DEATH.

DERBYSHIRE,—At Santa Paula, Calif., on Saturday, April 23rd, 1910, aged 61 years, 10 mos. and 23 days.

The editor sat in his hard-bottom chair trying to think of a thought, and he ploughed all his fingers about his hair, but not a new topic they brought. He'd written on temperance, tariff and trade, and the prospects of raising a crop, and joked about ice cream and weak lemonade, till his readers had warned him to stop. And, weary of thinking, sleep came to his eyes as he pillowed his head on his desk, when the thoughts while awake had refused to arise, came in drops that were strange and grotesque. And as the ideas airly float, he selects the bright one of the tribe, and this is the gem, while dreaming, he wrote: "Now is the time to subscribe."

The Beech Ridge and Geneva Telephone System is now completed and is giving general satisfaction judging from the extent to which it is being used. There are already ten subscribers connected to the line which is of the two wire metallic bredging system, but several more of the subscribers expect to have their phones connected shortly.

Mr. Jno. Clark, a former resident of this vicinity arrived in Montreal last week by the steamer Athenia, of the Donaldson line, on his way from Campbelton, Scotland, to his ranch in Alberta with 24 very fine Clydesdale horses. Messrs. Robt. Morin, E. R. Morin and J. B. Cooke were in Montreal last week to meet Mr. Clarke and purchased two of the fine Clydesdale fillies.

A Successful Concert

The Choral Society closed their third season's work by giving a most delightful concert in the Town Hall on Friday last, and those who had the pleasure of being present were much gratified at the musical progress evidenced in the choruses of both junior and senior classes which testified to the marked ability of Professor Howell, who for the past three years has been most painstaking in his efforts to bring the choir up to its present state of efficiency. The programme was all the more interesting because of the vocal selections so ably rendered by Miss C. Symonds of Montreal, who posesses a remarkably sweet voice and pleasing manner that at once captivated the audience and claimed her as a general favorite. The musical numbers of Miss McIldowie were greatly appreciated as was also the song "Bandolero" by Mr. Fred Walland. At the close Principal McBurney thanked the audience for their liberal assistance and attendance and Mr. Bampton, speaking on behalf of the audience expressed himself as delighted with the entertainment provided, the sweet strains he had listened to having carried him up into lofty heights that enabled him to even step over the tail of Haley's comet, and that was as good a testimonial for Professor Howell and his choir as could well be desired.

Town Council

The regular meeting of the above council was held on Wednesday last, at which were present Mayor J. E. Valois and Councillors Felix Paquette, C. Raymond, J. Lafleur, Wm. Miller, A. D. McGibbon.

A petition was received from Mr. Adelard Mallette asking permission of the Council to be allowed to ride his bicycle on the sidewalk as he is able to execute his work as lineman for Mr J. T. Ayers, more speedily in the public interests should anything go wrong with the electric light. The petition was rejected on motion of Councillor Lafleur, seconded by Councillor Miller.

The report of the citizens' waterworks committee was then read to the Council, and complying with the suggestions of the committee the services of Mr. Kennedy were ordered, to give the necessary information as to cost of tank location of same, etc., before appealing to the people for the purchase of the system if found expedient.

The question of sewerage system was also brought up again and Mr. Quimet submitted plans which were carefully looked into.

The Council then adjourned until the 18th inst.

The Brownsburg Philosopher says:—It is safe betting that his Satanic Majesty presents each of his subjects on arrival with a nickel plated alarm clock. Opportunity knocks once at everyone's door! Maybe so, but if she does she has a standing arrangement with neglect to chloroform the occupant of the premises at the time of her visit.

Mr. Thomson, Secretary L.O.V.F.B.I., I.G.U.U. B.B, etc, has handed us the following item for publication. "The Quarry Rangers are to play East Fife and Forfar (Scotland) on Scottish soil, on Sept 2nd. Far be it from us to doubt the veracity of the genial truth-loving Secretary, yet, we cannot help feeling unforseen circumstances will cause the trip to be indefinitely postponed.

Our Editor was certainly hard pressed for an excuse to account for the Lachute Rovers defeat by the Quarry Rangers when he had to insinuate that the latter team were "composed of professionals and others." No, Mr. Editor, the Rangers are all pure Amateurs, (Ma?Moteries brand) every man jack of them. Better commence thinking up some more impressing excuse to cover the Rovers' second white-washing by the Rangers next week.

In consideration of the fact that in your report of the 22nd, in which you stated that Mr. Ewen was a native of Aberdeen, and a former member of the Third Lanark Football Team, we still feel justified in our claim that the Rangers who are taught the game almost as soon as they learn to sup porridge, should by all means prove the more formidable, and there is no disgrace even at our being the last on the list.—Ed.

The second game in the L.O.V. Football League series was played here last Saturday afternoon on the splendid grounds set apart by the Dominion Cartridge Company for their employees' recreation. The contest was between the D.C. Co. Team and the Quarry Rangers, the latter winning out by the score of 2 goals to 0. The home team had the advantage of a strong wind which was blowing almost directly down the field towards their opponents' goal during the first half of the game, but despite their strenuous efforts to score, the Rangers repeatedly beat off their spirited attacks. The latter team on the other hand found it impossible to reach the D.C. Co goal against the wind. Thus at half time both sides had failed to score, but to those of the spectators who had sized up the strength of the opposing forces, the game was all over but the shouting, for it was apparent that with the change of goals, the Rangers having the wind at their backs would overwhelm the D.C. Co's, and it was only through the exceptionally fine goal-keeping of Mr. Reid that the score was held down to 2. Within the first few minutes the Quarry Boys got the ball between the D.C. Co's posts, A. Mitchell being responsible for the first blood. Several near goals followed, but Reid was always in the way, until W. Gallow at last succeeded in eluding him and brought up the score to 2 goals where it rested until time was called. The game was a keen one throughout, but combination play was made well nigh impossible by the wind which prevented any accurate passing on either side. The following was the line-up with Mr. S. Graham, of Lachute, as referee.

An Unexpected Confession;

A quiet, happy evening followed. The weather being a trifle chilly, a cheerful fire was lighted in the library, and the party sat around it, enjoying the cozy, homelike room and atmosphere, while they discussed the past, present and future in a friendly, confidential way; and Jennie and Elsie, who were doing up the work together and planning for the morrow's needs, also talked over the wonderful occurrence of the last few weeks.

Miss Percival was the least talkative of the company in the library. She sat most of the time, watching with sad, earnest eyes the happy lovers, both of whom had been so strangely associated with her past.

They separated for the night at an early hour; for all agreed that Esther needed to husband her strength, although her glowing face and gleaming eyes seemed to indicate that sleep and rest were the least of her requirements.

The next morning found her much stronger, and all the party in excellent spirits; unless we except Miss Percival, who still appeared rather preoccupied and taciturn.

After an early lunch, Mr. King's carriage and one of the manor equipages were brought to the door and our friends turned their faces once more toward London, taking Elsie with them, the girl having pleaded that she might be retained in Esther's service.

Everyone was convinced that she was entirely innocent regarding the plot against her mistress, and, as it was evident that the manar would soon be reopened again, her request was granted.

Shortly after their arrival in Upper Grosvenor Street, the detective presented himself and announced that Harold Irvington had been arrested the previous afternoon, and both he and his accomplice were in jail, awaiting whatever action might be taken against them.

The man had been found in his rooms, still nursing his injuries, although he was gradually convalescing.

A forced examination of his injured (?) foot and ankle had revealed the fact that he had met with no accident—that he had been shamming from the beginning.

This, of course, was a great point against him, and he was committed for trial.

When the case came before the court, however, nothing could be proven against him, for Mrs. Bellows or Sibyl Ladd, as she gave her name—confessed that she and she alone was guilty of the charge brought against him.

She stated that she had long been betrothed to Mr. Irvington—had once been upon the point of marrying him, when their plans had been overthrown by the loss of all his property.

She affirmed that she had planned and executed the plot against Esther, whom she called "a parvenue usurper," for the purpose of restoring his inheritance to her fiance, and with the hope that she would thus secure the position which she had so long coveted—that of mistress of Irvington Manor. She boldly swore that her lover knew nothing of her plans, therefore was responsible in no way for the consequences, and no amount of cross-questioning served to weaken her evidence at any point.

Of course no one believed her—every one instinctively felt that she was making a vicarious sacrifice of herself to save the man she loved.

But the law required that the verdict must be rendered according to the evidence, and she was pronounced guilty; although the comparatively light penalty — five years' penal servitude—which was imposed, plainly testified to the sympathy of the judge and jury in view of the woman's act of self-abnegation.

But the man, for whom, in her unexampled fidelity, she had sworn so much, heartlessly left her to her fate, making no effort to have her sentence commuted, never once seeking to see her after her trial.

Immediately upon being released for lack of evidence to prove his guilt—although almost every one believed him to have been the instigator of the plot—he left the country But justice swiftly overtook him, for he perished miserably, being scalded to death by the bursting of a boiler upon the steamer, while crossing the English Channel.

Later, Esther, whose sympathies had been strongly enlisted for her treacherous housekeeper, managed to do many little things for the woman's comfort during her imprisonment, and, when it was ended, secured her admission into a house for the aged and infirm, where she fared comfortably during the remainder of her life.

CHAPTER XLVI.

One day, less than a week after Esther's return to the home of the King's, Miss Percival again called to see her, and requested "a private interview."

Esther at once sent Jennie down to ask her to come directly up to her private sitting room, and, as she entered her presence, she was pained to see how greatly she had aged during the few days that had elapsed since they parted.

"My girl," said the woman, with deep emotion, as she grasped both hands of her fair young friend, "do you remember what I once said to you about trying to right a wrong that I had committed in my youth?"

"Yes," said Esther, regarding her pityingly, for her lips were quivering and she was trembling nervously. "But sit down, dear Miss Percival, your walk has tired you," she added, as she gently forced her into a great Turkish rocker and pulled a hassock to her feet.

"Now I am sure you must be thirsty," she continued, cheerily. "Jennie has just made some delicious lemonade, and after you have had a glass you shall go on with your story."

She went to the table, poured out a glassful of the fragrant beverage, and brought it to the woman, who quaffed it gratefully and felt greatly refreshed afterward.

Then Esther made her take off her bonnet, after which she drew up her own chair and sat down beside her.

"Well," began Miss Percival, abruptly, "I've made up my mind at last to free my conscience, as you advised me to."

"But I thought the man, whom you said you had wronged, was dead?" said her companion, in surprise.

"So he is; but—but—well, look at this, and then, perhaps, you'll understand," faltered Miss Percival as she nervously produced a small box from her pocket and passed it to Esther.

She took it—a small pasteboard box, about three inches square, and lifted the cover.

"Why!" she exclaimed, starting to her feet, a look of mingled incredulity and amazement overspreading her face, for upon a bed of snow-white cotton there lay a triplicate of the Irvington ruby, or, at least, what appeared to be such. "Where did you get it?—what does this mean?" she questioned, breathlessly.

"I stole it!" said the woman stolidly.

"Oh, I cannot believe that!" said Esther, looking deeply troubled and perplexed.

"It is true, nevertheless. Sit down and I will tell you about it."

"I—I think I prefer you would not," faltered the kindhearted girl, in a tone of distress, while she covered the glittering jewels and passed the box back to her companion.

"No—keep it—it is yours," she said, waving it impatiently away with her bony hand. "And of course I must tell you how I came to have it. I have carried a guilty conscience for more than forty years, and I'm bound to free it at last. You know, I suppose, that I was once the betrothed wife of your husband's uncle?"

"Yes, Mrs. King told me that," said Esther, with averted eyes.

She was deeply pained to be obliged to listen to the confession which Miss Percival was about to make.

"Well, then, I shall not be obliged to go over that story again," the woman observed, with a sigh of relief. "At the time of my betrothal to Lord Irvington, he showed me all of the family jewels, and told me that I might choose something from the collection as a seal to our engagement, or he would purchase something new for me. Instantly I espied that magnificent ruby, and I said I would rather have it than anything else. He seemed pleased to have me choose it, and told me the story of it. Have you ever heard about the twin rubies, Esther?" she questioned, abruptly.

"Yes; young Lord Irvington related the story to me."

"Then, of course, you know that they were regarded as very precious heirlooms," Miss Percival resumed. "My lover said that it would some day be mine, and, as our marriage was so near, I might as well have it then, and enjoy it, and told me to wear it whenever I liked. I was passionately fond of

IN PAIN FOR YEARS

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" BRINGS RELIEF

MRS. FRANK EATON

Frankville, Ont., Sept. 27, 1909.

"I suffered for years from headaches and pain in the back, and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives", the famous fruit juice tablets, and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches".

gems when I was young, I was delighted to have that almost priceless stone in its costly setting. Accordingly, I wore it a great deal, and it was the envy of all my friends. When I broke my engagement with Lord Irvington, I really felt worse about giving back the ruby than I did about breaking my troth—that shows you something of what a selfish girl I was—how lacking in principle. But wait — there is worse to come. I felt as if I could not part with the beautiful jewel; I sat with it in my hands, looking at it covetously for hours, and then all at once I conceived a brilliant idea—at least, so it seemed to me. I was in Paris at the time, and I knew a man who was very skillful in imitating stones. I took the ruby to him, telling him that I had lost its mate, but dare not confess the fact to my parents, who had paid a great sum for it, and asked him if he could duplicate it for me so that the fraud would not be detected. He said that he could; at least, so that none but an expert would ever know the difference. When his work was done, the imitation was so clever that I could not tell the real from the paste. At first I did not intend to keep the real stones; those I felt must be restored to Lord Irvington I simply could not endure being questioned by my young friends as to what had become of my jewels, and so had intended the duplicate for my own use after resigning the other. But when I saw how perfect it was, cupidity suggested to me to send it to Lord Irvington, and keep the genuine stones. I was frightened at first at the thought; but it grew upon me, and I finally told myself that, in his grief and disappointment, he would never suspect the fraud; and so I yielded to the temptation, and burdened my conscience for all time. For more than forty years I have carried the Irvington ruby from place to place, wherever I have been, but it has been like a millstone around my neck, and I have never known a moment's comfort with it. I have never worn it even once since, for it would have seemed like a brand upon me, emblazoning my guilt to the world, and I would have given untold wealth if I could have undone the wrong—without confessing the truth; that, my pride utterly refused to do. Upon one or two occasions I have loaned it to a niece——"

"Ah!" said Esther, looking up suddenly. "Did she wear it several years ago, at a theatre in New York, and has she recently worn it here in London?"

"Yes, she has worn it both here and in New York," Miss Percival replied; "but why do you ask that? Have you ever seen it before?"

Esther then told her the story regarding the mate which had been so long in her own possession, and the recent discovery of the paste gems that had been found among the Irvington jewels.

"WHY BE SO THIN?"

Thinness is Embarrassing, Unhealthy and Not Natural—Formula Now Used Which Adds From One to Three Pounds a Week.

Every one ought to have some extra flesh on the bony structure of the body, both for the sake of health and self-esteem.

Most thin people are sensitive to the harsh, unfeeling criticisms which are constantly being hurled at them by the more fortunate well-figured persons.

Every one pities a thin, bony horse, but horses don't know it—while thin people are both pitied and ridiculed. It ought not to be, but it is.

A well rounded figure, be it man or woman, excites admiration; not only for the figure but for the bright eyes, pink cheeks, red lips, and vigorous carriage which accompany a well-nourished body.

Strength, health, beauty and sound flesh abound, if the blood and nerves get enough nourishment out of the food eaten.

This prescription aids nature; helps absorption, digestion and assimilation; helps distribute the blood and nerve elements which make sound flesh. Get the ingredients and make it at home, and see how very fast you gain in weight.

In a half pint bottle, obtain three ounces of essence of pepsin, three ounces syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol, shake and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before meals and one after meals. Also drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Weigh yourself before beginning.

The Foolishness of it

Spending hundreds of dollars in building a splendid home or barn and then deliberately allow it to suffer for paint.

Martin-Senour Paint
100% Pure, Preserves

It feeds the hungry open pores of the wood with pure linseed oil, lead and zinc—making the surface absolutely impervious to climatic changes.

It seals wood from dampness—prevents it from splitting, cracking, from sun and frost, blistering heat and blowing dust, which help the processes of decay and ruin. Good pure paint buys more than 100 cents worth of insurance against the ravages of time.

The ingredients of a pure paint are well known. In the main they are Carbonate of Lead, Oxide of Zinc pure Colors, well ground by specially adapted machinery, and thinned with pure linseed oil and pure turpentine dryer.

A building owner who fails to recognize the great importance of selecting the right paint, will see his property value decrease while he grows aged and peevish wondering why.

Canadian Appreciation

Langham Hotel, London.

Gentlemen,—I wish to express my appreciation of the 38 h.p. Daimler which you have delivered to me. Before shipping the car to Canada I made a three weeks' trial of it, covering some 1,200 miles. The car ran perfectly, and I never had the slightest trouble of any kind, and I think it quite lives up to the many claims you make for it. The silence, smoothness of running, and power of acceleration on hills is really remarkable.

My petrol consumption was 16 miles to the gallon, including a great deal of driving in traffic. The tyres show no appreciable signs of wear, and I think it will prove light on tyres.

I am really delighted with the car.—Yours sincerely,

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

"So you won't have me!"

The laughing-eyed girl looked up into the man's inflamed face and snapped her fingers.

"Where I wed I must love!" she declared. "Just at present I'm not marrying, anyway. Thanks to the shop, I can rub along very well. I don't like you, Samuel Garrott, Esq., and never should. Apart from a bit in the bank, you have little else to your credit; and that's straight talk. Even now you smell of liquor. Good-day! I'm busy."

She took a file of bills from the wall as she ended, and calmly proceeded to enter them in the open book before her. The big, coarse-featured man stood in the doorway of the little glass-partitioned office, glaring at her as if stunned.

For some months this good-looking girl had appealed to him as eminently desirable for a wife. In looks and figure she was "just his mark," as he phrased it. Business association had convinced him that she was very wide awake. He had known her father, and when, at the old man's death, he learned that she had determined to keep the old sign up over the shop he had confidently declared that she would make good, and, in his capacity as wholesaler, had not hesitated to trust her.

He had met her often, and with each meeting his resolve to make her his wife had strengthened. So far in his experience, what he had wanted he had generally got. He was that kind of man. No suspicion that she would refuse him had for a moment entered his mind. Prosperous, able to place her in an enviable position, he had imagined that he had but to ask to be accepted. Her scornful rejection bit into his consciousness, and filled him with insensate fury.

"You hussy!" he rapped out coarsely. "I'll have you, for all your airs!"

She turned and looked him up and down complacently.

"I'll settle up with you," she said. "We'll try and do without you."

He struck the desk with his clenched hand, upsetting the counted piles of silver.

"Great Scott! I'll make you glad to crawl to me!" he cried, purple-faced.

"Forty-one pounds ten," she remarked, as she found her cheque-book. "Kindly receipt the statement."

Provoked to blind rage by her indifference, he leered in her face.

"You hear!" he raved. "I'll make you glad to crawl to me!"

She proceeded calmly to fill in the cheque. When she looked up he had gone.

"What a brute!" she said, smiling. "Fancy being tied for life to that!"

She placed the cheque with the statement in an envelope, and addressed it.

"John!" she called through the trap to one of her shopmen. "Just go and post this letter."

* * * * *

Along the whole length of the busy, brilliantly lighted High Street no patch showed brighter than that where for forty years the sign, "John Short, Fruiterer, Poulterer and Fishmonger" had been displayed on the fascia above the well-stocked shop.

When Samuel Garrott, in his black rage, threw out his threat to the good-looking and business-like little woman who owned the shop the High Street was a very prosperous quarter.

At twenty-seven, Mary Short was still waiting the word of the man who had long since won her love, and who, for reasons which seemed good to him, although foolish to her, remained a backward swain. Tom Long had been her father's right hand, valued for his qualities as a salesman, esteemed for his integrity and high principles. In the days of budding womanhood, Mary had learned to like Tom for his worth, and for him there had never been any other girl. No other could compare with Mary. Because he regarded her as above him, however, he had not dared to tell her of his love. Ambitious, and of a praiseworthy independence, he had determined that first he would make success. One day he quite intended, if she would take him, to marry her; but before that day he meant to reach her level in position and prosperity.

Fired with this purpose, he had left the old man's service, and had opened a shop for himself in another quarter. The fight had been uphill, but he was winning through. The hope of years was coming closer to realization with every week of strenuous endeavor.

Assured of Tom's love, owing a flourishing business, she could afford to laugh at the threat of Garrott. So, at least, she thought. Some few days after his visit, however, she was sitting in the little office when she observed that workmen were busy in a shop immediately facing her on the other side of the street. This shop had been vacant for some months, and natural curiosity urged her to make inquiries as to the incoming tenant, and the nature of the proposed business. Nobody appeared to know.

Behind the whitened windows a little army of fitters labored, at pressure, all that and the succeeding two days, to convert the interior to suit its new purpose. Rows of gas-jets were fixed along the frontage. A giant framework, dotted with hooks, was run up to the side wall, and with its rising the secret was out. Mary knew that the opening of the shop meant competition. Somebody intended to share the trade.

She was not unduly perturbed at the knowledge. Where others in the immediate neighborhood at times had tried and failed this man was hardly likely to succeed. She flattered herself that it would not be long before the shop was again to let. That night she slept none the worse, and, with the morning, rose smiling and bright as usual. When she drew up the blind, however, the smile died out of her face, and for some minutes she stood staring. On the windows of the opposite shop a startling announcement appeared:

"SAM GARROTT,

The Big Profit Smasher,

Opens here next Saturday, ready to supply Fruit, Vegetables, Fish, Poultry, and Rabbits of the best. Everybody who spends a bob gets a rabbit free! Come in your thousands!"

* * * * *

Tom Long walked from the bay-window of the sitting-room above the shop to the side of the little woman who was bending forward in a low chair and gazing fixedly at the fire.

"It's a crying shame, Mary!" he declared. "The fellow ought to be hanged! And I'd like to do it!"

"Oh, he has me right enough!" she said bitterly. "There's no fighting that sort of thing. When he started that first Saturday I never thought he would keep it up. Everything he sold was under cost, and rabbits showered out to the crowd in hundreds. They simply swarmed about the shop like flies, fighting to get served. My takings dropped to next to nothing. I wouldn't meet it. I had sense enough to see that fighting on his lines meant rushing wilfully into bankruptcy; and he's kept it up, with underselling, and some new dodge, ever since. It certainly means shutting up the shop for me, anyway."

"What's his object?" cried Tom. "The man's throwing his money away recklessly. He knows how you're placed. He knows you're a woman. Why should he want to bring ruin to you?"

"He wished to marry me, and I sent him packing," she confessed. "He threatned to make me glad to crawl to him. Now you know."

Tom stared at her for some seconds as if dazed; then he slowly advanced, and put his hand gently on her shoulder. When she looked up at him he saw that her eyes were glistening.

"That's all right, Mary!" he whispered huskily. "It's all right, anyhow. But we've go to try and get level with Garrott. He mustn't shut you up. I don't quite see how it's to be done; the beggar's got so much, he can afford to chuck away. The thing wants quietly thinking about. Just go on, and keep a brave face. If there's a way to stop it, we'll find it."

That night Tom did quite a lot of thinking. For hours he puzzled in vain; but, unexpectedly, an idea, which suggested a possible chance of averting the calamity, shot into his brain. The hope it promised was faint enough, in all truth, but before he slept he had resolved to put it to the test.

Next morning he was out betimes, eager, if not very sanguine.

The maid who took his name at the great house in the aristocratic district of the town doubted as to whether her master would see him. Tom pleaded very urgent business, and the worthy gentleman, who was engaged at breakfast, condescended to receive him.

"I understand that you are the owner of a certain shop in High Street, now in the possession of S. Garrott?" said Tom, getting to business without delay. The gentleman admitted the fact. "Would you mind telling me whether he holds it on the usual tenancy?" asked Tom.

"He does not," returned the gentleman. "He insisted, for some reason best known to himself, on a monthly tenancy. As the place had been vacant for some time, I let him have it."

"Thank you!" said Tom. "I can tell you the reason."

And, briefly, though forcibly, he explained the doings of Mr. Garrott, and his avowed object. The old gentleman was sensibly moved by the recital.

"I have a proposal to make," continued Tom. "Will you grant me a lease of the premises for the remainder of the year? I will not quibble about the price."

The subsequent conversation was strictly business, but it was noticeable that when Tom left the house he was laughing.

Two days later the Profit Smasher was thrown into a frenzy of passion by the receipt of a month's notice to quit. When he called on the old gentleman he was curtly referred to the new tenant. Tom received him with a smile, and, at his abuse, told him quietly that he was not on this occasion dealing with a woman. Mr. Garrott departed, at the stern request of a policeman, vowing dire vengeance.

The rest of the story is soon told.

Some trouble was experienced in the ejectment, and no little excitement. At the sale Tom acquired the fittings and fixtures very reasonably. The following day the shop was again open, "under new management."

Between Short's and Long's has existed for some months a healthy rivalry. The notoriety given to the shop by the big Profit Smasher still clings to it, and people still swarm to the district to do their marketing. Although the crowds do not now get something for nothing, they are attracted by the certainty that competition means cheapness.

Every Saturday night you will see Short and Long selling against each other in hammer-and-tongs style, and both do a roaring trade. The two proprietors are apparently the keenest of rivals.

But comparatively few are aware that Short is Long.—London Answers.

A SURPLUS OF PRINCES.

Royal Scions are Thicker Than Princesses.

Some interesting vital statistics concerning European rulers and their descendants have been compiled and published by a Swedish savant named Sundboerg.

His figures show that the number of imperial and royal personages has more than doubled in fifty years, increasing from 727 to 1,595.

Princes as a class have more sons than daughters, the proportion being 119 to 100; while in the ordinary ranks of life 106 boys are born to every 100 girls. This may account for some of the morganatic marriage, though Sundboerg does not venture to suggest it.

King Edward has three daughters and one son. The Czar, too, has three daughters and one son. But there are six imperial German princes and only one princess; and King George of Greece has five sons and one daughter.

A remarkable fact is that the progeny of the House of Hohenzollern is persistently male; that of the Romanoffs as persistently female.

The heads of European states marry young. When Emperor-King Francis Joseph was twenty-four he espoused Duchess Elizabeth of Bavaria, who was seventeen. King Edward, King George and Emperor William all took wives when they were twenty-two, their brides being nineteen, sixteen and twenty-three respectively.

Three of Emperor William's sons, the Crown Prince, Prince Eitel and Prince Augustus William, had scarcely come of age when married.

European rulers do not reach a ripe old age; their average term of life is sixty-three years. There has never been a centenarian monarch or even prince.

BARBERISM IN CHINA.

Lack of Antiseptic Measures Often Result in Blindness.

It is the custom for a Chinaman to visit the barber every week to have a general overhauling, says the Medical Record. First, the head and face are shaved; second, the ears are scraped and cleansed with a small brush made of duck's hair; third, the upper and lower eyelids are scraped with a dull-edged knife, all granulations being smoothed away, and then an application is made with a duck's hair brush of salt solution.

This is the reason why you will find so much blindness in China. They take no antiseptic measures whatever.

Finally the patient's back is massaged, and after paying a fee of three cents and no tips, he leaves the shop, feeling clean outside, but now must consult his regular physician.

After going through the usual examination, which is a form of military inspection, the doctor diagnoses the case and treats it, unless a devil happens to jump down the patient's throat. If this has happened the doctor can do the patient no good until he promises to set off 100 firecrackers, and to make a daily visit to joss house. This done, he receives the usual pills for those vacated by the devil.

These pills may consist of spotted rhinoceros horns, said to be a wonderful cure for intestinal troubles. The spotted rhinoceros horns come from southern China, and in the market at Singapore a single specimen will bring $25.

Tiger bones, when ground to a powder and mixed with Chinese wine make a great blood tonic, which is used by all classes of Chinese in northern China. The recipe is held by a firm in Shanghai that has become very wealthy by the sale of this tonic.

HOME.

SOME DAINTY DISHES.

Bird's Nest.—Make a dough for baking powder biscuit, roll half of it thin, spread with melted butter, sugar, and cinnamon, then cover with the other half. They open easily and are nice for a change.

Browned Potatoes.—When the meat is roasting, and an hour before it is to be served, boil the potatoes in their "jackets." Take off the skins, roll in flour, and place under the meat, taking care to make them brown nicely. Serve after drying a few moments in front of the fire.

Appeline.—Is a very delicious preserve for serving with a rice mould. Peel three or four apples, mix them with sufficient sugar to taste, add a little water and the grated rind of a lemon. Stew in a china-lined pan till soft, then allow to grow cold before serving.

Curried eggs prepared as follows make a delicious dish: Bring one pint of milk to the boil and thicken it with a dessertspoonful of curry powder and the same quantity of flour, worked to a smooth paste in a little milk. When the mixture is of the consistency of cream, poach in it, one at a time, a sufficient number of eggs. As cooked, transfer carefully to squares of buttered toast arranged on a hot plate. Pour the sauce round the toast and serve.

Tasty fried bacon and cabbage makes a good supper or dinner dish. First boil some nice cabbage, drain very dry, and chop. Fry some rashers of bacon and put on a hot dish. Place the chopped cabbage in the frying-pan, fry it in the bacon fat, and place round the rashers. Pour about a tablespoonful of vinegar into the pan, give it a good boil up, then pour over the bacon.

Vegetarian Roast Goose. — Pare and cut in two lengthwise a good sized vegetable marrow and remove the seeds. Rub this over inside and out with salt and leave for an hour to drain. Have ready some onions boiled and chopped with a little sage, add to them pepper, salt, and a little butter, and fill up the halves of the marrow with the mixture. Close up and tie over with tape. Butter a pie-dish, place the goose upon it, and bake in a moderate oven till it is browned and tender. Serve with a little white sauce.

Dripping cakes are very nice for tea, especially when there is a need of saving cooking butter. Put the dripping into a large basin and cover it with boiling water the day before you wish to make your cakes. Take the clarified dripping and scrape off any sediment. Place half a pound of flour in a basin, work into it three ounces of dripping, half a pound of mashed potatoes, two ounces of sugar, and two ounces of currants. Add a teaspoonful of baking-powder and a pinch of salt. Moisten with milk to make a stiff dough and bake in a moderate oven.

Cottage Cheese.—In the winter sour milk is not always to be had, as milk will not thicken as quickly as in summer. Buttermilk will make just as nice cheese. Put in a jar set on back of stove to heat slowly. When entirely separated pour off whey, tie in thin cloth to drain for four or five hours, then salt and mix with sweet cream or rich milk. Made into small, round patties, a bit of whipped cream on top of each patty and garnished with parsley makes a delicious dish for a "luncheon."

Oysters and Mushrooms—A quart of best oysters, half a can of mushrooms, a heaping tablespoonful of butter, pepper, salt, and cracker crumbs, a cupful of milk, one beaten egg. Lay a startum of oysters in a buttered bake dish, season with pepper and salt, sprinkle with chopped mushrooms, cover with milk, dotted with butter. The top layer should be moist with milk in which an egg has been beaten. Season with pepper, salt, and butter. Bake, covered, thirty minutes, then brown. Pass crackers and lemon with it in serving.

APPLE DISHES.

Apple Chutney.—Twelve sour apples, one mild onion, three peppers (one red), one cup of chopped raisins, one pint of cider vinegar, one-half cup of currant jelly, two cups of sugar, the juice of four lemons, one tablespoonful each of ground ginger and salt (level), one-fourth teaspoonful cayenne. Chop apples, onion, and peppers very fine; add vinegar and jelly and let simmer one hour; add other ingredients and cook another hour. Store as canned fruit. Delicious.

Creamed Apples.—Pare the apples in halves, taking off peelings, core, fill the apple with sugar, bake slowly in oven until soft without falling apart. Test with toothpick. Allow to cool. Place on individual plates, cover with whipped cream, then sift over all chopped nuts. This makes a very delicious dessert and is inexpensive.

Apple Pudding.—Pare and quarter enough apples to cover your granite pudding pan (grease it with butter first) or any kind of fruit, but try the apples first. Then take one tablespoonful of butter, one-half cupful of white sugar or brown, one-half cupful of water, one cupful of flour, one egg (or two is better if cheaper), one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix all and pour over the apples and bake. Use milk, cream or whipped cream.

Farmhouse Apples.—Peel and core tart apples, fill the centers with seeded raisins, chopped citron, a little lemon peel, and sugar. Place them in a baking pan and pour over them one-half cupful of water. Dust the apples with sugar and bake them in a slow oven until they are tender. Sprinkle with bread crumbs on top, dust again with sugar, and allow them to remain in the oven ten minutes. Mix one tablespoonful of flour with one-half cupful of sugar and add gradually two cupfuls of boiling water and boil one minute. Take from the fire and pour slowly over them one well beaten egg; add the juice of one-half lemon and pour over the apples. Serve hot.

CAKES.

Prince of Wales Cake. — White part: Cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, creamed; two cupfuls of flour, one-half cupful of sweet milk, one large teaspoonful of baking powder; lastly the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Dark part: One cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of butter, one-half cupful of cooking molasses, one-half cupful of buttermilk or sour milk, two cupfuls of flour, cinnamon, allspice, and cloves to taste, beaten yolks of three eggs, one cupful of nut meats chopped, one cupful of raisins chopped, heaping tablespoonful of chocolate, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water. Makes two layers each of white and dark parts. Put together with nut filling.

Cake Making.—The secret of successful cakes is in the beating. Cake should not be stirred round and round in the bowl, but lifted up so that the air can get into it. A wooden fork or strong wire beater is better to use for this purpose than a paddle or spoon of any kind. First beat the butter to a cream, then add the sugar, a little at a time, beat until smooth, then the milk, a little at a time, beating all the while; next the flour and beaten eggs, a small quantity of each at a time, reserving a small quantity of flour to mix with the baking powder, or cream tartar, to be added the last thing. Bake in an oven that is not too hot at first. Cake rises better in a cool oven and is not so likely to fall.

Small Cakes.—One-half cupful of butter, one and a half cupfuls of granulated sugar, four eggs, one-half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour, one cupful of citron, cut in fine pieces, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Cream the butter and add the sugar gradually, then the eggs, well beaten, reserving the whites of two for the icing. Add the milk, one-half at a time, then the flour, sifted with the baking powder. Stir in the citron well floured. Bake in layers in a moderate oven about one-half hour. Cut in square pieces and cover with white icing, placing English walnut halves in rows on the icing while soft

USEFUL HINTS.

To cool a hot dish in a hurry, place it in a vessel of cold salt-water.

The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub your eyes that moment stop using them.

A good way to tell when ham is fried enough is by the fat. When the fat is brown (not burnt) the ham is done.

If mixed with milk instead of water mustard will not get dry, but will keep nice and fresh until it is all used up.

A little vinegar put in the water in which eggs are poached will keep them white and prevent them from spreading.

If you want to keep lemons, string them with a packing-needle and hang them in a dry place, but do not let them touch each other.

To restore the fragrance of baskets made from sweet-scented grass, after they have apparently lost it, plunge them into boiling water, removing them almost instantly.

When using valuable vases for table decorations fill them with sand, for this makes them stand firmly, and renders them far less liable to be knocked over and broken

When running brass rods through window curtains put an old glove finger over the end that is being pushed through the hem. Unless this is done the material is apt to tear.

If new enamel saucepans are placed in a pan of warm water, allowed to come to the boil, and then cool, they will be found to last much longer before either cracking or burning.

If night lights are burned in the nursery and you run short of them, try this alternative: Take a wax candle, cover the top, which has been burned level, with a thin layer of salt, and leave only the blackened end of the wick exposed. Light the candle, and it will give a faint but steady light all night.

If furniture looks smeary after polishing you may be pretty certain that too much polish was used. Very little, indeed, is really needed; only just enough to brush quite thinly over the surface.

When lace curtains are to be washed baste a narrow strip of muslin along each outer edge, and let it remain until the washing and drying process is completed, and you will find your curtains straight and they will not sag.

DID METHUSELAH DIE YOUNG?

Some Curiosities of the Jewish Character.

There has always existed a certain amount of doubt, even among the believers in the literal truth of the Bible, concerning the great age to which the Jewish patriarchs are recorded as having lived. The problem of reducing these long periods to something near the allotted span has often occupied the attention of students, and some of the theories which have been evolved are dealt with in the "Jewish World."

It is surmised that in the earliest times the moon was used for reckoning time. Counting by months, however, must have grown cumbersome, and a longer division became absolutely necessary. There is a theory that the first years were composed of five months of thirty days each, the limit of five being derived from the fingers of one hand. It is also contended that before the five-months' year there was a one-month year; in other words, that a month, the period of a moon cycle, was termed a year. An endeavor has been made to prove this by working out the great ages of the first men in the Bible.

Thus Adam's 930 years of life, calculated at 29½ days, the period of a "lunation," a year, works out at 75¼ years, which must strike many people as a reasonable period of existence.

By this reckoning, be it noted, Methuselah loses his famous record, for his 969 reputed years are whittled down to 78¾. Poor Methuselah thus became quite rejuvenated, a veritable Faust.

Excuse for this rearrangement is found in the Psalmist's limit of life to three score and ten years, and it is maintained that betwen the times of Noah and David no such extraordinary change could have taken place as to reduce the life of man by eleven-twelfths.

The next stage in the marking of time is supposed to have been the discovery of the equinoxes in spring and autumn, when day and night were exactly of the same length. This would give five months of thirty days each. On this basis of a year of 150 days, Abraham's 175 years work out at seventy-two and Isaac's 180 at seventy-four.

The twelve months' year began with the Egyptians, who saw that a complete period was made up of two "years," in one of which the days were longer than the nights, and in the other the nights longer than the days.

A DARING RESCUE.

Two Heroes Went to Aid of Unconscious Steeplejack.

An extraordinary feat performed by two workmen, David McWhirter and William McLelland, to whom the King has awarded the Edward medal of the First Class, is recorded.

Two steeplejacks were engaged in fixing new lightning conductors to a chimney, about 150 feet high, at the Coltness Iron Works, Newmains, Lanarkshire, Scotland. The two steeplejacks, who were at the top of the chimney on a scaffold, consisting of two planks, about nine inches broad, were affected by gas fumes from the chimney and one of them became unconscious and fell on the scaffold. The other, after tying his mate to the scaffold by a rope, was able to descend by a ladder to the ground, and received medical attention.

There was not time to obtain the assistance of regular steeplejacks to go to the aid of the man on the scaffold, and McWhirter and McLelland, who were employed at the ironworks, volunteered.

They both ascended the ladder, got on to the narrow scaffold, and succeeded in placing the unconscious man in the "boatswain's chair" used by the steeplejacks, and in lowering him safely to the ground. Neither of them had previously had experience of climbing chimneys.

WELL THOUGHT OF!

The member for Argenteuil by diligence in the discharge of his parliamentary duties during the past session, has commanded the respect of the Government, scarcely less than of the Opposition. Naturally the latter would not be slow to recognize the value of his services from a party standpoint, but his course in the House has been so eminently fair that on more than one occasion the Government has lent, not only the listening ear, but the helping hand, accepted his criticisms and adopted his proposals. His standing in the Conservative party today is assured and this county has reason to congratulate itself upon being so ably respresented in the National Council.

DRINK'S DOINGS.

A brutal murder at Smith's Falls, Ont., was committed on Saturday last by Rufus Wedmark choking his wife to death in the presence of his children. The husband was a victim of drink. The wife was the bread-winner of the family. He had often made threats against her life to which he finally gave effect, the children the while standing round and trying to prevent the father's crime. Neighbors were summoned but it was too late, death had released the woman and the drunken murderer made no attempt to escape, but boasted that he had done a good job this time. What think you of a traffic that yields such fruit?

By the coming into force of Local Option on Monday last in districts of Ontario, upwards of 200 liquor licenses were cut off, bringing the number of licenses issued in that Province down to about 2,000 as against a total of 6,185 licenses granted in that province in 1875. This, notwithstanding the increase of population. These facts surely register a growth in the temperance work.

AN EARLY ELECTION?

The report from Ottawa that Sir Wilfrid Laurier contemplates a general election this year with a view to securing an endorsement of his naval project and also a vote of confidence in his Grand Trunk Pacific scheme, though appearing in so respectable an organ as the Montreal Gazette, is not generally credited by the press of Canada. While there is such to lend color to the rumor of an early election, there are other important considerations that indicate delay. "No doubt" says the Toronto News, "the Ministry would like to secure a fresh lease of power before the electors become fully apprized of the extent to which their money has been wasted in the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. The true situation in that connection will not be disclosed until the time comes for a final settlement with the Grand Trunk Pacific.

From a party standpoint the difficulty is that the country might not approve a general election within two years of the contest of October, 1908. A dissolution of Parliament after only two sessions would be without precedent and scarcely justifiable under the circumstances.

The Laurier Government likes to have some great new constructive and money-spending project upon which to appeal to the country. The Georgian Bay Canal scheme may afford a pretext for the next appeal. The fact that this undertaking has been postponed furnishes reason for thinking that an election will not be brought on during 1910. If the rights of the West are considered the electors will not be asked to go to the polls until after the four most westerly Provinces are given the increased representation to which the census of 1911 will entitle them.

THE CORNWALL DISASTER.

The Cornwall holocaust, in which twelve lives perished on Friday morning of last week, was the worst disaster in the history of the factory town. The Rossmore Hotel, where the fire occurred, while having an excellent reputation for its cuisine, was not planned according to the most modern designs for a hotel structure. The deaths of twelve out of fifty inmates when the fire broke out, is a very heavy percentage of mortality and proves that it was hardly less than a fire trap. Fire escapes were provided, whereby some lives were saved, but the incident should, and doubtless will serve to raise the whole question of the internal structure of Canadian hotels. The origin of the fire yet remains a mystery and may never be solved.

CARILLON.

—: o: —

Mr. and Mrs. James Nicholls visited Lachute quite recently.

Miss M. G. Bryerton spent Saturday and Sunday last with her parents at Evergreen Cottage.

Rev. Father Brophy spent a few days with his mother a couple of weeks ago

The Government men are at present doing some repair work around Grenville, but expect to be in Carillon shortly.

Mrs. H. Nolan of Cushing, has rented Mr. McGowan's cottage on the Hill for the summer months, and intends taking boarders.

Mr. Robert Barley of Arundel, was here a few days ago assisting at the sad duty of burying his father.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bryerton and Master Kenneth spent Sunday last with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Bryerton.

Mrs. J. P. Hodgson arrived home on Saturday last, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Fields, she having spent the greater part of the winter with the latter in the city.

Mr. Herman Halsey left for Montreal last week, having spent a few weeks with his mother, previous to assuming the duties of Purser on the Steamer "Princess," which made her first trip on Wednesday, April 27th.

There is a rumor going around to the effect that a new freight boat, named "The Emerald" built something after the style of one of the great Cunard liners, and under the management of Messrs. Barclay-Smith Co., will dock for the first time at Carillon wharf on Friday, May 6. We wish the Company all success in their undertakings.

Carillon is, to use a slang expression, beginning to "look up" and no doubt many will find occasion to say it is time it did. However, one can now enjoy the pleasant sensation of crossing the Ottawa in no less than five minutes, our ferry-boat, "The John," mispelt "Jonh," (due to an oversight on the part of the painter, having recently been equipped with a new gasoline engine, and—guess what—a search light. All we need now is an amiable 'conductor' and all would be well.

CASTORIA

Before His Honor

Why the Prisoner Was Discharged

The case of Basil Lapidus was the last on the docket. Magistrate Alexander Quade, already late for dinner, was about to postpone the hearing when his clerk whispered that the charge was wife-beating and disturbance. This intelligence made the judge settle back in his seat again. His honor took special delight in such cases; never in the whole history of his judicial career was a prisoner known to escape with less than the extreme penalty.

The present culprit was suffering from a cold. The judge was in a like predicament, and whenever the man in the dock cleared his throat, the judge's bronchial tubes began to tickle. This caused him to treasure up animosity against Lapidus before the hearing began.

The fact, too, that the judge's dinner was waiting made the clerk, who knew the judicial temperament, decide that the reprimand which always followed the imposition of the extreme penalty would be well worth hearing in this case.

Judge Quade's court was conducted on most informal lines. When the charge had been read and the plea entered, the magistrate called out:

"Mrs. Julia Lapidus, stand up and be sworn. You, too, Lapidus, get up and swear. Administer the oath, Mr. Clerk, and let's get the thing over. Now, Mrs. Lapidus, don't be afraid."

"O, judge," sighed the prosecuting witness, "I'm so frustrated. This is the first time I've ever been in court."

"You should have come here long ago. Does he abuse you much?"

"No, indeed; this is the first time he ever had a chance."

"Hum-m; sit down a minute. Well, Lapidus, what have you to say? Do you want to change your plea to 'guilty,' and save time?"

"He won't do it, your honor," exclaimed his wife. "He never would for me about the simplest things, even when I'd catch him in the act."

"Come, come," growled the magistrate, "make your confession."

The prisoner cleared his throat and began: "Last night I came home with my head tied up—been having a cold for two weeks—regular grip—ringing in the ears—pain in the head and neck—eyes running—also nose—tickling sensation—" He stopped to cough.

"Here, here," rubbing his eyes and nose, and coughing in unison with the prisoner, "I don't care about the symptoms. Go ahead."

"When I got home with my head all tied up she came out in the kitchen and said she had a caller in the parlor. I asked who he was, and instead of telling me, she went on about there being a monkey odor in the house. There's a young preacher at our church, and he's very high-church and monky and I thought at first that he was making a call, and that it was the odor of sanctity she was talking about."

The wagging jaws of Mrs. Lapidus grew articulate at this point and she sprang up.

"I didn't," she asserted. "I said I had supper in the parlor because there was a musty odor in the rest of the house."

"I don't care what led up to the disturbance," cried the magistrate, black-browed with wrath. "Tell me the specific act of ill-usage, and let me get this fellow sentenced and go home to dinner."

"O, I can do that all right," exclaimed the woman. "I'll never forget it as long as I live. Why, after he choked me into swallowing that dose I was so sure I'd die the next minute that I wrote to my sister to come see that my bones were laid to rest in some reputable charnel house."

The judge leaned over to his clerk and whispered:

"Perhaps I can hold this fellow for attempted murder. Just get a commitment blank ready and make the charge attempt to poison. Now, madam, go on."

"Ever since Basil's been sick, I've been depending on the neighbors for good, old-fashioned medicines to give him. Last night I had a pint of real good remedy I'd got from a woman who uses it for all her children, whether they're six feet or only a span long, and—"

Judge Quade held up his hand for silence. A strange emotion held him in thrall.

"Never mind that commitment," he said to his clerk. "Now, Lapidus, my man, you finish the story."

"There's not much to tell. For two weeks the neighbors have been dosing me with every known kind of root, herb, bark and berry, boiled, fried and roasted; and when she had another brand ready for me last night I just took hold and made her swallow it herself. And my cold's been better ever since."

As one in a dream the judge took his overshoes from beneath his desk and put them on. "Court's adjourned," he said. "O, excuse me, Mr. Lapidus, I forgot you're discharged." And before the clerk could recover from his surprise the judge had departed.

Still in a maze, the magistrate ascended the steps of his home. His wife met him at the door.

"I'm so glad you've come," she cried. "I've just got in from the neighbor's across the street with another kind of cold remedy, and you must drink every drop of it before you sit down to dinner."

For a moment the judge's fingers twitched convulsively. Then he murmured:

"All right, Mary dear."

WEDDING BELLS.

MOUREY—LOA.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the Methodist parsonage, Lachute, last Wednesday evening, May 4, 1910, when Miss Amelia Janet Boa, of Mirabel, was united to Prof Gules Mourney, mineralogist, of Sixteen Island Lake. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Boa, of St. Canute Township, Co. Two Mountains. Mr. Mourey is the son of the late Captain Jacob Mourey, of Lan Haute, Sone, France, who was slain in the Franco-Prussian War. After the war he came to Canada with his widowed mother and a brother, settling and securing extensive mining and farm lands in north of Argenteuil County. He has travelled extensively in America and Europe and is well known throughout the County. The marriage was performed by the Rev. B. B. Brown in the presence of the bride's brothers, Andrew & Robert. Mr. and Mrs. Mourey will reside at St. Canute.

GLEICHEN CLYDE HORSE CHAMPION OF CANADA.

Clark Brothers Won Fourteen Prizes at Provincial Show.

Gleichen got one of the greatest advertisements it has ever obtained at the Alberta Provincial Horse Show held at Calgary last week. In fact it can now be justly claimed that Gleichen has won the Championship of all Canada in Clydesdale horses, which is a distinction that we may well be proud to claim.

The horse that won this much coveted championship is owned by Duncan Clark, and the horse is "Master MacQueen," which in order to do this defeated the champion horses at Ottawa, Toronto, Brandon and Regina. So pleased was the judge, Prof. Carlyle, that he stated at the time that he considered "Master MacQueen" was one of the best Clydes he had seen on the Continent.

Three of "Master MacQueen's" progeny also won first prizes at the Calgary Show, namely: Colonel MacQueen, Hattie MacQueen and Lady MacQueen. Colonel MacQueen, as a Canadian bred horse, stood first in a class of 14, nearly all of which were imported animals, beating one that was first at Newton Stewart, in Scotland, and beating easily Economist, the horse that took first prize at Calgary last year.

Nor is this all the honors that the Clark Brothers won for Gleichen at the Calgary Show, as they won fourteen prizes altogether, against 919 entries made at this Fair. Here is a list of the Classes they won in:—Class 39, Three year-old Stallion, 1st; Class 38A, Four-year-old Stallion, 1st; Class 38, Five year-old Stallion, 2nd; Class 43, Canadian bred Stallion, 1st and 2nd; Class 43A, Champion Canadian bred Stallion, 1st; Class 43B, Reserve Champion, 1st; Class 45, Fillie, 3rd; Class 44, Mare, 2nd; Class 47, Clyde progeny, 1st; Class 47, Progeny of Master MacQueen, three 1st; Class 87, Team in Harness, 1st; Class 38, Mare or Gelding, 2nd.

That surely is a record for three brothers—John, James and Duncan Clark—and they deserve great credit. Year after year they have spent a great amount of time and money to bring this about.

This will undoubtedly make the name of Clark Brothers and Gleichen known to horsemen throughout not only Canada but the world over and we cannot do better than spread about the news of the class of animals these men are raising and dealing with.

HOME SEEKERS.

—:o:—

The Grand Trunk Railway are planning Excursions to the Canadian North West. These have been christened Home Seekers Excursions and bring to mind the thought that there are thousands of new homes yet to be found in this ever growing country—particularly along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

The Grand Trunk Pacific has acquired sufficient land to make nearly 100 Town Sites between Winnipeg and Edmonton. The lots are now placed on the market for sale, and are being rapidly picked up.

Since last September between Winnipeg and Edmonton, the G. T. P. have been operating Passenger and Freight service. This is a distance of 703 miles, and all along the line there are villages and towns springing up with surprising activity.

There are four or five divisional points within this mileage that are showing marked development, and would well engage the special attention of those seeking a home or an improvement of their financial condition.

These Excursions will be run on April 5th, 19th, May 3, 17, 31, June 14, 28, July 12, 26, August 9, 23, September 6, 20. Good for return within two months of date of issue.

Other and full particulars may be obtained on application to J. Quinlan, District Passenger Agent, Montreal, or any other G. T. Representative.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE SPRING

Do Not Dose With Purgatives—A Tonic is All You Need.

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That's the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fickle, sometimes headaches and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order; that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you, and may easily develop into more serious trouble. Don't dose yourself with purgatives as many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. What you need in the spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every does of this medicine helps make new blood, which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite, and makes tired, depressed men and women bright, active and strong. Miss Mary Baker, Tancook, N. S., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a great blessing to me. Last year while I was attending school I became so weak and completely run down that I thought I would have to give up going to school. I was affected with dizzy spells and would fall down at any time. I got half a dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and before they were half gone I felt my strength returning. By the time I had used them all, the dizzy spells were completely gone, and I was again enjoying good health."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Excited Fisherman (to country hotel-keeper)—"There isn't a bit of fishing about here! Every brook has a sign warning people off. What do you mean by luring anglers here with the promise of fine fishing?" Hotel-keeper—"I didn't say anything about fine fishing. If you read my advertisement carefully you will see that what I said was 'Fishing unapproachable.'"

STURDY CHILDREN.

In every home where Baby's Own Tablets are used you will find rosy, sturdy, good-natured children, because the Tablets cleanse the stomach and bowels, aid digestion and thus bring perfect health. And you can give them with equal safety to the new born baby or the well grown child. Mrs. A. E. McLeod, Woodstock, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets since my baby was two weeks old and have found them of great benefit for the ailments of childhood, especially for stomach and bowel troubles and when teething." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

About 16,000 persons annually die violent deaths in England and Wales.

A Purely Vegetable Pill. — The chief ingredients of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are mandrake and dandelion, sedative and purgative, but perfectly harmless in their action They cleanse and purify and have a most healthful effect upon the secretions of the digestive organs. The dyspeptic and all who suffer from liver and kidney ailments will find in these pills the most effective medicine in concentrated form that has yet been offered to the suffering.

She—"So many men marry for money! You wouldn't marry me for money, would you, dearest?" He (absently)—"No, darling; I wouldn't marry you for all the money in the world!" And he marvels now that she didn't speak the last time he met her.

Belgium has an annual revenue of about $125,000,000.

POOR RICH NEW YORK

AND ITS TWELVE THOUSAND DOLLAR FLATS.

Wonderful Suites of Rooms in Sky-Scrapers—But They are Not Home.

For Rent—Suites of fourteen rooms and five baths to suites of thirty-four rooms and nine baths. Rental, $6,500 to $12,000.

Have you ever seen one of these $12,000 a-year flats

The buildings are twelve stories high and the apartments are arranged so that there are only one or two on the floor.

Each apartment is equipped with vacuum cleaners, dressing-rooms, millinery closets, plate-glass shelves, individual wine-vaults, cedar-lined closets, and every earthly and un earthly thing ever invented to make of a woman a useless parasite and of a man a restless, discontented Sybarite.

There's a man in livery to open the big front door. A man in livery to run the magnificent elevator. There are servants' quarters up under the roof and there's an individual automobile garage in the basement for every individual flat.

THE REAL HOME.

What would you take to have to give up your home—your real home, with a yard for the baby to play in, and a porch for the dog to consider his bailiwick, and room enough on the hearth-stone for the old gray cat, and a place up in the garret to hang your old fishing poles, and a corner in the basement to put the littlest boy's sled and the biggest girl's roller skates?

For Rent — Suites of fourteen rooms and five baths. Rental, $6,500 to $12,000.

Do you know what signs ought to go up alongside of that one?

For Rent—An empty heart.

For Rent—A vacant brain.

For Rent—An idle life.

Keep your $12,000-a-year flat, New York. Build all of them you want. Set them up in rows along Riverside Drive as a light-hearted child sets up his blocks along the ledge of his nursery window.

Fill up your apartment houses, your $12,000-a-year flats, with $12,000-a-year people.

Pack 'em in, crowd 'em in, push 'em in, fifty deep if you have to, a hundred deep if you must. They're nothing but coops, those big flats, anyway. Keep them in your own yard, poor, little old New York.

We don't want 'em out West, where the real people live—the real people who'd rather have a little four-room cottage with a yard and an old walnut tree at the corner of the house, and a rosy face at the window, than all the $12,000-a-year flats in the world.—Kansas City Post.

A sign in the rooms of an American hotel reads as follows:—"Indian clubs and dumb-bells will not be permitted in any of the rooms. Guests in need of exercise can go down to the kitchen and pound a steak."

Miss Elder—"I will bet you anything you like that I never marry." Mr. Easy—"I'll take you." Miss Elder (rapturously)—"Will you, really? Then I need not bet at all."

Month After Month a cold sticks, and seems to tear holes in your throat. Are you aware that even a stubborn and long neglected cold is cured with Allen's Lung Balsam?

"Yes," mused the returned Arctic explorer, "at one time we came within an inch of freezing to death. Luckily, however——" He gazed reflectively at the ceiling. "We had the presence of mind to fall into a heated discussion."

CURED IN ONE MONTH.

If every woman, who has Kidney or Bladder trouble, could go to Davisville, Ont., and talk to Mrs. A. Simpson, they would do just as she did—take Gin Pills and cure themselves.

"For 14 or 15 years I had Kidney or Bladder trouble, suffering at times intense pain. I doctored continually but nothing gave me permanent relief until I was persuaded to try Gin Pills."

"Within a couple of days I received great relief and after taking one box was completely cured."

GETTING A RAISE.

A year ago a manufacturer hired a boy. For months there was nothing noticeable about the boy except that he never took his eyes off the machine he was running. A few weeks ago the manufacturer looked up from his work to see the boy standing beside his desk.

"What do you want?" he asked.

"Want me pay raised."

"What are you getting?"

"T'ree dollars a week."

"Well, how much do you think you are worth?"

"Four dollars."

"You think so, do you?"

"Yes, sir, an' I've been t'inkin' so for t'ree weeks, but I've been so blamed busy I ain't had time to speak to you about it."

The boy got the raise.

STATEMENT OF A TRAVELLER

IS SURE DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HIS DIABETES

Geo. H. Watterworth, of Rodney, Feels Like a Boy Again After Suffering From the Most Deadly of Kidney Diseases.

Rodney, Ont., April 4 (Special).—Mr. Geo. H. Watterworth, a well-known travelling salesman, whose home is in this place, makes an unqualified statement that he was cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes," Mr. Watterworth said when asked regarding his cure, "Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Diabetes. I took thirty-seven boxes in all but to-day I am restored to good health.

"I was also troubled with Rheumatism and Headache, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing and I was always tired and nervous. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me and now I feel just like I did when I was a boy."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Diabetes because it is a Kidney disease and there is no form of Kidney disease Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure. Mr. Watterworth's other ailments were caused by diseased Kidneys failing to strain impurities out of the blood, and Dodd's Kidney Pills cured them by curing the sick Kidneys

DEEP-SEATED COUGH

CURED IN 5 HOURS.

New Home-Made Syrup.

(Cut this out.)

From Boston Press.

Progress in medical compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours by the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and thoroughly as to be almost magical. What heretofore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and tones up. Give children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

"So Jones is dead, eh? Well, he was a hustler; he never let the grass grow under his feet." "No; perhaps if he had it wouldn't be growing over his head now.'

A General Favorite.—In every place where introduced Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has not failed to establish a reputation, showing that the sterling qualities which it possesses are valued everywhere when they become known. It is in general use in Canada and other countries as a household medicine and the demand for it each year shows that it is a favorite wherever used.

A TRUE AMERICAN.

CORRECTED.

Some of his boys were taking but little interest in the lesson, and the teacher grew desperate.

"William Smith," he suddenly demanded, "are you listening?"

"Yes, sir!"

"Then perhaps you can tell me where Nelson was killed?"

"Trafalgar Square!" was the reply.

"Indeed!" sarcastically ejaculated the teacher, when he had recovered his breath. "Then I suppose Wellington was killed at Waterloo Station?"

"No, sir," responded William. "That was Napoleon!"

RAVAGES OF ABSINTHE.

Major Henri Robert, in the course of an address in Paris on alcoholism, and especially on the abuse of absinthe, spoke in moving terms of the terrible ravages caused by the "green demon." The drink curse was, he declared, the direct cause of the decrease in the birth rate and of the physical and moral degeneracy observable in the French race. In the most contaminated districts the recruiting counsels had to refuse as many as 50 per cent. of the young men called to serve with the colors.

OF. RAMSAY ON RADIUM

EATEST CONCENTRATION OF ENERGY.

ent Scientist Tells All That Science Knows About New Element.

William Ramsay gave an il- ating address on radium and manations recently before the ors' Club in London, England. William touched on practically phase of the subject as known odern science.

dium produces the most con- rated form of energy yet dis- red. The energy is in the force ys which the radium gives off. e are three varieties of rays. Alpha and Beta rays are thing like minute particles shot from the radium. The first are which can easily be kept in a tube. The second can pass gh glass. Gamma rays are particles at all, but waves or lations of ether. These rays through six inches of lead, and ss the power of discharging an roscope. Lead is, in fact, rately transparent to the ma rays or undulations.

The Austrian Gov- nt sometime ago entrusted fty-fifth of an ounce of radium William for his private use. d Dr. Gray performed the ex- ent of isolating the Alpha ation; they enclosed it in a tube much finer than the fin- hermometer tube ever made. compressed it and liquified it. n liquefied it shone with a sh light, though it was quite parent, like water. AGAINST STRIKE LOSSES.

Germany Has System of Insurance for Employers.

Insurance against strike losses is an institution of recent date in Germany. The numerous strikes which have taken place in Germany have caused industrial employers to use all means for self-protection and self-preservation against the attacks of labor. While the workmen must suffer deprivation during a strike, they have nothing to lose. When the funds of the union are exhausted, the striker is supported by contributions from other labor organizations.

Severe material damage is done the employer by a strike. The factory lies idle and suffers depreciation from want of use. Production ceases and the employer in these days of keen competition is exposed to the danger of being driven out of the market which he has with difficulty acquired. As the stoppage of work generally takes place at times of greatest prosperity, when orders are most numerous, he is likely to lose all his custom to competitors.

This unfavorable position of industry as compared with labor, which is supported by its system of organization, has brought about industrial insurance against loss by strikes. The extent to which it prevails may be judged from official statistics just published. According to the bureau of statistics, there are in all forty-eight companies, namely thirteen strike-indemnity insurance companies, twenty-six employers' associations for strike insurance and nine in which indemnity is from occasion to occasion granted.

The conditions under which a strike indemnity are paid is different in the several companies. Assistance is granted in case of strikes and generally in lockouts. But this is subject to fixed conditions, the most important of which is that the stoppage of work has not been produced by the fault of the employer himself.

The obligations of the companies or associations to their members begin after a fixed interval, in most cases three months, but many vary up to one year. The regulations are also different as to whether after the lapse of this period relief shall be granted from the first day of the breaking out of the strike or only after a later juncture or period. Some of the companies make the granting of the indemnity upon further conditions, for instance, the number of the strikers.

The whole institution, however, is still in its infancy. The number of its adherents, nevertheless, increases from year to year, showing its economical usefulness. The fact that it strengthens the position of the employer against the attacks of labor is evidenced by the diminished number of strikes, with their unhappy consequences.

SPEED OF WILD DUCKS.

In Dead Calm They Average 58 Miles an Hour.

My observations were made with mallard and widgeon just off the sea, and coming in at the evening flight, such birds not having got fully under way, having travelled only about two miles or a mile and a half, according to the state of the tide, says a writer in the Scotsman. The times varied from 10½ miles an hour in the teeth of a hurricane to 190 miles an hour with half a gale driving them forward, their speed with a full gale being below this.

In a dead calm they averaged 58 miles an hour, but as I have mentioned they were not travelling at top speed. Other species of duck fly much faster than this, the speed of a merganser going down wind being something terrific, and if I mentioned my rough calculations made as to his speed with a stiff breeze behind him no one would believe me, so I will refrain from doing so.

One day in March, when a fresh breeze was blowing down the Hoy Sound in Orkney, mergansers were lost sight of in five seconds after passing the point upon which I was sitting. They are without doubt the fastest of our web footed birds, although other of the diving ducks, such as the goldeneye, fly at an enormous velocity.

The speed at which birds are travelling is very deceptive, for instance swallows appear to be going very fast, but rarely attain a speed of 30 miles an hour, whereas wild geese appear to be travelling very slowly when seen at a distance, but see them passing over you at dawn about fifty yards overhead and their wings look like flywheels, giving the birds the appearance of huge bees in the half light, so fast are their wings vibrating.

MEDICINES YOU CAN TRY

SIMPLE REMEDIES TO USE IN EMERGENCY.

Cold Water for Burns or Scalds—Virtues of Boric Acid are Many.

The following simple remedies will save you a lot of pain and trouble, if used in time:

If you burn or scald your fingers, plunge the hand instantly into cold water—the colder the better—and keep it there for five or ten minutes. The cold water removes all pain, and as long as the hand is kept there no pain—or practically none—will be experienced.

Sever burns of the body are often treated by plunging the sufferer, clothes and all, into a tepid, or warm, bath. But the best thing to do in this case until the doctor comes is to apply carron-oil, and dress the part in cotton-wool. Carron-oil—a bottle of which should be in every house—consists of linseed-oil and lime-water. Any oil, or vaseline, can be used.

But better even than carron-oil is carbolic-oil, which soothes pain and acts as an antiseptic.

BED FOR BURNS.

Severe burns cause a great shock and the healthiest and strongest person becomes exceedingly weak. Therefore, put the sufferer in bed at once, rolling him in warm blankets, and applying a hot-water bottle to the feet.

Cuts are often poisoned by being covered with not over-clean rags, cobwebs, stamp-paper, and other things, which are sure to have any number of microbes upon them. The proper treatment is to wash in cold water thoroughly, then wait until the bleeding moderates or ceases, and then bind round, not too tightly, with a piece of scrupulously clean cotton or linen. This should be steeped in a solution of boric acid, or sprinkled with dry boric acid.

To stop bleeding of the fingers, hand. arm, or foot, raise the part as high as possible. The best plan, in the case of, say, the hand, is to put it under the cold-water tap for a minute or half a minute, and then raise it above the head.

To cure corns, get from the chemist either five cents of salicylic-plaster, or, better still, a small bottle of salicylic acid dissolved in ether, with a little Indian hemp to remove the pain. If either of these is applied steadily for a week or two the corn will disappear.

Colds in the head can generally be cut short if attended to at once.

A teaspoonful of whisky, or a small quantity of water with brdinary salt dissolved in it, or a saturated solution of boric acid—made by putting into hot water as much of the powder as will dissolve in it—should be squeezed from a piece of cotton-wool into each nostril until the liquid runs down to the throat. Your cold will be gone in the morning.

BORIC ACID.

The virtues of boric acid, by the way, are not so well known as they should be. You can get a quarter of a pound for five cents, and it will effectually cure a dozen slight ailments.

If your face feels sore after shaving rub in a little boric acid mixed with vaseline, and you will be at ease. Do the same to pimples on the face, and they will disappear.

If you have a boil on the neck, the boric-acid ointment will cure it. Are your lips chafed or your hands chapped? Try a little boric acid and vaseline. Are there pimples over your body, making you feel uneasy? The vaseline and boric acid will disperse them in two nights. Do you suffer from dandruff? Rub in the vaseline and boric acid, and the dandruff will disappear after the first or second application.

It is also the doctor's great modern eye-cure—at least, for many kinds of diseases of the lids and the skin, or mucous membrane, about the eyes. But for this purpose you should get the lotion from the chemist, for it must not be too strong.

NO BEGGARS IN COPENHAGEN

None of the Usual Evidences of Poverty in Evidence.

Copenhagen is a city of 500,000 inhabitants. During a week's stay I have seen no seller of matches or bootlaces, no gutter merchant, no blind or other afflicted persons about the streets asking for alms—not one single sign of distress due to poverty, writes a correspondent. I have explored the artisans' quarters by day and late at night. There is not a single spot in the whole of Copenhagen that could be compared even remotely to the slums in our large towns. There are no unemployed hanging about the street corners, no unkempt women standing idly at the doors, no ragged and dirty children playing in the gutter. There are no dirty houses, with dirty or broken windows, and a ragged apron or a torn bedcloth doing duty for a curtain.

AN EFFECTIVE FETISH.

How Henry M. Stanley Surprised an African Chief.

Ngalyema was an African, and an enterprising trader in ivory and slaves, holding the position of chief of the Stanley Pool district. He had demanded, wrote Sir Henry M. Stanley in his recently published "Autobiography," and also received a goodly sum for granting Stanley the privilege of establishing a station where up-river navigation begins. Time passed, and Ngalyema chose to forget this transaction, and made an impudent demand for more money. Duly warned, however, Stanley had prepared a surprise for him.

I had hung a great Chinese gong conspicuously near the principal tent. All my men were hidden, some in the steamboat on top of the wagon; and in its shadow was a cool place, where the warriors would gladly rest after a ten-mile march. Other of my men lay still as death under tarpaulins, under bundles of grass, and in the bush round the camp. By the time the drum-taps and horns announced Ngalyema's arrival, the camp seemed practically abandoned.

Ngalyema was strangely cold at my hearty greeting, and said, "He was not my brother forgotten his road? What does he mean by coming to this country?"

"Nay, it is Ngalyema who has forgotten the blood-bond that exists between us. It is Naglyema who has forgotten the mountains of goods which I paid him. What words are these of my brother?"

Speech and counter-speech followed. Ngalyema had exhausted his arguments; but it was not easy to break faith and be uncivil without plausible excuse. His eyes were reaching round to discover an excuse to fight, when they rested on the round, burnished face of the Chinese gong.

"What is that?" he said.

"Ah, that—that is a fetish."

"A fetish! A fetish for what"

"It is a war fetish, Ngalyema. The slightest sound of that would fill this empty camp with hundreds of angry warriors; they would drop from above, they would spring up from the ground, from the forest about, from everywhere."

"Sho! Tell that story to the old women, and not to a chief like Ngalyema. My boy tells me it is a kind of bell. Strike it and let me hear it."

"O Ngaleyma, my brother, the consequences would be too dreadful! Do not think of such a thing!"

"Strike it, I say."

I struck it hard and fast, and the clangorous roll rang out like thunder in the stillness.

Only for a few seconds, however, for a tempest of human voices was heard bursting into frightful discords, and from above, right upon the heads of the astonished warriors, leaped yelling men; and from tents, the huts, the forest round about, they came by sixes, dozens and scores, yelling like madmen, and seemingly animated with uncontrollable rage.

The painted warriors became panic-stricken; they forgot their chief and all thoughts of loyalty, and fled on the instant, fear lifting their heels high in the air.

But Naglyema and his son did not fly. They caught the tails of my coat, and we began to dance from side to side, a loving triplet, myself being foremost, to ward off the blows savagely aimed at my "brothers," and cheerfully crying out:

"Hold fast to me, my brothers! I will defend you to the last drop of my blood! Come one, come all!"

Presently the order was given, "Fall in!" and quickly the men stood in two long lines in beautiful order. Ngalyema relaxed his hold of my coat tails, and crept from behind, breathing more freely.

"Eh, mamma!" he exclaimed. "Where did all these people come from?"

"Ah, Ngalyema," I said, "did I not tell you it was a powerful fetish! Let me strike it again, and show you what else it can do."

"No, no!" he shrieked. "I have seen enough."

BAD SPIRIT TO SERVANTS.

Mistress Makes Them Feel They are Not Part of Household.

In the opinion of a woman who has visited much among her friends, there would be less unrest and changing of places by house servants if mistresses said less often, "If you are not willing to do such and such, you may leave." Which means that employes are constantly reminded that they are not an integral part of the family and may be separated from it at a moment's notice. This, obviously, is not the best spirit, either for the individual or the work she does. The utterance is a threat constantly held over the head; a club to be used when all work does not go easily. And, of course, a feeling of being "at home" under these circumstances is impossible, and so the maid becomes so accustomed to the thought of moving to the next place that she is likely to do so from "suggestion."

HINDOO BOMB-THROWERS

VEGETARIANS ARE BECOMING BLOOD-THIRSTY.

Editors Deplore the Spread of Anarchy in the Provinces of India.

The assassination of Arthur Mason Tipetts Jackson, Chief Magistrate of Nasik, in the Presidency of Bombay, India, on December 22, emphasizes the curious fact that this date was a day of assassination or violence in St. Petersburg, Secul, and Bucharest, as well as Bombay. The times of revolutionary violence are evidently not yet passed away, and in the case of India the native editors and publicists are asking whether the vegetarian nirvanic Hindu, world-famed for his scrupules against taking life, is actually degenerating into a vulgar bomb-thrower?

Speaking recently in England Mr. Surendra Nath Bannarji, who is called by his countrymen, "The Father of Indian Unrest," and who takes great pride in this title, remarked:

"I re-echo the sentiments of the vast majority of my countrymen—that we deplore these anarchical incidents and have condemned them with

THE UTMOST EMPHASIS.

The mind, the judgment, and the conscience are arrayed against them. I regard them as a passing phase of excitement which will disappear under the soothing effects of progressive and conciliatory measures."

One Hindu editor, Shyamaji Krishnavarma, who has been accused by many well-informed Englishmen and East Indians of instigating Madan Lal Ohingre to assassinate Lieut.-Col. Sir William Hutt Curzon-Wyllie on the night of July 1 last, does not treat the bomb movement in India with such lofty contempt. In his vitriolic sheet, the Indian Sociologist, published from Paris, he rejoicing writes:

"After surveying the situation we come to the conclusion that our enemies are exceedingly disconcerted on finding that our doctrines are effectively put into practice by the advanced Nationalist party in India and elsewhere."

Bal Gangadhar Tilak, a native editor, who is to-day in jail convicted of fomenting unrest in India, wrote an article some months ago in his propaganda organ, the Marhatta (Poona), extolling terrorism as vindicating the Bengali character. To quote:

"The Bengali youths engaged in bomb-making and bomb-throwing have committed

A NUMBER OF BLUNDERS.

But we fancy they have probably one clear motive in engaging in bomb and revolver practice, and that purpose must be declared as served. The purpose was to avenge the Bengali nation upon Macaulay; and that is done for all time to come. National calumny is one of the most unpardonable crimes that writers are liable to commit. Such a crime was committed by Lord Macaulay when he penned his infamous libel upon the Bengali in his essay on Lord Hastings. The calumny struck; and being couched in attractive words was eagerly repeated and handed down from one generation of Englishmen to another as the quintessence of a sociological truth. But Nemesis was working an antidote slowly. She took more than fifty years to complete her work. But it is now nearly finished and is on view in Bengali."—Literary Digest.

THE POVERTY PROBLEM

HOW THE WORKLESS FARE IN FOREIGN CLIMES.

The Chinese Poor are Looked After—Happy Life of the Beggar in Brazil.

The sad way in which Britain neglects her homeless and unemployed is a dark blot on her otherwise fair fame, says London Answers.

There is a lesson for us to be drawn even from China. It is surprising, no doubt, but the Chinese Government have great consideration for those who struggle. In Pekin, for instance, there are numerous buildings, resembling barns, with floors covered with layers of multi-colored feathers. They are called "ki-mas-fans," and are open all night. By paying half a cash—a hundred cash are equivalent to 7 cents of our money—the homeless and weary can obtain a comfortable night's rest.

The beds on which they sleep are the feathers, and so soon as the allotted number of inmates are installed in the houses, attendants throw over them

HUGE FELT BLANKETS.

The lights are then put out, after which conversation is forbidden. The majority of the "ki-mas-fans" are for men only, but one or two are set apart for women and girls.

The homeless need not starve in the Flowery Land. If a poor man knocks at the door of a wealthy citizen and asks for food, he generally finds a good meal and a drink ready for him in the kitchen. And it is seldom that he is asked to chop wood or cut the grass of the front lawn in return for the meal provided. A cash or two is also given him by the head of the house.

You will never see in Brazil the miserable wanderers so common a sight in British towns. Out there the lazy and the penniless take to begging, and if they are blessed with a little cunning they will always have their bread well buttered. Rio Janeiro is the happy hunting-ground of the professional beggar, and he can be seen sitting comfortably in a wooden chair on wheels, which is pulled along by a diminutive black boy, or reclining lazily in a hammock strung from a pole and borne by two full-grown negroes. One of these beggars admits making twice as much money in a week as a good mechanic can in a month in England. As the authorities make no particular effort to stamp out this state of affairs, begging is one of the commonest professions in the country, and, in consequence, homeless men and women are almost unknown.

In the Austro-Hungarian empire the same thing is prevalent. If a man falls out of work and cannot obtain fresh employment he joins a "beggars' school," and there are one or more such establishments in each big town. Here he goes through a regular course of instruction, and is taught a number of set phrases which are sure to draw money from the pockets of the sympathetic. And what is more, he is TAUGHT TO BE POLITE.

Thus it happens that the men who solicit alms in the towns of Austro-Hungary have the reputation—not an enviable one, perhaps—of being the politest beggars in existence, and this politeness gains for them a very good living indeed.

When a country does not look upon begging as a criminal offence the homeless are few and far between. France has a small army of beggars. Those too idle to work, and those who cannot obtain work—and there are more of the latter than the former—flock into the cities and beg alms from passers-by.

There used to be an office in Paris kept by an old German-Jew. This man was in the habit of employing "out-of-works" to collect the names and addresses of the charitably-disposed in the Gay City and its suburbs. He had the names and addresses printed on long slips, which he sold to beggars at so much a slip, to the mutual advantage of himself and his numerous work-shy clients.

GERMANS TO RAISE MEAT.

Statistical tables are used to illustrate the importance of meat production in Germany, which was formerly only a side issue of agriculture. To offset the high prices of feeds it is pointed out that more economy is needed in saving the waste of the cities which may be used for feeds or fertilizers, and more feeds must be grown at home if meat production is to be profitable. As the acreage in Germany cannot be increased to any extent, the yields per acre must be increased, and every available foot of land must be utilized.

Try to make folks decent, happy and they'r heavenliness will take care of itself.

You can get a very good idea of the personal habits and tastes of the occupants of property by the appearance of things about the premises. If the yard is full of rubbish, the bushes untrimmed, a dearth of flowers, and other evidences of carelessness, the chances are that the occupant is untidy and loose in habits. On the other hand, if everything is clean, neat and tidy, flowers blooming and a home-like air of contentment pervades the premises, the chances are that the occupant is neat and progressive. Let all keep these hints in mind and clean up and beautify their property.

If some day we should print the contents of his waste basket there would probably be a riot. There would certainly be trouble in many homes, arrests in some direction, shot-guns in others, trouble all around But the patron never sees the waste basket. He only glances at the printed pages, complains if a letter is upside down, growls his disappointment if one name in five hundred has happened to go wrong, kicks because his communication signed "Tax Payer" has been condensed into respectable English, frowns because we didn't take his advice about warning his neighbor about certain things, and is generally disgruntled, not so much at what he fails to find. He knows his share of the waste basket, but if he could have one look at the contributions made to that receptacle by his neighbors and friends, he would thank goodness for the existence of a man with sufficient intelligence and courage not to print all he knows, and to temper even that which he does print.

A HOT BLAZE.

The house and store of Eugene Lefebvre was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday morning last, and only for the strenuous work of willing hands was the conflagration kept in check. The fire, it is supposed, was caused by some workmen leaving cement on the kitchen stove, which preparation they were using in roofing a new shed adjoining the house. The fire spread very rapidly and beyond some of the groceries which had been removed to his new store on Foundry St. everything was a total loss. His house was newly built two years ago and is only covered by $600 of insurance.

The town pump was quickly on the scene, and although it has been much criticised and often despised, it demonstrated pretty clearly, that if supplied with water it can be most effective. Before the pump was got to work it looked as if the East End might get considerable of a scorching, but fortunately there was one hydrant in town, although some distance away, that supplied water drawn in barrels to the pump, and many to-day are resting in their own homes that would have been seeking shelter elsewhere.

This solitary hydrant is another evidence why the town should purchase the waterworks system and then proceed to put hydrants in the varied parts of the town so that in case of fire we will have some measure of protection anyway. Many cry the waterworks system is no good, but if water had been procurable in many of the past fires the losses would not have been nearly as great. With the practical demonstration to hand, let the citizens committee and the town council get together and make the best terms possible with the Waterworks Company, and we feel sure, when the by-law is submitted to the people, it will meet with general approval.

OBITUARY.

MRS. N. COPELAND, SR.

The sudden death of Mrs. Nathaniel Copeland, sr., which occurred at her home on Bethany Street, at eight o'clock on Wednesday evening, created great sympathy for those bereaved. Deceased was 58 years of age and was a very quiet retiring disposition, but her loving and kindly nature had won for her a host of friends. For many years Mrs. Copeland had been suffering from a weak heart, but up to within a couple of hours of her death had been attentive to her household duties and when at the tea-table she was seized with another attack which proved fatal. Deceased lady was formerly Miss Mary Elizabeth Burns of Albany, N.Y., and was married to Mr. Copeland by the Rev. Mr. Gillis in Sept. 1877, at Virginia City, Nevada She leaves besides her sorrowing husband a family of four girls and two boys to mourn her loss.

Mr. Hardie wishes us to call the attention of our readers to the fact that his Ice Cream Parlor will open to-morrow for the season Mr Hardie's Ice Cream has the reputation of being the best of the best.

The Dominion Cartridge Co's Works suffered some $700.00 damage by fire on Saturday afternoon. The blaze started in some dry leaves at the rear of the factory, and completely demolished one small building. At times it threatened to spread to the primer stores, but the prompt action of those who rushed to the scene at the first alarm kept it in control. Owing to the danger from explosions, and the fact that ample volunteers were on hand, Mr. Johnson wisely refrained from allowing the regular fire alarm to be blown.

From a spectacular point of view the football match between Lachute and the D. C. Co'y. played on Saturday last was perhaps as exciting a game as one could wish to see. It had only been started a few minutes when the boys were called away to help quell a fire that had broken out on the Company's premises but which fortunately was soon subdued and allowed the boys to return to the match which resulted in a draw, the game standing at 5 to 5. Lachute were playing short a man in the first half, so that they were at considerable disadvantage. They pluckily played through and had the satisfaction of not suffering defeat.

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood.

In the spring the system needs toning up. In the spring to be healthy and strong you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap. Nature demands it and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rehumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has told upon you. What is needed to put you right is a tonic, and in all the world there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out disease, clears the skin and makes weak, easily tired men and women and children bright, active and strong. Miss A. M. Dugay, Lower Cove, N. S., says: "I believe I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My blood seemed to have turned to water. I was pale as a sheet; I suffered from headaches, and floating specs seemed to be constantly before my eyes. As the trouble progressed my limbs began to swell, and it was feared that dropsy had set in and that my case was hopeless. Up to this time two doctors had attended me, but notwithstanding I kept growing worse. It was at this juncture I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking a few boxes I was much improved. I kept on using the Pills until I had taken eight boxes, when my health was completely restored."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE MOTHER'S AID AND CHILDREN'S FRIEND

Baby's Own Tablets are not intended for babies only. This medicine is intended for children of all ages. It is gently laxative and comforting. Cures indigestion and other stomach troubles, constipation and simple fevers. Guaranteed free from poisonous opiates. Mrs. Paul Carrier, Petite Mechins, Que., says: "I find Baby's Own Tablets the best medicine I have ever used for children. I have used them for most of the troubles that afflict little ones, (and have not known them to fail). Mothers should always keep them on hand." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

And occasionally a man thinks he is being neglected when his enemies attend strictly to their own business.

THE WEDDING RING.

How It was Regarded on the Isle of Man.

In the Isle of Man the wedding ring was formerly used as an instrument of torture. Cyril Davenport in his book on "Jewellery" remarks that there once existed a custom in that island "according to which an unmarried girl who had been offended by a man could bring him to trial and if he were found guilty she would be presented with a sword, a rope and a ring, says the London Chronicle. With the sword she might cut off his head; with the rope she might hang him or with the ring she might marry him. It is said that the latter punishment was that invariably inflicted."

The wedding ring, which was tolerated by the Methodists, was anathema to the early Puritans, who regarded personal adornment as one of the many snares of Satan. Wesley, who was a High Churchman, probably recognized its symbolical value. In the old English marriage service it was the custom for the bridegroom to put the ring on the thumb of his bride, saying, "in the name of the Father," then on the next finger, saying, "and the Son," then on the third finger, saying, "and of the Holy Ghost," finally on the fourth finger, with the word, "Amen."

The ring was left there because, as the Sarum rubric says, "a vein proceeds thence to the heart." In the modern marriage service the ring is placed at once upon the third finger, the invocation to the Trinity being understood.

The wedding ring was the only form of jewelry permitted to the early Methodists, and there are people still living who recall how no longer than forty years ago they were reproved by old Methodist ministers for breaking the rules of membership which forbade (and technically still forbid) Methodists to wear gold, jewels or costly apparel; but with fine courtesy John Wesley knew when to ignore breaches of his own regulations.

In visiting a house one of the preachers drew Wesley's attention to the host's daughter, who was wearing several jewelled rings; but instead of the rebuke which his preacher sought to evoke Wesley only gravely and gently remarked, "A very beautiful hand."

BYRON'S CARRIAGE.

Now in Yard of Wayside Inn, South Australia.

Apropos of Lord Byron, it may be mentioned that a carriage of the poet is now doing duty in the corner of the yard of a wayside inn, in the outskirts of Port Lincoln, South Australia, as a hen roost, and in spite of its treatment by the chickens is still in a fair state of preservation. The name of the Lincoln maker is engraved on the box of the vehicle, and on the panels are Lord Byron's motto and coat-of-arms.

It seems that a great friend of his, Lady Charlotte Bacon (to whom, by the by, he addressed a number of his verses), went to live in South Australia, and to her he sent one of his carriages on her writing to him of the difficulty of obtaining wheeled conveyances in the antipodes. On her death it passed into the possession of a family in the Port Lincoln district, and to-day could be purchased for a mere song by any collector of relics of the poet Byron.

America spends a hundred times more on drink than on education.

HE GOT RELIEF RIGHT AWAY

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE KIDNEY DISEASE OF EIGHT YEARS STANDING.

That's What They Did for William O. Cain, and Now He Says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills are a Great Medicine."

Mapleton, Albert Co., N. B., April 11 (Special).—"When I began taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I got relief right away. I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills a great medicine." So says William O. Cain, well known and highly respected in this neighborhood. And Mr. Cain has a very good reason for making so emphatic a statement. For eight years he was a sufferer from Kidney Disease, and did not seem to be able to get relief.

"Why, I was so bad," Mr. Cain goes on to state, "and my kidneys bothered me so that if I would go to pick anything off the ground I would fall." But Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him just as they have cured thousands of other sufferers all over Canada. They never fail to cure Kidney Disease of any kind. Not once, but scores of times, they have vanquished Bright's Disease, the most deadly of all kidney troubles, while every day brings stories of cures of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Dropsy and Heart Disease from various parts of the Dominion. Other kidney medicines may cure. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure.

GREED.

"I had a great dream the other night. I dreamed I met a man who offered to cut me a pound slice of radium."

"Whew! It's worth more'n a million an ounce!"

"That's right. 'Want a slice?' he says to me. 'Yes,' I answered. But I was too grasping."

"How was that?"

"I woke up just as I asked him to cut it thick!"

COUGHING BURST BLOOD VESSEL.

Says Danger Avoided and Cures Coughs in 5 Hours.

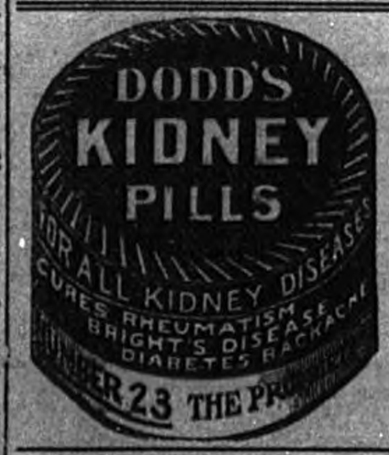

A writer for the medical press states that coughing is responsible for the bursting of blood vessels quite frequently. A cough or cold means inflammation (fever) and congestion, and these in turn indicate that the body is full of poisons and waste matter. Simple relief, as found in patent cough medicines, and whiskey, often result in more harm than good; as they cause more congestion. A tonic-laxative cough syrup will work marvels and here follows a prescription which is becoming famous for its prompt relief and thorough cures. It rids the system of the cause, except it be consumption. Don't wait for consumption to grasp its victim, but begin this treatment, which cures some in five hours. Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age.

Why is it that we invariably hear of a man's bad deeds long before the good ones?

Where Weakness is, Disease Will Settle.—If one suffers from any organic weakness, inherited or contracted, there disease will settle when it attacks the body. Therefore drive out the pains that beset you, do not let a cold or a cough harass you, and keep the respiratory organs in a good healthy condition. This you can do by using Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Prevention is the wisest course.

Stout Party—"Are you aware, sir, that you deliberately stuck your umbrella in my ear last evening?" Little Bifferton — "Very careless of me, I am sure. I wondered what became of it, and — would it be too much trouble to ask you to return it?"

Realization never comes to those who decline to hope.

AGE OF HALLEY'S COMET.

While Halley's comet has been identified as a member of our system for over 2,000 years, certain characteristics of its orbit lead us to believe that it has been with us at least ten or perhaps 100 times as long as that. According to all accounts, it was a magnificent object at the time of the Norman conquest in 1066. Its head was equal to the full moon in size, and its tail increased to a wonderful length.

$&C ASPECT OF ZAM-BUK
IT SAVES MOTHERS MONEY!

Zam-Buk spells saving to you! Suppose husband, wife or some member of the family sustains a cut or a bad scratch, which festers or turns to blood-poisoning. Result—off work! What does that mean at pay day? Zam-Buk prevents wounds, cuts or injuries "turning the wrong way." Apply it immediately, and it kills the poison and starts healing.

There is another aspect. If you have in the family, eczema, ringworm, ulceration, or any skin disease, try Zam-Buk first—don't spend money on experimenting! You will have to get Zam-Buk eventually. ● Do it now; and save cost of the other things.

Hear these persons:—

Mr. A. M. Brooks, Wellington Street, Steelton, Ont., says:—"If only I had got Zam-Buk at first, it would have saved me scores of dollars; as well as hours of agony." Mr. Brooks has been cured of eczema. He says:—"My neck, chest and body were covered with the terrible disease. The itching, burning and smarting I suffered, none who has not gone through it can tell! Doctors' lotions, salves and prescriptions didn't do me a bit of good; and from one thing to another I passed, only to find them useless. With Zam-Buk it was different, and without going through a long story, I can say that a few weeks' treatment with this great healing balm healed the sores, and rid me for good of the terrible eczema, which had held me in its grip for over ten months!"

"If I had applied Zam-Buk in the first place, instead of trying the other preparations, I should have saved myself a lot of money." So says Mrs. B. E. Bedwell, of 827 Provencher Ave., St. Boniface, Winnipeg. Mrs. Bedwell had a cut finger, which became poisoned. She says:—"It became swollen and discolored, and my whole arm ached and throbbed violently. I called in a doctor and he lanced it. You may imagine how I suffered, and despite the doctor's treatment the finger again festered, and got so bad that the doctor advised me to go into the hospital. I feared, if I did, they would cut it off, so refused. One day we were advised to try Zam-Buk. We left off everything else and gave this balm a trial. Well, it only took about four days to draw out the soreness! Then, bit by bit, it began to heal, and in less than three weeks from first applying the Zam-Buk the finger was healed and perfectly healthy. If only I had got Zam-Buk at first!"

All skin injuries and diseases are cured by Zam-Buk. ● Eczema, eruptions, pimples, ulcers, piles, inflamed patches, cuts, burns, scalp sores, chaps, etc., cannot resist its healing virtue. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse all imitations. ●

Ravages of Consumption
ALL HER RELATIVES HAD DIED OF CONSUMPTION

In the year 1890, 18 years ago, Mrs. C. S. Cesner, of Belle Isle, N.S., was in a sad condition. All her relatives had died of consumption, and there was every indication that she was going the same way.

At this point her husband suggested to try Psychine. The doctor who attended said Psychine was worthless; but it effected a wonderful cure. Eighteen years after in a letter bearing date August 14, 1908, Mrs. Cesner says, "I am better than I have been for years. My lungs have not troubled me since I took your treatment. My physician told me I could not take a better tonic than PSYCHINE, and I recommend it to all who are suffering from Lung Trouble and General Debility."

An Unexpected Confession;

"Ah! child! child! what a reproof you have been to me from the very first of my acquaintance with you!" exclaimed the woman, sadly, when she concluded; "honor, kindness and charity have been your watchwords, and nobly you have lived up to them. I believe but for this very fact, I never should have made this confession. I should have carried my load of sin to the grave. You taught me that honesty and a clear conscience were more to be desired than all the treasures of earth, and directly after coming abroad, I started for Irvington Manor to restore my stolen jewel to the man whom I had doubly wronged. But he was dead—the manor was closed and the property unsettled—so I was told; thus my repentance seemed to have come too late, for I told myself that I could never humble myself enough to confess my guilt to the present generation. But when Mrs. King told me the story of your marriage; that you were now Lady Irvington, and heiress to everything, the memory of all your kindness inspired me with the desire to tell you all, and restore to you the long-lost heirloom. The knowledge that young Donald Lancaster—who is the son of the man whom I have loved all my life—is soon to become your husband, has made the task somewhat easier, for you both are very dear to me, and it will be a great comfort to me to know that the Irvington heirlooms will be handed down intact to your children. I most earnestly hope that you will have a long and happy life. I am a poor, disappointed old woman, homeless and friendless——"

"But I thought you had a niece!" Esther interposed, with surprise.

"I have; a selfish, heartless woman, who has only tolerated me for the sake of what she hoped to get out of me; and when, to-day, I took the ruby from her and told her that I was going to do with it, she angrily turned me out of her house, and told me to go to the almshouse for all she cared," Miss Percival explained, and looking very forlorn.

"How very unkind!" said Esther, regretfully.

"But I shall not quite come to that; I have a little money left yet, and I shall try to get into some old people's home——"

"Indeed, you shall not!" Esther here interposed, her lovely face glowing with noble generosity; "you shall come to live with me, at Irvington Manor."

"No, no!" said the woman, deeply agitated.

"Yes, yes!" retorted Esther, with playful authority. "Why! just think," she went on, smilingly, "if you had chosen, you would have been Lady Irvington to-day, and ruling there instead of your humble servant; besides, you say that Donald and I are dear to you, and I am sure you might be quite content with us; and, recollect, but for you, I should not be here now, and so happy in view of my future prospects."

She could say no more just then, for Miss Percival was weeping, her heart, long unsusceptible, stirred to its very depths by this sweet sympathy from one who was of no kin to her.

And this is how the twin rubies were reunited, and became once more precious heirlooms in the Irvington family. And this is how, too, a miserly, disappointed and ill-natured old woman found a little later a happy home in her old age, where under the influence of a sweet and sunny nature she gradually grew sweet and sunny also.

* * * * *

Two months later, Humbert King, experiencing almost the pride and gladness of a father, led beautiful Esther Irvington down the central aisle of St. George's Church, Hanover Square, and gave her away to the young man who, in every way, was so worthy of her.

It was a large and fashionable wedding, and the church was crowded with distinguished people. The stately bride was regal in her trailing robe of heavy Lyons satin, with its costly garniture of the finest of duchess lace.

She wore no veil, because of her former marriage, but her ornaments of pearls and diamonds might have been worthy of a king's ransom.

There were no bridesmaids, but Daisy Cushman made a charming little maid of honor, while Frank had been detailed to act as the best man for Donald.

Among the numerous guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster, who had become entirely reconciled to the marriage of their son with the beautiful lady of Irvington Manor, who, in their estimation, was a totally different person from the despised little apron maker of New York.

Miss Marjorie Dexter was suddenly recalled (?) to Philadelphia, upon the first intimation of Donald's plans, and, later, married a wealthy porkpacker of Cincinnati.

Mrs. Cushman and Madge were also present at the wedding, strange as it may seem.

When Esther sent her petition asking that Daisy and Frank might be allowed to officiate as maid and best man, she sweetly intimated that, on her wedding day, she wanted to feel at peace with all the world, and so requested that all the family of her mother's adopted brother would be present at her marriage.

Mrs. Cushman yielded, for the sake of the prestige which would result from the fact of being numbered among Lady Irvington Lancaster's friends; but the old bitterness still rankled in her heart, and a fierce jealousy also, because Esther had attained a position so far superior to her own.

A brilliant reception followed at the elegant residence of the Kings, after which Donald and his wife went away for a long holiday, to travel on the Continent and visit the far East.

They were absent six months, and upon their return immediately took possession of Irvington Manor.

Meantime Madge Cushman had married an American whom she met in Paris, and had returned to New York. Mrs. Cushman and Daisy remained in London, to be near Frank, who had gone to Eton to complete his college course.

One day, shortly after Esther was settled at Irvington Manor, Frank Cushman came to her in great distress.

"Esther," he exclaimed, holding out a trembling hand to her as she came into his presence, "my mother is dying. Can you—will you come with me to her?—she has asked for you—she wants you."

"Certainly, I will go to her," said the young wife, with a readiness that made Frank regard her with wondering eyes, for he had been almost sure that he would be obliged to plead with her to grant his request.

She hastened at once to make ready, and they were soon on their way to London, where, upon their arrival, they were driven to a third-rate lodging house; and here Esther found Mrs. Cushman, dying with quick consumption.

She greeted the girl, whom she had once despised, with an eagerness that was pathetic.

"I was afraid you would not come," she panted; "I had no right to expect you; but, Esther, I am dying, and I have lost all my money. Frank has supported us for the last three months by clerking in a dry-goods house."

"Can that be possible!" said Esther, in sad surprise. "Does Madge know this?" she questioned, knowing that the girl had married well.

Mrs. Cushman flushed, then answered:

"Yes—Madge knows; but—she has cares of her own, and cannot be troubled; besides, her husband has lost a great deal—we both invested heavily in stocks, and lately they have depreciated very much."

"Oh, how sorry I am!" said Esther, earnestly. "Why—why didn't you let me know——"

"Frank wouldn't——"

"Of course I wouldn't—how could I, Esther, after—after all the past?" the young fellow burst forth passionately, and flushing scarlet from shame.

"Hush!" said the young wife, as she laid a gentle hand upon his arm; then she turned a kindly glance again upon his mother.

"Madge will take Daisy,"—the woman resumed; "but she will do nothing for Frank, poor boy! whose heart has been set on finishing his course; and now Daisy refuses to go to Madge—they never got on well together—and I am almost distracted about both of them," the invalid concluded, bursting into nervous weeping.

"I do not think that Madge is the proper one to have the care of Daisy," Esther thoughtfully observed, when she became a little more calm; "the child requires tact and judgment to guide her aright; suppose you let her come to me, Mrs. Cushman; she shall be like a younger sister to me, and I will see that she has every advantage which you could desire for her."

"Can—you — do it — Esther!" panted the death-stricken mother.

In her selfish heart she had hoped that this would be just what Esther would do; and yet, knowing how she had wronged her in the past, she had hardly dared expect it.

"I love Daisy very tenderly, and my home shall be her home until she finds another that will be more attractive to her," Esther kindly replied.

Mrs. Cushman did not attempt to thank her; she felt that words would seem like sounding brass in view of the cruelty of which she had been guilty, when the girl had been an inmate of her home, five years previous. She wondered if she remembered, while making these plans for Daisy, how she had driven her from her house—the only home she had—when she had come down with the "slow typhoid fever," which she pretended to fear so much.

But a terrible burden had rolled from her heart at the assurance that Daisy, her pet, her baby, should be cared for; and she knew, too, that it was no half-hearted promise; she knew that Esther would do her utmost for her, and she need not suffer another pang of fear regarding her future. Ah! if she could feel as sure that Frank would be under as good influences, she would die content.

As if discerning something of what was in her mind, Esther remarked, as she bent a friendly smile upon her youthful admirer:

"I am also going to keep my eye upon Frank—he will want to see Daisy occasionally while he remains at Eton."

"But I'm not going to Eton any more," Frank here interposed, but with a suspicious quiver of his under lip. "I have my living to earn."

"I think it would be poor economy, Frank, to give up a course that is half finished," his friend replied; "I am sure it can be arranged for you to go on, and then the living will be more easily earned, afterward."

"Esther! Esther!" breathed the sick woman, her proud spirit utterly crushed at last, and catching her jeweled hand she laid it to her lips and kissed it, groaning in spirit as she remembered how, once, she had struck the face now looking so sympathetically upon her.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" HER SALVATION

MADAM JOSEPH LIRETTE
No. 111 George St., Sorel, Que.

"For seven years I suffered from womb disease and dreadful torturing pains, and I had constant Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation—the latter so bad that sometimes I went ten days without action of the bowels. Six different doctors treated me and for a year I was in bed, constantly facing death. Then my husband coaxed me to try "Fruit-a-tives" and this medicine, and nothing else, cured me and saved my life."

UNNATURAL THINNESS EASILY CORRECTED.

By Clever Prescription Which Can Be Filled at Any Drug Store.

No Need to be Thin Now as Reports Show This Method Effective.

People who are very thin and scrawny ought not to be so. Undoubtedly they are more subject to disease and contagions than the normally fleshy. Thinness is usually accompanied by weakness, and weakness subjects any one to colds, coughs, consumption, pneumonia, etc. It has been discovered, almost by accident, that tincture cadomene, when combined in a prescription with proper accelerative medicines, becomes one of the most valuable, effective and reliable nutritive or flesh making medicines known to science. It is especially beneficial to men and women between the ages of sixteen and fifty-five, who from lack of proper nerve force and digestion, remain undeveloped in body, limbs, arms and bust. A well rounded symmetrical figure in man or woman indicate health, magnetism, stamina and happiness.

The reader who wishes to add from ten to forty pounds should not fail to begin with this valuable prescription:

First, obtain of any well stocked druggist, three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol. Shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom). Shake well and take one teaspoonful before each meal, one after each meal. Drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Keep up this treatment regularly and of a certainty from one to three pounds will be added to the weight each week, and the general health will also imporve.

THE BO'SUN'S MEMORY.

On a certain occasion when George III. proposed to visit a man-of-war at Portsmouth, the captain, who was a religiously-disposed man, was thrown into great consternation lest his crew or the officers under him should fail in proper respect.

The boatswain, though an invaluable seaman, was a particular source of fear; and, knowing from the familiar habits of His Majesty that he would probably have something to say to each one on board, the captain called this man aside and informed him how he should behave.

"Mind especially," said the captain, "that he must always be called 'your Majesty.'"

The boatswain seemed very tractable, and the captain was pleased; but his worst fears were verified when, on the King addressing some question to the boatswain, that seaman stammered, twitched at his waistband in mental perplexity, and at length turned towards the captin, exclaiming:—

"There, cap'n; hanged if I arn't forgot it! What did you say I was to call the old buffer?"

A CONVENIENCE TO DROVERS.

A Branch of the Traders Bank at the Union Stock Yards, Toronto.

The new branch of the Traders Bank which has been opened in the Exchange Building at the Union Stock Yards, Toronto, will prove a great convenience to drovers who have business on the Exchange.

ARRESTED FOR SNEEZING.

The most silent town in Europe is (or rather was until recently) not Bruges apparently, but Driesen-Vordamm, in Brandenburg. Here the municipal regulation with regard to street noises are so strict that a visitor a short while ago was fined five marks for sneezing out of doors. The stranger refused to pay, and though assured that this small fee saved him from the properly deserved punishment of prison, he remained unmoved by the expression of generosity and preferred to argue the matter out in the local courts. He was eventually acquitted, but since the verdict the head of the police of Driesen-Vordamm refuses to answer for order in the streets of that locality.

EDWARD VII.

The news of the death of King Edward VII. came as a painful surprise to his loyal subjects the world round and to the nations of the earth. There had been no alarming reports regarding his health which would serve to prepare the public for the sad announcement that the greatest king that had ever reigned in Britain had laid aside the sceptre and rested from his labor. Less than than ten years have passed since, by the death of Victoria the Good, he succeeded to the throne, but that brief period had served to dissipate any solicitude that had been felt by pessimists as to his being a worthy successor to her late Majesty. He took up the work that she laid down, declaring his intention to follow her illustrious example as ruler of the British Empire, and well he realized this promise. With each succeeding year he grew into the affection of his people. He identified himself with their affairs till all felt that their interests were his, and so well did he do his duty that when he laid aside his crown, the interest of the throne was at its maximum. Not less did he serve his country in its international relations. When the history of his reign shall be written it will be disclosed that the great force, making for 'Peace on earth' and 'good will amongst men,' allaying suspicion and distrust, quieting forces big with the potency of war, converting enemies into friends, and bidding the world love one another, was the personality of Edward the Peacemaker.

GEORGE V.

The King is dead. Long live the King. Upon the death of his father, King Edward VII, the Prince of Wales automrtically became King and assumed a burden which well might make the stoutest heart quail. While his father had done much to improve the relations of the Empire with the nations of the earth there are international conditions which cannot be viewed without anxiety, while relations within the Kingdom call for the highest statesmanship on the part of its rulers and the utmost resource of its Sovereign. Had the prayer of Britain been answered Edward VII. would have lived for years to come. His judgment was trusted; his skill and statecraft were deemed invincible, and he could guide Britain safely through the troubled waters of home and foreign affairs.

But can George V. do it?

There are those who say that Britain's loss is irrepairable. Such will do well to remember that similar forebodings were expressed during the closing years of the reign of Victoria. The sequel has proved that they were groundless and that if anything the stability of the throne was strengthened and its influence widened. George V. has had all the advantages of his father's counsel as well as his example, and he has declared his intention to serve as did his father so the hope may be reasonably cherished that under his rule the throne and empire may come to a splendor heretofore unknown. The young King will have the sympathy and prayers of his loyal subjects that he may have wisdom to rule in righteousness.

DAMMING THE ST. LAWRENCE.

A group of American capitalists are asking the Canadian and the United States governments for a very valuable privilege on the St. Lawrence river They want the right to generate approximately 600,000 h.p. of electric energy by damming that river at the Long Sault rapids near Cornwall. It is a somewhat difficult matter to realize at once just what that means; but when we are told that it would take pretty nearly one half of the yearly output of all the coal mines in Canada to produce the same amount of 24-hour horse power, it can readily be seen how valuable such a privilege would be—to the capitalists at least. To Eastern Ontario, corporation control of that enormous energy might not be so advantageous. Large corporations with monopoly privileges have ever been noted for their strict adherence to the law of monopoly price, i.e. exacting as high a price as is compatible with the greatest possible profit. With them the interests of the consuming public are but incidental to corporation profits.

But there are other more serious objections to the scheme. These have been concisely set forth by the Commission of Conservation in a report on the project made last February before the International Waterways Commission—the tribunal that is to report upon the advisability of the proposed dam. The report of the Commission of Conservation stated that Canadian interests are given a minimum consideration in the company's plans. Of the total proposed development only a small portion (one-sixth) would be developed on the Canadian side of the river. The Canadian market, it states, cannot at present absorb its half of the proposed development and, should power be exported to the United States, the vested interests it would create there would prevent its subsequent withdrawal to meet the future needs of Canadian industry. Moreover, the company proposes a new channel for navigation on the American side of the river, the approach to which would be beset with pangerous currents. Thus, if permission were given to build the dam, not only would it be exceedingly difficult for Canada to proceed with the deepening of the navigable channel of the St. Lawrence, but an all-Canadian route from Lake Suporior to the ocean would become a dream of the past.

NOTES.

George V has requested that business be continued with interruption, except during the day upon which the late King will be buried at Windsor, on Friday, May 20th.

Canada will be represented at the King's funeral by Hon. Mr. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice; Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture; and by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada. It would have met the popular wish if the Prime Minister of Canada could have attended in person.

SUMMER RESORTS.

—:o:—

Experience, the testimony of thousands, and the popularity of the several fishing, hunting and touring districts located on the lines of the Grand Trunk Railway System, is conclusive proof that they are the Elysium of the Sportsman, and the Mecca par excellence of the tourist.

The "Highlands of Ontario" is a land dotted with Lakes and Rivers; rivers that have their source in the northern forests and flow until they join the vast inland seas, Superior, Huron, Erie or Ontario, whose waters are in turn, borne by the broad St. Lawrence to the Atlantic Ocean. This great Tourist Railway reaches all the principal resorts in this vast territory, including Lakes Orillia and Couchiching, the Muskoka Lakes, a popular resort 1000 feet above sea level, where thousands of people annually make their summer homes for rest and recuperation. The Lake of Bays District where some of the finest hotels in Canada are to be found, and a locality replete with natural beauty and loveliness, with splendid fishing—Magnetawan River, the very heart centre for sport—for rod and gun—Lake Nipissing and French River, where wild and rugged scenery is to be found, and the atmosphere filled with health giving properties; splendid fishing and hunting grounds are found in this territory, the Temagami region, a forest reserve containing 3,750,000 acres of lakes, rivers and wilderness, the scenic grandeur of which is incomparable. Magnificent fishing and hunting in season. The 30,000 Islands of the Georgian Bay is another most delightful and beautiful territory, where the most interesting trips may be taken. The steady increase of travellers to this locality is alone proof that it is becoming the most popular resort on the Inland lakes. The Algonquin National Park of Ontario, a comparatively new and attractive region, little known to the lover of Rod and Gun and the tourist, has all the summer attractions that appeal to the denizen of the city. This territory has been set aside by the Provincial Government of Ontario, solely for the delectation of mankind. The gamiest of black bass, speckled trout and salmon trout are found here in goodly numbers. Hunting is not allowed. The Algonquin Park covers an area of 2,000 000 acres, there being no less than 1,200 lakes and rivers within its boundaries.

Good hotel accomodation is found in all the districts mentioned, and a postal card addressed to the General Advertising Department, Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, will receive prompt attention, and illustrated publications of any of the districts will be quickly sent to all enquirers.

RISING COST OF NAVIES

HUGE SUMS EUROPE SPENDS FOR BATTLESHIPS.

$600,000,000 by Germany—$200,000,000 for a Year's British Naval Expenses.

Germany's Navy Act of 1900 fixed the battleship strength of the fleet at thirty-eight vessels, which were to be completed by 1916. It also provided that fourteen large armored cruisers should be in commission by the same date. In 1906 a fresh Navy Act was passed by the Reichstag, its most important feature being an addition of six large cruisers to the standard fixed in 1900. In 1907 the Navy Act of 1906 was altered, the size and cost of the twenty large armored cruisers to be built being increased.

Basing his statements upon the foregoing facts, Col. Gaedke, the naval critic, has written an article in the Berliner Tageblatt in which he points out that Germany is creating a fleet not of thirty-eight battleships, as provided by the Navy Act of 1900, but of fifty-eight battleships, the twenty large cruisers being equivalent in size and strength to first-class battleships. He also asserts that the German armament policy has apparently abandoned the principle that the prestige of the Fatherland depends on the army and maintains that the expansion of naval armaments is gradually outstripping the requirements for the defence of the

EMPIRE'S TRADE AND COASTS

"The time is gradually approaching, indeed," says Col. Gaedke, "when the German fleet will be superior to all fleets in the world, with the single exception of the British. It was so unimpeachable a witness as the Kreuz Zeitung which told us a couple of months ago that our fleet was making such rapid progress that in 1911 it would be superior to that of the United States, even limiting calculations to the strictly modern type of vessels.

"It is officially admitted that in the Spring of 1912 Britain will have twenty completed Dreadnoughts, the United States twelve, Germany eleven and France six. Thenceforward our relative strength will rapidly increase, so that in 1914, for example, we shall possess nineteen Dreadnoughts against the sixteen of the United States.

"In the six years between 1898 and 1903 Germany's expenditure on new ships was $120,470,000. During the succeeding six years we spent $195,475,000 on new ships, and in 1908 and 1909 $91,775,000 or vastly more than either France or the United States devoted to the same purpose.

"Until 1914 at least the German disbursement for new vessels and armaments will be still more strongly emphasized. In 1911, for example, the programme calls for more than $65,000,000. In the last twelve years Germany has spent on new ships alone $316,000,000, and between now and 1914 will spend another $287,500,000."

AN ILLUSTRATION.

The readiness of Germany to expand her fleet regardless of expense was illustrated on Thursday last when the Budget Committee of the Reichstag passed without debate the Admiralty's estimate for new armor for the current year. The sum of $21,482,500 for the artillery of new battleships, cruisers and torpedo boats and for mine floating apparatus was voted without any suggestion or objection from any quarter.

At a recent meeting of the French Council of Ministers the Minister of Marine made a statement on the subject of his negotiations with the Navy Committee of the Chamber of Deputies. He announced that the designs for the six new 23,457-ton battleships have been drawn up and approved in all particulars.

No alterations were contemplated, and the ships were to be laid down at the rate of two a year—in 1910, 1911 and 1912. The 1910 and 1912 ships were to be constructed in the naval dockyards at Brest and L'Orient, respectively, while the 1911 pair were to be built by private contract. The period of construction for each ship was fixed at three years.

The ships were to be armed with twelve 305 millimeter guns and 22 138.6 millimeter guns. Their speed was to be between 20 and 21 knots, with a steaming capacity of 2,300 miles at 20 knots, and 28,000 horse-power.

THE HEAVY GUNS.

which are of the 1906 50-calibre type, firing a 440 kilogram melinite shell, will be disposed in pairs in six turrets. The arrangements of the turrets, four along the centre line of the ship and one on each side amidships, will permit ten guns to be fired broadside and eight guns ahead or astern. The fore turrets are to be about eight feet higher than the aft turrets, and the highest placed gun will be nearly 38 feet, while the lowest will be over 21 feet above the water line.

The secondary armament will be arranged in eight independent batteries, each with a radius of fire of 120 degrees. Six batteries of three of these 138.6 millimeter guns will be disposed along the sides of the ship, while the remaining four will be situated low in the stern. The arrangement will allow six of these guns to be fired ahead and ten astern.

The armor will consist of an armored belt 270 millimeters thick at the two ends. The armored decks will be 70 and 48 millimeters thick. The battleships will cost $13,400,000 each, including $900,000 worth of ammunition. Each battleship is to have a reserve of $1,360,000 worth of ammunition.

INCREASE OF $16,000,000.

The large increase in the impending British naval estimates show a rise of over $16,000,000 above last year's estimates. Engineering says that the new estimates will total $200,000,000, the largest sum that has ever been asked for by the British Admiralty in the ordinary estimates of any one year. It marks an advance of £75,000,000 on the total of ten years ago. For the year now closing the gross total was $186,750,000. Four battleships are said to be included in the new programme.

According to Engineering, Great Britain has been forced into this increase by the growth of expenditure of other Governments. It adds that the cost of the eight battleships which are to be ready by April, 1912, is $10,000,000 apiece.

The battleship Vanguard, the eighth ship of the Dreadnought type to be completed for the British navy, was placed in commission at Devonport the other day. In her main armament the Vanguard shows a great advance. Earlier ships have ten .45 calibre 12-inch guns. The Vanguard's weapons — the same in number—are five calibres longer, giving them a muzzle velocity of 53,400 foot tons, compared with the 47,697 foot tons of the shorter guns. The distribution is the same as in the first Dreadnought, that is to say, the Vanguard can fire eight guns on the broadside and

SIX AHEAD OR ASTERN.

Admiral Calabritto, of the Italian navy, has devised a system by which funnels on torpedo boats and destroyers, and possibly on larger vessels also, may be abolished. The smoke is led off in ventilating shafts laid along the sides of the ship, and tests have shown that the invention is doubly satisfactory in that it reduces the heat in the stokeholds. It has been practically decided to adopt Admiral Calabritto's system on all the smaller Italian war craft.

A naval expert, commenting upon this invention, says that it follows as a matter of course upon the advent of the airship and aeroplane. Their entry into the area of sea warfare, it is affirmed, must react on the design of warships, some defence against bomb dropping being an essential feature of their construction. First of all, there will be the removal of structures on the upper deck, and Admiral Calabritto's invention removes the largest fitting of all, the funnel. This writer predicts that warships of the future will possess armored decks as smooth and sloping as a turtle's back to ward off overhead attack.

WALLS DIDN'T FALL.

So Reports a German Explorer at Work in the Holy Land.

The latest reports sent home by Prof. Sellin, who is in charge of one of the two German expeditions at work in the Holy Land, concerned the results of excavations at Ericha, better known to the Christian world as Jericho.

Notwithstanding the recorded falling down of its walls the triple belt of masonry round Jericho, according to Prof. Sellin, is excellently preserved and inside are still the remains of the walls of the dwelling houses of the city, some of them to a height of a couple of yards or more.

The houses are small, those of the Canaanite princes being distinguished from those of the ordinary inhabitants only by the greater number of the rooms. Many utensils have been found of stone in the time of the Canaanites, of bronze since the year 2,000 B. C. and of iron since the year 1,000 B. C.

The stone altars of the Canaanite period were an exceptionally interesting find. They were mostly erected to Astarte, the goddess of fecundity, and hard by are the remains of the places where the urns containing the bodies of sacrificed children were deposited. About the year 1000 B. C. is the date of the characteristic Israelite forts, but it was not until 500 years later that idols ceased to be worshipped, the sacrifice of children to cease and the simple name of the Israelite's God, Jehovah, to be used.

KING'S VISIT TO CANADA

FIFTY YEARS SINCE HE CAME TO THIS COUNTRY.

Incidents of The Trip of His Majesty, Then Prince of Wales.

This year is the golden anniversary of King Edward's visit to Canada and there are many living in the Dominion to-day who can recall when the gallant young Prince of Wales, then in his 19th year, embarked for Canada on H. M. S. Hero at Plymouth on July 9th, 1860. Rear Admiral Sir R. Massie Blomfield writes interestingly of the visit the Prince made to Canada in a recent number of The Army and Navy Gazette.

"The Hero had been a month in the hands of the officials of Davenport dock," the article says, "fitting for the embarkation of the Prince and his suite; but, like the arrangement of the royal yacht, there was an absence of any luxury in the accommodation and decorations, His Royal Highness sleeping in an ordinary ship's cot slung in the Commodore's fore-cabin.

The Prince Consort accompanied his son to Plymouth in the Victoria and Albert and spent a couple of hours with him on board the Hero, when the officers of the ship were presented to him, but returned before 8 in the evening. The Hero took her departure for Portsmouth at dawn, followed by a royal salute.

It took the Prince a fortnight to cross the ocean, that time having elapsed before the heir to the throne of Great Britain set foot on shore at St. John, Newfoundland. Persistent head winds and fogs were encountered en route and the cold, wet fog enwrapped the city so densely at times that the mainmast could not be discerned from the poop.

The Hero was accompanied by the Ariadne, and another warship. The Flying Fish, left previously for St. John, Newfoundland. These noble steeds of Neptune, of which the British people were so proud in these days, have been exhibited one by one in Rotten Row since and have long since passed to the scrap heap.

Some danger from ice bergs was evident during the voyage and the Commodore gave orders to arouse him during the nights if a decided change in the temperature was shewn. Five degrees was the minimum change at which he was to be notified. At one occasion the Commodore was aroused and given an anxious ten minutes before he discovered that the temperature had risen, not fallen.

FINE RECEPTIONS.

Toronto, Newfoundland, Halifax, Quebec, Montreal and Niagara and other cities were visited by the Prince of Wales and everywhere he was received with truly affectionate and genuine loyalty and enthusiastic receptions given him. He was entertained at a constant succession of balls, picnics and free passes with hotel accommodation on all the railway lines. The Prince saw Blondin, who was then in the height of his glory, cross the famous Niagara rapids on a hawser, and the daring rope walker wanted to take the Prince over in a wheel barrow, as he had successfully done the empty barrow.

One incident alone of the Prince's land journeys must be recorded. It was during a Royal lunch at Brantford, on the railway line from London to Niagara, when a bevy of fair damsels invaded the cloakroom, unseen, and carried off all the black bands from the white top-hats of the Royal party in order to make sure of securing amongst them the one belonging to the Prince as a precious relic of his memorable visit. The young ladies of Quebec had at the same time carried off every tag from the green tassel of the bell-rope which hung over the Prince's cot on board the Hero.

The journey from the Dominion through the United States, where the Prince was hailed with the greatest enthusiasm, differed from his Canadian one in being "incognito," and as "Lord Renfrew," instead of Prince of Wales:

"By a strange coincidence,' says Sir Gardner Engleheart in his "Journal printed for private circulation," "the squadron arrived at Portland on the very day and almost at the very hour on which just 85 years ago a British fleet of six sail, under Capt. Mowatt, entered the harbor (of Portland) with orders to burn, sink and destroy the town which had just given a hearty welcome to the officers of the squadron, has entertained them at a grand ball, and is now taking enthusiastic leave of the Prince. At 3.45 p.m. (on October 20), we were on board the Hero once more and under weigh for England."

THE VOYAGE HOME.

And now commenced for the Royal party a tedious voyage of twenty-four days, with strong head winds during the last fortnight. On November 5 we were within 410 miles of our destination, when the strong easterly head wind increased to a gale, and so continued for nine days more. Much of the fifteen days' coal on board when we left Portland had already been consumed when the gale sprang up, and, moreover, it was impossible for a 90-gun line-of-battle ship to make headway under steam against the mountainous Atlantic sea, and we were compelled to near our port as best we could close-hauled under treble-reefed topsails for several days. By noon on the 12th we were still 300 miles from Plymouth, and the next day only 50 miles nearer. The weather, however, was bright and beautiful, with plenty of blue sky, and on November 9, the anniversary of the birth of his Royal Highness—which was to have been spent at Windsor with their Majesties the Queen and Prince Consirt—was celebrated at sea during the gale, whilst Her Majesty was holding a review and distributing Victoria Crosses to distinguished soldiers in the Home Park our Royal Squadron was dressing ship and saluting, while we observed the guns of the Ariadne almost dipping. The prolonged absence of the Prince had caused the Queen and Prince Consort serious anxiety, and two fast frigates had been sent to look for the missing Hero. At ten a.m. on the day of our arrival the Queen received the gratifying intelligence of the safe return of his Royal Highness, who landed at 11 a.m., and after receiving congratulatory addresses from the authorities of Plymouth and Devonport, left by train and reached Windsor Castle at 6.45 the same evening. The log of the Hero records that when the Standard of his Royal Highness was transferred from that ship to the shore "three heartier cheers were never given than by the Hero's officers and men, who one and all felt the parting with those who had traveled on the deep with them for so many miles, and who, during that time, by their universal kindness, have won the hearts of all on board." "And thus ends," (in the words of its historian, Sir G. Engleheart) "a record of the most remarkable tour of modern days."

CURIOUS ADVENTURE.

A Hunter's Experience With a Grizzly Bear.

While hunting wild goats in northern British Columbia, Mr. W. H. Wright had a peculiar experience which shows that in hunting, as in other matters, it is more often than not the unexpected that happens. In his book, "The Grizzly Bear," he describes the incident.

Mr. Pope joined me the last of August, and we worked our way back to where I had seen the goats, this being the game we had come to hunt.

When near the point where we intended to leave our horses, I looked up to our right, and on top of the ridge, above the timber line, saw a large grizzly, running for all he was worth.

I called Pope's attention to him, and as he was entirely out of range, being some eight hundred yards away, and as we supposed from his rapid flight that he had seen us, we sat quietly on the horses and looked at him. The horses, too, saw the bear, and they also watched him.

For two hundred yards or so he continued his flight, and then, to our amazement, he turned down the ridge and came straight toward us on the jump. This was another story. We both dismounted. I held the horses by their heads, so they could not make any disturbance, and Pope stepped a few feet ahead and dropped on one knee, ready for a shot in case the bear came near enough.

The bear came down on down-hill at the same mad gait until he had covered half the distance and was not over four hundred yards above us, when he dashed into a little thicket of fir bushes and disappeared.

We discussed our chances of crawling up to him. We saw the bushes sway, out jumped the grizzly and down he came straight toward us It seemed as if he must surely have seen us, and he actually came up within a hundred and fifty yards of us, when he turned to the left, stopped, and commenced digging out a ground-squirrel.

This was our chance. The bear was standing broadside on, and Pope fired. He hit him just back of the shoulder, and pierced the heart. It was a good shot.

The bear turned a somersault, cart-wheeled down toward us, and never stopped until he landed in the little trail that we were following.

This was Pope's first grizzly, and from the stories he had been told of how wild these bears were and how hard to kill, he had felt that it was doubtful if he ever got one. Yet we had been standing, with the two horses, all the time in plain view. Not a bush screened us, and the horses kept their ears pointed forward and watched the bear from the time he left the ridge until Pope shot him.

A man may be a power in financial circles and still be on the square.

A GREAT POLICE FORCE

THE N. W. M. P. IS THE BEST IN THE WORLD.

In One Year They Established Order From the Lakes to the Rockies.

In the course of his simply eloquent address before the Canadian Club of Fort William, Col. Steele, formerly commander of the Strathcona Horse, and now in command of Military District No. 10, detailed the experiences of the North West Mounted Police in the early months of its existence.

Sanguinary disorders in Saskatchewan convinced the Canadian Government of the necessity for proper policing of the unorganized territory lying between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains. The first corps of Mounted Police was organized in 1873, and left Ottawa on October 1st of that year, Major Walsh in command, the present Col. Steele next in rank. The original force was three hundred men, with a few field pieces. Of these one hundred and fifty men were from Toronto under Sir George French.

SOME EARLY TROUBLES.

We had several setbacks at the outset. A corral was formed composed of all the wagons, and one of the severe storms of the Red River Valley came up. The horses were inside the corral, tied up with the usual picket lines. A thunder-bolt burst in the corral. The horses broke everything, upset the loaded waggons and went through water five or six feet deep. They swam the Pembina River and went south with a rush. Those of us who were mounted made after them and brought them back—one hundred and twelve miles in twenty-four hours.

Having rested the horses, we started west with a train of waggons two miles long and crossed the Souris River.

NO FEED FOR HORSES.

A small force was sent up to the foothills with a large supply to start a farm for the purpose of helping to maintain the force. Col. French proceeded west with the rest until we crossed the Dirt Hills and away beyond to the forks of the Belly River. There was no track. We took observations for latitude and longitude, and as there were few places marked on the map, we struck within five miles of the point we were intended to reach. The 4th of September came and the usual autumn storms. We saw that we couldn't keep the horses alive, as no oats had been allowed We couldn't carry them such a long distance. The horses were living on what they could get, and the grass was thin then on account of the enormous number of buffaloes.

RECORD MARCH.

Before the winter closed in Col. French led the whole force to Swan river, and leaving one troop there, returned to the starting point on the Red river. This march totalled 1,950 miles, the longest ever made by a force carrying its own supplies. Scouting parties were detached at various points on the march, and Col. McLeod suppressed the whiskey traffic in the district around where McLeod now stands.

GREAT BUFFALO HERDS.

Col. French went up to Swan River next spring. In those days we had twenty-nine thousand Sioux Indians from across the line to look after. Once we saw ninety thousand buffaloes on the march, and skins were taken in scores of thousands. In the following summer we started south to the Ant Hills and put down the whiskey trade. In the following winter we were out fifteen days with the temperature from 42 to 46 below zero.

PEACE AND GOOD WILL.

But no one complained. We felt first rate. The result of that one year was that no matter where you went you could sleep in comfort on the prairie. A lady could have ridden through the Blackfoot district and no man would meddle with her. It was the same all over the west. The fact that the redcoats were there was enough. They treated the Indians well. We have seen the Indians ride two and three miles out of their way to come and shake hands and pass on.

ONLY THE USUAL.

He had waited out in the wind and rain for ten long minutes before the door was opened on the chain, and a woman's face—to be polite—appeared at the aperture.

"Good morning, madam!" began the street-hawker in his suavest tones. "I have here a little article of universal utility. It is called the Marvellous Mice Exterminator, and the pri——"

"No use!" interrupted the woman firmly. "We have no marvellous mice in this house; only the ordinary kind."

Then the door slammed to, and the hawker was once more alone.

ATMOSPHERE OF CITIES.

Sunshine Lessens as Population Increases.

German cities are studying their atmospheric conditions. The fact that sunshine lessens as population becomes more dense, and especially when the activity of industrial centers expands superficially and increases in intensity, has long been noted. An increasing tendency to fog has also been observed, and both are effects of the imperfect and incomplete combustion of coal.

Modern industry pays toll for this in the injury of delicate fabrics, the general depreciation in the value of many articles of trade and household use, and the increased cost of cleansing. Since the battle is waged with growing energy against tuberculosis, physicians and students of social science feel that the problem of purer air for the dwellers in cities has become primarily important.

Statistics have been collected for some time. They demonstrate how little sunshine falls to the lot of the residents of industrial cities even when the sun is obscured by smoke particles. In no German city has the loss of sunshine, due to fog, equalled that of London, where the foggy days during the three months, December, January and February, increased from eighteen to thirty-one during the last half of the last century.

Tail of the Great Comet

Camille Flammarion, the Astronomer, Discusses Its Composition.

Camille Flammarion, the famous French astronomer, in discussing Halley's comet and the question whether its tail will touch the earth, writes as follows:—

Our readers have learned of the ghastly experience of that modern Gribouille who, through fear of Halley's comet, committed suicide the other day in Hungary, preferring, he said, to kill himself in advance rather than to be killed by the wandering star. At the moment when more than one person is disquieted by the event of the night of May 18-19 next, and when the attention of the entire world is concentrated on the deeds and actions of the comet, while the astronomers are actively studying and vivaciously discussing the problem of comets, we think it is interesting to review here the suggestions which Mr. W. H. Pickering, of the Observatory of Harvard College, has just made apropos of Halley's comet and its approaching meeting with the earth.

The most important question for the majority of the inhabitants of our planet is to know whether the gigantic tail will be so extended as to sweep the surface of the globe or even to envelope us entirely in its waves of vapor. It is difficult to affirm anything up to the present time, but we can recall that in almost all its previous appearances this celebrated comet has spread in space an elegant tail, sometimes immense but generally of medium length. Nevertheless, on the occasion of its last visit in 1835, a remarkable phenomenon occurred; during its perihelion passage, which took place on Nov. 16, the comet lost its tail, so that when it reappeared on the other side of the sun it had the appearance of a round nebulosity, without an appendage, and it was only later, when it reached the distance of the planet Mars, that a new tail was formed.

The interplanetary wanderer had been found on Aug. 5, 1835, and it was on Oct. 2 that astronomers began to witness the birth of the first tail.

PRODIGIOUS ACTIVITY.

The nucleus, which until then had appeared feeble and small, Sir John Herschel relates, became suddenly much more brilliant. It seemed to be the seat of a prodigious activity, sending out to a great distance currents of light. This emission, after having stopped for a time, was renewed with still more violence, reaching its maximum intensity on Oct. 8, and continued with intermissions until the luminous matter, thrown out in whirlwinds and ejected backward in the direction opposite to the sun, had formed a nebulous and transparent mass. The tail was born.

During the period of this formation the luminous jets varied constantly in form and were projected sometimes from one part of the nucleus, sometimes from the other; its phases followed one another with such rapidity that from one day to the next its aspect showed considerable changes.

This variability of the luminous currents may be explained by a rotary movement of the nucleus about its axis, and this will be a phenomenon of particular interest to astronomers of Japan and Australia, who will observe in full daylight, on May 18 next, the passage of the comet's nucleus before the sun But it will also be necessary that the head of the comet possesses a certain consistency to remain visible during the time of its passage before the dazzling disc of the sun.

Now Mr. Pickering adds that the head of a comet is composed of a swarm of meteors and a small quantity of gas extremely rarefied, which can only be discovered by the spectroscope. These meteors must be very much separated from one another, for they do not prevent one seeing the background of the heavens, even through the central part of the nucleus. On the other hand, the occulation of a star by a comet has been observed several times, and it has always been noticed that the latter does not diminish or alter in any way the brightness of the color of the star in front of which it passes. This observation was made on Halley's comet itself in 1835 by Struve at Dorpat and by Glaisher in England, and more recently still on Dec. 5 last by Herr Archenhold, of the Treptow Observatory, Berlin, who saw the comet pass before a very pale star of the twelfth magnitude without altering its light or its color. We may conclude then that the sun will not undergo any change or any appreciable weakening from the fact of the comet's passage.

ATTEMPTS AT MEASUREMENT.

Nevertheless, it may be that among these meteors there are some very large ones and we ought to take advantage of the exceptionally favorable approach of the comet to endeavor to measure the size of these blocks. It is admitted that there can be distinguished a dark spot of a tenth of a second in diameter standing out from the background of a luminous disk.

At the distance of the comet on May 18, that is to say, twenty-three million kilometres, we might be able to see any opaque body measuring about 112 kilometres in width. We can hardly hope to discover solid masses of such a size in the nucleus, but it would be in itself an important result to learn with certainty that there do not exist projectiles so enormous in a comet's head. It will be for the astronomers stationed in the Far East to undertake this search, for they will be in the best conditions to follow the passage of the comet in broad daylight.

FOR EUROPEAN OBSERVERS.

European observers may see the tail cross their sky in the night of May 18 to 19, about two o'clock in the morning, Paris time. However, the exact hour will depend on the length of the tail at that moment and also its form. If it is slightly curved we will pass its axis a little later. The combined speed of the earth and of the tail at the moment of meeting will be 4,600 kilometres (2,875 miles) a minute, or 276,000 kilometres (172,500 miles) an hour. If observations can be made under good atmospheric conditions they will show us whether the tail is hollow or full, elliptical or circular in the plane of its section or, what is more probable, whether it is of irregular construction.

If it be admitted that this caudal appendage is exclusively composed of electrified gaseous molecules, very far apart one from the other, with which is mingled minute cosmic dust in insignificant quantity, the number of shooting stars which will appear on this famous night will not be as considerable as one might imagine. It is especially about May 6 that they should appear, when we will arrive in the vicinity of the comet's orbit. But we will doubtless witness some effect analogous to that of June 30, 1861. On that date it seems very probable that the earth traversed the tail of a comet, an event which, moreover, passed unperceived by the majority of the inhabitants of the terrestrial globe.

Nevertheless, Mr. Hind, the astronomer, in England, noticed in the heavens a very singular phosphorescent glow, and Mr. Lowe noted that the heavens presented a pale yellow appearance, recalling that of the aurora, although the sun was well below the horizon. This observation was recorded on the daily register of the parochial church before it became known that the earth had met the tail of a hairy star. The atmosphere was appreciably obscured and the comet presented a more nebulous appearance than on the preceding nights.

We see that if things pass as in 1835 it may be possible that the tail will not reach our world, because it will disappear after the perihelion passage, which will take place on April 20. On the other hand, Mr Barnard, the astronomer, of the Yerkes Observatory, has already measured the length of the present tail, on Feb. 3 and Feb. 10, and has found that length to be 8,000,000 kilometres. On the same dates the width of the head was 307,000 kilometres. The same astronomer remarks as to this fact that the considerable extent of the tail two months before the perihelion "gives hopes" that we will be completely immersed in that appendage on the date of May 18.

He who lives will see.

MOVING HELPS.

Packing China.—When packing chinaware to be moved some distance, use a barrel and pack closely with crumpled paper. Tack a piece of gunny sack over open end of barrel. Freight handlers will not think of sending the barrel end over end when unloading, the usual manner of smashing goods.

Small Glass.—Save the glass from all small picture frames that you discard for some reason or other to cover bowls or left over food that you put away in pantry or icebox, then when you want to use a certain one of them you see at a glance where it is without uncovering two or three others first. It will be found a great convenience.

The Ingredients Used In
NA-DRU-CO

Medicinal and Toilet Preparations are of the same high quality as those your druggist uses in filling your physician's prescriptions.

The National Drug and Chemical Company supplies the greater part of the drugs dispensed by the physicians and druggists of Canada, and it is probable that the ingredients used by your own druggist in his prescription work came from our warehouses.

From these same warehouses come the ingredients used by our expert chemists in compounding NA-DRU-CO preparations. Every ounce of material used in every NA-DRU-CO article is the best that our skilled buyers can select from the world's markets.

NA-DRU-CO TRADE MARK — ALWAYS LOOK FOR THIS TRADE MARK

We Can Afford

to use only the very best materials because, buying in immense quantities for our wholesale trade, we get the best crude drugs at rock bottom prices. In our chemical laboratories these raw materials are refined and prepared by expert chemists and subjected to rigid tests both for strength and purity before being used in NA-DRU-CO preparations.

NA-DRU-CO Cod Liver Oil Compound, for instance, is made from the best of materials, by our expert chemists, and is consequently the most perfect tonic. NA-DRU-CO Nervozone is another striking example of the results our skilled chemists get from good ingredients.

We Could Not Afford to use any but the finest and purest materials in each and every NA-DRU-CO preparation, because on the quality of each depends the future of the whole line. Linked together as they are by the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark, a single article found unreliable would go far to destroy your confidence in all NA-DRU-CO goods.

Ask your druggist about the quality of the drugs we supply to him—about our facilities for compounding superior medicinal and toilet preparations—about our reliability.

Go a little further if you like, and ask your physician or your druggist what goes into NA-DRU-CO preparations. They can tell you, for we will furnish to any physician or druggist in Canada, on request, a full list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO preparation.

"Money Back"

Furthermore, if any NA-DRU-CO article you buy does not entirely satisfy you, return it and your druggist will refund your money.

If your druggist has not the NA-DRU-CO article you want in stock he can get it for you within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

DISHES FOR THE SICK.

Toast for Garnishing. — For poached eggs, cut the bread into rounds with a large cake cutter before toasting. For small birds or asparagus, remove the crusts and cut into oblong pieces. For minces and fricassees, cut into small squares or diamonds. For a border, cut, after toasting, into inch and a half squares, and then into halves diagonally, making triangles; or cut into long pointed triangles.

Crisped Crackers.—Split butter crackers and spread with butter; put them, the buttered side up, in a pan, and brown in a hot oven. They are delicious with white and vegetable soups, and in fish chowder and oyster stews. They can be prepared in a short time, when it is not convenient to fry croutons or to toast over an open fire.

Toast.—Cut stale bread in thin slices. Place them in a fine wire broiler, and move the broiler over a clear fire, turning often, until the bread is a uniform golden brown color. If to be used dry serve at once. If for water toast, dip each slice quickly into hot salted water, spread with butter, and serve hot.

Milk Toast.—Put a pint of milk into a spider, and a large tablespoonful of butter, and let the milk boil about five minutes. Have the bread toasted till dry, but not burned. Put the slices in the milk and boil till quite soft. Remove to a dish and pour the milk over them.

Cream Toast.—One pint of milk or cream, two even tablespoonfuls flour, two tablespoonfuls butter, one-half teaspoon salt, and six slices dry toast. Heat the milk, melt the butter in a granite sauce pan, add the flour, mix well and stir in one-third of the milk. Stir till it thickens and is smooth, then add the remainder gradually. Add the salt. Dip the dry toast in hot salted water; put it in a deep dish and pour the thickened cream over each slice.

Broiled Fillets of Chicken.—Remove the bone from the breast and thighs. Rub the meat with butter or olive oil; season and cover with fine cracker dust. Broil about ten minutes.

Oatmeal.—Put a teaspoonful of salt and a scant quart of boiling water in the top of a double boiler and place it on the stove. When the water boils, add gradually one cupful of coarse oatmeal. Cook ten minutes, then place it in the bottom of the double boiler, and let it cook one hour. Put a tablespoonful of salt in the water in the lower boiler. When done remove the cover, stir with a fork to let the steam escape. Serve it on a platter and garnish with baked apples.

Browned Rice.—Cook one cupful of rice with three cupfuls of milk in a double boiler until soft. Season it with one teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful of butter. Pack it closely in a small bread pan. When cold cut it in half inch slices and brown them delicately in hot butter. Or spread the slices slightly with butter, put them in a fine, well buttered gridiron, and color a light brown over a clear fire.

Fried Chicken.—Singe; cut at the joints; remove the breast bones. Wipe each piece with a clean wet cloth; dredge with salt, pepper, and flour, and saute them in hot salt pork fat till brown and tender, but not burned. Arrange on a dish with boiled cauliflower or potato balls, and pour a white sauce over them. Or dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep hot fat and serve with tomato sauce.

Chicken Broth.—Clean the chicken and separate it at the joints. Remove all the skin and fat. Cover the chicken with cold water. Add one tablespoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of pepper, one small onion sliced. Simmer until the chicken is tender. Remove the best part of the meat, and put the bones and gristle back to simmer until the bones are clean. Wash and soak two tablespoonfuls of rice half an hour. Strain the broth. Remove the fat. Put the broth on to boil again, and add to it the rice, and the nicest portions of meat, cut into small pieces. Simmer until the rice is tender. Add seasoning to taste and serve at once. A few spoonfuls of cream may be added if desired.

THE LAUNDRY.

Easy Way to Wash.—Soak all the white clothes the day before in lukewarm water, rubbing the soiled spots with naphtha soap. Then put over fire to melt two bars of any good washing soap with one cup of water. When thoroughly dissolved "take out of doors" and add one cup of gasoline. In the morning fill your boiler half full of water and put in two cupfuls of the soap mixture, turn your clothes out of soak and put in boiler and boil as usual; then rinse in two waters. You will find the clothes a snowy white without any rubbing. You may wash the calicoes in this suds without having them fade, as the gasoline sets the colors, and a pailful may be strained through a cloth, to free from lint, for the stockings.

To Wash Rug.—One washing will make a rug look better than repeated sweepings and shakings. The rugs purchased abroad are washed repeatedly before they are brought to this country, making the colors rich and mellow. Tack the rug on a bit of bare floor, the back piazza being as good a place as any. Scrub thoroughly with warm ammonia suds and rinse with many clear waters, until all the soap is removed. Let the rug dry on the floor without removing the tacks. Then take it up and it will not shrink, roll nor pull out of shape. A preparation for washing rugs and carpets is made of four ounces of any good white soap dissolved in four ounces of boiling water. When cool add five ounces of ammonia, two and one-half ounces of alcohol, two and one-half ounces of glycerin, and two ounces of ether or chloroform. Bottle and cork tightly. To clean a rug add a teaspoonful of the preparation to a pail of tepid water. The same preparation is also good for cleaning men's clothes. Two tablespoonfuls to a pint of water will remove most obstinate stains.

FISH.

Fish Pie.—Pick into small pieces any left over cold fish and put in baking dish. Pour over it white sauce of flour, butter and water or part milk. Cover with seasoned mashed potatoes an inch and a half deep, sprinkle top with buttered bread crumbs, and bake. Left over cold meats are nice for this pie.

Stewed Solo with Tomato Sauce.—Put one quart of canned tomatoes in a saucepan with a teaspoonful each of finely chopped parsley, salt, and olive oil, one finely cut clove of garlic, a pinch of sugar, pepper and a dash of cayenne, and one cup of cold water. Simmer for one-half hour; then lay in the fish, adding a little water if there be not sufficient liquor to cook. Beat up the yolk of an egg with the juice of a lemon, and five minutes before serving the fish pour it in and shake sauce pan to prevent curdling. A flounder may be substituted for sole.

RICE.

Rice Hash.—Take equal parts of roast beef, chopped finely, and well seasoned and boiled rice. Mix thoroughly, put in buttered baking dish, cover with tomato sauce, well flavored with onion and bay leaf. Cover all with buttered bread crumbs and bake about half an hour.

Rice Pudding.—To three quarts of fresh milk add one-half cup of raw rice washed clean, two cups of granulated sugar, and two tablespoonfuls vanilla. Bake slowly three hours, stirring first hour often, then let crust form. Will be like thick cream when cold. Will serve eight people. Delicious.

Steamed Rice.—Wash two cupfuls of rice and throw into a large vessel of boiling salted water. Let boil furiously ten or 15 minutes, then throw cold water in and pour all through a colander. Stand colander in a vessel containing very little water, cover closely, and let steam until the grains are tender and dry.

LITTLE HELPS.

When there are almost, but not quite, enough potatoes for luncheon, hard boil two or three eggs, slice, mix with the cut up potatoes and pour cream gravy over them.

If you are troubled with ants try a little quicklime in the infested places. This will drive away any kind of ants.

To remove mildew from cloth.—Put a teaspoonful of chloride of lime in a quart of water, strain it twice, then dip the mildewed places in this weak solution, lay it in the sun. If the mildew has not disappeared when dry repeat.

To get rid of moths in furniture and cushions sprinkle with benzine. It will not spot or injure the most delicate of fabric, but it is sure death to moths. The work must be done in a place where there is neither a fire nor lighted lamp, as benzine is explosive.

Rub the mica of the hard coal stove with a small flannel saturated in vinegar and wipe with a dry flannel.

Don't wash meat more than is absolutely necessary, especially game and fowl, because it has a tendency to destroy the natural sweetness.

Don't allow articles of food or other things to accumulate when cooking; clear up as you go.

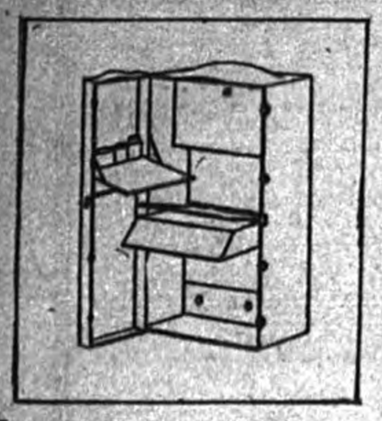

Don't throw away sour milk. It will make sweet light bread, griddle cakes, tea cakes, and pastry.

Don't keep canned provisions in the cans after being opened; the air renders them unwholesome.

IS BUILT LIKE A WARDROBE

Latest Trunk on the Market a Marked Improvement Over Previous Kinds.

In recent years there has been such a marked improvement in trunks that it is now possible to travel all over the country and keep one's clothes in as good shape as if hanging in the wardrobe at home. Not so long ago, a traveler who could locate any one article in his trunk without clawing the entire contents into chaos was a man of unusual dexterity, and, at the end of a long journey, everything was jammed in one corner. The combination trunk designed by a New York man is so constructed that it will always stand on one end, the top and sides having convex projections which insure this. The drawers of this trunk are so pivoted that they can be tilted to either a vertical or a horizontal position. There is a generous number of drawers and flaps, and the trunk is especially convenient for the safe carriage of women's hats. There are also hooks on which suits of clothing may be hung and kept always in an upright position.

FILLING UGLY FLOOR CRACKS

Preparation That Can Be Made at Home Will Do the Work at Little Cost.

From any hardware dealer who sells paints and the like for interior decorations you will be able to get floor cleaner and filler. If you cannot bear this expense and have an ugly floor to be treated you can have the rough boards planed and fill the wide cracks with a paste made with newspapers. Soak the papers in a tub of water until they are reduced to a pulp. This takes from one to three days. Macerate them and mix with common flour starch in which some glue is boiled. If you have a thin mixture you can add sawdust. This is a medium smooth paste which can be put into the cracks with the aid of a small trowel or steel knife. Smooth the paste as evenly as possible. In a few days it will dry. Then give the entire floor a coating of yellow ochre or ground filler. It can be purchased by the quart. It is a dull yellow when dry. When perfectly dry cover the floor with floor varnish or use paint thoroughly without the ochre. All directions can be obtained from the dealer. When boards are of different width fill the cracks and paint a colld color to hide the defects. Do not expect a rough board floor to look like one of waxed hardwood.

Gooseberry Custard.

Stew one quart of ripe gooseberries in as little water as possible, when they are tender press them through a sieve, add one ounce of butter, and sufficient sugar to sweeten. Separate six eggs, beat them until very light, add the yolks to the whites and mix carefully. Put the gooseberry pulp into a small saucepan, stir until it comes to the boiling point, and then stir in carefully the beaten eggs; take it from the fire; beat rapidly for a few moments and stand away to cool. Serve in glasses. Dust each with a little nutmeg and powdered sugar.

Smothered Chicken.

When the chicken is dressed ready for cooking, split it down the back and place flatly in a covered pan, dredge with salt, repper and flour and spread with softened butter. Have only enough water in the pan to produce steam. When closely covered it soon becomes tender. Then remove cover and brown. Serve with rich cream gravy. The best way to cook a spring chicken—far superior to frying.

Tea Table for Piazza.

No piazza corner is complete without the handy tea table, and there are so many pretty ones in the various willows, reeds and woods of which chairs and the other furnishings are made that it is an easy matter to find something to suit both taste and pocketbook.

Bread Pancakes.

Soak pieces of stale bread in water until quite soft; drain through a sieve, then rub the bread through a colander. To a quart add three well beaten eggs, a little salt, and milk enough to make a soft batter. Eat with jelly.

Cured His Rheumatism In Three Weeks.

James LeB. Johnstone, a prominent member of the Citizen's Band, of Chatham, writes:

"I contracted Rheumatism by exposure, five years ago, and was ailing for two months and in great pain all the time. I got Father Morriscy's No. 7 Tablets and took them for about three weeks, when the Rheumatism all left me and I have had no return of the pains since."

Rev. Father Morriscy

Father Morriscy's "No. 7" Tablets have cured thousands of this terribly painful disease.

Rheumatism is generally brought on by exposure, but is really caused by Uric Acid in the blood. This Uric Acid is an irritating poison, formed from the waste matter of the body. The kidneys should remove it, but when they fail it poisons the blood, and, settling in the joints, causes Rheumatism.

"No. 7" Tablets clear out the clogged-up Kidneys and stimulate them to perform their task of filtering the Uric Acid out of the blood. When this is done the Rheumatism simply and naturally vanishes.

"No 7" Tablets cost 50c. At your dealer's. 28

HAMILTON—TODD.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Todd, St. Andrews, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday last, when their second daughter, Jessie, was united in marriage to Mr. Gilbert Hamilton, of Beech Ridge, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Herbert Ross, D.D., of St. Andrews. The bride looked charming in a gown of white silk mull with boquet of roses, and as she entered the room on the arm of her father who gave her away, the Wedding March was played by Mrs. McBride, sister of the groom. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Annie Watson, who was dressed in pink mull, while Mr. Lawrence Smith of Beech Ridge, acted as groomsman. Mr. & Mrs. Hamilton left on the evening train for Ottawa and other points, and will be tendered a reception in their new home on their return on Friday. The presents were both handsome and numerous showing the great esteem in which the young couple are held.

CARD OF THANKS:—I desire to thank the many friends for their great kindness to me in my recent trouble, especially to the Academy children, the teachers, school commissioners and the Foresters, for their beautiful floral tributes.
NATHANIEL COPELAND.

The printer's dollars—where are they? A dollar here and a dollar there, scattered over the countryside, miles and miles apart—how shall they be gathered together? Come home ye truants to thy father's house; ye are wanted, in order that we may send thee forth to battle for us and uphold our credit. Reader, if you dircover a stray dollar around your premises send him home tenderly, for he art ours.

World's Sunday School Day will be observed in the Lachute Methodist Church next Sunday, May 22nd. At 10.30 a.m. a large picture entitled "Steps Up and Down," will be used to illustrate a sermon to children and parents by the pastor. All children invited. At 7 p.m. a service of song will be conducted, when Mr. and Mrs John Beresford will sing two duetts. A short address on "The Key That Unlocks The Problem," by the pastor. All welcome.

Before listening to the complaint of your children about the general fiendishness of the teachers, and getting all worked up about it, it is better to reflect a little. Remember your one or half a dozen cherubs drive you crazy about half the time, and bear with the teacher who is making for you intelligent men and women out of an unpromising raw material as you were twenty or thirty years ago. Remember that besides your boy, who, of course, everybody knows is an angel, she has to contend with that awful boy of your neighbor's and you know full well what a terror he is.

Have you been there? Yes, and the display of Millinery this Spring is beautiful at Mad. J. A. Deschambault, Main Street. The most fashionable patterns and trimmings are being shown and the large assortment enables one to get just what they desire. Remember the store, MAD. J. A. DESCHAMBAULT, - Main St.

Funeral of late Mrs. Copeland.

The loving sympathy of the little hearts of Lachute Academy (with whom Nathaniel Copeland is in such constant touch as janitor of the school) as expressed in the beautiful wreaths made up of the wild flowers plucked by the hands of the little ones, should help smooth the deep sorrow sustained by the loss of his beloved wife, whose funeral was held in the Presbyterian Church on Saturday last. The service was conducted by the Rev. T. A. Mitchell and was most impressive. The remains were borne to their last resting place by brethren of the Forester Lodge, of whom Mr. Copeland is an honored member. Loving floral tributes were also contributed from the Foresters, School Commissioners and the Teachers.

"Star of Hope" Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars held a very pleasant evening on Friday last. It was an open night and quite a goodly number of friends who are interested in the temperance work were present. The Lodge which started some nine months ago with barely enough members to fill the offices, now boasts of a membership of 53, and an aggressive campaign is now being entered into, whereby it is hoped better conditions will be brought about in our town. The Rev. W. Gibb Taylor gave a most earnest address in which he urged the members to nail their colors high and continue in the good fight which must ultimately bring victory. Messrs. Graham and Walland contributed solos, Miss Smith and Mr. Cowan recitations, and Miss Violet Joss instrumental selections. During a brief intermission, refreshments were indulged in and heartily enjoyed.

Fine Football Match

Modesty forbids our having referred to the ability of Lachute's Football team, (although we always maintain that our little town can boast of as good all-round athletes as can be produced) but the game with the Quarry Rangers on Saturday last gives them full credit, judging from the boasted reports of the Brownsburg sporting editor. We always try to eliminate anything that borders on misrepresentation and are sorry that the crowd should have been misled when they were asked to come out and see the Quarry whitewash Lachute. We must take it as a great compliment to Lachute when the Rangers are held in such high rating, to think that our team, which is partly composed of boys from the Academy, were able to hold the Quarry to a standstill until the last few minutes, when a foul kick gave the Rangers their winning goal, the score being 3 to 2. Captain Walland picked up a new man for his team in young Reid Giles, who won great praise for his timely work. Spence, Hudson, Giles, Todd, Falkner, Tyall, McIntyre, Walland and Carpenter constituted the team and deserved the plaudits that were given them from time to time by the onlookers, who were able to appreciate a good game.

East Settlement Entertainment

The Brownsburg entertainers won laurels for themselves and their village last Thursday evening at their East Settlement Concert, when the school-house was packed with an appreciated audience. Mrs. John Gordon kindly loaned her organ for the occasion. The fact that a happy and good natured company of young people could drive those ten long miles after a day's hard work in factory, shop or quarry, and render such high class entertainment was a marvel to many. The choir under the able leadership of Mr. Chas. Anderson, was in a good condition of voice and called forth hearty applause. The Boys of the Brigade, Masters Frankie Vowells, Jimmie Lalanne, Freddie Freith and Hugh Morrison, with their trainer, Mr. J. Connelly, captured the audience. The Boys of East Settlement afterwards expressed a desire for a Brigade to be organized among them. The Misses Edith Maitland, Flora Corlett, Annie Carpenter, Elsie Vowells, and Messrs. T. and C. Anderson were well received as soloists or in duetts. Musical selections were acceptably rendered by Mr. William Cornish, guitarist, and Miss Elsie Vowells, violinist. Mr. Ernest Warren was in fine trim for elocution and his two selections, "The Cliff, the Ambulance and the Walking Beer Barrel" and "The Life Boat" simply held the audience spell bound. Miss Jessie McCluskey served well as accompanist. At the conclusion the chairman, Rev. B. B. Brown, offered prayer for the Royal Family and the Empire in this hour of national grief at the death of Edward VII. The national anthem was sung very heartily by the loyal Britishers of East Settlement.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine.

If you want new health and new strength in the spring you must build up your blood with a tonic medicine. Following the long indoor winter months most people feel depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood is impure and watery. It is this state of the blood that causes pimples and unsightly eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite, frequent headaches and a desire to avoid exertion. You can't cure these troubles by the use of purgatives; you need a tonic and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood, which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ, and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired out, ailing men, women and children. If you are feeling out of sorts give this medicine a trial, it will not disappoint you. Mr Paul Charbonneau, a young man well known in the town of St. Jerome, Que., is one of the host who bear testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says: "When I left school I became a bookkeeper in an important office. Probably due to confinement I began to suffer from indigestion and loss of strength. I became pale and seemingly bloodless and was often seized with palpitation of the heart and violent headaches. I tried several remedies, but they did not do me a bit of good. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and did so, and the use of eight boxes brought me back to perfect health and strength. I have since enjoyed the best of health and cannot say too much in praise of this valuable medicine."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

HOW TO MAKE BABY SLEEP

The baby that cries half the night does not cry for nothing. It cries because it is not well, and has no other means of saying so. The chances are the trouble is due to some upsetting of the stomach or bowels, which would be speedily removed if the child were given a dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets make children sleep soundly and naturally because they remove the cause of the crossness and wakefulness. They are a blessing to children and a relief to worried mothers. Mrs. John Sickles, Douglastown, N. B., says: "If anything ails my little ones the first thing I give them is a dose of Baby's Own Tablets and they are soon well again." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Perfectly Trustworthy" is the character of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It can be used with the utmost confidence that it will do what is claimed for it. It is sure in its effects, as the use of it will clearly demonstrate and can be relied upon to drive a cold out of the system more effectively than any other medicine. Try it and be convinced that it is what it is claimed to be.

WHAT HER "DOT" DOES.

Put French Woman on Basis of Equality With Husband.

Though there is far less suffrage propaganda in France, the superior position of the French woman has often been noted. If the husband keeps a shop, she keeps it too; there is no question about her capacity for business, nor is her share in the joint business regarded as "interference." With rare exceptions, says London Truth, it is almost impossible to imagine the Englishwoman in a position so entirely taken for granted. But a French portionless girl would be fairly certain not to marry; from the moment of her birth, therefore, her parents set to work to provide her with a "dot." Incidentally, the "dot" system is perhaps the greatest incentive to thrift so entirely lacking in England. The dowered girl goes to her husband with a certain solid backing—which proves its value in times of stress or illness—and is not only willing but prepared to work.

The average Englishwoman, on the other hand, will be independent, but she is also romantic. And romance with her prefers the role of beggarmaid to King Cophetua. In her heart of hearts, she likes her husband to "raise her to his side." She scorns romance on a business basis. Too late does she realize that the small business or professional man cannot really afford the luxury of a housekeeper.

GREAT GUNS.

Sir A. Trevor Dawson makes this comparison to show the great strides made in modern ordnance in 45 years: In 1864 the most powerful 12-inch gun was a muzzle-loader, 12 calibre long, weighing 23.5 tons, using a charge of 85 pounds of powder, and discharging a projectile of 614 pounds with a muzzle velocity of 1,300 feet per second. It could perforate 16 inches of wrought iron at the muzzle, and eight inches at a range of 6,000 yards. In 1909 the 12-inch gun had become a breech-loader, 50 calibres long, weighing 70 tons, using a projectile of 850 pounds discharged with a muzzle velocity of 3,000 feet per second, and capable of penetrating 52 inches of wrought iron at the muzzle, 37 inches at a distance of 6,000 yards, and 17.5 inches at 21,000 yards.

THE UNSEWN WITNESS.

The lecturer was growing very vehement in the course of his oratory. His subject was, "How to be happy though married."

"As we all know," he cried, "the duty of a wife is to be a loving helpmate to her husband by cooking his food, attending to the various requirements, conducting properly his household affairs, and so on, and so on!"

"Ah!" sigher the little man in front, "they never perform that last duty!"

"Which one is that?" asked the lecturer.

"Why," explained the little man, "sew on, and sew on!" and he exhibited his shirt cuffs, which were fastened with pins.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED MR. F. McAULIFFE'S LUMBAGO.

Lachute Man, After Fourteen Years Suffering, finds Health and Strength in an Old Reliable Kidney Remedy.

Lachute, Que., April 18 (Special)—After fourteen years of suffering, which started from pleurisy, followed by dropsical swellings, and culminated in Lumbago, and confined him to his bed, Malachi F. McAuliffe, a well-known resident of this place, has entirely recovered his health, and he says without hesitation, "I am sure I owe it entirely to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"I was laid up with Pleurisy, which affected my kidneys," Mr. McAuliffe continues. "I suffered a great deal of pain, especially in my back. I was also terribly troubled with dropsical swellings, and finally, after many attempts to get rid of my trouble, I found myself compelled to give up and was confined to my bed with Lumbago. I tried many medicines but they failed to do me any good. Then I turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills, and after taking one box I felt greatly relieved. I took several more boxes and found myself completely cured."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure any and all forms of Kidney Disease.

ENIGMATIC.

"Yes, sir; I'm getting treated, sir."

NO TROUBLE ABOUT THAT.

Suitor—"Do I? Say, I wish you could 'a seen her when I proposed!"

FOR THE PUBLIC

New Formula Cures Coughs, Colds Bronchitis and Hoarseness in Five Hours.

Much is being done in these days to stop the ravages of consumption, but probably nothing has been so effective as teaching the public how to break up a cold and cure coughs, bronchitis, tonsilitis, etc., with simple home-mixed medicine. A laxative cough syrup, free from whiskey, is the prime need A cough indicates inflammation and congestion and these in turn are due to an excess of waste and poisons in the system. A tonic laxative cough syrup rids the system of congestion, while relieving the painful coughing. Get the following and mix at home: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less, according to age. Cut this out and save it for some friend.

THE FOLLY OF OUR WAYS.

Like men who move with sightless eyes,
We stumble through our days,
And leave our souls to emphasize
The folly of our ways.

Time and again the drunkard's lips
Indulge their low desire,
And all the time he slips and slips
Into a hopeless mire.

Time and again the spendthrift's hands
Are busy wasting all;
While surely move the shifting sands
That bear him to his fall.

Time and again the gambler takes
The risks of reckless play;
While in his heart the canker makes
Its all-destroying way.

Time and again we give to those
We love the words that pain;
While through the mill our conscience goes
Till we are friends again.

Some day, perhaps—it may not be
Till in our twilight days,
Too late to alter—we shall see
The folly of our ways.

CURED HIS BLADDER TROUBLE.

Mr. Herbert Bauer, of Davisville, says he owes Gin Pills a debt of gratitude which he can never repay. He suffered for years with Bladder Trouble, and could not pass Urine except by much straining, which caused great pain.

Mr. Bauer sent for a free sample of Gin Pills. The first dose did him so much good that he ordered six boxes and began to take them regularly. A Month's treatment completely cured him.

You can try Gin Pills before you buy them. Write National Drug & Chemical Co., (Dept. W.L.), Toronto, for free sample. At all dealers, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50.

A Simple and Cheap Medicine.—A simple, cheap and effective medicine is something to be desired. There is no medicine so effective a regulator of the digestive system as Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They are simple; they are cheap, they can be got anywhere, and their beneficial action will prove their recommendation. They are the medicine of the poor man and those who wish to escape doctors' bills will do well in giving them a trial.

"My good man, I really cannot do anything in this case."

"But she has cut off a bit of my ear, sir."

"Well," said the magistrate, "I will bind her over to keep the peace."

"You can't," replied the angry husband; "she's thrown the piece away!"

BABY BADLY BURNED.

The young daughter of Mrs. T. S. Dougall, 523 Flora Avenue, Winnipeg, was arranging some of her doll's washing on a clothes rack, when she fell, and her hand came in contact with the hot stove. She sustained a serious burn, and her screams brought her mother quickly to the spot.

"I sent to the druggist for the best remedy he had for burns," she says, "and he sent back a box of Zam-Buk. He said that there was nothing to equal it. I applied this, and it soothed the pain so quickly that the child laughed through her tears. I bound up the hand in Zam-Buk, and each day applied Zam-Buk frequently and liberally, until the burn was quite cured.

"I would recommend all mothers to keep Zam-Buk in the home."

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at fifty cents box. Post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse all imitations.

E KING'S NEIGHBORS

SE WHO LIVE NEAR HIM IN THE COUNTRY.

Neighborhood Round About Sandringham is Very Select.

gland has forty counties, and ly one has the King a country at which he resides; for ex- on state occasions, Windsor tle is out of the reckoning. It mall wonder therefore that Nor- people pride themselves on r importance.

ut where big estates are the rule number of great houses is apt be limited, says the Gentlewo- n; so no one can pretend that re is a good neighborhood und Sandringham.

earest at hand—in fact, in the den stands York cottage, the de of the Prince and the Prin- s of Wales. This is a small plain hing house which has had many ditions. "New baby, new room," s the remark of a local octogen- an.

Appleton, which still belongs to King and Queen of Norway, lies ct a mile off, and is really a rified farmhouse, with a charm- garden designed on the lines of t of Mr. Austin, the poet lau- te, at Swinford Manor, in Kent.

CASTLE RISING.

One of the King's nearest neigh- rs is Lord Farquhar, at Castle ising, which he and Lady Farqu- r rent. Lord Farquhar is a man om fortune seems to have taken der his special protection. He gan life as a rich banker, and en plain Mr. Horace Farquhar d the unprecedented honor for a nmoner of being best man at a al wedding, that of the then ke and Duchess of Fife.

He is a man of parts, witty, a ver talker and a good musician; is fond of early rising and of ex- rises, and keeps a small organ in library of his house in Grosve- r Square, playing on it for an ur or so after dinner. The hall, stle Rising, is a charming old use, and the village has a Nor- n church and the ruins of a Nor- n castle, also quaint almshouses ere the inmates wear the long aks and high peaked hats of for- r years.

Not far from Castle Rising is llington, the grand Gothic house belongs to Sir William and dy Ffolkes. This place has fine oting, and Sir William's pre- ves have often been shot over the King, the Prince of Wales the German Emperor. Natur- y the owners are and have been terms of friendship with royal rsonages. Congham Lodge, ich is about a mile away, also longs to the Ffolkes family, and late Dowager Lady Ffolkes ed to make it her residence.

en called on her and one day on iving in a ponycart, she was ked by the butler—a new servant "What name, please?" The een was, of course, immensely used at this naive question. Then e story goes that some years ago party of young people from the ll, Castle Rising, were walking ng the drive toward Hillington. ey saw a carriage approach and nceived the idea of standing in row to stop it on its way. They cordingly did so, and when it t near they saw to their horror at they had barred the passage no less august a personage than late Queen Victoria.

Houghton Hall, which belongs to rd Cholmondeley, the Lord Great amberlain, is a splendid place, present rented by Cora Lady afford and her husband Mr. nnard. She is a thrice married ress. In the '90s she came over London as Mrs. Colgate, a rich erican widow, and was distingu- ed by always wearing a tall white grette in her hair in the even- g and the most magnificent dia- nds. In 1898 she married Lord afford, who a year later met th a tragic death, so Mr. Martyn nnard is her third husband.

Houghton bears silent witness to r old time gambling propensities. here is a blank space where the ntral flight of hall door steps ould be found. The place was ce owned by a Lord Orford, and e of his feats was to gamble away at special flight of steps. The nner carried them off and they ve never since been replaced.

Another fine place is Holkham, here Lord and Lady Leicester are receive royal guests during the oting season. This is a hich stands in a park as flat as a ncake. It has a white marble ll and staircase of much magni- cence, some fine statuary and a st library, which contains the ost valuable private collection of nuscripts in the kingdom. Holk- m is said to be the nearest point land in England to the shores of enmark.

Raynham, the old home of Lord ownshend, is now leased by Mr. and Mrs. Neumann, prior to which it was tenanted for several years by Mrs. Lawson Johnstone. It has a well authenticated ghost story. Ken Hill, near King's Lynn, belongs to Sir Edward Green, who also has a place in Yorkshire. Hunstanton Hall, on the sea coast, has been owned by the Lee Strange family for countless centuries. It has a glorious old garden, with grass walks, clipped edges and herbaceous borders. Its owners have always held a place in courtly circles, and Mrs. Roland Le Strange is an aunt of the present Lord Hastings. Congham House belongs to the Elwes family, who may also be reckoned among our untitled nobility.

Many stories go the rounds which show the kindly consideration of the King and Queen for their neighbors near Sandringham. On one occasion when Queen Alexandra was driving past the house of a family with whom she had always been on cordial terms she noticed that the flag which usually flew from the tower was now at half mast.

The Queen, fearing that this might betoken trouble, turned aside to make inquiries. On the way to the front door it struck her that if the family had had really bad news it would be better that she should not intrude upon their grief. Later on the mistress of the house was much astonished to hear that the Queen had called at a side entrance to inquire if all was well, and on being reassured had gone quietly away with neither word nor message.

WOMEN KEEPING POULTRY.

Craze of the Moment With Titled Ladies of England.

Lady Salisbury's success with eggs and hens recalls to mind that poultry keeping is one of the crazes of the moment. Queen Alexandra shows the way and her Silkies have won many prizes at the poultry shows, says the Gentlewoman.

Then Lady Derby owns some of the costliest birds in existence and a pair of her Black Orpingtons were sold for £100 at the Crystal Palace. Lady Craven is another prominent exhibitor and her American Wyandottes are of much beauty and value.

Lady Chesterfield is yet another fancier and so are Lady Aylesford, Lady Kathleen Pilkington, Lady Burton and Lady Tichborne. And in the old days Evelyn Lady Alington had the finest store of bantams in the world at Crichel in Dorset.

In Scotland Lady Home has some good poultry, as also Lord Rosebery, who wins prizes with his Minorcas, and the story goes that his old poultry man once in a melting mood admitted: "Those birds will make your Lordship's name famous one of these days."

NOBLE HOTEL KEEPERS.

Lords and Ladies in England Who Have Taken It Up.

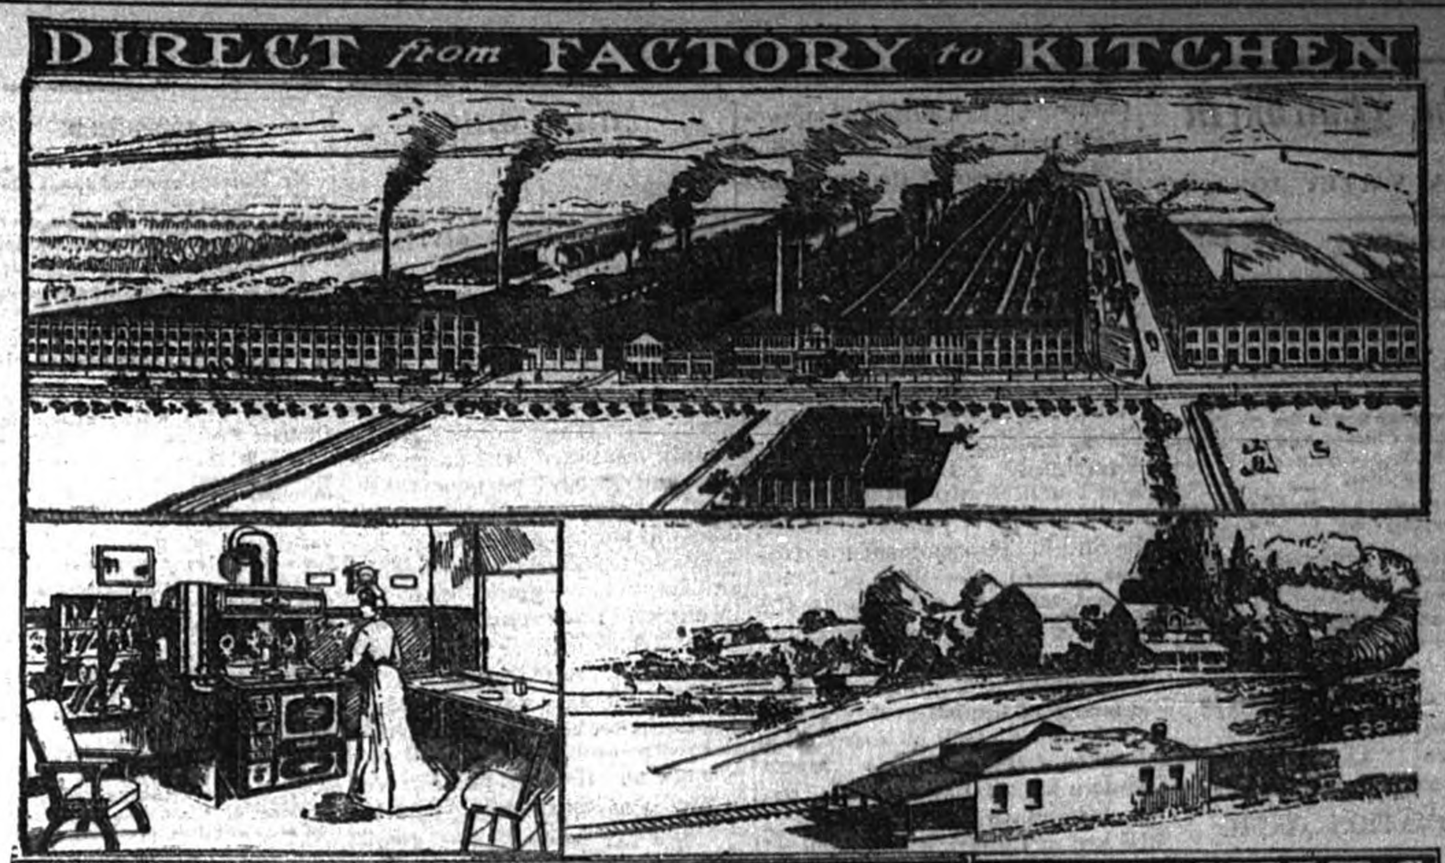

Hotel keeping is a fancy of the moment. Besides Lord Leitrim several well known people have gone into business in this direction. Lady Aberdeen is president of the Green Lady Hotel at Littlehampton, Sussex. This is arranged for workers, who are charged ten shillings a week for board and lodging, says the Gentlewoman.

Lady Burton has built and fitted out a splendid hotel at Aviemore, which commands a fine view of the Cairngorm Range in Inverness-shire, and the widowed Lady Augusta Orr-Ewing has started a first rate hotel with good golf links at Dunskey, her home near Stranraer in Wigtownshire.

Lord Dunraven has built a hotel for golfers close to Adare Manor, his place in Limerick, and Lord Inchiquin is the owner of a hotel at Arranmore, Milltown Malbay, also in Ireland. Then Lord Claud Hamilton, who is chairman of the Great Eastern Railway, takes a keen interest in the Sandringham Hotel at Hunstanton in Norfolk, and Douglas Tollemache, great uncle to Lord Tollemache, is much concerned in the welfare of the Felix Hotel, Felixstowe, which was built after the design of Helmingham Hall, Lord Tollemache's place in Suffolk.

PLAIN FOOD FOR THE RICH.

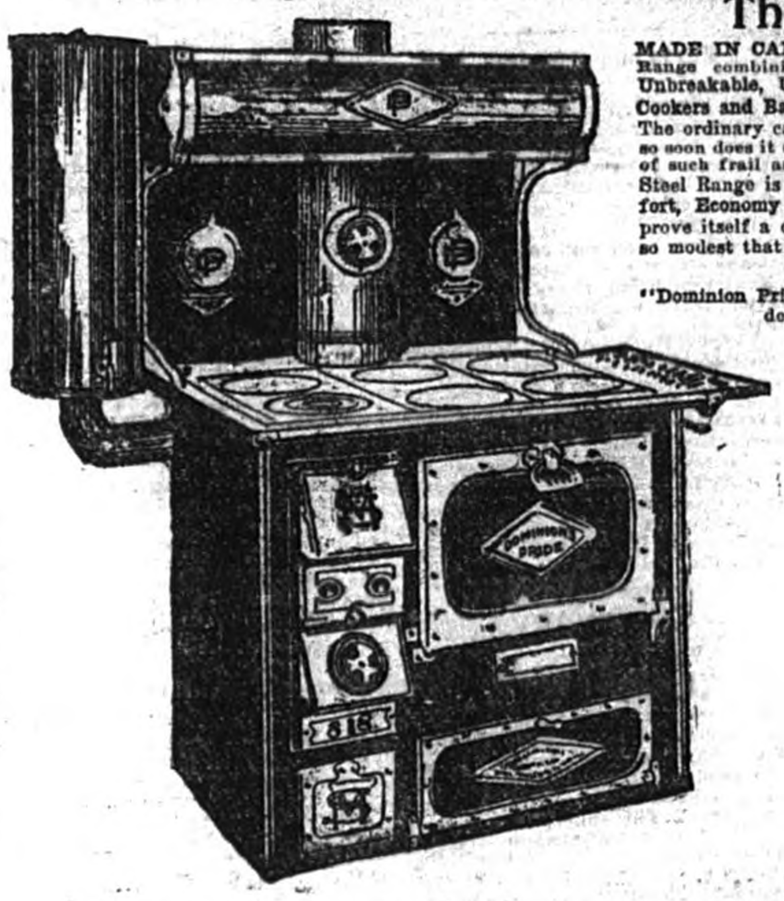

Plain but tasty dishes are now to be seen at luncheons in some of our smartest houses, says the Queen. Of these are Scotch broth, Irish stew, fresh herring, calf's head, sheep's trotters, braised jam, roly-poly, pancakes, suet pudding served with treacle, and rice and sago puddings. Cheese in various forms is in high favor, and Welsh rabbit often appears as a savory. Then brown bread is eaten, also oatmeal cakes and plain luncheon biscuits, and the dessert often consists of pears, apples and oranges. Plain food is no doubt good for health and French chefs in Mayfair can turn this farmhouse fare into most tempting comestibles. Not much alcohol is drunk at luncheons, and Mcstelle, an unfermented wine, seems to be a fancy of the moment.

The "Dominion Pride" Range

MADE IN CANADA and is placed on the market in response to a demand for a Range combining the sterling qualities of Malleable Iron and Polished Steel. Unbreakable, Unwarpable, Indestructable, Economical, Design Attractive, Perfect Cookers and Bakers, will Last a Lifetime with Proper Care.

The ordinary cast iron range is at best a disappointing investment to the purchaser, so soon does it exhibit the effects of wear and tear, unavoidable in a range constructed of such frail and brittle material. The Combined Malleable Iron and Blue Polished Steel Range is the nearest approach to Absolute Perfection ever designed for Comfort, Economy and Satisfactory Domestic Service and wherever installed it will prove itself a continual object of Satisfaction. The price at which it is supplied is so modest that it is brought easily within the reach of every prudent family.

818 or 918—Elevated Tank or Flush Reservoir for Coal and Wood.
Made of the Best Blue Polished Steel and Malleable Iron.

GUARANTEE

"Dominion Pride" Ranges are sold on the following Guarantee: If any casting proves defective in twelve months from date of purchase, we will furnish same free of charge. The above Guarantee is very broad, no if's or and's, and any casting that would have a flaw in it that we failed to see in the course of construction, such flaw would show long before the twelve months have transpired when fire is put in range.

INCOMPARABLE OFFER

Our placing direct to the consumer our High Grade "Dominion Pride" Malleable and Polished Steel Range, as fully described in our descriptive circular and guaranteed, for less than you can buy a cast iron range. We are enabled to make this extraordinary offer by our Direct from Factory to Kitchen Plan, which saves the jobbers, retailers, traveling salesmen and their expenses, giving the consumer the benefit of these savings, which in reality enables the consumer to buy as cheap as the wholesale jobber.

PRICE

Why not buy direct from the Manufacturer and save the middlemen's and retailers' profits? "Dominion Pride" Range if sold through the retailer or traveling salesman would have to be sold for $69.00 to $78.00, according to the territory sold in. Our price, direct to the consumer, is as follows: "Dominion Pride" Range, 8-18 or 9-18 top, with high closet shelf and elevated tank or flush reservoir, with piece of zinc to go underneath range, 8 joints of blue polished steel pipe and 2 elbows, delivered to any railway express station in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island for $41.00 (We Pay the Freight), and delivered to any railway express station in Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia for $49.00 (We Pay the Freight), $5.00 to accompany order, the balance to be paid when range is delivered to you. CLERICAL LIFE HUMORS

STORIES TOLD BY REV. STEWART F. L. BERNAYS.

Odd Interpretation of the Preacher's Remarks and Church Services.

The compliments that one meets with are sometimes as strangely phrased as they are generally little deserved. On my leaving a curacy an old friend of mine said: "Well, I be sorry you're going, for I did 'ope you would 'ave died 'ere"—which was certainly more than I did, writes the Rev. Stewart F. L. Bernays in the Cornhill Magazine. But in the way of testimonials the one which I prize the most was received from a certain Bishop. He was famous for the infelicitous way he had of putting things. I wrote to tell him I was leaving the diocese and to thank him for his kindness to me. His reply was short and, I trust, not to the point: "Dear sir: I am sorry you are leaving my diocese, for I have never heard anything against you. Yours faithfully, ——." This at least was a negative kind of testimonial which might be useful to some of us.

My vicar was leaving at the same time, and I was accompanying him to his new parish. He fared little better at his Bishop's hands. "Well, ——, you and I have not always seen eye to eye, but I might well get a worse man." So, with this episcopal blessing, we migrated to another diocese.

A SHORT SERVICE.

A friend of mine came to preach for me at the harvest festival. The "use" at his church was for the preacher to carry his stole, putting it on in the pulpit and again removing it at the end of the sermon. This little piece of ritual he duly performed, but its meaning was wholly lost on my congregation. A servant being asked on her return why the service had been so short said that the preacher was in a hurry to catch his train, as he had begun undressing before he left the pulpit.

A woman in a parish where I lived used each day to prepare herself for the worst. I was complimenting her one day on the extreme tidiness of the house even in the early morning. "Yes," she said, "I always likes to 'ave my bedrooms done hearly, for, as I allus sez, you never knows what may 'appen; 'ow soon one of the children may be brought 'ome in a fit or with a broken leg, and, as I allus sez, it don't matter what 'appens, so long as you've got a bedroom to put 'em into." Whether she would have taken quite so calmly the actual arrival of a child in a fit I cannot say, for her rule of life was never put to the test.

I once attended a mayoral banquet in a provincial town at which the vicar, who had newly arrived, was present. An Alderman was put up to propose his health and was very anxious to pay a well deserved compliment to the

and this was his manner of doing it: "Mr. Mayor, our new vicar has not been long in making himself liked by all of us. As I was remarking the other day to some friends, it's a good thing our vicar has not got the face of an Adonis, or we should have to look out for our wives and daughters." It was well meant, but one felt of course that the expression of the sentiment could have been improved upon.

Writing of humor reminds me of the lack of it—an unhappy condition with which one meets occasionally. There were some dear old ladies who lived in a large house in a certain parish. They were very much opposed to anything which to their mind savored of the world; the thought even of "patience" filled them with horror. They had, however, heard that the curate, to whom they were much attached was a good conjuror. On one occasion when he was lunching with them they asked him to show them some of his tricks. He readily consented, and in the extreme innocence of his heart asked for a pack of cards. "We have never had a pack of cards in the house for twenty years!" his hostess exclaimed; and then, feeling she owed her guest some reparation, asked him whether visiting cards would do as well!

I am sure that a speaker, whether he is preaching or making a political speech, never realizes how little his long words or rounded phrases are really understood by some in his audience. A clergyman, at the close of same confirmation classes which he had been giving in a village of one of our northern towns, proceeded to ask his candidates a few questions in order to find out how far he had made himself clear. The answer to his first question rather astonished him—"What is grace?" Promptly the reply came,

"ALL MANNER OF FAT."

The answerer had had plenty of experience of it as kitchenmaid, and perhaps "grace" is not altogether unlike in sound to "grease."

That reminds me of the story of an old woman who on being asked why she had such a rooted objection to the new rector replied: "Ow could I 'elp it, when 'e uses such bad words in the pulpit" "But what bad words?" she was asked. "Just think," was her reply, "'ow often 'e says peradventure—and you knows what David says about such like—'if I shall say peradventure, the darkness shall cover me.'"

The names proposed by parents for their unhappy children are sometimes particularly weird. I was called to privately baptize a child the day after peace was declared at the close of the Boer war. My request "Name this child" produced a long speech from the mother: "We want to commemorate the war and the peace, so we want to call him 'Roberts Pax.'" The unfortunate child, whose surname was Smith, did not long survive such a name. On one occasion a man gave his daughter's name as Venus. Rightly or wrongly, the clergyman vigorously protested against the name as that of a heathen goddess, to which the father pertinently replied, "What about your own Diana?"

SMOKING THROUGH HEAD.

During the South African War, says a writer in the March Strand Magazine, a Boer soldier named Frank Brown was shot in the forehead with a rifle bullet. Strangely enough it did not kill him and after the war he secured employment on one of the trans-Atlantic steamers. When fully a year had passed, he complained of trouble in his head, and after a thorough examination the surgeon of the ship decided that the bullet, which had never been removed, must be extracted. This was done, and afterward, for the amusement of his friends, the wounded soldier placed a lighted cigarette in the hole from which the bullet was extracted and drew the smoke through his nose.

The larger the heart the easier it travels the narrow way.

CORONATION OATH.

The approaching coronation of King George V has led to a revival of the agitation which raged with considerable force at the time of the late King's coronation, seeking the repeal of certain clauses in the oath which are deemed offensive to those of his subjects who hold the Roman Catholic faith. The oath is that which was framed and embodied in the Bill of Rights of 1689 when England was in the throes of a bitter anti-papal agitation following the deposition of King James II. The declaration, which is the offensive feature in the oath, is as follows:—

"I, George, do solemnly and sincerely, and in the presence of God, profess, testify, and declare that I do believe that in the Sacrament of Our Lord's Supper there is not any transubstantiation of the elements of bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ at or after the consecration thereof by any person whatsoever, and that the invocation or adoration of the Virgin Mary or any other saint and the sacrifice of the mass as they are now used in the Church of Rome, are superstitious and idolatrous; and I do solemnly, in the presense of God, profess, testify, and declare that I do make this declaration and every part thereof in the plain and ordinary sense of the words read unto me, as they are commonly understood by English Protestants, without any evasion, equivocation, or mental reservation whatsoever, and without any dispensation already granted me for this purpose by the Pope or any other authority or person whatsoever, and without thinking that I am or can be acquitted before God or man of any part thereof, although the Pope or any other persons or power whatsoever should dispense with or annul the same or declare that it was null and void from the beginning."

This phraseology is deemed offensive by Roman Catholics, and not without good reason. The views which they hold they hold as sincerely and conscientiously as Protestants hold their religious tenets, and to charge them with being "superstitious and idolatrous" in such case appears to be needlessly offensive. It is of the essence of any religious faith that it should be just and charitable and nothing is to be gained by any course of conduct or employment of language that sacrifices either the one or the other. A declaration which might have commended itself to British subjects as prudent in the 17th century may be as imprudent in the 20th century. The widespread evidence that the sentiment of Protestant Britain favors the repeal of the offensive phraseology is a striking evidence of the growth of religious toleration and the spread of the principles of true christianity.

THE TRUCE OF GOD.

Not for three score years and more had the conflict of political parties in Britain raged with such violence as in that hour when God placed his finger on the reigning sovereign King Edward VII, laid him low in death, and said to the conflicting party passions, "Peace, Be Still." In a moment the strife was hushed, the war of words ceased, and men were one in the presence of the great sorrow and the universal sense of loss which the Empire had sustained. The ordering of human events is beyond the control of man. "A divinity shapes our ends" and a wisdom higher than human has guided and directed the events at the seat of Empire which have removed a King of striking personality and wonderful influence, consecrated to his country's service. There could not have been found among his subjects one who would have favored his withdrawal from the part which he was playing. Yet, with scarce a moment's warning Fate has granted him release and summoned his successor to take up the role which he laid down. He served his country in life—doing what he deemed his duty and doing it well. Has he less served it in death? There are not lacking evidences that forth from his chamber of death there have issued forces making for the unity of the Empire, the stability of the throne, and the good of the people. As the serious illness which halted the plans for King Edward's coronation in 1902 called forth an outburst of sympathy and affection, which was as a divine annointing, and insured to him a seat upon the throne of the affections of his royal subjects in all parts of the Empire, and the admiration of all peoples, contributing to the success of his all too brief reign; so, even now, there may be traced signs that the circumstances of his death will eventuate in the good of his subjects. The rancour of party feeling has been allayed, the strife of words ceased, the value of the Crown in the government of the Empire as a force for good has been disclosed and opportunity has been afforded to the country to calmly consider the great problems which are pressing for solution.

Another and by no means small blessing issuing forth from the nation's bereavement is the outflow of good will from the Kink's loyal subjects, Catholic and Protestant alike. Those who understand the Catholic sentiment of his late Majesty will know how he would appreciate the sincere grief with which the Papal authorities have learned of his death. Their sorrow has been genuine and has found expression in memorial services held in the great Catholic centres of the Empire, when eulogies have been pronounced upon the fairness and righteousness of his rule and prayers offered for the bereaved members of the Royal family, particularly for his son, who, as George V, has come to the Throne.

Not less genuine are the expressions of sorrow which are falling from the lips of God's ancient people, the Jews, who have been privileged to live under King Edward's reign, and found within the Empire, not an asylum only where they were safe from the hatred which has pursued them in other lands, but where they have enjoyed the rights of citizenship and have found the rewards of service and honor open to them equally with any ot his Majesty's loyal subjects.

CHIEF WHIP.

A signal proof of the honor in which Mr. Perley is held by the Conservative party of the House of Commons has just been given by the appointment of that gentleman to be chief outside whip of the party. Following the British plan there will be two chief whips, one for outside, and one for inside work. Mr. Perley's duties will be mainly connected with organization and general party management. He will have permanent offices in Ottawa and through his hands will pass all correspondence and business associated with the Dominion Conservative party generally. The member for Argenteuil has, by careful devotion to his parliamentary duties, steadily gained the confidence of his friends and the respect of his political opponents, and the trust now reposed in him is one of the highest marks of confidence that his party could give him. The electors of this county have reason to feel flattered by the record of their represetative in Parliament.

TOWN COUNCIL.

An adjourned meeting of the above Council was held on Wednesday last, there being present, Mayor J. E. Valois, and Councillors J. McGibbon, Wm. Berry, J. Lafleur, C. Raymond, F. Paquette & Sec-Treas. J. W. Raitt.

Minutes of last regular meeting were then read and confirmed, also the report of the Finance Committee. Moved by Coun. Berry, seconded by Coun. Raymond, that the accounts be paid.

A report from the Health Committee stating that a suitable dumping ground of five acres could be secured from Mr. Peter Cruise for the sum of $250.00, was brought before the Council for discussion. Mr. Cruise, who was present, withdrew his offer.

Moved by Conn. Raymond, seconded by Coun. Paquette that the licenses of Rochon & Larocque, L. P. Rodrique and J. B. Raymond be granted.

The Council then adjourned.

OBITUARY.

The death of Mr. Leonard Tomalty which has been expected for some time occurred at his fathers home at Brownsburg on Monday morning, May 16th, at an early hour. Deceased was in his 24th year, and had been ailing with tuberculosis trouble for a long time. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon, the remains being interred in the Edina cemetery. A large number of sympathizing friends attended the funeral which was conducted by the Rev. A. R. McDonald.

MOUNT MAPLE.

Mr. Ernest Tomalty left recently to take charge of the Cheese-factory in Dalesville East.

Mr. John Warwick has also left to take a situation in the Brownsburg D.C. Co's Factory.

The Cheese-factory is again in full swing and the patrons once more greet the genial smile of the operator of 1909.

Seeding is fairly well advanced in this locality. The rain which has fallen the past week gives prospect of a good start to the crops.

The blood-thirsty mosquitoes are invading our domicile in countless numbers at present, and leave their trade-mark on the just and unjust alike.

Miss Miriam Tomalty who is teaching school in Thomas Gore, was home for a couple of days this week attending the funeral of her cousin, Leonard Tomalty of Brownsburg.

Great sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. James Tomalty in the sad bereavement which they lately sustained in the death of their son. Lennie was born in this neighborhood.

Some of our energetic farmers are improving their surroundings by the erection of new buildings. Mr. G. A. Clark is busily engaged with a barn, and Messrs. John Gunn and William Mott are to be complimented on the fine appearance of their new dwelling houses.

The Mount Maple I.O.G.T. Lodge, entertained the sister Lodges of Lachute, Brownsburg and Dalesville on Tuesday evening, when about eighty members spent a very sociable time together. A spicy programme was well rendered, and after refreshments the evening was brought to a close by singing the national anthem.

We want your wool, all of it, and early as possible. W. BANFORD & SON.

AGENTS,—Wanted in all localities for the new "Parkyte Sanitary Closet." Latest invention in sanitation for Private Residences, Schools and Hotels. Liberal Commissions. Address H. M. SUCKLING, & Co., 408 St. Nicholas Building, Montreal.

LAKEFIELD.

—:o:—

Mr. Ernest Copeland spent the week end with his parents.

Mrs. Elliott and daughter Laura, were visiting friends here on Saturday

Mr. Stanley and Miss Mildred Sherritt paid a flying visit here on Sunday last.

We are pleased to have Miss Edith Dawson home again for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lewis are in Montreal this week, attending the District Meeting.

Rev. W. Garner purposes holding a memorial service on Friday, the 20th, in honor of the late King Edward VII.

Miss Hilda Armstrong is spending a vacation in St. Faustin, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Allan Beattie.

The Ladies of the Episcopal Church will provide a Lawn Social at the rectory on the 24th. Everybody welcome.

Quite a few Montreal folks are occupying Mrs. Boyd's farm, which they purchased for the summer months.

We were pleased to have Rev. B. B. Brown of Lachute, in this vicinity on the 8th inst., taking charge of the services in Mille Isle and Lakefield, and also administered Sacrament.

BROWNSBURG.

—:o:—

Did anybody get swished by the Comet's tail?

Up and at them, Rangers! Sic 'em, D.C Co! Wow! Wow! Meow! Meow!

Mr. S. Rousseau is paying us a fleeting visit. It looks like old times to see him amongst us once more.

If you want a sewing machine or other article of furniture absolutely free of cost, turn to page 5. Our advertisement will show you how to get it.—HARDIE & CO.

Mr. Temple gave a most enjoyable supper and dance last week in commemoration of the opening of his handsome new billiard hall and barber shop. A large number of our citizens spent a jolly time.

To-morrow will witness a hot fight between the Rangers and the D C. Co. on the picnic grounds here. The latter have a further incentive to play hard in the showing the Rovers made last week. It should be a rattling game.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Leonard Tomalty, who passed away here early this week. Mr. Tomalty numbered many of our citizens amongst his friends, and much regret is expressed at his death, whilst still in the prime of life.

The Curfew tolls the knell of starting day
The factory folks wind slowly o'er the lea
The watchman homeward plods his weary way
The whistle's out of business, now, you see!

We have not heard any Brownsburg young ladies expressing jealous feelings towards the new Belle of the factory.

The following is the standing of the Teams in the L.O.V.F B. League:—

A certain member of the D.C. Co's Football Club, accuses us of favoring the Rangers in our reports. We deny the charge and will be glad to sing the praises of the D.C. Co. when they win their first game to-morrow. Meanwhile we noticed that Mr. Emperor, (that is not our critic's name,. but near enough for the purpose,) was struck dumb when the Rangers scored last Saturday, but miraculously recovered his voice when the Rovers got a goal. His Majesty would do well to dig out the loaf from his own eye, before he attempts to look for the crumb in the optic of yours truly.

Perhaps the most exciting Football game of the season, so far, was played here last Saturday afternoon between the Lachute Rovers and Quarry Rangers. For some time after play commenced neither teams could break through their opponents' defence. Then the Rangers scored the first goal which was shortly followed by a second, the latter being a penalty. Matters looked blue for the Rovers until G. Hudson backed by Spence, carried the ball up the entire field from Lachute's goal and cleverly passed it to Spence who scored neatly. It was a most brilliant piece of play, and noticeably put heart into the Rovers, who soon added a second goal to their score, thus a tie with the Rangers. Play now began in full earnest, each side making desperate efforts, for it was drawing near the close of the game, and all realized that one more goal would probably decide matters. About 15 minutes before time the Rangers scored again, and the Rovers redoubled their efforts to at least bring the result to a draw. That they failed to do so was none of their fault for they played like fiends, though in a perfectly clean manner. On the whole the Rangers did not show their usual style, but this is partly accounted for by the fact that several of the team were playing in strange positions. This, however, does not in any way detract from the credit due to the Rovers for the excellent fight they put up.

The following is the line-up.

Or, The Story of Miss Percival's Early Life.

A week later she died, but during that week she had every luxury which thoughtfulness and money could procure, while the lady of Irvington Manor saw her every day.

After that Daisy went to Esther, and Frank back to Eton, Donald having assured the manly spirited fellow that he need feel under no obligations, as he would be allowed to wipe out all indebtedness, later on, when he came into a good position. He graduated honorably, and then, showing a talent for business, his friends put him in a way of helping himself, and it was not very long before he was rapidly climbing fortune's ladder.

Daisy grew to be a charming young lady, and finally married a brother of Gregory Appleton, who, it was whispered, was to have a generous slice of the fortune of the uncle for whom he had been named —Humbert King Appleton.

Jennie Burt became the wife of an English squire about two years after Esther's marriage, and found a happy home not far from the friend of whom she was so fond.

That same year Dr. Crawford and his wife came, all the way from Oakland, California, to visit the lady of Irvington Manor, when the doctor greatly enjoyed talking over, with his former patients, the events that had occurred in the far West, at the time of the memorable accident which came so near proving fatal to them both, but which had really been the pivot upon which their future had hung.

Three months after their return to their home, Miss Percival slipped quietly out into the great unknown, when Donald was inexpressibly astonished to discover that he had fallen heir to a handsome fortune which the miserly old lady had long been hoarding for the son of the man to whom she had given her heart so many years ago.

Two sons and two daughters came with time, to add to the happiness of Esther and her devoted husband.

The older boy was named Russel Edgeworth Irvington, in accordance with the late lord's request, and was reared to feel that great responsibilities, attending the title and estate to which he was heir, would rest upon him, and that he must be prepared to acquit himself creditably, and honor the name he bore.

Spenser has said:

"For of the soul, the body form doth take;
For soul is form, and doth the body make."

Has this not proved true to a large extent, in the case of our heroine? Once she was "a perfect fright," but we have her transformed; for it was not possible—with her energy and ambition to make the most of herself, together with her loveliness, her purity and nobility of character—for her to remain a fright, any more than it is possible for the rose to remain a bud, or the beautiful butterfly an ugly grub.

THE END.

AN ARMY PAGEANT.

Series of Scenes From Early Times to be Depicted.

The popularity of pageants continues in England. The programme has just been completed for the army pageant, which will be held from June 20 to July 2 under the direction of F. R. Benson, the well-known Shakespearean actor, in the grounds of Fulham Palace, the Bishop of London's residence.

First there is to be a series of scenes portraying the war-like life of the inhabitants of ancient Britain. Following this there will be a scene representing the Roman invasion, and then will come ten historic episodes between 510 and 1618 A. D.

The next part will have the title "Stories of the Regiments in Famous Fights." The Battle of Dettingen (June 27, 1743) was the last fight at which a British sovereign was present in person, and in the pageant George II. will be a prominent figure. A leading incident to be portrayed is the gallant fight by Trooper Brown for the standard of the Third Hussars. Dropped by a wounded cornet the flag was picked up by Brown, and in turn taken possession of by a Frenchman. Brown rode off in pursuit, killed the gendarme and recaptured the standard, receiving numerous wounds during the encounter.

Sir John Moore's death on the sands of Corunna will form another episode. Still another spectacle will be the storming of Badajoz, when Lieut. Macpherson tore down the French tricolor from the topmost tower of the fortress and replaced it with his own red jacket in lieu of the Union Jack as a signal that the place was won.

ASKING FOOD FROM SANTA.

Pathetic Story Told in London Coroner's Court.

"The child was standing on the fender, in front of a small fire, asking Father Christmas to send down some food, as he was starving."

"Yes, he was asking Father Christmas for some bread and sugar and dates."

This was the pathetic dialogue between a coroner's officer and the mother of little four-year-old Edward Brewer who was burned to death at his home in London, England.

The case has some most pitiful features. Mrs. Brewer, the mother of the child, said at the inquest that her husband—a motor car driver—had deserted her eighteen months before, leaving her without any means of support.

She had had to depend on her mother and brother to pay her rent and supply her from time to time with food. She had just gone over to her mother's house to get some bread for the little boy when a neighbor's son ran in to say that he had fallen in the fire and been badly burned.

Rushing home she found her eldest son, Sidney, six years old, endeavoring to beat out the flames that were enveloping his little brother. When the flames were put out the little boy was found to have received fatal injuries.

"After the jury had returned a verdict of accidental death Mrs. Elizabeth Holling, mother of Mrs. Brewer, said she wished to thank Constable Daniels and Sergeant Robinson for their kindness to her daughter.

"When they got there," she said, "there was not a morsel of food in the house, and they gave her 1s. and a loaf. It was most generous of them, and I thank them from the bottom of my heart."

HOW THIN FOLKS CAN GET FLESHY

New Accidental Discovery Gives Startling Results—Puts Flesh on Thin People and Rounds Out Imperfect Figures.

Simple Prescription Given.

For women—and men, too, for that matter—who can never appear stylish with anything they wear, because of abnormal thinness and angularity, this remarkable prescription is destined to solve the problem. As a beauty maker for the figure it is simply wonderful while it adds brightness to the eyes, and color to the cheeks and lips. It requires no particular dieting, but acts as an aid to nature by its peculiar action on the nerves and blood supply. The blood and nerves distribute over the body, all the nourishment or flesh building elements obtained from the food. The trouble with thin people has always been that they do not absorb or retain enough of the fleshy matter to make them gain in weight even to a normal extent; but this new discovery of blending certain harmless drugs is a revelation to science, and hundreds have gained from ten to forty pounds in a few weeks. There is no danger of becoming too fat. When you get the right weight then stop using.

The general health and strength is greatly improved in anyone from the age of sixteen to sixty. Women soon get plump, with well rounded arms and full bust, and men become straight, strong-looking and healthy.

In a half pint bottle get three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol, shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom). Take a teaspoonful before and after meals, and weigh before beginning.

QUARRELSOME FASHIONS.

She (half crying)—Now that horrid Mrs Comeup will crow over me!

He—How can she do that?

She—She has a bigger rooster on her hat than I have!

Doomed to Suffering

RESCUED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

CHARLES BARRETT, Esq.

Harbor au Bouche, March 24, 1909.

"I suffered terribly from Biliousness and Dyspepsia for fifteen years, was treated by physicians and took many remedies but got no relief. Then I took "Fruit-a-tives", and this medicine completely cured me when everything else failed. To all sufferers from Indigestion, Biliousness and Constipation, I strongly advise them to try this fruit medicine". Charles Barrett.

NOT ORDINARY EGGS.

One Cost $10,000—Another Contained Wedding Trousseau.

A pretty story about an Easter egg relates to one in the Museum at Berlin. The story runs that a great Prince was affianced to a lovely Princess and promised to send her an Easter gift by which she could in some degree measure his love. He sent an iron egg.

So angry was she that she threw it upon the floor, when the unlovely shell opened, disclosing a silver lining. Picking up the despised token the Princess discovered a secret spring which on being touched revealed a golden yolk. This held yet another spring, which revealed a crown of rubies. In the ruby crown was yet another spring, disclosing a diamond betrothal ring from the romantic Prince.

But London scores when it comes to the costliness, magnificence and ingenuity of the Easter egg, says the Lady's Pictorial, for it supplied one to hold the trousseau of a South African millionaire's bride. The shell was of chocolate and besides the trousseau it contained masses of sweets.

Some twenty or thirty years ago a great English lady presented the Pope with an Easter egg which had cost her over £2,000. Its shell was of ivory lined with white satin, the yolk was of gold, and within the yolk was a great ruby set with diamonds.

Not so valuable, yet more ingenious, was an easter egg manufactured as a gift to an Infanta of Spain. Its shell was of white enamel; within this was engraved the Gospel Lesson for Easter Day, and the whole inclosed a cage containing a marvellous mechanical bird which sang twelve airs from operas.

TAKING ENGLISH CENSUS.

Work is Done by Regular Public Officials, Costs Nothing.

In England a census is taken every seven years. In the United States the work costs some $5,000,000; in England with a population of 42,000,000, the work is done by the regular public officials, without extra cost. There the census is taken on a certain day at a certain hour, usually Saturday at 11 p.m., because most people are then at home. Printed circulars have been sent by the police to every family and to the owners of all lodgings and hotels. These circulars contain blanks, which must be filled.

The police round up passers in the streets. Sometimes a cranky Englishman, who, for reasons of his own, does not want to figure in the census, tries to evade the Government by riding around all night in a cab. Ten chances to one he will not succeed in his purpose.

Cabs are stopped as unhesitatingly as are street cars or pedestrians. The Government wants to know. The Government will not be denied. The work is done simultaneously throughout the United Kingdom.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

A great love cures many lusts

Worry is either too late or too soon.

You cannot lift where you do not love.

Sympathy may speak best in silence.

No man is so small he cannot be great in mercy.

Strength is largely a matter of discovering allies.

Many a thorn lies hidden in a bunch of soft words.

Influence is our shadow falling often far beyond our reach.

No man is right with God who is askew with his fellows.

The way to get even with your detractors is to disappoint them.

DISCIPLINE IN THE NAVY

NAUGHTY JACK AND HIS MANY PUNISHMENTS.

Form Most Used Is "10A"—"Feeding the Baby" is the Most Trying.

Since the bad old days of long ago the power invested in commanding officers to punish seamen offending against naval laws has been considerably curtailed. Jack used to be punished in the most brutal manner if he dared to disobey.

A common way of punishment in those days was to make a "spread eagle" of a man by lashing him up in the mizzen rigging with his legs and arms extended in the form of an X, and flogging him on the bare back with the end of the "top gallant," or "royal brace." Sometimes the "spread eagle" was "pickled"—i.e., buckets of salt water were thrown over his bruised and bleeding back, and he was marched up and down on the main deck in the blazing hot sun.

Such measures of discipline would not be tolerated in the British Navy to-day. But, while the various "pains and penalties" on board are quite as numerous, the modern officer is more humane, and resorts to ridicule rather than brutality to make a refractory tar obey orders.

STOPPING JACK'S GROG.

Only the other day on officers' steward was charged before a naval Court-martial at Chatham for misappropriation. He was found guilty, and the Court sentenced him to be confined in a cell, or behind a canvas screen, for fourteen days, kept on low diet during the last three days, and then dismissed the service.

This extraordinary sentence is but typical of some very strange methods of punishing Jack. Perhaps the form most used in the service is one termed "10 A." This includes extra work during the dinner hour, eating meals under supervision of a marine sentry, no smoking, and, what is perhaps the cruellest blow of all to Jack, stoppage of grog! The limit for "10 A" is fourteen days—and it is generally awarded for minor offences, such as neglect of duty, inattention at drill, or slackness in obeying orders.

WHISTLING FORBIDDEN.

For boys and youngsters under eighteen caning is still in vogue, and the sight of a boy receiving twelve cuts from a cane, at half-past seven on a cold morning, is sufficient to deter the other youngsters from doing wrong, for the time being at any rate.

Frequently, however, when Jack is naughty, he is sentenced to forms of punishment not found in the King's Regulations. One of the most ludicrous is known as "feeding the baby." This requires two buckets, one filled with water and the other quite empty. The water has to be ladled with a small spoon from one bucket to the other, without spilling any on deck. When the ship is rolling this wants doing, and it is awful backbreaking work on account of the stooping position.

It is an everyday occurrence to see a defaulter walking slowly backwards and forwards along the deck, nursing in his arms a 6 inch projectile, weighing perhaps a little over 100 pounds. After a quarter of an hour or so of this parading the unhappy victim aches from head to foot.

Woe betide the man who dares to whistle in a forbidden part of the ship. Offenders have frequently been sentenced to whistle their loud st under the eagle eye of the commander, until poor Jack's lips become so parched and cracked that he could not produce another note.

An apparently simple punishment is to be ordered to stand on the deck, facing the paintwork with hammock on shoulder. Yet this punishment is not so trivial as it appears. The hammock is not heavy, it is true, but after an hour or so it drags on one's shoulders like lead. Besides, it is far from pleasant to stare fixedly at a square foot of grey-painted woodwork for a long period. Jack would much prefer to do a few days' "10 A," or have his leave "jambed."

WHEN JACK GETS THE BELT.

Spitting on board is one of the most heinous offences. Tubs are placed at intervals along the deck for spittoons, and the sailor who ignores their presence and expectorates about the spotless deck had better look out. On some vessels a wide belt is kept, and the man who departs from regulations is compelled to wear this on his person. To retrieve his character, however, he is permitted to walk the deck with the other men, and should he spot a sailor committing a like offence, he at once presents him with the hated belt, and the new victim has to undergo a similar ordeal.

Some officers, however, adopt more drastic measures. If Jack is detected expectorating anywhere but in the receptacles provided, a "spit-kit" is strapped to his chest, and any man who cares to do so may make use of his curious walking spittoon. As may be supposed, this humiliating punishment effectively prevents the men from violating regulations.

THE WAY OUT.

Mr. Jorkins was once invited to tea at a certain house. Immediately on being seated at the table, a little daughter of the house said to the guest abruptly: "Where is your wife?"

Now Jorkins, who had recently separated from his better half, was surprised and annoyed at the question, and stammered forth: "I don't know."

"Don't know!" repeated the child. "Why don't you know?"

Finding that the child persisted in her interrogations, despite the mild reproof of her parents, Jorkins decided to make a clean breast of the matter, and have it over at once. So he said, with calmness: "Well, we don't live together. We think, as we can't agree, we'd better not."

"Can't agree! Then, why don't you fight it out, the same as father and mother do?"

NAME _____ ADDRESS _____

THE MAN FROM CANADA

"Twenty years is a long time. The man may be dead!"

"And again—he may not. Of course, there have hitherto been no answers to our advertisement, but, all the same, one may hear of or from him at any moment."

"And in the meantime?"

The lawyer looked across the polished mahogany table at his client with thoughtful scrutiny. Outside in the magnificent park a light summer shower was falling, and big pink roses beat their wet heads against the half-open windows. A faint scent of sweet-peas filled the beautiful old room.

"In the meantime you are in possession," he said at length; "you act as proxy, more or less, until Mr. Fearon turns up."

"And if he does not?" There was barely-disguised anxiety in the pleasant voice.

"If he does not—within the space of a year—the entire estates fall in natural sequence to—you."

Robert Leslie laughed, and, pushing back his chair, he got up and walked to the windows, looking out on the far-stretching park with its splendid timber, its exquisite lights and shades, melting away to a distant line of blue hills. The lawyer watched him for a minute, then began to gather up the papers which strewed the table before him.

"If he does not turn up in the space of one year," said Leslie, turning round at last. "I can't be such a hypocrite, Burland, to pretend I hope he will turn up. My whole life and soul is bound up in this place; I've helped to make it what it is. I—I love every stick and stone of it. But—no stone must be left unturned to find Fearon—if he's alive. You'll see to that Burland?"

"I will, Mr. Leslie. It's a strange business all through. Any further instructions you'll send to the office! Then I had better be going. I think we have done and said all that is necessary to day."

"I think so. But you'll dine with me first, Burland?"

"I'm sorry, I can't. I have an important appointment at six o'clock, and I see it is after half-past five now. Good day, Mr. Leslie—good day."

When the lawyer had gone, driving down the steep avenue behind the fast-trotting bay, Robert Leslie stepped out of the library window on to the long terrace which ran the whole length of the Manor House and looked over the radiant flower gardens, glowing in all their summer beauty of roses and carnations. Great hedges of sweet-peas fringed the gravelled paths and shed their sweetness on the warm air. Beyond the garden lay the park, dotted with fine old timber. Here and there could see the gleam of water through the trees, and beyond the belt of dark firs climbing the hill on the ther side there cut a line of amethyst sea. Small wonder that Robert Leslie looked with eyes half proud, half tender, on such a goodly heritage. Small wonder that, far from being a hypocrite, he should feel no great anxiety to see the return of the ne'er-do-weel heir, whose coming would dispossess him of his present sovereignty.

He had lived so long at the Manor House that he could recall no other home. The nephew of the late owner, the lad had been brought up as the heir, despite the fact that Roger Fearon's only son still lived—presumably. He had shaken off the iron discipline of his home and cut himself adrift from his family life and gone out to the Colonies in a fit of temper. Since then no one had heard anything of him beyond a rumor which came now and then—sometimes a rumor of death. And when Roger Fearon was gathered to his father Robert Leslie, his nephew and next-of-kin, stepped into his shoes. And would have filled them very suitably, said the neighborhood. For Robert Leslie was a popular man, respected and looked up to by the tenants on the estate and cordially liked by his own class, who would have been sincerely sorry to see him dispossessed of his goodly inheritance by a man of whom report had nothing to say but evil.

Should Godfrey Fearon turn up, Robert Leslie would go forth practically a penniless man save for his profession—he had read for the bar, but never practised, owing to the fact that his uncle had kept him with him, administering the estate and acting as his agent—and it would be uphill work for him to make his way to fortune, or even moderate competence. He would not care for himself, but there was Mary to consider. His eyes grew very tender as his thoughts lingered on the woman he hoped to call his wife. He could not make her his own yet—he felt it was not fair. Should the heir arrived—what then? He could not run the risk of sending her cast out on the world by him. He must wait for the time, and then—surely they would know by that time whether Godfrey Fearon was in the land of the living or not. In the meantime Mary Boden was out in Canada, staying with an uncle and aunt who were overpowered by a young and growing family, and who found their tall young niece, with her bright disposition and clever fingers, a perfect godsend to the rather neglected household. Robert hated to think that the sea rolled between him and Mary; he longed to cable out to her to come home to marry him at once. But he must wait. That was the most difficult thing in the world to do.

He pictured her mistress of the Manor House and all the loveliness which lay outspread before him, and his heart glowed at the thought. What a home she would make for him! Such a home as he had never yet known—but had only dreamed of.

She had known hard times, and he longed to bring her to this goodly heritage—to know that trouble and hardship were put away in the past and that the path shone before her couleur de rose. But he must possess his soul in patience, and—wait.

Months passed—and no answer came to the many advertisements inserted by Mr. Burland for the missing heir to the Manor estate. Only there came a letter from Mary Boden which brought a wave of joy to Robert Leslie in his loneliness. Mary was coming home—in a couple of weeks she would be in her home, the snug little house under the lee of the hill. She would be within a mile of the Manor House—and Robert.

* * * * *

"But for you, Miss Boden, I should have died."

Mary Boden looked up from her work with a little start. Her thoughts—pleasant ones, judging by the smile that lingered in her pretty hazel eyes—had been far away from the quiet house in the New England village, and the voice of the man who was standing looking out of the window at the waving trees brought her back from a land of dreams with a wrench. A fine-looking man he was, too—something over forty, with keen blue eyes and an upright bearing. His face bore many marks of hardship and privation, though his clothing was good and his air prosperous.

But Godfrey Bradshaw had known hard times before he struck oil as he put it, and emerged after many years of struggle and despair, one of the richest settlers in the colony. He had been brought to the house where Mary Bowen was staying with her uncle and aunt, unconscious and badly injured, having been thrown from his horse, and Mary had practically nursed him back to life and health again, so that his words were not exaggerated after all, and a sincere gratitude vibrated in his voice; something deeper and more tender shone in his keen blue eyes as they rested on the girl's sweet face.

"Don't say that," she said, gently; "I only did what I could. I am delighted to think you are quite well and strong again. But you must remember what a good patient you were—that helped more than anything!"

"A good patient!" Bradshaw pulled himself up sharply. Who would not be a good patient when Mary was the nurse? But the time had not yet come when he could speak to her of all that was growing day by day in his heart. He had led a wild adventurous sort of life ever since his coming to the colony many years ago. He had been obliged to put his hand to any work that turned up at first; then his perseverance and enterprise met with him. Finally—he had made his pile—he could, if he wished, go back to the old country, revisit old landmarks, pick up many broken threads. Sometimes he wished to do so; at others he reflected that little good might come of it. He was contented enough. He was rich; he would make his home in the colony which had given him fortune, and where now he had met the one woman who could ever touch his heart.

He turned and glanced at her sitting quietly bending over her work, the sunshine from the open window falling on her pretty head; there was something very calm and restful about Mary Bowen's appearance, but to-day a subtle sort of excitement had colored her cheeks and given them a rosy glow. Presently she looked up and laid down her work for a minute.

"I must tell you some news, Mr. Bradshaw. I am going home."

Bradshaw wheeled round—paused a moment, then crossed the room and dropped into a chair near the girl.

"Going home?" he echoed. "You mean to England?"

Mary nodded.

"Yes; I have only been staying here, you know, with my uncle; now I am going back to Hawkleigh!"

"Hawkleigh!"

The man's voice was startled; something leaped into his keen blue eyes.

"Yes; do you know that place at all?"

"By name; I don't know where I heard the name. So you live there, do you?"

"Yes; my stepfather, Dr. Graham, lives there, and so does—my future husband."

The blow fell—Bradshaw felt himself wince before it. He had never suspected, never guessed, that someone had come into Mary's life before him, had taken the blessing of which he had been dreaming all these blissful days. His lips whitened a little; but Mary had bent to her work again, her thoughts winging away to Robert and the rosy future before them, and so she did not see the man's change of countenance. Only his momentary silence puzzled her a little.

"So you are going to be married?" he said at last. "I wish you every happiness, Miss Mary. Is the wedding to be soon?"

Mary colored rosily. Her eyes were very bright and happy.

"At the end of the year—perhaps sooner; so I shall be very busy when I get home. You ought to take a trip to England, Mr. Bradshaw—revisit old haunts. I suppose you have many friends you could look up in the old country?"

"No, I don't think I have; and revisiting old scenes is melancholy work, Miss Boden, when one has to do it alone, and after such a gap of years I should find everything so changed. It's sad work, going back—though I often think I ought to run across the herring pond, just out of curiosity, although I am sure no one would remember me; and I have no one belonging to me—now."

His tone was bitter, his eyes rather sombre. Not long ago he had by chance seen the notice of his father's death in an English paper which had come under his notice. What memories of the past that had opened up—what vain and useless regrets! He had felt he ought to go over then, but something held him back, and then his accident kept him a prisoner to his bed for many weeks. That fact—and Mary—made him loath to travel so far. After all, he could do no good; the past was done with. No doubt his father had kept his word and disinherited him. And the new country of his adoption held all his interests for the present, and that future which he had hoped to share with Mary Boden. Well, that dream was over. He would have to accustom himself to a life of loneliness, ever, in the midst of his prosperity, for he could not be contented with the second best—it was the one woman for him or no one.

A fortnight later Mary Boden was preparing for departure; her passage was taken, and Bradshaw realized that the time was drawing near when she would go out of his life for ever, yet he could not keep away from her. Waiting for her one day in the pretty sunlit room, an open paper—an English one—lying on the table arrested his attention. He bent and glanced at the first columns, and one paragraph rose, as it were, and hit him in the eyes.

He read it with a dazed sort of face:—

Fearon.—If Godfrey Fearon, who left Hawkleigh twenty years ago, will communicate with Messrs. Burland and Martin, solicitors, Hawkleigh, he will hear of something to his advantage. A reward will be given for any information leading to the discovery of the said Godfrey Fearon's whereabouts.

Bradshaw drew a long breath. At that moment the door opened and Mary came in, and he straightened himself quickly. On the impulse of the moment he said, suddenly:—

"Do you know, I'm going to England, too, Miss Boden. We may be fellow-passengers after all. I have to go over—on business."

A week later the homeward-bound mail boat numbered amongst her passengers both Mary Boden and Godfrey Bradshaw.

* * * * *

The voyage was calm and uneventful, save for Godfrey Bradshaw, for whom fate had reserved yet another blow. Mary he knew was beyond his reach. He could never hope to win her now; but another incentive had come into his life. There might be a new life for him in the old country; since his father's solicitors were advertising for him, he supposed he had not been cut off with the proverbial shilling after all! Well—he would be glad to see the old home again—glad it would not pass into the hands of strangers, or even of that cousin of his, whom he had never seen, but who he heard had taken his place at home, and acted the part of a son to the late owner of Hawkleigh Manor.

Mary's mention of the place recalled his boyhood's memories, as they sat together on deck one fine evening. In twenty-four hours they would be in Liverpool—their journey would be ended—a journey which, for Mary Boden at any rate, was to have the happiest of endings.

"Will you live at Hawkleigh when you are—married?" he asked, with some difficulty. Mary's face clouded a little.

"I think so—I hope so. But it depends, you see, whether Mr. Leslie remains at the Manor House or not."

Bradshaw started a little. Leslie! Why, his cousin's name was Leslie—and——

"He is thinking—of leaving!" he hazarded.

"He may be obliged to do so. You see, he only succeeds to the Manor House estate under odd circumstances. If the heir—a Mr. Fearon—does not turn up within a year of the old man's death, the nephew—Robert Leslie—succeeds. If Mr. Fearon arrives, Robert has nothing. That will delay our marriage. He is a barrister, but has never practised, as his uncle always wanted him at home. It was hard on him that the property should have been left in such a queer way, but it was a whim of the uncle's, I suppose. You see, his son went away twenty years ago and has never been heard of since. I don't suppose he will turn up."

"I dare say not," said Bradshaw, slowly. His eyes were fixed on the blue waters through which the big vessel was steadily ploughing her way. So Mary was going to marry Robert Leslie, and expected to reign at Hawkleigh as mistress! What an irony of fate! "And when is the year up?"

"Next month. After that, if Mr. Fearon does not appear, Robert is the sole owner of the Manor House. Oh, I hope he won't turn up—I don't mean to be unkind or anything, but it will make all the difference to Robert and to me if he doesn't. And, after twenty years, I suppose things couldn't be the same for him if he did come back."

"No—they couldn't," said Bradshaw, slowly; "they could not, of course."

* * * * *

Long after Mary Boden had gone to her cabin that night—the last night of their voyage—Bradshaw paced up and down the deserted deck in the chill moonlight wrestling with himself. The calm stars looked down upon him as he battled with his miserable jealousy—his vain longings for all that Mary could have brought him—happiness and home, and all a man wants to complete his life's happiness. But they were destined for one another, and that other his cousin and the present owner of the Manor House. Well—what was the use of his coming between? Above all other things he desired the happiness of the woman he loved—the woman who must be to him always the one woman. To secure that he would do anything—even to the sacrificing of himself and his own interests.

Many, many years ago, the words had been said to him, "You have made your bed . . . you must lie on it."

Hard though it was, he must lie on it still It would at least be easier than to destroy the happiness of the woman he loved.

He schooled himself to say goodbye to Mary the next day when they arrived in Liverpool, and they parted, he to go to London on the presumed business which had brought him over, she to travel north to Hawkleigh.

"You will come and see me—us," she said, with a shy blush, "if you are ever in our part of the world, won't you?"

"I will, indeed. Good-bye, and good luck, Miss Boden. May everything work together for your good, and all your happiest hopes be realized."

* * * * *

A month later Mary Boden was transformed into Mrs. Leslie, and Robert took formal possession of his estate. Godfrey Fearon had made no sign—no tidings even had been received about him—and he was therefore presumed to be dead. And no one noticed the stranger who looked on at the quiet little wedding from behind a distant pillar, and who watched the departure of the happy bride with such longing eyes.

That night, on board the outgoing boat bound for Quebec, Godfrey Bradshaw turned his back for ever on his old home—looking forward to the land of his adoption, resolutely giving up all the hopes and dreams which had filled his heart such a short time ago. He knew at least the beauty of sacrifice, and he knew that Mary had her heart's desire. That was happiness itself to him.

It was a couple of years later that Robert Leslie received a bundle of papers from a solicitor in Canada, with the tidings that a man, known throughout Canada as a wealthy colonist and a philanthropist of no mean order, named Godfrey Bradshaw, had lately died, leaving all he possessed to Mary Leslie, nee Boden. It further transpired that Godfrey Bradshaw was in reality Godfrey Fearon, for whom such fruitless search had been made.

"And he knew I was going to marry you—he knew all about the search and he never spoke!" cried Mary Leslie, tears in her pretty eyes, when she heard the story. "Oh, why, Robert! Why did he do such a thing?"

Perhaps Robert Leslie guessed the dead man's reason when he heard all Mary had to tell him of her friendship with the man who had called himself by his dead mother's name. At any rate, the name of Godfrey Fearon is spoken with great affection at the Manor House by Robert Leslie and his wife, and the will never forget—Mary especially—the man from Canada or the silence which gave them all they desired.—London Tit-Bits.

FOREIGN RECIPES.

German Rahm Torte. — The whites of four fresh eggs, one-half pound powdered sugar, a few drops vanilla flavor, one pint of whipped cream. Separate the eggs, save yolks for dumplings, whip until they begin to get stiff; add one tablespoon powdered sugar, whip again, add one more tablespoon sugar; now whip until stiff, fold in the rest of the sugar, spread on paper the size of a large layer cake; now put your pan in the oven until hot, place paper with cake on hot pan and bake about twenty-five minutes or until it is hard, but it must remain white. When done lift off the paper; now whip the cream until stiff, add one tablespoon powdered sugar, a few drops of vanilla; spread between layers and on top.

Swedish Veal Chicken.—Take four slices veal steak, cut into pieces four inches across; chop parsley fine, roll in a ball of butter, and put in the center of veal; tie with a string and brown good, then bake in oven for two hours, baste with half milk and half water; serve with gravy. This is enough for eight persons.

Swedish Apple Cake.—Boil one-quarter peck apples to smooth sauce; grind one loaf sweet rye bread and brown in good piece of butter. Fill a baking dish, bread first and alternate bread and apples, bread on top; bake one hour. Sauce: One pint of milk when boiling, dissolve one teaspoonful potato flour in cold milk and pour in the hot milk; take from fire and beat two eggs in the milk. When cold stir in vanilla and sugar to taste. Serve cold.

Chop Suey.—One and one-half pounds of chopped beef and one-half pound of sausage meat cooked together, six large onions fried in butter brown, one package of spaghetti cooked in salt water, can of tomato soup; put as much water as soup and thicken with a little corn starch; add a little celery, salt, pepper, and salt and one tablespoonful of sugar; fry onions real brown in butter and then fry the meat. When all are cooked put in one dish and cook five minutes. This recipe is splendid.

Chile Can Carne.—Two pounds veal, one pound beef suet, one handful bay leaves, two onions, three peppers (red or green). Put all of these through the food chopper. One tablespoonful of cloves, one tablespoonful of allspice. Tie in a cloth bag. Two quarts tomatoes, salt to taste, pinch of red pepper Boil for five hours and add two cans of kidney beans. Let come to a boil again. Keep in a cool place and heat a little at a time as wanted. Serve hot with coffee and thin slices of bread and butter.

Amsterdam Potatoes. — Take eight medium-sized potatoes, pare, boil, salt, and mash. To four cups of mashed potatoes add the well beaten whites of two eggs, one-half cupful of cream, and one tablespoonful of butter. Beat all together until light, then put in a baking dish and bake a light brown. This is a delicious and attractive dish.

MEATS.

Fricedellers, a German Meat Dish.—Take two pounds of beef and half a pound of pork chops and mix well, one egg, small bowlful of soaked bread, season well with salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Then mix all together thoroughly and make into balls, fry in hot fat for twenty minutes.

Delicious Steak.—Get a thick flank steak with a small piece of suet, put suet in spider to render. Roll steak in beaten egg and powdered cracker crumbs, season with salt and pepper. Have grease hot, lay in steak, cover until brown; turn, leave uncovered, let other side brown. Serve on platter garnished with parsley.

Legless Birds.—Get a nice cut of round steak, not too thin, cut up in three and one-half inch squares, then salt and pepper well; get one pound of chopped meat, half beef, half pork; cut up two nice sized onions fine, mix well one egg, one teaspoonful of cream, salt and pepper to taste; fill square with mixture and tie with white cord, then roll in flour. Put in well greased frying pan and brown well. When good and brown add enough water to cover, put in stew pan, and let stew for an hour and a half, adding water when needed. When well down take off cord and put in platter and set in oven for a minute until gravy is ready for table.

Roasted Ham.—Wash the ham, scrubbing it thoroughly with a stiff brush; cover with equal parts of water and cold milk. In the morning drain off the liquid, cover with fresh water, and cook, allowing fifteen minutes for every pound of meat, after the water has reached a steady boil. When done let the ham get cold in the liquid in which it was boiled, then remove the skin, stick a dozen cloves in the fat, and cover the ham with a soft dough or paste made or flour and water. Put the ham in a roasting pan, pour about it two quarts of the milk and water in which it was soaked, add then a quarter cup of brown sugar. Baste every twenty minutes during the time it is in the oven. After this remove the paste and pour a cup of sweet cider over the ham.

BREAKFAST HELPS.

Wash, core, and chop nice apples, fill the dishes, sprinkle with chopped nuts and sugar, and serve with cream.

Add a tablespoonful of seeded and chopped dates to each dish of well cooked oatmeal and serve with sugar and cream.

Pour a little hot water over a shredded wheat biscuit and drain, cover the top with canned or preserved strawberries, and serve with cream.

Prepare the biscuit as above, cover with canned or preserved peaches, and serve with cream.

Sliced Oranges.—Peel the oranges and slice from the outside to center in small pieces; sprinkle with sugar.

Wash cooking apples, cut out the core, and fill the center with sugar; place in a granite dish, pour in a little hot water, and bake; serve with cream.

Take boiling salted water, thicken with graham flour, steam twenty minutes, and serve with milk or cream.

HELPFUL HINTS.

To clean and brighten rugs—have a clean mop, wring out of clean warm water in which is one-half cup of ammonia. Mop the rug as you would a floor.

Put one-fourth of a teaspoonful of ground ginger in each batch of doughnuts. The spice will never be detected and the doughnuts will not soak fat.

The colds so frequent with children may be prevented by covering the headpiece of iron beds or cribs. Use a curtain of cretonne or silkolene to match spread and bolster, and the effect is an improvement.

When the cane bottoms of chairs sag, turn them upside down and give them a good wetting. Scrub with a brush and use soap. Let them dry in this position and the canes will tighten up and be as good as new.

A good china cement is made by mixing with a strong solution of gum arabic and water to enough plaster of paris to make a thick paste. This should be applied to the broken edge with camel's hair brush.

To clean combs take an old can and fill with coal oil, dip the comb into the oil and rub with an old toothbrush. Dirt and dandruff will readily leave the comb. The oil acts as a disinfectant. Rinse under the faucet.

For cleaning copper and brass, saturate a soft cloth with ammonia, upon which shave thickly sapolio, and apply to copper sinks, brass faucets, jardinieres, or utensils of any kind. Makes like new. Far superior to salt and vinegar.

To select oranges one should judge by weight and appearance. A juicy orange is heavy in proportion to its size, while a "corky" one is light in weight. A smooth, fine, grained skin, which appears to be tightly stretched, is a good indication of the contents, while the heavy, coarse grained, dry skin signifies a coarse grained fruit with little juice.

If you have trouble with children in giving them a shampoo because they object to having soap suds splashed in their eyes try tying a napkin over their eyes that you have taken by opposite corners and rolled until the remaining corners are formed into a pad. Tie around head with knot at back of neck and all superfluous water and soap suds will be absorbed.

Does any one know the value of the supper part of long kid gloves for fancy work? Especially nice for book covers and baby moccasins. The kid can be decorated in many ways. Cut work over an underlay, embroidering, painting, and making up the same as other material, except that for book covers the boards should be covered with a split layer of batting.

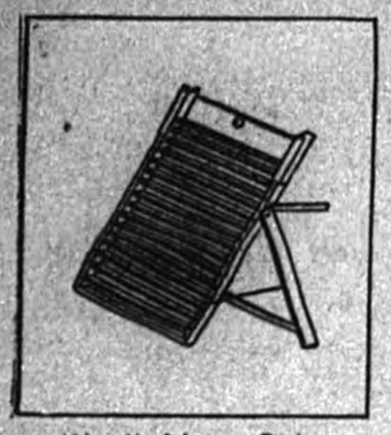

For a bedroom that is used a good deal to sit in, as for instance a mother's room, a spread made of dark blue burlap, or if one wishes a cheaper material, a good quality of denim, embroidered in a large conventional design in heavy white mercerized cotton either around the edge or merely in the center, to pull up over the white counterpane and pillows during the day, would prove a most useful and acceptable gift.

Before washing or stretching curtains baste a hem of muslin across the bottom, wash and starch the curtain, run rod through top hem, another in the false hem at the bottom, and hang at the window until dry; then remove the hem, press bottom with hot iron. They hang perfectly and look like new. A madras or the finest net curtain may be stretched in this way with perfect satisfaction.

DRAINS AND CARRIES DISHES

Invention of California Man Useful for Homes, Hotels and Restaurants.

An article of twofold use in homes, hotels and restaurants is the dish carrier designed by a Californian. In addition to being a carrier device, this also makes a good draining rack. The device consists of a frame with rows of inclined slots, somewhat resembling a window blind, and resting at an angle upon supports. It is set on a table near where the dishes are washed, and as they are dried the plates and saucers are placed in the openings. Or they can be placed there to drain before they are dried. When the rack is full scores of dishes can be carried with ease and safety to the cupboard at one trip, where otherwise a dozen journeys would be necessary. The effect of a stumble with this "lazy man's load" of china is horrible to contemplate, but the inventor is not expected to take clumsiness into consideration. Ordinarily careful people will find the device a time-saver.

TO SAVE LABOR IN KITCHEN

Little Things That Will Lighten Work During the Hot Days of Jelly Making.

Now that the jelly making season is at hand a few hints that will make less work for the housekeeper will not be amiss. Your jelly bag, of course, is perfectly clean to start with. After picking over and washing the fruit put it right into the bag, put the bag into a large kettle and add whatever amount of water you desire. Boil it this way a little longer than you would without the bag. This way of doing saves one the awkward task of dipping up the hot fruit into the bag and often scalding one's self in so doing. When boiled sufficiently the bag can be lifted out and set in a porcelain collender on top of the kettle to drain and left there till the next day, if necessary. This is all quickly done and one is saved the trouble of hanging the bag up to drain, for there never seems to be any place to hang it out of the way. Before this plan suggested itself to me jelly making was a much harder task, while now I do not dread it all. I would say, however, that I have not tried it for currants or berries, because those fruits do not need much water or boiling, but for green gooseberries grapes, rhubarb, or any of the larger fruits it is an excellent plan.

Chocolate Ice Cream.

Serving chocolate cream with whipped cream is especially desirable for summer, as the whipped cream lightens the chocolate flavor. Melt an ounce in a quarter of a cup of hot water in which the same amount of sugar has been dissolved. Stir this over the fire until it is smooth, and add it, with a cupful of sugar and a good pinch of salt, to a quart of thin cream which has been scalded with a two-inch piece of cinnamon bark. Strain this mixture, let it cool, add a tablespoonful of vanilla extract and freeze. Pack the cream in a lemon mold and let it stand for several hours. Turn it on a large plate and surround it with fluffy whipped cream, decorated with thin slices of candied fruit.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Sardines.

Select large, ripe tomatoes of uniform size and pare them carefully with a sharp knife. Set on the ice to harden and cut out the hearts neatly, leaving the walls whole. Prepare the filling by skinning boneless sardines and laying them upon tissue paper to absorb the oil. Then scrape, as you would pick codfish for "balls" and work in a little lemon juice and a dash of white pepper. Toss and work with a silver fork until smooth and fill the cavities left in the tomatoes with the mixture.

The combination of flavors is very pleasant.

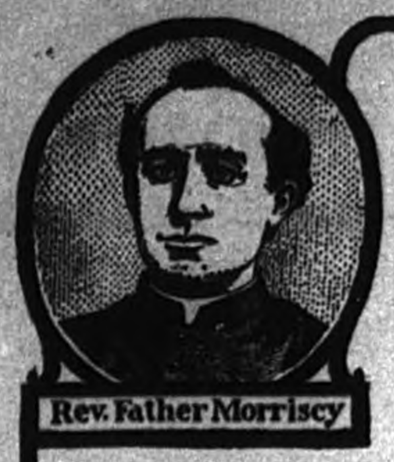

Canning Corn.

Get good corn, not too ripe, cut it from the cob and scrape out the milk. Fill the jars with corn and fasten the lids on lightly. Place a wooden rack or straw in the bottom of the wash boiler to almost the tops of the jars and boil for two hours. Remove the lids and quickly fasten them again, then boil two hours more. If tin cans are used the lids must be punctured. The boiler must be well covered while the corn boils, for steam cooks more quickly than hot water. It is advisable to can a little at a time.

To Make Skirt Hang Evenly.

An accurate and easy way to even off a skirt which is to be hemmed instead of faced. Before putting on the belt lay the skirt on the floor doubled at the front fold and measure the required length from waist down all around and pin together every little ways, then turn back the extra length to the pins and baste.

Rev. Father Morriscy

A Combined Treatment That Really Cures Catarrh.

Canadian weather, with its extreme cold and sudden changes, gives almost every one Catarrh, and makes it hard to cure. Some recommend internal remedies—some external applications.

Father Morriscy used both—tablets to be taken three or four times a day to invigorate the system, purify the blood, and help it throw off the disease, and a soothing, healing, antiseptic salve to be applied inside the nostrils. This combined treatment known as attacking the disease from within and without, soon cures.

"Father Morriscy's No. 26"

Mr. A. C. Thibodeau, General Merchant in Rogersville, N.B., writes on Jan. 22nd last:

"A few words as to the merits of your Catarrh Cure. For the last 10 years I have been troubled with Catarrh of the head and stomach and during that time have tried all kinds of other Remedies with no results, until I tried your Catarrh Cure which I am glad to say has cured me. I highly recommend it to those who are suffering with this disease."

Don't trifle with Catarrh—cure it with Father Morriscy's No. 26.

OBITUARY.

THE LATE JOSEPH McKIMMIE.

It is our sad duty to record the death of Mr. Jos. McKimmie of North River, which occurred on Friday last, May 20th. Deceased was in his 73rd year, and on Monday, the 16th, inst., had been visiting his nephew, Mr. Jas. McKimmie, where he was seized with a stroke of paralysis from which he never recovered. Mr. McKimmie seemed to be crushed with the severe sorrow through which he had been caused to pass within the last three years, when he first lost his wife, then in March last burying his two daughters, and nursing his only boy through with pneumonia. Now he has been called home to meet with his loved ones, leaving his son, John, to silently mourn the loss, to whom the whole community extend their deepest sympathy and comfort.

Pleads Guilty to Charge of Theft Committed for Trial

There seems to be considerable satisfaction in the arrest of Mr. Arthur Lefebvre, for now it is hoped that the petty thefts which have occurred of late will be put a stop to. Not that Mr. Lefebvre is the perpetrator of them all, we do not pretend to say, but that he has been caught stealing a large quantity of maple syrup and a crock of butter from Mr. John McFarlane, and that Mr. James identified his syrup cans is evidence that it was not his first attempt. The arrest was made by Detective Wm. E. Girard, of Montreal, who brought the accused before Justices G. F. Calder & J. E. Valois. The evidence of Antoine, son of the accused, went to show that about the 1st of May, Mr. Lefebvre had asked his son to go with him to McFarlane's home where they secured the goods that led to his arrest. After hearing the evidence, the prisoner pleaded guilty and was committed for trial at Ste. Scholastique.

May 24th passed off here very quietly this year. Our genial Post-master, however, gave an enjoyable series of musical selections from his gramaphone, which helped to pass away an otherwise dull evening.

So far this season our Knights of the rod and line have not met with much success, several parties returning from a day's sport with heavy hearts and light catches. Of course the big ones got away. They always do.

At last the secret of defying old age has been discovered. All you have to do to become a boy again, is to line up against the Quarry Rangers on the Football field. To our Lachute Editor and the Secretary of the D.C. Co. Football Club, the world is indebted for this most important discovery.

We suppose we ought to consider ourselves crushed into the earth and thoroughly humbled, but we don't feel just that way, although his high and mighty highness has smitten us with his wrath, and our Lachute Editor has backed him up with dreadful sarcasm. Yet, as we study it all out, we find this excuse only offered by both defeated teams,—"They are only boys pitted against grown men," (professionals as our Lachute Editor erroneously states) We do hope some of the alleged boys will help us by resenting the insult, or failing such a course, will visit Mr. Frank Tample or Mr Omer Paquette's, and get their moustaches shaved off.

Another whitewash, but the brush kind of stuck in the pail this time. It was anybody's game from start to finish. Playing on a sodden field, in a drizzling rain, the D.C. Co. did all they could to save the day, and it is generally admitted that luck won the game for the Rangers by the score of 1 to 0. For the D.C Co. Reggie Hepenstal played a good game and several times distinguished himself by neat and timely passing, whilst G. Scott put up a great defence in goal. On the Rangers side no brilliant play was noticeable except W. Duncan's goal-keeping, which was exceptionally good. Asked for their report of the game, the latter team seemed to consider they put up a poor fight. However, the state of the ground and ball prevented any spectacular play, and as we said above it was anybody's game right up to the call of time. In spite of the weather the attendance was fair and the rooters were enthusiastic. The following is the line up:

TERRIBLE MAN KILLERS

FIRING TWO MILLION BULLETS AN HOUR.

Electrical Gun Imparts a Velocity of 30,000 Feet a Second to the Projectile.

The demands upon our Navy on all the Seven Seas are so great that it is imperative we should possess more war vessels than any other Power, says London Tit-Bits. But what is the use of building battleships if guns and torpedoes exist which, if there were a European war to-morrow, might after the first few weeks, or days, put every ironclad at the bottom of the sea or in dock, and for the time being leave the ocean free to all? Instruments of destruction will decide the Trafalgar of the future; battleship will not be pitted against battleship, but torpedo against torpedo and electrical gun against electrical gun.

The invention of the torpedo, or "White Devil," as Kipling so aptly terms it, completely revolutionized the method of attack in naval warfare when it was invented years ago. The Brennan torpedo—once the most formidable engine for harbor attack and defence that existed in the world—may almost be considered old-fashioned, while the Whitehead torpedo is but a squib compared to the new air-torpedo recently invented by the Swedish Colonel Unge.

FOR SEA OR LAND.

Colonel Unge's torpedo can be fired without producing any recoil whatever, hence the torpedo tube is light and easy to move quickly from place to place. It is said that it will shortly be introduced into the German army and navy, and it is proposed to convey the torpedo tube on a motor-car for land defence. In field operations the air torpedo can be hurled against bodies of troops as well as against troops in covered positions, and, owing to the fact that it can be discharged without the slightest noise, it will be next to impossible for an enemy to locate the position of the torpedo battery which is attacking it. In coast defence the air-torpedo can be fired in such a way as to drop right on the decks of hostile battleships.

A DIRGIBLE TORPEDO.

Had the Halpine dirgible torpedo, the invention of Lieutenant Halpine, of the United States navy, been in the hands of Russia during the Russo-Japanese War, the progress of events round Port Arthur might have been different.

Terrible, indeed, is the Halpine torpedo, and it is sent on its errand in a way quite distinct from that of the Whitehead and similar torpedoes. It is towed out to sea by a sailor on a small rowing boat. On board the boat is a controlling board, worked by electricity, and when a crank is turned the Halpine torpedo, which is attached to the boat by a cable, careers along at high speed, pulling the craft after it

When the torpedo and the boat are within a couple of miles or so of the vessel which is to be attacked, the sailor in charge brings them to a dead stop. Anchoring his boat, he climbs aboard the torpedo, sits astride, and releases the cable or tow-line. His next proceeding is to restart the mechanism of the torpedo under him. As the torpedo sets along he guides it towards the vessel, and, when well within the mile limit, he drops into the sea—he wears a cork jacket—and takes hold of a controlling wire which issues from the back of the torpedo, and which may be run out to a mile or more if necessary. So that the operator can see where to guide the torpedo by means of the wire it has two short masts with round discs at the end. A red and green lamp is made to flare at the back of the discs at the will of the operator. If he keeps the two lights in line, one above the other, he can be sure that his weapon is heading straight for the big battleship.

FOR NIGHT ATTACK.

The torpedo, if its "nose" runs into the wire torpedo netting of the ironclad, automatically reverses its propeller and runs backwards a little distance, leaving its "nose" in the net. As the torpedo retreats a leaden cap is pulled from it by a chain attached to the "nose" and a cavity containing metallic potassium is opened. The air and water which enter this chamber result in forcing a projectile through a tube below the torpedo. This projectile, which is also attached to the clinging "nose" by a cable, sinks below the sea at an angle of about forty-five degrees. When about a hundred feet below the surface it comes to the end of its tether, and, being buoyant, strikes upwards. In so doing it is practically certain that it will strike the hull of the battleship under the armor-protecting plates and away from the torpedo net. Directly the projectile has been fired the torpedo becomes quite detached from the "nose" and backs towards the waiting operator. A small ratchet within it rewinds the wire, and in this way the torpedo is bound to return to the man in charge. He then clambers once more on its back, and either steers it back to his anchored boat or makes straight for the shore. As a weapon for night attack the Halpine dirgible torpedo has yet to be beaten.

FROM LONDON TO PARIS.

A little while ago we were hearing much of the wonderful gun invented by Mr. Simpson, a Scotch engineer, whose name is well known in connection with metallurgical researches and discoveries. His weapon is capable of imparting, by the application of electricity, an initial velocity of 30,000 feet a second to projectiles of all dimensions, and there is nothing to prevent it and others of its type from electrically propelling shells from London to Paris, or vice versa, at the rate of thousands a day.

Mr. Simpson declares that his gun will throw a projectile four hundred miles or more without either flash, smoke, or recoil. He has not, naturally, divulged the secrets of his invention, but he tells us that his electric gun is entirely different in shape from any of the firearms now in the possession of the Great Powers, and that the projectiles it propels at such an alarming rate do not resemble the ordinary conical shots and bullets. This gun, which makes Jules Verne's "Trip from the Earth to the Moon" in a cannon-ball almost a possibility, will probably be acquired by Britain, and, if so, it might help to turn the scale of war in her favor.

WORKED BY MOTOR.

A Mr. Bangerter has invented a quick-firing gun which is capable of propelling automatically, without noise, smoke, or flash, bullets at the extraordinary rate of 30,000 a minute at ordinary speed, and 2,000,000 an hour if pushed to its maximum capacity. The cost of one hour's firing would not exceed $20.

According to Mr. Bangerter, ten of his guns, firing half-inch bullets at the rate of 2,000,000 every sixty minutes, would sweep away an entire army within an hour, even if only one per cent. of the missiles found a billet. His quick-firer is worked by motor-power, and requires two men only to operate it.

When one considers the terrible engines of destruction that exist to-day one is forced to admit that Jules Verne, besides being a vivid author, was a prophet of the highest attainments. The devising of these fearful man-killers must sooner or later result in the abolition of war. In a year or two no Power will possess a margin of superiority over another, and then the nations of the world will all agree to cry "Halt!" The God of Peace will be Science!

BRIGHTER DAYS IN RUSSIA.

Czar Able Now to Drive About the Streets of His Capital.

The Czarina is slowly recovering her health. For the first time in several years she recently gave a reception for her ladies in waiting and it was observed that she showed no signs of fatigue when it was ended. The Empress is interested in music and she and Baroness Stackelberg sing duets frequently after dinner.

The Czar once again is a familiar figure driving in the streets of St. Petersburg. He may be seen driving alone in an open victoria, frequently even without a footman on the box seat. There may be detectives in cabs near by but they are not in evidence.

A police official is usually seen in a cab about thirty or forty yards ahead of the Czar's carriage, probably as a tip to the police and detectives in the streets to look out for the Emperor. The electric cars in the Nevsky Prospekt are numerous, but traffic is never held up to permit the Czar's carriage to pass.

St. Petersburg society is glad the Czar has again taken up his residence in the city. It was feared that he might never again occupy the Winter Palace as a rebuke to St. Petersburg for its disloyalty on that fatal "Red Sunday."

The capital socially has not been so lively since the close of the war with Japan. The members of the nobility are in their palaces and entertaining and being entertained. The Dowager Empress Marie is in residence in the Anitchkoff Palace on the Nevsky Prospekt and drives out frequently in an open victoria, a giant Cossack standing guard on the seat behind. She visits the theatre or opera almost nightly and society follows her example, wherefore St. Petersburg this winter has been very gay.

TAXES FROM THE GRAVE.

Raumburg, Germany, has invented a new tax. The heirs of persons desirious of having their goodness, or even their name, inscribed on a tombstone or cross, must pay ten per cent. of the cost of the monument into the city treasury.

MANY NEEDLESSLY BLIND

CHILDREN NOT PROPERLY TREATED AT BIRTH.

Crusade Now Going On Which will Preserve the Sight of Thousands.

It is an astonishing fact, and one not generally known, that one-quarter of all the children in the blind schools of the country are needlessly blind, says Munsey's Magazine. These children are doomed to life-long darkness because at the time of birth their eyes were not properly treated by the attending physician. The cause of this preventable blindness is ophthalmia neonatorum (ophthalmia of the new-born), commonly known as "inflammation of the eyes," "babies' sore eyes," or "cold in the eyes," one of the most dangerous of menaces to vision when treatment is delayed or neglected.

ALARMING FIGURES.

Dr. Geo. Foggin, honorary ophthalmic surgeon to the Royal Victoria School for the Blind, goes so far as to assert that "this disease is responsible for more than one-third of the blindness of the world," meaning blindness at all ages and from all causes put together. It has been estimated that probably one-half the blindness of the world is unnecessary, from which it follows that, of the 64,000 registered blind persons in the United States, about 30,000 are needlessly blind from various causes, and, of these, between 6,000 and 7,000 are blind as the result of ophthalmia neonatorum—about ten per cent. of the entire number.

COST TWO CENTS PER CASE.

It would have cost two cents on the day of birth to save the sight of every blind child through ophthalmia neonatorum. Two cents' worth of nitrate of silver solution and two minutes of the nurse's time is the cost of prevention. It is difficult to estimate the cost of cure, however; for cures are rare once inflammation has set in. Unless prompt measures are taken, the disease is nearly always fatal to the sight of one or both eyes, and in the majority of cases the little victim becomes a charge upon public or private charity, often for life.

It is estimated that the total cost of the needlessly blind throughout the State of New York exceeds $110,000 a year, and if the blind citizen is a dependent for life, the cost of his maintenance will not be less than $10,000.

NEEDS ORGANIZED EFFORT

Yet, although many physicians have labored unceasingly for the last quarter of a century to suppress the disease, both individually and through organized effort, the average number of children blinded by opthalmia neonatorum continues year after year, above 25 per cent. The truth is that the medical campaign was not enough; only the concerted action of physicians and the public can stamp out the disease. This was recognized by the Commission in 1903, appointed to investigate the blind of the New York State. Dr. F. Park Lewis, the president, made his plea for the new "campaign to save infants from blindness" in the words: "But the physician can never do this alone. This is a social effort. Every woman's club, every charitable society, must interest itself in protecting the babies; for, of all the ignorance which needs to be dispelled by the spirit of regeneration amongst us, none is more intolerable than which wantonly permits children to be plunged into the abyss of blindness."

WORK OF COMMITTEE.

A special committee on the prevention of blindness was organized to carry on the work in 1908. An appropriation was made by the Russell Sage Foundation to meet the expenses of the new undertaking. The work of the committee is purely educational—the free distribution of pamphlets, leaflets, etc., and the planning of lectures and exhibits, and partly assistance in securing legislation.

MAKES A UNIVERSAL APPEAL

The spirit animating the committee was expressed by Dr. Lewis, the recognized leader in this country of the present crusade against ophthalmia neonatorum, in the following eloquent appeal. "The duty of saving the child from this calamity," he said, "is one devolving not only on the State, it rests upon every right-minded individual to whom a knowledge of the danger comes. It should be a self-imposed task on every society for the prevention of cruelty to children, upon every charity organization society, upon every legislator, upon every citizen, to promulgate a knowledge of the dangers which menace the babies of the land; and if they and we unite our efforts (for no movement should be attempted except with the authority and co-operation of the organized medical profession), this pathological anachronism of a controlled and preventable infection, which continues to work havoc and disaster in spite of twentieth century knowledge, and methods will be robbed of its virulence, and comfort and happiness and prosperity shall be assured for multitudes of children yet unborn."

NA-DRU-CO

Toilet and Medicinal Preparations Are Compounded by Expert Chemists

Who Compounds Your Medicines?

When your physician gives you a prescription you would scarcely risk having it compounded by a grocer or a baker, even if you were sure they had the right drugs. You insist on your druggist's skilful dispensing.

If you did not protect yourself in this way the laws of the country would protect you, for they demand that physicians' prescriptions be dispensed by physicians or qualified druggists only.

Is it not equally important to know that the household remedies, such as laxatives, cough syrups and tonics, and the toilet preparations such as tooth paste, which you use so frequently, are also compounded by expert chemists?

When you use NA-DRU-CO medicinal or toilet preparations you have the positive guarantee of one of the largest wholesale drug firms in the world, the National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, that each one has been compounded by expert chemists only.

This is just where NA-DRU-CO Cascara Laxatives, NA-DRU-CO Liquorice, Linseed, and Chlorodyne Cough Syrup, NA-DRU-CO Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound and everything else on the NA-DRU-CO list are pre-eminently better than mixtures at present flooding the market. They are compounded by men who know.

NA-DRU-CO Formulae, Ingredients and Compounding Are Best

Your own druggist could not be more careful or more accurate in compounding one of your physician's prescriptions than are our chemists in compounding every NA-DRU-CO preparation. Add to this the facts that only the best and purest materials that money can buy are used in NA-DRU-CO articles, and that each NA-DRU-CO formula has been thoroughly tested in actual use, and you have the solid grounds for the implicit confidence we want you to feel in NA-DRU-CO preparations.

We are prepared to furnish to any physician or druggist in Canada, on request, a full list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO article. Ask these men, who are men of standing in your community, and best qualified to tell you, all about NA-DRU-CO preparations.

If any NA-DRU-CO article you buy does not prove entirely satisfactory return it to your druggist. He has our authority to refund the full purchase price and charge it to us.

You can get any NA-DRU-CO preparation anywhere in Canada, for if your druggist should not have it in stock he can get it within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

BIG MILLING RE-ORGANIZATION.

Negotiations for what is undoubtedly the largest milling consolidation that has ever been effected in Ontario have just been completed in Toronto, and following them the official announcement is made of the organization of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, with a capital of $5,000,000.

The new Company has taken over the properties of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, Limited, and the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, and in addition secures from the new interests that have become identified with the Company $1,000,000, additional cash capital, which besides permitting of the erection of a modern 6,000 barrel mill and a million bushel elevator and storage warehouse at Port Colborne, will supply the new Company with further working capital. It is understood that Mr. Cawthra Mulock, Toronto, is associated with Mr. Hedley Shaw of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, Limited, and Mr. D. C. Cameron, President of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, in the organization of the new concern.

The ability of the Company to easily earn the 7 per cent. Cumulative Preferred dividend on $2,500,000 of preferred stock is indicated by the net earnings of the old Companies, as per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, which shows that from September 25th, 1908, from which date the plants of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, were in operation, to August 20th, 1909, these net earnings amounted to $218,843.00, and from August the 21st, 1909 to February 28th, 1910, the net earnings of the Companies amounted to $166,793.00. This would be equal to over 13 per cent. on the preferred stock, and the payment of the 7 per cent. dividend on that stock would leave slightly over 6 per cent for distribution on the common stock. The New Company's earning power will be very greatly increased once the new mill now under erection at Port Colborne is completed.

The firm of Cawthra Mulock & Co., members of the Toronto Stock Exchange, have made arrangements for a public offering of $2,000,000 of the 7 per cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock at $100.00 per share, the same to carry with it a bonus equal to 25 per cent. of common stock, that is for every four shares of the preferred stock subscribed for the applicant will receive as a bonus one share of common stock.

It is expected that full details in connection with the public offering will be made public within a few days.

"You seem to have a great deal of faith in doctors," said a friend of the sick man. "I have," was the reply; "a doctor would be foolish to let a good customer like me die."

HOW TO KEEP HEALTHY

A FEW RULES WHICH ARE EASY TO REMEMBER.

"Simple Rules of Health and Courtesy" Show How Careful We Should Be.

"Simple Rules of Health and Courtesy at School" is the title of a booklet recently issued by Dr. Helen MacMurchy and Henry W. Auden, M. A.

According to the booklet, which consists of page after page of easily remembered rules, good health is chiefly a matter of taking care. The booklet was written to assist in the present campaign for health and hygiene in the schools.

Here are a few of the "hints":

Never spit.

Never stir up dust.

Sleep on a mattress.

Do not eat too much.

Never sit in a draught when overheated.

When bathing, do not get water into the ears.

In games never dispute the umpire's decision.

If an insect gets in your ear, pour in a little oil.

Never hold pins, needles, etc., in your mouth.

See that your night clothes are hung up, not folded.

Do not eat too fast. Masticate your food thoroughly.

If you suffer from earache, keep cotton wool in your ear.

Get up early. Do not lie in bed after you are awake.

Never touch alcoholic liquor, except under a doctor's orders.

In cold or wet weather never sit down on damp grass, stones, etc.

Never play with firearms. Always handle a gun as if it were loaded.

Never drink out of a glass that others have used without first washing it.

The best drink for boys and girls is milk. Avoid strong coffee and strong tea.

If you get anything under your eyelid, do not rub the eye, but blow your nose.

Do not eat anything between meals except fruit carefully peeled and free from dust.

Avoid too much sweet stuff. Avoid meat that is "high," and highly seasoned food.

If you cannot obtain other exercise, make a point of going for a walk, if possible in the country.

Do not cover yourself with too heavy bedclothes. Sleep with your hands outside the bedclothes.

Do not eat or drink what is very hot. Do not eat what is cold immediately after eating what is hot.

The eye should never, under any circumstances, be brought nearer than 12 inches to the work in hand.

Never remain any longer than you can possibly avoid in places where the air is vitiated, smelly and dusty.

Never pick your teeth except with quill or wooden toothpicks. Toothpicks should not be used in public.

A warm bath should be taken about once a week. Never remain in a warm bath more than ten minutes.

Brush your teeth up and down as well as across, and be careful to clean the teeth on the side next the tongue.

Mild exercise, such as drill, light dumb bell exercise, etc., is beneficial before going to bed, and also before breakfast.

In riding a bicycle, be careful not to overstrain yourself. Bicycle racing is to be avoided by boys under the age of eighteen.

When you go from a very hot room into very cold air, hold something over your nose and mouth and avoid speaking for a little time.

Do not read whilst lying down. Do not read when moving or travelling. Avoid badly printed books or music. Never read at meals.

Avoid bringing your ear near to very shrill sounds or very loud sounds, e.g., artillery. If you must be near such sounds, keep the mouth open.

Occasionally clean out your ears with some soft object, e.g., the end of a towel or handkerchief, but never with anything that is sharp or breakable.

Morning and evening clean your teeth carefully. Wash out the mouth and gargle with fresh water every morning and evening, and, where possible, after the mid-day meal.

Every morning wash your face, and unless you are in ill-health, the whole of the body with cold water. Cold water hardens the skin, strengthens the nerves and prevents chills.

See that the room in which you sleep is thoroughly well aired during the day and that the sunlight is allowed access to it, and when you are in bed have the window open, if possible.

When you cough, sneeze or yawn, always place your hand or handkerchief over your mouth. When you blow your nose, always turn your head aside, and never make uncouth noises.

A great deal of good can be done to your lungs, your circulation and your heart by frequently, when you are in good air, breathing as slowly and deeply as you can for a limited time. You should be able to inhale (and exhale) air steadily for about one minute.

Never read, write or work at any delicate finger work (needle work, etc.,) in a bad light, e.g., in the twilight; never when the light flickers; never when the sun's rays fall directly on your work; never when your shadow falls on your work. Always arrange that the light comes to you over your left shoulder.

Learn to swim, and make yourself acquainted with the methods of life-saving. Do not go into the water when you are overheated. First wet your head and the back of the neck, and then plunge the whole body at once into the water. When you come out, dry yourself quickly and keep moving. At least two hours should elapse between a heavy meal and bathing. Do not jump into the water until you know its depth.

"You look like a wreck to-day, Anna! Have you been sitting up all night again reading a novel?" "Yes, madam. It was such a beautiful story, but they didn't get married till nearly five o'clock this morning!"

USING PURGATIVES INJURES HEALTH

What You Need in Spring is a Blood Building Tonic.

A spring medicine is an actually necessity to most people. Nature demands it as an aid in carrying off the impurities that have accumulated in the blood during the indoor life of winter. But unfortunately thousands of people who do recognize the necessity of a spring medicine do not know what is best to take and dose themselves with harsh, griping purgatives.

This is a serious mistake. Ask any doctor and he will tell you that the use of purgative medicine weakens the system but does not cure disease. In the spring the system needs building up—purgatives cannot do this—they weaken you still more. The blood should be made rich, red, and pure, and only a tonic medicine can do this. The best blood building, nerve restoring tonic medical science has yet discovered is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine actually makes new, rich blood. This new blood strengthens every organ, every nerve and every part of the body. This is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure headaches and backaches, rheumatism and neuralgia, banish pimples and eruptions, and give a glow of health to the most sallow skin. Men, women and growing boys and girls who take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills eat well, sleep well, and feel bright, active and strong. If you need a medicine this spring—and most likely you do—try this great reviving tonic, and see the new life, new health and new strength it will put into you.

CONCRETE CHIMNEYS.

In advocating the plan of building factory chimneys of reenforced concrete, Mr. E. R. Matthews told the Concrete Institute in London recently some interesting facts about these structures. They can be built at less than half the cost of brick chimneys, and are of greater stability than brick structures, because they have no joints. Very much less material is required on account of the relative thinness of the walls. Under the British law a chimney 300 feet tall would have to have the walls, if constructed of brick, about four feet ten inches thick at the base, but a concrete chimney would have a thickness of only nine inches for the outer wall, and five inches for the inner, with a space of four inches between. The "hair cracks" in concrete chimneys are only skin-deep, and have no practical importance. The chimneys are anchored by having the vertical steel bars continued into the foundation, and there bent at an angle of 90 degrees. Many are calculated to resist a wind of 100 miles per hour, a velocity practically unknown.

A HINT TO YOUNG MOTHERS.

Don't walk up and down the floor with a cross, restless child. Nothing can be more demoralizing to the little one and it is a serious tax upon the mother's strength and nerves. When a child is peevish and cross there is probably some little derangement of the stomach or bowels, and a dose of Baby's Own Tablets will remove the cause of the trouble and enable the little one to sleep soundly. Mrs. W. Bouffard, Piopolis, Que., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets superior to all other remedies for curing constipation and making teething easy. They also promote healthful sleep, and I recommend them to other mothers." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW HE EXPRESSED IT.

Every small boy—the right kind, anyhow—thinks his own mother the symbol of all perfection. Few, however, have the ability to express their admiration as prettily as the little hero of the following anecdote:

Richard's mother was putting him to bed, and as she kissed him good night, she said, "Do you know you are the whole world to mama?"

"Am I?" he answered, quickly. "Well, then, you're heaven and the north pole to me!"

OLD-TIME PARIS PRICES.

In Year 1,800 Turkeys Were $8 to $10 Each—Butter $1 Pound.

While the newspapers echo with complaints about the high food prices, a statistician has figured out that things were not so very cheap in "the good old times" either. Milk prices are pretty stationary now throughout the year. Two hundred years ago Parisians had to pay three times more for milk in winter than in summer and the average price of a quart of milk was about eight cents.

Toward the end of the eighteenth century Paris paid 11 cents per quart for milk. In the French country districts the price was 6 cents. One hundred and thirty-five years ago only the rich could afford to eat butter in winter, the average price being $1 a pound. Eggs were cheaper than they are now, but likewise much smaller. In the year 1800 the price of turkey in Paris was between eight and ten dollars a head, according to size. Rice was 15 cents a pound. Most of the food is cheaper now in the big cities than in the good old times. In the Middle Ages only princes dared to aspire to eat oranges, which were $1 a piece during the height of the season.

CHINESE BAMBOO.

Bamboo is of universal use in China. The windows are delicate lattice work of bamboo, and the furniture is of slender bamboo, bent and curled and plaited. The water bucket is a good big stalk, sawed off just below the joint and made as deep as is needed above it. For a bottle a slender piece is taken and treated in the same way. If a knife is mislaid a good sharp edge of bamboo is taken, and it does just as well for everything, except cutting bamboo, as if it were steel. Hunger is kept off by cutting the little tender shoots just as they peep from the ground and cooking them like asparagus.

Family Cough Syrup

Cures Any Cough in Five Hours.

NEW PRESCRIPTION HERE.

Here is given the most effective cough prescription known to the medical world. It is a mild laxative, too, and this is what a body needs when suffering with cough and cold on the lungs. A cough or cold indicates poisons in the system, causing inflammation and congestion. Nearly all cough syrups relieve, but make the trouble worse by their constipating effects. This prescription not only relieves quickly, but it cures any cough that is curable. Get one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Mix in a bottle. Take for acute cough or bronchitis twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less according to age. A few hours' treatment will cure and heal the throat and lungs of all but consumptives. Cut this out and give it to some friend who may need it to be saved from an early death by consumption.

RARELY DISTURBED.

Two spiders who dwelt in different parts of a church chanced to meet together in the aisle one day when out for a constitutional.

"How are you getting on?" said spider No. 1 to spider No. 2.

"Oh, moderately," was the reply; "I don't feel very comfortable on Sundays; I live in the pulpit under the cushion, and on that day the parson comes and bangs the book, and sends his fists on the side and I have to keep very close, or else some day I think he'll hit me. He bangs with such a force that I know he'll squash me to a jelly."

"Oh, you come and live with me," said his companion. "I'm never troubled; I'm always comfortable, and never disturbed from one year's end to the other."

"Indeed," said the other spider; "and where do you live?"

"Oh, I live in the poor-box," was the reply.

By Bribing the Nerves with opium you may stop a cough, but the inflammation goes from bad to worse. Allen's Lung Balsam, containing no opium, goes to the root of the trouble and cures deep-seated affections of throat and lungs.

ARMORED MOTOR CAR.

In the hotbed of European militarism it is natural that all invention and manufacture is carefully weighed and scrutinized for the utilization of every possible engine for either defense or offense. The military uses of the automobile for the rapid dispatch of orders for the work of reconnoisance, etc., have been exploited in every land, and an Austrian company has made an armored motor car which has possibilities of offense as well as those indicated. It has a revolving turret in place of the tonneau, equipped with a rapid-fire gun, and a conning tower like arrangement for the protection of the chauffeur.

FINDS HIS WORK A PLEASURE NOW

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED THE POSTMASTER'S KIDNEY DISEASE.

Alberta Man Tells How His Troubles Vanished When He Used the Old Reliable Kidney Remedy.

Scona, Alta., April 25 (Special)—"I can now do all my work without pain and with pleasure." Those are the words of Postmaster Andrew B. Nelson of this place. As all the postmaster's friends know, he has been troubled with Kidney Disease for several years past, and has been doing everything in his power to find a cure for it. He has found the cure. It is Dodd's Kidney Pills. "Yes, I tried all kinds of medicines for my kidney trouble," the postmaster joyfully states. "None of them seemed to do me any good till I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Two boxes of them cured me completely. I highly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from Kidney Disease. I would not be without them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all diseases of the kidneys, from Backache to Bright's Disease. They also cure all diseases caused by disordered kidneys failing to strain the impurities out of the blood. That's why they cure Dropsy, Rheumatism, and Heart Disease. If you haven't tried them yourself ask your neighbors about them.

A SCHEME.

"O! Willie!" exclaimed little Elsie, "what did you open that oven door for? Don't you know that will spoil the cake mamma's baking?"

"Sure!" replied Willie, "an' if it's spoiled she'd let us eat all we want of it."

The Beauty of a Clear Skin.—The condition of the liver regulates the condition of the blood. A disordered liver causes impurities in the blood and these show themselves in blemishes on the skin. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills in acting upon the liver act upon the blood and a clear, healthy skin will follow intelligent use of this standard medicine. Ladies, who will fully appreciate this prime quality of these pills, can use them with the certainty that the effect will be most gratifying.

On an average a man requires 1,600 pounds of food per annum; a woman 1,200 pounds, and a child 600 pounds.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, Etc.

If a married woman is looking for trouble all she has to do is read extracts to her husband from the letters he wrote her during their courtship.

A Pill for Brain Workers.—The man who works with his brains is more liable to derangement of the digestive system than the man who works with his hands, because the one calls upon his nervous energy, while the other applies only his muscular strength. Brain fag begets irregularities of the stomach and liver, and the best remedy that can be used is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They are specially compounded for such cases and all those who use them can certify to their superior power.

ONLY FAIR.

There is Only One Eclectric Oil.—When an article, be it medicine or anything else, becomes popular, imitations invariably spring up to derive advantages from the original, which they themselves could never win on their own merits. Imitations of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil have been numerous, but never successful. Those who know the genuine are not put off with a substitute, but demand the real thing.

JUST GOING TO SAY THAT.

A son of Erin who had the misfortune to get mixed up in an accident was immediately conveyed to a hospital, where it was found that his only injury was a slight wound. The house surgeon carefully examined him, after which he thus stated the case to the nurse:—

"As subcutaneous abrasion is not observable, I think there is little reason to apprehend tegumental cicatrization of the wound. What do you think yourself?" he asked Pat, with a mischevious smile.

"Sure, doctor," replied Pat, "you're a wonderful thought-reader You took the very words out of my mouth. I was just going to say that."

Do not let a cold settle on your lungs. Resort to Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup at the first intimation of irritation in the throat and prevent disease from lodging in the pulmonary organs. Neglected colds are the cause of untold suffering throughout the country, all of which could have been prevented by the application of this simple but powerful medicine. The price, 25 cents, brings it within the reach of all.

FELT AT HOME.

A gentleman took a friend to an opera. The music, grand as it was, sounded a little noisy, more especially when the bang of drums and the crash of the cymbals occurred at intervals. But the friend's face remained unmoved.

"Oh, not in the least!" was the calm reply. "You forget I am a boilermaker."

SWAN DROWNED A BOY.

Cecil Barratt, a five-year-old Nottingham, England, boy, was stated, at an inquest, to have been pulled into the river by a swan, who attacked him so savagely that he was drowned. The boy was the son of the caretaker of the Nottingham Brittannia Rowing Club, and was playing on the landing-stage, when the swan attacked him. The lad's father dived several times, but failed to find the boy, and was also attacked by the bird before he could reach the landing-stage.

HYMN OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

(Tune: "From Greenland's," etc.)

Almighty God our Father,
Who rules o'er land and sea,
The prayer of this our Empire
We offer unto Thee.
Whene'er our flag is flying,
In home or distant lands,
May Britons do their duty,
And follow Thy commands.

The glorious gift of Empire,
The rule of many lands,
Almighty God our father,
Are from Thy bounteous hands;
In all the broad dominions
Of Britons o'er the sea,
We pray that all our people
May Thine for ever be.

God bless our gracious Sovereign,
Our Emperor and our King,
May he and all his subjects
Thy praises ever sing,
And children of the Empire,
As through the world they roam,
Shall ever seek Thy blessing
On Motherland and Home.

—H. E. Spafford, in the Hull Times, England.

A TRIBUTE.

Notable among the tributes paid to the memory of the late King Edward VII were those expressed by the prelates of the Roman Catholic church, and of the latter none was more fitting or eloquent than that which was uttered by Archbishop Bruchesi, in St. James Cathedral, Montreal, in the presence of an audience that filled the sacred edifice to its utmost capacity. After he had celebrated Pontifical High Mass, speaking from his throne, the Episcopal head, the archdiocese of Montreal, quoted from Queen Alexander's letter, as follows:

"Not only have I lost all in the death of my husband, but the nation as a whole has met with an irreparable loss of a friend, of a father, and of a sovereign, who has been so suddenly torn from our affection. May we all be given necessary strength to bear the necessary cross which it has pleased Almighty God to place upon our shoulders. May His will be done and may I be accorded a large share in your prayers so that I may have sufficient strength to bear up under so great a grief."

"These are the words," said His Grace, "uttered by the Queen Mother in her anguish when this great grief came to her, and it would be, indeed, very difficult to find a more beautiful expression of Christian resignation in the moment of supreme sorrow, and my dear brethren, the ceremony which brings us together to-day is the rightful responses of our sincere admiration and our profound respect and sympathy. And then again, as he stood by the side of his noble father's coffin, the words spoken by George V. were none the less appropriate and heart-felt than the utterances of his august and dearly loved mother. This lesson, therefore, although coming from high places, is addressed to the lowly as well as to the exalted, to the rich as well as to the poor. In fact, we learn by such royal utterances as these that there are still myriads of lights burning in the Heavens which cannot be extinguished, and that the governing bodies of every country in the world should recognize the fact that prayer, faith in God, and the avowed want of His aid, go hand in hand with those noble qualities which cause to be revered and loved illustrious wearers of crowns and governors of states."

THE OUTSIDE WHIP.

The appointment of Mr. George H. Perley, M.P., to be the "outside whip" of the Conservative parliamentary party, has been the occasion of very many kindly references to our representative in the House of Commons. "Mr. Perley," says the Montreal Star, "is regarded as having special qualifications in view of his well-known capacity for organization and his executive ability. In 1897 and 1900 he was chosen as chairman respectively of the Prescott and Russell and Hull and Ottawa Fire Relief Fund, and in that connection displayed such energy and capacity for handling big problems that he placed himself in the line of choice for offices where there is work to be done. Mr. Perley is a successful business man, having for many years been connected with the lumbering industry of the Ottawa Valley. He was also connected for many years with the Canada Atlantic Railway as director and vice-president, while he is a director of the Bank of Ottawa. Socially Mr. Perley occupies a commanding position at the Capital, being a past president of the Rideau Club and of the Ottawa Golf Club."

The new whip, "says an Ottawa despatch," is one of the best liked men in Canada. Mr. Borden and the party are to be congratulated upon his acceptance. He has the confidence of the Conservatives, the Liberals and the public. There is no finer citizen in Ottawo than George H. Perley. His philanthropies are many. He has been concerned in every move at the capital in years for the relief of suffering. He has been a leader in the fight against the white scourge.

"Mr. Perley," says the St. John N.B., Standard, "is one of the most popular of the junior members of Parliament. He is a prominent business man of Ottawa and commands the respect of both parties. The Conservatives in Parliament who are responsible for his appointment signify that they do not intend to lower the standing of the party administration and management."

Even the Liberal press has had a good word to say of Mr. Perley's appointment. The Montreal Herald while taking a fling at the Conservative party, admits that an astute move has been made in the selection of Mr. Perley as outside whip. It says, "Whatever the task assigned to him, short of making Mr. Borden a great leader of men, Perley is likely to be found well qualified. He is a man of the world, cool, prudent, well-informed, and with the social graces useful in a whip. His prominence is another sign of the passing of the old regime and the determination of the younger element to take things into their own hands."

KING GEORGE TO HIS OVERSEA PEOPLE.

Nothing could be more appropriate than the message flashed on "Empire Day" from King George to his "people beyond the seas," It has the merit of being, like all truly great historic messages, brisf, simple, pathetic, and high-toned. It is in form a response to "innumerable messages of kindness" from his "loyal subjects," and is an expression of his assurance that he and they are sharers in a common sorrow and a common love.

Canadian Pressmen Visit New Ontario.

An event long to be remembered by those who had the pleasure of being present was the excursion of the Canadian Press Association to Northern Ontario last week, when the possibilities of that vast section of country were opened up as a veritable surprise to the Press of Canada, who, until this visit never dreamed of the great wealth existant, only needing the honest toiler to come in and take up the land which is so full of promise to them after the first two or three years of pioneer hardship.

The association, after two days of busy session, left on special train on Wednesday, May 18th. They visited the chief centres in the Temiskaming district, both mining and agricultural. They travelled over the whole line of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway from North Bay to Cochrane as guests of the Commission. They went west from Cochrane over the National Transcontinental Railway, through the kindness of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, by the first passenger train on that splendid new highway, and on the eastern shore of the great lone Metagami River, at a point in the unpeopled clay belt farther distant from Toronto than is Chicago.

To the great majority of the newspaper men this experience was altogether new. They had heard of Cobalt as being the greatest silver mining camp in the world, but the words were as an idle tale until they saw for themselves the unmistakeable evidences of a gigantic industry and went down the shafts into the mines where the precious metal gleams in the rock. What they saw in Cobalt enables them to believe in Gowganda and in Porcupine. They had heard of the forests of pulp wood but it was not until they rode for hours through the cutting of the railway that their minds began to grasp the stories of the wealth of the northern forests told by prospectors and surveyors. They had heard, too, of the great clay belt, with its sixteen million acres of virgin agricultural land, but it was not until they passed through the Temiskaming gateway and stood at a point five hundred miles north of Toronto, and saw surrounding them the undeniable marks of agricultural quality in the soil, that they were ready to believe in those millions of acres which will yet support in comfort millions of people. At every turn even a far-travelled veteran journalist like Sir McKenzie Bowell had to confess surprise. The one surprising thing is the wonderfully quick transformation of new communities from wilderness to civilization, with its comforts and rewards. In one thing particularly the newspaper men were all agreed, and that was that the best interests of the whole Province would be best served were the Government to devise more liberal things for New Ontario in the matters of roads and public services. The construction of through railways has crowded colonisation in every district, and the colonizing spirit, not the commercial spirit, should inspire and organize all the efforts of the Government in its mining policy and transportation schemes and land management.

Cobalt was the first place visited, the party being met by Mayor Lang R. T. Shittlington, M.P.P., and a number of mining men and escorted to the Lyric Theatre where an address of welcome, handsomely bound and embellished with the mourning colors, and attached to it was a silver nugget, characteristic of the district. The address was ably responded to by Mr. McKay, President of the Association. By prearrangement the visitors were divided up into parties of a dozen for the purpose of visiting the different mines and afterwards treated to a camp dinner.

Haileybury is a very thriving town about four miles north of Cobalt, and is delightfully situated on a hill overlooking Lake Temiskaming. New Liskeard is another very interesting and enterprising town, and they were not backward in producing many samples of agricultural products that would compare most favorably with many displayed in our own exhibitions.

The party then embarked for Cochrane which a little more than a year ago was a forest that had scarcely been touched. To-day workmen were still busily uprooting stumps from its main roadway. Yet while the newspapermen waited for their train, down the roadway, marching two abreast, came four-score school children, healthy, bright red youngsters, of at least half a dozen nationalities, dressed in their Sunday best in honor of the visitors. They were such a group as might be seen in any Ontario town, but the sight brought home to the newspaper men more than half a dozen tours of inspection could, the truth that the men of the north insist upon, that there is no "deadline" in Ontario, and that the agriculture of the north will be but a continuation of that in the rest of the Province.

The children took up positions of vantage on a big pile of lumber. Behind them, on rising ground, were the citizens of the town, while in front in a half circle, with President MacKay in the centre, the newspaper men gathered. It was surely the most unique little tableau the forest had ever looked down upon.

Mr. MacKay took up the office of examiner. Presently he asked: "Do you know why to-day is a holiday?" "Yes," came the chorus.

"Why then?" "The King is dead," shouted the youngsters.

"What King?" "King Edward."

"What did they call King Edward?" inquired Mr MacKay. "Edward the Peacemaker" again came the eager chorus, while the newspaper men applauded.

Mr MacKay introduced Sir Mackenzie Bowell to the children as a former Premier of Canada, and the youngsters listened to the veteran's remarks with breathless attention.

School was closed by the signing of the National Anthem.

Standing up on a corduroy gangway with heads uncovered, their number swelled by construction workmen of many nationalities, the members of the Canadian Press Association, at 3 o'clock on Friday, paid their tribute to the memory of his late Majesty King Edward. The scene was a construction camp at the crossing of the Matagami River, and by the National Transcontinental Railway thirty five miles west of Cochrane. The majestic primeval forest add d a note of solemn impressiveness to the service. Perhaps in no such spot in the vast confines of the Empire was a memorial service of his late Majesty held under more unique circumstances than in this lonely camp in the forest of the north. The newspapermen, at 2 o'clock, reached camp on the Matagami River, where they were entertained at luncheon. At 3 o'clock the time set as an hour of mourning throughout Canada. Mr. MacKay, President of the association, called the members to order with a reminder of the solemn duty demanded of them. He asked Dr. J. A. Macdonald and Rev. Benj Spence to conduct the memorial service.

Standing in the doorway of a camp shack, with one hundred and thirty newspapermen of old Ontario looking down from the slope of the gangway, Dr. Macdonald, in simple language, voiced Canada's tribute to the memory of Edward the Peacemaker. The grand, inspiring strains of the hymn the Queen-mother herself chose, "Nearer, my God, to Thee," sounded hesitatingly at first, but growing in volume as one after another took up the burden of the hymn. The spoken words of the service were not understood by some of the foreign laborers clustered on the outskirts of the crowd, but to them the service had its meaning, and they too stood with bared heads, paying their tribute to Britain's dead King.

Rev. Benj Spence followed with a prayer, the men singing the National Anthem, and the service was ended.

The excursionists closed their Temiskaming tour May 21st, with a reception and banquet by the citizens of North Bay. Their return from Cochrane was unfortunately delayed by the derailment, near Dane, on Friday, of the locomotive and two of the passenger coaches on the northbound train. Three Swede passengers were slightly injured. The press train was detained fourteen hours at Matheson, consequently the boat trips on Lakes Temagalmi and Nipissing were abandoned. There was considerable consolation, however, in the daylight ride from Matheson to North Bay, revealing the increasing settlement and comfort of the southern sections of the clay belt.

On reaching North Bay the visitors were entertained at supper in the roller rink, were shown through the splendid new normal school by Principal Casselman, and afterwards welcomed at a public meeting in the Imperial Opera House, by Mr. John Ferguson, President of the Board of Trade, Mayor Rankin, Mr. J. B. McDougall and Bishop Scollard, who took occasion to urge the claims of the Georgian Bay Canal. President J. F. MacKay and Sir Mackenzie Bowell responded.

The excursionists had been under the personal care of Mr. G. D. McDonald district passenger agent, of Toronto, who spared no pains to have the party enjoy themselves to the full extent, and in appreciation of his services the visitors presented him with a handsome silver tea service to commemorate the event.

CHAPTER I.

I was on the point of leaving India and returning to England when he sent for me. At least, to be accurate—and I am always accurate—I was not quite on the point, but nearly, for I was going to start by the mail on the following day. I had been up to Government House to take my leave a few days before, but Sir John had been too ill to see me, or at least he had said he was. And now he was much worse—dying, it seemed, from all accounts; and he had sent down a native servant in the noonday heat with a note, written in his shaky old hand, begging me to come up as soon as it became cooler. He said he had a commission which he was anxious I should do for him in England.

Of course I went. It was not very convenient, because I had to borrow one of our fellows' traps, as I had sold my own, and none of them had the confidence in my driving which I had myself. I was obliged to leave the packing of my collection of Malay krises and Indian kookeries to my bearer.

I wondered as I drove along why Sir John had sent for me. Worse, was he? Dying? And without a friend. Poor old man! He had done pretty well in this world, but I was afraid he would not be up to much once he was out of it; and now it seemed he was going. I felt sorry for him. I felt more sorry when I saw him—when the tall, long-faced A.D.C. took me into his room and left us. Yes, Sir John was certainly going. There was no mistake about it. It was written in every line of his drawn fever-worn face, and in his wide fever-lit eyes, and in the clutch of his long yellow hands upon his tussore silk dressing-gown. He looked a very sick, bad old man as he lay there on his low couch, placed so as to court the air from without, cooled by its passage through damped grass screens, and to receive the full strength of the punkah, pulled by an invisible hand outside.

"You go to England to-morrow?" he asked sharply.

It was written even in the change of his voice, which was harsh, as of old, but with all the strength gone out of it.

"By to-morrow's mail," I said. I should have liked to say something more—something sympathetic about his being ill and not likely to get better; but he had always treated me discourteously when he was well, and I could not open out all at once now that he was ill.

"Look here, Middleton," he went on; "I am dying and I know it. I don't suppose you imagined I had sent for you to bid you a last farewell before departing to my long home. I am not in such a hurry to depart as all that, I can tell you; but there is something I want done—that I want you to do for me. I meant to have done it myself, but I am down now, and I must trust somebody. I know better than to trust a clever man. An honest fool—but I am digressing from the case in point. I have never trusted anybody all my life, so you may feel honored. I have a small parcel which I want you to take to England for me. Here it is."

His long lean hands went searching in his dressing-gown, and presently produced an old brown bag held together at the neck by a string.

"See here!" he said; and he pushed the glasses and papers aside from the table near him and undid the string. Then he craned forward to look about him, laying a spasmodic clutch on the bag. "I'm watched! I know I'm watched!" he said in a whisper, his pale eyes turning slowly in their sockets. "I shall be killed for them if I keep them much longer, and I won't be hurried into my grave. I'll take my own time."

"There is no one here," I said, "and no one in sight except Cathcart smoking in the veranda, and I can only see his legs, so he can't see us."

He seemed to recover himself, and laughed. I had never liked his laugh, especially when, as had often happened, it had been directed against myself; but I liked it still less now.

"See here!" he repeated, chuckling; and he turned the bag inside out upon the table.

Such jewels I had never seen. They fell like cut flame upon the marble table—green and red and burning white. A large diamond rolled and fell upon the floor. I picked it up and put it back among the confused blaze of precious stones, too much astonished for a moment to speak.

"Beautiful! aren't they?" the old man chuckled, passing his wasted hands over them. "You won't match that necklace in any jeweller's in England. I tore it off an old she-devil of a Rhanee's neck after the Mutiny, and got a bite in the arm for my trouble. But she'll tell no tales. He! he! he! I don't mind saying now how I got them. I am a humble Christian, now I am so near heaven—eh, Middleton? He! he! You don't like to contradict me. Look at those emeralds. The hasp is broken, but it makes a pretty bracelet. I don't think I'll tell you how the hasp got broken—little accident as the lady who wore it gave it to me. Rather brown, isn't it, on one side; but it will come off. No, you need not be afraid of touching it, it isn't wet. He! he! And this crescent. Look at those diamonds. A duchess would be proud of them. I had them from a private soldier. I gave him two rupees for them. Dear me! how the sight of them brings back old times! But I won't leave them out any longer. We must put them away—put them away." And the glittering mass into the old brown bag. He looked into it once with hungry eyes, and then he pulled the string and pushed it over to me. "Take it," he said. "Put it away now. Put it away," he repeated, as I hesitated. I put the bag into my pocket. He gave a long sigh as he watched it disappear.

"Now what you have got to do with that bag," he said, a moment afterwards, "is to take it to Ralph Danvers, the second son of Sir George Danvers of Stoke Moreton in D——shire. Sir George has got two sons. I have never seen him or his sons, but I don't mean the eldest to have them. He is a spendthrift. They are all for Ralph, who is a steady fellow, and going to marry a nice girl—at least, I suppose she is a nice girl. Girls who are going to be married always are nice. Those jewels will sweeten matrimony for Mr. Ralph, and if she is like other women it will need sweetening. There, now you have got them, and that is what you have got to do with them. There is the address, written on this card. With my compliments, you perceive. He! he! I don't suppose they will remember who I am."

"Have you no relations?" I asked; for I am always strongly of opinion that property should be bequeathed to relatives, especially near relatives, rather than to entire strangers.

"None," he replied, "not even poor relations. I have no deserving nephew or Scotch cousin. If I had, they would be here at this moment, smoothing the pillow of the departing saint, and wondering how much they would get. You may make your mind easy on that score."

"Then who is this Ralph whom you have never seen, and to whom you are leaving so much?" I asked, with my usual desire for information.

He glared at me for a moment, and then he turned his face away.

"D—n it. What does it matter, now I'm dying?" he said. And then he added, hoarsely. "I knew his mother."

I could not speak, but involuntarily I put out my hand and took his leaden one and held it. He scowled at me, and then the words came out, as if in spite of himself.

"She—if she had married me, who knows what might—— But she married Danvers. She called her second son Ralph. My first name is Ralph." Then, with a sudden change of tone, pulling away his hand, "There! now you know all about it! Edifying, isn't it? These death-bed scenes always have an element of interest, haven't they? Good-evening"—ringing the bell at his elbow—"I can't say I hope we shall meet again; it would be impolite. No, don't let me keep you. Good-bye again."

"Good-bye, Sir John," I said, taking his impatient hand and shaking it gently. "God bless you."

"Thankee," grinned the old man, with a sardonic chuckle; "it anything could do me good that will, I'm sure. Good-bye."

As I breakfasted next morning previously to my departure, I could not help reflecting on the different position in which I was now returning to England, as a Colonel on long leave, to that in which I had left it many—I do not care to think how many—years ago, the youngest ensign in the regiment.

It was curious to remember that in my youth I had always been considered the fool of the family; most unjustly so considered, when I look back at my quick promotion, owing to casualties, and at my long and prosperous career in India, which I cannot but regard as the result of high principles and abilities, to say the least of it, of not the meanest order. On the point of returning to England, the trust Sir John had with his usual shrewdness reposed in me was an additional proof, if proof were needed, of the confidence I had inspired in him—a confidence which seemed to have ripened suddenly at the end of his life, after many years of hardly concealed mockery and derision. Just as I was finishing my reflections and my breakfast, Dickson, one of the last joined subalterns, came in.

"This is very awful," he said, so gravely that I turned to look at him

"What is awful?"

"Don't you know?" he replied. "Haven't you heard about—Sir John—last night?"

"Dead?" I asked.

He nodded, and then he said:

"Murdered in the night. Cathcart heard a noise, and went in, and stumbled over him on the floor. As he came in he saw the lamp knocked over, and a figure rush out through the veranda. The moon was bright, and he saw a man run across a clear space in the moonlight—a tall, slightly-built man in native dress, but not a native, Cathcart said; that he would take his oath on, by his build. He roused the house, but the man got clean off, of course."

"And Sir John?"

"Sir John was quite dead when Cathcart got back to him. He found him lying on his face. His arms were spread out, and his dressing-gown was torn as if he had struggled hard. His pockets had been turned inside out, his writing-table drawers forced open; the whole room had been ransacked. Yet the old man's gold watch had not been touched, and some money in one of the drawers had not been taken. What on earth is the meaning of it all?" said young Dickson below his breath. "What was the thief after?"

In a moment the truth flashed across my brain. I put two and two together as quickly as most men, I fancy. The jewels! Someone had got wind of the jewels, which, at that moment, were reposing on my own person in their old brown bag. Sir John had been only just in time.

"What was he looking for?" continued Dickson, walking up and down. "The old man must have had some paper or other about him that he wanted to get hold of. But what? Cathcart says that nothing whatever has been taken, as far as he can see at present."

I was perfectly silent. It is not every man who would have been so in my place, but I was. I know when to hold my tongue, thank Heaven!

Presently the others came in, all full of the same subject; and then suddenly I remembered that it was getting late, and there was a bustle and a leave-taking, and I had to post off before I could hear more. Not, however, that there was much more to hear, for everything seemed to be in the greatest confusion, and every species of conjecture was afloat as to the real criminal, and the motive for the crime. I had not much time to think of anything during the first day on board; yet, busy as I was in arranging and rearranging my things, poor old Sir John never seemed quite absent from my mind. His image, as I had last seen him, constantly rose before me, and the hoarse whisper was for ever sounding in my ears, "I'm watched! I know I'm watched!" I could not get him out of my head. I was unable to sleep the first night I was on board, and as the long hours wore on I always seemed to see the pale, searching eyes of the dead man; and above the manifold noises of the steamer and the perpetual lapping of the calm water against my ear came the whisper, "I'm watched! I know I'm watched!"

FORTUNES IN FLOWERS.

In the Channel Islands it is estimated that an acre of daffodils should yield over 500,000 flowers, and if they fetch three halfpence a dozen—they often fetch considerably more—the gross value of the crop would be over £200, says the London Graphic. Though English growers, coming later into the market, must be content with a lower price, there should still remain a very handsome profit. Indeed, it would be difficult to suggest any other crop which would be likely to show an equal profit for the same outlay.

TO-DAY'S STORY.

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed the young lady who was being taken to a concert by a rather backward wooer; "I'm sure we shall miss the opening number. We've waited a good many minutes for that mother of mine."

"Hours, I should say," growled the young man.

"Ours? oh, George! how nice of you to say so at last," cried the sharp-witted girl, as she summoned up an appropriate blush.

WHY YOU ARE THIN; HOW TO GET FLESHY.

Discusses Causes of Thinness and Gives New Method of Increasing Weight and Rounding Out the Form.

Prescription Accomplishes Wonders

A treatment which anyone can prepare cheaply at home, has been found to increase the weight, improve the health, round out scrawny figures, improve the bust, brighten the eyes and put new color into the cheeks and lips of anyone who is too thin and bloodless. It puts flesh on those who have been always thin whether from disease or natural tendency; on those who by heavy eating and diet have in vain tried to increase; on those who feel well but can't get fat; and on those who have tried every known method in vain. It is a powerful aid to digestion, nutrition and assimilation. It assists the blood and nerves to distribute all over the body the flesh elements contained in food, and gives the thin person the same absorbing qualities possessed by the naturally fleshy.

Everybody is about the same, but certain elements and organs of blood and nerves are deficient and until this is corrected, thin people will stay thin. The nutrition stays in the body after separation by the digestive functions instead of passing through unused, when this valuable treatment of blended medicines is used. Practically no one can remain thin who uses it, for it supplies the long need.

Mix in a half pint bottle, three ounces of essence of pepsin, and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol. Shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce of tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before and after meals. Drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Weigh before beginning.

Spending hundreds of dollars in building a splendid home or barn and then deliberately allow it to suffer for paint.

Martin-Senour Paint

100% Pure, Preserves

It feeds the hungry open pores of the wood with pure linseed oil, lead and zinc—making the surface absolutely impervious to climatic changes.

It seals wood from dampness—prevents it from splitting, cracking, from sun and frost, blistering heat and blowing dust, which help the processes of decay and ruin. Good pure paint buys more than 100 cents worth of insurance against the ravages of time.

The ingredients of a pure paint are well known. In the main they are Carbonate of Lead, Oxide of Zinc pure Colors, well ground by specially adapted machinery, and thinned with pure linseed oil and pure turpentine dryer.

A building owner who fails to recognize the great importance of selecting the right paint, will see his property value decrease while he grows aged and peevish wondering why.

BURIED 37 DAYS.

Three Women Buried Beneath Avalanche Came Out Alive.

Human beings occasionally live through incredibly long imprisonments after their dwellings have been overwhelmed by avalanches. On March 19, 1755, avalanches buried the village of Bergemoletto, in the Italian Alps, and on April 25 three women were dug out alive from a stable in which they had been immured for thirty-seven days in the dark beneath the mass of snow which lay forty-two feet higher than the roof. With them had been buried a little boy, six goats, a donkey and some hens.

The child, the donkey and the fowls soon died, but the goats helped the women to survive, their milk supplemented the thirty or forty cakes and the pocketfull of chestnuts upon which they depended for food. Hope of finding the women alive had been abandoned, when far in April, the brother of one had a dream in which she appealed to him for rescue.

The weather then at last made excavation possible and the women were restored to the world and presently to health.

Canadian Appreciation

Langham Hotel, London.

Gentlemen,—I wish to express my appreciation of the 38 h.p. Daimler which you have delivered to me. Before shipping the car to Canada I made a three weeks' trial of it, covering some 1,200 miles. The car ran perfectly, and I never had the slightest trouble of any kind, and I think it quite lives up to the many claims you make for it. The silence, smoothness of running, and power of acceleration on hills is really remarkable.

My petrol consumption was 16 miles to the gallon, including a great deal of driving in traffic. The tyres show no appreciable signs of wear, and I think it will prove light on tyres.

I am really delighted with the car.—Yours sincerely,

(Signed) C. A. BOONE, of Toronto, Canada.

THE GIRL FROM BROWNLOW'S

Brownlow, managing director of e emporium that bore his name, id aside one letter from the rning's correspondence as deerving of his personal attention, nd when the manager appeared he dicated the batch with a jerk of he head.

"You can attend to all that lot ourself, Morton," he said. "There nothing important excepting his."

He re-read the letter before comunicating its contents to the manger.

"Crewson, junior partner of rewson & Crewson—you know the rm—is returning from abroad afer a three years' business tour, nd asks us to furnish the Hollies, Nutford—regardless! The thing as to be done in a month's time, nd everything must be in readiess for habitation. Bringing a wife home with him, I expect.

"The order in itself is a good ne," he continued; "but if we can lease him, it is bound to be a good dvertisement. There is certain be a reception, and the fact that e have accomplished everything ithout supervision in so short a me is almost certain to be mencned. Now, who do you suggest hall have charge and see the thing rough?"

The manager considered thoughtully.

"There is Miss Gordon," he said esitatingly. "She's mixed mongst the class, and ought to now what's required."

"Gordon?" queried the director. "Yes. You remember Gordon, s merchant? He failed about two ears ago, and caused a sensation y putting an end to his life with bullet."

"Oh, yes, certainly! And how ng has she been with the firm?"

"Nearly two years. She has taken several commissions of this sort but, of course, not so large—and as given every satisfaction. Perps you would like to see her?"

"Right! Show her up!"

Brownlow scrutinized the girl as e nervously entered the private fice, and grunted his approval. here was an air of refinement out her.

"We have an important matter re, Miss Gordon," he commenc- "and as I hear good reports of ur abilities, I feel disposed to st you with the execution of it. e are to furnish the Hollies, at utford, throughout, and also supy everything wanted, down to the cessary brushes and cleaning ensils required by the one servant ey intend keeping. Are you willg to undertake the responsibil-?"

She nodded, and Brownlow proeeded.

"Very good. Our client is abroad present, and as he is bringing me a wife, he naturally wants to ve a home in readiness. Therefore ere must be no question of delay. "Oh! And one more point, Miss rdon. There must be nothing ewy or gaudy. I know our clit's family, and if there is a comrtable, artistically-furnished home Lancashire, it is the Oaks."

"The Oaks!" The girl let the rds slip out with a little gasp.

"Yes; the Crewsons," he replied. nd suddenly remembering the rl's former position in life, he adl, more kindly. "Did you know em?"

"Yes." Her eyes filled.

"Never mind the past," continu- Brownlow, with a touch of symthy that surprised him. "See this ng through all right, and we'll l after you in the future."

She thanked him in a broken ice, and staggered through the orway. But during the rest of day she went about her work th a hopeless, weary expression. When at last she reached the litcombined room she rented, she ng her hat aside. On the manpiece was a photograph—a phograph of a young man, whose iling, handsome face had cheered r through long months of bitter uggles. But now the smile was a ile of mockery. With a sacred, ite face she gazed long and adily at it, and presently sobs nvulsed her.

"It's not just because he promd," she sobbed. "That's all over w. But to be forced to prepare home for him and her—it's too rd!"

She declined to refuse, to throw the situation; but as the first cts of the blow passed away she ced herself to look at the situan more calmly.

The awful struggle she had undere before getting work came back th a vividness that made her mble. No, she must retain her uation at any cost.

She took the photograph from frame, and laid it amongst the other relics of better days.

* * * * *

The next three weeks passed in a irl. Painters, decorators, and anera followed in rapid succession, and the furniture vans were ever at the door.

Brownlow, for once, found himself contradicted, and his suggestions politely, but none the less decidedly, refused. Miss Gordon objected to be guided. She was working out a scheme of her own, and when he saw it developing, Brownlow discreetly retired, satisfied that his new assistant was proving herself a treasure.

Before the stipulated time all was in readiness, and she would have returned to the shop. But Brownlow refused the necessary permission, and though she was terrified at meeting her old lover, in the circumstances she was forced to remain.

There was little to do but dusting, and the time dragged heavily. She roamed about the rooms, giving a touch here, and making a little alteration there, to improve the effect, and finally expressed herself perfectly satisfied. It was a home—such a home as she had once dreamt of possessing herself. Mentally, she pictured Crewson in the snug armchair on one side of the fireplace, and wondered what sort of a girl would fill the companion chair opposite.

One morning the bell rang. Crewson was due, and intuitively she guessed he had arrived. She started forward to obey the summons, and stopped, clutching the table for support. The bell rang again, and the little maid-of-all-work seized the opportunity of showing herself at the door.

Crewson entered with Brownlow, and made a tour of the principal rooms.

"The kitchen next," said Brownlow.

"No," came the reply, "it doesn't matter. That part of the house concerns her. I know nothing of its arrangements."

He spoke dejectedly, bitterly, she thought, and wondered at the cause. They returned to the drawing-room, and Miss Gordon crept out of the pantry.

"Yes, I am very pleased with the house—very," she heard him say. "Everything has been done beautifully, and reflects great credit upon the person you put in to superintend matters. Only, unfortunatel it will have to remain unoccupied for a little time."

"Indeed?" Brownlow's voice expressed his surprise.

"Yes. You see, things haven't turned out quite as I expected, and if you could arrange for one of your people to act as caretaker for a few weeks, it would relieve me immensely.

"And"—he approached the door—"you might instruct her to arrange the few things—photographs and ornaments I have picked up—as she thinks best. They will arrive in the course of a day or so."

The next moment he had gone, and she sat down with mingled feelings of pride—proud satisfaction that she had pleased him—and hopeless despair.

Two days later a box arrived, and unpacking it she found his photo. With a stifled sob she arranged it conspicuously upon a cabinet, and gave her attention to the remaining articles; but during the rest of the day she found herself involuntarily returning to the drawing-room to stand gazing upon it again.

The next morning the little maid was cleaning outside when Crewson appeared.

"Is the caretaker in?" he questioned, and receiving an affirmative reply, he entered unannounced. At the drawing-room door he stopped. The caretaker had her back towards him, but in her outstretched hand she was holding his photo, and it seemed to him she was scrutinizing his pictured features with more than idle curiosity.

Presently she took hold of a silver frame and fixed the photograph in it; then, placing it upon the cabinet again, she set beside it a similar frame without a photograph.

"For his wife's!" she muttered sadly, and turning, found his eyes fixed upon her. She uttered a little surprised scream, and recovered her composure.

"Nell—you!" he questioned bewilderingly.

"Yes." She bowed slightly to hide her flushed face, and leaned heavily against the mantel to hide the fact that she was trembling.

"And you—you have furnished this house for me?"

"Yes." She choked back a sob, and continued. "I had to do it—or leave Brownlow's. And I couldn't do that without the probability of starving again. I sincerely trust I have pleased you."

"Pleased me?" he questioned hoarsely. "Heavens! To think you have come to this!"

"We will not discuss my position, please." The tears were filling her eyes, but she spoke determinedly, and indicated the empty frame. "I have left that for—for your wife's photograph. And, now, can you tell me when my services will be no longer necessary? You must understand, you must recognize that under—under the circumstances I must go."

"Ah! He told you I had married!"

"Mr. Brownlow said you were bringing a wife home from abroad."

"And knowing that, you—you—"

"I did my best for—the firm."

For a moment there was a tense silence. She stood with downcast eyes, vainly endeavoring to conceal her emotion, whilst Crewson took from his letter-case the photo of a girl

"I presume that unless you obey my instructions now your position with the firm, as you call it, will be jeopardized?" he said.

"That is so. If there is anything——"

"Just one thing, please. If you will place that photograph in the stand you have reserved for my wife's, I think that will be all."

She shot a glance at him, and swayed dangerously. For a few seconds she hesitated, and then stretched out her hand for the card.

"If you insist," she commenced, and stopped. The room appeared to whirl, and her sight was blurred with unshed tears, but dashing them away, she looked at the photograph in her hand again. There was no mistake. It was a picture of herself.

She glanced at Crewson.

"You mean you want me?" she sobbed.

For a moment he did not reply. He took her in his arms and kissed the tear-stained face until it glowed with eager happiness.

"I mean just this, Nell," he muttered softly. "There appears to have been a misunderstanding; but never mind that now. The wife I want, the little girl I came over expecting to find waiting for me when I landed at Liverpool, is the 'Girl from Brownlow's,' and perhaps she will complete her duties by"—he laughed gaily—"doing as she is told."

And Miss Gordon did. She took down the silver frame, and fixing in her own photograph, placed it, with a shy look, beside Crewson's.

ATTRACTIVE RECIPES.

Escalloped Potatoes and Pork.—Have oven ready at a little more than moderate heat. Peel the amount of potatoes needed, and slice, place row upon row in deep granite dish, seasoning about every third row with salt, pepper, and onion cut into small bits. When potatoes are all in the dish, bake the number of pork chops needed for the meal and spread on the top, seasoning also with salt and pepper; put in enough boiling water to have the potatoes well covered and place in the oven at once. With enough for a family of six from one to one hour and a quarter is required, and is a most delicious dish and little trouble; the meat flavors the potatoes, and unless the oven is too hot the meat itself will be juicy, brown, and tender; can be warmed over.

Cheese Dumplings.—Make dough as for noodles, roll out thin and take one pound cottage cheese, one-half cupful of seeded raisins, one egg, three teaspoonfuls of sugar, pinch cinnamon, mixed well; put a teaspoonful of the mixture on rolled out dough, cut with glass and fold over, put together, and put in boiling water about fifteen minutes; take out; take a lumpof butter, fry, take one onion or more, and put over dumplings. Excellent.

Sugar Pie.—One cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of flour, one and one-half cupfuls of cold water, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into the crust which has been previously prepared. Cut into small pieces one tablespoonful of butter and scatter them evenly over the top. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes.

Eggless Devil's Food.—One cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, one-half cupful of sour milk, two scant cupfuls of flour. Dissolve one teaspoonful soda in the sour milk. Put one square of butter chocolate in one-half cupful of water and let come to a boil. Add this to mixture before adding flour. Bake in loaf or two layers. Icing for cake—One cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of water. Set this on stove and boil until it threads, then add it slowly to the beaten white of an egg and beat until it spreads easily. Add one teaspoonful vanilla.

Nut Bread.—Three cupfuls of sifted flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of milk, two eggs, well beaten, one cupful of nuts chopped, one teaspoonful salt; put in two small bread pans, let stand twenty minutes, and bake in slow oven forty-five minutes.

FOREIGN RECIPES.

Danish Snowballs.—Take two tablespoonfuls butter and put it into a stewpan. Set over fire and stir in it two cups of flour. Then one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water. Mix and stir this over the fire until it forms smooth around the pan. Take from fire and cool. When cool, beat into it five eggs, one at a time; beat hard for ten or fifteen minutes, and in the meantime have a kettle of boiling lard on the stove. With a teaspoon form dumplings and drop into the lard (put in a piece of raw potato in lard to keep clear). Boil about ten minutes. Then put on heavy brown paper to drain lard off. Serve hot with powdered sugar. They are delicious.

Swedish Tarts.—Two large tablespoonfuls of lard (use leaf lard), one tablespoonful of butter, one-half cupful of sugar, one egg, one small cupful of water, 2 big cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Flavor with vanilla, roll out, not too thin, sprinkle with sugar, cut with a knife in a shape of a leaf. Inexpensive and delicious.

German Streussel Kuchen.—One heaping sieve flour, in the bread raiser, hollow the center, and pour one cup luke warm water, in which two cakes yeast were dissolved and two cups lukewarm milk. Stir and set to raise one hour. When well raised put in three-quarters of a cup of butter, three-quarters of a cup of sugar, two well beaten eggs, one-quarter teaspoonful salt, juice and rind of one small lemon, and a little grated nutmeg, one-quarter pound raisins. Mix well and let it raise two hours, then put in pans to raise until light. The Streussel.—One pound powdered sugar, one cup butter, yolk of one egg, and three-quarters cup of flour. Mix sugar and butter, next put in the flour and last the yolk; drop at a time; mix all thoroughly and spread on kuchen. Sprinkle cinnamon on top and dot with butter; bake one-half hour in a moderate oven. This will make the five cakes.

Scotch Lemon Cheese. — One pound of granulated sugar, one-fourth pound sweet butter, three lemons, four eggs. Put butter and sugar in jar, in pan of boiling water until it melts. Grate rind of two lemons, then add juice of all three, and the eggs well beaten. Stir continually until it thickens. Nice for sandwiches. A recipe from Aberdeen, Scotland.

CAKES.

One Egg Cake.—One-half cupful of butter and one cupful of sugar, cream well together, add one egg unbeaten and one cupful of milk (sweet), two cupfuls flour well sifted, two large teaspoonfuls of baking powder, vanilla and pinch of salt. Sift the flour, reserving one-half cupful. Sift this with baking powder, add milk and bulk of flour alternately, beating 400 times. Add the other flour and baking powder, beating a little more. This process makes a cake as light as when more eggs are used. Bake in two layers.

Cornstarch Cake.—Whites of three eggs, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful butter, two-thirds cupful cornstarch, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted in flour, dissolve cornstarch in two-thirds cupful sweet milk, and small pinch salt. Filling for cake—One cupful of sugar, one-half cupful grated chocolate or cocoa, four tablespoonfuls of water, boil together until it threads—not too long or it will be hard—then lastly butter size of walnut, then stir well and spread between layers on top.

Spice Cake.—Two spoonfuls of melted butter, two eggs, one pint sour cream, one-half teaspoonful of ginger, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, two cupfuls of flour, and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Beat the butter and sour cream together, add a little flour, then add the eggs not beaten. A little flour is again added and spices are mixed and put in after which the remainder of the flour is used and lastly the baking powder. Bake from one-half to three-quarters of an hour.

MUFFINS.

Bacon Muffins.—Two cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, one egg, three tablespoonfuls of melted lard or butter, one cupful of water. Flavor with crisp chips of bacon broken in small pieces, bake in gem pans.

Corn Muffins.—One cupful of flour, one cupful of corn meal, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one mixing-spoonful of sugar, three mixing-spoonfuls of melted butter or lard, one egg, and one cupful of water.

Late Muffins—One-third cupful of butter, one-fourth cupful of sugar, one beaten egg, three-fourths of a cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour sifted with a half teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls baking powder, scant half pound of chopped dates seeded. Cut in small pieces. Bake in gem pans.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Fat is a preventive of neuralgia, and people who suffer in this way, but dislike fat meat, should eat liberally of thin, well-buttered bread.

In stewing fruit boil the water and sugar for fifteen minutes, then add the fruit, and simmer gently till tender. This method keeps the fruit whole, and it contains its full flavor.

When boiling a ham always add a teacupful of vinegar and six or eight cloves for each gallon of water. They improve the flavor wonderfully. Let the ham cool in the water in which it was boiled, and it will be deliciously moist and nice.

Flannels should be well shrunk before they are made up into garments. The process of shrinking is very simple—merely soak the flannels, first in cold, then in hot water, and leave them in the latter for a time (until the water is cold).

Decay of the teeth will cause an offensive taste and breath. But this may be obviated to a certain extent by using the following simple preparation. Mix 1 ounce of rose water with one grain of permangante of potash, and rinse the mouth with this every three hours.

Flour should be bought in small quantities, owing to the fact that it quickly becomes musty, and for the same reason it should be kept scrupulously free from damp. If, however, a good deal is required at once, it should be stored in a barrel, the cover of which should be composed of pieces of board, to allow of sufficient air getting through.

Moist hands are a great source of discomfort and annoyance to some girls. The best method of dealing with them is to add a teaspoonful of sulphate of zinc to a pint of hot water, and keep the hands immersed in this for three or four minutes, renewing the hot water as it cools. Then dry and dust the hands with a powder consisting of zinc oxide (½ oz.) and French chalk (1½ ozs.).

To brown the upper crusts of pies and tarts, before putting them in the oven brush with a little milk.

The habit of playing with the baby, making it laugh and crow to show off its intelligence, may delight the mother, but if repeated with any frequency is simply paving the way for a normal baby to grow up into a nervous child. The best treatment for baby during its first year is to attend carefully to its physical wants and to absolutely neglect the fact that it has a mind at all.

"WEARY WILLIE" HEROES

TATTERED TRAMPS WHO HAVE SAVED TRAINS.

Their Promptitude and Presence of Mind Have Averted Railway Disasters.

He may deserve all the odium cast upon him by reason of the shiftless, idle life he leads, but there have been times when the tramp has proved himself a man and a hero "for a' that." A short time ago an English excursion train might have been derailed and probably wrecked had not a tramp, who came across a couple of telegraph-poles lying across the lines—blown down by the storm—ran for three-quarters of a mile to the nearest signal-box and given the warning. Two minutes later an excursion train would have dashed into the obstruction.

Similar promptitude and presence of mind on the part of a "Weary Willie," who was resting on a railway embankment in May last year, enabled him to save a mail train from probable disaster. Glancing idly down the line, he suddenly noticed that the heavy rains had washed a large quantity of earth on to a portion of the lines—quite sufficient to derail the express, which he noticed was already signalled. Quickly stripping off his tattered coat, he rushed down the line towards the oncoming train, frantically waving his coat above his head. The express came dashing on; the driver not noticing the tramp, owing to a curve in the line, until the train was almost on top of him. Luckily he saw him just as the tramp sprang from the track to escape being killed, and the train was brought to a standstill within a short distance of the obstruction.

"SPRINGFIELD MIKE."

It was in the same month that a crowded express train on the New-haven Railway was saved from disaster by a tramp, who, walking along the track, suddenly discovered that several feet of rail had either been cut or broken. Almost at the same moment he heard the whistle of an engine. It was an express excursion, and, running on towards the curve, he saw the train only a short distance off. Pulling out his red bandanna, he rushed forward, waving it above his head and shouting with all the strength of his lungs. The driver saw him and stopped the train, which in a few seconds more might have plugged down the embankment.

Needless to say, the passengers, when they realized how near they had been to death, showered thanks and rewards on the tramp, who gave his name as "Springfield Mike." The driver wished to take him to the terminus, in order that he might be further rewarded by the company, but Mike would have none of it. "Reward," he cried; "why, I owe the railway for a good many rides, and I guess this makes it square."

THE WRECKERS FOILED.

Five years ago, almost to the day, a dastardly attempt was made to wreck the Boston express by cutting a portion of the rail at nighttime and laying it across the track. A half-starved tramp named Bibby, who was walking along the track to the next town, stumbled over the obstruction. Feeling round him, he was horrified to find a gap in the rails, and in a flash he recognized the work of wreckers.

In spite of weakness and fatigue, he rushed along the track and managed to reach the next station, half a mile away, just as the express was approaching the station. Rushing into the night operator's box, Bibby shouted, "Stop the train; there's a-going to be a wreck if you don't!" The operator immediately sprang for a red lantern, rushed out on the track, and gave the signal just in time. When the important part the tramp had played in saving the train became known to the passengers they contributed enough money to keep him from starving for months, and ultimately the company provided him with a job for life.

NEVER FOUND THE HERO.

It was in the same year that a tattered old tramp, walking along the track on his way to Waterbury, Connecticut, came upon a washout. The water-main supplying the city of Waterbury had burst, and the rushing water had cut a hole through fifty feet of the roadbed.

He had no sooner made the discovery than he heard the whistle of a locomotive far away round the curve. Pulling off his ragged coat, he dashed up the track in the direction of the sound. Reaching the curve, he came face to face with the train, which was running at high speed. Standing between the rails, he waved his coat frantically above his head, and jumped aside just in time to escape the wheels of the engine. The train shot by him with a roar, and he believed his warning had not been seen, and that it was rushing on to disaster.

But the engineer had seen him, and the next moment the force of the air-brakes threw the passengers from their seats. As soon as he saw the train was safe, the old tramp turned and disappeared into the woods; and though the railway company made a vigorous search for him they were unable to trace the vagrant who was the hero of that day.

ONLY WANTED A DRINK.

A disappointing tramp hero was the one who saved a train from certain disaster in August, 1905, on the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton Railroad. As in the previous instance, several yards of the track had been swept away in a washout, and when the tramp, who rushed along the track and warned the driver by waving his coat above his head, was asked by the grateful passengers for his name and address, in order that he might be further rewarded, after they had raised a purse of more than a hundred dollars for him, he replied, "My address is the United States, and it ain't never been more definite, and I guess it never will be so long as whisky's sold in more than one place. I've got enough money now to keep me alive for six months, at five cents a drink, and I guess you've done your duty by me. But the nearest saloon's at Hamilton, and that's a long way for a man whose been dry since morning. Give me a ride to Hamilton and we'll cry quits."

And to Hamilton he went, and when the passengers last saw this tattered hero he was rushing into a saloon, where he entertained crowds of loiterers with the story of how he saved the train, and then treated them to drinks.

FISH.

Haddock Souffle.—One cupful of cold baked or boiled haddock, one cupful of mashed potatoes, mixed together; one-half cupful of milk, added gradually; salt and pepper to taste; stir in one egg well beaten, put in a buttered mold or dish and set in the oven till hot; then beat the white of another egg stiff and stir into it the yolk, well beaten, with salt and pepper. Heap over the fish and brown.

Pate of Salt Cod.—Boil one cupful of oyster liquor, stir in two tablespoons cornstarch wet with cold milk. When it thickens add three tablespoons of butter and a little pepper, then one cupful of fish, which has been soaked, boiled, and flaked. Heat and stir in one cupful warm milk and three chopped hard boiled eggs. Take from fire and cover a pot of boiling water fifteen minutes. Line a buttered, baking dish with puff paste, pricking at the bottom. Cut a round piece for a cover and bake separately. Bake both in a quick oven. When almost cold turn out the shell and fill with fish, fit on top, and invert on a hot platter. Garnish with parsley sprigs and lemon slices.

HOUSEWIFE WHO MAKES MANY KINDS OF SHORTCAKE.

Points Out One of the Best Ways to Use the Summer Fruits and Berries—Canned Preparations in Winter.

One of the best ways to use the summer fruits and berries is in shortcakes. We use all kinds of fruits. We make individual shortcakes by the following rule: Sift one pint of flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Into this rub with the hands a piece of butter the size of an egg and a piece of lard the same size. Stir in milk enough to mix into a batter to roll out. Knead as little as possible on the board and roll out with as little handling as possible. Cut in rounds about four inches in diameter. We use the cover of a pound coffee tin as a cutter. Bake 20 minutes in a quick oven. This recipe makes five shortcakes.

Strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries, peaches, pineapples and bananas all make delicious shortcakes. We like blueberry shortcake almost better than blueberry pie. The blueberries should be stewed a little. The pineapples should be cut up some time before using, sprinkled well with sugar and allowed to stand so that the juice will come out well. For the banana shortcake the bananas must be thoroughly mashed and well sweetened, but they should not be allowed to stand. Cream may be added to the banana shortcake, if you like it.

In serving, have the shortcakes hot. Split them, butter well, put two large spoonfuls of the mashed and sweetened fruit inside and one on top. In winter we have apple and orange shortcakes. We also use canned fruit. We find this a very economical way of using fruit, one box of berries or one pineapple being enough for four shortcakes.

Frenched Chicken.

Dress a chicken which is too large for frying, or almost grown. Disjoint all parts, cut the breast in two, then salt and pepper and roll well in flour. Fry in hot lard (part butter is good), but add butter after chicken has begun to fry well. Cook in this way until a golden brown. The chicken will not be tender nor nearly done, but have ready a steam cooker, or old fashioned steamer, with a pan in it to hold the juice from the chicken. Then put in the chicken and cook one hour, or until tender. The grease in which the chicken was fried must be heated again, as it must be placed on the back of the stove to be ready for gravy. One large tablespoonful of flour, brown as you wish, and a bowl of sweet milk and water makes a delicious gravy. Also add the juice from the steamed chicken to the gravy while cooking. You will find this the most satisfactory way of cooking a large chicken—not an old one by any means; be certain it is young.

THE NEW REMEDY FOR Nervous Exhaustion

Indigestion, Heartburn, Dyspepsia and Constipation result more often from nervous exhaustion than from food. Dieting or pills will not avail. The only remedy is nerve repair. "ASAYA-NEURALL" is and makes possible this cure. It feeds the nerves, induce sleep, quickens the appetite and digestion, and these disorders disappear. $1.50 per bottle. Obtain from the local agent.
