THE LATE MR. JOHN B. COOKE

On October 26th, there passed away one of the last of the pioneer residents of this community in the person of Mr. J. B. Cooke, of Beech Ridge.

Born in Hawkesbury in 1846, he spent his early life in Grenville and Arundel, moving to Beech Ridge in 1882.

In 1875 he married Jane D. Leynachan, who survives him along with four sons and two daughters.

Services, conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, Lachute United Church, of which the deceased was a member, were held on Friday, Oct. 28, at his late residence. The funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends.

14th Anniversary of Armistice. Special Service at St. Andrews

A Community Commemorative Service, will be held in Christ Church, St. Andrews E., on Friday evening, Nov. 11th., commencing at 8 p.m. The combined Choirs of the local churches will lead the singing. The service will be conducted by the Rector, assisted by the Rev. W. M. Ballantyne, D.D., and the Rev. John Macaskill, B.A., B.D.

During the service the Last Post will be sounded, and the song "In Flanders Fields" will be rendered as an offertory solo. A hearty welcome is extended to all.

Canada Remembers

Remembrance Day will live. The people of Canada have placed their mark of approval upon the action of Parliament in setting apart the eleventh day of November to be observed each year as a particular Day of Remembrance of the sacrifices of those who fought and died, and those who, still living, suffer because of war service.

The fear expressed by some that Remembrance Day would become "Just another holiday" must not be allowed to grow, but rather would we lend encouragement and urge our people to gather in public assembly, that the spirit of solemn remembrance may be fittingly observed.

To those who engaged in the terrible conflict, time can never efface the brutal realities with which they were confronted; and the empty places of those who paid the supreme sacrifice need no special day of remembrance to further remind the loved ones of those who died on Flanders Fields.

As in previous years young ladies of this town will extend to citizens the privilege of helping the disabled veterans by buying a poppy. Speaking of this sale of poppies, on a cross-Canada broadcast, recently Major J. S. Roper, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., appealed for support in aid of the disabled soldiers in Canada.

"To the war," he said, "we owe what has become one of the most striking of our national observances—the wearing of poppies on Remembrance Day. Poppy day easily stands out as the nations' largest one day free-will offering. On that day the whole Empire is a blaze of red—the red of poppies made by disabled men in poppy factories. Each poppy worn is an individual thank offering to the veteran from the sale of these poppies of 1914-18. Each cent made is expended in relief and essential assistance of ex-service men and women or dependents."

The sale of poppies accomplished a two-fold purpose; in assisting toward the employment of thousands of Canadians who were severely disabled in the service of their country; and in the raising of funds for the care and benefit of needy ex-service men and their dependents in local communities, said Major Roper.

Since the inauguration of these shops, $1,165,133.12 had been paid in wages directly to the employees. It is learned on authority the mills of Ayers Limited are closing on Remembrance Day, Friday, 11th., inst., and it is expected all local industries and merchants will follow suit, in compliance with the official announcement of that day as a Statutory holiday.

Oldest Resident of Weir Mrs. Edouard Munich Dies Suddenly

The village of Weir, on Monday last, Oct. 31st., lost its oldest resident in the person of Mrs. Edouard Munich, formerly Emma Gunth, who was also a resident of Montreal. She was in her eightieth year and was predeceased by her husband some years ago.

In spite of her advanced age, Mrs. Munich was very active and in perfect health. At 6.30 o'clock a.m. she got up as usual and attended to her duties in the kitchen of her home. While preparing the breakfast she collapsed and died suddenly, at around 7 o'clock. Dr. J. A. Tur-

Dr. Ludger Labelle, of St. Jerome, coroner of the Terrebonne district, was also summoned and gave a verdict of natural death. The late Mrs. Munich, who was a native of Germany, travelled a great deal and had residences in Montreal and at Weir.

Provincial W.C.T.U. Holds Annual Meeting at Aylmer

Interesting Sessions and Inspiring Addresses

By Our Own Correspondent

Inspired by the sound of fresh young voices in the school yard right by Aylmer United Church, the 48th. Annual Convention of the Provincial W. C. T. U. opened its first session on Tuesday, Oct. 18th., more than ever determined to work in one harmonious body to make life's highway safe, not only for those children, the lit of whose happy laughter cheered the band of workers, but for the children of our entire province.

The church was fittingly decorated with temperance banners the property of the different unions, fall flowers, ferns and gaily colored leaves. Mrs. H. Wilson, of Athelstan, was in the chair, much to the pleasure of her friends who were pleased to find her recovered from recent illness. Mrs. J. W. Maclean, of Cushing, led the meeting in a beautiful devotional consecration service, stressing the responsibilities in connection with this great work.

Mrs. H. B. Hudson, of Aylmer, welcomed the Convention most heartily to Aylmer, saying it was 41 years since Aylmer had had the pleasure of entertaining members of a W. C. T. U. Convention. She also mentioned the fact that Aylmer was older than Ottawa, as there was a record of Aylmer having loaned their minister to Ottawa which was then called Bytown, the minister having made the trip to this church (which was then only a mission) on horse back. Miss Mary Bazin, of Ormstown, replied to Mrs. Hudson.

A lot of people are getting back on their feet again. They have been forced to turn in their cars.

Lucerne Biologist Fatally Wounded

Norman Atkinson, 31, died in hospital Tuesday night from a bullet wound inflicted under unknown circumstances at Montebello.

Atkinson was found in the Montebello engineering offices of the Seigneurie Club, Lucerne-in-Quebec, with a handkerchief pressed to his face and a wound from a 22 calibre revolver bullet in his forehead. A revolver was found nearby.

He was rushed to hospital in Ottawa and died after an operation for removal of the bullet.

A gold medallist and a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, Atkinson was employed as a biologist at the Lucerne club. Although a young man, he had already distinguished himself in biology and had only recently turned from attending a national convention of United States biologists at Atlantic City where he delivered a paper. He was a frequent contributor to scientific journals.

The minutes of the midwinter conference were read by Mrs. M. A. Van Vliet, of Lacolle, and Mrs. L. M. Colcomb, of Montreal, corresponding secretary, reported 72 unions with an active membership of 1,689, as well as 242 honorary members; 16 Loyal Temperance Legions with 284 members; Y. P. B.'s, 16 with 280 members; Business meetings 583; other meetings 179; W. C. T. U. libraries; Little White Ribboners 740; Signatures to pledge 740; Lost by death 35.

The afternoon meeting heard the reading of the president's annual address, in which she said that during the 14 years that have followed the great war, the world has had opportunity to learn many lessons; that Jesus preached the doctrine of forgiveness, and this present day world must realize that doctrine as common sense preaching which must be practised if nations and individuals were to live together in peace. She also said that The League of Nations, who were working to assert "That peace begets peace," once estimated that the great war cost four billion dollars, the loss in human life being 37 millions.

"Peace," said Mrs. Wilson, "will only come when the teachings of Christ are given first place in the hearts of the people of the world." Speaking of temperance, she said that there were always young people and children that needed to be reminded of the danger of even moderate drinking. She was pleased to report a growing temperance sentiment in some ways although under Government Control the evil still flourished, in spite of the fact we were promised that the boot-legger and blind pigs would disappear. She mentioned one of the arguments used by advocates of the saloon, namely that they only wanted the moderate use of that good gift of God, alcoholic beverages.

A more plausible argument was never invented, and it fooled many. In the first place strong drink was not a gift of God, but a manufactured product, and the beverage use of alcohol was not born of Heaven's beneficence, but of man's evil passions. Mrs. Wilson also said that alcohol might at some time take the place of gasoline in driving cars; but when it drove men and women, it drove them straight to hell. Following the Provincial Government campaign in 1926, educating people to drink more wine and less spirituous liquors, the sale had greatly increased, although the last fiscal year had shown a decrease of $500,000 revenue from the sale of liquor, caused by existing conditions and reduction in tourist trade.

Latest statistics show that licenses were granted to 639 hotels 616 taverns, 108 restaurants, 13 breweries, 156 clubs, 9 steamship lines, 19 railway dining

Interesting Marriage Calder — McQuat

A quiet wedding took place at the bride's home in Lachute, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 29th., when Amy Margaret Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McQuat, was married to Mr. George Francis Calder, son of the late George F. Calder and of Mrs. Calder, of Lachute. The Rev. Henry Cousens officiated.

Autumn leaves and flowers were used in decorating the home. The music was rendered by Miss Marion Hawthorne. The bride was unattended and Mr. Harold Calder acted as best man for his brother.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long fitted gown of French blue angel skin and carried a small bouquet of dark red pansies and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Calder left later on a motor trip, the latter wearing for travelling a black coat trimmed with black lamb, worn over a Burgandy waffle crepe and satin dress with matching hat.

cars, as well as 87 permits and 3 commercial stations, in all a total of 3391 during the year.

If Canada's prosperity is measured by the number of places where liquor may be obtained, she may well be considered prosperous. But what about her ruined homes; souls lost by the use of strong drink; the unhappy wives and abused children; farms going to waste because their owners have not the will-power to keep out of the booze dens! Not only are there booze dens, but illicit stills also abound, no less than 167 having been unearthed in the Province during the last year.

No greater contribution can be made by Christian womanhood, than the training of our youth for total abstinence, and the instilling into their minds of the laws of health and the laws of God. We as Christian citizens cannot evade our responsibility to the child in our midst.

In her address Mrs. Wilson

Lachute Town Council

The regular meeting of above Council was held on Wednesday last, there being present Mayor P. Dobbie, and Aldermen J. A. Rice, J. P. MacKimmie, C. R. Miller, Jos. Speight, Ledoux and Lamarche.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

As one of the delegates appointed at a recent meeting of the Lachute Board of Trade, Mr. James W. Gall appeared before the Council to know if there was any way in which the Board could co-operate with the town in meeting the unemployment situation, during the coming winter. The suggestion was made that the town should procure a bush lot in which the men could be set to work, and a committee comprising the Mayor and Mr. W. M. Scott were appointed to interview Mr. W. McQuat and others, to see if same could be secured.

Mr. Godfroy Delorme appeared before the Council protesting his tax for the Bedard Main sewer as being unjust. This led to much discussion, the council afterwards adjourning until next week.

spoke of recent happenings in Finland, and of the determination of the "Dry's" to bring their country back to the high estate from which it has fallen. Even though Finland has taken a backward step, she is not altogether hopeless, as no liquor can be obtained in Finland between Friday night and Tuesday morning, or on public holidays.

Mrs. Wilson spoke of the centennial celebration taking place in England in October, anniversary of the forming of the first total abstinence group by the Seven men of Preston, a formation that had grown to such immense proportions and spread all over the world. Rev. F. A. Allen, of Christ Church, Aylmer, also spoke of this centennial, and gave thanks to the early teachings of his own mother along temperance lines, which had kept him in the straight and narrow way. Mr. Allan also expressed his pleasure at the

Nine Provinces, Eight Premiers, Heard in Radio Hook-up

Event of National Interest at Issuance of New Loan

Monday evening, heralding the launching of Canada's new $80,000,000 loan, nine provinces were represented in a trans-continental hook-up over the C. N. R. radio network. In seven cases the premiers of the provinces spoke, briefly urging the public's acceptance of the new loan; in two provinces, Alberta and New Brunswick, cabinet ministers deputized for the respective prime-ministers and made the broadcast.

Premier Bennett himself, from C.N.R.O. Ottawa, opened the series of addresses, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, made the closing speech, again in Ottawa.

No press report of this event was observed, the following day; which indicates how thoroughly the wonders of modern radio have been adopted as an everyday appurtenance and taken for granted. Every station on the trans-Canada hook-up was audible to satisfaction; the process of changing caused no disturbance; there was no friction in the well-planned rotation of stations. This same performance, just ten years ago in the infancy of radio as a popular pastime, would have amazed the world of listeners. Today, it excites little comment—as world-relay broadcasts become commonplace and television may be witnessed in Montreal at this very moment.

The Dominion Loan, incidentally (which was the topic of Monday's Atlantic-to-Pacific discourse) is meeting a fair public response; not so spontaneous as the recent Service Loan, on account of difference in denomination and term of the issues, no doubt; the three-year bonds were quickly over-subscribed. It is however, expected the stupendous sum of eighty millions will be fully subscribed within a few days' time.

FIRST BOWLING IN LOCAL LEAGUE

The first league bowling of the season was witnessed on Tuesday by an enthusiastic gathering at the Lachute alley, when Maroons bowled against Canadiens as the opening engagement. Maroons won a decided, if somewhat unexpected victory in the following scores:

IMPORTANCE OF SUCCESSFUL LAON

Canadian Government loans have always been successful. Internal issues, such as the present loan, have always been rapidly subscribed by the people of the Dominion. The success, which has attended the flotation of every loan has had a benign effect on every individual in Canada.

That we are buying the issues of our own government serves notice to the world that Canadians—those most familiar with the Dominion—believe that the future of this country is based only upon those elements which assure growth and prosperity.

The success of domestic loans increases the confidence of the world in Canada, in her people, and in her ability to meet financial obligations. Such confidence is reflected in the credit standing of the Dominion in world money markets. The better the credit of the Dominion, the less it will cost to finance the activities of government, and the less it will cost the taxpayer. The better the credit of the Dominion, the faster will the industry of our people and the resources of our country be turned to wider and more profitable account.

545 POST OFFICES CLOSED

Ottawa, October 31.—Post offices to the total number of 545 have been closed throughout the Dominion of Canada since August 1930, according to information given in the House of Commons. Of this total number, 110 were closed in the province of Nova Scotia and 118 in Quebec. During the same period, 278 new post offices were established.

Rev. Hector Mount Goes to Foster, Que.

Closing a quarter century's ministry at St. Marks Church, Longueuil, a month ago, Rev. H. Mount has now been appointed to the Parish of Foster.

BIBLE SOCIETY'S ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in the United Church, on Sunday evening last, when the Rev. Geo. A. McLellan, B.A., gave an interesting illustrated address on the work of the Society and told of the splendid growth and progress made. It was most encouraging that in these times of general depression our collectors were able to report receipts amounting to $204.18; in addition $9.91 was taken at the Church offering.

Election of officers for ensuing year was then held, as follows:—Thos. Barron, President; R. A. Giles, Vice-Pres.; Mrs. Robt. McFaul, Cor-Secretary; J. Skuffham, Treas.; (Deputy, Robt. McFaul's Store.)

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

"THE GREATEST THINGS ARE COMING"

Dear Boys :-

The other day, while I was staying as a guest in one of the largest colleges in this Country of ours, a boy said to me,—What is the good of my working, for when I complete my course I shall never be able to find a job. Then having unburdened himself of this remark he looked the picture of despair.

It comes to me then that there may be many of you who will be thinking along the same lines. If this is so both he and you are entirely mistaken. True it is that unfortunately at the moment, and during the past few years, positions have been very difficult to obtain and this led you all to believe that your future must be terribly uncertain and your present efforts so much waste of time.

Placing for the moment on one side the fact that the acquiring of knowledge is never a waste of time, let us consider another aspect of the situation. A new era is dawning in this old world of ours. Very slowly but none the less surely out of the welter and upheaval of the great world war, new ideas are being born and there is growing up a grander and better spirit which will itself change the whole order of our lives and alter the situation of the world generally.

How I envy you, who are between the ages of 12 and 17 years. By the time you have finished your school period this great country in which you live will, without doubt, be on the crest of a wave of genuine prosperity and there will be opening up for you the most wonderful and glorious possibilities. But you must be ready to meet him. Dismiss the hope from your minds that in the future you will secure work by influence, or as some people would call it "pull" for this will not be so. The old days, when a boy was pushed into a safe and good paying job because his father, or some other relative, desired him to be there, are gone. Every boy in the days to come will have to prove his character and ability before he can obtain a position and hold it afterwards. If he can do this there will be no unfair competition for him to meet and if he fails there will be no one to blame for such a disaster but himself.

The greatest things are coming. So if you are to have your share of them then you must be prepared to work and work hard during the next three or four years to fit yourselves, not unworthily, to occupy the positions that will be thrown open to you.

Don't be discouraged for I believe and know that you can win out well if only you will cultivate the will to do it.

A greatly beloved and famous University Principal said to me the other day. "Tell all the boys you meet and write to that there is an outstanding future for them if they will only work for it. Make them shut their ears to the talk of those who would fail anyway and urge them to bravely look forward to the years ahead with confidence in themselves and in their Country. Canada will have a great need of all her sons and their abilities."

This is a clarion call and I pass it on to you with the hope that in these days of preparation you will not be lacking in effort so that later on you may all enter with honour into your very real inheritance.

God bless you dear boys and never forget, as you go gaily to your lessons my prayers and sincere good wishes go with you.

The Greatest Things are Coming.

Ever your affectionate friend,

THE CAPTAIN.

Mystery Island

By Capt. O. J. Aldom.

Chapter 24.

From the moment that Jack had started on his perilous adventure through the port hole the other occupants of the cabin had been in a state of extreme anxiety. No word was spoken but all were on the alert, hoping that the adventurous boy would be successful in his efforts, and, that by some measure of luck he would be able, with the help of the engineer, to divert the attentions of the mutineers.

Then had come the stopping of the engines which only added to their perplexity, though indeed the work of repelling the second attack of Pedro and his companions had so occupied their minds that this event and its possible result was only thought about afterwards. Now had come quietness during which the members of the little group looked at each other with unspoken questions in their eyes.

It was Babs, the youngest of them all, who broke the intense silence. "What's that noise?" she asked fearfully. "And tell me, where is Jack?" Mr. Williams rose and laid down his rifle, which he had been nursing on his knee, and strode to the port hole which was still open.

"My word!" he exclaimed looking back over his shoulder, "I believe we are at anchor. Yes it is so," he added after a further look through the opening. "By some miracle we have arrived at an island and those villains are lowering a boat. Come here, sir," he went on addressing Capt. Pat. "and see yourself."

The Commander complied followed by the others and indeed it was a curious sight upon which they all gazed. Two of the ship's boats, fully manned, had been lowered and were rapidly pulling away towards the shore.

"I believe," continued the Chief, "that the rascals have deserted the vessel, though what Pedro's plan can be for an act like that is quite beyond me."

For the first time since their troubles began the Commander gave vent to one of his characteristic chuckles. "Well, well," he said joyfully. "Whatever the reason we have cause to be thankful for the respite and now if only Jack and McGowan would return we might be able to do something really worth the while."

The words had hardly left his lips when a hurried though quiet knock came on the cabin door, followed by a tense whisper. "Open, open quickly!" it was Jack's voice and there was no mistaking the urgency of his tone, though it was blended with excitement as well.

Robins, the Bo'sun, opened the door and let him in closely and silently followed by the engineer and at once the boy turned to his uncle.

"They have all gone, sir! The ship is deserted and we are anchored by an island. What does it all mean?" he blurted out excitedly. The Commander smiled at him, a look of great relief on his face. "Upon my word I can't tell you," he said in reply "but it's good to see both you and McGowan here. Did you stop the engines?" he added turning to the latter.

"Aye sir, I did that, hoping those varmint would come and make terms, though of course I knew nothing whatever about an island" was the grim answer.

Babs had at once rushed up to her brother and flung her arms about his neck. "Oh, Bubbles" she whispered brokenly, "I

GREETINGS FROM AUNT JEAN

(A Column for the Children)

Here comes your Auntie Jean, Dear little girls, and little boys, I hope you all have happy hearts (And hands and faces clean!)

I know you all 'loved Auntie Di, And Auntie Di loved you; But, please remember, Little Folks, That Aunt Jean loves you too.

That's why I'm coming on this page, With stories short and long, Perhaps we'll have some riddles too, And little tales in song.

You know that in this great big world, We all have work to do, Yes little girls and little boys, And little seeds have, too.

So, Children, that is why I am going to tell you next week the tale of—THE LITTLE SEED.

HALLOWE'EN REGRETS

Dear Girls and Boys

—Are'nt you sorry that The Hallowe'en Queen is very cross!

Some little folks were bad,— They played some very naughty tricks, Oh dear! Oh dear! how sad.

The Queen she says that Hallowe'en Is just a time for fun—

Not playing nasty tricks on folks, Who, them, no harm have done.

She says "Now dears, when next year comes Play all the tricks you can, But let them be all kind and good,—

AUNT JEAN TRIES SOME HALLOWE'EN TRICKS

I hadna sae muckle sense aifter a', fer in a few meenits a' was studying the wee bookie again tae see what tae try next. Gang doon the cellar backwards wi' a looking-glass in yere haund, and yere future husband wull come and look over your shoulder, it said. "Humph," says I, fer the wund was souging and sighing amang the dead leaves on tha apple tree forment the door, rattlin' them thegither like deid men's bones scrapin' agin each ither, and there was a whustlin in the chimney that wud fair make ye shiver. I wud hae gein up right then and there, but the thought o' Tibbie nettled me. She'd lauch at me if she iver found out I hadna spunk tae finish what I staired; so I got a haund mirror frae the best bedroom and staired cautiously down backwards. I steppit mighty canny fer I kent if I fell the speerit o' ma future husband wud hardly be likely tae pick me up. "This trick isna what it's cracked up tae be," says I and wi' that I missed a step and doon I went crash again a bucket o' saft soap and japped it over. I was up, and up the stair afore ye could say Jock Robinson. I didna wait tae see if ma future husband came or no. "He'll be apt tae be a slippery customer if he does," says I tae mysel, "gin he gits through a' that soap!" It was a' ma ain fault tae, I minded then that I had juist taen it doon the stair that morn when I heard the meenister chappin at the door. "Weel, that's anither failure," says I. "Noo what comes next?" I locket tae see, and this is whut I read—"Gang oot and look at the mune over yere left shoulder and see wha'll come and staud at yere side." Cold chills rin doon yin side o' ma back, and up the ither, at the thacht o' it. "Deed," says I and I'll dae nae such thing, whae iver is waiten oot there fer me can juist wait till morn, I am no pittin ma nose oot o' this hoose the nicht. I'll juist eat ma wee salt cake, and gang tae ma bed."

As I crept intae ma bed, I chuck'et tae mysel, "Jean Chalmers, ma wumman," said I, "Fer a wumman whae's no thinkin o' mairryin again, yere unco curious!"

I didna chuckle lang tho. I staired tae burn up inside, at least I thoct a' was burnin up. I niver pit in such a nicht in a' ma life, niver! I'll mind it as lang as I live. I was just on the point o' rising and gaun doon the stair tae the kitchin sink fer a drink when sime terrible ongauns began at the bottom o' the stair. Such a like noise had niver been heard in ma peacefu' domain afore. I was fair deevied wi' it, and was gitten the blankets ower ma heid as fast as I could, when I heard auld Tam gie a skirl across the floor. Richt tae the foot o' the stair he came, then there was mair noise. At last I made oot what it was. I up and grabbed ma curlin' tongs, and awa doon the stair tae help him. As I was near the bottom I chuck'et tae mysel and said "If I havena caught a mon, at least I hae caught a rat," and glad was I o' it tae, fer the reevin Philistine had been mair nor destroyin things in ma pantry fer quite a while noo, in spite o' seeven traps. But Tam had him be the throat, an twa o' the traps had him by different places forby. I maun hae a haund in it tae, sasy I, and awa tae the wood box fer a wee bit stick. I tappit him over the heid yince, "That's for ma cheese," said I—"and this one is fer the fruit cake I had fer the meenister's tea and couldna use, because ye had it a' chewed." By that time we had him beyond carin much, sae I took him oot o' the trap and laid him by the fireplace saying "Noo Tam, dinna eat him till the morn."—For I was still burnin inwardly, like twere the indigestion, sae I ga'd tae the cupboard and took a guide stiff dose o' castor oil. It's gey healin' fer burns, ye ken. As I ga'd by the wundy tae the stair I keeked oot. There was a light in Tibbie's hoose up stairs and doon. "Either Donald or Tibbie must be sick," says I. "It's a wonder they havena come fer me." I found oot after why and I'll tell ye it some ither time maybe.

I waited awhile thinkin that some o' them would be ower after me but naeboddy came sae I went tae ma bed again, and after a wee while I went tae sleep but I had better hae kept awake fer I dreamed and dreamed a' the nicht, and sic a dream! I dreamed I was walkin up the church steps wi' a new red rose in ma bunnet, and auld Chairlie Grant hirplin alang be the side o' me. . . . And nae mair Hallowe'en tricks fer me. They're the deil's ain!

The word hirplin means limping deevied means deafened.
drappin means knocking.

once" said Capt. Pat. "All of us will carry our rifles and use them if necessary, though for myself I believe every jack man has gone ashore. Anyway we will see and maybe follow their example. If the ship is no good to them it is equally no good to us. We can't sail the ship without them any more than they can without us, though it comes to me that perhaps we could. However that point can be settled later. All hands on deck and go carefully."

Very cautiously this order was obeyed and their emergence from the cabin met with no opposition. Indeed except for themselves, the whole ship was devoid of human life and as still and mysteriously silent as was the night that surrounded them.

ROGERS RADIO

Symphonic TONE

is better!

ROGERS Symphonic Tone Radio opens up new resources of pleasure—brings you for the first time the full tide of tonal beauty. Formerly radio receivers reproduced only a part of the musical scale. Now, in Rogers Symphonic Tone Radio, all the color, depth and meaning of music, kept out in former years, is released.

Three modern developments make Symphonic Tone possible: Twin-Speakers, synchronized for exact reproduction of every note in the musical scale; New-type Rogers Tubes that increase power and sensitivity and protect tone clarity; Spray Shielding that banishes rattling and tinniness, improves selectivity, range and tone and lengthens tube life.

Only in Rogers can you get these three developments which produce Symphonic Tone. Only in Rogers can you obtain a new thrilling radio reception never available before.

MODEL 850. The new Symphonic Tone Rogers Radio—Twin-Speakers, New-type Rogers Tubes, Spray-Shielding, 8 Tubes, Full Range Tone Control, Advanced Automatic Volume Control. honour, as he expressed it, of being allowed to share in the communion service, for the first time partaking of communion in another church than his own, and with people of other denominations. He also told of a conference he expected to attend with the Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, of Montreal, on the side of union.

Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P., was the speaker of the evening, pointing out that there were two great factions working against prohibition: those who have liquor to sell and those who have an appetite for it and wish to be able to obtain it easily. Miss McPhail said those two groups were spending money to draw the people to their way of thinking, and that the heaviest blow which had been dealt the province of Ontario recently was the granting of what was commonly called "liquor control", but what she considered in truth was "liquor control of government".

"Just why is it?" asked Miss McPhail, "that people are willing to be controlled in so many ways! Take for instance traffic lights, the matter of clothing and many other instances; yet we raise a howl about personal liberties when the question of prohibition is brought up! Surely we are not against curtailing the liberties of the individual when that same act safeguards the rights and lives of the mass of the people? This age is one in which we need our full mentality, and that in full working order. And these cannot be obtained if our minds are the minds of drunkards and drug addicts.

Rev. N. Rawson, of St. James United Church, who was the speaker for the next evening, spoke along much the same lines, adding that he yielded to none in his devotion to the temperance cause, that he had been in the fight since a boy of 16, and had never been out of it. He encouraged the workers to keep on in their fight and spoke of the blessings that must follow such a convention as this was.

Miss Mabel Fetterley had charge of this meeting and gave a wonderful report of the work of the Y. P. B., also presenting the banner and cup to Ives Young People. Miss McDonnell recited the beautiful poem about the cobbler who expected His Master to visit him that day, but no one came but beggars, all of whom he helped in some way; and when night came he asked His Master if he had forgotten this was the day? And he received the reply that three times he had been to the cobbler's door and each time the cobbler had not failed him. He had come as the lame, the sick, and the needy, and in each case had been ministered unto.

On Wednesday morning Mrs. W. Usher, of Cushing, conducted the devotionals, taking as her subject "The Power of Prayer". The afternoon devotionals were in charge of Mrs. A. Graham, of Cushing, whose subject was "Home Influence." Mrs. Dougal of Montreal, had the devotional period on Thursday morning. "Take time to be holy" was her message.

The United Church choir, also Mrs. Reese, of Athelstan, Mrs. W. W. Robertson and Mrs. Morley Pope, of Montreal, favored with solos, duets and anthems, as well as Mrs. Jamison, and Mr. Long, of Aylmer. Mrs. Meredith, wife of the Rev. E. Meredith, of the Presbyterian Church, who was the head of the billenting committee, also accompanied several of the soloists on the pipe organ. Mrs. H. B. Hudson, of Aylmer, was honored by being made a World's life member. Mrs. Gillian, also of Aylmer, and Mrs. H. Wilson, president, were made Provincial life members. A beautiful memorial service was conducted by Mrs. Maclean, of Cushing, for those called to higher service using 34 white dahlias for all of members except Mrs. A. Gordon, who was honored by the representation of a white chrysanthemum instead. Members of Mrs. Gordon's immediate family were on the platform during this ceremony.

On Wednesday afternoon those ladies who wished to be shown the beauties of Aylmer and surrounding district, were treated to an automobile drive.

Rev. E. Coddling and Rev. G. Mossip had charge of the communion service, and the Revs. Stafford, Meredith and Allan were speakers during the dinner and tea hours.

An invitation was extended from the Hochelaga Union to hold the mid-winter conference at the Y.W.C.A., with their union as hostesses. This was gladly accepted; a final "God be with you till we meet again", was sung and the Convention dispersed, fully determined to keep up the fight in the interests of our little ones, and realizing that:

God never meant the little buds To wither and decay,
Through cankering worms that sear their hearts
Preventing bloom-display.
God never meant the little ones To grow to man's estate
Their souls besmirched with drunken deeds
That bar from Heaven's gate.
He meant both bud and child to grow
According to His plan,
The bud to form a perfect crown
The child, a perfect man.

LOTS OF BRITISH CAPITAL FOR INVESTMENT IN DOMINION

"There is all the money in the world in the London market, which has again become the financial center of the world, for the Dominion of Canada. After the Imperial Economic Conference the eyes of Great Britain were turned with a click to this Dominion as a field for financial investment." This was the opinion expressed by W. F. Stephenson, London, England, director of the Electric and General Industrial Trusts Ltd., in an interview at Ottawa recently.

Mr. Stephenson is the first of the financial experts to come to Canada to investigate the financial investment possibilities arising out of the trade pacts entered into during the conference.

"There was a time when Canada felt that it was much easier to obtain loans from across the border. Canada said 'we go over to Great Britain and tell our story and they pay no attention to us.' That condition no doubt at one time obtained, but it no longer does. Canada can find an easier, and more willing market at a lower rate of interest at the present time in Great Britain than she can in the United States.

"I came over here to obtain some cheerfulness and optimism, and I have certainly succeeded. I believe that Canadians don't know how fortunate they are. Conditions in this country are perhaps the best of anywhere in the world. Upon a percentage basis of population your unemployment is comparatively small, and there is reason to believe that when world conditions commence the upturn, Canada may be the first to recover," asserted Mr. Stephenson.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

The Montreal City Council last week addressed a request to Provincial authorities to adopt the Dominion plan of old age pension. Premier Taschereau's reply was in the form of a question as to where the money was to come from. Premier Taschereau should be answering instead of asking questions in regard to these old age pensions. The first one is, why is Quebec the only province in Canada in which nothing whatever has been done toward obtaining old age pensions? At the present time the Provinces of Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, as well as the Northwest Territories, have old age pensions in effect. The Provinces of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have passed all the necessary legislation and only need to proclaim the Act to put it into operation. Only Quebec has failed to do anything on this question. While Premier Taschereau boasts of Quebec's superior financial position, it hardly sounds good to hear him ask where the money is coming from to do what all the other provinces are doing. There are at present in the five provinces and the Territories, who are paying old age pensions, 67,309 persons receiving them. The average pension is $19 per month and the Dominion Government pays 75% of it. On the basis of population and the above figures it would probably cost the Province of Quebec about $17,000 a year to give these needy old people this small pension, which is very little more than the yearly salary of Premier Taschereau. We are very sure that this sum could easily be saved in many departments of the government and the proportion of hardship to the government would be infinitesimal compared to what $19 a month would mean to many of our needy old people.

(—Granby Leader.)

ST. MUNGO'S ANNUAL TEA MEETING

Those who did not attend St. Mungo's Annual Tea-meeting missed not one treat but several of them, judging from the compliments paid the ladies on the splendid supper served, and the remarks on the merits of the programme. Mrs. W. Dewar's singing was much enjoyed; her voice is not only very sweet, but very clear, every word being so plainly stressed; Mrs. H. Crooks, of Grenville, accompanied her. The Brownsburg Quartette, old favorites with the Cushing people, were also much appreciated, as well as the young friend they so kindly brought with them, Norman Bourne, a member of one of the famous boys' choirs that toured Canada very recently from England, and not very long ago. The quartette from Brownsburg comprised Messrs. Anderson, Hazel, Osgoode and Pasco. They were accompanied by Miss E. Reid, also of Brownsburg.

Mrs. J. Beattie by special request favored with a delightfully humorous Irish selection, and Miss Irene Swim, of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, told the story of a little boy who printed hand bills announcing his sister's marriage, thus hoping to surprise the family. He did—but not so delightfully as he had hoped! Responding to an encore, Miss Swim very humorously told of the versatile Frenchman who sold flea powder! She favored later during the evening with one of Pauline Johnson's beautiful legends.

The Rev. Rosborough, of Lachute, Rev. Macaskill, of St. Andrews East, gave short addresses which were much appreciated and Keith Canning, of Stonefield, recited "The Youth of the World" most effectively, so that one of the visiting ministers directed him to the pastor's attention as a promising speaker and a candidate for the ministry.

A CORRECTION

Relative to an accident reported in last week's Watchman, Mr. J. K. MacKimmie, North River, has handed us the following communication:

"I wish to alter a statement which appeared in last week's issue. I have witnessed that J. K. MacKimmie was driving his team of horses on the right hand side of the road, opposite Jollie's store, on Foundry St., when the car driven by P. Lefebvre crashed into him, injuring the left hand horse so badly, that Constable Gagné shot it. The other horse was also injured.

"Lefebvre was driving a Dodge car, not an Essex as stated."

"SYMPHONIC TONE" NEW RADIO STEP

Rogers-Majestic Head Announces Revolutionary Reception Improvement.

A new radio term which in itself combines the significance of a number of distinct engineering advances has just been announced by Mr. E. S. Rogers president of Rogers-Majestic Corporation Limited, the man who made possible batteryless radio reception.

"In 'Symphonic Tone,'" said Mr. Rogers, "we believe we have the nearest approach to veritable reproduction that science has as yet produced. 'Symphonic Tone' is the name given to the clear, mellow result of the finely balanced relating of several new radio inventions. It is exemplified in the newest Rogers radio models. While it owes much of its perfection to the use of twin speakers, it is also the product of such forward steps as spray shielding and the new Rogers tubes themselves."

In referring to twin speakers Mr. Rogers explained that the two speakers used were adjusted so that one speaker reached further down the musical scale than was possible before, in order to catch all the low notes, while the other speaker corresponding was adjusted for the highest notes, heretofore incapable of being faithfully reproduced. The new speakers are so balanced as to produce an almost flat audio-frequency response curve. Fidelity of tone results.

A complete new set of fully-guaranteed tubes contributes its part to 'Symphonic Tone.' These tubes are different in design and improved in function. By the rattling shielding cans are eliminated and the life of the tube prolonged.

These features, combined with several other new engineering triumphs such as improved class 'B' amplification, unite to produce the result exclusive to the Rogers radio. In "Symphonic Tone" the manufacturers claim to have developed radio to an

MORIN HEIGHTS

Under auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church a most enjoyable Hallowe'en Masquerade, at which over 100 persons gathered, was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Watchorn, on Saturday night, the 29th. of October. The rooms were very suitably decorated and the costumes many and varied, including Harlequin, Period, and various National types. Under the direction of Miss Grace Seale and Mrs. H. A. Paquette old-fashioned games were played by the young and those desiring to be young. All voted they had enjoyed a delightful time and the ladies were gratified with the financial results.

Mrs. Moore and Miss Kelly spent last week and Mr. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Roberts spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson.

Mr. J. Tucker, Mr. D. Tucker, Mr. H. Tucker, Mr. C. Seale, and Mr. M. Armitage, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the "Tucker Cottage." Mr. Fred Tucker, who is a patient at the Royal Victoria Hospital, having suffered injuries to his spine during a rugby match in September, is reported to be doing as well as may be expected. He is still being kept in plaster, and it is expected that he will not be able to leave the hospital for at least a couple months.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Greene are visiting friends in Montreal.

The meeting of the Swastika Group, held last Friday evening in the basement of the United Church, took the form of a Hallowe'en Party with each member inviting a friend. The church was decorated with witches, black cats, and lighted pumpkins. Games were played and fortunes told, and after refreshments had been served the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the Good Night Song, "Taps."

Miss V. Murdoch was a week-end guest at the home of Miss A. Seale.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Seale, Miss G. Seale and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Paquette, spent Wednesday evening last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Buxton, Mille Isles, where Bridge was played at three tables.

AYERS LIMITED AT BASEBALL

Ayers' Baseball Team closed its season in a game with the A.A.A., of Sault, which resulted in a draw 10-10. A drawing for a toilet set was won by Mr. M. St. Jacques, with ticket No. 247. The Committee comprising F. Sanford, Pres.; A. St. Jacques, Vice-Pres.; C. Larocque, Sec.; Jos. Rochon, Mgr.; J. R. McDonald, Capt.; and also the players, wish to thank the public for their support and hope for a season in 1933, when they expect to come back stronger than ever.

The team was composed of A. Patry, N. Patry, R. Patry, M. Langille, P. Joly, H. Joly, E. Joly, F. Williams, O. Racine, O. Mallette, R. Robert and G. Poulin. Appreciation is also due to the umpire, Mr. C. Barker, for his duties during the season, rendered with true judgment to home and visiting teams alike.

LAKEFIELD

Rev. Dr. George McLennan gave a most interesting illustrated address on the work of the Bible Society, in Holy Trinity Church on Monday evening. During his stay in this part he was a visitor at the Anglican parsonage. The Ven. Archdeacon Overing was also in Lakefield recently and assisted at the services in Shrewsbury and Lakefield last Sunday.

Most of the summer residences are closed for the season, with the exception of an occasional visit by hunting parties. Several of our local young men report successful expeditions after deer.

On account of the absence of the Rev. Allan E. Mount there will not be any services in the parish on Sunday, Nov. 6th.

Mrs. Williamson's visitors over the week-end included Lieut.-Col. D. W. Beaubier, M.P., for Brandon, and sister, Miss L. Beaubier, Mrs. Nash, of Ottawa, and Mrs. R. Coleman, Montreal.

Miss Mary Williamson is in tend the coming-out dance of the city this week and will at Miss Monica Lyman, daughter of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Walter E. Lyman. Mrs. Williamson will be present at the reception given by St. Stephen's Church, Westmount, following the Induction ceremony of the Rev. H. S. Lewis, as Rector.

LINGUISTIC OBSTACLES OVERCOME

One of the wonders of modern travel is the case of pretty Mrs. Fong Shee, formerly of Soi Ping, Kwang Tung, China, who crossed the Pacific Ocean and proceeded by Canadian National train to join her husband in Hartford, Conn. Miss Margaret McNeill, returned to her home in Ormstown on Wednesday, after spending the past three weeks with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamilton and Miss Hamilton were in Howick, this week, the guests of Miss Mary Holmes, who gave a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Elliot, the latter formerly Miss Lyle Holmes.

A very successful afternoon Tea, Sale of Home Cooking and Fancy articles, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Lachute United Church, was held on Saturday, afternoon. The proceeds amounted to upwards of $350.

A rich fortune was not the luck of Mr. Jos. Moldowan as reported last week. A check arrived to the tune of $134.66 as his share of the Cambridgeshire Sweepstake, held on Oct. 26th., 1932. Not a bad return however, for a $1.00 ticket.

Those attending the Calder-McQuat wedding from a distance were Dr. and Mrs. John Calder, of Brantford; Mr. Harold Calder, of Quebec; Mr. Cameron McQuat, of Fort Shore; Mich., and Mrs. Lyall Middleton, of New Hampshire.

Messrs. Herbie Gordon, Douglas Smith, and Douglas Todd, and the Misses Gertrude McMahon and Ruth Todd were in Ormstown over the week-end attending the third annual conference of the Young People's Society, of the United Churches of Canada.

Miss McCain, of Macdonald College, Supt. of Quebec Women's Institutes plans to visit the nine institutes of this county, beginning Nov. 7th. She will be with the Lachute Branch on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 8th, when she will speak on the subject "Selection and Planning of Meals."

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Berry, of Hill Head, on Sunday were, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Priestly and son Douglas, the Misses Lena, Annie and Marion Nowell, of Verdun. Returning they were accompanied by Mr. L. Nowell, of Verdun, who has spent the past week, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Berry.

The generous gesture of Mr. Jean Fassio in holding two free matinee entertainments at his Rex Theatre for local school children, merits the appreciation of this community in the great pleasure it afforded to our youngsters. The principal reel in last Friday's program, attended en masse by the lower High School grades, was a jungle picture of clean interest and educational value. The boys of the Catholic college were similarly entertained the previous week.

ONE MORE SUCCESS RECIPE

T. D. writes with regard to a joke recently printed: "The threat of the merchant to an employee who had asked for a raise that if he wasn't careful he would be made a partner, and so get nothing, recalled to my mind a bit of advice once given by a successful man: 'Work faithfully for eight hours a day, and don't worry, and in time you may become a boss, and work twelve hours a day and have all the worry.'"—Boston transcript.

SCOTLAND AND THE IMPERIAL PACT

Scots in Canada will welcome the news that Bag Pipes are to be imported free of duty under the terms of the Economic pact at present before the House. But what about other nationalities? will they too be pleased?

One really needs to be a Scot to appreciate another Scot laboriously practicing on the pipes and even then, mon, its verra trying . . . very trying. If it was not for national pride which makes the Scotsman suffer anything for his native health . . . well, it is best not to go into that, as the laddies frae auld Scotia are reputedly violent when really roused.

There is nothing more stirring to human blood than to march to the skirl of the pipes with kilt a' swinging and chest out. It is then that a true Scot really feels his heritage bred and fostered through a long line of fighting ancestors . . . but we have heard more pleasing things than an amateur practising in a back room. That, too rouses the fighting blood, but in a different way.

If everyone who is intending purchasing a set of pipes on the new cheap rate were made to go out in the wilderness until they had actually learned to blow a tune, we would welcome the new treaty. As it is, even the benefits to Canadian trade are not nearly sufficient to compensate for the potential menace of cheaper bagpipes. . . .

Making History in Argenteuil

Extracted from files of The Watchman.

50 Years Ago

Friday, Nov. 3rd., 1882.

Owing its origin to Mr. John Newton, a company is now under organization to promote a log slide from Lake Louisa to Lachute.

The Fair yesterday was a failure. We never saw such a poor display. In fact, the only things on the grounds were some miserable ungraded apples, selling at 40c. bushel... no cattle, no horses, no nothing.

Hon. Senator Ogilvie and Thos. Craig, Esq., were here last week in connection with the proposed establishment of a new branch of the Exchange Bank.

Westward Ho! If Lachute folks will take trouble to go West to Brownsburg, they will find goods which have been hitherto unsuccessfully looked for in Lachute.—Farmer's Exchange, Alexander Paul.

Lachute Mills have, for over a quarter of a century, been celebrated for their oatmeal, and they are now likely to win wider fame as Messrs. Fish & Ireland have secured letters patent for "Our National Foods," and have big prospects in the sale of their excellent cereal products.

In consequence of the growing necessity for telegraphic communication between Ontario and Manitoba, the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company, propose laying a submarine cable in Lake Superior, at an estimated cost of $400,000.

25 Years Ago

Friday, Nov. 8th., 1907.

Miss Lila Davis spent the holidays with friends in Ottawa.

Mrs. Thos. Christie entertained at a china shower, and the Misses Walker entertained at tea, in honor of Miss Edna McOuatt.

The many friends of Mr. Ernest Walker will be sorry to learn that owing to severe illness he has been removed to Montreal for treatment.

Misses Florence and Gladys McGillivray, and Miss Isabel Kearns, spent the holiday in town with the former's parents.

Samuel Rogers, aged 70, was killed by a falling tree on Friday last, at his farm in Lakefield.

Carillon. Miss M. Brophy was a recent visitor to Montreal.

At the Town Council meeting, Mr. Robt. Woods made report of penalties collected by him for impounding cattle, amounting to $2.50. Mr. Henry Lafleur to be furnished lumber to make a box drain on the street at his residence. Mayor Geo. Hay, Councillors Paquette, MacKimmie, Berry, McPaul, McGibbon and Lister, in attendance.

Cushing. Mrs. A. Walford entertained the ladies of the front to a "rag party."

TELL TALE LITTLE THINGS

It is the little things that tell most about us—the way we speak, how we eat, the kind of clothes we buy and the way we wear them, all tell the secrets of our lives. We are judged by the lesser things rather than the greater.

Yesterday seemed to be my day for hearing people judged by small things. A friend was telling me about a woman she had met and she described her as the kind of woman who wore her old party dresses and her high heeled shoes in the morning to work in. What more need be said?

A very capable girl tried to get an office position, but when she applied for it there were deep perspiration marks under her arms and that finished the manager. He would not even consider her. Yet she was an exceptionally capable girl and just the type he needed. Next it was the men.

A gentleman spoke of a man who had worked for him, he said "I thought he was all right until I saw him turn down the corners of a book. Then I watched him, for there is something wrong with anyone who will turn down the corners of a book. Sure enough he turned out to be a crook."

All these offences are little in themselves but are almost unpardonable. We very rightly judge and are judged by the little details which make up the warp and woof of our life.

TEACHING BABIES TO LIKE ORANGE JUICE AND COD LIVER OIL

Changed living conditions make it necessary for the modern baby to get orange juice and cod liver oil as a part of its diet. Most babies are very fond of both of them but occasionally you will hear a mother say that she cannot get her baby to take them. It is very unfortunate for the baby if she allows this condition to occur as it is almost sure to develop rickets in some degree.

The trouble is, that they start with too big a dose. Give a few drops of orange and not more than three drops of cod liver oil the first time. I do not mean to give them at the same time, for never more than one new food at a time should be started. If they take the small dose without protest, give this same amount for three days, then increase it very slightly and give this amount for another three days gradually increasing the amount until you reach the desired dose. Have great patience and take a long time about it, as you will save time and trouble in the end.

If the baby objects to the new food, omit it for a few days, then start again with the few drops. Most likely by allowing the few days to elapse, the baby will have forgotten that it disliked it and will take it without objecting. Never try to force large quantities or a full dose on the baby, but continue giving it those few drops until it becomes accustomed to the taste and eventually it will take it without objection when the quantity may be increased. It requires considerable patience but the end is worth struggling for. Sometimes the orange juice is added to the milk and the baby enjoys it that way.

If your baby has refused these valuable foods and you have given up, start all over again in this way and give the very small quantity and your baby will acquire a taste for them. It is so important that your baby gets them, so do not let it beat you, but use tact and not force. Patience will win the day.

COMMONER FOODS CONTAINING NO VITAMINS

Lard, Olive oil, Margarine, Tea, coffee, cocoa, Canned meats, Meat extracts, Honey, Jam, White flour, Granulated sugar, Custard powders, Egg substitutes.

People who use large quantities of white bread, cakes, pastry, white sugar, lard and jams are apt to suffer for the lack of vitamins.

HERMIT CAKE

3 eggs
1 cup butter
2 1/2 cups flour
1/4 lb. lemon peel
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon soda
1 1/2 cups brown sugar
1 lb. dates
1/4 lb. almonds
2 teaspoons lemon essence.
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Cream butter and sugar, add well beaten eggs and flavorings. Stir in the sifted flour and add almonds, blanched and cut in fairly large pieces, the cut peel and lastly the soda dissolved in 1 tablespoon water. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees.

BAKED CREAM POTATOES

Make creamed potatoes rather moist and add a little finely scraped onion. Put in a moderate oven and bake for about 20 minutes. The baking allows the flavor to mellow and improves the dish considerably.

Little Anna asked her father why he didn't have hair on top of his head. He answered: "For the same reason that grass won't grow on a busy street. You know why, now, don't you?" "Sure," she replied; "It can't get up through concrete."

MAKING A LIVING

Deuteronomy 24:14, 15; Amos 5:6-15; Mark 6:34; Luke 12:13-21; Luke 19:1-26; II Thessalonians 3:6-13; I Timothy 6:6-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. Romans 12:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Idea of Being Rich.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Right Way to Make Money.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Right Ways of Earning Money.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Spirit in Business.

I. Treatment of Hired Servants (Deut. 24:14, 15).

1. Oppression forbidden (v. 14). The man who hires out is usually poor. The employer should not take advantage of his condition.

2. Foreigners to have the same treatment as fellow countrymen (v. 14). Those who fear God will accord the same treatment to foreigners as to their own countrymen.

3. Servants to be promptly paid (v. 15). The laborer was to be paid at the end of the day. The credit system in these times is greatly to be deplored.

II. Ill-Gotten Wealth (Amos 5:11-13).

1. By oppression of the poor (v. 11). The rich built magnificent houses of the proceeds extorted from the poor. They took the bread out of the mouths of the poor by high rents and taxes—a picture of the conditions of our own day. The prophet assured them that God would interpose saying that they built houses and planted vineyards, but they would not be privileged to live in them nor to drink of the wine thereof.

2. By affliction of the just (v. 12). This they did by taking bribes. Many are today living in luxury from the proceeds derived from bribes.

3. By turning aside the poor in the gates (v. 12, 13). Because the poor had no money to hire advocates, they were turned aside. It is difficult today for the poor to get justice in the courts.

III. Jesus, the Carpenter (Mark 6:3).

While Joseph lived, doubtless Jesus assisted him in the carpenter trade. He is therefore known as the carpenter.

IV. The Rich Fool (Luke 12:13-21). Many today are seeking gold and forgetting God. Those who are concerned with getting riches while neglecting God are displaying utter folly. Observe.

1. His increase in goods (v. 16). His riches were rightly obtained, for the ground brought forth plentifully. It is not sinful to be rich. The sin is sometimes in the use made of riches.

2. His perplexities (v. 17). His land was producing more than his barns would hold. He did not know what to do about it. Had he personally held right views of life and a sense of stewardship to God, he would have seen that his barns held enough for himself and a surplus for the poor.

3. His fatal choice (vv. 18, 19). He chose to enlarge his barns and to give up his life to ease and luxury.

4. The awful indictment (vv. 20, 21). God called him a fool. Riches furnish neither contentment in this life nor a guarantee of continuance of life. It is not only foolishness, but madness to forget God while heaping up riches.

V. Reward for Laborer (Luke 10:16-23).

When Christ ascended on high, he gave gifts to men (Eph. 4:7-12). At His return to the earth, He will summon his servants to give an account of their stewardship. He will give rewards for faithfulness (vv. 16-19) and will impose judgment and condemnation upon the faithless.

VI. The Man Who Will Not Work Should Not Eat (II Thess. 3:10).

Growing out of Paul's teaching concerning the coming of the Lord, a tendency to idleness developed at Thessalonica. Earnest attention to present duties is the Scriptural attitude toward the Second Coming of Christ. Those who will not work should not eat. This is the right principle governing all charitable work.

VII. Peril of Working for Money (I Tim. 6:6-11).

Those who are working for money fall into temptation and a snare, and are exposed to many foolish and hurtful lusts. The obligation is to flee these things and follow after righteousness.

No Comfort There

"When a sinner is dying, he finds no comfort in counting the hypocrites in the church."

True Happiness

Happy are they who have learned the art of abiding within the inviolable protection of the eternal God, the shield on which all arrows are bunted, all swords turned aside, all sparks of malice extinguished.

Fountain of Blessing

Change of circumstances should not affect a Christian's joy. He should be independent of life's sorrows and losses. Then he becomes also a fountain of blessing in the world.

CHICKEN SHORTCAKE

2 cups pastry flour
(or 1 1/2 cups of bread flour)
3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
1 egg 1/4 cup water

Sift dry ingredients; add shortening and mix in thoroughly with a steel fork; add beaten egg and sufficient water to make soft dough. Roll or pat out with hands on floured board. Cut out with large floured biscuit cutter, or half fill greased muffin rings which have been placed on greased baking pan. Bake in hot oven at 475° F. about 12 minutes. Split and butter while hot, and fill with hot creamed chicken. Makes 6 shortcakes.

Chicken Shortcake

"I always use and recommend Magic Baking Powder," says Miss Alice Moir, Dietician of one of Montreal's finest apartment-hotel restaurants. "Magic combines efficiency and economy to the highest degree. Besides, it always gives dependable results."

In whole-hearted agreement with Miss Moir, the majority of Canadian dietitians and cookery teachers use Magic exclusively. And 3 out of 4 Canadian housewives use Magic because it gives consistently better baking results.

No wonder Magic outsells all other baking powders combined! Favour your family with Chicken Shortcake—made with Magic as Miss Moir directs. Note its delicate flavour, its feather lightness!

CHAPTER X.—Alan is thrilled to see Joyce again, but she is cool toward him. Continuing the fight, Alan locates the bandit tent on an island. He leaves Bill in charge of the one bandit found there, and he and Buzzard fly back to the Aloaka to try to head off the other bandits. But they have made their raid, killing old Dad Pence, her sole defender, and with Joyce their prisoner are on their way back to the rendezvous.

CHAPTER XI.—Haskell cunningly poisons Superintendent Williamson's mind by his account of Alan's conduct, and feels he is master of the situation. Pedneault, old friend of Baker, tricks Haskell and goes to join Alan with the police launch. Dave MacMillan, broken by his inability to prove his innocence, has committed suicide in his cell at the fort, but Pedneault does not tell Alan.

CHAPTER XII.—Pedneault runs the launch aground, and Alan and "Buzzard" drop down on the bandits. A bullet disables the plane. Alan abandons it, making his way alone, through a heavy rifle fire, to the criminals' lair. He receives several severe wounds, but "gets his men" with the machine gun. Four days later he reaches Endurance. Confronting Haskell, he proves to the satisfaction of Superintendent Williamson, Haskell's incompetence and deceit. His victory is complete. In view of their brilliant work in running down the bandits, his complicity with Featherfoot in "looting" government stores is condoned by their payment for the stuff taken. The big reward for the death or apprehension of the vicious criminals makes this easy.

The Savage did not shoot again just then. The breed was evidently re-reading and lowering his elevation slightly. In the comparative silence, Alan became aware that Buzzard was hoarsely shouting at him. Dimly he heard the pleading frantic yells: "Back away! For God's sake, back away! They'll kill you. Alan! Look across. To your right. Something like cover. . . . Back away, swing over there!"

Sickened by pain and bullet-shock, Alan scooped up a handful of water and dashed it across his eyes, so that he could see. Glancing north, vaguely wondering what cover Buzzard meant, he saw a little reed bed two hundred yards distant. As he glanced at it, he saw that it was dry ground, standing a foot above water. A swan nest there, a huge structure of willow sticks and reeds and tussock heads, almost completely covered it.

Backing off a few dozen yards, he turned the canoe and flung his whole strength into reaching that swan nest. The three bandits, knowing he was hard hit, seeing the wobbly, erratic course of the canoe, came bursting out of the flags with eager shouts to finish him off.

A bullet, striking a few feet short, ricocheted off the water and tore through the prow. Alan laid the Browning down flat on the bottom to keep the precious weapon safe; and thrusting his boot against the jagged hole, he tried to stop the spout of water that was rapidly flooding his craft.

In a hazy way he was conscious that the dreaded Savage was not shooting at him. He was still clear enough of mind to realize there must be some reason, some ominous reason, for that. What was staying that murderous gun?—when he had but a hundred yards to safety. Pausing a second, jerking his head around, he saw the cause. The breed had leaped out of covert, like the others; but had raced up along the flags edge and splashed out into knee-deep water. In deadly range, he intended to end the battle with one magazine of cartridges.

A moment after Alan turned to look, the breed crouched, steadied his rifle and drew aim. Alan ducked down, the bullet screamed over his neck. It had been aimed at his head. By the fraction of a second he had saved his life. The next bullet struck him, burned through his shirt sleeve, tore a gaping fearful wound through the muscles of his fore-arm, and passed in front of his body, three inches from his heart. Knowing that the next bullet would surely kill him, Alan flung himself bodily out of the boat to escape that dreaded rifle. Submerging himself, with the craft between him and the breed, he clutched the gunwale with his shattered and bleeding hand. Pushing the clumsy craft, he started to swim, in a last goaded effort to reach the safety of the tiny islet. A dozen yards farther on, in hip-deep water, a spinning slug struck the middle thwart of the canoe squarely and the frail craft caved in. Grabbing the gun and cartridge webs out of it, Alan flashed a glance at the bandits, rose, and dashed for cover.

Staggering under his heavy burden, with his feet sinking into the quivering muck underfoot, he splashed frantically through the water, throwing all his exhausted strength of body, all his undying strength of heart and will, to those two-score yards. His little haven of safety became dim—a looming red blur seen through a reddish mist. He was struck in the leg; the shock staggered him, he dropped a web of cartridges; but gripping the others tighter, he lurched on.

Nearly blinded, breathing in hoarse gasps, with his great strength ebbing away, he groped and stumbled through those last few yards to the tiny islet, and collapsed there behind the big swan nest.

For a little time, a minute or two, he lay quiet, breathing heavily, fighting down a nausea of pain. Dimly he heard those rifles still snarling at him and heard the sing-song of their bullets whanging overhead and plugging into the mud and dry reeds.

In a vague way he realized that the triumph was his now. If his hands had strength to seize it. If only he could rise up, he could stave the Browning behind this nest and splatter every square inch of the bandit's covert. As he lay there, nearly helpless, fighting for one last flicker of strength to rise and use the machine gun, he heard Buzzard shouting at him across those seven hundred yards. He could not distinguish the frantic words; he thought Buzzard must be trying to hearten him to one more effort. But then he heard Joyce's voice, crying to him. Closer, vibrant with fear, the warning came to him clearly:

"Alan! Alan! He's coming for you! Alan! Stop him. . . . Shoot him!" The panic and terror of her voice roused Alan. He understood that some peril was looming upon him from those bandits. With a great effort he rose to an elbow, drunk with pain, giddy from loss of blood. A few seconds later, he crept on elbows and knees to the water edge and laved his face and managed to tie a kerchief around his forehead wound.

The bandage stopped the blood from running down and blinding him. The cold shock of water drove the nausea away for a little time. Again he heard Joyce crying out to him, but now it was a cry inarticulate, despair-stricken. He cautiously raised his head, and saw the peril that his two friends had tried to rouse him to meet. The huge red-headed leader had seen him collapse helplessly, and was coming across to put a bullet through his brain and seize the machine gun. Slinking back unseen, Alan drew his heavy automatic, slipped the trigger safety, and waited. A few moments later, with his enemy within a dozen paces, he suddenly reared up, up above the shelter, shooting as he rose.

The seven heavy bullets caught the bandit leader in the breast, knocked him over, killed him instantly. Crouching down again behind that pile of willow sticks and reeds, Alan turned to the Browning. Methodically he spread the tripod and planted it firmly and clicked it into its mount. Very carefully he fed in a web of cartridges till it was caught. Rising to one knee then, clasping the spade grip, he cautiously raised his eyes above his shelter.

The breed with the deadly Savage, who had sent three bullets into his body and had drilled Jimmy Montgomery through the heart, was trying to make it back to the flags. Shouting hoarsely, he kept jerking his head around to see what his enemy was doing. Alan swerved the Browning a few degrees, looked down the sights, and his trigger finger tightened. . . . The breed stumbled as that ball of death caught him—stumbled and flung up his arms and pitched face-down in the ankle-deep water.

Releasing for a moment, Alan trained the Browning on that clump of flags where two rifles were still screaming at him; and when he had determined his concentration, the Browning went into play again. Methodically, the gun drumming out its message of death, he swept the clump from end to end, spraying it with bullets, mowing down the flags, splattering the bandits' hiding with a raking, slow-weaving fire.

There in the flags a figure leaped up and blindly tried to escape. Alan swung upon it, the figure vanished, there was a thrashing for a moment among the reeds. To the right a single rifle still held out, shooting at him. He located the spot and poured a storm of bullets into it. . . . With a shrill yell a small wiry man sprang up, flung his gun spasmodically into the air, doubled up limply and sank down in the flags and muck.

Alan stood up then. He thought to swim across and get one of those canoes and go after Joyce. But he had not the strength. The nausea was overpowering him again; his wounds had bled him weak, and the pain of them sickened him. Staggering from the fearful reaction setting in, he sat down on the swan nest, with his world swimming in front of him and all his senses reeling.

It was four days later that those who waited at Fort Endurance learned what had happened northeast in the Land of Many Waters.

One evening at sunset an airplane came swinging around the timbered headland down the Mackenzie. Flying low, just over the water, it veered in toward the steamer landing, touched lightly, skimmed the wavelets, and taxied close in.

As an excited group began gathering at the wharf, the scarlet-and-gold police launch hove in sight around the headland and bore on toward the post. The two craft manifestly had timed themselves to come in together.

Three Indian canoes darted out to tow the plane in to the landing. Father Claverly had come down the terrace and stood a little apart, quietly watching with observant eyes. Haskell and Williamson had come down; and Elizabeth Spaulding, slipping through the crowd, was trying to edge up near the pier-heads, to be the first to greet Alan Baker.

As the launch drew close, the crowd saw it carried four men. When it nosed alongside, they recognized Pedneault and Bill Hardsock, muddled, unshaven; and Alan Baker, a bandage around his head, his left hand wrapped in surgical dressing, his left arm in a sling. The fourth man was some outlandish individual of yellowish complexion and almond eyes, with his right arm carefully splinted and bandaged.

The freightage that the launch carried—a machine gun and clutter of rifles, a half dozen bales of peltry worth a small fortune each bale, shovels and corded packs, and five stout leather pouches sewn with rawhide in the prospector fashion—the mere sight of that cargo drew a gasp from the crowd and brought them edging up close.

Joyce had come with Buzzard in the plane. As she unslipped her safety belt and stood up, she was remembering her last time here at Endurance, when her father was still alive. It seemed a heartless irony of fate that he had died just when his innocence had been proved. Small comfort to know that his name and memory were cleared of guilt. As she thought of him lying dead at Resolution and of the tragic duty calling her there, she was glad that tonight a steamer was coming past and she would leave this North.

By the time she and Buzzard had skiffed ashore, Alan had stepped out upon the planking. In another moment she saw Elizabeth elbow her way through the group pressing around Alan. A gust of emotion—jealousy, scorn, anger—swept across Joyce's pretty face as she watched Elizabeth's greeting. It was stagey, it was all artificial. Elizabeth's gladness at his return and her sympathy over his wounds were effusive and contemptible. Joyce could not help thinking of herself swimming across to Alan at the swan nest, and of the compassion that tore at her when she found him there, wounded, bleeding, half unconscious. She felt she had known more real sympathy in those moments than Elizabeth would feel in her whole life. A fierce jealousy, a jealous proprietorship, surged through her. Alan had got those wounds fighting for her; she had dressed them and taken him to her home, and she had nursed him through those long hours of feverish pain.

Haskell came shoving his way out to the wharf edge. "Hardsock, you and Pedneault are under arrest!"

Bill scarcely glanced up at him. Muddled and haggard from two days of shovel work cutting a channel to refloat the big launch, he and Pedneault continued tossing the pouches and fur bales out upon the planking.

BROWNSBURG
Mrs. W. Dorvan and Mrs. Enlow spent Saturday last in Montreal.

Miss Eileen McGibbon entertained at a Bridge Party on Wednesday evening.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cameron and Mr. and Mrs. Hagar attended the funeral of Dr. C. Kennell, at Ottawa.

Messrs. Sydney Stilwell and Frank McGibbon were among the lucky hunters, having brought home a fine big deer.

Mrs. Leonard Wilson entertained a number of the United Church Auxiliary ladies to a quilting, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Lemuel Wilson entertained at a Kitchen Shower last Friday evening, in honor of Miss Mills, whose marriage to Mr. H. Fletcher takes place shortly.

The fine weather and open season tempted many hunters to the lake and mountain country last week. Several returned with deer loaded on their cars, and many more with a "bag" of Partridge.

Monday being Hallowe'en, many and varied were the costumes appearing in the streets. A jolly time was experienced by the kiddies and a rather more mischievous evening by some of the older ones!

Mr. Lloyd Muir, of the Sherwin-Williams Co., Montreal, was the guest of his parents on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox and little son left for Beauharnois last week, after spending three months here.

Mrs. James MacKell and Mr. John MacKell, of Howick, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ballantyne on Friday last.

Miss Mary Walsh, Miss Tena Walsh, Mrs. C. W. Lamb, also Miss Annie Dewar, motored to Montreal on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman McGregor returned to Montreal last week, after spending a number of months at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Layton Yorke, of Montreal, Nurse Patricia Wilson and Mr. Wilson Larmonth spent the week-end in St. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Todd motored to Montreal last Thursday to see their son Stuart, who is in the Montreal General Hospital. They were accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Hamilton.

The Y. P. C. of the Presbyterian Church held their annual Hallowe'en party in the Church Hall, on Tuesday evening, when the young men of the club provided the refreshments and the programme.

The congregation of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church have received a splendid carpet, the gift of Mrs. Philip Seipp, of New York. This gift adds very materially to the appearance of the Church, the tone of the organ, and the comfort of the worshippers.

The Reading Circle met last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pitcairn. Mr. Rackstraw gave a very interesting paper on the symbolism of Fairy Tales. The next meeting will be held on Nov. 10, when a paper on the Hay River District will be given by Miss Gladys Booy.

An exhibition of moving pictures will be given by Miss Mildred Douglas, of Montreal, in the United Church Hall Friday night, Nov. 4th., at 8 p.m. These pictures are chiefly of Canadian scenes including views of St. Andrews East. All are cordially invited. Silver collection.

The W. A. of the Anglican Church will hold the autumn Thank-Offering meeting at the home of the Misses Pitcairn on Wednesday, Nov. 9th., at 2.30 p.m. Miss Beulah Graham, of the Italian Mission, Montreal, will be the speaker. A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the Cushing group.

CUSHING WEST

Miss Mary E. Byrne spent some weeks in Montreal recently.

Mrs. Usher left on Monday by motor for Alexandria, Ont., to be the guest of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. McLeod.

Mrs. J. Funcheon and daughter Miss Helena Funcheon, have closed their residence at Monalea and returned to the city for the winter.

Miss Rachael Dawson, of Island Brook, Que., who is visiting relatives in this locality is at present the guest of her niece Mrs. C. F. Watson.

Mrs. L. O. Hartley and Mr. Laurence Hartley have returned from Montreal, where they have spent the past few weeks. Mr. Ernest Hartley also spent the week-end here.

Dr. Cushing and Miss Marjorie visited their residence here on Sunday, the Dr. having arrived in Montreal on Saturday from Indianapolis, Ia., where he attended a medical convention.

Mrs. Walter Mann of Stardale was the guest of Mrs. L. C. Cooke over the week-end. Mrs. A. Steele, who arrived recently from Toronto where she has been spending the summer is also visiting with her.

The Municipal Council are to be commended for their action in recently voting a considerable sum for repairs on the road leading to the river and Grenville Canal at Greeces' Point, as the work gives employment to a number of men from the locality and will temporarily, at least lighten the cloud of depression which hangs over the village.

LAKEFIELD

Miss Myrtle Evans is spending a few days in Montreal.

Mrs. Naylor Mount has returned to her home here, after spending a few days in Montreal.

Miss Wilma Evans is spending a few weeks in Montreal, the guest of her brother, Mr. W. S. Andrews.

Sunday guests of Mrs. Thos. McCambly included Mr. & Mrs. W. S. Andrews and family, and Miss W. Evans.

A successful card party was held on Oct. 21st., at the home of Miss M. Sherritt, under the auspices of the W. A. of Holy Trinity Church, and the prizes were won by Miss E. Dawson and Miss N. Boyd, Mr. C. Tomalty and Mr. A. Tomalty.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Andrews spent the week-end at their cottage here, their guests including Mr. and Mrs. F. Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tomlinson Jr., Miss Hazel Evans and J. Paul, J. W. McGillivray and Ross Evans, all of Montreal.

The Late Mrs. John McMeekin

We regret to report the death of Mrs. John McMeekin, of Chatboro, which took place at her home on Monday evening. Mrs. McMeekin, who was 62 years of age, was formerly Margaret Larocque. Before union of the churches she was a faithful attendant at Cushing Methodist Church, but failing health prevented her appearance at the United Church so regularly.

The Rev. J. W. Maclean, of St. Mungo's Church conducted the funeral service, and the remains were taken to Lachute cemetery for interment. Mrs. McMeekin was most notably a home-maker, and leaves to mourn their deep loss her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Hotchkiss and Mrs. Murray, of Montreal, also two sons, Walter, of Calumet, and Gordon, of Magnesite, as well as a number of grandchildren.

Journals Urge Toll System as Solution to Maintenance Proposed Waterways

(From Huntingdon Gleaner)

With the recent opening of the Beauharnois Power, many people have visited the development at one site or another. The greatest attraction seems to have been the canal, which is 3,000 feet wide. The deep waterways channel is on the north side of the canal, and the question arises in the minds of many, when will this canal be used for navigation purposes. That is a question yet unsolved, but which political parties are aiming at, with the people of both countries doubting its wisdom, for both the United States and Canada are so involved over the rail transportation problems, and if the waterways is so extended as contemplated, it means greater opposition to the railways.

A number of papers from the extreme East to the extreme West of Canada are voicing views on the canalization project, and here is what the Orillia Packet-Times has gleaned from the Canadian Press on this important subject.

In spite of these arguments, we have been almost alone in advocating a toll system until recently, when the Financial Post has taken the question up, and urged that the cost of the new waterway should not be thrown upon the overburdened taxpayer, and the railway problem rendered more acute by further unfair competition. The Financial Post has succeeded in stirring up interest in the subject, in papers as far apart as the Halifax Chronicle and the Calgary Herald. The Halifax paper contends that it is unjust that the Maritimes should pay the cost of canals which are of little advantage to them. The Chronicle also points out that in other countries canals are paying investments. Thus:—

Every boat which passes through the Panama Canal pays on an average a sum more than

Brownburg Motorist Robbed Awaiting Traffic Light

On Friday evening last, while halted at the intersection of Dorchester and Bleury streets awaiting change of the traffic lights, Joseph Malackiet, merchant, Brownburg, was robbed of a parcel on the running board of his car.

With the red light set against him, he stopped his automobile; and happening to look behind, he noticed a parcel containing five winter overcoats had disappeared from the side of the car. He learned later, from a passer-by, that a boy had stolen the parcel while the car was stopped at the intersection.

Mr. Malackiet now favors the old-fashioned eagle-eyed traffic policeman; he has no use for these new-fangled street lights, which cost him a package of goods valued at $104.

Among out-of-town visitors to the metropolis this week, Mr. W. Scott (91½ years young) was probably the most time-honored; Mr. Scott paid a brief visit to the city, and "thought nothing of it."

Damage Awards to Farmers of Beauharnois

Twenty-five Beauharnois County farmers were awarded a total of $24,060 by the Quebec Public Service Commission last week for expropriation of portions of their land by the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company for the erection of giant transmission lines destined to carry the hydro-electric power of the Beauharnois Corporation to the Ontario Hydro Commission in the Province of Ontario.

Presbyterian Church Tea-Meeting a Success

The excellence of the supper served last Friday in the Auditorium, by the Ladies' Aid of Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, was equalled only by the quality of the subsequent program given by Donald McDonald and his Glengarry Orchestra. The bagpipe and violin selections breathed "Caledonia stern and wild" to the last dying note, and met with enthusiastic approval from the large audience.

Deserving of special mention was Miss McDonald, who executed to perfection her solos and accompaniment as pianist, and also the agile sword dancers.

Financial proceeds of the evening, amounting to upwards of $250, were also gratifying to the ladies and sponsors of the event.

Osias Laurin Charged With Arson

Preliminary Inquiry Fixed for November 22nd., at St. Jerome.

Gerard Raymond, Esq., Crown's Attorney.

On information and complaint laid on Friday, Nov. 4th., at the Peace Office, St. Jerome, a warrant was issued to arrest Osias Laurin, former postmaster of St. Philippe d'Argenteuil—and Mr. J. Henri Daoust, High Constable, made the arrest the same day.

Laurin appeared before Mr. J. D. Fournelle, Justice of the Peace, and he was remanded on a bail of five thousand dollars subscribed by M. Guay and E. Bertrand, to ensure his appearance at the preliminary inquiry which was set for November 22, at St. Jerome, district of Terrebonne.

Laurin is charged with having committed the indictable offence of arson, as provided by article 511 of the Criminal Code, by setting fire to his buildings on or about the 19th. of December 1931, at St. Philippe d'Argenteuil, in order to defraud the Insurance Companies sharing the risk of those buildings.

Public Vote on Division of Municipality

Question of Long-Standing Will be Submitted to Referendum

Electorate of Chatham to Ballot on Saturday

At a meeting of the Chatham Municipal Council last Monday it was decided to call a referendum by public vote next Saturday, Nov. 12th., on the question of proposed division of the municipality.

The urge for division into two separate bodies has arisen among tax-payers in the front ranges, and the matter has caused dissension throughout the township. Should the vote on Saturday decide in favor of division, such change will still require approval by the Quebec Municipal Commission.

All taxpayers will vote centrally in a poll located at the school-house, St. Philippe.

Rally of Officers from County Scout Troops

Lachute Troop are Hosts

Keen satisfaction was expressed in the Patrol Leaders' Rally held last Saturday in the Lachute High School, under direction of the provincial Field Secretary, Mr. F. G. Hicks. The event opened at 3 p.m. with Flag-break, and a series of instructive games and pastimes filled a profitable afternoon session.

At 6 p.m. supper was served by the scouts of the 1st. Lachute Troop, fifty-one persons being present. The number included scouts, officers, and members of troop-committees from Weir, Arundel, Brownsburg, St. Andrews and Lachute.

Following the supper, Mr. M. Gall welcomed the out-of-town boys on behalf of the 1st. Lachute Troop, expressing a hope that Lachute would again be selected and a similar district rally staged in the near future. Mr. Gall's remarks were followed by an expression of thanks by Rev. Mr. Phillips, to the boy scouts and officers of Lachute, for their hospitality to the visiting troops. He added that it would be a good thing if such gatherings could be arranged more frequently, in order to foster a co-operative, "get-together" spirit and a better acquaintance between the different scout troops.

Several more scout games were engaged in, pleasantly passing the evening until the Rally closed at 8 p.m. with a sing-song and distribution of prizes to winners of the patrol competitions held throughout the day. Flag-down brought to an end the interesting and successful meet.

SCOUTS WILL RENOVATE TOYS, BOOKS, FOR XMAS

In is announced the 1st. Lachute Troop Boy Scouts will again collect old, discarded toys and books, to be repaired and made up into parcels for poor and needy families at Christmas. Most houses contain a number of such articles, which might well be repaired and give pleasure to less fortunate families.

Any folks who have toys and books to donate for this purpose, may kindly notify members of the local scout troop, who will call and collect them.

Two Hunters Drowned Near St. Jovite

Two men lost their lives and a third one succeeded in making an escape when the canoe in which they were paddling on their way hunting overturned in the Devil River, about five miles north of St. Jovite, on Sunday. The bodies of the drowned men were recovered several hours later by a party of searchers. Dr. Ludger Labelle, coroner for Terrebonne was notified.

The men who were drowned were both of St. Jovite, Joseph Dionne, 43 years of age, for several years garage keeper, and Lucien Gaudreau, 25 years of age, cashier at the local Bank of Montreal. The third member of the hunting party, who succeeded in saving himself, is Eugene Rochon, a butcher.

Dr. Ludger Labelle learned that Dionne, Gaudreau and Rochon were going hunting in the woods across the Devil River. Armed with rifles, shotguns and a supply of cartridges, they procured a canoe and started out at 6.30 this morning. They had gone a distance from shore when one of the occupants made a false movement and the canoe tipped, throwing its occupants into the water.

Dionne and Gaudreau disappeared under the surface of the river, while Rochon managed to grasp hold of the side of the overturned canoe and gradually get to shore, where he summoned aid. Several boats manned by people of St. Jovite went to the scene and a search for the bodies was started. It was only at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon when the two bodies were recovered.

Vankleek Hill Hockey Team Organized. To Form League

The annual meeting of the Vankleek Hill Hockey Club was held last Tuesday evening for re-organization and arranging the season's program. There was a large and representative number of citizens present at the Vankleek Hill Town hall.

An effort is to be made to organize a league with teams from Hawkesbury, Grenville, L'Orignal, and Vankleek Hill, and a meeting of representatives of these different places is to be held, with this end in view.

Canada Remembers

Poppies for Remembrance

There can be no better way of showing remembrance for the war dead than by assisting the living needy war veterans. The Poppy Day campaign will afford every individual an opportunity to make contribution toward this work of reconstruction; and—as in the city—a sale of poppies will be conducted in Lachute tomorrow, when it is trusted every citizen will respond liberally.

Armistice Observance

A ceremony of remembrance will be held in town, to which all citizens are invited. A brief service of song and devotion will be held in Lachute Auditorium at 10.45 a.m. Friday, November 11th. (tomorrow-morning) at which Rev. F. Dyson will give a brief and appropriate address. The people will then adjourn to the neighboring Park, where wreaths will be deposited and fitting rites will be observed by local Boy Scouts and war veterans.

It cannot be too strongly urged—apart from our debt of tribute and remembrance to the dead—that these ceremonies be widely supported and well attended, in order to ensure for Lachute the devout sanctity attaching to this statutory holiday. In this community, Armistice Day is not and shall never be "Just another holiday."

Thoughts on World-Reconstruction

Recent words of the Governor-General, Lord Bessborough, may be taken to heart as fitting this auspicious celebration.

"On Friday," he said, "we shall commemorate the 14th anniversary of the armistice, which brought to an end the years of destruction, 1914 to 1918. It is only right, I think, that whenever this anniversary comes around, we should ask ourselves how far the world has gone towards recovering from that destruction, and how much each one of us has done to help it on."

"The problems of world-reconstruction are naturally so vast that it may seem impossible for the individual to contribute anything towards their solution. I do not hold that view myself, for I believe that it is only by the sum of our own individual efforts that the damage done to the world in those four years can ever be repaired."

"On Friday, for the space of two minutes, the whole Empire will stand in reverent silence, paying homage to the dead, through whose sacrifices victory for our arms was assured."

"There can surely be no more sincere act of remembrance of the dead than an act of service to those of their comrades who are today in need; it is by helping those men and their dependents, and by helping the widows and children of the fallen, that all of you can do something towards the work of reconstruction."

"In past years, the response to the poppy appeal in Canada, and indeed throughout the Empire, has been magnificent; it is my earnest hope that there may be no falling off this year, and that, all over the Dominion, the people of Canada will give the fullest possible measure of help to a cause of such enduring worth."

Wear a Poppy!

For Our Boy Readers

INTO YOUR HANDS.

Dear Boys:

In a few hours after you read these words November the 11th. will be with us.

This is the day that is set aside, in grateful and sacred remembrance of all those who fought in the Great War of 1914-18 and of the many who now sleep in Flanders Fields and in other parts of the world.

It is for this reason that on Friday you will notice a large number of people buying a little poppy and wearing it with solemn pride and sorrow.

There are many things that a man can do for his Country and one of the greatest of them all is to Die for it. The pages of our Empire-story are full of tales that tell of noble deeds and brave endeavour, but none finer than those that took place during the anxious years of the World War.

Fourteen years ago, after four years of bitter fighting between the Nations concerned, the last shot was fired and peace was declared. Since then, and because of the tragic consequences brought about by so terrible a war, it has been determined that such an event shall never take place again. What we have to learn now is that, There are many things that a man can do for his Country, but the greatest of them all is to Live for it.

We are bound to honour all those who died for the land they loved so well, for by that act of supreme self-sacrifice they have bequeathed to us a heritage upon which to build a greater, better, and finer world, in which a spirit of mutual trust and happiness will reign for all time. Into our hands they have handed the torch of progress that must, in the days to come, be passed on to You. Most earnestly I urge you to keep its flame burning brightly and its light undimmed. But never forget that, to do this, you will have to fight just as hard a battle as those whose memory we keep in reverence this most special day. Your victory, however, must be over selfishness, laziness, and deceit of all kinds.

How otherwise can you follow in the steps of those heroes who have so nobly shown you the way of duty, and have set up for you and all the world an ideal of faith and loyalty that comes nearest to eternal fellowship with God.

May this Remembrance Day bring such thoughts to your mind and a brave resolve to do your very best to live up to them.

They that sleep have given your trust, and for safety have placed their honour Into Your Hands.

Ever your affectionate friend,

THE CAPTAIN.

Mystery Island

By Capt. O. J. Aldom.

Chapter 25.

Even as they looked towards the island from the deck of the good ship Dauntless, Capt. Pat gave an exclamation of surprise and flung out his arm. "Look, Williams!" he shouted, "I believe this is the very island we have been trying to reach! See those two hills rising out of the centre, like two humps on the back of a camel. I am sure it is, for even in this darkness their shape is almost identical with the drawing on the map."

There was no mistaking the excitement in the Captain's voice, or his enthusiasm, which was shared in no less degree by his chief officer, after that gentlemen had spent a few moments more in looking earnestly towards the shore.

"Yes, sir, you are quite right . . . though to me it seems little short of a miracle it should be so. I fully expected to cruise around, perhaps for days, before we came to the right island. And now, by some most wonderful chance, we have come slap up right against it. It's marvellous."

Capt. Pat chuckled and there was a wicked gleam in his eyes. "Those fools little know how near they are to the treasure, supposing of course there is one, and if we can only get the best of them in some way or other, we shall be able to carry the stuff on board, slip our anchor and then for all of us it's England, homeward bound!"

But Mr. Williams shook his head. "We are a long way from that as yet, sir," he remarked quietly. "Those men ashore will not let us have our own way as easily as that. They are the stronger party and even if we could sail the ship without them, no sooner did we start to look for the treasure than they would suspect what we were after and watch our every movement. Most likely they will attack us as soon as we land, and we shall have to be very careful in what we do."

The Commander's enthusiasm was not a little cooled by this serious view of the situation but he did not altogether lose his optimistic spirit. He would not have been the man he was if he had done so. "I looked for my nephew and niece and found them," he said, "So I shall also find and keep this other treasure as well. Something will turn up to help us, I'm sure. Now we will lower a boat—thank heaven the villains have left us one—and go ashore. Get it ready Mr. Williams and don't forget to put in plenty of stores, for we may be unable to return here for some time."

The next half hour was a very busy one, all hands, including even Babs, lending their aid in fitting out the little boat with every useful article they could think of, Jack taking the precaution of carrying from the cabin all the rifles which they had left behind on going to the deck, as well as the spare ammunition. "There is no sense in leaving these to fall into the hands of those who wish to kill us," he remarked.

When everything was complete the boat was carefully lowered, all the party taking their seats, and Babs finding a good place next to her brother. In accordance with sea tradition the Commander was the last to leave the deck, which, in spite of his brave words, he did with feelings of regret—for it came to him suddenly that there might be no return for any of them. Very quickly however he cast these black thoughts away and, stepping briskly into his place, gave the order to push off. The oars struck the water and silently but swiftly the journey was made towards the shore. No words were spoken for all kept their eyes glued on the sandy beach, which was seemingly deserted.

"The sea must be ebbing out," remarked Robins suddenly. "We shall land much lower than they have done" and this was verified a moment later as the boat touched bottom.

A hasty move was made to disembark and carry the stores to a place of safety beyond reach of the water at full tide, and this work was done with as little noise as possible. Who could tell what cruel eyes were even at that moment watching their actions?

THE QUARRELSOME LEAVES

Two little, giddy maple leaves Were flapping in the wind One was red as red could be, The other like a pumpkin rind. "I am prettier than you," said the red, red leaf; "You are not", said the yellow one, "You are red, just common red, While I—am like the sun."

"Red is prettier, by far, Just like a glowing rose—I'd rather be red, I hate your hue—" —And so the quarrel grows. The Frost King came, and rough North Wind, And snapped them from their stem, They tumbled to earth, this quarrelsome pair, And that was the end of them.

As they lay side by side, on the cold, cold ground, Shivering and shaking with fright, They moaned and moaned "Oh dear! Oh dear! How foolish we were to fight."

—Dear Children they were quite right! All fighting is foolish, whether it be amongst little folks, big folks or nations. Our Canada should be a land of peace; and not only our Canada, but all the world should try to live peacefully, one nation with the other.

—Aunt Jean

THE LITTLE SEED

By Aunt Jean

High up in one of the very highest branches of a maple tree a bunch of seeds fluttered and danced, as jolly Mr. West Wind pranced and blew around them.

One of the seeds was much smaller than the others; they crowded it, and laughed at it, because it was so much smaller than they were. They were too high up for people to hear them doing it, but the fairies knew about it and smiled to themselves secretly. They knew that meanness was always punished in some way or other.

The big seeds grew so proud of themselves that they all swelled up until they split themselves open. And the rough old North Wind pulled them off, and tossed them far away on to a rubbish heap that Farmer Brown was burning, and they were burned with it.

Left alone there, on the stem, the little seed was quite frightened until the kind green leaves patted it softly, and gentle Mrs. South Wind whispered "Never mind, Little Seed, I will take you away with me some day." Quite content with her promise, and the leaves' comforting, the little seed grew shapely and plump; its pretty green wings grew larger and larger.

One day, as it lay contentedly dreaming, the voice of Mrs. South Wind called from the top of the pine tree, "I am coming for you now, Little Seed." No, no—no, no!" shrieked the little seed, in sudden fear. It had forgotten the South Wind's promise; and this was so sudden. Above it the soft voice of The Mother Tree, whispered, "My dear child, you must go. You have work to do in the great world."

The little seed turned in surprise to listen, lost its hold on the stem and fell. Mrs. South Wind caught it and carried it gently to the bottom branch. There she let it rest a little, fanning it lightly as it lay gazing longingly up at its tree-top home.

Suddenly the fanning grew much stronger, and the little seed was lifted again; and it started floating down, down, down, until it rested in some soft green stuff, where, to its surprise, it found a lot more little seeds like itself! Only they were much more dried up, some of them almost hidden from sight.

A little boy who had been sitting under the tree, saw the seed fall. He ran to it, picked it up, smelled it, then held it out for his baby sister to see. The baby, thinking it was something good to eat, tried to bite it.

"No, no!" said the little boy, and threw the seed away as far as his little arms could throw it. It landed right beside the garden wall, where it lay in the hot sun, until it felt quite parched and blistered.

A robin hopping along in search of food, turned it over lightly with her beak, decided it was quite too large for her baby bird's mouth and hopped away. Oh, how the sun did burn the side now turned upward to it. Rover came trotting along, stopped, sniffed it, and went on. Pussy Grey stepped on it, as she chased a field mouse into a hole in the stone wall. A little green snake came gliding out of another hole, and curled herself up around it until it felt quite smothered.

Little Seed was homesick and afraid. "A lot of good I am doing here," he murmured; "Mother Tree must have made a mistake."

Nearby, a little green snake uncoiled itself, and crawled back into its hole. The sun sank slowly down out of sight; it grew darker and darker, queer little lights shone out, high above the top of Mother Tree and all the other trees around her.

The sun had been doing that, and the stars had been coming out every night while the little seed had hung on the tree; but the leaves had covered it so that it had not noticed them before. The Dew Fairies brought it a drink quite early in the evening bathing its body with their tears, until it became quite cool and contented; but when morning came, it was just as bad as the day before. The sun burned and burned, until it cried out in its misery, "Oh, how I wish I could crawl under the cool earth."

Do you know, Children, the miracle which happens to little seeds? How they grow and grow, into plants, trees, and masterpieces of Nature? Look out next week, for the adventures of Little Seed.

A Tip for Lost Hunters.

Hunters lost and uncertain of the compass directions, may fix North with their watch, thus: Place it flat on the hand, stand a match upright over the end of the minute hand and turn the watch until the match shadow falls along the hand. A line drawn across the centre of the watch and midway between the end of the hour hand and 12 o'clock runs North and South; North lying on the side on which the hour hand is farthest from 12. Even on cloudy days the match will show a faint shadow. This is a Boy Scout stunt.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Mr. Jack Howell returned on Sunday afternoon by motor to Montreal, after spending a week here as guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howell.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jones spent Friday in Montreal.

Professor Hendel, of McGill University, and Mrs. Hendel, were the guests of her uncle, Mr. Robert Jones, last Friday.

Mrs. Patton left on Monday morning to spend a few days in Montreal.

Miss Vida Brophy, of Ottawa, is visiting Miss J. Barclay, of The Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hodgson and Miss Alice Hodgson, of Montreal, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Neve last Sunday.

Mr. C. A. Pease spent Monday in Montreal in order to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson, of Beauharnois, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Entwistle.

Mrs. A. J. Gilbertson, of Montreal, visited friends here last week.

On Friday evening last Miss Mildred Douglas, of Montreal, delighted a large gathering of St. Andrews people in the Lecture Hall of the United Church by sharing with them the pleasure of her recent transcontinental trip, in a very picturesque manner. During her travels by railway and coast steamer, her moving-picture camera captured a changing panorama of snow-clad mountains, mirror lakes and glistening waterfalls. Charming scenes from the Rockies, the Yellowstone Park, Puget Sound and Alaska, were thrown upon the screen. The views of St. Andrews, showing the North River, public buildings and groups of village children, brought bursts of applause from the young folks; as also did the entertaining pictures of trained dogs doing their tricks, and tame mountain bears climbing into the cars of tourists in search of refreshments.

$4,000. about a dollar a ton of its cargo. Every boat passing through the Suez Canal pays about $1.50 a ton toll. The Manchester Ship Canal pays profits. The Panama Canal pays three per cent. on its investment after paying expenses, depreciation and sinking fund. The Suez Canal pays annual dividends of 76 per cent. The Manchester Ship Canal pays interest on $50,000,000 of bonds and 5 per cent. dividends on $45,000,000 stock. But the Welland Canal, and all the Canals of Canada (they are all practically in Central Canada), pay not a single copper. The country between pays the shot, while Central Canada gets the use of the whole canal system for nothing.

The jibe at Central Canada is scarcely just, since the chief benefit from the new waterway is expected to accrue to the West, in lower freight rates to and from the head of the lakes, while this part of Ontario will suffer from decreased use of grain handling facilities built at great cost. This is probably why the Calgary Herald looks at the question from this angle:—

So far as the Welland canal is concerned free passage for freight steamers into Lake Ontario and on down the waterway to Montreal was probably dictated as a wise attempt to meet the competition of Buffalo with its rail and Erie canal routes to New York. Admitting that the cost of Canadian taxpayers for canal service has been heavy, it is by no means certain that it has been unprofitable to them. Had tolls been charged it is certain that Canadian districts served by the canals would have been forced to pay more for the goods they bought, brought to them via the canals.

This might be true if Canadian vessels were the only ones making use of the Welland, and if the freight passing through it was all to and from Canadian ports. But before and during the war as high as 80 per cent. of the tonnage through Canadian canals originated in the United States. Since the war, for some reason, the proportion has shrunk to between 25 and 35 per cent. But there is every prospect that with the deepening of the St. Lawrence the proportion will again be raised to at least 50 per cent. Against this, Canada gets practically only the use of the American locks at Sault Ste. Marie, where she has a lock of her own, too small for the big grain vessels, it is true, but capable of enlargement. Under these circumstances it is clear that the Canadian taxpayers are paying a lot of freight charges for the people of the United States.

The Fort Erie Times-Review raises the point that Canada is bound by treaty to give free passage through Canadian canals to American vessels. This is a mistaken idea. Under the treaty of Washington, Great Britain undertook that the River St. Lawrence should "forever remain open for the purpose of commerce to the citizens of the United States, subject to any laws and regulations of Great Britain or of the Dominion of Canada, not inconsistent with such privilege of free navigation." The British Government further undertook to "urge upon the Government of the Dominion of Canada to secure to the citizens of the United States the use of the Welland, St. Lawrence and other canals in the Dominion on terms of equality with the inhabitants of the Dominion." That this provision was not considered to preclude charging tolls is proved by the fact that these were in effect until 1903, in which year the collections on the St. Lawrence canals amounted to $52,220.40. The point was made clear beyond all manner of doubt by the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909, which, after repeating the pledge of free navigation, contains the following provision:—

Either of the High Contracting Parties may adopt rules and regulations governing the use of such canals within its own territory and may charge tolls for the use thereof, but all such rules and regulations and all tolls charged shall apply alike to the subjects or citizens of the High Contracting Parties and the ships, vessels and boats of both the High Contracting Parties, and they shall be placed on terms of equality in the use thereof.

Existing treaties, therefore, form no obstacle to the charging of tolls.

Shooting Stars

By M. V. Trayers.

When I was quite a bit younger than I am to-day, I was very much impressed with the idea that if I wished for something while I observed a star falling, my wish would surely be granted. I never bothered to inquire what connection a falling star had with the realisation of my wish, and the fact that my wishes were invariably unsatisfied did not dispell my optimism. I kept on wishing anyway. In later years when I learned that shooting stars were not really stars at all, but meteors, probably not larger than a bean, burning in incandescent brilliancy to a fine dust, my earlier philosophy received a rude jar. Now, when I see a brilliant meteor flash its motive energy across the atmosphere I look with wistful longing across the vista which separates me from that happy ignorance which prompted me to wish for something I desired to attain.

In the month of November some of the most beautiful aerial displays are observable, and this year the magnificent Leonid shower returns on one of its periodical visits. Innumerable meteors of all sizes are moving through space. These are invisible to us unless they come within the orbit of the earth's atmosphere. Outside the atmosphere they meet with no frictional resistance and are therefore cold and unlighted. Immediately they come within the atmosphere the friction of the air reduces their motion, and at the same time develops a heat energy, just as a bullet does when it strikes a target. This heat energy causes the meteor to become incandescent, forming the brilliant star which prompted me to wish. Very few meteors are sufficiently large to reach the earth before they are burned to a fine dust, though some have been found which were not so reduced. Some are even so large as to cause an appreciable vibration or impact when they hit the earth surface, as the one which laid low a Siberian forest of almost one hundred miles' area in 1908.

Meteors are generally believed to be the disintegration of comets, as the Leonids are believed to be the remains of Temple's Comet. Temple's Comet became visible from the earth every 33 years but after 1866 its place was taken by the Leonid shower. This shower is so called because it radiates from a point in the constellation of Leo. A smaller display of the Leonids is observable the years previous to and subsequent to the 33 year period. This year is the exact 33 year period, and a beautiful display should be on view around the night of the 15th of this month. The best time to view the shower is just before sunrise.

Highway Trains - A New Menace

Whatever opinions may be held regarding the place of the ordinary truck in the transportation picture there are few who will care to argue that the public highway is the place for the great two-unit and three-unit affairs now appearing.

One evening recently, according to an exchange, hundreds of Ottawa citizens stared at such a highway train that appeared on Rideau and Wellington streets and was later seen on the highway outside the city headed for Kingston. Its length could only be judged, but was approximately 70 to 80 feet. It was in three units, a huge, heavy-duty power plant, a first trailer about the size of an ordinary freight car, and a second trailer the size of the usual truck body. The entire outfit had some 16 wheels and 28 or 30 tires, the majority of the wheels being the two-tire type now commonly used.

To negotiate the grade in front of the Chateau Laurier the power plant emitted sounds like a freight locomotive, yet was only proceeding at a snail's pace. To make a right turn on Rideau street at King Edward, the driver had to swing from the centre of the street. Later, out on the highway the train was proceeding at a good pace, judged about 30 miles per hour, but there were 12 passenger cars trailing in the rear waiting a chance to pass. Any driver will realize the danger of attempting to pass such a contraption with cars speeding in the opposite direction. It might be done with safety on a half-mile of straight highway, but such half miles are rare. Every driver who attempted to pass the truck (or trucks) simply put his own life and those of his passengers in danger.

The use of highway trains such as the one described—they can be called nothing else—constitutes an obstruction to normal highway traffic and should be dealt with by the highway police as such. They are a source of danger to everybody else using the highway and have no place on travelled public roads. If three-unit trucking equipment is allowed now, it is only a matter of time before the number of trailers will be limited simply by the size of the power plant. Ten-car highway trains should not be impossible.

This advertisement is one of a series commemorating the hundredth anniversary of The Bank of Nova Scotia

The Confederation of the Canadian Provinces was of paramount importance to the political and economic life of the Dominion. Likewise the founding of The Bank of Nova Scotia, a century ago, was a milestone in Canada's financial history. Founded to meet the needs of a small community The Bank of Nova Scotia today serves its customers through an organization international in scope and above all with the accumulated experience of a century of successful banking.

AL SMITH DECLARES WATERWAYS WOULD NEVER PAY

Another Adverse Opinion
From U. S.

"Not Fair to the Railroads"

The Buffalo Times quoted former governor Alfred E. Smith as having said that the St. Lawrence waterway "never could pay part of its cost. The same thing is true of the barge canal these days," he added.

The paper quoted Mr. Smith as follows: "In my opinion this St. Lawrence waterway never would pay any part of its cost. It isn't practicable. Look how many months of the year it would be closed to traffic."

"The same thing is true of the barge canal these days. There's no doubt that the canal had a tremendous lot to do with development of the state. It had a bigger part to do with the development of the port of New York than we can tell. But these days are past."

"Transportation is in the process of evolution. Once water transportation was the thing. It built up this part of the country. Then the railroad came along, and the day of water transportation passed. This barge canal is costing the state plenty to operate now. Water transportation is old fashioned these days."

Mr. Smith was quoted as saying many businessmen felt it would be unfair to use the railroads during the winter months and then "throw them down" to save "a dollar or two" by shipping by water in the summer time.

FUEL-SAVING DEVICE DEMONSTRATED

Mr. Joachim Fortin, C.E., and manager of the "Smoke and Fuel Saver," was in town this week demonstrating the qualities of a new device for the diminution of the smoke nuisance and the saving of coal.

In these days, when everyone is keenly alive to economy, the thought of saving at least 20 p.c. on coal consumption, plus elimination of the smoke nuisance, justifies any effort to attain this end. On Tuesday Mr. Fortin with his engineer were permitted to make an official test in the boiler house of the well-known local establishment of Ayers Limited, and from the report submitted one learns that the test proved most satisfactory.

Every proprietor of a heating plant is interested to see the disappearance of the smoke, for two main reasons. First because smoke is a public nuisance and every city interested in the comfort of its citizens and the cleanliness of its buildings has passed by-laws forcing industries to abolish this nuisance. Secondly, the smoke is formed of unburned elements of coal, and all unburned coal which is carried with the draft in a chimney, is lost.

Mr. Fortin is most enthusiastic and puts his guarantee to ensure complete combustion, and saving as much as from 20 to 25 p.c. by the installation of this device.

The Late Frederick Carriere

The funeral of the late Frederick Carriere, who passed away at his home on Foundry Street on Monday, after an illness of nearly four months, took place on Wednesday morning at the Ste. Anastasie Church, service being conducted by Father G. A. Carriere, of Hull, Que., cousin of the deceased. Deceased who was in his 73rd year had been a resident of Lachute town for twenty-two years and was highly respected by all. Besides his wife he leaves to mourn his loss, three sons, Wilfrid, Romeo and Albini; three daughters, two being sisters of the Holy Cross Convent and Miss Adela at home.

MORIN HEIGHTS

Sunday guests at Mountain Rest Farm were, Mr. and Mrs. Turner and Mr. and Mrs. Madigan of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rogers and son "Bobs," of Arundel, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. McCullough.

Miss Blanche Hully, accompanied by Mr. S. Hodgson, motored from Montreal on Saturday to spend the week-end with her mother, Mrs. E. Hully.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas Burns, Master Norman Burns, Montreal, and Miss Mary Seale, of Island Brook, renewed acquaintances in Morin on Sunday. Miss Seale was a former teacher in "School-house on the Corner" and has not been back since she left in 1920.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Trinity Church was held at the home of Mrs. Jos. Seale on Thursday, Nov. 3rd. The ladies spent the afternoon piecing a quilt, which they plan to sell when completed.

There have been no services in the United Church for the past five Sundays due, to the fact that Rev. G. M. Perrigard is confined to his home through sickness. The latest information is that he is improving, but slowly, and will not be able to return to his duties for some time yet. The pulpit will be occupied on Sunday, Nov. 13th., and until further notice, by Mr. A. G. Trott, of Montreal.

Miss McCain, of Macdonald College, Superintendent of Quebec Women's Institutes, opened her annual visit to the Argenteuil County branches, at Morin Heights, on Thursday evening, Nov. 3rd. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. Kennedy, with 13 members and 4 visitors present. The Provincial Convenor's outline on Education and Better Schools was brought before the meeting and was listened to with much interest. Miss McCain then gave a most interesting and instructive address on "What it Means to be a Canadian." She clearly pointed out the advantages we enjoy as result of the industry and enterprise of our forefathers. She also showed that by careful study and following the outlines of the various branches of W. I. work, every member would be afforded an opportunity of being a better Canadian. The speaker stressed the advisability of having more of our girls take up the four-year course at the School of Household Science, at Macdonald College, showing the advantages to be gained thereby.

Plans were made to send a box of home cooking to the soldiers at the Ste. Agathe Sanatorium for Remembrance Day, and a vote of thanks to Miss McCain and Mrs. Kennedy terminated a successful meeting.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS OF 1886

A Detroit subscriber has sent The London Free Press a copy of an edition of February 4, 1886. Apparently it was a very cold winter and there are reports of tremendous snowstorms. The snow was so heavy in New York City that the street cars, then horse-drawn, had to use double teams. Hotels advertised accommodation at a dollar a day. There was a big sale of men's suits at $14, so that even the low prices of today had nothing on 1886.

The most interesting English news is the announcement of the new British Cabinet, headed by Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone. Great surprise is expressed that Joseph Chamberlain was not made chancellor of the exchequer, but was given a minor post.

The liquor question apparently never downs as a public issue. There is a report of a meeting in Toronto of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance. The Alliance was modest in its demands in these days, when the bar was still wide open. It advocated that all bars be closed on week-nights, except Saturdays, at an hour not later than 9 o'clock in townships and villages and not later than 10 in towns and cities. The Alliance later waited on the Government and consideration was promised the requests. Attorney-General Hardy pointed out that unless the temperance people helped themselves and helped the inspectors, there could be no strict enforcement of the act.

Beer and wine was apparently an issue then as today. At the night session it was found that the Brewers' Association, which was in session at the same time, had taken action to apply to the Legislature for the right to sell ale and beer in Scott Act counties. This proposal was vigorously denounced and friends of temperance were urged "to resist to the utmost such a retrograde move."

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Miss Mary Toner spent a few days in Montreal this week.

The christening of Janet Caroline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McClintock, took place last Sunday morning in the United Church.

Mr. J. Lynn, a student from the United Theological College, was in charge of the evening service at the United Church on Sunday last. He preached a thoughtful sermon from the text "Let your light shine before men." Mr. Lynn was the guest of Miss C. McKeracher.

Rev. James Fraser of Bancroft, Ont., was in town on Monday and called on old friends and relatives.

Mrs. W. H. Brown and children spent the week-end with her parents, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ballantyne.

The christening of John Warren Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Brown of Montreal, and grandnephew of Dr. and Mrs. Ballantyne, took place last Sunday in the Presbyterian Church.

Sunday School work is now (1932) being well carried on by Mr. Joseph Robbins, as superintendent with Mr. H. W. Butler, Miss May Petley and Miss Geraldine McQuaig as teachers.

Miss May Petley has also acted with characteristic faithfulness and efficiency as treasurer of the building fund, the general fund and that of the Ladies' Guild. Also special mention must be made of the free and faithful service, rendered by Mrs. J. B. Davis as Church Organist for several years. The names of other organists who freely served this Anglican Church, in the earlier days of its work in Brownsburg, are:—Miss Vanburen, Mr. Stewart McGibbon, Miss Irene Davis, Mrs. Styles and Mr. Jack Styles. It has been impossible to name in this sketch all who aided in laying the foundation of the church work in Brownsburg. But their work will be duly rewarded; and their successors are continuing their efforts in the true spirit of constructive Christianity.

The Rev. Winter Lecras has been appointed to succeed Rev. J. A. Lackey as Rector, and will commence his pastoral work in the parish about the beginning of December.

Norman Lee Swartout, a play writer of many well known plays that have been performed on the tip-top stages on this continent has among works of his pen "The Arrival of Kitty" which will be given tomorrow (Friday) evening, in Lachute Auditorium. A splendid cast—lots of laughter—the St. Simeon's Players will be at their best.

WINTER FAIR OPENS ON NOVEMBER 29th.

The Ottawa Winter Fair's official premium list for this year has been issued. Entries will close on November 18th. The first class will enter the tank at the Coliseum on the morning of November 29th, and the closing ceremonies will take place on the evening of December 2nd. A study of the prize list shows that every provision has been made for a well rounded ed out four-day show, full of action and as interesting as educational.

The excellent distribution of a liberal amount of prize money over the various competitive classes and the securing of many trophies and challenge cups, so as to cover all major departments, make for well balanced competitions and very attractive classes throughout.

While the show is some four weeks distant, the executive, under President Hugh Carson and Secretary-Treasurer Herbert H. McElroy, have preparations well under way, with the determination to make this year's Winter Fair the best of its kind in competition and attendance that has yet been offered to the Ottawa Valley and beyond.

It is confidently expected that the excellent support which the Management received from the people of Ottawa last year will be again repeated and that this will be paralleled by an increasing interest on the part of farmers, for whom primarily this show is being held.

The evening shows with their special attractivenesses are considerable among the social events of the Winter season and it is suggested that reservations for the evening performances be made as early as possible. While entries do not close for over a week yet, and those intending to enter their live stock can assist the Management very much by sending in their entries as soon as possible.

Hints for Homebodies

Specially written for Readers of The Watchman.

SUGARS

Sugar has become one of our most important foods, chiefly because of its increased consumption. I have no figures at hand for Canada's sugar consumption, but a book written in 1908 says that The United States uses 70 pounds a year, per person. The present day consumption is 115 pounds a year, so you see that there is a steady increase in the amount used.

Excessive use is the chief danger in sugar. It is a habit forming food, and the more you use, the more you want. It is high in calories and is a good energy giving food, but if it is used to excess it is apt to crowd out the other foods which contain the necessary life giving elements. Sugar is a highly refined food and contains no minerals.

BEET AND CANE SUGAR

There are some women who have a prejudice against beet sugar. This is not reasonable as they are so much alike that if they are refined to the same degree the chemist cannot tell which is which.

GRANULATED SUGAR

Granulated sugar is the form most frequently used. We find degrees of fineness in it. It is advisable to use fine sugar for cake baking. Wherever possible it is a good plan to use brown sugar as it is not so completely refined and still contains some minerals.

FRUIT SUGAR

Fruit sugar is a granulated sugar in a very fine form. It melts very rapidly and is the most agreeable form to use on fresh fruits because of this. If you do not use a sugar syrup in mixing drinks, fruit sugar is the best sugar to use as it quickly melts even with ice water. Whatever you do, never try to use icing sugar as it gets in a gloopy mass and is almost impossible to melt. Icing or confectioner's sugar contains some starch and it is because of the starch that it will not melt. You can buy loaf sugar tinted and flavored for summer drinks. It makes a dainty and colorful accessory.

HOW TO BEAT EGGS

To beat an egg is a very simple thing and yet there is a right and a wrong way of doing even that. The first thing to consider is what work you want the eggs to do. If you want them to serve as a thickening agent, the eggs should be beaten merely enough to mix them thoroughly. However, if you want them to lighten your mixture they must be beaten in an entirely different manner. Then you must incorporate all the air possible, as it is the air that does the lightening. Usually when a mixture is required to be very light the eggs are beaten separately, but whether the eggs are beaten whole or whether it is just the yolks, they should be beaten until they are thick and lemon colored.

Egg white may be beaten by a flat racquet beater or by a Dover beater which is turned by a handle. There are some women still who will use nothing but a fork to whip up an egg white. My mother scorned anything but a fork. It was a pleasure to watch her as she did it with such graceful movements. But I suspect that the reason she liked the fork was the fascination of the sound to her musical ear. Her fork struck the plate with such rhythm that it was truly music.

The racquet beater is recommended for Angel or Sponge cake as it manages to incorporate more air than any other method, but it takes longer to do and it is quite possible to make a successful Angel cake and use a Dover beater. If you want your mixture to be light, be careful not to be too enthusiastic and beat your eggs too long. Each little air cell is like a balloon, and you know what happens when you fill a balloon too full. It bursts. That is exactly what happens to your air cells if they are filled too full. When they are put in the oven, the heat expands them and if they are filled to capacity they will burst. So only beat your egg whites until they are light and still moist. Never beat them until they are dry if they are to come into contact with heat.

It is not a bit of use to beat your eggs beautifully light and then break down the air cells when you mix them with the rest of your ingredients. Fold in the egg whites; do not mix. Do it with this motion—down across and up, again and again.

A mixture containing egg whites is usually cooked in a moderate oven about 300 to 350 degrees.

CARROT MARMALADE

2 lbs. carrots (grated)
4 lemons
4 cups sugar
3 oranges

Scrape tender, young, raw carrots and grate enough to weigh 2 lbs. Place in a double boiler and squeeze over the carrots the juice of the lemons. Cook about an hour until the carrot is tender. Add the juice and grated rind of the oranges and the sugar. Boil until thick. Pour into glasses and seal.

GRAPE CONSERVE

2 lbs. grapes, 1 lb. sugar, 1 orange, 1/2 lb. seeded raisins, 1/4 lb. shelled walnuts.

Remove skins from grapes and boil until the pulp is soft. Put through a sieve to remove seeds. Add the skins and the oranges and raisins which has been put through the chopper and the sugar. Boil until thick. Add the nuts and boil 5 minutes longer. Put into hot sterilized jars and seal.

PERSHING'S TEETH "GOLD MINE" FOR THE MARINES

A story about General Pershing's teeth was told by Mark Sullivan during authors' night at the booksellers' convention. General Pershing, he said, had trouble with his teeth. A corps of famous doctors insisted the general have them removed pronto. So the general hid himself to a marine hospital.

The marines who performed the task bethought themselves that the teeth would be worth much as souvenirs, and promptly sold them to various and sundry persons at $1 the tooth and upward.

Finally the tale reached the ears of the army overlords who were aghast. They dispatched an army sergeant to round up the purchasers and collect the teeth—at any cost.

The sergeant didn't return for days. When he did—and he was severely reprimanded for his delay—he produced 216 teeth all guaranteed to be General Pershing's. (Philadelphia Record.)

Here and There

Buildings which will house the World's Great Exhibition and Conference at Regina next July and August are rapidly approaching completion and preparations are already being made for the extensive exhibits.

Canada's apple-growing belt is moving northward. Standard apples have been grown this year at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Beaverlodge, Alberta, which is 428 miles north of the international boundary between Canada and the United States.

Canada has entered the British West Africa market for tobacco with a trial shipment of 25 cases of Canadian-grown tobacco, recently. About 77 per cent. of British West Africa tobacco has been secured from the United States, but Canada hopes to get the market under the new Inter-Empire preference.

National Fish Week between October 24-31 has been supported by the Canadian Pacific Railway since 1918 and this year was no exception. The company marked the celebration with special menu cards listing fish products of the sections of Canada through which the railway runs between Saint John, N.B., and Vancouver, British Columbia.

Canada lost one of its best-known and popular railroad officials recently when A. Aitken, assistant superintendent of the Bruce Division, Canadian Pacific Railway, dropped dead in Toronto on his way to his office. Mr. Aitken was 60 years of age and had spent 34 years in the company's service.

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain was the scene of a wedding reception and breakfast at Quebec recently, following the marriage of Miss Marthe St. Laurent, daughter of the president of the Canadian Bar Association, to Dr. Mathieu Samson. Five hundred guests filed past the wedding group assembled in the Mayfair Lounge of the Empress.

Not forgetting his work as director-general of its National Flood Relief Commission in 1931, China has asked Sir John Hope Simpson, famous British organizer, to join its newly created National Economic Council. Sir John sailed recently aboard the Empress of Canada for Shanghai to wind up the flood relief commission affairs.

The United States Middle West and the Province of Quebec share honors as winners of the Canadian Pacific Bungalow Camps Fishing Trophies which have been awarded at French River, Nipigon River and Devils Gap. S. A. Hoffmann, of Cleveland, had a 27 1/2 lb. muscalunge; C. O. Kalman, of St. Paul, Minn., had a 3 1/2 lb. square tailed speckled trout; and O. C. Steinmeyer, Westmount, Que., had a bass weighing 4 lbs., 14 ounces.

Leaving a money belt containing round-the-world steamship and rail tickets and a cool thousand dollars or so in cash at his Vancouver hotel, Charles Clarke, Los Angeles, only discovered his loss after his ship, the Empress of Canada, had sailed from Vancouver. Wireless messages to the Canadian Pacific steamship general passenger agent resulted in recovery of the belt and its forwarding by airplane in time to reach the vessel before she left Victoria. Devil's Food Layer Cake

1 1/2 cups sugar
3 eggs
1 cup milk
3/4 cups pastry flour (or 2 cups and 3 table-spoons of bread flour)

1/4 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 egg whites, unwhipped, melted

Cream butter thoroughly; add sugar slowly. Add beaten yolks; mix thoroughly. Add flour sifted with baking powder and salt, alternately with milk; add vanilla and melted chocolate. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Put into 3 greased layer cake tins and bake in moderate oven at 350° F. about 30 minutes. When cool, put together and cover thickly with Chocolate or White Icing (recipes are in the Magic Cook Book).

tells why she makes her

Devil's Food Layer Cake

with Magic Baking Powder

"I know from experience," says the cookery expert of Western Home Monthly, "that Magic makes most baked dishes look and taste better. Its uniform leavening quality gives dependable baking results."

And Miss Dutton's praise of Magic is seconded by the majority of dietitians and cookery experts throughout the Dominion. They use Magic exclusively because they know it is pure, and always uniform.

Canadian housewives, too, prefer Magic. In fact, Magic outsells all other baking powders combined. For luscious layer cakes, light, tender biscuits, delicious pastry—follow Miss Dutton's advice. Use Magic Baking Powder.

CHAPTER X.—Alan is thrilled to see Joyce again, but she is cool toward him. Continuing the fight, Alan locates the bandit tent on an island.
He leaves Bill in charge of the one bandit found there, and he and Bus-yard fly back to the Alouette to try to head off the other bandits. But they have made their raid, killing old Dad Pence, her sole defender, and with Joyce their prisoner are on their way back to the rendezvous.

CHAPTER XI.—Haskell cunningly poisons Superintendent Williamson's mind by his account of Alan's conduct, and feels he is master of the situation.
Pedneault, old friend of Baker, tricks Haskell and goes to join Alan with the police launch. Dave MacMillan, broken by his inability to prove his innocence, has committed suicide in his cell at the fort, but Pedneault does not tell Alan.

CHAPTER XII.—Pedneault runs the launch aground, and Alan and "Bus-yard" drop down on the bandits. A bullet disables the plane. Alan abandons it, making his way alone, through a heavy rifle fire, to the criminals' lair.
He receives several severe wounds, but "gets his men" with the machine gun. Four days later he reaches Endurance. Confronting Haskell, he proves, to the satisfaction of Superintendent Williamson, Haskell's incompetence and deceit. His victory is complete. In view of their brilliant work in running down the bandits, his complicity with Featherof in "Montgomery" government stores is condoned by their payment for the stuff taken. The big reward for the death or apprehension of the vicious criminals makes this easy.

CHAPTER XIII.—After an unsatisfactory interview with Elizabeth, Alan learns that during his absence Haskell has carried on an ardent courtship of the girl. He has for some time realized that Joyce is the woman he really loves, his engagement to Elizabeth having come about through his loyalty to her dead brother, his partner. Finding Haskell (removed from command by Superintendent Williamson) and the girl together, he releases her from their engagement, stipulating only that she and Haskell be married before they leave the fort. Then he goes to find Joyce, and happiness.

CHAPTER XIV.—Alan is given the post of commanding officer at Fort Endurance, and with Jimmy Montgomery, a little girl their adopted daughter, he and Joyce begin their married life together, in the stern Northland they both love.

"Did you understand, Hardsock?" Haskell repeated. "You're under arrest."

Bill looked up. "I heard you," he said in weary scorn. "But haven't time to be arrested just now. Put it off a few minutes, can't you? Here's a hundred and fifty thousand in furs and gold that'd better get under lock and key before part of it walks off.
And a prisoner to take up."

Williamson came down to the wharf edge. Joyce saw him hesitate a moment, then hold out his hand to Alan.
It was only a momentary pause, but she saw it distinctly, and understood the reason; and it roused a hot anger in her.

She was proud of Alan for the way he reacted. He, too, had noticed the hesitation, and he remarked curtly, refusing his hand:

"Don't bother, superintendent. You might lose caste. I've heard I'm a criminal."

The division commander was visibly hurt by Alan's words. His eyes were taking in the recovered loot, the tired men, Alan's wounds.

"I see you won out against those men. The prisoner, I suppose, is one of them. Where are the others?"

"Over in the Thal-Azzah. We did take the trouble to give them a decent burial."

"Dead?"

"Yes, dead. It was a fair fight, if you care to take my word for it."

Williamson was silent a few moments. Into his eyes came a far-away expression, as though he was thinking of renowned patrols in the history of the Force and realizing that Baker's victory over these six criminals was one of them and one of the best of them. Finally he requested: "Won't you come up to the cabin, Baker? I'd like to hear your report on this."

"I'll come up," Alan sent an ominous glance at Haskell. "I've got several things to say to you, superintendent."

Joyce felt some one touching her arm. Turning, she saw it was Father Claverly.

As he shook hands he asked her,
"Joyce, if you have time tonight, step over to my study and visit me, won't you?"

"Why yes, Father Claverly, if you wish. I'd better come before ten; the steamer may be here any time after that."

"You're leaving tonight?"

"Yes. There'll be no other for two weeks. Bill told you I'm going back to Ottawa."

Father Claverly nodded, and a little afterwards he left her.
Joyce was deadly serious in her last words to Alan.

"You'll not forget what we talked over—the Inconnu trap?"

"I'll not forget. But he may not walk into it, Joyce. He's shrewd, he's careful."

"You can be shrewder, Alan! You can make him walk into it. Let him think he's got you beaten and hopeless. Hide what you feel. And don't antagonize Superintendent Williamson."

She held his hand a moment in her warm clasp, thinking of her father lying dead at Resolution, of Alan's noble struggle to save him, of Haskell breaking her father's will to live.
It was some solace to know she had helped Alan plan a trap for the guilty inspector, a deadly trap if Haskell only walked into it.

As she quietly wished him good luck, in her heart she was fervently saying to him, "God go with you, Alan." And because she had passionately resolved not to see him again before she left, she meant her words not only for the stormy hour ahead of him, but for all the years of his life.

Alan strode into the cabin in a savage fighting mood. He had risen from a sick bed to come to Endurance before Williamson left, and he had sworn he was going to crush Haskell. The inspector had forced him out of the Mounted; had caused Larry to be crippled for life; had refused protection to Joyce in her desperate need;
had made a scapegoat of Dave Mac-Millan to save his face; and more than anyone on earth he was responsible for that sorry tragedy at Resolution.

Almost the only hope Alan had was that trap which he and Joyce had planned—an idea born in Joyce's quick brain and developed between them during the three days she had nursed him.

When he went in, he found Williamson and Haskell sitting at the desk, waiting. Haskell did not move; but Williamson, considerate of his wounds, drew up a chair and invited him to sit down.

"Won't you give us the story of your patrol, Baker?" he requested kindly.

Alan countered: "My story doesn't begin with this patrol. It begins last fall, when this gentleman here came down north. I want to tell it clean, from then till now."

"That's your right," Williamson assented.

Alan hoped that his story, by the sheer blunt truth of it, would carry conviction. But when he finished, the old officer did not comment. The silence was foreboding. Almost in desperation, Alan took up a couple matters that lay very near his heart.

"There's two or three favors I want to ask of you, sir. Since they're not in my own behalf, you may agree to them. One is about Chink Woolley, the man we brought in. I want to put in a word for him. He deserves heavy punishment but he shouldn't be hanged. He gave us some priceless information. We might never have saved Joyce MacMillan if he hadn't.
If it's impossible for me to be present at his trial, I want to turn over to you an affidavit in his behalf. Then, about Featherof, my partner in this patrol. He stole some government property and broke some flying regulations. But he made the whole thing possible, he threw in with me without a thought of pay, he risked his life half a dozen times. We're in position to restore that property or else pay for it in full. Will you get Featherof out of this jam?"

"How about yourself, Baker?"

"Well, I don't want to be jailed, if I can help it. But I suppose your favors will stretch just so far. I was the instigator, and if anybody has to pay, I'm the one."

Williamson was thoughtful. Few times in his career had he ever allowed motive, however worthy, to be excuse for breaking the law. But as he glanced at Baker, wounded, maimed in one hand, still pale from loss of blood, he thought what a heartless travesty of justice it would be if Baker were imprisoned. Whatever the truth of his trouble with Haskell, the great fact remained that he had gone on a thankless and prodigious patrol and had run those criminals to earth.

"I'll do what I can for you both," he promised, with no reluctance. "When I go back outside I'll talk to the Edmonton officials and try to get those charges not-dressed. But you and Featherof see to restoring that property."

Alan promised: "We won't fail you on that. It's mighty fine and square of you." After a moment, he went on: "Considering all you've agreed to,
I hate to ask still another favor.
But I've got to. I've got to speak up for Hardsock and Pedneault. They have charges against them, serious and true charges. But there's this to be said, sir. Neither man deserted.
They both intended to return here the moment our patrol ended. They rendered a tremendous service to the Force. They were true to duty in the highest sense of the word. Are you going to look at the good they did, or at nothing but the bad?"

Williamson did not answer. He felt the human justice of Alan's appeal.
It seemed to him that the matter went deeper than a question of insubordination. Those men had been under Ba-

One of These Two Men Was an Out-and-Out Liar.

ker's sway, and he knew what a powerful influence Baker had over his men.

Thinking deeply, he gazed through the window, down upon the dark river. In this tangled affair, it was a sore task to judge wisely, to do the right thing. Baker's long patrol, his indomitable courage in going after these men, his relentless drive in hammering his daring plan through to success—the whole thing was a splendid feat. In his forty years the old officer had never seen a more magnificent piece of work. It was like Baker, like the brilliant sergeant whom he once had trusted and fought for.

But the rest of that story, his trouble with Haskell—Williamson did not accept that as true. From start to finish Baker's account was an utter conflict with Haskell's; and to the stern old officer, judging with impartial mind, Haskell's story seemed more credible. Quite plainly Baker harbored a personal hostility which probably had warped and twisted his story out of all semblance to the truth.

One thing Williamson did know beyond any doubting: Baker's account clashed with Haskell's all along the line. One of these two men was an out-and-out liar.

In the tightening silence, waiting for Williamson to start probing, Haskell looked out along the terrace and saw a thing which struck him with chill premonition. The doorway of the mission hospital opened; Pedneault and Bill Hardsock came out, bringing Larry Younge with them. Bill on one side, Pedneault on the other, half-leading, half-carrying their crippled partner, they were making straight for the cabin.

When they trod into the room and Williamson heard them, he turned, frowning and demanded:

"What do you men want?"

"Sir, we came here to put our paddle in," Bill stated bluntly. "We knew you were thrashing out this trouble between Alan and the inspector."

"Your counsel wasn't asked. This matter is between Baker and Inspector Haskell."

"Bill, don't try to run a buck," Alan interposed, fearful that this unexpected move of his three men might kill any chance to trap Haskell. "If the superintendent doesn't want you here, obey him and go."

Bill stubbornly refused. He said to Williamson: "You've got a name, sir, for giving every buck cop and non-cop in your division a square cut and seeing all sides of an argument. I don't think you'll kick us out without hearing what we've got to say. This is as much our fight as Alan's. We've had to pay, too, for the inspector's acts.
Here's one of us crippled for life because the inspector bog-tied us on that patrol with some fool orders. After a thing like that, do we have to shut up and take it and not even be allowed to—?"

"Sit down!" Williamson bade them.
"I'm going to get to the bottom of this. When your time comes I'll hear what you've got to say. Now Baker,
I want you to answer some questions.
What made you split your detail on that first patrol?"

"Haskell ordered me to, sir. He ordered me to follow both branches.
When I objected, he threatened to bust me and keep me here at the post."

"That's a lie!" Haskell challenged.
"I allowed him to do as he thought best. He purposely made a failure

GRATEFUL MOTHER'S LETTER

"With my last baby," writes Mrs. William McLean of Elora, "and I have a family of eight children, I was only able to nurse him for about four months, and then naturally turned to Eagle Brand to bring him along. He was a normal infant all the way, but after starting him on Eagle Brand he gave me little or no trouble, sleeping regularly between feedings, and grew to be such a happy, contented little fellow. He cut his teeth without difficulty and has not had a sick day since. Wherever I go, people admire him and say 'What a lovely baby,' and ask me how I feed him. Eagle Brand is highly thought of in our home, and I recommend it to every mother seeking a satisfactory food for her infant."

Releasing of wealthy brokers from imprisonment before half of their sentences was served is still being vigorously attacked by papers of both political parties all over Canada. For a week or two The Toronto Telegram has been demanding an explanation from the Minister of Justice and, following its usual practice, will likely keep on till it gets what it wants. It is only too well known that there is a moral standard for men and another for women, though no good reason can be advanced for such a disparity. If a standard is also to be established for the rich and another for the poor, it will be a disastrous day for Canada. The Minister of Justice should beware of the handwriting on the wall.

THE LATE E. FITZGERALD WAS LIFE-LONG RESIDENT IN ARGENTEUIL

On Tuesday the 8th. inst., there passed away at his home at Monalea near Carillon, Mr. Edward Fitzgerald, a highly respected and life-long resident of this locality. The deceased was the youngest son of the late John Fitzgerald, who in his life-time was a well-known figure in the County of Argenteuil. He was in his 77th. year and though he had been in failing health for some time the end came somewhat unexpectedly after a few hours' illness.

The funeral was held on Thursday morning and a large number of friends and relatives were present in spite of the severe storm and dangerous travelling conditions which prevailed. The impressive funeral service at Carillon chapel was conducted by the cousin of the late Mr. Fitzgerald, Monsignor Fitzgerald, of Ottawa, assisted by Rev. Frs. Prud'homme, of Ottawa, and Dulude, of St. Andrews, as deacon and sub-deacon respectively. Interment was made in St. Andrews Cemetery.

Mr. Fitzgerald is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Mary E. Barron, one son, Frederick, on the homestead, and three daughters, Mrs. Wm. Bryerton, of Carillon, Mrs. Jas. Edwards, of St. Philippe, and Mrs. Robert Robertson, of Montreal. A brother, Mr. John Fitzgerald, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Lennon, both of Ottawa, also survive him.

Those from a distance who were present at the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lennon, Mrs. Wm. Lennon, and Mrs. Peter Moran, of Ottawa; Mrs. Wm. Moran, also of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Allison, of Vanleek Hill, Mr. and Mrs. R. Robertson and Mrs. J. Funcheon, of Montreal.

Double Arrest in Masson Shooting

Two Aliens Taken in Montreal by Provincial Detectives.

Signed declarations admitting the hold-up and shooting which occurred at Masson, Que., a week ago, when Joseph Daoust, proprietor of a grocery store, was held up and wounded by men who entered his store, have been obtained by the provincial police from Willy Willow and Alex. Hietala, two Finlanders, who were arrested in a house on Cathedral street, Montreal, over the week-end. The pair will be taken to Hull, where they will face the charges of robbery and attempted murder.

Chatham Municipality Will Not Split. Division Voted Down in Seven of Minority

Poll Registered Heavy Voting on Saturday. Record Interest Taken by Electors.

By a public ballot on Saturday, 12th. inst., a question which has long been discussed in Chatham Township came up for final decision, and a move among certain tax-payers in the first (front) ranges to become segregated under a distinct administration from the whole Municipality, was definitely voted down by a small margin of only seven votes. The poll was held at St. Philippe School House No. 1, and the ballot—open to electors in the first six ranges only—was well patronized, since almost every resident in that section of the Township had taken vital interest in the matter. The result of the referendum is that Chatham retains its former citizenry and municipal limits, and it is assumed there will be no further move for separation, for many years at least.

Correspondence relative to the question was received by this publication too late for last week's issue, and although the vote has since been taken, the letter is published this week. The merits of the proposed division are not fully discussed by said correspondent, but his argument on a ruling by the Deputy Minister of Municipalities is one which was freely discussed among the electors prior to the ballot. In the light of results made known since the vote on Saturday, our correspondent's view would have had little bearing, since it is assumed the North of the Municipality would have registered a heavy vote against the proposed division.

Waterway Seen as Menace To Railways

Spokesmen for American Roads and Eastern Seaboard Cities Heard at Senate

Fighting to prevent ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty between Canada and the United States, opponents of the project described it before a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee held in Washington this week, as a move that would endanger railroad securities and force the carriers into government ownership.

Spokesmen for the roads, railroad security holders and eastern seaboard cities were heard in the second day of argument against the treaty which was signed by the Dominion and the United States last July. Opponents of the scheme are testifying for the remainder of this week, and friends of the project will have a hearing later.

Topic of Lecture Has Local Interest

Dr. Sutherland at St. Andrews Discourses on "Geology"

The good people of St. Andrews had the privilege of learning much of the geological history of the Ottawa and North River Valleys from Dr. Sutherland's lecture, given in the United Church on Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th.

The Doctor has a happy gift of making scientific subjects comprehensible and popular. In graphic speech he carried his hearers through millenniums of ages from the time the earth's crust was first formed, when the scene was one of active volcanoes, to the period when this region was the bed of a vast ocean; the marine fossils found by Dr. Sutherland demonstrating how dependable is the testimony of the rocks.

During subsequent millenniums, when the water subsided, this region became the bed of a vast river, conveying the waters of the great inland seas to the Atlantic Ocean before the Niagara Gorge had been washed out. It appears to be the opinion of geologists that it was during this period that the Devil's garden on Rigaud Mountain formed part of the bed of this vast river, and was later thrown up to mountain height by some great convulsion of the earth's crust.

The Glacial Period was one of special interest in explaining the appearance of granite boulders, large and small, tearing down the Laurentian Mountain sides by rivers of ice, and floating and melting icebergs from the far north, dropping their cargoes of rocks on plains below as at Stonefield. Dr. Sutherland's splendid lecture has awakened a renewed interest in the study of geology.

DAVE TROTTIER ACQUITTED OF ASSAULT NEAR ST. ANDREWS

Acquittal was given on Tuesday to Dave Trottier, Montreal Maroon hockey player, charged with injuring Joe Albert, bread truck driver, by twisting and fracturing his leg on the highway near St. Andrews East last July. The case was dismissed by Judge Lacroix, when prosecution announced that it had no evidence to offer.

Dominion Loan is Fully Subscribed

Complete Issue of $80,000,000 is Taken Up

The National Loan of $80,000,000, offered to the public two weeks ago, has been subscribed, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, told the House of Commons Tuesday night.

"Although it had been contemplated that the time in which the loan could be subscribed would be continued until tomorrow," the Minister said, "I am happy to say that today we passed the mark required."

This was rather encouraging, Mr. Rhodes continued, because it was not generally recognized that this was the first time in the history of Canada that a Government bond had been issued bearing an interest of four per cent. and opened for subscription by the public.

The Minister paid tribute to Sir Charles Gordon, chairman of the loan committee, to Victor Drury and others who had labored so industriously to make the loan a success.

St. Simeon's Players Score Big Hit in "The Arrival of Kitty"

More Laughs to the Minute than Movie Cartoon

The Auditorium was vibrant with the laughter that convulsed the large audience which gathered last Friday evening to see the farcical comedy "Kitty" put on by the St. Simeon's Club players. From the opening of the curtain until the final drawing it was one continuous scream and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the presentation, so genuine and realistic were the characters portrayed. The applause that greeted the artists evidenced appreciation for the splendid effort they had put into the practices.

The play is a great mix-up, there being two Janes and two Kittys who are being constantly taken for each other.

The scene is enacted in the dining room of the Halcyon House in the Catskill Mountains. Ting the bell boy and Sam are left in charge for a few days. As Ting has no dress coat and is the boss he and Sam exchange clothes. A party of 4 arrives, consisting of an elderly gent, Wickler, an old maid sister Miss Jane, a young and pretty ward Jane, a maid and a dog. A will exists in which ward Jane must marry a friend of her father's, Benjamin More, within the year, otherwise her fortune of ten thousand dollars goes to an institution for feeble-minded cats and as this is the last day of grace the bridegroom is expected within a few hours. Pretty Jane however is in love with Bobby Baxter, a young and good looking lad of twenty-two, who follows and finds himself a guest at the same Hotel.

Meanwhile Aunt Jane begs her brother-in-law to try and arrange a marriage for her, saying it is an awful thing to pass into spinsterhood unwooed, unadorned and unloved, and she promises him ten thousand dollars the day he makes her the better half of a good man. Wickler after some time spent in thought, consults with Ting, who suggests calling up the Matrimonial Bureau to send up a man.

In the meantime Bob and Ward Jane meet and are discovered making love by Winkler who orders Bob out of the Hotel advising him that Miss Jane will be married to Mr. More within a few hours.

William D. Raitt Dies in Montreal

Formerly Resident of Lachute

The death occurred at the Homeopathic Hospital on Saturday last, of William Duffrin Raitt, of 2201 Oxford Avenue, Notre Dame de Grace. He was in his 55th. year.

Mr. Raitt was born in Lachute, and was the eldest son of the late John and Mrs. Raitt. He was educated at the Academy. Some 28 years ago he went to Montreal where he entered the confectionery business. For practically all of that time he had been employed with Robinson & Co., confectioners. He was a member of St. Luke's Church, N.D.G., and had been associated with Canadian Artillery, 2nd Battalion, for some 21 years.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Daisy Bradford; a son, John; five daughters, the Misses Eva, Violet, Ruby, Katherine and Olive, and three sisters, Miss A. Raitt, Mrs. R. Day and Mrs. F. Noel, of St. Albans.

The funeral service was held on Monday evening at the chapel of Jos. C. Wray & Bro., Mountain Street, and on Tuesday morning the remains were brought to Lachute for interment in the local cemetery.

This should encourage people who worry too much about their health. John Smith, of Wampsville, N. Y., tried three times to enlist in the Union army during the Civil War, but was each time rejected on account of his poor physical condition. He recently celebrated his 100th. birthday.

Lachute Honors War Dead . . . Fitting Commemoration of 14th. Armistice Anniversary

Clergy, Citizens, Veterans, Boy Scouts, Join in Memorial Proceedings.

Those of our citizens for whom the Great War spelled tragedy in the sacrifice of their own nearest and dearest, could not but feel gratified with the sincerity of tribute paid last Friday to the Glorious Dead; for although less generously attended than last year's celebration, Remembrance Day devotions saw the local Auditorium well filled, and the simple rites of the ceremony were observed with deep feeling and reverence.

Rev. H. Cousens presided with a quiet sympathy fitting to the occasion and with apt conception of the meaning which this day held for many present among the gathering. On the platform and assisting in the service were several members of the local clergy, including Revs. J. A. Lackey, J. R. MacLeod, W. B. Rosborough, and F. W. Dyson; the latter delivering a well chosen message from the one text which characterizes the supreme and uttermost in sacrifice, namely, "Greater love hath no man—"

The service further included appropriate hymns, prayer and scripture reading, also a rendering by the Lachute Male Quartette entitled "Flanders Fields." Miss Ruth Todd officiated at the piano.

In recalling the spirit and circumstance of those sacrifices which the Day commemorates, it has been said no gesture of tribute could be found more expressive, more eloquent, than the two minutes of complete silence. And truly, in the hush of the great hall where bowed heads betokened the attitude of this assembly, one felt the spirit of departed loved ones came nearest. Yet to many who attended this brief service and the exercises which followed in the adjoining Memorial Park, nothing could quite equal the stirring poignancy with which the Last Post was sounded, floating again over a circle of bowed heads, and piercing to the hearts of many who perhaps never heard the strain before, yet now felt the pathos and eloquence of each silver note. Certainly for those who

Communications Disrupted by Windstorm

Heavy windstorms the latter part of last week disrupted power and light service, also breaking telephone communications with long distance and out of town points. Broken poles and tangled wires, visible along most of the neighboring highways, gave evidence of the havoc caused by these unusually strong winds.

TOURISTS AND LIQUOR

Canada's tourist trade will not be threatened should the United States re-establish liquor traffic, according to a writer in the Port Arthur News-Chronicle, who shows that whiskey is not the main attraction for the millions of tourists who visit Canada. For every American who comes for liquor, hundreds come to see Canada, and pass the liquor stores with no more interest than a curious glance at the place. "Wet" propaganda has created quite a wrong impression.

Argenteuil Women's Institute Activities

Chatham Branch had an interesting address from Miss H. Davidson, Dept. of Immigration, Montreal, also a short talk from Mrs. Kuhring, on compiling a Women's Institute record book. Frontier had a talk on First Aid by Miss McCain of Macdonald College, also report of the executive meeting held at Mrs. Bothwell's.

Lachute had an interesting meeting, with Miss McCain addressing the ladies on The Selection and Planning of Meals, showing the important part meals play in our every-day life and happiness. They also heard addresses from Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Kuhring. Lachute are busy arranging to stage a play, the proceeds of which will go toward school equipment.

Lakefield served dinner for the local Farmers' Club plowing match, and had two new members join at this meeting.

Jerusalem-Bethany submitted no report.

Morin Heights reports a visit from Miss McCain also; the subject discussed by her on that occasion was "What it means to be a Canadian." Miss McCain urged the beautifying of our surroundings, also the placing of copies of pictures from the Ottawa Museum in our schools. A paper from Mrs. Kennedy was read, on "Education and Better Schools," also statistics concerning the decrease in deaths during the year.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

"DON'T THINK ABOUT YOURSELF"

Dear Boys :

Perhaps one of the most common failings, and one which all of us are tempted to suffer from, is that of being a self-seeker. If we take the trouble to study the lives of really great men, we shall discover that the real reason why they became leaders and are entitled to our respect, is that they refused to consider themselves but worked all the time for the cause they had so much at heart.

The world has no real place for the man who is selfish. If, when we are young, we develop along the lines of "Myself first and everybody else a long way after," we shall quickly find ourselves in that isolated position which selfish persons are compelled to occupy. No one really cares for a man of that description; he has no friends, enjoys no real happiness, and the material things that he has gathered around him are no compensation for the love and affection that his mean, thoughtless life has denied him.

What is going to help you, and through you, our Country, is a spirit of self-sacrifice and ever-increasing brotherhood. More and more we are compelled to realize that in these days we must co-operate together, sharing our gifts, both material and spiritual, with those who are less fortunate than ourselves. We must leave behind us all mistrust and suspicion, treading manfully and bravely the happy way of mutual confidence.

Am I my brother's keeper? The answer to this is surely Yes, if we realize who is our brother and how eager we ought to be to help him.

Ever your affectionate friend,

THE CAPTAIN.

Mystery Island

By Capt. O. J. Aldom.

Chapter 26.

Daybreak on the island found the cabin party far better provided for in the way of shelter than even Captain Pat, with all his cheery optimism, had hoped would be the case. The need of some position that would ensure safety in the event of an attack, and at the same time afford protection from a sudden storm, was of urgent importance. For this reason Jack, accompanied by Mr. Williams, had set out on a tour of exploration, to see what could be found. Because it was still fairly dark when they started, they kept to the shore line, climbing over numerous small rocks and boulders that strewn their path. Their way was slow, but after about fifteen minutes of travelling under these conditions, Jack suddenly drew his officer's attention to a huge rock which appeared to form the base of a small hill.

"Let's get over there, sir," he suggested. "If that is a cave, as I think it is, no better place for our purpose could be found anywhere. I am sure it could be held against anyone."

"You are right, my boy," was the hearty response. "We'll investigate at once."

Now, however, the way was more difficult as they had to climb upward, but eventually their efforts were rewarded far better than they had dared to hope. It was indeed a cave, wide at the entrance, with a lofty roof; but it grew smaller as they penetrated its interior. Soon they were not able to stand upright and Mr. Williams called a halt after he had twice painfully knocked his head. "We have seen enough," he said with a rueful grin; "we had better be getting back. I am sure that this is the place we need. There is a dry and sandy floor and it is, as you say, safe in an attack."

Later this opinion was corroborated by the remainder of the party, especially Babs, who named it at once 'Safety Point' because, as she took great pains to explain, "if it was difficult for us to reach here with no one to stop us, those wicked men will never be able to do so."

Capt. Pat laughed and patted her cheek. "Quite correct, little lady, and now as the sun has risen what do you say about some breakfast?"

"Cabin breakfast nearly ready sir," replied Hawkins who had overheard the remark. "We had some trouble to get the fire going but Robins has managed it alright."

The sail from the small boat had been brought up to the cave and spread over the flat surface of a large rock the whole making a very useful looking table, while packing cases, still containing provisions, were good substitutes for chairs.

It was not until they were half way through the meal that Jack's absence was noted. "Where is the boy?" asked his uncle, looking enquiringly towards Mr. Williams, "Did he not return with you?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, he did," was the answer. "But before we quite reached here he asked my permission to start off somewhere on his own, and I consented on the understanding that he took care what he was doing."

Simple as the explanation appeared, it far from satisfied the Captain, for a look of real concern spread over his face and he was about to make some sharp rejoinder when a cheerful voice said,—

"I hope, sir, that you have left me something to eat, for I am very hungry." It was Jack.

"Plenty of food, my boy," replied his uncle, "but before you get it, an explanation please, of where you have been!"

"Oh, just down where we left the boat sir," was the careless reply. "Now can I eat?"

"Not good enough," was the grim retort. "Be more exact, for our position is far too dangerous for any boyish pranks. Safety depends on keeping together."

Instead of replying Jack went back to the entrance of the cave and looked down the rocky path.

"See," he said, "they come! But don't reach for the guns. Pedro is carrying a white rag fixed to the end of an oar. The enemy comes to parley."

WHY THE ROBINS MOVED SOUTH

"This nest is cold," Sir Robin said, "My Dear, let's wander south; Your cloak's not fit for days like these, And the wind gets in my mouth."

I am going to sneeze, I know I am; I cannot sing a note—Kerchew! Kerchew! Kerchew, Kerchew! Oh, how that hurts my throat!"

Poor Mrs. Robin dosed him up With vaseline and sugar, But finally she took him south, To visit Dr. Kruger.

The doctor put on great big spec's, And opened Robin's beak,— Gave him a pill of maple buds, And bathed him in the creek.

I am quite sure they'll both be back To visit you next year, You'll hear them singing by your gate, Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer!

I have told you some of the robin's secrets, Children; but you see they forgot to tell me not to mention it, so I suppose it is quite alright.

The fairies must have heard its cry and sent old Biddy Top Knot to that spot to hunt for worms. She had just laid an egg under the rose bush quite near there and felt in need of some food. As she came along she saw the seed and thinking it was a worm, picked it up; but finding it was not, dropped it again a few feet further out from the wall. Clucking impatiently, she started to scratch with all her might; the ground was quite hard. First she used one foot, then the other; and how that earth did fly! Clump, clump; the lumps flew, right over the little seed, until it was completely covered. It had its wish; the fire ball burned it no more, just made it feel warm and drowsy in its soft, dark nest so drowsy that it went to sleep and forgot all about its troubles. It did not even know that a blanket of pure white snow had been laid over its bed.

Months later it had swollen so with the dampness that it waked up feeling decidedly uncomfortable in its close quarters. "I must—oh, I must get out of this," it murmured. "I shall smother if I do not."

CHRISTIAN-SCIENCE LESSON-SERMON

"SOUL AND BODY" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches, Sunday, Nov. 20.

Golden Text: "I wait for the Lord, my soul doth wait, and in his word do I hope." (Psalms 130: 5).

Among the Scriptural selections comprised in the Lesson-Sermon are the following: "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness." "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." (Psalms 17: 15 and Romans 12: 2.)

Also included in the Lesson-

Crack, went its outside shell, as two little green sprouts burst out and started digging their way up to the light. "Children," the little seed murmured, "Do not do that! There is a huge fire ball out there, that will burn you up."

But the little sprouts did not listen. They wanted to see what was above them, so kept on digging until at last they were right outside.

"Oh! oh! What lovely smells," shouted the little sprouts. "Let us stay up here," said one to the other. "It is so much nicer."

The birds were singing in a tree nearby. A little lamb skipped on the other side of the wall, while its mother cropped the new short grass. Rover was chasing his tail in joyful play, uttering short, sharp barks of glee. Pussy Grey, feeding her kittens up in the barn mow, heard him and spat savagely; but he could not hear her, so it was all right.

The little sprouts stood staring, their heads well above ground. The fire ball their mother had told them of, began to burn, and burn, and they shoved funny-shaped little green umbrellas over their heads and just stayed where they were, until a big black cloud came over the fire ball. Drops of water fell from the cloud and the little sprouts heard their mother, seed whisper "Drink, children, drink for me. I am so thirsty." So they drank and drank until they felt themselves growing taller and taller. And they grew so far away from their mother that they could not hear her voice any more. She sent several of their brothers and sisters after them to tell them how much she loved them, and they too stayed up above the ground, and they were hurrying as fast as they could to catch up with their taller brothers.

They did not mind the sun so much now; it had turned the color of their green umbrellas into a mixture of green and light brown. But they liked that much better and kept on reaching up to him, and growing quite stout and strong until some little girls and boys, looking for flowers, saw them and said, "Oh look at these dear little maple trees." Their voices were so loud that even Little Seed heard them down below. A shiver of joy went over her frail body. She murmured contentedly. "Mother Tree was right. I did have some work to do in the world, and I have done it well."

Ripley town council has purchased a quantity of cordwood and any unemployed transients who are seeking food and a lodging, will be invited to partake of a bit of exercise before dining.

A scientist declares that a man's health is indicated by the length of time he can hold his breath. It might be added that his wisdom is indicated by the length of time he can hold his tongue.

Sermon are the following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is not a material habitation for Soul; he is himself spiritual." "This understanding makes the body harmonious; it makes the nerves bones, brain, etc., servants, instead of masters." (Pages 477 and 216.)

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Where the Modern Boy Finds Adventure.

Rescuing a man from a ledge half way down a 400-foot cliff, fighting hay fires on farms; searching for a child lost on the moors; rescuing a valuable horse that had fallen on its back in a narrow ditch—these 1932 camp good turns remind that English Boy Scouts are not behind their Canadian brothers in finding adventure in Scouting.

Another Educator Commends Scouting.

Discussing "Waste Forces of Human Nature" in the "London Observer," Prof. L. P. Jacks credits Baden-Powell with making through Scouting "one of the greatest discoveries of modern times in the field of utilizing human forces otherwise wasted" i.e., converting the play hunger and love of adventure of the boy into self-control, courage, loyalty and readiness to accept responsibility.

Young Spanish Life Savers.

That Spanish Boy Scouts are not behind those of other lands in life saving skill and courage was shown this summer at a Spanish bathing resort when two young women were swept several hundred yards from shore by a strong tide. Two 14-year old Scouts went to their aid and after a long struggle got them near shore, where other Scouts helped. One young woman recovered; the Scouts persisted four hours in a fruitless effort to revive the other. No effort was made by onlookers to assist in the rescue.

Scouting Popular in Persia.

There are 5,000 Boy Scouts in Persia, and their number is growing rapidly under the enthusiastic leadership of the Persian Crown Prince. Scout troops have been organized at the English, American and Armenian missionary schools.

A Scout Choir Good Turn.

The Boy Scout choir of Christ Church, Hartlepool, when camping this summer gave their services to the local church, which lacked a choir, provided music for the wedding of a daughter of the farmer on whose land they were camping, and formed a guard of honour outside the church.

In Wayne County, N. C., a depressed farmer cut off the rear end of his disused automobile, fastened shafts to the axle, backed in a mule and went riding. Other farmers, unable to buy 23c gasoline with their cotton produce at 7c., or $5. tires with tobacco at 11c., did the same. Soon the roads of eastern North Carolina were over-run with similar vehicles pulled by mules, horses, oxen, goats or a pair of husky boys

CHATHAM MUNICIPALITY WILL NOT SPLIT

CORRESPONDENCE

Re the Proposed Division

Whether ingnorantly or equivocally, great pains are being exerted just now by a faction in the Township of Chatham, to show the advantages to be gained by a split in this good old fabric that was set up over 80 years ago by our forefathers. And they built so well, and laid such solid foundations, that even now we can find no cracks in the underpinnings. I do not attempt to say that we have no dissatisfactions or defects—but these can be corrected by a little consideration and adjustment (that is what our Council is for). I do say, however, we have no internal troubles which cannot be remedied by legislation—no defects sufficient to warrant the division of an organization such as we have.

So far I agree with the Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, who has agreed to sanction this secret ballot to be taken on the matter. But with all due respect to the Minister, however, I beg leave to differ with him in limiting this ballot to the electors of the first six ranges of Chatham, and not extending a vote to the whole twelve ranges. . . . What would have been the result had this principle been applied to the United States prior to the Civil War! It will be remembered by those who have read, the issue at stake at that time was, not the liberation of the blacks, but the prevention of the States south of the Mason and Dixon line from ceding to the Union.

—And we in the Township of Chatham are in about the same position. There were many residing south of the Mason and Dixon line, as well as many residing north, who did not wish for secession from the Union; and when South Carolina made the break to secede, steps were taken to put her in line, long before the question came up concerning ultimate liberation of the blacks. Indeed, we read that on May 19, 1862, Lincoln issued a proclamation revoking General Hunter's order to set the slaves free, and expressed himself willing to compensate for any public or private inconvenience produced by such change of system.

But in the approaching ballot, should the vote turn in favor of division in our municipality, who is to recompense the North of the Township for inconveniences such division must cause in a number of cases?

Take, as illustration, our water courses alone; for geographically we are so closely knit together that in the matter of water courses we cannot be separated one from the other, in many cases. And there are a good many other cases, of just as great importance to the North as to the South of the municipality, which space does not permit me to enumerate. . . . So therefore I differ with the Deputy Minister, and contend this ballot should be extended to those living in the North of the Township as well as those living in the South, for all are equally interested. We need a frugal government which, without permitting a man to harm his neighbor, will nevertheless afford the equal rights and privileges to which all British subjects and Canadian citizens are entitled.

Taxes Up — Valuation Down!

Taxable valuations in the state of Massachusetts in 1931 shrank $52,000,000, but $7,000,000 more taxes were levied. It is not surprising that there is universal protest against any further increase in taxation.

Quebec will Help Build Florida-Gaspe Highway.

Making a new bid for greater tourist trade, Quebec is to aid in creation of a boulevard from Florida to Gaspe.

The department of highways and mines has accepted the suggestion made some time ago by the Dixie Gulf Coast Highway Association, a non-professional organization, to lengthen the Dixie Gulf Coast Highway up the Hudson and on to the St. Lawrence River's mouth.

At present the highway runs from Pensacola, Florida, to Athens, Georgia. The new road would continue through North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and by Albany and Plattsburg, New York, to the St. Lawrence River opposite Montreal, then down to Gaspe.

It is understood Hon. J. E. Perrault, minister of highways and mines, will be chosen as a Canadian vice-president of the association, and the mayors of Montreal, Three Rivers, Quebec, Levis, Riviere du Loup and Rimouski will be on the committee.

Small Towns Promise Speedier Recovery.

Students in the trend of commerce and industry foresee a new field of opportunity opening for the small town in the near future. As one of them remarks, the small town is going to come back strong in the re-arrangement of things to emerge from this economic muddle, and the wise municipality will begin now to sweep its decks and rid the ship of barnacles and barriers. It will be very difficult for the large centres to materially reduce the burdens of debt and taxation. But the smaller places can, and this is to their advantage. The towns which go about the big task of reducing their tax rates will benefit thereby largely in the years ahead.

Is Moving Property "Moveable"?

Very frequently under legal cross-fire, the term moveable, and its antonym, will appear for discussion again before the Montreal courts, in a rather unusual proceeding.

The trouble arose when one Eugene Drouin, lawyer, bought a block of houses from the City of Montreal to make way for the Papineau Ave. tunnel. Having acquired the property, the new owner proceeded literally to remove it. He had reached no further than the nearby street intersection, when Philippe Cholette, rental agent, placed a seizure on the structure, and the contractors were compelled to leave the block of houses in the street, where they remained for several days obstructing the traffic.

In placing the building under a "saisie gagere," Cholette maintained he was only carrying out the spirit of the law, which notes that an attachment of this kind can be applied only to moveables; Cholette waited until the house started to move, and then applied the law.

The City solved an immediate traffic problem by ordering the guardian of the property to clear the intersection, and the building was eventually parked on a neighboring lot. . . . But the Superior Court will be left with a much more difficult decision to make—whether a house, because it is moving, is a "moveable" within the meaning of the law, or remains an immovable, as it is considered to be when in a permanent location. The validity of the seizure will depend upon the Court's decision.

Metropolis has Million Dollar Fire-Alarm Building.

The first official inspection of Montreal's $1,000,000 fire alarm head-quarters was made by members of the Executive, who were conducted through the building by Arthur Parent, superintendent of electric services. The council visited the training school where operators will receive instruction, the cable room where thousands of strands of cable leading to all parts of the city are installed, to serve the hundreds of fire alarm boxes, and the battery room where 8,200 cells are charged to operate the signal service.

In the operating room, a demonstration was given of the operation of the fire alarm system, Uniform Schools Sought in Canada.

British Columbia school trustees in annual session at Kelowna, B.C., last month, endorsed a resolution urging the establishment of a common system of education in all the provinces of the Dominion, including standardized text books.

Sherbrooke Relief System Praised

The soup-kitchen system introduced by the Sherbrooke City Council to provide relief for the unemployed has found favor among many municipalities throughout the province and enquiries are being received from different points asking details of this relief method.

Mayor T. D. Bouchard, M.L.A., of St. Hyacinthe, visited the city with a party of five aldermen and members of the St. Hyacinthe Independent Relief Commission who were greatly impressed with the relief measures and declared that it would soon be adopted in St. Hyacinthe.

A Modern Note in Taxes.

Members of an association of ratepayers in Lethbridge, Alberta, have decided that they will pay no more taxes to the city treasury unless and until council dismisses married women in civic employment—says an Exchange. How they are to escape the penalties provided for non-payment we are not told, and since their property would not be seized for some years their bluff is not likely to be called, but the incident is not without interest.

These Lethbridge taxpayers have the Gandhi complex in a mild form. If they cannot have their way they refuse to pay; Gandhi quits eating. The Lethbridge form is distinctly less unpleasant. In fact there are great numbers of people who would welcome some means, any means, of avoiding the payment of taxes but it does not seem that Lethbridge has hit upon a solution.

Personal liberty, the freedom of the individual, unfortunately does not cover non-payment of taxes. We pay in a score of ways every day and there is no way of getting around the painful necessity. The indignant Lethbridge people, we suspect, will go on paying just like all the rest of us, and by the time civic elections come, and it is possible for them to do something effective about their grievance, they will have forgotten what all the fuss was about. That is the common way of protest.

WHY COVERED BRIDGES WERE COVERED

Covered bridges, common on country highways in many sections of the United States a generation or two ago, have virtually vanished. Recently the New World has raised the question, Why were covered bridges covered? In its zeal to find the answer the World has gone researching, studying musty engineering books and consulting bridge-building experts. Yet it remarks sadly in a recent editorial, "We can't say that our researches have turned up anything very satisfactory in the way of an explanation."

No wonder! Its researches dealt with questions of preventing snow from collecting on the structure, of protecting bolts and rods from rusting, and such uninteresting and inconsequential details. We frankly are surprised at the World. Why research? Any country boy can tell in a jiffy why bridges were covered.

They kept the thick, cool dust dry so that it was soft on the boy's bare feet and "squozed" easily and pleasantly between his toes when he scuffed through it.

By excluding the rain they preserved for more than one season the posters proclaiming the auctions on farms for miles around, the virtues of Pratt's Poultry Food, the attractions at the County Fair, and the wonders of the jungle as revealed in the Greatest Circus on Earth.

Such bridges afforded the best place to stop and rest the horses when you were riding home on a load of hay.

They were the safest, driest and most inviting places for swallows and squirrels to build their nests. On rainy days they made a better place to play than even the haymow. But if you batted the baseball to the end of the bridge you were out.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE AND WORLD PEACE

As the mothers of young men who are now coming into manhood, watch the rapidly aging and frail mothers, and the sorrowful silent next-of-kin of the World War heroes, lay their tributes on the cenotaphs, Remembrance Day takes on a new significance. And when we hear men say casually—"There's sure to be another war"—we feel a sudden clutch of dread. Even in the face of the cynic, we look to world peace movement to save us. Men may sit in weighty councils of the League of Nations at Geneva; we may be confused with its international intricacies, or become impatient with its slow decisions. But translate war into the lives of our sons, then unanimously we hurl ourselves into the support of world peace. That is why "The League of Nations," "World Disarmament," "World Peace" always finds a place on the programs of Women's Clubs. That is why women, by the hundreds, sign peace petitions.

Of all the women's organizations working for this cause, there is none more active than the 2,535 branches of Canadian Women's Institutes. They have a national League of Nations convenor, Mrs. T. A. Cohoe, Pilot Mound, Man., who directs the provincial convenor, who in turn outlines the course of study for the branch convenors.

From the little town of MacLeod, Alberta, comes evidence of interest in world peace, in the form of a resolution passed by the MacLeod-Claresholm Women's Institute constituency conference: "That we request the Women's Institutes throughout the world, to do all in their power, either by word of mouth, by writing, or in all possible ways of influence, use their efforts to persuade the powers that be, to have the inscription on the stone, which marks the place of the signing of the Armistice revised or removed, in the interest of peace and better understanding. At present this inscription reads — 'Here succumbed the criminal pride of the German Empire, erected by the free people, whom they attempted to enslave.'"

This is not the first time that MacLeod has been associated with "Law and Order," for 68 years ago it came into being as Ft. MacLeod, the first post of the North West Mounted Police, established at the end of that first famous "March of '74."

Mrs. W. F. Cameron, Regina, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, has been an ardent advocate and worker for the peace movement, since its beginning. While in Canada this summer, Miss Mary Craig McGeechie, of the League of Nations Staff, Geneva, made a point of getting in touch with Mrs. Cameron to secure Women's Institute reports, programs, outlines of study, etc., for her permanent files in Geneva.

This was a result of an enquiry of Lady Chatterjee, of the overseas delegation party from India to the Imperial conference who called at Geneva to get information on Women's Institutes. Lady Chatterjee was greatly impressed with the practical helpfulness of these organizations in Canada, and in India, where they have been started. "I feel sure," she said, while in Canada, "that if the League of Nations can secure the co-operation of this wonderful international organization of women, it will have taken a great step in achieving its object."

Visitor—"So you have triplets at your house? Has your father names for them yet?"

Willie Willis—"Yes; but I don't think any minister would baptize them with what pa calls them."

Before marriage she's worth her weight in gold; afterward, when she has put on forty or fifty pounds, she goes off the gold standard.

A CONTINUING MENACE

Motorists are being constantly urged to exercise consideration and to dim their car's headlights as they approach one another on the highways at night. Glaring lights are one of the greatest annoyances with which motorists persistently aggravate one another. Revealing a state of mind and an indifference to danger which can be matched only by those drivers of vehicles who refuse to carry any light, the glarelight habit singularly persists and with no excuse, inasmuch as the offender is well acquainted with the annoyance and danger he must cause.

JUNIOR FARMERS AT OTTAWA WINTER FAIR

The Junior Farmer movement in Canada is undoubtedly the greatest practical, educational medium in Agriculture. As such, it continues to occupy the limelight at our local and larger fairs and exhibitions. The Ottawa Winter Fair is giving full measure of support to this work, and again this year will feature the Junior Department through a series of live stock judging competitions, with inter-county contests and junior showmanship classes. The provincial Departments of Agriculture for Ontario and Quebec and the Dominion Live Stock Branch in Ottawa are co-operating with the secretary of the Canadian Council and the Winter Fair Management to make these competitions the most useful and attractive staged in this part of Ontario. The prize money set aside for the junior competitions is quite liberal and excellently placed. Although the exhibition is some two weeks distant, Boys' and Girls' Clubs have already developed intense interest, and it is hoped that when entries close on November 18th, there will be record competition promised.

The junior farmer classes will be staged in the mornings of November 29th, to December 2nd. In the afternoons and evenings the main shows will occupy the tanbark and these promise to be as attractive as arrangement and preparation can make them. The prize monies take care of a very wide range of classes, so as to serve as fully as possible every phase of live stock production.

This year's fair needs the fullest support which the farmers of the Ottawa Valley are in a position to give. Good live stock is the foundation of good agriculture, and the types and qualities which are most profitable and popular may be seen in numbers at this year's Winter Fair. Every farmer in the Ottawa Valley and beyond is cordially invited to enter competition if he can, but at any rate to attend the fair for at least one day, between November 29 and December 2.

LAKEFIELD

Mrs. T. McCambly motored to Montreal on Wednesday last, to be with her daughter Miss W. Evans, who underwent an operation and is now progressing favorably.

Miss Winnie Silverson has been a recent guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Silverson.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Andrews spent the week-end with Mrs. Andrews' mother, Mrs. Robert Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Andrews and son Hartland have returned home, after spending some time in Montreal.

and eloquence of each silver note. Certainly, for those who had "seen service," who had caught the message of bugle calls wafting over military encampments—we are sure the sounding of this call brought more of feeling and remembrance than any other phase of the Armistice Day observance.

The readiness with which so many classes, ages, and sects co-operated to make Remembrance Day effective in this community was indeed significant. The 1st Lachute Troop Boy Scouts rallied in full force and exemplified the solemn spirit of the occasion. They assisted in the exercises, lowering the flag to half-mast as Scout Master C. Duncan played the Last Post, and afterwards depositing a wreath at foot of the monument on behalf of the Troop. The County Women's Institutes also tendered a wreath, which was placed by Mrs. A. Bothwell; Miss L. Hampton depositing a similar token on behalf of the St. Simeon's Ladies' Auxiliary.

Throughout the morning a sale of poppies was conducted in town, kindly undertaken by the Misses M. Bernier, H. McFaul, C. Miller, V. Falconer, A. Rosborough, B. Clunie, L. Goldsworthy, G. Giles, who gave their services with commendable willingness. The unfavorable weather added difficulties to their work, as it also discouraged many from attending the Remembrance Day proceedings. This doubtless accounted for the decrease in attendance from last year's service. From the sale of poppies the gratifying sum of $41 was reported. After deducting for the purchase of the flowers, made by war veterans in the Montreal Veterans Shops, these proceeds will be available for the needs of our local ex-service men or their dependents, as need may arise. At the special collection taken in the Auditorium, the sum of $27 was received, which is to be devoted half to the same cause and the remainder to the Verdun Protestant Hospital.

It is opportune to record once again the names of our County boys who served and died in the Great War. These names are inscribed on the Argenteuil County War Memorial at Lachute, around which, standing in the beautiful Memorial Park, the people assembled reverently to pay honor and tribute.

LACHUTE BOY SCOUT NEWS

The members of the 1st Lachute Troop Boy Scouts met on Wednesday evening of this week as usual. Several interesting scoutcraft games were played and instruction was given in signalling during the evening.

F. Stein, L. Kerr and J. MacGibbon of the Fox Patrol, and A. Ashworth of the Crow Patrol, passed their Kim's Game, which constitutes one of the second class tests.

The Patrol standing in the troop competition is as follows:

Crow Patrol 293 points.

Fox Patrol 290 points.

Wolf Patrol 288 points.

Bull-dog Patrol 286 points.

The Court of Honor met for a short session after the regular meeting had been dismissed.

MIDDLE PROFITS

(Eastern Ontario Review)

Surely there is something radically wrong with a marketing system which allows of the purchase of a live hog from the farmer at the rate of about 6c. per pound and then for the retailer to charge the high prices still prevailing for meat in the city stores.

Practically the same ratio of difference between purchase and selling price is apparent in all cases of farm produce. The farmer is not getting his fair margin of profit based on the retail price of the things he produces.

It is easy to talk of depression and lower cost of living; easy to say that retail price indexes have fallen off... sure they have but the proportionate difference between the drop in retail prices and the net reduction in the price paid to the farmer is beyond all reason.

The farmer says he is not making money, this should be obvious; the retailer also says he is not making money. At first glance, this latter statement may appear to be absurd, but is it? Let us examine the facts.

Often, between the buying and selling prices, there is a difference of three to four hundred per cent. Where then does this profit go? Actual production costs have been pared to the bone, but it would appear that there is something radically wrong with the marketing or handling of produce; in other words, it is the middle man who absorbs more than a fair share of the profits. Produce passes through too many hands and has to stand many profit cuts before it actually reaches the consumer. Marketing today is too complicated.

Middlemen commission men, brokers and others, have sprung up like a poisonous growth and it is extremely doubtful if they are so vitally necessary to commerce. What we require is a co-operative marketing board where profits can be apportioned on an equitable basis.

Farmers' Co-operative Societies, Cheese Boards and Fruit Growers' Association have done much to prove the assertion that co-operative marketing brings greater profits. The answer to it all is "Organization." Not organization for an increased retail price but for a fair share of that price for the producer, the farmer.

Here and There

Over 100,000 radio receivers are reported annually from Canada, principally to Germany and the United States. They are caught along the lower St. Lawrence River and off the Atlantic Coast.

A total of 211,111 radio receivers have been issued by the Canadian Government Radio Branch from April 1 to September 30, 1932, or approximately one to every eight persons of the population of the Dominion.

A movie theatre has been installed on R. M. S. Aorangi on its Australasian run and passengers had the first entertainment in that line on a recent voyage. This is the first ship to reach Vancouver carrying sound movie equipment.

China's first woman barrister, Mrs. Lo Soon Kim Teo, was among the passengers aboard the Empress of Russia, recently sailing from Vancouver. Mrs. Soon obtained her legal training in England and is attached to the Hong Kong bar.

The Canadian people seem to have developed a considerable taste for macaroni, vermicelli, spaghetti and the like Italian food preparations. Output of 14 Canadian factories in 1931 was 20,311,423 pounds as compared with 16,819,625 lbs. in 1930.

With Remembrance Day in our minds, it is timely to recall the brief epitome of Canada's part in the war inscribed on a tablet in the House of Parliament at Ottawa:—"Six hundred twenty-eight thousand, six hundred forty-two bore the badge of Canada in the Great War; sixty thousand six hundred sixty-one met death and passed on."

Good hunting is reported from the Bates Camp, near Matagami, Ontario, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, seventy miles east of Sudbury. Moose and deer are very numerous close to the camp and in one morning a couple of U. S. hunters secured a fine bull moose and a deer. They killed to the limit of their licenses within a few days.

A free scholarship to be held at Ecole Polytechnique of the University of Montreal, offered by the Canadian Pacific Railway to minor sons of employees of the railway, was awarded to J. P. Lecavaller, 18-year-old son of Ephrem Lecavaller, chief clerk at the Mile End Station. The award entitles to five years study proceeding to the degree of Bachelor of Civil Engineering.

Canadian Pacific Railway low rate return bargain excursions, a highly popular feature of the railway's operation since February last, have been and will be well maintained up to the end of the year. Outstanding recently have been the trip to Chicago from Montreal and the shorter trips into and out of the major cities from and to the surrounding provinces. The rate and a quarter fare for return trips during the Remembrance Day holiday was well patronized and this concession is again to be offered for the Christmas and New Year holidays. (876)

NEW EXPERIENCES IN MASTERY OF MUSIC

One associates the learning of music with months, years of agonized displeasure! It has been discovered, however, among the pupils of Prof. Boyce meeting every Saturday afternoon at McArthur's Hall, that the course of instruction in his various stringed instruments is both pleasurable and progressive. In a season's work, one advances quite far in the mastery of one's instrument; and without undue groaning in despair and exasperation! The actual course affords pleasure in itself, the cost is reasonable, and the ultimate triumph of being able to play with skill and ease, is an immeasurable delight to the student.

STRAY "FIREBALL" IN HEAVENS THRILLS MONTFORT RESIDENT

According to astronomical authorities at McGill University the following letter from W. Wheeler of Montfort, Que., gives a description of an unusually vivid meteor. The letter is dated Sunday last.

"This morning at 6.55 o'clock" Mr. Wheeler writes, "I saw travelling across the sky from north to south, and very low, something that looked like a torpedo about a foot wide. The nose of it was a deep orange color. It ran into all colors of the rainbow, with sparks falling from it."

"I watched it for about 15 seconds. If left a white train in the sky that lasted about 15 minutes. It looked like a torpedo travelling through the water." McGill astronomers are of the opinion that the meteor was a stray "fireball" and not from the constellation of Leo as most people would presume at this time.

They base their opinion on direction of the meteor, observed as travelling from north to south. At the hour given meteorologists from the constellation of Leo would quite likely be travelling at right angles to the direction given.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Ed. Fitzgerald and family wish to thank their friends and relations for their kind sympathy, mass offerings, etc., in their recent sad bereavement.

Patrons of the "Rex Theatre" will be pleased to hear that this popular House of Amusement is not to change hands. With the sad death of Mrs. Fassio a few weeks ago, it was thought her husband would not carry on, but since the advent of Mr. and Mrs. Fassio to Lachute they had worked so hard to build up the business during which time they made many lasting and true friendships, that their son Angelo of New York, decided to come to Lachute, and run the business with his father. Mr. Angelo Fassio and his wife and daughter will be an acquisition to the town for he is a Professor of Music and deeply interested in advancement of musical affairs.

"Montreal Gazette"

The Royal Automobile Club of Canada, in delving into old Montreal by-laws, has come across the regulation of 1876 providing that every vehicle should have two lighted lamps at night. This is the old law which applied especially to horse cabs before the days of automobiles and which the police were more or less vigilant in having observed, and more or less successful. It would be in the interests of safety on the streets if the comparatively few remaining horse vehicles were compelled to abide by the forgotten law, and it would be even better if the great number of motorists who nightly ignore the law respecting parking in dark places without lights on, or who proceed with only one light or with blazing lights in brilliantly-lighted streets, could be persuaded to set an example for the drivers of horses. These offences cause many accidents and have resulted in some deaths.

The Semi-Annual Meeting of the Curling Association was held on Thursday evening last, when matters pertaining to the coming winter activities were discussed. Applications are available for new members who, for a nominal fee may enjoy some real sport. Mr. Rice is again in charge of the rink and the skips for the season have been elected. All the club now awaits is ice.

On Monday evening last Laurentian Masonic Lodge, No. 67 were honored with a visit from Wor. Bro. Webber and delegation from Hudson, and Wor. Bro. Kennedy and delegation from Aylmer.

There was a large turn out to the regular meeting and a very interesting address was given by Wor. Bro. Kennedy, along with a few remarks by the visiting brethren. A pleasant hour was spent at the festive board in making all present doubly welcome.

Watch Your Washing.

A timely hint for those who have not already been victimized is hereby given. Certain parties have been making the rounds of our town and helping themselves to the contents of the clothes line. Evidently they know what they want, for only the best is taken. Moral:—Remove the temptation by taking in your washing at night.

MORIN HEIGHTS

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Doherty spent Sunday visiting friends in Point Fortune.

Miss Winnie Dunlop is spending an extended visit with friends in Montreal.

Mrs. Park and sons of Montreal, spent Armistice Day and the week-end at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jos. E. Brown.

Mrs. G. Martin, sister of Mr. John Seale, has returned home to Santiago, Calif., having spent the past seven months with relatives in the East.

Miss Belle Grant, Miss Olive Seale, and Mr. C. M. Hodgdon, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Seale from Thursday until Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kennedy and Mrs. Wesley Doherty and children motored to Lachute on Sunday. Mrs. Kennedy remained for a few days.

Mr. Wm. J. Campbell is a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital having undergone an operation. His mother, Mrs. S. Campbell, is at present in Montreal.

The first card party of the season was held on Saturday, Nov. 12th. in Mr. Boyd's Ice-cream Parlor, under the auspices of the Women's Institute. "500" was the game of the evening and the winners were Miss E. Pibus, and Mr. R. Campbell, with the consolation prizes going to Miss Shearer and Mr. H. Brown.

Mr. Lorne Brown, who is taking the Teacher's Course at Macdonald College, spent the holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown. His many friends were pleased to hear of his having taken second place in hurdle jumping at the McGill Sports, where he competed against McGill College, Montreal, and the Royal Military College, Kingston.

While visiting friends in Montreal over the week-end, Mr. W. Ward had the misfortune to be in an automobile accident, on Sunday morning. The car in which Mr. Ward was travelling, driven by Mr. Ernie Elliot, was struck by another machine, and turned over, Mr. Ward receiving injuries to his neck. Word was received on Tuesday that he was improving and that within a few days he would be able to return home.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church held their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. F. Goldthorp. Owing to the uncertain weather the attendance was not as large as usual. Mrs. D. Davis read a most interesting letter to the Ladies' Aid from Mrs. H. Walker, written from Skerton, Lancaster, England, where the Rev. H. Walker is stationed. Arrangements were made for the purchasing of presents for the annual Xmas Tree and a substantial amount was voted to be paid towards reducing the debt of the new church.

A MODERN FATHER'S LETTER

(Wall Street Journal)

My dear daughter:

You ask me if your husband should stay on in his present position at an "adjusted" salary but you forget to tell me what he would do if he didn't. You and he couldn't very well come here just now. Your brother Sheridan's salary has just been "reconsidered," so he moved into his old room at home, and brought his wife.

Your sister Eloise telegraphed the next day that Wilfred has just been offered a new contract that was an insult, so your mother is airing out her room. Wilfred never could endure insults. Your sister Francis, who you will recall, has been a private secretary, wrote last week that if anybody thinks she is going to drop to the level of a common typist, they are mistaken so we expect her any day.

What with those and the young children, I imagine that as long as Rupert's salary is merely being "adjusted," he had better stay. An adjustment is nothing like a reduction. It's hard for me to keep up with the new language of big business, but as I understand it, an "adjustment" is the equivalent of a rise. Of course Rupert wouldn't know that; he has been working only since 1928; he should ask some old timer to explain what a raise is.

My own business is coming a long time. It was sold on the courthouse steps last Friday, but there were no bidders, so the sheriff let me keep it. That makes the best month I've had since the upturn.

Your affectionate Father.

TO INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

There was a story 'The confessions of an actor's wife' in a recent Saturday Evening Post which pointed a moral. This woman said something to this effect—shortly after her marriage she decided that as self-confidence was a very necessary part of an actor's equipment, it was part of her job as a wife, to foster that confidence and to always keep her husband thinking well of himself and his work.

That idea bears a bit of thinking about. Most married women have confidence in their husband's abilities—even if they never tell them so. But a little honest praise and encouragement does us all good. As for our children, it is a good thing youth has courage and confidence in itself. So many mothers see all the faults and disadvantages and nag and scold them, until it is a wonder that the children ever get any place. Wouldn't it be better if we told them of the things they did well and send them out into the world with added assurance?

WASHING ELASTIC

Elastic is a part of so many articles to wear that it is necessary to know how to wash it without doing damage. Even the elastic in corselettes and elastic girdles may be washed successfully. Warm water is the secret; hot water ruins elastic. Use a soapy warm water of about 90 degrees and make heavy suds. Lay the article flat and scrub it gently with a soft brush. Squeeze dry, without twisting or wringing. Rinse in cool water and dry in a cool place.

Elastic in children's bloomers should not be put into hot water. If it is necessary to use hotter water to remove dirt, keep the elastic out of the hot water and rub with a brush. Rinse in warm water.

A small brush should be a part of the laundry equipment as it quickly cleans soiled parts such as the collars and cuffs of men's shirts, or the very dirty spots on the children's clothes.

CHEESE

Calcium is the lacking mineral in most diets, particularly adult diets. We get some but not nearly enough. Milk and the leafy vegetables are the most convenient sources of calcium. We need phosphorous too, and calcium and phosphorous are found in the right proportions for our needs in milk. How many adults drink milk? Are you, yourself, getting a pint each and every day? It need not all be taken, as a drink, but it should be incorporated in the food somehow.

REMEMBRANCE DAY OBSERVANCE AT THURSO

Armistice Day was well observed, by both old and young in this community on November eleventh. In the W. C. T. U. hall the children gave a varied programme in English and French, descriptive of the War, its phases of triumph and of sadness and of our determination for Peace. Mrs. R. B. Shaw, delegate from the Red Cross Headquarters, gave a remarkable address speaking of Health, Crippled Children and the multi-form and international services of the Red Cross. She brought with her the Five Year Certificate won by the local branch for continuity and loyalty. The Rev. C. W. P. Baugh and Mayor Gagnon were joint chairmen, representing the two nationalities. "O Canada", and "God Save the King" were heartily sung.

Cheese is a milk product and is high in calcium. There are so many ways of serving cheese that it should be included in our diets very frequently. Some people find cheese difficult of digestion. This may be obviated by cooking it as most find it easier to digest this way. Cheese should be finely divided and cooked at a low temperature to make it easy to digest. Occasionally, sprinkle some grated cheese on the children's vegetables and see how they enjoy it. The quantity of packaged cheese used in comparison with cheese by the pound is rather to be wondered at, as a good Canadian cheese is usually superior in quality to the packaged cheeses and certainly it is much cheaper. Advertising plays a large part in its popularity. I prefer the taste of Canadian cheese by the pound, but I more frequently buy packaged cheeses. Why? Chiefly because the packaged cheese is protected and will not dry out quickly. If the cheese manufacturers could put out their product in small protected packages to prevent hardening and drying out, they would greatly increase the sale of their product. That would be a good thing for all of us—the farmers who sell the milk, the workers who make the cheese, the merchants who sell it, and the manufacturers who make the products and containers necessary, lastly the consumers who eat it as cheese is a good food. Eat more of it, and increase your calcium consumption.

Lesson for November 27

STEWARDSHIP OF LIFE

Mark 1:16-20; Acts 26:12-19; I Corinthians 9:14-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—And this they did, not as we hoped, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God. II Corinthians 8:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Choosing a Worker.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Following the Leader.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving God Where We Are.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Living as God's Stewards.

By stewardship of life is meant the recognition of the fact that our personal being, including all of our powers, faculties and possessions—all that we have and are—belongs to God.

1. Four Fishermen Called to Stewardship (Mark 1:16-20).

1. Who they were (vv. 16, 19). Simon and Andrew, John and James; two pairs of brothers. It is usually wise to engage in the Lord's service in groups. This is not only desirable for effective testimony, but for needed fellowship on the part of the workers, and protection of the witnesses.

2. From what they were called (vv. 16, 20). These men were fishermen.

3. To what they were called (v. 17). They were to become fishers of men. The qualities which made them good fishermen were patience, courage to face the storm at night, and perseverance which led them to toil all night though no fish were caught. These qualities would make them good fishers of men.

4. The cost of obedience to Christ's call (vv. 18, 20). Obedience to Christ's call meant sacrifice and painful separation. It was to give up all business interest and leave their father.

5. Their reward (v. 17). Their names have become immortalized. Christ promised one hundred fold in this life and eternal life in the world to come.

II. Paul's Call to Stewardship (Acts 26:12-19).

1. His manner of life (vv. 1-12). In his defense before Agrippa he showed that he had been in the strictest accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. He possessed the same hope of a coming Deliverer and reminded them of the fact that formerly he was most bitterly opposed to Christ.

2. His supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). He declared that Christ had appeared and revealed himself to him on the way to Damascus.

3. Commissioned by Christ (vv. 16-18). He was sent to the Gentiles.

a. To open their eyes, which had been so awfully blinded.

b. To turn them from darkness to light.

c. To turn them from the power of Satan unto God.

d. That they might receive forgiveness of sins.

e. That they might obtain an inheritance among the saints.

4. His consecration (vv. 19-23). As soon as he received his commission, he rendered instant obedience.

III. Paul Impressing Stewardship Upon the Corinthians (I Cor. 9:16-27). The Corinthians were an intemperate and dissolute people. The surest and most effective way to combat vice is to inculcate virtue.

1. Paul's own life and example (vv. 19-23). Though free from all men, he made himself servant unto all. He most rigorously limited himself in order to gain others for Christ.

2. The Isthmian Games (vv. 24-27). Paul uses these popular games to illustrate the need of self-control. He showed that man was redeemed for a purpose. Those who would apprehend that purpose must possess a definite motive. He shows:

a. Life is a race (vv. 24-25). In order to win a prize there must be self-denial, and definite self-exertion. The Christian obtains life by contact with Jesus Christ through faith (John 3:16; John 3:35; John 5:24). This life must be possessed before he can begin the race. While he gets salvation, (life) at the beginning, God places before him definite rewards as incentives for exertion. The Christian believes for salvation but works for rewards. As the racer in these games abstains from everything that might hinder him, so the Christian will make any sacrifice in order to win. If the heathen would practice such self-denial for a garland of laurel, certainly the Christian should turn from all bodily indulgences to obtain the crown of righteousness which fadeth not away.

b. The Christian's life is a fight (vv. 26-27). His efforts are not merely beatings of the air. He has a real antagonist. In order to win success, his body must be kept in subjection. The believer has a severe struggle with his carnal nature.

The Natural Thing

We should seek to make our lives straight, and true, and healthful, and beautiful, because that is what they were meant to be; just as a tree grows upright, and broad, and leafy, because it is the natural thing for it to do.

Light to Our Path

"The word of God is not only a lamp to our feet and a light to our path, but exhorts us to courage and victory."

CHOCOLATE CUP CAKES

¾ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
¾ cup milk
2 cups pastry flour (or 1½ cups bread flour)
2 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2½ squares unsweetened chocolate

Cream shortening; add sugar slowly; add well-beaten egg yolks. Sift dry ingredients together and add, alternately with milk, to first mixture. Add vanilla and melted chocolate; fold in egg whites beaten stiff; Put into greased muffin tins and bake in moderate oven at 375° F. about 25 minutes. Cover with chocolate icing.

Why
Miss Lillian Loughton's Chocolate Cup Cakes are famous

"I use Magic Baking Powder," says Miss Lillian Loughton, Dietitian and Cookery Expert of the Canadian Magazine.

"My successful baking results are due in large part to its freshness, uniformity, and consistent high quality."

"My own recipes are planned for Magic, and I recommend it for all recipes calling for baking powder."

Miss Loughton's high praise confirms the judgment of other Canadian dietitians and cookery experts. The majority of them use Magic exclusively, because it gives consistently better baking results.

Magic is first choice of Canadian housewives, too. It outsells all other baking powders combined.

FREE COOK BOOK—When you bake at home, the new Magic Cook Book will give you dozens of recipes for delicious baked foods. Write to Standard Brands Ltd., Fraser Ave. & Liberty St., Toronto, Ont.

CHAPTER X.—Alan is thrilled to see Joyce again, but the cool to-ward him. Continuing the fight, Alan locates the bandit tent on an island. He leaves Bill in charge of the one bandit found there, and he and Buzzard fly back to the Alooska to try to head off the other bandits. But they have made their raid, killing old Dad Pence, her sole defender, and with Joyce their prisoner are on their way back to the rendezvous.

CHAPTER XI.—Haskell cunningly poisons Superintendent Williamson's mind by his account of Alan's conduct, and feels he is master of the situation. Pedneault, old friend of Baker, tricks Haskell and goes to join Alan with the police launch. Dave MacMillan, broken by his inability to prove his innocence, has committed suicide in his cell at the fort, but Pedneault does not tell Alan.

CHAPTER XII.—Pedneault runs the launch aground, and Alan and "Buzzard" drop down on the bandits. A bullet disables the plane. Alan abandons it, making his way alone, through a heavy rifle fire, to the criminals' lair. He receives several severe wounds, but "gets his men" with the machine gun. Four days later he reaches En-durance. Confronting Haskell, he proves, to the satisfaction of Super-intendent Williamson, Haskell's in-competence and deceit. His victory is complete. In view of their brilliant work in running down the bandits, his complicity with Featherfoot in "loot-ing" government stores is condoned by their payment for the stuff taken. The big reward for the death or apprehen-sion of the vicious criminals makes this easy.

CHAPTER XIII.—After an unsatis-factory interview with Elizabeth, Alan learns that during his absence Haskell has carried on an ardent courtship of the girl. He has for some time realized that Joyce is the woman he really loves, his engagement to Elizabeth having come about through his loyalty to her dead brother, his partner. Finding Haskell (removed from command by Superintendent Williamson) and the girl together, he releases her from their engagement, stipulating only that she and Haskell be married be-fore they leave the fort. Then he goes to find Joyce and happiness.

CHAPTER XIV.—Alan is given the post of commanding officer at Fort En-durance, and with Jimmy Mont-gomery's little girl they adopted daughter, he and Joyce begin their married life together in the stern Northland they both love.

"What proof have you got, Baker?" Williamson demanded.

Alan kept silent, deliberately allow-ing his silence to damn him. William-son's probe was leading in the right direction, leading toward that deadly trap.

To Alan's consternation Bill Hard-sock burst out: "Proof? H—It's blue blazes! Alan was half sick, all the way up the Alooska, because of them or-ders. He felt he was being forced to take us men into a terrible danger. We all knew it was crazy to split up—"

Williamson silenced him. "You're merely making an assertion, corporal. You have no proof. Baker, do you ad-mit responsibility for that patrol?"

Alan shook his head. "No, I—I don't," he stammered.

Haskell smiled. He had Baker on the run.

Williamson reminded: "Baker, you signed a statement of responsibility. Whipple was a witness."

Alan pleaded. "Sir, that statement When we came back—yes, I signed it. But I—I had to."

"You had to?"

"Yes, to get out of the Mounted. He wouldn't let me buy out unless I did sign."

"Why under heaven did you want to buy out all that fast and furious?"

"I wanted to be free," Alan led on, step by cautious step. "I wanted to go after those men."

"Baker, look here," Williamson said sternly. "You infer you wanted to go after those men so badly that you were willing to buy out, cut off your record and sign a lie. Why then wouldn't you co-operate with Haskell to get them?"

"Well, sir, he—he wouldn't co-op-erate."

"I can't believe that. He tried to help you even afterward—after you bought out and were on a private ven-ture."

"When was that?" Alan queried.

"At En Travers lake."

"So he was trying to help us. I didn't—ah—have that impression at the time, sir."

"He even shot signals for you to wait."

Bill Hardsock swore luridly. "Of all the fork-tongued lies, that's the best of 'em all!"

Alan allowed the lie to go unchal-lenged. If Haskell got by with that one, he would be bold and unwary.

"But sir," he led on, "when I came back from the Alooska patrol, he wouldn't co-operate with me then. He didn't seem much interested—" don't think, in getting those bandits."

"Not much interested?" Haskell echoed, with a great show of aston-ishment. "Sir, I wanted him to make a patrol to the Inconnu river. But he was in a temper. He wouldn't even listen to my suggestion."

A wild elation surged through Alan. One more step and Haskell was doomed! He fought down his elation and fidgeted uneasily in his chair.

Williamson bore down on him hard. "Baker, answer that charge! Haskell suggested a patrol to the Inconnu. In my opinion that was a splendid sug-gestion. It was almost the only hope of capturing those criminals. You wouldn't listen to him. How, then, can you assert you were forced to buy out?"

"He didn't. . . . It wasn't him that made that suggestion," Alan stam-mered weakly. "I think—I believe I made that suggestion myself. But he wouldn't let me go."

"That's a lie!" Haskell pounced upon him. "I suggested it. I begged him to make that patrol."

Alan looked at Haskell. "You sug-gested that Inconnu patrol? It was your idea?"

Haskell nodded. "I did. Whipple can witness it." He was smiling open-ly in triumph.

All Alan's hesitation dropped away from him. There was no longer need to dissimulate. He turned to William-son. "You heard him. You heard what he said. He told you he sug-gested that Inconnu trip. He just re-peated it and he said Whipple was witness. Don't let him back out of it now."

"I don't have to back out of any-thing," Haskell snapped. He was staring in sudden uneasiness at Baker. "Yes, I heard him," Williamson an-swered. "What about it?"

Alan rose slowly to his feet, pulling himself up to his full lanky and pow-erful height. In that moment when he realized Haskell was caught in the deadly trap, his mind whipped back to Joyce's home on the Alooska, to the through weary hours of doubt and pain, and where he and she had care-fully plotted this trap. He felt a wordless tender gratitude to Joyce; this stratagem was hers more than his; her quick brain had been the first to see its crushing possibilities.

"Inspector, you say you asked me to lead that Inconnu detail. You say you suggested it. You say it occurred to you that the bandits would escape by that river. I say you are a liar! I propose to prove you're a liar."

He paused a moment, then raised his right hand and pointed at the wall chart behind Haskell's desk.

"The Inconnu river is not shown on that map of yours, Inspector. You tried to find out from that Indian, Little Otter, where the river is. You didn't know. You don't know now. How could you suggest sending a patrol to a river when you haven't the slightest knowledge of its location? Step up there to that chart, you, add show us the Inconnu!"

Haskell sprang to his feet, snarling at Alan. "I don't take orders from you!" He was fighting like a trapped wolf. His panic, his livid face, be-trayed him.

"Then consider it an order from me!" Williamson commanded. "Show me where the Inconnu is!"

Haskell did not stir. His impreg-nable defense had crumbled in one spot; the sea was rushing in upon him. . . .

He heard Williamson thundering: "I say, answer Baker's question! How could you suggest a patrol to a river that you know nothing about?"

Haskell did not answer. Caught, trapped. . . . He had gone too far, he had overplayed. . . . He heard Larry Young's savage mocking laugh; heard Bill Hardsock chuckling. "Tried to steal Alan's thunder, and got struck by it!" . . . The room seemed to be swaying. . . . Williamson's angry eyes became a blur. . . . Across the desk he saw Alan Baker's face in a sort of haze, not smiling at him, not mocking, but hard, pitiless. . . . The man had beaten him, had taken away the girl he loved—this man whom he hated so fiercely that once he had tried to kill him.

Out of the haze he heard Baker's voice. "Liar! Smoother!" . . . Some-thing snapped within, and his last vestige of self-control was swept away. A maddened anger shook him, blinded him. In a fury he suddenly drew back and swung and smashed adist against that hated face, as though trying to blot it out.

one more unsteady Baker for a moment. He stepped back. William-son tried to interpose. Bill snarled and leaped across the room to jump between them. But Haskell had swung again. Alan flung up his left arm to protect himself. A grimace of pain flitted across his face as the blow fell upon his wound. He did not step away that time. . . . For an instant his eyes measured distance. . . . His right arm went back, swung, and his hand flat caught Haskell under the jaw, a single smashing blow that dazed him and sent him reeling against the wall.

When Bill and Pedneault helped Haskell to his chair and he sat down, groggy and white of face, Williamson bade the two:

"Take Constable Young and get out. Baker, stay here; I want you here."

Vaguely Haskell realized that the superintendent was ordering the men away so that they might not witness the humiliation of an officer. He had lost. The avalanche had crashed down upon him. Baker had come tri-umphant through this hour.

But in those moments of his crush-ing defeat, while Williamson was try-ing to get the men out of the cabin, Haskell felt the first small breath of a strange relief, like a cool wind across his face. He had become involved in lies; had been sucked deeper and deeper into a morass of falsehoods and perfidy. He was free of all that now. In these last weeks there had been times—when he looked upon Larry Young, when he thought of Baker's great-hearted adventure, when the news came of Dave MacMillan's suicide—that his conscience had re-volted and he had loathed himself. He felt as though by making a clean breast of everything to Williamson, he would be coming out of a dark and noisome place into the sunshine again. Only the old aching madness toward Elizabeth Spaulding would not down, but rose to torture him.

CHAPTER XIII

By the Lightning Flash

At Alan's cabin late that evening, Bill was sitting on the edge of the cot, head in hands, plunged into de-jected thoughts. He was in such a blue funk that he neither heard nor cared what Alan and Buzzard were talking about.

An hour ago, by sheer accident, he had discovered that he himself was now officially in charge here at En-durance. Walking past Haskell's cabin in the twilight, he had caught a few angry sentences from William-son:

"If I had the entire say-so, Haskell, you'd go out of the Mounted faster than you came in. You're suspended; Hardsock will be given command here till I see what Baker is going to do. You don't deserve a chance to walk straight, but I'll give you one rather than kick up a row over you. There's a rook detachment down on the Border that's about your fit. I'm going to transfer you there, and I'll try not to laugh when I see men saluting you."

To be in command of the detach-ment was small solace to Bill. It simply meant more work, more respon-sibility, without Alan's judgment and leadership to lean on.

In the shaft of light streaming from the cabin door a girl's figure appeared. Bill straightened up suddenly, recog-nizing Elizabeth. Always a bit afraid of the supercilious girl, Bill had no desire to linger and find out her trouble. Nudging Buzzard, he whis-pered:

"She wants to talk with Alan. We'd better get out."

As Elizabeth came across to the library nook in the full candle glow, Alan saw she was angry, and in-stantly guessed the cause of it. She had heard . . . She was going to fling reproaches at him, perhaps throw an ultimatum into his face.

With no word about his long patrol or the wounds he had brought away from it, Elizabeth demanded:

"Is it true—what I've heard—about that reward money? You're not going to accept any of it?"

Alan was shocked that in her first breath she should speak of money. He said rather tersely:

"That's not altogether true. I'm taking enough to buy the MacMillan trading post for Larry; and I have to pay for those things Buzzard and I stole in Edmonton. But I'm not keep-ing any of it otherwise."

"Are you crazy—to throw away more than you've made in all the years you've been stationed here in this backwoods? Why did you go on that patrol and waste all these weeks?"

"Good Lord, have you been thinking I did it for the money? Is money the only thing in the world you ever think about?" He tried to curb his anger and speak quietly. "Elizabeth, your brother Curt went on a patrol, he gave his very life, because—because . . . You may not understand why, but God knows it wasn't for money."

"Then you intend to throw away ten thousand dollars?"

"If you want to put it like that, yes, I couldn't associate with myself if I'd accept one red cent of it."

In silence they looked at one an-ether, Elizabeth angry and accusing, Alan firm, unyielding.

LET A MOTHER TELL YOU

Mrs. Albert Bolton, Toronto, gratefully speaks of what Eagle Brand did for her little daughter, Margaret Joan. "For the first three months she was nursed, but this did not seem to satisfy her, so after trying nearly everything, I read an advertisement in a newspaper about Eagle Brand and decided to try it. She took to it right away and there has been no trouble since. She has 14 teeth, all coming through without difficulty. Her flesh is firm, lovely straight limbs, good bone develop-ment and so contented. She won third prize at the Canadian National Exhibition Baby Show last September in Class D, with 102 entrants."

If you are unable to nurse your baby, or he is not gaining as he should, follow the advice of hundreds of thousands of other wise mothers and try Eagle Brand Milk. If you will send us your name and address, we shall be glad to send you helpful, free booklet on infant welfare, filled with advice and practical suggestions that will delight you.

Every photograph and letter published by the Borden Company is voluntarily sent us by a grateful parent or other relative.

GOOD REASON

One of the clerks at the employment agency was considered a bit of a wit, and he was preparing to gain a laugh at the expense of the next in the queue. "Where were you born?" he asked the man—a Scotsman. "Glesca," was the reply. "Glasgow! Whatever for?" the clerk continued. "I wanted to be near mother," said the other with devastating meekness.

A PROGRAMME WITH A PUNCH

Mrs. W. R. Kennedy, Brownsburg, Que., has outlined an ambitious programme for Quebec Women's Institutes to improve the educational life in rural communities. "If you are too old to learn, you are too old to live" she quotes, reminding the Institutes that their first work is to educate their own members, both in general knowledge and in appreciation of the need of education in their community.

Mrs. Kennedy points out the fact, that under existing conditions, many school boards are finding it difficult to finance their schools even with the most stringent economy. This, she declares, is the Institute's opportunity to provide equipment to make the schools "more sanitary more attractive and more efficient," and to supply playgrounds with necessary apparatus.

The fact that the new provincial courses includes music, art, household science and manual training on the same footing as the older subjects, is hailed with delight by Mrs. Kennedy. Supplementary lessons in music appreciation are being taught by the aid of gramophones and carefully selected records placed in rural schools by the Institutes.

The placing of McGill Traveling Libraries in schools by the Institutes is, Mrs. Kennedy believes, a mark of progress in education, and one which an increasing number of branches is taking, and thus making possible the use of books for teachers and pupils which they could reach in no other way.

Silver Wedding Anniversary of Mr. & Mrs. Robert Pollock, of Pollockville, Alta.

Pioneers to the West, Argenteuil Couple and Family are Prosperous and Popular Conducting Farm and Store Business in Alberta.

On Tuesday, October 25th., old time friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pollock, and offered cordial congratulations to their host and hostess on the occasion of their Silver wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Pollock extended a warm welcome and generous hospitality to their guests and a pleasant social time was enjoyed by all present.

The supper tables were very attractively laid out. Lovely crimson roses and candles of the same color together with embroidered damask, and table silver gave an air of festive gaiety at the delicious supper to which over thirty persons sat down.

A handsome three-tier wedding cake, prettily decorated with silver beads, foliage and horse shoes on white icing, tasted—needless to say—as good as it looked. Mr. and Mrs. Pollock spared no effort to add to everyone's comfort and pleasure, and nothing of a formal nature interrupted the hours that sped rapidly with a spirit of cheery friendliness, unity and well-being into which all entered. Such a gathering is typical of Western neighborliness and goodwill.

After a tempting lunch, served at one o'clock a.m., most of the guests departed in the early morning hours, again expressing their heartiest good wishes to the bride and bridegroom of twenty-five years gone by.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Strong and Mrs. F. Vowell, nee Cathard and Mrs. F. Vowell, (nee Cathard) guests present who had also attended the wedding twenty five years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollock's family consisted of the elder daughter, Frances, two sons Freeman and Earl, and a younger daughter, Edith, who was called to her Heavenly Home four years ago last summer.

Mr. Pollock came to Alberta

Case of Osias Laurin sent to Criminal Assizes

On Charge of Arson

Osias Laurin, former postmaster of St. Philippe d'Argenteuil, arrested on a charge of having committed arson in order to defraud the Insurance Companies sharing the risk on his buildings, underwent his preliminary inquiry at St. Jerome, on November 22nd.

The presiding Judge, Mr. Lande issued judgment from the Bench ordering Laurin to appear before the next term of Criminal Assizes at St. Jerome. Laurin renewed his bail of five thousand dollars, to secure his liberty until the session of the Criminal Assizes.

Gerard Raymond, advocate of Montreal and Lachute, was acting for the Crown and the Insurance Companies interested, and the defence was represented by Leonce Plante, lawyer of Montreal.

Black & White Restaurant Burned

The Black and White Restaurant and house adjoining, with furniture, piano and contents of appreciable value, were destroyed by fire on Thursday last. The establishment, situate on the Montreal highway east of Lachute, is owned by Mrs. L. Roberts, of Cobourg, Ont., who returned home with her family some weeks ago after operating the restaurant and dance hall during the summer months. The building was unoccupied when the fire occurred. The dance hall was not damaged in the outbreak, the cause of which is unknown.

Vankleek Hill Council Makes Grant to Hockey Club

At a recent meeting of the Town Council of Vankleek Hill (according to Eastern Ontario Review), it was unanimously decided to make a grant of $40 toward the expenses of the local hockey club.

The Council, in taking this action, have done much to show that they are behind a community effort and apart from the intrinsic value of the grant, the hockey team are fortunate in having the wholehearted support of the town fathers.

The action of the Vankleek Hill Council is specially commendable at this time when money is scarce and the policy is toward retrenchment rather than increased expenditure.

FIRE ON PRINCESS STREET

The Fire Brigade responded to a call at 47 Princess Street on Wednesday where the property owned by Mrs. Isaac Mason was partially destroyed by fire which caught between the floors from stove pipe passing through. Fire chief Deacon and his men were soon on the scene and kept the damage down to an estimated $500.

Canada's War Memorial on Vimy Ridge to be Ready in 1935

Not until 1935 at the earliest will the colossal Canadian national war memorial on Vimy Ridge be ready for unveiling. Work was begun on it in 1925, and has been continued since.

It has been inspired by a new spirit—one which will commend itself to all.

"The memorial is a sermon against the futility of war," declared Mr. Walter Allward, the Canadian architect and sculptor who is carrying out the great work. "Vindictiveness and hate have been rigorously excluded from its design."

"In my original drawings, I had a foot trampling on a German steel helmet. Even that symbol I have removed."

The memorial will cost $250,000, the whole of which is being borne by the Canadian Government. It is one of the few memorials not sponsored and erected by the Imperial War Graves Commission.

Mr. Allward searched the Continent for a suitable stone that

New System of Home-work for Ontario Schools

The "Sheffield" system of dealing with the homework problem will be introduced in some of the schools of Ontario, according to recent announcement by Premier Henry.

By this arrangement, which can well be attempted in a limited way by local school boards—school opens at 8.35 a.m. and closes at 4.30 p.m., with "breaks" amounting to one hour and three quarters in the day. The time-table has been planned to give variety to the subjects studied and provides for nine periods per week of 40 minutes each, for private and supervised study.

Under the plan, home work would be taken away from family distraction.

Week-End Haul of Ninety Deer, One Bear, Passes Local Gas Station

There is possibility of British aviation interests operating a prairie air-mail route in Canada.

A project of clearing and establishing aviation fields, to provide employment for single men, is to be embarked on by the Department of National Defence. The work is to be concentrated chiefly on those three stretches of the country where no landing fields exist—Montreal to Halifax; Ottawa and Toronto to Winnipeg, and Lethbridge to Vancouver.

Gilbert E. Arnold High Prize Winner at Royal Fair.

Gilbert E. Arnold, of Grenville, widely known as a breeder of Percheron horses, has taken the American Belgian Horse Breeders' trophy at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. The award is for the best stallion or horse on exhibition, and is a coveted prize among competitors at this Show.

Mr. Arnold's success not only adds another to his long list of triumphs, but reflects favorably on the fine reputation of this section of the Province for its high quality of livestock and progressive breeding. Quebec took creditable place in several livestock classes, over exhibits from other provinces.

Several of our cattle exhibitors from this immediate locality are reported to have met with successes in open Dominion competition. The awards have not yet been made known locally, but will be listed next week in these columns.

The attraction of this County to hunters is amply justified in observations from one of Lachute's busiest filling stations over last week-end.

Muir Brothers report having seen deer and bear loaded on cars which drew up at their tanks, to the estimated number of 90 carcasses, as hunters returned to the city after what appeared a highly successful week-end. The bag numbered mostly deer—and without having actually counted, Mr. Muir asserts 90 is no exaggeration of the total catch. One bear and many partridge were also in evidence.

With one exception of a local car, all these prizes were borne eastward by city visitors.

Last evening, on cars parked before the Desjardins hotel, three deer and one black bear bore evidence of further triumphs for hunters in this district.

Men's Supper Meeting a Marked Success

St. Andrews East, Point Fortune, Cushing, St. Eustache and Lachute were represented at a very successful Men's Supper meeting in the Hall of Lachute United Church, on Thursday evening, Nov. 17th. of last week. There were about eighty men in attendance. A splendid supper was provided by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Lachute Church. During the evening a tenor solo was very well rendered by Mr. Owen Todd, and a duet, "The Old Rugged Cross," was sung very feelingly by Messrs. Douglas and Owen Todd, both numbers being greatly appreciated by the men present.

Instructive and inspiring addresses on the work of the United Church were delivered by Rev. Wm. Munroe, D.D., Mr. H. S. T. Piper, a leading business man and active worker in Wesley United Church, Montreal, and by Dr. A. Lloyd Smith, Minister of Dominion Douglas Church, Westmount.

The speakers emphasized the fact that the United Church is responsible for 2,016,897, or approximately one-fifth of Canada's population, and for 32,000,000 in other lands. In order to carry on her Missionary, Educational and Benevolent enterprises, at home and abroad, the United Church requires $3,100,000 for what is known as the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the Church, and the speakers challenged their hearers to give generous and hearty support to the great redemptive and ameliorative enterprises in which the Church is engaged.

The meeting was presided over by Rev. W. B. Rosborough. Rev. J. W. MacLean, of Cushing, moved a vote of thanks to all who had helped to make the meeting such a splendid success. This was seconded by Rev. Jno. Macaskill, of St. Andrews East, and heartily passed by the meeting.

Successful Annual Convention of District Rural Teachers

The annual Convention of Rural Teachers for this district, although held this year somewhat later than usual, was attended by a successful and interesting outcome, as forty teachers gathered on Saturday at the Lachute High School to discuss matters of educational concern.

The teachers were, with one or two exceptions, young ladies, most of whom are appointed in the schools of Argenteuil County. The meeting was called by Mr. King, resident inspector for this district, who promises an

THE LATE ARTHUR BURK Lived 30 Years in Township of Grenville, 22 Years in Dalesville

There passed away on Tuesday, Nov. 8th., 1932, at the home of his daughter Mrs. T. Morrow of Greece's Point, Arthur Burk, son of the late John Burk, of Edina, Que., at the age of seventy-six years, 11 months, 23 days. Mr. Burk was married 52 years ago last August, to Martha Steward. Of this union there were born five daughters and two sons. The youngest daughter, Maud (Mrs. Walter Brown) predeceased him 14 years ago. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Burk lived for thirty years on a farm near Green Lake, Township of Grenville, and then moved to Dalesville, where they resided for 22 years. The late Arthur Burk, is survived by his wife, four daughters, and two sons: Mrs. David Morrow, of Lost River; Mrs. Geo. Moncrieff, of Stonefield; Mrs. John Cousins, of Rawcliffe; Mrs. Thos. Thomas Morrow, of Greece's Point; William of Grenville, and Ernest, of Dalesville. There also remain five brothers in California and one sister in Montreal, Miss Nellie Burk. Funeral service was conducted by Rev. F. W. Dyson in the Dalesville Baptist Church. Interment followed in Edina cemetery.

Claims St. Jerome's Peddler Tax of $200.00 Illegal

Harrison Bros.' Broad Salesman Contests Imposition of Licence on Outside Traders.

The British North America Act, 1867, and the Quebec Cities and Towns Act were both cited in support of a writ secured against the town: of St. Jerome by Harry Schwisberg, a broad salesman for Harrison Brothers, as part of his fight against the municipality's imposition of a $200 tax on outside bakers.

Schwisberg was condemned to pay a fine of $25 last May by the St. Jerome Recorder, before whom he was charged with selling bread without a licence. Under a municipal by-law, outside bakers who do business in St. Jerome must secure a licence, paying $50 if they do a wholesale business and $200. if their business is retail.

The petitioner contends that in passing this by-law the municipality exceeded its powers under the Quebec Cities and Towns Act, which, he declares, limits surtaxes on outsiders to 50 per cent. more than the local tax. St. Jerome, he contends, has imposed a tax 800 per cent higher.

As an alternative argument in support of this case Schwisberg declares that if the by-law is legal under the laws of Quebec, it is nevertheless illegal under the British North America Act which, he says, established freedom of commerce and did not give the provincial authority power to impose tariff restrictions affecting trade between one municipality and another.

The writ was referred to Chief Justice Greenshields. ing. Dr. J. R. MacLeod pronounced the benediction.

earlier gathering next year as he becomes better acquainted with his territory. The teachers met at 9.30 a.m., disbanding at 3 in the afternoon, a generous repast having been arranged for them in the United Church basement by the ladies of that church.

Special speakers for the occasion included Mr. C. Hall and Miss McDonald, who made this convention decidedly worthwhile from an instructional viewpoint. Mr. Hall discussed the Teaching of French, & Miss McDonald dealt with Primary methods in teaching.

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER.

EXAMINATIONS.

Dear Boys :

A letter received from one of my young friends informs me that in a week or two he will be faced with Examinations, and that he is working very hard indeed in order to do well.

Let us have a little chat about this subject. A man once wrote a long article in the newspaper, in which he tried to show that examinations were no use to anyone, and in no way demonstrated the fact that because a boy happened to pass in them he was better mentally equipped than others who were not so successful. Perhaps in some ways he was right but one point he undoubtedly overlooked.

The value of an examination lies not so much in the passing as in the preparation of the work required for the standard it sets. An objective is given you to aim for, and the way you have to travel is clearly outlined by means of books and courses of study. Sometimes, indeed more often than not, you are unable to fully reach your goal, but the knowledge obtained in your endeavour is never wasted.

Again, supposing there were no examinations; how on earth could you know for yourselves how you were progressing? Every sensible fellow hates wasting his time; and the report that comes to him, or his parents, after any examination, just shows the most profitable way he can use it. He notes, for example, that his Arithmetic is good and his English is weak, so the obvious thing for him to do is to devote the major portion of his time to the latter subject in the days to come.

For these and other reasons I am inclined to think our newspaper friend is in error concerning examinations, and that they can be of very real help to you, provided that conscientious work has been carried on, in preparation.

My little friend is working hard, but this does not mean that he will pass his examinations! Is his effort useless then, if he fails? Not a bit of it; for he has gained something of the very greatest value and that is Experience, joined with the joy that only comes from conscientious effort to do the best he can.

Examinations then are useful if only to show you the way to better work in the future and a clearer understanding of your abilities.

None the less, may you pass well and get honours in at least one subject.

THE CAPTAIN.

Mystery Island

By Capt. O. J. Aldom.

Chapter 27.

It was with no little amazement that those at 'Safety Point' watched the approach of Pedro, followed by several members of his party. As soon as the leader of the mutineers came within ear-shot Capt. Pat. ordered him to come no further.

"Stand where you are," he commanded sharply, "and say what you have to say in as few words as possible. I'll have no dealings with such as you."

My little friend is orking hard, but this does not mean that had immediate result and Pedro threw the oar he was carrying to the ground with a curse.

"You think you're safe up there and that you have got the best of us," he shouted, "but let me tell you that you are wrong. I know all about the treasure and that this is the island it's on, and though you have got the map you'll never get the opportunity to use it. Don't think that I've never seen that map, for I have, many times; and my memory's good enough without it to find anything, however much it is hidden."

He paused for breath and his eyes gleamed viciously.

"Fine words, retorted the Captain. "But you surely did not take the trouble to come all this way to tell me that, did you?"

Hearing this the look of fury on the villain's face increased.

"You're dead right," he said between his clenched teeth. "What I came to say was that you've got to stop what you're doing. Fighting is one thing but frightening poor sailors is another. It's screaming with fear two of 'em are now, and all for going back to the ship but, curse you, the boats have gone."

For one short minute a look of satisfaction crossed the Captain's face as he heard this—a look which he quickly suppressed. It would not do to let Pedro know that he was in complete ignorance of the news he had just given him. That something or other had taken place to badly scare the mutineers was obvious, but anything was good enough that might give them the advantage, so he replied:—

"Ah, so you're learning your lesson. Well now listen to me. You have no provisions and your boats are gone; which means that unless you are good swimmers and can avoid the sharks, a return to the ship is impossible. Now hear my terms. Surrender yourselves one by one, come up here without arms, and I'll guarantee to take you back on board as prisoners and deliver you over at the first port of call for a fair trial. Refuse and you stay on the island at your own peril!" There was a metallic ring in the Commander's voice as he finished speaking, even though he had but little hope that his words would take effect.

With a loud, sneering laugh Pedro threw back his head.

"So that's what you want, is it? Well here is my last word to you and all standing there behind you. Give us the map and a boat and you're free to go back to the ship and sail her to H— We don't want you here playing tricks on poor sailors in the darkness. Come on, now, that's fair and final enough. What's your answer?"

"This," replied the Captain, raising his gun. "I give you three whole minutes to clear away, you and your fellow scoundrels. If at the end of that time you have not moved, I'll shoot the lot of you for the dogs you are."

Before he had finished speaking Jim Hawkins, with Robbins, Mr. Williams and Jack, had ranged themselves by his side

AUNT JEAN HERSELF

A Column for the Kiddies

THE NAUGHTY PIG

By Aunt Jean

Tweedledum, Tweedledum,

Tweedle-Dee—

That was the name of a piggie wee, Who squealed and equealed from morn till night, Until his poor mother got quite a fright; She thought he was ill, this naughty pig, Who was only wishing that he was big, That he might root in the garden wall, And feast and feast on the turnips tall. Just like small children who cry for cake, And candy and sweets that make them ache. Tweedledum, Tweedledum,

Tweedle-Dee,

Oh, what a naughty pig was he!

TROT TROT'S FRIGHT

By Aunt Jean

Joan named him Trot Trot the first time she saw him, when Daddy held her up so that she could peek in the window of the pen at the mother pig and her ten little ones. Nine of them were cuddled closely to her side but one restless little fellow was trying to trot around on his funny little wobbly legs.

"Oh, Daddy!" Joan said excitedly, "He's different from the others."

"I cannot see that he is," her daddy said good naturedly, as he watched the teams going to the field to work. He was anxious to be off too, but Joan being an exacting young lady, just had to "look all-she wanted to" (as she herself expressed it) before daddy would be at liberty to set her down.

"Look, Daddy, look! Oh, you are not looking at him at all."

Clasping her daddy's face between her two small hands she turned it toward the pig family. "Look at that dear little black and white piggie. He just cannot keep still. Guess he's like me, eh Daddy?" she said, laughing delightedly at her own little joke. "See the way he runs, Daddy."

Daddy had to laugh, too, at the funny little wiggling pig.

"He's quite a trotter," he said. "I am going to call him Trot

Trot," Joan said. "I'll always know him by that funny little black & white striped tail." And Trot Trot certainly lived up to his name! Day after day, Mother Piggy had to coax him out of some piece of mischief, even at night when the other little piggies would be snoring quite loudly, she would be awakened by the sound of little footsteps scampering around the pen. Nosing amongst her family, she would find that Trot Trot was missing so that Pedro found himself looking at five guns steadily levelled at him and his companions. With a violent volley of bitter curses he signed to his men to follow him, which they did, stumbling and scrambling over the rocks with a great deal more haste than dignity. Quite within the time given them, they had vanished from view. "For the time being, that is that," Capt. Pat remarked to his Chief Officer, "But I would like to know what Pedro meant by some of his men being scared. Also what did he mean about the boats? If they have gone who has taken them?"

"I did sir," answered Jack. "That is what I left Mr. Williams for."

"You, my boy!" gasped his uncle, "Explain yourself, How could you do that?"

"Quite easy sir. I discovered a little place where they could be hidden and took them there. Pedro, I am sure, will never find and call him to her, with soft little coaxing grunts. He did not always come at her call, causing her to get up and search for him, disturbing the others, who squealed angry little squeals and snapped crossly at each other in the darkness, until their mother would come back driving him before her, and lie down with him between herself and the wall so that he could not escape again. The older he grew the harder

he was to manage, and never seemed satisfied, no matter how large the yard was. He was always scampering around looking for something new. Joan's Uncle Ted called him

The Explorer. Daddy pig paid very little attention to his family, being most concerned about filling his own hungry stomach, and was getting so fat he could scarcely walk. But his small wicked looking little eyes saw all that was going on. He liked Trot Trot best because he was not always in his way, as Nosey and Pokey and the rest of his family were. Finding a hole in the wall one day Trot Trot crawled through and scampered up and down, much to the delight of wee Joan, who clapped her hands with glee when she saw him running round and round the chicken coops, scattering the hens in all directions, grunting funny little grunts that sounded almost as if he were laughing at their frightened squawks. Rover joined in the fun, running after Trot Trot until he caught him by one little flopping ear. It was Trot Trot's turn to be afraid; he gave a wild squeal and dashed away, right into the flower garden. Of course he did not know it was a flower garden when he started rooting amongst the pretty colored dahlia bulbs which tasted

so good, just like potatoes. Dahlias belong to the same family as potatoes do, and in some countries they are eaten like them. Joan's daddy found him there, drove him out and mended the fence, but it was impossible to keep him out of the garden until one day he heard Nurse

Lovering telling Baby Ruth about the little pigs who went to market. He did not understand what she meant but it gave him such a queer feeling that almost before he knew it he was racing home to Mother Pig as fast as he could. He was very quiet all the rest of the day, and at night crawled in between Mother Pig and the wall causing his family to wonder just what was the matter. Suddenly he squealed out the story which he had heard Nurse Lovering telling the baby. Mother Pig comforted him by telling him that it just meant that little pigs sometimes went to market

to buy milk and meal, but Daddy Pig thought it was time he was taught a lesson and grunted out in his roughest voice. "It means that little pigs who go rooting up dahlia beds" Trot Trot shivered, he wondered how Daddy Pig knew, forgetting that in his haste to escape, he had trailed home with him some dahlia stalks and leaves which had got tangled around his legs " . . . Little Pigs," Daddy repeated, "who are not content in their own yards, but go digging up dahlia roots, get sent to market to be killed and eaten. Yes, Sir! they do. They are sent off to market, even before they get time to wiggle their tails."

Trot Trot was so afraid, he could not sleep all night. He just had to keep that little striped tail of his wiggling to make sure that he was not on the way to market. And as for dahlia roots—he never wanted to eat another as long as he lived!

Next week, Children, I am going to tell you about the deer who were getting anxious.
Aunt Jean.

AERONAUTICS

(Current News-snaps from the Flying World)

By J. Claude Roby.

His Highness the Prince of Wales has recently replaced his small two sweater plane with a luxurious 12 passenger air liner. The Prince is very fond of flying and a great part of his travelling is done by air.

The British aviatrix, Miss A. Johnson has safely completed her London-Cape Town flight, taking 4 days, 6 hours and 55 minutes—beating her husband's previous record by 10 hours.

A new winter air route has been opened by Canadian Airways from Quebec to a far point north. The only available land travel is by dog sleds, which take two months for the journey. The planes travel the distance in three hours.

According to recent statistics, it is estimated that France, which has the world's supremacy in military aeronautics, has an approximate total of 4,000 military aircraft and 48,000 pilots. Talk about disarmament.

In 1913 the world's official speed plane record was 45 M.P.H. In 1931 the record had reached 389 M.P.H., and is held by Great Britain.

The giant German airship "Graf Zeppelin" has completed its 500,000th. mile. It has crossed the Atlantic 28 times and has carried a total of 7,400 passengers.

How Do You Like Your Eggs?

So many people—in fact most people who like eggs—want them a certain, particular way, and can cite you good reasons for the preference.

While we're not particularly interested in eggs—we are intensely interested in having subscriptions to The Watchman paid in advance—and we'll tell you why. A subscription is one of the easiest accounts to forget—it is small; the subscriber is usually not buying other articles from the publishers, so is not reminded of it. And when it gets in arrears two or more years the subscribers usually develop an uneasy feeling toward the cause of the account. It works on the same principle as the old saying: "If you want to lose a good friend, lend him money."

We want all our subscribers to be friends of The Lachute Watchman. If your subscription is in arrears, don't be upset about it, send us what you can on it, it won't take long to clean it up. Then you'll feel better—we'll feel better and so will our creditors. Thank you. Will you cut this coupon and mail or bring it with your payment, NOW.

Waiter: "Yes, sir; which way?"

On a wet day a young man driving a car in a Cape Town street applied the brakes too suddenly with the result that he skidded badly and pulled up within an inch of the curb.

A policeman strolled up and said:

"My word, sir, you got a nice skid there!"

"Pardon me," said the driver haughtily, "this lady is my wife."

MARRIAGE

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Nov. 9, at Trinity Parsonage, at Charlottetown, when Doris Murray, youngest daughter of Captain and Mrs. F. H. Stanley of Charlottetown, became the bride of John Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Phillips, Harrington, P.E.I. The bride was becomingly attired in a dress of blue silk crepe with accessories to match and was attended to Miss Viola Wood, who was also dressed in blue. The groom was supported by his brother, Layton Phillips. After the ceremony a supper was served at the home of the bride's parents.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Deaf and Dumb Boys Become Scouts.
Mackay Institute for the Deaf and Dumb now has its Scout Troop. The troop is sponsored by the Scouts of Trinity Memorial Church Troop.

English Scouts for Czechoslovakia.

Two Boy Scouts are among the English boys selected to go to Zlin, Czechoslovakia for three years' training at the famous Bata Shoe Company's factory.

Scout Hike and Motor Camping.

During the past summer the 9th. London Rovers motor-camped over 900 miles in western Ontario. Each Scout of St. Jude's Troop, Saint John, N. B., tramped 105 miles of a 150-mile hiking camp tour, and 12th. Regina Scouts travel-camped through the Qu'Appelle Valley.

Duchess of Abercorn's Scout Test.

When the Duchess of Abercorn opened a new Boy Scout Hall at Belfast by lighting a fire in the fire-place, she was given the Scout maximum of two matches. She proved herself a good Scout. She proved herself a "good scout" by using only one.

Now Tibetan Boy Scouts.

Troops of Tibetan Boy Scouts were discovered during a tour of the Himalayan Mountain passes this summer by Secretary of the Punjab Boy Scouts Association. Like Scouts elsewhere the Tibetan lads were performing many kinds of public service, including the building of protected springs where wayfarers can secure clean drinking water.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON-SERMON TOPIC

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches, Sunday, Nov. 27, is "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced". Golden Text: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." (I Corinthians 16: 13).

Among the Scriptural passages comprised in the Lesson-Sermon are the following: "Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path . . . Deliver me not over unto the will of mine enemies: for false witnesses are risen up against me, and such as breathe out of cruelty." "But the salvation of the righteous is of the Lord: he is their strength in the time of trouble." (Psalms 27: 11, 12 and 37: 9).

Also included in the Lesson-Sermon are the following selections from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Human will-power is not Science. Human will belongs to the so called material senses, and its use is to be condemned. Willing the sick to recover is not the metaphysical practice of Christian Science, but is sheer animal magnetism." "The Christian Scientist demonstrates that divine Mind heals." (Pages 144 and 375.)

Promptness Averts Bridge Tragedy.

The famous story of the Dutch boy who prevented a disastrous flood by plugging a hole in a dyke with his finger is recalled by the action of a Boy Scout, John Kirschel, of Southern Rhodesia. While fishing from a bridge over the Gwebi River the lad discovered a widening crack in a concrete pier. He immediately ran and reported, and the bridge was closed, averting probable tragedy. The Scout was highly commended by the Government Road Department.

"Do you speak French?"

"The young man smiled easily."

"Oh, yes," he said, "fluently."

TELEVISION — A FIRST-HAND IMPRESSION

On a rare, raw day last week, one of our editorial satellites was privileged to join the throng who witnessed an exhibition of Television in Montreal. The management of Jas. A. Ogilvy's Limited has featured this demonstration over a period of weeks, and a hundred thousand of Montrealers have welcomed the opportunity of seeing at first hand the workings of "visible radio" both from the transmitting and the receiving ends.

The process was demonstrated, we understand, with co-operation of the Canadian Television Company. The broadcasting studio was partitioned from spectators by a plate glass window which gave full view of the performance. And across the floor, on the same level, the receiving apparatus was placed, comprising a cabinet radio with a screen set in the front panel. This receiver was situated in a darkened alcove, which rendered the image upon the screen more readily visible. Yet the picture lacked that clear-cut contrast which one attaches to photographic or movie-screen reproductions. At times the head and shoulders of the artist in the neighboring room were but vaguely reproduced; and at other junctures the figure became distorted towards the edges of the rectangular screen, which in the semi-darkness appeared to resemble a sheet of copper-colored mica. Irreverently, the thought came to us that if the gentlemen obviously singing in the broadcasting chamber (Sid Nesbitt, we believe it was) could take a slant at the side-slipping countenance on that radio receiver across the fifth floor of Ogilvy's, he might have hurried along to the Mirror Department to ascertain whether it were really true!

It would be fair to add that an hour or two after our visit the broadcasting apparatus developed a misfire—suggesting that possibly it was not working to perfection at the time we viewed the proceedings. Anyway, as the reader may have judged, our personal impression of Television at this stage is scarcely one of enthusiasm. We are even convinced there will need to be infinite improvement in its efficiency, before the system can become popular in Canadian or American homes.

To Jas. A. Ogilvy's Limited, and to the spirit of enterprise for which the firm is duly noted—all credit is due. Arrangements of the demonstration were perfect, and folks have welcomed to opportunity of seeing this newest departure in radio. Incidentally, the occasion was only the second public demonstration of Television in Canada, both having been sponsored by the same "Friendly Store."

Wild strawberries were picked in the Edmonton district on the second day of October. It is becoming increasingly difficult to maintain that air of fortitude in keeping with a people living (in popular fiction) so close to the north pole.

THE LATE MRS. F. A. BENNETT

Mrs. Florence A. Bennett, 66, died on Nov. 12 at Port Arthur Hospital, after an illness of some months.

Mrs. Bennett was born at Calumet, Que., leaving here twenty-three years ago. She was president of the Canadian Daughters and a member of Amythest Rebecca Lodge, Workmen of the World and of Trinity United Church. She is survived by her husband, William Bennett, of 66 Jean Street; three sons, Elton, Fort William; Leslie, Port Arthur; and Earl, of Flin Flon; two sisters, Mrs. R. W. Scott, Raven, Alta, and Mrs. A. Steele, Brownsburg, Que., also three brothers, Sidney Brown, Breckenridge, Mich., Geo. Brown, of Denver, Colorado and James of Wheeler, Mich. Nine grandchildren also survive.

A large number of friends attended the funeral which was held on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A service was held in the family home, 66 Jean St., under the auspices of the Canadian Daughters League, Nanibijon Assembly Number 36, of which Mrs. Bennett was president at the time of her death. A service was also held in Trinity United Church, of which she was a member, the Rev. Harry Heathfield officiating. Representatives were present from Trinity Ladies' Aid and the Missionary Society also of Amythest Rebekah Lodge No. 106, in which organization Mrs. Bennett was an active member.

The Trinity Choir led in the singing of two favorite hymns. Interment took place in Riverside Cemetery. The pall bearers, all of whom came from near Calumet, Que., where Mrs. Bennett was born, were Louis Shigley, William Milway, Arthur Richardson, James Foreman, Orin Robillard and Roy Cook.

MAKING HIGHWAYS SAFER IN ONTARIO

Wider Shoulders

Elimination of all deep ditches and widening of the shoulders to ten feet, along all roads in the highway system throughout our sister Province, are planned by Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Ontario Minister of Highways. It is expected that the number of motor accidents will be considerably lessened by this means.

LOSS ESTIMATED OF U. S. EXPORTS

Empire Facts May Divert
$131,000,000 Business

British plans to stimulate inter-Empire trade through quota and duty preferences affect directly or indirectly, to the value of $131,000,000, American products which in 1931 were exported to the United Kingdom, the Commerce Department at Washington has estimated.

The department, however, said the extent of the trade diversion away from the U. S. was now unpredictable, pending tests of the new British policy resulting from the Ottawa Imperial Conference.

The department's analysis estimated that 29 per cent of the total value of American goods shipped to the United Kingdom last year were affected by the new British policy. The principal products involved were canned and fresh fruits, wheat, lumber and leather.

Wild strawberries were picked in the Edmonton district on the second day of October. It is becoming increasingly difficult to maintain that air of fortitude in keeping with a people living (in popular fiction) so close to the north pole.

THE QUEST OF THE PERFECT NEIGHBOR

The quest of the faultless neighbour is a wild goose chase, with the goose at the pursuing end. To use a slang expression, "there ain't no such critter."

But good neighbors, neighbors with kindly eyes and pleasant ways, and warm palms and still warmer hearts; of such there is no lack.

Let us analyse a good neighbor. First of all he must have a real liking for folks. He may stand entranced at the golden glory of a sunset, the songs of the birds may be sweetest music to his ears, the flowers and the trees and the cooling ferns alike appeal to him, but even more than all these he must like people. A good neighbor simply must like folks.

The next ingredient is unselfishness. Unselfishness says, "Give! Give pleasure, help, consolation; lift on your neighbor's burdens, share his sorrows as well as his joys, divide your blessings." The unselfish neighbor rejoices instead of being envious when some good fortune comes to a neighbor.

WELL! WELL!

At Kingston, Ont., three women judges declared in favor of the negative side in a debate on the subject: "Resolved, that a wife is of more benefit to a man than a car."

There are two sides to every question. "Yes, I know. Yours and your mother's."

McRae-Dixon

Wedding bells rang out in Dalesville on Wednesday last, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Dixon, when their youngest daughter, Edith Anna, was united in marriage to Mr. Norman McRae of St. Jerusalem, the Rev. F. W. Dyson officiating. The home was tastily decorated in pink and white with large white bells.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in challenge blue georgette fashioned on plain, simple lines, and she wore a wreath of orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Katie Stephenson who was gowned in Monet blue georgette made on the new straight flare. The groom was supported by his brother, Hector McRae. The wedding march was played by Mrs. F. W. Dyson.

After the ceremony a bountiful repast was served to some sixty guests. The gifts were both numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. Later they left on a motor trip to Montreal, and St. Johns. The bride travelled in an Empire blue wool crepe suit with hat and shoes to match. On their return they will reside in Lachute.

Canadians Learn Canada

Travel from the towns and villages of Canada into the major cities, and vice-versa from the cities to the towns and villages as well as inter-city travel has been given an unprecedented impetus by the policy of the Canadian Pacific Railway in introducing the low rate bargain return excursion feature into the company's activities during the current year. Since February last and up to mid-November for the East of Canada, the railway's passenger department gives a figure of 65,000 passengers who have availed themselves of these exceptional opportunities to familiarize themselves with the Dominion.

The beautiful countryside of Canada in all its seasonal aspects has been brought to the doors of the city dweller and the people of the cities have learned to get acquainted with their fellow-citizens of other cities to a degree probably unparalleled in Canadian history by this innovation in railway operation. Distances have been annihilated by these extremely low fares and from the Maritime Provinces to Montreal; from Montreal to the borders of western Ontario, to the capital of Canada, to the ancient city of Quebec, to Toronto, London and on to Windsor, Detroit and Chicago, and to scores of intermediate places, there is scarcely a point that has not been brought into close touch with all others.

At the meeting to discuss incorporation of Lachute, the main arguments against the change were—firstly, that it was too premature; secondly, that it would cost a thousand dollars; thirdly, that a police force would be necessary at every council meeting; fourthly that bridges and roads could not be arranged so as to be equitably divided.

THE TALKING RADIO

The radio used to bring us music, but now it is talk, talk, talk. Everlasting talk. My idea of exercise is not twiddling with the radio dials. I like to dial a good station and then be able to 'set' and listen. Those days are over and to get music you must dial continually.

And sales talk! The time seems to be divided into fifteen minute periods, eight of each being taken up with sales talk. If some firm would put on a good programme and merely announce—'this programme is being sponsored by such and so's cigarettes', people would be so grateful, they would rush out to buy them, even if they did not smoke.

First there will be a sales talk, then a little music; then there will be a mystery play; then more jazz; then some blooming idiot of a wise-cracker, laughing so hard at his own jokes that no one else can understand what he says; then a speech on American politics; then another mystery play; and more jazz; and all surrounded by sales talk. Mystery plays may be all right. Some one must like them. Good jazz is enjoyable in moderation, if it is not all cluttered up with saxophone crooners. We have had good radio programmes, why not have them again?

The impossible seems to have happened. It must be the first time in history, that any government has made an appointment without adverse criticism. I am referring to Hector Charlesworth's appointment, as head of the Radio Commission. A successful newspaper man certainly should know what the public wants. He must know the value of advertising, but must know too, that it cannot be allowed to dominate completely. Mr. Charlesworth's publicity work, and his knowledge and love of music, which has been his hobby all his life, make him peculiarly fitted for the job. More power to him.

EAT BRAN FOR VITAMIN B

We are accustomed to thinking of bran as a good food for the constipated, because of its bulk. This is very true, but bran has other uses too. It contains considerable vitamin B and for that reason, it should have its place in our diet.

Vitamin B is of frequent occurrence, but there is no evidence of anyone ever having too much of it and frequent evidence that there is a deficiency. In Chronic gastro-intestinal disturbances, a lessening of secretions and a general slowing up may be due to lack of vitamin B.

Children must have a sufficient supply of vitamin B if they are to grow and as I said before bran contains considerable vitamin B. Whole grains contain considerably more. Iron is a necessity for both children and grown-ups, if they are to keep their blood stream in a proper condition. We may look on bran as one of our iron mines.

Not so long ago, a food was highly considered if it had a high caloric content. We still need calories, but we realize that many of our most valuable foods have practically no value because of their calories, but are most necessary because of their minerals and vitamins. Leafy vegetables are an example of this class of foods. Bran is a good friend to those who are trying to keep their weight down as it has bulk and vitamins and minerals.

Bran may be purchased in bulk for cooking purposes or it may be had in packages in several palatable forms, all ready to eat. It does not make any difference which way you use it. Have you ever tried adding some bran to your other cereals when making porridge? A bit of bran often goes into my soup pot and no one but myself ever knows it is there.

TO SAVE FUEL

There is an increasing use of electricity, gas and oil for cooking purposes, and a consequent decrease of coal and wood. Many people waste a considerable amount of the three first mentioned fuels by having foods boil too rapidly. Water boils at 212 degrees and no matter how hard it boils it cannot get any hotter. So, remember that food that is boiling slowly is just as hot as food that is boiling at break-neck speed. Keep this in mind and you will save fuel and your food will not be in danger of scorching.

LIVER LOAF

- 1 lb. liver
- 2 slices side bacon
- 5 crackers, rolled fine
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- Speck pepper
- 1 cup milk

Grind the liver and bacon. Add cracker crumbs, salt and pepper. Add milk to slightly beaten egg and mix with liver mixture. Shape into a loaf and bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes.

COCOA ICE BOX COOKIES

- 1 cup shortening
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 2-3 cup cocoa
- 2 eggs
- 3 cups flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Cream the shortening and sugar. Add well beaten eggs. Sift in the dry ingredients and add walnuts. Mix thoroughly and make into two rolls about two inches wide. Let stand in the ice-box or in any cool place for twenty four hours. Slice thinly and bake at 400 degrees.

Lesson for December 4

LIVING WITH PEOPLE OF OTHER RACES

I. KINGS 8:41-43; John 4:5-10; Acts 10:30-35.

GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons. Acts 10:34.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Telling a Foreigner of Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The God of All Nations.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Playing Fair with Other Nations.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Following Christ in Dealing with Other Races.

The approach to the heart of this lesson is through the Golden Text. Paul on Mars' Hill declared, "God hath made of one blood all the nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth" (Acts 17:26).

I. Solomon Praying for Foreigners (I Kings 8:41-43).

The church has for its task the preaching of the gospel to lost men of all races. Christ came to seek and to save the lost (Luke 19:10).

II. Christ Dealing With a Foreigner (John 4:4-10).

1. Jesus must needs go through Samaria (vv. 4-5). Because of the growing opposition Jesus was obliged to leave Judea. He must "needs go through Samaria," not because there was not another way to reach Galilee, but in order to find this poor sinful woman and the needy citizens of Sychar.

2. Jesus testified to the woman (vv. 6-9).

a. A favor asked (v. 7). He tactfully made a request which appealed to the woman's sympathy. In introducing the conversation, he referred to that which was uppermost in her mind, water. This was the teacher's point of contact. He soon passed from a reference to earthly water to the water of everlasting life, in himself.

b. Jesus' tender dealing with the woman (vv. 10-15). He first appealed to her curiosity by declaring "If thou knewest the gift of God" (v. 10). He knew the deep unrest of the soul of this sinful woman. He knew that if she really knew him she would believe on him and be saved from her sins. He followed this appeal to her curiosity by a promise which directed her attention to her deepest needs.

c. The woman convicted of her sins (vv. 15-19). Before she could understand what the water of life was she must be convicted of her sin. She did not argue with him, but became a humble inquirer.

III. The Salvation of a Foreigner (Acts 10:30-35).

The Jews hated the Romans because they were under bondage to them. Peter, the head of the Apostolic group, was a Jew of strong prejudice. The time had now come for the removal of the wall of partition between the Jews and the Gentiles. Cornelius, a Roman soldier, was a devout and praying man, though not saved. Two visions were given:

1. To Cornelius (Acts 10:3-8). While engaged in prayer an angel from God, instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do.

2. To Peter (Acts 10:9-16). Peter saw in a vision a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command to arise, slay, and eat. This vessel let down from heaven and taken back again indicated that both Jew and Gentile were accepted on high. At the bidding of the Spirit, Peter went with the messenger, and in his sermon to Cornelius he set forth:

a. The basis of salvation—the death of Christ.

b. The scope of salvation—whosoever believeth on him.

c. The method of appropriation of the salvation—faith in Christ.

IV. All Nations Are of One Blood (Acts 17:22-28).

The way to bring peace among the nations is to make God known.

1. Paul's declaration concerning God (vv. 24-25).

a. The Creator of the universe.

b. His spirituality and immensity. Being essentially Spirit, heart worship of him is demanded, and being infinite, he cannot be confined to earthly temples.

c. His act of providence. He declared that in him we live and move and have our being.

2. Paul's declaration concerning man (vv. 26-28).

a. We are the offspring of God (v. 26).

b. Nations have their place by God's purpose.

c. Man should seek God. These truths concerning God and man as declared and received will remove racial and national barriers.

WORDS OF WISDOM

Death means birth into a fuller life.

The crown of all virtues is love or sympathy.

The best and purest of all joys is natural affection.

The profoundest fact of human life is that, for everyone, the real, the only true life is lived in the realm of the spirit.

Miss Jessie Marie De Both makes her delicious

Apple Dumplings with Magic Baking Powder

WHEN a young housewife asks me what baking powder she should use," says Miss De Both, director of the famous De Both Home Makers' Cooking Schools, "this is my advice: Use the best—one that is pure, uniform and invariably dependable. You can't use second-rate baking powder and expect first-rate results.

"My experience with Magic has been particularly happy. I find that it never varies—that it is consistently reliable. And I know it is pure, and free from harmful ingredients."

Statements by other well-known cookery authorities give whole-hearted support to Miss De Both's judgment.

In fact, the majority of dietitians and cookery teachers throughout Canada use and recommend Magic exclusively.

Apple Dumplings

- | | |
|---------------------------------|-----------------|
| 1 quart flour | 1 1/2 cups milk |
| 2 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder | Sugar |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt | Cinnamon |
| 2 tablespoons butter | Apples |

Sift into a bowl flour, baking powder and salt. Rub in the butter. Add cold milk to make soft dough. Turn out on to a floured board and roll into a sheet. Cut in squares. Peel and core the apples. Place an apple on each square of dough. Fill the core with a small piece of butter, sugar and a little cinnamon. Fold the dough over, taking care that there are no openings, as the steam inside dumpling cooks the apple while dough is baking. Brush dumplings with a little cream, and place in greased pans. Bake in moderate oven at 400° F. about 40 minutes. Serve with cream or hard sauce.

CHAPTER XI.—Alan is thrilled to see Joyce again, but she is cool toward him. Continuing the fight, Alan locates the bandit tent on an island. He leaves the Bill in charge of the one bandit found there, and he and Buzzard fly back to the Alooska to try to head off the other bandits. But they have made their raid, killing old Dad Pence, her sole defender, and with Joyce their prisoner are on their way back to the rendezvous.

CHAPTER XII.—Haskell cunningly poisons Superintendent Williamson's mind by his account of Alan. Alan feels he is master of the situation. Pedneault, old friend of Baker, tricks Haskell and goes to join Alan with the police launch. Dave MacMillan, broken by his inability to prove his innocence, has committed suicide in his cell at the fort. But Pedneault does not tell Alan.

CHAPTER XIII.—Pedneault runs the launch aground, and Alan and "Buzzard" drop down on the bandits. A bullet disables the plane. Alan abandons it, making his way alone, through a heavy rifle fire, to the criminals' lair. He receives several severe wounds, but gets his men with the machine gun. Four days later he reaches Endurance. Confronting Haskell, he proves, to the satisfaction of Superintendent Williamson, Haskell's incompetence and deceit. His victory is complete. In view of their brilliant work in running down the bandits, his complicity with Featherfoot in "looting" government stores is condoned by their payment for the stuff taken. The big reward for the death or apprehension of the vicious criminals makes this easy.

CHAPTER XIV.—After an unsatisfactory interview with Elizabeth, Alan learns that during his absence Haskell has carried on an ardent courtship of the girl. He has for some time realized that Joyce is the woman he really loves, his engagement to Elizabeth having come about through his loyalty to her dead brother, his partner. Finding Haskell removed from command by Superintendent Williamson and the girl together, he releases her from their engagement, stipulating only that she and Haskell be married before they leave the fort. Then he goes to find Joyce, and happiness.

CHAPTER XV.—Alan is given the post of commanding officer at Fort Endurance, and with Jimmy Montgomery's little girl their adopted daughter, he and Joyce begin their married life together. In the stern Northland they both love.

In Silence They Looked at One Another.

"There's something else I want an understanding about. Mrs. Drummond told me you intend to take care of Jim Montgomery's girl. What makes you feel you're responsible? Why on earth . . . Just because you were acquainted with that child's father?"

Alan sharply interrupted her. "Elizabeth, let me point out something to you. It may be cruel and ungenerous of me, but it's got to be said. When Curt was taken, it fell to me to look out for you. You were a grown woman; you had chances of employment; you had other advantages. But I assumed responsibility. Please, now, I'm not throwing it up to you; I did it freely and would've done more if I'd been able.

"Now Jimmy was killed. I wasn't just an 'acquaintance' of his; I was the nearest person in the world to him. He came from England; he had no relatives. That little tot of his . . . Elizabeth, it's but four years old, it's helpless here in the North, it's dependent in a terrible sense."

With more harshness than he had ever shown her, he said sharply: "I'm going to look out for Jimmy's child. That's settled. If you don't like it, you don't have to know."

His coldness frightened her. It destroyed all her former assurance that she dominated him. She sensed he wanted to end their engagement and would do it here and now if she gave him sufficient cause. A whisper warned her:

"You may be right about that reward money and Jimmy's little tot. I didn't see your viewpoint, when I first came in here. I won't try to persuade you to do something you feel is wrong."

Watching him intently, she saw he was surprised, and deeply disappointed, at her yielding to him. He wanted to break with her! He wanted her to release him!

A little fearfully she broached the main purpose of her coming here.

"I heard you're going back into the Mounted."

"Who told you that?"

"I just heard. Several people said so."

"They were a bit hasty."

"Then you're not going back?"

He answered her indirectly. "Williamson offered to stop my buying-out papers at division headquarters or else re-enlist me as a constable and promote me to sergeant again. He said he'd write himself to Colonel Steele and explain, and ask Steele to release me. If I'd agree to come back into service."

In her heart Elizabeth was flinging at him, contemptuously: "If you go back into that ninety-month rut, I'll never marry you! I'll never live here in this backwoods and be shunted from barracks to barracks!" But her lips said to him, with admirable self-control: "You haven't decided? You want time to think it over?"

"You want me to go down to Victoria?" he demanded sharply.

Elizabeth was entirely too wise to deny that. "Yes, I do, Alan. I would rather we lived there. But you want to stay here, and I don't feel it's my right to dictate your life work."

"You're willing to stay here, then?"

"I'm willing to let you decide. I'm willing to stay here, if you want to."

Even while she spoke, she was wondering. . . . Why had Haskell come to her tonight with the news about Alan? Against his former "affairs" and his untrustworthy nature, she weighed his passionate infatuation. The scales hung in the balance, uncertain, precarious. He would promise marriage; but once she was out in Edmonton or the big eastern cities, once she had broken with Alan and put herself in Haskell's power, how could she be sure he would carry out his promise?

She temporized: "I'm sorry I was so—so sharp about those other things, Alan. I'm dreadfully tired and worn-out. This last week, not knowing where you were or if you were in danger—it was a nightmare. I think I'll go, if you'll excuse me. We can talk about this tomorrow, Alan, can't we?"

"Yes, tomorrow," he said dully. "We can talk about it then."

When she left the cabin and started down the terrace, a lightning flash revealed to her Constable Whipple still sitting forlorn and dismal at the edge of Mrs. Drummond's flower garden. By the window of his tiny study Father Clavely sat alone. Joyce had gone. There was a light in Inspector Haskell's cabin; he must still be awake. . . .

A few miles down river she heard the distant, long-drawn toot of the fur-trading steamer beating up to Endurance and on south to Resolution. The sound awoke a tumult of memories; it seemed like a voice of the outside, an echo of the civilization that all her being clamored for. She glanced again at Haskell's cabin. He was going south, south to the land of cities. It would be like a flight, an escape from this far North country, into the haven of that Ontario estate, his comfortable heritage, their winters in glittering Ottawa.

She thought of going over to his cabin on some pretext. But after her coldness of these last weeks, such an act would be too much an overture, even though she had talked with him this evening. Why couldn't she send Whipple with some hint, some message to him? Haskell would surely come out to her. . . .

In dull uncaring mood, Alan had flung himself down on the bed for a few moments. Elizabeth had not hinted at releasing him; she had given him no honest cause to break the engagement himself, but had yielded to him on every point. He felt that tomorrow, after Joyce had gone away he would not greatly care whether she released him or not.

A timid knock at the door roused him. With a leaping hope that it might be Joyce, he got up hastily, stepped into the outer room and bade "Come in."

His visitor was Corporal Whipple. With a hasty glance at the door, as though, fearful of being overheard, the corporal said secretively:

"I came to tell you . . . There's something I think you ought to know, sir. It's my duty to tell you."

"What's your game, fellow? Come out plain."

"I— . . . Well, the superintendent says he's going to make me stay here at Endurance. He says it would be—well, punishment, because I told—I said what the inspector ordered me to say about that patrol. I'd like—I thought you might help me. . . . If I could only get transferred to some other post . . ."

"That's a wise ambition of yours," Alan commented. "D—d wise!—after the way you've lied and spied on us men. And you thought I'd help you get a transfer! While I'm thinking about it—if I go back in service here, you'd better yank those two stripes off in a hurry. It takes a man to wear that uniform down here and a h—l of a good man to wear those stripes on his arm. Now get out!" He turned away.

Goaded by the fearsome prospect of living here among these men, Whipple made a last frantic effort.

"You've got to know about this, Sergeant Baker. I think it's shameful the way she's deceiving you and the way he's meeting her—out there, at night. I mean Miss Spaulding. She's meeting him, she's down there at the edge of the woods; she sent me to tell him where he could find her, and he went to her. He's there with her now."

He backed away from Alan hastily. The expression that came over Alan's face let him know he was fumbling with dynamite, and God pity him if he bungled it.

"D'you mean," Alan demanded, "that she's down there at the woods with Haskell? She sent you to bring him out there to her?"

"Yes, sir," Whipple stammered. "I'm telling you the truth, sir. They're out there now, Sergeant Baker. He's trying to get her to—well, to throw you over and go with him, but she's afraid he mightn't marry her and then she'd be—well, stranded if she throws you over."

A horrible suspicion shot into Alan's mind. Here in his cabin a quarter-hour ago, why had Elizabeth come in so angry and imperious, and then done a sudden about-face and so strangely yielded to him? Had she been weighing her chances with Haskell, thinking of marrying Haskell, even while she had talked of "our" home?

A thought burned through Alan like living flame: "Good God, it was for her, a mercenary like her, that I broke away from Joyce! I let her lead me, use me. It was for her I kept that promise sacred!"

Whipple pleaded timidly, as Alan started past him for the door: "About my transfer, sir—you'll help me? You'll do what you can for me, sir?"

Alan's answer fairly dazed him. "I'll get you a transfer! Before Williamson leaves! And still be in your debt!"

As he strode down the slope toward the woods ahead of him at the timber edge he made out the dim whiteness of Elizabeth's dress; and then by a lightning flash he saw her and Haskell sitting together under a low sweeping pine. He had an instant's glimpse of Haskell holding her hands, pleading with her. Of Elizabeth listening, uncertain of his passion, coolly drawing him on to a commitment.

When he loomed upon them out of the gusty darkness, they sprang to their feet, Elizabeth panic-stricken, Haskell with a snarl of anger.

"Put up the gun, Haskell!" Alan bade him, noticing the quick blurred movement. "I don't want to fight you. Not for her! I didn't come for that!"

A host of bitter and pitiless words had been surging through Alan's brain as he had come down the slope. He wanted to taunt her, not for having made herself dependent on him, but for taking his money while she harbored treachery in her heart. He swore to fling her sordidness into her face so that she would know he realized it now to its depths. He intended to remind her of that night in his cabin when she had offered herself to him out of motives akin to those of any paid woman.

But as he confronted the two of them, Alan checked the brutal words. Haskell had moved a little in front of Elizabeth. There was something of protection, of sheltering, in the act; something which came nearer making Alan respect the man than any act he had ever seen from Haskell.

He did not speak to Elizabeth at all, but ignored her.

"Don't think I came down here to interfere, Haskell," he said, in harsh cold voice. "You're welcome. And don't think you surprised me tonight. I haven't been blind. You sent me away on those crazy patrols so you could be alone with her. You went sneaking around to her while I was keeping her and she was engaged to me."

He paused a moment; he leaned a little nearer Haskell; he delivered his ultimatum in the tones of a grim warning.

"You've worked hard enough to get her. You fought me with lies and did me all the damage a man could do."

BROWNSBURG
Mr. O. Legault shot a fine big deer, while hunting this week. An open-air Rink, 80 ft. x 180 ft., is being built on the School grounds. So now the prevailing zero weather is just what the children want; and more of it!

Local firemen had a call on Friday afternoon to the house of Mr. Denis. But a good supply of water and willing help had the fire under control before the firemen arrived, even though they responded quickly to the call.

LANTERN SLIDES.
On Thursday next lantern slides of Liberia will be shown at the Baptist Church. Rev. J. Hall will be the special speaker. Silver collection.

HOMEWARD BOUND

A note of cheer is sounding through the gloom of the depression, and this is that everywhere people are turning with a reviving interest to the home and home life. With little or no money wherewith to go rambling over the face of the earth, what can one do but go home?

The natural energies of men and women are finding an outlet in the study of things connected with the home. Especially is this true in the rural communities, for never before were there so many women interested in agriculture, and there is no other industry in which so many are interested.

Members of Women's Institutes are interesting themselves in agricultural matters in every province in the Dominion in a way that is bound to produce striking results. Prince Edward Island is taking up the study of poultry raising and culling, co-operative marketing, the growing of fruits and bee-keeping. Nova Scotia has a campaign on for better home gardens, New Brunswick is promoting a Confederation grove. Quebec has many addresses each year on agricultural subjects putting theories into practice. Ontario boasts of a "Contagion in improvement of home surroundings." Thousands of bulbs, shrubs and plants are used every year for this purpose. Manitoba had a honey crop a year or two ago worth ten millions of dollars. Institutes there held short courses in bee-keeping, which supplies the cause of such results.

Saskatchewan has learned from recent drought experience that verdure is a cure for such ills. Thousands of trees have been planted, providing shelter and beauty, homes for the birds, and incidentally attracting the rains.

Alberta, too, concentrates on shelter belts for homes and gardens, as well as for rural schools. Seeds and bulbs from British Columbia have brought beauty to many of Canada's rural homes.

A suggestion coming from a Women's Institute member is that the Government might meet some part of the unemployment situation by paying for weed extermination over the country.

The many friends of Mr. W. Ward are pleased to know that he is home again, although still suffering from injuries received from a motor accident while in Montreal.

Within the past week several of our residents have been very fortunate while out hunting. Mr. Willis Seale having shot two deer, and Mr. W. Baldwin and Mr. J. Basler each one.

The local Bridge Club is holding its opening meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 30th., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hamilton.

If the present cold weather continues the Hockey Team will soon be out in full force. At a meeting of the Club the work of cleaning and freezing the rink was given to Mr. H. Wood, the caretaker of last year.

Mr. John Basler, proprietor of Bellevue House, returned home on Tuesday, Nov. 15th., after a visit to his home-town Aaran, Switzerland. He was absent nearly two months, having sailed on Sept. 20th., on the Cunard Liner Aurania, which made its first stop after leaving Canada at Plymouth, England. The purpose of his trip was principally to visit his aged mother, whom he found very well.

Mr. Basler travelled from one end of Switzerland to the other and as the trains are all run by electricity the comfort and pleasure of travelling is thus greatly increased. He also visited at Havre, Paris and Belfort, in France, Camedo and Domodossolo in Italy, and Konstanz and Friedrichshafen in Germany.

Mr. Basler is quoted as saying, "The depression in all European countries is felt much more than here, and folks residing in this country should be very thankful." After a stormy return trip I was glad to see Canada and my family once more.
