NOMINATIONS

Things are starting to warm up for the Conventions now pending. There are many aspirants for political honors, but just upon whom the choice will rest remains a problem.

There is a coveted position in the Registry Office made vacant through the death of our late esteemed citizen George F. Calder. In the interim, Geo. Calder Jr. has carried on the work and given every satisfaction in the performance of his duty.
The appointment was to have been made long ago, but the Government have been hesitant because of conflicting influences, but there is now an insistent demand that the appointment must be made before nomination day or radical changes will be rung in by a strong faction of old time partisans.

Rumor has it that our present representative Geo. Dansereau, M.P.P., is to be faced with opposition from his own party and there is considerable talk of Notary Lavigne and Albani La-marche coming forward for the Conservative Nomination. As will be seen by the announcement elsewhere, the Liberals are holding their convention next Tuesday, Aug. 11th, at which the Hon. L. A. David, Provincial Secretary, and the Hon. Jacob Nicol are to be the chief speakers.

The Licop Block, on Main St., was the scene of considerable excitement around the midnight hour on Monday last. An alarm was turned in for fire which had broken out in the basement, the cause of which led to a strong argument between Geo. Licop, the proprietor of the block and one of his tenants, Mr. Genereux resulting in Licop being slashed across the face, which required seven stitches to adjust the injury. The altercation took place on Main Street and from evidence produced at the trial on Tuesday, it appears that Licop and Genereux got into a scuffle and Kouri, who is in charge of the St. Jerome store adjoining, pulled Licop off, during which Licop was slashed across the face. Arrests followed and Mr.
Kouri was liberated on $1,000 bail and Mr. Genereux on $2,000.

Miss A. Cottingham spent the week-end visiting friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Y. Deacon are attending the Fire Chief's Convention at Shawinigan Falls

Mrs. Holstead, of Montreal, is spending this week, the guest of Mrs. H. Caerson, at Lake Louis.

thur and daughters Lorna and Mavis, of Ottawa, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walker McArthur over the week-end.

Miss McKerracher, of St.
Andrews East, Mrs. Flower &
Miss Betty Flower, also Miss Marion Coate of Montreal, were in Lachute, on a short visit on Tuesday last.

Miss Marion Stewart, nurse in training at the Homeopathic Hospital, Montreal, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Stewart, of Brownsburg.

Mrs. J. H. Derrick, of Dalesville, has returned home from attending the funeral of her sister, Mrs. W. Simpson, who passed away at her home in Patterson, N. J., on July 29th.

Misses Lulu Miller, Ruth Campbell, Eileen McGibbon and Kathleen Clunie, of the United Senior C. G. I. T. are now attending the summer camp for Canadian Girls in Training at Magog Lake.

Mrs. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. David Brown and family, of Lachute, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brown, of Lakefield, and Mr. Daniel Brown of Dunany, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Wm. John Brown, of Shrewsbury.

We are pleased to note that in the Sports' Contest of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire League held in Cornwall on August 3rd., our young athlete Joey Berniquier was one of the contestants and while Jack Portland, of Collingwood, Ont., captured the honors in the high jump at 5 ft. 9 1/2, in which there were 10 competitors Joey ranked with two others at 5 ft. 9, so that Lachute Academy may well feel proud of its representative.

Miss Stella Scott is spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs.
H. Hodgson, of Hudson.

Mrs. R. S. MacArthur and daughter Jeannette are spending this week at Clear Lake.

Mrs. Gruer & daughter Margaret, of Ottawa, are the guests of her mother, Mrs. T. Fraser.

Mrs. N. Holland, of Montreal, was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Carpenter
last week.

Miss C. Rastoul, of Ste. Hy-acinthe, is the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Z.
Charron in town.

Mr. Jos. Berniquier was taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital, Montreal, on Tuesday last, to undergo treatment.

Miss Eva Scott has returned home, after spending three weeks with her sister, Mrs. H.
Hodgson of Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carpenter and family, of Montreal, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Carpenter.

Miss Stella Hodgson has returned home, after spending the past three weeks, with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. W.
H. Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Moore and daughter, of Gray Valley, were in town on Sunday, attending the funeral of his aunt, the late Miss A. L. Moore.

Master Elmer Melrose, of Montreal, has returned home, after spending four weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs.
W. H. Scott.

Mrs. A. Graham and son John and daughters Doris and Isa-bella, motored from London, Ont., and spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Scott.

Dr. Higginson, of Hawkesbury, who has been in Toronto at the Veterinary Faculty, of Toronto University, for the special summer course, has resumed his professional duties.

Miss Jeannette MacArthur, nurse in training at the Homeopathic Hospital, Montreal, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S.
MacArthur, at Lachute Mills.

gaard, Miss A. Meyer, Mr. W.
Winkler, Mr. C. Hasseibaich, Mr. H. Jorgensen, Mr. P. Bro-dahl, Mr. G. Mathiasson, Mr. C.
Knudsen, all of Montreal.

Messrs. Germain Filion and Guy Legault left on Wednesday morning on the C. P. R. liner "Empress of Britain" for a three weeks trip to England, during which they intend making a hurried visit to Paris, Belgium, Switzerland and as many places as time will permit.

Messrs. R. J. Slattery and Martin R. Dempsey, of the New York American, have been the guests at Desjardins' Hotel for the past week and were welcome visitors at the Watchman Office on Saturday. Though this is not their first visit they think so much of Lachute and its environments that they plan it as an annual event.

Road Hogs still Active.

Recently while rounding the curve coming into Lachute an unknown driver, travelling at an excessive speed and on the wrong side of the road crashed into a car driven by Mrs. F. E.
Ballou, turning it completely round and up-side-down. Mrs.
C. Coley, of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Coley, of Winnipeg, and three children were also occupants of the car and were badly shaken up with head and hand injuries. After being fixed up by Dr. Drew, the party spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. R. S.
MacArthur, Mr. Ballou coming for them at night. No stop was made by the offending car and another Hit and Run Driver has done his piece of dirty work.

THE PRINTER

It may be sad, but still 'tis true,
There's one thing all us humans
do,
And that is, blame the printer.
He does his best, without our help.

For all we do is stand and yelp,
Then, cuss and blame the printer.

We write our manuscript by pen,

To read it is beyond our ken,
Yet we expect the printer
To do it out and get it right,
We think not of his time or sight;

If wrong—we blame the printer.

We hold our stuff until the last,
Then try to rush it through so fast

The printer gets snowed under,
But still we camp upon his trail,
And prod him on with woeful tale,

Or rant and roar like thunder.

He shoots it through, the proof
we get.—

Hell's bells; the job is not right yet,

We chop that proof to splinters.
It takes two days before he knows

Just what each hieroglyphic shows—

A dumb lot are those printers.

The job's delivered, Some relief!

To know we're through with rush and grief,

We ought to thank the printer.
But no! The poor gink's out of luck—

He overcharged us, one whole buck.

Once more we damn the printer.

Sharp Words Get Credit

for Ending Hiccoughs

A difference of opinion has arisen in Seattle as to how to cure a bad case of hiccoughs. A short time ago a Seattle resident had a very bad case, was sent to a hospital and was cured,
but that did not close the incident.

The hospital's official report was that the hiccoughs stopped after administration of adhesive binding and lemon juice. Unofficial versions, however, are to the effect that an exasperated nurse sharply told the patient to quit being a fool, and that was the last of the hiccoughs.

It is a good subject to argue about, because everybody knows all about how to cure hiccoughs. One does not have to be a doctor to prescribe in a case of this kind; in fact, being a doctor is rather a handicap. The laity has more hiccough cures than were ever in any medical book, and can cite cases where every one of the cures has worked. It can be proved, by affidavits if necessary, that eating vanilla ice cream has cured a hiccougher after the doctors had given up and that the application of a silver tablespoon, ice cold, to the back of the neck has been instantly effective.

Seattle is welcome to what pleasure it can get out of arguing how to treat hiccoughs, but in the long run the sharptongued nurse will get as many votes as any of the experts.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Aztecs Well Versed in #### Science of Astronomy

A study recently issued by the Mexican ministry of foreign affairs describes at length the advance made in astronomy by Mexico's first inhabitants, the Aztecs. "One of the outstanding facts in the history of the first inhabitants of Mexico is the marked progress that they achieved in astronomical science," says the report as given out by the Pan-American information service. "It is indeed remarkable that a people presenting so many evidences of primitive life should have been able to reach the exact and scientific conclusions that their records indicate. The early Mexicans had two calendars, one civil and the other religious. The first consisted of 18 periods of 20 days each, with an additional 5 days. These 5 days were devoted to feasts and festivities of different kinds. The religious calendar consisted of 13 periods of 20 days each. The 20 day period of the civil calendar was divided into 4 periods of 5 days each. Fifty-two civil years made a century. To every century the Mexicans added 13 days, which correspond to the days we add for leap year."

Snake as Insignia

Various medical fraternities and societies, as well as the United States public health service, United States Army Hospital corps, etc., have in their crests or insignia a representation of snakes. The caduceus or wand of Hermes or Mercury, messenger of the gods, has been the insignia of the healing profession for thousands of years. It consists of two serpents twined on a staff, with wings. According to LaWall's "Four Thousand Years of Pharmacy," the symbol of the serpent played a prominent part in the healing ritual of both the Egyptians and the Babylonians and dates back to at least 4000 B. C. The same authority claims that it is Es-culapius whose emblem the caduceus, originally carried by Hermes and dating from Egypt and Babylonia, is still seen in connection with medical insignia.

New Vegetables Analyzed

Educating the public to the food value of the host of new vegetables continually being brought from all over the world to enrich the American diet is a task of the bureau of home economics. The chemical content of each dietary newcomer is analyzed and its nutritive value accurately computed, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. Chinese cabbage, broccoli, daisies and many other common vegetables of today were almost unknown in this country a few years ago. Chinese cabbage, for instance, has been found to have a fuel value of about seventy-five calories a pound. It is about 95 per cent water and the outer leaves are waste. The rest is made up of nitrogen, fat, ash and starch.

Famous Men of Long Age

Razi or Rhazes was an Arabian physician who lived from 852 to 932.
He is noteworthy as being the first man to describe smallpox and measles in an accurate manner. Hugbald or Hucbald was a Benedictine monk and writer of music. He was born at Tournai, France, about 840. He later started a school of music and other arts at Nevers. He was the inventor of the gamut. The only work positively ascribed to him is the Harmonica Institution. He died in 930.—
Washington Star.

Complicated Ciphers

A cryptogram is a cipher used in secret correspondence whereby the message is interwoven into a book, story or just a sentence. A special key is required to know how to understand and put the letters together. Probably the best known cryptogram is the one believed to be contained in the books of Shakespeare, proving according to some authorities that he was not the author but that the real author had laboriously woven into the text the facts of the case through a complicated cipher.

Municipal Public Health

GRANT FLEMING, M.D., McGill University

Modern public health had its origin in the general reform movement which, in England, sought to minimize the evils growing out of the Industrial Revolution. The application of steam to industry created new problems in connection with disease and accentuated existing ones. Almost overnight, towns sprang up to house the workers who were required for labour in the new factories. These towns had not even the semblance of the sanitary facilities with which we are familiar today. Rural workers came to these towns to live and to labour for long hours under indescribable conditions of filth. Women and even children of the most tender years practically became slaves to the newly-created machines.

The results were a great increase in sickness, a lowered standard of living, with bodies breaking under a strain which made them incapable of resisting. So obvious were these and other undesirable results of the early years of industrialism that a wave of reform swept across the country which aimed to improve the condition of the masses and to increase human happiness.

Among the groups of reformers were those who regarded illness as the greatest single handicap of the workers. These individuals, therefore, sought to do their part by relieving the workers, as far as this was possible, of their burden of disease and ill-health.

Following an intensive study of the situation which revealed conditions which are well-nigh impossible to believe, a public opinion favourable to public health reform was created. The government of the day, reflecting public opinion, accepted as a matter of policy that the care of the public health is a state responsibility. This led to the passing of the English Public Health Act of 1875, which has been called our charter of hygienic liberty and which was the basis of all early public health legislation in English-speaking countries.

Fortunately, at the time when public opinion supported health reform, there began the unfolding of scientific knowledge concerning the cause and manner of spread of disease, which made possible the development of public health on a scientific foundation. The desire to prevent disease is commendable, but the desire is not in itself of value unless there is made available the knowledge which is necessary to make the desire something more than a pious hope.

When we use the term Public Health, we mean that part of preventive medicine which is applied on a communal basis. Living as we do in organized communities, it is necessary that we act as a group. In theory, we could do many things individually, but from the point of view of economy and efficiency, it is desirable that we do them as a group. It is scarcely practical, and certainly it would be neither economical nor efficient for each one of us to go out into the country to inspect the farm whence comes the family milk supply.

Beyond that, it is necessary that we take a health interest in other individuals in the community. We cannot, even if we wish to do so, live a selfish, isolated life. Whether or not the milkman's child has scarlet fever, or the waitress in the restaurant has a communicable disease, or the child who sits next to your child in school has diphtheria are all matters which concern you as well as them. There are always a few individuals who either on account of carelessness or ignorance must be controlled, such as the man with syphilis who acts as if it were no concern or interest or responsibility of his if he infect a dozen others. For individuals such as he, there must be an official authority with legal power to control, not in his own interest, but for the benefit of the whole community.

In Canada, public health is, in practice, a provincial responsibility. Each province has its own public health act and makes its regulations under the authority of the act. The laws vary, but, in general, they require that, in organized districts, the local authority assume responsibility for the enforcement of the provincial health laws and regulations. Each municipality may pass certain health laws in conformity with permissive provincial legislation.

The work of a modern municipal health department may be considered as being conducted under three major divisions of work, which are the provision of a sanitary environment, the control of communicable disease and the promotion of popular health instruction regarding personal hygiene. These are mentioned in order of development, not in that of importance. Actually, they so interlock that it is practically impossible to consider them separately excepting in an artificial way for the purpose of study.

Sanitation was the first responsibility of health departments because of the erroneous belief that disease and dirt are synonymous. Later came the understanding that it is only dirt or filth which has been contaminated by human or animal secretions that is potentially dangerous. Today we view a sanitary environment as a protection from disease, but chiefly as a promoter of good health in that it allows for the practice of the habits of healthy living.

The control of communicable diseases is a direct responsibility of the municipal health department. The practice develops and changes with the coming of newer knowledge. Isolation and quarantine are still enforced, but the main emphasis is placed upon the discovery and control of the sources of infection.

Popular health instruction became a major part of the work of a health department when it came to be realized that health meant much more than mere freedom from disease. We are not all born equal, but we are all born with certain definite physical and mental potentialities. The healthy person is the one who has developed these potentialities to the full. Physical and mental health cannot be divorced. The individual cannot be separated into two parts, one physical and the other mental. He is a unit and must be dealt with as such. Health, in this sense, depends very largely upon the habits of life of the individual, and popular health instruction has for its objective not only the dissemination of health knowledge but the securing of its practice. Results follow practice and practice only, so health departments are interested in the practice of healthy living.

A Bureau of Health was created in Montreal in 1865. The first health officer was Doctor Larocque. The development of health work in Montreal has followed along the lines of other large centres. The trail was blazed by voluntary health agencies which sought with success, although sometimes having to wait long and patiently, to show the need and value of certain phases of health work. The voluntary agency endeavours to turn over established pieces of work to the official body in order that these activities may become permanent and form part of the general health programme.

Here as elsewhere, epidemics have provided the costly lesson which seems to be necessary, on occasion, to arouse public interest in the welfare of the people and to secure that measure of protection which is available for any community willing to pay for it.

Public health services cost money. It is not possible to secure them without spending money, and that is why it is said that public health is purchasable. It is for the people to decide just how much of the whole service they are willing to pay for and they need not expect to secure for one dollar per capita service similar to that for which another city pays one dollar and ten cents per capita.

The Department of Health of Montreal is under the direction of Doctor S. Boucher, who was appointed towards the latter part of the year 1913, and who is still in office. The Director of the Department is directly responsible to the Executive Committee. A year ago, there was created a Board of Health, whose membership is made up of representatives from the two Universities and the City Council, to advise the City administration concerning health matters. The Board of Health is appointed by the City Council.

The Department of Health, for purposes of administration, is separated into various divisions, each of which is in charge of a superintendent.

Of these, the Division of Vital Statistics is mentioned first, as it is by a study of the vital statistics that the health problems of the community are revealed. Through this division pass the death certificates from which are prepared the tables and graphs which show existing conditions, and which allow for comparison with our own past and with present conditions in other comparable centres.

The Department of Health issues each year a very excellent report which sets forth this statistical information. We find, for example, that, in 1929 there occurred 10,604 deaths in this city. Of that number, 1,013 were caused by tuberculosis, which gives us the relative importance of tuberculosis as a cause of death and shows this disease to be a major health problem. Numerous as are these tuberculosis deaths, they are, in proportion to population, much fewer than they were ten years ago, actually as 132 to 191. This decrease is satisfactory to the extent to which it goes. Our true position, however, is revealed by comparison with other cities, when we learn that Montreal has a relatively high rate, due to the fact that there has not been as much tuberculosis carried on here as there has been in most places.

Health administration is hampered in Montreal because births are not reported to the Department of Health. A great part of child hygiene is based upon an early knowledge of the occurrence of births in order that the Department of Health may offer health instruction as to the care of her new baby to the young mother.

The Division of Sanitation is responsible for the sanitary condition of dwellings. This Division passes upon the plans for new buildings and those which call for alterations to existing buildings. The inspectors seek out nuisances and deal with complaints regarding these.

This Division enforces the Provincial Health By-Law relating to dwellings. It cannot be said that this by-law is satisfactory as far as the city is concerned, because it permits of certain conditions, such as alcove-rooms, which are inimical to health. It would appear either that the city should have its own by-law or that the Province should have a special by-law for the larger centres of population.

LAKEFIELD

The Quebec Women's Institute and Farmers' Club held their meeting in the home of Mr. A. G. Sherritt on Friday evening, July 31. There were a goodly number present and arrangements were made to hold a picnic on Wednesday, August 19th, at Mr. Austin Kyle's Grove, Long Lake, under the auspices of the W. I. A dance was arranged to be held in Grand View Hall, Lakefield on August 11th, (Tuesday Evening) at which there will be special music. Admission 35 cents.

During the evening an address was given by the Rev. W. Cecil Eccleston, of Montreal. His subject dealt with the situation in Western Canada and the pressing need for a Christian training—particularly among children. "Some parents were heartbroken," he said, "because their little ones were growing up Godless and faithless, with no Church to guide them. The people of the North West long for Church administration but are practically helpless to help themselves. Those people are fighting a brave fight—many of them facing poverty and want."

Mr. Eccleston quoted pitiful instances of distress and spoke of the unhealthy atmosphere created in many places by undesirable Ukrainian Settlers.

The speaker closed by appealing to his audience for sympathy and aid. "The Church," he emphasized, "is character productive and religion is inseparable from the life of the Community. It is our duty and privilege to minister to the temporal and spiritual needs of our less fortunate brethren in the Great West."

The Rev. W. Cecil Eccleston spent the greater part of last summer in Northern Alberta.

The Blue Bell Poetess

As children search the sea-shore 'twixt the tides, Gathering each lovely, wave-forsoaken thing;
Smooth, shining stone, or echo-haunted shell,
The fallen feather from a sea-gull's wing—

So I, to that strange shore which is my life, Find that the tidal days their treasures bring:
Words, thoughts and deeds, rich friendships,
Precious hours,
Like moon-white pearls for memory to string.

World's Grain Exhibition and Conference

Farmers Will Win $210,750.00 in Prizes

The World's Grain Exhibition and Conference offers Canadian farmers an opportunity to share in cash prizes amounting to $210,750.00. Comprised in 56 competitive classes, open to the whole world, are 1,701 cash prizes. A few of the major awards follow:

$2,500 a first prize for 50 pounds of wheat, 30 pounds of oats.
$1,500 for 40 pounds of barley, 50 pounds of rye.
$800 for 10 ears of corn.
$300 for 30 pounds of peas, 30 pounds of flax, 20 pounds of clover.

With this splendid opportunity before them, Canadian farmers should keep a watchful eye on their growing crops. They should mark for special care those areas that appear most promising.

It should be understood that all seed and grain samples, if they are not already selected, will have to be found in crops of this year. All exhibits must be received by the Exhibition authorities on or before March 1, 1932.

Of vital importance to the advancement of Canadian agriculture will be the winning of World Championships in 1932 by farmers of Canada. Their seed and grain exhibits must demonstrate to the world the quality of Canada's field crops.

Select the classes from the prize list most suited to the crop you grow, then select your samples from the best you have.

It is best to make your entry NOW.

Your sample for exhibit must be in the hands of the Secretary at Regina on or before March 1, 1932.

Valuable information relating to the preparation of grain and seed for exhibit may be secured by writing to the Secretary of the Provincial Committee, World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, Care Department of Agriculture, your own province.

Show what you grow and share what you know

On application, the Secretary, World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, Imperial Bank Chambers, Regina, will send you prize lists, rules and regulations governing competitive entries and all other information.

TOWN COUNCIL

The regular meeting of above Council was held in the Town Hall, on Monday, August 3rd., at which were present Mayor P. Dobbie and Aldermen Rice, McKimmie, Miller, Speight, Morrison and Dr. Rodrigue.

Minutes of previous meetings were read and adopted. Reports of Finance Committee were received and amounts paid.

By-Law No. 123.

To authorize the Council of the Municipality of Lachute Town, to effectuate a loan of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) and to issue debentures therefor.

a) $20,000 to change the present intake of the water work system of the Town of Lachute and to extend it to the Pollock's Farm, and to lay a twelve inch pipe from the present intake to new proposed intake on a distance of about 3600 feet, and to build a new dam and reservoir and a chlorination plant;

b) $6,000 for the purchase of the Pollock's farm and servitudes attached thereto;

c) $4,000 to improve fire fighting equipment including fire engine and hose.

300 debentures of $100. each or multiples of $100. bearing interest at the rate of 5% per annum 1st. May and 1st. November.

The By-law gave rise to quite a discussion, Alderman Rodrigue taking the view that we should not do any thing until plans were submitted and proper estimates given, as they had to get government approval before executing the work.

Alderman MacKimmie replied that the engineer had guaranteed that the government would accept his plans and we have his figures in black and white and further, the engineer is prepared to execute the work himself for the amount already submitted.

Alderman Morrison contended that the Government could not prevent the town from building the dam and thought that the flush of road scourings now finding its way to the intake was for more polluted than it will be with the erection of the dam and a good head of water.

The by-law was put to meeting for its third reading on motion of Alderman MacKimmie, seconded by Alderman Miller and Carried.

GRENVILLE

Rev. Mr. E. G. Baxter, of Brownsburg, called upon friends on Tuesday.

Messrs. Lorne and Clifford Cooke of Pogan Falls, spent Sunday here.

Miss Helen Bradshaw is spending a week at Stonefield, with Mrs. Russell Owens.

Miss Dora King, of Montreal, is spending her two week's vacation with Mrs. Alex. Goudie.

Mrs. Stewart Goudie of Laprairie, spent a couple of weeks at her old home here recently.

The Mission Circle of the Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. James Heatlie on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. T. Wilson and Mrs. McCrea arrived this week at Mrs. Wilson's home in our village.

Mr. W. MacKan has returned from Toronto, where he had spent several weeks with his daughter, Mrs. Fred Goudie.

Rev. and Mrs. Irving and family left on Monday for St. Lambert and vicinity for a month's holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. William King, of Montreal, were the guests of Mrs. Alex. Goudie and Mrs. A. V. Gaudry on Sunday, and attended service in the Grenville Baptist Church.

Mr. Victor D. Gaudry of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been spending a few days with his mother, left for Ottawa on Wednesday, to visit Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Lyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaudry will leave Montreal on Friday evening for New York.

Municipal Public Health Cont'd.

At the present time, thirty per cent of the dwellings have no bathtub, and it is unreasonable to expect personal cleanliness where facilities for such are lacking in the home.

The water supply of the city is safe and is available to all dwellings. Practically all dwellings are connected with the public sewer.

The Division of Food Inspection has for its responsibility the supervision of milk, meat and other foods in order that the citizens may be sure that the food they purchase is safe. In addition, supervision is maintained over places where food is manufactured, such as bakeries, and over public eating-places, in order to ensure that food is being handled in a proper manner, and that there is no danger of contamination and subsequent spread of disease. The health of food handlers is supervised and medical examination required.

This Division of contagious Diseases receives reports of the occurrence of diseases, the notification of which is required by law. When a report is received, the home is visited, the inmates are quarantined and instructed with regard to the care necessary to prevent the spread of infection. School-age children, who are contacts of cases, are excluded from school. The Division seeks to find the source of infection, noting any undue prevalence of disease, its appearance in one particular class-room, or among the clients of one dairy. It then follows up such leads with the hope removing the primary cause.

Through the Division of Laboratories, facilities are made available for such laboratory examinations as assist in the diagnosis and control of communicable diseases, the safeguarding of water, milk and food supplies, and other department activities.

In most places, biological products, such as antitoxins and vaccines, are provided free by the provincial health departments. In this Province, they are supplied only in the County Health Units. The city itself furnishes diphtheria antitoxin for those who are unable to pay for it. It appears that such life-saving substances which are required to be used without delay and those which prevent disease should be made freely and readily available, because such action, as has been pointed out, desirable, in our common interest, to prevent and control communicable diseases.

Health supervision, based upon routine medical examination, with the instruction of parents at the time of the examination and later on in the home, is given for the benefit of infants and school children through the Division of Child Hygiene. Well-baby conferences are maintained and the health service in our schools is given by the Department of Health.

The public health nurse is the most important individual worker in the Department of Health. She is the health teacher of the community. At clinic, in school and in the homes, she instructs, demonstrates and encourages in healthy living.

The Department of Health of Montreal has developed during the past few years. A great impetus was given to health work by the Health Survey made in 1928. The budget has been increased, which has permitted an increase in staff. There are two essentials for a health department, one of which is a trained staff, and the other, money with which to do the work. It may not be too much to expect that, before long, only those who are qualified will be eligible for appointment. It will be necessary to increase salaries because it is not reasonable to expect that an efficient staff can be built up if salaries are not on a par with what can be earned elsewhere.

Another development which can be visualized is that the Island of Montreal shall become a unit for health work. Disease germs do not respect political boundaries, and the numerous municipal divisions adjacent to Montreal are a hindrance to unified health work.

Owing to public apathy and despite the conscientious efforts of the Director of the Department of Health, Montreal's health record in the past has not been a good one. Our position today is that in which most of the other large cities were ten or fifteen years ago. However, the progress which has been made during the past two years which is the result of greater public interest in health work and of the activities of a city administration favourable to public health, encourages us to believe that, providing such progress continues, in five years Montreal will be well to the fore.

CUSHING WEST

Mrs. Geo. O'Brien, of Thurso, was the guest of Mrs. C. L. Cooke last week.

Mr. Lindley Kerr and her two little daughters left on Tuesday to visit friends in Montreal.

Mrs. Elliott and family, of Montreal, have taken Mrs. Usher's house for the month of August.

Mrs. Jas. Harcourt, of New Glasgow, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Pinkerton last week.

Mr. Allan Murray and a party of friends from Montreal were motor guests at the Bungalow on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Forster, of Pittsburg, Penn., arrived by motor on Saturday last to visit their cousin, Mrs. Jas. Watson and other friends here.

Mrs. Elvira Connor, of Boston, Mass., arrived last week on a visit to relatives in this locality and is at present the guest of her niece, Mrs. C. F. Watson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dawson and family, of Stonefield Hgts., also Mr. E. and Miss Pearl Dawson motored to Mille Isle and visited friends on Sunday last.

Sunday guests at Mr. E. Wheelahan were Mr. and Mrs. S. Wheelahan & Miss Katie Wheelahan, also Mr. Kenrick Dorion and little daughter Marjorie, of Montreal.

Mr. C. B. Cutten of Montreal, West, with Mrs. Cutten and son Hartley, are spending a week's vacation with the latter's mother. Mrs. S. O. Hartley, Mr. Ernest Hartley also spent Sunday here.

Mrs. John Funcheon and daughter Miss Helena Funcheon of Monalea, are leaving on Friday to visit friends in Buffalo, N. Y., travelling by boat via Prescott, Toronto and Niagara Falls.

ST. ANDREWS EAST.

Miss Liela Larmonth, of Ottawa, is at her home here.

Mr. Wm. Simpson spent his holidays with his family here.

All the pupils in Grade X of the Consolidated School passed their examinations successfully. Congratulations are due to them and to their teacher, Miss Waldron.

The Rev. Mr. Lowry, of Cincinnati, was the guest of Mr. Horace Davis over last weekend. He preached in the United Church in the morning and in the Presbyterian Church in the evening, delivering two powerful, scholarly, sermons for our edification.

A vote was taken in the Town Hall on Aug. 1st., in favor of installing water-works for this village. The vote stood 73 for and 3 against. We hope the system will soon be in working order, even if it is going to impair our excuse for taking some other kind of drink.

The Rev. J. R. Heyworth, of Chicago, will occupy the pulpit of the United Church on Sundays, Aug. 9, 16, and 23. He has already preached some fine sermons here, and we esteem highly the privilege of having him with us in the holiday season. Mr. B. Flower of Montreal, who is taking his holidays in St. Andrews, will be the soloist at both services next Sunday. His rendering, last Sunday of the solo, "I heard the voice of Jesus say," was greatly appreciated.

Angus Graham Good as Mother Boasted

By LEETE STONE

WHY is it that there seems to be a finality wrapped about a lovers' quarrel that occurs amid the ice and snow of bitter winter, that is somehow lacking in one that happens during the softness of summer days or nights? Is it the difference between the birthright of those born in the north country and those born in the southern latitudes? Somehow, it seems as if love itself is more deep and abiding in those countries where the sap flows in the trees for only a scant four months than it is in the warm countries.

Be that as it may, Angus Graham, the strongest man in Yarmouth, whose bulky shoulders were nearly three feet from point to point, had quarreled with that slim wisp of the northland, Collette Malntenon. Up there on the Canadian shoulder of Maine, a quarrel on a Saturday night meant a lot more than a tiff on the moonlit sands of Miami, for example.

It happened at the little Saturday night dance at the trading post that jotted out in a sheltered lee of the Jackman wilderness. Collette, bless her dainty heart, had been kind enough to a lean young trapper, trying to enjoy himself after weeks of fur trapping, to accord him several smiles and several dances.

All of which had definitely angered the possessive Yankee soul of Angus Graham.

"Shame on you, Angus—to treat me so for being only decently kind to a stranger. If you don't know yet whom it is I love, you'd better take time off to find out. When you learn to be sensible come and see me again—not before!" Sharp words from Collette as she jumped from the cutter, swerved swiftly to pat the silken nose of the beautiful chestnut mare that belonged to Angus, and went in the house without another word.

The following Wednesday night brought no Angus to Collette's. It had been his custom, even in the worst of snow and cold, to drive out and spend the evening with her in mid-week. Nor did he come Saturday. Then Collette learned from a passer-by that Angus had left Yarmouth, saying nothing to anyone, with just a pack basket on his back.

Then Collette was very sad. She regretted her sharp good-bye to Angus for she loved this great-shouldered woodsman very dearly and had dreamed of a home with him; of children to love and scold—all the dear things that good women dream of when they find the man that is meant for them.

"Silly child!" Her mother spoke one day to her when she found her crying silently. "Will you never learn to control your temper. I suppose that's the French of your father in you. And don't you know you should never try to make a simple hearted boy like Angus jealous?"

"There, there, my baby," added the mother, seeing that her words only made the hurt worse. "He'll come back to you when the sap runs; he'll come back, dear; I know it."

And so throughout the long northern winter Collette waited, always wondering about Angus, always hoping against hope that her image in his heart would remain untarnished wherever he roamed, and bright enough to bring him back one day.

And as for Angus Graham, he had tramped away that December morning with snowshoes on his feet and bitterness in his heart. Since, as a boy of ten and she a girl of seven, he had taught her the lore of the North country—well, he had loved her ever since. And then she gave her smiles and many of her dances to this lean French trapper whose agile feet were more adept than those of Angus. If only she could see the way his heart danced when she touched him, even with a finger tip, she might not be so interested in the Frenchman's feet. Ah, well! She herself had French blood—blood calling to blood, it was. And after that acid little speech as she left his cutter that night—who cared?

Thus it was that Angus, with several hundred dollars of his brawn-bought savings bent his steps toward a great city in the dead of winter. But there is no winter, as North folk know it, in the great cities. A new experience for Angus. There he found work, pleasure of a sort. Angus and the boys went to dances, played pool and billiards, and in the process Angus learned a little about women.

He learned that when they love a man dearly, they sometimes treasure it in the hidden places of their heart, that they smile and smile and dance and dance, with men that mean nothing to them, and, most important of all, Angus found no girl who looked at him, sometimes when he glanced up quickly, with dreams in her eyes.

And that is the whole story of why Angus Graham made his way back to Yarmouth in the North country just as the sap began to rise in March. That is why he waited for the first light of the full moon before he took his best horse and sulky out to see Collette. It was a strange meeting. Collette, answering the rap on the door, had grown to know of old, said:

"Hello, Angus! I saw a mother robin fly off her nest today!"

"Becha I know the tree—it's that old apple down in your back pasture. Omon, Collette; let's go walkin' in the moonlight—'taint cold!"

CLOSURE OF PARLIAMENT

The final day of Parliament was not without its thrills. Following a discussion at the outset as to the technical regularity of the morning meeting, the day was spent mainly in a discussion—a sort of filibuster—on the estimates of the Agriculture Department.

Mr. Motherwell and several Saskatchewan members made an onslaught on Mr. Weir, the department head, on a variety of counts and the minister, defending his department, made a fairly general but condensed outline of his policy. Between him and his predecessor some snappy exchanges occurred. There was contention as to whether the progressive measures which are proposed are new or a continuation of something old.

The firing began about noon and ceased about five o'clock, though in an intervening period, Mr. Murphy, minister of the interior, had some trouble about his Indians and the vote in respect to them.

Finally, just before the end, the opposition leader, speaking to a question of privilege, indicated strong resentment at the heading of a Toronto paper on Mr. Bennett's speech, in which he was represented as saying that Mr. King had told Senator Haydon to go out and get the money and that the latter had gone to Beauharnois.

The Prime Minister, Mr. King asserted, had said nothing of the kind. The opposition leader talked of criminal libel proceedings if this matter is repeated. Mr. Bennett thought that the privilege had been exceeded but added "So far as I can see, if the statement is not in Hansard, it must be incorrect." The final observation by the Premier was an expression of thanks to the opposition for permitting prorogation before six o'clock.

The supply bill had been put through, and after a little waiting, there were three resounding whacks at the portal. The Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod asked the House to go to the Senate. There Mr. Justice Duff, Deputy Governor General, assented to the bill, thanked the Commons for its benevolent provision for the public service, and in the two languages, read the Speech from the Throne, sending Parliament away and bidding them Godspeed. This was the end of everything.

The Session just concluded has lasted nearly five months. At the start, very quiet and slow it acquired momentum as it went ahead. The legislative measures became more important—the most important of all coming at the very last. The achievement on the whole, has been noteworthy.

The budget contained changes in the tariff which didn't go quite as far as was expected. Nevertheless, they are important in themselves and in reflecting adherence to an economic principle upon which the Prime Minister places a most unwavering alliance. The structure of taxation, likewise, was somewhat renovated, particularly in regard to the sales tax, but, as will be recalled criticism of the new income tax caused it to be withdrawn and the older order reverted to.

The new Tariff Board will be a court of record. In it are vested functions to go far in dealing with the tariff and with anything which has the remotest relation to it. Nevertheless, as to what the exact fiscal structure will be, the responsibility of the government and of Parliament, maintained.

The financial administration is very much tightened up, or will be, in the creation of a controllership of the treasury. Heretofore, Parliament has voted the money and the government, subsequently, has released it to the different departments, and it was spent. It was never possible to know at a given day, just what accounts were outstanding or what commitments were made, although, of course, they all came home to roost in time. This measure contemplates a sort of preaudit and continual condition to be sized up in short order.

The Australian treaty, which was ratified, is designed to promote mutual exchange between Canada and the Southern Dominion. The mutual preferences which are extended ought to be very helpful. In adhering to the Act of Westminster, Canada avails of those larger constitutional powers provided for at the Imperial Conference of 1926, and subsequently developed by last year's similar gathering.

No doubt the most important special enactment was that dealing with unemployment and distress. Very wide powers, of a general character, are taken. No special amount is voted. The government can spend as much or as little, as it likes. Its authority is subject to no legislative impediment.

The opposition argued that this is going too far, that it was a blank cheque, that the amount should be specified. Mr. Bennett said he couldn't specify an amount because he didn't know how much would be required but he believed that this would be the more economical course.

There were charges of usurping the functions of Parliament. The government while denying the parliamentary authority is detracted from, takes the responsibility. It will answer at the next session, giving a detailed account of its stewardship.

The other end of the measure concerns peace, order and good government. Here again, the authority is extensive. The claims which were put forth that this power can be arbitrarily exercised against people distracted by depression, were met by the statement that, it is not aimed at the unemployed but at those, who, in these days of agitative unrest, exploit the unemployed against the established social order. Some very vigorous debating occurred on this proposal which now is the law of the land.

The Beauharnois bills were so recent as to obviate the necessity of review. Briefly, the government brings the work under its protecting wing. It can take over the navigation canal. It can exercise, as Mr. Cahan put it, moral suasion through the banks financially in interest to accomplish such methods of regenerative reform as it deems necessary.

Quebec is protected in its constitutional property and civil rights and in any power ownership of which it is vested. The investors are protected in the money they have put in. The enterprise will go ahead.

One thing clearly established was that it is a sound proposition from the viewpoint of an engineering project. Anything that has happened, any disclosures which were made, have not disturbed this fundamental fact.

There were many other measures, important in their way, but relatively minor in comparison.

And so, the session passes into a memory, in several respects indelible in its nature. Those who have had to bear the brunt have found the work very hard and the strain very great, this condition being accentuated, often, by a sort of tropical heat. The legislative accomplishments as noted, have been very considerable. But it is not misstating the fact to say that, in the last few weeks, towering above them both in parliamentary and public interest, has been the Beauharnois affair—the allegations made, the inquiry instituted, the facts disclosed and the remedies applied or intended to be applied.

PREPARATION OF SEED EXHIBITS

(Experimental Farms Note)

The production of a prize winning sample of seed grain in these days of keen competition, demands that all factors which have a bearing on the production of highly developed grain, must be taken into consideration.

First of all the seed chosen to produce the exhibition sample must belong to a variety which is well adapted to the district and which is likely to present a good appearance when mature; then the land on which this seed is sown should be in particularly fine condition, as regards filth and fertility, while the resulting crop should be watched carefully during the growing season and all heads or panicles which appear to differ from the prevailing type to any marked extent, should be removed. Where registered seed has been sown the amount of roguing necessary should be negligible.

Some exhibitors prefer to cut their grain somewhat on the green side, but our experience at the Central Experimental Farm seems to indicate that it is usually more desirable to let the crop become fully ripened.

The stocks of harvested grain should be protected in some way against unfavourable weather so as to prevent damage by sprouting and also to assist in preserving the natural colour of the grain. In the case of wheat grown in Western Canada, particularly fine bright colour and lustre may often be expected from grain which has stood in the stack for a time.

The methods of threshing the exhibition grain is a matter of importance. A very good plan is to flail the sheaves by hand on a canvas, spread out on the ground near the stacks or stack on a bright sunny day. Only a very few strokes of the flail should be given each sheaf as the large, well developed kernels will roll out first. The kernels remaining in the sheaf may be threshed out later in the ordinary way.

In the case of oats and barley which sometimes retain appendages which detract from the appearance as well as from the weight of the grain, various methods may be employed in dressing the sample so that these appendages may be removed. Where a scarifier or scrutcher is not available, the grain may be placed in a barrel, or some other receptacle, and a spade or shovel used to chop off these awns and ends. Care must be taken, however, not to damage the kernels.

While the hand picking of samples for exhibition should not be encouraged, generally speaking, yet under present conditions, where the exhibition sample is relatively small, the practice can scarcely be prevented.

Rowena Rides the Rumble

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food.

Now go on with the Story

"Oh, that'll fix us up just fine," said Peter gratefully. Thanks very much. Here you are, Rowena, à la Biltmore."

"It will do for you both with a little squeezing," said the farmer's wife pleasantly. "Jim and I camp on one the same size."

"S-so it will," said Rowena. "Lots of room."

"Make your bed close to the fire," said Farmer Jim. "Turns cold up here nights."

"And don't get nervous if you hear things wriggling around," called some one else. "Sometimes the rattlers go crawling around nights like this."

"Peter," whispered Rowena, "perhaps—perhaps after all—you had better—sleep on the edge of the mattress—the farthest edge. After all, I suppose we're as good as married. And—I shouldn't like to have you bitten by a rattler."

Peter laughed at her.

When all the others had said good night and gone away to their beds, he spread one of the blankets on the mattress, and rolled up his coat to make a pillow for her.

"I'll just lie here on the grass beside you," he whispered, "and they'll never know the difference."

"Good thing it's dark!"

"Are you comfortable, Rowena?" "Oh, it's perfectly wonderful.—You take your coat Peter. You will be cold on the ground with just that one thin rug."

"Nonsense. Why, I'm snug as a bug. Snugger, for that matter. Isn't this great? Isn't it just corking?"

"B-better than last night, isn't it?"

"Well, rather.—Better than almost any night I ever saw."

Slowly the full night settled over the mesa and a crescent moon rode high. Little night sounds echoed loudly in the great silence. Owls hooted. A coyote whined. Now and then a wolf barked in the distance. Little footed creatures scurried past them in the grass. Suddenly Peter felt a little shiver in the blanket roll on the mattress beside him. He touched it gently with his hand. Rowena was noiselessly sobbing in the darkness. He put his arm over her and pulled himself up until his lips were close to her ear—so close that a little bronze perfume curl touched his face.

"Don't be afraid," he whispered softly.

"I'm not afraid."

"Please don't cry."

"I'm not crying. I just feel sorry."

"Because I smashed the car?"

"No. Because you are so nice, Peter, and it is so awful to hate a nice person so very very much."

Peter laughed. "If that's all, cheer up. It should comfort you to know that at least there's no love lost between us." He patted the blanket kindly.

"And I really do admire you, Peter, for ever so many things. Nobody else in the world could ever make me half as mad as you do. Really, you're just wonderful."

One slender hand wriggled out from under the blanket and felt about until it found his, which closed over it warmly. It was hours later when she fell asleep.

Although Peter awakened very early the next morning, almost before the dawn of pale gray light, he found the big farmer standing near and looking down upon them with a quizzical, friendly grin.

Peter got up rather shamefacedly, dropping his blanket on Rowena's mattress and the two men strolled down for a look at the river.

"Don't begin wrong youngster said the farmer kindly. "Don't make life too easy for 'em right at first. Let 'em have their share of the hard knocks. Does 'em good."

"Sh-she's not very well," said Peter, floundering desperately for a suitable excuse. "I—want her to be—careful."

"Oh, is that the lay of the land, eh?" The man was cordially interested. "Golly I hope that wetting didn't hurt her. She's got spunk, that one. You should 'a told my wife. She'd 'a give you a hot-water bottle and a nip of whiskey."

"I think she'll be all right," said Peter uncomfortably.

"You better take these rough roads a bit easier, youngster. You passed us yesterday like a streak o' greased lightning. Bumps is the worst thing for 'em. We lost one that way."

"Uh—that so? Too bad," stammered Peter awkwardly.

The flood had subsided over night and barely a foot of water now trickled over the rocks where the torrential flood had rushed. Camp on the mesa was quickly broken. Breakfast was hurriedly prepared and hurriedly eaten. Cars were loaded, children and dogs collected, for all were anxious to take to the road at the earliest possible moment. But the big farmer, although himself as eager as the next to be off, put a peremptory veto on the suggestion that it would be sufficient for them to send a trouble car back for Peter and Rowena, leaving them a supply of food for emergency.

"We can't leave them kids up here alone in the fix they're in," said the farmer firmly. "It's his wife,—with a broad wind.—"Wouldn't be fair noways."

So the men fell to with right good will. Half of them down in the river pried and tugged and pulled at the car while the others up on shore worked with pulleys and ropes and chains, and at last a great cheer went up, as the Rackruff rose slowly, groaning, over the rocks and was drawn inch by inch up the side of the arroyo.

Both Peter and Rowena were profuse in their gratitude.

"You're just wonderful," said Rowena. "I never knew that people could be so kind." And there were tears in her lovely blue eyes, and something of a quiver stirred the pleasant voice just because she was so glad to learn that the people of earth were so very good.

And they smiled at her and told her to take good care of herself and not get "run down" and with many such friendly farewells and admonitions the caravan forded the dwindling creek and wound off over the mesa behind the hills. But before the Kansas farmer and his wife had gone far they turned back and pulled up beside the dripping roadster. The woman got out and went close to Rowena.

"You mustn't catch cold, child," she said in a confidential voice. "Your clothes are pretty short and pretty thin. It gets awful cold evenings up here in this high altitude and you're not dressed for it. Now you take this little wool blanket and soon as you feel the cold coming on, you bundle yourself all up snug in it. It's old, but it's all wool and warm as toast. You mind now, catching cold is the very worst thing you can do."

Rowena thanked her & promised to be very careful and not catch cold whatever she did, & then stood high on a boulder waving the blanket after the farmer's car until it rounded the hill and disappeared. Then she turned to Peter with a puzzled air.

"Aren't they all queer?" she asked wonderingly. "I don't look sickly or anything do I? They seem to have a complex on catching colds out here. And what difference does it make if I do get tired? Everybody gets tired, don't they?"

Peter was working very hard on the car at that moment and mumbled something quite indistinguishable about not knowing what it was all about.

Well, of course, they meant well," declared Rowena. "And I'll be careful to please them. But I do hope I'm not beginning to look anemic or anything."

A day of ecstatic, heavenly calm followed. Peter worked on the car. Finally they got under way again.

At last in the early evening when they approached the town where they had agreed to spend the night, Rowena put her hand on his arm in tender appeal.

"Peter," she said, "I do realize how very embarrassing it is about the hotels. It is for me to though to dare say you don't believe it. How would it do for us to go in separately and register each for himself? I could go in first and ask for a single room and go right on up, and they wouldn't even know we came together."

Peter turned it over reflectively. On the whole it seemed the best way out. Certainly anything was better than their first experience. So when they pulled up to the hotel Rowena stepped quickly out with her bag and hurried up to the desk. She asked for a single room, registered "Miss Rowena Rostand, New York City," and was taken up-stairs. Peter, meanwhile, put the car in the garage and then sat on the verandah half an hour with a cigarette and a paper. When at last he ventured in to the desk his request for a single room aroused no undue interest, and he was handed a key and a telegram. The telegram was from Messrs. Rack and Ruff, written by the former but signed by both to make it more official. He read it and then inquired if a Miss Rostand had registered at the hotel. Upon being told that she had and was in her room, he called her on the telephone and asked her to come down to the lobby.

"I have a wire from the Company," he explained, "and I think you had better see it."

"Did you get a room O.K.?" she whispered.

"Yes. Everything's jake—but this."

Rowena read the telegram. "The red-headed persecution," it said, "just came in to announce that all is forgiven. Says the chaperon left you at Denver and is on her way back to New York. What do you mean by continuing alone? Entirely against our orders & our wishes. If facts are as stated please consider contract cancelled. Send Miss Rostand to New York by first train and you bring car back immediately."

Peter looked quite worried about it all, but Rowena laughed easily.

"Tish, tosh, and even tush," she said brightly. "It's nothing. They don't know we're married. Come on—let's give them the low-down on it."

So they went to the telegraph desk and with a great deal of laughter and many foolish suggestions and much scratching out of words they finally worked out an announcement to their satisfaction.

"Everything's jake with us. We were married in Denver. Who wants a chaperon on a honeymoon? Cody tomorrow night. Love and kisses from Peter and Rowena Blande."

This dispatched and pretty well pleased with themselves on the whole, they got into the elevator and went up to their rooms.

Their tour of the park was uneventfully delightful, auspiciously free from embarrassing complications.

"Isn't everything turning out just gorgeously?" demanded Rowena.

But Peter and Rowena had not yet come into the fulness of their emotional experience. They left the park by the northern route. They went to Butte and Helen, and all was well. They started for Spokane. A succession of untroubled days had given them new confidence and they were sure their worries lay all in the past. They pulled up to the hotel in Spokane without inner qualm or morbid presentiment.

Peter asked for two singles and signed the register. The clerk looked at the names and smiled broadly.

"Oh, how do you do?" he exclaimed cheerfully. "Just a moment, please."

Three Fine Buffalos To Greet Visitors Ottawa Exhibition

Govt. Providing Educational Factors For Young And Old. Notable Band To Be Heard. High Class Entertainment Assured.

Three buffalo, a selected pair and their young calf, will greet visitors to the Ottawa Exhibition this year, commencing Monday, August 24 and continuing for six days and six nights. These have been secured through the Dominion government, the directors of the exhibition realizing that the attraction would be an educational and interesting feature, as many both old and young, have never seen a buffalo. This will not be a sideshow attraction, but will be free to the public, a specially constructed wire fence enclosure giving the patrons of the exhibition the best opportunity to see the animals and at the same time affording protection should the powerful animals become restive. The directors also are pleased that the Ontario government again will make a display of live fish, wild animals and game birds. These were shown in Ottawa for the first time and proved one of the most popular of the many attractions.

Music lovers are assured of wonderful programs from Peter A. Cavallo and his band, which will give two concerts each day from the concert band stand. This band consists of 58 musicians, many soloists of distinction, and the seasonal tours have been a succession of triumphant musical appearances. It is the feature band for the Toronto exhibition, and its engagement for Ottawa was made possible only through the desire of the Toronto directors to help the Ottawa exhibition. This band is the most expensive attraction ever booked for the Ottawa exhibition but no extra charge will be made for the concerts, which will be free to all exhibition patrons.

Another outstanding entertainment feature will be The Sensations of 1931, a big musical and dance revue with a large cast, mostly girls. This is a most elaborate production with Broadway stars, gorgeous costumes, novel scenic effects, bright dances, clever comedy & entrancing music. Eight other stellar vaudeville offerings will complete the grandstand program, claimed to be the best assembled for the exhibition.

Livestock and agricultural products, dog show, pure food show, hobby show, child welfare demonstrations, horticultural displays, baby show and scores of other factors will make the exhibition one long to be remembered.

Many will be glad to know that for this year the grandstand program includes a balloon ascension with parachute drops. Major J. T. Smith, peer of all aeronauts, assisted by Miss A. Lawless, one of the best known balloon riders, will give daily performances, including single, double and triple parachute drops with acrobatics going up and coming down. Thrilling parachute cutaways draw long cheers or awed silence from the spectators. This will be a daily feature at the exhibition.

Railways have offered exceptionally low fares this year and in addition, all highways lead to the Capital. For automobile visitors, ample parking space has been provided inside the grounds.

Any information as to entries for the various departments or as to any branch of the exhibition will be cheerfully given by H. H. McElroy, manager and secretary, Ottawa.

Clever French Gypsies

Prey on the Ignorant

Superstition still flourishes in France as a thriving commercial proposition, despite the advance of general education. Apparently any gypsy with a fluent tongue can make an easy thought dishonest living. The latest example is reported from a village near Amiens, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, where a tradeswoman, Mme. Dobresecq, has been swindled of $1,200 by two fortune tellers.

The first gypsy appeared under the guise of a hawk of lace. As she displayed her wares she mentioned that there had been many fires in the district, and that it was under the curse of a particularly malicious demon. Having thus aroused the tradeswoman's interest, she offered to tell her if she herself was threatened.

Taking three halves from Mme. Dobresecq's head and wrapping them in paper, she burnt them. Mme. Dobresecq swears that before the ashes dropped to the ground she saw on the scorched paper a sign of a cloven hoof. That made up her mind for her. She paid the gypsy $300, which the latter said she would return after the notes had been blessed with magic rites.

Later another gypsy called upon Mme. Dobresecq, and said that they were having trouble with the evil spirit. A much larger sum would have to be blessed before the spell could be broken. As she was given to understand that her own daughter was threatened by the powers of darkness, the tradeswoman handed over $900 more.

Rosemary a Figure on

All Pages of History

Rosemary is a plant of the mint family and grows in the region of the Mediterranean sea. It is a low shrub-like plant with linear leaves, dark green above, white beneath, and with margins rolled back on to the under face. The flowers grow in clusters, and the fruit consists of four nutlets. Rosemary was valued in ancient times for its aromatic quality and medicinal uses, but is now used mainly for its perfume. As an emblem of remembrance, rosemary plays an important part in folklore and literature. In Shakespeare's "Hamlet," Ophelia says: "There's rosemary; that's for remembrance." According to tradition this herb strengthens the memory, and was also used a great deal at one time to quiet the nerves. It was often used at weddings, and to wear rosemary was always taken to be significant of a wedding. The nurse, in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," refers to the emblematical characteristics of the herb, when she asks: "Doth not rosemary and Romeo begin both with a (one) letter?" According to the language of flowers it means "Fidelity in love."

Height of Eucalyptus

The statement is made that the Australian eucalyptus attains a height of 400 feet, but a member of the forest products laboratory staff, who spent a year in Australia not long ago, used the opportunity to check up on some of the basic facts. The tallest Australian tree he actually measured was 310 feet, and he satisfied himself that the tallest tree ever measured with accuracy in that country was a eucalyptus regnans, or "mountain ash," that grew at Colac, Victoria, and was 345 feet high. A prize offered at the Melbourne exposition in 1888 for proof of the tallest tree standing at that time was won on evidence for a eucalypt 325 feet high. Measurements by a well-known forester gave 363 feet for the height of a redwood growing in Bull Creek Flat, Calif. This is the tallest tree in the world on which there is authentic and reliable information.

Chopin's Ancestry

The grandfather of Chopin—named Shop (Szop)—at one time migrated to France, and there Chopin's father was born, writes a correspondent to a Philadelphia paper. By that time they added that "in" at the end of their name to "Frenchify" it. Then the family moved back to Poland, where young Szop—this is the way they spelled it—was born in Zelazowa-Wola. At that time there was a great deal of such migration. So Chopin, or, to spell it correctly, Szop—the same pronunciation—was born in Poland of Polish parents, from a Polish family, and was a Polish patriot.

Quotation on Verbosity

The celebrated quotation on verbosity was delivered by Benjamin Disraeli in a speech made in London on July 27, 1878. He was referring to his great rival Gladstone, who he said was: "A sophisticated rhetorician, inflated with the exuberance of his own verbosity, and gifted with an egotistical imagination that can at all times command an interminable and inconsistent series of arguments to malign an opponent and to glorify himself."

Arboricultural

The magazine Tree Talk says that trees commit suicide by wrapping their roots around their trunks and choking themselves to death. Now we know why the willow weeps and another pine. The elm, however, we feel is too slippery. Having got at the root of this thing let us leaf it as it is. Trunk mysteries are always depressing, so why branch out. Besides, a trusting reader can be twigged too much.—Detroit News.

OBITUARY

The Late Miss Annie Moore

The death of Miss Annie Moore who passed away on Friday last, after a short illness in her 83rd. year, came as a great shock to her many friends. Deceased lady was born in Pine Hill, daughter of the late Jos. Moore, and spent nearly fifty years of her early life in Montreal. During the last 23 years she has made her home in Lachute.

Of a kindly loving disposition fond of her church and always ready to help in any good work, she will be greatly missed in the Baptist Missionary Society, of which she was a loved member.

The funeral service was conducted on Sunday afternoon last by the Rev. Henry Cousens, in the presence of a large number of sympathizing friends and relatives, after which the remains were taken to Edina for interment. A large number of floral tributes, bore silent witness to the esteem in which she was held. She leaves to mourn her loss Mrs. James Riddle, of Arundel; and Mrs. W. M. McFaul, of Carson City, Nevada, and three brothers, Jas. Moore, of Hamilton, Ont.; Harry and George Moore, of Michigan.

The Late Mrs. J. Scarborough.

Another much respected resident of St. Philippe, passed away on July 23rd., at the home of her son George, of Staynerville, in the person of Mrs. John Scarborough. Deceased lady, formerly Agnes Lessard, was born in Ste. Jerome 72 years ago.

Besides her two sons George of Staynerville and Willie, of Brocton, Mass., she leaves to mourn her loss 2 brothers Mathias, of Grenville; and Adonias, of Hawkesbury, and one sister Mrs. A. Dufresne, St. Philippe. The funeral took place on Saturday morning at the R. C. Church interment being made in the St. Philippe Cemetery, beside her husband who predeceased her some four years ago.

The pall bearers were her two brothers, Mathias and Adonias Lessard, her brother in law, A. Dufresne and her nephews Reuben Creswell, James and Willie Chambers.

A Box Social, under the auspices of the Mille Isles Anglican Church, will be held in Ward Bros. Hall, Cambria, on Saturday evening, August 15th., at 8 p.m. (S.T.) Ice cream and Soft Drinks for sale; followed by a violin entertainment to 11.30 p.m. Come and bring your Boxes

WEDDING BELLS

ROBERT-LAURIN

A very pretty and quiet wedding took place on Saturday morning last at the Ste. Anastasie Church, when Yvonne, daughter of Mr. Samuel Laurin, was united in marriage to Claudio, eldest son of Mrs. Ernest Robert of Lachute. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Eug. L. Marsolais.

The bride, given away by her father wore a gown of white satin with tulle veil arranged in cap effect with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white lilies.

Breakfast was served at the bride's home, after which the happy couple left on the morning train for a trip to the Thousand Islands. On their return they will reside in Montreal.

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor of the Watchman, Lachute, Que.

Sir:

In the Watchman of July 31, under Cushing local news an item on entertainments in our midst appeared on evening of July 23rd., 1931. Evidently the centre attraction did not appeal to the populace of our countryside. When we talk of lowering our standards, what about the shows, that are held right in front of the alter year in and year out in the beautiful old Church in the Cushing countryside

It is time these were looked into, and let the Banner of God fly high that we may see the error of our ways.

Lesson for August 9

SAUL CONVERTED AND COMMISSIONED

LESSON TEXT—Acts 9:1-19; 1 Timothy 1:12-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Whereupon, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Chosen to Be a Missionary JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Chosen a Missionary to the Gentiles.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Vision and a Response.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Saul's Conversion and Commission.

I. Saul's Violent Hatred of the Lord's Disciples (vv. 1, 2).

Saul knew full well that unless the movement set on foot by Jesus was stopped it would supersede Judaism. The noble display of faith by Stephen in sealing his testimony with his blood did not soften Saul's spirit, but rather intensified his hatred for the Lord and his disciples. It made him more determined than ever to stamp out the Nazarene heresy. The intensity of his madness and the extent of its operations are best set forth in his own words (Acts 22:4; 26:10-12 R. V.).

II. Saul Kicking Against the Pricks (vv. 3-9).
The figure here is that of the eastern ox driver following the ox with a sharp iron fixed to the end of a pole. The animal is prodded on with this instrument and if refractory, it kicks against the sharp iron and injures itself. This is a graphic picture of Saul as he was madly fighting against Jesus.

1. A light from heaven (vv. 3, 4). The time had come for the Lord to interfere. Saul was smitten with blindness and fell to the earth.

2. A voice from heaven (vv. 4, 5). This was the Lord's voice calling Saul by name and asking "Why persecutest thou me?" To this Saul replied, "Who art thou, Lord?" Then came the answer, "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest," as if to say that persecution of the disciples is persecution of Jesus.

3. Saul's inquiry (v. 6). "What wilt thou have me to do?" The Lord told him to go into the city where information would be given him as to what he must do.

4. Saul entering Damascus (vv. 7-9). The proud persecutor went humbly into Damascus, led by his attendants. For the space of three days he remained blind, and fasted. What went on in his soul in those days no mortal can know. Doubtless in this time he got hold of the truths which he later proclaimed to the world, for his conversion was the basal fact of his theology. The day is coming when all men shall behold the dazzling glory of the Son, either in salvation or in condemnation (Phil. 2:10, 11; Rev. 6:15-17).

III. Saul Ministered to by Ananias (vv. 10-19).

1. Ananias' vision (vv. 10-12). The Lord appeared to him and instructed him to go to Saul. He gave him the name of the streets and Saul's host, and informed him that Saul was now a praying man and that he had prepared Saul by a vision for the coming of Ananias. The Lord knows the name of the street and the number of the house in which his chosen live.

2. Ananias' fear and hesitancy (vv. 13-16). He knew of Saul's ministry and the authority by which he came. The Lord encouraged him to go, assuring him that Saul was no longer an enemy but a chosen vessel to bear his name before the Gentiles, kings, and the children of Israel, and that the badge of his commission should be great suffering for Christ.

3. Ananias' obedience (v. 17). His fears being removed, Ananias went to the house where Saul was stopping, put his hand upon him and affectionately addressed him as brother. The hitherto savage persecutor is now a brother in Christ. Ananias informed him that the Lord had sent him with a twofold mission:

a. "That thou mightest receive thy sight."

b. "Be filled with the Holy Ghost." He received his sight forthwith.

4. Saul baptized (vv. 18, 19). After Saul received his sight, Ananias baptized him. The Lord bestows the gift of the Spirit upon whomsoever he will, and may designate anyone, whether occupying an official position or not, to lay hands upon individuals.

IV. Paul Put into the Ministry (1 Tim. 1:12-14).

He was commissioned for his work among the Gentiles by Jesus Christ. He did not enter the Christian ministry, but was placed there by the sovereign act of the Lord. He was transformed from a blasphemer and a persecutor through the abundant grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and made the apostle to the Gentiles.

The Gospel

Fire destroys home of Walter Wert at Ogdensburg.

Had it not been for their faithful dog, the family of Mr.
Walter Wert at Ogdensburg, might all have been burnt in their beds, early on Wednesday morning last, for the father and three of the children were all sleeping soundly when awakened by the dog scratching and yelping.

Mrs. Wert was away at the time visiting her sister Mrs.
Stevenson at Dalesville and just how the conflagration started,
Mr. Wert was at a loss to know, as there had been no fire in the house for some time previous.
Everything was burned to the ground and Mr. Wert has the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in his serious loss.

Bill Eason's Treasure

By CHARLES SLOAN REID

"THEY say as Bill Eason's a dyin'." Cale Hardy had stopped in front of Tom Moore's cabin, and shouted the news through the open doorway to Nancy Moore who was engaged at churning with an old-fashioned pot churn.

"Yuh don't say?" Nancy arose from her work, and came to the doorway where she stood with her arms akimbo to hear what might follow concerning Bill's illness.

"He was tuk sudden, I reckon. He was down to Fairfield a Saturday."

"My land, I wonder how anybuddy found it out, an' Bill a livin' there all by his lonesome?"

"They say as Jim Joiner went to Bill's to borrow his chop ax, an' found 'im in the bed a moanin'!"

"Do tell! Did he git a doctor?"

"Yes; Doc Malcolm's over thar now."

"I wonder ef Bill'll loosen up 'bout the treasure afore he dies?"

"Hit 'ud be a downright shame ef he didn't, I reckon, seel'n hit could do him no good to keep it; an' hit mought do a world o' good to some'un here."

"I reckon."

Bill Eason was peculiar. For years he had gone about the mountain range with apparently no object in life. He was in his seventieth year. He was called a miser—he often spoke of a treasure mysteriously concealed somewhere; and his neighbors had whispered about that Bill somehow had accumulated much gold, and had hid away in the mountains in some cave or cavern. Bill had loved a girl in his youth with all the intensity of his sturdy nature. It was thought, too, at that time, that Sue Peifrey loved Bill in the same way; but her dad, Lige Peifrey, had moved away to Missouri and had taken Sue with him. Sue had dragged her arms from about Bill's neck at parting, with tears streaming down her cheeks, and had promised faithfully that she would write to him, and sometime would come back. Some said she never wrote; and all knew that she never came back, for news had come less than a year later that Sue had died. Bill grieved, and few ever had seen a smile on his face throughout all the years thereafter.

"I opine," declared Cale Hardy, "the doctor'll quize Bill about the treasure. Ca'se hit's little he'll git for his services, ef the treasure hain't found."

"Maybe so," Nancy sighed. "Hit's a pity a man hes to live that way."

"Yeah. Well, I'll be goin'." Jess thought I'd stop an' let yuh know."

"I thank-ee. I reckon I'll be goin' over to Bill's agin I git this churnin' done."

By the middle of the afternoon a large company of neighbors had gathered at Bill's cabin. The doctor had said there was no hope, that Bill could last only a few hours. Numerous suggestions had been made about getting the story of Bill's treasure from him before he was too far gone. Doctor Malcolm had set about it with all the tact of which he was capable; but Bill for a time had resisted his efforts. At last, however, he seemed to realize that he was slipping, and slipping fast.

"I reckon yoh're right, Doc," he said in a faint voice, rolling his eyes toward Malcolm's face. "I—I won't ever git back thar no more. I—I want mah treasure."

The effort had cost Bill some strength. Malcolm leaned over him. "All right, Bill," he said; "tell us how to find it, and we will have it here for you in a short time."

Bill was silent for some moments. Then a sharp pain caused a convulsion of his muscles. "Top o'—Sheepnose—blue-seamed rock agin—burnt chestnut. Dig under." He paused for breath. "Teeny oak box." Bill's eyes closed, and a light of relief passed over his features.

Cale Hardy and two other mountaineers set out for the hiding place. It was a half mile away, and the men lost no time. Returning they brought, unopened, a little square, home-made oak box, bound about by half a dozen coils of old wire.

"We thought to let old Bill see the openin' hisself," declared Hardy, placing the box in the hands of Doctor Malcolm.

There was much subdued commotion, as the mountain folk gathered about the bed. Malcolm held the box over Bill's face. "This it, Bill?" he asked.

There was a slight nod of acknowledgment from Bill, and something like a smile found expression about the old man's lips. Slowly his hand came up from beneath the covering of the bed. Quickly Doc Malcolm dragged the wire from about the box, and turned back the lid. A dozen pairs of eyes were staring from all sides. Doctor Malcolm himself stared into the box a full minute. Then, reverently he thrust in his fingers, and lifted out the contents with gentle care—a crumpled bit of paper, yellow from age.

Bill Eason's eyes suddenly showed new light, as his fingers closed upon the paper which Doc had pressed into them. After this there was a single gasp, and the old mountaineer was dead.

At the lower side of the sheet of paper, which protruded from between Bill's fingers were six words:

"Yore darlin' Sue
"Vine County, Missa."

Geo. Dansereau Acclaimed as Liberal Candidate

When the Liberals of this county met in convention on Tuesday last, there were signs of a growing storm because of the insistent demands of a strong faction of old timers who were bent on having the Government fulfil the appointment of a registrar, which office was made vacant through the death of the late Geo. F. Calder. While there were quite a few who were looking on with anxious eyes for the coveted position, the choice seemed to rest upon Mr. George Rodger, for, we gather from good authority of party representatives that the appointment will be made in favor of that gentleman, before the day of nomination, and so this cloud was dispelled. As soon as this assurance had been given, in secret conclave, President W. D. Graham took the chair and asked for minutes to be read. Joint secretary L. L. Legault said he and Mr. Rodger had been censured at the last gathering for not preparing the minutes, so he had conformed to the wishes. Mr. Kains took exception to the minutes as read, because they failed to record his protest at the manner in which the association was carried on, and that he had asked at the last gathering for a reading of the minutes of last convention, which had not been given and when taxed by Mr. Kains, the secretary was forced to admit that he did not know where the books or minutes were and the matter dropped.

President Graham then called for nominations and the name of Geo. Dansereau was brought forward.

A real storm arose when after a motion that nominations be closed, Mr. Fortin, lawyer of Lachute, presented a petition, on his own behalf, claiming several hundred signatures for his representation; then Mr. Ladouceur, Mayor of St. Andrews, was nominated, after which the nominees addressed the gathering, Mr. Fortin holding the platform for 20 minutes during which he told some very pertinent things which were not very palatable.

An adjournment was made for the delegates to go upstairs for choosing their candidate which after a few minutes resulted in the following vote, Dansereau 76, Ladouceur 7, Fortin 4.

The announcement brought forth hearty response from the Dansereau supporters and that gentleman thanked the public for continued confidence and he pledged assurance that he would devote himself as he had in the past in working sincerely for the county's interest.

Disappointment was felt at the non-appearance of the Hon. L. A. David and the Hon. Jacob Nicoll, who were unable to be present, but a strong address was delivered by the Hon. Mr. Dillon, Minister without portfolio, who in commenting on the little friction that had arisen, said that trouble was the middle name of anyone engaged in politics, but he said there was, and is, room in any gathering for voicing criticism and the delivery of opinions.

"We are here," said Mr. Dillon to support the choice of the Convention and assume the responsibility of seeing that he is elected. Everybody knows that all countries are traversing a crisis and to those engaged in directing public affairs it is a serious and anxious time. All other countries in submitting reports have to admit that their balance sheets declare big deficits, while the Province of Quebec has been proud to present a surplus, which is a clear demonstration of its capable management.

The Province has been enabled to reduce its funded debt by one million dollars a year, when all other countries have shown deficits. I ask if that is not a record of achievement of which we may be proud, for good and welfare in progress and advancement. The government are accused of being in power for 34 years, and it is only because it has been well governed that it retains the confidence and support of the people of this Province.

The government has gone through the acid test of these troublous times and has emerged with surplus. Some may ask "What about taxation?" Let me tell you that there is an institute of Public Research, comprising high accountants & statisticians beyond reproach and their testimony is recorded as certifying that outside possibly that of Prince Edward Island and the Maritimes, the Province of Quebec is the lowest taxed in Canada. So when we can perform these things you have every reason to be proud of the record we have produced.

Mr. Dillon concluded his remarks with an urge for loyal support to the candidate.

Nita was worried . . . she could not imagine where she had lost her bracelet—in the hotel or on the journey home.

"I can't think what I could have done with it," she kept telling her mother.

"Why not telephone to the hotel," mother suggested. "It's after eight-thirty now and a call will only cost a few cents."

Imagine Nita's joy when the hotel clerk told her that the bracelet had been found in her room and would be mailed to her right away.

Thanks to her mother's suggestion, Nita's anxiety was relieved at once . . . and the cost of the call was considerably less than her taxi fare from the station.

Rowena Rides the Rumble

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food. Spokane is finally reached and the hotel clerk smiles when they register.

Now go on with the Story. He retired to an inner office and came back immediately with the manager of the house. The manager beamed upon them. He held out both hands, and his smile set his rosy face aglow. Rowena and Peter had their own opinions of hotel managers and accepted his friendly overtures with watchful coldness.

"Meeker's my name," said the manager genially. "And I'm proud to meet you." They all shook hands, and Rowena nudged Peter to be very careful and not commit himself.

"Come right along with me," said Mr. Meeker. "We had a wire from the company not two hours ago saying you would be in today without fail. But I must say it is a relief to have you right here on the spot."

They all got into the elevator. The boy at the control smiled at them—a friendly smile. They got out on the fourth floor. A couple of maids were loitering in the corridor. Their faces lighted up with interest and attention.

"Everything ready?" asked the manager anxiously. "Everything all right, I hope."

"Oh, yes, sir," said one of the maids.

"Yes, indeed sir" added the other.

But they looked at Rowena & Peter.

The manager led the way down the corridor.

"Here you are folks," he announced in a voice of happy triumph as he threw open the door. "Our bridal suite!"

"Oh, look, Rowena! Isn't that nice?" said Peter fatuously. "How lovely!" said Rowena faintly.

The bridal suite was a bower of roses. There was a heap of congratulatory letters and telegrams piled high on the table and several conspicuous packages, wrapped in tissue and tied with ribbons, with gift cards prominently displayed.

"Congratulations, folks," said the manager beaming rosy from one to the other. "Best wishes of Spokane, Washington.—Not bad, eh? Pretty fair! Well, the Company wired us to spare no expense and send them the bill, and I guess we filled the order. We tried to anyhow. Cigars, cigarettes, candy—and what-not. And"—this with a truly impressive double-jointed bow which included them both—"a little souvenir from the hotel, at our own expense, for we are honored to have you stop with us."

The little present, which he selected from the group on the table and handed to Rowena, who opened it with trembling fingers and an air of owlish gravity, proved to be an immense silver cocktail shaker, suitably engraved.

"Out here we're dry," said Mr. Meeker, with a sly wink. "But oh, you New Yorkers!—Compliments of the hotel, and congratulations," he added happily.

He and Peter shook hands, Peter very solemn, Mr. Meeker perspiring and jovial.

"Guess there's no harm in kissing the bride, eh?" said the manager, with a playful dig of a sharp elbow into Peter's ribs. "It's a custom I don't think often comes as pretty as this one."

Rowena obligingly lifted her lovely lips, and Mr. Meeker kissed her with resounding relish.

"Now, I'll tell you what the program is," he said cheerfully. "The local Rackruff dealer is going to give a big dinner dance in our ballroom tonight—especially in your honor—swell affair. They've invited all the Rackruff dealers and salesmen in the state, and they say a couple flew in from Oregon this morning on purpose to attend. It's to be a formal, full-dress affair, with souvenirs for the ladies and what-not. And this afternoon at four o'clock they're giving an open reception to the city in their public salesrooms, with afternoon tea and a band, and they've got a car all decorated up like a wedding for you two to sit in and receive the guests. And they're going to present the bride with orange blossoms sent up by aeroplane from California this morning, and a cigarette lighter for you, Mr. Blande, with a picture of the Rackruff roadster set on it in pearls. I've seen it myself and it's a beauty, but it wasn't working the day it came and they had to send it back to the factory."

"How extremely kind," said Peter.

"How perfectly sweet," said Rowena.

"Of course, you both being famous characters, authors and artists, all of our best people will turn out for it, and I understand most of our good clubs plan to be there en masse. The Rackruff dealers are all in a sweat over it and say it's the best break they've had since the war when the Army used a lot of their machines in France. They're coming for you at three-thirty.—Look. This little floral offering here came from them. Pretty nice, eh? We're going to borrow it tonight if you don't mind, to put down behind the orchestra in the ballroom. Pretty nifty!"

The little floral offering was an immense ring of yellow roses with the words "Peter and Rowena" spelled out on the side in scarlet rosebuds.

"How marvelous," said Rowena soberly.

"How unusual!" added Peter.

"And now I'm going to leave you folks to rest and clean up for the big doings," said Mr. Meeker. "If there's anything you want, you just ask for it. And it won't cost you a cent. Well, guess I'll just kiss the bride and be on my way."

"You did kiss the bride," Peter reminded him.

"Well, I'm partial to brides and I give good measure. It's a rule of the house," he said jovially.

And once more Rowena tilted her owlishly solemn face to be kissed.

When he had gone, and the door was closed and locked behind him, Peter looked at Rowena. Rowena looked at Peter. Both gazed in solemn stupefaction around the flower-laden room.

"Of all the damn impositions"—he began.

But to his surprise, a sudden ripple of smiles drove the owlish gravity from Rowena's face. Laughter gurgled in her throat and burst from her lips in delighted peals.

"Peter, Peter! she cried. "Isn't it priceless? Isn't it perfect? Darling, though I die tomorrow, I can say I had my moment!—Peter, look at the wedding-ring in yellow roses. 'Peter and Rowena.'—Look at the little Cupids kissing on the candy box!—Oh, here are sarcastic telegrams from all my ex-boy-friends.—And Buddy, too," she added uneasily. "I suppose I should have warned him. How do you suppose they all found out?"

"Oh, I suppose those idiots put it in the papers," growled Peter. "Naturally they would try to sell cars at the expense of our feelings. We might have known they'd commercialize us to the last ditch."

"Oh, Peter isn't it the corkingest day of our life? When Mr. Meeker, God rest his soul, stood here pointing things out, I kept telling myself, 'Don't die, don't you dare die of ecstasy, until you see this thing through!'"

"You're an odd sort," said Peter moodily. "I thought you would be wild."

"Wild? Certainly not! Except with sheer delight.—Why, Peter, this is just an accident. Accidents never make me mad.—Oh, look here's a present from Racky and Ruffy—a great big one.—Cut the string, Peter—break it—I can't wait!" Peter broke the string. The present from Messrs. Rack and Ruff, and doubtless charged against dividends, was a complete service of solid silver for the well-laid table. Rowena was a little awed at its completeness & its obvious expensiveness.

"Gosh, Peter, whatever will we do with it?"

"Give it back," he said stiffly. "Can't. It isn't good form. Even in a divorce it's bad manners to return your wedding presents.—I tell you! We'll divide it. After all, real silver always comes in handy and we can make good use of it. We deserve some compensation for all the agony we've gone through though as far as I am concerned, this hour has compensated for everything a hundred times over."

"You can have the silver," said Peter. "I don't want it."

But Rowena would not under any circumstances accept more than her proper half. She immediately set about dividing it, piece by piece, one for her and one for Peter.

"I suppose we could sell it for old silver," he said.

"Oh, you'll put it to good use some day," said Rowena. "When you are rich and famous and have a studio apartment of your own—first thing you know you'll be giving those fast supper parties that artists are noted for—one for you, and one for me—"

"Why not keep it together in the box until the trip is over?" he asked. "We won't be giving any fast suppers on the trip, at any rate."

"You can have the box," she said. "I'd rather divide it if you don't mind. Then each of us will be responsible for his own share and if it is lost or stolen neither of us can blame the other.—One for you and one for me."

As a matter of fact, Rowena was already planning to pawn her share of it right there in Spokane. She had no more than glanced inside the fat letter from Buddy, but that glance sufficed to tell her that she needed money. She hoped to get enough for her share of the silver to take care of the distant demands and buy herself a new suit as well. She was really getting shabby. Daily motoring was hard on old clothes. And how she yearned for the flattering silver fox packed away in moth-balls way back on Third Avenue!

"This really puts us in a frightful jam," said Peter. "I suppose we can bluff through the reception and ball all right—we've had plenty of experience. But I don't see how we can dodge the bridal suite. And won't it jeopardize the annulment? Of course, I can lock myself into the sitting room—but would anybody believe it?"

"Nobody in the world," said Rowena cheerfully. "Well, after the ball is over, you'll have to go out alone for a little walk and get lost. Then you go to some other hotel and register—don't forget to have witnesses!—and stay there all night. You can meet me here again tomorrow morning. And be sure to get a receipt for your room.—Oh, Peter, don't you just adore those kissing Cupids? Have a kiss—I mean a candy."

"I think I'd rather have the kiss," said Peter boldly. "After all a groom should be allowed to rush in where a hotel manager dared to tread."

"I'm very particular," said Rowena firmly. "And I'm developing a vast partiality for hotel managers."

His mind relieved as to how Rowena was going to take it, Peter saw some of humor in the situation and they made great sport of their predicament. They laughed over the flowery telegraphic congratulations and dispatched flippant answers collect. They called the Rackruff salesrooms by long distance telephone to thank them for the lovely thought and Mr. Mack was so pleased that he had the charges for the call reversed. They tossed a coin for the cocktail shaker which Peter won, considerably to Rowena's regret, for she was sure she could have raised enough on it to make sure of the new suit which she needed for the reception that afternoon.

Lesson for August 16

SOWING AND REAPING
(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 6:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Obeying the Law.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Obeying the Law.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Sowing and Reaping (Effects of Alcohol).
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sowing and Reaping (Effects of Alcohol).

In chapters three and four Paul presented in a masterful way the heart of Christianity; namely that justification is by faith in the atoning work of Christ rather than by the works of the law. In chapters five and six he made practical application of the doctrine to the affairs of life. Gracious justification by faith is the dynamic for right living. Those who are freely justified in Christ will manifest the fact by the following conduct:

I. Restore the Sinning Brother (v. 1).

1. Who he is. "The one overtaken in a fault." The idea expressed by the word "fault" is not to minimize the sin, but to show the suddenness of the temptation. One's spirituality is shown by his willingness to help in such a case.

2. What is to be done. He is to be "restored." Restore is a surgical term which means the placing back of a dislocated member to its normal place. Christians are members of the body of Christ. Therefore, the sinning of a brother should as really give us pain as the dislocation of a member of our body.

3. How it is to be done. "In a spirit of meekness." Harshness has no place in the life of a Christian. The fruit of the Spirit is love, meekness, etc. The believer must show his right to claim the life in the heavens by stooping down to help the brother crippled and besmeared in the dirt of earth.

4. The incentive. "Lest thou also be tempted." No one is immune from temptation. The surest way to be fortified against temptation is to go sympathetically to the rescue of the fallen.

II. Bear One Another's Burdens (v. 2).

Many are the burdens of life: burdens of weakness, temptations of a fallen nature, sorrow, suffering, and sin. Some have more temptations than others. Since believers are inseparably bound together, the strong should bear the infirmities of the weak. Christ is the supreme burden bearer. When we bear one another's burdens, we fulfill the law of Christ. Many have inherited the appetite for intoxicating liquors, and the spirit of burden bearing will move us to make our utmost endeavor to remove far away the temptation to strong drink.

III. Bear Our Own Burdens (vv. 3-5). There are some burdens which can be borne alone by the individual. Personal responsibility cannot be escaped. In a most real sense every man lives his life alone. Helpful as sympathy, human and divine, greatly as we need the helping hand of our brother, the individual must live his own life. The law of God which is to harmony with the law which controls the individual declares, "The soul that sinneth it shall die."

IV. Support Teachers of God's Word (vv. 6-8). It is incumbent upon those who are taught in God's Word to give of their means for the support of the teacher. To repudiate this obligation is to mock God (v. 7), for God has ordained that they who preach the gospel shall live of the gospel (I Cor. 9:14). The declaration, "Whoever a man soweth that shall he also reap," sets forth a law which operates in all spheres of life.

V. Be Earnest in Well Doing (v. 9). The harvest is sure. Sow good seed and patiently wait for the reward. The same unfailing law which eventuates in a harvest of corruption to those who sow to the flesh will bring life everlasting to those who sow to the Spirit.

VI. Work for the Good of All Men (v. 10).

The believer in Christ who realizes his freedom will have sympathies and interests as wide as the race. While especially endeavoring to help those in Christ, he will be reaching out to all men. He will be seeking to win them to Christ. This obligation to work for the good of all men applies in such matters as the abolition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages.

The Righteous

The righteous are as trees of life; the fruits of their piety and charity, their instructions, reproofs, examples and prayers, their interest in heaven and their influence on earth are like the fruits of that tree, precious and useful, contributing to the support and nourishment of the spiritual life in many.—Matthew Henry.

When Learning is Useful

Education is useful, but when it ignores God it is destructive.—Babson.

Notary F. Lavigne is Choice of Convention

Although there were two candidates in the field at the nomination proceedings held in the Court House on Wednesday, the choice fell upon our young Notary, Mr. Felicien Lavigne.

The chair was occupied by Col. Jos. E. Seale in absence of the President, Mr. H. Slater, who was unable to attend.

The chairman read a telegram of regret from Sir George Perley at his inability through sickness to be present at this gathering, but wishing all success to the chosen candidate.

Calling for nominations, Mr. Wm. Bradshaw of Grenville, moved that Mr. Lavigne be the standard-bearer to oppose Mr. Dansereau in the coming contest Mr. P. Masson seconding the motion.

Mr. Jno. Mason then placed Mr. Albani Lamarche in nomination, which was seconded by Leo. Carriere.

Both of the candidates briefly addressed the meeting, Mr. Lavigne speaking as an active conservative worker who had done much service in helping to elect Mr. St. Jacques in the Provincial and going through three victories with Sir George Perley, so that he knew well the people of the county and their needs. He stated that there was one thing sure, that Mr. Dansereau would have to put up the fight of his life, for there would positively be no acclamation.

Mr. Lamarche made his appeal that he allowed his name to come before the convention, firstly because of many requests and secondly because the honor naturally belongs to a workman or farmer.

Both candidates gave assurance of loyalty to the conservative interests and upon whoever the choice of convention rested, they would extend utmost support.

Mr. Albani Lamarche, the popular secretary-treasurer of Chatham, when the announcement of the poll was declared, in true sporting spirit, shook hands with his opponent and later urged his supporters to do all they could in a united manner to carry the cause to a successful issue.

That the conservatives are bent on victory was evident from the eagerness displayed by those present, many of whom had come from the farther-most parts of the County.

Owing to the crowded condition of the gathering, an adjournment was made outside the building where Mr. R. L. Calder was asked to address the meeting. From the appearance of this gathering, one might readily see, remarked the speaker, that you are already convinced that the Provincial Government have been in office too long and it is time they were turned out.

I do not intend to talk politics at this meeting because nomination day is coming and I shall then have the opportunity of denouncing a government who shamelessly are trying to bribe the electors through the guise of work offered, which doubtless will cease directly after the vote is taken. They ask the workers but also exact a promise of support.

The administration of justice has broken down and utterly failed said the speaker, and while Dr. Plante in the last election said their government had no scandals, the Beauharnois scandal at Ottawa, by which five senators had been denounced, when Premier King was forced to admit that the party was dwelling in humiliation this was as nothing in comparison to the part taken by Quebec and Mr. Calder gave his word and pledged his honor that he would uncover more stink-pots that will drive many more public men into private life.

Other short addresses were listened to with marked interest and before the meeting terminated a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman.

MUIR—CRUISE

The marriage of Miss Mary Annie Cruise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cruise, to Mr. Andrew Allan Muir, of Lynchburg, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Muir, of Lachute, took place quietly on Wednesday, August 12th., at 4 p.m., at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. A. Penman officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Muir will reside in Lynchburg, Va.

To the Electors of Argenteuil!

Having been chosen the Conservative Candidate in the elections now pending, I wish to express my gratitude for the honor bestowed upon me and I pledge myself to do my best to justify the confidence reposed in me.

Owing to the short period of time between my nomination as candidate and the present issue of the Watchman, I am compelled to confine my manifesto to main points only.

I wish to state that my platform is the platform set forth by the Conservative Convention of 1929 at Quebec. The program of the Conservative party is not only one of building roads and bridges as the Liberal program seems to be, where the main issue for them is to see that ex-deputies, friends of the government, even deputies and sons of deputies become contractors and make profits out of the people's money. The conservatives are for good roads but roads built in a rational way. Our policy is that the roads should be built by the municipalities themselves with the government money and under the government supervision; thus 20% or 25% of our money going to profiters would be spent for the benefit of this country. All that our opponents have to talk about is roads and roads again. As far as the farmers and labor men are concerned this does not interest them. The liberals blame us for no program. We are for Old Age Pensions, Lower Court Fees, Cheaper Registration Fees, Lower automobile Licenses and half licenses for those using their cars only six months. Higher grants to country schools and specially to Academies, so as to permit our country children to get better education. Fair wages to the working class. We advocate that the Interest on farm loans should be reduced from 5 1/2% to 2%, so that the farmer who has payments to make should be able to live. If the Government can loan money to municipalities at 2% interest to build roads which are mostly used by outsiders, why should the farmer who is keeping that municipality not deserve the same privilege and have money at the same rate of interest?

This is part of our program. Electors of Argenteuil, is it progressive or destructive? The people of this Province will judge on the 24th. instant, and judging from the great victory in the by-election of Three-Rivers, we can see what is going to happen to this government 34 years old which, if kept in office any longer, will keep on selling our best natural resources to the Americans and leave us to remain the valets and servants in our own province.

I hope to meet you one and all at our public meetings, and I hereby invite our opponents to join us in the meetings so that we may discuss matters openly and have them answer our questions.

I trust that you will all give me your support so that I may help in bringing about a better Government for our County and Province.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. Lavigne,

CUSHING

Miss Fairy Innes is visiting friends in Montreal.

Mr. J. D. Weir of St. Anne de Bellevue, visited his Cushing home over the week-end.

Mr. Herbert Macomb of Chrysothome, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. Roy Dobbie.

Mrs. F. Douglas and daughter Mildred, of Montreal, were the guests of Mr. B. Noyes last week.

Messrs. L. Maw and Beecher, of Montreal, spent the week-end with their families at Hill-Top Cottage.

Mr. A. C. Lathbury, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Canning.

Miss Freda Gauley of Chatham, is the guest of Mrs. A. Bishop, of Gananoque, Ont., this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Richardson, of Montreal, spent the past week the guests of their mother, Mrs. Jas. Cleland.

Mr. J. Maguire, of Montreal, spent last week with Mrs. Maguire and James at their summer cottage here.

A very successful picnic was held by St. Mungo's Church S. School on Thursday of last week at the home of Mr. A. Graham.

Mr. Andrew Pollock, of Verdun, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham from Saturday, returned home on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall and sons who have been the guests of Mrs. T. Weir Sr. for some time, left for their home in Montreal on Sunday.

Mrs. T. Weir and daughters arrived on Tuesday night from Thorold, Ont., where they have been spending a very pleasant holiday with relatives there.

Misses Mullen of New York, also Mrs. W. MacAdam, of Chapleau, Ont., have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien during the last week.

A very enjoyable Missionary meeting was held at the Manse on Tuesday evening; Mr. Maclean favoring the audience with beautiful & interesting lantern views.

Mrs. Andrew Pollock, of Verdun, and daughter Betty, also Mrs. Mitchell, of Troon, Ayrshire, Scotland, are the guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham.

It was not intended that any notice should be taken of the ridiculous article which appeared in last week's Watchman, re-entertainments in our little Cushing Church, signed by W.

We say ridiculous because Cushing Church has been carrying on now for almost a century and has never put on any entertainmet, in all that time that it has any cause to be ashamed of.

Ridiculous also because W. has attended almost every entertainment put on within the last few years, enjoying them to the utmost and applauding those who took part as vigorously as any one else.

Ridiculous again, by reason of it not being written in a spirit of retaliation because of the article on entertainments of the week before, as W. does not come from the nearby town mentioned in that article and has no connection whatever with anyone of there. The previous article did not concern W. in any way, but was written solely in a spirit of personal animosity against the writer of the article of the previous week, and a desire to give (if we might use a slang expression) her a slam if possible but knowing W. as well as we all do, her objective along that line has not been attained.

We write to apologize to the nearby town for the letter written by W. in last week's Watchman because of its misleading character.

Written as it was at that particular time and using two words from the previous article as a basis for the attack given to make readers who did not know who W. was believe that some one from that town had written it when they had not.

I repeat this again, we apologize to that nearby town for the article written by W.

Only Coating of Salt on Utah's "Salt Palace"

The Salt Lake Real Estate board says: "The Salt palace was built as a dance hall in a local pleasure resort where were formerly a bicycle race track and various other entertainment attractions. The Salt palace was not constructed of solid salt, as many suppose, but rather was a coat over frame construction, which, however, had all the appearance of a real salt structure. Salt is extracted from the brine in Great Salt lake by pumping water into evaporating ponds, where the salt is finally deposited on whatever happens to be on the ground. It was discovered that when the brine, which is approximately 20 per cent in the lake, had evaporated sufficiently so that the solution was about 40 per cent in strength, articles dipped into the brine would attract the crystals and they would form on any surface, particularly wood. This was how the lumber was coated for the Salt palace. It was taken to these ponds, one side was allowed to become covered with these crystals, and then later salt water was poured over to weld the joints. At first the building was very bright, the crystals dazzling in the sunlight. However they were not immune to rain, and after several seasons they were no longer the same bright color that they were originally. The origin of the fire which destroyed it was never definitely determined. However, like many resorts in smaller cities, it had too much competition, and was therefore not sufficiently profitable to warrant rebuilding."

Readers and Playgoers

Bored by Sensationalism

The twilight of the sensationalists has come. The gods they challenged are either moribund, totally defunct, or so changed as to be unrecognizable. Respectability has become a joke; right and wrong, inextricably mingled, Louise Maunsell Field writes, in the North American Review.

We are all so used to having "the facts of life" paraded before us in their ugliest possible aspect that we no longer become excited or indignant. We can no longer be shocked at anything, because we have become used to everything. Familiarity breeds indifference at least as often as it does contempt.

We can still, some of us, be repelled by vulgarity and bad taste; and we can most of us be bored. We were profoundly bored last season by many plays that struggled to be daring, and succeeded only in being dull.

As for psychopathic studies produced under the guise of fiction, they may be well done and consequently interesting, or they may be merely tedious; but they can't rely on "frankness" and "daring" any longer.

Radio Peculiarities

Radio transmission reproduces not only the pitch and tone, but also the characteristic timbre of each musical instrument, because each sound wave entering a microphone has not only the general characteristic of frequency, but also infinitely smaller waves within the general frequency wave. These incidental—or supplementary—waves within the tonal frequency wave are caused by the peculiar or characteristic timbre of the instrument producing the sound. For example, the tonal frequencies of both the violin and the saxophone, playing the same note, "A," will be identical, but the incidental "overtone" waves within the frequencies will be different and will also be transmitted, identifying the characteristic "form" or "timbre" of the instrument itself.

California's Inland Sea

The Salton sea is a lake in the Colorado desert, in southeastern California. Under ordinary conditions it is a salt marsh covered in places by shallow lakes about 30 miles long, 12 miles wide and 280 feet below sea level. At times of freshets, the lakes expand into a water body covering approximately 50,000 acres. Water from the irrigating ditches of the Imperial valley keeps the level of the lake fairly constant and unless this is diverted it will continue to maintain its previous area despite heavy losses from evaporation. Terraces slightly above sea level on the sides of the basin indicate that there was formerly present a lake called "Lake Cahuilla," which was 12 miles long and 30 miles wide.

Horseshoe Superstitions

There are varying views on the origin of the superstition concerning the horseshoe. Some think it is lucky because it has seven nail holes in it. Another idea is that the horseshoe is lucky because witches are afraid of it. So if a horseshoe is placed outside your door, no witch will dare to enter. It is possible that one object of hanging up horseshoes in the old days was a desire to appear wealthy in the eyes of passers-by, for only a comparatively rich man possessed a horse, shod with iron. By the way, the luckiest horseshoe is supposed to be the first one shed by a mare, and you must hang this with the opening at the top in order that the luck may not drop out!

Knew Little About Him

"I have a compliment for you," Mrs. Jones told her son Jerry. "Mrs. Brown said you were a very fine boy." "Well, Mrs. Brown doesn't know anything about me, does she?" asked Jerry. "No, thank goodness, she doesn't," said mother.

Siam's Rulers Visit Canada

Canada's most illustrious guests for the present week are undoubtedly Their Majesties the King and Queen of Siam, who, with a party of relatives, officials and servants from their own land, are at present making their way across this country and missing few if any of the sights that should be seen by the intelligent tourist in our midst.

His Majesty King Prajadhipok, pronounced Pra-cha-ti-pok, with the accent on the second syllable, is the descendant of Buddha, and holder of half a dozen stirring Oriental titles, and furthermore, the unquestioned master of the destinies of ten million people.

Naturally, then, one looks toward seeing him with keen interest, and all unprepared for the shock when a well-groomed gentleman steps from his train and with smiling courtesy and in English speech quite undistinguishable from that spoken by cultured Canadians greets those who await him. Later we understand it. An Oxford education and a term or two at a French military school as well as visits of study to the United States and other occidental countries have had their effect upon a naturally active mind of an outstandingly intelligent nature.

Siam is fortunate in her King. Under his enlightened guidance she is moving slowly out of Oriental medievalism into such modernism as is good for the country's welfare and happiness, not by revolution or the sudden casting away of long-tried things that have proved their use, but by the gradual assimilation of the things that are found good among the modern.

This ruler of men takes his

The beautiful Wat Po temple, at Bangkok, capital of Siam, gives a splendid example of the country's architecture. Inset: Their Majesties King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambhai Barni, landing from the Canadian Government steamer "Lady Grey", at Montreal, where they were accorded an enthusiastic welcome.

kingship seriously. You see it in his every move, in his grave, thoughtful air, and in the serious respectful manner in which the members of his suite approach him. More than all it is seen in what he has done for Siam. Of his Queen, Rambhai Barni, columns might be written. Her charm of manner and captivating smile have captured all who have met her ever since she first set foot on Canadian soil at Quebec. As modern as her husband, and speaking as excellent English, as indeed do all sixteen members of their suite, Her Majesty seems to enjoy every moment of her stay in Canada.

It is astonishing how interested the party are in Canadian history, and historic scenes. When at Quebec the battlefields of the Plains of Abraham were gone over most carefully and every interesting relic in and about the city was duly visited. The party occupied a complete upper floor in the tower of the Chateau Frontenac from where they had a view of the whole theatre of the struggle that ended in the fall of the French regime. His Majesty did not come to Canada as a stranger.

He was here six years ago on his way to Europe and he already knew something of our history. In that fact lies the explanation of the exceedingly interesting statement he issued to the people of Canada upon his arrival at Quebec. It was as follows:

"In landing upon this continent in British Columbia last April I expressed the hope that I might have an opportunity of seeing more of this great and growing member of the British Commonwealth of Nations. That hope is about to be realized. We shall remain for a time here in 'Old Canada' where the sturdy characteristics of French and British forbears have blended in a culture as admirable as it is unique. After meeting officials of the Government, and visiting the Capital of the Dominion, we shall travel west through Canada, remaining for a time in the Canadian Rockies before embarking at Vancouver. I look forward to the opportunity of seeing at closer range the people and the institutions of this nation whose vigor and progressiveness are so happily apparent."

CHEVROLET CARAVAN TO PAY LOCAL VISIT

Score of Trucks and Commercial Bodies To Have Special Showing Here First Of Its Kind

Twenty-five modern "covered wagons", comprising a commercial caravan that plans to traverse more than 3000 miles of present-day concrete train in Ontario and Quebec within the next few weeks, will halt in Lachute on Thursday, August 20th. On that day the people of Lachute will be able to see one of the most interesting exhibits of its kind ever shown in this city, inasmuch as the pageant will present the complete line of chevrolet commercial cars and numerous special bodies. The Chevrolet Commercial Caravan will arrive at 3 p.m. Thursday and will leave early next morning.

Under special police escort the Caravan after parading downtown streets, will stop at the John Mason Motor Sales showrooms, where the various units will be ready for public inspection. The vehicles on display will include trucks for almost every haulage requirement. Fire engine, ambulance-hearse, hydraulic hoist and many other interesting body mountings have been placed in the Caravan through the co-operation of numerous special body manufacturers. All the Chevrolet-built bodies in the Caravan are products of the Canadian plant, as are the various chassis. The 25 combinations of bodies and chassis will demonstrate, very interestingly, the elasticity of the Chevrolet truck line.

Leading the Caravan column, as it enters the city, there will be a special truck equipped with microphone and musical attachment, which will announce the parade as it proceeds through the streets. There will be a demonstration of fire apparatus equipment, which is part of the Caravan including triple combination chemical, pumper, hook and ladder. The triple combination is the Chevrolet-Bickle, exhibited by Bickle Fire Engines, Limited, Woodstock, Ontario. Municipal authorities are particularly interested in this phase of the Caravan's visit.

For the convenience of those interested in the features of Chevrolet truck construction & the variety of the Caravan units which run all the way from standard stake body on 131" chassis to the heavy duty chassis with five-ton trailer, the staff of experts accompanying the Caravan will be on hand at the local Chevrolet premises during the display to answer questions.

The Chevrolet Commercial Caravan is the first of its kind to visit Canadian cities. It started at Brantford on July 25th, and will be on the road approximately six weeks before completing its tour of Ontario and Western Quebec.

Art Treasures Beyond

All Price in Vatican

It would take volumes to enumerate the treasures of the Vatican. The chapels of San Lorenzo, the Sistine and the Pauline are decorated with frescoes by Fra Angelico, Michelangelo, Perugino and others. Four chambers were decorated by Raphael.

The picture gallery is not large, but the paintings are among the most valuable in the world. Raphael's "Transfiguration," his "Madonna di Foligno" and his "Coronation of the Virgin," besides some smaller pictures, are here. So are works of Murillo, Titian, Perugino, Correggio, Paul Veronese and others of the greatest of painters.

The museum contains not only many of the most beautiful sculptures in the world, ancient Greek statues among which are the Laocoon and the Apollo Belvidere, but also great numbers of antiquities, relics of ancient Italy, Greece and Egypt.

The library at the Vatican was founded in 1378, and now contains a valuable collection of 60,000 manuscripts and 250,000 volumes of rare books. A recent addition to this collection is the Rosignoli library and archives presented by Louis Mendelssohn of Detroit, Mich. This library includes many valuable books gathered by Pope Clement IX of Rosignoli during his pontificate from 1667 to 1669; also a portrait of Pope Clement by Carlo Maratta.

Bayberry Candle Boon

to New England Women

Candles in days gone by were an item of expense to be reckoned with in the gay courts of Europe, as many as 5,000 being used on grand occasions when the vast halls were to be filled with guests. From the demand the making of candles developed into quite an important industry and laws were passed regulating the size and adulteration of the materials to be used.

When the Pilgrims found themselves on the bleak shores of New England with few facilities for artificial illumination, says the New York Sun, other methods of lighting their homes had to be devised. At first, like the Indians, they used knots of pitch pine to light their cabins, but it was not long until the thrifty New England woman learned that by boiling the little gray bayberries that grew on the low windswept shores along the coast she could procure a wax which rose to the top of the kettle. From this she made the first bayberry candles.

First Sunday Schools

A century and a half has elapsed since Robert Raikes began his organization of Sunday schools. The credit for the founding of the earliest of Sunday schools is as distinct from the Sunday school movement, however, is claimed for the little spinster Methodist, Hannah Bull, friend of John Wesley, whose first Sunday school was established in High Wycombe 161 years ago, 11 years before Raikes' historic movement, and is still active. An authority on the subject has stated: "It seems almost certain that John Wesley, who rode on horseback from place to place, and who visited Gloucester, spoke of the work of Hannah Bull to Robert Raikes, a man of great abilities, who thereupon not only commenced a school, but set himself to organize others."—Montreal Family Herald.

Standard Time

According to the United States naval observatory at Washington, standard time had not come into general use in 1885; no uniform standards existed then. At present, the time zone in which England is located uses the local time of Greenwich, and the time used in London in 1885 was practically the same as the Greenwich time today. Sweden adopted standard time in 1892. Since that date it has used time one hour more advanced than that of Greenwich. Stockholm, no doubt, used its own local time before 1892, which would have been a few minutes more advanced than the time used today. Owing to Greenland's spare population, that country has not yet adopted standard time.

Country's Foggiest Spots

The foggiest spot in the United States brightened a little in 1930, and had only 1,562 hours of fog, so light-house keepers at Moose Peak, Me., have reported to the lighthouse service of the Department of Commerce. At Moose Peak, records for the last 16 years show a yearly average of 1,607 hours of fog. Runners-up on Moose Peak's record are Libbey Island and Petit Manan, also on the Maine coast. They are foggy a good bit of the time, but cannot quite match Moose Peak's figures. The United States lighthouse service states that Point Reyes light station holds the record for fog on the Pacific coast, with an average of 1,298 hours a year for 45 years.—Grit.

Remembered Old Debt

To pay back 50 cents he had borrowed from a schoolmate 50 years ago Ernest M. Ladden, New York, is said to have flown to San Francisco and handed a 50-cent piece to his creditor, Municipal Judge Fritz. Ladden was a student at college in San Francisco in 1880. The two boys wanted to go swimming one day. Ladden had no bathing suit nor any money to buy one, so Fritz lent him half a dollar.

Here and There

New Brunswick will have an open season for partridge shooting from October 1-15 this year according to an order issued by Hon. L. P. D. Tilley, provincial Minister of Lands and Mines.

Value last year of Nova Scotia fisheries was placed at $10,411,200, according to a recent Canadian Government report. The lobster and cod are of chief importance.

Since the Royal Canadian Air Force made its first experimental flight over Lake Winnipeg in 1922, the total number of photographs taken from airplanes in Canada is close to half a million.

Condemned to the stockyards three years ago, Cano Paul Bruce, mature Holstein bull, was recently crowned grand champion Holstein bull of the Calgary stampede and exhibition. He was acquired from his former owner by the Canadian Pacific Strathmore farm and won in the railway's colors.

To see his 28 nephews and nieces in Canada; to return the visit made him by the Canadian Bishops last year; and to see the Cathedral on Vancouver Island are the three reasons for the two months' visit to the Dominion of His Lordship the Bishop of London, Dr. A. E. Winnington-Ingram, who arrived recently aboard the Duchess of York.

Recent tests of the new mammoth Canadian Pacific locomotive "8000", destined for heavy work in the Canadian Rockies, have brought results in excess of the most sanguine expectations. It pulled a train weighing 7,961 tons, almost equal to three normal trains, from Smiths Falls to Montreal a distance of 128 miles, without a hitch, in 5 1/2 hours and showed over 30% fuel economy.

With a score of 266 in the aggregate and placed 67th in "the King's Hundred" as the first hundred shots in the King's Prize at Bisley are called, Sergeant Cecil William Foam, of Montreal, has just returned from the famous rifle shooting meet with added laurels. He has made his place in the "King's Hundred" every year since 1929 and for the last ten years has been employed at the Angus Shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Half-way around the world in 17 days, London to Yokohama via Canada and Honolulu, is the record of Miss D. Bewley, of London, who left Southampton July 8 on the new Empress of Britain, was rushed to Montreal by boat train where she boarded the Imperial Limited for Vancouver. At the latter port she left on the Empress of Canada arriving at Yokohama July 25. The combination of the two ships' fast time across the Atlantic and the Pacific makes this trip a record between London and the Orient.

Travelling incognito under the name of Prince and Princess Sukhodaya, Their Majesties the King and Queen of Siam with a large suite went across Canada by Canadian Pacific from Quebec where they stayed at the Chateau Frontenac, stopping for a couple of weeks at the Canfit Springs Hotel in the heart of the Canadian Rockies, where they officially opened the Highland Gathering, then going on to Vancouver where they will sail by Canadian Pacific Empress of Canada September 12 for the Orient. They govern a country of 225,000 square miles with a population of about 11,500,000. (763)

NO RETRENCHEMENTS

PREPARATIONS FOR OTTAWA EXHIBITION

Unusually High-priced Attractions Booked by Directors. Many Features Will Appeal to Visitors. Dates are Aug. 24 to 29.

When some people were talking hard times, the director of the Central Canada Exhibition Association refused to make retrenchments or to depart from the high stand of excellence which has made the Ottawa Exhibition the best one week exhibition on the continent. In fact, they started out to make this year's attractions better than ever, and no expense was spared with this object in view.

For Cavallo and his band, the directors are paying more than for any previous band engaged for the exhibition. This organization is one of the foremost with a record of successive triumphs, and is composed of 58 artists. Two programs will be given each day from the concert bandstand, no extra charge being made for this stellar attraction.

To Edgar I. Schooley, producer of revues, the directors also said they wanted something even better than last year and were prepared to pay the price. The result will be seen in the Sensations of 1931, the big spectacular music, dance & comedy presentation, with a special cast of Broadway artists, mostly girls, elaborately costumed and with the most lavish stage setting ever arranged for an outdoor exhibition attraction.

There will be many new features when the exhibition opens on August 24, and the six days and six nights will be replete with entertainment. Two buffalo, with their calf, will be seen in a special enclosure. These are loaned by the Dominion government for educational purposes. It will not be a midway show, but will be free to the public, as also will be the live fish, game birds and wild animals shown by the Ontario government; the gold and tropical fish display by Anson Pratt the Dominion government Experimental Farm display and other attractions.

Each day there will be balloon ascensions, and parachute drops by Major J. T. Smith, assisted by Miss Anna Lawless. Double and triple drops with acrobatics going up and coming down will give plenty of thrills. In addition, there will be aeroplane demonstrations.

A new midway, the finest program of vaudeville ever assembled for the grandstand, horse races, dog show, automobile show, child welfare demonstrations, pure food show, displays by merchants and manufacturers, livestock, poultry and pets, horticulture and agriculture, handicrafts and arts, hobby show, baby show, home cooking and domestic science, horse show, and scores of other features will appeal to exhibition visitors.

This year there is an exceptionally large demand for the coupon tickets. The regular admission to the grounds is 35 cents, but by buying strip tickets in advance, five admissions are obtained for one dollar, a direct saving of 75 cents. These coupons are transferable and may be used for admission to the grandstand any afternoon or to the dog show. They are on sale at branches of the Bank of Nova Scotia in the Ottawa Valley, or may be obtained by mail from the exhibition office. H. H. McElroy, secretary-treasurer, will be pleased to give all information as to entries, programs, etc.

Among those attending the 51st annual sessions of the Northfield General Conference of Christian workers, founded by Dwight L. Moody, evangelist are W. B. Rosborough, of the Brownsburg Road.

Throughout the Conference, which began August 1 and continues to the 17th, about 3,000 people are present attending the many addresses held daily. Special ministers' meetings are held in Sage Chapel at 9.00 and again at 10.00 each morning for the 200 ministers at the Conference. These are addressed by Dr. Jno. R. Hutton, of London, editor of the British Weekly, Dr. James Moffatt, of London, translator of Moffatt's New Testament, Dr. Campbell Morgan of Boston, & Dr. Charles Erdman, of Princeton. These men also address the open meetings in the Auditorium.

Homer Rodeheaver leads the singing and also teaches a course on the leadership in Christian music. The young people's meetings are being led by the Rev. Howard Morgan of Lexington, Ky., a son of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan. Other speakers here are Dr. A. T. Robertson of Louisville, Ky.; Rev. Jas. Vance, of Nashville, Tenn.; Rev. Adam Burnet, of Glasgow; and Rev. Robert Stewart, of Belvidere, New Jersey.

The final Northfield conference this summer is the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Conference, which will convene August 17 to 24. About 700 people are expected to attend.

To the Electors of Argenteuil!

GENTLEMEN:

I have once more been chosen as the liberal standard bearer of the Liberal Party in the present election.

During the last four years that I have been your Member, I have worked unceasingly to obtain grants for roads and schools; I have obtained from the Provincial Government, for this County, more grants than any Member has ever obtained before.

During my term as your Member, the Provincial Government has built the Lachute-St. Jovite highway, and many miles of roads in the different municipalities of this county.

You have heard through the press that the Provincial Government has remitted the debt that the municipalities owed for the construction of highways, amounting to the sum of $17,000,000.00; our county benefits to the extent of $241,000.00. There are many more roads to be built in the county of Argenteuil, and if you do me the honour of returning me as your Member, I will again work to the best interest of our county, and especially to build and improve our roads.

I approve entirely the programme of the Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Prime Minister of this Province, and I take the liberty of quoting the following extracts of the Prime Minister's programme, which I fully endorse and intend to help him to carry out, as far as this county is concerned:

HIGHWAY MAINTENANCE

The Government, further, has taken over completely the maintenance of all the main highways in the Province. The farmers must realize what a heavy burden they have been relieved of. The steel bridges are closely linked with our highways, and we have built 1,000 of them, and during the past year have taken over the maintenance of them, forming another reduction in taxation for the agricultural classes. The former's loans which are so useful for the farmers, created by and under the control of the Federal Government, does not attain the result expected. At the last session the province arranged to pay one and a half per cent. interest on these loans so as to reduce the rate to five per cent. If that contribution does not improve the lot of the farmers with regard to the loans, we shall have to go still farther. However, I pray the farmers not to take heed to the promises of certain demagogues who claim to be ready to advance them money at two per cent. No arrangement in the world can do this. And the farmers, I am sure, like everyone else, have no desire to assist in the ruination of the province.

Our farmers and settlers receive in grants ten times in excess of what they received under the regime of our predecessors. We give to our settlers roads and bridges, and help them earn their living right at the time they locate on the land. We give them schools and chapels, ploughing, land clearing and residence premiums, and also supply them with seed grain.

We offer grants to the farmers for the purchase of chemical fertilizers; offer indemnity for cattle killed by reason of tuberculosis; have inaugurated a scientific system for the drainage of farm lands, which has already given beneficial results, and many other favorable measures for the advancement of agriculture.

I would refer also to our agricultural schools; our winter agricultural courses; to the opening of export markets; our help to the formation of co-operative societies; organization of agronomes; creation of experimental farms, and I will close by saying what are the taxes which directly apply to the farmer today?

The only one which might touch the richer farmer, the succession duty has been abolished on all estates which are lower than $25,000. Are there many farmers who leave such an inheritance? Health and hygiene have not been forgotten. The Public Charities Act which has proved to be so beneficial has been in operation for ten years. There are 180 institutions which come under its aegis, and all the dioceses have accepted it; its revenues have reached the total of $3,500,000 yearly, and all this goes to our admirable institutions. Their revenues are not even considered in our assets. Over $15,000,000 has been advanced to our hospitals, or is payable by the Government, and our opponents call us 'taxers' because we get this amount from charity by taxing theatres, races and hotel meals.

In the same category let us place our sanitary units which have been adopted by the majority of the counties, the results from which have been excellent, and infantile mortality is decreasing very much. Our sanitary services extend their activities to the far flung sections of the province where formerly there was no means of fighting disease.

On the progressive policies of the Taschereau government I appeal to the Electors of this County for their vote and support.

I have the honour to be Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

Geo. Dansereau,

Lachute, August 13th., 1931.

MY SINCERE THANKS

To those who so kindly help in the Flower Mission.

Each week finds more people interested, and nothing could exceed the helpfulness of our station agent, Mr. Lessard.

It is no small item to have the boxes sent up to the station each week. One only has to express need and one or more send them up.

I hope some of our helpers will be able to see some distribution in Montreal for it surely pays to give such pleasure as is shown by those receiving flowers.

IN MEMORIAM

GREEN.—In loving memory of my dear husband, James Green, who died August 15th., 1930.

Do not ask me if I miss him. Oh, there's such a vacant place Oft I think I hear his footsteps Or I see his smiling face.

When the evening shades are falling

And I am sitting all alone

To my heart there comes a longing—

If he only would come home.

But gone is the face I loved so dear,

Silent the voice I loved to hear

'Tis sad but true, I wonder why

That you dear husband had to die?

The flowers I lay upon your grave

May wither and decay.

But love for you who sleeps beneath

Will never fade away.

Inserted by his wife.

FLETCHER.—In loving memory of a dear friend Annie, who departed this life on Aug. 10th., 1928. Loved in life, in death remembered.

A Friend.

GREEN.—In loving memory of our dear father, James Green, who died August 15th., 1930.

Surrounded by friends we are lonesome.

In the midst of our joy we are blue,

With a smile on our faces

There's an ache in our hearts

Longing dear father for you.

Inserted by his family.

McMAHON.—In loving memory of dear Douglas and Clarence, both drowned at Crystal Falls August 17th., 1928.

We did not know the pain you bore

We only know you passed away

We did not see you die

And could not say good-bye.

You little thought when leaving home

That you would ne'er return.

That you soon in death would sleep

And leave us here to mourn.

No word of comfort could you leave,

To those you loved so well,

When shades of night are falling

And we sit all alone

To our hearts comes a feeling.

If you, dear boys, could only come home,

No one knows how much we miss you,

No one knows what bitter pain

We have suffered since we lost you

Life will never be the same.

Sadly missed by Mother, Dad and Sisters.

FLETCHER.—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Annie, who departed this life, August 10th., 1928.

You smiled your whole life through

And smiled through years of pain

You were loved by all you knew

Too good to be let remain

Loving and kind in all your ways

Upright and just to the end of your days.

Ever remembered by Mother,

George, Harry and Phyllis.

HILLS.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Geo. H. Hills, who passed away August 8th., 1930.

"We miss him most, who love him best."

Inserted by his loving wife and family.

MacTAVISH.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. D. MacTavish, who departed this life, August 8th., 1930.

One year ago she was laid to rest

In a silent lonely grave,

There sleeps in dreamless slumber

One we loved, but could not save.

No one knows the silent heart-aches,

Only those who have lost can tell,

Or the grief that's borne in silence

For the mother we loved so well.

Sadly missed by Grace, Donald and family.

MacTAVISH.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Mrs. D. MacTavish, who passed away to the better land, August 8th., 1930.

Its lonesome here without you

And sad the weary way

For life is not the same to us

Since you were called away.

Inserted by her loving husband and daughter Nellie.

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor:

I was very sorry to be unable to attend the Conservative Convention yesterday but, I am much pleased with the decision which was made with so much enthusiasm and good will.

Notary Lavigne is a man in whom I have every confidence—he is energetic and capable, and is liked and respected by everyone.

The Liberals have been in power in the Province for over thirty years, which is too long for any Government. Now the tide has turned and it is generally felt that Taschereau must go. If all those who feel that way will give Felicien Lavigne their active support, he will be elected on the 24th., and I am sure that he will make an excellent member.

Their revenues are not even considered in our assets. Over $15,000,000 has been advanced to our hospitals, or is payable by the Government, and our opponents call us 'taxers' because we get this amount from charity by taxing theatres, races and hotel meals.

In the same category let us place our sanitary units which have been adopted by the majority of the counties, the results from which have been excellent, and infantile mortality is decreasing very much. Our sanitary services extend their activities to the far flung sections of the province where formerly there was no means of fighting disease.

On the progressive policies of the Taschereau government I appeal to the Electors of this County for their vote and support.

I have the honour to be Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

Geo. Dansereau,

Lachute, August 13th., 1931.

Gentlemen:—

You will be called upon Monday, the 24th. of August inst., to choose your member to represent you at the Legislature at Quebec.

As I have already stated on the platform, I have obtained during my term of office over a million dollars in grants for this county, as follows:

|-----------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| For roads                                                       | $691,000.00 |
| For public works including the Grenville bridge                 | $350,000.00 |
| For agriculture                                                 | $41,000.00  |
| For colonization                                                | $62,000.00  |
| For education                                                   | $82,000.00  |
| Amounts remitted to the different municipalities in this County | $241,000.00 |

If I am elected as your member for the next four years, I will pursue the same policy and do my utmost to obtain grants for education, agriculture, roads and colonization for the welfare of our citizens.

I think that on my record and that of the Liberal Party, I have the right to appeal for your vote and your support.

Yours faithfully,
GEORGES DANSEREAU.

A Summary of the Work and Deeds of the Liberal Party

FOR THE PROVINCE

Thirty years of progress and good administration. A constant surplus, even under unfavorable conditions.

FOR THE WORKERS

Protection of the workers. Liberty of association. Inspection of factories. Hygiene in the workshop. Prevention. Regulating the work of women and children. Law of compensation for accidents due to work. This new model law will be in force September 1st. Sympathetic co-operation between the employer and the worker. Schools of trade. A Ministry of Labour.

FOR THE INDIGENTS

The admirable Public Charities Act. One hundred and eighty institutions are benefiting by it. A yearly sum of $3,500,000 is divided between them. This money goes to help the indigents, the aged, the orphans.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Primary schools entirely maintained by the state. The improvement of specialized teaching. School of Higher studies. Polytechnical School. General and constant progress of Education. It is the great accomplishment of the Liberal Regime.

FOR HEALTH

A noticeable reduction of infantile mortality. Providing homes and care for tubercular children. Creation of Sanitary Units in all centres. Organized protection against illness and epidemics. Efficacious action in all sanitary services. Hence a population enjoying better health.

FOR THE FARMERS

Methodical encouragement for Agriculture. The building of 13,658 miles of good roads. A gradual reduction in their cost to municipalities. Maintenance by the state of all main highways. A thousand iron bridges complete this road system. The maintenance of these bridges is a Government charge. The rate of Agricultural Loans reduced to 5 percent. Generous grants to farmers and to settlers. Bonuses for ploughing, settling and residing. Aid to co-operatives. Agronomists. Experimental farms. Schools of agriculture. Short winter courses.

FOR THE FUTURE

A vigorous policy to incite the return to the land. Two thousand families recently repatriated. Important public works to obviate the unemployment. Thirty thousand men usefully employed that way. Work for the unemployed instead of charity. A commission of Social Assurances. Protection of savings impaired by the crisis. Developing our mineral and industrial resources. Separation of the forestry domain from that of colonization. Prohibition of the export of electrical power. Tolerance. Entente and harmony between the races.

UNITY. PROSPERITY.

Town Council vs. Water Works Problem

Following up the report on First Round which appeared in "The Watchman" July 31st. the Council passed three readings of By-Law No. 123 without submitting plans and figures to scrutiny and criticism of Special Committee of Citizens and it looks as if the ratepayers will be expected to vote without further ado on the 28th. inst., to authorize a loan of $30,000.00 principally for the purpose of establishing a new intake at Pollock's site in spite of the abundance of engineering advice of the highest order strongly recommending the Lake Sir John Site.

As mentioned in previous letter, I am now submitting full reports on Lake Sir John and Pollock's sites by such eminent engineers as W. S. Lea and Milton Hersey Co. Limited of Montreal on respective merits of each site. Owing to the exhaustive information I had to give to the Ratepayers in my letter January 3rd., 1931, when I was Mayor, I was then able to outline only the most important features from reports aforesaid and it will now be possible to appreciate the information in its entirety.

In regard to Mr. W. S. Lea, upon writing to McGill University for recommendation as to his services as Consulting Engineer to report on the Water Works situation in Lachute, the following reply was received from the Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science of that University as follows: "I beg to say that Messrs. R. S. and W. S. Lea are engineers of the highest reputation and have been engaged in waterworks and hydraulic work of an important kind in all parts of the country. In my judgment, you could do no better in Canada or elsewhere than to retain one or other of these gentlemen" Signed - H. W. MacKay, Dean.

The Department of Public Health of the Province of Quebec sent as strong a recommendation in stating that Messrs. Lea were amongst the best engineers in that line (waterworks) in Canada and the United States and that their experience was varied, having covered the whole country from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Mr. W. S. Lea's report reads as follows:

June 14th., 1930

Messrs. The Mayor & Members of Special Waterworks Committee of Council, Town of Lachute, Que.

REPORT ON LACHUTE WATER SUPPLY

As requested by letter of May 19th. from His Worship Mayor Tremblay, I have examined the plans and reports submitted to me in connection with the water supply of the Town of Lachute, and on June 5th. last, in company with your Committee, visited the sites of the existing and proposed intakes.

The present supply is inadequate, and the Town has had reports and estimates on two schemes for its improvement. The original proposal reported on by Mr. Ernest Loignon, C. E., April 1st., 1929, was to lay a 10" cast iron pipe from the present intake to a new intake 3200 ft. further upstream at Pollock's Farm, where the head would be increased by about 90 feet. The estimated cost of the work including improvements at the present intake ranged from $52,954.00 to $75,754.00, depending on the extent of the improvements at the present intake and in connection with the Highway Bridge at the Pollock's Farm site.

Subsequently Mr. Seraphin Ouimet has investigated the feasibility of obtaining a supply direct from Lake Sir John. In his report dated September 28th., 1929, several estimates were submitted, ranging from $44,950.00 to $61,600.00, depending on the size and kind of pipe used, and the location of its junction with the existing supply pipes. In the project presented under By-law 115, it was proposed to lay a 12" woodstave pipe from the present intake to the lake, a distance of 17,000 ft. at an estimated cost of $52,100.00. The estimates as stated herein cover only the cost of the work plus the cost of Engineering, exclusive of the cost of Rights-of-Way, Water Rights, Flooding Damages, etc.

I have been asked to express an opinion in regard to the Pollock's Farm and Lake Sir John sites, with respect both to their cost of development and to their suitability for water supply sources.

Lake Sir John is a comparatively large body of water. Mr. Ouimet states that at the depth proposed for the intake, the available storage will amount to 250,000,000 gallons. With the drainage from the four summer cottages there under control, the risk of pollution is remote, and the Provincial Board of Health has approved of a supply taken direct from the Lake without treatment.

In the three mile stretch between the Lake and the Pollock's Farm site, the stream receives the drainage from fourteen farms and homesteads. It is not practicable to prevent the human and animal pollution along this stretch, from entering the stream, and the Provincial Board of Health will require chlorination of the water supply if the Pollock's Farm site is adopted. By the time this equipment is installed and housed, it will cost approximately $3,000.00. The cost of the chlorine itself cannot be closely estimated in advance. It is sometimes found advisable with small gravity supplies, to treat more than the actual quantity of water used by the Town. In any case it would not be less than $100.00 per year. Apart from that there will be the trouble of looking after it. Moreover, the conditions under which the chlorine will be applied are very unfavorable to its proper control, and it is very doubtful if the treatment can be made as effective as it should be without at times developing tastes and odors in the water. In fact, while it is my opinion that chlorination is the least that can be required in the way of treatment for the water at Pollock's site, I doubt very much if it can be made as safe a water for domestic use, as the untreated Lake water.

Water drawn from the intake at the Lake will moreover be free from the trash and suspended matter which must at times be carried by the water in the stream itself. So far, therefore, as the quality and physical characteristics of the water are concerned, I consider the Lake site preferable to the Pollock Farm site.

Mr. Ouimet proposes to lay a 12" woodstave pipe to the Lake with a 12" cast iron intake pipe from 200 ft. to 300 ft. long. His estimate of $52,100.00 is based on good earth excavation for about 14,000 ft. from the present intake, then boulder clay for about half a mile through the woods and rock from Hammond's Dam to the Lake. It is expected that the Lake level can be drawn down low enough to permit of laying the pipe in the Lake without much trouble. It is intended to lay the pipe in a shallow trench through the woods not over 4 ft. deep, and it is expected that the trench can be confined to a narrow width, ordinarily not over 2 ft. wide.

I would advise making sufficient investigations by soundings or test-pits, to confirm the assumption that about 14,000 ft. of the trench will be in earth excavation. For the balance of the route it is too expensive to find out much in this way.

I would further advise providing in the estimate for cast iron pipe instead of woodstave pipe in the rock cut near the Lake, and for the stream crossing a short distance below Hammond's Dam. Also for some expense in connection with the control of the drainage from the summer cottages on the lake, also for unexpected difficulties in connection with the work at the Lake, and for the half mile stretch through the woods near the Lake. Perhaps I am too pessimistic, but it is seldom that things turn out as well as one expects, and I would estimate the cost at $60,000.00.

The estimate prepared by Mr. Loignon for the Pollock's Farm site, provided for certain improvements at the existing intake and for a cast iron pipe to the new intake. To make it comparable with the estimate for the Lake Sir John site, I propose to base my estimate for the Pollock Farm Site on a 12" woodstave pipe, earth excavation for the trench, and no improvements at the present intake. The distance from the present intake to the Pollock's Farm site is given as 3,200 ft. Mr. Loignon proposed a much better installation than the present intake. His estimates provided for a dam about 12 ft. high to form a fairly large pond, and he submitted alternative proposals for protecting the Highway Bridge and for diverting the road where it would cross the pond. There is no question but that he recommended a first-class job, because although not a real necessity, there are substantial advantages in a fairly large and deep pond at a water supply intake. Obviously, the cost of the intake depends almost entirely on the height adopted for the dam, but it is my opinion that the cheapest installation which will suffice would bring the total cost of the Pollock's Farm site, pipe line and all, to at least $35,000. I am purposely submitting what I regard as a minimum estimate because I consider that in spite of the difference in cost the Town would be well advised to the Lake, not only because the Lake water is better protected against pollution, but the capacity of the pipe line from the Lake will be much greater than from Pollock's Farm. That is to say, depending on the hydrant pressures the Lake Sir John line will deliver from 50% to 100% more water for fire purposes than the Pollock's Farm site.

With regard to the rumor that on at least one occasion during the winter season, the water of Lake Sir John possessed a disagreeable taste and odor, I may say that without means of either verifying or denying this report, I have no comment to offer other than that I would consider it very improbable.

Montreal, June 14th., 1930. Respectfully submitted,

W. S. LEA.

Messrs. Milton Hersey Company Limited of Montreal, whose reputation extends to all parts of the American Continent, made the following report to the late Mr. J. T. Ayers who wished to be fully informed on the question before deciding for one or the other site:

(Lack of space prohibits our publishing the Milton Hersey report fully as much of the vital information is also contained in present letter.)

These reports are self explanatory and I will simply direct attention to the following excerpts, viz: By Milton Hersey Co., "Lake Sir John offers to the town of Lachute a unique opportunity to obtain a pure clear drinking water for all future time, whatever may be its growth, and this at a strong head of 160 lbs. normal pressure without the cost of a single cent for pumping and treating. There are few Towns in Canada possessing such an opportunity." In this connection, you will note what Milton Hersey Co. estimates for treating water with Chlorine in event of locating new intake at Pollock's site: $2048.00 per year for a population of 5,000. Based on our present population of 4,000, the amount would be reduced to $1638.00 per year but Milton Hersey appears to be taking care of a reasonable increase in population in their higher estimate. They do not mention the cost of a competent man to look after the Chlorine equipment and treatment and the housing of that man. This would no doubt cost another $1500.00 per year. Mr. W. S. Lea estimates cost of Chlorine alone at no less than $100.00 per year apart from the trouble of looking after it. It would be conservative to state that the full cost, chlorine and all, would be at least $2000. per year as a fixed charge that the Corporation would have to meet each year in addition to interest and sinking fund on its Bonds. This $2000.00 would represent 5% interest on a Capital investment of $40,000.00. Has the Council considered this matter at all when passing the By-Law in favor of Pollock's site?

Mr. W. S. Lea states in his report about Pollock's site "That the conditions under which the Chlorine will be applied are very unfavorable to its proper control, and it is very doubtful if the treatment can be made as effective as it should be without at times developing tastes and odors in the water. In fact, while it is my opinion that chlorination is the least that can be required in the way of treatment for the water at Pollock's site, I doubt very much if it can be made as safe a water for domestic use, as the untreated Lake water." These, you will admit are very strong statements made by an engineer of high repute and, after being accustomed to the good taste of our untreated water, no doubt our citizens and visitors will hereafter be shocked at times by the disagreeable taste of chlorine, as gravity supplies are difficult to treat efficiently.

Now, if you refer to letter from the Sanitary Engineer of the Board of Health, previously published, you will note that "in connection with water treated by chlorine, daily water samples will have to be sent to the laboratories of the Board for examination and if the results of these samples demonstrated that chlorination was not efficiently carried out, it would be necessary then to install a filtration plant." As a filtration plant would cost, under our conditions, about $60,000. this is a most important factor to consider in connection with projected intake at Pollock's site.

On the other hand, an installation at Pollock's site can be considered only as a temporary affair because with any reasonable increase in population which some new industries would create, the Lake Sir John site will inevitably have to be resorted to sooner or later as it is only there that suitable pressure can be had to meet the Fire Underwriters' standards for fire purposes. It would be most unfortunate to find this out too late and have to discard the Pollock's installation to go to Lake Sir John at possibly a much higher cost than this could be done now.

According to engineer's estimate previously given, normal running pressure when new intake installed at Pollock's would be 87 lbs. running pressure in case of fire at hydrants, using one stream 2 1/4" hose, average 58 lbs. running pressure for three streams 2 1/2" hose, average 40 lbs. THE RUNNING PRESSURE AT HYDRANTS REQUIRED BY FIRE UNDERWRITERS for a population of 3,000, for fire flow alone (exclusive of other maximum draughts) is reported by them as 625 gallons per minute with running pressure at hydrants of not less than 80 lbs. As Lachute population is now very nearly 4,000, we require even more than the above standard and running pressure requirements will necessarily increase with a growing population from year to year. Lake Sir John site would have ample pressure to meet the standard with 160 lbs. normal running pressure, with running pressure available, in case of fire at hydrants, using one stream 2 1/4" hose in front of Auditorium, at 127 lbs. and running pressure for three streams 2 1/4" hose in front of Auditorium at 93 lbs. This is easy to understand when the increase in head at Pollock's Farm will be 90 ft. whereas at Lake Sir John 250 feet. It is very simple to realize that a volume of water at an additional height of 250 feet will produce much more pressure than at 90 feet.

I felt in duty bound to give fullest information at my command on this Waterworks question, Mr. Editor, before the vote is taken as I feel that the proposition to establish an intake at Pollock's site instead of Lake Sir John is not supported by the best engineering advice and, if the Council has any information to the contrary, the people have not as yet been informed of same.

Thanking you for the space so generously allotted to me, Mr. Editor, I remain, Yours sincerely,
C. TREMBLAY.

Bennett for Houde

Mr. Bennett wires Mr. Houde, as he opens his campaign, wishing him well and laying his finger unerringly on the basic reason why the Conservative party should win in this election. The Taschereau party has been too long in office.

Under our system of democratic government it is in every way poisonous to public life, stimulating to all the evil things which are hatched out under the hot-house conditions of a party long in power and destructive of that lively popular interest in public affairs by which alone a democracy can live, for any group of men to remain with apparent permanency in possession of the seals of office.

House-cleaning is as necessary in public as in domestic life. The difference is that a housewife can clean house while her family continues—more or less—to live in the house. Politicians cannot. A new family must be brought in before the house can be thoroughly cleaned.

Ontario never had a better government than the Mowat Government. There never was a cleaner, more decent or higher principled statesman in Canada than Sir Oliver Mowat. But the crowd that followed him were too long in office. Under them came the spectacular voyage of the "Minnie M," the "Hug the Machine" tactics and all the scandalous transactions which caused them to be hurled from power, never to return until this day.

If the people of Quebec want to know what has really been going on in their Province under the rule of an over-ripe administration, they must turn them out and turn the search-light on!

As for the capacity of the Houde party to govern, it will be recalled that when Mr. Houde went into power at the City Hall, his opponents predicted that, even after driving out the Water Deal gang, they would so mismanage the city's affairs as to provide their own condemnation.

It is only fair to say that this terrible prediction has not only failed of fulfillment but that it can be truthfully reported that Mr. Houde and his associates have done in two years more for Montreal's benefit than was done in the previous fifteen years under the Martins, the Brodeurs and the DesRoches.

The evidences of their energy and courage can be seen on every side. Many of our old streets have been and are being better paved. Traffic lights have been installed on main thoroughfares and are working like magic in the guidance of traffic. Pedestrian islands have been provided. Long-needed comfort stations are rising in our public squares. All this is due to Houde enterprise and devotion to the public service.

The practical test, invoked so often by his critics, of service at the City Hall, would seem to support the contention that he might well be tried in the Provincial Government offices in Quebec.

But the real issue of this campaign, to which we swing back, is that which Mr. Bennett puts so convincingly. "The only method by which the electors of Quebec can indicate their disapproval of the government of Mr. Taschereau," he says to Mr. Houde, "is by supporting you and your candidates." Exactly. What other methods are there? The constitutional way to rebuke a government is to vote for its opponents.

But why should Mr. Taschereau be rebuked? Mr. Bennett gives the fundamental reason about which there can be no dispute. "The Government of Mr. Taschereau," he says, "has been in power longer than is good for any democracy." Who will deny that? Democracy practically fails to function when one party is able to hold power for thirty-four years. We may have many complaints against this Government per se. As a matter of fact, we have, such as its ruinous policy toward the pulp and paper business. But we cannot know how many more sins are hidden beneath its cloak of office until we put in another Government to search the records.

Then Mr. Bennett adds that Mr. Houde should be clothed with authority to "institute the reforms which experience has indicated are so much required in the interests of the people of Quebec." There is no other way to get them. We know what the Taschereau group will do. They have had the power to act for many years. They need not promise. They might have accomplished. If we want anything else, the obvious way to get it is to put in office the men who say they will do it.

This is a fairly complete compendium of the reasons why the electors of Quebec should vote for a change. If they propose to vote to discourage all opposition to a sacrosanct Taschereau Government, they will probably get what they vote for. Effective opposition to Taschereau may again cease—as it did for so many years with disastrous results. Ask any Canada Paper and Power shareholder or bond-holder.

To the Electors of Argenteuil!

Having been chosen the Conservative Candidate in the elections now pending, I wish to express my gratitude for the honor bestowed upon me and I pledge myself to do my best to justify the confidence reposed in me.

Owing to the short period of time between my nomination as candidate and the present issue of the Watchman, I am compelled to confine my manifesto to main points only.

I wish to state that my platform is the platform set forth by the Conservative Convention of 1929 at Quebec. The program of the Conservative party is not only one of building roads and bridges as the Liberal program seems to be, where the main issue for them is to see that ex-deputies, friends of the government, even deputies and sons of deputies become contractors and make profits out of the people's money. The conservatives are for good roads but roads built in a rational way. Our policy is that the roads should be built by the municipalities themselves with the government money and under the government supervision; thus 20% or 25% of our money going to profiteers would be spent for the benefit of this country. All that our opponents have to talk about is roads and roads again. As far as the farmers and labor men are concerned this does not interest them. The liberals blame us for no program. We are for Old Age Pensions, Lower Court Fees, Cheaper Registration Fees, Lower automobile Licenses and half licenses for those using their cars only six months. Higher grants to country schools and specially to Academies, so as to permit our country children to get better education. Fair wages to the working class. We advocate that the interest on farm loans should be reduced from 5½% to 2%, so that the farmer who has payments to make should be able to live. If the Government can loan money to municipalities at 2% interest to build roads which are mostly used by outsiders, why should the farmer who is keeping that municipality not deserve the same privilege and have money at the same rate of interest?

This is part of our program. Electors of Argenteuil, is it progressive or destructive? The people of this Province will judge on the 24th. instant, and judging from the great victory in the by-election of Three-Rivers, we can see what is going to happen to this government 34 years old which, if kept in office any longer, will keep on selling our best natural resources to the Americans and leave us to remain the valets and servants in our own province.

I hope to meet you one and all at our public meetings, and I hereby invite our opponents to join us in the meetings so that we may discuss matters openly and have them answer our questions.

I trust that you will all give me your support so that I may help in bringing about a better Government for our County and Province.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. Lavigne.

My Appeal!

While I have endeavored to see as many as possible of the electors of this county, the time has been so limited that I have not had the opportunity of personally visiting all whom I would wish to call upon.

However the fault is not mine and the blame must lie with the Provincial Government for bringing the elections on with such undue haste. In the meantime you must accept the will for the deed and recognize that, if you honor me with your vote on the 24th, I will in return render you faithful service, loyal and true to your best interests.

I am a county boy, the son of the late Joseph Lavigne, and with exception of the time spent in my college days and the period of military service in the Great War, I have been resident in Lachute where I am now following my professional duties as Notary Public.

The position of Member for this County carries with it many responsibilities if conscientious representation is given and entails considerable sacrifices. These I am prepared to carry and I will assure you in all confidence that I will prove myself worthy of your trust.

The world has been and is going through a stage of depression, and although Canada has not suffered to the extent of most other countries, yet the unemployment situation has been quite severe and here is where the Provincial Government have been lax in their duty. They knew the conditions prevailing but yet they ignore them until such time as elections become imperative and then they find the roads need widening and rounded out. This work should have been executed before and not left until a couple of weeks before electors are called out to vote. It savors too much of a bribe, of which the Provincial Government have been truly Liberal.

The fact that every constituency putting up candidates to fight the abuses of a government that have entrenched themselves to the point where they have practically set at defiance all laws of decency and brought disgrace upon the Province by wanton expenditures is evidence that the people are rising in revolt and word comes to us that the 24th. of August next will see the haughty monarchs dethroned.

We have been able to expose some of the alleged scandal that has been going on in which Charles Lancot received a retainer fee of $1,500 from the Beauharnois Company which Mr. Taschereau has never explained or justified.

The administration of law in connection with the Liquor Commission is an infringement on the fundamental rights of the citizens and a citizen can be placed in jail without a warrant being issued against him by agents of the commission.

Theft of $100,000 by members of the Provincial Police Department, distortion of the annual financial report to show a surplus, theft of about $100,000 in the automobile tax department, losses of millions in the Provincial Roads Department, and of $7,000,000 within the last 10 years in the Provincial Lands Department were laid by Mr. Duplessis in an attack on Premier Taschereau and his Government.

Mr. Taschereau contends that for the last ten years he has had surpluses varying from $520,000 in 1925 to $4,200,000 in 1928-29. Notwithstanding these claims, he has indebted the people of this Province by almost $40,000,000 so that on the financial record of the last year, the people now owe almost double what they did 10 years ago. I am not giving you this as a figment of my imagination. I take this from the Statistical Year Book of the Province of Quebec produced under the direction of Mr. Taschereau, and therein you will find the truth of this statement.

With the Liberal party in power for the past 34 years they have access to all the wealth of which they make such boast, but I ask the electors to remember that it is public money that they are now using so lavishly. It is money belonging to you and I, so there is little cause to be grateful to them for spending some of it with you now.

As I said before, I am a young man, with life before me, with stout heart to do your bidding, and though I am without means I trust you will express your confidence by honoring me with your vote on the 24th.

A Poem

(written after a bewildered perusal of The Watchman)

Tis sad, that in this quiet spot,
Where nought but peace should dwell,
That ladies fair should wax so hot
And give each other hell.

To think that from a church so old,
Where all should be so solemn,
Should come these criticisms bold,
To soil the Social Column.

Beneath that ancient, hallowed roof,
Where hymns of praise have rung,
There soundeth now the dancer's hoof,
And comic songs are sung!

"Alas, alas!" cries "W",
To hardened Cushing ladies,
"Your consciences should trouble you....
You'll burn, poor souls, in Hades!"

But lo! a champion to the fray,
And swings on high her banner
"Pay no attention, readers, pray
To this disgruntled panner.

"A giddy church we may possess,
Our concerts may be funny;
Our hearts are pure—and, we confess,
We really need the money."

So cease, oh "W", this fight,
Nor strive such zeal to damn.
Tis quite unjust such words to write,
And give (in slang) a slam!

And you, oh Correspondent fair
Of churches eulogistic,
Give equal honour to a dance,
Or combat pugilistic.

The Lord we serve in many ways,
But His own ways are hidden....
How can we know, who do Him praise,
Just what He has forbidden!

The alarmist propaganda, produced in the turmoil of the electoral campaign, cannot blind thoughtful citizens to the fact . . . .

That economic conditions in Quebec Province, at the present time, are infinitely more favorable and encouraging than conditions that prevail in Sister Provinces, - in the United-States and in Europe. Who will gainsay that we largely owe this privileged situation of our province to the good administration, constructive policies and wise legislation of the Taschereau government?

Facts... not promises!

Taschereau has just made it possible for lumber berth owners to extend operations this winter. As a consequence, this industry during the coming season will pay an additional $5,000,000 in wages and employ many thousand more laborers.

More than 30,000 men are now employed on highway construction and many thousand more will find work as a result of the Government's bridge building and public works program.

THE PRACTICAL HELP GIVEN TO YOUR CO-OPERATIVES and AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS.

Taschereau Promises

to further encourage by all practical means your milk industry and to give premiums on butter and cheese, if circumstances and the financial position of the Government warrant it;—to organize in each county special schools where technical agricultural teaching will be an important part of the program.

Back to the Land Movement inaugurated by Taschereau

To all those who settle according to this plan, the government grants a plough, a horse, a cow and free seed. For these settlers there are also ploughing, land clearing and residence premiums. Already many thousand families have thus settled with the co-operation of the Government: inaugurating a movement which provides a most practical solution to the unemployment problem.

Enthusiastic Rally of Electors Greet Candidates for Electoral Honors

Nomination Day passed off with the only real controversial meeting during the week of heated contest, for the candidates are holding separate rallies of their supporters in their hurried flight through the county.

The meeting proved no barometer by which anyone might predict popularity for the candidates, for there was considerable enthusiasm from both sides although at the outset, the joint chairman Dr. Rodrigue and Col. J. E. Seale had difficulty in maintaining order.

Geo. Dansereau, the Government candidate was the first to address the large gathering in which many ladies displayed active and keen interest. Mr. Dansereau took up most of his time in elaborating upon his accomplishments during the four years in which he had been Argenteuil's representative with a final touch as to the efficiency of the Taschereau administration and an urge for their return on the 24th. He was next followed by his sturdy little opponent Notary Lavigne, who immediately launched a strong attack upon the policy of the Provincial Government in withholding the road work until a couple of weeks ago when a general order was issued to get busy as elections were coming. This was nothing but a ruse and bribe to get the votes of the unemployed. Lavigne spoke strongly upon the manner in which contracts for road work were given, how deputies and sons of deputies came in for many of the contracts. This of course roused the ire of some of the audience whom Mr. Lavigne declared had been paid to come to the meeting and he later appealed to Mr. Dansereau to call upon his supporters to desist from their action and give a hearing to the conservative candidate.

Short addresses were given by Mr. L. L. Legault and Mr. Baisseau, followed by Mr. Knight, of Montreal, who waxed warm when stating that we must get away from this hypocritical canting of job appointments and recognize that to the victor belongs the spoils. Whoever heard of a liberal giving a conservative a job said the speaker, and the same thing would apply with the other party whichever was in power. He derided the leader of the Opposition as a man of inexperience and the rest out to chide R. L. Calder as a traitor to his party, which a few years ago had been Liberal, admitting that Mr. Calder was one of the ablest leading lawyers in Montreal.

Continuing, the speaker contended that Messrs. Houde and Bray lacked common horse sense to which one in the audience remarked that Black Horse was better. Mr. Knight thought the electors should recognize the good work of the Government and send them back to power to complete the work.

R. L. Calder, with his calm indifference to the clamor of a faction that were disturbing the meeting, explained that he was there to speak and talk politics in a rational manner but if they did not want the lid uncovered as he had promised then the audience could be dismissed for if he was not allowed to speak nobody else would be allowed.

Mr. Calder then gave a scathing rebuke to Mr. Knight for calling him a traitor to his party because he chose to differ on conviction, and cited the cases of Disraeli, Gladstone & Churchill and others who had turned from one party to the other and according to Mr. Knight's theory these outstanding men who will long be remembered after Mr. Knight is forgotten, should have been shot for desertion to hide bound partyism. Challenged to make good his promise the speaker launched into the Beauharnois Scandal which had its origin in Quebec and the exposures at Ottawa are as nothing to what will be unfolded.

Speaking of the laxity in business at Quebec where $100,000 had been stolen from the people of this province which necessitated the removal of Bonds and Securities to a Royal Trust Company. The Government have in responsible trust men untrustworthy and yet by their attitude they condone these offenses, and Mr. Knight speaks of them as trivialities. Our natural resources, comprising farm, forests and rivers have been sacrificed and the Hon. A. David was to put the clippers into the hair of the Province to make paper. What is the result? The Paper situation has been over-run and ruined by the policy adopted by the Government measures.

This Province has reached a deplorable condition where our forests have been hurriedly passed into other hands because the Government were fearful it might be burned.

Mr. Calder felt he had rendered signal service to this country by his exposures during the customs scandal and was desirous that further opportunity be given in order that he might see justice done. Scathing denunciations were made regarding blank warrants had been issued in election purposes for political advantage.

Righteously indignant was Mr. Calder as he appealed "For God's sake men, can't we rise above party lines." When certain men are upheld in subverting justice in order to slander an opponent and give the lie where he is unable to vindicate himself, until the elections are over and it is too late. Such tactics were and are being enacted and it is time we changed these conditions by starting the new government with a new set of administrators and new books.

Other speakers followed, and the audience later dispersed to enter heartily into what promises to be one of the biggest fights this county has ever indulged in.

CAMILIEN HOUE PAYS BRIEF VISIT TO LACHUTE

With elections drawing rapidly to a close, Camilien Houde, honored leader of the Opposition to the Taschereau Government, paid a brief visit to our town on Tuesday afternoon, en route to Papineauville and Hull. Notwithstanding the short time announcement he was greeted by a large gathering of electors to whom he spoke from the steps of the Auditorium.

His first remarks when introduced by candidate Notary Lavigne were to pay tribute to the late Jno. T. Ayers, whom he said would be anxiously looking from above and wishing success to the present candidate.

He then briefly related the Conservative programme of social reform of agriculture and 2 per cent loans, pensions to widows and orphans, pensions to old age, afterwards chiding the Liberals for having no definite programme.

He said, the reason of his delay at the meeting was because there were so many people on the roads and pertinently asked Why the Government had not thought of widening the roads before instead of waiting until two weeks before election. He stated that having traversed through the whole of the Province he was able to confidently state that the anxiety of success was not bothering his party because they were assured of the public desire to put the Government out.

Speaking of the abuse heaped upon the city of Montreal for bad management, the answer was given by 56 bankers who loaned some 9 million dollars to the city, while the Government were borrowing money at the same time and the city sold its bonds at a higher figure than the Province which demonstrated the effective work of the city. We have made great strides and accomplished more in Montreal in the past year than in the 20 years previous, which is a great tribute of efficiency.

Mr. Houde is incessantly active and entered this fight with only twelve members of his party. No Quebec election in recent years has attracted so much attention as this one and for the first time the Liberals are not so sure of being unhorsed.

COUNTY OF ARGENTEUIL, MUNICIPALITY OF LACHUTE TOWN.

PUBLIC NOTICE

To the municipal electors and proprietors of the Town of Lachute

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that the By-Law -123- herewith annexed will be submitted to the Municipal Electors and proprietors of the taxable immovable property of the Municipality of the Town of Lachute, and who are inserted on the valuation roll, and that the voting upon the present By-Law -123- will take place in the Secretary-treasurer's office, in the Town of Lachute, on Thursday, August 27th., 1931, from eight o'clock in the forenoon until five o'clock in the afternoon, (Daylight Saving Time), and that the voting will continue on the following day, from eight o'clock in the forenoon until five o'clock in the afternoon (Daylight Saving Time), to approve or to reject the present By-Law -123- to authorize the Municipal Council of this Corporation to effectuate a loan of $30,000.00, and to issue bonds for this amount, redeemable in twenty years as stipulated in the said By-Law 123.

Given at Lachute, this 4th. day of August 1931.

GERMAIN FILION,
Secretary-treasurer.

PETER DOBBIE,
Mayor.

BY-LAW NO. -123-

To Authorize the Council of the Municipality of Lachute Town, To Effectuate a Loan of Thirty Thousand Dollars, ($30,000.00) and to Issue Debentures therefore.

At a regular meeting of the Council of Lachute Town Corporation held in the Council Room, in the said Town, under the provisions of the Cities and Towns Act, and the special act incorporating the Town of Lachute, and also the special act amending the Charter of the Town of Lachute, 10 George V, chapter 106, on the third day of August 1931, at which session were present:—The Mayor, Mr. Peter Dobbie, and the aldermen, J. A. Rice, J. P. MacKimmie, C. R. Miller, Joseph Speight, W. A. Morrison, A. Rodrigue.

WHEREAS this Corporation desire to effectuate a loan of $30,000.00 for the following purposes;

- "A) $20,000 to change the present intake of the water work system of the Town of Lachute and to extend it to the Pollock's farm, and to lay a twelve inch pipe from the present intake to the new proposed intake on a distance of about 3600 feet, and to build a new dam and reservoir and a chlorination plant;
- "B) $6,000 for the purchase of the Pollock's farm and servitudes attached thereto;
- "C) $4,000 to improve fire fighting equipment including fire engine and hose;

WHEREAS this municipality has not exceeded its borrowing powers;

WHEREAS this Council deems it necessary for such purposes to effectuate a loan of $30,000.00 redeemable in twenty years; and to issue debentures to the amount of 300 of $100.00 each or multiples of $100.00 bearing interest at the rate of 5% per annum, the said interest payable on the first days of November annuum, the said interest payable on the first days of May and November of each year;

LET IT BE ORDERED, AND DECREED, AND IT IS HEREBY ORDERED BY BY-LAW OF THIS COUNCIL AS FOLLOWS:

1.—The Corporation of Lachute Town is by the present by-law authorized to borrow the sum of $30,000.00 for the purposes herein before mentioned, and redeemable in twenty years from the first of November next;

2.—To effectuate this loan, the municipal council of this corporation will make one issue of bonds for the sum of $30,000.00 redeemable in twenty years from the first of November next (1931).

3.—The issue of $30,000.00 will comprise 300 bonds of $100.00 each payable to the bearer at the office of the Secretary-treasurer of the Town of Lachute, in the Town of Lachute, or at the office of the Bank of Nova Scotia of Lachute, in the Town of Lachute, on the presentation of the said bonds in the course of the twenty years from the date of their issue and shall bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum, which interest shall be payable semi-annually the first days of May and November of each year, at the office of this Corporation, or at the office of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Lachute, until such bonds shall have been redeemed;

4.—For the payment of the interest on the said bonds, coupons shall be attached to each bond, and the interest will be payable to the bearer of the said coupons, at the office of the Secretary-treasurer of the Town of Lachute, in the Town of Lachute, or at the Bank of Nova Scotia of Lachute, in the Town of Lachute;

5.—For the interest on the payments of the said bonds, coupons will be attached to each bond and the interest will be payable to the bearer of these coupons at the office of this Corporation, and at the branches of the Bank of Nova Scotia as aforesaid;

6.—The said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Secretary-treasurer of this corporation, and shall bear the seal of the Corporation, but the coupons shall bear the lithographed signatures of the Mayor and the Secretary-treasurer, and each bond, before its delivery, shall bear a certificate of the Minister of Municipal Affairs or of a person authorized by him, establishing that its issue has been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and that such bond is issued in conformity with the present by-law;

7.—In order to provide for the payment of the interest semi-annually on the said issue of bonds of $30,000.00 and also for the payment of the said bonds, as it comes redeemable, as described in the foregoing schedule, in the course of the said twenty years, an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest and the amount redeemable each year, as appears by the foregoing schedule, is by the present by-law, imposed on all the taxable property of the said municipality according to the valuation roll in force for each year, and will be payable annually in the hands of the Secretary-treasurer, as soon as the collection roll prepared to that effect shall have been put in force until the entire payment of the said loan;

BEFORE HAVING FORCE AND EFFECT, the present by-law shall be voted upon and approved according to law.

PETER DOBBIE, Mayor.

GERMAIN FILION, Secretary-treasurer.

BROWNSBURG

The morning service in the United Church on Sabbath, of Aug. 16th., was in the nature of a Flower Service and was given entirely by a group of young girls who had been in training by Mrs. Thompson for the event, and was most interesting, helpful and spiritual. The hymns, lessons and choruses were all in keeping with the meaning of the day and were put on with a very fine sense of interpretation and harmony, the solo parts being rendered very sweetly and in excellent time & rhythm. Two papers were also given, one on Flower Sunday the other, Consider the Lilies, each following a Scripture reading bearing upon the theme of the reading. The entire service was put on with a touch of reverence, the Church being fittingly arrayed with fresh flowers for the occasion, and all present considered it one of the best the children have yet given.

MAN KILLED AND THREE INJURED IN ROCK BLAST AT MORIN HEIGHTS

Victims took Shelter under Auto Truck, piercing by falling Stone

Kenneth Kirkpatrick was killed instantly and three companions were injured, following a blasting mishap on the highway near Morin Heights on Wednesday afternoon.

The four men, members of a squad of fifteen road employees, had hidden underneath a motor truck for the purpose of protection during blasting operations, but a large block of rock thrown by the explosion crashed into the truck, pierced it and killed and injured those hiding beneath it. The fatal mishap occurred on highway number thirty, between Lachute and Ste. Agathe, at a spot seven miles south-west of Morin Heights.

Deceased who was a son of Geo. Kirkpatrick, was 21 years of age, resident of the village of Mille Isles.

The injured are: Victor Moreau, 20 years of age, of Mille Isles, who suffered serious back injuries and was sent to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal for treatment. Robert Black, 50 years of age, of Mille Isles, who suffered broken ribs.

While Moreau's true condition has not been ascertained as yet, he being under observation at the Montreal institution, Robert Black and his son were not reported as seriously injured and they were treated by local doctors.

ROCK PIERCED TRUCK—The accident occurred at 1.30 o'clock as the men were at work widening the highway. A large piece of rock had to be blasted for the enlargement of the road and the charge of dynamite was set in the rock.

The squad of employees then walked away, eleven seeking shelter under a barn and the remainder were hiding under the motor truck used in hauling gravel. This vehicle was parked about two hundred yards from the scene of the blasting operations and the men believed that it was at a safe distance.

When the dynamite charge exploded, a piece of rock weighing about 300 pounds was thrown into the air and in falling pierced the wooden box of the vehicle killing Kirkpatrick and injuring his three companions.

PONY WILL BE GIVEN TO BOY OR GIRL AT OTTAWA EXHIBITION

Five Valuable Prizes For Those Who Can Estimate Number of Peas in Glass Jar. Many Stellar Features to Attract Visitors.

Five boys or girls who attend the Ottawa Exhibition from August 24th. to 29th. will receive valuable prizes. The happiest of all will be the fortunate one who will become the owner of Sonny Boy, a valuable pony donated by Hon. M. J. O'Brien of Renfrew. Other prizes will include two registered lambs, by the Ottawa Farm Journal; registered bacon type sow by Alex. Dynes; C.C.M. bicycle, by Byshe and Co., and a registered Jersey calf, by Beach Company, Limited.

All boys and girls under fourteen years of age will be eligible to enter the contest for the pony and other prizes. On entering the admission gate each child will receive a coupon on which to write estimates of the number of peas in a sealed glass jar being exhibited in a marquee on the grounds. The peas will be placed in the jar by Arthur A. Crawley and Co. auditors, & the jar then will be sealed. The peas will not be counted until the close of the contest.

As each estimate is put in, the ticket will be stamped by a time clock. The tickets for each day will be kept separate until the close of the contest on Friday at noon of exhibition week. Then from each day's tickets will be selected the first correct estimate or nearest correct estimate received. The five persons who put in the estimates will be asked to draw from a hat at 4.30 on the Friday afternoon.

FLOWER MISSION

Extract from letter from the Flower Committee Secretary, Miss H. S. Bishop.

"I wish to thank you for your letter of the 12th inst." and, "I want to assure you that we certainly DO LIKE your flowers. Lachute may well be proud of her work."

It is too bad that the ladies and children who work so hard to get the flowers and pack them for shipment, cannot go around with the distributors and actually see the recipients and the joy that those flowers give. I heard a story the other day that may interest you. I found it very touching.

One of the case workers of the Family Welfare Association went to call on a very old couple and took a bouquet of flowers with her. When she arrived, the old man said, "My, but I'm glad you brought us some more flowers. You know I told Martha that those others you brought us two weeks ago were dead, but she has kept changing the water on them twice a day, 'cause she said, 'they were real roses and she hated to throw them out."

We have decided to send flowers from Lachute not only on the 25th. of August but also on the 1st. September.

We sent off four large and one small box this week. Thank you all.

As there is an abundance of ferns in the immediate neighborhood of Lachute. I propose that we dig some up and plant them in tins or pots, and send in to Montreal so that shut-ins can have something green to grow for them during the winter. Of course any slips of geraniums, coleus, etc., would be nice too, and think of the joy this coming hard winter for those who can not buy the beautiful plants we can send.

If you clean out your empty cans I will paint them outside, and we can have a flower box and plant those that are brought in.

I have written Montreal today that we hope to send some.

K. S. MASSIAH.

A GOSPEL FOR ALL MEN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:1-11:18.
GOLDEN TEXT—For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Gospel for Everybody.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Gospel for Everybody.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—First Steps in World Brotherhood.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel for All Men.

In the lesson for August 2 we saw the missionary program of the church broadened to include the Samaritans. We see in this lesson the program still widening and embracing the Gentiles. The conversion of Cornelius illustrates the breaking down of "the middle wall of partition" (Eph. 2:14).

1. Cornelius (10:1, 2).
1. His official position (v. 1). He was a Roman officer over a company of one hundred soldiers.
2. His character (v. 2). a. A devout, pious man. b. A praying man. c. A charitable man.
11. The Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-33).
1. Two visions were given (vv. 3-16). (a). The vision of Cornelius (vv. 3-8). While engaged in prayer an angel of God announced that his prayer and alms had come before God as a memorial and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do. (b). The vision of Peter (vv. 9-16). This took place while Peter was praying (v. 9). He saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command, "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." This vision indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high.

2. A messenger sent from Cornelius (vv. 17-22). Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for messengers from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The Spirit informed Peter of the matter and bade him go, nothing doubting.
3. The meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33). (a). Peter took six witnesses along (v. 23). He had the good judgment to know that on a matter of so great importance he must have witnesses. (b). Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24). He had such confidence in God's instruction that he called to gather his kinsmen and friends to be ready on Peter's arrival. (c). Cornelius about to worship Peter (vv. 25, 26). Peter repudiated his act and protested that he himself was but a man. (d). The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33). Peter explained to him how God had taken from him his Jewish prejudice and asked why Cornelius had sent for him. Cornelius explained that God had instructed him to send for Peter.

111. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43).
1. The Introduction (vv. 34, 35). He showed that God is no respecter of persons but that in every nation those that fear God and work righteousness are accepted of him. This does not mean that Cornelius was already in a state of grace, and therefore saved, but that he was eligible to hear the gospel and accept the terms of salvation.

2. His discourse (vv. 36-43). In the discourse he touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus, showing that by means of his baptism and the anointing of the Holy Spirit he was qualified for his work as mediator. He then exhibited the work of Christ: (a). In his life (vv. 36-38). He went about doing good, even casting out demons as a proof that God was with him. (b). In his death (v. 39). The just suffered for the unjust that he might bring us to God (1 Pet. 3:18). (c). In his resurrection (vv. 40, 41).—God raised him up the third day showing openly that Christ was his Son (Rom. 1:4) and that his sacrificial work was satisfactory (Rom. 4:25). In this discourse is set forth (1) The basis of salvation—the crucifixion of Christ. (2) The scope of salvation—whosoever believeth in him. (3) The method of appropriating salvation—believing on him.

IV. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (vv. 44-48).
This was a new Pentecost. As the gospel was entering upon its widest mission, the Spirit came in new power. V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18).
Being called to account for having visited and eaten with Gentiles, Peter rehearsed the whole story showing how God had set his seal upon the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

Ingratitude
The saddest example of ingratitude is the poverty of the thankfulness of those who are, in some measure, thankful for God's greatest gift. It is strange and melancholy that Christians should love, and love so little; should be thankful, and so tepid in it. —Alexander MacLaren.

The Heavenly Father's Love
Our heavenly Father is no Eli: He will not suffer his children to sin without rebuke. His love is too intense for that.—Spurgeon.

Spider's Ingenious Web

Woven Afresh Each Night

Master of geometrical precision and skillful artisan, the fastidious orange-tan orb spider presents a mystery in her arrival at a certain identical moment every evening when with amazing ingenuity she constructs or weaves a new web over the framework of her permanent dwelling, states an article in Better Homes and Gardens.

Although the framework of the simple structure, which consists of three spokes radiating from a single point, is constantly under repair, the finished web is never repaired no matter how damaged. It may be. Guy wires are anchored to leaves, blades of grass, with a crow's foot fastening. Then follow the radial lines which retrace the original spokes of the permanent frame. The dainty tatting wheel in the center serves as a feast hall. The last stroke is biting out the floss constituting the hub, which leaves an aperture for the unwary insect to crawl through and be ensnared. Then follows the fastidiously chosen feast, continues Better Homes and Gardens, after which the web is carefully removed and, if no longer of service, devoured to make more silk and be respun later.

Population of Babylon

Has Been Overestimated

There have been various attempts, by comparing its area with the area of modern cities, to estimate the population of ancient Babylon. On the lowest calculation it would be found, supposing it to have borne any considerable resemblance to a European city, to have had a population of 5,000,000. The map of Asiatic Turkey shows that the extent of country around Babylon available for agricultural purposes must have been quite inadequate to supply the necessary demands for anything like such an immense population. Perhaps, on the whole, says a recent writer, one may estimate the population at from 1,000,000 to 1,200,000. This supposition derives support from the fact that Seleucia, with a population of 600,000, is stated by Strabo and Pliny to have been about half the size of Babylon in the days of her greatest glory.

Satisfied With Their Lot

The minister of the flock had been invited to dine with the Jones family, and the four young boys had been told to wait for their repast until the grownups had finished the meal. They were to come in for the "second serving."

One of the lads, however, secreted himself under the table to listen in. Commenting on the four boys, the minister said to the hostess: "Mrs. Jones, it is too bad that at least one of your children couldn't have been a girl."

This was too much for the little stowaway. Out shot a bristling little red head from under the overhanging tablecloth, and a volley of protesting words:

"Well, Tom wouldn't been 'er; Ed wouldn't been 'er; Hal wouldn't been 'er; and I wouldn't been 'er! I'd like to know who'd 'a' been 'er!"

No other answer was needed; the point was settled.

Originated Postal System

Hailed by many as the father of the modern postal system, the one hundredth anniversary of Heinrich von Stephan was modestly celebrated in Germany. He came from very humble origin and rose to be director of the Royal Prussian post. The work for which he is particularly remembered was engineering the world postal union, which became effective on July 1, 1875, after the Berne conference had sat only a week and a half before accepting his scheme without change.

Germans perhaps treasure Von Stephan's memory particularly as the originator of the cheap-rate postcard. Indeed, his name is closely associated with all the postal innovations of his time.

Weight and Health

Recent insurance experience has shown that average weight tables are often misleading. The average weights are by no means the best weights. At ages under thirty, the best conditions apparently exist among those whose weights are from five to ten pounds above the average. After age thirty, the most favorable conditions are found among those whose weights are below the average. The amount below average increases with advancing age, and at the age of fifty, persons seem to be at their best when their weights are as much as 20 or 30 pounds below the average. Insurance experience shows that underweight is definitely an advantage so far as long life is concerned.

Hard to Trace Origin

Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly in his book on "Idioms and Idiomatic Phrases" says "Let her go, Gallagher!" is an Americanism of unknown origin, traced by various persons to different sources. He quotes, however, C. E. Gallagher of Youngstown, Ohio, who wrote in 1921: "Let her go, Gallagher!" was first seen by the writer (Mr. Gallagher) on posters advertising a dance at Salamanca, N. Y., about 35 years ago. My father was postmaster at that place, and working in the post office were a number of very popular young ladies who were always active in the social affairs of the town. These posters referred to the girls who worked for Gallagher."

A clean, airy bedroom where the attic used to be GYPROC makes the change

A BIGGER HOUSE inside the same four walls sounds impossible of accomplishment—but it only sounds that way.

Gyproc is a fire-resistant wallboard made from gypsum rock. It comes in sheets 4 to 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and 3/8 of an inch thick. It nails and cuts just as easily as lumber and with a minimum of waste. It is used for making inside walls, ceilings and partitions.

It has structural strength, insulation value, is draught and vermin-proof and costs very little.

Gyproc that does not burn is exactly the material to use for it needs no decoration when panelled yet is an excellent base for Alabastine, Gyptex or wallpaper.

Get a Gyproc direction sheet from your dealer or write us for the FREE booklet, "Building and Remodelling with Gyproc".

Here and There

Canada's total wool clip is about 21,000,000 pounds annually, while Canadian mills use at least twice as much as this every year, and Canadian consumption of manufactured woollens equals about four times the clip.

Lake Louise Icelandic poppies, one of the glories of this part of the Canadian Rockies, are in demand in thousands of gardens all over the world. Gardeners at the Chateau are now busy gathering seeds which will later be mailed to guests of the hotel this season.

Representing an increase of 31,000,000 bushels over the same period last year, 199,989,000 bushels of grain were marketed on Canadian Pacific Railway western lines during the twelve-month period since August 1, 1930. This gives the railway company a percentage of 52.3 of all the grain handled in that period.

More than 479,000,000 fish eggs, fry, fingerlings, and yearling fish and a few older fish were distributed last year from the hatchery establishments operated by the Fish Culture Division of the Canadian Department of Fisheries. Largest distribution was from the hatcheries in the Prairie Provinces.

Nipigon River Bungalow Camp Trophy competition is getting some fine entries this season. Recently a trout of seven pounds and one ounce was put in, and shortly afterwards, a six pounds, fifteen-ounce trout was taken. Catches of three to five-pound fish are frequent and one of the best seasons in years is reported from the camp.

J. O. Turcotte, Canadian Exhibition Commissioner, who visited Regina recently in connection with interior decoration in the magnificent new building which will house the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, states that a start on this work will be made immediately. Decoration will be in grain seeds, no paint of any kind being used.

The Dutch wheat mixing law, effective July 4, enforcing a maximum of 25 per cent. of soft domestic wheat in the making of bread in Holland, may lead to an increase of this percentage which should have the effect of creating a great demand for Canadian hard wheat, says J. C. Macgillivray, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Rotterdam.

"Development of Canada's ocean ports is not merely a Dominion problem but is a matter of interest and concern to the British Empire and the world as well," is the conviction expressed by Sir Alexander Gibb, G.B.E., world famous engineer and authority on port development and operation, who has been called in to supervise the rebuilding of the Saint John port facilities, recently destroyed by fire.

Stay of the King and Queen of Siam at the Banff Springs Hotel during the latter half of August marked the peak of the season at that famous Canadian Rockies resort. His Majesty, under the incognito of Prince Sahodaya, opened the Highland Festival August 27, and the royal party made a thorough inspection of the mountains in motor excursions and a couple of fishing trips, saw a rodeo at Kananaskis ranch, and were guests of honor at a Pow-wow of the St. Mary Indians. 767

NINTH INSTALMENT

They resume the trip the next day and are overwhelmed by a cloudburst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food. Spokane is finally reached and the hotel clerk smiles when they register. They find Rackruff Motors have arranged a public reception and dance for them. They are delighted with presents.

Now go on with the Story

When Peter went out for a look around town she hurried away with her share of the wedding presents in search of a pawn-shop, where she left them securely locked away from danger of theft or loss, and stopped for an express money order on her way home.

There wasn't enough money for the suit but she bought a new, frilly collar and cuff set to brighten up the old one which she extravagantly sent down to the hotel cleaners for pressing. She had a small electric iron and a folding board in her big suitcase, but she felt some hesitancy about resorting to such an economy with Peter in the sitting-room.

The reception was a huge success. The best people in their best clothes were properly impressed. Peter and Rowena in a mound of flowers in the Rackruff roadster were photographed for the local papers, interviewed by representatives of the press, and congratulated on every hand. Peter was given a pearl-studded cigarette lighter, which worked successfully, and Rowena a wrist-watch with the same design in chip diamonds. She accepted it with a glowing smile and inner regret that she had not had it earlier in the day to provide the coveted suit.

Mr. Meeker told her confidentially that the only reason he had not told her about the wrist-watch was because they had evidently planned it as an afterthought and he hadn't heard of it.

When the reception was over they were driven triumphantly back to the hotel in a procession of Rackruff roadsters, so that a considerable crowd gathered in the streets to cheer them on.

"Peter, don't you love it?" demanded Rowena when they were again alone in the bridal suite—alone, but with the door noticeably ajar. "Don't you adore being a husband? Aren't you glad we got married? Why, if I had known it was such fun I'd have been married dozens of times before this."

Peter waited in the lobby downstairs while she dressed for the big affair of the day, and when she was ready he took possession of the bedroom and bath while she sat in the flower-filled sitting-room—the door into the corridor wide open, you may be sure—and wrote a long gay letter to Buddy, enclosing the money order. At seven o'clock Mr. Meeker called to escort them down in person. He brought a huge corsage of orchids and orange blossoms for Rowena & a gardenia for Peter's button-hole.

"Guess we better let her stick it in for you," said Mr. Meeker. "Seems like it gives more of a bridal touch to things."

Rowena rose to the occasion. She kissed the gardenia prettily and then flicked it coquettishly on Peter's chin before she tucked it carefully into the lapel of his coat—all this to the beaming delight of Mr. Meeker and the confusion of Peter.

Flushing with rosy pride, Mr. Meeker led them down to the reception room and introduced them once more to all the Rackruff dealers and their wives, and then to the gentlemen of the press—and editors and publishers were among them too, as well as mere reporters. The orchestra struck up the wedding march and Peter and Rowena, flanked by Mr. Meeker on one side and the head waiter on the other led the procession into the ballroom for dinner. The seats designed for them were raised above the others in a royal mound of white roses. This, Mr. Meeker explained in a loud whisper, represented the solitaire diamond of an engagement ring, which was typified by the rest of the tables ranging the full extent of the hall in a great circle.

Never had Rowena been so beautiful. Her eyes—the blue of a summer sky—sparkled with pleased excitement. Her lovely lips quivered sensitively. Under the table she felt about with the toe of a silver slipper until she found Peter's foot to press when she wished to call attention to anything particularly priceless that caught her eye or ear.

Peter stared at her. Everyone else did too, if it comes to that, but no one of all those present was so amazed and so bewildered by her beauty as Peter himself. Over and over again he had to remind himself that this radiant, exquisite creature, the cynosure of all eyes, whose sheer beauty fairly took away one's breath, was the very same crisp and curt Rowena who kept such a stubborn finger on the steering wheel of their trip.

When dinner was over and he danced with her for the first time he was startled and stirred to discover that she was a feather in his arms, that her gleaming hair was fragrant as flowers; her skin velvet to his touch—and that she seemed to melt into the music like music itself.

"Rowena," he whispered, "it's great isn't it?—Really, it's just corking!"

"It's gorgeous, Peter, it's glorious! And, oh, darling, think how they're going to feel in a couple of months when they read in the paper about the annulment and know it was all a farce! Won't they go down—plop!—like a flat tire?"

"I suppose so," he assented soberly. "Looking at it that way, it seems rather a low trick to play on them. They mean so well."

"But it was Rackruff got us into it—it isn't our fault," she protested.

They danced through the ball with a display of domestic devotion that was thoroughly convincing. At two o'clock when it was over they went, laughing, up-stairs to the bridal suite and while he changed quickly from formal to street dress, she lounged in full display in the sitting-room before the chaperonage of an open door.

When he went in to say good night he sat down on the arm of her big chair and cuddled her bright head, roughly, in his arm.

"Why put me out, Rowena?" he began in a wheedlesome voice. "After all, we are married. And I fancy we're going to have the devil's own time convincing any sane judge that there was nothing to it but the ceremony."

"My judge will believe it."

"If he does," said Peter moodily, "he's going to think what a dam fool I am. — Anyhow, it's been a nice night and there's more of it. We've had a lot of fun and a little more wouldn't do us any harm," he argued persuasively.

She laughed good-naturedly. "I've had all the fun I can stand for one night. Run along, darling, and be sure to get a receipt that will confound the skeptics."

When Peter had gone, she sat on the edge of the bed and thought it all over. In a way she decided, it was rather an awful thing they had done. But it had been so tremendously important for both of them—the trip had—the pictures and the stories. And the money—the money most of all! But it was too bad this sort of thing had to happen—and to a sweet thing like Peter who really rather deserved a better break—he was so old-fashioned at heart.

Rowena stood up and yawned and got into bed. She would do her level best to insure that annulment, in common fairness to Peter. Certainly it was for her to make sure of it. He was too careless, too sensitive to public opinion. He might get that receipt for his night's residence and—he might not. She would make sure. She lifted the receiver of her telephone and asked them to send up the housekeeper.

When she came in, an efficient large, Scotch woman, Rowena looked a little limp and wan. "I don't feel so very well," she said childishly. "I wonder if you could get me something to drink? I don't want to be sick."

The housekeeper was surprised. It was three o'clock in the morning and the bridal suite, well lighted, showed itself guiltless of groom. His pillow had not been touched. But hotel housekeepers are schooled to surprises. She brought Rowena some hot strong tea with a little rum in it and gave her an aspirin tablet.

"If you don't feel better pretty soon have your husband call me—wh-when he comes in," she said.

Rowena's smile was a little forced. "I will," she promised. At five o'clock she asked for her again.

"I feel worse," she said. But she did not want a doctor. "I'm just nervous," she explained. "Would—would it be asking too much—for you just to sit with me a few minutes? I'm sure it's only excitement after the ball."

The housekeeper sat down beside the bed. Rowena looked very young, very flushed, altogether adorable in her soft night things. In the dim light the housekeeper could not see how old they were and worn. The housekeeper had her own opinion about men anyhow, and her face grew grimmer and grimmer. The night housekeeper in a big hotel sees much.

When Rowena seemed to have dropped off to sleep, she leaned over her commiseratingly. "Poor child," she muttered, "a pretty young thing like that.—Him out all night and them just married! Thank God I found men out in time!"

Rowena smiled comfortably to herself when the housekeeper had turned out the light and tip-toed softly from the room. She had a witness to the virginal privacy of her night in the bridal suite.

Rowena was about half through breakfast the next morning when Peter came in. He sat down opposite her and the waitress almost ran up to get the order. But Peter said he already breakfasted, would take only coffee very hot, please. "She's entirely too good for him, the brute," said the waitress to the pastry cook. "She never said a word but 'Good morning.' Didn't even ask him where he'd been all night."

Peter was a little self-conscious about it all and to the critical maids his constraint seemed that of a guilty conscience. Rowena was sweetly gentle, even friendly.

"I only wish the hotel had given them a pearl necklace instead of that cocktail shaker," said Mr. Meeker regretfully. "She'd get to wear the pearl necklace if he didn't pawn it, and it's plain to see who'll use the cocktail shaker."

Peter had the receipt for his night's lodging and Rowena folded it away triumphantly in the pocket of her portfolio along with the other proofs of their complete segregation en route.

She was full of enthusiasm, entirely satisfied with their future prospects, as she was packing her bag before the witness of an open door.

"It's a great little burg," she said warmly. "When I am a thorough old maid I shall buy me a dog or something and come and live here. It's just the sort of town I like. And if I am rich and famous I will rent the bridal suite by the year and you can give me an autographed picture of the Rackruff to adorn my walls. And I'll invite Mr. Meeker to tea every Sunday and we'll discuss our past glories & remember-when."

"It's pretty plain what they think of me in these parts," said Peter regretfully. "It seems a dirty trick to play them—they were so kind about every thing."

"One good thing about it," encouraged Rowena, "if for any reason my judge should hit a snag in getting us annulled, we don't need any other grounds after last night. We'll call on the hotel force for affidavits."

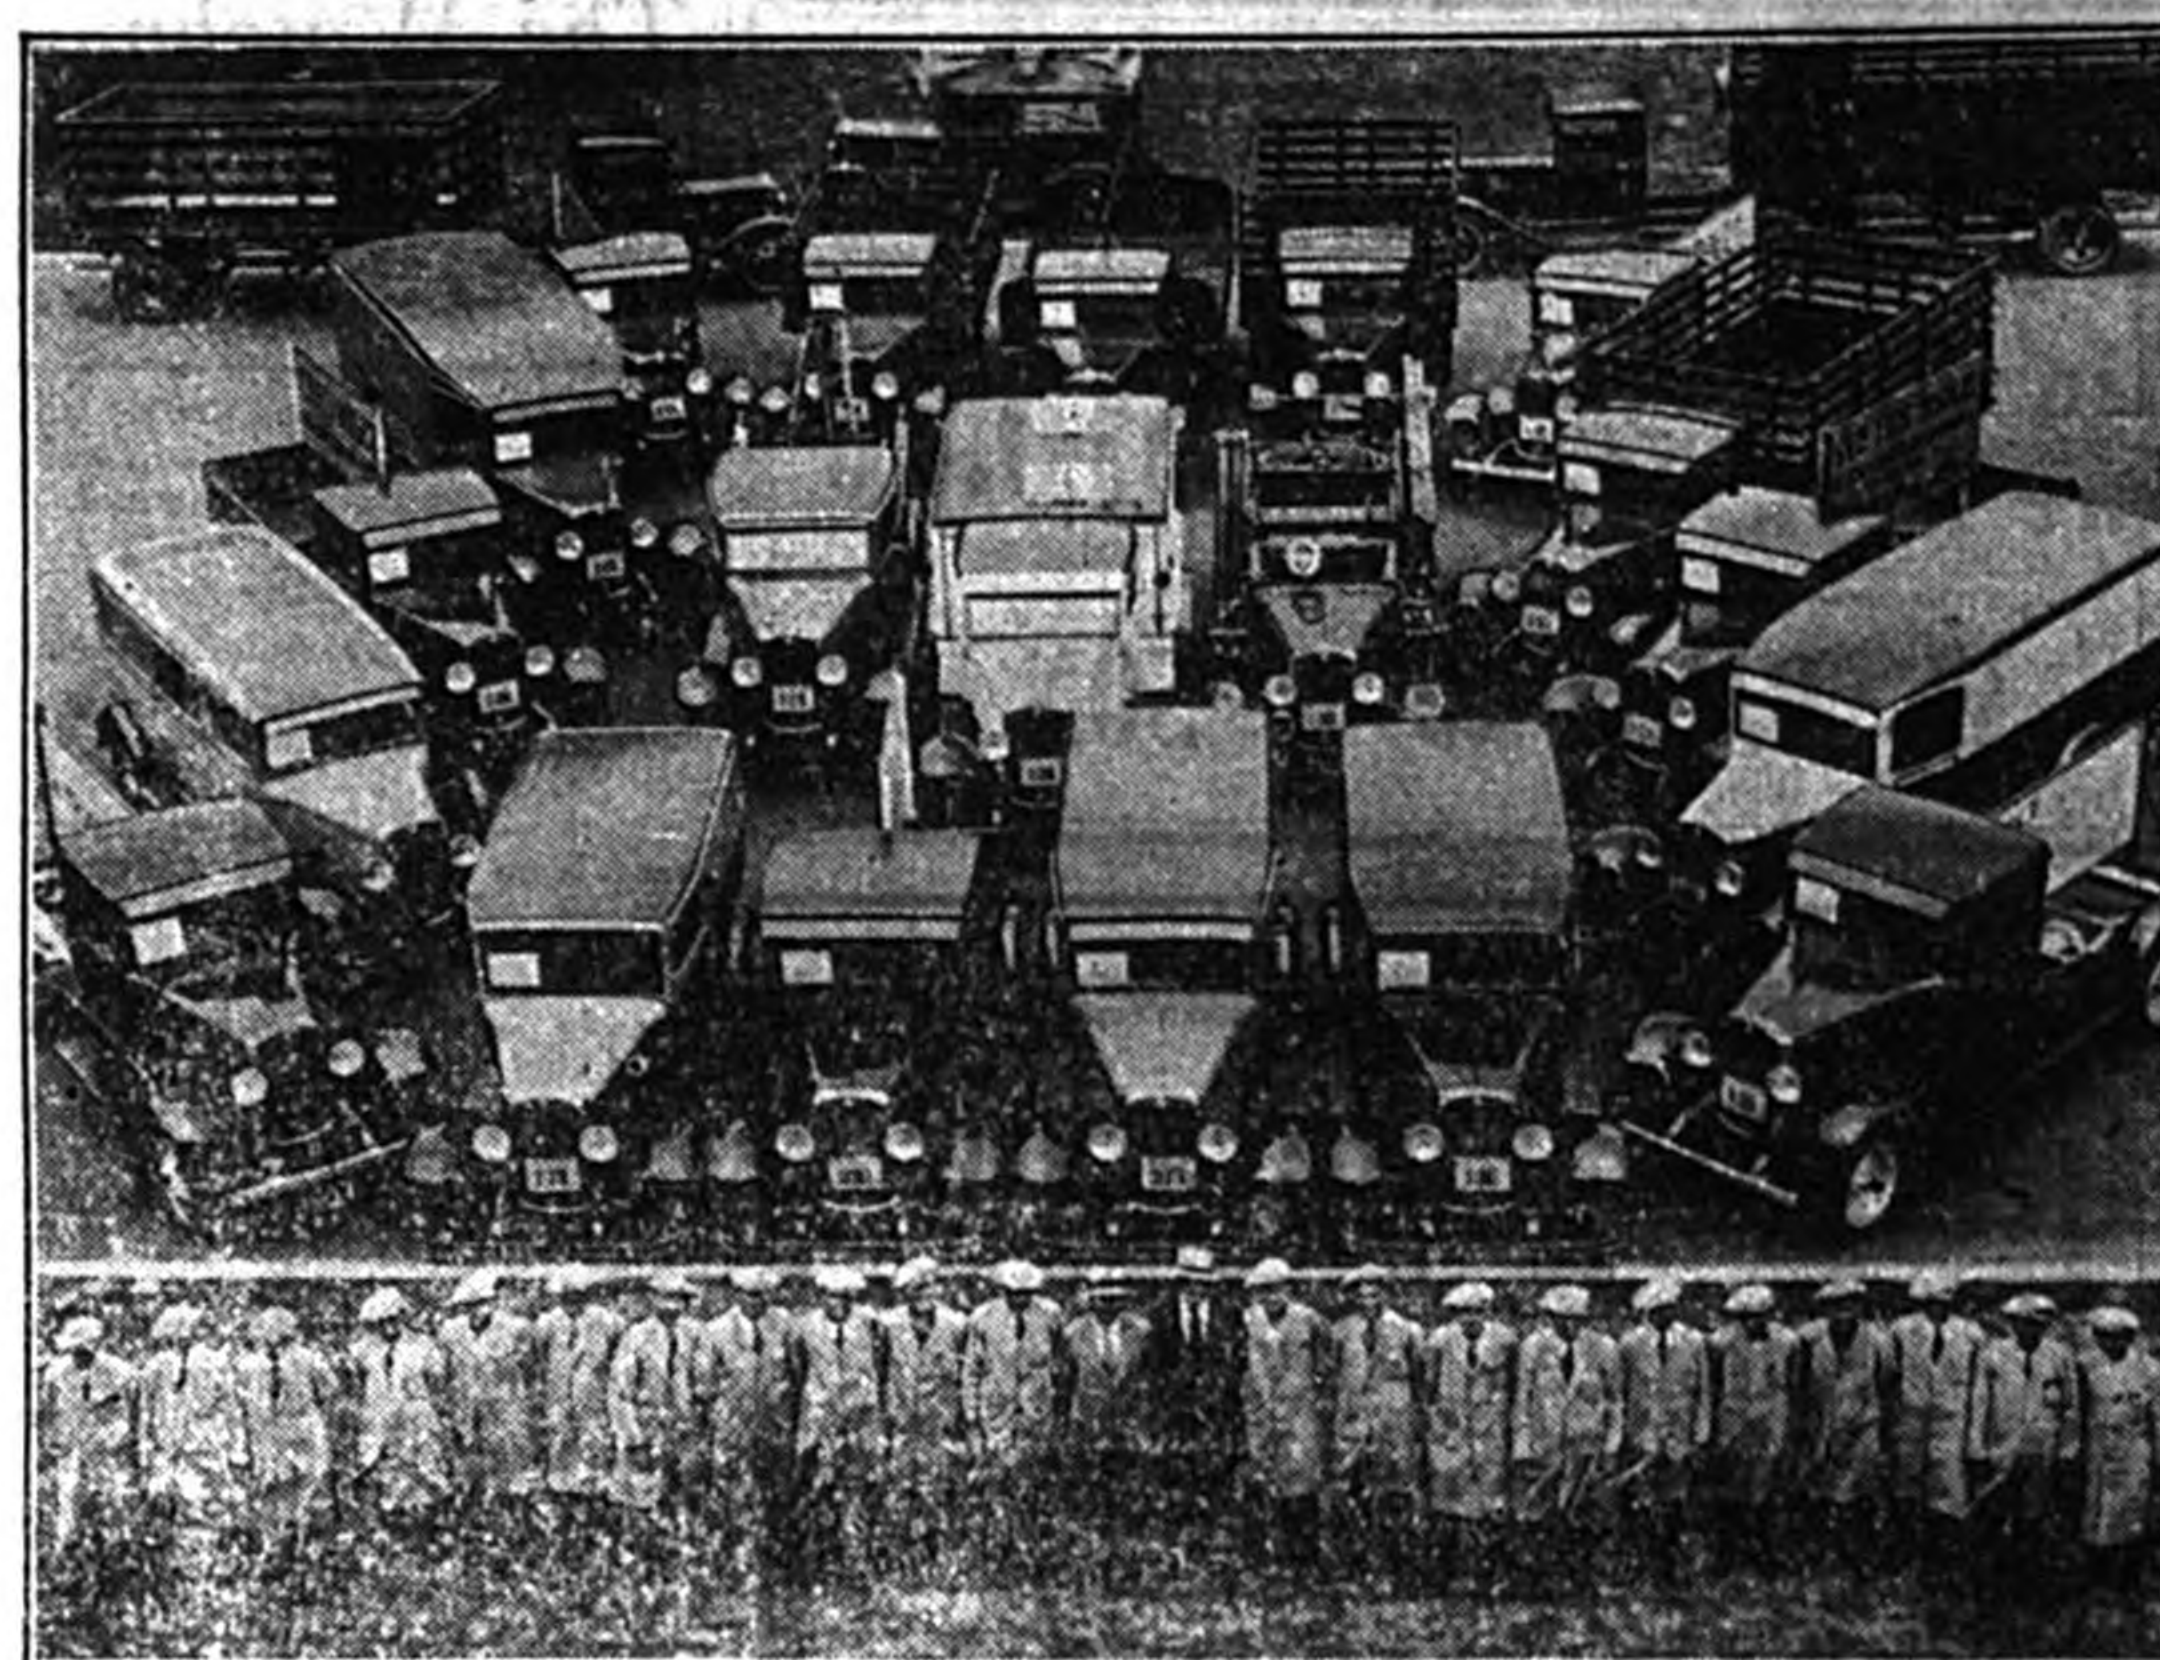

"What a cad they must think me!"

"Don't you care, darling. Next time we come here, you shall have the bridal suite and their sympathy and I'll step out for the night."

CHEVROLET TRUCK CARAVAN AND DRIVERS AS THEY APPEARED ON VISIT HERE

The picture above gives one an idea of the excitement that hovered around Mason's Garage on Main St., last Thursday afternoon, on the occasion of a visit from the Chevrolet Motor Company Caravan, which arrived in town about 3.30. There were 25 Chevrolet trucks from the big six wheelers down to the light delivery and sedan delivery. A fire waggon was a distinctive feature of the exhibition and demonstrations were given by fire chief Deacon. The Caravan paraded the town and left the following morning for Buckingham, en route to Ottawa. Mr. Mason was specially pleased at the interest manifested.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

The Labor Government in Britain, faced with a financial crisis of threatened budget deficit of $600,000,000 has called in leaders of the other major parties, who readily responded because of the national interests involved, partyism being entirely submerged in order to cope with a crisis.

One remembers when in 1914 the last crisis struck Britain. Of course it was far greater magnitude than of the present day, but its first political effect was to wipe out party divisions and unitedly combat the crisis by a coalition government.

Partyism is not conducive in settling great national issues & with us in Canada we would do well to sink the differences of strong partyism and deal with the stern situation that confronts us by co-operating in order to effect a remedy for our present ills. There is much of unrest and anxiety because of the rigors of winter with which we will shortly be faced, for those who through lack of employment have been unable to set anything aside to carry them through the days to come.

George Dansereau Retains His Seat.

With great jubilation the Liberals were able to acclaim Geo. Dansereau as Argenteuil's representative when the returns came in from the varied polls of the county which gave him the splendid majority of 436, but the pleasure was not confined to the local success only, because the returns brought news of the wonderful victory achieved by Mr. Taschereau throughout the Province which gave him an even greater representation than his previous Parliament.

As the results became known, it took but a very short time for demonstrations to be staged and processions formed. Impromptu bands were quickly organized & the store of Leona did a thriving business in disposal of red bunting, horns, trumpets etc., which demonstrations were carried on until the early hours.

Mr. Dansereau was much gratified at his victory and feels that having represented this county for the past four years, during which time he has been enabled to get acquainted with all sections and for whom he has secured many grants of monies for roads, bridges and schools, that his victory is a tribute to his accomplishments and to his Government for what they have done.

The Government was returned with even larger majority and will have 79 seats with only 11 members in Opposition. This of course was entirely unexpected, as it was anticipated that while it was too much to expect a complete overthrow yet it was thought that possibly the Opposition would carry from 30 to 40 seats.

The defeated candidate Notary Lavigne put up a splendid fight in consideration of the forces he had to contend with and he has no reason to be ashamed of his defeat for being a young man in moderate circumstances, with little or no party funds at his disposal, he was unable to cope with the formidable struggle put up by the Liberal forces.

However, the contest is over, and Tuesday night found several of our enthusiastic partisans honoring their political bets and publicly wheeling their opponents through the main thoroughfares followed by a large gathering of the younger fry, and now everyone is back to work, many wondering just how it all happened.

In a public statement replying to the congratulations of his supporters following announcement that his government had been returned with an increased majority in the provincial elections, the premier, Hon. L. A. Taschereau spoke as follows:

"Quebec is the only Liberal province of the Dominion and we are right in being proud of it. Our adversaries were determined to take power from us, and my colleagues fought with courage. Our victory rejoices me, I sincerely regret that the campaign against us was prejudicial to our race and to the good name of our province. Happily the sane population of Quebec has not been fooled. Monday's verdict it that of the sane population of Quebec which thinks only of the good of the province.

"I do not wish to deliver the speech which Mr. Houde would have given if he had been victorious. I do not wish to crush the bodies of our vanquished adversaries underfoot. The popular verdict was the revenge of the Liberal party of the province. I hope that in the future the fight will not come down to personalities and injuries, as the past one did.

"My colleagues and myself are proud of the results on Monday. We will try to deserve the confidence that has been placed in our party. I can assure you that we will give the best of ourselves, our work and our energy in order to execute the program that has been so eloquently ratified by the population. I thank you for your confidence in our government. The Liberals have given their votes generously and I know that many Conservatives have rallied to our cause. I am grateful to them for it."

CUSHING WEST

Miss K. Whelehan is spending a two week's vacation with her friends here.

Mr. A. C. Pinkerton and Mrs. Jas. Harcourt also spent Sunday with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Talbot, of Montreal, are spending a couple of weeks at Mrs. C. L. Cooke.

Miss Gladys Harcourt and Miss Symonds, of Montreal, spent the week-end at Mrs. R. Pinkerton's.

Mrs. Sidney Lewis, of Forest Hills, L. I. and Miss Helena Power, of Montreal, were also Mrs. Funcheon's guests over the week-end.

Miss Olive Hartley spent the early part of the week in Montreal. Mrs. R. D. Hartley and son Kenneth are spending this week with Mrs. Hartley Sr.

Mr. & Mrs. Young are spending the week in Montreal and during their absence Mr. and Mrs. Shaw and family are occupying the bungalow.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Mahoney and sons Billy and Teddy of Montreal, are guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. R. Funcheon of Monalea.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cutten and son Hartley who have been spending some weeks in Cushing as guests of the latter's mother Mrs. S. O. Hartley returned to Montreal on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dawson, of Stonefield Heights, accompanied by Mrs. Connor, Miss P. Dawson and Mr. E. Dawson Sr. motored to Morin Heights on Sunday, where they were guests at the Golden Wedding celebration of the latter's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dawson.

On Wednesday evening of last week a large party which comprised a number of the summer visitors and also people of the neighborhood assembled on that charming spot on the river shore known as the Cedar Point and held a corn roast. After despatching unbelievably large quantities of corn the party became frolicsome and gambled in the moonlight finally settling down in a circle around the bonfire, and entertained each other with songs and recitations until the lateness of the hour sent them home wondering why such pleasant reunions are not oftener indulged in.

Mr. C. J. Hartley and C. F. Watson are in Lachine this week engaged on some work for the Department of Marine. The latter has just completed a neat and artistic log studio for Mr. Leonard Young, on the river bank adjacent to his bungalow, and overlooking Sandy Bay. Mr. Young's talents both literary & musical will undoubtedly find inspiration amid such charming surroundings.

Death came with shocking suddenness on Tuesday morning to Mr. Leonard Wade, a well-known lifelong resident of this place. He left his house apparently in his usual robust health at eight o'clock and two hours later when his hired man went out to join him in the cornfield where he had gone to work he found him lying face downward on the ground with his sickle still grasped in his hand. Dr. Mason who was immediately summoned pronounced him dead and Coroner Wales who was also sent for decided an inquest to be unnecessary, as he had undoubtedly died from natural causes. The funeral took place on Wednesday from his home, where Mr. Baxter, of Brownburg, preached the service.

Interment was made in Dalesville cemetery.

Deceased was a son of the late Chas. Wade and his wife Elizabeth McFarlane and is survived by two brothers, W. J. and James A. Wade, who are in the Western States. His wife who was Miss Alice Bradley, died some years ago. Mr. Wade was of a retiring and reserved disposition but there are left in the community a number of old friends by whom he will be sadly missed — his kindness to little children was proverbial and his roof sheltered many a shelterless one. "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of these ye do it unto Me!"

EXTRA HOLIDAY IN CANADA THIS YEAR

The public of Canada will be treated to an extra holiday this year. Thanksgiving Day, for some years synchronizing with Armistice Day will, from now on, be separate. Both occasions will be public holidays. The date of Thanksgiving will be fixed by proclamation of the government. While the exact time has not yet been considered officially, the idea is that it will be Monday, October 12th, just a month in advance of the Armistice anniversary.

Hospital days were lonely. Of course, her friends did all they could to keep her cheerful — her room was a bower of roses — but how she looked forward to evening when Jack could sit by her and talk of his day at the office.

Then came the news that he must leave town on business. She wondered how she could stand the wait until he came home. But Jack, wise fellow, knew how to bridge the gap. Promptly each evening at nine he called her over Long Distance and told her all the things she wished to hear.

Extravagant? . . . not a bit . . . for night rates are always inexpensive! What could be worth more for what it cost?

Jane Finally Got Her Roses

By CLARISSA MACKIE

JANE RYDER stared out of the dripping window into the dreary courtyard of the apartment house. The rain that trickled from the railing of the fire escape outside splashed monotonously.

It was her twenty-fifth birthday and she had only received one birthday card in the day's mail, and the package that always came from home must have been delayed.

"Not even a birthday cake—not even a rose, and it is June back home," said Jane wearily. It had been a dull day at the office, and the dinner, eaten alone at a tiny tea room, was a total failure for poor Jane. She had seen the young man who occupied the next room to hers eating his dinner at the opposite table and he looked so hilariously happy over it that Jane knew that it was her own homesick self that mattered—not the rain or anything else. She did so want the fragrance of roses on her birthday—her June birthday. How they would have brightened the dull little hall bedroom she had at Mrs. Cready's! She lingered for a moment at a florist's window on the corner, and there inside was the happy, young man next door, buying roses—and lovely plumes of white lilac. The man was crumpling them into a long box with lots of pale green waxy paper. As she hastened toward home, the youngster passed her running for a street car. The box of roses was under his arm and he was whistling the latest love song.

"He is about my age," thought Jane. "I suppose there is some girl—I hope she likes him for he is rather a dear, and, I know he has been wildly extravagant about those roses!" That was an hour or more ago, and now Jane was staring into the dripping fire escape.

"What an idiot I am," thought Jane. "I will change my dress and go to the movies and buy some candy—and I will have a birthday, all except the home box and the roses." She raised the window to see whether it was raining very hard, and as she did so she heard her neighbor come into his room. He was not whistling. He just clumped heavily across the floor, flung up his window and threw something savagely out into the court. It struck the edge of the fire escape, balanced and fell inside, smiting Jane smartly on the cheek.

"Ouch!" cried Jane, startled. Silence, and then, "Did someone speak?"

Jane knew he was poking his head out on the fire escape. "Oh, excuse me, don't tell me I struck you with the roses," he apologized. "I am sorry—I hope you are not hurt."

"Not at all," said Jane stiffly. "I did not imagine anyone would be out there," he went on.

"I am sorry," sympathized Jane. "It was such a lovely bouquet—"

"How do you know?" he demanded brusquely.

Jane blushed. "Why, I just happened to see you buying them—I was looking in the florist's window—roses and white lilacs—and I did think how glad the girl would be to have them."

"She wasn't," he went on roughly, as if telling about it hurt him and as though he enjoyed the hurt, "she was wearing his orchids. I was so mad, I just brought the box home in a dream and when I found them under my arm, I opened the window and let fly, but I am so sorry that I hurt you," he ended contritely.

"I am sorry about the other girl," said Jane timidly.

"I am not—thank you just the same. I had to find out some time. If you'll put your head in a moment, I'll toss those flowers down—make a better shot of it this time."

"Please don't throw them away," said Jane in a small voice.

"Why, I couldn't offer them to you after she had refused them," he protested.

"Certainly not," said Jane, "but it is wicked to throw flowers away." Gently, very gently, Jane closed her window and pulled the shade closely.

"The poor dear," she thought, "he was so indignant at that horrid girl—and I had been thinking how happy he was." About that time Hannah came to the door with the big box from home and Mrs. Cready had remembered that it was Jane's birthday and sent Hannah up with a rose and some sprays of white lilac.

"Young Mr. Hunter, gave Mrs. Cready a big box full," explained Hannah proudly.

Late that evening, Jane took her birthday cake downstairs to share it with Mrs. Cready and some of the other roomers. "They didn't send me any flowers," Jane explained, "so that yours are twice as welcome." A tap sounded on the door.

"Come in, Mr. Hunter—don't be bashful, Bob," said good Mrs. Cready. "Here is your neighbor, Miss Ryder, having a birthday celebration—cake and all!"

"Well," said Mrs. Cready the next day, "they certainly took to each other right off—and, unless I'm mistaken, I'll lose two of my roomers before Christmas, mark my words!"

And Mrs. Cready was not mistaken.

In 1930 there were 3,400,532 farm homes in Canada and in 1930 there were 3,385,025, a decrease of only 15,507.

"THE GREAT RETURN"

Inscribed to the Pupils of Lachute Academy, at the close of their Summer Vacation 1931

By Capt. O. J. Aldom.

Member of "The Watchman" Staff & Sub-Ed. Municipal Review.

WHAT of the Woods, the Meadows and the Stream, The lake, the islands? Where are paths unseen

By adult eyes; and only open wide To youthful vision which I'll here describe As magic playgrounds, born of magic thoughts, Having no place, where books are daily sought Wherein are lessons, which you're bound to learn When Time will bid you make, the 'Great Return.'

What of the Woods, the Meadows and the Stream? Are they to you as if they'd never been? Have you not learnt that they a lesson give? To teach you why and how you ought to live! What say the shadows in those twilight glens? What secrets hidden, where the river bends? Why do those trees stand green and so erect? Why all these questions? What do you expect? An answer? Well have patience—You will learn What all this means, before the 'Great Return.'

When School closed down and freedom opened wide The Lakes and Rivers and the Country side I heard some whispers (mostly all of which Were rather bitter and did not enrich The soul and mind of every girl and boy) Protesting much that lessons had no joy And only play and hikes and picnics too, Were all that mattered; and the n not a few Would say (Hard though it is to here relate) "The only 'kick' in life is on the lake."

Now listen, though perhaps you'll not agree, Those happy playgrounds that you made so free With sounds of joyous laughter, I declare Were but a school room; turn no matter where Among the rocks, the hills and in the pool, THERE, Nature teaches, with the World her school Her gentle methods help to inculcate A love of beauty and a moral state That build for strength, just as those noble trees Remain unruffled, storms or gentle breeze. Its here you learn that truth and self control Are nature's gifts to body, mind and soul. She bids you work with faith and thereby earn The best in life that waits the 'Great Return.'

So ends the Summer and you look around And note a change upon the very ground Where flowers grew and sun played hide-and-seek And shy brown squirrels played round your feet. They all are gone; and in their place you see Great golden leaves, the gift of every tree. No final gift, for NOW with Joy you learn Like you they have, in time, THEIR 'Great Return.' Lake Louise, Canada.

O. J. A.

Canada Must Win World Championships

World Championships in 1932 will be won by farmers who recognize that the cleanest and best quality seed with the most careful cultivation are essential to the production of exhibition grain. While it is recognized that these things should apply to the whole crop area, concentration upon a small plot is the best plan for securing an exhibit sample. If such a plot is subjected to extra preparation—with more care probably than it is possible to devote to the whole crop area—and sown to the very choicest seed it will not only provide good quality foundation stock for next spring's seeding, but a winning sample for exhibition at

FAVORITES FOR WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP SWIM

Upwards of three hundred men are expected to take the plunge into the waters of Lake Ontario on September 2 in the Marathon swimming race for the championship of the world and a total purse of $25,000 of which $10,000 goes to the winner. In addition to the men, the event is open to the prize winners of the Women's Swim, which will be staged on August 28 for a total of $10,000 in prizes. Both races will be over an oblong course in front of the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds at Toronto, the course for the men being approximately 15 miles. The bulk of the prize money is expected to be divided amongst the seven men shown in the above group: No. 1 is Gianni Gambi of Ravenna, Italy, professional swimming champion of Europe, who is in the race for the first time and is regarded as a strong contender. No. 2 George Blagden of Memphis, who finished fourth in the 1930 contest. No. 3, Marven Nelson, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, winner of last year's swim. No. 4, George Young of Toronto, famous as the winner of the Catalina race. No. 5, Isadore Spondor, of Port Colborne, Ont., who was second last year and has been training under Captain Corsan this year. No. 6, Sam Shields, of Miami, Fla., who holds the record for the 27½ miles around Manhattan Island. No. 7, Ernest Vierkotter, former German baker, now a resident of Toronto, and one-time victor in the great race.

OBITUARY

The Late George Blair Sr.

On Thursday evening, August 13th., George Blair Sr. passed away at his son-in-law's home, Mr. A. Hastie, 510 Congregation St., Montreal, at the ripe old age of 88 years, 2 months and 21 days. Mr. Blair enjoyed good health up to the last four months when he gradually grew weaker and each day seemed to bring a change for the worse until death came. The deceased was born in Ogdensburg, Que., where he spent his boyhood and manhood. He married Mary Ann Townsend of the same district. To this union were born seven children, four sons and three daughters. They resided in Ogdensburg for a few years and afterwards went to make their home in Green Valley, Ont., where they remained till after the death of Mrs. Blair, forty seven years ago. After his wife's death Mr. Blair brought his family back to the old home and about twenty years ago he left for the West to visit his son Herbie and made his home with him till about two years ago, he returned to visit his daughter, but he found his strength unequal to travel any more and remained with her, where he was tenderly cared for up to his death. Deceased was a man of a kind and lovable disposition and made friends in every locality where he lived.

He leaves to mourn his loss four sons James H. of Smith Falls, Ont.; George E., of Kerrobert, Sask; Fred W., of Vancouver, B. C.; Herbert A., of Stettler, Alta., and one daughter Mrs. A. Hastie, of 510 Congregation St., Montreal; one sister Mrs. D. MacGillivray, of Thurso, Que., and 14 grandchildren.

The funeral took place from his daughter's home, 510 Congregation St., Montreal, thence to the Chatham West Baptist Church, Ogdensburg, where the funeral service was held, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Smith of the Temple Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Baxter, of the Chatham West Baptist Church. The pall bearers were Messrs. Ralph Horner and John Douglas, son-in-law and cousin, of the deceased; Edward Hastie and Wm. Horner, grandsons; David Tomalty and Fred Townsend nephews. The large assembly of relatives & friends and the beautiful floral offerings testified to the esteem in which he was held.

Floral offerings were received from: Mr. and Mrs. Hastie and daughters, anchor; Mr. & Mrs. H. A. Blair and son, Gates ajar; Mrs. D. MacGillivray and Mrs. Wm. Blair and family, Pillow of roses; Mr. and Mrs. E. Hastie, Wreath; Mr. Thomas Clarke, Wreath; Mrs. Carrier, Anchor; Mr. and Mrs. Lytle, Wreath; Mrs. Baemner, Spray; Mr. and Mrs. Horner and family, Spray; Mr. and Mrs. Curtiss, Spray; Mr. & Mrs. Bridgeman, Wreath.

All Sorts of Virtues

Credited to Turquoise

To the people of Tibet and Persia, the turquoise appears in the light of a charm—a talisman endowed with curative powers and mystic benefits, writes Bayard Nettleton in the Los Angeles Sunday Times. It was considered "an astringent and sweet to the taste, an excellent means of provoking the appetite. Every poison, whether vegetable or mineral, or a mixture of both, was rapidly neutralized by the turquoise. It relieved the pain caused by demoniacal and other obnoxious influences. The stone was employed as an eye remedy and applied against the stings of the scorpion. It was used in temple worship and as an omen of good luck in the marriage ceremony."

For centuries the turquoise has been linked with the spiritual and physical welfare of the ancient nations. Derived from Tibet and Persia, these superstitions or beliefs were carried through conquest and trade to all the countries of the East, finding a ready following in India, China and among the more cultured peoples. Later, the ideas invaded Europe and it is held by many that much of the American Indian turquoise lore had its inception from these same beliefs.

Vivid Pen Portrait of ## Old English Gentleman

"I notice that this gentleman is dressed in more easy fashion than some." Dion Clayton Calthrop wrote in "English Costume" in describing an Eighteenth-century Englishman. "His coat is not buttoned, the flaps of his waistcoat are not over big, his breeches are easy, his tie is loose. . . . I know that he has a tremendous periwig at home covered with scented powder; I know that he has an elegant suit with fullness of the skirts, at his sides gathered up to a button of silver gilt; there is plenty of lace on this coat, and deep bands of it on the cuffs. He has also, I am certain, a cane with an amber head very curiously clouded, and this cane he hangs on to his fifth button by a blue silk ribbon. This cane is never used except to lift it up at a coachman, hold it over the head of a drawer, or point of the circumstances of a story. Also, he has a single eyeglass, or perspective, which he will advance to his eye to gaze at a toast or an orange wench."

Six Towns in One

There are six towns in one in Staffordshire, England. They are Stoke-upon-Trent, Hanley, Burslem, Longton, Tunstall, and Fenton, and they are now known under the name of Stoke-upon-Trent, with a single head in the lord mayor, who is really five mayors in one with the use of five mayoral chains which are the badge of office, one for each town. There are also six town halls in the federation, but the police administration is centered in one chief constable. And there are six public libraries which were separate municipal undertakings, and there are five markets, which are now under one control. The towns are largely given over to the pottery industry of which there are more than 300. Foremost among them is that of Josiah Wedgwood whose bicentenary has been celebrated recently.

Modern "Dear Old Ladies"

They came down the garden path as summer rain comes on the thirsty ground: kindly and softly, these two old ladies in their dark clothes. Peace walked in their footsteps. Their gait was like the laying-on of healing hands, their steps fell on the earth like a benediction. Strife and weariness never lived with them, one felt. Sure they had quiet in them, more wisdom than the great, else they never walked so freely down the garden path. They talked, as they came to the garden gate. Quietly they talked, with animated quiet faces. The sad passer-by heard them open the gate, and heard the taller lady say, their peaceful talk ended: "But, oh, my dear, if I were you, I'd hedge on Bumper Tin, and sell my copper short."—Manchester (England) Guardian.

Old Virginia Law

The idea that there is a law in Virginia that forbids a woman to become engaged to more than one man at the same time is probably based on the story of Cicely Jordan, a charming and wealthy widow, who engaged herself to marry two men, Capt. William Farrar and Rev. Greville Pooley, the latter of whom sued her for breach of promise. The suit was lost, but the governor and council of the colony were so aroused over the affair that they issued a proclamation against a woman's engaging herself to more than one man at a time. Will-stach, an authority on Virginia lore, says there is no known record that this edict has ever been revoked.

Fortune From Simple Idea

Among inventors of domestic utilities, a high place must be given to an unknown old lady of Durham, England, whose notion of grinding mustard seeds and sifting the powder through cloth led to Mr. Jeremiah Colman making a tremendous fortune and founding a worldwide business. The old lady was enterprising enough to forward a sample of her preparation to King George I, who was delighted at the new form of a condiment which previously had to be prepared by a clumsy and lengthy process, and his favor instantly established its success.

Cushing residents en masse attended a very enjoyable corn roast sponsored by Mrs. O. Hartley and family on Wednesday night of last week. It was held on Mrs. L. C. Cooke's shore a most beautiful as well as suitable spot. It reminded one of picture scenes of fairyland.

The moonbeams united the Ontario and Quebec banks of the river with a wide bar of gold, a dazzling mirror on the dark quietly rippling waters.

Turning from it to watch the leaping sparkling fire it was hard to decide which picture was the most beautiful. If one let one's fancy rove it might have been imagined that the moon elves and the fire elves were actively engaged in a beauty contest with the summer spectators as judge.

After the corn feast was over—youth and old enjoyed some old fashioned games by the firelight also a sing-song.

Miss Whelehan favored with a recitation; Mr. R. Dobbie with Scotch songs; the Misses Dorothy and Helen Weir, French ones, ending up with a short solo by Miss Catherine Cook.

The thanks and good wishes of the crowd were conveyed to Mrs. Hartley and family by Mr. Henderson Weir, of Thorold, Ont., with a hearty applause of all present.

Cushing Community Club held a very successful dinner in the Club Room, on Saturday last. At its close Rev. J. W. Maclean addressed the audience for a few minutes and Mr. Cutten, of Montreal, expressed in a few words his appreciation of Cushing resident's kindness and friendly attitude of good fellowship, towards the strangers with in our gates.

After singing together a verse of "Blest be the tie that binds". The crowd repaired to Mrs. O. E. Leroy's field and spent the remainder of the afternoon with games and racing contests.

Our sincere sympathy is tendered Mrs. J. E. Arnold of Grenville, also to Mr. Gilbert Arnold of Arnoldwood, on the death of Mrs. Hurdman, of Ottawa, formerly Miss Myrtle Arnold, of Grenville, whose death took place in Ottawa on Wednesday morning.

Mrs. O. E. Leroy and daughter Miss Doris returned home after a pleasant visit with friends in the Western provinces.

Our sympathy is extended to Mr. Wm. Campbell and sons of Grenville, on the extremely sad death of Miss Agnes and Mr. Gordon Campbell. Miss Campbell was bathing in the Ottawa River and slipped into a hole made by dredging operations, her brother Gordon went to her aid and slipped into the same

THE MISSION TO CYPRUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:25-13:12.
GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth: to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Starts on a Great Trip.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Begins an Adventurous Journey.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Missionary Adventures in Cyprus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity at Court.

I. Barnabas and Saul Return from Jerusalem (12:25).

The Christians at Jerusalem were in need because of a famine which had come upon the world. When news of this reached the believers at Antioch, they were moved with sympathy for them, and relief was sent at the hand of Barnabas and Saul. On their return from this ministry, they were accompanied by John Mark.

II. Gifts of the Church at Antioch (v. 1).

Young as was this new religious center, it had prophets and teachers. Such are essential to right church life. In Ephesians 4:8-12 is enumerated the gifts which when Christ ascended on high he gave to men for the perfecting of the saints unto the work of the ministry. Gifts in the Church are not for the Church itself, but to enable it to perform service for others.

III. Barnabas and Saul Sent Forth (vv. 2, 3).

This marks the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the Church.

1. The occasion (v. 2). While the five prophets and teachers were fasting and praying, the Holy Spirit commanded them to send forth Barnabas and Saul. The work of evangelizing the world was laid so heavily upon these men that they refrained from eating in order to seek the will of God in prayer. This is the kind of fasting that has God's approval. The missionary enterprise is the index to the spirituality of a church. The emptiness of missionary treasures and the falling off of missionary candidates reveal the unspirituality of the home base.

2. The divine command (v. 2). The Holy Ghost said, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul." The real call to Christian service comes from the Holy Spirit. The Spirit called, the Church responded by sending out those called by him. Spirit-filled Christians know the voice of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit called, and the best men which the Church at Antioch had were sent out.

3. The obedience (v. 3). After fasting and prayer, Barnabas and Saul were sent out. The men were ready to go.

4. Instant obedience was rendered. Those who have received the Spirit's call are not taken by surprise when they are commissioned by the Church. There should be no holding back on the part of the Church, nor of the workers when the Spirit calls. By the workers when the Spirit calls.

IV. Preaching the Word of God in Cyprus (vv. 4, 5).

We are not told as to why they first went to Cyprus, but we are left to infer that it was owing to the fact that Cyprus was the home of Barnabas. He was acquainted with the country and the people and could be thus assured of a respectable hearing among them. Besides, it was most natural that those who had heard the good news go first with it to their kindred and friends. Andrew first went to his brother, and the man out of whom the demons were cast was denied the pleasure of following Jesus in order that he might go and tell his kindred. As they went forth they carefully carried out their commission, for they preached the Word of God. Those who are faithful to God will preach nothing but his Word. The great need today is Spirit-called and Spirit-filled men preaching God's Word.

V. Withstood by Elymas, the Sorcerer (vv. 6-12).

Sergius Paulus, the deputy, invited Barnabas and Saul to tell him of God's Word. Elymas maliciously sought to turn his mind from the faith. He sought to bar the gospel as it entered upon its mission of converting the heathen. Paul came to the front and denounced Elymas in the most scathing terms. He called him the child of the Devil, denouncing him as full of guile and villainy, pronouncing him the enemy of all righteousness, and accusing him of perverting the right ways of the Lord. Surely a man is never more a villain than when he tries to turn a soul from God.

God Does Not Forsake Those

Suppose that all men forsake or forget thee; God does not. His eye sees thee, his heart feels for thee, and his hand is able to deliver thee. Thou art not friendless, nor wilt thou be till the God of all consolation dies.—Charles H. Spurgeon.

The Resurrection-Life

It is the resurrection-life that is the truest as well as the highest form of life; the surest as well as the most glorious immortality; it admits of no reversal and no decay.—H. Bonar.
