Town Council Held Busy Session at Regular Meeting

SANITARY INSPECTORS REPORT ON PLANTS . . .
ACCIDENT ON EXHIBITION GROUNDS . . .
TENDERS FOR CITY ENGINEER

MANY MATTERS STUDIED

The regular monthly meeting of Lachute Council was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday last, there being present Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason, and Aldermen C. Durocher, Jas. McGibbon, K. McQuat, F. Deslauriers, W. J. Deacon, O. Laurin, H. Lamarche.

Minutes of the previous meetings were read and confirmed and a report of the finance committee was adopted, accounts being ordered paid.

The Mayor reported the case of an accident which had occurred to Jno. Bradford, who had fallen off a scaffold recently, injuring his ankle. Though having been engaged in painting the exhibition building, by Norman Cleland, to whom the contract had been given, the Mayor felt that the Agricultural Society were morally, if not legally responsible. In the meantime the town is removing Mr. Bradford to a Montreal hospital for treatment.

A number of petitions were presented relative to sewers, opening of streets, and better water services in the West End, all of which were discussed and instructions given to the chairmen of appropriate committees to study them and bring reports for action at next meeting.

Extensive reports were given by Dr. Touchette and Dr. Lalonde of the County Health Unit, relative to dairies and abattoirs. Only one case of milk being supplied to the public called for recommendations of a closure of the plant.

Mr. Gariepy appeared before the Council to know why he was unable to procure work in town, and he was asked—had he not taken action against the town? He replied that he had—whereupon the Mayor stated that until such action was withdrawn it was the decision of the Council that he should receive no assistance of any kind.

Alderman Lamarche thought that, as there was so much work in prospect for water mains and sewers, it was necessary to secure the services of a City Engineer, one qualified to draw plans and take full charge of all work. On his own motion, seconded by Alderman Constantineau, it was decided to call for tenders, in order to see what could be done.

Mr. Fleck, of New York, representing the Canadian Hydrozone Company for supplying pure water, appeared before the Council, outlining a proposition by which the Company will be able to supply purest water in

Death at Brownsburg

D. MacKiddie Widely Mourned

The death occurred of Mr. Duncan MacKiddie, at his home in Brownsburg on Monday, June 3rd., following a brief illness.

The late Mr. MacKiddie was born in Ogdensburg 68 years ago and spent the greater part of his life in Brownsburg.

He leaves to mourn his loss a loving wife, one daughter, Grace, of Toronto, and one son, Clarence, of Ottawa; three sisters, Mrs. D. Thompson of Brownsburg, Mrs. J. Stewart of Mount Maple, and Mrs. A. Thompson of Ogdensburg; also two brothers, Malcolm of Ogdensburg, and Jack of Lachute.

The funeral, conducted by the Rev. E. G. Baxter, was held yesterday from his late residence, interment being made in the Brownsburg burial ground adjoining Lachute Cemetery.

C.N.R. STATION AT ST. ANDREWS ROBBED

(By Our Correspondent)

St. Andrews E.—The C.N.R. station here was broken into recently during the night. The following morning the stationmaster, Mr. Beaulieu, found the place in great disorder. A bag containing corn had evidently been filled with loot and carried off. The corn, part of the contents of several express parcels, and several tools, were scattered around. The safe, which contained a sum of money, was badly damaged, but the burglars had been unable to open it. One of the C.N.R. detectives visited St. Andrews to make enquiries and take fingerprints following the robbery.

High School Principals Met at Knowlton

MR. CLIFTON L. HALL OCCUPIED CHAIR

Principal C. L. Hall of Lachute High School attended the Spring Convention of the High School Principals' Association, of which organization he is president this year. The gathering was held on Saturday at Knowlton. An interesting program of addresses and discussions was drawn up. At the luncheon held in the Lakeview Hotel at Knowlton, the guest speaker was Prof. J. Hughes, Macdonald Professor of Education, McGill University.

Mr. Hall reports an interesting and profitable gathering of the principals.

BOXING AND WRESTLING DREW LOCAL FANS TO ARENA

A small attendance greeted the boxing bouts staged last Saturday at Lachute Arena. A fair quality of boxing was evidenced in the three bouts arranged by Mr. F. Colthorpe. The most sprightly of the pugilists was Kid Formosa, whose tactics showed experience in the ring, a quick action and clean fighting, which have won for him the fly-weight title of Europe.

His young opponent, Lionel of Toronto, fell for a knockout in the early rounds. Golden of Brownsburg put up a creditable fight against a light-weight colored boxer from Montreal, but lost out; Scott of Montreal also ceding the laurels to Girouard of Lachute, a protégé of Paul Lahaie—both in a technical knock-out. Mr. Lahaie was referee of the bouts. Al Foreman was present from Montreal, among the meagre crowd.

Monday's wrestling series, the second performance of the season, drew a larger gathering, and the bouts promoted by Mr. R. Copping of Montreal, will be continued weekly at the Arena. Several of the bouts featured a gruelling contest.

In the final and main bout, Paul Gaudette defeated Jim Spencer in two-out-of-three falls. Gaudette took the first, Spencer the second, and Gaudette the third. The semi-final between Lloyd Stewart, "Boston Wild Man", and Jack Riley gave clear victory, for the Wild Man in a 30-minute bout.

Young Sonneburg and John Marchand fought a draw, for 20 minutes, while Sheikh Morrell and Lou Kelly also fought even in 20 minutes draw.

ELECTRICAL STORM AT OKA VILLAGE

Lightning played havoc in the Indian reserve at Oka last Friday in the course of a severe two-hour storm. The chimney of the Oka Indian Reserve Protestant church was struck and completely demolished in its fall damaging both upper and lower floors of the building. Electric wires were ripped off. Lightning also struck the large two-storey stone structure housing members of the Order of St. Joseph and two nearby houses were damaged. No-one was injured. The electric meter and all wall plugs in the institution were torn off and wires, plugs and telephone apparatus in two dwellings suffered the same fate.

15,000 Young Trout For Lake Louisa

SUPPLIED BY PROVINCIAL DEPT. OF FISHERIES

Through a request made by the Lake Louisa Fish and Game Club, 15,000 speckled trout fry have been supplied by the provincial Department of Game and Fisheries. The fish arrived yesterday from the government hatcheries at Lac Tremblant, and were deposited in Lake Louisa to restock the waters which have in recent years afforded good sport for fishing enthusiasts.

This move demonstrates the benefits that can be achieved by a well organized Fish and Game Club. It is incumbent upon fishermen at Louisa to observe the best ethics of the sport, and to co-operate with the Wardens, so making the Club's efforts more effective.

The process of rearing young fish for this stage of transplanting to depleted waters, is described elsewhere in this issue in an illuminating article by the hatchery expert at the Seignior Club, Montebello.

The price of membership in the Lake Louisa Fish and Game Club is only $2.00 and cards may be obtained from the Secretary, R. A. Giles, Lachute. Local sportsmen are urged to join.

COLUMBIA COMPANY TO ESTABLISH A MOVIE STUDIO IN TORONTO

One of the largest talking picture corporations in the United States has just completed arrangements for producing films in Toronto.

Columbia Pictures have contracted to take over the Ravina skating arena as a studio.

The move was made by Columbia in order to comply with British film quota regulations, requiring that U. S. companies exhibiting films in Great Britain actually produce a certain portion of their screen dramas on British territory.

The majority of Hollywood companies have subsidiaries in England, making quota films, but Columbia decided not to cross the Atlantic Ocean and selected Toronto.

The British regulations provide that a U. S. star and director may be used, but that the majority of those on the payroll must be British subjects.

Columbia will bring in the necessary sound and camera technicians, but extras and bit players will be selected from Canadian talent. Canadian writers also are likely to be employed to work on stories that have a distinctly Canadian atmosphere.

LACHUTE CITIZEN AMONG RECIPIENTS OF KING'S BIRTHDAY HONORS

Listed among recipients of the King's Birthday Honors this week was Mr. Harry Slater of this town, who was made a Member of the Order of the British Empire, a civil rank in recognition of community service. The initials designating this rank are "M.B.E." Thirty-nine such honors were conferred among Canadian citizens by the King. The total list in Canada numbers 107, headed by Hon. Herbert Marler, who was made a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George (C.G.M.G.), and E. W. Beatty, K.C., made a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire (G.B.E.).

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. Slater from this locality, on the signal honor which he has received.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION MET RECENTLY AT BROWNSBURG

The Ottawa Valley Ministerial Association met in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church, at Brownsburg, on Monday afternoon of last week. Twelve members were present, three being from Ontario and nine from Quebec. The president, Rev. A. J. MacFarlane, of Vankleek Hill, was in the chair, and in the unavoidable absence of the secretary, Rev. J. Macaskill was elected Secretary pro tem. Rev. W. B. Rosborough presented a paper on "The Inferiority Complex" which was both informative and helpful. He defined the nature of the inferiority complex, presented some causes and made helpful suggestions for the treatment of persons so afflicted. The Gospel of Jesus Christ has real help for the defeated and the depressed, and its acceptance brings courage and power into our lives. A general discussion followed the paper, which was also very helpful. Rev. J. Macaskill moved and Dr. Wales, associate member of the Association, seconded a very hearty vote of appreciation and thanks for the splendid paper presented. Dr. MacLeod pronounced the benediction. The association adjourned to meet again in St. Andrews on June 17th.

Hanson, Brownsburg, Children's Work; Miss Alice Hooker, St. Andrews, Girls' Work; Mr. John Connelly, Brownsburg, Boys' Work; Mrs. Robt. McPaul, Lachute, Leadership Training.

A TIME OF RE-UNION

Many of our day dreams are reminiscent. Happily most of them are of new adventures, of hopes still to be realized; but it does one good to take a backward glance once in a while and note the progress and development of the passing years.

Next week Lachute will be en fête with the Annual Spring Fair in progress, and we shall bid welcome to many of our former residents who have gone far afield, but are glad for the opportunity of a brief visit to their birthplace, where they will renew old friendships.

It is sometimes encouraging, sometimes disheartening, to come back—to follow the road along which the companions of earlier years have traveled. Some have achieved much in their contacts with fellow men, and have attained considerable prominence in their varied spheres of labor.

Those who have not been privileged to visit us so frequently will find great changes. It is fifty years since Lachute was incorporated into a town and while we have not yet attained the full height of our possibilities, we have made wonderful strides. At this time we would urge upon our citizens that it is their duty to see that visitors are not allowed to part from us without having viewed the industries which have played so important a part in our development.

In early days the business section of this town was in the East End, but as the industries of the J. C. Wilson Co'y. and Ayers Limited began to enlarge upon their meagre beginnings on the banks of the North River, so the town began to build westward and the retail trade became established largely in the Centre Ward, gradually spreading to the West End.

At time of construction of the Court House there was great controversy as to its location, but those favoring the present site had visions, now fulfilled, that the town was bound to grow centrally. Quite a number of new streets have been opened and the town is still expanding in a wholesome way.

Mr. J. C. Wilson and Messrs. Hamelin & Ayers were the real pioneers of Lachute's industrial life. Viewing also the extensive works of Canadian Industries Limited at Brownsburg, which have launched out from the small powder plant to the Dominion Ammunition, Pyralin, and

Married in Lachute

BELTON — THOMPSON

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Thompson, on Saturday, June 1st., when their youngest daughter, Verda May, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Belton of Montreal, son of the late Mr. A. Belton and of Mrs. Belton, Birmingham, England. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of pale pink satin, a pink tulle veil caught with a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of tea roses and ferns. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Biggs, as matron of honor, and her cousin, Miss Lillian Watchorn, as bridesmaid. The groom was supported by Mr. Biggs.

The bride's traveling suit was of navy blue, with pink satin blouse, a blue hat, and grey squirrel neck-piece.

The happy couple left on the evening train for Quebec City. On their return they will reside in Montreal.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

NEW ANGLES

It's the unusual that attracts attention

SOME people have the notion that the only pictures worth taking are those of unusual things. They take a camera along when they travel but seldom use it at home, unless something special is happening. But, believe it or not, some of your greatest picture possibilities are around and near your home. "But," you may say, "I have already made good snaps of the house, the family, the pets, the garden, and the new car. What else is there to shoot?"

It's a safe wager that there are dozens of other picture possibilities, and all of them as interesting as the ones now in your album.

The secret of finding them is simply a matter of keeping your eyes open. Get the habit of looking at things—everything—as though you had never seen it before. It's quite amazing the way this habit will sharpen your interest—now dulled by sheer familiarity—in even the most commonplace things.

Not all of us are interested in photography as an art—and if you don't believe it is an art, visit one of the salons or study some of the pictures in the advertising appearing in the better magazines. Is there any reason why we should not strive for artistic snapshots? Back of every fine, prize-winning picture is some one who has kept his eyes open for the unusual.

Don't be afraid of doing things in unusual ways. It's really a spring tonic to take pictures of old things and scenes from a different viewpoint. "Candid" photography and taking pictures at unusual angles were discussed in a recent Snapshot Guild, but perhaps some of you missed it. The point made in that article was not to have people in stiff, unnatural poses when taking snapshots. Snap them when they are doing something, or at least apparently doing something, instead of having them stand as stiff and straight as a totem pole. Study your various subjects for unusual angles from which you may snap your pictures for unusual effects.

At the present time, take it for granted that present-day cameras, films, and modern photo-flood and photo-flash lamps give you unlimited scope for unusual, fascinating snapshots. Today almost any picture is possible—and at any time.

You are progressing in your use of a camera when you reach that stage when your friends say, "Well, look at that picture! I've seen that spot every day for the last ten years and never dreamed it had the makings of a picture like that." Such praise will surely thrill you. Maybe you have heard those words already! If you have—congratulations!

BUSY NEIGHBORS

"Cher-a-wink, cher-a-wink, cher-a-wee, Who is building in my pet tree?"

An oriole asked as she spied the dark head Of a wee brown bird with its wings tipped red.

There are hordes of beetles destroying the trees, Quite enough for us both, Madame Oriole, please...

"If we work together we will save this tree From bold elm-beetles who harm it, you see.

I'll be a good neighbor, if I may but stay, I have come from the South, a very long way."

AMONG THE FLOWERS

Mr. and Mrs. Flitter Mouse had spent most of the evening house-hunting but so far had found nothing that would suit Mrs. Flitter Mouse. She knew just what she wanted, but did not seem to be able to find it. Last year their nest had been under a window-sill, in a crack in the wall of the old green house which Bob's and Betty's father used to keep his tools in, but through the winter the roof had fallen in, and Mr. Bond had pulled it down. This window-sill had overlooked the garden, and Mrs. Flitter Mouse felt that her new home must have a garden underneath it too. So in spite of Mr. Flitter Mouse's grumbling she kept on looking, until he got too cross to look any further and caught hold of the rough bark of a rustic gate post and clung there, refusing to go any further. Left to herself, Mrs. Flitter Mouse darted here and there, swooping down almost until it seemed that she must touch Betty's golden hair as she swung idly in the hammock. "Don't you dare to get yourself caught in my hair, you old bat, you," called Betty, defiantly, after Mrs. Flitter Mouse had hovered over her uncertainly for the third time.

Mrs. Flitter Mouse did not hear her. She was too busy trying to decide whether or not underneath the eave of the summer house would be just the right place for her new home. Fluttering over to it, she clawed her way up under the roof in search of a crack, and found just what she wanted. In great excitement she flew off to bring Mr. Flitter Mouse, who told her quite sarcastically that "he was glad there was some place in the whole world that could satisfy her."

Long after Mr. Flitter Mouse had gone to sleep Mrs. Flitter Mouse sat peeping down into the garden, her little heart beating high with excitement. She was watching for someone. "Hello Methuselah!" she called softly, in a small, squeaky voice. Grandfather Toad swallowed the beetle that was sucking the life from Betty's favorite rose bush, before he said — "Hello yourself, Mrs. Flitter Mouse, when did you arrive in these parts?"

"Just to-night, and I am so delighted to have a home once more where I can watch what goes on among the flowers at night when there is no-one about."

"There is some one about tonight! Bob and Betty are out quite late. They stay out much later than they used to; of course they are getting older and not so afraid of the dark as they used to be. It is foolish to be afraid of the dark," said Grandfather Toad, "I just love the darkness." "So do I," exclaimed Mrs. Flitter Mouse, "It is so easy on my eyes. I can see in the day-time but the strong sun hurts my eyes. But some-one else is moving down there underneath the lily leaves — so slowly that you can scarcely see them move." "It's Slow Coach, the snail, I expect," said Grandfather Toad, "He comes in here often at night. I tell him he can chew up all the weeds that he fancies but that he must leave the flowers alone." "He cannot harm them, can he?" Mrs. Flitter Mouse asked in surprise. "Well, this one does not do much harm. We Toads keep warning him to be careful of our garden; but in Europe the snail family are much larger and more plentiful, and are quite destructive to vegetation."

"My! My!" said Mrs. Flitter Mouse drowsily. "I had never heard that snails were destructive. I am glad my nest is high so they cannot get in." Her words trailed off into a whisper and Grandfather Toad winked slyly at young Billy, who helped him keep the bugs and beetles from eating up the young plants, and he said, "Mrs. Flitter Mouse is not very polite to go to sleep while talking to a friend, but I expect she is tired. The excitement of moving has been too much for her."

Next morning Mrs. Flitter Mouse was awakened by someone dropping water on her through a tiny crack in the eave of the summerhouse. "Wake up, Sleepy Head, and catch some of those insects that are hovering around before they spoil all the flowers, and before the sun gets up," Mrs. Flitter Mouse shook the water off and peeped out in time to see Dewdrop, with her tiny watering can, fluttering off to pour some water on the aster plants which Bob and Betty had set out the evening before. "It is an early hour for me to be abroad," she muttered, "but there are a lot of insects flying around and I am real hungry."

With a soft whirr of wings she flew here and there, gobbling insects, and sending others off to hide in the corners to escape her. Tired at last, she flopped down amongst the lilac leaves to rest and say "How do you do" to Hummer, who was drawing honey from the blossoms. "Merry Christmas, Hummer," she squeaked mischievously. Hummer stopped fanning the air with his wings, and settled his tiny feet long enough to say scornfully, "If it was Christmas-time, Madame Flitter Mouse, you and I would not be here—would we Mrs. Cuckoo?"

Mrs. Flitter Mouse moved excitedly when she heard Hummer say that. She had never seen Madame Cuckoo and was quite anxious to. "There now," a grumbling voice replied, "Hummer you have told the world that I am here. Why did you? You know quite well that I do not like people to know." "I beg your pardon," said Hummer, "I forgot that you were shy, but you are so well hidden I am sure no-one will see you." Mrs. Flitter Mouse strained her eyes in the direction from which Madame Cuckoo's voice had come but could not see her. She waited a moment to watch two little robins playing tug-of-war with an angle worm, and a wren gobbling a big fat beetle. She might have watched them longer if an immense red-headed woodpecker had not suddenly come to rest on an elm tree close by. She was rather afraid of the larger birds, so fluttered off to her nest and snuggled down for another nap.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

They Attended the King's Coronation

One of the unique celebrations of the King's Silver Jubilee was a reunion dinner at Toronto of members of the Canadian Scout Coronation Contingent that attended the King's coronation ceremonies in 1911. Of the original 200 some sixty came together—now lawyers, doctors, college professors, financiers, business men in many fields. The reunion was arranged by W. Irving Hearst, K.C., son of Sir William Hearst.

Water, Water!

The Patrol Leader, or junior Scout leader, was catechising his boys on some of the finer points of first aid, and rescue work in particular.

"A man," he said to the smallest Scout, "had fallen into the water and gone under several times. You swim out, bring him up and swim with him to the shore. What would you do next?"

Came the reply, "I'd run and get him a drink of water."

N. B. Scouts to Direct Junior Forest Wardens

An arrangement has been made by which the Boy Scouts Association of New Brunswick and the New Brunswick Forest Service of the Provincial Department of Lands and Mines will take over from the Canadian Forestry Association direction of the Junior Forest Wardens of that province. The Junior Wardens are said to number approximately 1,000. Instruction and tests for the Forest Warden Badge will henceforth be given by Scout leaders.

The Scout Hobby Idea

I like children to have a hobby—a hobby for the time when they are grown up and when old age draws near. One of the saddest things in life is to find people who have learned their business, who have got through life in a most useful way, but at the end when work stops, do not know what to do. I have my hobby. It is the greatest consolation in life to have something that you can fall back on, something that has brought you no bread, but has always been a great pleasure—General Smuts, to Johannesburg schoolboys.

Tragedy at Seven Oaks

A hasty, perhaps accidental shot followed by a well-directed fusillade which killed or wounded more than twenty men; such, in a word, was the "Battle of Seven Oaks", the most tragic incident of the prairies since the coming of the white men. It is hard for us to realize the bitterness of the strife, thus climaxed, between Lord Selkirk's Red River colonists and those opposed to settlement in the interests of the fur trade. Once already the hardships of years had appeared to end only in failure as the Scots were forced to abandon their Red River homes. But they returned with reinforcements and under the vigorous leadership of the new Governor, Robert Semple, even captured Fort Gibraltar, the Red River headquarters of the North West Company.

Now, in the early summer of 1816, their enemies resolved to dispose of the colony for good. Cuthbert Grant raised a force of half-breeds on the plains to the west and moved to meet the eastern brigade of the Nor'Westers on the Red River below Fort Douglas. Descending the Assiniboine the Bois Brûlé, in Indian war-paint, left the river above the Forks with the evident intention of avoiding Fort Douglas. But Semple and some thirty men issued from the post and advanced along the Colony Road, now Main Street in Winnipeg, to intercept them.

At a point called Seven Oaks, north of the present city, the clash occurred. Semple was slain. Under threat of general massacre Fort Douglas surrendered, and again the Selkirk colonists made a melancholy journey down the River towards the Hudson's Bay posts to the north. Soon the noble Earl himself brought help and the colony was re-established, to find permanent peace with the amalgamation of the rival companies, and to become the nucleus of a great province.

Hebrew Language

Hebrew, like Latin and classic Greek, is a literary, and not a colloquial language. The exact time when Hebrew ceased to be the living, vernacular language of the Jews is not known. Some Hebraists maintain that they lost the living use of the Hebrew during the Babylonian captivity, but the belief of many is that they retained the partial use of it for some time after their return to Palestine, and lost it by degrees. There is no convincing evidence, however, to show exactly when it became a virtually dead language, although there are satisfactory reasons for declaring that it gave place to a corrupted form of the Aramaic language, a mixture of Syrian and Chaldean or Babylonian speech called the Syro-Chaldean dialect, several hundred years before the Christian era, and that more than a century before this era it ceased to be used even as a written language and was thereafter studied only as the language of the sacred books, by the learned.

Columbus Sought Way to Sail Around the Globe

The fourth voyage of Columbus was undertaken in 1502 for the purpose of finding a strait which would lead to a complete circumnavigation of the globe. He was sixty-two years of age and his health was none too good. He was accompanied by his brother, Don Bartholomew, and his younger son Ferdinand. The journey was filled with disappointments.

When Columbus reached the West Indies he sent a messenger ashore at San Domingo to wait on Ovando, the governor, with a request that his squadron might shelter in the harbor until an impending storm had passed. He asked also for a vessel to replace one of his own which was defective. Both requests were ungraciously refused.

In his search for the strait, the explorer sailed along the coast of Honduras, Costa Rica, or the rich coast, so-called from the gold and silver mines found in after years among its mountains, and in the spring of 1503 he was near the entrance to the present Gulf of Darien. He experienced every kind of hardship that it is possible to imagine—shipwreck, mutiny, and scarcity of food.

Towards the close of the year he was at Jamaica, whence he sent a message to Ovando, asking for assistance. Two ships came to his relief, and one historian relates that the Indians wept at his departure, still believing him to be a visitor from another sphere. He was taken to San Domingo, and sailed from there on the twelfth of September, 1504, on his last trip home to Europe. Storms swept the Atlantic, and poor Columbus was confined to his bed most of the way with the gout, but on the seventh of November he arrived in Spain.

THE "BORN AGAIN" LIBERAL COMMITTEE

Correspondence

Pursuing my comment on the above-named organization, let us for a little investigate the legitimacy of this new birth. Time and again I have asked for the date on which this new system of giving birth to officers to govern the people behind close doors sprang into being in any British country, and, no one has proffered the information. Why? Because they can't! This very same procedure was tried before in the king's dominions; those that objected carried their case to the crown, and the judgment rendered was this—

That nowhere under the Union Jack, not even in the House of Lords in England, can deliberations concerning the people be carried on behind closed doors, any more than can our law courts, and I can give the date of this judgment, which has never been rescinded.

At the so-called people's meeting of April 27th., I availed myself of the prerogative, allowable in the House of Commons in England, of doing some heckling when the speeches were going on. The speakers did not know it was their duty to stop and reply to my questions, but ignored me; in all likelihood they did not know how to reply, their heads were too swelled to acknowledge their ignorance on such matters as I was enquiring about; until finally with a few more heckles I spiked their guns and they took refuge behind mine; they tried to spread themselves on the Magna Carta, its benefits to the people, the rights of the minority, good organization, etc. One of the speakers said he was sorry he was not versed in our English language; he stated that he loved the Conservatives of this good old county just as much as he loved the liberals. They one and all condemned R. B. Bennett for his tactics, while they resorted to those very same tactics themselves. As the meeting wore on, and the empty seats did not fill, the speakers lost heart and the meeting came to a rather untimely end. On the whole, the affair was like a nurse's lullaby at night. As for exercising my right to heckle, that is an inalienable right, but members of this new liberal committee tell me that I have ceased to become a joke, and if I do not discontinue to exercise my right I will be forcibly thrown out of the meetings—which is another assumed prerogative of our liberal committee of the county; the Crown will not allow it, and if attempted it will be a serious matter for those that undertake the job.

Memory carries me back to the little log school house at the cross roads in the back-woods of Middlesex, Ont., and the little 15-year-old teacher without a diploma, who wrote on the blackboard for us to copy on our slates—

"Who the gods wish to destroy they first make mad."

"Every wrong measure carries in it the seed that, if not eradicated, will germinate to the destruction of the measure that contains it."

—C. F. Kains.

"To bring national prosperity, we must spend. To fortify individual prosperity, we must save."

SURVEY OF CROPS AND LIVE STOCK, JUNE, 1935

In June of each year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, in co-operation with the Provincial Departments of Agriculture, distributes cardboard schedules to farmers for the purpose of collecting statistics of acreages under crop and the numbers of live stock and poultry on farms. An innovation of 1931 extended this survey to cover the breeding and marketing intentions with regard to live stock. In all of the provinces, except Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia, these schedules are distributed to the farmers through the rural school teachers. In these four provinces, the cards are mailed direct to the farmers.

The acreage of field crops, in particular, is the real foundation of this scheme of agricultural production statistics. Only slightly less important in national planning is the necessity of having correct knowledge of the numbers of live stock on farms. The accuracy of the compilations in both these classes is largely dependent upon the obtaining of completed cards from a fair sample of the total number of Canadian farms.

All farmers are requested to fill in the cards promptly and return them to the Department.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY —A MODERN VIEW

According to expert modern opinion, child delinquency is largely due to delinquent parents and a home life in which there is much suggestive of attitudes and ideas opposed to what is decent and just. The parents themselves may be utterly unconscious of impressions they are creating on the plastic minds of their children, and none is more surprised than these same parents when, in after years, their attitudes react on their children in the lack of morality and a looseness of life and conduct.

If a child has the chance to inherit delinquency, there is all the more reason for a watchful and careful attitude on the part of his parents, though there may be limits to what they can do to safeguard him. At any rate they have the matter of environment, fully as important as heredity, in their own hands. Cleanliness, honesty and just dealing with children, and decent ways of living, will do wonders towards counteracting the evil tendencies of parentage.

ENERGY PUT TO WASTE

Unemployed relief strikers have set out on a long hike from Vancouver to Ottawa. It is gestures of this kind which exasperate government leaders, do little to arouse sympathy for the strikers, and rarely bring an alleviation of the conditions which they set out to protest. Hunger marches have been staged in England and in the United States, with little enough result.

We believe the case of the British Columbia camp workers has already been brought prominently to notice; if their conditions are receiving official study at all, little short of rebellion and bloodshed can hasten a remedy. Administrations are doing all they can.

Meanwhile, it would appear that all the energy involved in tramping across the continent might be better put to work in the camps they have forsaken. For these laborers at least there is a certain recompense and a degree of comfort which they will lack on the open highway.

MEDIEVAL CHIVALRY

The days of chivalry, when knights spilled their blood for a maiden's honor, are not yet dead. This week a Hungarian nobleman and aristocrat clashed sabres with a Jewish business man in a combat of this kind, and both were severely wounded. The duel was staged in traditional fashion, at a secret rendezvous in the city of Budapest; it transpired at dawn; the combatants were "carried off the field of honor on stretchers."

This is all very picturesque and the motive most praiseworthy; but an onslaught of this kind is not far removed from conditions which the crime prevention squads are seeking to eradicate and the League of Nations striving to suppress. In these days of advanced civilization private grievances can be settled less barbarously, even though it be a lady's name at stake. Men with chivalry enough to imperil their lives for the cause are too rare to be mangled by bullet and steel.

SIGNIFICANT

(Moose Jaw Evening Times)

Hon. Mr. Croll, Ontario's Minister of Public Welfare, says: "It is significant that the demands made upon the Toronto City Council, upon the relief administration in all the Yorks, in the Windsor area and in Niagara Falls, were couched in exactly the same words and set out exactly the same demands." Who is the literary artist, or is it a syndicate?

RAISE TAX FOR SNOW-CLEANING

Montreal proposes increasing the tax from 10 to 20 cents per running foot for snow-cleaning next winter, on both taxable property and holdings that are exempt from general levies.

First thought of using the new charter amendment was to impose the tax on taxable property at six cents per $100 of assessment or at 10 cents per front foot, the higher tax to be paid by the individual; but the law department ruled that this was illegal. All property will therefore pay 20 cents per front foot.

COUNTY FAIR LINKED WITH COUNTY PROGRESS

Canadian Safety Fuse factories, the County may be considered fortunate in its industrial background. And while we have also many other enterprising manufacturers and merchants in our midst, who can place any limit upon what may be accomplished by them, exemplifying the faith and energy to realize their visions?

Lachute Fair opens on Wednesday next. We make this appeal for every citizen to stand behind the directors, who have long been planning to make this year's exhibition superior to all previous records. In addition to the splendid assembly of live stock, there has been secured by way of entertainment the celebrated Grenadier Guards Band and a fine galaxy of vaudeville, with an outstanding display of fireworks on Thursday and Friday nights. Exciting horse races and the usual midway with its many attractions will add to the continued interest of the occasion. It is a pleasing feature that the Lachute Branch of the Women's Institute have undertaken to handle the dining room and supply refreshments, which will ensure good meals and excellent service at moderate rates.

The Ottawa Spotlight

Specially written for The Watchman
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, June 4.—We are finding out how much more difficult it is to remedy economic abuses than to expose them. The mass-buying inquiry disclosed sickening conditions in Canadian industry; sweatshops, starvation wages, excessive hours, monopolies which were gouging the public and exploiting the primary producer. These revelations clearly laid on the several governments concerned the duty of eradicating them. The federal government having taken the initiative in uncovering the abuses, and being the most powerful governing body in Canada, it is naturally being looked to by the people to take action.

Action, of a sort, is being taken. We already have five bills in parliament in various stages of completion, and there are two or three more to come. But only the most optimistic and superficial observer supposes that when these are on the statute books all will be well again in the defective branches of Canadian industry and society. Indeed, will more than the fringe be touched? Will improvements in some departments of industrial life not be offset partly a least by losses in other ways? Will the new machinery of regulation and intervention be worth its salt?

DISAPPOINTING LEGISLATION

We shall see. But meanwhile the implementation of the royal commission report has been so far disappointing. I don't mean that the government hasn't made an honest effort to do as much as it can, according to its lights. But what with the constitutional difficulty, the division of opinion as to the remedy, the confusion between the symptoms and the causes of our economic diseases, the net result is likely to fall a long way short of ending sweat-shops, the exploitation of the primary producer, and all the other evils we have had dinned into our ears for 15 months.

Let's see what is lined up, so far: Teeth are being put into the Minimum Wage and Maximum Hours acts. Offences are—if the constitutional hurdle can be negotiated—to become indictable, under the Criminal Code. Employers who break these laws are now to be subject to a maximum of two years imprisonment, fines of five thousand dollars.

HEAVY PENALTIES FOR UNFAIR PRACTICES

Then unfair competition is to be heavily penalized. It, too, is to become an indictable offence, making offenders subject to imprisonment and fines. What is unfair competition? That will be the rub. However, competition which obviously sets out to end competition and create monopoly by eliminating the other competitors will be specifically laid down as unfair.

These changes would have sounded much more promising if the Minister of Justice, introducing them in the House, had not admitted that in his opinion they were of doubtful validity, had not read opinions of eminent counsel to the same effect. If even the minister who pilots the bills thinks they may not stand up in the courts he persons prosecuted under these acts are certain to make sure they will not, with the result that appeals, litigation, possible upsets in the higher courts, will almost certainly accompany any effort to enforce them.

Then we have amendments to the Weights and Measures Act, aimed at ending short-weight, deceptive packaging, etc. We have livestock amendments improving present practice in regard to reports from stockyards and inspection of stock and packers' products. We have a new Fair Wages and Hours bill which will insist on these conditions in any government contract, or any quantity, as within the next twelve months their base of supply will be 2 billion gallons, with a flow of 15 million gallons daily. While recognizing we had good pure water now, the suggestion was that they would be running their pipe line in close proximity, and would be glad to tap our main, placing a gate valve, so that when needed they could step in and supply the town's needs.

The council promised serious consideration and then adjourned.

Town Lost Action For Taxes

Considerable interest has been aroused in an action by the Lachute Town to secure arrears of taxes from the Baptist Church for their property on Grace Street, known as the Baptist Manse, and for the residence occupied by the Frères de St. Viator of the French College.

The case came up in court recently, with Messrs. Brown, Montgomery and McMichael, of Montreal, and Mr. Philip Valois, Advocate of Lachute, defending. Judgment was given in favor of defendants.

Young Lakefield Man Laid to Rest

LATE JOHN SILVERSON

The hearts of this community have been in sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. William Silver-son, of Lakefield, during the past week, in the death of their only son, William John, who departed this life on May 28th.

The size of the gathering at the funeral on Thursday afternoon last, including relatives, friends and countryside acquaintances, testified to the popularity of "Jack" and the desire of all to show their respect, and deep sympathy to the afflicted parents and sisters, left to mourn the loss of a son and brother who was by nature cheerful, loving and industrious.

The funeral service, which was very impressive, took place in Holy Trinity Church, Lakefield, conducted by the Rev. A. E. Mount, who gave comfort to the bereaved ones and tribute to the life which had passed away.

After the ceremony the remains were tenderly borne to their last resting place by his three cousins, Lawrence, Albert Silverson, and Leslie Clifford, and his three friends, Haddon McDonald, Harry Pollock, and Jack Hodge.

Besides his loving parents he leaves to mourn his loss three sisters, Mrs. Gus Wall of London, Ont., Viola and Lena at home.

Floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful.

Seigniory Club, Montebello, Runs Private Trout Hatchery

in "Rod & Gun in Canada"

The guardianship of three hundred thousand baby fish and the care of some hundred thousand-odd more is not a small responsibility. The writer has charge of the Seigniory Club's fish hatchery near the shore of one of the largest lakes on the hundred odd square miles of property in the Laurentian foothills and his work of artificial propagation here and his interest in the wild life which surrounds his home, deer and partridge having been allowed to multiply under protection, have developed into a far from ordinary occupation.

Fish that most readily lend themselves to artificial breeding, he says, are the trout and the members of the salmon family. Since the first attempt to breed trout on this continent in 1853, the work has developed enormously and is today conducted on a large scale by the Dominion Government as well as by the individual provinces.

Raising and planting fish and transferring them into the various waters of The Seigniory Club property is an interesting business itself and their caretaker has become so attached to them that he hates to see them caught by fly fishermen using barbless hooks. The following account of the various stages of young fishhood may be of interest to sportsmen.

Young trout are hatched from eggs laid during the autumn. One trout may lay as many as a thousand eggs but a considerably smaller number is usual. Eggs vary greatly in size but are ordinarily about one sixth of an inch in diameter and usually four hundred to five hundred and fifty eggs of good quality will make up one fluid ounce.

When the fish are ready to spawn, they are caught and the eggs from the female gently squeezed into a shallow vessel. When a suitable quantity of eggs have been collected, the process is repeated with the male fish, after which eggs and milk are stirred together very carefully and in this way the eggs are fertilized. The eggs collected are placed on wire trays which rest in troughs through which a steady stream of water is running.

Not all water is suitable for a hatchery. The water must be perfectly pure and free from pollution and remain at a comparatively low temperature, at no time rising much above 66 degrees throughout the year, as trout will not live for any length of time in water warmer than this. Depending on its temperature during the winter, the eggs will hatch sometime between January and April.

When small trout hatch out, they carry the whole yolk of the egg attached to the underside of the body, getting all their nourishment from it during the first few weeks of their life. It is after the yolk is all absorbed that they have to be fed.

ground up finely and fed to the fish from five to six times a day with the aid of a very fine screen. Another food suggested for young trout is dried salmon eggs which will hasten growth and help give the fish their natural colors.

Ordinarily, hatchery trout are of a pale silvery color and their meat generally pure white and not pink as is found in wild fish. It all depends on their food and if the hatchery fish were fed the same food as the trout eat in their wild state, the same color and flavor would result.

During the time the eggs are hatching out and the fry are absorbing the yolk sack, one experiences the most trouble with them. They are very delicate and will die at the least opportunity. But when they reach a size of from one and a half to two inches, they are over the worst stage, and crave less attention.

The main thing in all hatchery work is cleanliness. As the fish are crowded together in very confined quarters, any bacterial disease that may gain foothold is liable to spread with terrific speed and cause a lot of damage, even as far as killing the entire stock of fish.

But one is not altogether helpless should the trout get sick. An ordinary solution of cooking salt will cure many mild cases of fungus diseases when the trout are submerged in the solution for a short time, and weak mixtures of copper sulphate can be used where bacterial diseases are causing the trouble.

Not only is it necessary to guard the young fry as well as older fish against diseases, but also against their natural enemies among the higher forms of animals.

It is an annual experience at the Seigniory Club hatchery, to have kingfishers congregate at the pools when they are stocked in the springtime with young fry. They apparently believe the whole plant is made specially for their benefit. And they can consume many trout if left undisturbed.

The robins which are usually considered to be such harmless birds, have caused no end of trouble. They will walk around the shallow margins of the ponds and literally gorge

INFLUENCE OF WEEKLIES (Exchange)

It is our belief that the community papers throughout Canada are an important and influential factor in the creation of public opinion. We find their editorial writings sensible and solid. What the editors of the country weeklies are saying is usually what the country should be doing.

In recent years, many influences have combined to weaken the editorial power of some newspapers. Among these influences are extreme partisan politics, sensationalism, aiming for mass circulation, etc. The country weeklies are a safeguard for the nation against these influences. To change the metaphor, they are an anchor to windward for the country in the formation of an honest and well-inspired public opinion.

Canadian Postal Service Keeps Pace With National Development

At a time when there is wide spread interest in affairs of Government, and considerable criticism of the cost of maintaining services, it is refreshing to note that the Post Office Department of Canada has an enviable record not merely in the matter of increasing facilities but also in the extent of business carried on. It may come as something of a surprise to note that at the turn of the century, that is in the year 1900, the net revenue of the Post Office Department was $3,183,000 whereas in the fiscal year 1934 the net revenue had risen to $30,367,000, almost a tenfold increase. Furthermore, a deficit of $461,000 in 1900 had been turned into a surplus of $1,064,000 in 1934.

It is apparent that the large part of the growth of the postal revenue is due to the general business increase in Canada during the intervening time, and in this respect the Post Office acts as a barometer of business.

However it is due to the introduction of new services that the postal revenue shows such a surprising increase. Dealing in chronological order with the extensions of the postal system, we find that in 1908 rural mail delivery services were introduced, which in addition to proving a boon to dwellers in country districts has greatly facilitated the exchange of goods by mail particularly when it is coupled up with the parcel post service which was inaugurated in 1914.

In 1921 insurance of parcel post was added, followed one year later by a C.O.D. service. These latter two services in conjunction with the already mentioned parcel post system, have been of considerable benefit to business men of Canada, and have facilitated trade to an almost unbelievable extent. Retail merchants in the smaller centres have especially benefited by the C.O.D. service inasmuch as it permitted them to compete with mail order houses without having to go to the expense of getting out catalogues.

In 1924 the Post Office Savings Bank was improved and an increase in indemnity for registered articles was provided. In the same year business reply cards were introduced facilitating advertising by mail.

In 1925 the limit of weight for parcel post was increased from 11 pounds to 15 pounds, and as a further aid to retail merchants a 1/2c rate on circulars for local delivery was introduced.

In 1927 and 1928 Air Mail Service was inaugurated and is now serving a useful purpose in speeding up mail delivery to remote points as well as serving as a link with other countries. Widespread business depression forced a curtailment of experiments taking place with a view to establishing the Air Mail Service on a general basis, but doubtless lost ground will again be recovered in the near future.

In 1929 business reply envelopes and cards were introduced as a means of solving the "return postage problems" of firms wishing to use the mails for advertising purposes.

In 1930 mechanical installations in large post offices were extended following successful experiments made in 1929, and as a result mail handling was speeded up.

In 1932 and following years experimental measures had to be largely abandoned, but the Department showed great progress in maintaining existing services with an improvement in the financial position of the Department.

This record of progress is an indication of the wide-awakeness of the Post Office Department, and it can truly be said that the postal service of Canada is keeping step with municipal and national development everywhere. Perhaps the greatest tribute that can be paid to the Post Office is that it functions so smoothly no one pays very much attention to it except the officers who are concerned in its continued progress.

CITY WINS ON APPEAL

A Superior Court judgment, ordering the City of Montreal to pay $3,000 to a citizen for a fractured jaw suffered while being arrested, was reversed by the Court of Appeal with the finding that the constable making the arrest was acting in performance of his duty and the fracture was not caused by the constable.

The claim was based on assertion that unnecessary roughness had been employed by the city policeman.

RELIEF COSTS TABULATED

All Canadian Governments now spend 17 per cent. of their current budgets on relief, according to a report of the Citizens' Research Committee at Toronto.

Public welfare in Canada in 1933 cost $171,938,869, compared with $37,880,380 in 1922-23, an increase of 354 per cent.

Debt charges on capitalized expenditures for highways and railway guarantees are largely responsible for the increased debt service of the decade, the report states.

The gross funded debt of the provinces in 1933 was $650,528,099 or 96 per cent. higher than in 1923.

BACK TO THE WOODS

I've built myself a new log shack!
Not far from a lake in the woods way back,
Where the city pleasures are far and few,
But I've sole command of a wonderful view.

Where I can see the rise of the morning sun,
And regard its beauties when the day is done,
See the full bright moon with a host of stars,
The Northern Lights with their flickering bars.

I can see the sky through trees not walls,
No street noise, just the roar of the falls,
Hear the whispering wind in the trees so soft,
Or the roar of the gale in the pines aloft.

The big bull frogs croak loud in the reeds,
Hear the weird cry of the bittern as it feeds,
Where far out in the lake a trout rises for fly,
And down swoops an osprey from out of the sky.

Where sunrise's the birth of a glad new day,
All wild folk go each on their foraging way,
In the thicket a young fawn lies quiet and still,
As the wise old doe feeds up on the hill.

Hear the call of duck, whippoorwill, or the loon,
Or the howl of the wolf with its savage rune,
The sounds of the woods, the swamps, and the stream,
Are far more to me than a passing dream.

Amongst the valleys, lakes, forests and hills,
Breathing good pure air that never kills,
Where my only callers are birds from the trees,
Could man want more or better than these?

So when shadows fall and animals prow,
And weird bubblings and hoots proceed from an owl,
I enjoy a peace you cannot conceive,
As I sit 'neath the trees in the shadowy eve.

LONDON, ONT., HAS BEQUEST OF HOME AND $1,000,000

The private bills committee of the Ontario Legislature lately approved a bill validating acceptance by the City of London of a bequest provided in the will of Mrs. Elsie P. Williams.

By the will the city was left the residence of the deceased, together with the sum of $1,000,000, it being specified that the home, Windermere, should be turned into a museum and the sum be used for upkeep and to acquire additional pictures and other works of art.

The will provided, however, that if the city did not obtain a validating enactment from the Legislature within two years, the entire estate would go to the Ursuline Order of Nuns.

CITY MAY BE FORMED

On the boundaries of Toronto, a second city may be formed during the next year if the Ontario Government carries out a plan it has under consideration—states the Toronto Evening Telegram, which contends there is a movement to force a consolidation of Forest Hill Village, York Township, Weston, East York Township, Leaside, Swansea and parts of North York and Scarborough Townships into a city to be known as York City.

The Ontario Government, according to Telegram, feels such a move would force all municipalities now independent to collect income taxes from residents who have moved outside the limits of Toronto to escape payment of this tax and would make the richer municipalities share the burden of the less fortunate.

PROGRESS . . .

In Ibsen's great drama, The Enemy of the People, one reads of a town with a contaminated water supply. A young physician makes the discovery. Instead of being hailed as a community benefactor, he is warned and hushed by his fellow citizens who are fearful lest he "hurt the town."

But he persists. The final scene shows him and his family in the house which an infuriated mob has wrecked. His words are "I have made another discovery. The strongest man in the world is the man who stands alone."

Fortunately, public understanding of sanitation has progressed since Ibsen's day. Seldom do townsmen persecute a prophet preaching so obvious a cause as pure water. Sewage disposal plants, community chests, recreation centers—these are evidences that men are beginning to accept, for restricted areas such as cities, the truth of Herbert Spencer's dictum: "None can be truly happy unless all are free; none can be truly healthy unless all are healthy."

But what shall be said of its application on a broader scale? —The Rotarian.

(Galt Reporter)

A Communist agitator rode into Hyde Park and, after leaning his bicycle against the railings, mounted a soap-box and proceeded to address the crowd. "If your family is hungry," he shouted, "raid a shop and take food for them, and don't care what anybody says. If your wife hasn't got a coat, pick the best fur coat you can see, and ignore the consequences!"

After several more minutes in this strain he dismounted from his soap box, and his next words were:

"Who the hell's pinched my bike?"

work done with the assistance of government subsidies, grants, bonuses etc. We have a minor change in the Industrial Disputes Act. We have some alterations of the Combines Act (which strikes me as a mighty good act now, but only half-used.) There are one or two more bills to come.

ARE HAPPY DAYS HERE ?

Add them all together. Do they spell the Millennium ? And as though they were not shaky enough as it was, along came the collapse of the N.R.A. while they were under consideration, warning our legislators of the constitutional pitfalls when federal governments start interfering too minutely with state or provincial matters.

Mr. Bennett, looking and sounding something like a Weary Titan, assured Mr. McKenzie King last week that he was as anxious as anybody to bring the session to a close, and hold an election. The only consideration, which would delay the latter was the need of revising the election lists so as not to disenfranchise a lot of junior Canadians, just reaching voting age. Lists will be revised by the 15th. of August, it is expected.

Married in Montreal

MONCRIEFF - HENDERSON

The marriage of Shelnah Struthers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson, Montreal, to Mr. Stewart Ward Moncrieff, son of the late John Moncrieff and Mrs. Moncrieff, of Brownsburg, took place on Saturday afternoon in St. Luke's United Church, the Rev. R. De Witt Scott officiating. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Thomas Irving sang, "Oh, Father, all Creating." Mr. Roland Moncrieff acted as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in ice blue wool lace, made on Victorian lines with frilled back falling to form a short train, blue rough straw bonnet, mitts and sandals and carried a Colonial bouquet of sweet peas, roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The matron-of-honor, Mrs. Robert A. Normal, wore a French printed silk dress in shades of blue and orange with matching jacket, a large black hat, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. Mrs. Henderson, the bride's mother, was in black waffle crepe, with a large black hat and wore a corsage bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Moncrieff, mother of the groom, wore black and white georgette, with a matching hat and a corsage bouquet of red roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Mount Royal Hotel. Later Mr. and Mrs. Moncrieff left on a motor trip. On their return they will reside at Brownsburg. The bride wore for traveling a scarlet and black costume with black hat and accessories.

Death Removes Familiar Figure in United Church

THE LATE WM. J. CLELAND

Death came suddenly on Thursday last to Wm. John Cleland, a highly respected citizen of Lachute for the past 12 years. Starting out on his daily duties he felt as well as usual, but about 11 o'clock returned home complaining of a heart attack and despite medical assistance he passed away shortly after noon.

He was born at St. Jerusalem, and had reached the age of 68 years. He was married to Miss Minnie Brown, and for the past 10 years had been caretaker of the Lachute United Church, also looking after the Bank of Nova Scotia premises.

He leaves to mourn his loss a loving wife, one daughter, Hilda (Mrs. Leonard Boyd), two sons, Dawson of Aurora Ill., James of Regina, Sask., also one brother, Robert, of Lachute, and one sister, Mrs. T. F. Smith, of Aurora, Ill.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon from his late residence on Grace Street, to the United Church, Rev. W. B. Rosborough taking charge of the service, assisted by Rev. H. Cousens.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Jas. W. Gall, E. Walker, Dr. G. Clunie, W. M. Scott, Wm. Gordon, and A. A. McQuat.

The large attendance and many floral tributes bore testimony to the high esteem in which Mr. Cleland was held.

Lions Hear Discourse on Criminology

Speaking before the Lions Club last evening Mr. J. Alex Edmison, prominent lawyer of Montreal, gave an interesting address on the subject of Criminology. Mr. Edmison traced the history of crime down through the ages and took as an example the record of four distinct types of criminals with whom he had come in contact.

The election of officers resulted in the same slate being returned for the coming year. In moving a vote of thanks to the officers for their past work, Lion Rev. Winter LeCras asked that the Club give them their co-operation and support for the coming term.

Lion Geo. G. Mitchell was effectively boosted by Lion Clement Tremblay. Those drawing the lucky numbers and winning Lion Mitchell's gifts were Lions C. Tremblay and J. E. Walker.

The management of the Cosy Inn is to be congratulated on the enlargement of the dining room which now gives plenty of room to accommodate a considerable gathering.

CANADIAN WEATHER

Like most other people I do my share of growling about the weather. When you come to think of it we have a great deal to be thankful for and very little to grumble about. We have no cyclones, nor tornadoes; no earthquakes nor volcanic eruptions; no insects nor malaria. We have a lot to be thankful for but whatever would we do if we could not talk about the weather.

PERMANENTS FOR CHILDREN

A reader has asked me to write about children's permanents. She is quite worked up because she knows a four year old girl who has just had her second permanent and whose nails are enamelled red. I don't wonder she feels indignant. There is something very appealing about a curly-headed child but straight hair can be attractive too. Permanents are apt to be hard on the hair and a girl who has had them for years will arrive at adulthood with poorer hair as a result. As for the brightly enamelled nails for a four year old, to me it is beyond words.

THE RADIO

The radio may be a blessing or a curse in our homes depending on the way it is handled. In most homes it is a definite part of the home life and requires supervision just as food, clothing, education, movies, sports and all the other integrals of living. It is interesting to note the way different families handle the radio question. One woman said that they had sold their radio and had not replaced it because the children scrapped so much about which programme should be on. They got so tired of the continual scrapping and the everlasting jazz that they got rid of it. Another woman said that her ten year old boy had not eaten a meal at the table for weeks as there was always some programme he wanted to listen to so he just took his plate in to the radio. In contrast to these, here are cases where the radio is properly controlled. A thirteen year old boy was having frequent nightmares and disturbed sleep. His mother when looking for the cause, found that it occurred nights after he had listened to adventure or crime plays on the radio. When these were stopped, there were no more nightmares. Another woman has two boys, just average rough-and-tumble boys, fairly musical but with no definite artistic tendencies. The radio programmes in this home have not been chosen by the children, although there are some to which they may always listen. Most of the music is good music with just enough jazz to act as a leavening agency. These parents feel that unless children hear good music they will not like it but given the opportunity of hearing it will grow to like it as they learn it. Apparently their theories are working out. There was a Wagner programme on and the older boy looked up from his book and remarked, 'I always like to hear Wagner'. The younger boy came in one day and the 1812 Overture was being played. He recognized it instantly and complained, 'why don't you turn that higher, that's my favorite piece'. The radio has come to stay and parents should exercise a reasonable control over it, making full use of its possibilities for education and entertainment.

FOAMY OMELET

Omelets really are not hard to make and yet we are served with so many tough discouraged looking affairs. The chief thing to remember is to use a slow cooking temperature as a hot fire makes eggs tough. Beat eggs separately, and add 1 tablespoon milk or water for each egg used and 1/4 teaspoon salt for every two eggs. Fold the stiffly beaten whites into the yolks. Butter a frying pan liberally, and tilt it so that the sides will be buttered too. Pour in the omelet and cook over a slow fire until gently browned. I like to finish cooking an omelet in the oven as they are easily burned. Cook in a slow oven of about 325 degrees for ten to fifteen minutes, or until dry. Fold and serve at once. Cooked asparagus, cut in inch lengths, or chopped crisp bacon

RADIO AWARD WINNER

Irene Wicker, the Kellogg Company's Singing Lady, who has endeared herself to millions of young radio listeners through her broadcast, has just received the Radio Stars' Award for Distinguished Service to Radio. The Singing Lady is the first juvenile broadcast to be so honored, the award having been made to her for the "one child's program which has measured up both to the standards of good taste demanded by mothers and the degree of entertainment required by their sons and daughters." The Kellogg Singing Lady is heard over CRCT, Toronto, and CFCF, Montreal, every day except Saturday and Sunday at five-thirty (Eastern Daylight Time).

In addition to the above award, for two succeeding years the Radio Editors of America have selected Kellogg's Singing Lady as the outstanding juvenile program on the air.

Millions of youngsters "listen in" to her delightful songs and stories every school day, at children's supper time.

Her bright story-telling is a constructive influence in the lives of all her listeners and she has created a new literature that has received the acclaim of child psychologists and educators throughout the Nation.

LIVE BY WALKING

In Liverpool, England, two girls, Peggy Robertshaw and Celia Davis, make their living walking 12 miles a day to test new footwear for a boot and shoe factory. Each has a pedometer attached to her right leg to record the distance walked. They can go anywhere they like so long as they walk the prescribed 12 miles daily and return to the factory to turn in their pedometers and boots or shoes. Both girls are robust and healthy. Peggy Robertshaw has had her job for seven years and has walked 21,000 miles during this time.

SHOULD PAY SMALL BILLS

It may sound silly to say that the reason that collections are slow is because collections are slow. It is a sober fact, however. If the people who owe small amounts, from fifty cents to five dollars, let us say, would pay them—and most people are able to do that much—the payment of the large amounts would be greatly facilitated thereby. As the late Elbert Hubbard wrote, "The unforgivable sin is the disposition to evade the payment of small bills."

sprinkled on the omelet before folding is a savoury addition. Try an omelet for dinner one of these hot days instead of meat.

JELLED HAM

- 1 can tomato soup
- 1 can water
- 1 cup chopped ham
- 1 finely chopped cabbage
- 1/4 cup chopped pickle
- 1/4 cup salad dressing
- gelatine

Mix undiluted soup and water or if using a diluted soup do not add water. Measure and mix sufficient gelatine for this quantity in cold water, using the proportions on the package which is usually 1 tablespoon to a pint of liquid. Heat the soup and add the gelatine and stir until dissolved. When this mixture cools add the salad dressing, beating it with an egg beater. When beginning to thicken add the rest of the ingredients and mould in individual moulds. This makes a good party salad, for eight.

SEIGNIORY CLUB RUNS TROUT HATCHERY

themselves with fry, and when they first bring their young ones out for the trial flights, they immediately bring them to these fine hunting grounds.

The complete list of trout enemies is a long one. It includes, besides the two already mentioned, poachers such as Herons, Owls, Hawks, Minks, Otters, Water Snakes and Snapping Turtles.

By the end of the summer an ordinary speckled trout as grown in a hatchery pond, will be between two and a half and three inches long. A few fish will start spawning when they are two years old, but the majority only spawn after three years.

Trout younger than this produce small and poor eggs, and the fry resulting from them are, as a rule, weak, and in many cases deformed.

The growth of a speckled trout under natural conditions, that is in a lake or a stream, is dependent partly on the amount of suitable food. Trout will grow better on one kind of food than on another. Fresh water shrimps are usually considered one of the finest trout foods that exist, and where they are found in a lake, the trout nearly always grow to very large sizes.

The finest trout waters in Canada and possibly in the whole world, are at the Nipigon River in Ontario. The world's record speckled trout was caught here some years ago and weighed fourteen and a half pounds. To catch trout seven and eight pounds in this river is not unusual.

The average trout as found in the lakes of Quebec and Eastern Ontario will usually not weigh more than 2 pounds, and three and four pound trout must be considered very good fish indeed.

The matter of fast and large growth in a trout, is also to a great extent, dependent on the strain from which the fish was developed. There has been much work done on selective breeding of trout, and some very good results have been obtained.

The Seignior Club Hatchery now carries a strain of trout that has been produced during the last twenty or twenty-five years, by selecting only the largest, fastest growing fish as well as fish producing the greatest amount of eggs.

The result is that today the hatchery has two year old fish as large as three year old fish would be, originating from wild stock. That is, fish which were caught in the lakes and streams immediately before spawning time.

At present, experiments are made to produce a strain of fish that will be resistant to the most common and dangerous trout diseases.

Until a few years ago, all weight was put on the hatchery work, and little attention was paid to the future fate of the fish. As long as the fish came into their new home safely, everybody was satisfied. The result was many unsuccessful stocking programmes and a waste of money and time.

Before planting young trout in a lake, it is necessary to have a good knowledge of the lake's condition, both as regards its population of other fish as well as the amount of available food.

It has been a common belief that a good trout lake could be fished as much as desired. Where this practice has been carried out, the result in almost every case has been that the lake has been fished out.

The population of trout in a lake, may quite easily be compared to a sum of money invested. One can get a certain yield per year. But if more than the annual interest is taken out, it only means that some of the original capital is used as well, and if not replaced in some way or other, one will end up by getting nothing at all.

Very little is known in this country about the amount of fish which a given body of water will produce per year over a long span of time; but if comparisons are made with known lakes both in Scotland and Norway it is more than likely that the annual yield of most Canadian lakes will be somewhere around five to six pounds of fish per year per acre of water surface.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 9th., is "God the Only Cause and Creator."

The following correlative passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things."

"The creative Principle - Life, Truth, and Love - is God. The universe reflects God. There is but one creator, and one creation. This creation consists of the unfolding of spiritual ideas and their identities which are embraced in the infinite Mind and forever reflected. These ideas range from the infinitesimal to infinity, and the highest ideas are the sons and daughters of God."

Here and There

Two or three times as much rainfall this year between April 1 and May 8 on the Prairies as compared with the same period last year makes the outlook for the 1935 harvest similar to that at the same time of year in 1932 when the largest crop since 1928 was recorded, states T. S. Acheson, general agricultural agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the West.

Leonard J. Pohlmann, traveling passenger agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, with headquarters at New York, was recently elected vice-president of the American Association of Traveling Passenger Agents of New York. Mr. Pohlmann has been a member of the association's executive committee for the past year.

Hotel Saskatchewan, Regina, distinguished itself recently by staging a Chinese Mandarin dinner dance, said to be the first of its kind on this continent. As stage decoration there was used a hundred-foot runner and side drapes, hand-made by Chinese many decades ago, and insured while in use at a valuation of $6,000. The orchestra was in Chinese dress and provided music with a decidedly Eastern background.

T. J. Jackson, who has just been appointed first assistant manager of the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, in succession to Cyril Chapman, promoted to the post of manager of the Seignior Club of Quebec, started as cashier at the Chateau Frontenac in 1924, and has had rapid advancement to his present high position.

To Charles Montgomery, one-time switch-tender and at present elevator operator at the Canadian Pacific uptown office building in Winnipeg, go all honors for having constructed what is probably the most perfectly finished model of a locomotive on the continent. It is a five-foot replica of a Canadian Pacific class "2300", finished in brass and copper, and took five years to construct.

Out of active service for some years past, Canadian Pacific liner Melita has been sold to Italian shipbreakers. She was built in Glasgow in 1918.

"Never betray a trust; be honest; do what other men can do; and work your eight hours a day," is the recipe for success enunciated by Caleb R. Smith, international chairman of the Million-Dollar Round Table, speaking to the Life Underwriters in convention at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, recently.

James G. Millar, Medicine Hat, veteran Canadian Pacific engineer, recently celebrated his 82nd birthday, when railway acquaintances and relatives gathered to congratulate him. He was born in Drummondville, Que., and has been drawing a railroad cheque for more than 64 years.

A couple of score of fine old railroaders who five decades ago helped push the steel around the north shore of Lake Superior for the Canadian Pacific Railway, gathered near Jackfish, Ont., recently, to re-enact the driving of the last spike at Nelsio on May 16, 1885. Alex. Anderson, Port Arthur, who held the spike when it was driven fifty years ago, drove home a new gilded spike with a vigor that belied his 81 years.

Antiques Highly Prized by Old-Time Egyptians

Modern antique hunters have nothing on the ancients, some of whom treasured their own antiques which were more than 1,000 years old before the Christian era. A fragment of an Egyptian alabaster goblet found at the University of Michigan archaeological excavations on the site of old Selenia, in Mesopotamia, throws this sidelight on the lives of the ancients.

The bit of alabaster cup or goblet was found in the level of Selenia inhabited from about 140 B. C. to 43 A. D. On the fragment are inscribed in Egyptian hieroglyphics, the words: "The Majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, the Lord of the Two Lands." The broken edge of the piece ends the inscription abruptly but it is thought that there followed the name of one of the pharaohs of the thirtieth dynasty in Egypt, which lasted from 380 to 340 B. C.

Undoubtedly the goblet was part of gifts sent from the unknown pharaoh to his fellow ruler in Selenia and even centuries later the fragments were treasured by the Selenian householders, who believed them to be potent charms.

Drug Smugglers Cunning

Drug smugglers do not make the London detective's life any more pleasant living. Drug-taking is a spreading habit. Every year the orientals and their agents in suburb and city successfully smuggle tons of cocaine and hundred-weights of opium into England. Efforts to prevent it seem hopeless.

Brighten up with ALL-BRAN!

You've had days when you've felt discouraged and low. Nothing seemed to go right. Frequently these dreary days can be traced to common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in your meals.

This ailment may cause headaches and loss of energy. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and food-iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables. It is gentle and often more effective. Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines—often harmful?

Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Brighten days with ALL-BRAN! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

LACHUTE TO APPEAR ON MOVIE SCREEN

CAMEP-A-MAN HERE DURING FAIR WEEK

Furthering the wide publicity which Lachute derives from its annual Spring Fair, business men of the town have arranged for a visit on Friday from Associated Screen News photographers, who will take scenes and groups around the town and Exhibition Grounds. This is a commendable Fair Week feature from which favorable advertising will come through the medium of the movie screens. It is understood the Rex Theatre will be the first to show these pictures, and local theatre goers will enjoy seeing their home town in Hollywood mood.

The city aldermen and the Board of Trade executive, it is stated, will be among groups posed specially for the movie camera-man.

CANADIAN AUTHORS HELD CONVENTION

(By Our Own Reporter)

The fourteenth Annual Dominion Convention of Canadian Authors was held June 4-5-6 in the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, with Prof. Watson Kirkconnell, Winnipeg, in the chair.

In commenting upon the absence of the Dominion president, "Ralph Connor", Prof. Kirkconnell said that while he would do his best to fill the position, it was somewhat a case of the office boy trying to fill the employer's chair. However, the sessions proved that Prof. Kirkconnell was quite capable of filling the chairman's shoes, in that capacity at least. It was disappointing to the delegates present not to have their president with them, but a letter of greeting from him at one of the meetings, helped to console them. This letter was full of interesting accounts of his travels in Australia and in the land of the Maori, where he was preaching and teaching, or in other words lecturing, and receiving honors and civic wel-

LACHUTE UNITED Y.P.S. HELD ANNUAL PICNIC

On Saturday, June 8th., the Y.P.S. of the United Church enjoyed their annual picnic at Lake Louise.

The young people were fortunate in having, as their headquarters the spacious cottage of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Deacon.

Ideal weather prevailed... Boating and music were engaged in by many, and swimming by a few, after which a delicious lunch was served. The group then adjourned to the green fields where an exciting game of softball was played. The line-up included—

Clifford Cunningham (Capt.), Owen Todd, Miss B. Clunie, Miss G. Rosser, Miss C. Millar, Miss L. Belanger, Miss V. Belanger.

Allan Biggar (Capt.), Mr. Rosborough, Mrs. L. Morris, Miss Stalker, Miss F. Mason, Mrs. Charles Graham, Miss E. MacKimmie.

The game ended 7 to 6 in favour of the latter team.

The young people then gathered at the camp and as darkness was approaching some Glorious weather favored the Agricultural Society as the gates of Lachute Fair opened yesterday to admit the anticipated crowds, gathering once again to participate in the splendid show which has been prepared by the Society's directors.

For several years now the event has been attended by unfavorable weather, but if the present conditions continue, the 1935 Fair promises to prove a record breaker, as there is the largest display of horses and took their departure while others remained for the evening. All reported a most enjoyable outing.

Hon. Telephore D. Bouchard, speaker of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, who has been appointed to the Taschereau Cabinet as Minister of Municipal Affairs, Trade and Commerce, Mr. Bouchard, mayor of St. Hyacinthe continuously since 1917, is still a young man, being only 53 years of age. He has been the guiding spirit in the Quebec Union of Municipalities, and in recent years has devoted much energy to the study of electricity problems in the light of private and public ownership.

A. Y. P. A. Rally

An enjoyable evening was held in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Hall on June 7th., when members of the A.Y.P.A. from Arundel, Calumet, Lachine, Montreal and Lachute met for a rally. Mr. John Owens, deanery representative, acted as chairman. Mr. Fred Reed, president of the diocesan council, was also present and addressed the gathering during the evening. County Councillors Met for Quarterly Session

The quarterly meeting of the Argenteuil County Council was held in the Court House on Wednesday. There were present—Warden Mayor J. E. Walker, and Councillors R. Legault, Calumet; R. D. Owens, Montcalm; Dougald McTavish, Harrington; W. X. Beauchamp, Grenville & Augmentation; A. O. Kerr, Gore; C. Roy, Carillon; Henry Lajeunesse, Howard; Arthur Dawson, Mille Isles; W. Pitcairn, St. Andrews East; J. E. Seale, Morin; C. J. Staniforth, Arundel; W. Desjardins, Huberdeau; L. Adamson, Wentworth; Geo. Dansereau, Grenville.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Delegates from the Agricultural Society appealed for a grant to aid in its extension work, and the sum of $500 was voted.

By-law No. 28 was homologated, closing the county road between the township of Howard and Wentworth.

Alex. Bethune of Lost River, was appointed superintendent to make an act of apportionment, for maintenance of the county road between Harrington and Wentworth townships. The question of incorporation at Brownsburg was brought up, but no opposition was offered.

A number of bills were presented and ordered paid.

A resolution was received from Roberval that the Council petition the Government to take over the full charge of all public assistance. The secretary was ordered to sign the resolution and forward same to the Hon. L. A. David, Prov. Secretary.

TOWN CLERK FETED BY FRIENDS

Mr. H. M. Lavigne's summer camp on the North River was a scene of jubilation last evening in honor of Germain Filion, secretary of Lachute Town, whose marriage to Miss Elizabeth Lavigne takes place on the 17th. inst. Mr. Filion was royally feted by his fellow townsmen, a large number of whom gathered to "bury his youth" in approved style, to express good wishes, and present him with the newest adjunct of travel, namely a Jubilee portmanteau.

Messrs. Guy Legault and Lionel Rozon were official hosts of the event. Music was provided by talented members of the party and an address was given with the presentation—the text of which is not reported! There were other humorous sidelights to the affair, including a mock arrest with apparently authentic warrant and credentials, and it was in the course of transporting the "prisoner" to St. Jerome that the victim, somewhat dismayed, landed among his friends and a hilarious evening. A generally pleasant time was enjoyed by those who participated.

MINOR ACCIDENT ON ST. JEROME HIGHWAY

An accident occurred last Saturday to two citizens of St. Canut on the Lachute - St. Jerome highway.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Boucher were driving in a delivery truck with their son and daughter, and came into collision with an auto driven by Mr. H. Joly, who was accompanied by Mrs. Joly and their two daughters, Misses Laurette and Madeleine.

The accident occurred about one mile from St. Jerome, under usual circumstances. Having passed the car on the road, it is stated that the wind blew Mr. Boucher's hat from his head and he stopped his truck suddenly to recover it.

The motorist following, unable to stop in time, ran into the rear of the delivery truck, smashing the lights and damaging the radiator of his car. Fortunately neither Mr. Joly nor his passengers were injured.

LIBERALS CAMPAIGNING AT ST. JEROME

HON. T. D. BOUCHARD ON PLATFORM

Termed the "stormy petrel of the party" Hon. T. D. Bouchard, who has just been sworn into the Quebec Cabinet, is listed as principal speaker at a Liberal rally in St. Jerome this week. Hon. L. A. David, Provincial Secretary, Senator J. E. Prevost and Mr. L. E. Parent, member for the constituency, are also announced to address this meeting.

It is the avowed aim of Hon. Mr. Bouchard to make electricity available to farmers in this Province. He expresses the conviction that if such conveniences are made available for the farmer there will be a return to the land on the part of many who have drifted into the cities for an occupation.

NEW MINISTER HAS LAKEFIELD CHARGE

GLOWING TRIBUTES ON DEPARTURE FROM PAPINEAUVILLE

Although new to the incumbency of Lakefield parish, Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, assuming charge at next Sunday's services, is well acquainted in the neighboring field of Morin Heights, where he ministered several years ago. Rev. Baugh will therefore find many former friends in and around his Anglican charge at Lakefield.

Rev. Mr. Baugh leaves the community of Papineauville amid highly appreciative sentiments from his parishioners. These have found expression in presentations and testimonials, in token of the labor and effort expended by the minister in the interests of his latest charge.

Following the Sunday service at St. Stephens, on behalf of the wardens Mr. Harvey-Tooke read a letter of glowing tribute, a passage of which asserted, "We are proud of Mr. Baugh, not only because he is an eloquent speaker but because he is a man—a man of God—always doing his duty..."

A cheque of $25. was presented also by Miss Emma Cochran at the St. John's Church, St. Amédée, on behalf of the

YOUNG PEOPLE CONDUCT SERVICE, UN. CHURCH

On Sunday last the evening service in the Lachute United Church was conducted by the members of the Young People's Society.

The music for the occasion was rendered by a choir of Young People under the direction of Mr. Charles Duncan.

The service was conducted by the President, Mr. Allan Biggar. Miss Betty Clunie led in prayer.

The Young People had as their speaker Rev. R. Strange, who gave a very stirring address, exhorting all to press forward to greater achievements.

Rev. W. B. Rosborough pronounced the benediction.

Local Jersey Record

The Jersey cow Orchard Brae Bright Beauty, bred by Robert J. Gorman, Oakville, Ontario, and owned by G. R. McCall of Lachute, has just completed a record (at 2 years and 92 days of age) of 5,976 lbs. of milk, 358 lbs. of fat in 305 days, with an average test of 5.99%.

Highway of the Fur Brigades

Lofty Athabaska is one of the most historic as well as majestic of the passes which cleave the main barrier of the Rockies. In winter the grandeur of its ice and snow was little appreciated by the early travellers who had to face the hardships of pioneer mountain travel. But in summer the grassy meadows and scattered bush of the summit of the pass have always been noted as a bright-green bower of beauty nestling between the eternal whiteness of the peaks. And at this narrow divide three tiny lakes form the source of the Canoe and Whirlpool rivers, whose waters eventually find their way to opposite shores of the continent.

Following its discovery by David Thompson in 1811 Athabaska Pass was a highway for the fur traders and the summit came to be a traditional meeting place of the eastern and western brigades. The centre one of three tarns was known as the "Committee's Punch Bowl" and beside it the brigades toasted the executive of the company. One traveller records the substitution by Sir George Simpson's party of a bottle of wine for the bowl of punch which there was no opportunity to make. Doubtless other forms of liquid refreshment were sometimes pressed into service without serious objection from the sturdy frontiersmen.

America has seen no more picturesque sight than that of the old fur brigades. The cavalcade of pack horses or dog-sleds, according to the season, was colorful enough. But it was when the party took to the painted birch-bark canoes, piled high with furs, that the French-Canadian voyageurs came into their own. As they swept down the tumultuous mountain streams these skillful boatmen, tanned dark as Indians and as gaily adorned, lightened their labors with the old boat songs of Quebec. With them travelled the officers of the trade, men whose energy and vision helped to make the far west.

THE COUNTRY FAIR

Oh, who wouldn't go to the county fair
To see all the wonderful things that are there!
There are funny men climbing
A shining trapeze,
Who make us all shiver
In case they should sneeze!
And let go their hold
Coming down with a bound Banging their gaily trapped heads on the ground.
There are quaintly dressed clowns too,
That caper and dance
And horses and ponies
That gallop and prance.
There are hurdles, and swings too,
And wheels that go round,
Carrying us all away up high from the ground.
Merry go rounds, and cookies and cake
Ice cream and candy and gobblers that make Noises all over the hen-pen and yard
Much more than the geese
Who scream ever so hard.
Oh who wouldn't go to the county fair
To see all the wonderful things that are there!

KITTENS THREE

"Betty! Betty!" Mother Bond called quite loudly. At first naughty Betty did not make any move to see what her mother wanted.

"Bet! you are being mean to Mother," Bobby said accusingly. "But she is always calling me for something or other," Betty complained in a grumbling tone.

"Betty Bond! this is the first time Mother has called you this morning, and it is now almost ten o'clock. You have played just hours and hours without interruptions—and you know, Bettikins" (Bobby's voice was not. Mother just wanted them goes back on us, so we can't go back on Mother." Betty looked rather ashamed and dashed off to the house just as her mother called her again. Bobby followed more slowly. "A fellow never knows what is wanted. It might be a piece of pie or something." But it was no. Mother just wanted them to hunt for old Speckle's eggs in the hayloft. "She is hiding her eggs," their mother said, "and I don't want her setting away. I want the eggs."

With a joyous "whoopie", Bobby set out for the barn with Betty and old Pete at his heels. "I'll race you up the ladder, Bet!" he called back. The ladder leading to the loft was very wide, quite roomy enough for two little folks. Like a flash Betty dashed by him and was half way up the ladder before Bobby reached the bottom. "Yah!-yah!-Yah!" she called jeeringly down at him, as she reached the top, but Bobby only laughed in a good natured way and said, "You remind me of something that Dad said this morning. He was telling Mother that Nell had run away with the tumbrel cart and that he did not know that she had pep enough in her to run away with anything! Neither did I think you had it in you to run like that."

"Little boys don't know all there is to know, as a rule." Bet replied with a scornful toss of her head, and she commenced peeping into the different nooks and corners of the loft. "Here's a nice dark place here, Bobby, I should not be surprised if we found Speckle's nest in it." Betty dropped to her knees to explore the corner, but did not stay in that position more than a minute—for something large and woolly with glaring eyes dashed up into her face, spitting and clawing at her rather fiercely. "Bobby! come here quick!" Betty shrieked in alarm, rolling over on her face to protect it from the charging creature. When Bobby reached the corner he fooled old Bess, the big Persian cat, guarding the entrance to her home, still spitting crossly.

"Why Bess, old girl!", he said. "what is the matter?"

Hearing his familiar voice Bess answered him with a frightened "Meow."

"There is no one going to hurt you, Bess," said Bobby coaxingly, "or your babies either. I'll bet you have some hidden behind you; that is why you charged Betty the way you did. You thought she was some terrible thing coming to hurt them. Move over, old lady, and let us see them."

By this time Betty, although rather shaken from her sudden fright had recovered her courage enough to come closer. Old Bess kept growling and spitting at her until she called her by name and talked to her rather coaxingly. "Aren't they beauties, Betty?" Bobby called excitedly, as he held up a tailless mass of soft fur for her inspection. "There are three of them, and all black as night. Their eyes are open. See how they wink and blink when the light strikes them."

"Three of them!" Betty said softly as she took the soft little bundle of fur in her hands and stroked. "One for each of us, and one to give away."

"Who will we give it to?" Bobby asked. "Little lame Bennie" said Betty, "you know he has no one to play with, and he will just love to have one." "Perhaps he would like them all," Bobby said "one kitten is not so much fun alone, but three kittens playing around would keep him amused."

"Oh, but want one," cried Betty in a tearful voice. "So do I," said Bobby, "but then, Bettikins, we can run and play with other things, and Bennie can't."

"Oh dear!" sighed Betty. "what did you have to go and think of that for! If you had not thought of it we would not have had to give him all three—they are such darlings." Betty cuddled the baby cat close to her face. "Let's ask Mother before we decide forever'n ever Betty." Without waiting to look for Speckle's nest the two children hurried down the ladder and rushed to the house, just as their mother was coming in the kitchen door with her apron filled with eggs. "Ha! ha!" she laughed gaily, "I found Speckle's eggs first. She had them hidden in the corn bin. I almost stepped on them."

When she heard the story of the kittens and what they had planned to do with them, she said "How Bennie will love them dears, and just as soon as they are old enough I'll make him a little frosted cake and you may take it to him at the same time. I'll make some sandwiches too and small cakes, so that you may have a picnic with him."

Bob and Betty thought that would be almost as nice as keeping the kittens themselves, and they skipped back to their play-house to finish their game.

Next story "When the moon was full."

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

A hundred thousand additional trees were planted by 140 Boy Scouts in the reforestation area near Angus, Ont., during the 24th of May school holiday camp. The boys pay a $2 fee for the privilege of attending the camp.

FRENCH-SPEAKING QUEBEC OFFICIALLY ADOPTS SCOUTING

What is regarded in Scouting circles as an historic event, and one forecasting rapid growth of the movement in Quebec, was the confirmation at the recent annual meeting of the Boy Scouts Association of the agreement by which La Federation des Scouts Catholiques de la Province de Quebec became associated with the Boy Scouts Association as a parallel, autonomous body, under the Chief Scout for Canada and the Canadian General Council, the governing body of the Scout Association.

Most appropriately, Lord Baden-Powell himself was present at the meeting at which this important development was consummated.

In practically all respects La Federation parallels the organization, principles, code and rules of The Boy Scouts Association, and the same uniform will be worn, only the badge being distinctive. This will be a red Jerusalem Cross and Maple Leaf on the hat, and on the shirt the Fleur-de-lys.

Membership in La Federation is open to all Catholic men and boys in Quebec who desire to join; French speaking Roman Catholic Scouts desiring recognition must be members of La Federation.

The details of the agreement were drawn up by a special committee of the Scout Association and His Eminence Cardinal Villeneuve, O.M.I., Archbishop of Quebec.

Canadian Authors Held Annual Convention

comes, being presented by a Maori Chief with an ancestral war robe, originally intended for a king's son, the Duke of Gloucester, who unfortunately did not extend his visit to that portion of New Zealand.

Webster's Dictionary describes the Maoris as being noted for their aboriginal art and poetic myth, so that Dr. Gordon (Ralph Connor) will hold a special interest for them, being a writer himself. So great is their faith in him that he has had the pleasure of baptizing some of their children. Another interesting letter was read from our Madge Macbeth of Ottawa, who is visiting in Europe and wrote her letter while confined to bed with a sprained ankle gotten by running from a dog she claimed was guarding his mistress's pyjamas and raspberries. Mrs. Macbeth claimed that she had not been interested in either, but the dog evidently was taking no chances. The reader of the letter, being a man, claimed that he could not see any connection between pyjamas and raspberries, but the housewives smiled quietly, visualizing a clothes line in close proximity to the raspberry patch.

In his opening address Prof. Kirkconnell stated that this Author's Association had been formed 14 years ago in Montreal with the object of obtaining justice for the author and had certainly gone farther than it had been anticipated; that we were not just a "mutual admiration society" as we had been called by some, but a benefit society; that the typical author was far too much an individual for that.

Mr. Leo Cox, president of the Montreal Branch, in welcoming the convention to Montreal claimed that authors had a lot to live up to and that the most important part of the convention was the getting together, discussing problems, exchanging ideas and getting to know one another.—Mr. Cox, incidentally, is almost a part of Argenteuil County and is writing a series of poems on this section. He is a property owner and is about to build a summer home on the shore of Bevan's Lake. As well as all this he was one of the "bravest of the brave", who fought for us in the great war; his poems are filled with beautiful thoughts. Argenteuil as a whole is quite linked up with the Canadian Authors Association, having two of its residents. Dr. Maude Abbott of St. Andrews East, and myself, as regular members, while Dr. Chas. G. D. Roberts, Canada's Poet Laureate, who has recently been given the title of Sir, has had until recent years very close relatives in St. Andrews East. Mr. Leslie Gordon Barnard too, one of our great writers of the short story, whose name greets us so often from the pages of well known magazines, is a brother-in-law to one of our boys, Dr. I. Center; and this year, Dr. B. N. Wales of St. Andrews East was an honored guest of the Convention. Miss Louisa Fair, who with her parents have spent their summers at St. Andrews East for a number of years, is Secretary of the Montreal Branch.

Following Mr. Cox on the platform came Mr. Jean Bruchesi, to bring greetings from the French Section. He gave a very interesting review of the early days surrounding the coming of Jacques Cartier, celebration of that event being one of the principal parts of the Association programme. Mr. Bruchesi claimed that the French people of today were a strong and glorious people, striving to live in conformity with the rules of British citizenship. One of the jokes told by him, illustrating the past idea concerning authors, was in connection with a character given to a man seeking a job, which read something like this, "He is a faithful husband, a good father, a good worker, but sometimes applies himself to writing. Apart from that he is O.K."

Mr. H. A. Kennedy in his annual report as secretary claimed that we had 289 members and had gained 12 important concessions last year. He also read the treasurer's report in the absence of Mr. L. Burpee.

Dr. Pelham Edgar, of Victoria College, Toronto University, followed with an interesting talk on "Canadian Literature of Today". Dr. Edgar succeeds Dr. Gordon as Dominion President, and is a speaker of no mean quality. Dr. Edgar considered that an advance in writing would be to have old things presented in a new way, not sticking to the old beaten path or rule laid down for us by others. He claimed that we were the heirs of all the ages; that Canada could, if she would, supply literature for the demand of the present moment.

Dr. W. D. Lighthall, in his address on Historical Writing, claimed there had been many mistakes discovered in the history books of past years. Indians described as Iroquois, had been proven to have belonged in reality to the Hurons, and so on. A number of historical facts had come to light in the recently discovered journal of the late Jas. McGill, whose land the present hotel was built upon.

Sir Charles Roberts, in speaking of poetry, claimed that life was not a matter for utter defeat and the adventure of the eye rather worth while; that the imagist revolts against the humdrum of the past and seeks to create something that will shock, and shake people, as a mad man shakes a geranium. Sir Charles also told of the interest taken in poetry by the Imperial Japanese family; prizes in poetry are offered by them every year, New Years being the time the contest was held; old or young, rich or poor were entitled to take part, the notices of the contest being painted in the official gazette and printed on kimono and other merchandise so that by this means it got into all parts of the empire.

FEET ARE WIDER IN NEW ZEALAND

Feet in New Zealand, on the average, are broader than those of the average Canadian. The New Zealander, it is claimed, is athletic from childhood, the children leading outdoor lives throughout the year and going barefooted a great deal of the time. For this reason wider lasts are preferred. New Zealand has frequent rains throughout the year which tends to make the climate somewhat damp. The people, however, do not wear goloshes or rubbers but go in for heavier soles on their boots and shoes. English patterns in shoes predominate. It would seem there is a market in New Zealand for Canadian shoes of character, style and good construction, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

MOODS

If you're in a stormy mood
Try to quell it.
If you have an angry thought,
Do not tell it.
If a painful chord there is,
Do not wake it;
If a trace of peace exists,
Do not break it. —K. Taylor.

Greetings and reports were brought from all parts of the Dominion also from the States. The latter were brought by Zillah Macdonald, a former Canadian, who is in connection with Columbia University, New York. Miss Macdonald spoke enthusiastically about markets in the U.S.A., also gave a number of pointers on performing rights in that country and type of plays desired.

Mrs. Elizabeth Baily Price, whose name is familiar to readers of "Home and Country", the Women's Institute official organ, gave a very interesting talk on "Writing for the Press". Mrs. Price is president of the Canadian Women's Press Club of Vancouver. She presented her facts in a very attractive way. The very first newspaper in existence was the Acta Diurna, which appeared in the time of Julius Caesar; and the speaker followed the drift of the times regarding newspaper publishing down through the ages.

One of her messages to writers was: "Do not write for nothing!" A manuscript is an article of commerce and giving articles or stories free of charge destroys the markets for those who make their living by writing." Also that editors value work more highly that they have to pay for.

Mrs. Price quoted a saying used by all the Indian Chiefs of past ages in concluding their council speech; with this she concluded hers. It was "Moko-kik-ka-ka-mat," which in plain English means, "Be wise and persevere." "That," said Mrs. Price, "is my final message to you. It is a message which I think might be used in walks of life as well as in the work of the press."

Mr. L. E. Brownell of Winnipeg, editor of the National Home Monthly again as last year, advised on writing for magazines. He claimed that, after the humorous controversy of last year, he had tried to return promptly all MSS that they could not accept promptly. The editor had to act the part of an umpire, and they "certainly did their darndest to give everyone fair play." Mr. R. S. Kennedy, in absence of the editor of the Family Herald, answered questions for him, as to the wherefore and why of everything, and he certainly did very well considering that he usually opposes the editors in his convention speeches. He claimed that most stories did not have sufficient plot, or the plot was not sufficiently worked out, thus the editor was forced to refuse them.

Mr. Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the Radio Commission, explained many things in connection with radio work, stating that every possible attempt was being made to use the work of Canadian authors in dramatic presentations of the Commission, also to change the programmes frequently. Historical stories and dramas seemed to be most acceptable to the public. Canadians liked something native to their soil.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 16th., is "God the Preserver of Man."

The Golden Text is: "The Lord giveth wisdom: . . . He keepeth the paths of judgment, and preserveth the way of his saints." (Proverbs 2: 6, 8.)

The following correlative passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"And when he was entered into a ship, his disciples followed him. And, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea, inasmuch that the ship was covered with the waves: but he was asleep. And his disciples came to him, and awoke him, saying, Lord, save us: we perish. And he saith unto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm." (Matthew 8: 23-26).

"The mission of Jesus confirmed prophecy, and explained the so-called miracles of olden time as natural demonstrations of the divine power, demonstrations which were not understood." (Science and Health, p. 131).

BIG ADVERTISING

It's a large world we live in—but it is a world constituted of communities, big and small. Only so far as individuals seek to improve the settlements in which they live, can they derive pleasure from their neighbors and their surroundings.

An enterprise such as the Argenteuil Exhibition, now in progress at Lachute, is an outlet for community expression, for neighborly co-operation. From purely local standpoints the efforts put forth are highly beneficial in our community life. . . . But there is a wider aspect, from which the town derives benefits not so readily measured. Lachute Fair is perhaps the town's biggest advertisement in outer circles. Many newspaper readers unacquainted with this section learn of Lachute through its Fair. Many people who would not otherwise step out of their beaten path, visit us solely on account of this annual show. . . . What pleasurable contacts or future business may accrue through this acquaintance cannot be foreseen, but may be counted as a sure asset to the town.

It is not necessary to stress the part our citizens play at this time. In the manner of their welcome, and in the impression these surroundings leave with visitors, there rests a possibility of highly favorable repute.

SOME A LOT SOONER!

It was a poet who last week expressed the opinion that "all poets should be strangled at the age of 50 and some of them a lot sooner." Dr. Theodore Maynard made this assertion, and he is vice-president of the Catholic Poetry Society of America, so he should know.

One will be apt to agree with his afterthought, that some should cross at a tender age to that shore where all is beautiful and all conducive to poetic inspiration. But one will hesitate to condemn the rest to a like fate. For many true poets have produced their finest work in the mellow years of life. A thought to the martial lines of Kipling, the gripping realism of Masfield, and a few gems from the pen of Thomas Hardy, produced in recent years, will convince us there is still some fine stuff in the older poets.

HASTY REFORM HAS BAD EFFECT

It would appear that at least one item of Soviet legislation was enacted too hastily, and the Republic has to appeal to the public conscience to repair the damage it has done. Easier divorce laws were presumably part of the anti-religious, anti-conventional trend of communist reform. But these measures have so debased the erstwhile sanctity of marriage as to undermine family life in young Russia.

The Soviet press is now campaigning for chivalry among husbands, who under existing law apparently may secure a divorce and leave their partners on slight pretext. The result has been an insecure marital relationship and women reluctant to bring children into the world while they may be left on short notice to care for their offspring.

Apart from having loosened the base of the social system—generally recognized as family life and integrity—these trends are also defeating the Soviet aim of increased population to exploit resources and provide military manpower.

NEW MINISTER HAS LAKEFIELD CHARGE

Ladies' Guild. The presentation was accompanied by a brief address; the cheque, incidentally was signed by the President, Mrs. Alex. Sutton, who was formerly Miss Rogers of Hill Head.

A third recognition of Mr. Baugh's devotion was made at the service of the congregation of Christ Church held in the Town Hall at Montebello. Here Warden Stewart read a heartfelt testimonial in which credit was given to the minister for "having laid the difficult foundations for establishment of our church in this community." A purse and a gold wrist-watch were presented by the members of this congregation.

With these tributes on his departure from Papineauville, Rev. C. W. P. Baugh takes over his new parish with zeal and courage for a successful undertaking.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, June 11.—Spectators in the Galleries of the House, who have sat patiently through a good many tedious sessions this year, have at last been rewarded by two or three lively incidents in the past few days. Sparks have flown, and the unusual feature has been that two of the episodes were not party fights at all, but represented family differences of opinion. The shortest and sharpest was a passage at arms between Premier Bennett and Hon. R. J. Manion, culminating, so the gossip ran, in an offer on the part of the latter to hand in his resignation at once, if desired. It was an exchange carried on without benefit of Hansard, and therefore no official report exists, although the tiff was plainly seen from the Galleries. The Minister of Railways had risen and severely rebuked the Hyndman commission investigating unemployment among returned soldiers, for its charge that the department of railways and canals had not done its duty in the matter of engaging returned soldiers. Premier Bennett, who had not known that Dr. Manion was going to make the statement in the House, leaned over, as soon as the criticism was spoken, and vigorously rebuked Dr. Manion in turn. The Minister of Railways, who is quick on the trigger, came right back at the P.M. It was just a passing squall, there were no repercussions, and good temper soon prevailed on both sides.

THE CAHAN - STEVENS FEUD

The feud which has existed for some time between Hon. C. H. Cahan, the Secretary of State, and Hon. H. H. Stevens, former minister of trade and commerce, was not mollified in any way by the debate between them on the matter of electric light bulbs. Mr. Stevens had charged that Canadian Companies were prohibiting the import of bulbs by invoking the Patent Act, and were getting 55 and 60 cents each for bulbs which otherwise could be imported even over a high tariff wall, and sold for from 28 to 35 cents each. He wanted further teeth put in the Patent Act, to protect the consumer against such gouging. Mr. Cahan defended the Patent Act, said that protection was provided, argued that to change the Act would be to violate solemn international obligations. Mr. Bennett gave further reasons why Mr. Stevens' suggestion should be withdrawn. These two eminent legalists rather made a monkey out of Mr. Stevens' case, but I fancy that Hon. Harry, after gracefully withdrawing his amendment, said to himself under his breath, "But the people will go on paying 60 cents for light bulbs just the same."

Two more bills were brought in last week implementing recommendations of the royal commission on price spreads. Neither of them is as sensational or sweeping as the recommendations were. The Companies Act was tightened up in a number of particulars; directors are being forbidden to speculate in the stock of their companies; shares are not to be issued without adequate compensation; the issue of shares giving exclusive management rights is forbidden, the investor is being further protected against high-pressure salesmen.

The Federal Trade and Industry Commission, which Hon. H. H. Stevens originally thought of, and which was to be the grand gesture toward reform, emerges in a much more modest garb than had been anticipated. A federal trade and industry commission is, indeed, being created, but it turns out that the present Tariff Board is to be re-clothed with new powers as the commission. Instead of a super-board to regulate, this is to be an investigating commission merely. It is to inquire into unfair trade practices. If they find any, they are empowered to report them to the government. A Director of Prosecution is being appointed to co-operate with the legal officers taking action against business firms.

THRILLS FOR WRESTLING FANS AT ARENA

Opening with light-weight bouts which evidenced a skilful technique, Raymond Copping's wrestling performance last Monday at Lachute Arena was climaxed by a gruelling three sessions between Paul Gaudette and "Wild Man" Stewart of New York. Stewart floored his opponent in the first fall, while Gaudette triumphed with superior workmanship in the second, Stewart being carried from the ring much beaten up; he came out for the final, which was brief and to the point, and Gaudette claimed the laurels with 2-out-of-3.

A fair crowd witnessed the bouts and ceded the evening's best popularity to the referee, who performed his difficult task to their full satisfaction.

"It's tough to be goofy. There's only been one girl who ever really cared for me."
"Who was she?"
"The nurse I had when I was sick."

EARLY EXPLOITS OF THE "ONE-EYED STEER"

INVENTING CATTLE GUARDS FOR RAIL- ROAD TRACKS

Ottawa Citizen, recalling the national sensations which have commanded publicity in its earlier issues, reviews the exploits of the celebrated One-Eyed Steer, in the following amusing paragraphs—

An earlier bovine celebrity, "Mrs. O'Leary's cow", earned a place in the hall of fame by kicking over the lamp that started the great Chicago fire of '71. The one-eyed steer won his niche in the same institution by using his hoofs to shatter the dreams of inventors from all over America. Many Citizen readers will smile with amused recollection of his escapades.

It arose out of a decision of the Canadian Railway Commission in 1902, calling upon the inventive genius of the world to come to the aid of the railways and the farmers and devise some sure means of keeping cattle off the railway right-of-way. The old familiar open culvert wasn't doing the job and a fortune awaited the man who could invent a cow-proof cattle-guard for general adoption.

The inventors of Canada and the United States made a noble response and in several hundred different ways solved the problem—on paper; whereupon the Railway Board invited them all to come to Ottawa with their contraptions and do it in practice.

Out at the Exhibition Grounds one of the cattle sheds that used to line the canal bank before materialism had to make way for the esthetic was converted into a section of railroad—tracks, ties, right-of-way and all—and the inventors were told to set up their cow-stoppers and let them take the test.

One end of the line was supposed to be an ordinary grade crossing, and down the line a piece, "protected" by the cattle-guard, was as nice a pile of succulent fodder as ever graced a dairy farm.

That was the layout. The problem was to turn the hungry cattle loose on the crossing, within sight and smelling distance of the enticing salad a few cowlengths away, erect a barrier that would stop them without wrecking trains and then let nature take its course.

The late Ald. Bernard Slaterry who was in the cattle business in a big way, volunteered to supply the livestock and among the half dozen he sent over was a Texas longhorn steer that was destined to become famous. It was a rangy animal with a cast in its off eye and imbued with a strong spirit of revolt against undue restrictions being put upon easy access to railway rights-of-way.

At the end of the first day's trials the score was six to nothing in favor of the steers and half a dozen deflated inventors were on the way back home. A Citizen reporter sat on the fence all day and watched the performance. The paper came out next morning with a running story of the forays of the herd under the leadership of the one-eyed steer, "the brute that could pick a lock."

One device came all the way from Arkansas, where it had been described as "an unqualified success." It was designed to grab the hoof of the animal, throwing him to his knees and compelling him to back out. "But", said The Citizen, "Ald. Slaterry's steers are not from Arkansas, so they floundered across for another nibble of hay"

At each successive failure to stop them there were shouts of laughter from the spectators. "Ald. Slaterry's eyes glistened with pride as he saw his noble one-eyed beast walk scornfully over the inventions of man. It had been his intention to kill the animal for Sunday dinners, but this decree was revoked and an offer of $1,000 made by an inventor who wished to spirit the animal away was indignantly refused. When it dies it will have a tombstone."

Another device consisted of plate glass sheets laid between the rails, the theory being that the animals would take the glittering glass for ice or water and refuse to cross. But the one-eyed steer took a smell of it and knew better. He led his little band to the other side and they passed over dryshod.

A Sudbury man entered the lists with a fear-inspiring set of movable slats and rollers. That was so easy that old "one-eyed" stepped aside and let the ladies of the party precede him to the hay.

An Ottawa man presented a novelty in the form of a framework carrying loose chains, that arose automatically at the touch of a cowfoot. His theory was that the invaders would back away from the swinging chains. The theory didn't work out; the beasts walked into and over it "as nonchalantly as a summer girl getting into a hammock."

Another Ottawa stopper looked like a slippery tin staircase, the brightness being intended to scare the steers away. But they walked right up the stairs as quietly as a man getting home from a lodge meeting at three a.m.

From Western Ontario came a guard consisting of a series of three low gates that shook and trembled and had a formidable appearance, "but the steers took two thinks and a walk and cleared the gates."

A Westboro man had an arrangement like three sets of piano keys, strung on rods and paced two inches apart, "but the steers played the piano for the inventor and are now waiting for a mandolin or guitar."

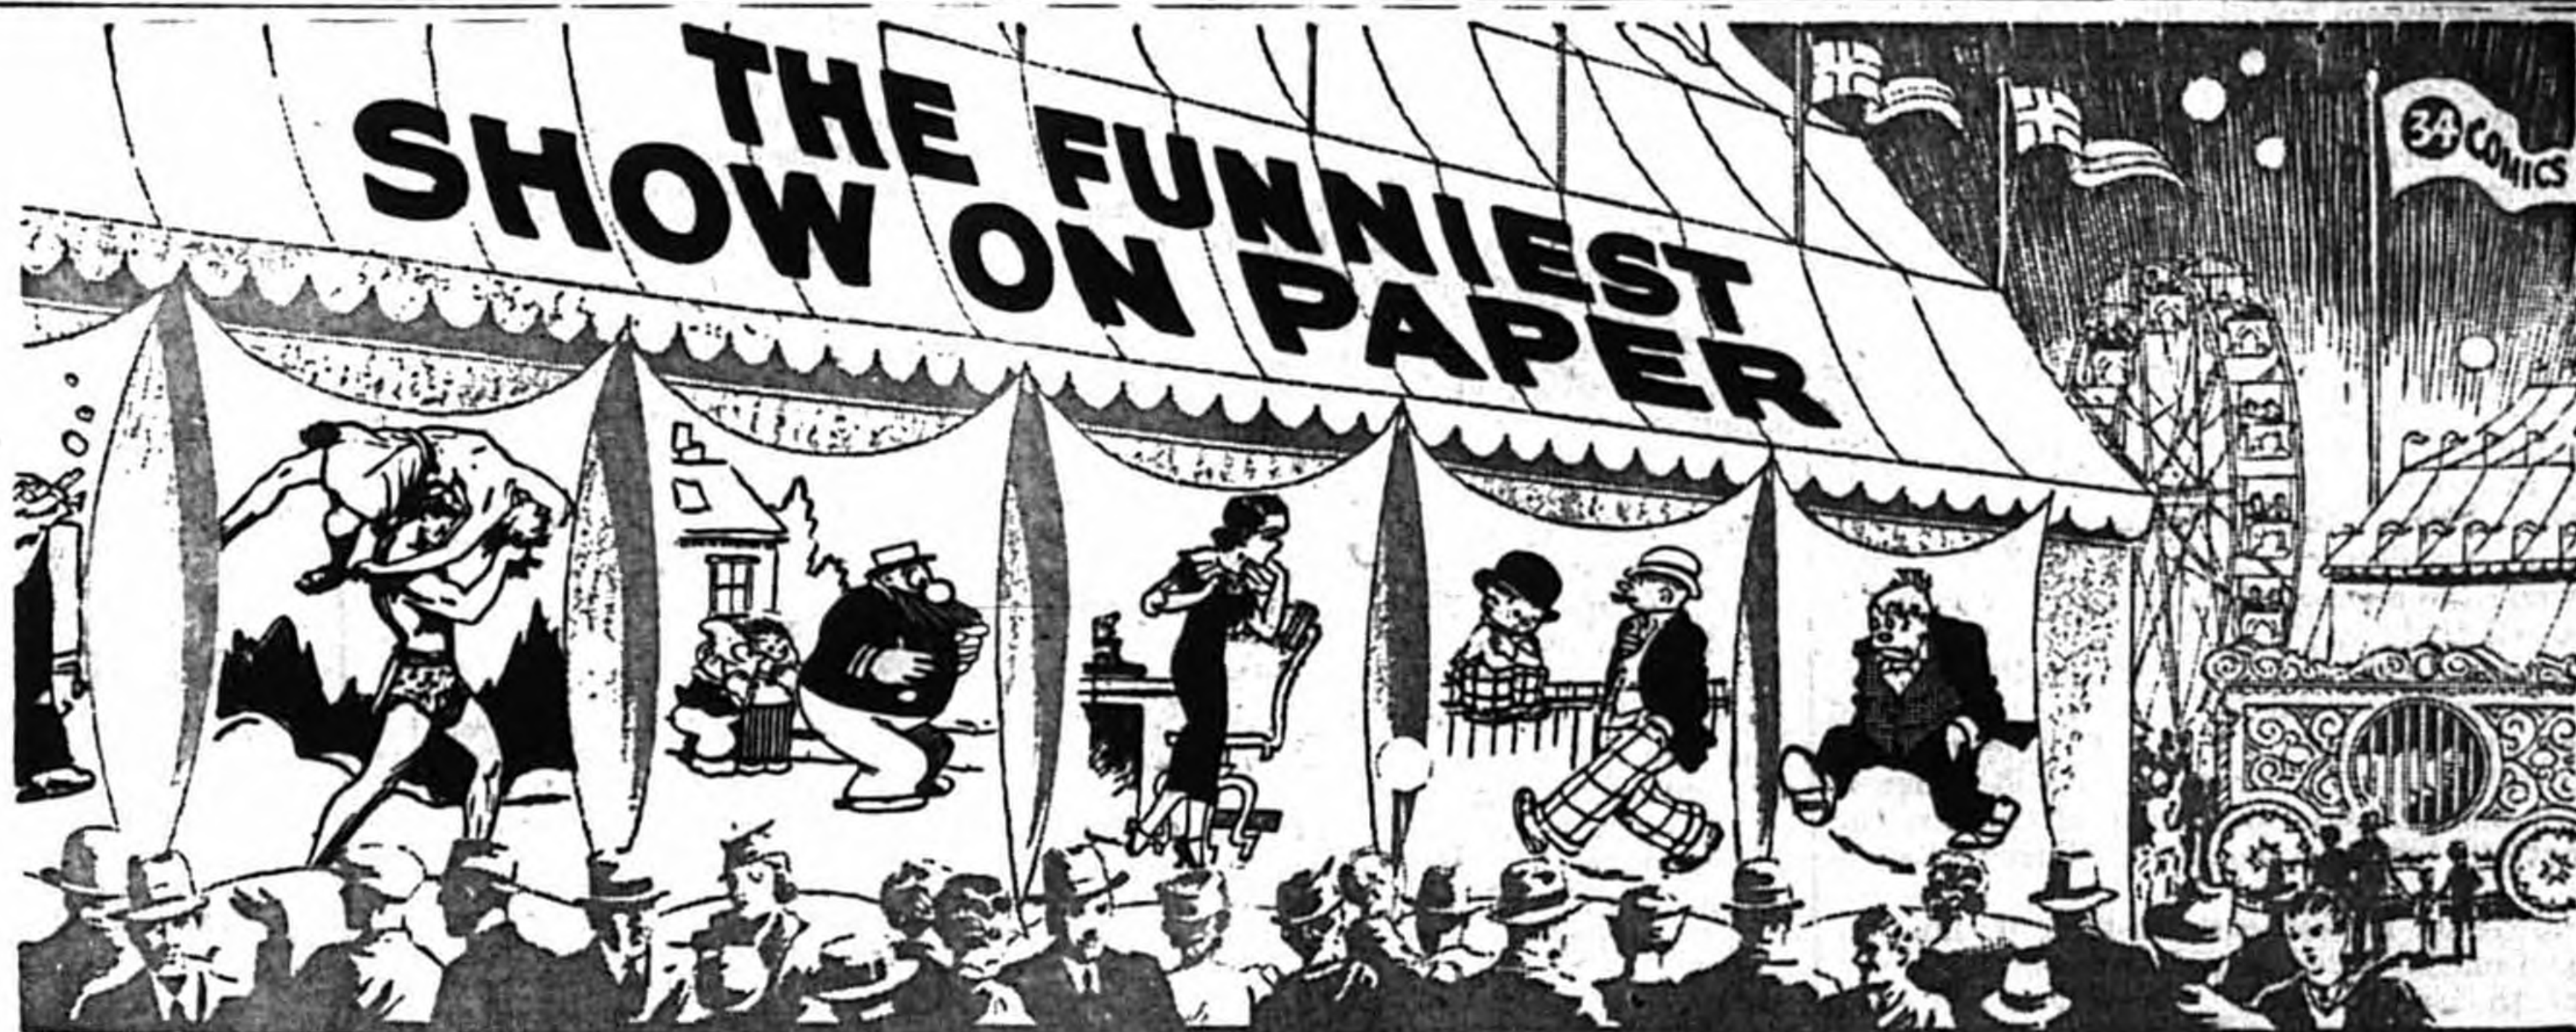

The daily tests continued from January to March, the inventions ranging all the way from scarecrows to automatic six-foot gates that of course stopped the cattle but were ruled out as too dangerous to train traffic.

The upshot of it all was that no inventor succeeded in producing the effective contrivance that would have brought him millions in royalties, and the railways are still doing the best they can to dissuade four-footed trespassers, with slight improvements on the old culvert idea.

Had the "one-eyed steer" won his fame in these days of high-pressure publicity he would have been featured in the news-reels and interviewed on the radio, with personal appearances on the vaudeville stage and acres of specially-posed pictures in the newspapers.

But he was pretty well publicized at that, for every newspaper in North America mentioned him at least once, his picture appeared in The Citizen (a piece of half-plate art work) and he wound up his career on a number of Ottawa dinner tables in the form of prime Easter beef.

Money in Circulation is Way to Prosperity

Concrete thoughts on the Unemployment Situation—addressed to President Roosevelt and Premier Bennett, the two Administrators of the United States and Canada.

CORRESPONDENCE TO "THE WATCHMAN"

Today millions of Americans and Canadians are fed up with conferences created to stabilize public opinion, so as to avoid the possible results from unemployment.

The masses feel away down in their hearts that those in political control in both these countries are overlooking the main issues.

Supplementing this attitude, I claim that every able-bodied man, Canadian or American, existing on dole or relief is ashamed of his identity—and who can blame him?

Readers of this publication, please note:—There can be no prosperity on the North American Continent until the masses are enjoying worthwhile remuneration for their services.

My contention is this—that with proper legislation Messrs. Roosevelt and Bennett can, within ninety days, place ninety per cent of their unemployed on remuneration payrolls.

I have paid consistent attention to all the addresses made on Depression, both in the press and on the air, but so far all have failed to reach the heart of the subject.

Many years ago, an American gentleman making his first visit to Montreal asked me to show him Montreal's Broadway, St. Catherine Street; and I escorted him. To my great surprise he said, "Say, what are all those Banks doing on this street, one on almost every block corner?"

I answered, "Don't you think that is a good sign; doesn't it demonstrate the thrift habit of our citizens?" He replied "Certainly not, it's money in circulation that counts!"

There's the situation today. There is no money in circulation; and how can it be otherwise when the masses, the great buying element, cannot sell their services.

In connection with my talks on this subject with many Montrealers, and to prove that "Money in circulation counts," I sometimes demonstrate . . . For instance, I will prove to you how one thousand dollars in circulation can wipe out one hundred thousand dollars in liabilities.

The reader himself can illustrate it; imagine you have one hundred friends present, each owing one thousand dollars. Now you can start with the man on your left. "Well, John, I can pay you off that thousand!" The receiver, delighted, says, "Here, Frank here's that thousand I owe you." The procedure goes on to your friend on your right and he says, "Well, So-and-So paid me. Here's the thousand I owe you!"

In other words it is truly money in circulation that counts, and it dispels fear, makes people happy, and creates employment in all walks of life.

Bearing on this question from another angle;

if the able-bodied man on this great continent cannot find employment, what is to become of the hundreds of thousands of our young men approaching their majority, who have cost their parents, during the bringing-up period, millions and millions of dollars?

Their answer is this: Our system in accordance with the times is basically wrong, labour conditions, in the interest of humanity, demand drastic reform.

My suggestion is that no wage-earner according to the laws of Canada or the United States should be allowed to work more than five hours a day.

Furthermore, every man should receive for the said five hours the same wages as if he worked eight hours previously—this to apply to male and female wage-earners alike.

Some of your readers will take exception to this suggestion, but it is the only reform necessary to absorb the unemployed of our people and give the rising generation an opportunity to be self-sustaining.

Many capitalists, manufacturers and others for the moment, reading this, will offer all sorts of objections. But remember, the masses are tired of Economics. The time is now for some strong mental genius to start this theory on its way.

The adoption of this suggestion interests every Canadian and American farmer, every manufacturer, and every professional man.—All of the masses—who form the great buying community will gladly pay the price for the commodities of life, ensuring satisfactory profit to the capitalists, manufacturer, farmer, and the various forms of labour necessary for production.

In conclusion I, as a Canadian, recall the assertion made by a prominent member of the Canadian Cabinet, who publicly declared some time ago, "Increase the price of commodities," as a cure for depression.

What a brilliant suggestion for the world of Economics! How can the average citizen buy an article priced one dollar, when present conditions prevent him from buying it at fifty cents?

In conclusion, give the wage-earners of the United States and Canada labor reform, shorten the hours of labor to five hours per day, assuring them the same revenue, and the flag of prosperity and happiness will be unfurled from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

SOME MISLEADING IMPRESSIONS

One of the most widely read magazines published in England contained in a recent issue an article on the three most popular and best loved men in America, and they listed them as Col. Lindbergh, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Huey Long.

The author was probably right in his first choice, probably about 65% right in his second choice, but a long way off in his third. He evidently mistook "Hooey" for popularity.

About the same time that this English magazine reached these shores, the London correspondent of the Canadian Daily Press wrote a long article deploring the bad publicity being given Canada by Hepburn, McGeer and others of like ilk.

It is unfortunate that the great publicity given these men and their doctrines should be construed by the English people and others as representing Canadian thought.

In spite of having such men in the limelight the great majority of Canadians can be relied upon to carry out their obligations, but in the meantime everybody will suffer for the sins of a few. Granby Leader.

AN ANCIENT ERROR

(Border Cities Star)

Dentists from all parts of Italy are cancelling appointments and flocking to the village of Fertilia. There, excavators rummaging around in ancient Roman ruins are reported to have unearthed human skulls containing gold teeth and bridgework installed more than 200 years before Julius Caesar bumped his chin on the steps of the Capitol. The dental surgeons of that long-gone era may have been marvellous craftsmen, but they made one big mistake. They didn't advertise, so we haven't any idea who they were!

"Let me see some of your black kid gloves," said a woman to the shopgirl. "These are not the latest style, are they?" she asked, when the gloves were produced. "Yes, madam," replied the young woman, "we have had them in stock only two days." "I didn't think they were," went on the lady, "because the fashion paper says black kid gloves have tan stitches and vice versa. I see the tan stitches, but not the vice versa."

The assistant said the vice-versa was French for seven buttons, so she sold the woman three pairs. —Labor

Smallest Fly Biggest Enemy

Of the insect pests that have proven themselves enemies of man some are remarkably small for the damage they can do. Such is the case of the chalcid fly which, although the full grown insect is smaller than a single seed of clover or alfalfa, can cause serious trouble in a field of either of these crop plants. For each chalcid fly egg is deposited in a seed of clover or alfalfa while the seed is still soft and green and the grub hatching from one of these eggs eats all of the soft juicy tissues with which it finds itself surrounded. It then uses the hollow shell of the seed as a shelter in which to pupate and does not emerge therefrom until it has gone through all the changes necessary for it to become a fully developed fly. This means that as soon as it leaves the seed in which it was hatched it is ready to start at once propagating its kind to the ruin of more seeds.

Statue of Man Resembles Many

The question of who was the sculptor's model, so often asked since the dedication of the Scottish-American war memorial in Edinburgh, Scotland, has been answered. At the sixth commemoration ceremony of the piece Dr. Tait McKenzie, the sculptor, explained that it is not the portrait of any individual, but an expression of the idealism of youth which gives a family likeness to people of varied lineage. To illustrate the universal trait depicted, it has been shown that a photograph in an American office is so much like the statue that it was believed to be that of the model. An American mother seeing the statue thought it was that of her son. A German doctor often journeys to Edinburgh to view what he declares to be a striking resemblance to his lost son. Others from other countries have seen a likeness to lost relatives.

The Word "Turkey"

The root word "turk," meaning "power" or "to arrive at maturity," is found in many languages from the Caucasus to China. The term "Turki" was used to designate those tribes speaking the Turkic languages. Chinese history records these warlike tribes as existing from 1400 B. C. onwards. They united and became independent about 550 A. D. The spelling "Turkey" is merely a corruption of "Turki." The fowl known as the turkey was so called because it was erroneously thought to have come from Turkey, although it was introduced into Europe from America in 1530.—Pathfinder Magazine.

BANKING IDEALS THAT LIVE ON

"The value of that enterprise (the Bank of Montreal) ought not to be measured by its success as a joint-stock undertaking, by the amount of its capital or the size of its dividends, but by the security it has given to those who have trusted it, the facilities it has furnished for the exchange and the increase of commodities, and the assistance it has contributed to the development of the country."

The Bank, now well on in the second century of its life, still wishes to be measured by the considerations mentioned in the foregoing quotation from "The Centenary of the Bank of Montreal," published in 1917.

Security, facilities, assistance—those have been the objectives of the Bank since its foundation in 1817. They are the objectives today and will be in the tomorrows of Canadian life.

County Dramatics

(CORRESPONDENCE)

Editor, The Watchman

Dear Sir:

I would like to place before the various dramatic groups in the County, through your widely-read paper, a plan to which I have given considerable thought and to which I invite discussion.

There are in the County quite a number of dramatic groups whose performances have revealed considerable talent. The idea I wish to advance for discussion is that of holding a County Dramatic Festival in the autumn at which each group shall have the opportunity of presenting a play of not more than forty minutes duration. In selecting plays of this length it would be possible to have three plays a night and three nights would probably see the competition concluded. The winner might be presented with a small cup or other suitable memento by some generous citizen and the profits could be divided among the various groups in shares, graded according to their merit. I would suggest that the competition be judged by some person with no local affiliations so that there would be no hint of favoritism.

I would be very glad to see some letters from members of other groups in relation to this proposal, and might I beg the favour of space in your paper for the discussion.

WOMEN AS FINANCIERS

After listening to the annual reports of several women's organizations, I have come to the conclusion that women must be good financiers. Every one of them ended their year with a surplus in the treasury. It wasn't much but they cut their pattern according to their cloth and here were a few scraps left over. If women had more say in the spending of public monies, we would not be in the condition we are now. Men have made heroic endeavours to cut expenditures but they do not always cut them in the right places. If women had control of expenditures they would not pile up debts that their children and their grandchildren would have to pay. Women would bring fresh minds to public business and I do not believe would be so tied down to precedent. Just because a thing has always been done a certain way is no reason why that way must be continued. It is time that women concerned themselves with public expenditures and the various women's organizations could study from where the money comes and to where it goes, with profit to themselves and to their country. They have to help supply public monies and they should have more say in the spending. First they must take an intelligent interest. It is their business, so let them mind it.

WATCH THE SLEEP

If the small child is cross and irritable do not blame it on the Spring or the hot weather without first checking up on the hours of sleep. When the nice weather comes we unconsciously are apt to let the children stay up just a little longer and that means they do not get enough sleep. This lost sleep shows up in their temper and first thing we know we have cross children. If they are being let stay up a little longer at night get a little sleep extra in the day time to balance up.

THE FIGHTING BOY

A reader is very much worried because her boy loves to fight and wants to know what she can do about it. Bless the woman! She would have more reason to worry if he did not want to fight, because the normal boy enjoys nothing more than a good fight. Not necessarily a bad-tempered fight, but the friendly fight of good fellowship. I remember hearing someone ask a college freshman if he knew a senior who was in the same residence. His answer was, "sure, I know him. We are the best of friends. We have a fight every time we see each other." Boys, little and big, love to tussle and struggle and let off steam generally. Of course, all fights are not friendly ones but even those upon occasion, have their uses. Men have to look out for themselves and fight for a place in this world and to do this, a certain amount of aggressiveness must be developed when they are young. Their rights will be respected if the other boys know that they can look out for themselves. I overheard an older boy giving some advice to a small lad. Apparently there was a bully in the neighborhood who made life miserable for the small lad. The big boy told him to give the bully a good sock on the nose. The little fellow objected to this because the bully would be sure to beat him up. The answer to this was that he does it anyhow, but no one likes to get a sock on the nose special. It bleeds and if he knows he may get one he is apt to leave you alone the next time and that is worth taking one licking for. The advice was sound because there is no doubt that people respect anyone who sticks up for themselves. I would hate to see a boy always look for trouble; on the other hand I would hate to see him always run away from it.

ANOTHER COINCIDENCE

After writing the above, I went out to tea with a friend. She has a nine year old son who has by choice played with his small sister rather than with the boys. Consequently when he did play with the boys he did not stick up for himself and was given a rough ride. His mother proudly remarked, 'Jack is getting tough. He is beginning to fight and you bet I don't try to stop him.'

LEMON SQUARES

1½ cup rolled cracker crumbs
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 cup coconut
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup butter

Mix the dry ingredients and rub in the butter. Press half this mixture in a cake pan about 11" by 8". Spread with lemon filling. Sprinkle with remaining crumb mixture and bake in a slow oven of 325 degrees for about 45 minutes. Cut in bars and serve as cake or cut in larger squares and serve with whipped cream for dessert. This makes a delicious party dessert.

LEMON FILLING

1½ cups sugar
4 tablespoons flour
5 tablespoons corn starch
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
¼ teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups boiling water grated rind 1 lemon
½ cup lemon juice

Mix the dry ingredients, add the water slowly, pour over the beaten eggs and cook for 15 minutes in the double boiler, stirring occasionally. Add lemon rind and juice.

AND THE TEACHER PAID

North Battleford, Sask., and Black's Harbor, News Brunswick, are a considerable distance apart but each entered into a rather amusing affair arising out of a school lesson on sardines. Sardines, explained the teacher, have their heads cut off before they are canned. To make the lesson more emphatic, the teacher offered to take the entire class to the movies if any one could produce a can of sardines with the heads on. Two future "captains of industry" immediately saw an opening for some strategy so they wrote to the sardine canning factory at Black's Harbor and asked for a can of sardines with the heads on, explaining the circumstances. Well, a can of sardines, heads and all, arrived and the teacher took the entire class to the movies. The sardine cannery at Black's Harbor is the largest in the world, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

SPEED LIMIT HAS GOOD EFFECT

Following enforcement of the 30-mile speed limit in built-up areas through the United Kingdom, records show that in the fortnight ending March 30 this year there were 48 fewer persons killed and 1,427 fewer injured, as compared with the corresponding period last year. Furthermore, there are about two hundred thousand more cars in operation.

Quartz Is Slow to Melt

Even in Hottest Flames

Quartz is one of the most difficult to melt of all materials, says Canada News Bulletin. It softens and forms a glass only in the hottest of flames. Yet it is used to make the spiral springs used as delicate balances in certain laboratory research.

Such quartz spiral balances are used at the Forest Products Laboratories of Canada, Department of the Interior, by workers in the Pulp and Paper division, Montreal, for the investigation of the relationship between water and paper-making pulps. The quartz is melted into a flame of oxygen and acetylene and drawn into long threads about the thickness of a hair. By the aid of a somewhat less intense flame, these threads are coiled into delicate springs about half an inch in diameter.

Enclosed in glass apparatus from which air is removed, they make possible the weighing to extreme accuracy of small samples of pulp. The extension of the quartz spring, read by a small telescope to an accuracy of a thousandth of an inch, indicates the weight of the sample suspended on it.

Arctic Flowering Plants

One curious difference between the Arctic and Antarctic is in the flowering plants found in each area. In the regions round the South pole the strictest search has failed to reveal more than three or four kinds of flowering plants. The vegetation is almost entirely composed of lichens and mosses. The mosses are indeed remarkable, attaining a development which is not to be seen elsewhere. These plants, so insignificant with us, form immense clumps in the Antarctic several feet high. During the long winter the clumps freeze solid, but the cold does not harm the moss in the least, and during the few months when the temperature is more genial it grows with great vigor. In the Arctic Circle at least 500 species of flowering plants have been discovered, and it is likely that there are many more. Large areas within only a few hundred miles of the North pole are ablaze with blossom during the brief but extremely bright summer.

Largest Mexican Pyramid

The largest Mexican pyramid is 177 feet high and its base is 1,400 feet square. Its volume is 130,000,000 cubic feet. It is not so high as the Great Pyramid of Egypt (over 450 feet) but has a much greater volume (that of the Great Pyramid being about 92,000,000 cubic feet). It is located at Cholula, west of the city of Puebla and about 60 miles southwest of Mexico City. This pyramid is composed of alternate layers of sun-dried brick, clay and limestone, and its sides are overgrown with trees and bushes. There is now a Christian church on its summit, taking the place of the temple which was pulled down by the Spanish conquerors.

PROPOSED DISMISSALS IN OTTAWA

THE LIMB OF OFFICIALDOM

The town clerk of a small town in Scotland had the misfortune to lose his leg in a railway accident. As a mark of appreciation of his long services, the council provided him with an artificial limb. A few months afterwards the same official was unlucky enough to have his other leg fractured in a trap accident. The mishap was naturally the topic of much discussion in the little town, and one old man was heard to remark: "It's a gey bad business for the puir man, but is it his ain leg or the leg that belongs to the toon that's broken?"

BULL MOOSE STARTLES OLD LOYALIST TOWN

Early rising inhabitants of the historic town of Shelburne, on the south shore of Nova Scotia, rubbed their eyes one morning recently to make sure they were seeing aright and that they had not stepped back into the pioneer days of the town, when a big bull moose sauntered down the main street and stopped at intervals to browse. This might have been a common occurrence back in the days when the town was founded in 1765, under the name of the "New Jerusalem," or even when the Loyalists arrived 10,000 strong from New York, in 1783, following the American Revolution, the town being renamed Shelburne in honor of the then Secretary of State of the Home Government, Lord Shelburne, but the last time it happened was in 1911, when some of the residents had moose steaks out of season. The latest moose visitor, however, managed to get away without making contributions to the bill of fare of the citizens. The town boasts a hand-operated fire engine given to it by George III, in 1787, and is visited by many tourists throughout the season, states the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways. Shelburne's bid to fame as a second "Newport", with the arrival of the elite of New York's society among the Loyalists, was short-lived and many found their way back or settled elsewhere, there being nothing contingent to the town to support so large a population.

Sir James Barry's classic, "The Little Minister", appears on the Rex program this week, with Catherine Hepburn as a star well worthy of the part she plays.

THE KNOWING ONE

A Florida salesman picked up a hitch-hiker. He noticed that every sharp turn in the road threw the stranger against him. His suspicion was verified on finding his watch gone. Stopping his car, he picked up a tool and, threatening his companion, demanded: "Now hand over that watch and make it snappy!" The other handed the watch over and was left on the road. When the salesman later related the experience to his wife, she replied: "Why, you forgot your watch this morning. It has been lying on your dresser all day!"

TO HEAR HEAVY-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT

Blow by blow descriptions of the Max Baer-Jimmy Braddock fight for the heavy-weight championship of the world will be brought to Canadian listeners direct from the ringside in Madison Square Garden Bowl, tonight (Thursday). This broadcast has been made available to the Canadian Radio Commission through kindness of the Gillette Razor Company.

Graham McNamee and Ford Bond will be at the microphones for the broadcast. McNamee, who has been at the ringside of every important heavy-weight title bout since the birth of chain broadcasting, will provide the blow by blow descriptions of each of the scheduled fifteen rounds—if the fight lasts that long.

Bond, a noted sports announcer, will describe the scene at the Madison Square Garden Bowl and will comment on the fight between rounds.

ALAS, NO LONGER!

Yes, we still get news items telling that so-and-so has accepted a position. They bring back pleasant memories like the sight of a horse and buggy will, but being quite out of date we simply sigh, erase "accepted" and modernize the items with "obtained" or "secured".

OFT QUOTED PHRASE

The origin of the old saying "the tune the old cow died of", meaning words instead of food, or words instead of deeds, is preserved in the following stanza:

"There was an old man and he had an old cow
But no fodder had he to give her:
So he took up his fiddle and played her this tune
"Consider, good cow, consider,
This isn't the time for grass to grow:
Consider, good cow, consider."

machine as a centre-piece. The first panel is presented in cartoon form, with the purpose of encouraging crate-fattening of poultry to obtain the highest possible grading under government standards, and thereby obtaining top market price. The table material in conjunction with this panel, is a model fattening crate and suitable fattening rations that can be made up from home-made grains. A light-house with light beams, warning of the disastrous effects of weeds on farm crops, is on the second panel. The foreground of this section serves a dual role, not only indicating the proper cultural methods for control of couch grass, but also demonstrating an exceptionally fine three-horse hitch.

Another very interesting exhibit is also shown by the Quebec Dept. of Agriculture, with Dr. Paquette in charge and Mr. Roy as operator. This is in the veterinary division of the livestock branch, transparent pictures being displayed of the provincial laboratory, where blood tests are made. Numerous pictures show the treatment of sheep for parasites also the bots-fly treatment for horses, and a series of lantern slides depicting poultry diseases.

The display of Ayers Limited, with fine blankets and overthrows ranged in profuse colorings — products which are a source of local pride—is, as usual, a distinct credit to the town. This display admirably portrays the beauty and quality of home products.

The Gatineau Power Company has a most attractive display, featuring all kinds of electrical appliances, with dual automatic refrigerators and ranges by Westinghouse.

On the ground floor of the Main Building, J. W. Lefebvre is exhibiting in his regular stand, with an attractive line of washing and sewing machines, radios and electric refrigerators — arranged in a style which reflects credit to this enterprising dealer.

The Cottingham Supply Company demonstrates its slogan, "Everything to Build Anything" by a display of the John-Mansville products, roofing and building materials, also the Glidden Paints, and a striking outlay of Pedlar steel and iron-ware products.

This latter presentation is separate from the Cottingham Supply Coy. booth, appearing outside on the grounds.

Jno. McFaul & Son are demonstrating labor saving equipment by Beatty Bros. Limited, Ramsay Paints and Firestone automobile and truck tires.

T. McQuat and Son are specializing on a product of which they have proven the merits by local installation, namely the blower system for coal economy and labor saving. The little Mac-Buzz planer and saw, stable water bowls, fencing and curling irons, are also shown, being all products of their local foundry and machine shop. They make an interesting display.

Messrs. Brough and Clement, representing the Grolier Society, publishers of well known educational works including the Book of Knowledge, have a fascinating line of publications.

Geo. Y. Deacon is on hand again with the Ford V-8 Models, which in this year 1935 are winning highly favorable acceptance with the public. This enterprising dealer is also featuring an interesting line of wares in the Main Building.

"BENNY'S" MIDWAY IN ITS GLORY

The popular "Benny" is present with a fine string of entertainment features in the Midway. This enterprising showman has become literally a part of Lachute Fair, and his amusements are invariably enjoyed by all in attendance, both young and old.

DOCTOR SAID SHE NEEDED "BULK" FOR HER CONSTIPATION*

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief to Mrs. Maneely

Read the following unsolicited letter:

"Up to five years ago, I knew no end of suffering caused by constipation. I used all kinds of laxatives but only found relief till I got used to them. My physician told me to get some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and instructed me how to use it.

"I did just as I was told by my doctor, and today I send my highest praise for what your ALL-BRAN has done for me."—Mrs. J. S. Maneely, Jr. Address upon request.

*Due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" to help overcome common constipation. It is also a good source of vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" of ALL-BRAN is often more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not corrected this way, see your doctor.

Isn't this food much pleasanter and safer than risking patent medicines? Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

WEATHER MARRED PROGRESS OF ANNUAL SPRING FAIR

With such encouraging prospects for this year's Spring Fair, it was something of a disappointment when, on Friday, rain set in and banished the hopes of an all-time attendance record. But in spite of the threatening skies and drizzling rain on Friday there was a fairly good turn-out, and the grand stand was filled with a good natured crowd to whom the vaudeville and entertainment proved entirely satisfactory. Unfortunately, the heavy rains in the evening necessitated cancellation of the stage performance and fireworks display.

Saturday morning was none too promising, but the weather cleared toward noon and the children took full advantage of the afternoon's free admission. In all, the Saturday attendance was quite fair, and the directors decided to put on a night performance with band and vaudeville entertainment.

109TH. ANNUAL SHOW OF SOCIETY

It is interesting to note, and among those who prize the antiquity of this county it must stir a feeling of pride—that the 1935 Exhibition was the 109th. annual show sponsored by the Argenteuil Agricultural Society. It needs little imagination to picture the contrast between those early shows and the Exhibition as it is now held. (A glimpse into past records of the Fair is given in another column of this page).

ENTRY LIST BIGGER AND ATTENDANCE HIGHER

According to Secretary A. Botwell's report, the entry lists of livestock well exceeded those of last year. Among cattle particularly, there were a greater number of breeds represented.

The attendance was slightly higher than during the 1934 Show, and had the weather held fine, there would undoubtedly have been a marked jump in the "gate", over previous years.

SUCCESSFUL CATERING BY LACHUTE W. I.

The ladies of the Lachute Women's Institute report a busy time, both in the dining room and the lunch counter, and the Agricultural Society directors are deeply indebted to this institution for having undertaken the work. It was no easy task for the organizing committee to handle, making all arrangements to ensure smooth running and ample provision. But this was effectively done, and the public were generous in their praise of the service given.

76 YEAR-OLD DRIVER BROKE TROTTER RECORD

The horse racing was enthusiastically witnessed by the crowds around the track. The Saturday afternoon events were particularly enjoyed—they were perhaps an unexpected pleasure, since heavy rains had threatened to make the track useless for further racing.

Following the final events, a silver cup was presented to Mr. L. G. Bennett, of Port Hope, Ontario, a veteran horseman who broke the Argenteuil track record on this occasion. Mr. Bennett is 76 years of age, and still drives his own horses, with a skill and dexterity enviable to many younger horsemen.

SECRETARY AGAIN URGES EARLIER LIVESTOCK ENTRIES

In consequence of the heavier lists and the delay in forwarding entries, it was found necessary to refuse many late-comers for the livestock contests. In this connection, the Secretary—

Father L. Whelan Speaker at Lions Club

The Lions Club were fortunate in having as guest speaker at last night's meeting, Father Lawrence Whelan, Chancellor of the Arch Diocese of Montreal. Father Whelan chose as his subject "A Moral Survey of America for the past Five Years" delivering a really fine address on this topic.

Thanks of the club to Father Whelan for his interesting address were expressed by Lions C. Tremblay and Rev. H. Cousens.

Lion Rev. Winter LeCras was boosted by Lion Rev. Henry Cousens. Those drawing the lucky numbers and receiving Lion LeCras' gifts were Lions Dr. Sauvé and C. Tremblay.

REV. J. R. MacLEOD 87 TODAY

Rev. Dr. J. R. MacLeod, who celebrates his 87th birthday today, is receiving felicitations from a wide circle of friends, with whom The Watchman joins most heartily. Dr. MacLeod's regular attendance at the United Church and functions devoted to church work, in which he still lends his generous assistance, is a source of wonderment to his associates. Until recent years he occupied the Sunday pulpit at church once every year as a perennial observance of his anniversary.

PAPER MILLS RESUME

The cutting up mill and the barking mill of the Canadian International Paper Company's plant at Hawkesbury recently resumed operations for the season, employing in the neighborhood of 100 men. When operations are in full swing, it is expected more men will be given employment.

MONTH'S ACTIVITIES, COUNTY WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

Chatham Branch stressed Home Economics, Mrs. Paul Martin giving a very interesting paper on that subject, enjoyed by the 18 members present. The roll-call was answered by an exchange of salad recipes. Mrs. G. W. Kuhring, County President, who was a guest at this meeting, presented Mrs. H. R. Ardill with a life membership and pin on behalf of the Branch. This branch also sent $8.00 to the Cancer Fund.

Frontier Branch also featured Home Economics, Mrs. W. Usher being the guest speaker. She gave a very instructive and interesting talk on the correct ways of setting a table, table manners, etc. Six grandmothers and two great-grandmothers

Lachute Girl Broke College Sports Records

A press report of the Stansfeld College Girls' Track Meet pays striking tribute to the performance of Edythe Gall, a young Lachute lady, who stands remarkably high in the athletic prowess of the College, in its intermediate classes. The report says in part:

"The performance of the intermediates was the highlight of the meet. In seven of the eight events in which these girls competed the results were better than those attained by the senior girls, and some of the

Auto Accident Victims Brought to Lachute

OTHERS IN HOSPITAL

An automobile accident occurred Sunday afternoon west of Calumet near the Rouge River bridge, and several Montrealers were badly injured. The party, it is understood, were driving in two cars toward Lachute when one of the drivers lost control of his machine, which crashed into a stone pile and left the road.

Two children and a man, presumably the driver, were severely hurt and were conveyed to Hawkesbury for hospital treatment. Other occupants of the car were rushed to Lachute and received medical attention from Dr. J. H. Mason. These were Mde. Pierre Charneau, with cuts about the face and injury to the leg, and Mlle. Eva Archambault, also badly cut about the head and face. A six-months old child was unhurt.

After receiving treatment the ladies were made comfortable at the Desjardins Hotel, later being taken home to Montreal.

HEIFER GAVE 43 QUARTS IN A DAY

A three-year-old Holstein heifer belonging to Senator A. C. Hardy, E-C-O—Sylv Peerless Model, has just made a record for one month, it is reported from Brockville, Ont. The record is regarded as extraordinary for an animal of that age. During the month she produced 3,502 pounds of milk with an R.O.P. test of four per cent, her best day being 43 quarts of milk. This production for one month is close to the average production of a cow for an entire year. Peerless is on pasture and for concentrates is fed a balanced ration of home-mixed meals.

Ste. Anastasie Scene of Pretty Wedding

FILION - LAVIGNE

On Monday last a very pretty wedding took place in Ste. Anastasie Church, when Miss Elizabeth Lavigne, daughter of Mr. E. Lavigne, was married to Mr. Germain Filion, both of Lachute.

The interior of the church was decorated for the occasion with peonies, irises and ferns. The ceremony was performed by the bride's cousin, Abbe Leo Lavigne of Montreal. The wedding march was played by Miss Jeanne Lavigne and during the mass musical and vocal pieces were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. D. Champagne of Ottawa, and by Miss Rita Cyr, of Montreal. The bride carried a prayer book, with lilies of the valley for markers; she was attired in Marina green, wearing a baku hat of the same shade. She was given away by her father, while Mr. Filion was accompanied by his father, Mr. H. Filion. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was also prettily decorated with peonies and seasonal flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Filion left by motor for Quebec, where they traveled by steamship to the Saguenay. For traveling the bride wore a geranium ensemble with hat to match, and stone marten furs.

RESCUE FROM DROWNING AT GREECE'S POINT

A drowning accident was narrowly averted on Sunday morning last through the pluck displayed by Miss Louise Greig, of Greece's Point. It appears that a party of young folk from Hawkesbury went in to bathe, when Miss Elsie Gwynne cried for help. Louise immediately went to her assistance, but Elsie, who is a heavily built girl, clung to her so tightly that both would have been drowned had it not been for assistance given by Sylvester Wilson, who, while unable to swim, waded in so that he was able to reach them and bring them safely to shore. Louise is loudly acclaimed for her thrilling rescue, and it is to be hoped that some appropriate recognition will be given her.

Young Boy Drowned at Point Fortune

A young boy, Gordon Wilson, lost his life by drowning in the Ottawa River at Greece's Point, Tuesday morning. He had gone to bathe and intended to go fishing, but when he failed to return for dinner his parents became anxious and instituted a search finally locating his clothes on the bank where his little dog was still faithfully standing guard. Up to going to press, it is reported the body has not yet been found.

Garageman is Charged with Manslaughter

Leo Savage, 35 years of age, garage proprietor at Ste. Scholastique, is appearing today before District Magistrate Donat Lalonde on a charge of manslaughter arising out of an automobile accident on the St. Augustin highway on October 14, 1934, when Adelard Loyer, of Montreal, was struck and killed by a vehicle allegedly driven by the accused.

SEVERAL STORES BROKEN INTO LAST MONDAY NIGHT

Radio Singer Recently Heard in Lachute

A noted Montreal soprano, Germaine Bruyère, who was heard recently in Miss Juliette Rodrigue's performance at Lachute Auditorium, has announced her intention of continuing her vocal studies in New York. Previous to her departure, however, Miss Bruyère will make a last radio appearance in Montreal tonight, acting as guest artist with Edmond Trudel's "Dinner Hour". The program is heard at 5.00 Eastern Daylight Saving Time, and will feature Miss Bruyère's rendition of "Bellezza che s'ama" by Scarlatti; "Chère Nuit" by Bachellet; and "Les Filles de Cadix" by Leo Delibes.

ST. JEROME WILL HAVE POSTAL DELIVERY

According to a communication from Hon. Arthur Sauvé, Postmaster General, to the city council of St. Jerome, the town will enjoy the service of mail carriers commencing the end of this month. The door-to-door delivery will operate within the town limits.

ST. ANDREWS RURAL DEANERY MEETING

The clergy of the St. Andrews Rural Deanery held their monthly meeting on Thursday, 14th. inst., at the Rectory, Terrebonne, of which the Rev. W. R. A. Radmore, B.A., L.Th., is incumbent. The session commenced with a Corporate Communion, followed by a business meeting presided over by Rural Dean Booy, Rector of Christ Church, St. Andrews East.

A delightful luncheon was provided by Mrs. Radmore, after which an interesting paper, entitled "With Pick and Shovel in Palestine", was read by the Rural Dean. The Rev. K. N. Brueton, B.A., L.Th., Rector of Grenville, contributed an excellent paper on "Some Problems of the Prayer Book," which produced an animated discussion.

Light refreshments were again served by the host and hostess, who were accorded a hearty vote of thanks for their hospitality, this ending a generally successful gathering.

PAINTINGS AND CROCHET WORK IN EARLY EXHIBITS AT FAIR

With memories of Lachute Spring Fair still fresh in the mind, it is interesting to look back on one of the earlier records of this long-established event. Files of The Watchman picked at random bear reference to the exhibition held in the autumn of 1889—just 46 years ago. This, apparently, is far from being one of the earliest shows in the county; the Agricultural Society records show that expositions of some kind were held over a century ago—the initial event being held just 109 years past, to be exact.

In The Watchman of Aug. 24, 1889, we read that "A meeting of the directors of the Agricultural Society was held in the Town Hall, St. Andrews. The place of holding the Exhibition was thoroughly talked over, it being decided to locate on the new permanent grounds purchased from Mr. Cruise as soon as the County Council sanctions Locks and bars offered little resistance to a gang of house-breakers who entered two stores here on Monday night and attempted to enter a third by way of the basement window. The Leonard 5c—$1. Store on Main Street suffered the loss of goods valued at around $300., on which there was no insurance for theft. Mr. Geoffroy Bedard, who lives above the store, heard noises downstairs during the night, but listening for a while and looking out onto the street, saw no further evidence of anything unusual.

In the morning the store was found in great disorder. The glass of the front door had been broken, and the intruders had made their exit through a door into the back yard. Goods had been taken from the store, including bathing suits, ladies' stockings, socks, ties, and a variety of stock; also the typewriter had been taken from the desk. It was thought that, having crashed the front door, the men had scurried away and later, seeing there had been no alarm, returned to continue their work.

Across the street, the lunch car was also broken into, the marauders having gained entrance by the door. Here they had helped themselves to ham and other refreshments.

From the West End another robbery attempt was reported, at the store of Eug. Lafortune. The proprietor had heard a disturbance downstairs, and looking out from the window had seen three men taking to their heels, after trying to break into the basement window. The cabin located on Polson's Market Garden, opposite the High School, was also reported to have been entered, the same trio undoubtedly having forced the lock with intent to secure a crow-bar or similar tool to aid in their work. Nothing however was taken.

A provincial detective, investigating the night's robberies here next morning, found little in the way of clues to suggest the identity of the culprits.

ST. JEROME HAS NEW FIRE PUMP

The neighboring town of St. Jerome has purchased a modern fire combination pump and incidental apparatus, at a cost of $8,445. It was expected this equipment would be in possession of the fire department on Saturday.

the location to commence fencing in the grounds. The Exhibition will be held therefore in Lachute in the early part of October."

Thus the year 1889 would appear to be the first time this Society had staged an exhibition on its own permanent grounds. —The report of that affair, we find, was dismissed in one brief paragraph as follows: "The exhibition of the above society held on Saturday was comparatively successful. The show of carriage-horses was scarcely up to the standard, although in other grades very fine horses were exhibited. The breeds of cattle are becoming more numerous, there being specimens of Guernsey, Jersey and Ayrshire. The competition was very keen in field roots and fruit, and the showing of apples has never been equalled. The Ste. Scholastique band was in attendance and played some lively airs."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

LET THE SUN WORK FOR YOU

Watch for unusual lighting when taking snapshots of outdoor scenes.

MANY of you who want to take your photography seriously and get some really attractive, artistic pictures would probably like to have some further information on proper lighting in taking snapshots.

The lighting of the subject has so much to do with securing that quality often referred to as "atmosphere" in a picture. There are a number of ways in which a photograph may be given apparent depth, or third dimension. Taking pictures when there are long shadows, getting a reflection in the foreground, using strong side-lighting or back-lighting, and timing the exposure just right so that the detail of objects in shadow is not blocked out, are precautions that contribute much to the desired effect.

Suppose we consider each of these separately. Shadows, thrown in long drawn-out splashes across walls and walks, makes one feel, more than anything else, that he is looking into a picture instead of looking on a flat piece of paper carrying images of recorded objects. The foreground should be well broken up with shadows so that there is not too much contrast between it and the rest of the picture.

When a body of water can be included as part of the foreground, then there are really wonderful opportunities for adding depth. The reflection will carry ones attention back and away from the foreground and into the picture—and lead to the principal point of interest. The only precaution necessary when snapping a picture with a foreground of water in strong sunlight is to watch that a swell or wave does not throw reflected sparks of light upon the lens, as that may fog the picture.

Along the roads and trails through forests where long spears of sunlight pierce into the shadows there are unlimited opportunities for striking pictures with depth. If the foreground of your picture is not well lighted and you want to get the shafts of sunlight shooting through the shady parts of the background an exposure slightly shorter than you would ordinarily make is advisable.

Don't just open your camera and shoot when taking pictures. Give your subject some thought and in doing so you will be rewarded with pictures you will be proud of and they will whet your appetite for many more snapshotting expeditions. Viewpoint means much and is an important factor in picture taking. It, too, has much to do with the perspective we get in pictures. If the perspective is not pleasing to the eye, it will not be pleasing in the picture, so, as I have said before, study all the possibilities and angles of your proposed picture before you snap it.

Sun Gives More Heat to Venus Than to the Earth

Venus is only 67,000,000 miles away from the sun, as compared to the 93,000,000 miles from the earth to the sun. This means, says an authority in the Chicago American, that Venus receives about three-fourths again as much heat from the sun as the earth. Thus the side turned continually towards the sun, and receiving a tremendous amount of heat normally, would be subjected to a steady barrage of the sun's rays. It would be intensely hot. The dark side would, in all probability, be intensely cold. It would mean, likely, that despite the planet's nearness to the sun, the dark side would be frozen over.

The heavy veil of clouds belting the planet seems, however, to preclude such a condition.

On the other hand, if the planet does rotate on its axis as it swings through space around the sun, conditions would depend upon the length of the days and nights. If the days were long, the nights would be correspondingly as long. The days would then be exceedingly hot and night, if lengthy, exceedingly cold.

It is true also that Venus' cloud-laden atmosphere, which would deflect a considerable part of the extra heat it receives from the sun, might temper its warmth. This cloud belt is exceptionally heavy. It may likely make conditions on Venus extraordinarily similar to those on earth despite the extra solar radiation it receives.

No accurate measurement of the temperature on Venus has been possible, he said, but scientists generally agree on the estimate of between 115 and 125 degrees Fahrenheit. He compared conditions on Venus with those we believe exist on Mars which, heretofore, has been held to be the one planet of the remaining seven where life is possible.

DID'JE EVER HEAR ONE?

Something small went creeping, creeping. In the middle of the night. Into the room where Ted was sleeping. When there wasn't any light.

It fluttered over to his bed. Then circled round the room. And came to rest upon his head. With a zinging, zinging, z-z-z-z-z.

WHEN THE MOON IS FULL

Betty was swinging idly in the hammock. She had all her lessons prepared for the next day and her exams studied up until she was quite sure that she could not make a mistake, no matter what questions might be asked. It had been tiring work, but it was finished, and she had nothing to do but enjoy herself for the remainder of the evening. "This pillow is too high for my head", she exclaimed hastily, seizing the pillow and tossing it into a clump of bracken that grew near. "Oh! oh!" wailed a tiny voice, "my crown, my beautiful crown!" Betty stopped swinging and listened; the tiny voice kept on and on, until Betty got out of the hammock and went to see who or what was hidden in the bracken.

As she came close another voice was suddenly heard from the branches of the elm tree above her head, "Be careful Queen Bluebell, the wicked one who destroyed your crown is standing over you."

Betty looked up into the tree but could see no one. Rather annoyed at being so accused Betty said rather sharply "I do not know who or where you are, but I should like you to know that I have not destroyed any person's crown."

"But—I saw you do it!" snapped the voice from above her head. I saw you throw that monstrous thing right into Queen Bluebell's private room and break her crown." Betty was too angry to laugh, or she would have, as the words, "Jill fell down and broke her crown" flashed into her mind. Instead she said, "I threw the cushion out of the hammock, but I had no intention of breaking anyone's crown when I did it. What is Queen Bluebell, as you call her, doing in my clump of bracken anyway. That bracken has grown there ever since I can remember, therefore it belongs to me". "Oh, does it indeed?" the voice replied. "That clump was growing there long before you were born, therefore it belongs to us."

Betty was so surprised that she did not know what to say next. She stood still a moment, trying to see where the voice was coming from. A tiny twig, well covered with leaves, was swaying a little more than the others. The speaker must be there. Betty stood on tiptoe, peeping between the leaves. A sound as of a small whip-lash, sounded by her ear and the tiny twig stopped trembling. Who ever had been there had gone.

Record Promised in Forty-Eighth Year of Ottawa Exhibition

Creator and His Band Will Top an Unusually Fine List of Attractions. One Full Week, Aug. 19th. to 24th.

Once more the dates for the Ottawa exhibition are drawing near, this time for its 48th year. There will be one full week, all day and until late into the night, from August 19 to August 24, and the directors and management promise that the exhibition this year will excel the wonderful successes of previous years. The exhibition is the big annual event of the Capital and always attracts many from this district.

There are so many stellar features that it is difficult to specialize, but it will be welcome news to all who know that the renowned maestro, Giuseppe Creatore, will be back again with his band. Two programs will be given each day from the concert bandstand without any extra charge. In addition to a band of 42 players, almost all of them instrumental soloists, Creatore will bring an outstanding prima donna who will be heard in each program.

In front of the grandstand for the night offering, in addition to the vaudeville, the Revue of Revues will be presented with a cast, mainly girls, not equalled by any other outdoor presentation. There will be dances, singing, comedy, with a gorgeous setting with special scenery and lighting effects and with ravishing costumes. The night program will conclude with a spectacular fireworks display. In the afternoon, instead of the revue, there will be horse races for the first four days and automobile racing by professionals for Friday and Saturday of exhibition week.

Among the hundred and one other attractions will be free evening horse shows in the Coliseum, the best of livestock poultry and pets, junior agriculture competitions, a new midway with the latest shows and rides, automobile show, baby show, child welfare demonstrations, dog show, flowers, fruit and vegetables, Dominion and Ontario government displays, Women's Institute demonstrations, pure food show, model home competitions, sports, handicrafts, hobby show, displays by manufacturers and merchants, and other factors which make the Ottawa exhibition the biggest annual one-week fair on the continent.

Prize lists and other information are available on application to the manager and secretary, H. H. McElroy.

CANADIAN AUTHORS' ANNUAL CONVENTION

(Special to The Watchman)

During the Authors' Convention proceedings (reported in part last week), the great mystery-story writer, Frank L. Packard, brought a message of comfort to amateur authors, telling them that in the first four years of his writing he had received nothing but rejection slips. He also stated that he "simply could not write a love story" — that it was agony to him. He referred to speakers of five years ago at the Montreal Convention, who had accused him of having a criminal mind — in jest, of course — as most, if not all of Mr. Packard's tales are of that kind.

The next speaker was Miss Marshall Saunders, author of "Beautiful Joe" and many other children's books; incidentally she is a lover of nature and its products that she has actually 100 birds in her kind personal care. She asked the question, "What is a criminal mind?" she felt that such a thing did not exist; in the days of her childhood she had, in her old maritime home near the jail, associated with criminals of all sorts including even murderers and found them quite tender hearted! "Why?" she said, "I played the organ for years in the chapel. One day I fainted and those hard-boiled criminals, those poor murderers, were just heart-broken about it." Miss Saunders has a way of keeping her audience laughing, seemingly without effort.

Mr. Leslie G. Barnard's first rule for writers was, "Get published!" He claimed that we should be more professional-minded; it is through the discipline of the publisher that we may become that way. Mr. Barnard claimed there was no merit in dullness, and that editors were very interesting persons, more than ready to meet writers half way if they would only "give them a break."

Miss Saxe, librarian of Westmount public library, interestingly described her training as a reference librarian and her life in action, so to speak. Miss Saxe, speaking of herself and her confidence to meet any situation when she finished her education, made a comparison with the mouse who got into a cellar where some wine had been spilled, and on lapping some of the wine up became so exhilarated that it raced up the wall to the kitchen and asked in a belligerent voice, "Where is that damned cat that chased me yesterday?" "Then," said Miss Saxe, "the very first question I was asked when taking office flooded me"; and it appeared that Miss Saxe, even yet, had found no satisfactory reply to that question — which concerned English bar-maids. She had sought the answer from several institutions and colleges, only to have the answer come back "The question of English bar-maids is lost in antiquity. Please write us again."

Mayor Houde brought brief greetings to the assembly, which were much appreciated. According to the press, he said, we might frequently see him brought forward as an author, but not of the same sort as ourselves — rather as an author of evil deeds; someone from behind, in a scarcely audible voice, remarked, "What about the sales tax?"

A request came from the French section of the Ottawa Branch that this association support the suggestion that July 24th. be made a public holiday in honor of the coming of Jacques Cartier. The seconder humorously said that he took great pleasure in seconding the motion as he always thought that work was a curse anyway, and he was never averse to a holiday.

—This brings me to the holiday aspect of the programme. On Wednesday afternoon, interested citizens of Montreal escorted the delegates to the Duchess of Bedford, where all were warmly welcomed, and entertained by a five-piece orchestra. A wonderful tea was served, and the function concluded in the group being photographed on deck. From the Duchess of Bedford the party were driven to various historic sites and beauty spots in Montreal, arriving at Place Viger Hotel for supper and a feast of song and music, which was listed on the program as a "Folk Festival" the chair being occupied by Hon. Hon. Athanase David.

Dr. Victor Morin regaled us with such old French folk-lore as "Selling the Black Hen", "Freeing the Loup-Garou", "La Chasse-Galerie", "The Ash Wednesday Dancer", after which two orchestras played, sang, and some of their members danced old fashioned jigs.

On Thursday afternoon we visited the old fort at Chambly, conveyed thither by courteous Montreals with cars. This fort is under the care of the National Parks and Historical Sites of Canada, who put out a guide book bearing on its front cover this very apt inscription from Joseph Howe, "A wise nation Preserves its Records, Gathers up its Muniments, Decorates the tombs of its illustrious dead, Repairs its Great Public Structures, and fosters National Pride and love of country by perpetual references to the sacrifices and glories of the past." — Score one for our infant Historical Society, whose aims are much the same!

This fort was considered the second frontier of the Richelieu River. It was built first of wood in 1665 by Capt. Jacques de Chambly as a defence against the Iroquois and rebuilt of stone in 1709 to resist the advance of the British Forces. Inside its massive walls were placed barracks for the soldiers, also storehouses for provisions and arms; these sections, which may be seen in part, are all marked. Surrounding the gateway have been engraved the names of famous men associated with the fort. The old cemetery

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers

Germain Filion, secretary-treasurer of the Town of Lachute, wishes to remind the ratepayers who owe tax arrears that unless such arrears be paid before June 30th., 1935, their properties will be put on the list of immovables to be sold for taxes and will effectively be sold some time in October unless the tax arrears and the current year's taxes be paid before the sale.

Such proceedings are governed by a Special Act which obliges the secretary to do so independently of the will of the Council.

CASH CUSTOMER SURPRISED

A dealer in South Georgia carried Rastus Johnson during the spring and summer so that Rastus could make his cotton crop. It turned out to be a good yield, giving Rastus enough money to pay his account at the store and still have some left over.

After paying his account, he went across the street and bought quite a lot of goods for cash. The dealer who had given Rastus so much credit learned of this and the next time he saw him said: "Rastus, I carried you all spring and summer and now you go across the street and buy stuff for cash. What's the idea?"

"Why, Mistah Boss," replied Rastus, in a surprised tone, "A didn't know you-all sells for cash."

tery nearby has been restored, the fallen headstones raised, and the graves cleared. Argenteuil County would do well to take pattern thereby and protect its old cemeteries. Dr. Sulte, who in a French poem first pleaded for the restoration of this old fort, says, "There is a vandalism more dangerous than the vandalism of time; it is the vandalism of man and it must be resisted."

In the museum of the fort are a number of interesting relics and hanging on its walls, side by side, are pictures of Queen Victoria and her worthy son, the late King Edward, showing the patriotism which has suggested the preserving of this old monument of the days when Canada was young.

From the fort we were conveyed to the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. William Birks at Mont St. Bruno. If one is seeking an earthly paradise, one need go no further than that particular spot, the old Seigniory of St. Bruno. The smaller of the old mills has been made into a wonderful hall with shining hardwood floors; its walls decorated with the coat of arms and a short history of all the seigniors since its beginning up to the Birks, its present owners; coats of mail; heavy iron crosses; weapons of war, and a very modern ornament — a stuffed racoon. A small chapel organ is in one corner, and hymn and prayer books waiting to be used. The owner said they had not any minister, so as a way of keeping the Sabbath they read the service from the Anglican Hymnary and sang from the United Church hymn book. This was vastly different from the old days in the seigniory, when everyone went to church, but had to wait until the Seigneur and his lady would first start.

That evening saw our annual dinner held in the Spanish Room of the Mount Royal Hotel with its walls decorated to resemble a Spanish courtyard with houses all around. The windows, with curtains blowing, looked very real indeed. This finished the entertainment but memory will linger on of the old friends seen and the new friendships made, and particularly we will remember the courtesy and friendship of the different C.P.R. officials who helped to make this convention a success. — Mr. John Murray Gibbon in particular, who composed a poem "Our old Montreal" to an old tune, and among other kindnesses shown dedicated this poem to the 1935 Convention of the Canadian Authors' Association.

A branch of the Provincial Bank is shortly to be opened in the store of Mr. J. R. McQuat which has been leased for the purpose. Mr. J. H. Dumouchel has severed his connection with the Bank of Ottawa and been appointed as manager of the new bank.

One of the most terrible disasters in the history of Montreal occurred at 10.45 on Monday morning last. As reported by Evan McCallum, (son of Alex. McCallum) who learnt his trade in the Watchman Office, he was working in the job room and while three of his work-mates were killed he barely escaped. The water tank containing about 30,000 gallons or a weight of about 150 tons, gave warning as of terrific thunder and looking up he saw the tank crashing through the five storeys to the basement, but a few feet from where he stood. There were about 375 people in the building and 32 were killed. To add to the horror, fire broke out and the whole building was soon a mass of flames.

As their line is now complete and in perfect running order the Geneva Rural Telephone Association take the opportu-ity of thanking all who financially assisted in building the line.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 23rd., is "Is the Universe, including Man, evolved by atomic force?"

The Golden Text is:—"Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." (Revelation, 4: 11).

The following correlative passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"O Lord, how manifold are thy works; in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches... Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth." (Psalms 104: 24, 30).

"All things are created spiritually. Mind, not matter, is the creator. Love, the divine Principle, is the Father and Mother of the universe, including man... The great I AM made all "that was made." Hence man and the spiritual universe co-exist with God." (Science and Health, pp. 256, 267).

"Just fancy 'er trying to tell me how to bring children up—me what's buried seven!"

"Good morning, Nurse", said jolly park-keeper.

"You're wrong!" she replied, continuing with her program, "—Owner-driver."

BACK TO TRADITION

Residents in the Indian reserve at Caughnawaga are preparing to establish a "genuine Indian village" as a means to attract tourists. Indian suits complete with feathers will adorn the keepers of souvenir-tents, and war-like fire-keepers will supervise the sale of Indian novelties to the Paleface. . . These appurtenances may have been common to a past generation at Caughnawaga, but they have grown almost obsolete in the steady life and industry of the people. Youngsters born and bred on the reservation will doubtless look upon these things and marvel what they they are all about.

NEW LOANS

The Hepburn-McGeer blasts that rocked the foundations of financing may not, as the alarmists prophesied, have undermined the credit of Canadian governments in general—but there is little doubt that both Ontario and British Columbia will feel some unfavorable rebound. It is significant that, on the closing day for tenders on a new Ontario loan, there were no bids received for the bonds. The City of Vancouver is next issuing a three percent debenture loan of $1,500,000, and it will be interesting to note how the market accepts it.

PAINTINGS, CROCHET WORK—

A more important function in the annals of the Society that year seems to have been the annual dinner, held at Sauve's Hotel shortly after the Exhibition. A toast to the Queen is followed by Our Guests, Our Judges, The Band, and so forth; and amid the feast of mutual compliments, Mr. Beauchamp, M.P.P., remarks that the Argenteuil Agricultural Society might be called the flower of the societies in this province.

One and a half columns of fine type are devoted to the prizes, half of which are awarded for produce and handicrafts, the remainder for livestock exhibits. We note that corn on the ear, house flowers, and factory cheese receive prominent place. "Woolen shawls," flannel and "etofle fulled and pressed" are shown among the textiles. Buns, bread, and maple sugar . . . paintings (water), paintings (oil), fancy work (crochet) . . . etc., etc. These items will revive memories of the Main Building at Fair time; we believe it is little over a decade since these classes of exhibits were withdrawn from the Exhibition—for which, without a doubt, subsequent secretaries and managers breathed their hearty thanks.

Brief thought upon the highlights of last week's Exposition will stress the contrast between our present "Model Show of Eastern Canada" and those earlier events. The fine Holstein showing—a breed of cattle apparently unknown to the show above described; the splendid industrial exhibits—with ultra-modern electrical devices unthought of by our pioneers; the vaudeville, with belles of the trapeze in brief and becoming attire, and a mad-cap motor-cyclist driving through fire—sights which would indeed have awed the spectators of a past century; the shining cars and trucks used in the conveyance of thousands to Lachute Fair, and parked in their hundreds around the ring where ancient buggies were once lightly scattered (they too wore a luxury); and the elaborate exhibition grounds themselves, present a strange contrast to the picnic ground where the first permanent building was erected.

It is fascinating to look back. But those of us who have our hearts in the community do so with tribute to those who have gone before—those who through passing years have labored to make the Lachute Fair an outstanding and inspiring event. To the county town they have bequeathed a project to bond the energies of community men and willing workers; to the agricultural inhabitants of Argenteuil they have left an incentive to finer work and higher standards.

W. I. ACTIVITIES FOR THE MONTH

Martin Heights exchanged flower slips and seeds as their Agricultural item for the month. An address on Historical Spots in Canada was heard, in which special mention was made of the Fortress of Chambly, as a phase of Canadianization and National Events. In the interests of Child Welfare and Public Health, it is stated this branch is making further efforts to have the Council provide a dump for garbage, plans having been made to meet with the Health Officer. Their roll-call was "Places in Canada I should like to visit, and why". The Branch is feeling very keenly the death of Mrs. R. J. Ivall, County Convenor of Canadianization and National Events and a beloved member of their local Institute.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, June 18.—Wheat held the centre of the stage last week. It was introduced on Monday by Premier Bennett, occupied the whole Wednesday sitting, and nearly all the Thursday sitting. Now it is being taken up by a select committee of members of parliament, who may spend ten days or so on it. Indeed, now that the discussion is well launched, it may prolong the session a couple of weeks. There had been expectations of getting through last Saturday. Now it may be the first of July before parliament prorogues.

This flare-up on wheat, of course, had been threatened for several years. Wheat, as our greatest export (we are the largest exporter of wheat in the world, though only fourth as world producer), is a matter for concern not only to the prairies but to every corner of Canada. It was long ago noted that when the wheat prairies prospered, so did the industrial east, and the seaports east and west. Our railways cannot thrive without good times on the wheat farms. Sometimes easterners get impatient about the stress laid on wheat in the House, about the bonuses to wheat, and the legislation to help the wheat farmer. But it tops the list of export industries, and there has been plenty to worry about the last five or six years.

OTTAWA IN THE WHEAT MARKET

Without reciting in detail the events of recent years, it may be recalled that since January, 1931, the government has been financially interested in the wheat market. Ottawa was compelled to back financially the stocks accumulated by the three western wheat pools. John I. McFarland was put in to liquidate them. When he took over, there were 75 million bushels on hand. He intended to sell that wheat in an orderly fashion, so as not to break the market. But the market kept falling from bad to worse, and, so far from selling, the time came when McFarland found it necessary to buy more, with the idea of preventing prices from collapsing altogether. Once he was deeply into wheat, it seemed impossible to get out. Prices hung around 50 and 60 cents for years. When the harvest came along each fall, millions of bushels were offered, and nobody seemed to be there to buy them up. Instead of permitting the price to collapse, McFarland bought up these unwanted millions. Now, it was disclosed by Premier Bennett, he has accumulated something between 220 and 225 million bushels, which means that he owns practically the entire wheat stocks of Canada, including what is still on the farms.

McFarland has served with no remuneration; he has borne a fearful burden; his health is failing; and he must now turn over the liquidating of this 225 million bushels of wheat to someone else. That, explained Premier Bennett, is why a board is to be set up.

PROVIDES COMPULSORY POOL

The legislation actually brought down provides for a 100 per cent compulsory government marketing scheme, under a board of three. By inference, if not by specific reference, it abolishes the Winnipeg private grain trade. If it passes as introduced, no one could sell, no elevator could buy, no railway could transport, nor no government official could grade, wheat intended either for export or for interprovincial sale, without the authority of the government grain board.

Premier Bennett on the second reading made one of his old time fighting speeches. He spent nearly two hours on the subject, producing great gobs of statistics, making the record complete.

The Liberals, as intimidated by their spokesman on this occasion, Col. J. L. Ralston, have no objection to a board, but they deny the right of this parliament in its dying hours to impose a permanent policy upon the country. They are willing, it would seem to agree to a board as a temporary measure to meet a grave emergency. They think a definite time limit should be set on the life of the board, and object to the compulsory marketing feature. They think the stocks now on hand should be liquidated for what can be got, the loss to be made up out of the public treasury. If, in the process, the price threatens to break so as to result in a ruinous price for the western producer, they think that the market should be supported, or a bonus paid to the wheat farmer in lieu thereof.

Aside from wheat, the Reform measures arising out of the price-spread report occupied most of the attention of the House. Hon. H. H. Stevens made a powerful address in the House, attacking the power of concentrated wealth in Canada, observing that although nominally Canada was a democracy, in fact it was ruled by a plutocratic autocracy.

Pioneer had as their roll-call "A Daily Health Habit," and enjoyed an address by Dr. T. McColl on "Contagious Diseases."

Upper Lachute were entertained with a talk by Mr. L. L. Legault, K.C., on The Rights of Women and Children in Quebec Province. The roll-call was prominent lawyers of the past and present. Fifteen members met at the home of Mrs. Ross Muir to enjoy this meeting.

ORILLIA TOWN CRIER OPPOSES INCREASE IN FEE

A proposal by the Orillia (Ont.) council to increase his annual licence fee was strongly opposed last week by William Honeybourne, believed to be Canada's only town crier.

Mr. Honeybourne, who rents his services for advertising purposes, has been paying an annual licence of five cents. The proposed $5. fee, he claimed, is out of the question. Apparently the business of town crier is not so prosperous.

LATE MRS. T. PARKER WAS NATIVE OF ST. ANDREWS

The Lee County Times, of Paw Paw, Illinois, contains an account of the death of Mrs. Thos. Parker at Brooklyn. The Rev. A. G. Parker, who is now stationed at Paw Paw, attended the funeral of his mother, who was the seventh of eight children born to Thomas Fenner and Lydia Brown in St. Andrews, where Mr. Fenner was a merchant, and the former Miss Fenner lived there seventeen years after her birth in July 13th., 1844. In 1862 she married Mr. Thomas Parker in Albany, N. Y., who was the sixth child of Daniel Parker and Mary Ann Parker, early pioneers of Lakefield.

Lightship Placed Where

Lighthouse Does Not Fit

Lightships are located at strategic places along the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf ports. Their greatest advantage over a lighthouse is their ability to occupy stations where lighthouses could be built only with tremendous difficulty and at great cost. Also they may be readily shifted to new stations when a shoal "drifts" or important trade routes are changed. Their greatest disadvantage is their high cost.

From fourteen to sixteen men (the usual crew of a lightship) stand regular periods of duty, consisting of two months on and one month off. Many of the men prefer not to take their leave in this fashion and stand much longer periods of duty, saving up their periods of relief and taking off several months at a time. Their golings and comings are made possible by the two seacoast tenders attached to the district headquarters. These ships also carry fuel and provisions to the lightships in the area and check up on the aids to navigation along the way.

Life aboard the lightships is no sinecure. There is plenty of work to be done, for the lightship is becoming a more and more complicated mechanism. While on duty the men are divided into watches, the period of which is contingent upon the number of men available for duty in the crew.

One Sound Mosquitoes Hear

Many insects, like gnats and mosquitoes, probably hear but one sound during the brief final stage of their lives—the buzzing of their mates. If the note is reproduced by a tuning-fork near a captured male gnat his feelers, the organs of hearing, at once quiver. Automatically they are so adjusted to the vibrations that each is equally stimulated. He can then fly directly to the voice of his enchanter. Should he depart from the line, he will be aware of this by losing touch with the shrilling note until the feelers are again adjusted. If a male gnat were in a concert hall he would hear no note of music, but if a female buzzed, he would be at her side in a moment. Her own shrill note is due to the vibration of membranes.

Canada grows between 300 and 400 million bushels of oats in a year, and in most years produces a greater bushelage of oats than wheat.

AS A CEREAL

OR IN COOKING

it's FINE either way!

It's so handy to have a package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the kitchen. Serve it as a cereal. Use it also as a wholesome ingredient in your muffins, breads, omelets, waffles, etc.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also rich in vitamin B, as well as iron, an element of the blood.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct common constipation, due to insufficient bulk in the diet. In severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

The "bulk" of ALL-BRAN does not break down during digestion as does that of leafy vegetables, and is therefore more effective for furnishing the needed "bulk." It is a delicious laxative food . . . far better than patent medicines.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

"To save an editor from starvation, take his paper and pay for it promptly."

"To save him from bankruptcy, advertise in his paper liberally."

Canada's First Railway Started a Hundred Years Ago

The first train of the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway, Canada's first rail line which is now a part of the Canadian National Railways System and construction of which was started just one hundred years ago. The picture is reproduced from an old print in the Chateau de Ramezay Museum, Montreal.

One hundred years ago this month construction was begun on the first part of the present Canadian National Railways System. This was the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railroad, a line from Laprairie, near Montreal, to St. Johns, sixteen miles distant on the storied Richelieu River. From St. Johns transportation to New York was effected by boat through the Richelieu to Lake Champlain and then along the Hudson River. This, Canada's first enterprise in railway building, was in reality a portage railroad, the original purpose being to shorten the journey between Montreal and New York. It is of peculiar significance in studying the development of transportation on this northern part of the Continent to note that a great deal of it was international in character, there being much traffic to and from New York by the Richelieu River to Lake Champlain and thence via the Hudson.

Construction on Canada's first venture in railroad building commenced in June, 1835, the road being opened for traffic a year later. Operation of this pioneer railroad went on for ten years, when it was decided to lengthen the route. Rails were extended to St. Lambert (just across the river from Montreal) in one direction and to Rouse's Point, on Lake Champlain, in the other. In 1846-47 the Montreal and Lachine Line was begun and completed. Five years later the railway was extended as the Lake St. Louis and Province Line, which ran from Caughnawaga to Mooser's Junction, where it made connection with the American roads. This enlarged line, later known as the Montreal and New York Railroad, did not pay and was absorbed by the pioneer Champlain and St. Lawrence. In 1852 the pioneer was absorbed by the Grand Trunk Railway, which, in turn, was absorbed on January 30, 1923, by the Canadian National Railways.

The humble beginning of a century ago, with its 16 miles of track, has now grown into the great system which constitutes the Canadian National Railways of today, operating 24,000 miles of line, the largest railroad system on the American continent. From the pigmy wood-burning engine, the Dorchester, and a few carriage-like coaches, operating on a few miles of strap-iron track, has grown the tremendous extension of lines spread like a spider's web over the Dominion, the vast telegraph mileage, the chain of modern hotels in the principal cities of Canada, the express service covering the entire Dominion, and the fleet of passenger and freight vessels linking Canada with the West Indies and the Antipodes.

Summer in the Rockies

Indications from representatives of the Canadian Pacific Railway throughout the world are that pleasure travel this year will be on a greater scale than any time in the last two years, bringing more visitors to Canada from the United States, Europe, and the Orient, and pouring millions of dollars into Canadian pocket-books.

Western Canada is expecting a good share of this traffic and the Canadian Pacific Railway is making extensive preparations there in its hotels and bungalow camps. Dates have been arranged for special entertainments at Banff Springs Hotel, which opens on June 16, and Chateau Lake Louise, which opens on June 21.

With Banff or its sister resort,

Lake Louise, as headquarters, tours can be made to such well-known places as Johnston Canyon, Moraine Lake and the Valley of the Ten Peaks, the Lakes in the Clouds, the Plain of the Six Glaciers, the Great Divide, Wapta Lake Bungalow, Yoho Valley and bungalow camp, Takakkaw Falls, the historic Kicking Horse Pass, Mount Stephen, and the great mountains near Field, B.C.

The large Canadian Pacific Railway hotel at Banff is equipped in every way for the comfort of visitors; the hot radio-active sulphur springs have been turned into a swimming pool, side by side with a pool filled with fresh water; the rolling floor of the valley has been made into a picturesque golf course; there are fast, well kept tennis courts.

Throughout the summer there is fun and plenty to do at this beautiful resort, with special events at short intervals, starting with the Calgary Stampede which will be held from July 8th to 13th. Two societies with world-wide membership will hold their official outings, the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies from July 26th to 30th, and the Trail Hikers of the Canadian Rockies from August 2nd to 4th. Indian Days will return to Banff from July 19th to 21st, when Western Indians in their native costumes will re-enact ancient tribal ceremonies. The Banff Golf Week, with the Prince of Wales Trophy as the main prize, is from August 26th to 31st.

Reader Editor McGuffey

Born in Pennsylvania

The original editor of the readers, Dr. William Holmes McGuffey, was born September 28, 1800, in Washington county, Pennsylvania. The family originally came from Scotland. During the first 18 years of Doctor McGuffey's life, says a writer in the Kansas City Star, he had only the opportunities for education afforded by the country winter schools kept up by voluntary subscriptions. Later he was able to attend college in Pennsylvania and was graduated from that institution. He then taught a private school at Paris, Ky., and in 1828 he became a member of the faculty of Miami university at Oxford, Ohio. He was licensed as a preacher in the Presbyterian church, officiating only in the college chapel. In his later years he was president of Cincinnati college and of Ohio university at Athens. In 1845 he was appointed professor of natural and moral philosophy in the University of Virginia. It was while he was connected with Miami university that he began the compilation of his readers.

Alexander Hamilton McGuffey, associate editor of the readers, was sixteen years younger than his brother, William. He studied under his brother at Miami and was graduated from that institution at the age of sixteen. He held the position of professor of belles lettres at Woodward college, later studied law and was admitted to the bar. It was Alexander McGuffey who prepared the manuscripts for the fifth and sixth readers, and also for "McGuffey's Rhetorical Guide."

FOOD AND FRIENDLINESS

Food and friendliness are two things which will make a holiday trip stand out in our memories. So let us all try to be friendly to the stranger within our gates. Just add the extra bit which will make the cup brim over. Tourist business is big business and friendliness pays in any business. You may feel that it means nothing to you as you are not directly concerned in the tourist business, but anything which brings business to our country improves conditions for all of us. Canadians on the whole are good cooks but certainly the good cooks do not take to the hotel and restaurant business. It is difficult to get a good meal in a small place. There are exceptions of course, and a place where you can get an attractive meal will attract business for a radius of a good many miles. One of the troubles is that there is no individuality. The small places, instead of striking a line for themselves, ape the larger centres and try to serve exactly the same kind of meal that can be had in any one of countless hotels. It would be better business to concentrate on a few specialties and serve them properly cooked than to have a wide menu with nothing outstanding. I know of one tea room which has built up a business because of its muffins. At each meal they serve all the fresh muffins you want. Visitors from the States drove 30 miles to have a meal there as their friends had recommended the place because of its muffins. Another tea room built up a reputation because of a chocolate cake which was made fresh every day. A country hotel attracts the travellers because it specializes in country sausages and sauerkraut. Another hotel, and it is an inland hotel at that, specializes in fish dinners. The point is that it is good business to play up to the thing one makes best and to concentrate on that one thing rather than to have a wide menu and have nothing outstanding. There is a lot of good food spoiled in the cooking in hotels and restaurants in Canada.

THEORY

There are so many theories which sound good, until they are put to work. I try many new things with high hopes, only to have them dashed when I find that they will not work. No matter what your work is you should always have an open mind and be ready to try new things, but be a bit canny and do not go into it wholesale until you have proved that they are actually workable.

VITAMIN A AND KIDNEY STONES

Doctors do not agree on the cause of kidney stones but some of them have proved to their satisfaction that a diet rich in vitamin A will prevent them recurring. It is not difficult to provide a diet rich in this vitamin. Use plenty of butter, whole milk, egg yolk, and green vegetables such as spinach, lettuce, beet greens and water cress. The yellow pigmented vegetables contain more of it than the white ones, so that sweet potatoes and yellow corn have more vitamin A than white potatoes and white corn. Carrots, too, are yellow and contain vitamin A. It is not confined to vegetables but is found in such meats as liver, kidney and sweetbreads. The muscle meats and such fats as lard contain very little. The vegetable oils such as olive oil, cottonseed oil or peanut oil, lack it. To sum up, if you use plenty of milk, butter, eggs, leafy vegetables, liver and kidney you will get an ample supply of vitamin A. This is the vitamin which helps prevent infection and maintains health in adults and growth in children.

A BURNED KETTLE

A burned kettle is an occasional occurrence, even in the best regulated families. The next time this happens rinse it out with water and spread the burned area with baking powder and let stand over-night. This loosens the scorched part and you can remove it very easily.

STRAWBERRY SHORT-CAKE

A shortcake made with cake may be a very nice dessert but it isn't a real honest-to-goodness shortcake. That needs biscuit dough. Sift 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar. Rub in 4 tablespoons butter and add about 2/3 cup milk. Halve this dough and pat one portion into a jelly cake tin. Spread with butter and cover with the other portion. Bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees for about 15 minutes. Split and butter. Mash 1 quart berries, reserving a few perfect ones for garnishing, and sweeten to taste. Pour this over and on top of the shortcake and serve with whipped cream.

BOILED SALAD DRESSING

1 1/2 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons mustard

CONTACTS OF QUEBEC WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

That the Quebec Women's Institute has considerably enlarged the borders of its influence in the past year was evident from the report of contacts established or renewed during that period. These included the Women's Institutes in England, Scotland, New Zealand, Australia, Rural Women's organizations in the United States and Texas, the Women's Institutes in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, the Bird Research Bureau of Northumberland, England, Putman's Publishing Co., London, England, the Main Library, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, and others.

SOCIAL DISTINCTIONS AMONG CODFISH

We were always under the impression that as one codfish to another, well, they were all the same, socially speaking, and rubbed noses together when they met. But such seems not to be the case; at least this is indicated from studies made on a school of codfish which snawned in Halifax Harbour. The fact is there seems to be several distinct populations of codfish which are inclined to remain aloof from each other. Whether it is because these Halifax codfish have more vertebrae in their family backbone than codfish from other parts of the Maritimes and Gaspé is not stated, but it has been observed that the Halifax codfish had an unusual vertebral count, states the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian National Railways.

Building Paper Copper Coated

Some of the durability and protective qualities of copper are incorporated in a building paper coated with a thin sheet of this metal. The paper consists of a double layer of asphalt in which are imbedded crossed fibers of sisal. The surfaces of this sheet are covered with a heavy paper and the thin sheet of copper made by the electro-deposit method, is then bonded to the paper. The product is flexible and can be substituted for sheet copper in many places.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Cattle Graze on Asparagus

Asparagus, the highly prized vegetable for which Americans at times are forced to pay high prices, grows so freely in the wild state in Russia the cattle graze on it, says the Washington Star. The plant also grows wild on the southern coast of England. There are some 150 known varieties of asparagus, the most common being the so-called esculent asparagus, which is used for table purposes. It has been under cultivation for more than 2,000 years.

Professions of Presidents

Washington was a planter, soldier; W. H. Harrison, soldier, statesman; Taylor, soldier, rancher; Johnson, tailor, statesman; Grant, soldier; Arthur, soldier, statesman; T. Roosevelt, author, statesman; Harding, newspaper publisher; Hoover, engineer. All the others were lawyers. The word statesman is used above to mean that the persons referred to were actively identified with public affairs or governmental positions.

Use for Blackstrap Molasses

Over 90 per cent of alcohol in the United States manufactured is made from blackstrap molasses, observes the Montreal Herald. This molasses is not suitable for ordinary table use, but is invaluable for many commercial purposes, the making of commercial alcohol, anti-freeze and many other manufactured articles, and as a stock food. Indeed many husbandry experts claim that pure cane molasses can be fed to all classes of live stock. They base this claim on the idea that molasses is not only a food in itself, but that it also is very useful to make coarse feed palatable, and also, due to its mineral content is of considerable value to promote growth and prevent anemia.

1/4 cup water
3/4 cup vinegar
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter

Mix dry ingredients with water and rub until smooth. Add vinegar, beaten egg, and butter, and cook over a slow fire, stirring constantly until the mixture just comes to a boil. Add milk a little at a time and cook again until it just comes to a boil, stirring steadily. This dressing is specially suitable for leaf lettuce.

EMPIRE AIR ROUTE TO PASS CANADA BY

Canada's chances of becoming a link in the all-Europe air route are remote in the opinion of Sir Frederic Williamson, Director of British Postal Services, says a Canadian Press news despatch.

Accompanied by Sir Edward Campbell, M.P., Parliamentary private secretary to the Postmaster-General, Sir Frederic passed through Vancouver recently en route home from New Zealand.

Winter weather conditions on the North Atlantic would make maintenance of a regular service between Great Britain and Canada difficult, Sir Frederic said. He added, however, that the British Government is still surveying possible air routes to North America.

THE PROPOSED CANADIAN FLAG

It is but a few months ago that strong recommendations were heard for the adoption of a Canadian flag, and many suggested designs were forthcoming. Since then the discussion seems to have dropped until, this month, it has been revived in a design submitted by certain French Canadian citizens.

Hon. Cameron MacIntosh of North Battleford, it is recalled, was ardent in the movement for a new flag, and his contention, along with others, was that the Union Jack should be inset or in some way embraced in the Dominion's national banner. Although not adhering to this proposal, the latest design arranged by Abbe Paul Valois is, we consider, well worthy of consideration. Of suggestions which do not include the Union Jack, at least this is one of the most national in character and best suited to traditions. . . . The suggestion has been illustrated in the daily press of Quebec Province. In the centre is the green maple leaf emblem of Canada; it stands out in the centre of the red Cross of St. George, which lies over the flag of the Gardes Francaises at the time of the conquest of Canada by General Wolfe—a white cross on a blue background.

PROPERTY TAXES AND CIVIC VOTE

A resolution in St. John's (Que.) city council to amend the city charter to allow all proprietors to vote regardless of whether they have paid property taxes or otherwise, was steered through the session by Alderman L. O. Perrier. The resolution was sponsored by the Proprietors' League. Ald. Perrier alleged that a certain group were responsible for retarding the bill at Quebec to such an extent that some 800 proprietors were disfranchised during the past municipal elections.

How to be Popular—The short cut to present-day popularity is to suggest a scheme to support everybody at government expense.

TOWNSHIP OFFICE BURGLARIZED

Cracksmen recently broke through the 14-inch brick wall of the vault in the North York Township office and stole $4,000 in cash and $60,000 in non-negotiable cheques. The robbery was discovered by the caretaker.

Robbers had entered the office by a window. The lock had been smashed but the glass unbroken. The wall of the vault was next cut through and the cash and cheques taken.

The cheques stolen, representing tax collections, were made payable to North York Township, and bore the endorsement of Treasury Department officials.

DOMINION CONSTRUCTION WORK HIGHER

Construction contracts awarded for the month of May were the highest in three and a half years, with the exception of May, 1934, reports the Toronto Globe. The figures for the Dominion of Canada, as compiled by MacLean Building Reports, Limited, totalled $16,302,400, as compared with $17,383,100 for May, 1934.

For the first five months of 1935, contracts awarded have amounted to $57,073,100, as compared with $48,707,800 for the same period of 1934, an increase of 17.1 per cent. In 1933, the first five months totalled only $24,826,100.

An encouraging feature of the May awards is the preponderance of private work, such as residences, commercial buildings and factories, as compared with Federal work, which bulked very large in the earlier months of the year.

Ontario registered the largest amount in May, with $6,165,800; British Columbia came next with $3,086,700; Quebec, $2,413,300; Alberta, $1,482,700; New Brunswick, $1,373,600; Manitoba, $780,000; Nova Scotia, $599,200; Saskatchewan, $381,600; Prince Edward Island, $14,500.

Much new work is contemplated, as indicated by the total of $116,217,100 for the first five months of the year.

PROPRIETORS PAY FOR TRESPASS OVER CITY LINE

Owners of 110 properties on Park Avenue in Montreal must pay $5 a year to the city for building over the sidewalk line, or rebuild their front steps so that they no longer trespass on city property.

Heretofore, the annual rental on properties extending a few inches onto the public's property has been $1 a year, but, since the case of building over the city line are now so numerous, the administration has raised the rate to $5.00.

Deaths from motor fatalities on Ontario highways this year totalled 126 as compared with 78 for the first four months of 1934.

Rice Leading Crop

The traveler in the Far East will be amazed at the vast amount of rice grown and consumed in the Orient. It is in reality the world's most important crop. A crop of as much as 180,000,000,000 pounds is produced annually. Its value yearly reaches $7,000,000,000, which is three times the value of the world's raw cotton. More than 200,000,000 acres are devoted to its growth. Another amazing fact is that there are between 5,000 and 7,000 kinds of this cereal. Rice does not thrive in dry weather, nor when young can it outgrow weeds. For this reason it is planted in diked fields of mud, and when the sprouts are tall enough, water is let in, thus killing the weeds without injuring the rice. Many localities produce two crops a year.

"the Municipality of the Township of Wentworth, under the authority and for the enforcement of the Quebec Temperance Act."

To the Municipal Electors of the Municipality of the Township of Wentworth:

Take notice that the above temperance by-law will be submitted to the municipal electors of the Municipality of the Township of Wentworth, and that a vote by ballot will be held in the Municipality on the 20th. day of July 1935, to decide whether the said by-law is approved or disapproved by the Municipal electors of the said Municipality.

The polls will be held at Louisa, St. Michel, Laurel, and Montfort, in the said Municipality. The poll at Louisa will be held in the Orange Hall; at St. Michel in the school house; in Laurel at the house of Matt McCluskey, and in Montfort in the Club House. The polls to open at the above places at 10 o'clock in the morning and to close at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. (Standard Time.)

BENNETT WARNS STRIKERS TO ABANDON "MARCH"

Lively exchange between Premier and Arthur Evans, Delegate Spokesman

The delegation of British Columbia's relief camp strikers arrived in Ottawa for their conference with Premier Bennett on Saturday, and after a somewhat stormy time the delegates were warned to abandon the "march on Ottawa."

The leader of the delegation Arthur Evans stated that the trek was launched to force a program of work and wages. He accused Mr. Bennett of "passing the buck."

"Give any of us work and see if we will take it," he said. He went on to characterize Mr. Bennett's observations in saying they did not want work as "a despicable attack" not fit to come even from the Premier of a "Hottentot village."

Mr. Bennett then brought up the matter of Evans having been sent to prison for embezzling funds of a labor union of Alberta. "You're a liar," hotly replied Evans. "I was convicted of fraudulently converting funds for feeding hungry miners in Drumheller rather than sending it to pot-bellied labor union officials in Indianapolis."

Refers to Convictions

The Prime Minister then referred to another conviction registered against Evans for which he spent time in jail. Evans explained it was for an infraction of Section 98 of the Criminal Code for inciting striking miners at Princeton. "Your ticket of leave on this charge is over; it's through," Mr. Bennett told Evans.

Stewart O'Neill protested against Mr. Bennett classing any of the delegates as foreigners. "We weren't foreigners in the last war," he said.

Norman Cosgrove said that he too, had fought for Canada in the war.

"The camps are still available, though there will be no provision for work and wages in the camps," Mr. Bennett proceeded. "You can't come here and take the Government by the throat to try to make us do your sweet will. It can't be done."

Evans interjected to say that the delegation had nothing left to do than to go back and tell workers of his attitude and continue organization.

"That is your privilege, providing you keep within the law, but the moment you step beyond it you will land where you once were," Mr. Bennett replied.

Strikers Warned

"I warn you that if you persist in violating the laws of the land you must accept full responsibility for your conduct."

Evans: "You, too."

Mr. Bennett: "I am prepared to do that."

HONORED FOR SERVICE

On Monday evening, the 17th. inst., the Young People of Harrington met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Shaw, where a most enjoyable time was spent by all. Games were indulged in during the evening which caused much merriment. A pleasing feature was the presentation to Miss Pearl MacKenzie, of a lovely set of salt-shakers, on the occasion of her leaving the community and in token of her very valuable assistance and interest in work among the young people. Refreshments were served, and after a vote of thanks had been paid to the host and hostess of the evening, the meeting ended with the singing of Auld Land Syne and the National Anthem. About thirty were present.

To Boost Lachute

With a view to added publicity for the town Bert Mason, Commercial photographer and producer of Educational and Industrial Films, was invited to Lachute during exhibition week and the film is now being shown at the Rex Theatre. A brief introduction as to who and what we are was followed by an animated picture of members of the Town Council and Board of Trade passing out of the Auditorium and a close up in which Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason extends hearty welcome to Rt. Hon. Sir George H. Perley, who slipped away from his arduous duties at Ottawa to spend a few hours at the Fair. Our leading places of interest with a number of prominent business houses followed in quick succession after which came scenes at the exhibition grounds where general views of the races and cattle judging completed a very interesting film. These pictures are sponsored by some of our enterprising business men with the co-operation of the Council and Board of Trade.

Arrangements have been made for cars to leave Phillip Square at 11.30 a.m. and all those who intend to make the 45-mile trip are asked to communicate with PL. 5630.

Applications also will be received at the office in the Canada Life building, 275 St. James street west, room 275, for the few remaining beds.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Weir — Howe

The marriage of Laurena Elsbeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Howe, of Sonnevill, to Mr. Kenneth Davison Weir, of Sonnevill, took place at St. George's Church, St. Anne de Bellevue, on June 15, at three o'clock, the Rev. Canon F. Whitley officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white mousseline de soie made very simply with a short coat and large puffed sleeves, white kid sandals, a white baku hat and carried a spray of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Marion Howe, who was gowned in pink organza trimmed with blue, wearing a large pink hat and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations and forget-me-nots. Mr. Gordon McAllister acted as best man. The ushers were Mr. Leonard Howe, brother of the bride, and Mr. Winsky Walker. The wedding music was played by Professor R. B. Musgrove, of Macdonald College, who also played an organ solo during the signing of the register. The bride's mother wore a black and white ensemble and mauve orchids. The mother of the groom was gowned in blue lace, with a blue lace coat and a large black hat and wore a corsage of pink roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Later Mr. and Mrs. Weir left for a motor trip through the New England States, the latter wearing a brown and yellow ensemble, a yellow hat and brown accessories. On their return they will reside in Montreal.

LET US BUILD WELL

When we build, let us think that we build forever. Let it not be for present delight nor for present use alone. Let it be such work as our descendants will thank us for, and let us think, as we lay stone on stone, that a time is to come when those stones will be held sacred because our hands have touched them, and that men will say as they look upon the labour and wrought substance of them, "See! This our Fathers did for us."—JOHN RUSKIN.

DEATH OF WELL-KNOWN LACHUTE RESIDENT

Residents of Lachute and vicinity were shocked to hear of the sudden death of William G. Staniforth, which occurred at his residence in Montreal, on Tuesday evening, June 25th.

Mr. Staniforth, who was 61 years of age, was born in Arundel, and was the son of the late William Staniforth and Mary Thomson. For a number of years he farmed with his brother George in Lachute, later starting a bakery in town, and of recent years ran a Gent's Furnishing Store on Main St.

He was married to Miss Jessie Paul of Lachute, who is left to mourn his loss together with two sons Cecil and Willis and one daughter, Olive. His aged mother also survives, with three brothers, George of Lachute, Sydney of Montreal, David of Lashburn, Sask., and one sister, Mrs. J. B. Mabon, of Montreal West.

The funeral took place from the United Church today and was largely attended by sympathizing friends and relatives. Floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful.

Interment was made in the Lachute Cemetery.

Golf Tournaments

About 60 were present to witness the mixed competition at Lachute Golf Club on Wednesday, which resulted in a tie between Mrs. Charron and Allan Biggar, and Mr. Haller and Mrs. Charron, honors being won by the former in the final play-off. Tea was served by the ladies about 5.30.

On July 6th., play will be under way for the President's prizes, in mixed competitions to start at 2.30, and the ladies are also holding a competition on Wednesday, July 3rd., at 6 p.m. Open to all members.

Corpus Christi Procession

The Festival of Corpus Christi was solemnized on Sunday by an elaborate procession which proceeded from the Church of St. Anastasie to the Main where at the home of Mr. P. Chabot, an altar had been raised, where devotions were conducted and blessings given prior to continuing along Main, and up Bethany to the Church. The weather was fine and there was a large turn out. The Lachute Band supplied the music.

C. J. Cheley Banquetted by Eastview Confreres

To honor Garnet J. Cheley, for the past 25 years manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Eastview Branch, 30 Eastview business men gathered on Saturday evening. Mr. Cheley has recently been promoted manager of the Lachute Branch Bank, and with his family has left Eastview where for many years he played a prominent part in the business and social life of the town.

Tribute to Mr. Cheley's popularity among his business associates was paid by the chair-

OLD LACHUTE RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

The death occurred on Thursday last, June 20th., after three years of poor health, of John Simon, a respected resident of Lachute for some fifty years. He was in his 76th. year and the oldest son of the late Thos. Simon and Martha Steen, who predeceased him only nine years ago at the age of 97.

He was born at Britonville, Que., March 27, 1859, learned his trade as blacksmith with the late Thos. Campbell, of Mille Isles, and later started business in Brownsburg. In 1884 he was married to Mary Ann McFaul, youngest daughter of the late Archie McFaul and Mary Carpenter, who predeceased him November 28, 1924. In 1887 he moved to the home in Lachute, where he spent the remainder of his years.

The funeral which was held on Saturday afternoon, was largely attended, and Mr. R. J. Couch of Ottawa, conducted the services, interment being made at Lachute Cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his loss, two daughters, Mrs. G. S. Floyd of Montreal; Mrs. W. G. Walker, Lachute; one son, Mr. D. G. Simon, his niece, Miss Ethel Winters and one brother, Thomas, of Red Deer Alberta,

Still Serving at 87

A cheery smile, kind greetings and a hearty hand shake are particularly noted when one meets Rev. Dr. MacLeod, who recently celebrated his 87th. birthday. It is remarkable to note, that on the following evening the Reverend gentleman preached the preparatory service for Communion in the Lachute United Church, and was complimented on his fine delivery and strength of voice. The doctor is a great reader, well versed in the daily happenings everywhere, and gets much enjoyment out of his daily life.

Unemployed Given Work

Work is going steadily on in town and there are but few who rank as unemployed, as the laying of the sewers on Lachute Road and through Grace Street to Bethany Road is absorbing much of local labor. About 4,000 feet of sewer is required for present undertakings and other work is in prospect. Conference with the Minister of Roads as to our Main Highway improvements looks most promising.

Successful Ice Cream Social

Notwithstanding the rain of the past few days, Tuesday evening proved a most delightful time in which to hold the United Church Ice Cream Social. The large and spacious grounds of the Manse were brilliantly lighted.

The Lachute Band, under the direction of Mr. Guenette, drew a large number to partake of the dainty refreshments. An excellent program was given. Selections by the band; Whistling by George Belanger; songs by the quartette, Mrs. K. McOuat, Mrs. R. A. Giles, Mr. Duncan and Mr. Owen Todd; Ladies' Trio, Mrs. K. McOuat, Mrs. C. Duncan and Mrs. R. A. Giles. Violin solos by Mr. Fassio accompanied by his daughter, at the piano; and recitations by Miss E. Aitken. The accompanists were Miss Ruth Todd and Miss Cora Miller, and an enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the King." Proceeds amounted to upwards of $100.

COLLISION ON HIGHWAY

On Tuesday evening, Mr. Jno. Scott had a miraculous escape in an auto collision which occurred on the Montreal Highway near Lachute Golf Course.

While turning from the farm of Mr. P. Gordon on to the highway, Mr. Scott's car was struck by another motor headed for Montreal. Both machines were badly damaged and the occupants severely shaken up. The Montreal car, which went headlong into the ditch, was brought to Lachute for repairs, while its occupants continued on their way to the city by taxi. White line marks at dangerous points are placed along the highway and motorists should be particularly careful to keep on their own side of the road.

ST. ANDREWS BOY HERO IN THRILLING RESCUE

Danny Muir, a young man of St. Andrews East, attending the Huntingdon High School, figured in the rescue of one of his companions in a boating accident reported last week in the Huntingdon Gleaner.

Tragedy hovered for a few minutes over five boys who were in a rowboat here on the river—says the Gleaner. The five lads started out on a pleasure trip but they were only about twenty feet from the shore when the boat rollicked and started to sink. As it filled with water, first one, and then another jumped out into the river. Added to the swollen state of the river, due to the continued rain, the heavy clothing of the boys made rescuing efforts twice as difficult. Four of the boys, however, managed to reach the bank safely. Archie Keith, one of the party who was not a very strong swimmer, succeeded in grabbing a pole vault. Two others swam to shore little the worse for their experience. A third however, had more difficulty, and had already gone down twice when Muir dove in bringing him to the shore where willing hands pulled him out. What might have been a matter of grim disaster was averted by prompt action on the part of those nearby and especially on the part of Danny Muir. The river is usually about 10 feet deep at that spot but the heavy rains had made it much deeper.

We have a queer way of blaming God for everything that goes wrong. On the same principle we take credit to ourselves for everything that goes right. That we might be somewhat to blame for the evils of the world and that God might have a great deal to do with the world's blessings and happiness we are singularly slow to admit.

America today and America five years ago could hardly present a greater study in contrast. We turn the pages of that human album and see pass before us the changing scenes. Not only is the landscape different, but the mental and spiritual atmosphere is changed.

Five years ago America had reached the summit of its power and the pinnacle of its conceit.

Faith centered round a tape which indicated rising fortunes only to find the smoke from its ashes float on the wind from the gust of a broken balloon. Money was written down but ink was hardly dry that the figures disappeared. Automobiles now became the shrines of the nation as auto factories became its temples. A car for every man in this country: The millionaire—the ditchdigger—the dowager—the nursemaid.

Man strutted and admitted there was nothing that he could not and would not do. His power and his glory were cartooned by the boastful Editor. Sullivan was back from the land of fable and Sullivan would rule. Electricity—steam—the ether served him as no slave could ever bear down before a tyrant.

We were told that we had conquered the world. We were masters of all. Skyscrapers rose like modern towers of Babel. Dirigibles crossed the skies—some of them resting in ocean graves.

Corporations grew and swelled like the toad of the fable, puffing themselves into vaster and vaster shapes with the wind of their conceit. Gold poured into the banks. Grain was piled in elevators. Storehouses bulged with manufactured goods. Man sat on top of the world and gloated over his glory and greatness.

Cities were born and fear was buried. Pleasure was housed in magnificent buildings dedicated to the great God Cinema and the goddess Dance. God—Why, God wasn't needed. Poverty would disappear from the earth. Paradise was on earth. Heaven was no longer needed. The kingdoms of this world were to be beautiful enough to make us forget the kingdom of God. Why suffer to obtain a heaven that might not exist? here was heaven on earth—Eat

HIT AND RUN DRIVERS

Nothing on the road can claim the utter contempt due the hit and run driver, whose utter selfishness and cowardice designates him as a public menace and the law cannot be too severe in dealing with such irresponsible characters. Last week while driving home through Brownsburg in his horse and buggy, a motor dashed by catching the end of the rig and upset the occupants in the ditch. The motorist, indifferent as to injury and damage, kept right on and before the occupants of the buggy were able to extricate themselves from their perilous position the car was out of sight. Mr. McPhail had quite a shake up, but never let go the lines and a little later was able to walk home as his buggy was out of commission.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

'Close-ups' and 'Back-lighting'

Proper lighting will add much to the quality of your pictures

WITH the sun so much brighter and stronger now, it is time to exercise a little care in shooting directly into the sun when taking snapshots to avoid "lens-flare" in your pictures. I do not mean by this that you should make it a strict rule not to take pictures with the sun shining directly toward you and your camera for in doing so you will pass by many chances to incorporate fascinating, artistic "back-lighting" in your pictures. However, it's a caution worth remembering.

Lighting is of equal importance with arrangement of the objects or subjects in your proposed picture. It is the variation in the lights and shadows that gives a picture depth and roundness, making the subject stand out from its surroundings. Usually the shadows should be transparent, to a degree, but full in detail. This is obtained by a rather full exposure. If the sun strikes directly in a person's face they are likely to squint and the picture will not be a good likeness. Better have them turn slightly so that they are not bothered by the sun—then you will get a natural, life-like expression. Another point is to avoid making a close-up of a person out in glaring midday sun. At this time of day the strong overhead light casts heavy shadows under the eyes and nose and the picture is far from pleasing. When making a picture of a person during the middle of the day be sure to have him turn his face away from the sun or snap him in bright shade, which can be done very successfully with modern snapshot film.

If the illumination, or sunlight, comes from directly back of the camera, the shadows are more or less lost, giving a flat appearance. When you are a little more advanced, try some early morning or late afternoon shots for splendid pictorial studies for at these hours you get long, fascinating shadows.

Attractive, artistic pictures may be made from a position where you face the sun and shadows fall toward your camera rather than away from it. In "back-lighting" work of this kind, be sure that no sun rays directly strike the lens of your camera. This can often be avoided by standing so that the shadow of a tree trunk, a bush or the corner of a building protects the lens from these direct sun rays.

Under such conditions you should give a slightly longer exposure than would be necessary if the sun rays were directly on the front of the subject. Perhaps the next larger diaphragm opening will let in enough light to record the detail desired in the shaded parts, or, if using a small aperture for increased depth of focus, a slow exposure, 1/10 of a second, or a very short time exposure will bring excellent results. Try it.

THE LOYAL CANADIAN CHAIN

What does Our Dominion mean?
It means a solid link—
Of loyal, true hearts, under one King,
From ocean brink, to ocean brink.
Who hail our beloved country,
And claim it as their own—
This land, which from small beginnings,
Has great and greater grown?
Who from coast to coast, from east to west,
Give honor an acclaim—
To the men of old, who linked us up,
In this perpetual chain?

Who saw that unity was best
That men must brothers be—
E'er greatness came to our land

Thus this conformity—
Our Dominion.

WHEN THE MOON IS FULL

Betty stood staring up into the tree as though still hoping to find the owner of the sharp voice, until a queer little rasping chuckle came from the vicinity of an old moss covered stump "Betty Peeper! Betty Peeper! I could not find the little speaker," a saucy taunting voice sang.

Betty did not know whether to be cross or not; as she stood hesitating, the short song was repeated again, this time, ending with such an infectious chuckle that Betty laughed and said "I must admit it, I could not. You moved so swiftly that I could not get time to see you. I heard you though."

"Those silly cellophane skirts" said the voice "I might have known that they would be noisy. They are clean and crisp but they do rattle a bit, I shall not be able to wear them when I have anything important to do."

Betty had been creeping nearer and nearer to the stump as the little fairy was talking; in a minute she would surely see her. She knew it was a fairy as no human child was small enough to dance upon a twig and hide under leaves. In her anxiety to reach the stump before the fairy saw her she neglected to watch her feet, tripped over a small root which the heavy rainstorm of the night before had uncovered, and came down with a thump, almost bumping her little nose on the edge of the stump. What a disturbance her fall made amongst the little creeping and hopping things, who had snuggled close to the soft moss at the foot of the stump expecting to spend the night there; but this monster tumbling about had spoiled their plans.

Grandfather Toad hopped so far in his fright that he landed in the centre of a clump of thistles and it was some time before he was able to wiggle his way out. Bunter the big black beetle flew right to the house and banged so hard against the window pane that Mrs. Bond dropped some stitches in the tiny sock she was knitting. "Oh!" she said with a shudder, "how I hate those beetles. They give me the creeps when they come beating against the window. Turn the lights off, Nora please, 'Perhaps they are being attracted by it and will go away if the room is dark.'" From the darkened window pane Bunter fluttered about until he tired himself so that he fell into the open window of Judy's kennel just as she was giving her puppies their supper. Judy hated bees; thinking that Bunter was a bee she jumped up turned swiftly around and around, snarling and snapping. The frightened puppies being tossed about with her flying feet set up such a chorus of wailing and shrill barking that Bobby came running from the creek where he had been fishing in the cool dim twilight, to see what was harming his precious pets. "Judy, you silly old thing what is the matter with you?" he exclaimed as he saw her still hopping about snapping at the air. "Do you think that she has gone mad, Tom?" he asked as the stable boy came running to see what the row was all about.

"Tom turned his flashlight on and let its light stream down into the kennel from the air space in the roof. This seemed to settle Judy's nerves for she lay down quietly and her little family with queer little whimpering sounds drew close to her only to be tossed off again, Judy had seen Bunter crawling slowly towards the doorway of her kennel. One swift leap and she was crushing him with her sharp teeth, "Ah ha! so that is what was the matter" Tom said. "Jude thought he was a bee. However now that he is gone there will be one less grub in the garden next year."

While all this had been doing at the house Betty had risen to her feet and moved away from the stump a bit. The sounds made by the little beetle bugs, and tiny toads which she had disturbed made her a bit nervous. Just as she was turning to run to the house the chuckling voice came again "Peeping Betty can't catch me, hiding in the willow tree."

Betty turned towards the willow tree "Aren't you coming little maid? Surely you are not afraid" the taunting voice sang. "Of course I am not afraid" said Betty, "but it is getting late and I should go in."

"Late! the idea! — A tiny form hopped so swiftly from one willow branch to another that Betty could not be quite certain whether it was the owner of the voice or a little birdie seeking the shelter of its nest for the night and was given no opportunity to find out for the wailing voice of Queen Bluebell rang out with a despairing "Oh its no use! Its no use I cannot repair it myself. What ever shall I do?"

"Can I help you?" Betty said running to the clump of bracken. "The idea!" the other little voice cut in "What do you think you could do with your immense fingers. Why Queen Bluebell's crown is no larger than your thumb. You would only break it some more". I am sorry Betty said quite stiffly "I suppose my fingers would be too large to touch anything so dainty as a fairy crown but if I can help in any way I should like to do so."

"You can help me in one way" Queen Bluebell said "by coming with me to the court of the moon fairies when the room is full and explaining to them how my crown came to be broken in this way. They will understand perhaps that I have not been careless and either repair it for me or make me a new one. Will you do that for me little Betty please?"

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

Neighbor — Say, have you folks got a bottle opener, around here?

Parent—Yeah, but he's away at college.

IF EVERY BOY COULD BE A SCOUT

"Nine out of ten criminals begin their wrong-doing between the ages of 12 and 18. I do not recollect any Boy Scout being brought before the court in Saint John during the last four years. GOOD TURNS LARGE OR SMALL

After a week's hard work in office and factory an Old Country Rover Scout Crew were enjoying a week-end hike through the Essex countryside. As they passed through a village they came upon a small girl weeping bitterly. She had lost a sixpence down a drain. After some study of the problem the modern followers of King Arthur purchased some chewing gum, attached an adhesive wad to the end of a thumbstick, retrieved the sixpence and restored it and happiness to the small distressed maid.

HISTORIC FLAG IS RESCUED FROM ARCTIC

An historic flag which withstood the rigours of the Arctic since it was carried into the frozen north by Captain McClintock, afterwards Sir Francis McClintock, in 1857, when in search of the lost Sir John Franklin expedition, until recovered by a Canadian expedition, in 1906, has been lodged with the St. George's Society, of Halifax, N. S., for safe-keeping. The flag was presented to the society by W. H. Weeks, who was purser on the Canadian expedition. The flag, however, is tattered and shows discoloration from its long stay in the Arctic. Halifax, the capital city of the province, has many historical relics an St. Paul's Church, built in 1750, is the mecca of many tourists during the summer states the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways.

SCOTLAND GOES IN FOR PIG RAISING

Scotland is going in for raising pigs, a hitherto Irish industry so far as the British Isles are concerned, and for eating bacon in place of ham. Domestic production, however, is still far from meeting requirements, so bacon is imported principally from Denmark, although Canada has a share in the trade, occupying fourth place, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. The Irish Free State ranks second, the Netherlands third with Canada close on her heels, and then comes Sweden. The United States is the principal supplier of ham to the Scottish market, followed by Canada and the Irish Free State.

"This Government proposes to govern," Mr. Bennett went on. "The laws will be enforced as long as this Government continues to govern, and we will not yield to propaganda such as has been carried on for the last few months. Tell your comrades at Regina that they will be able to go back to the camps and secure work as the opportunity for it develops on the highways and other undertakings. The continuation of the illegal trespassing on the railways will not be tolerated."

After Mr. Bennett had concluded Evans had the last word, remarking: "The Prime Minister is suffering from the 'red horrors'; there is nothing for us to do but to go back to our comrades and tell them of his attitude, to continue organization and to continue the trek to Ottawa."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 30th., is "Christian Science."

The Golden Text is:—"Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ." (Revelation 12: 10).

The following correlative passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions." (Psalms 107: 15-20).

"Divine Science derives its sanction from the Bible, and divine origin of Science is demonstrated through the holy influence of Truth in healing sickness and sin." (Science and Health, page 146).

OTTAWA EXHIBITION IS OUT FOR RECORD

Big Annual Event in the Capital From Aug. 19 to 24.

Seven weeks from next Monday the Ottawa Exhibition will open for the 48th. year and with the co-operation of the public and the weather man, there seems an absolute certainty that the splendid successes of previous years will be eclipsed. Before one exhibition is over, the manager and directors are planning for the next, and never have they been more satisfied with the preparations completed for the week of August 19 to 24.

Starting with grounds and buildings, many improvements have been made. Generous use of paint, new decorations, extra lighting effects, improvements to the interior and exterior of buildings, and the planting of flowers have made the setting for the exhibition exceptionally attractive. Dominion and provincial governments, manufacturers, merchants and others have given assurance of excellent displays. Enquiries for prize lists indicate that the exhibits of horses, cattle, swine, poultry and pets will include the finest to be seen at any exhibition.

Outstanding as an attraction will be Createore and his band. The great maestro with a band of 42 artists and a leading prima donna will give two free concerts daily from the shell concert stand. No band has found greater favor with music lovers.

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago.

June 19, 1885.

At the adjourned session of Lachute Town Council at which Mr. Thomas Barron presided as mayor, it was reported on behalf of the fire engine committee that the probable cost of getting an engine, hose, etc., would be about $2,300.

Mr. G. J. Walker was appointed secretary with salary of $300 a year, said sum to cover all office work required by council and also include office rent.

Mr. Ireland conducted an auction sale of lots with Mr. Patenaude as auctioneer, there being $21,000 worth disposed of, most of the lots being on streets not yet opened up. Mr. Fish also sold two lots and opened up a new street on the East side of the river.

The recall of the British troops from the Soudan completes the evidence that the Soudan campaign was a big blunder. Great expense and a sad loss of many brave lives have accomplished nothing. Except the personal bravery displayed, there is no redeeming feature in this inglorious war.

25 Years Ago.

June 24, 1910.

A run-away accident that fortunately resulted in nothing worse than a badly smashed express, occurred on Wednesday morning when the team of R. C. Morrin, Beech Ridge, ran away. Mrs. Morrin was in the express at the time and pluckily hung on to the lines until the horses were stopped at the corner of the post office.

The funeral of the late John Mitchell took place on arrival of the morning train from Montreal on Thursday. His death was the result of an accident while working on the new wing of the Montreal General Hospital and falling 25 feet.

The volunteers of the 11th. battalion went into camp at Three Rivers this week, under command of Col. J. E. Seale.

An enjoyable party of over 200 attended the picnic at the Ottawa Experimental farm, under auspices of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society.

Airedale Terrier Knows

No Fear of Wild Animals

The Airedale Terrier is endowed with inherent qualifications for training. In his native England he serves in all those roles credited to the Shepherd strains in Germany. His war record as sentry and message bearer is a matter of record; widely heralded have been his Red Cross activities.

But his "bag of tricks" extends in scope far beyond these publicized acts of heroism. Without fear of anything that walks or crawls, he is constantly employed in far-off Africa in the courageous task of hunting the lion. In the mountainous regions of America, the bear and wild cat know well the ferocity of the Airedale. Lithe, compact and fast, he handles these tasks with a decided matter-of-fact playful attitude.

His classification, "Terrier," has been challenged often because he does not go to earth—there being no animal habitating the underground worthy of his mettle. Largest of the terrier group, he weighs 45 pounds and stands 23 inches at the shoulder. However, above ground he performs every task of the terrier in a very excellent manner. As a water dog, he is in his element, and properly trained, a perfect gun-dog. His grizzled-badger coat, waterproof, is of two-tone hair, the lower portion gray, the top, black.—Los Angeles Times.

Ottawa, June.—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will lead the Conservative forces in the coming election. All doubt on that score was removed last week when he was enthusiastically acclaimed at a banquet tendered him by Conservative members of the Commons and the Senate.

Although the banquet was private, an official statement was issued later by J. Earl Lawson, K.C., M.P., Conservative Dominion Organizer. He said that he had never witnessed "such enthusiasm and unanimity of opinion among Conservative members of Parliament" as was evident at the dinner to Mr. Bennett.

"Despite the fact that it may mean great sacrifice of the Prime Minister's health", Mr. Lawson continued, "his sense of duty to the conservative party and to his country will induce him to carry on as leader of the government."

Mr. Lawson then went on to observe that the Conservative party will go forward unanimously with a common purpose of enacting the reform legislation of the party's program so far as it is within the power of Parliament to do so but resisting with all force the tendency to disrupt the laws and government of the country by toadying to agitators.

"To resist clamorous demand requires brilliant and courageous leadership," Mr. Lawson concluded. "The man best qualified to give that leadership is Mr. Bennett."

Earlier the same day Mr. Bennett had been cheered to the echo in the House when, replying to criticism of the government's mass buying legislation (it was dubbed "anaemic, ill-considered and ineffective"), he said his own view was that the constitution of this country must be changed. But, he added, it could not be accomplished in a day nor by Parliament overstepping its legal bounds.

"If the people of this country have been led to believe this Parliament can pass any sort of legislation it likes, the age of lawlessness is upon us," he warned. "Let there be no mistaking that."

Because the provinces were not yet ready to commit themselves, the house committee headed by F. W. Turnbull (Cons., Regina) recommended in its report tabled last Thursday that methods of amending the British North America Act should be studied as soon as possible at a Dominion-provincial conference. Urgent necessity for prompt consideration for amendments with reference to a redistribution of legislative power and to clarify the field of taxation was stressed by the committee.

Thursday saw the House really get down to the business of clearing the legislative decks for prorogation. It cleared the order paper of twelve bills and all the main estimates. Belief is now that the session will end some time before July 1 unless there arises considerable debate on the question of the alternative vote in Saskatchewan and the grain board bill.

By a vote of 121 to one the House passed a bill to create the Federal Trade and Industry Board, with provision for the present Tariff Board, headed by Hon. George Sedgewick to perform its functions. Free Trade Liberal E. J. Young, of Weyburn was the lone oppositionist.

Canadian Radio Commission will continue to control broadcasting in Canada until the end of March, 1936, under provisions of a bill passed in the House and sent to the Senate.

Prime Minister Bennett emphasized his opposition to any change in the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways while litigation proceeds before the Privy Council on behalf of the Grand Trunk shareholders. His view was that reports of the C. N. R. should show always the investment the Canadian people have in the enterprise.

Building and construction business will be given an impetus of Dominion-wide importance through the government's $50,000,000 housing and slum clearing program, announced in a bill introduced by Sir George Perley early this week. It incorporates two main proposals—provision for $10,000,000 to lend to individuals or corporations willing to construct houses and who can obtain 60 per cent of the appraised value of the property from a mortgage or loan company (Sir George hoped an additional $40,000,000 of private capital would be released for building purposes, thus creating the $50,000,000 referred to), secondly, the new Economic Council will be utilized to study, investigate and report upon the adequacy of existing housing schemes in Canada, the necessity and feasibility of housing schemes in any locality and advisability of slum clearance.

A PAYING TOWNSHIP (Toronto Globe)

It has been left to Goderich Township, in Huron County, to send out some refreshing tax news. For the eighty-fifth consecutive year the municipality's taxes have been paid 100 per cent. How is it that one township is out of debt while so many others are in a financial mess? That is easily answered. For eighty-five years the people of Goderich haven't bothered about the pace set by the municipal Joneses. Pay as you go also had something to do with the present satisfactory situation.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, June 25th.—You evidently can't count on this session being over until the Speaker puts on his tricorn hat on the final day and marches out of the Green Chamber. Here we had it dead and about to be buried a week ago, and unaccountably it sprang to life again; and not only that, but it showed a vigor and intensity, and a depth of political passion, which has so far been notably absent during the current session. Now the wise guys on the Hill are talking about parliament lasting until the first week in July. So it might, but after that exhibition last week, all predictions should be banned. It might just as easily blow up suddenly in a couple of days' notice, perhaps some week between the time I write my weekly review and the time it appears on the street in your newspaper.

Premier Bennett himself has been the central figure in the remarkable transformation of the nature of the session in the past few days. Just when it seemed to be dying a slow death through inanition or coma, he made two smashing provocative addresses on the Grain Bill, engaged in a bitter controversy with Colonel Ralston, and introduced a voting measure which he must have known would at once excite the enmity of the Liberal opposition.

THE OLD R. B. BENNETT

It was the old R. B. Bennett come back again, at a time when many people believed that his fiery explosive days were done forever. Nothing could have been more exhausting, more volcanic, than the two long addresses on the Grain Board; and the exchange with Colonel Ralston would have tried the temper and heart of a man in perfect health. The whole performance serves to make a gigantic enigma of the man. Is he fully restored to health? Does he now intend to go through with things to the bitter end? Or is he doing it all in defiance of his doctor and in violation of all the laws of self-preservation? Is it true, as some friends have whispered to me, that his sense of public service is so powerful, and his realization of the fate of his party if he abandons them is so strong, that he has decided to stake his health on a final throw of the political dice?

These are questions which even those in the closest touch with public affairs are asking in vain. Premier Bennett keeps his own counsel. He has never made a frank statement of his plans. The few veiled references to them suggest that he has intended to retire. But when? Till the session is over? Till election day? Till a suitable successor is chosen? These are still mysteries to everyone except himself. And it is quite possible that he himself has not made up his mind.

One quite obvious explanation of the uncertainty, which almost certainly has some merit, is that the fate of the party rests to a large extent on the successful choice of a new leader; and that until this important problem has been solved, Premier Bennett will not leave his followers to the clash and schism of interparty struggle. It is not easy to see what the Conservatives can do about a leader. As I have said before in these weekly reviews, Hon. E. N. Rhodes would have been the obvious choice, but ill-health has made that move impossible. Meighen is immediately in mind, but that way out of the difficulty is by no means fully satisfactory to all the Conservatives even if it is so to Mr. Meighen himself, which is doubtful.

MR. STEVENS' POSITION

Mr. Stevens is in this peculiar position,—that while the rank and file would probably, on a secret ballot, choose him from the various aspirants, he is not acceptable to the hierarchy of the Conservative party, and he is 'non persona grata' also with Mr. Bennett. Mr. Stevens has made two or three powerful democratic addresses in the House of Commons, in which he has not hesitated to address blunt words to the Cabinet, but on the whole he has carefully refrained from breaking off negotiations with the front-benchers of his own party. Mr. Stevens can afford to wait. Even if he does not become Conservative leader himself, it is certain that in the event of the mantle falling on the shoulders, say, of Dr. R. J. Manion, Mr. Stevens would be the logical choice for first lieutenant. And first lieutenant of even a party in opposition is obviously a good deal better than a back-bencher or a political outcast from all camps.

DON'T QUIT

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're treading seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest!—if you must—but never quit.
Life is queer, with its twists and turns,
As every one of us sometime learns,
And many a failure turns about,
When he might have won if he'd stuck it out.
Stick to your task, though the pace seems slow,
You may succeed with another blow.
Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man.
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup,
And he learned, too, when the night slipped down,
How close he was to the golden crown.
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit—
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

SASKATCHEWAN EDITORS DECLARE NEWSPAPERS ARE NOT GIFT SHOPS

The matter of free publicity continues to provide material for editorial comment in Saskatchewan weeklies. The Swift Current Sun in part says: "Some people have the misguided impression that a newspaper is under public ownership. Such is not the case. We weigh the merits of free publicity and always err on the side of generosity. But we do sometimes become annoyed when people demand certain things published according to their will. We feel we should be guided by the more or less strict tenets of newspaper writing. When one buys an article at a store one is entitled to have it wrapped up and some string around it. On the other hand try to walk into a store and say, 'Give me four cans of pork and beans for nothing and be sure to wrap it up in glazed pink paper and put a green ribbon around it.' That just about sums up what a newspaper is up against a great deal. We aim to please and think we do, but sometimes have to rebel against the attitude taken by some people."

C. W. Roberts, editor of the Rocanville Record editorially discusses his financial responsibilities and concludes by stating that if all the printing requirements of Rocanville were printed by the Record, the plant would have to double its present staff. Mr. Roberts points out the services the public expects and gets. He adds that the public should return the compliment and gets it printing done in Rocanville.

PIONEER RESIDENT DIES AT ST. PHILIPPE

Death has once more cast its shadow and taken one of the old settlers in the person of Mrs. James B. Chambers who passed away on Monday, June 24th. Deceased lady, who was in her 87th year, was formerly Miss Margaret Scarbrough, of Staynerville, and was married in 1870 to Mr. Chambers, who predeceased her 13 years ago. She was a member of the Brownsburg United Church. Eight children comprised her family of whom Margaret died some years ago at the age of 21 years. Those left to mourn her loss are, James and William, of St. Philippe, Reuben, of Windsor, Ont., and Norman, of Western Canada; also three daughters, Mrs. Richard Graham, of Lachute; Mrs. Light-hall, of Toronto; Mrs. James Beattie, of St. Philippe; also one sister, Ann, Mrs. J. Creswell.

The funeral which was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hagar, assisted by Rev. Mr. Maclean took place on Wednesday from her late residence and was largely attended by many sympathizing friends and relatives.

Many floral tributes also bore silent testimony of the one whose kindly words and loving nature will be so greatly missed by all who knew her.

Interment was made at Lachute Cemetery.

Hints for Homebodies

By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

ONE'S OWN HOME

Women who plan to give up their homes and live with their children should consider it very carefully before making such a move. Better turn the key in the lock and try it for a few months before taking a step permanently. Almost always a woman who has had her own home is most happy in it than in some one else's, no matter how much she may love her children. There is only one place in the whole world that you can do just as you like and that is in your own home—and not always there. It is very hard to strike a happy medium. Children either smother their mother with kindness or impose on her, probably unconsciously. Then there is the other side of it. It is a most difficult thing for parents, specially for mothers to realize that their children are grown up. No matter how old they may be, they are always children in a mother's eyes, and she is apt to interfere in the ways of the household. She may not interfere in words but a silence can be very eloquent. The precious feeling of privacy is lost because even a parent is an outsider. Sometimes it seems impossible for a mother to continue alone for either physical or financial reasons and some wise women get round that difficulty by having some one live with them or by renting a part of their home.

She will still be mistress in her own home and as it is a business proposition, living will be easier when sentiment does not enter into the picture. Somehow it is easier for a man to fit into another home so most difficulties occur when mother and daughter or daughter-in-law try to live together.

THE THIN GIRL

Usually it is the over-weight who come to me for help on the diet question but this week I have an under-weight girl. She is a tall thin girl, a stenographer with a responsible position, who likes a good time. She is fond of sports and dancing. To gain weight one must eat more food than is required to maintain the activities of the body. That is, one must put more in than one takes out. So there are two ways of gaining. One is to eat, more; the other is to do less. The best method is to combine these two. This girl had made determined efforts to gain by eating more and because she did not accomplish it was firmly convinced that nothing could make her gain weight. On making a sleep chart of the previous week, we found that she had averaged 6½ hours sleep a night, two or three late nights bringing down the average to that low figure. She acknowledged that most weeks were about the same. She worked hard and she played hard, as she danced, played golf, skied or skated as the opportunity arose. Extra food alone was not enough to balance this output of energy and lack of sleep, so she is going on a new schedule to try to regain her lost energy. She is keeping a sleep chart so that she knows exactly how much sleep she is getting and is planning to average 9 hours a night, spending Sunday morning in bed to help bring up her average. Two evenings a week she is going to bed at seven o'clock to read and rest. She will make a few dietary changes. Her breakfast has been a catch as catch can affair, so now she will take fruit or fruit juice, a cereal with cream, bacon, toast and marmalade. She will eat an extra slice of bread and butter for her other meals and when she has eaten as large a meal as she can comfortably, she will drink a glass of milk. If you want to gain weight by drinking milk it should not be taken during the meal because it fills up the stomach and lessens the appetite for other food. Before going to sleep she will eat some crackers, buttered liberally and drink a glass of milk. Increasing the calories and lessening the activities will give an increase in weight.

TIME YOURSELF

Have you ever tried timing yourself to see how long it takes to do different parts of your work. If you know approximately how long it takes to do things you can plan your work much more efficiently. You will be surprised to find how long it takes to do some jobs and how quickly some of the tasks that you rather dislike will be done. It is a good plan to time some of your cooking operations. Then you know exactly how long it takes to make a cake, a pie or a dessert. Sometimes it is a bit discouraging when you think of the time you have spent on the preparation of a meal, to see how quickly your work disappears. The satisfaction given is a better method of evaluation than the time spent when it comes to meals. Timing your work helps to speed it up.

A FLOWER ARRANGEMENT

I watched a florist arrange a table centre for a reception. He filled a large, rather shallow bowl with earth & arranged Spring flowers in this, sticking each stem in the earth. The earth held them in place and they stayed exactly as arranged. When they were all in place he watered it as you would water a plant. He advised watering each day and said that the flowers would last well with

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Weir, of Ottawa, were the week-end guests of Miss Annie Weir on the 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Beltford, also Miss Mary Hickey and Mr. A. Smith, of Ottawa, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evans over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Sleeth and family, of Montreal, are occupying for a time the house formerly occupied by the late Miss B. Nicholls.

Mrs. Geo. Burton and Miss Ruth Burton spent the week-end with Mrs. Burton's sisters, the Misses Cleland.

Mr. and Mrs. John Somerville and son, Gordon, spent Sunday in Montreal at the home of Mrs. Wm. Candlish Sr.

Quite a number of ladies attended the Annual Meeting of the W. C. T. U. of Argenteuil and Pointe Fortune, which was held at the home of Mrs. H. Nowlan of Carillon, and enjoyed the programme for the afternoon very much. Two visitors were present, Mrs. J. Hale Ramsey and Mrs. Rickart, members of Westmount W. C. T. U. Mrs. Ramsey being Lord's Day Observance Convenor also Gold Medalist Elocutionist on the same subject gave a very interesting and convincing talk, claiming as one of her points that one of the causes of the greatness of the British Nation was because of their observance of the Sabbath Day, encouraged in this by His Gracious Majesty, the King, who was very strong on that point, and set his people a wonderful example. Mrs. Ramsey claimed that this depression had been good for us as it had brought so many people back to God, who like the Israelites of old had wandered away in their eager pursuit of wealth and happiness.

Mrs. Ramsey, in speaking of the late Queen Victoria, said that at her coronation the Queen requested that the hymn "Lord of Lords and King of Kings" be sung and that the Queen herself had stood up and lifted the crown from her head in acknowledgement of the Almighty King of Kings.

Mrs. Ramsey also spoke of the minister who told his congregation that although some of them claimed that they could worship God in Nature and while they absented themselves from church to spend Sundays in the open air they were with him in spirit, that he was not fond of preaching to empty pews and spirits. We owe it to our ministers to attend church said Mrs. Ramsey. We invite them to come to our church and preach to us, therefore have no right to stay at home and let them preach to empty pews.

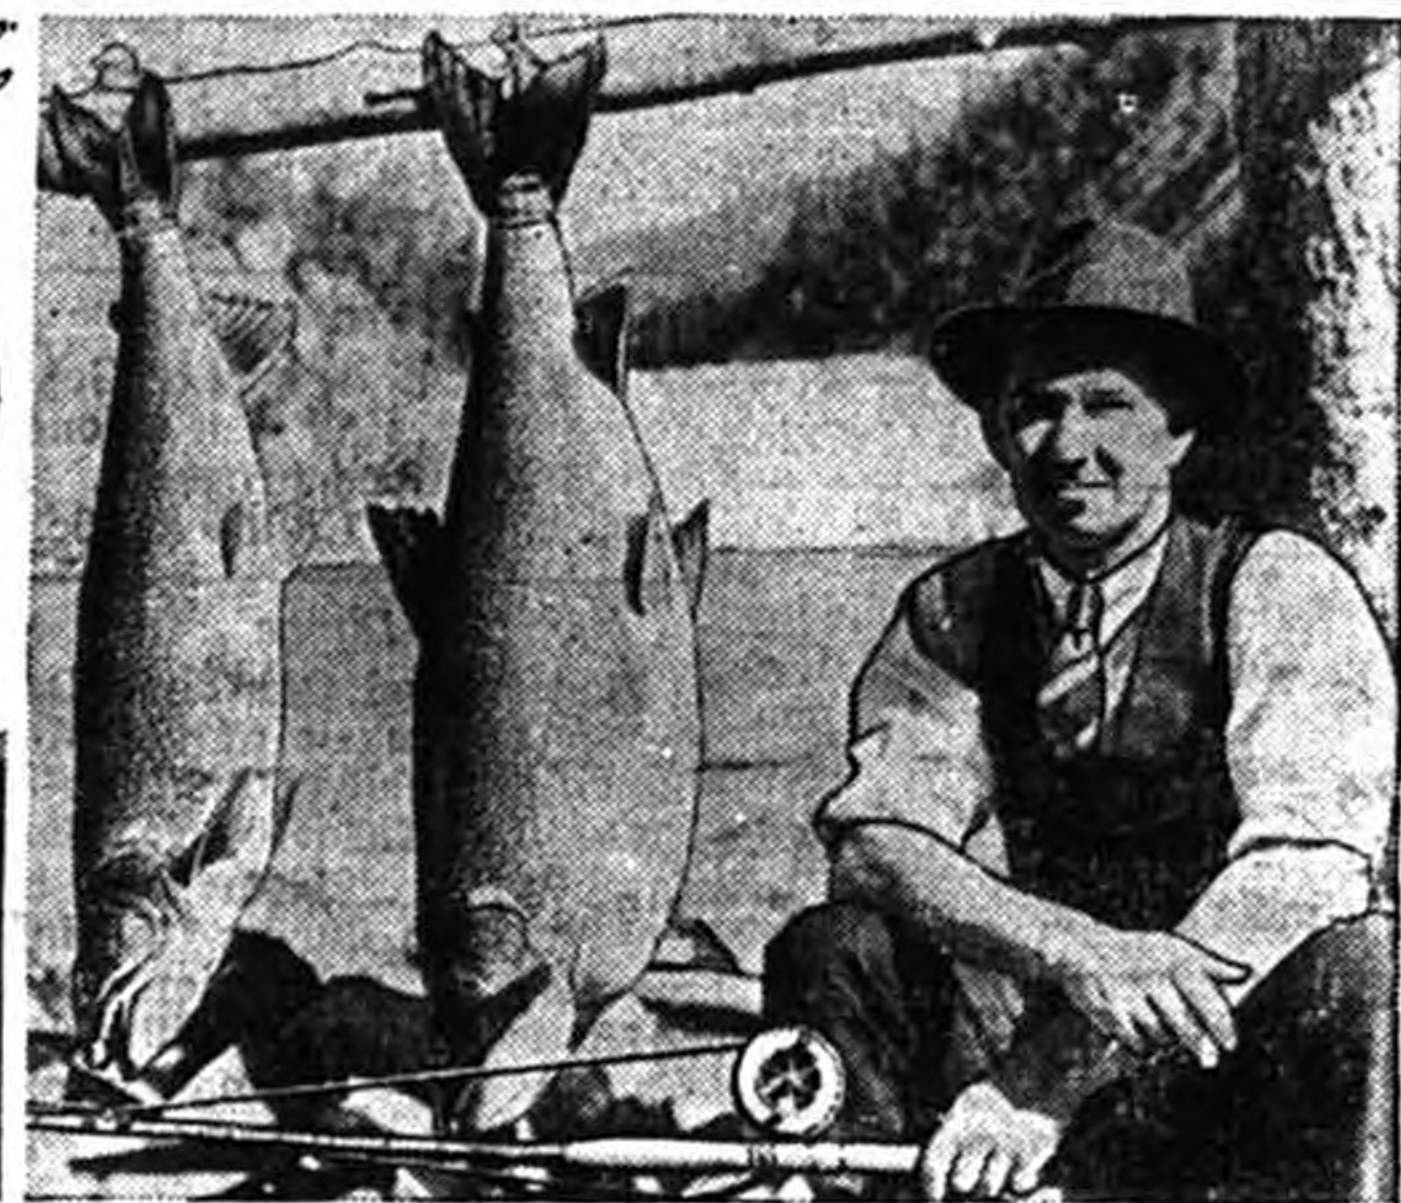

The election of officers resulted in the return to the offices of President, Vice-President and Secretary, Mrs. W. this care. The flowers looked lovely and no earth was visible.

TOMATO SOUP SALAD DRESSING

1 can tomato soup (undiluted)
7/8 cup salad oil
3/4 cup vinegar
1 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon mustard

Mix the dry ingredients, add soup and stir until smooth. Add the vinegar and oil, alternately a little at a time, beating well after each addition. Bottle and add an onion cut in quarters. This may be removed after a few hours. This is an appetising dressing to use on head lettuce.

Where Dreams Come True

NOT much has been said about the fishing near Banff Springs Hotel in the Rocky Mountains, probably because when visitors had finished "writing home" about the scenery, facilities for golf, tennis, and swimming, mountains to be climbed on foot or horse, the health-giving qualities of the air, and the fun to be found there the year round, there were no suitable descriptive words left for the fish.

But many types of fighting fish abound in the nearby lakes and streams. Minnow, the lake of Indian legends, frozen over for a week after the opening of the fishing season, made a glorious start on the new season by producing more than 565 pounds of trout in two days.

Bill Hall, of Banff, led the parade with two trout, the larger one a fisherman's dream tipping the scales at 40½ pounds, and the other registering a more usual 20½ pounds. He was out for only an hour and a quarter in the early afternoon from the time the first cast until the second fish was landed, despite the fact that the pair put up 30 and 40-minute fights.

Visitors have also made good catches this year. On the same day sportsmen got eight fish averaging about 18 pounds each.

and in two days another party of visitors caught 360 pounds of lake trout, running from five to 25 pounds, with the average about 18 pounds.

While catches like these are not at all uncommon in the West, it has been discovered fairly recently that trolling is not at all necessary to get the big ones. Visitors at the Canadian Pacific Railway hotels at Banff Springs and at Lake Louise, as well as at the many bungalow camps throughout the Rockies, learn soon after their arrival that there are fine fishing grounds in the near vicinity.

Usher and Mrs. J. W. Maclean, of Cushing, for the first two and Mrs. W. Boa, of Point Fortune, for the third office with Mrs. A. Graham of Cushing, taking the place of Mrs. J. Beggs, of Point Fortune, as treasurer.

The Frontier Branch of the Women's Institute will meet at the home of Mrs. Archie Graham on Tuesday afternoon, July 2nd. A cordial invitation is extended to the young people to attend. Part of the program will be a demonstration on "Artificial Respiration" by Mr. G. W. Kuhring of Lakefield, which is very useful to know in case of drowning or near drowning accidents. Reports of Convention will also be given and Mrs. Kuhring, our County President, will meet with us at this time.

The many friends of Mr. H. Nowlan, former Cushing resident, and son of Mrs. Hastings Nowlan, now residing in Carillon, congratulate him on his recent promotion in the interests of the Bank of Montreal, being promoted from Accountant for the Bank at Three Rivers, to the large St. Roch Branch at Quebec City. Before his removal from Three Rivers, Mr. Nowlan was feted at the Ki-8-EB Country Club by his confreres in the business and other personal friends.

Manager Boisjoli, according to the St. Maurice Valley Chronicle, in wishing Mr. Nowlan success in his new field of work, paid decided tribute to his efficiency as a banker and on proving so worthy of the trust placed in him. "It was easy to note," said Mons. Boisjoli, "that your constant aim was to place the office on a high standard of efficiency and I believe that you have achieved your end. Your example has taught us not to do things in a half-way manner and the Management is pleased to state that you could always be relied upon."

In presenting a momento of the occasion to Mr. Nowlan in the form of a beautiful modernistic lamp from the staff, Mons. Boisjoli said "If our tangible remembrance is modest, it represents our deepest sentiments of friendship and of best wishes in all matters that may cross your path." In this last good wish, Harold's Cushing friends heartily join.

—drink and be merry. While drunken eyes saw only the golden calf, they could not perceive that it had a grin and ugly shadow. The world basked on the sun-lit side of the golden calf—but the sun was soon to go down and leave darkness and despair, and in that darkness a new hell was born.

The golden calf no longer bleated its coaxing call. It soon lost its voice—and when it did, in the darkness—power—prestige—pomp—glory became speechless too and idolaters struck out in the contagious silence—reached out for support and found their hands wandering and waving in the air. Their bodies soon tottered. Poverty, suffering, despair, distress and suicide were comfortably seated in the drawing room and were awaiting the appearance of those who yesterday offered incense to gold and pleasure.

But surely, some one must be to blame in all this affair. It is not fate. The accusing fingers could not be levelled at one particular man or woman. But it was a very, very simple matter for the great minds of the country as well as for the aping crowd. Why, God was to blame. He was the one who brought about all this suffering, all this poverty. The world denied its responsibility in the whole dismal business and with one voice blamed God and the echo came back to its ready ear. God is settled now. We became powerful and rich by ourselves and became weak and poor by God. This man in his evening clothes, with gold in his pockets, who claimed there was no God—now says that the God who was not is the cause of our ruin. That jewel bedecked woman in her backless gown walked about in a godless world, in a godless manner with a godless mind, now sits in a smaller home with bills and debts about her, unaccustomed to such things, tells herself and the world that God is a very hard master and the cause of her misery. She cannot go South this winter, she had to drop her subscription to the horseshoe ring at the Metropolitan opera. God was to blame.

The once open door of the factory was now closed and "No help wanted" hung out. The workman cursed his luck and took it out on God.

The man in the breadline sipped his watered coffee and said. God—he's the cause of it all. Even the boy at school, whose pocket no longer holds a weekly allowance, very often for dissipation, accused God in his own smart flippant way. The burden of blame upon the shoulders of God. Your priests and ministers tell us there is a good, gentle, kind father. That he clothes the lily of the fields and feeds the birds of the air. And the echo from a breadliner says: has He no concern for us as we shiver in poverty? Rich, God answers, you denied me, you forgot me—poor—you blame me.

Doubt comes to the very door of those who once held faith as a priceless weapon. And a new code of living was born. A modern religion was the new babe to be fed the suckling milk from the breasts of modern thought—a social, a political, a worldly religion, preached by Satan himself, as he preached it to our Blessed Saviour in the desert.

Stones into bread for adoration I will give you the Kingdoms of the earth if thou wilt adore me.

If thou art God, cast thyself from the pinnacle of the temple.

As the crumbs disappear from the lunch box, as the clicking of the typewriter is no longer heard, and the ledger of business is written in red ink, as the chorus of blame rises to the ear of God, Satan with his spade digs deep in the heart of man and plants the seed of the new code. If God, then, is to blame, forget him and follow me; and along the streets between towering, empty skyscrapers, the gullible mob follows this new God Pan, their eager feet dancing to the tunes of his enticing pipes.

It is strange how God, once exiled from modern commerce, is suddenly dragged into this sorry business. He was kept out of St. James' Street, Wall Street, Downing Street and the French Senate. Was not welcome in public schools and universities. If any director at a board meeting had dared mention his name to inquire what He thought, he would have been regarded as stark mad or lacking in good taste. God had no business poking his nose in such great affairs.

For 30 years God had been treated, in public affairs and in business deals as a slightly doddering grandfather who might be permitted to sit in state in the parlor and receive occasional visitors but who was politely ignored when anything really important was being considered. He was out of date, antiquated, was invited to please keep his place and not be heard.

God was all right for the Churches on Sunday between 9 o'clock and noon. He was given a nominal place when his temple was decked with canopies and carpets for fashionable weddings. But that was enough. But the world of finance and science and politics and education was pretty well able to shift for itself, thank you. What shifting it did. A terrible new theory called "the survival of the fittest" eliminated the need of a creator and Christ carrying His cross was replaced by the figure of the superman riding his white horse. The new morality simply denied God's right as a law giver. Divorce, free love, birth control, the right of the strong to take what he could and the right of the labourer to cheat until caught might be against God's commandments. — But who cares?

God-emptied theories exploded and writers who knew as much about God as an African Bushman knows of Alpine climbing talked loudly of the failure of Christianity and the collapse of the Churches.

Jealousy and hatred soon joined the rest of the pack of wolves sitting in the drawing-room. The hand of one nation held the throat of another; with a smile of friendship one diplomat cut his shyness's pound of flesh from over the heart of his neighbor. A patch quilt of new nations flung together like the famous dog-cat and serpent in the bag, called out for worldly recognition.

Wealth and power were the dreams now of a past age, with the chill of want to awaken the sleeper. And as a child cries out after a bad dream, man calls—Where is God, where is He?

Well—He might be able to arrange matters. Poverty, despair were bringing back sense to a giddy head. It was hard at first, but when the terrible draft that choked the eyes, ears and nose with a cold in the head, had passed away, man began to see and hear, to understand and reason better.

Why, God was here all the time, watching the great house of cards fall down and is now teaching us to build not on sand but on stone. He had witnessed all—seen all—heard all—understood all—permitted all. He had seen the greed of big business, the lust that opened its arms to men and women. He saw that art was becoming a cigarette, a garter, a radio electric sign. He saw that literature was the promograph of immoral books. He saw the photograph of "Get rich quick and live in a pent house." He saw morons on the stage and screen teaching men and women new methods of old sin. He saw that we had knelt down and kissed the garment of modern religion. It was enough. He applied the rod, and punished—punished hard.

In this general punishment all had to suffer—the guilty and the innocent. It is God's way of saving the world from disaster. Nothing kills the soul of a civilization as mounting prosperity.

Too much money always was and is the source of national decay. Lust and luxury came as inevitably to Solomon as they came to the Kings of France of the 17th. century and to the rich man's sons of the 20th., who felt that money did away with the ten commandments.

Moral decay was about us and purity was treated as tea in a wine song. Free love was preached in the open squares, mistresses became an accepted theme in life and literature, gigolos were imported, sweet scented puppets to take the place of clean manhood. Virtue was the joker in the deck of cards. We gambled on everything, a shoestring and a pot of gold. Only fools worked. And why be good and pure? Live by your wits and forget reason. Reach out, grab, take steal, kill, murder. The code of the octopus.

Was God wrong in punishing the world? When honest bread and butter were scorned for the spicy condiments, when cotton masqueraded as silk and glass became diamonds and rubies. The poor imitated the rich and we all kept up with the Jones's. The poor wanted a country club—a fashionable apartment, that bars the entrance of babies; a well stocked cellar, a butler to serve drinks as if he were handing out insults. They reached out for the moon—a chair in the parlor car—a seat in the coach would not do; and it takes a small pin to break a balloon.

Simple things were dull, children were a nuisance. Home was a stop-off place between the bridge-table, the club and the theatre.

A good time for all. Texas Guinan as our ideal of gaiety and a Joan Crawford penthouse as an ideal home. We were becoming soft and flabby, with no national pride. Even an army of Esquimaux with icicles for guns could have come down and conquered our country, had not God stepped in and punished us. And in our punishment we hear the words of Christ come true. "Put not your trusts in riches." "And God said to the rich man, This night I shall require thy soul of thee." Blessed are the poor in spirit. "What doth it profit a man to gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his soul." Take up your cross and follow me. "Lay not up to yourselves treasures on earth." Vanity of vanities and all is vanity save only to love and serve God.

Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil.—Amen.

Behind a pillar in the darkened church, a red lamp in its center, a man knelt in prayer—Once a very, very rich man—to-day a poor man—but happier. He strikes his breast. "Through my fault, through my fault, through my most grievous fault." But Thy will be done, O God; Thy will be done. Mankind was back on his knees And God was in His Heaven.

HOW TO LIVE

To taste of Heaven here below,
Let people keep their souls aglow
With kindly thoughts and worthy deeds
That weigh far more than musty creeds.
The mart is a concourse of friends
Where service is the end of ends.
Then live to serve and serve to live—
They profit most who greatly give.
With courage strong and conscience free
The ones who give unselfishly
To serve mankind and count no cost
Have learned to love and live the most.
Oh, Life how rich and sweet thou art
When kindness sways the human heart.

—Robert Shailor Holmes.

THE LATE

MISS LILY M. MacGREGOR

Lily Margaret MacGregor, daughter of the late Duncan and Elizabeth Young MacGregor, died suddenly, on June 23rd., of a cerebral hemorrhage. She had been a helpless invalid for many years.

Miss MacGregor was born in St. Andrews East and lived there during her early years. Later she moved with her family to New York. During her many years of invalidism she made her home with her brother, Mr. Thos. G. MacGregor, of Pittsburgh.

She was a cousin of Mrs. John R. Wason, of Lachute; beth MacGregor, of East Settlement; Mrs. W. Todd and Miss Elizabeth; Mr. Arthur A. and Mr. Norman F. MacGregor, of St. Andrews East and Mr. John R. MacGregor of Montreal.

Funeral services, beautifully conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. J. Milligan, minister of the Avalon United Presbyterian Church, were held at the residence of her brother, Mr. Thos. G. MacGregor, No. 6522 Brighton Rd., Ben Avon, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The floral offerings were very beautiful. She was laid to rest beside her mother in Allegheny Cemetery in Pittsburgh.

Miss MacGregor is survived by one sister and four brothers, Mrs. Richard Hamilton, Montreal; Mr. P. D. MacGregor, Mr. Duncan MacGregor, Mr. A. Henderson MacGregor, of New York; Mr. Thos. G. MacGregor, of Pittsburgh.

"TOOK ALL KINDS OF PILLS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF"

Constipation, Due to Insufficient "Bulk," Relieved by Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

A fine letter from Mrs. Snyder: "I have had trouble" with my bowels for years, taking all kinds of pills and drugs, with no relief. "One year ago, I saw Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and bought a package. I have good movements every day. I am 73 years old. I am telling my friends what bran has done for me." —Mrs. Sallie Snyder. Address upon request.

"Constipation due to insufficient bulk" in meals.

Research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B, as well as iron, an element of the blood.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient to correct common constipation. With each meal, in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the "bulk" in leafy vegetables. How much better to use this food in place of patent medicines.

At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Keep on the Sunny Side of Life

The Late Mrs. A. Steele

It is with deep regret we record the sudden death of Mrs. Archibald Steele who passed away on Sunday evening, June 9th. Though not in good health for some time the end came as a great shock to her family and friends. She was the widow of the late Archibald Steele of Grenville, formerly Elizabeth Brown and was in her 75th. year. She was a devoted worker of the old Methodist Church.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sons and three daughters, John of Lumsden, Sask., Archie of Billings Bridge, Ont., David and Bethel of Lachute, Mrs. C. Moncrieff of Calley, Alberta, and Mrs. Wm. Graham and Mrs. John McLeod of Holland, Landing, Ont.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. A. E. Hagar from the home of her son David to the Brownsburg United Church, thence to the Scotch Road Cemetery at Grenville, Que.

THE LATE J. A. ROGERS

At his late residence, 399 Home Street, Winnipeg, Man., on May 22nd., J. A. Rogers, aged 62 years. He was the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers, of Lakefield, Que. He was married to Miss Rachel Elliott, of Chesterville, Ont., who survives him. He also leaves to mourn his loss, two daughters, Mrs. Chas. Baskerville, of Mosseville, Man., and Maud L., at home, also one brother, Wm. J. Rogers, of Spear Hill, Man., and one sister, Mrs. B. G. Rogers, of Lachute. The many floral tributes from the staff of the office in which he worked showed the high esteem in which he was held.

The funeral took place from the Undertaker's Parlors on May 24th., and was very largely attended.
