Lachute High School Stands High in the Province

Outstanding Leaders Lester MacCallum, Lloyd Canning, Marjorie Walker, Phyllis Patterson Carry Highest Provincial Honors

Very happy indeed were the large number of parents and scholars as they gathered in the Auditorium on Tuesday evening for the annual distribution of prizes and awards to the successful pupils of Lachute High School.

Dr. J. H. Mason, as chairman of the School Board, first called upon the Rev. Mr. Rosborough to open proceedings with prayer and then reminded the children that just about a year ago the consolidation of the schools had been effected and during that time friendships had been made by the pupils of the Parish of St. Jerusalem as they co-mingled with the town children and the united successes achieved have doubly repaid the Board for any sacrifices they have made in bringing about this helpful change.

Dr. Mason then called upon Principal Hall for his report, whose keynote was his desire to co-operate with the parents of his pupils in discussing and planning the subjects necessary for their life's work. Principal Hall thought there had been too much talk of passing and failing. The roll of parchment so eagerly sought for by many meant nothing if the course had not fitted the pupils to better equip them for their favored vocation. Some scholars are unable to make rapid progress, but that does not signify dullness and he congratulated all those who had made an honest effort. I want you as parents and children to take me into your confidence so that I may prove my deep personal interest in every boy and girl. Your teachers are trying to improve themselves professionally and if you will give of your best through the coming terms we will make for greater success.

Short addresses were also delivered by Rev. Henry Cousens, Rev. W. LeCras and Inspector Lewis J. King all of whom extended congratulations.

A marked feature of the occasion were the honors that came to the two outstanding pupils Lester MacCallum and Lloyd Canning, whose records had not been beaten for twenty years. They also won the Ottawa Valley Scholarships, Lester carrying off the first prize of $100 and Lloyd the $75. In addition they won the Sir William MacDonald Scholarships of $150 each, being two out of the three rural awards for the Province. This information brought the large audience to their feet for the spontaneous outburst of "They are jolly good Fellows." Miss Kelly also was the recipient of a very special prize from Principal Hall for having taken the highest marks in English Literature, her paper having been commented upon by the examiners as being markedly different and the best submitted by all pupils in the Province.

Both Miss Phyllis Patterson and Miss Marjorie Walker were highly complimented for their attainments, the former having won the chairman's prize for highest percentage of marks obtained in 6-7 & 8th. grades, being 93 p.c., while Miss M. Walker received 83.4 p.c., netting her 6 prizes in addition to the scholarship.

Young Peoples' Public Speaking Contest

The Public Speaking Contest staged by the Frontier Women's Institute, for the young people at the home of Mrs. Jas. Murdoch was a decided success from every point of view. Seven young people competed in their first attempt at speaking before the public.

The Junior Prize Winner was Lida Burke, who spoke on "Louis Hebert" the first Canadian farmer, with Carrol Wert coming second. The title of his speech was the same as the name of the contest, "Public Speaking."

Carroll's speech was a bit humorous and ended with advice as to three points to note in Public Speaking namely, Stand Up, Speak up, and Shut up. Ethel Hutchins took third prize with her history of the First United Empire Loyalist.

The winner in the Senior contest was Sybil Wert who had chosen to tell her audience that children should have the right to choose their own vocation and proved her point quite clearly. Kathleen Murdoch took second in her speech on "How agriculture could be made attractive from the inside."

Margaret Hutchins the third winner of the seniors spoke on Agriculture also.

Gerald Wert's speech although not a prize winner was a real laugh maker and is published elsewhere in this issue.

Rev. H. Cousens and Principal Hall of Lachute, acted as judges and expressed surprise and pleasure over the children's first attempt as well as giving them several lessons in the Art of Public Speaking, choice of subjects, etc.

Just before the commencement of the contest, the members of the W. I. and their guests indulged in a hearty community sing song, with Principal C. Hall accompanying on the piano.

This musical opening seemingly aroused keener interest in what was to follow, and was, like the entire evening much enjoyed by all present.

TODAY

By Nixon Waterman.

We shall do so much in years to come—

But what have we done today?

We shall give out gold in a princely sum—

But what did we give today?

We shall lift the heart and dry the tear,

We shall plant a hope in place of fear,

We shall speak with words of love and cheer—

But what have we done today?

We shall be so kind in the afterwhile—

But what have we been today?

We shall bring to each lonely life a smile—

But what have we brought today?

We shall give to truth a grander birth,

And to steadfast faith a deeper worth:

We shall feed the hungering souls of earth—

But whom have we fed today?

Lachute Town Council

Alderman Rice to Amend Business Tax By-law

The regular meeting of above Council was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday last with Mayor A. Larocque presiding. Aldermen J. A. Rice, C. Miller, J. Speight, G. Raymond, R. Ledoux, H. Legault, H. Lamarche and O. Laurin.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed and account of finance committee ordered paid.

A petition, signed by proprietors of the Parish of St. Jerusalem, situated on the border of Lachute Town asking to be incorporated to Lachute for Municipal and school purposes as we wish to enjoy the public services from the Town of Lachute.

After discussion the town voted in favor of petition.

Alderman Rice gave notice of motion that he would introduce amendments to By-law No. 101, relating to business tax.

Joseph Raymond was granted permit to remodel the Skating Rink.

Mr. L. Barron appeared before Council to request that the town take over the road from Elizabeth Street to the Catholic Church. Same was referred to road committee who will make examination and report at next meeting.

Along the line of good publicity for the town, Mr. Giles requested the Council to arrange for flood-lighting the Auditorium and monument in the Park. This was referred to the Light Committee.

Ayers Sports Day

Keen Contest Among Our Local Athletes

The Ayers Sports Day Programme, so oft delayed through inclemency of weather, was finally pulled off on the Exhibition Grounds last Monday afternoon. Though locally confined our young athletes gave the onlookers the full worth of their money, for all events were keenly contested and give evidence that a sturdy lot of our young manhood will uphold the honor of our town and county in the sports world when opportunity arises.

Rev. R. Y. Overing Fatally Stricken

Archdeacon Dies Suddenly At Lakefield Summer Home.

The sudden death on Tuesday morning of Archdeacon Robert Young Overing, at his summer home at Lakefield, Que., came as a great shock to his many friends, and particularly to those closely associated with the executive committee of the Anglican diocese here. The Archdeacon had been spending a month's vacation at his summer cottage, and was to have returned to his duties as secretary of the synod on Tuesday. The Bishop of Montreal also returned from his vacation and instead of being able to greet his co-worker, received a telephone call saying that the Archdeacon had suffered a stroke early in the morning and that he had died within two hours.

"His death is a tremendous loss to the whole diocese of Montreal," declared the Bishop, for he was a most efficient and hard-working secretary. But not only in an official capacity, is his passing to be regretted, but it is a great personal grief to me for he was very close to me."

Career in Church

Born in Montreal on February 29, 1872, Archdeacon Overing was educated here and spent a considerable part of his mature years in church work in this city. He took his theological training at the Montreal Diocesan Theological College, receiving from that institution the Licentiate in Theology diploma at his graduation. He was ordained by the late Archbishop Bond in March, 1896, and was sent as incumbent to the parish of Valleyfield. Following his stay there he was appointed by the Bishop of Montreal to Buckingham parish, and later to Stanbridge East. From that parish he was moved to St. Mary's parish, Hochelaga, which was the first and only Montreal church of which he was rector until his appointment to the important office of clerical secretary of the Synod in 1928.

He succeeded the late Archdeacon Robinson in that office and there is a tragic coincidence in the fact that his predecessor also died suddenly, succumbing when preaching at Morin Heights, Que. Not only did he succeed Archdeacon Robinson in the secretarial office, but also as Archdeacon of Clarendon and St. Andrews.

He is survived by his widow Mary Louise Lockhart, daughter of the late Rev. Anthony Lockhart, who served in the diocese of Montreal; and four sons. Another son, Reginald, was drowned accidentally in 1920.

Sauve Has Praise for Benefits of Bennett's Policy

How Best to Serve Canada is Prime Ministers Uppermost Thought says Hon. A. Sauve, Postmaster General

Not wishing to be unjust towards any of the Prime Ministers of Canada since Confederation, Hon. Arthur Sauve, Postmaster-General, holds the belief nevertheless that none expended the intellectual and physical efforts that Mr. Bennett has since assuming office. He gave this opinion on Sunday at a meeting at St. Vincent de Paul held after high mass.

Mr. Sauve confidently stated that since becoming Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett had but one thought uppermost in his mind—how best to serve Canada. "He considered only those measures which he thought might save the credit of Canada and prepare a solid prosperity," the Minister averred; "he studied with care the problems concerning the nations of the British Commonwealth first of all, and, at the same time he sought with success for better international relations with the view of getting out of them advantageous commercial treaties for the rational exportation of our natural resources."

Unanswered Questions.

Since the 1931 session, the Post-master-General continued, he had asked many questions which had never been answered by the adversaries of the Government. Had Mr. King been in power, he asked, what foreign markets would have opened their doors to Canada? Were Mr. King in power where could Canada sell her products more advantageously than she can today? Neither of these queries had been given suitable replies, Mr. Sauve stated, and he then went on to ask whether it was not true that it was during the King regime that the United States, Belgium, France Italy and Germany had raised their tariff barriers against Canada. Mr. Sauve observed that Mr. King had not dwelt upon these questions on his recent western tour.

The speaker spoke of the urgent need for "production zones." "We need zones to supply the consuming zones and zones for exportation," he remarked. "With the vastness of our producing territory and our consuming population—so out of proportion—we must absolutely count upon foreign markets. This is the reason that the Bennett Government wished so ardently to enter into commercial treaties that are already producing happy results."

In conclusion, Mr. Sauve asserted that Canada's agricultural production could not be increased if there were not sufficient markets to absorb them and declared that with knowledge of this Mr. Bennett was to be applauded for having faced the immigration problem with such prudence and severity.

Marriage

Robinson-Gates

The marriage of Lena Isabella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Gates, of St. Andrews East, Que., to Mr. Robert R. Robinson, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Robinson, of Pointe Fortune, Que., took place quietly on Saturday, Sept. 2nd., at four o'clock, at the home of the bride, the Rev. R. L. Ballyntyne, D.D. officiating.

The bride, who was unattended was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of beige crepe. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. A small reception followed the ceremony. Later Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left on a motor trip to the New England States and on their return will take up residence in Pointe Fortune, Que. The bride travelled in a swaggar suit of brown tweed, with Martin fur hat and accessories to match.

A Narrow Escape

On Friday morning last, passengers on the morning train for Ottawa, received a shock when the drive shaft suddenly broke off from the large side wheel and commenced dragging along the ties. Fortunately the train was proceeding slowly from the station, otherwise a most serious accident would probably have resulted. A two hour delay was the only inconvenience suffered by the passengers.

Successful Picnic at Grenville

A very enjoyable picnic, for the clergy and their families of the Deanery of St. Andrews, was held Tuesday, Aug. 29th., on the Rectory grounds at Grenville. A good attendance and perfect weather helped to make the day a very happy one.

A celebration of the Holy Communion was held in St. Matthew's Church at 11 a.m., after which lunch was served at the Rectory. The younger members then enjoyed tennis and swimming, and a short business meeting was held for the clergy during the afternoon. After tea, Rev. Mr. Garrett, of Hawkesbury, who was their guest for the afternoon, thanked the Rector and Mrs. Brueton, his mother, for a pleasant and happy time, which was heartily seconded by all present.

Watch Out For Penalties

Instructions have been issued from Quebec to Traffic Officer J. A. Chenier that without any further warning all truck drivers found to be exceeding 25 miles an hour, or who fail to keep strictly to their own side of the road will have their permits immediately confiscated. Autobuses are warned that their speed rate must not exceed 30 miles an hour. The same order provides for immediate reports on cars failing to observe the courtesy law of dimming lights when approaching another car.

SOLOMON

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 8:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him, and bless his name. Psalm 100:4.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In God's House.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A King Worshiping God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Learning to Worship God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—The Value of a House of Worship.

I. Solomon Anointed King (1 Kings 1:5-40).

The divine choice as to David's successor had not been known (v. 20).
David is stirred to action by the combined appeals of Bathsheba and Nathan. At David's command the faithful three, Zadok, Nathan, and Benaiah, speedily anointed Solomon king.

II. Solomon's Acts to Establish His Kingdom (1 Kings 1:41-2:46). He noted certain dangerous elements which if allowed to develop would weaken, if not destroy, his rule.

1. Adonijah placed under surveillance (vv. 41-53). Placing him on good behavior displayed both clemency and dignity on the part of Solomon. Adonijah fled to the altar, not to worship God, but to save his life. His repentance was not real. Solomon ordered his execution (2:13-25).

2. Abiathar removed from the priesthood (2:26, 27). He had joined Adonijah in his plot of usurpation.

3. Joab executed (2:28-35). Joab was a party to Adonijah's rebellion.
Besides this, he had treacherously murdered his rivals in the army.

4. Shimei executed (2:36-46). Solomon first paroled him and confined him to Jerusalem, but when he broke his parole, had him executed.

III. The Divine Favor Upon Solomon (1 Kings 3:4-14).

1. God's gracious offer (vv. 4, 5).
Solomon made a lavish sacrifice, showing that he had strong impulses toward the Lord. This was followed by the Lord's gracious offer.

2. Solomon's wise choice (vv. 6-9).
He was keenly sensible of the difficulty and of the responsibility of his position.

3. God's unstinted gift to Solomon
(vv. 10-14). Because Solomon appeared before the Lord in the proper attitude, God gave him more than he asked for.

IV. Solomon Building the Temple (1 Kings 5:1-8:56).

1. Preparation (5:1-18). He secured from King Hiram:

- a. Wood for beams, ceilings, etc.
- b. Stones for the great foundation.
- c. Skilled workmen.

2. The erection of the temple
(6:1-38).

- a. Located on Mt. Moriah (II Chron. 3:1).

b. Dimensions. Ninety feet long;
thirty feet wide; forty-five feet high—this on the assumption that the cubit was eighteen inches in length.

- c. Its contents.

(1) The brazen altar. (2) The laver. (3) The golden candlesticks.

(4) The cherubim.

5. The dedication of the temple
(8:1-66). The dedicatory services consisted of:

a. Bringing up the ark (vv. 1-11).
The ark was typical of Jesus Christ.
God dwells among his people through Jesus Christ (John 1:14).

b. Solomon's address to the people (vv. 12-21). He pointed out to them that God had chosen David to be king, yet did not allow him to build the temple, but promised that his son should complete the work.

c. Solomon's dedicatory prayer (vv.
22-53). In his prayer, Solomon gratefully acknowledged God's goodness in the past, and plead that the promises made to his father should be verified.
He asked that God's eyes might be continually open toward the temple, so that:

(1) In case of contention he would be their judge (vv. 31, 32).

(2) If smitten by the enemy, even though they had sinned, God would forgive and restore (vv. 33, 34).

(3) In famine, upon confession, God would forgive and send rain (vv.
35, 36).

(4) In pestilence and sickness, God would hear and forgive (vv. 37-40).

(5) In case of the coming of the foreigner, because of the news of God's favor toward Jerusalem, his prayer should be heard (vv. 41-43).

(6) In going out to battle, their cause should be maintained (vv. 44, 45).

(7) If taken captive, God would hear their prayers and restore them (vv. 46-53).

d. Solomon blesses the people (vv.
54-61).

e. Solomon offering sacrifices of thanksgiving (vv. 62-66).

WORTH REMEMBERING

Jesus still is life—life and light through truth.

Real prayer is the most intense act
a man performs.

Christ incarnates in his own life the perfect precepts, which he taught to men.

In the beginning of created things we find God first and foremost. He it was who created all things.

SUMMER SQUASH RECIPES

By Barbara B. Brooks

Summer squash is scarcely the forgotten vegetable, but in many homes it is a neglected one. The old cook books are most versatile with suggestions for preparing this delicate vegetable. In the very old books one finds recipes for cooking
"gourds", a descriptive and quite proper classification for our so-called squashes. After about 1830 the gourd became known as vegetable marrow and this name is still commonly used, especially in the English books.

In one form or another, summer squash can be found in the markets the year around. During the summer months one can choose from a great variety of fantastic shapes, colorings and markings. There is the Italian zucchini, a small, dark green, striped species, resembling a cucumber, except that it is smooth surfaced. The fruit of the New Guinea Bean is a squash that is 2 to 3 feet in length. From Central America comes the chapoté, a staple food there for centuries, but a new comer in world markets. This is a one-seeded squash, slightly more fibrous than other species. Because it holds its form perfectly after cooking it is excellent for stuffing and baking, in sweet pickles or cold in salads.

Common garden varieties of summer squash are the "patty-pan", pale green and white, shaped like a small shallow bowl with scalloped edges, and the small crook-neck. When young, these are thin skinned with tender seeds and can be cooked with the seeds and without paring. All varieties have a very high water content. Little water need be added in cooking. Usually the squash must cook until part of the water has evaporated. Steaming or baking are excellent methods. If boiled, cook uncovered, simmer gently and stir frequently.

The delicate flavor of squash must be preserved and accented with skillful seasoning and flavoring. It is in this matter that the old cook books excel.
The following recipe for pickled marrow has been handed down through several generations.

PICKLED MARROW

1 quart vinegar
4 ounces sugar 1½ ounces ginger (broken into pieces)

1½ ounces dry mustard
½ ounce turmeric
6 chilies (whole)
1 clove garlic (finely chopped)

Marrow (summer squash)
Boil vinegar, sugar, flavorings and seasonings until strength is extracted. Pare marrows, remove seeds and cut in 2-inch pieces. Add to boiling vinegar mixture, cook gently for 10 minutes. Turn into large pan to cool. When cold, carefully pack pieces of marrow in glass jars, pour over vinegar mixture, cover tightly and store in dry, cool place. Pickle will be ready to serve in 2 or 3 weeks.

Spanish squash is another way of preparing in which flavor is added. The recipe can be varied at will and really is a sort of summer garden hash.
Cook the squash with chopped onions, green peppers and tomatoes. Season to taste. Corn niblets are good in this, too.

There is something about toasted corn flakes that brings out the delicate and distinctive flavor of summer squash.
Crushed corn flakes are delicious for crumbing strips or slices for fried squash. Dip in corn flake crumbs, then in egg and again in crumbs and fry in deep fat. Or use corn flakes as a topping in casserole and stuffed squash recipes.

SUMMER SQUASH

2 lbs. summer squash
½ lb. well-flavored American cheese

Pepper
½ tsp. salt
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
Corn flakes
1 tbsp. butter.

Boil the summer squash until very tender, drain, and put into a deep baking dish. Add the cheese, except a little which should be reserved for the top, cut in small pieces. Add a bit of pepper and the salt, the eggs beaten just enough to blend yolks and whites, and the milk.
Sprinkle the remaining cheese over the top of the squash, then cover all with crushed corn flakes. Dot with butter and bake slowly (at 325°F.) for 30 minutes, or until the top becomes a delicious brown and the mixture is firm when tested with a silver knife.

STUFFED PATTYPAN SQUASH

5 small pattypan
3 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. thick cream
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. white pepper
1 cup corn flakes.

Put the whole squash to boil in cold water and cook until tender, but not soft. Drain and scoop out, leaving enough pulp to keep in shape. Mash the scooped-out portion, add one tablespoon of the butter, the cream and seasonings and simmer three minutes. Fill the shells with the mixture and place in shallow baking pan.
Toss the corn flakes in melted butter until well mixed and sprinkle over the stuffed squash.
Pour a little water in the baking pan and bake in hot oven (475°F.) until well browned.

Passing through Germany, the train was repeatedly stopped to receive a Nazi salute from lines of former German Scouts, compelled by Hitler to wear Nazi uniforms. The idea apparently aims to spread Nazi souvenir propaganda. The seeming result was to cause the German lads to regret that they too were not on the way to Hungary.

Nazi souvenirs distributed through the train later were collected by a "mopping up" party and turned over to the gendarmes at the Austrian border.

A concerted "rush" of 20,000 Scouts of 33 countries and the British Empire was the climax of the enthusiastic reception given B.-P. as Chief Scout of the World.

Fine weather prevailed throughout, and many thousand visitors were at the camp each day; on the first Sunday 100,- 000.

In spite of Hitler's opposition Germany was represented by a group of Scouts who were hiking outside of Germany when the edict was issued. They had not heard of the edict "officially."

Two great opening religious services were held. Following Mass and the Blessing of the flags, Bishop Shvoy addressed some 10,000 Roman Catholic Scouts in Hungarian, French, German and English. At a Protestant service for some 12,- 000 boys the services and hymns were sung simultaneously in same four languages.

A notable event was a march past the Scouts, themselves in the stands, by nearly 50,000
"camp neighbours"—town officials, business men, artisans, farmers, women in the national holiday dress. The spectacle made a deep impression.

"Another splendidly successful demonstration of the international friendliness of youth," was one Canadian Scout leader's summary of the gathering.

Delicious FILLED BUNS

Make them with this easy ROYAL SPONGE* recipe

Cream together ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup butter, ¼ teaspoon salt. Add 1 beaten egg and ½ cup lukewarm milk. Add 1 cup Royal Yeast Sponge*, pinch of cinnamon or nutmeg and few drops of lemon extract. Add 2 cups flour and knead to soft dough. Place in well-greased bowl and set in warm location to rise until double in bulk (about 1½ hours). Knock down the dough and mould into small round balls (about 1 ounce).
Dip in granulated sugar and set in greased baking pan ½ inch apart. Let rise until double in size. Make hole in top and fill with jelly or jam.
Allow to rise until light and bake at 400°F. Makes 1½ doz.

*ROYAL YEAST SPONGE

Soak 1 Royal Yeast Cake in ½ pint lukewarm water for 15 min. Dissolve 1 tsp. sugar in ½ pint milk. Add to dissolved yeast cake. Add 1 quart bread flour. Beat thoroughly. Cover and let rise overnight to double in bulk, in warm place free from draughts. Makes 5 to 6 cups of batter.

*Our free booklet,
"The Royal Road to Better Health," tells how Royal Yeast Cakes will improve your health, and suggests pleasant ways to take them.

NEWS BRIEFS

With more than half its wheat crop harvested, Manitoba reports the grade so far exceptionally good. It is stated by J.
M. McKay, general agricultural agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Western Lines. Cutting is now general on the prairies, says the reports.

"The employees may have every confidence that as in the past, they will be dealt with fairly," says a statement issued recently asking employees of both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways to accept wage reductions in a spirit of co-operation with the management. Grant Hall, Vice-President, C.P.R., and S. J.
Hungerford, acting President, Canadian National Railways, signed the statement.

For the first time in its history the Pacific Great Western Railway in 1933 will show a net operating profit for the year, it is revealed by Robert Wilson, executive secretary of the railway.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, arrived at Quebec recently on the Emple of months' holiday. He stated that trade improvement in the Old Country is very marked and that he was eager to study prospects for bettering business relations.

A SCENE FROM THE WHEAT CONFERENCE

Our picture was taken after one of the hectic sessions of the World Wheat Conference in which delegates from thirty-one nations sought an opportunity for an international agreement on wheat production. The main figure in the group coming out of Canada House is that of Right Hon. Stanley Bruce, chief delegate from Australia, who played a big part in the proceedings, which concluded harmoniously.

Parisians in Long Fight

for Prized Goats' Milk

Until a few years ago, one of the picturesque features of life in Paris was the early morning visits of the goat herds. These animals were driven around in docks and the milk was taken from them at the door of the patron, who was summoned by the music of pan-pipes played by the herds-man. Persons who were not interested in goat's milk or the picturesque features of the visitation, raised some objection to the music, which sometimes disturbed their slumbers. Accordingly, the prefect of police stopped these herds at the city gates and turned them back to the country and for five years the city residents struggled for their goat's milk under difficulties. A company was formed to handle this article, but its operation was very unreliable and the quality of the product unsatisfactory. In response to repeated protests the police were compelled to rescind the order and the goat herds returned, but in limited numbers, however, and under strict police regulations. It has been promised that the number of herds may be increased later if there is any demand for them.

Valuable Right of Way

Less than half a mile of railroad track used by a western gold mine recently yielded over $5,000 in pay dirt in one month after a weigh-master noticed that the right of way was literally paved with gold. Before the ore was sent through the various processes, each car was weighed, and this was done by pushing it on the scales, then giving it a shove to send it coasting down the track to the mill, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.
The weighmaster observed that each time a car was bumped in switching, a quantity of dust sifted out. A lease was obtained on the three-eighth-mile track and men began cleaning it up.
Ore valued at $175,000 a car has been shipped to this mill, and it has been estimated that the residue dump alone contains unclaimed gold worth $3,000,- 000.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Pirate Ship and the Coffin Plate Smile of the defunctdespotic liberal committee of our County.

What a fine opportunity for the reorganization of the liberal committee was lost last week when such a great concourse of people gathered at our County town Lachute. But as far as I can learn publicly there was no effort made in that direction whatever, and though each day draws us nearer to our unavoidable Waterloo, it would seem that we are to again enter the field of battle with a lot of useless officers and a dissatisfied and descomfited lot of supporters. I have written frequently about the re-organization of our ranks, some say written too much, others from all quarters of the County have asked me why I don't write more, others say his writing is no good and that the majority is against him and what he writes, while others say no, the majority is for him and what he writes, and I wish to make known that majorities for or against matters not to me, that together or alone I am for the right and for liberty at all times, for the privilege the British constitution (gives to the masses that of being self-governing.) Trying never to forget that (all should bear in mind this sacred principle that though the will of the majority is in all cases to prevail that ill, to be rightful, must be reasonable. The minority pass-ess their equal rights, which equal law must protect and to violate would mean oppression) and I don't hesitate to say that oppression is pretty ripe in our own ranks at the present stage of the game if affairs spread round and among us on the wings of political plausibilities and it is a merciful providence that we is made holler a purpose that we may our principles swallow.

NOAH'S ARK DISCOVERED

*A News Item of Interest
50 Years Ago*

From the Watchman of August 17, 1883

London, Aug. 8:—A Constantinople correspondent announces the discovery of Noah's Ark. It appears that some Turkish commissioners appointed to investigate the question of avalanches on Mount Ararat suddenly came upon a gigantic structure of very dark wood protruding from a glacier. They made inquiries of the inhabitants (Q.1, 725 in their report).
These had seen it for six years, but had been seen looking out of the upper window. Turkish Commissioners, however, are bold men, not deterred by such trifles, and they determined to reach it.

Situated as it was among the fastnesses of one of the glens of Mount Ararat, it was a work of enormous difficulty, and it was only after incredible hardships that they succeeded. The ark, one will be glad to hear, was in a good state of preservation, although the angles—observe, not the bow or stern—had ben a good deal betoken of its descent. They recognized it at once. There was an Englishman among them who had presumably read his Bible, and he saw that it was made of the ancient gopher wood of scripture, which, as every one knows, only grows on the plains of the Euphrates.

Effecting an entrance into the structure, which was painted brown, they found that the Admiralty requirements for the conveyance of horses had been carried out, and the interior was divided into partitions fifteen feet high. Into three of these only could they get, the others being full of ice, and how far the ark extended into the glacier they could not tell. If however, on being uncovered, it turns out to be 300 cubits long, it will go hard with disbelievers in the book of Genesis. "Needless to say," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "an American was on the spot and negotiations have been entered into with the local Pacha, for its speedy transfer to the United States."

The Ottawa Spotlight

A Weekly Review of National Affairs

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, Sept. 6. Premier Bennett is not going to copy President Roosevelt. There will be in Canada no NRA experiment to step up purchasing power by increasing wages and shortening hours of labor. Canada's prime minister had hardly got back to Canadian soil before he made that quite clear.

Why not? Because Canada is the fifth trading nation in the world, must rely largely on international commerce, must compete with highly efficient industrial countries in the East and in Central Europe, and so cannot afford to raise its production costs.

It is obvious from Premier Bennett's remarks that the energies of the federal government will be directed, not toward the stimulation of internal purchasing power, but in enlarging Canada's export markets.

(New Treaties Likely)

And that must mean strenuous efforts towards a trade agreement with the United States, one of Canada's great potential customers. It will also probably mean an attempt on the part of the Hon. H. H. Stevens to increase our sales in the vast Orient.

Just one thought obtrudes here: If the stress is to be laid on selling more of our goods to foreign countries, won't Canada have to reciprocate by purchasing more goods from them?

Anyway, we are being warned by the prime minister against looking over the back fence into the United States with envy, and seeking in a national way to keep up with the "Joneses." Canada is a highly dependent country of 11 millions, not a relatively self-contained country of 115 millions, and we must govern ourselves accordingly. That was the gist of Premier Bennett's remark on that point.

The Canadian prime minister came back from the wheat conference with a striking grasp of the world wheat situation, not very cheering from a Canadian viewpoint. I reviewed the world wheat situation and its bearing on the Canadian problem a couple of weeks ago, and won't repeat it here. But I think most Canadians are staggered to learn that this year both France and Italy will surpass Canada in wheat production, and that Germany and Spain together will also grow more wheat than this country. In fact Europe this year makes North America look rather like a piker in the matter of wheat production. I imagine the total yield over there will be at least 450 million bushels more than here.

We used to think of western Canada as a world wheat granary quite indispensable to the rest of the world, growing a product which would always be in demand. Unhappily this is less true to-day than for many years, and except for the fact that most European countries require hard wheat to blend with their native soft wheats, they could probably get along for the next twelve months without buying any Canadian grain. Under the circumstances perhaps we are relatively fortunate to be promised a market for 200 million bushels in the next 12 months. With our very first crop this year, even the sale of so much will require our very heavy holdings.

(Not out of Woods Yet)

The Canadian government is very much concerned over this wheat situation, because of chaotic dumping is resorted to, and the surpluses are allowed to drive the price of wheat down to forty cents or thereabouts a bushel, what will become of John I. McFarland and the millions of bushels he holds for the government? Don't forget it costs in the neighborhood of a cent a bushel a month just to "hang on."

Happily business reports continue to be encouraging. Carloadings climbed above the 70 mark for the first time this year. Bank debits are away above last year's figures, and employment in the past 2 months has made as steep and long a climb as the records of the Dominion Bureau can match.

There is one bleak spot here yet: Federal revenues are very slow at responding to the business upturn, and the last time I checked up, Finance Minister Rhodes seemed to be about 25 millions short of what he hoped to have collected by this time. July was better, however, and August figures also promise to show improvement. It all hangs on the continued improvement of Canadian business. Taxation doesn't seem to mean much unless the wheels are moving. You can keep adding to the rate and still the revenues fall off. The attention of the government should be directed, it would seem, more toward the revival of trade than the piling-on of new taxes.

IS MRS. GRUNDY A CHRISTIAN

By Rev. FREDERIC C. SPURR

—in the Baptist Leader

Faced with such a question, I should reply immediately, in the language of Parliament, "The answer is in the negative." Mrs. Grundy is not a Christian, either in temper or outlook or judgment. And I will explain why she is not.

In one of his writings he introduces a farmer's wife, Mrs. Ashfield, who goes in mortal dread of her superior neighbour Mrs. Grundy; a self-appointed censor of others. Mrs. Grundy casts her shadow over the life of the other woman until the husband rebels and bursts out, "Be quiet, will ye! Always dining Dame Grundy in to my ears! What will Mrs. Grundy say? What will Mrs. Grundy think?" The century caught the phrase and Mrs. Grundy became the symbol of the interfering person whose own standards of life were set forth as the measure for others.

At one time people were really afraid of "Mrs. Grundy," especially young people. They had to submit everything to her decision. Every departure from established custom, every attempt to obtain a larger freedom, and many quite innocent amusements were brought under the ban, "What will Mrs. Grundy say? What will people think?" Fear of public opinion! There you have it in a sentence. In our time the pendulum has swung to the opposite extreme. Vast numbers of persons not only are without regard for Mrs. Grundy, they have enthroned her rival—Madame Pliable—who permits all that Mrs. Grundy opposes, and carries the opposition to the utmost limit. To quote some words from a modern play, "Why should I care what anybody thinks or says? Men and women are free to live their own lives in their own way and according to their own ideas. Morality or immorality is quite a personal matter, so long as I inflict no damage upon others. I have a right to my own life. And if any censor brands me as immoral, I say to him, who the—art you? Clear out of this! Youth decrees the public association of Mrs. Grundy." (Great applause.)

I have said that Mrs. Grundy is not a Christian. Most certainly Madame Pliable is not. They are both either sub-human or anti-human, and we must discard them both.

Now why is Mrs. Grundy not a Christian? Because she lacks Christian spirit and the Christian outlook upon life. Hence her standards are artificial and narrow—legal, and people

sensing this, resent them. Mrs. Grundy is a prohibitionist. (I use the word in a large sense and not with reference to affairs in the United States.) "Thou shalt not" is her favorite text. But repression alone is always bad. There is something in human nature (and not a bad thing either) which urges people to do the very things they are forbidden to do. It is Bluebeard's locked chamber that invites exploration, and the veiled figure in the room that awakens curiosity. To say to a child "don't, don't, don't," is to urge him to do. Punch had a delightful picture a year or two ago. A young hopeful was seated on the floor, having in his hand a jack-knife, given to him by a mistaken uncle. The mother, about to leave the room, says to the boy, "Now, darling, play until mother returns and don't cut the chair legs." And Punch makes the little imp say, "What a jolly good idea. I never thought of that!" A laughable picture but it is sound psychology! Repression alone is always bad. Equally bad is it to suggest evil when no idea of evil is present. And Mrs. Grundy excels at that. It does not help the morals of any young man or woman to cast a slur upon the slight dress of the hiker, or the innocent freedom of sunbathing, or the unchaperoned country stroll of youth and maiden. Repression and suggestion are the favorite weapons of Mrs. Grundy, and they are not Christian. . . . But on the other hand, it is not Christian for any one deliberately to outrage the feelings of others if these others have failed to understand the glorious freedom with which Christ has made us free. The speaker in the play says, "Youth decrees the public execution of Mrs. Grundy." But the context suggests that it is not Mrs. Grundy alone whose murder is desired; it is the moral law itself that is felt to be in the way of personal pleasure at any price. And there are men who would be glad if they could destroy it. Happily they cannot. It is not the moral leper who has the last word, but God; and despite all the boastfulness of decadent playwrights the law of retribution operates, whether men resist or not. Mrs. Grundy needs converting, not assassinating, and a true Christian will surrender some of his undoubted rights in order to convert Mrs. Grundy and make of her a helper rather than a critic of life.

We may leave Mrs. Grundy, who is not a Christian for one who is undoubtedly a Christian—Saint Paul. He is the apostle of Christian freedom. How the word rings through his letters! "Christ has made us free"; free from Jewish legal prescriptions, from human traditions, from the opinions of men; free to rise to the very highest and to the very best. But he is careful to say, "only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love be servants one to another." He forbids us to judge our fellows, God alone being judge. Yet this must not lead to laxity, for "whether we live, we live unto the Lord, or whether we die, we die unto the Lord, whether we live, therefore, or die, we are the Lord's." That is Christianity. It eliminates Mrs. Grundy the censor, and Madame Pliable the sensualist. It comes to us with a free life in Christ, and love as its dynamic. Where love reigns both censorship and licence die. Martin Luther was very daring when he said, "Love God and then do as you like." Properly understood that word is sound, for love of God, involving love of man, will never lead any person to "like" to do what in any way could harm himself or another.

TEA RESTRICTION

In April a restriction was placed on tea exports from Ceylon, India, and Java, in order to raise prices to growers, who, for almost four years, had been suffering devastating losses. Higher prices have resulted, not only at the gardens, but also here on our own markets, and many package teas already cost more than they did six months ago. Some of the finer quality brands are as unchanged, however, and are, consequently, even better than at last April.

ST. PHILIPPE

The lovely church of St. Philippe, lovelier still with its decorations of real ferns, aspidistras and lilies was a fitting scene for the wedding of Miss Alma St. Denis and Mr. Omer Desforges.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred St. Denis, was attired in a beautiful brown tulle velvet dress, brown lace shoes and hose to match. She carried a bouquet of roses and maiden hair fern. Being a member of the solidarity of the children of Mary, she wore the customary veil.

The beautiful and touching ceremony of the Act of Consecration was read by her cousin, Miss Rosa Lefebvre, before the marriage.

The choir was assisted by several friends of the groom. Miss M. Maye sang the Introit and Mr. Jean Desforges, brother of the groom, rendered the beautiful "Ave Maria." The organist for the occasion was Mr. Millette of Hawkesbury.

After the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was taken at the bride's home, leaving immediately for Grenville, where reception was given at Mr. Desforges, the groom's father.

The happy couple left on a motor trip to North Bay and Mass Mills. The bride traveled in a grey suit and hat and accessories to match.

Mrs. Ph. Marchand and daughter Therese have returned from a two weeks' visit to Helene, where they visited Mr. Levesque and Mr. Levesque. Mrs. Marchand's mother and brother.

The entire community was shocked to hear of the sad death of Mrs. Fred Townsend, and extend to the bereaved their sincere sympathy.

Miss Leona Newberry who spent the past month visiting Mr. Jas. Derouin has returned to her home.

Mr. Roger Lamarche has returned to Rigaud College to resume his studies.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Chambers and Miss Margaret Lewthwaite motored to Covey Hill the week-end.

THE LATE MRS. FRED TOWNSEND

The sad news of the death of Mrs. Fred Townsend, formerly Mary Caroline Blair, who passed away in the Royal Victoria Hospital, on Wednesday, after undergoing an operation for appendicitis a few days previously, came as a great shock to her many friends and relatives.

Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her loss of a loving mother, three sons Milton, Ross and Henderson & four daughters, Mrs. C. McKenzie, of Dalhousie, N. B.; Mrs. Raymond Warwick, Iris and Jean.

THE LATE MRS. GEORGE R. COMBIE

The death occurred in Lachute Mills, on Thursday morning last, Aug. 31st., of Ellen Beattie, wife of Geo. R. Combie, after a long and tedious illness borne with the greatest fortitude and patience. She was born in the Seigneurie on March 16, 1870, the daughter of the late James Beattie and his wife Sarah Lister, having spent her entire life time in this community, she will be greatly missed by her friends and relatives.

Besides her husband she is survived by two sons and one daughter, James of Middletown, Ohio; George at home; Mrs. Hector Mason of Brownsburg; also four sisters and one brother. Mrs. H. J. Neill, of Louisa; Mrs. Robert Snook, of Goffstown, N. H.; Mrs. John Gain, of Lakefield; Mrs. Sarah McCluskey, of Montreal; and Wm. J. Beattie, of the Seigneurie.

The funeral service was held in St. Simeon's Church, on Saturday, Sept. 2nd., being conducted by the Rev. W. LeCrae, and was very largely attended by sympathizing friends and relatives.

Floral tributes were many which showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The pall bearers were Messrs. J. Gain, E. Ward, R. Noble, E. Edmondson, E. Curran and J. Combie.

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, Sept. 6. Premier Bennett is not going to copy President Roosevelt. There will be in Canada no NRA experiment to step up purchasing power by increasing wages and shortening hours of labor. Canada's prime minister had hardly got back to Canadian soil before he made that quite clear.

Why not? Because Canada is the fifth trading nation in the world, must rely largely on international commerce, must compete with highly efficient industrial countries in the East and in Central Europe, and so cannot afford to raise its production costs.

It is obvious from Premier Bennett's remarks that the energies of the federal government will be directed, not toward the stimulation of internal purchasing power, but in enlarging Canada's export markets.

(New Treaties Likely)

And that must mean strenuous efforts towards a trade agreement with the United States, one of Canada's great potential customers. It will also probably mean an attempt on the part of the Hon. H. H. Stevens to increase our sales in the vast Orient.

Just one thought obtrudes here: If the stress is to be laid on selling more of our goods to foreign countries, won't Canada have to reciprocate by purchasing more goods from them?

Anyway, we are being warned by the prime minister against looking over the back fence into the United States with envy, and seeking in a national way to keep up with the "Joneses." Canada is a highly dependent country of 11 millions, not a relatively self-contained country of 115 millions, and we must govern ourselves accordingly. That was the gist of Premier Bennett's remark on that point.

The Canadian prime minister came back from the wheat conference with a striking grasp of the world wheat situation, not very cheering from a Canadian viewpoint. I reviewed the world wheat situation and its hearing on the Canadian problem a couple of weeks ago, and won't repeat it here. But I think most Canadians are staggered to learn that this year both France and Italy will surpass Canada in wheat production, and that Germany and Spain together will also grow more wheat than this country. In fact Europe this year makes North America look rather like a piker in the matter of wheat production. I imagine the total yield over there will be at least 450 million bushels more than here.

We used to think of western Canada as a world wheat granary quite indispensable to the rest of the world, growing a product which would always be in demand. Unhappily this is less true to-day than for many years, and except for the fact that most European countries require hard wheat to blend with their native soft wheats, they could probably get along for the next twelve months without buying any Canadian grain. Under the circumstances perhaps we are relatively fortunate to be promised a market for 200 million bushels in the next 12 months. With our very light crop this year, even the sale of so much will curtail our very heavy holdings.

The Canadian government is very much concerned over this wheat situation, because of chaotic dumping is resorted to, and the surpluses are allowed to drive the price of wheat down to forty cents or thereabouts a bushel, what will become of John I. McFarland and the millions of bushels he holds for the government? Don't forget it costs in the neighborhood of a cent a bushel a month just to 'hang on'.

Happily business reports continue to be encouraging. Carloadings climbed above the 70 mark for the first time this year. Bank debits are away above last year's figures, and employment in the past 2 months has made as steep and long a climb as the records of the Dominion Bureau can match.

There is one bleak spot here yet. Federal revenues are very slow at responding to the business upturn, and the last time I checked up, Finance Minister Rhodes seemed to be about 25 millions short of what he hoped to have collected by this time. July was better, however, and August figures also promise to show improvement. It all hangs on the continued improvement of Canadian business. Taxation doesn't seem to mean much unless the wheels are moving. You can keep adding to the rate and still the revenues fall off. The attention of the government should be directed, it would seem, more toward the revival of trade than the piling-on of new taxes.

IS MRS. GRUNDY A CHRISTIAN

By Rev. FREDERIC C. SPURR
—in the Baptist Leader

Faced with such a question, I should reply immediately, in the language of Parliament, "The answer is in the negative." Mrs. Grundy is not a Christian, either in temper or outlook or judgment. And I will explain why she is not.

In one of his writings he introduces a farmer's wife, Mrs. Ashfield, who goes in mortal dread of her superior neighbour Mrs. Grundy; a self-appointed censor of others. Mrs. Grundy casts her shadow over the life of the other woman until the husband rebels and bursts out, "Be quiet, will ye! Always dinning Dame Grundy into my ears! What will Mrs. Grundy say? What will Mrs. Grundy think?" The century caught the phrase and Mrs. Grundy became the symbol of the interfering person whose own standards of life were set forth as the measure for others.

At one time people were really afraid of "Mrs. Grundy," especially young people. They had to submit everything to her decision. Every departure from established custom, every attempt to obtain a larger freedom, and many quite innocent amusements were brought under the ban, "What will Mrs. Grundy say? What will people think?" Fear of public opinion! There you have it in a sentence. In our time the pendulum has swung to the opposite extreme. Vast numbers of persons not only are without regard for Mrs. Grundy, they have enthroned her rival—a Madame Pliable—who permits all that Mrs. Grundy opposes, and carries the opposition to the utmost limit. To quote some words from a modern play, "Why should I care what anybody thinks or says? Men and women are free to live their own lives in their own way and according to their own ideas. Morality or immorality is quite a personal matter, so long as I inflict no damage upon others. I have a right to my own life. And if any censor brands me as immoral, I say to him, who the—are you? Clear out of this! Youth decrees the public execution of Mrs. Grundy." (Great applause.)

I have said that Mrs. Grundy is not a Christian. Most certainly Madame Pliable is not. They are both either sub-human or anti-human, and we must discard them both.

Now why is Mrs. Grundy not a Christian? Because she lacks Christian spirit and the Christian outlook upon life. Hence her standards are artificial and narrowly legal, and people,

sensing this, resent them. Mrs. Grundy is a prohibitionist. (I use the word in a large sense and not with reference to affairs in the United States.) "Thou shalt not" is her favorite text. But repression alone is always bad. There is something in human nature (and not a bad thing either) which urges people to do the very things they are forbidden to do. It is Bluebeard's locked chamber that invites exploration, and the veiled figure in the room that awakens curiosity. To say to a child "don't, don't, don't," is to urge him to do. Punch had a delightful picture a year or two ago. A young hopeful was seated on the floor, having in his hand a jack-knife, given to him by a mistaken uncle. The mother, about to leave the room, says to the boy, "Now, darling, play until mother returns and don't cut the chair legs." And Punch makes the little imp say, "What a jolly good idea. I never thought of that!" A laughable picture but it is sound psychology! Repression alone is always bad. Equally bad is it to suggest evil when no idea of evil is present. And Mrs. Grundy excels at that. It does not help the morals of any young man or woman to cast a slur upon the slight dress of the hiker, or the innocent freedom of sunbathing, or the unchaperoned country stroll of youth and maiden. Repression and suggestion are the favorite weapons of Mrs. Grundy, and they are not Christian. . . . But on the other hand, it is not Christian for any one deliberately to outrage the feelings of others if these others have failed to understand the glorious freedom with which Christ has made us free. The speaker in the play says, "Youth decrees the public execution of Mrs. Grundy." But the context suggests that it is not Mrs. Grundy alone whose murder is desired; it is the moral law itself that is felt to be in the way of personal pleasure at any price. And there are men who would be glad if they could destroy it. Happily they cannot. It is not the moral leper who has the last word, but God; and despite all the boastfulness of decadent playwrights the law of retribution operates, whether men resist or not. Mrs. Grundy needs converting, not assassinating, and a true Christian will surrender some of his undoubted rights in order to convert Mrs. Grundy and make of her a helper rather than a critic of life.

We may leave Mrs. Grundy, who is not a Christian for one who is undoubtedly a Christian—Saint Paul. He is the apostle of Christian freedom. How the word rings through his letters! "Christ has made us free"; free from Jewish legal prescriptions, from human traditions, from the opinions of men; free to rise to the very highest and to the very best. But he is careful to say, "only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love be servants one to another." He forbids us to judge our fellows, God alone being judge. Yet this must not lead to laxity, for "whether we live, we live unto the Lord, or whether we die, we die unto the Lord, whether we live, therefore, or die, we are the Lord's." That is Christianity. It eliminates Mrs. Grundy the censor, and Madame Pliable the sensualist. It comes to us with a free life in Christ, and love as its dynamic. Where love reigns both censorship and licence die. Martin Luther was very daring when he said, "Love God and then do as you like." Properly understood that word is sound, for love of God, involving love of man, will never lead any person to "like" to do what in any way could harm himself or another.

TEA RESTRICTION

In April a restriction was placed on tea exports from Ceylon, India, and Java, in order to raise prices to growers, who, for almost four years, had been suffering devastating losses. Higher prices have resulted, not only at the gardens, but also here on our own markets, and many package teas already cost more than they did six months ago. Some of the finer quality brands are as yet unchanged, however, and are, consequently, even better value than at last April.

ST. PHILIPPE

The lovely church of St. Philippe, lovelier still with its decorations of real ferns, asters and lilies was a fitting scene for the wedding of Miss Alma St. Denis and Mr. Omer Desforges.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred St. Denis, was attired in a beautiful brown chiffon velvet dress, brown suede shoes and hose to match. She carried a bouquet of roses and maiden hair fern. Being member of the solidarity of the Children of Mary, she wore the customary veil.

The beautiful and touching ceremony of the Act of Consecration was read by her cousin, Miss Rosa Lefebvre, before the marriage.

The choir was assisted by several friends of the groom. Rev. M. Mayer sang the Introits and Mr. Jean Desforges, brother of the groom, rendered a beautiful "Ave Maria." The organist for the occasion was Mr. Millette of Hawkesbury.

After the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was taken at the bride's home, leaving immediately for Grenville, where a reception was given at Mr. X. Desforges, the groom's father.

The happy couple left on a motor trip to North Bay and Pess Mills. The bride traveled in a grey suit and hat and accessories to match.

Mrs. Ph. Marchand and daughter Therese have returned from a two weeks' visit to St. Helene, where they visited Mrs. Levesque and Mr. Levesque, Mrs. Marchand's mother and brother.

The entire community was shocked to hear of the sad death of Mrs. Fred Townsend, and extend to the bereaved their sincere sympathy.

Miss Leona Newberry who spent the past month visiting Mrs. Jas. Derouin has returned to her home.

Mr. Roger Lamarche has returned to Rigaud College to resume his studies.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Chambers and Miss Margaret Lewthwaite motored to Covey Hill for the week-end.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER ON EXHIBITION

Dear Boys :-

A boy with dark hair and brown eyes came to me with enthusiasm.

"Have you seen my work at the Exhibition?" he enquired seizing my arm.

"No," I answered "What are you showing anyway?" For reply he led me towards a tall building towards which a few people only were making their way. On entering we passed through several rooms till we came to one that was almost deserted. The boy then directed my attention to a long table upon which lay several articles including a large woolen mat obviously of juvenile make. This he held up for my inspection. Upon a startling blue background was a ship with broad white sails making for some unknown and mysterious destination while behind it flew, in a still deeper blue sky, some white colored birds of most amazing kind. Judging by the crude unevenness of the water the ship appeared to be having a rough passage. I was not surprised then to discover the boy had been only awarded a third prize. "Splendid don't you think?" he enquired very much annoyed at my silence.

But for a moment I did not hear him for from outside came the sound of martial music and the happy laughter of children at play. While within this room, where even now the shadows of evening were gathering, there lay upon a table the result of many hours of earnest toil undertaken by Young Canada in its period of industry. With what pride were these simple things constructed? How many defeats had been overcome before the "best possible" had been obtained?

The shadowed room was very still and silent. Just then a man came to our side. "The building is ready for closing", he said respectfully.

"Not really" I replied my thoughts elsewhere. "We are finished here", he explained kindly. As there appeared to be nothing further to say we departed though even as we did so I knew him to be wrong.

It was not the finish at all only the very glorious beginning. Had not our eyes been privileged to look upon the foundation of a building though around it no bands would play or above it no flags would flutter in the breeze. Here was a building in the making that would last on its completion as long as the spirit of Young Canada prevailed.

Little things maybe, all on exhibition and made by those who even now had forgotten their existence.

"Splendid wasn't it?" repeated the boy.

"Wonderfully great" was my reply.

"Oh I don't know" came the humble reply. I looked at him and thought an explanation was called for and then contented myself with the knowledge that he would understand one day and so dear will you.

Your affectionate friend,

THE CAPTAIN.

When Smugglers Were Hanged

(National Revenue Review)

Ancient records of smuggling operations in other lands, and in other times, and the measures taken to combat them, are full of exciting incidents. Smuggling in Europe reached its peak in the 18th century and flourished well on into the 19th. In many of the coast towns and villages of England, especially along the English Channel, public opinion was on the side of the law-breakers, who constituted a large part of their population. Many fishermen, farmers, and general labourers, when business was slow, tried their hand at illicit trade. Tea, tobacco, brandy and rum formed the bulk of the cargoes run across the channel from France, and all kinds of sailing vessels were used, including sloops, smacks, luggers and yawls. The larger luggers, when heavily armed, sometimes proved more than a match for the King's cutters, and some embarrassing situations occurred. A story is told how one day peremptorily ordered the government boat to cut cables and clear out on pain of being immediately sunk. Greatly outclassed, the King's cutter deemed it prudent to quietly sail away. This was about 1770. Daily the smugglers grew more bold and lawless, until honest traders despaired of any protection to business. One group of smugglers in particular, known as the Hawkhurst gang, terrorized a section of the country. To meet this danger law-abiding citizens banded together, calling themselves the Goudhurst Band of Militia, and tried to curb the activities of the gang, but to no avail. Finally the Hawkhurst group committed an act that stirred the government into action. In attempting to run a cargo consisting of 2 tons of tea and 39 casks of brandy and rum from France their cutter The Three Brothers had been seized by a Customs vessel and the contraband goods transported to the Poole Custom House. The gang immediately plotted recapture. Collecting about thirty of their number, they armed themselves with swords and pistols and rode to Poole. Late that night they broke into the Custom House, seized the contraband tea and liquor, and rode back openly through the towns and villages, hailed on all sides as conquering heroes.

Shortly after this exploit a proclamation was issued, signed by the King, offering substantial rewards for the apprehension of the offenders. Popular sympathy, however, for the smugglers was such that no names were divulged. But a further act on the part of the Hawkhurst gang, this time of wanton cruelty, sealed its doom. Two men, one a Customs officer, sent to investigate the Custom House hold-up, were waylaid by the smugglers, tortured and put to death. The authorities were now aroused. The laxity of law enforcement had been demonstrated. Customs and Excise officers were helpless to carry out their duties, unprotected as they were; magistrates dared not convict. The Commissioner of Customs at London proclaimed a reward of £500 for the capture of members of the Hawkhurst gang, and adequate protection was promised those undertaking the trials. Results quickly followed. Several of the smugglers were taken, tried and executed, and their bodies hung in chains at conspicuous points on the coast and highways. By 1749 the Hawkhurst gang was entirely broken up, and the manner of its going exerted a sobering influence on all others engaged in the smuggling trade.

THE GUINEA HEN'S MISTAKE

By Aunt Jean

Said the mother duck to her little ones,

There's water in the pond
Quack, quack, quack, quack,
The sun is quite high,
The morning is fine,
And the worms are really fat.

With a quack, quack, quack,
She hurried away.
The wee ducks fell in line,
With their heads held high
And their feathers gay,
They really looked quite fine.

There was Quilly Quick
With his wee green head,
There was Pluff, with his wind-blown tail Squeaky Squeaky with her bill so red
And Midge, so thin and pale.

The guinea hen raised a dreadful cry,
From his perch by the old hay stack,

He shrieked at the ducks
As they passed him by,
Go back, go back, go back!

He was quite sure that they would drown,
Each gay little fluffy duck,
So he screamed and screamed,
His warning down,
But he had not any luck.

For the little ducks
Just kept right on,
Splash, into the pond they went,
Dipping, diving, bobbing around These wee birds, well content.

The guinea hen sat on his post and stared
His voice it grew quite flat.
Dear me he said quite surprised and scared
Now what do you think of that?

LILA'S UMBRELLA

The little pink umbrella danced along the beach in front of Lila until she grew quite hot and tired pursuing it. "Oh dear!" she said, "why did I open that box? I always get into trouble through opening things. I'm afraid that it is getting wet and dirty, hopping along through the puddles. There! It has stopped."

There was quite a hollow in the beach directly in front of the little umbrella. Some little child had been building sand castles and had lifted sand out of this hollow to help build it. The little umbrella dropped into the hollow. Lila was coming quite closely behind. She seized hold of the handle before the wind carried it away again. "Oh! Oh! you horrid thing," she cried, "You are just as dirty as you can be. Oh! What shall I do?"

She tried to wipe the dirty spots away and make them clean but, it did not help. It seemed to make them worse. "I'll just put the mean old thing back where I found it," she said and ran to the cottage, holding the dripping umbrella with both hands.

She was glad to find that her mother had not got back yet. Closing the umbrella she laid it in the box, wrapped the dainty tissue paper around it and hid it under the cushion where it had been when she saw it first, and went out to play with her dolls.

She did not feel at all comfortable about what she had done and it was a very quiet little girl who met her mother by the gate on her return.

"Mother is so sorry, darling that she was detained so long, but old Mrs. Klein was very ill and some one had to stay until the doctor came.

You have been such a good little girl to stay alone that mother will have to make it up to you in some nice way."

Sitting down in the rocker she drew Lila into her arms and sat rocking and singing softly as she planned a nice surprise for her.

Two days later Lila was waiting for her mamma to take her down to the beach when six little girls all dressed in sun suits and carrying pails, beach balls and sand shovels came from the cottage next door and shouted "Happy Birthday Lila!"

Lila was quite surprised. She had forgotten all about her birthday.

"We've come to your birthday party, Lila," said Rose Carter, "Aren't you glad to see us?"

"My birthday party" Lila said in surprise. Am I having a birthday party? Oh how lovely! Thank you Mummie. "Her mother was just coming out of the door to accompany the party of little girls to the beach.

What a jolly time they had building castles and forts and paddling in the water.

If Lila was a bit quieter than themselves the merry little girls did not notice it. They were too busy enjoying the party, and her mother was too busy trying to keep watch on all of them to take particular notice of her own little girl.

Lila herself was remembering the way the little pink umbrella hopped about, driven by the wind so could not enjoy herself. She wondered if Mummie had seen it yet. A whole tribe of uneasy little questions romped through her mind, all without answers, but the answer to them all was much nearer than Lila expected.

When the girls had had enough of Beach Fun, they ran races back to the cottage, where in some mysterious way little party frocks were found in readiness to wear. The little girls did not know how they got there but I expect their mothers did.

Lila's mother thought what a sweet little group of girls they were, each in a dainty frilly gown, almost like little blossoms from the garden suddenly come to life. Her eyes rested fondly and lingeringly on her own little blossom. A little spoiled perhaps she thought, with just the tiniest sigh, but she would surely outgrow that.

For some time the children sat in a gay little circle on the lawn playing, what Lila's mother called "Riddle-ma Ree." Each girl was given a paper with six easy riddles to find the answers for, and to the two best papers returned to her she gave dainty little prizes.

Lila's heart beat wildly when her mother said she was going to give prizes, "What, oh what if the little pink umbrella was to be one of the prizes."

Much to her relief when the prizes were given, the little pink umbrella was not one of them. Still Lila kept questioning in her mind about it, but it was not until after supper had been served in dainty little colored lunch boxes and the ice cream eaten, even to the last little spoonful that Lila's mother said, "Well girls, you all know that this little party was a surprise for Lila on her birthday and I hope you have all enjoyed it, and I am sure that you will all enjoy seeing Lila's birthday present. I know that she is going to enjoy it and I am sure that she will let you all see it sometimes. All ready, Linda! she called to the maid who was standing inside the door just waiting for the signal to bring out the box containing the little pink umbrella.

Coming over to her mistress she put a rather damp queer smelling parcel in her hand.

Lila's mother sat looking at it in wonder. "Why! she said "why! what is this?"

Lila stood up, her face was whiter almost than chalk. She wanted to run away but her limbs were trembling so that she could not. She understood now why the parcel had been hidden. It was just waiting for her birthday.

She tried to think that perhaps the umbrella had dried and would be alright, but it was not. Her mother was opening the box with fingers that trembled almost as much as Lila's limbs. There lay the little pink umbrella. Pink now only in spots. A soiled mildewed mass of crumpled silk and lace.

"Oh mother!" Lila said, an agony of shame and sorrow in her face and voice.

Her mother looked at her quickly, and understood that Lila had fallen once more into the temptation of trying to satisfy her curiosity by opening a parcel that she had no right to open.

Linda who had been standing looking on said in surprise "Sure! I thought it was a box of flowers ma-am, it was so damp like."

Lila's mother put the box cover on again hastily drew the damp brown paper around it and handed it to Linda saying, "Put this right in the fire Linda there has been some mistake."

She was too ashamed to have the other little girls know that her little girl had this bad habit, so said nothing about it until after they had gone home, which they did very soon after all wondering just what Lila's birthday present really was and if they would see it some other day.

After they had gone Lila sobbed out the whole story in her mother's arms and begged to be punished severely.

"I think her mother said slowly that you have been punished by your own fears and worries all this time, and I am sure that this will be a real lesson to you never to touch anything that does not belong to you again.

And it was when Lila felt least bit curious about unopened parcels again she remembered the little pink umbrella clasped her hands tightly behind her back and ran away.

Next week we shall hear a little about Bobo the Bobo-Like. — Lovingly, AUNT JEAN.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Paper given by Gerald West at a Public Speaking Contest under the auspices of the Front Women's Institute.

The cow is a female quadruped with an alto voice and countenance in which there is no guile. She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filler for hash, sausages and similar objects, and at last skinned by these she has been fitted, as mortals commonly say.

The young cow is called calf and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad, breaded veal and other uses of which no further knowledge is necessary.

The cow's tail is mounted and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies and the tassel on the end has unique educational value. Persons who come in contact with the tassel have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as a ware house and has no other function. When the one is filled, the cow retires to a quiet spot where her manners will occasion no comment. The raw material thus conveyed for the second time to the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach, where it is converted into cow.

The cow has no upper plate. All of her teeth are parked in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result she bites and gums down.

HONK, HONK!

"Whom does your little look like?"

"His eyes are mine, the nose is my wife's, and the voice, think, he got from a motor horn."

BRIGHT IDEA
The schoolboy was heard muttering vengeance against a friend when the twain should meet next day. Father demanded to know the reason for the threats and on hearing the grievance said, "Oh, well, why don't you heap coals of fire upon his head."
"Dad", breathed the youngster with sparkling eyes, "that's what I call a really bright idea."

Making History in Argenteuil Extracted from files of The Watchman.

50 Years Ago.
Friday, Sept. 6, 1883.
New dwelling houses are going up like magic all around.
The C. P. R. have commenced to erect a new water tank in the West End of Lachute.
Quite a lot of hay in the back settlements is yet to cut — the other crops coming in so rapidly with the continuous heat they are obliged to cut the grain and leave the hay.
Lachute was enlivened on Tuesday with a wedding party from St. Andrews, some twenty or twenty-five carriages in the cavalcade.
The new mill erected by Messrs. Hamelin & Ayers for Mr. David Hambleton as a Bobbin Factory, is almost completed.
Reports from the northwest coast of Newfoundland show that four British schooners were boarded and stripped by French fishermen. A French war vessel arrived; their sails being returned to them only when the English ships agreed, on protest, to leave the harbor.

25 Years Ago.
Friday, Sept. 4, 1908.
Mrs. A. McBride and family of Arnprior, arrived last week to take up residence in Lachute. Mrs. Alex. Beers left on Tuesday to spend a month with friends in Merriton, Ont.
Mr. Gaetan Valois left this week to attend Laval University.
Mr. Jno. Cruise is attending the Sherbrooke Fair, and will also take in the banquet of the Holstein Breeders Association.
Annual County Conferences of the W. C. T. U. is being held today in the Presbyterian Church hall.
Genoa. Messrs. Alex. Black and John Armstrong have gone to the West.
Mabel. Mr. John Mason is completing a new house which will add greatly to the beauty of the Dairy Farm.
Miss Florence McGillivray, of Montreal, is home in Lachute for two weeks' vacation.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON-SERMON
"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, September 10.
The Golden Text is : (Psalms 135 : 13) "Thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations."
The following passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy :
"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." (James 1 : 17).
"Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. Truth, Life, an Love are substance . . ."
"Things spiritual and eternal are substantial. Things material and temporal are insubstantial." "Matter, sin, and mortality lose all supposed consciousness or claim to life or existence, as mortals lay off a false sense of life, substance and intelligence." (Science and Health pages 468, 335, 311.)

GUYNEMER MYSTERY SOLVED
The mystery which has surrounded the death of Captain Georges Guynemer, France's air hero of the war, has now been solved, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph.
Guynemer in little more than two years brought down 53 German airplanes. Mr. Rudyard Kipling referred to him as "the patron saint of the clouds."
While on a scouting expedition on September 11, 1917, he disappeared.
Many attempts have been made to discover the circumstances of his death. King Alfonso during the war sent a request to the German Foreign Minister for any information he possessed. The details received from Germany were, however, conflicting.
Now, sixteen years after his disappearance, Dr. Knauss, a chief of the German Lufthansa (Civil Aviation company has sent Guynemer's identification card to the French Farman Aviation Company. He states that he obtained it by chance from a former German war pilot.

Dr. Knauss states that the French air "ace" was brought down by a German airplane to the north of Ypres and fell into territory occupied by German advance parties. The territory, however was bombarded so heavily by the British that it was abandoned. Later, however, it was regained and the identity card was picked up.
Guynemer was the only war pilot to be honoured by having his name inscribed in the Paris Pantheon, where he is described as a "legendary hero fallen from the sky in the height of his glory."

GOOD FOLKS
Good folks abide in every place
All cities know the friendly face
There is no dusty village street,
But what is glad with little feet,
And feels the tread of kindly men
Who walk to work and home again.
Good mothers everywhere abide Travel the country far and wide
And you shall find, where'er you go,
Their gentle eyes ith love aglow
And hear the sweet old lullabies
Which once brought sleep unto your eyes.
However far the road you plod,
You still will find belief in God,
A cheery hand will wave you on,
A friend remain when you have gone;
From fellowship you cannot stray—
Good men are everywhere to-day.
There is no city wholly base,
No village that is commonplace,
Beneath the humblest roofs you'll find Nobility of humankind,
And wheresoe'er the night you spend,
You can be sure to meet a friend.

STUDYING MENTAL HYGIENE.
Parents have become accustomed to those rules which advance physical health of their young children, but as yet are not quite so familiar with the ones which insure the mental health of these same children. There are, however, certain rules which govern a child's emotional development as surely as sunshine and fresh air, food sleep, lead to a strong body.
The home is the school in which basic living habits, are formed, such as cleanliness, neatness, cheerfulness, honesty, consideration for others, the outgoing of affection, control of emotions, and the development of moral and religious beliefs.
And from the picture of the changes which have occurred in conditions pertaining to family life during the past few years, it is evident that parents have a problem to solve in bringing up their children which is more complex and more bewildering than ever before.
That they feel a need for help is evidenced by the many groups who are already studying mental hygiene. And what are the needs they express? One is to understand this changing world in which we live, and in which our children are growing up; another is to understand children, their various stages and development; and most important of all, a knowledge of how to prevent emotional and mental difficulties, and thereby promote the happiness and mental health of each member of the family, young and old.
In order to realize these goals, some understanding of themselves, of their own desires and ambitions, of the effects their backgrounds and experiences in growing up have had on them, is essential.
Study groups provide a place for individual growth, for the relief of tensions and conflicts, for the development of self reliance and emotional maturity, and help in understanding human behaviour.
Manuals for the organization of study groups will be available in September at the Manual Hygiene Institute, 531 Pine Ave., West, Montreal.
The bulletin "Mental Health" can also be obtained at the same address, at the reduced rate of .50 per individual subscription for members of the Quebec Women's Institutes.

Humors of Quebec's Early Administration

A centenary address given during Quebec's hundredth anniversary, observed this year, has brought to light many interesting episodes in the history of the city's administration. Although Samuel Champlain, sailor and explorer, was in reality the original governor and first magistrate of Quebec, leaving plan, order and routine on which the existing city and its administration were founded—Elzéar Bedard headed the first official civic assembly under British regime in 1883, just a hundred years ago last May.

In Quebec's council chamber is a coat of arms of the Kings of France, which originally ornamented one of the doors of the old fortifications.
After the battle of Sainte Foy in 1760, General Murray transported it to his native town of Hastings and its presence in the Quebec chamber dates from 1925, when Lord Willingdon, then Governor General, secured the trophy for the city.

The Quebec Citadel, it was told, dates from 1833—when the last stone was laid in construction started ten years previously by the Royal Engineers.

The first volume of the council proceedings, covering a year of civic regime, shows the minutes kept variably in either English or French, according to the various motions and the language in which they were submitted. Thereafter a tale of grim and sometimes humorous experience unfolds in these early annals of the city.

In the records appears a by-law to regulate the correct display of aldermen's chains and badges of office, and to ensure their proper return. There is inscribed a request from the fire chief of division No. 18 in the early stages of its organization. The request urges that the fire pump be withdrawn from the charge of the Seminary student's corps and duly entrusted to the firemen. The council investigated, discovered no intervene. The scholars, it seems, appearing first on the scenes of city fires, had in-nered motives of jealousy in the request, and variably received the premium conferred for this distinction, to the chagrin of the fire brigade in question.

A tragic season passes under review, when the council suffers depletion in plague and disease. Hospitals were full to over-crowding.

dard himself fell a victim to cholera in the of Montreal, at the age of 50. And the first or of Quebec, at his death, drew tribute and ogy from the press on every hand.

A vote of censure is passed upon disor-garrisons, and the Government is asked to strain the carrying of arms by soldiers of Citadel on Quebec's streets after sun-down.

As the deliberations of Quebec's council those days now appear fraught with interest they must also have been a source of popular

Quebec Provincial Deficit For Past Year Exceeds Six Millions

Revenue Declines Main Reason for Poor Showing — Profits from Liquor Down.

For the second time in thirty years the Province of Quebec, has reported a deficit, Hon. R. F. Stockwell, Provincial Treasurer, reporting that expenditures had exceeded revenue for the year ending June 30th. 1933, by $6,840,907.96. The following is the text of the statement issued by the Provincial Treasurer:

"The statement of the financial operations of the province for the fiscal year ending June 30th. last, as published in the Official Gazette, disclosed that there is a deficit of $6,840,907.96.

"This deficit is directly attributable to the extraordinary times in which we live as the crisis has made calls upon all governments which were extraordinary and the crisis has also made an unfavorable setting for sustained revenues.

"During the year under review there has been a large decrease realized as against estimated revenues which, in round figures, amounts to $6,000,000. This latter item was made up almost wholly from drop in revenue available from the Quebec Liquor Commission, $2,700,000, from the Department of Lands and Forests $1,500,000, from succession duties $900,000 from gasoline about $400,000, and from licenses $650,000. If the comparison be carried still another year back, to the fiscal year 1930-31, it will be seen that the net drop in revenues amounts to the large sum of approximately $10,500,000.

"Additional calls were made upon the treasury by the insufficiency of the regular vote to meet such items as bonuses to colonists for the clearing of land; for grants in assisting the drainage of land; for the supply of seed grain to colonists together with the usual liberal grants, for the advancement of agriculture, for the needs of education, for the support of our provincial asylums and for many other governmental activities — none of which could be curtailed in view of the peculiar needs resulting from the depression.

"The expenditures made were distributed widely in a variety of departments for the conservation of our natural resources; for the training and education of our youth and children; for the protection of the health of the people. A considerable programme of public works has been maintained largely to aid unemployment. In a word, the foregoing factors combined mean that a great deal of work has been done which has been paid 100 per cent. out of provincial funds as they were carried on in addition to those activities in which federal assistance could be obtained, and the general result has been that these expenditures have had a great sustaining influence among all classes of the people in the province.

"The expenditure of approximately $2,250,000 made on the resurfacing of roads under a six-year programme instituted by legislation in 1929 has served to maintain the capital value of these roads whose value, as a provincial asset, cannot be too strongly emphasized, and this same expenditure is keeping the province in the forefront by way of attracting tourists. The value to all classes in the province of the tourist trade is inestimable, bringing as it does a great unseen, but nevertheless real, income both to commercial and agricultural classes.

"While this amount has been annually included in our total of ordinary expenditures, it really might be listed under the heading of extraordinary expenditures.

"It should also be borne in mind that there has been set aside the sum of $1,714,683.42 for the sinking fund account out of ordinary revenue. This is notable when it is considered that many governmental authorities are making no provision for the redemption of loans save by renewal loans when maturity dates arrive.

"In spite of the great difficulties encountered by governments and individuals during the past fiscal year, it is apparent that all classes of population are remaining tenacious, courageous and hopeful.

Charged with Operating a Still near Lachute

That the Government is bent upon cleaning up the country of those who are setting the authorities at defiance is evident from the aggressive attitude of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. A short time ago, a couple of arrests were made and on Wednesday afternoon a visit was paid by the Mounties who landed in on Alex. Lapointe and Joseph Lauzon and uncovered a still with 75 gallons of mash and 60 gallons of alcohol. They are now in St. Jerome jail.

This should prove a warning to others engaged in this nefarious traffic that "easy money" is sometimes hardly earned.

Local Breeders Win Honors at St. Scholastique Fair

A noted improvement is reported at the Annual Ste-Scholastique Fair, which was held this week and although not up to the usual in attendance, owing to the cool weather, yet a big improvement is shown in the exhibits.

Argenteuil County was well represented and brought home a goodly number of prizes.

Wm. Todd showed four head winning first prize on aged cow in milk, sr. and grand champion female, Auchinbrain Cummie imported.

R. Doig exhibited 14 head on which he won several prizes, including the Junior Champion Female and Senior Champion Male in the Ayrshire Class.

Rodger Bros. Regd., showed 16 head on which they won 13 firsts, 7 seconds, 1 third and 1 fifth, also Junior and Grand Champion Male on their yearling bull Alta Crest Gold Tip.

Fourteen prizes were awarded the exhibits from the Bond Farm, which included six head of cattle, 2 mares, one foal and 8 pigs.

Albert Stewart exhibited three horses on which he won the following firsts,—Single Carriage Horse; pair of Carriage Horses; Carriage Tandem; best 3 year old Roadster.

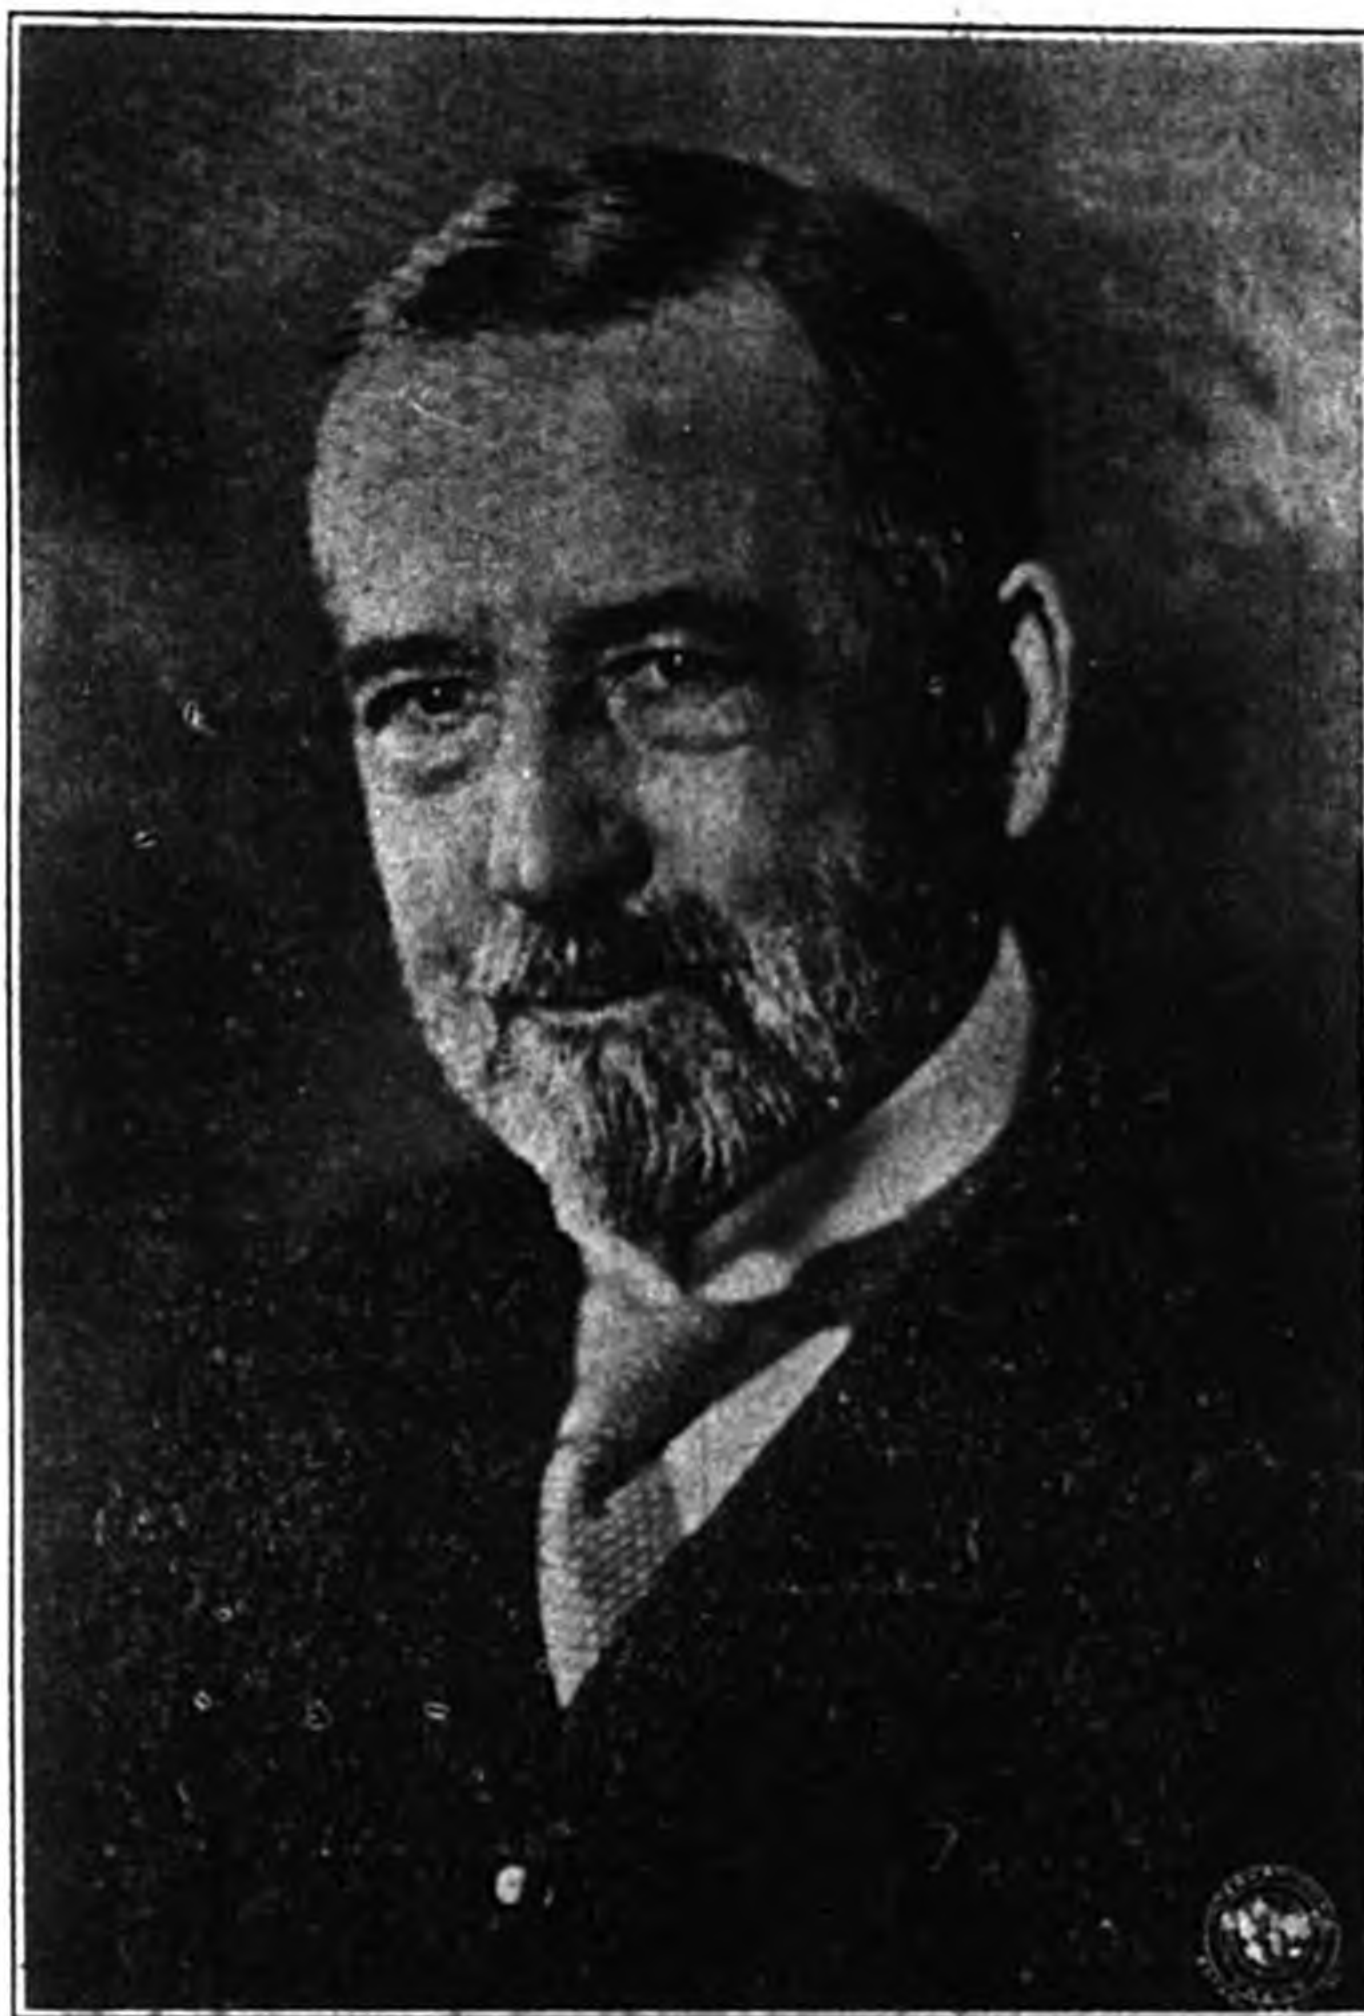

Ross McAdam, River Rouge, won two firsts on Heavy Draft Colt, 1 year, and General Purpose Brood Mare.

Smith Bros. were also very successful with their exhibit of Poultry as well as McOuat Bros. of River Rouge, who exhibited horses.

The races were keenly contested and caused great excitement among the enthusiastic crowd the 2.15 pace being run off in 2.09 1/2.

It is gratifying to note the general improvement which is taking place in the County Fairs, and especially that of the Lachute Spring Fair, and the added interest which is being shown by the various exhibitors.

Many Happy Returns

To attain the honored age of 76 years and be able to perform the strenuous duties of carrying on the Dominion's business as acting Prime Minister during the past two months in the absence of Premier Bennett is something to be thankful for indeed, and the people of Argenteuil, are proud that the Rt. Hon. Sir George Halsey Perley, G.C.M.G. is enjoying good health and strength that permits him to render such valued service to his country, and his constituents in Argenteuil join with others throughout the Dominion in extending birthday greetings.

Fine New School at Thos' Gore

In fulfilment of promises made by the School Board of Lachute High School, the children of Thos' Gore trooped back to start their studies, not in the little old building that had served the community for upwards of 70 years, but in an entirely new model structure second to none in the Province. Owing to greater distance, the Board deemed it advisable, when consolidation was effected to retain and maintain this school which has been re-built at a cost of $1400. The government contributed $1200 and the balance of $200 has been met out of the general fund, which is less than would have been required to repair the old building.

On Thursday evening, Principal Hall and Mr. Ebers, Dr. Mason, Chairman of the Board, Rev. Mr. Rosborough, Mr. King and members of the Board were present at the formal opening and short addresses were given to the 35 bright pupils constituting the school with their honored and beloved teacher, Miss Ethel Dixon, who is looking for great things from the children, who have promised much because of their brightened conditions. A number of prizes were distributed by Mr. Hall, some twelve scholars winning the regular attendance prize as well as for meritorious work. The Board is to be congratulated upon the splendid work accomplished. It is also gratifying to know that the $25,000 grant promised by the Government has been fully met, even before the time specified.

We sometimes feel that the loyalty and unselfish interest of our teaching staff is scarcely appreciated by the public as they should be. The immense influence that they wield cannot be ignored and it is a source of gratification to know that our teachers are discharging that duty faithfully. It has been found necessary—owing to the enlarged enrollment—to increase our very efficient staff by the addition of Mr. Ebers of Charlottetown, P.E.I. and Miss Freda Mason, B.A., one of the most distinguished former pupils and graduates of our Academy, to whom we give hearty welcome.

The blacksmith shop of Mr. Trudel was the scene of quite a spectacular blaze last Saturday morning. The shop is a very old structure and it appears that during the morning the workmen had been carrying a blacksmith fan upstairs and in letting it fall it damaged a 5 gallon can of paint thinner, some of which had run out on the floor. The cause of the conflagration is attributed to sparks from an acetylene welder, which had been used shortly after.

The damage was covered by insurance there being $1500 on building, $1000 on tools and equipment and $1000 on stock. Fire-chief Deacon with his men soon put the blaze under control and saved the fire from doing further damage.

Students Leave for Toronto

To have five young people leave for College at one time, to resume or to enter into training for definite Christian service, is the outstanding record of Lachute Baptist Church. Miss Elizabeth Goldsworthy is resuming her studies at Toronto Bible College, entering upon her third and final year; and Miss Leila Boyd, Miss L. Goldsworthy, Mr. John Boyd and Mr. Wm. Glenn are beginning different courses at Toronto Baptist Seminary. These, with other young people connected with Lachute Baptist Church, and visitors from Toronto, have been active during the summer months, conducting open-air meetings, distributing tracts and engaging in various forms of work. They go to their colleges followed by the best wishes of their friends

Crushed to Death Between Wall of Canal and Barge

Coroner's Jury Finds Death of Boatman Due To Scuffle, But Without Criminal Intention.

"Death as the result of a scuffle aboard the coal barge of J. W. Todd of Ottawa, but without criminal intention on the part of anyone," was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury at the inquest held at Grenville, Que., on Monday afternoon into the death of Edmond Lizotte, 65, of Pierre-ville, Que., who lost his life early in the morning at the Grenville canal locks during a scuffle aboard his barge with Alphonse Portelance, pilot of the tug-boat Dragg, of Montreal.

New Gas Tax Denied

Taschereau Says Government Control Not Considered

Quebec, September 13.—Rumors that gasoline might be put under Government control in Quebec, were denied by Premier L. A. Taschereau. The Provincial Government has not considered the question, he said; furthermore there would be no new gasoline taxes.

There was a possibility, he said, that a new provincial loan might have to be floated to cover expenditures for unemployment relief. "The question of another loan by the province has not been discussed," he said. "Much depends, however on the expenditures we are called upon to make for unemployment during the winter months. If there is no improvement in the situation there is a possibility we may be forced to make a loan to cover relief expenditures."

Argenteuil County Women's Institute Activities

Chatham Branch had interesting meeting on Child Welfare with a paper on that subject presented by Mrs. Lonsdale. Fifteen members present.

Jerusalem-Bethany had a roll-call on Daily Health Habits, also Mrs. Kuhring gave an interesting talk on Child Welfare and Public Health. Miss Dawson, supervisor of the Victorian Order of Nurses also gave a very interesting talk on the work of the Victorian Order. Twelve members and three visitors were in attendance. Another dance was arranged for on Friday evening, Sept. 15th.

Frontier had a very interesting meeting which took the form of a public speaking contest for young people from eight to eighteen with Principal Hall of Lachute High School and Rev. Henry Cousens, of Lachute Presbyterian Church as judges. This meeting was largely attended by visiting children and their parents.

Frontier has suffered for the first time a loss by the death of one of its prominent members. Mrs. F. Townsend, of Ogdensburg. A floral tribute of sympathy was presented by this branch.

Lakefield meeting had seven members and four visitors present, when Mrs. Peet read an interesting paper on Education and Mrs. Albert Tomalty gave a very interesting and instructive address on "The Making of Canadian cheese."

Reports from the picnic booth were read and a decision passed to hold a five hundred party at the home of Mr. Albert Tomalty, on Sept. 8th., at 8 o'clock (D. S. T.) Admission 25c.

This branch was pleased to have with them a former Secretary who was in Lakefield on a visit from London, Ont.

It was at first believed that Lizotte was drowned when both men fell from the deck of the barge into the water during the scuffle, but when Lizotte's body was recovered from the bottom of the locks early this afternoon it was discovered that he had been crushed to death when, in falling from the deck of the barge, his body had been caught between the stone wall of the canal and the side of his barge.

Portelance fell clear and was pulled out of the water by a deck hand of the tug-boat.

Portelance Released

Coroner B. N. Wales, M.D., of St. Andrews East, Que., conducted the inquest, and nine witnesses were heard. Portelance had been arrested after Lizotte's death, but was released after the jury's verdict. There will be no criminal action against him.

Evidence at Inquest

The circumstances which led up to the fatal scuffle were rather unusual, according to evidence heard at the inquest.

The barge, with Edmond Lizotte in charge and his brother Joseph assisting, had been engaged in Montreal to carry coal to Ottawa. The tug-boat Dragg, owned by the Simpson Towing and Salvage Company of Montreal, was commissioned to tow the coal barge up the river to Ottawa. On the tug were Alphonse Portelance, as pilot, Allan Vipond of Morrisburg as engineer, and Napoleon Gagne as deck hand.

The tug and its tow reached the locks at Grenville late Saturday night and was obliged to wait until after 12 o'clock Saturday night to move through and up the river.

A few minutes after one o'clock Monday morning, Portelance was ready with the tug to tow the barge through the locks. It was alleged that angered at apparent slowness in getting the barge ready for towing he left the tug-boat and jumping on to the deck of the coal barge, began to argue with Lizotte.

The scuffle followed, and losing their balance, both men fell from the deck of the barge, Portelance clear into the water, but Lizotte, caught between the side of the barge and the wall of the lock, was crushed to death. His body was released a few seconds later as the barge moved slightly, and he dropped to the bottom of the water in the lock.

One Man Rescued

The scuffle was witnessed by the crews of both craft and several others, and when the men fell from the deck of the barge, Napoleon Gagne, the tug's deckhand, immediately jumped into the water and rescued Portelance.

Allen Vipond, the engineer of the tug, dived into the water and attempted to rescue Lizotte but failed. His body was not found until 1.20 o'clock in the afternoon. Fred Berniquier, assistant lockmaster at Grenville recovered it with a grappling iron.

Police Chief Joseph Page of Grenville placed Portelance under arrest, and he was held in custody until the inquest. He was represented at the inquest by J. G. Dunlop, Hawkesbury lawyer.

Upper Lachute had an address on The Value of Education in all walks of life and the Value of Co-operation of parents and teachers during school term.

Lachute and Morin Heights held no meeting in August.

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER "SCHOOL DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN"

Dear Boys :

And so we bid farewell to the long summer holidays. Well you have nothing to grumble about for vacation days this year have been gloriously fine and sunny. How many of us have enjoyed unique experiences, made new friends while our eyes have looked up scenes of wondrous beauty?

How true it is that—
The moonlight makes a long and silver trail
Upon the water that appears to be,
A magic sea on which a ship so frail
May safely ride; though yet it seems to me
This mystic scene and yes those dancing waves
Are never there except on holidays!
Still other things must come along which cause even "the happiest holiday we have ever spent" to form itself into but a cherished memory. For you boys this is as it should be. Care-free days, away from the sterner duties of School and home life, must be nothing but a brief and joyful interlude along the highway of life.

All the same I am not so sure that your School days are not also made up of pleasure. To increase our knowledge and appreciation of material things strengthens our understanding of a universe made up of many wonders and surrounded by great and everlasting beauty.

At this time and in this place it has always been my custom to wish you all success in your new School year. Again I do so with an intimate realization of the many difficulties that will confront you on return to your desks. May you have courage to overcome them, faith to learn diligently and a knowledge of the ever-loving guidance of God, who will ever be with you, in Your Going Out and Coming In day by day.

"His gracious Spirit cheers us on our way.
And still remains, when shadows come and stay."

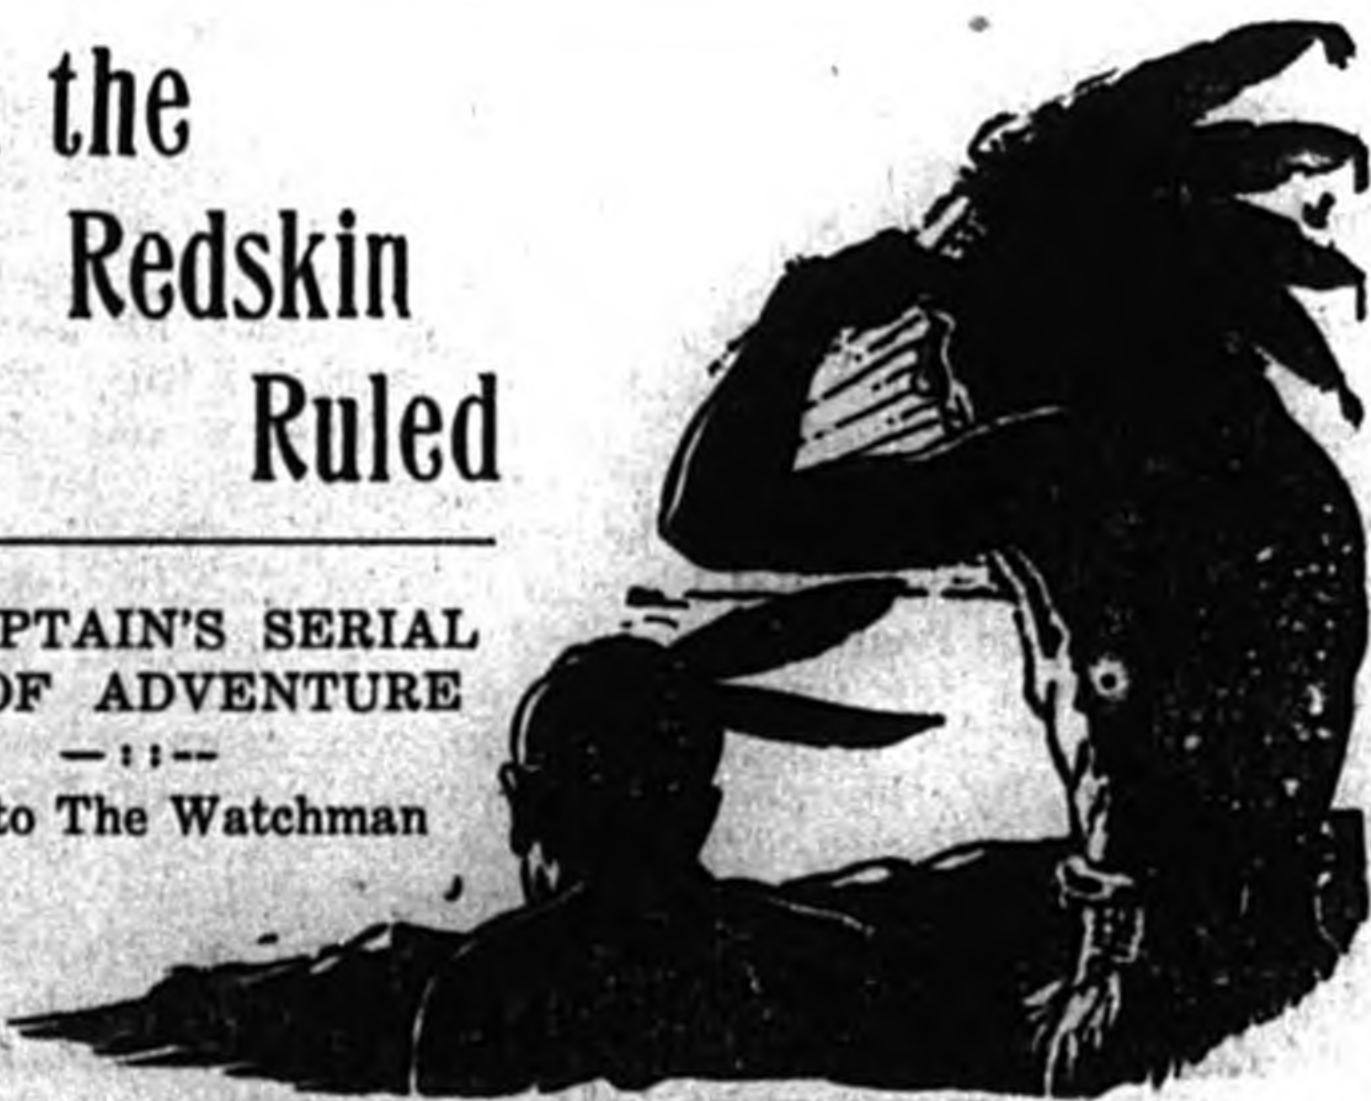

Your affectionate friend,

THE CAPTAIN.

Williams.

For a long time the preparation undertaken to defend the farm from the expected attack was accomplished in silence. Neither Walter or Edgar could really bring themselves to consider that a raid by a few untrained savages, armed at the best with bows and arrows, could prevail against experienced fighters using muskets and swords. They felt indeed that after the first few shots the Indians would raise cries of astonishment and flee for their lives. They were soon to be made aware of their mistake under tragic circumstances.

Fully an hour passed and the short twilight had given place to the deeper shadows of approaching night when Sharp Eye crept up to the side of Mr. Wilson and whispered.

"It won't be long now Chief. They are moving forward on the farther side of the big barn. They are many for quietly as they come, my ears have caught the sound of several hundred feet."

The owner of River Farm nodded as he carefully looked to the priming of his gun at the same time making a significant signal to Frankie, who was very near him.

Your job my son is to see that all of us are kept well supplied with ammunition. Do not yourself shoot unless, well you understand. The end is not far off.

The boy's face became white though there was a steady look in his eyes and no one could have noted any change in his voice as he replied.

"I will do as you say Dad. You can trust me."

Over all the windows heavy shutters had been lowered in which were pierced openings sufficiently large to see and shoot through. By these the men of the party had taken up their positions with the exception of Sharp Eye, on whom had devolved a sort of roving commission his duty being to watch the movements of the enemy. report on same and lend him aid at any point that would be hardly pressed.

Time seemed to drag as, with nerves on edge, every member of the defence force waited anxiously for further movement on the part of the Indians which would give them some idea from which direction the full force of the attack might be expected. More than once Edgar gave a jump as he thought he heard some sound or other, but the firm strong hand of Sunny Jim pushed him back into position while a word of caution was whispered in his ear. Then, just as everyone had arrived at the conclusion that no attempt would be made on their safety that night, a great yell broke the stillness, followed by the fierce hum of countless arrows sent with deadly force and accuracy against the none too strongly protected windows.

"Have a scare, friend Dickson," shouted Mr. Wilson as the Englishman jumped back from his post with an exclamation of dismay. Those arrows come more than half way through and their barbs are poisoned. Don't fire unless you are sure of hitting your man its no use wasting ammunition." Any reply that might have been made was dashed by the sharp crack of gun fire as a steady fusillade was directed upon the attackers who could now be seen in greater numbers crowding up to the side of the building waving their tomahawks and at the same time giving vent to fearsome war cries that bodied ill for those within should an entrance be forced. Very soon the room was full of smoke, which in itself became the cause of much discomfort making sight difficult, and obstructing the work of defence. "They are getting closer" shouted Sharp Eye, above the din I go chief to the roof for I see with lighted arrows they seek to fire

THE RUNAWAYS

By Aunt Jean

Jolly little Polly went to meet her dad,

Met instead another, jolly little lad,

Let's go and see the circus
It will be quite a treat

So away the two went scrambling Down the busy street.

So busy were they peeping all the afternoon

They quite forgot their dinner, forgot it had been noon

Oh dear, I want my supper
Said Polly with a sigh

I am getting dreadfully hungry
I am sure I am going to cry.

At home their busy mothers were really worried quite,

And when they missed the dinner hour got in such a fright,

Polly's Daddy called the police Sammy's Dad did too.

Such a dreadful fuss they made O'er the missing two.

A big fat policeman, to the circus went,

Quite sure that he would find them there, on their pleasure bent.

Sammy looked at Polly
When he saw him come,

Sobbed out "oh dear me we're lost"

Won't you take us home.

The policeman took them home that night,

Through the busy street,
And when their mothers saw them both

Paid for this little treat.

BOBO, THE BOBOLINK

By Aunt Jean

Bobo the Bobolink was rather proud of himself, he was rather a pretty bird and he seemed to know it.

He was a little larger than the English sparrow. The middle of his back was a pale buff color, the back of his head yellow, but the remainder of his body was black with a few splashes of white on his wings.

He thought he was the house", and without waiting for a reply the loyal Indian made a dash for the stairs.

"It is as I feared, remarked Mr. Wilson to Tom Dickson, who, his gun jammed was desperately endeavoring to clear the obstacle. Your boys and mine had better turn their attention to the water. Here Frankie, show your friends what to do"

The youngster ran first to Walter and afterwards with Edgar's help began to carry the well-filled buckets up the stairway and into the attic.

"We must get them up there" he said pointing to a short ladder which led to a small trap-door, the only entrance to the roof. I will go first and then you Edgar—Walter can hand the water to us and follow after.

Thank goodness, Sharp Eye has left the trap open. This procedure was carried out but carefully and silently as it was performed, their movements had been noted and a yell accompanied by a thick shower of arrows greeted them from the Indians.

"Keep as low as possible urged Frank dropping to his knees and pulling Edgar down beside him." I am trying to locate Sharp Eye, he must be here somewhere. "Oh look down there" he added in dismay. "They are bringing up a tree, now they will get in without a doubt, oh Mother and Dad" and the young boy's voice broke. For few moments there was silence, then a loud crash which shook the building in such a way that the two boys, now joined by Walter, hung desperately to the thatch so as to save themselves from falling over. Then came the report of many guns fired together, followed by the sound of splintering wood and the exultant cries of victorious Indians forcing their way into the farm house. Overcome by fear and horror, the three boys could do nothing but gaze helplessly into the blackness praying that they might hear further sounds of firing which would tell them of a successful defense against such overwhelming odds. But the deadly silence was undisturbed except by Indian shouts and the crash of breaking wood. A moment or two later flicking flames began to shoot upwards into the night sky and with a sob in his throat, Frankie whispered—It is over, they have set fire to the house. I am afraid they are all killed down below. What are we to do now?

"I don't know, replied Edgar the tears streaming down his face. Perhaps we had better die as well. I don't want to live if Dad has gone." He reached for Frankie's hand and held it tightly.

"I can't hear anything now" Walter said, but we cannot stay here, or we shall be burnt to death. Let's get down the far side, and into the woods, where we can hide till morning. Its the only thing to do.

much prettier than his wife, and much wiser. His wife always wore the same dress of dull yellow-brown with a few dark marks on her head and wings. That dull color was good enough for fall thought Mr. Bobo when almost everything else was the same color except the maple leaves. But for a spring and summer coat Bobo much preferred his sleek black coat. It was dressy and a change from the dull one he had to wear in Autumn.

Who Bobo's tailor is I do not know; some one whom Mother Nature can trust to do the work well you may be sure. I do know though that Bobo changes his suit twice in the year, but his poor little wife has to wear the same gown all the year around. Perhaps it is because she always makes her nest on the ground in a hayfield. Perhaps she love that color best as she is so much the same color as the ground that she can hide quite easily from rude boys and girls who would if they could steal her eggs.

That is her great worry, so she makes her nest of twigs, leaves and grasses and hides it in the hay. While Bobo her husband sits swaying on some of the tall grasses propping himself with his tail and telling the world all about his new suit, in a great burst of song.

Bobo's song is a lively one. No little cheep, cheep, creep for him" Bobo, Bobo, link-a-link, pinks, bungalowoorie, misty morning, link a-link-lee, what is sounds like. He keeps right on singing that refrain as fast as he can.

This Bobolink of whom I am telling you, thought he was so much smarter than his wife because he could sing and she could not. But then she could lay eggs and he could not, so that he was not so smart after all.

Mr. Bobo often got tired sitting on the tall grass singing to his wife. When he did he would suddenly shoot up into the air away away up so high that his little wife hidden down in the long grass could not hear his song at all.

The Craig children just loved to see Mr. Bobo dash out of the grass and fly away up into the air. Billy and Ned would drop down, and lie on their backs to watch him.

Mr. Bobo would sing his song over a few times then stop and drop down as suddenly as he had flown up.

"He's a queer chap, that Bobolink," Ned said one day "he acts just as though some one up in the air had called him and he had to go. Just as if he was taking part in a concert and came on the stage when it was time for him to do so."

"Perhaps the fairies are giving concerts" said Billy "and Bobo is helping them."

"Oh you goose, Billy, the fairies do not give concerts in the day time. "Fairies only come out when it is cool" laughed Ned.

"I am sure they come out in the day time as I heard Miss Nash ask Lila Kerr if the fairies had helped her do her arithmetic, the other day in school, and that was daytime."

"Miss Nash was just joking with Lila. She thinks that Lila is so smart at arithmetic, and she is too, I only wish that I could do arithmetic as well as she can," said Nora with a little sigh. But there is Bobo coming down again. I wonder where his nest is? It must be quite close as he seems to fly right out of that huge bunch of red clover, every time.

Maud had been watching a bevy of birds who were sitting close by, on a thorn bush. Listen to those birds," she said quite suddenly. "One would think that they were having an argument about something, they are all chirping together. Some sound quite cross too."

The birds were having an argument, much to Mr. Bobo's amusement.

It was about the color of the clover. The Towhee kept on calling it pink." Its pink, its pink, its pink he kept calling Sa-a-y, sa-a-y giggled the cat bird when then in a mocking tone he repeated after the Towhee, its pink, its pink, cher-wink, cher-wink. The cat bird can mock almost any other bird then he flees away and chuckles out Sa-a-y.

Mr. Bobo listened to them for some time, knowing that the clover was red he suddenly darted up into the air with a away away up so high that his little wife hidden down in the long grass could not hear his song at all.

The Craig children just loved to see Mr. Bobo dash out of the grass and fly away up into the air. Billy and Ned would drop down, and lie on their backs to watch him.

Mr. Bobo would sing his song over a few times then stop and drop down as suddenly as he had flown up.

"He's a queer chap, that Bobolink," Ned said one day "he acts just as though some one up in the air had called him and he had to go. Just as if he was taking part in a concert and came on the stage when it was time for him to do so."

"Perhaps the fairies are giving concerts" said Billy "and Bobo is helping them."

"Oh you goose, Billy, the fairies do not give concerts in the day time. "Fairies only come out when it is cool" laughed Ned.

"I am sure they come out in the day time as I heard Miss Nash ask Lila Kerr if the fairies had helped her do her arithmetic, the other day in school, and that was daytime."

"Miss Nash was just joking with Lila. She thinks that Lila is so smart at arithmetic, and she is too, I only wish that I could do arithmetic as well as she can," said Nora with a little sigh. But there is Bobo coming down again. I wonder where his nest is? It must be quite close as he seems to fly right out of that huge bunch of red clover, every time.

Maud had been watching a bevy of birds who were sitting close by, on a thorn bush. Listen to those birds," she said quite suddenly. "One would think that they were having an argument about something, they are all chirping together. Some sound quite cross too."

The birds were having an argument, much to Mr. Bobo's amusement.

It was about the color of the clover. The Towhee kept on calling it pink." Its pink, its pink, its pink he kept calling Sa-a-y, sa-a-y giggled the cat bird when then in a mocking tone he repeated after the Towhee, its pink, its pink, cher-wink, cher-wink. The cat bird can mock almost any other bird then he flees away and chuckles out Sa-a-y.

Mr. Bobo listened to them for some time, knowing that the clover was red he suddenly darted up into the air with a

PATIENCE

"Patience and perseverance will accomplish all things," said a passenger in a railway compartment.

"Nonsense," sir!" said a fellow passenger. "Will patience and perseverance enable you to carry water in a sieve?"

"Certainly!"

"I would like to know how?"

"Simply by waiting patiently for the water to freeze."

50 Years Ago.

September 14, 1883.

Heavy Frost. After the rain of Saturday and Sunday we were visited with heavy frosts on Sunday and Monday completely destroying the garden flowers.

The County Council met in the Court House on Wednesday Sept. 12th. and sanctioned the prayer of the Agricultural Society, fixing the permanent buildings of the Society at Lachute, the directors subsequently deciding on the Barron property as the site for same buildings. Mr. Field's and Mr. Mackay of St. Andrews, opposed the Council's sanctioning and Mr. Bampton and Mr. Barron spoke in favor.

The Lachute Brass Band made application for use of Court House to practice in, which was granted on payment of $1.00 monthly for two nights a week.

The banks on a lady's brow are better than a barometer. In hot weather they straighten down, in dry weather they frizzle up.

A man only arrives at a competency by the work that he does himself; if he acquires riches it is by the work that he makes others do.

25 Years Ago.

September 11, 1908.

Mr. Jno. Evans died suddenly at his residence, Lachute Road on Friday last. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. B. B. Brown on Monday afternoon.

Labor Day was fine and cool at Calumet and a large gathering attended the sports day at the Perley Driving Park. The Calumet Baseball Club were unable to down the visiting team who put it all over them, nearly shutting them out altogether as the score was 16 to 2 in favor of L'Original. The 100 yard dash was won by Frank Temple and J. McGuire; mile race, G. Hampton and A. Lariviere, time 5.07; 220 yards, F. Temple and W. Jolicoeur.

Messrs Thomas McGregor, Malcolm and the Misses Nellie and Maggie were in Montreal on Wednesday attending the marriage of Mr. Chas. McGregor to Miss Laura Brown.

The Ottawa River is at present, according to measurements taken at Greece's Point, two inches lower than at any time of which record is now obtainable.

SO BACK TO SCHOOL

By Minus One (Contributed)

Many thousands of children all over the Dominion have said "adieu" to their vacation of 1933, and have returned with eager excitement to the mysterious studies for the coming term.

To these juvenile Canadian students, I say "Good luck and try hard, for school days, are days of happy thought for all who have left them behind."

So back to school these happy youngsters go. . . I can hear small voices crying out "Who says we're happy? we're not!" And so I reiterate, the school days are ever happy memories, and how much we would sacrifice, if we could only return to them.

I can just picture myself joining the merry throng, hair nicely arranged for the time being, hands and face conspicuous by their cleanliness, black shoes shining in the golden gleams of Old Sol, and necessary books tucked away under the sleeve of a new smart suit, as I rush to school to the clanging of the bell. Those were the days, although I was also reluctant to them at the time.

I distinctly remember an old school-master of mine, now retired with a comfortable pension, and how I wished many a time, he had reached that three score years, before I knew him, for he used to put the fear of the one above into us all. I could not begin to describe our anxiety and trembling as he faced us in a rage yelling "Lost, stolen or strayed," when some gloomy eyed, uninterested pupil allowed his mind to wander miles away, as to some future foot-ball match. But now I see a humorous side to those episodes, and often relive many happy school days in my thoughts.

BROWNSBURG

(Too late for last issue)

Mr. and Mrs. Moore, of Hudson Falls, N. Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Werritt.

Miss B. Reid and Miss Henry spent last week, visiting with Mr. Rupert Reid and Jas. Reid.

Miss P. Bloxham, of Montreal, is on a two weeks' holiday, the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bloxham.

Mrs. E. White and daughter Winnie have returned from a two weeks' holiday spent in Halifax.

Miss Rosemary Poitras has returned to Ottawa to finish her school year, after spending the summer holidays with her parents and sister Anna.

Mr. C. Gardiner, of Montreal, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. Gardiner.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyman McGibbon and son Kenneth are away on a motor trip to Concord, N. H.

Mrs. Jas. Reid and little son were in Montreal over the week-end.

Miss Katie Giles was a guest of her sister, Mrs. C. Hardie for a few days before returning to Montreal, after a summer holiday spent at Lake Louisa.

NEWS BRIEFS

Captain James A. Mollison, famous flyer, has left for Canada aboard the Empress of Britain with a view to setting a new long-distance flight record, starting from the St. Hubert airport, Montreal.

One of the world's "top" women, Dr. Wu Yi Fong, president, of Finling College, Nanking, addressed the Women's Canadian Club recently at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, O. "The changed woman in changing China," Dr. Wu is vice-president of the National Christian Council of China and was a delegate recently to the fifth biennial conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations held last month at the Bar Springs Hotel.

Fred Jarrett, honorary president of the Canadian Philatelic Society, opened that organization's fall session by an address at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, in which he spoke of stamp forgeries based on some 30 album pages of fakes, reprints, remainders, bogus creations and repaired genuine stamps, representing tens and hundreds of dollars each, if genuine.

Among the delegates to the British Commonwealth Relations Conference held recently at Hart House, Toronto, arriving on the Duchess of Atholl, were Lord Cecil, Sir Laurie Hammond, Governor of Assam, India; Professor Arnold J. Toynbee, international affairs expert, and Rt. Hon. S. F. Malan, former acting prime minister of South Africa.

Growing use of chemical fertilizers in Canada is shown in the fact that there were 60 plants engaged in making mixed fertilizers and fertilizer materials in Canada in 1932, the output of which totalled 256,633 tons.

Early fall fishing in New Brunswick has been much benefited by a greatly needed rain that swept the whole province after this section had experienced a most severe drought with water in nearly all trout and salmon streams at the lowest level in years.

BEAUTY SPOT

Jones was spending his summer holiday at a small seaside fishing village. Returning to his boarding house on the first day after a tour of the beauty spots, he got into conversation with a young fellow boarder.

"Well," he said, "I have had my first look round and have at once been struck by the beauty of the place."

The young fellow looked a trifle dazed.

"Gosh, old chap," he said, "you're a quick worker. It took me three days to find her, and she handed me a terrific wallop, too."

Mrs. J. Green, Mr. and Mrs. B. Waldie and family, Mr. R. Waldie, of Hartford, Conn., were week-end guests of Mrs. MacQuaig and Mrs. Townsend.

Mr. David Tomalty returned home on Monday from the R. V. Hospital.

Russell Todd has left for Montreal to attend West Hill High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lunan and family visited their sister, Mrs. Gordon Todd last Sunday.

Sources of Dyes Long Known Only to Indians

The Indians of Central America may be stolid and uncanonically quiet, but they will never be accused of being colorless. Almost everything they wear and practically everything they make is as colorful as a tropical garden.

All Central American Indians love color. Their handwoven rugs and blankets, their hand-wrought pottery and baskets fairly flash with brilliant reds, and purples, and yellows. Moreover, these are colors that the sun will not fade, nor the rains make dim, for the dyes—to all intents and purposes—are everlasting. These dyes have long been the pride of the Indian's heart. For centuries the sources from which they were obtained and the formulae used in their preparation were carefully guarded secrets.

The source of one particularly gorgeous purple dye was sought by outsiders for years, and finally discovered to be a fish living in Central American lagoons.

Insects, also, produced beautiful dyes. Up until the time that cheap chemical dyes were put on the market the growing of cochineal insects was an important industry and a tremendous business was done in cochineal dyes.

Cochineal insects feed by the thousands on the leaves of the nopal, a form of cactus.

Andorra Self Governed but Not Real Republic

Andorra is not exactly a republic because it is compelled to pay annual dues to the government of France and the Spanish bishop of Urgel. The little country is an autonomous, semi-independent state. It consists of six parishes in the diocese of the Spanish bishop of Urgel. It is in the valleys of the eastern Pyrenees between France and Spain. Within its 191 square miles of territory, 5,000 people live, one-fifth of them in the capital city, Andorra. The altitude of the country varies from about 6,000 feet to about 10,000 feet. The chief occupation is the cultivation of tobacco.

The story is told that Charlemagne rewarded the country for its help during his campaigns against the Moors by declaring it independent. In those days, similar independence was enjoyed by a number of groups in the Pyrenees.

Andorra is self-governed. France and the Spanish bishop appoint two civil judges to work together. Catalan is the language spoken. French and Spanish currency are both in use. French influence dominates the state.

Man's Small Wants

"Man wants but little here below." In a very real sense this declaration of the poet is true. Every literary worker and every scholar tries to have a library close at hand. He gathers many books, which seem to him to be virtually indispensable to the prosecution of his professional work. And yet the mainstay of such students consists of a few books. When they come to sift our wants, we find that they center on very few things. Our discontent and dissatisfaction come largely from our imagination. We imagine that we have many obstacles and difficulties which have no existence in reality. Could we realize how little we absolutely need, and do, in fact, voluntarily get along with, we should save ourselves a vast amount of harmful worry.—Exchange.

Wrong Ideas

A lot of our common ideas are wrong. It is quite true that iron is really white, and only turns black on exposure to the air.

In the same way, gold doesn't glitter till it's polished; diamonds have no sparkle until they have been cut; and opals when first found in their natural clay setting are so soft that they can be picked with the fingernail.

But one of the commonest fallacies of this sort is to describe the pig as a dirty animal. In their natural mode of life pigs are very clean, finding food by rummaging in woodland. But their feet are so formed for digging that when they are kept in a confined space they cut up the earth and churn it into mud.—Exchange.

Beautiful Cathedral City

There are few places in the whole of the British Isles more fascinating than Wells, the city of many streams, not far from the other cathedral towns of Bath and Salisbury. Like Bruges in Belgium, a moat still surrounds the bishop's palace, and nearly everything which meets the eye savors of an order of things which vanished in England. Visitors are always specially interested in the swans which swim in the moat, for they have learned to ring the porter's bell when they want to be fed. The best view of the famous cathedral here can be obtained from Tor hill, from which point the visitors will learn why Wells has been called "a precious jewel set in an emerald landscape."

Each Has a Name

"I have been told there are quite a lot of different names for groups of animals, like flock of birds, herd of cows, etc." writes a correspondent. "Can you give me a list of these?"

Well, here are some to go on with: Swarm of bees, nest of rabbits, litter of whelps, down of hares, troop of monkeys, gaggle of geese, school of porpoises, wisp of snipe, yre of pheasants, team of oxen, covey of partridges, bevy of quails, pace of asses.—But enough! I fear other readers will be getting tired!—London Answers.

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, Sept. 13. What with political summer schools in free blast at Port Hope and Newmarket, Premier Bennett holding important cabinet meetings at Ottawa, Mitchell F. Hepburn very busy campaigning in Western Ontario, Angus Macdonald getting his new Cabinet installed at Halifax, the C.C.F. active in the far West, unemployed conferences at the Capital, the Western grain men consulting with Premier Bennett about the handling of the new crop, a flock of new judges appointed and distinguished Americans like Dr. Raymond, Moloy, the former head of the Roosevelt "brain trust" touring the country, last week was far from dull or uneventful.

The summer schools produced a number of surprising statements. Premier Bennett told the Conservatives at Newmarket that Canada needed to swell its population by 50 per cent, which led critics to ask what she was going to do with all those who cannot find work now. He also deplored the personal attacks levied on the Radio Commission, and warned his hearers that continued criticism of that kind would soon wreck it.

At Toronto Premier Bennett made the encouraging prediction: "Conditions are gradually improving—Canada is progressing to better times than we ever knew!" This happened to coincide with the view of F. W. Field, senior British Trade Commissioner in Canada, who published a report declaring that improving world conditions would, if joined with drastic efforts on the part of Canada, soon ensure the return of more normal conditions.

At Port Hope, Hon. T. A. Crerar, former minister of railways, suggested that in order to take Canada's National Railway System out of politics, a panel of from 60 to 90 "trustee-shareholders" should be appointed, who would meet twice a year and go thoroughly into the operation of the road.

R. M. MacIver, of Columbia University, argued that between the two extremes of Fascism and Communism, Liberalism offered a happy middle path. Every reform which Socialism contemplated, could, he claimed, be secured through Liberal action. Revolutionary socialism meant tearing down the house in which one lived, and battling with the elements while creating a new one. Liberalism, he argued, meant improving the house bit by bit while continuing to reside in it.

An interesting feature of both political conferences was the broad-minded attitude taken toward other parties. C. C. F. speakers and visitors were prominent at Port Hope, and much radical thought was evident among the young Conservatives at Newmarket.

"These summer schools" were so successful that they are almost certain to be repeated next year.

The N. R. A. in the United States was the centre of much discussion at these schools. The American experiment came in for some determined attack, but visitors from below the line were warm in its praise. The general view here is that the National Recovery Act has reached a critical stage. Dr. T. E. Gregory, a noted econo-ist, predicted that in order to keep business moving inside the United States further depreciation of the dollar or higher tariffs, or both, would be tried.

THE COAL INDUSTRY GOES MODERN

"Packaged Coal"
Makes its Appearance

"Packaged Coal" recently made its appearance in the Montreal coal market for the first time in the history of the industry.

The coal is put in one hundred pound bags at the mines. The size, weight and shipper's name are plainly imprinted on each bag, which is sealed. In other words, this coal is sold exactly the same as any other trade marked packaged commodity.

In an interview with Mr. C. E. Mackenzie, Vice-President of the D. L. & W. Coal Co. of Canada, who have introduced novel idea of bagging coal at the mines, he stated that while coal has been sold locally for some time in bags, this work was always done by the dealers, etc., merely for the convenience of the consumer.

The idea of the Company doing it at the mines, gives the consumer a positive guarantee. He further stated that his Company introduced "blue coal," the first trade marked coal in the history of the coal industry. With coal now definitely trade marked and packaged, it becomes possible to advertise to the consumer just the same as any other standard product.

THE SAFETY FIRST CAMPAIGN

One hundred and fifteen of the Bell Telephone Company's total of 140 drivers, who operate the largest industrial fleet of automotive vehicles in Montreal have been awarded Safe Driving Medals for completing a full year without an accident of any kind.

While the fleet was traveling approximately 1,000,000 miles between Sept. 1st., 1931, and August 31st., 1932, the frequency of accidents averaged only one in 38,000 miles. This record is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that even the slightest accident, resulting in personal injuries or damage to vehicles or other property where fault is attributed to the driver, debar him from gaining this medal awarded by the Safety League of the Quebec Association for the Prevention of Industrial Accidents.

The Bell Telephone Company, always alert to the advantages of concerted effort toward greater safety-consciousness among its employees, was one of the original twenty-two of Montreal's industrial concerns that entered the League's Inter-Fleet Competition in 1931. Today, the contest includes upwards of 5,000 representatives of eighty-eight Montreal firms. This fact was stressed by President C. F. Sise of the Bell Telephone Company during his remarks at the time of the recent presentations. This emphasized, he said, the gratifying interest that is increasing toward an appreciation for vigilance and safe-mindedness on the part of automobile drivers.

Speakers who lauded the results obtained by Telephone Company employees during this annual contest, included: J. J. Cosgrove, Chairman of the League's Inter-Fleet Competition; Arthur Gaboury, Secretary-General of the Safety League, and Inspector A. Belanger of the Traffic Police Department.

WARNING

The Lake Louisa Fish and Game Club is now fully organized with a large number of enthusiastic members.

Guardians, appointed by the Government and in the employ of the Club will again be on the job and a warning is issued hereby that any persons found using night lines, netting or otherwise illegally fishing will be severely dealt with.

Besides having our local organization there is the Provincial Organ for the Protection of Fish and Game which is right behind the Club in its endeavor to stop this unsportsmanlike method of fishing.

STERN WARNING TO ALL HUNTERS

To hunters applying for licenses or permits to circulate in forestry areas, the officials are issuing stern warnings. The fish and game laws must be upheld and the Department are determined to see that they are.

The attention of all hunters has been called to a new amendment to the laws. It is to the effect that hunters transporting moose or deer by "railways, steamboats or other public conveyances," or carrying moose or deer by "motor vehicle or aeroplane," must have a governmental permit. The permit costs $1. per animal, and is exacted of hunters in order to permit the Government to control the transportation of large game from forestry areas to cities and towns, and prevent its illegal sale.

Regarding big game, the department stresses that it is against the law to kill more than one moose and two deer during a season, to use jack-lights, ropes, snare, pit, spring or net trap of any kind to hunt or kill animals; to make use of dogs for hunting moose or deer or to kill cow, moose or moose or deer calves. And the moose hunting season opened on September 10 for the north shore of the St. Lawrence, and on September 20 for the south shore district.

The department has compiled within a small booklet a most complete summary of the Province of Quebec, copies of fish and game laws of which are available for hunters and fishermen at Mr. Barbeau's offices in the Quebec Fish and Game Branch offices, Notre Dame street east, near the Court House.

HAWKESBURY CONCERN- ED OVER LOW WATER LEVEL

It is passing strange that in chronicling the news of fifty years ago it should contain reference to low water in the Ottawa. While reading our exchange the Hawkesbury Echo, the following extract will be found of general interest.

The water level in the Ottawa river here which has dropped as much as 12 inches in one night, is causing much concern to members of the town council and officials of the water works department. The level this week was only six inches above the bottom of the intake to the town pump-house and officials said that if it dropped another three inches the town would be forced to keep a regular supply of water. This would cost $1,200 and would take from 10 to 12 days so that if left to the last minute would mean that the town would be without water for that time.

This morning the water level was one quarter inch higher than yesterday and officials are delaying the start on the crib-dam in hope that it will not be necessary.

Although the Ottawa river level here is usually low at this time of year, this is the first time in the memory of the oldest resident of the town that the intake pipe could be seen. The low water is attributed to the lack of rain during the summer months and the abnormal amount of sunshine.

IN MEMORIAM
THORBURN.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. John Thorburn, who died on Sept. 12th., 1928.

Five long years have passed since that sad day,
When Mother dear was called away;

It was a pain and shock severe
To part with one we loved so dear.

Passed beyond the troubled waves of time,
No sorrow there, in yonder clime;

No dreary nights, no weeping eyes,
No aching hearts nor broken ties,

But gone to be with Him whose wondrous love Prepares for us a home above.

Ever remembered by her loving children, Hazel, Audrey, Ross and Victor.

McINTOSH.—In loving memory of a beloved husband and father, George McIntosh, who died Sept. 13th., 1923, late of 60th. Battalion.

Memories. The golden links death cannot break.

Town Locals.

Miss Gann, of New Haven, Conn., is visiting Mrs. J. P. MacKimmie.

Misses Bessie and Kathleen Murdoch are visiting friends in Montreal this week.

Mrs. Elliott, of Prescott, Ont., is visiting her many friends in Lachute and vicinity.

Miss Dorothy Edwards, of Verdun, was the guest of Miss Kathleen Murdoch last week.

Miss Jessie MacCallum, of New York, is the guest of Mrs. A. Beers for a few days this week.

Miss Grace Rogers, of Montreal, is spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rogers.

Mrs. McGillis, of Morrisburg, Ont., is spending this week with her mother, Mrs. Mackie.

Mr. R. Simmonds, of St. Thomas, Ont., is spending a few days in town, renewing old acquaintances.

Dr. Drew-Brook and Miss Riddell returned to Toronto, after spending a few days this week in town, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Banford.

Miss Jessie Goodfellow who has been spending the summer as the guest of Mrs. A. Smith, has gone to take over the school again at Rupert, Que.

Miss Grace McMahon, of Harrington, Que., was the week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. McMahon.

Miss Ruby Goodfellow, R.N., of Montreal, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. Smith, at Thomas Gore.

Mrs. W. Eady, of Renfrew, Ont., paid a brief visit over Sunday to her brother, Mr. R. McArthur, and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McArthur.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Doig leave by motor today for Vancouver, B. C., going by way of Sault Ste. Marie. They intend calling upon Alex. Black at Foam Lake, and Paul Doig at Hoosier, Sask. They are accompanied by Ralph Hume of Hill Head, and their many friends wish them a happy and safe trip.

Mr. Raymond is making arrangements for the erection of a new rink. He had plans laid to make extensive improvements for enlargement of the present structure, but the plans submitted were not sanctioned and he has now decided to put up a modern building that will prove an asset to the town and we trust will prove a profitable undertaking for himself.

There are still quite a few friends left in Argenteuil who remember the kindly ministry of the Rev. N. Waddell, who served so faithfully in Morin as student and later a pastor of Henry's Church. He is now retired and enjoys his remaining years visiting periodically the members of his family. This week he was in town as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walker McArthur and was delighted to see the splendid progress and development of our town which hold for him such pleasant memories of earlier days.

The "Rex" has had many very fine pictures that have proved a source of real enjoyment to the patrons of this cozy little theatre of which Lachute may feel a just tinge of pride, but you must not miss seeing "Man Must Fight" which is to be shown on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 15 and 16. Diana Wynyard, Lewis Stone, Phyllis Holmes, and R. Young are the principals. A truly wonderful production and a wholesome picture of realism that will thrill you through and through.

Only awaiting the finishing touches, our new bandstand in the Memorial Park, (which, through the patriotic spirit of a number of our citizens, has been erected without cost to the town) has reared its head and is quite effective in its fine settling of poplars. It is strongly built and bespeaks a civic pride that must be duly appreciated, and we trust the younger elements will recognize that the construction of this Band Stand has meant sacrifice in the building and ever remember that it must not be subjected to the whittling of names so often indulged in by thoughtless folk.

Miss Evelyn Hamilton R.N., and Miss Shirley Hamilton, of Montreal, were the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hamilton, over the week-end.

The many friends of Mrs. F. Staples, formerly Miss Sadie Heatlie, of Ogdensburg, will be sorry to learn that she has been bereft of her husband, who passed away at their home in Billings, Mo., on Sept. 1st. Death resulted from a fall received the night before.

Dr. E. Christie and Mr. Thos. Barron were in Montreal on Wednesday, attending the burial service of Dr. Christie, whose death took place in Chicago this week. His remains were brought to Montreal for interment and the committal service was conducted by Dr. Donald, of St. Andrews and St. Paul Church.

PIONEER W. I. MEETING

The Pioneer Women's Institute held their regular monthly meeting in St. Andrews E. Presbyterian Church Hall, on Friday last, it being in the form of an educational meeting under the convenorship of Mrs. L. M. Hooker.

The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. G. Smith, who extended a very hearty welcome to the parents and teachers who were the invited guests on this occasion.

Very interesting addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Booy, on "Education in the Home" and by the Rev. Mr. Macaskill on "Education in the Community." Miss Mary Lamb, a returned missionary from China also gave a very interesting talk on "Education in China."

A solo entitled, "Queen of the Earth" was rendered by the Rev. Mr. Booy and greatly enjoyed by all.

Refreshments were served by the members of the Women's Institute to some forty guests and a most enjoyable and instructive meeting was brought to a close by the singing of God Save the King.

Obituaries

THE LATE

MRS. HENRY DRYSDALE

The death of Mrs. Henry Drysdale which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. H. Stanforth, on Tuesday afternoon has removed another old and much respected citizen.

Deceased lady, who was in her 87th year, had been in failing health for some years and was formerly Miss Hannah Smith.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sons, John, of Westfield, Mass.; Gilbert, of Plainville, Conn.; Thos. of Dorval, Que.; and two daughters, Mrs. Robt. Gardiner, of Burlingame, Calif. and James, of Winnipeg, Man., and Mrs. George H. Stanforth, of Lachute; also one sister, Mrs. Robt. Boa, of Lachute, and one brother Ingran Smith, of Centralia, Wash.

A largely attended funeral took place this afternoon from the home of her daughter, conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough. Interment was made in Lachute Cemetery.

THE LATE

MRS. WM. KENNEDY

There passed away at the home of Mrs. John Dixon, of Dalesville, Que., on Tuesday, Sept. 12th., one of the oldest and best known residents of this place in the person of Elizabeth Grey, widow of the late Wm. Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy was born in Grenville and had spent her lifetime in that vicinity.

She was a loyal member of the Baptist Church for many years and had taken great interest in administering to all who might be in sorrow or distress. She had reached the advanced age of 83 years and although in feeble health was able to pay a visit to her daughter, Mrs. John Dixon, where after a few weeks illness she passed away. Previously she had been residing at Calumet with her daughter, Mrs. John Prophet.

She leaves to mourn her loss a family of five daughters, and one son, Mrs. Tom. Tomalty, Edwards, Ont.; Mrs. John Dixon, Dalesville, Que.; Mrs. Robt. Kennedy, High River, Alta.; Mrs. Thos. Bennett, Calumet, Que.; Mrs. John Prophet, Calumet, Que. and Jos. Kennedy, Brockville, Ont. One daughter, Mrs. David Gauley, died some 33 years ago. She also leaves one brother, Harry Grey of Arundel, Que. and one sister, Mrs. Chas. Neill of Boissaville, Man.

The funeral was held this afternoon from her daughter's residence in Dalesville. Afterwards the remains were taken to Calumet Cemetery for interment.

MRS. TOWNSEND

Mrs. Fred W. Townsend passed away on September 6th., 1933, at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, after a short illness following an operation for acute appendicitis. She had not been in her usual health for a short time previous to her death but was able to attend to her home duties up to August 26th., when she became seriously ill and was removed to the hospital, where she underwent an operation, but gradually grew worse until death came.

The funeral took place at her late residence, Ogdensburg, Que., the service being conducted by the Rev. Geo. Baxter, of the Chatham West Church, assisted by her cousin, Rev. E. Hinds, of St. Henry's Church, Montreal.

The pall bearers were her three sons Milton, Ross, and Henderson, her two-son-in-laws Calvert MacKenzie and Raymond Warwick, and her nephew Howard Tomalty.

She leaves to mourn her loss a loving husband, four daughters Muriel, Mrs. Calvert MacKenzie; Elsie, Mrs. Raymond Warwick; Iris and Jean at home; three sons Milton, Ross and Henderson; her mother, Mrs. Wm. Blair, of Kerrobert, Sask.; two sisters Lillian Blair, R. N., of Chicago, Ill.; and Mrs. David Tomalty, of Brownsburg, Que.; and four brothers, William, Norval, Everard and Alfred Blair, of Sask.

The esteem in which the late Mrs. Townsend was held was shown by the beautiful floral offerings also the large number of sorrowing relatives and friends who were present to follow her to her last resting place in the Ogdensburg Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Fred Townsend and family wish to thank their kind friends for their sympathy and help in their recent sad bereavement.

To publicly express my deep appreciation for the kindness and honesty of Mr. Donald McRae, of 54 Robert St., Lachute, Que., for returning to me a handbag which I had lost on the roadway in Brownsburg, containing money and valuables.

(Miss) Mary H. Catton.

MRS. RICHARD J. SMITH PASSES AWAY IN COMPTON, CALIF.

News have just been received of the death of Margaret Smith widow of the late Richard Smith, of Compton, Calif., and former residents of Cushing, Que., which occurred at her home on August 22nd., after a short illness of two days, at the age of 72 years and 8 months.

Margaret Smith was a daughter of the late Ellison Smith, of Cushing, and Betty Dale, of Dalesville, Que. Her home is now the property of Christopher Hartley, of Cushing.

She leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Mrs. J. Veitch, and one son, James, both of Compton, Calif., and one sister, Mrs. Jessie Gill, also of California.

The Lachute Board of Trade meets tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall.

Week-end guests of Mrs. Jas. Murdoch were the Messrs. John Robertson, Robt. Case, J. R. Osenir and Miss Muriel Pierson, of Montreal.

Lesson for September 24

REVIEW: SOME EARLY LEADERS OF ISRAEL

GOLDEN TEXT—Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Ephesians 6:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Friends From God's Book.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Some Heroes of God's Book.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lessons From Great Leaders.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Makes a Great Leader?

For senior and adult classes, two methods are suggested.

First—The grouping of the men and women as leaders.

The material of this lesson is adapted from the Lutheran lesson commentary.

I. The Military Leaders (Lessons 1, 2 and 5).

1. Joshua (Lesson 1). He was skillful in military tactics as well as organization. He possessed natural gifts, but his success was due mainly to his obedience to God.

2. Caleb (Lesson 2). As one of the twelve spies, he insisted that by God's help they could possess Canaan.

3. Gideon (Lesson 5). He obeyed God's strange command to reduce his army to 300 men. With them he routed the host of Midian, and made Israel free for about forty years.

II. Women (Lessons 3, 6, and 7)

1. Deborah (Lesson 3). She was called in an emergency and led the people forward to victory.

2. Ruth (Lesson 6). She adopted a new people, a new God, and a new country, with no thought of personal gain. She became the ancestress of David and thus of Christ.

3. Hannah (Lesson 7). In Hannah shines forth ideal motherhood.

III. Prophets (Lessons 4 and 8).

1. Isaiah (Lesson 4). He has the place of first rank among the prophets. He denounced the sins of Israel. Drunkenness was one of the sins which destroyed Israel.

2. Samuel (Lesson 8). He was director-general of Israel while serving as a prophet of God.

IV. Royalty (Lessons 9, 10, 11 and 12).

1. Saul (Lesson 9). He had the anointing of God and the approval of the people. His days were filled with blunders, largely because he trusted and exalted himself rather than God.

2. David (Lesson 10). David came into prominence unexpectedly. He had the inner qualities that God could use for a true king. He brought the scattered tribes under one government, bound together with the bond of one religion.

3. Jonathan (Lesson 11). He is noted for his friendship for David. He was loyal heir to the throne, but renounced his right in favor of David.

4. Solomon (Lesson 12). He came to the throne welcomed by a united nation. The idea of building the temple as well as much material for its erection came to him from his father. He built the temple and dedicated it to God, setting forth that its supreme purpose was God's glory.

Second—The Summary Method.

The aim here is to state the leading fact and principal teaching of the several lessons. The following suggestions are made:

Lesson for July 2. Joshua's faith in the promises of God and obedience to the divine command enabled him to carry forward to success the work begun by Moses.

Lesson for July 6. Because Caleb wholly followed the Lord, his strength was preserved.

Lesson for July 16. It was out of the ordinary for God to call a woman to a place of national leadership. Deborah had the good judgment to urge Barak forward.

Lesson for July 23.—Drunkenness and other sins caused Israel's ruin.

Lesson for July 30. Gideon, with a small band of men, routed and destroyed the Midianites because he trusted and obeyed God.

Lesson for August 6. Because Ruth chose to identify herself with the people of God she was abundantly blessed.

Lesson for August 13. Hannah stands out as the ideal godly mother.

Lesson for August 20. Samuel heard the call of God while serving in the capacity in which his mother dedicated him.

Lesson for August 27. Saul shamefully failed because he disobeyed God.

Lesson for September 3. Because David was a man after God's own heart, God used him and blessed him in spite of his sins.

Lesson for September 10. Jonathan is an example of a true friend.

Lesson for September 17. Solomon chose wisdom rather than honor and riches. Because of this God was able to give riches and honor.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

The Lord of Glory hungers for your faith and your love.

Let us, who long to set our hands to great things, begin by little.

A NORMAL BABY

It has been my privilege to watch a very perfect baby develop. The mother has given this baby every care. Most mothers try to do this but they do not start soon enough. They wait until the baby is born and then it is too late. This mother used her intelligence. It was a first baby and realizing that she knew nothing about babies she made it her business to find out all that she should do. And she did what she was told intelligently. Proper food, fresh air, exercise and plenty of sleep are necessary and she got them all. Finding out that she must have plenty of calcium (lime) and other mineral salts to give her baby good bones and not to rob her own, as Nature will do for a baby, she ate the food that would supply them. Each day she took a quart of milk, had at least two cooked vegetables besides potatoes, ate plenty of raw fruits and vegetables, used whole wheat bread and cereals and went easy on pastry and rich foods generally. Not such a difficult diet, is it? She wasn't one of those women who say 'I get all the exercise I need doing my housework'. She made a point of going out for a walk each day. As a matter of fact she usually took two walks being careful not to go far enough to get too tired. She took a good rest each afternoon and nine hours sleep most nights. Her own health was good all the time and the baby is a darling. It is perfectly well and is as little trouble as any baby could possibly be.

All this perfection is not the result of intelligent care. If mothers only realized the necessity of proper food I am sure they would get it as most mothers will do all that is possible for the good of their children. The unfortunate part is that they do not know and both mothers and children suffer for this lack of knowledge.

OVEN CANNED PEACHES AND PEARS

There are a good many ways of doing up fruit but to my way of thinking oven-canning is the simplest of them all. You need a thermometer on your oven but there is no special equipment required. Look over your bottles carefully to see that there are no chipped tops. Sterilize the bottles in boiling water and dip the rubbers in boiling water. It is wise to use new rubbers each year as it is much cheaper to buy new rubbers than to spoil a bottle of fruit. Prepare the fruit. Peel, halve and core pears and pack them into jars. Dip the peaches into boiling water and then into cold to loosen the skins. Skin and cut into halves or slice as desired and fill the bottles. Cover the fruit with boiling syrup. This syrup may be made to suit the tastes of your family. Most people use 1 cup of sugar to 2 cups of water for peaches and pears but there are some who prefer a richer syrup and use equal parts of water and sugar. Pour the boiling syrup over the fruit, put on the top but do not screw tight. Put in a pan in a couple of inches of water and set in a slow oven of 250 degrees for 40 minutes for pint jars and an hour for quarts. Remove from the oven, fill the jar with boiling syrup.

DELICIOUS PICKLES

2 quarts green tomatoes
1 quart red tomatoes
1 bunch celery
3 large onions
3 red peppers

Cut up green tomatoes, onions and peppers, cover with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of salt and let stand overnight. Drain and add red tomatoes and celery cut in pieces, 1 tablespoon mustard, 2 lbs. white sugar, 3 pints vinegar. Boil from $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 hours or until thick. Bottle while hot.

PICKLED BEETS

Boil beets until tender and skin. If the beets are large slice them if not leave whole. Pack into bottles and cover with a sauce made with 3 qts. vinegar, 3 lbs. brown sugar & 2 oz. mixed pickling spice. Tie the spices in a bag and let stand in the vinegar while preparing the beets then bring to a boil, remove the spice and pour over beets.

GREEN TOMATO Mince-Meat

Chop or put through grinder 1 peck of green tomatoes. Drain off in colander and rinse with cold water until all juice is out of tomatoes. Add 5 lbs. brown sugar, 2 lbs. raisins, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 lb. chopped suet, 3 quarts chopped apples, 1 cup vinegar. Boil a few minutes and add 1 tablespoon ground cloves, 2 tablespoons cinnamon 1 grated nutmeg. Put in a covered crock or in jars.

MARACHINO PEACH MARMALADE

6 lbs. peaches
6 lbs. sugar
2 oranges
1 small bottle marachino cherries
Skin the peaches and cut in small pieces. Put the oranges through the grinder and cook for a few minutes to soften. Cook the peaches, sugar and oranges for one hour slowly, stirring frequently. Add the marachino cherries cut in small pieces and the juice. Bottle while hot and seal.

PLACE OF THE WILDS To M. E. P. (Contributed)

There is peace in the wild Lauritan life,
In the dales and the hills around
Where silently dwells the beauty of God,
Like heaven on earth, 'tis found.

There's a spot in these mystic mountains,
Queen Nature sure did make
With rippling waves and beautiful isles,
It is Louisa Lake.

A solemn stillness filled with awe,
And ghostly mist, doth raise,
As dawning breaks upon this lake
A magnificat of praise.

The maples and bushes do lift up their heads,
Serenely saying "all's well",
The birds are a-singing... the loons are a-calling,
Contentment and peace doth excel.

The twilight hush on earth descends,
As sun sinks down in the west,
The crimson lake is deathly still,
Like a vesper hymn of rest.

One of his earliest inventions was a frictional electrical machine, made from a discarded wine bottle when he was eleven.

EMPIRE DAY AT THE BARNADO VILLAGE HOMES BARKINGSIDE

On Empire Day it is the custom of the Governor of the Barnado Homes to invite to the village visitors from all parts of the Empire, thus giving them an opportunity to see for themselves the work of true Empire building that is carried on there.

Visitors this year included representatives from all the Dominions including Canada. The Chairman alluded to the strong human link existing between the Homes and the Overseas Dominions, forged by means of more than 30,000 children sent to the Dominions during the past 60 years. These children have been graciously received and the majority have proven an asset to the country of their adoption.

Economic conditions have necessitated curtailment of this work, but Australia is still receiving bands of picked children between the ages of 9 and 13 years old, who continue their education in Australian Schools.

A Canadian Visitor spoke of having personal contact with two "old" girls established on the Canadian Prairie, and reports of them as follows.

"One lives in a house in a small prairie town—the exterior all alike—but what a difference in the interiors!

Here is a home arranged with simple good taste—chairs fitted with clean and pretty cretonne covers, windows and doorways hung with curtains made gay with touches of hand embroidery, repeated in the same design on the tablecloths.

The few simple ornaments are well chosen in harmonious colours. The four children in this home are very healthy and well fed—the food properly cooked and the menu balanced. They are doing well at school, two being leaders in their respective forms at High School.

There is always a quiet corner for them to do their homework undisturbed, and a word of encouragement and praise when they achieve success. Is their mother an asset to the community? Ask her husband! She still speaks affectionately of the home at Barkingside—the only English home she remembers.

On the prairie further south, in a district where you can scan the horizon without seeing a tree, is a farmhouse sheltered by a beautiful grove, planted more than 20 years ago and carefully nurtured to beauty. These trees seem extra beautiful in a treeless region! The mother in this home has no little ones of her own, so remembering the grown youth, she is bringing up a friendless, unwanted baby as her own. She is another home maker whom the Barnado Homes have given to the Empire."

GOING UP!

A number of mules had just arrived at the camp, and a recruit made the common mistake of approaching too near the business end of one of them.

His comrades quickly placed him on a stretcher and started off for the hospital. On the way the invalid regained consciousness, gazed at the blue sky overhead, experienced the swaying motion as he was being carried along, and shakily lowered his hands over the side, only to feel space.

"Heaven, I ain't hit the ground yet," he groaned.

POPULARITY OF QUEBEC Scenery Evident (Contributed)

For another year, the summer vacationing is over, and once again the beauty laden Laurentian Mountains lured thousands of tourists from within our own border, or across the line.

This year, we did not expect a record number of guests from the States, as the attraction of the rate of exchange was extinct, compared to the last two years. Then again, the Quebec Liquor Laws would be meaningless to many U. S. citizens, who had previously looked to us for a real good celebration, while holidaying now the 18th. law is amended.

Anyway, the popularity of our scenic countryside was as evident as other years, which proves that Canadians themselves are beginning to realize that we in our province have everything to offer them for an ideal summer holiday.

The Quebec Tourist Bureau have done their duty to encourage guests, through extensive advertising and thorough survey and inspection of tourist camps and hotels.

Every year, we find new settlements shooting up long-side our rambling rivers and beautiful lakes, and proprietors of hotels throughout the province have catered to the visitor in every conceivable way, and have been amply rewarded for their efforts.

We are proud of our natural beauty the whole year round, and believe, that in its class, it is unsurpassable anywhere, and with a few more successful years as this one, our province will be the attraction to our fellow Canadians from Halifax to Vancouver.

Here and There

Taken as a whole the British West Indies as a market for Canadian products ranked tenth last July with $350,000, with Newfoundland coming next.

Increasing prosperity in Canada and the United States is seen in the early arrival in the Dominion of United States Christmas tree buyers. They are particularly busy in the Maritimes where the demand is especially heavy.

Edward C. Carter, of New York, traveller and publicist, has been chosen to fill the newly-created post of secretary-general of the Institute of Pacific Relations which has just completed its fifth biennial conference at the Banff Springs Hotel.

Eleven happy boys took the eleventh annual "On to Alaska" tour this year under the leadership of George E. Buchanan, of Detroit. Their trip included a stop at the Banff Springs Hotel where the boys stayed until they entrained for Lake Louise.

Traffic earnings of the Canadian railways for July show an aggregate gain of nearly a million dollars as compared with July, 1932, the best showing in many months on similar comparisons.
Gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific account for $473,000 of this gain during the month.

"He got you that time," said Mrs. Montagu Norman to the governor of the Bank of England, when they landed recently at Quebec from Canadian Pacific liner, Duchess of Atholl, on their way to Bar Harbor, Maine. The purpose of the visit is a mystery, not even a holiday being admitted by the distinguished visitor.

John Nelson, president of Rotary International, sailed recently by Empress of Britain on his way to Lausanne where the second European regional conference of the world-wide organization was held this month. He stated that Rotary had 150,000 members in 300 clubs.

"If from the conferences, speeches and exhibitions at the World's Grain Exhibition at Regina we can derive even one suggestion of importance to agriculturalists, the show will be voted a success," said E. S. McRory, manager, United Grain Growers office in Calgary, in a recent address at the Palliser Hotel in that city.

REALLY CROOKED

The diner, observing a notice on the wall of the restaurant advising patrons to take care of their hats and coats, said to the waiter: "A queer notice you've got there! Do crooks frequent this place?"

The waiter nodded.

"A few of them are so crooked, sir," he said, "they could hide behind a corkscrew."

PEACE

No gift is lovelier than peace,
Which, after shout and clamor cease.

From all earth's tumult brings release!

He who has known youth's leaping fires,

That driving force of wild desires,

That strength which struggle never tires,

He who has climbed ambition's heights

Through anxious days and sleepless nights,

Urged on in search of fame's delights,

He knows, when all the quest is past,

The trials sore, the troubles vast,

His prize is barren gain, at last
And so to peace in time he turns,

Its priceless worth one day he learns,

For peace his wearied spirit yearns.

No high-walled Troy, no golden fleece,

He learns, through wisdom's slow increase,

Could ever be more dear than peace!

Where The High Country Calls

Adventure has found a splendid and thrilling outlet in the new order of the outdoors, the Sky Line Hikers of the Canadian Rockies. Organized at Banff and Lake Louise this season, the new order provided such happy, healthful opportunities for hiking over the high passes, Alpine Meadows, and mountain trails of the National Parks of Canada, that devoted of the outdoors throughout Canada and the United States are now singing its praises. The inaugural hike this year took a large party of enthusiasts, under the expert direction of Swiss Guides Ernest Fuez and Rudolf Aemmer, through Paradise Valley, over the high trail past Lake Annette, and over Sentinel Pass to Moraine Lake. The second day's journey took the hikers across the magnificent Wenckhemna Glacier, and through the flower-decked Wenckhemna Meadows, and finally over the snow-bound pass of that name to Eagle's Eyrie on Tokum Creek. The third day saw the conquest of Opabin Pass, some tricky work on the glaciers and finally the Lake O'Hara Bungalow Camp. Hikes in the O'Hara country and the Pow Wow occupied the fourth day, and the eight-mile hike to Wapta ended this truly historic expedition. Norman B. Sanson of Banff, is the President of the new order, which is now in full swing with steadily increasing membership. A four-day hike in the Yoho Valley will be one of the major activities next summer.

The picture lay-out well illustrates the happy moments on the trail. Carl Rungius, internationally famous artist, is seen extolling the virtues of the Alpenstock to Miss Georgia Engelhard, celebrated mountain climber and New York socialite. A group of the hikers triumphant on Sentinel Pass enjoying the splendid view down in the mountain valleys below. The first annual Pow-Wow and the Sun-dance Lodge.

CUSHING WEST

Mr. and Mrs. Simmons, of Hawkesbury, were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Pinkerton.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Gaston and Mr. Roy Gaston visited friends in Hawkesbury on Sunday.

Dr. Cushing and family with their guest Miss Helen Byers spent the week-end at their residence here.

Misses Dorothy and Helen Weir and Miss Norma Cooke have resumed attendance at St. Andrews School.

Mr. Keith Clarke is a guest of Mr. Wally Walford this week.

Mrs. Jas. Harcourt and little son Grant, returned to New Glasgow on Tuesday, having been the guest for two weeks of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Pinkerton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hartley, Miss Katie Hartley and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hartley were week-end guests of Mrs. Hartley Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Grace, of Montreal, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Villeneuve, at Stonefield, over the week-end.

Mr. S. Wheelahan and daughter Grace spent the week-end here.

Mr. Leonard Young, accompanied by Mr. Frank Rowan and Mr. Maurice Leo left by motor on Thursday last for New York.

Mr. Muir Young and son Donald of Montreal spent the latter part of the week-end with his parents at the Bungalow, which is now closed, the family having returned to the City on Sunday evening.

The residence of Mr. T. Laughran, a mile above Stonefield was destroyed by fire, the origin of which is unknown, on Sunday afternoon last.

We desire to contribute our tribute of sympathy to the family of the late Mrs. F. Townsend, of Ogdensburg. The deceased lady was well known in this locality, and there are many who deeply regret her passing away.

ARUNDEL

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Howard Cooke on his being given the principalship of Rushbrook School, Verdun, beginning this term. Mr. Cooke graduated from Macdonald College in 1929 and has been teaching under the Verdun School Board ever since. At present he is studying for his Bachelor of Arts degree through Queens University, of Toronto.

Mr. Earl Kidd, of Paterson, N. Y., and former resident of this town, arrived by motor last Friday, after an absence of nine years, to spend a few days visiting his many friends and relatives.

CUSHING

Mr. J. W. Gaunt, of N.D.G., spent Sunday with his wife and daughter in Cushing.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Gaston and Mr. Roy Gaston were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Knox, of Hawkesbury, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Worfolk, of Montreal, were the Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Gaston visited friends in Pointe Fortune on Sunday.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Kerr, of St. Andrews Church, Westmount, and family, who have been spending the past month at Ingleside left on Friday for their home in Westmount.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ferguson, who have been spending the past six weeks in Cushing left on Sunday to spend the winter months in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McDowell of Westmount and family, who have been occupying their cottage here for the summer months returned home on Wednesday of last week.

A very enjoyable meeting of Hawkesbury United Church W. M. S. and St. Mungo's was held in the community Hall on Tuesday afternoon of last week. In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. Usher presided over the meeting and also gave a few minutes talk on Temperance and W. M. S. ladies, stating that smoking and the cocktail habit where intemperate liquors were used in the make-up of the drink and missionary work certainly did not go well together, and that this was something that we missionary women must fight.

Mrs. W. Steele, of Hawkesbury, President of that branch of the work had charge of the devotionals and also gave a short talk on Famous Women of the Bible. Miss Mary Lamb, of St. Andrews East, Missionary on Funglough from China then gave a wonderfully interesting address on her Evangelistic work among the women of China, which was much enjoyed by all present. Miss Lamb had on exhibition a number of very interesting curios from China.

Mr. T. Loughren of Stonefield, had the misfortune to have his house burned on Sunday. High winds carried sparks from the chimney to the roof and in a short time all was ablaze. Neighbors helped to carry the furniture to safety but the house which was one of Stonefield's historic homes was completely destroyed.

Cushing Community offer their sincere sympathy to Mr. Fred Townsend and family in their recent sad bereavement. Mrs. Walter Smith also has our sympathy in the loss of her sister, Mrs. Greaves of Brownsburg, whose death took place on Monday night of this week.

Miss Mildred Gaston and Mrs. J. Hughston, of Montreal, spent several days the early part of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaston.

GRENVILLE

Messrs. Willie, Leonard and Alfred and Jack Cooke visited their sister, Mrs. W. Bradshaw recently.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Sherman, of Clinton, Ont., Mrs. Hannah and her son and daughter-in-law, of Athens, Ont., called on Mrs. A. V. Gaudry on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacMillan and daughter, Mrs. M. Lester have returned to Kitchener, Ont., after spending a three weeks' visit at the old MacMillan home in Grenville.

Mrs. John Stewart Sr., of Keiakuck, Illinois, and Mrs. D. Johnston, of Montreal, visited Mrs. A. V. Gaudry on Tuesday.

Miss Louisa MacMillan and Miss Isabel Carson called on Mrs. John Gauley recently.

Miss Vera Gauley has returned to Montreal, and has accepted the position of Principal in one of the City schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Carson, of Ste. Agathe, visited Mr. Carson and Miss Isabel recently and also called on Mr. and Mrs. A. MacVicar.

CHATBORO.

Mr. W. R. McAdam, of Chapleau, and Mr. I. W. McAdam, of Montreal, attended the funeral of the late Mrs. F. Townsend. They also visited friends in Papineauville and Grenville. While here they visited their sisters, Mrs. Girling and Mrs. Jas. O'Brien.

Mr. W. R. McAdam attended a meeting of the Order of Engineers Brotherhood at Toronto en route to his home in Chapleau.

Mexican Art Treasures

Among World's Richest

If the rare paintings and other art treasures that are in the churches of Mexico or have been placed in hiding to prevent theft or destruction were gathered into one collection, they would astonish the world, declared Jose Sepulveda, an artist of Madrid, who has been making an investigation and study of these religious relics.

He pointed out that the Catholic church was very rich in the Seventeenth century and amply able to send works of art of great value to Mexico and other colonies. It was also the period when art flourished at its best in Spain—when Murillo lived and Seville was a great art center.

From about the year 1600 there lived in Mexico for 40 years two artists who were skilled copyists and imitators. These were Baltasar Echave and his wife, known as La Sunya. They painted in both the Italian and Dutch styles and Echave often imitated Titian fairly well.

Other Spanish artists who emigrated to this country and lived and painted here throughout the Seventeenth century established what is known as the old Mexican school and left many good works—many so good that it is not easy to establish their identity and distinguish them from the Old world work.

Stinkwood Tree Source of Much-Prized Lumber

In a forest of South Africa there grows a tree with a hard fine wood but a very ugly name.

Stinkwood it was called by the early Dutch settlers, who made wagons from it, and later found that a stinkwood log was so hard that it would burn for three days. Now we make furniture of it.

Unfortunately the number of these trees will not last for many more years, for every time a stinkwood tree is cut down two or three hundred years must pass before another can take its place.

It seems, too, that there is no stinkwood in any other part of the world, though the tree is thought not to have belonged originally to South Africa, as the natives have no name for it. In cases of this sort it is usually found that the tree has been brought from some other country, but if this is so the place from which the stinkwood really came is still a mystery.

Miss Alice Rodger, of Montreal, and Mrs. Thos. Noble, of Grenville, were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Johnson.

Mrs. Cecil Bates, of Huntingdon, has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stewart, for the past week.

Mrs. Douglas Johnson, of Montreal, is spending a few days at her father's home. Mr.

Mrs. John Stewart, of Keiakuck, Idaho, is the guest of her brother-in-law, Mr. Jas. Stewart and Mrs. Edward Wilman, sister-in-law, for a few weeks.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Fred Townsend and family in their sad bereavement.

Some of the farmers in the district have been digging potatoes, this being very early, but necessary, as large white grubs are so numerous that in a short time they would have the potatoes all eaten. Parts of the fields, where it is high and dry the potatoes were entirely eaten. The potatoes being large and of fine quality.

On Saturday evening, Sept. 9th., a large crowd gathered at No. Surrender Lodge, 210, Grenville to initiate two new members. Officers from various other lodges were invited and attended in full regalia.

A bus from Montreal brought thirty, while private cars were also numerous. There were visitors from Avoca, and Harrington lodges also.

The Montreal ladies put on some fine and very interesting work, drills and marches. The music was also supplied by one of the Montreal ladies. Two beautiful flags, Union Jacks, were presented by Pictorial Lodge, to No Surrender 210.

The two new members, Mrs. Willard Cole and Mrs. Hugh Cousins were presented with beautiful bibles. After several speeches and singing of the National Anthem, the evening was brought to a close and was pronounced a huge success by all.

Refreshments were then served and were much enjoyed by all, especially those who had such a long journey before them.

West China Missionaries Entertained by W. M. S. at St. Andrews East, Que.

"East Wind -- West Wind"

(Specially Contributed.)

Two of the most successful and outstanding public meetings of the summer season were those organized by the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church at St. Andrews East. The speaker at the first of these meetings was Miss Mary Lamb, a native of St. Andrews, who has spent fourteen years in the Orient. At the second meeting held a month later, the speaker was Miss Edith Sparling, an Ontario lady, who has spent twenty five years in West China.

Miss Lamb skilfully introduced into her meeting much of the fascination of the East. No effort was spared to bring to the meeting an atmosphere distinctly Chinese. The speaker wore a Chinese gown similar to that which is often worn by the missionaries when they go among their people. Members of the audience were shown to their seats by ushers wearing native costume, showing the dress of a Chinese business man, a coolie, and a school boy.

A phonograph record was used to bring to the meeting the voices of Chinese people singing a national air. This was followed by an unusual treat. Six small girls, dressed in Chinese clothes and looking decidedly pretty, sang this same air in the Chinese language! The many weeks of training necessary to accomplish this were adequately repaid.

The organist, Miss A. L. Wales, played Congregation Temple music during the Offertory. Miss Wales wore a richly embroidered gown such as is worn by the wealthier class of people in China. Mr. H. Kay sang two verses of a familiar English hymn to an old Chinese tune; singing a third verse in the Chinese.

The church vestry was a veritable museum. The walls were draped with embroidered door panels and altar cloths such as are used in the temples. The exhibits represented many phases of Chinese life; cooking utensils, wearing apparel, school books, opium pipes, chop sticks, musical instruments, brass and silver ornaments, and a host of other articles were on view. All of the "museum" attendants were dressed in native costume. At one end of the vestry an attendant served Chinese tea in true Chinese style.

Miss Lamb's address delighted her large audience. Very cleverly yet sympathetically she contrasted the Chinese Christian with the three principal groups of the country, namely; the military class, the educated non-Christian, and the working people of the city. The writer has been privileged to listen to a number of missionary addresses, but never to one so well balanced and prepared with such evident care. It contained an unusual amount of information, together with humour, pathos and appeal.

A retrospect.

Retrospect was the keynote of the second meeting. Miss Edith Sparling, the speaker, compared the West China of twenty five years ago with the West China of to-day, showing the improvements which can be directly attributed to the work of the Missionary Society. It was good to have first hand information regarding the permanent value of missionary work. Twenty five years ago the staff in West China consisted of ten missionaries. Four of those early missionaries are still on the field — but now members of a staff of twenty nine. Then the work was centered around three cities, now there are ten centres of work embracing fifty one cities and smaller towns.

The Air Mail, Mission Press, and the Radio have all made their contribution to a wider life for the Chinese people. Twenty-five years ago the clothing worn by the "foreigners" was a source of wonder to the Chinese. To-day they are adopting this dress, especially the leather shoes and the woollen garments, such as sweaters.

Education and educational methods have made great progress as a result of the contact made by Christian missionaries. The education of girls had long been entirely neglected in China. Twenty five years ago, with a staff of ten to care for an area of two hundred and twenty square miles, there were only three schools for girls. These contained two hundred pupils. To-day there are eighty five such schools with over six thousand girls in attendance. In addition to the educational work among girls, schools have been opened for women who have not previously received any education. Several hundred women are attending these schools, all of them eager to learn some of the things that their young daughters are learning. Miss Sparling told of a graduate from the Primary grade—aged fifty seven!!

Hospital accommodation twenty-five years ago was very poor. The buildings in use were old Chinese structures entirely unsuited as places of care for the sick, and at that time native graduate nurses were almost unknown. To-day there are many useful well built and well equipped buildings and scores of graduate nurses.

Buckingham Jewelry Robbers Arrested at Hawkesbury

Two men were arrested by Provincial Constable Bertrand at Hawkesbury this week in connection with a recent jewellery store robbery at Buckingham. The men, giving their names as Rolland Robin, 18, and Gustave Nell, 22, of Montreal, were taken to Buckingham for questioning, and a third man was being sought in connection with the $350 worth of rings and jewellery taken from the store.

Dwelling-house Fire at Brownsburg

A property of Jas. Donaldson, of Brownsburg, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jarry, was the scene of a fire on Monday evening when it was said coal oil had been used in lighting a stove. The house, located opposite Mr. Donaldson's own dwelling, was soon ablaze as the flames spread quickly, and damage of considerable value is reported. The Brownsburg fire-fighters, equipped with the D.C.Co. apparatus, played three streams of hose on the fire, which was soon extinguished once the firemen got to work on the scene.

Member of Pioneer Family Passed Peacefully Away at Brownsburg

Late Mrs. George Graves

There passed away in the village of Brownsburg on Monday, Sept. 11th., after a short illness, Mrs. Geo. Graves, one of the oldest residents of this district, in her 75th. year. Most of her long life had been passed in the neighborhood of Brownsburg and Lachute. The deceased lady, who enjoyed the esteem of all, had been in failing health for the past three or four years, but the end came unexpectedly to her family and many friends. Suddenly taken on the Tuesday previous she suffered a stroke of apoplexy, lapsing into a state of coma Friday from which she never rallied, passing peacefully, in a quiet state of unconsciousness and without suffering.

The funeral was held in the United Church, to which she was a member, on Wednesday, Sept. 13, and was largely attended, being conducted by the Rev. A. E. Hagar assisted by the Rev. H. H. Cousens, of Lachute. Three of the grand old

Ran Into Stray Horse on Highway

A horse was killed and a new taxi automobile badly damaged on Sunday when Germain Lacoste, Lachute Mills, ran into a stray animal near Lachute. The horse had been grazing at the roadside, having apparently strayed through an open gate from Parker's pasture, adjoining Lachute Road. The driver was unhurt but the car, a Ford V-8, was removed to Deacon's Garage for extensive repairs.

Truck Tore Down Lachute Filling Station

The Main Garage filling station in Lachute was put out of commission for several days as result of an impact by B. Morissette's delivery truck. The mishap occurred after the driver had filled his tank with gasoline, and in moving away collided with a cement pillar, smashing it and pulling down the roof. Two of the Argenteuil Motors' gas pumps were broken and the remainder were inaccessible to cars pending repairs to the structure, which are now in progress.

St. Jerome Calls on Legislature to Enforce Carrying of Lights on Horse-drawn Vehicles

Taxes on Outside Traders

Other important Recommendations sponsored by Neighboring Town, at recent Quebec Municipalities Convention

A time-honored bone of contention was dishied up from an unexpected source, when the Union of Quebec Municipalities endorsed a demand to the Provincial Legislature that horse-drawn vehicles be compelled to carry lights after dark. This precaution has long been urged in the province, and now it is advanced by Mayor Dr. A. Cherrier, of St. Jerome through the channel of the Quebec Union.

Meeting aboard the S. S. Noronic this month on the Chicago World's Fair trip, the Union, through its resolutions committee, dealt with several other recommendations both interesting and constructive.

Under the Cities and Towns Act of Quebec, a municipality is permitted to charge against land owned by a clerical corporation for the cost of local improvements, such as for example, sidewalks, sewers, roads and other special taxes, but may not charge on the assessment of the buildings. The Legislature is being asked to abrogate this article of the law, so that the levy for special taxes may be made against land and buildings. The municipalities, with the burden of unemployment weighing heavily upon them, find the need of a wider distribution of the cost of carrying on municipal affairs.

The committee approved a resolution providing in the case of municipalities which have summer residents that the elections be held in either the month of July or August so that such summer residents and taxpayers may be on hand to cast their votes. If the Legislature agrees to the change there would be scores of municipal elections which would be affected.

From St. Jerome also came the request that the Government be asked to take over part of the cost of maintenance of regional roads when such roads cross cities and towns. The province now pays for maintenance on such roads outside cities and towns. The resolution asks that the Government relieve the cities and towns of at least 50 per cent. of the cost of maintenance of such roads, within such municipal limits.

The Legislature is asked to provide for cutting the cost of selling property for non-payment of taxes, pointing out that especially in the case of vacant lots offered for sale the cost is excessive. It is asked that the Quebec Municipal Commission be given power to exempt the municipalities of much of the public advertising now done. The resolution would leave discretion to the Government in carrying out the wish of the

Richard Graham, of Montana, was Related Here

Native of Chatham Township, Died at Great Falls.

Richard Graham, 83, a native of Chatham Township, who had resided in Great Falls, Montana, since 1885, passed away recently in that city, where he operated in real estate.

Mr. Graham was born here in 1850, the son of Archibald Graham and Janet Black, of Chatham. He was apprenticed to his uncle, Andrew Hodge, in the flour milling business, and in 1871 went to the State of Wisconsin, pursuing the same line of business. Settling in Great Falls in 1885, he became head miller of Cataract Flour Mill company, and later associated in a flour and grain business under partnership as Graham and Ross. In December 1917 Mr. Graham retired, and in 1928 started construction of the well known Graham apartment house, devoting the latter years of his life to the development of this property.

In 1905 he was married to Eliza J. Collins of Bruce County, Ontario, who predeceased him Oct. 3, 1929.

Mr. Graham was a member of the Royal Highlanders and an active member of the Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are two children, George Graham and Mrs. J. Mastenbrook, both of Great Falls. Three sisters and one brother also remain, in this locality; they are Mrs. Wm. Candlish, Sr., of Montreal; Misses Christie and Margaret Graham and John Graham, of Chatham, Que.

WHY CANADIAN BANKS DON'T FAIL

By Guy Greer in "Harper's Magazine."

During the past year more than one article has appeared upon the banking strength of Canada, on the reasons why not one person has lost a dime through the failure of a Canadian bank during the past nine years. Lack of space will not permit enumeration of all the reasons, but they are, in brief: Diversification of risks through the large size of the Canadian banks with their many branches; a unified system of regulation and control in contrast to the American state and federal systems with 49 varieties of banking laws; and, finally, the following of strict commercial banking practice.

The Canadian system has been cited by both sides in the domestic unit-branch banking controversy. The small number of Canadian banks (nine) and their great size have both been held by the unit groups to be clear evidence of pernicious absentee ownership, money monopoly, and just another example of big banks eating little ones. On the other side of the fence are the branch bankers who quote the failure record of Canadian banks compared with American, and say it is all due to branch banking. So the controversy rages. It has split up more than one American Bankers' Association meeting and Huey Long has taken the unit cause to his warm but manly bosom.

Aside from advocating more unified regulation in the States of banking operations, the author makes considerable of the point that Canadian banking has a tradition of conservatism and sound management behind it that can well be fostered at home. The Canadians grow up in banking and when elevated to high positions know what they are about. This is, of course, in contrast to the situation in U. S., at least recently, when it was the custom for successful retired business men to start up banks, instead of giving themselves over to golf, collecting old furniture or tending the grandchildren. In Canada a bank with less than $500,000 capitalization can not be legally established.

Banking in Canada is looked upon as a profession. If such a tradition can be fostered at home, out of the wreckage, it will be a boon to business for the next twenty years. The going will be hard enough without any more blow-ups.

YOUR WIFE'S MOTHER (Stratford Beacon-Herald)

People who write smart things in newspapers have fattened their batting average at the expense of the mother-in-law, but they have done nothing about it. Not one of them ever told how young men could have pretty girls as wives without mothers-in-law.

Actually it is the young man himself, who, bent on marriage, makes a mother into mother-in-law and there are many mothers-in-law who are a darn sight better than their sons-in-law.

Flood-lighting the Park

Improvement follows on the heels of enterprise, and promptly on completion of the bandstand a flood-light has been erected over the Memorial Park, thus turning a shadowy void into a spot of immediate interest to passers-by at night. It is unfortunate the unsightly turmoil of sewer construction now detracts from the beauty of this corner, but in the interests of progress one can patiently await the restoration of order and neatness on this section of the Main Street.

What is logically required to complete the general effect is a few benches around the park. These however may be looked for in good time, before next season. And finally, with Lachute's own band playing before a quietly appreciative audience at this scene, one can at last envision the Memorial Park as a "civic breathing spot", fulfilling one of the purposes for which it was intended.

Described as "one of the last of the old school French-Canadian medicos," Dr. Louis Mar-Pelletier died September 16, at Hawkesbury. Dr. Pelletier was in his 70th. year, and had resided many years in Rigaud, Que. He was formerly official translator of the Department of Archives in Ottawa.

Quebec offers to its citizens more free fishing and hunting privileges than anywhere else in the continent. That's why it is imperative that everybody, even veteran sportsmen play their part in conserving and entering the fish and game.

The Late James Tomalty

After a long illness borne with wonderful Christian patience, there passed away to rest on Sunday last at his home in Montreal, Jas. Alexander Tomalty, eldest son of Arthur Tomalty and Agnes Calder, of Mt. Apple, near Brownsburg, Que. He passed away in his 44th. year.

Besides a large number of friends, he leaves to mourn his loss, a most devoted wife, formerly Miss Lila Morrison, his parents, three sisters, Mrs. A. Lock, Mrs. Jas. Warwick, of Lachute, and Miss Elizabeth Tomalty, of Granby, Que., and four brothers, Ernest of Montreal, Wm. and Carson, of Brownsburg, and Bertram, of Chatham, Mass.

The funeral service was held Tuesday at his late residence, 7029 Outremont Avenue, and the remains were afterwards brought to Lachute for interment.

THE CAPTAIN'S CORNER

For Our Boy Readers

THE CAPTAIN'S WEEKLY LETTER "PULL DOWN THE BLIND"

Dear Boys :

It was unbearably hot as the sun poured in through the open window, so that every part of the room was exposed to its fierce rays. Being Sunday afternoon, the boy occupied his time in reading a favourite book.

Suddenly the door opened and a voice said "Pull down the blind."

Now in order to comply with this request several things had to happen. First a story was interrupted when the book was laid down; secondly a small figure uncurled itself from a comfortable chair; then an upraised arm pulled at a cord, after which welcome shadows crept along the floor playing, what appeared to be, a great game of hide and seek.

Resuming his former position my young companion remarked. "That's better. Why did I not think of it before?"

Pull down the blind! Sometimes this is just the very thing to do. There are many boys who spend a whole lot of time in great discomfort and needless unhappiness. They never take the trouble to remember that there is a remedy, often very close at hand, for most of the troubles they are called upon to face. How true it is that they expose themselves to waves of fierce depression and make no effort to climb out of a condition of self-pity to which carelessness and indifference has brought them.

They must Get Up and meet life's responsibilities bravely. It is indeed well that the story, so full of past failures and hideous mistakes, should be interrupted. They must lift up their eyes and seek the cord—that silken cord of memory—which will link them once again to the supreme spiritual force without which no youthful life can ever be said to be complete. They must pull down the blind on past defeats in order that the hurt and sorrow of them will be merged into kindly, healing shadows. They must, further, shut out all the heat and bitterness arising from the disappointment of yesterday, so that when the dawn of a new tomorrow breaks there will never again, as far as they are concerned, be need to interrupt the even course of their useful and happy days. No voice then will tell them to "pull down the blind."

We must forget all bitterness and sorrow
By faith and hope in every glad tomorrow.

Your affectionate friend,

THE CAPTAIN'S SERIAL STORY OF ADVENTURE

Special to The Watchman

Chapter 36.
(Conclusion)

Silently they crawled along the uneven surface of the roof, and let themselves down to earth. No sign of an Indian was to be seen, though they could not be far away. The building was now burning fiercely and dreading discovery every second, they dashed away to the shelter of the distant trees.

"Where is Sharp Eye" suddenly asked Frankie as they dashed along. But there was no sign of the friendly Indian. They were desperately and absolutely alone.

As the three boys plunged further into the wood no thought was given either to time or to distance. The terror through which they had passed seemed to have robbed them of the power to think at all, and guided more by instinct than anything else they continued their headlong flight.

The first grey streaks of dawn found them lying exhausted in a small hollow shivering with cold and still unable to realize what had befallen them.

Walter was the first to arouse himself and wearily looked round. Edgar, still wrapped in sleep, lay at his feet, while Frankie his face black with smoke and exposure, shared their inhospitable quarters. Involuntarily the boy clenched his hands as realization of what had happened came to him. Quickly he roused his two companions and pointing upward, he said, "See, the dawn is breaking. What had we better do?"

For a moment no reply came. It was a difficult question to answer, all at once. To return to the farm was out of the question. In the first place there might still be Indians roaming around, and in the second a burnt-out homestead of ferred no sanctuary. Had anyone escaped they would long ere this have gone away, even as they had done themselves. "We must make for the city," said Frankie suddenly. "I know people there who will help us." "How far is it?" asked Edgar, his voice trembling.

"By the trail about thirty miles," Frankie replied. If we hurry we ought to be there by night-fall. Then he suddenly rushed forward and flung his arms round his friend's neck.

"Oh, Edgar, what shall we do; they are gone, gone! We shall never see them again—and in a terrible outburst of grief he broke down hopelessly. Even in the midst of his own sorrow at the loss he himself had sustained, Edgar found time to comfort his chum and after awhile with the assistance of Walter, managed to quiet him somewhat.

"Don't you remember," he whispered, "we promised always to be together. Come, look up, Frankie, the sun is shining and if God wills, we shall be in safety ere long." So with gentle and encouraging words to each other the three boys started out on their weary return to the city from which, two of them at least, had travelled but a few short hours ago with such high hopes and happiness. In the thicker part of the wood the night shadows still lingered, but on breaking out to more open country they soon found themselves under a clear blue sky and welcomed by the warm rays of the sun.

Bravely turning their faces towards a distant hill the chums marched forward. Of the future they dare not think; they were conscious only of the effects of a great terror softened by the knowledge that at least they were together. Let us for a while leave them so.

THE END.

THE OLD RED COW'S COMPLAINT

By Aunt Jean

"Oh dear, oh dear," said the old red cow, "I never get time to rest; From the time the sun rises in the east, Till it sets again in the west."

"I have to chew and chew and chew To keep my body fat, While the farmer steals away all my milk, Now what do you think of that!"

She whisked her tail at a greedy fly That was trying to taste her back, "That's the way," she angrily said, "That I am kept right on the rack."

"It's chew, chew, chew, and milk, milk, milk, Oh dear, such a dreadful rush; I won't go home, indeed I won't."

"I'll go and hide in the bush!" When Bobby came to get the cows Of course he passed her by. "Now I'll rest," said the old red cow With a small contented sigh.

When the sun went down And the bush grew still, The old cow looked around. "It's lonely here," said the old red cow, "I think I'd rather be found."

So she wandered home in the dark, dark night And bellowed beneath the stars "It's the old red cow," said Farmer Jones "I'll go and let down the bars."

THE MONSTER THAT FRIGHTENED BOBO, THE BOBOLINK

Bobo the Bobolink flew away in a great fright. He flew as far as the old stone wall in the orchard before he stopped. There he sat trembling with fatigue, when Chip-a-ree the chipmunk came racing along, carrying a small apple in his mouth.

Chip-a-ree was in a hurry; he was having a race with his cousin Squirrely Grey Breast. They were trying to see which would get the most little apples for their winter storehouse.

Squirrely Grey Breast was one or two apples ahead of Chip-a-ree now, and Chip-a-ree was hurrying as quickly as he could to catch up, and of course Mr. Bobo just had to go and sit in his way!

Chip-a-ree could not scold Bobo, his mouth was too full; so he sat glaring at him. There was quite room enough for Chip-a-ree to go around, but like some little people we know, Chip-a-ree felt that he could not change his course for anything; so he sat there, his little eyes getting redder and angrier every second.

Bobo could see that he was getting quite angry, but did not know just what it was all about. It made him feel quite guilty. Did Chip-a-ree know that he had left his wife in danger and was running away without even letting her know she and her nest were in danger? He sat glaring back at Chip-a-ree. What business was it of Chip-a-ree's anyway!

How long the two would have sat glaring at each other I am quite sure I do not know, if Squirrely Grey Breast had not come racing along from the other side on his way back for another little apple. He was running so fast that he could not stop when he saw Bobo, but jumped right over him, landing down on top of Chip-a-ree's back!

This was too much for Chip-a-ree. He dropped the little apple and started to scold, and the things he said to Bobo and to Squirrely Grey Breast were quite astonishing.

Bobo sat there, breathing quite hard. He did not know just what was about to happen. Chip-a-ree was so angry, and and without reason, as far as Bobo could see.

Squirrely Grey Breast was astonished too, and it was some time before he understood just what was the matter. When he did understand he started chattering excitedly just as though he was laughing at Chip-a-ree.

"This bird was in your way and you could not pass him," he chattered, "Why, you foolish chipmunk, why did you not go around him?"

"Go out of my way for a bird!" screamed Chip-a-ree, "I guess not. It was my path and he had no business sitting on it. I go out of my way for no-one."

"Then," chattered Squirrely Grey Breast "why did you not jump over him like I did?"

"I am not so fond of jumping as you are, Squirrely Grey Breast. And what was he doing there I would like to know. What were you doing there?" he said suddenly, turning towards Bobo.

"I-I-I-I was sitting on the fence," stuttered Bobo.

"We know that!" screamed Chip-a-ree, "but what were you sitting on the fence for? Was there no place else to sit?"

"Not at the time," said Bobo, "besides I wanted time to rest and think."

"I did not know that birds ever needed to think" chattered Squirrely Grey Breast. "I thought all they had to do was sing and pick up seeds when they felt like it."

"That is all you know about birds," scoffed Bobo; he was getting his senses collected again, as it were. "Birds have to think as well as squirrels or anyone else, and they are always in danger too."

"Danger!" Chip-a-ree said quite scornfully, "If I could fly like you I would not be afraid of danger. I would fly so high that nothing would ever catch me.—Danger, huh!"

"Yes, but my wife can't fly and leave her eggs; the monster might get them."

"The monster?" said Squirrely Grey Breast, who was starting off on his race after apples, "what monster?"

"I don't know myself what monster it is," said Bobo. "I only know that a monster is making its way across the field towards our nest and I fled away to safety."

"Where is your wife?" asked Chip-a-ree.

"Sitting on her eggs," answered Bobo a little shamefacedly.

"Sitting on her eggs, and you away over here! Does she know where you are?"

"No, I do not think so. You see, I flew away so quickly that I did not have time to tell her about the monster or where I was going. In fact I did not know where I was going myself."

"If I had a wife I would use her better than that," said Chip-a-ree sadly. Chip-a-ree had had a wife earlier in the summer but a big grey tom-cat had caught her as she was running to safety from a brush fire that Daddy Craig, not knowing that the chipmunks had a nest under the pile of brush, was burning. Mrs. Chippy had carried two of her babies to safety and was getting close to the old empty barrel in the shed with the third and last one. She was so busy and anxious about her babies and Chippy that she did not see old Tommy.

Chip-a-ree was just coming down the side of the shed from a visit to the corn bin when it happened. He saw it all, but could do nothing to help. Squirrely Grey Breast had been listening to Chip-a-ree and Bobo talking, and he suddenly said, "Where is this monster? I could like to see it."

"Come with me and I will show you," said Bobo getting ready to fly away.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON-SERMON

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Sept. 24, is "Reality."

The Golden Text is: (Isaiah 65: 17) "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." The following passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

"And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people . . . There came also a multitude out of the cities round about Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits, and they were healed every one." For the work of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth." (Acts 5: 12, 16 and Psalms 33, 4) Christianity is again demonstrating the Life that is Truth, and the Truth that is life, by the apostolic work of casting out error and healing the sick. "To grasp the reality and order of being in its Science, you must begin by reckoning God as the divine Principle of all that really is." (Science and Health Pages 97 and 275.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious disease.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

MEMBER OF PIONEER FAMILY PASSED AWAY AT BROWNSBURG

hymns of the church were sung: Jesus Lover of My Soul, There is a Land of Pure Delight and Forever with the Lord, the Lesson being John 14 and Rev. 7, the text Rev. 14: 13. Many beautiful floral wreaths and sprays betokened the affection and high esteem in which she was held by a very large circle. Pall bearers were Messrs. W. Chambers, A. Mitchell, J. Knox, W. Knox, J. Hammond, and R. Smith.

Her maiden name was Harriett Ann Knox, the daughter of Robert Knox and Mary Nicholson, and she was born in County Downe, Ireland, May 8, 1859, the fifth of a large family of ten children. When 7 years of age her father sold his farm in Ireland and, emigrating to Canada in 1866, settled on the farm at present owned by his son William, a mile and a half east of St. Philippe. These were days of hardship and privation, when for two years no currency whatever was in circulation, soap was bought by the yard, and the whole countryside was bush. The family of William Knox still live in the old log house, which has, of course, been fitted over, has an addition added, but which is still in excellent repair and comfortable. One son, Joseph, now living in Davenport, Iowa, was born here, the rest being born in Ireland. In succession their names are: James, Mary, Robert (deceased), Harriett, (now deceased), Martha, (deceased), John, William, Samuel, (deceased), Joseph, Ellen, (deceased.)

In 1877, Harriett was married to her first husband, Robert Kettle, and to this union there were born three sons and one daughter: John, Ferguson and James, all of Brownsburg, and Mary Ethel, who died in 1911, the wife of Samuel Reid, leaving two daughters, Edna and Doris. The death of this favorite daughter was a great grief to the mother and it is doubtful if she ever survived it. About 37 years ago Mr. Kettle died. The family, which had been living at La-chute where they kept a confectiory and where the children were born, were burned out, and moved back onto the old farm for a space, the mother then going to Brownsburg and establishing a large boarding house (where Jas. Donaldson now has his livery) and where she accommodated from 20 to 25 men, winter and summer, working with much inadequate help to make a home and keep her family. From her savings she bought land from Mr. Howard, and built the residence where she subsequently lived and where she died. In 1908, she married George Graves, who died in 1922, thus leaving her the second time a widow. The last years of her life have been spent very quietly, failing bodily as old age crept on, but comforted by her family and the care latterly, of her grand-daughter Miss Edna.

Of her own family, five survive, all well advanced in years viz: James Carl, 80, (Prince Albert); Mary, Mrs. Walter Smith, (at Cushing), aged 77; John, (Hawkesbury), aged 71; William, living on the old homestead at St. Philippe, 69; and Joseph, aged 66, living at Davenport, Iowa. Of these two only were able to be present at the funeral, John and William, the others being too distant, or, as in the case of Mrs. Smith, unable to attend through illness. Another sister, Martha, (Mrs. Marshall), died May 17 of this year.

So passes another of the old pioneer generation, of which not very many remain.

Burial was made at Lachute.

The Ottawa Spotlight

A Weekly Review of National Affairs.

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—Money is beginning to flow more freely into the national treasury again. It was about time, too, for April, May and June showed such serious declines from previous years that it looked as though Finance Minister Rhodes was headed for the worst deficit yet, in spite of all those new taxes last spring.

July about held its own and August revenues, which have just been announced, were decidedly better. In face they are the best, I think, since the depression started. Unless a miracle happens between now and the end of the fiscal year, there will be another deficit, of course, but it won't be as serious as it looked like being a couple of months ago.

The national treasury took in during August some $19,360,000 from customs duties, sales tax, special excise tax on sugar, cosmetics, etc., plus another $2,520,000 from income tax.

Measured against August of last year, this is a three million dollar improvement in one month. We are still six millions down as compared with 1932, spite of the new taxes, but another couple of months as good as August would put us on even terms again.

Most of the improvement can be traced to the revenues from the new excise and sales taxes, sugar, for instance. Of the three million dollar gain, no less than $2,600,000 is in the excise tax branch. But an equally significant gain, even though it is much smaller, is in customs duties on imports. Since the collapse in world trade began, emphasized by Canada's new duties of 1930 and 1931, revenue from this source has been steadily declining. In August it was up $30,000 over the previous year's figure. I think this is the first gain since the depression began.

Export Trade Fair

Just before leaving these figures, it is worth mentioning that for the first five months of the fiscal year Canada sold abroad some 16 millions more than in 1932. Larger quantities of nickel, copper, wheat, flour, fish, furs, meats, planks and boards, wood-pulp and automobiles explain the gain. The only important commodities to show much of a decrease were newsprint and cheese.

Canadian brewers, vintners and distillers are watching the U. S. situation closely for an opportunity to resume legal export of their wares to that country. Our law is so framed that it is only legal to ship to another country when import into that country is also legal. As soon as 3.2 per cent beer became legal in the United States our brewers could begin securing clearances for their cargoes, so long as their brew didn't go over that percentage. And as soon as wine and hard stuff becomes permissible on the other side, an exciting rush will develop on this side to get shipments away.

No Investigation

An Ottawa report which is supposed to have originated very close to the prime minister says that there will be no royal commission to look into the penitentiaries, the government taking the stand that so far disclosures do not warrant it. This will not please a large section of the press and public of Eastern Canada, who have been clamoring for a probe. However, the subject hasn't been threshed out in cabinet yet. When it is, public opinion may have so impressed the ministers that they will change their minds.

The Canadian bankers told the McMillan commission last week they were opposed to a Central Bank, anyway in such troubled times as these. They offered as a substitute a suggestion for a branch of the Finance department to take care of re-discounting. In spite of this opposition I'm still willing to bet that when the McMillan report goes to Premier Bennett it will recommend a central bank.

What is a central bank for? One hears the most varied answers to this question. From what I can learn the idea of a central bank in Canada would be to stabilize commodity prices or to keep foreign exchanges on an even keel, so far as either of these is possible. When basic prices are falling ruining the farmer and the primary producer generally, the bank would seek by credit manipulation to stem the fall. If they soared into boom values, thus preparing the way later for a disastrous fall, the central bank would work in the opposite direction.

Car Owners Paid $56,700,000 In Taxes Last Year

Motor vehicles operated in Canada ran their owners into a tax bill of $56,700,000 last year, according to an estimate released yesterday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. That meant over $50 for every registered motor vehicle — to say nothing of the fines.

The provinces collected $21,126,271 for registration fees on vehicles and operators, and another $27,083,316 in gasoline taxes. The Dominion took in $4,508,471 on import duties and excise taxes. In addition there was the sales tax on cars sold estimated at $2,500,000 and the import duty on gasoline estimated at $2,500,000.

Here and There

It is corn roast time in Canada, one of the two principal outdoor festivals in the Dominion with which the passing of the years does not seem to interfere. The other is "sugaring off" at maple sugar time in the early days of spring.

Canadian Pacific Railway experimental farm at Calgary took honors in the sheep judging at the Canadian Pacific Exhibition held recently at Vancouver with two firsts in each of the rams, ewes and pens classes, five seconds and the grand champion Suffolk ram and ewe champion.

Keeping well in the forefront of the golfing world in Canada, the Seignory Club, Montebello, Quebec, has recently staged a women's golf tournament and has followed this up by the tournament of the Canadian Senior Golfers Association. Both were well patronized, the latter drawing a big and prominent entry from the United States.

The world's valuable deposits of coal and iron lie with the Atlantic nations rather than with those who front on the Pacific, the discussions of the fifth biennial conference of the Pacific Relations Institute held recently at the Banff Springs Hotel, revealed. The fact enters largely into the problems of the countries of the Pacific.

Figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics draw attention to the safety of railway travel in Canada. In collisions only two fatalities occurred among a total of more than 21 million passengers. Passengers injured numbered only 339. Other fatalities bringing the total up to seven were due to such causes as falling from trains or in getting on or off trains. The figures are for the year to March 31, 1933.

Striking success of the cent-mile coach travel plan inaugurated last May and June by Canadian railways, providing full facilities for trans-Canada excursions, east and west, is the justification of its repetition on the same scale during September. C. P. Riddell, chairman, Canadian Passenger Association, announces. Two great tides of travel will again be set in motion, one from the west to the east and the other from the east to the west.

"Starting with the commencement of the round trip from Southampton at the end of August, the Empress of Britain for the following twelve weeks will be engaged upon what amounts to a continuous voyage of 40,320 miles. In the course of this voyage the ship will spend a total of eighty days actually under way," was the statement of George Stephen, vice-president of traffic, Canadian Pacific Railway, who was a passenger on an August sailing.

CUSHING WEST

Mrs. Elvira Connor, of Boston, Mass., who has been visiting friends in this locality for the past two months was a guest of her niece, Mrs. C. F. Watson, the latter part of the week and left on Sunday morning by C.N.R. for Montreal en route for home.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams, of Montreal, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Pinkerton on Sunday.

Mrs. H. Giles, of Lachute, spent the week-end in Cushing, as the guest of Mrs. Usher.

The Misses Olive and Katie Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hartley and daughters and Mr. Douglas Hartley were Sunday guests of their mother, Mrs. S. O. Hartley.

Visitors over the week-end at Pine Cottage were Mrs. G. B. Clarke and daughter, Miss Joan Clarke, Mr. A. Walford and Miss Phoebe Walford also Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Walford who were en route to Montreal from a motor trip to Toronto. Mrs. Walford Sr. and grand-son Master Harvey Walford returned to Montreal on Monday, afternoon, but Pine Cottage will be occupied for some time longer with Mr. Wallie Walford and his friends Messrs. Keith Clarke and Jack Burnie, keeping Bachelor's hall. The new fireplace which has been recently added to the other attractions of Mr. Walford's residence was officially dedicated on Saturday evening with a marshmallow roast and other appropriate ceremonies.

Mrs. Johnson and family, of St. Lambert, accompanied by Mrs. Drew, of Montreal, were motor guests of Mrs. C. L. Cooke and other friends in this vicinity recently.

Miss Swail of No. 2 School spent the week-end at her home in Arundel.

Mrs. S. O. Hartley and son Mr. Ernest Hartley motored to Montreal the latter part of the week.

Dr. Cushing and family spent the week-end at their residence here.

Mr. John Brooks is erecting a neat and commodious cottage on the main road opposite Mr. J. Morrisette's which he and his family will occupy shortly.

WEST CHINA MISSIONARIES—

The work of Evangelism has gone on steadily for a number of years. The gospel has made its own irresistible appeal to the women of the Orient, among whom Miss Sparling has been working. No longer do they ask idle questions of the missionaries regarding their European dress. The mind of the Chinese woman is fast developing, and her search for truth is an earnest search.

In the course of her address Miss Sparling paid a sincere and glowing tribute to the work of Miss Lamb on the mission fields of West China. These two modern disciples, despite their modesty, filled their audiences with enthusiasm for missionary ventures, and thrilled them with their own spirit of sacrifice and self-abandonment for the sake of serving missions.

FUEL AND LIGHT FROM SEWAGE GAS

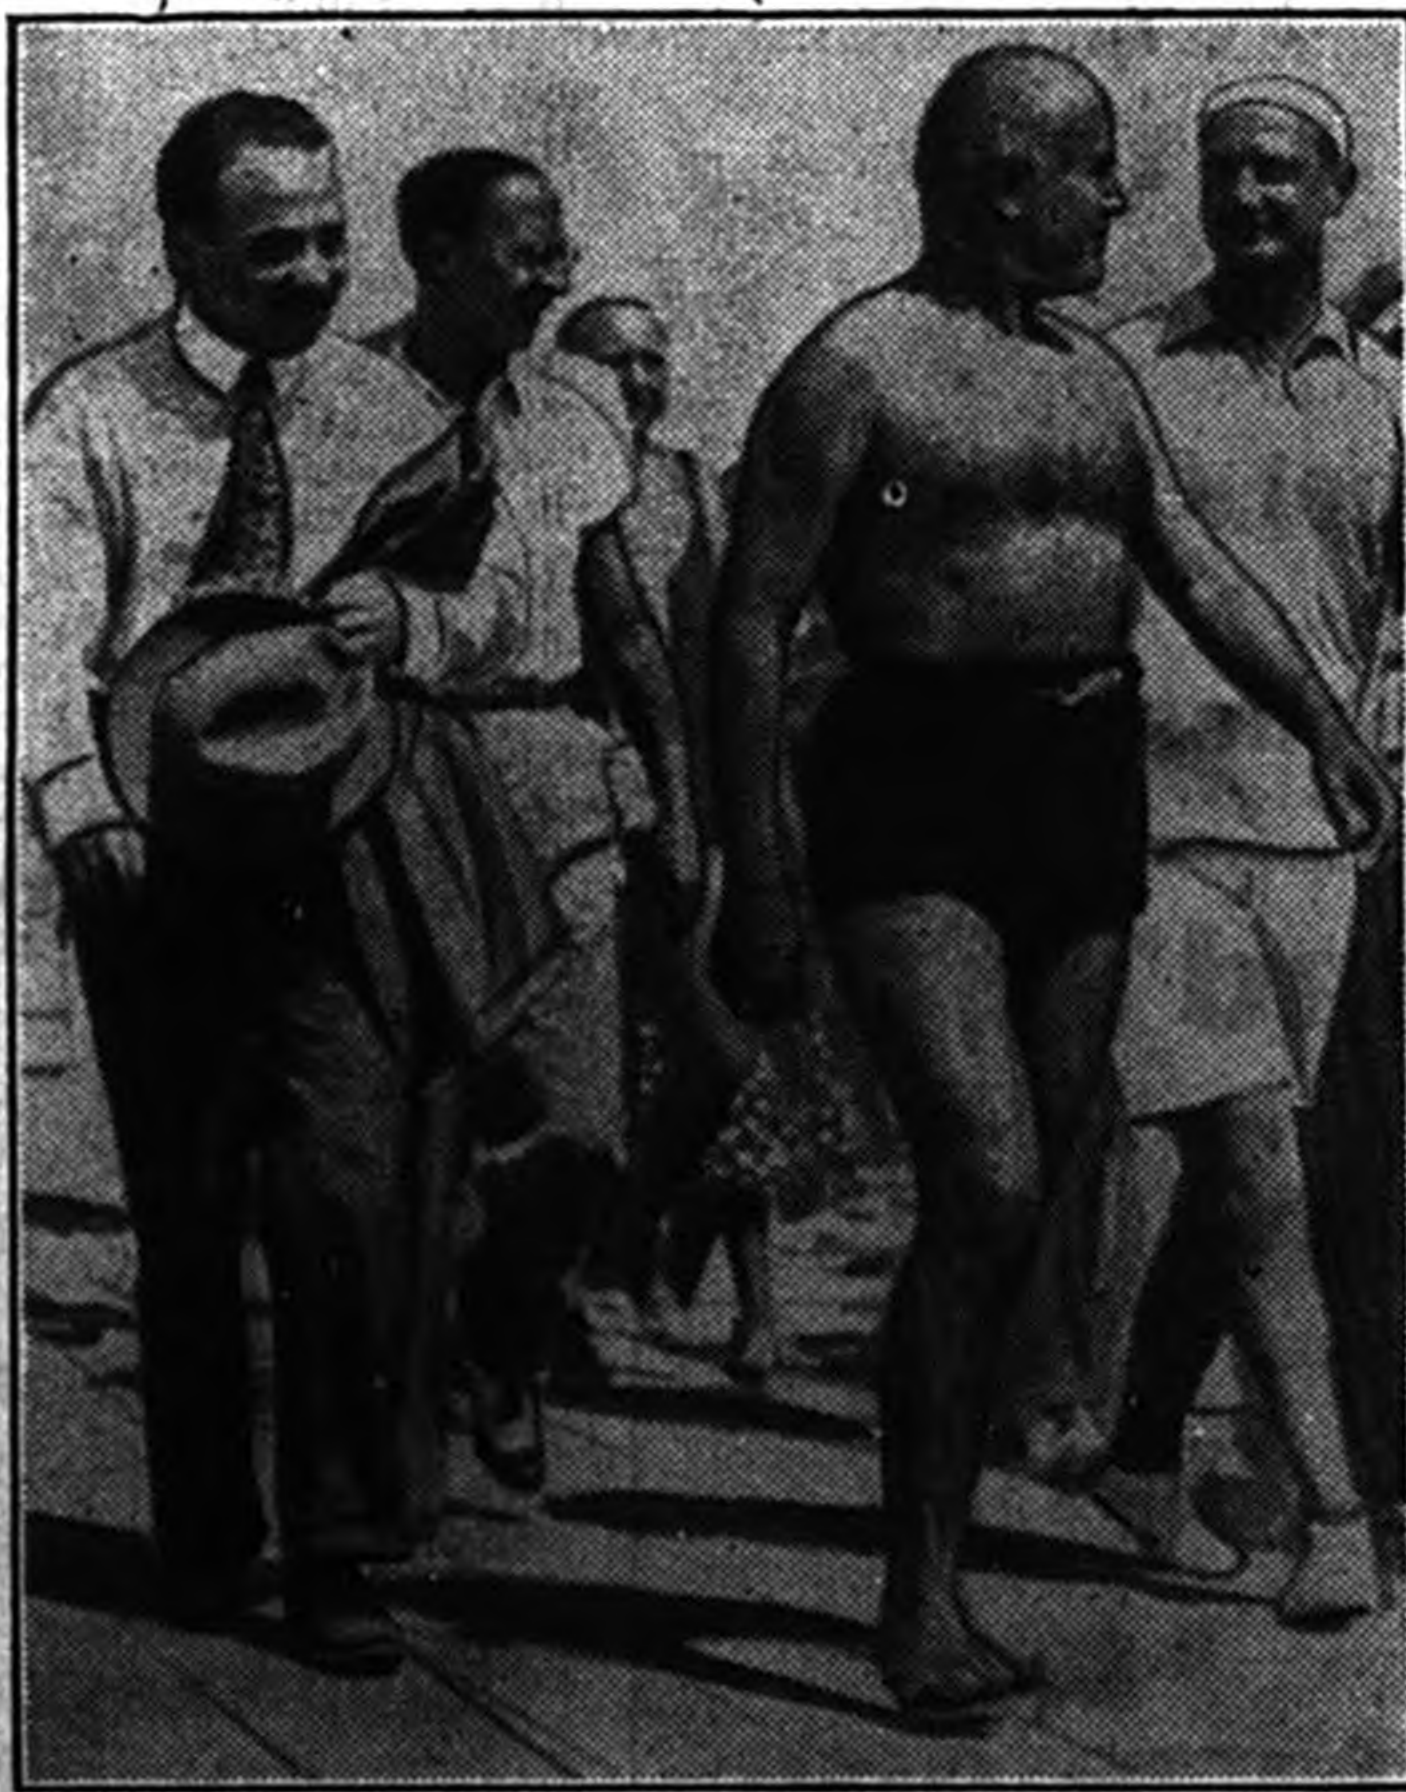

When he invented his steam engine, James Watt also invented the factory, the mill-town and the slum. Coal became energy which could be applied to make cheap goods. Industrial communities sprang up around coal mines or along navigable streams that flowed near coal mines. Huddled houses presented problems that only the sanitary engineer could solve—problems involving chiefly the supply of pure drinking water and the disposal of sewage. Both problems are related. Without sanitary sewage disposal there can be no acceptable supply of water.

The first sewers were simply connected with streams, with results that may be imagined. Settling tanks were then introduced which permitted the more readily removable solids to settle. But the fine matter held in suspension was still a menace. So the sewage-farm came into being—a large tract of land over which sewage flowed and by which it was clarified as it filtered through the ground. As towns grew and land rose in value it became necessary to resort to more compact though more elaborate purifying means. Bacteria beds were introduced and then settling tanks. And now we have what is called the activated sludge process which requires a still smaller area, partly because two-storey tanks are employed.

In the process of bacterially digesting sludge, gas is generated, which consists of methane, carbon dioxide (the kind with which beer is charged) and nitrogen. So much higher in heating value is this gas than that supplied by the city plants that communities now collect it, use it either for heating or for generating energy in their own combustion engines, or sell it. In one Berlin plant alone 194,000 cubic feet of gas are collected in twenty-four hours.

Rev. and Mrs. Maclean and Mr. Neil Maclean returned on Friday evening from a pleasant three weeks' vacation at Gananoque.

Mr. Jack McDowall and the Misses Janet and Bettie McDowall visited their residence here over the week-end.

INFORMALITY IN DIPLOMACY

Probably the most unusual photo of a diplomatic meeting ever published shows Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss (left) of Austria, with Premier Mussolini of Italy (in bathing suit) at Riccione Beach. Il Duce was bathing when the Austrian Chancellor arrived by plane for a conference. The parley was held in a rowboat, and, despite lack of ceremonial trappings, seems to have been a success.

ST. JEROME CALLS ON LEGISLATURE—

convention. For one thing it is asked that it be not necessary to give the description of the land in the advertisement. The question of publishing in two languages in certain instances also arises, and also the question of two consecutive advertisements.

A resolution was approved in regard to the existing right of redemption of properties sold for non-payment of taxes. It is asked that when the municipality buys in the property itself, the proprietor who redeems it must pay up all arrears of taxes, municipal, school, and church, as well as all expenses and interest. It is also asked that the 10 per cent. charged to the proprietor who redeems the property, apply for a full year even if the year has not ended.

The vexatious problem regarding taxation of outsiders who go into a municipality to do business was dealt with in another resolution. At present the Cities and Towns Act permits the imposition of a tax of $200 on the stranger, whether or not such a tax is imposed on the local merchant. The change asked is that the stranger coming in to do business pay only 50 per cent. more than the local merchant. This would mean where this business tax is not imposed on the local merchant there could be no tax on the stranger.

In the interests of town planning, Dr. A. L. Cherrier, of St. Jerome, wants all sub-division plans approved by the municipal authority before being put into effect. Montreal now has this authority, but the general run of municipalities are helpless in the matter. The resolution was adopted.

Power for rural municipalities to control the erection of telegraph and telephone poles is asked for in another resolution passed.

A resolution passed would turn over to the provincial Government all bridges with a length greater than 200 feet. At present these bridges have to be maintained by the municipalities.

Several resolutions dealing with water courses were given approval all providing for amendments to the Municipal Code. There is trouble at times with farmers in the matter of getting permission to cross their property with machinery needed to do water course work. It is asked that the right of passage over the farms be authorized in the public interest.

In regard to the apportionment of the cost of registration offices, and the assessment made against cities and towns which are not part of the municipal counties, a resolution provides for arbitration to determine the division of such costs.

Osmium Heaviest Element
The element osmium is the heaviest substance known. Its specific gravity, compared with water, is 22.5. Iridium, with a specific gravity of 22.42, comes second; platinum, 21.37, third, and gold, 19.33, fourth. Specific gravity is relative density, that is, the ratio of the weight of any volume of a substance used as a unit or standard. Air is generally used as the standard for gases, and water for solids and liquids. When we say that the specific gravity of osmium is 22.5 we mean that osmium bulk for bulk is 22.5 times heavier than water.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Noble and daughter Laura, and Mr. Thos. Noble Sr., were in Montreal on Wednesday, attending the wedding of Mr. Edgar Maloney to Miss Louise Doran, both of Montreal, the happy couple leaving at noon for a boat trip to Bermuda.

—Richard Dix in the rôle of an irresistible free-lance lover, plays an unusual and intriguing part in "Great Jasper". The same bill, tomorrow and Saturday, includes Comedy, Cartoon and Newsreel, filling a full-time program which is a credit to the Rex Theatre management.

Mrs. Allan A. Rodger, of East Settlement entertained at a miscellaneous shower on Friday last in honour of Miss Grace Armstrong, bride-elect. A buffet luncheon was served to some 18 guests. The tea table was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers. Mrs. Clarence Miller poured tea, while the Misses Eleanor Rodger and Cora Miller assisted in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Walker and son John visited his brother in Detroit recently. While on their motor trip they also called upon Mr. and Mrs. Austin Riddell at Jackson, Mich. Up till this stage they had received no news from home, but while seated at lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Riddell they were pleasantly surprised to see the Watchman arrive by the noon mail at that household. Their appreciation was so keen that they resolved, on their return, to call in at the Watchman Office and tell us about it.

We count ourselves most fortunate and are very grateful for the loyalty and devotion of our large number of faithful correspondents, who contribute their weekly budget of news to the Watchman. This week's mail brought a letter from Cambria full of kindly appreciation for the newsy content and the general wholesomeness of its reading.

This is most gratifying, and the sincerity of the writer is backed up by an offer to associate herself with our honored staff of correspondents. These are the little pleasantries that lighten the task of the Editor in getting out the weekly edition. To secretaries or varied societies and councils, may we again make appeal that they will acquaint us of anything that may prove of general interest. Our phone Number is 27 and we shall appreciate your co-operation.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WORK AT THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WORLD

Now when in Quebec and all through Canada, people are harvesting their garden and field crops before the coming of winter, it requires something of an effort to realize that in other parts of the world this is spring, and September and the months following are the seed time instead of the harvest, as it is here.

In a spicy article on gardening by a contributor to the official organ of New Zealand Women's Institutes, "Home and Country", is found the advice to "sow the following seeds in September," and there follows a long list of tender annuals and perennials for blooming during the succeeding weeks. Farther on, the writer urges the sowing of parsnips "before the middle of September" and of peas "every two or three weeks up to the end of the year".

Lesson for October 1

SAUL IN TARSUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 21:39; 22:3, 27, 38; 26:4-7; Phil. 3:3-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. II Timothy 2:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A School Boy.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A School Boy of Tarsus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Preparation for Life Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Training Christian Leaders.

I. Saul's Birth (Acts 21:39).

He was born at Tarsus, the capital of Cilicia. Tarsus was a gateway between the east and west, therefore a great commercial center. It was a self-governing city, making citizenship therein honorable. It was also one of the great educational centers of the Roman empire. In the providence of God the great apostle to the Gentiles was born in the city where he would encounter men of every class and nation.

II. Saul's Education (Acts 22:3).

1. In the home (Phil. 3:5). His parents were pious people and doubtless carefully cultured him according to Jewish standards. He was brought up as a strict Pharisee.

2. In college at Jerusalem (Acts 22:3). About the age of thirteen, as was the custom, he became a child of the law. It was doubtless at this age that he went to Jerusalem and entered upon his course of study under Gamaliel, one of the most eminent teachers of Israel. His course of study here, doubtless, was largely restricted to the Holy Scriptures. In this school he was prepared for the great work of a Christian theologian. Included in his education was:

a. Patriotism. He proudly affirmed "I am a Jew." He was brought up to love his nation. He was a nationalist of the true type.

b. A love for the Bible. To him the Scriptures were the very Word of God, the final word of authority.

c. Zeal for God. The word "zealous" literally means "to boil." d. He was conscientious. His supreme aim was to have a conscience void of offense. Because of the blight of sin conscience needs to be disciplined by the Word of God.

3. A trade at Tarsus. Perhaps after his college course at Jerusalem he returned to Tarsus and learned tent making. Thus in later life he was able to support himself while preaching the gospel. One rabbi said "He that teacheth not his son a trade doeth the same as if he had taught him to steal."

III. Saul's Citizenship (Acts 22:27, 28).

In the providence of God, the apostle to the Gentiles was a free-born Roman citizen. He was loyal to his country, while at the same time strictly religious. Right relationship to God sanctifies loyalty to one's country.

IV. Saul's Defense Before Agrippa (Acts 26:1-27).

He expressed his delight that he now could speak and tell his case to one who could follow his line of argument, but doubtless, he was more delighted in that he could witness to him of the Saviour.

1. His manner of life (vv. 4-12). He had been in accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. Therefore, he possessed the common Jewish hope of a coming Deliverer.

2. His supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). It was through the personal appearance of Jesus Christ to him on the way to Damascus.

3. Commissioned by Jesus Christ and sent to the Gentiles (vv. 16-18).

4. His consecration (vv. 19-23). Upon receipt of his commission he instantly obeyed.

5. His appeal to Agrippa (vv. 25-27). He was anxious to have Agrippa act on the knowledge that he had.

V. Saul's Ground of Confidence (Phil. 3:4-6).

He had everything a true Jew gloried in.

1. Circumcised the eighth day (v. 5).

2. Of the stock of Israel (v. 5).

3. Of the tribe of Benjamin (v. 5). Benjamin had always remained loyal to the national customs.

4. A Hebrew of the Hebrews (v. 5). He was of Hebrew parentage, not a proselyte.

5. Touching the law, a Pharisee (v. 5). The Pharisees were a sect among the Jews most zealous for the rights and ceremonies of Judaism.

6. Concerning zeal, persecuting the church (v. 6). He proved his zeal by the positive effort to stamp out that which was threatening Judaism.

7. Touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless (v. 6).

Pass Through Fire

Christians are like vases, they must pass through the fire ere they can shine. And often the very furnace and the flame, which they call destruction, are only burning in the graces which are to be their everlasting beauty and glory.

Joy Out of Sorrow

There are joys which can come to us only through sorrow. There are revelations of divine truth which we can get only when earth's lights have gone out.

THE SMALL CHILD UNDERSTANDS

Parents who are very proud of their small child's intelligence at times under-rate it. They do not seem to realize that the child understands all that is being said about itself. Half the behaviour trouble with small children comes from suggestion. They will talk about the bad things a child does before them. I saw a case of this the other day. I went to see a friend who has a three year old girl. The child has arrived at a self-conscious stage and behaves badly before strangers. She was not friendly to me but was not misbehaving, until her mother proceeded to tell about the way she behaved before strangers, how she kicked and screamed and was generally naughty. What could the poor child do, but give a demonstration. Which he did. If parents would only learn to talk about their small children, to tell about the clever things they say, the naughtiness and the good behaviour, in their presence, it would be so much better for the children. Even the most intelligent parents do it, not realising that the child is drinking in every word they say.

TO EAT YOUR FILL

An old gentleman who enjoyed the best of health was asked what he thought the reason for his good health was. He attributed it to always eating his fill of each fruit and vegetable as it came in season. It is a sound idea. To wait until each fruit and vegetable is at its best and then to eat all you want of it. I always feel sorry for children who can only have a little fruit. It may not be possible to give them all they want all the time but it is wise to give them at least once "their fill" of each kind of fruit. There are few of us who eat enough fruits and vegetables.

RUGS MAY BE DYED

A friend of mine has moved into a very beautiful new home. It was larger than their former one and when they had bought new draperies and some furniture to fill the yawning spaces there was very little money left for rugs. They had three good sized rugs of different style, pattern and colours and they did not fit into the new house at all. So they had them dyed a rather dark green, and used two in the sitting room and the other in the dining room. They make very attractive rugs. The pattern shows through not as a pattern but as a slight shadow. Just in case some of you might be interested I found out the charge for dyeing and it is approximately one dollar a square yard.

SLICED TOMATOES

There is apt to be waste in slicing tomatoes. This is lessened if the stem end is cut out with a sharp knife before slicing.

The last slice will be a neat life-saver slice. There are tomato slicers on the market of the saw-tooth variety. These are very efficient but a saw-tooth bread-knife makes an acceptable substitute.

By way of variety serve green pepper with sliced tomatoes. Cut off the stem end of the sweet green pepper and remove seeds. Cut in rings and serve a ring on each slice of tomato. Looks good and tastes good. What more can you ask of it.

GREEN PEPPER JELLY

About 12 medium sized sweet green peppers.
6½ cups white sugar
1½ cups vinegar
1 bottle pectin

Discard the seeds and grind the peppers quite fine, putting them through the chopper twice. Drain off some of the juice and pack 2 cups with the chopped green pepper using enough juice to flood the cups. Discard the balance of the juice. Bring peppers, sugar and vinegar to a hard boil. Set aside in a warm place for 20 minutes, uncovered, stirring occasionally. Bring again to a full rolling boil and boil for two minutes. Remove from the fire and stir in the pectin. Skim and stir repeatedly for just five minutes after taking from the fire, to cool slightly. Pour into sterilized bottles and seal with wax. This is a slow setting jelly and requires at least a week to set. It is particularly good with veal or pork and I find that it makes a delicious accompaniment to a meat or chicken salad.

PEACH CUSTARD PIE

Peel and slice three peaches. Make a syrup of two tablespoons sugar and ½ cup water. Cook the peaches in this for about two minutes. Drain and add peaches to a custard made of two slightly beaten eggs, 3 tablespoons sugar, pinch of salt 1½ cups milk. Pour into an unbaked pie shell and bake at 450 degrees for ten minutes to set the rim, then reduce the heat to 325 degrees and cook for thirty minutes.

FRESH PEACH PIE

Fill a cooked pie shell with ripe sliced peaches. Sprinkle lightly with sugar (fruit sugar is best as it dissolves quickest.) Cover with whipped cream and serve. A few slices of peaches may be reserved to garnish the whipped cream.

MINT SAUCE

¼ cup finely chopped mint leaves
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar

Add sugar to the vinegar, if it is very strong dilute with water. Stir until dissolved and add mint leaves. Let stand in a warm place for one-half hour. Serve with roast lamb.

Recreation -- Its Place in the Social Fabric

By Miss R. B. Docker.

Mental and physical recreation as an integral necessity to human life, is ably discussed by Miss R. B. Docker, writing in the Shire and Municipal Record (Australia). Her observations are drawn from examples in different parts of the world, and form a study worthy of consideration in local government ideals, irrespective of location.

The subject of recreation falls naturally into two divisions—recreation for children and young people, and recreation for adults, and in considering the needs of both sections we should have clearly in our minds the different underlying principles. The needs of both sections overlap, but they are not identical.

For the adult, recreation should mean the wise employment of leisure. The function of leisure is to supply the needful rhythm of life by contrast with the hours of work. Recreation is as necessary for the adult as for the child, but it serves a different purpose. The adult needs refreshment and relaxation after the day's work; work and recreation should balance each other, so that the brain worker may rest mind and nerves and the man who spends his day in physical labour may rest body and muscles. The recreation of every man should tend to be complementary to his work. Idleness is not usually the best way of resting, but rather a change of occupation. Also leisure gives opportunity for development of other interests, for the pursuit of a hobby, or it may be for the exercise of scientific or aesthetic faculties that are not called into play during business hours. All communities, therefore, should, ideally give scope for as wide a range of adult recreations—or wider—than there are varieties of business and avocations. Harmony of life in the individual, and consequently in the community, can only be obtained where there is due balance and development of mental and physical qualities. With the increasing specialisation of industrial work, the function of recreation is of increasing importance. The more mechanical the work, the fewer qualities are called into play, and man's natural powers and desires denied expression must inevitably work for unrest and unhappiness and ugliness of life. Recreations can afford a real outlet for bottled up energies and emotions and thereby they safeguard society. The question of recreation for children is perhaps somewhat simpler, if of infinite importance.

Amusements and games are part—a very large part—of the education of children, and are essential to their normal physical development. Physically, games provide the exercise required by the growing bodies, and help to co-ordinate movement and muscular adaption by all kinds. Mentally, games develop powers of response to quick stimuli, of quick and correct decisions in emergencies, and of application of general principles. Morally, (though it may be argued that inherently games have neither moral nor non-moral value), children commonly learn lessons of moral value as they learn to "play the game." Team games, particularly, call for self discipline and the development of the "team spirit" means the development of perseverance, endurance, good temper, sense of justice and loyalty, and other moral qualities. (Negatively, the lack of healthy exercise has a definite effect on morals. Deprived of safe and natural outlet in physical exercise, suppressed energies may become dangerous to self and community.) Spiritually, amusements may, and should, lead to an appreciation of spiritual values, from their appeal to the fundamental capacity for joy in every individual, and from the harmony established between the individual and the natural forces for the universe.

Chief, among the needs of children is the need of space to play. In urban and city districts this can only be supplied by playgrounds. The houses have not sufficient yard space for the children to play in, and without play-grounds, the streets are the only place for play. The loss of life and injury from traffic accidents to children is considerable—more than the average person would imagine, or care to think—but apart from that, for children to play in the dust and dirt of the streets and gutters is undesirable in the scheme. The remedy is not found by merely getting a piece of ground and throwing it open for the children. Children playing together in large numbers must be supervised, and supervised by trained leaders, equipment must be protected, children must be protected from undesirable adults and from the rough play of older boys and girls. Children have to be taught to play, especially team games for the value of the discipline. If play-grounds are unsupervised, the remedy is likely to prove worse than the evil. Recent research has revealed a definite connection between juvenile delinquency and lack of play-spaces. Games are a natural outlet for energies and emotions which would otherwise be bottled up, and idleness proverbially leads to mischief. Occupied and happy in a game, a child cannot at the same time be in mischief. It was estimated that in a district of Philadelphia, U.S.A., after 5 years of play-grounds, there was a 50% decrease in juvenile delinquency. In Anaheim, California, play-grounds were started in the middle of 1924, and it was found that there was 70% less delinquency in the first six months of 1925, than for the corresponding period in 1924. The same connection exists between lack of healthy exercise and "anti-social" conduct. Restlessness, moodiness, irritability, fretfulness may be due to the fact that a child is cooped up. Otherwise, lack of freedom may have serious moral effects that will shew themselves in the adult. The child who is "agin" the government has little chance of growing into a happy man or woman, and is likely to become an outlaw and a thorn in the side of society. (To be Continued.)

LESS CRIME IN ONTARIO

Crime is decreasing in Ontario, official statistics prove beyond doubt that this is true, and whatever the explanation the facts support those who believe that the morals of the world are being improved by economic adversity.

Offences under the Ontario Liquor Control Act are an instance. In 1927 there were 22,715 cases and in last year 14,510. In 1922 there were 16,007 cases of drunkenness before the Ontario courts, and last year 8,066. In the same time convictions for driving a motor car while intoxicated fell from 822 to 564.

Traffic offences show a similar movement downwards. Convictions for speeding numbered 27,666 in 1931 and 20,654 last year, a drop of 25 per cent. Reckless driving cases in the year fell from 7,571 to 4,693, a decrease of 18 per cent. Over the whole province 21,421 prisoners were sentenced in 1930; in 1931 the number had dropped to 18,121, and last year the decrease continued to a total of 15,804, a reduction of 5,617 in two years. There is no escaping the significance and the importance of these figures.

Another set of figures is interesting in the same connection. The average per capita cost per day in the Ontario reformatories and industrial farms in the departmental year of 1921-22 was $1.74. By 1930-31 it had fallen to $1.14 and last year the average was cut to 90 cents. Two factors have contributed to this sharp reduction—rigid economies and strict supervision of expenditures all along the line, and achievement of a fair degree of success in the effort to make these institutions as nearly self-supporting as possible. —(Ottawa Journal.)

PER CAPITA COSTS

An analysis of the cost of provincial government has disclosed that the average per capita cost of provincial government after deducting revenues received from the Dominion government was $16.86 in 1931 compared with $16.67 in 1930; $14.92 in 1929, and $10.12 in 1922. The Dominion government's expenditures were $47.11 per capita in 1931-32 compared with $43.40 in 1930-31, and $46.87 in 1921-22. In 1931-32, deficits from such enterprises as the Canadian National Railways, Canadian Government Merchant Marine, etc., operated by the government, amounted to $8.77 per capita. These are some of the facts brought out in the recent reports of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada.

HE KNEW HIS STUFF

An aged man at the Union Station, Discussed the business sitch-e-ation, I said that things were mighty bad, And somehow or other, it made him mad, That aged man, he tapped my knee— "D'ye know what's wrong with things?" said he. "I've been in fights," and the old man glared, "And I always got whipped when I got scared, Folks have forgot how to stand an' grin When hard luck socks them on the chin. There's too much groanin'—not enough laughs— Too many crepe hangers—too many graphs. "It sure don't help a sick man's heart, To think of nothin' but his fever chart. There's too many experts tellin' how come The whole blamed world is on the bum. There's too many people with an alibi— I'd rather listen to a darn good lie. "As soon as folks quit hangin' crepe You'll see business in darn good shape. I've got no use for golf as a game, But I speak the language just the same: There's too few drivers, an' too many putts— Plenty cold feet, an' not enough guts, "You ain't my son, but if you was mine, I'd darn soon teach you not to whine." He wasn't cultured, and his words were rough, But the old boy seemed to know his stuff.

A COMMENDABLE POLICY

Quebec Province continues with undaunted zeal its policy of colonization. An incidental plan to encourage the Back-to-the-Land movement, is the extending of grants for a period of three years to farmers who are willing to place their sons on abandoned farms, the subsidies being designed to compensate veterans of the soil for the loss of able hands.

Regardless of the means-to-an-end, any policy which tends to counteract the past tendency towards centralization appears sane and well advised. Cities have lost something of their glamor to the rising world, and the time is ripe to encourage re-population of the vacant soil.

It is a general assumption that national prosperity depends on the condition of Agriculture. But inasmuch as agriculture relies largely on home markets, prosperity depends more logically on the thriving of industry and the boosting of buying power. Nevertheless, the present policy in Quebec, and every effort elsewhere to liven the production of our soil, may be considered highly commendable.

MAKE FRIENDS AND YOU'LL MAKE PEACE

"Make friends and you will make peace. That is the purpose of all Jamboree." These were the words of Lord Baden-Powell at the reception extended him and visiting British Scout and Guide leaders to Sweden during the summer's goodwill cruise of the Baltic ports.

THE GAY EIGHTIES

Looking through some old departmental memoranda recently, the Editor of National Review found one which dealt with musical instruments long since forgotten. The memorandum bore the date August 22, 1888, and dealt with music for the following automatic instruments:
Aeolian organ, Celestina, Mandolina organ, Organina, Harmonette, Ariston, Organette, Autophone, Euphonia, Musical Casket, Pianister.
Does any one remember the celestina, and who to-day has a musical casket? They must have gone the way of crinolines and dress improvers, colloquially known in the gay eighties as bustles.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OCTOBER 8-14

Although Fire Prevention Week is proclaimed for October 8-14 in the Canada Gazette, this is a timely season to urge that citizens exert every precaution against fire, not only for one week but throughout the season, and indeed the year round. Local instances of careless dumping of ashes into wood containers, have given rise to more than one outbreak. There are, however, many every-day causes of fire, some of which we quote from an exchange treating the topic with a dour humor as follows:

She used the wrong oil can.
She dried clothes too near the stove.
He smoked in bed, so did the bed clothes.
He threw a cigarette stub into some rubbish.
He washed his hands in gasoline near the stove. The doctor washes them now.
She put gasoline into the wash boiler on the stove to make washing easier.
She cleaned her gloves with gasoline and saved 15 cents, but paid the doctor and druggist fifteen dollars.
He did not worry about fires as he had "plenty of insurance", and forgot the safety of his wife and children upstairs.
She gave matches to her children to go out to burn leaves in the yard. The cotton dresses burned easier than the leaves.
She burned sulphur all over the house to fumigate.
She fixed up a fine tissue

Correcting Uncle John

Uncle John was explaining to his little nieces the mysteries of bird migration. He described how the swallows and martins come from far-off lands in early summer, and return to the warmer climate when autumn comes along.
Little Phyllis was very interested. "Do all the birds go away?" she asked.
"No, dear," replied uncle. "Only a few of them."
"Does the robin go?"
"No, dear," answered uncle. "The robin just gets himself a new red waistcoat and stays."
There was a long pause, and then Phyllis said, thoughtfully: "I don't think that's right, Uncle John. I've seen heaps of robins wearing red waistcoats, but never one with stays!"

Banana Growth

A single bunch of bananas, weighing sometimes as much as 80 pounds, is the entire yield of a single plant. After bearing, the plant is cut to the ground and new shoots start up. When they reach the height of 3 or 4 feet they are transplanted far enough apart to permit them to grow without touching other trees. The height of the trees varies from 10 to 40 feet, the maturity being reached from 12 to 18 months after transplanting.

On some of the South Sea Islands the banana is the principal food, being prepared in a variety of ways. One type of banana is used largely for food, but is always cooked, as it is not edible in the raw state. This particular type has a dark skin and a thick, heavy salmon-colored flesh which is eaten.

Growth of Bamboo

In its early stages timber bamboo resembles many of our common grasses. The leaves are long and narrow and the canes or stems are greenish, but quite hard. As with some grasses, the timber bamboo has creeping underground stems or rhizomes. They spread from the parent plant in all directions; new eyes or buds develop on the rhizomes, from which spring new plants. After a few years the grove has increased in area and its 70-foot stems 4 to 5 inches in diameter, waving in the breeze, present a magnificent appearance. Wherever cotton will grow bamboos will thrive, says the Department of Agriculture.

Onesime Gagnon to be Candidate for Leadership

M.P. for Dorchester Announces He Will Seek Post at Meeting of Quebec Conservatives.

Onesime Gagnon, Conservative member of Parliament for Dorchester has definitely announced that he will be a candidate for the position of leader for the Provincial Conservative party to be chosen at a convention to be held October 3 and 4 at Sherbrooke, Que.

Mr. Gagnon thus becomes an opponent to the present temporary leader of the party, Maurice Duplessis, member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly for Three Rivers, who was chosen to lead the party following the retirement of Camilien Houde, last leader to be picked at a province-wide convention.

Is Quebec City Lawyer.

For some days it had been uncertain whether Mr. Gagnon, Quebec City lawyer, intended seeking the office. He ended the suspense as to his intentions by issuing a statement in part as follows:

"Yielding to the pressure which has been placed upon me from all parts of the province, I have agreed to permit my name to be submitted to the Sherbrooke convention.

"It has been represented to me that if my candidature could rally men of goodwill and bring back peace and harmony in our ranks, I had no right to refuse the responsibility.

Raised an Objection.

"I raised as an objection that it would be necessary for me to keep my seat in the Federal Parliament. On this point, the only way made to me that an analogous situation exists in the province of Ontario and that the new Prime Minister of Nova Scotia elected last August did not sit in the Legislature prior to his election. It has been affirmed to me that my acceptance will prevent certain unfortunate defections, and prevent internal divisions, and the more deplorable in view of the fact that there will soon be a triumph of the Conservative doctrine.

"Since the duty is an imperative one, I agree to serve and I have the honor to announce that I will be a candidate for the post of provincial director of our party."

Has Guertin's Support.

Aime Guertin, Conservative member for Hull, in the Quebec Legislative Assembly, announced he would support Onesime Gagnon, M.P. for Dorchester, at the Sherbrooke convention for leadership of the provincial Conservative party.

"I will support Mr. Gagnon gladly," Mr. Guertin stated. "The election of Mr. Duplessis, member for Three Rivers, would mean a serious division in the ranks of the provincial Conservative party."

Change of Time next Saturday

Standard time was resumed last week-end in cities of the United States and in certain parts of Canada, but the general change will be made throughout Canada next Saturday night, Sept. 30th. Readers will do well to acquaint themselves with the arrangement of church services on Sunday, and the revised railway schedules, which are duly advertised in this issue. Clocks should be set back one hour at midnight Saturday.

Work Commences on Re-Construction of Skating Rink

On Monday local labor was engaged to commence tearing down the old familiar L.A.A.A. Rink. Work will proceed immediately on the new structure which according to Mr. Joseph Raymond, proprietor, will be a commodious affair costing in the neighborhood of six or seven thousand dollars. Omer Laurin has the building contract, and Mr. Hunter, Montreal architect, is responsible for the plans, which have passed approval of the Provincial Government. Roofers' Supply Co., Toronto, will furnish the materials.

A marked improvement will be in the lighting of the new rink, which will sport 21 lights over the ice as compared with 5 in the old rink. The outside dimensions will be 200 ft. by 95 ft., as compared with 150 by 70, and the ice will measure 185 ft. by 80 ft., instead of 148 x 60 as before. The rink will have a seating capacity of 1200, but this season provision for 800 spectators will be provided by three tiers of seats. A 10-ft. promenade at each end of the ice will give added standing room.

In addition to the regular hockey and skating season, it is planned to make greater use of the building for lacrosse, wrestling and boxing events.

A good water supply and willing workers saved what might have been a serious fire loss, when flames appeared in the store of Mr. A. Habib, at Brownsburg, which is at present being operated by Mr. LaJoie. The outbreak occurred Sunday afternoon, the cause being unknown.

Fell from Automobile at Montreal Street Corner

Falling out of the automobile which was driven by her husband as he turned the corner of Craig and Chartier streets Saturday afternoon last, Mrs. M. Malackiet, of Lachute Mills, was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital suffering from cuts about the face, head and legs. Her condition, however, was not serious. It was learned that the door of the automobile opened accidentally as the automobile was turning the corner and Mrs. Malackiet fell out of the machine.

Many Tourists on Cent-a-Mile Excursions

The cent-a-mile excursions have attracted many local residents to take a 30-day trip to the west, at a season of the year well suited to traveling and to the best enjoyment of Nature's scenic side-shows. One American railway which has had an enormous excursion travel this year at reduced rates, reports it has made over a million dollars from this source of income. In addition to increased revenues by the railways, the public appreciates this inducement to see Canada at a reasonable outlay.

Another Province Issues Cut-rate Car Licence

Automobile licence plates in Nova Scotia are to be made available to motorists at greatly reduced rates during the last quarter of 1933, according to an announcement from the Department of Highways, Halifax.

Under a new order, drivers who have been unable to purchase plates this year may now get them at one-fourth the original cost. The plates will be good for the last four months of this year.

Even short-term licences are a move towards tax reduction, a need which might well be heeded in other parts including Quebec.

Trade Improves Daily in England

Indications of a steady improvement in trade are accumulating almost daily in England. At Newcastle, shipments of coal and coke have increased by more than 250,000 tons in two months, of which the quantity exported shows the trade improvement to be of international character.

The number of ships idle on the Tyne has been reduced. From the Yorkshire textile district comes news firms are extending their premises and this also favorably affects machinery makers.

Tug-boat Pilot Now Arrested on Murder Charge

Grenville Mishap Will be Investigated

Family of Victim Dissatisfied with Verdict of Coroner's Jury

Exonerated from blame in the tragic death of Captain Edmond Lizotte, of the barge J. W. Todd, who was crushed between the barge and the wall of the lock at Grenville, by a Coroner's jury following an inquest which was held on September 11 — Alphonse Portelance, pilot of the tug Dragg, was arrested in Montreal last week-end by the provincial police, on a charge of murder. He was taken to St. Jerome, for arraignment Monday.

It will be recalled, while there were rumors that Lizotte had been pushed by Portelance, a coroner's jury, under Dr. B. N. Wales, of St. Andrews E., exonerated him from all blame in connection with the death and returned a verdict of "death without criminal intent on the part of anyone."

Captain Lizotte was in command of the barge, J. W. Todd, carrying coal from Montreal to Ottawa, towed by the tug Dragg. It was during this trip near Grenville that the fatality happened.

According to Chief Maurice Lalonde, head of the provincial police, the family of the victim was not satisfied with this verdict and had communicated with the Attorney-General's Department in Quebec, asking for a complete investigation.

The Department ordered the provincial police to open an investigation into the case, and if sufficient ground could be found to show that Portelance had been the cause of Lizotte's death, he was to be arrested for murder and arraigned immediately.

On Saturday Portelance was taken into custody on a warrant charging him with murder. He was taken to provincial police headquarters, and later driven to St. Jerome to face arraignment.

The appearance of a "detector car" on the local C.P.R. section aroused curiosity in town during the early part of the week. The car, equipped with a siren and bell, is gasoline driven, and by means of sensitive machinery the crew are able to detect faults and irregularities in the rails over which the car is operated.

Mr. Wm. Copeland reports finding late raspberries in his garden, including many ripe and others green but in the process of ripening. The crop is somewhat unseasonable, but indicates the mildness of the weather for this time of the year.

Lakefield Harvest Festival

The Annual Harvest Festival of Trinity Church was held at Lakefield on Thursday last, and although the day was overcast and threatening there was a good congregation of worshippers to give thanks for the blessing of the year.

The old church looked beautiful, as usual, with the tribute of products from orchard, garden, field and flowers. Revd. Winter LeCras, Rector of Lachute, was the special preacher; and by his practical earnest words he brought home to the hearts of all the needs and blessings of Thankfulness. The grand old harvest hymns were well sung by all present.

The visiting clergy included the Reverend Messrs. W. J. H. Lummis, of Morin Heights; H. P. Mount, of Foster, P. Q.; W. LeCras, Rector of Lachute, besides the incumbent. The ladies excelled themselves by the daintiness and abundance of the luncheon they served in the Gibb Parish Hall at the close of the Service, and many appreciative comments were made at the success of their efforts.

The offertory at the Church Service, for the budget or missionary work of the church amounted to about $20.00. This parochial event brings to a most satisfactory conclusion the efforts of the ladies of the Trinity Church branch W. A. for the season, and once more they have demonstrated what a small band of devoted workers can accomplish in advancing the work of God's Church in our midst.

Member of Respected Local Family Died in B.C.

W. B. Walker, of Chilliwack, Was Native of Lachute

A native of this town in the person of William Bookless Walker, for 29 years resident in Chilliwack, B. C., passed away at that place on the 6th. inst., at the age of 70 years. The deceased gentleman, was a brother of Mrs. William Copeland, Mrs. Duncan McPhail and Mr. Andrew Walker, of these parts. He moved away from Lachute as a young man, farming in Macgregor, Manitoba, for 14 years, and moving later to Chilliwack. Here it is recorded he was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church, of which he had been an elder for the past 25 years. His death followed an acute illness, although his health had not been good for several months.

In the community where he lived, and farmed until 7 years ago, Mr. Walker was regarded with genuine friendship, and his undisputed integrity had won for him a high esteem. The Ayrshire was his specialty in dairy farming, and it is said he had built up one of the finest herds in the Fraser Valley, being a consistent prize winner.

Besides his two daughters resident at Chilliwack, and his two sisters and brother in Lachute, Mr. Walker is survived by another brother John R., also of the West.

Painful Mishap to Cushing Farmer

Mr. Frank Fuller, a farmer well known in the vicinity of Cushing, suffered a serious mishap last Thursday, falling from his silo, a height of 10 or 12 ft. on to a barn floor. The accident was not known until his son found him at the spot some time later. Dr. Mason was summoned immediately from Lachute, and Mr. Fuller was promptly removed to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, for investigation of injuries about the face and head. These were considered serious, and the victim's condition was precarious for several days. His friends and neighbors are pleased to learn, however, that he is now reported out of danger.

Repeated inquiries to Ottawa suggest a recurrence of the old confusion about Thanksgiving Day and Armistice Day. Thanksgiving Day will be observed on October 2 and Armistice Day on November 11. Each will be a separate public holiday with no connection between them.

Marriage of Interest Here

A house wedding ceremony of charm and interest was solemnized this week at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jousse, of Vankleek Hill, well known in this town, when their younger daughter, Eveline Mai, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas Callam Walcott, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Walcott, of Westmount, Que. Rev. Norman McCausland of the Baptist church officiated. The residence was tastefully decorated with Autumn blooms. Following the ceremony, which was both attractive and fashionable, a reception was held, largely attended by friends and relatives and out-of-town guests.

Mr. Walcott and his bride left later by motor for New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island and on their return will take up residence in Notre Dame de Grace.

For Our Boy Readers

"GOING ONE BETTER"

Dear Boys:

We were standing by the side of the river, the boy and I, watching our young companion as he jumped from one large stone to another on his way to the farther bank.

"I am afraid he will slip if he is not more careful," I said.

Just then the youngster miscalculated the distance of his next leap; there was a splash, and he was in the water. We stayed where we were, for the stream was shallow.

"He is dumb," said the boy at my side with disgust. "I can go one better than that."—"Do it then" was my answer.

Australian Visitor Views an American Football Game

(Extract from letters descriptive of a tour round the world)
by E. C. Bluett, Sydney, Australia

I determined to see an American football game. All the "big" football here seems to be in the hands of the Universities and they travel round the country during the short season, and generally speaking, it is a regular money-making game. In some of them the revenue from football pays the expenses of all the other athletic activities of the University. So anxious are they for good footballers that it is openly stated the entrance examination for a player is farcical. Some time ago, Columbia University rebelled against this and dropped football from its curriculum. Now they have placed a team in the field once more, but the papers say their rules are very strict, and before a man can get into the University he must be able "to add up and spell, and all that". It is a sad fact, however, that under these strict rules they are winning no matches.

The match I was going to see was between Minnesota and Michigan—and don't forget to call it Michigan. The game was to be played at Ann Arbor forty-five miles away, and the seat of Michigan University. The ticket to see the match—reserved seat—cost me three dollars. Then the railway fare—special excursion—was two dollars. We had to get on board the train at twelve o'clock and as soon as we started sandwich vendors came down the corridor and everybody got through an al fresco lunch on the train. From Ann Arbor station, it was only a quarter mile walk to the field or "the Bowl", as it is known here. The field is apparently the same size as ours, but the seats rise up from close to the playing area and they ascend equally all round, hence the term "bowl." As this match was played on the Michigan ground their students, numbering some thousands, filled one section of the bowl, and they had previously been drilled with regard to their activities as thoroughly as the footballers. The arrangements that controlled the barracking were quite remarkable. Lining the field at intervals and facing the audience were eight young students dressed in flannels and carrying megaphones. These were the "Yellers" and were evidently chosen for their jobs not merely an account of their vocal accomplishment but still more, their acrobatic and dancing ability. They were an entertainment in themselves. First through the megaphone they would give the call "Oyez Michigan! Oyez Michigan! Fight! Fight!" Their attitudes were all in unison and springing to one side they would punch the atmosphere calling "Oyez Michigan!" Then they were springing to the other side, punching the air again to another "Oyez Michigan!" Then again to the front while the "Fight! Fight! Fight!" was done with actions indicative of jumping on your opponent's ear. The thousand of students joined in this cry, it being the duty of the yellers with their fierce gestures to stir the crowd moving his eyes from each stone he used, and balancing his body to avoid slipping, he made a series of good jumps that soon enabled him to reach the other side in safety. Once there, he waved his hand to me in greeting.

I could not hear what he was saying, but I was convinced the words spoken meant, "That's one better!"

—Only a game of course, but try it out in your school work this year. Don't be satisfied with partial success, but aim for the highest and best in all you do.

You will find it's well worth while to be "Going one better".

Very carefully, without re-

JOHN'S AMBITION

The baker's cart is filled with things
That little children like,
Cake and pie and doughnut rings,
And cream puffs, milky white.

Soft, flaky, and currant buns,
Ginger bread and snaps,
Sometimes the baker gives me some
To share with other chaps.

When I grow up to be a man,
That's what I want to do,
Just drive and drive a baker's cart.

Each day, the long years through.

I'll crack my whip, and hurry on

Through all the busy streets,
But often I will stop my cart,
To give the children treats.

"Here comes the baker!" they will shout,

WHAT THE MONSTER WAS

"Hold on a minute, Mr. Bobo," said Chip-a-ree, "we cannot fly you know. You will have to tell us where the monster is and we will get there as fast as we can."

Bobo came back and sat down on the fence. "Do you know where the nicest red clover grows, over in the second meadow?" he asked.

"I should say we do," said Squirrely Grey Breast, "I hid a great many of my nuts under it last year. It is quite close to the big thorn tree, is it not?"

"Yes," Bobo said quite impatiently, "now I must hurry. Mrs. Bobo will be quite frightened."

As he flew away Chip-a-ree looked at Squirrely Grey Breast and said, "It seems to me he is a little late in thinking that Mrs. Bobo will be frightened! He should have stayed with her when he was there."

"What do you suppose that monster is?" asked Squirrely Grey Breast. He was thinking of the little apples that Mooley the Cow had knocked down and wondering if they should waste time to go and see the monster. It might not be anything worth seeing after all.

"Let's not stop to wonder, let's go and see," said Chip-a-ree. "I'll race you there."

Squirrels and chipmunks are fond of racing, so Grey Breast waited to hear no more, but dashed off along the stone fence. From there he jumped to the rail fence that separated the second meadow from the pasture where Mooley the Cow was standing switching her tail at the flies.

Mooley stopped chewing her cud long enough to stare a moment at Chip-a-ree and Squirrely Grey Breast as they raced past. Squirrely Grey Breast looked back over his shoulder at Mooley, winked one eye saucily and chattered, "Thanks, Mooley, for the apples."

Mooley only switched her tail a little harder, tossed her head, brought her cud into position and chewed quite unconcerned.

She did not know what Squirrely Grey Breast was chattering about, and did not care either, so Squirrely wasted time and breath for nothing.

Chip-a-ree was leading. They were almost at the thorn tree when Squirrely took a long leap and landed almost at the foot of the tree. With a saucy little chatter of defiance Squirrely raced up the thorn tree, diving this way and that way to avoid the prickly thorns that seemed to be reaching eager fingers for him.

Chip-a-ree contented himself by climbing up an old stump and then flattening himself out amongst the rough, uneven hollows on the top of it. Squirrely Grey Breast had won the race, but perhaps he would have a chance to sneak away first and get caught up on the apples! He was three behind now, as the one he had let fall when Bobo and Squirrely had made him angry, had rolled away down a hill into the doorway of old Clinker the Chuck's house, and Old Clinker had reached out his long hairy claw and dragged it inside. Chip-a-ree decided to let Clinker have it, as if he went to claim it Old Clinker would be certain to start up an argument about it, and, well—no-one with any sense ever started an argument with Old Clinker.

Mr. Bobo had arrived before them and was sitting disconsolately and helplessly on a big Scotch Thistle, watching Mrs. Bobo flying about, fluttering her wings and crying piteously.

She had been doing that when he arrived. He did not need to tell her that the nest was in danger. Mother birds are very keen about such things and Mrs. Bobo was, if anything, a little quicker than most birds to scent danger. Mr. Bobo had not been gone very long when she began to have a queer, uneasy feeling. She sat still as long as she could, or until her nerves got the better of her, then she popped up out of the grass and seated herself on the very thistle-top that Mr. Bobo was sitting on at the time that Squirrely and Chip-a-ree arrived.

She turned her head this way and that for some time before she located the noise. Then she saw a big monster—she did not know what kind of a monster it was, but two big four-legged animals were walking in front of it, and a man (at least when she was quite a young bird, her mother had told her that funny two-legged creature was a man.) But her mother had also said "a man will never harm the birds—so she had never been afraid of them.

This was something different though.—The man was sitting on the monster which was eating up the clover as it came along.

That is what it seemed like to Mrs. Bobo. The clover was there before the monster passed, and where he had passed, there was no clover there!

She of course could not see the clover lying on the ground from where she sat on the thistle-top.

"My nest, oh my nest!" she wailed, and began to flutter and fly distractedly around—not just where her nest was, but a little distance away. Birds have the idea that they must draw the enemy's attention away from the spot where their nest really is, and that is what Mrs. Bobo was trying to do—draw the attention of the monster from the spot where her nest was.

Daddy Craig, riding on the mowing machine knew the habits of birds. He stooped and watched her for a few minutes then said "You have a nest there, little Mother Bird, and I wish I knew just where it is."

—Do you suppose, Children, that Daddy Craig will destroy the little bobo-link's nest if he discovers it?

—We will find out next week just what happened to the nest.

—Lovingly,
AUNT JEAN.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON-SERMON

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Oct. 1.

The Golden Text is: (Psalms 33: 10) "The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to naught: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect."

The following passages are

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market.

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN."

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, here is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person. (Address furnished upon request.)

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

MERCHANTS ARRESTED FOR EXPOSING FOODSTUFFS

Three Montreal merchants were condemned to fines of $10 and costs or 15 days in jail for infraction of the city's by-law which forbids exposition of foodstuffs for sale in front of retail stores. Their prosecution by the city police indicates that the city is undertaking rigorous enforcement of that by-law which has to do with retail trade and legal sales.

PROTESTS ZONING LAW

Glen Ridge, N. J., afforded a topic for press reporters and a sight for screen photographers, when a citizen Mrs. Warren brought her tif with the town council and neighbors to a climax by christening her home Defiance Manor.

Mrs. Warren asked permission to sell her property for business purposes. Zoning regulations prevented this, so in protest Mrs. Warren painted her home in bizarre colors. Grotesque effigies adorned her lawn and old undergarments hung from lines. Some of the neighbors moved away.

ZUIDER ZEE LAND PLAN NOT GREATLY SUCCESSFUL

Land prices in Holland today are so low that the Zuider Zee reclamation scheme the immense undertaking which has been progressing since 1921 to make available for cultivation the huge tract of land inundated by the North Sea, has taken on the aspect of government competition in the real estate business, said P. Sluis, of the firm of Sluis Brothers Limited, Enkhuizen, Holland, growers of vegetable and flower seeds, visiting recently in Montreal.

Over 50,000 acres of land are now ready for cultivation, he stated, and the scheme was that the land should be rented to the farmer for 10 years, after which he would have the option to buy at a nominal rate. Unfortunately the plan is meeting with little success. Farmers are showing no great interest in acquiring the reclaimed ground, although it is very suitable for the growing of mixed crops such as they are accustomed to.

A lot of men who constantly say "that the boss has no sense" would be out of jobs if he did have.

UNEMPLOYED DRIVE CARS TO RELIEF DEPOT

Ownership of an automobile is no cause for being denied public aid and free food in Los Angeles, Calif., where the welfare agencies hold that motors are almost as necessary to most workmen as are clothing and shelter.

The result is that streets surrounding emergency goods depots are congested with the automobiles of indigents who call to receive the rations provided for them under the various pauper and relief acts. In some cases the parked vehicles extend for blocks around the distributing centres.

HOW YOUTH PLANS A TOWN

Some time ago some earnest town planners of Norfolk County, Massachusetts, wishing to find out if the youth of their towns had any coherent ideas on the subject of community planning, sponsored a competition among school children, offering prizes for the best plans with written explanations of what the ideal town of the year 2032 should be like. The results of the competition were little short of amazing.

In the town of Dedham some 500 plans were exhibited in the high school gymnasium. Those 500 plans are really 500 concise and intelligent answers to the query, "Whither the youth of today?" For they reflect spontaneously ambitions and aspirations.

The plans unconsciously point the direction of thought among the boys and girls of today. Few of the towns are planned with any show of ostentation and wealth; practically all of them rule out the slum entirely. The youthful imagination has in most cases been directed logically toward problems that beset our modern world. Traffic has been well handled in all plans. Most of them allow for high-speed transportation by rocket ships and cars.

"You said," exclaimed the irate caller, "that I had resigned from the Town Council, and intended retiring from business into private life."

"But," protested the editor, "all that is quite true—"

"Quite. But you printed the information under "Public Improvements."

HOW TO BE A SUCCESSFUL WRITER

A 21-year old amateur novelist in London admitted having plagiarized the "Maltese Falcon," best selling detective story by the American novelist, Dashiell Hammett, "just for fun."

By way of practice he wrote up his version of the "Maltese Falcon," which he had read many times, and "unthinkingly" really for fun, submitted the work to a publisher who accepted it as an original novel.

Which only serves to illustrate the irresponsible hands which are slinging the literary hash these days. How the essayists and novelists of the Romantic Revival would turn in their graves, could they but cast an eye over the output of modern literature and the material motives which stir its production.

ILLEGAL HUNTERS WARNED

In the face of complaints received from different parts of the province regarding breach of the game law, the Department of Colonization, Game and Fisheries now stands prepared to adopt drastic measures in an attempt to stamp out hunting under illegal conditions. A warning to this effect was voiced recently by J. A. Bellisle, superintendent of fish and game for the department.

Local organizations, wardens, and individuals are ardent for protection, while in certain parts the laws are still flagrantly ignored. The experience has been that, in the past, offenders have been let off with-out penalty, and the gravest hitch in enforcement lies in the inefficiency of the law. Fish and game enthusiasts need just such encouragement as the foregoing announcement by J. A. Bellisle, but their work must still prove ineffective unless the threat is carried out.

Headline from Montreal daily, "Strong Tone on Local Egg Market." Might suggest removing the editor's office a few degrees to windward.

"Ideal Man" as Seen by Public Health Service

Some men will find comfort in plans and specifications put out by the public health service, the Spokane Spokesman-Review remarks. If a man is between thirty and fifty years old, weighs from 160 to 170, and is not more than 5 feet 8 inches tall, he is a pretty fine fellow. At least, he is likely to have more strength and endurance than men who do not fit the specifications. If he is a little short on strength and endurance, he has only himself to blame, and should at once begin to make the most of his opportunities.

Wives of men whose measurements are correct will, if wise, refuse to ignore the public health service's information. They will point out that a man at the peak of his physical power should not shrink from rowing a boat over the glossy surface of a lake or from propelling a lawn mower up and down a gently rolling terrace. They will sweetly but audibly wonder why a paltry 18 holes of golf should leave a stalwart 170-pounder too exhausted to paint the garage.

There remains the problem of keeping at or below 170 pounds. This is a matter that cannot be airily dismissed, especially during the trying period between the ages of thirty-five and fifty. It is during those myopic years that a man keeps warning himself that he must get more exercise. The knowledge that he has great potential strength and endurance will not flatten the waistline. The strength and endurance have to be given an occasional chance to assert themselves.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, Sept. 27. The Bennett government having turned down the NRA idea for Canada, or anything similar, what plans are they developing for pulling us out of the depression?

As near as I can make out, the attitude of the ministry on the big problems of the day is as follows:

1. Unemployment. A continuation of the "direct relief" methods of the past two years, supplemented by "useful public works" in those places—few—alas—where the pocket-books of cities and provinces can stand further strain. Absorption of as many single transients as possible into construction camps similar to those now clearing air landing fields under the National Defence department.

2. External trade. Reliance upon the "Empire parts" to provide an enlarging market for Canadian commodities, especially meats and grains, lumber and base metals.

An attempt is to be expected to sign with the United States a reciprocal trade agreement which will trade commodities free or at a low duty, care being taken to select those articles not likely to damage the industry of the other country. Canada would hope to sell more cattle and fish in particular.

Further efforts to develop Canadian business in the Orient will be made.

No concessions of importance on import trade. Duties will be kept at their present levels, and "dumping" from other countries will not be tolerated.

Lower Passenger Rates?

3. The railways. Encouragement of a policy of "make both ends meet" by co-operation and further economies. Some day soon a Board of Trustees will be created, but there doesn't seem to be any hurry about it.

The railways themselves are evidently planning to experiment further with reductions in passenger rates, and some improvement in freight and express service in the hope of reclaiming some business captured by trucks and buses.

4. The National Budget. Taxation having proved disappointing, and the limit for the time being about reached there, further efforts to trim expenses may be expected. This is the "tighten our belts" policy advocated by chambers of commerce generally, by St. James St. and, in his Montreal broadcast, by Premier Bennett.

5. Monetary and Banking. With the MacMillan report as moral support a bill introducing a Central Bank as part of the financial machinery will most assuredly arrive next session. It will begin on a modest scale and it would be unreasonable to expect it to have a very profound effect on credit conditions or price levels in Canada for several years.

Inflation of deflation will, it is expected, be allowed to come and go as the actions of the British pound and the U. S. dollar dictate Canada's trade being so intimately bound up with the commerce of these countries that its currency is likely to float between them. If the U. S. continues to fall away from gold—inflation, in other words—Canada will have little choice but to follow, according to the authorities here.

More Borrowing.

To meet loans becoming due, the first being about $170,000,000 on November 1st, as well as to provide funds for deficits on the Canadian National and the federal government expenditures, more borrowing is inevitable. A $225,000,000 loan is being prepared for now. If the British market continues favorable, more money will be borrowed there, it is expected. There is a tendency to shy away from New York just now. However, if New York does inflate to any marked degree, it would be good business to borrow there now, before she starts.

A National Government? Just talk, so far as Ottawa is concerned.

To sum up the above: "the old axe and tax" cure for hard times. Tighten belts. Economize. It won't be popular out in the country generally. Any kind of dramatics which

GRENVILLE—MISSIONARY MEETING

The September meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Grenville Baptist Church was held at the residence of Mrs. Walter Murray on the 19th. inst. Sixteen ladies were present and a very interesting meeting was held. This being the close of the year there was considerable business for discussion. More money was raised for Home, Foreign and Grande Ligne than last year.

The Missionaries in India were remembered in prayer. The circle expressed deeply the loss of two valued members by death, Mrs. R. McKimmie and Mrs. Fred Townsend, and extended sympathy to their families, hoping they will strive to fill the vacant places in circle and church. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting to twenty-four persons.

HOMES—WITH FARMS

There's one housing project in Kansas that is worth watching. That new idea, the "garden home," designed to give the owner or renter an opportunity to raise part of his food while "making his living" at other work is to get a practical tryout near Dodge City, as the result of a Government loan to the Ford County Housing Association. The association will build 100 houses, each on a two-acre tract. Adjacent to each tract will be a three-acre one owned by a subsidiary of the organization. House rentals will be $8.50 a month for the first six months, increasing gradually to $22 a month in the 9th. year and—according to present plans—fixed at that rate thereafter. The garden tracts will rent at $5 an acre a year plus $3 an acre for irrigation services. Another 500 acres of dry pasture nearby will be available at $1 an acre a year. R.F.C. examiners think that revenues from Dodge City workers will make the project self-supporting.

Proprietors Want City Manager.

Petitions were circulated in Lachine, Que., by an organization of city proprietors to request the Metropolitan Commission to appoint a city manager. The petitions asked that the manager be under the direct and absolute control of the commission and that the financial and all other city departments be reorganized. It was further urged that the commission prevent the annexation of the City of Lachine to Montreal.

Nudists Refused Bathing Facilities.

The request of a nudist cult for permission to gather at a mid-city swimming pool twice weekly was refused by Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia.

Moore was faced with the problem of deciding whether to permit members of the cult to disport in the pool after an official of the organization asked police sanction. He said the cult had more than 200 members.

GETS WHAT IS COMING TO HIM

A practical joke that is worth printing is seldom found and one that is humorous, timely and pointing a moral or something is a rare jewel. This one happens to be true and took place in Franklin county. A wealthy but mean farmer in a neighboring town had a bad habit of going into a store, trying on a suit of clothes, shoes, or overcoat, and then, when he found a fit, would ask the price and being told would walk out saying, "I can do better at Sears & Roebuck's". This had been going on for years, and was one of those things about which nothing could be done. Last fall, however, the farmer in question advertised apples for sale in a country paper. It was a chance of a lifetime, and four or five bright wits immediately took advantage of it.

Starting at milking time the phone of the apple vendor rang at intervals of about five minutes. Each time his wife had to call him in from the barn, which was quite a distance from the house. The conversation ran about like this:

"Hello, is this Mr.——?"

"Speaking."

"I hear you have some apples for sale."

"Yes."

"Are they good ones?"

Two minutes of apple eulogizing follows.

"They sound all right. What is the price?"

"Such and such a bushel."

"Too much, I can do better at Sears & Roebuck's" and up went the receiver.

This was repeated periodically, until at length the patron of Sears & Roebuck began to smell a rat, and refused to answer the phone any more. Whether the party in question sold his apples deponent sayeth not, but it seems that the method employed should have resulted in a cure for his smartness.

IN MEMORIAM

SPECK.—In loving memory of Mrs. Michael Speck, who passed away the 26th. of September 1930.

A few more seasons come,

IN MEMORIAM

GAULEY.—In loving memory of our dear brother Gordon, who passed away Sept. 29th., 1927.

His voice is now silent,
His heart is now cold
And his sweet smile of welcome that meet us of old,
We miss him, we mourn him in silence unknown
And dwell on the memory of days that have gone.

MAN SAYS RAM KILLED WOLF

A Noelville farmer is authority for a story that one of his sheep had killed a wolf. He said he had missed several lambs and was watching his flocks closely. He ran towards a group of sheep in which a disturbance was apparent and arrived in time, he declared, to see a large ram charge a wolf that had sunk its fangs into a sheep's neck. The wolf, he added, died of a fractured skull and a broken neck.

In darkest Africa two natives were watching a leopard chasing a large fat man.

"Can you spot the winner?" asked one.

"The winner is spotted," replied the other.

What the Gray House Hid . . .

By Wyndham Martyn

The house itself was honest. Nothing about its spacious comfort, agreeable architecture and beautiful surroundings but suggested hominess and hospitality. And, as matters turned out, the domicile did not belie its appearance. It was entirely man's evil which besmirched its reputation, an evil for which none of the various owners of the place had been responsible. Thrills and comedy combine in this charming tale of a country mansion.

ST. FRANCIS AND THE BIRDS

Following the life of St. Francis of Assisi, who died more than seven hundred years ago, there began a revolution in man's relation to bird life which has never died and which in these latter days is advancing with the creation of bird sanctuaries in all parts of the world. Always there has been a company of disciples, worldwide in extent, whose lives have been sweetened and purified by the love of birds and whose inspiration, fidelity, joy, and love in the presence of bird life, have been sustained and renewed by the immortal memory of Saint Francis of Assisi.

"Thou Saint Francis, bleaser of our wings, Priest of the morning lark that soars and sings, Confessor of the Finches, loving Dreamer,
Who by thy faith became the Bird's Redeemer."

Rostand.

From the great mind before which Saint Francis bowed in such exquisite humility, the mind of Christ, there issued some mysterious and mighty power which survives all the controversy, all the bitterness, all the insincerity and the ugly amalgam that has marred the history of the world. In the sanctuaries in all parts of the presence of it men know that they are in contact with the greatest power in the world, the power of love. To Saint Francis this power was the secret of life and religion and through it his immortality is a pushing emotion, ever beating in the hearts of all who love birds. His contemporaries are but names in the history of the world. There came little from them that the world needed. From Saint Francis there has issued, as from the mind of Christ, a stream of emotional loveliness which has never run dry and which has cleansed the hearts of men and refreshed their spirits when no other power could avail. Many men, scarcely understanding themselves, expert marksmen who have tried their guns into the wilderness for the greater portion of their lives, have come in contact with the Bird's Redeemer and have put away their guns. "In the dear near Francis of Assisi".

A century ago, it is said, Goele visited the little Umbrian town of Assisi; he looked for a moment at the Portico of the ancient temple of Minerva and then he went away. There came little to detain him. Now three hotels can scarcely accommodate the crowd of visitors of all nationalities who flock to Assisi at Easter. They do not go to see the temple of Minerva; there are better temples at Rome and elsewhere. They go because Assisi is the home of Saint Francis and to visit the bird sanctuary. A mile from the town is this bird sanctuary, bearing the inscription on its walls "Shooting strictly prohibited". Within the walls is a tiny monastery. A priest points out an old ilex tree where Saint Francis used to converse with and sing with the birds. The sanctuary is a world of bird song. The traveler who supplies this description concludes: "The sense that the greatest of bird lovers loved this place about all others gives to the familiar melodies of Blackcap, Wren and Chaffinch a lovelier and more spiritual meaning." Here Saint Francis "lives again, in minds made better by his presence."

When Rostand set himself to study the mysterious birds, in his "Chanticleer", he found it quite impossible to separate them from their beloved Saint.

The heavy rains of Wednesday played havoc with excavations for the new sewer being laid on Main Street. Notwithstanding the shoring of the sides, the sand seeped through with the water until it blocked the pipe. It was some considerable time before a clearance was effected, to let the water away. Much depth of rock is encountered, but there is great satisfaction in the fact that the work now being done is of a permanent nature and according to engineering specifications for a proper sewerage system when the town sees fit to adopt it.

The objective of the Bible is to give all people of every race and nation and tribe the chance to read the Story of the Cross of Christ in their own mother-tongue.

The Society has published and circulated the Bible, the New Testament, or at least some portion of Scripture in more than 650 different languages.

During the year 1931-32 a total of 10,500,000 Bibles, Testaments and Scripture portions was sent out.

These books, no matter what they cost, are sold at prices which the poorest can afford to pay, so that everyone, at home and abroad, can buy at least a Gospel.

The foreign missions in all parts of the world get supplies of the Scriptures for their work from the Bible Society, and get them free of charge.

Nuremberg Powder Horn Splendid Work of Art

Among unusual displays at the Metropolitan Museum of Art is a powder horn made of a stag's antler, elaborately decorated with silver-gilt mountings. It was made in Nuremberg about 1620, at a time when hunting as a sport of noblemen was at its height, and is tinged yellow with age. Its face, worn by constant handling, is carved in relief with the figure of a dismounted knight in full armor, kneeling before a wayside crucifix. Above the knight are clouds, God the Father with an orb, and the dove of the Holy Ghost. On the back is carved a design of floral scrolls.

Silver-gilt caps cover the three terminals of the horn, the tops of the caps and the spout being engraved with foliate scrolls of unusual elegance, their sides chased in relief with cherubs' heads, scrolls and birds pecking at fruit. A slide, gracefully sculptured, opened and closed the aperture controlling the flow of powder into the spout.—New York Herald Tribune.

Corsica Worth a Visit

Those who want a short holiday off the beaten track will appreciate a visit to the French island of Corsica in the Mediterranean, says a traveler. Its rugged mountains and superb forests tower up from the sea as do those of Norway. The island is covered with pines, beaches and chestnuts; and, like nearby Italy, has acres and acres of olive yards. The artists who have long favored the island for its beauty called it "the impossible island," where unbelievable loveliness, not found elsewhere, become true and seen by all. At Ajaccio is to be seen in the Palace Letitia, the birthplace of Napoleon Bonaparte with relics and memories of his career.

Early Silk Spinning

Perhaps the first mention of the silkworm in western literature is that by Aristotle, pupil of Plato and teacher of Alexander the Great, who lived in the Fourth century B. C. He speaks of it as: "A great worm which has horns and so differs from others. At its first metamorphosis it produces a caterpillar, then a bombylius, then a chrysalis—all the three changes taking place within six months. From this animal women separate and reel off the cocoons, and afterwards spin them. It is said that silk was first spun in the island of Cos, by Pamphile, daughter of Plates."

Soldier's Idea of Action

This is my philosophy of action: Every time you've a task before you examine it carefully, take exact measure of what is expected of you. Then make your plan, and in order to execute it properly create for yourself a method. Never improvise. The fundamental qualities for good execution of a plan are, first, naturally, intelligence; then discernment and judgment which enable one to recognize the best methods to attain it; then singleness of purpose; and, lastly, what is most essential of all, namely, will—stubborn will.—Marshal Foch.

Grace was loath to accept the decision. "As I said, I'm sorry. You owe it to yourself, if you possibly can go. Your life has been so narrow, Mother—just here, all the time. You ought to get out now and see things."

Unwittingly, as so often she did, Grace had hurt her Mother's feelings. For a moment Abbie nursed her little hurt and then she said quietly, "You know, Grace, it's queer, but I don't feel narrow. I feel broad. How can I explain it to you, so you would understand? I've seen everything—and I've hardly been away from this yard. I've seen cathedrals in the snow on the Lombardy poplars. I've seen the sun set behind the Alps over there when the clouds have been piled up on the edge of the prairie. I've seen the ocean billows in the rise and the fall of the prairie grass. I've seen history in the making—three ugly wars flare up and die down. I've sent a lover and two brothers to one, a son and son-in-law to another, and two grandsons to the other. I've seen the feeble beginnings of a raw state and the civilization that developed there, and I've been part of the beginning and part of the growth. I think travel is a rare privilege and I'm glad you can have it. But not every one who stays at home is narrow and not every one who travels is broad. I think if you can understand humanity—can sympathize with every creature—can put yourself into the personality of every one—you're not narrow—you're broad"—Bess Aldrich, in "A lantern in Her Hand." (New York: Appleton.)

One hears much of commendation for the attitude of the Mayor and Council in flood-lighting the Memorial Park and the Monument in particular. This is a further mark towards improvement and it is but fair to say that the Gatineau Power Company are generously furnishing the light for this purpose, without cost to the town.

Lesson for October 8

SAUL IN DAMASCUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 9:1-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. II Cor. 5:17.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Learning to Love Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Becoming Jesus' Friend.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Saul Becomes a Christian.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is Conversion?

1. Saul's Violent Hatred of the Lord's Disciples (vv. 1, 2).
He knew full well that unless the movement set on foot by Jesus was stopped it would supersede Judaism. He was ignorant of the genius of Christianity. He did not know that "the blood of martyrs is the seed of the church." Prosperity may ruin the church, but persecution never. Stephen's testimony intensified his hatred instead of softening his spirit.

2. Saul Kicking Against the Pricks (vv. 3-9).
The figure here is that of the eastern ox driver following the ox with a sharp iron fixed to the end of a pole. If the animal rebels and kicks against the sharp iron, it but injures itself.

3. A light from heaven (v. 3). The time had now come for the Lord to intervene. Saul was stricken with blindness and fell to the earth.

4. A voice from heaven (vv. 4, 5). This was the Lord's voice calling personally to Saul. In answer to Saul's inquiry, Jesus said, "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest."

5. Saul's Inquiry (v. 6). The dictator is now willing to be dictated to.

6. Christ's answer (v. 6). He told Saul to go into Damascus where information would be given him as to what he must do.

7. Saul entering Damascus (vv. 7-9). The savage persecutor went quite humbly into Damascus, led by his attendants where for three days he remained blind and fasted. The day is coming when all who oppose the work of God shall get a sight of the glory of the Son, either in salvation or in condemnation (Phil. 2:10, 11; Rev. 9:15-17).

III. Ananias Ministers to Saul (vv. 10-19).

1. Ananias' vision (vv. 10-12). He was instructed to go to Saul, given the name of the street and Saul's host.

2. Ananias' fear and hesitancy (vv. 13-17). He knew of Saul's ministry and the authority by which he came. The Lord encouraged him to go, assuring him that Saul was no longer an enemy but a chosen vessel to bear his name before the Gentiles.

3. Ananias' obedience (v. 17). He went to the house where Saul was staying, put his hand on his arm, and affectionately addressed him as brother. He informed Saul that the Lord had sent him with a twofold message.
a. "That thou mightest receive thy sight."
b. "Be filled with the Holy Ghost."

4. Saul baptized (vv. 18, 19). After Saul received his sight, Ananias baptized him. It was fitting that Saul should be baptized by one not having official rank, since his ministry as an apostle to the Gentiles was to be entirely independent of the twelve.

IV. Saul Preaching in Damascus (vv. 20-25).

1. What he preached (v. 20). He preached Christ, that he is the Son of God. This is the heart of the message of every minister and Sunday school teacher.

2. Where he preached (v. 20). It was in the synagogue. Because this was the place of assembly for the Jews, Saul took advantage of the opportunity to tell them that Jesus of Nazareth was the very Son of God.

3. The effect of his preaching (vv. 21-25).
a. People amazed (v. 21). They knew that the very one who had been the leader in persecuting the Christians in Jerusalem and had come to Damascus for the express purpose of bringing them bound to the chief priest, was now passionately advocating that which he had vehemently sought to destroy.

b. Jews confounded (v. 22). Saul increased in spiritual strength and knowledge so that he confounded the Jews, proving that Jesus was not only the Son of God, but their Messiah.

c. The Jews sought to kill him (vv. 23-25). Being unable to meet his skillful use of the Scriptures, they took counsel how that they might destroy him. So intent were they upon killing him that they watched the gate of the city day and night that they might take him. He escaped their wrath, being let down at night in a basket by the wall.

A NEGLECTED MARKET

We spent a part of the summer in one of our country's Lake regions. Lakes and rivers abounded—so did summer visitors. There were plenty of opportunities for making money but no one seemed to see them, or if they did they passed them up. It was a farming community, but if the farmers were prosperous, the looks of the farms belied it. Only an occasional farm looked prosperous. Possibly the absence of paint made things look worse than they were—there did not seem to be a lick of paint in the whole county. We bought our milk, butter, cream, from a nearby farm. But it was very unsatisfactory. We got the milk and cream in the evening and put it on ice immediately, yet most mornings the cream was sour before breakfast and the milk soured before supper. The consequence was that we quit buying cream and used much less milk than we otherwise would have. Sometimes the butter was good and sometimes it was of such quality that one used as little as was possible. There was carelessness in the handling of the milk someplace as it should not have soured so quickly. It meant loss of money throughout the summer as this particular cottage is occupied all summer each year. Only once in a while could we get any eggs and the chickens were not ready for use. Once there were no eggs in any of the stores and we had to wait until they were sent from a packing-house—and this in a farming country.

The mail came in the afternoon and the main street would be lined with summer visitors, milling about from one store to the other, looking for something to buy other than staples. You couldn't buy vegetables, you couldn't buy fruit. Eggs came from the packing-house and chickens were unobtainable. I understand that Huntsville has started a farmer's market on Saturday to the mutual benefit of the farmers and the summer visitors. This village of which I write is not as large as Huntsville but it is large enough to have some concerted action. I wonder if there is a Women's Institute in the community. There would be good work for any Institute in a district which gets cottagers—to encourage the growing of vegetables and fruits, and to provide other supplies for their visitors. It is a queer thing but it is almost invariably hard to get fresh vegetables when at a cottage. If one does get them it is always late in the season, as the gardens are never put in early enough to be of much use in July.

Responsibility for Damages through Stray Animals.

Says the Collingwood Enterprise-Bulletin, Ontario:—By a decision given in a division court case in Barrie, the responsibility for damages caused through stray animals running at large on the roads in townships where they are forbidden, falls back on the owners. This creates a new situation, one that individuals and municipalities should note very carefully. Had not the township issued its notice, the inference is that it, rather than the owner of the horse, would have been mulcted for the claim, which it also should be noted, was awarded in full.

Parisian Contractor Expressed Surprise

Felix Mesnard, contractor, of Paris, France, was astonished that he did not find more modernistic architecture in Montreal, considering that Canada is a new country. He found much less of modernistic style in the Canadian metropolis than in the age old countries of Europe. The visitor, en route, with 16 other European visitors, to the Chicago Fair greatly admired the architecture of Notre Dame Church. On his return M. Mesnard will report to a French syndicate concerning carpentry practices in Canada and the United States.

This particular county has plenty of wild raspberries and blueberries and there would have been a ready sale for them. It is a snow-bound district and the winter nights must be long. People are looking for hand-made things these days and I am sure it would be easy to sell hooked rugs or patchwork quilts. A market at hand but no supplies.

LARGE MEALS ARE DANGEROUS

It very often happens that when a person is very hungry they are apt to be very tired too. The tendency is to eat more than usual and because of the tiredness it is too difficult for the digestive apparatus to handle and trouble results. This is particularly true of those who have gall-bladder trouble or indeed any weakness in the digestive tract. This must never be forgotten. Never eat too large a meal. If you are so hungry that the ordinary sized meal does not appease, eat a small meal and a couple of hours later eat again. Too large a meal is one of the most frequent causes of gall-bladder attack.

NINE DAY PICKLE

Wash an 11 quart basket of cucumbers. Cut in pieces of suitable size if cucumbers are larger than gherkins. Soak for 3 days in a brine using 1 cup of salt to 2 quarts of water. Make enough brine to cover the cucumbers well. Let stand for 3 days. Drain and let stand in clear cold water for three days changing the water each day. Cook very gently in weak vinegar, adding a small piece of alum, for 1½ hours. Make a syrup of 2 quarts white wine vinegar, 4 lbs. white sugar, 1 oz. all-spice, 1 oz. celery seed, 1 oz. cassia buds, tying the spice in a bag. Pour over the pickles. Drain each day for three days, heat the syrup and pour over the pickles. Store in a crock tightly covered or bottle when hot the last day.

CHILLI SAUCE

2 11 quart baskets of tomatoes
8 large apples
8 large onions
6 tablespoons salt
4 cups white sugar
1 teaspoon ground red pepper
2 tablespoons mixed ground spice
2 cups vinegar
Skin and cut tomatoes in pieces. Cook for some time to reduce the amount of juice. Put apples and onions through the grinder and add all the other ingredients. Cook until thick stirring frequently. Bottle while hot.

Town Criers Still Function.

Town criers are still to be found in many out-of-the-way places in England. At Southwold, on the Suffolk coast, for instance, the town crier comes out daily in three-cornered hat and full-skirted scarlet coat, ringing a bell vigorously to attract the attention of the passer-by, to make announcements such as the loss of small articles by visitors and the impounding of cattle. Similar functions are performed by the town crier of Keswick, in the Lake district.

Compliments to City Officials.

An unsolicited testimonial was received by the City Clerk of Montreal, congratulating the authorities on several services which one taxpayer, at least, does not mind paying for. The telegram was received as follows:—"Mr. Etienne Gauthier, City Clerk, Montreal—Congratulations civic administration as to area, population and revenue lowest cost North America . . . Duffresne finest police; Carson faithful fireman. Nowhere in the world is a decent man so secure as in Montreal. Fatigued listening to economically unacquainted. We who pay appreciate your valiant efforts. Citizen James Sarnfield McCarrey."

Seeing Quebec

THE LAURENTIDES
NATIONAL PARK

There are several forest reserves in the Province of Quebec but none that offers more opportunities for camping and touring than the Laurentides National Park.

This park extends from Stoneham, a few miles north of Quebec City, to the very shores of Lac Saint-Jean. An excellent road (No. 15) traverses the park from North to South. The road is partly gravel but maintained in very good condition throughout the touring season. Before entering the park, the road passes through the characteristic French-Canadian villages of Charlesbourg, Notre-Dame des Laurentides and Stoneham.

Permits to sojourn or camp in the park may be obtained from the Dept. of Colonization, Game and Fisheries, in Quebec City. Tourists however who merely wish to go through the park may obtain a special permit at the entrance. The latter permit entitles them to stop for a short stay at two camps, specially organized for the use of transient tourists,—the first at lake Horatio Walker, thirty miles from Stoneham, and the other, at lac des Arpentours, twenty-two miles from the Mesy entrance.

Hunting is forbidden at all times within the limits of the park and neither tourists or campers are allowed to carry fire-arms. But trout fishing is allowed. It is in fact one of the attractions of the park. There is really only one variety of fish in the numerous rivers and fifteen hundred lakes of the National Park,—the incomparable red trout, brilliant of hue, combative, and of exquisite taste. The bag limit is a most liberal one. Each sportsman may catch as many as forty trout per day, though the total weight of his daily catch must not exceed twenty pounds. At the expiration of his permit, having spent two or more days in the park, he has the right to take away with him a legal two day's catch, namely eighty trout, not weighing more than forty pounds in total weight.

Twenty or more camps have already been built and equipped by the Department of Colonization within the three sections of the park, already opened and organized. These camps may be rented by tourists from the Department. Reservations should be made some time in advance, these camps being in great demand throughout the season.

Each camp has been built near a lake, in a picturesque environment, and is equipped with all modern conveniences; clean rooms, bath rooms, running water, excellent cuisine, telephone and garage. Far from the noise of city streets or of traffic ways tanga and bracing, these camps are ideal places for forest cures and quiet vacations.

The price varies according to the camp: from $3.50 to $7.00 a day per person. This price includes room, meals, fishing rights and the use of boats.

Few sports in the Province offer better fishing opportunities than the park. A goodly bag of trout can be guaranteed to the most inexperienced fishermen.

All lovers of nature and outdoor sports,—all addicts of trout fishing are cordially invited to the park. Further details may be obtained by calling at the Provincial Tourist Bureau, 1013 Dominion Square Building, Montreal, or by writing to the Provincial Tourist Bureau, House of Parliament, Quebec City.

Recreation -- Its Place in the Social Fabric

Turning to another aspect, if we wish chil- dren to grow into healthy citizens we must en- sure them plenty of fresh air, exercise and sun- light. In narrow streets, the air is not fresh, sunlight is scarce, and there is not sufficient scope for exercise. The connection between lack of sunlight and rickets and between lack of fresh air and such diseases as tuberculosis, is pointed out by physicians. Where we have crowded city areas without adequate play-space for children, we are definitely piling up debts. Town Councils may argue we cannot afford play- spaces, land is too valuable, and needed for shop and factory-sites. The truth is, if we will open our eyes, that we cannot afford not to make play- grounds in such areas. A few pounds invested in obtaining healthy conditions for children will save thousands of pounds lost by rearing chil- dren in unhealthy surroundings. The municip- ality which is penny-wise in not providing play- grounds will undoubtedly prove itself pound-fool- ish in a few years' time. It is the duty of priv- ate citizens as well as of public bodies to see that due provision is made in this direction. Public opinion has often been aroused by a few in- dividuals, and again and again small groups and private societies have blazed the trail which civic bodies have followed. Has the private in- dividual the needs of the children and thus of the community, at heart, who turns away from the difficulty, saying "what can I do? Am I my brother's keeper?"

More and more, the creation of play-grounds is coming to be considered a matter of public policy. Since the war, France, Belgium, Italy, China, India and Japan have established super- vised play-grounds. The first supervised play- ground was started in Boston, U.S.A., as early as 1886. This was a so-called "sand-garden" and the experiment was so successful that the movement spread rapidly. Germany followed America's example in 1892. The Play-Ground and Recreation Association of America was formed in 1906 and a hand book on "Play-grounds and Recreation" is published annually while a Pan-Pacific Conference on Play-grounds was held in 1927. Every effort should be made to bring the matter before public bodies, and to bring pressure to bear on civic and national authorities to remedy the defect.

The Report of the Conference on Church Politics, Economics and Citizenship held at Bir- mingham in 1924, to consider the subject of "Leisure" makes the statement:—"As games and amusements administer to joy, they are spiritual exercises. If a natural form of spiritual expression is comradeship in play, we must foster the comradeship of good play as likely to lead on to a fuller conception of spiri- tual values." The same Report significantly points out "what is needed is not a number of isolated and inconsistent plans appropriate only to a single department of human activity, but an ideal of corporate life constructed on consistent principles and capable of being applied to and fulfilled in every sphere." That is to say, the ideal of the right use of leisure must be an ideal of leisure in its whole relation to life, as touch- ing every department of human interest and ac- tivity—an ideal that considers leisure not a lux- ury, but a necessity, a true and integral part of life.

For a vast number of people in the present economic structure of society, it is only in their recreations and hours of leisure, that they can exercise aesthetic qualities or satisfy the urge to create. Ernest Raymond, addressing the Con- ference on "Education and Leisure" at Vancou- ver in 1929, interpreted the "Joy of Living" as getting the full value of life by yielding to the impulse to create, to build beautifully, to enjoy and confer happiness by producing freely and dis- interestedly for the benefit of others, and by achieving intimacy and delighting in our fellow beings.

Where, even in times of material prosperity, thousands of men and women are debarred from all creative work in their trade or occupation, it is increasingly necessary that the happiness and well-being of the community should be safe- guarded by affording due facilities for the ex- ercise of their creative faculties in their leisure hours. The creative spirit is the divine spark in man, the only eternal values man has formed throughout the ages are Truth, Goodness and Beauty, and towards these values all Science, Re- ligion, Art reaches out. The balance of these three great values alone can produce harmony in our spiritual life. All civic authorities should beware how they allow the creative spirit to be stultified in urban districts, how they allow large groups of people to grow up, surrounded by ugliness, almost entirely cut off from the beauties and processes of nature with scarcely a potful of soil to grow a plant, with streets concreted and asphalted without a corner for a tree or shrub and little in the architecture of the houses and factories to feed the inborn love of beauty. What have streets and bricks and mortar to do with recreation? Much, since the daily walk of children to and from school, the passing of men and women to and from their work, takes place out of school hours, out of work hours, when the mind is freed from lessons and the business of earning a livelihood, and is receptive of outside impressions, and since it has already been pointed out that recreation must be considered in all its relations to human activity, if we are to grasp the fundamental principle of the use of leisure. All communities and civic authorities should con- sider beauty a normal part of everyday life for everyone. We have far to go before we attain a proper civic pride—a civic pride that will con- sider beauty in relation to railway stations, fac- tories and offices as well as to parks, monuments and fountains and to private houses. Does our civic pride even lead us to consider health in relation to basement shops, and arcades, and their adequate means of ventilation.

Son (home for vacation): Well, dad, I've brought some books on farming for you to dig into.

Dad (a farmer): Yes, and I've just bought another eighty acres for you to dig into.

The fishing season now about to close has been better than average this year at French River, famous for muskies, and Nipigon River with its adjacent islands, continent-known for speckled trout. Also in the Sharbot Lake section of Eastern Ontario, within easy reach of Montreal, bass, pike, and pickerel and oven salmon trout up to 17 pounds in weight have afforded excellent sport this season.

The 42,500 ton Canadian Pa- cific liner Empress of Britain, flagship of the company's At- lantic fleet, is scheduled to leave New York December 23 on a cruise to the West Indies. Return to New York will be January 3, enabling the Em- press to sail on her annual round-the-world cruise on Jan- uary 4.

The number of wage-earners of all classes in Canada at the census of 1931 was 2,566,001 and they earned $2,102,877,400 during the twelve months prior to the census, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. There were 1,948,500 males whose earnings were stated and 528,538 females. The bal- ance which did not report earn- ings was 88,963. The average yearly earnings of all ages was $927 for males and $560 for females. Among selected oc- cupations the highest average earnings by males were locomo- tive engineers, $2,198; railway conductors, $2,136; school tea- chers, $1,575; telegraph opera- tors, $1,503; composers and printers, $1,450; street car con- ductors and motormen, $1,325; locomotive firemen $1,297; book-keepers, cashiers, etc.. $1,232; electricians and wire- men $1,222; and stationary en- ginemen $1,183.

State's Name a Mixture of French and Indian

It is surprising how many people, particularly in the Middle West, pro- nounce "Wisconsin" as if it were spelled "Wiscconsin," with an "e" in- stead of an "i" in the initial syllable, says Pathfinder Magazine. The name is correctly pronounced "Wis-kon-sin," and there is little in its history to account for or to justify the collo- quial pronunciation. So far as known the first white man to set foot on any part of what is now the state of Wisconsin was Jean Nicolet, a coureur de bois, who in 1634 was sent into that region by Champlain to make treaties with the Indians. He landed at Green Bay in 1633. In 1673 the region was traversed by Father Mar- quette and Joliet. At that time the river was known to the Indians by a name which sounded to the French like "wis-kon-sin" and the whites picked up the Indian name and ap- plied it to the territory itself. In early literatures dealing with Wis- consin the name is variously spelled "Wisconsin," "Ouesconsin," "Ouisconsin," and "Wiskonsan," etc., but in no case does the short "e" sound occur in the first syllable. However, in 1696 Le Seuer referred to the tribes along the Wisconsin river as the Ouesconsins, and this may be taken as circumstantial evidence that the name was even then sometimes pro- nounced "wes-kon-sin."

OTTAWA WINTER FAIR

November 14th. to 17th., 1933
"We Need You and You Need Us."

During the war we used to sing the song that was popular with the soldiers in the tren- ches "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile." We want all of you to pack your troubles in your old kit bag, then leave the bag at home and you, your fam- ily and friends come to the Ot- tawa Winter Fair. This is a real agricultural Fair and is the agricultural show window for Eastern Ontario. Here you will see the finest live stock, poultry, seeds, apples and vege- tables. We have a dandy horse show each night. Every one should plan to make a trip. The roads will be good and the weather not too cold. Fall work should be pretty well done and you should be able to enjoy a little holiday. Come in and see the show with your family and also have a visit to the big stores where you will see many things temptingly displayed for your benefit. Go through the stores even if you do not shop. See also the Par- liament Buildings, the Mint, the Archives and the experi- mental farm, including the fa- mous "Mum" show at the green houses. But the main thing is the show. — "Compare and profit" is an old saying but very true in this case. Don't forget too that Tuesday, Nov. 14th. is Children's Day.

Failure

Here's a new bride story, in which we find friend husband mournfully at a pile of stodge dough.

"Why, darling," he ventured to remark after a painful pause, "this bread isn't cooked at all!"

"I know it isn't," admitted the bride gloomily, "and for the life of me I can't understand it. I put in lots and lots of baking powder but it doesn't seem to have baked at all."

Isn't It True?

"It's well known that what makes one man laugh may make another angry."

ished to the farthest outpost for his indiscreet remarks when Senator Calvin Brice tripped and fell from a stage into a row of decorative plants.

But marriage put an end to this falling, for Mrs. Edwards was an ever-present and astute councillor. On one occasion, after the general had given a lengthy interview to a reporter, Mrs.
Edwards demanded bluntly: "Have you received permission from the War department to give out this interview?"

"Why, no," stammered Edwards blushing like a boy who had been caught stealing jam.

"I'm sorry," said Mrs. Edwards turning to the reporter, "but you must hold up that story until the War department has okayed it. You see," she added with a smile, "it is the duty of the enemy to muzzle my husband's guns if he is able to do so. It is my duty to muzzle his tongue until the War department allows him to commence firing."—Los Angeles Times.

Paper Currency Today Mere Promises to Pay

Paper money may be looked upon as token money carried to its final extreme. A piece of it has no value at all in itself; the value depends wholly on a promise printed on it. But although the idea of paper money might be expected to have developed easily from token money, no one in the West seems to have considered the matter feasible until more than a thousand years after token coins appeared, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

Paradoxically, the first "paper" money was a brick, for the germ of the idea seems to have been born in Babylonia more than 2,000 years before the Christian era. Bonds for the repayment of loans were written on clay tablets and baked. These passed from hand to hand as representations of the amounts involved. Similarly deposits were made with individuals, and clay-brick drafts were written against them. Later brick bills of exchange transferred wealth from place to place.

What He Had Feared

Do you know what a malingering is?
No? Maybe that's what you are. In a general sense, a malingering is a person who feigns sickness in order to avoid having to do any work.

A Kansas City physician was called to the jail the other day to examine a prisoner, who was reported ill. The jailer, a bluff, hearty Irishman, watched the examination with almost professional interest.

"What's the matter with him, Doc?"
he asked, when the examination was completed.

"Oh, he looks to me like a malingerer," the physician said.

"Just what I was thinking," the jailer ejaculated. "I knew right along that prisoner had some terrible disease!"—Kansas City Star.

Derivation Hard to Trace

The word "dupe" has a curious history. Originally it meant a dove or pigeon—one of the most simple and gullible of creatures. Webster and Littré both claimed that the word came from the old French name for the hoopoe, probably on the ground that Randle Cotgrave (1611) described dupe as "a hooper; a bird that hath on her head a great crest or tuft of feathers, but nestles in ordure." Littré quoted "Berry, dube, la huppe," as its source, but added "It has been suggested that the Swabian German duple, imbecile, is a possible source." He insists, however, that dupe is to be traced from huppe, from the ease with which the bird can be captured.—Literary Digest.

Second Guess Advisable

Your second guess is likely to be about twice as good as the first, and it pays students to think twice before recording their answers in college examinations. This fact has been revealed by submitting "true-false" questions to more than 1,500 students, from which it was found that the chances are about two to one that the second answer will be the correct one. It also pays to be dubious, and it is much safer to change a judgment from apparent true to false than vice versa.—
Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Despot's Husband

Leonor Loree, railroad magnate, talked about husbands at a meeting of college trustees.

"In Fulton City in my boyhood," he ended, "old Uncle Jethro Rossiter said the last word about husbands."

"There are only two kinds of husbands," said Uncle Jeth, "namely, the henpecked husband and the despot."
"The henpecked husband gives in at once. The despot gives in after supper."

Misnomers

The stronger sex: Does the riding to work, the riding in elevators, the riding back home, the sitting at a desk.

The weaker sex: Does the cooking, baking, washing, ironing, walking to the stores, running up and down stairs, lifting the baby, pushing the go-cart, carrying the bundles and lifting the mortgage.—Chicago Daily News.

of the season being so far advanced Ralph's dances are still going strong.

The Lakefield W. I. and Farmers' Club are holding their monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McCambly, on Oct. 6th. Mrs. Ralph Andrews being the Agriculture Convenor has invited Mr. Bothwell of Lachute, to speak to the ladies on this topic.

Mrs. Williamson entertained the ladies of the W. A. and a few visiting friends on Wednesday, Sept. 27th. The meeting was well attended and considerable business was discussed and settled. It was decided to have a gathering of those men who with teams had voluntarily helped in improving the condition of the graveyard of Holy Trinity Church; and that they should be paid the current wages. It was also decided to hold a card party. Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs.
Williamson and Miss Mary Williamson; and all expressed appreciation of a happy afternoon.
