to serve. All citizens should demonstrate interest in the activities of elected representatives. These sentences are drawn from a Canadian Chamber of Commerce statement entitled "Political Participation".

A similar view about the role of businessmen in political life was recently expressed by the Hon. George H. Hees, president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, in an address to the University of Western Ontario School of Business Administration. Mr. Hees said economic matters are among the most important which are dealt with by parliament, and men with practical experience in industrial and commercial matters are far too few in parliamentary ranks. He warned that if business does not make it possible for more enlightened debate to take place on matters which are of vital concern to all business enterprises in this country, they must then accept full responsibility for legislation which will hinder rather than help our industrial progress.

Business opinion does get before government and parliament through the efforts (briefs, appearances before parliamentary committees, etc.) of the Canadian Chamber and other business organizations. There is a lot to be said, however, for the suggestion by Mr. Hees that more businessmen should actually be in parliament on the receiving end of these presentations. If this were the case, there might well be a more practical "get-it-done" approach to the problems of the day. Not only are businessmen interested in economic problems but they are equally conscious of the need for dealing intelligently with social problems. Evidence of this attitude is contained in this excerpt from the Chamber's 1964-65 Statement of Policy: "Substantial social betterment depends on healthy competitive enterprise. The responsibility of business extends to proposing and promoting sound solutions to social and public problems."

A Lesson From Trinidad

Those Canadians who fear the country is breaking up should look south to another British federation — the islands of the West Indies. There's a lesson there for Canada.

I have just returned from a swing through some of the islands of what was the West Indies Federation. They have traditionally had close ties with Canada and there have been frequent suggestions that they could one day become a Canadian province.

By Air Canada jet it's only five or six hours to most of these places and every winter many thousands of Canadians holiday there in the sun.

In Trinidad, where I spent most of my time, Canadians are active in the oil business, newspaper publishing, banking and hotel-keeping.

This is an island of some 850,000 people, mostly of either Negro or East Indian descent. It is by no means an undeveloped country. It has the fourth highest living standard in the western hemisphere, health and educational levels are comparatively high, and wages for native workers are good.

But Trinidad has a crushing unemployment rate of better than 14 per cent. One-third of the jobless are teen agers and unless Trinidadians learn to control the sizes of their families the unemployment rate can go nowhere but up as more young people go into the labor market.

Trinidad's basic problem — and this is repeated throughout all these islands of the sun — is that secondary manufacturing is almost non-existent. A government-sponsored industrial development corporation is working hard to promote local industries but so far there is neither the skilled management or trained working force that is needed.

Despite its rich soil and lush climate, the island cannot feed itself and food imports run to $50 million a year.

To a Canadian, it's a fascinating and colorful place. The capital, Port of Spain, lacks none of the modern amenities for visitors, good hotels, interesting shops, intriguing night clubs and of course those ever-present symbols of Trinidad — calypso singing and steel bands.

Trinidad, now an independent nation of the British Commonwealth following the break-up of the West Indies Federation, is governed by a Negro party, Dr. Eric Williams' People's National Movement. It's semi-socialist, mildly anti-American, and has the firm support of the country's influential labor unions.

The opposition party is supported mainly by East Indians. Here there is thus some of the same racial tension which has recently gripped neighboring British Guiana, although the situation in Trinidad is not nearly so serious.

What's the lesson in all this for Canada?

I asked everyone I talked to whether the Federation — it included Jamaica, Barbados, Antigua, Trinidad and other islands — would ever come back?

It was universally agreed that it should and would — but not under the present generation of political leaders. They sacrificed the Federation for short-term local self interest, and with it went the chance of an economic and political unit large enough to be meaningful in today's big power world.

Seven of the smaller islands are now talking of a local confederation, and there's hope that a common market might emerge among all the Caribbean states except Cuba.

But be it an island or a province, we now know that the road alone is hard, and that it will get harder as big technology and big markets become more and more the key to economic well-being.

THE SNOW THAT DIDN'T STAY

It's years ago, but
I still remember
That snowstorm yet —
one late November.
The Pessimist said:
"This snow will stay!"
The Optimist said:
"Won't last a day!"

The South wind blew and it turned to rain.
All of that snow went down the drain.
They came to me for some sound advice
For I'm an expert on snow and ice.

The North wind blew and the snow came down —
With fifteen inches all over town.
The lakes and rivers were frozen fast.
But I said wisely:
"This snow won't last!"

"How do you know?"
the Optimist cried.
"Because I'm a prophet,"
I replied.
The Pessimist said:
"I bet you, Boss,
As a profit, you are a total loss!"

The snow, (which stayed till the eighth of May)
Was entirely gone
by Dominion Day.
So that's how it was I won the bet.
The Optimist's talking about it yet!

Be seein' ya!

— By BILL SMILEY

Doctors Give Him A Pain

A couple of experiences recently have confirmed something I've long suspected. People spend far too much time going to the doctor. Most doctors would probably agree.

My wife, who could go 12 rounds with Cassius Clay and not breathe hard, goes to the doctor about twice a month. He says, "Well, you're certainly looking in fine fettle", gives her a bottle of pills and sends her about her business.

My experience with doctors has been on two levels, the social and the professional. Socially, you can't beat them. They like a drink, a good story, good company. Professionally . . . well, let me tell you.

Just after the war, the medical profession told me I had tuberculosis. There was a shadow on my chest X-ray. They pumped out my stomach and poked among the horrors exhumed. They vampired blood out of my arm. They sucked marrow out of my breast-bone.

Every so often, a specialist is reading X-rays would show me the "shadow" on my lung. There were about 404 shadows on the X-ray. I'd nod intelligently, though I'll swear it was a different one every time.

I still think they got a fly-speck on the original X-ray. But I bear them no grudge. This used to happen to me during the war. We'd be flying formation, on a mission, heads swivelling wildly to watch for German fighters. Suddenly, I'd spot a whole gaggle of the foe and holler over the radio, "Enemy aircraft, above, 10 o'clock!"

After a frantic silence, in which everyone else swept the sky with his eyes, a sardonic voice would announce, "Smiley's got oil specks on his windscreen again."

So I forgave the docs. In 12 months, they couldn't prove, at least to my satisfaction, that I had TB. But they needed the practice, and I bore no ill-will.

About eight years later, I had a very sore back. Could hardly straighten up. I went to a specialist. He took $28 worth of X-rays and a ten-dollar fee, poked me painfully, and on the second visit informed me that I had a "severe irritation of the lumbar region." I was pretty scared and asked him what it involved. "To put it in layman's language", he pontificated, "you have a sore back."

Couple of years later, I hobbled into another doctor's office. My knee was acting up. A German feldwebel had tried to kick the kneecap off, one day in 1944, and every so often it went on the fritz. The doc twisted it until I screamed, told me it was very painful, and sent me to a specialist. He took X-rays, wrenched it until I was bathed in sweat, and told me I had a bad knee and should be careful with it.

Recently, I went to the veterans' hospital, for my regular chest check-up. The doc couldn't find the scar on my X-ray, and had to ask me which lung it had been. I didn't know.

The other day, I went to an eye specialist. I can see fine, but my wife thought I should go. I haven't had my eyes checked since another eye specialist, 15 years ago, prescribed the glasses I wear for reading.

Well, this young fellow the other day, who can give you an appointment within four months of the time you call, told me I didn't need glasses. Said the ones I had were as useful as window panes. He didn't realize I'd had them renewed at about $25 a rattle, four or five times since the original prescription, whenever I'd broken them or lost them.

Well, I'm going to fool him. I'm going to go right on wearing those glasses, if only to hide the bags under my eyes.

Doctors! It's not that I'm prejudiced. Some of my best friends are doctors. But how would you like your sister to marry one of them?

Laughter in the Home

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Laughter has been called "sunshine in the home". Like sunshine, it is often unexpected. It produces warmth and the feeling of physical well-being. The old Romans had a saying "Laugh if you are wise" and in more recent years, their Italian descendants believed that "Laughter makes good blood."

A child who grows up in a home where the sound of hearty laughter is seldom heard is to be pitied. There is something relaxing about a good laugh. When a parent and child can laugh together a bond of mutual understanding grows between them. Every family worthy of the name has little jokes, queer words which recall funny situations. Grown men and women like to recall, long after they have left their childhood behind them, this special family vocabulary.

A tiny child will laugh over and over again at the repetition of some foolish actions. Did you ever catch the merry look on a baby or watch a small child pull a handkerchief off his head with great glee and say "Boo!" a countless number of times?

Mother may be worn out with housework and find this repeated laughter boring as the giggling of an adolescent. The best way to deal with laughter at any age, which is becoming tiresome, is to substitute another activity — or leave the child to laugh without any audience.

Children may see something to laugh at in a situation which grownups do not consider particularly funny. A child laughs if he is in a situation where he feels superior. A man slipping on the ice and falling, a woman having her hat blown off by the wind, are immensely amusing to a youngster.

He laughs, too, at the incongruous father coming up from the furnace room with a smudge of soot on his cheek, or the puppy with muddy paws walking over the clean kitchen floor. Will Rogers' observation that anything is funny so long as it happens to someone else, is particularly true of a child's viewpoint.

The reading school child usually develops a passion for comics and the "funnies" are very popular. Many children also love a riddle or a pun. Any bright child will chuckle when he hears an unconscious "Spoonerism" such as, "Rass me the passberries."

Limericks such as Edward Lear's are another source of laughter, and some boys and girls enjoy trying to make up their own limericks and funny rhymes. The writer's nonsense can be dramatized:

"The Owl and the Pussy-Cat went to sea,
In a beautiful pea-green boat."

is particularly charming foolishness. So is the speech of the walrus in Lewis Caroll's "Through the Looking Glass."

"I weep for you," the Walrus said:
"I deeply sympathize."
With sobs and tears he sorted out
Those of the largest size,
Holding his pocket-handkerchief
Before his streaming eyes.

When a child comes home from school with a joke he has heard, do let him have the fun of telling it to the family at meal time. Let your child read aloud to you occasionally the quiet humor of Winnie the Pooh or the Wind in the Willows. In your turn tell your youngster once in a while an amusing mishap which occurred to you during your day or when you were small. Children like to be reminded that mother and dad are human. They suffered mishaps when young and continue to have funny disasters, too!

RAISIN NUT LOAF

Team-mates always tasty

When raisins and walnuts get together, they certainly make a delicious team. Walnuts have been popular with cooks and connoisseurs for centuries. The Romans were so delighted with them, they spread their cultivation throughout Southern Europe. Civilization without walnuts was not to be endured!

Equally familiar in European history is the raisin, although it was "rediscovered" in California at the end of the nineteenth century by a fruit grower whose whole grape crop was accidentally converted into raisins by a severe drought.

We have complemented the bitter sweetness of mellow walnuts with the concentrated chewiness of raisins in this Raisin Walnut Loaf. Subtly flavored with orange, this cake is easy to make and ideal for the family who prefers light fruit cake to the heavy, stocky varieties.

Raisin Walnut Loaf

2 Cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup margarine or butter, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup milk, 1 cup seedless raisins, ½ cup chopped walnuts.

Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate).

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream butter, add sugar and beat. Add egg; beat until light and fluffy. Add grated orange rind and vanilla. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk. Mix in raisins and nuts.

Pour batter in a greased 8½ x 4½-inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated oven for 50 minutes or until loaf tests done.

Canned fruit, tips to buyers

Most of us can't remember when grocers' shelves weren't well stocked with a colorful array of canned fruit as it is available now, any season of the year, for fine eating in Canadian homes.

It's a long way from the produce of the nation's farmlands to food on our tables. Commercial canning, a truly remarkable story of co-operation between agriculture and industry, makes all this possible. In every step of harvesting and processing speed is the key to quality to insure that the garden freshness and maximum nutritional value is packed in every can. When the Canadian woman buys a can of food, she expects quality and therefore should know what the label on each can stands for.

Check for Grade

The home economists at Ottawa, tell us that there are three grade names for canned fruit and vegetables — Canada Fancy, Canada Choice, Canada Standard. The word "Canada" on the label means that the product has been processed in Canada and graded according to federal regulations. In some areas you may save several cents by buying a brand which is locally grown and packed.

Check for Size

There are six standard can sizes ranging from 10, 15, 20, 28, 48 to 105 fluid ounces.

Check for Volume

The fluid ounce content or volume is stated on the can label. Keep the sizes in mind when you shop and compare prices between each grade and brand.

A 20 fluid ounce can of peaches, for example, will give you 2½ cups fruit and juice — enough for about 4 servings.

Check for Drained Weight

The drained weight of the product canned is specified by federal regulations and in cans of the same size there will be the same drained weight no matter what the grade.

For example, a 20 fluid ounce can of peaches of any grade will have a minimum of 12 ounces of the drained fruit and a 15 fluid ounce can of peas a minimum of 9 ounces of drained peas.

Check for Percentage of Syrup

The percentage of sugar used in the syrup of canned fruit is also specified and marked on the label.

The minimum percentage of syrup in canned peaches is 45%. This means a medium syrup of approximately 1 cup sugar to 1 cup water. Other fruits are packed in varying strengths of syrup the fruit.

The amount of sugar in the syrup has nothing to do with the grade. Fruit may also be packed without sugar and in this case marked "unsweetened" or "no sugar added". Solid pack apples, popular for pies, are packed without syrup or sugar, which means that a 28 fluid ounce can will have 2½ cups of apples in it.

Potatoes are favorite food in many parts of the world, and in other countries they are often more elaborately seasoned than in North America.

In European countries, mushrooms, cheese, sour cream and butter and eggs are sometimes added to potatoes.

A Dutch recipe combines mashed potatoes, hot milk, eggs and nutmeg. Chilled, walnut-sized balls of the mixture are dipped in egg, rolled in chopped almonds and deep fried.

Fried potatoes Swiss style, called potatoes rosti, are made by partially boiling potatoes in their jackets, then peeling and cutting them into thin slices. Arrange overlapping layers in a heavy frying pan with lots of melted butter. Season the slices with salt, pepper and nutmeg, and press them down occasionally as they fry. When they are brown on the bottom, turn them out on a plate, crusty side up.

Parmentier Soup

French-style recipe from the Canadian department of agriculture calls for 4 cups thinly sliced onions, ¼ cup celery leaves, 2 cups boiling water, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ⅛ to ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups milk or half milk and half table cream, paprika (optional), ½ cup grater cheese (optional).

Peel potatoes, cut lengthwise into quarters, then slice thinly. Place vegetables, water and seasonings, except paprika, in a large saucepan. Add milk, cover and simmer 10 to 15 minutes longer. Sprinkle each serving with paprika or grated cheese if desired. Six servings.

For accordian roast potatoes from Sweden, seasoning for six medium potatoes calls for: ½ cup butter, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, 6 tablespoons grated medium Cheddar cheese.

Peel potatoes and slice thinly halfway through. Place in a greased baking pan with cut side up, baste with melted butter, sprinkle with mixed seasonings, except cheese. Roast and 350 degrees until tender (1 to 1¼ hours) basting frequently. When cooked, sprinkle with grated cheese and return to oven five minutes to melt cheese.

Hungarian Style

Potatoes and sour cream call for: 4½ cups diced raw potatoes (½-inch cubes), ¼ to ½ cup boiling water, 1½ teaspoons salt, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1¼ cups sour cream, paprika.

Cook potatoes in boiling water with teaspoon of salt 3 minutes. Drain and add butter. Cover and cook over medium heat until potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes, stirring gently to prevent sticking. Add sour cream, ½ teaspoon salt and simmer five minutes. Sprinkle with paprika and serve at once. Makes six servings.

A TRIBUTE TO ST. ANDREWS EAST

Yes, I shall miss St. Andrews East. I shall miss the slowly flowing river that starts at the top of the Laurentian Mountains and, after meandering down over rocks, passing villages, hamlets and towns, through fields, skirting virgin forests, comes finally to St. Andrews. Here it passes over a dam which was constructed many years ago to supply power for the first paper mill ever built in Canada. Remember? A railroad bridge crosses over at this point.

I shall miss the church near the bridge that spans the river . . . the friendly priest who so generously built a swimming pool for the young people. I well remember him telling us at mass that the pool would be open on the morrow and that it was for all young people with no distinction of religion.

I shall miss the shops where one was always so courteously served. Wales' General Store, which is now a charming inn, will always be a landmark. And the fire station where, in the hall above, the members of Argenteuil Art Association hold their several exhibitions.

I shall miss the United Church at the other end of the bridge . . . its members were always so helpful. Let me gaze down river to the view that abuts the Rigaud Mountains on the other side of the Ottawa River.

I shall miss the Anglican Church set back on that beautifully colorful lawn. And the ladies of this church who so graciously asked me to help with their sales and who made me feel I was one of them.

I shall miss the Presbyterian Church, where it was a "must" that I attend their "special" services. And the pleasant little lane which led to the gravel pit where the wild raspberries grew so abundantly.

I shall miss the evenings when the field around my house would come aglow with the sparkle of the fireflies.

I shall miss the stroll beside the river, where sometimes the moon comes up over the hill. When night closed down it was pleasant to fall asleep, lulled by the chirping of the crickets. It is winter there now. The ground will be blanketed with a white carpet of snow, the river frozen over, except here and there where the water ripples over the rocks. The birds have long since winged their way to sunnier climes and the smaller animals are deep in sleep until the spring.

— All of this I shall miss, but most of all I shall miss the delightful people of St. Andrews East.

Friends mourn former resident of Avoca

Late Mrs. Wm. E. G. MacDonald

After a short illness Mrs. William MacDonald, the former Thelma Mary Margaret MacLeod, passed away at the Smith Clinic on Friday, February 12.

Mrs. MacDonald, who was in her 50th year, was born in Avoca, the daughter of Mrs. Edward G. Young and the late Duncan MacLeod.

Mrs. MacDonald was a very active member of the United Church in Vankleek Hill, where she had lived for the past 16 years. She was also a good community worker and a faithful friend. The many floral tributes showed the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Left to mourn her passing are her husband, Willie MacDonald; her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. G. Young; four sons, Carl, of Scriber, Ont., Wayne, of Montreal, Russell and Rae, at home; two daughters, Shirley (Mrs. Glenn Reasbeck), Geraldine (Mrs. Alex Green), of Montreal; two sisters, Evelyn (Mrs. John MacLean), Stella (Mrs. Elmer Andrews), and one brother, Clarence, all of Avoca; also six grandchildren.

The funeral service was held on Monday, February 15, at Vankleek Hill United Church. The remains were interred in the Vankleek Hill public vault for burial in the spring.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Earl MacLeod, Claude Andrews, Robert Dobbie, Gerald Andrews, Keith Fitzpatrick and Lloyd MacRae.

Brownsburg

Mr. and Mrs. K. Tomalty and family, of Pembroke, Ont., visited recently with the former's mother, Mrs. L. Tomalty.

Mrs. Cecil Carpenter and Miss Bertha Tomalty spent Tuesday last in Montreal.

Mrs. L. Roberts and Mr. J. Racine were delegates from the Brownsburg Red Cross Society to the annual provincial convention, held in Montreal last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Smillie, Town of Mount Royal, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Smillie.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Hunter, of Montreal, were week-end guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Gagné.

Mrs. E. Woods and daughter, Sharon, of Hamilton, Ont., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Stephens.

Mrs. L. Tomalty and Miss Violet Tomalty spent the week-end in Montreal, visiting with friends.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery are extended to Mr. F. Jordon, Mr. R. Moncrieff and Mrs. Wm. Petley, in hospital in Montreal, and to Mrs. G. Tomalty, in the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury, Ont.

Day of Prayer

The World Day of Prayer meeting will be held in the United Church on Friday, March 5, at 2.30 o'clock. All are invited to attend.

Bereaved

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Boyd, in their recent bereavement. Mrs. Boyd's father passed away last week.

Mr. Haig MacTavish, of Montreal, and Miss Joan MacTavish, of Harrington, spent the week-end visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas MacTavish.

Miss Verda Sutton, of Montreal, spent the week-end visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sutton.

Avoca

Mr. and Mrs. Lance Dixon, from Digby, N.S., are on a week's vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, in Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. John MacLean, in Avoca.

Sympathy from this community is extended to the wife and family of the late Mr. Josie Arthurs, who passed away at his home here early Thursday morning after a lengthy illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Fox and family visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Nixon, on Sunday.

Mr. Alex Bates, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Ken MacLean and Mrs. Albert Arthurs, of Port Colborne, Ont., motored here to attend the funeral of the late Mr. J. Arthurs last Saturday, and spent the week-end with Mrs. Sandy Bates.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Gretton, and Mrs. Willie MacLeod and Fred, called on Mrs. Sandy Bates last Friday afternoon.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. Hill, and Miss Mary Jane Stewart, from Bell Falls, visited Mrs. Sandy Bates last Thursday afternoon, also called on Mrs. Josie Arthurs and family.

Mrs. Verna Scott, from Falconbridge, Ont., attended the funeral of her uncle, the late Mr. J. Arthurs, and spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Eddy Young.

Calumet

(Intended for last issue)

Miss Heather Bates and little Kenda Bates, of Hawkesbury, visited with Mr. and Mrs. John Fox. Mrs. Raymond Madden, of Harrington, also called at the Fox home.

Good wishes are extended to Mrs. McCullough, of Harrington, who is presently in the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury.

Sympathy is extended to the MacDonald family of Vankleek Hill in the recent passing of Mrs. Willie MacDonald; Mrs. MacDonald spent most of her life in Avoca. Also to the MacLeod family, in the recent death of a loving mother, the late Mrs. Neil MacLeod.

Valentines and thoughts of spring; two nonagenarians for tribute

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

This was certainly a short month! It seems to us that no sooner had we dispatched the copy to the editor, than here we were back again grinding out more. Someone said to me lately, "Twelve years, and you have not run out of ideas!" To which, I replied that with all the things happening in the world, one could never be short of ideas. What I meant was topics. Trouble with topics is that other people have them, too, but ideas are one's very own. Or the absence of them is one's very own.

Of course, there was Valentine's Day to brighten things. We note with regret, the trend to return to the heavy humor of our youth. Valentines that cruelly point out the peculiarities of one's acquaintances are in doubtful taste. No, not because I received one; I did not. I just do not like that kind of thing. Such a card is really just a dirty anonymous letter. Better by far to ignore the good Valentine, and settle for the legend of the mating of the sparrows.

I do not spend much time watching sparrows, although I put out food for them each morning; but the grey squirrels fascinate me. We have at least six which live in the trees around the house, notably in an elm which has a large hole. If Peter, the cat, sits in the study window, he is directly opposite the Squirrel House, and will sit for a half-hour watching their antics. They make derisive noises at him; when they get too brash, he howls. It is quite usual for a squirrel to sit outside the kitchen window, with his nose on the glass, to remind us that we have not put out our offering of butternuts. If I throw a nut out the back door, a squirrel often fields it handily. Smart little creatures, and accomplished acrobats. They jump from tree to tree, often twenty feet above ground. I feel they earn their handout.

We feel we should note the deaths of two men, both 90 years of age but widely separated in place and way of life — namely, Sir Winston Churchill, and Mr. Jack Good of Lakefield. It is perhaps presumptuous to try to add anything to the reams that have been written about the former. My contribution is the observation that it is the maverick, the screw-ball, that is most noticed, and often most missed. Churchill was not one man, but a variety of men, all of them "different". It was this very oddity that endeared him to people. No public figure in our time, with the possible exception of Pope John, has so seized on the imagination and the affection of people in all walks of life. . . As for Jack Good, unknown except in his native district, he was the exact antithesis of a Churchill. But to us, his neighbors, he was a symbol. He was one of the few remaining people who could touch hands, so to speak, with those pioneers who came into the Shrewsbury and Lakefield districts in the 1830's. Never a man to push himself forward, yet he could, on occasion, tell an interesting tale of times gone by. It was always quietly done, and the soft voice and courtly manner lent their own charm to the story.

WATCHMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS.

A handsome man, too. But then, as my friend said last summer, "You have such handsome men around here."

A Sidelight on the Carillon Dam

We have meant to tell you something of the difficulties of the making of the Carillon Dam, as told to us by one of the engineers, but each month the space would be gone before we got around to it. Now we have the time and the space. This was all triggered by a trip across on the ferry one evening in November. Looking back, as we passed from south to north bank, we exclaimed aloud over the beauty of the dam, all alight, and seemingly floating on the black waters of the Ottawa. Shortly after, one of the guests at a dinner party in our neighborhood was one of the engineers of this project, and from him I learned of the trials of building a dam in that region, which is largely limestone. It is quite usual to find a layer of limestone, then a layer of clay, then another of limestone. Now we all know how clay acts. It was, he explained, like a limestone sandwich with a clay filling. If pressure were applied to the top "slice" it was quite within the cards that the "filling" would be squeezed out. Translate that into plans for a dam, and you can see the engineering problem. The solution hit upon was to drill a series of holes, about 150 feet deep, and fill them with concrete, thus making a solid river bed. In the process of doing this, the working crews came across a cave (filled with water) "big enough to take a house". This, too, had to be filled with concrete. We were reminded of the underground stream and smaller caves in the Shrewsbury district. So, next time you have occasion to go to Carillon, take a look at the dam, and reflect on all the thought as well as money that went into its building. To the writer, it seems a pity that a road was not built on top of the dam. Surely by this time, the ferry-man has made his little pile!

We were at a tea-party this week where the talk ranged from, "Would you rather be dead than Red?" to robbers. Our host, who likes gadgets, had rigged up an electronic device whereby, when the family are all out, the lights go on in different rooms. For instance, at eleven o'clock, the lights downstairs go off, and those upstairs go on. Work it out for yourself. Fascinating! Never one to worry about cops and robbers, we were rather startled at home the other morning — coming from a bath, in what we knew was an empty house, to hear the handle of the door from the vestibule to hall turn! Rushing to the head of the stairs, with a towel clutched to the bosom, we were just in time to see the door slowly swing open. . . That's all, friends. . . Sorry to disappoint you — no violence, no faint, no nothing. We have two or three doors in this house that are obviously trying to get it on TV as a "spook house".

Now for a session with the "idiot box". Cheer up, next time it will be nearly spring. . . The wise ones around here predict an early spring.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

One of the most significant changes in years is made without fanfare in the Quebec Seed Board's Recommendations for 1965. It is the introduction of "heat units" — a new way to choose corn seed.

The recommended hybrids are divided into groups according to the number of units of effective heat they need to reach maturity.

Then the map of Quebec that goes with it shows the heat units that are available in the different areas. It outlines clearly the areas where you have a good chance of growing corn successfully year after year, the areas where the crop should be harvested only as silage, and the areas where corn is out of the question.

Picture the map of Quebec for a moment. Draw a line from Shawville in Pontiac County parallel with the Ottawa River through Lachute to Three Rivers. Then, take the line across the river south through Drummondville and Granby to the U.S. border. This is the northern and eastern limit of the area where corn can safely be grown for grain. It is the area that has 2,500 or more heat units.

Now, once again starting well up in the Ottawa River west of Shawville, draw another line a few miles back and parallel to the first, going further down the north shore of the St. Lawrence to take in the Isle of Orleans, then southwest to Brome County. This is the limit of the area (with 2,300 heat units) where you can expect even the earliest hybrids to reach the dough stage before frost. At this stage, corn can be harvested only as silage.

Beyond that line, it is better to forget about looking for cobs and choose the corn which will give the greatest tonnage.

Of course, the map isn't dead accurate. There are local areas of more or less heat. And there will always be growers with that extra measure of management ability which makes monkeys of the experts. But it is an excellent starting point.

There is a favored egg-shaped area around Montreal with 2,700 heat units. It includes Vaudreuil and Soulanges Counties, and much of the Chateauguay Valley. This is the same rating as Ontario's Oxford County where there is a large acreage of grain corn grown. The shores of Lake Champlain come into the same category.

It is surprising to note that, while outside of the corn area, the Abitibi area appears to be well off for heat units as the eastern part of the province south of the river.

The heat unit system was developed by Dr. Murray Brown of the Ontario Research Foundation and the work in Quebec was sponsored by A.R.D.A. The ratings for the hybrids were made available by the committee on Field Crops Recommendations for Ontario, where the system has now been used for two years. It replaces the old way of rating a variety as a 90-day or 100-day corn.

This year's Recommendations of the Quebec Seed Board is quite an attractive bulletin in its new format. It includes, as well as corn, the adapted varieties of cereals, forages, root crops, and suggestions for hay and pasture mixture. Your county agronome has a copy for you, or we would be pleased to send you one.

There is at least one free-stall dairy barn in Quebec. It is on the farm of Graham Hill at Pont Rouge. We stopped in to see it on our way back from Quebec City the other day. It is interesting to compare it with the one we saw in New York State two or three weeks ago.

This one was entirely under cover, enclosed, and at outdoor temperature. The New York one was open to the weather, and at outdoor temperatures. I certainly prefer the Quebec set-up, the animals were warm, dry and comfortable. But I do not know whether the extra expense of insulation and ventilation can be justified.

The free-stall system has developed as an adaption of loose housing. Its chief merit appears to be in the saving of bedding. Only the stalls, or cubicles, are bedded and these just once in three weeks. The main floor is scraped with a tractor daily. The feeding area is well away from the bedded area. The milking is done in a parlor.

The animals do appear to keep cleaner and are certainly more comfortable than in conventional stanchions. There is something amusing though about seeing cows go of their own free will to their private cubicles along the walls to lie down.

The total floor space required is somewhat less than for loose housing, but nearly double that of conventional stables. This is a cost factor that I want to look into further.

Of Many Things

IDEA-POWER

I saw an automobile stuck in the mud. A passerby stopped to lend a hand, but the car did not budge. The owner stepped out from behind the wheel. "Here, you drive," he said "and I'll push it." They changed places and presto, the car rolled free. Was it extra muscle that did the job?

No; it was the power of an idea. The owner wanted badly to get out and that prompted his more powerful push.

That, of course, is a crude example of a complex truth. Ideas have fabulous power. Individuals who realize it are one up on the neighbor who does not. Those who know the value of ideas take time to think, to imagine, to motivate themselves and those who work with them.

The boss who says to his workers, "Finish this assignment by six o'clock and there'll be an extra five spot in your pay envelope", is using the power of an idea. He's encouraging workers to match their pay with productivity. He seeks to involve each individual in the job at hand. That is a powerful idea, and it has helped build the free society we know today.

The new Russian officials are beginning to do away with central planning and go back to the supply-and-demand type of economy.

They have found after some fifty years of experiment that the communist idea has failed. It will not produce the goods nor will it distribute them properly. It missed out on the vital thing; the personal involvement of individuals. On private plots the Russian farmers produced more than did the huge State farms, because they were working for themselves.

If these things are true for entire societies, consider how important they can be in your own—life. Are you scrabbling along without taking thought? If so, you are like an automobile using inferior gasoline. Get yourself an idea of what you want to be and what you want to achieve. You'll be surprised at what idea-power can do for you!

"Diary of a Vagabond"

TALL OIL AND MURDER

I have the type of mind that while I am sitting before a TV set feeling the duck bumps along the top of my arm react to "Train of Murder" I am also rearranging in my thoughts the fact that "tall oil" is being shipped by CN to the West Coast, where it will eventually find its way to Japan for refinement.

While I am trying to concentrate on "who done it" another nook or corner under my scalp is trying to absorb what tall oil really is. I suppose the two have some sort of an association in my mind for it isn't so long ago that I was standing on a rampart overlooking Hinton, Alberta, watching great plumes of smoke belching from the plant of Northwestern Pulp & Power Ltd. It was a lonely and beautiful scene and I remember remarking to my travelling companion "Gee, what a spot for a murder." So perhaps my mental process isn't so far fetched after all.

Before I tell you about tall oil, you might like to learn a little about the story which has appeared in the CBC slot tabbed "The Serial". I missed the first episode simply because I was one of hundreds waiting patiently in Union Station, Toronto, while the railways tried to accommodate hundreds who had had to abandon other means of transportation because of a dense fog that shrouded much of the Great Lakes area. However, I caught up with this thriller diller eventually, then and realized I was visually aboard my favorite mode of travel.

In my considerable travel experience I have known of sudden death, birth, romance and personal tragedy aboard trains but, fortunately, the only murder I've become acquainted with is this one, born of the brains of Kay Hill, well known Halifax writer.

Much of the five episodes of this mystery-comedy were set against the background of CN's Super-Continental train en route from Vancouver to Montreal. In fact, it was while Kay Hill was making this trip by CN that she conceived the idea for the play — a drama where all the action takes place on the train. The new serial featured Don Francks, Beth Morris and a cast of over 50.

Kay Hill is well known in the Maritimes and nationally for her comedy, "Three to Get Married", and for the series on Indian legends, Glooscap and his People.

And Now for Tall Oil

It says here in a brief news release that a new export movement for Canada's publicly owned railway has begun. It is the result of a long term transaction between the pulp and power company at Hinton, mentioned above, and the Mitsui Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, to ship the first-ever "tall oil" to Japan.

Tall oil is a fatty acid resin, a by-product of the pine forest industry. The initial crude oil shipment left Vancouver aboard the MS Makoharu Maru. Plans call for additional monthly shipments for the rest of the five-year contract. The oil, from North-Western's crude tall oil plant will be moved to Vancouver National in jumbo-sized tank cars. It will be processed in Japan for manufacturing use there and for sale in the Orient.

This must be the gooey stuff that gets in my hair, all over my hands and even on the rug while I wrestle with the Christmas tree each year, or prune our pines. I'm delighted to learn it has a commercial value and that it is not just a stubborn resin no household cleaning fluid can budge.

HE'S AVAILABLE. Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec says he is "interested and available" to run for leadership of the federal Liberal Party, when a vacancy occurs. It's Liberal Party tradition to alternate leadership between members of English and French Canada, and consequently Lester Pearson's successor will likely be of French origin.

GMC truck marks vehicle 5,000,000 built in Oshawa

Oshawa, Feb. 1 — A gold painted GMC heavy-duty tilt cab truck drove off the General Motors of Canada assembly line here to become the 5,000,000th vehicle built in Oshawa. The eight-an-a-half foot high vehicle came down the line 57 years after the first McLaughlin-Buick was built here.

E. H. Walker, president of General Motors of Canada, delivered the vehicle to the company's national truck sales manager, E. E. Higgins. The truck, destined for a customer in the province of Quebec, will be on display at the new GMC Truck retail branch which opens in Montreal this month.

Victor Ireland of the truck department who has exactly 50 years service with General Motors drove the 5,000,000th vehicle from the end of the line.

GM said it took 30 years to build the first million cars and trucks at Oshawa, 13 years to build the second million, five-and-a-half years to build the third, five years to build the fourth and just over three-and-a-half years to build the fifth million vehicles.

Current daily production schedules at GM of Canada run at about 1,700 cars and trucks a day — compared to 154 passenger cars built during 1908, the first year of operation. Present employment by the company exceeds 19,000 people, all but 1,000 of whom work in Oshawa.

A busy week for Boy Scouts

For Canada's 275,000 Cubs, Scouts and Rovers, this will be their busiest week of the year — it's Boy Scout Week. Under the direction of some 32,000 volunteer adults, members of 12,000 packs, troops and crews have first honored Scouting's founder, at "Baden-Powell Sunday" church services on February 21. Special events highlighting the rest of Scout Week will be hundreds and hundreds of father-and-son banquets and open-house meetings, plus winter hikes and camps, in keeping with this year's theme, "Fit for Adventure".

COSTLY

The cost of wages and other expenses involved in the collection of taxes averages $70,000 a year for Canadian business firms.

Civic matters at Vankleek Hill

A letter was read at Vankleek Hill town council advising that the CNR had applied to the Transport Commissioner for removal of the agent at the C.N. station in that town and to replace the agent by a caretaker.

An application was completed and to be forwarded in connection with the Centennial grant program for the construction of a new town hall.

LAST LEGACY

Oak Bay, B.C. (CP) — Some Indian bones estimated to be near 2,000 years old have been excavated from a site at this community, adjoining Victoria. The relics are believed to be from an Indian cemetery.

STUDY OF MOVIE ORIGINS

Quebec (CP) — Laval University has started a course on literature and films dealing with the origin of movies and the visual aspect of literature. The course is given by Alain Pontaut, theatre and film critic of Montreal's French-language daily Le Devoir.

PHOTOGRAPHING YOUR HOBBY

Gardening, model railroading, stamp collecting, fishing — whatever your leisure time activity — photography can make it more interesting, more productive and more rewarding.

Pictures serve as records, mementos, publicity material, teaching devices and make excellent showpieces for the home or office desk.

Let's look at some picture-taking hints for hobbies. Although we'll concentrate on two specific activities, gardening and model railroading, keep in mind that the same photographic principles can readily be adapted to any hobby — your hobby.

If your interest happens to be raising flowers, you've a gold mine of photographic material.

If you want soft lighting on a flower when shooting on a bright sunny day, hold a sheet over the flower forming a canopy. This will diffuse the light and produce an interesting effective glow.

To obtain a "dewy" effect, sprinkle a few drops of water on the bloom. To photograph a single bloom that is among massed flowers or against a distracting background, put skyblue cardboard behind the flower to set it apart from its neighbors.

You can get bigger-than-life close-ups of blooms with a simple snapshot camera by using an inexpensive close-up attachment and adapter ring. See your camera dealer, he'll be happy to discuss your camera and close-up photography.

Take a lesson from flower photography; whatever your hobby, show your material at its finest, eliminate distracting backgrounds, and get close to your subject matter.

Model railroads or any table-top construction, come to life with pictures taken at a realistic perspective.

When photographing your layout for example, place your camera so that it will record what you would see if you were 'in' the scene. Low camera position, therefore, is all-important for realistic perspective.

Lighting is difficult in tight, close-up quarters. If you don't care to use photoflood lamps, you can use one of the high-speed films and shoot under the light ordinarily available in the room.

If you're willing to experiment, try photographing the "night run" or night activity in the station, bracketing your exposure with a number of different "f" stops.

Remember, in photographing hobbies, the three vital points to control are perspective, lighting and focusing.
