CEREMONY HERE FOR REMEMBRANCE DAY

POPPIES WILL BE SOLD PREVIOUSLY

Monday next is Remembrance Day and the annual commemoration will again be held in Lachute Auditorium, at 10 minutes to 11, sharp.

The meeting will be presided over by Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason who, with the local clergy, will participate in the customary program.

It is earnestly requested that all will make it a point to be present, promptly at the time mentioned, in order that the meeting will be under way for the period of silence at the appointed hour of 11 o'clock. This is a duty we owe and should respect.

Following the service adjournment will be made to the Memorial Park for the ceremony of laying the wreaths upon the Soldiers' Monument, where the benediction will be given, and the Last Post sounded by Mr. C. Duncan.

Citizens will be given the opportunity on Saturday of buying poppies, which they are asked to wear on Sunday and Monday, thus showing their interest in the returned men. These little emblems are all made by the soldiers and the money received from the sales helps to carry cheer and sunshine into the homes of the needy. When the young ladies of the town call upon you, don't fail in responding to their appeal.

MEMORIAL WINDOW FOR DUNANY CHURCH

Bishop Farthing of Montreal has approved the design for the new memorial window to be erected in St. Paul's Church, Dunany, in memory of the members of the Smith family, who lie buried in Dunany cemetery.

The window is being made by the Hobbs Manufacturing Co., Montreal, the frame by a manufacturer in Lachute, and the installation by Mr. Leonard Gain of Dunany. The glass alone in the Gothic-shaped window will cost one hundred dollars, and is being paid for by the executives of the Smith family, Major Smith of Lachute, Mr. MacVicar, Brownsburg, and the surviving son, John. It is expected that the window will be completed and installed within a week; representing a life size figure of St. Paul, it will stand directly behind the altar in the church.

Autos Ransacked While Owners at Dance

Robbers were busy last Friday night on Lachute's main thoroughfare, where numerous automobiles were parked during the Masonic Ladies' Night dance. Windows were broken in several of the cars, and articles of considerable value were lifted. Some reported the loss of overcoats and rugs; in other cars a radio set and a heater had been removed.

Discovery of the theft was made by one of the dancers who had occasion to go to his car. The circumstance marred the otherwise happy spirit of the occasion. Provincial police were notified, but to date no clues have led to the identity of the culprits.

Notary Gaetan Valois has been appointed returning officer for this district in the Provincial Elections, according to the list approved by Order-in-Council at Quebec.

The bees hum and the lions roar, but man alone can laugh. Too bad some so seldom exercise this distinguishing function.

And They Shall Never Perish

You never can be dead, not while the laughter
And joy that you have made lives on, and grows,
The garden spot is blessed with fragrance after
The vivid life is gone from June-time's rose.
And you who gave the world new dreams of gladness,
Who gave the faith of childhood back again,
Will never pass into a vale of sadness...
Just as the rainbow follows cooling rain;
The people of your past will live and lighten
The path that weary earth-bound folk must tread.
For thoughts of your sweet mind will always brighten
The lives of others. You can not be dead—
You are transported, just across the way,
And we will meet you smiling, there, some day.

CHORAL GROUP IS REORGANIZED AT ST. JEROME

The Choral Association, which was organized at the time of the Passion Play in St. Jerome, but which has since been disbanded, took steps last week to re-organize, under a full slate of officials. The president is Jean Charles Marchand.

This group, it is recalled, was heard on one occasion in a recital at Lachute Auditorium.

PREDICTS LATE WINTER BUT HEAVY SNOWS

Simon Bomberry, chief of a tribe of Six Nations Indians—near Caledonia, Ont., who has seen 82 summers and as many winters, disagrees with other weather prophets who predicted an early winter since wild geese went south flying high.

"In the old days, we were always told that when the geese soared high as they did on their recent flight south, it meant that the weather was mild up north and it was only when they flew low that colder weather followed," said Simon.

"But there will be plenty of snow when winter does come, as squirrels are laying in a lot of hickory nuts, which means a heavy snowfall," the chief declared.

REV. H. H. COUSENS ADDRESSED LIONS CLUB

The regular meeting of the Lions Club of Lachute was held on Wednesday evening at the Cosy Inn, with a good attendance of enthusiastic members. Lion Rev. Henry Cousens was the speaker of the evening and his address, entitled "Having a Margin", was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The Club's thanks to the speaker were appropriately expressed by Lion Romeo Charron.

Lion Rev. Winter LeCras, in his capacity as Chairman of the Lions Education Committee, gave a brief talk in which he stressed the growth of Lionism from 25 Clubs in 1917 to 2700 clubs in 1934.

The Health and Welfare Committee, with Lion Clement Tremblay as Chairman, presented an outline of their proposed program for the coming season. This committee deserves hearty congratulation for the thorough and painstaking way they are going about their duties, and for the good work already accomplished.

Wednesday, Nov. 13th., the Club will be visited by District Governor Reid Murdoch of Toronto, when a full attendance is anticipated. Representatives from the Montreal and Ottawa Lions Clubs are also expected at this meeting.

At the semi-annual meeting of Lachute Ladies' Curling Club, held Tuesday afternoon in the club rooms, Mrs. A. Middleton was elected President for the 1935-6 season.

Two Years for Theft at Grenville Station

Wilfrid Davidson, of Grenville, found guilty of theft from the Canadian National Railways station at Grenville, was sentenced by Magistrate Donat Lalande at St. Jerome last Thursday to two years in the penitentiary.

Davidson broke into the railway station on June 28 last and stole goods to the value of $40.

Killed in Bicycle Accident at Hawkesbury

Ernest Larocque, 22 years old, of Hawkesbury, was instantly killed Sunday night when he was struck by an automobile while bicycling on the Ottawa-Montreal highway. Roland Smith, of Ottawa, driver of the car, was held as a witness for the inquest.

SOLEMN REQUEST

Proprietors of stores and business establishments in Lachute are earnestly requested to observe the sanctity of Remembrance Day by CLOSING THEIR PREMISES FOR ONE HOUR, commencing at 10.45 and concluding around the noon hour. This will permit a fitting observance of the 2-minutes' silence at 11 o'clock, and will coincide with memorial ceremonies in the Park.

Signed—J. H. MASON, M.D., Mayor, Lachute Town.

THREE MEN DROWNED NEAR BUCKINGHAM

CAR DRIVEN OFF ROAD IN HEAVY FOG

Returning home from a Papineau County liberal meeting, three men met death early Sunday morning when their car plunged into Stavey Creek, a waterway 30 miles north of Buckingham. They were: Hormidas Gauthier, 51; Adelard Morin, 56; and Matte Faubert, 59, all farmers.

The men had attended a gathering at Val des Blois, and on their return encountered a heavy fog. Tracks on the roadway showed they approached a bridge over the creek on the right hand side of the road but apparently feared they were near the edge and swung further to the right.

The car struck a post and plunged into the creek, which is

SUCCUMBED IN MONTL. HOSPITAL

A shooting accident claimed the life of Joseph Rene Robitaille, a 7-year-old boy of Weir, Monday morning in the Montreal General Hospital, where he had been taken on Sunday with a bullet in his lower jaw. He was taken to Montreal from his home after being accidentally shot, and an inquest was held later by Deputy Coroner Hebert, a verdict of accidental death being returned.

Testimony at the inquest revealed that Roger Robitaille, 18-year-old brother of the dead boy, was emptying a rifle outside their home after being on a hunting trip. The younger boy ran towards him just as the last bullet in the magazine of the rifle discharged. The shot pierced the lad's lower jaw.

Government Moves Fast, Unhampered by Political Considerations... Abolition of Harbor Commissions Was in Contemplation by Conservatives

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, November 5th.—The new government started out at a great clip: they promise to make the fur fly for a while at least. Within one week they had abolished the harbor commissions of Canada, had taken steps to apply economic sanctions against Italy, had set up a committee of the cabinet to deal directly with the wheat problem, had held up for review a number of important public works projects, including the million dollar tunnel under Toronto harbour, had taken initial steps to negotiate trade agreements with the United States and Japan, had started modifying the high protectionist attitude toward other countries. If events run true to form these are the beginnings of an active period. Mr. Mackenzie King has some active and courageous

REAPING OTHERS' HARVESTS

Sometimes new governments reap the harvest planted by their predecessors. In the abolition of the harbor boards the new government merely did what the previous government had been advised to do by Sir Alexander Gibb, and had actively contemplated, but had never accomplished.

There are very good political reasons why a new government is able to do things which an old government would never dare, especially if the new government comes into power with

TOWN COUNCIL ENGAGED NEW POLICE OFFICER

MERCURY LIGHTING DISCUSSED AND FAVORED

The regular meeting of the Lachute Town Council was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday, at which were present—Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason, and Aldermen J. Constantineau, C. Durocher, W. J. Deacon, F. Deslauriers, K. McOuat, H. Lamarche, G. Muir, O. Laurin. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Tenders for a new constable were opened in committee as a whole and announcement was made that Alexis Gervais of Montreal had been engaged, a man with five years' constabulary experience, who would start his duties on Nov. 15th.

The question of lighting improvements was brought up and Alderman Lamarche reported that the Gatieneau Power Co'y. was willing to replace 14 lamps of the present system with ten new mercury vapor lamps similar to those demonstrated for some time on Main Street. The difference in cost over the present lighting is about $200, and all the council were favorably disposed but wanted assurance of the durability before acquiring the new system.

Messrs. Delorme, Laurin and others aired grievances concerning roads and permits, and the varied committees were asked to adjust matters satisfactorily.

MILK INDUSTRY EXCEEDS GRAIN PRODUCTION

Canada's staple industry of wheat is eclipsed by milk production, according to Allan C. Fraser, secretary-manager of the National Dairy Council, who addressed the Canadian Club of Montreal this week.

In the last 5-year period, he said, the value of milk and its products had outstripped wheat production to the extent of $100,000,000. The percentage of farm income from dairying had developed in the same five years from 19 to 29 per cent, while the 315,000 people in this industry, with their families, represented over 17 per cent of the total population of Canada. The production, distribution and processing of milk in one form or another in the Dominion represented investment well in excess of half a billion dollars.

Plans Progressing to Link District Boards of Trade

St. Agathe was the scene of a conference last week on the proposed linking of Chambers of Commerce in different Laurentian towns, among which Lachute may be included. St. Jerome delegates discussed details of the regional association, as a result of which it is expected that the first joint meeting of the Boards of Trade will be called shortly.

The proposal is one which will doubtless receive consideration of the Lachute board at its next meeting, an opinion having been solicited on the matter, from St. Jerome. Other communities suggested in the plan are St. Therese, Terrebonne, and St. Agathe.

There are many matters, such as highway and transport communications, in which a linking of the district bodies might achieve good results.

Richard Stephens and Mr. Geo. Duhamel.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the beautiful summer cottage of the bride's mother at Clear Lake, Dunany. Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Walker left afterwards by motor for the South. On returning from their honeymoon they will reside in Lachute.

INQUEST IN DEATH OF ST. CANUT WOMAN

A verdict of death due to natural causes was returned on Monday by Coroner J. R. Brails, M.D., in the case of Mrs. Emile Laporte, 46 years of age, who died suddenly on Sunday afternoon in a garage at Lachapelle, near St. Jerome. Mrs. Laporte, was a resident of St. Canut and had been on a visit. She was on her way home when stricken.

FORGET TRIAL SET BACK TILL NOVEMBER 28

Jeremie Forget, truck driver of Ste. Scholastique, charged with manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Joseph P. Cyr on the highway near St. Hermas on October 12, stood for preliminary hearing at St. Jerome last week.

Two witnesses were heard by Magistrate Donat Lalande. Dr. L. P. Sauve, of Lachute, testified as to the nature of the woman's injuries and stated she had died two hours after she had been struck by the truck as she and her daughter were driving in a buggy on the road. O. Cyr, brother-in-law of the victim, produced a piece from the buggy which was demolished by the truck.

The case was adjourned until November 28.

PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING AT LACHUTE

WALKER — FISH

The marriage of Miss Vida Edith Fish, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fish of Dunany, Quebec, to Mr. Gavin Lloyd Walker, son of J. E. Walker and the late Mrs. Walker, took place on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 2nd., at three o'clock in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute, Rev. Henry Cousens officiating.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of rose colored velvet falling to ankle length, a small velvet toque of the same material, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Elinor McCoy, who wore a frock of bronze velvet with a matching turban and dark suede slippers; her bouquet was composed of yellow roses.

Mrs. Fish, the bride's mother, was gowned in navy blue silk crepe with a small blue felt hat and a corsage of lilies-of-the-valley.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and chrysanthemums. Miss Helen McFaul played the organ, rendering the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin and "Oh Perfect Love." Mrs. R. A. Giles sang "Because" during the signing of the register. Mr. McOuat Walker, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Garth Fish, Mr. Gordon McOuat, Mr.

ANNUAL BANQUET BY YOUNG PEOPLE'S CLUB, ST. ANDREWS PRESBY- TERIAN CHURCH

The Young People's Club of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church held their Annual Banquet on Saturday evening in the church hall, twenty-six club members, with several visitors, being present.

Miss Margaret Hamilton, President, was chairman. After welcoming the guests, a toast was drunk to His Majesty the King.

Dr. D. T. McColl proposed a toast to Canada. He spoke of our splendid inheritance, and called on all Club members to be good Canadians in the true sense of the word. Mention was made of the landing of our new Governor-General that day, and a tribute paid to this worthy representative of the King.

After the singing of O Canada, a very fine address was given by Miss Janet Watson on "The Church and what it has meant to the Youth of Canada." Rev. Robert Millar added a few well chosen remarks on this subject.

Mr. Ernest McQuat proposed a toast to the visitors, to which Rev. J. Macaskill responded, giving some fine advice to Club members on "Our Example, Good or Bad." Mr. Macaskill is always a welcome guest at this club, where he has given splendid addresses during his ministry here.

Regrets from Dean and Mrs. Booy and Rev. and Mrs. H.

Cousens, on their inability to attend, were conveyed by the President. The guest speaker of the evening, Mr. H. Mitchell of the Presbyterian College, spoke on "Unselfishness in Self-Development." He was a very forceful speaker and his address was appreciated by all present.

Those at the guest table were Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell of Montreal, Rev. and Mrs. R. Millar, Miss Eleanor Carson, Principal of the Model School, Mr. and Mrs. Proudfoot of Ottawa, and Dr. and Mrs. Ballantyne.

Mrs. Duncan McColl presided at the piano. The singing of the National Anthem brought a happy and profitable evening to a close.

Antelope in Many Areas
Pioneers found thousands of antelopes ranging over the Great Plains and the deserts from Canada south to the Valley of Mexico, and eastward through what is now Nebraska. Antelope require large areas of wide, open country to thrive, says Nature Magazine. This has been growing less with the advance of civilization until now there are only a few small herds left in widely scattered territory. Possessed of an exaggerated sense of curiosity, they habitually place themselves in unnecessary danger, evidently depending upon their fleetness of foot to escape. When startled they raise the stiff white hairs of the rump patch. This conspicuous signal is visible for a couple of miles and is passed from group to group until all have taken alarm.

175 members in the House of Commons. For a while at least they can afford to do things which are politically dangerous. The cabinet has no fear of sectional pressure. Nor does it need to be concerned about insurrection in the House of Commons. There is nothing potentially much stronger or autocratic than a government in the position in which the new Liberal government finds itself. It can afford to do what appears to be good business and say, "To heck with politics." When another election draws nearer and the whims of the people have to be consulted again, it will naturally become much more thoughtful of the popular appeal of this or that contemplated measure.

SOME MOMENTOUS PROBLEMS

Among the problems to be faced by the present government there are two of great importance: one is to balance the budget; the other is to dispose of our surplus wheat. A third perhaps not less important, is to solve the problem of railway deficits. If it can carry out these three reforms in the next twelve months, it will have laid the basis for much better times, lower taxes, higher agricultural income, more employment. All of which objectives it has set itself to accomplish.

In order to balance the budget two things are necessary: the sternest economy in the matter of non-essentials, and a revival of trade so that the present very heavy scale of taxes will produce the required revenue. For a while longer, even if conditions improve, the federal treasury will have to bear the burden of several provinces, as well as its own. Demands will be numerous from all sources. Hon. Charles Dunning will have to say "No" pretty firmly to all but the most deserving, if he is to get the national finances into good shape soon.

THE WHEAT PROBLEM

The wheat problem is not so ominous as it was, but it does not solve itself very rapidly. Actually, at the end of October, the 'visible' wheat stocks stand at the highest level in history. We cleared overseas in the first three months of the crop year only 27 million bushels—a mere bagatelle, when it is recalled that in more prosperous years we have sold as much as 100 millions in a quarter year, at prices above what are now prevailing.

The railway problem is a tough one. Hon. C. D. Howe has made an auspicious start on the marine end of things, with the abolition of even costly political boards and the substitution of a single business board at Ottawa. Can he do something of the same sort for the railways? It is going to take guts to do the necessary in respect to the railway problem. Either gross revenues have got to go up, or operating costs have got to come down. The only alternative is bankruptcy. For the private line, this would mean an appalling blow to our whole business fabric. For the publicly-owned line, it would mean repudiation, by one form or another.

The wheat situation will be materially helped if agreements with some of our potential customers overseas can be negotiated, whereby, in return for a more favorable treatment for their goods, they agree to purchase larger quantities of Canadian wheat. The world statistical position has not been more favorable to Canada for many years; it is our golden opportunity to clear the bins. But the stocks are very large, and the time is relatively short. Can we do it?

Mackenzie King Seen in "Autocrat" Role

FORCED TO ASSUME THE "DICTATORSHIP" POWERS WHICH HE DENOUNCED IN R. B. BENNETT

A special despatch to Frederick Gleaner revealed Mackenzie King in a strange predicament, at this early stage of his term in office. The "dictatorship" powers for which he so unsparingly denounced the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett (says the Gleaner) saved the day for Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King when he was compelled to face the alternative of either applying economic sanctions against Italy or of virtually withdrawing from the League of Nations.

Right Hon. Mr. King decided in favor of sanctions. In doing so, he responded to a Dominion-wide sentiment in favor of supporting the League's attempt to evolve peace out of the present threatening international situation.

At the same time, however, the Prime Minister faced the unpalatable fact that, in order to enforce sanctions, he must cloak himself in the same dictatorial power for the exercise of which he had, with every protestation of heated sincerity, so recently assailed Mr. Bennett.

In brief, the situation is this:

There are only two sources of effective authority for the enforcement of economic sanctions by a Canadian government.

One is the "peace, order and good government" clause of the relief act of 1935.

The other is the section of the Marketing Act which gives the government blanket powers to prohibit imports from any foreign country.

Neither of these pieces of legislation passed the House of Commons with Mr. King's benediction. In fact, he marshalled a blockade against both of them, which lasted for several weeks, and they served subsequently, both before and during the campaign, as the basis for his charges of dictatorship against Mr. Bennett.

SLOWLY BUT SURELY LEADERS BECOME PEACE-CONSCIOUS

To the impatient lovers of peace the world moves slowly toward the desired goal. However, the interesting thing to note is that it moves in that direction. Never in the history of man's climb from savagery to civilization have so many men of importance been interested in promoting peace, if necessary at some cost of dollars and pride.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch recently said: "What the President has done is to put in effect his pronouncement that the days of dollar diplomacy are ended. He has served notice that shippers need no longer expect the government to come to their aid if they encounter trouble in foreign waters. Their business is not suspended, but it must be conducted at their own risk. If this results in higher insurance rates and increased overhead, they will be at no disadvantage with their competitors in other countries, for similar conditions will exist there."

Reckoning the Stupendous Cost of the World War

EXTENT OF LIFE AND PROPERTY LOSSES DIFFICULT TO CONCEIVE

The colossal destruction of the Great War was dramatically set forth in a statement published in the Congressional Record of January 13, 1928. The statements are now old in respect of time, but the lesson which they stress should be ever new and vivid in the minds of thinking people. The article follows:

According to the best statistics obtainable the World War cost 30,000,000 lives and $400,000,000,000 in property. In order to give some idea of what this means just let me illustrate it in the following:

With that amount we could have built a $2,500 house and furnished this house with $1,000 worth of furniture, and placed it on five acres of land worth $100 an acre and given all this to each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Wales, Ireland, Scotland, France, Belgium, Germany and Russia.

After doing this there would have been enough money left to give each city of 20,000 inhabitants and over in all the countries named a $5,000,000 library and a $10,000,000 university.

And then out of the balance we could have still sufficient money to set aside a sum at 5 per cent, interest which would pay for all times to come a $1,000 yearly salary each year for an army of 125,000 teachers, and in addition to this pay the same salary to each of an army of 125,000 nurses.

And after having done all this, we could still have enough left out of our four hundred billions to buy up all that France and Belgium possess; that is, every French and Belgian farm, home, factory, church, railroad, street car—in fact, everything of value in those two countries in 1914.

EFFECTS TODAY

These figures are of well-nigh astronomic proportions. Even they, however, do not tell the whole story. Had the march of progress toward a brighter and a happier day not been first slowed down and then halted, mankind would certainly have been spared a large part of the suffering which it is now called upon to endure. If the world is to return to the path of progress it must be given leadership which is not only national but international. It must find minds and voices which can see the whole world and its problems and not merely those of one neighborhood, since important problems which are purely national have almost ceased to exist.

COSTLY MUSIC

Some actors were put to death in Russia for singing a song "Down with the Revolution". Twenty-two others were imprisoned for life. Death is the penalty for spying, printing and distributing literature against the government, deliberately neglecting duties to the government, and "insubordination by the kulaks." In Russia, if you want to work off your rage against life and the times go out and kill someone. It will only cost you ten years in jail. But if you cherish your Adam's Apple don't sing or speak against the government.

THE LIVING AND THE DEAD

ON ARMISTICE DAY we will think again of the unforgettable dead. These men had happy prospects—which they sacrificed that democracy might live.

We will think also of those who still battle for existence in our hospitals.

For the former we can do nothing. For the latter we can co-operate with any endeavor that will add to their comfort.

But the appreciation of a grateful nation should not end with thoughts of the dead and maimed. In hamlet, village and city are the living millions who went forth to meet the foe. Some volunteered their services. Others were told to go. But the definite fact is that they put their bodies between their homeland and the horrors of war. They faced and felt those horrors.

On Armistice Day a nation pauses and, without personally embarrassing them, makes recognition of the fact that the living veterans of war stood ready to give their all to keep a scourge from blighting the civilized world.

ARMAMENTS MEAN TAXATION

NATIONS WILL inevitably meet again for the reduction of armaments—because no nation wants to fight a stronger power. Each wants to be strong enough that others will not dare to attack. . . . On the other hand all of them hope for an agreement so that unlimited armaments shall not demand too much of the taxpayer's money. It is conceivable that so much money might be called for in taxes as to cut down on the Sunday afternoon automobile race—which is so successfully and pleasurably killing off the human institution.

PROVINCE TO PAY THE DOCTOR

THE PROVINCIAL MINISTER of health and public welfare has let it be known that, in a small area of Manitoba, an experiment that has long been discussed in many countries will be tried out. Persons who are ill will call the doctor as they always have but instead of billing them he will send his bill to proper municipal or provincial authorities. The same will apply to bills for drugs and hospital care.

In this age of compulsory living standards, why shouldn't the state make sure that lack of funds constitutes no barrier to the best of health?

A discussion in The Rotarian for November is of especial interest. The discussion is called "A Debate on a Timely Question: Who Shall Pay the Doctor?" An economist, William Truitt Foster says, "Can we not find a way to use our hospitals . . . dentists . . . technicians . . . Many now spend a large part of their time waiting for patients who don't come."

On the other hand Dr. Morris Fishbein, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, says: "When a doctor knows that his reward depends on satisfaction of the patient, that patient is bound to receive the most that the doctor can give him."

The "small area" experiment in Manitoba will be watched with interest. If it is successful it will be inaugurated through the province. It is inconceivable that doctors will not give their best for love of humanity and the profession, so long as the necessary pay is assured.

FOR PEACE, AT HOME AND ABROAD

Lest We Forget

Lest we forget that war's a curse,
Lord, open Thou our eyes,
That we may note its cruelty,
Its unholy enterprise.

Lest we forget that war is sin,
Lord, open Thou our minds,
To note the greed that causeth it,
And blots out all that's kind.

Lest we forget that men have died
For Freedom's cause and Peace,
Lord, fill our hearts with fervent prayer
That War and Conflict cease.

HIGHEST RELIEF COST IN ONTARIO

With a per capita cost of $11.15, Mimico has the highest individual relief cost in the province of Ontario, according to Deputy Reeve W. A. Edwards. The conclusion was drawn from the report of the recent meeting of Ontario municipalities, submitted by the mayor.

FIRE TRUCK IS STOLEN

Fire Chief Daniel Atwood of Pelham, N. H., on arriving at the town fire house recently, found that a new combination hook and ladder motor truck had been stolen during the night.

Within a few minutes of the astounding discovery, however, Atwood was advised by the chief of police of Hampton Falls, a neighboring town, that the truck had been found there abandoned by two men when the gas supply became exhausted. Hampton Falls is about 25 miles from Pelham.

HEAVY BURDEN

The major objection to further borrowing by cities and villages is the burden of debt charges that necessarily falls on the taxpayers where the loans do not bring in additional net revenue sufficient to meet the interest and bond payments. Where a loan will be completely self-liquidating from the start, the taxpayers will have no additional burden to bear. They may even secure a net financial return over and above the debt charges. But where a loan is not 100% self-liquidating, the taxpayers will have their tax bills increased in one way or another. That fact should be kept in mind and faced squarely before a loan is made.

CIVICS IN ONTARIO SCHOOLS

The Minister of Education in Ontario has announced that a course in Canadian Civics is to be introduced into the schools. Provision for its teaching is being made in the fourth and fifth forms of public and separate schools and in the lower school grades of high, vocational and continuation schools. With the course will go a reader sketching development of the present Government structure at Ottawa, in the provinces and in the municipalities, setting forth the beauties of citizenship. . . . A study of Canadian Civics is already included in the Quebec Protestant schools curricula.

500 MILES YEARLY INSTALLATION, PLANNED BY ONTARIO HYDRO

Extension of rural hydro lines at a rate not less than 500 miles a year is the aim of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Chairman T. Stewart Lyon announced during an address that featured a service commemorating the birth date of the late Sir Adam Beck.

He said the Commission hopes to make a reduction in service charges that will "materially lessen the general and justifiable objection to the present service charge in rural Ontario."

Within the last nine months 406 miles of hydro lines have been authorized to serve 2,772 customers and 320 miles have been actually put into operation.

"I think it is quite possible that within 20 years the farm consumers of electrical energy will have increased to 120,000, or practically two-thirds of all the farms in the province. This will mean an average addition to the number of existing customers of almost 5,000 yearly, not an impossible growth."

Ottawa expects to have four candidates for its mayoralty election in December, with His Worship Mayor Nolan seeking another term.

ROBBERS ABANDONED
TRUCK WITH POULTRY

Provincial detectives are investigating an epidemic of chicken thieving, in which several farmers east of Lachute have been victimized.

One morning last week Henri Joly, a farmer well known on Lachute route No. 3, found 40 of his seven-months old chickens had been stolen. The same morning a truck loaded with poultry was seen on the Cote St. Louis road, where it had stalled and two men were endeavoring to start the vehicle. Alderic Godmer, a nearby farmer, discovered soon after the loss of 15 chickens from his hen coop.

The drivers of the truck, realizing their predicament, removed the licence plates and abandoned the machine. The stolen poultry was identified by the farmers who had been robbed. Meanwhile, however, the culprits had made their escape, leaving few clues for detectives to work on.

E. Thibodeau, another resident of the district, had 20 chickens stolen in a similar manner on Wednesday night of last week.

LUXURY SETTINGS FOR MOTOR SHOW

Montreal Show Will

With New York

"The 1936 Montreal Motor Show will be a high-class Exposition through and through", says Mr. T. F. Just, Secretary of the Montreal Automobile Trade Association, Limited. "The setting will be much more luxurious than in the past. Every detail has been given careful attention and no expense will be spared to enhance the appearance of exhibits."

"While decorations are not yet in place", continues Mr. Just, "we can already foresee what the whole effect will be. We have retained the services of an expert decorator."

"The general scheme is red velvet, curtains of yellow and blue and large panels of a brick silk in varied shades. There will be a profusion of flowers surrounded by natural foliage. On every column there will be a broad strip of red velvet bisecting it from the base to the top; from the top of the column green leafage will fall abundantly. All the windows will be draped with curtains of yellow and blue. These will be made of silk artistically decorated or finely embroidered. The colors will vary, some are black with gold drawings, others of a modernistic design with intricate triangles running all the gamut of the rainbow. The various exhibits will be indicated by high posts on top of which may be read the name of the automobile exhibited.

—"Oh, but that isn't normal, is it? I'm not normal, I don't want to be normal"—Come to the one-act play and find out why Lancelot does not want to be normal. United Church hall, Nov. 15.

"Sixteen elevators will be at the disposal of the public in the Sun Life Building", concludes Mr. Just. "These will accommodate visitors, at no time should there be any crowding."

Large cloakrooms and modern rest rooms will also be provided. The next Motor Show will be done on a grand scale and it will compare favorably with the New York Exhibition."

THREE MEN DROWNED IN CREEK NORTH OF BUCKINGHAM

16 feet deep at that point, due to backwater from the power dam at High Falls.

Tracks of the car were noticed early on Sunday and bubbles of oil were seen rising to the surface of the water. At the same time it was reported that the three men were missing and a search of the creek bottom revealed the three victims still in the car. The coroner visited the scene and decided an inquest was not necessary.

Gauthier, Morin and Faubert lived on adjoining farms a short distance from the spot where they met their deaths. All were married and the fathers of large families. Gauthier leaves nine children, Morin, 13, and Faubert, seven.

When the bodies were taken from the creek a large crowd had gathered, including many relatives of the three farmers.

Misses Gladys and Cora Boa, of St. Andrews East, have returned home after spending the past three weeks with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Boa of St. Canut.

Miss Jeannine Lafleur, of St. Laurent College, spent the week-end with her parents. Father Roger Lafleur, of Chambly, also spent Sunday at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter left on Saturday for Ottawa prior to leaving for their home in Winnipeg, Man. They have spent a pleasant visit renewing old acquaintances in Lachute and vicinity.

Miss Vida Fish and her fiancé Mr. Gavin Walker, previous to their marriage which took place quietly on Saturday last, were entertained recently at the following functions: by Mrs. J. R. Charron, a bridge and presentation; Mrs. Mossman Gall, bridge and kitchen shower; Mrs. Albert Hills, bridge and presentation of a silver dish by the Choir of the Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Walker is a member; also a stag dinner and presentation of a clock, by a number of Mr. Walker's friends; and a bridge given by Mrs. F. Brennan for Miss Fish.

Kipling once told of a speaker "afflicted with the magic of the necessary words. He saw, he told, he described the merits of a notable deed in such a fashion that the words became alive and walked up and down in the hearts of all his hearers."

*They died that we might live. They fought their fight
And passed beyond all sorrow and all pain.
But love shall keep their memories ever bright.
Above the graves where their dead selves have lain,
Flowers shall grow and greet the noonday sun
In bloom of beauty. Our Immortal Dead.*

700 Chickens Lost as Farm Building Burns

Lachute fire brigade responded to a call last Thursday evening, fire having broken out in the buildings of Marigold Farm between Lachute and St. Canut. The establishment is a poultry farm operated by J. A. Gordon. A building housing 700 six-weeks-old chicks was ignited by an overheated stove, and was burned to the ground, representing a loss of $500, which is covered by insurance. Firemen were successful in preventing a spread of the fire to other buildings.

Old and Well Known Citizen Called by Death

LATE JAMES CARPENTER

A most energetic and useful life was brought to a close on Thursday morning when Mr. James Carpenter, who had been in the Montreal General Hospital since November 14th., passed peacefully away.

Mr. Carpenter was in his 82nd. year, the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Carpenter, who were early settlers in Canada, having located in Chatham in 1830. He was also the grandson of James Carpenter who fought in the war of 1812 and accompanied the contingent who sailed to reinforce the ranks of Wellington's Army when the battle of Waterloo was won in 1815. In 1885 he moved to Lachute and was employed by the J. C. Wilson Co., with whom he remained over 50 years, deeply interested in his work, devoted and regular in his duties.

In 1880 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Robinson of Cushing, from which union there now survive, six sons, J. Roy and Percy of Montreal, Russell and Theron of Three Rivers, Thayer (B.Sc.) of Halifax, Ivan of Kenogami, and one daughter, Mrs. Norman Holland of Westmount.

His loving and devoted wife also remains to mourn his loss together with three sisters, Mrs. A. Riddell, Lachute Mills; Mrs. Howes, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. S. Smiley, Bangor, Mich.; two brothers, John, of Edmonton, Alta.; and George of Bangor, Mich.

The funeral will take place on Friday at 2.30 in the United Church, thence to the Lachute Cemetery, and will be conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough.

APPRECIATION

Mr. J. A. Gordon of Marigold Farm wishes to thank his many friends and the Lachute Fire Brigade for their appreciated assistance rendered at the recent fire at his farm. He also takes this opportunity of thanking the Cottingham Supply Company for their co-operation and service at all times.

Crummy; Shindy
 The use of "crummy," meaning "cheap," is a natural outcome of its original sense. The dictionary records that "crummy" means "full of crumbs or littered with crumbs." Hence, anything that is "crummy" shows an untidy or neglected appearance. The extension to "cheap," in the sense of "mean poor, disappointing," is a logical step. The old slang term "shindy," meaning "a riotous conflict; a rumpus or a row," has been in use since 1821. "Shindy," first recorded in 1892, is probably a modified form of "shindy," and designates a party somewhat less riotous than a "shindy."—Literary Digest.

Invented the Banjo

The banjo as we know it today is scarcely one hundred years old and is distinctly an American instrument, since it originated among the negroes of the South. They developed it into the five-string or "Dixie" banjo which has been replaced in most dance orchestras by the "tenor" instrument with a shorter neck and but four strings. Original banjos were undoubtedly patterned after primitive instruments of the African west coast negroes. Similar instruments with grass strings are still used on the Guinea coast.—Pathfinder Magazine.

THE BLOSSOM THAT WAS TOO HASTY

A tiny golden dandelion
 Raised its curly head
 Up in Brown November
 Quite near the pansy bed.

The children stared in silence,
 Each eager little face,
 Agog with great excitement
 As to the house they raced.

"Oh mother! It is getting Spring!"
 They cried with one accord,
 "There's a dandelion growing up,
 Right in our front yard."

Won't there be any snow, Mother,
 Or ice, that we may glide
 About upon the pond, Mother,
 And down the steep hill slide?"

"Of course there will, dear children!"
 Their mother said, and smiled,
 "That dandelion bud is just Like an eager, hasty child."

That will not wait for counsel,
 Or do what it is told,
 And Jack Frost's sure to get it,
 Before it's very old.

It's certainly out of season
 For Winter is very near,
 And you will have your skating
 And sliding, never fear."

TENDERS WANTED

Alida suddenly had a very bright thought. She had been sitting in the warm sunny window on the big cushioned seat, playing half-heartedly with her dolls. The sign across on the board fence had given her an idea. "Tenders Wanted"—the very thing! Why had she not thought of it before instead of sulking because her mother had told her rather sadly that they would not be able to go to Uncle Robert's for Armistice Day; they had not been able to afford a licence for the car this year and livery cars were too expensive. Alida had sobbed, but sobbing had not brought any good results. It had only given her a headache and left her with red eyes. But now, headache forgotten, she dashed upstairs to the room where all her treasures were kept, dragged out a large sheet of pasteboard and sat down at the tiny desk which Uncle Robert had given her for her birthday, and started printing at the top of the sheet in large capital letters "Tenders Wanted". That part of it was easy, but it was not so easy to think up just the proper words to put below.

She crossed the room to look at the big sign once more, but there was nothing on it that just suited this case; so she sat down again and, after deep thought, printed in smaller letters "Tenders Wanted, to take a family out to Uncle Robert's at Baysville for Armistice Day", and signed in big letters her own name, "Clara Alida Parks."

Hunting about in Ted's room she found a small hammer and some tacks, and while her mother was busy with the baby slipped out to the front gate and tacked her notice to the post. A great many people saw it—she watched them stop to read it, then, with a smile towards the house, pass on their way. The boys from the public school quite near ran across the road to see what had been put on the post since they had passed by in the morning. Some of them tossed their caps in the air and hooted with laughter. One pair of lads indulged in a rough and tumble wrestling match, which made Alida shiver. She did not like rough people and hoped that they were not fighting about who should take the family to Uncle Robert's.

It was almost noon when the man from next door, who had just moved in about a week before, came into his garden to walk about his lawn with quick nervous steps, which seemed to be a habit of his.

As he turned to go back to the house he noticed Alida's sign. Putting on his glasses he read it over carefully, and after a moment's indecision stepped over the low fence that divided the two lawns and rang their doorbell. Alida's heart jumped, then commenced beating so rapidly that it almost choked her. Running out into the hall she was just in time to hear a very kind voice say "Pardon me, Mrs. Parks, but I am your next door neighbor. I saw your little girl's sign and as I am going to Baysville for the weekend I thought that perhaps she and her family might give me the pleasure of taking them to Uncle Robert's home. If his name is Robert Parks he is an old friend of mine, and I shall be delighted to help his friends in any way that I can."

Alida's mother, knowing nothing of the sign, was surprised and not a little mystified, but invited the gentleman to come in and talk the matter over; any friend of Uncle Robert's was quite welcome in her home.

It took quite a bit of explaining on Alida's part before her mother understood just what it was all about. "Alida, dear," she said, "You were very foolish to do such a thing as that; but of course you did not understand that when people call for tenders for any kind of work, they must have money to pay for it; and I told you this morning, that daddy did not have the money to pay for our trip to Baysville." She spoke very gently because she knew that children should be given the same consideration as grown-ups, and did not believe in scolding them, especially before strangers.

"But Mummie, I have some money in my little bank; wouldn't that do?" asked Alida with eager eyes.

Her mother turned to the stranger, eyes half filled with tears, though her voice was filled with laughter. "The faith and innocence of my little girl must surely excuse her, sir," she said.

"It does, dear lady," he said, "and I think it will prove a blessing to me and mine. We came here knowing no one, because our dear little girl (who is about Alida's age I should judge) had to have hospital treatment and we wanted to be near her. But my preaching station being at Baysville makes it necessary for me to go there every week-end; so as I said before, I shall be delighted to have you all go with me on Saturday; and as for pay if Alida can find time to visit our little Gertrude in the hospital quite often and tell her all about her dollies and the other little folks of this neighborhood, it will be payment with compound interest, as Gertrude is finding the time very long and lonely. Will you do this for me, little Alida?" he questioned, smiling down into her eager eyes.

"Oh mummie, may I?" she asked, eagerly turning to her mother.

"You may, child, and let us hope that all your wee mistakes turn out as well as this one has done."

Uncle Robert laughed at Alida and teased her about her "business ability", a phrase which she did not understand. But she enjoyed her visit so much, and her new friendship with little Gertrude, that she thinks that Tenders Wanted are two rather wonderful words.

Next story—Peter Pumpkin.

Moose Largest Land

Mammal; Naturally Shy

The moose is the largest of our land mammals. His curious head, with its large, odd nose, the broad, palmated antlers, and the pendant "bell" below the throat, all combine to make him seem like a story-book animal. Because of his long legs he is taller than a horse, says Nature Magazine. Though large and heavy, he is able to travel almost noiselessly through his northern home in the thickets of alder, birch, aspen, along the edges of slow-moving streams, and shallow lakes.

He is fond of water plants, leaf, stem and root. These delicacies he seeks at night during the season when his antlers are growing and the calves are young. He is sometimes completely covered by water when he reaches for food at the bottom. He is naturally a shy creature until he is ready to seek his mate; then his trumpeting call means challenge to all intruders, and, in his conflicts, he uses his strong forefeet as well as his heavy antlers. He is found in the forest areas of northern North America as far south as Maine, Minnesota and Wyoming, and under protection he may continue to occupy these areas for many years in the future.

TOKYO'S KINDNESS TO ANIMALS WEEK

Interesting features of a "Be Kind to Animals" week in Tokyo, Japan, included collection of money on a street corner by a famous dog, Tania, a Kindness to Horses meeting, a Day for Draught Animals, when over a thousand Boy Scouts treated the animals to carrots and water, and a parade of children and their pets. In preparing for the week Scouts and school girls distributed many thousands leaflets.

A COUNTRY WHERE NO ONE WANTS

Speaking of the world tour of Lord Baden-Powell and herself which recently concluded with their visit to Canada, Lady Baden-Powell mentioned their stay in Java, and added: "I might say there isn't a poor person in all of Java. Of course the native diet is frugal—a handful of rice and a couple of bananas is sufficient each day. But we could learn a lot from the attitude of these Eastern people. Their kindness, their friendly spirit and their goodness shine from their eyes."

LEADERS OF CRIPPLED BOYS TO CONFER

The first conference of leaders of physically and mentally handicapped Wolf Cub and Boy Scout units in children's hospitals and sanitariums will be held at Queen Mary's Hospital, Carshalton, Surrey, in November. The remarkable success of Scout training for handicapped boys has caused a rapid development of this branch of the Scout Movement, notably throughout the British Empire.

A BUSY RESCUER

Two rescues from drowning within a half hour was the feat of a 15 year old Scout, Patrol Leader Jack Holmes of Blackpool, England. For the first rescue Holmes leaped from a breakwater and swam some distance through a rough sea to bring in an unconscious woman bather. While resting with a companion there came a cry for help from an exhausted man, and the Scout, with his chum, again plunged in, and brought the man ashore. The unusual rescue feat was recognized by the award of the Scout Silver Cross.

SKOODAWABSKOOKSIS!

An unusual love poem has been published in New Brunswick, where there are many quaint names. Professor de Mille decided to introduce some of the unusual names into a poem, two verses of which run as follows:—

Sweet maiden of Passamaquoddy,
 Shall we seek for communion of souls,
 Where the deep Mississippi meanders,
 Or the distant Saskatchewan rolls?
 Ah, no! in New Brunswick we'll find it—
 A sweetly sequestered nook—
 Where the sweet gliding Skoodawabskooks
 Unites with the Skoodawabskook.

HOW DOES HE KNOW IT'S BREAKFAST

Our dog is not fed from the table, except perhaps a very occasional tid bit, and if he is in the house usually lies under the buffet at meal-time. He used to choose the place where he would be most in the way when the table waiting was being done, so after many scoldings and steppings-on he has retreated out of the way.—Except at breakfast time and he is always on hand then. He never pays any attention to the rest of the family but the minute I sit down he parks by my chair. He likes toast crusts and I don't. So I feed him my crusts. If the toast is not very crusty and Con does not think he is getting his share he will give my arm a gentle nudge with his nose, as much as to say, "it is my turn". If that does not work he puts his head on my knee and looks up at me soulfully. That is too much for me and if there are no crusts I just have to give him some of my toast. What I can't understand is how he knows the difference between breakfast and the other meals, for he never makes a mistake.

ROUTINE EXAMINATIONS FOR CANCER

What a saving could be made both in lives and money if there were a free examination for women over forty. Unfortunately cancer does not warn with pain and it can and frequently does develop with the patient having no suspicion of its onslaught. Time is the most essential factor in the cure, so that if women had a routine examination every six months the trouble would be discovered in time to effect a cure. To pay for these examinations would cost the country considerable money but it would probably cost less than the tremendous amount paid for hospitalization at the present time. You may say, "Why do women not pay for their own?" Some do but not nearly enough. Because women being what they are will not spend money on themselves when there is no evidence of necessity. If any other member of the family required an examination every six months, the mother would see that they had it, but when it is for herself she just lets it go and takes a chance. Not considering the saving in lives but merely the money saving, I am convinced that it would be a paying proposition to insist on proper medical examinations. We have not become educated yet in preferring to spend money on prevention rather than cure. In the meantime as the state is not doing it for you, you women over forty look after yourselves and have that examination every six months.

LIGHT READING FOR THE SICK

By light reading I mean the weight of the book a factor in kind of material that is in it. A sick person will find the actual weight of the book a factor in the amount of reading possible. So if you are taking a magazine or a book to a sick friend pick one that is light and not unwieldy in size. We have a series of books that we call our hospital books. It is several volumes of short stories. The books are light in weight and small in size. We seldom lend them without a comment being made on the ease of reading. The strength of a sick person should be saved in every possible way.

PUMPKIN PIE

Most women use canned pumpkin these days as it is so much less work and is no more expensive if you have to buy your pumpkin anyhow. A pumpkin pie should be eaten while fresh as it gets soggy if it has to stand, so for that reason I make my pies as I need them. This filling will keep for several days if put in a bottle and kept in a cool place.

- 1 can pumpkin
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs slightly beaten
- 2 cups milk (last)

Mix ingredients in order given and pour into uncooked pie shells. Bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees for 10 minutes and then reduce the heat to 325 degrees for 30 minutes.

SQUASH PIE

- 1 cup cooked, mashed squash
- 1 cup milk
- 3/4 cup brown sugar
- 2 eggs slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix squash, sugar and spice, add eggs and milk and blend thoroughly. Pour into an uncooked pie shell and bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 degrees for 30 minutes. When squash is being prepared for a vegetable, it is convenient to take out a cup of it before seasoning and use it the next day for pie.

Father (who has helped his son with his home work)—What did the teacher say when you showed her the work?
Johnny—She said I was getting more stupid every day.

MOTHERS AND WIDOWS TO SET WREATH ON CENOTAPH

A gesture of homage to the bereaved mothers and widows of Canada will be made at the national Remembrance Day ceremony in Ottawa when, immediately following the depositing of a wreath on the cenotaph by the Governor-General, a similar token will be placed by a woman bereft of either son or husband in the Great War. The suggestion that this be made part of the ceremony was urged upon the national committee by Prime Minister MacKenzie King, and was adopted.

Usually the programme has provided for the depositing of a wreath by the Prime Minister to follow that of the Governor-General. Mr. King, however, expressed the wish that between the tribute offered by the representative of the Sovereign and that of the head of the State, recognition be accorded to the sacrifice made by the mothers and widows of Canada's dead.

Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir are expected to be present at the national observance, which is conducted by the war veterans of the capital under the direction of the Canadian Legion.

Stork Tale Condemned by Nursing Instructor

The old "stork" fairy tale about the way babies come into the world doesn't deserve consideration nowadays, says Miss Mary Ella Chayer, instructor in nursing education, Columbia University.

Speaking at a meeting of school nurses, Miss Chayer said: "It is unfortunate that we have so insulted the intelligence and credulity of children. Above all, we must respect the child's intelligence."

"We have expected him to understand and to believe that an indeterminate bird appears in the night and drops a bundle down a chimney; or that the doctor keeps in his bag babies ready to be delivered to homes. We need a better understanding of child life and we need to take advantage of this knowledge in giving greater meaning to that life."

Noting the spirit of inquiry in the child, Miss Chayer said: "We can, if we will, make romance out of the commonplace. This is not done by weaving fantastic fairy tales. There is no romance to be compared with the romance of science in firing the imagination of youth."

First Musical Art Forms in 1100, Writer Relates

Lacking concrete materials, music lagged behind the other fine arts until 1100, when the same spirit that was stimulating architecture began pervading music. Construction of definite musical art forms resulted. Music became measured, and the multiplicity of details which grew up showed definite proportions and relations each to each, says Lynne B. Greene, in the Kansas City Times.

A monk of St. Amands, Hucbald, is responsible for the staff in musical notation. This invention made a remarkable change and paved the way for part-music not heretofore used.

This system of harmonies Hucbald called organum, for they were played upon a large instrument of that name, unknown since the fall of Rome. In these harmonies a melody was supported by a second voice singing a third above or a fifth below.

In the fifteenth century musical composition in its present form began, and early in the eighteenth century composers became more numerous, many of whose names are household words today. Music, unlike painting and sculpture, scarcely can be said to be national in its schools. The great musicians belong to the world, and their compositions are familiar.

We are given a higher psychic that responds to the highest, truest and most beautiful in life. Music is one of the principal means through which nature is expressed.

Develop the Habit of "Clipping"

The magazines have so many interesting and informative articles which we might like to keep for future reference but seldom do, as they are so bulky, and then it is difficult to go through a pile of magazines and find the particular one you want. It is a good idea to cut out the article you want, and keep it in a flat manilla folder which can be bought for a trifle. Have several of these folders and use them for the different things in which you are interested. Often the newspapers have information you would like to keep. If you acquire the habit of clipping you will soon build up a fund of desirable information. Be sure and keep one for recipes which you might like to try. So often these are lost completely, or are stuck some place out of sight and cannot be found when required. If they are kept in the same place you will know just where to get them. The manilla folder is the easiest way of keeping clippings for practical purposes in the home.

Adele Astaire Speaks up On Marriage and Divorce

Contradicting persistent rumors that she plans to divorce her titled husband and return to the American stage, Adele Astaire, now Lady Cavendish, comes out with an article "I'm Getting What I Want Out of Life", in the November Cosmopolitan.

She discusses love, divorce, and the British and American attitude toward casual affairs, and gives English husbands a big hand.

"Divorce is still rare enough in England to be unusual", the sister and former dancing partner of Fred Astaire declares. "If a husband and wife can't get on in married life they make the best of a bad job, live under the same roof and do as they please. Love and its manifestations are discussed less in England than elsewhere. I think the English are really secretly a little ashamed, or perhaps shy, of love. But I am beginning to suspect that a great deal of love-making goes on, especially in the country. It is not a platonic race—far from it. But an affair is conducted with quiet decency, and there is no rush to the divorce court." She finds the British husband charming and companionable, even though he has not been trained to bestow sable coats and diamond bracelets on his wife.

YOUR CLOTHES

Drapery is the theme of winter's new fashion for the evening, advises Helen Koues, Fashion Director of Good House-keeping.

Drapery arranged in a variety of different ways. Sometimes it's in front, sometimes in back, sometimes in bodice or skirt, or both. And fabrics expressing this change lend themselves to the arrangements. Rich and supple laces in gold or silver, heavy sheers, chiffons, soft velvets, silk crepes, satins—all take to the matter of shirring and puckering, soft fullness, floating panels, or pleating. And when it comes to color, white is indescribably lovely in draped gowns. Red is big news, too. Deep rich greens, all shades of purple and of blue, black and still more black.

WOULD BE AN AUTHOR (Neal O'Hara in Boston Post)

A firm of Boston publishers received this letter from a married woman the other day: "Dear sirs—I wish to become an author. If you have any blank paper which is of no benefit to you, but which I can use in practice writing, greatly will I appreciate your sending me a supply. Thanking you in advance," etc.

The Week's Fashion News

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman
By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

If you'll let "Fashion Scribe" have any say in the matter, you'll find that being out of Montreal does not mean being out of touch. The end of her pencil is simply quivering with news about fashion happenings... to tell you what's being worn, what shows indication of being worn, even what the newest ideas are in home furnishings and kitchen gadgets.

Montreal, November 2.—You probably think of the perfect wardrobe and Paris in one breath. Most people do. Naturally, then, you would be impressed, as I was yesterday, by a display of evening dresses in a corner window of a big department store on St. Catherine St. The display card mentioned that they were all copies of Paris original models. They had that certain something of originality that you expect from a Paris frock. Some were in glowing metal cloth, some had a wealth of shirring up the front. There were several white gowns... White is right for a dramatic entrance... and the debutantes are showing that they know this important fact. With the sponsorship of these gay young society leaders, you may be sure that White will be a fashion leader under bright lights.

It would take a person with nerves of steel and a will of iron to "pass up" the new candlestick bedspreads you see in the store windows. Two designs that reduced me to a jelly-like weakness (so that I soon find myself buying them both) were in a recent display. One was entirely in white, with thick, luxurious tufts regularly dotting its entire surface. The other was white with applique of deep red fabric in wide bands, with white embroidery in leaf pattern encroaching on the red. Candlestick is now being used in modern as well as Colonial settings.

This is certainly an era in which to be a dog. Dogs are minus worries. They have sweaters, special basket-homes, cunning blanket-coats... they even have rubber playthings shaped like bones. We saw a pampered pup the other day all done up in a coat with a zipper closing the length of its back. We didn't wonder that it wore a rather supercilious expression.

Perhaps some of my readers play badminton. They might be glad to know about the badminton socks with Las-tex tops that are such a help when you are playing an extra active game. There's nothing more score-wracking than to have the tops of one's socks go flap-flap against one's ankles just when every ounce of attention should be on one's racquet-wielding.

Some people have a flair for looking their best that amounts to genius. I asked one such person how she did it the other day. "I believe in the UP theory", she answered. "I keep my hair brushed up, pluck the underside of my eyebrows so the ends arch slightly up, massage my face creams with an up motion, keep the corners of my mouth turned up, never wear anything that has a sag". She told me that the dress she had on was a Basic Dress... that is, it was simply made, but had real distinction of cut, and could be worn on innumerable occasions. In the morning, it wore velvet accessories. In the afternoon it had a metallic braid girdle and matching bow at neckline. At a cocktail date it took these off and added twin rhinestone clips at each side of the neckline and a suede belt studded all around with colored stones.

Summer Residence Burned Near Morin Heights

Fire destroyed a summer camp belonging to Mrs. A. Kenny, of Montreal, at Lake Echo near Morin Heights early Sunday morning. It was reported that the cottage had been rented to two hunters. The structure was completely destroyed before aid could be summoned. No information as to the cause of the fire was given.

Tuba, Great Bass Horn, Harsh, Very Effective

The modern tuba exists in many sizes. There are six of these—soprano, alto, tenor, baritone, bass and contrabass. The smaller members of this family are not found in the orchestra, but take part in military bands, especially in France, under the name of saxhorns, notes a writer in the Washington Post.

The bass tuba, or bombardon, is employed in the symphony orchestra. It consists of a rather wide tapering brass tube, curved in a fairly short and rounded oblong and provided with a deep-cupped mouthpiece. It has the usual pistons, or valves, but is provided with an extra one that lowers the pitch. The four pistons thus enable the player to produce a scale of an octave below any given open tone on the instrument.

The bass tuba can give the lowest E flat on the piano. Its deeper tones are full, and somewhat forcible, almost brutal, in quality. Its compass extends upward about two and a half octaves. Wagner gave an impetus to the use of tubas, calling for five in his "Nibelung Ring."

The tuba has not the smooth quality of the trombone, but its gruff harshness can be made very effective.

Curfew Still Rung

Curfew is still rung at many places throughout England, among which should be mentioned Hallowham, in Sussex, where it is said, the practice has been carried on without a break since the time of the Conqueror. The bells of the ancient church of St. Helen's Worcester, also ring the curfew, and it is interesting to note that the peal of eight bells is inscribed with titles and verses descriptive of the battles and achievements of Marlborough and other commanders in the reign of Queen Anne. One of these bells was in olden days rung between mid-day and one p. m. on Christmas day, and earned the name of the "Pie Bell," while a similar bell rung at St. Martin's, Worcester, was called the "Plum Pudding Bell."

The Word "Slave"

Apparently the word "slave" was not applied to the African negroes imported for servants and sold, until many years after the practice originated in America. It was a common custom for white persons to be brought to America either as prisoners or emigrants and their services were sold for a varying term, either to fulfill their sentences or to pay for their transportation. For many years it appears that the status of the African was not greatly different from that of white servants and both were called by the latter term. The transition from servitude to slavery was made when the servitude became hereditary and descended to the offspring of the original servants.

When Guy Wagner was arrested in Rome, N. Y., the other day and fined $10 for speeding, he told the officers "Well, we're both working for the same thing." He was en route to make a speech on Safety.

Ancient Dura or Syria Ruins Date to 280 B. C.

The ancient ruins of Dura in what is now Syria was the outlying post of Graeco-Roman civilization and existed from about 280 B. C. to about 256 A. D. It was first a Macedonian colony of Alexander's general, Nicanor, and received its Greek culture on a basis of Semitic population attracted from the desert to the security of its walls. It was the connecting link in the caravan trade that wound up the Euphrates valley from Parthia and the east to the Mediterranean. After 150 years as a Macedonian city, Dura was taken over by the Parthians, the powerful rivals of the Romans; was later seized by the Romans and incorporated in the Roman empire by Marcus Aurelius. It finally fell under the advance of the New Persia of the Sassanians, and then was abandoned to the sands of the desert. It had already endured nearly 600 years, and when Julian the Apostate passed its ruins, beneath them lay records of five civilizations.

Dura was a melting pot of religions. Babylonian, Syrian, Persian, Arabian, Greek, Roman and Christian religious edifices were built in the city and each season of excavation brings to light many valuable additions to the knowledge of these ancient religions and civilization.—New York Herald Tribune.

Cracking of Oil

The cracking of oil is said to have been discovered by a refinery workman who day-dreamed on the job and let the still get too hot and build up too much pressure. How this careless person escaped being blasted into the next world is not told by the legend. As a matter of fact, the first successful cracking process was patented by Doctor Burton of Standard Oil about 1912. Cracking consists of heating the heavier fractions of oil under high pressure.

Protests Legislation on Deer Hunting

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor, The Watchman

Since the present legislation denying the privilege of hunting deer with dogs came in force, there has been a noticeable decrease in the number of hunter-tourists and also in members of hunting clubs going up to the Quebec woods in the Fall for their annual hunt; more so this year since further legislation changing the season to September and October which, I am sure everyone will agree, should at least read October and November.

The trek of the hunters is, to the settlers of the game districts of Quebec, what the Summer Tourists are to the people along much used highways, namely, a source of profit. The hotel-keepers, merchants, and settlers of the North look on the hunting season as a sort of second harvest, a source of ready money. Any legislation which will increase the number of out-of-province hunters will help the unemployment situation.

I know of about forty members of Quebec hunting clubs, members of only five clubs, who have been in the habit of spending from two weeks to a month in the Northland during the hunting season—all living outside of the Province—who will either quit hunting deer altogether if dogging is not allowed, or will make their hunt in Ontario where dogging is allowed.

If this is the general feeling of club members, the loss to the people of the north country will be large this year; in addition there will be a steady decrease in the game rentals, a profitable source of revenue for the Provincial Government.

The number of deer killed by hunters, even with dogs, is small as compared with the wastage in other ways.

The Government have leased preserves to game clubs for a term of years; the members of these clubs, acting on the assumption that the conditions existing when the leases were taken would be maintained, have spent considerable money in improvements and equipment, and they feel they have a grievance, and that the money they have spent will be a loss.

The hunting fraternity is one which the Government should encourage to visit Quebec annually. And I am voicing the opinion of that rather large fraternity—that the Government would be well advised to repeal legislation prohibiting the use of dogs for hunting deer and make it a buck law.

—Enthusiast.

Editor's Note — Concerning the hunting of deer in this province, a Department of the Interior bulletin gives the following information:

Quebec's laws governing hunting are generous despite certain necessary restrictions. Devotees of deer hunting this year may pursue their quarry from September 1 to October 31, except in the counties forming the southern zone of the province, where deer hunting is allowed only from October 1 to November 30. Moose may be hunted from September 10 to November 30 in the counties situated north of the St. Lawrence. South of the river, the moose season opened on September 20 and ends on November 30.

All Ranks and Classes in Celebration of Armistice Anniversary at Lachute

FITTING SERVICE IN AUDITORIUM AND MEMORIAL PARK

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS JOINED IN ASSEMBLY AT CENOTAPH

The splendid turn-out of citizens at the annual Remembrance Day service, held in Lachute Auditorium on Monday, bore evidence that the observance of this auspicious day will not be allowed to die out in Lachute.

This is the 17th. anniversary of Armistice, and the gathering was to honor the memory of those who lost their lives in the Great War; this purpose was briefly stressed by Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason, who officiated as chairman. Rev. W. LeCras led the people in prayer and scripture reading. Following the two minutes' silence all joined heartily in the singing of "O Canada." An inspiring address was delivered by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, in which were depicted the stupendous costs in money and man-power which had fallen to the opposing nations in that great struggle. The urge was advanced that we must strive to allay disharmonies, and work unitedly for the furtherance of peace.

Following the singing of Onward Christian Soldiers, an adjournment was made to the Memorial Park, where the pupils of Lachute High School surrounded the cenotaph. Here they were addressed by Principal Clifton L. Hall, who explained the purpose for which they were gathered, the sacrifices made and the reverence they should feel to those who had paid the supreme sacrifice in order that they might be saved from the tyranny of oppression.

Wreaths were then deposited by Scouts Harry Carpenter and George Leggett; by Mrs. Kuhring, Mrs. Ardill and Mrs. Smilie, representing the County Women's Institutes; and by Miss L. Hampton on behalf of the Ladies' Guild of St. Simon's Church.

Remembrance Day Service at St. Andrews

(By Our St. Andrews Correspondent)

A special Remembrance Day Service was held in Christ Church, St. Andrews, on Monday evening, Nov. 11th. It was conducted by Rural Dean Booy, who prefaced his sermon by reading the following poem by A. M. Hodgson, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neve of St. Andrews East—

"TWO MINUTES' SILENCE"

The hurrying crowds swept swiftly by,
The street cars rattled on;
With grinding brakes the autos pushed
Their worrying way along.

But, suddenly, as church bells tolled,
The cannon's voice was heard;
Then everything that moved stood still
And "Silence!" was the word.

As smiling lips became straight lines,
And laughing voices sighed,
All heads were bowed in deep respect
For soldiers who had died.

—A. M. Hodgson.
(in the Montreal Star)

Dean Booy preached a very eloquent and appropriate sermon, from the text—"For I came not to judge the world, but to save the world."—St. John 12, 47.

During the special ritual for the day the names were read of the men from this parish who gave their lives for their country in the Great War.

Among the hymns sung were

FORGOTTEN DYNAMITE EXPLODED IN LAURENTIAN BOAT HOUSE

When half a stick of dynamite, which had been left in a boat-house on a lake 48 miles north of Thurso, exploded early Tuesday morning, the boat-house was destroyed. No one was injured, according to information received. The boat-house belonged to the Singer Sewing Machine Company. At first, news was received that the wood-working plant of the company at Thurso had been dynamited. The news filtered to Montreal and to the Provincial Detective Headquarters, with the result that detectives were sent out to investigate.

SUDDEN PASSING OF A RESPECTED CITIZEN, RICHARD EVANS

LIVED MANY YEARS IN THE WEST

The death of Richard G. Evans occurred on Tuesday, Nov. 12th., at his home in Lachute, after a very brief illness. The late Mr. Evans was born at Dunany, Que., son of the late John Evans and Margaret Drysdale.

At an early age, Mr. Evans went West to Winnipeg, where he held the position of general foreman in the lumber establishment of Brown & Rutherford for many years, and where he was held in highest esteem.

Mr. Evans' sudden passing will be a great shock to his many friends in Winnipeg and the West. He was an Oddfellow and prominent in curling circles in Winnipeg.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans (formerly H. Margaret Scott, daughter of Mr. Matthew Scott of Lachute) took up residence here five years ago. Mr. Evans is survived by his widow; his sudden death is mourned also by a wide circle of friends. In this community he was regarded as a genial friend and townsman, among his numerous associates.

The funeral was held this (Thursday) afternoon from his late residence in the East Ward, conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough; interment followed at the Lachute Cemetery.

Remembrance Day Observance in Community of Grenville

On Saturday last St. Matthew's W.A. held their annual Armistice Supper in the Masonic Hall at Grenville. The hall was tastefully decorated with poppies and flags, the waitresses wearing red caps and aprons. The event was a much greater success than usual. After the supper dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

On Sunday morning appropriate hymns were sung at St. Matthew's and the Rector, Rev. K. N. Brueton, preached on the motives that had led the soldiers to enlist. The Church was decorated with poppy wreaths, and after the service one wreath was placed on the grave of a returned soldier, Pte. Hawkin, and another on the wooden cross of Pte. Harvison, who was buried in France.

The service was the first since the recently repaired chancel window was replaced.

TRUCK DRIVER HURT AT RAILWAY CROSSING

William Poulin, a truck driver of Lachute Mills, was seriously injured on Saturday last, when the Government truck he was driving was struck by a train at the C.N.R. crossing near St. Philippe. The vehicle was demolished. Poulin was brought to Lachute and received medical treatment; his injuries were reported to be serious.

"The Reclamation of Sandy Hills"

FROM "THE WATCHMAN" OF 25 YEARS AGO

November 11, 1910—

What for nearly half a century has been known as the Sandy Hills, near this town, will shortly receive attention of Government forestry experts. This tract of land was once one of the best farming places of the neighborhood, but owing to ignorance the crop cultivated for years was one that would give the best returns for the least outlay, of time and labor, which resulted in impoverishment of the soil.

Fences have been erected time and again, only to be covered completely by drifting sand, until finally no attempt was made to define boundaries. By degrees more and more of the adjoining land became useless.

Some years ago the Government sent some spruce and tamarac seedlings in the hope that they would take hold in the soil, but these efforts were not followed up.

The present representative for Argenteuil, Mr. John Hay, himself a practical farmer, has now given this matter consideration. Adjoining property holders were called to confer with a Government expert, who made them an offer of $1.00 per acre for the land in question, to be held by the Government for ten or more years or until the reclamation had been effected, when the proprietors would have the option of purchasing back at the actual cost of reclamation.

The School of Forestry is the body entrusted with the work, and they will proceed to prepare the soil for the reception of plants, and it is expected that within a few years this barren waste will be a spot of fertile beauty.

OMISSIONS FROM HONOR ROLL

Attention of the Watchman is drawn to a regrettable omission in the Honor Roll of fallen soldiers from this county, published last week. For some undiscerned reason (these names were re-published as they appeared last year—and, as we believed, taken direct from the county memorial monument) the names of fallen men from Grenville Village were not added to this list—a circumstance which the Editor deeply regrets. The soldiers in question should have appeared thus—Village of Grenville, W. S. Burns, G. Lloyd.

BOY KILLED BY TRUCK AT ST. ANDREWS

Swift and unexpected tragedy blotted out a young life on the streets of St. Andrews East last Saturday, when young Leo Daoust, 12 years of age, was coasting down a hill on his bicycle, towards the main street. Emerging onto the thoroughfare, he was struck by a truck, which he failed to notice. He was fatally injured, death occurring shortly after the accident.

Dr. J. H. Mason, coroner for this district, held an inquest, and a verdict of Accidental Death was returned.

Lower Interest Charges on Govt. Loans. U. S. Trade Agreements May Mean Cheaper Merchandise

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, November 12.—The federal treasury was able to borrow $75,000,000 last week at remarkably low interest rates. The average reader is inclined to dismiss these financial announcements with a shrug of the shoulder, but as a matter of fact every taxpayer—and who isn't?—is affected by these transactions. The government borrowed $55,000,000 for 20 years at a cost of just over three per cent a year. At the depth of the depression it would have been necessary to pay five per cent. Thus, on this one transaction alone, there is an annual saving of $1,100,000. Not much, perhaps, measured alongside the total expenditure. But even in the most prosperous times a million dollars a year is a worthwhile saving for the national government. We federal taxpayers are spending nearly $200,000,000 a year in interest on borrowed money, and we are keenly interested in lower interest rates. If all the federal and railway bonds could be refunded at three per cent, the saving would take care of the whole federal cost of unemployment relief. The interest on money borrowed in the past costs more every year—far more—than the whole cost of all federal government services, all civil servants' salaries. If Hon. Charles Dunning can save this country even fifteen or twenty millions a year by re-funding operations, it will be a useful step towards a balanced budget and lower taxes in the early future.

REGRETS OVER INJURY TO GUY TOMBS IN AUTO MISHAP

Regrets are expressed here over the injuries sustained by Mr. Guy Tombs of Montreal, in an automobile accident near Caughnawaga late on Monday. Mr. Tombs is popularly known in these parts, and only a week ago last Sunday was heard in the Lachute United Church pulpit.

BETTER STREET LIGHTING DESERVES ATTENTION OF AUTHORITIES

ONE OF TOWN'S MOST IMMEDIATE NEEDS

The action of Lachute Town Council in studying the lighting requirements of this town is both timely and commendable. For a long time now, it has been a source of argument. At present there are 14 lamps on Main Street (centre town)—which are entirely inadequate to give safe and proper illumination. While there are some who oppose the move of replacing the old equipment with high powered mercury vapor lamps, the effect of which has been demonstrated for some time on two of the light standards, the majority of citizens will welcome the change and are pleased with the council's progressive spirit in thus bringing the town up-to-date.

Thanks to the Provincial Government who undertook the work of re-paving, which has proved an undoubted boon even though not entirely completed, the least the town can do is to see that Main Street is well lighted—and the sooner the better.

In general appreciation, as well as from an advertising point of view, it is generally conceded the additional expense will bring returns far in excess of the monetary outlay.

Medical Doctor Tells Needs of Mission Field in Canadian West

ENLIGHTENING ADDRESS TO WOMEN OF CUSHING

By Our Cushing Correspondent

A very interesting Thanksgiving meeting of Cushing W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. A. Graham on Tuesday afternoon, with Dr. Margaret Owens of Battle River District, Alberta, as guest speaker. Dr. Owens is a medical doctor and a keen observer of the needs of the people she ministers to in her role as government doctor of a clinic covering a circuit of a great many miles, and she claims that one of the greatest needs is to maintain the morale of the people. "Providing them with all they need is destroying that... Let them," says Dr. Owens, "make up the goods for themselves. Send them print, flannellette and old heavy woolen underwear to make over for their children. They can do it and love to do it." There are five sewing machines in the district covered by Dr. Owens and her staff, and when a wo-

VISITING DELEGATES AT UNITED CHURCH MEN'S SUPPER MEETING

Seldom has a local audience heard more appealing speakers than those who addressed the United Church men's supper meeting in Lachute last Thursday. Dr. Lloyd Smith of Dominion Douglas Church, Montreal, and Mr. Goodwin, a stalwart of his congregation, brought a message which was, in its literal sense, an appeal—but one which the gathering found acceptable, in the clearer understanding it afforded on administration of United Church missions.

The supper was attended by gentlemen from Lachute, Cushing, Brownsburg, Shawbridge and St. Andrews divisions to the number of nearly 100. Ladies of the W.M.S. served a splendid supper at four long tables in the basement. The assembly was under chairmanship of Rev. W. B. Rosborough and a sociable spirit prevailed. Community singing was enjoyed following the repast, Mr. Chas. Duncan leading, while Miss Ruth Todd and Mrs. W. J. Deacon accompanied at the piano. Mr. J. S. Giles also favoured with an impressive vocal solo.

To Go to Bed

"To go to bed" can mean only one thing. There is no possibility of mistaking one's meaning who says, "I went to bed." "To retire," used intransitively, may mean nine different things, including withdrawal from business, retreating from the enemy, leaving the field in cricket, and sinking out of sight. Unless the context designates the meaning, the bald statement, "I retired," is, therefore, highly ambiguous. "To retire," meaning "to go to bed," is generally regarded as an effort on the part of the speaker to be grandiloquent. It is not incorrect to use the verb in that sense, but the best writers and speakers favor the less sounding "I went to bed."—Literary Digest.

Wood for Many Uses

Wood in some form and of many kinds is so intimately associated with our everyday lives that its presence is often accepted without thought of the degree of service it renders. It shelters us and warms us. From the cradle to the grave it befriends us. Forest products have been put to more than 4,000 uses, which attests to the versatility of wood and the demands man has made on trees. Civilization as we know it could never have attained the high plane that it has without the aid of our forests.

"One Cannon Ball Battle"

A "one cannon ball battle" occurred at Sacket's Harbor on Lake Ontario during the War of 1812. A British ship came up and fired at the American fort. But the cannon ball fell short and landed harmlessly at the feet of an American, who promptly placed it in his cannon and fired it back, raking the ship from stem to stern, killing 14 men, wounding 18 others and ending the battle.—Glen E. Shears, Chicago, Ill., in Collier's Weekly.

Woodpeckers and Sapsuckers

One of our most numerous and conspicuous winter bird friends is the woodpecker, very noticeable in the woods when most of the other birds are gone and with the leaves no longer obscuring vision. Every farmer knows of the good woodpeckers do. Those that do harm are sapsuckers. Of the 23 species of woodpeckers of the United States only three are properly classified as sapsuckers.—Missouri Farmer.

"Oh! I'll go; but I don't understand why you make such a point of it," Mrs. Briggs answers Jessie at the One-Act Play on Friday night (United Church Hall.)

Valuation of Crop is Set at $8,000,000

ONTARIO'S FLUE-CURED TOBACCO INDUSTRY RUN ON SCIENTIFIC LINES

It looks as if the $8,000,000 valuation put upon the Ontario flue-cured tobacco crop by the experts will be exceeded by the value of the actual purchases made by Canadian and British manufacturers within the past few days, starting last Tuesday. Yet it is only a few years since tobacco-growing in Canada was practically limited to a few farmers raising it for personal use or for a limited local market. Now approximately 30,000 acres of the best soil in Southern Ontario are almost exclusively devoted to the growing of tobacco leaf in a scientific way, this year's crop amounting to 35,000,000 pounds, and having a selling-value $3,000,000 in excess of the crop return of 1934. The finest cigarettes and other tobacco products in Canada incorporate Canadian tobacco in large and increasing quantities, where, hitherto, American and other tobaccos had been used. The Canadian leaf also has an excellent market in Great Britain.

The Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited, which buys a great part of the Canadian crop, has had much to do with the great strides taken by the tobacco-growing districts because it has had a policy for years of trying to encourage domestic production. First, however, it was necessary to gradually teach growers what and how to grow in order to meet public tastes long accustomed to foreign leaf. The company, at its own expense, imported cultivation experts, brought in the necessary plants for experimentation, made its own chemical and other researches of the soil, of moisture, and other conditions, taught the grower on his own land by introducing experimental plots, and in other ways interested him in improving and enlarging his crop for the uses of the domestic market. It also illustrated to him the precise processes by which the domestic market might be developed in a profitable way. This, and the researches of government experts, have combined largely to create from a small and unmarketable crop, a large and marketable crop, valued at more than $8,000,000 a year.

THE UNITED STATES AGREEMENT

Negotiations continue at Washington and Ottawa for a trade agreement, assisted along by the visit to the American capital of Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, who went there on a holiday, but who was probably not averse to speeding up things a bit if possible. Canadian industry watches with keen interest the outcome of these discussions. The primary producers of cattle, lumber, copper, fish and dairy products, and the distillers of spirits appear to have the best chance of getting some direct benefit from negotiations. But if these basic industries benefit, all industry will reap some advantage later on. The Canadian consumer looks to these agreements to supply him with cheaper merchandise, and the Canadian manufacturer in some cases at least will get cheaper raw materials. There will, of course, be apprehension lest a lowering of the tariff walls may permit competition which will reduce their sales and limit their domestic market. The advocates of freer trade always claim that the domestic manufacturers do not suffer from lower tariffs anything like as much as they fear, especially if they are on a sound basis to start with. For one thing they get cheaper raw material. Then, because of the stimulus to domestic primary industry the home market is possessed of greater buying power, and, even if domestic producers have to share it somewhat with outside firms, it is so much larger that they can share it and still sell more goods.

IN BETTER POSITION

The Mackenzie King government has an inducement in dealing with Washington far more effective than Mr. Bennett had. The latter could only open up Canada to United States markets by reversing his policy of 1930. At that time he said it was necessary to raise tariffs to preserve Canadian industry and to employ Canadian workmen. What would have become of the argument in 1935 if he had lowered the walls to American products? Mr. Mackenzie King, who never argued that high tariff walls spelled prosperity and employment, has no such psychological or political hurdle to confront. He favors enlarged flow of goods and he can return to the 1930 level of tariffs, in return for worthwhile concessions from the United States. Most people interested would be happy to get back to pre-1930 days, so far as volume of traffic and level of traffics are concerned.

The Dominion and the provinces meet on November 27th—two days after the provincial election in Quebec. It wasn't possible to hold it before, but Mr. Mackenzie King is certainly wasting no time. The first and major problem will be unemployment relief. Several of the provinces and a great many of the municipalities are wondering what on earth they are going to do this winter. Meantime the national council on employment will be set up, a body to co-relate the efforts of the various bodies and seek to ensure that the moneys spent are disbursed as wisely and effectively as possible.

They start talking about a session in mid-January. It can hardly be called before. It is somewhat doubtful whether the legislative program will be ready, but perhaps there will be enough to get started with.

Would-Be Writers May Start Today

Coleridge began to write The Ancient Mariner on November 14th, 1797. Those who have a yen for pen-pushing and believe that the anniversary of an important event is a good time to start a similar action, will get going today.

Who does not recall the central theme of Coleridge's Ancient Mariner? The ship had a luckless trip after the shooting of an albatross, which according to old sailor superstitions was a very wrong thing to do.

But as one biographer has pointed out, "The Spirit of lovingkindness, which is the moral of the poem, gives it a beauty beyond its literary form."

Thousands recall four lines

He prayeth best who loveth best
All things both great and small,
For the dear Lord who loveth us
He made and loveth all.

In this enlightened day when men are coming to a fuller realization of the fact that the way to get the most out of life is to make the most of one's life, they are taking tips from such lives as Wordsworth's and Coleridge's.

Coleridge's Ancient Mariner was developed during his happy sojourn in the Cumberland lake country, near Dorothy and William Wordsworth, 1797 to 1798. Coleridge described this friendship in the words "three people, but only one soul."

The opium habit weakened Coleridge's character so that one wonders how great he might have become had he been industrious, self-controlled and domestic. A kindly doctor attended him during his last days in a suburb of London where he died at the age of 61 an object of mingled pride and pity.

Most of his literary work was in broken bits of goodness, as was his life.

However The Ancient Mariner will ever stand as a rare monument, in choice literary expression, to the greatness and beauty which might have been the total impress on life made by Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

Masterly Speakers on Mission Topics

Dr. A. Lloyd Smith and Mr. Goodwin addressed the meeting in absence of the scheduled speaker, Rev. Burton Robinson, who was unable to appear through sickness. Dr. Smith, who had been heard here at a similar function three years ago, elaborated on the scope and activity of home missions, stressing in this matter the responsibility of the United Church, "the biggest body in Protestant religion on this half-continent." It was a serious undertaking; the very seriousness of the endeavor, and its financial stringency at this time, was stressed rather remarkably as the personal concern of every listener in Dr. Smith's audience. It is certain that the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the church, through Dr. Smith's remarks, took on a closer significance cance and a more practical conception than many of his listeners had previously held.

The same may be said of Mr. Goodwin's address, which dealt particularly with mission work of the church in foreign fields. The speaker has a long record of 25 years on the United Church mission board, and he revealed himself as a man deeply interested in the affairs of mission administration. The great universal church, he claimed, was the only force worth while in fostering international harmony; in this achievement it can, and does, far exceed the influence of the League of Nations. There is a paradox which, at one time or another, perplexes every mission giver; Mr. Goodwin justified the sending of money to a country such as Japan which looms as a very menace to world affairs.—Christianity, he said, is a power opposed to paganism, atheism and war—which are the children of nationalism and secularism. . . . Mr. Goodwin appealed finally for a mission consciousness, rather than the money consciousness which had grown out of misguided viewpoints and had, perhaps, detracted from the joy of voluntary giving.

Dr. J. H. Mason voiced a vote of thanks to the speakers, seconded by Rev. Mr. Perrigard of Shawbridge and heartily endorsed by all present. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. Proceeds of the evening amounted to almost fifty dollars.

MOTHER NATURE TEACHES HUMANS A LESSON

While war scares are springing up all over the world, and racial hatred is rising to new heights, this nature study seems to serve as a great object lesson. Here we see a settler's wolf dog affectionately "kissing" an orphaned fawn which came out of the forest along the western boundary of Glacier National Park. These two interesting creatures are the best of friends.

CHEAP BUS FARES, AND INTERESTING CONTEST, FOR MONTREAL MOTOR SHOW

Provincial Transport Company is offering fares at a more reduced price than ever before to those travelling to Montreal between Friday, Nov. 22nd, and Sunday, Dec. 1st, the duration of the Montreal Motor Show.

The promoters of the Show have prepared an interesting contest, in which all citizens of Eastern Canada may participate. The details of this contest will be advertised in the newspapers. The winner of this contest may choose a 1936 model of Chevrolet, Dodge or Ford as his prize. Other winners will share cash prizes amounting to $300.00. "This contest will be another incentive to the interest which the whole population maintains for the Motor Show and any one may try his luck without cost, for it is not even necessary to come to the Motor Show to take part in this contest. Those who have no automobiles have just as much chance as the motorists, and children are eligible as well as adults," concludes, Mr. Messier, Manager.

All those who are interested in the Automobile Industry are invited to watch closely the newspapers for further information regarding this great contest. The prizes offered are well worth while and it costs nothing to try your luck.

THE KING DOESN'T RULE, BUT—

Victor Emanuel III of Italy is king but to all appearance he doesn't rule. And yet millions in Italy would doubtless say "Long live the King." Mussolini would probably be among them since, contrary to the wishes of some, Victor Emanuel thirteen years ago affixed his signature to documents conferring absolute power on the Black Shirts.

While this five-foot three "Monarch" spends most of his time out of sight he did recently review troops with Mussolini and has raised no objections to two princes serving in Africa. One may be forgiven for wondering if Italy will ever have another king since the ruling functions of this one appear to be confined to two hours a day occasionally given over to "audiences."

—"What would it matter? There's somebody else here that knows the whole business!" I wonder who it is? See The Trysting Place, one-act play, November 15th.

.22 RIFLE IS DANGEROUS WEAPON

HUNTING ACCIDENTS have been frequent this season, and the Province of Quebec Safety League has circulated a warning against the dangers attending this sport. . . The slogan, "Look first and shoot afterwards", is quoted in connection with these warnings. Unusual care is urged in carrying and handling rifles or shot-guns.

It is stated that few young hunters realize the carrying capacity of a .22 calibre rifle. The short bullet carries a distance of one thousand yards, and the long bullet one mile. Hunters are advised to remember this fact and to make certain before they shoot that there is nothing but the game at which they are aiming within this range, so as to avoid the accidental wounding or killing of some innocent person in the woods.

Lack of knowledge concerning the deadly .22 rifle is the direct cause of many accidents in the woods. The League recommends that a thorough knowledge be obtained concerning any weapon taken out for hunting or other purposes before it is used.

A NEWSPAPER HAS NO HEART

A TORONTO service station attendant is in jail on suspicion of the murder of Ruth Taylor. His young wife is in a maternity home and knows nothing of her husband's arrest. To save her unnecessary suffering, "a local newspaper printed a special edition for her with all news of her husband's arrest carefully deleted."

—So runs a simple statement in the press. And yet 'tis said that a newspaper has no heart; it is implied that a publishers are gluttons—money grabbers who have no element of human forbearance, and who would sell their last column to the highest bidder.

A local newspaper printed a special edition. —We can picture the presses humming to a stop at the end of the "run"; the pressmen who would ordinarily be washing up and setting things in order, now removing one page, perhaps two, buckling new plates on the cylinders, and re-starting the machinery to grind out — one special edition . . . Back in the composing room we visualize the make-up man, dismantling his "form", tearing out headlines and replacing type with matter less scorching to the soul of a young mother in hospital; re-locking his page and shipping it to the casting room where operators wait to cast the new plate . . . Back further, to the editor's desk, where necessary changes are indicated in the "copy" . . . And still further perhaps, to the beetle-browed proprietor who authorized those changes.

There is no fretting, no complaining. A dozen men, two dozen, perhaps more—whistling cheerily as they wait for the last change. Ten minutes' overtime is small sacrifice for a mother's peace of mind.

—A newspaper has no heart.

NETHERLANDS "SHORT" ON GAS

SOME LITTLE time ago the government stopped shipments of gasoline from leaving the Netherlands. A communique said there was a shortage. However, it was generally understood it was in the interest of cessation of hostilities between two countries.—Guess who? One shaped like a boot and one in a terrible shape.

"AS LONG as politics will throw out good, able men, you cannot have good engineering, good public works, or good anything else in government."

—Saml. Baker, Secretary,
Union of Canadian Municipalities.

THE CIVIL SERVANT'S PLEDGE

I have faith in my country and its institutions. I believe in the importance of my job and in the dignity of all public service. I count myself fortunate to live and work in a State where I may obtain public employment through competition fairly won and under a system which permits me to look forward to a career as a public employee and advancement through merit.

I know that government is no better than the people who direct its affairs and do its work. I will be honest, loyal and industrious in the work I have to do. I will be courteous in my relations with my superiors, my fellow-workers and the public. I will use public property entrusted to my care for the purpose intended and protect and conserve it as though it were my own.

I will refrain from doing anything that will bring discredit upon the State as my employer or upon me as a civil servant. I will strive through my acts and my work to realise the purposes for which government is established and so merit the esteem and respect of the people.

THE CELEBRATION OF ARMISTICE DAY IN LACHUTE

Mr. C. Duncan sounded the Last Post and the impressive service was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

The sale of poppies in connection with Armistice Day observance, met a gratifying response around town, and credit is due to several young ladies who gave their services in this undertaking. The proceeds of poppy sales are sent in part to the Veterans' Shops, where the flowers are manufactured, and in part devoted to needy cases among local veterans and their families. The collections resulted as follows:

Miss K. Miller $20.08; Miss L. Falconer $22.34; Miss B. Theoret $12.65; Miss M. Lefebvre $9.89; Miss L. Carpenter $8.18; Miss L. Giles $6.45; Miss L. Laurin $1.05; Miss A. The marriage of Miss Mildred Casselman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Casselman, Westboro, Ont., to Mr. Clarence Guy MacKiddie, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacKiddie of Brownsburg, Que., took place at Westboro United Church on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 9th. The Rev. A. P. Menzies officiated, Mrs. Piers presiding at the organ. Witnesses were Miss Grace MacKiddie, sister of the groom, and Mr. Aden Casselman, brother of the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was unattended. She was charming in a gown of sapphire blue chiffon velvet, made on simple lines with turban and sandals to match, and carried a muff bouquet of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Grace MacKiddie was wearing an amethyst velvet dress with hat and accessories in matching tones. Her corsage bouquet was of roses. Mrs. Casselman, mother of the bride, wore blue crepe with matching hat and corsage bouquet of roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after which Mr. and Mrs. MacKiddie left on a motor trip to Quebec—the bride travelling in a gown of navy blue triple crepe with grey trimmings, a black coat with grey squirrel collar and a black felt hat.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. James Tomalty of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. William Tomalty and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Tomalty of Brownsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Newington, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Aden Casselman of Berwick, Ont.

Life of Louis XVII

Louis XVII was the second son of Louis XVI, but became dauphin when his brother died in 1789. In 1792, with the French Revolution well under way, with his parents he was confined to the Temple, at first with one or the other of his parents, and then by himself. His father was beheaded in 1793, and the royalists proclaimed the child king, under a regency. Numerous plots were formulated for his escape, successful finally, according to legend. What is known of his stay in prison indicates the legend may be true. In July, 1793, he was placed in charge of a cobbler named Simon, and frequently visited by representatives of the Revolution, who persuaded him to give outrageous testimony against Marie Antoinette, that resulted in the death sentence.

BRITISH INVENTOR DEMONSTRATES NEW SAFETY DEVICE

Mr. Atkins, a London engineer, has perfected a new device which he holds will considerably help in reducing the number of fatalities occasioned by heavy vehicles on the road. It is claimed by the inventor that the device, a new type of guard, which is automatic in action, is absolutely infallible. Here we see the inventor giving a practical demonstration of his device.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

LET'S GO HUNTING

It's the wise hunter who keeps his camera loaded and ready to snap the real story-telling pictures such as this one.

DON'T these cool, crisp fall mornings sort of give you the hunting fever? In spite of all the pleasure you had during the good old summer time you probably look upon the fall hunting season as one of the highlights of the year, and as you sit enjoying a good evening smoke, isn't it a lot of pleasure to talk over the happenings of the day?

There should be more to a hunting trip, however, than tracking your game; or anticipating that tense moment when the antlers of a fine young buck make their appearance through the trees; or he carelessly makes a wild dash into the clearing and you put up a valiant fight against a severe attack of "buck fever."

The appearance of your game and the exciting moment when you quickly raise your gun to your shoulder and pull the trigger, is one of the thrilling adventures of a hunting trip.

There are, however, many moments of relaxation and leisure, too. It is then that you should do a different kind of shooting. "Shooting" with a camera should not be overlooked for it is with snapshots that you can make a picture record of your trip and enjoy your expedition over and over for years to come.

Your snapshots can picture your trip from the time you and your hunting pals load your duffel bags, guns, blankets and other equipment until your return with—we hope—your trophies.

Space will not permit enumerating all the picture possibilities on such trips. Picture taking opportunities, however, seem to have the habit of appearing at the most unexpected moments so it's the wise hunter who keeps his camera loaded and ready for action.

If you have never before taken snapshots under overcast fall skies it is important to remember that it will be necessary to give a longer exposure than ordinarily made under summer's bright sunshine.

But your snapshotting should not be confined to outdoor pictures for it is at night in the cabin or lodge you can take pictures of your party seated around the open fireplace swapping yarns and reviewing experiences in this and former hunting expeditions.

You will find that Photoflash bulbs will serve your purpose admirably. A Photoflash bulb is similar in appearance to a common electric light bulb and can be screwed into a special, but inexpensive holder, resembling an ordinary hand flash-light tube. This can be purchased at almost any store selling photographic supplies. The flash is set off by pressing the flash button and it gives an intense light without any noise or smoke.

After placing your camera on a tripod or some solid support look into the finder and be sure you can see all who are to be included in the picture. Set the diaphragm at f/8 or f/11. Set the shutter at "time" and then flash the bulb. Be sure to close the shutter immediately after the flash.

It is not necessary to have the room in total darkness when the flash is made but be sure that a bright light is not shining directly into the lens of the camera.

Make your camera an important part of your hunting equipment and on your return have a picture story to show to your friends.

HUMPTY DUMPTIES THAT CLIMBED BACK

Another little Humpty Dumpty
Sat upon an old stone wall,
It was not a frail eggshell
But a yellow pumpkin small.

An ugly wind kept rocking it
And rolling it around,
Until it sent it crashing
Upon the frozen ground.

It broke in tiny pieces
Its seeds finding hiding place,
'Neath lumps of earth and rushes,
Wherever there was space.

They stretched out clinging fingers
Next spring, and grew so tall
That soon a row of pumpkins
Sat on the same old wall.

PETER PUMPKIN

An old man sat on the edge of a wheel-barrow which was filled with pumpkins, mopping his forehead with a big red handkerchief and sighing heavily. Like the crooked man you hear the Singing Lady tell you about over the radio, he too wished that he was different, for he was a crooked man too. He had not always been crooked, Oh ho! He had not been crooked when he had marched away to war—so many years ago now that most of the little children sitting on the steps of the school house nearby, who laughed at this old bent man, had heard little or nothing of that cruel war that took so many of their country's bravest and best. Some of them came back well; others were left behind where daisies nodded over their quiet beds, and little birds sang on the branches nearby. Others had come back like this poor old man, crippled in body—and some of them crippled in mind as well.

This old man loved children, but they did not love him, because of his scarred face and crooked body. He had come a stranger and taken up a little abandoned shack near the mountain; here he spent his time growing vegetables for sale. No one knew why his face was scarred and no one cared to ask.

All summer he had been coming into the village with his wheel-barrow loaded with summer vegetables; now it was fall vegetables and pumpkins which he peddled from door to door. As he sat resting one unkind boy said "Let's go and tease the old chap!" Jumping up he started towards the old man, with the other children following him.

The old man looked up in surprise to see the children coming towards him. They had usually gone the other way when they saw him approaching.

Instinct, perhaps, told him that they were up to some mischief. What it might be he did not know; but whatever it was he did not wish them to do it, for he wanted to have only pleasant thoughts about those children. He had had children of his own once.

Just as the unkind little boy was reaching out to snatch a pumpkin from the old man's load, and smash it on a rock, the old man caught up a pretty crook-neck squash and held it out to him "Wouldn't you like this one better?" he said. The boy stopped, ashamed of what he was about to do. Taking the squash, he held it by its curved neck and looked rather uncertainly at the other children, but they did not notice him as they were staring at the old man in surprise, noting for the first time the brightness of his eyes and the kindness of his smile. Suddenly the man began, "Once upon a time" . . . The children drew closer to him at once. "Once upon a time" the old man continued, "there was a little boy just about the size of this chap here." Reaching out he drew the boy to whom he had given the squash within the circle of his arm and held him with a tender clasp close to his own bent body. The boy after one little convulsive shiver of fear stood still and listened to the old man telling about the little boy just like him, who came to Canada with his parents from England, went to school just as they were doing, until he grew big enough for high school. From school he went to learn to be an electrician, and when the terrible war with Germany came this boy, now a grown man with a wife and two dear little children, left all of his dear ones and went away across the ocean to fight for his country. The old man told of hard battles fought, some of them lost and some of them won, until this man got torn in the face by flying shrapnel and wounded in other ways, as well as contracting rheumatism from his long stay in the damp trenches.

When the war was over he had come back to find that he had indeed lost all his dear ones, so had moved away where no one knew him . . . This little boy who should have been today a strong, able man doing good work in the world, was a lonely cripple because of the greed of the nation who had started the war. "Little children," said the old man, "war is not a glorious thing. It is a greedy, wicked, cruel thing. Keep your hearts loving and kind, little folks, and tell other children to do the same, as only love for one another will prevent war."

The boy who had intended teasing the old man such a short time before suddenly looked up into his face and asked, "Was that little boy you, Mr. Crooked Man?" The other children were surprised at his question. They had not thought that it might be his own story.

"Yes" the old man said, "this poor lonely old bent man was once that bright little boy that I was telling you about."

A chorus of "Oh's" came from the startled group of children. One little girl pressed closer to him. "Mr. Crooked Man", she said, "I have some pie in my lunch box, lemon pie. I should like to give it to you." "And I have doughnuts," another little voice said. "And I have some cake" . . . and so on, until they were eagerly pressing about him, all anxious to divide with him.

"You are dear children" the old man said, "but I could not take your lunches, you know. Spottie and I will have dinner together when we get home." "Spottie! Why, where is Spottie?" asked the boy who had wanted to tease.

"Hiding behind that clump of cedars" the old man said. "He has followed me, the little rascal. Hey Spottie! come here!" he called. With a bound a little white dog with brown spots all over his body and big brown ears came darting to his master, and after jumping up on him darted about amongst the children, licking their faces and barking in great excitement.

"Oh please!" said the little girl who had first offered her pie, "Spottie is awfully hungry. I know he is; won't you please sit down again and we'll all bring our lunches and pretend it's a picnic and that you and Spottie are our 'vited guests'?" "Please Do!" cried all the children, "we have loads of lunch!" "If you will all come to my shack on Saturday and crack nuts with me I will be your picnic guest today," the crooked man said with a smile.

The children agreed to do this and grouped themselves about the wheel-barrow, while one of the girls spread the lunches out on some newspaper. Just as the bell rang for school and the old man got up to take his wheel-barrow load of pumpkins on to the village, one of the girls said "Won't you please tell us what we may call you?"

"Peter Pumpkin" the old man said, with a twinkle in his eye as he started along the road, with Spottie capering about at his heels.

"I'm so glad we have made friends with him," said one of the girls as they gathered in the porch to wait for the call to "Lines." "So am I," said the unkind little boy, "I shall never tease anyone again!"

FOOLSCAP ORIGINATED BY OLIVER CROMWELL

During the reign of Charles I. all English paper was stamped with the Royal Arms of England. The monarch, in consideration of certain moneys, granted monopolies to several companies for the manufacture of paper.

On the accession of Oliver Cromwell, he commanded the royal arms to be removed and ordered the substitution of a fool's cap and bells in the watermark, as an indication of his contempt for Charles I. . . . Thus was originated what is termed "Fool's cap" paper . . . The fool's cap and bells was in turn discarded and in its place the figure of "Britannia" was stamped.

EAST FOR COLOUR

A friend who is visiting in the West writes of how beautiful the country is in its Autumn dress, the colours not being quite as vivid as in Ontario but still very beautiful. I read this to another friend who hails originally from Nova Scotia. That brought forth the remark that if we wanted to see really beautiful Autumn colours we would have to go to Nova Scotia. That the Ontario Autumns were all right in their way but the colours were not as vivid nor as striking as down East. Apparently the farther East we go the more beautiful the Autumn. However true that may be, it is a treat to get out in the country and see the trees. People seem to have taken to the fields this year. Each time we went for a drive on a sunny day there would be ever so many cars parked along the road and people could be seen along the river, in the woods or in the fields.

A NEW USE FOR AN EGG TIMER

Dentists tell us that we should clean our teeth for three minutes, twice a day, in order to get them thoroughly clean. The average person has no idea how long a time they spend cleaning their teeth and if they time themselves will be surprised to find how short a time they actually do spend. A writer in Hygeia suggests using the old-fashioned sand egg-timer in the bathroom to time the teeth cleaning. That sounds like a good idea. Children might feel it was a game and in any case it would show up the adults and let them see what a short time they actually spend on their teeth.

GRADING AS TO SIZE

One of the exasperating things in buying vegetables is the unevenness in size. A bunch of beets will have four small or medium sized beets and one great big one. Perhaps the farmer is trying to be good hearted and make up for the small ones but that big one is a nuisance. It takes twice as long to cook as the rest. Beets are not the only offenders. My last peck of potatoes was made up mostly of potatoes slightly larger than an egg and two that were mammoth in size. Incidentally those two were rotten in the centre. So far this year the potatoes have been very poor and I am buying them in very small quantities, hoping the next ones will be better. A city man who has moved out to the country and has ten acres, says he has grand potatoes almost ready, so maybe we will get some good ones yet. If any of you have anything to do with sending fruits or vegetables to market you would improve your product by grading it as to size.

CHEESE BISCUITS

2 cups flour
2 tablespoons butter
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup grated cheese
about 2/3 cup milk
Sift flour, salt and baking powder and rub in the butter. Add the cheese and the milk, using enough to make a dough as soft as can be handled. Roll lightly and cut into rounds. Bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees from 12 to 15 minutes. Butter and serve hot. These make an agreeable substitute for sandwiches or are good with a salad.

CHOCOLATE COCOANUT COOKIES

1 1/4 cups sugar

Governor General Expert Guide

Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir spent much time on deck as the Canadian Pacific SS. Duchess of Richmond steamed up the St. Lawrence. In the above picture Canada's new Governor-General, who is a distinguished historian as well as a successful writer of romantic adventure stories, pointed out historic landmarks of Canada's Ancient Capital to Lady Tweedsmuir and his son, the Hon. Alastair Buchan, as the liner neared Quebec.

1/2 lb. cocoanut
4 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon baking powder

Cream butter and sugar and add well-beaten eggs. Sift flour, cocoa and baking powder. Mix well and add cocoanut. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered pan and bake in a slow oven of 325 degrees.

Only God Can Make a Maple Tree

Various imitations of maple syrup are on the market. However, none of them can begin to compete with the pure maple. We are reminded of the exquisiteness of nature's product by the fact that Canada's syrup output in 1935 brought in $3,522,420 as against $3,040,600 in 1934.

Catalogued Gals

Everything is made so easy nowadays! Cars have self-starters. Electric clocks don't have to be wound. And now gals are catalogued for easy and satisfactory dating. It all started down in Cambridge, Massachusetts. According to the dispatch the TechMenorah Society recently held a dance attended by about 200 girls. They were asked to leave information concerning themselves covering age, height, weight, color of hair and eyes, personal habits, kind of dates preferred and much more. Of course, the catalogue will tell the evenings they like to go out and the kind of men they prefer. This ought to simplify matters greatly in a large center, where there are gals and boys everywhere, but whom doesn't know how to date up which.

Parents to Run School

Parents have re-opened the Waterfoot Church of England School in Rawtenstall, England, and will conduct it on their own responsibility. They have engaged four teachers who will be paid from a voluntary fund raised by the parents and sympathizers. When the school was closed by the Education Committee the fathers and mothers of the 67 pupils rebelled because the children would have to walk a mile and a half to another school.

Care of Sweaters

Sweaters can usually be washed, but if they are colored or have colored trimming, it might be well first to dip a corner into a little suds to try it out, according to Katherine Fisher, Director Good Housekeeping Institute. Before washing lay the sweater on a large piece of paper and trace its outline, or measure the length, width of shoulders, and length of sleeves. Then wash the sweater in lukewarm suds. Squeeze, do not wring, the water out by hand. Use a second suds if the sweater is very soiled. Never let it soak in the suds. Rinse in two lukewarm rinses and roll it in a bath towel to absorb moisture. Lay the sweater on the paper and draw into its original outline or measurements and leave to dry. Or let it dry over a form. Wool sports skirts may be washed in the same way. In washing by hand, a hand vacuum washer is useful. In washing woollens in a machine, let the machine run from three to five minutes, no longer. Wash in a second lukewarm suds if necessary. Rinse twice, for two minutes, in clear lukewarm water.

The Week's Fashion News

By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

If you'll let "Fashion Scribe" have any say in the matter, you'll find that being out of Montreal does not mean being out of touch. The end of her pencil is simply quivering with news about fashion happenings... to tell you what's being worn, what shows indication of being worn, even what the newest ideas are in home furnishings and kitchen gadgets.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Fashion declares herself in no uncertain terms these days. She waves a hand towards metallics, and immediately every woman takes to gleaming fabrics. She says "Wear Monograms", and the Monogram begins. Monogram fobs are probably the latest expression of the vogue, and the nice part of it is that the initials of your name are clicked into a metal frame. Which means that when you get tired of wearing this new ornamentation you can pass it on to a delighted younger sister, simply by buying her a new set of initials. There are monogram bracelets, clips and brooches equally a delight to the eye.

There's many a Scotch treat round about the stores this season. Scotch plaid skirts. Scotch plaid blouses. Scotch plaid knick knacks. And would you believe it, little rubber-lined cosmetic bags to keep your compact and lipstick from coming into contact with the interior of your handbag... the out-sides of these useful bags exact miniatures of those rakish caps

You Can Teach an Old Dog New Tricks

We are all familiar with the old saying that you can't teach an old dog new tricks. Maybe not. But you can teach older people new things. Age should be no bar to learning. Research work done by Thorndike at Columbia University shows that there is no difficulty teaching anyone up to the age of fifty. Any difficulty they may have will not be due to age but to initial inability. The ability to learn from 40 to 45 is about on a par with the ability of the middle teens. Memory loss will be balanced by caution and care. People who are older often hesitate to try to learn something new because they are afraid of ridicule. This is a foolish attitude to take. Continue to learn new things and keep young.

NEW PROCESS FOR CHILD-BEARING

Doctors have, during the past quarter century, been very particular that the conditions surrounding a "baby case" were warm and sanitary. With the best of care difficulties often present themselves. With this in mind the case of Mrs. Alton Jourdon of Sanford, N.C., is especially interesting. She stooped over a well. Everything went black. She soon found herself in icy water holding on to a new born babe. Her husband working in a field nearby, heard her cries, and rushed to rescue her. It is to be hoped that expectant mothers, pondering on the happy outcome to this incident, will not take it too seriously and go jump in a well.

you see perched on the basis of brow, bonnie Highlanders!

The recent royal wedding in London was made to seem quite near at hand by a local department store this week. Special displays of the bride's wedding gown in replica drew interested throngs. Orchid and blue was a choice for a beautiful dinner dress with line of classic simplicity furling into a soft flare near the ankles and having an enormous bunch of orchid and blue fabric flowers as a corsage.

If you are one of those people who get deathly sick of wearing your hair the same way all the time, glue your eyes to this news. There's a new way of giving your coiffure a different look for party occasions... all you need is a little bunch of curls at the nape of your neck. Underneath this coquettish fluff you separate the ends of a "tiara" braid (you can get a shade so near a tone to that of your own tresses that you needn't worry about detection). The braid has a hidden foundation so that it won't unwind. It has a firm erect look that makes it unlike the braided locks that were worn last year as a bandeau. If you are one of the few unbobbed, then you can go ahead and make a tiara braid of your own hair and wind it about your head. I recommend it highly for a queenly but youthful air.

ARMISTICE GATHERING

Veterans of the 60th and 87th Battalions C.E.F. marked Armistice in Montreal by a "stand to" meeting at Queen's Hotel, at which 172 of the 432 members of the 6087 Overseas Association were present, replacing the organization's customary lunch, on Saturday afternoon. The organization also took part in the Armistice Day Parade on Monday, marching in a body, under command of Major Walter H. Scott, M.C. Saturday's meeting was wholly informal, except for the sounding of the "Last Post" and "Reveille", the playing of the regimental marches of the two battalions and the observance of two minutes' silence in tribute to the war-dead. Major Scott and other officers of the association appealed to those present to do everything in their power to promote the smoking concert and boxing bouts to be staged by the 6087 in the armory of the Canadian Grenadier Guards, on the night of Thursday, December 5.

Brigadier-General F. S. Meighen, C.M.G., D.S.O., O.B.E. honorary president of the association, chatting with a group of Overseas colleagues, announced that Queenie, the horse which drew the medical officers' cart for the 87th Battalion throughout the war and which enjoyed many years of leisure on the General's farm at Ste. Genevieve, Que., had at last been destroyed, at over 27 years of age. The piebald mare was a "landmark" in the 4th Canadian Division, of which the 87th formed part.

Several out-of-town members from various points, including Lachute, were present.

man is fortunate enough to get a piece of unmade goods, what a joy it is for her to go to one of those machines and spend a day sewing and exchanging ideas with the lady of the house where the sewing machine is. When you do send hand-knit things, says Dr. M. Owens, do not knit them of very fine wool as our western people are no longer composed entirely of Easterners but of a mixture of Southern Europeans who do not use soap even when it is obtainable! Soap is not plentiful in that district, and the fine woolies sent out in boxes are of no use unless they can be properly washed. Nor do a great many of the people of that district use sheets, so one of Dr. Owens greatest needs is old sheets, old pillow-slips, and particularly towels. Put a great many safety pins and packages of needles in your missionary boxes, also common pins and some embroidery floss, so that the European women will not forget their culture for want of material to work with. They make dresses for themselves and their children, out of flour sacks, but how they long for a bit of something bright in the way of embroidery or print to trim them with! Hand looms are much needed so that the women can do their own weaving, also spinning wheels. Their husbands can make them in part, but not the wheel itself. In order to help them Dr. Owens stressed that we must "get the viewpoint of the West, to meet the needs of the West."

What the Liberal Government has done for the settler, the farmer... and for the development of highways.

Hon. J. E. PERRAULT
Minister of Highways

COLONIZATION—In the days before the Taschereau regime, the Province spent on the average $146,000 a year to further colonization. Between 1920 and 1935, the present government, for this purpose, has spent close to $30,000,000, approximately $2,000,000 a year, without taking into account a total amount of $2,500,000 for the purchase of seeds. Since 1930, more than 17,000 settlers were established on the land. During the past five months, 4,500 heads of families have been returned to the land. In addition, 7,925 young people were established in the past year by virtue of a plan specially developed to assist farmers' sons. The Government has done still more; it has placed at the disposal of 500 farmers, to whom it has undertaken to advance money, the sum of $300.00 to help in the purchase of land, to be repaid in fifteen or twenty years, and has undertaken to lend two thirds of the amount required for the purchase of necessary farm equipment... those loans being arranged for a period of three years and without interest.

Hon. IRENEE VAUTRIN
Minister of Colonization

This is one of a series of statements designed to set forth in the clearest possible terms the policies and the results obtained by the Provincial Liberal Party in every sphere of public service. The facts which they contain refute in unmistakable fashion the criticisms of those who oppose the Liberal regime.

AGRICULTURE—In the past 15 years, the Province has spent in the interests of agriculture no less than $21,000,000 in the form of subsidies, grants or loans to farmers. The Department of Agriculture maintains for the benefit of the agricultural community, advisory services in agronomy and farm economics directed by qualified technical experts. Thanks to the efforts of the Government of Quebec, the farmer may now borrow at 3%. The same Liberal Government proposes to make agricultural credit easier still, if at all possible, to allow farmers to pay off their mortgages and lighten the financial burden on their land. Farmers have the privilege as well of utilizing, free of charge, the services of Government lawyers in clearing the titles to their properties. The agricultural population seeks the development of cooperative banks. The Liberal Government offered its cooperation to these banks without seeking to control them, and it has formed too a commission to see to it that the farmer receives a reasonable price for his milk. And finally, the Government will offer premiums to the farmer to encourage him in the production of butter and cheese, when it is dealt advisable to do so.

Opposition Candidate to Offer Stern Contest in Local Election

NOMINATION MEETING DRAWS ENTHUSIASTIC ATTENDANCE

Monday's official nominations found Georges Dansereau, Mayor of Grenville, and J. P. Lanctot, K.C., lined up for a brief but spirited fight for the representation of Argenteuil County in the provincial elections now pending.

Dr. J. H. Mason officiated at the nomination proceedings, held in the afternoon at Lachute Auditorium. The building was filled to capacity. One hour and a quarter was allotted to each side, in which to press their respective claims for representation.

Being the government candidate, Mr. Dansereau had the privilege of first appeal. In expressing thanks for the confidence imposed in him, he outlined the work executed by his revered father, to whom he had been of considerable assistance; while much had been accomplished during the eight years in which his father had served the county, there was much yet to be done, and Mr. Dansereau promised all his loyalty and devotion to the interest of county welfare.

The chairman then called upon Mr. J. P. Lanctot, K.C., who in his first public introduction delivered a very forceful address upon the abuses of the Taschereau regime, and the necessity of changing this Government which had entrenched itself. He claimed it a patriotic duty to unite and put an end to the dictatorship which had oppressed this province for so many years. Mr. Lanctot was pleased to proclaim his loyal and sincere support to the leader of the National party, and was happy at the Duplessis-Gouin alliance. He urged the support of all interested, to lend their sincere help in abolishing the orgy of abuses.

In support of Mr. Dansereau were Messrs. Legault, Tanner, O'Grady, Vien, Munich and Dubois, while Mr. J. P. Lanctot, K.C., was supported by Messrs. Mann, Vallee and Fauteux.

Young Man Pierced Through Neck May Live

PAINFUL ACCIDENT ON HIGHWAY AT ARUNDEL

Latest reports from hospital indicate there is still a slight hope for the recovery of Ross Swail, 23-year-old resident of Arundel, who met with a grievous accident while driving with a party of friends on the highway near Arundel.

It is learned that the automobile in which he was riding came into collision with a buggy being driven near the centre of the road. The shaft of the buggy pierced the young man in the mouth and was driven through to the back of his neck, emerging about two inches the other side. It was necessary to saw off the piece of wood to release him. Swail was given first aid by local physicians, and was also treated by Dr. Mason when brought later to Lachute. He was removed promptly to the Montreal General Hospital, where, still conscious and with the portion of the shaft still in his body, he was under observation for several hours, an operation being performed on Monday.

According to latest reports the operation to remove the wood from his neck was successful and hope is entertained

LOUISA BOY SHOT THROUGH FOOT

Russell Seale, a 14-year-old lad whose home is on the Lake Louisa road, was injured in a shooting mishap over the weekend. While walking through the woods near his home, the muzzle of the gun which he was carrying came in contact with his boot and jerked the trigger. The shot exploded and tore through his first toe. Dr. J. H. Mason of Lachute, to whom he was taken for treatment, amputated the toe, and it is understood the lad is making satisfactory recovery.

REV. ROBERT STRANGE IS INDUCTED AT APPLE HILL

Rev. Robert Strange was inducted into the pastorate of Zion United Church, Apple Hill, on Wednesday evening of last week.

After the conclusion of the induction service, the visitors proceeded to the L.O.L. hall, where refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

Rev. Mr. Strange replaces Rev. W. H. Cramm, who retired to live in Ottawa.

New Bridge Opened at St. Adele

The newly-built bridge over Riviere au Mulet, about three-quarters of a mile from St. Adele, was officially opened on Sunday in the presence of Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary. The bridge was blessed by Rev. Abbe Martin, of St. Adele, and following the ceremony a banquet was held at a local hostelry.

It's not laziness to get 2 x 4 brains to do details so your 8 x 10 brain can have time for things the two-by-fours couldn't do. Generals don't dig ditches. It would be criminal if they did and thereby let the whole campaign suffer.

THE WAY THE PEOPLE VOTE

(Winnipeg Evening Tribune)

The normal Conservative vote and the normal Liberal vote do not elect a fourth of the members of Parliament. The masses are unattached, politically, and vote as the spirit moves them. The last five elections in Canada—1921, '25, '26, '30, '35—will well repay study by political leaders.

When you greet a man by name whom you met but casually a year before and recall some bit of conversation you then had, you are not dealing in applesauce—you simply show that you cared enough to give all your attention. That is real courtesy, and is not soon forgotten.

LOCAL ARTIST TO PLAY IN FRIDAY'S RADIO SYMPHONY

At the Canadian Radio Commission concert, to be heard tomorrow (Friday) from C.R.C.M. at 9.30 o'clock, Miss Juliette Rodrigue, pianist of this town, will be guest artist on the program. She will play with the symphony orchestra the First Movement of the Concerto in D minor, by Mozart, and also a piano solo, Prelude in E minor, by Mendelssohn. The Radio-Canada Symphony is under the direction of Mr. J. J. Gagnier, D. Mus., Musical Director of the Canadian Radio Commission.

The honor of accompanying these prominent artists in a symphony presentation is no small tribute to Miss Rodrigue, and it is gratifying to local admirers to know that her abilities are receiving such high recognition.

Heavy deposits of ice on telephone lines between here and Montreal last Thursday and Friday disrupted communications for several hours, and made considerable repair work for the Bell linemen.

WEDDING SOLEMNIZED AT PINE HILL

MacGEORGE—KENNEDY

The marriage of Miss Mona Pearl Kennedy, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Kennedy of Pine Hill, to Mr. Norman William MacGeorge, second son of Mr. and Mrs. William MacGeorge of Carling Lake, took place on Saturday afternoon Nov. 9th. at 2 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. E. G. Baxter officiating.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of tropical blue crepe, and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. Miss Lillian Kennedy, who was her sister's only attendant, wore the same shade of blue, with a shoulder bouquet of Talisman roses.

The parlor was very prettily decorated in pink and white, and little Miss Audrey Thorburn played the piano, rendering the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. Mr. Jack MacGeorge, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Later Mr. and Mrs. MacGeorge left on a motor trip to Moffat, Ont., the bride wearing a rust crepe dress and black coat with hat and accessories to match. On their return a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents at Carling Lake.

The Canada - United States Trade Agreement Summarized

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

The highlights of the trade agreement are as follows:

1. Beginning January 1st., 1936, the United States duty on a wide range of agricultural and other primary commodities, and a smaller group of manufactured articles, is substantially reduced.

2. On the same date Canada extends to the United States reductions ranging from a small percentage to complete abolition on the duty on a range of foods, fruits and vegetables, publications, machinery used in primary production, including farm implements, automobiles, etc.

3. Each country extends to

ALL MAYORS ENDORSED ATHANASE DAVID'S NOMINATION

Signal tribute to Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, for his work on behalf of the progress and development of Terrebonne County and Laurentian areas on Quebec's legislative front, was paid by the mayors of all towns and villages in the county of Terrebonne—Conservative as well as Liberal. All of them signed the Hon. Athanase David's nomination papers.

This is believed to be the first time in Quebec's political history that a member of the Legislative Assembly has, on the eve of re-nomination as a candidate, won the support of each and every chief magistrate in a county, whatever their political hue may be.

Great men are always willing to listen—even to things they already know. That's partly how they became great—getting many slightly different slants on old problems.

GREAT WORK AMONG JUVENILE FARMERS

SUCCESSES AT OTTAWA WINTER FAIR

The Ottawa Winter Fair, just closed, numbered two young contestants from Carleton County only fourteen years of age, who—quoting from the Ottawa Farm Journal—"just stepped out of their class to win the championship and reserve championship for females in the open Shorthorn class. This outstanding win by two 14-year-old boys may make their elders sit up and take notice and, possibly, think that there is something in this junior farmer work after all. Many an old timer thinks all this attention to the youngsters is a lot of foolishness. Keeps them away from the chores."

Leo Carroll, of Dunrobin, and Weldon Johnston, Carp, are both fine upstanding young farm boys. They like Shorthorn cattle and joined their local calf club as soon as they were able. On Tuesday they placed first and second in the regular calf club contest and then stepped up to carry the chief honors in the open class. They have done good work for the entire junior agriculture and boys' and girls' club movements.

Our provincial agronomists are sometimes criticized for the time they devote to rural youngsters, but the proof of their achievements is found in

STATION AT GRENVILLE AGAIN ROBBED

Gaining entry by means of tools previously stolen from a section house, thieves broke into the Canadian National Rly. station at Grenville late last Thursday night. They broke open the safe and made away with a considerable amount of cash and valuables.

Constable A. Charbonneau of the Canadian National Railway police, Joliette, investigated. It was only recently that a youth was sentenced for breaking into the same station.

COUNTY WELL REPRESENTED AT ROYAL FAIR IN TORONTO

Argenteuil is to have a strong representation at the Royal Fair in Toronto, where county stock-breeders are competing for coveted honors. J. H. Black and C. Miller are showing a number of Ayrshires, and Gilbert Arnold is entering a string of his latest importations in Percheron horses, for which he has established a keen reputation. It is also a tribute to this county that Mr. Geo. Hay has been invited to Toronto to act in the capacity of a judge.

Hawkesbury Lad Hiccoughed for Fourteen Days

After hiccoughing steadily for fourteen days, Alex. Siversky, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Siversky, Hawkesbury, has at last had the malady stopped.

After trying every cure known to the medical profession without avail except to stop the hiccoughing for a short period, his doctor Sunday afternoon tried out a new cure of his own making. After several treatments had been given at fifteen minute periods it was pushed more drastically with the result that the hiccoughing stopped Monday afternoon and has not occurred since. The doctor would not give out the remedy he used until satisfied he had a permanent cure.

Month's Activities of the Argenteuil W.I.

Chatham Branch held a joint meeting with Frontier and heard a most interesting address from Miss McCain on "Adult Education". At the close of the meeting, and before Brownsburg Branch entertained the visiting branch to tea, Miss McCain was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses. Chatham also held their regular meeting on Nov. 7th. Mr. D. Stanforth addressed the meeting on "Ways the Women's Institutes could help the Schools". Mrs. Kuhring, County president, was a guest. This branch placed a wreath on the Cenotaph and sold poppies.

Frontier Branch held a social public meeting and heard a very interesting paper on "The Pulp and Paper Industry of Canada", given by Mrs. Ernest Burke. The roll call was garden verses. Several agricultural hints were read as current events. Home Economics was stressed by a sale of home-made aprons, mittens, etc. Mr. Irving Fuller was the prize winner in the guessing contest. A social programme followed the business meeting, when the audience was favored with recitations by Mr. Wheeler of Brownsburg. Little Miss Mc-

SWIFT DEATH OVER-TAKES LOCAL MAN ON HUNTING TRIP

ANOTHER VICTIM IN THE TOLL OF SEASON'S MISHAPS

The toll of local hunting accidents claimed another young life on Sunday at Lost River, where a party from Lachute and Brownsburg had motored to go hunting. Victim of the fatality was Raoul Plouffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodrigue Plouffe of Lachute Mills. Raoul was only 20 years old, and had been employed locally in the Ayers Mills.

In company with Wilfrid Neveu of Lachute Mills and Camille Belanger of Brownsburg, he had driven in the latter's automobile to Lost River. They had turned off the road on a decline where the river disappears near Gate Lake, a phenomenon which gives the community of Lost River its unusual name. However, as they were backing up, Plouffe, in the rear seat of the car, was leaning forward and conversing with his friends. The driver, in applying the clutch pedal brought his foot into contact with a gun which was resting on the floor-board, and the cartridge exploded, tearing through the back of the front seat and piercing young Plouffe in the lower ribs at the right side.

The accident occurred at around 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Belanger hurried away for assistance, but it was only a few minutes before the young man succumbed in the arms of his friend, Neveu, and with a prayer on his lips.

Dr. J. H. Mason, district coroner, was summoned from Lachute; he empanelled a jury, who heard evidence from the friends of the dead man, and returned a verdict of accidental death, attaching no blame.

Raoul Plouffe was buried in Lachute on Wednesday, a large attendance at his funeral bearing evidence of deep sympathy for the bereaved family. He is survived by his parents, five brothers and four sisters. This was the first time the young man had been on a hunting expedition, and it is said that he had a foreboding fear of a tragedy such as this.

Adam, also of Brownsburg, sang "The Strawberry Roan" and other songs.

Lachute Branch featured Canadian Industries, the convener, Mrs. C. Duncan, arranging a visit through Ayers Mills after the business meeting. A special meeting was also held in conjunction with Upper Lachute, Jerusalem - Bethany and Pioneer Branches, with Miss McCain as guest speaker, giving an account of the National Convention held at Charlotte-town recently. Miss McCain also favored with an interesting paper on Canadian Writers.

Lakefield had Canadianization as their subject, Mrs. G. F. Kuhring being the speaker on that topic. Plans were made to supply rubbers and stockings to needy children.

Morin Heights reports an address on the Victorian Order in Victoria, B. C., by Mrs. J. H. Davis, R.N., and their work amongst the Chinese. Roll call, a Health Rule. Armistice poems were also read. Their special meeting, in which Lakefield joined with them to welcome Miss McCain, was a very interesting and jolly one. Miss McCain reported on the National

UNUSUAL FEATURES AT MONTREAL MOTOR SHOW

BIG EVENT WILL OPEN THIS WEEK

The year 1935 has been a year of great prosperity for automobile sales and production, and the industry looks forward to 1936 with optimism. Manufacturers have done wonders in creating cars which will eclipse present models.

Over a hundred models of 1936 cars will be presented to the public starting this Saturday at the Montreal Motor Show, in the Sun Life Building. Never has such a magnificent gathering of luxurious bodies and highly perfected motors been shown, amidst floral and luminous decorations never witnessed by the public in the past. Some of the new motor cars will be submerged amidst a miniature park of natural flowers. Others will be literally under fantastic arabesques constructed of neon lights and phosphorescent tubes. This will be a real fairy fantasy resembling the extraordinary displays seen only at the great expositions in Paris, Chicago and San Francisco.

In some automobiles the frame has been altogether done away with; in others the ventilation comes from below the seats; some cars have been so perfected they will never back up if forced to stop by traffic while climbing a hill; some automobiles have four forward speeds, the last of which runs automatically, going into operation when road conditions permit.

All roads of the Province will be open to traffic at this time of the year making it easy to visit Montreal, whereas this was impossible when the Show was held previously in January. The Provincial Transport Company offers special low rates to those traveling by bus to the metropolis between tomorrow (Friday) and Sunday, December 1st. The railways also offer special excursion rates to those who prefer to travel by train.

The winner of the unique contest at the Show may choose a 1936 model of Chevrolet, Dodge or Ford, and other winners will share $300.00 in cash prizes.

SUNDAY'S DEATH RAISES QUESTION

Some years ago Billy Sunday (renowned evangelist who died last week) prayed that when death should come to him it might come quickly. He got his wish—one attack of arm pains—a few hours later a dizzy feeling, followed by a quiet slipping away.

Possibly no evangelist has been so greatly praised and so deeply censured as Billy Sunday.

On the basis that men tend to become like that on which their hearts are fixed, many deplored the fact that Billy held up to view a God of wrath who would torture forever those who did not lay claim to the saving grace of Christ.

The other day one of these 'deplorers' was overheard to say "I may not have liked Billy Sunday's methods, but allowing that only 10,000 of his many thousands of converts stayed on Customs tariff which will (a) practically abolish the 'arbitrary value' method of shutting out imports (b) abolish the present trade discount limitation which in the case of automobiles substantially raises the duty (c) provide an appeal in those cases where arbitrary values are still applied.

6. Canada promises to extend to the United States the privilege of allowing Canadian tourists in that country to return to Canada with $100.00 in merchandise free of duty, on a parity with the concession now granted by the United States for their tourists in Canada.

7. Abuse of the phrase 'made class or kind made in Canada' is to be stopped. Numerous instances have been brought to light in the past of the customs authorities, because a commodity was made in minute quantities in Canada, or even when stocks were still on hand from previous manufacture, of subjecting imports to penalties which should have only applied if the commodity was being made in Canada in commercial quantities.

8. The arbitrary values set on 18 classes of goods by the Bennett government will be abolished on January 1st, 1936.

9. The Liberal pledge of considering the consumer and the primary producer is implemented in the tariff reductions on such things as farm implements, foods, fruits, etc.

10. In addition to the lowering of duties, the holding of items now on the free list but threatened from time to time with duty subjections has been provided for. Among the important items in this group is newsprint.

The following tariff concessions are of especial interest to the Canadian farmer. The total trade before and after the Hawley-Smoot tariff was applied indicates the possibilities arising out of the reductions:

Cattle, 700 lbs. and over, reduction from 3 cents to 2 for beef cattle and 1½ cents a pound for dairy cows. Total quota 175,799. Exports 1930 (fiscal year) 125,280; 1934 159.

Cream, reduction from 56.6 cents per American gallon to 35 cents. Quota 1,500,000 gallons. Exports 1930 2,293,270 gallons, 1934 21,253 gallons.

Horses, reduction from $30. per head to $20. Exports 1930 672 head; 1934 5,946 head.

Poultry, live, reduction from eight cents a pound to four. Exports, 1929, $347,000 1934 $6,000.

Calves, under 175 pounds, reduced from 2½ cents per pound to 1½ cents. Exports 1929, $1,000,000. 1934 $3,000.

Alfalfa seed, reduced from eight cents to four cts. a pound. Exports 1929, $26,000. 1934, $12,000.

Alsike clover, reduced from eight cents to four. Exports 1929, $1,267,000; 1934 small.

Sweet clover, reduced from 4 cents a pound to 2. Exports 1929, $60,000; 1934, $1,000.

Timothy, reduction from two cents to a cent a pound. Exports 1929 small; 1934, $52,000 (correct).

Bluegrass seed, reduced from five cents a pound to 2½. Exports 1929, $121,000; 1934, $9,000.

Seed potatoes, reduced from 75 cents per 100 pounds to 45 cents during months most shipped, quota of 750,000 bushels. Exports 1929, $600,000; 1934, $223,000.

Hay, rate reduced from $5. per ton to $3. Exports 1929, $282,000; 1934, $160,000.

Turnips, old rate 25 cents per hundred pounds, new rate 12½ cents. Exports in 1929, $901,000; 1934, $651,000.

A SOUND LIBERAL ADMINISTRATION

Highways

The Government has spent $155,000,000 in 15 years in the construction and maintenance of highways, and more than $15,000,000 in the building and maintenance of bridges. And it was under the Taschereau administration that the tourist industry has reached its present thriving state of development. Since 1920, the tourist industry had brought to this province no less than $400,000,000.

The Province owes to the Liberal party the development of its institutions and its remarkable progress, because the Liberal party has always sought to choose leaders of the first order. It was through the progressive activities of his government that Mr. TASCHEREAU has been able to weather the economic storm which has caused such disaster elsewhere in the world.

Education

In 15 years, the Liberal Government of Quebec has spent $36,224,656 for public education. Every county in the province has received a portion of the grants and scholarships.

Agriculture

In the past 15 years, the Province has spent in the interests of agriculture no less than $21,000,000 in the form of subsidies, grants or loans to farmers. The Department of Agriculture maintains for the benefit of the agricultural community, advisory services in agronomy and farm economics directed by qualified technical experts. Thanks to the efforts of the Government of Quebec, the farmer may now borrow at 3%.

Colonization

From 1920 to 1935, the present Government has spent close to 30 million dollars to further colonization without taking into account $2,800,000 granted for the purchase of sowing seeds. Since 1930, more than 17,000 settlers were established on the land. During the past five months, 4,500 heads of families were returned to the soil. And finally, 7,925 farmer's sons were set up in a year.

Public Works

The Taschereau administration has spent 7 million dollars on the building and upkeep of bridges, and 8 million dollars in grants for the same purpose, 16½ million dollars for relief, 6.8 million dollars for work undertaken to alleviate unemployment, and 20 million dollars for various public works in addition to the sums spent for fire prevention — a total of 60.2 million dollars in 15 years.

Lands and Forests

Capital engaged in the various businesses dependent on timber exceeds 375 million dollars, and the various factories, mills, and lumbering companies employ about 50,000 workers. The Liberal Government has spent 34 million dollars in 15 years for the methodical development of our forests, for replanting and for fire protection. These expenditures have also resulted in the promotion of hydro-electric power.

Finance

Under the direction of the Provincial Treasurer Honorable R. F. Stockwell, the Liberal Government has safeguarded the credit of the Province of Quebec through the storms of the recent difficult years. Quebec has the lowest provincial debt and taxation per capita.

Labour

Quebec was the first province or state on the continent of North America to pass a WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION ACT. The Quebec Government has also fixed a MINIMUM WAGE for women employed in trade and industry, and instituted the COLLECTIVE LABOUR EXTENSION. The Liberal Government is about to institute OLD AGE PENSIONS in cooperation with the Liberal Administration in Ottawa.

Trade, Industry and Municipal Affairs

The Government has again shown itself competent in dealing with administrative matters by naming Mr. Bouchard, a well-informed business man, to direct this new department. Mr. Bouchard is also familiar with municipal affairs, being mayor of an important industrial centre, while for several years he has been holding the position of secretary of municipalities.

FATE FAVORS THE VALIANT

Fate hands out her boons and blessings sometimes in unkind packages. We venture to believe this was the case in Ramsay MacDonald's failure to secure a seat in the recent British elections. Mr. MacDonald has borne a heavy strain through sieges of indifferent health, and a man who has given so much to his country deserves to spend his mellow years in retirement. This Mr. MacDonald will do—unless Premier Baldwin, in his misguided admiration, finds a vacancy in parliament for the vanquished veteran.

One of the main provisions of the London County Council Building Act, 1894, orders that no dwelling house shall be of a height greater than the width of the street which it fronts.

INCREDIBLE CRUELTY

Men's love for animals in the farming communities of Argenteuil is a refreshing thing to witness, in contrast with venom of a man featured in a press report from Ste. Agathe this week. One Joseph Desrochers was sentenced to a fine of $30 or a month in jail (which, together, would have been a penalty insufficient for his offence), for tying a loop of wire around the tongue of an unwilling horse. As the horse reared he pulled on the loop—with result that the wire cut through the tongue, tearing off three inches of flesh from the end. Small boys who torture frogs and helpless creatures have nothing on this man for a depraved mentality.

Ten persons in history who by their attempts to understand mankind have had the deepest and most lasting influence on humanity, have been listed by Will Durant, the philosopher, as the world's greatest thinkers. His list includes Confucius, Plato, Aristotle, Copernicus, Francis Bacon, Isaac Newton, Baruch Spinoza, Voltaire, Emmanuel Kant and Darwin—but not a word about George Bernard Shaw. . . . Tut, tut!

WAS IT BENNETT, OR WAS IT KING?

Government circles have given magnanimous recognition to the past administration, in preparing the way for the Canada-United States reciprocal trade treaty. It is said that the pact took one year and a day to negotiate—and reading over the text of the agreements we can well believe that the clerical details alone would occupy that time—and considerable more may be needed to decipher certain clauses thereof.

The pact has been received with mixed feelings. In one or two instances the outcome appears doubtful. It is not reasonable, for instance, to credit Mr. Bennett with lowering of tariffs which will no longer warrant the continued operation of American branch factories in this country—destroying an influx of industry which resulted happily from the tariffs he imposed, on such items as U. S. publications, toilet preparations, and others. It is early to judge, at this stage. But we believe Mr. Bennett will be loath to accept credit for these phases of the agreement.

"I'VE USED THAT ALL UP"

Poland wished to make a national event of Paderewski's birthday. In objecting, the internationally famous pianist said: "Whatever I have done in the service of my motherland, I did for great love of country. I did not expect, nor do I wish, a reward. Any appeal to the nation to participate in commemorating my birthday will be extremely unpleasant to me."

This statement suggests one which appears frequently in Lloyd Douglas's Magnificent Obsession. When someone whom the doctor has helped financially offers to repay him he replies, "No, I've used that all up." The idea being that good deeds done quietly, secretly, are investments in the Bank of the Universe. In due time one receives back his capital with interest.

Paderewski gave up his music to serve his country in the world war. He was later made Premier. The satisfaction in the thought that he did what he could is evidently enough.

It was recently brought out at a Society of Friends meeting at Richmond that nary a Quaker in the United States has been on "relief"; and many folks have been wondering what the recipe is. There is a Bible statement which might apply here, but some think it is a little hard to take: "I have never seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread."

Argenteuil's New "National Government" Candidate

IN PERSONALITY OF MR. LANCTOT

The National Government candidate is a realist and an idealist in politics.

A realist because—what the people want, he says, is not a shower of words and futile promises, but facts on what is going on at present in Quebec, what changes will be effected after the new party gets in power and what constructive program their candidate has to offer.

He says that the Union Nationale program combines the best there is in Conservatives and the Action Libérale Nationale; the chiefs have given an example of solidarity called for by the difficulties that face the Province. An alliance of that kind has been made before and has reaped the reward of overthrowing the government every time.

In 1850 there was the alliance of Lower and Upper Canada.

There was the alliance of Honoré Mercier with the Conservatives.

And in the British parliament, when MacDonald joined forces with Stanley Baldwin to form a united government. In that instance Mr. MacDonald was Prime Minister, but the bulk of the ministers were chosen by Mr. Baldwin. History repeats itself.

All this illustrates the realist in Argenteuil's National-Conservative Candidate.

There is also in him, the idealist who believes in the dignity and responsibility of one who has been chosen as a representative for his countrymen.

He is looking forward to a revival of honest democratic elections, where people will unite against those who are responsible for fraudulent votes.—This privilege, this power, is given to the electorate—to cast their votes for the benefit of their country.

People should appreciate it, and indeed they are now awakening to the fact that it is the financiers who provide the money for the electoral boxes.

Mr. Lanctot says that the chiefs seeking power are not men from some remote planet, but men of experience, good common sense, alert mind—Mr. Duplessis for example—out of parliament but looking in, with years of study to his credit, and like Mr. Gouin who has been brought into politics by a just revolt against the impotency of the present regime.

CONCRETE INVENTOR IN WANT

Joseph Hall, who 70 years ago revolutionized the building trade by inventing reinforced concrete, is living in a tiny cottage at Coggeshall, England, and fears he will finally lie in a pauper's grave. He was 14 when he patented his invention as "a method of reinforcing concrete in order to render it suitable for building." He patented more than a score of other inventions covering the whole field of concrete construction. Hall was 15 when he put up the first concrete buildings, and two years later Napoleon III commissioned him to build a block of 40 flats in Paris. At 21 he was worth $150,000. With the floating of a company to run the business things began to go wrong. Before he was 25 money and position had gone.

UNUSUAL CIRCUMSTANCES IN DAMAGE SUIT, THREE RIVERS

The Supreme Court recently dismissed a case involving issues of interest to municipalities. The circumstances were unusual, however, and not likely to confront civic authorities in the everyday run of affairs.

The appeal of one Joseph St. Pierre from a judgment of the Superior Court of Quebec which refused his claim for $5,000 against the City of Three Rivers, was dismissed with costs by the Supreme Court.

The cases arose out of an accident when St. Pierre, after spotting gasoline thieves, notified the police and got into the automobile with Police Chief Vachon and gave chase. During the chase Vachon's automobile met with an accident, in which Vachon was fatally injured and St. Pierre suffered serious injuries.

By resolution on June 5, 1934, the city ordered a civic funeral for Police Chief Vachon, paid $3,500 hospital and doctor's bills and funeral expenses of $1,500, and paid his chauffeur's salary while off work.

St. Pierre, in his action, alleged that Vachon drove recklessly; that the municipality assumed responsibility for Vachon's acts; that he (St. Pierre) was obliged by the town by-law to accompany the police in pursuit of the thieves and that if the automobile was defective the municipality was liable.

The Superior Court of Quebec held that the municipality was not responsible for the chief's acts nor for the automobile, and this judgment was upheld by the Court of King's Bench, while Chief Justice Tellier and Justice Bond dissented and would have reversed the judgment and awarded damages.

Canada To Have Streamline Locomotives

Marking the peak of engine development in the fifty years since the driving of the last spike at Craigellachie, the Canadian Pacific Railway has under construction five light-weight locomotives, which are being built to attain a speed of 110 miles per hour. Stream-lining and an increased ratio of power to weight and fuel consumption are their outstanding characteristics. Many of the ideas incorporated in these engines are quite new, having been originated by Canadian Pacific engineers under the supervision of H. B. Bowen, Chief of Motive Power and Rolling Stock. In addition, the Company's engineers closely watched experiments made by leading railways of other countries, and have adapted and developed the best features brought out. The new Canadian Pacific engines mark a long step forward in locomotive construction. The first five engines will be used to improve the Company's passenger service between Montreal and Quebec, and will haul at high speeds trains of new light-weight coaches now being built for the service. They are of 4-4-4 type, with a total engine and tender weight of 430,000 lbs., or about 33 per cent. lighter than engines now running, and designed to do the same relative work. This means a consequent important saving in fuel, water and maintenance. The boilers are of nickel steel designed to stand a pressure of 300 lbs. per square inch, and fittings and appliances are all of the latest type, including super-heaters, feed water heaters, mechanical stokers, roller bearings and tandem connecting rods. They are coal burning, the tenders having a capacity of twelve tons. The tractive effort will be 25,000 lbs.; cylinders 16 1/2 by 28 inches; with the drivers having a diameter of 80 inches. Photographs of a model give a comprehensive idea of the new engines. Inset is H. B. Bowen, Chief of Motive Power, Canadian Pacific Railway.

Mayors Convene Over "Magnificent Distances"

BELL TELEPHONE TECHNICIANS

When Mayor Camillien Houde, C.B.E., spoke by telephone recently with the Mayors of Halifax, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, and they in turn spoke with and heard each other over the telephone circuits that were common to all, the Montreal Chief Magistrate originated and his distant colleagues participated in the longest long distance telephone conference ever set up in Canada. So far as available records show, it was probably unique in several respects in the whole telephone world. The combined conversations lasted a total of thirteen minutes at the conclusion of which Mayor Houde expressed his utmost satisfaction with transmission and reception and pronounced his first attempt in long distance telephone conference arrangements to have been "an unqualified success."

When Mayor Houde spoke into the telephone on his desk at the City Hall to greet his conferees, his office timepiece registered 9.30 o'clock. At one and the same time, it was 6.30 on the west coast and Mayor G. G. McGeer of Vancouver did not fail to remind his caller of the early hour; at Calgary, Mayor A. Davison thought that 7.30 there was a bit premature, too. Mayor John Queen of Winnipeg was up and around a little ahead of time to take his part in the conference at 8.30 but with Mayor E. J. Cragg in Halifax it made not the slightest difference because 10.30 was quite convenient for him. Mayor James Simpson of the Queen City and Mayor George A. Wenige of London, who was with him in Toronto, rather liked the idea because their time is, of course, the same as that in effect at Montreal.

In his customary thoughtfulness, when, on Monday afternoon, he conceived the idea of discussing important matters by telephone with the other civic magnates, Mayor Houde outlined his plan in advance to Division Manager G. M. Grant of the Bell Telephone Company and sought his advice and the co-operation of the Company's plant, traffic, and engineering heads, indicating that he would be ready to talk at the appointed time. That the resulting conference was eminently successful and carried through precisely on time does not begin to tell the story behind the scenes as telephone men know it. The proper alignment of talking circuits to ensure failure-proof results in a round-table confab across such magnificent distances as those in this instance is no mean achievement in itself.

Plant, traffic and engineering experts met in consultation immediately to lay careful plans for the event and to map out the important routings and co-ordination of voice-paths required. Montreal to Halifax was easy; there is a direct telephone channel linking these two cities. The same is true of Bell circuits bridging Montreal with Toronto. To include London required special switching. Similarly, Montreal is linked with Winnipeg by switching at Toronto, through Oshawa. There are the facilities of the Trans-Canada Telephone System to take care of matters between Winnipeg and Vancouver, with switching at Calgary, which city was also included in the arrangements. In addition to the normal Trans-Canada service employed on the Toronto-Winnipeg talk-track, it was necessary to set up a second Montreal-Winnipeg channel to reach Mayor Queen conveniently in the latter city. All this was worked out to complete satisfaction and everything appeared to be in readiness.

Then the fun began. First, it was learned that Mayor Wenige of London would join Mayor Simpson in Toronto for the occasion next day. That meant an important technical change in the alignment of circuits especially prepared in the lay-out to include London in the continent-wide hook-up. It wasn't a serious matter to make this change but it took time, and it meant revising a large part of the original arrangements concluded for the eastern section of the service facilities.

Then came the news that Mayor McGeer would not be available in Vancouver. This was serious. Telephone people on the distant coast were enlisted to assist in the search. The question on all lips was: Where will Mayor McGeer be available at a telephone at 6.30 o'clock tomorrow morning? The quest by telephone led into California, and a merry chase it was, until comforting word reached Montreal that if the conference hook-up could be arranged to include him there, Mayor McGeer would be delighted to participate.

If it could be arranged? . . . that was the immediate problem. This was no ordinary long distance connection merely between Quebec and California. It was a very great deal more, and had to be handled accordingly. Plant men scratched their heavy heads; traffic people consulted charts; engineers put pencils to pads. There would have to be a way, but the idea of a purely transcontinental long distance telephone conference across Canada was definitely out.

Cutting a long story short and pushing into oblivion the headaches brought on, bridging here and patching there developed a sure-fire connection for California with the rest over the voice-highways of the United States Bell Long Lines Department from Los Angeles to New York, thence into Montreal and so on to all of the intercommunicating centres in this country. In Montreal, long distance conference equipment was brought into play while local conference apparatus in Toronto sufficed to give the required connections and outlets for Mayors Simpson and Wenige. Air-line mileages from Montreal to the other six points involved totalled approximately 6,500 miles.

From Fred J. Bloxam, the Bell Telephone Company's District Toll Superintendent in Montreal it was learned that despite the unusual requirements arrangements were completed speedily and the conference was put underway without a previous rehearsal of any kind. Mr. Bloxam pointed out that the personnel of the traffic staff handling the conference circuits included none of the operators who had been on duty at earlier hours when technical alignment of the circuits was being made.

SEVEN SONS ON POLICE FORCE

A family of seven sons, and all in the police force, is the record set up by Mr. and Mrs. M. Duncan, of Postroy, Scotland. Duncan, senior, also served as a policeman for a number of years, but left the force, and took up farming. After leaving school in turn the seven sons tried to farm. Six of them are six feet and over in height, while the youngest, who is only 18, is five feet 11 inches.

Brain and Skin Shrinkage
As early as the thirty-fifth year the brain starts shrinking. The endocrine activities all start to subside, gently as a rule, sometime around forty-five. The end of the upgrade is reached by the ear soon after the thirtieth year; its keenness wanes measurably thereafter and tends to decline progressively but slowly. As the skin dries and toughens it loses its fine receptivity, too; and, as you know, the normal skin starts to become mere hide in the early forties.—Golden Book Magazine.

"Messenger From Allah"
Between 1890 and 1920 in British Somaliland, a fanatic called "The Mad Mullah" carried on a one-man war with Great Britain. Finally one day, when in the desert with relatives and counselors, an airplane appeared in the sky. Never having seen one before he told his party it was a messenger from Allah. The "messenger" dropped his message—a bomb—and killed nearly all of them. The Mullah escaped—but learned his lesson.—Frelling Foster in Collier's Weekly.

Strength of Kites
Not only have kites raised meteorological instruments four and a half miles in the air, but they have carried a 150-pound man to a height of 100 feet. This man-carrying device was a series of five kites, each 12 feet high and 12 feet across, capable of lifting a human being when it was towed slowly by a truck in a dead calm.—Collier's Weekly.

Baked Bat as Medicine
Baked bat, roasted hawk and monkey head are among the ancient "medicines" sold in drug stores of Tokyo, Japan, to those who believe in old-time recipes. For high temperature powdered dragon fly or gold fish are prescribed, while baked sparrow is said to be especially good for rheumatism.

Business is sensitive. It goes only where it is invited and stays only where it is well treated.—Brandon Sun.

GENTLEMEN :

At a largely attended liberal convention, held in Lachute, on the 9th. of November inst., I had the honour of being chosen as liberal candidate in the present election.

I therefore respectfully solicit your vote and support. I am not a stranger to Argenteuil County. I was brought up in Grenville, where I still live. I am a B.A. of the University of Montreal, and I have been associated with my late father in the lumber industry, which I am now managing. I was elected by acclamation, as mayor of the village of Grenville, succeeding my late father.

My father represented this county from 1927 until the time of his death in December of last year. In 1927, the electors of this county conferred upon my father the honour of electing him by acclamation to the Legislative Assembly at Quebec. In 1931 he was re-elected by a large majority. He obtained for this county, since his election in 1927, over two million dollars of grants. From 1931 to 1934 he obtained grants amounting to $904,420.58 for the following public services :

Colonization	$1,504.00
Education	70,227.79
Health	44,593.09
Hospitals	7,029.74
Roads Department	560,192.98
Public Works	204,562.74
Lands and Forests	16,310.24

Thanks to my association with my father I am well aware of the needs and requirements of this County. Although we have built several hundred miles of improved roads throughout Argenteuil, there are still more to improve, and it is my intention to strive to obtain from the government larger grants for education, agriculture, roads and colonization for this territory.

My program is that of the Taschereau government, which I support. Since the present Prime Minister has been at the head of affairs in this Province, his government has paid in grants for improvements the sum of $417,089,719.63, and throughout the depression grants to education have not in any way been decreased. So the depression has affected this Province less than any of the provinces in the Dominion. The Prime Minister has surrounded himself with men of integrity, talent and progress, to administer the different departments of this Province.

The policy of the Taschereau government has been a sane and progressive one; the former Prime Minister of Canada, the Honourable R. B. Bennett, stated at a conference of the different provincial prime ministers of the Dominion, that the Province of Quebec was the only solvent province in the Dominion. Our opponent admits that Mr. Taschereau is an honest man, and that there is no scandal attached to his administration.

As a good pilot, the Honourable Minister Taschereau has steered the ship of state with success through storm and stress. And in a few days, when all the premiers of Canada will meet in Ottawa to confer with the Honourable Mr. King, Prime Minister of the Dominion, as to ways and means of putting an end to unemployment, it is in the interest of this Province to be represented at that meeting by that great statesman, the Honourable M. Taschereau.

Mr. Taschereau will undoubtedly pass in history as the greatest premier Quebec has ever known. There is no question that his government will be returned to power with a large majority, and it is in the interest of the constituents of this county to elect a government candidate, in order to look after our requirements.

I therefore solicit your vote and support in my favor, and in favor of the Taschereau government, on the 25th. of November inst.

Yours faithfully,

Georges-Etienne Dansereau

Trumpet Was Important Even in the Trojan War
The trumpet was widely known in ancient times, playing its part in the fall of Jericho, and even in the Trojan war. Trumpets were martial and royal instruments through the Middle Ages, and the trumpeters' guild became important and influential.
The trumpet is a cylindrical tube about 8 feet long doubled back on itself for ease in handling. The trumpet has three valves or pistons, the use of which enables the player to produce all the tones in the chromatic scale within the compass of the instrument.
The trumpet, like the horn, is provided with a mute, a pear-shaped affair that can be held in the bell in the place of the performer's fist.
The cornet, sometimes mistaken for the trumpet, notes a writer in the Washington Post, is a tapering brass tube a little over 4 feet in length. Its natural key is B-flat, though crooks may be used to set it in A, A-flat or G. The cornetist can give rapid passages, trills, and other embellishments with great ease, but the tone-color of the cornet is below that of the trumpet, which has a bold, martial tone that can be heard through the entire orchestra.
In the classical period of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, the trumpet was not very prominent. Wagner employed it extensively in some of his operas, and he used muted trumpets to imitate the tiny trumpets of the toy-makers' guild in "The Mastersingers."

Sapsuckers Devour Ants, Bark of Trees and Sap

Sapsuckers have short, brushy tongues not adapted to the capture of insects, while the other woodpeckers have tongues with barbed tips which can be extended to spear luckless borers or other insects whose burrows in the wood have been reached by their powerful beaks, according to an authority in the Missouri Farmer. The sapsuckers practically do not feed on wood borers or other forest enemies. Their chief food is ants. About 15 per cent of their diet consists of cambium and the inner bark of trees, and they drink a great deal of sap. The parts of the tree injured by sapsuckers are those that carry the rich sap which nourishes the growing wood and bark. When a small proportion of the bark and cambium are removed, the vitality of the tree may only be lowered, or branches here and there may be killed. When the injury is more extensive, as it often is, the tree may be completely girdled, and, of course, dies. Holes made by sapsuckers go clear through the bark and often into the wood. Generally they are made in rings, or partial rings, around the trunk or limbs, but they often fall into vertical series, and they may be either vertically or horizontally connected. While the hickory is the sapsucker's favorite tree, it attacks no fewer than 258 kinds. It likes apple trees and many young orchards have been destroyed by these birds.

DISCARDED TOYS WANTED

For the eighth successive year, the 1st. Lachute Troop Boy Scouts will join in the annual Christmas Good Turn engaged in by Boy Scouts all over the Dominion. This year, as in the past, Lachute will form a link in the coast-to-coast chain of Scout Toy Repair Shops. In order to make the scheme successful, an appeal is made to the public for old, discarded or damaged toys, children's games, books, etc. These will be repaired and renovated wherever necessary and held ready for distribution among needy children in this locality, as well as children of new settlers in others parts of Canada. To make it possible for the scouts to do the necessary repairs in plenty of time before Christmas, all contributions should be made during the next week or two. Anyone desirous of making a donation of old toys to this worthy cause is asked to notify one of the members of the troop and arrangements will be made to send a messenger for the parcel. No doubt there are many people who have small quantities of paint left over from various jobs, for which they have no further use. The scouts could make very good use of these left-overs, as a large number of the toys require a new coat of paint to freshen them up.

Convention and discussed the work in general, as well as giving an interesting reading on the Legends of French Canada. Several contests were held, Mrs. Wesley Doherty winning the prize in the clothes-pin dressing contest, making, in the opinion of the gentlemen judges, the contest doll. Miss Evans of Lakefield won the Musical Box contest prize by wearing a box of note paper. Mrs. Kuhring, County President, was winner of the W. I. picture contest, naming every picture correctly. Her prize was a pretty embroidered doily.

Pioneer had no regular meeting this month, their gathering with Lachute to hear Miss McCain taking its place.

Upper Lachute - East End had 19 members to give their favorite poem as a roll call. Their subject, in the interests of Canadianization and National Events, was "Thanksgiving." Articles were read by the members on that subject and on Armistice Day topics.

Jerusalem - Bethany presented automobile robes to K. Kettle and K. Boa, these prizes being donated for the best ploughing done by boys of their district in the recent ploughing match. The branch answered their roll call by naming an Argenteuil soldier, also enjoyed the interesting account of her European trip given by Miss Margaret McQuat. Another interesting feature was an apron exhibit. Mrs. D. J. Rogers and Mrs. T. Boa were the prize winners in this contest.

THIS DULL, DULL MONTH

Leaves are off the trees,
Children's curls are tossing.

TITTLE-TATTLE TOWN

"Children, I do wish you would not bring complaints home from school about your playmates and your teacher," said Mother Perry with a tired sigh. "It does not make you the least bit happier to repeat them, and it does not make daddy and mother any happier to hear them. You all know the brave soldier's song that we have been hearing so much of late, 'Pack all your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile.' Instead of doing that you pack them in your school bags and bring them home to me—Babs and I have troubles enough of our own, haven't we Babs?" Mother Perry took the baby out of her basket and hushed her wailing against her shoulder. "Teething time brings worry enough for mothers, without outside worries," she crooned, her face close to Babs' flushed face.

Florrie and Donald looked at each other, rather ashamed. They knew that Mother, was right. Repeating their school troubles did not make them feel happier, it made them feel all hot inside and filled them with desire for revenge. Big brother Bob, who had been watching their faces, said with a twinkle in his eye "Children who tell tales out of school are Tittle-Tattlers and should be shipped to Tittle-Tattle Town. Perhaps you have never heard the old rhyme, 'Tell Tale Tit, your tongue shall be slit, all the dogs in the town shall get a little bit.'"

Florrie shut her mouth tightly as he finished singing. She felt that she would certainly put her hands over her ears if he sang that ditty again. She thought of how often she had been a tell-tale and shivered.

When it came time for bed, she followed Donald upstairs like a little shadow. She usually insisted on "Ladies first", but tonight she kept thinking of big brother's words and watched each familiar shadow along the hall as though fearful that it might turn into a messenger from Tittle-Tattle Town.

She said her prayers rather hurriedly and crept into bed, pulling the covers right up over her head. She knew that was not the proper thing to do, but when one gets in a panic they do not stop to do things properly as a rule.

In a very few moments she heard a rather sharp little voice say "Why has this child her head covered up? Has no one told her that is a very unhealthy way to sleep?" As the sharp-voiced person asked this question the covers were jerked from Florrie's head in no uncertain manner, so that she heard some invisible little person say "She has heard the Health Rules given by her Red Cross Leader quite often in school. I am sure she knows that it is not a healthy way to sleep."

"Then why did she cover her head up?" snapped the first speaker.

"I think—I think" the second speaker began, rather hesitantly "Out with it! What do you think? Time is precious, we cannot linger by this child all night."

"Please, Your Majesty, I do not like to tell you, but I am afraid that she is going to be a Tattle-Tale when she grows up." "So that's it, is it?" said the other voice, "then off to Tittle-Tattle Town she goes at once. If these diseases are not cured in childhood they make trouble for their victims all their lives. Throw out a flare for the bus to Tittle-Tattle Town to stop here, it is due about now."

Florrie tried to call out, to object, but she was tongue-tied, so that she could not make a sound; and suddenly with an ominous buzzing sound the bus for Tittle-Tattle Town stopped outside her window and she was as suddenly lifted from her warm bed, dressed in an enormous green and yellow cloak, very much like Red Riding Hood's in style, and placed in the bus beside a number of other children, all wearing the same sort of cloaks as the one she had on. With a great whirring sound they were off. As the bus started moving some one pulled her cloak. Turning to look she found that Donald was beside her, staring at her with wide frightened eyes. "He has found that his tongue is tied too" she thought, and she was sorry for Donald, but rather glad that she would not be alone in this strange town to which they were going. Perhaps they would find some way of escaping. If they could only talk to one another they might plan something. Suddenly she thought of the dummy signs they used at school, sometimes, just for fun.

She had just signalled to Donald, "How shall we escape?" when her hands came down with a smack on her knees, and try as she would she could not lift them again. Looking at Donald she saw that his hands were in the same position. Some of the other children's hands were on their knees too. Florrie had noticed this as she was placed in the bus and rather wondered why; now she understood.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

A National Boy Scouts Association of China has been formed under the auspices of the Chinese Government.

The latest world Scout census reports show 2,472,014 Scouts and leaders in 47 countries (the British Empire counted as one.)

A BOY SCOUT TOREADOR

Although the Boy Scout code would not permit bull fighting, a successful battle, Toreador fashion, with a pitch-fork as a weapon, won a Silver Cross for Scout Leslie Wilkinson, 15, of Northants, England. The animal had twice tossed a farmer when the boy arrived. He attacked the beast with the fork, jabbing it until it turned and pursued him. He leaped a fence to safety, the farmer meanwhile crawling out of danger. Completing his good turn the Scout rendered first aid to the injured man.

RUSSIAN BOY SCOUTS

Shortly prior to the Russian revolution Czar Nicholas had the textbook by Lord Baden-Powell, "Scouting for Boys", translated at his own expense into Russian, to encourage the growth of Scouting in that country. The Soviet Government suppressed the movement ruthlessly. A few Scout troops tried to carry on in secret, but were gradually stamped out. The only Russian youth movement now permitted is the "Young Pioneers", membership in which is practically compulsory, and which is anti-religious, and teaches class warfare. There are a number of Russian Scout groups in other countries composed of sons of Russian refugees.

CALF EATS DYNAMITE

R. G. Meyers, a farmer of Essex, Ia., killed his calf after it had eaten dynamite.

"I guess the fool thing mistook the dynamite for rock salt," said Meyers.

The dynamite didn't explode, but it made the calf very ill.

"That's the reason I killed it," said Meyers, "but then you couldn't figure a calf full of dynamite as very safe to have around the barnyard."

PARENTS SHOULD SET THEIR OWN DISCIPLINE

Parents sometimes expect a great deal from their children's teachers. They expect them to look after the discipline both in school and out of it. And that is a bit too much. It is the parents' job to look after their children out of school hours. The principal of a large school was asked by one mother if he would punish her son severely if he came late. She said she could not get the boy up in the mornings as he would do nothing she told him. Another mother asked the teacher if he would give her child more home-work as she could not keep him off the streets at night. And this boy was in the public school! What an admission of defeat, to expect a teacher to do the disciplining.

HOMEWORK

There are a good many things to be said on both sides of the question of giving homework. To my way of thinking it is a symptom of failure on the part of a teacher if much home-work is given. The working-day has been shortened considerably and there is constant talk of further shortening it but there has been no shortening of the school day. Children should do their school work in school and that is a sufficiently long working day, for that particular kind of work. If the work has not been finished in school through a child's inattention or neglect then there may be an excuse for expecting it to be done at home. Important as school is, there are other things in life that a child should have time to do. Time for music, reading and a hobby of some sort. If the evenings are all taken up with home-work life becomes too crowded.

CARE IN STERILISING

I saw a woman carefully sterilise her sealers and then as she took them out of the boiling water she wiped them off with a dirty towel, wiping the inside of the jar at the top very carefully. There is not much sense in sterilising a jar and then contaminating it by contact with unsterilised articles. After a jar is sterilised it should not be touched on the inside nor on the top by anything. It is much better to let the moisture remain on the jar than to wipe it out with an unsterilised cloth.

SCALLOPED POTATOES

When the cold weather comes Scalloped Potatoes are a favorite dish in most families. There are two methods of making them. One way is to add flour to thicken the milk and bake in a moderate oven. The other method gives the best results to my way of thinking. Slice potatoes evenly into a baking dish, seasoning with salt, pepper, and dotting with butter on three layers for the average-sized dish. Pour in milk until it just shows through. Then bake in a hot oven for an hour or more until the potatoes are tender. The hot oven is the secret of the success of the dish. If the oven is not hot enough the potatoes will have too much liquid but if the oven is hot all the surplus liquid will be absorbed. When the oven is hot enough the liquid is almost sure to boil over in the oven and the house will be full of smells and the oven will be hard to clean. After enduring this for years I tried putting a pan partly filled with water on the bottom of the oven and the milk could boil over to its heart's content and no harm was done. Do not stand the pan in the dish of water but just put it underneath to catch the drips. I always have a feeling of satisfaction when I serve Scalloped Potatoes as they are almost a balanced meal in themselves. There is the starch and minerals in the potatoes, the fat in the butter, and proteid and more minerals in the milk. So from every standpoint Scalloped Potatoes are a good dish to serve.

COOKIES

1 cup butter
3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
3 eggs
Sift flour and baking powder, add sugar and rub in butter as for pastry. Stir in the well-beaten eggs and roll as thin as possible. Bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees. If the dough is well chilled before rolling, it can be rolled much thinner and is easier to handle. These cookies may be decorated before baking with raisins, nuts, cherries, or a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. I usually make some of each as it gives a variety of cookies from the same dough. If almonds are used they should be blanched and slightly browned before putting on the cookie dough as the length of time required to bake the cookie is not long enough to brown the almonds and make them crisp.

RASPBERRY DESSERT

1 cup raspberry jam
¾ cup applesauce
½ cup graham wafer crumbs
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ cup cream
1 teaspoon sugar
4 marshmallows
Mix raspberry jam, applesauce, graham wafer crumbs and lemon juice. Cut marshmallows in small pieces with wet scissors. Whip cream and add sugar and vanilla. Reserve 2 tablespoons whipped cream for a garnish. Add the remaining whipped cream and the marshmallows to the first mixture. Taste to see if more sugar or lemon juice is required. Put in sherbet glasses, decorate with cream and chill.

interesting to note that Mrs. G. F. Kuhring, president of the Argenteuil Women's Institutes, is scheduled for an address, December 20, on the aims and objects of the Study Club movement.

The Fifteenth Annual Short Course at Lennoxville

The co-operation between the various agricultural societies, the Lennoxville Experimental Farm and the Women's Institutes which has made possible the holding of a three days' course in agriculture for boys and household science for girls in Lennoxville for fifteen years, was again in evidence during the first full week in November, assuring the success of this annual event, which is growing in interest and achievement year by year. The attendance in both boys' and girls' classes was record-breaking, and would have been even larger if facilities had enabled the handling of larger classes. Poultry, farm management, fertilizers, fruits, grains, and hoed crops were subjects of lectures for the boys, the speakers including several from the staff of Macdonald College, from Quebec and Lennoxville Experimental Farm. The Household Science classes covered in their studies the making-up of suitable school lunches, pickling and preserving, and was climaxed by serving of a dainty afternoon tea, when the menu consisted of grapefruit and orange salad, assorted sandwiches and cakes. These classes were instructed by Miss Hazel B. McCain, of the School of Household Science, Macdonald College, Superintendent of Quebec Women's Institutes, assisted by Miss I. Beach, Cowansville.

A home nursing class was sponsored by Sherbrooke County Women's Institute, with the V.O.N. as instructors, a very intensive course, mapped out by Miss Dwane and her assistants, being carried out. The visitors, numbering around one hundred and fifty, were supplied with lunch for the three days of the Course by the Lennoxville Branch of the Women's Institutes, and the course closed with a banquet catered for by the Ascot Branch. The remainder of the evening was devoted to the prize giving, a public speaking contest by members of the classes, and music.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Help Nature with Nature. Your kidneys filter and remove poisons from the body. Naturally when the kidneys function improperly poisons accumulate in the system with resulting symptoms such as backaches, rheumatism, headaches and other distressing conditions. If you've tried various remedies without results and are tired of just treating symptoms, get at the cause of your trouble with "Crazy" Water Crystals — the snow-white minerals from our natural water — the same type of water that built America's great health resort. To take this mineral water "cure" at home, just add "Crazy" Water Crystals to your drinking water and drink it just as you would if you could visit the "Crazy" Wells. A parson wrote to the Bishop asking him to come and hold a "quiet day". The Bishop declined, saying: "Your parish does not need a quiet day; it needs an earthquake."

QUEEN'S CASTLE TO BE HOTEL

Once the home of the late Queen Alexandra and her sister, the late Empress Dagmar of Russia, mother of the murdered Czar, the beautiful royal castle of Hvidore, in Denmark, is to be converted into a hotel and restaurant. Queen Alexandra acquired it in 1905. Two years later she built a big open fireplace in one of the drawing-rooms. There is an inscription in the mantelpiece reading: "East or West—Home is Best". With the sign A. (Alexandra). At one time it was rumored that the castle would be acquired by King George, but owing to his ill-health, it is stated, the purchase was never accomplished.

ALL KINDS OF RACKETS

The following from the Coleman (Alta.) Journal is interesting and may serve as a warning to housewives.

"A man who recently sold artificial flowers from house to house in the Pass towns, was arrested by the mounted police on a charge of having a stolen car in his possession. His story was that he had borrowed the car from a friend in Saskatchewan but overlooked returning it. To Coleman housewives he told a story of having been 'yodelling cowboy,' and he was trying to get sufficient money to buy a new artificial limb." —He had a wooden leg but it wouldn't work!

LADIES' ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENTED AT CENOTAPH

Two local ladies' organizations were represented at the depositing of wreaths on Remembrance Day at the memorial monument in Lachute. Miss L. Hampton laid a wreath on behalf of the St. Simeon's Ladies' Guild, and a wreath by the Women's Institutes was laid by Mrs. G. F. Kuhring, president, Mrs. MacQuaig, first vice-president, and Mrs. Ardill, treasurer, of the county organization.

AS YOU WERE, LADIES!

The high heel is "a powerful and vicious factor in the development of foot disorder when worn during working hours" says Dr. Dudley J. Morton, Professor of Anatomy at the Columbia Medical School.

The slogan for business success, "Keep on your toes," appears to be contradicted by this call of Dr. Dudley's "Back to earth, you women workers, you'll last longer and get farther."

Of course when the ladies step out in the evening they may still step up, providing they counteract the harm done by coming off their perches next day.

An Appeal to the Electors

FRIENDS AND ELECTORS:

Had time permitted I should have endeavored to make a personal canvas of the county, but Provincial elections following so closely upon the Federal, has made that impossible—and I must therefore make my appeal through the medium of the Press in solicitation for support of my candidacy.

I am by no means a stranger to Argenteuil for I have been a resident in your midst for many years.

At the earnest solicitation of many constituents I have been asked to stand for election in this contest as a National-Liberal Conservative, and while it was my desire to have Joint Meetings throughout the County, this was denied our committee, and we have had to resort to individual meetings in which I have made my stand clear to the electors. Our programme is outlined in my personal letter to the electors.

That my opponent, Mr. Geo. Dansereau, was undoubtedly the choice of the Central Liberal Organization was proven by the withdrawal of two seriously-minded candidates, who up to Nomination Day were in the running, and then were quietly subdued. I say this because they have referred to my having "imposed" myself on the County. This is not so, because I did not seek the position, the position sought me. And now that I have taken it on, I do most sincerely plead for the conscientious vote of the electors of this county.

The government has become so firmly entrenched by the outstanding tentacles of graft, in every form of departmental favors, that they are running our affairs only with the idea of retention of office and for advancement of their party friends.

You may rest assured that the county will receive its just due, because—being known as a practical man—I have the courage and will fight in the interests of what I believe to be right.

Balinese Refined, Look at Life Optimistically

For generations the Balinese have been a race of masters, employing the inhabitants of neighboring islands as their slaves. This helps to account for their refinement, the perfect formation of their hands and feet and the fine small bones of their heads and faces. Even their religion is refined, asserts a writer in the Montreal Herald. Their temples have nothing of the crawling restlessness of India and their conception of punishment in a future life is to be robbed of the power of appreciating beauty; to be degraded not in body but in mind.

Laughter is a great beautifier and the women of Bali spend much time laughing. Their religion, unlike the Hinduism of the mainland of India from which their race came, has nothing of terror or gloom. Even the most fearsome of their gods has a twinkle in his eye, and seems to say: "My image is so ugly that you really must take it with a grain of salt." Death itself is an occasion for supreme merrymaking. Corpses are piled on a wheeled tower of bamboo, often more than 30 feet high, decorated with gilt scrolls, paper streamers and banners. From this tower the bodies in their built-shaped coffins slide down a sort of switch-back to the fire, while everybody dances and sings.

Early Rhinoceroses

Scientific research indicates that the earliest North American rhinoceroses were those which appeared on the plains of Wyoming and Utah, along with the four-toed horse, in Eocene times, about forty to fifty million years ago. In Oligocene time, about 35,000,000 years ago, they are known to have been numerous in the great plains region about the Black Hills, where they became adapted as ordinary plains and woodland animals, as swift-footed runners, and as heavy-bodied river animals. In Miocene and Pliocene times, the first about 20,000,000 and the latter about 8,000,000 years ago, they re-appeared in the rivers which flowed eastward across the plains of Kansas and Nebraska.

Pony Express Started in 1860; Telegraph Ended It

The Pony Express began operations at 7 p. m. on the night of April 3, 1860. The crowd which had collected at the little depot in St. Joseph, Mo., to see the mail transferred from the iron horse to one of flesh and blood had departed after a long wait for the train, and if there were spectators, none considered it of sufficient importance to record the name of the first rider to set out from the eastern terminus of the route. Through a succession of horses and riders this mail was delivered in San Francisco on April 14, 1860.

The motto of the riders seems to have been to keep the mail moving, and if there was no relief rider available at a station, it was necessary to change horses and go on. The records show that Buffalo Bill Cody, Pony Bob Haslam, and others made continuous rides of more than 300 miles. The entire undertaking was very costly and a great deal of money was lost in the venture, and, although rates were $5 a half ounce at the start, it has been said that each letter delivered cost the company over a thousand dollars.

The transmission of the first telegraphic message to the Pacific coast on October 24, 1861, sounded the knell of the Pony Express, and within a few days it had passed into history.—Chicago Tribune.

Heavy Vessels Go to Bottom

Heavy vessels such as modern liners are so much heavier than sea water that they will sink to the sea bottom. It might be possible for a wooden vessel, carrying a cargo of light density like cork, to weigh no more than water after filling with water. Such a vessel would be like a water-logged piece of wood which sinks to a certain depth but not to the bottom. Sea water weighs about 64 pounds to the cubic foot at the surface and a little more at the deepest part of the ocean. Practically all modern ships, when filled with water and even including entrapped air, will weigh much more than this per cubic foot, and will therefore sink to the bottom.—Detroit News.

Mrs. H. C. Cooke is spending a couple of weeks in Ottawa, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. H. E. Cooke.

Rev. H. MacPhail, of Montreal, was guest speaker at the United Church Sunday evening.

Mr. Wm. MacRae, of Montreal, was a guest at the Manse over the week-end.

Mr. Haigue Staniforth, of Montreal, spent the week-end in town.

Mr. Charles Ellsworth, of Montreal, was the guest of his aunt, Mrs. M. Smillie, over the week-end.

For the past fifteen years Mrs. Cooke has been organist and choir leader of the church, and a willing worker in the Ladies' Aid and Girls' Guild, also a generous helper in many of the church entertainments. Mr. and Mrs. Cooke and daughter, Margaret, have recently taken up residence in Montreal and will remain there until the end of the school term.

The play entitled Eyes of Love, held in Staniforth's Hall, Arundel, last Saturday evening under auspices of the Girls' Guild and Y.P.S. of the United Church, was an unqualified success. The event was attended by an appreciative audience which filled the hall to capacity. The players included Mrs. Wilfred Morrison, Mrs. S. K. McArthur, Misses Laura Staniforth, Velma Moncrieff and Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Jeremy Morrisette in the loss of their little son, who died last week while on a visit to Buckingham with his parents. The little fellow, only three years old, was seized with an attack of appendicitis and taken to a hospital at Buckingham, where an operation was performed, but he passed away shortly afterwards. The remains were interred in Buckingham.

Mr. Ross Swail, who was the victim of such a shocking accident at Arundel on Sunday last, was quite well known in this vicinity, being a cousin of Miss Iris Evans of No. 2 school. The news of his terrible mishap has occasioned much sorrow and sympathy in the community.

RECENT MARRIAGE AT CALUMET, QUE.

RACINE — GREGOIRE

The marriage of Miss Aurore Gregoire, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Gregoire, to Mr. Hector Racine, son of the late Emery Racine and Mrs. Racine, took place in the Calumet Roman Catholic Church on Saturday morning, Oct. 16. The Rev. Father Rolland officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was unattended. She wore a gown of blue chiffon velvet, a turban of the same, draped with a smart silver face veil. She wore silver sandals and carried an arm bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, where a delicious wedding breakfast was served. Mr. Racine and his bride left later amid a shower of rice and confetti for Montreal, the latter travelling in a brown tweed suit and blouse of egg-shell satin, with hat, shoes, gloves and bag to match.

On their return, on the 18th., a ball was given in their honor in the town hall. Supper was served to about 200 guests, after which there was music and dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Racine will reside in Calumet.

"TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATION" FOR PAST 25 YEARS"

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Welcome Relief

Read this voluntary letter from Mr. Lecour: "I have been troubled with constipation" for the past 25 years. I tried practically every cathartic without results.

"Recently, I determined to give Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a fair trial. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has not only helped me, but I believe it is an actual relief for chronic constipation."—Mr. Henry E. Lecour. Address upon request.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. It also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle—and safe for normal individuals. Often more effective than "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

Isn't this natural food pleasanter than patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoonsful daily. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Argenteuil Again Returns Liberal Representative to Quebec

Small Majority Elects Georges E. Dansereau

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT
MET STRONGEST CHALLENGE SINCE 1897

Georges Dansereau emerged victorious in Argenteuil's provincial contest, polling an unofficial 125-vote majority over his Union party opponent, J. P. Lancôt, K.C., in one of the keenest provincial campaigns seen here in years, despite the short time at disposal of the two candidates to make their appeal. Thus the county sends, once again, a Liberal representative to Quebec, filling the vacancy left by the death of the late Georges Dansereau senior. His son and successor assumes the responsibility so ably upheld by the late member, and will doubtless fill the seat to the credit and benefit of his constituency.

The contest, while of short duration, was nevertheless quite exciting. Mr. J. P. Lancôt, K.C., proved his worth in forcing a very vigorous and active campaign. Though a resident in the county for many years, he was practically unknown to many of the constituents and entertained no thought of political ambition—otherwise he would undoubtedly have aligned himself in former issues. In the shortage of time he made a whirlwind campaign, gaining the sympathy of the electors as he made his straightforward appeal on behalf of the National-Liberal-Conservative group. This was evidenced in the large vote recorded on his behalf.

The contest ran close outside the county as returns came in on Monday night. At one stage in the results the Liberals and the Union group stood each with 29 candidates elected, after which the Taschereau group pulled ahead and emerged with a majority of only 6 seats, including an Independent Liberal.

LOCAL SPEAKERS ON HELPFUL TOPICS

COUNTY W. I. HELD FALL MEETING

The Fall meeting of the County Women's Institutes was held last Friday evening in Lachute High School, with a fine representation from all the local branches. Mrs. G. F. Kuhring, as President, was in the chair and referred enthusiastically to the work of the organization and the splendid co-operation extended to her during her tenure of office, which has lightened and heartened her in the duties performed.

Dr. J. H. Mason gave a very interesting address on Child Welfare and Public Health, in which he imparted valuable information upon the diseases of childhood, preventive medicine, immunization and general care.

Principal C. Hall followed with a discussion of "What is wrong with Education"; he continued that instead of asking "What is wrong?" one should consider "What is Right?" with education. The speaker traced the history of education from its earliest inception up to the present; it was estimated that only 20 percent of a child's life was spent under influence of the school, the remaining 80 percent being under home and outside surveillance. He paid tribute to his mother's influence, as she had safeguarded

HUMOROUS INCIDENT IN RENOVATING CHURCH

ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO REV. ALLAN E. MOUNT

By Our Lakefield
Correspondent

In connection with the renovations to Holy Trinity Church at Lakefield, the following humorous circumstance has come to light:

Mr. Bolton, the architect, went to select and purchase the paint for this job. He said to the paint dealer, "I want 40 gallons for a poor country church, so you must let me have it near wholesale." The man asked where the church was located and the architect replied "At Lakefield." "Is that the place where an old man named Mount used to preach?" "Why, yes," said Mr. Bolton. "Well then, you don't get it wholesale."—Then the man's face softened and he added smiling—"You get it for nothing!"

As the conversation continued, it was revealed that Rev. A. E. Mount was at one time the man's Sunday School teacher.

Shortage of Skilled Workers in Britain

England, the originator of the machine age, has had such a rapid mechanization of her business and industry that she has had to have recourse to importing machines. Her factories have been unable to keep up with the demand which returning prosperity has created, due, in a large measure, to a shortage of skilled labour. This applies not only to machine-work but to foundries engaged in supplying metal for the machines. So critical has the situation become with regard to foundries that a British Foundry School has been opened to supply trained workers in metallurgy, factory practice and foundry management, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

his reading and enabled him to cultivate the love of good books that were helpful and uplifting. Touching upon the radio, which he claimed could be either a blessing or a curse, he stressed the necessity of taking advantage of cultural music as broadcast from the New York Philharmonic Symphony, and classical features of this kind, rather than the "trash" that was degenerating. He made a scathing denunciation of fathers who would spend

Argenteuil Livestock in Good Standing at the Toronto "Royal"

The Royal Winter Fair at Toronto brought credits again to local livestock breeders. Messrs. C. J. Miller and J. H. Black, exhibiting Arys hire cattle, and Gilbert Arnold of Grenville with Percheron horses, all won enviable standings in a competition that was remarkably keen. The closeness of the contest is vouched for by Mr. Geo. Hay, who went to the Royal to assist in the horse judging. The classes, he asserted, were unusually heavy and rendered the decisions very difficult. We understand Mr. Hay was complimented on his work by various provincial ministers. It is no small honor to one from this county, to be appointed judge in Dominion-wide entries of livestock.

GEORGES DANSEREAU,
Elected representative of Argenteuil County in the Quebec Assembly

Georges Etienne Dansereau, after acquiring an elementary education at Grenville, enrolled in St. Mary's College, Montreal, where he won his Bachelor of Arts degree. His parents had ideas about their son's career, but his business tastes were those of his father, and following completion of his scholastic career he became a partner in the lumbering and other interests founded by the late member for this county, Georges Dansereau senior, who was elected by acclamation as representative in the Quebec legislature in 1927; this honor was repeated in 1931; in December of last year, when he died, he was both mayor and legislative representative.

On the death of the elder Mr. Dansereau, people of all classes and political faiths approached Georges Etienne Dansereau and proffered to him the mayoralty of his native Village of Grenville, so long held by his revered father, and he was promptly elevated by acclamation to the high office.

Mayor Dansereau, now M.L.A. returned by majority vote in this county, is a gentleman of many excellent parts. He is cultured, an excellent speaker and a student of political science. In his student days he was an athlete and is still a patron of athletics; he is a Rotarian, a bachelor and what the world terms a good mixer.

Session to Open in January ... Enlargement of Empire Agreements Discussed ... Prison Reform on Agenda for Parliament

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, November 26.—To the average Canadian, one of the most interesting bills introduced in the next session will be that which amends the Customs Act so as to permit Canadians touring in the U. S. to bring back $100. in merchandise without either paying duty or violating their principles. Canadian merchants living along the border are not unanimously in favor of it, but if it is properly safeguarded against abuse it should be generally popular. After all, the Canadian merchants benefit from the reverse privilege accorded to American tourists, and if we are not prepared to reciprocate, we are likely to lose the business which American tourists extend to us here. Regulations for this concession are being worked out: it is suggested that a visitor must be at least three days in the United States to exercise this right, and that the privilege be restricted to twice a year. Also, it is not going to be possible to bring back $100. of cigarettes or liquor without paying excise taxes. The Canadian treasury needs funds too badly to allow that.

JUSTICE COUSINEAU REJECTS PETITION

CRUSHED BY FALLING TREE AT STE. ADELE

Crushed beneath a tree which fell on him as he was chopping it, on Tuesday morning, Ovide Corbeil, 64-year-old farmer of Ste. Adele is near death at his home. He is suffering from a fractured skull and severe internal injuries.

Corbeil, it was learned, was chopping the tree and was giving the last few strokes with his axe when the tree suddenly fell. Before he had time to escape he was crushed beneath its weight. He was carried to his home, where a doctor was called. After examining the victim the physician stated that there was little hope of saving his life.

STRIKE SETTLED AT DOMINION SHUTTLE CO'Y

WORK RESUMED ON WEDNESDAY

Dissatisfied with the wages prevailing at the Dominion Shuttle Company here, thirty employees came out on strike last Monday. Demands were made to the management on Saturday for revision of rates in the various departments of the factory, but the request was denied and on Monday, hearing this decision, the thirty men refused to work.

It is understood that, on motion of the Town Council, a request for investigation of wage conditions, in Lachute was sent recently to Quebec, following numerous complaints of inadequate pay to employees. The outcome of the investigation was not heard, but it is apparent that this particular company made no effort to satisfy the workers.

Work was resumed on Wednesday, the rate of pay, according to available reports, being unchanged.

Six Men Charged in Hawkesbury Theft

Town and provincial police made six arrests in Hawkesbury one night last week, of local men ranging in age from 17 to 35 years, charged with theft and receiving of stolen goods. Victims of the robbery were Messrs. Higginson and Stevens. It was alleged that an unused quarry owned by them was broken into and a stationary motor valued at $600 stolen. Police claim that one of the prisoners bought the motor from the thieves and later broke it up and sold the parts. The theft was reported to the police over a month ago.

The men, who were lodged in L'Original jail, appeared before Magistrate B. R. Poulin Tuesday last; they were remanded in custody until Monday of this week.

The Watchman Office was visited this week by an old subscriber, Rev. J. G. Poitras, who although 72 years of age walked from Brownsburg to Lachute—a hike which many a younger person would not care to make, much less for the sole purpose of paying their newspaper subscription. Mr. Poitras is energetic and in perfect health. Our column of local history this week notes that, just 25 years ago, the Roussillon mission school was completed, this work being supervised by Mr. Poitras himself.

Deciding that it had not been proved that the Town of Lachute had omitted, neglected or refused to accomplish a duty imposed by law, and that any assistance the town gave to unemployed was only a humane act, Mr. Justice Philemon Cousineau, in Superior Court at St. Jerome last Thursday, dismissed the petition of Paul Joly, Romeo Chartrand and Rosaire Gariepy, three men of this town, asking for a writ of mandamus against Lachute Corporation with costs.

The petitioners claimed that on April 5, 1935, the Town Council passed a resolution ordering their arrest and that they had been arrested on the night of April 6 without warrants and placed in jail. The object, it was claimed, was to frighten the labor class in Lachute and disrupt the newly formed labor association. The plaintiffs spent eight days and nights in jail at St. Jerome and appeared in court on April 13 when they were dismissed. The trio then took action against Lachute for damages. The council on May 10 passed a resolution whereby it was decided to give work to the unemployed with exception of the three petitioners, despite the fact that they were in need.

Mr. Justice Cousineau, in his judgment, stated that the town was not obliged by law to give work to anyone, and that its action in aiding unemployed was simply an act of humanity. This, therefore, could not be taken as a civil obligation. Under the circumstances the court ruled that the plaintiffs had no rights and the case was dismissed.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS CLAIMED HIGH TOLL

ONTARIO HAD MOST FATALITIES

A total of 1,108 persons in Canada were killed in automobile accidents last year and 17,998 were injured, according to a revised report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Property damage in these crashes amounted to $1,266,413.

Ontario had the largest number of fatal accidents, in which 527 persons were killed. In Quebec the total was 274. British Columbia's list was 81, Alberta's 61, New Brunswick's 52, Manitoba's 41, Nova Scotia's 37, Saskatchewan's 30 and Prince Edward Island's five.

Of the killed 437 were pedestrians and 470 occupants of motor cars. Motor cyclists, bicycle riders and others made up the total.

Amongst those injured were 9,798 occupants of motor cars, 6,066 pedestrians, 1,059 bicycle riders, with the remainder made up of motor cyclists and others.

Miss Juliette Rodrigue of Lachute was heard very acceptably in last Friday evening's performance of the Radio-Canada Symphony Orchestra; her piano solo, Prelude in E minor (Mendelssohn), was particularly enjoyed. Although playing in Montreal and broadcast over the trans-Canada network, the concert was heard here from CRCO., Ottawa. The Montreal station was monopolized at that hour by election speakers.

Advance in Modern Music Credited to the Greeks

Greece began the formal advance of music, as it did other arts, observes a writer in the Kansas City Times. The tetrachord, a scale of four tones, having one interval a half-tone and the others whole tones, was used. To the time of Terpander, 650 B. C. this existed in many forms, called modes, and further designated by the names of their originators. The lyre, the chief musical instrument, had four strings, and could be tuned to any of the modes to adapt it to the singer's voice, and also was used to give the pitch.

Terpander added a second tetrachord to the scale, making the first note of the second the same as the last note of the first, and formed a seven-note scale. A century later Pythagoras introduced the octave system, which is the foundation of modern music. Athens soon was stirred with emotion over the music of Sophocles "Antigone" and other dramas, the forerunner of the opera.

BANK OF MONTREAL STATEMENT SHOWS USUAL STRONG POSITION

Total Assets Show Gain — Liquid Assets Equal 74.48 Per Cent. of all Liabilities to the Public—Deposits Also Show Increase

Strong in all departments, the annual statement of the Bank of Montreal just issued contains many interesting features.

The statement, which covers the fiscal year to October 31st, is issued in an easily understandable form, and the general public may more fully appreciate the security that is afforded both depositors and shareholders. The statement shows that at the close of the fiscal year the total assets of the Bank were $792,772,872 as compared with $759,108,178 a year ago, an increase of over $33,000,000.

Included in total assets are liquid assets of $533,374,811, against $491,247,207, a gain of over $40,000,000, and equal to 74.48 per cent. of all liabilities to the public. An outstanding feature is the holdings of government and other bonds and debentures amounting to $361,769,848, as compared with $317,936,912 a year ago, an increase of over $43,000,000. In keeping with the Bank's policy, the greater portion consists of gilt-edge securities which mature at early dates.

The immediately available cash is represented by cash on hand and money on deposit with the Bank of Canada of $82,711,635; notes of and cheques on other banks $27,614,596; and money on deposit with other banks of $37,764,631.

Call loans outside of Canada now stand at $18,835,238, down from $32,133,844. The decline may be attributed to the unusually low interest rates that have prevailed in the principal money markets of the world. At the same time call loans in Canada have declined to $4,435,736 from $8,399,657.

Current Loans Lower

While there have been reports of gains in many lines of business, current loans have not shown a tendency to increase, with the result that loans to manufacturers, farmers and merchants now stand at $234,461,311, down from $243,477,041.

Of special interest is the continued tendency of deposits to expand throughout the country, and, as a result, total deposits have now gained to $676,944,866 from $630,218,835 a year ago.

The Bank shows that it has total assets of $792,772,872, with which to meet payment of liabilities to the public of $716,107,779 leaving an excess of assets over liabilities to the public of $76,665,093.

Profit and Loss Account

The profit and loss account shows earnings slightly down from the previous year. It also indicates that the Bank's taxes to Dominion and Provincial Governments exceed $1,000,000.

Profit for the year amounted to $4,007,302, against $4,105,024 in the previous year. From the profit, taxes to Dominion and Provincial Governments required $1,002,089, leaving for distribution $3,005,212. Of this amount dividends to shareholders took $2,880,000, leaving an amount to be carried forward of $125,212. The net profits of $3,005,212 were equal to 3.92 per cent. of capital, surplus and undivided profits. After provision for taxes and dividends, the balance brought forward increased the balance of profit and loss carried forward to $1,935,033.

That Explains It!

A Chinese soldier in the course of conversation with a British soldier at Shanghai asked why the British almost always win their battles. "Before goin' into action," explained the "Tommy," "we always pray." To which the other retorted that the Chinese also prayed before a battle — "Yes, but the point is, wot language do yer pray in?" — "In Chinese, of course." — "Well, that explains why yer don't win yer battles, don't it?" "Oo understands Chinese?" C.N.R. Magazine.

of season. But after learning from one of the experts of the customs department that is seasonal protection which is still left to them ranges between 50 per cent and a little over a hundred per cent, I cannot get very much exercised over their plight. Meantime, when Canadian fruits and vegetables are not on the market, the imports from other countries should be from 10 to 25 per cent cheaper, an idea which appeals to most consumers, I imagine.

The session definitely begins in January: of this more anon. There are rumors, unsubstantiated here, that Mackenzie King will go to England before the session. Hon. Vincent Massey is already taking up with the British the possible enlargement of the Ottawa agreements. The Liberals are prepared to lower the duties on British textiles and other items substantially, especially if in return the British are prepared to treat Canadian Goods favorably. Canada seems, on paper, to have done so much better than Britain out of the 1932 agreements that she could afford to be considerably more generous in tariff treatment without any specific tariff concession, one is inclined to think.

CHEAPER AUTOMOBILES

First fruits of the United States agreement is the reduction in automobile prices. The makers don't seem to have conceded as much as the proposed cut in tariffs warrants, but at least they are prepared to compromise. After January 1st., if their prices haven't gone down as much as they should, the consumer has the remedy in his own hands. He can import from the United States. The cut in tariffs will cost many Canadian business houses a fair sum, because they will have to clear stock at reduced prices. Some of the retailers may be able to liquidate their stocks between now and the end of the year without much reduction, but the fact that after January 1st. there will be keener competition from the United States will lead many of them, it is expected, to copy the motor car manufacturers and go half-way with their customers.

A royal commission to investigate Canadian prisons and report on modern methods of reforming inmates is on the agenda of the Liberals: perhaps by the time this appears the personnel will have been named. The modern conception of the convicted man or woman is that the penitentiary should be a reform school rather than a punitive or sadistic institution: that the inmates in most cases will again be turned loose on society, and the more anxious they are at the end of their sentence to begin a new life the better it is for all concerned.

WHEAT CHANGES PENDING

The Canadian Wheat Board is about due for some changes. One report says the present board will retire at an early date, and be replaced by three members named by the Liberal cabinet. E. B. Ramsay of the board of grain commissioners is said to be an almost certain choice, together with a farmer from the west and possibly a representative of the western agricultural colleges. Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is giving considerable attention to the wheat problem these days. The statistical picture is slowly brightening.

New Zealand has lowered duties on our automobiles when shipped unassembled — raised them when shipped assembled. She gets an assembling plant out of the manoeuvre, it seems.

Not Fast Enough!

Sir Malcolm Campbell, who drove his speed car more than three hundred miles an hour, and who afterward did some talking about safe driving, lost out in his campaign for a seat in Parliament. He evidently was not fast enough for his opponent.

ITALY AND THE BOY SCOUTS

Prior to the Fascist regime there were 40,000 Boy Scouts in Italy. As part of his plan to secure national unity, Mussolini demanded but one youth movement, the Balilla, the junior branch of the Fascisti. Following discussions, the Pope acquiesced and reluctantly closed down the Italian Scout Association. Mussolini, however, is not antagonistic toward the Scout movement in other countries. Scout visitors to Italy have been received in friendly fashion and without any attempt at propaganda.

GERMANY AND THE BOY SCOUTS

Before the coming of Hitler and Nazi-ism to Germany there were several German Scout associations, but none recognized by the Boy Scouts International Bureau as representative of the whole of Germany. Five organizations had come into a loose federation when the whole movement was banned by the Nazi Government. At present the only youth movement permitted is the Hitler Jugend, the junior branch of the Nazi party.

Four Species of Birds Still Keep Nests Secret

Only four or five kinds of birds of the United States still build nests and hatch their eggs in spots unknown to man, says the Smithsonian Institution bulletin. One of the last gaps in the Smithsonian collection of nests and eggs has been filled by the receipt from a Cornell university graduate student of those belonging to Harris' sparrow, found near Churchill, in the Hudson Bay country.

Up to a short time ago, the breeding place of this pretty sparrow, which comes South to the Mid-West in its winter migrations, was completely unknown. The bird was able to keep its breeding place secret because of its restricted habitat.

Among the birds whose summer meeting places are still unknown, probably the most notable is the bristle-thighed curlew, which winters in the southern Pacific from Hawaii to New Caledonia. It is known that it breeds in the North, probably in western Alaska, but nobody ever has been able to find one of its nests.

Still another is the New Mexican duck, a bird of a restricted habitat in New Mexico and western Texas.

It is said "Better slip with foot than tongue." As winter comes on, folks are wondering how that would be if a slip of the foot meant a break of the neck.

What Use Lodges?

Of what use are the lodges and other fraternal orders in our town?

This question is often asked.

Are they merely mutual admiration societies? About the same small group meet every time and go through the same program. If a church or a theatre always put on the same performance, how many people would they attract? How many times we have heard that.

But let's take a look. Lodges of various kinds mean a great deal to some people. Did you ever wonder why? Take, for instance, the matter of of humanity. When rightly directed it puts courage in the step, gives a gleam to the eye and resolution to the will. So when enumerating our town assets let us not forget the lodges and other gregarious organizations. —Granby Leader.

The lodge ritual is a life theme song to many people. By repetition they have come to fully grasp some essential truths which have become life-giving food to their inner selves.

But more than this, lodges taking in new members get some well established principles of living across to some people who wouldn't get them any other way. Fraternity is the golden cord that binds the heart

BIGGEST COUP IN THE

LOCAL CAMPAIGN

There have been telling blows dealt in Argen-teuil's election campaigns, but in the last provincial contest we concede the biggest coup to fol-lowers of Mr. J. P. Lanctôt. This in our mind was the posting of a Vote for Lanctôt placard mid-stream in the North River at Lachute on the Main Street bend. The sign was erected dur-ing Sunday night and was conspicuous to pass-ers-by on Monday, until the swift current swept it down . . . It was significant, perhaps, of the National-Liberal-Conservative defeat. But we "hand it" again to Mr. Lanctôt, a newcomer to local politics, who fought clean and accepted his loss cheerfully.

"LAND-HUNGRY NATIONS" AND THE BRITISH DOMINIONS

The Italo-Ethiopian clash affords a novel argument for British Empire migration, in the mind of the Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, Bishop of London. Churchmen do not custom-arily dwell upon armament and protection, but here is a viewpoint which in practice might fore-stall invasion by more peaceable means.

Thinly-populated areas of the British Em-pire are a standing temptation to land-hungry nations, the Bishop told a Church of England Assembly recently.

"When I was in Sydney", he declared, "the Governor of New South Wales said that if the Japanese had been against us in the last war they could have taken Sydney and Melbourne in five minutes."

He urged the necessity of peopling the Em-pire with British people and suggested that some of the money used to support the unemployed in Britain or lying idle in financial reservoirs should be used for Empire developing.

The bishop said that Australia had only 6,500,000 people and Canada 10,000,000, while both had room for 100,000,000. New Zealand, he added, was inhabited by 2,000,000, though it could comfortably accommodate 10,000,000.

"When you think of this, you must realize what a tremendous temptation we are to land-hungry nations."

Appreciation

I take this opportunity of expressing my sincere thanks to all friends who in any way assisted in rolling up such a fine vote in my candidacy. This loyalty and service so ungrudgingly given is such as to lessen the sense of defeat. I am grati-fied also that our fight was conducted through-out with a keen spirit of honor and dignity.

JUNIOR RED CROSS CALENDARS OFFERED FOR SALE

This week marks the sale of the Junior Red Cross Calendar for 1936, a very pretty and artistic memento, not only of the passing days throughout the year, but a reminder also of the excellent work done by this group of young Canadians in behalf of suffering childhood. Since 1919 over $400,000 has been raised in Canada by the Juniors, and this has been used by them to assist more than 12,000 children, many of whom have been serious hospital cases. In 1934 more than $3000 was raised by the sale of the Christmas calendar, while 321 children received hospital treatment, a very good record for the Juniors of this Province. The work is well worth supporting, and 90 per cent of the schools of the Province are co-operating to make the drive a real success. The public are cordially requested to buy a "Tiny Tim Calendar" from a Junior Red Cross member, and so help on a most worthy cause.

—Don't forget the Annual Christmas Sale in the Auditorium, under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild of St. Simeon's Church, Lachute, on Thursday, Dec. 6th. There will be useful and original gifts at moderate prices. Christmas puddings and cakes, and a children's table.

Canada's First Railroad

A century ago no one thought of railways as a primary means of transport. Still in the experimental stage, they appeared useful merely as portages between navigable waters. Such was Canada's first railway, running from Laprairie on the St. Lawrence to St. John's on the Richelieu. Its sixteen miles provided the short base of a long triangle formed by the two rivers. Its owners, "The Company of Proprietors of the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway," were incorporated in 1832 and did not lack for free advice and predictions as to the outcome of the daring venture.

One newspaper advocated raising the rails two feet clear of the ground in an attempt to escape delays from snow. But the "snake-rails" were laid finally on the ground in the orthodox manner.

They consisted of wooden rails to which were spiked flat iron bars two inches wide and three-eighths of an inch thick. Lord Gosford opened the road amid considerable pomp in 1836. One steam engine was put in service, christened the "Dorchester" but nicknamed the "Kitten" because of her unstable temperament. Horses hauled many of the trains and all of them in winter, when the "Kitten" was no match for the snowdrifts.

But when in the mood she had sufficient speed and power to impress the advantages of steam upon the owners, and eventually better equipment came into use to replace faithful Dobbin. Yet as late as 1851 there were only 66 miles of railroad in what is now the Dominion of Canada. Then the period of rapid expansion commenced in earnest. The illustration shows the modern station at St. John's, a standard type familiar throughout the country. But as the site and successor of the terminus of Canada's first railway, it has been marked by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board as an outstanding symbol of economic development.

HISTORICAL NOTE

High heels, according to one writer, are said to have been invented by a woman who had been kissed on the forehead.

Friday, Nov. 27, 1885.

From the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, we have received the Statutes of Canada for 1885.

The weather continues to be fine—no snow yet.

There are several cases of small-pox at Montebello, and one or two at Grenville.

The Ladies' Working Association of Henry's Church are holding a sale of Xmas articles in the office of Mr. R. Meikle.

Married—Nov. 16th. at the residence of the bride's father, Centerville, by Rev. Mr. Mackie—Fred Patenaude to Miss Annie Jane, daughter of William Veitch.

The Ladies' Committee is receiving subscriptions for proposed Colors to be presented by them to the Argenteuil Rangers.

Sir John MacDonald left for England on Saturday for a three-fold object—the good of his health, the arrangement of Fisheries and Reciprocity treaties with the United States; he is expected back within eight weeks. In the meantime his enemies will assert that he left to avoid the uproar created by the French Canadians at the hanging of Reil. But Sir John has braved as great a storm before now.

25 Years Ago.

Friday, Dec. 2, 1910.

Mrs. (Rev.) Cliff of Lunenburg, has been visiting Mrs. W. J. Todd for a few weeks.

Mrs. Jas. W. Gall of Mont Tremblant is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Forbes.

Mount Maple—The erection of the new school at Roussillon under the Grande Ligne Mission Board has added marked improvement to that little village. Much credit is due to Rev. Mr. Poitras of Hull, who superintended the construction of the building.

Lakefield—Young people of this vicinity, under the leadership of Miss Ricks, school teacher, gave a concert and social evening in the Gibb Hall. Among those who took part were: the Misses Ricks, Gertrude Cleary, M. Moncrieff, Mildred Armstrong, Susan Arnot, and V. Rodgers; Messrs. Geo. Peet, Robt. Burns, Clarence Sherritt, William Rogers, Leonard Armstrong and Ernest Copeland. Rev. M. Garner occupied the chair. The proceeds went to a flag to be purchased for the village.

Master Douglas Simon, who was taken to the Montreal Hospital for an operation for appendicitis, is now reported out of danger.

Death—Conlin.—At Louisa, Nov. 25th., beloved wife of Luke Conlin, aged 92 years.

DOT IS SURPRISED

A wee little girl went visiting
Where there were not any trees
Before she got home a naughty wind
Had carried away the leaves.

Back home, to the lawn she scampered,
This tiny maid of three—
But stopped to stare in great surprise,
At their leafless maple tree.

In to the house she made her way
And asked in great distress
"Please mother, tell me quickly,
Who took't away our tree's dress?"

Yes sir, Florrie understood at once why the other children's hands were on their knees, as hers and Donald's were. They had tried to use the dummy signs to communicate with each other, and some hidden force had stopped them—There was nothing they could do but sit and wait for the bus to stop. Perhaps then their tongues would be loosened. Florrie tried wiggling her tongue; it went wherever she wanted, but still she could not make a sound with it.

At the next stop an old lady got in who looked the children over with disdain but made no attempt to speak to them. Florrie expected her to start lecturing them about their bad habit, until she heard the bus driver whisper to the queer-looking chap with big black goggles "We've got a grown-up Tattler this trip. One would think that a woman come to her age would have more sense." "They did not catch her young enough", the goggled man replied turning to look at Florrie with an ugly grin.

Florrie was glad for the moment that she could not use her hands. She wanted to slap him, and she was sure she would have done so, had her hands not been powerless.

All at once the bus started going down a hill into a deep, dark glen, until, with a thump and a bump and a great rumbling sound the bus suddenly stopped, jerking the children so that they collided with each other.

The drivers, instead of apologizing, looked around at their passengers and grinned. "That is the first bump you get", sneered the chap with the black goggles, "and there's a few more coming to you before you leave town." Very impolitely sticking out his tongue, he hissed the very words that Big Brother had repeated just a little while ago—"Tell Tale Tit, Your tongue shall be slit, All the dogs in the town will get a little bit."

This in itself was very terrifying, but coupled with the barking of dogs nearby, it was much more so. Fortunately their hands were free once more, because the passage through which they were herded was dark and rough. Something scuttled between Florrie's feet. She opened her mouth to scream, but found that she was still tongue-tied. "It must be rats", she thought, "and there are hundreds of them too, as all the other children seem afraid, but the grown up lady is the most terrified of all." "Jolt number two!" cackled the black-goggled man. This made the grown up lady so angry that she reached out and snatched the goggles from his eyes. "Pay her back" the man hissed, and as Florrie watched the goggles seemed to turn into big black spiders that clung to the lady's hands in spite of all she could do to shake them off.

Coming close to Florrie in her terror, she tried to rub them off on the rough hood of Florrie's cape. "The mean old thing", thought Florrie, "When I get home I am going to tell Mother." Suddenly she stopped. Would she tell? "I guess not", thought Florrie, "I'll never tell anything again."

Darting through a doorway to escape the old lady and the spiders Florrie found herself in an immense dog-kennel. After a moment of terror she discovered that they could not reach her, but their yapping and howling was dreadful to listen to. Before she could back out through the doorway, a voice at her elbow said, "Ah-ha! inquisitive as well as a tattletale, eh? What are you doing here?" Florrie looked at the speaker appealingly, "Answer me at once!" he said crossly. "Have you no tongue?"

Florrie stuck the tip of her tongue between her lips but it would not go any farther. The queer bright-eyed little chap suddenly giggled, "I forgot" he said still giggling and slapping his knees with his hands, "I forgot that your tongue was still under Madame Sealit's spell. Would you like me to free you?" Florrie nodded. Waving his hands before her face three times, he chanted—

"Be free, little tongue, be free
And let your mistress speak to me
What is she doing in the doggie's den
Where no one comes but the keeper-men?
Be free, little tongue, be free!"

In a sudden torrent Florrie's words came rushing out and the little man looked surprised when he heard about the grown-up tattler and the spiders.

ers. "The idea", he said, "of her trying to put them on you. But Goggle-eyes has his goggles well trained. They are magic goggles and will do whatever he tells them. Come with me and we will see what is happening in the guard room."

Catching hold of Florrie's hand the man drew her out of the kennel along the passage which was now empty, and into a room where lights shone through what seemed to be broken patches in the ceiling. It was full of queer shadows, this guard room; enough to make any child feel afraid, but with the little man holding her hand Florrie did not feel so uneasy. No one said a word to her; some of the queer looking little creatures even smiled. Florrie did not know, of course, that they had heard the little promise she had made to herself when the grown-up tattler had annoyed her, that she would not tell anything any more.

Away in the far corner she saw Donald. The grown-up tattler was holding him by the coat collar, trying to make the guards believe it was Donald who had jerked off the driver's goggles. Florrie wanted to scream out—"It was not Donald, it was herself; I saw her do it!" but she had made a vow and could not break it. Suddenly she saw Black Goggles watching her, and remembered that he knew all about it and realized that this was a test to see if she were really cured.

"I am", she murmured . . . as she turned over in bed and opened her eyes . . . Yes, she was in her own little bed. "Donald!" she whispered, in sudden fright. She slipped quietly out of bed and crept to his room. He was sleeping there quite soundly. Something cold touched her hand, and startled her—but it was only Rover, who slept in the hall; he had come to see what was going on there in the middle of the night.

Next story—Bells that Ring.
Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

"Is she upset about her broken engagement?"
"Completely unmanned."

Proving its citizens still forward looking, the ancient port of Plymouth, from which sailed the venturing Pilgrim Fathers, will next August hold a big "West Country" Scout Jamboree. Lord Baden-Powell will attend, and Scouts from other lands will be invited, including American Boy Scout descendants of the Pilgrim "Scouts."

"And did you have a local aesthetic for your tooth?"
"Oh, no, I went up to town."

PAPER FRIENDS

Edward Bok says in his book Twice Thirty. After one has written for a while he no longer writes to a public, but to friends, friends he has made by personal contact, by letter, or through the printed page. It is very true. One of the nicest things about this newspaper work of mine is the friends I have made in different parts of the country. Some of those whom I count as my good friends I have never seen. I had the privilege of attending the Canadian Women's Press Triennial this year and I went feeling a stranger, but did have that feeling very long. To my surprise, one after another greeted me as a friend because they had been reading me for years. So the feeling that I am talking to friends each week increases as time goes on.

RAW EGGS ARE DIFFICULT TO DIGEST

The old idea used to be to give sick people plenty of raw eggs or egg-nogs because they were easy to digest. Research work showed that this was a mistake as a raw egg takes a very long time to digest. Tubercular patients used to be given from six to ten raw eggs a day and many of them had their stomachs ruined by the intolerable burden of trying to digest all those raw eggs. An egg cooked by any method leaves the stomach in a shorter time than a raw egg. To make an egg easy to digest it should be cooked at a low temperature. When you boil or poach eggs have the water simmering and never boiling hard. It will be necessary to increase the time of cooking when you use a lower temperature. Scrambled eggs should be cooked slowly and even the ubiquitous fried egg is not as difficult to digest if it is cooked at a low temperature.

GIVE THE BABY COD LIVER OIL

Cod liver oil time is here again for the babies. When they get plenty of sun in the summer time there is not the same urgent need for it but these days the poor dears can get very little sun. Doctors start the babies with a few drops from the time they are three weeks old and gradually increase the dose. Fortunately when the babies start taking it when very young they usually like it. Cod liver oil will prevent rickets and will help to give them strong bones and sound teeth. At bath time is a good time to give the baby its cod liver oil as it will not stain their birthday suits, and it does make a stain that is difficult to remove if it gets on their clothes.

CODFISH CAKES

1 lb. dried codfish
4 cups mashed potatoes
1 egg
Soak the codfish for at least 2 hours in cold water. Drain and cover with cold water and cook, never allowing the water to boil as boiling will toughen the fish. Drain well and break into pieces. Mix with mashed potatoes seasoned with butter, salt and pepper. Add beaten egg, mix thoroughly and form into cakes. Fry a golden brown in hot fat. This quantity makes 18 cakes.

FRUIT DROP CAKES

1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 cups white sugar
3 eggs
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 cup currants
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Cream butter and sugar and add eggs one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift in flour and soda, add fruit, nuts and vanilla. Drop from a teaspoon and bake on a buttered sheet in an oven of 425 degrees.

Keep a Dictionary Handy!

A dictionary is not usually considered as part of a dining room equipment but it might be a good idea if it were. A constant use of the dictionary is a habit to be developed in children, so one should be in a convenient place where it can be got at without much trouble. Spelling is more or less of a gift but anyone can look up words in a dictionary. Sometimes I think too much time and stress is laid on spelling in schools and not enough on the use of the dictionary. It has always seemed to me to be very unfair to take off marks for spelling on an examination paper. I know of one boy who was particularly good in geography and a very poor speller. He wrote an almost perfect paper in geography but had so many mistakes in spelling that he got eight marks for his paper. That I think was grossly unfair. So many word discussions come up at meal times that it is a good practice to have the dictionary handy. Let the children hunt up the discussed word themselves, as if they do the work they are more apt to remember the finding. Discussions on pronunciations are a good thing to encourage at meal times. —J. A. B.

A Friendly Hand to Strangers Within Our Gates

Christmas is coming, and to many who have recently migrated to Canada, and have left home and kindred overseas, the season will not be one of unalloyed happiness. Loneliness will grip the hearts of many, and the different customs of observing the holiday season in a new country will seem strange and unsatisfying.

Members of Quebec Women's Institutes, in common with those of sister clubs everywhere, realize these facts, for it is not so long since many of themselves were newcomers to Canada. Already they are making special provision for strangers within the gates, in the shape of real Canadian Christmas cooking, which improves with age and usually is largely done in November and early December. Christmas day is preceded by a series of suppers, Christmas trees in churches and community halls, and to these the emigrant boys and girls are warmly welcomed. Gifts designed especially for them are now in the making, and everything possible is being planned to give to lonely newcomers a share of the Christmas spirit as it is known in Canada.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED (Brandon Daily Sun).

Whereas we used to have to hide our cigarettes from mother, now mother has to hide her cigarettes from junior.

Christmas Toys for the Needy

While conditions are undoubtedly improving, there are still thousands of small children in Canadian homes who would be denied a visit from Santa Claus were it not for the efforts of the Boy Scouts in living up to one of their promises "To help other people at all times." These children are eagerly looking forward to Xmas and Santa Claus — looking with childish faith despite all discouragements by parents who have no money to spend on anything but the bare necessities of life.

For a number of years now it has been the privilege of the Lachute Boy Scouts to prevent disappointments of this nature to a large number of children. Last Christmas parcels containing candies, oranges and over three hundred toys, books and games were sent to some thirty families or a total of 128 children. The scouts are again making an appeal for old and discarded toys, children's games and books and hope that the people of the town and district will again be generous, as it is only through donations of this kind that the scheme can be successful.

Old and broken toys will be repaired and brightened up with a new coat of paint by the scouts in their spare time between now and Xmas. Some toys have already been received but many more are needed and, as Christmas will be with us in less than a month, it is hoped that contributions will be made at once so that the boys will have plenty of time to get them ready. If you have any toys, games or children's books which you can donate to this worthy cause, kindly communicate with one of the members of the troop so that your parcel may be called for.

In Mexico

Indignant over the report of a prospective house-to-house search for religious images and the arrest of owners, women of the town of Atzacan in Vera Cruz invaded the municipal building, armed with clubs, and ousted all city officials. Eileen Meagher Judged Year's Outstanding Athlete

Eileen Meagher—who ran last summer in the C.I.L. sports at Brownsburg, and is well known in these parts—has been adjudged Canada's outstanding athlete of the year, receiving the Norton H. Crowe Memorial prize at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

The only others nominated, Henry "Hank" Cleman, Toronto, Canadian walking champion, and W. "Scotty" Rankine, Preston, Ontario, marathoner, were eliminated by the selection committee and the name of the Halifax flash was the only one put before the convention. Earlier in the week Miss Meagher received the Belma Springstead Memorial award from the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation as the outstanding woman athlete.

In announcing the winner, W. A. Fry, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, said Miss Meagher's sensational dashes at the British Empire games contributed largely to the award. Various sports writers and newspapers in England agreed, he said, that the way she ran the third lap of the relay for the Canadian team was "the biggest thrill of the Empire games." The 24-year-old Halifax runner had the disadvantage of starting behind the leader but finished her lap out in front with a margin sufficient to give Canada a victory although the final sprinter ran a losing race.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Dec. 1st., is "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced."

The Golden Text is:—"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way of everlasting." (Psalms 139 : 23, 24).

The following correlative passages are cited from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer, for all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord: and because of these abominations the Lord thy God doth drive them out from before thee." (Deuteronomy 18 : 10-12).

"Christian Science goes to the bottom of mental action, and reveals the theodicy which indicates the rightness of all divine action, as the emanation of divine Mind, and the consequent wrongness of the opposite so-called action, — evil, occultism, necromancy, mesmerism, animal magnetism, hypnotism." (Science and Health, page 104)

Salesman: "These stockings are the very latest patterns, fast colors, holeproof, won't shrink, priced far lower than elsewhere, and a very good yarn."

Co-ed: "Yes, and you tell it well."

We clip the following for the benefit of those who doubt the power of the press:

"Owing to the overcrowded condition of our columns, a number of births and deaths were unavoidably postponed this week." —Exchange.

Working Girls Subject of Women's Institute Resolution

CENTRAL ONTARIO W. I. REJECTS MOTION

A resolution from the Inglewood Women's Institute, Ontario, asking that girl employees be sent home in taxis and given their evening meal when required to work late at night, was lost at the Central Ontario Women's Institutes session in Toronto.

It was argued that the business girl had entered the commercial field on equality with men and already the Government had provided more protection for the girl worker than for boys of the same age.

Have you found the SUNNY PACKAGE on your grocer's shelf?

It's a delicious ready-to-eat cereal. Millions of Canadians have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, effective means of correcting common constipation—the kind caused by lack of "bulk" in the menu.

Laboratory measurements show that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in this tempting cereal is more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables—because it resists digestion better. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this cleans out the intestinal waste.

Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines? Two tablespoons of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases with each meal. If this fails to give relief, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or cook into appetizing recipes. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Electrical Measurements

Named for Electricians

Units of electrical measurement, and why they are so named, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, include seven terms.

The ampere is named for A. M. Ampere, a French electrician; the ohm for the German, G. S. Ohm; the volt for Alessandro Volta; while the others take their names from Charles A. de Coulomb, Michael Faraday, James P. Joule and James Watt.

The ohm is a unit of resistance; it represents the resistance offered to an unvarying current by a column of mercury at the temperature of ice, 14.5421 grams in mass, of a cross-sectional area of 1.00000 square millimeters and of the length of 106.3 centimeters.

The ampere is a unit of current. An ampere decomposes 0.00111824 of a gram of water in one second, or deposits silver at the rate of .001118 of a gram a second when passed through a solution of nitrate of silver in water.

The volt is a unit of electromotive force. One volt equals one ampere of current passing through a substance having one ohm of resistance.

The coulomb is the unit of quantity; the amount of electricity transferred by a current of one ampere in one second.

The farad is a unit of capacity; the capacity of a condenser charged to a potential of one volt by one coulomb.

The joule is a unit of work. It is equivalent to the energy expended in one second by one ampere current in one ohm resistance.

Liberal Government Met Strongest Challenge Since 1897

the standing being Liberal, 47; Independent-Liberal, 1; Conservative, 16; Action Libérale Nationale, 26.

For an hour during Monday evening, as the Canadian Press returns poured into Montreal it appeared as if the 38-year-old government might be defeated. But last minute returns turned the tide and assured that the veteran premier, L. A. Taschereau, would remain in the office he has held since 1920.

Leaders All-Elected

All three leaders were successful. Mr. Taschereau was re-elected in his traditional seat of Montmorency for which he has sat since 1900; Mr. Duplessis held Three Rivers, his seat since 1927, and Mr. Gouin, in his political debut, captured L'Assomption from the veteran Liberal, Walter Reed.

Ministers Re-elected

The seven cabinet ministers re-elected in addition to the premier, were: Hon. T. D. Bouchard, municipal affairs, trade and commerce, in St. Hyacinthe; Hon. Athanasie David, provincial secretary, in Terrebonne; Hon. J. N. Francoeur, public works, game and fisheries, in Lotbiniere; Hon. Adelard Godbout, agriculture, in L'Islet; Hon. Honoré Mercier, lands and forests, in Chateauguay; Hon. J. E. Perrault, highways and mines, in Arthabaska, and Hon. R. F. Stockwell, provincial treasurer, in Brome.

The legislature has been called for January 7, when the powerful opposition facing the government will include a number of men who have made their mark in the province.

Among them will be J. Oscar Drouin, chief organizer of Action Libérale Nationale, who was elected in Quebec East, the same seat he held as a Liberal from 1928 until he joined ALN this year. Mr. Drouin is the only ALN member-elect with legislative experience.

Govt. Forces Hard Pressed

Never since they took office in 1897 had the Liberals been so hard pressed. In 1891 they took 77 of the 90 seats while in the 38 years their majority in any election did not drop below the 44 established in 1923 when the Conservative party won 20 of the 85 seats then at stake with a Labor man taking another.

The Liberal party lost 35 seats, eight to Conservatives, 26 to ALN and one to the Independent-Liberal. The surge to Action Libérale Nationale was province-wide, including as it did four seats on Montreal Island, two in Quebec city, three in the eastern townships, Chicoutimi in the Lake St. John district and Temiscamingue and Laviolette in the mining and lumbering northwest, the other gains being as widely separated.

Holy Trinity Church, Lakefield, is undergoing extensive repairs and alterations, and services are being held in the Gibb Parish Hall until the work is completed. A kiln-dried spruce framework is being fitted throughout the building. This will be covered with "Ten-Test" which will then be painted. This alteration in the church will add immensely to the beauty of the interior. Mr. Bolton, of Montreal, is the architect; Mr. G. W. Maxwell, of Shawbridge, the contractor.

The enormous swing against the government almost duplicated the series of results in other provinces where the governments were all defeated. In Quebec, however, the swing was away from the Liberal party rather than towards it as occurred in the other eight provinces with the exception of Alberta.

Local Returns

The official count, it is understood, will be conducted by the District Returning-Officer here on Saturday. Meanwhile the available results by polls in the County of Argenteuil are published elsewhere in this issue, with no guarantee of their accuracy.

Witness Trees

When Michigan's land surveys were made from 80 to 100 years ago, surveyors marked the exact location of section corners with square wood stakes. This location was "witnessed" by trees which were blazed and marked with their distance and bearing with reference to the corner recorded in the surveyor's notes. With the passage of years, the square stakes have disappeared, but in spite of lumbering and forest fires, many witness trees still can be found. In many cases, burned-out stump holes of the witness trees are all that remain. In remnants of virgin timber stands or in swamps where fires did not penetrate, the markings of witness trees have been perfectly preserved by the new growth of the trees which has closed over them.

Franking Privileges

The word frank, in the sense "to send or cause to be sent free of charge," is presumably derived from medieval Latin francus, free. The assumption is that the Franks of Gaul possessed full freedom in the Roman empire, and the term frank then became a synonym with free. In early English literature the two words were frequently joined, as "he was frank and free borne in a free cyte." The application of frank in the superscription to a letter to insure its being sent without charge dates back to the early Eighteenth century, and has been continued since.—Literary Digest.
