Smart Arrest by Provincial Constable at Hawkesbury

Due to the smart work of Provincial Police Constable L. McClure of Hawkesbury, Geo. Beauchemin of Montreal, appeared in the Hawkesbury Police Court charged on two counts of being in possession of liquor illegally and the other of having liquor of illegal manufacture. Both cases were remanded. According to information received by the Vankleek Hill Review, the constable while standing outside a Hawkesbury Service Station had noticed a Quebec car which appeared to be overweighted in the rear end and, as there was no occupant in the back seat, the officer rightly concluded that something was wrong. He gave chase and when he overtook the car near L'Orignal, one occupant of the car jumped out and made his way across the fields. On examining the auto, the officer found that it had been specially

Local Tap Dancers in City Vaudeville

Two young men of Lachute Mills, Ben Maiden and Fred Stansfield, have become familiar to local concert-goers in their skilled tap-dancing acts, having generously lent their services wherever requested in entertainments around Lachute and the County. It is learned that Ben and Fred appeared in the professional class for the first time last Friday, doing their act before an appreciative audience at the Orpheum Theatre, Montreal. It is known these young men have persevered and practised in the art of tap-dancing, and if they see fit to follow this pursuit in a more lucrative way, many friends in Lachute will wish them success.

fitted out as a liquor transport and in special compartments in the car were found 44 gallons of alcohol and 120 bottles of liquor.

Child Succumbs to Rabies at Greece's Point

Bitten by Dog last April

Last April, a dog unmistakably in an advanced state of rabies passed through Greece's Point and attacked and bit a boy of nine, son of Mr. Donat Dupuis. The child was immediately taken to Dr. Smith's Hospital at Hawkesbury where he submitted to Pasteur treatment. He was apparently quite in his usual health until Monday of last week when he became ill and although Dr. Smith who was summoned could at first discover no symptoms of rabies his condition steadily became worse, and after a few days unmistakable signs of the dread disease developed, until Friday morning last when death ended his sufferings and brought relief to the family and friends, who had assisted at his bedside with grief and horror. This is the first authentic case of rabies in a human being, known to this locality in the memory of anyone now living, and it is earnestly hoped it will be the last. It should be a warning to those persons who insist on keeping so many useless animals which are a public menace.

Flowers For Needy City Homes

Arrangements for Summer Shipments

Regular distribution of flowers to distressed homes in Montreal started this week, and it is advised that anyone wishing to send flowers from this district should communicate with Mr. I. Holland, Box 224, Lachute, who during the sickness of Mrs. Masiah has kindly consented to look after the work. First shipment from Lachute will be made on July 7th., (Friday) 10.30 a.m., to continue each week following in place of Tuesday as during last year.

Contributors may bring or send flowers to the C. P. R. Station where Mr. Holland will look after shipment.

Traffic Cop Has Motor-Cycle Stolen

During Sunday night the motor cycle of Albert Legault, local traffic constable, was stolen from the garage adjoining his residence at Brownsburg. Two men were seen pushing a machine along Beaver-board Ave., and later they were observed by Constable Gagne, driving eastward through Lachute. There was nothing, however, to arouse suspicion in their appearance.

The motor cycle was found next day, after extensive enquiries; it was abandoned in a montee off the highway between Ste. Therese and Montreal. The licence plate was obscured with a piece of paper, but the machine was undamaged.

Honor Inventor of Kerosene Oil

Obelisk to be Erected on Grave Unmarked for 69 Years

In an unmarked grave at Camp Hill Cemetery, Halifax, lies Dr. Abraham Gesner, the man who gave the world kerosene oil.

One of the world's greatest industries and some of the greatest fortunes were founded on his invention, but the modest Nova Scotian scientist received meagre returns. He died in 1864 and none thought to recognize his achievements until W. H. Piers, curator of the Nova Scotia Museum, called attention to the unmarked grave.

Now the directors of Imperial Oil Company have donated toward a suitable monument and it is expected to be erected soon. The monument will take the form of an obelisk of Nova Scotia granite about seven or eight feet high with an inscription of his achievements.

Ninety Girl Guides Entrained for Camp at Morin Heights

Monday saw the opening of the Girl Guides' camp at Morin Heights, when 90 Guides and officers left Montreal to spend two weeks in this tented vacation resort. The camp will be open for eight weeks. Various Guide activities will be carried on. Swimming and boating are major interests, and it is said that a girl seldom leaves the camp without having learned to swim.

The party which journeyed to Morin last Monday includes eighty Guides divided into four groups, each party of twenty girls being in charge of a qualified camper and assistants. In charge of the whole camp is a central staff, with Miss Colling, of "Elmwood," Ottawa, as commandant; Miss Esther Lewis, a graduate of the Montreal General Hospital, nurse, who is also in charge of "quartermastering." Miss Joyce Hartnell, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, in charge of swimming.

County Scouts and Guides Held Rally in Lachute

(Owing to misunderstanding, an event of considerable interest which should have been reported in these columns, was omitted from last week's issue. Particulars are published herewith.)

On Sunday, June 25th., Lachute was the centre of an auspicious gathering of County Scout, Rover, Girl Guide, and Cub groups, and a large number of citizens turned out to participate in the "Church Parade" and open air service which is becoming a recognized observance among local Scouts and Guides.

The County was well represented, indicating a lively enthusiasm in these parts for a worldwide and worthy organization. Groups were present from Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East, Arundel, Weir, Grenville and Harrington East.

The Lachute Town Band graciously lent their presence and assistance in the event. Led by the band, the boys and girls marched from the C. P. station to the local High School grounds where a considerable crowd had already gathered.

The afternoon's proceedings opened with flag raising by the Lachute troop and the singing of the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past," after which the

Lachute Town Council Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of above Council was held on Wednesday evening with Mayor A. Larocque presiding over the board comprising Ald. Jno. A. Rice, H. Lamarche, R. Ledoux, E. Legault, O. Laurin, G. Raymond, C. R. Miller, Jos. Speight and J. P. MacKimmie.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed, accounts presented by Finance Committee and payments ordered.

Moved by G. Raymond, seconded by H. Lamarche that John McFaul, L. C. Barron and Louis Lafleur be given notice to build a sidewalk on west side of Barron Avenue from Grace St. to Boulevard Bedard within 15 days, after which said sidewalk will be built by the Town and charged to interested parties.

Moved by Jno. A. Rice, seconded by G. Raymond that the Argenteuil Agricultural Society be granted the sum of $125 for 1933 Fair.

Moved by G. Raymond, seconded by C. R. Miller that all ratepayers in arrears of taxes are given notice that same must be paid within 15 days or they will be given in for collection.

On motion of C. R. Miller, seconded by Omer Laurin the secretary was instructed to make a complete report of wood bought, sold and given away, together with all names etc.

Thirty-two of the German warships sunk at Scapa Flow have been salvaged at a loss of $100,000 because of the slump in prices of scrap iron and copper. Ten vessels still remain at the bottom, but, in view of this experience, are likely to remain there.

St. Jerome Man Drowned Near Shawbridge

Among 12 week-end fatalities reported in the Montreal district, a drowning fatality occurred in the North River near Shawbridge last Sunday evening. Robt. Frederic Hadgrast, 37 years of age, an employee of the Dominion Rubber Company's plant, lost his life in a boating mishap at Prevost, a village not far distant from Shawbridge. The body was recovered two and a half hours later but artificial respiration proved futile. A jury under Dr. Ludger Labelle, coroner of the Terrebonne district, returned a verdict of "accidental death by drowning."

Two Men Sought After Hawkesbury Accident

Two men disappeared in the bush near Hawkesbury last week-end, supposedly making their way to the highway to flag a car and summon aid after a crash. Their abandoned car was later identified as a machine stolen from St. Thomas, Ont. The victim of the collision is Miss Ila Balharrie of Ottawa, who received deep head injuries when her car was sideswiped by the wanted men. Police gave out the names of the pair as Walter Williams, a mulatto, and George E. Thompson.

Ontario traffic police are under orders to prosecute in cases of automobiles driven at night with only one headlight.

Strawberry Festival At Grenville

The Grenville Strawberry Festival in the Rectory Grounds met with misfortune this year, the event being set for Friday, the day of the heavy rain. However, it was postponed until the next day, and turned out to be a decided success. A large number of people were present and the receipts exceeded expectations. What is equally important the entire gathering appeared to enjoy themselves. The following people assisted at the various stalls:— Strawberry, Ice Cream, etc. Mrs. R. B. White, Mrs. R. Mathew, Mrs. Roy, Miss P. Dawson, and Mrs. Fitzgerald. Waitresses, the Misses Melba and Hazel Crooks, Enid Rayson Alma Waite. Home Cooking Miss Morrow. Candy, Miss J. Williamson and Mrs. John Stewart. Bingo, Messrs. A. Clarke, J. Hampton, Grant Pridham and Mrs. Pridham. Soft Drinks, Mr. R. Mathew. Fish pond, the Misses K. Bradshaw and M. Jowett. Dolls, Messrs. At the close of the evening a short programme was rendered by Mrs. John Stewart, Mrs. Robert Keatley, the Girl's Quartette, Mr. W. Skelcher, and the Choir.

Development Spectacular

"Our development since that first birthday has been spectacular. We hope it has also been sound. We have emphasized federal unity, but not at the expense of provincial rights. We have become a self-governing political entity, and international unit in our own right, but without forfeiting our place in the British Empire or weakening our association through a common Sovereign with the other states of that Empire. We have forged ahead in material advance, but without, we hope, forgetting that the greatness of a people must be based on more solid foundations than trade returns and crop bulletins.

"If we had ever been in danger of succumbing to the conceits of youth and good fortune, our experience in combating, along with the other nations of the world, the forces of depression during the last four years has minimized that danger.

"We know now that we are only one among many interdependent states; that though our fields may be rich in wheat, our rocks seamed with minerals, and our waters teeming with fish, we cannot detach our economic fortunes from the prosperity or adversity of others.

"We know also that if co-operation is essential internationally it is even more essential nationally; that class must work with class; factory with farm, producer with distributor, if our institutions, economic and political, are to be of that service to the people which alone justifies their existence."

Sir George Perley Gives Sage Counsel to Canadians

Dominion Day Message Broadcast in National Hook-up Lessons of Depression Years Emphasized

"The storm clouds are breaking," said Sir George Perley, acting Prime Minister, in a Dominion Day message to the Canadian people broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up.

"On this Dominion Day," he said, "I think we can say truthfully the storm clouds are breaking. But as we come out of the shadows, with our national unity and our political stability unimpaired, with our confidence in our own destiny undimmed, and with our determination to achieve that destiny as strong as ever, we must not forget there can be no true prosperity, individual or national, which is not based on the homely but eternal virtues of thrift and industry, courage and integrity."

"We are celebrating today the 66th anniversary of the Confederation of the British North American Colonies, which took place on July 1, 1867, the birthday of our Dominion. This was an event not only of vital importance to our own people but also of significance to the world at large. For it was a daring adventure in political organization; an effort to apply the federal principle, in such a way as to reconcile unity and liberty, to a group of colonies inhabited by peoples of different races and with different governmental traditions.

"The wisdom and courage of the Fathers of Confederation has been justified in the development of those scattered and unimportant colonies into the present Dominion of Canada; a state extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the 49th. Parallel to the North Pole; with a population of over 10,000,000 people and with achievements in peace and in war which give it a distinctive place in the assembly of the nations.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

"IN AND OUT OF THINGS"

Dear Boys :

The other day I was talking to a small boy about what he did out of school, and with a great deal of pride he said: "Ever so many things", after which he told me them one by one. The list grew longer and longer until my youthful orator had to stop for want of breath, concluding with "Well, that is a lot when you come to think of it?" I did come to think of it later on, and put my young friend down as a fellow who spent most of his time "In and out of things."

Now it is a good thing to have plenty of interests in life, for we all know that the chap with but one or two ideas in his head is hardly likely to make much progress, yet on the other hand there is the very real danger of inconsistency of action, and this each one of us has to fight against, and at times very hard indeed. Never leave a job, half finished, and if you start out on anything try and do your best to complete it, or at any rate give the subject all the attention it deserves.

If your mind is occupied with too many interests at one time, some of them are bound to be a failure; and that, as you know, means discouragement and unhappiness. This you can prevent by tackling one thing at a time and when that has been dealt with you are free to give on to the next.

This is a good system to work on, in your school life and in vacation time.

A ball player was found fault with by his companions for the very bad showing he made. Do you know what his excuse was?

"I was thinking about something else."

You must do one thing at a time if you want that thing to be the best you are capable of.

So try your hardest not to be an "In and Out boy," and you will find happiness.

"It's often hard to know just what to do; But think before hand what you contemplate.

Then stick it hard and see you carry through Your action rightly, so you don't create

A state of mind o'erflowing with ideas That banish joy and give full scope to fears."

Your affectionate friend,
THE CAPTAIN.

Chapter 23.

With the farm house in sight the boys' first drive on Canadian soil was drawing to a close. It had been interesting indeed, but in many ways uncomfortable, for the accommodation provided for the travellers was of the scantiest and decidedly uncomfortable. The whole appearance of the cart with its two unkempt-looking horses caused Walter, more than once during the journey, to exclaim:

"It's the most rotten thing I have ever driven in!"

"You can get out and walk," replied Tom Dickson with some severity, "though, I think that before you have been here very long you'll be only too pleased for the chance you now possess, of saving your legs."

So Walter, feeling not a little ashamed of himself at the rebuke, held on tightly, hoping it would not be long before they reached their destination.

With Edgar, however, the experience took upon itself a different outlook. Intensely interested in all the active life, so strange did it appear to him, he would not have minded if the journey had been ten times more difficult. Eagerly he had seated himself by the dark-skinned driver and bombarded him with questions on every subject he could think of, beginning of course with the request "What is your name?"

It was not until they were fully on their way that the Indian consented to even notice the youngster seated by his side, and then it was only to give a word of caution. "The road we travel on is bad, so perhaps the young pale face will be wise and hold on tight with his hands." This advice was timely, for every now and again the wheels, one or other of them, settled down into a deep rut and so suddenly that the occupants were nearly thrown out of the vehicle.

On recovering himself from one of these shocks the boy again requested to know the name of his companion.

"Which one?" came the astonishing reply.

"Why, the one people call you by?" Edgar said, somewhat impatiently, for it did not occur to him that this stolid Indian, who was driving them with such careless ease, could possess more than one name.

"I am called many names, young pale face, all of which are mine by right, though the one most often used by those of your race is Sharp Eye; and then he added with a sudden gleam in his dark, expressive eyes. "It's a good name, don't you think so?"

The boy immediately felt that in some way or other he had offended, and hastened to improve matters, which with true boyish frankness he accomplished. "If I think it's a fine name and I would not mind having it myself, my own name is—"

"It is known to me already," the Indian interrupted. "You are the young chief Dickson, son of he who will be my master's guest for a time, and the other young pale face is your friend. Am I not right?"

Not a little astonished at what he heard, Edgar agreed that the Indian was correct, and would have liked to find out how he knew so much; but a look at the dark expressive face gave him little encouragement to ask any further questions, so he turned his eyes to the countryside through which they were travelling.

Here, he found much to interest him. Trees, the names of which were not known to him, clustered on the slopes of low hills; wide green fields and verdant valleys, beautiful in their setting, met his gaze, and when his eyes rested a moment on a rushing waterfall he could not help exclaiming—"Oh, how wonderful!"

A pleased smile for a moment lit the countenance of Sharp

DOMINION DAY

By Aunt Jean

Last Saturday was Dominion Day.

We had such jolly fun, Celebrating Confederation, Until the day was done.

Confederation is a long, long word

But it means oh, such a lot . . . It means we're all united

And our allegiance can't be bought.

That we belong to Mother Eng-land

And are a peaceful happy band Of good Canadian children

Who are working hand in hand. To help our King and country

Keep Canada at peace; We hope the day will soon be here,

When dreadful wars will cease.

NANCY'S PUP

News of the Pup

Mother Craig was waiting for her children just outside the school gate. Uncle Dick laughed when he saw her. "Going to school, Mary, to answer the Inspector's questions?" he asked jokingly.

Mother Craig did not reply; she was too busy hugging her children who, to her imagining, had been very close to death by drowning.

"Oh, Mummie!" Nora said, "I am so glad to see you." "And I am glad to see you children, too!" their mother said. "If anything had happened you, what would Mother have done without you!"

"Here, here!" Uncle Dick said; "As if anything could happen to them with their Uncle Dick around! You have not much faith in me Marv, I see."

"It is not a matter of faith at all, Dick. If the water had risen much higher you might have all been drowned."

"Tut! tut!" laughed Uncle Dick. "Drowned, nothing. Why we would have roosted on the house roof with the sparrows and would have been quite safe or we would have picked a nice big log like Cackles here did, and floated to safety on it. By the way, you had better take Cackles home with you. I doubt if the Inspector will want to question her on arithmetic or any such subject."

Handing Mother Craig the old egg crate in which Cackles was confined, he continued "Now we must be off; my children will be late for school seeing that we have so much further to go, but there will be no inspector waiting for them, so it will not matter very much. Good-bye, Little Folks! Good-bye, Mary; trot along home now before the Inspector comes out and takes you for one of the children." With a jolly laugh and a farewell wave of the hand Uncle Dick and his family were soon out of sight.

The children stood a moment listening to the sound of the car wheels getting fainter and fainter, before going inside, with mixed feelings of pleasure and regret.

The morning passed quite quickly; greatly to Ned's surprise the Inspector was not such an ogre as he expected him to be, and before long he was enjoying the morning as much as Nora was.

Noon hour found them racing home for dinner with as much eagerness as if they had been away for months instead of a week-end. Nancy met them at the gate, leaping and bounding around them as if she had gone mad, finally settling down to walk beside Nora to the house her big plump tail wagging so hard that (to use Maud's expression) "there was no need of a fan when Nancy was around and in good humour."

"Bad, bad chillums!" was Baby John's salute as they entered the house. Mother Craig had been holding him up to the window so that he might see them coming down the road.

"Now, Johnnie Boy!" said Maud, holding out her arms so that he might run into them, "that is not a very nice welcome home."

Clasping her tightly around the neck with his wee chubby arms, he purred out his grievance at being left all alone at home, in a regular torrent of childish words.

"Never mind, sweetheart," Nora said, coming to cuddle him "we will take you with us next time we go to Grandma's house, and I will give you Cackles' eggs for breakfast when she starts to lay."

Nora really meant what she said when she made Baby John that promise, but Cackles had other plans for her eggs, which we shall hear about later.

They had just finished dinner when the mail carrier's cart was seen driving away from the mail box. Ned dashed out to bring in the letters. There was only one, a rather scrawled-looking, untidy one, addressed

Eye, and he said. "Ah, young pale face, you enjoy the beauty of our country, I see. That is good, but as yet, you have seen but little. What has already met your eyes is as nothing to the wonders this great land of happy hunting grounds, reveals to those who have the will to understand and know it properly."

Do you mean there is anything more beautiful than this?" asked Edgar, pointing with his hand both right and left, thereby nearly losing his balance.

For a moment there was silence and then the Indian replied: "More wonderful! Ah yes, young chief. Perhaps one day you will see the mountains in all their glory, rising with dark black sides and white peaks into the blue of the sky. Your ears will catch the whisper of the wind as it swings through the deep forests, and maybe you will hear the music of the torrents as they dash down into the valley where the river waters gather them up and speed towards the great lakes, and passing through these find their way at last into the mystic shadows of the sea. I say you may see them, and I hope you do, for should this be so you will have looked upon nothing so wonderful in all this world."

The Indian stopped speaking and his next remark was to draw the attention of his young companion to the roof of the farm house, which was to be their temporary home and the end of this, their first Canadian journey. As he climbed out of the vehicle Edgar thanked the Indian for his talk. He could not for the life of him tell if Sharp Eye was pleased or not at his action, for all he said was: "One day you will see the Mountains and they will teach you their lesson." to his father.

"It looks like something Old Timmie would write," Ned said as he handed it to his father.

Daddy Craig turned it over several times before he opened it. "I do not recognize the handwriting," he said at last. "I wonder who it can be from."

"The easiest way to find out. Dad, is to open it." Sue said with a mischievous smile.

"I suppose it is the quickest way, Sue, so here goes," tearing the end of the letter open as he spoke. The inside was just as untidy-looking as the outside. Daddy Craig read it over several times, then passed it over to his wife to read.

"What do you think of that?" he asked, when she had read it. "I am sure I cannot say, John. It sounds rather as if it might be a hoax, to me. But as you know, I am rather a suspicious person."

"Shall we tell them?" he said softly to his wife, so that the children, who were preparing to leave for school, might not hear.

"Better leave it until night, John; we do not want them upset for the afternoon."

Daddy Craig nodded his assent. He was of the same mind as his wife, and so it happened that the children did not know until they came back in the evening that someone had found a puppy which they thought might be the one that they had lost.

If they had known that, they would have been much too excited to reply to the inspector's questions properly. As it was both Nora and Maud had an opportunity to tell all they knew about the days of the week and what made the weather act so freakishly.

Inspector Jones was much pleased with their replies, and so was their teacher, who expressed her pleasure to them personally after the inspector had gone; so that it was a decidedly happy crowd of children who raced home to Mother to tell the news of the afternoon's work.

After she had heard all about it, and how both Maud and Nora got special honors and the boys too were commended, she said, "Well just for that I am going to let Maudie read you this letter."

Passing the untidy-looking letter over to Maud, she sat back and watched her children's faces while it was being read. This is what it said.

Mister J. Craig,

I heard as how you had lost a pup, and as I hev found one, which I am sure is the one you lost, you can hev it by paying me ten dollars. —Jock Landon.

"Hurrah!" shouted Billy and Ned in unison, "Hurrah for Jock Landon! Now we will have our puppie back, won't we, Nora? Arn't you glad?"

"I will be if it is Nancy's pup, but I do not think he has any right to charge us ten dollars for our own pup!"

"Who is Jock Landon?" Maud asked.

"We do not know, Maud," Mother Craig said, "We were hoping that you children would know."

—Next story, Who is Jock Landon, and Is it Nancy's Pup?

Lovingly,

Aunt Jean.

Moors Changed Greatly

by Their Stay in Spain

When the decree of expulsion was first issued against unconverted Moors in 1502 by the then powerful Catholic Inquisition, Moors and Jews probably formed nearly half the population of Spain. When the Moors returned to Africa they had become so changed from the native Berber tribes that they were called Andalusians, but the name Moors has continued to be applied to all this Arabic population in the country occupying the coast towns and extending from Morocco to the Senegal and to the Niger as far east as the Sahara at Timbuktu.

The Moors, while their cultural attainments today do not hold the same relative place in the world that they did in the Fifteenth century, are intelligent and not unlettered. They have the features of Europeans and in manner are dignified and courteous, yet when roused are revengeful and cruel. They remain, of course, fervent Moslems. The national fault is held to be gross sensuality, the women having a position little better than that of pampered slaves.

A REAL LADY

In the privacy of his home the village butcher was telling his wife of the arrival of a new resident.

"She came in today," he said with enthusiasm "and I can tell you she's a real lady brought up select and exclusive. She don't know one cut o' meat from another, or veal from mutton."

"We'd better make a front-page story of this wedding," remarked the editor.

"Why?" asked the society reporter in surprise. "They aren't very prominent people."

"That may be," he replied, "but this is the first account of a wedding you have turned in for ages that hasn't had as a last line, 'They will reside with the bride's parents.'"

Governor-General Visits Boys' Farm

The annual closing exercises of the Boys' Farm and Training School at Shawbridge, Que., were made memorable for the 150 boys of the institution recently when they were honored by the presence of the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, who addressed the school and gave out the prizes. Accompanied by E. W. Beatty, K.C., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is also president of the Boys' School, and a number of directors and wellwishers of the institution, His Excellency was the object of a great ovation by the boys on the arrival of the special train at the Farm. This is shown in top photograph of the lay-out. Lower left, the Governor-General is shown shaking hands with Major Ralph Wilcock, D.S.O., superintendent of the School, and at the right His Excellency is acknowledging the plaudits of the boys from the steps of the special train. It was the first time in the 25 years' existence of the School that a Governor-General of Canada had taken part in the closing exercises of the institution. His Excellency, addressing the School, stressed character as being of vital importance to success in life.

"The telephone saved my corn"

Early in the season, Fred Bennett noticed a strange blight on his young corn. It began to spread very rapidly. He had to do something at once if he wanted a crop.

Fred was enterprising. He called the government Experimental Farm by Long Distance telephone. The farm recognized the blight from Fred's description, told him what to do, and in a week the corn was safe.

Long Distance is quick, dependable, easy to use — and profitable.

"Laurentia"

By Dr. W. Leslie-Dixon.

This year I strolled through the mountains and lakes, Where nature her beauties extolled. And amongst the Laurentians with no record of quakes, I saw its bright dells, dotted blue, white and gold.

There was Ste. Adele, where you'd love to dwell, Or in St. Jerome, you could make your home. Then the peaceful delights, of quaint Morin Heights. And the pine clad path, of altitudinous Ste. Agathe.

The flowers were all blooming and chatting away In a soft dulcet tongue of their own. While the birds in the air seemed to flit and to play Making nests with a twig for their throne.

The boat on the lake, with the breeze in its wake, Drifted where the odours had blown And the birds were all whistling their own sweet song As they gladdened all nature the whole day long.

You could cogitate or meditate, or sleep and dream, Or fish for the playful trout in the stream. Take a hike on the road with a manly stride, With a dog for companion, and e'er at your side.

And oh what a beautiful and glorious sight, To watch the moon come over the mountain at night. And when at last on all nature your soul has fed, Your body's needs are attended, an so off to bed.

And now, dear reader, With your mind so astute, Next week I'll try And tell you my conception of Lachute.

The Ottawa Spotlight

A Weekly Review of National Affairs

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, July 4th. The threat of a general railway strike across Canada affecting 150,000 employees looms as the result of failure on the part of railwaymen and their employers to come to any agreement on wage cuts. The railway companies are holding out firmly for a second 10 per cent reduction in wages. This would bring down rates to 20% below those prevailing until a few months ago. Railwaymen claim that if they accept this second cut they will be getting basic rates 17% below what is being paid for similar work across the line in the United States.

Formal authority to take a strike ballot is being obtained, and the councils of the various running trades are meeting to discuss action. They will report back to the special council which has been negotiating with the railways on July 14th., and the special council will meet at Montreal to decide what action is to be taken.

The new railway act which brings into existence most of the recommendations of the Duff Royal commission on transportation came into force July 1st. One of the things it does is to replace the present directorate of 17 which runs the Canadian National Railways by a Board of Trustees of Five, and it had been supposed that these men would be placed in office on July 1st. Sir George Perley acting premier, told newspapermen last Friday that it had not yet been possible to find the type of man required and willing to serve, and that there would be a few weeks' delay. "Without doubt," he said, "these appointments are the most important which the government has yet had to make."

Improving Position

At the same time the acting prime minister explained that while for the first four months of the year the Canadian National Railway had not even earned its operating expenses, during May there was a decided improvement, and that it was expected from May on the publicly-owned railway would continue to improve its position. The Canadian Pacific Railway in May was able to make a better showing than in May 1932.

The Dominion cabinet under Sir George Perley has been meeting at frequent intervals to devise ways and means of reducing government expenditure. What makes it very hard is the determination not to discharge employees or make further salary cuts if possible. One proposal is to retire all employees at 65. This would affect about 1000 employees now at Ottawa, and would result in considerable saving, as their work would be done with the reduced staff, and they would retire with an allowance considerably less than their present salaries. There is even a suggestion to make 60 the retiring age, but this is not likely to be even considered.

Sort Out Channels

Canadian radio engineers left today for Mexico City to take part in a conference to divide up wave lengths allocated to North America. In order to avoid international collision of messages the Madrid conference last fall divided up the whole wave band between the various continents. Now it is up to Canada, the United States, Cuba and Mexico to come to an understanding a-

Wanderings of a Canadian in England

By George Gale.

Canadians who are under the impression that the motherland is in a state of decadence and on the verge of collapse as a result of the economic conditions, are labouring under a very false impression and one that is very far remote from the truth. While it is beyond question that the country is far from being in a prosperous condition, but rather sharing to the fullest extent in the world wide depression, the heroic people of the British Isles, for the most part, appear to be enjoying the simple life with much more contentment and with fewer signs of poverty, than are the labouring folk of the more important cities of Canada. The improved living conditions of the poorer classes in the old country at the present time, it must be confessed, is due to nothing more or less than the beneficial effects of the unemployed insurance, the "dole," the old age allowances, the free medical service, as well as to pensions to retired naval and military men, Great War and other veterans.

Recipient's View of "Dole."

The unemployment relief policy, for instance, has been in operation for some twenty odd years and the masses who formerly were employed in the factories, workshops and mines, who are obliged to take advantage of the benefits to-day, do not by any means of reckoning consider that they are recipients of charity. They are to all intents and purposes simply sharing in funds established by acts of parliament for this very object and to which the government, the employers and the employees, both male and female, have subscribed their sixpences and shillings weekly for years. There are many people, no doubt, especially the "black coated" men as the "white collared" men of Canada are called in England—who may feel somewhat humiliated in accepting the dole, but, all the same they too find it obligatory to do so in the absence of other relief measures to provide the necessities of life for themselves and their families until the industrial crisis is ended or until they find other employment. Strange as it may appear domestic servants are not entitled to the dole.

Once in receipt of financial assistance the unemployed are obliged to report weekly or even oftener to the authorities, when every effort is made by the government representatives to secure positions of one kind or another for the men and women. In the meantime old and young are in receipt of sufficient assistance to enable them to live in a very modest manner, without appealing to private charity. The same may be said of those entitled to the old age pensions, amounting to ten shillings per week for each individual, on which, in addition to paying a few shillings a week for their comfortable small brick cottage, married couples, with the strictest economy, manage to maintain themselves, spending their shillings as the people in this country spend their dollars. In so doing, however, the English people are obliged to deny themselves the luxuries of dress, travel, amusements and in many other ways that the majority of Canadians fail to make any attempt to do. Yet, notwithstanding their condition Britishers are courageous, still wearing a good natured smile, looking happy and far from being down hearted or lacking in optimism. They are not given to much talk, but to their credit it must be said, the overwhelming majority of the population are evidently determined to meet and overcome their troubles.

Radicals Few in Number.

Although not empire wreckers or king killers by any means, there are, it is true, followers of the radical movement in England who are at times inclined to participate in demonstrations and make next to impossible demands on the government authorities for one thing or another. But they form a very small group of the patriotic population, who, as already said, are prepared to await the dawn of better days with patience and self-sacrifice, without resorting to acts of violence.

There has been considerable discontent in the ranks of the unemployed regarding the "means" test, but with the amendments to that law lately announced by the British government that measure is greatly improved and likely to be more satisfactory to the people. It provides that only one-half of the disability pensions under the Workmen's Compensation Act shall be classified as income in application of the means test. The test is applied to dole recipients to determine if they have any other source of revenue. The about the division of North America's wavelengths. Upon their success will hinge the freedom which the Canadian radio listener will enjoy from heterodyning and other interferences.

The Canadian government, holding indirectly some 150 million bushels of wheat, has been watching the recent spectacular action of the market with much interest. There is rumor to be a "gentleman's agreement" between John I. MacFarland, the government agent, and the grain trade, to the effect that the government will not dump its wheat in such a way as to depress the market. In a sense this is an agreement to let the government "hold the bag" while other speculators unload, but the government is now satisfied that it will suffer no eventual loss from its flier in the wheat markets.

The trade treaty negotiated between South Africa and the Dominion during the Imperial Conference last August has at last come into effect. Canadian wheat, autos, fish, fruit, hosiery, lumber and some other items secure tariff preferences.

first twenty-five pounds of savings will not be considered as providing an income, but every additional twenty-five pounds up to three hundred pounds will be considered as giving an income of one shilling a week. The bill provides also for the prohibition of compulsory sale or mortgaging of houses or property, but takes into account income derived from rental of rooms and ownership of dwellings by which means applicants have no rents to pay.

Panhandlers Unknown.

A welcome sign of the times in England is the fact that in the large cities and towns, in the face of the struggle for an existence, professional beggars or ne'er-do-wells are an unknown evil and there is no soliciting of alms on the streets from pedestrians. Another strange fact is that there are fewer people in the workhouses throughout England at this time than in former years, when trade was prosperous. Even the pawn-brokers, who did a flourishing business with the poorer classes at one time, are removing the familiar three balls from over their doors and closing their stores owing to the great scarcity of customers now. Then again, notwithstanding the army of idle men and women official statistics show that the drink habit is decreasing, with the result that not a single person under the influence of strong drink is seen on the streets, while there is little or no rowdyism. So much is this the case that some of the ancient prisons throughout the country with a history covering several hundred years, are being converted to other purposes on account of the scarcity of inmates.

In consequence, no doubt, of the enhanced value of intoxicating liquors, as a result of increased taxation and strict control by the authorities as to the hours of opening and closing, as well as to the more temperate habits of the people, among other causes has had the effect of seriously interfering with the success of the hotel business. Proprietors of famous inns and coaching houses, landmarks of the districts in which they are located, whose ancestors catered to the public while travelling along the great London and other highways in stage coaches, previous to the days of the automobiles, and in more modern times, are complaining bitterly of the stagnation in business to-day. The army of idle workmen are now spending their leisure hours for the most part in the reading rooms and free libraries, in hiking through the country, for which the people of the old land are noted, or enjoying themselves on the cricket and football fields instead of lounging around the taverns, which was a common practice at one time. This condition of affairs is not confined to any particular city or town, but is general throughout the country.

Morale of Britisher High.

Notwithstanding the scarcity of work and the financial conditions, Englishmen are still great lovers of clean, mainly sport, whether on the race track, golf links, cricket or football fields. Important football and cricket matches, played on week nights and Saturday afternoons during the long summer seasons, are sufficient inducement to attract thousands of people to the spacious athletic grounds or parks and there is no lack of enthusiasm either. What is more the games are played in a friendly spirit. Dog racing is another popular sport.

A pleasant feature of a sojourn in the mother country is the hearty welcome extended to visitors, especially to people from Canada. Natives of the land of the Maple Leaf are held in the highest esteem throughout the country by all classes of the population, who are not only delighted to go out of their way to provide information, but anxious to cater to their comfort and pleasure whenever possible. It is no exaggeration to say that Canada and its people are well-known and admired by the great mass of Britishers.

They have not forgotten the terrible struggle of 1914-18, when so many thousands of Canada's brave sons laid down their lives in defence of the Empire. As in Scotland and Wales, everywhere in England are to be met scores of seriously wounded veterans of the Great War. Some of them are sightless, others being wheeled around their way on crutches, while families are still mourning for some dear one among the million dead of that country. —Quebec.

Used Private Funds to Refurbish White House

When lace curtains in the White House became torn or unrepresentable during the occupancy of President James Monroe, he, despite his rather impecunious state at the time, dug down in his pocket and purchased new ones.

This piece of news as well as the fact that President Monroe was forced to use his own private funds to replace furniture, carpets and other household articles, necessary to the comfort and dignity of the Presidential home, were revealed in a recently discovered manuscript penned by Mr. Monroe when he was President.

This manuscript, of 48 closely written pages, rolled and neatly tied with a faded blue silk ribbon, deals with an assortment of White House matters. At the top of the first page, President Monroe wrote the title "Observations on Matters of Public Interest."

Among the interesting subjects and incidents related were the complaints about having to spend his own money for properly furnishing the White House. Mr. Monroe's complaining tone was made all the more woeful by his mentioning the fact that at the time he was very short of funds himself and that he needed the money for other necessary purposes.

Life of Swedish Queen

Full of Contradictions

The life of Queen Christina of Sweden (1626-89) is full of pictorial splendor. Queen from the age of six, taking eagerly to her boyish upbringing, a lover of learning, and fearless, as became the daughter of Gustavus Adolphus, she had many of the qualities of the ideal ruler. Yet, once she had been magnificently crowned, she chose to reign only for a few years, during which she provided her country with a succession, not of heirs, but of galvanic shocks.

From the first, we see her staid ministers bewildered by the contradictions in her nature—her brilliant statecraft, alternating with violent enthusiasms for philosophers, for a French quack doctor or a handsome Spanish envoy. She loved display, fine horsemanship and physical beauty; yet herself she dressed carelessly, often in male attire, with not too nice a regard for personal cleanliness, and with a disconcerting indifference to food and sleep. She could be truly royal, yet she could make a gouty and important savant dance in public for her amusement. What wonder that most of her counsellors breathed a sigh of relief at her abdication.—London New Statesman and Nation.

Danish Flag Oldest

The Stars and Stripes is the second oldest established flag, the Danish flag being the only one which dates farther back in an unchanged form. The cross of the Danish flag was adopted as the national emblem in the year 1219. The changes in our flag are not figured, as the law establishing the flag provided for them. At the time the United States flag was officially adopted, on June 14, 1777, there were a good many national flags which had been in use for a considerable period of time, but through changes in government these flags have all since been changed in one way or another. The present British national flag, or "Union Jack," was not adopted until 1801, the date of the union of Great Britain with Ireland.

PRESENTATION OF JEWEL TO A. O. KERR OF LAKEFIELD

Some 65 members of the Orange Order met in McArthur's Hall, Wednesday last, this being the regular meeting of the Lachute Orange Lodge, No. 2231. During the evening an Initiation was held and the report from Bro. H. W. Butler of Brownsburg, of the Provincial Grand Orange Lodge meeting held in Huntingdon, Que., was delivered in a very creditable manner, after which the Rev. Bro. W. J. H. Lummis, of Morin Heights, in a few well chosen remarks presented Bro. A. O. Kerr, Past County Master, of Lakefield, with a Past Master's Jewel as County Master for Argenteuil for two years. Bro. Kerr in turn was called upon to make a presentation to the member procuring the largest number of candidates in any one Lodge in the County, which was received by Bro. S. Holt, of Louisa Lodge. Lachute Lodge came in for second prize, the prizes being 1st, $10.00; 2nd, $5.00. The visitors and members adjourned to the Banquet Hall where the ladies of the L.O.B.A. of Lachute, served light refreshments and a happy hour was spent by all present.

THE LATE MR. JOHN STEWART SR.

The funeral of the late Mr. John Stewart was held at St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, Que., on Tuesday, June 20th. Mr. Stewart passed away at his home in Keokuk, Illinois, the previous week. He had attained the ripe age of eighty-eight years, and had enjoyed good health through his long life until recently. He was born in Grenville and spent more than half of his lifetime in that community, where he was highly esteemed by all who knew him, being an honest man in all his dealings, a kind neighbor, and an excellent carpenter.

He was a member of St. Matthew's Church but also attended and assisted among other congregations, being a fine Christian personality.

Deep sympathy is extended to the bereaved wife, Mrs. Mary Stewart, of Keokuk, who will sadly miss him, being alone and in poor health. Two sisters, also remain, Mrs. Willman, of Calumet, and Mrs. Hambly, of the States, two brothers, James at the old home and Ned, in Saskatchewan, also many nieces and nephews. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. K. Brueton, interment following at Calumet Cemetery.

When a Girl Gets to Be 25

A twenty-fifth birthday is one thing to a man. He preens himself, flexes his biceps, expands the muscles of his chest, feels at last that he is a man, so to speak. But to a girl, and especially an unmarried girl, a twenty-fifth birthday is a different matter. It is the sharp revolver shot on the last lap of youth's course. It announces, quite definitely, that the racer had better pep up her stride, for the race will be won—or lost—within the next few minutes. Of course, youth isn't everything. . . . But it's an awful lot to a girl standing on the pinnacle of twenty-five years.—From "A Girl Must Marry," a novel by Maysie Greig.

Steps to Heaven

One of the prettiest legends concerning trees is that held by a tribe inhabiting the Gulf coast of Australia who thinks that once a great pine tree reached from heaven to earth and by its means their ancestors used to climb up and down between the two regions. To complete the story, it is related that a hawk which had discovered the secret of fire-making, while disputing with another hawk, set fire to the earth, thus destroying the tree. The people who had climbed up to the sky had of necessity to remain there. Crystals were implanted in their bodies, and the flashing of these by night causes the light of the stars.

Water's Buoyancy

There is a general belief that it is easier to swim in deep water because of the supposed greater buoyancy. This is not true; the buoyancy is dependent only on the volume of water displaced, which is the same in both cases. One writer suggests that this idea may have arisen from the mental effects produced. When swimming in shallow water, we know that on the least fatigue, we can cease swimming and stand on the bottom; in deep water we know we must keep up and hence we exert ourselves more, swim better and feel better. Actually it should be just as easy to swim in water 1,000 feet as in water four feet deep.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

DEBORAH

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4, 5.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Psalm 46:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Deborah.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Woman Courageous.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—An Inspiring Leader.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Leadership in Emergencies.

In order to teach this lesson intelligently, it is necessary that the teacher have a grasp of the book of Judges from which it is taken. In chapter 2:6-19 is given a synopsis of the book. Observe:

- The sin of the people (vv. 6-13).
- God's judgment for their sin (vv. 14, 15).
- Repentance of the people (3:9).
- God's deliverance at the hands of the Judges (2:16-19).

A repetition of sin, oppression by the enemy, repentance on the part of the people, and God's deliverance, is the story of the book of Judges.

The book covers the period from the conquest of Canaan and death of Joshua to the judgeship of Samuel.

While Joshua and the elders of his generation lived the people in some measure remained faithful to God, but the very next generation went into apostasy.

- The National Emergency (vv. 1-3).
- Lapse into idolatry (v. 1). Ehud was not only a righteous but a strong ruler. As soon as he was dead, the people turned away from God.

- The bondage of the people (v. 2). The Lord abandoned them to be oppressed by Jabin, king of Canaan. For twenty long years they were under the hand of this king who had nine hundred chariots of iron.

- The people cried unto God (v. 3). Affliction brought them to their senses.
- The judgeship of Deborah (vv. 4-10).

The great national emergency which confronted the nation was met by a woman named Deborah. Her name means "Bee." As suggested by another, she answered her name by her industry, sagacity, and public usefulness. This woman was called to the judgeship of the nation because there seems to have been no man capable.

- The place where she judged Israel (v. 5). It was under a palm tree, showing that she held an open air court for the administration of justice.
- Her method (vv. 6-10).

- Her summons to Barak (vv. 6, 7). Barak means "lightning." Deborah, being a prophetess, was able to select a man whose gifts would enable him to rally the forces needed to gain the victory over the formidable foe. Judging from his accomplishments, Barak was true to his name, for with lightning dispatch he wrought deliverance. It was really God calling Barak through Deborah. She gave definite instruction as to the number of men and the strategy to be employed, assuring him that God would deliver Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, into his hand.
- Barak's reply (v. 8). He expressed an unwillingness to go unless Deborah would go with him. This unwillingness should not be considered as weakness, for the presence of the prophetess would inspire courage.
- Barak rebuked (vv. 9, 10). Deborah yielded to his request, but made it plain to him that it would detract from his honor as a conqueror, "for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman."

- The Defeat of Jabin's Army (vv. 11-13).

Sisera, the captain, gathered a mighty army and went forth, confident of victory over the ill-equipped, undisciplined army of Barak, but he made one sad mistake. He did not consider that it was the Lord's battle (v. 15). At the psychological moment Deborah gave the signal to charge, assuring Barak that the Lord had gone before and would give the victory (v. 14). Through supernatural interposition the enemy became panic-stricken (5:30).

- Sisera Killed by a Woman (vv. 17-24).

In his flight he took refuge in Jael's tent. In the guise of friendship, she committed a most heinous murder after inviting him into her dwelling.

- The Song of Deborah and Barak (ch. 5).

This song was composed and sung in celebration of the marvelous victory which God had wrought. Deborah set forth in the most definite way that the secret of victory was the help of God. Praise is given to those who responded to the cry, and scorn is heaped upon those who remained behind.

All his life long Christ had been revealing his heart, through the narrow rift of deeds, like some slender, hinged window; but in his death all the barriers are thrown down, and the brightness blazes out upon men.—Alexander MacLaren.

Scars of Sin

"Ransomed, healed, restored, forgiven—thank God I can say that, but the scars of sin always keep me humble."—Bishop Linton.

Hints for Homebodies

Specially written for Readers of The Watchman.
By JESSIE ALLAN BROWN

MORE THAN ONE WAY TO GIVE

The women of more than twenty Anglican churches banded together to give a garden-party in aid of The Restoration Fund. Naturally with so many women working it was a large affair with a great many different ways of more or less painlessly extracting money. One church said that they could not give anything that cost money, but they offered to take on the dish-washing. With the hundreds that were served with meals, afternoon tea, ice-cream and so forth, that was a real contribution.

A SUMMER VACATION AT HOME

There are a good many families who are accustomed to a summer holiday that will not be able to have one this year; then there are other families who live much the same, summer and winter. To both kinds I would recommend studying the possibilities of holidaying at home. One of the chief virtues of a holiday is a change. So change your house and your habits as much as possible. Roll up your rugs, put away all bric-a-brac, so that there is a minimum to dust, use paper napkins, and imagine you are in a summer cottage. You will probably have more conveniences to work with than if you were.

Sun, air and water are three of the best things in a summer holiday. The sun shines at home, there is plenty of free air, and you probably can find water fairly close at hand. At a cottage, children spend most of the time in bathing suits, so why not let them do it at home. They will get the benefit of the sun baths and mother will not have as much washing to do. If you have never tried it you will be surprised to find how much fun children can have with a tub of water in the back yard, if they are in bathing suits. Older children who should have an opportunity to swim but are still too young to trust alone, may have that opportunity with a little co-operation from the mothers. Let each mother of the 'gang' take her turn.

Much as we love our children, there isn't a mother who does not feel that it is a real treat to have a meal away from the children. It is very possible to do this at home. Children invariably like sandwiches, so why not let them have sandwich suppers? Assemble the makings and let them make their own if they are old enough and it is surprising how young they can do this, if their mother will only let them. Then when they are made, let them take them to their favorite spots and eat. It will be a treat for the parents to eat alone and it will be a treat for the children to eat in peace. They must get fed up with continual disciplining. Some women feel that sandwiches are such a trouble to make. If you get all your materials ready, you can sit down to it and really it is not so much work. If it is more work to get ready than a regular supper, you have practically no dishes. So what you lose on the swing you gain on the roundabout. One woman I know who frequently used this idea, used to make her sandwiches directly after her dinner dishes were done, and then after supper packed the few dishes in her pan and covered them over, doing them at breakfast time. By this plan she had very little house work to do after the early afternoon. If friend husband does not care for sandwiches (many men are as fond of them as children), have some other easily prepared supper for the grown-ups.

It is easy to have a variety of sandwich materials on hand. I always like to boil several eggs more than are required for immediate use, and chop and season them for sandwich use, putting any that is left away in a covered bottle in the refrigerator. An egg sandwich will appeal to a child for breakfast when it would turn up its little nose at a boiled egg. Peanut butter, sliced tomatoes, Bermuda onion sandwich spreads, either home made or ready prepared, honey, jam, dates, sardines, cheese, cottage cheese mixed with a sweet or savoury, any of these and many others are easy to get ready. Have a choice of two or three fillings and let each child choose their own. If you put your mind to it you can manage a fair holiday at home.

PICKLED WATERMELON RIND

Peel watermelon rind and cut into pieces the desired size for pickling. Soak over night in a brine in the proportion of one tablespoon salt to one quart of water. Drain in the morning and boil in fresh water until clear and tender. Drain and cook in the following syrup for ten minutes.

- 1 pint vinegar
 - 2 pounds sugar
 - 1 ounce stick cinnamon
 - 1/2 ounce whole cloves
- Tie pieces in a bag then bring syrup to a boil and add rind.

CHOCOLATE SYRUP

- 1/2 cup cocoa
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1 cup water
 - Pinch of salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- Mix ingredients, stirring to a smooth paste over gentle heat. Boil 3 minutes and bottle and chill. To serve, add about 2 tablespoons of this syrup to a glass of cold milk. Children are specially fond of this beverage.

SACRAMENT IS TOPIC IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 9, is "SACRAMENT."

The Golden Text is: (I Corinthians 10: 16) "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?"

The following passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." (I Corinthians 5: 8)

It is the living Christ, the practical Truth, which makes Jesus "the resurrection and the life" to all who follow him in deed. Obeying his precious precepts, — following his demonstration so far as we apprehend it,—we drink of his cup, partake of his bread, are baptized with his purity; and at last we shall rest, sit down with him, in a full understanding of the divine Principle which triumphs over death." (Page 31.)

It is generally considered . .

that Winter is the Social Season. But it is strange, more social visiting and impromptu calling is done during the Summer . . . That is why it is wise to keep in stock canned meats, desserts and vegetables — and wiser still to keep in mind a phone call will bring you supplies of fresh and prepared meats, fruit and vegetables, at any time . . . Call 138.

"THE IDEAL GUEST" COULD YOU BE ONE?

An Interesting Paper Read by Mrs. Wm. Robinson at Queen's Line Women's Institute.

To me this is a rather difficult subject, but if you will pardon the mistaken ideas, I will try to give you a few tips for the summer visitors.

Don't be a self-invited guest. Don't wish yourself on your friends and relatives or even comparative strangers, as so many summer visitors do.

Don't be one of the common dead-beats who feel a sudden surge of affection for Darling Sally or Susan as soon as she is settled in her nice camp on the mountains or sea, and who write and tell her they just must see her and would it be convenient to come on Tuesday of next week.

Don't upset the whole house when you visit. Conform to the established routine. Be on time for your meals.

Don't scatter your clothes all over the place so that your room always looks as if a cyclone had passed through it.

Don't do your laundry work in the bath room and monopolize the electric iron. Don't wipe off your rouge and lip stick on the best guest towels.

Don't be one of the women who are careful of their own belongings, but play havoc upon other people's.

Don't borrow. Take along with you the things you need. A pain in the neck are the guests who never have a postage stamp nor an envelope, nor a pen, nor a warm wrap, nor a raincoat, and who keep their hostess trotting around trying to supply their necessities.

Don't veto every plan that is made for your entertainment. If you don't play golf or bridge don't go to visit people who are too fond of these. If you don't like to hike or care for views keep away from those who live in the mountains.

If you hate water and are trying to keep from getting submerged decline invitations to the water. But if you do go, fall into the general plan and appear to like it no matter how much it bores you.

Eat what your hostess prepares, as nothing is so great a nuisance as to have to prepare special food for a guest.

Don't criticize your hostess' house and garden, and tell her how she could arrange them to get better effects. Her home represents her tastes and her needs and her money and wasn't devised for your pleasure.

Don't high hat her friends. She has to live with them after you are gone, and it is just possible she cares more for their good opinion than she does for yours.

Don't forget that a visitor pays for her board and keep by making herself agreeable, so hand out your best brand of amusing chatter and make an effort to be entertaining.

Give your hostess time alone by taking long walks and writing letters. Retire to your own room and read.

Don't find fault with anything for, for some inexplicable reason we are all proud of our homes. We may have only a shack but it's home anyway. So smooth over the faulty things and inconveniences as much as possible.

Don't steal your hostess' boy friend, if you are a girl. It isn't playing the game.

Don't out-stay your welcome. If you are invited from the 15th. to 20th. depart on the 20th. if you ever want to be asked again.

You may be pressed to prolong your visit, but that most likely is only a gesture, and you are supposed to be civilized enough to know you are expected to refuse.

In short, visit as you would have others visit you, then you are always sure of a welcome.

The summer's second reported instance of a Boy Scout reviving an apparently drowned person came from Calgary, June 13. Patrol Leader Watts of the Sea Scout Patrol of the 10th. Calgary Troop rescued a small boy who had been submerged some time, and by continued artificial respiration brought back consciousness and ultimate recovery.

Silver Buffalo For Vincent Massey.

In recognition of his "distinguished service to boyhood," the Hon. Mr. Massey was one of the guest speakers at the banquet, and carried the greetings of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association.

Reviewing the last fifteen years, we reach the conclusion that it would also be advisable in time of war to prepare for peace.—Christian Science Monitor.

A camera man, working for the educational department of a film company, met an old farmer in town and said:

"I have just been taking some moving pictures of life out on your farm."

"Did you catch any of my men in motion?" asked the old man curiously.

"Sure I did"

World's Largest Fire Alarm System Inaugurated in Montreal

By D. E. Bankart

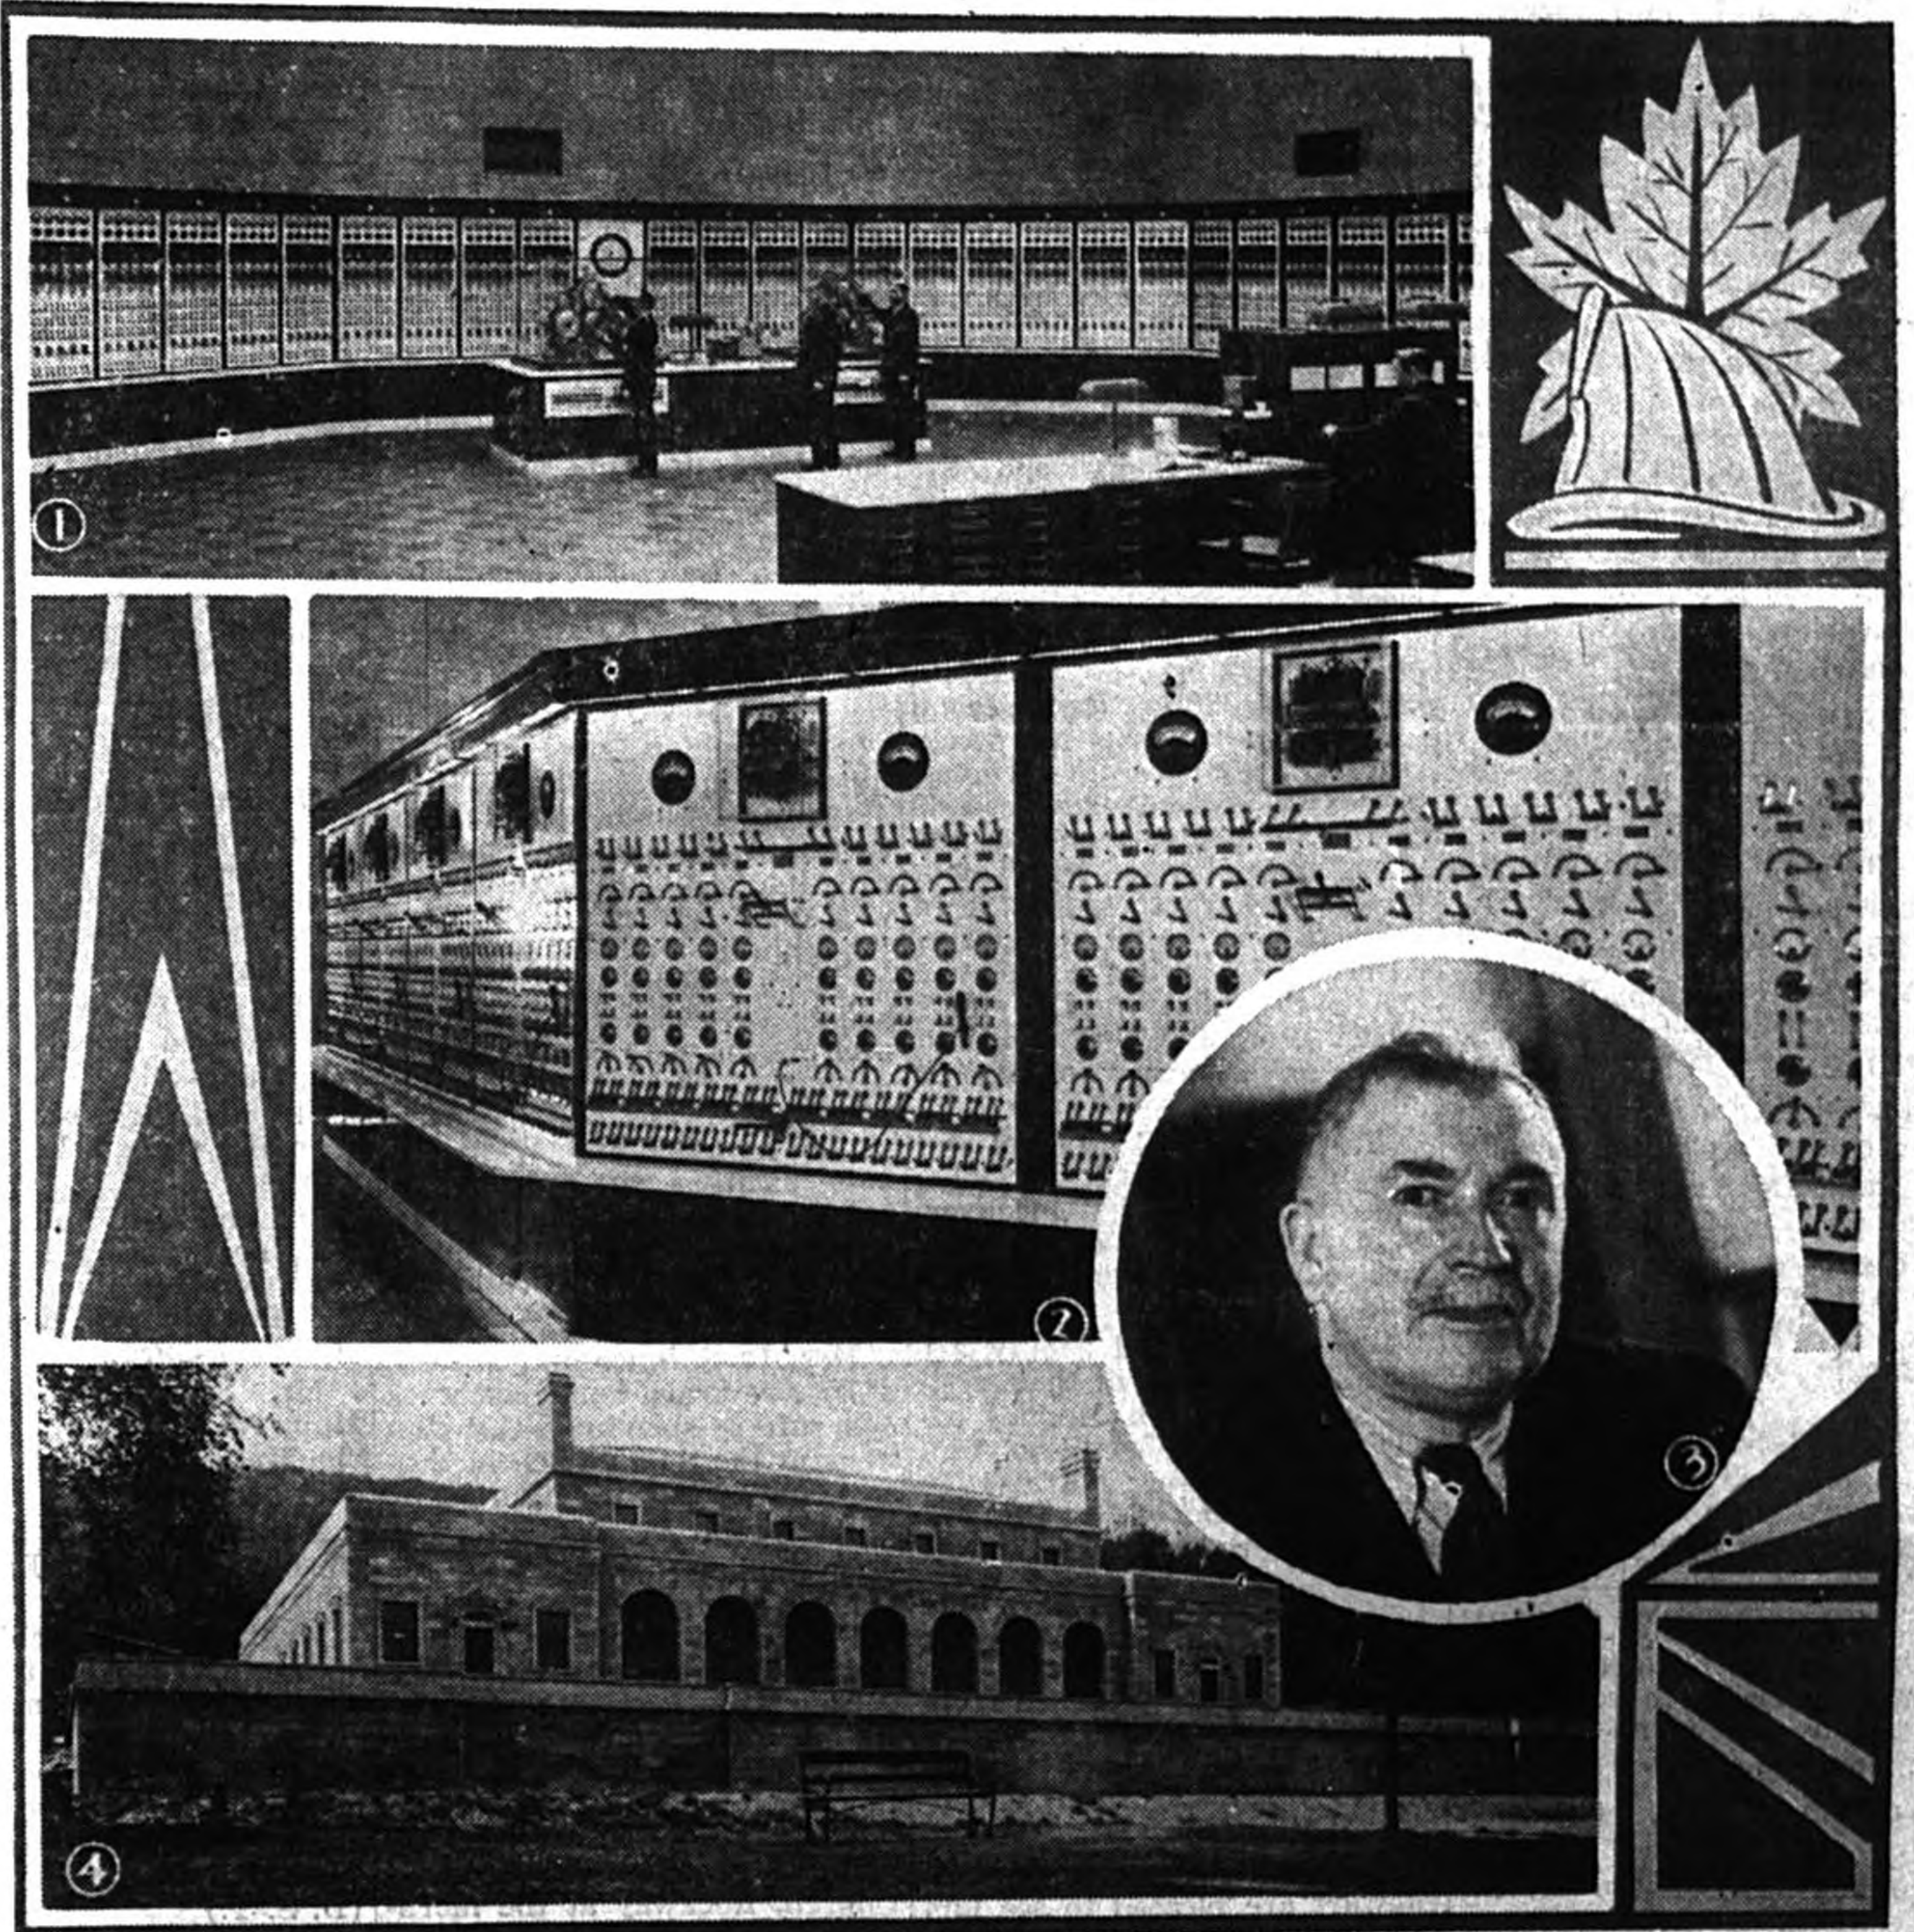

The Fire Alarm System of any city or town is perhaps the most important of its communication systems, since loss of life and destruction by fire is the most generally prevailing danger, and however complete the personnel and apparatus for fighting fire may be, their effectiveness depends upon arriving at the scene of the fire in the early stages of the conflagration. To achieve this, therefore, it is essential that the System of communication between the fire and the fire fighting equipment should be adequate and dependable at all times.

Montreal has always been keenly interested in fire fighting equipment, perhaps because in the early days it experienced two disastrous fires that literally burned themselves into the memory of its citizens and into the traditions of the city.

In the year 1856 there was a volunteer fire brigade equipped with small pumps working on the most elementary principles. In 1909 the City of Montreal put into operation what was then one of the most up-to-date Automatic Fire Alarm Systems on the North American Continent. This installation has served the city for the past twenty-four years, but owing to the rapid growth of the city during the past few

NEW $2,000,000 FIRE ALARM HEADQUARTERS

These views show the interior and exterior of Montreal's magnificent new $2,000,000 Fire Alarm Headquarters situated behind the Jacques Cartier Monument on Fletcher's Field. (1) A general view of the huge $850,000 mechanical operating room where alarms from 1,050 boxes are recorded. (2) A close-up of another section of the giant plant giving a clear idea of the intricate mechanism and dials that form part of the city's fire protection system. (3) Joseph McCaffrey, superintendent of the Fire Alarm Headquarters. He has done yeoman work in installing the new equipment and helping to perfect the system. (4) An exterior view of the plant nestling unobtrusively in the trees at the foot of the mountain.

years it was realized that the System would not long be capable of serving so large a community and that it was necessary to provide more adequate facilities for the protection of the metropolis.

Accordingly, the Fire Department commenced to plan for a new Fire Alarm Central Office which would be capable of serving the rapidly expanding District of Greater Montreal. Mr. L. Charest who until his recent retirement was Superintendent of the Fire Alarm Department, envisioned the time when the whole island would be linked to the metropolis, and planned for a Central System which would be capable of expanding with the growth of the population.

His dream is realized in the two million dollar Central Station which was officially opened by Mayor Rinfret on Thursday, June 29, on the southeasterly slope of Mount Royal in Montreal. This central Fire Alarm Office houses the largest and most comprehensive system of its kind, not only in Canada, on this Continent, or even in the Empire, but may be said to surpass anything of its kind in the whole world. Even in the fact of being housed in a fireproof building far moved from all other structures is, in itself, a decidedly modern idea which has but recently become general practice where additions to equipment or new systems are being installed.

This plan is now followed so as to prevent the danger, which is the past has not been wholly imaginary, of the destruction of the Central Fire Alarm System—by fire; and has recently been adopted by a number of cities and towns across Canada. The building is of cut stone and concrete throughout of a pleasing design with red tile roof.

This installation at the new Central Office in Montreal consists of the following units:—

Twenty-four Storage Battery Switchboards. Four, five circuit Primary, and four, five circuit secondary Alarm Boards. One, two hundred and fifty circuit Protector panel board - to protect this system against surges due to lightning, etc.

One Operator's Pedestal on which are two Master Recording Sets, and two Manually Operated four-dial and plate transmitters which send out the alarms to all Fire Stations, Hospitals and Newspaper Offices at once. These transmitters are operated something along the same lines as the dial telephone only they are much larger.

Thirty-five, five circuit Box Line Registers and take-up reels through which signals are received on paper ribbons.—and a Master Clock which controls all the time records.

The power to operate all these boards and units is derived from a bank of some twelve thousand (Continued on Page 8)

storage batteries—two batteries for each circuit—located below the main office where also are the two 70 H. P. Motor Generator Sets which are used for charging the storage batteries. Also, here is located the cable terminal board with one thousand, four hundred and forty wire terminals.

To make this huge project possible it was necessary to lay thirty-three, twenty conductor cables into the building, connecting with existing Fire Alarm circuits and providing for normal expansion.

The undertaking was designed and carried out by C. J. Des Baillet, Chief Engineer of the City of Montreal, in collaboration with Adam Crowhurst, who is known in Fire Alarm circles from Coast to Coast, and engineers of the Northern Electric Company, Limited. The equipment, supplied by this company, represents the most modern application of science to civic needs. The intricate recording mechanism is a tribute to the engineering skill of Canadian engineers and to this progressive Canadian concern.

As the accompanying photographs were taken at noon on June 27th., the actual cutting over of the last line of the system from the old Central Exchange Board to the new installation was taking place, thus bringing into being a new epoch in the Fire Alarm history of Montreal and of Canada.

Drowning Fatality at Ste. Adele

Charles Godmer, 16, of Ste. Adele, lost his life by drowning last Wednesday while bathing at a beach on Lac Rond. The body was recovered ten minutes later but artificial respiration proved futile. Dr. Ludger Labelle coroner of the Terrebonne district, pronounced a verdict of "accidental death by drowning." The youth had gone to the beach accompanied by relatives and there were also possibly a hundred other persons bathing in the vicinity. Godmer boarded a row boat and dived from the boat. He did not come back to the surface. A Montrealeer, named Leslie, saw the accident, rowed to the scene, dived and recovered the body. Artificial respiration was applied, without success.

DOGS vs. FLOWER BEDS, IS ELECTION ISSUE

One of the oddest election issues in years was settled in Topeka, Kan., when the dog lovers of that sunny city nosed out the flower lovers by a vote of 10,098 to 9,981. The result of the referendum means that the city council will not enact an ordinance prohibiting dogs from running at large and imposing penalties on the owners of dogs that do.

Nobody, when it started, realized how the campaign would set the city by the ears. It began when a group of gardeners demanded protection, complaining to the council that dogs frequently damaged their flower beds. Owners of canines promptly defended their pets. The council, glad to dodge responsibility, ordered a referendum. Both sides carried the war to the voters, speaking at mass meetings, over the radio, and through advertisements in the press. The issue, dogs versus flowers, provoked heated response from all kinds and classes of people. It overshadowed the appeals of the men and women seeking office, and drew a record number of 21,205 voters to the polls. The dogs won, but only by a little more than one-half of one per cent., which may fairly be considered a non-intoxicating triumph and nothing to howl over.

A QUEER WAGER

Three hundred voters of Omaha unknowingly signed a petition to place Zangara, who tried to assassinate President Roosevelt, in nomination for Mayor of the city.

One lawyer wagered another he could obtain the number of signatures for the candidature of any man his colleague chose. The second lawyer took the bet and told his friend to use Zangara's name. The petition was circulated and the 300 names were obtained. Those who signed were mostly professional men.

J. W. Lefebvre and P. Chabot Elected

Two vacancies for seats on the Catholic School Board gave opportunity for keen rivalry in the election held on Monday last. Messrs. Gaetan Valois and Dr. Sauvé were the retiring members, the latter of whom refused further nomination, and J. W. Lefebvre was brought forward with P. Chabot and Mr. Valois. In the fight which ensued honors went to Messrs. Lefebvre and Chabot in the following result: Lefebvre 179, Chabot 137, Valois 75.

Ten ballots were cast for Chabot, 7 for Lefebvre, and 10 for Valois. For Chabot and Lefebvre 117. For Lefebvre and Valois 55. For Chabot and Valois 10, a total of 311 voting, and two rejected ballots.

Tigers Beat Nationals in League Game

The local Tigers climbed a notch higher in the Inter-Provincial league race, by defeating the Hawkesbury Nationals at the latter's field on Tuesday.

After piling up 9 runs in the first two innings the Tigers coasted home to a 13-12 victory, just blocking a National eighth inning rally in time.

The last scheduled league game will be played on the club grounds on Monday evening, when the Nationals visit here to play the return game.

Bishop Farthing Here From Montreal

On Sunday last, the Right Reverend J. C. Farthing, Lord Bishop of Montreal, held Confirmation services at Lachute and Brownsburg. At both these services every seat was filled, it being necessary at Lachute to place chairs in the aisle to accommodate the people.

The Bishop spoke very forcibly to the candidates, and the congregations were much impressed by his inspiring words.

A Celebration of the Holy Communion was held on Monday at St. Simeon's at 8 a.m., when those who had been confirmed in this Church made their first Communion. At the Special Day service held in the afternoon, the following clergy were present from out of town: Rev. Rural Dean R. S. Booy, Reverends G. Phillips, J. E. L. Joyce, K. N. Brueton, A. E. Mount, A. Radmore, W. J. H. Lummis, T. W. Ball, C. W. P. Baugh, G. Addie, A. S. Mitchell; also a large number of lay delegates and wardens from the different parishes. After the service tea was served at the Rectory by the ladies of the Guild.

Bennett has come to bat. He has been able to prolong the World Conference. 'Tis well that we can produce a Babe Ruth in politics at the psychological moment.

Officers Installed at Local I.O.O.F.

The daily press are having a wonderful time over the economic conference. Each day's paper contradicts the previous issue according to the headlines which read something like this. "World Conference Fails to Agree," "World Conference in Accord," "Conference Doomed to Failure," "Success of Conference Assured," "Conference Strikes Snag," "Smooth Sailing at Conference," etc. There is only one way to read about it and that is to wait until it is over and then read what happened.

Prescott Boy Fatally Hurt at Dance

Everett Dalgleish, 13, was fatally hurt at a dance in Prescott, Ont., last Monday evening, when he was accidentally struck on the temple. His sister was dancing with a partner and her elbow struck her brother's forehead.

The boy dropped unconscious. A doctor was summoned and had the boy removed to his home, where he died soon afterward. Death was pronounced to be due to concussion of the brain.

United States industry has $834,577,060 invested in 903 branch plants in the Dominion of Canada, according to the report submitted to the U. S. Senate by Secretary of Commerce Roper. Increasing "tariff pressure" from Canada and to some extent from Great Britain is largely responsible for the continued migration of American industry, the survey states.

Close Call in Electric Storm at Lake Louisa

The recent electric storms are reported to have struck with full force at Lake Louisa. In a storm this week the summer residence of Mr. Wilbur Fraser on the south east shore was struck by lightning, holes being pierced through the walls, and curtains and fixtures hurled from their hangings. The bolt caused considerable property damage, and made a close call on the residents of the cottage. Athol, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser, was standing on the verandah with his cousin, and sparks of fire scorched his shirt—indicating how narrowly the occupants escaped injury or death.

BRITAIN'S FLYING DAREDEVILS EXECUTIVE DIFFICULT STUNT

A press photographer was fortunate to catch this trio of Royal Air Force planes as they shot into the air tied together with cords to perform a series of breath-taking stunts. The daring pilots were putting on their show as part of the Royal Air Force Pageant at Hendon, England.

Marriage

Bates — Stewart

St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, July 8th., at 2 o'clock, when Miss Geraldine Reid Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart, was united in marriage to Mr. Cecil Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bates, of Avoca.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Brueton. The bride entered the Church on the arm of her father, to the strains of bridal music played by her sister, Mrs. Milton Anderson of Ottawa; and she was attended by Miss Lilly Bates, sister of the groom, and the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Alvin Bates.

The bride looked charming in a beautiful gown of white crepe back satin and old lace, her veil caught in cap effect with wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and maiden hair ferns. The bridesmaid was gowned in pink satin, and carried a bouquet of tea roses and ferns. Little Miss McVicar, of Harrington East, acted as flower girl, and Master Ronald Matthews as train bearer.

A reception was held afterwards, at the home of the bride, in Grenville North, where some sixty-six guests sat down to a sumptuous supper.

Later the happy couple entertained for Quebec, Montreal, and other points, followed by showers of confetti and the good wishes of their many friends.

The bride travelled in a suit of blue crepe with white hat and accessories. On their return the couple will reside in Huntingdon, Que. A beautiful array of gifts testified to the esteem in which they are held.

Those attending from a distance included Mrs. Anderson, Sr., of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stotts, of Toronto; Mrs. Douglas Johnson and Miss Hattie Stewart, of Montreal; sisters of the bride; Miss Bates, sister of the groom, from Flint, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Neil and Miss Mary Neil, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and family of L'Orignal; Mr. Thos. Park, of Hawkesbury. Those who entertained at miscellaneous showers in honor of the bride, previous to her marriage, were Miss Elsie Trineer and Mrs. Hugh Cousins.

Two Escape, Two Return Shawbridge Boys' Farm

Two of the four boys reported to have escaped from the Boys' Farm at Shawbridge returned to the institution on Tuesday. The lads told authorities they had started for Montreal and had been unable to make the distance. They had been left behind by their companions, who were older, and they slept in a field.

Marriage

Crossfield — Crooks

The marriage of Lilian Mary, daughter of Willis Crooks and the late Elizabeth Bailey, of Grenville, Que., to Frederick Noel, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Crossfield, of Abbotsford, Que., took place on Saturday noon, July 1st., at St. Aidan's Church, Ville Emard. The Rev. W. J. Ellis officiated. The church was prettily decorated with June flowers for the occasion.

The bride was charming in a costume of pastel blue crepe with navy trimmings and hat, shoes and gloves of white. She carried a bouquet of roses and baby's breath. Mr. R. A. Gillespie, of Abbotsford, gave the bride in marriage and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. F. E. Hunter, of Ottawa, who wore a costume of peach crepe with blue hat and shoes and carried a bouquet of Canterbury bells and delphinium. Mr. John Gillespie, of Abbotsford, was best man. Mr. Herbert Buzzell presided at the organ most effectively. During the signing of the register he sang "O Promise Me."

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Crossfield left on a motor trip to Ottawa and other points in Ontario and Quebec, followed by the good wishes of the many relatives and friends present at the ceremony. On their return they will reside in Abbotsford, Que.

LENIENCY IN COLLECTION OF CIVIC TAXES

Former councils did no kindness but rather an injustice to delinquent taxpayers when they let their taxes run on without payment from year to year. Some people will say these are hard times and the council should be lenient with people who are behind in their taxes. This is all right if leniency would lessen or wipe off the obligation, but it is otherwise, for every year that taxes go behind and are not paid there is interest and expense added to the amount the tax payer finally has to pay or lose his property. Therefore, though it may appear hard, the council is really doing us all a kindness when they make us pay each year's taxes as they become due.

The insurance on municipal property should come within the purview of every council as to the sufficiency of the amount, and the financial standing of the insurance company. A small committee should be appointed to examine policies, renewal receipts and applications and report fully in reference thereto.

EARLIEST CIVIC SCANDAL

The City of Montreal's first police scandal is revealed in the minutes of the fledgling City Council for August 9, 1833. The extract:

"Resolved on motion of Dr. Lusignan, seconded by Mr. McDonnell, that the inspector of police be enjoined to be more active and vigilant in fulfilling duties attaching to his office; in view of the fact that he neglected to visit the Faubourg St. Antoine as he had been instructed to inspect a watercourse blocked by Le Sieur Louis Roy Portelance, and also to remove a dead horse lying for two days in Guy street."

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

"FIRST AND LAST"

Dear Boys :

—Rather a strange title for a letter, you may think, especially when I would point out to you this is what, in my opinion, a boy should really be ! But I can hear you say : How can I be both first and last !

Well, when you come to think about it for a moment, it is not as difficult as it sounds. There are many good things in life which you should aim to be first in obtaining; and on the other hand there are many more that it will be well worth your while to be last in getting; though with some of these, if you never had them at all you would be better off all the time. Of the good things, in the race for them it is not easy to be first. All boys desire them and make honest effort to get ahead of you in the great endeavour to win out. But remember the prize is not always to the swift, so plod along steadily, keep your eye straight on the mark, and your purpose well in mind, and you will be astonished how soon the "top of the hill" is reached and the object of your effort attained. What are some of the things you must reach for if you would get the best out of life ? Purity, honesty, manliness, and spiritual vision, are but a few that come to my mind as I write. These are pearls of great price and go to make up what we call Character, without which you have little chance of future success, no matter what your other accomplishments may be.

Also, do not forget to be last in meanness, laziness and ungodliness, and as I have already mentioned if, by God's help, you can cast these things from you and completely out of your lives, you will be the gainers.

No boy can live for himself. You must co-operate with your fellows learn to be of service to them, and by so doing you will obtain wonderful happiness for yourself. The man to be really sorry for is the one who has gained first things by disregarding the feelings of others, and those first things, though he may consider them very fine and good, are certainly not those that I mentioned to you just now.

"So strive to win regard from those you love
And offer all you have in service true
'Bad things below, the good above'
Is just the thought that you must have in view,
For, first and last, you should a servant be,
Like Christ, whose loving words were 'Follow me'"

Your affectionate friend,

THE CAPTAIN'S SERIAL
STORY OF ADVENTURE

Special to The Watchman

Chapter 24.

"And we were received as not unwelcome guests."

The sun had set in a glory of golden colour by the time the travellers had reached the hospitable entrance of River Farm, and as this place and its owner will figure largely in the remainder of our story it might be as well to go back a little and digress, in order that the young reader may possess a better understanding of things generally.

James Wilson, pioneer and farmer, had been established at River Farm for several years. He was a tall, upstanding man of some fifty-six years, and this he only considered to be the very prime of life; and in thinking thus he had certainly good reason, for there were many full ten years younger who could not show either his physical strength or mental alertness. His scattered neighbors put him down as a man well fixed in worldly goods, and this was true, for a quick mind and strong body backed by extreme energy very rarely failed to produce prosperity, in the days of which I write. When quite a young man, driven by the spirit of adventure and for no other reason at all, he had left his home on the borders of England and Scotland, and eventually after many wanderings found himself located in Quebec City. Then, on the very farm which he now owned, he commenced work as a hired man, proving of so much use to his employer and winning his regard on more than one occasion by risking his life to protect the property under his charge from marauding Indians and half-breeds, that he soon found himself a partner and son-in-law of his former employer. The years had passed and changes had taken place; and Mr. Wilson, with a family of one son and two daughters, still looked forward to many years of further work and enjoyment.

At the moment, however, he was in earnest conversation with his wife on a matter of no little importance. Walking up and down the comfortable parlour of his home, as was his habit when perplexed, he suddenly stopped short before the chair in which his wife was seated, and said—

"I am concerned about the future of our son. The time comes when he should settle to the work at hand, here on our own lands, or choose for himself a career. There is opportunity these days in the world of commerce, as this country extends its settlements and offers new avenues of trade. . . It is a question. At present the boy appears very unsettled."

Mrs. Wilson looked grave. "There I agree with you, James, it is a pity that Frank has no boy friends, for he only said to me but yesterday, 'Mother, I often wish I had a brother, not that Elsie and Rosie are not good companions, but they are not boys. What I want is a boy who will go hunting and riding with me, and girls don't like killing things.'"

Her husband laughed. "So the young rascal said that, did he ? Well, we must see what can be done. I have a good mind to send him to school in the City, and would do so if I knew of a suitable place where the boy could board while studying at his books. Not," he added hastily, "that I want to make a scholar of him. But there are going to be big changes in this country and the trading company is branching out towards the West more and more. The talk in the City is all of trading, and the money to be made in business with the Indians. Would you like your son, madam, to be a trader ?"

"I would as lief he be that if his inclinations led in that direction," Mrs. Wilson answered. "But don't let's worry any more for the present; more so if there are to be new ventures

A SILLY SONG

A jolly fat robin sat on a fence Singing a song that did not make sense,

He sang it quite loud and he sang it quite long,
This silly, foolish little song,
Turalee, turalee, turalee, turalum

Oh dear me, have I lost my tongue !

A thin old Pussy-cat crept along the rail,
With glaring green eyes and a twitching tail,

Robin sang on without any pause,
The noise of his song drowned
the noise of her claws.

Turalee, turalee, turalee, turalum,
Oh dear me, have I lost my tongue !

The cat licked her lips and her green eyes snapped.

Ha-ha, Mr. Robin ! I have got you trapped . . .

The cat jumped quickly, so did
Mr. Robin,
He sprang into the air with his brown head bobbing.

Turalee, turalee—the song turned to a wail,
The jolly fat Robin had lost his tail !

NANCY'S PUP

Who Is Jack Landon ?

When Daddy Craig came in some time later the children rushed to him all talking at once. "Daddy will we get our puppy back do you think ?"

"I am not at all sure, children.
We have got to find out who Jack Landon is first of all, and see the pup. If it is our pup we have a right to have it, if we want it."

"Oh, we want it, Daddy," Nora cried.

We surely do !" Ned said, "we are not going to let any old Jack Landon keep our puppie."

"What does mother say about it?" their daddy asked.

"Oh, mother wants it too," said Billy, "I know she does."

Maud had been watching her mother's face; "I am not so sure that she does," she said half under her breath.

"What about it, Mother?
Shall we hunt up this Jack Landon and make him give us the puppy ?"

"Ten dollars is a lot to pay these times, John, for a dog that we do not really need; is it not ?" said Mother Craig.

"But if we can force him to give it up without the ten dollars, Mother, are you willing that we should get it and bring it home?"

"John, you are really as anxious to have the puppie as the children, I do believe," Mother Craig said, half laughing.

Billy threw himself on to her knee clasped her face in his two hands and whispered coaxingly,
"May we have the puppie, Mother?
May we ?—Please say yes, Mother."

Baby John toddled along and clutched at her skirts repeating after Billy, like a little parrot
"Pleath, say yeth, Muvver."

"Oh well, seeing you are all so anxious to have it. I'll say

yes. If it is Nancy's Pup and you can get it without paying the money—bring it home with you."

"Hurrah !" shouted Ned, dashing out of the door and turning one hand spring after the other, Nancy running beside him and barking excitedly.

"You would think that she understood all we were saying and was delighted over the idea of having her puppie once more" said Maud.

"I really cannot understand how she came to lose it in the first place," Sue said, with a perplexed wrinkle showing quite plainly on her soft white forehead.
"I should think if it were anywhere in existence, that Nancy would know where it was."

"Unless this Jack Landon stole it," said Billy. "If he did he does not deserve to be paid for it. It is ours."

"I was just wondering," said Maud, "if that ragged looking boy we saw over at Grundy's would be Jack Landon. He has not been long there, and Landon is not a common name. Do you suppose it would be he, Daddy ?" she asked, as her father started to open up his evening paper.

"Do I suppose that who would be he?" Daddy Craig smiled down into her eager little face.

"Do you suppose that new boy over at Grundy's would be Jack Landon ?"

Daddy Craig turned swiftly to look towards Grundy's place.
"It would just be like Grundy to do something of that sort,"
he said slowly. "Much as I dislike him, I believe I shall pay him a visit."

"You are not going to Grundy's, surely, John ?" Mother Craig looked anxious. They had no reason for being fond of this surly old neighbor of theirs.

"I am afraid I must, Mary, Maud has just given me an idea who Jack Landon might be besides I have noticed Grundy chuckling as it were to himself, as though he had some great secret that was pleasing him mightily, whenever we happen to be working in our fields near to each other. I would not be at all surprised if this was some scheme of his, particularly the ten dollar part of it ! If Grundy has our pup over there, I am getting it back and there will be no ten dollars paid for it either !"

Maud noticed that her father's hand was clenching and un-clenching nervously, as though they were just aching to get hold of Grundy.

"Let him have it, Daddy," she said, going close to her father and taking hold of his hand
"He's old and perhaps he likes it. Uncle Ned said last winter that he must be lonely, living alone like that."

"My little peacemaker," her father said, smiling down at her. "He may be lonely, Maud, but I do not think he has it in him to love any one but himself and his money; and I am afraid he would not be kind to a puppie. I cannot rest content until I at least see this dog, if it's there. I shall turn the cattle into the pasture for the night, undertaken. No doubt he will make his way even without our help."

Just then there was a shout from outside and the rumble of wheels as the cart entered the entrance of the stockade and the farmer looking up exclaimed : "Why, Sharp Eye has returned from the city and with him are guests. Make haste good wife to welcome strangers to our home !"

then go over to Grundy's."

While their father was gone
the children held a consultation.

"I am sure he will not give the puppie up without money, even if it is ours," said Ned.
"What shall we do about it ?
Shall we take the money out of our banks to pay him for it, and save Daddy's money ?"

"That is a splendid idea," Nora said. "I am quite willing to give all the money I have in my bank, to save Nancy's pup from that old Grundy man."

"I am too," said Billy. "I am going to get my bank right now and carry it with me. We won't need to open them unless we are going to get the pup."

"But how will we know how much we have got if we don't open them?" questioned Nora.

"I think we had better open them," Ned suggested, "Maud can be our secretary and keep track of what each one has."

"Hurry then, and get your banks while I get a pencil. Daddy will be back before we can count the money if we don't hurry."

Mother Craig had gone out to shut her chicken house for the night. Sue was putting Baby John to bed, so the coast was clear. The children scampered upstairs, caught up their banks and hurried out to the back verandah where Maud was waiting to count the money.

Counting carefully, she jotted down the fact that Ned had three dollars in his bank, Nora four, Billy two, and there was four also in her own. Wrapping the money carefully in a handkerchief and putting it into a small box she dropped it into her pocket as well as the pencil, and followed the children around to the front to meet their daddy as he came toward the house.

Aunt Jean.

Popular Inauguration

President Van Buren's was the first inauguration without a party for the populace. And the populace was pretly peeved about it. But a few terms later, the Buchanan inauguration party, held in tents in Judiciary square, made up for everything. The cake was four feet high, with the arms of every state on it. The wine bill was $3,000. Here are a few of the items: 400 gallons of oysters, 500 quarts of chicken salad, 1,200 quarts of ice cream, 500 quarts of jellies, 60 saddles mutton, four saddles venison, eight rounds of beef, 75 hams, and 125 tongues.

Ivanhoe and Ignace

One day David, whose mind tends more to mechanics than it does to literature, said to his mother:

"Who is this Ivanhoe I hear them talking about?"

James, a few years old, overhearing him, began to laugh and said: "A great big boy like you and don't know who Ivanhoe is."

"Huh," said David, "you think you are so smart. I'll bet you don't know who Ignace Boniface is."

"Why, why," stammered James, "I think he is a writer."

"No," said his brother, "he isn't. He is a colored boy in my class at school."

Worried

L. Edmunds of Glendale writes:

"I knew a little fellow whose mother made him go to church overmuch. He didn't know what it was all about but the solemnity of the service awed him.
"One day, after they had returned from church and the mother was giving the child a little additional Bible talk he interrupted her saying:
"Close the door, Hallelujah might come in."—Los Angeles Times.

Hope

The poets are full of appreciation of hope that makes an otherwise drab life endurable. Tennyson speaks of "the mighty hopes that make us men." Milton says, "What re-enforcement we may gain from hope." "Hope will make thee young," says Shelley.

Seeing Quebec

The Call of Gaspé.

It was somewhere on the coast of the Bay of Gaspé that Jacques Cartier, driven by a fierce storm, took refuge in the year 1534. His hardy companions felled several trees and erected a huge cross, bearing in a shield the glorious fleur de lys with the inscriptions: "Vive le Roi!" Thus was it on Gaspé soil that the discoverer of Canada took possession of the land for "Christ and the King".

The people, now living in the Peninsula, are the descendants of the early traders and fishermen who, shortly after the discovery, came over from France—Acadians, exiled from their country by the British, as well as the English Loyalists, self-exiled from the States at the time of the American Revolution also came to Gaspé as to a haven. Others, from the British Isles as well as from the islands of Jersey and Guernsey, came in the course of time, attracted by the great fishing opportunities.

Both the French and English languages are spoken in the Peninsula—French almost exclusively along the North Shore although the English language will be found predominant along the Baie des Chaleurs.

The people of Gaspé have remained unspoiled by the encroachments of modern civilization.

Among these exceedingly hospitable fishermen and agriculturists, who have so faithfully preserved the habits of their forefathers, the tourists will spend many undimmed moments in quaint and different environment, enjoying at the same time the homely philosophy of the people and the magnificent scenery of the country.

The numerous towns and villages have kept much of their primitive aspect. Along the road, are yet to be seen the old family well with its inspiring oaken bucket and the typical outdoor bread oven. Occasionally, the motorist meets or passes a team of oxen, lumbering along without any thought of speed limits or traffic cops.

And Gaspé is the country of contrasts.

Here, a luxurious beach, justifying by its swanky magnificence, the name "Riviera of the New World",—sometimes applied to the South Shore of Gaspé. And, there, only a few miles away, lies a typical fisherman hamlet, recalling some picturesque villages of Brittany. And, everywhere, glorious colorings, gorgeous sunsets and a delightful sea breeze. It is interesting to note that hay fever, the bane of so many summer resorts, is unknown along the Gaspé coast lines.

The man of modest means may afford the trip to Gaspé quite as easily as the wealthy. You may indeed, all along the route, obtain accommodation at prices that will surprise you most agreeably.

The roads are good and kept in perfect condition.

To hunters and fishermen, Gaspé offers of course opportunities never to be forgotten.

To the business man, Gaspé is an interesting subject for a survey; the country is exceedingly rich in natural resources, which are still dormant and unexploited.

The Percé Rock, the "pièce de résistance" of the Peninsula, is one of the most wonderful sights of the whole continent.

Gaspé may be visited by automobile, by railroad or by boat.

You may obtain information, literature, road maps from the Provincial Tourist Bureau, 1013 Dominion Square, Montreal.

This office is open at all times. You will find there competent information and courteous attention.

The Provincial Road Map distributed free by the Provincial Tourist Bureau, will be found of great practical value to the Quebecer who plans to visit his province, whether his plans take him to the Laurentians, to the Eastern Townships or to Gaspé. This map is really the indispensable "vade mecum" of the motorist, touring the province.

REV. JAMES FRASER

The school days of my uncle the Revd. James Fraser of Cushing, as I have gleaned them from his school mates of Quebec High School:

In giving a resume of his life it would not be complete without his school days at Quebec City. My uncle's father, Alexander Fraser, wholesale and retail grocer at the foot of Palace Hill, was the son of a private soldier of the regiment of Gordon Highlanders who remained in Canada after his regiment was disbanded, following the taking of Canada from France, and he made no pretensions about birth or clan; he said he had not time; but he stuck to business as a grocer and in time came to be well and widely known up and down the St. Lawrence River from Montreal, far down the gulf of St. Lawrence. In his day a bonne or due bill signed by him was considered as good as the legal tender of these days. His wife was a Miss Badnock of Quebec City, and seven of their children grew to maturity. James was the oldest boy. Of his school days I knew but little, save what I have gleaned from his school mates, and from the beginning quiet little James led his class and led the games on the school campus—as well as winning the respect of all his school fellows. Not that he ever told me this, but they did, as well as how he carried off the first prizes for English, French, Latin, Greek, History, Mathematics, Composition, Literature, etc., and a goodly number of these same prizes are in my possession today—handsome volumes, interesting and valuable, bound in cloth with the stamps of the High School of Quebec on their covers. In my own boyhood days these same school mates, men of distinction, frequently stopped over a day or two as they journeyed to and fro, to have a quiet visit with him for the sake of old times. Or if the season permitted it a couple of days trout fishing in the Wentworth lakes, among the French Canadians, where he was a most welcome visitor. They called him there among themselves, Notre Ministre. Or they fished among the Harrington lakes where he was equally well known and respected among the Scotch folk who in some cases spoke no English, though he spoke no Gaelic. And they knew him as Fraser the Peace Maker and quite frequently he was called to pour oil on the troubled waters among them and settle their religious differences. One Scot is said to have claimed it was worth while having a good row, if it was only to get Little Fraser to come and visit among them.

The Ottawa Spotlight
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, July 11. There hasn't been much about it in the papers, but events of the past two or three months have worked wonders behind the scenes at Ottawa and other parts of the country. For a couple of years the growing tension and anxiety at Ottawa as the depression grew worse developed into a regular nightmare. The government never knew where the next blow would fall, nor what the next crisis would be. But now the tension is lifting.

For instance:
1. A few months ago provincial governments in the west were at their wits end to know where to raise money for unemployment relief. They had exhausted all other possibilities and could only come to Ottawa for help. The federal government was falling away behind and rapidly reaching the end of its tether. National bankruptcy didn't seem so far away. Now the financial market has so far improved that last week Manitoba, one of the sorest stricken, was able to go out and offer $3,500,000 in debentures to pay for relief.
2. The rise in value of the Canadian dollar in U. S. funds has tremendously simplified the problem of the Canadian debtor in the United States. With adverse exchange at one time as much as 20% it was rapidly ruining certain individuals and municipalities with heavy obligations abroad, and it added to the deficits of several provinces. In the current year Canada's obligations in New York funds run to about $260,000,000, counting principal and interest. With U. S. money at 20% premium this meant an extra fifty million or so added to the bill. Now there is even the possibility that before the year is out debts in the U. S. may be settled in Canadian money at less than dollar for dollar. Already the relief in this direction has been important.

Can Use it Elsewhere
3. The federal government, urged to help out the farm exporter to the United States, who was losing heavily from adverse exchanges, voted last session some $10,000,000 to pay the difference between $4.60 per pound and what the shipper got. Now it looks as though the government will be able to use that sum elsewhere, and heaven knows there are plenty of other places where it will be useful.

4. There was a time, not so long ago, when the value of securities had tumbled so badly that insurance companies, especially those with heavy investments in common stocks, were in difficulty showing assets equal to liabilities. Not that there was any real bankruptcy, but balance sheets looked bad, and the public was losing confidence. The recent rise in the value of securities has cured all that. The government is relieved, because it would probably have had to come to the rescue of any company in trouble. The same was true to some extent of Canadian banks. As the depression developed, some of their assets got frozen in. Now they are getting thawed out again, and the possibility of a dangerous 'run' is apparently over.

Looks Like Profit.
5. With wheat as low as 39 cents last December, and the federal government indirectly holding some 150 million bushels which had cost nearer 60 cents, a loss of fifty millions from the federal treasury looked possible at one stage. Now with wheat nearer 80 cents, there may even be a profit for the western wheat pools, which were all but smashed by the decline in wheat a couple of years ago.

6. The railway problem a few months ago was almost the despair of the government, threatening to engulf the national finances into bankruptcy or to compel repudiation of guaranteed securities. Now with the quickening of business, even this 'Old Man of the Sea' is a lighter burden.

Of course it isn't all beer and skittles yet, by any means. Stern economies are being put into practice. National revenues have dropped something appalling. Even the rise in the Canadian dollar has its dark side. Our export trade in the U. S. may be affected, and Canada is no longer such an attraction for the U. S. tourist and shopper. However, by and large, the recent upturn has been a vast relief to the battered and strained federal capital. Here's hoping the upturn continues to thrive.

Two screen favorites appear Friday and Saturday at the Rex, presenting one of the greatest of recent movie achievements "Today We Live." Don't miss Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper in this masterpiece.

Alleged Coal Profiteers Face Charge Today

Formal complaints are being laid today, in Quebec, against seven Montreal coal firms charged with operating a combine detrimental to public interest. Louis St. Laurent, K.C., will act on behalf of the province in conducting the prosecution as result of the investigation carried on last winter by F. A. McGregor, appointed by the Dominion Government to probe the coal import situation in the Dominion.

12th. JULY PICNIC

Favored by ideal weather, Orangemen of the County were early astir on Wednesday for their gatherings to celebrate the "Glorious Twelfth." The local lodge of Lachute joined with Louisa, Shrewsbury and Morin Heights where a picnic was held in the Grove of Lieut-Col. Jos. E. Seale, who accorded hearty welcome to the visitors and friends. The Brethren and Sisters assembled at the Grove and marched in a body through the town headed by Pipers and Drummers, after which inspiring addresses were given by the Rev. J. A. Lackey, Rev. W. J. H. Lummis and others. Games were later indulged in and a good programme of races in which there was keen competition. The National Anthem was heartily sung and thanks expressed for the pleasant day spent in the pretty little town of Morin Heights.

Mr. John Campbell returned home this week, after a very enjoyable trip to Vancouver and other Western points, visiting his brother, sister and many other friends en route. As it is nearly forty years since Mr. Campbell paid a visit to the West, he finds many changes and a great improvement.

GOLF & TENNIS CLUB ACTIVITIES

The tennis section of the "Lachute Golf and Tennis Club" has given the first demonstration of its value by defeating the "Ayers" tennis club, the terror of the tennis clubs of this district. The fight held on the courts of the "Ayers club," was exceedingly tense and afforded a thrilling spectacle. After a weak start, in which the Golf went under for two events, the guests made a fine rally to win the next two.

A thunder-storm deferred the match for a few days. Last Wednesday when resumed, the players from the Golf sticking to their rally, after a hard battle, came through with a lead of 5-2.

After the match, an enjoyable reception was tendered to the guests at the spacious Ayers' Hall. The entertainment in the evening was a delightful success.

The tennis section of the "Lachute Golf and Tennis Club" is most heartily thankful to the "Ayers" club for their sportsmanship and courtesy.

The annual Summer tennis tournament of the "Lachute Golf and Tennis Club" is near completion. The results so far especially amongst the ladies section, have been surprising.

The cups will be presented to the winners on Saturday the 22nd. of July in the afternoon.

Lachute Skating Rink saw goodly crowds gathered to witness the Rodeo entertainment this week. High jumpers, performing dogs, juggling acts and lots of fun for the spectators when the challenge is accepted by young men who are tempted by the lure of $1.00 a minute to anyone who can stay on the back of "Dixie", the comedy mule. Lots of fun. Show reopens tomorrow in Brownsburg.

ISAIAH DENOUNCES DRUNKEN- NESS AND OTHER SINS

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 5:1-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness ex-alteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. Prov. 14:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Gifts.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Wrong Road.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Attacking Wrongs Without Gloves.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Evils Which Must Be Overcome.

I. Israel, the Unique and Beloved Nation (vv. 1-7).

The unique relation of this nation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard (v. 1).

1. God's peculiar favor shown (v. 2).
God did for this nation what he did for no other nation in the history of the world.

a. He "fenced it" when he assigned the boundaries of Israel's inheritance (see Num. 34:1-13).

b. He "gathered out the stones thereof" when the Canaanites were exterminated.

c. He "planted it with the choicest vine" when the Israelites nation, which had gone through the disciplinary process in Egyptian bondage, was placed therein.

d. He "built a tower in the midst of it" when under David Jerusalem was made the capital city.

e. He "made a winepress therein" when the temple built by Solomon became the fixed place of worship for the nation.

2. The obligation of the nation (v. 2).
"He looked that it should bring forth grapes." The word looked expresses the idea, not only of desire, but of expectation.

3. The divine disappointment (vv. 3, 4).
"It brought forth wild grapes." Instead of sweet, luscious grapes, they bore grapes of a sour and unwholesome kind.

4. The desolation of the vineyard (vv. 5-7). Since all efforts had been wasted, the owner of the vineyard purposes to take away the fences and leave it to be exposed to the wild beasts to waste and devour.

II. The Sins Which Brought Ruin to Israel (vv. 8-23).

1. Monopoly and oppression (vv. 8-10). The crime against which the first two were denounced was that of the avaricious grasping after property which leads to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. This state of affairs met God's judgment in Judea (vv. 9, 10), as one day it shall likewise do in America.

2. Dissipation (vv. 11-17). The particular sin denounced here is that of drunkenness. How we shudder to contemplate what God may do to America as she brings back liquor! This sin is never alone.

a. Drinking made the life-business of some (v. 11). They get up early in the morning and continue until late at night. A duplication of this will soon be seen in all of our American cities.

b. A show of refinement (v. 12).
The saloon and brothel always have music. Pleasing music was always heard pouring forth from the infamous saloon. The prostitution of music has led many an unsuspecting youth into the way of sin.

c. Blindness to God's warnings and judgments (v. 12). Drinking and dissipation render men insensible to God's dealings.

d. God's judgments for such sin (vv.
13-17). The people were carried into captivity. Not only would they go into captivity, but there was great mortality among the drunkards (v. 14).
The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men than among abstainers. Drinking degrades all classes (v. 15). The rich and mighty men are brought down with the poor and humble. Even the country itself was made desolate (v.

3. Unbelief (vv. 18, 19). This woe is denounced against the sinner who presumptuously plunges into vice. He is not overtaken with sin, but deliberately goes after it and works at it.
He becomes so daring as to defy the judgments of the Almighty (v. 19).

4. Moral confusion (v. 20). This woe is pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sensual appetites.

5. Conceit (v. 21). The fifth woe is pronounced against the sin of selfconceit.

6. Perversion of justice (vv. 22, 23).
The sixth woe is pronounced against judges who, because of a lack of moral discrimination, and the desire for temporal gain, cause justice to miscarry.

III. Predicted Judgment (vv. 24-30).
The historic fulfillment of these predictions are but types of the severe ones which are to follow.

The Soul Beautiful

The colored sunsets and starry heavens, the beautiful mountains and the shining seas, the fragrant woods and painted flowers, are not half so beautiful as a soul that is serving Jesus out of love, in the wear and tear of common, unpoetic life.—Faber.

His Will, Not Mine

"I cannot wish things were different from what they are, for if I do this, I wish my will not his to be done."—
Gen. Charles G. Gordon.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

What a monotonous old world this would be if we all thought alike. Mercy me, there would be nothing to talk about! One of my friends and I were invited out for afternoon tea. Our hostess has the idea that tea is not a meal and that to serve a large variety of food spoils the appetite for the next meal. This is my idea too. I feel that it is not good taste to serve a large variety of foods for a simple tea.
If the tea is a large one and formal, that is a different matter and more latitude may be allowed, but to have a cup of tea with a friend or two, to my mind, it is sufficient to serve not more than two things and many a time I serve only one, when it is not a party but just a friend or two dropping in. After we left the tea in question, my friend criticised our hostess for having served so little for tea. She was brought up in the old school of lavish hospitality and a profuse variety of food. Our view-point was exactly opposite. I thought that delicious hot biscuits and lovely little raspberry tarts were all that anyone could want. What do you think about it?

HOT WEATHER DINNERS

When the very hot days come most people do not want the usual meat, potatoes and gravy dinner. They instinctively look for something different. The wise cook will give them this and either eliminate meat entirely or reduce it to a very subordinate position. Vegetable meals can be made more attractive to the eye, and you know we eat with our eyes, if they are served in the kitchen and each plate arranged with a care for colour contrasts. All art is not confined to the artist's studio.
If your family think that they must have meat, add a little crisp bacon to your vegetable dinner. Here are some menus which we used in a recent hot spell. There is nothing unusual about any of them, but we happened to have a houseful of guests and none of the appetites appeared to flag, I judged the menus satisfactory.
The first two are for days when it is too hot to want the usual meals but not too hot to cook a little.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TOPIC IS "LIFE"

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 16, is "Life."

The Golden Text is: (John 17:3) "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

The following passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook.
"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

"Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."
(John 8:12).

"Let the perfect model be present in your thoughts instead of its demoralized opposite. This spiritualization lets in the light, and brings the divine Mind, Life not death, into your consciousness." (Science and Health page 407.)

Rolls Watermelon

This last dinner looked specially attractive. I piled the asparagus in the centre of a platter and arranged the shrimps at either end. The green of the asparagus and the pink of the shrimps made a pleasing contrast. The first dinner had an attractive color scheme too.
Well-thickened tomatoes were placed on one side of the noodles and buttered carrots on the other and the green beans between. When asparagus is available, a stalk of it may be placed between the different vegetable to make a dividing line.

DATE ALMOND TAPIOCA

2 cups milk
10 dates
1 egg
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon butter
2 tablespoons quick tapioca
1 teaspoon almond
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Put milk, tapioca, sugar, butter and dates in the top of a double boiler and heat. When it has come almost to a boil put over hot water and cook for twenty minutes, stirring vigorously several times to shred the dates. Beat the egg separately.
Add a little of the cooked mixture to the egg yolk and then stir it through. Fold in the beaten egg white, add the flavouri-ng, and chill thoroughly. If the mixture is quite thick add a little milk as the pudding should not be stodgy and remember it gets thicker as it gets cold. Serve with cream.

ORANGE FLUFF

Make a package of orange jelly and chill until it becomes syrupy. Then beat with a rotary beater until fluffy. If you have cream, fold in a half cup of cream whipped. Pile in individual dishes and chill. If you do not happen to have cream, fold in a stiffly beaten egg white instead and serve with a custard sauce made from the egg yolk.

"Lachute"

By Dr. W. Leslie-Dixon

Let me sing your praises with Lyre, Harp or Lute,
But I could ne'er do justice to "Fair
Lachute".
Busy little town, rearing your head
so proud.
Each week adds a few more lusty babies to your crowd.
You have a health unit, and an active
V. O. N.
Calling at your homes again and again.
A helping hand they are always ready to give.
Teaching you the clean and healthy way to live.
Your enterprising newspaper "The Watchman" I've scanned.
And your City Fathers, an excellent city have planned.
Now what can compare, to your annual "Fair".
With its cattle, dogs, and poultry and the newest plough-share.
You have up-to-date stores, with viands, furnishings and fixtures.
And a Theatre "The Rex" showing the latest of pictures.
An "Auditorium" of beautiful architecture and plentiful dimension
For socials and gatherings, and forum debates without dissension.
For politics without party, criticism without cant, Without fear or favour, rancour or rant.
I entered your city when I was in a sorry condition,
And for this I owe my deepest contrition.
But a thousand thanks I also owe,
to some ladies who brought me flowers
To brighten my room, chase away
the gloom, and bring me happy hours.
Now I'm up and about again, it is more than I deserve,
But I thank the Lord my Saviour, that your city I can now observe.
Factories and mills, and river combined,
And the beauty of nature for an appreciative mind.
Hotels, cafes, and a golf links to boot.
Now who could ask more of your
"Fair Lachute"!

DECISIONS OF MUNICIPAL INTEREST

from the Courts of Quebec

SALARY OF SCHOOL EMPLOYEE EXEMPT

While employees of parish and village municipal and school corporations are public officers within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure, their salaries are not seizable in whole or in part, Mr. Justice Martineau, of the Superior Court, ruled recently in quashing the seizure of the salary of A. A. Libersan, of Ste. Genevieve.
The judgment is important in that His Lordship draws a legal distinction between officers of parish and village municipal and school corporations and corresponding officers in cities and towns.

Joseph Chartrand took a seizure, in execution of judgment against Libersan, secretary-treasurer of the school commission of the municipality and parish of Ste. Genevieve, of the trustees of the parish and of the corporation itself, from whom he receives salaries amounting to $325 a year. Judgment was rendered against Libersan on the seizure but he filed an opposition on the ground that his salary was not seizable under paragraph 9 of article 599 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or, if it was seizable, was only seizable to the amount of one-fifth of the total.

Paragraph 9, Mr. Justice Martineau pointed out in notes accompanying his judgment, regulates the seizure of salaries of public officers and paragraph 10 of the same section regulates the seizure of salaries of certain municipal employees. At first glance, His Lordship noted, one would be led to believe that for the legislator municipal officers, clerks, secretary-treasurers, etc., of cities and towns, are not public officers within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure.

This, he continued, was an error because in the statutes which have amended the Code of Civil Procedure in this matter, these functionaries are considered to be public officers. Why then, His Lordship asked, were they referred to in two paragraphs of the article? He believed this change to be due to the commissioners charged with the preparations of the new code "who,
in this matter, as in several others, did not improve the old legislation." And if clerks of cities and towns were public officers, there could be no doubt that secretaries of school commissions and of parish and village municipalities were also.

If they were their salary seizable, or a part of it? The plaintiff contended that the money paid to Libersan by the corporations was not a salary and could, therefore, be seized in whole. But His Lordship could see no difference between the money Libersan received and the money paid to clerks in cities and towns.
Could it be seized in part? His Lordship thought not. The principle laid down in paragraph 9 was that the salaries of public officers could not be seized, the law making exceptions only in the case of municipal officers of cities and towns and those of the province itself. The salary of the others, then, could not be seized, it being impossible to extend the exceptions by analogy.

ONTARIO FIRM AND ASPHALT PLANTS

Defaulting before the Superior Court, the city of Montreal was condemned by Mr. Justice Duclos to pay Waterous, Limited, of Brantford, Ont., $104,453, representing the price of two asphalt plants and accessories sold to the city in 1931.

Waterous, Limited, sued under the terms of an agreement dated May 18, 1931, whereby the city agreed to purchase the two asphalt plants.
Later it was claimed, the city refused to take delivery of the plants, and in suing for the amount mentioned the company offered to deliver the plants at any time.

The city filed a plea in defence, entering a general denial, but when the case was called for trial before Mr. Justice Duclos, the city failed to appear. The company satisfied Mr. Duclos that its claim was valid and he rendered judgment against the city for $104,453, with interest on $100,169 from January 3, 1933, each party paying its own costs; and granted acte to the plaintiff of its statement that it is ready to deliver the things ordered.

LACHINE AND TAX EXEMPTION

Tax exemption granted to the predecessors of Canadian Allis-Chalmers, Limited, by the city of Lachine for 25 years, expired in 1927, the Court of Appeals ruled recently, and accordingly it reversed a judgment of the Superior Court dismissing Lachine's action to collect 1927 taxes from the company and, rendering judgment anew on the action, ordered the company to pay the city $10,505.

In August 1927, Lachine acting on statutory powers, passed by-law 443 imposing a tax of 1.36 of one per cent. on taxable immovables within the municipality. The Canadian Allis-Chalmers, Limited, owns an industrial plant within the city limits and under the new tax this plant and other property was taxed $18,578, on which the company paid $8,983. When it refused to pay the balance the city sued to recover but the action was dismissed by the Circuit Court here.

The property now owned by the Lachine company was formerly owned by the James Cooper Manufacturing Company and others, and before 1912 were located in the parish of St. Agnes de Lachine, which was annexed to Lachine in that year. Lachine, under the annexation agreement, took over the smaller municipality's obligations with respect to tax exemptions granted by it.

In 1900 St. Agnes de Lachine had exempted the Cooper properties from taxation for a period of 25 years from September 1, 1902, and the Canadian Allis-Chalmers invoked this exemption to avoid payment of taxes for 1927. The only question for the Appeal Court to decide was whether or not the exemption period had expired by 1927.

For the company it was argued, the Superior Court held, that as the by-law imposing the tax was passed during the exemption period, the tax was not applicable to the company for 1927. For Lachine it was argued, and the Appeal Court ruled in this sense, that the tax became payable when the assessment roll was made up.

As the assessment roll was made up in October, 1927, and the exemption period ended in September of that year, the company became liable for the tax. Accordingly, the judgment of the Superior Court was declared invalid and the Appeal Court rendering a new judgment, ordered the company to pay Lachine $10,505, with interest at six per cent. on $9,320 from January 15, 1930, and at five per cent. on $1,184 from the date of service of the action.

DEAD CAT ON DOORSTEP!

What's a man to do when he finds a dead cat on his doorstep late Saturday night—is the pungent query of a Montreal Star reporter.

Put it in the ice-box and carefully preserve it for the abattoir man on Monday? Or sling it on the doorstep of a police station for the entertainment of "Montreal's finest?"

Here is the weighty question to be decided and rumor has it that a Recorder-in-Chief, not a plain Recorder, may be necessary for such an important case. For the police have complained that one John P. Clift, living on St. Luke Street, did, on the night of April 22, unlawfully throw, heave, sling, toss or otherwise project, on to the door-step of the police station at the corner of St.
Matthew and St. Luke Streets one cat (dead).

The charge, (if any develops), against Mr.
Clift comes under by-law 270 prohibiting the throwing in the street of dead animals. But Mr.
Clift will lean heavily on by-law 679 which says
"the city shall look after the removal and destruction of carrion." And then he will ask the Recorder why, when a Montrealer consults the police for advice, he should get the suggestion to put Pussy in the ice-box beside the Sunday roast.
For that is what the citizen insists did happen.
And finally he will ask the judge: "What would you have done?"

HAVE PITY ON POOR MAN
Sixty Minnesota editors refused to mention the Minnesota state fair unless they were given $15 each for doing so. The fellows were in the right. Editors as a rule are expected to do too much advertising without compensation. The manager of the church social comes to the editor: "Give us a good send-off on the ice cream social which we are giving on Mrs. Jenkins' lawn". She little realizes that printer's ink costs something; there is the rent to pay, the heat and light to settle for, the men must be paid large salaries each Saturday night; the print paper each week costs perhaps $10 or $15, to say nothing of the power that runs the presses. The type wears out, the machinery gets old and out of repair and has to be replaced with new machinery which is more expensive the freight, like the taxes, must be paid, and it costs the editor at least fifteen cents a day to live, for he has to invest in little corn meal and rice, to say nothing of his smoking tobacco. He has to get a new suit of clothes at least once in two years and his $2 shoes wear out after long weary hours of pacing up and down the street trying to corral the fellow who promise to pay, but didn't. Yes, the editor is running a charitable institution. He doesn't need anything for those write-ups. The editor gets his reward in heaven.

Plunged to Death in Shallow Water of North River at St. Jerome

Diving into the North River at St. Jerome last Saturday evening, without first ascertaining the depth, Paul Papineau, 21, of Montreal, struck the sandy bottom with his head and suffered a fractured spine. He died Sunday afternoon in the Notre Dame Hospital.

It was learned the victim had climbed on a plank used as a diving board and before anyone could warn him that there was only three feet of water beneath the board, Papineau dived and failed to come up. Friends found his body huddled in a heap at the bottom of

Prospect of International Bridge near Prescott

The governor of New York State has appointed a state commission to formulate plans for a new international bridge across the St. Lawrence near Prescott—which is considered a promising step toward the project long hoped for and discussed in that section of the valley.

So far as the United States is concerned, the necessary authority of congress has been granted. An application will be made to the Dominion at the next session of parliament.

His head had penetrated into the sand and he was unconscious. Removed later to Montreal he died in hospital without regaining consciousness.

Local Tigers Have Been Active

After playing a heavy schedule during the past week, the Tigers split their games by winning two and losing two. Of these, two were league fixtures. On Friday the locals lost to Research, the present league champions, 21-6; and on Monday trimmed the Nationals in the last league game by 22-6.

Playing two exhibition games, Tigers defeated St. Andrews 25-5, but dropped the second to the C. P. R. on Saturday last, when the latter held their annual picnic at the fair grounds. Facing an exceptionally strong battery the Tigers took the short end of 11-3.

The Club drawing was held after the Tiger-Nationals game. The National's manager, Bob Wilson, acting as master of ceremonies, drew the winners who were: 1st, Joe Desjardins, 5707 St. Dominique St., Montreal; 2nd, Roger Filion, Lachute; 3rd, F. S. Shaded, Lachute; 4th, H. McFaul, Lachute.

Square Dealing—A Hint that May Apply to You!

It is difficult to carry on business when collections are not forthcoming. Also it is somewhat unfair that a business concern maintaining its reputation for prompt payment, should be hampered by lax and tardy creditors.

In the case of The Watchman, it is believed most of our slow-pay subscribers are merely forgetful. They would be indignant to have their paper stopped after our bills had been repeatedly ignored. Yet the Editor begs to remind these readers, it costs money to produce and supply their weekly paper. There are new journals entering this local field, but The Watchman will withstand competition on its own merits. At the same time, we solicit the co-operation and goodwill of our old-time friends. It costs too much to make a personal call on each delinquent reader, so a prompt remittance of all overdue subscriptions will be appreciated.

—If this applies to you, an early settlement will ease your conscience, adjust your date label, and facilitate the honest grinding of our presses.

Hawkesbury Children to Have Playgrounds

As the town of Hawkesbury has never had a public park or playground of any kind, says the Hawkesbury Echo—Mayor John B. Woods and town council decided it would be a good thing for the children if a number of public playgrounds were built. Accordingly some of the unemployed were put to work on a vacant lot near the town hall, and recently the first playground was completed. The equipment of the playground was also made by the unemployed.

Four other playgrounds are to be built in the near future, and a public tennis court is also nearing completion.

Four and a Half Month Pullet Lays Eggs Like Experienced Hen

Believed a Local Record

Hatched on February 26th., in an incubator owned by Mrs. Roy McPhail, a Barred Rock pullet of Lady Victoria strain has started laying every day. This pullet is now the property of Mrs. Burns, Beech Ridge, and it is believed few if any local birds have commenced production at such early age.

The pullet was one of three rescued from a hen house fire on McPhail's farm, when some 60 chickens perished. Only two of the three survived, one of which is making a creditable showing in the above record.

Fair Grounds Scene of Happy Event

Amateur Athletic Association. Lachute's commodious Exhibition Grounds have proven popular in the past for this event, and the attendance of over 4,000 people last Saturday appeared to have spent a day of general pleasure and satisfaction.

Men, women and children entered into the spirit of the occasion, and were joined by many local visitors, who took in the fun and quietly rejoiced to share with less fortunate city dwellers the freedom and fresh air of our countryside. For it was apparent that many of the visitors, with home ties and large families, do not often enjoy so rare a privilege.

Three excursion trains brought the party to Lachute at cheap rates, the first arriving at Lachute Mills around 10 a.m. On the grounds, the Lachute branch of the Women's Institute had prepared a line of wholesome refreshments, and conducted booths for the sale of food at popular prices.

A long list of prizes had been donated for competition in the sports events, and a high grade of athletic skill and endurance became evident among young and old in their various classes.

Several local athletes took part in the two open running events, namely the mile and the 100-yards dash (men), and it may be taken as a credit to local standards of sport that Lachute boys took the winning places in each case. First three places in the mile race were won by W. Drew and S. Langille, of Lachute and A. Graham, of Cushing. It was pleasing to note the endurance of young Parizeau of Lachute, 10 years of age, who came home fresh and spry in an entry of some 30 or 40 runners. There was also a 62 year old runner who made the tape with as much pep and energy as his younger competitors; this was P. W. (Bill) Troy, of 5248 5th. Ave., Rosemount, an ex-Australian cricketer. W. Drew finished this race with a decisive lead of 30 or 40 yards. The other open event, 100-yards dash, was won by K. Falconer, of Lachute, A. Graham, of Cushing running second. There is a close rivalry between these two local boys, who have both staged spectacular work on short distance runs.

An event courteously listed for the ladies of Lachute (75 yards dash) was won by Miss Alice Bernier; Miss H. Chapput second; and Miss Cliff third.

In a softball game between Lachute and the visitors Montreal took an easy victory of 11-3.

Fine weather favored the occasion, and four thousand Montrealeers, tired but happy, entertained in the evening for the Big City, all well content with their outing to Lachute.

Grenville L.O.B.A. Honors Members with Reception

On Friday evening last the Ladies Lodge of the Grenville L.O.B.A. held a reception at the Lodge Room in honor of two of their members, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bates (nee Miss Geraldine Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stewart of Grenville). Invitations were extended to the members of the ladies' and men's Lodges at Harrington, Avoca, and Lachute, to which some 110 members responded.

The occasion was a most happy one, dancing being the order of the evening; Mr. Richard Dodd provided the music and Mr. W. J. Cooper, of Brownsburg, acted as floor manager. The Ladies of the Grenville L.O.B.A. served refreshments, and dancing was continued until the early hours of the morning.

Shelter in Electric Storms

There has been much discussion as to the safest place in which to be during an electric storm. People who give much thought to this matter declare that an automobile is the best place to stay until the storm passes.

The bureau of standards states that cars are almost immune to lightning, although rubber tires and the entire body of the car become very wet during a storm. Persons driving within a conducting enclosure are fairly safe from lightning, and an auto body, although enclosed to a considerable extent by glass approaches this condition.

The majority of people are probably safer in a motor car during an electric storm than they would be at home. Rarely is a report heard of autos being struck by lightning, which is remarkable when it is taken into consideration that there are many cars out during electric storms.

Highway Fatality Tuesday Near Dalesville

Lumber Employee Fell from Truck

A tragic mishap occurred at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, on the highway just west of Dalesville, when Edouard Laramée, of Grenville fell from the truck on which he was riding, and struck the road with such force that he was killed almost instantly.

Laramée, a man of about 36 years, was an employee of the Dansereau Lumber Mills, and was driving to Dalesville for a load of logs. It is understood he had been warned repeatedly against riding the "bunker" of the lumber truck, on which he was seated when he lost his balance and fell to the road. The accident occurred near Dixon's cheese factory.

Dr. B. N. Wales, district coroner, was summoned from St. Andrews, and pronounced a verdict of Accidental Death.

Weddings of Local Interest

Bennett—Cooke

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cooke, Arundel, Que., on Saturday last, when their youngest daughter, Vera May was united in marriage to Mr. Wilbur Sidney Bennett, only son of Mr. G. Bennett of Sudbury, Ont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. McPhail.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a travelling suit of black and white with accessories to match. Miss Ella Worthington of Montreal was the bride's only attendant, while Mr. Stanley Cooke, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, the happy couple left on a motor trip to the Gaspé Coast and the Maritime Provinces, followed by the good wishes of their many friends. On their return they will reside in Sudbury, Ont.

Chomollard—Dallaire

A wedding of interest to Lachute took place in Montreal on Monday of this week at St. Barthelemy Church, when Miss Marie-Ange Dallaire was united in marriage to Mr. H. Chomollard, the ceremony being performed by the bride's brother, Father A. Dallaire. A reception was afterwards held, the bride and groom leaving on the evening train for Toronto, Niagara and other points. On their return they will reside at Lachute.

Visiting Quebec with the Canadian Authors

This year's session of the Canadian Authors' Convention was held in the historic old city of Quebec with its old fashioned cobblestone streets.

One's first impression of Quebec is fittingly expressed in the words of song which tells of the old-fashioned house in the old-fashioned street. The streets that lead uphill and down.

On remarking to another author how much I was reminded of this particular song, I was told that it was a general idea in some circles that Quebec city had been the inspiration for that very song.

While waiting for our own convention to commence it was quite a pleasure to watch the varied stream of people who thronged the arcade of the historical old hotel, the Chateau Frontenac, bordered on one side by the cool dim garden which historians tell us was the original garden of the governors of by-gone days in old Quebec.

Fronting the river stands an immense monument made of huge blocks of cut stone. Five tiers of them. The base of this monument is 50 feet with a cenotaph of 15 feet. On one side is the word "Montcalm" in raised letters, on the other "Wolfe" a silent but everlasting monument of the battle of the Plains of Abraham. An inscription in Latin, commemorates both names.

On the afternoon of our drive through the city, the driver of the taxi we occupied asked if we would like to be taken through Quebec's narrowest street. On being told that we would he turned quickly to the right and in a few moments we were turning into a street so narrow that we almost feared that we would stick in the middle of it. "This" our driver said "is Sur le Cap." It was thronged with children who sprang on to the running-board of the car and held out grimy little hands for pennies.

One member of the party happened to have some coins which she scattered amongst the first group of children. This attracted the others as honey would bees, so that they came in such swarms that our driver eventually had to come to the rescue and order them off.

The old King Louis Dockyard proved an interesting place to visit for a few moments before passing on to the village of Donnacona. Continuing our drive from there right along narrow winding Champlain Street until we came to the tunnel running under the city from one side to the other for transportation of freight and other commodities to the docks.

From that point we journeyed on a bit until we had a splendid view of the cliffs which Wolfe's army climbed, to reach the vantage ground which gave them such an advantage over the French army.

To our eyes it seemed an impossible feat and we lingered long gazing at the dull brown, furrowed cliff, trying to imagine how it was accomplished, and we realized to the fullest extent the amazement at the Maison

Sir George Perley will be President of Honor at Sauve Celebration

Sir George Perley, acting Prime Minister, has consented to be president of honor on the occasion of the demonstration at St. Eustache July 29th. in honor of the fact that Hon. Arthur Sauve, postmaster-general, has completed a quarter of century of parliamentary life. Others of Mr. Sauve's colleagues of the province of Quebec will also be present at the demonstration, and it is hoped it will be possible for some of his colleagues of the sister provinces to attend the function. This has taken the shape of a picnic to be held on the borders of the Lake of Two Mountains, on the site of the Brunet farm. There will be a non-political demonstration, during the course of the morning, when Mr. Sauve will be congratulated by his fellow journalists of the province on the honors which have come to him. The committees formed for the morning event are entirely non-political. Events will commence early in the afternoon, and there will be a programme of sports.

In addition to the committee in charge of the general arrangements for this demon-

Young Athletes Bring Credit to Local High School

Saturday's sports program at the C. P. R. picnic, held here in Lachute, found several hometown athletes in contest with the best of city amateurs. This is not the first time our young men have met skilled competition from bigger centres; nor is it the first time they have won the honors and proved themselves superior.

At this same event last year they took prizes in the few open events. Officials of the C.P.R. Amateur Athletic Association claimed they had not expected such high-powered competition, and had "better stuff" in reserve back home. It is safe to assume this year they brought the "better stuff" along with them, yet in the two most muscle-trying events, Lachute still took the leading places—and by a good lead at that.

The winners are well known locally, Drew, Falconer and Langille being stellar athletes on the High School roll, and Graham carrying credit to his own settlement within the county. It is obvious these men have the makings of real champions, and under thorough coaching could match their performance with Canada's best. It is unfortunate, however, that small towns do not afford the best facilities for athletic training, such as city clubs and universities provide for promising candidates.

It is hoped our young men will meet with such opportunities before it is too late, that they may benefit by superior training before they attain the peak of their performance. In the meantime, however, it might be timely to suggest our High School should offer some material recognition—and henceforth encourage the utmost in physical prowess from such promising scholars.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER

"I'LL BITE!"

Dear Boys:

The other day I heard one boy say to another, "I'll bite"; and as this expression had never come my way before it seemed only natural that I should ask for an explanation which was readily forthcoming.

You, of course, have heard this saying perhaps many times but if not it signifies that if you don't understand the meaning or solution of some problem presented to you say, "I'll bite," and then you are told what you wish to know. It seems a strange figure of speech does it not, though I suppose those who use it from force of habit never worry about that angle of the situation at all.

I suppose that these days a good many of you are anxiously looking forward to the future and are wondering not a little as to the possibility of making good in the years that are ahead. School life and holiday time pass all too quickly, and then the great big world, with all its competition and perplexities, its joys and sorrows, opens up before you.

What are you going to make of it all? In my imaginative mind I can see one of you boldly stepping forward and saying, "I'll bite!"

It sounds flippant, but given by the youngster I have conjured up in my thoughts, it is far from that. He really wants to know, and it is up to us elder people to do our very best to give a satisfactory answer to this important problem.

In a short letter like this it is not possible for me to give you all the advice required, but beyond any question, the matter may be boiled down into the one word; character. Build up this, using as material—honesty, energy, and mental activity, and mix them together with a large quantity of spiritual wisdom and you can't go far wrong.

Will this take you along the way of happiness, guide your weary feet out of the shadows, and plant them firmly on the road that leads towards the Sunrise? Yes, it most surely will.

Let me know if you have any problem you want help in, and—"I'll bite".

Your affectionate friend,

A BIRD THAT CALLS NAMES

By Aunt Jean

There's a whistler in my garden, And he's surely calling me, As he whistles there so blithely From the pink acacia tree.

Phoebe—Phoebe—that's my name,

But dear me! how did he ever know

My people called me that,

Unless the fairies told him so!

But they did not tell him all my name

It's Susan, Jean, Melinda, Kate,

If he had to whistle all those names,

I am sure he wouldn't wait!

He'd be so scared he'd fly away

To yonder garden wall,

To where a bright-eyed Phoebe waits,

Who loves him best of all.

NANCY'S PUP

Is it Nancy's Pup?

When Daddy Craig saw his family all lined up in a sort of bodyguard, ready as it were to march against the enemy with him, he stopped and smiled a funny, crinkly smile. "Well, Captain!" he said to Ned who was standing very stiff and straight at the end of the line, "What does this mean?"

"That we are going to Grundy's with you, Dad."

"Have you asked your mother if you could?"

"We had not thought of it, Dad," Maud said "but I will just now."

Mother Craig followed Maud to the verandah as she came back to the group. "John," she said rather anxiously, "do you think that you had better go?"

"I think so, Mary, I cannot bear the thought of Grundy abusing a dog of ours. I shall not be able to rest until I see that pup, if it is there."

"And the children? Do you think you had better take them along?"

The children stood tensely waiting their dad's reply. They wanted to see this pup too.

"If you are willing, Mary, I think I'll take them with me. Perhaps they may help to keep peace between us."

"Dad may need some help you know, Mother", Ned said excitedly.

An understanding smile passed between Mother and Dad, as Mother Craig said "Alright, children, go along and see that you bring your Daddie safely back to me."

"We will, Mother, don't worry," said Ned.

Silently the group walked out of the gate and down the road to Grundy's place. Maud and Ned walked, one on each side of their father. Old Mr. Grundy watching them from a side window, chuckled, dry, wheezing chuckles. He was not used to laughter and was seemingly out of practice. He was not laughing though when he opened the door at Daddy Craig's knock.

"Well, Neighbor Craig," he said with a very sarcastic emphasis on the word neighbor. "It's a mighty long time since ye hev seen fit t' honor me with a visit. What might you be wantin' with me?"

"Nothing that I am aware of," Daddy Craig said. "I came to see Jock Landon."

"There ain't nobody here that name," Mr. Grundy said; but his sneaky furtive-looking eyes told a different story.

"I happen to know that there is," Daddie Craig said, "and I know more than that—"Dad-die Craig got no further. Picking up a boot-jack. Old Mr. Grundy dashed outside and approached Daddy Craig, holding the boot-jack threateningly.

"Ye dare t' call Jake Grundy a liar?" he blustered.

Daddy Craig stood quietly looking at the angry old man. "I am calling no-one a liar," he said, just as quietly, "but I have a letter from Jack Landon about a pup he had, which he thought was mine, so I came to see it."

"I tell ye there is no Jock Landon here," the old man said again.

"There is Dad," Ned said; "there he is, running towards the barn from the back kitchen door. I'll bet he's got the pup hidden over there."

Forgetting that they were their dad's protectors, the children started towards the barn in pursuit of Landon. Ignoring the fuming old man. Daddy Craig started walking towards the barnyard. He was afraid that in their eagerness to see the puppy the children might run into some danger.

They formed quite a procession. Maud and Ned were first. Maud behind, then Billy with Daddy Craig following him quite closely; the old man Grundy following him, the boot-jack still held threateningly in his hand.

He was unreasonably angry. He had not expected the Craigs to guess so quickly who or where Jock Landon was. Knowing how much they cared for Nancy he had hoped to keep them in suspense for a long time and when his plan had failed so dismally, it made him angry.

It is strange, Children, that all evil-doers are much the same. Instead of being glad, as they should be, that they have not been allowed to carry out their wrong doing, they are angry.

When Daddy Craig reached the barn, Ned and Jock Landon were already engaged in a heated discussion. "Fork out yer ten dollars," Jock was demanding as Daddie Craig stepped inside the barn door. "Fork it out, I say! then I'll let ye see the pup, not before."

Reaching out Daddie Craig gently pushed his children outside the barn door and followed them out. "We will talk this thing out in the open, Landon," he said.

Knowing his neighbor of old, Daddy Craig knew he would only be too glad to trump up some charge against the children or himself and take his case to the courts, so he was giving him no chance if he could prevent it.

"Now," he said "Landon, produce that pup!"

"Not until ye produce the money," Landon said doggedly. The old man chuckled his rusty wheezing chuckle "Don't mind him, Jock," he said "Make him shell out the money first."

"I shall not shell out the money until I see the pup," Daddy Craig said determinedly. "I am not paying ten dollars for just any kind of a dog; besides if it is my dog you cannot make me pay ten dollars for it."

"How are ye gonta git it without?" the old man said, thrusting his evil old face quite close to Daddy Craig's.

"I have only to call the officer for protection of cruelty to animals, Grundy," Daddy Craig said. "I can hear a dog howling as though in pain somewhere not very far away, and if it's my dog, Grundy and you or your henchmen here are abusing him, you will do the paying instead of me!"

With a howl of rage the old man threw the boot-jack, but Daddy Craig had been watching for just such a move. Throwing up his hand he caught it rather neatly and tossed it far away into a bunch of bramble canes.

With a smaller howl of rage both Ned and Billy had thrown themselves at the old man and would have borne him to the ground, so determined was their attack, but their father caught them and drew them away.

"It is all right boys," he said, half laughing, "Daddy is not hurt and anyway you should not bump into an old man like that; you might knock him down, you know."

"That's what they meant to do," screamed the old man, "but I'll hev the law on them, and you too Craig, that I will."

"Oh no, you won't," said the neighbor on the other side of the road. "I have been watching this performance from the start, and just came over to see what it was all about as you threw that boot-jack. I will prove to any court that you attempted to hit Mr. Craig with it, and so will Jock here. What's the row all about anyway?"

Daddy Craig told him in a few words. "There's no pup here, I can assure you, Craig," Mr. Brown said. "I have seen this dog that they have tied up here, and its no pup of Nancy's Come and see it for yourself."

Next story, "Disappointed Children".

Lovingly,
Aunt Jean.

Greyhound Not "Animal"

Is a greyhound an animal? This question was raised in the Belfast (Ireland) children's court, when a boy was summoned for leading a greyhound on the footpath. John Graham, for the defendant, said the prosecution was brought under a statute of about 100 years ago, the borough act of 1845, which said that "any who shall lead, drive, or ride any horse or other animal on the public footpath" shall be liable to penalty of $10. He suggests that the words "or other animal" should be read as in connection with a horse, and that the act did not apply to dogs. Magistrate Topplin, with whom were other magistrates, said his interpretation of the law was that it should be as applying to animals like the horse. The boy was freed.

Ages of Race Tracks
The Lexington race track is the oldest in the country of the tracks now operating, but a neighbor of the metropolitan tracks—the oval at Saratoga—is second oldest. The oldest Sheephead Bay and Long Branch tracks date far back in the history of the turf, but are no longer in existence as race tracks. Pimlico, the Maryland track, has been in use longer than the present Saratoga track, but if you include the entire Saratoga property, including the little Horse Haven track across Union avenue, then the Saratoga oval can claim second honors.—New York Sun.

Coal Miners' Superstition
The origin of the superstition regarding a woman's entering a coal mine is obscure. It has existed in England, Scotland and Wales from very early times. In many parts of England it is customary for the men to enter and leave the pits during the night and it is regarded as an omen of bad luck if they meet a woman when they first leave the pits or leave their homes before entering them. A similar superstition exists among the fishermen of Yorkshire. If they meet a woman when leaving home they immediately return home.

Moors Not "Colored"
Contrary to widespread misapprehension, the Moors are a white race. Their bronzed and sunburned appearance, the term "blackamoors," and later the story of Othello, all served to give the impression that they were a dark-skinned people. The Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries were the golden age in Spain for both Moors and Jews. Their contributions to industry, science and culture are matters of world history and the evidence thereof still exists in Spain.

Barley Hardest of Cereals
Barley, the hardest of all cereals, can be grown through a greater range of climate than any other. Its production dates from the most ancient times when it was used principally as an article of food. The production of barley ranks third among the cereal crops of the Dominion in acreage and total yield.—Canadian News Bulletin.

SCENE AT GREAT RELIGIOUS CEREMONY

One of the greatest religious ceremonies in the history of Liverpool, England, took place recently with the laying of the foundation stone of the $12,000,000 Roman Catholic Cathedral. Our picture shows a general view of the scene with the procession of clergy taking up their places near the altar erected specially for the occasion.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, (Boston), Held Annual Meeting

Boston, Mass., June 5—Word that no further contributions to the fund for the building of the new $4,000,000 home now being erected for The Christian Science Publishing Society need be called for, was announced here today at the Annual Meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Members from many lands—more than 5000 in all—heard the message from the Directors, read by Mr. Charles E. Heitman chairman, which hailed the "sacrifice and unselfish efforts" of those "who have made possible the completion of the new Publishing House without delay and without debt."

Never was the necessity of an applied and practical Christianity more apparent, Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, retiring President, declared in an address leading up to the introduction of his successor.

"Never have the Directors of the mighty army represented by this great assemblage here today faced a more inspiring challenge for worldwide service. The breaking up of material beliefs may seem temporarily to present themselves in the guise of want and woe and famine until the work of those who have enlisted to vanquish error in every form shall make their nothingness appear."

In her address, the new President, Miss Ewing, said in part: "Perhaps never before in the history of the Christian Science movement has there been a time when the comfort and encouragement of our Annual Meeting could pour so rich a balm into our hearts, nor when its inspiration and blessing carried beyond these walls could mean so much to the world of human thought and endeavor. For, today, that world is facing the claim of evil conditions in human affairs unprecedented in influence and extent—conditions which know no barriers of race, nation or tongue."

"In human experience, the regenerating influence of Truth begins with the individual, spreads from one individual to others, from group to group until eventually it must leaven the whole mass of human thought. Then will wars cease and the true brotherhood of man be made apparent, be seen to be established and maintained by God's law; then will the bounty of God's house be realized and men dwell together in security and peace."

In his message from the Board of Directors, Mr. Heitman said: "The growth of our Church was never more gratifying, the interest in its healing ministry never more pronounced, and the readiness of its members to meet the demands of the hour never more apparent than they are today. If proof of this latter statement were needed it would be necessary only to cite the prompt and generous manner in which branch churches, societies associations, and individuals have responded to the call for funds to erect the new home for our Christian Science Publishing Society.

"Primarily, of course, the new building is intended to provide adequate facilities for the publishing of our religious periodicals, our daily newspaper, and the writings of our revered Leader, Mary Baker Eddy. But the poll which was conducted to determine America's 12 greatest women of the past 100 years which gave Mary Baker Eddy "the recognition which was clearly due her."

Mr. Norwood disclosed that "news stories of this poll, many of which were accompanied by pictures of the Leader, were published not only in hundreds of papers in the United States,

New Christian Science Publishing House

it does something more, much more in fact, than simply meet a physical need, great and pressing as that need may be. It stands and will continue to stand through the years to come, as a silent but none the less impressive witness to that unity, stability, and demonstrated resourcefulness which should at all times characterize the organized efforts of Christian Scientists, and which in this instance have made possible the completion of the new Publishing House without delay and without debt."

Miss Rosamond Wright, manager of the Department of Branches and Practitioners, cited the establishment of "a new branch of The Mother Church in Kenya, Africa, situated 2000 miles from the nearest branch church; also, our first branch in Egypt, at Cairo; and two new branches in Brazil, South America, as well as five additional branches in Australia. These represent the distant points to which the arms of The Mother Church have extended since our last Meeting. "In addition, 21 new branches have been formed in Europe, and 42 in North America. Twenty-six Christian Science Societies have qualified for the title of Church. Five new college or university organizations have been formed. The Mother Church now has 2639 branch churches and societies, and 47 college and university organizations."

An outstanding example of how public thought is being "leavened" in regard to Christian Science was cited by the Hon. C. Augustus Norwood, Manager of Committees on Publication, in the annual report of activities within his department. The "incident" referred to was but also in hundreds of papers in other countries, thus indicating a broad interest in our organization and our religion, and in the great life-work of the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science."

The report also cited the "inspiration fruitage" which has resulted from the use of the radio provided by the Board of Directors. Mr. Norwood declared that the "Committees are grateful for the support that this latest method of calling Christian Science to the attention of a waiting world has received."

"The Relief Fund of The Mother Church, which is available for temporary assistance following major disasters, has been drawn upon during the year for assistance to flood sufferers in England, and in West Virginia; for aid to hurricane victims in Puerto Rico; and for help in a section of California following the recent earthquake."

"Some relief work has been done in other sections of the United States, and in Germany, Holland, Estonia, Austria, Poland, Finland, and Canada. The charitable work carried on by the local congregation of The Mother Church through its local Charity Fund was augmented this last winter by a Special Unemployment Relief Fund which was established in co-operation with the city Campaign for the Relief of Unemployment. A Comforts Supply Committee has aided by distributing clothing and other necessities in this field."

A year of substantial achievement in the activities of The Christian Science Publishing Society was reported by Mr. Roland R. Harrison, manager.

ALL-MAN-POWER IMPROVEMENTS

The Executive Committee of the City of Montreal is putting into practice the suggestions which were made by Alderman Legault, to the effect that unemployment relief should be coupled with necessary public works, and that certain forms of work in particular would provide a higher percentage of "labour" than other forms. One of these is the laying of Fibre Conduit ducts for underground cable laying—This is what Montreal is doing today.

The picture here shown was taken on Park Avenue near Fletcher's Field, and shows a Pick and Shovel Gang at work digging the trench for the laying of Cornwall Fibre Conduits. The project includes eight miles of such conduits and the work is all hand done, except a little blasting where necessary, as this ground is largely a rock base.

Other projects according to Mr. Legault are the improvement of St. Helen's Island, the Mountain, Jarry Park, Maisonneuve Park and the smaller parks.

Road maintenance is also contemplated, the men to be paid in part by relief funds. In the civic program it is intended paying regular wages of 35 to 40 cents an hour to labor, while the city would itself purchase all the materials. A sum of $200,000 a month is considered sufficient to buy materials while $800,000 a month would be paid in wages, recoverable two-thirds from the province and Federal Government. In this way the city sees a saving of $500,000 a month in direct relief which cost $1,696,000 in May.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, July 18.—The western wheat crop, the fluctuations in the U. S. dollar and the British pound, the 'economy wave' in governmental expenditure, and the arrival of the federal capital during the past week. The new tariff board, created by an act early in 1931 but not staffed until a few months ago, got off to an uneventful opening by hearings on such diverse matters as cigarette lighters and hair nets, fire engines and celluloid dolls. The big textile cases will not come up until fall.

Mackenzie King (left for the west to do a little campaigning on behalf of the Liberal party. With the Nova Scotia provincial elections scheduled for August, a contest brewing in British Columbia, one not far away in Ontario and Saskatchewan, the political pot may be expected to steam up any time now. There are four by-elections in the federal field which will give opportunity for the party medicine men at Ottawa to discover how the winds are blowing. In the Mackenzie, Sask., contest ex-Judge Stubbs and the C. C. F. will provide a little excitement it is expected.

Bright Spots in Business

People are hungry for news of the 'business upturn' these days. On the whole, reports flowing into the capital continue to be encouraging.

For instance, a remarkable pick-up in the lumber trade of northern Ontario is recorded.

Exports for June were over five million dollars higher than in June, 1932. This was due to better sales abroad of nickel, automobiles, wood pulp, meats and wheat.

Bank clearings for the latest available week were higher than in the corresponding week of a year ago in 22 Canadian centres, including Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Peterboro, Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener, Brantford, Chatham, Windsor, Sarnia, Sudbury, Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Prince Albert, Calgary, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, New Westminster, Vancouver and Victoria.

Agriculture the 'goat'?

I hear repeated rumors that in the drastic paring down of governmental expenses by which from 10 to 14 millions are to be saved from the sums voted last spring, that the department of agriculture is being asked to take far more than its fair share of the cut. If the proposed saving were to be evenly spread about, the department of agriculture would only have to trim about $700,000. Instead an attempt is being made, I am told to cut two millions. The excuse given is that some other departments cannot be reduced at all without lowering the revenue of the country.

It begins to look as though many valuable farm services such as inspection of registered grain fields will either have to be cut off entirely, or the small fee now charged will have to be raised to the point where it will cover all the cost. In either event the farmer will suffer.

More Lenient About Imports?

A change of heart is apparent in the government's recent leniency regarding the rise of the British pound above $4.86. At the time when the U. S. dollar rose above par (September 1931) the passion for restricting imports at all costs was in effect and all sorts of obstacles were discovered. The importer from the U. S. not only had to buy his U. S. exchange at a much higher rate, but he had to pay duties levied on the new high values, and if the U. S. exporter tried to help out by taking Canadian dollars at par in the U. S. he got his knuckles rapped in the form of a 'special dump duty' to cover the difference.

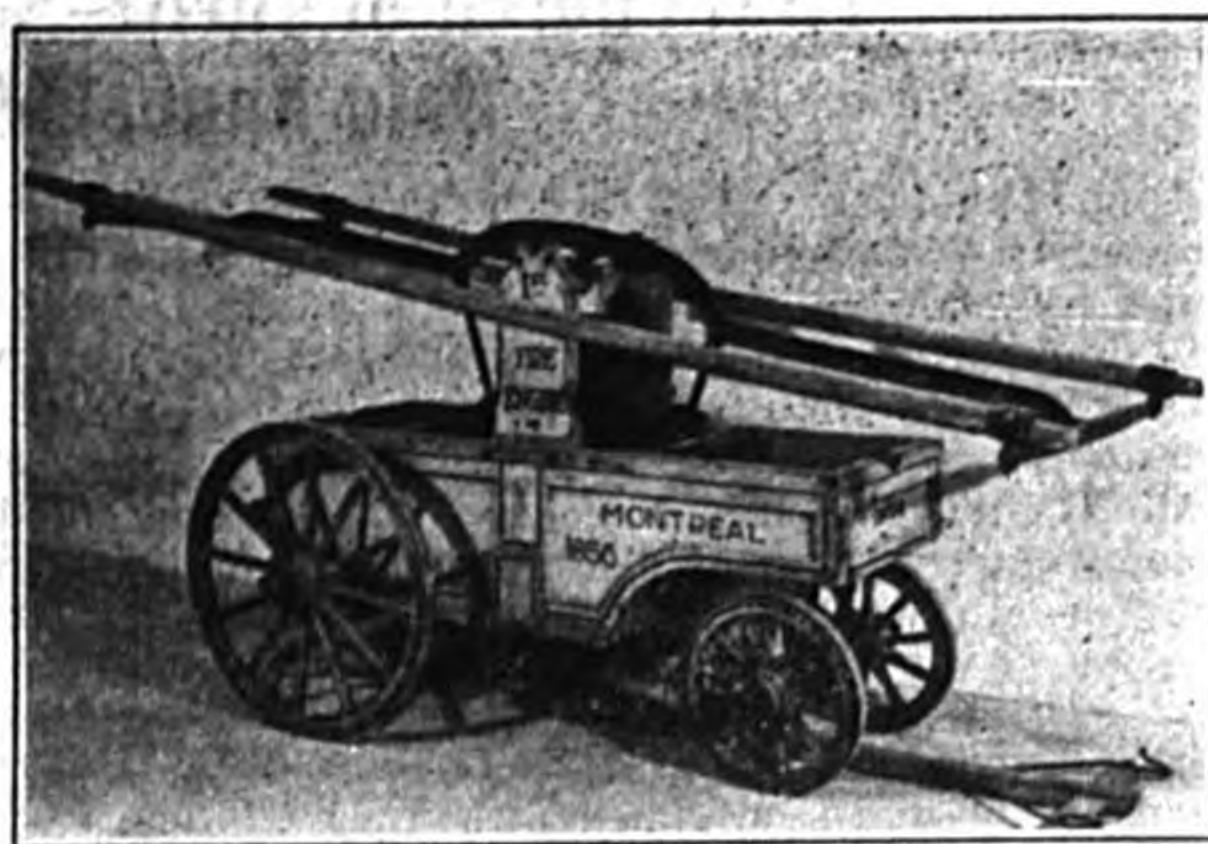

When the British pound climbed above par importers from Britain were afraid they were in for similar restrictions, but Sir George Perley's statement the other day made it quite clear that at present any way no such interference was planned.

I wish I could report that along with other improvements the federal treasury was making a better showing, but I can't. The June report just published shows revenues from customs and excise duties down $2,700,000 from the corresponding month of 1932. However, income tax collections for the month were up over a million, which helps some.

No Longer Doubt as to Where the West Begins

Arthur Chapman wrote a poem, "Out Where the West Begins," which will never sink into oblivion. He wrote it in Denver, where it was published, so that the conclusion may be drawn that Mr. Chapman's West takes its initiative somewhere near the Rocky mountain latitude; but westerners generally place the beginning of the West much farther east than that; and it was long regarded as including everything beyond the Mississippi river.

Perhaps a more definite line would be where the Sunday chicken dinner begins, and that is distinctly in Missouri, F. H. Collier writes, in the St. Globe-Democrat. To the eastward the hot-dog monopolizes all roadside eating places every day in the week; but cross the Father of Waters and you are in the Land of the Chicken Dinner. Not only is it honored of the Sabbath day, but it sends up its fragrant and alluring fumes at any hour on any day in many locations. Leghorn, Shanghai, Plymouth Rock or Rhode Island red, the chicken goes in to the pot or pan for the wayfarer everywhere. The West begins where the chickens begin.

Here and There

Almost $20,000,000 was spent in the manufacture of toilet preparations, soaps and washing compounds in Canada in 1932. A recently issued official report states that the total value of the former produced was $5,073,134, and of the latter $14,734,549.

Forty boy scouts of Oregon and Washington made the first leg of their 8,000 mile trip to Budapest in the Princess Kathleen, Seattle to Vancouver. They are travelling C.P.R. across Canada to Quebec, whence they will sail for England on the Empress of Britain.

Alaska and the Yukon hold their popularity as summer playgrounds judging by the sizable list of passengers sailing north to Skagway in Canadian Pacific coastal liners. Many of them are mining and business men, but the majority are summer tourists attracted by the rate reductions for summer Alaska travel.

Forty-three years of "active, loyal, and efficient service," with the Canadian Pacific Railway closed June 30 with the retirement of W. A. Kittermaster, General Western Freight Agent, Chicago. He was succeeded by E. L. Cardle, Assistant General Freight Agent, and the office which the latter vacated was abolished.

For the first time since its foundation 25 years ago, a Governor-General of Canada was present at the annual closing exercises of the Boys' Farm and Training School, Shawbridge, Que., recently, when the Earl of Bessborough, accompanied by E. W. Beatty, chairman and President, Canadian Pacific Railway, attended the school and awarded prizes to graduates.

"There are tangible signs of business and economic improvement in Canada and the United States," Sir Josiah Stamp, Director of the Bank of England, President of the London, Midland & Scottish Railway, and one of Britain's leading economists said recently when he sailed for England on the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Britain" after a short visit to this continent.

Ten Honolulu youths between 14 and 17 years of age arrived recently at Vancouver on Canadian Australasian liner "Monowai" en route to the Yukon where they will spend the summer in scientific research and adventure. They will sail north to Skagway, go into White Horse where they will build boats for the run down the Yukon River to Dawson.

Motion pictures of herds of caribou swimming the swift current of the Yukon River and other striking studies of wild life in the far north have been garnered by Harry Pollard, Associated Screen News photographer, who returned recently in the Princess Norah to Vancouver after six weeks in Alaska and the Yukon. He went on to Banff and Lake Louise where he will photograph mountain scenery.

Montcalm, when news came that the English were on the Plains of Abraham. (Maison Montcalm is one of the oldest houses in Quebec which bears the date 1674 as its building and 1758 as the date in which Montcalm occupied it, the inscription telling the public that to this house Montcalm was brought back wounded from the battle which decided the fate of New France) Part of this building is now occupied by one of the numerous Hwaiking Shops Ltd., so named by Mrs. Mowatt a Canadian Missionary in China who sends such beautiful hand made articles from the Industrial school in China to be sold for mission work.

A serene, quiet lady presides over it and shows you the goods, and you cannot help but compare the setting of the old house now to the days of Montcalm when it was a bee-hive, as it were, of French soldiers, its walls resounding to their martial music, their muttered imprecations, their gay laughter, and later their exclamations of surprise and anger, and their lamentations at the death of their loved commander and the loss of Quebec.

Daily, as we passed it on our way to the Chateau, we saw a street corner artist putting the old house on canvas, and doing it very well indeed.

Amongst other interesting places visited during this drive, one very old church was the church at Sillery, a former church of the Jesuit Fathers. This was built in 1639. The inscription on the monument there reads "Father Massé died here." The Massé Monument was erected on the site of the primal St. Michel Church built by Commander Sillery in honor of Father Massé, who died at Sillery in 1637 and was buried in the crypt of the church.

Following the beautiful St. Foy Road we came back to the city, our next stop being at the Monument Des Braves, a monument erected to the memory of Levis, Murray and their brave soldiers, bearing the following inscription, "To the heroes of 1760. Donated by the Society Saint-Jean-Baptiste de Quebec, 1860."

Col. Marquis, under whose guidance the drive was taken, mounted the steps of the monument and gave a short account of the battle. This he said, commemorated the last battle fought between the English and the French. On being asked what the old windmill on the monument meant, Col. Marquis said, From this old wind-driven grist mill, the English snipers shot down French soldiers, until driven out by the French who in turn used it as a vantage ground to shoot down English soldiers, and the English used it again for the same purpose until the battle finally was decided in their favor."

Col. Marquis at this time told of the burial of Montcalm in the archway of the Ursuline Convent, in a hole made by a bomb during the war.

From the Monument des Braves we went to the new Quebec Museum where the usual photograph was taken before going in to inspect its contents. Safely housed inside from the fury of the electric storm which was raising a decided commotion outside, we inspected the wonderful paintings and interesting antique documents, until it was time to attend the garden party given by Lieut. Gov. Carroll in honor of the occasion.

Strange to say, although usually the residence of a French Lieutenant Governor, this beautiful building surrounded by extensive grounds, has an English name, "Spencerwood." The explanation is that the property was acquired in 1780 by Samuel Holland at an auction sale of the estate of Antoine Olry and John Mayer, and had been owned ever since then until its acquisition by the province, by English proprietors.

Rain was still falling heavily when we reached Spencerwood, splendid in gold braid and blue, received us and marshalled us but a stately footman held an umbrella over our heads as we alighted from the cars, so that no-one got wet. Treading the strip of red carpet laid down for our feet we felt very much welcomed indeed.

Once inside the beautiful mansion the governor's aide, re-into line before conducting us into the presence of Lieut. Gov. Carroll, his wife and daughter, who received us most kindly. After the reception it was still impossible to hold the party in the garden as it was first intended, so we were ushered into a large hall where refreshments of many sorts were served.

The Lieut. Governor's wife mingled freely with her lady guests conducting them on a personal tour through the green houses, chatting in the most friendly manner possible.

The Governor and his family posed for a photograph on the verandah with the authors, but the severity of the storm and the fact that so many were shaded, being well back from the front of the verandah, prevented the picture from being a success. After signing the visitor's register and viewing a few more of the treasures which the old mansion contained, we once more entered our cars with the friendly footman still in attendance to keep us dry and were driven back by way of the National Battlefields Park, the Plains of Abraham, the Parliament Buildings, Laval Monument, the much written about Chien D'or, and other interesting places to the Poets' Dinner at Kerhulu Inn. This dinner was open only to persons who wrote poetry; of those quite a number were gathered and some wonderful French orators entertained with recitations of their poems, intermingled with some of the prominent English poets who also recited their poems.

Islands Thrown Up in South Atlantic Ocean

In a few hundred thousand years, a whole new archipelago like Japan may emerge from the south Atlantic ocean. This forecast has been made by Rev. Frederick W. Sohon, Georgetown university seismologist, after reports of the discovery of two new islands in the region, coupled with simultaneous seismograph records showing earth tremors that might have emanated from the same territory. The islands appeared off the coast of Brazil, and at first some scientists suggested that they might mean the reappearance of the so-called "lost continent of Atlantis." Father Sohon said there is a ridge along the ocean bed equidistant between South America and Africa, but if there ever was a continent there, it had been completely destroyed. The modern development, he believes, is the result of thousands of years of erosion, sending rock from the mountains down to the continental shelf of the Americas. This, he said, might pile up so much weight that the pressure would cause a ridge in the ocean bed.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Queen Without Qualms as to Her Complexion

An amusing story is told by Sir William Rothstein in his volume of reminiscences, concerning a fellow-artist, since deceased, who had been commissioned by Queen Victoria to paint her portrait.

When the portrait was finished the artist was commanded to bring it to Windsor for inspection of her majesty, who at that period of her life had been dowered by nature with a complexion which may best be described as "brick-dust color."

The queen entered the room, went up to the picture, examined it carefully in silence, and then walked toward the door.

As she opened it she turned around and said coldly: "We are redder than that"; and stalked out without another word.

Problem of the Stammerer

A foreign authority urges that attention be given to stammering at an early stage. It is one of the tragedies of life, sapping vital energy and hindering the full development of native talents. Stammering is more prevalent among English-speaking people than among others. The subject is much in need of sympathetic and well informed research. The high tension of modern life does not promise relief from the recurrence of this maladjustment; an inferiority complex consequently becomes established. The basis of developed stammering is fear, self-consciousness and anticipation of failure with consequent psychic strain. Children thus addicted respond to treatment, and this should be commenced before the stammering child is aware of its peculiarity.

The Word "University"

"Unus" is the Latin for "one," and "versus" is the past participle of "vertere," "to turn." "Universus" therefore means "turned into one." From this comes the abstract noun "universitas," which at first meant simply a number of separate things or people grouped together into a unit. It was thus used in legal Latin as the ordinary word for a corporation of any kind. It was only in comparatively late medieval times that its meaning became more specialized, owing to the success of learned men all over Europe in forming themselves into highly privileged corporate bodies.

RODEO DREW BIG CROWDS AT LACHUTE AND BROWNSBURG WILL APPEAR SATURDAY IN HAWKESBURY

Residents of Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill and district, are assured of a popular show in the Rodeo billed for the former town on Saturday, 22nd. inst. Appearing in Lachute and Brownsburg last week, the outfit carried the exotic atmosphere of a travelling circus, drawing good crowds at each performance.

Young and old are amused with the varied acts, in which skilled riders and picturesque cow-boys "do their stuff." The fine jumping horses are a source of genial admiration, while bucking broncos defy the challenge extended to spectators, several of whom locally, were game enough in their attempt to mount them. Trained animals also feature on the program, and the show is one of clean, wholesome appeal.

FOOD IS KEPT COOL BY SIMPLE DEVICE

Iceless Refrigerator Useful in Country

Hardly had the fireless cooker been launched upon a useful career among families receiving relief than the iceless refrigerator made its bid for popularity. And now homes lacking electrical refrigeration and unable to afford to patronize the iceman find themselves able to keep food at a fairly cool temperature during the hot weather. The idea is a good one for summer homes, too.

The iceless refrigerator is sponsored by the social agencies. Mimeographed directions for making this food-saver have been prepared and distributed.

And this is how: Make a wooden frame 30 to 40 inches high, 15 to 20 inches wide, but not more than 12 inches from front to back. For this frame, use one-inch square wood. Have one or more moveable shelves resting on cross-braces. Paint this frame and the shelves white. Next, place a shallow pan under the frame and a deeper one on top. The top pan must be kept full of water. Cover the entire frame loosely with wet cotton cloth, meeting at the middle of the frame in front so that it may be drawn apart conveniently, acting as a door.

Allow three or four inches of the top of the cloth to rest in the pan of water on top of the frame and the lower edges of the cloth to rest in the lower pan.

This simple device, it is stated, will keep fresh meats, fresh vegetables and fruits, milk and butter—but it must stand in a current of air, otherwise, it will not work. The food inside is well protected from dust, flies, etc.

The frame and cloth must be sterilized at least once a week. The evaporation which takes place draws the heat from inside and a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit can be maintained.

Among the attractions of Lachute's Main Street, the improved appearance of Desjardins Hotel reflects credit on its proprietor, Mr. Desjardins, and also adds to the beauty of this section of the town. The exterior of the building is attractively decorated, new awnings shading the windows, and a profusion of plants add to the pleasing appearance.

Lesson for July 30

GIDEON

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:1-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 27:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Gideon.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Winning Without Swords.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Gideon and the Three Hundred.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning With a Few.

After forty years of freedom, Israel again passes under the cruel yoke of bondage at the hand of the Midianites. So grievous was their affliction that they hid in dens, caves, and strongholds (Judges 6:2). In their distress they cried unto the Lord and He sent deliverance. This deliverance was effected through Gideon. The angel of the Lord appeared to him while at the post of duty. Gideon's hesitancy, when called, was due to modesty and caution, and not to unbelief. Before going forward he wished to be doubly sure (Judges 6:36-40). When once he was convinced of duty he was not only courageous, but enthusiastic.

I. The Opposing Army of the Midianites (v. 1).

On that eventful day, Gideon and his army arose early and encamped by the spring of Harod. Over against them was the Midianite host in battle array. Gideon's army was insignificant by comparison with the Midianites.

II. The Sifting of Gideon's Army (vv. 2-8).

At Gideon's call, 32,000 men responded ready for the struggle. This seemed a small army to go against the Midianite army of 135,000 strong (Judges 8:10), but God said this was too many lest they be led to self-confidence and boasting. All that were faint-hearted were allowed to go back, leaving only 10,000. There were 22,000 cowards in that group of men and, worst of all, they were not ashamed to confess it. This was still too many. When God was through with his sifting process only 300 remained. The 30,000 were brave men but not of the proper quality and fitness. Those who "lapped" the water showed alertness and caution. If a similar test were made today in our churches and Sunday Schools, would the percentage stand any higher?

III. Encouragements Given to Gideon (vv. 9-15).

God bade Gideon go down to the Midianite camp where he would hear something that would cheer his heart and strengthen his hands. When Gideon came near he heard a man telling a dream which was that of a barley cake tumbling into the camp and smiting it. He also heard the interpretation given to the dream which made Gideon to be the cake. This greatly cheered his heart and strengthened him for his work, and caused his heart to burst forth in worshipful praise to God. A barley cake is a very insignificant thing, a very cheap affair in itself, but with the hand of God upon it, it would be successful to spread consternation among the Midianites and even bring destruction upon their armies.

IV. Gideon's Victory (vv. 16-23).

His army was very insignificant and his weapons worthless. His attack was most unique. The whole matter was of faith (Heb. 11:32). The ground of his faith was God's Word and the token which he had given. God does not ask his servants to go forward without good ground upon which to rest their faith. Gideon formed his 300 men into three companies and provided each man with a trumpet and with a lamp concealed in a pitcher. Thus armed, they surrounded the camp of the Midianites. They were all instructed to keep their eyes on Gideon, their leader, and imitate him. Believers today are to keep their eyes on Christ, their Leader, and ever to do as he does. At the proper moment they blew their trumpets and broke their pitchers, giving an opportunity for their lights to shine out. This awful crash of breaking pitchers, following the sound of the trumpets accompanied by the shout, "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon," threw the Midianites into a panic, causing them to fight among themselves. Thus 120,000 were slain, leaving but 15,000 of that mighty army (Judges 8:10).

In applying the teaching of this lesson to our age, we can think of the sounding of the trumpets as representing prayer or calling upon God; the torches as the light of the gospel; the pitchers, our human nature. Only as the pitchers were broken to allow the light to shine forth and as the trumpet of prayer sounds loud and long, can victory be expected.

Must Have First Place

God will put up with a great many things in the human heart, but there is one thing that he will not put up with in it—a second place. He who offers God a second place, offers him no place.—Ruskin.

THE ELUSIVE CLOTHES PEG

Where, oh where, do the clothes pegs go? You buy a supply of nice, clean, smooth clothes pegs. You don't break them. You don't know that you lose them, you don't lend them—but all at once they are gone, and once more you are short of clothes pegs. What happens to them I can't tell. They just disappear, melt into thin air. It must be the turnover that gives the profit in making clothes pegs, for goodness knows, they are cheap enough. I suppose the manufacturers live on what we lose. Our loss, their gain, so to speak.

A HOLIDAY COMPLAINT

The majority of people who go away for a holiday find that they become constipated. They blame this on the change of food or the different water. These may have something to do with it but the chief cause of holiday constipation is nervousness. If people relaxed sufficiently on a holiday they would not be constipated. Usually they are tense and the whole body tightens up. This slows up peristaltic action and constipation results. So many people make hard work of a holiday. They fuss and stew about things that really don't matter a particle. Some people, both men and women, let this tenseness get the best of them and they are inclined to be irritable. This does not add to their holiday and is certainly not much fun for those with them. This condition creates a vicious circle—the more irritable they are, the more constipated they are, the more irritable they become. If you know that you are one of those persons that a holiday affects in this manner, prepare for it before you leave. Prepare in two ways, mental and physical. Keep in mind that you are not going to fuss over everything in sight and allow yourself to relax. You and everyone with you will feel better for it. It is a wise precaution to take milk of magnesia, or mineral oil, with you for use if required.

There are other people who are just the opposite of these—they are constipated at home and when they get away are all right. Nervous tension again is the cause of this. It is to be found more frequently in business men who when they are at home are tense with business and domestic cares and when they go away they relax and their whole body benefits by this relaxation.

A holiday to be of the greatest benefit should be a change and a relaxation and if you find you are not really relaxed you will know that your holiday is not a complete success.

BISHOP OF MONTREAL AT GRENVILLE

His Lordship the Bishop of Montreal visited the Parish of Grenville on July 11th. At Trinity Church, Calumet, in the afternoon, he administered the rite of Confirmation to nine candidates from the Parish and two from Papineauville, the latter presented by Rev. C. W. P. Baugh. The Church was well filled for the occasion. In the evening, before a crowded congregation, nineteen candidates were confirmed at Grenville. Rev. W. P. Garrett, of Hawkesbury, and Rev. W. LeCras, of Lachute, assisting. At both ser-

AN ORANGE JUICE AND MILK BREAKFAST

Two books on nutrition, which I read recently, dealt with a breakfast of orange juice and a glass of milk. The first book was written by a faddist, and I did not pay very much attention to it. The second had a great deal of common sense instruction and when it recommended it I paid more attention to it but had no intention of trying it myself as I am one of those who like a good breakfast. Then I got on the scales and found I had acquired about 5 pounds excess baggage. Looking about for an easy way of getting rid of it I thought of the breakfast of orange juice and a glass of milk and decided it might be a simple way of reducing the number of calories and incidentally the pounds. So I tried it one morning. Days that I am working specially hard I find that about eleven I get that empty feeling and begin looking about for something to eat. This day was an extra busy one but when I sat down to dinner I realised that I had not been hungry in the middle of the morning. I took this same breakfast for several mornings, then one morning the bacon and toast smelt so good that I thought I would have some for a change and I ate my usual breakfast of a small quantity of cereal, bacon and toast and marmalade. Later in the morning I found that I was hungry. I have gone back to the orange and milk and have not been hungry through the morning. The contention is, that it is not calories we require so much as a diet that will give us all the necessary elements. Milk and orange juice does this for us and we are satisfied. I am not advertising this breakfast. I am just telling you about it. Certainly I do not intend to take it except when it happens to suit my convenience. It may happen to suit yours sometime, so now you know about it.

NUT MACAROONS

1 cup chopped nutmeats
3 egg whites
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup cracker crumbs
1/2 teaspoon vanilla or almond flavouring.

Beat the eggs very light, add sugar gradually. Fold in nuts and flavouring. Drop on buttered pans and bake in a moderate oven of 330 degrees.

RASPBERRY SAUCE

Cook 2 cups raspberries and 1 1/2 cups sugar together until the juice becomes syrupy. Serve with simple puddings such as cornstarch, snow, cottage or with ice cream.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR

Cover each pint of berries with 1 pint of mild vinegar. Let stand over night. Strain off the juice and to one pint of juice add 2 cups of sugar. Boil 10 minutes and bottle when hot. I like to dilute the mildest vinegar, using about 3/4 cup vinegar and filling the cup with water.

COMBINED S.S. PICNIC AT STEWART'S GROVE

Winners of Sports Events

About 150 persons gathered on Saturday last at Mr. James Stewart's grove for the Annual Picnic of the combined Anglican Sunday Schools of Calumet, Grenville and Rawcliffe. The day was fine and the place ideal, so that a happy day was spent by all present. In the morning a combination team from Grenville and Rawcliffe beat Calumet at Softball, and after dinner, George Lloyd's team beat Vernon Dawson's team by about 30 runs. After the ball game, several races were held with the following results,—

Girls 6 to 10,—Stella Cousins, Joyce Rayson.

Boys 6 to 10,—Woodrow McIntyre, Stanley Irvine.

Girls 10 to 13,—Lillian Keatley, May Matthew.

Boys 10 to 13,—Clifford Cousins, Pierre Lefebvre.

Girls over 13,—Violet Cousins, Katie Rainey.

Boys over 13,—William Dodd, L. Weldon.

Teachers and Officers,—1st., Violet Cousins; Consolation, L. Brigden.

3-Legged Race (under 16),—Jimmy Bradshaw & Leo Reeves; 2nd., Christina Porter & Violet Cousins.

3-Legged Race (over 16)—M. Rainey and Katie Rainey; 2nd., Fred Dewar and Grant Dewar. Shoe Race,—Melvin Matthew, Janet Reeves.

Minute Race,—Wm. Dodd and Alice Waite (tied).

Following these events, various teams held tug-of-war contests.

Besides a number who arrived in their own vehicles, truck loads were conveyed by Mr. W. Morrow and Mr. H. Brigden. The swings were in constant use and the swimming pool proved a favorite spot. Mrs. J. Taylor and several assistants dispensed the ice-cream, while the ladies present formed themselves into a committee to prepare the lunch and supper. Mrs. J. Stewart donated and made the tea.

The Rector would like to express his thanks to those named and to Mr. Stewart and all others who helped to achieve a most successful picnic.

HUMOR.

The circus manager was proudly showing off his collection of animals to a group of interested spectators and finally came to the cage housing the Laughing Hyena; "This, ladies and gentlemen", he said, "is the Laughing Hyena. He has been in captivity for five years, eats one meal a day, is bitten by fleas and is slightly mangy; yet he keeps on laughing."

Like the Hyena, the public have little to laugh about these days but, unlike the Hyena, they scarcely ever crack a smile. Gloom and depression, are rife everywhere and everybody is down in the dumps.

We can all take a lesson from the Hyena and laugh, thus contributing our share toward the brightening of the world in general. A sense of humor is what we most lack now-a-days; we are all developing a too serious attitude toward life in general.

During the late war, the Canadian soldier had less to laugh about than has the average man today; yet it was the unquenchable spirit of humor that finally brought him triumphant through his ordeal. Bainsfather, Chaplin, and Lloyd have done more for humanity than Einstein, Adam Smith or Rousseau.

A heaven-sent gift of humor has saved many a man from suicide and crime and it behoves us all to develop this rare talent to its full extent. "Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep, and you weep alone" is as true today as ever it was. Ask yourself who is the most popular man at the party and you will usually find that it isn't the savant but the man with a smile. The world welcomes him everywhere. Let us all make up our minds to wear a smile, in season and out of season and it will be astonishing how our troubles will melt as the snows before the summer.

"ODE TO A GOLF BALL"

By Dr. W. Leslie-Dixon.

Oh little white ball as you roll on the green,
Sometimes to places where you cannot be seen,
And do you think your behaviour is nice,
To lie so still grinning, when I make a bad slice?
I ogled you gladly when at the first tee,
And imagined throughout the game
you'd accompany me;
I stared at you fondly as I took my stance,
I addressed you and kissed you, and you flew by chance
To a spot near the cup, which made me one up,
Making me feel like a master, when I was only a pup!
But at the fifth hole my voice became gruff,
When I had to spoon you out of the rough;
Oh little white ball, your heart is so hard,
Just look at the score, that is now on my card!
I've kissed you and hit you, till my club has near split you,
But I haven't a word in my vocabulary to fit you.
In our approximate vicinity, there isn't a soul, Except my opponent and caddy, who are at the ninth hole.
I am being beaten badly, it is plain to be seen,
So perhaps I am justified in letting off spleen.
I'll change you for another, I can stand you no longer.
My next stroke is going to be might-ier and stronger;
Heedless and careless as to where you go,
For only I your resting place will know.
We are now at the water hazard, my heart you won't break, I am going to condemn you to the bottom of the lake.
Your successor I know is going to behave,
She will go where I send her, and she won't make me rave.
From now on I am not going to count on your cost, I'll return to the clubhouse, and report you as "One Ball Lost." Perhaps at some future date you'll be found,
But you won't be worth striking,
when you lay on the ground.
A wee short trip, on a great big ship,
for a practise shot to the surf, Because little ball, you've had your last call,
—You're no longer fit for the turf.

CORRESPONDENCE

REV'D. JAMES FRASER
(Biography)

(Cont'd.)

His school days ended, my distinguished uncle, James Fraser entered his father's grocery store, and for a number of years served the Quebec public behind the counter. And he is said have attracted much trade to an already popular business. Among the poor and rich alike he was sought, and they waited for him to serve them. The wholesale trade during his time, up and won the St. Lawrence and the distant ports of Labrador, Anticosti, and Prince Edward Island more than doubled, and the schooners came up the guif and river laden with dried cod, barrels of herring, and cargoes of oysters, and effected an exchange with the Fraser for flour and other groceries, and therein in turn resold them to the Montreal wholesale trade for distribution all over Canada.
Sometimes they sold their wares direct to the trade in Toronto, London, and other western ports. And wherever these goods entered the Fraser Coffee went too, for they were famed dominion-wide for their good coffee. So during this period he made many personal friendships that were life lasting among the afterward leading men of Canada. Folk often wondered why it was, when they went to him for a letter of recommendation for a son leaving home for different towns in the West, he would say "Oh yes, I will do that for Tom (or Willie), and I will give him a personal letter to a friend of mine there, that I think will be of great use to him"—And it was, for sometimes these letters were to men he had never seen but had known them years before in a business way when he was at Quebec in the grocery trade.

—But before James left the High School, his minister, Dr.
Cook of Chalmers Church, Quebec, had wished him to go into the ministry and finally he prevailed upon him to quit business pursuits that looked very promising indeed, and to enter Queen's College, Kingston, as a divinity student, though it was to the disappointment of a great many of his relatives and his circle of business friends and acquaintances.

THE PUBLIC FORGOT

FOR business men who appear to think the public does not need to be constantly reminded of who they are, where they are, and what they have to sell, the well-known story of what happened to a product called Pyle's Pearline will bear repeating. In the early days of this country, Pearline, a cleaning
material, was used by most of the housewives
of the country. In 1904 the company spent $500,000 in advertising. Then the advertising was greatly curtailed, and about 1907 it
was discontinued altogether, as the company thought the product was so well known that no further advertising was necessary. Sales fell off rapidly, but the company's owners persisted in their non-advertising policy until 1915, when the whole concern was sold for $12,000. Pearline was dead. Many other products whose names were household words
a few years ago, are no longer sold, because
the manufacturers failed to keep up their advertising, and consequently the public forgot them. Business men should remember that new generations of potential customers
are coming along all the time, and that these new buyers must be sold on a product or a store, as their fathers and mothers were before them. The only time it is safe to stop advertising is when one is ready to go out of business. (Amherstburg Echo.)

FACTS CULLED
FROM THE PRESS

Considering Tercentenary, Nine Years Hence

Nine years have to run before Montreal will celebrate the tercentenary of old Ville Marie, founded in 1642, but Ald. Zenon League believes it is not too early for the city to begin looking ahead and he favors nomination of a special committee of local business men representing large organizations to analyze the results of the Chicago Century of Progress Exhibition, to decide whether a universal exposition could form part of the tercentenary celebrations in Montreal.

Ontario Farm Tax Auction is Failure

Napean Township farmers, flocking to the rescue of a fellow-farmer whose belongings were being auctioned off for taxes, bought:
A horse for 25 cents, a side-rig for $1. a hayloader for 50 cents, a good milch cow for $4 and a tractor for $6.
The sale was for $2,600 claimed by Napean Township from J. W. Swan for tax arrears, but the prices, as evidenced, were so low only a fraction of the tax amount was realized.

Deputation of Cows to Parliament

Unless the lawmakers of Austria find relief for the farmers in Lower Austria and Styria, they may have a visit from 5,000 cows at the Parliament House in Vienna. Most of the farmers supply Vienna with milk and there has been a threat that their cows will be seized for taxes.
As a protest against the threat they are planning to drive the cows to Parliament.

Halifax Will Have Police Radio Cars

Plans for increased efficiency in the Halifax Police Department through the introduction of radio-controlled police cars were announced recently by Chief Judson J. Conrad.

MAYOR BELIEVES IN ADVERTISING

"Mayor C. R. Neely has delivered a message to the people of The Pas, asking them to take advantage of paying arrears in taxes on the instalment plan and thus help the town to finance during the present trying period. The mayor has prepared detailed information on the instalment method of payments, and copies of the information are offered to citizens who visit the municipal offices in the community building.
"The council has also gone on record favoring a series of advertising letters in the local newspaper, setting forth the problems of the council, and methods of financing this year.
These open letters carry the crest of The Pas, and appeal to the public to co-operate with the town in an effort to adjust money matters."

WHERE SPENDING DOES NOT SAVE

"There is nothing to be gained by piling up tax burdens which do not strike at the root of the unemployment problem." Here is a sentence that should be pondered by all public officials who have to do with shaping policies and voting to undertake public works. It is advice they should heed.—Ex.

THE TOWN CLERK

The clerk in a great majority of cases is the man who really keeps the machinery of a municipality in operation. Every year or so new men are elected to positions in the council. They must secure instruction and guidance from someone, and this someone is usually the clerk. A councillor or alderman is moved up to the reeveship or the mayor's chair and he is "green" about his new duties. The clerk sets him right and usually keeps him that way. Municipal councils couldn't get started and keep going without the clerk. He is the "power behind the throne."
And if he has tact and good judgment and uses common sense the municipality is generally given credit for having a good council.

REDUCING TAXES.

All taxing units in Iowa must reduce their total levies to less than 75 per cent of the total levies for the year 1930 under the terms of a bill passed by the Iowa Senate. That might be termed tax reduction with a meat axe!

—National Municipal Review.

A suggestion was made that the refuse should be dumped in the disused canal, and the chairman fell in with it. —Weekly Paper.

Jubilee of Moose Jaw, Sask.

Moose Jaw, one of Saskatchewan's flourishing cities, celebrated its jubilee July 15. It is just fifty years since a group of stout-hearted pioneers established a settlement at this spot, where, midway between Winnipeg and Calgary—some four hundred miles from either city—the trails to the west, the south and north crossed.

Power Plant Sold at Pointe Claire, Que.

The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Cons. will take over control of the Pointe Claire power plant on August 1. The sale of the property has been by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.
Citizens of the town sanctioned the sale in a refrendum taken last May.

Mufflers for Fire Trucks

Aldermen of the City of Westmount want quiet to reign in the municipality over which they hold sway. At a recent meeting of the council it was decided to expend the sum of $70 to purchase mufflers for the fire engines.

Mayor John Jenkins, in discussing the resolution, jocularly told newspapermen to put the decimal point in the right place lest it should be thought the mufflers were too costly. The motion called for an expenditure of $70—exactly.

New Civic Tax Proposed in Quebec City

Mayor H. H. Lavigueur of Quebec, assured a crowd of 500 unemployed that if the Dominion and Provincial Governments do not reach an agreement soon on a means of helping them obtain a living, he stands ready to call a special meeting of the City Council to enact a by-law placing a direct tax on Quebec City citizens to provide for the unemployed.

"COLLINGWOOD ENTERPRISE-BULLETIN"

Pointing out that the world is loaded down with debt because it is much easier to seek for new forms of taxation than to study new economies, the Fort William Times-Journal remarks:
"Governments have much the same mentality as the fellow who gave a note in settlement of an account and then murmured: 'Thank God that's paid!'"

PROFESSIONAL MAYORS.

Sault Ste. Marie Star makes the following urge on a timely and well chosen stand:

Ontario might very well consider the adoption of the German practice of educating men to manage its municipalities. In Germany men are trained in the universities in civic government, and any municipality can hire these as their operating heads. Mayors there, it is stated, are not elected by popular vote, but appointed by municipal bodies, and they have to make good to hold their jobs.

The Ontario Municipal Act endeavors to provide against the lack of capacity and ignorance of sound civic government of the men in charge of municipalities. The legislature, although plainly lacking in its own directors to councils, recognizes that our methods of choosing mayors and councillors is bound occasionally to put amateurs in charge of our cities and towns. So we have laws directing us to raise so many mills for this and so many for that, providing for this and guarding against something else. But if men were available who had been taught the theory of civic government, knew municipal law, had a grounding in municipal engineering, were able to make up a municipal budget, knew all about assessment and taxation, and had put in half their college years in the actual operation of a civic government—as a doctor or a lawyer must serve under a practising graduate—how much better would our municipalities fare.

Here and there a Lyons of the Soo or a Croll of Windsor will come to the top, men whose natural shrewdness and force of character make up for a schooling in civic government, but mostly our municipalities have to struggle along as best they can.

The operation of our cities is big business.
We pick men as a rule to run them who are good fellows. What we should do of course, is to pay trained men who would be free from unsound influence, and whose capacity was a guarantee of efficient management at a reasonable cost. Then the Ontario Municipal Board, formed to go to the aid of municipalities in distress, could likely be disbanded.

HOW TO KEEP

FROM GROWING OLD

Always drive fast out of alleyways. You might hit a policeman. There's no telling.
Always race with locomotives to crossings. Engineers like it. It breaks the monotony of their jobs.
Always pass the car ahead on curves or turns. Don't use the horn because it might unnerv the other fellow and cause him to turn out too far.
Demand half the road—the middle half. Insist upon your rights.
Always lock your brakes when skidding. It makes the job more artistic. Often you can turn clear around.
Drive fast as you can on wet pavement. There is always something to stop you if you lose control—often a heavy truck or a plate glass window.
New drivers should be shown how to drive fast in heavy traffic. It gives them the experience every motorist should have.
Never stop, look or listen at railway crossings. It consumes valuable time and besides nobody believes in signs.
In wet weather always drive in trolley tracks. It's smoother going. Always drive close to pedestrians in wet weather. Dry cleaners will erect a monument to your memory.
Try to pass cars on a hill when it is possible. It shows your bus has more power, and you can turn somewhere surely if you meet another car at the top.
Never look around when you back up. There is never anything you can make your car do.
A few shots of booze will nothing behind your automobile. real stunts. For permanent results quaff long and deeply of the flowing bowl before taking the wheel.

Drowning Tragedy at Tyndale Camp

Tyndale Camp, Isle aux Chats was overcast with tragedy last Monday, when Mrs. Mary McKay Jones lost her life while bathing with a party of fellow campers. The victim, aged 30, was the wife of John Jones, an employee of the Westmount Corporation; accompanied by her son and daughter, aged 6 and 5 years respectively, she was vacationing among the happy party of women and children at the Presbyterian camp. Around noon last Monday, Mrs. Jones and her friends were swimming in the North River adjacent to the camp, and it appeared that several of the party were in difficulty. Hans Suomela, a Finlander engaged around the camp, where his wife is cook, was attracted to the scene. Being a strong swimmer he plunged into the water, and was successful in rescuing four of the ladies. Mrs. Jones, however, sank for the third time before he could reach her; it was learned afterwards the victim was subject to heart trouble. Willing hands labored to recover the body, which was discovered three hours later, with use of grappling irons. Dr. B. N. Wales, coroner, arrived from St. Andrews, and empaneled a jury. The verdict was Accidental Death. Later in the day the remains were taken to Montreal for burial.

Italian Airmen Received Pleasing Impression of Canada

Messages Exchanged between Sir George Perley and General Balbo

A message of congratulation from Sir George Perley, and one of appreciation by General Italo Balbo, were exchanged on Tuesday between Ottawa and Shediac, N.B.

"On behalf of our Prime Minister, who is at present in England, I wish to extend to Your Excellency and to your intrepid group of airmen our most hearty congratulations on the successful and wonderful way in which you have shown the world what can be done in mass flying, Sir George Perley wired.

"We regret exceedingly that you could not have visited Ottawa so that we could have expressed our appreciation to you in person but we look forward to seeing you here at some future time. We wish you a very pleasant and safe return journey to Italy and that you will all reach your homes in good health, realizing that you have accomplished something of which the whole world is proud."

General Balbo said in reply: "I was deeply impressed by the message you sent me expressing the congratulations of the Prime Minister and all the members of the Government of Canada on my arrival in Shediac and for the kind words in praise of our aerial cruise. I wish to take the opportunity to thank the Government of Canada for the very valuable help given in our preparations for our great Atlantic cruise and the Canadian people, especially the citizens of Montreal and Shediac, for their warm reception which will always remain with us as a happy memory."

British Families For Ontario Settlements

The Ontario Government, it is announced, will discuss a scheme whereby a large number of British families are to be brought to Ontario and settled on northern crown lands.

England Losing Itinerant Country Shows

Fair Carnivals Fast Disappearing, through Highway Tax

Travelling showmen of England who go from one village fair to another with steam "roundabouts," swing boats, shooting galleries and "cokenut shoes" have a tough row to hoe. New taxation of road vehicles proposed in the Finance Bill threatens their business with extinction.

Already 25 per cent of the country's travelling shows have been driven off the highways through taxation increase on heavy vehicles. The showmen say their average use of the roads amounts to 500 miles a year and that they pay the same taxes as haulage contractors whose trucks cover 25,000 miles. Six years from now all road vehicles will be required to have pneumatic tires—an innovation which showmen view askance.

Many an oldster will shed a tear when the last show-wagon is taken off the road, but it has been apparent for some time that the old-time village fair is dying out in practically every part of England. Originally the fairs were markets, and their history is as old as that of the realm itself. After the Norman troops of William the Conqueror established his rule in England fairs increased in number rapidly, owing largely to frequent visits of foreign merchants. The industrial revolution of last century marked the beginning of their decline. In 1868 the Home Secretary was empowered to abolish fairs which had outlived their usefulness, but the showmen held on. There are still many persons in the country whom the "movies" and other modern entertainments have not alienated from the glamor of old amusements on the village green.

---From Kerhulu Inn the authors made their way back to the Chateau to attend a meeting, still going in taxis because of the floods of water on the streets and the floods still pouring from the skies, to listen to more beautiful French oratory from the lips of M. Leopold Houle of Montreal, M. Damase Potvin, Quebec; M. Paul Fontaine, Ottawa; Abbe Albert Tessier, Three Rivers; and M. Louis Robidoux, of Sherbrooke.

Following these gentlemen came Mr. Norris Hodgins, of Macdonald College with his interesting talk on "Canadian Humorists" and Mr. Murray Gibbon of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, with his interesting history of his gramophone. This is Mr. Gibbon's idea of an approach to poetry through music, or in other words the writing of words to music listened to by the repeated playing of beautiful music on the gramophone. Mr. Gibbon calls it his musical game.

Another interesting feature of the convention was the Reception and opening of the Exhibition of Canadian Books at the Palais Montcalm.

One eminent Canadian Author stated that English authors would certainly have to look to their laurels, as the assortment of French Canadian books on display was certainly an eye-opener to those of us who were not aware that so many French books and novels had been written.

The regular business sessions of the convention were opened

Quebec Scenery to be Advertised Abroad

With a view to increasing the tourist traffic in the Province of Quebec it was announced last week the Tourist Council will launch a publicity campaign in England, in France, and in various other countries of Europe. Hon. J. E. Perrault, Minister of Highways, has also announced plans for setting up sign posts along the highways in certain sections, calling attention to the more picturesque and historical spots in the province.

Automatic Phones in Oka

Nearly 100 telephones at Oka and immediate vicinity including those of the Trappist Monastery will be "cut" into a new dial exchange on August 1, according to an announcement by the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

The new dial exchange will be the first "unattended" central office of its kind in the Bell Telephone Company. The equipment will provide full automatic service for the completion of all local calls from individual two-party, rural or public telephone calls. To obtain assistance or information, the Oka subscribers will merely dial "Operator," as marked on the dial, to signal an operator at the telephone switchboard in the exchange at St. Eustache.

Early Production of Pullets

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Mr. Editor:

I read in last week's Watchman, with great interest an account of a four and a half month old pullet which had started production, also which you believed a local record. This is by no means a record, for in a flock of pullets that have real breeding in them and have been developed from a line bred, and bred to lay foundation stock, there are often one or two birds that show remarkable development and early maturity. This early production, which although one cannot help a feeling of pride, is not as a rule sought, for as such pullets usually break down under heavy production at such an early age and require constant care and often wreck themselves so physically that they are doubtful breeders. Therefore generally, production is not looked for until the fifth month, when with proper care they are fully developed. At the present time out of a flock of 200 banded rock pullets, bred from pedigree R.O.P. Government approved males mated to pedigree yearling hens, and hatched March 1st., twelve pullets came into production between July 11th. and July 15th., and which makes some of them under four and a half months old. Also I imagine that there are a number of early producing pullets in this locality if their owners would not hide their light under a bushel.

I am,
Yours truly,
Walter A. Cooper.

and general interchange of good will between the French and English sections of the Convention permeated the entire meetings, many expressions of the desire of all concerned were heard, that the two nationalities would be more closely drawn together in a strong bonded union that would make for a peaceful, united Canada.

Quebec City being the seat, as it were, of the French Canadian section, a great many of the addresses were given in French, which made it quite hard for unaccustomed English ears to follow, but which were received by the French people with great applause.

Man Drowned at St. Placide Last Week

Fell From Boat in Fainting Spell

A Montreale, Didase Dagenais, 63, who had been spending the summer at St. Placide with his family, was drowned last Thursday in the Lake of Two Mountains where he had gone fishing with his son and a friend.

Dr. Labelle, coroner, of St. Jerome, held an inquest at Oka, where the body was recovered on Sunday, and pronounced a verdict of Accidental Death. Evidence was given that the victim was seated in the stern of a boat behind his son and a young man named Forest. Turning around Forest noticed Dagenais had become pale, and he spoke to him twice but obtained no answer. As he was about to move towards him, the man lurched and fell into the water and was carried down by the current. The body was recovered on Sunday floating in the river between Hudson and Oka.

Lightning Killed Five Cows At Cornwall, Ont.

During a severe electrical storm which passed over the vicinity of Cornwall one night last week, five milch cows were killed by lightning when a bolt struck a tree under which they had taken shelter from the heavy rain. The dead bodies were found by the farmer when the herd was being rounded up for milking on the following morning.

Compensate For Cattle Destroyed

New Payment Plan Adopted for Quebec Farmers.

With a view to encouraging farmers to develop a purer breed of stock, and particularly to take every possible step against the spread of tuberculosis amongst their cattle, the Quebec Department of Agriculture has decided to introduce a new plan whereby it will in part reimburse farmers who lost part of their stock through filtration of the disease among it.

The health service of the department, it has been officially announced by J. Antonio Grenier, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, is prepared to pay a farmer losing a bull or cow under these conditions (after examination) to the extent of $25 if it is over two years of age, and to the extent of $15 if it is under that age. That applies only to pure-breeds. For cross-breeds the rates are $15 and $8 respectively.

Conditions of the compensation plan include that the farmer seeking help must buy the new cattle within the province, and that he must comply with certain departmental rules and regulations regarding inspection and examination of his herds.

Two U.S. Motorists Injured Near Calumet

Auto Leaves Road and Piles Into Post.

(Hawkesbury Echo)

Blow-out of a tire is believed to have been the cause of a serious accident last week on the Hull-Montreal highway a mile west of Calumet, when an automobile left the road, smashed telegraph pole and turned over and its two passengers, residents of the United States, were injured.

Edward Rawson, 19, of Connecticut, owner of the car, was the most seriously injured, receiving cuts which required several stitches and bad bruises. The driver of the automobile, Dudley R. Johnson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was badly shaken up and bruised but not seriously injured.

Rawson was thrown ten feet from the automobile when it turned over, and Johnson was pinned underneath the car, which came to a stop nearly forty feet from the roadway. A farmer in the neighborhood was the first at the scene of the accident. The two were taken to Hawkesbury for treatment. It was stated that Rawson, the more seriously injured of the two, would recover.

Traffic Officer J. A. Legault of Brownsburg, investigated the accident.

Urge to Proceed with Lachute-Grenville Highway as Trans-Canada Link

Estimated Cost $450,000

Georges Dansereau, M.L.A., Heads Delegation before Minister of Roads.

Brownsburg Road Also Mentioned

Accompanied by mayors and leading citizens from the neighborhood, Georges Dansereau, legislative member for this county, waited upon Hon. J. E. Perrault, Minister of Roads, and Mines, at the Government offices in Montreal on Tuesday, and urged the advisability of immediately getting under way the link in the trans-Canada highway which specially interests the people of this territory. The highway concerned is that running from Lachute to Grenville, connecting with the Perley Interprovincial Bridge. The distance is 18 miles, and the cost at $25,000 a mile, $450,000. The plans have been prepared and call for enlargement of the present road and paving along the entire length. The project is part of the Quebec Government plan in connection with the trans-Canada highway, and has been submitted to Ottawa. Altogether, the eight sections of that highway for which federal aid is wanted, and for which it presumably will be granted, will cost $1,872,000.

Mr. Dansereau pointed out to Hon. Mr. Perrault that there is considerable unemployment in the towns and villages of Argenteuil county, and that the expenditure of $450,000 to commence now and to last until termination of the work would mean a great alleviation of the situation. The Minister of Roads was very sympathetic to the project, and pointed out that he had already included the section in his programme.

Mr. Dansereau also raised the matter of a highway between Lachute and Brownsburg pointing out what this would mean in the way of employment and the necessity for the highway.

2nd. round.
Fernand Legault vs. H. Bigger 6-3 6-3
Roland Rinfret vs. H. Tremblay 6-0 6-2
Wilbrod Cousineau vs. Leonard Ayers, by default.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER "STORMS"

Dear Boys :

Just at this time of the year the marvels of nature reveal themselves in the way of storms, electrical and otherwise. So it is quite timely that my subject this week should be—Storms. Now there are many boys—small ones of course—who hate to see the lightning or hear the thunder and, when the sky is black and the wind is driving the rain against their bedroom window, they just bury their heads under the blanket and wish this horrible thing would pass away and the stars shine out once more. There are also some boys much older who don't like storms, though of course they would never admit the fact . . . You, for instance, who are reading this.

When a storm is taking place it may not be pleasant, but as a rule it is not dangerous, provided the ordinary precautions are taken. Perhaps the best thing you can do with regard to storms is to remember that they are necessary. When, in summer time, the ground gets hard and dusty for lack of moisture; flowers droop for want of water, and even the plants and grain falter under the terrific heat, so that conditions become almost unbearable, the welcome change arrives with the coming of a storm. If you desire to see the countryside at its very best, then take a walk over the fields and into the woods immediately the storm, has passed, and you will then see the wonders of nature revelling in renewed vitality and sublime freshness.

"What is more glorious than a perfect rainbow in a storm-tossed sky? I don't think that storms, of a sort, are absent altogether from human beings. The other day I was told of a boy who had a stormy temper. What I was meant to understand by this, was that at times he stormed and raged about the most trivial things, and then he would be his own normally happy self again.

Well, he is a better fellow than the one who inwardly burns himself up with sullen resentment, day after day, grouching and complaining about matters that for want of a better word he calls unjust. The big storm is preferable. Then we have the sun come gleaming through the rain. Tears are not always childish, and it is the real plucky boy who can force a smile when his cheeks are still wet with them.

"Storms are followed by the sunset's glow,
Light and shadow mark the way we go.
Life is a journey and we have to face Defeat and victory with the best of grace."

May you meet your storms bravely and tread your sunny paths with joy.

Your affectionate friend,

Chapter 30.

Frankie Wilson, of all those who lived at River Farm, was the most impressed at the arrival of Tom Dickson's party. In those days visitors were few and far between, and the fact that those who now sought shelter under his father's roof were English, only provided an extra thrill to their arrival. For a short while he was busily employed in giving a hand with the baggage that the newcomers had brought with them; but as soon as he could, he took Sharp Eye on one side and engaged him in earnest conversation.

"What of these people, and where do they come from?" was the first eager question he shot at the Indian.

Sharp Eye looked at his young master closely and permitted himself a quiet smile. "They are English, young chief, and have come to make their home in this country the same as your father did many years before you were born. It is a good thing for you that they have arrived."

The young boy was not a little surprised at this speech for he well knew that the Indian was a man of very few words and seldom put himself to the trouble of saying anything. "Why do you say it will be good for me, the arrival of these strangers?" he enquired curiously.

"Because two of them are near your own age and one especially will become as your brother," was the somewhat cryptic remark.

The words, slowly as they were spoken, gave Frankie a feeling of satisfaction. If they were only true one of the secret ambitions of his life would be brought about. For a long time he had desired a companion who would become, as time went on, his confidant in all those matters that of necessity could not be shared with older folk. He had no school to fall back on, for in those days there were none and it was the exception rather than the rule for even grown-up people to be able to read and write. In this way he was fortunate, for his father, himself a cultured man, had seen to it that his son was not lacking in these essentials; but for the rest he had been thrown on his own resources and the ever guiding instruction of Sharp Eye who from the moment that he had been able to dispense with parental assistance, had taught him to hunt, fish and blaze his own trail through the deep woods. In this way he had become a keen hunter and was well versed in wood-craft.

It was not to be expected that these boys who had come from a distant land would be familiar with such things, and he already looked forward to the time when it would be possible to display his knowledge and show forth his skill in this way. "These English may be great travellers, and they are undoubtedly brave people," he thought to himself, "but I have heard Dad say more than once that they are traders and sea wolves and have, as yet, little knowledge of this country where I have lived all my life."

These thoughts were interrupted by hearing his name called, and at once he ran towards the house, waving an affectionate farewell to his companion.

"Frankie" said his father, as he entered the living room where his family and the new arrivals were assembled, "I want you to meet Mr. Dickson, his son and ward and his assistant, whom I believe," he added with a smile, "is called Sunny Jim."

BIRD SOUNDS

Sounds like a wheel-barrow needing some oil. Or an old fashioned grindstone creaking with toil. Mixed up in a maze of quivers and trills, Like thin-blown reed pipes Piping 'mongst the hills. Something disturbs them They're off on the wing. Each glossy bird, forgetting to sing. What kind of birds are they? Well now, can't you tell, They're blackbirds, just black-birds. The kind you know well.

NANCY'S PUP

Disappointed Children

Mr. Browne kicked open the door of an old shed. Tied to a stake and with scarcely room to move, stood the gaunt old black dog that had been haunting the neighborhood the day the children first found Nancy's pup. "Oh, Daddy!" Nora said bursting into tears, "I am so dreadfully disappointed."

"I don't know that I am," said Ned in a fierce whisper. "I would much rather know that Nancy's pup was dead than have it starved and miserable like this poor old brute. I hope someone reports that to the S.P.C.A. I will myself, if Dad doesn't."

"Oh, Ned, I would not," said Maud. "I am sorry for the poor dog, but for Dad's sake we will have to keep quiet I am afraid." "Why must we keep quiet for Dad's sake! How will it affect him if I make the complaint?"

Very shyly the boy extended his hand to each in turn, but it was to Edgar that he gave the warmest clasp, for, with the words of the Indian fresh in his mind, he had the feeling that here at last was the chum he had been longing for.

In a few moments his mother announced that supper was ready and a general move was made to the large roomy kitchen, where it was customary in those days for meals to be taken by all engaged in the work of the farm, with the exception of the Indians who had their own camp under the supervision of Sharp Eye in another section.

Before sitting down Frankie found time to whisper to Edgar, "Come with me afterwards and I will show you my pony," and for his courage received a friendly smile and acknowledgment.

Conversation as the meal progressed consisted chiefly of a breezy account of the voyage, given by Tom Dickson, who well described the mutiny of the poor slaves and how near it came to being the death of all those in authority. "It seems a pity," he concluded, "that such conditions exist, and there has been talk for a long time that the English Government should do something—though I am afraid that it is only talk."

Mr. Wilson nodded his head in grave agreement, and the remainder of supper was taken up with a somewhat heated discussion on politics as they then existed, which this story has little to do with.

"Now Frankie," said his mother when the last course had been removed, "I will excuse you the chores for half an hour while you show your young friends round; only don't be longer, for our guests must be made comfortable."

"What are 'chores'?" asked Walter as he and Edgar followed Frankie outside. "I have never heard that word before." Their young host laughed. "Oh, it's just cleaning up around, feeding and watering the stock, and doing odd jobs in the house."

"What Sunny Jim does, I suppose?" replied Edgar. "You don't have to do that kind of work when your Dad is Governor, do you?"

It was now Frankie's turn to look surprised. "Of course I do," he answered. "Chores are my job, being a boy, and I guess when I am a man I shall still be doing them, only they will be bigger than I can do now. In this country," he added proudly, "we just do things for ourselves. But why do you call my Dad the Governor?" He doesn't rule the country; that guy lives over in Quebec when he ain't travelling."

Walter grinned. "Edgar means that your Dad owns the farm, and as his son there is no need for you to do the work of a hired man."

But Frankie only looked the amazement he felt. "I guess I don't just understand" he replied slowly. "How can I learn if I don't do things and keep on doing them, and besides they depend on me you know;" and again the note of conscious pride crept into his voice. "But see," he added quickly, "We have reached the stables. Come in and look at the finest little pony for miles around. Dad gave it to me on my birthday."

false pretences, Jock was busy putting as much space as he could between those two men and himself. He was striking out for new quarters somewhere else, and I am sure we all hope that he will find better company than Old Mr. Grundy, who, not being happy himself, just hated seeing anyone else happy.

Mother Craig and Sue were glad to see them back and commented rather sarcastically upon Old Mr. Grundy's unkindness. At least Sue did; Mother Craig was too gentle to say very much against any person.

Spring blossomed into summer; summer sped on its way as if on speedy wings, so the Craig children thought. Holiday time passed so swiftly that Ned remarked "Say, I never saw a summer go as quickly as this summer has gone. It seems only yesterday that I locked the old school door for two months, and here I am opening it again. I'll be glad to be grown up and done with school."

"I heard a lecturer once say", said Maud "that we are never done with school; that we are still learning all through life."

"Oh, that may be" said Ned, "but we only have to learn just what we like when we are done school."

"I am not so sure of that, Laddie," said his teacher, who had just come in at the school-house gate. "We learn a great many things as we go on through life, and some of them are really unpleasant lessons, but I hope that only happy lessons will come your way, children, also that you will shut your eyes and ears to lessons that are unclean or would harm the dignity and usefulness of your lives."

With these words she passed on into the school-room and commenced preparing for another year's work.

School days and holidays passed by in rapid succession, until the nip of frost was being felt in the air. There were nutting parties and Hallowe'en parties all through the fall season to help make the children forget Nancy's pup. Nancy herself seemed to have forgotten it; at least, while sometimes she wandered away, she was around home most of the time and always within call.

When the first light fall of snow came, Daddy Craig said "I think I shall draw some of that hay up from the old barn; it is not very fresh but it will do for bedding for the cattle. I shall start this morning and draw enough to fill one end of the shed by the stable."

"May we come with you, Dad?" asked Ned.

"Surely, Ned, I shall want all my little helpers this morning. These hands make light work they say, and as I have only two hands of my own I shall be glad of the help of as many hands as care to help."

So it was settled that the children should all go with their daddy, all of course but Baby John, who was now big enough to be let outside by himself to play if Mother and Sue kept a watchful eye on him to see that he did not wander away. But not big enough to help with the hay.

The children exclaimed at the beauty of the pond which they could see as they passed by the end of the barn. It was frozen over, a very thin coating of ice, and looked like a beautiful mirror.

"Do you think it would be safe to skate on Dad?" asked Ned.

"No, son, far from safe, yet. It will take quite a bit more hard freezing before it will be safe," his father said as he started pitching hay onto the sleighs for the children to scatter around.

They had been working quite busily for some time when suddenly piercing shrieks came from the direction of the pond, combined with the excited yet muffled barking of a strange dog.

At the first sound Nancy had thrown up her head and dashed off. Mr. Craig dropped his fork and followed her as quickly as he could, with the children close at his heels.

An unexpected sight met their eyes. Baby John had slipped away without Mother Craig or Sue seeing him, had attempted Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago

Friday, July 27, 1883.

Mr. Tessier has built a new cottage on the Mill-way, and Mr. Barley is also erecting a nice house on the same street.

Acknowledgment has been received by Messrs. Fish and Ireland of Lachute Mills, of receipt of samples of their "National Foods," sent to London, only 23 days elapsing between their shipment and receipt of the reply.

Miscellaneous placed a number of rails across the C.P.R. tracks two miles East of Lachute, with intent to wreck the early morning freight. Fortunately only the cow-catcher of the engine was demolished.

Carleton Place Herald has been revived again under the management of Allen Bros. & Kirbee. It is Liberal in politics.

Following the settlement of a colony in the rear of Wentworth it is contemplated to transport mails for Mille Isles, Morin and northern parts of the county, by way of Lachute—instead of via St. Jerome as formerly.

25 Years Ago

Friday, July 24, 1908.

A number of our townfolk are attending the Tercentenary celebrations at Quebec.

Mr. Clarence Conlin and son, of Oxbow, Sask., are visiting his parents in Dunany.

Mrs. A. Middleton and son Lyall have left for a three months' visit to Winnipeg and Strathcona.

Miss Ettie Stewart, Lieut. of the Salvation Army Corps at London, Ont., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jason Stewart.

Mr. P. Bissette has purchased the McFaul property in the West End, with Grist Mill adjoining.

Mr. Jos. Squire spent last week with Mrs. T. McQuat at Sixteen Island Lake.

Miss Lizzie McGibbon is spending a visit with friends at Vankleek Hill.

The BEST way to stop CONSTIPATION

Nothing like Fruit-a-tives

"I was in a very bad way with constipation. My stomach was off-colour and I kept having headache after headache. Quite frequently I had severe pains in my joints and muscles. The general effect was very depressing. Indeed, I felt so wretched that I was about to give up work. Today my health is excellent and I certainly feel that 'Fruit-a-tives' played a large part in bringing this about. They toned up my entire system."

Fruit-a-tives . . . all drug stores

A lady out shopping one day entered a butcher shop and asked for a sheep's head. She emphatically stated that she must have English mutton.

"Sorry, mum," replied the butcher, "we only stock Scotch mutton."

The lady was most anxious to purchase the sheep's head, but she was insistent that it must be English.

Turning to the back of the shop, the butcher called his boy assistant to him, and said quietly, pointing to the head of a sheep lying on the counter at the far end of the shop: "Jock, tak' the brains out o' that heid."

But he was being held safely by a splendid big brown-and-tan dog who was vainly trying to make his way back to the shore which was not so far distant; but the ice kept breaking under him and Baby John's frantic struggles to get free from his clutch, was making it quite difficult for him.

With a wild shout of "Johnnie Boy, Daddy's coming!" Mr. Craig dashed into the pond, caught his wee son up in his arms, which was a difficult thing to do as the strange dog seemed very anxious to retain his hold on the baby's coat.

"Nasty doggie!" Baby John sobbed, "frightened Johnnie Boy."

Half laughing and half crying Maud said, "you mean good

SEEING QUEBEC The Call of Gaspé

Vacation travel is here, in Canada, within everybody's reach. The most modest budget to-day has its little appropriation for that purpose. Travelling during a few weeks of each year is rightly considered a necessity. It broadens the mind, dulls the edge of routine and drudgery, refreshes the soul. Thus, every year, "are we wreathing a flowery band to bind us to the earth?"

But, ever year, the same question arises: "Whither?" Many have, in the past, preferred travelling in foreign parts. And it is true that foreign lands and cities have a strange attraction. And it is human to yield to this attraction. But, in this troubled year 1933, when travelling foreigners are often frowned upon in almost all the countries of the world, it seems particularly fitting that we undertake the surprisingly pleasant task of discovering our own country.

And what a grand country we have right here in our dear old Quebec. It is a kingdom within a kingdom. It stretches from the wilds of Abitibi to the fashionable seashore of our Canadian Riviera, the Baie des Chaleurs. It possesses untold wealth of landscapes, varied and picturesque folklore, historical cities, hospitals and sympathetic populations.

Let us this year turn our backs to the trail that leads to the loud and expensive American beaches. Have you never thought that it is somewhat shameful to know so very little about one's own country? One section of our extensive Province, the Gaspé Peninsula, has heretofore remained practically unknown to the traveller.

Yet, from the point of view of the tourist, it is an incomparable land, where the scenic displays are worthy of treatment by the greatest artists.

The very road to Gaspé offers the most picturesque and varied panorama in the world. Throughout the Peninsula is to be found, to-day, a comprehensive network of perfect motor roads. Also hotel accommodations may be had everywhere at most reasonable prices.

The virgin forests, the indented sea-board, the marvelous salmon and trout fishing waters of Gaspé have made of it a veritable paradise for the hunter and fisherman.

Apart from its scenic landscapes, the beautiful Matapedia Valley is one of the most beautiful camping-grounds to be found anywhere.

The mean daily temperature in the Gaspé Peninsula is better than that of the city of Montreal. There is never excessive heat and the nights are always cool, although never cold during the summer months. In the Fall,—September and October, nature is really at its best with the most gorgeous autumnal colorings and the air is still sufficiently warm to make motor travel pleasant and restful.

By following route No. 6,—also called Perron Boulevard,—the traveller sees Gaspé as it should be seen,—that is, in an interesting order, as though it were really three countries in one.

doggie. Only for him we would have had no Johnnie Boy. I wonder whose dog he is, Dad? I've never seen him around here before, but Nancy seems to know him, at least she must or she would be snarling at him."

Daddy Craig looked down at the dog, who was crouching at his feet watching him wrap Baby John up in the buffalo robe to keep him warm until they would get him to the house. "I have seen him before" Daddy Craig said, his thoughts going back to when and where he had seen just such markings on a dog. "Yes, I have seen him before. He is Nancy's pup, children!"

The children were too astonished to speak at first, but the sight of Nancy walking so proudly around as if to say "See what my son has just done," convinced them that their father was right.

"But where has he been all this time, Dad?" Nora asked.

"Judging from the look of the well-picked bones just inside that hole under the barn, he has been living right here all the time, and Nancy has been sharing her bones with him."

"Come along to the house with us, Hero," said Maud, "I am sure Mother will have no objections to us keeping you after this."

They met Mother Craig coming to enquire if they had seen anything of Johnnie Boy. She was terribly frightened until she saw him safe in Maud's arms, cuddled snug and warm amongst the hay. "Oh, Mother's Baby," she cried "you have given Sue and me such a fright!"

On hearing just what had happened, she knelt down in the snow, took the shy, beautiful dog's head between her hands; and sobbed out "Thank God for Nancy's Pup!"

The End.

(Next week we will have a little story about Cackles.)

Lovingly,

Aunt Jean.

The Ottawa Spotlight

A Weekly Review of National Affairs

By Wilfrid Eggleston

A thrilling game is being played by wheat exporters in Canada and wheat buyers in Europe, and no one knows at the moment who is going to win. Canadian exporters think that recent events justify a higher price for wheat: the Liverpool buyers are not convinced. Recently the price of wheat soared at Chicago and Winnipeg until it was way above Liverpool prices, with the result that Canadian exports fell and European buying dried up. Meantime Australia kept on selling at ten cents a bushel below Winnipeg, and the Argentine another ten cents below that, with the result that those two countries were capturing the bulk of the export business.

But maybe Liverpool is wrong for once and Winnipeg right. One thing sure, the crop prospects in Canada and the United States have steadily deteriorated the last six weeks. Winnipeg, 'holding out' for a better price, may win out and compel Liverpool to come up. If they do, Australia and the Argentine will wish they had held off too. It's as hard to know, as though they were playing the stock market. Anyway, the latest collapse in prices brought Winnipeg down to a point where the Liverpool buyers immediately became interested again.

More than Speculative Wave

How much of the improvement in Canada is speculation and how much real improvement in business? That is puzzling a lot of Canadians to-day. The most encouraging statement I've seen in a long time is that the business upturn in Canada during June wiped out the losses of the last twelve months. That's progress. And if the speculators don't destroy public confidence again, there is bound to be further improvement. Anyway, that's what the Ottawa observers say.

When President Roosevelt and Premier Bennett get together this fall to talk about enlarging trade between the two countries they won't be embarrassed by lack of scope. Back in 1921 the total business between the two countries amounted to $160. for every man, woman and child in Canada. For the 12 months ending May 30th., 1933 the trade had fallen to $35 per capita. But visitors from the U. S. to the Canadian capital declare that sentiment in favor of encouraging Canadian imports to the U. S. is greater than it has been for many years.

Watching the C. C. F.

Sir George Perley, who is nearly seventy-six, but who runs Canada with a handful of ministers quite smoothly during the absences of Premier Bennett, didn't call an emergency session to deal with the C.C.F. platform announced at Regina, but just the same the government is watching the activity of this new political party with close interest. So is Liberal headquarters at Ottawa. Before Mackenzie King left Ottawa on a five-weeks' tour of the west, he had collected for him a lot of data about the new movement and is expected to make numerous references to the C.C.F. and its relation to Liberalism, in the course of his speeches.

THE PROGRESS OF A CANADIAN FIRM

A new brand of soft drinks has just been placed on the market in Lachute and vicinity, through Chevrier & Freres, of this town... the complete line of the Corona Soft Drinks. This line presents a great variety, such as orange juice, ginger ale cream soda, champagne cider, etc. Corona soft drinks are well known in the province of Quebec and in Ontario where they are appreciated by connoisseurs. Their history is a long series of successes.

Ten years ago, Mr. Arthur Laniel, now deceased, who already had a wide experience in the manufacturing of soft drinks, established the Corona Soft Drinks Co'y. which had a very small plant, manufacturing at the most a couple of hundred cases per week. One horse-drawn wagon was enough for the delivery.

But, on account of their quality, these products became so popular that the firm had to install new machinery so as to increase their production to 2,000 cases per day. The number of wagons also increased in proportion and to-day, the Corona Soft Drinks Co., has 25 trucks to take care of the delivery in Montreal and suburbs only.

In 1931, the Corona Soft Drinks Company was incorporated as a limited company, by the Laniel Brothers who took over the direction. It is interesting to note the success of the firm during the last ten years. At its inception, Corona Soft Drinks Co., was manufacturing two or three kinds of drinks, but as the buying public was asking a wider variety the Laniel Brothers increased the number of their products, and to-day, they make a line of 13 different drinks, all in great favor with the public.

It is hoped that the region of Lachute will welcome the products of the Company.

M. L. Hornby is over in London attempting to persuade British interests to put up money for a new scheme of colony settlements in Canada for British families. Before General Hornby went to London he interviewed authorities right across the Dominion, spending four days here with the immigration authorities. He found a lot of interest in his plan, but only Ontario was ready to talk immediate movement of families. Premier Henry advised him that there were several blocks of 10,000 acres each of Crown lands which the Ontario government was prepared to make available for the "Foundation Settlements" which General Hornby is proposing. A novel feature of the scheme is that it calls for no financial support from the provincial or federal governments in Canada. The settler families would be closely culled and would come from one town or county. The plan proposes that after three to five years as renters in the "Foundation Settlements" the British families, having acquired a knowledge of Canadian agriculture, would be encouraged to move elsewhere and purchase farms of their own.

Current Notes of Municipal Interest

Road Blocks Stolen for Fuel

Piece by piece one of Chicago's streets was disappearing. As rapidly as the city laid paving blocks they disappeared. They arrested Frank Valencia, a negro, as he pushed a wheelbarrow, loaded with wooden paving bricks, "I use 'em for fuel," he told a judge. "The city is supposed to furnish relief, isn't it?" He was fined.

Thieves Caught 30 Seconds After Radio Call

Montreal's Police Radio system, although only a short time in operation, has already proven its worth in public protection. The record for quick action was probably struck in a recent arrest made 30 seconds after a hold-up committed in a chain-store. Two men were taken in charge running into a lane adjacent to the scene, prompt arrival of the police car being directly due to notification by radio.

Prince of Wales Opened Three New Bridges in One Day.

The Prince of Wales opened three new bridges over the Thames recently, at Chiswick, Twickenham and Hampton Court, and wound up the ceremonies at a tea on the Hampton Court Bridge and the famous Hampton Court where nearly 1,000 guests were present.

Lord Rochdale and Lord Ashcombe, Lord Stanley, Minister of Transport, accompanied the Lieutenants of Middlesex and Surrey, and Oliver Prince. Local members of Parliament, architects and engineers and many other notables were on hand.

Red Auto Confused with Fire Chief's.

One Nat. Payne of Evanston, Ill., received generous publicity when his red car was mistaken for the local Fire Chief's machine.

There was a fire and Payne, having a red car, was mistaken by policemen for a fire lieutenant. So the police gave him an escort and he went to the fire so fast that he even passed the fire chief.

It was afterwards noted the accused had no speedometer on his car, so a judge fined him $9 and ordered him to paint his car another color.

Town Clerk at Ninety-three.

Forfar claims the distinction of having the oldest town clerk in Scotland. He is Colonel Alex. McHardy, who is 93 years of age and has been in office since 1903.

Autos Control Own Traffic.

Glasgow, Scotland, has just installed its latest robot traffic policeman, and with them automobiles and street cars will control their own traffic. Two sets of traffic signals which have been installed as a test, are operated automatically by approaching vehicles. "Detector" plates have been sunk in the pavement at four approaches to the crossing, and when a vehicle passes over the detector, signs are displayed for both streets. Each vehicle is then authorized by lights to proceed in its proper turn. Street cars operate the signals by an overhead device.

APPRECIATION FOR FLOWERS SHIPPED TO CITY

The following letter of appreciation has been received by Mr. I. Holland who this year is in charge of the sending of Flowers to Montreal.

July 25, 1933.

Mr. Ivan Holland,

Lachute, Quebec.

Dear Mr. Holland:

On behalf of the Committee, I wish to thank you and the people of Lachute for carrying on so successfully with the work of collecting flowers for distribution by the Flower Committee. We have always counted greatly on the generous supply from Lachute and would find it very difficult indeed to meet the needs of the agencies without your assistance.

The flowers have been arriving here in excellent condition and we are anxious to let you know how much we appreciate your efforts.

Yours truly,

Hazel S. Bishop.

Sec'y. Flower Committee.

Shipments are made on the morning train every Friday.

Questions of Concern to Quebec Towns

A warning has been sounded to municipal authorities in Quebec Province, that in future banks will not issue loans to municipalities unless it can be guaranteed that they will be paid back "within a reasonable time".

Many municipal administrators, it seems, depend too much on the banks to fulfill their financial needs and seem to forget that banks can lend money only on short terms. This practice is unsafe, as it would imperil the municipality's credit to have a bank refuse to renew its note.

According to Deputy Minister Oscar Morin in his monthly Bulletin to Quebec municipal officials, it is the duty of municipal councils to establish their collection rolls at the beginning of the financial year and to ensure prompt payment of taxes, as far as possible, in order that they may have funds sufficient to meet current expenses and deal with notes falling due half yearly.

Other notes of interest from the Bulletin include a revised system of accounting, recommended for greater convenience in rural municipalities.

A question which arises periodically before civic administrations will receive the attention of Legislature in the next Quebec session. This is the matter of taxation upon tradesmen and canvassers, which is now the object of study at Quebec, and will doubtless be regulated and placed on a standard basis.

Tradesmen's licenses were originally brought under discussion by the Canadian Manufacturers Assn., and a committee of the Quebec Union of Municipalities undertook to study the situation. At present conditions under which tradesmen or canvassers are taxed by municipalities (outside of that wherein they reside) vary considerably in the different provinces, and it is aimed to find a basis of imposts equally fair to transient business, to the resident merchant, and to the township concerned.

SEEK FEDERAL GRANT FOR THREE RIVERS TERCENTENARY

A delegation of 20 representatives of the City of Three Rivers (Que.) and its various commercial and social organizations, called upon Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley, acting Prime Minister, request financial assistance for the tercentenary celebration to be held in that city in July, 1934.

The celebration will symbolize the development of the St. Maurice River Valley during the last 300 years, and is to be staged on an elaborate scale. The delegation asked the Government to contribute $100,000. It was stated the Municipal Council of Three Rivers had agreed to put up $100,000 and the Provincial Government would give the same amount if the Federal Government would contribute $100,000.

MISTAKEN ECONOMY

In Alabama 85 per cent of the elementary and secondary schools are now closed, and some counties have returned to the three months' public school term of a generation ago. To be sure, something drastic had to be done in Alabama's financial crisis, but did the citizens of tomorrow have to be sacrificed for the folly of the citizens of today? —American Exchange.

LAKEFIELD

In spite of the fact that, so far, the local summer population has been somewhat smaller than usual, Messrs. Legg and Evans report a successful season up to the present time. All wish them prosperity in their venture in renting the store and post office from Mr. Miles Copeland for a year.

Mr. Walter Shearsmith has finished the improvements on Mr. Townsend's pretty cottage.

Several new summer homes have been built for occupation this season along the shores of the Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. James Arnott spent a few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Peet.

Local church-goers are looking forward to the pleasure of having the Choir of St. Simon's Church on Sunday, July 30th, at 2.30 p.m. standard time when D.V. they are to join in the service at Holy Trinity Church.

The small lad of the family had behaved so badly that punishment of some sort was necessary.

"Jimmy," commanded his mother, find a switch and bring it to me.

Shortly after the young man returned.

"I couldn't find a switch, ma," he reported, "but here's a big rock you can throw at me."

One good way to keep in touch with friends and relatives is to own a fine cottage at a summer resort.

There had been an outbreak of fire at the artist's studio, and the insurance agent had called to estimate the damage.

"Now, with regard to these canvasses," said the insurance man. "You say they cost about ten shillings each?"

"Yes," admitted the artist. "But," he pointed out, "I'd painted on most of them."

"Ah," said the agent, thoughtfully. "Then suppose we say five shillings each?"

Also on Saturday afternoon an all-star team from St. Andrews E., were guests of the Lachute Club. The visitors proved to be superior and won the match; out of 8 events, they won 6, lost 1, and tied 1. The game was much closer than the results would seem to indicate. After the match, tea was served to the players, and the president of the club, Mr. W. J. Bryant, congratulated the visiting club for their fine spirit of sportsmanship.

Last week at the Lachute Golf & Tennis Club House a meeting was held to bring about the formation of a Tennis League in the district.

The representatives were Messrs. Smith & Stuart from Hawkesbury, Duncan, Carpenter & McGibbon from Brownsburg; René Beauregard from the "Ayers Ltd." and Fernand Legault for the local club. After deliberations, it was decided for this year to divide the league in two sections, namely: Lachute: "Lachute Golf & Tennis Club" & "Ayers Ltd.", St. Andrews.

THREE SENTENCED AT ST. JEROME FOR ST. JOVITE HOLD-UP

Charged with armed hold-up at the Bank of Montreal, St. Jovite branch, last month, D. Paquette, 35 years of age; Albert Dubuc, 28 years of age, and Paul Dubuc, 21 years of age, brothers, were sentenced yesterday by Judge Lalonde, of St. Jerome, to serve 12, 10 and eight years, respectively, in the penitentiary. The trial opened on Tuesday morning and it was shown that Paquette was the instigator of the crime. The two Dubuc brothers had pleaded guilty to the charge laid against them. It was also recalled during the trial how a posse of provincial detectives sought them through the woods in the mountains and how rifle shots had been exchanged on several occasions.

Menial Duties Assigned

"Clients" of Old Rome

A shopkeeper has been accused of slobbery for calling his customers clients. Would it not be more accurate to accuse lawyers of impertinence for using the word "client" as a matter of custom for those employing them, and so misleading unfortunate shopkeepers into adopting a term which is far from complimentary in origin? The client was a regular institution in ancient Rome, with certain duties. It was his business to be at the house of his patron in the early morning to offer his salutations, and it was his duty to follow in the great man's train when he went abroad. Eventually the new rich took care to be accompanied by a swarm of clients or courtiers when they went out, until at last it became a regular trade and a means of livelihood, the client receiving food and tips. Many people came to Rome in the hopes of picking up a living in this not too arduous occupation, though the pay was not handsome, and Martial and others tell us that some who had come full of hope turned back when they discovered the actual conditions. How horrible would any tradesman's customers who are called "clients" be if they could see themselves fulfilling the old offices—toward the shopkeeper!—Manchester (England) Guardian.

Pershing's Teeth "Gold Mine" for the Marines

A story about General Pershing's teeth was told by Mark Sullivan during authors' night at the booksellers' convention. General Pershing, he said, had trouble with his teeth. A corps of famous dentists insisted the general have them removed pronto. So the general hid himself to a marine hospital.

The marines who performed the task bethought themselves that the teeth would be worth much as souvenirs, and promptly sold them to various and sundry persons at $1 the tooth and upward.

Finally the tale reached the ears of the army overlords, who were aghast. They dispatched an army sergeant to round up the purchasers and collect the teeth—at any cost.

The sergeant didn't return for days. When he did—and he was severely reprimanded for his delay—he produced 216 teeth, all guaranteed to be General Pershing's.—Philadelphia Record.

Has Scientists Puzzled

So far as man's memory extends, Ireland has been without snakes. Whether or not St. Patrick is the reason for the Emerald Isle's immunity, England, Scotland and Wales, but a few miles across the water, have always had at least a fair sized population of these reptiles. The nearest approach to a snake in Ireland is a legless lizard called the lag worm, which isn't formidable even in appearance. During recent years there have been many attempts to introduce harmless snakes as an aid to farmers, but the introductions have not been successful. Zoologists are unable to account for the phenomenon.

Solon's Wise Laws

Solon, the celebrated Greek reformer, before the Peloponnesian war, added present day home owners, renters, and the real estate business. The privilege of willing one's holdings as one pleased, now taken for granted, originated with Solon. Before his time no one, not even the wealthy, could dispose of their property as they wished. Estates of all deceased persons went to their families. Plutarch says that the "Archon" esteemed friendship a stronger tie than kinship and affection stronger than necessity, and thus allowed every man to dispose of his estate, but with some restrictions.

Babcock Milk Test

The Babcock test for milk is a method of determining the quality of milk invented by Stephen Moulton Babcock in 1890. The test is based on the fact that strong sulphuric acid will dissolve the nonfat solid constituents. A definite quantity of the milk to be tested is placed with sulphuric acid in a bottle having a narrow graduated neck. The bottle is then whirled for a few moments in a centrifugal machine, hot water is added to bring the liquid fat into the neck of the bottle, which is then whirled a second time, and the column of fat is read off on the graduated scale.

Eastern Trumpets

Tibetan trumpets, made of conch shells, mounted in embossed brass and copper, or gilt bronze inlaid with stones, are on exhibition among the oriental collection at Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago.

In Tibet the conch shells in which the spirals wind from left to right, instead of the usual form from right to left, are very high priced. The trumpets made from them are used to summon the lamas to their daily prayer meetings.

Similar trumpets are used by boatmen in middle China and in India, where they are said to have been invented. They are employed to imitate the roar of celestial elephants.

King James' Bible

The authorized version of the Bible is the same as the King James version because the revision was made by some of the greatest scholars of the country and of the world, under the authorization of King James I of England, who was also King James VI of Scotland, and in whose reign England and Scotland were united. James was the son of Mary queen of Scots; the grandson of Henry VIII and the nephew of Queen Elizabeth. He was, under English law, a Protestant, but had extreme leanings toward the Roman Catholic faith.—Washington Star.

Biblical "Usury"

The word "usury" has come in modern English to mean excessive interest upon money loaned, illegal or oppressive. In the Scriptures, however, the word did not bear this sense, but meant simply interest of any kind upon money. The Jews were forbidden by the Law of Moses to take interest from their brethren, but were permitted to take it from foreigners. The practice of mortgaging land, sometimes at exorbitant interest, grew up among the Jews during the captivity, in direct violation of the law.

One list of the symbolism of the various precious and semiprecious stones gives the following: Garnet, credited with endowing the wearer with constancy and fidelity; amethyst, betokens sincerity; bloodstone or aquamarine, courage and truthfulness; diamond, innocence; emerald, happiness; pearl or moonstone, health and long life; ruby, a contented mind; sardonyx or peridot, felicity; sapphire, wisdom; opal or tourmaline, hope; topaz, fidelity; turquoise or lapis lazuli, prosperity and success.

Lesson for August 6

RUTH

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:6-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. I John 4:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Gift of Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Ruth the Loyal.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ruth the Loyal.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Message of the Book of Ruth.

In order to grasp the material contained in the subject there must be swept into view the whole book of Ruth. The lesson committee recognized this and assigned the book as the lesson text. However, for convenience the lesson text which is to be printed has been confined to the first chapter, verses 6-19.

I. Ruth's Connection With the Jewish Nation (1:1-5).

1. The sojourn in Moab (vv. 1-3). On account of famine in Bethlehem of Judah, Elimelech with Naomi, his wife, and their two sons sojourned in the land. During this sojourn Elimelech died, leaving Naomi, the widow, to care for two fatherless sons.

2. The marriage of the two sons (v. 4). During the sojourn the two sons fell in love with and married Moabish women named Orpah and Ruth. For God's chosen people even to sojourn in the world exposes them to the likelihood of intermarriage of the members of the family with the people of the world.

3. The death of the sons (v. 5). In a brief time, three widows were left in the one family relation. This family went to Moab to escape trouble, only to have their troubles greatly increased. When God's people go into the world to escape difficulties they are sure to suffer in consequence.

II. Naomi's Return to the Land of Judah (vv. 6-14).

Because of the chastisement that was sent upon Naomi, she resolved to return to her country. The purpose of God's chastisement is to cause his children to return unto him.

When the time came for Naomi to go, Ruth and Orpah accompanied her for a distance. This she permitted, but determined to place before them frankly the difficulties that would confront them. Having laid the matters before them, she urged them to turn back. As much as Naomi loved her daughters-in-law, she would not have them go with her without knowing fully what their decision meant.

III. Ruth's Noble Choice (vv. 16-18).

This choice on her part meant:
1. No chance to marry again. In that day to be unmarried was the greatest disgrace. Furthermore, it was against God's law for the Jews to marry outside of their own people.

2. She must renounce her gods. Idolatrous worship could not be carried on in the land where God's people dwelt. This was delicately touched upon by Naomi when Orpah went back (v. 15). Orpah went back when it was plain that there was no chance to marry again. At this time Naomi put an additional test upon Ruth, that of giving up her religion. Ruth was equal to the occasion. Her mind was fully made up. Her very expressions have come down to us in words which "no poetry has outvalued, and no pathos has exceeded, and which have gone through centuries with the music that will not let them be forgotten." She was determined to share Naomi's journey, her home, her God, her lot in life and her grave in death, whatever that would be. It meant that she would renounce her heathen gods, and worship Jehovah.

IV. Blessings Which Attended Ruth's Choice (chaps. 2-4).

1. She found the true God (1:10). Instead of her heathen gods who were unable to help her, she now had a living God—the God of Israel.

2. She found human friends (chap. 2). As she went to glean she was led to the field of Boaz, a man of wealth and grace. The servants treated her with consideration. Even Boaz gave instructions for special consideration to be given her.

3. A good husband and a happy home (chaps. 3, 4). She not only secured a husband, but a man of God who had an abundance of this world's goods.

4. An honored place in the Israelite nation (4:13-17). Though she had to forsake her own people, she became one of a nobler people.

5. She became a link in the chain of Christ's ancestry (4:18-22, cf. Matt. 1:5). The one who fully decides for Christ and gives up all for him shall receive a hundredfold in this life, and in the world to come eternal life.

The Holy Spirit

There is only one inlet of power in the life; just one inlet—the Holy Spirit. He is power. To yield to his mastery, to cultivate his friendship, to give him full swing—that will result in what is called power. One inlet of power—the Holy Spirit in control.

Facing Wrong Way

The man who becomes a Christian because he confirms the faith of his fathers may be on the right way, but he is not facing in the right direction.

CONTRASTING OPINIONS

These contrasting opinions always intrigue me. The last ones I have heard are on the subject of church going. One woman said that she and her husband had had to go to church so much as children that they were fed up and had lost all desire to go. Her husband never went and she went very occasionally. Her idea was that if they had not been forced to go so much they likely would enjoy it now. She thought it a great mistake to force church going on children. If they were not made to go every Sunday but were given a reasonable amount of latitude, they would grow up and enjoy the church.

A few days later I heard another woman say that she was so glad her mother had made her go to church as a small child. By having to go every Sunday she had acquired the habit of going to church which had never left her. She was going to do as her mother did and see that her children never missed church so that they too would grow up as church goers.

Who is right?

COOKED VEGETABLES TWICE A DAY

A reader has asked for suggestions for foods to vary a diet. This particular diet calls for cooked vegetables twice a day and has a rather limited choice of desserts. Her chief difficulty seems to be in the serving of vegetables for supper in an interesting way as meat is limited to once a day. As often as possible I would serve eggs with the vegetable for supper. Eggs have high food value and what is almost more important in this case they make the meal more satisfying than a meal of vegetables alone. It helps to stick to the ribs, so to speak. Vegetables are quickly digested and pass on their way, so a meal of vegetables alone is apt to leave one with an empty feeling before it is time for the next meal.

Scrambled eggs and vegetables are good mixers. Vegetables may be served with them or they may be added when the eggs are partly cooked and thus add their flavour. Both ways should be used to give the needed variety. Asparagus, spinach and peas are all good with scrambled eggs. Spinach added to a thick cream sauce and plenty of chopped hard cooked flavored with a little onion and egg then baked in a moderate oven for 20 minutes makes a good supper dish. Asparagus may be used in an infinite number of ways, either plain or creamed, and makes a popular supper dish. When fresh vegetables are not obtainable canned ones are very acceptable.

If you have not used cooked vegetables in a salad, you will be surprised at what interesting salads can be made with only cooked vegetables. Asparagus, spinach, peas, string beans, carrots, beets and cauliflower are often to be found in our salads.

A camera man, working for the educational department of a film company, met an old farmer in town and said:

"I have just been taking some moving pictures of life out on your farm."

"Did you catch any of my men in motion?" asked the old man curiously.

"Sure I did."

not by virtue of necessity but by choice. To give further variety, they may be mixed with a small amount of lemon flavored jelly and moulded.

I hope these suggestions are what is required. At one time I had to serve cooked vegetables twice a day, and managed to get meals that were acceptable. It needs a bit of planning but it can be done.

SMALL GARDEN TOOLS

This year we have some new garden tools about which we are most enthusiastic. . . . A small spade and rake are the tools in question. They are quite small but are not toys as they are good sturdy tools. The spade will do most of the things required of a spade around a flower garden and it also takes the place of a trowel. It is much easier to use and will save many a stiff back.

The rake is convenient for working between the plants, especially in the perennial bed. After I have been working among the flowers I always manage to leave the ground full of humps and hollows, no matter how level it may have been before I started to work. This little rake is a great help in repairing the damage as it will go places that the large rake could not do.

LEMON SPICE CAKE

The combination of lemon and spice is a happy one. This cake should keep well, but you can't prove it by me. The day we baked one some of the young folks happened in and it disappeared in short order. It must have been popular because several times since they have asked me when we were going to bake another lemon cake. Maybe we will some of these days when it is not so hot. Here is the recipe.

2 cups brown sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sour cream
3 eggs
2 cups pastry flour
2 teaspoons cinnamon
2 teaspoons allspice
1/2 cup shortening
2 teaspoons cloves
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream the sugar and the shortening together until well blended. Add the well-beaten egg yolks. Sift the flour, salt, soda and spices and add to the mixture alternately with the cream. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a greased cake pan and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

LEMON ICING

4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
About 2 cups confectioner's sugar

Cream the butter until soft.

1/4 teaspoon vanilla
Add the sugar a little at a time, blending after each addition. Add lemon juice gradually after the icing begins to get stiff. Beat very thoroughly and make it creamy rather than too stiff

HE WAS THE NEAREST (Boston Transcript)

Little Albert came home from school with a new book under his arm. "It's a prize, mother," he said. "A prize? What for dear?" "For Natural History. The teacher asked how many legs an ostrich had and I said three." "But an ostrich has two legs." "I know that now mother, but the rest of the class said four, so I was the nearest."

BEFORE CONFERENCE

Francis Edward Powell, chief of the International Sugar Board, who was called before the Sugar Commission at the World Economic Conference to express his views on the sugar situation.

"Small town stuff" has become a by-word, applied contemptuously, says the Fredericton Daily Mail. But the man or woman in the small town who is making both ends meet and is laying by a dollar now and then can afford to smile audibly at some of the "big town" stuff of these strenuous days. Some of the brightest men and women in the big cities today are products of the small town. "Small town stuff" is that from which great men are made.

"BRIDGE"

By Dr. W. Leslie-Dixon.

There's a game they call 'Bridge'
Makes you squirm, and then squidge
And you get very hot neath the cellar.
And your partner gets wild.
When you play like a child.
And the game ends minus a dollar.
A new hand is dealt.
And the strength of each felt.
You bid two hearts without honours.
You have length.
Without strength.
And exposure would prove you both gonners.
When he like a chump.
Takes you out in no trump.
When doubled he frets and play starts.
There's a heck of a mix.
Opponents take first five tricks.
From the Ace to the Ten of Hearts.
He can't understand.
How they all lay in one hand.
When that was the suit you bid.
And you can't stand the chaff.
Of the merry 'Horse Laugh'.
When they're treating you just like a kid.

He calls you a name.
They proceed with the game.
And you both feel such awful dubs.
They continue to score.
With two tricks more.
The Ace and The King of Clubs.
Your face bears a frown.
You are now two down.
And doubled at that to be sure.
Your partner does his best.
By taking the rest.
And you admit that your bidding was poor.
The game is soon o'er.
You add up the score.
And don't you get mad when you've read it.
There'll be no more play.
For you have to pay
The thousand they have to their credit.

In future be nice.
Read your hand twice.
And be a trifle more careful when bidding.
If you haven't got a hand.
Your partner will understand.
And that'll save you both from skidding.

You will save yourself expense.
If you play 'Commonsense'.
And I'm sure the experts recommend
it.
Get a book of the rules.
'How not to play like fools.'
And soon you'll have winnings, and spend it.

VISITING QUEBEC WITH THE CANADIAN AUTHORS

A number of the authors visited Montmorency Falls which are situated at the junction of the Montmorency and St. Lawrence rivers, and take their name from Mgr. Montmorency de Laval, Seigneur of Beaupre and of the Island of Orleans, and were awed by their majestic beauty. From some viewpoints the falls resembled an immense fleece of snow-white wool, with only the upward-dashing spray and the disturbed current at the foot to convince one that it was really a body of water.

The Falls measure 250 feet in height, 100 feet more than the Niagara Falls, and such is the power of this immense volume of water that it has dug itself an underground passage to St.
Patrick's Hole, situated opposite on the Island of Orleans. At least, historians tell us so, and that this idea is associated with the fact that at this hole there is a violent current and remains of animals, garbage of all kinds even to fragments of human arms have been found collected there, also that people falling into the Montmorency River above the falls are never found.

Between the Falls and Quebec City could be seen a bridge in the making. Inquiries brought to light the fact that it was a bridge being constructed to connect the Island of Orleans with the mainland, much to the indignation of the islanders who are not desirous of being connected, feeling that they will lose their identity; the quaint old ways of living will go with the encroachment of city dwellers which this connection must bring to pass.

Another interesting journey was to historic Ste. Anne de Beaupre where statues of smiling motherly Ste. Anne (the sailors' guardian angel) are to be seen on all sides. The first chapel built there in her honor was called "Chapelle des mal-lots" (Sailors' Chapel). It was erected in 1658, but after some years high tides destroyed the foundations of this chapel, and a new church was erected in 1661 at the foot of the cape.

Thousands of pilgrims arrive at Ste. Anne de Beaupre at different times to pay homage to Ste. Anne and receive her blessing, the more devout members of them mounting the holy stairs in the Scala Santa on their knees.

THE PUBLIC FORGOT

FOR business men who appear to think the
public does not need to be constantly reminded of who they are, where they are, and what they have to sell, the well-known story of
what happened to a product called Pyle's Pearline will bear repeating. In the early days of this country, Pearline, a cleaning
material, was used by most of the housewives
of the country. In 1904 the company spent $500,000 in advertising. Then the advertising was greatly curtailed, and about 1907 it
was discontinued altogether, as the company
thought the product was so well known that
no further advertising was necessary. Sales
fell off rapidly, but the company's owners
persisted in their non-advertising policy until 1915, when the whole concern was sold for $12,000. Pearline was dead. Many other products whose names were household words
a few years ago, are no longer sold, because
the manufacturers failed to keep up their advertising, and consequently the public forgot them. Business men should remember that new generations of potential customers
are coming along all the time, and that these
new buyers must be sold on a product or a store, as their fathers and mothers were before them. The only time it is safe to stop advertising is when one is ready to go out of business.

Canadians to Visit Mysterious Bali

Photos by Burton Holmes.

Bali, that mysterious tropical island off the coast of Java where Eve would have been almost over-dressed and native boys — although they have never heard of him — look like Gandhi, will be more than a name but no less a mystery to a number of lucky Canadians by this time next year.

For Bali, literally unknown until a motion picture director took his cameras and microphones there a year or so ago, has been added to the itinerary of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain's 1934 world cruise sailing from New York January fourth.

Balinese, simple and unaffected, acted a charming love story for the screen. But they had to be taught what a kiss was. They live in a land of temples.
Although education is not a strong point they can still count the few white people who have ever visited the island. They cannot count the number of dogs they own. They save the bodies of their dead until the last member of a family dies and cremate them all together. They worship bats and have 500,000 in one sacred cave. When priests send word that devils are abroad every man, woman, child and dog must stay within doors so nothing will impede the demons' quick departure. They love to dance, and on March 9 and 10, 1934 are specially performing traditional dances for the Empress of Britain's world cruise passengers.

In addition to Bali, new world cruise calls will be made by the big, white liner at Semarang, Java, and Zamboanga in the Sulu Archipelago. The cruise will visit 33 ports in 24 countries covering 30,000 miles in 130 days.

The pictures show a temple in Boeleleng, a youthful humorist (top right) and a typical scene outside a native house, where a cremation is about to be held.

French village called St. Malo was marching slowly and solemnly around the square in front of the church, chanting beautiful soul-stirring sacred songs. The sight stirred memories of the poem we learned in our childhood days relative to Jacques Cartier's first voyage to America "In the village of St.
Malo all the town were on their knees, for the safe return of Cartier from the undiscovered seas."

As they slowly filed out into the church led by their golden-sashed priest to attend mass, our eyes caught sight of some beautiful bronze figures representing scenes in the life of Christ and his crucifixion, set some paces apart on the hillside back of the church, and we were told that these statues were ordered from Belgium before the war and their shipment arranged for insofar as their being deposited at the railway station, but war was declared before they got under way and they were lost. When peace was declared and Belgium was trying to sort out and resettle their affairs these statues were found in a shed and immediately sent on to Ste. Anne de Beaupre, after all these years of war and worry; one very conspicuous group being the figure of Christ staggering under the weight of the cross and the soldiers pressing Simon into service to help carry it.

The most beautiful sight of all the beautiful and interesting sights of Ste. Anne de Beaupre was the Cyclorama of Jerusalem, depicted on canvass measuring 45 feet high and 360 feet in circumference, in the form of a handpainted picture of Jerusalem, the Mount of Olives and Temple of Jerusalem, Arabian tents, lepers outside the city gate, Mount Zion and Absalom's Tomb, Herod's Palace, Damascus road

the Well of Samaria, the crucifixion of Christ surrounded by soldiers, the crowd in the distance voicing protest against the inscription on the top of the cross, all so vividly portrayed that the figures in the strange subdued light seemed to stand out like real living people. One young girl was heard to say with a half-sob in her voice "I have never seen anything so beautiful in all my life".

The crucifixion was a touching sight, the agony of love and longing with which Mary, the Mother of Christ, knelt at the foot of the cross, clinging to it with such appeal, was depicted so strongly that the mothers present suffered with her and could almost hear her wailing cry of "My son, my son." Yet he died a noble death, a death of sacrifice. How much more terrible must the agony of mothers be whose children die sinful deaths, deaths that have no hope of future peace and happiness.

To different people the view must have had different appeals, but to mothers there could be no other appeal than that, and it certainly helped one to realize the cause of our Roman Catholic neighbors making all their appeals, or nearly all of their appeals to Mary, the Mother of God, by seeing her pictured in her attitude of earnest supplication.

It was the writer's privilege to spend the week-end at historic Beaupre, right in the old home of Charles-Michel d'Irum-berry de Salaberry, the one-time famous commander of the Canadian Voltigeurs, who fought so valiantly in the battle of Chateauguay.

A statue of de Salaberry, the work of a Canadian sculptor (Philippe Hebert) was placed in one of the niches in the Quebec House of Parliament in September 1894. It was a thrilling sensation to stand looking out on the St. Lawrence River from the back verandah of the house and realize that perhaps de Salaberry stood on that very spot watching the boats going around the point into Quebec Harbour, just as you were doing at that moment.

On the gateposts of Darnoc,
so named by the owner Mrs. J.
Geggie, an inscription in bronze lets the public know that de Salaberry was born here in 1778. Further along, on the fence guarding this property from public intrusion, the same inscription is mounted, so that all interested may know that a great man was born and lived here.

—The ancient City of Quebec is a place which might well be visited and studied by our teachers and others of public influence.

Art Treasure at Palace

The summer palace of the Princess Reuss, at Greiz, in Thuringia, in the foothills of the Saxon Erzgebirge, contains a valuable collection of art works. Of especial interest is the collection of 6,000 copper engravings, including 800 mezzotint engravings after pictures by Sir Joshua Reynolds. Counterparts of these exist only in the British Museum.

The collection was made by Princess Elisabeth, daughter of George III of England.—German Tourist Bureau.

"Mother," said Harold, "this morning Mrs. Brown said that sister and me were the prettiest children at Sunday school."

"That's fine, but don't let it turn your head. Remember, pretty is as pretty does."

"Well," replied Harold, "I am 'is' and Adrienne is 'does.'"
