Canadian Industries Give Fountain Pens to Workers

An event of more than passing interest from the safety viewpoint took place on Tuesday at Brownsburg, when P. B. Yancey general manager, Explosives and Ammunition Group of Canadian Industries, Limited, presented a fountain pen to each of the workers employed at the ammunition factory. The pens were presented in recognition of the conspicuous safety record recently made by the plant and were in token of a prize won under the no-accident plan which forms part of the company's safety activities. Mr. Yancey was accompanied by J. Cadham, manager of the Dominion Ammunition Division; E. J. Johnson, production manager, and by E. J. Salt, of the Safety Section.

Death of Felix Paquette

The passing of Felix Paquette, aged 70 years and 10 months, whose death occurred on Tuesday last, removes another familiar figure from our midst. Mr. Paquette has been in failing health for some three or four years resultant from serious injuries sustained in his work shop when caught in the machinery. He leaves a family of four boys Omer and Albert, of Montreal; Sylvio of Montebello and Roland, of Lachute, also four girls (Maria) Mrs. Albert Lacroix, and (Emelienne) Mrs. Francois Boucher of Montreal, (Blanche) Mrs. Jos. Lafortune, of Lachute, and (Eva) Mrs. Emile Beaucage, of Joliette. Four brothers Moise, of Montreal; Omer, of Lachute; Napoleon and Hormisdas, of Chicago, with sister Marie, of Montreal, are also left to mourn his loss.

The funeral was held this morning at 10.30 from Ste. Anastasie Church, and was largely attended by sympathizing friends.

Golf Course Opens at St. Andrews

The golfing season at St. Andrews East got under way with beautiful weather, over the week-end. Many city enthusiasts took advantage of the fine weather and journeyed to the links of what the Montreal Gazette terms "perhaps the most notable of the younger courses in the Montreal district."

The guests of John Irwin, Col. W. A. Bishop and Mrs. Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Wood, of Montreal, played on Saturday and Sunday, as well as many other prominent golfers from the older clubs nearer Montreal where playing conditions have not as yet permitted the "freedom" of the course. All greens were in exceptional condition, due entirely to the natural drainage and the type of soil. Water hazards were real in every sense of the word, but did not interfere with the comfort of the players.

THE WEATHER

Heavy rainstorms this week, after a warm dry spell, should prove beneficial to the reviving plants, and early growth in our local gardens shows good progress. This section has also experienced electric storms and a fall of hail.

Held by Scotland Yard for Ontario Slaying

The criminal career of one Frank Cox promises an untimely end, as the dragnet of Scotland Yard draws this young adventurer to face investigation for a crime near Hamilton, Ont., in which Harry Roth, a jewelry salesman was murdered and robbed last fall.

In 1928, it will be recalled, Cox was sentenced to 1 month in St. Jerome jail and deportation to England, following an attempted robbery on Bethany street, when Mr. Lapierre, jeweller, notified the fire brigade and the young intruder was taken in charge. Through unjust tampering with the Emigration machinery—which was duly decried in an editorial by this paper—the deportation was over-ruled, and Cox moved to Ontario to continue his depredations. He became engaged on the Merriton and St. Catharines police force, where he was better able to pursue his criminal intents. Later the young man went to Scotland, in company with his brother-in-law, a Toronto man.

Murdered Man Discovered Frozen in Canal

Last November, Harry Roth, a jewelry salesman of Hamilton, Ont., disappeared while on a short business trip near that city. Murder and robbery was at once suspected.

Roth was last seen on the night of November 8, 1932. His disappearance near Merriton provided the Niagara Peninsula with its deepest mystery until February 10, when 14-year-old Jack Pohlman found Roth's body frozen in the ice of Lake Gibson in Grantham Township while he was skating there. The body was tied up in a coarse sack; the man's sample case, containing jewelry of a considerable value, was not found. Only marks on the body were around the neck where a rope had tightly bound a sack and coat about the head. At the inquest the jury returned a verdict of "strangulation by a person or persons unknown."

The crime had been committed brutally but efficiently and there seemed to be no clue to the identity of the salesman's slayers. But the slenderest threads of evidence were followed. The search spread and the aid of Scotland Yard was sought. And last week, at Stirling, Scotland, the two young men, one of whom is known here in Lachute, were arrested in connection with the affair. They recently returned to Britain, police learned. After necessary formalities are complied with, they will be brought back to Canada for questioning in connection with the murder of the salesman.

Lived Near Scene

The two men, John Jones and Frank Leslie Cox lived for several years at Merriton, a small town not far from Hamilton, and within three miles of the spot where the body of the slain traveller was found.

In August of last year, a mercantile establishment in Merriton was entered by burglars. While investigating Roth's death Ontario police learned of this, and followed the new lead on the theory that the two crimes might be connected. Evidence uncovered persuaded police that Jones and Cox might be implicated, and the police are reported to have found trunks and grips, left by the two men when they sailed for Scotland, containing an assortment of loot, allegedly the proceeds of several robberies around Merriton and district. It was established that they had also been in the district when Roth disappeared and the desire to question them in connection with his death followed. The charge on which the two men are held is one of burglary, but the Ontario police are much more interested in solving the murder.

Search for Jones and Cox at once disclosed the fact that they had left the district. Police established the fact that had returned to England, and the assistance of Scotland Yard was requested. A methodical check-up of recent arrivals disclosed the presence of the pair at Cowie, near Stirling.

Working as Miner

Jones had been working as a miner in the Bannockburn Colliery, and detectives seized and handcuffed him as he stepped from the cage on returning to the surface after working his shift. Cox was found and arrested at his lodgings in the village.

It is alleged that Scotland Yard officials, questioning the two men after their arrest, secured information that strengthens the belief that they are able to throw light on Roth's murder.

In the Lachute Watchman of July 27, 1928, appears the following report of Cox's activities in this town. He was proven guilty, and confessed, to other depredations, but his arraignment hinged upon a charge of housebreaking and attempted robbery in the apartment of Mrs. and the late Mr. Jos. Belanger.

What Other People are Doing

During the week President Roosevelt has been vested with dictatorial powers exceeding those of any of our present crop of dictators. He can embark on inflation up to six thousand millions; he can accept war debts, if he gets them, in silver. He can accept that silver payment at a value of fifty cents an ounce, yet foreign nations will presently be able to procure silver for about thirty-five cents. This is equal to a reduction of thirty per cent in their payments. He can experiment with farm relief by reducing production yet paying a bonus to farmers that will look like paying a man a week's wage for two days' work! He can lease part or all of a man's farm, allow it to lie idle, and pay the farmer an amount equal to the value of its production if it were worked. He can prohibit the production of cotton, sell to the cotton producers at its market price. It all seems crazy, but it is true nevertheless.

The President is like a chess player who moves a piece but still retains a hold on it, and after surveying the possibilities of his move allows it to remain or replaces it in its former position to try another move. The all-powerful Congress is in a meek and chastened mood just now and despite faint rumblings from a few of the more prominent Republicans, seems very loath to refuse any of the President's requests for power and more power. Continuance of his freedom of action depends upon the measure of success his endeavours attain; one false move and Congress will cry halt and exploit the fact as an opportunity to regain control once again.

The British, French and Canadian representatives have concluded their discussions at Washington with varying measures of success. The German, Italian and Argentine representatives are now to partake of White House hospitality, and then the next hope will be an-

Silence is Golden

A remarkable adaption of the adage, "Silence is Golden," has been brought to light through one Melvin Train, of Delaware, who some eleven years ago persuaded friends to invest in a new business. Through the fault of another, their money was lost. Mr. Train resolved to make good his friends' losses, and also resolved never to speak again until full restoration had been made. He is reported recently to have mailed the last cheque, thus cancelling the remaining indebtedness; and he spoke for the first time in eleven years! He remarked "It was not so hard after the first year. Most folks talk entirely too much. I kept quiet and worked." In filling his vow and making full restitution, this man also proved that actions speak louder than words.

A TIMELY URGE

"Depleted municipal treasuries are going to prevent any extensive form of relief next winter. The next few months should therefore be devoted to the cultivation of every available foot of productive soil. There is enough vacant land to furnish next winter's supply of vegetables for every needy person. It means work, but work is just what most people are looking for; a few years ago the motto was 'a car for every family'—this year it might appropriately be 'a car for every family'—"

An attempt to assassinate H. R. Knickerbocker, reporter of the "Public Ledger", Philadelphia, whose articles to Canadian papers on Russia and Germany were so widely read, was very successfully censured in reports from Germany. Mr. Knickerbocker is fearlessly anti-Hitler and has refused to leave his post in Germany even though asked to do so by his paper, in his own interests.

Ex-Mayor Walker is leaving his Riviera resort and returning to the States. He will be back in the running for Mayor of New York next election.

Japanese troops suddenly withdrew from important positions in China which much life and property had been lost in conquering, and were preparing for an expected attack from Russia. Just as suddenly, a countermanding order was issued and the offensive against China was again resumed on an even larger scale than heretofore. The Russian question is by no means settled and it would not be surprising if more strained relations resulted before long. In the present dispute Russia wants to uphold her joint ownership in the Chinese Eastern Railway, but now that Japan has set up a puppet state through which a portion of the Railway runs, the present contradictions have arisen. Russia is by no means anxious for war, as she is too busily engaged making the world safe for democracy. At the present moment she is the testing house, in which an experiment is proceeding, which may mean the salvation of the present generation or otherwise. Whereas, a war with Japan would upset the whole structure she has built up and delay or perhaps destroy its fruition for generations to come.

B. of T. Banquet

Ex-President Montreal Board of Trade and Noted Lawyer are Speakers at Lachute Banquet.

R. L. CALDER, K.C., ON THE FUNCTIONS OF GOVERNMENT

Decries Governments Entering Field of Business

The Annual Banquet of Lachute Board of Trade passed off in a very pleasing manner when, on Thursday evening last, the members gathered in Desjardins Hotel and listened to able addresses delivered by Mr. G. Laffoley, Ex-President of the Montreal Board of Trade, and by Mr. R. L. Calder, K.C. The chair was occupied by James W. Gall, President of the local Board, and Mayor Arthur Larocque gave formal welcome to the guests of the evening.

Ex-President Montreal Board of Trade is Speaker

The first speaker called upon was Mr. G. Laffoley, who was introduced by Mr. C. Tremblay. While a stranger to many present, the speaker was soon made known as a gentleman of wide experience and travel having, it appears crossed the ocean some 64 times. Mr. Laffoley took occasion to offer congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Copeland, whose Golden Wedding celebration he had seen reported in the press. He thanked Mr. Tremblay for the kindly manner of his introduction, and then launched out into a brief review of Boards of Trade, their aims and objects, with a strong urge to broaden the conception of our duty as citizens and not allow political or personal issues to enter into our deliberations.

The speaker paid tribute to the pioneers of our fine industrial institutions, and to the progress of development which had taken place during the years. He feelingly referred to the late John T. Ayers and Howard Wilson as men of vision, whose passing had left a void hard to fill; but he congratulated the present heads of our local industries for their spirit in keeping abreast with the times, as Mr. Tremblay had referred to the installation of twenty looms for manufacture of tweeds, etc. in addition to the other commercial pursuits of our local textile industry.

R. L. Calder is Humorous Vein

The pleasure of introducing Mr. R. L. Calder was accorded to L. L. Legault, K.C., a former classmate, colleague and legal partner; and both of these gentlemen referred most judiciously to their early life and political careers. Mr. Calder finally giving credit to his friend Mr. Legault for greater wisdom, in that he knew enough to come to Lachute twenty-five years ago while he, the speaker, had only of recent years adopted it as his home. Getting down to more serious matters Mr. Calder took up the question of taxation, and in his usual fearless manner told some very potent truths. Taxes, he said, are the only method of raising money for government purposes, "—and I ask, what are the proper purposes of government? . . . I find an apt definition of its function in a document which George III did not care much about, the Declaration of Independence; and it is this: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.'"

The rights secured by the government are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, but nothing is said of the free gift of happiness. No government is held to confer that upon any nation that it governs—the individual must acquire it for himself; and the only thing the government does is to remove obstacles to his pursuit of happiness.

Independence, continued the speaker, was but the first writing of democracy; it continued in France in the French Revolution; it continued through the reforms of Great Britain, until it culminated with the grant of universal suffrage. And during this period of evolution all the reformer wanted was to restrict government to its own functions, to forbid its meddling in lives of individuals.

The governments today proceed in large measure to make a free gift of happiness to the people. In olden days, when corruption was open and honest, a rich man would buy a borough or county with his own money. Some nursed their constituency by giving a football ground or community hall in the hope they would be remembered when run-

Member of Hill-Head Family Dies in States

A native of this county died on April 21st., at his home in Salinas, U.S.A.,—in the person of James McQuat, who had all but attained the allotted span of three score years and ten. Mr. McQuat was born at Hill Head over 69 years ago but left here as a young man, spending some 5 years in the Klondyke and his remaining 30 years at Salinas. There he led an industrious life in farming until 18 months ago, when ill health forced his retirement from activity.

Mr. McQuat is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Mary. Also, well known in this district, there remain two sisters and three brothers. The former are Mrs. W. H. Hume and Mrs. J. S. Pollock of Hill Head; the brothers are William and Thos. McQuat of Hill Foot, and Murray McQuat of St. Hermas.

Soft-Ball Club Organizes

Season's Plans

The first meeting of the newly organized Soft-Ball Club was held on the 27th. inst., the following executive being elected: President, Philippe Valois; Hon. President, J. S. Giles; Secretary, H. Parkinson; Manager, E. Mignon. The local team, it is understood, will be known as the "Lachute Tigers", sporting orange and black colors with a black tiger crest. They will participate in the Inter-provincial League schedule with Hawkesbury, Brownsburg and Vank-leek Hill teams, the schedule counting 24 games for each, including two home fixtures with each of their 6 opposing teams.

Lachute numbers 16 players, out of which the club hopes to present a strong team to meet the other well-organized clubs. A drawing is being conducted to help finance the venture, as it is expected there will be no admission charge for the games. These will be played during the week—no Sunday fixtures being arranged.

The league trophy, in the form of a handsome silver cup, is now on view in Abraham's store-window, Splendid Confectionery, Main Street, where it will be displayed for a week. Prizes for the draw, including a Hammond electric clock, will be exhibited shortly afterwards at the same store.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER.

"LET'S GO"

Dear Boys:

The other day two boys met in the street. That they were pleased to see each other was evident by the look on their faces and their eager greeting. For a few minutes they conversed together, though what they were talking about could not be heard distinctly from where I stood; also it was not my business anyway. However some agreement was reached and with the words "Let's Go" they moved off towards the town.

Nothing in that, you say; but wait a minute! From this simple incident I noted three things. First, a happy meeting between good friends; secondly an interchange of ideas, and lastly a complete and cordial decision to do something together.

And here we have a lesson given us in Co-operation! The fellow who thinks he can make progress by working only for and by himself, is doomed to failure. At the best it's a lonely road he sets out on, and there is the certainty that before he has gone very far he will be in desperate need of a stout and loyal comrade to help him over the obstacles in his path.

Can't you imagine him then, standing, all alone, a look of fearfulness on his young face, and a great longing in his heart for the voice of someone he knows and trusts—to just say, "Let's Go."

I like those two words. They seem to denote action. Can you imagine one boy saying to another, "Let's go" and then nothing happening?—I can't!

"Let's Go; Just you and I,
To see what lies beneath the sky,
And pray that all the road we've trod
Will bring us in the end to God."

Do you understand what I mean? Right then, "Let's Go".

Your affectionate friend,
THE CAPTAIN.

Sunny Jim was suspicious! It was not a usual feeling with him at all, and one that he had little use for. Further, the dark shadow of its influence had not clouded his mind suddenly but had gathered there little by little, fed perhaps by many small events that had come to his notice.

From the time he had stood with Edgar and Walter, watching he crowded lower deck, with its human freight of under-privileged passengers, the thought stayed with him that, supposing they had the courage to unite against those whom they could justly look on as their oppressors, what would happen?

At first such thoughts seemed to be outside the realm of possibility. What could such a crowd, however strong and numerous, do against organized authority? They had no firearms, not even clubs or sticks; and yet because of this feeling which possessed him he had more than once returned to watch the moving mass of humanity, and had, with a shudder, seen the scowling looks, the small groups whispering together, and the unmistakably desperate clenching of hands. Then it was that stark fear came upon the little man, and the instinctive knowledge that, given the slightest opportunity, the one and only way to freedom would be taken by these desperate creatures. But out of this fear had come caution, the one great characteristic upon which Sunny Jim prided himself. Having the freedom of the boys' cabin as well as that of Tom Dickson, he spent a portion of his time in very carefully cleaning the pistols and guns which the little party were carrying with them to their new habitation. It was all part of his plan, that he had insisted on their becoming expert in the use of the smaller weapon although he had not breathed a word of his fear and suspicion to them, for perhaps after all there would be no cause for alarm; and yet—

"So you see, Young Master," he said, addressing Edgar, "You do not find it so easy after all, to hit that bottle floating there so near to the ship." The boy with an exclamation of disgust handed the empty pistol to Sunny Jim.

"It's no use at all," he replied impatiently. "I have fired all my bullets and did not even get near it. It's too small a mark, a man now, I could hit; that would be easier."

"Not very much so, I fear. You have to remember that, though the mark would be indeed larger, your hand would not be so steady or your nerves so cool. It's one thing to aim at a defenceless object and another to fire at an on-rushing figure who you knew was bent upon your destruction if you failed to hit him."

Just then there was a sharp crack followed by a shout of joy from Walter, who had been carefully aiming at the moving bottle. "Got it!" he cried, his eyes full of triumph. "There you are Edgar; it's perseverance that does it. See, the bottle has vanished."

"Well done, Master," replied Sunny Jim. "That was a good shot. Now we will to our exercises, and then I will show you how to use these pistols in other positions besides that of standing on your feet."

For the next two hours their instruction continued until a bell sounded, upon which both lads made their way to the main cabin for noon-day dinner.

Edgar exclaimed eagerly—"Walter, do you know I have never been so hungry in my life! I can't understand it at all. Here we are cooped up on board a ship with very little space; and back at home, even when we have been riding over the hills on our horses, I have not wished for my dinner as I do now."

His chum nodded. "I am hungry too, but I can't account for it."

The afternoon passed lazily away, for the weather still remained calm, and the ship hardly moved upon the sea's glassy sur-

Daylight Stories

—The two girls clung to each other shivering with fright for some time, until Maud said suddenly "I think that we had better go and tell Grandma."

May clutched her tightly; "I don't think that you should, Maud. She has had one fright already tonight, another one might not be good for her; and besides that creature, whatever it was, might have followed us upstairs."

"I am sure it did not, else we would have heard it. And I think Grandma should know about it, whatever it is—or Aunt Sue."

"It would be much better to tell Uncle Ned and let him investigate, if you tell anyone, but if you go you go alone. I am not stirring out this room until morning," said Maud.

"Not even for toothache drops," Maud said with a half-hearted chuckle. "Oh, my toothache has gone completely. I had forgotten that I had toothache. I suppose one nerve-centre being upset cured the ailment of the other. It seems to me I heard Miss Allan say that. I know that my toothache is gone. I expect it was frightened to death!"

The two girls started laughing at the idea of a toothache being frightened to death, and the laugh settled their nerves so completely that in a few minutes they were asleep and they slept so soundly and so long that their grandmother got quite anxious about them and came to see if they were ill.

"Oh Grandma!" cried Maud, getting hurriedly out of bed, "is it so late that you had to come to waken us?"

"It is rather late, dear. The boys have had breakfast and are ready to go to the woods. They are just waiting to see you. They have some exciting stories to tell you." May looked at Maud and smiled. They had an exciting story to tell too!

Hurrying downstairs the two girls were met with a shout from Bert. "You certainly missed all the fun by sleeping late. We have had a priceless time this morning laughing at old Timmy!"

"Old Timmy!" Maud said, "who is he? and where was he?"

"He was here in Grandma's store-room all night!" shouted Billy, quite determined to get part of the story told ahead of face. Then the sun set and deep shadows crept across the white decks; while later a large yellow moon climbed up into the still night sky.

—I think I have before asked my young readers, if they ever thought what it was like to spend a night at sea. There is a magic charm and beauty in the experience, never to be had by those who live all their lives in man-made cities. For our two heroes, as they stood together watching the changing colors of the sky and sea, it was an enchanting joy, and they were lost in wonder at the great majesty of it all.

—It was peace; but a calm that was to be followed by a crashing fierceness they were never to forget!

upstairs in terror. I know now that the pistol-shot noise was only Old Timmie striking a match. But we had a real fright just the same. I came nearly vowing that I'd never come to Grandma's house again. It seems so full of terror.

"And there's bears in the bush here too," shouted Billy. "big brown ones." "Yes, the kind you see at night," laughed Maud knowingly.

"No, real live ones. We saw one in the sugar-cabin last night. He ate up the taffy. That's why we had to stay until Uncle Ned made some more." Billy made answer. "It's true now, ain't it, Bert?"

"Sure thing! Billy is right. We did meet a bear in the sugar cabin," said Bert. "A real live one, Grandma. I am not fooling."

"I'm afraid they did see a bear, Mother. I did not see it myself but something ate the taffy, and upset things in general," said Uncle Ned, in reply to his mother's questioning look.

"The poor hungry thing!" said Grandma pityingly. "I suppose it had just awakened from its winter sleep and did not know where to turn for food." —"I am glad that it did not turn to us, Grandma," said Ned. "Oh! he laughed. "Look at Prinnie isn't he funny-looking!"

Uncle Ned had tossed Prince a piece of buckwheat cake and he was standing with arched back spitting at it the way he had done in the night, when May had stepped on him! He was still nervous on him! He was still nervous on the experience, and the sudden dropping of the piece of cake by his side had startled him again.

"He was funnier-looking than that last night!" laughed Maud. "—Weren't you, Prinnie?" She reached down to pat him but Prinnie had no intention of being patted. He stalked away, as dignified as a tail-less cat could be, and sat down between the woodbox and the wall, still growling, as he stared out at the children with his big yellow eyes.

—Next week's story will be entitled An Unexpected Ending. So try and guess what the Unexpected Ending will be, and see if you are right.

Aunt Jean.

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago.

Friday, May 11, 1883.

The result of the contest before the courts, in the constituency of Jacques Cartier has been the unseating of Premier Mousseau, and a new election will probably take place.

Arbor Day, set apart for the planting of forest trees throughout Quebec, was well observed by the inhabitants of Lachute.

About 3,000 emigrants arrived at Toronto last week, most of them passing through to the Canadian Northwest.

The smoke-stack of Messrs. Campbell & Co.'s new saw-mill was raised to its place on Monday. It is said to be the largest in Canada, being 110 feet high. The boilers—four in number—are already installed.

"CITY REMEMBRANCER"

The Corporation of London have appointed L. C. Blackmore Bowker, aged 45, to the historic office of City Remembrancer, which carries a salary of £1,500 a year. The vacancy was caused by the death last June of J. B. Aspinall. Mr. Bowker was legal secretary to the law officers of the Crown.

This appointment has existed since Elizabethan days. The City Remembrancer is charged with the conduct of many ceremonial duties which devolve upon the Lord Mayor and Corporation of London. He makes all the incidental arrangements in connection with the presentation of addresses from the corporation to the Crown and to members of the Royal Family, and presents addresses made by the corporation to the Houses of Parliament.

The Remembrancer, in fact, is the medium of communication between the rulers of the city and the sovereign of the realm. He advises the Lord Mayor on all matters of court etiquette, and with the Lord Chamberlain and Master of the Horse, makes arrangements for Royal visits to the city. He is also the watchdog of the corporation in Parliament and has to be in constant attendance throughout the session. He enjoys the privilege of a seat under the gallery in the House of Commons.

TAX PROPOSED FOR MOVABLE HOMES

Riverside dwellers along the banks of the St. Lawrence at Longueuil, Que., will have to pay taxes to the city, if Alderman Henry Holmes has his way and it is found that the municipality has the power to levy taxes on movable houses erected on the strip of land at the river's edge and presumably owned by the Federal Government.

The alderman brought this matter to the attention of the council, pointing out that in previous years these dwellings were only occupied during the summer months. Several families had lived in the houses all winter this year, however, and he felt that these citizens should be taxed. The council decided to investigate.

EXONERATED FROM DAMAGE CAUSED BY ELEMENTS

The new Municipal Act, which is now being compiled by the Manitoba government, contains a provision that will be interesting to municipal bodies. It is that in future no municipal corporation may be held liable for damage caused by water from sudden thaw or from heavy rains. Now, when a further provision is made protecting the municipalities against the vagaries of a weather man who spills water all over the sidewalk one day and turns it into a skating rink the next, then councillors may be able to sleep nights in the spring of the year.

WHEN YOU MOTOR IN JAPAN

Rules of the road which visitors to Japan may understand have been prepared by the Tokio police office. Their intention is most courteous and kindly, even if their English is not up to standard! These rules run:

1. At the rise of the hand policeman, stop rapidly.
2. Do not pass him by, or otherwise disrespect him.
3. When a passenger of the foot hove in site tootle the horn trumpet at him melodiously at first, but if he still obstacles your passage, tootle him with vigor and express by word of mouth the warning, "Hi, hi."
4. Beware the wondering horse that he shall not take fright as you pass him by. Go soothingly by. Do not explode the exhaust box at him as you go by.
5. Give big space to the festive dog that shall sport in the roadway.
6. Go soothingly in the grease mud, as there lurks the skid demon.

COMMON THINGS

It is easy to forget the significance of the thing that lies to hand. We take an essentially simple thing, call it by a technical name, create an elaborate system of it and thus forget the basic principle. One is pleased that the old plain Anglo-Saxon word "commons" is used to describe those lands that are set aside for the use of all the people in a village. The term carries with it a recognition of the fact that it is something owned by the local community for the use of the local community. Unfortunately when one speaks of the local government system, or the municipal council, the fact that it is something communal is apt to be forgotten. The proper name for the local council would be one that conveyed the fact that it is a mere "get-together-movement" on the part of the citizens for their own benefit. It is hard to find a phrase that would convey what is required. A council is really a combination of a district advancement society and a local co-operative movement. One longs for some simple phrase that would carry this meaning so that we might discard the more stodgy title of municipal council. The intricate system of local government is merely the product of a constant effort to evolve a perfect machine to allow all the citizens in a district to work together for their own comfort and health. It would give a new impetus to the system if this fact could only be brought home to every man and woman who forms a part of the civic implement. It may be that some more ingenious brain could supply a title which would be a constant reminder to all the citizens that whatever they do for the council they do for themselves and that every time they impede or attempt to discredit the council they hurt themselves.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

For years that are to be;
How carefully we lay brave plans
We build the house, we till the soil
We plant the tiny tree!

Then month by month we guard and tend,
And watch our plans unfold,
And, watching thus, taste joys as sweet
As any life can hold!

To see our hopes in flower at last,
To see our dreams come true,
This is a cherished happiness
That thrills us through and through.
And yet, in spite of all our pains,
Sometimes a tree will die,
Sometimes a burnt-up harvest droops
Beneath a cruel sky.

Or loss may prove more costly still,
The dearest wish of all,
The proudest vessel of our hopes
In shattered bits may fall.

But well we know, though our small plans,
May perish in our sight,
The universal plan is one
Where each detail is right.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WEEKLY LESSON

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 7.

The Golden Text is: (Hosea 14: 1) "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity."

The following passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." (Romans 8: 1 and 1 Corinthians 15: 22).

"Whatever indicates the fall of man or the opposite of God or God's absence, is the Adam-dream, which is neither Mind nor man, for it is not begotten of the Father." "The great truth in the Science of being, that the real man was, is, and ever shall be perfect is controvertible; for man is the image, reflection, of God, he is neither inverted nor subverted, but upright and Godlike." (Science and Health pages 282 and 200.)

SMILES WORTH DOLLARS

A certain spirit of optimism is noted among our merchants as the return of Spring revives general activity and keeps the cash-register ringing. In our recent contacts with local business-men, it has proven a pleasure to look over their stocks or place our orders. There is a magnetic atmosphere—due directly to this seasonal optimism. We have heard our local merchants in a different mood; and when times are hard and sales are poor, one can scarcely blame them if they complain. But the glad season of Spring drives home one fact—that a genial store-keeper fosters an attractive store. And while commending our brothers who have kept smiling through a hard winter, we would append the moral that year-round optimism surely pays.

SPRING FEVER— SPRING LOGIC

Even the most complacent and indifferent of men, at this season of the year, must be impressed with the great miracle of Nature. When the earth stirs with returning life; when vegetation sprouts from things apparently dead and forgotten, and the countryside assumes a vivid green symbolic of Spring coming into her own—explain it as you will, the very naturalness of Nature is a miracle.

So also, even the most languid of men at this season feel an urge to emulate the process—seeking to rejuvenate that portion of earth and her properties which is theirs. The rake and the hoe; the paint brush and the hand-saw; just now they are in evidence, the feverish symbols of man's enthusiasm for Spring.

Springtime is a stimulant to one's home-pride. And blessed is the man whose pride in his Home is also a pride in his Home Town. Such a citizen is an asset, contributing to a place which is outwardly beautiful and inwardly sound.

True, these lyrical themes suggest a more practical application. For keen citizens are actually investing money in their worldly estates—buying, employing, spending.

And now, as always, men and women should shop at Home! By helping their fellow merchants, they will help their town and ultimately help themselves. The progress of any healthy settlement can be traced to the underlying principle of Co-operation.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, May 3.—A tax on foreign-built boats brought in to operate on the Great Lakes is on the way. It will come in the form of an amendment to the Canada Shipping Act. Yard-owners claimed that unless they could get a few building orders for ships they could not even afford to keep their repair yards running, and the trade along the Lakes would be under a severe handicap. Other amendments designed to throw the lion's share of the Canadian grain trade in the path of Canadian boats are also being prepared.

The map of Canada has been carved up into 245 constituencies ready for the next general election, but the Opposition don't like the patterns in two provinces, Quebec and Saskatchewan. They threaten to stage a filibuster in the House if the government attempts to go through with the present map. There is talk of shelving the bill till next session, but Premier Bennett is said to be anxious to see it through. One never knows these days when it might be wise to call a general election. The party tacticians don't want to appeal to the people on the old map.

A Fall Session?

Will there be a fall session? The feeling now is that the present one should be wound up without delay, so as to give Premier Bennett plenty of time to prepare for the World Economic Conference, from which so much is expected by everybody since the 'little conference' at Washington was so hopeful. If valuable agreements are reached at London, in June, will Canada want to wait a year before putting them into effect? Likely not. Hence the talk of a session this fall.

Sentiment is getting better but business is still pretty weak, and unemployment very high. In March the relief bill for the unemployed was eight million dollars, covering federal, provincial and municipal expenditure. The number of people securing relief was 1,429,000. That means 13 out of every 100 people in Canada. Hope it marks the record for the depression. With summer coming on the number is sure to decrease for a while.

War veterans employed in the civil service are not to lose either their salaries or their pensions. The government, after consulting veterans' associations, had a change of heart. Pensions are to become subject to income tax, but not this year.

Some Tax Changes

A few changes in the budget taxes were made last week, mostly downward. The excise tax on perfumed spirits was reduced from $2.50 a gallon to $1.50; on cigarette tubes from 50c per 1,000 to 40c. Shaving soaps and shaving creams were made taxable at 10 per cent (hitherto free); the tax on automobile tires was changed from five per cent of the value to two cents a pound weight; on inner tubes from five per cent to three cents a pound. The maker of 'home-brew' gets some relief with a reduction on unfermented wort from 25 cents per pound to 10; the tax on malt syrup and similar ingredients comes down from 50c per pound to 20c.

The radio commission has been under fire in the House and out. The root trouble seems to be that it is now three years since private ownership was free to improve and expand. Many sets have become obsolete, and with a sort of sentence of death hanging over their heads, private operators have just plugged along at a minimum of expense. The radio fans are clamoring for action. They want a lot of new powerful stations and some high-class programs. But a still wider section of the public are in economical mood, and protest anything in the nature of 'luxury' expenditure. It's a tough life, being a servant of the public. Lots of people wanted 'Judge' Rutherford off the air. When he was silenced, there arose a cry of persecution and suppression of free speech. Every time the commission alters wave lengths, there are protests from affected fans.

LACHUTE BURGLAR IS MURDER SUSPECT

Lachute Watchman,—
Called Out to Fire and Caught Burglar

Lacking proper police protection and with no officer to respond to the call of Mr. Lapierre, of Bethany street, when he informed the telephone operator that burglars were in the home of Jos. Belanger early Sunday morning—a call was rung in for the fire brigade. They immediately responded, and Fire Chief Deacon, William his brother, and Geo. Beaton surrounded the house, the latter two pluckily entering an open window in the rear, passing into the building, where they finally located the intruder, who turned out to be a young fellow who had been working around town for several weeks. The explanation of his presence there was that he might "have a sleep"—but the Chief thought it would be better for him to sleep in the town coop, and on Monday he was brought before Magistrate Calder, and after pleading guilty to the charge of vagrancy, Frank Cox was sentenced to one month's imprisonment in jail at St. Jerome, and then deportation to England as an undesirable.

ning for office. But, climaxed the speaker, it was left to the two great countries of this continent, to effect the miracle of bribing the people with their own money! Today, said Mr. Calder, we have allured the electorate so that a man can proclaim 'I gave you a city hall, a post-office, this or that public work,—it is given with your money; and the funny thing is that, instead of replying that we see no reason to be grateful for the dispensing of our own money, after having pocketed his own salary—instead, we go enthusiastically to the polls and say, "How well this government has treated us; let us all get together and return it to power!" No less humorous, is the folly of those who hope the elected powers spend some of their own money among them, after deducting the cost of raising that money . . . So out of this situation has arisen the great institution known as the Pork Barrel. It would be interesting to count the cost of all the premature and unnecessary buildings, the deserted and useless wharves, thus erected. It would be found that sufficient money had been expended in this manner to pay off our national debt!

Government has exceeded its functions; it has gone into business, in which it is not justified. In this process it does one of two things; either creates an oppressive monopoly for the government, or else it competes with private enterprise. The railway business is an example, and now the government is going into the radio business. "I claim the principle is wrong," asserted Mr. Calder, "and while you may say the Liquor Commission is making money, it only does so because of its super-charges, which is not fair." What with servicing and appointment of commissions, such government enterprises have become a serious problem.

During the evening several violin selections were given by Mr. Fassio, with Principal Hall accompanying him at the piano. These were greatly enjoyed and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered, both to speakers and entertainers, by ex-Mayor W. M. Scott and Notary F. Lavigne, followed by the hearty singing God Save the King.

NO POLICE AT WORLD SCOUT JAMBOREE

A small news item going the round of the press mentions amongst Scout operated features of the 1933 World Scout Jamboree in Hungary, a "police force". This was an error. Police are not necessary at international gatherings. The 1929 Jamboree in England was attended by 53,000 boys, including thousands from the enemy countries of the Great War. At the camp opening the Birkenhead police were scattered about the grounds. On the second day they were entirely withdrawn. The Scout law of friendliness made misunderstandings impossible. At the end of the two weeks' camp the police inspector of the area declared there had not been a single disturbance to report. Asked how it compared with military camp, he replied with a laugh, "If we had had one battalion here we would have had our hands full."

Local Historian Addressed Montreal Gathering

Dr. B. N. Wales' Discourse before Antiquarian Society.
"The Seigneurie of Argenteuil"

Montreal Gazette gives the following report of Mr. B. N. Wales' address at the Chateau de Ramezay recently. Dr. Wales has been a frequent contributor to the columns of the Watchman, writing on topics of local history, in which he is a recognized authority. His stories are read with interest by all who have at heart the growth and progress of this locality. His recent address, it appears, was received with equal enthusiasm by his city audience.

The story of the old Seigneurie of Argenteuil and St. Andrew's East—a page out of Canadian history, rich in romance and the stirring adventures of the past—was told to members of the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal, meeting in the Chateau de Ramezay, by B. N. Wales, M.D., of St. Andrews East. The story, told under the roof of Montreal's ancient chateau and illustrated by many relics of the seigniory, brought back to life with startling vividness the proud and aristocratic seigniors, the Indians, the rattling stage coaches and ancient hostilities, and all the glamor and romance of a past age.

Doubly interesting to Montrealers because the ancient seigniory was a comparatively short distance from this city, Dr. Wales' story was vividly descriptive. The history of the Seigneurie of Argenteuil began, he said, during the latter part of the 17th century, when Louis XIV was on the throne of France and the Count de Frontenac was his viceroy in this country. At Quebec, on June 15, 1682, Frontenac granted to Charles Joseph D'Aillebouts, a domain of 72 square miles of virgin forest, on the north side of the Ottawa River, including all the islands, points and sand bars opposite of which the island named Carillon formed a part. In 1725 the seigniory came into the possession of D'Aillebouts' son, Pierre, by whose heirs it was held until 1781.

For a full century, said Dr. Wales, the district remained undisturbed, except as a hunting ground for Indian tribes, although an Indian village was said to have been situated at the mouth of the North River. In 1781 Pierre Louis Panet purchased the seigniory from the heirs of the D'Aillebouts. In conformity with the code of seigniorial tenure he subscribed to the usual oath—"with uncovered head, on bended knee, without sword or spur, he rendered faith and homage on account of his land and seigniory"—and swore fealty to the reigning British monarch, George III.

After the British conquest the new colonial authorities continued the system of land tenure. In speaking of Seigneur Panet, Dr. Wales quoted from the biographical sketch written by Hon. Mr. Justice E. B. Surveyer. Panet was a member of the first Legislative Assembly of Lower Canada and a judge of the Court of King's Bench.

Purchase By Murray.

The Seigneurie, continued Dr. Wales, was later purchased by Major Patrick Murray, and the colony increased rapidly in population and prosperity. At this point in his story, the speaker exhibited the power of attorney given by Murray to his agent and land surveyor, Theodore Davis, written in 1800, and the map prepared by Davis at the seignior's demand.

Murray, therefore, was ready for the tide of immigration from England. Three hundred immigrants made the voyage to Montreal, where they found that no arrangements had been made for their reception, as had been agreed upon by the immigration department in London. After days of trouble over goods and equipment, and of bitter hardships, the unfortunate immigrants were at last established. Roman Catholic at Glengarry and Protestants in the Ottawa Valley, including Major Murray's highlanders.

Americans, however, explained Dr. Wales, were really the first pioneers to settle on the seigniorial lands. They were veterans and sons of veterans who had fought in the war for independence. They became patriotic citizens under the British flag, and while their United Empire Loyalist neighbors, a few of whom had settled on the seigniory, were Anglican with a conservative point of view, these others were the founders of non-conformist churches, one of them being the American Church in Montreal. They formed the vanguard of the Liberal Party in Canada, and, added Dr. Wales: "Their contribution to the enrichment of the life of a nascent nation has not received the place it deserves in Canadian histories."

The public institutions founded by the pioneers, continued the speaker, reflected an intelligence in advance of the time. Public schools and libraries were built through their efforts. In 1814 Sir John Johnson became lord of the Manor, and accomplished much in the industrial development of Argenteuil. Gristmills and sawmills were the result of his energy. The Manor house, centre of social life and hospitality during Sir John's regime, was destroyed by fire about 1865, and the seigniorial manoir at his death passed from one hand to another and finally came into the possession of the St. Andrews Golf Club.

The Carillon Canal

The war of 1812, said Dr. Wales, awakened the military authorities to the importance of having some interior channel of transportation from the Lower St. Lawrence to the Great Lakes. The Duke of Wellington urged the project on the British authorities, with the consequent building of the Carillon-Grenville canal. This brought a large military force into the neighborhood. The original barracks said Dr. Wales, stands today as the Sovereign Hotel.

With the coming of wealthy and distinguished families from England, St. Andrews and the Seigneurie of Argenteuil flourished. Priory was built, overlooking the North River, the rectory of which was the birthplace of Sir John J. Caldwell Abbott, later Prime Minister. Another centre of social life was the Lee Hostelry, run by an American and unlike the wayside inns of England, with a large open fireplace and swinging crane, always ready to welcome travelers. Its stables were supplied with changes of horses, for the mail-carrying stages, and added Dr. Wales: "I have a distinct recollection of seeing, as a little boy, the wreck of the old stage-coach in Blacksmith Pailiser's yard."

"Lee Hostelry," he continued, "was the rendezvous for the village politicians who were playing their part in hastening the coming of responsible government and the ending of the regime of the military oligarchy that had so long ruled the province. During the war of 1812

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Pope Receives Lord & Lady B. P.

During a recent visit of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell to Rome when they were received at the Vatican, His Holiness the Pope once again expressed his approval of Scouting, and its disregard of class ties and race. He recalled his pleasure at the visit to Rome four years ago of a pilgrimage of 10,000 Catholic Boy Scouts of many countries.

Mail by Motorless Airplane

The latest startling development in flying was the successful carrying of mail by a glider, or motorless airplane, from Vienna to Semmering. A postcard thus started on its way was received at International Scout Headquarters, London, from Austrian Scout Headquarters in Vienna.

Scouts and Apples

Local Boy Scout drives to help bring back in Canada the healthful practice of eating apples "out of hand," to the mutual benefit of consumers, Canadian apple growers and local Scouting finances during this difficult period, are again under way in various parts of the Dominion. Last year "Scout Apple Days" were held in just fifty cities and towns, including Saint John, N. B., where the first was held; Sydney, New Glasgow, Moncton, Fredericton, Toronto, Oshawa, Chatham, Brantford, Owen Sound, Windsor, Regina and Moose Jaw. The approximate equivalent of 2,700 boxes or 800 barrels were sold. In some cases the apples were bought direct from the growers.

this village inn was a resort for refugees from across the border who had no taste for shooting their brothers and cousins on Canadian soil.

"The removal of the registry office to the future county town," Dr. Wales said in conclusion, "and the decision of the engineers that the C.P.R. line should be constructed through Lachute, were the final events that, from a commercial point of view, wrote 'Ichabod' on the portal of old St. Andrews. Then followed the exodus. As time passed an increasing number of the property holders of Argenteuil paid off their seigniorial obligations in lump sums, and all that remained of the seigniorial lands passed into the hands of the Credit Foncier. The numerous descendants of the old families are scattered far and near across the continent, and many of them, by their successful careers, have reflected credit to their native heath."

MACDONALD ON ARRIVAL IN UNITED STATES

Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, is pictured with his daughter, Isabel, and Grover Whalen, of the reception committee, as they left the boat for Washington. The genial statesman is no stranger to the United States and is very popular wherever he goes.

Suggest a name for Miss Alice Moir's

Everybody's naming Magic Mystery Cakes... What's your suggestion this month?

JUST think of the things you could do with that $250 prize! There's nothing hard about this contest, either. You name the mystery cake—that's all!

Miss Alice Moir has contributed the recipe for this Magic Mystery Cake. It's a cake you'll like. Attractive. Delicious. Easy to make and inexpensive.

Start right in today to think up a name for this Mystery Cake. Read the recipe. Sounds good, doesn't it? And it is good. If you make the cake, be sure to follow Miss Moir's advice—use Magic Baking Powder.

Magic gives consistently better baking results. That's the reason the majority of dietitians and cookery experts throughout Canada use it exclusively. They know from experience that Magic is always dependable.

Don't put off entering this Magic Contest. There are 63 prizes—and the name you suggest may easily win one of them.

Here's Miss Alice Moir's recipe... Can you name it?

Mix and sift 2 cups pastry flour (or 1 1/4 cups bread flour) with 3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt; cream 1/2 cup butter, add 1 cup fine sugar, beat until very light. Add well-beaten yolks of 3 eggs, then sifted dry ingredients alternately with 1/2 cup milk; add 1/4 teaspoon vanilla. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill buttered pans 3/4 full. Bake in moderate oven 350° F. 25 min.

FILLING: Cream 3 tablespoons butter, gradually add about 1 1/4 cups confectioner's sugar, 1 teaspoon very strong coffee, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla and enough cream to make mixture of consistency to spread. Fold in 2 tablespoons of almonds which have been blanched and lightly browned in oven and rolled fine with rolling pin. Spread between layers.

FROSTING: Place 1 cup brown sugar and 1/2 cup boiling water in saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Boil gently without stirring until a soft ball is formed when tried in cold water, or syrup spins thread 3 in. long when dropped from spoon. Cool gradually. Add slowly to stiffly beaten white of 1 egg. Beat until it thickens. Add 1/4 teaspoon vanilla. Spread thickly over cake and sprinkle with rolled burnt almonds.

"I am enthusiastic about these CHRYSLER and PLYMOUTH Cars....I am proud to sell them to my friends" says

J. N. Welden

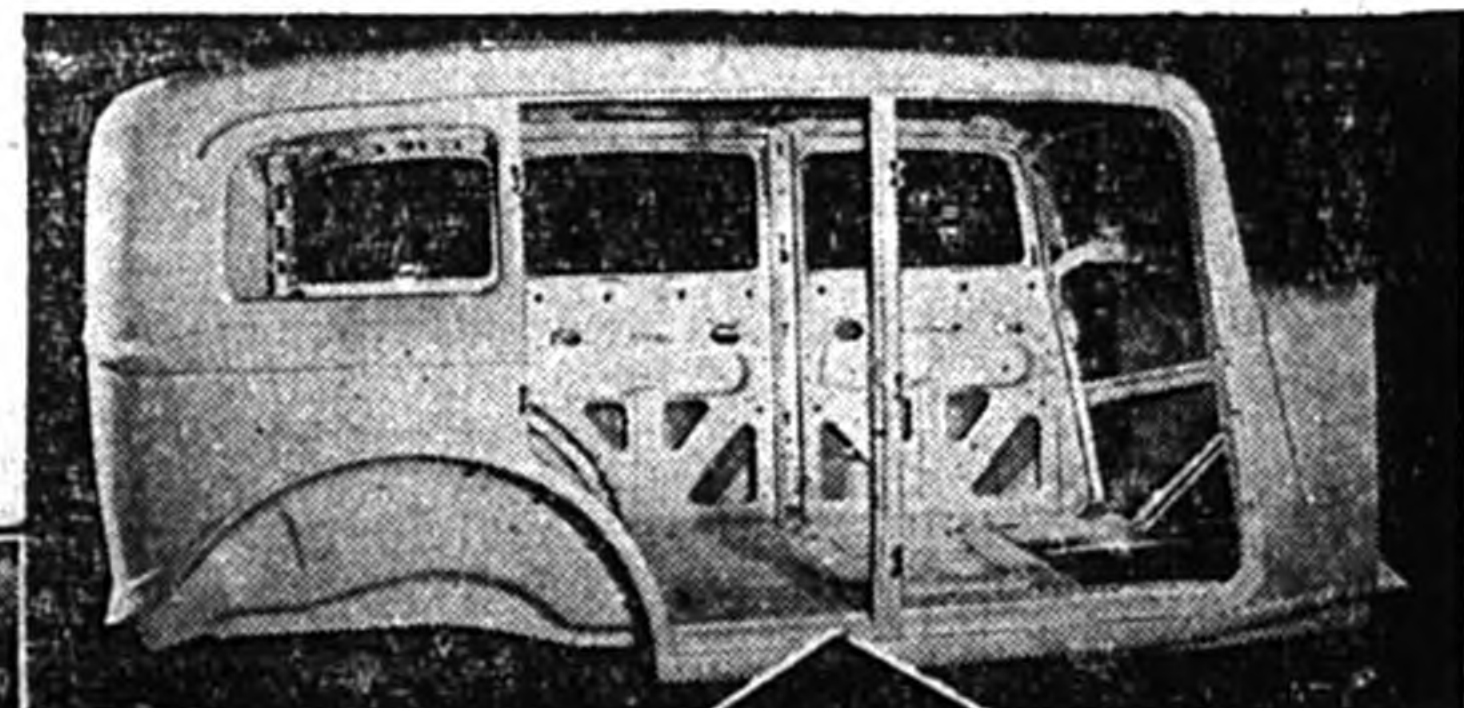

"My friends and the public, the new Chrysler and Plymouth cars are such beautiful automobiles and such great values that I am proud to offer them to you.

"They are not only beautiful to look at but they are the finest cars mechanically that Chrysler has ever made.

"Both Chrysler and Plymouth cars have many features that mean more economical, safer, and more comfortable motoring. Plymouth as well as Chrysler cars have: Floating Power Engine Mountings, which banish engine vibration and driving fatigue ... Oilite Springs, that never squeak, never need oiling ... All-Steel Bodies, the safest and the strongest ... Hydraulic Brakes with Centrifuse Brake Drums, which are very easy to operate, self-adjusting, safe and sure. The new alloy steel valve seat inserts reduce operation costs, because they give many additional thousands of miles without valve grinding. No other car as low-priced as Plymouth has these modern features.

"The Girder-truss X-Type double-drop frame is another important feature of the new Plymouth and Chrysler cars. This frame places the weight of the car low to the ground and makes it steady on the turns ... Driving these cars doesn't tire you out, because you cannot feel the road shocks. A touch of the finger steers them, a touch of the toe on the brake pedal stops them.

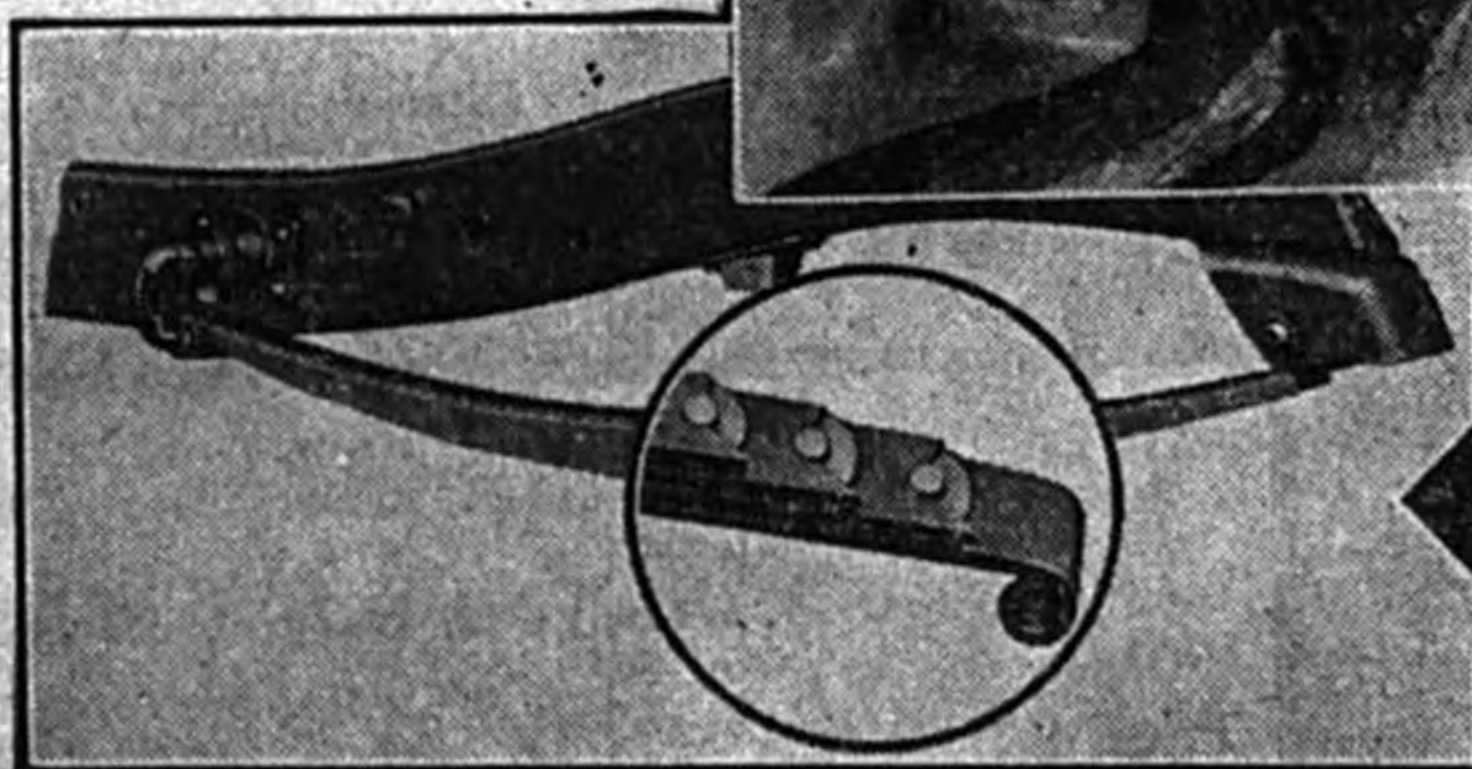

"I could fill this whole newspaper with the things I would like to tell you about Chrysler and Plymouth cars—but come and see them yourself and drive one, compare them with other cars, point by point, then you will feel as enthusiastic as I do."

A CHRYSLER ALL-STEEL BODY. THE SAFEST AND QUIETEST BODY. LIKE AN ALL-STEEL RAILWAY CAR. THEY PROTECT YOU IN THE CASE OF AN ACCIDENT.

HARDENED-STEEL VALVE-SEAT INSERTS GREATLY REDUCE VALVE GRINDING. AS THEY WEAR VERY SLOWLY THE PERIOD OF ECONOMICAL OPERATION IS GREATLY INCREASED.

OILITE SPRINGS, V-TYPE SILENT SHACKLES AND RUBBER-CORED SHACKLES GIVE YOU EASIER RIDING — NO SQUEAKS — NO RATTLES.

RIGID X-TYPE GIRDER-TRUSS DOUBLE-DROP FRAME IS 10 TIMES STRONGER THAN THE OLD TYPE. PERMITS THE CAR BEING SWUNG LOW TO THE GROUND AND IS SAFER.

Baptist Evangelistic Campaign Crowned with Success

There terminated on Sunday evening last, in Lachute Baptist Church, a two weeks' series of evangelistic services which will not soon be forgotten. Rev. William Fraser, Pastor of Ambassador Regular Baptist Church, Windsor, Ont., proved to be, as advertised, a "great evangelist," and his sane, earnest, heart-searching messages will live long in the memory of his many hearers. The response to this special effort was most gratifying, beginning in a marked manner at the very first service, and continuing with hardly a break throughout the entire campaign—to the joy of the special preacher and of the Pastor, Rev. F. W. Dyson—the visible results being the public confession of their new-found faith on the part of a large number of persons of all ages, in varying numbers at the different services, and collectively in two baptismal services—one in which fourteen were immersed, and another in which ten more passed through the waters. These and others will be received as new members, at Dalesville on Sunday morning next, and at Lachute in the evening.

Mr. Fraser continues this week and next week, in Brownsburg, and already there have been a number of conversions there. Amongst subjects to be used at these services are "The Baptism of the Holy Ghost", "Overcoming Local Prejudice", "Can a soul once saved ever be lost."

Mr. Fraser will speak at Dalesville on Sunday morning next, at Brownsburg in the afternoon and at Lachute in the evening. At Lachute his subject will be "The Kindness of God."

Lesson for May 14

JESUS ASSERTS HIS KINGSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Mark 11:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion: shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass,
and upon a colt the foal of an ass.
Zech. 9:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Praising Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—King of All Kings.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Acknowledging Christ as King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—The Lordship of Jesus.

I. Jesus Officially Presented to the Jewish Nation as Their King (vv. 1-11).

It is hardly proper to designate this
the "triumphal entry" for it was only so to outward appearance. It was rather the promised Messiah publicly offering himself to the Jewish nation as the king.

1. The preparation (vv. 1-5).

a. Two disciples sent to bring the colt (vv. 1-3). Jesus told them just where to find it and how to answer
the owner's inquiry.

b. The obedience of the disciples (vv. 4-6). Without asking the reason why, they went at Christ's bidding.
The command may have seemed strange and unreasonable, but they rendered explicit obedience.

2. The entry into Jerusalem (vv.
7-10).

a. The disciples put their garments
upon the colt, and Jesus sat upon it
(v. 7). This action showed their recognition of Jesus as their Messiah, the King (II Kings 9:13).

b. The action of the multitude (vv.
8, 9). Some spread their garments in the way. Others who had no garments to spare threw down branches. This entry was in fulfillment of a prophecy uttered some five hundred years before (Zech. 9:9). They uttered the very cry which the prophet predicted.
Since the prediction of the first coming was thus literally fulfilled, we can be assured that those concerning his second coming will likewise have literal fulfillment. The prophecy of Zech.
14:3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as was that of Zech. 9:9.

c. The action of Jesus (v. 11).
Upon entering the temple he looked round upon all things, but as it was eventide, he with the twelve withdrew to Bethany.

II. Jesus Exercising Kingly Authority
(vv. 12-19).

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv.
12-14). The fig tree is typical of the Jewish nation. The fruit normally appears on the fig tree ahead of the leaves. The presence of the leaves is assurance of fruit. This was an act parable of Christ's judgment on Israel
for pretension to being the chosen people without the fruits thereof.

2. The temple cleansed (vv. 15-19).
For the various sacrifices many oxen, sheep, and doves were needed. It was impracticable for people from distant parts to bring their sacrifices with them. They brought money, therefore, and bought the animals needed. This privilege was provided in the Jewish law (Deut. 14:24-26). In such cases exchange was necessary. However, when evil men used it as an opportunity for gain, it became an offense to God. It defiled his house. Jesus made a scourge of cords and drove out the money changers (John 2:15), overthrowing their tables and pouring out their money. By this act he declared himself to be the Lord of the temple, and one with God. The scribes and chief priests grasped the meaning thereof, for they were aroused to murderous hate and sought to destroy him.

III. Jesus' Authority Challenged (vv.
27-33).

1. By whom (vv. 27, 28). The chief priests, the scribes, and the elders demanded that he show by what authority he accepted the honors of the Messiah and by whom he was given the right to cast out the money changers.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 29, 30). He responded to their challenge by a question which placed them in a dilemma. Since John was his forerunner, the commission of John and Jesus had the same source. If John's commission was from heaven, Christ's commission was from heaven likewise.
If they had accepted John's message,
they would have been ready to accept his. They were powerless to destroy John because the people accepted
John as having been sent from heaven.

3. The answer of the chief priests and scribes (vv. 31-33). Perceiving the force of the dilemma in which they were placed, they confessed that they did not know the source of John's commission. These rulers had no affection for Jesus so they rejected his message and sought to destroy him.

DOES YOUR RADIO PLAY ONLY JAZZ?

How many of you listen to Walter Damrosch and his music Appreciation Hour over the radio on Friday evenings? I wish more of our Canadian school children could hear it.
This morning there was a memory test of the music played this past season. It is to be hoped that the children did better than I was able to do. I was ashamed of myself. Music with which I was thoroughly familiar, I was unable to name. We listen very inattentively to the radio. The children that are growing up now have a wonderful opportunity of soaking a good music unconsciously. It is my privilege to sing in a Ladies' Choir under a very distinguished Belgian conductor. We are building up a store-house
in our memories of very beautiful music. Our conductor is steeped in operatic music, which as you know very well, is something we Canadians miss almost completely. Each season our conductor arranges fantasies
from different operas. We enjoy learning these but they give a great joy when we hear them sung over the radio by famous singers, and are familiar with every note. Incidentally, two of the selections played in the memory test are works that we have studied in our choir. The reason that many people do not like good music is that they are not familiar with it. Give your radio a chance and let it give you something besides jazz.

The name Walter Damrosch reminds me of a story one of my friends told me about her four year old son. She had suggested that it was not necessary to say 'darn.' So he asked her if it was all right to say 'Walter Damrosch'. His mother said of course it was so he went about saying 'Walter Damrosch, Walter Damrosch', over and over putting the emphasis where it would do the most good.

MAY IS PINEAPPLE MONTH

Now-a-days it is possible to buy pineapple, the year round.
May, however is the month that it is at its best and is cheapest in price. Most of us do not eat sufficient fresh fruits and it is wise to use them as they come in season very generously. We crave fresh things in the Spring
and pineapples are very welcome.
The time honored test of a ripe pineapple is to pull out one of the spines and if it comes out easily the fruit is ripe. A ripe pineapple will have a uniformly golden colour and will be slightly soft. It is risky to buy too green a pine and expect to ripen satisfactorily as often they rot before they ripen. Choose a pineapple that is heavy for its size and one that is plump all the way up rather than pear shaped, as it will have less waste.

The size of the pineapple does not matter as you will get as much fruit from a small one in proportion to skin as you will

from a large one. Personally, I prefer to pay more and buy a large fruit as it always seems as much work to get a small one ready as a large one.

Preparation is the bugbear of pineapple. Most people cut them in slices, then cut around the skin, remove the core and dice.
I prefer the following method
as I find it much quicker. Probably it will not be quicker the first time you try it but after a little practise you will find it quite easy. Cut a slice from the top and bottom of the pineapple. Cut in quarters lengthwise and remove the core. Slash to the skin lengthwise, then crosswise, making the slashes about 1/4 inch apart. Cut in slices and the fruit falls off in neat cubes.

Many people still can or preserve pineapple. I have found that I can buy canned pineapple cheaper than I can do it at home.
Pineapple jam or Pineapple and Strawberry jam can be made more cheaply at home and is possibly of better flavour. Pineapple imparts its flavour to other fruits and is often preserved with rhubarb. If you have any apples left in your cellar and are wondering just what to do with them, try cooking some of them with pineapple for your preserve shelf. The apple absorbs the flavour and makes an economical filler. Apple or rhubarb may be used in any proportion to pineapple that suits your taste or your pocketbook—the higher the proportion of pineapple the better flavoured the preserves will be.

Pineapple has a great many uses. It may be served alone or in combination with any other fruit either as a cocktail or in salads. A cocktail is an ap-petiser and should not be very sweet. Fruit salads may be served with or without salad dressing. Never add fresh pine apple to a jelly as there is a property in it which destroys the pectin and prevents it from jel-ling. It must be cooked before adding to the jelly. So beware of adding raw pineapple to your favorite jelly powder. No amount of gelatine will make it jell.

1, 2, 3, 4 Cake

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
4 eggs
1 cup milk

Cream butter adding sugar gradually, beat in eggs one by
one. Sift flour and baking powder and add to first mixture alternatively with milk. Bake in a loaf pan for about an hour in a moderate oven of 325 degrees
This makes a large cake and has been an old reliable for many a long year. Chances are your mother used it. Half the quantity may be made for a smaller
cake.

QUEBEC GOVERNMENT MAY PROMOTE REFOREST- RATION SCHEME.

A means of providing employment and at the same time providing protection for great natural resources is under consideration by the Lands and Forests Department of the Quebec Government. The suggestion was made by G. C. Piche, Chief Forester of the Department, who believes that if direct relief funds can be made available for this purpose, many men will be given wholesome work, at the same time that lasting benefits
would accrue to the Province.

The proposal was received with approval by Hon. Honore Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, according to Mr. Piche's statements.

A Mock Town Council Meeting

Matters of Moment in Far-off Africa Stimulate Wit of Youthful Students

(In the Town Hall of Durban, (S. Africa) the Natal Mock Council Meeting. Certain highlights of the session are reproduced herewith, extracted and verbatim from report in the "South African Treasurer" of December 1932).

A few days before that memorable date in the annals of the Natal Students' Society—the 5th. October, 1932—the following notice of meeting was formally served upon all members of the Natal Students' Society:—

Mock Council.

A meeting of the Mock Council will be held in the Council Chamber, Municipal Buildings, Durban, on Wednesday, 5th. October, 1932, at 7.45 p.m., to consider the subjects set out in the Agenda attached hereto and to take such action thereon as may be deemed advisable.

F. Stewart, Mayor.

Agenda.

- (1) Confirmation of Minutes.
(Meeting held some time ago.)
- (2) Sealing of Documents.
(As per statement to be laid on table.)
- (3) Consideration of Reports of Committees.
(Circulated herewith.)
(a) Beach Committee.
(b) Electricity Committee.
- (4) Notice of Motion by Councillor C. Clarkson.

"That in view of the abnormal depression, coupled with the high cost of the necessities of life, this Council considers the time is ripe for the establishment of a Municipal Brewery."

At last the bomb had burst. Coming as the last item on the programme of the 1932 session,
this Mock Council meeting had aroused considerable interest. What was to be the nature of the meeting, its procedure, the discussion? Who was to be the Mayor and who were to distinguish themselves as learned Councillors? All these and many other questions were being asked.
It was known that the Executive Committee had
the matter well in hand, that the energetic personnel of the sub-committee responsible for the detail
work were sparing no pains to make the Natal Students' Society's first real public debut an outstanding success. It was known also that numerous preparatory committee meetings were being held, reports were being written, the agenda was being moulded into form, press reporters and photographers interviewed.

To add to this atmosphere of piquant expectancy, electrical engineers, sound technicians and dictaphone experts were busily engaged in the Council Chamber suspending microphones, installing a terrifying looking apparatus—a new member of the robot family with numerous wires,
bulbs, knobs and switches—which was introduced to the layman as "Mr. Public Address System." Feverishly they worked, testing here, adjusting
there, connecting the dictaphones to the loud-speakers, arranging the records and transcribing apparatus.

"The hour is now come—." The pseudo Councillors occupy the horse shoe, the real city Councillors lounge comfortably in seats of honour, the gallery is full of eager students chatting excitedly, the press representative sits meditating to the tap-tap of his pencil on his notebook. The Town Hall clock booms, announcing the eighth hour. His Worship the Mayor enters, followed by the Town Clerk. The assembly rises.

Mayor: "I will now call upon the Town Clerk to read the notice convening the meeting."
The preliminaries are disposed of with customary nonchalance. No amateurs here. Already we are at item three of the agenda—
"Consideration of reports of committees."

The agenda consisted of 31 typed foolscap
pages, and the verbatim report of the proceedings as electrically recorded by means of a public address system and dictaphones occupied 35
pages of foolscap. Clearly it is impossible, therefore, to publish in detail the full proceedings of the meeting. This report of the meeting has been prepared, therefore, in precise form.

Report of Beach Committee.

Copies of the Beach Committee's report were unearthed by the Town Clerk's army of assistants and distributed among the Councillors and spectators. As the report had not been circulated before the meeting, the Chairman of the Beach Committee was called upon to read the report.

Beach Layout.

The question of beach layout is a very controversial one, and on examination it has been found that there exists three separate schools

of thought, all centering around this problem.
We have firstly the "Conductive School,"
which, being conservative in nature, advocates no change—as in the opinion of the members the present layout is ideal.

Secondly, we have the "Deductive School," which advocated certain alterations and extensions based on previous experience.

Lastly, we have the "Inductive or Modern School," founded on positive and observable facts, who condemn with journalistic profanity
and caustic comment any layout in whatsoever form it may be presented.

A more detailed examination of the three schools shows—

- (a) That the Conductive School was composed mainly of octogenarians who had no interest in the beach whatsoever.
- (b) That the Deductive School had had no previous experience on which to base their deductions.
- (c) That the Inductive School had no constructive criticism to warrant their derivative verbosity.

It was with regret, however, that this committee had to discard most of the hysterical convictions of these schools of thought, as they disclosed only a profound ignorance of what was practical and economical. A conglomeration of all three points of view was, therefore, necessary,
and it is felt that such a federation could only come by "a return to nature" along such lines
as are hereinafter indicated. It is hoped that the scheme as proposed by this committee would cater for all tastes, be they ancient or modern,
masculine, feminine or neuter.

Proposed Scheme for New Layout.

1. If a "return to nature" is to be adopted,
it is essential that with the exception of the swimming bath the existing layout be scrapped in its entirety, including all tearooms, peanut sellers,
bathing booths etc.
2. It is recommended that the area laid out be utilised in the preparation of a natural tropical garden, together with all appurtenances thereto,
e.g., cocoanuts, monkeys, palms, etc.
- However, it is not proposed to return too closely to nature, and we would, therefore, recommend that the necessary prophylactic buildings be either camouflaged amid the waving palms or be completely hidden from the vulgar gaze.
3. In order to conform with the general layout, it is recommended that the existing bandstand be abolished and a new collapsible stand be so constructed that when folded it will represent either
(a) a rustic bridge;
(b) a seaside cottage;
(c) a canoe truck in full flight.
4. It must not be inferred, however, from the above suggestions that palm trees would make adequate substitutes for bathing booths, as in such cases the strain of avoiding publicity would we are afraid have fatal results. It is therefore, recommended that a thatched "craw" be erected on a convenient site to meet this contingency.

Regulations and By-Laws.

Except as is hereinafter provided, it is not proposed to alter the existing by-laws and regulations at present in force in regard to moral conduct, deportment, etc., but it is felt that the changes in layout as advocated above call for some new by-laws and also some amendments to existing regulations to provide that the new area
is adequately controlled.

Recommended By-Laws.

1. Policing.—It is respectfully submitted that the present uniform of the Borough police would not blend with the new layout. It is, therefore, recommended that in order to prevent in-artistic discord, the trousers as laid down in section 49, par. (c) of the Police Regulations be dispensed with,
and Hawaiian kilts be worn with the service tunic.
2. Parking.—The parking problem on the beach front has become so serious that it is maintained that some drastic step must be taken to alleviate the present position. It is recommended that the simplest plan to disperse parking motorists is as follows:—

Give your Watch a Chance

All machinery, especially the light, delicate mechanism of a watch, needs a good cleaning and overhauling occasionally.
Now is a good time. The cost of repairs was never cheaper. And in slack seasons like the present, more time and care can be given to each individual watch or clock. Also it will be repaired and returned to you more promptly.
We are using the most modern and greatly improved methods of watch repairing, which will certainly prolong the life and usefulness of your watch.

All policemen as provided for above would have the following notice printed on the backs of their tunics:—

"Parking Areas and Partners (if necessary) Found on Request."

3. Bathing Costumes.—On this important phase of beach control much heated discussion originated from the regulations imposed last year. These stated inter alia that the costume shall be sufficient to clothe the bather from neck to knee. This, in our opinion, is not sufficiently elastic to cover adequately present-day requirements. It is contended—not without some essence of truth by those who worship at the shrine of fashion that as knees are being worn high and necks low this season some alteration is necessary in order to modernize existing regulations. It is therefore recommended that so much of the regulations as deal with length and breadth of bathing costumes be deleted and the following amendment substituted: "That the costume shall be sufficient to cover at least 18 inches North, East, South and West of the estimated centre of human gravity."

Social Amenities.

Municipal Orchestra.—It is considered desirable that some attempt be made to revive the waning interest of the public in all matters musical. Public opinion is the barometer by means of which the popularity of our orchestra is gauged, and it is clear that the indicator is at the present time pointing to "very windy."

This is the result of any or all of the following causes:—

- (a) Lack of pep.
- (b) Impossibility under present conditions of providing for all tastes.
- (c) Lack of originality.

It is realised, of course, that it is humanly impossible to satisfy everybody, but it is felt that some changes could be brought about to alleviate partially the existing anomalies.

Having this object in view, the committee recommend that in order to instil (or should we say distil) the requisite amount of pep and further to extend the musical scope of our worthy director, it will be necessary to augment the instrument at present available by the addition of cinema organs, piano accordions and jews harps. It is hoped that this will give all those who delight in a syncopated representation of animal noises what is colloquially called an "earful."

To contend with lack of originality, it is suggested that, in contradistinction to all other beach improvements, the attire of the members of the orchestra be such as will tone with the style and period of the music played. That is to say, they would wear kilts whilst playing Scotch airs and Russian boots whilst rendering Dvorak's immortal compositions, and for ballet music a uniform smile would be almost sufficient.

Finance.

With the idea of boosting revenue, it is recommended that an all-night tavern be instituted under the auspices of the Mayor and Town Councillors—to be inaugurated and controlled by the Treasury Department. There is no doubt whatsoever that such an institution would be well patronised, and the scheme would run on well-oiled wheels.

It is obvious that the income accruing from this source will more than compensate for the primary expenditure incurred on the improved layout, and it is estimated that in five years this hitherto unremunerative department will be making the maximum contribution in relief of rates.

The disposal of this report was not long delayed, and the Town Clerk read out the notice of motion by one of the Councillors from the agenda:—

"That in view of the abnormal depression, coupled with the high cost of the necessities of life, the Council considers that the time is ripe for the establishment of a Municipal Brewery."

Amid great applause the Councillor rose to speak to his motion. Attired in a torn black coat, with his collar unfastened and his tie nestling coily on one side, with his nose reddened and his hair tousled, the Councillor had that bibulous and dissipated appearance so necessary to movers of motions such as this. Speaking without any sign of his intoxicated condition, he stated his case.

"Mr. Mayor, gentlemen. In bringing forward this motion I do so fully realising all the many problems involved, many of which are purely imaginary, and I can see a common enemy of all mankind, the capitalist, raising his hands in horror at this interference with private enterprise. But is it interference? I shall quote you some figures and then you will be able to judge for yourselves. During the year ended 31st March, 1932, the S.A. Breweries made a profit of £375,000 whilst for the same period Ohlsson's Breweries made a profit of £75,000, making a total of £450,000. I can vouch for the accuracy of these figures since they were quoted in the "Financial News" some two months ago.

Now the total European population of this country is somewhere round about 1,800,000, whilst the population of this Borough is about 80,000. We can assume that the urban population comprises about 60 per cent of the total population, and, working on the very conservative estimate that the urban dweller drinks twice as much beer as the farmer, we find the proportion of this profit applicable to this Borough is £25,000. Think of it, gentlemen, the working men of this town are being robbed to the extent of £25,000 per year. The capitalist goes to his club, and there he drinks his whisky and his liqueurs, but it is the working man who goes to his less pretentious pub and drinks his beer. But you might say £25,000 divided by 80,000 only means 6s. 3d. per head per year. What are you squealing about?

Let us examine it a little more closely. Forty per cent of the population are under 21, and are therefore ruled out as beer drinkers. This leaves 48,000. Of this number at least 50 per cent are females, and, although there are many female beer drinkers, the proportion of those paying for it out of their own earnings is negligible. Now of the 24,000 left we can assume that 10 per cent are capitalists. This means that a profit of £25,000 per year is made out of 22,000 working men in this town—over £1 per head profit! Gentlemen, it is a tax on living! Can it be justified?

"This is where the Municipality must step in. The sooner we realise that it is just as much a public utility service as the provision of hardened roads and water supply the better, and the sooner the better. Was there ever a time when the necessity was more pressing than now, with so much unemployment, and yet the working man is called upon to pay 9d. per pint for his beer. Can he afford it? Think of all the thousands of children who are starving whilst their fathers are having to pay 9d. a pint for beer. Picture it, gentlemen; it makes my heart ache!

"Let us now turn to a different aspect of this question. By supplying at cost there would be no necessity to seek monopolistic powers, as competitive firms would be simply frozen out. At the same time it would create a greater demand, bringing in its turn more employment. Again, having no competition, there would be no necessity for expensive advertising, allowing of a further reduction in cost with the consequent increased demand and further employment.

"There is still another aspect. With its cheap beer, look at the publicity this municipality would receive! Look at the attraction we would have to offer to visitors. They would flock here in thousands. Our hotels, tearooms, beach amusements, trams, etc., would all benefit. Business would become brisk. The depression would be ended."

No less ably did the seconder of this motion put the case. He stated—"We have gone deeply into this matter, more deeply than I would care to say to-night. I hope that you will realize the urgent necessity of the establishment of a Municipal Brewery. Look at the Native Brewery! Look at their profits! All the Natives are being looked after out of these profits. Therefore, Mr Mayor, I beg to second this motion, and I hope Councillors will drink deeply, both figuratively and literally, and let this matter soak in."

IMMUNIZATION AGAINST DIPHTHERIA

Program for 1933

The Health Unit will continue this year its campaign against diphtheria in the County of Argenteuil through the inoculation of toxoid to children from 6 months to 10 years of age. The municipalities to be visited, the date, the hour and the place of the clinics for first injections are enumerated below (parents will then be advised also the dates for two subsequent injections.)

Municipality	Place of Clinic	1st. Injection
Brownburg	Social Club	May 4th. 2 to 4 p.m.
Lachute	Health Unit Office	May 5th. 2 to 4 p.m.
Carillon	Village School	May 10th. 9 to 10 a.m.
Greece's Point	Greece's Pt. School	May 10th. 10 to 12 a.m.
Grenville	Dansereau's Hall	May 10th. 2 to 4 p.m.
Pte-au-Chene	Local Hotel	May 17th. 10 to 12 a.m.
Calumet	Lavigueur's Store	May 17th. 2 to 4 p.m.
St. Andrews	Municipal Hall	June 7th. 2 to 4 p.m.
16 Island Lake	Village School	June 28th. 2 to 4 p.m.
Weir	Parish Hall	June 29th. 9 to 11 a.m.

Huberdeau	Parish Hall	June 29th. 2 to 4 p.m.
Harrington	Shaw's School	July 6th. 10 to 12 a.m.
Kilmear	Magnesian Office	July 6th. 2 to 4 p.m.
St. Michel	Village School	July 13th. 2 to 4 p.m.
Morin Heights	Village School (Catholic)	July 26th. 2 to 4 p.m.
St. Adolphe	Village School	July 26th. 10 to 12 a.m.
Avoca	School No. 1	Sept. 8th. 10 to 11 a.m.
Rivington	Rivington School	Sept. 8th. 2 to 3 p.m.
Rawcliffe	Rawcliffe School	Sept. 14th. 2 to 4 p.m.

It is important that parents should not miss this opportunity of protecting their children against diphtheria. We have visited the different municipalities once a year for the last two years, and yet not quite 50% of immunizable children have received the three injections. Every immunizable child of this county has a right to this protection, and it is the parent's responsibility to see that such protection is given him. The toxoid is supplied by the Provincial Department of Health and the work is done under the personal supervision of the County Health Officer.

Travelling Tuberculosis Clinic

With regard to the tuberculosis travelling clinics—these will be held in the following municipalities at the date and hour mentioned below:

Municipality	Place of Clinic	Date	Hour
Lachute	Health Unit Office	May 18th.	10 to 5 p.m.
Weir	Parish Hall	June 1st.	10 to 12 a.m.

St. Adolphe	Village School	June 22nd.	10 to 12 a.m.
Morin Heights	Village Sch (Catholic)	June 22nd.	2 to 4 p.m.
Pte-au-Chene	Local Hotel	June 29th.	2 to 4 p.m.
Avoca	School No. 2	June 29th.	2 to 4 p.m.
Brownburg	Social Club	Aug. 3rd.	10 to 4 p.m.
St. Michel	Village School	Aug. 17th.	10 to 4 p.m.
Lakefield	Lakefield School	Aug. 31st.	10 to 4 p.m.

The purpose of these clinics is the control of tuberculosis. The ravages caused by this disease are altogether too serious not to draw the immediate attention of the public. The Provincial Health Department provides for a Clinician specialized in tuberculosis work to examine the cases.

We cordially invite all those interested, to learn something of their chest condition and those anxious to avoid the disease specially if they have been in contact with positive cases—to come to these clinics, be examined and play safe.

ST. ANDREWS GOLFING SEASON OPENS

St. Andrews East Que., May 1st. The golfing season at the local course got under way with beautiful weather over the week end. Many of Montreal's enthusiasts took advantage of practically mid-summer weather and journeyed the short distance to the links of perhaps the most famous of the younger courses in the Montreal District.

The guests of Mr. John Irwin Col. W. A. Bishop and Mrs. Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Wood, of Montreal, played on Saturday and Sunday, as well as many other prominent golfers from the older Clubs nearer Montreal, where playing conditions have not as yet permitted the "freedom" of the course. All greens were in exceptional condition, due entirely to the natural drainage and the type of soil. Water hazards were real in every sense of the word, but did not interfere with the comfort of players.

While the club has not yet officially opened its doors, the clubhouse was under the care of last year's competent stewards and excellent food was again served the players who had provided sustenance in other ways.

The policy of the St. Andrews Club, in line with others during these times, has opened its doors to all players wishing to use the course. By motor it is only a matter of one hour and twenty five minutes from Montreal, and is an excellent spot to spend a golfing week-end. In addition, a beautiful bathing beach is available to those who wish to take the occasional dip.

The Club professional, Mr. Elder, is always on hand and will be glad to show visitors every courtesy and advice.

RENTING HEALTH WIPES AWAY ALL THE GUESS WORK

Know For Certain Your Case Will Be Benefited Before Spending Much Money on Uncertainties—Investigate

"Renting Health" is just another way to prove first that Electro-Magnetism will do for you, what it has done for thousands, before you spend money in buying.

This most startling offer made by special arrangement now fixes the rate so low, it is within the reach of every home to try Electro-Magnetism on the weekly or monthly rental basis for home use.

If health is not fully restored at the end of the first rental period, it may be rented for another week or month, and then, IF you desire to buy, all rent paid applies on the purchase price. In no instance are you compelled to buy.

Many homes have been brightened many hearts may be gladdened and many sufferers have again been restored to health and happiness, because some one in the family has investigated this "New Way to Health."

Science is responsible for this new discovery. For over 40 years men have experimented to determine the effectiveness of Electro-Magnetism in the treatment of disease.

Its amazing value lies in the depth to which it penetrates, and is, as though electric energy were poured into your very veins. Through its stimulating forces it is intended to strike at the very cause of chronic troubles, viz:—"Toxic Poisoning."

Science has definitely proved that most diseases are caused by the presence in the tissues of poisonous waste matter—present because the body has been unable, without help, to oxidize this waste and eliminate it—and science offers you the logical remedy in Harmony which increases oxidation by inducing an alternating magnetic field through the body, thus striking at the very source of the trouble.

Harmony provides the safe, efficient and inexpensive method designed to convert ordinary city current into magnetism within your body, stimulating circulation of the blood, increasing vital energy, relieving congestion and pain, increasing the oxidation of poisonous waste—and replacing disease with health.

How can I get well and keep well? This question is in the minds of thousands, especially those of you who have tried so hard to regain health—and failed thus far.

DOCTOR REPORTS RECOVERIES IN SPECIFIC CASES

Findings Taken From Columns of Clinical Medicine and Surgery as Published in June 1928 Issue

Results obtained in specific diseased conditions by use of Electro-Magnetism were published in Clinical Medicine and Surgery, in the June number, 1928.

These were reported to the Medical profession through this publication and the results since then have borne out his contentions in a wonderful way. The results as published were as follows:

In 347 cases of HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE, reduction occurred in every case of treatment. Arthritis showed satisfactory results in fully 75 per cent of the cases. Pain usually moderated rapidly and mobility was restored in all except those in whom the ankylosis was of many years duration. In 72 cases of various types, pain was relieved in all.

In 27 cases of MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM, mostly in old people, there were NO FAILURES in those cases where it was possible to correct living conditions.

In 24 cases of SCIATICA and LUMBAGO, immediate relief occurred. In 5 cases permanent recovery followed only a few treatments. Eleven cases recovered within one month.

Of 16 cases of NEURALGIA and NEURITIS, nearly all were relieved even at the very first.

* VARICOSE VEINS were markedly reduced and the pain was generally relieved promptly in 27 cases.

DIABETIC ULCERS, occurring in two patients, healed. One case of diabetic gangrene of the toe is not extending. The pain of ulcers was markedly relieved. Six cases of varicose ulcers—all healed.

ASTHMA and BRONCHITIS—3 cases of asthma are completely recovered and one case of bronchitis in an old lady. Many treatments are required.

ECZEMA showed rapid improvement, itching usually being relieved by the first treatment. Infants with eczema were very satisfactory patients. The dry eruptions were most stubborn.

CONSTIPATION was corrected in more than half the cases, sometimes with considerable disturbance for several days, due to liver stimulation.

The pain of STOMACH ULCER was promptly relieved and a general improvement was evident with decreased acidity. INSOMNIA and various nervous conditions showed marked improvement.

In PROSTATIC ENLARGEMENT, with irritability and tenesmus, the results were extremely gratifying, the relief being immediate. Many cases of general debility and weakness, in which no definite diagnosis was made show generally improved conditions.

Auspicious Gathering at Thomas' Gore

Friday of last week will go down as a red letter day in the neighboring settlement of Thos. Gore, for the Lachute Board of School Commissioners, the parents and children of that settlement, with members of the School Commissioners, the par-friends, gathered on that day at the little old school-house which is shortly to be demolished and replaced by a modern and up-to-date school, equal to any rural school building in the country.

Principal Hall, of Lachute High School presided over the meeting and called upon the teacher, Miss Ethel Dixon, to give formal welcome. This she did in a very happy manner, after which Mr. Hall announced a choice programme of singing and musical numbers by the children, all of which were cleverly executed and considerable talent was brought into evidence. The programme was thoroughly enjoyed, the following children taking part:— Gladys and Eleanor Berry, Melvin Silverson, Leslie Berry, Lyster Ward, Mildred Ward, Tina Kirkpatrick, Edna Duncan, Russell Nichol, Percy Gauley, Ida Carlin and Luella Silverson.

Prizes were afterwards awarded to Luella Silverson, Gladys Berry and Lyster Conley, for neatness of work, and the presentation was made by Mrs. Dr. Mason, Mrs. Wm. Jackson and Mrs. John Drew. Miss Dixon was also remembered with a dainty box of confection for her painstaking and efficient work as teacher. Just before the closing exercises, the children were all given a treat of chocolates, and needless to say candies never tasted so good.

A pleasing feature of the occasion was the planting of a number of shade trees, by the children, each tree bearing the name of the family who have pledged themselves to its individual care.

One of the oldest of all axioms stresses the fact there are two sides to every question. At the meeting held to complete the consolidation of outlying schools, the question was repeatedly asked "What about Thomas' Gore?" It was replied that the Commission would make provision for this community in due time.

Seeing that the present building, between 70 and 80 years old is an antiquated log house that had been often repaired, the Board considered it unworthy of further care. They wrote the Department of Education, insisting that a new school was necessary. And following this correspondence, Dr. Jas. Mason, in a brief address last Friday, was pleased to read a letter from the Department at Quebec, agreeing to furnish the necessary capital for erection of the new school.

Dr. Clunie, being called upon, gave an interesting sidelight of the financial situation, stressing his satisfaction at the manner in which the taxes had been paid without demur, and that the consolidation was working out even better than anticipated, which was most encouraging.

Principal Hall then exacted a pledge from the scholars that, when returning to school after their summer vacation, they would take a real pride in the new building; to this the gathering heartily agreed.

Robbed at Baseball Game

Kenneth Campbell, says the Montreal Star— became thoroughly interested in a game of baseball he was playing at Fletcher's Field one evening this week, and took off his coat and vest. When the game ended, the coat and vest were gone. The value of the clothing and a number of articles in the pockets was set at $42.

Marriage Muir--Hadley

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Hadley, of Lachute, on Saturday, May 6th., at five o'clock (D.S.T.) when their second daughter Gladys Elizabeth was united in marriage to Mr. George Alexander Muir also of Lachute. Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiated, assisted by Rev. H. Cousens. The bride and bridesmaid were unattended. As Miss Eleanor Rodger played the Wedding March the bride entered the room on her father's arm, and was given away by him.

The bride wore a white Parisian Chantilly lace dress with shoes and gloves to match. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of pink Ophelia roses, lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern.

Later supper was served to some sixty guests and after the good wishes of their many friends Mr. and Mrs. Muir left on a short trip in the State of New York, the bride travelling in a grey suit with accessories to match and a pair of stone martens, the gift of the groom. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Muir will take up residence in Lachute.

They received many beautiful and costly gifts.

Argenteuil Women's Inst. Activities

Chatham held an interesting annual meeting with 12 members in attendance; also held a shower of clothing and household goods for a needy family.

Frontier had an interesting Demonstration meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Douglas, on May 2nd., with a large number of members attending.

The demonstration was on sandwich-fillings and sandwich making. The demonstrator, Mrs. George McCormick, of Dalesville, certainly knew her subject, judging from the many delectable sandwiches of various forms and colors she made for the meeting. These were sampled during the tea hour and not "found wanting". The roll call for the day, "Gardening Hints", was fittingly responded by the members.

Lakefield has no report; no meeting is held by this branch in April, owing to the condition of the roads at that time of the year.

Jerusalem-Bethany held their meeting on April 13th. the date not making it the least unlucky, as an enjoyable taffy social was held at the home of Mrs. E. Strong which netted the Institute $13.75.

This branch also sent a pot of flowers to one of their oldest members, fruit to the sick, and a box of goods to fire sufferers.

The Late Mrs. F. Plouffe

The death took place somewhat suddenly on April 24th., at the home of her sister, Mrs. T. Ranger, of Greece's Point, of Mrs. Frank Plouffe, of Montreal, the funeral being held on April 27th. at St. Philippe R. C. Church. Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her loss one son in Detroit, Michigan, and three sisters, Mrs. T. Ranger, of Greece's Point, Mrs. Gagne, of Montreal, and Mrs. Degnan, of Charnsford, Ont., also three brothers the Messrs. Joseph, Henri and Marcel Serie, who with a number of other relatives and friends attended the funeral.

Hawkesbury Would Issue Debentures

It is understood that an application for authority under the Ontario Municipal Board act, to issue debentures to the amount of $88,000, will be made by the council of Hawkesbury in the court house at Ottawa tomorrow. The debentures issue is needed to pay floating indebtedness of the town.

Referendum for Ste. Agathe

The town of Ste. Agathe des Monts will hold a referendum to decide upon a change to daylight saving time and also on the addition of strong liquors, such as whisky, brandy and gin, to the stock of the Quebec Liquor Commission Store which now sells wines only. The referendum was initiated by the Chamber of Commerce, and will be held Saturday, May 13th.

Baptist Churches Receive New Members

Sunday last was a red-letter day for the Baptist Churches of which Rev. F. W. Dyson is Pastor, in that there were added to their numbers no fewer than twenty-seven new members, (twelve at Dalesville and fifteen at Lachute), as an outcome of the evangelistic campaign in which Rev. William Fraser of Windsor, Ont., is the special preacher. In addition to these new members, seven others were baptized at the Lachute service on Sunday evening, and these, with others—including a number yet to be baptized—will be received as members in the near future.

Last Sunday's services at Dalesville, Brownsburg and Lachute were favored in having present a trio of young students from Toronto Bible College, who ably rendered vocal selections which were greatly enjoyed.

The special services have continued this week at Brownsburg, and will terminate there on Sunday evening. Large and attentive congregations have listened to Rev. Mr. Fraser's forceful messages, and at practically every service there have been visible results in response to the speaker's fervent appeals.

What Other People are Doing

"Sometimes when our hands grow weary,

Or our tasks seem very long; When our burdens look too heavy,

And we deem the right all wrong;

Then we gain a new fresh courage,

And we rise to proudly say: Let us do our duty bravely—

This was our dear mother's way."

Sunday, May 14th., is Mother's Day. Idealizing the mothers of our nation not one day but every day of the year, we would eventually swing the circle of worldly interests back again to the home where Mother, finding earthly compensation for her efforts, would throw a new and stronger wall of protection around her family and thus defeat the efforts of the world to enter. With Mother as the guiding influence of all enterprise, life would take on a new meaning; the dark shadows of war and greed would be blotted out in the dawn of a new era of courage and chivalry.

Quite a lot of hub-bub has arisen over the fact that Hitler, a former Austrian corporal, has launched a war of extermination against the Jew in Germany. Uncle Sam has been particularly exercised over the persecutions, and holds up his hands in holy horror at the wanton abuse and savagery with which those people have been treated. The Jews as a race have a right to respect, and a right to live just as much as Hitler or the German persecutors. They were loyal citizens.

New Peat Plant for Alfred, Ont.

A plant to be erected at Alfred, Ont., with an output of 50,000 tons a year, will be first of several to be opened with establishment of a Canadian branch of the English firm of Fuels Developments, Limited, to utilize the Dominion's immense peat deposits, according to Major Hepburn of the London factory, who is here to promote the undertaking.

With the co-operation of the Department of Mines, much research work has been done and favorable reports received. In close proximity to every big city in Canada there are peat bogs, with a capacity of 200,000,000 tons.

Officials Destroy 45 Dogs

Last Thursday at Hawkesbury five stray dogs were seized in the town and destroyed. According to the Hawkesbury police, this made a total of 45 dogs picked up and destroyed since the law prohibiting dogs running loose came into effect in February last.

Patrons Build Co-operative Factory

Dissatisfied with the returns which their nearby markets were returning them for their milk, descendants of the Scottish pioneers of East Nissouri township in Oxford County, Ontario, decided to build a real co-operative cheese factory for themselves. This they did in the truest sense of the word, and the result is the Homestead Co-operative Cheese factory, opened not long ago. It was built with the patrons' own hands at a big saving and in splendid manner. A number of old fashioned "bees" helped out the personal labor that was being carried on by the directors and others from among the patrons. The factory has the cellar curing system, and is modern in every way, and generous in its size. It will have an output of about 150 tons per season.

Local Soft-ballers Will Play First Game

A schedule has been outlined for the Interprovincial Soft-ball League, in which it is noted the newly formed Lachute Tigers will play their first game at home next Monday evening, May 15th. The local team has been seen in practice on the College grounds, and shows good perseverance and a creditable quality of play. The league games played in Lachute, however will be staged on Ayers sports ground, which has been graciously laid open to the Soft-ball Club.

At a meeting last Monday, H. Parkinson, secretary, read a letter from Hon. Sir George H. Perley enclosing a donation of ten dollars—for which the officers and members of the Club expressed their appreciation.

The season's schedule is published hereunder for those interested, and it is hoped the players will receive every support in this new venture:

St. Andrews Choral and Dramatic Concert

The lovers of music and dramatic art gathered together in the Town Hall of St. Andrews East on Tuesday evening to enjoy the best of all the splendid entertainments presented by the Ladies' Choral and Dramatic Society of St. Andrews in the three years since they organized.

The inspiring Cantata "The Thorn Crowned King" was full of beautiful sentiment. The singing told the story of Him who wore the crown of thorns, as they unfolded the sacred theme. Solo parts were well rendered by Mrs. Macaskill and Mrs. L. H. Bezanon. The tonal and metrical beauty of the Recitatives of the Cantata were well brought out in the splendid rendering by Mrs. V. Willett, Mrs. A. C. Macdonell, Mrs. W. B. MacClintock and Mrs. T. Webster. The duets in the sacred composition were pleasingly and musically sung by Mrs. L. H. Bezanon, soprano and Miss F. M. Macaskill, contralto, Miss D. M. Leroy, soprano, and Mrs. J. Macaskill, contralto, Mrs. W. D. MacClintock, contralto, and Mrs. L. H. Bezanon, soprano.

The Cantata was followed by a reading entitled "The Death of Handel" by Miss M. V. Green whose enunciation, dramatic action and stage presence were most effective and attractive. Later in the evening Miss Green (Continued on Page 4)

Old Resident Passes

The death occurred in the early hours of this morning, of another old resident in the person of Camille Raymond. Deceased was in his 76th. year and spent upwards of 50 years in Lachute. He was well known as a drover and butcher, and had taken active interests in all matters pertaining to town welfare.

He leaves to mourn his wife and family of four girls and one son Mrs. J. Ethier, Mrs. Duchesneau, Mrs. Henry Ouellette, Miss Oliva and son Hermas; also brothers Adolphe, Baptiste and sister Mrs. Lapierre of Montreal.

The funeral will take place on Saturday upon arrival of the 10.19 train from Montreal.

Hon. Arthur Sauvé, postmaster-General of Canada and member for the neighboring constituency of Two Mountains will shortly commemorate the 25th anniversary of this entry into parliamentary life.

Mr. Sauvé was first elected member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly at the general elections of June 8, 1908, for the County of Two Mountains, a constituency which has remained faithful to him through thick and thin, even at times when the political denomination of Conservative appeared taboo to the electors of Quebec. He was re-elected in 1912, 1916, 1919, 1923 and 1927 in the provincial arena, with substantial majorities, and, at times, by acclamation.

Led Opposition

In 1919, when Philemon Cousineau, then Leader of the Opposition in the Legislature, went to the Bench, Mr. Sauvé was chosen to lead the remnants of the Conservative party, with barely three or four companions to carry the fight in the Lower House. In 1923, after a strenuous effort, he had succeeded in assuring the victory of a greatly increased phalanx. Unhappily, at the elections of 1927, less than 12 Conservatives were elected. In 1930, at the request of the Federal Conservative leaders, he abandoned the provincial field, and presented himself in the united counties of Two Mountains and Laval, which he carried with the handsome majority of over 1,000 votes. A few weeks afterwards, he was sworn in as Postmaster-General of Canada, in the Bennett Government.

Other Long Records.

At the general elections of 1908, together with Mr. Sauvé, the following were elected, and have since continued to be members of the Lower House of the Quebec Legislature. Hon. J. N. Francoeur, member for Lotbinière, later Speaker of the Lower House and now Minister of Public Works; and Walter Reed, member for L'Assomption. Older members of the Legislature, Lower House, are Premier Taschereau, elected in 1900; C. E. Gault, member for St. George, and Hon. Honore Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, both elected for the first time in 1907.

Of the Quebec members in the House of Commons, the only one who can claim more than 25 years' continuous service is Hon. Charles Marcl, elected for the first time, in 1900. Lachute, which has frequently welcomed Mr. Sauvé to its midst, in the thick of political battle and in the quieter sessions of social and business life, congratulates him on his long record of perseverance and loyalty to the Conservative cause. The Watchman voices the recognition of this County for a tried and proven campaigner.

Says the Granby Leader Mail: There are doubtless many social items which we missed this week, but we simply did not know about them. We are always glad to receive news or take items over the phone, but we miss all the mental telepathy messages.

—A local newspaper measures its value in local news. The foregoing may be aptly said of The Watchman, as well as any other home-town paper.

Summer Homes Robbed Near River Front

Delphis Seguin, of Carillon, was arrested in Grenville last Thursday by an officer of the Quebec provincial police on a charge of theft from summer homes around Carillon district. Seguin was lodged in Hawkesbury jail overnight and on Friday was taken to St. Jerome to await his trial.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

FROM THE SCOUT ANNUAL MEETING

Paragraphs from the Annual Meeting of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association, Ottawa, April 27, 1933.

His Excellency the Governor-General, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Beasborough, presided, as Chief Scout for Canada.

Upon nomination of the Chief Scout, Mr. E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was re-elected President.

It was announced that the Hon. Vincent Massey, former Canadian Minister to Washington, would represent the Canadian Scout Association at the annual meeting of the Boy Scouts of America at Kansas City in June, and address that gathering.

A substantial gain in Rover Scouts and Sea Scouts was noted, also in the Lone Scout Branch, for boys on farms or small groups in country villages.

There was a marked increase of Scouting units in children's hospitals and sanitariums, with groups now operating in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Special mention was made of the unusual feat of the 2nd. Edmonton Scout Group first-aid teams in winning both the Dominion Wallace Nesbitt Junior and Dominion Intermediate Gaunt trophies.

The Scout census for 1932 showed 23,140 Wolf Clubs, 31,599 Scouts, 1,836 Rovers, 707 Lone Scouts, 321 Sea Scouts, 4,651 adult leaders—total 62,354, a gain of 6% over 1931.

There was an increase in the number of French-Canadian Scout troops in Quebec, under the patronage of His Eminence Cardinal Villeneuve.

Wide approval by musical critics of the new Scout song book, "Songs for Canadian Boys," was noted.

NANCY'S PUP

An Unexpected Ending to the Holiday

"What did you put in those buckwheat cakes, mother?" Uncle Ned asked suddenly. The children stared at him in surprise. They had no fault to find with the buckwheat cakes. They thought they were just perfect.

That Uncle Ned thought so too, just as suddenly dawned upon them, as he added—"they taste like more."

Grandma had not troubled to answer him. Evidently she was quite used to that sort of question. She just sat and smiled, gently rocking Baby May.

"It is just as well there will not be much sap to gather today," Uncle Ned said again. "I've eaten too much breakfast to feel like working hard. I was wise to gather it before breakfast for that reason—for another reason besides."

"What is the other reason, Uncle Ned?" said Billy. "Are you afraid the bear will come back and drink it all?"

"Not quite, Billy," Uncle Ned laughed. "There is quite too much for a bear to drink, but the sap is getting full of little white moths that have been attracted by the sweet odor; and I do not care to make syrup of moth-infested sap. Why, we should all turn into moth-balls if we used it!"

This raised a shout of laughter from the children; moth balls and maple syrup seemed so far apart, even to them.

"What will you do with the sap that runs today, Uncle Ned? Will you throw it out?" Maud asked. She was a careful child. Their mother had taught the children never to waste things; what might not be of use to them, might be useful to some one else.

"No, Maud, I will give it to your Aunt Sue to do with as she pleases. Anything is good enough for Aunt Sue, now isn't it?"

The smaller children looked surprised, but Maud, Bert and Little Ned laughed. They knew Uncle Ned was only joking. "What is good enough for Aunt Sue?" asked that lady herself, as she came downstairs from making the beds.

"The beastly sap, Aunt Sue," Billy shouted.

"The beastly sap?" Aunt Sue was puzzled, but could not help laughing. Billy was so much in earnest about it, and beastly sap, did sound so funny.

"He means the sap with moths in it," said Nora. "Uncle Ned said that there were moths in the sap this morning."

"Aha!" exclaimed their Aunt. "So I am going to have some vinegar after all?" "Not vinegar!" May said "just mothy sap."

"But," explained Aunt Sue "I shall make vinegar from it."

always make my own vinegar it is so much nicer for pickles and everything else that vinegar is used for. This was something the children had not heard of before and it made them wonder just how many things could be made from maple sap.

At the dinner table Billy firmly refused to have any pickles, much to the surprise of all present. When pressed by Maud to give the reason for this sudden dislike, he said with rather a disgusted voice "I absolutely refuse to eat mothy pickles."

The word absolutely was rather a big one for Billy, but he had heard it so often on the lips of his teacher and had so admired the sound of it that he decided to make his speech equally effective.

For the moment no one understood just what he meant by mothy pickles. But suddenly Uncle Ned chuckled. "I don't blame you in the least, Billy," mothy pickles are not good for little boys like you and me." Seeing that his wife still looked puzzled he added "You will have to give us some heavier strainers for the sap this afternoon, Sue. Something which the moths will not go through."

Aunt Sue smiled. She understood now what Billy had meant by "mothy pickles."

After dinner the children went to the woods with their uncles to help gather the last sap of the season and bring the cans to the sugar house to be washed. Such a merry afternoon it was, and how sweet were the little spring flowers that dotted the woods here and there. Nora took her hat off to carry the flowers they picked for Grandma. Uncle Ned was afraid she might catch cold, so he tied his big red handkerchief over her head then laughingly called her his little squaw.

As evening drew near dark clouds appeared in the west and hung threateningly there for a time, before slowly spreading over the sky until it had completely covered the blueness of it and shut out the light of the sun as though a veil of heavy black cloth had been drawn over it.

"I don't like the look of those clouds Ned" said Uncle Dick. "I think I would be wise if I started for home right now."

"Nonsense, Dick," Uncle Ned said, "you would get caught in the rain long before you got there and you will be just as dry in my house as you would at home."

"It's my old sleigh that I am thinking of; the snow has all gone since I came last night and if it rains it will be much harder to get home with."

"Uncle Ned can take us home in the car, Dad so why worry?" ventured Bert.

"Yes, Uncle Ned will take us home in the car, and you can leave your sleigh here until it snows again," Maud said.

"Oh, but think of the disappointment of the poor rats, mice and chipmunks, to say nothing of old Mother Biddy," said Uncle Dick with a twinkle in his eye.

"Why, it's all the world to them, that old sleigh of mine. It's their summer home. They play tag and peek-a-boo all summer long under it, and over it. And as for old Mother Biddy, she has hatched her chickens in it ever since she has been old enough to hatch out chickens! I am afraid she might hatch out lobsters instead of chickens if she did not have that old sleigh to make her nest in", Uncle Dick said ruefully.

"She would be a real valuable hen, Uncle Dick, if she could hatch out lobsters from hen's eggs—but, o-o-o-h! there's a drop of rain, a real heavy one. Come on, folks, let's run to the house!"

Panting and almost breathless the children dashed into the shed pausing to wipe the mud from their feet before going into the kitchen.

"Did you see anything strange around as you came by the garden?" enquired their grandmother. "Rover has been barking there nearly all of the afternoon. Barking quite fiercely too."

"I expect it is that big chuck that Ned and I saw sneaking along by the garden wall this morning. He was almost as big as a horse."

"Oh, Bert!" said May "what a whopper. No-one ever saw a chuck as big as a horse."

"You will have to pare him down a bit, Bert, boy," his grandma said, patting his shoulder.

"I said almost, Grandma and he is the biggest chuck I have ever seen in my life."

"You mean he was the big-my life-ainhroid haof fgwyp m gest chuck that you ever saw. He is not much to look at just now—Rover's got him," Keith said excitedly.

The children ran to the window. Sure enough, Rover was coming toward the house stopping to rest every few minutes, and at the same time to give his victim another shake to make sure there was no more fight left in him. Rover, although tired had fought more fiercely!

at every opportunity that day, as though to make up for his cowardice of the night before. Seeing his master coming from the barn he went towards him, laid the body of the big wood-chuck down at his feet and stood there wagging his tail.

"Good for you, old boy!" Uncle Ned said. "You have got the old warrior at last." Turning to Uncle Dick he said, "As a rule I am against the killing of little wild animals, but this chuck has been destroying my clover fields and my garden every year, for a long time. I am glad that he is dead."

Rover seemed to understand that his master was pleased, for he suddenly started racing around the dooryard like a mad

THE CAPTAIN'S SERIAL STORY OF ADVENTURE

Special to The Watchman

Chapter 18.

"The poor fool is more to be pitied than blamed."

—Fox

"He was caught with the knife."

—It was near midnight and both boys were asleep in the bunks of their small cabin. The ship was now moving steadily forward, for a southerly breeze springing up had broken the long period of inactivity the calm had occasioned. This had gone a long way towards wafting Edgar and Walter into the land of dreams. But, sound as their slumber was, the words with which this chapter opens, spoken in a fierce whisper outside their door, disturbed them—but did not wholly waken them, and had they not been followed up by others even more tensely uttered, both lads in all probability would have fallen back into deep sleep.

"A naked knife, and in his eyes Murder! I tell you his punishment will be awful, poor devil." "You tell me too much, where we now stand, you doddering idiot. Don't you see we are outside the cabin of the gentry, and if I mistake not, of the two young masters that run and jump to everyone's amusement. If their ears are as sharp as their movements they will—"

"Give you a lesson in manners," broke in a sharp stern voice. With a quick movement of his hands that took both sailors by the ears and brought their heads in sharp and painful contact, Sunny Jim ordered them on deck and about their lawful business. "Away with you and your talk of knives and murder! They that talk that way end that way; so be warned."

Rubbing the sides of their heads, the two discomfited seamen slouched away with a muttered hope that they had not disturbed the young Masters, but trusted that the devil would do some mischief to their tormentor.

Sunny Jim only laughed. He was used to threats and knew he could safely look after himself. However his laugh changed to a look of real annoyance as the cabin door opened and Edgar put his head outside. "What's the matter" he enquired, surprised to see the little man standing there alone. "I thought I heard voices. Walter was sure he heard a crowd outside our cabin talk of knives and murder!" "And you expected to find the passage here full of desperate characters, eyes aflame with hate, knives already bloody with killing, and your firm resolve was to sell your lives as dearly as possible with your bare fists!"

There was such a volume of contemptuous scorn in the voice of Sunny Jim that Edgar flushed red with anger. He was about to make an indignant reply, but was prevented by the little sailor seizing him roughly by the arm and entering the cabin with him. In this manner he pushed the boy back into his bunk.

"You and the other young master" he said including Walter in a stern glare, "Get to sleep again, as quickly as you like. There have been doings on this ship this night which boys like you have naught to do with. Remember that!" The last two words were shot at them so sharply, that both lads felt as if they had been struck.

Frightened as he was, Walter however was deadly curious and he tried to persuade Sunny Jim to tell them what had taken place. "Come" he said pleadingly, "Do tell us what has happened. It must have been something exciting!" This only met with the grunted remark that he ought to be asleep, having been told to do that same thing.

But the boy persisted. "Oh, please, Sunny Jim. I know I ought to be asleep—especially," he added, hoping to flatter his instructor, "as you have ordered us to be. But, we will settle down to sleep, if only you tell us what has happened."

It must have been that the little man experienced a certain flattery at this concession to his authority, for he suddenly smiled and replied.

"While I do not approve of boys knowing too much, even if they are young Masters, I'll tell you this much. . . . While you have been asleep, there has taken place, right here in one of His Most Gracious Majesty's ships, a Mutiny. Officers have been struck down and there have been many deaths—And—"

"But who won?" broke in Edgar excitedly—Sunny Jim was just about to reply when the cabin door was flung open, and Tom Dickson entered, a bandage around his head and a pistol in his hand.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TOPIC FOR NEXT SUNDAY

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist for Sunday, May 14.

The Golden Text is: (Galatians 4: 7) "Thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ."

The following passages are selected from those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died: his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated." "Hear O my son, and receive my sayings; and the years of thy life shall be many." (Deuteronomy 34: 7 and Proverbs 4: 10)

"Man, governed by immortal Mind, is always beautiful and grand. Each succeeding year unfolds wisdom, beauty, and holiness." "Learn this, O mortal, and earnestly seek the spiritual status of man, which is outside of all material selfhood." ("Science and Health pages 246 and 476).

HALF OF CANADA'S POPULATION UNDER AGE OF 25 YEARS

Of the total population of 10,376,786 in Canada, more than half, or 5,331,991 are under the age of 25 says a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The 10-year-olds, of which there were more than of any other age, numbered 232,180, and babies of less than one year old 202,688. Those 20 years numbered 189,389, and those at 25 were 165,922.

There were 5,866,591 who had reached the voting age, and 4,510,195 who had not reached that age of maturity.

The number of persons who had passed the allotted span of 70 was 324,697, those who had passed 60 numbered 850,428 and those who had passed 50 numbered 1,705,134.

The longevity of women, which is a much discussed question, showed that it was not until they reached the octogenarian age that the number of women exceeded the men. There were 7,601 women of 80 and 7,013 men. At the age of 90 there were 1,053 women, and but 725 men. There were 89 women who had passed the century mark and 74 men.

thing, giving short delighted barks every few minutes, until he saw Uncle Ned pick up a shovel and start towards the barn. That meant that his wood chuck was going to be buried and he must go to watch the performance, and see the very last of his ancient enemy.

It was raining quite hard, and continued to rain all night, not showing the least signs of stopping. It was weird and dark outside; the light from Uncle Ned's lantern appeared to the children watching from inside the house, to resemble a will-o-the-wisp, as it danced about in the dense darkness.

"I am really afraid this rain will do some harm," Uncle Ned said, as he closed the door for the night, shaking the rain drops from his broad brimmed hat. The mill-pond dam is full to overflowing now. It does not look too secure either. It would not be very funny if it burst before morning."

"Would we be carried away in the flood if it did, Uncle Ned?" asked Nora with interest. "Of course not, Honey, so go to bed and sleep soundly; there is no danger of anything like that." Tired with the long day's work and the loss of sleep the night before, all in the house were soon asleep, while outside Rover whined uneasily as the cold grey waters came nearer and nearer to the house.

What do you suppose is going to happen now, children?

Lovingly,
Aunt Jean.

WM. DOUGLAS, OF GLENBORO, MAN., LAID TO REST

William Douglas, who settled in the community of Glenboro, Manitoba, as one of its earliest pioneers 53 years ago, passed away Sunday, April 23rd., at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jas. Elliott, after a long and painful illness. He was within two weeks of his 83rd birthday. During his long illness the loving care of his children did much to lighten an onerous burden, and death came as a relief from a long period of suffering.

Mr. Douglas, who was the son of James Douglas, was born on May 2nd., 1850, in Chatham Township, County of Argenteuil. He was one of the few surviving Fenian Raid veterans. In 1873 he married Mary McAdoo. They went West in 1880 and settled in the Glenboro district, of Manitoba. In 1907 Mr. Douglas suffered the loss of his wife.

William Douglas was a character of whom his community had occasion to be proud, and his gallant struggle from the pioneer days to the time when he reached enviable success as one of Glenboro's outstanding farmers, constitutes an inspiring record. He built up a very fine home, with beautiful surroundings. He took a great interest in church work and was always a staunch advocate for the cause of temperance. The Agricultural Society in which he was very keenly interested has lost a valued and zealous worker. He was industrious, thrifty and honourable in all his business transactions, and although very unassuming, played a prominent part in the building up of the community in which he homesteaded so many years ago. He retired in 1911 and sold his farm to his son-in-law, James Elliott.

One son and five daughters are left to mourn their deep loss: W. W. Douglas, Mrs. Jas. Elliott, Mrs. O. Maylon, Mrs. C. King, of Glenboro; Mrs. Nelson Barker, of Holland; Mrs. A. W. Card, of Winnipeg. One brother and two sisters also survive, Adam Douglas and Mrs. Wm. McKenzie, of Glenboro, and Miss Mary Douglas, of Winnipeg.

The funeral was held from the old homestead, where the deceased spent the last few years of his life. Despite bad roads a large number of friends attended from all parts of the district to pay a tribute of respect to an honored member of the community. Rev. C. B. Sauson, of Winnipeg, and Rev. J. B. Francis officiated at the funeral service. Interment was made in Glenboro Cemetery, many beautiful floral tributes covering the casket. The pallbearers were six grandsons of the deceased.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE OUTDOOR BROTHERHOOD

The month of May is a happy one in the sportsman's calendar. The lingering blasts of winter are gone, trout fishing opens and heralds a pleasant prospect of carefree days on lake and river. The spirit of May must have been responsible for the fishy contents of this month's Rod and Gun, which has afforded refreshing reading at the Watchman's editorial desk... which should be littered, of course, with more momentous documents!

Rod and Gun has been received at this office for many years. It is an all-Canadian publication in the interests of good sport and conservation of fish and game; both its national viewpoint and its fine principles warrant the support of intelligent sport-loving outdoor Canadians.

We might boost the Rod and Gun from this aspect alone. But for the information of our fellow-Quebecers, apostles of Isaac Walton and the like—we go on record as heartily approving the contents of this publication. Its seasonable advice and its clean, breezy articles, are the source of year-round enjoyment... Rod and Gun is published monthly at Montreal, with offices on fifth floor of the Sun Life Building.

SO EARLY IN THE SEASON

A legion of editors may plead in vain... auto clubs may petition the mighty... but it seems the most logical highway enactment will never be enforced in Quebec; vehicles will continue to use our roads unlighted after dark. In the interests of the horse-driving and car-driving public, the most that can be done is to appeal directly to the farming class, for such precautions as may obviate this danger. Reflectors are being distributed free of charge; and if night drivers decline to protect their conveyances with a light, they might at least secure one of these reflectors.

A mishap occurred on the Montreal-St. Johns highway one night this week, when a New Jersey motorist had a hair-breadth escape, his wife suffered minor injuries, and the car was badly damaged. The driver had come unsuspectingly upon two unlighted carriages and if he had not swerved twice and driven across a ditch the vehicles would have been smashed and their occupants either killed or injured.

"I was not aware that horse-drawn vehicles were allowed to travel without lights at night in this province," said the motorist, "and, as I was travelling at a rate of no less than forty miles an hour, it is almost a miracle that I escaped crashing either into the first or the second one. My humble opinion is that large signs should be posted at the border, reading 'No lights on horse-drawn vehicles at night in this province.'"

The suggestion is good, but it would reflect too severely on our intelligence this side of the border.

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, May 10.—Parliament began sitting this week mornings, afternoons and nights. This is always a sign of early closing. Members soon get weary of a day lasting through three sittings. The redistribution bill is the only contentious measure left. The maps of Quebec and Saskatchewan have been carved up into patterns which the Liberals refuse to stand for, and a filibuster is threatened. Unless there are compromises there will be a first-class row in the House about it.

Evidence in the milk inquiry has been completed and members of the committee are drafting their report to parliament. Some more startling evidence came out during the past week. Such as:

James B. Elliott, of Howick, Que. filed an affidavit that he was ordered by the Montreal Dairy Co. to stop shipping milk after he had given testimony concerning them to the milk committee. The company denied any discrimination, but Mr. Elliott's affidavit expressly charges such.

Farmers losing heavily

The cost of production of 100 pounds of milk on Ontario farms was given as ranging from $1.75 to $2.40 by the secretary of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' Association. Detail on a 100 acre farm worked out at $2.35. Ontario farmers are receiving from $1.00 to $1.60 per hundred pounds. In other words they are losing from 15 cents to $1.40 per hundred for all they sell these days.

A dairy company with an original capitalization of $40,000 and no new capital made a profit of $23,613.67 in 1928, or nearly 60%. This was in Toronto.

The same company sold out to Borden's Ltd. in 1929 for $695,520. The $40,000 company thus grew to nearly $700,000 in less than 15 years, entirely by accumulation of profits.

The net profit of a Borden subsidiary in 1932 was about one per cent greater in 1932 than in 1931, although the price of milk fell in that time from $1.96, at which level the farmer was about breaking even, down to $1.48, where he began to suffer heavy loss.

The spread between buying and selling price for the same company instead of narrowing as the price paid to the farmer fell, actually increased between 1931 and 1932. In the latter year it was 6.3c a quart.

Where the money goes

The same Toronto dairy gave the committee an analysis of what happens to the money paid by the consumer in the city for a quart of milk, average price 10.03 cents. It is as follows:

Paid to the farmer at his farm	3.12 cents
Transportation to the city	.82 "
Waste and loss handling	.30 "
Pasteurization and bottling	.76 "
Selling and delivery	4.26 "
Container loss (bottles)	.19 "
Income tax	.07 "
Net profit	.51 "
	10.03 "

The registrar of the combines investigations act made an inquiry last winter and this spring into the anthracite coal situation. Householders were complaining that prices were too high. The report has been made now. It finds that a combine against the public interest designed to hold up the price of coal was in operation at Montreal. The evidence has been turned over to the Quebec authorities for action.

The roll call was replied to with the name of a famous immigrant, and Miss Salter and her pupils favored with a demonstration of Calisthenics in Lachute High School. to fifteen interested members.

Morin Heights dealt with Agriculture in its different forms at their meeting on May 2nd., nine members and seven visitors being present in spite of bad roads and heavy thunderstorms. Their roll call was "Noxious Weeds."

A paper giving the facts about good milk was read by Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. A. Barton also gave an address on the marketing of poultry produce. Flower slips and seeds were exchanged and arrangements made for attendance at the County Convention on May 12th.

Pioneer held a taffy social in April with a good attendance and had a very interesting May meeting with 12 members in attendance as well as 2 visitors. A wonderful demonstration on hooking a rug was given by Mrs. R. Bradley also a lengthy and interesting paper on "Eight good reasons why you should have the provincial vote". Some time was taken up by Current Events and the roll call was the name of a Cabinet Minister, the members making quilt blocks during the session.

Upper Lachute April and May report: This Branch also served taffy at one meeting; sent potted plant to a sick member, also to other persons who were ill, at Easter. Had interesting papers on Canadian Industries, Home Economics and Canadianization.

There were 17 members at the April meeting and 11 at the May meeting, at Mrs. Roy Morrison's home. Topic, Agriculture. An interesting paper was read by Mrs. Harvey Miller on "Canadian wild flowers" also by Mrs. Jas. Robertson on "The care of house plants." Mrs. John Gordon gave a talk on the gathering of winter bouquets now. Roll call "Kitchen Garden Hints."

WITH COMPANY

Little Boy: "There must be some visitors downstairs."
His little Sister: "How can you tell?"

Little Boy: "I hear mother laughing at father's jokes."

A rich aunt sent five pounds to McPherson and asked him to send his twin boys, aged ten, for a week's holiday, as she had never met them. A few days later a Scots lad presented himself at her home and with him came a note which read: "Dear Agnes. Here is young Donald, one of the twins. The other is exactly the same."

payments on savings deposits to 2½ per cent instead of 3. At the same time banks reduced rates to some of their customers by the same amount. The federal government, which had been charging the provinces 5½ per cent on their loans, cut the rate to 5%.

Another rise in wholesale prices occurred between March and April, delighting the authorities here, who know that such an increase must precede any return of prosperity. Gains in the prices of flax, wheat, barley, corn, flour, bran, shorts and sugar were main factors in the improved wholesale price level.

CHORAL AND DRAMATIC CONCERT

delighted the audience with a humorous reading "At the Seashore"; her impersonations of a professional gossip and scandal monger kept her audience convulsed with laughter.

The two-part choruses of the Choral Society, "Down in the Woodlands," "The False Prophet," "The Violet," "A Caprice", were all appropriate selections, well sung, rich in melody and delightful harmony.

The director of the musical part, Mrs. H. P. Bezanson, was richly rewarded in the good work of those whom she instructed. Miss A. L. Wales the accompanist played with her usual efficiency, and added much to the success of the concert.

Those in the Chorus were, Mrs. M. P. Burwash, Mrs. V. Willett, Mrs. T. Webster, Mrs. W. B. MacClintock, Mrs. J. Macaskill, Mrs. L. H. Bezanson, Mrs. A. C. Macdonell, Miss G. Booy, Miss Lena Gates, Miss J. Willett, Miss D. M. Leroy, Miss F. M. Macaskill.

The program concluded with a comedy in one act, "The Kleptomaniac", directed by Mrs. J. Macaskill. Mrs. L. H. Bezanson in the role of Mrs. John Burton (Peggy) was very effective in her interpretation of an impulsive and distracted woman. Mrs. V. Willett as Mrs. Valerie Chase Armsby (a widow) was very bright and showed interpretative action. Miss D. M. Leroy as Mrs. Chas. Dover was in well-becoming costume and charmingly interpreted a young married woman who thinks her husband knows it all. Mrs. M. P. Burwash in the role of Mrs. Preston Ashley had a quiet charm about her and did her part well. Miss J. Willett played the part of Miss Freda Dixon with ease and grace. Mrs. A. C. Macdonell proved herself as a probing, observing newspaper correspondent. As usual she acted her part with skill and caused much laughter by her facial expressions. Miss Lena Gates in the role of Katie (Mrs. Burton's maid) gave strict attention to her business, and was kept busy receiving the hats and coats of the coming and going friends that came to comfort, disturb and lead into hysteria the sobbing, excited Peggy.

This concert is to be repeated in Point Fortune United Church Hall on Tuesday, May 16th., where more will have an opportunity of hearing and seeing the fruitful work of a united band and representative women of St. Andrews East.

NOVEL SAXOPHONE FEATURE AT CHLP

A feature new to Canadian broadcasting stations is now appearing on the CHLP program in the form of a saxophone quintette. Selections ranging from classical to jazz are played on five saxophones of different pitch and without the aid of other instruments successfully imitating an organ, orchestra, or band. Many unusual effects are introduced. The arrangement for the instruments is the work of the director of a similar quintette now playing on the NBC network, the only other of its kind in America. The quintette, under the direction of Georges Labelle, son of Gustave Labelle the eminent Canadian 'cellist, is on the air every Tuesday and Thursday from 7.00 to 7.15 p.m. and is being sponsored by H. Lalonde & Frere Ltd.

Lesson for May 21

JESUS ANSWERS HIS AD- VERSARIES

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—The officers answered, Never man spoke like this man.
John 7:46.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Talking With Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Answering Hard Questions.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-
IC—The Way to Meet Opposition.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—How to Deal With Objectors.

I. Jesus Silences His Enemies (vv.
13-34).

1. The Pharisees and Herodians
(vv. 13-17). In order to destroy him they sought to discredit him among the people. To this end they sent representatives of both factions (v. 13).

a. Their question (v. 14). The Pharisees contended that since God was the real king of Israel, it was not obligatory to pay taxes to a heathen king. The Herodians were supporters of Herod. They came to him with flattery on their lips with this subtle question. For him to answer yes would have discredited him with the people, and to have said no would have made him liable to arrest by the Roman authorities.

b. Jesus' reply (vv. 15-17). He asked for a coin to be brought and inquired whose image and superscription
it bore, declaring that those who accept the coin of Caesar should pay taxes to Caesar. In this reply Jesus escapes their trap and enunciates a principle which applies to all time and conditions as to the responsibility of Christians to civil government. Those who accept the protection and benefits
of civil government should support that government. However, being a loyal citizen is not enough. There is a duty to God.

2. The Sadducees (vv. 18-27). The Pharisees and Herodians being silenced, the Sadducees came with a question which involved not only immortality but the resurrection of the body.

a. The case proposed (vv. 19-23).
The law of Moses made it not only legal but morally binding in the case of a man dying without children for his brother to take his wife (Deut.
25:5). They proposed the case of a woman married successively to seven brothers. They asked whose wife she shall be in the resurrection.

b. Jesus' reply (vv. 24-26). By a quotation from the Mosaic law (Exod.
3:6), he proves the resurrection of the dead and their continued existence beyond death as human beings. He showed that marriage is for the present life only. In this respect human beings will be as the angels in the resurrection life. He pointed out that their gross error was due to two things:

(1) Ignorance of the Scriptures (v.
21). In the very Scriptures which they professed to believe was positive proof of the resurrection (Exod. 3:6).

(2) Ignorance of the power of God
(v. 22). God is able to provide a life where there will be no death, no
births, or marriages.

3. The scribes (vv. 28-34). Perceiving that Christ had effectively answered the Sadducees, one of the scribes came with the question as to which was the great commandment.
Jesus summed up man's whole duty
in one word, love—"love to God and love to man."

II. Jesus' Question (vv. 35-37).
He now turned upon his adversaries
with a counter question. Its answer involves the central problem of Christian philosophy, indeed of all rational thinking. Christ's place in the scale of being is the foundation truth of all right thinking. "Is Jesus Christ man or God, is he God and man?" David spoke of the coming Messiah as both his son and God. There is but one answer to this question—the incarnation of God in Christ.

III. Jesus Condemns the Scribes
(vv. 38-40).
The attitude of these people toward Jesus was not determined by insuperable intellectual difficulties, but by their moral nature.

1. They loved to go in long clothing (v. 38). This means they loved ostentation and display.

2. They loved to be saluted in public places (v. 38).

3. They sought to occupy the chief seats in the synagogues, and the uppermost rooms at feasts (v. 39).

4. They devoured widows' houses
(v. 40). They lined their pockets at the expense of helpless women.

5. They offered hypocritical prayers

DIFFERENT STANDARDS OF BRAINS

It is an unfortunate thing that the ability to get along well in school is taken as a criterion of brains. There is a girl who went through Public School at the tail end of her class and it was always a struggle to get from one class to the next. Unfortunately her companions were all much brighter and made her feel rather inferior. This year she is going to Technical School and is enjoying her work so much that she has far more pleasure
out of it than her friends will ever get out of their Collegiate studies. She does her work well and is so reliable that her teachers are piling up all sorts of odds and ends of work for her. She helps all over the building and gets a great kick out of doing it.

The other day the handle of the coffee pot broke and later on her mother asked what could be done about it. The man of the house said that they would have to buy a new one as it could not be fixed. Much to their surprise the young daughter told them that it was already fixed. She had done it that morning. It was a difficult piece of repair work but she can do things that they could not begin to do. Who is to say who is the clever child?

A PRESCRIPTION BOOK

When you house clean your medicine cabinet do you come across medicine bottles that are empty? Some of them are old and have been kept for some reason or other, but you have difficulty remembering just why you kept them and what that particular prescription was
for. Get a little book and keep it in your medicine cabinet and when you get a medicine that appears to be of value to some member of the family, jot down
the prescription number and the reason for using it. Then when you need that particular prescription again you will have no trouble in obtaining it. Frequently even the doctor has forgotten just what medicine he gave at that time. The medicine cabinet is the best place
to keep the book and it should have a pencil tied on, as if one has to hunt all over the house
for the book and then look again
for a pencil, the chances are that the prescription will never be jotted down.

CHILDREN GET SPRING FEVER

When the weather gets good children want to be out of doors
all the time. They stay out to the very last second before meal-time and with the lengthening evenings are sure to want

PROGRESS THROUGH CO- OPERATION

As the object of education is the making of a good citizen, all forces should be aimed towards that end.

As I survey the field after many years of experience, I note that one thing is lacking in most places at least, and that is a sympathetic co-operation of the parent towards the problems of the teacher.

The reason for this is often due to faults of both teacher and parent, and nothing hampers
more the education of the child than teacher and parent pulling against one another. This I think could be overcome by teachers and parents getting better acquainted with one another.

When difficulties arise between teacher and pupil, the parent should interview the Principal and class teacher and get the truth about the matter rather than speak abusively about her behind her back. In nearly every case, the difficulties could be cleared up.

It is also well for the teacher
to visit the homes of the parents at frequent intervals, and the school should have social gatherings in which the parents and teacher could come together.

A Visiting Day planned at regular intervals is a very good thing. The parent can then see the child at work and what the school is doing and can appreciate the difficulties of the teacher.
We parents must remember that teaching our children is to play before bed-time. This means that they are playing hard and for longer times than they have been doing in the winter months and using up more energy. Appetites frequently flag in the Spring, so the children eat less at a time when they require more food to supply energy. It may not be easy to do, but it is wise to insist on at least a few minutes rest before each meal, as often children are literally too tired to eat. The hour of bed-time should be closely watched as they require plenty of sleep to get them through that final month of school.

RHUBARB PIE

This little trick is not a new one to many of you but for the benefit of those readers who are new to the column, I am going to repeat it. To prevent a rhubarb pie from being too juicy, mix 1 teaspoonful (level)
sago with your sugar. Sprinkle a little of this mixture on the bottom of the pie, chiefly around the edges, before putting in the rhubarb, then sprinkle the rest
over the rhubarb. The sago cannot be detected. This is for a two-crust pie.

2 1/2 cups stewed rhubarb

1 cup sugar
1 cup milk
2 eggs
2 egg whites
1/4 cup sugar
2 teaspoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice
4 teaspoons sugar

Stew rhubarb and 3/4 cup sugar until soft. Cool, add milk and 2 eggs beaten with 1/4 cup sugar, the flour and salt. Add lemon juice. Pour into an unbaked shell and bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees for 10 minutes, and at 325 degrees for twenty five minutes. Make a meringue of two beaten egg whites and four tablespoons sugar. Heap on pie and brown at 300 degrees.

LOBSTER RAREBIT

1 1/4 cups milk
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
One half pound can lobster
2 hard cooked eggs
1/2 cup grated cheese

Make a white sauce of the first five ingredients. Add cheese, lobster broken in small pieces and the coarsely chopped hard cooked eggs. Heat and serve with toast, hot biscuits or heated rolls. This is improved by cooking for a few minutes in a double boiler to allow flavors to blend. Lobster Rarebit is one of our favourite Sunday supper dishes. It may be prepared earlier in the day and re-heated.

United States Fur Center

The United States has displaced London as the fur center of the world,
according to the latest government reports. There are no accurate figures for the domestic fur catch in the United States, but its annual value is estimated at from $45,000,000 to $70,000,000,
and most of this comes from the Mississippi valley, which is the large-est fur-producing area in the world,
with double the catch of Russia and three times that of Canada. The four outstanding domestic commercial furs
are muskrat, opossum, skunk and raccoon.

Allenby's Great Victory Justified Arab Proverb

An old Arab proverb says that "not until the Nile flows into Palestine shall the prophet from the West drive the Turk from Jerusalem."

But that is exactly what took place
when Allenby's British army of 96,000
fighting men with 46,000 horses, 40,000
camels and 13,000 mules fought its way north from the Suez canal. It defeated and drove out the Turkish army, which opposed every step of the advance.

The British forces were closely followed not only by a swiftly laid railway, providing commissariat facilities,
but also by a huge pipe line to water that host. That Nile water drawn from a canal in Egypt was filtered at the Kantara water works and then pumped underneath the Suez canal to reservoirs on the east bank. Here it was chlorinated and then, thanks to seventeen auxiliary pumping stations,
carried through the pipe over 200 miles
of arid desert.

In order to realize how completely
the terms of the proverb were satisfied
you must know that the word prophet in Arabic is Al Nub which you will find is pretty close to Allenby, the name of the brilliant strategist who came from the West and who did drive
the Turk from Jerusalem!—Charles H.
Sherrill, in the American Review of Reviews.

Word "Grimace" Matter

for Scholarly Dispute

"Grimace" is a word with which our scholars have loved to play. One of them derived it from grim. Menage claimed for it agrimensor, a land surveyor. Thomson looked to the Italian grimmaccia, and if this be reliable, then
it may come from the Spanish grimo, monkey, in Latin simia, but it should not be forgotten that grimaceurs were formerly a company of artists whose duty was to carve the fantastic heads used in architecture, such as are frequently to be seen in our gargoyles,
and Randle Cotgrave draws attention to this fact. But, in Old Saxon we have grimma, a mask, whence her-grima, a war-mask, including the vizor
of a helmet that concealed the warrior's face.

Despite this explanation, modern scholars claim that its origin is unknown. Undoubtedly it came into our speech from the French, and the French trace it to the Spanish grima-zo, an extraordinary position in a picture. Dietz drew it from the Anglo-Saxon grimma, a mask, a phantom, yet it may come from the Italian grimo, wrinkle.—Literary Digest.

The Mountain's Appeal

In summer thousands of tourists
find their way to the famous monastery of St. Bruno at Chartreuse, which, until a quarter of a century ago, made the just as famous cordill. In winter, close to the monastery the tourists flock to St.-de-Chartreuse and its wild and beautiful skilands. The village is in a hollow bounded by the Pic-du-Grand-Som, the slopes of the Cucheron
pass and the peaks of Channechaude, nearly 7,000 feet high. This makes it a sheltered winter resort, while the hills provide most unusual ski fields.
The landscape, at all times of the year, is one of the most beautiful in France, but in winter the sleigh parties and skiers find a country of indescribable beauty.

Parthian Shots

The Parthians were a very warlike
people of ancient times, who flourished about 250 B. C. in the area covered by the Persian empire. They were especially celebrated as horse archers.
Their tactics became so famous that they passed into a proverb. Their mail-clad horsemen spread into a cloud around the hostile army, poured in a shower of darts and then evaded
any closer conflict by a rapid flight,
during which they still shot their arrows backwards upon the enemy. A "Parthian shot" is a sharp remark to which no opportunity is given to reply.

"NO ENGLISH WANTED"

(St. Maurice Valley Chronicle)

The other night, certain pro-motors staged an exhibition boxing affair, wherein Max Schmeling, world's heavy-weight
contender was seen in action while Jack Dempsey acted as referee.

The promoters studiously ignored the English-speaking population in their advertising, although it is a recognized fact that they are normally warm supporters of such sporting events. The result was that only three English-speaking persons were present at the bout,
and, as a further consequence it was almost a complete financial fiasco.

It is learned that the French daily "Le Nouvelliste," or at least a member of its staff, had something to do with the promotion. This might explain why no invitation was given the English-speaking population to attend. It might also, for the same reason, explain why, the affair was a financial failure.

There is a moral about this experience which should profit
those who know how to appreciate it. If the English-speaking buyer feels himself ignored,
he can govern himself accordingly, having no desire to force
his trade upon those who do not solicit it.

JIG-SAWING DECLARED A SPORT

Hamilton Spectator

An ingenious man is the revenue chief of Rochester. Appreciating the internal revenue department's urgent need of revenues, he has classified jig-saw puzzles as sporting goods and declared they are subject to a tax of 10 per cent. The say-so of this collector doesn't make that ruling official, but one of these days the point will be discussed at Washington and the betting is that his decision will be upheld. The possibilities are interesting. If jig-saw puzzles are sporting goods, then jig-sawing is a sport and the governing bodies of amateurism may have to concern themselves. It would be a bit thick, don't you think, if pa, who held an amateur card of defining him as a jig-sawer in good standing, had to get up from the table when ma sat down to help him, lest he risk suspension for playing with an unregistered exponent of the game? And if it is a sport, then it follows that there must be rules of procedure. As it is played now, it is more or less of a free-for-all scramble. It may be that somewhere, sometime, somebody sat down and worked out a puzzle all by himself, but if he did there was nobody else at home. Kibitzers at the bridge tables, annoyances though they are, do not often reach out and pick a card from the hand of a player and play it for him. Even the worst of the breed content themselves with comments on the play and bidding. Your real kibitzer at jig-sawing is not so restrained. He stands only as long as it is necessary to survey the situation. Then he either pulls up a chair to help and moves the puzzle in front of him or, if there is no other available chair, asks you to get up and let him have a whack at it. Manufacturers of jig-saw puzzles originally intended, we think, that this game should be played on a card table. In the average home however, it is a wise father who when he brings out the puzzle to amuse himself, puts all the extra leaves in the dining-room table. Under the circumstances it is going to be difficult to make rules of play. The New York Sun commenting on the fuss the revenue collector at Rochester has started, pertinently asks: "Where is a Hoyle to fix the rules? What shall be the penalty for a player who brushes pieces off the table? What shall be done with those jesting puzzlers who conceal a piece or two until the picture is all but complete? If it's to be a sport let's make the most of it."

SEATTLE'S EXPERIMENT

(Toronto Daily Star)

The 40,000 unemployed persons in the city of Seattle have shown a spirit in adversity that is worthy of emulation by all who may be similarly situated. They applied to the civic authorities for relief and not obtaining it in adequate measure took steps to help themselves by legal means and with the sympathetic co-operation of the community.

The Seattle unemployed reasoned that a multitude of persons without money had needs that had to be met somehow, thereby constituting a considerable market. Many of their requirements could be met by employing one another and giving labor in exchange for goods or services. The barber who wanted some electrical repairs in his home could cut the hair of the electrician. The cobbler could mend the shoes of a man who would mend his plumbing. And so on. The farmers of the neighborhood, hearing of such arrangements being in actual operation, offered to exchange vegetables and fruits for articles made by the unemployed.

Thanks to able leadership, the Seattle unemployed won the confidence of the civic authorities and business men and today the entire distribution of relief food, as provided by city and county funds, is in their hands. Vacant stores and garages were equipped for the purpose. The unemployed made the desks, counters and chairs that were used.

Members of the fishermen's union lent their boats to the unemployed, who made large catches. Farmers permitted them to harvest unmarketable vegetables and fruits. Land owners allowed them to remove scrub timber. Altogether, last winter, 120,000 pounds of fish, 10,000 cords of firewood and eight carloads of potatoes, pears etc., were gathered. Wood was cut during the summer at the rate of 3,000 cords per month and enough was piled up to meet all the fuel requirements of the unemployed for last winter. Unused land was cultivated and much foodstuff preserved. Abandoned houses were put into habitable condition in return for free rent.

The unemployed even provided much of their own social recreation. Dances were put on and 5 cents admission charged to unemployed who could pay and 25 cents to employed persons. The proceeds were devoted to relief work.

An article in the Atlantic Monthly written

THE SELECTION OF POLICEMEN

In the selection of patrolmen it is necessary to bear in mind that every patrolman is a potential chief executive or administrator of the department. In setting up qualifications it is necessary, therefore, that a high standard of mental, physical, moral and educational requisites be established. Popular opinion notwithstanding, a patrolman's job is not a sinecure nor one of set routine; his is a difficult task. Intelligence, honesty, courage, good nature and emotional stability are all essentials of a good policeman, but are not determined from letters of recommendation, a doctor's examination, or ability to read the rule book.

A test of native intelligence is not sufficient in itself to determine the qualities of a good patrolman; it should be coupled with a more detailed and careful examination of personality. Eventually research will devise examinations that will weed out all but the most competent of police candidates. Police departments will gradually be prevailed upon to adopt them, and another of the many tedious steps toward the control of crime will have been taken.

The scientific application of methods for the selection of personnel and for the development of police progress surely results in economy. For instance, one authority in police matters recently said that indifferent selection of personnel resulted in some one-half of the policemen carrying the burden. He meant that the department referred to might have carried out its functions at one-half the cost of the personnel of the department, providing the men had been carefully selected and were fit for that position.

—Wm. P. Rutledge in "The Municipality"

by Mr. T. J. Parry, a member of the civic Commission on Improved Employment, tells about this "Republic of the Penniless." It describes the president of the Unemployed Citizens' League, who direct these operations, as a tired old man who says, "We fail to understand how men in dominating political, financial and industrial positions can ignore the necessity for fundamental change if the present world-wide breakdown is to be corrected. Most of us in this work are near life's halfway mark or beyond and what happens to us doesn't matter. But it is hard for the youngsters. We'd like to see tomorrow dawn a little brighter for the children."

There was a timid knock at the door.
"If you please, kind lady," said the beggar, "I've lost my right leg."
"Well," snapped the woman, as the door was slammed in his face. "I haven't got it."

Neighbor's Boy "Er—please, Mr. Jones. Pa says could you 'blige him with the loan of a corkscrew."
Jones—"A corkscrew? Certainly! You run along, Bobby, I'll bring it round myself."

A woman heard that her two sons were in the habit each at separate times and quite unknown to each other, of taking one of the maids "out for a lark."

Fearing to bring down on their heads the wrath of their father by making a fuss about it, she asked them if it were true, but could get no satisfactory answer to her inquiry.

It occurred to her that by a little strategy she might get the truth from the girl, so she said: "Now, Mary, I want you to answer me candidly. Which of my two sons do you like going out with best—George or Joseph?" "Well, madam," replied the girl, reassured by her mistress's manner, "if ye must know, of the two I like George best; but for a downright good spree, give me the master!"

Mankind Seems to Have Reversed Nature's Rule

It has been revealed that the men of one great American city spend almost as much for clothes as the women. There is a difference in cost, of course. Women can purchase three or four dresses and appear beautiful for the money a man pays for one suit. And there can be no dispute about the women looking far more comfortable, especially in hot weather.

One writer, commenting along this line, makes the observation: "The masculine taste is to dress well enough to be unnoticeable and the feminine ambition is to dress well enough to attract attention." Accepting this epigrammatic statement as true, it is a complete reversal of nature's rule as between male and female. In natural life the male is endowed with the finer, presumably to attract the attention of modest potential mates.

It is a waste of vigor to protest against woman obtaining what she designates her rights. She takes them where she sees them and there is nothing to be done about it.—Toledo Blade.

The May meeting of the Women's Institute of Morin Heights was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Seale. There were nine members and seven visitors present, which, considering the heavy thunder storm, was a very satisfactory attendance. The subject for the evening's consideration was "Agriculture", and the roll call was answered by "Noxious Weeds". Mrs. A. Hamilton gave some very interesting information regarding "Facts about Good Milk" and Mrs. A. Buxton, of Mille Isles, delivered an instructive address pertaining to "The Necessity of Cleanliness in the Marketing of Poultry Produce." Arrangements were planned to hold a "Modern and Old Time Dance" on May 19th, from which it is hoped to receive sufficient proceeds to donate appropriate prizes at the school closing.

What Other People are Doing

Lowering of wages in an effort to boost profits, or to maintain dividends over a period of business stagnation, is like unto plastering a falling ceiling to keep out the rain!

Wages influence the cost of everything bought and sold. They are the yardstick which measure the prosperity of a country. It matters little whether we earn twenty dollars or two hundred dollars, our expenditure is relative to our earnings. Demand, to operate effectively, must be governed by supply, and interference with the law of supply and demand will inevitably cause a prolongation of this financial crisis. The employer who cuts wages in an effort to produce a less costly article meets a less wealthy market in which to sell. If we were to build a house, and erect a beautiful superstructure at the expense of a firm foundation, the building would most assuredly topple down. Yet that is what many firms are doing today.

The operatives or employees are ravaged or undermined, to provide for the beautiful superstructure of maintained dividends and undiminished salaries to executives and directors. The law of supply and demand, like the mills of God, works slowly, but it is always in operation and eventually will strike a mean. As surely as the pendulum swings the oscillation will return along the self same path, and the less self assumed economists, or dilettante business magnates, meddle with this regulating process the sooner we will find ourselves out of this financial morass.

Paraguay declares war on Bolivia... so ran a caption in last week's papers. Twenty years ago a war was declared to end all war, and during its four years of travail the most confident predictions by the great men of the period were that future wars were unthinkable. Here we are back in the same old atmosphere of 1914! Wars, wars, and more wars. War between Japan and China; bankers' war between England and the States; an economic war between England and Ireland; a tariff war between France and the States; a war of extermination between Germany and the Jews; a tariff war between Germany and the Allies; and an armament war between France and Germany. The war between Paraguay and Bolivia is over a worthless swamp—Gran Chaco. Fighting has been in progress between the two countries since last June, and it is estimated that over 8,000 Bolivians and 3,000 Paraguayans have been killed. Forty thousand Paraguayans and sixty thousand Bolivians are on the field. Both nations are of a fighting race and all the evidences point to a war of mutual exhaustion. The League of Nations has become so involved in expressions of mutual admiration, ex parte commitments by its individual members, as to become absolutely unreliable and incompetent.

The gravamen of all other differences, complications, threats, and attacks in finance. Finance, whether in tariffs, preferences, debts, or what-have-you; the underlying jealousies, anxieties, manoeuvres or tactics are motivated by finance. The interference of bankers in matters of state has been the curse of the past decade, the ruination of thousands of souls, the damnation of millions of people and the direct cause of all this whirling of values called "depression". The function of the bank has been prostituted to the gambling of brokers on stock exchanges. Governments have been compelled to connive at and assist in speculations which caused the downfall of thousands of happy families. The banks of Canada have reduced the interest on deposit accounts by one half of one per cent, yet the farmer is paying 6, 8, and even 10 per cent on the same money borrowed from the bank. Who gets the difference? Business loans, when you estimate bonuses and commission, often reach six per cent yet banks will loan stockbrokers money for the purpose of gambling at the rate of one per cent per year! This is particularly so in the States where the power of the Federal Reserve exercises its influence to supply cheap call money. Call money is money used to invest in stock and commodity prices. Those investments are speculations pure and simple... gambling, nothing less. Trafficking on the blood and sweat of small depositors! Even this gambling, wrong as it is, is doubly so by being crooked, as a glance through the ramifications of the

C.P.R. Baggage Office is Robbed

The C. P. R. Station at Lachute was broken into early Tuesday morning, thieves gaining access to the baggage room by way of a window into the basement. There were packages and trunks stored in this warehouse, but the intruders made away with five cartons of cigarettes and tobacco—these being more easily disposed of. There was no clue to the identity of the thieves, with exception of footprints outside the basement window; these were carefully preserved pending investigation by railway officials. During the night, Mr. Geo. Paul, whose store is situated on Main Street, was aroused by the barking of his police dog; but on going outside he could see nothing suspicious in the immediate neighborhood.

It is reported the section house had also been broken into, a crowbar and other tools having been taken, with the aid of which the marauders made their entry into the station basement.

Mother's Day Service by United C.G.I.T.

The United C. G. I. T. of Lachute held an impressive service on Sunday evening, before a large congregation in the United Church, the entire proceedings being carried out by the girls with exception of the organ accompaniment, which was played by Mrs. S. Campbell in absence of the group's appointed organist.

The girls numbered around fifty, and in their familiar uniform of the Canadian Girls in Training, presented a pleasing spectacle. The service opened with the processional, during which the C. G. I. T. hymn was sung in unison, and the devotions followed the theme of appreciation for Mother, humanity's supreme blessing—this being the annual observance of Mother's Day in Canada. A solo

Ste. Agathe Rejects By-Laws

Wants Neither Daylight Saving Nor Hard Liquor

Residents of Ste. Agathe last Saturday rejected two referendums—a first one for the sale of alcoholic liquor, and a second for the adoption of daylight saving time. The town clerk and returning officer reported that 85 per cent. of eligible ratepayers registered their voice. The liquor referendum was defeated by a majority of 122, and the D.S.T. referendum by a majority of 118 votes. There was a total of 548 votes registered.

Proprietors of summer residences at Ste. Agathe expressed their satisfaction with the outcome of the referendum, asserting the adoption of strong liquors would have worked to the detriment of the town as a quiet summer resort.

Heavy Fire Loss at East Settlement

At one o'clock last Monday, as the family were at dinner, fire broke out in the milk-house or adjoining shed, spreading quickly through the ice house and the barn, at Mr. Leslie Gordon's East Settlement. When the outbreak was discovered, little could be done to avert heavy loss, as the flames spread quickly through the wooden structures. Cattle and horses, however, were released from the stable—the latter with considerable difficulty.

Neighbors were soon on hand, drawing water in 8-gallon milk cans on a truck. The wind was, luckily, in the opposite direction from the house, and the residence was untouched. Lachute fire brigade were summoned, but could do nothing more effective than those already standing by lest the dwelling should be threatened.

The damage, which was considerable, is said to be only partially covered by insurance.

At Lacrosse Practice

Observed at the Lacrosse practice on Barron's field one night this week, was Mr. Lem Barron himself, who, being more than usually keen on the game, was present to watch the try-out. It was interesting to learn also, that Mr. Barron played Lacrosse on this same field just 50 years ago. The historic game has not changed very much, but we venture to think the local surroundings at that time were very different!

County W.I. Annual Convention

The 13th. Annual Convention of Argenteuil County Women's Institutes was held in McArthur's Hall, on Friday, May 12, with about 100 ladies in attendance. Very few of these being visitors, it was considered a highly satisfactory attendance from the eight branches in the county with a total membership of 189.

The county president Mrs. J. D. Davis, of Morin Heights, was in the chair, ably supported by her efficient secretary, Mrs. Kuhring of Lakefield.

Mrs. Kuhring read her reports as Secretary and Treasurer of the County, which showed that in the eight branches in Argenteuil the sum of $1552.25 has been raised during the year, $1581.68 has been expended and $266.54 is being carried forward.

Mrs. Kuhring's resignation at this time comes as a severe blow to the organization. Mrs. Kuhring has kept the financial, as well as the secretarial affairs in order for four years; the institutes are deeply indebted for her devotion to the cause. Mrs. H. R. Ardill, of Brownsburg, kindly consented to accept the vacant position for a year.

Mrs. Davis welcomed the delegates in a few well-chosen words appreciating the large number present and the interest which their attendance manifested in the work.

Mrs. J. W. Maclean, of Cushing, in reply, said that the organization was working in the interests of Home and Country, and that there was much to be done. "Let us," she said, "be true to our own homes first of all, then use our influence for the benefit of our country, as well as our country, by being an example to others."

Mrs. Davis, in her address as President, reviewed the work of the Organization during the year. She stressed the increased demands made upon women of to-day, and expressed her appreciation of the co-operation of the members during the year and of the amount of work successfully carried out. She urged the support of the County Health Unit which has been instrumental in reducing the infant mortality in our County by 50% since its inception.

The business of unveiling the monumental cairns at Carillon and Grenville was then taken up and final arrangements made in the plans for that celebration, on June third... Routine business occupied the remainder of the morning hours.

Nonagenarian Has Touch of Rheumatiz

Matthew Scott, hitherto hale and hearty, deeply regrets a touch of the old fashioned rheumatism, which threatens to upset his annual spring fishing. Mr. Scott is 92 years young, and his ailment was contracted while ministering to the tender shoots of vegetation in his garden.

However, Mr. Scott, a familiar and cheerful figure in these haunts, was on hand last Sunday to receive the congratulations of relatives and friends, on the attainment of his 92nd birthday. Among his most appreciated greetings was a letter from Hon. Sir George Perley, who counts our friend among the landmarks of his constituency; for Matthew Scott has spent his entire life in this county, largely in the community of Lakefield. His family comprises five daughters and two sons—one son and a daughter having died.

Sunday's gathering took place at the home of Mrs. Harry Scott, Lachute, and among those assembled for the glad occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Hurdman and son Russell, of Brackenbridge, Que.; Mrs. Lusk, of Luskville, Que.; Mrs. Geo. Scott and Mr. Roland Tucker, of Dixie; Mrs. W. A. Rodgers, of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Evans, of this town. Another daughter, Miss Ida Scott of Calgary was, unfortunately, too far distant to complete the jubilant family circle. The Watchman unites with a wide circle of friends and local acquaintances, in felicitations on this memorable birthday.

A suggestion was made that the refuse should be dumped in the disused canal, and the chairman fell in with it.—Weekly Paper.

Man Lives 13 Years Without Stomach

Death has come to Jesse M. Coombs at 72, farmer of Lebanon, Indiana, whose entire stomach was removed 13 years ago, and who went back to his farming after his operation. Medical science arranged some of his organs so that he didn't have to have a stomach.

CUT RATES

Commenting editorially on the recent convention of the Saskatchewan Ass'n. of Rural Municipalities, the Western Municipal News contains the following gem:

One phase of the indigent problem is burial. The cost of caskets comes up at most municipal conventions and somehow always sounds rather funny. But, this time, one delegate pointed the cheap burial rates in his municipality to the astounded attention of his fellows... the man who made the "consolidated caskets" said, "He's not an undertaker, just a ratepayer." If one heard clearly through the amusement, the bargain rates for burial went from $50 up. "Can you beat it?" asked the delegate. Nobody could. It hardly seemed worth while staying alive these difficult times with such inducements to be buried, sort of "O Grave, where thy victory?" chant. Mr. Bushell suggested graves be bought and kept on hand for Reeve and Council. Well, at that, they might prove deposits for dead issues.

That senator who proposed Sunday elections Canada must be a queer stick. That's the day farm folks are kept busy feeding city visitors.—Winchester Press.

Interprovincial Softball League Opens Schedule

Vankleek Hill vs. Lachute Tigers.

On Monday evening last the Vankleek boys visited Lachute in one of the opening games of what promises to be a very interesting schedule of the league. Mayor Arthur Larocque threw the first ball of the game to Capt. Hurley of the Vankleek team at the bat, the local catcher H. Beauchamp being behind the plate. However, both the latter players watched the regulation underhand throw of our Mayor soar high over the top of the backstop.

The local boys were palpably nervous at the first innings being dismissed without a run whilst Vankleek ran in six. In the later innings Vankleek were not presented with so many opportunities as Lachute tightened up their base work and by the end of the sixth the score read 10-12. However the seventh innings again spelt disaster for Lachute as Vankleek hit at will, piling in six more runs to Lachute's zero. And so the game ended in favor of Vankleek Hill 10-18 a feature of the game being the excellent pitching of Captain Hurley, of the Vankleek team.

Every Lachute player gave of his best, and considering the inexperience of our team with the game, the result of this first test is better than expected; it should act as a tonic to them, and should not be considered disheartening by any of the players.

It is only necessary to add the thanks of the management and players, to the co-operation of the public by their generous support and attendance at the game, and the club wishes to express thanks to our Mayor, Mr. A. Larocque for his assistance and his donation towards the expenses of the club.

For those interested in the Interprovincial League fixtures, which opened Monday with Brownsburg Redwings meeting Hawkesbury Research, and the above-mentioned game at Lachute, the entire season's schedule is given below:

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER. THE BOY WITH A KITE

Dear Boys :

He was quite a small boy and he had red hair and freckles.—Not that this, of course, made any difference to the work he had in hand, but it was this fact which drew my attention to him, because one after all does not see many boys with red hair.

Also he was very busy with a large ball of string, and a long distance away from where he stood almost in the centre of a large field, lying on the grass, was his kite. It was just an ordinary kite, and if there was anything at all unusual about it this was to be found in the tail, which looked to me rather long.

When I joined him, I expressed this thought in words. "Don't you think Sonny, that the tail of your kite is too long?"

He looked up at me with a smile, so I was able to see that his eyes were a deep blue and had a very earnest expression in them.

"I don't think so," he said, and then continued—"I have tried a shorter one but it won't work". Very soon he had the string arranged to his satisfaction, and it lay in long sweeping coils at his feet.

"Are you very busy, Sir?" he asked shyly. "Not for a few minutes" I answered eagerly, for I thought I knew what was coming. He nodded with satisfaction. "That's fine," he replied. "Will you hold the kite up as high as you can and let go when I wave my hand? I shall be right over there" and he pointed to the farther end of the field.

Gathering up the loose end of his string he ran off, while I made my way to where the large plaything lay deep in the grass. Taking it up I thought what a frail, simple thing it was; and yet to its owner it happened to be, for the moment at any rate, the most wonderful thing in the world. Very soon I heard a shout and a small arm made frantic signals. I let go!

Up and up soared the kite, into the deep blue of the sky and very soon it was so high in the air that it appeared but a black dot to my eyes.

—Just a kite, a small boy, and a gentle breeze. Not much, you say; but think a minute. Is it not in the simple things of life that we find our greatest happiness? I am sure that no prince or millionaire has ever been happier than my red-headed boy, as he gazed triumphantly at this kite sailing majestically in the wind.

STORY OF ADVENTURE

Chapter 19.

"It's not in what we read, but what we see, that wonder lies."
—Cook.

"Mutiny in one of His Majesty's ships on the high seas, is not only an offence against the King but a crime against the State. For those found guilty of the main charges the punishment is death and on minor counts to such rewards as the court may lawfully decide.—Sentence having been passed as laid down in the King's regulations, they will be immediately enforced. God Save the King."

It was the next morning, following that of the exciting events which were recorded in our last chapter. An attack had been made by the almost desperate and ignorant slaves, against the rest of the ship. Knives had been used freely, and for a time, at least, it had appeared as if their violent effort would be successful. Then the crew, led by their officers, had rallied and driven their opponents back to that portion of the vessel to which they belonged. This was not done, unfortunately, without the loss of several lives on both sides, and in the end twelve of the mutineers had been seized, heavily ironed, and flung into prison cells to await their trial. This had taken place and took but little time, for having been captured red-handed, the prisoners put up no defence. Sullen and vicious, they knew there was little hope for them when the verdict was announced. Four were sentenced to be hanged at the yard-arm while the remainder were ordered to a penal settlement for life and thirty lashes at the triangle.

"What is a triangle?" asked Edgar of Sunny Jim, as he and Walter were discussing the result of the trial. The little man spat on the deck and then placed a piece of black plug tobacco into the corner of his mouth. "A triangle, Young Master, is a long upright piece of wood with another across it. The man who is to be lashed is first of all stripped to his waist and then securely fastened to it so that it is impossible for him to move either legs or arms. Then the crew is mustered under the charge of the Bo'sun and all hands have to face the prisoner. An officer then reads out the charge and penalty, and orders the punishment to take place. At once, the Master-at-Arms steps forward with the cat-o-nine-tails, and brings it down with a whistling sound across the victim's bare back."

"What is the cat-o-nine-tails like?" interrupted Walter, who had been listening with an expression of horror on his young face.

"It's a piece of hard wood handle with nine leather throngs attached. These have frayed edges in order that they may perform their work more efficiently." "They must hurt terribly" Edgar said, a strong note of pity in his voice.

"Hurt!" repeated Sunny Jim. "I tell you, Young Master, it does worse than that. After the first two strokes the flesh becomes torn and the poor wretch starts to moan in agony; but there is no stopping even though the prisoner faints from the torture. Indeed very few, except they be of great strength, come out of their punishment alive!"

"It should never be permitted," Walter almost shouted in his indignation, "I would rather be hanged and have done with it."

"It certainly seems to be preferable," replied Sunny Jim dryly, "but you see, they have no choice in the matter. After all what would you, Master?—Your life would not have been worth much if they had secured control of this ship. They would have whipped you first and cut your throat afterwards."

Both boys shuddered on hearing this but expressed their firm determination that though an order had been given that

Two little frogs in two little bogs.

Were croaking quite loudly one day.

While up in a tree a chickadee we

Was suddenly heard to say;

"Oh what a noise those horrid things make,

If they keep it up, my babies will wake,

Oh chickadee-dearie me!"

She flew from her nest, in angry protest,

Scolding as loud as she could.

Said one little chap, "This looks like a scrap.

Now, Billy Bullfrog, you be good."

He blinked both his eyes,

And tried to look wise;

"Your pardon, dear madam," said he,

"But—you sing when you please,

O'erhead in the trees,

And your song don't appeal to me."

"How dare you croak and talk back to me?"

The chickadee said, "This country is free

Yes—chickadee dearie-dee"

"Krup-krup," said the frog,

"Our home's in this bog,

You've just said this country is free . . .

Go back to your nest,

Your babies aren't dressed.

We'll sing when we please,

Te-hee."

The bird got a fright,

She knew he was right,

"But—oh dear" said she

"You sing in the night.

Oh chickadee, dearie me!"

She made a new nest

Way off in the West.

And as soon as her babies could fly,

Departed one morn, in anger and scorn,

Nor wasted a single Good-bye.

Oh what a laugh, those jolly frogs had,

They chuckled with glee because she was mad,

—That chickadee-dearie dee.

An Unexpected Ending to a Holiday

The song you have just read at the top of this column was the song that Mother Craig sang every member of the ship should be present to witness the punishment of these condemned men, they would be otherwise engaged. Then a thought came to Walter, and on impulse he turned to Sunny Jim and said—"We are under your orders, are we not? We have to do what you tell us?" "What you say is correct, Young Master," was the reply. "Then," went on the boy earnestly, "Order us down on the lower deck and give us our exercises. We will be really obedient, I promise you."

The little man smiled. "It shall be as you say, Master. Go to your cabin now and take off your shoes and jackets, and be ready when I call you. Should the Commander, by some chance or other, question your absence, I will tell him you are occupied with work under my orders. After all, you are only boys, and such sights that will soon take place on the upper deck are not for young eyes to see."

Walter and Edgar expressed their thanks and were soon making preparations for physical drill.

"What a terrible thing we have missed, Walter," Edgar said, as he flung his jacket onto his bunk and started to unfasten his shoes. "—Do you know, I shall be glad when this voyage is over. I hate it now; it's awful."

"Well," rejoined his chum. "It won't be long now before we sight land. I heard a sailor say that this should happen tomorrow. I will give three loud cheers when there is something else to look at besides sea, sea, sea!"

A loud bell sounded and both the lads looked at each other. "That's for the general assembly" whispered Edgar, growing white. Then a low tap came on their cabin door. "Are you ready Masters? I am waiting for you; please come to your work at once."

"Good old Sunny Jim" said Walter. "For the first time I am really glad to do as he tells me. Come on Edgar and do your jumps!"

soon, the water will go down quickly enough, but if it keeps on, the cellar will be flooded; and the stables, they are lower than the house. However, we must just trust to Providence and keep working away as usual, there is nothing to be accomplished by weeping and wailing about it."

"I don't suppose there is Grannie; and that reminds me that Aunt Sue was to show me how to make buckwheat cakes this morning, so I had better go down and see if she has started to make them."

With her arm still around her grandmother, they went down to the kitchen together, finding Aune Sue busily searching amongst the many things in the store-room for Uncle Ned's rubber boots.

"They should be here" she said with a worried pucker on her forehead. "I usually keep them hanging on that big hook by the window. That they are not there now is quite evident to everyone."

"Oh!"—Nora burst out with that Oh so suddenly that even Uncle Ned looked at her in surprise. "I know where they are. They are at the sugar camp. I am sure they are. I saw them yesterday."

"Oh, my poor brains!" Uncle Ned said half-laughing. "Why can't I remember things as I used to when I was little like Honey here." He tweaked her ear as he spoke.

Grandma Craig used to say that Uncle Ned would joke when others would be crying. That is a good spirit to cultivate, children, the spirit that will not be cast down over every little hardship, but keeps bravely on and fights the good fight until the finish.

The question of what was to be done now, was uppermost in the minds of the grown-up folks, when Billy said "Guess you will have to go on stilts, Uncle Ned."

Uncle Ned turned to look at Grannie Craig. "Mother" was all he said. But Grannie understood the question that one word contained and replied "Yes, Ned your old stilts are still in the house; in fact there three pairs somewhere about—in the attic over the shed I think."

With almost a boyish "Whoop" Uncle Ned hurried up the back stairs and after some time came back with the three pairs of stilts. "Now watch your uncle Ned get to his bossies," he chuckled, as he opened the kitchen door and stepped on to them from the verandah.

Slowly and cautiously at first, in case of washouts in the path, he started towards the barn; but finding none, he increased his speed much to the delight of the children who were watching his movements with intense interest.

As he reached the door he hopped off, stood them up beside Uncle Dick's big sleigh and went in, first stopping to wave a cheery greeting to the watchers. Grandma heaved a sigh of relief and Aunt Sue hurried to the stove to rescue her scorched buckwheat cakes.

"That's one show over" said Bert, "but you are going to have another exhibition of smartness, I, Bert Craig, am going to walk to the barn on stilts."

"Bet you'll fall first shot," said little Ned.

recent upheaval in the States reveals. Quite recently a well known financial expert was reported to be a comparatively poor man (so much for his expertness). Yet that man and his financial confreres are more to blame for the present debacle than any other group or institution.

Let us trace this process of banking through one of its phases, to discover how governments assist bankers and bring ruination on depositors. For our purpose the States provides the most irrefutable example. When the crash seemed inevitable the government declared a holiday. Banks were closed throughout the country overnight to enable the bankers to salvage what they could from the ruin, and withdrawals were dependent to the amount of salvage the banker was able to command. But depositors, who had with confidence entrusted their money to the banks for safe keeping, were left to forage for themselves as best they could. If the depositors got into difficulties through genuine loss or necessity they had to make whatever sacrifices their situation needed, but the bankers who gambled with depositors' money were wrapped in a cloak of protection by the government. The depositor did not give his money to the banker to risk on the roll of a ball, he gave it for safe keeping and was entitled to get it back whole and promptly, on demand. To continue, however—the government starts printing money. They say this is not inflation. Whether it be reflation or inflation is of little moment, it is issued to the banks on the depositors' deposits, in the form of bonds. The banker takes these bonds to the Treasury and gets one hundred per cent value in currency, the government at the same time paying him interest on the money with which he got the bonds, namely the depositors' deposits. This interest is held by the banker. At the other end the banker loans money to his depositors, for which the depositor pays interest. He buys bonds with the depositors' money and he pockets the interest; he loans the same money out to his depositors and he again pockets the interest. And if the bank fails the depositor loses his money. Heads he wins, tails you loose. Such a system is absolutely unjust.

German envoys are at present having a difficult time, representing their country in a favourable light, to the country to which they have been allotted. Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, special envoy to Great Britain, placed a wreath on the grave of Britain's unknown soldier. Capt. C. Sears, an English army officer, took the wreath and threw it into the Thames, "as a protest against desecration of the cenotaph by Hitler's hireling" and was fined forty shillings for his action by an English magistrate. Next, Gen. Dawes makes a blanket invitation to Germany to send an official representative to the Chicago Fair, on whose executive are several influential Jews. Germany appoints one of its most active Jewish persecutors, and Gen. Dawes receives a protest from his executive. . . . So between his Jewish supporters and the Nazi representative, Joseph Goebbels, Gen. Dawes is in a fix !

"If you know how, Sonnie ! Uncle Ned had quite a lot of practice as a boy. I little guessed when I stored those stilts up in the attic because I could not bear to see my laddies' playthings destroyed, that they would come in handy in an emergency such as this."

"Well I am going to try them anyway," said Bert with a sort of defiant tone.

Wouldn't you have liked to have been there, to watch him start out ?

He made the attempt all right—and next story we shall see how he got along !

New Cigarette Case of "Cellophane"

"CELLOPHANE" from package wraps, cut into strips and woven, can be made into a lovely cigarette case by following a few simple rules. Cut the strips one inch wide as follows: 8 vertical, 8 inches long; 14 vertical, 5½ inches long; 9 horizontal, 4½ inches long and 11 horizontal, 10 inches long. A few coloured strips will add much to the appearance of the finished case.

Fold the strips in half lengthwise twice. Tack the eight verticals to a board (a breadboard will serve) top and bottom. To the right, 3 inches lower, put three 5½ inch strips. The rest of the verticals are then tacked to the left. In weaving, the horizontal strips are passed over and under the vertical ones. Start weaving at the top right, over one and under one, using 6 of the 4½ inch lengths to form the flap. Then continue weaving, using the 10-inch strips to form the front, back and sides of the case, or A, B, C, and D, on the diagram. The last 3 strips at the bottom are 4½ inches long.

To finish top and flap, cut off all but a half inch, just enough to turn back over the weavers and tuck in. At first remove only the tacks on the flap. Beginning at the upper right corner turn every other vertical down being sure the foundation strip is covered. Then tuck the edges in. Next turn the alternating strips back and tuck in. The sides are finished in the same way. Then take out the edge tacks and finish the edges the same way.

The bottom section E and also sections B and D should have their loose ends turned inward. Leave about half inch to fasten with gummed tape. Remove tacks from bottom of section A, leaving a half inch surplus. Starting at the lower left, turn first loose strip upward on case.

Do the same with every other strip and fasten with gummed tape. The loose ends are left to weave case together. The loose ends on the sides will dovetail and can be woven under and over to hold case together. Bottom ends of section A are woven into section E.

Old Trade Name

"Naval stores" is a commercial cant and is generally misunderstood by the public, says Pathfinder Magazine. Although sometimes applied to the ordinary supplies for war vessels, the term is a trade name for the resinous products derived from the gum or pitch of pine trees. In the early days these products were used for caulking and waterproofing sailing vessels, and vast stores of tar and pitch were accumulated for the use of the navy. A desire to obtain such supplies independently of the French and Dutch was one of the chief reasons for the first British settlements in America. At one time "naval stores" included all the raw materials employed in building and maintaining sailing ships, such as tar, pitch, resin, flux, cordage, masts and timber.

Spies in Afghanistan

Afghanistan is a country of fighting and of plots. One party is continually plotting against another, and this provides a steady job for the secret service "beggars." These are wandering fellows who haunt the bazaars of the East. While sitting there in the busiest part of the town with their begging bowls, they have a great chance to overhear conversations, and as every man in Afghanistan belongs to one or the other of the hostile parties, the beggars glean much valuable information. This information they sell to other parties, and they can get a good price for it. Altogether it is quite a profitable way of making a living, though it is dangerous.—Los Angeles Times.

Theft of Consequence

Police are looking for a man who has stolen a stalactite from the famous caves at Wookey Hole, Somerset, England. If it is not recovered, there will be a delay of some 32,000 years before the decorations resume their correct appearance, for the missing stalactite is eight inches long, and it takes, roughly, 1,000 years for a quarter of an inch to grow. Wookey Hole is probably the most famous and most interesting cavern in Britain, under the Mendip hills some twenty miles from Bristol. Close by is the Hyena's den, where remarkable discoveries of prehistoric animals and men were made many years ago.

In a Bad Way.

"Is he hard up?"
"I should say so. He can't even get credit for his good intentions."

Removes "Frozen" Bolts

Nuts on bolts used on machinery often become "frozen" in place and are removed only with great difficulty. Often it becomes necessary to cut them away with a chisel or remove them by drilling, either of which is a long and tedious operation. Human strength cannot move these pieces, but a piece of pneumatic machinery has been recently devised which does the work. It is an air-driven wrench which has been largely adopted for use about locomotive shops and similar establishments. The tool is of such convenient form that it may readily be carried about and will quickly dislodge nuts on bolts up to an inch and a quarter.

FIXING UP THE HOUSE

All literature of Canadian origin commands our ready attention; and when a new handicrafts booklet rolls off the presses of a discriminating Toronto publishing house, we justly expect something of unusual interest.

"Fixing up the House" is the unpretentious title of a book just sponsored by the Oxford University Press—and the title implies the very practical application of its contents. All those who have the interests of Home at heart; who have moreover, a certain aptitude for improvements; all those who seek a pleasing ensemble from the humblest of effects and furnishings—will find this booklet most helpful. The information which it contains is concise and widely applicable—presented by F. Lionel de N. Scott, whose ideas have already found favor in the columns of Maclean's Magazine. His book is highly endorsed by the Women's Institutes of Ontario, and should meet with a warm reception among homemakers in this section. "Fixing up the House," a guide to practical interior decoration, sells for one dollar.

BEATTY PRAISES PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Also Commends Recent Trade Conversations Between American President and Mr. Bennett. Optimistic About The World Conference

E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has expressed his praise of the "courageous and vigorous actions" of President Roosevelt and of the Congress of the United States as well as the recent trade conversations between the President and Premier R. B. Bennett.

In an article, Mr. Beatty analyzed Canada's railway problem expressed hope in the forthcoming economic conference, and said he looked for an early upturn in the volume of trade between Canada and the United States. Mr. Beatty wrote:

"The situation facing Canadian railroads is in many respects similar to that with which those of the United States are confronted. Over the past three years revenues of the Canadian Pacific have shown a steady decline until they have reached a point where it has not been possible to meet them with operating expenses sufficiently reduced to prevent impairment of dividends.

Expects Improvement.

"I have no doubt that the economic situation will steadily, if slowly, improve and that a more or less free interchange of commodities between various areas will commence to make itself felt over the next few months.

"It is reasonable to suppose, also, that it will not be long before we see the start of an upturn in the volume of trade between Canada and the United States. The courageous and vigorous action of your President and your legislators has awakened hope and strengthened confidence far beyond your borders and Canadians are watching with the keenest interest for the results that may be expected to follow upon recent discussions as to trade possibilities between your chief executive and the Prime Minister of this country (Canada.)

Mr. Beatty Hopeful

"I am one of those who look most hopefully toward the World Economic Conference, having something more than a

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, May 17.—The Minister of Finance has been given power to float a $750,000,000 conversion loan. This is one of the efforts of the government to reduce the fearful burden of interest and other 'fixed charges' which have made it impossible to 'balance the budget' for the past three years. It is reported that the new conversion loan will only pay 3½%, and every effort will be made to induce patriotic Canadians to exchange their present bonds, many of which yield 5 and 5½%, for these new issues. Similar exchanges were made in Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand, saving the treasury many millions annually in interest charges.

At present the Canadian government pays an average of five per cent on its total debt. Even a reduction of one per cent in the rate would save Canada $26,000,000 a year.

This would take care of the entire federal cost of unemployment relief for 1933.

There are still outstanding half a billion dollars in Victory bonds on which income tax cannot be charged. There has been much agitation at Ottawa to remove these exemptions, on the ground that in these times the holders can well afford their contribution to the exchequer, but the government has so far declined on the ground that it would be a breach of contract.

While writing about millions, it is interesting to note that events of the past two months have saved or promise to save the federal treasury from 50 to 75 millions.

Three 'Breaks' for Bennett

1 The improvement of 25 cts. a bushel in wheat prices has added some $38,000,000 to the value of the wheat reported to be held by John I. MacFarland for the federal government.

2 The rise in the value of the British pound from $3.70 to $4.50 has reduced the liability of the government under the bonus export scheme (the agricultural stabilization fund) announced by Hon. E. N. Rhodes in his budget. When the scheme was worked out, it was estimated that it would cost 10 millions in the current year. But if the British pound goes up another ten cents it won't cost the government a nickel.

3 The fall in the value of the American dollar, or, if you like, the decline in the U. S. premium has saved Canadian municipalities, provinces, the federal government and private individuals large sums in exchange. If it stays at its present level or goes lower, the saving will be upwards of $15,000,000.

The Bennett government has had so many tough 'breaks' that the ministry appreciates the recent turn in the tide.

Eyes on the Wheat Fields

The eyes of Canada begin to turn again to the prairies. With No. 1 wheat up to 65 cents at Winnipeg a new spirit begins to permeate the west. Seeding once more seems worth while.

Canada is sending Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and some experts to the world wheat conference at Geneva, where it is hoped that some agreement can be reached about restriction of acreage. In this connection the report of the Dominion Bureau this week is interesting. It shows that farmers intend to plant 1½ million acres less into wheat this year than last. Conditions across the prairies are reported here to be fair to good. The areas in southern Saskatchewan and adjacent territory which suffered so severely from drought will require steady rains this summer to make a good crop reports indicate. Grasshoppers are feared also.

With the session out of the small faith in the common sense of the men who are in positions to direct the struggles of the great nations towards economic salvation, and I am thus assured that our serious economic difficulties will soon be observed to take on a less formidable aspect. The troubles of our railways will be accordingly lightened, we shall then be faced with the still hardly less though provocative matter of competition in transportation. Railway executives have already directed much consideration and effort in this direction, and results have not been without considerable encouragement.

THE LATE MRS. LAWSON TAYLOR

St. Andrews East and the neighboring community were sorely shocked by the untimely death of Alice Howes, wife of Lawson Taylor, of Isle-aux-Chats, which called forth heartfelt sympathy for the bereaved loved ones.

In spite of all that care and medical skill could do for her, Mrs. Taylor passed away on Monday morning, May 8th. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Howes, Vankleek Hill, and was 29 years of age. On September 3rd., 1928, she was united in marriage to Lawson Taylor of St. Andrews East. Of a kind and genial nature, she counted a wide circle of friends, for by her cheerful disposition she endeared herself to all who knew her.

The service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Macaskill, assisted by Rev. Dr. Ballantyne of the Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews, and Dr. Sutherland, L'Orignal. Interment was made in St. Andrews Cemetery, the pall bearers being Geo. McDougall, Stanley Rodger and David Rodger, of St. Andrews; Percy Allen, Stanley Allen, and Leslie Allen, of Cassburn. The Cassburn Lodge, No. 563, assisted by Lachute L.O.B.A., took charge of the service at the grave.

There are left to mourn her loss, besides a sorrowing husband, her father and mother and three sisters, Mrs. Dan McLennan, Dunvegan, Mrs. Evan Graham, Ottawa; Mrs. Clifford Howes, Vankleek Hill.

Special Evangelistic Services

Rev. Bob Munro Scottish Evangelist, commences a three weeks' mission in the Maple Ave. Baptist Church, Brownsburg, on Sunday, May 21st. Evangelist Munro saw service in His Majesty's Navy during the great war. At the close of the war he came to Canada and engaged in Missionary work in the Western provinces. He later held pastorates in Sudbury and Montreal. During the winter of 1931-2 he was a very popular chaplain among the road camps of Northern Ontario. He has just returned from Scotland where he conducted successful meetings in Glasgow and other centres. His cheery manner and message as well as his playing of the cornet is a real tonic in these days of depression.

Cows to the number of over 3,560 are kept in dairy sheds within the city of Liverpool. Although they live such artificial lives, 80 per cent. of the milk they supply is stated to be equal if not superior, to Grade A standard.

way at Ottawa, Premier Bennett who has not enjoyed a holiday of any consequence since 1927, has to plunge into preparations for the world economic conference. Canada is not directly concerned over the war debts discussions, but as the fifth largest trader in the world she is intensely interested in all tariff changes, inflation to raise commodity prices, and the stabilization of exchange.

The political pot is beginning to simmer again at the capital. The C.C.F. has a bevy of young economists drawing up blueprints for the 'Co-operative Commonwealth'. The Young Liberals are holding a mass rally here in June. The by-election in Mackenzie, Saskatchewan, made necessary when M. N. Campbell went to the tariff board will be hotly fought. It looks like four candidates there at least.

Early Morning Burglaries

Feat of Nerve in Entering Bedroom . . . Purse Taken . . . Tramps Suspected

Mr. C. Stephens reports his residence on Main Street, East Ward, having been broken into at 3 a.m. this morning. The intruders left hurriedly when Mrs. Stephens, hearing an unusual noise, got up to investigate. Nothing unusual was to be found, however, until this morning when it was discovered the cellar window had been entered and two bottles of beer had been left on the front lawn when the burglars had been disturbed and had beaten a hurried retreat.

The particular variety of beer led Mr. Stephens to conclude, on information given where it had been purchased, that the visitors were three transients, who had enquired the way to St. Jerome and were evidently bent in that direction.

The experience of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McQuat on the same street, was rather less fortunate. They also discovered this morning that their dwelling had been broken into and ransacked, men having pushed the back door key inside from the lock and forced the door.

A milk bottle had been taken from the refrigerator and left empty on the floor. But every indication suggested the burglars were in search of money; although every drawer and cupboard downstairs had been ransacked nothing of value was taken.

The men had next crept upstairs and entered the bedroom of Miss McQuat without having disturbed the sleeper. A purse was taken from the dresser, containing seven dollars in cash.

These depredations illustrate to what extent transients are preying upon rural communities, and further emphasize the need of night police in Lachute.

LACHUTE FAIR NOTES

The following letter has been received from the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Ottawa, May 10th., 1933.

In connection with the section of the statement of conditions respecting fair "Age limits for horses and cattle" it has been decided that no age limit will apply in the case of in-foal mares and brood mares with foals at foot.

Signed, Geo. B. Rothwell, Live Stock Commissioner.

The Fair dates are set for June 14-15-16-17 and this is only a month away! While our limitations are somewhat greater, owing to different policy adopted by both Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, the results obtained will evidence the wisdom of their new venture. Many believe that an even greater interest will be manifested in the change, and our young exhibitors will have a better chance to win laurels in the general competition.

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICE BY UNITED C. G. I. T.

by Miss Peggy Beveridge, Wonderful Mother of Mine, was sung with fitting tenderness and sincerity. The Scripture readings were given by Cora Miller and Lillian Falconer, and the prayers were spoken by Dorothy Cooke, Grace Lavis and Anna Rosborough.

Miss Rosborough, leading this service from the pulpit so ably occupied by her rather each Sunday, titled her office with commendable ease. What might have seemed a formidable undertaking, was handled with grace and confidence. The discourse followed appropriately along the theme of the entire service; and reverence for Mother in the heart of a girl was impressed and shared in quiet response throughout the congregation. The subject was splendidly dealt with, and delivered with a clear enunciation and control.

Miss Rosborough's remarks were preluded most aptly with the following poem, by Ethel Lee Grossman:

"Of all the things God ever made,

I think these are the best:

Dear arms in which we first were laid,

That held us first in rest;

Dear feet that tire not day or night,

While walking duty's way;

Dear eyes with dauntless love alight

For us through every day;

Dear lips that are so quick to droop

When we are hurt or sad,

And just as quick with smiles to troop

Whenever we are glad;

Dear hearts and souls which gave us birth;

Our mothers, God's best gift to earth!"

The Choir, comprising members of the group, rendered an anthem in which the harmony was well taken, and the singing proved most effective. In conclusion, Taps, the particular refrain of the organization, was sung unaccompanied, marking the conclusion of a successful service.

Mr. Louis Lafleur and family were in Montreal on Tuesday visiting Miss Suzanne, who is a patient in Hotel Dieu.

Miss Annabel Hume is the guest of the Misses Martha and Lottie McAllister of Montreal, for a few days this week.

Lesson for May 28

JESUS AND HIS FRIENDS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 13:1-14:9.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. John 15:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Some Friends of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus an Honored Guest.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being a Friend of Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Showing Our Friendship for Jesus.

A better title for this lesson would suggest Jesus as giving a prophetic outline of events in the interval between his crucifixion and his second coming.

I. The Occasion of the Prophecy (vv. 1-4).

As Jesus was passing out of the temple for the last time on his way to the Mount of Olives where he gave this discourse, the disciples reminded him of the splendor of the building, to which he replied that not one stone should be left upon another. When seated upon the Mount, the disciples came privately, according to Matthew 24:3, with a threefold question requesting further information.

1. "When shall these things be?"

2. "What shall be the sign of thy coming?"

3. "The end of the age?"

That which follows is given in answer to these three questions.

II. The Characteristics of the Age Between the Crucifixion and Christ's Second Coming (vv. 5-23).

1. The appearance of many deceivers (vv. 5, 6). Many false Christs have pressed their claims as being the Messiah since Jesus went back to heaven. As this age draws to a close we may expect these claims to increase.

2. Wars and strife among the nations (vv. 7, 8). The history of the centuries since Christ's crucifixion is written in blood.

3. Earthquakes, famines, and troubles (vv. 8, 9). Though these calamities grow increasingly severe as the days lengthen, the intelligent disciple is not surprised or alarmed for these are the precursors of a new order, the birth-pangs of a new age when the Kingdom of Christ shall be established on this earth. Let the believer in Christ in this time of darkness look up, for his redemption draweth nigh.

4. Dreadful persecutions (v. 9). God's witnesses shall be delivered up to councils, beaten in the synagogues, and shall be brought before rulers and kings for Christ's sake as a testimony against them.

5. Universal evangelism (v. 10). The gospel of the kingdom, according to Matthew 24:14, shall be preached in all the world for a witness. This is not the gospel of the grace of God which is now being preached, but a new evangelism which shall be proclaimed by elect Israelites immediately preceding the coming of Christ to establish his kingdom. (See Romans 11:13-15; Rev. 7:4-10.)

6. The universal hatred of the believing Israelites (vv. 11-13). They shall be severely persecuted. Civil government shall be against them. Their one duty notwithstanding shall be to preach the gospel of the kingdom, depending upon the Holy Spirit for wisdom and power. For this specific duty they are sealed with the seal of God in their foreheads (Rev. 7:3). This will be the real Pentecost of which the outpouring of the Spirit at the beginning of the church was a type (Joel 2:28-32; Acts 2:16).

7. The great tribulation (vv. 14-23). This is the consummation of the age immediately preceding the glorious appearing of Christ. Out of the missionary efforts of converted Israel shall eventuate the unparalleled horrors so vividly pictured here. Daniel's "abomination of desolation" is the Antichrist—"the man of sin" (Dan. 9:26, 27; Dan. 11:36; II Thess. 3:3, 4), who will direct this reign of terror.

III. The Glorious Return of the Lord (vv. 24-27).

Jesus' return is the superlative event, the one to which all prophecies have pointed and to which all ages are moving with unflinching precision.

IV. Application of the Prophecy (vv. 28-37).

1. As these events multiply in the earth, we know that the coming of the Lord draweth nigh (vv. 28, 29).

2. The Jewish race shall retain its integrity until the end (v. 30). The perpetuity of Israel is the miracle of the ages.

3. Certainty of fulfillment (v. 31). The unfailing guarantee of this is the words of Jesus Christ.

4. The time of Christ's coming is unknown (v. 32). In view of this fact it is folly to set the time.

5. The proper behavior in view of Christ's imminent coming (vv. 33-37) is watchfulness and prayer.

Life's Watch Towers

The watch towers of life are not all atop office buildings; some folks find them on a mountain, beside a quiet brook, or in the quietness of a pine forest where even the carpet of needles is silent to the tread.—Bok.

of our mothers, who was affluent,

but who now has literally nothing,

told me after the last meeting that she enjoyed the Home and School meeting so much and that she never missed

them as they were the one place

she could go that cost her nothing.

Every other organization had had to be given up. It is quite possible that there are other women in the same situation and that the social side of the club means more than I suspected.

No church that I know of, has done anything to meet changed

financial conditions and to provide for its social life with this in mind. More than one woman has told me that she had to give up all her church organizations, as there never was a meeting that did not call for money;

if not a stated sum at least a collection. This in addition to the constant demands for food

to be contributed could not be met. The church must be financed but it is too bad that earnest members are unable to take a part in its life. There

I go, criticising again!

DIET FOR COLITIS

By chance, guests for two successive week-ends were on Colitis diet. Colitis is inflammation of the Colon or large intestine.

Its treatment requires a non-irritating diet. Food that is bland, no roughage, no raw fruits or vegetables, no highly spiced foods, nor alcohol. Foods which are quickly digested, that is foods of a low satiety value,

are required so that they will pass through the system quickly and lessen the irritation. Fats, pork, fried foods, cheese, pastry, rich cakes and candy, specially chocolates should all be omitted from the diet.

Foods which may be eaten are

white bread, macaroni, beef,

chicken, fish boiled or steamed,

cooked vegetables, stewed fruits,

milk desserts, cream soups, jellies, milk, cottage cheese, sponge

cake and plain cookies.

We had to make a quick revision of our meals to provide suitable meals for our guests

as we usually have a great many salads, raw fruits, whole wheat bread and cereals. I forgot to include orange juice and tomato juice in the allowed foods. They are very necessary and should be taken at least twice a day to supply the vitamin C which the Colitis diet lacks. As the quantity of food is cut down so that there is little bulk, it is necessary for anyone living an active life to have something to eat

mid-way between meals. Orange juice, grape fruit, tomato juice

or milk are all very suitable for this purpose. Russian oil is usually required to prevent constipation as there is not sufficient bulk in the diet to ensure elimination.

RECIPES ARE EXACT

So often I get the comment, 'I have such good luck with your recipes.' Luck nothing! It is hard work on my part. I wonder if you have any idea of how many recipes I try and discard

or how often I make the ones

you get before they satisfy me.

There are recipes of course

which are perfect the first time

I try them, but you would be surprised at the number that look good but when they are actually made they give poor results or lack flavour. Many recipes have to be adapted,

chiefly because they are too expensive or because they are too

fussy and too much trouble to make. It is too much to expect that you like every recipe

in the column as no two families have the same tastes, but you can be sure that they are practical, well-tried recipes that fit into every day meals.

MAPLE SYRUP ICING

This is a recipe which was in the current Ladies Home Journal that I tried out. It is very simple to make, as it is just one cup of maple syrup and two egg whites beaten together until stiff with a rotary egg-beater or an electric beater. I used the latter and had no difficulty getting it stiff enough to stand in peaks but could get it no stiffer.

The L. H. J. writer used the word 'pliable' and it fits it exactly. The icing looked lovely

when piled on the cake but it ran down the sides of the pieces

after it was cut. Anyone wishing to serve it in the afternoon

would be a little disappointed as it is inclined to be messy. The flavour is delicate and the icing

of a lovely texture. It would make a delicious sauce for a fresh cake or cottage pudding

for dessert and I would recommend it highly for that purpose

but not for an icing. The second day the icing was firm enough to cut nicely but was flatter and not nearly so fluffy.

RHUBARB TAPIOCA

Prepare three cupfuls of diced

fresh rhubarb. Add 1/2 cupful of quick tapioca and 1 1/2 cupfuls hot water. Cook in double boiler until rhubarb is tender

and tapioca clear stirring frequently. Add 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1 cupful sugar or as much as is required to sweeten the rhubarb. Cook for five minutes longer. Turn into a dish and chill thoroughly before serving.

This may be made Saturday for Sunday dinner.

Authorship of Poetic

Gem Long Kept Secret

What a big niche in literature can be secured by a little poem is proved

by the history of that exquisite ballad, "Auld Robin Gray," written by Lady Anne Barnard in 1771. The other half dozen or so pieces by Lady

Anne are entirely negligible. For more than fifty years the authorship of

"Auld Robin Gray" was a complete mystery. It was in 1823 that she revealed her secret to Sir Walter Scott.

When Lady Anne Lindsay (as she was before her marriage)—set about writing a new Scottish ballad to the tune of an old one that had "naughty

words," she produced a song she never could have guessed would be celebrated for generations. In the letter to Scott in 1823 (given in "The Private Letter Book of Sir Walter Scott," edited by Wilfred Partridge) in which

Lady Anne confesses to the authorship of "Auld Robin Gray," she says:

"I was pleased in secret with the approbation it met with, but such

was my dread of being suspected of writing anything, that I carefully kept

my own secret."

It was considered during, if not in-delicate for a lady to assume to authorship in those days.—Kansas City

WHY JUDGE RUTHERFORD IS OFF THE AIR IN CANADA

In connection with the ban recently placed by the Radio Commission on the speeches of Judge Rutherford through Canadian broadcasting stations, a statement from the radio commission was recently presented to the House of Commons by Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine. As the refusal of the commission to allow Judge Rutherford to speak has been a matter of general discussion
throughout the country, the statement will be read with interest. It will give people a better understanding of the actual situation. The statement read in the House, reproduced

from Hansard is as follows:

HON. ALFRED DURAN-LEAU—(Minister of Marine):
On Friday last the hon. member for Lisgar (Mr. Brown) asked a question with regard to the measure of responsibility
the government must assume in connection with the ruling of the radio broadcasting commission
concerning Judge Rutherford's speeches. I have received a statement from the radio commission in this connection which reads as follows:

Many complaints were received by the radio broadcasting commission regarding the abusive and mischievous character of the speeches of Judge Rutherford
being broadcast in Canada,
but the commission took no action until it had obtained a copy of advertising literature issued by Rutherford's organization in Canada, The Watch Tower, 40 Irwin Avenue, Toronto, containing quotations from these speeches. With this evidence before it the commission,
on January 18th., instructed Canadian broadcasting stations
that the Rutherford speeches must not be broadcast until the continuity of records of the same had been submitted to the commission for approval. The commission learned that the Rutherford broadcasts were in the form of gramophone records
manufactured in the United States, and that time for their use on the air had been purchased from twenty-five Canadian stations by the organization representing Rutherford in Canada.
As Rutherford lived in the United States and did not deliver his speeches in person in Canada he could not be made amenable to Canadian laws and the only

in this country was in regard to the broadcasting of his gramophone records.

Anxious that it should be clear
there was no intention of interfering with the legitimate exercise of free speech the commission requested the representative of the International Bible
Students, the organization sponsoring Rutherford in Canada, to submit the records of the Rutherford speeches, together with the texts on which they were based. This request was not complied with, and the only response was the wide distribution of printed literature in Canada
attacking the commission and religious institutions and clergy,
in which the chairman of the commission was described as liar, thief, Judas and polecat,
and therefore fit to associate
only with the clergy.

In order not to interfere with the legitimate operations of the International Bible Students the commission authorized the broadcasting stations to allow the organization to substitute
its own speakers in Canada for the gramophone records of Rutherford's speeches.

Letters have been received by the commission from clergy of the majority of religious denominations in Canada commending
its course in the Rutherford matter. Owing to popular indignation in the United States
at the nature of his speeches, Rutherford has been denied the use of the great networks of the large broadcasting organizations in that country.

Mr. Speaker, with regard to the measure of responsibility assumed by the government in this matter, parliament gave full authority and responsibility to the radio broadcasting commission.
I would refer my hon. friend to the bill adopted last session,
which is chapter 51 of the statutes of 1932.

Mr. J. L. Brown (Lisgar): I thank the minister for his statement; I think it will go a long way in giving the people of Canada a better understanding of the actual situation.

GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN

(Contributed)

Word has just come to hand
that Father Peter d'Orgueval, who for the past eight years has been chaplain to the lepers at Molokai in the Hawaiian Islands has contracted the disease. This dread pronouncement compels Father d'Orgueval to spend the rest of his life among the sufferers of this fell disease. Winning the Legion of Honor medal and six other decorations, for outstanding bravery in the French army during the Great War, this heroic priest resigned to labour among the lepers after his return from active service.
He has shown unstinted devotion and sacrifice, in carrying out his appointed task of alleviating the misery of those poor outcast sufferers. During the time Christ was on earth sufferers of this dreadful disease were compelled to cry out
"unclean" when they were approached by persons unaware of their condition. Our Saviour cared many of those pitiable victims, and despite all the progress that medical science has made, no remedy has been discovered. There are many sufferers in the world today and the disease is not confined to the isolation of Molokai. There are more than a million lepers
in China, over a million in India and Africa, about forty thousand in South America and even in North America there are three thousand lepers.

This month of May is dedicated by the Catholic Church to the praise, honor and invocation of Mary, the Mother of Jesus, Lord and Saviour of mankind. The ultimate object and purpose of all devotion to Mary is to bring men nearer to her Divine Son, Jesus. The Son and the Mother are inseparable. One would not please Jesus if one did not honor and love His Blessed Mother.

The Free Church Presbytery
in Inverness, Scotland, passed a resolution of protest against Premier Ramsay MacDonald's
visit to the Pope, and also requested to have the English Minister withdrawn from the Holy See. Sir Murdoch Macdonald member of Parliament
for Inverness to whom the resolution was sent, wrote in reply: "I am sorry to say, sound Protestant as I know myself to be, that I cannot agree with or support your resolution. It would take too long to explain
all the reasons why political contact should be maintained
with the Roman Catholic Church and why the want of such contact would react to our disad-vantage in the world as it is today. I am therefore sure you will not ask me to explain these matters to you, but to say I regret that you have thought fit to condemn the action of one of our most responsible statesmen."

Quebec reports a falling-off in the number of automobile licences to date this year as compared with last, which in turn saw a decline from the 1931 total.
Those legislators who have been looking longingly at motorists
and truck users as a possible
source of additional revenue
should have regard for the trend.
If they add to the load already being carried there will be a still further decline and a consequent lessening of revenue.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON-SERMON

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, May 21, 1933.

Golden Text: (Romans 12: 1) "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Among the citations comprised in the Lesson-Sermon are the following verses from the Bible: "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. (John 17: 3).

Also included in the Lesson-Sermon are the following selections from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is spiritual, individual, and eternal; material structure is mortal." "The individuality of man is no less tangible because it is spiritual and because his life is not at the mercy of matter. The understanding of his spiritual individuality makes man more real, more formidable in truth, and enables him to conquer sin, disease, and death." (Pages 173, 317.)

Two young men who were journeying from Kingston to Montreal in a canoe by way of the Rideau and Ottawa river met with an exciting and dangerous adventure in the Chute au Blondeau Rapids on Wednesday of last week. They had camped for the night on the Big Island and next morning as they were about to resume their voyage their canoe overturned in the swift current and was swept away with one of the boys clinging to it while the other was left on the shore horrified to see his companion disappearing down the river. Taking a desperate chance he ran to the north side of the island and leaped into the icy water which is very rough and swift at that point as it flows between the two islands—the "Little" Chute as it is known to old-timers of the neighborhood. He must have been a strong swimmer for he eventually reached the shore benumbed and almost paralyzed with cold. However he soon recovered and ran up the hill to Mr. Jolicoeur's house, where he secured help to find a boat and started down the river to search for his friend. Luckily for the latter Mr. Cousineau at the Cushing ferry nearly a mile below had heard his cries and put out to his rescue. He to was numbed and almost dead from exposure but he was taken in by Mr. Cousineau and given first aid treatment and after a time the travellers appeared none the worse for their adventure except for the fact that some of their effects had been carried away by the water amongst the rest a bank book and two passports to the Old Country their destination being Scotland.

John Macaskill assisted by Dr. Sutherland, of L'Orignal, and Dr. Ballantyne. Mrs. Taylor, before her marriage was Miss Alice House of L'Orignal. The high esteem in which she was held could be judged by the beautiful floral tributes and the large number of people that attended the service. Friends came from all over the parish and from the vicinity of her girlhood home, and the seating capacity of the church was taxed to its utmost. Mrs. Taylor was a member of the St. Andrews United Church, and its Fellowship Circle and Dramatic Club and will be very greatly missed by all. The sincere sympathy of the whole community is extended to her husband and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Rejall and Mr. Harold Rejall, also Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur, of Montreal, were guests at the St. Andrews Inn last Sunday.

An anthem was rendered by the choir, solo parts being sung very effectively by Mrs. J. P. Bradley and Mr. G. Rodger. Dr. Ballantyne's theme was "The Christian Home" and at the close of the sermon, a beautiful duet, "My Mother's Prayer" was sung by Mrs. T. Webster and the young tenor, Mr. George M. Rodger.

We are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Judd and daughter Muriel. They hope to become permanent citizens of this fair village.

The play to be given by the ladies of the Presbyterian Church on May 23rd. should prove very enjoyable. It shows forcibly "The Rebellion of Youth" against the restraint and experience of age. The gossip recital is an entertainment in itself, while the timely advice given by the Irish neighbor is very funny. Those taking part are Mrs. J. P. Bradley, Mrs. A. C. Macdonnell, Mrs. Joe Bradley, Mrs. MacDuff, Mrs. John Bradley, Miss P. Millar, Miss Phyllis Doig, Miss M. Hamilton, Miss Ruth Doig, Miss Myrtle Hamilton and Miss Lena Gates.

The C. G. I. T. concert which was held in the Town Hall last Saturday evening was a huge success. The girls had spent a lot of time practicing and their efforts were duly rewarded. sketches, choruses, etc. were greatly enjoyed by a very large audience. That night everybody seemed to have a sweet tooth and the candy which was sold during the intermission was less than the demand, contrary to other things in the depression. Mrs. J. Macaskill is to be congratulated on the splendid work she is doing for these girls.

If you are needing a laugh to fight off the depression, come Saturday night to the Town Hall St. Andrews East, 8.00 p.m. E.T.S. and enjoy the 3-Act Comedy staged by the Rosemount First United Church Players. Candy will be sold during the intermission.

The hall, with a fine dance floor, has been extended to sixty by twenty-four feet. Saturday last was the opening night of the season, and a "full house" were on hand for the occasion. It is estimated the patrons numbered between 400 and 500. Dances, including city and country vagues, will continue every Saturday night, as last year. The orchestra is a different group, engaged from Montreal for this season, and the music last Saturday promised a pleasing accompaniment for the ensuing dances at Ralph's.

Presidential Address at Recent County Convention of W.I.

The verbatim address of Mrs. J. D. Davis, County President, at the 13th. Annual W. I. Convention held recently in Lachute, affords inspiring reading and an encouraging review of the Institutes' local activities. Owing to pressure of space, this address was omitted from the Convention report in last week's Watchman, but is reproduced in full hereunder:

Doubtless some of you will remember two years ago at our Convention when Mrs. Cushing addressed us, she advised us never to refuse a Convention, as by accepting, one personally derived many benefits and learned a great deal from the work. That has certainly been my experience since you were kind enough to elect me as your President.

A year has passed since our last meeting together, and at that time we stood on the threshold of a new year which, even the most optimistic must have felt, was bound to be a difficult one; and such it has proved to be, as it is quite evident that things in the world today are out of tune. Never have there been such demands on women for service, either individually or as members of organizations, in trying to overcome the many difficulties which the year has brought. Charity, economy, resourcefulness and patience are demanded daily. There are doubtless many of our members throughout the County for whom the past year has been a difficult and trying one, but I feel sure that their contact with their fellow-members month by month, has at least helped to cheer them on their way and maintain their morale, even when it was impossible to give assistance of a more tangible nature. To those whose dear ones have passed on since we last met together we extend our sincere sympathy.

It has been said, and truly said, that the existence of a branch of the Women's Institute in any community is a distinct social asset and an influence for good. The work of your Publicity Committee, Mrs. Graham, reflected in "Home and Country" and the Press, affords to our organization greatly increased prestige, and, in turn, I believe, stimulates the interest of the members in our work.

Hawkesbury Cannot Issue Debentures

Still Confronted with Immediate Financial Problems.

The Ontario Municipal Board has declined to authorize an issue of debentures by the Town of Hawkesbury, which was sought in order to consolidate the town's floating indebtedness. The appeal was heard at Ottawa, and was opposed by counsel representing the local Board of Trade, who maintained the town could never be extricated from its financial straits unless there was some change in the form of government. A Board of Supervisors was recommended to this end. Hawkesbury's indebtedness of $88,000, it is noted, includes $12,000 arrears to teachers.

One Month Sentence for Disturbing Meeting

April 4th. last, during a meeting of the Hawkesbury council and board of trade Alphonse Gibeau, 20 years of age, rushed into the council chamber and began using abusive language to the mayor, police officers and other officials who were present. He was placed under arrest, later being released on bail. On Monday last, in the county court at L'Orignal he was sentenced to one month imprisonment, and on other charge of chicken stealing he was given an additional month.

Separate school teachers have not been paid since last December and high school teachers since January.

C. P. R. Station Again Broken Into

Safe Damaged at Booking Office

Inspired by the ease with which the C.P.R. baggage room was entered and robbed last week, thieves on Sunday night made bid for a bigger haul in the ticket office, where the safe is located. The presence of a crow bar and pick indicated the intruders might be the same in each case, as similar tools were stolen from the neighboring section house on each occasion.

The attempted robbery was discovered Monday morning, and the railway detectives were promptly notified. There was no clue as to who the culprits might be, although a car was seen near the station at an unusual hour during the night. Entry was made by forcing a window overlooking the platform. A persevering attack had been made on the safe, but it proved strong enough to yield to what appeared to be amateur methods. A hole several inches in diameter, however, had been made on top, in the outer wall; this had been achieved apparently by a series of holes, either pierced with the pick, or blown with a torch or other instrument. The inner shell, fortunately, proved an obstacle to the cracksmen, and the job was abandoned at that stage. The thieves also made an effort to force the combination lock, breaking off the dial on the door of the safe.

The state of affairs proved most inconvenient to the agent, who came on duty next day, but luckily no serious loss was sustained by the railway company.

YOUTH FOR THE AGED

Dr. Masao Ito, director of the Yojoan Sanatorium at Tokyo, claims that he has perfected a new method of rejuvenation.

He injects into the patient hormones obtained from healthy youths, and the treatment lasts for forty-nine consecutive days.

Tests made with men over sixty are reported to show that they have been made to feel much younger, both physically and mentally, and have gained weight.

Reports indicate that local lakes and rivers are yielding a fair haul of fish, although the season is probably not yet at its best. Yesterday, the "Twenty fourth," was propitious to our knights of the supple rod, who plied their craft in large numbers. From certain quarters, also, it would appear the late frosts did not injure the mosquito crop.

Burned to Death on South Shore Highway

Last week a young man, Wilfred Alcroft 26, of Toronto, was burned to death in the cab of a truck he was driving to Montreal, when it overturned and caught fire on the Ottawa-Montreal highway three and a half miles west of L'Orignal. His companion, Pierre Dominici of Montreal, suffered burns in trying to save Alcroft, whose leg had been caught in the wreckage.

Owned by the Baillargeon Express the truck was travelling empty to Montreal at the time of the accident. Dominici the assistant driver, was asleep in the bunk over the driver's seat, and when the machine went over, he was able to save himself by crawling out the back. He then made heroic efforts to save the driver, but was forced to witness his painful death as the flames consumed the large truck.

Lachute Tigers Beat Hawkesbury Shamrocks 22-14

Interprovincial Soft-ball League Game

Lachute visited the Shamrocks of Hawkesbury at Riondon Athlete Grounds on Tuesday evening last for their second league engagement. The locals batted first and piled in seven runs to Hawkesbury's four. The second innings saw Lachute run in three more and Hawkesbury two. The Tigers' fieldwork then loosened up and at the end of the fifth inning the score read 12-10. However, going to bat again in the sixth, Lachute gathered in four more points and the Shamrocks two. In the seventh, Lachute were dismissed without adding anything to their score and Hawkesbury Shamrocks gained two, to make the score read 16-14, at this stage. In the eighth innings both teams remained scoreless. In the last the Lachute boys set their Tiger teeth again and ran in six runs, winning a 22-14 victory, to the general surprise of the spectators and to the disgust of the Shamrock players, who have an established reputation.

It should also be noted that the Tigers' teamwork showed a hundred percent improvement over their first game at Lachute, and noticeably excellent was the midfield catching of Mons. Frappier of the Shamrocks.

887 Marriages were dissolved last year in Canada, an increase of 203 divorces, 29% over 1931.

Ontario recorded 233 divorces, while Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island had one each. Parliament granted 27 divorces, all to residents of Quebec, which has not established divorce courts yet.

Fatality at Barkmere Fighting Bush Fire

Roger Labrosse, 15-year-old son of Domino Labrosse, of Barkmere, enlisted by provincial forest rangers to fight a forest fire which started at Bark Lake near Arundel, was instantly killed Thursday afternoon last when he was struck down by a huge tree.

Labrosse, one of a group of volunteers, was assisting the rangers in chopping trees to the ground to prevent the outbreak from spreading. He was standing near one of the trees watching the work, when the cry to clear was given.

He looked up and saw the huge tree slowly dropping. He commenced to run but apparently was uncertain which way it was going to fall. Instead of making his way out of the danger zone, he ran directly into the path of the falling tree and was crushed to death immediately.

St. Simeon's Players Achieve Notable Success

The "Adventures of Grandpa" Please Large Audience

Effective Dancing by Lachute Pupils

Almost four hundred individuals thronged to the Lachute Auditorium on Friday last, to witness one of the finest productions given by the St. Simeon's Players. Previous to the performance, bright music was rendered by the Brownsburg Orchestra.

The scene of the play centred around the Hunter Dancing Academy, Chicago, and graceful dancing numbers were appropriately contributed by Miss P. Beveridge and her pupils (Shirley Leggett, Lorna Giles and Louise Deacon) as well as Miss Edna Aitken, whose toe dancing and characterization of "The Lady of the Fan" was admirable while Messrs. B. Maiden and F. Stansfield furnished excellent tap dancing.

The play was one of keen dialogue and witty humor, and the farce appealed greatly to those present. Briefly, the story dealt with complications, disbeliefs and mix-ups in the Dancing Academy of Mr. and Mrs. Tod Hunter, these characters being ably taken by C. Gillard and Mrs. Leggett, respectively. All kinds of persons patronize their studio, among whom is Mrs. Pansy Hopscotch, a fair damsel fat and forty, who aims to attain high social standing.

"Pansy," an hysterical, fainting individual, was suitably characterized by Cliff Cunningham's "false setto" voice, and her companion, Dorothy May, was played by J. Valpy. Montgomery Ray, otherwise known as "Monte," is Grandpa's grandson, and he visits his old college chum Tod Hunter at the Academy. Monte, (Chas. Henderson) breaks the news that he must find a wife for a few hours, having just informed Grandpa he was married, in order to keep his allowance! He pleads with Tod to lend him his wife, who, after much persuasion, reluctantly consents, although much trouble was in store through this arrangement.

Marie Ribeau, the French girl

at the studio (Miss Muriel Marshall), and Koompy from Copenhagen (Miss Elsie Salter), furnished many a laugh in the misunderstanding of the two husbands. The latter, although somewhat dull looking, is sharp enough to augment her finances by blackmailing the husbands, in order not to "speel de beans". Grandpa arrives, a bewhiskered old fossil from Yellow Bud, and takes a great fancy to Monte's supposed wife, much to the disgust of Tod who now has to play cook. Trouble brews and Grandpa (Gerald Taylor) is rather suspicious of the cook, Officer McCormack (Herman Stansfield) has instructions to quarantine the Academy, to the infinite displeasure of all therein, as the frame-up is getting too warm for them. Monte devises a plan to keep the old man upstairs by painting red blotches upon Grandpa's face with lip stick, but he regrets it afterwards, for the officer has orders to lift the quarantine if no others are effected, but on seeing the whiskered gent he decides otherwise!

Monte also has unforeseen difficulties in convincing his old sweetheart, Dorothy, that he is not married; but after much pleading he succeeds, and they agree to tell Grandpa all, and to marry.

Officer McCormack announces the health authorities have "made a mistake," so everyone is free once again, much to the satisfaction of Mrs. Pansy Hopscotch, whose extreme embarrassment brought forth many a laugh.

The entire cast are to be congratulated, for every player gave his or her best, and the acting spoke creditably for the efforts of their coach. The S. S. C. are grateful also for the generous support given them and proceeds amounted to $180. Stage effects were made possible by the co-operation of P. T. Legare Ltd., who kindly loaned furniture for the occasion.

Argenteuil Will Embrace Montebello

The County of Argenteuil has finally undergone a change, in the re-adjustment of Quebec electoral constituencies. It was thought this county would remain unchanged, but according to announcement last week Argenteuil will be extended to embrace a portion of Two Mountains lying north of the North River, and also a part of the existing County of Papineau. The latter part includes the municipalities of Notre Dame de Bonsecours, Ste. Angeline, Coeur-Tres Pur de la Bienheureuse Vierge-Marie de Plaisance, St. Andrew Avelin, Notre Dame de la Paix, and the villages of Montebello, Papineauville, and St. Andre.

Motor Cyclists Gathered at Lachute

In Montreal one is impressed with the increasing number of motor-cycles, which are gaining in popularity, doubtless as result of the improved highways in this province. Lachute, last week-end, was the rendez-vous of several Montreal and Ontario Motor-cycle clubs, and there were machines to the number of fifty or more parked on the Main Street. Trials were conducted during Sunday the riders making the circuit via Brownsburg, Dalesville, Louisa, Dunany, and back to Lachute. The motorcycles represented a variety of different makes, and it was notable how the English manufacturers appear to have captured a fair share of this growing business.

What Other People are Doing

The anxiety and dread with which the great powers, and the world in general awaited Hitler's definition of Germany's position would be laughable if it were not so tragic. Truly a worthy theme for a Gilbert pen. A few short years ago the once proud German Empire was levelled to the dust, and Hitler an unknown Austrian whose country as well as countrymen was annihilated. Hitler, as an army corporal, amused his beer-room mates with stump speeches of a revolutionary tendency, which would entitle him to free preparation for deportation if he were in Canada. Last week the whole world waited with bated breath for an utterance, which Hitler was to produce from the solitude of twenty-four hours self communion, and which was to define the future policy of the German nation. The President of the mighty United States directs his 'ambassador extraordinary' to whisper in Hitler's ear not to be too vigorous in denunciation of the mess which the bankers had produced and not to make it impossible for the nations to have another conference. In addition Mr. Roosevelt stages a show of his own hand and sends a report of his handiwork by full cable to fifty four nations. Nothing daunted Hitler strikes out, demands equality in armaments with the other powers and accepts, what has now become known as the MacDonald plan. The world breathes again. Hitler is not so mad after all. But he was sagacious enough to recognize that France had not accepted the MacDonald plan so he very adroitly placed the onus of wrecking the next conference on his enemy.

By the MacDonald plan Germany is allowed 200,000 men of a conscript army, instead of half that number as at present. France 200,000 and an additional like number for Colonial service, Italy the same amount with 50,000 for colonial service, Austria 50,000, Hungary 60,000, Bulgaria 60,000.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER. THE BOY AT THE LATHE

Dear Boys :

The other day I was visiting a large College, and the Principal asked me if I would care to look over the buildings. In response to my eager approval, he conducted me on a tour of inspection. We saw many different phases of the work undertaken by the students; but that which interested me most was the Boy at the Lathe! We found him in a busy workshop. The hum of machinery and the stacks of wood that stood ready to be turned into all manner of interesting things, clearly denoted the nature of the work performed in this shop. The Boy at the Lathe was engaged in perfecting the "leg" of a cabinet that was to be his masterpiece. So intent was he on his job that the Master had to speak twice to him before he noticed our presence.

I quickly gathered he was not pleased to see us! Now I suppose there are people who would say this boy should have stopped his machine, laid down his tool, smiled a welcome, and talked about his job. He did none of these things; in fact there was even a frown upon his otherwise cheery countenance.

His Master was right when he said, "Sorry to disturb you. We will move on."

Then it came to me that there was really no room for us in this place. We were idlers, just lookers-on, having no serious or useful part in the line of industry we had entered; and I envied the active interest, the clever fingers, the wonderful concentration of that boy at the lathe.

When our tour was completed the Principal, pointing to the magnificent buildings and the tall trees which surrounded them, said "Well, what do you think of it all?"

"Splendid and magnificent," I replied with enthusiasm. I could see he was pleased at my remark and took it to be an appreciation of this Institution which, mainly due to his organization, had been brought into existence.

But he was wrong. It was thinking not of these things, but the spirit of industry and enterprise in that Boy at the Lathe!

Your affectionate friend,

WEE ROBIN STAYS OUT By Aunt Jean

A busy Mother Robin, To her baby robins said, "The sun is sinking in the west. It's time you were in bed."

One naughty little robin, Jerked his tiny, stumpy tail, Tossed his head impatiently, Put up a dreadful wail.

"Go to bed—oh dear, no! It really isn't time; I want to get another worm, And the hunting is just fine."

So there he stayed cheep-cheeping, And trying hard to catch

An angle worm that raised his head, Above the pansy patch.

The other little robins Hopped gaily to their nests, And soon were cuddled snug and warm,

Beneath their mother's breast.

The wind grew cold and ruffled Wee Robin's feathers, all about. But still he kept on trying To get that worm pulled out.

The worm got free, the sun sank down, A dog began to bark,

Wee robin took a scared look round, "Oh dear!" he said—"it's dark."

Oh, how he wanted mother, He gave a frightened cheep— But mother did not hear him, For she was fast asleep!

A great, black cat came prowling

Along the garden wall, Her yellow eyes spied robin, Amongst the pansies small.

She made a spring but landed Right over robin's head, He—poor scared birdie, fluttered

Into the pansy bed.

Someone had left a bundle Of soft, sweet-smelling hay, Wee Robin crept beneath it, And stayed there until 'twas day.

Next morning Master Robin Flew up, upon a post, And when he saw his brothers, Oh!—how he did boast!

An Unexpected Ending to a Holiday

Going into the house, Bert picked up his father's stilt, pretended to examine them as though he was an expert at walking on stilts and wanted to be sure that they were in good condition.

Keith, Ted and Billy passed jibing remarks while his father and Grandma Craig sat watching to see what would happen.

Aunt Sue and Maud were deep in the mysteries of making buckwheat cakes, while Nora and May were flitting from room to room, upstairs and downstairs, to look at the flood from all its different angles.

Bert went out of the door carrying the stilts in his hand, his head tilted in a swaggering sort of way as though to say "Just you watch me."

bed until they dry. So my holiday is ended for today anyway."

"That's what you get for trying to show off, Smarty" his sister said.

"Show off yourself", muttered Bert, turning to face her. "Tut, tut, Laddie." Grandma Craig's voice sounded softly in his ear. "Come, away to bed, or you will be catching cold and have to stay longer than until your clothes are dry. I have your hot drink ready and will be right up to get your wet things."

Grumbling to himself about being hungry, and something about hot buckwheat cakes, Bert ran upstairs and disappeared into his room.

Bert Finds a Way

The family were seated at breakfast all talking excitedly. It was not just the proper thing to do, but then the children were talking amongst themselves and the older ones were discussing the situation at their side of the table. Maud was just saying "I am going to take Bert up some breakfast in a minute; he must be starving."

"I am!" Bert's voice sounded from the hall door just at her back.

A shout of laughter went up from the crowd around the table. A slim girl to all appearance, stood in the doorway. Bert had decided that he was not going to stay in bed if he could help it. Uncle Ned's clothing was quite too large for him, so what was he to do!

Sneaking into the clothes room he stood looking things over until he spied one of his grandmother's old-fashioned flounced dresses. Grandma Craig was a small woman. The dress just fitted Bert, or would have, if he had not put it on back to front!

"So Little Boy Blue has turned into a girl!" chuckled Uncle Ned. "Hey, Sissie, hey Sissie! Come and have some breakfast!" shouted young Ned. Grandma Craig laughed until the tears came. Bert looked so funny with the dress on back to front.

"Grandma's old party dress," said Maud in horror. She knew just how Grandma Craig valued that dress, and was afraid that Bert would damage it in some way. "Grandma," she said, "he shouldn't have touched it."

"Never mind, Dearie," the old lady said "he has not hurt it. Let him have his breakfast in it and I will get him another one after, if he wants, and this one he will put on right!"

Bert looked down at himself in surprise. "Put it on right?" he said.

"Why—what is the matter with this one? I think it looks just topping."

"With the lace hanging down your back and the pockets all in the back?" laughed Maud. "Why anyone would have known better than to put it on that way!"

"Oh, is that so!" Bert was getting peeved; "and why shouldn't the pockets be in the back? That's where a man's pockets are; even to the minister's. I saw our minister put his hand round under his coat and pull out his handkerchief quite often—so there!"

Seating himself at the table Bert started to help himself to buckwheat cakes. "Just a min-

Commanders Who Defied Mighty Power of Rome

Hannibal was a Carthaginian general, surnamed Barca (lightning) whose warlike conceptions were carried out by his greater son, Hannibal. Hannibal came into prominence in the sixteenth year of the First Punic war (247 B. C.). He landed in Sicily, near Panormus, and, seizing the stronghold of Erice, with a small band of mercenaries, he waged war for three years against Rome. In 242 he occupied Mount Eryx, and stood at bay against a Roman army. His master conception was to redress the loss of Sicily by creating in Spain an infantry capable of coping with Roman legions. Entering Spain in 237, he in nine years built up a new dominion; but in 228 he fell fighting against the Vettones. His son Hannibal was born in 247 B. C., and in his ninth year his father made him swear eternal enmity to Rome. In the Second Punic war Hannibal left New Carthage in 218 with 90,000 foot, 12,000 horse, and 57 elephants. He crossed the Pyrenees, gained the Rhone, defeated the Gauls, and crossed the Alps in fifteen days. His troops, reared in Africa and Spain, perished in thousands amid ice and snow. Remarkable achievements against Rome followed, with many victories and much slaughter, but at last Hannibal was weakened by his miserably cowering denying him necessary support. When the Romans demanded his surrender he took poison and died about 183 B. C.

50 Years Ago.

Friday June 1, 1883.

Members of the Agricultural Society are summoned to meet in the Town Hall, St. Andrews, to settle where the County Buildings will be located. It is indicated St. Andrews has the preference.

The Annual gathering of the Caledonian Society was held on the Lacrosse Grounds on the Queen's Birthday. Interest was manifest in the sports events, most particularly the Mile Race, in which L. C. Barron took the Fred. Cushing Medal. The Society's sports day was an unqualified success.

The Russian Czar was crowned on Sunday with brilliant ceremonies.

The sale of town lots on the Burroughs property is attracting interest, and a great many are expected to attend from Montreal and other places.

Mr. Jean Brisson has purchased the lot next to Mr. Thos. Bedard's, and is erecting a new building.

25 Years Ago.

Friday, May 29, 1908.

Rev. B. B. Brown will succeed Rev. E. Thomas as pastor of the Methodist Church.

Miss Emily Mackie, of Montreal, spent the holidays with her mother.

Mrs. Duncan McNaughton and three children, of North Bay, were visiting Mrs. W. McNaughton this week.

Fourteen persons were baptized last Sunday in the waters at the dam of Campbell's Mill, Dalesville.

The Town Council meeting was presided over by Mayor G. Hay, in the presence of Councilors Paquette, Ayers, Miller, MacKimmie, A. Raymond, A. D. McGibbon and J. A. McGibbon.

T. B. McCaulay, managing director of the Sun Life, together with Miss Esther McCaulay and Thos. R. Raitt, special agent for the Company at Toronto, were recent guests of Mr. J. W. Raitt, at Lake Louisa.

"How like his father he is." "It's the cold weather," explained the baby's mother. "Usually he looks quite cheerful".

"This is a wonderful suit I am wearing".

"It looks very ordinary." "But the wool came from Australia, English merchants sold it to a Scottish factory, it was woven in Saxony, made into a suit in Berlin—"

"Nothing wonderful about that."

"No, the wonder is that so many people can get a living out of something I have never paid for!"

ALL-BRAN STOPPED HIS SLEEPLESSNESS AND TIRED FEELING

Cereal Relieved His Constipation

Read this enthusiastic letter from Mr. Haraden:

"My system had been run down for quite some time. About three weeks ago, I started taking ALL-BRAN for breakfast. I had been unable to sleep nights, but now all I have to do is turn in, and before I know it, I am fast asleep."

"I used to have a tired feeling all day, but now that ALL-BRAN is in my home to stay, there will be no more tired feelings with me."—Mr. Carl Haraden (address furnished upon request).

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking pills and drugs—often harmful! Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

W. I. COUNTY CONVENTION

After listening to the Convenors' reports, one cannot help but feel that great many useful and interesting activities have been attempted and successfully carried out, which is an indication of the courage and unselfish efforts of the individual members, working in co-operation for the well-being of their several communities.

I am happy to see that we have so many visitors with us today. I trust at this time next year instead of being visitors you will all be full-fledged members. In the meantime we ask your sympathetic support for our various projects.

It is a matter of gratification to me to learn from Mrs. Kuhring that at the end of the year every branch reported work undertaken in every Department—Home Economics, Child Welfare & Public Health, Immigration, Canadianization and National Events, Canadian Industries, Legislation, Education & Better Schools, Agriculture and Publicity. This, I believe, constitutes a record and speaks for itself, showing as it does the great opportunity for service which the wide scope of our work affords.

I would like to urge every member of the Women's Institute to stand behind the County Health Unit. The tremendous advantages from its service to the children of this County, particularly in the rural districts, cannot be over-estimated. Evidences of the benefits derived from this worthy work are to be found on every hand already, and the future years are bound to show an improved health standard. Let every member do her part to make the mother's meetings, clinics, etc. the success they deserve. If your family does not need chest examination, immunization, or any of the services offered by the County Health Unit, there may be others in your vicinity who do, and each member is performing a real service to her Community by being a good publicity agent for the Unit, and doing her best to see that all in need of examination, etc. attend the various clinics. A member of the staff of the Health Unit told me that they know the districts where they will hold successful clinics, and that is usually where there is an active W. I. Infantile Mortality has been reduced 50% in this Province since establishment of the Health Units; 4000 babies have been saved.

During the year I have attended 4 executive meetings in Lachute, also the Convention and Executive meetings at Macdonald College last June, semi-annual and the Provincial Executive meeting in Montreal in January. The business resulting from these meetings has been placed before your Executive. I have asked each branch President to take up the matter of the branch becoming incorporated. So far as I know only one branch has taken any steps in this matter. I trust you will all give this your further attention, and that before long every branch will be able to report its incorporation.

In addition to the studies of the various branches of our work, may I suggest that you include music and literature in your programmes. These add to their attractiveness, and will tend to develop the artistic, as well as the practical side of life.

In reviewing the work of the County as a whole, the most important event carried out was, of course, the Handicraft Exhibition. The quality of the work shown was, if anything, of higher standard than that previously exhibited. The table of antiques created much interest, as did also the work of the disabled veterans. There was also a small but interesting exhibit from the Junior Red Cross of one of our schools. I take this opportunity of again thanking all those who gave so unstintingly of their time and energy or helped in any way to carry it through so successfully. It is only by the co-operation you have always shown that such undertakings are possible.

During the past few months every branch has been occupied preparing its programme for the coming year, with the result that for the first time we are to have a combined County Programme. When you see it I am sure you will feel rewarded for any extra trouble you may have had in preparing it and securing advertisements. A great deal of credit is due Mrs. Kuhring for its inception in this County, as she has worked very strenuously to put it through.

Another matter which has engaged our attention during the winter has been the ceremony in connection with the unveiling of the Cairns at Carillon and Grenville, which have been erected to commemorate the construction of the canals there. Most of you are aware that last Fall we, as a non-sectarian organization, were approached by the Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley, and invited to take charge of this ceremony, which is to be held on June 3rd. for the Historic Sites & Monuments Board of Canada. We considered this an honour and a tribute to the position which our organization occupies in this County. Arrangements for this celebration are now practically completed, and at this point I extend to you all a hearty invitation to attend that function, and trust our organization will be fully represented and that you will bring along as many friends as possible. 1,000 Programmes are being printed, so we expect a crowd!

I have endeavoured, by attending as many of your meetings as possible, and by personal contact, to become better acquainted with you all, and to more intelligently carry out my duties as President. I thank you for the many invitations received and for your unfailing kindness and hospitality. It has been a pleasure to meet with you and I feel I have made many new friends. Unfortunately force of circumstances made it quite impossible for me to accept all the invitations and I regret I was not able to visit Upper Lachute and Chatham branches. Living as I do at the opposite end of the County, a condition which made me hesitate to accept the office of President, weather and road conditions frequently interfere, and I must therefore ask your indulgence in what may have appeared to be my seeming negligence. For this reason I was unable to place the wreath on the cenotaph. This tribute however was ably carried out by Mrs. Bothwell. At this point I would like to express my sincere thanks to Mrs. J. E. Seale, who has so kindly given the use of her car and so freely of her own time, to make it possible for me and other members of the Morin Heights branch to meet with you from time to time.

To Mrs. Kuhring who has kept me so fully posted with all matters pertaining to Secretarial business, and for trying to keep me on the right track, I am most deeply indebted. I believe few of the members realise the tremendous amount of work she has accomplished during her term of office, and if the W. I. of this county is forging ahead, I think it is largely due to her untiring efforts on our behalf. I have invariably found her to be an energetic, efficient painstaking Secretary, always being the last person to leave a meeting, and carrying through to a successful conclusion any business which she undertakes.

Our motto is "For Home and Country", and naturally interest in our homes comes first, which is as it should be, for it is said the world needs good mothers more than it needs statesmen, poets, and professors, and that the best cure for what is the matter with the world today is in the home. A real democracy is a cluster of homes and a country with contented homes is at peace within and without. The home fosters the beginning of our existence. It moulds our lives during the most plastic period and from it radiates the spirit that gives form and character to all society. Make home a decent happy place and you have done something which you know will count. The home has the supreme responsibility of moulding the character of the little child. In later years other agencies share this responsibility but if the home does not do its duty through lack of knowledge, interest, or willingness to sacrifice if need be, then it must not look to anyone else to make up for its failure.

Women everywhere cannot help but be interested in the unprecedented action of President Roosevelt in appointing a woman, Mrs. Bryan Owen, daughter of the celebrated American Statesman, the late Mr. Jennings Bryan, as ambassador to Denmark. On her departure for Europe she gave a very interesting statement to the Press regarding the function of women in the eradication of war, which I quote: "I think women have a special function in one field, and that is in the building up of sentiment against war. This sentiment is a profoundly deep and fundamental thing that has not been really evaluated properly. All over the world, I think, the desire of women for peace is going to be an increasing factor in building up the mechanism for settling disputes by arbitration."

I feel that we women, through our organization, and the several important branches of its work, have a wonderful opportunity to make our homes the kind they should be, and I firmly believe that if we do our duty we will be contributing in no small degree in hastening the return of better and happier times.

STRANGE BUT TRUE— TAXPAYERS SEEK TAX INCREASE

You officials just won't believe that the millenium has not arrived—says the Virginia Municipal Review—but actually a group of taxpayers in Winchester, Va., are seeking an increase in license taxes and the petitioners pay the increase!

A petition of some of the larger milk dealers presented to the Winchester city council, asking that the license tax be increased from $1 to $10 for the privilege of selling the product, was so unusual and unprecedented that at a meeting last night the matter was referred back to a committee for further inquiry and investigation. It was said the milk dealers were willing to incur the increased tax rather than have the salary of the meat and milk inspector reduced, as had been proposed. It was also asserted that the increase petitioned for did not carry the indorsement of some of the smaller milk dealers.

ALDERMEN REGRET AFTER-DINNER SPEECHES

Two aldermen of Nottingham, Eng., have learned they cannot wax too bitter in after-dinner speeches against the Government unless they are prepared to back up their charges with proof.

Exercising an ancient privilege, the British Parliament referred to the committee on privileges speeches made by the two aldermen, who charged the parliamentary committee which considered a Nottingham bill was not "an impartial tribunal."

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald declared charges were serious "and those who made them should have an opportunity of either repeating them and justifying them or withdrawing them."

The committee reported back to the House it had received from the aldermen unconditional expressions of withdrawal and regret.

DEPRESSION IS LIFTING LOCALLY

In our neighbor's office the other day, we observed a card pinned to the wall, saying "Wasn't the depression terrible?" . . . Regarding the depression as a thing of the past, is conducive to a healthier outlook. But looking further afield than our neighbors' office, we feel there is good reason to conclude this section is certainly emerging from conditions of depression.

In Grenville, for instance, the Dansereau Lumber Mill is shipping a substantial order to England, comprising half a million feet of basswood logs for use in the manufacture of matches. This mill will re-open very shortly, giving employment to over fifty men.

The week's news from St. Andrews East informs us a new industry is locating near the C. N. R. Station.

This is a saw and grist mill operated by Labreche Bros. of Pointe Fortune, and the building is already in the course of construction.

In Lachute, moreover, we learn the local Ayers Limited Mills, although running slow in certain lines of production, are working to capacity on the output of cloths and tweeds. The firm made a bid for this market when the demand slackened in other lines of their products; this policy is now proving fruitful, and also beneficial to local labor. . . . In the Dominion Shuttle Company, it may be further mentioned, the erection of a new department is now in progress, in which a variety of ply cases will be manufactured to meet a current demand.

Altogether, the indications are encouraging. And although several businesses in the locality are still suffering from curtailed activity, we feel it is not premature to tighten the belt around deflated constitution and murmur, "Wasn't the depression terrible!"

The Italian Air Armada which is to fly from Italy to Chicago, is scheduled to arrive in Montreal in the latter part of June.

Wiley Post, who last year flew around the world, is to take off on another round-the-globe trip on June 20th. He will not be accompanied; an "automatic pilot" is to be used to fly the ship when he is in need of rest.

The Canadian Model Plane club had its final assembly and contest last week in Montreal. Plane flights and cups were donated as prizes.

Sir Hubert Wilkins is making preparations for a flight to the South Pole. Bert Balchen internationally known arctic pilot will be at the controls.

Canadian Airways' new twin-motored plane "Dragon" was demonstrated recently at St. Hubert field in Montreal. Aviation officials acclaimed the ship as being very economical and safe.

Fourteen countries on the European continent, expend, on a conservative reckoning, more than four millions sterling annually in direct subsidy to air transport lines.

A new air transport company has been organized at Fairbanks, Alaska.

The Ottawa Spotlight By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, May 23rd.—Here's the federal session at a glance! Passed a railway act ordering 'compulsory co-operation' between the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific, with safeguards against amalgamation. An 'arbitral tribunal' empowered to act as umpire in any disputes. Old C.N.R. directorate of 17 reduced to trustee board of five.

Approved a series of trade agreements reached at the Imperial Economic conference last August. Made far-reaching tariff changes affecting scores of millions in animal trade. Aimed at diverting trade to Empire Channels.

Ratified a new treaty with France, which automatically extends to 23 other countries.

Extended the ten-year charters of Canadian banks for one year.

Promised a royal commission to study currency and credit reform, and report on the advisability of a central bank.

Suspended the redemption of Dominion notes in gold, thus officially throwing Canada off the 'gold standard.'

'Axe and Tax' Budget

Approved a budget featured by further economies, new and heavier taxation and an attempt to recompense the exporter of farm products for his exchange losses on sales to Great Britain. Few tariff changes, mainly downward. Reported a deficit of $156,000,000, counting special expenditure and the shortage on Canadian National operation.

Served notice that after the end of the present fiscal year pensions of war veterans will be subject to income tax.

Withdrew from Civil Service Commission and placed under Minister of Justice appointments in the penitentiaries branch including superintendent guards, etc. Complaints voiced that patronage was being restored in large measure were voiced by opponents of bill.

Empowered Hon. E. N. Rhodes to go into the market and sell $750,000,000 of Canadian bonds, partly for revenue to meet deficits, partly to meet maturing issues, partly in an effort to reduce interest costs.

Carved the map of Canada into a jig-saw puzzle of somewhat different pattern than it was in 1923. Number of constituencies (245) remains same, but N. S. loses two seats, N. B. one, while B. C. gains two and Alta. gains one. Bitter political scrap with charges of 'gerrymandering' and 'hiving the Grits.' Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former minister of agriculture, created the chief sensation by jabbing into ribbons with his cane the map of Saskatchewan carefully prepared by political opponents, which eliminated his riding altogether.

More 'CanadaFirst' Medicine

U. S. shipping interests given what some papers call 'a dose of their own medicine' by amendments to the shipping act which reserves for British ships all Canadian coastwise and Great Lakes shipping between Canadian ports. Stoutly opposed by prairie members who fear higher freight rates if Canadian boats secure monopoly. Effect on U. S. trade negotiations feared.

Voted a maximum of $20,000,000 for federal share of unemployment relief. Government taking view that worst is passed, and that provinces and municipalities must gradually assume larger share of diminishing burden.

Voted supply of nearly $360,000,000 for ordinary expenses of government. Slightly lower

WHAT OTHER PEOPLE ARE DOING (Continued)

Japan has now captured about a thousand square miles of China and is agreeable to accept the Roosevelt message not to cross the boundary of another country. Of course that boundary is what she now holds, and she requires the new state which she has torn from the side of China to be recognized as Manchukuo. It all sounds very Fu Manchurish.

Italy some time ago advanced a plan, a four power pact to preserve the peace and security of Europe. It has been in abeyance for a considerable time owing to opposition by the Little Entente and the cold shoulder by France. Mussolini has now laid down a definite suggestion of an 80 per cent cut in war debts, and has become extra friendly with Hitler, and immediately his plan, which had been relegated to the dust heap is recovered and considered and in a fair way to become accepted. When Mr. Roosevelt issued his momentous message he very carefully avoided war debts. Congress wants its debts and before cancellation will be considered there is a long, long trail.

The operations of the great financial house of J. P. Morgan are under investigation, and now it is further announced that the late ambassador to Britain Mr. Andrew W. Mellon, reputed to be the richest man in the world, the man who as Secretary of the Treasury was charged with seeing that income-tax was not evaded, is himself to be examined to see that his own taxes were paid. It is but right. If the one law is meted out to the rich as well as the poor. Mr. Mellon has no kick coming. In connection with the same investigation Mr. Joseph W. Harriman, whose bank closure left thousands penniless had to be carried into court in a stretcher for arraignment. A short time later Harriman evaded his attendants at the nursing home where he was so dangerously ill, and left a note to say he was going to commit suicide, he is still going so far as evidence of his suicide is concerned. He has left a long roll of poor unfortunate depositors of the Harriman National Bank who have much more reason to contemplate suicide, owing to Harriman's misuse of the bank's funds.

Word has been received from the inimitable Jimmy Walker that he will seek vindication at the polls, the next mayoralty election in New York. The debonnaire Jimmy, the best dressed mayor N. Y. ever had, expects to be opposed by the man who drove him from the city Hall, Samuel Seabury. Judge Seabury has already refused his anti-Tammany friends to allow his name to go forward, but that's according to schedule, he will probably refuse again before he agrees to go forward. Against anti-Tammany unimpeachable and unquestioned ability, Tammany will throw Jimmy's undoubted popularity, and will probably discover that N. Y. loves him in December as it did in May.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McLeod, of Brownsburg, Que., announce the engagement of their youngest daughter Isabella Dorothy to Gordon Robert, second son of Mr. Robert Elliott, of Lachute, Que. The marriage will take place in June.

than total voted last year.

Held long inquiry into fluid milk production and sale, which found that farmer-producer is getting a diminishing and inequitable share of consumer's dollar, and that distributors were securing undue profits and paying unjustifiable salaries. Recommended tribunals to fix prices if necessary, new, enforceable contracts between producers and distributors, and a new and thorough inquiry into the whole problem of selling milk and milk products.

Pensions Machinery Changed

The elaborate pensions machine created in 1930 was simplified. The old tribunals were merged into an enlarged Board of Pensions Commissioners.

Debated reciprocity on a motion by Wm. Duff (Lib. Antigonish-Guysboro) which elicited from Premier Bennett the declaration that the government was ready and willing to talk freer trade with the U. S.

The Senate killed a government bill which would have reduced salaries of judges by one-third when they reached 75, whether they retired or not.

Debates included Beauharnois, departure gold standard, co-operative common wealth. Minor amendments to following: Grain Act, Customs Act, Criminal Code, Tariff Board, Radio Commission, Migratory Birds, and Indians Act.

Scottish Evangelist at Brownsburg

Rev. Bob Munro, the well known Scottish and Canadian Evangelist, is preaching to interested and increasing congregations every evening in Maple Avenue Baptist Church. His hearers have been impressed with the sane, constructive, scriptural presentation of his messages, and the entire absence of the buffoonery so frequently associated with evangelists.
Mr. Munro has a forceful and pleasing personality, his delivery is positive and convincing, the messages searching and sound. Pointed and piquant expressions deepen the interest of his addresses, while he preaches the Old Time Gospel, which he advocates and prefers before all other modern modifications.
Tonight and Friday his theme will be the "Life of Christ," which will be illustrated with 80 beautifully coloured lantern slides. Next Friday Mr. Munro has promised to give his lecture on "Life in the British Navy," where he served for three years

Lesson for June 4

JESUS FACES BETRAYAL AND DENIAL

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:10-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief; and he hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Isaiah 53:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and Peter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Supper.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty in Times of Testing.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fellowship of His Sufferings.

I. Judas' Bargain With the Chief Priests (vv. 10, 11).

This black crime was committed immediately following the beautiful act of devotion by Mary (John 12:1).

II. The Last Passover (vv. 12-25).

1. The preparation (vv. 12-16). In reply to the inquiry of the disciples as to where they should prepare the Passover for him, Jesus told them to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they should follow. In the house, to which they would be led, would be a guest chamber, a large upper room, where they should make ready the Passover.

2. The betrayal—announced (vv. 17-21). The betrayal was to be by one of the disciples who was eating with Jesus.

3. The sacrament of the bread and cup (vv. 22-25). These were symbols of his broken body and shed blood by which he made atonement for man's sins.

III. Jesus Foretells the Cowardice of the Disciples (vv. 26-31).

In spite of their turning from him, Jesus assured them that after his resurrection he would go before them into Galilee. Peter assured Jesus that he would not forsake him.

IV. The Agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32-42).

1. Jesus Christ's agony (vv. 32-34).

a. The place (v. 32). The Garden of Gethsemane, an enclosure containing olive and fig trees, beyond the brook Kidron, about three-fourths of a mile from Jerusalem. Gethsemane means olive press. Edersheim says it is an emblem of trial, distress, and agony.

b. His companions (v. 33). He took with him the eleven disciples, that as far as possible they might share his sorrow with him.

c. His great sorrow (v. 34). This is the same "cup" as in verse 36. It was not primarily the prospect of physical suffering that was crushing him; it was his suffering as a sin-bearer—his pure soul coming into contact with the awful sin and guilt of the world. God caused the iniquities of the world to strike upon Jesus (II Cor. 5:21; Isa. 53:6).

2. Jesus Christ praying (vv. 35-42).

a. The first prayer (vv. 35-38).

(1) His posture (v. 35). He fell on his face prostrate to the ground.

(2) His petition (v. 36). By the cup he meant his death on the cross. While it was grievous to endure the shame of the cross, he pressed on knowing that for this cause he had come into the world. (John 12:27, 28; cf. Heb. 2:14).

(3) His resignation (v. 36). He knew that his death on the cross was the will of God the Father, for he was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

(4) The disciples rebuked (v. 37). He singled out Peter, since he had been the most conspicuous in proclaiming his loyalty (John 13:38).

(5) Exhortation to the disciples (v. 38). He said, "Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation."

b. The second prayer (vv. 39, 40). He withdrew the second time and uttered the same words in prayer.

c. The third prayer (vv. 41, 42). He uttered the same words in his third prayer (Matt. 26:44). He now told the disciples to sleep on and take their rest as the hour had come for his betrayal.

V. The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus (vv. 43-65).

1. The sign to the mob (vv. 43-47). With the basest of hypocrisy Judas designated Jesus to the mob by a kiss, the token of love.

2. Jesus forsaken by all (vv. 48-52). One of the disciples attempted to defend Jesus by resorting to the sword (Matt. 26:51). At Jesus' rebuke for this act the disciples all fled.

VI. Peter Denies the Lord (vv. 66-72).

His failure was due to:

1. Boasting self-confidence (vv. 29-31).

2. Lack of watchfulness (v. 37).

3. Neglect of prayer (v. 38).

4. Service in the energy of the flesh (v. 47).

5. Following Jesus afar off (v. 64).

6. Seeking company among the Lord's enemies (v. 67).

A Song in Your Heart

"If you are in the place where God wants you to be, he will put a song in your heart; Paul and Silas were singing in the prison at Philippi because they were doing God's will.—A. Lindsay Glegg.

NUTRITION KNOWLEDGE IS NEEDED

When doctors are as thoroughly trained in the food we should eat as they are in the drugs they prescribe, it will be better for us all. It is not the doctors' fault that they do not know; they did not get the training in their Medical Schools. I have had doctors tell me that the only work in Nutrition they got was their Pediatrics. Now, it is very necessary to know how to feed children, but adults have to eat too. Medical schools now include training in Nutrition.

A few months ago, a friend of mine went to a very well-known specialist. She had been feeling wretched, full of aches and pains and no pep at all. He told her that she had nothing organically wrong, but was run down and very thin. Her chief need was more poundage. She was to get lots of sleep and eat plenty of good nourishing food. That was the cure. She phoned to me in bewilderment. As far as she knew, she had been eating plenty of good nourishing food. She wanted to know if I could tell her what to do. I mapped out a course of eating for her, which she followed intelligently and gained satisfactorily. Now that doctor recognized what she needed but did not recognize that she needed help in getting it. Had it been a drug, he would have prescribed it. Was he unable, or did he just not bother to prescribe a diet? She is cured and the doctor takes the credit—and the money.

PREVALENCE OF STOMACH ULCERS

Stomach or intestinal ulcers are found usually in thin persons who are inclined to be nervous and men have them more frequently than women. The strain of the last few years has tended to increase the number of stomach ulcers.

If you have indigestion of a regular type, that is coming at a regular time, usually a certain length of time before or after meals, do not dismiss it as just an annoying attack of indigestion, but visit a doctor, preferably one who has x-ray facilities. The trouble with an ulcer is that it is not continuous. The patient recovers for a while and is apparently better than ever and suspicion is allayed. Very often the length of time between attacks is regular, so do be careful if you have indigestion at stated intervals. Stomach ulcers are treated almost entirely by diet and anyone having this condition should be under the care of a reliable doctor. Indigestion should not be considered carelessly and doctored by home-remedies unless the cause is obviously from unwise eating.

THOSE HIGH NECKS

If you are not thin and under thirty, do be careful of the neckline of your new clothes. Many of the neck-lines this season are very unbecoming as they add apparent size to the neck and make it look almost goiterous. They add years to the looks of ever so many women. One of my friends, who is thirtyish but is fortyish in her new Spring outfit. All due to an unbecomingly looks twentyish seems to ing neck-line. Slight women can sometimes wear them to advantage but they are most becoming to the young. As a matter of fact, most anything is becoming when you are young.

A CHANGE OF FLAVOR

At this time of year, meat sometimes palls on the appetite. To give a change of flavour to your steak, when it is partly cooked spread a little chilli-sauce or catsup over it, turn and brown. Then spread the top side and brown it. The gravy is delicious, too. Never let steak fry in fat but use only enough to prevent the steak sticking to the pan, then pour off the fat as it accumulates in the pan.

SCALLOPED EGGS AND SHRIMP

4 hard-cooked eggs
1 can shrimps
1/2 cup buttered crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
Dash of pepper

Remove the black line in the shrimps and cut in pieces. Chop the hard-cooked egg coarsely. Make a white sauce of the 5 last ingredients and add shrimps and eggs. Pour into a greased baking dish and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes or until crumbs are browned. To butter crumbs, melt butter in a small saucepan and stir in crumbs. I use at least a tablespoon of butter, the quantity being governed chiefly by the price of butter—the larger the amount of butter, the better the crumbs. Buttered crumbs are much nicer topping to any scalloped dish than to just dot the crumbs with butter as so many do.

MARGUERITES

4 tablespoons butter
1 cup sugar
2-3 cup milk
1 egg
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter and sugar thoroughly adding sugar a little at a time. Add well beaten egg. Sift baking powder, salt and flour, and add alternately with the milk, starting and ending with the dry ingredients. Add vanilla and mix well. Bake in greased muffin tins in a moderately hot oven of 375 degrees. Just before serving cut a round from the top of each cake and fill the cavity with sweetened and flavored whipped cream. Replace the cut out round so that there is a ring of whipped cream showing.

Here and There

What is probably the world's farthest north golf course is located at Chesterfield Inlet on the northern shores of Hudson Bay in latitude 67. There are only four members and the fee which entitles the player to life membership, is ten polar bear teeth.

An increase of over half a million head in the number of cattle on farms is recorded in a report on livestock in Canada for 1932, just issued by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics, with 8,511,100 head, compared with 7,991,000 in 1931.

The eye operation on His Majesty King Prajadhipok, of Siam, in the summer of 1931 in the United States, has been so successful that there will be no need of a further operation, according to Dr. Vidhivaji, public health director of Bangkok, who came to Vancouver recently aboard Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan.

A duck hunt in the once private lake of the Chinese Emperors in the Forbidden City of Peking with a Chinese general as host and armed soldiers as guides was the experience described by the Earl of Ossory on his arrival at Vancouver recently in the Empress of Japan from a seven-month tour of China.

Paradise Valley, east of Lake Louise, in the Canadian Rockies, is the site selected for this year's summer camp of the Alpine Club of Canada from July 18 to 31. Some of the most spectacular scenery in this region will be covered by the club—including the unclimbed peak of Mount Eiffel, in the shadow of which their camp will be pitched.

Close on 250,000 people viewed the crack London, Midland and Scottish flyer the "Royal Scot" on its way to the Chicago World Fair, as it passed through Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton over Canadian Pacific lines. Re-assembled at the C. P. R. Angus Shops after landing from the fast freighter Beaverdale, the Royal Scot passed through eastern Canada in a veritable triumph.

Inaugurating what Canadian railway officials believe will be one of the greatest rail travel movements in the history of the country, C. P. Riddell, chairman, Canadian Passenger Association, announces that commencing this month and extending into June, Canadian railways will establish a rate of one cent a mile for coach travel between points in eastern and western Canada and return. This constitutes an all-time low in Canadian passenger fares, and sales commence from western Canada May 26 up to and including June 8, and from eastern Canada May 31 up to and including June 15.

Three out of five Strathcona Memorial Fellowships in transportation given annually by the graduate school of Yale University have been awarded to Canadian Pacific Railway employees or sons of employees. There was a total of 80 applicants for these fellowships. The three C. P. R. awards were to S. M. Gossage, stenographer in the office of the general manager, eastern lines; P. E. Savage, son of J. K. Savage, general superintendent, Quebec district; and Robert A. Emerson, son of B. H. Emerson, agent at Morden, Manitoba.

Hard to Get Agreement on Dangers of Hunting

Leopards are one of the five most dangerous of African game animals. The other four are the rhinoceros, the elephant, the buffalo and the lion. The five animals are considered so dangerous because of the number of men who have been killed while hunting them. Which of the five is the most dangerous is a question. Each hunter has his own opinion, and that opinion is based upon the circumstances under which he has encountered the beast in question. For instance, a hunter who crawls into some patch of thick bush after a wounded buffalo and suddenly finds himself being charged while on all fours, is apt to get such a thrill of excitement that he will ever after place the buffalo at the top of all dangerous animals. This same hunter may later on shoot an elephant in more or less open country where he is in no great danger. So it happens that the man who has been charged by a buffalo while in a tricky position and the man who has been so charged by an elephant never, never will agree as to which of the two is the more dangerous to hunt.

The Lachute and Lake Louisa Slide Company

Editorial from The Watchman of 50 Years Ago.
November, 1882.

There is now under organization a company with the above
title, whose object is to make a slide for the purpose of running cord-wood, saw logs, building timber, etc., from Lake Louisa to Lachute. The line has been partially surveyed, so as to prove to the promoters that no engineering difficulties exist to prevent the slide being built at a reasonable cost and maintained
so as to yield a fair remuneration to those who put their money into the undertaking.

This project owes its origin,
we understand, to Mr. John Newton, whose energy has been characterized by indomitable perseverance in getting a survey
made and a written agreement
from the landed proprietors for the right of way, under very favorable circumstances.

The distance from West River,
at Lachute, to Lake Louisa, is said to be less than ten miles.
There is abundant fall, so as to create a steady and swift current, with curves which will not be too short to impede the transit of any material intended to

TICKETED TROUSERS!

A student had been spending freely and was short of cash.
It was near the holidays, and he hated to write home for money.
As a last resort he pawned his dress suit.

When the time came to leave for home, the suit was still un-redeemed. He hurriedly scraped together enough cash to get it back, packed it in his bag,
and was off.

At home his mother was helping him unpack.

'Henry,' she asked, 'what is this ticket on your coat for?'

'Why Mother' he replied, 'I went to a dance the other evening and that's the cloakroom ticket.'

She continued putting away
his clothes. Finally she lifted the trousers. They too, were ticketed.

'Henry,' she exclaimed, 'what kind of a dance was that?'

be floated down. The water in Lake Louisa is ample for all purposes, so as not to interfere with vested rights by drawing off a sufficient quantity for the slide.
The lake is some four miles long
by two miles wide, and at a distance of three miles north-east is situated Rainbow Lake, of a larger size, besides numerous smaller lakes to be used for the purpose of supply if required;
but it is generally conceded the waters of Lake Louisa alone will be more than sufficient. A dam has already been built at the outlet of Lake Louisa, and the water raised about two feet, which will probably be sufficient of itself for the small stream required without any other dam,
as the slide will not be used except for a short season each year. If necessary, a dam can be built at Rainbow Lake, but it is not likely to be needed.

The quantity of wood in the vicinity of these lakes is immense. The great unbroken forests stand thick with all kinds of wood suitable for saw logs, building timber, railway ties, cordwood, fencing materials, etc., and the object of this Company is one which deserves
the consideration of capitalists who want a good investment for their money.

It is estimated that 25,000
saw logs per annum could be floated down to Lachute at cost of ten cents per log, making an income of $2,500. 25,000 cords of wood at 25c. per cord, would make $6,250. One million feet of sawed lumber at 50c. a thousand, would be $500; and other material amounting to $2,500
would yield an annual income of $11,750; while the labor of putting into the slide and taking from it would develop upon those who used it, the Company only having to keep the slide in order.

This business is by no means a fanciful one. It is one that can be realized, and it is actually small when compared with slides operating in some other places. The capital, we understand, is to be $50,000, divided into shares of $11 each. Quite a large amount of shares has been promised. It is estimated the slide will not cost over $30,- 000, but the Company contemplate the purchase of a large tract of wild lands skirting the lakes and streams contiguous to the slide, and the possible requirements of extending the slide further into the interior if desired in after years.

The advantage of this slide to Lachute will be almost equal to a railroad, while its cost will be less than one fourth. We commend the scheme to the careful consideration of the public, as one that will open up a great industry and bring the wealth of our forests within easy reach of the people at Lachute and the railway.

AN ICE BOX GARDEN

A novel way of disposing of the drip from the refrigerator came to my notice one day, when a friend of mine invited me to inspect his ice-box garden. And this is what I saw: A long narrow bed, flanked on one side by the foundation wall of the house itself, and bordered by irregular chunks of lichen covered granite. Within the bed grew ferns feathery tree ferns, delicate maidenhair and common sword
ferns, their lush green expanse broken here and there by bright coloured Impatiens flowers. At one end of the bed stood a rough granite boulder, a thin trickle
of water oozing down its face
and dripping slowly into a dark little pool at its foot. The source of the water puzzled me, apparently it sprung from some velvety green moss that clung tenaciously to the top of the rock.

All in all, it was a most fascinating little fern garden, and I complimented my friend on its artistic appearance. But I could not understand why he had called it an ice-box garden.

He told me, laughingly, that he had been warned against letting his ice-box drain under the house, and that, as he was born lazy and hated the idea of emptying a drip pan each day, he had constructed a drain to the outside of the house by means of a funnel to catch the drip, and some copper tubing which ran through a vent hole in the foundation of the house and was so bent that it ran up the back of the rock and hooked itself permanently over the top. Sticky clay mixed with leaf-mould was plastered on the top of the boulder
thus forming a base for the moss, which, when planted, effectively concealed the end of tubing.

Inasmuch as he had literally built the fern garden around the drain and as the drain furnished water for the rock and pool, he felt entitled, he said, to call the entire bed his ice-box garden.

This seemed to me to be an efficient means of disposing of ice-box drip, for the water that does not evaporate on the stone
and in the pool, keeps the fern bed sufficiently moist throughout the entire season.

ute, Bert," his father said laughingly. "Your costume is not quite finished." Going to the pantry door he took one of Aunt Sue's big aprons from the peg
and tied it around Bert's neck, bib fashion. "Most Ladies wear aprons, you know, and besides
we cannot have you spoiling Grandma's party dress. She might want it to wear to a dance tonight." This was more than Bert bargained for, but he submitted quietly enough, realizing that he might spill something on the dress before he was through breakfast.

"Baby Bye, here is a fly, come let us catch him, you and I," his sister sang mischievously, adding "How sweet our baby looks this morning with his nice clean face and his wee curls".

Bert's hair had a fashion of curling when it got wet, much to his disgust. He thought curly hair in boys was a terrible disgrace, and he flashed such an angry look at May that she stopped at once. Bert could think of the most annoying ways to get even with anyone who vexed him.

That, of course, is not right,
children. We should never try to "get even" with people who have harmed us. In trying to take advantage we really do not get even, as if we do play a mean trick to pay them back, it makes us so uncomfortable that instead of being "even" we feel worse than before.

Nora had asked to be excused from the table; she wanted to see if there was anything unusual floating down the river.
She and May had been so interested in what they saw before breakfast that they almost hated to leave the window. They had seen old dead stumps floating by, their long crooked roots sticking up in the air as though imploping aid; pieces of board, shingles, lathes, and so many other things that they did not recognize.

She had not been at the window very long until they heard her exclaim "Oh!—oh! there is a log coming down the river, with something white on it. I think it is a baby, with a red ribbon on its hair. See that red spot, Uncle Dick." Her Uncle Dick had been the first to reach her.

Next week, children we will find out what was on the log.

—Lovingly,
Aunt Jean.

Canada at the Chicago Fair

Visitors to the Canadian Exhibit at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago will not soon forget the huge map of Canada in color forming the background for the wealth of colored dioramas, models of ships and trains, mounted game animals and representative products which constitute the exhibition. This map is the world's largest map of Canada, measuring 30 by 130 feet. It was finished by ten Canadian artists in 14 days. It contains nearly 500 yards of cotton or which 75 pounds of whitening was used as a foundation for the 750 pounds of mineral color to follow. Then women, two men and four machines were needed to sew the cotton fabric which had to be purchased at the last minute, and was secured with extreme difficulty. Late in April it was decided that the Dominion Government, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways should jointly participate in exhibiting Canadian products and publicizing the country's resources and attractions for tourists, sportsmen and vacationists.

The problem of duplicating the map of Canada on a scale never before attempted, was attacked without delay. Mistakes were made but were noticed in time and as the work progressed, the enthusiasm of the artists increased. The map completed and rolled from the edges towards the centre on two massive rollers, had to be on the train and on its way to Chicago in just 14 days from the time work actually started.

To facilitate matters, a five-flat staging was erected on which seven or eight artists worked simultaneously, deepening the color of the Arctic Ocean and far below painting in the railway running from Detroit to Chicago or lettering lake Erie. By this means rapid progress was made and from as far back as he could go the director of the work watched with a critical eye before returning to make comments, issue orders or take a hand in the work himself.

This great creative bit of work will to a great extent reflect the impressive size of Canada itself and will be framed and floodlighted so that every part of it may be easily studied.

Much of the work was of a detailed nature that demanded fine brush work as well as speed. Dozens of government and railway maps had to be constantly consulted and a general scale worked out while keeping perspective. It was found impossible to accurately scale a map of such a size in such a small period as two weeks and have it ready for shipment, so a general scale was adopted of from one and a half to two miles inch.

In the floor show as the artists call it, are found dioramas in color representing choice vacation spots in Canada and places in foreign lands served by the two travel systems represented. A model of the Canadian Pacific Steamship's crack

Atlantic and world cruise liner the Empress of Britain, thirty feet long in gleaming white with the well-known blue line and tan funnels and one of the Canadian National's crack Montreal to Chicago flyers, the Intercolonial Limited with seven cars in perspective drawn by a huge 1100 locomotive will be supported by smaller ship and engine models. Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies and the City of Quebec will be shown in two larger dioramas which under the influence of special lighting and color are outstanding examples of the scene-painters craft.

Two dioramas of lesser size of Jasper and Banff National Parks will be supported by sixteen smaller but equally beautiful and impressive scenes of Canadian vacation spots, summer camps, sporting activities as well as scenes and ports reached by the companies' liners including London, Paris, the West Indies, South America, the Pyramids, the Taj Mahal, Fujiyama and the Japanese Inland Sea, Diamond Head at Honolulu and Rotorua in New Zealand. Special exhibits arranged by the Department of Trade and Commerce and other branches of the Canadian Government will feature Canada's wealth of natural resources, its industrial opportunities and its position in the world of Commerce.

An information booth centrally located in the exhibit space will issue literature and supply information. Four Royal Canadian Mounted Police as well as a competent staff will be in attendance and a reception room has been added for the convenience of visiting notables.

It will be impossible for visitors to pass the Canadian exhibit without being impressed with the dignity and attractiveness of the display. The huge map will be reproduced in miniature on the cover of booklets, visitors may wish to keep. The word "Canada" in huge letters will be surmounted by the Canadian coat of arms in color.

Pan's Pipes in Pyrenees

Almost in any of the mountain towns between Biarritz and Andorra in the Pyrenees of southern France, you may be awakened in the morning, and soon after dawn, too, by the piping of the goatherds. On homemade pipes, a lad and a maid will announce their arrival in the street, and the housewives will come to every door with crock or heavy brass pitcher, into which the goatherds milk their charges. It is certified milk of a kind unknown in the milk markets of the West, but prized in the Pyrenees as in many other sections of Europe. Southern France simply makes the milk man musical in addition to useful.

Time Sky Lark's Song

Nature Magazine published the following reference to the length of the song of the wonderful British skylark. "There have been many opinions expressed as to the length of time occupied by the song of a skylark. Opinions would have been fewer and more consistent had each observer taken the trouble to time more than a thousand songs, as Noble Rollin did before writing a short paper on the subject. Variations in length occur according to the time of day, the month of the year, and the idiosyncrasy of the birds themselves, so that the range runs from one to 19 minutes. But the average length was only 2:22 minutes."
