Patrons of the Lachute Fair should not miss the side-splitting burlesque wrestling match as presented by Jake and Jerry! It is beyond a doubt the choicest tid-bit of natural humor ever witnessed. It is a comedy epic that will be remembered for many long years, a howl of laughter greets their very appearance which is grotesque, to say the least of it. Their tactics on the mat are so ludicrous that even the proverbial cat would double up and die laughing each separate one of its nine lives away.

LACHUTE FAIR

It is a long stride from Feb. 2nd, 1826 when Jno. McMartin of St. Andrews East, acting as chairman and James Murray, as secretary, formed the nucleus of what is now the Lachute Spring Show, which is to-day a Class A. Show with beautiful fair grounds, neat buildings and a splendid race track. The Society was first known as the County of York Agriculture Society, and about 1830 the adjoining county of Two Mountains was detached and the Argenteuil Agricultural Society was formed, when any practical farmer or gentleman could become a member on paying the sum of five shillings annually, the rules of competition being similar to those adopted by the Highland Society of Scotland.

For many years the chief competitions were cattle shows and plowing matches which were held at St. Andrews East, St. Philippe or Muddy Branch and Lachute. In 1870 there were 95 members with a total receipt of $113. The late Gavin J. Walker was appointed as secretary-treasurer and held place for 40 years being succeeded by James W. Gall and present secretary A. Bothwell (County Agro-nomist).

In 1894 the Society paid premiums to the amount of $950 while last year the total prizes paid out exceeded $7,000.

In 1917 the late J. T. Ayers was appointed to the Board of Directors and in 1920 was elected President, taking very keen and active interest into developing it until the Lachute Fair is recognized as one of the leading fairs in the Province.

The Fair is being held this year from June 17 to 20th. inclusive and Lachute will be en fete to welcome its visitors.

Secretary, A. Bothwell, announces a full line of entries in all classes, splendid race programme and lots of amusement from stage and midway with fine exhibits in industrial buildings.

ONE PENNY

"Two Heads Were Always Better Than One," Said the Captain

By Ralph Plummer

"Blundell!"

Crosbie rounded a traverse. He had got away from the tourist crowd. He wished to roam the old well-remembered spot alone. These others, they looked as spectators upon the scene of a mighty drama. He was one who had been an actor upon the awful stage.

And leaning against the clay of a fire-step—a fire-step now cleverly preserved against the decaying touch of time—lost in deepest thoughts, was the figure of a solitary man, who stared out across the grim desolation of a No Man's Land still stark and portentous under the gathering thunderstorm. The profile was unmistakable. Crosbie's voice was hoarse with emotion. He was subconsciously aware of the strange coincidence.

"Blundell—old fellow!"

Two hands met suddenly in a grip that drained knuckles white. Blundell stared and half-pulled the other man up on the earthen ledge where sentries once had stamped their frozen feet while their haggard eyes had strained in searching gaze across the menacing wilderness of the company front.

"Alan Crosbie!"

"The age of miracles," quoted Crosbie, with a shaky laugh, "is not yet past." He stared back hungrily into the eager gaze of the other's eyes.

Harold Blundell grinned suddenly to mask his emotion. He seized the other man's shoulders, shook him delightedly and gulped.

"You dear old devil!" he grunted. "How is everything?" "But hark!"

The sky was heavy with thunderous clouds; lightning flickered in the east, from the east, too, came the roar of thunder.

"The Evening Hafe!" muttered Crosbie whimsically. "The company front lies a bit farther on, Harold. Let's push on; I want to get into the old positions."

Blundell squeezed his companion's shoulder. His eyes were darkly thoughtful. A wind soured drearily across the limitless waste.

"Twelve years ago," muttered Blundell. "There is a change, and yet it is all here—just the same, Alan! His voice was low-pitched, almost reverent.

"Over there," whispered Crosbie—"that small salient facing the ruined sugar factory." "The old company front," nodded Blundell. "There's that sap which number four platoon ran out. Remember Jerry's raid on it?"

Both fell silent. It was growing still darker. Thunder growled overhead; a lightning flash lit the desolate battlefield threateningly, outlined the wire and the shell-blown duckboards. The pair reached the old front line. They discovered familiar fire-steps. They mounted upon one of them and peered over the parapet at that rugged, snaky line, eighty yards away, shown plainly in the intermittent flashes from the heavens.

"Where is Lieutenant Crosbie's tin hat?" said Blundell with mock severity, staring at the outline of the other's rakish freckled cap.

"Where is the captain's gas mask?" mocked Crosbie. "Nice example to set the men! Gee! Harold, isn't this extraordinarily like old times?"

Blundell rested his chin on the hands he had bunched together on the parapet. The world round them was silent, save for the heavy growl of the thunder.

"We saw the whole issue through together," said Blundell. "We were lucky, Crosbie, you and I."

"There'll be a silence," "Bless 'em!" muttered Crosbie. "The old gang."

Blundell understood. He, too, blinked his eyes. He also was peering the trenches around them. Forms moved about, the mud sucking glissando at their feet—men whose metal, bowler-like hats, shone darkly green and khaki, with mud, as blinding. Very lights arched their sickly radiance over the lines. A cigarette glowed fitfully between cupped fingers here and there. Sentinels standing down and resting in the tank-holes, kicking their frozen legs for warmth.

"Watto, me lucky lads! Gangway! Stew-comin' up!" "That hahay but humorous voice would belong to Sankey—Sankey of the diminutive frame and lion heart. Blundell bit his lip. Sankey had been in the dug-out by the Engineers' dump when a heavy shell had scored a direct hit—

Blundell closed his eyes in the darkness. The thunder was becoming heavier. Guns! Guns! He knew the thin whine of approaching shells, detected the change of the whine to a hollow roar, the roar to a soul-towering, smoldering rush of sound before the projectile struck the earth with a shattering roar, while a mighty mushroom of black columned up hideously from the ground.

He heard again the scream of hurtling metal, the whiz of flying fragments. The guns took on a new volume. They roared in unison. A great and terrible monotonous harmony. The earth shook and reeled under the repeated shocks.

Cries. A man—a strong man sobbing somewhere beyond the next traverse—

Blundell caught his breath in a gasp. Crosbie's hand touched his arm. "I know," he whispered. "I'm that way, too."

Blundell sucked in a mighty breath. The effluence of the trench behind seemed unreal. There should be men carrying wooden candles bearing great diries of stew or tea—men who stumbled and cursed with the hysteria of fatigue as the hot liquid slopped over.

"Rum up! Fourth bucket see as we're goin' over the bags in two days' time! Lumme, wotter life! Never mind; 'appy days comin'! Keep that fag down! Wancher 'ead blowed off!"

In the distance a charabanc booted the recall for the wandering sight-seers. The two men never even heard it. Blundell mused on his mind in this world of twelve years ago.

"Talis! No, I'm wrong; it's heads!"

"The signal came again."

"That damned charabanc!" ejaculated Crosbie suddenly. "That's the summons for everyone to be getting back."

"Harry Blundell was staring at the ground strangely."

"Talis! No, it isn't; it's heads!" It ran through his mind repeatedly. "Talis! No, it isn't; it's heads!"

"We must meet again, Harold. Eileen and I will give you a welcome that'll—"

Blundell shook his head. "I sail back to Canada in two days."

Alan—From Cherbourg? He paused. "One day I'm going to look you both up in England. You are both very happy, Alan? And the boys?"

Crosbie looked at his old comrade with shining eyes.

"Oh, man!" he breathed. "The young blighter is eleven, and the finest little kid you ever saw. You will come to see us soon, old chap? Eileen often speaks about you. I sometimes wonder if you rushed off to Canada immediately the War was over—to forget."

"Forget?"

Crosbie squared his shoulders and nodded.

"We always were square with one another, Hal. I think that was the one beautiful side of the War—the wonderful comradeship which men grew to know. The great spirit of unselfishness and fine sportsmanship which we, among so many others, cherished dearly. You remember the instructions that came through, Harold—one officer and three men, to go on leave. And you let me go. You let me go when, by virtue of your rank, you could have gone instead."

Blundell shrugged. "We were both due for leave," he returned; "and we tossed. You won—that's all."

"You needn't have tossed for it," reminded Crosbie. "And that leave meant a lot. We both knew it, Hal! Eileen!"

Blundell stroked his moustache with a hand that shook a little.

"We let a coin decide," he said quietly. "We usually did in the Army, Alan. Equal chances for everybody. You won—and got your chance. Had I won, I should have tried mine. But you were the fortunate one, Alan, and you won Eileen. Very likely, had I been the lucky one and gone on leave instead of you, I should only have come back unhappy."

"You mean?"

"I would have seized the chance to propose to Eileen—and would have been turned down."

Crosbie stared at his comrade with corrugated brows.

"I wonder?" he muttered. "She was very fond of both of us, Harold. It was touch-and-go who won. That Talis! Then they had both bent to leave meant everything to the one of us who got his chance."

New Lord Mayor, Sir Pheneas Neal, as he appeared outside law courts in London following his recent inauguration celebrations.

"We tossed," said the other man soberly.

Crosbie held out his hand suddenly. "I won't say 'Good-bye,' old fellow. Fate couldn't give us this extraordinary meeting and then deny a real reunion. I have to get back to that infernal charabanc. I must be home in London to-morrow morning, so we are denied even the evening together."

His eyes were very moist.

"They clasped hands suddenly; there were incoherent sentences on both sides. Then Crosbie was at an angle of the traverse, looking back with working mouth."

"Bye, skipper! Seems all wrong to be joining a charabanc. Somehow you and I should be in the old dug-out—you helping me out in the difficulties I found as a very young and very green officer. Remember how you used to help me out, Hal? You could always find a way of solving difficulties for me. It was your advice which never failed."

Blundell smiled slowly as he looked at the other.

"Two heads were always better than one in those days, Alan."

The other nodded. His eyes twinkled in a parting smile. He was gone.

Blundell paused before the old dug-out. He went down the reverberating steps and lit a stub of candle. The familiar old place was all the same, but once and men—men of peace, mild, mellow. It was in here that they had tossed for that precious fourteen days' leave. He had hesitated upon it. He took an old coin from his pocket and smiled whimsically. It was a coin he always carried. It had come into his possession long before the War. It was the one he had used to decide the question of leave between himself and Alan Crosbie.

Blundell stood in the centre of the dug-out. His teeth bit a little into his lower lip as he thought of Eileen. "Time heals all scars," he murmured.

Yet Blundell was still a bachelor. He lingered the coin as his mind compared the scene again in this dug-out. He had taken this coin from his pocket and held it in young Crosbie's hand.

"Time heals all scars," he murmured. "Time heals all scars," he murmured.

Submarine To Go Under Polar Sea

Under Polar Sea

International Expedition Will Use Old Navy Craft on Voyage from Spitzbergen to Alaska

Carry Ice Drills, Radio

Sir Hubert Wilkins, who has soared over the Arctic ice and over the snows at the South Pole, will try, next May or June, to reach the top of the world by the undersea route, using a converted United States submarine of an obsolete type. It is undoubtedly the most daring venture projected in the long history of exploration.

When the idea was first advanced last Spring on Sir Hubert's return from Deception Island in the Antarctic, it was received with skeptical comment in many quarters. The sheer romance of it was too much for even the most imaginative, but after Sir Hubert went into details of the plan many of the skeptics seemed to yield. He made it sound quite possible.

"The idea may sound fantastic," Sir Hubert declared, "but I have given it a great deal of time and study and I am certain it can be carried to a successful conclusion. I remember that when I first spoke of a flight over the polar regions some experts in aviation said such a feat was not feasible; that the winds and ice could not be overcome, but they were."

Last May the explorer applied to the U.S. Navy Department for permission to use the submarine O-12 for the expedition. The vessel, hardly more than a relic when compared with the latest types of undersea craft, was then out of commission in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, but Sir Hubert explained that with a few alterations he could put it into shape for his trip through the ice Arctic waters.

Through Lieut. Commander Sloan Danenhower, a reserve officer in the United States Navy, who will serve as master of the O-12 when she puts out to sea for the trip North next Spring, Sir Hubert got swift action on his application. As a rule such a transaction involves considerable red tape, but Assistant Secretary of the Navy John Jahnke was intrigued with the plan. "It is an undertaking that will bring Jules Verne into the twentieth century," he said.

After making it clear that the O-12 must be returned to the navy before July 1, 1936, so that it may be scrapped in accordance with the terms of the London naval treaty, Secretary Adams signed the order and President Hoover put his signature to it. The subsea boat was transferred to the Shipping Board, which in turn chartered it to the expedition at a nominal rental of $1 a year.

The contract states that the O-12 is to be used for an "international geographical investigation."

Full permission was granted for the alterations contemplated by Sir Hubert. Instead of the ordinary conning tower the O-12 will have a specially constructed telescopic type capable of boring through soft ice. In addition it will be fitted with an automatic device designed to drill through ice fifty feet thick, although Sir Hubert is virtually certain that none more than ten feet deep will be encountered.

"People almost everywhere think that the ice is solid all over the Arctic region, but that is a common error," he said. "The ice is seldom unbroken for more than twenty to twenty-five miles, and I am certain that we will be able to find open water almost everywhere when we find it necessary to come up. We will have to come to the surface at intervals to renew our air, discharge engine exhausts and recharge our batteries."

In a letter to the Navy Department he explained that there are no icebergs of great size in the region where the O-12 will travel. These form much lower down, drifting out of the polar sea. He maintains that more than one-fourth the distance from Alaska to Spitzbergen can be traversed in open water and that on much of the rest of the route the depth of the ice will not exceed ten feet.

During the World War, British and German submarines navigated under the ice in Scandinavian and Finnish waters and though they never went as far north as the O-12 will be pushed they were able, without special equipment, to come through the ice crust when they found it necessary.

An observation tower is to be built into the prow of the O-12 and members of the party will be on watch there all through the journey under the ice. Powerful searchlights will throw long beams before the advancing craft revealing whatever secrets the frigid waters may hold, and if conditions are right the world will not have to wait long to get word of any important discoveries the Wilkins party may make; a powerful radio set is to be part of the submarine's equipment.

In addition to the ice-drilling devices and other special apparatus, the undersea boat will have compressed air chambers to permit the members of the expedition to enter and leave the submerged craft without danger of dying from sudden change of pressure. This is to enable the scientists to take soundings and to walk on the floor of the polar sea. Definite proof of the existence of land under the frozen wastes may be found in this way.

Under water the O-12 will cruise at about four miles an hour, to lessen the dangers from collision. It will be necessary to maintain sharp watch at all times to avoid the icebergs which conceal far more of their bulk under the sea's surface than they show above. Navigation will be almost entirely by magnetic compass. Some difficulty may be encountered, due to the submarine's proximity to the pole, but there will be frequent opportunity for the ship to rise for observations with the sextant. This job will fall to Lieut. Commander Danenhower, Dr. H. Sverdrup will be chief of the scientific staff. He has had previous Arctic experience.

It, as planned, the O-12 leaves New York about the end of May or the middle of June. It will probably complete the undersea journey late in August, at the Arctic Summer. Conditions then are at their best for such work. If the expedition should delay beyond that time the hazards will be greatly increased, but Sir Hubert is confident that he will get out before winter descends on the polar sea.

"Even in winter," the explorer said, "the polar ice pack is seldom more than ten feet deep. When the frame starts late, it sometimes averages only three feet. In summer, after the thaw starts, the ice pack is so thin that it should be easy for specially built submarines to thrust their periscopes and upper hull through, especially in certain lanes."

I explained the purpose of the expedition, he said:

"The primary objectives of polar exploration are to determine the mineral content of the Arctic and Antarctic continents and to study the meteorological conditions that influence the weather all over the globe. We know that the Antarctic region cools the Pacific Ocean and that the winds from the Pacific affect the temperature even as far north as the opposite Pole—at least, to some extent. But we want to know more. If our Arctic voyage is successful our next study will take us along the greatest unexplored coastline of the world—the eastern edge of the Antarctic."

Vilhjalmur Stefansson is said to have been the first man to develop the idea of approaching the mysteries of the polar sea with the aid of the submarine. He discussed it with Sir Hubert when they were in the Arctic in the ill-fated Karlik, and he elaborated it in his "Northward Course of Empire." Lincoln Ellsworth, who flew over the North Pole in the Norge with the Amundsen party, is one of the backers of the Wilkins International Transpolar Submarine Expedition. Whether he will accompany the expedition has not been definitely decided.

The two schoolboys were talking about the relative merits of their relations.

"I have an uncle who weighs over twenty-four stone," said Stanley.

"That's nothing," scoffed Sidney. "I have a brother who weighs much more."

"Impossible," said the former. "He must be a wonder."

"Not at all," said Sidney. "He weighs coal in the coal merchant's yard."

The practice of establishing concrete monuments known as fundamental bench marks—by the Geodetic Survey of Canada, Department of the Interior, in the course of its work in determining the elevation of the country above sea-level was inaugurated in 1925.

Detailed analysis of the first Bennett Budget establishes it as an effort to assist such basic industries as agriculture coal, iron, and steel and secondary industries such as silk and linen manufacture and plants founded on basic products.

At the same time it recognizes a probable deficit between expenditures and revenue on the former basis of taxation of more than $100,000,000 in the present fiscal year and through the tariff and direct taxation proposes to reduce this total by some $75,000,000.

The major assistance to agriculture will be a five cent per bushel reduction in freight rates on export wheat and an import duty of 25 cents per bushel on feed corn. Increased duties on canned fruits and vegetables will help Canadian producers and canners and at the same time give the Government a persuasive instrument in negotiating trade treaties with British Dominions.

New and higher duties on leather and its manufacture and upon fresh meats are designed to improve the market for other Canadian farm products. In fact for the first time the tariff is being seriously developed in the interest of the farmer. The result will be watched with great interest, while the experiment will undoubtedly work to the almost immediate advantage of mixed farming.

Scarcely less general in its interest is the action taken with respect to coal. Anthracite, hitherto free under all schedules goes to 40 cents per ton under general and intermediate tariffs but remains free under the British preference, which will undoubtedly stimulate use of Canadian bituminous and of British anthracite. Coke which was free will pay $1 per ton, another stimulus to Canadian fuel, while bituminous which was previously taxed at 50 cents per ton goes to 75 cents. In addition to these tariff terms the subvention in freight rates on Canadian coal is extended to $2 per ton maximum, while duties on steel made in Canada go up and those on steel not made in Canada but required for secondary industries go down.

The entry of used cars to Canada, except as settlers' effects is banned and the drawback of 25 per cent of duty on auto parts now made in Canada is withdrawn in recognition of the principle that cars must be made and not only assembled in Canada.

Dumping of American furniture into Canada is met with a boost from 30 to 40 per cent in duty while a duty of 35 cents per cubic foot is placed on oranges except from British Dominions or possessions. This is the equivalent of approximately 85 cents per case and is probably a forerunner of one of the terms of the new Australian treaty. A tax of 4 cents per pound on bulk teas entering Canada is purely a revenue gesture.

There are three other highly important features of tariff changes. One will give the Government power to impose an excise tax to punish any individual manufacturers taking unfair advantage of the tariff to exploit the consumer; hitherto

SIPPING SWEETNESS FROM SUN-KISSED SHADES

Midst the dew-drops of the morning
As they glisten in the sun,
How the honey-bee flits softly
With its low, sweet, gentle hum.
Heading down the golden petals
With its pollen-laden feet,
Salvaging secreted nectar
From a store house of the deep.
Endless flitting, endless sipping
With a diligence divine—
Winging off to store its treasure
Against the coming winter time.
Strange it knows the sweet recesses
Of a distillation pure,
Welling up in floral cuplet
Casting fragrance to allure.
O Life! hast thou a sweetness
Deep concealed within thy cup Either found by looking downward
Or discovered looking up.
Then, O my soul: go flitting
Like the bee in life's sweet morn.
Gather honey in the dawning
Ere the darkness and the storm.
Drive thee back to seek some shelter
In an unprovided home
And thou find for winter's passing Empty cuplets in the comb.

A Peep Behind the Scenes in the Money Vaults of Canada

In order that a better feeling may permeate the personnel of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valley journalists, an invitation was extended for the weekly newspapermen of these districts to gather at the Cornwallis Hotel, Cornwall, on Saturday, May 30th. There was a good attendance of those interested and Mr. Roy Sayles of Renfrew, general secretary-manager of the Canadian Weekly Press Association was present and assisted greatly in the formation of the district organization. It is due largely to Mr. Sayles' splendid leadership that Canadian journalism has been lifted on to a higher plane that better serves the community interest.

At a complimentary luncheon tendered in the Hotel at noon a most interesting address was delivered by R. Watson Sellar, Assistant Deputy Minister of Finance at Ottawa who gave quite an insight into the care exercised in the production and use of our currency, how the bills and notes of different denominations are loaded with refinements to discourage counterfeiting. For example, if you look at the two-dollar bill, you will notice below the photograph of the Prince of Wales an olive green pantograph extending across the bottom. Into that tint are carefully engraved the words "two dollars" eighty-six times and the figure "2" an equal number of times. Naturally, there are many other checks, and, if you wish to spend an interesting evening, may I suggest the use of a magnifying glass on a one or two dollar Dominion note. Five skilled artist engravers each executing his own particular work are assigned to the task. The work thus being divided in order to safeguard the public interest. While the printing of the bills and notes require greatest care, yet the paper stock used demands equal attention, when it is considered that they have to meet the test of folding on the same crease without breaking from 5 to 6,000 times across the grain. The paper is checked over 35 times in the transition changes and the work is not advanced from one operation to another without the count being verified by an independent audit, so that four to five weeks elapse before a single note is completed. Even the little twenty five cent "shin-plaster" is still quite popular, nearly five million of them being in the hands of the Canadian public.

About 10 million one-dollar notes, and about 7 million two-dollar bills are required for day-to-day business, and the life of their denomination is from nine to ten months.

The money we hold in notes are simply slips of paper on which the Dominion has promised to pay on demand a little over 23 grains of gold. The law demands the Dominion own certain quantities of gold before notes are issued and there is in custody of the Minister of Finance over 88 millions of gold to meet the demands of Canadian citizens should they require a settlement.

It requires 225 million one cent pieces and about 35 million of the big five cent nickels. There should be 11 for every man, woman or child in the country. Of ten-cent pieces the issue numbers 75 million, while about 44 million twenty-five cent pieces are in circulation. In value the circulation of silver is about $27,000,000.

One is sometimes asked why we have both a large and small copper and large and small five cent piece. The growth in use of penny slot machines for weighing; purchasing of candies, gum etc., made the demand for the small cent and the telephone boxes, etc., caused the change to a large five cent piece.

Mr. Sellar then briefly outlined the meaning of some of the public accounts terms and for the edification of our readers we report them in full.

"The Estimates"

Parliament by the Magna Charta obtained control over all tax levies and expenditures. Therefore, at each session the Government submits a list of the expenditures it recommends should be made in the coming fiscal year. These are called the Estimates. The Dominion fiscal year commences on April 1st, and ends on the next 31st. of March.

"Appropriations"

The Estimates are the recommendations of the Government, but the money cannot be spent until Parliament has approved of each of the items. Then a Bill is passed listing those which the House of Commons has accepted. It is these which are known as the appropriations for the year.

"Interim Supply"

At the end of each fiscal year all appropriations lapse and as Parliament has rarely had time to deal with the Estimates before April 1st, it is impracticable for it to pass the Appropriation Bill. The business of the country must proceed, so a bill is passed granting a fraction of the total asked, generally a sixth. This is known as interim supply. The Dominion keeps a working capital of over ten million dollars in the banks. Cheques may be drawn on these bank accounts on March 31st, but the next day nothing can be paid unless Parliament has granted permission. That is why you sometimes read in April that civil servants are not sure whether they will get their pay cheques on April 15th. The 245 members you elect control the purse strings, and until they release the money, no payments may be made.

"Statutory votes or cheques"

From time to time Parliament, by legislation, orders a certain thing to be done, and for that purpose directs that the costs be paid, as they accrue, from the consolidated revenue fund. Therefore, such charges do not have to be annually voted, and are known as statutory charges. The most important items under this heading are the 124 millions for interest on the debt, and the 12 millions paid to the provinces as annual subsidies.

"Supplementary Estimates"

After the main estimates have been presented, it may be found that provision has not been made for some activities which it is desired should be proceeded with during the year. It is a constitutional practice that no expenditures can be recommended to Parliament without these first being officially approved by the King - in Canada, of course, it is the Governor-General - so these new proposals cannot be tacked on to the Estimates before the House. Therefore, the new list must be officially approved and then submitted. These are known as supplementaries. The chief value of this procedure is that it keeps the expenditure programme within the control of the Government of the day and prevents the "pork barrel" and "log-rolling" practices associated with the appropriating of public moneys in some countries when legislators want to get something for their districts.

"Consolidated Revenue Fund"

This is the pool into which all public moneys flow. Its purpose is to place the Minister of Finance in control of all moneys paid to the Government. Otherwise, departments would have bank accounts here and there, and no one would know exactly how much money the Government had at its command from day to day. To guarantee that the funds are not "short-circuited," cheques are made payable to the Receiver General, which is really an office and not a person, although it forms part of the official title of the Minister of Finance.

"Ordinary Revenues"

These are the taxes and the moneys which are collected by the various branches of the public service in performing their ordinary duties.

"Special Receipts"

These revenues are something outside the usual run. The classification finds its origin in the desire that the divisions of the public accounts offer a fair comparison with each other from year to year, but, every once in a while, some special contribution is made to the public treasury, and being for a large amount, would put a comparison out of line, if included in the "casual revenue" division. So it is put into a separate section, known as "Special Receipts". For example, last year a worldwide loan flotation was made that a greater cash payment might be made on account of German reparations. Canada's share was over $2,000,000. That is a special receipt.

Into this group falls practically every expenditure which is a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund, with the exception of those made on Capital Account.

"Capital Expenditures"

This is the division that puts many astray. When you, as a proprietor, of a printing business, decide to spend some of your savings, or to borrow money for the purpose of putting up a new building, you do not consider yourself any the poorer, when the job is done. You have less money, or you may be in debt, but against that you have a new building. The same rule applies to Government expenditures. The Parliament buildings, the new Welland Canal and a host of other like expenditures are permanent and useful improvements to Canada. However, in the annual balance sheet the Dominion does not set out an inventory of its physical assets, it deals only with the cash resources and the cash liabilities. So, when a Minister of Finance borrows, let us say, ten million dollars to finance some permanent public work, he is not dragging a herring across the trail when he claims a surplus, although the debt may be actually increased because of expenditures on capital account. Against that debt increase he has the new building or work. Let me add, that each of the long list of distinguished men who have been finance ministers of Canada has if anything, erred on the side of caution in making up his list of capital expenditures; so be fair.

"Special Expenditures"
These, like Special Receipts, are something out of the usual. The items thus defined are generally self-explanatory.

"Debt Terms"

May I preface my remarks by quoting the phrase: "The king is dead, long live the king." The King's business must go on and, while complete records are always available, the public accounts are a record of the year's operations. The Treasury does not try to strike a balance sheet estimating the present value of buildings, canals, stores and supplies which it owns. It does not seek to estimate arrears or to value expectations; it does not charge up contractual obligations for services which may have been earned before the year ends, but which have not been settled, nor for other open accounts which may be outstanding. Of course, departments seek to settle all known accounts before the books are closed. The balance sheet the Minister of Finance presents to Parliament is the actual cash and credit position of the Dominion at the end of the twelve months he is reviewing.

"Active Assets"

This is the cash, the specie and other quick assets; the loans the Dominion has made to other public bodies, foreign governments and individuals which are interest-bearing, and the interest is being paid, and the Government has every reason to believe will be repaid on the due dates. Active assets are set-offs against gross liabilities.

"Non-active Assets"

These are advances which should be repaid at some indeterminate date in the future, but no interest is being paid at the moment. For example, the Dominion has over $600,000 invested in the Canadian National. Some day it may be paid back, or become interest-producing.

At the moment it does not pay anything. So items of this character, while carefully tabulated in the departmental records, are not taken into consideration when the net debt figure is being calculated.

"Funded Debt"

This term comes from antiquity. It was first used in 1688, when Parliament secured control over the loans and taxes. Prior to that, physical persuasion was frequently required to get a settlement. The word "funds" was used to define the taxes earmarked to pay the interest and the principal; thus the loans so secured became known as the funded debt. Nowadays the term is used to define the interest-bearing bond issues and other loans which, on some future date, will come due for settlement. The funded debt does not, for example, include Dominion notes in circulation.

"Funded debt in the hands of the public"

This is simply a refinement of the preceding term. It is the amount left, after subtracting the securities which the Dominion has repurchased for sinking funds, etc.

"The Gross Debt"

This is the total of all financial liabilities of the Government, before any deduction is made for active assets. It includes the funded debt, the note circulation, the trust accounts and all the other liabilities of the Dominion, but, as pointed out before, it does not concern the day-to-day accounts payable incurred in connection with the ordinary administration of departments.

"The Net Debt"

Is the term used to summarize the balance left after deducting from the gross debt liabilities the active assets.

These are the terms most frequently met in respect to the Dominion's financial operations. Naturally, the same definitions may not be applicable to other public bodies, for accounting systems vary. The Dominion system governs the Treasury's administration of the daily revenues which average over a million a day, and also the expenditures which total about the same. In the Treasury vaults are over 4,000 million dollars worth of securities, and a much more interesting story might be told about other activities of the Department, but you are here on business, so I have sought to stick to business.

EMPRESS OF BRITAIN ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

The arrival at Quebec this week of the palatial 42,000 ton steamer, the "Empress of Britain" marks a new epoch in the history of navigation to the famous St. Lawrence Route. This magnificent vessel, which completed its maiden trip this week reflects the greatest credit on the Canadian Pacific Railway, under whose management it will operate.

The decision of the Canadian Pacific Management in putting into the Canadian Service such a steamer is a clear indication that the company is determined to keep up its reputation as an outstanding ocean going concern, thus adding greater notoriety to two continents to the St. Lawrence route as the most popular service crossing the Atlantic.

If rumors prove true, the construction of this huge vessel is a forerunner of even larger and more speedy vessels for the St. Lawrence route and the progress and popularity of the new Empress will be followed not only on this side of the Atlantic, but in the North Country.

In launching the Empress, the Company has simply followed out its expansion in building up its ocean traffic and the Canadian public will have no need for surprise, if in the near future President E. W. Beatty may announce to the shipping world that further progress in added tonnage will be made.

The performance of the Empress during her maiden trip was highly gratifying, not only to the officials, but to the notable passengers who accepted the opportunity of crossing on the largest passenger vessel ever to sail up the St. Lawrence. Her accommodation is commodious and the furnishings and equipment are said to be the last word in excellent comfort. There is no doubt that the Empress will prove a great success from the very inception of its coming into public service.

The Canadian Pacific may well feel proud in operating this huge fleet on the Atlantic and Pacific as well as on other seas, and there is no question but that this service is unequalled by any other transportation traversing the oceans of the world.

CORRESPONDENCE

Mr. J. S. Giles,
Editor of the Watchman, Lachute.
Dear Sir:—

The question of a new water supply for our Town is a very important subject at this time, and we all have our views regarding this undertaking.

Some people will wonder why the rate payers voted down the proposition of taking water from Lake Sir John. There are many reasons why they voted as they did.

First: Most of them know that the water in Lake Sir John is not as good for drinking purposes all the year round, as the spring water, which we are now using. (For most of the water we now use is spring water. It may be possible that at the time the Lake water was tested it did not show anything very bad in it, but it must be remembered that there are times during the summer months, that there is no flow of water, out of this large pond, and in this condition it must become very warm and full of animal life, and on top of that an odor that is not very refreshing. We have residents in our town who have lived a large part of their time at, or near, Lake Sir John, who state, that the water in this pond is not fit to drink, and that they would not drink it when they lived in that district.

The second reason is that the estimated cost of going to the Lake is $71,000. This figure is only an estimate and before this work would be completed, it would likely cost $20,000 more, if we remember other work that has been done in years past.

The third reason is that if the pipes were laid up to the lake, we would not have any more pressure for our Fire Department, because there would have to be a reducing valve placed in the pipe lines, to hold down this 160 lbs. pressure to about the same pressure that we will have if we take the water at the Pollock Site, namely about 87 lbs. Remember that our homes are piped for a low pressure system and not the high pressure system that they have in large cities for fighting fires only. This statement that has been made so often about having 127 lbs pressure in front of the Auditorium with one line of 2 1/2 in. hose will stand correction. Should pressure to this extent be put on our water works system in town, it would burst nearly every lead pipe connection in town, and we would be in a fine mess, in most of our homes. This high pressure cannot be used on a system, such as we have in Town.

It would be in order to give a few reasons why the Rate Payers voted in favor of having our new water supply taken from the Pollock Site. The first one is, that they would get better water, because most of it would be spring water. Few of our readers are aware of the fact that there is one spring alone at the Pollock Site that is flowing at the rate of 6,500 gallons, every twenty-four hours and this is only one of many others there. If we went to the Lake for the water, we would not get one drop of this pure cold water, as the pipes would go past all those springs. This one reason alone, was enough to make the people vote as they did.

The second reason is that the cost to go to the Pollock Site would be at least one third less than to go to the lake.

The third reason is that the Rate Payers do not believe, that the water taken at the Pollock Site will have to be treated with Chlorine. We have been using this water for over thirty years now and you will not find one case of sickness from our water supply in all these years. If one spring alone is flowing at the rate of 65,000 Gallons every twenty four hours, and there are many more like it, at the Pollock Site, the use of Chlorine in this water will not be needed, not one chance in a hundred. Should we take our drinking water from the Lake, we are afraid that our visitors to Town, will not be able to admire our drinking water as they have in the past. It is the springs at the Pollock Site, that make our drinking water what it is. This must not be forgotten.

The fourth reason is, that the Rate Payers, most of them, believe that if a dam was built at the Pollock Site, about 12 ft. high, we would be able to hold more than enough water to take care of any fires, that we may have in our town, with all the pressure that our water system could stand, with so many lead connections that lead into most homes. Should the new water intake be built at the Pollock Site, the writer would advise, that the spring that is flowing 65,000 gallons should have a cement wall placed around it, with a pipe from same, properly screened, this pipe to be connected directly to the water mains, just below the proposed dam. There are two good reasons for doing this, the first is that we would be sure of getting all this pure spring water into the mains direct, the second reason is that during the night when there is very little water being used in the Town, this all night flow of 32,500 gallons, being delivered from a higher level than the top of the new dam, would pass through the main gates of the dam in an opposite direction, thereby keeping the gates clean. This reversed flow would take place during the night, and at any time when the consumption of water was less than the rated flow of this spring namely 65,000 gallons of 2,708 gallons per hour.

The big trouble with our water works system, seems to be the use of pipes that are too small, (as pressure drops very rapidly when volume is restricted. It appears that the pipes leading from the source of supply are just about one half the size that they should be in order that a sufficient pressure may be kept up when a large volume of water is being used in fighting a fire.

Respectfully yours,
F. S. MCGIBBON.

THE POINT OF VIEW

"Poor Bill!" Thought George—But Perhaps Bill Had the Best of It After All.

By Gerald Bowman

Bill married when he was twenty-five and George, who was about the same age, acted as best man—an office which he fulfilled with the unflinching efficiency that characterized him. He kissed the new Mrs. Bill at the correct moment, told himself that she was certainly a peach, but that Bill was an ass, and consumed precisely the amount of inexpensive champagne that could be relied upon not to result distressingly next morning.

Whereupon the B.H.s went to Torquay, and George departed for America. For George, having saved carefully, had distinct ideas about a Big Future. He could afford to be enterprising; he was single.

The immigrant prospered. He lived interestingly, happily, and at high pressure for the next ten years, and built up a profitable advertising business. He was proud of this, and of his brains and energy—as proud as Bill was of his youngsters, now, with the addition of the latest arrival, four in number.

In writing to announce the happy event, Bill voiced an invitation.

"Why," he wrote, "don't you take a holiday soon; you've been Yankee millionaires, and come over and stay with us? What we call the English summer will have rained itself into office in about four months, and by that time Betty will have drilled the new arrival, and the house, back to some kind of discipline."

"Come over and see what an ass you've been in thinking that scrambling for dollars is more fun than building up happiness on the shoulders of a bunch of kids. I'd like to see your ugly, plutocratic mug again; and show you the new gang, who are deeply interested in their rich, fat-headed Uncle George away in the Wild and Woolly West."

"Bill junior," by the way, is firmly convinced that you wear hairy trousers and an expression of Cold Purpose. He read that expression on a movie sub-title, and as I don't know what it might mean, I'll come to the assistance of a harassed and untraveled father."

George thought: "Dear old, simple-minded Bill! Marvellous how a dominating woman can make a simpleton out of a bright, keen chap in a few years. If he's as satisfied as he sounds, he can't have made any money—bragging about his happiness too much."

With this comforting conclusion George gave his mind once more to the state of his own affairs. Business concerns, but in four months' time he set about handing them over to competent assistants. Bill's suggestion had set a seed in his mind, which had grown and flowered as the days passed. It would be rather nice to see the Old Country again—dear, slow old England, as simple and gentle as Bill himself.

The business was doing solidly well, the private bank-account had grown and multiplied, and a month or two out of harness could not be counted extravagant—especially as it would be the first "let-up" of any extent in ten years.

So, in the end, George sent a cable, booked a first-class cabin, and shook hands with Bill on Waterloo Station a fortnight later, feeling thoroughly and warmly contented with himself. And the contentment increased from the first moment of that reunion.

Bill's suit was quite a good one, but it hadn't the style and cut of George's. And though Bill's grin was the same as ever, his blue eyes were a shade lighter and his voice quite elegantly hearty. Bill, indeed, reminded one of a lovable dog somewhat conscious of an unusual brushing—but there was no getting away from it: Bill was still the same good fellow of ten years ago.

Thus pondered George as they pledged their meeting at the station buffet, arranged matters of luggage, and took the Underground for Harrow Weald.

The small house half a mile up the long, unmade road was only distinguished from the other small houses around it by the tremendously newly washed curtains at the windows. The six-month-old front garden was as bright as a sergeant's major's buttons, and the little hall within the newly painted door had the raggedly surprised air which any well-inhabited place has after an intensive tidying.

When Bill and George arrived it was early evening, but a total stranger would have known that children were quietly asleep upstairs.

Bill's Betty welcomed the distinguished guest—George felt keenly that he was a distinguished guest—in the little front dining-room, and blushed when he kissed her and made the obvious kind of hearty joke that seemed to fit the occasion and surroundings. She was exactly as he had imagined she would be—her prettiness washed and remodelled by the years, as her frock had been by the hands which she held behind her.

They gave him dinner, an extremely well-cooked and daintily served dinner, which Betty managed to bring from the kitchen without any sort of awkwardness. Then Betty cleared away, disdaining offers of help, and returned to slip an unaccustomed glass of port before saying "good-night" and leaving Bill with injunctions regarding the guest's comfort when he chose to retire.

"You two," she told them, "will have lots to talk about, so I'll leave you to it." And with a final smile to George, she departed.

"Has to get up at about six," thought George as the door shut behind her, "with four kids and no proper maid. Yet I'll bet she's happy. Women always are, if only the man is unenterprising and homely. But I wonder if Bill really is?"

He swung his chair closer to the fire and accepted the glass of whiskey Bill held out to him.

"But he'll lie about it, anyhow," he told himself, and settled down to be interested.

He was. Bill, having heard all his friend's adventures, launched upon his own with obvious willingness. He was still in the same shipping firm in which they had both been clerks, but now he was departmental manager.

"Pay good!" asked George, coming to the point that really interested him. Bill smiled a little self-consciously. "Twenty-five hundred a year," he announced, and leant back in his chair, plainly pleased that America was not the only place where money was to be made.

"I've been taking up interest in the business gradually," he went on, "and next year there's going to be a reorganization. Simmonds has told me that I'm going to get the outside people put under my control, and hinted at $3,750. In fact—" He leant forward and knocked his pipe out against the grate. "In fact, George, my lad, I'll be making $5,000 in five years' time, and I've a good idea there's a chance of a further $10,000."

George said all that should be said, but mentally he was doing arithmetic. Outlines for six people and education for four, to be squeezed out of $2,500 a year, now, with a prospect of $5,000 later on. And he himself was clearing the equivalent of $30,000 at the moment—and knew that it wasn't enough for a fellow who really liked to live decently and didn't want to stay at the grindstone all his life.

Why, even now that he was going carefully and consolidating his business, he spent more than $5,000 on his apartment, club fees, and clothes back in New York. And Bill was living like this—chucking his personality, his life away in a cheap, enormous, hounded scramble for what he called family happiness with a lot of howling kids and a woman who had definitely faded.

"What's I," George told himself, "I'm not a kind of fool, but I have built something out of myself. And I'm going to build it bigger."

Bill shook hands with him at his bedroom door, and then crept into his own room and silently undressed and slipped into bed. Betty stirred slightly and blinked up into the dark, but said nothing as Bill settled down with a contented little grunt. She was not asleep, but had been lying thinking while the two men had talked down below.

She was thinking that George had not improved. He was cleverer, you could see that—but he lacked balance, somehow. The balance of well-off, of Bill, who saw life as a garden that grew under one's hands and blossomed to blossom again and give its fresh blossoming in an endless chain to the long years of the future.

She thought of her four children, four new, fresh characters that had grown out of the strange miracle of their love, four creatures who would go into the world with something of the sweetness of Bill's eyes blooming in their own, who would—she prayed—and love and plant fresh seeds in that infinite garden that she and Bill had started.

She sighed a little and turned over. "Poor George," she mused, "he'll find all the success and money he ever wants, but he's blind to the greatest beauty of all the world. He'll never know what real happiness is."

But George, turning in bed less than ten feet away beyond the wall, grinned to himself in the darkness. "Poor Bill!" he muttered. "Poor old Bill! Still, I suppose he's happy."

Dominion Hydrometric Survey

The Dominion Hydrometric Survey, carried on by the Water Power and Hydrometric Bureau, Department of the Interior, embraces stream measurement work throughout Canada. The records are brought together under one central agency, and it is to these detailed and extensive records of the physical characteristics of the numerous lakes and rivers of the Dominion, made available by the Survey, that the rapid strides which have taken place in the hydro-electric field are in a great part due.

A Trade Secret

Mary, said young Mrs. Newlywed to her morning "help," "didn't I hear you quarrelling with the milkman early this morning?"

"Well, it wasn't what you'd call a quarrel," said the servant. "I was just inquiring after the health of the girl at the dairy who's ill."

"Yes; was that all?" asked the mistress. "To inquire after a girl's health?"

"Well, I says to him: 'How's the milkmaid?' and he got in a temper and said: 'You mind your own business. That's a trade secret.'"

Canadian Clay

Canada is fortunate in possessing resources in many types of clay employed in the manufacturing industries. It is used in large amounts in the making of such materials as cement, paper, and textiles, but its greatest use is in the clay-working industries of this country in which over 1,500,000 tons of various types of clay enter into the composition of the products each year.

Iron Combination Overcome Chlorosis

A new angle of approach to the important plant disease, chlorosis, occurring mostly in pear trees, has resulted from the recent completion of a study of the method of the combination of iron with living plant substances made by Professors Carl L. Schmidt and C. V. Smythe, of the University of California.

Long of vital concern to orchardists this disease, has been most prevalent in regions where the ground is of high lime content. Trees in such districts, apparently unable to make use of the large percentages of natural iron in the soil, often turn yellow and die for want of this element.

Sometimes supplementary supplies of iron are furnished through injection of it either in solution or crystal form. The present work of the two scientists started as an attempt to get at the foundation of the problem by determining the methods of combination of the iron with the common substances of plants and living animals.

The university men report that iron really combines with certain proteins, amino acids and related compounds only under favorable conditions. These proteins and acids are found as the constituents of the living matter of plants and animals. It is only by this favorable combination of iron with these fluids that the plants carry iron upward from the roots to the other parts of the plants where they are needed.

The scientists have discovered that the iron combines with the proteins and amino acids only in the presence of certain other groups of acids such as lactic, glutonic, oxalic, malonic, tartaric, citric, aspartic, serine, phosphoric, arsenic, nucleic, glycerophosphoric and certain proteins, such as casein and gelatin.

Will a Grizzly Bear Attack Human Beings Without Reason?

The big white bear reared to his hind feet. The half-breed Aleut Indian, terrified at the savage form seen in the dim light of his little Alaskan cabin, turned and tried to run. Evan J. David tells us in the New York Herald Tribune Magazine. But "the bear was too quick for him. He slapped out with his paw, and the long claws scraped the side of the Aleut's face, tearing the flesh off."

Scrambling to his feet, the badly scared and injured Indian raced down the ravine toward the cabin of Mr. Nichols, superintendent of the cannery where he worked.

"There's a ghost bear in my cabin!" he yelled as he ran.

Polar bears never stray that far south. He knew this, and he was very superstitious, says the writer, continuing:

A few minutes later a second Aleut came up. He had not seen the fracas, nor heard the shouts of his friend; and, not suspecting the fate that awaited him, he stepped into the cabin. He saw the bear too late. Before the frightened Aleut could turn about and try to escape the big bear had crushed in the back of his skull a one quick blow.

The animal, now panic-stricken, dashed out of the cabin just as Mr. Nichols came running up with a repeating rifle. Seeing him, the bear swung around and charged straight at him. Nichols raised his rifle. He was afraid the bullets might glance off the bear's sloping forehead, so he aimed for the left eye. The bullet found its mark, but still the bear came charging on. Again Nichols fired; this time at the right eye. The second bullet struck home. The bear plunged onward a few more feet and then dropped in his tracks.

The bearskin is still in Mr. Nichols' family—without a mark on its fur. He was not a white bear. He was a grizzly that had gone into the cabin to get some food. Ripping open the flour-bags, he had dived the flour over his sides until he looked like a ghost in the dim cabin light.

Stories like that have given the bear a reputation for being a dangerous, ferocious animal that will attack without warning and without provocation, says Mr. David, discussing Bruin with special reference to his warlike tendencies. Continuing:

Few people realize that a bear which attacks a man undoubtedly thinks he is cornered and has to fight his way out. So laws are passed which permit the bear to be shot in any number and at any time of the year—with the result that the grizzly which once ruled the mountain forests of the great Northwest may soon be extinct in Canada.

Although California has the graven image of a grizzly on its State shield, there is not one of those wonderful animals left at large in that whole huge State. And, according to a recent census by forest rangers, there are only about five grizzlies in the State of Washington. In Oregon there was only one grizzly whose nose was counted in the last wild-animal census of the United States Department of Agriculture—and nearly by States could not boast many more.

For years now the American Game Protective Association and American and Canadian sportsmen, naturalists, and scientists have been fighting to have the State and provincial legislatures of the United States and Canada enact laws protecting the North American bears as game animals, that can be killed or trapped only at given seasons of the year, and in limited numbers, like deer, ducks, or beaver.

The success of these concentrated efforts has been varied. No sooner does a legislature pass a protective law than the farmers or the sheep and cattle ranchers raise a howl about bears killing off their stock. Then pressure is brought upon the legislators, and the law is changed so that anybody can kill all the bears he chooses.

Regarding the ferocity of the grizzly bear, there is a great divergence of opinion. Mr. David concedes. Field and Stream, he recalls, puts the question, "Will a grizzly bear attack without provocation?" To leading sportsmen, hunters, rangers and naturalists. The general conclusion may be summed up rather accurately by the remarks of Frank Dufrenoy, who has travelled extensively in Alaska. He said, as quoted by The Herald Tribune:

"If left strictly alone, and avoided by as wide a margin as possible, the grizzly will attack only on rare occasions. If proper respect is not shown, he will attack once in a while. If met unawares on a sharp turn in the trail or at his kill, he will attack a little oftener than once in a while, and if surprised on his own beaten trails through the bush, or wounded, he will attack.

Sometimes you can stare a grizzly out of countenance. I was climbing a steep trail along the rim of a canyon that dropped sheer away for a thousand feet. The path threaded along the top of this big drop, sometimes within a few inches of the edge, and I had to watch my steps pretty close, for in some places the bank had crumpled up a little.

Just ahead the trail swung in where a rock castle hung on the edge of the canyon. As I came to the turn in the trail, an old female grizzly stepped into sight from behind a rock, not over fifteen feet away. She rose slowly to her hind feet, holding me steadily in her eye while I slipped my rifle into position and pressed down the hammer.

Her lips drew back and showed me a pretty set of teeth, but she did not come for me. One yard behind me yawned the canyon's edge. I held off firing because I was afraid I could not finish her off before she reached me.

We stood there like a couple of statues for ten minutes, I guess. Once or twice she turned her head a bit, but her eyes never left mine, and she made me feel that she knew she had the advantage of me. Finally she dropped on her four feet, turning as she did so, and slipped out of sight behind the rocks. The second she disappeared I ran down the steep trail for a hundred yards or so. Then I worked around the slope to where I could get a view of the other side of the rocks.

Nearly a mile away and tearing for all she was worth was the old grizzly, and with her were two spring cubs. She had stood and bluffed me at the rocks just long enough for her cubs to make their getaway down the other side of the mountain.

Silver Fox Breeding

Canada was the first to develop the breeding of silver foxes in captivity and she has so maintained her position in this respect that she is regarded as a world-leader by all other countries, whose representatives periodically visit the Dominion to secure breeding stock and in search of knowledge and advice in the conduct of similar undertakings.

CHAPTER THREE
What Lady Hen Did.

Do you remember I told you Lady Hen stayed sitting on her white egg, which she hid in the barn, all night long to keep it warm? Well even when daylight came around she just felt she couldn't leave it there all alone and didn't know what to do. But just then in flew Miranda Sparrow. When she saw the egg she told Lady Hen she was right to keep it warm all the time and not let it get cold. So Lady Hen was glad she stayed and sat there all of today too. The dark came again and she went to sleep the way she did the night before. But when the next morning came, my! but she was feeling hungry and so very thirsty too. I guess you would feel pretty hungry if you just didn't have your dinner and would only have to wait till supper time, wouldn't you? But Lady Hen did without breakfast and dinner and supper because she thought the egg might get cold. She got just awfully hungry, so this morning when she knew it was time for breakfast and the nice Lady from the big house was calling all the chickens to come as she threw out a lot of good grain, she looked out to see that nobody was around and then she crept carefully out and ran over and she had a great big breakfast. Oh, it was good, and the water was so good too. But as soon as she was finished she hurried back, afraid the egg would get cold. However she found it wasn't cold yet because she was away such a little while, so she decided she would go every morning and get something to eat and then hurry back again.

After that do you know what else she did? You can't guess, why she laid another egg in the nest, then another and another until she had eight 1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8. Then she to herself, "Now I guess that's enough for me to look after."

Miranda Sparrow came flying in one day after Lady Hen had the eight eggs and whispered something in her ear and then flew out again, and after she was gone Lady Hen did what she told her to do. She would fluff up her wings out big and then can you imagine what she did? She rolled on the eggs and they didn't break for her body was so soft, but she did look funny. Then she put her bill down and turned over each egg you see Lady Hen never had any babies before so Miranda Sparrow had to tell her to do that.

Lady Hen had been sitting on those eggs a long, long time. Just think she was there for three long weeks. Little boys and girls had their play day on Saturday and went to Sunday School on Sunday three times, going to school all through the week for three weeks and still she was sitting there. She began to notice no other lady hens seemed to want to have babies so late in the year, for here it was after the summer holidays, but she didn't like to ask them about it because then they would know about her eggs hidden away so well in this nice dark corner.

The very next morning something wonderful happened. Lady Hen heard something. If she had been the least bit deaf she wouldn't have heard it. Pretty soon the sound came again as plain as could be. Peck-peck-peck. Where did it come from? and here was another little noise only it had a wee bit higher sound, peck-peck-peck, and she got quite fussed up about it. At last she peeked underneath her warm body for she wondered if something was wrong with her eggs, and sure enough one of the eggs was broken and she said, "Cluck, Cluck, Cluck, well what's this? I don't understand it, but I better sit real quiet so they don't all break," but soon the eggs started to move and a big piece came off. She thought she better look under again.

When she looked under this time, oh what do you think she saw? A fluffy little head was peeking out of the egg and his bright little eyes were looking at her. Lady Hen was so excited and hurried and covered her feathers around it so it wouldn't get cold, but pretty soon on the other side she felt another egg break and here was another little fluffy head. Oh, how cute they looked. She cuddled them in under her so close and warm, and Lady Hen knew then these were her babies that she had waited for, for such a long time. The dark was softly creeping in around the corners and Lady Hen told her babies about the lovely night for the first time and they shut those sleepy little eyes and soon all were sleeping. Next week—How about the next morning?

After The Pudding

Comes The Cake

The Christmas cake ranks next in importance after the pudding and the mince-pies, and it is wise, when youngsters have to be considered, to provide a cake not too rich, or heavy. The Christmas cake, and not the pudding and mince-pies, as many believe, is the "fast straw" at many Christmas feasts.

Concentrate on a cake that is fruity without being too rich or heavy. An ideal cake can be made from the following recipe:

To a pound of self-raising flour add a good pinch of salt; then rub in half a pound of margarine. Add the mixture is like bread crumbs, add a quarter of a pound each of washed currants, sultanas, and stoned raisins, and two ounces of chopped candied peel. To this add a quarter of a pound of fine white sugar and a tablespoonful of mixed spice, and stir well.

Next take two eggs and beat them well, adding a gill of milk. Stir this in the cake mixture until the whole is thoroughly moulded together. Grease a cake tin and line with clean white paper. Put the mixture in the tin and place in a hot oven for twenty minutes. After twenty minutes the heat must be reduced, and the cake baked in a slow oven. After two hours the cake may be tried with a knife. If the latter comes out clean, the cake is done. If not, put it back in the oven and allow it to cook until the knife does come out clean.

To ice the cake, allow it to get quite cold, then cut off the top until it is perfectly flat. Take half a pound of icing sugar and roll out until smooth. Beat up stiffly the white of one egg with a pinch of salt, then add the icing sugar gradually. Take a bread knife and, after dipping it in hot water, prepare to smooth over the icing, which you can pour over the cake in spoonfuls, dipping the knife from time to time in hot water to ensure smoothness. Then leave it to set.

To colour the icing, cochineal or vegetable coloring can be obtained at any grocer's, and a few drops are added to the icing before putting it on the cake. To make almond icing, work four ounces of ground almonds into the yolk of an egg without beating, with four ounces of icing sugar as well. This makes a stiff mass which can be piled and arranged on top of the cake before the white icing is added.

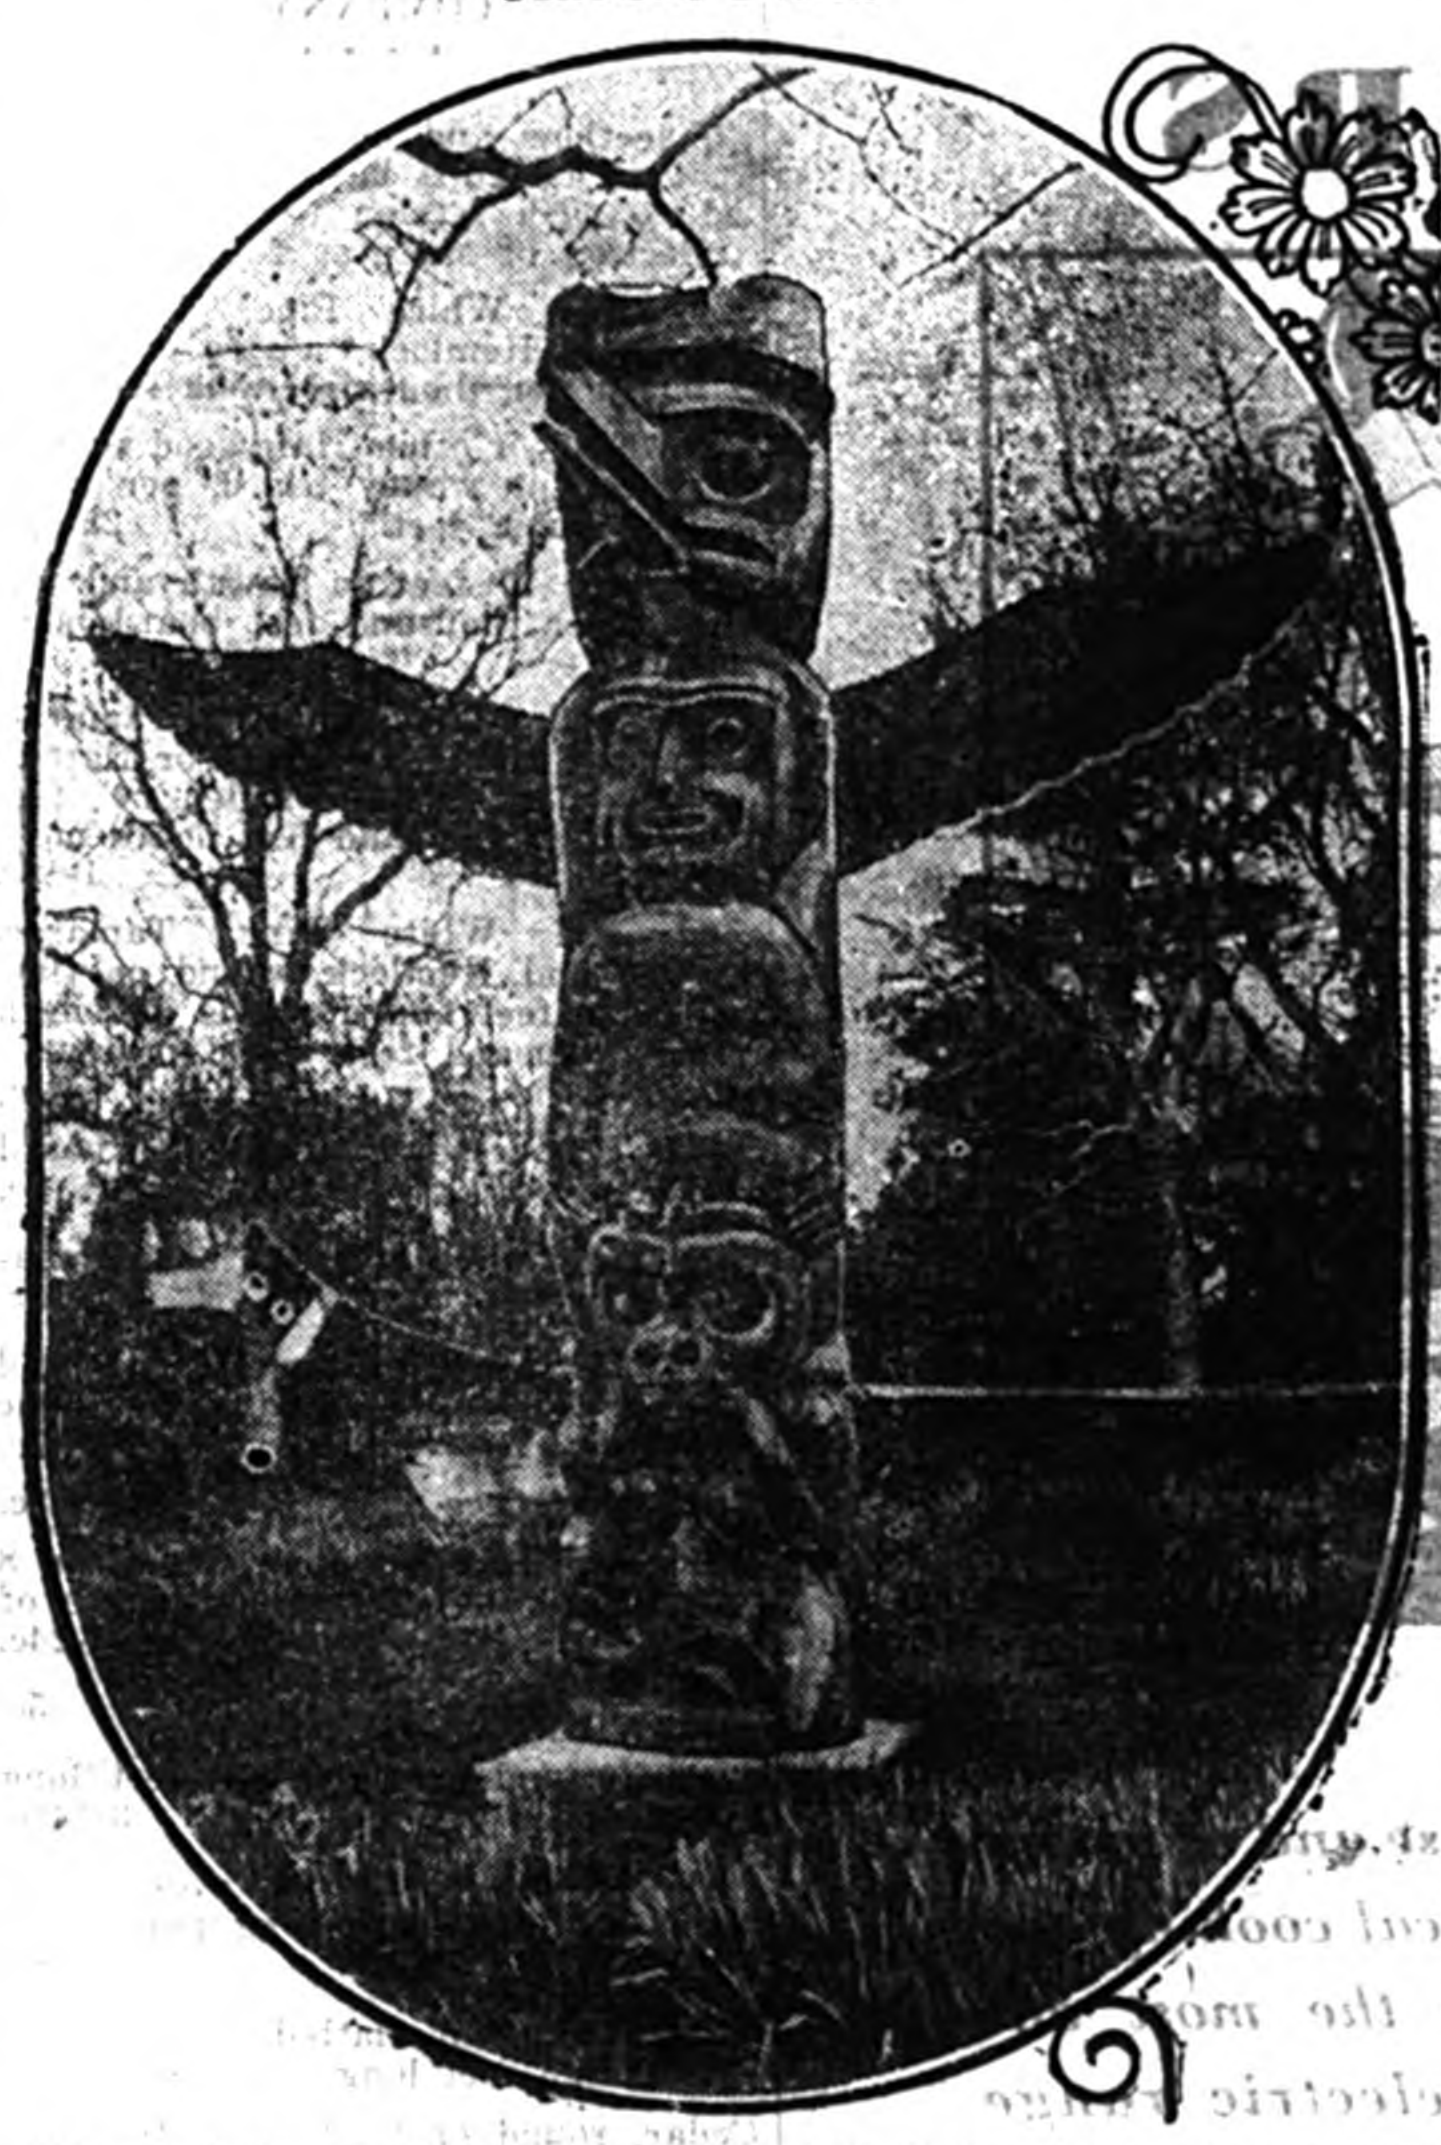

"Your wife seems terribly worried."

"She is. She is worried about how to buy 24 Christmas gifts with three dollars and a half."

"Economic ideals must include the ideal of beauty as well as the ideal of plenty."

—Sir Basil Blackett.

Ancient Totem

Strange things—strange ways—have left their pristine traces among Canada's aborigines. Here we see a mighty strange totem with wings. Unusual. And in background may be made out prow of ancient dug-out.

Life of Cut Flowers Prolonged By Carbon Dioxide Atmosphere

The life of cut flowers, fruits and vegetables may be prolonged by storage in a carbon dioxide treated atmosphere, show experiments reported to the American Chemical Society by Norwood C. Thornton, of the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research, Yonkers, N.Y.

Roses, one of the most perishable of flowers, responded well to the treatment. Rosebuds stored in carbon dioxide treated air for seven days were still fresh and opened slowly with good color and shape when removed to warm air, while those kept for the same period in ordinary cold storage were badly shattered. Since florists have considered for roses, the maximum period for roses, the treatment gave a possible gain of four days.

This is a new application of the principle on which all refrigeration by solid carbon dioxide, known as dry ice, is based. All living organisms respire, giving off carbon dioxide. This process, which leads to total decay in the case of cut flowers, fruits and vegetables, can be delayed by the presence of carbon dioxide in the air. "To handle dry ice efficiently," Mr. Thornton explained, "it became important to determine the tolerance of various plant organs to artificially produced dioxide atmospheres. The results show that some plant organs are improved for consumption by proper percentages of carbon dioxide, others have considerable tolerance of the gas, and only a few require that minimal amounts of it be present."

"During the treatment the pear became very soft and juicy, while the peach and the banana remained hard. The banana withstood 85 per cent carbon dioxide without apparent injury to the final ripening color or flavor. This concentration retarded the coloring of the banana so that it was approximately two days longer in ripening than the controls. Citrus fruit withstood a relatively high concentration of carbon dioxide without noticeable injury during or after the storage period."

Earth's Four-Hour Day

Most people impatiently await the coming of the shortest day—because from thence onward the evenings begin to lengthen.

The date of the shortest day depends upon the exact time the sun attains its most southerly declination. If it does this before midnight on December 21, then that day is the shortest. If after midnight, then the 22nd enjoys the distinction; while if the time of most southerly declination occurs exactly at midnight, as occasionally it does, then there are two shortest days in that particular year.

Still more infrequently it sometimes happens that this time is delayed until after midnight on the 22nd, in which case, of course, the 23rd becomes the shortest day.

Judging by our modern standard, at one period of the earth's history all our days were "shortest days," for astronomers have shown that in very remote times the day lasted only about four hours.

This means that for millions of years the day has been slowly but surely lengthening. Its duration, indeed, has altered in this direction even during the time of civilized man. We know this from study of ancient eclipses, as found in Chinese records.

—CL.M.S.

The other day a man, hitherto without a spot on his character, inquired with well-feigned innocence:

"How can five persons divide five eggs so that each man will receive one and still one remain in the dish?"

After the company went all but distracted in the mazes of this proposition the fellow meekly said:

"One takes the dish with the eggs."

The cause of peace is not the cause of cowardice. If peace is sought, to be defended or preserved for the safety of the luxurious and the timid, it is a sham; and the peace will be base; war is better; if peace is to be maintained, it must be earned.

He Got a Plenty.—"Now," said the college man to his dad at the football game, "You'll see more excitement for two dollars than you ever saw before."

"I don't know," replied the old gent; "that's what my marriage license cost me."

Farm Problems

Conducted by Prof. Henry C. Bell, Dept. of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph

The object of this department is to place at the service of our farm readers the advice of acknowledged authorities on all subjects pertaining to the farm.

Address all questions to Professor Henry C. Bell, in care of The Wilson Publishing Company, Limited, Toronto, and answers will appear in this column in the order in which they are received. When writing kindly mention this paper. As space is limited it is advisable where immediate reply is necessary that an addressed envelope be enclosed with the question, when the answer will be mailed direct before being published.

Here are some of this week's questions and answers:

Reader.—I have a piece of clay ground which I have had in potatoes for two years and I intend sowing wheat on this next year. I ask your advice in regard to the best results. Would it be wise to put any more manure on? 2. What do you think about sowing oats on sod which is to be plowed next spring?

Answer.—1. If you manured the potato ground heavily, I would not advise adding more stable manure when preparing it for wheat. I would advise, however, adding about 300 lbs. per acre of fertilizer carrying 12 to 14 per cent available phosphoric acid and 5 to 6 per cent potash. The reason is that stock manure is relatively weak in plant ripener—phosphoric acid—and the addition of the fertilizer in question will tend to balance manure and assist the wheat crop to make good root-growth and to ripen evenly. The potash will help the plumping of the grain. The fertilizer is best applied through a grain drill with fertilizer distributing compartment. 2. Oats may be sown on sod land which has been plowed this spring. However, the plowing should not be too deep, else the water supply for the oat crop might be seriously impaired. I prefer using plowed sod for potatoes or some other cultivated crop since cultivation gives a chance to rid the soil of weeds before the grain and grass crops are sown.

G.O.—I have fourteen acres of rolling clay soil to plant to beans next spring. Would like to get advice as to fertilizer. Would you advise using fertilizer on this land, and if so, how much per acre, and what kind?

Answer.—Many bean growers have obtained satisfactory returns from fertilizing their crop. In tests carried on with beans in Huron County, by this institution in 1929, the average increase for fertilizing beans was 2.93 bushels per acre. The increases in the seven experiments conducted at that time, ranged from 0 to 5.15 bushels per acre. Good results were obtained from the use of 2-12-6 or 3-10-5 fertilizers. These are usually applied at the rate of 300 pounds per acre. Best results are obtained by applying this fertilizer through the fertilizer section of the grain drill. Many bean growers recommend spreading the fertilizer 7 to 14 days before planting the beans. If you do not have a grain drill with fertilizer dropping section, any broadcasting machinery such as a lime spreader will distribute the fertilizer on top of the plowed ground. Careful harrowing and disking will work it in. When fertilizers are applied through the grain fertilizer drill it should be allowed to drop through the hole on each side of the one dropping beans, but not in the hole that is dropping the seed. If fertilizers are carefully applied as described, they supply available plant-food to the young growing crop and give it material assistance. Do not drop the beans on the fertilizers.

P.F.—We are contemplating growing a small acreage of sugar beets the coming season and as it will be our first experience along this line, we would like to have your advice as to what analysis of fertilizer to use. One field is heavy ground with clay subsoil. The other is black ground with gravelly bottom.

Answer.—For fertilizer for sugar beets use from 400 to 500 pounds per acre of fertilizer analysing 2 to 4 per cent nitrogen, 8 to 12 per cent available phosphoric acid, and 10 to 15 per cent potash. The higher potash fertilizer should be used on the black ground since much soda is always short of this type of plant-food. For best results apply 200 pounds of fertilizer through the fertilizer attachment of your sugar beet drill when planting the seed. Two hundred to six hundred pounds of the fertilizer should be spread on the ground by the fertilizer dropper grain drill preceding sowing of sugar beet seed.

T.W.—A five acre field has a clay subsoil with five inches of block earth on surface. Is it suitable for turnips and potatoes? 2. How deep should potatoes be planted and how many bushels to the acre?

Answer.—1. The clay soil with the block earth on top if carefully worked should be suitable for turnips and should produce fairly good potatoes. Potatoes as a rule do best on gravelly or sandy loam soil. 2. As a rule potatoes should not be planted more than 4 to 6 inches deep. Ten to twelve bushels to the acre is considered a sufficiently thick seeding.

M.F.—1. Would it be wise to top-dress fields of wheat with manure for winter? We were not able to get the manure out earlier.

Answer.—You will be well advised to top-dress winter wheat with manure, especially if the wheat has not made a very heavy top growth. Do not put too heavy a covering of manure. About 2 to 4 tons to the acre has been found to be most effective. This will tend to lodge the snow over the wheat and will, therefore, protect the wheat and gain more moisture for it. In the spring as soon as the field is sufficiently dry to go upon it may be advisable to top-dress the wheat field with 250 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analysing about 2-12-6. This will give the early growing wheat a good start and would help in the general vigor and yield of the crop. Fertilizers can be applied as a top-dresser by broadcasting them with a lime and fertilizer spreader or by crossing the grain with a regular grain drill, applying the fertilizer through the regular fertilizer section. Care should be taken to have the discs or hoes suspended so that they will not injure the growing crop.

World's Most Wonderful Bank

The recently completed head office building of Lloyd's Bank in London is probably the most wonderful in the world. It has taken more than four years to erect, and during that time 600 men have been engaged incessantly upon the work.

Labour-saving devices have been brought to a fine art. There enters, let us say, a customer who wishes to inquire the size of his balance, or more likely in these days, his overdraft. The clerk of whom he makes his inquiry writes down the message upon a little tablet. This is reproduced automatically and instantaneously in a department several floors away where the bank ledger is kept. The ledger clerk looks up the amount and records the figures on the teller's record. Next moment these are passed over the counter to the customer.

In the basements of the bank far below ground level are bombproof strong rooms with huge steel doors weighing many tons. Yet so beautifully balanced are they that a child can open them—once the "key" has been turned in their burglar-proof locks. All corridors are patrolled incessantly, and a wonderful system of mirrors enables the guardians to see round distant corners.

The park-keeper found a tramp asleep on one of the seats.

"Hi, you!" he exclaimed, shaking the man's shoulder. "I'm going to close the gates."

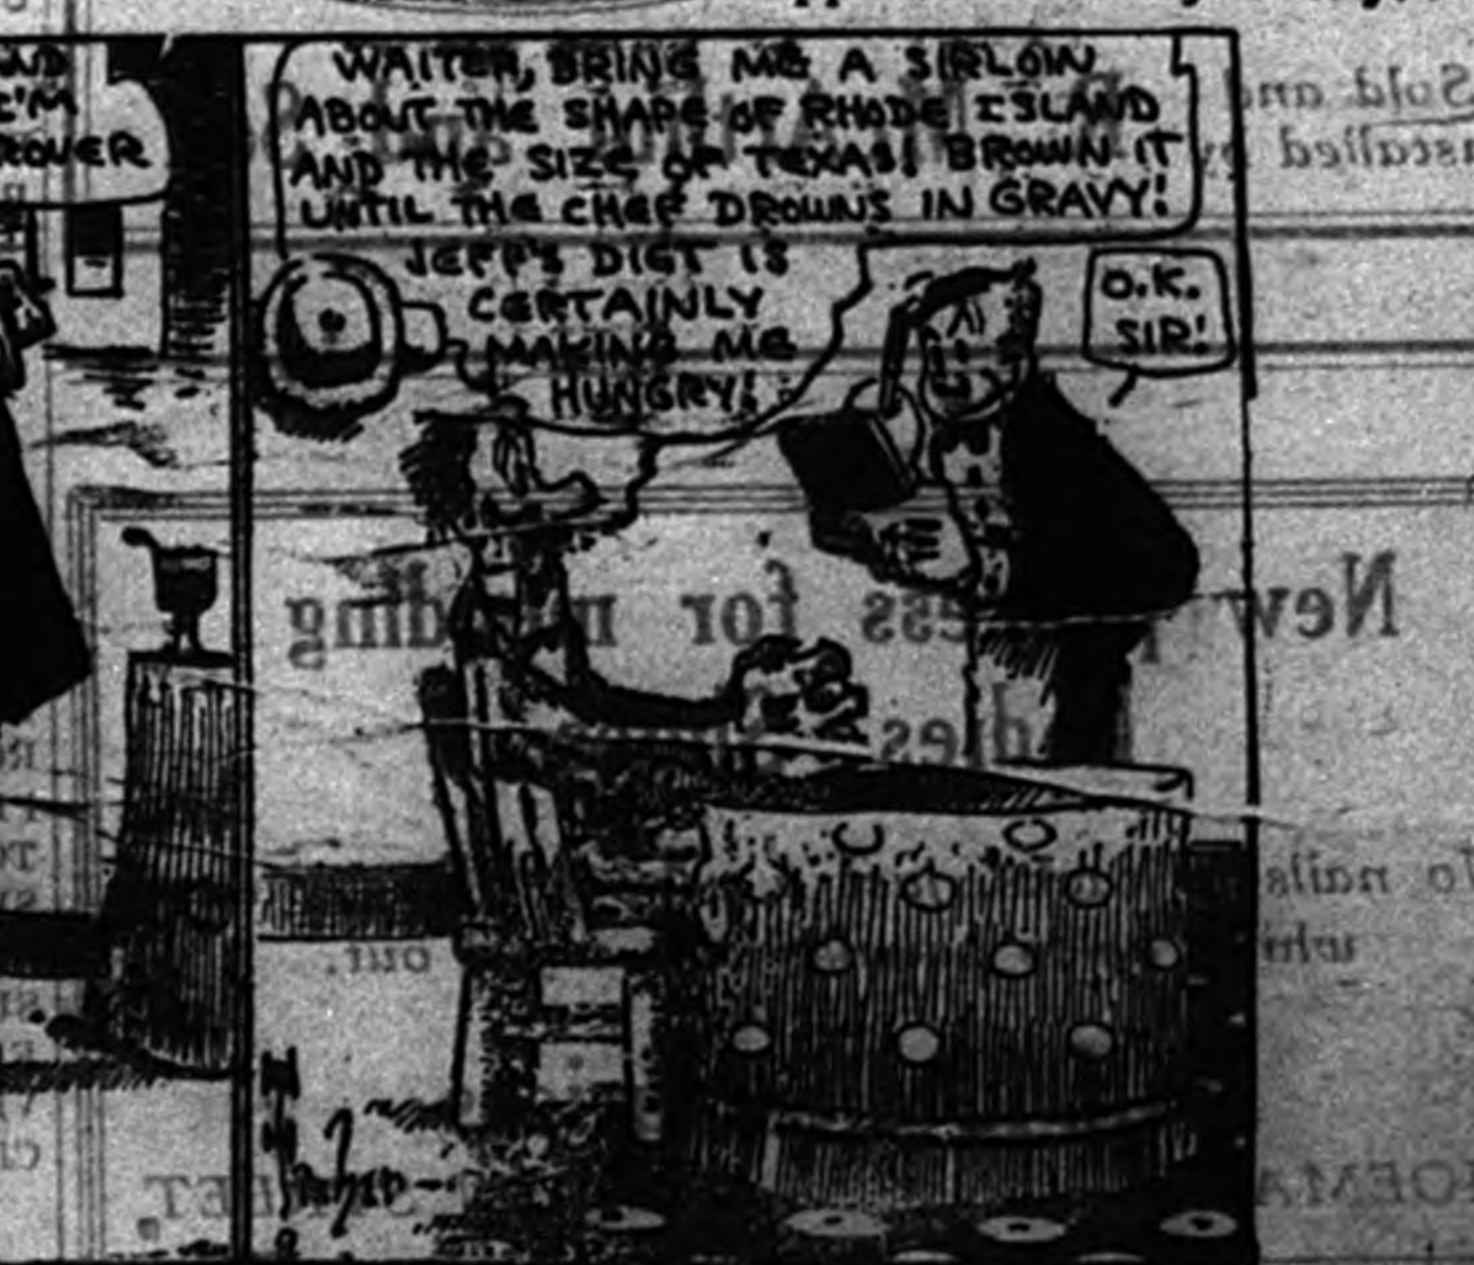

"All right," murmured the tramp, sleepily. "Don't slam them."

But be it from me to assert that what everybody says must be true. Everybody is often, as likely to be wrong as right.

STONEFIELD
The concert in aid of the Red Cross held in Stonefield School, on Friday, May 23rd, in charge of Miss Gates, teacher, was a big success in every way a programme of twelve items was given, Miss Todd and Mrs. R. Owens furnished the music for the singers; and Mr. J. Patton was chairman. The opening piece "O Canada" was joined in by all present. A Vocal Solo by Mrs. W. Dewar was first and was heartily enjoyed as was her other songs. A male quartette, Messrs. Duncan, Gorman and Todd Brothers, were down for two or three songs, which were all enjoyed and well rendered. One or two recitations by the school children and our old friend Mr. Fraser, also of St. Andrews in the kilts as the real Scot, he brought his listeners to a high pitch of excitement with his scotch songs and sallies and was loudly enjoyed, especially when Jock was trying to tell George how to get in safe in the morning, after a night at the Club. The Singing of God Save the King brought a pleasant evening to a close, and our St. Andrews friends can be sure of a good welcome and a full house. The proceeds amounted to about $12. Mrs. J. Canning entertained the St. Andrews People, after the concert to supper and went home tired but happy.

DEATH

STEWART.—Died at Brownsburg, Que., on Friday, June 5th, 1931. William Frederick Stewart, beloved husband of Ruby Barley, in his fifty-first year.

—:—
MacMartin.—At Washington D.C., on 10th May 1931, Alexander P. MacMartin, son of the late Martin MacMartin, of St. Andrews East, P.Q.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deep appreciation for many acts of kindness and words of sympathy extended to us during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father also to those who sent flowers.
Mrs. Ruby Stewart and son Alwyn.

THE LATE WM. F. STEWART

The death occurred in Brownsburg, on Friday morning, June 5th, of William F. Stewart, who passed away early on that date after a long and tedious illness borne with the greatest fortitude and patience. He was born in Mount Maple, July 24th, 1880, the son of the late Joseph Stewart and his wife Margaret MacKiddie, and was brought up on the farm now operated by his brother Walter, attending the local country school about a mile and a half from the homestead. He was the second in a family of ten children. The last twenty-four years of his life were spent in the village of Brownsburg, where he operated a blacksmith shop and shortly purchasing the house on Maple Avenue where he subsequently resided till his death. On the 6th. of January, 1908, he was married to Miss Ruby Barley, of Lachute Mills, by the Rev. Mr. Emerson, Baptist Minister. To this union were born three children, Alwyn, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Brownsburg; the other two dying in infancy. Mr. Stewart was very popular with all classes, a great lover of children, his shop being often the rendezvous of the boys who have since grown to manhood, was of a greatly social nature, winning close friendships which he greatly prized and retained until the very last. During the years before Church Union he was an ardent Methodist, being regular in his Church attendance and loyal to every good cause and purpose in the community, coming into Union with a firm belief in its splendid possibilities, and attending its services till failing health made further attendance impossible. About three years ago his constitution broke down under the arduous duties of blacksmithing and he sold his business, intending to live a retired life until he could regain his health, but the collapse of nature tended to pernicious anaemia, and for the last two years he put up a brave and determined fight to regain his health, gradually, however, and at times almost imperceptibly becoming weaker till the end came. The last six months were particularly painful, his sufferings being borne with complete patience and resignation, without murmur or fear of the issue, and passing quietly and in the end painlessly, at about 4 o'clock on the morning of Friday, June 5th. His home life had been a particularly happy one, his wife being a constant attendant at his bedside ever since he was stricken.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his sorrowing widow and son Alwyn, at home, three brothers John, James and Walter, all of Brownsburg; and five sisters, Mrs. M. Jones, of Lachute; Mrs. E. Thornhill, of Montreal; Mrs. C. J. Randall, of Natick, Mass.; Mrs. Greeley, Brownsburg; and Miss Helen, of Montreal. These, with the aged and bereaved mother, still residing, with her son Walter, on the old homestead, have the heartfelt sympathy of every one.

The funeral service, held Sunday afternoon in the United Church, was one of the largest ever held in our village and testified to the esteem and popularity in which the deceased was held by a very wide circle. Burial was in Ogdensburg.

Among those who successfully passed their musical examinations at McGill University, we are pleased to note the names of the Misses Betty Clunie, Anna Rosborough, Edith McQuat, Edith Gall and Ruth Brennan. They are pupils of our young friend Miss Pauline Paquette.

This will remind our readers that the Watchman Office is open to do all kinds of printing at shortest possible notice. Just now weddings are on the tapis, and we have a nice line of wedding stationery for your invitations and announcements.

Mr. Clifford Cunningham was at his home in Renfrew for the week-end.

Mr. Clifford McFaul spent the week-end visiting friends in Ottawa.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian Church held a very successful Tea and Sale of Fancy Work and Home-made Cooking on Saturday last. Proceeds amounting to upwards of $250.

The two men arrested last week by Town Constable L. Gagnier and Detective Gauthier of Montreal, were brought up for trial at St. Jerome, on Friday last and received four years sentence. While this gives a certain amount of satisfaction, there is a general feeling abroad that these men are only the go-between for an organized gang who have been operating throughout this territory and the authorities are quietly working in their round-up which may be effected at any time.

PLANNING AHEAD

Are you planning the summer vacation? Everybody needs a change of scenery to freshen his mind and soul and energies and to give him a store of new ideas and enthusiasms. One may take a sort of vacation at home, but the sight of the daily grind is always at hand, and it is better to be clear away from it. "Out of sight, out of mind" is as true of work as of persons.

An economical way to take a vacation is to make it a camping trip. Sleep under the stars, or in a tent, along the roadside, by some lovely lake, in the mountains, or in some state or national park. You may as well see the beauties of nature or historical spots which your country affords, while you are loafing and vacationing.

Make your plans early and you will not only find that easier and more successful, but you will have longer time to enjoy anticipation—which is sometimes more than realization.

CARE OF FURNITURE

Water stains on waxed furniture may be removed by rubbing in circles with a flannel cloth moistened in turpentine.

White stains caused on varnished furniture by water or hot dishes are very difficult to remove. A method sometimes successful is to wash the spot with a cloth wet in water to which ammonia has been added.

To remove scratches from furniture or woodwork, rub them with a cloth moistened with furniture polish. Boiled linseed oil, rubbed into the wood, will darken it.

The dull, smoky appearance on furniture, sometimes called "bloom," may be removed by rubbing with a cloth dampened in water to which ammonia has been added.

Cracks or checks in furniture are due to a lack of oil in the varnish used on it. Rub the surface with an oily furniture polish.

A bruise or dent in furniture may be removed by applying water and heat. Wet a cloth, place this over the spot, and hold a hot flatiron over it. The heat and moisture cause the wood to expand. If the dent is deep, repeat the process. Be careful not to scorch the wood. Restore the finish by the use of furniture polish.

To remove finger prints or foggy places, wash the piece and rub with furniture polish. Do not use too much wax or oil and rub them well into the fibre of the wood.

VITAMINS

The various types of vitamins, their uses and the foods in which they are found are as follows:

Vitamin A, needed for growth; found in fats, codliver oil, butter, cream, nuts, vegetable oils.

Vitamin B, to protect against neuritis, neuritis, and beriberi; found in vegetables, bran and yeast.

Vitamin C, prevents scurvy; found in oranges, lemons, tomatoes, raw fruits and fresh vegetables.

Vitamin D, protects against rickets; found in foods exposed to sunshine and in cod liver oil.

Vitamin E, promotes child bearing and makes offspring vigorous; found in all vegetables.

HAND CROCHET

Hand crochet work on frocks and as lace edgings on collar and cuff sets is the last word in fashion. Not for twenty years have crochet hooks been so busy. It is quite the fashion to do your own crocheting, and women everywhere are making yokes, inserts, insertions, collar and cuff sets, and crochet lace edgings for their own frocks and lingerie touches.

The crocheting is so easy to do it is mere child's play. Yokes are done in flat stitch with a number twenty mercerized crochet or tatting thread, while the lace edgings for collar and cuff sets require a number fifty to seventy thread for the less sheer, and a finer thread for the very sheer fabrics.

Lace edgings on collar and cuff sets are easier to crochet than the edgings used on wash cloths, because they are narrower and take less time. So, if you want to be up to the minute, get out the little old crochet hook, and get to it.

For flat yokes and collar and cuff sets you can match the color of your tub frock in boldest colors, or you can have a contrast in white or ecru. There is nothing cooler for summer than these flat yokes, and nothing cooler and daintier looking than the crochet lace edged collar and cuff sets for suits and frocks.

HOUSECLEANING HINTS

In washing woodwork, be stingy with water and you will not have so much to wipe up. A little is just as effective as much. To dry the surfaces with a straight up and down movement avoids streaks and smears. When scouring with steel wool, wrap it in a cloth to protect the hands. Dry meals or those cooked in the waterless cooker are a help in cleaning time, as they can cook without attention. This is the season when canned foods are inexpensive and they may be pressed into service to save cooking.

Floor wax, rubbed into the linoleum, will make it easy to clean and prolong its life. To keep it clean one needs only to dust mop it.

ANNUAL FLOWERS

Besides the perennials, most housewives like a few annuals to freshen the premises or furnish bouquets for vases indoors. Some of the best of these are: Phlox, marigolds, asters, zinnias, sweet alyssum, nasturtium, pansies, verbenas, petunias, and salvia.

ADD SUGAR

A bit of sugar, added to vegetables and gravies, brings out their own flavor without sweetening them. Try it, adding it as you would salt. It improves corn, tomatoes, squash, turnip, cabbage, carrots, beets and most other vegetables.

DATE PUDDING

Combine two beaten eggs, three fourths cup of sugar, three tablespoons water, two-thirds cup pastry flour, one teaspoon baking powder, pinch of salt, one cup of rolled oats, and one cup of stoned and chopped dates. Bake forty minutes in a slow oven. Serve cold with whipped cream.

TO MEND SCREENS

Wire screens may be mended by fringing the sides of a piece of screen wire a little larger than the hole to be mended. Put these fringed edges through the meshes of the wire of the screen, about the hole, and they will hold the patch in place.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING

To one pint of sour cream, add a half cup of lemon juice, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar and a half teaspoon of prepared mustard. Beat until thick, then add a half cup of tomato catsup and stir until well blended.

LAUNDRY HINT

If the white clothes become yellow with winter washings, add two tablespoons of kerosene to the boiler of water when boiling them.

What To Do When Baby Breaks Tooth

What to do when a baby falls down and breaks off a front tooth is explained by the editors of the Journal of the American Medical Association, official publication of that organization, in replying to an anxious father whose 19-month old daughter came into violent contact with the concrete sidewalk and lost a half tooth in consequence. It is not safe, the Association's experts declare, to let such a broken tooth alone in a young child's mouth, even though the permanent teeth presumably will come along later and fill the gap. Such a hole in the row of first teeth is likely, they say, to affect the growth of the later permanent ones so that the girl's final set of teeth will be imperfect.

The thing advised for the baby is a gold bridge, like those which dentists use to replace teeth lost by adults. The two of the baby's teeth on either side of the broken one may be covered with caps or crowns of soft gold, avoiding the grinding down and other painful preparation usually necessary when the tooth of an adult is to be crowned.

Fastened to these two gold "piers" like the piers of a bridge across a river a gold bar is recommended, lifted above the baby's gum but strong enough to hold the two teeth on either side in place until the permanent tooth grows in later and fills the gap.

Not many fathers or mothers will enjoy equipping their babies with gold-tooth grins like this, the experts admit, but even that striking display is better, they insist, than to leave a gap in place of the broken tooth and perhaps to spoil the set of permanent teeth for life.

The Cattle Trade

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix: The demand for live cattle in Britain has been adversely affected by the extremely low prices of imported chilled beef mostly from the Argentine. However, dealers in the Old Country have spoken in high terms of the health and general condition of Canadian cattle on their arrival in England and it is believed the market for live beef may improve as that quality gets to be better known.

Imperial Order Daughters of Empire

Motto: "One Flag, One Throne, One Empire"

Organized for patriotic and educational purposes, this Order was founded by the late Mrs. Clark Murray of Montreal in 1900. It functions through its primary, municipal and provincial chapters with the National Chapter the governing body and each is a link in the chain of service which girdles the whole Dominion.

The badge of the Order is symbolic of the Imperial idea upon which the Order is based. In the centre is a white star with seven points representing the seven great divisions of the Empire and typifying purity and high aims. Within the star is a Union Jack and around the whole is a band, symbol of the Empire bond. Surmounting all is a crown denoting majesty and typifying loyalty to the King.

The Order has a clean-cut, well-defined policy in its aims and objects, and its achievements since its inception have attained proportions unique in the annals of women's societies. Its activities along educational lines and child welfare are worthy of note. Secondary education of soldiers' children is a favorite interest of many primary chapters and other chapters "adopt" schools.

Sanatoria for little children exposed to tuberculosis have been established throughout the Dominion, and records show how happy are the results of the care and attention bestowed upon the little ones. To enumerate the helpful contributions made by the Order to every sort of worthy cause would be a herculean task, but mention must be made of its War Memorial for which a fund of $500,000 was raised and that after $5,500,000 had been collected during the war for war purposes.

One of the features of the War Memorial is the award of bursaries in Canadian universities for which only children of deceased or disabled soldiers, sailors, or men of the Air Force are eligible to compete. Another feature, and perhaps the most outstanding, is the provision made for post graduate scholarship awards entitling students to tuition in British universities, thereby establishing an enduring link between Canada and the Motherland.

The Daughters of the Empire, throughout thirty years of intensive continuous effort on behalf of their own beloved country, have sought no praise for what they have done; they have found, and are still finding, their satisfaction and joy in the knowledge that the Order is growing steadily and is going forward to bigger undertakings, and greater usefulness.

While there is Provincial Organization throughout the Dominion, there is room for more chapters, and as every woman of British birth is in reality a daughter of the glorious British Empire, by joining a chapter and identifying herself with the work, she publicly proclaims her goodly heritage.

In every village and town in the Dominion there should be at least one Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

"As the Tree Is Bent the Twig's Inclined"

By JOHN BURKE INGRAM

I once knew a little boy who was unreasonably afraid of policemen. Unreasonably because he was a good little boy and his family were decent people. One day that little boy's grandmother told him a story about another little chap who got lost and of how a policeman on the beat found him and took him home to his mother. This simple story completely destroyed the child's fear of policemen. It made him ready to understand that the policeman was on "his side" and his duty was to protect him and his mother and father against people who were not willing to behave themselves.

I introduce this question because it illustrates the necessity of teaching a child carefully, if he is to be a healthy citizen and a good citizen. There are so many things the parent should do, simple in themselves, if he or she will only take the trouble to do them, it may assist the growing child to be both.

Lying is a big problem, and a conscientious mother has had her heart almost broken because little Bobby sees all sorts of horrible accidents and sees tigers walking down the street and perhaps, if he is a belligerent little boy, is continually thrashing six big men on the way home from school. Lies like that, however, are in the main quite harmless, and if it were not for this capacity for harmless lying there should be no books written nor pictures painted nor music written. Of a different story, however, is the lie which is told to avoid punishment, or to secure some favor, a personal lie in other words, and these must be stopped. It is easy to draw a distinction between a "fairy tale lie" and a "wicked lie", and in combatting the lie a positive worship of truth may be included as a preventive. Stories of men who refused to lie even if it meant pain or death will be listened to eagerly, for children are natural hero-worshippers, and it is a good thing if a parent has imagination enough and interest enough to place worthy objects of hero-worship in the mind of the youngster. We are getting away from our old ideas that children should be seen and not heard and that a child should never have his own way. We feel that a child should have its own way just as a growing plant has its own way to push its head towards the sun. But once again, to remain for a moment in the vegetable kingdom, as the tree is bent the twig's inclined and a really tactful and understanding parent will get a child's efforts into the right channel so tactfully that the youngster will scarcely realize that it is not his own idea that he is carrying out.

Radium Research Is Notable Service

Ontario's Lead Lauded By Montreal Daily

"Ontario is doing great service to suffering humanity," declares the Montreal Daily Star in an editorial, in undertaking to learn as much as it is possible to learn about the use of radium in cancer. The appointment of a small but strong committee which will make a painstaking and detailed study of the subject has just been announced. This committee is not to be confined to an investigation of the subject on this Continent alone, but will visit Europe and see for itself what is being accomplished in the hospitals and institutions in and near the centre where radium was first discovered.

The committee has manifestly been very carefully chosen. Under the chairmanship of the eminent Canon Cody there have been appointed on it several outstanding men. The Premier of Ontario has, perhaps wisely, refrained from giving the committee an exclusively scientific personnel, since there will advisedly be a practical application to its findings.

It is a splendid thing that Premier Henry has undertaken to do and Ontario is setting a stirring example to the other provinces. It is not so many years since the name of an Ontario research expert flashed around the world in connection with one of the greatest medical discoveries ever made and the magnificent work now being done by the Banting Institute in the fight against diabetes is an earnest of what might conceivably develop in another field from assisted research of which the formation of this committee may very well be only the first step. Governments reach their highest and finest functions in giving a lead in the fight against disease in every form.

Japanese Women List

"Don'ts For Husbands"

Tokyo—Japanese women have grown weary of the centuries-old custom of "yeasing" their men folks all day long. In the new order of affairs the formerly demure, kimono-clad wife has become so bold that she even dares to give her husband advice now and then. The Fajokai, or Woman's World, in its stand for more rights for the housewife, has compiled a code of laws for husbands, covering jealousy, finance administration, health, clothing, food, children and other subjects.

Some of the "don'ts" for husbands, as arranged by the women staff members of the Fajokai, follow:

"Don't be a killjoy all your life. Crack a joke once in a while, even if it isn't very funny. Why confine your isecracks for your friends?"

"Don't crack your chopsticks against the bowl while eating. You're apt to get on your wife's nerves."

"Don't ignore her wishes. If she suggests that you go together to a department store, go, even though you think of nothing quite so boring. On the way back, stop for something to eat or drink. She'll like that."

"No matter how much you love your wife, give her a vacation from you now and then."

"If she happens to look pretty, don't forget to tell her so. If she isn't particularly pretty, tell her so, anyhow."

"Don't forget her birthday. Stage a little celebration of it each year."

"Don't reprimand her bitterly when she has simply forgotten to sew a missing button on your clothes. She'll snap back at you, and then something is bound to happen."

What New York Is Wearing

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern.

So many lovely French sports dresses are fashioned of washable crepe silk and how smart they are!

A model like this one is particularly desirable. In favorite white crepe with skipper blue binding and leather belt, it may be worn for general day occasions or active sports.

And how utterly simple it is to make it—to say nothing of the saving in cost.

There are so many fascinating combinations suitable for this model, and numberless fabrics.

Pastel washable crepe silk, shantung, linen, eyelet batiste, printed batiste, pastel wool jersey and men's shirting fabrics, etc., are delightfully smart.

Size 36 requires 4 1/4 yards 35-inch or 3 3/4 yards 39-inch.

Crabs Cut Fishlines

Hamburg.—Fishermen and bathers in the Elbe are being annoyed by the East Indian crab, which has what amounts to a pair of bony shears. Not only does this crab, which is approximately the size of a man's fist, cut fishing lines and nets, but it also is reported to cut through the leg muscles of careless bathers.

The crabs were brought to Hamburg by ships returning from the Far East and seem to thrive in the Elbe, increasing rapidly in numbers. They are seen by the hundreds clinging to the underplatings of wharves. Anxiety has been aroused by the possibility that the crabs may invade the North Sea and Baltic resorts.

DRAPERIES MADE NEW

"When we resumed housekeeping a month ago I found my draperies had become creased from packing. I hung them out on the line, hoping to remove the creases. Then I forgot them. The result was they became badly faded and sun-spotted."

"I was heartsick until the happy thought struck me to dye them. I just dyed them a deeper green, and as I used Diamond Dyes they look gorgeous and new. I have never seen easier dyes to use than Diamond Dyes. They give the most beautiful colors—when used either for tinting or dyeing—and never take the life out of cloth as other dyes do."

Geodetic Reconnaissance

During the field season of 1930, the Geodetic Survey of Canada, Department of the Interior, completed the reconnaissance for an extensive triangulation scheme covering Georgian bay and the North channel of Lake Huron together with adjoining lands including Manitoulin Island. The total area, extending from the southern tip of Georgian Bay to Sault Ste. Marie, a distance of 230 miles, which will be controlled by such a scheme, will have forty control points distributed over an area of approximately 12,000 square miles.

For Distinguished Service

"Heroes are born, not made," we are told. Perhaps this saying is true: at any rate the men pictured above performed heroic service to the public because they had, in their spare time, prepared themselves to render first aid to the injured and were ready when the emergency arose. Each man is a member of the staff of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. The Bell Telephone Company provides instruction in first aid for all employees who desire it. Over eighty per cent. of the members of the Plant Department are qualified first aiders. The men pictured above have saved life, resuscitated the nearly drowned, bound up the wounded, or, by timely action and quick thinking, prevented serious accidents. In each case their services have been rendered not to fellow employees but to the public at large, often times at great sacrifice and personal danger. As a mark of appreciation, the Bell Telephone Company has made appropriate awards to its men.

More Poultry in Germany Now Than Prior to War

Washington.—Despite the usual destruction of farm crops and farm animals brought about by a great war, Germany now has more poultry, chickens, ducks and geese, than it had before the start of the World War, according to a census conducted last December and made public by the Commerce Department.

Steady increases are shown since 1925, resulting at the end of last year in 6,230,400 geese, 3,886,400 ducks, and 87,937,300 chickens. These figures represent a substantial gain over those obtained for 1913, when there were 5,850,800 geese, 2,086,300 ducks and 63,970,300 chickens.

Imports of eggs into Germany increased materially until 1928, when a decline began, the Commerce Department announced. The 1930 imports were 219,908,830 dozen, about 20,000,000 dozen less than in 1928.

FOR CONSTIPATION

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT—

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and just as harmless as the recipe reads.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

Castoria is sold in every drugstore; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

Owl-Laffs

During the furnace-cleaning operations in a large steel works the men occasionally had to walk across a plank high in the air. One of them would cross it on his hands and knees.

Foreman—Are you frightened of walking on the plank?

Workman—No, sir, 'tis frightened I am walking off it.

Idleness is detrimental to one's self respect. If you don't think you are living in the best town in the world you ought to be hunting that kind of a one. The fingers of one hand are those on which all the people in the world could be counted who work for the pure love of working. Late to bed and late to rise makes one unhealthy, unwealthy and otherwise.

James—Poor Mike was found frozen to death in bed this morning.

John—How did it happen?

James—He married the janitor's daughter, you know.

Fred—Did you quit your work in the shirt factory, I saw you down town this afternoon.

Carl—No, we are making night shirts this week.

Why find fault when there are so many better things to find?

Dentist (to patient who is opening her purse)—No, don't bother to pay me in advance.

Patient—I'm not. Don't worry. I was only counting my money before you give me gas.

The only business that runs smoothly all the time is a dead one drifting out to the sea of oblivion.

First Wife—Does your husband exercise regularly?

Second Wife—Why, yes, last week he was out six nights running.

Teacher—How many people are there in this country?

Student—Er-h-h-r.

Teacher—Hurry, hurry. Every second you dilly-dally the number grows larger.

Take care of the to-morrow; your yesterdays will take care of themselves.

New Traffic Control Tried by Soviet

Moscow—After experimenting with a variety of measures—fines, printed posters and volunteer auxiliary traffic police—to persuade Russians to cross streets at designated crossing in the more crowded parts of the city, local authorities have hit on a more effective device.

A Fish Curiosity

A fish that shoots insects with a drop of water is among the ichthyological incredibilities assured as scientific facts by Dr. Hugh M. Smith, former United States Fish Commissioner, who recently returned to Washington from Bangkok, where he is adviser in fisheries to the Siamese Government. So accurately can the little fish hurl its liquid projectile that on at least two occasions Dr. Smith has seen lighted cigarettes extinguished in the mouths of smokers on a verandah a couple of yards above the surface of the pond where the fish were swimming.

When the shooting fish sights an insect that it considers a likely candidate for dinner, it quietly pokes its eyes and the tip of its snout above water, holding its body at an angle of about forty-five degrees. It opens its wide mouth just the slightest crack in the middle, and at the same instant suddenly squeezes its gill-covers. The speeding drops of water that shoots forth seldom fails to bring down its mark. Dr. Smith states that he has even seen these fish dislodge small lizards with their water bullets.

WHY FAT MEN STAY FAT

"The trouble with me, and I guess this applies to 99 out of every 100 men who are putting on weight, I didn't have the energy or 'pep' to keep it off. Lost all interest in any healthy activity and just lazed around accumulating the old pounds, until I got that 'Kruschen feeling.'"

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape, and fill you with vigor and tireless energy.

As a result, instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate, you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one-half teaspoon in a glass of hot water to-morrow morning and every morning—be careful of the foods you eat—take regular moderate exercise—then watch the pounds slide off.

It is curious that in these trying times when Parliament and business associations are seeking new avenues of trade that nobody has brought forward the suggestion, either in Parliament or elsewhere, that an intensive effort should be made to increase Canada's tourist business. There seems to be still a feeling among both Parliamentarians and big business that the tourist trade is somehow beneath the dignity of serious consideration. It is seldom made a subject for serious discussion and the amount of money spent directly on encouraging the tourist to visit Canada is ridiculously small in comparison to the returns.

The truth is that tourist business is "big business" in Canada, that Canada enjoys the largest tourist trade in proportion to its population of any country in the world. Statistics have in recent years compiled very accurate figures regarding Canada's tourist business and those arrived at in Ottawa and in Washington, come very near agreeing. They are almost staggering. In 1930, almost five and a half million automobiles crossed into Canada and it is estimated that in the neighborhood of $400,000,000 was put into circulation in the Dominion as a result. This places the "tourist trade" in third place among the great industries of the Dominion, surely a place that warrants for it much greater consideration from both Parliament and "big business" than it now receives.

Surely in these difficult times when every energy is being strained to open up new avenues of trade which will give employment and put money in circulation, this is a field that should be considered carefully. It has been estimated that a fund of $100,000 spent on a judicious advertising and publicity campaign throughout the northern section of U.S., would bring results out of all proportion to that amount. At present the Federal Government is spending sums ten times that large in an effort to aid industries which are not nearly so important to the country.

In France and in Britain, determined efforts are being made by Governments to get communities, business and allied industries to contribute to a huge co-operative fund to encourage visitors. Both countries are now conducting co-operative advertising campaigns in the U.S. Yet France estimates that but 1,800,000 foreigners visited her shores last year while during a debate at Westminster recently the figure of 500,000 visitors annually was mentioned. These hardly compare to the millions of visitors to Canada in 1930.

Many isolated communities in Canada are endeavoring to attract tourists to their own particular corner of the country. The Provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are by far the most active. Both these provinces, seeing the result of the depression, increased their advertising appropriations this year, and already have had gratifying results. Something bigger is needed, however, to properly handle this ever growing business. It is a matter worth consideration, we think, by the Federal Government.

There is a feeling that the present depression in the U.S. does not make this an opportune time to start any intensive campaign. There was a depression there in 1930 yet over 900,000 more automobiles crossed the border in that year than in the year of prosperity, 1929. Even if an intensive campaign now only resulted in last year's figures being equalled it would be more than worth while. The tourist trade means the direct employment of thousands of people in Canada, gives work to thousands more in factories and shops and puts huge sums into circulation in every branch of trade. Its very diversity is the chief reason why so little attention has been paid to it.

The public of Lachute and vicinity can have the privilege of seeing views of Canada from Coast to Coast Shown and explained by Mr. Nunnick, Publicity Superintendent of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The East End and Upper Lachute Women's Institute have secured this treat which should fill the Auditorium to capacity next Friday, 12th. June at 8 p.m.

Admission is free, but all children must be in charge of an adult.

These views are said to be the best that so far have been prepared and are a part of the campaign to advertise Canada which unfortunately so many of us have seen so little of. Doors open at 7.45.

Though other lands beguile our steps
To wander for awhile
To sunny France or Italy,
Or Britains lovely isle,
Our hearts, with tender love and true
Wherever we may roam
Will call our wandering footsteps back To Canada—Our Home.

O Canada! Dominion fair and free,
We give our hands, our hearts in love to thee.

Fair are thy hills, thy valleys green,
Thy forests tall and grand,
Thy rivers and thy placid lakes,
Thou fairest mother land,
O Canada! land that we love,
O Canada! land of all lands above.

Far from thy shores thy sons as exiles mourn,
All other lands are of their beauty shorn.

For in our eyes no other land
Can with our own compare.
No other Country is so free, no other one so fair.

O Canada! land that we love,
O Canada! land of all lands above.

And if grim war our country should menace,
Some foe attempt in her to find a place.

We'll plant her flag firm in her soil,
And rally one and all,
To fight for our dear Canada
The fairest land of all.

O Canada! land that we love,
O Canada! land of all lands above.

CORRESPONDENCE

My Dear Sir:—

In making my annual appeal for the Montreal Flower Mission I would first thank all those who in the past have shown their interest by the generous response they have made. The great success of Lachute contribution has been mostly owing to the efficiency of the Conveners, Mrs. Frank Brennan and Mrs. Finley MacGibbon, who this year find themselves unable to take charge, so that I am hoping that some others will take their place.

Tuesday is Lachute day, and the 23rd. of June is our first day, so please bring your flowers to the depot in time for the train from Ottawa.

Do not forget that small bunches, stems wrapped round with damp newspaper carry best, and arrive in good shape, besides being more easily packed.

Unfortunately I do not own a car, and being not quite so young as I was forty years ago I cannot do the collecting, but I feel sure that our Father will inspire some one to take up the work.

There are beautiful ferns and grasses that make the bouquets more graceful looking, and do not forget that as the season advances there is a succession of wild flowers that are greatly loved by the shut-in.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it to the least ye have done it unto Me," were the words of our Master. He is not here. He has risen, and left the poor we have always with us as a sacred charge.

I have the box labels so you can get them and any help or information at my home or phone 116 ring 2-2.

Hopefully yours,

KATE MASSIAH,

District Superintendent Flower Mission.

Girl Guide Camp to Open June 22nd.

Miss Ruth Harvey will be in Charge—Training Week Arranged

Miss Ruth Harvey will be Commandant of the Provincial Girl Guide camp at Morin Heights this season, and will conduct a training week for guiders, cadets and rangers who desire to take their camper's license, during the week June 22. Miss Harvey holds the red cord diploma and last year acted as Dominion field secretary, travelling through all the provinces, visiting smaller centres and organizing Guiding in many places where it had not previously been known. Miss Harvey, who is on the staff of the McGill School of Physical Education, was the Guider-in-charge of "Fettercairn," the Dominion training camp in the Rideau Lakes district, for some time last summer, and has also been in charge of the former Montreal divisional camp at St. Andrews East, in previous years.

A group of the local associating members visited Morin Heights recently, and found everything in good order to begin preparation for the coming season. The plan carried out successfully the last few years of running the camp on the group system, with the Guides under their own licensed Guiders will be used, and there will be a headquarters staff in addition to the ones in charge of the groups. There is accommodation for eighty people at one time, all under canvas, with each group having a wooden shelter, where meals are cooked, and where cook's badge tests may be carried out. The swimming and boating activities are under the supervision of qualified instructors attached to the permanent headquarters staff, and there are also specialists who supervise land sports and games, nature study and handicrafts, in addition to a trained nurse and a cook, who prepares the principal items of the camp menus.

Under the group system, each group is free to arrange its own programme of hikes, field rambles, picnics, badge-work, etc., all coming together for the community camp fire in the evening when notes on the day's activities are exchanged, plans made for the carrying out of regattas and sport meets, and the day ends with the singing of "Taps."

As the camp at Morin Heights operates under the Provincial Girl Guide Association, it is open to all Guiders and Guides in Quebec. Miss I. Dowling is the camp secretary. During the training week, groups under their own licensed Guiders may attend, but the camp as a whole will not be opened until the following week, June 27. Application forms may be obtained from Guide House, 1502 Mackay street, enquiries to be addressed to Miss Dowling.

A Thrilling, but Really True Fish Story

The ambition of a large fish, a muskellonge led to its undoing at about 5.30 Friday afternoon in the Rideau River near Ottawa Bridge, when it attacked a small English sheep dog, "King," owned by Allan Campbell, aged 10, of 207 Belmont Ave. which was swimming near the shore. The dog got to shore first, according to the boy and the large fish became stranded in shallow water. Allan, with a companion, Donald Blois, aged 11, of 18 Grove Avenue, carried a large stone, too heavy for one of them to lift, and dropped it on the fish.

The young boy said that the two of them were at the river fishing for minnows. They had put the dog in the water to give it a bath, when suddenly they saw the animal swimming furiously toward the shore. Donald Blois said he first saw the fish following the dog, and called to his chum, "Look, what's coming let's run." After recovering somewhat from their momentary fright, they killed the fish.

William B. Kelley, 43 Willard avenue said he found the fish to weigh 23 pounds, one ounce and measure 44 inches from snout to tail. Mr. Kelley said he was speaking to George S. Leach, game warden, and that Mr. Leach said that it was quite usual for a large fish of the type captured by the two lads to attack small animals which happen to be in the water. Mr. Kelley said he photographed the two boys holding their prize between them, and with the tail touching the ground, the head of the fish reached their shoulders.

TO A JUNE BRIDE

By Molly Bevan

The Blue Bell
Poetess

"Something old, something new, Something borrowed and something blue."
I heard you singing the brides' old rhyme,
Handed down from the ancient times,
And I thought as I watched you fold away
Each garment fair for your wedding day,
That rather than priceless heirloom lace
I'd wish you the old-time wifely grace;
And instead of a radiant silken store
A new-lit faith for the road before;
Then as a borrowed token, dear,
The wisdom of brides of yester-year,
No need to seek for the "something blue."
Your eyes are deep with its meaning blue;
So may old, and new, and borrowed blend
And bring you joy to a long life's end!

HARRY FISHER

Of all the Tramp Cyclists that have appeared during recent years undeniably the King of them all is Harry Fisher. This ridiculous comedian goes through some of the most absurd antics imaginable, attempting to ride a bicycle this comical slips and slides all over the place but he does not finally conquer the untamed wheel and proves himself to be a rider of exceptional ability. The roars of laughter and spontaneous applause which greet each folio and trick is ample evidence of the excellence of the act. You will see him perform at the Lichette Fair, June 17-18-19-20.

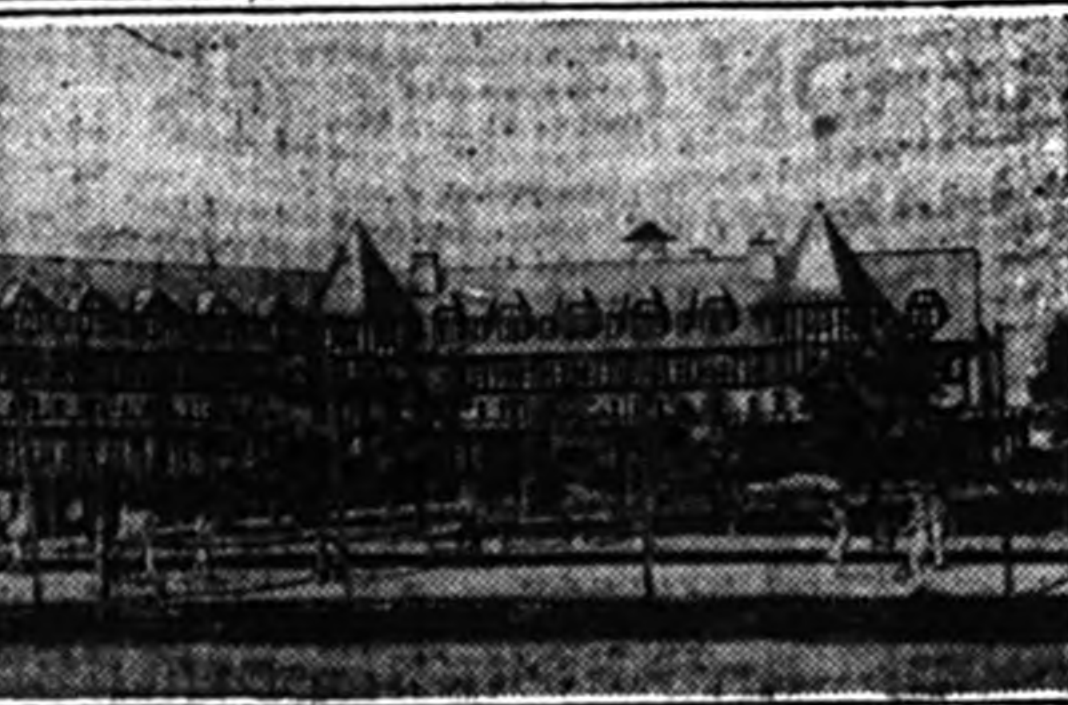

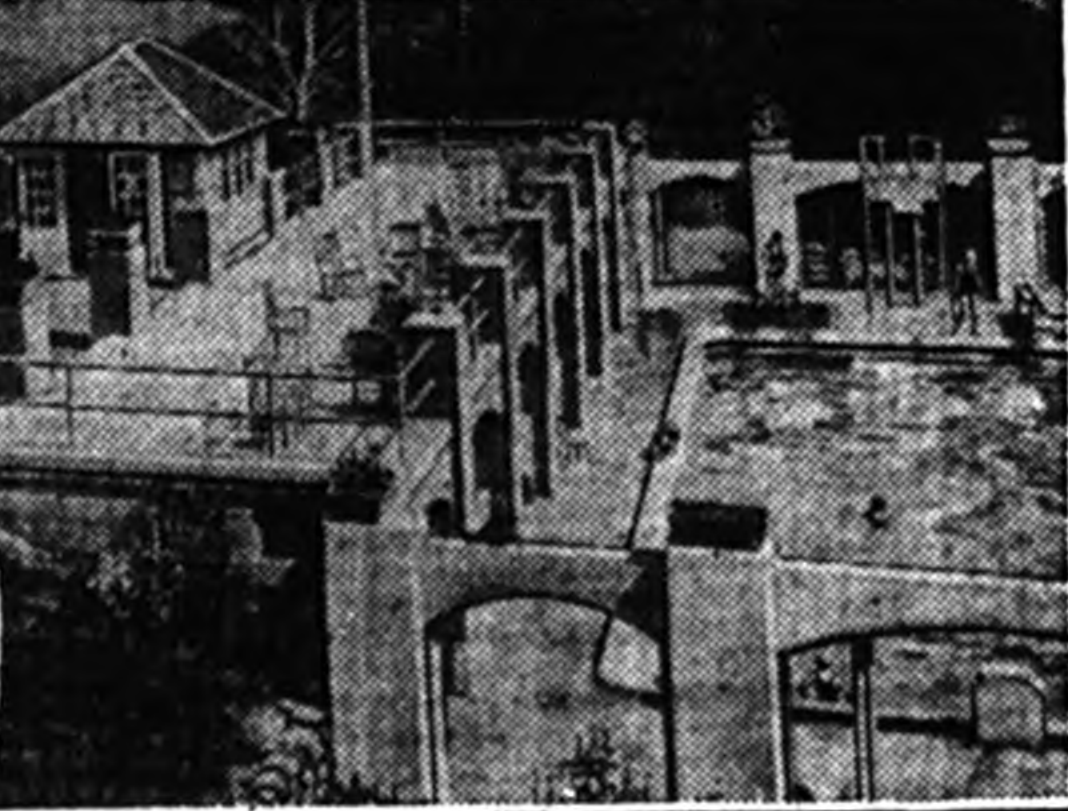

GENERAL MOTORS CARS HAVE OUTSTANDING VALUE

SUMMER IN THE MARITIMES

The pictures show: above, the new Lakeside Inn, the C.P.R. hotel at Yarmouth, N.S.; centre, the bathing pool in the grounds of the Pines Hotel, Digby, N.S.; and below, the Algonquin Hotel at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea. Inset: a typical Maritime scene, sand and sunshine.

Sunshine and gleaming sands! The laughter of scampering childhood mingled with the organ-swell of the Atlantic breakers as the cream onto the shores of the Bay of Fundy! Here is holiday, health and happiness. All along the beautiful coast of Nova Scotia are countless watering places, whose names have become household words among lovers of the seaside. Excellent hotels are at the disposal of visitors and the shoreward scene is no less lovely than its marine companion. The Annapolis Valley needs no introduction to Canadians or to its countless American visitors. It has been rightly called Canada's Devon, with its flourishing orchards and pasture lands and its countless picturesque farms and hamlets. A few hours journey by palatial steamer from Saint John, N.B., Digby, with its Pines Hotel as the hub of activity, rivals Kentville with its Cornwallis Inn, and Yarmouth with its new Lakeside Inn, in extending hospitality to the holiday-seeker. Golf, tennis, bathing, fishing, yachting and innumerable beautiful motor drives are only a few of the recreations available. On the New Brunswick mainland, farther, as it were, to this stalwart family, the Algonquin Hotel, at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, sets a standard of summering unrivalled anywhere on the continent. The luxurious hotel, with its many attached cottages, is the centre of one of the most exclusive colonies of the Dominion. The golf links, known throughout the length and breadth of the country as one of the finest championship courses available, are meet namesake of the home of the royal and ancient game in old Scotland. The Canadian Pacific Railway places all these resorts within easy access of their many devotees.

Rita plans her vacation in a hurry

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls begin at 7 p.m. (local time). Just give "Long Distance" the number you want — it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

Rita had to arrange her vacation trip in a hurry. A sudden turn of events at the office made it a matter of now or never . . . and Rita chose "now".

After seven o'clock that evening (when evening rates over Long Distance were in force) she called her old school chum Helen to ask her suggestion as to the best place to go.

"Wonderful", said the happy voice at the other end of the line after she had explained everything. "We are all going to Seabeach for two weeks tomorrow. Now you will be able to come with us."

And so Rita spent the most enjoyable vacation she ever had, thanks to her call over Long Distance.

And the cost of that call was less than the tip she gave to the colored porter.

DON MICHEL

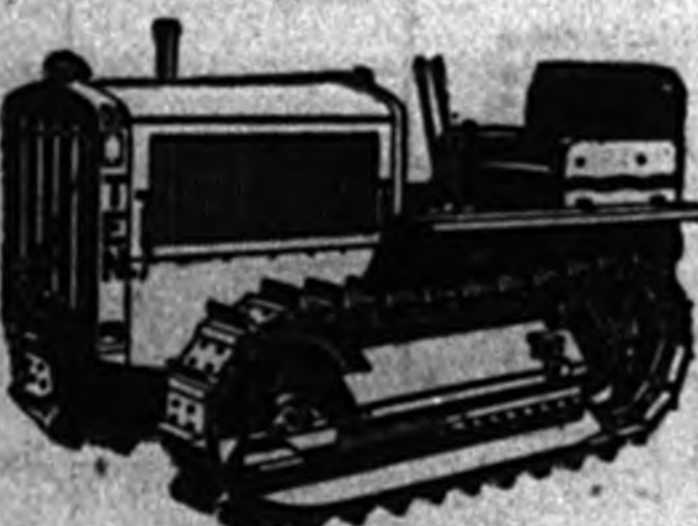

Don Michel, the Aerial Demon, appears in a series of hazardous tricks on the swinging trapeze, one moment balancing precariously on one foot on the bar, then suddenly flopping over into a dangerous ankle drop, the climax being reached when this dare-devil, swinging himself high in the air, precipitates himself from his seat, turns a half somersault catching the bar by the crook in his leg. It is all done so startlingly that the spectators are left breathless.

EXTRA FOOTHOLD means CHEAPER PLOWING

WATCH a tug-of-war team on the end of a rope. Note how easily and steadily the boys pull when they have a firm foothold—how they slip and slither if they have no holes to brace their feet.

The same principle applies to a tractor. The more traction it has, the easier and steadier it pulls—less slipping—less waste of power. That can mean only one thing—more actual work from every gallon of fuel—cheaper plowing, cheaper cultivating, etc.

Look at the long, wide tracks of the "Caterpillar"—compare "Caterpillar" traction with that of any other tractor—then you will see why "Caterpillar" owners save so much on their fuel bills.

NOW FOR THE FAIR

Before our next issue will appear the Lachute Fair will be upon us and our only hope is that the weather this year will be favorable. Everything else is working out to be the best exhibition that has ever been put on for last year there were 96 exhibitors while this year there are 110 and the entries are unusually heavy necessitating two large tents being secured to house some of the stock. When it is known there are 274 stalls for horses alone in addition to the enlarged cattle sheds one may judge for themselves what the show ring will be like when these animals are brought out on parade.

This year's attraction in addition to the splendid exhibit of cattle, horses, sheep and poultry will include excellent horse-races. The show ring is brilliantly illuminated by powerful electric lights that shows everything as bright as day. A delightful programme of vaudeville stars including Harry Fisher whose face beams eternal merriment as he performs his grotesque bicycle trick riding stunts. Then Don Michel, the aerial demon, appears in a series of hazardous tricks on the swinging trapeze, one moment balancing precariously on one foot on the bar then suddenly flopping over into an ankle drop, all acts being done so startlingly that spectators are left breathless. The Great Cahill has an aerial stunt that justly entitles him to be called the "Master Gymnast" and the Wilkinson sisters, a wonderful team of girl dancers and singers. Bruce's band of Toronto, will furnish a fine musical programme and the Midway promises lots of fun for both old and young. Thursday and Friday nights will culminate with a brilliant fire-work display that will excel all previous showings. Altogether Lachute Fair this year will be bigger and better than ever so plan to come along. Bring your friends along and be assured of a real good time.

Press Release, Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments

Preliminary Steps Census of Retail and Wholesale Trade Now Being Taken.

The fifteen thousand enumerators who have been engaged since June 1st, in taking the Population Census have also been making a record of the name and address of every retail and wholesale establishment in the Dominion. These names are to be the basis for the Postal Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments.

It will be some weeks before all the lists are in the hands of the Officials in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. When they have been carefully scrutinized and certain other preliminary work done, schedules will be mailed to each retail or wholesale establishment. It is expected that somewhere between 150,000 and 200,000 names will be received and, though, a very great amount of preparatory work is necessary before schedules can be mailed, it is expected that they will be sent out in August.

COUNTY COUNCIL

The regular quarterly meeting of the above council was held in the Council Chambers at the Court House, on Wednesday afternoon, Warden J. E. Seale presiding. There were present Councillors C. J. Staniforth, J. S. Dixon, Stuart Boyd, Amos Kerr, Wm. Beauchamp, E. D. Chantal, Sam Dawson, A. E. Ladouceur, James Bennett, Jos. Bradley.

After reading the minutes, Secretary James W. Gall gave a report of expenses in connection with the repairs, painting and decorating and other improvements to the Court House, all of which met with general approval and Councillor Dawson moved the payment of $1,075.80 which was seconded by Councillor Dixon. Further suggestions were made regarding furnishings of the judges room and other minor improvements, all of which were considered necessary.

The Court House is now an important centre with offices of the Registry Office, the Health Sanitary Unit, the Road Department and La Tribune d'Argenteuil, all of which are now contributory factors so that the Court House, which for many years was a bill of expense, is now a revenue producer.

Councillor Ladouceur moved that the Warden and Secretary be empowered to effect the loan of $1000 to meet obligations incurred.

Considerable discussion arose relative to the condition of the county road between Harrington and Grenville which Councillor Bennett proclaimed as very bad. They had been waiting in expectancy for the government to grant 50 per cent for construction of the highway and this was not forthcoming. It was urged that the Council would again intercede with the Government as they had practically given their word that they would carry out this work.

Messrs. A. Bothwell, W. J. Rodger and A. St. Jacques appeared before the Council on behalf of a grant to the Agricultural Society for the Lachute Fair. Councillor Kerr moved that the sum of $500 be granted and Councillor Staniforth seconded the motion. Councillor A. E. Ladouceur in amendment was of the opinion that the grant of $750 should be made, but he found no seconder and the main motion carried.

Request was made for the Parish of St. Jerusalem to hold their meetings in the Court House and on motion of Councillor Bennett this was granted with a charge of $50 per year.

On behalf of the tenants, Mr. George Calder thanked the Council for the splendid change that had taken place in the general clean up which was most appreciative to all concerned.

To those contemplating marriage and who will doubtless be requiring "Announcements" or "Invitations" the Watchman Office, Lachute, will be pleased to execute your order at moderate charge and on shortest notice.

Patrons of the Lachute Fair should not miss the side-splitting burlesque wrestling match as presented by Jake and Jerry! It is beyond a doubt the choicest tid-bit of natural humor ever witnessed. It is a comedy epic that will be remembered for many long years, a howl of laughter greets their very appearance which is grotesque, to say the least of it. Their tactics on the mat are so ludicrous that even the proverbial cat would double up and die laughing each separate one of its nine lives away.

ANGLICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

A joint picnic was held by the Lachute and Brownsburg Churches on Saturday last at Patterson's Grove. Ideal weather prevailed and a large gathering attended. Various games were indulged in by those present, adults having as much fun as the children. A vote of hearty thanks was tendered Mr. Patterson for the use of his field.

Running races were held during the afternoon and very keenly contested, the results being as follows:—

Tiny Tots Race.—John Butler, Marjorie Leggett, Florence MacKinnel.

Girls 5 to 7.—Joan Stansfield, Lorna Giles, Florence Jenkins, Willow Jones.

Boys 5 to 7.—Boris Arran, Gerald Ardill, Basil Davis.

Girls 8 to 10.—Blanche Ardill, Minta Butler and Shirley Leggett, Irene Clifford.

Boys 8 to 10.—Lister Conley, Arthur Ashworth, Herbert Miles.

Girls 11 to 13.—Alvira Ward, Irene McFaul, Margaret Graham.

Boys 11 to 13.—Lloyd Graham, H. Ashworth and Bernard Jenkins, Geo. Leggett.

Girls 14 and over.—Gertie Scott, L. Miller, Alice Brown.

Boys 14 and over.—Louis Beecroft and Bob Miller, David Golphin, Frank Steere.

HARRY FISHER

When visiting the Lachute Fair this year, you will see among the Free Attractions a portly figure in tattered garments and the remains of what was once a glossy silk hat perched rakishly on his bald head, all sorts of nondescript medals adorn his chest, his pants are baggy and frayed, his gaping shoes are evidently a 30 A and although his chin is covered with stubble, his face beams forth eternal merriment.

He occupies his time in front of the audience by attempting to ride divers bicycles, all of which seem to have an odd knack of pitching him ruthlessly to the ground, but the smile remains, and the harder the bump the wider the grin, and it is such an infectious smile that soon every spectator is laughing with and at him.

His burlesque impersonation of a Scotchman riding a unicycle is an epic. He discards the majority of his upper garments, casting them to the four winds, later retrieving them while still riding the unicycle.

You will like Harry Fisher's offering, his quaint mannerisms and optimistic outlook go right to your heart.

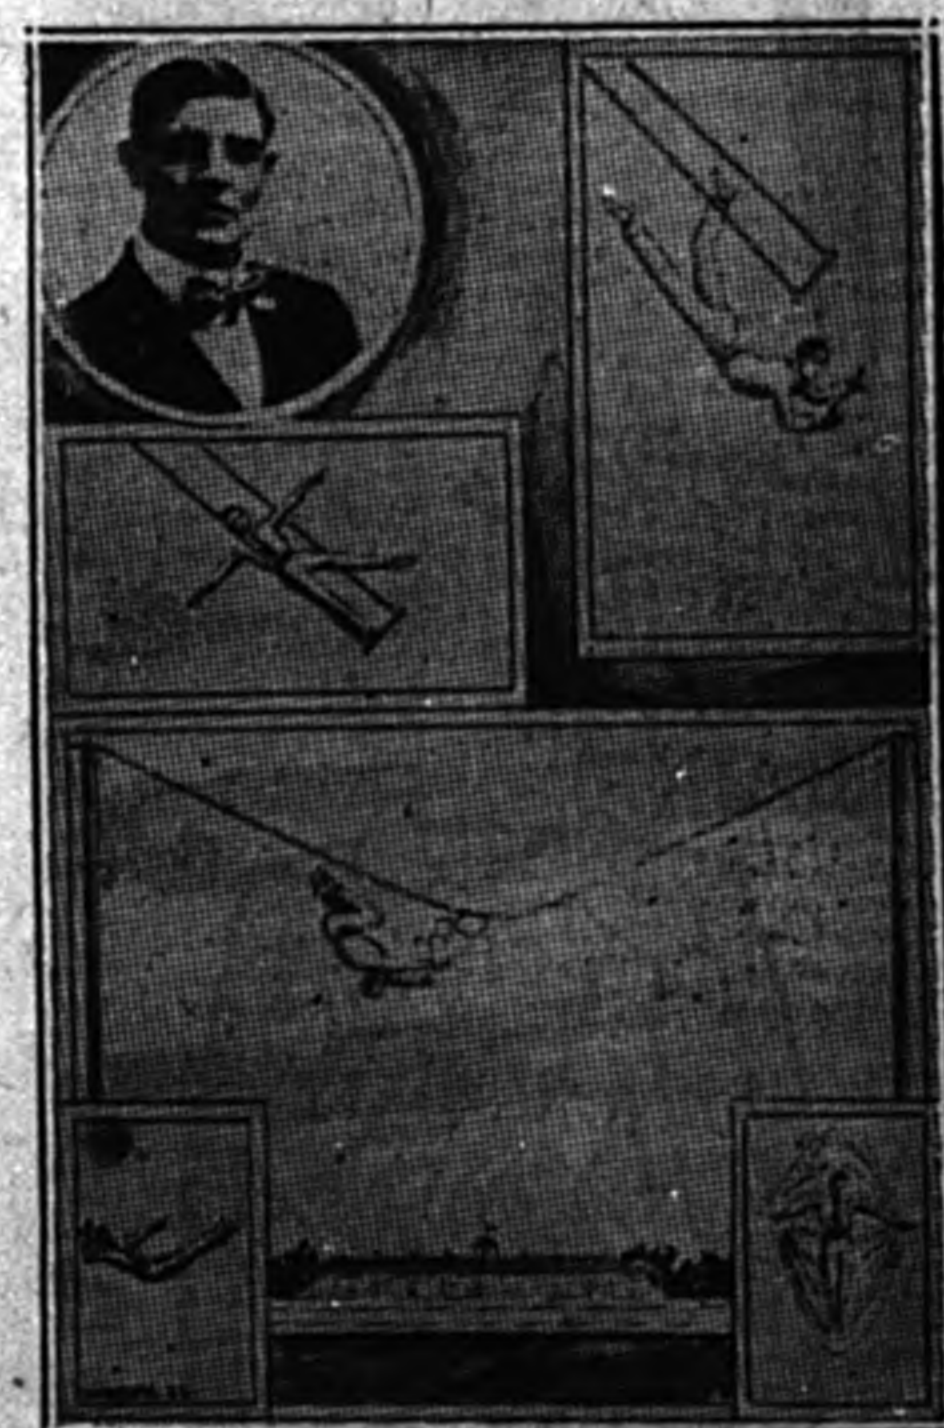

WILSON AND AUBREY

A howling laugh hit will be witnessed at the Lachute Fair this year when Wilson and Aubrey present their horizontal bar act which is chocked full of mirth, provoking antics and rapid tricks.

This remarkable duo of funmakers have appeared in every civilized country in the world and have never failed to score a decided hit wherever they have appeared, provoking a healthy giving laughter and an atmosphere of continuous merriment and hilarity by their extremely funny and very ridiculous pantomimical absurdities.

THE GREAT CAHILL

Seekers of the sensational should not fail to see the hair-raising performance of the Great Cahill and he is truly great. His offering is so far superior to that of other serialists that he can justly be called the "Master Gymnast."

High up in the air, seated in a nonchalant manner on a slender rope, Cahill works the cord until he is swinging at a great height, seeming to almost touch the clouds, suddenly the serialist releases his hold of the rope and hurtles through space. A gasp goes up from the audience to be quickly followed by a sigh of relief when they realize he has cords attached to his legs. The dare-devil clammers back to his perilous perch and again shoots out, this time with ropes attached to his wrists. So throughout the entire act Cahill supplies one gasp after another, concluding with a rapid revolve on the rope that is a humdinger.

Rocky Mountains Are Ideal Holiday Land

Beauty unrivalled, health-giving altitudes, all the comforts that modern ingenuity can devise and "something to do" all the time await the army of travellers from all over the world, which annually invades the glorious Canadian Rockies through the Banff Springs Hotel and the Chateau Lake Louise. These stately up-to-date hostleries, which open on May 15 and June 1, respectively, are not only key-points to the most beautiful mountain territories in the world, but are, themselves, located in settings of a beauty which has to be seen to be truly appreciated. On the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which owns and operates them, they are equipped not only to be "homes from home" to the travelling public and holiday-seekers in the generally accepted sense, but to furnish entertainment for their guests in many and varied ways. Auto drives, trail-rides, boating, fishing, swimming, golf, tennis, hiking and mountaineering, to say nothing of the famous Indian Days and the Highland Gathering, are all part of programs which years of experience have brought to perfection. Experts in all lines are in attendance to be of service to the hotels' guests and real cowboys, red-coated "Mounties" and true Stoney Indians lend color to a hundred variations of uniquely picturesque scenes. There is never a dull moment at Banff or Lake Louise. There is something for every taste and the rounding off of full days by dancing in cool and spacious ball-rooms, to smart orchestras, is not the least of the attractions offered.

FUEL TESTS OF INTEREST Users of Coal

Considerable interest is attached to the report of the Milton-Hersey Co., Limited, prominent Consulting Engineers of Montreal, showing the comparative efficiency of coke, Welsh coal and American Anthracite.

In a statement made public today, they announced the result of these tests which show that 'blue coal', American Anthracite, is a much more efficient and economical fuel than either Welsh coal or coke, and at current prices the use of 'blue coal' means a definite saving of $1.75 a ton to the householder, when the actual heat value is considered.

The figures given out by the Milton-Hersey Co., Ltd., show an overall efficiency for coke of 64.6%, for Welsh Anthracite 64.5% and for 'blue coal' 73.4%.

Charles Hazen, vice-president of the Milton Hersey Co., Ltd., in a statement which accompanied the report of the tests, attributed the low efficiency of coke and Welsh Anthracite to the high temperature of the blue gases generated and to the consequent high heat loss from that cause.

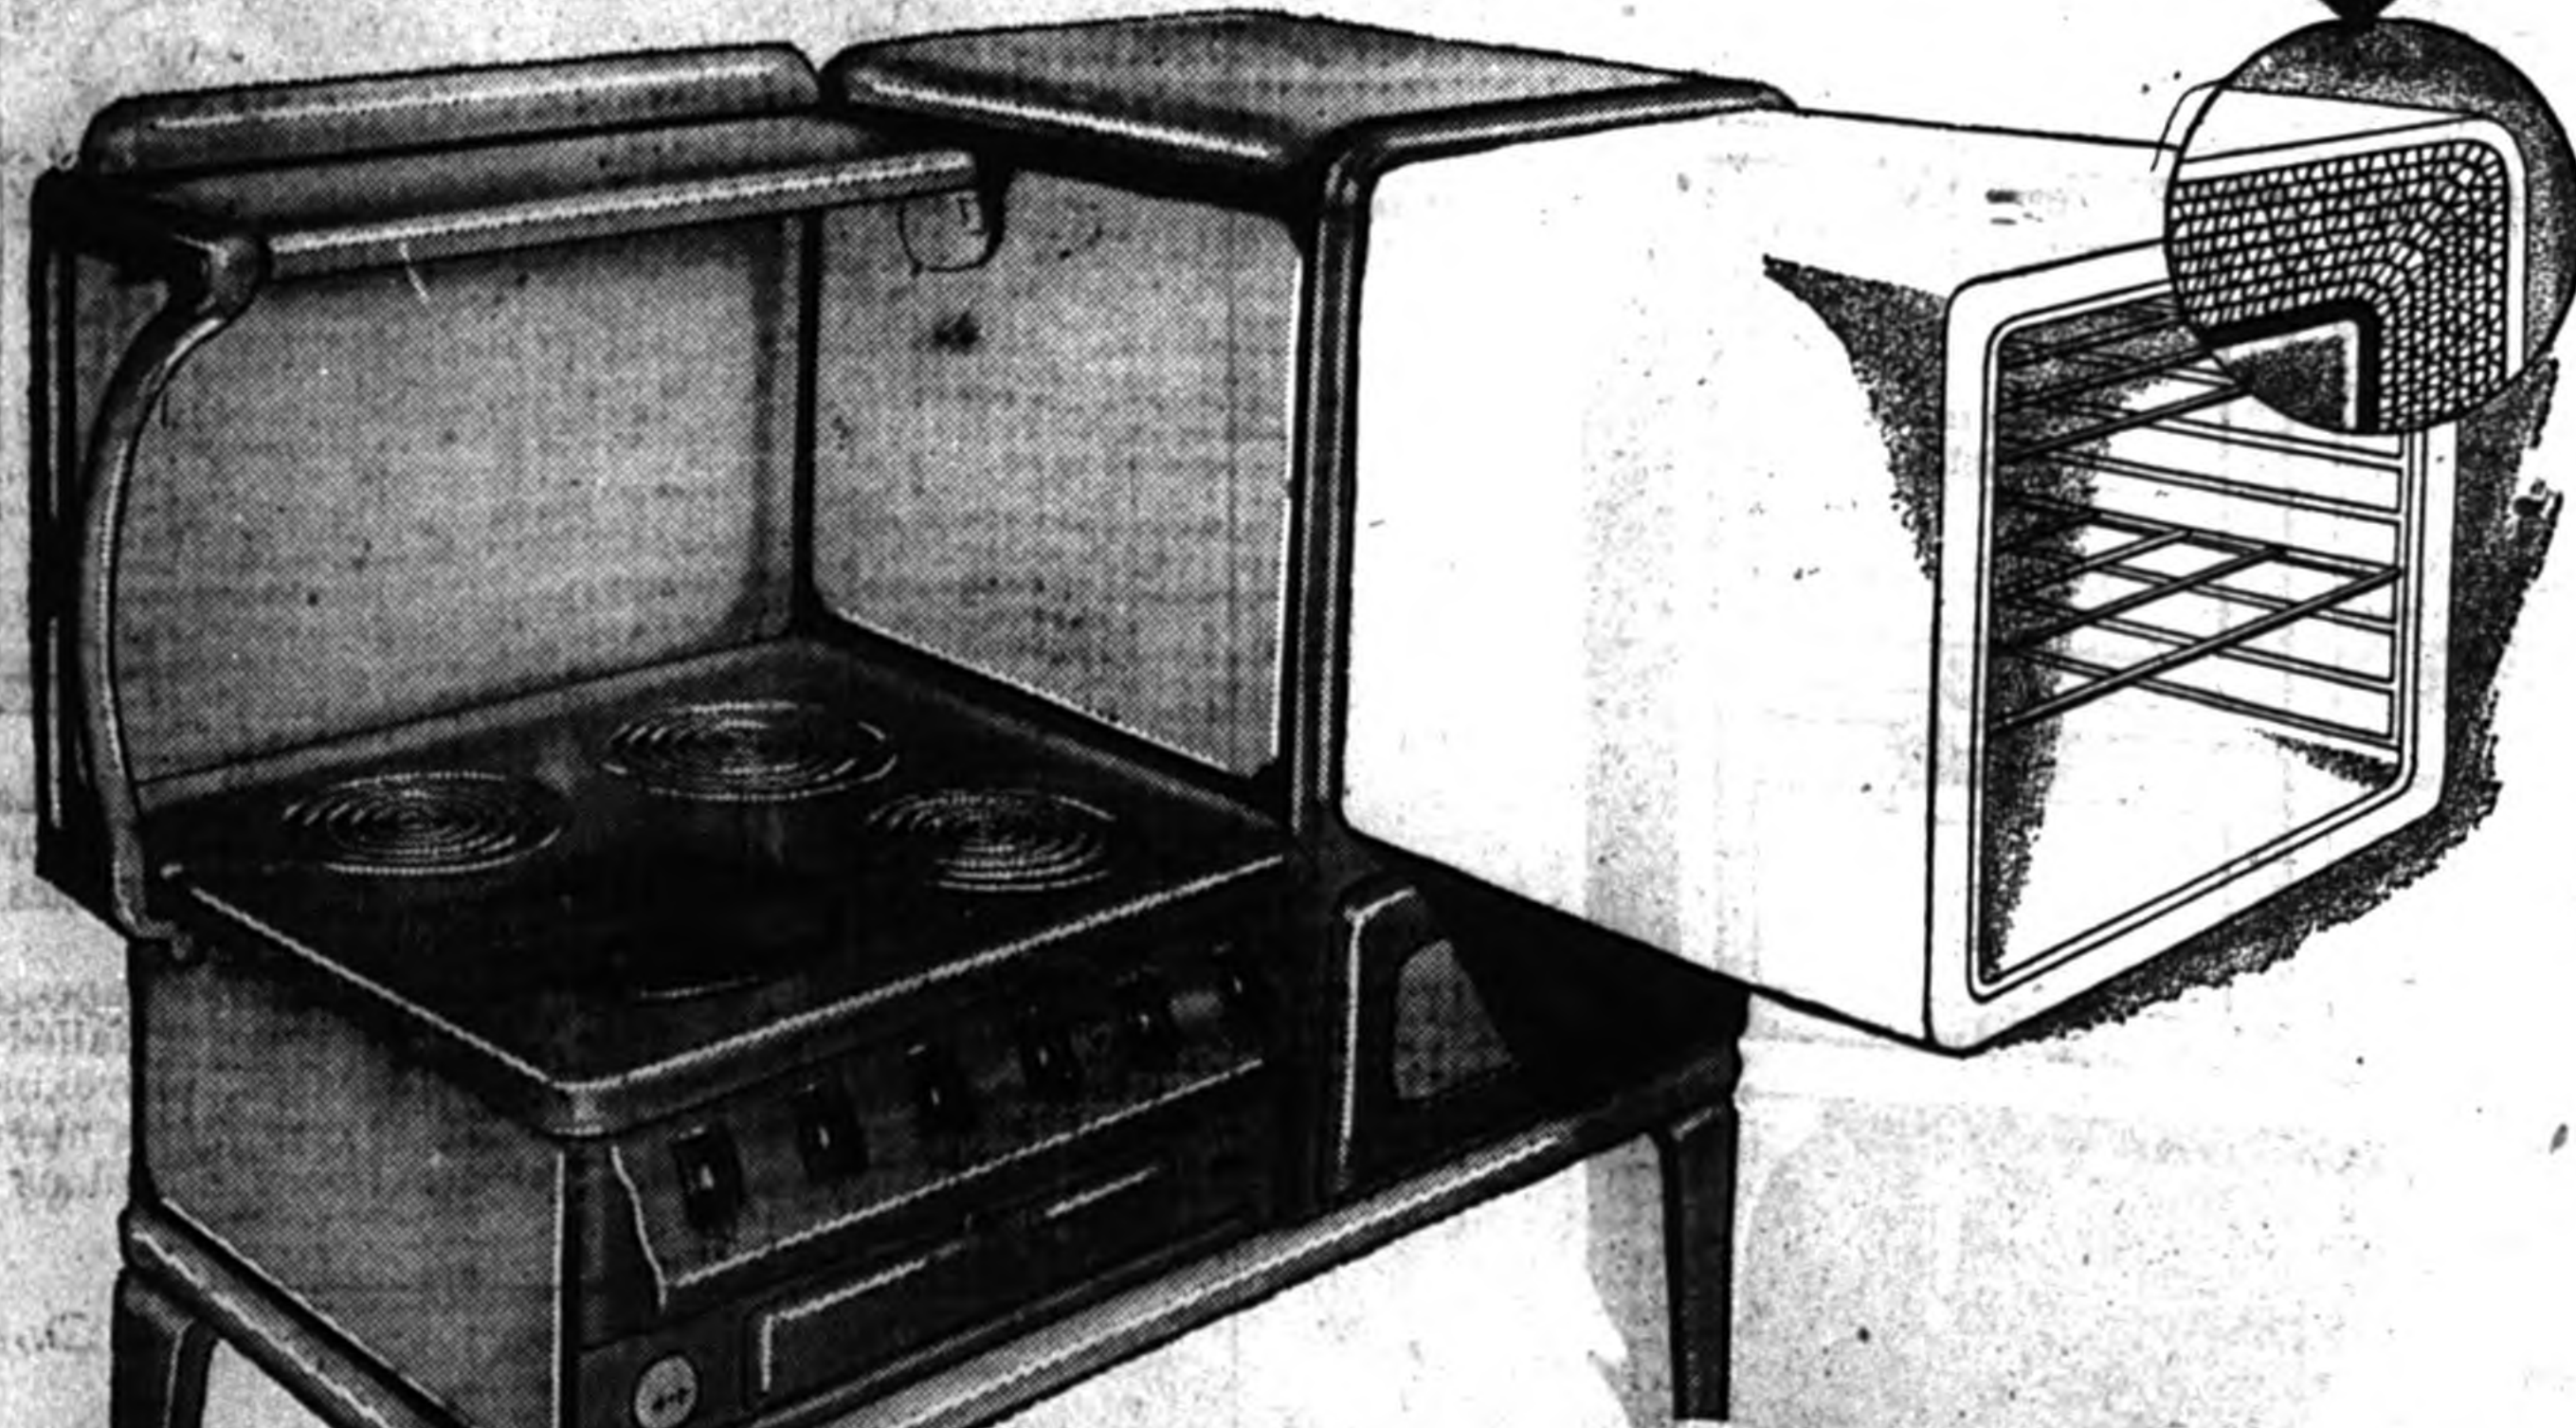

Mr. C. E. Mackenzie, vice-president of the D. L. & W. Coal Company of Canada Limited, the importers of 'blue coal' American anthracite stated that they had various figures from tests made in the United States and that they tallied in every way with the figures of the Milton-Hersey Company. He referred to recent reports which had been circulated, and especially information attributed to the Dominion Fuel Board, regarding the heating efficiency of the various fuels, and stated that the householder could definitely rely on the information contained in this recent report.

The tests confirm the claim of the D. L. & W. Coal Company of Canada Limited, that 'blue coal' is positively the most economical and satisfactory fuel for home usage.

OUR LAWLESS LANGUAGE

We'll begin with a box and the plural is boxes; But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes. Then one fowl is a goose, but two are called geese. Yet the plural of mouse should never be meese! You may find a lone mouse or a whole nest of mice. But the plural of house is houses, not not hie! If the plural of man is always called men. Why shouldn't the plural of pan be be called pen? If I speak of a foot and you show me your feet. And I give you a boot—would a pair be called beet? If one is a tooth and a whole set are teeth. Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth? Then one may be that and three would be those. Yet hat in the plural would never be hose; And the plural of cat is cats, and not cose! We speak of a brother and also of brethren. But though we say mother, we never say methren! Then the masculine pronouns are he, his and him. But imagine the feminine, she shis and shim! So English, I fancy, you all will agree is the funniest language you ever did see!

APRIL ESCAPADE

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Kate O'Hara, engaged to Cass Keating, agrees to play the part of Chris Steynes' wife and meet the Countess Marka at Burlingame. Then she goes to Steynes' home to sleep over. During the night her brother, Martin, not knowing the circumstances, breaks into Steynes' house and is shot as a burglar. Upon her return to her home, Mary finds she has fallen in love with Steynes. Then Mary, Martin, Cass and Chris meet at the O'Hara home and during the discussion the Widow O'Hara walks in and demands to know what the trouble is. She declares she believes Mary Kate innocent of any wrong-doing. Then Chris asks Mary to marry him.

CHAPTER XLII—(Cont'd.)

"Well," Mary Kate continued. "And I'll be the sort of—oh, well, plainly-dressed smart woman, you know, who knows all about books, and plays and German and Italian—"

"It was French a minute ago," retorted Chris.

"Oh, well, French, too. And I'll study the operas, too, Chris. Do you like the opera? Do you go to the opera?"

"Sometimes. I like some of them."

"At the Metropolitan?"

"At the Metropolitan. The old man has a box."

"Certainly."

"At the Metropolitan Opera House?"

"Why not?"

"Oh, Heaven!" Mary Kate said on a gasp. "Should I have to wear evening dress?"

"You would. You could wear that thing you wore Friday night and my Aunt Minnie's pearls."

"Oh, sure enough! Those pearls are yours, aren't they, Chris?"

"They are yours, now, I present them to you."

She gave a frightened laugh.

"Chris, we may have lots of fun!"

"We will have."

"We didn't think our adventure would turn out like this, did we?"

"Rather not! I didn't know," Chris added, "that there was ever a woman in the world like you."

"I have to go in," Mary Kate said.

"My mother's going over to Aunt Julia's and Mart'll need me to help him getting to bed."

Chris tipped her head back, under the spring stars.

"I love you," he said. "I've never done anything to deserve you, and that country house full of kids, and those nights at the opera, and all the rest of it. But—"

He stopped, at a loss for words.

"I know you will!" she whispered, as if he had finished his thought.

Three minutes later, shaken and breathless and bewildered, she heard the side gate click after him. Mary Kate took one more look at the blue dark sky and the stars and the rising tiers of golden apartment-house windows and the powdery silver of the Milky Way and drew one more great breath of the lilac and syringa-scented night. Then she went into the kitchen.

It was just as she and Chris had left it: orderly dimly lighted, empty. Buttercups in a clean jelly glass on the table, curtains moving languidly to and fro over the silks of the open window. The nickel-plated alarm clock over the sink ticked steadily, rapidly, in the silence, and her own heart kept pace. Her mother, once again bonneted and veiled, stood in the doorway between the bedroom and kitchen.

"Mr. Steynes went, did he, dear?"

"Yes'm."

"And you're sure of yourself, Mary Kate?"

"Oh, Mother!"

A long pause. The older woman sighed.

"Well, that's all I could ask," she said at last. "But it seems a far cry from the little room you were born in, in Brooklyn!"

"I know," Mary Kate said.

"Sleep in my room with Pat, dear. He's apt to wake, and I'll be up with Uncle Robert all night," Mrs. O'Hara said. "But I'll stop in at church at seven on my home tomorrow."

"I'll set the alarm and meet you there, Mother. We'll have breakfast together."

She was alone again.

She sat on, at the red oiled kitchen table, staring into space, her arms crossed. Her eyes narrowed, her lips bitte. The clock hands moved, the lamplight wavered, in the kitchen.

Then suddenly she stood up, and pushed her chair back into place. She took the alarm-clock, and busied herself with the little keys on its back, before locking the yard door, darkening the kitchen, and going to her mother's kitchen bedroom.

Little Pat, freckled and thin and tousled of hair, was sprawled half-covered, crosswise on the wide bed. Mary Kate straightened and covered him. The gas was turned down to a bead in here, and the one window that looked out upon the blank side wall of the neighboring house was open.

She went into the dining room, and opened Tom's forgotten window.

Kneeling beside him, she put her arms about him, mother-fashion, and he half roused, in his first deep sleep, and murmured to her.

"Gee, I'm crazy about you, Molly!"

Mary Kate mounted the stairs, and sat for a long time, in the dark back bedroom, lighted only by the rise and fall of the cigarette advertisement a block away. Little tawny-headed Regina was sleeping like a baby saint, her hair shaken into a halo on the pillow about her unconscious head; Tess had doubled herself, her covers, and her own pillow into a great snarl, and had to be dragged and pushed and pulled into comfort against her own sleepy resistance.

"A spider-web party—" she whispered clearly, as Mary Kate kissed her. The little girls, their big sister remembered, had been promised a spider-web party. They wouldn't have it—now.

Last of all she went into Martin's room. He was propped in pillows. He slept in a sitting position, these nights. As he came in he closed his book, and smiled at her, and she sat down on the edge of his bed, and linked her hand in his free one.

So she had sat, with this friend and confidant, and confessor, many and many a time, in the days since her turbulent childhood. She remembered tears and laughter, rebellion, planning, argument—here in Mart's room at night. She remembered reading him her school compositions, here; discussing office affairs. It was here, one night not long after this same new year had begun, that, rosy and confused, she had talked to him about stunning Cass Keating, who was so clever and so successful, and who—well, certainly it looked that way anyway, was beginning to—well, to like, anyway, Mary Kate O'Hara.

"Hello, Sis."

"Hello, Mart."

"Put the lights out?"

"Yes. I'm sleeping downstairs with Pat."

"Happy, Molly?"

"I guess so, Mart."

"I know better than he does what he's getting," Mart said in a silence. The girl did not answer she was moving her thumb back and forth across his big hand.

"Nobody like you, Molly!"

"Don't—don't make me cry. I'm—cried out."

"It'll be funny here, without you."

"But you'll be in Germany, Mart."

"Yep. Got to keep up with my rich sister, now!"

"Ah, Marty, don't joke about it. It'll be good for Tom to be king-pin for a while, and we'll pull the whole gang of them up, Molly."

"But not together any more, Mart!"

"No. Not together any more."

There was silence. Then the girl asked:

"Member playing Indians in the old coal box in Brooklyn, Mart?"

"Do you remember Mother used to take us to church, Saturday afternoons, and we used to play house in the pews?"

"Yes. And the day—but that was here—that I brought her home a plant, with my first money."

"A primrose."

"Yep."

"It's still growing in the front garden, Mart."

"I know it is."

"Remember the day the cop pretended to hit me, Mart, and you bit his hand?"

"I was five."

"You would have bitten an elephant, I think, if it had been mean to me!"

"I would have wanted to."

They were silent again, fingers linked. After a few moments, Martin felt something hot and wet fall on his hand.

And the maslin pitch to the ghastly ditch
Ever the wide world over.

Ever the wide world over, lad;
Clear to the Arctic Zone;
From the glacial ice you can see the

And hear the duffer moan.
There're greens by the Guadal-

Fairways in Old Cathay;
And a tough tenth hole that will

And the crack of the club in the

Is the shot heard 'round the world.

The ADVENTURES of CAPTAIN JIMMY and his Dog SCOTTIE

What came before? Captain Jimmy and his dog Scottie got lost in the darkness, while flying over the Chinese War Zone. They are captured by bandits and separated. Captain Jimmy makes his escape and plans to search for the faithful Scottie.

Yes, sir. Just as I crowded the old Chinese interpreter into the freight car to hide from those pursuing bandits, a black object came hurtling in and struck me square in the belt.

"Scottie!"

We untangled ourselves, and there was a grand reunion. But there wasn't any time to waste. The bandits were following closely on our trail. Some place must be found to hide.

In the corner of the car were piled a number of tea chests. These I shoved out so the three of us could hide in behind. Over the top I spread some old straw matting.

It only the train would move along before the bandits caught up, we would be all right, but it seemed to be waiting on the switch until a train coming the other way had passed.

Suddenly the sound of hoofs rang on the rocky railway siding, and a score of bandits began running up and down the train peeking into the cars. Things looked pretty serious, especially when a big Chinaman began rummaging around among the tea chests. Luckily he did not notice our hiding place.

Something had to be done quickly, however, or the outlaws would return and find us. Quietly I signalled Fu Hsu and Scottie to follow me. We dropped out of the car and crept softly along the side of the train away from the bandits, and groped our way in the dim early morning light toward the engine.

The engineer and fireman leaned out of their cab anxiously, wondering what was happening down along the track. I slipped in behind them and gave them a good shove. Off they went—end over end into the ditch.

Promptly I threw the reverse lever and opened the throttle. There was a violent spinning of drive wheels. The cars bumped and crashed against one another noisily, and at the same time I pulled the whistle valve wide open. The whistle fairly shrieked. It was a perfect bedlam let loose.

Panic stricken, the bandits rushed to the doors to escape. Some jumped out, some were pushed out, others simply fell out. But in less time than it takes to tell it, there was not a bandit on board.

Away we roared, gathering speed as we backed down the track for we dared not go forward in the face of the signals. The engine rocked and swayed. I took up the shovel to feed the boiler fire, when suddenly a heavy boot stuck out from under the coal and someone hollered.

"What next. Even the coal was alive with Chinese bandits."

"Maybe I'm a bandit. Captain," said the owner of the boot. "But not Chinese anyway!"

Where had I heard that familiar voice before? I shoved him into the light. His face was like a black mask from the coal dust.

"By Golly! Jed Stone," I yelled.

And so it was. My old friend Jed Stone who I had not seen for many years. Our meeting was one of those odd coincidences that you couldn't make happen in a lifetime if you tried to plan it.

Jed told me a startling story. He had a brother, engaged in Chinese famine relief work. A bandit gang had passed through the country, raiding and plundering the pitifully scant food supplies of the people.

Guy followed the bandits for days, and tried to reason with the chief. Making no impression he finally lost control of himself, and before anyone could interfere, soundly thrashed the villain.

French Savings Pass $960,000,000 Total

Paris.—French savings institutions are holding more than $960,000,000 for "rainy days" in France.

The old woolen stocking, it would seem, has gone out of fashion in France and, despite recent bank scandals, the thrifty French public is increasing its savings deposits.

Savings deposited in 1930 showed an increase of 16 per cent. over 1929, while the number of new accounts was nearly 10 per cent. higher than in 1929.

It is estimated that every fourth person in France has a savings account, the public banks and postoffices alone reporting 10,000,000 accounts. The total savings deposits in 1930 was $960,000,000.

The per capita savings in France represent about $24 a person, not counting the investment in French rentes and government bonds, whose total value represents many times the saving deposits.

Make Believe

BY URSULA BLOOM

The old lady came into the cheap restaurant and sat down at a small table in the corner. She was a countrified old lady; tired, with a face like a warm, ripe orchard apple, and a ridiculously old-fashioned cape and bonnet. The girl, who had been wiping steamy glasses in the far corner, went across to her.

Nessa was red-headed, with eyes that could flash fire. They were tranquil now because she loved old ladies. Life had not treated orphaned Nessa too well—she was here in this disreputable restaurant just because opportunity had afforded her no better chance.

The old lady had a certain quiet dignity of her own.

"I have come to see my son," she said. "His name is Tony Miller, and he has not written to me for three months. So I've come to see why. Not that anything could be wrong. Tony was always a good boy—"

To give herself time, Nessa asked: "What name did you say?"

But all the time she knew. Tony, wild Tony. Perhaps she had cared for him, but Tony had not wanted love. Like a cinematograph, memory flashed the vivid pictures through her mind. That night when he had come in with a bullet graze red across his wrist, and a sack full of somebody else's silver!

The police had been hot on his track, and Nessa had helped him. Down to the docks that night, hiding behind the shadow of stacks, creeping cautiously to the cargo-boat that was coaling. Tony slipping up the gangway. Canada! A new country, a fresh start. Tony would never come back.

"He's my son," said the little old lady proudly.

"I am afraid that he has gone away. There aren't many opportunities for men here. He ought to make a fortune where he is, and be back again in no time." Nessa tried to smile encouragingly. "I'll get you a cup of tea."

She brought it and set it before the poor old lady; then she listened because she had a sick longing to hear Tony's mother talk. Poor little old lady! Rather sweet. Old-fashioned. She wished that she could remember her own mother.

"He liked London," said his mother. "Different from me. I'm simple. Country born and bred. I have got a little cottage in Sussex, and that has meant everything to me. But, of course, it wasn't good enough for Tony. You couldn't expect it, could you?"

"I don't know," said Nessa. A cottage in Sussex, a home! Oh, the price of it! Yet there were fools like Tony who chucked away everything.

"It's been a little lonely lately," quavered the poor old lady. "I felt that I could not bear being lonely much longer. I thought perhaps I could persuade him to return. I hoped perhaps he might have had a sweetheart, some girl who would come and be a daughter to me. It's lonely, for he doesn't write. Boys don't."

She sipped her tea, a sweet old lady, a little disappointed with the bargain she had made with life. Nessa put her hands on the table.

"Tony went to Canada," she said. "He sailed six weeks ago, and he is going to do something really fine, I sort of feel it."

"I feel it, too," said his mother; "but Canada is a long way off, and I shan't never hear from him."

She could not buoy his mother up with the false hope that Tony would return. He wouldn't come back; she was quite sure of that.

"I wish," said the little old lady kindly, "that he had married a nice girl like you."

She put out an old, wrinkled hand and clasped the young, courageous one in her own. The pressure fused some spark in Nessa's inner heart.

"How did you know?" she whispered frantically.

She saw before her the things that she had never possessed and for which she had longed. Home, mother, sweetness, a stake in the land!

"Know?" echoed the old lady. Nessa went on a little breathlessly:

"We were married a couple of months ago. He didn't want to tell you, so we went on living here. It was the idea that he wanted to make more money for me that sent him to Canada."

"Oh, my dear!" whispered the little old lady very tenderly; and then again: "My dear, I'm glad."

Everything happened quickly after that. They made arrangements, the two of them, clinging together. The old lady talked of the cottage shouldered around by close hills, with a garden before it gay with asters. She did not question the daughter-in-law's right to it. All so easy, too easy!

In the long, tranquil days that followed, Nessa only prayed that she might be forgiven the lie and deserve all the happiness that had fallen into her hands. She worked hard. She did all the housework, guarding the old lady like some precious jewel. She was proud of the garden, too, toiling in it early and late, prouder still of the old lady.

But presently she became conscious of a new emotion in her heart. She found herself being sought after by Luke James. Luke was a farmer, a steady-going young man. He had never cared for Tony, and could not understand how a wise, hard-working girl like Nessa could ever have brought herself to marry him.

In her whitewashed attic under the inclining eaves Nessa sat wondering, and saw the web of circumstances knotting round her. She loved Luke—and he was barred to her by an imaginary marriage. She was a cheat, an impostor, and she could not escape from her imposture—could not disillusion the woman she had come to love as if she were her own mother.

The old lady was growing frail. Her years were running out, and in this her St. Martin's summer she was radiantly happy.

Then, one day, as she was wiping the sweet, clean cups in the tiny kitchen, and the old lady was asleep before the fire, Nessa heard a man's step shuffling on the path. She went to the door, and saw a tramp, ragged, with cunning eyes, standing there. Instantly she knew that it was Tony. She felt her mouth go dry.

"You!" she said.

"Yes; I've had bad luck. I've come home to mother. What are you doing here?"

She gulped hard, prayed desperately for help, but her brain seemed to be foggy and would not work. Then she said:

"I'm seeing after your mother. She thinks I am your wife."

Tony laughed.

"Well, she'll very soon find that's a lie," he said brutally.

He tried to push past her, but Nessa held the door.

"No," she said, "it would hurt her to see you like that. She's old. She believes in you, Tony, and if she saw you now she'd know."

"You mean you are going to keep me from my own mother?"

She tried hard to think. Tony had a right here; it was his home. But she also had a right if love could give it to her, the right to protect the old lady.

"She can't see you like that," she said. "Tony, you mustn't. Have you no respect for her feelings?"

"I want a home," he said grimly.

"I want money, food, clothes. She can give me all those; that's what I care about."

"And love?" said Nessa.

"Love doesn't feed a man."

Her mind suddenly worked.

"If I give you all those things will you leave her alone? I can make you up a comfortable bed for a night or two. Nobody must know. I will help you, Tony, if you will help me."

She saw flicker across his face for a moment some of that handsome, devil-may-care attraction which had held her before. Now it only repulsed her.

"Oh, all right," he said; "but I shan't hold my tongue. You, with your lying ways, doing a chap out of his own home and his mother."

She went about her work with a heavy heart. She made up a bed in the wash-house, made it comfortable, unearthing for him an old but clean suit that she had found put away. She washed and ironed his shirt, mending it neatly. During it all her heart was sinking. How could she get rid of him? What could she do? He had a right to his own home, and, on the face of things, she appeared wrong. She was wrong. She knew what the world would think of her.

When Luke came to see her that night he knew that she was worried. She tried to put him off, but she was afraid that her efforts were futile. Once, looking over her shoulder, he saw a man's face against the window pane—evil, malignant. An idea speared through his brain and stayed for a moment taking root.

All night Nessa lay awake, listening to the wind howling round the chimney stacks, listening to the leaves pattering against the lattice, and wondering what she should do next. If only she dared confide in Luke; but what would he think of her? No, she could not tell him.

With the morning she got up early and went downstairs to rouse Tony. "GENERAL . . . GRAHAM . . . the out-house was empty. She stared into it, horrified. Had he gone indoors to his mother? Had he betrayed her?"

Across the garden, on the little path that led between cabbage stalks and celery trenches, she saw Luke. He came to her and put out his hand.

"Nessa," he said. "I—I happened to know—"

"How?" she demanded in a panic. "I always suspected it. Somehow I guessed that you were homesick, and that it was none of it really true. Tony came up to my place last night; he had looked through the window and had seen how things were with us. He came up to make mischief—"

"And now you hate me?" she demanded.

"I love you more than ever. I told Tony what I thought of him; a wastrel, a rotter, one who will never make good."

"He's gone?" she said.

"Yes, he has gone. He gave him his passage out to a new country, and in return he gave me, in writing, the undertaking that he would never molest us again. We have seen the last of him, my dear—brave, splendid little Nessa! Now we can be married."

Nessa shook her head.

"We can't. She thinks that I am married to Tony. We should have to tell her that he was dead, and that would be too cruel. No, we can't be married."

"We can wait a little while," he said.

"It seems cruel—hard—I hate the idea. I love her—I don't want her to die."

He put his arm round her and drew her mouth to his.

"My dear," he said.

She went indoors with her heart brimming.

She went upstairs with the breakfast tray, and into the sunlit room. The old lady slept heavily; she was always so tired so very tired.

Nessa set the tray down and went across to the bed. The dear old lady would never be tired any more.—

Jubilee Excursion

Toronto, Ont.—Marking the 60th anniversary of its establishment, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is organizing a diamond jubilee excursion to the Pacific coast this year. A special train will leave Toronto May 25, making Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary, where local entertainment will be provided. The delegates will also spend a full day at Banff. The object of the trip is the 60th annual general meeting of the association, to be held at Victoria, June 1, 2 and 3. On the return journey, two days will be spent in Vancouver and a day each at Jasper, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Winnipeg, the party arriving back in Toronto June 12.

SNAKES—$15 A FOOT

At a recent valuation of the animals in the London Zoo, the tortoises were valued at $500 a cwt., and snakes at about $15 a foot. The value of the whole collection is placed at $175,000.

Russian Women Will Attend Night Courses

Moscow—Night courses are being opened to fit women workers for the more skilled branches of their trades and arrangements are being made for the nurseries, which are attached to most factories employing women, to function by night as well as by day.

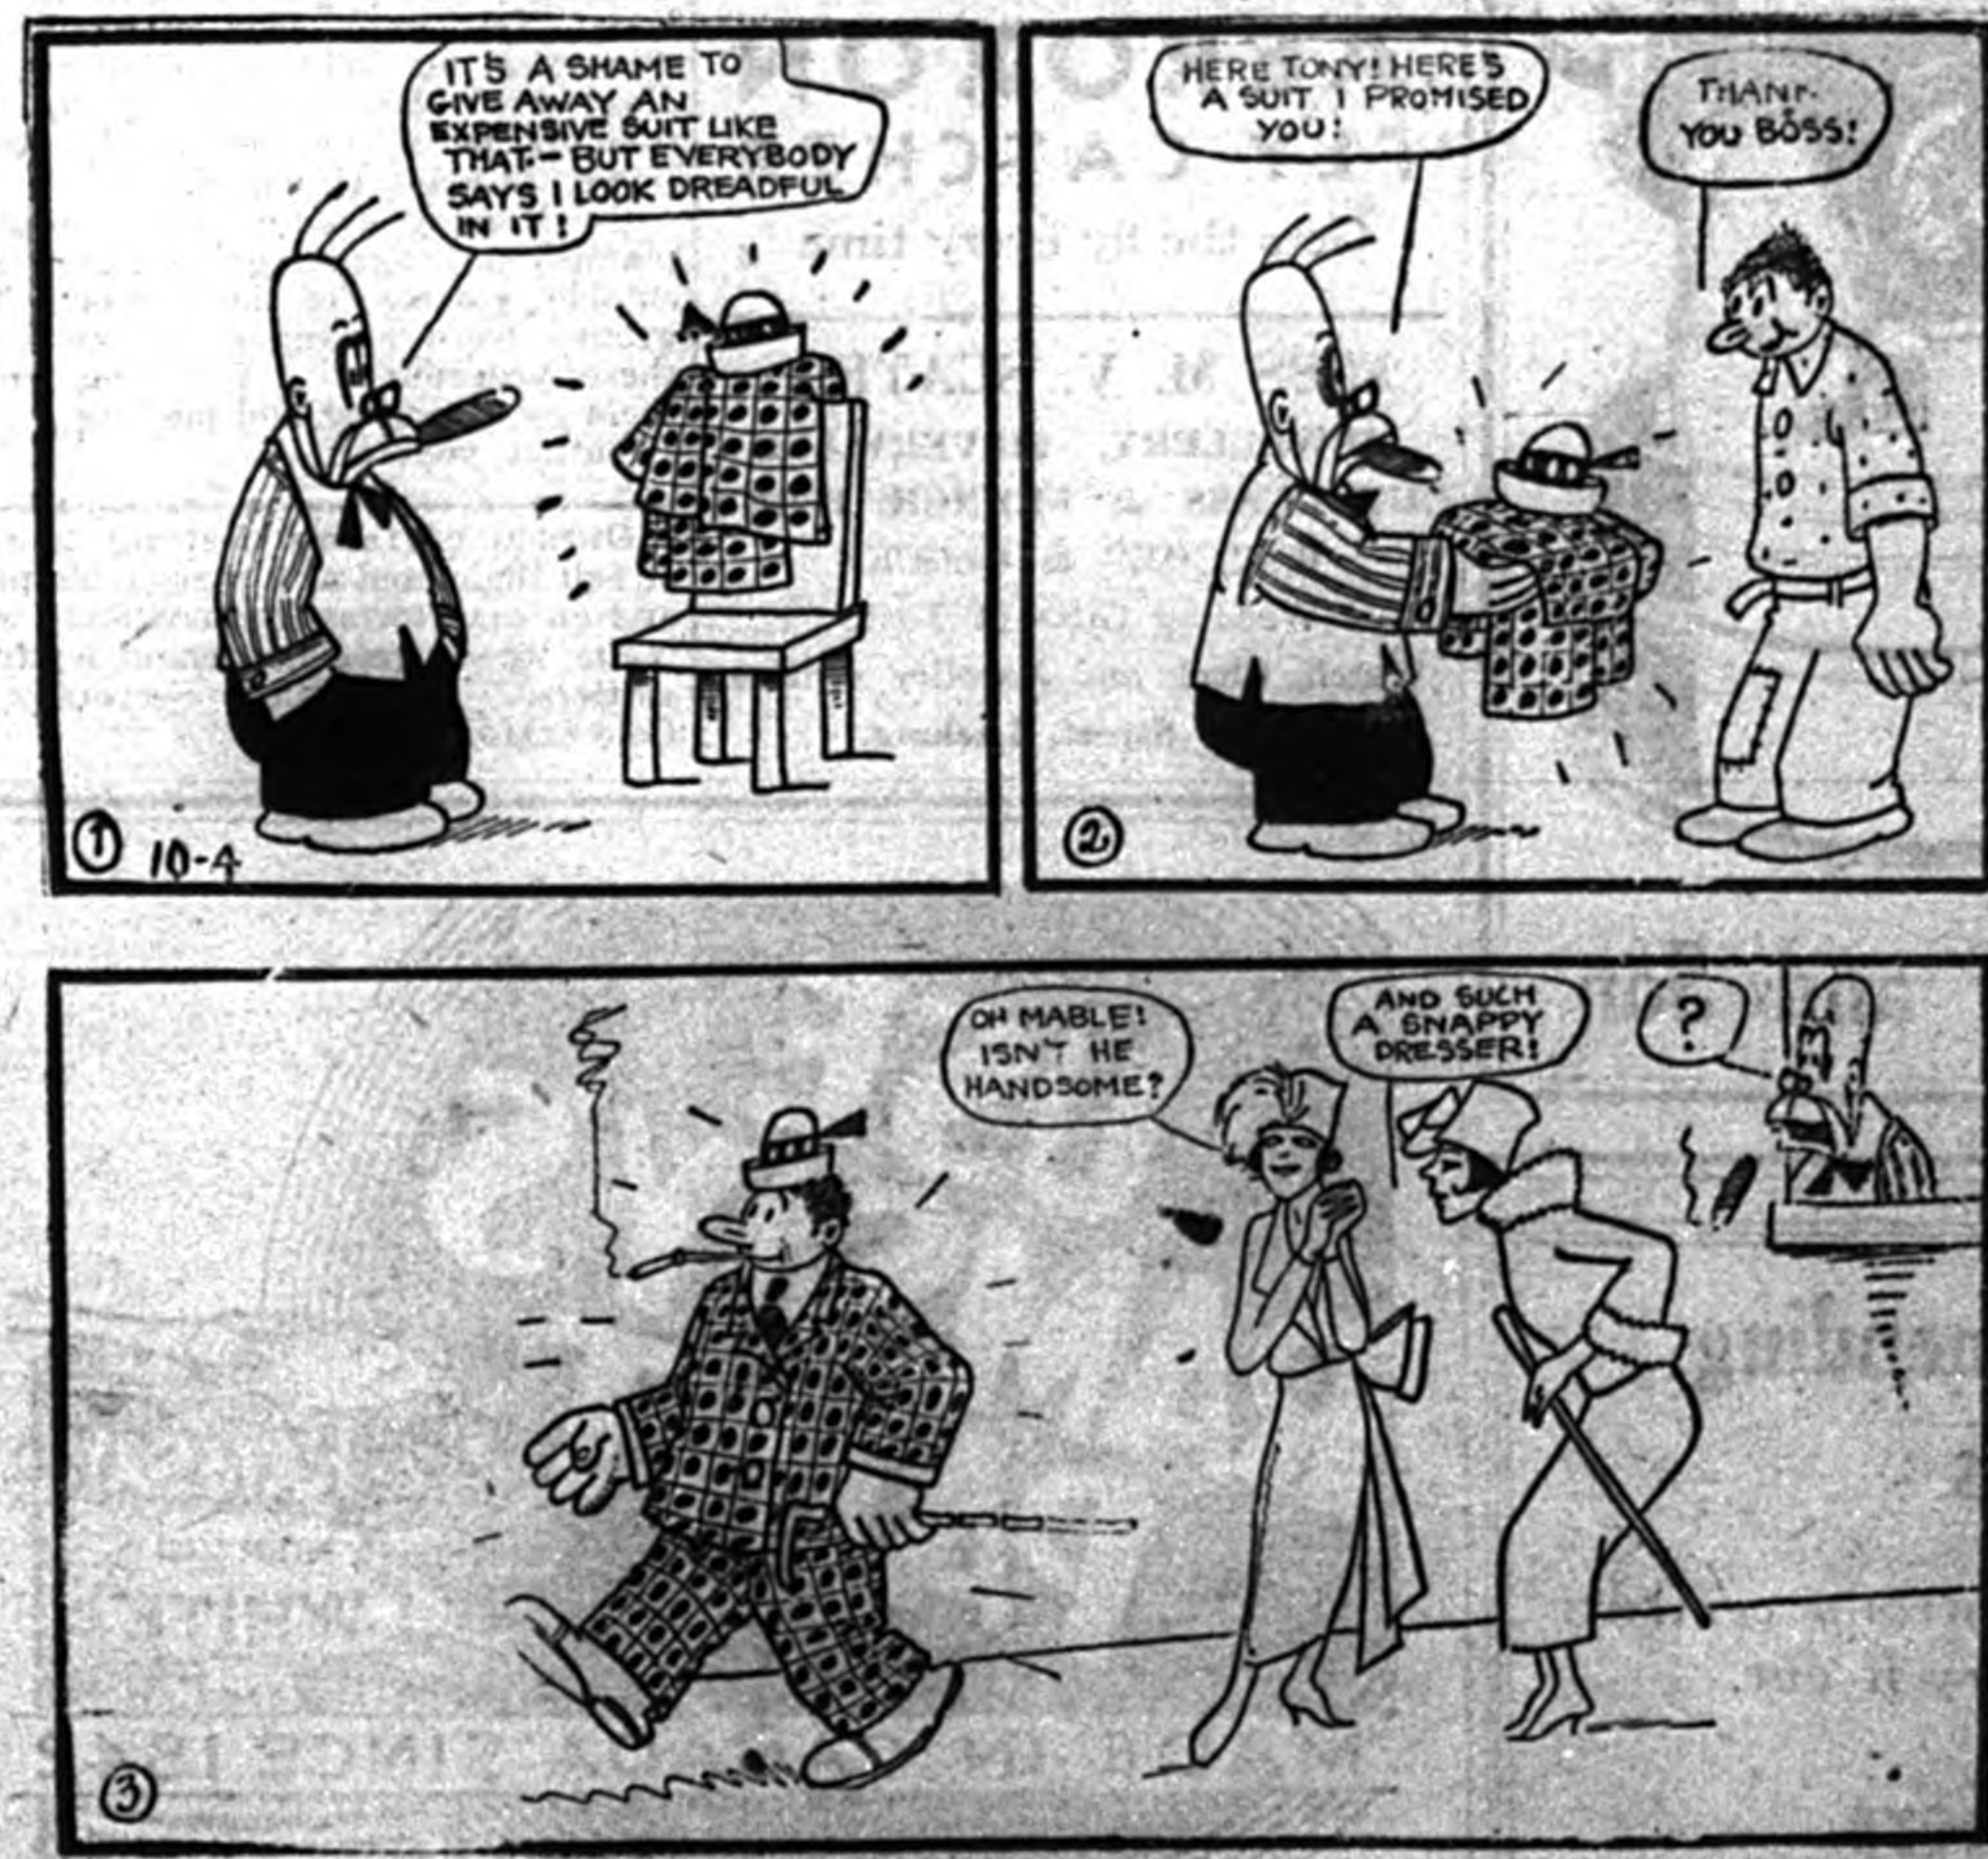

Shortage of labor has brought about a move for the supplementary employment of women and to further the Soviet ideal of drawing women away from the home into factory and office work.—The Christian Science Monitor.

French and English Families Dispose of Art Treasures

Economic depression, heavy taxation in Great Britain and the lack of economic stability in France, has forced many families in both countries to dispose of heirlooms and art treasures, declared Robert G. Roy, president of the Royal Art Galleries—who has just returned to Toronto, Ont., after a three months' tour in Europe. Mr. Roy has secured quite a large number of magnificent pictures from the brushes of Royal Academicians and other noted artists, in addition to much antique silver, formerly owned by notable families in Great Britain.

One of the most beautiful pictures is "May Day in Florence," by W. Papiasardi, from the art collection of the late Duke of Cambridge. Others are from the studios of such celebrated painters as H. C. Bryant, Margaret Davaston, Professor Mantegazzi, David Wilkie, Daniel Hernandez, H. Luck and F. M. Bennett.

ADAMSON'S ADVENTURES

His Attention Was Distracted.

Large Families in Brazil Given Land Concession

Belém, Para, Brazil.—Families of five persons or less are to receive land concessions of 67 acres, free from all taxes, from Capt. Magalhães Barata, Federal Interventor. Families of more than five persons are being given 134 acres, and the land may not be sold since the Government will hereafter consider it a family property to be passed on from generation to generation.

Captain Barata's decree with regard to these land concessions stipulates that the decree is applicable to former soldiers, sailors, policemen, laborers and fishermen.

Tokyo College To Teach Rudiments of Pioneering

Tokyo—In a nation as crowded as Japan, the question of surplus population is always topical. From their homes on the main island some go north to Hokkaido, some go south to Formosa and others go as far away as Brazil. When the emigrants make a failure of their new life, the usual explanation is that Japanese are poor pioneers. To overcome this handicap, real or imaginary, a colonization college in Tokyo has been teaching young men the rudiments of pioneering, to build homes, till soil, raise livestock and carry on trading. In a few weeks a group of fifteen will leave for Shihfeng, Inner Mongolia, heretofore of little attraction to Japanese settlers, where they hope to become traders, farmers and foresters of Mongol-Japanese amity.

Egyptians Favor Canadian Apples

Victoria, B.C.—Fancy and extra fancy Newton apples grown in British Columbia have scored a success on the Egyptian markets, and increasing shipments of the fruit are expected to be handled at Alexandria and Port Said for distribution to the retail trade of the Nile country, according to a report of the markets branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Forest Conservation in B.C.

Victoria Times: From time to time since Douglas fir established its popularity for size and strength the public has been warned that unlimited cutting would bring depletion in its wake sooner than popularly supposed. It has been explained that nothing like sufficient reforestation is going on to make up for what is being taken out. One way of delaying the evil day of the final disappearance of the mature stands of Douglas fir is to educate timber buyers in the merit of hemlock, cedar and pine—and persuade them to buy more of these woods. This is a matter in which every citizen of British Columbia is interested, since the lumber industry is one of the province's chief industries.

Italy To Mobilize All In War-Time

Rome.—Compulsory service of all men and women between the ages of 16 and 70 in some capacity in time of war is provided for in a new mobilization bill recently approved by the Council of Ministers and introduced in the Chamber of Deputies.

The measure places a nation-wide civil mobilization under the direction of provincial authorities, who will function the moment mobilization is ordered.

"Never has any nation lasted long when its wealth increased and its means of defending it did not increase adequately."—Admiral Bradley Fiske.

Why a Hen Cackles After Laying An Egg

The fact that a domestic hen usually cackles after laying an egg is interesting because other fowls and birds attempt to conceal the fact that they have laid an egg. The hen announces it to the world. This is supposed to be a trait inherited from the wild jungle fowls from which chickens are descended. These wild fowls live in flocks, several hens and a cock. When a female goes into the thicket and lays she cackles and her cry is answered by the others of her flock, including the cock, so she can find them. This is also supposed to account for the fact that roosters frequently set up a clamor when a hen begins to cackle.—"Animal Life."

Newsprint Output Shows Increase

The newsprint production figures for Canadian mills for April, following upon a considerable gain in March, are the most favorable for some months, and are particularly encouraging in indicating a somewhat more than seasonable increase. Total output of 205,838 tons in April was up 18,747, or 10 per cent., over March, 42,200 over February, and 21,413 over January. The total is the best since last October. Operating ratio is up from 58.1 per cent. in March to 64 per cent. of installed capacity—the best also since last October, when mills were running at 67 per cent. Compared with April of last year there is a decline of 22,296 tons, or almost 10 per cent., while the average decline for the first four months of 1931 has been 11 per cent., a total of 740,113 tons compared with 332,851.

Insurance Offered Against Twins

London—It's a hundred to five that your next child won't be a twin and you can take out an insurance policy against it being a twin with a premium of 5 cents.

Douglas Cox, London insurance broker and head of the firm of that name, is an authority on insurance against twins, popularly supposed to be a sort of "freak bet" arrangement. Cox takes the view that his policy is one of the most logical, from an insurance man's point of view.

For five pounds (about $25) premium, paid six months prior to the expected birth, a policy is issuable paying 100 pounds (about $500) in the event twins are born. Both children must live 24 hours under the provision of the policy.

Some rates, depending upon the frequency of twins in the ancestors of the prospective parents, might be quoted at $15 premium for the $500 policy, or multiples thereof.

Forest Products

Ottawa.—The annual value of forest products in Canada is placed at approximately $500,000,000 by the Canadian Government Forestry Service, and over 200,000 persons are employed in the extraction and manufacture of the products of the forests of the Dominion. Last year the value of these exports was over $291,000,000. There are about 3,000 saw mills and 108 pulp and paper mills in Canada. The saw mills represent a capital investment of $180,000,000 and the pulp and paper mills an investment of $660,000,000. The former employed about 45,000 persons and the latter about 34,000.

The Hour

In every man's life there come moments when he is called to decide whether to go forward or to stand still. Timidity says: "Hesitate!" Prudence says: "Be not too hasty. Take aim!" Self-interest says: "You may hurt yourself; you may run risks. You may injure your prospects of worldly success." But conscience says: "The hour has come. Go and do your duty," and everything generous and noble in the heart responds and says, "Amen!"

In the Sahara

Oh, you that stay in cities, saw you this pretty thing? The moon was new on Sunday, all in a silver ring. Now it is veiled and curious, no more a shining hoop, And the wind is in the Desert, and the sand is in the soup.

The wind that Allah bridges is free to-night to roam, Like camels in the evening, when the caravans are home. The tent-ropes creak uneasily, the soup is full of grit, And all the cooks of London have not the like of it.

I know years hence in cities, when Spring has scarce touched Spain, I'll yearn for mighty spaces and fret to see again,

As on some larger planet, the huge horizon's loop, When the wind is in the Desert and the sand is in the soup. —Lord Dunsany, in "Fifty Poems."

"Not until a new race of artistic producers is discovered will artistic films be produced."—George Bernard Shaw.

CO-OPERATION

Two fool jackasses — now get this dope—
Were tied together with a piece of rope,
Said one to the other, "You come my way."
While I take a nibble of new-mown hay."
"I won't," said the other, "you come with me."
For I too, have some hay you see.
So they got nowhere; just pawed the dirt.
And oh, my gosh, how that rope did hurt.
Then they faed about, those stubborn mules,
And said, "We're just like a couple of human fools."
Let's pull together, I'll go your way.
Then you come with me and we'll both eat hay."
Well, they ate their hay and liked it too,
And swore to be comrades good and true.
As the sun went down they were heard to say,
"Ah, this is the end of a perfect day."

SHOEMAKER MAIN STREET

There are many dangerous corners in Lachute, one of the worst being that of Barron Avenue and Foundry Sta., which threaten accidents daily, because of the careless & reckless driving of many speeding through. Some day a fatality will occur at this corner as there are no warning signs exhibited and it is blocked by the residences at each corner.

A couple of motor accidents occurred on Monday last resulting in painful and serious injuries to young Jean Paul Gagnier, who while riding a bicycle at the corner of Foundry, ran foul of a car driven by young Gain.
The collision threw Gagnier completely over the hood of the car with the result that he suffered a broken collar bone and a bad shaking up.

Little Phern Moore was also hit by a car driven by Ernest Belanger, and sustained a severe cut in the head.
Phern who is only six years of age, was crossing the road in front of Banford's when she came in the path of the car. Mr. Belanger quickly applied his brakes and so prevented more serious injury.

Just as the warning is given to Stop, Look and Listen at all railroad crossings, so Auto Drivers should Stop, Look and Listen at all Street
Crossings leading onto the Highways.

In the Cities and most progressive towns, large STOP signs are placed at these intersections which compel motorists to Stop, Look and Listen before proceeding, under penalty of a fine. We would suggest that our Town Council adopt this up-to-date method and so guard against accidents.

Of one we miss and loved so dear,
Memories keep you ever near us
Always wandering to a grave not far

Lies the one so dearly loved by all Treasured memories are all that are left.

You, dear Roy, who was one of the

Lachute Extends Welcome

Glorious weather greeted the directorate as they opened the gates to welcome the public to Lachute Fair on Wednesday. Everything humanly possible has been done to make this Fair the banner year of its history, dating as it does from the early period of 1826 when in February of that year Jno. McMartin, of St. Andrews East, acting as chairman and James Murry as secretary formed the nucleus of what is now the Lachute Spring Show, which is to-day a Class A. Show with beautiful Fair grounds, neat buildings and a splendid race track.

The Society was known as the County of York Agricultural Society, and about 1830 the adjoining County of Two Mountains was detached and the Argenteuil Agricultural Society was formed, when any practical farmer or gentleman could become a member on paying five shillings annually, the rules of the competition being similar to those adopted by the Highland Society of Scotland.

For many years the chief competitions were cattle shows and plowing matches which were held at St. Andrews East, St. Philippe or Muddy Branch and Lachute. In 1870 there were ninety five members with a total receipts of one hundred and thirteen dollars. The late Gavin J. Walker was appointed as secretary-treasurer and held office for forty years, being succeeded by James W. Gall and present secretary A. Bothwell (County Agronome.)

In 1917 the late J. T. Ayers was appointed to the Board of Directors and in 1920 was elected President taking a very keen and active interest into developing it until the Lachute Fair is now recognized as one of the leading Fairs of the Province.

Mr. W. H. Ayers, as newly appointed President has ably taken up the task of fulfilling the wishes of his late lamented brother, Mr. J. T. Ayers and is most energetic in bringing every thing to a successful issue.

The remarkable growth in exhibits each succeeding year is a striking evidence of the part the Society is playing in encouraging the breeding and exhibiting of high-class stock and from opinions expressed by live stock experts from all over the Dominion as well as the United States the results obtained today have been instrumental in bringing about during recent years what might be termed a revolution in the breeding of live stock and maintaining a high reputation for Canada not only at home but abroad for this particular branch of our agricultural growth and development.

It may be interesting to point out that the present young generation of agriculturists of this district are determined to carry on the good work of the past generation as evidenced by the successful formation of many clubs throughout this county under the able and experienced direction of our local Agronome, Mr. Alex. Bothwell, who has done so much for the young farmers of this district and also creating and fostering among the children the ambitious desire of doing their best in whatever they undertake.

It will be remembered that two of our young farmers won the Provincial Championship in live stock judging at the Sherbrooke Fair last August which entitled them to a free trip to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, where they competed with boys and girls from the whole Dominion. These young men were Stanley Doig and Leon St. Jacques and in this competition they won second place with a total score of 812 points. It may also be mentioned that Stanley Doig exhibited the Grand Championship Calf at the Sherbrooke Fair on which he won the Silver Cup offered by the Agricultural Association of the Eastern Townships. Another important trophy which is still on display at the office of Mr. Bothwell is the Sir Henry Thornton Silver Cup offered at the Sherbrooke Fair for grand champion group of three calves which were exhibited by Stanley Doig, Leon St. Jacques and Sidney Hutchings.

These honors demonstrate the value of their efforts in judging the best live stock, together with their ambition in breeding and raising even a higher grade and being satisfied with none but the best. The fever of competition is growing and the results have already borne fruit which is clearly shown at this year's fair now in progress.

The exhibit of Ayers Limited is of course one of the leading attractions at the fair, particularly for the ladies, and the remarkable display of beautiful goods turned out by this local concern of every description of woollen goods, comprising blankets, overthrows, rugs and other lines pertaining to this industry, drew forth much admiration, and surprise was expressed on every hand at the quality, perfection and make-up of the different articles. If anything, these articles were more beautiful than ever and the reputation of the Ayers Limited has been enhanced by their remarkable display. Perfection in workmanship, together with the highest grade of materials used in the manufactured article stands keenest scrutiny and bears competition with the same article manufactured anywhere on this continent or elsewhere.

Notwithstanding the extra stalls and stabling erected last year the popularity of Lachute exhibition has become such that every stall is full, every barn and pen is crowded to capacity, two large tents have been put up to accommodate the overflow and the cattle committee had to disappoint other exhibitors because of being too late with their entries. It is neither fair to the secretary or to the directorate that entries should be delayed and those who, knowing the time of entries close on a certain date, will now recognize that this rule must be lived up to.

The parade of cattle and horses are well worth seeing and offer many surprises to our visitors. Ernie Bruces Band, of Toronto, is furnishing the music and a very fine vaudeville programme features some of the most celebrated performers in comedy stunts and daring feats.

The firework displays on Thursday and Friday nights with elaborate settings that delight the eye. Then the midway, with its many attractions, merry-go-round and ferris wheel, where everyone enters into the spirit of the holiday event and age doesn't count. It is a real jolly crowd that are celebrating and with continued fair weather the exhibition should prove a winner.

It is to our credit that the Lachute Fair is the first exhibition in Canada to allow only federally tested cattle to be exhibited. There are at the present time seven veterinaries from the Federal Department who are working through this county making it an accredited area for tuberculosis.

The public are assured of a good meal, well served, at moderate prices, as the Ladies of the Red Cross are taking charge of the Dining Room and Refreshment Booths of the building.

Mr. W. J. Keyes is again on hand demonstrating the advantages of Lowe's Paints and Varnishes, and the well-known figures of Messrs. Berthume and Gratton are advocates for the celebrated Purity Flour. Then Mr. Levesque and his bevy of assistants are elaborating on Standard Brand Products, and the public are refreshed when partaking of the delightful Chase and Sanbourne coffee and delicious cake. The Five Roses Flour is represented by Messrs. Frappier and Pineault who are enthusiastic boosters for their particular line. The Canada Linseed Oil and Co-operative Federal, are advocating the superiority of their varied cattle feeds.

Demonstrating the good uses of the De Forest Radio and New Williams Sewing Machines is Mr. J. W. Lefebvre and his son George, and the firmly established firm of Ramsay's Paints is upheld by Mr. J. R. Lalonde. A very interesting exhibit is that of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa, which is creating much attention because of its educative value.

Among the principal exhibitors of Ayrshire cattle are Messrs. J. H. Black, Wm. J. Rodger, Rodger Bros., Jno. P. Bradley, C. J. Miller and Irvin Bain, of Lachute; McOuat Bros., of St. Andrews; Hon. Henry Miles, of Pt. Fortune; G. D. Mode, of Vankleek Hill; M. & D. Smith, of St. Hermas; Jno. Heatlie, of Brownsburg; Arthur Billingham, James Lees, George McOuat, T. E. Kettle, R. H. Morrison and M. C. Copeland, also of Lachute.

Canadians,—Albani Sylvestre, St. Simon de Bagot, Que.; H. Charpentier, Clairvaux, Que.; Roger Charpentier, St. Simon de Bagot, Que.; A. O. Fowler, Kingsbury, Que.; Ernest Sylvestre, St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Herefords,—Est. J. T. Ayers, Lachute; M. J. O'Brien, Renfrew, Ont.

Holsteins,—Alderic Fournier, Albert Daoust, James Legault, Arthur Daoust, Leonard Boa, St. Hermas, Que.; James Hay, James McKenzie, Robt. Bradley, Wilson Bros, Lachute; Donat Giard, Ste. Rosalie, Que.; Amedee Maisonneuve, St. Philippe, Que.

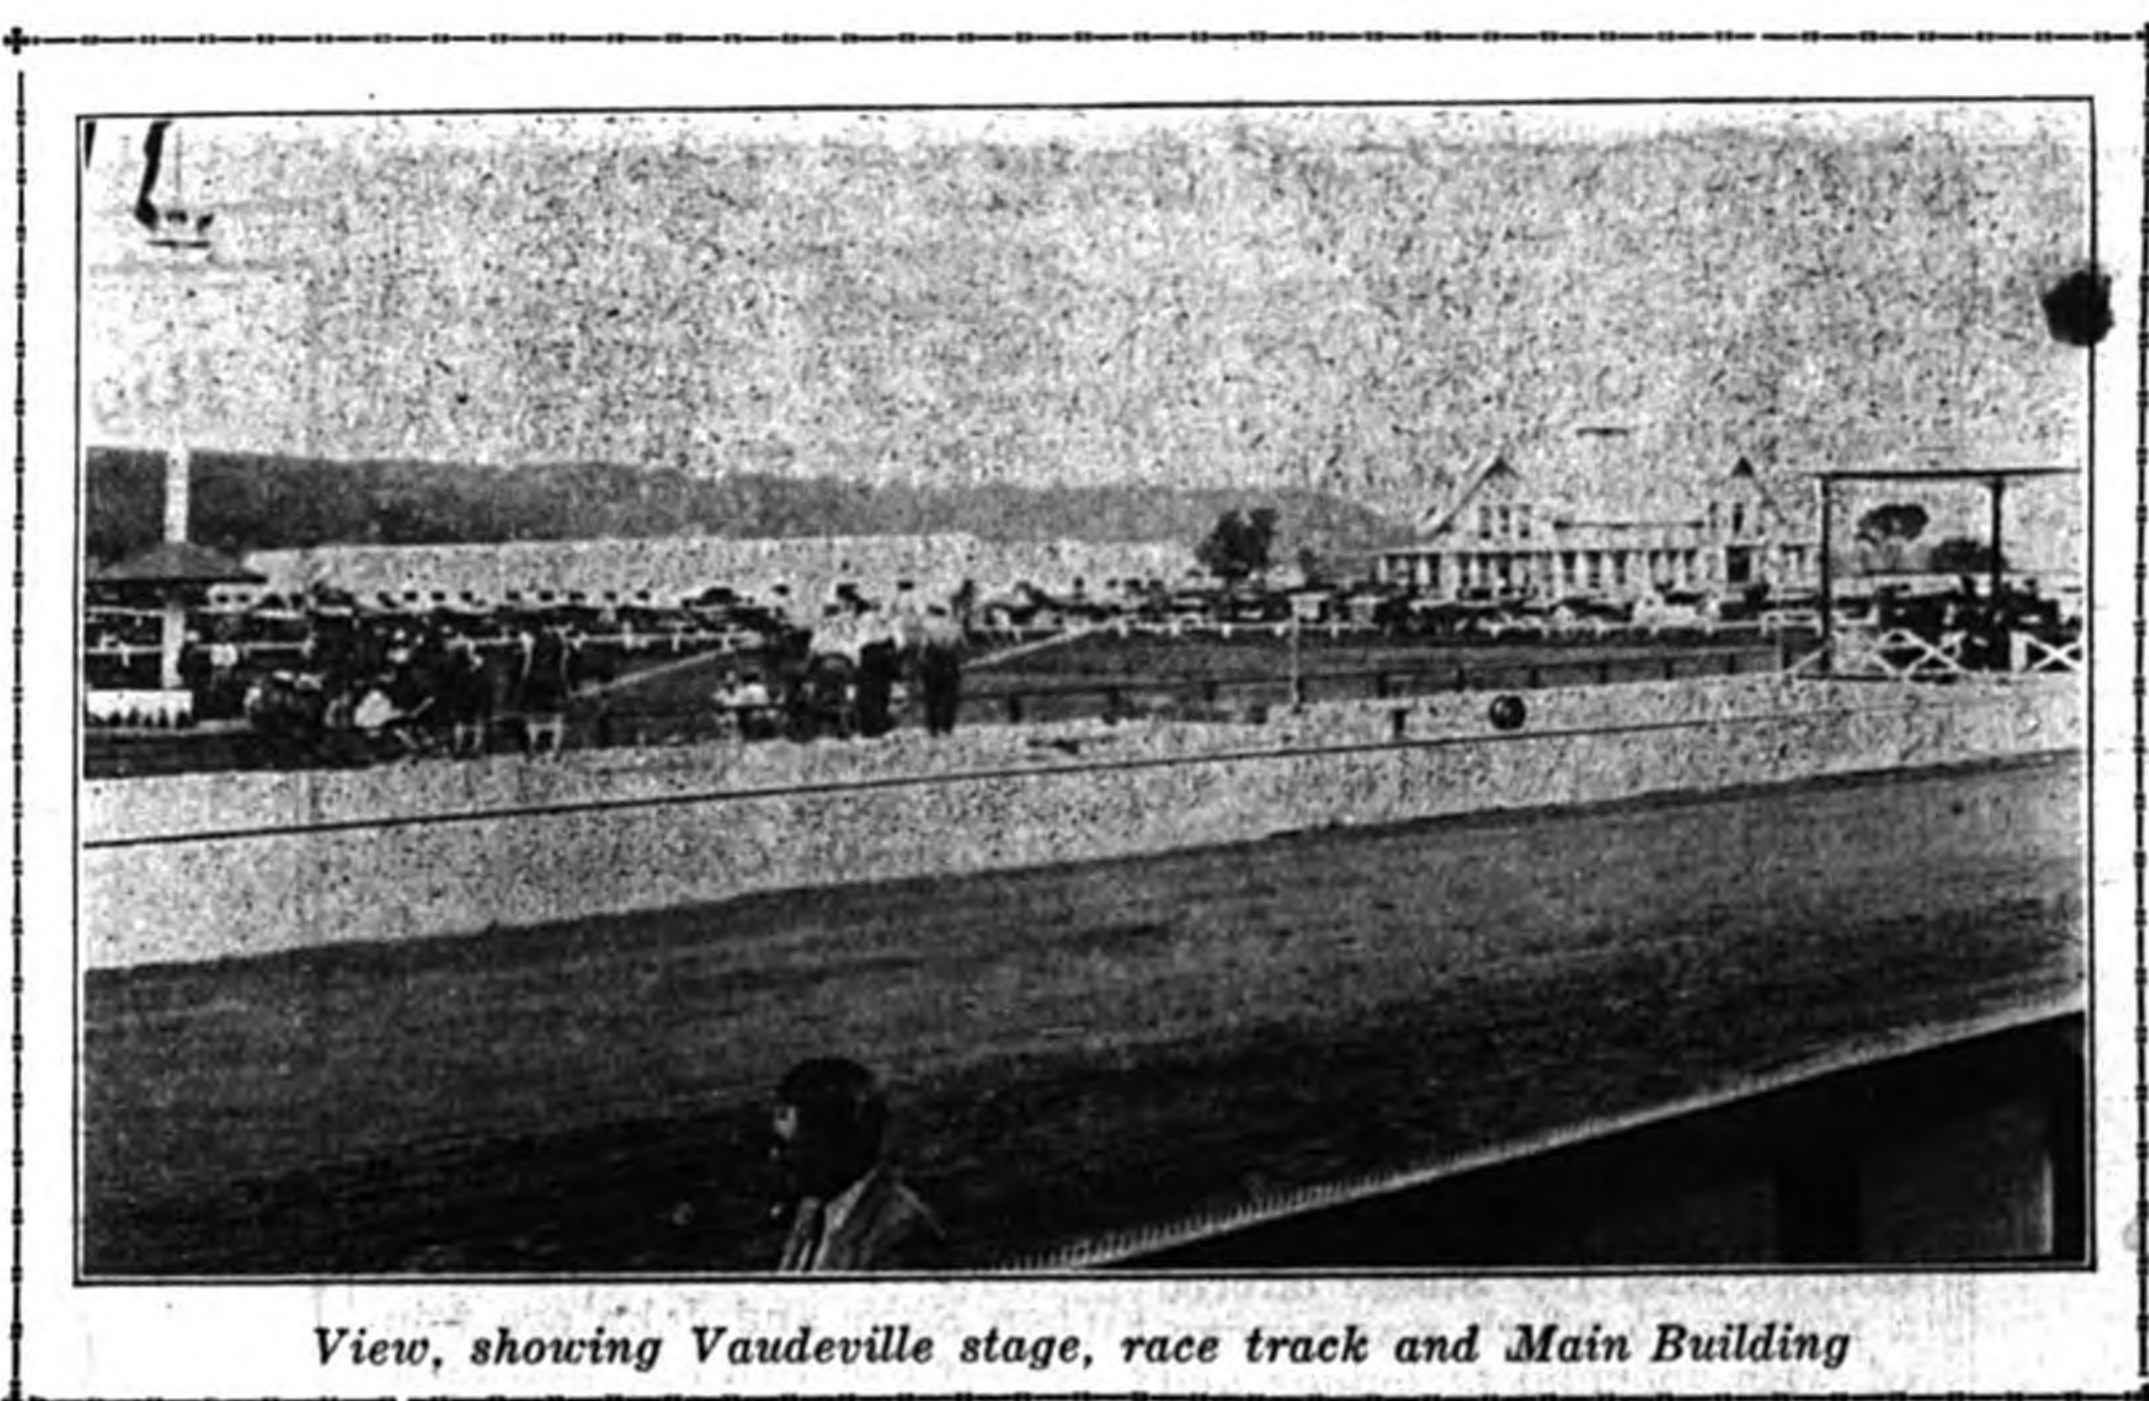

Jerseys,—John Drope, Hastings, Ont.; Garnet Kerr, Campbellford, Ont.; Allen Hubble, Havelock, Que.; J. W. Innes, Woodstock, Ont.

Shorthorns,—C. A. Beach, Cornwall, Ont.; R. C. Johnston, Danville, Que.; Greville Hampson, Ste. Therese, Que.

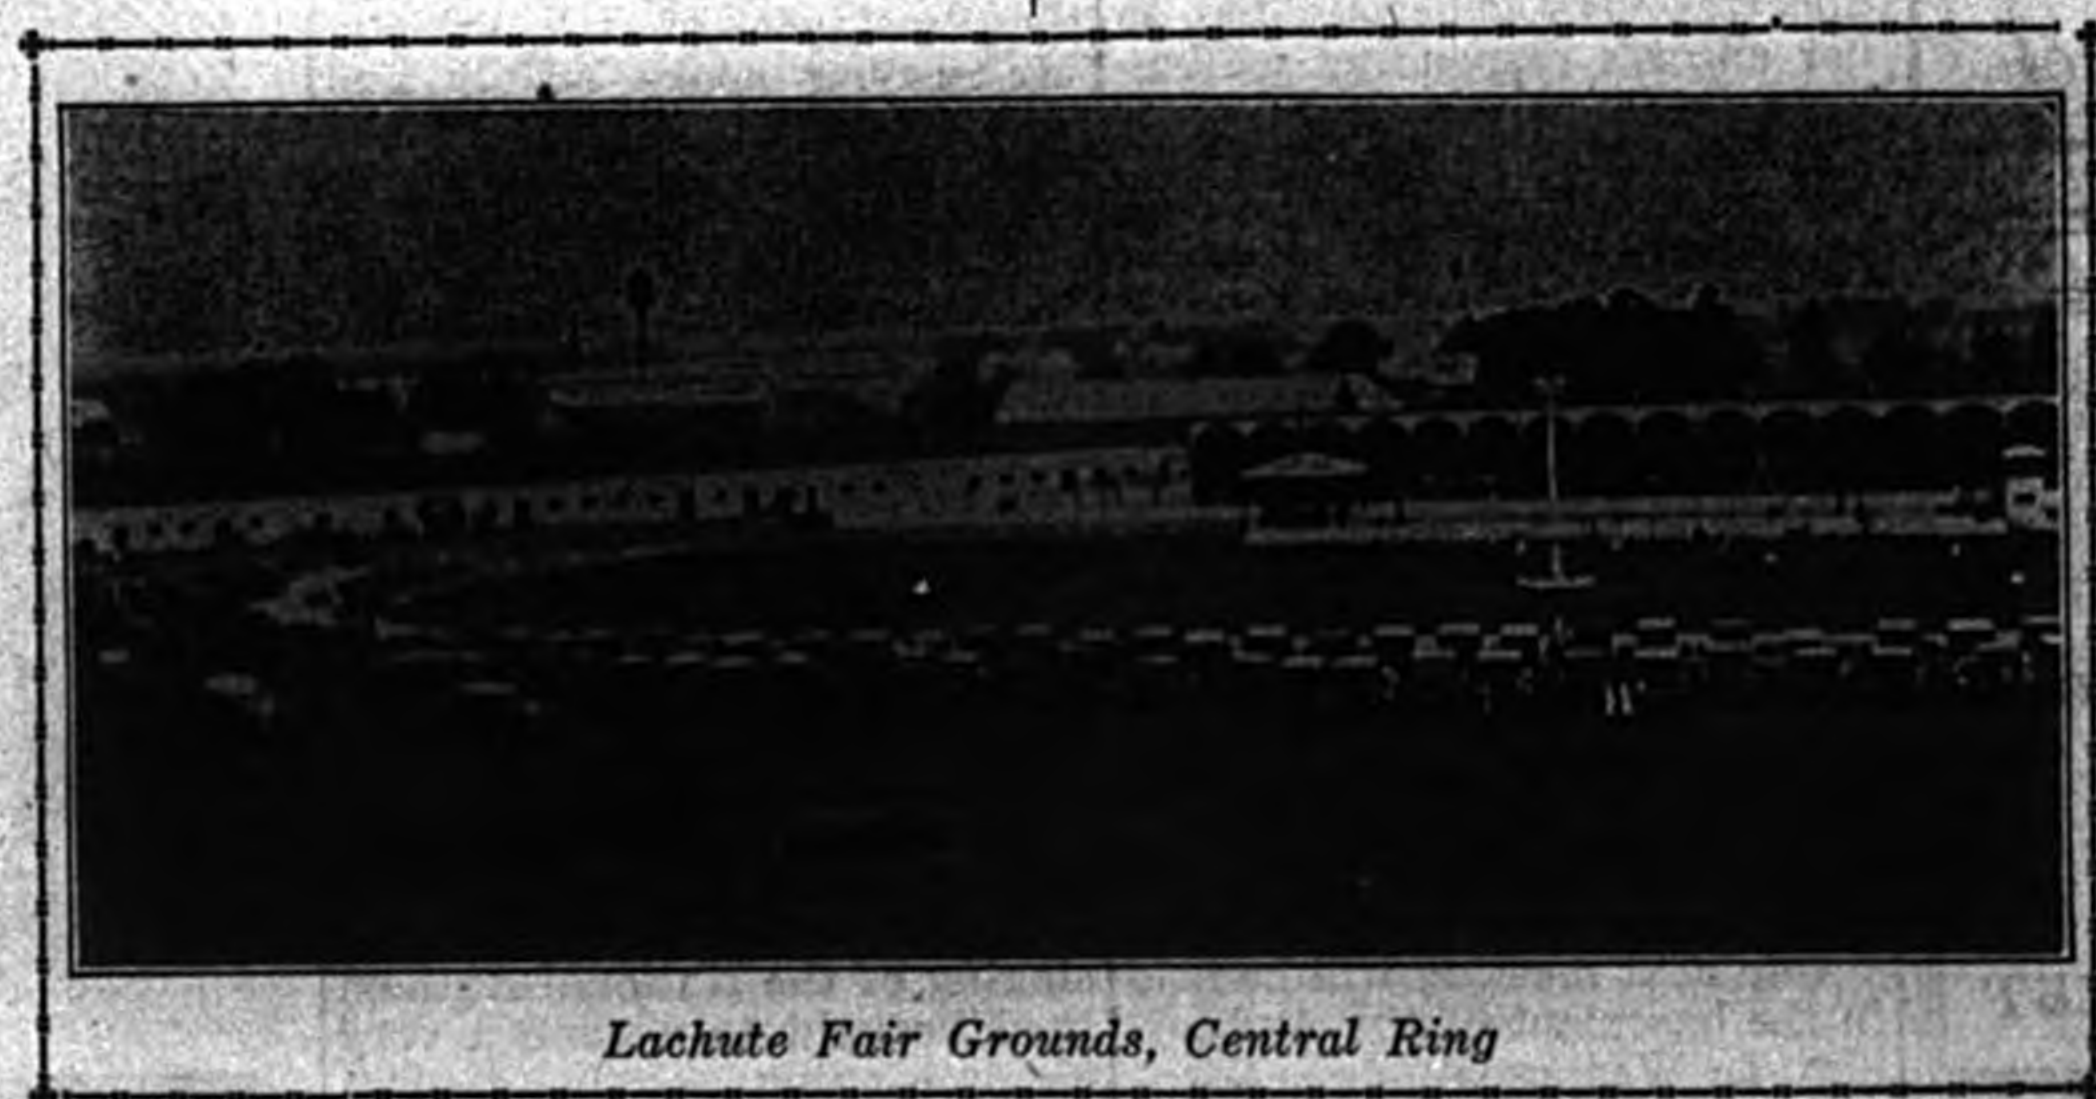

Aberdeen Angus,—R. C. Johnston, Danville, Que.; Edward Bros., Watford, Ont.

The lamented death during the past year of the former president of the Society, Mr. Jno. T. Ayers, was continuously referred to and the familiar figure of this gentleman who played such a prominent part in the growth and development of this society, financially and otherwise, was greatly missed and his untiring efforts in the welfare and development of live stock and agricultural interests in the lower Ottawa Valley will undoubtedly act as an incentive to those who follow in his footsteps in promoting and encouraging this Society to greater efforts. His memory will live.

BROWNSBURG

On the evening of Tuesday, June 16th. the Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Church held their annual Lawn Social on the Manse Lawn, and which was very successful and quite measured up to expectations. In point of numbers the attendance did not reach the high water mark of former years, but the grounds were well thronged with the congregation and their friends who annually turned out to enjoy the evening in the open although this year the weather was much more suited to an out-of-doors event than frequently happens. The day had been cool, was very still and tranquil. The grounds and booths had been carefully prepared by the men of the congregation, and hung with electric lights, the place presenting a somewhat fairy-land appearance, the candy and home cooking supplies, soft drinks and ice cream appearing in the usual generous quantities and disappearing in a manner quite characteristic. The presence of a large number of children with their gay laughter and happy play afforded an added pleasure to the scene, and the young girl waitresses, whom the Auxiliary put in training, proved quite competent in serving the large numbers who occupied the tables scattered here and there about the lawn adorned with pretty linen and vases of flowers.

A very excellent program had been prepared by the Choir under the direction of Mr. E. Taylor, which was very entertaining and well received. In this the choir itself featured in two numbers, both well rendered and sung with real spirit. The mouth organ band should be heard oftener, and their two numbers were a real acquisition.
Miss Ivy Steere offered a piano solo which was rendered with splendid technique and effectiveness. The mixed quartette, "Whispering Hope", an old piece, but ever fresh, was well given. Mrs. W. King rendered as a solo, "The Garden of
To-morrow" which was much enjoyed. Fred Witham in a combination of mouth organ and guitar, is always an attraction, as is Mr. A. Clarke with his saxophone. There were two splendid numbers of elocution,
Mr. Wallace Wilson and Mr. C.
Wheeler; and a solo by Mr. Jack Stewart. Mrs. Jaquest of La-chute, with her husband as accompanist, rendered four very fine numbers, and as guest soloist she gave very helpful aid in a program of unusual merit.
She was very generous, too, in her encores responding willingly to the applause of her audience for a return to the platform. Mr. Jaquest also accompanied Mr. Clarke in his saxophone numbers. The National Anthem brought to a close at a late and somewhat chilly hour, an evening that was well attended by a large number and a program that was greatly enjoyed by every one.

PRESENTATIONS

About seventy members and friends of the Lachute Literary and Dramatic Society met at Mr. Geo. Y. Deacon's cottage,
Long Lake, on Friday evening, June 12th. The weather was ideal and everyone fully enjoyed the splendid bonfire and the wiener roast. Many old time songs were heard again as all sat around the fire. Then all gathered in the camp where coffee and cake were served.

After refreshments, the real purpose of the gathering was disclosed in the following verses, composed for the occasion by Mr. Ted Hammond.

"We've gathered here this evening at beautiful Long Lake,
So as to be together ere we our partings make,

For some are going to leave us
and a long journey take,
Others are getting married, whom we congratulate.

First we have Miss Winnifred Gee, to Shawinigan Falls she goes,

How much we all shall miss her,
I'm sure that no one knows
She plays such lovely music and is an artist of renown

And I am sure Shawinigan will be a lucky town.

Now comes Ruby Rodgers, of the Bell Telephone, you see She won't be that much longer, she'll be Mrs. MacKimmie.

Then we have our old friend,
"John" who is the West End Baker,

When Ruby and John are joined for life, to a nice new home he'll take her.

Next to come is Ken. McQuat, who'll have a charming wife,
And now I know that Kenneth will lead a double life,

Then comes a word of welcome to Kenneth's future wife, I'm sure they'll be contented and spend a happy life.

Now we have Miss Reta Jones,
she loves Walter best,

And that's, of course, the reason she's leaving for the West
And so we have this gathering, to bid you good luck and adieu,

For no matter where you are,
we'll always think of you.

These verses were read by Mr. Clarence Rodgers and then the President of the Society,
Mr. Taylor spoke briefly and fittingly and made presentations from the Literary and Dramatic Society as follows:—To Miss Ruby Rodgers, an enamel kitchen set; to Messrs. MacKimmie and McQuat, silver flower baskets; to Miss Jones, silver teaspoons; and to Miss Gee, a necklace. All were much surprised but expressed their sincere thanks and appreciation.
The old song, "For they are jolly good fellows", came into use once more, after which the thanks of the Society were tendered to Mr. Ted Hammond and to Mr. and Mrs. Deacon. The singing of the National Anthem then brought to a close a very happy evening.

SUDDEN DEATH OF WILLIAM FRANCIS MASON

Last Thursday evening, while playing around with some friends in the salesrooms of his father's showrooms on Main St. William Francis Mason succumbed to a heart attack.

Deceased was one of our rising young athletes and was in his 20th. year deservedly popular, and his sudden demise is the cause of deepest sympathy.

Upon leaving Brownsburg school he entered his business career with the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, being later transferred to Huntingdon, during which time he made many friends and became a member of the hockey team that won the championship cup. His father interested him to return to Lachute to help him in the automobile business and he was deservedly popular.

He was the youngest son of Jno. & Clara Mason, who with four sisters and three brothers are left to mourn his loss. They are Eva, Mrs. Smillie; Ruby, Mrs. McAdam; Ena, Mrs. Chas. Prosser; Bessie, Mrs. Wm. Petley; Wesley and Hector, all of Brownsburg, and Harold, of Flint, Mich.

The funeral was held in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg, on Sunday, June 14th., at two p.m. After a short service at the home, the remains were conveyed to the church where the service was conducted by the Minister, Rev. E. G. Baxter, assisted by Rev. A. E. Hagar, Pastor of the United Church and Pastor J. E. Waltho, of Parkdale Baptist Church, Ottawa, formerly a Student Pastor of the Maple Avenue Baptist Church. During the service, Mr. A. E. White of Montreal, sang two beautiful vocal messages "The City Four Square" and "Someday We'll Understand". Mr. John Waltho, read the Scripture Lesson, passages from the Gospel of St. John. Rev. A. E. Hagar led in prayer. Rev. E. G. Baxter's message of comfort was from John 3-36 emphasizing the Reality of Eternal Life as being a present experience and a future certainty. The life that is united to Christ on earth he said need not fear the transition from the present life into that of Eternity.

After the service the funeral procession proceeded to Dalesville Cemetery, where the interment was made. A great tribute was paid to the deceased young man and his family by the host of friends who gathered in the Church and on the grounds during the service and followed the remains to the received from friends in New cemetery. Floral tributes were York, Huntingdon, Lachute, Brownsburg and vicinity; also from the Huntingdon and Brownsburg Hockey Clubs on which teams Will as a player was highly esteemed.

The pall bearers, all close friends of the deceased were, Howard Tomalty, George Stewart, George Connelly, Frank McGibbon, all of Brownsburg, and M. J. Hunter and F. Fortune both of Huntingdon.

The Way of Life

SETTING THE WORLD RIGHT

Carle Conway, head of the Continental Can Company, has a customer in Massachusetts who makes cranberry sauce.

One day when Wall Street was thinking that the world was going to the dogs, Carle dropped in on this Yankee manufacturer and found him very serene.

They dined together, and after dinner the talk turned to world business conditions which says Carle "seem to have eliminated prohibition from conversation, so that there is that much to be said in favor of depression at least."

The cranberry man said:
"During the war I was making cranberry sauce and we were not able to get sugar except at an exorbitant price. Every one in the industry said we had better go out of business because we had to have sugar to make cranberry sauce and sugar at thirty cents a pound would stop sales."

"I went into a huddle with myself that night and came to the conclusion that I would let the customers decide whether they would buy cranberry sauce made with thirty-cent sugar;
that I had just one job in the world and that was to run my business and I was going to let the world take care of itself, and every one else take care of himself, and I was going to
my business and solve the problems each day as they came along."

"I did not think it was big enough to help or harm the world's progress, but I did think I could help or harm my own business."

One thing which makes this depression seem more discouraging than others is the fact that all countries have been so closely knit together. In other periods of slow business we in the United States did not work because the coffee market was bad in Brazil or the corn plaster industry had collapsed in Timbuctoo. We had our own troubles to fight.

This year our newspapers, through their truly wonderful news gathering forces, have brought us all the bad tidings from everywhere. The result is that the average American business man is going around trying to carry the troubles of the whole big world.

I may be all wrong, but my idea about the other countries is that they are all having serious difficulties, just as we are, but in every one of them there is a solid backbone of people just like you and me—hard working sensible men and women who have their homes and families, who do not want to see the social order overthrown and who are doing their individual best to solve their own problems.

Ultimately, I believe, this silent majority will win.

In the meantime, when anybody comes into my office to discuss world conditions, I courteously ask to be excused. I am trying hard to work out my own salvation.

If everybody in the world does that the world will be saved.

The Family Doctor

By John Joseph Gaines, M.D.

"SIMPLE" LARYNGITIS

By this term, I mean the sort of "hoarseness" that has no chronic, tubercular, or other complicated nature. Its cause, is, sudden exposure to extremes of temperature, or over-use of the vocal organs in an improper manner. Clergymen get it frequently—and amateur vocalists; children with adenoids, large tonsils—and those who breathe through the mouth, from nasal or other respiratory infection.

The onset of simple laryngitis is usually sudden; its duration depends upon the treatment employed. When, in the case of singers, hoarsenes and husky voice appears. REST is the treatment; perfect silence, if it can be enforced, may be maintained for 24 or 48 hours and will produce wonderful results.
Simple gargling with warm water containing a mild antiseptic such as boric acid, is good home treatment.

"Croup," now seldom heard of
is laryngitis in the simple form.
For a long time diphtheria was called "membranous croup," singularly fatal before the discovery of anti-toxin; the improved treatment is little less than a God-send which has almost banished terror of this, one of childhood's most fatal maladies.

The simple laryngitis of childhood may or may not disable the youngster. The hoarseness precedes the loud, barking cough. The attack may be cured in two, or three days, by attention to the bowels and hygiene of the child; minute doses of any good cough remedy helps to dismiss the annoying cough;
I employ one with a little syrup of ipecac, to secure relaxation of the skin and to favor sweating; of course the little patient is kept in an even temperature until he is well; and his play outdoors should be undertaken gradually, until he is well used to the pure out-door air. Lobelia is very useful in "spasmodic croup", but it should be given under the supervision of your doctor.

Re-surface old walls and ceilings with Gyproc

HERE is a wallboard that does not burn, made from gypsum rock into sheets 4 to 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and 3/8 of an inch thick. It is used for interior walls, ceilings and partitions.

As well as being fire-resistant, it has structural strength, insulation value and is draught and vermin-proof. Use Gyproc Joint Filler for sealing the joints between the tall, broad sheets of wallboard.

When you are "doing over" any room in the house or adding new ones in the attic or basement, use Gyproc for walls and ceilings because you can nail it directly over the old surface.
Gyproc is also an excellent base for Alabastine, Gyptex or wallpaper.

Gyproc is Canada's pioneer non-burning gypsum wallboard. Ask your nearest dealer for full details and a Gyproc direction sheet. Or write us for the FREE booklet, "Building and Remodelling with Gyproc". 3748

Rocky Mountains Are Ideal Holiday Land

Beauty unvalued, health-giving altitudes, all the comforts that modern ingenuity can devise and "something to do" all the time await the army of travellers from all over the world, which annually invades the glorious Canadian Rockies through the Banff Springs Hotel and the Chateau Lake Louise. These stately up-to-date hostels, which open on May 15 and June 1, respectively, are not only key-points to the most beautiful mountain territories in the world, but are, themselves, located in settings of a beauty which has to be seen to be truly appreciated. On the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which owns and operates them, they are equipped not only to be "homes from home" to the travelling public and holiday-seekers in the generally accepted sense, but to furnish entertainment for their guests in many and varied ways. Auto drives, trail-rides, boating, fishing, swimming, golf, tennis, hiking and mountaineering, to say nothing of the famous Indian Days and the Highland Gathering, are all part of programs which years of experience have brought to perfection. Experts in all lines are in attendance to be of service to the hotels' guests and real cowboys, red-coated "Mounties" and true Stoney Indians lend color to a hundred variations of uniquely picturesque scenes. There is never a dull moment at Banff or Lake Louise. There is something for every taste and the rounding off of full days by dancing in cool and spacious ball-rooms, to smart orchestras, is not the least of the attractions offered.

The pictures show: (1) the Banff Springs Hotel; (2) a typical Stoney Indian; (3) the Chateau Lake Louise.

FISH AND GAME CLUBS' HELP TO SPORTSMEN

Many Fish and Game Clubs of this Province, members of the Province of Quebec Association for the Protection of Fish and Game have extended the privilege to fish on their property to all the members of this Association, and this has been instrumental to increase its membership especially among the Montreal sportsmen who did not belong to any particular organized Fish and Game Club.

These Clubs must be congratulated for this most substantial help brought to members of the Association, as this is rendering more popular the movement for the protection of our fish and game.

CANADA PREPARED TO PAY

There is certain stability of character about the Canadian people which is to be seen in the general attitude of the country toward this year's budget statement. It has been found necessary to increase federal taxes to balance the budget. The Government's expenditure during the last fiscal year, which ended with the close of March, exceeded revenue by $75,244,973. Canadian taxpayers appreciate the necessity of keeping the national debt within bounds. Hence there is general acceptance of the Government's policy to curtail expenditure wherever possible, so that another deficit may be avoided without heavily increasing taxation.

It is estimated that the Government's expenditure during the current fiscal year will be about $410,000,000. With revenue from customs duties and income tax declining, new taxes have been introduced to bring revenue up to about $403,000,000. It is hoped that, with improving trade, national income will equal outgo; but, in any case, Canada is looking forward without apprehension to the maintenance of fiscal stability.

When the Prime Minister Mr. Bennett, acting also as Finance Minister, brought down the budget on June 1, he could invite Parliament to view with satisfaction the recent response of Canadian bondholders to the biggest financial transaction ever undertaken by the Dominion. In the years immediately ahead up to 1934, Canadian war bonds to the amount of more than $1,000,000,000 are maturing. The Government decided to arrange a conversion loan, asking bondholders to exchange the maturing bonds for new Canadian bonds at a substantially lower rate of interest. The Finance Minister asked only for $250,000,000 in this first conversion loan issue. The bondholders responded by taking $639,816,500.

This evidence of public confidence in Canada's ability to pay may well be encouraging to the Government. Naturally, there will be no enthusiasm over the budget measures to increase taxation. But the people of Canada believe strongly in paying as they go along. At this time when taxes seem to be going up in most countries, Canadian observers appreciate that there are reasons to look forward with confidence to Canada's ability to make both ends meet.

A WORLD'S FAIR FOR JAPAN

Japan's plans for the holding of an international exhibition in the Tokyo-Yokohama district on a scale commensurate with the greatest fairs which the world has known are moving steadily forward, and formal authorization from the Japanese Government is expected soon. The resultant benefits to Japan and to the rest of the world will be great indeed.

Japanese often complain that their country is not understood in the West, and particularly in the United States. There is much justification for this plaint, but it is primarily Japan's business to clear up such misunderstanding herself. The proposed world's fair will work toward this end.

Undoubtedly it will draw the greatest number of foreign visitors which Japan has ever attracted in one year, and those visitors will have the opportunity to see many phases of Japan and of Japanese civilization which are naturally missed by the average tourist.

After all, a world's fair is a concentration on a small scale of the life of a nation; is, in effect, an index to that nation. Americans and Europeans journeying to Japan four years hence will be able to utilize the fair as an index. There they can obtain in a short time a comprehensive survey of the various aspects of Japan and of Japanese culture and industry. Seizing upon the subjects of greatest interest to them, they can—and should—then make an extensive and intensive study of those subjects at first hand by journeying about the Empire and witnessing in operation what they have seen only on display at the fair.

Hot Raspberry Biscuits*
Chase & Sanborn's Tea

For afternoon tea, there is nothing nicer than these same Raspberry Biscuits, shaped daintily with a tiny cutter—split, buttered and served piping hot, with a cup of perfect tea!

Miss Caldwell says: "Magic Baking Powder is easy to use because its uniform, high quality never varies. I use and recommend Magic because my experience has proven that it always gives consistently better baking results."

Try Miss Caldwell's Recipe for *RASPBERRY BISCUITS

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar

4 tablespoons shortening
3/4 cup milk
6-8 cubes of sugar
Raspberry juice or syrup

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Cut the hard, cold shortening into them with a knife, using a quick, short, chopping motion; or reduce the hard cold fat to tiny particles with a pastry blender or a steel-pronged fork. When the mixture resembles a very coarse meal, add the liquid, mixing quickly and lightly.

Turn out the dough on a slightly floured board, pat it down lightly or roll it to a thickness of about one inch. Shape with a small cutter or cut in squares with a floured knife.

Dip the small lumps of sugar into syrup from canned or fresh raspberries... Press a lump into each biscuit... forcing it well down into the dough so that it will not run down the sides when melted.

Place the biscuits on a greased pan or baking sheet and bake in a very hot oven, 450° F., 12 to 15 minutes.

Graduates in Medicine

The many friends of Ralph Percival will be glad to know that he has been very successful in his Medical Career, having obtained the degrees of "Doctor of Medicine and Master of Surgery from Dalhousie University, Halifax, N. S. this Spring.

Dr. Percival was formerly of McGill University where he studied in Arts and Medicine, and his many friends there will be pleased to hear of his success. The Doctor with Mrs. Percival (née Isabella Clark) daughter of Salter W. and Mrs. Clarke, of Lachute, recently left Halifax to reside in St. Johns, Nfld; where Dr. Percival has already set up in private practice. We wish him every success.

A new Canadian woollen mill which will turn out yarn exclusively is now being erected in York Township, near Toronto, for Patrons and Baldwin Ltd., large woollen manufacturers, of Halifax, Yorkshire, England. The first units of the new mill will cost in the neighborhood of $750,000 and are expected to be ready for operation in six months. The industry will give employment to from 400 to 500 workers and contemplated extensions, which will be undertaken at a later date, will probably double the cost of the plant and entail a much larger staff.

World's Grain Exhibition and Conference

Farmers Will Win $210,750.00 in Prizes

The World's Grain Exhibition and Conference offers Canadian farmers an opportunity to share in cash prizes amounting to $210,750.00. Comprised in 56 competitive classes, open to the whole world, are 1,701 cash prizes. A few of the major awards follow:

$2,500 a first prize for 50 pounds of wheat, 30 pounds of oats.
$1,500 for 40 pounds of barley, 50 pounds of rye.
$ 800 for 10 ears of corn.
$ 300 for 30 pounds of peas, 30 pounds of flax, 20 pounds of clover.

With this splendid opportunity before them, Canadian farmers should keep a watchful eye on their growing crops. They should mark for special care those areas that appear most promising.

It should be understood that all seed and grain samples, if they are not already selected, will have to be found in crops of this year. All exhibits must be received by the Exhibition authorities on or before March 1, 1932.

Of vital importance to the advancement of Canadian agriculture will be the winning of World Championships in 1932 by farmers of Canada. Their seed and grain exhibits must demonstrate to the world the quality of Canada's field crops.

Select the classes from the prize list most suited to the crop you grow, then select your samples from the best you have. It is best to make your entry NOW.

Your sample for exhibit must be in the hands of the Secretary at Regina on or before March 1, 1932.

Valuable information relating to the preparation of grain and seed for exhibit may be secured by writing to the Secretary of the Provincial Committee, World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, care Department of Agriculture, your own province.

Show what you grow and share what you know

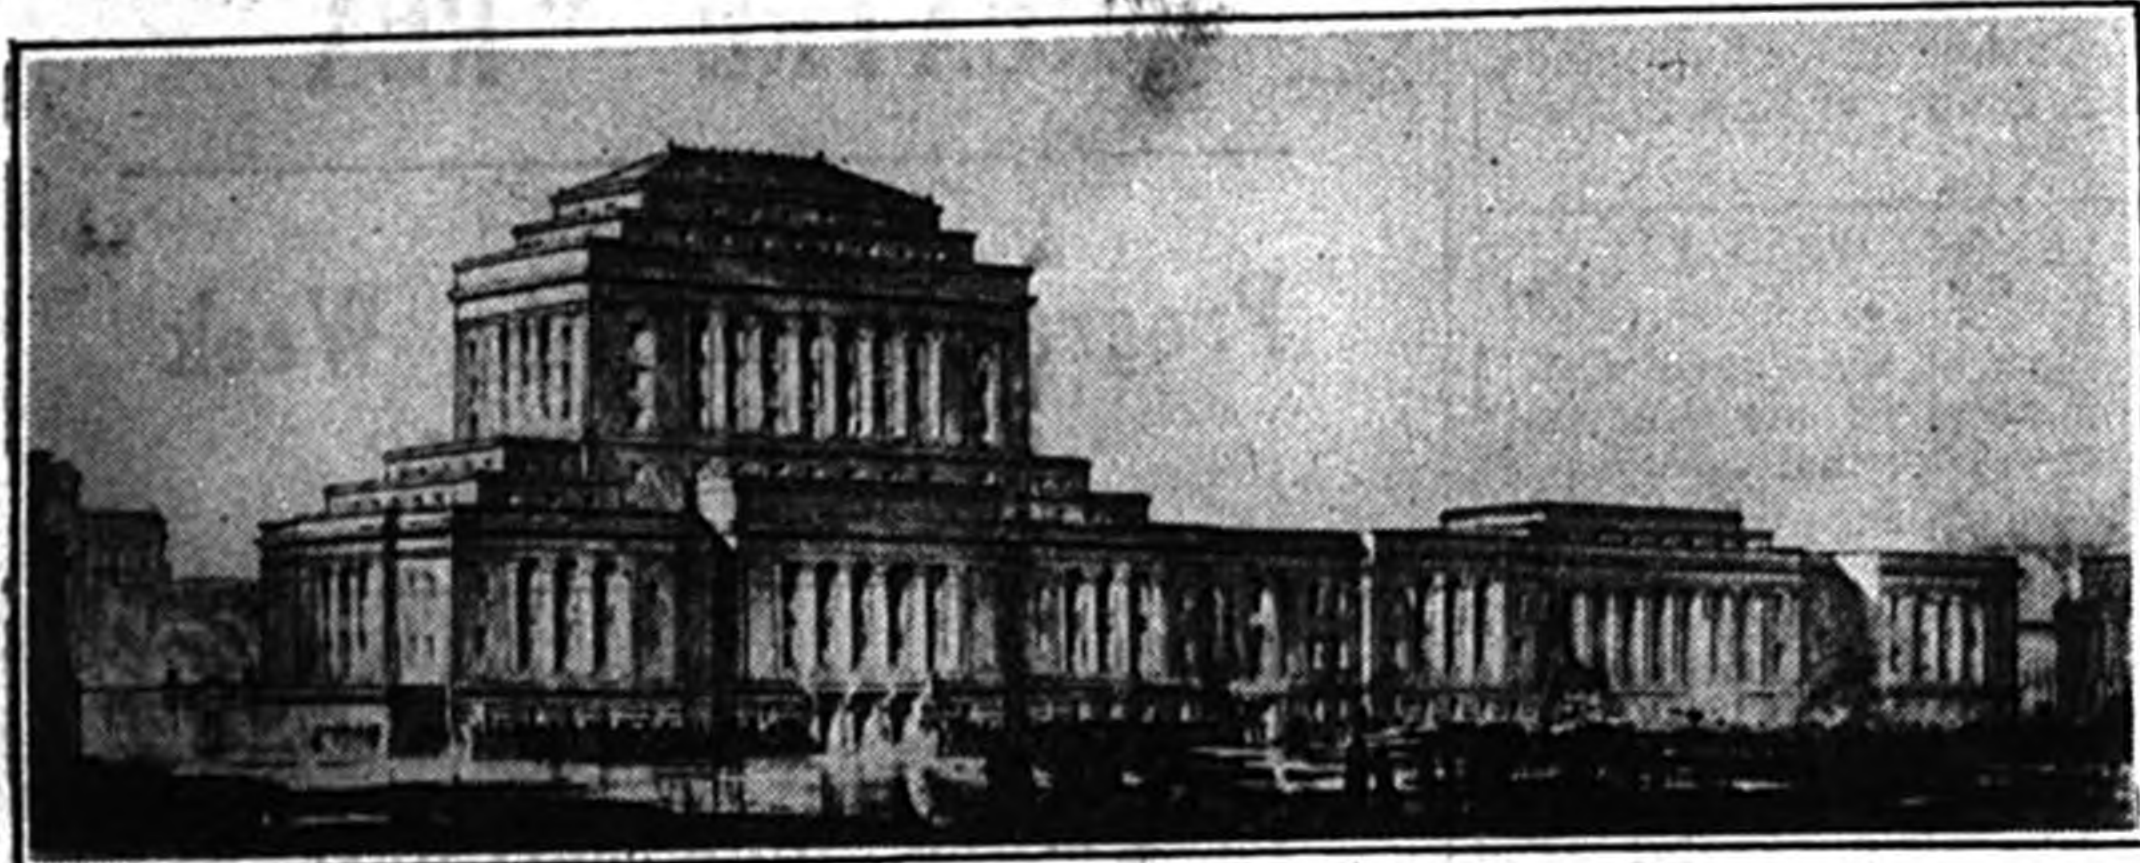

On application, the Secretary, World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, Imperial Bank Chambers, Regina, will send you prize lists, rules and regulations governing competitive entries and all other information.

New Christian Science Publishing House

BOSTON, Mass.—Continued growth of the activities of The Christian Science Publishing Society has necessitated expanded facilities. To meet this condition The Christian Science Board of Directors of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, will erect, as soon as plans and arrangements are completed, a new Publishing House.

Here provision will be made for the needs of The Christian Science Monitor, The Christian Science Journal, the Christian Science Sentinel and all other literature published by the Society.

The new building, which will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000, will occupy approximately 58,000 square feet of ground bounded by Massachusetts Avenue, Norway, Fal-mouth and Clearway Sts, Back Bay. Operations are to be hastened in accord with the public and private building program which Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, has been urging in conjunction with President Hoover's recommendations for relief of unemployment.

The structure will have a varying height. Nine stories at the Massachusetts Avenue end will be used for offices, while that part which will be opposite The Mother Church edifice will be three and four stories in height and in scale with this edifice.

The publishing building will be related in architectural style to The Mother Church, and its design has been influenced by the fact that in the future it probably will become one of a group of buildings which will surround and form a fitting architectural setting for the Church. It will be an all-stone building of the Italian Renaissance type, the lower story to be of granite and the upper stories of limestone.

Special attention will be given to the installation of modern heating and ventilating devices. The central plant will be housed in a building adapted to it, with an ornamental tower inclosing the stack, the tower to be of brick and stone conforming with the beauty and symmetry of the main building.

The building now occupied by The Christian Science Publishing Society, completed in 1908, will be used for the administration offices of The Mother Church.

The architect is Chester Lindsay Churchill, and with him is associated Lockwood - Greene Engineers, Inc., of Boston, which will have charge of the plant layout.

Honoring the Dead

In keeping with their regular custom members of Laurentian Lodge, No. 14, Independent Order of Oddfellows, paid their annual visit to Lachute and Carillon Cemeteries where a number of their former brethren are interred. A new flag and floral tributes were placed at each grave.

Tribute to the Red Cross

Pleasing indeed were the comments extended to the Ladies of the Red Cross Society, for the splendid service they rendered at the Fair grounds, during Exhibition week in supplying the meals and lunches, which is a most necessary part of the Fair. Those responsible for this week have justifiable reason to feel proud of their accomplishment and we trust the remuneration for their Society will repay the efforts and sacrifices made by the membership.

An Exciting Climb

In the density of cars that spun around last Saturday there were many motorists who had exciting moments, but the closest shave to a fatality was when the two inmates of a fine big car made for Barron's Bridge and mounted the big girders fortunately toppling into the bridge instead of falling into the water where they might have been drowned. Needless to say they were seriously shaken up and the car badly damaged.

Masons Attend Divine Service

On Sunday evening last some 50 members of Argenteuil Lodge No. 67, of the Masonic Order attended divine service at the St. Andrews E., United Church Rev. Mr. Macaskill, the pastor and Chaplain of the Lodge gave an inspiring address enlarging on some of the noble principles of the order and what they stood for. He was assisted in the reading by the Revs. Rosborough and Cousens. During the offertory a solo was rendered by Mr. J. F. Gorman entitled, "O for the Wings of a Dove." Mr. David Jaquest officiated at the organ and the choir was composed of members of the order.

Firemen Kept Busy

Quite an excitement was created at the Exhibition Grounds, when fire caught in a dump adjoining the Fireworks Building on Thursday evening but the services of a fire extinguisher was brought into play and with the help of some sand it was thought to have been subdued. However about 3 o'clock in the morning Chief Deacon and his men were called out. Fire had again broken out and gave the men considerable anxiety before danger was over. On Thursday the brigade turned out to another fire in the restaurant adjoining the liquor commission store on Main Street. The fire started in some rubbish under the counter and was away to a good start when noticed. However a couple of extinguishers kept it under control, but Chief Deacon had to break the side window so dense was the smoke. No serious damage resulted.

Lachute Fair Big Success

This year's exhibition will go down in the record in the history of the Society. The weather, although often threatening, held up wonderfully fine until everything was over and then the brewing storm broke with tornado force, uprooting trees, and deluging those unable to reach protective shelter. Both Friday and Saturday were unbearably hot, but having had a succession in past years of anything but favorable weather, one was less inclined to grumble.

Visitors to the Fair were treated to the largest exhibit of live stock ever gathered in this district. There was very strong competition in all lines and we are pleased to note that many of our local enthusiasts have again carried off championships and high awards.

The Hon. Sir George & Lady Perley, accompanied by the Hon. Robert Weir (Federal Minister of Agriculture); Mrs. Weir and daughter Dorothy; George Dandreaux, M.P.P.; J. L. St. Jacques, K.C., and R. L. Calder, K.C.; H. Carson, President of Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa; Geo. Rothwell, Live Stock Commission, Ottawa; N. Savoie, Secretary Quebec Dept. of Agriculture; Jas. Goutreau, Quebec Dept. of Agriculture; A. McLaren, of Buckingham; S. N. Hodgins, of Macdonald College, Editor of Journal of Agriculture; Prof. Toupin, of Oka Agriculture College; S. Francis, secretary of Sherbrooke Exposition; Clarence Goodhue, of the Raymond Farms, S. Boileau, of Sherbrooke; Rev. J. A. Lalande, Miss B. Lalande and Mr. O. Denis, of North Dakota, were among the distinguished guests. The Associated Screen News were on hand to take sound pictures of the grand parade of cattle. They also recorded Hon. Sir George Perley making the presentation of the Silver Davis Annual Cup to Mr. Gilbert Arnold for heavy draught agricultural team which he has won successively for past three years.

The fact that because of excessive entries the secretary was regretfully compelled to refuse entries due to lack of stabling accommodation will cause the directors to consider seriously the enlargement of their housing as Mrs. Poirier was obliged to house her ponies in a tent and many Jerseys were located in another tent, while it was necessary to triple up on some of the horse stables. There was fully 25 p.c. of both entries and exhibitors ahead of last year so that one may readily see the importance and stride we are making in the upbuilding of our live stock.

A pleasing tribute to the late President of the Society was presented during the fireworks display on Thursday evening, when in place of the usual set piece, the picture of Mr. Jno. T. Ayers appeared over which was written the simple words "In Memoriam." It was just a little kindly thought of remembrance, that was touchingly received during the sounding of "The Last Post." The work being skillfully performed by the T. W. Hand Fireworks Co'y. of Toronto.

Goes Anywhere!

UP-HILL, down-hill, over the ditch, on the level—it's all the same to the "Caterpillar". Plenty of power and "traction" to burn. And all the time it is working on less fuel per mile, or per acre, than any other tractor hauling the same load.

"Caterpillar". Look for the name on the radiator. "Caterpillar" was the first track-type tractor built—daddy of the war-time "tank"—it has been imitated but never equalled.

We carry a complete line of "Caterpillar" tractors, road machinery and parts. Write for full information and prices.

Bringing the family Home

Tonight is the family re-union. It has been a weekly event ever since the young folk scattered to various towns, each to make his or her own way in the world.

It started when Dick left to work in a neighboring city. Dick was full of enthusiasm, but apt to be just a little bit wild. So Dad started the habit of calling him once a week just to keep him under the parental influence.

Then Helen was married and moved away, and mother must needs make weekly voice visits with her.

And now Betty has taken a position in another town. Her voice comes home each week too.

Dad and mother gather all the news and pass it on to the others. It keeps the family together — and the cost of the three evening calls is less than a dollar.

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls begin at 7 p.m. (local time). Just give "Long Distance" the number you want — it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

CURTAILMENT IS NOT ALWAYS TRUE. ECONOMY

"Economy in city government is splendid, but there is somewhat of a tendency to disregard what 'economy' really is," John W. Reid of Detroit, president of the American Society of Municipal Engineers, declared while in St. Louis attending a recent Society conference.

"Many times the endeavor to keep taxes below a certain point has resulted in greater costs to taxpayers," asserted Mr. Reid. "For instance," he pointed out, "A city may have several streets that are badly in need of replacement, but action may be postponed in the effect to keep the tax rate down. Yet year after year more money may be spent in maintaining those rough streets than the interest charges and funding of a bond issue for street rebuilding would cost. In either case, the fellow who pays the bill is the taxpayer."

"Where people are massed together in cities the city must assume many and varied duties. The larger the city, the more complicated and costly city duties become. If cities didn't grow they could probably be operated at fixed costs, and the taxpayer might know with surety what his taxes would be five years hence. But cities grow and more sewers, streets, schools, traffic lights, policemen and so on must be supplied."

"Off hand, I know of no city that is adequately supplied with public structures, and by that I do not mean that it is a hopeless struggle to keep up with the demand. But I do mean that when a municipality makes a definite effort to reduce expenditures by side-stepping the construction of needed facilities, there is a very great danger of handicapping and imposing a surprisingly large burden on the taxpayer."

"Looking at the bargain prices that now prevail in construction work, I am of the opinion that the city that does not go ahead with its needed improvements, as in normal times, is indeed short-sighted and not playing fair with its taxpayers. Above all things work should proceed on projects called for in approved city and regional plans."

"There are still many unemployed men. I know of no large industry that requires the manpower that construction does. Contributions through local taxes and voluntary donations to welfare organizations have already reached large amounts. If, through provision for needed public construction, some of the money going for welfare could be used to furnish employment to men who would much prefer employment to charity, the city would benefit permanently."

"It is true that in many cities the efforts of private citizens and business leaders to relieve the distress brought to many families are only partly efficient because of failure of municipal leaders to co-operate, with a consequent delay in work-giving public construction. Oftentimes there is hesitancy on the part of political leaders in creating new projects. But if the project is sound and of a definite value there is no good reason why anyone should exhibit obstinacy. "Numerous cities are economically carrying on improvement programs which are affording real unemployment relief."

It is best to make your entry NOW. Your sample for exhibit must be in the hands of the Secretary at Regina on or before March 1, 1932.

New Lakeside Inn is Opened

Beautifully set in one of the most picturesque sections of Nova Scotia, combining marine and landscape vistas which bid fair to bring it fast into line of popularity with its sisters at Digby and Kentville, the new Lakeside Inn, at Yarmouth, N.S., was formally opened on June 16, as the newest link in the Canadian Pacific Railway's great chain of hostleries from Atlantic to Pacific. Readily accessible from Saint John, through Digby, via the luxurious steamer "Princess Helene"; from Halifax, over the Dominion Atlantic Railway; and direct from New York, Boston and Portland by Eastern Steamship Lines, the town of Yarmouth and its new hotel are destined to play an important role in tourist traffic to Nova Scotia, with its famed Annapolis Valley and historic Land of Evangeline. Sport and recreations are plentiful and varied. Canoeing, tennis, fishing, swimming and innumerable attractive excursions are only a few of the offerings. There is good golf available near Yarmouth and the hotel and its cottages form a comfortable base of operations. Taste and comfort have been skillfully combined in its spacious public rooms, broad verandahs and airy bedrooms. Its cuisine and service are conducted on the established standards, known to guests of the company throughout Canada.

The Way of Life

By Bruce Barton

....

I REASSURE A MOTHER

A Mother writes me about her son's reading. Among other things, she says:

"In spite of all I can do or say, he insists on reading stories. How can I correct this habit?"

Frankly, madam, I do not know.

It is about as easy to cure a boy of eating as it is to destroy his love for good stories.

Centuries before there was any writing, story-tellers drifted about from village to village gathering the people together & telling them stories.

The love of fiction is as old as that—older than recorded history, older even than civilization. It can not be rooted out: its roots run back too far.

And why should you want to root it out?

The greatest teacher that ever lived spent half His time telling stories to His disciples. "Without a parable (a story) He taught them nothing." These stories have transformed humanity.

One great story written in our own country, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," so stirred men's hearts that they said, "Slavery must go."

Good stories will not hurt your boy: they may, if he is the right kind of boy, inspire him to real achievement.

And they will do something else for him, equally important. They will develop his imagination.

We have too little regard for the high value of the imagination, we Americans. We are too matter-of-fact. We forget that all great inventions, all great discoveries, all great achievements in science or business, came to pass because some man first had imagination enough to conceive them.

Many men have been hit on the head by a falling apple. Newton, when the apple hit him, had imagination enough to formulate the law of gravitation.

Many men have been burned by their wives' tea-kettles. Watt had imagination enough to conceive the steam-engine.

Look through the pages of history, and you will discover that the leaders of men have been those who could dream great dreams and carry them out—the men of powerful, intelligent imagination.

Because this is true, the editor of a magazine that prints stories has a responsibility that he must take seriously if he is any sort of man at all. He is intrusted with the duty of stimulating the imagination of thousands of children of mothers like you.

He may, if he chooses publish stories whose appeal is to the baser side of the imagination—and even achieve a certain sort of circulation increase for his magazine by so doing. Or he may regard every mother among his readers as if she were his own mother, and every mother's son as a younger brother.

You need not concern yourself because your boy likes stories. But are the stories he reads the right kind of stories—do they appeal to his imagination on its best and highest side.

That is the important question for you.

SEE HOW FRIGIDAIRE'S PORCELAIN INTERIOR WITHSTANDS THIS... acid lemon test!

You know how fruit juices will ruin ordinary refrigerator finishes? Not even the acid of lemon juice can stain the Porcelain-on-steel interior of Frigidaire!

Ask the Frigidaire salesman to prove this. Watch him rub half a lemon over the white interior surface. Watch him squeeze the biting juice over the gleaming porcelain—and note that the acid-bath leaves no trace of tell-tale stain.

And with the greater beauty and greater utility of Porcelain-on-steel the advanced Frigidaire also provides many other unusual advantages. It is powered to maintain lower temperatures in the food compartment. It has the Hydrator, the Cold Control and the Quickcube Ice Tray. It has conveniently elevated food shelves, a smooth, flat top and many other features that add immeasurably to the convenience of Frigidaire.

We suggest that you call at our showroom and see the new models.

Our respected fellow-townsmen, Rev. J. R. MacLeod, D.D., is to signalize the passing of another mile-stone in his long and useful life by preaching at the morning service, in the Lachute United Church, next Sunday morning. It is characteristic of the man that the manner in which he likes best to acknowledge God's goodness to him, at the anniversary of his birth, is by giving a message to his fellow-citizens on that glorious Gospel which, for so long, he has lived and loved so faithfully and so well. We hope therefore, that there will be a large number present on Sunday morning to hear another "anniversary message" from this revered and respected man of God."
