Trailer-transport in spectacular spill

One night recently around 11 o'clock a spectacular upset occurred on the Montreal highway just east of town when a Montreal-Ottawa Express Co'y transport with semi-trailer crashed into a ditch beside the road. The trailer of the heavy transport jack-knifed into the cab, the impact separating the cab from the chassis, which saved the driver from almost certain disaster. The driver, Gaston Delargie of Hull, managed to crawl out of the window as the vehicle caught fire. Witnesses reported sparks caused an explosion under the truck, which ignited the contents of the transport consisting of boxed towels, toilet paper and paper products.

The transport was heading east on its way to Montreal, and the driver stated after the crash that he had no control of the steering.

Lachute fire department was called to the scene of the accident, which was just east of the curve at Andrew Cleland's. The truck and its contents spilled at the roadside on Mrs. Laura Mayman's property. The firemen remained on the scene until 5 a.m.

Cst. André Piché of the Lachute Q.P.P. headquarters investigated the accident, assisted by Gerald Fortier and Pierre Lanoue, both officers from the provincial police detachment.

With flames pouring from the cab, and Lachute firemen on the scene of action, this picture was taken shortly after the crash, by our photographer Syd Drew.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

The Provincial Police contingent at Lachute has been reduced by four members since last Wednesday, the constables having been temporarily assigned to the Manicouagan strike area. Sgt. J. P. Dallaire reports, however, things have proceeded here in normal and orderly manner, imposing no unusual burden of duty upon his men.

Emmett Lowe, a well known businessman and member of Lachute's leading dairy firm, was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, succeeding Jacques Maheux. First and second vice-presidents are Laurent Jacques and Antoine Malaket, respectively.

The resignation of Réal Morrissette, who was newly elected to Seat No. 6 (South-west Ward) but did not assume office, was accepted unanimously at the last Council meet, chaired by Mayor Dr. Zoël Saindon, M.P.P. Nomination of candidates to replace him will be held at city hall on August 22, with voting, if necessary, on the 29th.

The morality squad of the Q.P.P. is reported to have made raids recently on two licensed establishments in this area, for allegedly staging shows of a variety for which they had no permit.

Ald. François Charlebois complained that there appeared to be no firemen on duty Sunday, July 31. There was no response to a call when a shed burned in the former Village of Ayersville, and Ald. Charlebois himself answered the call. It has been customary to have one or two members on duty all day on Sundays.

A number of property holders on Pine and Cedar Avenues have requested that these streets be officially changed to "Avenue des Pins" and "Avenue des Cèdres". Notice of motion to this effect is before the Council.

Strike climaxes long differences at Dominion Ayers Wood Division

About 200 employees in the plywoods section of Dominion Ayers at Lachute went on strike last Wednesday to support new wage demands.

The National Syndicate of Plywood Employees (CNTU) that negotiates for the workers said it has been negotiating with the company since last May 4, but that nothing concrete developed. It claims many of the workers suffer from asthma and other respiratory ailments because of the nature of the work.

It is stated by the management, however, that a no-strike contract is in effect, that any annual revision date would normally recur on December 4 — a general wage increase having been granted at that date last year. In the meantime, the company claims, it has set up a job evaluation system, with rated increases accordingly, which it is prepared to institute immediately; these would affect at least 50 percent of the employees, with adjustments in some cases up to 13 cents an hour.

It is claimed by the Union the hourly wage in the plywoods section is $1.05 with some as low as 77 cents, below minimum stanadards. These figures are denied by the company representatives. They claim the average for male employees is around $1.18 — $1.20, and for female employees, 96 — 97 cents. The Union's latest demands were received Tuesday afternoon, but the strike was called for Wednesday morning. The Company claims the proceedings are illegal, that the government conciliator has not had an opportunity to consider the new proposals, and that normal avenues of settlement have not been fully exploited.

The plant is picketed by CNTU union members. The staff members are carrying on in offices of the textile division of Dominion Ayers Limited, and the strikers have their headquarters set up in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The CNTU won authorization of the labor relations board to represent the wood division workers, ousting the International Union as bargaining agent for the employees of this industry.

New president of weeklies County 'boy who made good'

John W. Sancton of Westmount, Que., was elected president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association at the close of its annual meeting last week in Saint John, N.B.

Mr. Sancton, publisher of the Westmount Examiner, succeeds J. Louis McKenna of Sussex, N.B., publisher of the Kings County Record. (Mr. Sancton was associated with this County in his earlier years, when his father was engineer at the refractories in Kilmar, and the family resided in that community.)

Among new provincial directors are R. F. Giles, Lachute Watchman, and Lou Miller, Montreal N.D.G. Monitor.

Ray Argyle of the Toronto Telegram News Service told the weekly editors there is no fundamental difference between weekly and daily papers. The criterion is whether a newspaper is a good or a poor one.

"We believe the foundation has to be its editorial content," Mr. Argyle said. "The newspaper is of value to the advertiser only if it is of value to the reader." The Toronto Telegram, recognizing the growth potential in the suburbs, had purchased five weekly newspapers in key communities surrounding Toronto.

Mr. Miller said his paper competes with dailies, radio and television stations in the Montreal area, and he believes a change in distribution and format will be necessary to remain competitive.

Named life members of the CWNA were Laurence (Larry) Gage, of St. John's, Que.; Mrs. Doris Sanderson, who has worked with provincial newspaper groups on many projects; and Robert Moore, of Swift Current.

Jack Struthers, senior editor from the Centennial Commission, gave the weekly editors a hard-hitting talk about Centennial projects and emphasized that local enthusiasm is the most important single factor in the national celebration.

Rotary speaker takes cudgels for dairy farmer

Farmers are being milked — not their cows, was the theme of a talk given to Rotarians at their last meeting in the La Lorraine Motel by a local businessman, Mr. George McGibbon.

With President Rene Dagenais in the chair, the popular George McGibbon was introduced briefly by former farmer Cliff Armstrong, who had arranged for the talk.

Though spiced with humor, his subject was serious and he proved a staunch supporter of the farmer. He called his talk, "Farmer John" and could have added, "Our milk producer" — for, although he called for equal consideration for all farmers, he dealt mainly with the dairy farmer.

The speaker quoted a survey by the Department of Agriculture for Counties of Two Mountains, Argenteuil and Terrebonne for 1965, which showed that the average farmer had a capital investment of $55,000 and received only $158 per year income for his labor.

Some unionized construction laborers get $2.55 an hour, he stated. If the farmer, a skilled operator, is to live as well as the above laborer, the consumer will have to pay 52 cents a quart for milk!

A question and discussion period ensued, which was lively and good - humored. Some thought that there were too many farmers on farms which are too small. Some questioned the figures when it is remembered that farmers send children to college, own much luxury equipment in the home, as well as cars that are fine enough to be status symbols, rather than just a means of transportation.

Whether the speaker's words had any immediate or permanent effect, is not known. (The writer didn't see anyone drinking milk during the evening.)

Thanks of the Club were expressed by Dr. Reg Rigby, in a humorous yet sincere manner.

Young Japanese here on student exchange

Jack Sawada, a young Canadian of Japanese birth, has been the guest of a Lachute youth, Germain St-Jacques, under the Centennial student exchange program. Sawada is from New Denver, B.C. Under the same plan, young St-Jacques, Wilson Street, visited at Stoney Creek, Ont., in the month of July. Above, Dr. Zoël Saindon, mayor and M.P.P., is seen with the young visitor, who was invited to sign the golden book at city hall. Annual photo exhibit drew public interest

The recent photographic exhibition held by the Argenteuil Art Association at St. Andrews East afforded pleasure to many visitors, and its success proved gratifying to the organizers. In addition to a week-long showing of photographs, in black-and-white and in color, a presentation of color slides on Thursday evening, July 28, was witnessed by an appreciative gathering of members and friends. The visitors totalled over 200 during this exhibition and program.

The exhibit, which was the third annual venture of this kind at St. Andrews, was informally opened with a few remarks by the vice-president, Mr. Kevin Clarke, who welcomed the gathering, thanked the exhibitors for their interest, and again expressed appreciation to the municipal authorities for the use of the civic hall. He remarked also on the creditable quality of the photographs displayed. These, submitted by 16 entrants, amateur and professional, made a showing of over 50 interesting scenes, classified as to landscapes, general interest, nature, portraits, and industrial subjects.

Mr. Mansiel Wilson was narrator for the program of slides and the Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid was projectionist. The slides included 64 colorful and most interesting themes, captured in full beauty on the screen. The audience at this hour-long showing numbered over 50, and the feature was considered a highlight of the exhibition. A social period followed, and light refreshments were served by courtesy of the committee. To Mr. Wilson and his organizers responsible for this A.A.A. exhibition, credit is due for its marked success.

Historic interest in next A.A.A. art exhibition

The third exhibition sponsored by the Argenteuil Art Association Inc. should prove an interesting event in the season's attractions for members and friends of the organization. This will be a showing of pictures featuring "historically interesting Canadian subjects". Information has been mailed to all members; others interested in exhibiting art works may contact the honorary secretary, Vivian Walker (537-3806), who is also chairman of the organizing committee.

Dates of the exhibition are August 27 to September 5, inclusive; the display will be held at the customary place, in the municipal hall (above fire station) at St. Andrews East — by courtesy of the mayor and council.

Regulations for the exhibitors specify the following requirements, in brief:

Each member may enter two original signed works, in any media. Copies of photographs are not eligible. Sites, scenes or subjects must be 75 years old, or over, and paintings must have been done within the last three years.

A short historical note, typed on a card, must accompany each entry.

Exhibitors must be members of the Association; the membership fee is nominal, only $1 a year.

It may be noted that exhibits will be received at the municipal hall on Thursday afternoon and evening, and on Friday evening, August 25-26.

Citizens irate over water shortage, threat to bring wives to B'bg Council

By Harry McCosh

The Brownsburg municipal hall was the scene of a noisy but orderly demonstration as some 20 irate residents turned out to the regular meeting of the Town Council on August 1, to urge the councillors to do something about the chronic water shortage up the hill.

Mayor René Lafleur assured the delegation, however, that a plan of action was on the agenda for the meeting — a plan which would have to be approved by the provincial government before the construction of a larger service line between the dam and the reservoir could be carried out.

One spokesman for the group claimed that a shortage of water pressure has always existed up the hill even in the rainiest seasons, and demanded that a booster pump be installed at the corner of Main and Convent Streets to increase the pressure west of that point. He warned that if nothing were done within a month, the men present at the August meeting would bring their wives to the Council's September meeting!

Mayor Lafleur seemed to satisfy the group, however, when he promised that the possibility of installing a booster pump would be investigated and that a special meeting would be held to authorize the larger service line as soon as the plans submitted to Quebec are approved.

In making his regular report to the Council, Police Chief André Roy stated that 81 parking and speeding tickets had been issued during July. He said that the number of negligent driving cases seems to have diminished as a result of the stiffer police patrol, and suggested that the fact that only seven tickets had been given out during the last week of July, might indicate that the motorists were becoming more cautious.

Chief Roy also notified the Council that he had found two boys' bicycles, which would be auctioned during the first week of September if they were not claimed before that time.

Well known insurance man critically injured

A well known insurance agent, Mr. Henri Lagarde, who formerly resided near Grenville, was critically injured when struck by a car on Friday, July 29. The mishap occurred on No. 8 highway between Grenville and Calumet, where Mr. Lagarde had left his car and crossed the road to call upon a client. An approaching automobile, owned by Gyslain Danis of Lachute, reportedly swerved off the pavement to avoid striking another car doubling on the highway.

Mr. Lagarde, the father of Roger Lagarde, Q.C., and of Guy Lagarde, insurance broker, both of this town, sustained a fractured hip, broken nose, and multiple contusions. He was taken to the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury, where he suffered a coronary thrombosis the following day, and his condition is still critical. Mr. Lagarde is 74 years of age, and an agent for Sun Life Assurance.

Week's Epigram

Perhaps things aren't as bad as they seem. As long as Canada has a bi-lingual problem, the danger of the country being taken over by the United States is rather remote.

Lachute-wide sales event continues this week

Lachute merchants displaying "Bazaar of Values" posters have joined together to make this week the greatest selling event in the history of Lachute. You can read of and listen to the big city sales attractions, but none of them will compare with the values to be found here in Lachute this week.

No single merchant could or would undertake such a tremendous sales event as the Lachute merchants displaying "Bazaar of Values" posters are conducting. Check the "Bazaar of Values" pages in today's edition of the Lachute Watchman and you will find many useful items that you need and would like to have, at unbelievable prices.

Items For All Occasions

These merchants are not attempting to dispose of distress merchandise. They are offering you outlandish values on merchandise for the home, automobile and for personal use. Study the items advertised on the "Bazaar of Values" pages for all your family needs. Shop these stores for merchandise that should excite the imagination of the most careful buyer. Come and see for yourself.

While the merchant is sacrificing his profit, you stretch your budget by shopping Lachute this week. Take advantage of these outstanding values. If you don't have the ready cash to buy the items you want, use your charge account on their easy lay-away plan.

It will pay you to shop Lachute this week. All merchandise is guaranteed as advertised by the participating merchants.

Strike averted at C.R.L. plant and Kilmar mine

A strike which for the past few weeks has threatened to close down the Canadian Refractories Ltd. operations at the Kilmar mine and Marelan plant, has been averted. Agreement was reached last Saturday when the unionized workers accepted the company's latest offer.

The workers held a special meeting at the Laurentian theatre at Grenville, and by a majority vote agreed to accept the new contract. Of the 377 members of the United Brotherhood of Mine Workers of America, local 6213, 252 voted in favor and 77 against.

The new contract provides for wage increases graduating from 8 to 13 cents an hour for the first year, a general increase of 11 cents in the second year, and increases from 8 to 19 cents in the third year.

Overtime for Sunday workers will be increased by 25 cents an hour, with other considerations for shift workers, improved vacation plan, and incidental benefits.

Robert Welburn, president of the local union, expressed satisfaction with the terms of the contract.

By BOB ATCHISON

Some of the leases for fishing clubs are being cancelled. This has been long in coming, and it has been a sore spot with a number of sportsmen who knew just why and how these leases were given. With the political in-fighting that goes on in this Province, it was known some leases would be cancelled, but I don't believe that this many were expected. This will of course happen again, as soon as the powers change; departments have to suffer in this manner, but chief among these has been the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game.

A department is only as good as its members. Some of these are excellent, but there is not too much incentive when they are continually passed by for the appointment they deserve, and it is given to some good party worker. I have one real beef about some of the goings-on of former members; this one happens to be a Deputy Minister, and he is responsible for this Trout for Sale bit being passed. We all know just how many trout we have in the province, yet this law allows the species to be sold almost anywhere. Certainly, there are rules to be followed in selling them, but we also know how easy it is to get around rules, if someone is in the know. These things shouldn't happen, but they do, and we ordinary people can do nothing to stop it. With all the publicity given the fishing in this province, to draw the tourist dollar, it's about time the tourists got something for their money. With the passing of such measures as this, the way has been opened to poachers as never before. We have plenty of them around even now, but can you imagine just what is going to happen if this law is allowed to stay on the books?

Maybe our new Minister Loubier will see this; I hope so, anyway. It's for his personal attention. The North River has been given much publicity by former ministers — how it was going to be cleaned up at once, and so on. The river was going to be the show-place of the province. A number of surveys have been made on this waterway, and I would think all the information is available to do something. As a matter of record, the North River is now worse than it has ever been for pollution. With the uncontrolled dumping of chemicals, acids, dyes, etc., both from Rolland paper outlet in St. Jerome, and our local industry, it has steadily been getting worse. . . This river was once noted even in the United States, for its game fish, its boating, etc.; now the only thing it is noted for is the pollution content of its water. A certain amount of revenue came into this area when the river was clean and attractive to vacationists, but this has long since passed.

Many complaints have been coming in about the condition of this North River. Most people ask what they can do; and strange as it may seem, the ones most interested are people from out of town. We in Lachute don't seem to care. After all, it's a convenient spot for dumping the garbage, so why spoil a good thing. Yet if an epidemic of disease should break out, then that's different; we will raise the roof with our cries for help. This will come, believe me; and within a very short time, this river will pollute every living drop of water it comes in contact with. Isn't this worth thinking about? Imagine a park (with all due respect to the Richelieu) having miles of riverfront and not being able to use it. . . Maybe all this will raise some thoughts in your mind, Minister Loubier. I hope so.

Mrs. E. Kirkpatrick was out fishing down in the Deep South (Florida to be exact) and tangled with a dolphin. After considerable battling and hard work, it was finally landed. This was taken on light tackle, so it must have been a lot of fun. The fish weighed 53½ pounds in all, and she told me that every ounce of it was fighting. It was released after pictures and weight were taken, and she is pretty proud. And no one can blame her for feeling this way.

Up fishing at Lake Macdonald the other evening — after fishing a small creek up to the mouth and into the lake, I had the opportunity of watching a couple of youngsters in their boat. In a reasonably high-powered craft, it appeared to me they were looking for trouble. A couple of young ladies were swimming not too far away, and the boys had to start showing off. Maybe I did things like this when I was young, I don't remember; but anyway they sure were cutting it fine. You know, a powerful boat is not the thing to try and see how close you can come to someone, without actually hitting them. The girls seemed to like the idea, but I don't think anyone there realized the danger of this sport, if you can call it that. Luckily no accident happened, so I guess I shouldn't complain. But it could have been more tragic, and that is what worries me.

Once more, a warning. The fire hazard is still very high; the recent rains don't seem to have done too much good to the bush. So please be careful with those smokes and camp fires. Don't try to see how many sparks you can get out of your fire; it isn't any fun trying to bring a fire under control, no matter how small this may start. Think of the loss of life — and it could be yours!

The fishing has not fallen off at all. Logically, the way to get those big greys is by trolling. From the information I have received (and this has been considerable) this West River lure is still the thing. The best form of trolling seems to have been with the line called Angle Hair; this is the very, very fine wire line, that can be used either on a casting reel or the regular trolling outfit. It appears to be doing better than the heavier lead lines. There are more and more trollers using a casting outfit with the Angle Hair line, every day. With the right lure they don't have to proceed very differently from casting. This type of rig is certainly more comfortable to use, with very little weight. The time, and energy too, used on the bigger outfits, can be better spent working your lures. As a result, better catches have been showing up every day. I haven't heard of any lake in the immediate area that has not yielded some good greys. . . The reds are not being caught with any regularity, just the odd one, and those people going after reds had better figure on light catches. . . Good pike are being taken in the Ottawa River; nothing startling in weight or size, but good enough for this time of the year. As for the doré, not too many of them have been showing up in this river, but these will start to hit once the water cools down. . .

. . Then, for the bass man, and there are many, this is the time of the year to lose that extra large one you missed last year. I was out on Lake Sir John with a couple of youngsters, who have just started fly fishing. One of them is going to be extra good; the other lad is just a shade too young as yet. At any rate they caught fish, and to tell the truth, they lost more than they caught. But even experienced bass fishermen do this all the time. It was great to see these lads; their eyes did cartwheels every time a fish rose to hit the fly. I was wishing for a real lunker to pay his respects — you know the kind, that stand on their tails and walk the waters, then when they appear beat, it turns out they were only fooling the first time, and hadn't really been trying to get off. This is a thrill you don't soon forget, and probably is the cause of more husbands leaving home than any other factor in the season. You've seen this type of man; he walks around talking to himself, forever poking into strange places on the chance he will come up with the bass bait he has been wanting for years! Hope springs eternal; that's what makes true anglers.

Gymkhana

Saturday afternoon 16 entries participated in a test of driving skill held at the C-I-L parking lot in Brownsburg. The cars were divided into three classes, according to the size of their wheelbase. They were allowed two runs each at a sharp, serpentine course — first, forward, and then in reverse. The fastest time was used for each competitor. There were penalty points for unnecessary squealing of tires, knocking down pylons, and not stopping in the required zones. The winners were:

Class A — Tom Smith, V.W.
Class B — Don Smith, Volvo
Class C — Ron Clark, Ford
Overall — Don Smith, Volvo

Tom Smith posted the fastest time of the day with a 2:54 in his Volkswagen, and Ron Clark gave a fine display of driving in his Ford Galaxie.

Lindsay Green and Earl Wilson are to be commended on a very fine event. Let's see more of this type in the future.

Rallying

On July 31, the Labatt 50 Rally was held in Grenville and covered approximately 90 miles through Lachute, Brownsburg, and the surrounding area. A few new tricks showed up in this rally, but generally it was routine. Of the three cars from LMSC that entered, the lowest placed fourth. The other two cars from our club came first and second.

Ken Rodger in a Valiant drove his best rally to date, and ended up in the number one position, followed closely by Jack Hume in a Volvo and his navigator Ron Tilsley. The next car, a Volvo driven by Allen Bates and navigated by Carl McCrea, was just edged out for the third position.

Molson's Summer Rally

The 145-mile Summer Rally to be held on August 21, will be covered in detail in this column next week. The route has been finalized and the organizers are now trying to find new ways to get us all lost. This should be one of the best events ever put on by our club, so why not plan on being a part of it!

Pit Chatter

Dave Bradley is going to have to raise that Healey of his about six inches if he expects to finish the Summer Rally. . . A certain MG sporting brand new Pirelli Cinturato tires was the only car to get stuck in the sand during our Gymkhana. . . Watch for the thermometer section in the Summer Rally — it's always good for laughs. . . The LMSC Rally Team finally received a fine trophy from Pierre Parent for their last victory.

Next Meeting — Friday, August 12, at the Masonic Hall, at 8 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

Hole-in-one at St. Andrews

Playing at St. Andrews Golf Club in an inter-club match, Mrs. D. J. Benson of Hudson Heights scored a hole in one. Mrs. Benson was playing under colors of the Arundel club. Her ace was scored with a No. 3 wood on the fifth hole, which is a par-3 137-yard stretch.

It is noted that the assistant pro at St. Andrews, Lorne McDonald (formerly of Lachute) placed seventh in the recent tournament for assistant professionals at Rockland.

Ladies' Section, Lachute Golf Club

Lachute Golf Club's first Invitation Tournament, on Friday, drew 120 ladies from surrounding clubs, a few spots of rain amid the sun, and a mother-daughter combination to lead the field.

Dora Darling and daughter, Mary Chalmers, of Whitlock, both shot 84s over the course No. 1 layout, but the honors of the day went to mother, Mrs. Darling, a nine-handicapper for her back-nine score of 40. Mary, who plays to a seven handicap, went out in 43 and returned in 41.

Receiving the third low gross prize was Lachute's Ladies' Club champion, Teddy Champagne, with 87. Right behind was Gil Ducas, Lachute, with 89.

The net prize went to Laurence Laplante, also of Lachute, for her net 74.

Other prize winners were:

(0-18 Handicap) —
2nd low net — Paule Vautrin, Laval, 76
3rd low net — V. Hansen, Whitlock, 77

(19-24 Handicap) —
1st low gross — Billy Fisher, Lachute, 96
2nd low gross — Shirley Reid, Royal Montreal, 99
3rd low gross — Huguette Perron, Valleyfield, 100
1st low net — Mrs. R. Pootman, Laval, 79
2nd low net — Mrs. Maureen Cumbers, Lachute, 80
3rd low net — Mrs. A. S. Mills, Whitlock, 81

(25-30 Handicap) —
1st low gross — P. Brosseau, Rosemere, 100
2nd low gross — Lise Lowe, Joliette, 104
3rd low gross — Cecile Lupien, Laval, 105
1st low net — M. Whitman, Cornwall, 81
2nd low net — Louise Spira, Pinegrove, 83
3rd low net — Alice Levac, Valleyfield, 84

(14-20 Handicap) —
Low gross — Lucie Robillard, Joliette, 93
Low net — Lorraine Mayotte, Lachute, 78.

The tournament was organized by Joyce Stephens as chairman and her committee, Alice Ayers, Pearl Jelinek and Barbara Wilkins, and many more ladies who gave up their time, and a game, to help out in various capacities.

Bits and Pieces

The Shotgun Start (all groups beginning at the same time on different tees) proved a great success, even if it startled the unsuspecting group of men who chanced to see a fair foursome of ladies rounding the 10th at 9.45. (You have to get up pretty early these days to get ahead of the weaker sex.) . . . The Putting Competition: So they said — "I was one-putting every green until someone mentioned I was 'putting well'. Then I three-putted all the way home" . . . It was pretty hard to open those gifts on Friday; they looked good enough to keep that way. Loretta Suhl, our artistic prize-wrapper, has more than golfing talent, we see.

. . . Oops! About that hole-in-one by Marie Stratton, reported to be on the seventh of Lachute's No. 2 course. That should have read "the 17", a 145 yard par 3. The seventh, incidentally, is down on the ladies' card as a 250 yard par 4, sometimes shorter if tees permit, but its slant would make it a pretty difficult hole-in-one. Sorry, and congratulations anyway.

Tournament Results

Tuesday Section — The winners of the two-round eclectic tourney are: Class A — Ellen Knobovitch, net 68; Class B — Freda Lucas, net 71; Class C — Angie Macharous, net 71.

Coming Up — "Hawaiian Night", Saturday, August 27, a dinner-dance with the orchestra of Denny Vaughan.

BOATING CLINIC

BY STAN DAVIES

The most important single piece of equipment on a power boat is the propeller. It is the device which applies the mechanical energy of the engine to the water to make the boat go.

It is also probably the most vulnerable device on a boat. Since it turns at high speed, if it hits almost anything it is bound to be damaged. So it is natural that propeller injury is the most common ailment of a power boat. Only vigilance and care can prevent this.

There are two measurements that are important to any discussion of propellers. They are diameter and pitch. The latter is a term which baffles many boaters. Pitch is not an angle, but a distance . . . a measurement of length.

A propeller moves through the water much the same as a screw turns into wood. In fact a propeller is often referred to as "the screw". Pitch is the distance it moves through the water in one complete turn, if there were no slip.

It is a theoretical measurement only, because unlike a wood screw which works in a solid medium, a propeller works in a liquid which slips back a little as the prop moves forward.

Pitch and diameter are important because the greater each is, the more power is required to turn the propeller. Selection of a propeller of the right pitch and diameter is important in controlling the speed of the engine or outboard motor . . . to make sure it is delivering its maximum horsepower without exceeding it's permissible rpm.

Here are some questions I've been asked on the highly technical topic of the prop:

My propeller cavitates, and the motor speeds up so I'd swear it's going to burst. (C.S. Carrying Place)

Answer: Cavitation is the condition in which the propeller spins around at high speed without moving through the water. It is often caused by operating too close to the surface . . . the prop sucks air down to form the cavity in which it spins. In this particular case it is probably caused by the wrong propeller for the boat and motor, or by nicks in the blades, or by malformed blades.

My outboard vibrates badly. Could it be the big nick I filed out of the propeller? (P. O. I. Cornwall)

Answer: Well if it isn't, it should be the cause. Filing any amount off one blade will put a prop very seriously out of balance, causing vibration.

My outboard vibrates excessively, but there doesn't seem to be any damage, or even wear on the prop. What is it? (P. Q. St. Boniface)

Answer: A lot of us have been fooled by appearance. The bend or distortion in a prop may not be discernible to the naked eye. Have it tested by a dealer.

There are two numbers on my propeller hub. What do they mean?

Answer: The first one is the diameter, the second pitch. For instance a 10-12 means 10 inch diameter with 12 inch pitch. It's always in inches. A third figure is shaft size.

My outboard runs well until I pull a wafer skier, then it seems to "labor". Why? (T. B. Calgary)

Answer: By "labor" I imagine you mean the engine doesn't run as fast as without the skier. Try a propeller with lower (shorter) pitch. This allows the motor to run faster and develop its full horsepower. To be right, you should have a tachometer then select the prop which lets the motor run at its full rpm with the water skier load.

I often pick up weeds which makes for vibration. Will this hurt the motor?

Answer: It will probably hurt the boat more. Bearings on outboards will stand a lot of vibration but many kinds of boats particularly wooden boats, won't.

I've read about "cupped edge" propellers. What's the advantage?

Answer: This is a new development. Cupping the blade reduces slip, and cavitation.

I've had an aluminum propeller. I'm told a bronze prop will damage my outboard motor. Is this so? (J. T. Toronto)

Answer: This is sheer nonsense. How does the engine know what the prop is made of. An old wives tale used to suggest that a bronze prop would harm the shifting mechanism. If you shift gears in an outboard with a good solid "snap", you'll never need worry about the material in the prop.

Severe damage in Tuesday storm

(Our District Correspondent)

Mabel — A severe thunderstorm between 5 and 6 p.m. Tuesday, accompanied by high winds and torrential rain, cut a swath of destruction through the area of Mabel and Ogdensburg. The storm appeared to reach hurricane proportions.

Large trees were uprooted, roofs were stripped, and a shed was upturned on one local property. Trees were laid across the roads, and they tore down electric power and telephone lines, disrupting these services. Specially notable in the damage to trees, was the considerable havoc caused to maple groves in this district.

News of similar damage came in Tuesday night from sections north of the above area. Among summer properties at Lake Louisa, trees were snapped and utility lines were down. . . Other areas in the vicinity have doubtless suffered damage, unreported as we go to press, and The Watchman expects to have pictures of the havoc for publication next week.

Grenville

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Miller, of Belleville, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Norton, of Montreal, were recent guests of Mr. S. C. Norton.

Mrs. Corl Gauley returned home Saturday from a week's holiday visiting with her daughter in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dansereau and Miss Yolande Caron, of St. Eustache and N.D.G., Mrs. Eddie Hartley and family, and Mrs. Margaret MacCullough and daughter, of Dorval, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dewar.

Get-well wishes are extended to Mr. Delbert Mott, who met with a very painful accident last week; also to Mr. Ross Matthew, and to Mrs. Eddy Gauley, who are all patients in the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury.

Sympathy is extended to the family of the late Mrs. Peter Mott, who passed away at her home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson and Miss Inez Dewar, of Montreal, were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Welden.

The Misses Katie and Mary Byrnes, and Mr. Eddy Byrnes, of St. Philippe, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Guy Villeneuve and Mr. and Mrs. Déas Dupuis.

Northern Grenville

Mrs. Earl MacIntyre visited with her daughter, Mrs. Bill Woods, in Metcalfe, Ont., last week.

Recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bigelow's were Mr. Randy Warner and a friend, Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Warner and daughter, Stacey, all from Greenfield Park, and Mrs. Stanley Coote, of St. Lambert.

Please keep in mind the Red Cross blood donor clinic in Hawkesbury Legion Hall on Friday, August 12th, 1 - 4.30 p.m. and 6 - 9 p.m.

Woman held in infant's death

Provincial Police have detained a young mother, Mme Hilaire Charron, 29, of St. Philippe, in connection with the death of her infant son, Stéphane, 10 months of age.

The child's death was confirmed by Dr. J. Dubois, of Hawkesbury, last Saturday, August 6. Sgt. Jean-Paul Dallaire and Cst. Gilles Lavigne, of the QPP headquarters in Lachute, went to investigate the incident. Coroner Dr. J. C. MacKimmie had the child's body removed to Montreal, where an autopsy performed by Dr. J.-P. Valcourt, revealed multiple skull fractures. From this point the Montreal homicide squad was called in, and Sgt. R. Gilbert, of that department, took charge. The officer stated the coroner had taken correct procedure in ordering the autopsy, which had revealed evidence of foul play.

The mother reportedly gave a confession to the police. She was placed under arrest and is being held in Montreal as a material witness for the inquest.

Bell Falls

Mr. Lauder MacRae, of Port Colborne, spent some time visiting his father, Mr. John MacRae. Mr. Ken Gallinger also visited Mr. MacRae.

Mrs. Robert Eastwood, Cindy and Donna, Mr. and Mrs. Laughie Page and Sue, left for South River to visit Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Provencal. Mrs. Provencal is at present in hospital; friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Agnes Brown, of Montreal, is visiting Mrs. Adam Page.

Congratulations and good wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Noel Baril, who were married in Montreal last Friday. Mrs. Baril is the former Carol Arthurs, of Bell Falls.

All the cottages in and around Bell Falls were occupied for the week-end.

The late Frank Watchorn

There passed away July 7, in Victoria, B.C. (at the home of his daughter, Miss Georgina Watchorn) Frank Watchorn, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Watchorn of Morin Heights, Que., in his 91st year.

The late Mr. Watchorn is survived by his wife, Annie; one son, Lloyd, of Campbell River, B.C.; three daughters, Mrs. R. Cusson (Estelle), of Lantzville, B.C., Mrs. H. L. Bergstrom (Olive), of New Westminster, B.C., and Miss Georgina Watchorn, of Victoria; and two adopted sisters, Mrs. J. H. Davis and Mrs. R. G. Thomson both of Victoria; six grandchildren and one great-grandson.

A memorial service was held Saturday, July 9, in the chapel of the First United Church, followed by cremation and interment in the family plot.

Mr. Watchorn went to Victoria from Morin Heights in 1910, and later lived for many years at Nanaimo, B.C.

District NEWS

FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Mabel

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mrs. George H. Murdoch in the sudden passing of her father, Mr. David Mc-Donald, of Montreal, on Friday last. Mr. McDonald was a frequent visitor to this community and had won the respect of those who knew him.

Utility Services

When will we get it? How soon will the electric power lines be finished, and the current turned on? These are questions uppermost in the minds and conversations of many Half Moon Lake summer residents, as they wait rather impatiently for electricity in their cottages. One family has had two converted Aladdin lamps plugged in for some time, and keep waiting. However, work is progressing rapidly and one notes that most of the poles are in. It is of interest that telephone lines will quickly follow the electricity. These two public services will be a great boom to residents at Half Moon Lake and increase its popularity as a summer resort area.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, In Memoriam, etc., $1.00; 10 cents per type line extra for verses with In Memoriam (estimate 8 words per type line.)

BIRTHS

ALEXANDER — Stan and Marion (née Nesbitt), are happy to announce the birth of their son, at the Royal Victoria Hospital, on July 29, 1966. Both well.

BRADFORD — To Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bradford (née Nicol), at the Herbert Reddy Memorial Hospital on Aug. 7, 1966, a girl (8 lbs. 2 ozs.); sister for Grayson. Both well.

IN MEMORIAM

BIGELOW — In loving memory of a husband and father, who died two years ago, on Aug. 8, 1964. — Always remembered by his wife, Sharon, daughters, mother-in-law, father-in-law, also his brothers-in-law, Grandmother Young, Grandmother and Grandfather Oswick.

"The Garden of God is a beautiful place,
A place where we go to rest,
The day God called you home, Eric —
I know He called one of the best."

CARPENTER — In loving memory of Mother and Grandmother, Mrs. George B. Carpenter, who passed away Aug. 9, 1963. — Ever remembered by Cecil, Myrtle and Harold.

"Always in our memory,
We seem to find a way
To wander back and meet you
On the road to yesterday."

GOLDEN (Leslie) — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who left us Aug. 11, 1965. — Remembered by his wife and family.

HADLEY (Eva) — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, who passed away Aug. 12, 1956. — Always remembered by the family.

"One precious to our home has gone,
The voice we loved is still,
The place made vacant in our hearts
Can never more be filled."

HUGHES — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Leslie Hughes, who passed away three years ago, August 3, 1963 — Wife, Hilda, and son, Earl.

"More and more each day we miss him;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lying within our hearts concealed."

MacLEAN — In fond memory of Lauchie MacLean, who passed away April 4, 1959, also Russell MacLean, who passed away, Aug. 11, 1963. Always remembered by — Mom, Elsie and Rhoda.

"Memories keep the wound still open
Despite the passing of the years."

McKAY — In loving memory of my mother, Susannah McKay, who died Aug. 11, 1965. — Inserted by Mrs. Bellamy Maxom, Ottawa.

"No one knows the silent heartaches,
Only those who have lost can tell
The grief we bear in silence
For the one we loved so well."

OUIMET (Donat) — In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away Aug. 13, 1953. — Always remembered by his wife, Germaine.

"The world changes from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I love
From memory pass away."

OUIMET (Donat) — In loving memory of a dear father, who passed away Aug. 13, 1953. — Always remembered by his children.

"We had a Dad we were proud to own,
How much we miss him will never be known;
The heartaches in this world are many,
But the loss of our Dad was the greatest of any."

TRINEER — In loving memory of my husband, Robert Trineer, who passed away Aug. 15, 1965. — Ever remembered by your wife, Florence.

"I am lonely here without you,
Sadness marks the day —
This world is not the same to me
Since you were called away."

TRINEER (Robert J.) — In loving memory of a dear father, father-in-law and grandfather, whom we lost on August 15, 1965. Fondly remembered and sadly missed — Hilda, Sylvio and Leanne.

"Always thoughtful, always kind,
A better father was hard to find;
He left us suddenly, his thoughts unknown,
But he left us a memory we're proud to own.
So treasure him Lord, in your garden of rest,
For on earth he was one of the best."

YOUNG — In loving memory of Delmer Young, who died two years ago, on Aug. 8, 1964. — Always remembered by Mum, Dad, sister, brothers, nieces, Grandmother Young, and Grandmother and Grandfather Oswick.

"Peaceful be thy rest, dear son,
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
As in life we loved you dearly,
So in death we do the same."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Regatta Held

Recently, a successful regatta was held at Bevan Lake under the committee. There was a large attendance, the weather was perfect, and the events were colorful and interesting. During the afternoon refreshments served were in charge of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Arundel Legion Branch. The committee are to be congratulated on the running of another fine regatta. On the Saturday evening prior to the event, a dance was held in the school auditorium, where again the Auxiliary were in charge of refreshments.

Anniversary Preachers

This month the Arundel United Church is observing its centenary, and filling the pulpit this past Sunday was the Rev. Mr. Wilfong, a former minister who had charge of this parish 10 years ago. Mrs. Wilfong accompanied him on his trip. . . Next week the pulpit will be occupied by the Rev. K. Fenton. It is pleasing to welcome these former clergymen back, if only for such a short period.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Oulton are occupying their cottage for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Douglas and family, of Ottawa, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott — Mrs. Douglas remaining over for a week's visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Staniforth and family, of Niagara Falls, were week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Staniforth.

The Rev. Roy Campbell

Vacationing in this area during August is the Rev. Roy D. Campbell, Pastor-Pilot of the Floating Chapel, a 34-ft. cabin cruiser used for conducting amplified open air services across harbours, wharves and parks in the Atlantic Provinces.

A native of Montreal and frequent visitor to the cottage of his brother, R. H. Campbell in Lachute, Mr. Campbell has just resigned from the Pugwash Baptist Church in Nova Scotia to assume the pastorate of First Baptist Church of Corner Brook, N'fld, a progressive city of 30,000 population in Canada's newest province.

The Floating Chapel has been seen on the National News Bulletin of the CBC-TV and has been carried on local TV stations and in newspapers in many areas. It reaches thousands with the herald of the trumpets announcing its approach, and the new "bell" amplifier sends both the vocals and the sermons in all directions at once.

In the three years of operation, the craft has visited New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, the Minas Basin, and a prolonged "water crusade" was conducted on the Saint John River.

APPRECIATION TO ST. JERUSALEM VOTERS

Sincere thanks to supporters and taxpayers who favored me with their votes and helped in the recent Parish of St. Jerusalem election. I hope that my term of office may prove worthy of your confidence.

Gaston Giroux
Councillor-elect

Lachute minister speaker at cairn dedication in N.S.

Led by a pipe band, hundreds of people marched last Sunday, August 7, to a cairn at Loch Broom, Pictou County, N.S., to mark the place where the first Presbyterian Church in Canada was built in 1787. It was constructed of logs and was 40 feet long and 25 feet wide. The seats were slabs supported by blocks. An upper floor supported a number of seats and was reached by a ladder (only the young members used the loft). The first minister was the Rev. James MacGregor, coming from Scotland in 1786.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Fred Pauley, minister of the Presbyterian Church at Durham, who was responsible for having the cairn erected. Special preacher was the Very Rev. C. Ritchie Bell, D.D., minister-elect of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church here.

"The church is bigger and greater and finer than any form or pattern in which it may be found in any age. It is bigger than any one of us put together," Dr. Bell said. "We stand today on Holy Ground. There are too many today who want to scrap everything that has lasted longer than a five-year period. Some people can do it — but you cannot scrap history. The record stands. We belong to no small, poor, insignificant company of half-wits, downtrodden, defeated, despairing; we belong, on the contrary, to the mighty, irresistible army of God, to that great host no man can number, stretching back across the centuries and around the world.

"We should stop apologizing for the Church; we have no need to be on the defensive. We have no need of patronizing condescension from the seats of the mighty and the learned and TV personalities of our day. The Church and the Gospel are not on trial before the world, it is rather the world and man that are on trial, and before God."

Expo passports as prize awards

Customers in The Watchman's "Bazaar of Values" promotion are urged to ask for sales slips from the participating merchants — to fill in their name and address, and mail to: Bazaar of Values, Box 220, Lachute. The next drawing of lucky winners takes place on August 22.

Those having already won passports are advised they will sent out as soon as available. The passports were received for this purpose only in the past day or so.

APPRECIATION

I wish to express sincere thanks to relatives and friends for their visits, cards, gifts and flowers, during my stay in the Smith Clinic.

Ottawa authority praises Museum at Carillon

It is noted that 1,200 persons visited the Carillon Museum during July, indicating a healthy public interest in this spot.

A letter of commendation was received by Mr. Alvin Heatlie, the curator of the Museum, last week, which speaks highly for the improvements effected at this spot. The letter reads as follows:

National Museum of Canada,
Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Sir:

I wish to express the pleasure that the visiting of your regional museum has brought to my wife and myself last Sunday. If I recall the state in which I have seen the museum back in the 30's and visiting it today, I sincerely believe that you did a wonderful lift-up job. I wish to extend my congratulations to the members of the Society for their splendid efforts.

May I formulate a suggestion: more signs should be installed in your region, bringing the message to motorists, since Carillon Dam will be bringing more and more tourists to your region.

Yours sincerely,

Georges Ayotte
Chief Designer.

Lachute couple wed recently in pretty ceremony

Clark - Laurin

The marriage of Helen Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Laurin, of Lachute, to Richard Kenneth Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Clark, of Upper Lachute, took place on July 9 in the Lachute United Church, the Rev. W. Harold Thompson officiating.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a gown of [illegible] and Guipure lace, [illegible] on empire lines, having a [illegible] bodice, scoop neckline, brief sleeves and an A-line skirt with a back panel falling into a train. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held by a small pillbox appliquéd with the same lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and pink Sweetheart roses

Miss Sharon Paul, maid-of-honor, Miss Sandra Laurin and Mrs. Diane Gauley, sisters of the bride, and Miss Nora Streeter, attendants, were in floor length gowns of pink silk organza fashioned on empire lines, having scoop necklines, elbow-length sleeves and A-line skirts which fell into short trains. They wore flowered headpieces with black veiling and carried cascade bouquets of blue carnations.

Little Miss Shelley MacTavish, the bride's niece, as flower girl, was in a floor length gown of pink silk organza, fashioned on empire lines. She also wore a circlet of blue pompoms in her hair, and carried a cascade bouquet of white and blue carnations.

Mrs. Laurin, the bride's mother, was in a ciel blue silk costume, the dress having a Guipure lace bodice and an A-line skirt. She wore a blue tulle hat with blue flowers, blue shoes, white accessories and a corsage bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Clark, mother of the bridegroom, was in an ivory silk gown with an Alençon lace bodice. She wore an aqua petal hat, ivory accessories, and a corsage bouquet of orange Delight roses.

Following a reception held at the Masonic Temple, Mr. and Mrs. Clark motored to the United States, the bride travelling in a mint green ensemble, consisting of an A-line dress and a coat which gathered at the back. She wore a moss green tulle hat trimmed with pink flowers, white accessories and a corsage bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses.

The couple are now residing in Chomedey.

Murphy - Davis

The marriage of Dianne Patricia, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davis, to Mr. Jeffry Thomas Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Murphy, took place recently at the Lachute United Church.

The bride was gowned in an A-line floor-length dress of white organza over taffeta, with lace appliqués, and a chapel train falling from the shoulders.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Robert Dendy, as matron of honor, and by Miss Gail Ford, cousin of the bride, Miss Linda Jones and Miss Edna Downing. The attendants were dressed in similar floor-length gowns on empire lines and lace bodices with a floating back panel. The matron of honor was gowned in jade and the bridesmaids in iced turquoise.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Graham Murphy, Mr. Drummond Hall, Mr. Robert Davis and Mr. Gary Kelly.

Mrs. Davis, mother of the bride, was gowned in a pink and blue printed sheath dress with a matching sheer coat and white accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Murphy, mother of the groom, wore an aqua sheath and matching lace jacket, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Townsman wed in ceremony at Lachine, Que.

Cruise - Guimond

The marriage of Barbara Katherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Guimond, of Lachine, to Mr. Gary Wayne Cruise, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cruise, of Lachute, took place recently in Summerlea United Church, Lachine, the Rev. D. H. MacFarlane officiating. Mr. J. Gordon Anderson played the wedding music and Mrs. Harold Meadows sang during the signing of the register.

Standards of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and greenery were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a gown of white satin organza fashioned on classical lines, with a bodice having a high neckline and elbow-length sleeves appliquéd with rose point Guipure lace, and a skirt falling into a chapel train. Her full-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of Guipure lace and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Miss Claudia Harris, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Roger Dunn, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Dick Van Aelst and Miss Anne Janhevich, as attendants, were in frocks of yellow linen embroidered in yellow and white, with bodices having round necklines and short sleeves, and sheath skirts, and wore matching headdresses trimmed with veiling. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of white shasta daisies and yellow Sweetheart roses, and the attendants carried bouquets of white shasta daisies centered with yellow gladioli blossoms.

Mr. Ian Duncan acted as best man for Mr. Cruise, and ushers were Mr. Bruce Cairns, Mr. Del MacTavish and Mr. Roger Dunn, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Guimond, mother of the bride, wore a gown of beige silk linen appliquéd with ecru Guipure lace, with a lace pillbox of the same shade, beige accessories and had a spray of Orange Delight roses pinned to her handbag.

Mrs. Cruise, the mother of the bridegroom, was in a gown of beige silk crepe appliquéd with lace, under a matching coat. She wore a pink silk organza hat, deep pink accessories and had a cluster of American Beauty roses attached to her purse.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Ramada Inn, where arrangements of white and yellow chrysanthemums and candles in silver candelabra were used to decorate. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Cruise left for the United States, the bride travelling in a frock of aqua print silk under a coat and wearing a pillbox hat of aqua linen, bone straw and patent leather accessories and a corsage bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses.

The couple have since taken up residence in Mountain View, Lachute.

'67 and Expo spur overdue improvements

THE PARK SITE operations along the Ottawa River in this County are impressive. However, fresh from a tour along Ontario highways, we are deeply conscious of Quebec's backward facilities for the camping and picnicking fraternity, as compared with those of the next-door province. From observation, we are also aware of long lapses of inactivity at these Ottawa River sites — and the trend in vacationing these days gives emphasis to Quebec's need to hustle and accelerate such works to completion.

We are awakened to this situation by the visit of a group of trailer-travellers from France to the Expo site in Montreal. This group of 19 families is currently on a 23-day tour of Quebec and Ontario, and to the visitors, the contrast between the two provinces will be as regrettably obvious as it is to ourselves. They represent a club which numbers 6,000 members, and their impressions to be reported in the camping magazines, will reflect unfavorably on Quebec.

It is stated that the provincial government hopes to have 30,000 sites ready by the start of Expo '67, many of them in the Montreal area. Our lack of camping grounds is admitted by tourist authorities to be a big problem. It is a matter of regret that public needs, thus long ignored or neglected, have a habit of costing much more when a crisis calls for action. They require exhaustive time and red tape. Tardy progress on Quebec's highways was an example. And the same may be said of our water pollution problem (reiterated this week by The Watchman's outdoors columnist). These are critical examples to illustrate that Quebec cannot afford to lag behind. Delay may save a dollar now, but will cost many times that sum at a later date. Old World charm and tradition may attract visitors, but these are no substitute for the modern conveniences and facilities of travel.

Broken homes on the increase

The latest Canadian divorce figures, 8941 in 1965 — 45.7 per 100,000 population — are up another hefty notch. They have been rising steadily since the 6563 (36.0) figure of 1961. When wider grounds than adultery are admitted (as they certainly should and will be soon) it takes no omniscience to predict that they will skyrocket.

The causes of marital breakdown have been examined and re-examined by sociologists. We've had everything from sexual incompatibility to extreme youthfulness and working wives. No doubt all these have played their part but another cause that no one seems to have trotted out, is plain old-fashioned selfishness.

As long as men and women look exclusively at their rights and desires and not at all at their responsibilities, partnerships will continue to dissolve. Indeed, often there never was genuine partnership.

The latter, in any field, marital or commercial, implies that the contracting parties invest in an enterprise which together, they create. Inevitably in the yoking there will be tensions, the need by each to adjust the pace, so that both carry a fair part of the load as well as sharing in the hoped-for bounty.

There will be times, when for the sake of the undertaking, one partner must, temporarily at least, give ground. The ability to subjugate present satisfactions for future good is a mark of maturity — a quality noticeably lacking in many who (irrespective of actual age) are making, and breaking vows today.

Unless we face the unpalatable truth that no good marriage can be built by shoddy individuals, and do something to instil integrity and sturdy character in the young, homes will continue to fall apart leaving a tragic harvest of disturbed, insecure children and frustrated, bitter adults who feel, as one writer put it, "like unwashed dinner plates" because they have failed in the deepest of all possible human relationships.

Can't subsist on sentiment

THERE ARE clearly too many Canadian farmers trying to scratch out a living on small plots which cannot be made economically productive, The Financial Post says. An estimated 95,000 families live on farms with gross sales of less than $2,500 annually. In one area, the so-called Interlake region of Manitoba, of 3,500 farms one-third sell annually between $1,200 and $2,500 worth of products; more than a third sell less than $1,200. These facts of rural poverty, which affect incomes and welfare costs in general, make it imperative (The Financial Post comments) that Ottawa and the provinces work together successfully to get ARDA's farm redevelopment program off the ground. . .

The plan is to buy up subsistence farms and give the farmers a chance at a better life either as owner-operators of large farm units, made up from land the governments have purchased, or off the farm and in some other occupation altogether. Whichever way of life the farmers choose, there is one over-riding requirement: that they be given the skills necessary to work effectively and successfully once the process of change begins.

Viewpoints and perspectives

FEAR PARKINSON'S LAW. — Despite the fact that Canada's standard of living is among the top three in the world, many citizens find difficulty in making ends meet. Desires for luxuries and extravagances seem to increase more rapidly than our earnings. We are in danger of becoming so carried away by material prosperity that what we call our "needs" will always grow to match our income.
—Swift Current (Sask.) Sun.

WHAT HAS THE length of a student's hair got to do with his achievement? When school principals send boys home to get their long hair cut, parents should reply by sending the lad back with a picture of Albert Einstein — says one of our non-conformist exchanges.

There seems to be an unfortunate failure in reasoning which relates long hair to low grades! The lad is a failure in school. The lad has low grades. So, cut his hair and his grades will go up? Is that the way reasoning processes work?

To make him cut his hair will no more strengthen his mental ability than it will strengthen a chin line to shave a beard. The one thing it will do, however, is to emphasize false values. The teacher may be implying that it is all right to fail as long as your hair is short; you must conform to outward rules and regulations no matter how you feel inside.

Is this helpful to the educational system? Would it not be better for educators to look at the boy who may be covering up his personality problems by growing long hair and seek to help the underlying cause? — asks this commentator, by way of argument.

So many wild generalities are being tossed around in the field of education that one begins to wish that the old story of the unwashed lad being sent home by a teacher "because he has an offensive odor" might be revived. The boy returned to school with a note from his mother: "Johnnie ain't no rose. Teach him. Don't smell him."

CLAMP ON DREAM DRUGS — A campaign aimed at illicit traffic in and possession of the hallucinogenic drug is necessary for the protection of the public. The effect of LSD varies greatly from user to user. Even without the documented cases of psychotic behavior among some LSD users, there is enough uncertainly about long-term effects on individuals to justify the stricter controls.

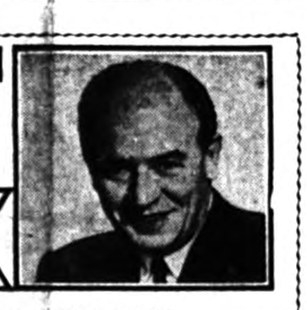
Centennial Report



1867 | 1967 by JOHN W. FISHER CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

I have written before about the great 4,000-mile water route to be travelled by our Centennial Canoe Pageant next summer. Ten canoes manned by teams from the provinces will traverse the historic waterway from the Rocky mountains to Montreal. The fact that Canada stretches from sea to sea is due partly to the existence of this and other waterways.

The "north west passage" by water across Canada was established long before the time of Confederation. In fact, one might say, it had its beginnings when Columbus and many other explorers unsuccessfully sought a seaway to the far east through the west.

The explorers discovered the first part of the waterway west of Montreal in their hunt for a route to China. Then, once found, it became the highway of the fur traders who had learned that there was local wealth to be exploited — much closer than China or India.

While the fur traders were producing considerable commercial canoe traffic between Montreal and the Rocky Mountains, other people were still intent on finding a north west passage for big ships. Twenty-two years before Confederation Sir John Franklin, the great Arctic explorer almost forgotten by Canadians today, set out to find a northern shipping route through the Arctic with two Royal Navy ships, the Erebus and the Terror.

There were 129 officers and men on Franklin's two ships when they entered the Arctic area in 1845. They were seen last in July of that year by another passing ship in Baffin's Bay. Then the Erebus and the Terror vanished and none of the 129 ever returned from the Arctic.

Numerous expeditions sent from England, from the United States and by groups from the Hudson's Bay Company searched for the lost explorers without success.

Evidence uncovered in later years proved that the Erebus and the Terror, trapped in Arctic ice, had not been abandoned until three years after they had been sighted by that passing ship in Baffin's Bay. As late as 1850 Eskimos saw a large party of white men travelling south near the mainland, dragging a small boat and sleds. There are many conflicting stories about what actually happened to the 129 men.

In 1859 an expedition sent out by Lady Franklin found a written record by a captain of one of the ships. It gave an account of their terrible trials up to the spring of 1848.

Franklin was lost but the search expeditions provided information for the mapping of a vast area of the Arctic with its complicated islands, inlets and straits.

Although much knowledge was gained through Arctic expeditions in the mid-nineteenth century the canoe route across Canada remained, for a long time, the backbone of the east-west transportation system and the one we will "rediscover" with our Centennial canoes. Even today, with all our technology, the north west passage via the Arctic waterway is not for use by commerce.

During Centennial year Canadians will be looking at history with renewed interest. Like the story of the search for the north west passage, which I have barely touched in this short column, there are many more which make fascinating reading for young and old.

A Visit To The Hometown

Spent a week in the old hometown recently, and, as usual, it was anything but a rest. The weather was perfect, but the hospitality was exhausting.

It's not really my hometown. I didn't grow up there, physically. But I spent a decade there in the newspaper business, and maybe I grew up there in other ways. Anyway, when you walk down the main street, and every second person stops to shake hands and ask about your family, and tell you what their kids are doing now, it's your hometown.

A smalltown changes and yet remains the same. A few businesses have changed hands. Some of the stores have new fronts. The paint on the hotel has been changed from passionate purple to ghastly green. The shady, tree-lined street on which you used to live has been raped: the stately trees cut to ugly stumps, as the street is to be widened.

But the biggest changes are in the people. The young men you used to work and play with are grizzled or as bald as eggs. The young women you used to look at with some interest because of their big eyes are sagging and dentured. The lovable kids that your kids used to play with are hulking adolescents, some of them delinquents with police records. And your old partner, once apparently indestructible, is taking eight different colors of pills.

Despite the changes, there is continuity as comfortable as an old fishing hat. The Chamber of Commerce is still fighting over store hours. The Industrial Commission is on the verge of announcing a huge new industry. The fire brigade races periodically to the town dump, where the incinerating process has got out of hand because the caretaker has bogged off for a beer.

Some of the local characters have gone to their reward, but many are still around. The local lawyer still plays his electric organ between clients. The local millionaire still slugs bags of salt and feed into the back of his '66 model and lugs it out to feed his cattle. The barber, with whom you once shared a riotous Legion zone rally, still quips with his customers, though he went off to fight in a war over 50 years ago. The canny Scot chortles as he tells you his shore lots are now going over $4,000. The same waiter insults the same customers, in the pub. The same beer barrel in human form sits in the same seat in the same pub.

The same people still come to the same cottages. Except that the pregnant young matron was a skinny kid in bare feet last time you saw her. And the handsome young chap who works at the summer store was a tyke called Johnny-Cake last time you saw him.

However, it's good to get back for a visit. And it's never uneventful.

Kept my hand in by writing a few news stories for the paper. Took the family to the Indian reserve; same beautiful view and easy-going inhabitants. Dropped in on old friends and got all the latest dope on who was going crazy, and who was running around with whom.

Had a beer at The Cedar Rail, most unique bar in the country, and with the best prices. It's a shed on a farm, full of tools and baled hay. A cedar rail extends across the front. You stand there with your farmer friend, lean on the rail and look at the lake down below. We've seen deer and bear from there, and covered local politics and talked cattle.

Got stuck in the sand at the beach, to the rage of my wife. She went flying off to find a tow truck, in a friend's car. While she was away, I was pulled out easily by a man with no arms, who had a chain in his trunk, a wife to drive his car, and a gaggle of kids to help push. Sounds like fiction, but it's fact.

It could only happen in or around the old hometown.

Crisis In Centennial Year

It is too early yet to judge how far Premier Daniel Johnson will take Quebec along the road to separatism. But behind the scenes, there are ominous portents that centennial year could be decisive in determining Quebec's future.

After recent discussions with a numbr of knowledgeable bec residents, I am more pessimistic than ever that a final and complete split can be avoided.

Despite reassurances by Premier Johnson in the first days of his administration, those close to the Quebec political scene warn that the new administration is merely biding its time before striking out on a radically nationalistic policy.

"The revolution will go on — nothing will slow down," I was told. The implication here was that Premier Johnson, elected with only 42 per cent. of the vote, will take an increasingly nationalistic stance in a bid for additional support.

It must be remembered that while Jean Lesage was an outspoken advocate of a new role for Quebec in Confederation, he also came from a national political organization, with long experience and association at Ottawa. Johnson, in contrast, represents a purely provincial party with no ties to the federal scene.

It can therefore be hoped that the Pearson administration will take a more decisive stand in dealing with Quebec. There can be no question of launching any kind of offensive against Quebec's legitimate aspirations. But is separatism legitimate?

While it can be hoped that it would be premature to judge separation as a Johnsonian goal, the time has come for Canada to make up its mind on whether it will permit Quebec to secede should French Canada opt in that direction.

So far, no such decision has been rendered.

The chief effects which separation would have on Canada are obvious. Quebec would control the gateway to Central Canada. World shipping would have to pass through Quebec territory — the Gulf of St. Lawrence — to gain entrance to the Seaway. This would affect both Canada and the United States. Unless a customs union could be established, Canada would encounter tremendous difficulties in fulfilling such agreements as shipments of wheat to the Soviet Union, which now mostly pass through the port of Montreal.

A significant development which has so far escaped public notice is the trickle of "refugees" already starting to flee Quebec.

I was told by a Montreal businessman that he and "at least" thirty f his friends had transferred their investments and bank accounts from Quebec to Ontario.

Before the apparently mounting tide of separatism becomes any stronger in Quebec, some federal spokesman should point out the benefits which that province enjoys in Confederation.

While Quebec leaders constantly harp on the flow of tax money from Quebec to Ottawa, nothing is ever said about the federal support which goes back to French Canada. This covers every field from family allowances to all manner of federal services such as tax grants, defense installations, and federal economic assistance.

One example will suffice. The Eastern Quebec Planning Bureau, financed jointly by Quebec and Ottawa, has recommended a five-year program to boost the living standards of the Gaspe and Lower St. Lawrence regions. This commendable plan would cost federal and provincial governments tens of millions of dollars. Would Quebec taxpayers — if told the facts — really prefer to go it alone? It's time someone started selling Confederation to French Canada.

The basic question to be faced in this issue is the right of a people to self-determination. The separatists place their main argument on this philosophy. But what of the right of a federal union to maintain itself intact? The United States met this problem a century ago and it took a civil war to resolve it. Ottawa should rule now on whether a province is to have the right to secede, because if Quebec were to do so, other provinces would not be long in following.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

I can't for the life of me figure out why there is not more winter wheat grown in Quebec. It is not that there isn't a market; we grow only 8000 tons of wheat in Quebec and we import 176,000 tons. And it is not a question of winter survival; College plots have come through well wherever they have been tried in the province.

Besides, winter wheat yields almost twice as much as oats, if measured in field value per acre. It is planted between seasons in the fall and harvested between seasons in the summer, spreading out the work load. It stands well in the field, and it threshes easily. Its feeding value is in the category of barley or corn, and it is higher in protein. It makes a good companion crop for a new seeding because it is removed early. And you can even get a fall pasturing off it, without losing yield.

Wink Keeler has just recently finished swathing a beautiful stand of Richmond wheat on the Provincial Seed Farm. He says it will go close to a ton and a half grain per acre. The moisture when he cut it was 20% by the tester. It will be down to 15% by the time it goes into the bin. Wink says he could have waited a few more days and direct-combined it because it stands well even when dead ripe. And if it stood last Monday's storm, it can stand anything.

Wink likes both the Richmond variety and the newer Talbot. Talbot yields a bit higher, he says, but Richmond is more winter-hardy, and ripens earlier. As for date of planting, College trials have shown equal yields when sown between the first and the twentieth of September. Later than that, yields fall off, and earlier, top growth is too heavy to go safely into the winter.

If wheat is to follow sod, the ploughing should be done at least one month before seeding to kill the old grass and to build up soil moisture supply, if it is to follow spring grains, and if weeds are not a problem, you might get away with a good double discing.

Fall wheat responds to good fertilizer treatment. Three hundred pounds of 5-20-20, in the fall, followed by fifty pounds of nitrogen broadcast as early as possible in the spring won't be too far off. Wheat can use a lot more nitrogen than oats without risk of lodging.

Weed control for wheat is much the same as for barley or oats. If it is not seeded down, 8 oz. acid of 2, 4, D. amine or up to 12 oz. M.C.P.A. per acre in 10 - 15 gallons water will look after most broad-leafed weeds.

Fall rye is another crop that is worth looking at to fill in the feed-grain gap. It has a reputation for being unpalatable, but you can sneak it past the animals' noses if you mix it with other grain. I am told too, it is miserable stuff to combine, unless you swath it first, and to do this job you will need a machine with a reel that can handle the six-foot straw.

But in its favor, it is more winter-hardy than wheat. It gives a bonus of fall and spring pasture; it yields well even on sandy soils with low fertility. And nutritionally, it is a good feed grain, ranking close to barley and corn in total digestible nutrients.

Between them it seems to me that fall-seeded rye and wheat could go a fair way toward plugging the gap of our 10 million bushel feed grain deficit in Eastern Canada.

Another man well known in rural Quebec has joined the College staff. Rudi Dallenbach is taking on the new position of Farm Operations.

Rudi, perhaps is best known for his work in Rural Development. He was up to his ears in it in his home county, Brome, and for the past two years he has been on a special ARDA assignment in Prince Edward Island.

But Rudi is also a very successful farm manager. He was raised on a 1200 acre farm in Switzerland, and has managed farms in Ontario and in Brome County. I remember walking with him through knee-deep alfalfa pasture on the Timmin's farm, in an area where alfalfa isn't supposed to grow. And Rudi was one of the first in the province to adopt the practice of seeding down without a cereal cover crop. By September, he was harvesting a two-ton hay crop from a field seeded in May.

And here is another of Rudi's ideas I haven't seen anywhere else. He liked to bale his alfalfa young and tough. But he couldn't justify the expense of a hay drier. So he bought a roll of two-mil plastic sheeting, three feet wide, cut it into eight lengths, and covered the stooks of bales in the fields. There they stayed, protected from the weather, until dry enough to go into the barn. Rudi says the sheets were good for three or four years. He tucked the ends under the bale strings to keep the wind from lifting the sheets.

Speaking of wind, the Chateauguay Valley had a real humdinger of a storm a few days ago. It demolished at least one barn and a silo, damaged others, and played havoc with the apple crop.

I remember a tornado that ripped across the back of our farm a few years back, cutting a swath a quarter mile wide across the country. My cousin lost his barn. They are still looking for their turkey gobbler.

To sin by silence when they should protest, makes cowards out of men.

Cattle imports from France

Ottawa — The Canada Department of Agriculture's maximum security quarantine station at Grosse Ile, Quebec, will be reopened this fall for importation of cattle from France, according to Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene.

Mr. Greene said that any cattle coming from France would most likely enter the French quarantine station at Brest in early September as they did last year. After passing tests, they would be brought to Canada in October.

Machinery prices climb steadily

Edmonton (CP) — Farm machinery manufacturers say the steady increase in prices of their products is warranted by increased effiency and comfort of the new machines.

W. P. Foss, president of Minneapolis Moline, said at the annual convention of the Alberta Retail Implement Dealers Association that horsepower of farm machinery engines will increase significantly within a few years.

"With more horsepower in his tractor and with larger equipment, the farmer can take care of more acres per day and reduce his unit cost of producing food."

Mr. Foss said more dualwheel and four-wheel-drive machinery will be designed to use the increased power most effectively.

Brunch-time shower has advantages

One wouldn't normally expect to find scrambled eggs and bacon at a shower, but that's just what can be served if the shower is held at brunch time.

Originally thought up out of necessity because it was the only time the prospective bride had free — the brunch-time shower has several advantages.

If some of the hostesses are mothers of small children, they can make the party coincide with nap time. Then if any or all of the participants are working girls they can spend more time helping with the preparations . . . and enjoying the actual party . . . than if it were held during the evening. And also since half the fun of showers is in surprising the bride, there's little risk of her guessing why she's being invited.

Food and drink served at brunch can be different from tea-time showers. Eggs and bacon are welcome, as well as French café-au-lait — fresh or instant coffee served with plenty of hot milk — and Cheese Filled Crescent Rolls. Made from a basic yeast dough, they are light tender puffs with hearts of golden melted cheese.

They can either be served warm from the oven, or reheated and served with jam, jelly or marmalade.

Cheese-Filled Crescent Rolls

(Yield — 2 dozen rolls)

1 Cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope fast-rising active dry yeast, 5 cups (about) pre-sifted all - purpose flour, ½ cup chilled butter or margarine, 1 well-beaten egg, 2 dozen fingers process cheese, 1 slightly-beaten egg white, 1 tablespoon water, salt.

Scald milk; stir in the 1 teaspoon salt and the 2 tablespoons sugar. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into a measuring cup; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Sift 2½ cups of the flour into a large bowl. Cut butter or margarine in finely. Stir dissolved yeast and beat until smooth and elastic. Stir in only enough additional flour to make a soft dough — about 2½ to 2¾ cups more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour. Cut 24 fingers of process cheese 2x½x½ inches.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 3 equal portions and shape into smooth balls. Roll out one ball of dough into a round 10 inches in diameter and brush with melted butter or margarine; cut dough into 8 pie-shaped wedges.

Place a finger of cheese on rounded edge of each piece of dough and roll up toward the point. Place each roll, well apart, on a cookie sheet, points under and shape slightly into crescents. Repeat with the remaining balls of dough. Grease tops. Cover with a tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 40 minutes. Brush tops with a mixture of slightly-beaten egg white and water and sprinkle lightly with salt. Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes.

Fruits and vegetables sold by grade

(Consumer Section)

Do You Know That?

—Most Canadian fresh fruits and vegetables grown in commercial quantities are sold by grade.

—The word "Canada" in the grade name means that the produce has been graded in accordance with federal standards which are enforced by Canada Department of Agriculture inspectors.

—Fruits and vegetables bearing a "Canada" grade name must be in standard packages or containers. Besides the grade name the following information must be shown: — the name and address of the packer, variety of fruit (if apples or pears), number in box or carton (if apples, peaches or pears), net weight on bags, and size range in the case of certain vegetables.

—Provincial grades are similar to federal grades though not all provinces require the grading of the same fruits and vegetables.

—The grades for vegetables are Canada No. 1 and Canada No. 2.

—Apples and pears are graded Canada Extra Fancy, Canada Fancy and Canada Commercial.

Brownsburg — Congratulations are due to the 20 students who received their High School Leaving Certificates as a result of the examinations this past June. Five students who wrote partial examinations were also successful.

The graduation ceremonies are planned for September 9, and the authorities are pleased to note that this will be the largest graduation class in the history of the school.

Listed below, in alphabetical order, are the graduates. Beside each name in numerals is the Class each student made in his/her average: Honors: 100-80% (Class I); Class II, 79-65%; Class III, 64-50%.

Boys — Dwight Ball (2), Douglas Connelly 2, George Dixon 2, Peter Ferland 2, Earl Hicks 3, Michael Humphries 1, John Leggitt 3, Mark Racine 2, Alfred Staniforth 3.

Girls — Cathy Bourne 1, Janet Clark 3, Dianne Cruise 2, Jean Hall 2, Sandra Hall 2, Patsy Low 3, Teresa Ogle 3, Allison Rose 2, Susan Sugden 2, Carolyn Summers 3, Linda Tomalty 2.

Listed below are names of the five students who were successful in their partial examinations:

Gerald Vowles, Gloria Castle, Susan Leggitt, Lynn Morrow, Barbara Mott.

Freezing fruits and vegetables

Morden, Man. — To preserve home grown fruits and vegetables and retain that fresh-picked flavor, freeze them.

This is the advice of L. C. Kyle of the food processing laboratory at CDA's Experimental Farm here. He says that no other method of preserving captures the fresh flavor of fruit and vegetables as well as freezing.

But there's more to freezing than simply popping fruit and vegetables into a freezer and Mr. Kyle offers some pointers.

Vegetables to be frozen must not be over-ripe. Peas, sweet corn, and lima beans should be sweet but not starchy, while asparagus, carrots, beets, parsnips, spinach, Swiss chard, and turnips should be young and tender.

Vegetables should be frozen as quickly as possible after being taken from the garden. First, however, they should be blanched to destroy the enzymes that otherwise would remain active after freezing, and could affect quality. Blanching may be done either by immersing the vegetables in boiling water or by steaming them in a covered pot.

The vegetables should then be immersed in cold water to stop the cooking action; then drained, and frozen.

Most kinds of fruit do not require blanching, the researcher says. Apples, pears, and peaches, however, should be dipped in a citric acid solution (one tablespoon of pure citric acid powder to one quart of water) before freezing to prevent discoloration. Fruit may be frozen with or without sugar.

Proper use and maintenance of a home freezer is important for good results, Mr. Kyle points out. Some suggestions:

—To prevent excessive accumulation of frost, make sure the produce is no warmer than room temperature when it is placed in the freezer. Avoid unnecessary opening of the freezer.

—Check the temperature of the storage compartment regularly.

—Defrost and clean the machine at least once a year. After defrosting, wash the storage area with a solution of soda and water to remove food odors.

—Have a serviceman inspect the freezer at regular intervals to reduce chances of mechanical failure.

WIDE HAVOC IN WINDSTORM

Swept north with unexpected fury

Reports of havoc caused by the near-hurricane last week have come from widespread parts, from south of the Ottawa River to the northern sections of this County.

The storm swept northward on Tuesday between 5 and 6 p.m. Utility services were interrupted when poles and wires were levelled by tumbling trees, and repair crews supplemented by men and trucks from other districts, were kept long engaged on the formidable job of restoring electricity and phone circuits.

Chute à Blondeau district farmers suffered heavily, while the farm buildings of Mrs. Donald McPhee at Vankleek Hill were completely burned, with tractors, equipment, hay, purebred poultry, etc., amounting to a reported $40,000 loss. Two sheds were blown across the road on Wyman Kirby's farm, with heavy damage to other properties and crops on the south side of the Ottawa.

Sweeping across the river to Cushing West and Grece's Point, the storm caused grievous havoc with lightning, wind, torrential rain, and hail stones, the size of golf balls. The hail battered automobiles and broke window panes; it stayed unthawed on the land and the highways for a long time.

Leaving a swath of uprooted trees, toppled utility poles, unroofed barns and dwellings, and several buildings dislodged from their foundations — the storm lashed wildly across Chatboro, St. Philippe, Ogdensburg and Mount Maple. Barns were shifted, a cow was reported killed by lightning (a good cow from the herd of John Healtlie, Jr.) and a sugar bush was largely ruined. The storm's velocity seemed to sweep northward of Brownsburg and Dalesville but swept down again with a vengeance over Lake Louisa and farther points.

Over the broad expanse of Lake Louisa, the "twister" action was most apparent, only certain sections being struck. The entire lake was whipped to fury, boats were torn from their moorings and one or two unwary boatmen barely reached safety as darkness and a curtain of rain swept in on them, and waves were several feet high.

At this populated resort, many cottagers had a grim experience. Once family reported they were "ready to run" as their house trembled and shuddered in the gale. Then, when the storm subsided and 12 large trees lay strewn around their property, they were very literally stormbound — with no light or power, no telephone connection, and no means of getting out to civilization, since the road was blocked by fallen trees. Later the whine of chainsaws made a cheerful sound as Hydro-Quebec linemen and others were busy clearing a passage. . . This was but one of the awesome experiences suffered by rural dwellers from the south to the north of Argenteuil.

Scene of havoc at Mabel

This was a scene at Mabel, one of the hottest spots in last week's cyclone. On the Black Brothers' farm a 10 x 10 ft. shed was hurled bodily across a woodpile, landing upside down. Galvanized roofing was stripped from barns, and trees are here seen tumbled in all directions. —Photo, Syd Drew

Announce annual Prescott-Arg'tl scholarship

The Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada announces that the Prescott-Argenteuil Industrial Scholarship will again be awarded this year. This scholarship is intended to promote interest in science among young residents of the two counties and to assist a student of outstanding ability to continue his or her education at the University level. The scholarship has been made possible by the contributions of industrial firms in the area.

Applications should be submitted to M. J. McLeod, 485 Smerdon St., Hawkesbury (ME 2-3225), postmarked not later than August 26.

Students who did not obtain a copy of the regulations and application forms from their high school, may get them by contacting Mr. McLeod.

— Contributed by Norman Thorburn —

In Thomas' "History", we read that a Miss Stearns traded her side-saddle to Col. Tom Barron, for corn to feed her starving family. She had ridden all the way from Jericho, Vermont, on this side-saddle, and she prized it very highly. But the crop had failed and corn was needed.

Asa Stearns, probably her brother, acquired several farms, before he died, on the north side of the North River, in Hill Head and Hill Foot. Mrs. Asa Stearns, who outlived her husband by many years, was the former Unis Brooks.

I have several deeds, kindly loaned to me by Mrs. Colin Copeland. Two of these are deeds of donation, gifts to her sons by Mrs. Asa Stearns and drawn up by Notary Gaspard de la Ronde. One is a sale of another farm to her son-in-law.

The two farms she donated to her sons Ira and David Stearns were west of White's Bridge, on the north side of the North River, and the one she sold to her son-in-law, Timothy Stephens, was near Hill Head.

Mrs. Asa Stearns lived in St. Andrews after her husband's death, and later she married Philander Stephens, who had a farm in Hill Head. A field on this farm was used as a parade ground for the Two Mountains Militia. Both the Stearns and the Stephens were American settlers.

Just east of one of the Stearns farms, on the farms presently owned by Keith Pollock and Murray Lyster, lived Thomas White, who owned both of these properties.

White must have been a man of some wealth, and he had married Liza Hamilton, daughter of Colin Hamilton and niece of the Duke of Hamilton. There are many descendants of this Duke of Hamilton, residing in Argenteuil. . . Annie, the daughter of Thomas White and Liza Hamilton, married Nathaniel Copeland.

White's Bridge was named after Thomas White, great-grandfather of my old friend and kind neighbor of bygone years, Mr. Thomas White, who resides near Cornwall. Thomas, in his "History", tells us that White's Bridge was first built in 1825. He doesn't tell us what kind of a bridge it was.

Tires disgorged from disembowelled truck

Jean Colaf, a scrap dealer from Ville Jacques Cartier, slipped backwards down the hill at Brownsburg when the motor of his truck petered out, and the result was this unusual scene in the Hotel des 4 Chemins parking lot. According to Police Chief André Roy, who investigated, the truck and "trailer" jackknifed and the trailer fell onto a vacant car owned by Gilles Nadon, of Brownsburg, which sustained $1,100 damage. The trailer appeared to be an old truck dismantled of its engine, and its contents were old tires. These were disgorged on the road, as seen in the above picture. The accident occurred Monday evening of last week, and Chief Roy has not so far received proof that the truck was insured for property damage. —Photo, Syd Drew

Girl dies in cottage fire

Buckingham, Que. (CP) — Joanne Belanger, 7, of Hull, was burned to death early Sunday in a fire which destroyed her parents' cottage on Cole Lake, 15 miles north of Buckingham. Witnesses said a kitchen stove exploded.

Eight other persons in the cottage, six of them children, escaped the flames. Joanne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Belanger, were visiting friends about two miles away and rushed back when they spotted the glow of the fire in the sky.

Sentiments and Sidelights

The Barbershoppers (Lachute Chorus) are back in business after the summer break, working up a new repertoire. Several shows and competitions are coming up, and the singers have a busy season ahead. A recent meeting was held at the home of one of the members at Lake Barron. All the Barbershoppers are urged to dust off their tonsils and attend rehearsals.

The municipal police department had many traffic accidents on their hands last week-end. With exception of the Saturday evening fatality on Chatham Street, the toll was all in material damage. Director Réal Chartrand reports many summonses were issued for traffic infractions, mostly to speeders. "The only remedy is to continue our campaign against these offenders, and if necessary we will ask the Council to provide us with another radar outfit," says the Director. . . The police are to be commended on this warfare; traffic this year and any time, is too heavy to be endangered by speeding drivers.

Rotarians plan District 704 conference here in October

Service — that "intangible" which we all seem to be getting less of, in spite of our more and more affluent society — is the very worthwhile aim of all Service Clubs. Rotary places special emphasis upon less-fortunate children, but tries in many ways to help the community grow, so that all residents will be able to develop their innate talents and live a more rewarding life.

Better fellowship, through more contact and greater understanding among members of a community — as well as with persons from other countries, including different races and creeds — is part of that aim.

Service to the public, through better business ethics, is studied from time to time, with some worthwhile results.

To better use the successful ideas and projects used in other communities, groups of clubs hold a conference once a year, at which members, executives and their wives meet in the home city of one of the clubs, to discuss this non-profit business of service.

At a recent meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, plans were discussed and committee heads appointed to carry out such a conference to be held October 23-24-25 at the Lachute Golf Club.

In this case there are over 50 clubs in a District which is both bilingual and international. Stretching from St. Jerome to Napanee, including Kingston, Ottawa, Cornwall, Brockville and Montreal — as well as Plattsburgh, Watertown and many other well-known cities of New York State, Ontario and Quebec — it includes communities both big and small, with problems similar to our own.

Mr. George Meloche, a criminal lawyer from the Valleyfield club, is the District Governor this year. Having already met with the local executive a few times, past-District Governor Linton Armstrong of Lachute was able to lead an enthusiastic discussion of the project. Many volunteers indicated a very successful conference.

Visitors to the meeting, John Young, of Greenwood, N.S., and Rotarian Mike Collyer, of Smiths Falls, drew the winning tickets of the "400 Club". The winners were — Mrs. Geo. Wilson, B'burg; Mrs. Jocelyn Steeves, Lachute; and Mr. Arthur Paquette, Brownsburg.

Week's Epigram

If all duplicating government programs were laid end to end — it might be a good idea.

No progress in negotiations to settle woodworkers' strike

No new development was reported from the last meeting between union and management on the Dominion Ayers (Wood Division) work stoppage, held Monday in Montreal.

The chief concession by the Company appears to have been a wage scale offering average increases of 8 cents an hour this year, 6 cents in 1967, and 7 cents in 1968. This offer was rejected by the union representatives, reportedly for the reason that it dealt primarily with wage rates. Its failure to deal with other clauses of the union's demands — according to Mtre Alain Brabant, the union negotiator — made the submission incomplete and impossible for the strikers to accept. An offer of the Company, however, concerned statutory holidays, providing for four such days in 1966, five in 1967, and six in the third year of the contract, 1968.

It was said by Mr. Brabant that management offered no revisions in its position as regards discrimination between male and female workers, hours of work per week, Sunday work, women on night shift, rest periods, special holidays and sick leave.

A company spokesman stated that, in accordance with a request of the conciliator, a salary offer was presented on Monday, and that the Company was still negotiating. The Company is interested in terminating the strike, and feels that the only way to do this is to start with the pay package. If this can be resolved, certainly there would be every hope that the mechanical clauses can be adjusted.

The same spokesman said the Company had also refrained from discussing medical examination and X-rays on hiring of employees; the engagement of a plant nurse; retroactivity of salary adjustments; demands of the strikers as regards work hazards; deduction of payroll savings, etc.

Sympathizers

The priests of a dozen neighboring parishes gave token of their feeling for the strikers by permitting a collection to be taken in the churches last Sunday; this gesture netted almost $700. The employees of Dominion Rubber at St. Jerome, although not affiliated with the same union, sent a cheque for $100 to the local group (CNTU).

The session on Monday was called by the conciliator, Jean-Marc Lavoie, and the Company was represented by Messrs. W. Smith, L. Ivall, M. Grondin and their lawyer, Mtre. H. Freidman.

Instant death of Chatham St. child when crushed by lumber transport

A traffic tragedy removed a two-and-a-half year old youngster from his family and parents with swift suddenness last Saturday evening. The victim was little Luc Laroceque, the child of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Larocque, 119 Chatham Street. He leaves also a brother and a sister.

According to Police Director Réal Chartrand and Sgt. Beauregard, who investigated, the youngster was run over by a big truck and trailer opposite his home. The mishap occurred at 6.55 p.m. and the victim died instantly. The transport, loaded with construction lumber, was owned by Maurice Céré of Dunham, Missisquoi County; the driver was Réjean Amireault, 26. Witnesses said the vehicle was going about 20 miles an hour proceeding towards town, and that the child was caught under the rear wheels. Dr. Z. Saindon pronounced the victim dead.

The remains were taken to the Menard parlors and funeral rites were held Sunday afternoon at St. Julien Church.

Drowning at 16 Island Lake

The body of Michael Lavoie, 18-year-old Montrealer, was recovered from the water of 16 Island Lake late Sunday afternoon, following a mishap in which the young man drowned when a canoe overturned.

The body was recovered by Chris Bourne, of Brownsburg, and attempts to revive the victim were of no avail. Death was declared accidental due to drowning, by Dr. J. C. MacKimmie, district coroner.

M.P.P. takes oath of office

The new Liberal M.P.P. for Argenteuil, Dr. Zoël Saindon, Mayor of Lachute, is here seen taking the oath of loyalty, being sworn in by the Clerk of the Legislature at Quebec. The ceremony was held August 3 in the presence of the Hon. Jean Lesage, Leader of the Opposition (right) at the Parliament Buildings.

By BOB ATCHISON

I promised you some more information on insecticides and pesticides, and hope I can point out what we are doing to ourselves. As you know, there are four groups of these sprays. First group is the D.D.T., Dieldrin, Aldrin, Chlordan, Heptachlor, 2-4-D and the 2-4-5-T group. D.D.T. is by far the most dangerous of these, due possibly to it being more in use. These insecticides are used for spraying fields and crops, so we are getting them in one form or another, either through meats or cereals; take your choice. The government allows as a maximum 7 parts per million in any foods for domestic use. But how about the fish we catch? Some of these have been checked, and found to contain 800 parts per million. So we go right ahead and eat the fish, not knowing about this danger, or not being too interested. . . But think, for instance, of the number of heart fatalities today, possibly related to these chemicals. It may sound far-fetched, and I'll admit this, but surely you must have wondered.

The reason the fish and animals can take such massive amounts of these insecticides, is that they are taken over a long period of time, and the fats in the animals absorb all this poison — that is, until it has reached such a dangerous level it kills them. We are eating some form of poison in our everyday food, so why shouldn't it build up in our bodies the same as in animals of the lower order. It sure is something to think about. Of course, this is only the first group. . .

The second group has Malathion, Perthion, Aldrin, Phosdin, etc. (There's hope we will kill ourselves yet!). . . If this still causes no concern, there is yet a third group, Rotentone, Pyrethrum, Nicotine and Strychnine. These types are not what you would care to leave around for your pets to get at. The effects are much the same as those in a poisoned dog, and you may have seen an animal like this — it's rough, I assure you. The last, but by no means the least, includes Sulphate, Cyanide, Thallium, and the one I wrote on some time ago, the 1080. Remember what this one did to the wildlife on a couple of acres of land? To read of the results on animals when these sprays have been used is unpleasant, to say the least. . . Yet, we don't seem to care.

Every time we eat, we are taking in some form of poison from this food. Everything is sprayed in one way or another; and this spraying is done under pressure, which drives it right into the core of things. No matter what is done to this food after, you are still getting plenty of it. Washing does not remove it, and this is all we usually do to our foods. . . Then the lumber companies spray their trees; the sprays get into the streams, poison the fish, through poisoning the algae — so where do we end? Talking to groups of sportsmen at times, I have often wondered at the lack of thought on these matters; you would think the sporting fraternity would have been the most worried. But this doesn't seem to bother them unduly. . . . I believe a reason for our indifference is that we think these things can't happen to us; because our neighbors to the south are worried about it, why should we be? The damage we are doing to all forms of life, even to ourselves, is not and probably will never be known, but it is rough. Maybe we'll wake up one of these days.

This little note is for a fine old gentleman, J. G. Phillips, of Indian Head, Sask. Thanks for your good wishes; I hope to write you soon. Take care of yourself.

Almost everyone is interested in the new Minister's speeches. He seems to be doing well, at least, for a greenhorn. The idea of having a group to study the fish and game situation in this province is a good one, that is, if it is not made just for loyal party followers. Also, there isn't much use in having a group to study ANYTHING, unless they themselves know just what the score is in this area. There are plenty of this type in our province, but as a thought, will they be appointed to this commission? Anyway, let's hope it is as good as it sounds.

I would like to see the deer season made much shorter, and later. This business of killing deer early in the season is pretty stupid. In a lot of cases the meat is spoiled, either by not being properly field-dressed or by the mighty hunter showing off his prowess in the usual hotel. In a good many of these cases the meat is not used, except to feed the dogs. In addition, if it were later in the year, then the young fawns would at least have a chance; the way it is now, they haven't. Of course, this law allowing does and fawns to be shot is not much good, at least to me. Sure, I know the government says we have enough deer to provide for all hunters, and this only saves them from starving to death. We have in this province enough feed to feed thousands, but we just haven't got this type of deer herds around. The same applies to the moose also.

The condition of the North River is tragic. As I mentioned last week, co-operation from the supposed interested parties is laughable. All that is ever heard from the companies on pollution is very promising, but when it comes down to facts, they are left far behind. Sure, it would cost a great deal of money to install systems for purification, but don't they realize that within a few years they are going to have to do it anyway? Waters being used today have such high pollution that in a short time it will not be usable for them either. No doubt they will want government help for these undertakings, when it is more their fault than anything else. Everyone you talk to has the same idea — why should our company start anything, while other industries will continue to dump their effluents in the river? But really, all it takes is one person to start something worthwhile, then everyone gets on the wagon. . . This, admittedly, is not an industrial problem alone; around the North River there is evidence of this point, every day. Oil slicks on the water, caused by garages throwing their empty cans into it; then, anyone who has some junk they wish to get rid of, well, there's the river to take care of it. At least, during the winter, junk is thrown into the ditches along our highways, then come spring. . ! — But that's another sorry story.

We seem to have a great many owls, also small swamp-hawks, around this area. This may be due to the numerous mice this season. Walking along a hedgerow the other evening, I was surprised at the number of these in evidence. Mice and voles have been in good supply for the last few years.

I was asked recently how to store a tent for the winter. This is a tricky job. In the first place, the tent to be stored MUST be dry, and I would suggest hanging it over your wife's clothes-line, wide open, to do this. So it rains; well the tent will dry much faster this way than any other. Then, when you have it all ready for storing, dry it again. If you wish to prevent mildew, this is a must. I find the best way is to take it to your attic if you have one, or even the cellar; string a heavy line down the side so that the tent will not be in the way, then hang it over this, spreading it out to allow the air to circulate. Of course, there must be fresh air circulating, otherwise you will have dry rot, come spring. If there are any repairs to do, leave them until the early part of the year, just before you have the hankering to go camping. However, if you intend to do any winter camping, then still store it this way, but do the repairs now. But once again, after use, the tent MUST be dried out thoroughly, even if it means hanging it over the line again during a snowstorm! I wouldn't try to waterproof it at this time, either; not only will the liquid cause a smell, but it will not seep into the canvas until next spring. To make a good job of waterproofing, the liquid must dry fast — and not run, giving you a zebra-type tent. (Good only for scaring off the odd drunk who may wander around at night!)

News, Views, Activities — by Don Smith

1966 Summer Rally

Entries are already being received for the LMSC Summer Rally to be held this coming Sunday, August 21. This event is being sponsored by Molson Lachute Ltée and is expected to draw a large group of rallyists from Montreal and Ontario, as well as the Lachute area. Dr. Jim Luce of Hawkesbury, an experienced rallyist (Shell 4000), is expected to be in the line-up on Sunday.

The start will be at Welden Motor Sales Limited, on Route 8 east approaching Lachute. Registration and scrutineering will be held from 9.30 to 10.45 a.m. with the drivers' meeting at 10.46 and the first car away at 11.01. Friends and spectators are welcome to be on hand at the starting line to watch the proceedings.

The duration of the rally will be approximately 145 miles or 5 hours over paved and unpaved public roads. I understand that all roads are suitable for sports cars. The event is classed as intermediate, with average speed sections, a straight line map, two other map sections, a photo section, etc. The use of a thermometer section is still not definite at this time. A copy of map 31G/NE Lachute, Can. Dept. of Mines and Tech. Surveys, will be most useful, as the start of some sections will be referred to in longitude and latitude reference points. (You will not be issued with this map.)

All vehicles must pass the safety check before being permitted to enter the rally. Compulsory equipment includes three self-igniting safety flares and a comprehensive first-aid kit. Apart from the normal navigation aids it is recommended that you bring a 12" ruler and a magnetic compass.

Entry fees are as follows—
$4.00 per car — LMSC members;
$5.00 per car — all others;
$3.00 per team of three cars.

These prices include one map and a ham and turkey banquet to be held at the Masonic Hall after the rally; $1.50 will be charged to all non-competitors desiring to attend the banquet.

Gaston Laroche, the representative for Molson Lachute Limitée, has donated an impressive array of prizes and trophies:

1st Overall — 2 Ayers maple leaf tartan rugs;
2nd Overall — 2 travel bags;
3rd Overall — 2 pairs of driving gloves;
1st Team Prize — 6 trophies, one to each crew member;
1st LMSC Crew — the Molson Lachute Ltée perpetual trophy; 2 smaller individual trophies.

Because of past experience we anticipate a large attendance at this rally, and competitors are well advised to mail their entry forms early. Extra forms are available at Welden Motor Sales, Bethany Road, Lachute. There is a limit to the number of cars allowed in the rally.

This is a final plea to members of the Lachute Motor Sport Club to come out and represent us in this rally. We will be up against some pretty stiff opposition by outsiders. See you all Sunday; would you believe, 9.30 a.m.?

Deux Montagnes Jr. horse show; pre-show clinic

The committee for the coming Deux Montagnes Horse Show for Juniors has organized a Horse Show and Equitation Clinic to be held at St. Eustache on Sunday, August 21. Starting at 9.30 a.m., there will be a clinic where youngsters can get help and instruction in horsemanship and jumping techniques, designed to aid them in participating in the afternoon show, which will start at 1 p.m.

This is a completely new idea which Gordon Atkinson, sports commentator for the CBC, has worked out with his committee including such well-known equestrian enthusiasts as Duncan Stewart of Chomedey, Mr. and Mrs. Tjerk Vanderplaats of Hudson Heights, John Peters of Chomedey, and others. It was felt that there are many Horse Shows in which competition for its own sake, or for winning a medal or trophy, is placed first, and also that training and education in horsemanship is neglected. Therefore, the morning session at St. Eustache should provide a unique opportunity for young riders to learn something about equitation, and at the same time familiarize themselves with an arena filled with jumping obstacles (as well as onlookers!) before the afternoon events. Several top riders from the Montreal and district stables are giving their services in coaching the children, and the committee hope that out of this initial effort will come a much-needed Centre of Equitation and Horsemanship for the young riders of this province.

Any Junior not over 18 may enter a pony or horse, providing an entry form is filled in. These may be obtained from the Secretary, Mr. Gordon Atkinson, Windy Ridge Farm, R.R. 1, St. Eustache (tel. 473-9159).

Annual fish derby for junior anglers

Sunday, August 21, is the day for young anglers, when the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association holds its annual junior fishing derby on the North River. The day commences at 8 a.m. and the entry fee is 25 cents. Prizes will be awarded for the biggest fish caught.

Young participants may enter at the Richelieu Park, Lachute, and refreshments will be available all day at this spot.

For safety of the young competitors, parents are asked to accompany the youngsters. In the words of the Minor Hockey slogan, "Bring, don't send, your kids to go fishing." (Information: Ernest Villenaire, 562-5356.)

BOATING CLINIC

BY STAN DAVIES

Strictly speaking, a dock is the water space between piers or wharves which have been built for the reception and securing of vessels. It is also called a slip or a berth.

However, through abuse, the word dock has in recent years come to mean the pier or wharf itself. In actual small boat practice it is applied to almost anything to which a boat is tied up.

Tying up in a dock or to a wharf is done by means of mooring lines. A temporary tie-up, as for supplies, is readily made by any one of a number of hitches put around whatever cleats or bitts are available on the wharf.

Any chafing between boat and wharf is usually eliminated by fenders.

For a more permanent mooring, there must be enough rope aboard the craft to make lines that will keep the boat from moving forward or sideways in its berth.

When a boat is berthed in a slip regularly, lines of proper length may be made up with eye-splices (permanent loops) and with chafing-gear at the points of greatest wear. The chafing gear may be pieces of rubber hose, leather or canvas wrapped around a mooring line where it passes through a chock or fairlead.

We have just used a number of the semi-technical words spoken by boaters in tying up or mooring their boats. Most are self-explanatory. But the fact that there are areas of doubt about moorings is shown by some of the questions I've been asked:

What rope must I carry on my outboard boat?

Answer: If it's 26 feet long or under, the law doesn't require you to carry any. But good practice says you should have at least two 20 foot lengths for tying up. Boats over 26 feet long must carry by law 50 feet of buoyant heaving line, and 50 feet of rope, cable or chain with an anchor.

What's the best rope for towing water skiers? (P. L. Y., Kamloops)

Answer: The type that's almost invariably used nowadays is a braided line made of polyethylene or polypropylene, two synthetics. The braiding gives it spring and a resistance to kinking and either material floats. These materials are recommended for the buoyant line mentioned in question above.

Is nylon better than natural rope for an anchor line? (T. L., Windsor)

Answer: Infinitely better. Nylon stretches and has springiness that manila or other fibres do not have. Many nylon ropes will stretch as much as 40 per cent of their length before breaking. This elasticity is quite undesirable in some applications such as for sheets or halliards on sailboats.

What's the best material to resist abrasion? (K. J., Unionville)

Answer: Nylon and dacron are about equal.

When rope size is given does it mean diameter or circumference? (P. E., St. Jean)

Answer: Sad to say both systems are used, so be careful. When you buy or order rope specify exactly what you want . . . for instance: ¼-inch diameter manila.

I've heard nylon is four times as strong as ordinary rope, is this so?

Answer: Almost. Here are the relative breaking strengths of five common rope materials: manila, 1,350 pounds; nylon, 4,000 pounds; dacron, 3,600; polyethylene, 2,400.

Water Skiing

WITH CLINT WARD

A jump start on one ski is a good way to startle your friends.

This advanced method of starting is begun by placing your foot in the front binding and then standing as close as possible to the edge of the dock. The tow-line should be coiled loosely and payed out one coil at a time as the tow-boat pulls away. When there are two or three coils left, throw them out and away and yell, "hit it." The boat must be well underway before the rope becomes tight, otherwise you will sink too deep in the water.

Just as the tow-line becomes tight jump forward onto the water, pushing off with your free foot. Balance is the key, for you must land in a skiing position with weight directly over the ski. Be prepared for the pull of the boat as this may occur while you are still in the air.

Timing is very important. If you jump too soon you will sink into the water and there will be a very strong pull as the rope tightens up. If you jump too late the speed of the boat may pull you over the tip of the ski.

A PROPER GRIP FOR PUTTING

The whole object of the putting grip is to make the putterface look down the target line when it meets the ball.

I feel this is best accomplished if each hand faces the other in your grip, so that both hands work together as a unit.

You will note in the illustrations that the back of the left hand and the palm of the right face down the target line at address. The palms face each other. Both thumbs point down the top of the clubshaft.

In short, I have prescribed an almost perfectly balanced grip, one that minimizes any tendency to open or close the putterface during your stroke.

There'll be lots of action!

THE ALE THAT GOES WITH ACTION

Winners in Regatta contests held at Grenville

Winners of the 3-hour motorboat marathon held in connection with the Grenville regatta last week-end were as follows:

Inboard Motors — 1st prize ($300 and O'Keefe trophy) — Bill Gleaser, Williamsville, N.Y.

2nd Prize ($100) — Jacques St-Laurent, Contrecoeur, Que.

3rd Prize ($50) — V. B. Wearing, Willowdale, Ont.

Outboards, Over 75 h.p. — 1st Prize ($100 and O'Keefe trophy) — Yves St-Germain, Montreal.

2nd Prize ($50) — Norm Mackenzie, Toronto.

Outboards, Under 75 h.p. — 1st Prize ($100 and O'Keefe trophy) — Hans Liebenau, Toronto.

Open Class — 1st Prize ($100) André Savare, Lucerne, Que.

2nd Prize ($50) — Georges Chartier, Montreal.

The committee wishes to thank the many out-of-town contestants who took part in the events.

Won 'Miss Regatta' title

Among five candidates for the title of Miss Regatta, Micheline Gascon of Grenville won the title. She will be the guest for an all-expense week-end at the Manoir des Laurentides, St. Donat de Montcalm.

At Guelph clinic for Canadian track-field coaches

Attending the Royal Canadian Legion course for track and field coaches at the University of Guelph, Ont., from August 16 to 26, is a "phys. ed." instructor from this community — Robert Church, of Lachute. Church is registered in the French-speaking course of this fifth national clinic held by the Legion. Some 800 Canadian coaches receive training each year, the benefits of which are passed along to some 55,000 Canadian youngsters.

Mr. Church is one of 13 members of the French-speaking class. He is physical education teacher at Mont Laurier. . . Also attending from this province is a former Lachute boy, Douglas G. Bradford, of Cowansville High School staff.

Motorcycle event at Ste. Agathe

The sport of motorcycling will be seen at its best on Sunday, August 21, at the Little Alps Circuit, Ste. Agathe des Monts, when the second Motorcross Scramble will be held, in the form of a contest between Quebec and Ontario.

The Ste. Agathe track has had great success this year. More than 5,500 people attended the Dow International Motorcross in July. Jumps have been added and improvements made to the track, which will provide plenty of action.

This competition, organized jointly by the Montreal Motor Sport Club and J. A. Ratelle of Laurentides Publications Inc., is sanctioned by the Canadian Motorcycle Association.

The Quebec and Ontario racing teams will be joined by several American and European riders, who will be equally distributed between the two teams.

This event has been made possible by collaboration of the Ste. Agathe authorities and Charles A. Beaudin, Dow Breweries agent for the region.

Early life around White's Bridge

There are numerous omissions in Thomas' record, and he has no chapter whatsoever on Upper Lachute. But nevertheless, he made an invaluable contribution to our knowledge of the past in this county.

My old neighbor Thomas White's family, resided for five generations close to White's Bridge, and from him I learned some of the history of this bridge and the surrounding countryside.

Most rural Quebecers have seen a log boom, which is a string of logs held together by chains, the purpose of which is to hold timber in a body of water. . . Imagine two log booms together side by side, with the top of the logs, flattened with a broad-axe, and you have a picture in your mind of what White's Bridge looked like in 1825.

At all times, this bridge rested on the bosom of the river; in time of flood it rose with the stream, in time of drought it sank. In times of inclement and windy weather, it must have been hazardous to walk across this primitive bridge, which was chained to posts or trees on each side of the river.

Life, for these pioneers "above la Grosse Chute" (as notary Gaspard de la Ronde insists on calling this community) was strenuous. Guzzling liquor was one way of getting relief from the monotony of daily existence.

There were two whiskey stills in this district and rye and potatoes to supply these stills grew in abundance along Route 41.

We see William Smith, the second son of Alexander Smith, the old pioneer of this community, getting up at 4 a.m. in his home on the Vide Sac road. He eats his breakfast and sets out, with his scythe across his shoulder. He is going to help to mow a meadow for his brother John, who had inherited his father's farm (now owned by Dr. McCall). . .

William Smith walks across the bush and fields to the farm of Major Paul Doig (now owned by Mr. Younkie). At the river's edge there is a boat; he puts his scythe in the boat and rows across the river, after a few words of greeting with his sister, Mary Jane, wife of Major Paul Doig.

All day long Bill Smith will wield his heavy scythe in his brother's meadow, toiling in the hot sun. No wonder many pioneers sought consolation for their hard life by imbibing the contents of a whiskey bottle.

Elizabeth Pollock, who later became Mrs. William Drew and lived to the great age of 96, told this story of life in her girlhood, around 1850.

As a young girl, she used to go to the Presbyterian Church at St. Andrews East, from her home in Hill Head. There was probably no Presbyterian place of worship in Lachute at that time. Don't think she went in a fine buggy, drawn by a beautiful horse. She walked, every inch of the way, barefoot, carrying her shoes and stockings in her hand. At the dam near St. Andrews, she and the others who accompanied her, sat down at the river's edge and washed their feet in the North River.

The North River was even then, as it was in the time of the Indians, a crystal-clear, spring-fed mountain stream — not a filth-laden sewer course that it is today.

After washing their feet the devoted pilgrims put on their stockings and footwear, so that, on entering the St. Andrews East church, they would appear as well-dressed as the fine folks of the big village.

There lived in these pioneering days, around 1850, a man whom I shall simply call Jimmie. I don't want to offend anybody, by mentioning his last name. . . Jimmie was a fine young man at this time, well-liked and usually well-behaved. One day, however, he set out on horse-back to go to Lachute, from his home in what is now called Hill Head.

He probably glanced at White's Bride, which he would have liked to go across, to shorten his journey. But no chance for a horse to walk on those logs. There was no Copeland Bridge in those days, so Jimmie followed a trail over the mountain (now owned by the McGibbon Company) and crossed Barron's Bridge to get to Lachute.

All would have gone well, had he not met a group of friends, who invited him into the tavern for a few drinks. . . After imbibing their refreshments, the little party broke up. Jimmie mounted his horse. Why shouldn't he go home by the front road (Route 41)? It was far better than the trail on the north side of the river.

He was sure now, in his intoxicated state, that he could cross White's Bridge on horseback. He tore up Route 41 as fast as his horse could go, sending up a thick cloud of sand and dust behind him. On, on, he urged his horse at full gallop, rounding the corner at White's road at full speed.

Willie Armstrong, the blacksmith of Upper Lachute, dwelt at this corner, just west of where the old chlorinating plant stands today. (This plant is now owned by Harold Hutton.) When he saw Jimmie rounding the corner at full speed, Armstrong called to his wife, "It's Jimmie, heaven forbid, he's going to try and cross White's Bridge on horse-back! The poor lad, he'll be drowned; I must save his life if I can!" He ran after the horseman. But the horse charged down to the bridge. The man on his back might be intoxicated but the steed was not! He shied at the bridge, and jumped into the river instead. Jimmie clung to the horse for dear life. The animal turned and clambered up on the shore, and Willie Armstrong met them coming up the road.

Jimmie was a fearless horseman, but he had a dread of wicked dogs, such as one owned by Armstrong, the blacksmith. Jimmie complained to Willie about his dog, which always came after him when he passed the corner where the blacksmith's house and smithy stood (on the western side of Route 30).

The blacksmith kept his dog tied to the leg of the small kitchen table after this, when he saw Jimmie coming. One day, however, the door was left open. The dog saw Jimmie coming and tore after him, trailing the table out of the house. Jimmie ran for dear life, and climbed up a tree that grew in front of where Harold Hume's house now stands.

Willie Armstrong, the blacksmith, had come as a boy of 15 years to Canada, from Yorkshire, England. He was a powerful man, with arms twice the size of an ordinary man's. Once his horse cut its leg. Willie didn't take the horse to his shop. He just put his mighty arms around a leg of the horse and upset the animal. Someone brought him bandages and medicament, and he applied these to the horse's leg, and let it go. In his old age he was called by the local inhabitants "Old Yorkie", with a degree of affection.

The old sawmill at Hill Foot was first built by John McOuat, Mr. Alex Pollock's grandfather, sometime before 1857. An old deed, drawn up in that year for a sale of land by Mrs. Asa Stearns, states that some boards had to be left at John McOuat's Mill. About a century ago, a terrible fire destroyed the mill. The body of Alex Pollock's aunt, a Mrs. Patton, was in the mill at the time, hidden away from body snatchers, who were numerous then. (They sold human corpses to medical students). Only with great difficulty and at great risk, was the body rescued from the consuming flames.

Storm aftermath at Mabel

(Our District Correspondent)

Mabel — Electricity was restored to this community during the night after last Tuesday evening's severe wind and rain storm, but, by this Monday, the community was still without telephone. (The service was restored in certain sections before noon on Tuesday.)

Even before the shock of the storm was over, the sound of hammers could be heard repairing roofs torn off by the wind. Our theme song, for some months to come, is expected to be the roar of chain saws. Many good trees were uprooted or broken — one farmer reporting over half the trees in his sugar-bush are down.

One could not record the many visitors to this area since the storm. Many cars are seen daily, driving at slow speed, to survey the damage caused by the storm.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, In Memoriam, etc., $1.00; 10 cents per type line extra for verses with In Memoriam (estimate 8 words per type line.)

BIRTH

McGIBBON — Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McGibbon (née Willa Murdoch) are pleased to announce the birth of a daughter, at the Montreal General Hospital on Aug. 15; sister to Blair. Both well.

DEATHS

MOTT (Nellie) — At her late residence, Grenville, Que., on Aug. 7, 1966, in her 85th year, wife of the late Peter Mott and daughter of the late David Kennedy and his wife Isobel Moncrieff; mother of Raymond, Cecil, Clarence, Ernest, Irven, Ward, Bazil, Lorne and Gladys (Mrs. W. Hanlon). Funeral held Wednesday, Aug. 10, from J. G. Desforges funeral home, Grenville. Service in the United Church; interment at Calumet Cemetery.

ROBERTS (Jennie) — At Brownsburg, Que., on Aug. 15, 1966, Jennie Calder, in her 79th year, wife of the late John H. Roberts. Funeral held Wednesday, Aug. 17, from the J. P. MacKimmie Reg. funeral home, 660 Main St., Lachute, to the Dalesville Baptist Church; interment at Dalesville.

IN MEMORIAM

CARPENTER — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Margaret Leith Carpenter, who passed away Aug. 15, 1960. — Lovingly remembered by her husband, Russell, daughters, Elsie, Edna, and son, Harry, and grandchildren.

"Tho' her smile is gone forever
And her hand we cannot touch,
We have so many memories
Of the one we loved so much;
Her memory is our keepsake
With which we'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts."

MacTAVISH (Mrs. Alex) — In loving memory of my wife, Hazel, who passed away Aug. 18, 1964. — Always remembered by her husband, Alex.

"I am sad within my memory
Lonely is my heart today,
For the one I loved so dearly
Has been forever called away.
I think of her in silence,
No eye may see me weep,
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep."

MacTAVISH (Mrs. Alex) — In loving memory of dear Mother, who passed away Aug. 18, 1964. Loved and missed by Grace, Charlie and family.

"A little prayer keeps us in touch
With a wonderful mother we loved so much,
Your memory, dear Mother, will never grow old,
It's locked in our hearts in letters of gold.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
But you didn't go alone,
For part of us went with you
The day God called you home."

MacTAVISH — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, William Richard MacTavish, accidentally drowned Aug. 17, 1958. — Sadly missed by Mother and family.

"When evening shades are falling
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing—
If he only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
That our smiles hide all the while."

MONCRIEFF — In loving memory of our dear ones, Father (Geo. Moncrieff), who passed away Aug. 19, 1946, and Mother, who passed away April 9, 1959. — Always remembered by the family.

"Years are quickly passing,
But still we don't forget,
For in the hearts that miss you
Your memory lingers yet."

RODGER (Annie Donaldson) — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, who passed away on Aug. 21, 1963. — Always remembered by her husband and family.

TOWNSEND — In loving memory of Mother, who passed away Aug. 20, 1965. — Always remembered by the family.

"We watched you suffer, we heard you sigh,
All we could do was just stand by.
When the time came, we suffered too,
For you never deserved what you went through.
With tender love and deep regret,
We, who loved you, will never forget."

TOWNSEND — In loving memory of Dad, who passed away Aug. 19, 1960. — Always remembered by the family.

"Down the lane of memories
The lights are always clear,
The passing years will never dim
The thoughts of one so dear."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

MOTT — The family of the late Mrs. Peter Mott wish to express sincere thanks to their relatives and friends, for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy extended to them during their recent bereavement in the loss of a beloved mother and grandmother.

A&P outdoor chefs are very fussy!

Ever since the outdoor cooking fad began, we've been catering to the special needs of outdoor chefs.

Over the years, we've satisfied scores of thousands.

Many, many find just the steak, chops or chicken they want in our self-service meat departments.

Others have specific needs . . . the steak must be 2½" thick, the chops double thick and so forth.

That's no problem.

If you don't see it . . . just ask. We'll be happy to help you.

One other reason we're so popular with "backyard barbecuers" . . . the quality of our "Super-Right" Meats.

Is this a good reason for shopping A&P? It's one of many.

WE WERE YOUNG ONCE

It has been the way of youth that it expects to be misunderstood, almost hopes to be misunderstood by the older generation. Those who observe with middle-aged eyes today were the despair of their fathers and mothers. Shingled hair, bell-bottom trousers, necking in cars! Think back 40 years and youth was the anguish of its elders in another generation. What modern youth demands is what their parents and grandparents demanded — the right to self-expression, the acknowledgment that they may dream dreams and chase shadows, the acceptance of the challenge of new ways and new thoughts.

Art exhibit of historic subjects

The Argenteuil Art Association's final exhibition this season will feature pictures of "historically interesting Canadian subjects". The dates of this exhibition are August 27 to September 5, inclusive; the display will be held at the customary place, in the municipal hall (above fire station) at St. Andrews East.

Members may enter two original signed works, in any media. Copies of photographs are not eligible. Sites, scenes or subjects must be 75 years old, or over, and paintings must have been done within the last three years. A short historical note, typed on a card, must accompany each entry.

Exhibitors must be members of the Association; but the membership fee is nominal, only $1 a year.

Exhibits will be received by the committee chairman, Vivian Walker, at the municipal hall on Thursday afternoon and evening, and on Friday evening, August 25-26.

Eastern Townships resident was associated here

The late W. H. Earle Dryden

Friends were saddened by the sudden death of Mr. Wilton Harry Earle Dryden in hospital at Sweetsburg, on July 27, after a few hours' illness.

Born on March 5, 1902, a member of a pioneer family who settled at Fordyce, Que., in 1840, Mr. Dryden had lived all his life in that community, near Cowansville. After his marriage in 1924 to Miss Annie E. Stevenson of Lachute, he purchased his grandfather Teel's farm, which adjoined his father's, and here they have made their home.

A kind neighbor, he had a wide circle of friends and relatives, who will miss his cheery manner. His hobby was gardening, and his lawns and grounds testified to the many pleasant hours he spent working in them.

Employed at Bruck Mills, Cowansville, for 34 years and a member of the President's Club there, he retired in 1965. He was a Past-Master of Cornerstone Lodge No. 37 A.F. & A.M. of Cowansville, and Past-Patron of Cowansville Chapter No. 17, Order of the Eastern Star. He served as elder of Emmanuel United Church, and was a member of the Missisquoi County Historical Society which, in 1965, presented him with a Century Property Owner's Certificate.

The funeral was held July 29 at the C. E. Wilson & Son Funeral Chapel, Cowansville, with the Rev. Mr. Warren, of Knowlton, officiating, in the absence of his pastor, the Rev. J. D. McCord. Members of the Masonic fraternity from several lodges in the province held a service on the evening prior to the funeral. Bearers were all members of the Masonic Order, and interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife and four children, Roscoe, of Belleville, Ont., Douglas, of Ottawa, Ruth (Mrs. Frank Tabin), of Regina, and Allan, of Belleville; three daughters-in-law, one son-in-law, and nine grandchildren; two brothers, Leslie and Archie; three sisters, Mrs. Tessie Bureau, Mrs. Hattie Bowling and Mrs. Henry Birch; an uncle, Jay Teel, and many nieces and nephews.

There were relatives and friends present from Belleville, Ottawa, Coaticook, Verdun, Dorval, Lachute and from surrounding towns.

Spent lifetime in Rouge River area near Calumet

The late Miss Mary Dwyer

Miss Mary Dwyer passed away August 10 at St. George's Hospital. She was in her 88th year, and had lived her entire life along the Rouge River near Calumet.

She was a daughter of the late Bridget Carlin and Martin Dwyer.

The funeral was held Saturday morning from Desforges' parlors to the Roman Catholic Church at Grenville. The funeral rites were well attended by friends and neighbors. Interment took place in the Grenville Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McArthur report a pleasant motor trip to Vancouver, where they attended the Canadian Plumbers and Mechanical Contractors convention, held at Bayshore Inn. On their tour of over three weeks' duration they met or visited various friends, including former Lachute folks, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hay at Kamloops, B.C., Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hewitt, Brian and family, at Grand Forks, B.C. They also visited Victoria, and enjoyed excellent weather most of the way. Travelling the all-Canadian route to the coast, they returned via the U.S. as far as Sault Ste. Marie, finally visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Johnston and family, at Bala, Ont.

Mrs. H. C. Cassidy, of Lewistown, Pa., and Miss Aileen Cassidy, of Rawdon, Que., are visiting the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy P. Fraser, after having completed a lengthy tour to the Pacific Coast and Alaska.

Mrs. R. S. MacArthur, Sr., and Miss Jeannette MacArthur, of Montreal, are leaving Dorval on August 18 to spend a month with the former's grandson, Mr. Neil MacArthur, of Oakland, Calif.

BELL LINES

by JIM MENZIES

The Weatherman has certainly come up with a "real old-fashioned" Canadian summer this year. Plenty of heat, sunshine and the occasional thunderstorm. Although vacationers are smiling and it's been perfect weather for the beach or for camping, in most areas farm lands could do with a few good rains for the thirsty ground and crops. However, for thousands of holidayers the weather has made trips much more pleasant. Just a stroll through the business section here in Lachute gives an indication of the way Canadians are on the move . . . license plates from many provinces are parked along with local vehicles. With Labor Day week-end only a short distance away I imagine that many of us will again be on the move to enjoy the last long week-end of the summer months. You've a special servant to help make your trips more pleasant . . . either long-planned vacations or spur-of-the-moment jaunts to a nearby beach or community. A quick call ahead and you can be sure friends or relatives will be at home when you arrive. I've found it a great idea when on a long trip to telephone ahead for hotel or motel reservations. That way, at the end of a day of covering many miles by car, I don't have to begin the search for accommodations. That can be a frustrating experience and can result in added miles of driving during the busy tourist season. Happy travelling, and do drive carefully.

You may have heard or read about our renewed effort to stamp out obscene and harassing telephone calls. I hope none of you ever receives such a call but if you do, here's what to do. DON'T TALK. This type of caller wants and needs an audience. With no response from you there's no encouragement to continue or to repeat the call. HANG UP. Put the receiver back in place quietly if the caller refuses to say anything or at the first obscene word. Nothing is to be gained by slamming the receiver down. In fact, by replacing it normally the caller gains no feeling of satisfaction that he has annoyed or frightened you. CALL US IF abusive or obscene calls persist. Our Service Representatives can call in people we have specially trained to help investigate, identify and work with police in the apprehension of these callers. We are as concerned as the unfortunate victim when obscene or harassing calls are received. It is our business to provide the best possible telephone service for our customers and we are determined to stop deliberately irresponsible and malicious use of the telephone.

On August 2, 1922, Alexander Graham Bell died at the age of 75. Unlike many of history's great men, he was fortunate enough to live to see his life's work well established and in the hands of talented and dedicated people. From Dr. Bell's work have sprung many of the miracles of communications which today we almost take for granted.

Notice

To: GEORGE E. WHISSELL, formerly of De Montigny Street, in the City of Ste. Agathe, of the District of Terrebonne, presently of parts unknown.

Notice is hereby given to you, in accordance with a judgment of the Superior Court for the District of Terrebonne in Case No. 58,176, dated August 10th 1966, that a 60-day Notice in accordance with articles 1040A and the following provisions of the Civil Code of the Province of Quebec, was duly served upon you at the Prothonotary's Office at the Court House in St. Jerome on the 8th of August 1966. The said 60-day Notice concerns a property or a certain farm "situated at Ste. Agathe des Monts in the Province of Quebec known and designated as being Lot Nine in the Fifth Range of the Canton of Beresford on the cadastral of the Parish of Ste. Agathe des Monts in the County of Terrebonne, said emplacement having an area of about Eighty-five acres, more or less, but less that portion of land sold by Zephirin Raymond to the Town of Ste. Agathe des Monts, by Deed of Sale executed before U. Hamel, Notary, on the 19th of August 1938 and registered at the Registry Office for the Registration Division of Terrebonne under the Number 117427; less the part expropriated by the Department of Roads, the indemnity for this expropriation and all the rights in connection thereto being hereby transferred to the Purchaser".

According to this notice, unless you remedy the default described therein within sixty days from the above mentioned date of service, the Plaintiff will apply to the Court to be declared absolute owner of the immoveable described above.

Given at St. Jerome, this 10th day of August 1966.

Keep saving those trading stamps

SINCE THE establishment of the National Commission on Food Marketing, there has been considerable speculation as to what the Commission's report might say about trading stamps and food retailing. This speculation has ranged from "a prohibition of stamps" to "Congressional investigations."

The subject of trading stamps forms a very minor part of the Commission's rather lengthy report, and is treated simply as one of a number of successful sales promotion techniques employed by food retailers.

There was speculation by some, and actual reports by others, that the report would contain recommendations that the government go so far as to prohibit trading stamps. What may well be concluded from the report, however, appears that the question of trading stamps is one that will properly continue to be decided in the market-place through economic forces, not through government regulation. There is apparently no more need for control of trading stamps than there would be for advertising. Bad advertising soon disappears. So do unethical or unfair sales promotion ideas.

The report also supports the strong popularity of trading stamps. But it finds that less than fifty per cent of retail food sales are made in stores using trading stamps.

A characteristic of the trading stamp system, that of being the only sales device that returns to the consumer the cost of the promotion, may well be the chief reason for the success of the trading stamp system. The customer receives premium merchandise for her dealing with a stamp-giving merchant.

As to the effect of trading stamps on food prices, the report does not hold that trading stamps automatically increase food prices in stores where they are given. There is, of course, a considerable body of evidence available on the question of the effect of trading stamps on prices and, indeed, on the entire scope of the trading stamp industry. An exhaustive amount of this evidence was presented to the Commission; that the final report does not include this evidence and tends to treat trading stamps as a minor factor, is cited by the industry to suggest that stamps are not a major force in the relationship between farm and food prices, food prices in general, or any other area of food marketing aside from retail sales promotion.

Finally, a retailer will use trading stamps or some other promotion when it pays to do so, and will eliminate them when he finds something more useful and more desired by the shopping public. But win customers he must; and, until a new system of business is invented, he will do it through promotion. That is a basic part of the nature of the free enterprise system under which we live.

Trade mission pays off

A CONTRACT has been awarded in London, England, for the building of 173 homes in Britain using Canadian materials and timber-frame construction methods. . . While giving a minor boost in terms of export dollars, this news will give a major lift to the construction designers and material manufacturers in Canada, a progressive breed who view their craft with a certain pride of achievement — and justifiably, we feel.

The housing project, on a 15-acre site at Harlow, Essex, 26 miles north-east of London, is designed to show that Canadian house building methods are practical in Britain in terms of building costs, speed of construction and housing values.

Trade and Commerce Minister Winters said that commencement of this project next month will represent the culmination of three years' work by his department and the Canadian lumber and plywood industries in a program to promote sales of Canadian lumber and building materials to Britain.

The contract for the project was awarded to a Leicester firm with more than 60 years experience in building and civil engineering. Construction is scheduled to be completed within 18 months.

Besides designing the homes, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation as nominated architect, will supervise the construction. In all other respects, including financing, it is a British project. The houses will be sold to private buyers.

The development will include two, three and four-bedroom units with prices including garage and land, ranging from $15-$19,000. One of the houses will be used as a furnished model home — such as we see in Canadian housing developments — and is expected to attract thousands of visitors, including representatives of local housing authorities throughout Britain.

Widespread acceptance of Canadian house building methods in Britain could be beneficial to both countries. It would help the British to attain their annual goal for housing starts and, at the same time, provide increased markets for Canadian lumber and plywood.

Hidden assassins

TO SCARE our readers against the foods they eat, might contribute in small measure to the battle against obesity. Then again, it might slow down the cash registers of our best advertisers, the food stores. . . Neither is likely to happen; but it does no harm to learn what other people think of the possible hazards, and to appreciate the watchdogs at Ottawa who are doing their best to safeguard our food and pharmaceutical standards.

Our "Outdoors" columnist has been reading up on pesticides, and paints another ominous picture this week. Then comes to our attention a new book, which gives a "shocking account" of the hazards that lurk in the food we eat. Title of this book is "The Hidden Assassins" (by Booth Mooney; Ryerson Press). . .

"Consider the cheese maker in the middle-western United States who found a dead mouse in the pasteurized milk from which he was making up a batch of colby cheese. If there was a conflict within the man between judgment and greed, the battle was short. He scooped the mouse out of the milk and went ahead with his cheese making. Later an outbreak of food poisoning that affected a large number of people was traced to the cheese. The mouse evidently had been suffering from mouse typhoid, which is caused by the salmonella organism that causes food poisoning among humans. And while the milk had been pasteurized, the mouse had not."

The above is typical of case histories and documentation given in a book which, while written about the United States, is of equal importance this side of the border. Since World War II, industry has produced an amazing array of new chemicals to make food-processing cheaper and to alter the appearance, texture and taste of food. Are these substances, when consumed in great variety over a long period of time, safe or unsafe? Nobody knows for sure. In addition to these "additives", the products of our farms are awash in pesticides. They are applied to the soil before crops are planted, sprayed and dusted on growing plants, and used on harvested produce before it goes to the market. Known in the trade as "economic poisons", they are poisonous indeed. Yet they appear in many foods including those consumed by children.

"U.S. President Lyndon B. Johnson has said: 'Thousands of common household items are available to consumers which contain potentially harmful substances. Hundreds of new uses for such products as food additives, food colorings and pesticides are found each year, adding new potential hazards.'

Canadian Food Industry publication adds: "We feel that it should be first stressed that The Hidden Assassins can only be viewed as a direct attack on the food and beverage processing industry. . . It therefore behoves all people connected with the industry to give careful study to this same document."

Viewpoints and perspectives

BOMBS CHANGE WEATHER. — The scientists now believe that the dust from the nuclear explosions and more especially, since China has set off a series of blasts, disturbs the atmosphere, which in turn releases moisture content over scattered areas of the world. They also believe that the violent windstorms experienced are also a part of the upset being caused. They also add that the layman has been convinced of this for a far longer time than they.

OVER THE YEARS with The Lachute Watchman

80 YEARS AGO

August, 1886 —

A large number of visitors are in Lachute this summer as usual, residing in private houses or at the hotels.

Mr. Cockfield, who has been headmaster of Lachute Academy for two years, has been engaged to teach in Montreal at $1,000 a year. . . Mr. J. W. McOuat, B.A., has been appointed headmaster here for the year.

Pleasant rooms and good board for the season, at reasonable rates. — Mrs. K. Massiah, East End, Lachute. (Advt.)

Trotting matches are being held next Wednesday on the racing park of Mr. Duncan Paul, Bethany.

On Wednesday next, there will also be a Binder trial on Mr. Walter Paul's farm field adjoining the race-course, by arrangement of Mr. W. D. Cooke.

Dr. John Christie, of Chicago, is presently on a visit to his friends in Lachute.

C. G. Arless, Photographer, of Montreal, will open a studio shortly in Mr. J. A. Bedard's premises. (Advt.)

In the election of school commissioners, Messrs. Palliser and Cruise, the retiring commissioners, were re-elected unanimously.

50 YEARS AGO

August, 1916 —

Good restaurant, boarding house and picture hall for rental. — P. Goyette, Brownsburg. (Advt.)

The cement abutments and approaches to the new steel bridge are now completed and awaiting the structural steel from the Phoenix Bridge Company.

Mr. E. H. McCoy received word that his son Lorne, with the Canadian Flying Corps, is in hospital in France after an operation for appendicitis.

That the Council are intent upon forcing obedience to the Prohibition by-law was evidenced by the sudden visit of five detectives who made a raid on five hotels in town.

In Mr. J. W. McOuat's maple grove an afternoon picnic was held re-uniting over 90 members of the McOuat, Drew and Pollock families.

The death occurred of Mrs. S. M. Ireland, widow of F. C. Ireland and only child of the late James Fish — both earlier Lachute Mills industrialists. She is mourned by three sons, all ministers of the church.

In two electric storms this week, Mrs. Wm. Hume of Bethany lost a barn containing 25 tons of hay, and Mr. Chas. Moore of Hill Head had two buildings destroyed, with 50 tons of hay, machinery and livestock.

25 YEARS AGO

August, 1941 —

A Lions Club field day was held at the Exhibition Grounds, and a drawing for a Plymouth car, sponsored by MacRae Motor Sales on behalf of the Argenteuil Spitfire Fund, brought luck to the winner, Chas. Nixon, of Rawcliffe. Net proceeds from this patriotic effort amounted to $1,836. . . Several hundred soldiers of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers were encamped near White's Bridge en route to Ottawa, and their band was placed at the disposal of the Lions Club for the afternoon. A gymnastics display was given by a team from the Christian Brothers' orphanage at Alfred, Ont.

Modern woman — that incomprehensible sex which exposes its thinly-clad, silky legs to all the blasts that blow throughout the winter, and then puts on long pants in the summer.

The death of Mrs. Hugh Fraser, Jr., 92 years of age, has severed a link with the earlier days of this community.

Morin Heights — The Montreal Motorcycle Club and the Montreal Motor Club gave a dance for their employees at the Davis Hall here.

"Today we received some magazines from one of the Auxiliary Services, and I happened to notice a Maclean's with your name and address label on it." — Letter from Cpl. W. R. (Bob) Miller from an Army recreation hut "Somewhere in England", written to Mr. Fred Roberts, of this town. "It is a coincidence that, of the thousands of magazines handed in from Canadian homes, this one from Lachute should be perused by a fellow townsman."

Elections every two years

Canadians who lament the frequency of federal elections the past few years are prone to forget that the United States goes through a full-fledged national vote every two years.

The "off-year" or "mid-term" elections, as they are called in the U.S., come half-way between presidential contests. The campaign for this year's voting in November — less than three months away — is building to a boil and the Democrats are in trouble over Vietnam and the Negro backlash.

Every two years, including presidential election years, the entire 435-seat House of Representatives is up for grabs, along with one-third of the 100-seat Senate. Senators — two from each state — are elected for six years but as one-third of the seats are voted on alternately, the Congress is in an almost constant state of change.

As most everyone knows, the off-year elections almost always produce setbacks for the President's party. For one thing, weak candidates cannot ride to victory on their president's coattails, and voters who may be disenchanted with the administration often take this opportunity to rebuke the President without having to vote against him personally.

The only modern exceptions to this rule came in 1934 when President Roosevelt actually strengthened his following in Congress, and in 1962 when President Kennedy managed to keep his losses to a virtually irreducible minimum. In 1962, however, President Kennedy had the missile crisis going for him (the country tends to unite around the President in times of crisis) and the Democrats were able to regain some traditional Democratic seats which had been lost in 1960 at the hands of voters suspicious of the prospects of a Catholic President.

So now come the 1966 mid-term elections. In the wake of the 1964 Johnsonian landslide resulting from the debacle of Goldwater extremism, the Democrats enjoy their greatest majority in 30 years — 155 in the House and 36 in the Senate.

It is a rule of politics that the more seats you have, the more you are likely to lose. Witness the Diefenbaker reversal of 1962 when the greatest parliamentary majority in Canada's history was cut to an actual minority in the House of Commons.

The Congress under Johnson has just come through two of the most productive years of its history, writing into law measures which Kennedy had begun to advocate but had no hope of achieving. These include the civil rights act, the voting rights act, tax reduction, medicare for the aged, massive conservation and other historic moves toward "The Great Society."

Despite all this, Americans have become increasingly uneasy about President Johnson. In Vietnam, he has adopted the war policy for which he had denounced Goldwater in 1964. His popularity in early summer fell below the 50 per cent. mark but after the Hanoi bombings, bounced back up to 54 per cent. as Americans hoped that escalation would bring an early end to the fighting there.

Republicans freely admit that Vietnam will be the deciding factor in the November elections. If the present stalemate continues, the Republicans will benefit. Solid U.S. successes, or by ironic contrast, equally solid Communist successes which would seem to threaten the security of the United States, would benefit the Democrats.

The Democrats, as the authors of Negro civil rights legislation, are being hurt by the Black Power movement and Negro violence in the big cities. The fact that white society is still fundamentally responsible for Negro violence in that such outbursts are the result of generations of enslavement and oppression, will not mollify many voters.

The Black Power movement, meanwhile, is far closer to success than most Americans realize. While Negroes comprise only 10 per cent. of the population, they are in positions of a majority or near-majority in many cities, most notably Washington, D.C.

The big question in November is not how many seats the Democrats will lose, but whether they will lose them to moderate Republicans or to arch-conservatives who would permit the re-establishment of the old reactionary coalition between conservative Republicans and the southern Democrats.

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

Bigtime in the bigtown

Burning desire of most city people in the blasting heat of mid-summer is to flee from the concrete canyons and head north, where there is cool, blue water and golden sand and you sleep under blankets.

Well, we live in the north, comparatively, and usually it's just as the city denizens picture it

But this summer, after sleeping under nothing but a film of sweat for three weeks, we decided to seek refuge from the heat.

How do you get it? Head farther north? Nope, you head south for the city and check into an air-conditioned hotel. With a swimming pool.

It was done on impulse, with no room reservation. We were lucky. After four phone calls, we found ourselves ensconced in a fine big room, cool as a tomb, overlooking the swank swimming pool. And yet it was right in the heart of the city.

Very pleasant. Free parking and free ice cubes appealed to my Scottish strain.

We called a few people, and by 8 o'clock the joint was jumping, room service was on the gallop, and the room was filled with everything from teenagers to a grandmother who had just knocked off her 79th birthday and was prepared to celebrate the event till dawn.

Fortunately, cooler heads prevailed, and by 11 p.m. all had gone their various ways. What to do? Too late for dinner or a show. Too early for bed.

My wife, who turns into a Go-Go Girl when she gets into a hotel room and hasn't any meals or dishes or laundry to worry about, suggested we hit the coffee-house circuit. My daughter, whose foremost desire is to do just that, but by herself, demurred.

"Who wants to go there with parents? And besides, I hear they don't allow old people into them."

When the kid realized there wasn't a hope of getting into that teenage jungle on her own, she graciously permitted us to go along.

And that's how we found ourselves in famous, or infamous, Yorkville, at midnight, with about 4,000 young people strolling up and down the sacred couple of blocks, on their nightly pilgrimage.

Within five minutes, we'd been spotted by one of my students, who seemed delighted to catch Mr. Smiley in the act, so to speak. We took refuge in a cellar joint.

Maybe I'm getting old and crusty. But the coffee houses have changed greatly, and for the worse, in the five years since I've been there.

Then, they were run by enthusiastic amateurs, you could spend a whole evening for a dollar and a quarter, and the music was provided by young folk singers, some lousy, some good, but all serious and rather sweet.

Now they've gone commercial. There's a stiffish cover charge, coffee is 50 cents a wallop and rotten, and the music, provided by groups whose sole purpose seems to be to drive you right out of your skull, is one great blast of electronic noise and shouting.

Ironically, the places have become too expensive for most of the young people they were originally intended for. Perhaps that's why they walk up and down outside in one vast, rolling crowd that is always potentially a mob.

Oh, well, it was a good weekend. We had budgeted for one night only. But we didn't wake up until checking-out time, it was still steaming hot outside, and the girls came up with some of that weird feminine logic which proved that we could afford it if we cut down on something or other. So I was hooked for another 24 hours of pretending to be a millionaire.

We loafed, swam, watched the real rich people spoiling their kids, had an Italian dinner, and took in Eric Nicol's comedy, catching three seats in the second row by pure luck. Enjoyed it, but I'm afraid it will hit Broadway about the same year I win the Nobel prize.

And home Sunday, up the highway north, rested and refreshed, and laughing all the way at those sun-burned, exhausted vacationers pouring south, on their way back from the sizzling north to the tropical city.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

I have just spent the most encouraging four days since I have been in the province of Quebec. As one of three "judges", along with Mr. Richardson, of the Lennoxville Experimental Station, and Jim Brown of Macdonald College's Extension Service, for the Q.F.A. pasture competition in Compton County, east of Sherbrooke, I had the pleasure of visiting twenty-one farms in those four days. What we saw was no less than exciting; the whole trip was full of pleasant surprises.

For instance, I thought we might find one or two, or maybe even three reasonably good pasture programs in the group. But I never guessed we would have a real job selecting a winner from six exceptionally good, well managed pasture programs, with at least eight more in the "Good" category. In fact, not one could be called "Poor".

We finally gave top place to Wells Coates, East Angus, even though it embarrassed Wells a bit since he was on the committee organizing the event. But we found it very hard to fault Wells' program. His 34 acres of regular pasture, all Ladino and Climax timothy, was in six fields. Each was being grazed in turn for three or four days and each was further divided with an electric fence so he could give the cows a fresh strip twice daily.

His fertilizer program was strictly according to soil test. Mostly, he found he was using 0-20-20 and 0-15-30 spread in the fall. As a result the stand was thick and vigorous in every field, and there was a 50-50 balance between legume and grass. There was no sign of overgrazing; or undergrazing; each time the cows were closed out of a field, he clipped it with the mower and dragged it with the chain harrows. This did a perfect job of spreading droppings and avoiding the clumpiness you so often see. And the pastures were all close to barns, and all were reasonably close to shade and water.

But Wells did have a bit of weed problem. Fall dandelions, as he called them, were giving quite a yellow color to the aftermath hay fields. If anyone has a good method of controlling this weed, I would be pleased to hear. It is a new one to me, although it appears to be common in Compton County. The weed book lists it as Leontodon autumnalis, a perennial resistant to the common weed control chemicals.

This 34 acres, plus some aftermath, a few acres rough pasture, and a twelve acre field of green oats, had carried 41 milking head and the young cattle up to the tenth of August. That worked out to be 1.6 animal units per acre, not a bad score. Worked out another way, that pasture provided 2035 pounds milk per acre up to this date.

Surprisingly, we found these figures checked out very close to the other top placers. Reg. Hodge's pastures had produced 2700 pounds milk per acre in eighty days, and Wesley Bowker's had yielded 2100 lbs. in the first 88 days.

The best carrying capacity we found on the farm of Allen Martin. He was running 1.8 animal units per acre, and had in reserve a tremendous amount of pasture — enough to carry his beef herd until the snow flies. Allen had easily the best pasture program I have ever seen, either in Quebec or in Eastern Ontario.

Incidentally, Mr. Martin also has the best fields of corn I have seen this year. The weed control is close to perfect. Jim Brown hunted for three minutes to find a blade of twitch grass. Cy Rolfe, who did the spraying, said he used 4 lbs. of atrazine 65W, and one gallon oil per acre. In fact, we saw a dozen really good stands of corn in the four days. And Compton isn't rated as one of the Corn Counties!

Allen Martin placed second in the pasture competition. Reg. Hodge, Melvin Huppé, Donald Coates, and Wesley Bowker all had programs that were outstanding, each in its own way. But there could be only one top place, and besides, the competition was not intended to be all that serious. It was more of an excuse to make visits, compare notes, and talk over problems.

Space is too short to tell a quarter of the highlights. Every farm had something to show. But we must mention Melvin Huppé's project. Two years ago, after raising beef for 22 years, he switched to dairy. He hired $400 worth of bulldozer time to clean up 27 acres rough, wet pasture, build roads and shape ditches. Then he cultivated the area, limed, fertilized, seeded to ladino and Climax timothy, and divided it into six small fields with good fence. Today, he has a stand of ladino you would have to see to believe. His new herd of twenty hand-picked Holstein heifers can't begin to keep up with the growth. A happier, prouder man you never saw.

Mr. Huppé was not the only one with pioneer pastures to show us. This was one of the surprises. Out of twenty-one calls, eleven had, in the last two years bulldozed, fertilized, and seeded ladino and timothy on land too rough and too stony for even our indomitable ancestors to think of breaking. And they were good. I have never seen ladino clover grow the way it does in Compton County. Mr. Richardson says it is the perfect summer moisture.

And after being in Sherbrooke during that thunderstorm, I can believe drought is not a problem in Compton County.

Import Cattle from France

Ottawa — Permits to import 229 head of cattle from France this fall have been issued to 191 cattle breeders across Canada, the CDA's Health of Animals Branch reports.

Facilities at the federal maximum security quarantine station on Grosse Ile, near Quebec City, are being enlarged to handle the importation, which is about double the number brought in last year.

The cattle, now being purchased in France by Canadian buyers, will enter the French quarantine station at Brest early in September. They will remain there for 30 days and then will be moved by ship to Grosse Ile.

Of the 229 head being imported, 10 will go to British Columbia, 92 to Alberta, 61 to Saskatchewan, 10 to Manitoba, 38 to Ontario, 17 to Quebec, and one to Nova Scotia.

The quarantine period on Grosse Ile is for a minimum of 90 days, but because of the exhaustive testing required, and ice conditions in the St. Lawrence River at that time of year, it is not expected that cattle will be released from the island until next April.

Importers are required to pay for the care and feeding of the livestock, both at the Brest quarantine station and on Grosse Ile as well as charges for special tests required on these animals. In addition, importers will pay a $5-per-day-per-head quarantine charge for a maximum of 90 days on Grosse Ile.

Cattle imported from France must meet stringent health requirements and go through a multitude of tests, all under the direct supervision of CDA veterinarians.

New games for children

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"What game can we play?"

How often mother is asked this question, especially on holidays when school children have long hours to do as they like! But even little folk often want an idea for some new game.

There are old favorites like "run sheep run, "I spy," or "hop scotch" which children quickly teach each other in every community.

Many new games are just variations of old ones which have proved their value. For example, "sardines" is a kind of hide and seek.

In "sardines," only one child hides and after two minutes all the other children scatter and search for the hidden one. When a child finds the one who is hiding, he crouches down beside him.

Then, when the next child finds the two who are hiding, he also crouches down until finally, all the children except one are hiding. The last one, who has been unsuccessful in the search, becomes the one who is the "hider" on the next turn.

New Ideas

Mothers of small children are sometimes at a loss for new ideas for their play time.

On a rainy day, why not draw a rough pussy cat on a large sheet of wrapping paper? Using narrow strips of cloth and plain pins, play "pin a tail on the cat".

Each one in turn is blind-folded before he attempts to put the tail on the right place. This is such good fun it need not be kept just for a party.

Relays are exciting and popular. A potato relay race, a peanut hunt, a paper pieplate running race, where each child is given two pie - plates and must place each foot on one of these instead of on the ground, are all very exciting.

Children love games but a small child's interest span is short. Ten or 15 minutes is a long enough game period for most youngsters.

Variety Needed

But variety is the spice of life and it is natural for children to ask their parents for some fresh play ideas.

Every family should have at least one good book of games such as the "handy" booklets of social recreation edited by Lynn Rohrbough or one of Edna Geister's books such as "Let's Play" or the "Fun Book" on its shelf.

A scrapbook of games or a folder or a large envelope for games clippings, if added to regularly, is invaluable. Many magazines publish ideas for party games or a quiz and if these are not kept at the time they appear it is often difficult to locate them later.

Perhaps one member of the family might take over the job of compiling this play material or it might be a family project. The librarian at the public library and the physical training teacher at school are always glad to show a boy or girl where to look for games information.

It is a good idea to have an index for a games scrap book so that games for parties and for special seasonal events such as Hallowe'en can be found quickly.

Choose whatever headings seem most useful such as indoor games and outdoor games, "Mixers" or games to get partners; dramatic games (such as charades); pencil and paper games (such as a quiz), games needing special equipment (such as paper chase).

STING, STING, STING

The honeybee can sting only once, and usually dies within a few minutes after stinging. However, World Book Encyclopedia points out, the bumblebee can sting again and again — and so can its relatives, the wasp, the hornet, and the yellow jacket.

Madeleine Levason

"Get in shape" is the most important single piece of fashion advice for this summer. A slim, firm figure is essential for anyone who wants to wear and enjoy the short skirts, tight pants, bare midriffs, naughty cut-outs and revealing sheer fabrics that are so new and futuristic looking.

Nothing can highlight faulty figures more than pants or bare midriffs and this summer these two fashion features have often combined in Canadian sports and recreation clothes.

Pants of every conceivable length and cut are everywhere. Hipsters, stovepipes, bell bottoms, western and sailor styles plus shorts that range from Jamaica length to the shortest shorts ever seen, have one thing in common — they look much better on a size 12 than a size 16.

As for the bare midriffs, or the revealing cut-outs, they are part of the whole trend to freedom, comfort and swinging action but they are devastating unless they appear with trim waistlines.

Freedom and comfort are also inherent in Canadian sportswear fabrics. The ultimate in wash and wear fabrics are utilized to complete the carefree summer picture. Pants and tops are made in the sturdiest sailcloths, denims, twills or the flimsiest see-through voiles, light-weight jerseys or lacey knits, but all require the minimum of care.

Pantsuits are showing signs of really catching on in Canadian fashion. This summer they are offered in everything from tailored flannel (sometimes with matching alternate skirt) to silky floral printed hostess styles. Culottes, too, come in all lengths, and patio and beach pyjamas are also part of the huge variety of pants.

"Engineered prints", a new term, crops up in descriptions of these many pant styles. The prints range from abstracts, florals, and border patterns to conversational motifs, and they are printed on co-ordinate fabrics of sometimes contrasting types.

For instance, a cotton sail-cloth in the pants may match a sheer, voile top. Cotton voile shirts and pullovers, some plain and tailored, and some very feminine in styling and color, are worn with either pants or as see-through swimsuit cover-ups.

Active sportswear fashions such as golf togs and tennis whites combine the best in feminine styling and functional fabrics. Sturdy nylon golf jackets are often gaily printed. Classic cotton and action-backed shirts and regulation shorts or skirts are also seen in prints or gay colors.

Gleaming white Arnel sharkskin is a perennial favorite for tennis togs. Brief flared skirts or swimging pleated ones with matching underpants are teamed with sleeveless tops in one of two-piece styles designed to keep their fresh appearance.

How to mow a lawn — correctly

A deep, green lawn, glistening in the sunlight, is the hope of nearly every home-owner. Unfortunately, like most other things in this life, to get and keep a good lawn requires work.

Assuming you have a good lawn, how do you keep it that way? It takes three things: Proper feeding (fertilizing), correct watering, and careful mowing. And mowing is the most important. Why? Because improper mowing can ruin the appearance of a lawn quicker and more disastrously than either lack of water or feeding.

In a sense, grass was made to be cut. Unlike trees, bushes, and most other plants, grass grows up from the lower part of the stem rather than from the tips. Cutting stimulates growth by allowing more sunlight to reach the growing area. It also stimulates the grass to thicken at the base, which will help to crowd out weeds. Good grass growth is the best "weed killer" you can have.

But indiscriminate cutting is bad. Each type of grass has an optimum cutting height. Cutting the grass too low can stunt growth and can cause disease to take hold. Here are correct cutting heights for the popular grasses:

Bermuda: 1 to 1½ inch.
Merion Blue: 1½ to 2 inch.
Kentucky Blue: 2 to 2½ inch.

The higher figure should be used during extremely high temperatures and during drought conditions. It's a good idea to check locally, as there may be some problems peculiar to your area.

Timing of the cutting is important as well. Check the height of your grass and only cut it when you can cut half to one-inch at a time. If your mower is set correctly to the right height, then all you need to do is measure your grass to find the right time to cut. This may vary from several times a week early in the growing season, to once a month in a dry spell; but it's important for good growth and for attractiveness to cut it promptly when required.

What about clippings? There are two opposing sides. One says that every single clipping should be picked up for a more attractive lawn. The other side says they should all remain on the ground for mulch and protection. Actually, both sides are partly right. A lawn does look better without a layer of clippings, and there is some value to letting clippings decompose on the lawn. Too many clippings, however, will tend to choke off the air, and this is bad for the grass.

There are also right and wrong ways to guide your mower over the lawn. Every mower "throws" the clippings either to the left or right. Try to discharge the clippings onto the lawn and away from walks, to save sweeping up. Of course, if you are picking up your clippings in a grass catcher, this doesn't make any difference.

Vary your pattern of cutting. Go back and forth in one direction for one cutting, then the opposite back and forth direction the next time. Even cut diagonally sometimes. Continual cutting in the same way tends to slant the grass in that direction.

A beautiful lawn can be yours if you take a little care. Modern lawn equipment can make pleasant exercise out of what was once a difficult chore.

Specifications for Canadian flag

Ottawa — A government standard has been issued for the Canadian flag, the Honorable C. M. Drury, Minister of Industry, announced recently.

The standard includes improved construction and a permanent color for the life of the flag. Technical details and the color were developed by the Department of National Defence and the National Research Council with the co-operation of Canadian industry. Standards have also been established for reproduction of the red of the flag by such means as inks, paints and prefabricated markings in gloss, semi-gloss and flat finishes.

Copies of the standard and samples of the matching colors are available from the Secretary, Canadian Government Specifications Board, Department of Defence Production, Ottawa 4.

The Bible Today

Scraps from Egyptian rubbish heaps, bits from a wastebasket in a Mount Sinai monastery, an almost illegible Greek manuscript at Tiflis (U.S.S.R.); manuscripts from a New York City museum and the private library of a Swiss banker; countless fragments viewed on thousands of spools of microfilm — that is what goes into the preparation of a New Testament in the original Greek.

After twelve years' work, an international committee of scholars has now completed a new edition of the Greek New Testament, sponsored and published by five Bible Societies (American, British, Dutch, Scottish and Wurttemburg, Germany). It has been set in the United States and printed by the Wurttemburg Bible Society.

The new edition has two main purposes: to provide scholars with a new text and a new selection of variant readings which are representative of modern developments; and to provide students and Bible translators with a new tool with which to do their work more accurately. The new text is not a radical departure: it is a conservative revision in the tradition of the Westcott-Hort and Nestle-Aland type of text, both of which have been widely used for decades.

Teatime Topics

By Jean Sharp,
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

The difference between a day of fun and a tragedy can sometimes be a little caution.

The best place to go swimming, the Red Cross points out, is a spot supervised by qualified lifeguards. If that isn't possible, the next best place is one you know is safe. And never go swimming alone.

When you are considering a swim, there are a few points to keep in mind for safety.

The bottom of your swimming spot should be solid and slope gradually to a depth of ten feet or less. Deeper water is dangerous because few rescuers can dive deep enough to reach a victim on the bottom, the Red Cross says.

Move Slowly

Choose a place without weeds if you can. If you do get entangled in them, don't struggle, move slowly and easily to the top of the water and then out of the area.

To check a current, throw a stick in the water to see which way and how fast the current carries it. If you get caught in a current, don't fight it, move with it and at the same time, diagonally toward the shore.

If you are swimming in deep water, be alert for an undertow, an underwater current that could pull down and away from shore. Don't struggle against it, let it carry you while you swim diagonally up toward the surface of the water.

If you are considering a swim in unknown water, check it for hidden dangers before you run in. With shoes on, and wearing underwater goggles if you have them, wade in slowly to explore for holes, rusty cans, stumps or sharp rocks.

Consider Temperature

The best water temperature for swimming is between 70 and 80 degrees. If the water is very warm it will tire you quickly. If it is cold, the shock may give you cramps.

The best times of day to swim are late morning and during the afternoon.

The Red Cross warns that swimming after dark is dangerous because supervision is difficult or impossible. A rescuer might not find you. A motor boat operator might not be able to see you.

You should wait for at least two hours after eating before you swim, and if you have been working or playing and are hot, wait a while to cool down before you go in the water. Then go in slowly, stay close to shore, and swim easily. Otherwise you might exhaust yourself.

If you do get a cramp, try not to panic. Try to relax, keep yourself afloat until help arrives, or if you can, swim easily into shore and stay there. Cramps sometimes do return quickly.

BEES SEE

Although ultraviolet light is invisible to humans, it can be seen by the common honeybee, according to World Book Encyclopedia.

City donation to strikers — humanitarian, no partiality

Financial aid to the Dominion Ayers (Wood Division) strikers was extended by City Council in a unanimous vote last Thursday. The councillors agreed on a $1,000 donation to the strike committee.

The special meeting, late Thursday afternoon, was chaired by Mayor Saindon, M.P.P. A pre-meeting caucus paved the way for the decision; and in the formal proceedings, Ald. Jacques Poitras proposed and Ald. Philippe Masson seconded the resolution. The sum was to be handed over $500 immediately and $500 in three weeks, if the strike is not terminated.

Present at the meeting were Léo-Paul Gareau, director of the strike, and Alain Brabant, negotiator, who expressed appreciation and thanked the Council on behalf of the strikers. Mr. Brabant stated that this support from the municipal authorities gave strength to the negotiator and would permit the strikers to hold on awhile in pressing their claims.

Ald. Charlebois made it clear at this point, however, that the Council must be strictly impartial in this conflict, and the gesture of assistance was not to be construed as an attitude in favor of the strikers. Ald. Poitras also elaborated, by stating this donation was a humanitarian gesture towards citizens in need.

Ald. Bruno Belanger was the only member of the civic body absent from this sitting.

Industry at St. Andrews East —

CGE Plastics plant manager addressed Ch. of Commerce

Guest of honor and speaker at the recent annual meeting of the St. Andrews - Carillon Chamber of Commerce was Mr. W. "Bill" King, manager of Canadian General Electric Co. (Plastics Division) located at St. Andrews East. Mr. King joined General Manager Reg Richardson's staff after 12 years' service at Guelph, Ont., where he was in charge of the CGE Works Lab.

Mr. King stated that production of reinforced plastic, a light weight, corrosion resistant and workable material, rivaling steel for certain special uses, was expected to be in full swing by the end of the year. The plant is already filling orders from Canada and United States, including seating for use at Expo '67.

Wm. "Bill" King

In his concluding remarks Mr. King expressed admiration for the manner in which both the Province and the local area had encouraged the construction of the plant. "It is our goal that development of technical skill in this industry will contribute to the bright future of this area and the whole province".

Council forms civic committees

Committees for departments of civic administration in the current council year, have been formed as follows:

Waterworks, Sewers, Streets, Sidewalks, Electricity — François Charlebois and Philippe Masson.

Police and Fire — Philippe Masson and François Charlebois.

Social Service, Public Health and Filtration Plant — Bruno Belanger and the council.

Building Permits and Town Planning — The entire council.

It may be noted there is presently a vacancy in the council.

Council Clippings

At a special sitting of the City Council last Thursday, interim business was dealt with, under chairmanship of Mayor Dr. Z. Saindon, M.P.P. Present were Councillors E. Provost, F. Charlebois, P. Masson, Jacques Poitras; absent, Bruno Belanger. One council seat, that of Alderman Réal Morrissette, was vacant but has since been filled.

It was decided to modify the by-law prohibiting loudspeakers on the streets. The amendment however will permit their use only in stationary form, as on a lot or ground area.

Hubert Pilon, city engineer, was asked to prepare an estimate for paving of walks and steps in the municipal park principally around the fountain and pools. Reason for this, is that children are throwing gravel and crushed stone from the walks into the water, which necessitates frequent housecleaning of the concrete basins.

Joseph Santini, a former president of the Chamber of Commerce, was asked to prepare information on the building of a marina on the North River, specifically at the Richelieu Park. If this proposal develops, it will mean that the municipality takes over a stretch of riverbank in the park, and outlines the contour of the shore and the depth of the riverbed at this spot. Such an undertaking could be executed as a winter works project.

Alderman François Charlebois gave notice of motion, to present a loan by-law for town-planning—to meet the cost of preparing a master plan.

Murder suspect found at H'wksby, taken to Montreal

A Halifax man, arrested in Hawkesbury last Saturday, has been under questioning by Montreal and St. Laurent police in connection with the strangling of two young women in Montreal.

The 29-year-old man, Roland LeBlanc, was arrested in Hawkesbury and later picked up by St. Laurent police, on a warrant charging him with murder.

Hawkesbury police said the man called the station early last Friday morning from a local hotel, claiming he had done something wrong and wanted to tell police. When two constables went to the hotel the man said he had stolen a car and $200 from his employer in Halifax. He said he left Halifax Sunday but couldn't remember anything since.

Police said the man threatened to commit suicide and was taken to police cells "for his own protection". During the night he tried to hang himself with his raincoat, police said. Later Friday he was taken to Brockville hospital on doctor's orders.

A motel pass key led to the detention of the Halifax man on suspicion of murder. Police said the key bore the name of the Chez Pierre-Motel in St. Laurent, where one of the women had been found murdered.

Early Saturday detectives arrived in Brockville, picked up the suspect at the hospital and returned him to Montreal.

LeBlanc was held to appear as a material witness at the inquests on Tuesday of this week.

For $2,793 the City Council has bought a Plymouth car from dealers Morrissette & Cayer, to be used for patrol work. The vehicle is already police-equipped, having been ordered by the Quebec Provincial Police apparently in excess of their immediate needs. Other tenders were received from Garon Automobiles (Pontiac, $2,625) and Levasseur Automobiles (Ford, $2,700).

Adrien Cyr, Hamford Street merchant, was nominated without opposition last Monday to fill the council vacancy left by the resignation of Réal Morrissette. Mr. Cyr was a former police chief and also town foreman for the erstwhile Municipality of Ayersville. The appointment now completes the membership of City Council.

We sternly disapprove of tampering with highway signs — an illegal practice — but someone has a point, in a well-painted addition to a "Rivière du Nord" plaque along Rte. 41 near St. Canut. . . Underneath is painted the legend, "Egout du Nord"!

The height of something or other! — We just heard of a visitor stopping at the Tourist Bureau to ask directions to Gordon Avenue, Lachute. Two young attendants could give no information, had no town map, and showed very little enthusiasm to help the stranger.

Picket lines persistent

Seen here are the picketers with their placards, which have been in constant evidence at the Dominion Ayers Wood Division gates since the workers left their jobs on August 3. The CNTU local headquarters are established in the Knights of Columbus Hall, where there is continuous coming and going as the strike continues. The work stoppage is now entering its fourth week. —Photo, Syd Drew

Strike entering its fourth week, slim progress towards settlement

Little progress was achieved in a meeting last Monday between CNTU representatives and the Dominion Ayers Wood Division management. The negotiations were held in the presence of Jean-Marc Lavoie, the government-appointed conciliator.

A union spokesman has given information on certain minor grounds of agreement, in the following three contract clauses:

(1) The principle of non-discrimination between employees recognized.

(2) Grievance committee to meet with company representatives on contentious issues; and if such conferences occur in working hours, there shall be no deduction for lost time.

(3) The negotiating committee, on renewal of contract, may confer with the Company in work hours without salary deduction for time thus occupied.

According to Alain Brabant, the legal advisor for the strikers, little headway is being made, and proceedings are painfully slow. Another meeting is planned for this Friday, despite pressure from the union for meetings to be held every day, and in the evenings if necessary. (It appears the lawyer is to be hospitalized for a few days, however, which explains the delay in negotiations until Friday.)

Approached by news representatives here, Roger Regimbal, M.P. for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, declared he would be willing to mediate as third party in the differences, but to date the union has declined any assistance on his part. Being well informed on the union demands, Mr. Regimbal believes that as federal member of parliament, he could suggest solutions to the conflict that would be acceptable both to the Company and to the CNTU.

The strike, declared on August 3, is now entering its fourth week.

Increase in subscription rates

The loss of mailing privileges following the incorporation of Lachute as a city of more than 10,000 persons, and increased newsprint costs, have hastened a decision to increase subscription rates of The Lachute Watchman and L'Argenteuil to $4.00 in Canada and $5.50 in the United States and other foreign countries.

The last increase in the subscription rates occurred on March 1, 1952. The new rate will be effective October 1, 1966. Newsstand rates will remain at 10 cents per copy.

Radar base gets new commanding officer

RCAF Station Lac St. Denis, Que. — Squadron Leader Robert C. Meyer, CD, of Sydney, Australia and Montreal, was recently appointed Commanding Officer of RCAF Station Lac St. Denis. He replaces Squadron Leader H. J. McGill, CD, who was posted to NNRHQ, North Bay, Ont. Squadron Leader McGill, Commanding Officer of this Laurentian radar station since 1965, previously Chief Ground Environment Officer since 1963, left with his family for his new duties on July 31. The Station Mess presented Squadron Leader McGill and his wife with gifts, at functions held in their honor.

Squadron Leader Meyer is not new to radar squadrons. Prior to his appointment as Commanding Officer here, he was Chief Ground Environment Officer at RCAF Station Senneterre where he had been since 1963. The new Commanding Officer arrives with wide and varied experience, having been in Australian Infantry in 1942, Royal Australian Air Force in 1943, and he joined the RCAF in 1950. He served in different capacities at four radar squadrons until 1959 when he was appointed to Griffiss Air Force Base, Rome, New York. From there he returned to Canada and served at three more radar squadrons.

Squadron Leader Meyer is keenly interested in tennis, having competed in the USAF world wide championships held at the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, in 1961. The station wishes him every success in his new position.

Incoming Commanding Officer, S/L R. C. Meyer, CD, watches as retiring Commanding Officer, S/L H. J. McGill, CD, signs handing over documents. The retiring Commanding Officer is seen assisted by F/L G. J. Burton. The ceremony took place at RCAF Station Lac St. Denis on July 25.

Week's Epigram

There are two kinds of men who never amount to very much — those who cannot do what they are told, and those can do nothing else.

Criminally responsible in death of infant son

Mrs. Hilaire Charron, 27, was found criminally responsible for the death of her 10-month-old baby boy at a coroner's inquest held here last Tuesday night under Coroner Dr. J. C. MacKimmie.

The woman, of St. Philippe d'Argenteuil, was afterwards taken back to Provincial Police headquarters in Montreal to await arraignment.

The baby, Stephane, was found dead on August 6. An autopsy held two days later by Dr. Jean-Paul Valcourt showed that the infant died of multiple skull fractures.

The following day the mother was detained on a coroner's warrant by Provincial Police from the Lachute detachment and transferred to Montreal headquarters, where Sergeant Jean-Paul Gilbert of the homicide squad took charge of the investigation.

Among six witnesses called at the inquest, the most significant evidence was given by nine-year-old Pierrette Perth, a Lachute girl who was living at the Charrons' during the summer holidays. She testified that the mother had maltreated the child, the witness having seen her through the window throw the victim down the stairs. Later, she stated, she also had been subjected to the woman's beating, in the presence of Mrs. Charron's sister, Mrs. Nicole Léveillée, who tried verbally to stop her. The woman had explained her behaviour as an outburst of nerves.

Hilaire Charron, called to the stand, said he knew nothing of the drama involving his wife and child until he returned home from work that evening.

Dr. Maurice Dubois, of Hawkesbury, testified that the baby had been under his care in hospital a few days previously. He saw young Stephane again on the evening of August 6 in the presence of his grandparents. There were large bruises on the child's face and scalp. . . These were confirmed by Dr. J.-P. Valcourt, pathologist, who had made the autopsy and found several fractures of the skull.

Mrs. Charron was not called to testify.

The five-man jury deliberated only a few minutes before returning their verdict. The crown was represented by Roger Lagarde, QC.

Lachute youth missing from home

Quebec Provincial Police have asked the co-operation of the public in locating Peter Boesch, 16, missing from the Lachute area. He is described as being 5'8" tall and has green eyes and blond hair. When last seen he was wearing corduroy trousers, a light blue shirt and grey shoes. Any information should be relayed to Sgt. J. P. Dallaire or Cpl. André Cartier, Q.P.P., Lachute, by calling 562-5234.

Peter resides with his family and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Boesch, in the Centerville district, R.R. 2, Lachute.

New president of Ch. of Commerce

Emmett Lowe, member of the firm of Lowe Bros. Dairy, was elected recently to serve in the presidency of Lachute Chamber of Commerce for the current year.

Ch. of Commerce proposes municipal marina on N. River

Lachute Chamber of Commerce is urging City Council to acquire a strip of land along the North River for the construction of a marina. Decision to this effect was taken at a C. of C. directors' meeting Monday evening, with four members of the Council attending. . . Councillors had held some preliminary discussion on this idea at a special meeting of the civic body last Thursday.

According to information given by Jos. Santini, of the C. of C. executive, Lachute could benefit from the construction of a wharf and a launching ramp on a 100-ft. stretch of riverbank, on express condition that the municipality becomes owner of the land.

In addition to the marina, the land acquisition would provide space for a municipal camping site, and an asset in view of the travel expected for Expo '67 in Montreal.

Mr. Santini also stated that an inspector from the Department of Public Works at Ottawa recently visited the site, bordering Paquin Avenue along the river, and found the location very suitable for such construction. Mr. Santini made it known that a sum between $10,000 and $15,000 would be available from the government for this project.

Other Business

The Chamber of Commerce also decided to put into circulation, this coming month, publicity outlining the opportunities for industry in Lachute area.

A golf tournament for members and guests is arranged for September 28, and a soiree in honor of past-presidents on October 1, at the Golf Club chalet.

Indian jamboree staged at Oka this week-end

In a grand Indian Jamboree at Oka this week-end, members of 12 reserves will take part and there will be no fewer than seven tribal princesses.

Following are highlights of the program, August 27 and 28, which is expected to attract many residents from Deux Montagnes and from this vicinity:

Saturday — 1.30 p.m. Street parade in Oka and demonstration of Indian handicrafts.

7.30 p.m. — Indian folk dancing.

10 p.m. — Firelight dance with many Indians participating.

Sunday — 1.30 to 4 p.m. Demonstration of traditional Indian games.

4.30 p.m. Mass at parish church, in native Indian tongue; chorale from the Caughnawaga Reserve.

By BOB ATCHISON

A ray of hope had filtered into the Dept. of Fish, Game and Tourism this past while. I have talked to some of the sportsmen interested in just where this department is going. It has looked for this short time past that the future was more optimistic — but still it appears this may be so much propaganda.

I just heard of a release given by another newsman, one who happens to have been a good worker for the new minister in his bid for a seat in the last provincial election. Now, I have no criticism with his remark (viz, that more money is going to be spent in Mont Tremblant Park, so as to bring it right up to par). What I object to, is a person not connected with the government being able to publicly state this, with seemingly the minister's blessing. . . If this is going to be the policy of our present government, then it hasn't changed at all.

Already the wolf bounty is back on, and this was brought back, I'm sure, to brighten things for a lot of professional poachers we have in this province — and this does not exclude Labelle. Having brought this bounty back, what comes next? Open season for all other animals? Well, not officially, but with the wolf hunter always ready to kill, then what is to protect the deer? Not our laws, for one thing. This is certainly a wonderful opportunity for these poachers, and I predict there will be more venison on the open market this year than ever before.

The bounty system has never worked, and it never will. As far as I am concerned, this law is worthless. As regards the conservation of deer especially, when the wolves are killed, don't these people realize that they are interfering with the proper balance of Nature? If the wolves are shot out, then what keeps the deer from overbreeding? I know this will sound funny, but not even our worthy poachers can do this. Wolves have been on this continent much longer than we have, yet we still have deer too, so how come? If the wolf is such a killer, then why have we got anything left in wild game?

Truly, the sooner our Fish and Game Dept. is divorced from politics, the better it will be. But alas, this will not happen in our time.

Talking to our Mayor and M.P.P. the other day about the North River . . . of course, whenever we got together on this, long before he ever was chief magistrate, it always got around to pollution, and what could be done to help to beautify the river. Now it seems Mayor Dr. Saindon has called on some of the industries in town to seek help with this problem. Far from visualizing this pollution is a thing of the past — maybe we are on the right trick, at least Industry has promised to help. . . So you remark that St. Jerome is still pouring filth into the waters? True enough, but if we start something ourselves, then St. Jerome would have no excuse for not doing the same. A sewage disposal plant would be worth a lot in our municipal economy at the present time. Just think, even industry would have to clean up. Maybe, we are at the start of something at last.

The fishing has dropped off somewhat, but not as much as might be expected. With waters being warm for awhile, the fish were not too anxious to please; then with the rains we've had in the last few weeks, this has cooled the lakes a lot. So much so that it's almost a must to wear waders. Greys are still being caught, not too many of them, but still enough to make one happy. Naturally, trolling is the best approach right now, and believe it or not, the best lure is still the West River. The Venus lure, all gold, has also been good; although a spinning lure, it has been better than most of the trolling type. This is strange too; the West River is silver on the face, and copper on the inside, whereas the Venus is all gold with a feather on the hook. But it's good anyway. Of course, we know that one bait will be terrific at one time and another time it will be worse than useless. That's what makes fishing!

Now for you bird lovers: With the summer rapidly drawing to a close, how about starting on some bird feeders? You remember that you needed more than you had last year, and besides, a couple extra will help drive away those winter blues, with feathered visitors. Start saving that grease from your cooking, too; put it into a large container, and when this is full, pop it into the freezer so it will be good and hard for the winter when needed. Even the Southern birds will fill up on this, if you care to place it outside now. Most of these birds have a long way to go before they are out of the cold, and the more of this grease they get, the longer they will linger. Also you might put out more sugar and water for the humming birds; these will be leaving us very soon, so they could do with some help. I saw a small flock of geese over the mountain just north of town the other day. I was told of a small flock that had summered in a little lake not far from here, so I guess this was the same group, trying out their wings before they leave us. Ducks are also starting to show up on the rivers, enough to let you know the cold weather is not too far away. From all indications the ducks and geese have had a very good breeding summer, with moisture and heat sufficient to foster the young. I don't know how well they have fared away up north, but it's about time they got a break.

Another thing with the birds, as most of you winter feeders know, the spadgers get very cheeky, and it's not unusual for them to become so tame you can almost touch them. This gives a feeling of great satisfaction, just realizing that these little creatures trust you.

There are a good number of sparrow hawks with us now, along with owls, that are having a good treat with the voles and field mice. Believe it or not, the mice are pests that have done considerable damage around the area. In a couple of cases they have got into summer camps, and what they've done to beds, etc., is no fun. While on destruction, there are a lot of porcupines around also — as various small dogs have discovered, getting a snoot full of quills. Trees have been girdled and there is other evidence of their destructive habits.

Today, August 17, I had one of those experiences you just don't believe. Up fishing in one of my own little creeks, I was wading along the stream, slow and easy, with as little noise as possible. Creeping along in the water to a little pool, just as I got ready to cast the fly (size 16, very small) I heard a squawk. Being hidden by alders, I couldn't see what made the noise, I had thoughts of a Blue Heron. . . I cast very easily, and had a chub minnow take the fly. Taking it off, I killed it (as they eat the food of the trout, not to mention the trout spawn). I threw this minnow in toward the bank, but still in the water — and out comes a beak and spears the minnow! To say I was surprised, would be putting it mildly. After catching one small trout, too small to keep, I pulled in more minnows. And every one I threw in toward this bush, the beak came out and scooped it up. This was repeated for nine such morsels. I still had not seen the bird. . . Moving on, I tied into a fair-sized trout, had a lot of fun with it before letting it go, then once again the minnows. This time I just heaved them close to the bank, and each time, the beak came out of the bushes to seize the tidbit. Now this is the part I like; just dropping the minnow close to the bush, I watched to see what would happen. I believe most of you have seen these water birds, the long-legged variety. One leg came out in slow motion, then its head, and — bing, went the minnow. . . I moved on — and yep, this bird followed me along. By now I had seen it close up; it was a bittern. Before all this was through, I had fed the bird about 50 minnows, and it had approached to within 10 feet. . . Finally I headed home, but not before the bittern gave me a disgruntled send-off. Not even a thank-you for the free lunch!

LACHUTE MOTOR SPORT CLUB NEWS

by don smith

On Sunday morning, the LMSC Summer Rally sponsored by Molson Lachute Ltée, was held as scheduled. Twenty-five crews of rallyists were at the starting line, including a team of Mustangs from Arnold's Garage in Grenville, the LMSC Volvo team sponsored by Campbell & MacDonald Motor Sales Ltd., and a privately entered team.

The course covered 145 miles, of mainly gravel roads which defied description. The only other travellers on one of the roads, for example, were on horseback! The rally itself was probably the best this district has ever seen. Almost every type of instruction known to rallyists was used. The thermometer was the only piece of equipment in our kit that we didn't have to use.

For the second time, our club members were very successful against competitors from Montreal, Hawkesbury, St. Jerome, Ottawa and Grenville. The LMSC Volvo team crewed by Alan Bates, Tom Dwyer, Jack Hume, Ron Tilsley, Doug Shewan and yours truly, captured the trophies for the best team. These cars also finished 1-2-3 in the standings, to provide a clean sweep for our club.

Results (Unofficial) —

2. Doug Shewan and Don Smith, Volvo 1225 — 11 points.

2. Jack Hume and Ron Tilsley, Volvo 544 — 18 points.

3. Tom Dwyer and Alan Bates, Volvo 544 — 28 points.

The prizes will be given out at the next meeting, this Friday at 8 o'clock in the Masonic Hall. Mr. Gaston Laroche will be on hand to make the presentations.

Tom Smith was slowed by a flat tire, but managed to finish the rally. . . Car No. 20 was a real threat most of the day. That is, until the results were posted. . . Rodney Painter's arrow is about four inches too high. . . Brutus Bullock was the best observer in the rally. . . Dusty rally, wasn't it? . . Thanks to all the checkers, and girls in the kitchen, who helped to make this an outstanding event. . .

Ladies' Section, Lachute Golf Club

Again this year, August is promising to be the rainy month for golfers. After an ideal June and July, the ladies have been out in what should be their best form for the final championships.

Highlight of the lot is the club championship, to be played off Labor Day week-end between finalists Teddy Champagne, last year's champ, and Ronnie Cantor.

Battling in the semi-finals of the Class B Championship are Helen Schwartz, Marie Stratton, Freda Lucas and Cecile Lupien, while the Class C champion will be the victor from matches between Beulah Raffel and Sally Hungerbuhler; Mimi Segal and Evelyne Raymond.

The Business Ladies' Trophy winner for the second straight year is Ann David. Runner-up is Gladys Neil. The Drew Trophy goes to Ellen Knobovitch, who defeated Barbara Wilkins one-up in the final round.

And another lady has rolled one up and in, for an ace. Pearl Jelinek scored her hole-in-one on Saturday on the 10th hole of the Members' Course.

Test your driving ability — TV re-broadcast Sept. 6

Responding to numerous requests, the Canadian Drivers' Test will be re-broadcast on the CBC national television network at 9.30 p.m., Tuesday, September 6.

The program originally was seen May 19 this year. The result was a flood of thousands of telephone calls, letters, completed test forms, inquiries and suggestions, all in high praise of the Test, most requesting a repeat performance.

The re-broadcast will be produced by CBC in co-operation with the Canadian Highway Safety Council and sponsored by Shell Canada Ltd. — in the hope that those who saw it will benefit from a second viewing, and those who missed it will take the test to find out just how good drivers they are.

The iriginal showing produced countless surprises. Chief among them was the discovery by thousands of men, women and young drivers that they were not as proficient and capable at the wheel of a car as they thought they were.

In the studio audience, young graduates of high school driver education produced a better group score than the body of professional drivers. At home, the man of the house was astounded when his wife scored higher than he did.

A national survey, conducted prior to the broadcast, showed 42 per cent of the selected crosssection of Canada's population failed the test. Seven per cent earned an "excellent" rating (68 or above).

The Canadian Drivers' Test is more than a test; it is a real challenge to all who drive cars to find out for themselves how good they are at the wheel.

Get your test forms from Shell or White Rose service stations. Take the Canadian Drivers' Test at your television set, at 9.30 Tuesday night, September 6.

Local riders in Two Mountains Jr. Horse Show

The Lake of Two Mountains junior horse show was held at the St. Eustache Arena grounds last Sunday. Several riders from Lachute and district participated, and Wal-Ken Riding School, with A. J. (Pop) Billingham, director-owner, were well to the fore.

The show was well supported by riders from Montreal and district, and in the morning, a clinic was held for the youngsters, directed by competent horsemen and women, Mr. Gordon Atkinson, well-known sportswriter and CBC commentator, played a leading part in the show.

Several events were held in the afternoon, and Wal-Ken Riding School were successful in winning two silver trophies and 21 ribbons. Miss Gwen Oswald, on Wal-Ken Nugget, was first in Equitation, with Miss Sharon Lowe second and Miss Marylin McOuat third.

In the Gymkhana Class, Miss Gail Johnson was first, and in the Jumping Class for under 18 years, Miss Jane Campbell was second on Black Prince. These young ladies are from the Town of Mount Royal, but are members of Wal-Ken Riding School.

Water Skiing WITH CLINT WARD

Improve your trick skis with these modifications.

Remove The Bindings. Shave lots of wood off the front and back edges. This severe bevel will give the skis a "propeller" look and will make them easier to turn as they will cut through the water rather than "catch an edge." Plane a dihedral of about ⅛ of an inch into the bottom of the skis from about 2 inches out to the edge. This will give the skis a convex bottom. The middle of the arch of your foot should go on the centre of the skis. Replace one set of bindings at this point. Throw away the adjustable heel plate and mount the heel piece directly to the ski. The binding on the other ski which is the ski used for one ski tricks, should be mounted an inch forward of the centre point. Replace the back slalom binding so that you can get your back foot in as close as possible to the front foot and mount the binding at a comfortable angle. Mount it "wide" so you can slip your foot in quickly during a run.

Saving teeth of young sportsmen

More and more Canadian boys are playing football these days and — as in minor hockey — the most common injury is to the mouth. A split lip will heal but a broken tooth lasts for life.

Chemistry has come up with a new plastic resin that is ideal for mouth and tooth protection. It is called E/VA or ethylene/vinyl acetate. Mouth guards made from this resin can be individually fitted at home, without expensive individual mouth casts or elaborate and uncomfortable external protective devices.

The "Adanac" mouth guard can be moulded to the mouth simply by dropping it into boiling water for 15 seconds; removing it; shaking the excess water off; inserting it into the mouth over the upper teeth, and sucking in to mould the resin against the roof of the mouth while at the same time moulding it around the gums with the fingers. Care should be taken not to bite through the resin. This procedure is perfectly safe, and will not burn the gums.

Once the guard is properly fitted, it is as comfortable in the mouth as a piece of gum. The guard is adaptable to any size mouth, simply by cutting off a pre-marked piece at each end when used for boys under 12.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

SQUARE EVERYTHING FOR ACCURATE PUTTING

Many golfers fail to achieve lasting success on the greens because they fail to stroke their putterface squarely into the ball. It may be moving toward or away from the player, rather than along the target line towards the hole.

To become a consistently good putter, you must stroke your putts so that the clubface is moving along the target line as you strike the ball.

The surest way to achieve such a putting stroke is to make certain that your feet, knees, hips and shoulders are all positioned to parallel the target line (see illustration). If you are fully positioned square to the target in this manner, it will be difficult for you to err in your putting stroke. More solidly stroked putts will result from this proper address position.

Impressions of Russia in topic to Rotarians

Russia, Moscow, St. Petersburg, czars, revolution, hammers and sickles, proletariat — words of history and of mystery. Four thousand miles northeast of Montreal by the great circle, is Leningrad. Almost 400 miles further, is Moscow. It was of these two intriguing cities that a neighbor, "comrade", and world traveller, Dr. Reg Rigby, spoke to the Rotary Club at its last meeting in La Lorraine Motel.

With President René Dagenais in the chair, guests Al Keyserlingk and Paul Pommier of Montreal, and Dick MacLean of Lachute, were introduced, and a singsong was led by Ross Cole.

Following business and the usual dinner, Rotarian Les Davies introduced his well-known confrere, mentioning that the colored slides to accompany the talk, were taken by the speaker on his recent visit to Europe.

As usual, the scenes were well chosen, interesting and colorful, with comments to match. They have to be seen to be appreciated.

Mentioning at the outset that he would stick to facts and photographs, our traveller stated that the great manpower losses of the Russians had a lasting effect upon the sociological and economic life of the country. Women do a lot of jobs that we normally expect men to do. For example, he showed pictures of a "gang" of women doing road repair work. "It was a bit of a shock the first time you found that the big, lumbering two-car buses that you were to enter, were driven by a young girl with a poney-tail", he said. This loss of manpower can be better understood when one remembers that Russia lost 20 million during the last war, while the Commonwealth lost 650,000 and the United States 360,000.

Stalingrad (Leningrad today, earlier Petrograd and St. Petersburg) founded by Peter the Great two centuries ago, was almost annihilated by the Germans, during 900 days of siege. Every building was damaged, some obliterated, yet the Russians have replaced the city, not with glass, steel and concrete, as most countries would have done, but exactly as it had been, in all its architectural beauty and splendor. Built at the head of the Gulf of Finland by the Czar and designated as the new capital, which he named St. Petersburg, he set out with the idea of building up a Russian Navy. He started by building a planned city, and a beautiful one.

Leningrad has beautiful buildings and churches, impressive statues and a large number of parks or squares. No sign was seen of war destruction in either of the two cities, and it was interesting to learn that the speaker was allowed to wander and take pictures at will, even in the fabulous museums (not allowed in most countries).

When asked how they were able to get their beautiful statues to glisten like gold in the sunlight, the Russians replied matter-of-factly, plate them with gold. The onion-shaped and other domes on churches were likewise polished to perfection, and the beauty was further reflected in the marble, or sometimes semi-precious jasper quartz floors.

The Naval Academy, or its equivalent, was another imposing building, evidently built for beauty, as well as utility.

A garden of remembrance, with its constantly burning flame as well as four medallions awarded the city for its valour and sacrifice, are grim reminders of the suffering and destruction endured by Leningrad during the last Great War.

A picture of a large arena, of 100,000 capacity, was an indication of the attention given to sports.

The fact that both the cities were clean and free of litter of any kind, makes a good impression on the visitor (a lesson for Lachute and Brownsburg). A picture of the hundreds of fountains lining a park in front of the former summer residence of the Czar, near Leningrad, beggars description.

In Moscow the Kremlin, at the hub of a wheel radiating in all directions to outlying areas, may seem familiar to many, but took on new light with close-ups and description by the speaker. Built as a fortress, covering 28 acres, triangular in shape, with round towers at each corner, it can be seen from inside and our visitor took pictures from that vantage point. It has only been open to the public since Stalin's death. Apparently this well remembered Russian had some art in his make-up, because he built several sky-scrapers, some of them blocks of apartments that look more like an ancestral English home than our idea of apartments. One hundred museums and art galleries in Moscow, contain priceless treasures of past and present generations. Some are in former churches. One, St. Bazil's Cathedral, with its eastern, onion shaped towers, gold plated, was admired by Ivan the Terrible who commissioned it. He asked his architect if he could make another as beautiful. When the builder said that he thought he could, Ivan had his head chopped off so that there would be none as good.

It was interesting to learn that there are hotels with food and lodging comparable to ours, and a picture of the GUM, government-operated department store looked more castle-like than utilitarian. It, of course, has no competition, but has windows dressed similar to ours.

A picture of beautiful Moscow University, with its 42,000 students, is a town in itself, with residences, lecture rooms, laboratories, restaurants, etc. Their campus overlooks the city and it was at this spot that Napoleon said, "The city lies at my feet" — but a scorched earth policy prevented him from taking it, causing his disastrous retreat and downfall.

Theatres, art, ballet — 30 theatres in Moscow — Lenin library — and a "permanent" exhibition on a 600-acre site similar to the New York World's Fair — but no cash registers. An implement similar to the abacus, used by the Chinese, can tote up your bill in a jiffy.

The fact that there are many flags and stars on buildings, was to be expected, but the fact that they are illuminated and flying at night is a switch—for Canadians, most of whom don't bother to hoist a flag even for a national holiday.

It was a very interesting and informative talk. The fact that, in spite of great political upheavals, the Russian people have treasured, cared for, and even replaced the beauty and culture of the past, seems to the writer, to be a good omen.

'Know Canada'

What Canadian Became a Top British Diplomat?

Sir Maurice Drummond Peterson. Born a Montrealer in 1889, he was the son of Sir William Peterson, who was later to be principal of McGill University. Young Maurice entered the British foreign service in 1913. By 1921 he had risen to the rank of counsellor, attending the Washington conference on arms limitation. Peterson was British High Commissioner in Egypt in 1924. Subsequently he held the posts of Minister to Bulgaria, 1936 to 1938, Ambassador to Iraq, 1938 to 1939 and Ambassador to Spain, 1939 to 1940. By 1942 the former Canadian had risen to the post of Under-Secretary of State in the British foreign office. Encyclopedia Canadiana records that Peterson went abroad again as Minister to Turkey from 1944 to 1946. Next came the climax of his career, as British Ambassador to the Soviet Union from 1946 until his retirement in 1949.

Peterson was a man of independent views, whose differences with his foreign office superiors were openly expressed in his book, "Both Sides of the Iron Curtain". Peterson went on to a post-retirement career as a bank director. He died in England ten years ago — the diplomatic representative of a generation of Canadians who had risen to top positions of power in Great Britain.

International President of Lions Clubs —

Visits Montreal next Sunday

Edward M. Lindsey of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., recently elected president of Lions International, will speak at a Leadership Conference for all new Lions officers of the district, in Montreal next Sunday. The Lachute club will be represented on this occasion.

It is several years since an International President has visited the club branches in Canada — the presidential tours having in past years concentrated largely on Europe, Asia and countries abroad, President Lindsey will proceed to Quebec City and Sept Iles, then visiting branches in Northern Ontario.

President Lindsey will speak on a world-wide Peace Essay project planned for 1967, which is the 50th anniversary year of the Lions International movement.

Vacancies on Legion pilgrimage

Ottawa — The Royal Canadian Legion is finding it difficult to fill the plane on its last pilgrimage to Holland scheduled for September 19.

The tenth pilgrimage will bring to over 1,000 the number of Canadians who have visited war graves of relatives in Holland. While in Holland, the Canadians will be guests of Dutch families. They will visit cemeteries at Groesbeek and Holten. Other trips will be arranged for those wishing to visit other cemeteries.

Any next of kin or relative of a Canadian buried in Holland is invited to get in touch with Legion headquarters Ottawa.

Safety feature for farm tractor

The 15 m.p.h. farm tractor and the 150 m.p.h. racing car will soon have one thing in common—roll bars, John Schreiner writes in The Financial Post. Farm machinery manufacturers are beginning to offer these as optional tractor equipment. This reflects partly their concern with farm safety and recent criticisms of the manufacturers heard from the industry. The Canadian Medical Association convention this year, for example, endorsed tractor roll bars. A Massey-Ferguson Ltd. spokesman stated that all manufacturers will be offering optional roll bars, safety frames and seat belts within a year.

Morin Hts students won High School Leaving successes

The following are results obtained by successful candidates in the High School Leaving Examinations at Morin Heights Protestant School who wrote their examinations in June:

Carol-Ann Barrett (III), Judith Bill (I), Joan Carruthers (II), Tom Chessell (II), Helen Dobie (II), Wendy Kneeland (I), Howard Noble (II), Nicholas Proswernuk (II), Rolf Schwartje (III), Willis Black (III), Russell Lister (II).

There were also two pupils who wrote a partial Grade XI, and were successful in passing all the exams written; these pupils were Gary Koroluk and Randy Boyd.

Note: (I) denotes over 80% average in ten papers; (II) 65% to 80%; and (III) 50% to 65%.

SMOKERS CATCH FLU

Vancouver (CP) — A study of nurses at Vancouver General Hospital shows that smokers are more liable to colds and other respiratory infections than non-smokers. A year-long study of 94 senior nursing students, half smokers, showed each smoker averaged 2.3 days more respiratory illness than each non-smoker.

A BARGAIN . . . A REAL VALUE IS NOT A MATTER OF PRICE ALONE!

It's what you get for what you pay.

The house dress or shift at $1.98 is no bargain if — the seams pop the first time you wear it or it shrinks inches the first time you wash it.

A quality product at a low price, that's a bargain . . . that's a real value . . . that's our A&P Brands.

More than 40 years ago we decided our own brands would be our finest values.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, In Memoriam, etc., $1.00; 10 cents per type line extra for verses with In Memoriam (estimate 8 words per type line.)

IN MEMORIAM

COOK — In loving memory of our beloved son, James William, who fell asleep August 26, 1965. — Gone but not forgotton by his father, mother, brother John, sister-in-law Gwen — until the day breaks.

"Lord, give us grace, and give us love,
Like him to leave behind
Earth's cares and joys, and look above
With true and earnest mind".

COOK (James W.) — In loving memory of a dear uncle, who passed away August 26, 1965. — Sadly missed by Ethel and family, Gertie and family.

"Sweet are the memories silently kept
Of an uncle we loved and will never forget."

JACKSON (Mary) — In loving memory of a dear sister-in-law, who passed away Aug. 28, 1963.— Always remembered by May.

MacGIBBON (Alexander E.) — In memory of a loving son, brother and grandson, who left us on Aug. 27, 1959. — Sadly missed by Mother, Kenneth Jr. and family, and his Grandmother MacLean.

"To some you may be forgotten,
To others a part of the past;
But to us who loved you and lost you,
Your memory will always last."

MacTAVISH (Mrs. Alex) — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away August 18, 1964. — Loved and missed by Dougal, June and family.

"In a quiet country graveyard
Where gentle breezes blow,
Lies a mother we loved so dearly
That we lost two years ago.
With tender love and deep regret
We, who loved you, will never forget."

RANGER (Léopold) — In loving memory of a dear husband, who passed away Aug. 23, 1965. — Sadly missed and longed for always, by his wife, Nellie.

"He little thought, when leaving home,
He would no more return,
That he in death so soon would sleep
And leave us here to mourn.
We did not know what pain he bore,
We did not see him die,
We only know he passed away
And never said Goodbye."

RANGER (Léopold) — In loving memory of a dear father, who passed away Aug. 23, 1965. — Always remembered by his daughter, Paulette.

"I had a Dad I was proud to own,
How much I miss him will never be known.
The heartaches in this world are many,
But the loss of my Dad was the greatest of any."

RANGER (Léopold) — In loving memory of Father, who passed away Aug. 23, 1965. — Jocelyne.

"I watched you suffer, I heard you sigh,
But all I could do was just stand by,
For when the time came, I suffered too,
For you never deserved what you went through.
God took your hand and we had to part,
He eased your pain but broke my heart;
Although I smile and seem carefree,
Nobody misses you more than me."

RANGER (Léopold) — In loving memory of dear Daddy, who passed away Aug. 23, 1965. — Rocky.

"Please God, take a message to heaven above,
Tell Daddy that I miss him so much,
And give him all my love."

RANGER — In loving memory of a dear son-in-law, who passed away Aug. 23, 1965. — Remembered for ever, by Pauline and Herman.

"Your name is often spoken,
When the days you were with us
Bring a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true;
In our hearts you'll always be with us,
Missing you thought the world of you."

THOMPKINS — In loving memory of a dear father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, William Thompkins, who passed away Aug. 27, 1965. — Sadly missed by his daughter, Ada, and family.

"To some you may be forgotten,
To others a part of the past,
But to us who loved you and lost you,
Your memory will always last."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

ROBERT — The family of the late Mrs. Jennie Robert wish to express their sincere thanks to relatives, neighbors and friends, for kindness and sympathy extended during their recent bereavement in the loss of a dear sister and aunt.

Air service — woman pilot

Mrs. Henriette Handfield-Maynard, of Hawkesbury, is reportedly the first woman to receive a commercial aviation charter — authorizing her to pilot a plane for commercial uses, and to maintain a marine aviation base or airport.

Specializing in a seaplane service, she has established a base about 500 feet south of the government wharf at Hawkesbury, on the Ottawa River. She owns a four-seater, pontoon-type Cessna 180.

Mrs. Maynard's company is known by the name of Hawkesbury Air Service, and offers conveyance for business trips, fishing and hunting expeditions, emergency lifts, rendez-vous and commercial transport. Mrs. Maynard qualified as a pilot at the Wondel Aviation School in Cartierville.

Miss Barbara Hay, R.N., of Toronto, was here this week for a brief visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Hay.

Mrs. Harold Young, of Quebec City, spent a few days here visiting her mother, Mrs. Geo. Armstrong, Lachute Road.

A number of parents and relatives, both from Lachute and Brownsburg, were at the Army Cadet Camp in Farnham last Sunday to attend the inspection, march-past and presentation of awards.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ritchie Bell returned from the Maritimes this week. On Saturday next, Dr. Bell will be officiating for the marriage of Miss Heather McIntosh at the First Presbyterian Church, Montreal . . . which recalls an interesting note — that, as an infant, this same young lady was dangerously ill, and Dr. Bell baptized her on an operating table in the old Montreal General Hospital.

Mr. Michael McDermott, latterly of the B. of M. staff here, and son of Mrs. P. McDermott, Lachute, is now a member of the B. of M. in Huntingdon, Que.

Robin Haydon returned home last week after spending the summer months in London, England, where he was engaged with Royle Publications Ltd., printers and lithographers of greeting cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Morrison returned last week-end from a pleasant holiday at Miami, Florida.

Mrs. K. B. Salisbury, of Clearwater Beach, Florida, is in Lachute to visit her mother, Mrs. Stuart J. McFaul.

Mrs. F. C. Smithson, of Winnipeg, visited recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fletcher, at the Bourbonniere Settlement.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Lang are vacationing at Shawville, Que., for the month of August. They were joined this week by their daughter, Miss Muriel Lang, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Orde Anderson, of St. Hilaire, Que., were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Titman. Their son, Rodger Titman, also arrived home after spending the summer at Delta Research Station in Manitoba.

"Diary of a Vagabond"

By Dorothy Barker

NOT A GROWL IN A GRANULE

It isn't a question of "Who put the overalls in Mrs. Murphy's chowder?" or whatever her good old Irish name was, but of what CN's improved detergent contains.

Leo Boucher, who works in Canadian National's Moncton reclamation yard, says it is a secret ingredient guaranteed to melt the grease right out of rags that could stand alone. This saves the railway thousands of dollars a year. All used cloths in the region are collected and returned to the reclamation yard. His washing section turned out approximately 100,000 pounds of clean cotton cloths for CN's Atlantic Region last year.

Engineers are not tempted to swipe their wives' best dusters to keep their locomotives in spic and span cleanliness, for Leo's heavy duty washing machines, salvaged from the Nova Scotia Hotel in Halifax in 1937 when they put in new equipment there, make a spotless job of old wipers.

Coming to the conclusion that if Leo's detergent (he's no tiger, believe me) could take the heavy grease out of wipers it would work as well on his coverall and save the little woman the weekly anguish of washing it, one engineer popped it into the machine when it was gyrating merrily, waited for the rinse cycle to end, then tried to retrieve his coverall. He got a string of buttons back. The 85 percent caustic soda got the rest.

Constant Research

CN has a research laboratory especially established to hunt for new and better products such as cleaning fluids, paint, oils and even carpets and other materials used in its program of remodelling and refurbishing. One of the most interesting projects I can remember was the hunt for a better anti-freeze.

After eight years of rail travel I have learned the knack of pouring coffee. It's simple once you find just the right angle to hold the coffee pot over the cup while pouring. It surely gives one a certain sense of achievement and control.

Dietetics is another branch of railroading seldom given its place in the sun. Every meal served aboard CN's diners, dinettes, or food for the lunch bars is planned by trained personnel. There is no guess work in the preparation. This means that the meals are uniformly good from one coast to the other. No two cooks, it is claimed, prepare dishes alike. This could be true aboard CN trains except that its chefs go to school too, to learn new and better ways to prepare meals while in transit.

POP ART BOUGHT

Toronto (CP) — The Toronto Art Gallery has bought two examples of pop art by U.S. artists Andy Warhol and George Segal. One is a composition of photographs of Elvis Presley and the other is a life-size plaster reproduction of a butcher's shop.

The Bible Today

Never in the course of Christian history, writes Wesley Culshaw, a linguist and anthropologist, now Assistant Secretary of the United Bible Societies, has there been so much activity in the sphere of Bible translation and revision. It is no exaggeration to say that, at the present time, new versions are being prepared in most of the major languages of the world. At the same time, pioneer translation is continuing in many small tribal languages in which the Word of God is often the first written material.

A new development, adds Mr. Culshaw, in recent days and in some areas is that Roman Catholic and Protestant scholars and missionaries are beginning to collaborate in the preparation of versions which they hope will be acceptable to all Christians.

The joint working committee between the Roman Catholic Church and the World Council of Churches in its first report referred to the development of joint translations of the Bible being undertaken in various parts of the world.

Notice

To: GEORGE E. WHISSELL, formerly of De Montigny Street, in the City of Ste. Agathe, of the District of Terrebonne, presently of parts unknown.

Notice is hereby given to you, in accordance with a judgment of the Superior Court for the District of Terrebonne in Case No. 58,176, dated August 10th 1966, that a 60-day Notice in accordance with articles 1040A and the following provisions of the Civil Code of the Province of Quebec, was duly served upon you at the Prothonotary's Office at the Court House in St. Jerome on the 8th of August 1966. The said 60-day Notice concerns a property or a certain farm "situated at Ste. Agathe des Monts in the Province of Quebec known and designated as being Lot Nine in the Fifth Range of the Canton of Beresford on the cadastral of the Parish of Ste. Agathe des Monts in the County of Terrebonne, said emplacement having an area of about Eighty-five acres, more or less, but less that portion of land sold by Zephirin Raymond to the Town of Ste. Agathe des Monts, by Deed of Sale executed before U. Hamel, Notary, on the 19th of August 1938 and registered at the Registry Office for the Registration Division of Terrebonne under the Number 117427; less the part expropriated by the Department of Roads, the indemnity for this expropriation and all the rights in connection thereto being hereby transferred to the Purchaser".

According to this notice, unless you remedy the default described therein within sixty days from the above mentioned date of service, the Plaintiff will apply to the Court to be declared absolute owner of the immoveable described above.

Given at St. Jerome, this 10th day of August 1966.

The declining birth rate

A THEORY shared by some population scientists is that large countries with relatively few people tend to have high birth rates.

Canada qualifies as such a country, since it has 3,851,809 square miles and only this month will reach the 20,000,000 mark in population.

But the theory doesn't mean a thing here. Our birth rate has never been especially high, and in the last seven years it has been falling.

Demographers — population scientists — would like to know why. The best way to find out would perhaps be to ask Canadians why they're having fewer babies. But the census-takers are afraid to ask such questions!

The reason goes back to 1961 when the census questionnaire asked couples whether they were married, if so, how long; and whether they had children. Some newspapers said these apparently innocent questions were evidence of a Kinsey-type inquiry into the sexual behavior of Canadians. "The suggestion scared the wits out of the census officials in Ottawa," says Dr. J. K. Krotki, chief of the research section of that division.

Increased use of birth control pills is undoubtedly one factor in the birth-rate decline — it was 21.4 per thousand last year compared with 26.1 in 1961. But this is not the only reason. . . One of the more interesting possibilities is mentioned by Dr. Krotki. He says the theory is that young people regulate their propensity to marry and have children by their economic position — not in absolute terms, but in relation to older people.

He explains that the low birth rate of the 1930s meant that a relatively small number of people entered the labor force after the Second World War. They could thus command fairly high salaries. Economically they were better off than the previous generation. So they had more babies. The result was the post-war baby boom.

Today those babies have grown up and are flooding into the labor market. Relatively, they're not as well off in economic terms as their parents. So they're having fewer babies.

It's an interesting hypothesis. Unfortunately, our experts are reluctant to check it out.

Suggest priority spending

WELCOME INDEED was the recent report that the Prime Minister has requested his ministers to cut back on their departmental spending, in an attempt to curb the inflationary spiral. This could be one of the most important ways to combat the dangers of creeping and ruinous inflation.

There is, however, strong reason to believe that the Prime Minister's request will be impossible to heed, for at least some of the departments involved. The government is committed to a number of programs which, if implemented, could cause overall government spending in 1967-68 to go far beyond the $10 billion already estimated — Medicare, increased old age pensions, and the Canada Assistance Plan, to name but three.

With inflationary pressures so strong in the country now, is it not timely and reasonable for the federal government to set up spending priorities, so that the important things get done (such as in the field of education), without endangering the country's economy and the welfare of its people?

The bomb — a status symbol

PAKISTAN has voiced its concern at the gradual development of an Indian atomic bomb. The United States is equally troubled by the progress China is making in nuclear weapons.

The Indian bomb, admittedly, remains speculation. Pakistani officials have suggested quietly to Canadian diplomats that India will use plutonium produced by its reactor at Trombay, near Bombay, to set off a nuclear blast. India admits to storing weapons grade-plutonium produced at Trombay (which was built with Canadian assistance), but maintains that its nuclear plans are purely peaceful.

U.S. fears, however, are more real. U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, in outlining possible nuclear attacks facing the United States, mentions the chance of a Chinese threat in the 1870's.

In the same way, India is highly conscious that its powerful neighbor has already exploded its third nuclear device, and one that contained material used in a hydrogen bomb. . .

U.S. and Indian fears are part and parcel of the disease that afflicts mankind — the fears and suspicions that separate nations and races and social systems. It is this fear that has led finally to that macabre global status symbol — the nuclear bomb.

Unfortunately, in view of developments in the world, one cannot blame either China for producing its bombs, or India for thinking about developing a military nuclear capacity. For, after all, the disarmament talks in Geneva have been progressing at a snail's pace. And yet, there is still a vague hope that the Geneva conference in time will produce a treaty barring the spread of nuclear weapons.

It is a goal that every nation must aim for. But the five nuclear powers — the U.S.A., the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China — cannot expect other states to abandon their plans for attaining a nuclear capacity, unless they themselves are willing, in time, to ban atomic weapons, and thus banish mankind's fears of a nuclear holocaust.

Economic sabotage

A HANDFUL of skilled saboteurs, it is now apparent, were responsible for prolonging the recent six-week British shipping strike — writes C. J. Harris, a commentator for the weeklies, whose reasonings may well inspire us to take a closer look at the strike picture across Canada. . . . These saboteurs, in the words of Prime Minister Harold Wilson "a tightly-knit group of politically motivated men", are the leading industrial organizers of the Communist Party in the United Kingdom. It was only when Mr. Wilson named them in public and exposed their strategy that the strike was settled.

In Britain, as in Canada, it is recognized that it is Communist Party policy to attempt to secure official positions within the trade union movement — continues this observer. One reason is the Party's weakness in the political field. In the last election it ran 57 candidates without winning a seat. But by infiltrating the labor movement it can exert significant influence. Its basic aim is to weaken the British economy. A secondary aim is to foment discontent in the hope of attracting more supporters from the dissatisfied.

As a result of the seamen's strike Mr. Wilson has said that he will commission a thorough inquiry into the extent of Communist activity in the British trade union movement, quite an unusual stand for a political leader. No one argues that the Communists do not have a democratic right to advocate their theories, but to undertake economic sabotage is quite another thing.

Effective opposition to the Communist plotting really has to come from within the labor movement. It may be that an official inquiry, by naming names and exposing activities, will encourage union leaders and members to get on with the reforms. Such an inquiry in the United Kingdom might even have some influence and salutary effects here in Canada.

Viewpoints and perspectives

TIME RUNNING OUT. — Greater demands are being made all the time upon our natural resources. Few people will believe that it is possible that we can pollute all our water. Few can see that if present policies are continued we will some day run out of park land. Not many will admit that if current attacks are continued upon our lakes and rivers we will run out of fish. But these things have happened very close to us (in much of the United States). We still have time to avoid making the same mistake, but not very much time.

Hawkesbury — A number of tourists are sojourning in this village. One of them was heard to remark this was the prettiest spot on the Ottawa, but it requires only a railroad to make it complete.

Another Yankee crank burning for fame, proposes swimming through the Niagara whirlpool rapids, where Capt. Webb lost his life. Cooper Graham passed safely through in a barrel last week. The latest aspirant is George W. White, a barber from Oswego.

A young lady of Dunany, Miss Irene Boyd, who was employed at the Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, was instantly killed under the wheels of a railway freight car.

The Brownsburg Church of England Sunday School held its summer picnic at Lake Louisa.

During their stay in Lachute last week, Sir George and Lady Perley were the guests of Mr. H. Slater, ex-M.P.P.

Military manoeuvres, complete with a commentator to inform the public, were staged at the Fair Grounds. The demonstration of mechanized and infantry procedures, with many pieces of artillery and equipment, was witnessed by thousands of interested spectators.

The Watchman Press has just filled an order for gummed automobile stickers bearing the legend "V for Victory — Lachute, Que." The order was executed for the Jas. Duncan Service Station.

One of the oldest and best-known Riverfront residents, Simon Whelehan, died at Cushing West. Born in 1859, he was employed in his early years in the re-building of the Stonefield and Grece's Point locks.

After long delays and discussions, work has started on the chlorination plant, just east of town. Water purification, and pasterization of milk, will now put Lachute on a par with health-minded centres.

Among interesting experiments to conserve gasoline in wartime, is a feat achieved by George Graham. Commuting from Lake Louisa to Lachute, he reports he coasted eight miles on the 13-mile trip to town. . . Also, returning here from Arundel one day this week, he was able to coast his car 16½ miles of the distance (35 miles).

Riding the waves

This summer, I've been out in a boat only twice, but each was memorable in its fashion.

The first time, old friends called and told us to be at their cottage sharp at noon next day. They were entertaining friends from the States and wanted us to join them for a special scenic ride by chartered boat.

It sounded interesting. And it was. We drove 50 miles to their cottage. Light refreshments and we all piled into two cars and drove 15 miles to Tobermory.

The boat's skipper was an old friend, Archie Simpson, and we exchanged, "Long-time-no-see's."

Everything went swimmingly. It was a beautiful afternoon, our host had provided all the trimmings, the company was pleasant and the scenery superb as we cruised along the rugged north shore of the Bruce Peninsula.

Then the breeze freshened. We began to wallow a bit. Nothing serious, but two of the party began turning a pale green. Should we go on or turn back? It was decided to press on, pull into Wingfield Basin, and wait for the breeze to drop.

It didn't. It became a wind. The skipper said it would be a rough trip back. The ladies looked longingly at the shore. After two hours, our host, stout chap, borrowed a dinghy and rowed 500 yards to the lighthouse, made arrangements, and rowed back, without even suffering a coronary.

We went ashore. Two cars were available. We would drive to Tobermory, pick up our own cars, and drive back to the cottage. But who was going to drive the two cars back to the lighthouse?

That was only the beginning of the complications, too involved to relate here. Both cars broke down. The rear end went on one just as we reached Tobermory, and the other crept into the village sans brakes.

The ladies, grimy but glad, took one of our own cars and went back to the cottage. My host, another chap and myself spent two hours and drove about 80 miles, organizing the return of the borrowed cars.

But it all ended pleasantly, with hamburgers at the cottage about 10 p.m. Midnight found me arguing racial problems with a big, dumb Norwegian lawyer from Chicago. He's so dumb he has only three million dollars to his name. And we still had to drive 50 miles home.

A memorable boat ride. Ten miles by boat and 250 by car. But good clean fun all the way.

The other boat ride was a typical Smiley event. Kim and I went out in her uncle's boat, after a three-minute period of instruction. She insisted on driving, though she'd never steered anything more powerful than a canoe.

We staggered about the lake, she grinning wildly, I rigid with fear in the bow. Four miles from the home dock, we hit bottom.

"Drop the anchor! Man overboard! Hard astern!" I yelled these and a few other salty, sea-going terms. Too late. We had sheared a pin, whatever that means.

I spoke silently to myself for about five minutes, head bowed as if in prayer. Then I reached for the paddle. No paddle. We made it ashore in 40 minutes, using our hands as paddles.

She stuck with the ship. I waded rocky shoreline and clambered, bare-footed, through poison ivy, seeking help. Three hours after we had set out on a 15-minute whirl about the lake, we got back to port. Mama was waiting.

If you're planning a boat trip, perhaps you shouldn't ask yours truly along.

Sir: I read with great interest the contribution of Norman Thorburn about early life around White's Bridge. As I am not among those fortunate enough to possess Thomas' History of Argenteuil, I wonder if Mr. Thorburn's contributions could be a regular feature, starting again with the first of these articles, which I failed to keep. Any further information would be appreciated, for Lachute is a very wonderful town to be remembered as it was.

Canada, a welfare state

If there was ever any doubt that Canada's ultimate destiny was that of a full-fledged welfare state, that doubt can now be removed. All parties are committed to the welfare state design and the only disagreement among them is the speed at which the final goal can be realized.

The past year has seen the introduction of the Canada Pension Plan which will supplement the Old Age Pension and guarantee all working Canadians a reasonable standard of living beyond retirement.

In the meantime, the new supplemental pensions to be introduced next year will guarantee a minimum of $105 monthly for every retired Canadian until the more generous CPP has been in operation long enough to cover all workers. The supplemental pensions are not universal in that only those with incomes less than $105 will qualify, but they nevertheless raise the bottom levels to more tolerable minimums.

Another key piece of welfare state legislation which sailed through Parliament this year was the Canada Assistance Plan, now undergoing Senate study.

The philosophical key to the Assistance Plan is that it will be based on need as the sole qualification for public aid. All other factors — personal morality, unwillingness to work, availability of jobs — won't matter.

It is this clause which has raised the hackles of individualistic MPs and Senators. One viewpoint was summed up by Senator James Walker, an Ontario Conservative. He said it seemed to be designed for free-loaders. But Senator John MacDonald, a Nova Scotia Tory, expressed the opposing viewpoint with the belief that very few able-bodied men would go on welfare rather than work.

The other major welfare legislation in the works is Medicare, which Prime Minister Pearson had hoped to have in operation in 1967. This now seems doubtful, particularly with the new Quebec government dragging its feet, and in light of criticisms levelled against the plan at the Provincial Premiers Conference in Toronto.

To see what Canada's future as a welfare state will be, probably the best place to look is Sweden. That country has achieved a near-total welfare state supported by a capitalistic economy and regulated by a democratic government.

Sweden spends about one-third of its tax revenues on welfare, compared to one-quarter in Canada. Government pensions of about two-thirds of a person's best earning years are universal at 65 — the age to which Canada's pensions are now being progressively lowered. Health care has been socialized but there is still some private medicine practised — just as Canada is doing.

Those who know Sweden say that taxation is burdensome and that while welfare might sap the initiative of some, Swedish businessmen are resourceful world traders and worker productivity is remarkably high.

In Canada, the growing intervention of the government in business — in everything ranging from economic planning to collection of sales taxes — adds to the businessman's headaches and costs. Increasing taxes hit especially hard at higher income levels — but nobody has yet been known to turn down a wage increase because part of the raise will be lost in taxes.

The basic argument against welfare statism — that a society of drones has to be supported by a minority willing to work — has never been backed up with much hard evidence. If medicare means that children of the poor will get adequate health care, and if free education means that bright students who could not otherwise go to university will have the chance to do so, then the effects can hardly be anything but beneficial.

Those who are dedicated to fighting the welfare state would be well advised to change their tactics. Rather than waging a losing battle, they would serve their country better by joining the effort for an efficient welfare state capable of preserving maximum individual freedom and upgrading cultural and intellectual levels which, after generations of "rugged individualism," are still appallingly low in much of Canadian life.

GRANDPARENTS IN YOUR CHILD'S LIFE

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"To old people, rich or poor,
I must bow and bow some more,
For I am only two and seven.
They are wise and close to Heaven."

—by Gerald Chan Sieg.

These four lines from "Thoughts of a Chinese Child" are true of the training for generations past of Oriental children in their attitude to older people. Chinese, Japanese, and Korean boys and girls have been taught to be courteous not only to their own grandparents but to all older people.

If your child has grandparents they are likely by far the most important older folk in his life. A grandmother can play a very vital part in a small child's world. So can grandfather! Sometimes a great-aunt or a great-uncle love and care for a small relative. In J. D. Robins' "A Pocketful of Canada" there is a delightful poem about an older uncle taking a small boy fishing. This attractive book can now be purchased in a Pocket Edition and this and many other poems and bits of prose make it well worth buying.

Older people often have more leisure time than mothers and fathers. That is one reason why so many of them share happy outdoor activities like fishing or gardening or walking or driving with little friends. Children dislike being hurried, and the slower tempo of an older person's life often appeals to them. Anyone, young or old, likes to be loved and appreciated. Many a small boy or girl expands and grows in the atmosphere of a grandparent's affection and commendation.

Shakespeare pointed out that "Crabbed age and youth cannot live together." No one likes the adjective "crabbed" but the noise and ceaseless activity of children in the same house frequently tire an older person. Grandparents find this wearing on their nerves and it is hard to be patient with the small dynamo who goes so hard from early morning till bed time.

If there is an older relative living in the same household with a small child it is not an easy situation to handle. The parents must do their best to teach their child to be considerate of the feelings and needs of the older relative.

At the same time the responsibility for the child's training rests with mother and dad, and a grandparent should not make the task of discipline harder by spoiling the youngster on every occasion! There must be a definite agreement that the parents' routine for the child will be respected and that the grandparents will follow the procedures in handling the child of which the parents approve.

The small courtesies, done willingly, of opening a door, or doing small errands for a grandparent can add so much to the older person's happiness! In return grandmother will often go more than "the second mile" in reading to the small child, in knitting little garments or doing other things for him. To many a youngster there are no cookies quite as delicious as granny bakes!

A grandparent can be a very wonderful friend to a small boy or girl. Your child's relationship with his grandparents depends very much on his mother's and his father's attitude. Are you training your son or daughter in courtesy and appreciation of older folk?

Consumer Comment

By Betty Lindsay for C.A.C. (Que.)

What do you buy for your family to provide their necessary "daily intake" of Vitamin C? As you know, citrus fruits are the best natural source of "C", tomato juice second, and apple juice and other pure fruit juices with sufficient Vitamin C added are also good.

Besides the old stand-bys, however, the consumer is today confronted by a whole array of juices, fruit drinks, nectars, ades and beverages. Reading the label is the only way to find out if you are buying what you really want. Luckily the Food and Drug Directorate enforces certain regulations in regard to these, and all fruit drinks MUST carry on the label a complete list of ingredients — in descending order of proportion. So if it says "water, sugar, fruit juice" etc., you know the greatest amount is water, next sugar, then juice. If there is more than one juice, the first named is in greater amount. (CAC would also like a regulation requiring that the percentage of fruit juice be given.)

These fruit drinks may also have Vitamin C added, but if so the label must say so, and "a reasonable daily intake" of the product MUST contain at least 20 milligrams of Vitamin C.

Do you understand the terms used in labelling? "Reconstituted" juice is made from a concentrate, enough water being added to make it into a "juice" of the fruit once more. "Concentrate" is fruit juice that has been concentrated to at least half the original volume by the removal of water. A "nectar" is a pureed fruit pulp to which water has been added, and may contain added fruit juice. An exception is "prune nectar" which is a water extract of dried prunes.

The Food and Drug Directorate says it plans to study further the many variations of fruit drink products on the market, and if additional controls are found necessary, changes in the Regulations will be proposed. Food and Drug Inspectors keep a constant watch over radio and TV commercials for fruit drink products, to ensure that these are not advertised in a misleading manner.

His 'n hers sweaters

Canada's Maple Leaf symbol is featured on His 'n Hers sweaters put out in honor of Expo '67 and the Centennial year. A Waterloo, Ont., company has been granted government registration of the stylized design. The sweaters, in a rich color combination of burgundy on gold, are of "d'Orlamb" — a blend of 70 per cent "Orlon" acrylic fibre and 30 per cent lambswool. There are two men's styles — an after-ski type cardigan and a v-neck pullover. The woman's style is a pullover with a novelty turtle neck. The sweaters will retail in the $30 - $35 price range.

Cocoa hints, time-savers for mothers

Quick Chocolate Candy

Dainty, chewy, chocolate bits to munch any time. — Measure ¼ cup Cocoa, ¼ cup sweetened condensed milk and 1½ cups of miniature marshmallows into top of double boiler. Heat over boiling water until smooth; stir frequently. Remove from heat; add 1½ cups sifted icing sugar, 1½ cups shredded coconut and ½ tsp. vanilla. Mix until blended (mixture will be stiff). Drop by teaspoonfuls on waxed paper. Chill about 30 minutes. Yield: 24 candies.

Quick Snow-Capped Dessert

A hurry-up dessert made with a prepared cake and a smooth rich chocolate sauce:

Chocolate Sauce — Combine in saucepan ¼ cup Cocoa, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup corn syrup, ¼ cup evaporated milk, few grains salt and 1 tbsp. butter or margarine. Stir constantly and cook over medium heat until mixture boils. Boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add ½ tsp. vanilla. (If sauce is too thick after storage, place container in pan of hot water until sauce has thinned to desired consistency.) Yield: 1 cup.

Snow-Capped Dessert — Slice chiffon cake into wedges or squares. Add 1 scoop ice cream. Pour Chocolate Sauce over ice cream and cake. Serve immediately.

Quick Chocolate Parfait

A sweet treat for a wonderful Sunday dessert: Measure into large bowl ½ pint chilled whipping cream, ¼ cup sifted icing sugar, 3 tbsp. sieved Cocoa and few grains salt. Beat until mixture starts to thicken; add ½ tsp. vanilla. Continue beating until mixture is stiff and stands in peaks. Pile into individual dessert dishes or into 1 large container, then cover. Place in freezer and freeze until firm about 2-3 hours. Remove from freezer and garnish as desired before serving. Serve immediately. Yield: 4 servings.

Quick Cocoa Mocha

Be original — add variety to your Cocoa beverages: Measure into large cup 1 tsp. Cocoa, ½ tsp. instant coffee and 2 tsp. sugar; mix together until well blended. Add 1 cup hot milk gradually; mix until smooth then beat with a wisk until foamy. Serve immediately.

Chocolate Fruit Cream

Nothing is more delectable than a light, cloudlike dessert. The flavor combination of fruit juice and chocolate is a delight to eat as well as nutritious.

Chocolate Fruit Cream — 1½ tbsp. flour, 2 tbsp. Cocoa, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, 1½ cups pineapple or apple juice, 1 egg yolk, 1 tsp. butter or margarine, 1 egg white, 1 tbsp. sugar.

Mix flour, Cocoa, sugar and salt in saucepan; add gradually ¼ cup fruit juice, mixing until smooth. Add egg yolk and blend together until smooth; add remaining fruit juice, mixing well. Cook, stirring constantly, over medium heat until mixture boils and is smoothly thickened. Boil 1 minute; stir constantly. Remove from heat; add butter or margarine. Cool; stir occasionally. Beat egg white until stiff but not dry; add sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture stands in peaks. Add beaten egg white to cooled mixture; fold in lightly until blended. Pour into dessert dishes; chill until serving time then garnish with whipped cream and fresh or candied fruit.

Yield: 4 servings.

New edition of 'Canadian Facts'

A new and enlarged edition of Quick Canadian Facts, the pocket annual of facts about Canada, has been recently released. This low-cost, up-to-date, comprehensive reference book covers history and geography, population, government and politics, the economy, industry and finance. It is a valuable addition to any household or office library, and many high schools now recommend it to their students as a study aid. Now in the 22nd annual edition, this 160-page, 60-cent paperback is distributed through book stores and leading news-stands, and is published by Quick Canadian Facts Limited, Box 699, Terminal A, Toronto.

The book is crammed with facts, but it is a long way from being simply a statistical record. For instance here is an excerpt from the section on the weather: "The highest temperatures officially recorded in Canada, in southern Alberta and interior British Columbia, have been 115 degrees; the lowest on record, reported from Snag, in the Yukon Territory in February, 1947, is 81 degrees below zero. Precipitation is highest on the west coast, in some places averaging over 100 inches annually; the Atlantic provinces average 40 inches, southern Ontario and Quebec 35 inches, interior Canada from Rockies to the Great Lakes 15 to 20 inches, the northern Territories 10 inches."

Here is the proper flag protocol: "It is proper etiquette to hoist the flag each day at sunrise and lower it at sunset; it is left flying all night only at sea. Used as an indoor decoration, the flag should be gathered and not permitted to fall below the level of the eyes of a seated person. A worn and unserviceable flag should be burned to prevent its undignified and improper use."

Ingredients: 1 tablespoon vegetable oil, ¼ cup finely-chopped onion, ¼ cup sliced mushrooms (optional), 2 cups of packaged biscuit mix, 1 teaspoon parsley flakes, ½ to ¾ cup water, 1 (7½ ounce) can tomato sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon garlic powder, ¼ teaspoon oregano, 3 thinly sliced wieners or 6 slices cooked bacon quartered, 4 ounces Mozzarella, Canadian cheddar or process cheese slices.

Knead Dough

Preheat oven to 450 degrees.

Combine biscuit mix and parsley flakes. Add water and stir with a fork to make a soft, slightly moist dough. Turn out on lightly floured surface and knead gently 8 to 10 times. Roll dough to 12-inch circle or to fit pizza pan and ease onto cookie sheet or pan. Roll up edge slightly to hold filling, brush surface with vegetable oil.

Combine sautéed onion, mushrooms, tomato sauce, salt, pepper, garlic powder and oregano. Spread over pizza shell. Top with meat. Bake in preheated oven 10 minutes.

Cut cheese slices into 2 by 4-inch pieces. Arrange on top of pizza, bake another 5 minutes or until cheese is bubbly. Makes 6 to 8 wedge-shaped servings.

Bake Lasagna

Ingredients: ½ to ¾ lb. large lasagna noodles, ½ lb. ground pork and beef; 1 garlic clove, ½ lb. sieved cottage cheese, 2 eggs beaten, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 20-ounce can tomatoes, 1 6-ounce can tomato paste, ½ lb. sliced Mozzarella cheese, ½ cup grated cheddar or 2 ounces Parmesan or Romano cheese.

Cook lasagna until tender (about 20 minutes) in boiling salted water.

Brown meat and garlic clove. Remove garlic. Mix cottage cheese and eggs and season with salt and pepper. Combine canned tomatoes and tomato paste and pour a thin layer over the bottom of a buttered baking dish.

Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes. Serves 8.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY, Macdonald College

I have an apology and a thank you for Cy Rolfe. The apology is for overlooking his score card when I wrote last week that the highest carrying capacity in Compton County's pasture competition was 1.8 animals per acre. Cy beat that handsomely with the remarkable score of three animal-units per acre. (An animal-unit is the equivalent of one mature cow. For example, five sheep equals one animal unit.) True, Cy didn't have many animals, and his pastures were not very large, but his combination of improved ladino-trefoil-timothy pasture plus rough pasture was giving him excellent results. His calves were running with the cows, and with shade in a birch grove, and plenty of water, they looked really good.

And thanks to Cy for offering a chemical control for the Fall Dandelions (Leontodon) I mentioned last week. He told us that Tropotox works well for him. Tropotox is a trade name for MCPB. If you want to know what those initials stand for, it's chlor-omethylphenoxybutyric acid. No wonder Cy calls it "thistle juice". He says fall is the best time to use it. It catches the plantains and common dandelions and a dozen other weeds at the same time.

Ideas and rules-of-thumb that work in one part of the country may not work in another. In my book, it doesn't pay to fertilize rough pastures. The native June grass won't yield enough extra to pay for it. But I must thank "Rich" Richardson for pointing out to me that the natural grass in that area of the Eastern Townships is not Canada Blue, but Kentucky Blue. And Kentucky Blue does seem to pay for its fertilizer. Gordon French's natural pastures appear to prove it. He has fertilized and limed, and will have close to 4000 pounds milk per acre before the end of the season.

Nowhere, in Ontario or in Quebec, have I seen Ladino clover grow the way it does around Sherbrooke. To echo the advertising jingo, "It's all because of the rain." A growing crop needs four inches rain a month. And four and one quarter inches rain in July is the long-term average there. That compares with two and a quarter inches in Ontario's Corn Belt. There is a blessing you can't buy.

With Expo year coming up fast, there is sure to be a lot of last-minute painting done this fall. Many new paints have been developed in the past few years. The question is, which is best?

For outside surfaces of a wood home, an exterior latex paint is best.

Today's homes contain a great deal of moisture evaporated in the air from cooking, bathrooms, laundries and so on. This moisture must escape through ventilators, cracks around doors and windows, and through the siding of the house.

When this moisture is prevented from escaping through the siding by the paint barrier, it collects in the wood beneath the paint, causing blistering and peeling. This destroys the paint job and spoils the appearance.

Exterior latex paints allow the wood to breathe and the moisture to pass right through the paint and escape to the outside air. Thus these paints provide the best protection for our homes.

But latex paints should not be applied over surfaces that have been prepainted with other types of paint. The old paint should be stripped off first, down to the bare wood. Then a single coat of oil primer should be applied and finally the latex paint.

The galvanizing provides rust protection for a number of years. Paint should not be applied to newly galvanized metal. Instead the metal should be allowed to weather for at least six months.

The only reason to paint barns and outbuildings is to improve the appearance. It really doesn't make them last that much longer, or improve their efficiency. On new construction, stain is best. It lasts longer than paints, and it is cheaper. On old surfaces, lead based paints cover well and are economical.

Next week, if "Country Notebook" is missing, think of us on the old home farm. Plans were to seed Timothy in early August for seed production. But the month slipped away. Now it is to be Winter Wheat, if we can get it seeded before September 1st. Perhaps I should keep quiet until it is in the ground.

Communion service was held is St. Matthew's Church on Sunday morning, with the Rev. Canon A. C. Hawes as the celebrant.

CHEWING GUM PERIL

Chewing gum has its place — or so we're assured by both tots and teens. But its place isn't in the water. Swimmers and tiny waders shouldn't chew gum while in the water. A sudden gasp can lodge the gum so deep in the larynx that those administering first aid can't reach it, even if they know it's there.

Centennial Report

1867 1967

by JOHN W. FISHER CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

"I expected that everyone here would speak with a real English accent and I didn't think Toronto would be as friendly as it is."

The quotation above, from a 16-year-old visiting Toronto from northern British Columbia, was used by Michael Ignatieff writing about centennial "youth travellers" in the Globe and Mail. From another, a young Montrealer, came this comment: "After visiting Vancouver I realize we have the most beautiful country in the whole world."

This year more than 4,000 young people in 160 groups will have participated in the Centennial Commission's Federal-Provincial Youth Travel program. The total since 1964, when the program was started as a pilot project, will be more than 8,000 by the end of 1966.

The aims of the federal-provincial program are to give young Canadians the opportunity to meet and know other Canadians and to develop an understanding of their countrymen in regions other than their own. Another is to provide them with a first hand knowledge of the geography of the country and of the political, educational, cultural and artistic achievements of other provinces.

The Centennial Commission underwrites costs of travel, pays a per capita grant for incidental travelling expenses and a per capita grant for reception costs in host communities. It co-ordinates the program at the national level, provides travel bags, manuals, song books and name tags, one-day tours of Ottawa for groups passing through, and makes all travel arrangements.

Each province or territory selects students and escorts (usually high school teachers) through its department of education, conducts orientation and briefing sessions, supervises reception arrangements in host provinces and looks after general co-ordination within the province.

Provincial departments of education choose by lot the schools that will take part in the program. The principal of a school chooses a number of students and his choice is not based on academic record alone. All-round students, who meet people easily, usually are selected.

The federal-provincial program is not the only Centennial scheme operating. Another one, called Voluntary Youth Travel, provides for Commission grants to private agencies or organizations. The object is to expand already existing youth travel projects or encourage additional ones.

The voluntary program differs from the federal-provincial program in that the Commission is not involved in administration. Well over 10,000 young people will have participated this year in these association travel projects as a result of the Commission's 1965 grants program under the Voluntary Youth Travel Scheme.

The young man from northern British Columbia visiting Toronto told his Ontario hosts: "What surprises me is that you people are not any different from us." If we accomplish only what is implied in that sentence among the thousands of participants, Canada's investment in the youth travel programs will be well worthwhile.

Of Many Things

By Ambrose Hills

I BUY A FARM

It has often been said that most men make their major mistakes in life between the age of 45 and 55. I moved cautiously through that danger period, then waited a couple of years, then made my mistake — I bought a farm. I know exactly as much about farming as my critics say I know about politics and economics. And no doubt some of the farmers who have read my learned comments on farming over the years will be waiting to guffaw, joyfully watching what happens to that wiseacre Ambrose Hills now that he must practice instead of preach.

When the young people who bought my writing shop in Winnipeg said they'd distribute the column if I would like to go on writing, I grabbed at the chance. This is a perfect setting from which to preach! Below our little farm in the Fraser Valley stretch the Serpentine Flats, and in the distance, snow-covered, stands Mount Baker, in Washington. Sitting at a card table in our front yard, surveying this pastoral and majestic scene, millions of idealistic themes fight for expression, while in the front pasture the weeds shoot up. Boy, how I could preach from here!

From now on, however, no preaching. Instead, you'll get the confessions of a greenhorn farmer. Fact is, we took the old sign off the gate, here, and we have re-named the place Greenhorn Farm, and adopted the slogan, "Run By Genuine Greenhorn." Our machinery consists of a lawn mower, a small rototiller, a couple of shovels, hoes, and pitch forks. Our livestock, so far, (we have been here less than one month) consists of one cat, Sam, and three horses: Golden Dawn, Midnight, and Topper.

What we lack in machinery, livestock, and cash, we make up for in ambition, and high hopes. The fellow who wrote that book, "Five Acres and Independence" better move overseas if our dreams crash, or some night I'll sneak up on him with my old Winchester! Or shame him with a book I'll call "Ten Acres and Disaster."

One crop has already started to pay off: our health crop. We all have started to eat like horses, laugh more, rise earlier. You've got to get healthy fast or die, if you want to be a farmer!

Lachute High School reopens next Tuesday with seven new staff members and a pupil enrolment estimated at over 800. There is a total of 38 on the teaching staff, one more than last year. The newcomers include Principal A. E. Price, who is here from Beaconsfield replacing Acting Principal Robt. Bailly. (Mr. Bailly had filled the position in the interim since Principal Fred Royal's advancement to the position of Director General of the Regional School.)

Principal Price is a graduate of Sir George Williams University and of Macdonald College, and holds a Class I teaching certificate. He has latterly served as head of the Mathematics Department at Beaconsfield High School, where he has taught for the past eight years. He had previous experience in business and industry, and is well qualified in education at both elementary and high school levels.

Expect over 800 pupil enrolment

Other additions to the teaching staff include the following:

Mrs. Gary (Barbara) Cruise, of Lachute, who holds a Class II diploma from Macdonald, and for the past two years has been teaching at Surrey Gardens in Dorval. She will be teacher for Grade III.

Miss Heather Connelly, of Brownsburg, with a Class II diploma from Macdonald. For the past two years Miss Connelly has been teaching at Maple School in Chateauguay.

Mr. James Trenholme, of Lennoxville, who holds a B.Sc. degree from Bishop's (1965) and has qualified for a Class I certificate. He will teach Mathematics at the Junior High School level.

Miss Marie Belanger, of Chute à Blondeau; B.A. in Education from the College of Great Falls, Montana. Miss Belanger has taught for several years in the U.S., and last year in the St. Louis Academy at St. Jerome. She will teach French.

Miss Dianne Bishop, from Andover, N.B., with a Class III teacher's license from that province. She filled a teaching position at Florenceville (N.B.) High School last year, and will teach Grade VII at L.H.S.

Mrs. Leonard (Elva) Armstrong, Intermediate diploma, who taught previously for 10 years in Lachute, and is well known in the community. Her subject will be Music, in Grades I-V.

Authorities inform The Watchman that it is difficult to estimate the enrolment prior to school opening, but from the number registering, there is definite indication the complement of pupils will be higher than ever before, probably over 800.

Teachers leave for Germany

Two Catholic teachers of Lachute left recently on an exchange arrangement, to occupy school positions in the Canadian Army of Occupation settlements at Hemer and Wherl, West Germany. They are Mlle Marie-Paule Ouimet, daughter of Mme Donat Ouimet, and Mlle Suzanne Painchaud, daughter of Mr. and Mme Rémi Painchaud, both of Lachute. Another member of the party is Mlle Estelle Jetté of Bedford, Que. All three are still members of the teaching staff under Lachute Catholic School Commission, but presently on a two-year contract with the Cdn. Government. Mlle Ouimet (right) and Mlle Painchaud were feted by a group of friends who extended good wishes, before their recent departure by RCAF plane from Trenton, Ont.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

The Catholic Teachers' Association has asked for conciliation on labor terms, and Mr. Jean Valentine was sent by the department at Quebec to arbitrate the case. At a meeting between the school commission and the teachers last week, points of dissension were laid before the conciliator (salary scale, number of pupils to a class, etc.). Mr. Valentine will bring down recommendations for agreement, and next discussion is set for September 15.

Road construction contracts by Quebec Department of Highways include 0.27 mile in the Village of Brownsburg, on the St. Philippe road, awarded to Geo. V. Riddell & Sons Ltd., Mille Isles, for the sum of $225,577.

Passers-by have noted the closing of Brownsburg Lumber Company plant and dismantlement of the large warehouse. The pallet-making operations at this industry have now been transferred to the parent company, Lachute Lumber Ltd., here in town, where millwork has been eliminated and operations geared completely to industrial work.

A soiree of the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association is being held in the Knights of Columbus Hall next Tuesday at 8 p.m., to discuss the season's hunting program and view special films on this topic. It is expected there will be a good attendance of hunting enthusiasts. All are welcome.

Local 437 of the "United Paper Makers and Paper Workers" at J. C. Wilson plant have made a $50 donation to the Dominion Ayers Wood strikers, who have now been off work for a month. It is also heard that Lachute and Calumet "Federated Workers of Quebec" group are meeting this week to discuss assistance to the Lachute workers on strike.

Council deals with current agenda

Discussion held on differences in fire department

A brief discussion on fire brigade matters was held during a special meeting of the City Council on Monday, with Mayor Dr. Z. Saindon presiding. The discussion was the outcome of an terview held a few hours earlier between councillors, fire department personnel and Chief Don MacCulloch, regarding reorganization of the fire service.

The aldermen were generally agreed on the idea of reorganizing, and according to Aldermen Provost, Poitras and one or two others, the municipality should draw up a by-law clearly specifying the requirements of this service. "Once the Council's requirements are established," said Ald. Poitras, "if Mr. MacCulloch feels he can satisfy those conditions, the municipality will retain his services; if not — "

Ald. Philippe Masson, chairman of the fire committee, said the individual firemen should be interrogated, since there was variance between opinions stated by the Chief and those of some of his men.

According to the mayor, it was not only necessary to see if the chief and his assistant are agreeable to reorganizing. "We must consider the problem in this light: Can we re-establish them in the service, in view of what has occurred in the past?" This has to be decided first of all, in the mayor's opinion.

It was finally agreed that a brief on the fire department should be presented to Council at its next sitting.

Civic meeting on town plan held at City Hall

On invitation of Gaétan Richard, the town planner whose services have been engaged by the municipality, a "briefing session" is arranged for this evening (Wednesday) at city hall, where the question of urban renewal will be broadly discussed with the civic authorities and representatives of social clubs and other organizations.

Mr. Richard will be accompanied by a spokesman from Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation, who will give information on the financial aspects of this project.

The matter came up at a special meeting of City Council on Monday evening, and Ald. Jacques Poitras expressed his view that initially the city must annex a portion of the adjacent parish, St. Jerusalem, before a master plan can be logically discussed.

The mayor reassured Ald. Poitras by stating that the planner would take into consideration the urban part of the said parish in his calculations. Moreover, the preliminaries and procedures of annexation could be carried on simultaneously with the planning.

It was decided that Mr. Richard be requested to draw up a preliminary study on sites suitable for industrial purposes.

Details of garbage and sanitation before City Council

The garbage site on Léon J. Plouffe's farm in St. Jerusalem, used by Lachute for the past few months, will continue to serve the town for this purpose.

With consent of the parish and approval of the provincial health authorities, the City of Lachute will rent this tract of land from the proprietor at $600 a month. This sum includes, however, the supervision of the dump; the use of necessary equipment; and an increase in payment to Lucien Bellefeuille, the garbage contractor, due to the increased distance of transportation. (The site is about 10 miles from Lachute).

The Parish of St. Jerusalem will re-imburse Lachute the sum of $50 a month, in return for its use of the garbage site.

Council also took heed of a letter from Dr. L. Turcotte, County health officer, condemning the dump-site in Ayersville, used formerly by that municipality, and ordering its immediate closure. The City will comply with this request.

Aviators in the making

For certain young members of the Air Cadets, a plane ride is an annual experience, while to many youngsters it is still just a dream. This was the experience of Lachute boys in Cadet Squadron 648 who attended summer camp at St. Jean, Que. Seen above are some of the lucky ones — Cadet Jocelyn Malette, of Durocher Street, with the pilot of the plane; Sgt. Daniel Choquette, of Princess Street; and Joseph Goaldieri, of another squadron (622, St. Leonard, Que.)

Company's latest offer inadequate, says representative for the strikers

Alain Brabant, lawyer, was spokesman for the Dominion Ayers Wood Division strikers in stating that the Company had made its first counter-offer on the over-all demands of the CNTU. Noted in this proposal, however, was the fact that it disregards certain clauses already discussed between the two parties; and that it is a "package contract" which sets forth only the rights of the management — according to his appraisal of the offer.

Mr. Brabant took exception to terms in the preamble to this offer, specifically "social justice" and "terms just and equitable to both parties".

The Company's offer was presented at the arbitration meeting last Friday in Montreal, with the approved representatives in attendance. The offer (again, according to Mr. Brabant) leaves a net decrease in pay to certain categories, and a slight raise in certain other categories of employment. It makes no reference to Union demands on discrimination, health and sanitation, employee seniority, union representation, discipline, work hours, rights and privileges, etc.

The spokesman also voiced a rejection of the offer by Roger Regimbal, M.P., to mediate in this conflict as a third party. (The suggestion was given with Mr. Regimbal's endorsement in L'Argenteuil last week.)

Beef cattle fanciers held field day at Tutira Farms

On Thursday, August 25, the Beef Producers of this county held a meeting at Tutira Farms, Arundel, where around 50 beef-cattle enthusiasts gathered to profit by the occasion.

Under the chairmanship of J.-G. Gélinas, agronomist, the guests were welcomed by Mr. T. C. Stuart.

Mr. E. H. Stoltz, secretary of the Canadian Shorthorn Association, gave an expert demonstration on beef cattle judging, followed by a judging contest held among the guests. Prizes worth $50 were given by the Coopérative Fédérée of St. Andrews East. Mrs. Ethel McGibbon was the first winner, followed by Messrs. Norman Graham, L. T. Porter and Donald Maxwell.

Before lunch, the ladies were received at Arundel Tree Farm, where Mr. Melvin Graham piloted them on a conducted tour along Nature's Trail.

Mr. L. P. Thibodeau agronomist, gave a very interesting talk on Pasture, Forage and Corn Production in relation to fertilization, grazing management and soil utilization. This talk was followed by a demonstration in the fields of Tutira and A. G. Morrison's farms.

Lunch was served by the ladies of the Canadian Legion, Arundel branch, at their local hall, where Mr. Edgar Boyd welcomed the guests.

In the afternoon, Donald Robertson, agronomist at the Federal Department of Agriculture, covered the subject of Beef Carcass Grading and Beef Marketing. Two beef producers from St. Andrews East, L. Tupper Porter and J. T. Dodds, also spoke on the subject of silo construction and management.

Throughout the day, the guests asked relevant questions, which were answered by the different speakers.

The Argenteuil County agronomists were gratified with the results obtained, and they convey their thanks to all who contributed to the success of this Beef Producers' field day.

Gala jamboree of Quebec Indians held at Oka

Several hundred Indians from 12 Quebec reserves assembled at Oka over the week-end in the second annual Indian jamboree.

The pow-wow's theme was Indian culture, as depicted through handicrafts and dances. Last year's theme was Indian unity, according to Chief James Gaspé, jamboree co-ordinator.

The get-together got off to a start Saturday afternoon with a colorful parade through the 300-year-old village of Oka, on the Lake of Two Mountains. Featured in the parade were colorful floats and Indians in full regalia.

Dancing spotlighted activities Saturday evening. These included the Eagle Dance by the Hurons, of Huron Village; the Sun Dance by the Abenakis, of Odanak; the Corn Dance by the Mohawks, of Caughnawaga; and the Peace Pipe Dances by the Montagenais, of Betsiamites. Indians from Saskatchewan and Ontario also performed.

Sunday's program included a horse race, a Roman Catholic mass conducted in Mohawk and featuring the Mohawk choir of Caughnawaga and a gala fire in the evening.

Week's Epigram

Perhaps it is pointless to mourn the passing of the good old days, but the average man might reasonably yearn for the good old dollar.

Fire quelled in dwelling house

Considerable smoke and water damage resulted from a fire on Friday morning at the residence of Roger Prevost, 460 Chatham Street, near Simon's crossing. The alarm was sounded at 9.16 a.m. The blaze in the 1½-storey frame house, according to Mr. Prevost, was started by his children playing with matches. The fire started upstairs and was confined to one room, but in order to reach it, firemen had to use a chain-saw to cut several holes in the roof and outside wall. Both fire trucks were on the scene for approximately an hour.

Lac St. Denis commissionaire decorated

Lac St. Denis, Que. — Commissionaire Percy Hillier of Morin Heights, received a decoration for 10 years' continuous service in the Corps of Commissionaires at RCAF Station Lac St. Denis, Que. This is believed to be the first time a commissionaire has received this decoration for service in one location.

Commissionaire Hillier lives in Morin Heights with his wife and daughter. He is seen here receiving the presentation from S/L H. J. McGill, CD, at a squadron parade.

Remi St. Jacques, a 48-year-old resident of R.R. 2, Lachute, escaped serious injury on Thursday evening of last week, when his car was struck by a shunting freight train at the Main Street crossing, parallel to the North River.

According to the investigating police, Mr. St. Jacques was headed south when the mishap occurred, and had almost driven across the tracks when he was pushed into the cement retaining wall by the slow-moving train. Damage to the car was estimated in the vicinity of $400, while damage to the wall was set at $150.

Accompanied by his wife and daughter, all three were taken to the Argenteuil Hospital, where they were immediately released.

Police report that the crossing lights were working at the time of the accident.

Fraud attempt on bank customer

Hoaxsters have been active again this past week — misrepresenting a bank accountant on the telephone and winning the confidence of elderly customers, to come to the bank and withdraw their funds.

One lady, suspicious of this strategy, called back to check personally with a bank official of her acquaintance, and was advised of this old trick to mulct funds from elderly and more trusting clients.

The banks and the police are on guard. The swindle will not likely be tried again immediately in this vicinity; the operators have doubtless moved on to new territory. (A similar attempt was made in March of this year at the Bank of Montreal, Lachute.) But the trick will be tried again — sometime, unexpectedly — and bank customers are warned to keep this possibility in mind. Should suspicious circumstances arise, such fraudulent attempts should be reported immediately.

Nothing new, art show scenes old and historic

The Argenteuil Art Association's final exhibition this season — continuing over Labor Day at the municipal hall, St. Andrews — is attracting many interested viewers. This was a specialized challenge to artists, and the number of exhibits is somewhat limited on this account. Featured in the show are strictly "subjects of historic interest", and the paintings, 19 in number, include many old spots and buildings, even residents, of this County.

The renovated municipal hall (above St. Andrews fire station) and the expert hanging, under supervision of Vivian Walker, chairman of the committee and herself a professional artist, have resulted in an appealing show, and many local art lovers will doubtless find enjoyment in visiting the exhibition. Viewers are welcome daily from 2.30 to 5 p.m. (also from 7 to 9 on Thursday evening) until Monday.

Exhibitors and titles of these pictures are enumerated hereunder, in alphabetical order:

Patricia Good, Shrewsbury — St. John's Church, Shrewsbury; 1886 Carriage Shed, Shrewsbury.

Ann Harcourt, Cushing — L'Eglise Notre Dame de Bonsecours; Mount Royal from St. Helen's Island.

Mertle Henderson, Greco's Point — Old Canal Locks.

Mrs. M. M. Putnam, Grenville — St. Matthew's Church, Grenville; Portraits, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Canning, Cushing.

Jeannette Roback, Montreal — Old Mill, Ile aux Coudres; Old Buildings, Quebec City.

Freda Pemberton-Smith, Vankleek Hill, Ont. — Fortification Lane, Montreal; Signal Hill, Newfoundland.

Don Titman, Lachute — St. Aidan's Church, Louise; Covered Bridge, Terrebonne Co.

Vivian Walker, Carillon — Home of P. L. Walker, Carillon; Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews East.

Robert White, Lachute — Pioneer Equipment, Court House, Lachute.

Murder charges against suspect in H'wksby arrest

Montreal — Two charges of non-capital murder were laid last week in the arraignment of a 28-year-old Halifax accountant held criminally responsible for the strangulation slayings of two young women in Montreal.

Brought before Judge Omer Legrand was Roland Leblanc, a slim, bespectacled father of two, who was ordered to appear for preliminary hearing August 30.

Leblanc was taken in charge by Hawkesbury municipal police, and a key in his possession linked him with a motel in which one of the murders occurred.

At the inquest Leblanc admitted strangling Ginette Martineau, a cigarette girl, and Charlotte Shirley Doucet, a secretary, both 20.

The first victim died in a rooming house on Mountain St. on Aug. 16 and the second in a St. Laurent motel two days later.

Street collection by mill strikers

Numerous questions have been asked concerning the collection areas set up by strikers on Lachute's five approaches, and according to Police Director Real Chartrand, permission had been granted the strikers to carry out such a collection, in a letter signed by all the six sitting aldermen. There appears to be no city by-law prohibiting a collection of this type, so long as the highways are not blocked.

By BOB ATCHISON

From complaints in the area, it would appear that we have more beaver around this County than we have ever had. Creeks, streams, and even the outlets of lakes have been dammed up. In a couple of cases this has caused a loss of pasture for cattle, or destroyed a stand of good wood. Most of the callers ask, "What can we do? Can we shoot them or trap them?" Before you do anything like this, get in touch with the Game Wardens; these animals are very well protected, so leave them alone until you get some authorized help. I know they do cause a good deal of damage at times, and unless they are moved from this one area they will continue to flood everything out, and as time goes on the water problem will become greater. So a suggestion — talk to the wardens right now. They will no doubt help you live-trap them, for moving to another area.

There are many dams in this County made by the beaver, but in most places I have seen, the lands upstream are not of much use for anything or anyone. There were a few of these animals on the creek going toward Dunany; there is no sign of their activity now, however, so I would guess they have been killed or molested. In certain cases these creatures will become very tame, but even though they let you get close, they still keep a sharp eye out for that fast move on your part. Of course, if you have a good pair of field glasses, you don't have to get too close, and it's certainly an eye-opener what they can do with those choppers of theirs. It's almost unbelievable the way they can slice through a tree. And their incisor teeth never stop growing.

Fishing is right back where it was, with plenty of good ones being taken. Most of them are caught on trolls, but there are a few being taken on spin gear, and even dunking the odd worm pays off. J. Gagné showed me a grey he had taken from Silver Lake just recently, 24 inches long but very deep and thick; weight, 7-lbs. and some odd ounces. This was taken with a Delphin lure of the red and gold type; from all accounts, it must have given a real battle. He also caught a red with a worm, about 1½-lbs., so he didn't do too badly for a Sunday afternoon. You know, the better the day, the better the deed. . . Down in the Ottawa the Northerns are starting to hit. The largest I have heard of so far was 11-lbs.; however, many fish were taken in the 5-6-lb. class. Along with some fair doré, this makes for good sport. The doré all hit the red and white Daredevil, the original one, so it looks as though they are starting to move along too. Lake Macdonald gave up a bass that was a real battler, 5-lbs. 4 ozs., taken with a hair bug popper on a spin-cast outfit; this would sure set your blood pressure soaring. I guess a fish like this would not be landed in just a few minutes. Imagine catching it on a nice light trout rod; I guess you would still be there yet.

Ducks are making their appearance on the North River. I hope they will increase, with less boating activity on this water just now. As far as the blue herons are concerned, though, they must have had it for this year. There are a few bitterns around; at least, you can see them once in awhile. I imagine the spraying of insecticides down in the Southern States had more effect on the herons than was at first imagined. Some time ago, I read an article on the spraying of these wet lands and the damage it had caused. At the time, all the clubs were up in arms — and from legislation now passed, this won't happen again.

We seem to have a good supply of partridge in the County, along with the Hungarians and the few Chukars that have been spotted. I am pleased about the Chukars; these birds, as you know, were planted some years ago, and indications are, that very few of them have been killed by hunters. They were not too plentiful in this immediate area, and I thought that they had been killed off by Nature itself, but this does not seen to be the case. The last sightings reported were from the St. Columban area, and just this week I was told of a couple down on Cote St. Louis. They won't stay in this kind of habitat very long, as they like the windblown, rocky places. But we really can't be too sure what wildlife will do; they can adapt themselves so well to different situations, it's hard to say.

Walking down a fence-row the other evening to see the damage that coons had done to a neighbor's corn crop, we scared up about 10 of the Hungarians. With the weeds all cut along the fence, this was an ideal feeding spot — and this is something to remember, when you go out shooting. Open fields are much preferred to brush, so be prepared to see them in any field or open spot. Another thing, if you haven't got a dog to run them down and point, you can be sure you are going to shoot a lot of ammo for nothing. But it's wonderful sport going after them. Even though you don't get any, you certainly help the unemployment situation among the shell manufacturers. . . These birds have made themselves right at home in the area, and they are on the increase too; this is excellent.

I know this is old hat, but with the hunting season coming on, it's about time you gave a thought to your strategy. With so many people being lost this past year, I believe this should take first place in your mind. First, never go into bushland for which you have no map, and be sure to tell other people just where you are headed. If something does happen, then they won't have to waste time figuring out just where you went. In late fall this could mean the difference between life and death, so remember it. Another point that I would like to make — no one knows bush that well that they can't get lost, so take a compass. It doesn't occupy much room, and you don't have to have the expensive type. Some of the cheapest are still good, and even if they won't get you out to the exact spot where you entered, they will at least get you out.

If you do get lost — sit down and take a look around you, check over the supplies you are carrying in your pockets, then when you have done this, sit tight. Of course, if it is toward the end of the day, don't move at all from the area you are in. Make a windbreak or lean-to for yourself; get firewood for the night, and you will be O.K. Now don't get it into your head that all kinds of ferocious animals are going to come out to attack you — especially if you have a fire, this is just not so. All animals are curious, and seeing something foreign in the bush (which is, after all, their domain) they approach for a look-see. If you have been smart, you should have extra ammunition; but don't go blasting off with this, keep it, and when you hear three shots fired in succession, then answer them — and don't keep answering either. If you hear nothing encouraging like this, and it is getting dark, save your ammo; no one in their right mind will be out looking for you at night in the bush.

It is surprising the number of hunters who wander into the bush, with not a thought to their welfare. You know it's very easy to carry along a couple of extra chocolate bars or packages of raisins; wonderful for that extra energy you need. As for your matches, you should make yourself a waterproof match case. A shotgun shell (empty, of course) filled with matches, then covered with parowax, will do the trick. Even a small piece of candle won't go amiss. This helps you to start a fire; lighting the candle saves your matches. I shouldn't have to tell you about a first-aid kit, I hope you don't care about yourself that little. . . When you have the fire going, take your boots off, and if they are wet, you can always dry them by pulling your fire over, clearing the earth or sand underneath and putting this into your boots; it won't dry them right out in this short a time, but it will dry them some — and you know wet boots can give you some wonderful blisters, which can be a killer if you get too many!

There is one more thing to remember — you will be found, so take it easy. Keep that fire going with plenty of smoke (green wood is excellent for this) and the Rangers are always on the lookout for fires. But don't make the fire too big, you could burn yourself out too!

Annual Molson fastball tourney

The fifth annual Molson fastball tournament will be held at Lachute from September 3 to 5. This tournament will be staged at Ayers Recreation Centre.

Last year there were over 17 teams entered in the tournament, and the organizers expect that number to be exceeded this year. The tournament is presented with the compliments of Gaston (Molson) Laroche.

The rules are the same as last year, in that no senior calibre pitchers are allowed to pitch; however, they may play any other position on a team.

A team wishing to enter this tournament must have its application in before Thursday, September 1, at 9 p.m.

The entry fee is $20 per team, and a team may not have in excess of 20 players.

The winning team will receive $175 and the Molson Trophy, while the runner-up will take home $75.

Clubs interested in entering this tournament should contact either of the following organizers:

WATCHMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

BOATING CLINIC by Stan Davies

The reflexes developed by driving a car are often the things one has to "unlearn" to be a good boat driver. This is due to three — or more — very great differences in the way cars and boats act when in motion.

For instance: a car can be stopped very abruptly, whereas a boat has no brakes; a car will not go sideways, a boat will; a car in turning, pivots around a point at the rear, a boat pivots around a point at the bow.

These dissimilarities are not very apparent, and really make no difference, when a boat is out in the wide open spaces. But in the confines of a narrow channel or in the process of docking, particularly under the influence of a little panic, the car driver's reflexes applied to a boat can be dangerous.

So here are the things to do to avoid trouble. Because there is no brake keep your boat under control at all times, eliminating any need for fast stops. Because it may skid sideways allow lots of room for manoeuvring in close quarters, and because a boat turns by swinging the stern, watch when pulling away from a pier or wharf.

If you just drive forward and steer away from the dock the stern may swing and hit the side causing damage. Backing out from a berth is often the best way.

That there are many other problems in boat handling techniques is apparent from some of the questions I've been asked on this topic:

I still have trouble bringing my boat in close to the dock smoothly. Is there a secret?

Answer: If there is I wish I knew it. One thing, watch the wind — and current, if any — then try to bring your boat in against these external forces, so that they stop you and tend to bring you up against the pier.

I bought a bigger motor for my boat. Now I can't seem to handle it as well. It digs in, doesn't steer well. What gives? (T. G., Penetanguishene)

Answer: The symptoms indicate the new motor may not be at the proper angle. If the lower unit is too far forward the trouble you describe occurs. The "angle of dangle" of the outboard is extremely important.

I hear there's a special rule on right-of-way on a river. What is it? (O. T., Winnipeg)

Answer: You must mean the rule which says the boat going upstream, against the current, must stay clear of the boat going downstream. It's more manoeuvrable, that's the reason.

Answer: No. This is one other way boat practice differs from highway practice. You can pass either side, but you are obligated (by law) to stay clear of him.

I had to tow a friend's boat. We pulled several cleats off his deck. Is there any secret to towing? (L. K. H., Fort William)

Answer: Use a long rope, nylon if possible, to get maximum elasticity. If deck hardware is fragile, run a line right around the boat to be towed, supporting it at intervals with short ties to whatever you can find on the deck or gunwale.

Why is an outboard boat so much more manoeuvrable than an inboard?

Answer: In an outboard the entire motor swings and you get the whole thrust of the propeller to swing the stern. In an inboard the rudder can never be acted upon by more than half the discharge current from the prop.

I'm getting a new boat, very fast, for water ski-ing. Any advice?

Answer: This above all. Try it out in tight turns, how it stops, just how fast it answers the helm, etc. In other words get to know its idiosyncrasies thoroughly before you blast off.

Water Skiing with CLINT WARD

Learning the two ski 180 degree wake turn is easy. The turn is completed in mid-air after jumping from the wake. Begin in the centre of the wake. Drift over to the edge of the wake and as you reach it, hop into the air and turn from the front to back position in one motion. The approach to the wake should be in a slightly crouched position with the legs bent to allow for the hopping action. As the turn is begun, keep the handle in close to the small of the back. Head up—do not look at the water.

These are common errors. Cutting too hard at the wake—just drift to it. Jumping too high or too far out—a quick hop and turn is all that is required. Turning the wrong direction—there is a short and a long way to turn—always learn the short way. Turn away from the wake going out and the opposite direction coming back.

Feel for the lift of the wake as you drift back toward it and then hop up and turn around to the front, keeping the arms slightly bent and the handle in close to the body.

Chosen for U.S. Int'nl ski team

(Our District Correspondent)

Harrington — Grant A. Young (son of Mr. and Mrs. Coral Young, of Harrington), who resides at Hartford, Conn., was informed recently of his selection as a member of the first U.S.A. deaf ski team, to compete in the International Winter Games for the Deaf at Berchtesgaden, West Germany, next February.

The letter giving this information — a copy of which was received here by his parents — emphasizes that this is a great honor, since only the very best skiers were selected; also that this is the first time the U.S. has sent a team to compete, and a lot depends on the showing of the eight-member representation.

Alf Shand shows top form in Que. pro championships

Alf Shand, assistant professional at the local golf club, distinguished himself last Friday and Saturday at the O'Keefe Quebec Professional Medal-Play Championship. He led the tournament with three other professionals after the regulation 36 holes of play.

A sudden-death play-off was won by Luc Brien of Pinegrove, who took the $800 first-prize money. Shand, Jos Leblanc of Sherbrooke, and André Cazes of Levis, each earned $500.

After the first round of play on Friday, Shand alone led the field with a 3-stroke edge over his nearest opponent. With 9 holes left to play, he had increased his lead to 5 strokes, but he then took 5 bogeys in the next 6 holes to see his advantage disappear. On the 36th hole Shand had to sink a 40-foot wedge shot to tie the lead. In the play-off he was eliminated on the first hole after 3-putting to get a bogey 5. Brien won over Jos. Leblanc on the next hole.

Alf Shand's fine play in this event is a tribute to his ability as a professional. He was most disappointed to come away without the victory, but we wish him better luck next time.

Military whist held at Grenville

A very successful military whist was held at Grenville High School on Wednesday evening, August 17, under auspices of the L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. A good crowd attended

The door prize, a $10 voucher donated by Mr. Jean-Paul Legault, of the Richelieu Store at Grenville, was won by Mrs. Cliff Cunningham. A fruit cake in two sections, generously donated by Mrs. V. MacVicar, was won by Mr. L. Campbell, of Montreal, and Mr. Irving Fuller, of Cushing.

The table prizes were as follows — 1st, Mrs. Gordon Brown (Captain), Mrs. K. Murphy, Mr. F. Gauley and Mrs. P. MacLeod; 2nd, Mrs. L. Mott (Captain), Mr. L. Mott, Mr. and Mrs. H. Stewart. A novelty prize was won by Mrs. Starnes (Captain), Mrs. A. Gaston, Mrs. I Fuller and Mr. Walter Starnes.

Police action at Morin Hts.

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The efficienc of local law enforcement and th value of telephonic and radi communication were demonstrat ed in a practical manner on Sat urday evening. . . .

A message was received b Police Chief Morin to intercep and arrest the operator of a Cadil lac car occupied by three person proceeding in the direction o Morin Heights. A tow truck an a delivery van were commandeer ed for a roadblock, and man oeuvred into position in th centre of the village. Within short time the vehicle arrived a the roadblock, the driver was ar rested and the car confiscated Provincial Police, who had bee contacted previously, arrived t take charge of the prisoner. Th other two occupants were permit ted to proceed to their homes.

A search of the vehicle produc eded a quantity of alcoholi spirits. The charge against the driver will undoubtedly be that of endangering human life, oper ating a vehicle while "under the influence", and resisting arrest. Credit is due to Police Chief Morin and his able assistant, Cst. Ernest Woods, for the prompt and efficient handling of this situation.

Kilmar

The Kilmar Birthday Club met at the home of Mrs. John Purcell last Tuesday to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. O. Thomas. Mrs. Thomas received a gift of bed linen. A good time was reported by all who attended. The afternoon concluded with refreshments, including a cake.

Mr. Brian Gorrill, of Ottawa, visited friends in this area last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Moncrieff motored to Como, Que., last week to visit their daughter, Mrs. Roy Elliott and family.

Pre-nuptial Shower

A bridal shower was held at the home of Mrs. Margaret Downing last Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Audrey Carriere. About 30 people attended, and the bride-to-be received a lovely assortment of useful gifts. . . . Mrs. Downing and her daughter, Edna, were joint hostesses for the evening. Everyone reported an enjoyable time.

Labor Day – failure of the 'adversary' system

IN THE United States the Knights of Labor fought for and won, among other things, a special holiday in 1894. That was the first Labor Day in this part of the world. The same year the Canadian labor movement followed suit, and from then on, the first Monday in every September became Labor Day.

No one could have imagined the hatred and bitterness that would fill the next 72 years in the continuing struggle of labor and management in this so-called classless society. From the beginning — when the adversary system of solving labor problems was established, with "the men" on one side staring flinty-eyed across at "the bosses", equally flinty-eyed and unflinching — there has been little else but open warfare in the working field.

It is time we realized that the adversary system does not work. Until labor and management learn to co-operate and become aware that they are both on the same side, serving the same firm, the crippling strikes will continue, and both sides will be the losers. We must devise a system of stimulating in the working men an interest in the welfare of their firm. Some companies have bonuses and profit-sharing, it is true. But too often the profits go to the foremen and supervisors and not to the men who run the machines, the girls on the switchboard, or the elevator operators. And the loyalty, the quality of their effort, depreciates accordingly.

If it truly becomes their company and their product, the loyalty of the working men will be strong. With the upswing of the business cycle, their gains should increase too — and they should also have to do without the extras when times are not so good.

Unions, reputedly, do not call strikes if their members are well treated. The indignity of punching a time clock like a child does little to lift a man's spirit as he begins and ends his day. The harshness of having to fight for every benefit and every pay raise only perpetuates the adversary system.

The bar of distinction between management and labor must be minimized, if a spirit of shared responsibility is to flourish.

Then Labor Day truly will become a day for all of us who labor.

At mercy of the disinterested

THE ABOVE reflections on labor and the disinterested attitude, has a counterpart in community living. We are apt to overlook the fact that corporate reputation depends on the personal approach of just a few — the proportion of working people who have actual dealings with the public. If we could arouse in these — as we must strive to inspire among workers in the factory — a sense of responsibility for the fair repute of their company (its products and services) and their community, then we shall have achieved much, both in terms of profit and the public image.

The question is, how? Whether by incentive bonuses, management-labor liaison, or other means, is a question for individual cases. And with temporary help, this is a still greater problem.

The community aspect of this situation was very apparent in our recent travels, where distasteful impressions were left in a few places we visited — unfortunately, in each case by temporary seasonal employees. As we remarked, these have an untold influence on the travelling public, yet, through their transient status of employment, little sense of "belonging". Their service too often is slovenly and apathetic. We found them notably in restaurants, stores, tourist booths — and even in one of Canada's showplaces, Stratford, where an uninformed attendant sent us on a 60-mile trip for a non-existent stage performance.

It is too late for local businessmen to profit by such experience this season; but when extra help is needed in rush periods, it will pay to consider carefully, and to impress this potentiality to make good or bad impressions.

Signs of a compromise

COMMUNIST China has long remained outside the community of nations. She has held herself aloof, and the United States has done its best to see that she remains isolated.

The U.S. has consistently voted against admission of China to the United Nations, Canada has gone along with this stand and stood with the U.S. in registering a negative vote when the question came before the U.N. General Assembly last November.

External Affairs Minister Martin said at the time that Canada voted as she did because China had set unacceptable conditions for entry into the world body. One was that the UN rescind its resolution condemning China as an aggressor in Korea. Another was the Chinese policy that the people of Formosa should be denied representation in the U.N.

A group of Canadian members of Parliament, meeting with members of the U.S. Congress in Washington this spring, reported evidence that a majority of Canadians would favor their country recognizing China.

At about the same time Prime Minister Pearson, in a speech to Columbia University's school of international affairs in New York, said there is an urgent need to end China's isolation from the rest of the world.

Next day in the House of Commons at Ottawa he said it was too early to tell whether Canada will support China's admission to the U.N. Asked whether Canada intends to recognize China, he said the matter was under consideration.

Now the United States shows signs of bending its inflexible attitude. President Johnson said in a speech the other day "misguided China" must be encouraged toward peaceful co-operation with other countries. "A lasting peace can never come to Asia as long as 700,000,000 people of mainland China are isolated from the outside world," he added.

These are hopeful trends. . . As long as China feels she faces a hostile world, she will remain intransigent.

The challenge is Canadian

HOW DO YOU make increased ownership of Canadian industry by Canadians palatable to outsiders and attractive to Canadians themselves? — This is a question asked in The Financial Post. W. Harold Rea, in a recent address to a life insurance group, said he felt the "erosion of Canadian ownership of industry to foreign interests" was proceeding at an alarming rate. Chairman of Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd., Rea lists several possible remedies. To spur Canadians into buying shares of their own companies, the government might allow them to deduct 50 per cent or even 100 per cent of their Canadian dividend income from personal income taxes payable, instead of the 20 per cent credit now allowed. Estate taxes might be waived on the part of an estate invested in Canadian ownership securities. More pension and insurance money should be encouraged to flow into equities. The financial Post comments: The challenge is to devise a climate that encourages Canadians with imagination and drive to grasp the opportunities that this country offers in abundance. The Carter Commission may offer some ideas in the area of tax incentives. Canada's best brains ought to be put into the effort to find other workable incentives as well.

Viewpoints and perspectives

CYCLING CHILDREN who ignore the law are a menace to motorists, to pedestrians and also to themselves. The absolute disregard and contempt which so many cyclists have for the law, is only equalled by the absolute disregard and "see nothing, know nothing" policy displayed by the police departments.

WATCH AIRLINE FEES. — Instead of being a little realistic and upping the minimum to 50 or 60 pounds per passenger and charging enough on the ticket to allow a person to carry enough clothes to provide for a change or two in a three weeks trip abroad, the (airlines') policy seems to be to catch you unawares with exorbitant charges at a time when you cannot argue — the plane is leaving within the hour and do you want to be on it or not? Not exactly a choice.

PAY FOR PROGRESS. — Municipal leaders have long studied other methods of taxation, but have failed to come up with a workable solution. Someday, someone will solve such a problem. But the problems of paying taxes will always be with us, and with progress comes increased taxation.

Countryside summer replete with things of Nature, food for thought

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

We have just come in from the garden, whose flowers have outdone themselves this year. We share our pleasure with that of the bees and the humming-birds. To stand quietly in the midst of the blossoms, and just listen, is to be near the heart of nature. Today, the male humming-bird worked one side of the monk's-hood, while I stood on the other side. The monk's-hood is over five feet tall this year, so one is partially concealed behind it. At our feet, the bees were busy at the ageratum: I love their busy drone as they go like miniature airplanes from blossom to blossom. The Mexican marigolds, after a bad start (as noted last month) have at last achieved buds and full flower, and they, too, are tall, about five feet. The phlox behind them are not quite as colorful as usual, sulking a bit over being separated and moved last fall. At the feet of all this height, the petunias keep on blossoming. These are double ones, and look like roses. Of the last-named, the Centennial one had four buds. Yes, all is well with the flowers.

But the birds, so plentiful two weeks ago, seem to have disappeared. We hear the raucous cry of the bluejay nearby every day, but only occasionally see the edge of a blue wing, as it flits to another tree. I do see plenty of hawks about, and a robin was pulling worms yesterday morning in the new flower bed; but, on the whole, the birds are quiescent. . . Which reminds me, I have an interesting bird story from the same source that gave me the dog ghost story. Those goings-on were in Wales, this was in Holland, where the stork has the habit of building its nest on top of chimneys. A very irritating habit, but the philosophical Dutch mostly make the best of it, and build a superstructure over the chimney, and the stork settles for that. It seems to me that smoked stork would hatch, but this is what the man avers. Anyway, one stubborn old fellow refused to give in to a bird, and ruthlessly pulled down the nests from his chimney. This feud went on for many years, accompanied by head-shaking on the part of the neighbors, for the Dutch, like the Irish, have their pet superstitions, and one is that it is bad luck to frustrate a stork. In course of time, the obstinate Dutchman was gathered to his forefathers, and laid in his grave, a choice spot right up against the wall of the church. . . His grave is easily identified — it is the one covered with bird excrement, dropped from the chimney of the church!

So much for birds. Now as to other wild life, we are gladdened by the sight of black squirrels about. Very handsome creatures, and interesting biologically. Some odd-ball was born black, and this mutant mated, and produced other black ones, and so a new strain became established. Evolution, like creation, is still going on, all around us.

The raccoons are another side of nature. And just now, they seem to illustrate the cruel side, the side that says, "Too many of one thing are not good for the world". The raccoons are plentiful, and many of them are suffering from some disease. A neighbor tells of shooting two, one of which was undoubtedly blind, the other seeing with difficulty through puffed-up eyes. This animal has never been very shy of humans but this year they are positively pushing in their attentions, such as climbing out of the lake, and snuggling down on a beach towel beside a swimmer. This may be over trustfulness, or it may be a manifestation of some disease, such as rabies. The council of Gore requested citizens to keep dogs on leash, with this very thing in mind, only to be ridiculed by the cottage-dwellers. The local authorities seem to be quite uninterested in seeing that dead raccoons are examined by competent medical authority, and so we go blithely on with the summer holiday. In the meantime, Margaret Cook does not propose to fondle any visiting raccoon. It is quite bad enough to have them fighting heartily and noisily, only a few feet from the porch bed. A final word: Keep your small domestic animals in at night.

Socially, everybody is visiting everybody else, and church affairs are the order of the day. Somebody at Lakefield has not only a green thumb, but also an artist's eye. We have seldom seen a finer display of flowers than that which graced Holy Trinity on its Harvest Home day. Beautiful flowers tastefully arranged, with the brave new red carpet to set them off. We suspect the hand of the People's Warden in this. But it must have been female hands that prepared the bountiful dinner that followed in the new hall. All we lack now is a new rector and a new house for him.

The head of the house has just made a snide remark. To me asking the why of some strange occurrence, he replied, "Probably a leprechaun; they are very plentiful in this district." Some one gave me a tiny china leprechaun not long ago, and he sits in his little green suit, cross-legged among the cosmetics in the bedroom. He seems quite at home, and I like to see him there. If the English can have their fairies, and the Scandinavians their trolls, why cannot I have my leprechaun? I find it restful to think of wee-folk, rather than beeping things in the sky. A fellow-guest at Amos' this week remarked that we in this century "know more about the unknown than ever before." True, but we feel that the moral thinking has not kept pace with the mental. If we do not use our new toys more carefully, we shall be like children playing with firecrackers, all unknowing and uncaring of the danger.

Final, and lighter note: Lad aged six sitting with us at table at Amos': "Mrs. Cook, do you eat only once a day?" This had been puzzling him for over a week. Of course, the male Cook could not resist saying, "Yes, we just have a little hay and oats other times." . . Just the same it is nice to meet a child who does not know everything!

Of Many Things

AMBROSE SAWYER AT WORK

When, after many long hours of figuring and bank-book studying, we decided to buy a small farm in B.C., we resolved that it would be isolated, away from the madding crowd. We thought we'd found it, too, because Greenhorn Farm is almost completely surrounded by tall cedars and hemlocks. In B.C.'s Fraser Valley, however, isolation isn't that simple.

We're on Rural Route 4, Cloverdale, which sounds remote enough, but we've actually got an address — 16893 - 80th Avenue. You'd be surprised how many relatives and friends can locate it easily, and what a fascination a farm has for them and for their children. And in weak moments, at Winnipeg, we gave our address to scores and scores of people, assuring them we'd be delighted to have them drop in if they ever visited British Columbia. Is there anyone from Winnipeg who doesn't visit B.C.? They've come in droves, finding us without difficulty, although I have a hard time getting into Cloverdale and back without getting lost. I love visitors and love talking with them — but that doesn't grow many parsnips. Finally I learned how to solve the problem.

Last night one of our relatives from Vancouver, a young doctor, came out for a visit, with his family. I took him strolling down by our garden site. When we reached the rototiller, I casually started it, and over the wonderfully powerful roar of the motor I lectured on the virtues of the machine. "Like to try it?" I asked, taking his hands and locking them to the handles.

"I don't know how," he said, but he was beginning to look as interested as a youngster on a fire engine.

"Just press that doodad forward," I told him.

He was off. I couldn't get him stopped. He rototilled until it was dark, and mastered the machine surprisingly well. I hope his muscles aren't as stiff and sore as mine were after my first adventure with the gadget. I don't know how it affected him. He hasn't been back.

Surprise! On Return

There's nothing more pleasant than getting back to your own home after a holiday. Unless, of course, you've been spending a month in a posh resort, and your own home is that unpainted two-room shack behind the town dump.

This week, we were looking forward to it more than ever. It had been hotter than Hades, and our house, surrounded by oaks and maples, is always cool. It had been a long drive, and we were tired. And while we were away, with the co-operation of our friendly banker we'd had the trim painted.

When we pulled off the highway and headed down our own street, we were practically purring with anticipation. A long, cold drink under the oaks. A leisurely inspection of the paint job. A quiet evening of idiot box or reading. Luverly.

As we drew up to the house, my wife squealed with delight. It looked splendid, with the shutters and trim whiter than white against the rosy brick and deep-green ivy. I agreed but couldn't help noticing that the grass was shin-high, and that an oak branch, thicker than a man's head and thirty feet long, had been blown down and straddled the fence, or what was left of it.

However, after three hours of dodging suicidal maniacs on the highway, all I wanted to do was fall into a chair and nuzzle a cold one.

As soon as I opened the door, my wife shrilled, "Bill, there's a terrible smell in here."

"Nonsense!" My standard reply. For one thing, my wife has a nose like a bloodhound. This faculty is allied with a vivid imagination. She frequently smells smells that I swear are non-existent. She has even said my column stinks, on occasion. Imagine.

But this time, "Dad she's right," Kim backed her up. "Yich. It's horrible. And look at the flies, everywhere, Yich!"

"All right, all right," I sighed, as only a father and husband can sigh. "Don't get excited. It's probably just dampness from the cellar, because the house has been closed."

The old lady was distracted for a moment by the pile of mail inside the front door. She pawed through it, looking for a letter from her first-born. She found it. As I staggered upstairs with the suit-cases, she shouted excerpts from the letter, interspersed wih comments on the horrible smell.

I came down and headed for the refrigerator. Wiped my forehead, licked my lips and opened the door. Even with my three per cent, I was knocked flat on my back on the floor. I hadn't smelled anything like it since the fields of Normandy, 1944. Pure putrefaction.

Two inches of blood on the bottom of the fridge. Streamers of what looked like coagulated intestines hanging from the shelves. I opened the freezing compartment.

Six steaks, bought when they were on special at 89 cent. A five-pound roast. A two-pound bag of chicken livers. Hamburg, pork chops, frozen vegetables and orange juice from burst cans. All clinging together in a soggy, stinking corpse.

I'd prefer to draw a veil over the next few hours of domestic discord. But I'll give just the skeleton. Half an hour of bawling and mutual recriminations disclosed that we were both to blame. She had decided to defrost the fridge the day we left, ten days before. I had insisted we didn't have time. Finally, she had agreed. But she turned off the freezing unit and forgot to turn it on again, in the confusion of getting ready to go.

A trip to the town dump with two garbage cans and 400 flies. Two hours of scrubbing the thing out with soda, vinegar and good salt tears. Net result, zero. All doors and windows open all night but it was still like sleeping in a slaughter-house.

Call next day to friendly insurance agent. No dice. We weren't covered for stupidity. Visit to friendly appliance dealer whose eyes lit up even as his head wagged dolefully. "You'll never get rid of the smell." Dealer related various horror stories from past experience.

Net loss: fridge, $300; food, $50. Plus our planned trip to the coast.

Oh, well. We couldn't afford that trip anyway. But we'd probably have gone. Now, we really can't afford it. So look at the money we've saved. Or something.

Morin Hts. native was a lifelong County resident

Late Mrs. George Scott

Mrs. George Scott, a resident of this community for 62 years, passed away at the Montreal General Hospital on August 23, after a long illness.

Born October 21, 1886, she was the former Mabel Margaret Doherty, daughter of the late Benjamin Doherty and Elizabeth McAllister of Morin Heights. She was married in 1904 to the late George Scott. She spent some 40 years on the farm at Hill Foot, then retired to Upper Lachute in 1944. Mrs. Scott was a member of the Lachute United Church, also a member of the Women's Institute.

Left to mourn are two daughters, (Lila) Mrs. Sharman Doig, and (Isabel) Mrs. Victor Thorburn, and a son, Leonard, all of Lachute; also nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren; and three brothers, William, Wesley and Norman Doherty, of Morin Heights.

The service, held on August 25 in the chapel at MacKimmie's Funeral Home, was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough. Interment was at the Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were Arnold Scott, Arnold Boyd, Kenneth Doherty, Donald Doherty, Keith Garayt and Keith Pollock.

IN MEMORIAM

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Roderick Campbell, who passed away Sept. 2, 1960. — Always remembered by Alvin, Maude and family.

MacLEAN — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who died Aug. 30, 1962. — Sadly missed by his daughter, Briza, son-in-law, John, grandsons, Garry and Billy.

"Thy willing hands will toil no more,
A loving father kind and true —
No one on earth we'll find like you".

MacLEAN — In loving memory of my dear husband, William MacLean, who passed away Aug. 30, 1962. — Inserted by his loving wife.

"A token of love and remembrance
Of one I shall never forget,
His memory to me is a treasure,
And his loss a lifetime regret.
Unseen, unheard, he is always near,
Still loved, still missed and forever dear".

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

SCOTT — The family of the late Mrs. George Scott wish to thank friends, relatives and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy in the loss of a dear mother and grandmother.

WHERE WOULD WE BE WITHOUT THEM?

That's for sure !

We're talking about the clerks who still manage a smile and a "Thank You" late Saturday afternoon after a busy week's work — and even on days they aren't feeling tip-top.

We're talking about our supervisors, store managers, department heads and their assistants who shape the backbone of A&P.

Those behind the scenes, too — literally hundreds of devoted employees in our offices, warehouses, and other facilities.

Without all these fine people, there wouldn't be an A&P — and we know it.

They work hard . . . we're proud of them. Like most of us, most of them will rest too . . . on Labour Day.

Miss Delcie Wood, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Wood, Morin Heights, and a student of Five Oaks Christian Workers Center of Paris (Ont.), has recently been awarded a bursary of $400 in Commercial Art at the Brantford (Ont.) Art School.

Miss Wood has received contracts for illustrating work, including that of the Year Book of the Toronto Board of Education. In addition to her art work she is continuing to devote time to her musical studies, and has already appeared as a soprano at several public functions. Her many friends in Morin wish her continued success.

Garden party at Carillon Museum, pleasurable event

The Historical Society's annual garden party, held at the Carillon Museum on Saturday last, was well attended. After the president, Gilbert Arnold Jr., had welcomed the guests, a novel program arranged by the conveners, Miss Mildred Douglas and Mrs. George McGibbon, was presented. . . .

Several members had been asked to bring an unusual antique and tell something of its history. The specimens included very early Canadian maps, pistols, samples of tools and oxen shoes dug up in this district, samples of early stoneware, candle holders, horn-shaped hearing aid, and a sander which, it was explained, is still used in several countries. Sand is commonly used as an ink absorbent, although blotting paper was invented as early as the 16th century.

Those contributing included Miss L. Wales, Dr. G. R. Rigby, Miss Lambart, Mr. N. Thorburn and Mrs. George McGibbon. Mrs. G. Cruise played several old-time favorites on the violin.

The much enjoyed tea was served by the Cushing ladies. The curator, Mr. A. Heatlie and his gracious wife made everyone feel so much at home that this event was like an enjoyable house party. . . Any who missed being there are urged to drop in at the Carillon Museum, a spot which this County may be justly proud of!

APPRECIATION

I wish to thank all kind friends for their good wishes expressed in beautiful cards, visits, telephone calls and flowers sent to me during my stay in hospital.

Caribbean cruise in word and picture enjoyed by Rotarians and guests

Oh for a Caribbean cruise — to go barefoot on beautiful beaches — with warm sand and sunshine — amid the color and cool breezes of a semi-tropical paradise. . . That was the vicarious experience of Rotarians at their weekly dinner meeting in La Lorraine Motel, on Thursday, August 25.

Mr. Owen Rowe, Commissioner for the Eastern Caribbean, showed many colorful slides with comments, about Guiana and the islands of the archipelago that seems to be blown in a concaved arc by the Trade Winds, toward the Caribbean.

With President René Dagenais in the chair, the speaker was appropriately introduced by Rotarian Berry Bourne, who was "born" on the island of Barbados, while his father served in the ministry there.

Mr. Rowe mentioned that he was pleased to speak to a Rotary service club, because the islands were grateful for the technical and economic assistance provided by Canada. He pointed out that there was a much greater need today as the islands gain their independence (Barbados on November 30) when Great Britain withdraws colonial control. The interchange of ideas, through universities, travel, such as had been his opportunity and that of island leaders, following the Ottawa, Commonwealth, and Caribbean Conference recently — as well as the exchange of cadets between Farnham, Quebec and Aldershot, Barbados — was a means of helping the islands help themselves, and to improve relations and understanding. On his Western Canada trip following Ottawa, the commissioner was rather amazed ot learn that Canada has one "park", even larger than all the Caribbean Islands.

He pointed out that there was a great need for industrial and general development of the people. Sugar, rum and fish products are not sufficient for a stable economy. While Guiana and Jamaica have bauxite (aluminum ore) and some other minerals, even these are missing on many of the islands. But there is plenty of sunshine, and beautiful flowers galore — the oleander, hibiscus, poinsettias, water lilies and the flamboyant tree, make for a fairyland of color. Beautiful hills and valleys, miles of sandy beaches and rolling ocean, bathed in glorious sunshine, make it an ideal vacationland.

But the pictures were not just a travel promotor's idea. Most of them had been taken by Mr. Owen, and he showed luxury hotels and motels, as well as seaside shacks, some of which have been, and others can be, purchased, with land for a summer cottage that really has a summer.

He showed bauxite in Jamaica and Guiana; landlocked harbour and marina in Grenada; volcanic-like mountains in Antigua; sunset and botanical gardens in St. Vincent; modern, 30-million-dollar harbour and docks in Barbados, as well as beach and hill scenery in all these and Montserrat, Honduras and Dominique.

Very small off-shore islands, as we get in the St. Lawrence near Kingston, present desirable spots for a dream-house.

As the pictures were shown, the efforts of the people to improve their conditions were apparent — through education and Codrington University and the newer University of West Indies in Jamaica; through travel among the islands, by plane and boat. Two boats have been donated by Canada to aid travel, and an inter-island West Indies air service has been set up. Canadian assistance has also helped to improve harbours.

The pictures were colorful, and with comments they helped to build understanding for an area that is becoming of more and more interest to Canada. The speaker felt that further efforts in the present direction would lead to greater co-operation between the islands, as well as with Canada. . . He was thanked by Vice-President John Leggitt.

Mrs. Rowe accompanied her husband at the head-table. She had been introduced along with a Rotarian visitor Jim Donnan, of the Anjou Club.

Drawing

These two visitors and John Hamilton made the three draws for the 400 Club — proceeds of which are devoted to Rotary Park and Youth Welfare work. Winners were:

1. Marion MacMillan, Lost River — No. 125.
2. Jude Paquin, Ste. Therese — No. 349.
3. Rodrigue Dicare, Brownsburg — No. 354.

DISTRICT NEWS

Morin Heights

Mrs. Knoll and son, Christopher, of Monrovia, Calif., are presently visiting her parents, Capt. and Mrs. M. E. McKeen.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reigert, of Montreal and Ottawa, spent a week-end recently visiting Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Allen.

Mrs. F. Carter, of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Patterson, of Detroit, were guests recently of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Kennedy.

Mrs. Allan Kirkpatrick entertained a group of friends at her home recently in honor of the approaching marriage of Mrs. Corrie Dobie to Mr. Paul Baumel.

Mrs. Roy Williams and the Rev. E. Bruce Copland attended the U.C.W. conference at Macdonald College recently.

A group of residents including Mr. and Mrs. Keith Seale, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Seale, Mrs. Albert Fraser and children, Mr. and Mrs. Huntley Seale and Mrs. George Gardner and daughter, Brenda, spent a pleasant few days recently at Ocean Park, Maine.

The death occurred recently in Lachute of Mrs. Robert Scott (the former Mabel Doherty) sister of William, Wesley and Norman Doherty, of Morin Heights. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved.

Old Resident Mourned

The funeral service for John Alexander McConnell, husband of the late Hattie McBride, whose death occurred August 17, was held in the United Church; the Rev. E. Bruce Copland conducted the service. Mr. McConnell was born in St. Henry, Montreal, where he was in the employ of the C.N. Railways. Coming to Morin Heights with his family in 1915, he was engaged in the work of plumbing, and occupied the same house up to the time of his death. Left to mourn his passing are his daughters, Margaret (Mrs. V. LeBlanc), Jean (Mrs. E. Tousignant), Mary (Mrs. G. Kennedy), and Miss Theresa McConnell.

Council Affairs

The Municipal Council has appointed Mr. Ernest Woods as a part-time constable, to assist Chief Morin in traffic and related duties. . . . Adjustments in pay for members of the Volunteer Fire Brigade have been set up as follows: For first hour on duty at a fire call, $3, each additional hour, $2 per hour. For attendance at the two monthly fire practices, $5.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Baumel, having returned from their honeymoon trip, have taken up residence in Morin.

Won Prize for Exhibit

Mrs. Lawson Kennedy has received the following letter from the Manager of the Women's Division of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto:

"Dear Mrs. Kennedy :—

It gives us great pleasure to inform you that you are among the Canadian National Exhibition winners. You have been awarded Class 63 Third Prize. Yours sincerely — (Mrs.) E. Jenkins."

Enclosed with the letter is the 3rd prize white ribbon. Mrs. Kennedy's exhibit, which competed with world-wide entries, consisted of a large hand-knitted wool afghan in a variegated blue, and is presently on display in the Queen Elizabeth Building, Toronto.

Royal Canadian Legion

Branch 171 of Morin Heights resumed their regular monthly general meetings on Friday evening and several items of a business nature were dealt with. Three new members were installed by the President Comrade Leclerc. Applications of three additional ordinary members and two club members were presented and approved. It was agreed to purchase a piece of land in the rear of the Legion Hall (approximately 260,000 sq. ft.) for the development of a sports centre and playground for the younger children of Morin. Tenders are being asked for the completion of the surroundings of the Cenotaph. The annual Field Day celebration will be held on Sunday, September 4, at the grounds in the rear of the Legion Hall, beginning at 1 p.m. In the event of rain, postponement will be made to the following Monday.

On Saturday evening, September 3, there will be a barbecue and corn roast at the Legion Hall, to which the public are cordially invited.

Entertained Prior to Marriage

Friends who have entertained recently for Miss Sherrill Kilpatrick, in honor of her forthcoming marriage, have been Miss Elaine Kennedy, of Ottawa, who gave a combined bridal shower for five girls in Form 3 of the second year course in Ottawa Teachers' College. Each girl was presented with a casserole dish and a recipe box filled with the girl's favorite recipes.

Mrs. Russell Woodland entertained at her home in Greenfield Park — a lovely bathroom shower.

A combined shower was given in the Morin Heights United Church hall for Miss Heather Campbell (Mrs. Lanfranconi) and Miss Sherrill Kilpatrick. Each girl was presented with a lovely electric coffee percolator and an electric frypan.

A kitchen and pantry shower was given in the Mille Isles Hall by Miss Fern Kilpatrick and Miss Heather Black. The bride received many kitchen items, a canister set, dishes and numerous pantry goods.

The same evening a "stag" was held in Mille Isles for Mr. Wayne Black and he was presented with a lovely wrist watch.

Afternoon tea on two consecutive Thursdays was held by Mrs. Kilpatrick, mother of Sherrill, when guests had an opportunity of viewing the beautiful presents received by her many well-wishers.
