RESPECTED CLERIC IS WIDELY MOURNED

Many Attended Funeral of Late Rev. J. R. MacLeod

The death of Rev. Dr. J. R. MacLeod, a highly respected clergyman of this town, occurred late last Sunday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. Christie. Here he had spent the last 15 years in retirement, but had been active in the affairs of the local United Church, a willing assistant at community devotions and gatherings of all kinds. He was known and respected by all.

Death followed an accident which three weeks previously had confined him to his bed. On Feb. 6th. Dr. MacLeod had fallen and fractured his hip, a mishap which, considering his advanced years, had caused grave fears for his recovery. A touching demonstration of his loyalty occurred on Sunday, the day of his passing. While awaiting the morning broadcast of the King's message, he had requested those attending at his bedside to place another pillow at his back. He could not stand, he said, but would like to hold himself as erect as possible in tribute to the new king. Dr. MacLeod died the same evening.

He was in his 88th. year. Born in Cape Breton, he settled during his youth at Tiverton. He was married to Miss Margaret Currie, who predeceased him in 1920. His passing is mourned by his surviving family of three daughters and a son—Mrs. T. Christie and Mrs. N. MacNeill of Lachute, Mrs. Purvis Blair of Ottawa, and Mr. Gordon MacLeod of Montreal, one son being deceased. There remain also four grandchildren.

At the time of his death, and for many years, Dr. MacLeod had been honored with membership in the Senate of the United Church Theological College, Montreal. For nearly 40 years during his active ministry he was Clerk of the Presbytery of Quebec, of the Presbyterian Church before Union, and for some 37 years Clerk of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa. With the Rev. Drs. Rose

Isle-aux-Chats Resident Suddenly Stricken

LATE MRS. D. L. TAYLOR

A member of one of Argenteuil's early farming families, Mrs. D. L. Taylor died very suddenly last Sunday evening at her home in Isle-aux-Chats. She was 65 years of age, formerly Miss Agnes Rodger, born in the neighboring community of Geneva.

Forty-one years ago she married Mr. Taylor. At their home in Isle-aux-Chats she had been a kind and helpful neighbor, and a devoted mother to the family of three girls and three boys who survive with their father to mourn her passing. They are—Lawson, at home; George, of Chicago; Rodger, of Ottawa; Mary and Allison, of Montreal; Helen (Mrs. Hector Boyd) resident in Lachute. Mrs. Taylor is survived also by her brother, Mr. W. George Rodger of River Rouge, registrar for this county.

A member of the United Church of St. Andrews East, she was active in its work and a willing assistant in worthwhile efforts in her community. The funeral was conducted Wednesday afternoon at that church, the minister, Rev. J. Macaskill, officiating.

Ontario Government Grant For New Sanatorium Near Cornwall

An Ontario government grant of $85,000 towards the construction of a sanatorium in the Cornwall district, at an estimated cost of $200,000, was announced last week by Premier Hepburn.

The grant was made following representations of an Eastern Ontario delegation from the counties of Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry. The premier said there were at present no facilities in the district for caring for tuberculosis patients.

The new hospital will accommodate 100 patients.

OBSERVED WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

LARGE GATHERING AT ST. SIMEON'S CHURCH

The World Day of Prayer was observed at St. Simeon's Church, Lachute, on Friday. The service was in charge of Mrs. W. LeCras, and followed the program prepared for the use of Christian Women throughout the world.

Mrs. LeCras was assisted by the choir, consisting of representatives of the Protestant churches of Lachute, and ladies appointed by the missionary societies of those churches led in prayers for the peace of the world and the growth of the Christian spirit.

Mrs. Chas. Duncan sang "An Evening Prayer."

The net proceeds of the silver collection amounted to $11.65, which will be devoted to the missionary cause.

MORIN HEIGHTS SECOND IN INTER-VILLAGE WINTER SPORTS

Sports representatives from St. Sauveur captured the team award in the second annual Laurentian Villages' Ski League meet held at Shawbridge on Saturday.

Almost every Laurentian village was represented, numbering eleven from Shawbridge to Labelle.

C. Baume, of Morin Heights, won the cross-country ski race and Morin stood second place in points credited to the respective villages. Team standing was: 1, St. Sauveur No. 1, 295.18; 2, Morin Heights, 275.64; 3, Ste. Agathe No. 1, 271.71; 4, St. Jovite, 267.65; 5, Shawbridge 265.24; 6, Mont Tremblant, 263.24; 7, Ste. Agathe No. 2, 248.65; 8, St. Margaret's 230.98; 9, Labelle, 224.70; 10, Boys' Farm, 193.96; 11, St. Sauveur No. 2, 187.25.

Town Council Held Regular Session

The regular meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the Town Hall last evening, with Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason presiding. Aldermen C. Duracher, K. McQuat, F. Deslauriers, J. Constantineau, G. Muir, W. J. Deacon, H. Lamarche and J. McGibbon were in attendance.

The adjustment of costs for the private bill of annexation of certain properties in the West End, which is being prepared by the town attorneys Messrs. Legault and Legault for presentation at Quebec, was discussed, and Mr. P. A. Chabot and Dr. G. A. Clunie, representing the Catholic and Protestant School Boards respectively, reported that resolutions were drawn up at their meetings held this week, in which they agreed to bear with the town the costs of this bill pro rata as to benefits derived.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN SKI-JORING BEHIND AUTOMOBILE

As the result of a skiing accident near Grenville on Sunday afternoon, Lionel Lemay, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Lemay of Grenville, was taken to Dr. Smith's hospital at Hawkesbury in a serious condition. He sustained a broken jaw and a badly lacerated face. According to information, the youth was skiing behind a car driven by his brother-in-law, Joseph Marcoux of Brownsburg. In an attempt to get to the right of the road to allow passage of a car driven by Leslie Cowan proceeding in the opposite direction, he suddenly shot into the center of the road, crashing headlong into the Cowan car, which, in the meantime, had stopped.

SENTENCE FOR PICK-POCKET AT PERLEY BRIDGE CEREMONY

A sequel to thefts which occurred at the opening of the Perley Bridge some years ago, was heard in court at Hawkesbury on Monday.

Sam Levine of Montreal pleaded guilty to five charges of picking pockets and was sentenced to six months definite, and six indefinite, in reformatory on each charge. Sentences will be concurrent.

Levine surrendered and pleaded guilty to a charge laid more than a year and a half ago, with three others having allegedly stolen money and articles from pockets of persons attending the opening of the Perley Bridge across the Ottawa River. The other three are still sought.

Closing of Relief Camps ... Canada-U. S. Treaty ... Bills Urged By Private Members ... Adjustment of Hospital Allowances, Ex-Service Men

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, March 3rd.—The decision to close all the relief camps for single men by July first, beginning as soon as the weather permits, stands out as one of the leading announcements of the week. It was made by Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, who stated that an arrangement had been made with the two railway companies to employ 10,000 additional men on deferred maintenance (trackage) work, to be paid the same wage as those now employed in that manner. This will take care of more than half of the present population of the camps. Farm placement schemes, reforestation and fire prevention work, roadwork in some of the new mining areas and other schemes will be developed, and in addition it is hoped that some of the men will be absorbed into private industry when spring comes along. There are about 130 of these camps, from coast to coast. Beginning the first of this week, the men who remain in the camps will receive, instead of the present cash allowance of 20 cents a day, payment of $15. per month. Half of this will be paid in cash each month, half when the men leave the project, the latter balance being payable at any office in Canada at the rate of $4. per week. This is to assist the man while he is getting employment in private industry. No new projects are being opened, and no new admissions made to the camps.

THE UNITED STATES AGREEMENT

The debate on the United States trade agreement, begun last Tuesday and resumed on Friday, dealt with one of the most important subjects of the session, but in its early stages at least nothing very new was

A SENTIMENT WE'RE PROUD OF!

ECONOMICS — A LESSON

(By Our Brownsburg Correspondent)

Brownsburg—The following scene took place in a store here during the week...

Customer, entering a store, is greeted, "Yes Sir."
Customer, "I want to get a pair of rubbers."
Salesman, "Yes, what size do you require?"
Customer, "Try on an eight."
Salesman, "Here we are" ... proceeds to fit on the shoe. "How's that?"
Customer, "Looks O.K. It's a little wide at the toe, but I like them that way."
Salesman, "It's better to have them a little wide, they wear better."

Customer, taking rubber in his hand and examining it, "What is the cost?"

Salesman, "Eighty-nine cents."

Customer, "By the way, this is made in Czechoslovakia. Haven't you got one made in Canada?"

Salesman searches through a range of shelves, then turns around and says, "I'm afraid we haven't got one in your size, but this is a very good rubber and doesn't cost so much as one made in Canada."

Customer, "How is that? This has to be shipped from away over the other side of the ocean and a duty paid coming into the country, yet it is cheaper than the Canadian rubber?"

Salesman, "Those people on the other side can produce it cheaper than we can."

Customer, "Exactly, it was produced by workers who are paid a starvation wage—and I am not going to be a party to it. I am sorry to have put you to so much trouble, but I must seek elsewhere."

Salesman, "Just a minute. I'll see if we have anything in the back."—Goes from the store and returns in a few minutes with a pair of Canadian manufactured rubbers. "Here we are now, see how these fit"—Proceeds to try them on.

Customer, "These are O.K. Well, what's the cost of them?"

Salesman, "These are ninety-five cents, sir."

Customer, "I'll take them."

Salesman, "Well, that's the first time we have had goods objected to on account of their foreign manufacture."

Customer, "I hope it will not be the last time—always remember to put Canada first."

(The above is the verbatim report of a conversation overheard in Brownsburg during the week.)

"Canned Goods Week" Planned to Boost Quebec Products

For the purpose of advertising Province of Quebec canned goods the Provincial Department of Agriculture, the Province of Quebec Association of Canned Goods Manufacturers and the Province of Quebec section of the Retail Merchants Assn. of Canada, will jointly stage a campaign in September to be known as "Quebec canned goods week." Displays will be held in stores throughout the province and Quebec canned goods will be publicized by means of newspaper advertisements, radio talks and lectures in all the larger centres.

TO-NIGHT DECIDES SEMI-FINALS IN HOCKEY

LACHUTE MEETS VICTORS IN 3-OUT-OF-5 SERIES

Hawkesbury and St. Jerome have each a game to their credit in the 2-out-of-3 semi-finals, and upon the third game to-night, here at the Arena, will depend which team steps into the finals and competes with Lachute for the championship. The finals will commence Saturday, the result hanging on a 3-out-of-5 count.

The first of the semi-finals on Saturday was a one-sided engagement, Hawkesbury appearing to lack their usual pep—a fact accounted for, no doubt, by the absence of certain regular players on the line-up. The score concluded at 12-6 for St. Jerome.

The second game here on Tuesday reversed the forecast, as Hawkesbury made a comeback, winning with 9 goals to 4 in what was considered a keen and interesting game from the spectators' viewpoint. The Hawkesbury - St. Jerome games have naturally stirred a milder interest here than fixtures in which Lachute or Brownsburg took part, but nevertheless the visitors' games have been well supported and the semi-finals patronized by a fair attendance. Tonight's event may draw a larger crowd, for it is a matter of immediate concern to Lachute which team will qualify to meet the home line-up in the final spurt.

Young Townsman is Taken For a Ride

Those who have experienced the ways of hospital life know what it means to be "taken for a ride" — and the sensations that grip one's inner mechanism, according to the variety of treatment to be received at termination of the "ride". Still there is a spice of adventure in these expeditions; after ages of incarceration between white sheets and green walls, any change of scene brings more or less of a thrill.

To our old friend "Bill" Blakely, who has served many months in the Royal Victoria Hospital following his automobile accident, these reactions need no describing. He has been for many "rides" through silent corridors to awe-inspiring destinations. But last week he was actually set in motion for a pleasure jaunt, when a kindly attendant wheeled him around to view the mysteries and lesser known precincts of the Royal Vic.

This was "traveling in a big way" for Mr. Blakely, and the diversion brought pleasure to more than one exile from this town—for Bill paid a visit to Mr. R. McArthur, a patient in the Ross Pavilion adjoining the hospital. Old townsmen sometimes meet in strange circumstances, but this was a pleasurable occasion for both. Mr. McArthur is expected home this week.

LACHUTE BRANCH W.I. ELECTED OFFICERS

Review Satisfactory Year's Work

A successful review of the year's work, in reports from various departments, was given at the Lachute Women's Institute fourth annual meeting on Tuesday. The secretary, Mrs. S. McFaul, gave a statement of the finances, showing funds raised to the amount of $689.58, and expenditures $373.37. The three major undertakings of the Institute during the year had been the operation of the dining room at the 1935 Lachute Fair; producing the play, "Pollyanna"; and an Amateur Night entertainment. Of a total membership of 49, attendance at the meetings had averaged 24.3. Mrs. A. Bothwell, retiring president, had occupied the chair at each meeting.

Officers and Convenors returned for the ensuing year were:

President, Mrs. G. Y. Deacon; 1st. Vice-Pres., Mrs. H. M. Gall; 2nd. Vice-Pres., Mrs. A. Middleton; Secretary Mrs. A. Bothwell; Treas., Mrs. S. McFaul.

Convenors - Home Economics Mrs. G. Leggett; Agriculture, Mrs. G. A. Clunie; Legislation, Mrs. A. Middleton; Publicity, Mrs. J. S. Giles; Immigration, Mrs. L. Morris; Education and Better Schools, Mrs. S. Campbell; Canadian Industries, Mrs. C. Duncan; Child Welfare, Mrs. D. Titman; Canadianization & National Events, Mrs. H. M. Gall.

FINED AT HAWKESBURY, NEGLECTING RADIO LICENCES

Fourteen Hawkesbury residents appeared in court this week charged with failure to possess a radio license. All, with the exception of one, pleaded guilty and were fined $1 and costs.

The charges were laid by Inspector R. L. Bunt, Dept. of Marine and Fisheries (radio branch), Ottawa, and Constable Lemieux of the R. C. M. P. at Ottawa.

Commentator on a radio program recently said—"What comfort it is to sleep beneath blankets made from your own wool."—Possibly he believes he's a descendant from the hairy ape.

Grenville Arson Trial Opened Monday

The trial of Isaie Poirier, of Grenville, charged with arson, opened at Grenville on Monday before Magistrate D. Lalande. Four witnesses were heard by the court before the case was adjourned. Poirier is alleged to have set fire to a house belonging to him in Grenville on April 1, 1935. He appeared for enquiry first on January 27 and was sent for trial.

Four witnesses were heard on Monday including the accused's daughter, Romeo Pepin, chief inspector for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society Ltd., of Montreal, and F. Gascon, agent for the company at Grenville, testified that Poirier had a policy for $700 on the destroyed house. Arthur Boarnais, tenant of the house, told of having left to fetch a friend who was to reside with him and of returning to find the house burning.

Berthe Poirier, accused's daughter, testified she had heard her father say several times he would burn down the house.

Annual Report of Canadian Industries Limited Shows Financial Stability

EMPLOYEES' WELFARE PLANS NOTABLY EXTENDED

Somewhat lower earnings, due to the lower selling prices put into effect for many of the Company's products, the upward trend in raw material prices, the cost of new employee welfare plans and higher rates of taxation, which have risen from 9 cents to 17 cents per dollar of income during the last seven years, are announced in the 25th Annual Report of Canadian Industries Limited, which has just been issued to shareholders. Net income from all sources, after providing for taxes, depreciation and other contingencies, amounted to $4,299,140, equivalent to $5.85 per share of common stock, as compared with $6.43 in 1934, and $4.63 in 1933. Sales showed an increase of 8 per cent. over the previous year.

Regular quarterly dividends at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum were paid on the cumulative preferred stock, and dividends totalling $6 per share were declared on the common stock, reflecting no change from the previous year. After providing for the payment of dividends the Balance Sheet discloses an improvement in the net current assets which at December 31, 1935, amounted to $14,477,131, as compared with $13,713,896 at the end of 1934. The investment in plant, buildings and equipment totalled $25,940,076, an increase during the year of $614,000, representing largely the balance of expenditures in connection with the two new plants; one at Cornwall for the manufacture of liquid chlorine and caustic soda; the other at Shawinigan Falls for the manufacture of hydrogen peroxide. The gross amount charged against operating costs for depreciation of plant and equipment was $1,373,007, approximately $100,000 more than during 1934.

In commenting on the year's operations, Arthur B. Purvis, president and managing director, states in part:—

"While the improvement in business conditions so evident in 1934 continued during 1935, there was a general hesitancy for some months prior to the Federal elections. However, a strong government having been elected, with all its potentialities for a balanced budget, the year closed with a distinct acceleration in business.

"A total reduction of 23 per cent. in the selling price of 'Cellophane' has been effected since manufacture in Canada was started in May 1932. Additional equipment is being installed in the spring of 1936 to take care of anticipated increased demands.

"In last year's report the negligible volume of military ammunition business and the Company's policy of confining its sales thereof to Canada was explained in some detail. The situation in 1935 remained unchanged.

Reference was also made to the various employee welfare plans which include an Employee Representation Plan, making possible the satisfactory solution of problems mutual.

When You Can't Sleep

Every medical man knows that can be accomplished in the way of inducing sleep by the proper sort of bath. The unfortunate thing about it is that the more unpleasant your bath is the more effective it will probably prove. You must deny yourself the shower, bracing shock of the cold bath followed by the vigorous rubdown. You are not permitted water of genial warmth. Your tub or shower must be of such a tepid temperature that you emerge almost shivering. You must not yourself dry, as your nurse did for you when you were a babe in arms. After this rite, you will find yourself a little damp and chilly.

You make a bee-line for bed and put your light out, thoroughly hating yourself. Presently the chilliness begins to abate and a mild, genial warmth takes its place. As you become more and more comfortable the threshold of sleep sinks lower and lower. There is a blissful period of fifteen or twenty or thirty minutes during which, if you put the brakes on your racing mind, you have a very good chance of dropping off to sleep. — Frederick S. Bigelow in Cosmopolitan.

"I'm not sure; she's down at the beauty parlour now."

FRANCE DETERMINED DEMILITARIZED RHINE WILL NOT BE FORTIFIED

As it becomes increasingly evident that Germany desires to fortify the demilitarized Rhine zone, France appears equally certain that it shall not become an armed border. Above are pictures of one of France's northern defences built underground for ammunition storage and reserve shelter for troops. At the lower right shows a concrete gun emplacement at one of the defences, while at the left is a map showing some of the fortified zones along the German border.

Once Only 29 Sheep in Australia

It is a far cry from the present estimate of 114,510,000 sheep to the first sheep census of Australia which is dated May 1, 1788, and recorded 29 sheep in the whole commonwealth. In seven years the number had grown to 863 and three years later 10,057. The Australian wool industry began in earnest in 1820, after the coastal ranges had been crossed, when there were 156,000 sheep. By 1860, this number had grown to 23,000,000 and, in 1891, there were 106,421,968. A series of severe droughts after this date greatly reduced the flocks and last year in the severe drought in the State of Queensland 6,000,000 sheep are estimated to have died.

Britons More Farm Conscious

A great change has come over the people of Great Britain in their attitude towards the farming industry. Probably for the first time in history, the people of the various cities and towns are farm conscious and sympathetic to the claims of the farming industry, according to the Agricultural Department of the C. N. Rlys. This has been brought about largely through the depression and it should augur well for the future of the farmer in the British Isles.

CLYDE SHIPYARDS ANTICIPATE GOOD YEAR

The Clyde shipyards in Scotland will enjoy the best year in 1936 since 1930, on the basis of orders for ships already received and in sight; 246 ships (529,744 tons) were launched in 1930. Contracts signed and about to be signed for 1936 delivery equal nearly double last year's figures which amounted to 104 (212,054 tons), according to the Industrial Department of the C. N. Rlys.

Other plans in force are a Co-operative Savings Plan, to which the Company contributes 25 cents for each dollar saved by the employee; a Pension plan and an Employees' Benefit Plan, the expenses of which are borne entirely by the Company; a Bonus Plan, which provides for supplementary compensation to those employees who have made an exceptional contribution toward the Company's success during the year, but which operates only if earnings rise above a fixed amount, and a No-Accident Record Plan under which new low levels were achieved in the severity and frequency of accidents.

brought out. The provisions of the agreement were fully uncovered at the time when the agreement was signed; and public interest in the historical background is not very evident. In the political bickering over the agreement there is still less interest. It seems to be impossible for the House to debate even so vital a matter as trade between the two greatest customers in the world without fighting ancient political battles ad nauseam.

Premier Mackenzie King in the course of a rather dull discourse, heavily documented, did succeed in bringing out into sharp focus the importance of the agreement. "Depression", he said, "rightly understood, means nothing more or less than absence of trade; and may I state the reverse as being equally true, that trade—plenty of trade—means the end of depression."

The Liberal party's expectations from the treaty were summarized as follows:

BENEFITS OF THE TREATY

"Basic primary industries, dependent upon accessible export markets for the profitable sale of a large part of their production, are once more enabled to enter the United States and guaranteed against a tariff increase on their products.

"Their production costs are appreciably lowered by the elimination or reduction of the duties on their implements of production.

"Similarly the ordinary inarticulate consumer, whose interests have been shamefully neglected, has already found out in lower prices and a wider range of choice what the agreement with the United States will mean to him.

"Increased purchasing power of primary producers, stimulated business for distributors and transport trades, lower costs of production generally, and an increase in real wages through a reduction in many items of the household budget—these are some of the ways in which the agreement is already making itself felt."

The private members had a busy week. They urged, among other things, the nationalization of all private industry which was not properly serving the state, the nationalization of all chartered banks, more equitable freight rates on domestic movement of grain, greater employment of white Canadian sailors on ships owned and registered in Canada, the exclusion of orientals until such time as they are given the rights of Canadian citizenship.

In addition a considerable sum of money—six or eight million dollars—was voted for various branches of government.

A highly popular announcement was made regarding hospital allowances made to ex-service men and officers. The scale in the past has been such as to extend far more generous treatment to officers than men, but the government now takes the view that the war is over, and the difference has been greatly reduced.

Radio-Like Brain

Elmer McCagran of Raven, Alta., is a sixteen-year-old boy with a radio-like brain. On December 23rd. a bullet passed through the center of Elmer's brain—an accidental discharge of a gun his brother was cleaning. And yet there in no disturbance in any part of Elmer's brain-functioning. We have heard of radio sets operating with one tube gone, but here's a brain working normally with many cells shattered. Thinking must be less physical than formerly supposed. On the other hand Elmer may have had brains to spare. We're not inviting anyone to shoot half ours out!

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES—AND THEIR BANK

FISHERIES

JIM: "Bill, do you ever get tired of handling fish, fish, fish, all the time?"

BILL: "Yes, Jim, but it helps me to keep going when I think of the thousands of folks we're helpin' to feed!"

JIM: "That's right—fish is important and we're in a fine big business."

BILL: "Wasn't always big, though. The Chief was tellin' me the other day about how this company started. It seems funny, now. He and his partner figured they would do a whole lot better if they could keep their bait fresh for all-year fishin'. They went to the Bank of Montreal and borrowed on their personal securities to build a cold storage plant. Of course, they soon paid back the loan, because a lot of folks saw what a good thing this business was goin' to be and bought stock in the company. Now look at the business!"

But the Chief admitted to me, confidentially, of course, that if it hadn't been for the Bank of Montreal, they couldn't have succeeded, and he said it was the same way with a lot of the other fishery concerns."

JIM: "A good story, Bill, and I know it's true, because the Chief told me, too. I reckon he tells 'most everybody, because he likes to talk about his Bank. It's my Bank, too. I have a savings account there."

BILL: "Have you, Jim? So have I."

ALDERMAN CRITICIZES TRAFFIC FINES

Alderman Georges Caron of Maisonneuve has raised an accusation more often heard outside, than within, the council chamber. He charges that parking by-laws are a mere revenue producer for the city—a fact which city motorists have long since discovered for themselves.

Alderman Caron does a thing unheard of; he challenges the ethics of commercializing crime—and in short that is exactly what is being done in the Recorder's Courts. "The people who drive automobiles in Montreal," he says, "and all others who are subject to the law applied in the Recorder's Court, will be interested in knowing officially whether they are to be found guilty in the eyes of the law or of City Hall revenue collectors. And I propose to find out."—Which is a wholesome attitude for any alderman to take.

It is, after all, an obscure connection between a city's treasury deficit and a motorist's misdemeanor in parking a few minutes longer than the prescribed time at a section of the city curb. Yet the traffic court finds these circumstances happily related.

THE LEAGUE HAS SPOKEN

Critics of the League of Nations claim that it works too slowly to be effective. When we realize that the oil-sanctions measure is only now taking a definite turn after its innumerable delays, we are inclined to believe the League can never get under way speedily enough to meet an international crisis.

If peace parleys between Italy and Ethiopia are not instituted before next Tuesday, the League states, member nations will clamp on the oil-sanctions and Mussolini must then suffer the handicap. . . If some ultimatum of this kind had been delivered six months ago, the League might have hit its objective. But now, much harm has been done; whatever may be achieved at this stage, it is obvious that, to meet future emergencies and to fulfill its purpose, the League of Nations must be shorn of red tape and technicalities. If this cannot be achieved—and we well realize the difficulties, then it must ever remain a noble but impractical venture.

A DOUBTFUL EPITAPH

The record of William Horace Devere Cole, a practical joker on a grand scale, should be pigeon-holed among the legion of misguided lives. Cole is dead, at the age of 53, and his claim to distinction lies in his aptitude for practical joking. He boasted that he had perpetrated 95 "big time" hoaxes throughout Europe, without detection.

Posing as "the Sultan of Zanzibar," Cole once deluded the authorities of Cambridge University into according him the official welcome due a visiting potentate. . . Once, disguised as a road laborer, he roped off a large section of Piccadilly Circus, interfering with the heavy traffic of that section; and once as "the Prince of Abyssinia" he inspected a British battleship. . . Cole bore a striking resemblance to former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and was said to have made an unauthorized speech in Mr. MacDonald's behalf at one time.

—We can only commend his sense of humor, believing however that posterity might have revered him longer, had such ingenuity been directed into more constructive channels. . . The reader may conclude, our experience with practical jokers has not been particularly happy.

NO SHORTAGE OF NATURAL GAS

Thousands of millions of cubic feet of natural gas have been added to the reserve supply in southwestern Ontario as a result of the past year's well drilling operations, and the danger of shortage of supply that faced the consumers two years ago has been removed. Many cities, towns, and rural communities in that section of Ontario use natural gas for cooking and heating purposes. The City of London, formerly a user of artificial gas, is the latest addition to the list, its supply being obtained by a pipe-line from the Dawn field in Lambton county, fifty miles distant. The gas producing beds are located across the entire south-western part of the province, from the Niagara peninsula to Lake St. Clair, but the output is especially large in the Lambton-Kent and Welland-Haldimand field. The value of Ontario's natural gas output is close to $5,000,000, annually.

During the 1935 field season the Canadian Department of Mines made surveys to determine the natural gas and petroleum potentialities of several counties in Ontario, embracing an area of 9,000 square miles. Until recently all the natural gas produced came from porous rocks of high structure, but in recent drilling operations it has been obtained from long narrow bands of low structure rocks. These are presumably situated along faults where a secondary porosity has been developed, and the discovery of these productive structures considerably increases the probable gas reserves.

END 2,000 YEARS OF WATER SHORTAGE IN HOLY CITY

After more than 2,000 years of water shortage, Jerusalem is now receiving water through a 38-mile pipeline which pumps the precious fluid from the newly-built reservoir at Ras-el-Ain on the coast, 2,600 feet below Jerusalem.

Expenditure of almost $2,000,000 was necessary before the pipeline was finally connected with Jerusalem.

The new supply supplements the water available in Solomon's Pools, ancient reservoirs believed to have been built by the third King of Israel.

It is expected that the Holy City's households will be supplied once every three days instead of once every seven days as previously.

MOTORIZED FIRE EQUIPMENT EFFECTS SAVING

Figures on the comparative costs of horse-drawn and motor fire equipment are given by Director C. Carson of the Montreal Fire Department.

A new motor fire truck costing $1,000 has been put in operation at Longue Pointe, a suburb of the metropolis. It replaces four horses.

In December the cost of the car was 72 cents for gas (six miles of runs plus two test startings per day). Had the horses remained, the estimated cost in that period was set at $25 for winter shoeing; $124 for forage; total $149. Savings to taxpayers in one station for this particular month—$148.28.

And that, says the director, is what is going on in all of the 18 stations where light cars are being substituted for horses.

STRICT CURFEW IN CHINESE CITY

City officials of Suining have published an edict commanding all residents to arise every day at 5.30 a.m. and to retire at 9.30 at night with all lights out. A Chinese correspondent remarks that this "is inconvenient for lazy ones who like to lie late abed, and sorrowful for those who like to wine and gamble at night."

SAFETY SIGN ON GRAVE

A highway sign warning motorists to "think" marks the roadside grave of Lyle Sullens, former High School athlete at Grinnell, Louisiana, who was killed in an automobile crash.

reduction called for much discussion, and it is expected that the underwriters will shortly visit Lachute after a further study of conditions. The necessity of appointing someone to see that the chimneys were cleaned, was well discussed but left over until a further meeting.

The question of opening Grace Street to Main, opposite Milway Street, was again brought forward and the secretary was instructed to write Quebec to see if a grant could be secured.

The council then adjourned to the call of the chair.

Among the Lachute Men Curlers

The regular Men's Curling Club supper last Thursday was well attended.

On Friday the local enthusiasts were hosts to two teams from St. George's, to whom they handed an aggregate defeat in the District Medals contests. The teams and scores were:

Two Lachute teams returned the visit on the following day, again defeating St. George's, this time in both contests. The teams comprised:

R. Langille, S. Parnell, E. M. Jones, J. R. Charron (Skip).
C. E. Richardson, L. J. King, Rev. Cousens, Geo. Hay (Skip)

A foursome skipped by R. Vickery last Saturday challenged J. A. MacKimmie's rink as holders of the Houston Cup. Mr. MacKimmie's rink retained their title.

The Doubles are now in full swing. . . The weekly supper is being held tonight. . . On Friday a Lachute team will play in the Elgin Trophy games in Montreal.

Two League Games Carpet Bowling

Monday's carpet bowling was between Brownsburg Anglican and Lachute Presbyterian players, which resulted in a 6-6 tie in one contest and a 9-4 lead for Brownsburg Anglicans in the other. The latter, who were hosts to the visitors from Lachute on this occasion, were thus victors in 15-10 total.

Lady Curlers Visited Hawkesbury Club

Among the lady curlers, finals for Mrs. Mitchell's prizes were played on Saturday. The winners were:

Mrs. A. A. Hills, Mrs. H. Giles, Mrs. A. Bothwell, Mrs. J. A. MacGibbon (Skip).

Play for the Match Committee Cup began on Monday.

Two rinks visited Hawkesbury on Tuesday and report a very pleasant day. The players were:

Miss Lila Giles	Mrs. A. A. Hills
Mrs. H. M. Gall	Mrs. H. McFaul
Mrs. J. M. Drew	Mrs. J. McGibbon
Miss A. Riddell	Mrs. W. Cottingham

Miss Riddell's rink brought home the prizes.

Gala Day has been arranged for Monday, March 9th.

Lions Curlers Bring Home the Trophy

Winning four out of four games, the curling representation of Lachute Lions Club came home Tuesday evening from the final round at Ottawa bearing the Michael Mahoney Cup. The rink which beat Ottawa in Tuesday's game comprised—W. M. Cottingham, H. Johnson, S. S. Campbell, Rev. H. Cousens (Skip).

The trophy is now on view at the Cottingham Supply Company, and will appear later in the show windows of other prominent Lachute merchants. The cup was won last year by the Buckingham Club, which on account of sickness among its players was unable to compete this year.

Canada now has 18 national parks with a total area of 12,059 square miles.

The Folk School

In its most widely known form the folk school originated in Denmark in the middle of the Nineteenth century. The idea, as originally conceived by Bishop Nikolai Grundtvig (eighteen to twenty-five) of rural Denmark, to foster patriotism and strengthen religious conviction and to provide vocational training. The first school, established in Schleswig in 1849, was moved across the Danish border after Schleswig passed to Germany, in 1864.

About Hog Island

Discovered in 1772 by the French, Hog Island belongs to a group of barren rocks called the Quezet Islands. It derives its name from the fact that an English captain liberated a few hogs on the tiny isle a number of years after its discovery. The hogs promptly died, but the name stuck. Mariners came to know and dread the forbidding rock when several disastrous wrecks occurred on its shores.

and Cruikshank, he was one of the senior members of that body.

Rev. Dr. MacLeod received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from the Montreal Theological College. He was minister at Kingsbury, Que., and Three Rivers, where he occupied the pulpit for a period of twenty years. From 1912 to 1921 he filled the charge at Scotstown, Que. It was last year that he returned to aid in the anniversary observances of that church.

Here in Lachute he was a familiar figure. His alert interest in matters effecting the ecclesiastical welfare or the Christian spirit of this community had won profound respect and admiration.

The funeral service, held yesterday afternoon at the United Church, was very largely attended. Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiated. Dr. W. R. Cruikshank representing the Montreal Presbytery, Mr. Armistage Ewing, K.C., representing the Senate of the United Theological College, Mr. Payson Sherman, M.L.A. for Compton, representing the congregation of Scotstown, Mr. Crombie, representing the congregation of Three Rivers and Kingsbury, were among those present. Letters of kindly sympathy were read by Rev. Mr. Rosborough from Mr. Guy Tombs and Dr. Wm. Munroe, chairman and secretary of the Presbytery respectively, who were unable to be present. A silent tribute to the memory of a beloved pastor and friend was the beautiful wreath forwarded by the congregation of his former church at Three Rivers.

The remains were interred in Lachute Cemetery.

"Commercial Geography" Topic of Address

REGULAR MEETING OF LIONS CLUB

The regular meeting of the Lions Club, held on Wednesday, was thoroughly enjoyed by the members and their guests. One of the outstanding features was the presentation of the Mahoney Curling Trophy. This trophy, previously held by Buckingham Lions Club, was won by Lachute Lions who emerged from the competition with four straight wins to their credit.

Lion Tom Haller gave an interesting address, entitled "Commercial Geography," which explained in brief the movement of trade from one section of the country to another, and the method of financing.

Lion Germain Filion was boosted by Philippe Valois. The lucky numbers were drawn by Lion Philippe Valois and Lion Rev. W. LeCras.

All Lions are charged to keep in mind the District Convention at Ottawa, in June, when it is hoped that this Club may have 100% representation.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS IN THE CARE OF FURNITURE

If furniture has developed the cloudiness known as "gloom," it should be sponged with cheesecloth wrung out of the following mixture: one tablespoonful vinegar, one tablespoonful linseed oil, and two tablespoonfuls turpentine in a quart of hot water. This treatment should be followed by oil or wax polish. It should be applied sparingly with a soft wool rag, and then polished with a dry, soft cloth, until all oil is rubbed either in or off. Oil repeatedly left on the surface will spoil the polish.

Kilmar Families Bereaved

We regret to record the death of Lyman Patrick, youngest and dearly beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carriere of Kilmar, who passed away after a short illness on Feb. 21st., aged 2 years and 10 months. The funeral took place on Sunday, Feb. 23rd., and was conducted by Rev. Father Brosseau of Grenville. The pall-bearers were his four uncles, Earle and Jack Stone, Leo and Edmond Carriere, and the casket was conveyed by Mr. Fred Gauley. Besides his parents he leaves to mourn his loss three brothers, Alwyn, Gerald and Armand, and one sister, Bernice. Interment was made in the cemetery at Calumet.

The death took place in Dr. Smith's Hospital, Hawkesbury, on the 22nd. February of little Norman Boyd, aged six years and six months. He was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyd of Kilmar. The news came as a great shock to the community. The funeral service was held at the home on Monday, Feb. 24th., and was conducted by his minister, the Rev. J. H. Lynn. Interment was made in Calumet. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the sorrowing parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyd, and their family.

Wolves Wouldn't Wait

Raymond Rutten of Crary, North Dakota, was bringing home a load of meat one day when a pack of wolves, gaunt with hunger, tried to overtake him. Several of the animals, led by a huge old timber wolf, followed him for two miles before they were finally outdistanced. It was believed that heavy snows and severe cold had made conditions unbearable for the wolves and they were seeking other means of obtaining food.

We hear a great deal about the wolf at the door, but it isn't often they won't wait until a man has brought home the bacon.

Tennyson said, "I am part of all that I have met."—And by the same token we make or mar the future of the world by that part of ourselves we fuse into others.

W. I. Held Entertainment at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — On Thursday evening last Chatham Women's Institute gave an entertainment in the Brownsburg United Church in aid of their funds for charitable work in the district. For the high quality the program furnished, the event was worthy of a much larger support on the part of the public—let alone for its object as a relief measure for needy families. The Women's Institute is the only society in this village of an interdenominational character that, in its charitable work, seeks to relieve needy families without any distinction of class or creed.

The program, though of an entirely local nature, reflected great credit on both performers and the Society. All the numbers were of a fine quality, and the spirit of the entertainment was most enjoyable. It was a program in keeping with past entertainments by young people of this village, and was appreciated by all who were present. One cannot enumerate the individual selections—but apart from the debate put on by four young men, two particular items were probably considered outstanding, one on account of the extreme youth of the artist and the excellent technique of her playing—Maureen Cumbers, a little virtuoso of real ability, whose two piano solos drew warm applause and brought forth many appreciative comments. Another was the address on Education by Principal Staniforth, which for definiteness, clearness, logic, and fearless approach of modern problems, deserves a high place among discourses appropriate to education week. A debate, "That radios are more benefit to the human race than automobiles," was a source of great hilarity, while the arguments put forth were both illuminating and suggestive. The affirmative was taken by Russell Graham and Jack Seary; the negative by William Woods and Cedric Wheeler. The judges were Principal Staniforth, Mr. Graham and Mr. Connelly. On a vote being taken by the audience, the affirmative won with a good majority—a decision confirmed by the judges on their return. A mouth-organ band, with Gordon Anderson as conductor, provided music during the evening. The program follows:

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

DON'T FORGET YOUR PETS

Story telling snapshots of your pets breathe life into your snapshot album.

CAMERA owners who have taken pictures of their pets always find, on looking back over their snapshot albums, that the pictures recall events of bygone years which played an important part in their happiness, and they are mighty glad to have them. So, here are a few ideas for taking such pictures.

If your pet, for instance, has learned some tricks why not make a series of snaps—a "lay-out" or "strip" as a series of pictures is often referred to in the photographic or art departments of newspapers. Perhaps your dog has been taught to sit up, "roll over" or "speak" before receiving his daily bread or a choice morsel of candy. Snaps of "Snip" doing these tricks and mounted in your album as a "strip" across the page will add to the interest and variety of your collection.

You can take such pictures with almost any camera. Of course, if "Snip" displays considerable speed when he "rolls over" you will probably have to shoot outdoors at a shutter speed of about 1/100 second. Where you set your diaphragm opening at this shutter speed depends much on your lighting. The brighter the day the more you can "stop down" to get greater depth of focus. When in doubt use the larger diaphragm opening for it is always better to overexpose a little than to underexpose.

If the pet is your child's companion, be sure to snap an interesting story-telling picture of the two pals at play. Your five-year-old will probably not appreciate the value of such a picture now but in later years he will thank you for preserving for him those happy days of childhood.

Undoubtedly your cat—alley or otherwise—has his favorite lounging spot in the house, or favorite "look-out" such as that of Mr. J. Thomas Cat, pictured above. Have you ever thought of taking such a picture? Believe it or not, it won quite a substantial prize in a national snapshot contest a few years ago.

And don't overlook the canary, the parrot, love birds, Jimmie's pet rabbits and the many other animals and birds of various and sometimes strange types and breeds adopted by those who favor the unusual.

It's perfectly all right to dress up the cat or dog in glasses, cap, pipe, or shoe him unceremoniously into a boot or shoe, if the unfortunate animal is small enough to be shoved, but pictures of that type are not long lived as far as enduring interest is concerned. It's the snapshot that tells a story or has human interest appeal that really breathes life into an album.

JOHN VAN GUILDER

Little Rosalie, a first-grade, walking with her mother, spoke to a small boy. "His name is Jimmy and he is in my grade," she explained.

"What is the little boy's last name?" her mother asked.

"His whole name," said Rosalie, "is Jimmy Sitdown—that's what the teacher calls him."

"You seem to have forgotten that you promised to love, honor and obey."

"Obey? Gee! I thought he said 'O.K.'!"

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago

March 5, 1886.

The Lachute Town Council have passed another by-law to borrow $9,000 and intend asking the ratepayers to vote that sum. They did this in face of the estimates prepared by Councillor Fish showing that only $4,000 was needed, and in face of the strongest remonstrances from Councillors Dr. G. Christie, Thos. McQuat and Jas. Fish, who wanted the amount limited to $5,000 and who showed by figures that this sum left a balance of $900. This council has already levied a rate of 40 cents on the dollar for current expenses for 1886, and if they can get the ratepayers to vote $9,000 it will take a tax of 60 cents to pay our current expenses. At an adjourned meeting held on March 1st., it was moved by Councillor McQuat that the proposed loan be restricted to $5,000 inasmuch as that sum, with the amount levied by taxation and revenue from other sources, will be sufficient to meet all present liabilities, and it is inadvisable to borrow money for ill-counselled schemes for which we have neither plans nor reliable estimates, as such a course cannot fail to be exceedingly detrimental to the prosperity of the town.

30 Years Ago

March 9, 1906.

At the regular meeting of the Town Council last evening, it was decided that a committee comprising the Mayor and Councillors Hay and McPaul be appointed to draft an agreement with the C.P.R. and effect a final settlement for the Berry drain, if possible.

At a meeting of Lachute School Commissioners held in the Academy on Tuesday, a communication was received from Miss Paton, requesting the Board to release her from her teaching duties in order to take a three months' course in nature study at Macdonald Institute. The request was granted.

The home of Mr. W. Wilson, North River, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Feb. 27th., when his youngest daughter, Sarah, was married to Rudolph Mason of N. W. SUE'S PROBLEM

"I wish someone could help me, Or tell me what to do, To have a birthday every year," Cried little brown-eyed Sue.

"I went and got born in February On that very leap year day, That comes just once in four years And the next three stays away."

"If I can't have a birthday every year Like all the folks I know, How am I to know my age? And how am I to grow?"

MARCH WINDS

Bob and Betty were sitting before the fireplace with old Bingo lying between them, when their Uncle Dick came into the room. Grandmother Parker raised her eyes from the book she was reading to smile at her youngest son. "What is the weather like, Dick?" she asked.

"Cold, Mother. o' mine, and the wind is strong enough to blow the hair off a dog's back."

"Uncle Dick," cried Betty, "Do you really mean that?"

"Why not, Chick?" said her uncle, turning his laughing eyes towards her. Uncle Dick, just home on a visit for a few weeks, did not know that Betty took everything that she heard very seriously. Seeing that she was regarding him rather gravely, the spirit of mischief which had seemed to dominate his life from boyhood prompted him to say, "I had all that I could do, Betty, to keep my own hair from blowing away!"

Betty looked at his head. It did look as though the wind had been tugging fiercely at it. "You were fortunate," she said quite simply, "to have been able to keep it," and she turned back toward the fireplace, without hinting either to Grandmother Parker or Uncle Dick the plan that had come into her busy brain.

Some time later, with Grandmother and Uncle Dick too deep in conversation to notice them, Bob and Betty led old Bingo by his deep leather collar out of the back door and over to the high hill behind the dairy. "You know, Bobby," Betty was saying eagerly, "You know Bingo just hates to be clipped, and if we can get his long hair off this way how pleased he will be."

"I don't believe we can", Bobby said skeptically. "Oh but Bobby, you heard what Uncle Dick said just now," replied his sister.

"Yes, I did hear him but I think Uncle Dick is a real teaser sometimes. Perhaps he did not really mean what he said. Perhaps he was only saying it for fun."

"But, Bobby, I asked him and he said that he had all he could do to keep his own hair on his head."

But Bobby liked to argue. "We have never heard of the wind doing anything like that before," he protested. "Teacher said the dother day that there always had to be a first time," said Betty, with a toss of her head, "and-and-this wind is terrible!" It was. It had almost turned Betty right around. Clutching the old, brown prong of a hard-maple stump, "Up Bingo!" she commanded, "Up on the stump where the wind can get at you. You know you don't like to be clipped. Up Bingo! Up!"

Bingo did not know what it all meant, but was used to obeying the children, so he jumped up on the stump and stood looking down at them, wagging his short tail. The wind whistled and whined around him, tossing his hair about, but much to Betty's sorrow the hair stayed quite firmly rooted and not even the tiniest wisp appeared to be blowing away. Angry tears stood in her eyes. "Uncle Dick was horrid," she muttered, "to say that when it was not true." Tugging at the rope which she had attached to Bingo's collar she turned to go back to the house—but the rope was suddenly snatched from her hand and Bingo was off down the steep path that led to the brook at the bottom of the hill.

The children called to him to come back, but finding that he did not heed them, they followed him down to the edge of the brook and were much surprised at what they saw. Faithful old Bingo was crawling out of a big hole in the ice holding a little black lamb in his mouth while the mother sheep was stamping and bleating in fear.

Bingo, from his high place on the stump, had seen the lamb fall into the hole and had dashed down the hill to its rescue. Now, laying it down in front of Betty he whined as if to say, "Take it to the fire, Betty." Betty caught the lamb up in her arms and ran with it to the house—its mother and Bob and Bingo all racing after her.

"What kind of a procession is this coming?" asked Uncle Dick, laughing loudly as the door opened and all four rushed in.

Grandmother Parker was too surprised to speak, and the children too excited to explain, until their father, who had been having a nap on the kitchen sofa, came into the room to see what all the noise was about.

"What in the world are Nannie and her lamb doing in the house, children?" he asked, opening the door and chasing the mother sheep outside.

"The little lamb was in the water and Bingo saved it, Daddy," cried Betty. "We had him up on the stump so's the wind could get at him, and he saw it down in the water and ran down and saved it. His big teeth made marks on it, but that is better than having it drowned, isn't it Daddy?" Betty asked.

"I should say it is—and we will have to shut Nannie in the barn until all the ice melts in the brook, if she is going to take her little lamb down there. It is too young to walk so far, and I expect it was so tired that it fell into the hole."

"Perhaps the wind blew it into the hole, Betty," said her uncle. Betty turned and stared with sober eyes. "Perhaps it did, Uncle Dick, but it did not blow the hair off Bingo's back, and you said it would." She looked at him accusingly.

"Oh! but Bingo's not a dog, he's a hero," chuckled her uncle—and Betty, if I had not told you that, you wouldn't have taken Bingo out to the stump—then he would never have been the lamb in the water, and it would have been drowned. So you see the old saying that 'it's an ill wind that blows nobody good' is quite true, even if it is a March wind. Give daddy the lamb to take to old Nannie, before she comes through the window after it. The wee pet is quite warm now."

"She would not come through the window," scoffed Bobby. "Stranger things have happened" laughed his uncle, as there came to his mind a vision of the children waiting patiently for the wind to perform a miracle.

INDIAN SCOUTS ON SANITARY CRUSADE

In carrying out a Scout project of education in sanitation a group of Indian Scouters selected a street leading from the main square of a village via the mosque to the home of the village head man, and set about cleaning it, dumping the dirt and refuse into pits dug by them. Other Scouters went about washing with boric lotion sore eyes of children and dressing neglected wounds. Talks were given on the advantages of fresh air and exercise, the abuses of putting ornaments on small children and the value of vaccination against smallpox.

THIS NATURAL FOOD GENTLY REGULATES YOUR SYSTEM

Furnishes Needed "Bulk" for Regular Habits

Your doctor will tell you that keeping healthy depends far more on proper diet than on drugs, that common constipation is usually due to insufficient "bulk" in meals, and that patent medicines give you only temporary relief.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies gently acting "bulk" which corrects the cause of common constipation. This "bulk" takes up moisture, forming a soft mass which helps to cleanse the system.

ALL-BRAN gives your body the regular internal exercise it needs to prevent sluggishness. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

Careful studies on men and women have shown that this delicious cereal is perfectly satisfactory. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity, with milk or cream—or use in cooking.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. Avoid disappointment—get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

FLOWERS FOR THE LIVING

One of the comforting things to mitigate the general sorrow in the death of the King, is that he lived long enough to celebrate his Silver Jubilee, and to learn the loyalty and love of his people. Any who had the privilege of hearing Stanley Baldwin speak the day after the King's death will never forget his description of the King's joy in the Jubilee demonstrations. Every person, whether Royalty or Commoner, likes to know that he is liked. Only too often the expression of affection comes too late.

PURPLE FOR ROYAL MOURNING

The custom of using purple for royal mourning was not always followed. Maurois says in his "The Edwardian Era", that by the end of the day on which Queen Victoria died, there was no black to be bought in London. Then it transpired that the Queen had left instructions that she was to be buried in white, her room was to be hung in white, and the route of the funeral procession was to be hung with purple. She did not want her death to have outward signs of sorrow because she was going to join her Albert. Yet she herself had never taken off black from the time of his death, except on the occasion of her Diamond Jubilee, when she wore a grey dress.

ODD MEASUREMENTS

Occasionally recipes have measurements that are not marked on a measuring cup, such as three tablespoons, 6 tablespoons, seven-eighths cup. To measure three tablespoons of butter takes time, measuring it a spoonful at a time. If you remember that a cup equals 16 tablespoons, it resolves itself into simple mathematics. The easiest and quickest method of measuring shortening is but the use of water and a measuring cup. If you want a $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of butter, fill the measuring cup half full of water and then add butter until the cup is full. Pour off the water and you have a half cup of butter exactly. Similarly, if you want $\frac{3}{4}$ cup of butter, fill the cup three-quarters full of water and then fill up with butter. If one cup equals 16 tablespoons, then $\frac{1}{2}$ cup equals 8 tablespoons and $\frac{3}{4}$ cup equals 12 tablespoons. If you want to measure 6 tablespoons of butter, (that is 2 tablespoons less than $\frac{1}{2}$ cup), fill the measuring cup to the $\frac{1}{2}$ cup mark with water, then add 2 tablespoons more water, which gives you 10 tablespoons water. Fill up the cup with butter and you will have exactly 6 tablespoons. It is such a simple, quick way of measuring, that if you do not use it now, I wish you would try it a few times until you get on to it. It may seem a nuisance at first but it really is very simple and is worth mastering because of its exactness and quickness.

SQUINT

A child who has a squint should be taken to an eye-specialist just as soon as it is noticed as much can be done by glasses, if they are worn soon enough. Parents sometimes have the wrong idea that the child will grow out of it but this is not the case. It tends to get worse and will weaken the eye. Naturally, parents hate to see a small child wear glasses, but it is much better to wear glasses while very young and save the eyes. Very often glasses alone are enough to correct the difficulty if they are worn soon enough. After five years of age it is too late to do much by glasses alone.

Tender Memories and Precious Dreams

When a man is broke and he wants something very very much, he wishes with great intensity that he had saved some money in other days, when he could have done so. He recalls the money he wasted on this and that.

When a man is sick and weak, he wishes he had conserved his strength. He rails at himself for being a fool and taking chances with that most precious treasure—his health.

When a man's relatives are far away on earth or even for him only in that circle of memory out of sight, he cherishes each long-loved scene of the past and wishes he had guarded his other friendships and had made more of them.

Every man-building job should include three rooms.

"There is an altar in my heart, Forever swept and set apart."

There should be an altar in every heart, a Room of Intimate Communion wherein the self—no matter what the attitude of the body, may several times a day get alone on its knees.

But there should also be the Room of Tender Memories. Squeeze all the goodness out of your picnic days—mar them not with any unpleasant word. Store their summery scents and little intimacies in the Room of Tender Memories. The same can be said of parties, little victories and high spots of service and personal achievement.

To brothers in the home I would say, minimize the pestering and build up the kindness. Let your slogan be, "Please Today."

To sisters, cultivate patience, cease looking for slights, grin more, grumble less. Build up memories of helpful, thoughtful deeds.

To husbands and wives, sow not seeds of regret. By positive planning make pleasant paintings to hang on the wall of this Room of Tender Memories.

In the days of doubt and heartache you can retire to your Room of Tender Memories and find peace and strength—if you store it well in your faithful, happy, together days.

But beside the Room of Tender Memories in the wing of your house facing the sunny side—there build another room—the Room of Precious Dreams. For days when things don't go right, and for days of great courage as well, some high hopes and precious dreams are a tremendous help.

It has been said that an army moves forward on its stomach. That is, if it is well fed it can best beat down barriers and make progress.

Individuals in normal life move forward on their highest hopes and dreams.

So build well your Room of Precious Dreams. Then when the world looks blue and you have a place to retire, its restful tones will strengthen and hearten you. They may even play a part in helping you to change the drabness of the world.

grated rind 1 lemon
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter
3 eggs beaten

Mix ingredients and cook over water in a double boiler until thick, stirring frequently. Cool before using. This is enough for two cups and will keep if closely covered.

CHOCOLATE LEMON LAYER CAKE

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk
2 cups flour
4 tablespoons baking powder
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt

Cream butter and sugar, add well-beaten egg yolks. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt, and add alternately with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a tin about 9" by 12" in a moderate oven of 350 degrees. Split and fill with lemon butter and ice with chocolate icing. The batter may be baked in jelly cake tins if preferred at a slightly hotter temperature of 375 degrees.

CHOCOLATE ICING

5 tablespoons cocoa
5 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons butter
Cook over slow heat until thick, stirring constantly. Cool and add

2 tablespoons cream about $2\frac{1}{4}$ cups icing sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla
Stir until thick. Do not have the icing too stiff, and remember that it gets stiffer as it sets. Spread on cake and mark lengthwise with the tines of a fork. I like this icing better than any other chocolate one I make. If I use it on a chocolate cake, I sometimes substitute 5 tablespoons coffee for the 5 tablespoons water, by way of variety.

APPLE CRISP

Fill a casserole three-quarters full with sliced apples, putting brown sugar between the layers. It will require from one to one and a half cups, depending on the quantity of apples. Cover and cook until the apples are soft. Rub together as for pastry $\frac{3}{4}$ cup flour, $\frac{3}{4}$ cup brown sugar, and three tablespoons butter. Sprinkle this mixture over the soft apples and return to the oven to brown. A moderately hot oven is best to brown this crust. Serve with cream.

Canadian Founder of W.I. in British Isles Honored

The official agricultural organization of France, known as the Société des Agriculteurs de France, has signally honored Mrs. Alfred Watt, M. A., M.B.E., the Canadian founder of Women's Institutions in England and Wales, by bestowing upon her the highest award in the gift of the Society, namely its diploma and gold medal. Mrs. Watt has also the distinction of being President of the Associated Country Women of the World, which for the first time is meeting in June on this side of the water, in the city of Washington, U. S. A.

Fashion Fabrics Rush Into Print

In silks and rayons you cannot escape a print. There are quantities of new ones, ever so fresh and gay. Prints in small geometrics or florals, closely massed in new and attractive motifs—beans, leaves, music notes. They are printed on plain crepes, novelty sheers, or jacquard crepes.

The newest-looking prints are unusual motifs rather widely spaced, whether floral or geometric. All manufacturers have used great ingenuity in developing new treatments from old themes; for instance, dots become berries or half disks. The new note in prints is the color-on-color combination instead of the usual white-on-color or color-on-white. These are used for tailored and semi-tailored suits, dresses and blouses.

For more formal dresses we have florals again—repeated some distance apart, or closely massed but medium in size, run to Oriental or Eastern color combinations, where colors are clear and vibrant. We find such effects as blue or magenta; green, blue, and red; and purple, mustard, and green. As always for evening, there are large prints, sometimes giving hand-painted effects, on chiffon or crepe-de-chine. —Helen Koues, in Good Housekeeping.

Here and There

Vancouver is holding this year the Golden Jubilee celebration of its founding in 1886. Some of the features planned include sports events of all kinds, music, pageants, a special performance of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" in Stanley Park, a performance of Hiawatha, an Indian village, a Hawaiian village, special decorations and illuminations all over Vancouver. Celebrations will reach their peak in the first ten days of July.

At the annual Burns dinner held at the Empress Hotel, Victoria in February at which over 300 Burns lovers took part, the royal Scotch haggis was brought over from Vancouver and was carried in steaming hot on a silver platter by Miss Gwen Dwyer and piped around the Empress dining room by Pipe-major Donald Cameron. Greetings were received from South Africa, Australia, the United States and London, England.

Stating emphatically that success depends on luck, Captain Charles M. Hudson, D.S.O., and Bar, R.N.R., commander of Q-boat for two years of the war, had a hard job convincing the Active Club International at Hotel Vancouver recently of the entire truth of the statement. They thought that skill, courage and foresight had something to do with success after hearing some of his adventures.

Points to Remember When Planning a Living Room

The average living room is called upon to lead a double life. It must be comfortable and homey enough for the intimacy of the family, and at the same time be dignified enough for abundant hospitality and even formal entertaining. To serve both purposes takes careful planning.

Eight important points to consider when designing a living room, helpful to those who are building or remodeling, or to those who want to change their present houses, are emphasized by Ethel B. Power, in the February House Beautiful. Here they are:

If the room is narrow and there is a fireplace in the long wall, there should be a wall space directly opposite large enough to take a sofa and table.

Furniture should not be placed haphazardly. Important pieces should be related both to each other and to the background.

If maximum light and air are desired, plan the house accordingly. Small windows, if heavily draped, may cut off fifty percent of the light.

South and west exposures get the most sun.

Doors on each side of the fireplace make traffic lanes where there should be seclusion. Too many doors defeat privacy.

Have window sills below the eye of a person seated so that a full view through the window can be obtained.

Keep doors to two if possible and have them at one end of the room. If privacy is most highly desired the living room should be a dead-end room.

A large opening opposite the fireplace opens the heart of the room to callers.

MARCH MORNING

Fingers of yellow light feel their warm way,
Through laughing larches, brightening the day.
Comes the cold smell of dawn; pagent of the sky,
Birds from their orison take wing and fly.
Over the purpling trees, steal threads of gold,
Melting frost's filigree, banishing cold.
Warm radiance floods the earth, brooks rush and sing;
Fat buds and leaves peep forth, welcoming Spring!

—Estelle Jean Worfolk, in the Montreal Gazette.

Jean—"Fashions may come and go, but there's always a demand for cosmetics."

June—"Yes, women can't go wan forever."

Late Mrs. John Moncrieff

Arundel—On the morning of Feb. 26th., this community was shocked by the sudden death of Olive Graham, beloved wife of John Moncrieff, in her 48th. year, at her home in Arundel.

Mrs. Moncrieff was in her usual good health up to the time of her death, having suffered a severe stroke and passed away in a few hours. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Graham, was born in Lakefield, Que., and came to Arundel in her early life. She always took an active part in the welfare of the community, was a member of the United Church and for several years was president of the Ladies' Union.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband; three daughters, Edna of Greenfield Park, Que., Velma and Viola at home; and one son, Leonard, attending Macdonald College; five brothers and two sisters.

The funeral service, which was very largely attended, took place from the family residence to the United Church on the afternoon of Feb. 28th., conducted

EMBARKED ON NEWSPAPER CAREER BY REPORTING SPEECH OF CHAS. DICKENS

Late Mrs. Kate Massiah Was Widely Known
... Long Time Resident of this Town

Mrs. Kate S. Massiah, an old resident of this town and widely known in activities of the neighborhood, was called to her reward early last Friday after a long and active life. She was nearly 82 years of age. In recent years she had spent much of her time at her cottage on the eastern outskirts of Lachute, until of late her failing health had taken her to the city and she had spent long months in a nursing home. Here in Lachute Mrs. Massiah was a familiar figure. Her last interests here in welfare work have been concerned with the collection and distribution of flowers each summer, among less fortunate families in Montreal.

Mrs. Kate Massiah is described as one of Canada's pioneer women journalists. Born in England, the daughter of a well-known Manchester publisher, she began her long career of newspaper writing by reporting, for the Manchester Guardian, a speech made by Charles Dickens. Two years afterwards, in 1871, she came to live in Montreal where her brother, the late John L. Norris, was editor of the Montreal Herald. She continued her newspaper work and in 1879 became

PROMINENT MERCHANT REMOVED BY DEATH

THE LATE C. STEPHENS

After a painful ailment of over a year's duration, death came to Christopher Stephens on Saturday last, March 7th., in the Montreal General Hospital.

"Chris", as he was popularly known, was born at Chelsea, England, and was in his 53rd year. He had been in Canada for 40 years and during his earlier experience had lumbered in the West and on the Pacific coast. Later he came East and spent 18 years with the Standard Chemical Company at Fessett. Eleven years ago he moved to Lachute with his family and conducted an up-to-date Cash & Carry Store.

He was married in 1912 to Miss Julia Campbell, who survives him, together with their family of four — Richard, of Lachute, Eric, of Montreal, Frances and Owen at home.

The funeral took place on Tuesday morning from St. Anastasia Church to the Catholic Cemetery, and was largely attended by many sympathizing friends.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and greatly interested in the work of the Board of Trade.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Ross Muir, Frank Earle, K. McOuatt, J. R. Charron, G. Valois and L. E. Dumais.

Town Asked To Set Up Industrial Commission

ALSO WANT EMPLOYMENT AND INFORMATION BUREAU

The St. Jerome Board of Trade passed a resolution to ask the town council to form an industrial commission. The suggestion recommends that this commission be composed of three members, one from the city council, one from the Chamber of Commerce and one from the local Proprietors' League. The Board of Trade will also request the city to open an information and employment bureau in the City Hall.

LACHUTE - BROWNSBURG ROAD TO BE COMPLETED DURING SUMMER

Brownsburg—The great improvements effected on the road between Brownsburg and Lachute are expected to be brought further towards completion during the coming summer. With the cutting of the two hills and widening of the bridges, great strides were made in the provision of a decent highway between the two towns. The completion of this work lies in the widening of the road leading out of Brownsburg, and remaking the roadbed on the macadam or asphalt principle. Road-making authorities have acquired the necessary land to effect this purpose, and the payment for such additional land during the past few weeks has enlivened interest in completion of the work.

Citizen Died Suddenly In Montreal Yesterday

LATE J. P. MacKIMMIE WAS FORMER COUNCILLOR AND WIDELY KNOWN

Death came suddenly to a widely known citizen of this town and county, James Pollock MacKimmie, on Wednesday morning while on a brief visit to the city.

In apparent good health and happy spirits Mr. MacKimmie had boarded the morning train for Montreal and spent the night at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. D. Currie.

Leaving early on Wednesday morning to return to Lachute, he was taken with a spell of dizziness and went back to the Currie home. His family were immediately notified, but he passed away before their arrival.

Mr. MacKimmie had been a life-long resident of this community and had served many terms on the Council as representative of the East Ward. He was an honored and devoted member of the United Church, an ardent supporter of Liberalism, and an active sportsman in the Curling Club.

Until acquiring the Cascades Bottling Works here in town he had devoted his life to the building and contracting trade, and upon his father's death he took over the undertaking business.

Mr. MacKimmie leaves his beloved wife, one daughter, Elizabeth, and three sons—William S., John and James; also two sisters, Mrs. W. Wilson of Prescott, Ont., and Mrs. R. Elliott of Russel, Ont.; and three brothers, John of Aurora, Ill., Simon of Calgary, and Thomas of South Haven, Mich.

The funeral will take place on Saturday, March 14th.

RADIO LICENCES IN QUICK DEMAND AT BROWNSBURG

Brownsburg - The Watchman's reports of court action against radio owners who neglected to obtain the necessary licence, and a rumour that licence inspectors were busy in the district, caused a rush on the licence departments here during the past week. "S.R.O." signs were in evidence at some of the licence dealers' within a short time of the demand.

THREE TIMES LOSERS, ELGIN TROPHY GAMES

Lachute team met three defeats in the Elgin Trophy Curling Bonspiel. They played Royal Montreal at Montreal West Rink on Friday afternoon, and lost by 5 to 25.

They attended a banquet for all players of the Elgin Trophy at Royal Montreal Club rooms on Friday at 6.30, and then played Jacques Cartier rink of Quebec at Royal Montreal Club Friday evening. Here they were again defeated, 14 to 15.

On Saturday evening they played against Outremont Club at Heather Rink, but were low on a 12-7 score.

SLUSH PRESENTS PROBLEM TO MOTORISTS AROUND TOWN

April weather has arrived ahead of time. Heavy rains have made inroads into the snow, and thoroughfares in the locality are well nigh impassable. If one can imagine fleets of modern automobiles navigating in the mud-deep streets of our pioneer towns, this might resemble the difficulties of travel in the last day or two. Even the snow plow, sent out to break down the ruts on the road, stalled in many places last night.

CANADA OFFERED LAND AT VIMY, FRANCE

As an expression of gratitude for the part played by Canadian forces in the Great War, France has formally offered Canada perpetual rights to the Canadian Cemetery at Vimy.

The law tendering the acquisition of this parcel of French soil to Canada was unanimously adopted by the French Senate without debate. The cemetery, which lies in a valley, embraces an area of about 71 acres. Thousands of Canadian soldiers, heroes of the taking of Vimy Ridge, are buried in the cemetery.

St. Patrick's Day

(Contributed)

My memory wanders back today
To my early boyhood scene,
Where the mountain fern is waving
And the grass is ever green,
Where the springtime sun is shining
On hill and daisied plain,
Where the dist of hearts lie sleeping
That ne'er shall throb again.

They've sent me from that land today
A sprig that I love well;
It grew upon the sheltering hills
Where the "Ninety Eight" men fell;
Their dust was laid in holy earth,
While on its grassy breast
The shamrock bloomed beside the cross
That marked their dreamless rest.

Dear Erin! my last rest with thee
Is all I fondly claim,
The green grass twisting round a stone,
Inscribed my simple name,
A Celtic cross with shamrock twined,
That pilgrim hearts who stray
May kneel beside my grave and find
A kindly prayer to say.

Irishmen all over the world will celebrate St. Patrick's Day with the greatest fervor, delight and faith. No other nation has a celebration of a feast-day comparable with the Irishman's pride and honour in the feast of his national apostle, St. Patrick. High or low, rich or poor, in suffering or in joy, wherever an Irishman may find himself, alone or among the scattered clans of the Gael, his thoughts will turn to the land of his boyhood. Fourteen hundred years have elapsed since St. Patrick brought the faith to Ireland. His work in Ireland was not like that of a missionary; he met with no opposition, his was a regal procession. Sects have risen in other countries, but not one in Ireland. She holds today the same faith that St. Patrick brought.

In Canada, as elsewhere, Irishmen have contributed generously toward the construction of the great Dominion. In the year 1834 the St. Patrick's Society of Montreal was officially founded. Celebrations were held in Canada long before that date. The Irish Society of Halifax goes back over 150 years. St. Patrick's Day celebrations took place in old Quebec before the year 1774, when, the records state, the Irishman Guy Carlton saved Canada from falling into the hands of the armies from the New England States. One of the strange things of Canadian history is connected with that event: Guy Carlton and Richard Montgomery were boyhood friends in Ireland born a short distance from each other. They were fellow officers under Wolfe at the taking of Quebec in 1759. Carlton remained in the British possession of Canada; Montgomery was sent to the British possession of New England. When the New England Colonists rebelled against England in 1775 Montgomery was a general in charge of an army sent to invade Canada; on New Year's Eve of 1775 he was killed before Quebec's defending walls, leading his troops against victorious Carlton, his former friend. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, Lt. Col. Bernard Devlin, Thomas Lord Shaughnessy, The Right Hon. C. J. Doherty and a host of others have etched a glorious name in the annals of Canadian history.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said,
This is my own, my native land!

In the Victorias' success last Thursday for the Junior Amateur Association championship, Cyril Drew, well known in Lachute sports circles, received honorable mention and a generous share of the credit. Playing on right wing Drew figured in four goals, scoring three on flashy combination plays and assisting on another, to pile up a 5-2 score against Lafontaine Blues.

Beet Growers Seek Assistance from Ottawa ...
Committee Investigates Electoral Machinery

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, March 10.—A committee of the House of Commons is to make an inquiry into the rising cost of farm implements. This promise was made by the Minister of Agriculture at the conclusion of a brief debate on the subject. Prices for 1936 are from $3. to $18. higher for a wide range of farm implements, as compared with prices for the past four or five years. The House appeared to be unanimous in supporting an investigation, although the member for Brantford, W. R. MacDonald, urged that there had been plenty of investigations recently, that the average increase in the price of implements was only three per cent, and that it was important that workers in the implement factories should receive a fair wage. It was also brought out that the implement companies had not been making any profits in recent years. One member urged that the real reason for the plight of the implement company was the destruction of purchasing power of the farmer. When agricultural prices rose through treaties and other means, the demand for implements would go up and everyone would be better off.

WANT AID FOR SUGAR BEET GROWERS

A delegation of members representing areas where sugar beets can be successfully raised waited upon the Minister of Finance and The Minister of Agriculture last week seeking assistance for the industry. One suggestion was that a rebate be given direct to a beet farmer of a cent a pound which

MAYOR, COUNCILLORS TOWN OF BUCKINGHAM FINED FOR CONTEMPT

DEFIED AN INJUNCTION OF SUPERIOR COURT

The town of Buckingham was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and Mayor P. A. Fournier and Councillors W. J. Costello, J. Gorman and E. Cadieux fined $25 each in a judgment handed down in Hull Superior Court by Justice A. Trahan. The judge held them responsible for defying an injunction issued by Justice Joseph Demers of the Quebec Superior Court.

The James MacLaren Company of Buckingham was granted the injunction prohibiting the town from selling electric power for other than industrial purposes. Owing to an alleged violation, the company moved to have the mayor and three councillors fined or committed to jail for contempt of court.

Lachute, St. Jerome Stand Even In Finals

WEATHER THREATENS A DAMP ENDING TO HOCKEY SEASON

In the first of the Western Quebec and Prescott League finals here Saturday, Lachute took a promising lead with a score of 6-4 against St. Jerome. The latter line-up had beaten Hawkesbury on the previous Thursday with 8 goals to 5, thus taking precedence in the 2-out-of-3 semi-final tilts.

On Saturday Lachute outplayed the visitors with a marked superiority in the first and second periods, scoring three goals and holding St. Jerome scoreless. In the final clash St. Jerome held their own and chalked up 4 goals, Lachute meanwhile advancing their count to 6. Penalties were few; Heffermann of Montreal presided as referee. It was undoubtedly one of Lachute's best performances this season. In the home net was Henri Garaldi, who has done good work all season for the Beavers in junior hockey. He upheld his reputation, and filled the Lachute cage most creditably. The local line-up comprised—Goalie, Gerald; defence G. Lefebvre, Bill McFaul; forwards, A. Barker, W. Drew, Lloyd Cruise, R. Gagne, P. Lefebvre, Joe Bernier.

Barker, out of his usual defensive position, put on a good performance. Solo scoring efforts were featured by Bernier and Paul Lefebvre, and generally speaking Lachute's co-operative play did them credit.

In the first clash Bernier tallied alone, Rudy Gagne following with the second goal, assisted by Paul Lefebvre. In

REV. H. COUSENS HONORED BY MASONIC ORDER

The regular monthly meeting of Argenteuil Masonic Lodge was held on Monday evening last. After the business of the evening had been transacted Rt. Wor. Bro. Rev. Henry Cousens was installed in the office of District Deputy Grand Master of Ottawa District No. 7. Rt. Wor. Bro. H. M. Gall conducted the ceremony in a dignified and impressive manner. Later in the evening refreshments were served, when Bro. Cousens gave further expression of his appreciation of the high honor which had been conferred upon him. Argenteuil Lodge No. 67 is proud indeed to have such an able representative at Grand Lodge.

Constable Allan Langille, who has been stationed at Ohsweken, near Brantford, for nearly four years, has now been transferred to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police post at Owen Sound. Commenting on Constable Langille's activities in Ohsweken, a Brantford news clipping says in part: "He was a popular member of the force during his service on the Reserve, and he was well known and well liked in this city, where he played hockey and baseball. He was with the Watson Intermediate O.B.A.A. team here and later pitched for the Hagersville Intermediate team in the season of 1935."

Gave Description 10,000 Mile Air Trip

Mr. Norman Holland was a speaker last week at the Montreal Rotary Club, when he gave an interesting description of his recent 10,000 mile air-tour from Montreal to the British West Indies, Central America, South America, New York and return. Several reels of natural color films, taken by Mr. Holland during his trip, were shown and they revealed the beauty of the countries he visited, and experiences while flying. One of the most thrilling "shots" showed forks of lightning almost sitting on the tail of the plane.

May Resume British Scout Migration Scheme

Prior to the discontinuance of emigration, following the advent of the business depression, upwards of 4,000 English Boy Scouts had migrated to the colonies, chiefly Canada and Australia. Many of these went out through the Migration Department at Imperial Headquarters of the Boy Scouts Association, after undergoing some preliminary training in agricultural pursuits. A number of those coming to Canada distinguished themselves by winning scholarships at different provincial agricultural schools. In response to many inquiries tentative plans are being made for a resumption of this Scout migration, especially to Australia.

METROPOLITAN LIFE BUSINESS SHOWS GROWTH

Insurance in Force Increased—Welfare Work Benefits Policyholders

OTTAWA, March 9. — Continued progress is shown in the 69th annual report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company released today. Life insurance in force passed the twenty billion dollar mark in 1935, an all-time high figure indicative of better conditions throughout Canada and the United States. The number of life policies in force, including 1,670,041 Group certificates, totals 42,165,146. Other outstanding features of the report include: a substantial increase in assets bringing the total well over four billion dollars; the payment during the year to policyholders and their beneficiaries of the record amount of $535,251,584 — which was at the rate of $4,430 a minute for each business day; the declaration of the 1936 dividends payable to policyholders totalling $95,994,851; and the continuation of the Company's extensive health and welfare activities.

"The Company's business in Canada continues to grow," stated Third Vice-President Harry D. Wright, Manager for Canada. "Over a billion dollars of life insurance represented by 2,637,455 policies is now in force here. The amount paid to Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries during the year was $28,412,440. Almost four hundred thousand nursing visits were made to Canadian policyholders without additional charge and nearly four and a half million pieces of health literature were distributed in the Dominion in 1935."

Mr. Wright expressed satisfaction at the results of the Company's national advertising, featuring health messages, and the showing of the technicolor talking picture "Once Upon a Time," aimed at accident prevention. He pointed out that, since 1872, when the Metropolitan commenced business in Canada, the Company has paid out and invested in the Dominion a sum exceeding by $137,000,000 the amount collected here in premiums, and that the Company's Canadian investments now total $267,633,143, an increase during the year 1935 of $10,713,075.

HARRY D. WRIGHT
Third Vice-President and Manager for Canada, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who reports increased investments in the Dominion.

"Life Insurance in Canada has a record of which we can all be proud," said Mr. Wright. "It has fulfilled its stewardship by safeguarding the funds made up of the savings of its policyholders, and it has placed millions of dollars in circulation by the prompt settlement of obligations under its various policy contracts."

Referring to the Company's total business in Canada and the United States, the year's report shows a gain of life insurance in force of $778,544,101. This gain is reflected in all departments and represents high points in the history of the Company. The total insurance in force is now $20,209,349,576, of which 51.3% or $10,483,415,421 is in the Ordinary Department. The Industrial Department has 33.7% or $6,825,000,390, and Group Insurance accounts for 14.5% with a total of $2,900,933,775.

Assets increased $203,694,390 in 1935 and totalled $4,234,802,511 on December 31st last. On this date the surplus funds were $259,809,720. A substantial part of the increase in assets is represented by larger holdings of government bonds. Policy loans increased only one half of 1%, which is the smallest increase in many years, and furnishes sound evidence of the return of better times in Canada and the United States.

For the fourth successive year, the Metropolitan disbursed more than half a billion dollars to its policyholders and beneficiaries in death claims, matured endowments, dividends, disability benefits and other payments. More than two-thirds of the total was paid to living policyholders — a powerful refutation of the saying that, in life insurance, "you have to die to win".

An idea of the Metropolitan's business can be conveyed by reducing some of these annual figures to a daily basis. For instance, the daily average of payments to beneficiaries and policyholders and addition to reserve was more than two million dollars. An average of 2,280 claims were paid every day; and every day saw an average of 18,242 life insurance policies issued and revived; and $10,327,510 in life insurance issued, revived and increased.

"Third Notice!" Every editor has received them. The postmaster is not to blame. For instance, there is a man by the name of—we'll say, Pat Dooley, who sent us three notices to stop his paper; he didn't want it any longer. We wondered what was the matter. On investigating our subscription list we found that Pat was short $9.75. He never paid a cent and yet he stopped his paper as a matter of economy—to us. A few evenings ago we stepped into a church and Pat's clear tenor voice rang out in song "Jesus Paid It All." We may have been mistaken but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing he had made an assignment of his liabilities to the Lord.

is the present excise tax upon sugar. This would be a direct subsidy to the farmer and would, it was urged, do the most good.

Other members opposed this on the ground that a direct subsidy given to the beet grower would open the door for a flood of similar suggestions regarding other branches of the farming industry, and other industries. These members, as an alternative, asked that in the case of sugar beets one per cent per pound tax be removed altogether. In either event the cost to the country would be in the neighborhood of $1,300,000 per year. At present Canada supplies about 13 per cent of her sugar requirements from her own beets, and the remainder is made from raw sugar made from sugar-cane, largely from the West Indies.

The government did not say whether assistance would be granted or not. One problem is that if the protection given the Canadian beet grower is increased, the shippers of cane sugar may lower their prices sufficient to offset it.

CANADA'S VOTING MACHINERY

Canada's whole elections and franchise machinery is being examined with a view to improvement. A committee of Recently the Royal York Hotel, Toronto held a Cherry Pie Contest wide open to everybody and gave ten prizes in order of merit and the good housewives of the Queen City were all agog. The judges of course had their work cut out for them—or may be they did a bit of cutting for themselves.

"It is a pity every British Columbia business man can not find it possible to visit the Far East, particularly Japan," said C. A. Cotterell, assistant general manager, British Columbia, for the Canadian Pacific Railway, just back from a trip to the Orient. Mr. Cotterell thought a visit would be an education, enlightening and of inestimable value in a practical sense.

Two prominent British residents in Kobe are fighting a losing battle against a sacred pine tree which they fear is about to fall on their residence, according to passengers arriving in Victoria recently on the Empress of Japan. They can't get it felled because it is believed if that is done, a pestilence will strike the district.

30 members of the House met for the first time last week to consider the matter, learn what is done in other countries, and make recommendations for suitable changes.

One improvement desired is a system of voting which would ensure a more accurate reflection of the popular vote in the membership of the House of Commons. To secure this, proportional representation and the transferable vote will be considered.

The 'basic list' maintained continuously, for the registration of voters, which was started about two years ago, has proved very expensive and will probably be abandoned. In former days a new list was made before each general election. The 'absentee vote' system has also proved costly.

NO MORE GERRY-MANDERS?

An attempt will also be made to get the whole question of redistribution out of party politics. Every ten years, after a census, the ridings are altered to conform with the changes in population, and there is usually a dogfight, with much heat and charges of 'Gerrymander' or 'Hiving the Grits' or something of the sort. It is hoped that the redistribution can in future be done by some independent

No promise was made by the government to rectify the matter, but the House had a hearty laugh over it.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Policyholders have an interest in this Annual Report

IT may be assumed that these policyholders took out their insurance through a sense of responsibility for those in whose protection they are interested.

When they pay their premiums, there falls upon the Insurance Company a responsibility to pay current claims and to provide adequate funds for the payment of all future obligations.

The figures below show the amount of the claims paid by this Company last year. They also show how well prepared the Company is to meet its responsibilities in the future.

The number of policies and the amount of insurance in force reflect the confidence reposed in the Company by the people of Canada and the United States.

GOOD DEMAND IN BRITAIN FOR CANADIAN BUILDING BOARD

The acoustic and thermal properties of building board are becoming more widely known in Great Britain, as well as the possibilities in the way of decoration, and it is being increasingly adopted for factories, public buildings radio studios and private homes. Municipal housing schemes are making great strides in the United Kingdom. This year Bristol, in the West of England, alone, will erect 600 homes through its Municipal Housing Committee in various sections of the city and suburbs, while the various building societies are assisting in the building of nearly 1,800 others. The Corporation of Bristol has recently built a large block of modern flats in the centre of the city and is planning for others to be erected shortly. Canadian building board is well received in the West of England and elsewhere in Great Britain, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways, and the great amount of building which is going on should result in increased sales.

The British Empire Exhibition to be held from September, 1936, to January, 1937, at Johannesburg, South Africa, is being planned on an ambitious scale. Fine pavilions will be built by Great Britain, Canada and Australia, and exhibits will come from all over the Empire.

TASMANIA HAS CURFEW ON AUTO HORNS

The Tasmanian Government has issued an order prohibiting the sounding of motor horns between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m. in the principal cities and towns throughout the island.

THOUGHTFUL GESTURE BY COUNCILLOR

When Joseph Church took office a year ago as alderman in Simcoe, Ontario, he installed a large glass barrel in the municipal offices and has deposited his odd coppers into it, urging other tenants and visitors to the building to follow suit. Just recently he opened the barrel, counted out 1,960 coppers and bought a roast of beef and two loaves of bread for each of Simcoe's 47 families on relief.

SERVICE CLUB HELD "CIVIC NIGHT"

Something new in service club programmes was inaugurated in Cornwall, Ont., when Mayor Aaron Horowitz, members of the City Council and many of the corporation officials were guests of Cornwall Kinsmen's Club at a "civic night." The Mayor gave an address on city government, bringing out many interesting facts in connection with the administration of this $10,000,000 civic corporation.

During the meeting a novel "contest" was conducted, in the form of a questionnaire entitled "What Do You Know About Cornwall?"

WATER SUPPLY CURTAILED DURING COLD WEATHER

Moosejaw, Sask., was compelled to limit its water supply during a February cold spell when temperatures hovered around 45-below. Warnings to conserve water were first issued by civic authorities, but as the situation continued severe, it was found necessary to reduce the hours at which water could be drawn from taps. The water supply was cut off for periods of two hours at a time.

U. S. GOVT. TAKES OVER BOULDER DAM

The United States Government is about to take over the immense concrete structure designed to control the Colorado river. Boulder Dam and its powerhouse is finished by its contractors, the Six Companies, more than two years ahead of schedule. The bid on it was $48,890,995 but the contractors will receive approximately $51,950,000 because of contract changes.

The dam tames the mad Colorado. This river gashed the biggest chasm in the earth, the Grand Canyon. It yearly carried more silt than the total excavation of the Panama Canal. So great was this movement that it drove back the Sea of Cortez a couple of hundred miles, creating the Imperial Valley of California and Mexico. Then it built up the river bed with silt and menaced the 100,000 valley settlers with floods.

The dam creates the largest lake man ever made—a reservoir of 30,500,000 acre-feet capacity. It will provide for reclamation of 2,000,000 acres. Its cost is expected to be met by the electrical energy generated by the power houses. The initial capacity is 1,850,000 horsepower.

Los Angeles is building a 240-mile transmission line to carry power there. Government contracts for power and water already signed promise an income of $373,500,000 from the project in 50 years.

"Nice Weather For It"

Anyone who doubts that Victoria, B.C., can produce winter golf the equal of any on the continent might well gaze at this photo from the seventh tee at Oak Bay golf course in the British Columbia capital, where 125 golfers from all parts of the Pacific Northwest and Canada recently played the highly successful eighth annual Empress Mid-winter tournament. Beautiful sunshine, the snow-crowned Olympics mountains and the sparkling highlights of the sea made the touring of the course a scenic delight and greens and fairways were in fine condition for play though no other golf course in Canada was playable on a tournament basis during the week of Feb. 17-22.

tege proceeded to Vera Cemetery, where the interment service was held.

Mrs. Smith, among her other community efforts, was a Past Noble Grand of Century Rebekah Lodge and a member of the United Church Ladies' Aid.

CURLING CLUBS ARE ENTERTAINED

The Men's Curling Club entertained some 30 visitors from neighboring towns on Saturday last, when friendly games were played. The roads at that time being in splendid condition, all teams were able to motor here. Supper was served and a very enjoyable time was spent. Skips of the respective teams were as follows:

Lachute	Alexandria
F. A. Brennan—7	J. T. Smith—8
W. J. Deacon—15	D. Connell—3
Lachute	Vankleek Hill
J. R. Charron—9	W. McCullough—10

Lady Curlers Held Gala Day

Gala Day was held on Monday among Lachute lady curlers and was indeed a pleasant occasion for all who attended. The winners of the Gala Day competition were—

Miss Lila Giles, Mrs. Jas. A. MacKimmie, Miss E. Fraser, Mrs. Wm. J. Deacon (Skip).

Consolation games were played; these were won by—

Mrs. W. LeCras, Mrs. W. K. McArthur, Mrs. J. R. Charron, Mrs. A. Middleton (Skip).

Lachute and St. Jerome Stand Even the second, Jim Drew and L. Cruise featured in combination for the third tally. . . . In the final period Berniquier and Paul Lefebvre staged solo goals and Bill McFaul concluded the local count with a sixth goal. Meanwhile in the closing period St. Jerome pepped up their offensive and scored 4—one of which was by Benoit and another by Payé.

In the second game of the series, on Tuesday, Lachute lost their lead, and as St. Jerome won a 4-3 victory the two teams drew even. Heffermann officiated again as referee. The ice gave evidence of the first inroads of spring; outside of hockey these developments are generally welcome, but the rink-surface afforded a cut-up game not highly appreciated by the hickory-boys.

The first clash found St. Jerome well ahead in the skating and scoring, leaving Lachute behind with a 3-goal disadvantage. In the second period, the local forwards rallied and made three tallies—by Lloyd Cruise, W. Drew and A. Barker respectively, while St. Jerome chalked up another score and held the lead again with 4-3. . . . Here the count remained unchanged—for although Lachute outplayed their opponents through the third period, it was a scoreless session.

Berniquier was absent from the home-town line-up. Gerald, in goal, did all that could be done to minimize the scoring. Penalties were few; the game was generally keen and interesting from the customers' viewpoint.

Mr. W. R. Smith, Saskatchewan, is Bereaved

News is received of the death of Mrs. W. R. Smith in hospital at Saskatoon, on March 2nd. The wife of Mr. W. Ross Smith, formerly of Beech Ridge, the deceased was a native of Kemptonville, Ont., the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Paden, born in 1889. The family moved to Lucky Lake, Saskatchewan, with the early settlers in 1906, and Jennie Mae became married to Mr. Smith of that place on May 4, 1926. They had one son, Lawrence, now 4½ years old.

An obituary in The Weekly Broadcast, of Lucky Lake, says in part: Bulletins from the city were anxiously awaited. Blood transfusions offered by her sister, Mrs. McKinley, were resorted to in an effort to combat the infection. Mrs. Smith succumbed early Monday morning from infection in the nose, the news of her passing away coming as a shock to the community.

The body was brought to Lucky Lake on Tuesday, and funeral services were held in the United Church on Wednesday afternoon, the church being packed with sympathizers. The casket was covered with beautiful floral tokens. The cor-

March Meeting of County Council

The quarterly meeting of the County Council was held in the Court House on Wednesday afternoon, there being present J. E. Walker, Warden; and Mayors C. J. Stanforth, Arundel; J. E. Seale, Morin; Dougald MacTavish, Harrington; A. O. Kerr, Gore; L. Adamson, Wentworth; R. Legault, Calumet; J. Chambers, Chatham; H. Lajeunesse, Howard; W. Desjardins, Huberdeau; W. X. Beauchamp, Grenville; H. Parizeau, Brownsburg, and Jas. W. Gall, the Sec.-treasurer.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

By-law No. 29, levying tax on county of 10c. on the $100 amounting to $7,575.50 payable on or before June 1st., was duly passed.

The Financial Statement and Auditors' Report as prepared by Fletcher, Scaife & Co., was accepted and adopted.

Mr. H. Parizeau was elected Warden for the year.

A resolution was presented from the Township of Chatham, protesting against the new proposed bill of annexation now being sought by Lachute.

In view of the heavy trucks and enlarged traffic and because the Government are receiving the taxes on same, a resolution was passed unanimously petitioning the government to maintain the bridges and culverts.

Late Mrs. Kate Massiah, Long Time Resident of Lachute

the first woman reporter to cover the sessions of the House of Commons in Ottawa, doing this while assisting her husband, the late C. W. Massiah, who represented a Toronto newspaper in the Parliamentary Press Gallery. In 1889 she was elected a member of the Press Association, the first time this honor had fallen to a woman.

After the death of Mr. Massiah during the smallpox epidemic of 1885, Mrs. Massiah collaborated with her brother in editing the Lachute Independent, a newspaper which flourished here for a time in the 80's and early 90's.

Mrs. Massiah was a woman of keen intellectual gifts and outstanding personality, which won for her a host of friends.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the William Wray chapel in Montreal, service being conducted the Very Rev. Arthur Carlisle, Dean of Montreal. The funeral was largely attended by her many friends, who sought to pay their respect to one whom they had learned to love, for hers had been a life devoted to well doing, always lending herself to the good of others.

The chief mourners were Mrs. Massiah's three sons, Albert, Harold and Wilfred, and among those in attendance were:

Ben Deacon, D. A. Whittaker, W. Chalk, Rev. Canon W. Sanders, W. Dulge, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Calder, P. W. Hollingsworth, C. W. Hollingsworth, A. M. Ellicott, Miss R. Taylor, Arthur Watt, Dr. A. A. Etienne, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rogers, C. P. Monks, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Nixon, B. C. Taylor, W. B. Staton, J. K. Christie, J. P. Cowan, J. A. Drouin, W. Girouard, L. Augustin, Miles Walker, Jacques Senecal, Mrs. E. Fleming, J. W. Roch, Mr. and Mrs. D. Deacon, Miss Deacon, E. Phil McKenna, J. Lockwood, B. Lockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blair, George Walton, C. J. Stanforth, J. S. Giles, L. J. Savard, T. P. Jeffreys, E. Lagace, S. Copping, H. P. Lytle, H. Reynolds, V. A. Morrison, M. Dickson, Mrs. L. McDonagh, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lamb, Mrs. C. O. Jost.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. George Duhamel was in Ottawa over the week-end.

Miss Juliette Rodrique spent the week-end at the Capital.

Miss M. Lancey visited friends in Hudson, Que., over the week-end.

Miss J. Valpy visited her sister, Mrs. A. Miller, in Ottawa last week-end.

Miss Elizabeth Goldsworthy, of Toronto, visited her parents in town over the week-end.

Mrs. H. Stansfield visited her daughter, Miss Ethel Stansfield, in Ottawa over the week-end.

Mr. Howard Jones, of Montreal, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Jones.

Mr. Alfred Belanger, of Montreal, spent the week-end here with Mr. and Mrs. William Belanger.

Miss Kate Marlow, of Montreal, spent the week-end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. David Rashcovsky.

Miss Gladys Cruise and Miss Vera Gauley, of Montreal, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Cruise.

Miss Eleanor and Mr. Clifford Armstrong were the week-end guests of their sister, Mrs. H. G. Young, at Shawville, Que.

Miss Vic LaRose, R.N., returned last evening from a hurried visit to Pointe-du-Lac, Que., where her brother is seriously ill.

Friends of Mr. Robert McArthur are pleased to see him home again after his long sojourn in the Ross Memorial Hospital, Montreal.

The many friends of Mrs. Alex. McGibbon will be sorry to learn that she is a patient in the Montreal General Hospital, having had the misfortune to fracture her leg on Sunday last.

TO START BUSINESS IN LAFLEUR BUILDING

It is interesting to note that the old Lafleur property on Foundry Street, which has been idle for several years, is once more showing activity, and we understand that an old county boy, Mr. R. McOuat of Orms-town, has decided to commence business on these premises. The building is being fitted up to cater to the farmers of this county, and the business will be known as the Farmers' Supply Company. Mr. McOuat is installing an up-to-date Hammer grinder and mixer for balanced rations, a rolling mill, etc., which he expects to have in readiness shortly.

IN MEMORIAM

RIDDLE—In loving memory of my dear father, James Riddle, who went away at Arundel, Que., on March 11, 1935.

I do not forget, I love him too dearly For his memory to fade from my life like a dream. My lips need not speak when my heart mourns sincerely, For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

Sincerely mourned by his daughter Ruth.

RIDDLE—In loving memory of a dear one, who passed away March 11, 1935.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore, As time goes by, we miss you more, Your loving smile, your gentle face, No one can fill your vacant place.

WHEN MR. ROBIN CAME TOO EARLY

Screamed Sammy Jay, "It's Spring-time, Sighed Robin Red, "It's not,
I've frozen all my toe-tips,
And March is not so hot."

The winds are cold and piercing,
The snow blows in my eyes,
I've come along too early
From sunny southern skies.

All the worms are hidden,
Beneath the snow and ice,
I cannot find a morsel,
Of any food that's nice.

I sit crouched beneath the branches
Of a drooping willow tree
Hoping that some boy or girl
Will share their lunch with me."

THE THIRTEENTH OF MARCH

Polly Chuck rolled over and poked Tony Chuck in the ribs. "It's the thirteenth of March, Tony, wake up and see what the weather is like." Polly's voice was full of excitement. She had had such a lovely sleep and felt anxious to get outside into the bright sun, which she was quite sure was smiling down on all the little winter sleepers who were just waking up and peeping out to see if Old Jack Frost had moved on to Frost Town, or if he was still lying in wait to pinch their toes the moment they appeared outdoors.

"Le me l'one" grunted Tony, "It's not time to get up yet. It is only the second of February, and it's so cold too. Ouch!" Tony shivered and rolled over into the warm spot that Polly had just left.

"The Second of February has gone by long ago", chuckled Polly, "Don't you remember peeping out and meeting such a snowstorm that it almost choked you before you got back down into our home?"

"I remember all right", growled Tony, "but that was only a minute or so ago. I had only just got to sleep again when you poked me. You need not ask me to go out with you" he continued as he saw Polly trying on her last year's bonnet, "for I am not going. I am too sleepy, and I am sure it is cold and stormy outside. If you wait until we hear the bluebird I'll go with you, but not until then will I move out."

"You'll wait all summer then, you lazy thing", snapped Polly. "I'm sure you will never hear the bluebird down in here." Tony just grunted and curled himself in a tight little ball and started snoring again.

Polly's eyes snapped wickedly, "All right, lazy," she muttered. "I shall leave you and go where it will take you some time to find me."

Creeping softly up to the mouth of their burrow, she sniffed the sweet fresh air, moving her head first this way, then that, in search of enemies that might be lying in wait for her. Seeing none, she scampered across the stretch of bare brown earth to the foot of the maple at the edge of the forest. There used to be a hole there, between two stones, large enough for her to hide in. She meant to dig it out a bit more; but she did not intend to make her home there. No sir, that would be quite too near their old one, and she intended to hide from Tony; she meant to punish him for being so lazy.

A shrill "Hey, Hey, Hey!" just above her head startled her for a moment. It had been so quiet down in her winter home that King Blue-Cap's shrill cry sounded much louder than usual to her unaccustomed ears. "The old gossip", muttered Polly, "He's telling the world that I am here. I won't have a safe moment now until I get my new home ready. I had hoped Jack Frost would get him this winter."

Polly was quite wrong in hoping that, as many of the little people of the forest owed their lives to King Blue-Cap's warning cry. Polly knew that, but she was hungry and just a little out of sorts, because she thought that Blue Cap had told everybody where she was. But Blue Cap had not been the only one to see her, for suddenly and softly Croaker the Crow dropped upon a limb above her head, chuckling hoarsely, "Humped it over here pretty fast, didn't you, Polly? Starting a new home, aren't you? How's Tony, and why is he not digging it for you?" "Another sneak," muttered Polly under her breath. She had no love for Croaker, so she kept on digging, pretending not to hear him.

"Haw, haw haw!" he chuckled again. "Pretty Polly's in bad humour. You are not beginning the year right, Polly. You'll have nothing but bad luck all summer if you begin the year in a bad temper."

What Polly might have said we do not know. Just then a Chip-a-ree appeared on the scene, hopping from the high branch of the pine tree close by to the maple limb. "Watch out for Red Snooper" he warned, "I saw him heading over this way a few minutes ago."

Without waiting to hear the end of his excited chatter, Polly hastily backed down the hole between the two stones and lay watching for Mr. Fox to come along—which he was not long in doing. "Ah, there you are, Polly," he grinned, his sharp nose twitching. "Why hide yourself that way? Why not be friendly and come out for a walk?"

Polly just wrinkled up her nose at him and showed her sharp teeth.

"Why Polly!" exclaimed Red Snooper, "That is not a very friendly way to greet an old neighbor whom you have not seen for months and months." As Snooper talked he was edging nearer and nearer to where Polly lay, sniffing the ground, hoping by this means to find out if Tony was with her. He knew that he could not reach her, but he could watch until she came out. Polly knew his sneaky habits and stayed in her hide-out until she heard Tom and Dick walking by. They were tapping the big maple. "Saved!" whispered Polly under her breath as she crept quietly out from between the stones, made her way over to the old log fence and ran as fast as she could, taking care to keep well hidden behind it, until she reached a hole in the ground which only Polly herself knew about. Crawling in she followed the pathway, with all its crooks and turns, until she reached the bottom. Too tired to do anything but rest, she curled up in a heap and went to sleep. The thirteenth of March was over. Tomorrow was a new day.

While practising life saving in Belgrave Bay, St. Sampson's, Guernsey Island, Scout Frederick Richard of the 10th Guernsey (Methodist) Troop heard cries for help from a pier. He ran to the scene, and was able to make a genuine rescue of an 8 year old boy who had fallen into the sea.

ADELAIDE INVITES CANADIAN TROOPS

From Adelaide, Australia, has come an invitation to Canadian Scouts to attend a South Australian Scout Corroboree, to be held Dec. 26 - Jan. 4 next in connection with South Australia's Centenary. Whilst it will not be feasible to send a Canadian contingent, the hope is expressed at Dominion Headquarters that a number of individual Scouts may be able to go to represent Canada.

Street Car Gets Lost

After several passengers had told a street car motorman in Minneapolis he was off his route, the motorman stopped to get his bearings. He admitted he was lost but declared he would find his way back. Round and round the residential section the car travelled until the motorman, new on the job, finally gave up. The 55 passengers, glad to get out of the car, found their way home as best they could, while the lone motorman started to look for his car barn in the west part of the city. He finally wound up at the car barn on the opposite side of town.

Making the News Snap-Shots
in Ethiopia

Jack Price, in a vivid word-picture in Editor and Publisher, portrays the trials of Joseph Caneva, staff photographer of the Associated Press assigned to Ethiopia.

"His arch enemies were grit and sand. The cameras had to be thoroughly cleaned inside and out each night. Each holder had to be dusted and films brushed before loading. After each exposure the slide was wiped clean before being returned. The lens had to be cleaned before each shot was made. In order to have a completely dark room his blankets were hung over the window. After finishing his work he slept in these grimy covers.

After Caneva completed his dark room he installed a stove on which to prepare his meals. The food was mainly canned, but eggs and salami were plentiful.

He reports he was the first cameraman to enter Makale with Ras Gugs, the Ethiopian leader who quit Selassie to join the Italians. This trip, according to Caneva, took three days. The first day he rode in an auto but he had to hike the next two. Natives carried the heavy equipment. Joe made pictures of the raising of the Italian Flag in Makale and many other news shots. With a little less than three days in which to return to Asmara, develop his films, have them censored and put them aboard the London plane, Joe was desperate. He hired a mule and two extra guides for 300 lira. Day and night he pushed on, making the trip in two and a half days. Finishing his work of developing and captioning without sleep on the night of his arrival, he managed to meet his schedule. His picture of the fall of Makale was published on this continent just ten days after it was made.

Joe offers an amazing bit of evidence of deceptive lighting. He claims that although the sun was shining brightly and the glare was strong, the light itself was not very actinic. His first pictures under what he thought was the proper exposure, were "thin" when developed.

HERE ARE THE REAL FACTS ABOUT BRAN

Brought Out by Tests with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Some years ago, there was considerable difference of opinion regarding the use of bran. So to discover the actual facts of the case, the Kellogg Company asked for a series of laboratory tests at leading universities.

Experimental studies on a group of healthy women showed that the continued use of bran was thoroughly satisfactory. Unlike cathartics, it did not lose its effect.

Other independent tests on men indicated that, with certain people, the "bulk" in bran was more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Laboratory analysis proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplied vitamin B and iron as well as plenty of bulk. This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. It absorbs a great deal of moisture, and cleanses the intestinal tract.

ALL-BRAN corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk." It is the natural way—far better than using pills and tablets. Serve as a cereal—or use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Hints for Homebodies

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Many of us do not realize that the League of Nations has other duties than the prevention of war. I had the privilege of hearing Miss Charlotte Whitton speak on the humanitarian aspect of the League of Nations and I wish all my readers could hear her. She made the League come alive as no other speaker I have heard. She told us of the efforts made towards solving the social and economic problems of the world. Among other things they are trying to work out the nutritional necessities of the world and will attempt to bring about a method by which these nutritional needs will be met, by sending provisions from districts of plenty to those who are starving. All the speakers I have heard lately have felt that Canada has a responsibility to the peace of the world and should provide land and food to those nations who are over-crowded and starving and thus feel that they are forced into war to provide an outlet. We have land and a need of a larger population, and a selective emigration policy bears thinking about.

RAW FOODS

Food faddists are flourishing at the present time. Most of them agree on one thing—you must eat raw foods to be saved. Probably most of us do eat raw foods as they supply us with vitamin C and with bulk. On the other hand there are many people who should never eat any raw foods as they are actually dangerous. Among them are people who have ulcers of the stomach or intestines, colitis, some liver conditions, or those who have trouble with their gall-bladder. All these conditions require a bland diet which is not bulky, and raw food will irritate. The vegetables should be cooked and for many cases should be pureed (put through a sieve or ricer). Raw tomatoes are allowed and sometimes lettuce and celery. This diet as it excludes raw food is lacking in vitamin C so it is wise to add a glass of orange juice daily. This is best taken between meals as small and frequent meals are required to lessen the bulk.

FLAT FOOT

Doctors tell us that although there are many cases of flat feet, getting out of bed too soon after an illness is the chief cause. So when your child has been sick keep him in bed for a proper interval until he has a chance to recover his strength. Very often flat foot follows influenza in adults. The danger of this could be lessened by staying in bed and keeping off the feet and by not wearing bedroom slippers when you do get up. The natural tendency is to slip on bedroom slippers as they are less effort but they do not give proper support to the bones of the foot. A peck of trouble may be saved by an ounce of prevention.

CAKE QUERIES

The bride asks some questions about cake making. "Do you have to use Cake Flour to make a good cake? Isn't cake flour expensive for ordinary use? Do you have to measure flour after sifting? Is it necessary to butter a cake pan?" We will try to answer these questions to her satisfaction. You certainly do not have to use cake flour to make a good cake—but I think you can make a better cake with cake flour. It gives a lighter, finer texture. But many the good cake has been made with pastry or even with household flour. As to expense—Cake flour is more expensive than other flours, but at that, costs only a few cents for enough flour for a cake. I am not sure of the exact cost per cake but am keeping track and when I have finished the package that I am using at present I will know definitely. Now as to measuring before or after sifting. If I use cake flour I always measure after sifting as it packs very closely. If I use pastry flour I measure before sifting unless the recipe states otherwise. I keep a sheet of waxed paper in the cake flour package and sift it on to the paper, measure and return it to the sifter. Keeping the paper in the package saves time and waxed paper. No, it is not necessary to butter a cake tin if the bottom of the tin is lined with paper. However, I prefer buttering the tin because I like the flavour that the butter gives the edge of the cake. There is no difficulty removing the cake from the tin even though not buttered but to my way of thinking it is a nicer cake when buttered. But suit yourself.

SPANISH BUN

1/4 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sour milk
1/2 teaspoon soda
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1 1/3 cups pastry flour

Cream the sugar and butter. Reserve one egg white and beat the whole egg and the yolk of the other until light. Add to the butter and sugar. Add the sour milk and sift in the remaining ingredients. Mix thoroughly and put in baking pan. Spread before baking with a meringue made of the egg white beaten until stiff and 1/2 cup brown sugar added gradually. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for 35 minutes.

RASPBERRY CREAM SAUCE

Add raspberry jam to whipped cream. Taste and add sugar if required. A dash of lemon juice adds flavour. Serve with Cottage or Cornstarch Pudding.

Kitchen Range in the Bathroom

Early in the "great Soviet experiment" apartments were built without kitchens, as the extremists thought that people would soon be eating in community halls. Pravda, the chief party paper, recently criticized this as an "artificial attempt to introduce communal living." Kitchen ranges are now being installed in bathrooms.

LIVING UP TO ITS NAME

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago

March 11, 1886.
Mr. Alex. Pridham of Grenville was re-elected Warden of the County Council of Argenteuil this week.

At Calumet station on Tuesday, March 9th., Mr. Henry Grant Sr., of Montreal, got off the car a minute to refresh himself. The train started, and catching hold of the railing of one of the cars he swung around and broke his arm.

On Tuesday, the 9th. inst., Chatham Township Council submitted a by-law to the ratepayers of the municipality for their approval, granting a bonus of $1,000 to the Dominion Cartridge Co. of Brownsburg. The vote stood, at close of poll, for the By-law 69, against it 25—majority being 44 in favor of the grant.

At Grenville on Thursday last Mr. George Thompson was killed while falling a tree.

Some unprincipled persons stole the collars off the necks of the dogs belonging to Mr. Todd and Mr. Kerr, doubtless intending to appropriate them for their own dogs; but the town secretary has the numbers of the stolen collars and the names of the persons to whom they were issued.

Attractive Numbers on "Book Review"

"We Europeans" is the title of a fascinating new book which can best be described as a modern doctrine of biological inheritance. Professor J. F. MacDonald has chosen it for review on his radio Book Review program to be heard from Toronto on Saturday, March 14, at 7.45 p.m. Three important names are to be found on the title page of this volume. Julian S. Huxley, A. C. Hadden and A. M. Carr Saunders are the authors.

One very gifted Canadian woman is the author of the other book which Professor MacDonald will commend to his audience. "The School of Femininity" is Margaret Lawrence's much discussed book, and men and women alike will want to hear what Professor MacDonald has to say about this able presentation of a "first."

New Style Arbiter for Men

According to the Pathfinder, "The former Prince of Wales has lost his crown as men's style arbiter"—decision reached by clothing experts meeting in St. Louis. "The new occupant of this throne is Capt. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary. Somehow, for all his commuting between Geneva and London, the handsome dark eyed Captain manages to keep a well-stocked up-to-the-minute wardrobe, which is a model of what the well dressed man should wear."

THOSE NEAR-NATURE FASHIONS

Whether men follow the male fashion trends or not they are always interested in what the women are wearing. One has slung the thought into rhyme as follows:
Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said,
"While styles like these are all the rage:
I'm glad I live in this—here age."

Mrs. Yapp: "After all is said and done—
Hubby: "I wonder if that glorious moment will ever come!"

The Week's Fashion News

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman
By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

Montreal, March 9.—Excitement's in the air! What with whole newspaper supplements devoted to the new spring story, and with window after window in the big stores given over to the latest smart fashion arrivals, there's cause to feel that spring is almost here. And what a spring it's going to be!

If you've even the slightest desire to be individual, to look subtly different and a whole shade smarter than anybody else, this is the season to set about it. Why? . . . Because fashion lays down no definite rule—no one-and-only path to smartness in spring 1936. Though influenced by the "Margot" trend, with inspiration from the famous play of the same name in Paris; though borrowing details from the "Directoire" period and a certain colour influence from the Chinese; though tending towards man-tailoring (the latter always with feminine detail) she insists on none of them. It behooves each fashionable female to play up to her own particular moods and type when selecting a new wardrobe for spring. Did we say no rule? Ah, but there is one: You must see that every single accessory you choose strikes a correct note in the harmony of your whole ensemble. For instance: With your tailored suit you may wear a flower-trimmed hat (smartest New Yorkers are doing it), but the general line of the hat should be tailored and not dressy. Your gloves could repeat the shade of the flower—your bag and shoes could match each other but you'd never wear the flower, the gloves, the bag and the shoes in the same shade.

This brings us again to the subject of colour. Though mentioned several times before, recent observations in New York proclaim it the biggest influence for spring. Using grey or navy or black as a basic colour, New Yorkers then add British tan and green . . . violet and pink . . . raspberry red and pink . . . or pastel pink and blue (the latter with blacks and navy only), to mention only a few from many popular combinations. There's nothing smarter and nothing newer in the fashion picture.

Violet are springing up everywhere,—not the shy woods variety, tempting you to those first spring tramps, but big bold "perfect copies" produced by impatient fashionable s. Wear them on your lapel—at the neckline of your dress—scattered about a collar or pocket—or on your hat, where many smart blooms are seen this season. And note this! Though those violets are most often in natural Parma, bluish or white tones, you'll see them in greens, yellows and pinks when these are the shades needed to complete the ensemble in harmony.

NOTES AND COMMENTS FROM BROWNSBURG

(By Our Brownsburg Correspondent.)

DEPARTURE OF MR. T. G. PASCO

After over two decades in the employment of C.I.L., Mr. Pasco has retired from active service with the company, and has arranged to leave Brownsburg for Toronto. Mr. Pasco's genial personality will be sadly missed from the various social events to which he contributed so generously his time and ability. His organizing genius was responsible for the great success of the Company's picnics and sports; his great attention to detail made the Social Club one of the most outstanding institutions of its kind in the province of Quebec; his pioneering efforts in establishing hockey in Brownsburg over twenty years ago, laid the foundation for the great hockey tradition which is recounted around the firesides of the district wherever hockey fans gather. In softball, in football, in bowling, it was Mr. Pasco's active interest that was in a great measure responsible for whatever pleasure or success the Brownsburg representatives enjoyed. He will be missed most by the kiddies, for whom he provided the annual entertainment and spread to which they looked forward with a delightful anticipation. We wish both Mr. and Mrs. Pasco a pleasant evening in life, both long and happy. Au revoir.

STUDY GROUPS

Bent on obtaining some notes with which to regale my numerous readers of Brownsburg news (and incidentally to fill up my column without the effort necessary to do so in a legitimate pressman's way), I sneaked in on what I thought was the most interesting of the Study Groups now in operation about here.

Seating myself in a dark corner of the class-room my arrival coincided with the introduction of Cartier, who I discovered was responsible for what is called the French period which took place from 1534 to 1763. Dusting out the old dormant cells of my none too active mind, I found myself back in the old history class admiring the fancy frills of the great French navigator. I could picture him planting the flag on the snow and ice, and could not help thinking at the time "What's going to happen the flag if summer comes." (Perish such an irreverent thought.) My unworthiness to be in such hallowed surroundings overwhelmed me; I bade a silent adieu, and betook myself to a group in which there was a liberal sprinkling of the fair sex. "Here", methinks, "I shall be in my element."

"To be or not to be that is the question" . . . One of the above-mentioned fair sex had voiced the quotation with dramatic intentness, just as I had decided that a very comfortable seat at the farther corner was just the place for me. Considerably embarrassed but not absolutely devoid of hope, I continued toward the mecca of my ambition, the afore-mentioned seat. Quite suddenly a determined-looking member of the male species arose and declaimed with outstretched hand, "Avant! and quit my sight".

This was too much for my retiring nature; I abandoned all intention of reaching the coveted seat—it suddenly looked far from comfortable. So, assuming a carelessness which I did not possess, I departed like the shade of Shakespeare and left the dramatic endeavours severely alone.

A group of serious-minded individuals attracted my attention. I strolled aimlessly, as it were in their direction. One of the number looked toward me and said, "If the Canadian debt were to be paid forthwith on a per capita basis, you would receive a bill for $3,412 as the head of your household, or slightly over $70 per capita." Further discussion eased my mind, as I learned there was

BROWNSBURG

Miss Pearl Dawson, of Stonefield Heights, spent last week here as a guest of her sister, Mrs. C. F. Watson.

For Better Seed

Five groups of farmers in Argenteuil County have purchased power seed cleaners. These machines have been located at the following points:

Parish of St. Jerusalem, at Wilson Bros., East Settlement.

Parish of St. Andrews, at the Saw Mill in St. Andrews Village.

Township of Chatham, at Jas. Derouin's, St. Philippe Village.

Townships of Grenville and Harrington, at J. McKale's, near Harrington East.

Townships of Arundel and Huberdeau, at F. Brosseau's, Huberdeau Village.

These plants are capable of cleaning oats, barley, wheat, buckwheat, peas, timothy, clover, etc. The charges for cleaning may be obtained from the operator, and every farmer might well consider having his seed cleaned before sowing.

A very pleasant meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the Manse on Tuesday, the delegates giving their impressions of the Presbyterian. The World's Day of Prayer programme was also carried out.

Miss Mary Starnes, of Lachute, spent the week-end at her home here.

Miss Alma Warwick, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Roy Dobbie for a time, left to visit friends in Mabel on Tuesday last.

The Library Party held in the Community Club Room on Friday evening was well attended and seemingly much enjoyed. It is hoped that the St. Patrick's Oyster Supper will meet with the same favor.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Evans and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Morrow of Monalea on Sunday.

The Misses Katie and Mary Byrne were guests of Mrs. A. Graham on Wednesday of last week.

Chatham Branch W. I. Elected Officers

The tenth annual meeting of the Chatham W. I. was held in the C.I.L. Library on Thursday afternoon last. The Secretary, Mrs. N. E. Smillie, gave a statement of the finances, showing funds raised to the amount of $411.85 and expenditures $403.64. This money was spent in the work of Child Welfare, and Education and Better Schools, many orders of groceries, milk, fruit, etc., being sent to the needy, and also a set of the "Books of Knowledge" presented to the local school. Altogether the members felt that they had passed a gratifying year. They had done what they could to help in every way possible, to make their town a better place to live in, and they hoped to do still more in this new year.

The total membership was 37; attendance at the meetings had averaged 16. Officers and Convenors elected for 1935-36 were—

President, Mrs. L. Wilson; Vice-Pres., Mrs. P. Martin; Secy., Mrs. N. Smillie; Treas., Mrs. D. McCulloch.

Convenors: Agriculture, Mrs. Fletcher; Child Welfare, Mrs. C. H. Jackson; Canadianization and National Events, Mrs. Gordon Todd; Canadian Industries, Mrs. Ardill; Education and Better Schools, Mrs. C. L. Stephens; Home Economics, Mrs. P. Martin; Immigration, Mrs. Bigelow; Legislation, Mrs. A. Campbell; Publicity, Mrs. J. Connelly.

OPERETTA LYRICS WERE WRITTEN BY LACHUTE TOWNSMAN

BROADCAST OVER RADIO STATION C.K.A.C.

During the Provincial Hour program over C.K.A.C. last Friday evening, a condensed rendering of Oscar O'Brien's operetta Philippino was heard—a piece, which, apart from its unusual air and rhythm, held more than usual interest for local listeners, for the accompanying lyrics were written by Mr. Gaetan Valois of Lachute. It was the first occasion on which this work has been heard in public. Musical extracts and choruses from the 3-act operetta were given, with passages of explanation in between. Altogether, in its complete form, this composition should prove a popular hit in light opera. Mr. O'Brien is a young Canadian musician, of Montreal. Our townsman, Mr. Valois, merits congratulation for his share in the work as librettist.

W. QUEBEC & PRESCOTT LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP IN THE BALANCE

LACHUTE. ST. JEROME AGAIN EVEN IN FINALS

ONE CONTEST TO PLAY, WILL BE CONCLUSIVE

During the week the third and fourth hockey play-offs have been staged between Lachute and St. Jerome, each team winning one game. In the two initial contests they stood even; now, at the fourth game, they stand even again, and the next encounter will decide the championship in this 3-out-of-5 final series. The local team appears to hold a good chance, to secure the Western - Quebec and Prescott League championship. The schedule, play-downs and play-offs have ended none too soon, for the mild weather makes hockey a precarious venture at this season. The concluding game depends upon what period the ice may be in fit condition to permit skating.

At Lachute Arena on Saturday St. Jerome claimed an 8-7 victory in the third final play-off with Lachute. The home line-up was somewhat under form; they streaked to a heavy lead in the first session, but spectators agreed, their performance did not continue on the same high pitch. Even so, the score was even in the last minutes of the game, and St. Jerome.

MAIN STREET PROPERTY CHANGED HANDS

Lively bidding was evidenced at the Sheriff's Sale conducted last Saturday morning outside the parish church of St. Anastasie. The Z. N. Raymond property opposite the Post Office on Main Street changed hands to Mr. L. L. Legault, lawyer, who effected the purchase for the sum of $5725.

Considerable interest was attracted by a consignment of new Chevrolet cars unloaded here last Saturday. The models are now on view at the Mason Motor Sales showroom in Lachute.

Sugaring operations in New England, it is reported, are now carried on in a progressive fashion, sap being gathered by pipe lines instead of in buckets. Even so, a labyrinth of pipes scarcely provide the picturesque scene so favored for calendars in this part of the world.

MANY GATHERED TO PAY TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED CITIZEN

LATE JAS. P. MacKIMMIE LAID TO REST

The Lachute United Church was taxed to capacity on Saturday last, when friends and sympathizers gathered to pay their last tribute to the memory of the late Jas. P. MacKimmie. The funeral service was most impressively conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, who was assisted by Rev. Dr. W. J. McIvor of Ephraim Scott Memorial Presbyterian Church, Montreal, and Rev. H. Cousens of Lachute.

The 90th. Psalm was read by Dr. McIvor, followed by Rev. Mr. Cousens in prayer, and the favorite hymns of the deceased, "The Lord is My Shepherd" and "The Sands of Time are Sinking" and "Abide With Me," afforded comfort to the bereaved.

The Rev. Mr. Rosborough spoke feelingly of the departed life. The late Mr. MacKimmie had been essentially a home man, always considerate of others, and one who had borne his share of responsibility in the affairs of life. He had been a good husband, a good father, a good churchman and—a good curier. To the bereaved and those of the inner circle he offered, on behalf of the community, deep sympathy. Looking out through the Window of Love, in remembrance of loving fellowship; through the Window of Faith, as we recognize that life is the outcome of a great plan, and through the Window of Hope—the speaker envisioned the time when we should gather as unbroken families in happy re-union.

Floral tributes were of great beauty and profusion. The remains were afterwards taken to the Lachute Cemetery for interment. Pall-bearers were Messrs. Simon and William Wilson, W. J. Irvine, Ross Todd, Dan Currie, Albert MacKimmie, A. J. Todd and Beryl Todd.

Among those attending the funeral from a distance were—Mr. John MacKimmie of Aurora, Ill.; Mr. Tom MacKimmie of South Haven; Mrs. Albert MacKimmie and son Albert, of Bridgeport; Mrs. Jas. Elliott and Mrs. Wm. Wilson, of Prescott; Mr. Wm. and Mrs. John Hume of Russell; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irvine, of Ottawa; Mr. Wm. Law, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Jamieson, Mr. and Mrs. Danl. Currie and D. Currie Jr., of Montreal; and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Todd and John Todd, of St. Jerome.

Milk Vendors Protest District Ruling

The Terrebonne county council, at its meeting held last Thursday, adopted a resolution asking the Minister of Agriculture of the province to obtain the necessary permission from the Montreal hygiene department for farmers to carry sweet and sour cream in the same wagons. It was pointed out that at the present time the farmers are obliged to use separate wagons to transport these products.

DOING RIGHT BY THE INDIANS

Hon. T. A. Crerar, Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs, says that about 37,000 of Canada's 112,000 Indians are on relief. It is taken for granted on this continent that the white man, having relieved the red man of most of his hunting grounds, should see to it that he doesn't want for food.

The Superintendent-General feels that more could be done toward teaching the Indian the white man's way of earning a livelihood and thus help him to a better enjoyment of the land of his fathers.

FOUND DEAD IN BED AT BROWNSBURG

Brownsburg — A rather sad death took place here on Saturday morning, when Adeodat Paquette, 20 years of age, passed peacefully away during his sleep. The sad news was learned when his brother called at his bedside to awaken him, and found the young man had been dead for some time. Dr. Côté was summoned, and later Dr. J. H. Mason of Lachute, being notified as district coroner, held an inquiry and returned a decision that death had been due to natural causes.

RESIDENTS IN CANADA UNDER A POSSIBLE MISAPPREHENSION

CONCERNING CONSCRIPTION OF GERMANS

Germans residing peacefully in Canada, whether naturalized or not, should rest undisturbed by the consul-general's intimation that their failure to register for possible service under the Fatherland is a punishable neglect. The consul-general is powerless to inflict punishment in this country, no matter what ruling the Reich may have in force for conscription of German natives abroad. The consul's pronouncement has been criticized in Federal parliament and the situation is made clear in an explanation by the Prime Minister himself.

The Passing Scene

COMMENT ON AFFAIRS AT HOME AND ABROAD (Contributed)

The comedy of errors staged by Alberta's premier and Major Douglas must be mild comedy to uninterested readers of the Impasse, but it borders on tragedy to every right-thinking Canadian. Similarly, the verbal tilts at Ottawa—much ado about nothing—during such critical times in the history of Canada present a sorry spectacle, greatly to be deprecated. The next five years may well be the most important period in our history, yet the great institution of legislation presents us with a descendant on the pronunciation of "tomato". One tenth of the citizenry of Canada are existing on taxes derived from the industry of the other nine-tenths. In no matter what verbiage you clothe that bare statement, the fact remains that Industry has on its payrolls one million "employees", "pensioners", call them what you will, to whom it paid almost six hundred million dollars during the past five years. Here you have a million people ready to purchase the products of their own industry, if Industry will but employ them and provide them with the wherewithal to purchase those products. Instead of the state having to provide an existence for one-tenth of its population, as at present, the solution of this question would provide the state with the co-operation of all its members.

The German occupation of the Rhine has caused uneasiness in all the chancelleries of Europe. The god of war is again marching over the blood-drenched fields of "the cockpit of Europe." Had the much discussed Treaty of Versailles provided that the demilitarized zone be of equal depth on both sides of the international line, perhaps this contretemps would not have arisen.

Trade Agreements Ratified After Warm Discussion... Pensions for Blind... Agricultural Implement Prices... Proclivities of the Soya Bean

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, March 17th.—The trade agreement with the United States was formally approved by parliament in a recorded vote. Liberals, C.C.F., Social Credit, Reconstruction and Miss Macphail voted for the United States agreement, only the forces of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett opposing it. The vote was 175 to 39—one of the largest majorities ever recorded in the Canadian parliament on an issue so momentous and so contentious as between the major parties. The House proceeded at once to deal with the items of the treaty one by one. This uncovered a good deal of party feeling and cleavages in attitude toward tariffs, and will probably take some time

RUMORED MILK TRAIN TO BE DISCONTINUED

It is rumored that the Montreal - Calumet C.P.R. train is to be discontinued with the April change of schedule. Thirty years ago C.P.R. officials were visited by a delegation of Lachute citizens requesting the railway company to run a local train into the city, and their plea was granted. The march of time has now given the country improved highways and motor transport so that the railway traffic has been considerably lessened and local receipts have been losing ground. In these days, when rigid economy is being urged, one can hardly blame the railway for denying this section the accommodation of an extra service while running at a loss.

POLITICAL ACTIVITY FORBIDDEN QUEBEC PRIESTS WITHOUT LEAVE

NOTIFIED BY DIOCESE AUTHORITIES

Members of the Roman Catholic clergy in the Province of Quebec recently were sent a communication from the heads of their respective dioceses in regard to their conduct in political matters, the gist of which is to prohibit any act, or conduct on their part, without express authorization on the part of the hierarchy, which may sway the political opinions of their parishioners.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE STUDIES MORE HUMANE PUNISHMENT

GATHERING INFORMATION ON LETHAL CHAMBERS

The Department of Justice will gather information on the success of lethal chambers in southwestern United States to determine whether hanging should be abandoned in murder cases, Minister of Justice Lapointe told the House of Commons last Saturday.

The Minister made his statement during discussion of a bill sponsored by Dr. J. K. Blair (Liberal, North Wellington) to abandon hanging in favor of lethal chambers. The Blair bill was allowed to stand while the department gathered the information.

The Minister of Justice said lethal chambers were in use in Nevada, Colorado, Arizona and Wyoming. They were comparatively new and there were conflicting views on their success. The minister said he would favor anything that would be an improvement on hanging, and make executions less cruel and barbarous.

Dr. Blair read opinions from coroners, sheriffs, and from Arthur Ellis, Canada's official hangman, referring to the cruelty of hanging. He said the use of carbon monoxide gas would be painless, faster and simpler than administering an anaesthetic.

There was wide sentiment throughout the country against hanging, Dr. Blair said. He quoted one coroner who said he examined a body 15 minutes after hanging and found evidence of life. He referred also to the "very disgraceful scene" in Montreal when a woman was decapitated.

In the last nine years there had been 120 hangings in Canada, Dr. Blair said. The average cost was between $700 and $800, and a lethal chamber would be cheaper, saving thousands of dollars.

Dr. Blair called hanging "the crudest form of barbarism we have today." To all people with humane feelings it was repulsive, and perhaps tended to promote lawlessness.

Owing to a prevalence of infectious disease among the school children, the Protestant School Commissioners ordered the elementary grades of Lachute Consolidated School (1 to VII inclusive) closed for a short period. The High School grades are continuing their term uninterrupted.

Unification of Railways In Practice

Joint use of engine-house facilities by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways at Ottawa is being arranged. A joint announcement by officers of the two companies today states that under this arrangement the existing facilities of both companies will be used to joint advantage. The Canadian Pacific facilities being more modern will be used jointly to a large extent, but a number of Canadian Pacific locomotives which do not require engine-house attention will be turned, coaled and watered at the Canadian National facilities.

For some time the Canadian National has had under consideration reconstruction of its engine-house facilities at Ottawa. This co-operative arrangement will defer a considerable expenditure on the part of the Canadian National which will be required to modernize fully their facilities.

The arrangements provide for merging the locomotive terminal staffs of the two companies. The equitable apportionment of employment will be arranged between the officials of the two companies and the

ONE HUNDRED CLUB TO BE GRANTED CHARTER

INAUGURAL BANQUET ANNOUNCED

The International Association of 100 Clubs (Inc. Dominion of Canada 1923) is meeting at the Desjardins Hotel here next Tuesday evening, 24th. inst., to grant a Charter to the new 100 Club of Lachute and Brownsburg, as another unit in the One Hundred Clubs in Canada.

It is interesting to note that the formation of these One Hundred Clubs was started in 1923 by a group of responsible men to render service in a practical way to each community, whereby better fellowship and kindly acts to the less fortunate could be rendered, without assessments upon the Club followers. Since their inception the 100 Clubs have grown steadily; they stand primarily for Canadian Citizens, Canadian Manufacturers and Canadian Merchants.

LADY TWEEDSMUIR PAYS A VISIT TO CANADIAN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

COMMENTS MIGHT BE PROFITABLY STUDIED

By Elizabeth Bailey Price

Comparison of a Women's Institute meeting in rural England with that of a Canadian country branch was made by Her Excellency, Lady Tweedsmuir, honorary member of the Ontario Federation, when she honored the City View and Merivale branch of the Carleton County Women's Institute recently with her presence, at the beautiful farm home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Caldwell, ten miles from Ottawa.

A typical Institute meeting was carried out to the last detail, beginning with the minutes, a roll call of "names of farm homes", and including an address on "Canadianization", which so impressed Lady Tweedsmuir that she requested a copy for His Excellency.

On request Her Excellency then offered constructive criticism. "The Women's Institutes have grown to be such an organized power", she said, "that we must face the danger of power, and not go off at a tangent. For instance, if all the Women's Institute members should write to members of parliament, sponsoring a certain piece of legislation, the public opinion of such would very likely cause the enactment of it—as the 'Caged Bird Act' in England, which the Women's Institutes there were determined to have passed."

"I think, too, that there is a tendency to over-organization. Members write tremendous letters on constitutional points such as 'Rule so and so' and it has the effect of frightening off many capable women who might take office."

"I do not think members should hold the presidency too long, although I was president of my branch at Elmsfield—five miles from Oxford—for 15 continuous years. If they like you—and that does sound conceited—they don't seem to want to let you go."

representatives of the employees, as has been done in other similar cases. The date upon which this arrangement will become effective has not yet been decided. It is estimated that with relatively small expense, necessary to co-ordinate the existing facilities, the arrangement will result in substantial annual savings to the two companies.

OFF TO EVEREST TO CONQUER, OR BE CONQUERED

With enthusiasm and confidence illuminating their faces this quartette is photographed commencing the first stage of a journey towards a destination no man has ever reached—the summit of Mount Everest. Under the leadership of Mr. Hugh Rutledge (extreme right) the 51-year-old explorer and mountaineer, who led the 1933 expedition to within 1,000 feet of the summit before being defeated by pitiless weather, they are going to put to the test the world's highest experiments that have occupied them for the past two years. At the left is Lieut. J. M. L. Gavin, and in the centre Dr. and Mrs. Noel Humphreys. Mrs. Humphreys is accompanying the expedition as far as Darjeeling.

Making History in Argenteuil

Extracted from the Files of
The Watchman

50 Years Ago

March 19, 1886.

It is rumored in St. Andrews that our worthy postmaster, Major Thomas Lamb, is about to resign his position as paymaster of the 11th Batt. We trust Major Lamb will reconsider his action, as it will be hard to find a better man for the position.

Owing to the want of employment and chances to get on in the world, the pick of our young men are leaving us one by one. There can be no stronger argument than this for rushing on with the railway from Lachute to St. Andrews. As soon as it is built manufacturing establishments will follow, giving abundance of work to our young people and affording full scope for their energies.

Mr. Chas. Dawson, second son of Thos. Dawson of Mille Isles, left here this week for British Columbia. We hope Charlie will make his fortune, come back soon and marry his Sunday girl.

Anti-Bachelor League No. 1.—The young ladies of Mille Isles have formed themselves into an anti-bachelor league. At a meeting held here the other night, it was resolved to open lodges in Morin Flats, and East and West Gore. A list of all bachelors was then gone over and those in most favor were in Captain Jekyll's and Captain Pollock's companies of the 11th Battalion.

30 Years Ago

Mr. Geoffroy Bedard is now comfortably settled in his new store on Main Street which he has opened as a fine tailoring establishment. The store reflects much credit upon its enterprising owner.

Messrs. Thos. Ayers, J. D. Campbell, Jno. McFaul and R. Carpenter were in town this week and interviewed the C.P.R. on behalf of the Lachute Board of Trade, to request that the authorities put on a local train for greater convenience of the public during the summer months. The delegation was cordially received by Mr. Bogsworth, Vice-President of the Railway, who assured them of due consideration and probable granting of their request.

Dr. Shaw, of St. Andrews, had a very narrow escape on the river opposite Mrs. J. Lennon's recently. He was driving down the ice quite leisurely and presumably so much absorbed in thought that he failed to notice the distance he had travelled when animal instinct urged the horse to stop and immediately the Dr. found he had reached the open channel—in fact so near was he that backing out was necessary, space being too limited to turn.

of exchanges in the House of Commons. In reply to a question levelled by J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, the Prime Minister explained Canada's position in regard to Empire defence. He stated and reiterated that Canada was not committed in any way to an Empire defence policy, nor was she signatory to the Locarno Pact, nor was she—as Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas said—obligated through the League of Nations because of any action of the Mother Country. Replying to a further question by Mr. Bennett, the prime minister said that of course there were obligations by Canada under the covenant of the League. So far, he thought, these had been honored to the letter; any further obligations under the League covenant would be carefully considered as they arose.

CONSCRIPTION OF GERMANS

Mr. Woodsworth objected to a proclamation issued by Ludwig Kempff, consul-general for Germany, instructing all Germans in Canada that they were subject to conscription, and warning them that if they failed to register they could be punished. The C.C.F. leader wanted to know how a German consul-general could mete out punishment to persons resident in Canada. He regarded the whole statement as an extraordinary one, and asked the government to make a statement. Mr. Mackenzie King promised that he would, after having obtained from Ludwig Kempff his exact words.

The farm implement question came up again, and led to a rather curious turn. The agricultural committee, which has been entrusted with the task of finding out why prices have recently risen, decided, after a vote in which Conservatives opposed Liberals and others that the House should be asked to pass along to the implement companies a request that the higher prices should not be charged until the inquiry was over.

THE SOYA BEAN

The House—in committee of ways and means over the United States trade agreement—had a couple of warm sessions over the important question of the soya bean. It appears that the soya bean is, next to coal, the most remarkable substance known for the number of derivatives and by-products. Everything from duco to synthetic milk, it seems, may be made from it, and when the bean is 'puffed' and roasted, it is superior in flavour to the finest peanuts. No wonder that the House grew interested! It further transpired that the present acreage of soya beans in Canada was about 10,000, of which about half was cut for ensilage, and the remainder was threshed for the bean. A plant at Chatham has been extracting oil or otherwise processing the bean, another plant at Stratford failed to get along, and one is under way at Montreal.

Several Conservative members were much distressed because the soya bean, which formerly was protected at a rate of two cents per pound, is now to enter free from the United States. Mr. Bennett saw in the binding of the free item for three years the end of any immediate possibility of the starting of a soya bean industry in Canada. On the other side, it was stated that the prospects of any considerable acreage in Canada was very slight and in view of the importance of the article, it was well to have free access to it.

Sixty-two Years Late

"I'd come sooner, miss, but Ah lives 15 miles from here and my health ain't been so good." This was the explanation given by an old negro, Wm. Farris, at the Birmingham, Alabama, city hall to claim payment for work done during a cholera epidemic in Birmingham 62 years ago. Farris remembered he had been engaged making coffins at "two dollars, six bits a day. Ah worked five weeks—every day, sunup to dark", he said. "Ah's getting old now and Ah de money."

Heavy Fines for Rabbit-Killers, Laurentian Area

Fines totalling $1,440, plus costs, were imposed in St. Jerome last week, by Magistrate Lalonde when three men who pleaded guilty to killing 16 rabbits during the closed season appeared before him. The prisoners, who were arrested by game wardens in the Laurentian area, were unable to pay the imposed fines and were sent to jail to serve sentences of 11 months to six months.

Delphis Michaudville, 57, of St. Agicole, was charged with having killed three rabbits between January 1 and 21. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $270 and costs, or two months in jail. His son, Francis Moise Michaudville, 23, also facing the same charge, pleaded not guilty and his preliminary hearing was set for March 20.

Charged with having killed two rabbits between March 1 and 10, Marcus Ashby, 40, of Chersey, Terrebonne county, pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $180 and costs, or one month in jail.

The heaviest sentence was imposed upon Paul Desrochers, 23, of St. Calixte de Killkenny, Que., who pleaded guilty to having killed 11 rabbits within the Ste. Marguerite area between March 1 and 10. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $990 and costs, or serve six months in jail.

All three men admitted that they were unable to pay the fines and costs and chose to serve their jail terms.

QUICK WORK FOR SNAKE BITE

Preparedness for snake bites is one of the precepts of South African Boy Scouts. So when Scout Brian Pringle, of Durban, running along the river bank at Klipdrift, was bitten twice in the leg by a poisonous snake, his Scout chum knew what to do. A lace from his shoe made a quick tourniquet, he sucked the poison from the wounds, and with assistance from the nearest homestead, Pringle was hurried to a hospital.

Tea Meeting and Program at Brownsburg

Brownsburg, Mch. 16—

One of the most successful events held here by the Auxiliary of the United Church was the Tea Meeting on Thursday evening last, which was well patronized by church members and friends. The roads were particularly bad after heavy rains, thus preventing the people from outside points from attending. Nevertheless, a large number sat down to the excellent repast provided by the ladies. There was a splendid spirit attendant upon the festivities and altogether the organization and management of this event deserve high praise; the Auxiliary is to be congratulated upon the great success attending their efforts.

After the supper the congregation adjourned to the main body of the church where a variety program was enjoyed. This was preceded by a radio broadcast through the good offices of Mr. Frank Hazel who kindly loaned his radio and kept the audience amused till the commencement of the program.

Of the particular items and performers one cannot speak in detail, but it is enough to say that seldom has a Brownsburg audience enjoyed a better program. The variety of the numbers was gratifying to all tastes, providing many a laugh, much excellent singing, dramatic recitations, cow-boy masquerades, mouth-organ symphonies with guitar accompaniments, and a couple of piano solos by a young maiden of rare talent.

A feature of the evening was the introduction of some of the younger members of the congregation, who now appeared for the first time, as in the Hawaiian guitar duet.

Enchères were responded to most generously, and the audience vented their appreciation and hearty applause.

On the following night the Auxiliary served a free supper to the children of the Sunday School, at which the mouth-organ band provided music and the children joined in singing many popular songs.

The Thursday evening program follows:

Musical Selection: G. Anderson, P. LaVerre.
Vocal Solo: T. Pasco.
Recitation: C. Wheeler.
Hawaiian Guitar Duet: K. Hardie, M. Robbins.
Vocal Trio: The Roberts Sisters.
Recitation: Miss E. Aitken.
Address: Rev. Elmer Young.
Piano Solo: Miss Maureen Cumbers.
Recitation: Miss E. Aitken.
Vocal Solo: F. Steere.
Pitter Patter: J. Stewart, W. Hazel.
Mouth Organ Band.

An elderly lady chided her husband for his failure to assist her up the steps to the railway coach. "Henry, you ain't as gallant as when I was a gal."

The husband replied: "No, Lettie, and you ain't as buoyant as when I was a boy."

"To me, history is a jig-saw puzzle with half the pieces lost."

—Harold Bell Wright.

The one-night performance featuring "Unfinished Symphony", Wednesday, March 25, at the Rex, is in aid of a newly established string orchestra in Lachute, to purchase instruments and promote its organization. The program is in English, featuring this appropriate Franz Schubert biography and other attractions.

Only One Low Priced Car is FIRST in Everything that Counts — TERRAPLANE

Just Compare
THIS — with — THIS

Terraplane alone among all popular low priced cars gives you this:

- Full 115-inch wheelbase.
- 195 inches over-all length.
- Most power—88 or 100 horsepower—with freedom from vibration at all speeds.
- Body all of steel, with seamless roof of solid steel.
- Most inside room—145 cubic feet—more leg and shoulder room, and widest rear seat.
- Completely new style—best insurance of the investment value of your car.
- The only rear opening baggage and tire compartment on 5 and 6-passenger models that can be had in any low priced car without extra cost. Spare tire lies flat inside.
- Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for), two braking systems operating automatically from one brake pedal. And a third braking system from the easiest operating parking brake in the world.
- Radial Safety Control (patent applied for) combining all the advantages of independent springing with a sturdy front axle—smoother riding, truer steering, safer stopping.
- The Rhythmic Ride—the only long leaf springs with nothing to do but cushion your ride.
- The Electric Hand, optional at small extra cost, for finger-tip shifting of gears without taking your hands from the steering wheel. Front floor space clear of all levers.
- Extra deep "V-type" windshield—for added beauty and wider vision.

In other popular low priced cars this is what you get:

- 2 to 6 inches less wheelbase.
- 5 to 12 1/4 inches less over-all length.
- 8 to 18 less horsepower than Terraplane's power range of 88 to 100 h.p.—and not nearly as smooth.
- Body only partly of steel—or steel body with "soft top."
- Less inside room—less shoulder and leg room—narrower rear seats.
- 1935 styling, changed only in details. Far more likely to be out of date by 1937.
- No rear opening baggage and tire compartment, except in cars where trunk models are available—at considerable extra cost. Spare tire mounted outside on all other models.
- Single main braking system—either hydraulic or mechanical—without complete reserve braking system and without Terraplane's type of easy acting parking brakes.
- Older type front end designs—either with or without solid axle—none of which combines gentle spring action with rigid axle construction.
- Coil springs—or leaf springs, stiffened to carry steering and braking loads.
- Nothing like the Electric Hand is available on any other low priced car—and all have floors in front cluttered up with gear and brake levers.
- Nothing like Terraplane's deep "V-type" windshield in any other low priced car.

EVERY 1936 car buyer in the low price field has just two choices. A Terraplane. Or a car without the features that Terraplane gives. That's why thousands are changing this year to Terraplane... stepping UP in everything but cost.

The list of Terraplane advantages doesn't stop with those listed here. There's greater durability. Greater economy, too, certified by thousands of sworn owner statements. You'll find other advantages on every hand. Yours to try and enjoy today! Come in and see and drive a Terraplane.

$906 and up, retail at factory, Tilbury, Ontario, freight and license only extra. 88 or 100 h.p.—115-inch wheelbase.

Fire Brigades and Equipment in the City of London

From Local Government Centenary Number of "The Times", London, Eng.

The clang of the fire-bell never fails to bring every one who hears it to his window or the street. There is no danger lurking in large communities so fearsome as fire, no cry is more ominous than the cry of "Fire!" and there is no organized civic body of men, excepting the police, of whom we have so much reason for feeling proud as the fire brigade. Fires in the United Kingdom yearly consume capital to the amount of nearly £12,000,000.

The London Fire Brigade in its present perfection of equipment and skill is, considered in terms of London's history, comparatively a new body; indeed, it dates back only from the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act of 1865. But the brigade's efficiency, expressed to-day in part by swift and powerful engines, masks, and fire-proof clothing, is the result of long trial in the age-long conflict of mankind with the enemy which is forever threatening the annihilation of his cities. Fire made civilization possible, and as if in Frankenstein's despair of its own work, is unceasing in its menace to destroy what it created. Since the terrible lesson of the Great Fire of 1666 there have not been wanting organizations of some kind to fight the flames. But the evolution has a remote history. The curfew itself was primarily a fire preventive.

An Order of the City of London, 1668, commanded the provision for every parish and all the halls of the City companies of a certain number of buckets, ladders, brass hand-squirts, pick-axe sledges, and shod-hovels. It was lack of inventiveness more than lack of will that balked earlier organization. Before the fire-engine was thought of many parish authorities stored a kind of syringe. This forerunner of the hose was about three feet long and held about half a gallon of water. It took three men to handle one. Ineffective as it was, it was in use to some extent before the Great Fire, and increased in numbers afterwards until the fire-engine, a movable water cistern, came into use in the closing years of the seventeenth century.

Benevolent-minded people at a later stage formed societies to provide fire escapes of a sort, stationed in selected parts of the city. The first ladder to be made portable by means of wheels was invented in 1837; but John Braidwood, first Chief of the London Fire Establishment, a great man in the history of fire conflict whose career ended tragically in the Tooley Street disaster of 1861, had introduced scaling ladders in 1832. Improvements were made in wheeled ladders, but they continued to be trundled by hand until the nineties, when they were superseded by horse-drawn appliances.

The greatest step forward in London to centralize a fire-combating organization also was made towards the end of the frightened seventeenth century. Insurance against risks dates from the Great Fire. The idea was so successful that the number of companies grew apace in the following century. The questions of fire protection and of insurance which spreads over the community the enormous annual destruction of capital caused by fires, so that the loss of wealth at least hardly touches the individual, are interlocked. For a long period the organizations themselves were inseparable. As early as 1707 the insurance offices enrolled watermen as fire fighters, and to this may be traced the origin of the present practice of the London County Council in recruiting their firemen chiefly from ex-seamen. The covering of fire risks by insurance was an inspiration of genius. In the slow growth of civic responsibility it was natural that the companies should form their own bands of firemen to protect their financial interests. In the early days they maintained their own little brigades independently of each other, the first being that of the Royal Exchange Company in 1722. The amalgamation of these establishments was almost coincident in date with the creation of our system of local government in 1835. The men, collectively called the London Fire Establishment, wore uniform not very unlike that worn to-day, and were under the superintendence of Braidwood until that gallant man's death. The Establishment assumed responsibility for the protection of London, whether buildings were insured or not; but before the amalgamation the companies placed their "fire marks" on insured property, which meant a preference in protection. On some old buildings these marks are still to be seen, and they have lately become the object of the curio-collector.

THE SIREN'S MELLOW NOTE

Tracing the origins of any modern institution, one finds a fascinating story . . .

An Order of the City of London, 1668, commanded the provision for every parish of a certain number of buckets, ladders, brass hand-squirts, pick-axe sledges, and shod-shovels . . . Before the fire-engine was thought of, many parish authorities stored a kind of syringe. This forerunner of the hose was about three feet long and held about half a gallon of water. It took three men to handle one. . . Insurance companies maintained their own fire brigades. "Fire marks" were placed on insured properties—which meant a preference in protection.

—These and other interesting facts are learned in an article on Fire Brigades and Equipment, reproduced in this issue of The Watchman. It is well worth reading.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL HORNBY

A TIRELESS CRUSADER

A man with a motive, sticking doggedly to his purpose in face of discouragements, commands our admiration—which is perhaps a poor reward for his zeal. But such a campaigner with convictions soundly and logically based, may eventually achieve great things.

We, personally, believe that Brig.-General M. L. Hornby, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., of Lethbridge, Alta., is on the right track with the schemes he advocates for British immigration. His copious work in connection with these proposals gives evidence of a tireless ardor and sincerity. His latest venture is a book presenting salient arguments and opinions from widespread sources—a publication under the title, "Canada and British Immigration," which he has sent to all members of parliament at Ottawa and to other bodies interested in the subject.

Haphazard admittance of new settlers has no place in Brig.-General Hornby's plans. His scheme is systematized and supervised by authority. But the most prevalent objection to any idea of this kind is, of course, that Canada has already more unemployed than she can comfortably support. Mr. Hornby meets this complaint with arguments apparently sound and practical, showing that new immigrants with adequately financed settlement will create employment rather than take it away from others. He notes, further, that Canada made her greatest strides while immigration was at its peak.

We repeat, we are personally in favor. But apart from the merits or demerits of planned immigration, it is a matter of discredit that Canada will make no serious effort to consider its possible effects on the existing situation. It may be either detrimental or beneficial—but it should be within the scope of parliamentary logic to decide which; to hear the pros and cons, and weigh them intelligently. At present Canada has no decisive policy on immigration. She has, on one hand, a problem; on the other a potential aid to her recovery and progress. Surely this proposal is worth considering?

Fire Brigades and Equipment in London

The Tooley Street fire of 1861, when damage amounting to £1,200,000 was suffered, led to general recognition that fire protection was an affair of the community. A Parliamentary inquiry reported on the inadequacy of equipment and methods. Four years later the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act, mentioned above, placed upon the Board the responsibility hitherto undertaken by the insurance companies, who were made to contribute to the upkeep of the new brigade. The companies still pay annually £35 per million on the gross amount insured, and according to a publication of the London County Council their contribution amounts to about one-fourteenth of the cost. By the Local Government Act, 1888, the London Fire Brigade passed from the Metropolitan Board of Works to the control of the County Council.

Although in many rural areas arrangements for fire-fighting are still inadequate, in others a satisfactory plan has proved to be the use of trailer pumps. These pumps, which have 1,000 yards of hose, can be attached to a motor lorry or large car and towed to the scene of a fire. They are as powerful as those on any fire-engine and three jets can be used simultaneously. They can be man-handled to the often distant water supply. Sponsors can be borrowed from neighboring brigades. Inseparable from the problem of fire-fighting in the depth of the country is that of water supply and every owner of a large estate should see that there is a sufficiency of water on it. Much also can be done with chemical extinguishers easily accessible and promptly used.

It often happens that firemen are called upon to discharge tasks in no way connected with fire fighting. One day at Sheffield recently, though there were no fires, the men at the fire station were by no means idle. A troubled mother came and reported that she had lost her son; the youngster was found in an hour. A girl ran across from works opposite and reported that a girl had fainted; a fireman went and gave first aid. Shortly afterwards an urgent call was received from a hospital stating that they

Jerome's final goal was generally believed to have been scored after the bell—giving rise to much dispute.

The first period gave Lachute a 5-1 lead. In the second, St. Jerome scored 4 goals and the local count remained unchanged. In the final clash Lachute tallied twice, but St. Jerome doubled their count and the game concluded at 8-7.

Hefferman was referee on this occasion. Heavy body-checking was in evidence at times on both sides. Lachute's tallies were secured on creditable team-work, in almost every instance, Joey Berniquier netting the puck for three of these counters. The home team was lacking one defence-man, Geo. Lefebvre, who was in the penalty box as St. Jerome scored the deciding goal.

Lavigne, of the St. Jerome line-up, suffered a painful accident when he fell and was struck in the neck by McFaul's skate. The cut was dangerously near the jugular vein and required 7 or 8 stitches by a physician.

At St. Jerome on Tuesday, playing on soft and heavy ice before a diminutive crowd of onlookers, Lachute climbed back even with their opponents in a 6-4 victory.

Referees were Geo. Calder and Roland Giroux. Gerald, in the Lachute net, played a good game, and although many good openings were missed by both teams, the play was keen and close. There were few penalties imposed.

The opening period gave St. Jerome a 3-goal headway, but in the next Lachute held their opponents scoreless and themselves took the lead with 4 tallies. In the third session St. Jerome scored again, but Lachute clinched their victory with a closing count of 6 . . . The Lachute tallies were by Jos. Berniquier (2), Lloyd Cruise, R. Gagné, Jim Drew and Henri Joly; and the local line-up comprised:

Goalers, Gerald. Defence, McFaul, G. Lefebvre. Forwards, W. Drew, Cruise, Joly, Gagné, Berniquier, P. Lefebvre.

GEN. PERSHING STILL IN THE SADDLE

"We're a hard-lived outfit we cavalry officers. In the old days they used to say the only way to get rid of a cavalry officer was to shoot him. You never heard of one dying for other reasons." So said General John J. Pershing, whose career started in the Apache country 50 years ago. He still spends his winters in Arizona and daily climbs into the saddle for an invigorating ride, although he is past 75.

The purposes of the One Hundred Clubs are similar to other Service Clubs more popularly known, with the difference that the 100 Clubs are strictly Canadian; no funds or dues received from members or otherwise, leave the country for foreign philanthropic effort. Thus the 100 Clubs command an enviable position in the hearts of nearly 1000 members of truly Canadian spirit in this country.

Lachute and Brownsburg will be honored on this night by the attendance of the International President and prominent speakers from various 100 Clubs throughout the Ottawa Valley and Quebec. A gala affair is in store, both in the inauguration of the entertainment.

The present membership here in Lachute and Brownsburg aggregates over 50 individuals, and each member is requested to bring as many male guests who may enter this Service Club enterprise, so that their names may be enrolled upon the Charter before closing.

A word of thanks might well be expressed to the International Association of One Hundred Clubs, for introducing the movement into this community, where there is certainly no apathy among citizens for social and charitable service. Recognition is due also to the untiring efforts of the International organizer, Mr. P. L. English, who has devoted much time and effort in this neighborhood: he has thereby fostered a closer spirit of fellowship, and established an organization which may achieve still finer results in this direction.

POPULAR REVIEWER TURNS TO POETRY

March 21, traditionally the first day of Spring, has been chosen by Professor J. F. Macdonald as a suitable date for devoting his radio Book Review to poetry. Fancy turns to love, and love has its sweetest expression in the words of the poets. In "Some Poetry", scheduled for March 21 at 7.45 p.m., Prof. Macdonald will choose for reading and discussion some of the poetry which he likes best. Judging from the brilliant series of reviews just closing he will also select poetry that thousands of his listeners include among their favorites. He will present his broadcast from the studios of the Canadian Radio Commission in Toronto.

Graduating Class and Guests Honored at H. S. Banquet

A banquet was held at Lachute High School on Friday evening last—an occasion sponsored by members of the teaching staff and the pupils of grades ten and nine in honour of the members of their School Board and the graduating class.

Among the guests were Dr. Percival, Director of Protestant Education; Dr. J. H. Mason and Mrs. Mason; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gall; Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Drew; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Jackson; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Y. Deacon; Mr. and Mrs. T. Milnes; Mr. and Mrs. M. Jones; Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Clunie and the pupils of Grade XI.

Toasts were responded to in the following order: The King, Toastmaster C. L. Hall; the School Board, proposed by Geo. Leggett, Grade IX, replied to by Dr. Clunie; the Graduating Class, proposed by Phyllis Patterson, Grade X, replied to by Ross Beattie, President Grade XI.

A pleasing event took place in the presentation of the Sports Day Cup to Sydney Drew, Grade IX, by Dr. Percival, who later gave an address in which he heartily congratulated the pupils on the success of the banquet. He further stressed the necessity for hard work to attain success in life. He sought the pupils' co-operation in preparing a history of Lachute High School.

After the banquet the evening was pleasantly spent in dancing. Committees in charge of the arrangements were as follows: Supper—Phyllis Patterson, Joyce Milnes, Ruth Brennan, Dorothy Wheatley. Decorations—Edith Rosborough, Katherine Miller, Sydney Drew, Don Badard.

Lions Club Regular Luncheon Meeting

The regular luncheon meeting of the Lions Club was held at the Cosy Inn on Wednesday. Lion Tremblay reported that due to unfavorable weather the Hockey Match between Argenteuil All-Stars and St. Jerome seniors, scheduled for Thursday, March 19th., would be postponed. This game will be played at the first opportunity.

Arrangements have been made with Lion Angelo Fassio, Manager of Rex Theatre, to hold two shows shortly after the close of the Lenten season. Lion Fassio is providing a new picture for this occasion. It will be the first release of this picture and patrons may rest assured it will conform to the usual high standards. More details will be given later.

An innovation in boosting was tried out at this meeting, when all members present were asked to assist in boosting Lion Ernest Deslauriers. The winning numbers were drawn by Lion Gaetan Valois and Lion H. P. Johnson.

The Club continues, through its various committees, to carry on its good work and lend a helping hand to those in need.

In commenting on the Canadian meeting she stated that she liked the practical phase of the branch activities—the wool discussion and the making of handicrafts. In this connection the Women's Institutes of England sponsored a very fine annual exhibition of members' work. "The Women's Institutes have made a marvelous change in the life of the rural women of England," she continued, "Having few modern conveniences they have had to work so unnecessarily hard. The handicraft work has given them a new interest and so fine are some of their specimens that it is almost unbelievable."

She told of the work of her own branch, of 36 members. "I cannot help but compare this comfortable meeting place to ours—which is a fourteenth century barn with a stone floor and the stove away in the corner. Our programme is like yours—the business, then a speaker or play, and the social hour. Our branch is small in numbers, but I like that, as there are not so apt to be jealousies and cliques—and it is friendlier when we all draw up to the fire for our tea. I am a countrywoman and I am always happy to be with them. It is so good to be at a Women's Institute meeting again and I am particularly pleased to meet some of the Canadian workers here today," she concluded.

After the meeting tea was served at a tea table, decorated with gold and blue spring flowers, the Institute colors, presided over by the hostess, Mrs. J. E. Caldwell. Those having tea with Her Excellency included the president, Mrs. L. Mansfield, who so ably conducted the meeting, Mrs. Bradley, county federation secretary for 23 years, and the pioneer national officers. Each branch officer was called "to have a special word" and all members were presented.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. Silas Elder was a visitor to Montreal last week-end.

Mr. Gerald Taylor spent the week-end visiting in Montreal.

Miss Hazel LeCras visited friends in Montreal over the week.

Miss Isabel Boyd was the guest of her aunt in Montreal this week.

Mr. Rudy Gagne spent last Sunday visiting friends in Outremont.

Mr. T. Carpenter, of Three Rivers, was here in Lachute for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Lefebvre, of Montreal, are spending a few weeks in town.

Misses Maureen and Alice Berniquier were week-end visitors to Montreal.

Mrs. C. Gillard and daughter spent the early part of the week visiting in Montreal.

Miss Bernadette Dallaire visited friends in Montreal over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Henri Rodrigue, of Ahuntsic, were the guests of Dr. A. Rodrigue on Sunday last.

Mr. P. Sanford and Miss E. Davis, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Sanford.

Mr. Lionel Lafleur, of Sherbrooke, Que., was in town for the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lafleur.

Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Haller, accompanied by Mrs. Grindley, of Renfrew, Ont., left by motor last week to spend a month in Florida.

Miss Leona Walker, nurse in training at the Homoeopathic Hospital, Montreal, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Walker.

Mr. Eric Stephens has given up his position in Montreal to join his brother, Mr. Richard Stephens, in the grocery business conducted by their late father here in Lachute.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute, held a very successful St. Patrick's Tea and Sale on Tuesday afternoon. The proceeds amounted to approximately $76.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Prevost, of Vancouver, B.C., are visiting Mr. Euch. Lavigne and Mrs. J. Prevost, after an absence of nearly thirty years. Mr. Prevost is the son of the late Wilfrid Prevost, formerly of Lachute.

Mr. George Brennan was rushed to the Royal Victoria Hospital at a late hour Tuesday night, undergoing an operation at 5 o'clock the following morning. Although his condition is serious, he is reported making satisfactory progress and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Friends of Mr. Douglas McOuat will welcome his return to Lachute. For some time Mr. and Mrs. McOuat have resided in Maxville, Ont. Douglas has now been transferred and, being entrusted with sales supervision for the Frost & Wood Agricultural Implements in Quebec territory, is able to re-establish himself among old friends and former associates here in town.

After you drank your coffee and inhaled draughts of pure ozone this morning, did you feel like conquering the world? There are many worthy organizations in Lachute which have problems to match your prowess. Hook on! Help them along.

The Tippler Pigeon

The tippler pigeon is by far the most intelligent of the fancy varieties. They have competed in races of from 100 to 150 miles, and homed in exceptionally good time. They are similar to homing pigeons, in the respect that they can be sold to fanciers living in distant cities and towns, and after a few months as prisoners in the lofts of their new owners, they are given their freedom in the hope that they will like their new home and decide to settle and fly there. Many of them do like their new surroundings well enough to settle there, but some never can reconcile themselves to a new loft, and return as soon as they are liberated to their former dwellings.—Rural New-Yorker.

Boat Caulked With Butter

An ancient-type Tibetan buttered boat (spelling is correct: not "butter boat") has been added to the exhibits of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, says Kansas City Star Science Service. It consists of a frame of bent willow rods covered with hides; the seams were caulked with butter, which the Tibetans use for a general-purpose grease as well as for food. Although of modern date it is of ancient pattern, resembling the Gaelic coracles of western Britain and the skin boats used centuries ago on the Tigris and Euphrates. It is practically circular in outline, so that any direction is forward. But in spite of its awkward shape it will carry surprising loads; the late Dr. Berthold Laufer used this identical craft on an expedition in Tibet, and found it would carry a couple of men and 200 pounds of goods.

"Seven Seas" in Adriatic

According to Capt. W. A. Hawkes of the Cunard White Star liner Britannic, the Seven seas are located in the northern section of the Adriatic sea. Besides the delta of the Po and the large marshy tracts which it forms, there exist on both sides of it extensive lagoons of salt water, generally separated from the Adriatic by narrow strips of sand. The best-known of these lagoons is the one on which Venice is situated. They formerly afforded a continuous means of internal navigation by what were called "The Seven Seas" from Ravenna to Altinum. In the days of their great fame and prosperity many fine vessels of commerce and beautiful private ships equipped in great luxury swept over their shallow waters.

Temperature of Ionized Atmosphere
Experiments give further proofs that the layers of ionized atmosphere of the earth from 62 to 124 miles above sea level have a fairly constant temperature regardless of the time of day, night or season.

ONE THRONE IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS

A change of poignant significance has taken place in the House of Lords at Westminster. On the royal dais behind the wool-sack for many years there have been two thrones, one for the King and the other for the Queen, and a chair for the Prince of Wales. Now there is only one Throne. Here is a view of the Throne, showing the wonderful carving behind it.

move the error which the human mind alone has created." (Science and Health, page 173)

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NATURAL "BULK"

Needed to Correct Constipation*

Most people recognize the seriousness of constipation. But too often they dose themselves with strong cathartics that often actually lead to chronic constipation.

The natural way to check common constipation is to correct the condition which causes it—usually, insufficient "bulk" in meals.

How can you get "bulk"? Fruits and vegetables have some. Bran has more. The most popular product of this kind is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

This delicious cereal is a wholesome food. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity, with milk or cream—or use in cooking.

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk." If not relieved, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN gives you gentle internal exercise. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Much longer, don't you see.

In winter the old darkness
Comes snooping down so fast,
I have to hurry to the house
Before the day is past.

"I don't," the creepy shadows
Come sneaking after me,
From out behind the woodshed
And our brushy cedar tree.

Dad says there's nothing in the dark
For any child to fear,
But just the same I do not let Those creeping shadows near.

THE WILD MARCH HARE

Mr. and Mrs. Blue Bonnie and family were out for their morning exercise. They had been hopping from one patch of snow to the other, until they were all rather tired. "What shall we do," cried the littlest Bonnie, "when there are no snow patches to hop to?"

"There are a great many things to do in spring and summer when there is no snow at all, as you will find out for yourself as the days grow warmer and the green things start growing," said his mother.

"A great many, Ha! ha! ha!" shrieked a loud voice, right behind her. "A great many. A great many!" The slim willow bushes parted, and what looked to the small, scared bunnies very much like a whirlwind of silvery-grey fur darted out from among the bushes and turned somersaults over the still frozen ground, in front of them. Backwards and forwards, over and over, until the little bunnies started to scamper towards their home at the root of the big birch tree.

"Come back here, you silly little nippers," shrieked the loud voice here. "Come back here! and learn how to dance and play!" With a wild whoop the silvery-grey hare started hopping around on his hind feet, this way and that way, his front paws waving wildly in front of him, and his long grey ears flopping loosely from one side to the other.

The little bunnies stopped in their frightened scamper towards home, and stared at him in surprise. They had never seen anyone act this way before.

The littlest bunny snuggled against its mother in fear, thrusting its quivering nose against hers for comfort. "Don't be frightened, child," the mother said, "It is only the Wild March Hare. He won't hurt you. When the wind stops blowing he will quieten down and be quite sensible."

From the tree-top above them old Shining Back, the crow, cawed excitedly, and a family of blue-jays screamed their greetings. The Wild March Hare danced faster as their excited cries reached him. "Come down and help me dance!" he shrieked. "This wind is not going to last forever. Lady April is creeping slyly along. When she comes the March winds will no longer blow and all my fun will be over."

The blue-jays and crows who had gathered to watch the fun preferred to stay up in the tree-tops. They were much safer there, but Mr. Blue Bunny got excited and began beating time with his foot and wiggling his ears backwards and forwards. Mrs. Blue Bonnie did not seem a bit alarmed when she saw him. She knew that this silly acting was only excitement, and Mr. Blue Bonnie would soon be heartily ashamed of it.

The wind, after one particularly wild howl of glee as it came swooping through the boughs of the pine tree, suddenly died down and faded with soft little whispering sounds.

The Wild March Hare flopped to the ground. He sat panting, and winking the perspiration out of his eyes. "That was a glorious dance!" he wheezed, as soon as he could get breath enough to speak.

"I just came to tell you that spring is here; now I must be off to see that Mistress Bluebird gets started from the South. I saw some red berries on my way over, that the Junco's have missed, and I want to tell her where they are. Why don't you come along, Old Lazy Bones?" he added grinning at Mr. Blue Bonnie. Mr. Bonnie just grinned back at him and wiggled his ears slowly. "The clover up this way is good enough for me," he said. "You go along South if you want to."

"See Mistress Bluebird when she passes by." The Wild March Hare had just opened his mouth to make a reply when the wind came whirling back, through the cedar bushes from the other side of the wood, startling the blue-jays so that they all screamed at once and flew down into the willows to hide.

Without waiting to say goodbye, the Wild March Hare was off leaping and bounding over stumps and shrubs until he was hidden from their sight.

"Haw, haw, haw!" chuckled Shining Back, "That's the last we shall see of him until next March."

The little Blue Bunnies were quite glad that the Wild March Hare had gone and would not be back for a long time—but oh, what fun they had, pretending that they were Wild March Hares and trying to imitate him in their dancing!

Reader Gives Precepts for Young Men

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor,—Dear Sir:

I found an old newspaper clipping in one of my books a few days ago containing a message to young men from one of America's most outstanding preachers. It strikes me as being one of the finest things of the kind I have ever seen. I understand it was taken from a letter written to his own son who had left home to take up work in some other part of the country.

I am sending it to the Watchman in hopes that it may be helpful to some of your young readers as it has been to many of us of an older generation.

Yours truly, T. J. Barron.
Lachute Mar. 7, 1936.

HENRY WARD BEECHER'S MESSAGE TO YOUNG MEN

1. You must not go into debt. Avoid debt as you would the devil. Make it a fundamental rule: No debt—cash or nothing.

2. Make few promises. Religiously observe even the smallest promise. A man who means to keep his promises cannot afford to make many.

3. Be scrupulously careful in all statements. Accuracy and perfect frankness, no guesswork. Either nothing or accurate truth.

4. When working for others sink yourself out of sight, seek their interest. Make yourself necessary to those who employ you, by industry, fidelity and scrupulous integrity. Selfishness is fatal.

5. Hold yourself responsible for a higher standard than anybody else expects of you. Keep your personal standard high. Never excuse yourself to yourself. . . . Never pity yourself. Be a hard master to yourself, but lenient to everybody else.

6. Concentrate your force on your own proper business; do not turn off. Be constant, steadfast, persevering.

7. Do not speculate or gamble. You go to a land where everybody is excited and strives to make money suddenly, largely and without working for it. They blow soap bubbles. Steady, patient industry is both the safest and surest way. Greediness and haste are the two devils that destroy thousands every year.

8. Lastly, do not forget your father's and your mother's God. Because you will be largely deprived of church privileges, you need all the nerve to keep your heart before God. But do not despise small churches and humble preachers. "Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate."

Read often the Proverbs, the precepts and duties enjoined in the New Testament. May your father's God go with you and protect you.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

KING'S FIRST RADIO TALK WAS TO SCOUTS

The Boy Scouts claim the honour of being first addressed over the air by King Edward. As the Prince of Wales, he spoke to them by radio in 1922. It also was the first broadcast by any member of the royal family.

80 AS RETIRING AGE

From South Africa on his recent 79th birthday Lord Baden-Powell cabled Canadian Scouts: "Am entering my 80th year, and I urge all my Canadian brother Scouts to stick to Scouting till they reach the same age."

CANADIAN MAPLE TREES TO ENGLAND

A novel permanent reminder of Lord Baden-Powell's visit to Canada last summer is a group of young maple trees planted in Gilwell Park, England's famous permanent training camp in Essex. The trees were sent over late last summer.

BOY SCOUT BOOKS IN INDIAN LANGUAGES

Scouting continues to grow in India. "Scouting for Boys," the Boy Scout's handbook, which already has been translated into several Indian languages, is now being written in Kanarese. Similarly the Wolf Cub (Junior Scout) Handbook is being translated into Mah-ratti.

A BIT OF CANADA IN NEW ZEALAND

An effort to grow Canadian maple trees from seeds is being made in the Antipodes. The seeds were sent out by the Boy Scouts Association for planting in an "International Circle" at New Zealand's training camp for Scout leaders. The New Zealanders hope ultimately to have trees from every part of the Empire and from all the other Scouting countries of the world.

AUSTRIAN CATHOLIC SCOUTS CELEBRATE

Catholic Boy Scouts of Austria are this year celebrating their 10th Anniversary Jubilee Year, by a succession of monthly events, including Thanksgiving services, Boy Scout exhibitions, a Scout skiing contest, etc. The big event will be the First Austrian National Scout Camp, July 17-27. Several thousand Scouts from other countries are expected to join those of Austria at a delightful camp site at the Castle of Luxenburg near Vienna.

Town Twice Removed

About 35 years ago the people of Mounds, Okla., decided to move their town to the railroad that had built through several miles to the west. Mike Glenn, local transfer man, got the job of moving the town. Then the people discovered their town was too near the next railroad point. Again Mike Glenn was called on and the town was moved to a point four miles southwest of the original site. Glenn is the only man in the world who has moved a whole town twice.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S LATEST

The management of Rex Theatre is negotiating with distributors for the United Artists to produce Charlie Chaplin's latest success, "Modern Times". It is hoped to show this film at the earliest possible date.

STATISTICS

"What are the chances for my recovering, Doctor?" "One hundred per cent. Medical records show that nine out of every ten die of the disease you have. Yours is the tenth case I've treated. Others all died. You're bound to get well. Statistics are statistics."

Green: "You must be keen on the talkies, old boy, to go twice a week."

Howarth: "It's not that exactly. You see, if I don't go regularly I can't understand what my children are saying."

CHRONICLES OF BARABBAS

Those of you who enjoy reading reminiscent chats about interesting people would enjoy George H. Doran's Chronicles of Barabbas—in this case Barabbas being a publisher. As Mr. Doran was a publisher he naturally writes chiefly about writers. Many of these were not writers in the first place but became writers because of their achievements in other fields of activity. He grew up in Toronto, later moved to the States and had many friends and business connections in England, so he is able to have us meet a wide cross-section of interesting people both in America and Europe. If this book is not in your Public Library, your book committee might welcome its suggestion.

MARY ROBERTS RHINEHART

During the time I was reading the above book I happened to be chatting with a friend about this and that, and I said that I thought Mary Roberts Rhinehart was one of the most outstanding women of the present day. She has an unusual versatility in her writing, and her leadership during the war and since, has been of definite value to her country. Withal she has been so modest about it, that few know the extent of her work. Great was my joy when I found that Mr. Doran nominated her for First Woman of the Land. First Lady of the Land is by virtue of being wife of the President but First Woman is by choice. Mr. Doran says that when a magazine starts a serial or a series of articles by her, the circulation immediately goes up by 250,000 copies.

DIET FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Tuberculosis is one of the diseases in which treatment by diet plays an important part. But the treatment has radically changed. It used to be that the patient was literally stuffed with milk, cream and eggs until the stomach rebelled, and at times the cure was worse than the disease. Now the treatment differs materially. The proteins, that is the meats, eggs and fish, are kept to moderate amounts, an average amount of carbohydrates, that is starches and sugars, is used but the amount of fats is increased but not beyond the patient's tolerance. There is an increased amount of vitamins and minerals. The daily servings of food for a patient who is up and about should include the following: A serving of a cooked cereal (about 1/2 of a cup), 3 slices of bread, 1 serving of potatoes, 3 servings of vegetables; 3 servings of fruit, a serving of meat or fish, 2 eggs, 2 simple desserts, quart of milk, glass of 20% cream. The cream may be taken with the cereal and the dessert and the remainder added to the milk. A glass of milk should be taken at 10 a.m.; at 3 p.m. and at bedtime. There is a liberal amount of butter used, 7 1/2 squares (between 2 1/2 and 3 ounces). The butter may be used on the bread or on the vegetables. The weight should be kept slightly over the average weight for height and age, but the old idea of stuffing and becoming very fat is done away with.

INCREASED APPENDICITIS IN SCHOOL-AGE CHILDREN

We may wisely follow our grandmother's rules in many things, but one of the ones we should discard is 'a dose of castor-oil for a pain in the stomach'. Never give a laxative for a tummy-ache as it may be caused by appendicitis and a laxative would irritate an already irritated appendix. Relieve by an enema but never by a laxative. Toilet habits in the school-age child should be supervised. After children get past the small child stage, we often feel that they should be able to look after themselves. They are apt to be careless, with resulting constipation. Appendicitis in school-age children is increasing to an alarming degree. Mothers can do valuable prevention work by giving their children proper food and supervising their toilet habits.

LEMON SNOW

1 lemon, juice and grated rind
1 1/2 cups water
1 egg
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon butter
3 tablespoons cornstarch
Add lemon rind and juice and butter to water and bring to a boil. Mix cornstarch with enough cold water to moisten and add very slowly to hot mixture. Cook until thick, then 3 minutes longer, over a slow heat, stirring constantly. Beat the egg white until stiff. Pour hot mixture over the beaten egg white and stir until mixed. Chill thoroughly. Serve with custard sauce. This makes an attractive pudding for the spring days when we want to lighten the meals a little. We had it to-day after a meat pie. Always choose a light dessert after a heavy first course.

CUSTARD SAUCE

Beat the egg yolk left from the above recipe slightly. Add 1 teaspoon sugar, and 3/4 cup milk. Cook in the double boiler or over very slow heat until the custard begins to thicken. Add 1/4 teaspoon vanilla. Too hot a temperature or too long cooking will curdle a custard sauce.

CHOCOLATE BARS

6 tablespoons butter
1 cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
2 eggs
1 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Cream butter and sugar and add well-beaten eggs. Sift in flour, cocoa, and salt. Add nuts and vanilla. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cut in bars.

School Head Bans Make-up for Girls

School girls in New Zealand who use make-up and varnish their nails have come in for criticism from Miss Edwards, headmistress of the Diocesan School at Auckland.

"I can think of nothing more unsuitable than make-up on the face of a girl who has not left school", she said, deploring the "false maturity" of some New Zealand girls. "At our school we simply will not have it," she added.

"There is nothing I hate more than to have paws spread out in front of me showing ten nails decorated with the grown-up addition of varnish to the youthful decoration of grubbing."

She declared it was "really criminal" to let girls wear unsuitable clothing and appalling shoes that were regarded as smart.

"We are all nervous about a certain license that has crept into social life in recent years. Are we making the best preparations against temptation in allowing a crop of weeds to choke wholesome interests while girls are so young?" she asked.

Map is Historical Curiosity

Queen Elizabeth's exact route from Westminster to Tilbury to visit camps organized to resist the Armada may be followed with the aid of a map just presented to the British Museum by Major M. Rawlence and family.

The map is the work of Robert Adams, and is dated 1588. It is colored, and represents a fine specimen of the cartography of that period.

Stage Success Story

Wendy Hiller, who at 21 is acclaimed in London and New York as one of the most capable of the younger actresses, was touring the English provinces with a small repertory company when the leading part in "Love on the Dole" was offered her. She was chosen, she says, because she could wear shorts and speak a broad Lancashire dialect—her father is a Lancashire cotton manufacturer—but even at that she was dubious about her chances.

The play toured for almost a year before its backers dared try it in London; but there, though Miss Hiller was making her first appearance on the London stage, it was a big hit and ran for a year. Now it is playing on Broadway, and the New York critics greeted her American debut as enthusiastically as did those of London.

Miss Hiller is slender, brown-haired, charmingly naive, and unspoiled by success.

Agnes McPhail's Speech Aroused Discussion

ON QUESTION OF VOTE FOR WOMEN OF QUEBEC

Miss Agnes Macphail, M.P., is receiving brickbats and bouquets for a speech she made in Montreal before the Canadian Alliance for Women's Vote in Quebec—says a Canadian Press writer.

She said then: "It is obviously ridiculous that women are allowed to vote in federal but not in provincial elections... Women are quite close to the vote in the province of Quebec. The situation now is obviously unfair, and an injustice does not stand if public opinion is against it..."

Miss Macphail told the women of their opportunities for public service, their political qualities and their political faults, but her remarks have brought a varied fan mail. One letter from a policeman gives an opposition point of view. He starts without the conventional greeting.

"What audacity on your part to trouble the peace of the homes in the province of Quebec by your arguments on votes for women. The province of Quebec is master of its fate and does not have to take example from the Federal Government or any other province in that which concerns suffrage."

"If women have voted since 1917 in federal elections it was to steal the election by the most barbarous means that could be employed by the Government, the most rotten recorded in history."

"Quebec does not want the debauchery of its womanhood. If women were admitted to the seats of Parliament it would be a disorder and calamity that would continue to increase and cause numerous divorces."

"Look after matters that belong to your sex. Wash your own dishes—and if you come back watch out."

Miss Macphail said she believed her speech struck home.

FOOD FOR BREAKFAST

Canadian cereal foods find their way to breakfast tables in many parts of the world, according to a report on the prepared breakfast foods and other cereal products industry in Canada. During 1934 exports of cereal foods from Canada amounted to $3,226,576, of which over 95 per cent went to the United Kingdom.

Smith—Is your wife economical?
Jones—Sometimes. She used only 30 candles on her fortieth birthday cake.

"I know a girl who thinks her husband is simply wonderful," remarked the man. "Ah," murmured his companion, "so you've just come from a wedding?"

Tuskers Unusual in Ceylon
Sinhalese native carriers are not beyond "gilding the lily" when preparing ebony elephants for tourists and curio dealers, say naturalists familiar with wild life in Ceylon. Nearly all the little black elephants bought in Ceylon by tourists or featured in displays of tea in Canada are carved at Galle in Ceylon. They are artistic and, except in one respect, lifelike. Each is made with shiny white tusks. The reason for the tusks is that everybody expects an elephant to have tusks—and the Sinhalese are an obliging people. Actually, however, very few of Ceylon's live elephants are built that way!—Montreal Herald.

With the Hawk Family

The Coopers and the sharp-shinned hawks are deserving of their reputation as predators, an authority states, and there is some doubt as to the status of the marsh hawk and the red-tail; but most of the other hawks are properly classed as beneficial. Likewise he declares that all species of owls other than the Great Horned owl are valuable residents because of the large numbers of mice and other rodents they consume.

The Baffling Vitamins

Vitamin A—Butter, tomatoes, whole yellow corn, eggs and green vegetables.
Vitamin B—Wheat, asparagus, heart, liver, kidney, eggs, milk, cereal, and green vegetables.
Vitamin C—Raw tomatoes, grapefruit, lemons, oranges, bananas and pineapples.
Vitamin D—Cod liver oil, eggs, milk and butter.
Vitamin E—Wheat germs and whole wheat grain.
Vitamin G—Dried yeast, milk, eggs, liver, kidney, wheat germs, meat, and green vegetables.

Notes and Comment From Brownsburg

ROADS OR RUTS

The advent of spring brings joy into the hearts of men, birds and animals. We are not so sure that motorists are in either category, judging by the herculean efforts they had to exert in traversing the roads about here during the past week. It is surprising the amount of rough usage a modern car can withstand; no matter how badly stuck or misplaced were the numerous cars we have seen in difficulties during the week, they were still in running order after their release was effected. A series of lessons in the efficient servicing of cars has been planned by a well known firm of motor engineers, and are scheduled to be given at the C.I.L. Social Club in the immediate future.

DANCE

The Brownsburg Orchestral Society held one of their pleasant dancing affairs last week, and lovers of the terpsichorean art were enabled to enjoy themselves to their heart's content. The attendance was a little on the small side, but the guests made up in joviality what they lacked in numbers.

BROWNSBURG

Mr. K. MacGibbon is spending a few days in Bridgeport, N. Y.

Miss Alma Hendry spent the week-end as guest of her sister in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Maitland spent Sunday in Montreal.

Mrs. Chas. Kennedy spent the week-end with her parents, at Bell Falls, Que.

The many friends of Mrs. T. Carpenter wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. F. Short spent the week-end as guest of her sister in the City.

A St. Patrick's card party was held at the home of Mrs. L. Wilson on Tuesday.

Mr. Jim Duncan spent the week-end with his parents in Lakefield.

Mrs. Chas. Ralph has returned home to Lake Commandant after spending a few weeks as guest of her sister, Mrs. Robert Edwards, at Westmount.

LOOKS LIKE A SAFE BET (St. Catharines Standard)

The claim that the Queen Mary will win back the blue ribbon of the Atlantic by doing 32 knots and 35 if necessary gains considerable force when it is known that Clydebank Scots are willing to bet on it.

CUSHING WEST

Miss Dorothy Weir, of Montreal, spent the week-end at her home here.

Mr. A. C. Pinkerton, of Montreal, was a guest of his father, Mr. R. Pinkerton, on Sunday.

Quite a number from this locality took advantage of the excursion over the C. N. R. to spend the week-end in the city. These included Miss Iris Evans and Mrs. D. Girling, Miss Wheelahan and Miss Alice Morrow, also Mr. Geo. Moncrieff and Mr. and Mrs. T. Ranger of Greece's Point, besides quite a large contingent from Stonefield and vicinity.

Mr. Jeremy Morrisette has sold his farm to Mr. Jos. Ranger of Greece's Point, who intends to take possession immediately, while Mr. Morrisette is planning to move to Alfred, Ont., where he owns some property.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Mrs. G. Sadler, who has been the guest of Mrs. C. S. Wales for the past week, returned to the city on Sunday.

Mrs. M. Yale was in Montreal for the week-end.

The Misses E. Morrison and A. Morrin spent Saturday and Sunday in the city.

Mr. Keith Pitcairn was at his home here for the week-end.

The "Depression Supper" given by the ladies of the United Church Guild was a very successful affair—all wearing depression costumes, which caused much amusement. There was a very select program, and supper was served in depression style, after which games were played and a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

Mrs. Christie and little daughter, Patsy, who have been the guests of Mrs. A. Dorion for some weeks, returned to Montreal on Friday.

Miss Gladys Hyde was a week-end visitor at her home here.

Mr. J. DeWitt spent the week-end in Montreal.

On account of the high water and spring floods, work on the new bridge has been suspended for an indefinite time.

Mrs. Kingsbury had the misfortune to fall and cause herself serious injuries, and she is critically ill at her home here.

Ernest Woods spent the week-end in Montreal.

The condition of the country roads has been so bad that, on Thursday and Friday of last week, the Beech Ridge and La-chute Road school buses were unable to bring the children to school.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Calder and son, Billy, spent Sunday in Montreal.

Mr. Black has been a recent visitor at the home of his sister, Mrs. Albert Dorion.

It has been announced that the opening of the provincial season of golf will be a tournament on the St. Andrews Golf Links on May 30th.

CUSHING

Mrs. S. H. Beecher, who was the guest of Mrs. James Chambers of St. Philippe, and other Cushing friends for a time, has returned to her home in Montreal.

Mr. A. Graham spent Monday in Montreal.

Mrs. C. L. Meserve and daughter, Isabel, of Montreal, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Innes for the past month, left for home on Sunday.

Mr. T. Loughrin and Mr. G. Moncrieff, of Stonefield, spent Saturday in Montreal.

Mr. T. Loughrin, of Stonefield, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham on Sunday.

Miss Myrtle Donaldson spent a few days this week with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Donaldson, in Brownsburg.

In spite of the bad roads the meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, at the home of Mrs. H. Nowlan of Carillon, was well attended on Wednesday of last week. The ladies from Cushing were—the President, Mrs. W. Usher, Mrs. J. W. Maclean, Mrs. L. M. Gaston, Mrs. T. W. Weir, Mrs. S. O. Hartley, Mrs. A. Graham, and Mrs. L. Hartley of Montreal. A short account of the Mid-Winter Conference was given by the delegates, also an interesting paper on the Life of Frances Willard, by Mrs. A. Graham, who also read Edgar Guest's poem, two verses of which are given below:

MEMORY OF THE NINETIES

Men used to drink in the nineties gay
When I was a youngster small,
But always the old horse knew the way

Back home to the barn and stall;
Then the neighborhood set could Drop the rein
On the dashboard at his feet,
And Dobbin would take him home again

While he snoozed on the buggy seat.
But times have changed and the foolish
Man
No more has a faithful friend,
Life has speeded up to a swifter Plan,

Death lurks at each curve and bend,
And the fool who climbs in a motor car
With a drink-befuddled brain
Has but to doze where the dangers are

And he doesn't get home again.

MORIN HEIGHTS

The March meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. D. Davis on Tuesday afternoon last.

The Rustic Bridge Club were entertained at the home of Mr. Chas. Campbell on Wednesday.

The March meeting of the Anglican W. A. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Basler on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. L. Hollingsworth, of Montreal, was a week-end visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Seale.

1936 Master and Standard Chevrolets Replete with New Features

New Master and Standard Chevrolets for 1936 show marked advances in appearance and in engineering. Perfected hydraulic brakes, high-compression engines with full-length water jackets, and balanced carburetion are among the mechanical improvements. The solid steel Turret Top Fisher body is now used on the Standard as well as the Master De Luxe models. The illustrations show: Top right, the Master Six special sedan with built-in trunk. Top left, the front seat improvement in Master coaches, the seat being in one piece and the right half of the back being movable. Lower right, the simple arrangement of Chevrolet's perfected hydraulic brakes, all models. Lower left, a De Luxe Convertible and the Regular coupe of the Standard Series.

Presentation of Charter to Newly-Formed Lachute One Hundred Club

GALA NIGHT AT INAUGURAL BANQUET HERE LAST TUESDAY

INTERNATIONAL CLUB OFFICIALS ON HAND

The Charter Night gathering of the newly formed "100 Club" in Lachute was a gala occasion Tuesday evening, some 50 members, guests and visitors taking part and in the banquet and proceedings at Desjardins Hotel. In the chair was Centurion Grant Dunlop, Almonte, President of the International Association of One Hundred Clubs. In his inaugural address, and in speeches by fellow visitors from Ontario and Quebec branches of this club, the high ideals of the organization were outlined—ideals of both service and fellowship. As the visitors told their personal reaction to this movement and the achievements of the branch clubs they represented, their ideals became not only desirable in human relationships but also highly practical from the aspect of community welfare. These impressions were left among the local membership, besides an experience of warmer fellowship with their own every-day associates and townsmen. In this regard Centurion Dunlop pleaded eloquently for the submerging of racial and religious differences; with service and fellowship as objectives, this must be the first essential.

Appointed to the chair as spokesman for the Lachute organization, Mr. J. E. Dumais filled his duties admirably. The singing of the club theme song and declaration of the creed was followed by an introduction of the gentlemen present. A telegram of congratulation from the Ottawa "100 Club" was read, and, from this town, a note of acknowledgment to the membership.

The visiting speakers, and more particularly those of Lachute, expressed warm appreciation for the labors of Centurion P. J. English and his assistants who, as organizers of the International Association, had been instrumental in establishing the branch at Lachute, and are now concentrating their efforts on culmination of the Brownsburg club.

Death Removes Link with Pioneer Business Family

MISS MEIKLE DAUGHTER OF COUNTY MERCHANT

Concerning the recent death of Miss Kate Meikle, a native of the community of St. Andrews East, who later made her home at Mount Forest—the local newspaper of that town writes the following tribute:

The community was shocked on Sunday when it became known that Miss Kate Meikle had passed away following a cerebral hemorrhage. She was taken sick in the public library. Medical aid was summoned and she was taken home, but she peacefully slept away without regaining consciousness.

Always an active little lady, deeply interested in people and events, Miss Meikle kept up that interest to the very end. She was a devoted church and Sunday School worker, a member of the Ladies' Aid and a life member of the W. M. S. The work of the W.C.T.U. was also dear to her heart and for many years she was president of the local union. She was also much interested in the work of the Bible Society of which she was a life member. In addition to the many duties of these

It is an interesting thought to contemplate that for many thousands of years, in practically every part of the world, some of the best minds have felt that man outlives his body—that this world is a training school for something better after the body is no longer habitable.

ST. ANDREWS E. CONCERT PRESENTED BY ALL-AMATEUR TALENT

SUCCESSFUL EVENT WAS SPONSORED BY YOUNG PEOPLE'S CLUB

By Our St. Andrews Correspondent

St. Andrews E.—The Young People's Club of the Presbyterian Church, with Miss Janet Watson as President, presented a very fine Amateur Concert in the Town Hall here last Tuesday evening. The program was directed by Mr. Thos. Webster, with Miss Walsh, Miss Ladouceur, and Mrs. T. Webster as accompanists. Mrs. H. P. Bezanson, Mrs. Roth and Miss A. L. Wales acted as judges.

A LITERARY GEM OF OLD FRENCH CANADA PASSED UNDER REVIEW

ILLUMINATING SUBJECT BEFORE STUDY GROUP

The review of Wm. Kirby's story of old Quebec, "The Golden Dog", was successfully carried out at the Study Group meeting of the Lachute W. I. on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. C. L. Duncan was convener of the meeting and was assisted by Mrs. E. Beaton and Mrs. D. Titman in synopsis of the story.

Misses Gabrielle and Mariette Joly favored the group by singing some of the old French folk songs mentioned in the story. A comparison of fact and fiction was ably drawn by Mrs. L. Morris, who also added a short history of the Seigneurial System in Quebec Province, from the time it started until the present-day attempt to abolish it.

Valuable information regarding this system was provided by Miss M. V. LaRose, who could not be present to read her own paper.

Mrs. Geo. Clunie added some interesting facts about Lachute history when she told, concerning the house which she now occupies, that it was built originally for Mr. Colin Robinson, agent for Sir John Johnston of the St. Andrews Seigneurie. Mrs. Clunie showed a Day Book dated 1811, and two old papers, the "Canadian Courant" and "Montreal Advertiser"—dated May 4, 1822, and the "Montreal Transcript and Commercial Advertiser", dated Sept. 18, 1847. Mrs. Clunie also possesses a brooch, an exact replica of the Golden Dog tablet now visible on the wall of the Quebec post office.

SUFFERED INJURY WHEN CAUGHT IN SAW-SHAFT

MEDICAL CARE DELAYED BY FLOODED ROADS

By Our District Correspondent

Henry Wood of the Mille Isles district met with a painful accident during sawing operations. While starting up his machine on Saturday, he became caught in the shaft and suffered severe injuries as his clothing was wound with the revolving shaft. Owing to the presence of mind displayed by James Dawson of Lachute, who was assisting in the work, more serious results were averted. Owing to floods in the vicinity it was impossible to procure medical assistance until the following day. On Monday, ac-

ROYAL MATRIMONY AND THE GOSSIPS . . .
RE-MILITARIZATION OF THE RHINE . . .
COMMUNIST ON THE RADIO

When King Edward VIII submitted the Civil List to parliament a few weeks ago, The King mentioned the possibility of his taking a queen, and asked that his expense money be budgeted accordingly. Immediately gossip became rampant, and speculation rife over the romantic possibilities of his marriage. The submission of the King's Civil List is purely a routine matter, the inclusion of provision is asked for according to precedent.

Wild jubilation greeted the German troops when they marched into the demilitarized Rhineland on March 7th. At 5 a.m. troops occupied Deutz on the opposite bank of the Rhine from Cologne, and while Herr Hitler was making his momentous pronouncement a detachment of his army in lines of threes was doing the goose-step through the large cathedral square in Cologne. The first intimation the populace had of this vital event was the placing of a cordon around the square to ensure the clear passage of the German troops. None of the usual flag waving or bunting display greeted the advancing battalion, because of the secrecy with which the occupa-

MUCH IMPORTANT WORK NOW BEFORE PARLIAMENT . . . SHORT, LIGHT SESSION IS OUT OF QUESTION, SAYS EGGLESTON, "SPOTLIGHT" REPORTER

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, March 24.—Coming events in the parliamentary world make a more sensational story than the accomplishments of the past week; which were fairly limited. The House of Commons spent the best part of four days passing the schedules of the United States trade agreement. Practically every item of the several hundred provoked some discussion. Protection versus Free Trade was the text of a good many speeches. The farm implement industry and its relationship with the prosperity of the farmer were threshed out several times; in spite of the fact that the agricultural committee of the House is engaged in a study of farm implement prices, and that therefore many further opportunities will present themselves for a debate on this subject.

Miss Jeanette Wales, a student at the "Beaux Arts", had a picture accepted for the Spring Exhibition of the Montreal Art Gallery. The subject of the painting is "Old Houses, St. Andrews East". Miss Wales is to be congratulated on attaining this honour so early in her career as an artist.

Miss Wales was accompanied by his wife and John A. Ward, Mr. Wood was removed to hospital in Montreal to ascertain the extent of his injuries. He was suffering from severe lacerations, burns and broken ribs.

Property Damage, One Death Result of Spring Floods in Laurentian Area

It's sound sense to want to accumulate dollars and cents. But when the accumulation becomes life's sole interest, to the crowding out of friendships and deeds of kindness, of music and art and reading—there's something wrong somewhere.

NEIGHBORING C. N. ROADBED MAY BECOME PART NATIONAL HIGHWAY

An application by the Canadian National Railways to abandon a portion of its L'Orignal sub-division between Hawkesbury and Hurdman, Ont., and the spur between Rockland, Ont., and Clarence Creek, a total distance of 61 miles, was taken under advisement by the Board of Railway Commissioners at Ottawa last week. R. M. Smith, Ontario Deputy Minister of Highways, suggested 25 miles of the roadbed could be used as part of the Trans-Canada Highway at a cost of 40 per cent. less than if the present highway were to be rebuilt.

MRS. JOHN P. MIDDLETON, OLD DISTRICT RESIDENT, DIED IN THE WEST

REMAINS BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL

Last tributes of respect to the late Mrs. J. P. Middleton of Winnipeg were paid at the St. Andrews East cemetery on Tuesday. Mrs. Middleton, formerly Miss Mary Spratt of East Hawkesbury, was well known in the northern section of this county where her late husband was engaged in lumbering interests for 25 years. John P. Middleton was killed in a mill accident near Shawbridge eight years ago; his widow had resided during the past four years in Winnipeg, where her death occurred Mar. 19th., at the age of 71.

She is survived by her family of five—three daughters, Mrs. McMillan of Winnipeg, Mrs. McMillan and Miss Margaret Middleton of Montreal; and two sons, J. C. Middleton of Brantford, and Douglas of Winnipeg. With exception of the last named, all were present here for the interment. On arrival of the body at Lachute on Tuesday, relatives and sympathizing friends accompanied the remains to their last resting place in the St. Andrews cemetery, where burial rites were conducted by Rev. J. Macaskill.

Annual Meetings Reported by County W. I. Branches

Chatham Branch had eighteen members present at their meeting, and received one new member. They answered their roll call by paying their fees, and heard convenors' reports for the past year.

Frontier Branch had eight members and two visitors in attendance at their March meeting, in spite of inclement weather, to hear the presidential address and convenors' reports. An interesting time followed the routine business in the making of the new year's programme.

Jerusalem - Bethany held their annual meeting, with the usual election of officers and convenors, reports and payment of fees. A patchwork quilt was sent to the Women's Hostel, Montreal.

GATINEAU REPAIR MAN DROWNED NEAR STE. ADELE

LANDSLIDE ON C. P. R. STE. AGATHE LINE

Considering the immense watershed drained by the North River, damages created by floods here along its valley have been far less serious than the havoc left by ice and high water in the Maritimes, the Eastern Townships, and especially along the larger rivers of the States.

Between Lachute and St. Jerome the highways have been inundated. This route, used all winter by Montreal traffic, was closed as the regular highway No. 8 became accessible to motorists and truck drivers. At St. Andrews East large areas are under water. Riverside farmers at Isle-aux-Chats, where the ice blocks the shallow rapids every spring, have suffered considerably. Dalesville suffered property damage, and a power dam on the Keefe property was also broken, though it is believed not seriously impaired.

LANDSLIDE ON TRACK

On the C.P.R. Mont Laurier line fifteen feet of earth sliding down a mountain slope onto the tracks between Piedmont and Ste. Adele blocked traffic for over two hours. The slide occurred at five o'clock on Wednesday last, some 15 minutes before the Montreal-bound train was due to pass. The earth slipped onto the tracks and covered it for a length of three rails with sufficient earth and debris that it was impossible for the train to pass.

The slide was discovered by section hands immediately and the train was held at Ste. Adele while notice was sent along the line to other points.

A plow and a crew of men were soon on the spot to clear the line, which is particularly winding at that point, and shortly after seven o'clock the train was able to get through.

DEATH BY DROWNING

Tragedy followed in the wake of floods in the same area on Friday, when between Ste. Adele and Ste. Marguerite a repair-man sent out by the Gatiniau Power Company drowned from a boat which capsized in an overflow of the North River.

King's Birthday to Be Legal Holiday

King Edward will ride at the head of his troops for the first time as Sovereign when he celebrates his 42nd. birthday on June 23.

His Majesty's birthday will be celebrated in London and at all stations of the Royal Navy, the Army and the Royal Air Force at home and abroad.

The principal function will be the trooping of the colors on the Horseguards' Parade. This was a ceremony always observed by the late King George, and on his last birthday, June 3, His Majesty rode with his four sons in the picturesque ceremonial.

His Majesty's ships will be dressed over for the occasion, and royal salutes of 21 guns will be fired at certain stations. Land forces will hold ceremonial parades.

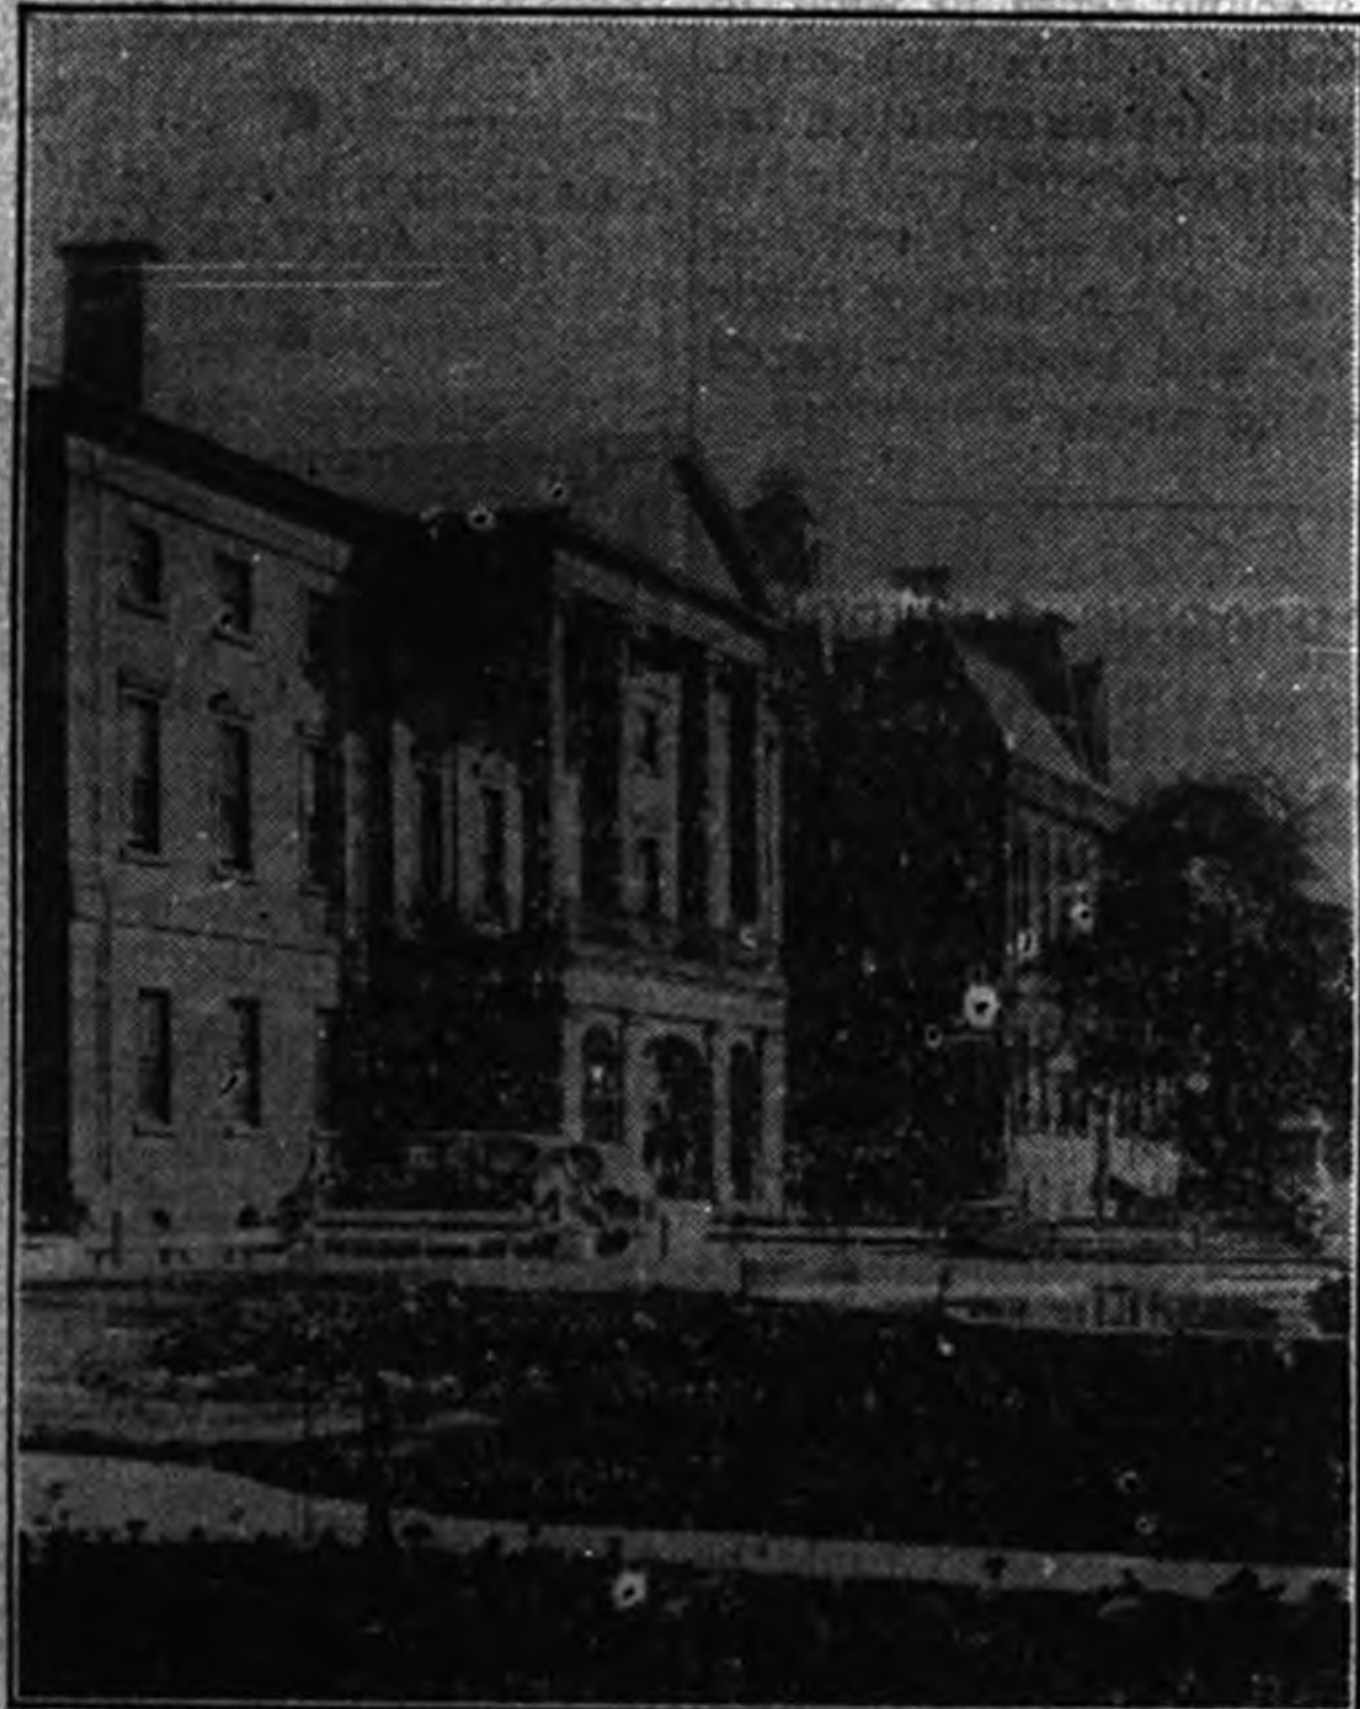

The statutes of Canada state that the King's birthday will be celebrated on whatever date it falls. It is a statutory holiday, and the London announcement states that King Edward VIII's birthday will be celebrated June 23.

STORIED SPOTS FROM SEA TO SEA

By W. J. Banks, B.A.

The Cradle of Confederation

Perhaps the smallest and least costly of Canada's provincial legislative buildings, that at Charlottetown has a leading place in the affections of the Dominion. For it is the first cradle of Confederation. Here delegates met in 1864 from the Maritime provinces to discuss the project of union. And, encouraged by this enterprise and foresight on the part of eastern statesmen, here came the representatives from the united province of Canada to make the conference of vital moment to all British North America. The Charlottetown Conference was the first of the three great meetings, and started the work that was completed at Quebec and Westminster.

Provincial Building, Charlottetown.

Prince Edward Island's provincial building cost $75,000 to build in 1847, and recent repairs required a similar sum. But the grey stone walls enclose treasures whose historical and sentimental value is beyond price. The Confederation Chamber itself, preserved as it was in the days of the Fathers of the Dominion, is one of the inmost sanctuaries of the nation. Portraits of all the Governors including Walter Patterson, first administrator of what was known then as the Island of St. John, adorn the walls. Patterson's granddaughter, born in Charlottetown, is remembered as one of the Island's most romantic figures. Margaret Gordon became the beloved of Thomas Carlyle, and the inspiration of some of his greatest work. She returned to the Island as the wife of a later Governor.

More recent treasures in the provincial building include the first and last flags flown over Canadian troops in France during the Great War. And history still is in the making within those venerable walls. Last year's legislative session created a precedent for modern parliaments when no official opposition faced the Government.

Saint Patrick's Supper Was Pleasing Event at Cushing

By Our Cushing Correspondent

The St. Patrick's Supper under auspices of the Board of Stewards of St. Mungo's Church, held in the Club Room, was a decided success. It was a plentiful repast followed by an enjoyable programme.

Almost all the features were of Irish flavor, with the exception of Mr. Keith Canning's song, which was much enjoyed, and Mr. I. Fuller's splendid rendering of Drummond's account of two hockey matches, a recitation by Miss Gertrude Bradford of Chute-a-Blondeau which was in a medley of dialects and several Lauder favorites by Mr. R. Dobbie. There was an Irish solo by Miss Catherine Cook full of fairies and shamrocks; Catherine also sang in trio with the Misses Constance Greig and Gladys Weldon; an Irish duet by Miss Gertrude Bradford and Mrs. W. Kirby accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Dewar of Chute-a-Blondeau; an Irish song also by Mr. John Buchanan; Irish recitations by Miss Whelehan; an Irish reading by Miss Audrey Watson; and "The Wearin' o' the Green" and other favorites in violin and piano duets by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gauley of Chute-a-Blondeau. Rev. J. W. Maclean gave, as the chairman's remarks, an interesting talk on St. Patrick's life and ideals. All this, with the tasteful decorations of shamrocks, Paddy hats, golden harps, etc., would have satisfied even St. Patrick himself, begorra, could he have been present!

The chance of war in respect of Germany's failure to honour her signature, whilst not precluded, is remote. The consequences are too great. The recent Japanese militarist coup is interpreted as denoting the impotence of the army to obtain greater economic results than the conservatism of their rulers warrant them to expect. War on the western front would be just what these military extremists need to force the issue in their own country; the very extent and seriousness of the conflagration will cause European diplomats to pause.

Two weeks ago a gentleman named Mr. Browder, who is described as the spokesman of the Communist party in America, gave an address on a nationwide broadcast system. Despite the warnings of several journals in the United States and general condemnation of everyone instrumental in allowing Mr. Browder on the air, the address was a very tame exposition of Communism. Mr. Browder, so we are told, learned his Communism from Eugene V. Debs, the socialist, and after a very checkered career became the leader of the movement in America (which, I take it, does not include Canada). He was speaking to millions of people, after receiving a veritable feast of publicity, yet he contented himself with denouncing the present economic system and declined to avail himself of the opportunity of expounding the tenets of his adopted child—Communism.

What Mr. Browder told his listeners in his castigation of decadent capitalism has really been the breeding ground upon which his system thrives and his ilk multiplies. Had there been no unemployment, no exploitation of the poor, no unequal distribution of wealth, no needless poverty, there would be no Communism. Our present economic system which Mr. Browder says produced those evils, is by no means perfect; but if a lone branch of the tree becomes rotten, we don't pull the whole tree up by the roots; neither do we destroy our horse if the animal becomes lame; nor cut off our hand if our finger becomes injured. Mr. Browder was very explicit about the evils of capitalism, but very impatient of the army to obtain greater economic results than the conservatism of their rulers warrant them to expect. War on the western front would be just what these military extremists need to force the issue in their own country; the very extent and seriousness of the conflagration will cause European diplomats to pause.

As I am separated from my wife, Evelyn Forget, by mutual consent, I give notice that I am not responsible for her debts. M26-2c. —G. O. Licop.

TRAIN CREW STAGE HUNT ESCAPED PIG

Pig-sticking may be all right as a sport but chasing a pig over snow-covered fields is in a class all by itself. An impromptu "hunt" was staged recently on Prince Edward Island when a porker escaped from a stock car and a Canadian National train crew started in pursuit. The pig led the train crew a merry chase but was finally rounded up and returned to the car.

"In Russia, Capone would have been shot . . . after which authorities would have sent home a note saying, Don't wait up for little Alf; he won't be home tonight." — George Bernard Shaw, English playwright.

Diastase
Diastase or amylase is an enzyme found in both animals and plants, which brings about the conversion of starch into sugar. It converts dextrin and glycogen. It is present in various parts of the higher plants, especially in the seeds, and also in the fungi, as yeasts and bacteria. It is the ptyalin of saliva, and as one of the enzymes in the pancreatic fluid is known as amylase. Diastase was first prepared from barley malt. The commercial products is commonly prepared from malt.

Snakes and Their Poison
Snakes are supposed to be immune to their own poison. This is true with regard to the ringhals, the spitting snake of South Africa, and this snake appears to be proof against the poison of even so deadly a reptile as the puff adder. The puff adder, also, is immune to its own poison. But the rule does not hold good all round, for the yellow cobra dies quickly if injected with its own poison, and even more quickly if bitten by a puff adder.

Treaty of Versailles. The Germans were forced to submit, sullen and dispirited. The hostility with which the Germans regarded this document lay dormant, until Hitler began to battle for power. This silver tongued orator talked himself into the hearts of the German people, and built himself a promenade of words to the highest office in the land. It is obvious that there could be no permanent peace based on the unjust articles of a treaty by which one side does all the give and the other side all the take.

Prior to the German occupation of the Rhineland, Germany offered to negotiate with France and Belgium for the formation of a mutual demilitarized zone on the basis of complete parity and proposed a non-aggression pact for twenty-five years. France, who had had quite enough of Germany's regard for treaties, refused to depend for her military and economic life on mere scraps of paper, and proceeded to enlist the aid of Russia by signing a new Locarno Pact with that country. Hitler's reply was to occupy the Rhine zone which has so astounded France that all army leave has been cancelled, and feverish activity prevails in all offices of state, as well as a wild scramble to sell francs. So great had been the rush of sales that the British Exchange Control had to step in and prevent the rate weakening by announcing they would take all the francs offered at 74-and-a-fraction for the pound sterling.

Some significant facts arise from Hitler's action. Germany must be in a greater state of preparedness than France was aware of. Germany's sudden interest in Japan, in retaliation for France's treaty with Russia, leads experts to wonder if something deeper than "interest" does not exist between those two great powers. Hitler could not ignore the fact that the League of Nations failed to stop Italy in Ethiopia, and could be confident that unity of action against Germany was even more unlikely. A special meeting of the League of Nations was called to deal with the situation, but the result was null. Germany's offer to re-enter the League has been received in England as a particularly favourable indication of continued peace, for which the British Empire is working so hard.

The chance of war in respect of Germany's failure to honour her signature, whilst not precluded, is remote. The consequences are too great. The recent Japanese militarist coup is interpreted as denoting the vague on the philosophy of Karl Marx, of Trotsky, and Lenin. He told us nothing about Communism's attitude towards private ownership, its claim over all children, its materialism, its denigration of marriage; its denial of God or Christianity, and its ruthless extermination of all who differ from it in political or economic thought. Such is Communism according to Marx and Lenin and such must be Communism according to Mr. Browder and his fellow Communists.

NOT MUCH IN THE HOPPER

The legislative mill has been grinding along without much stuff in the hopper; but that defect will soon be rectified. Notices of resolutions, bills, committees of inquiry and so forth are beginning to pile up. A hasty glance over the "bill of fare" for the immediate future as it stacked up last week-end immediately brings to light the following:

A committee to study the radio commission and its work.

A committee to study the wheat board and its work.

Legislation to bring the Bank of Canada under the control and ownership of the government.

A study of electoral and franchise machinery in Canada.

Legislation to set up a national Harbor Board.

Another amendment to authorize provinces to levy indirect taxes on retail sales, places of amusement, hotels etc.

Legislation to create a National Employment Commission.

Legislation to create a Veterans' Assistance Commission.

Legislation to provide for ill-treatment, development of natural and other resources and relief for unemployment.

Legislation to merge the Pension Appeal Court and the Pension Commission.

I have probably missed two or three, even at that; but it is obvious that a great deal of important work is now before the House. Add to these and any other such new legislation as may be prepared, a budget which will not be empty nor insignificant; a discussion of the Japanese trade arrangement; discussions of the Ottawa agreements and a few such current issues; and it is easily seen we shall be plugging away for some time. Talk of a short light session is obviously idle.

Montreal Loses Two Court Actions

Two suits on the question of tax-levies were lost recently by the City of Montreal. The first, an appeal from judgment of Superior Court, was dismissed by the Court of Appeal; it pertained to the licensing of peddlers, Montreal claiming $100 on each vehicle operated by a peddler, whereon the Superior Court ruled the levy could be collected only in the first instance, regardless of the number of conveyances used by one man. It was intimated the city loses $40,000 annually by this ruling. The higher court, however, dismissed the case, claiming it had not jurisdiction to hear questions involving only $100.

In Recorder's Court Justice G. H. Semple ruled on the interpretation of "domicile" and "residence" as applied to the city's income tax by-law. Montreal took action against a Cornwall merchant, for non-payment of the income tax, holding that he maintained in Westmount a house for his wife and children, the latter attending McGill University. His domicile or usual residence, however, remained in Cornwall, and he was not liable for the metropolitan impost, the court ruled.

Domicile is not to be assimilated to residence—Justice Semple stated. One is a right; the other a fact. Domicile and residence, when accurately used, are not convertible terms. They cannot be synonymous, for one may have more than one residence at the same time, but only one domicile.

Monaco, the little principality that is almost co-extensive with Monte Carlo, has been so hard hit by the depression that its once brilliantly garbed little army of 200 soldiers is gradually being eliminated and now numbers only eighty-seven. Soldiers reaching the retiring age are not being replaced.

Incident Which Inspired Life Devotion to Poor and Friendless

On the outer walls of Harrow School in England, there is a tablet which commemorates the vow made by young Anthony Ashley Cooper, afterwards the Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury. Ashley Cooper was a boy of fourteen when in 1815, the year of Waterloo, he saw a pauper's funeral winding its way up towards the Parish Church on the Hill. Four or five of a party of workmen were carrying, or attempting to carry, a rough sort of casket containing the earthly remains of a fellow-workman. They were intoxicated and were singing a rough song. Turning a steep corner, they collapsed, and the casket crashed to the ground. The coffin-bearers quarrelled and cursed. It was a sight which revealed to the sensitive heart of the boy something of the cruelty and vulgarity of the conditions in England at that time. "Good Heavens", he said to himself, "can this be permitted simply because the man was poor and friendless?" And to the poor and friendless from that hour he determined to devote his life.

Lord Shaftesbury became a pioneer in turning the thought of the British nation to the cruelty and peril of circumstance under which so many laboured and were oppressed. Health, sanitation, and recreation are three of the great amenities in which Lord Shaftesbury inspired and incessant importunity was as light to darkness. Florence Nightingale claimed that Shaftesbury's Commission "saved the British army," and, indeed, it had wider influence, and all England is debtor to the devotion of this great nobleman to the well-being of the people. His work for little children, and especially for the "chimney boys", is but one of the splendid examples he has bequeathed.

Died of Shock!

At an inquest on a Scotsman killed in a London street, evidence was given to show that he had plunged into the traffic to pick up what appeared to be a sixpence. Without retiring the jury returned a verdict of "Death from natural causes." However, before the Court was cleared a new witness arrived to state that the article the Scot had observed in the street was not a sixpence but a bottle cap, so the jury, again without retiring, altered their verdict to "Death from shock."

Old Fortress May Solve Inca Treasure Puzzles

Does the crumbling fortress of Macchu Picchu, where a desperate band of Incas made their last stand against Pizarro and his conquistadors in 1532, hold the secret of the fabulous Incan golden treasures? Is it a landmark or the secret trail along which the gold was carried out of the reach of the invading white men?

Macchu Picchu, its stone walls with their interlocking masonry still intact after hundreds of years, is a more or less familiar sight to travelers who brave the mountain trails into the Peruvian interior. The story of the Incan treasure, too, is familiar to every reader of history: How the "pandits," hungry for gold, held an Incan chief captive, and how he was to be ransomed with pure gold.

Part of the gold was delivered, but when the Incas learned of the Spaniards' treachery and the murder of their king, they turned and fled into the interior with millions of dollars' worth of gold bars.

The Basques Sneak Most Difficult of Languages

What is the most difficult language in the world to master? Prof. Watson Kirk Connell, of Wesley college, Winnipeg, Canada, has studied the problem for years and asserts that the language of the 800,000 Basques, who live in the Pyrenees mountains, between France and Spain, is the hardest to learn. More than that, he says its origin is unknown, learned professors having tried for decades to relate Basque to Hebrew, Japanese, Celtic, Arabic and other tongues, but without success.

Professor Connell, acquainted with 55 languages, asserts that Basque has such a complicated grammar that only the natives can handle it correctly.

The Basques do not merely button their words up the back like other people do," he says. "They also have prefixes and suffixes and infixes, and exceptions are more numerous than rules. By the time a word gets out, nobody can recognize it, not even its own mother."

In fact, the Basques are as much a mystery as the language they speak. They are a distinct ethnic group, rugged mountaineers, with customs, folklore and folksongs peculiarly their own.

50 Years Ago

April 2, 1886.

Mr. Simon MacKimmie brought to the editor on Tuesday morning two branches taken off a plum tree in full bloom. The blossoms were fully developed and rich in fragrance.

A lodge of Good Templars were instituted at Beech Ridge on March 27th., there being 27 charter members, the lodge being known as the "Primrose" Lodge with the following officers elected:—Bro. Angus D. Loynachan, Sister Mary Bell W.V.T.; Bro. Jas. Cowan, W.C.; Bro. J. W. Funcheon W. Sec'y; Sister Mary Cowan W.A.S.; Bro. Malcolm Smith W.F.S.; Sister Bella Bell, W.T.; Bro. T. Smith, W.M.; Sister W. Johnston, W.I.G.; Sister Mrs. Lizzie C. Loynachan, W.R.S.; Sister Jessie A. Drew, W.L.S.; Bro. W. G. Catton P.W.C.T.

The members of Christ Church, St. Andrews, are preparing to give a grand concert in the Town Hall, a special feature of the programme being the well known fairy tale "The Sleeping Princess."

On Saturday last the natives of Laurel were thrown into a state of excitement by a steam engine on the road, making for Lost River—Draw knives were instantly laid aside and shingles scattered in all directions and Jim Mc—and the four twins got wedged in the doorway from which they were extricated by strength of the wife and the other two stalwart sons, all to see a man riding a wild bal along the road.

30 Years Ago

March 30, 1906.

A memorial service for the late Walter Smith will be held in the Upper Lachute Church on Sunday morning.

Wanted to Rent.—A good comfortable house, convenient to paper mill and stores, rent not to exceed $6.00.

The Loynachan property on Clyde Street was sold at Public Auction by Malcolm Smith on Saturday last and realized the sum of $1,950. Mr. R. McIntyre bought the residence for $1,850 and Mr. D. Lapointe the spare lot for $100.

Much damage has resulted from the excessive rain of Tuesday. Wm. Berry and H. A. Blair suffered considerably, the water flooding their property over two feet, the Chinaman and Mr. Higgins making a hurried flit to the upper regions of their home.

The village of Carillon has been cast in sorrow through the death of E. J. Fagan. The boy, who was only 21 years of age, was killed by falling from the top of a high building on which he was working in Chicago. The sad news has caused deep sympathy for the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fagan.

Mr. Douglas Weir is receiving the congratulations of his many friends through his appointment to the position of the Government yacht, "Maison-neuve" in the service of Marine and Fisheries.

OLD FAITHFUL

Thomas Maud, 69-year-old mail driver on the ninth concession of an Ontario township, clutched the reins with lifeless hands as his horse and conveyance proceeded along their route.

Thomas Maud—death due to natural causes—perhaps typifies our ideal of that friendly and familiar figure, the rural mail driver. True, they are not all faithful unto death. Mail drivers are human, subject to the peculiarities of plain folks. But as a type they are unique; as the personification of loyal and cheerful service they have won a wholesome regard in the hearts of rural dwellers. . . to the extent that, in the passing of one obscure and remote public servant, Canadians somehow feel they have lost a friend.

A MODERN QUIXOTE

An Illinois man is defying a court order to send his children back to school; he objects to the approved manner of teaching letters, and prefers to instruct his family with a 38-sound phonetic alphabet all his own. . . They may get there, after the father's fashion, but these children will be handicapped in life to an extent not readily realized. . . Our friend would revolutionize education—but his manner of campaign rather resembles the misguided Quixote tilting at windmills.

KIND OF TALK THAT FOSTERS GOOD SENSE

Straight from the shoulder were Alderman W. H. Biggar's views expressed on the unemployment situation in Montreal. It was evident he had a bone to pick—there was politics in the sinew, and in the marrow an attempt at intimidation; he attacked them both, and his words make good reading.

Talk of social unrest on a "work or revolution" basis among Montreal's unemployed is sheer "political mountebankism," Ald. W. H. Biggar asserted in speaking of labor club threats made to the Executive Committee of the city. Those on relief would have been contentedly working long ago had not political fears and political ambitions thrust themselves between government and a system of "more dole but you've got to work," he said.

"I have too much confidence in the hard-headedness of the majority of the unemployed around here to be scared by any talk of revolt. Nor would I be stampeded into voting large works loans because someone stepped up and told me I was living on the brink of a volcano.

"The majority of the unemployed are decent people; they want to work; they have wanted to work for years and the only ones who stood between them and a dole-plus-work plan have been professional politicians, some of whom have had the policy of allowing the workless to sink as low as possible in the hope that would provide an opportunity for spectacular demonstrations.

"It is indecent that citizens should be required to eat the bread of distress through having to support professional politicians on the public payroll. You cannot make me believe that those without work do not understand the situation, and that it will not be long before they comprehend that the people they ought to beat are the people who pose as their saviours.

"No buying of votes of the unemployed is necessary. The unemployed of this district, in the great majority, are only trying to find the public administrators who will let them work; and when I say work I talk of economical and useful works, propositions under which there will be a bigger dole plus premium but with the obligation for those on relief to work.

"And the unemployed, too, know that huge works schemes costing millions of dollars come to an end just as little jobs do. And they are as capable as anyone else of asking themselves, just as Mayor Camillien Houde and we at the City Hall have asked ourselves for years, what could be done if this country run into huge indebtedness with the idea that we were going to spend ourselves out of the crisis. For, while it is easy to build up works schemes as big as your imagination, there always remains the question: And after—what?"

"I am sure that the majority of the unemployed stand with the majority of the City Council, in its conclusion expressed in a recent caucus that, first, there must be a better dole; second, that a better dole must mean obligatory work; third, that a combined work and dole scheme is the best for the unemployed and cheap enough for the taxpayers who pay the bills to be able to undertake it. It would mean more generous treatment for deserving unemployed, and deserving landlords."

—Some of the unemployed may not yet understand that costly works schemes must run the cities into bankruptcy. But it is certain that the true facts—re-iterated with the force and conviction of this particular statement—will do much to conduce a healthy and reasonable attitude among the jobless. . . More power to Mr. Biggar and his type!

LESS CRIME IN DOMINION

A steady decline in prison population in Canada was shown in the annual report of the Superintendent of Penitentiaries tabled in the House of Commons by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice.

Average population of Canadian penitentiaries for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1935, the period covered by the report, was 3,895 compared with 4,358 in 1933-34, and 4,425 in 1932-33.

Announcement is expected soon of the appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate Canadian penitentiaries. This was one of the planks in the Liberal election platform.

Of the 3,552 prisoners in Canadian penitentiaries last March 31, it was shown 999 were total abstainers, 2,191 temperate, and 362 intemperate. There were 1,009 serving sentences of two years and 191 serving life.

CHARTER PRESENTED TO LACHUTE "100 CLUB"

Election of the officers for Lachute occupied considerable time, resulting in the following appointments:

President, J. E. Dumais; 1st. Vice-President, Dr. J. M. Drew; 2nd. Vice-President, J. A. Gordon; Secretary, H. Parkinson; Treasurer, Paul Roy; Directors—Georges Methot, G. McQuat, W. K. McArthur, T. D. Titman, R. Gravel.

The charter, duly signed by charter members and International officials, was presented by Centurion Dunlop to the new Lachute president. The charter of the Brownsburg club was entrusted to Mr. Robbins until completion of the organization—in which both the local and the International representatives pledged warm support.

The good humor of the gathering was nowhere more evident than around the auction board, conducted by Mr. H. Parkinson. Here articles kindly contributed by local merchants were sold as an initial venture to augment the funds. The sale was an unqualified success—except in one instance when the auctioneer disposed of a parcel which, having been checked at the hotel lobby, had found its way by mistake to the banquet room!

Mr. Parkinson, incidentally, voiced the thanks of the local club to the visitors who had contributed to the success and enjoyment of this occasion. President J. E. Dumais called for the singing of the National Anthem and O Canada, after which the meeting dispersed.

Visiting Centurions who assisted at this gathering included the following gentlemen:

Grant Dunlop, Almonte, International President; J. H. Leedham, District Governor for Quebec. . . From the Montreal "100 Club"—W. L. Hunter (Pres.), F. C. Ford (1st. Vice Pres.), G. Laverriere (2nd. Vice Pres.), Colman J. Lewis (Secretary, also Hon. Treas. of the International Assn.), S. Maloney (Director), Alf Ecclestone (Past Pres.), E. Phil McKenna, A. Mignot, and the International Organizers—P. L. English, Jack Lawson, Clement B. Lavigne. . . From Carleton Place, "Baldy" Welsh (Past Pres.). . . From Almonte, Mr. Dunlop (above mentioned), Dr. Wm. Johnstone (Sec'y.), J. B. Illigworth (Director), Jack Lindsay (Director).

While the judges were awarding the prizes, music was provided by a male quartette and the two instrumental trios. The awards were made as follows:

- 1st. Prize for Singing—Oswald Corrier; 2nd. Jacques Ladouceur; 3rd. Mrs. F. Robertson.
- 1st. prize for Instrumental Music—Jacques Giroux.
- 1st. prize for Dancing—Oswald Rockburn.
- 1st. prize for Recitation—Mrs. A. Macdonell.
- 1st. prize for Imitations—Baptiste Larocque.

Miss Janet Watson deserves much credit for the able way in which she organized this very enjoyable entertainment.

ANNUAL W. I. MEETINGS REPORTED

Lakefield also held their annual meeting this month and elected officers and convenors for the year, also delegates to the Provincial and County Conventions. The new program for the year's work which had been made out was presented and accepted at this meeting.

Lachute elected new officers and convenors; paid their fees as the roll call; voted a sum of money to a needy family who had sickness in the home; elected delegates for the Provincial and County Conventions, and also heard the report from their treasurer that an appreciable sum had been realized from "Amateur Night."

Pioneer conducted the election of officers, and also heard reports from different convenors.

Morin Heights planned an "Amateur Night" at which it is hoped to bring out as much talent as possible—singers, dancers, players, etc., particularly among the children. In regard to Legislation, extracts were read from the Municipal Code as to persons eligible to hold municipal offices, assessors, etc. A vote taken as to the most important work featured during the year, resulted in Home Economics heading the list, with Education and Better Schools voted second.

Upper Lachute - East End held a novelty sale at the close of their annual meeting, where they heard convenors' reports, made out the coming year's programme and elected new officers and convenors. Twelve members were present.

Follow the announcements of Rex Theatre bookings. There's one feature really too good to miss. Coming April 12-15—Charlie Chaplin in Modern Times.

Says Quagga Is Extinct;

Creature Once Plentiful

Beyond all doubt the quagga is utterly extinct, in the opinion of Dr. Graham Renshaw, British naturalist.

This beautiful South African creature resembled in proportions a stout pony. With rufous brown body changing to fulvous posteriorly, its head was striped with brown in zebra fashion. Its neck was banded with broad stripes which continued along the body to the haunches, where they broke up into vague lines and spots. The legs and tail were white.

Only 16 in all were ever transported alive to Europe and two of these harnessed to a smart equipage in London attracted much attention in the middle of the Seventeenth century.

In its day, writes Doctor Renshaw in the Journal of the British Society for the Preservation of the Fauna of the Empire, the quagga graced the South African veldt in almost unbelievable numbers.

Unhappily, it was scarcely known before it began to vanish. Thomas Pringle, the South African poet and a friend of Sir Walter Scott, lamented in 1820 that the quaggas and hartbeests had almost totally disappeared from the pastures of Albany which they had formerly enlivened with their numbers. By 1836 it only occurred in Cape Colony on the borders though still plentiful further north; in 1850 the hide-hunting Boers began to exterminate the game for their skins and the last two quaggas of the Great Karoo desert were shot in 1865.

Bloodless Mental Duels

The Mission Indians of California surpass the oriental mystics of India in their use of psychic power, some of the medicine men having been killed in bloodless mental duels. Indians supposedly endowed with special psychic powers believe they must inherit the power from their fathers, who "hurl the power from heart to heart."

SPRING FLOODS IN THE LAURENTIAN AREA

Henri Desjardins, unmarried, had been for 12 years in the company's employ as a lineman.
He was 30 years of age. On being despatched to repair the power line, where poles had been broken by ice movement in the fields adjoining the river, he had asked a friend, W. Johnston, to accompany him. The men reached the flooded area, and rowed out in a boat to reach the broken poles. The boat, however, capsized and both men were pitched into the icy water.
Johnston, a good swimmer, managed to make his way to land, but his companion was not so good a swimmer and by the time Johnston had summoned aid from neighbors some distance away, Desjardins had disappeared.

The Gatineau Power Company at St. Jerome was notified and men were sent to conduct a search for the victim's body.
The search was made difficult by the fact that the current is very strong in that area and the river had overflowed its banks on both sides for a great distance.

Dr. J. R. Brais of St. Jerome, coroner of the district, was also notified of the drowning and will be summoned as soon as the body is recovered.

WASHOUT ON C.P.R. ... TOWN WITHOUT ELECTRICITY

Later, a washout on the C.P.R. line between St. Jerome and Montreal held up communication by rail with Montreal for one day. Damage, which consisted of a quarter of a mile of line being washed out, was estimated to be about $3,000.
On the C.N.R. line between St.
Jerome and Joliette it was necessary to remove the ties on the bridge at Lachapelle when the North River started on a rampage.

Residents and factory owners in St. Jerome along the section of the North River watched the condition of the flood with trepidation. Many farmers suffered property damage from rising rivers and lakes.

Carrying tons of ice along with it, the North River threatened the bridge between Ste.
Adele and Mont Rolland, which was weakened to such an extent that it was necessary to close it to traffic. Ste. Adele was over 12 hours without electric light when trees fell across the wires leading into the town.

Warning to proceed at their own risk was given to motorists using the road from that area in to Montreal.

"You are working too hard",
said the doctor.
"I know it," sighed the patient, "but it is the only way I can keep up the easy payments."

Ancient Builders' Jokes Were Revealed in Stone

The builders of the old churches in England were not so serious, but that they now and then perpetrated a joke, even in stone. On more than one of their creations, notes a writer in the Montreal Herald, they carved in relief a scene representing a monk preaching solemnly to a flock of geese. The same humorous spirit is sometimes to be detected in the domestic architecture of early times.

Just upon the boundaries of Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire formerly stood an old rambling farmhouse. The living room was long and low, and on the center that went across the ceiling was inscribed this legend: "If you are cold, go to Hertfordshire."

This seemingly inhospitable invitation was explained by the fact that one-half of the room was in one county and one-half in the other. The fire place was in Hertfordshire.

Galaxy and Metagalaxy

With the rapid growth of astronomy its terms have often changed their meanings. Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory, recently defined some of them as follows: galaxy refers to a star system of the spiral nebula order of size (greater than star clusters), like the Great Nebula in Andromeda; super-galaxies are systems of two or more galaxies apparently revolving around a common center or otherwise acting as a unit;
the metagalaxy is the entire system of galaxies. It differs from the universe in that the latter presumably also contains "radiations, laws of nature, consciousness, etc."—Literary Digest.

NEW DISTRICT SUPER- VISOR HERE FOR THE BELL TELEPHONE

Lachute and other important telephone-using communities in the Laurentian area come un-

CASTING REFLECTIONS

A mirror will bring out that priceless smile of youth.

YOU may think you have exhausted the supply of picture possibilities in your home but the chances are that there are countless interesting subjects you have completely overlooked.

It is the unusual that attracts attention but it is necessary to use your eyes and a little imagination and ingenuity to ferret out these exceptional views, angles, etc., and get pictures that show individuality.

Mirror pictures, for instance, are intriguing and offer unlimited possibilities if one will do a little experimenting. Let's take the above picture as an example.

When focusing for reflected images only, it is necessary to add the distance from the mirror to the subject, to the distance from the mirror to the lens of the camera and then set the focus accordingly.

If it is desired to include the subject in the picture with the reflected image the focus should be set for the distance from the mirror to the lens. The smaller the lens opening the greater the depth of field and the sharper will be both images. Of course, the nearer the subject is to the mirror the less is required in the matter of "depth".

In the picture above, the subjects were about two feet and the camera six feet from the mirror. As both the subject and reflected image were to be included in the picture the focus was set at six feet. The diaphragm was set at f/16 and a photoflash furnished the light.

If the figures and camera were in a position to show only the reflected image in the picture being taken the focus would then have been set at the eight foot distance mark.

The diagram shows position of subjects, camera and photoflash when the above picture was taken. After setting the focus of your camera at the proper distance and the diaphragm at f/16 set the shutter for time exposure—"T". Do not have any bright lights in the room. Place photoflash lamp in ordinary floor lamp within reaching distance from the camera, as designated in diagram. Be sure to remove the shade from the lamp. Take your position at the camera and caution your subjects not to move. Press the cable release to open your shutter and immediately turn on the photoflash and then quickly close the shutter—and the picture has been taken. Photoflash lamps are made in two sizes, costing 15 and 25 cents each. For this type of picture the 25 cent size should be used.

In amateur photography experimenting becomes the spice of life and you will be surprised at the interesting effects you will get in working out "stunt" pictures on gloomy, rainy days when outdoor activities are taboo. Results in some instances may be rather grotesque but you will have a lot of inexpensive amusement and pictures that show individuality. Anyone can take the ordinary run of pictures but it requires a little ingenuity to get the unusual. That is what you should "shoot" for.

UNUSUAL SWEDISH CRUISER VISITS ENGLAND

The arrival at Gravesend, England, of the Swedish ship "Gotland" caused a good deal of excitement among the local inhabitants. The "Gotland" is a combined cruiser and seaplane-carrier with a displacement of 4,600 tons. She carries six 6-inch guns, six 21-inch torpedo tubes, and eight seaplanes. Our picture shows part of the "Gotland" with some of the seaplanes on the deck.

SPRING FUN

I love to watch my daddy
Tap the great big maple trees
When the sun shines warmly overhead,
In spite of the playful breeze.

I hold the cans and spouts for him,
And listen to the squeak
Of the bit as it bites into the trees
By the ice-cold, tumbling creek.

And watches all we do,
An old crow sits up on a tree
I expect, to see if the work's done right;
You'd almost think he knew.

But best of all is the taffy feed
When the bunch comes up from school,
And we pass our teacher the empty dish
And all shout "April Fool".

MRS. BLUE BIRD

The sound of rushing water filled the woods where the Blue Bunnie family lived, and the twittering of small birds who had spent the winter quite near awakened them in the morning; but although a number of days had passed since the Wild March Hare left to tell Mrs. Blue Bird that it was spring, she had not appeared. Mr. Blue Bunnie spent the greater part of his time watching for her. Mrs. Blue Bunnie used to get quite cross about it, but her crossness had no effect on her husband, who just grinned and wiggled his ears at her, then hopped off to his look-out place, a warm sunny bank by the pussy-willow tree.

The little blue bunnies often followed him, then played leapfrog and hide-and-seek close by. Mr. Bunnie was so used to the soft thumping noises they made as they played around, that they did not waken him. Mr. Blue Bunnie meant to watch intently for Mrs. Blue Bird, but the warm sun made him drowsy, and before he realized it he was sleeping soundly, not aware that his children were playing contentedly about him.

Mrs. Blue Bunnie did not worry about them. She was quite too busy house cleaning; besides, she knew that they were with their father.

The little Blue Bunnies were quite anxious to see Mrs. Blue Bird without her spying them. They had no idea what she would be like, but knew that she was a friend of the Wild March Hare, and although they had had some great fun mocking him they were not anxious to meet him again; and if his friend were like him, they would be afraid of her too. Expecting a whirlwind of that sort they were quite surprised on hearing a soft, sweet whistle right above them, and looking they saw Mrs. Blue Bird peering down at them with her keen bright eyes. "You're smart youngsters, aren't you—to have such a sleepy-head for a father!" she chuckled. "I passed this way some days ago, and he was sleeping in the sun. Now, here I am back again and he is still sleeping in the sun. I had a notion to tell Red Back the fox, where he was, just to see him jump!"

"He—he—he isn't sleeping" quavered the youngest Blue Bunnie, who did not like to hear his father called a sleepy-head. "He—he's just resting."

"He isn't sleeping, eh!" chuckled Mrs. Blue Bird. "Just watch!" Softly she flew down beside Mr. Blue Bunnie and hopped with funny little hops, around and around him, at last flitting softly to rest on one of his big ears which was lying limply over his shoulder. Mr. Blue Bunnie shivered, stirred a bit, then lay still.

"I think," said Mrs. Blue Bird, "that this nice soft furry ear would make a splendid place for a nest. It is already lined."

The little Blue Bunnies snorted in fear when they heard her say that; two of them bounded off, as fast as they could to tell their mother what Mrs. Blue Bird had said. The others stood up on their hind feet and looked wildly around them, as if in search of someone to come to their assistance—until the youngest little Blue Bunnie suddenly thought of a plan to awaken his father. In a moment he had hopped over to him and was thump, thumping him fiercely with his little heels.

With a scowl Mr. Blue Bunnie awakened up and looked around him. There was nothing in sight but his children, but he had a funny, tickling sensation in one ear, and very sore ribs where the youngest bunnie had been kicking him. He was just going to say something very cross when a sweet whistle, almost like the laughter of fairies, floated down to him from the birch tree just across from where he lay. Mistress Blue Bird!" he shouted, "I am so glad that I did not miss you, but aren't you late this year?"

"No, I am early," mocked Mistress Blue Bird, "Too early for you. I passed by here long ago. I have been all over my route and back again."

Mr. Blue Bunnie looked at her rather stupidly. He did not seem to know what to say. "Why did you come back?" he asked.

Admiral Saito was appointed Chief Scout of Japan in June last, and had been closely associated with the Movement since 1932. He was frequently seen in Scout uniform.

CARDINAL INVESTS FRENCH-CANADIAN KING'S SCOUTS

The investiture of five French-Canadian "King's Scouts" was made in an impressive ceremony at St. Coeur de Marie Church, Quebec, by His Eminence Cardinal Villeneuve, in the presence of 300 members of the Federation of Catholic Scouts of Quebec. It was the first time His Eminence had taken part in a Boy Scout ceremony.

AN ALL-INDIA SCOUT COMMISSIONER

A Scouting appointment of important possibilities was that of India's first Chief Scout Commissioner. The new leader of all-India Scouting is the Nawab of Chatari, Sir Muhammad Admad Said Khan, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., M.B.E., first Indian Governor of the United Provinces and former distinguished Minister and Home Member of the United Provinces Government. The appointment was made by Earl Willingdon, Viceroy and Chief Scout for India.

CANADA'S INTERNATIONAL SCOUT TROOPS

The international aspect of Scouting in our larger centres was illustrated by the number of Scouts of foreign parentage who took part in Toronto's third annual Scout collection of used clothing for the Neighborhood Workers' Association. They included Chinese, Polish, Russian and Czechoslovakian Scout troops, the troop of the Church of All Nations, of boys of various other nationalities, and the smart troop of coloured Scouts of Grant African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Gossips Condemned to Sight-Seeing Tour

Gossips in the early days of Canada were severely dealt with as our records in Nova Scotia would indicate. An old court record of the session of 1798 records two women of Liverpool, N.S., as being sentenced for gossiping in the following words: "You Margaret T. and Eliza B., Jr., having this day been convicted of publishing a scandalous and malicious libel from hence you are both to be put in a cart, with the following incriptions on your breast and back, viz: 'Convicted of a scandalous and false libel', and to be led to the pump in King Street and then to proceed through Water Street as far as the middle of George Street and thence to proceed back to the corner of John St. and thence to be conducted to your respective places of abode."

Notwithstanding that their "sight-seeing" tour was in the nature of a punishment, there is a tradition that at the end of the drive one of the women thanked the police officer for having given her such a fine view of the town.

PREVENT DANGERS OF CONSTIPATION*

"Bulk" in ALL-BRAN Is Gentle in Action

Common constipation is largely due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. You fail to get your internal exercise. Millions of people have found that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies soft "bulk" with satisfactory results.

Tests in nutrition laboratories demonstrate that the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN can be used with the utmost confidence. Naturally, those few individuals with diseased or highly sensitive intestines should not take "bulk" in any form—either in leafy vegetables or in bran.

Unlike cathartics, ALL-BRAN is natural in its action—nor does this food lose its effectiveness with continued use. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and cleanses the intestines, promoting normal and healthful elimination.

Two tablespoonfuls of this delicious cereal, served with milk or cream, are usually sufficient. Enjoy it also in cooked dishes.

Help your family keep well. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Hints for Homebodies

By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

LIVE IN THE PRESENT

Mary Pickford is quoted as saying that she used to live in the future; then after her mother died she lived in the past; now she is living in the present, day by day. There are too many people who are so wrapped up in the past, or who are living in the future so much that they cannot recognize and enjoy the happiness of the present. I know one woman who spends most of her life planning for the future. She is a dreamer but withal a very practical dreamer, as she does make many of her plans come true. If they never come true, I believe she actually has more pleasure in her plans than most people have in their accomplishments. She is an extreme case of living in the future but a great many people look so far ahead that they never see the present. Then there are those who live in the past. One of the most commonly met cases is the person of an old family whose importance has lessened. They are so busy thinking of the days that are gone and so wrapped up in their family importance that they cannot recognize their status in the present and do anything about it. Just at present we all come in contact with people who have had money and who have little if any now. Many of them, the women particularly, are so sorry for themselves that they simply sit down beside their grief and wallow in it. If we could but make a few wise plans for the future, view with pride the glories of the past, while we are living day by day, and recognize each day's happiness to the full.

THE DIET IN INFLUENZA

Many of us have to care for a patient who has influenza with its attending high temperature and consequent weakness. We can do a great deal to help our patient by giving the proper food. Small, frequent feedings, of easily digested food, should be given. When the temperature is high, the doctor will order a liquid diet and sometimes we do not know just what to give. Here are suggestions for a day's food on liquid diet. Breakfast should consist of a glass of fruit juice, a glass of milk and gruel made with 1/2 cup of strained cooked cereal, 1/2 cup of 20% cream, and 1 tablespoon sugar. At 10 a.m. a glass of milk. At 12 a 1/2 glass of fruit juice and a cream soup made with a strained vegetable and 1/2 cup cream, and 1 glass of milk. At 3 p.m. an egg nog and 1/2 glass of fruit juice. At six an egg nog, 1 glass milk, 1 glass fruit juice. At bedtime 1 glass milk. When other foods are added and the diet is known as a light diet, it is wise to depend on fruit juice to add calories and supply vitamins and minerals. This may be done most easily by keeping a glass of ice cold fruit by the bedside to use in place of water. A small amount of sugar may be added. The importance of frequent small feedings cannot be over-emphasized. Fruit juice or milk every 2 hours is a good rule.

ROLLS

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 cakes compressed yeast.
- 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 2 eggs
- 4 cups flour
- 3 cups flour

So few people make bread these days that any yeast mixture seems to be mysterious. Yet bread and rolls are not hard to make. This recipe is a particularly easy one. Crumble the yeast cakes and mix with the lukewarm water, being sure that the water is not too hot, as hot water will kill the yeast. The time-honored test is to put a drop of the water on the

Mothering Sunday Observed at Grenville and Calumet

"Mothering Sunday" was observed at St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, and Trinity Church Calumet, last Sunday. At Calumet flowers were placed on the altar by a number of ladies in memory of their mothers and the special hymn, "Come sing in praise of Mother", was sung by the congregation. At both churches the Rector conducted the service and preached. Special prayers for mothers were said. The feature of the observance was the presentation of Simnel Cakes to the mothers at the close of the service in each church. These cakes were made by a Grenville lady who combined ancient and modern recipes very effectively.

Associated Country Women of the World to Hold Conference

A meeting of the Associated Country Women of the World is to take place in Washington in June. The Association, although comparatively young, has already accomplished a vast amount of useful and practical work, which is doing a great deal to promote international good fellowship and an intelligent interest in all that concerns woman's work. The Association is an international alliance of country women interested in the work of the Women's Institutes, and its outlook covers all that pertains to the interests of women dwellers in rural parts of the world.

Lady: "What caused you to become a tramp?"

Tramp: "The family physician, mum. He advised me to take long walks after meals, and I've been walking after 'em ever since."

wrist and if it feels about the same temperature as the wrist, it is right. If not, add hot or cold water as necessary and test again. Scald the milk and add sugar, salt and butter. When this mixture has cooled to lukewarm add the well-beaten eggs, and the yeast. Sift in 4 cups flour and beat well. Sift in the remaining 3 cups and stir until well blended. If the mixture gets too stiff to stir easily with a spoon, it may be blended with the hands. Cover this and keep in the refrigerator or other cool place until ready to use. This will keep for several days but I usually make it in the morning and let stand until afternoon. To make into rolls, turn the mixture out on a floured board. If you want to make Parkerhouse Rolls, roll to a thickness of about three-quarters of an inch, cut into rounds and brush with melted butter, and fold over. No matter what shape I make my rolls I like to cut them with a cutter so as to get them a uniform size. Place rolls on a buttered pan, putting them well apart, if you want a crusty roll. Baking in muffin pans gives a uniform shape (do not put Parkerhouse Rolls in muffin pans). If you like a sweet roll, reserve about a quarter of the mixture and roll to a half-inch thickness. Spread thickly with brown sugar and shake a little cinnamon over it. Roll as for jelly roll and cut in half-inch slices. These may be put on a buttered pan or in muffin tins. I like the muffin tins. Some of the brown sugar drops out in rolling and I dip the roll in this sugar and it makes a butter-scotch mixture. Put the rolls in a warm place, cover with a clean towel and then a blanket. If possible use a thermometer under the blanket and have the rolls between 85 and 90 degrees. Let them rise until doubled in bulk, which will take around two hours at this temperature. Bake in a moderately hot oven of 450 degrees from fifteen to twenty minutes. The time of baking depends on the size of the rolls and the closeness of placing on the pans. The closer they are, the longer they take to bake.

The Week's Fashion News

By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

Any day is a likely day to be caught in the rain—or in soft, wet snow, but fashionables are not caring this spring. They've taken to new bright oiled-silk umbrellas, and how they like them! Bright blues, red, greens, yellows, etc., and many with a small white print on either the bright or deeper tones. Gay? . . . Of course, and they'll make you almost welcome any showers that come along.

But after the rain comes the sunshine and the need of all those smart new togs you've been planning for Easter. This week let us consider the youngster's chapter in the fashion story. Like their elders, they look their best in tailoring that's British in line and finish. Neat little fitted-waist coat types for wee lassies . . . fitted or loose-swinging swagger coats and suits for the growing girl . . . and the usual casual "like-father's" topcoat and suit for enterprising young lads.

Tweeds and soft fleece-like woollens abound and these, like the tailoring, are either of English and Scottish origins or converge to look as though they were. Parents will also be glad to hear of their sturdy qualities, which guarantee more than one season's good hard wear, provided the young rascals aren't out and getting all tangled up in the wheels of their favourite "car" or the like.

Bright colors are even more important than last year. By bright, we mean tones with plenty of life but nothing harsh about them. Rich greens and soft corals, any number of blues and tannish browns, etc.—all of them flattering to young complexions.

Coat and hat sets are very popular and many of the new spring numbers have a little purse in the shape of a Scottie to match. Separate hats in felt stick to the conventional brimmed types, which may be worn up at the back and down in front, or up all the way 'round, as best suits the face it frames.

Brother-and-Sister outfits are so very smart, particularly in sailor themes and in the new colored linens.

Dresses? They're prettier than ever. So many new designs and colorings . . . frills, nique collars . . . fitted waistlines and full shirred effects. You could choose dozens for any fortunate little girl and not have any two alike. Washable cottons are best ranging from closely woven ginghams and prints to sheer voiles and crisp, dainty organdies. If you are smart with the needle, a trip through any of the Children's Departments would provide a wealth of ideas you would enjoy working out for yourself.

Shoes continue practically the same. Straps and ties, with flat or medium heels. Built for wear and above all for comfort. No child looks happy or attractive if her feet hurt, and it's no to every mother to see that her youngster is properly "fitted"—with plenty of room for busy young toes and plenty of support where it is most needed. Choose makes you can depend on, for it is bad business to put kiddies into shoes not absolutely right in every way.

Growing girls are enthusiastic about the separate skirt and a whole wardrobe of jackets and sweaters and blouses to go with it. Like their older sisters they assemble them in smart colour combinations, as grey, green and tan—navy, white and red—black, pink and violet. They take pride in informing mother that the assembling process is so very inexpensive when the various pieces are bought separately.

FASHION SCRIBE.

"TIED DOWN"

"They tie you down," a woman said. Whose cheeks should have been flaming red. With shame to speak of children so. "When babies come you cannot go in search of pleasure with your friends. And all your happy wandering ends. For babies make a slave of you."

I looked at her and said, "Tis true. The things you like you cannot do. That children make a slave of you. And tie you down with many a knot. But have you never thought of what it is of happiness and pride. That little babies have you tied? Do you not miss the greater joys. That come with little girls and boys?"

"They tie you down to laughter rare. To hours of smiles and hours of care. To nights of watching and to fears—Sometimes they tie you down to tears. And then repay you with a smile. That makes your troubles all worth while. They tie you fast to chubby feet. And cheeks of pink and kisses sweet."

"They fasten you with cords of love To God Divine who reigns above. They tie you whereso'er you roam. Unto the little place called home. And over sea or railroad track. They tug at you and bring you back. The happiest people in the town. Are those the babies have tied down."

"Oh, go your selfish way and free. But hampered I would rather be. Yes, rather than a king's crown I would be what you term 'tied down'. Tied to dancing eyes and charms. Held fast by chubby dimpled arms. The fettered slave of girl and boy. And win from them earth's finest joy."

From a Mother.

Canadian High School Girls to Visit Great Britain

Since the inception of the Overseas Education League, over 7,000 teachers and students have visited Great Britain, France and certain continental countries under very privileged conditions. However, 1935 was the first year students of the High Schools have been included in the programme, and this proved so successful that this feature of the League's programme will be developed on a much wider basis in 1936. The pioneer group of 90 students was drawn almost wholly from Montreal and Toronto; in 1936 it is hoped that all parts of Canada will be represented, by students from the largest possible number of Secondary Schools, public and private. This year the programme is specially organized for girls, to whom it will be wholly reserved.

At the Empire Holiday School of English, at Eastbourne, inaugurated by the late Mr. Rudyard Kipling last summer, it is intended that the Canadian students shall be joined by girls from British schools and from other parts of the Empire. Included in the many interesting items will be a visit to Carlisle, where the students will be the guests of the city; later there will be a stay in Malvern where, by invitation of the Head Mistress, the students will be guests at the well known Malvern Girls' College.

Applicants must be over 14 and under 19 on July 10th., and must be students of Secondary Schools. No application can be considered unless approved by the School Principal. A programme will be sent on application to the Secretary, 70 Sun Life Building, Montreal.

The monthly meeting of the Girls' Guild was held at the home of Miss Lillian Bennett last week, at which, among other business items, it was decided to put on a three-act play on May 23rd.

The Y. P. S. took advantage of the little snow we have left, and held a sleigh drive last Wednesday evening to the home of Miss Laura Staniforth, where an enjoyable social evening was spent. Afterwards the hostess and her mother served a delicious supper.

For some time past a group of men around town have been discussing the question of having an English-speaking doctor in the community. They are glad to report that they have a prospect, a young man of unusual experience and ability. It has been decided to hold a public meeting in Staniforth's Hall next Tuesday, March 31st., for the purpose of discussing the matter, and the possibility of helping this young physician to establish himself financially within the municipality. All are invited to attend. No admission will be charged.

IN MEMORIAM

MASSON—In loving memory of Alexander Masson, who departed this life March 23rd., 1931. Gone but not forgotten — Inserted by his loving wife and children.

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who passed away March 26th., 1930. Ever remembered by husband and daughters.

TODD—In loving memory of dear Lizzie, who passed away March 27th., 1922.

The month of March again is here, For us the saddest of the year, Her memory is as dear today As the hour she passed away.

Father, Mother, Sisters and Brother.

BROWN—In loving memory of Robert J. Brown, Jr., accidentally killed at Lachute on March 23rd., 1935.

In Lachute cemetery peacefully sleeping, In a lonely silent grave, There rests in dreamless slumber One we loved but could not save. The flowers that grow upon his grave, May wither and decay, But our love for the one who lies beneath, Shall never fade away. Inserted by his father.

BROWNSBURG

Miss Irene Fox spent last week-end the guest of her mother at Kilmar, Que.

Mrs. W. McAdam was the week-end guest of Mrs. W. Horner.

A card party was given in honour of Mrs. W. MacGibbon, who celebrated her birthday on Friday last.

Prospects for the sugar season, in this locality at least, are far from bright. The weather has been very unfavorable and so far the run of sap has been scanty—but here's hoping.

Abyssinians Inhabited

Present Home for Ages

The Abyssinians, the Ethiopians of the ancient world, have inhabited their present mountainous tableland surrounding the headwaters of the Nile since before the dawn of history. In early times, says a correspondent in the New York Herald Tribune, they were more or less connected with the Egyptians of the upper Nile and afterward assimilated incursions of the Hebrews at the time of the Egyptian captivity. The Phoenicians from whom they are said to have derived their alphabet, and the Greeks who had planted colonies along their coast. Christianity was introduced in the fourth century and gradually spread throughout the land. This primitive faith, mixed with many customs of Judaism, is the principal religion there today.

In the seventh century the Mohammedans conquered all of Egypt and the Abyssinian coastal possessions. The Abyssinians were driven into the interior mountain fastnesses, there to remain nearly a thousand years until their very existence was almost forgotten. About 1500 a Portuguese expedition seeking a mythical eastern Christian kingdom penetrated the country and entered into a relationship sufficiently friendly to permit the establishment of missions. To these Portuguese belong the credit for many churches, bridges and other public works constructed at the time and also to the fanatical zeal of their priests must be attributed the destruction of the ancient literature the Abyssinians are said to have had. This domination of the missionaries lasted nearly a century and a half, when religious disputes arose and the Portuguese were driven out. The Abyssinians again retiring to remain in seclusion until about the middle of the last century.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Miss Elizabeth Walsh spent the week-end in St. Andrews.

After spending the winter months in Montreal, Mrs. W. Lamb has re-opened her home here.

Innis Canning, of Stonefield, spent a day in St. Andrews last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cairns spent Monday in Montreal.

The North River is clear of ice for some distance below the falls in St. Andrews. Last week the ice and high water did considerable damage along the water front here. Several garages, outbuildings and cellars were flooded.

Owing to impassable roads, Rev. Mr. Macaskill was unable to make his weekly trip to Pte. Fortune and St. David's on Sunday last.

Mrs. Daniel Kingsbury passed away at her home here on Thursday last. The funeral service was held in the Anglican Church, of which she was a member. Rural Dean Booy officiated and the pall-bearers were Messrs. Gilbert Hamilton, E. C. Calder, S. Albright and H. Leroy. Interment was in the Carillon Cemetery. Mrs. Kingsbury's niece, Miss Leroy, came from St. Eugene to attend the funeral. Others present were her nephews, Mr. H. Leroy, Mr. G. Albright and Mr. A. Kingsbury, all of St. Eugene.

The Good Fellowship Circle of the United Church, in conjunction with the Women's Guild, held a banquet in honor of Mr. M. Almer Snowdon on Thursday, March 19.

At the close of the very enjoyable supper, the toastmaster, Rev. B. N. Wales, proposed a toast to His Majesty King Edward VIII, and all joined in the singing of the National Anthem. In proposing a toast to "The Country", Col. Hooker referred to the part that Canada plays in the life of the Empire. This toast was responded to with the first verse of "O Canada."

Miss A. L. Wales proposed a toast to "The Church", and toasts to the societies represented were proposed by Miss M. Hooker and Miss Alice Hooker and responded to by Miss Jean Brown and Miss C. Hooker.

Mr. Macaskill gave the toast to the guest of the evening, which was gracefully replied to by Mr. Snowdon.

MORIN HEIGHTS

The Rustic Bridge Club were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilby on Wednesday evening.

Quite a number of our town-folk took advantage of the excursion to Montreal over the week-end.

Miss Olive Seale, of Montreal, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Seale.

People of this community regret to learn of the passing of Mrs. J. P. Middleton, a former resident of this place, whose death occurred on March 19th., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. MacMillan, in Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Victor Jekell, of Montreal, spent the week-end with his family at Lake St. Louis.

Deeds of generosity are good. But there is a better way of giving. The man who so lives that other men are inspired to be and do their best helps them put good furniture, dishes, radios, rugs, bathrooms and heating plants in their own homes. NEW DISTRICT SUPERVISOR FOR BELL TELEPHONE IN THIS AREA ion of two years in the Science Course at McGill.

In February 1925, Mr. Morrin transferred to the Bell Company's former Eastern Division office and participated as a field man in the telephone commercial survey undertaken that year in the metropolis. Later, he went to Ottawa on sales work: returned to the Montreal suburban district in November 1925 and was named Sales Supervisor.

On February 7, 1927, Mr. Morrin moved to Three Rivers as Local Chief Clerk. In March of the following year, he returned to Ottawa as Unit Sales Supervisor in the District Office there.

In March a year ago he transferred to Three Rivers as District Chief Clerk. It is the latter post that he has now relinquished to return to this district where he is well and favorably known and where he will find ample scope for his abilities as an experienced telephone man.

IN THE MATTER OF—

C. F. KAINS VERSUS HEIRS OF WADE ESTATES.

(Correspondence)

The public are asking what has become of the above case in the courts, and all charges of dishonesty made against my management of the above estate publicly, by some of the Wade heirs and many of my neighbors.

Replying, I would publicly say—none of the charges proving true, the representatives of the Wade heirs here some time since asked to have the matter settled out of court, they agreeing to pay all court and other legal expenses and all demands for my services rendered by me to the said estates.

And some of the Wade heirs and also many of my neighbors are much surprised to find themselves threatened with a legal action in the court for malicious slander. The Wade heirs reside in the U. S., but their estates and monies lie in Canada; while my neighbors live in Canada and their estates and monies lie in Canada also, and are all liable for malicious assertions the which they have been unable to prove.

The matter stands like this: They have made statements; I have denied them; that creates an issue and throws the burden of the proof upon them; and now they stand to be brought to court and face a charge for malicious slander.

Folk after two years' straining or more, have not been able to strain out a gnat against me, but during that time they have raised a large, dirty camel
