The Vimy Memorial

Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley Will Attend Unveiling

Canada will be united on Vimy Ridge when King Edward VIII unveils the National Memorial just as the forces of this Dominion were united when they stormed the heights on April 9, 1917. In designating the nation's official representatives Prime Minister Mackenzie King has named English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians, Conservative as well as Liberal parliamentarians.

All of them have associations with Vimy Ridge and with the war.

Two ex-soldier Ministers of the official party are men who fought on the Ridge, who made its acquaintance when it was a place of crumbling and sodden trenches, yawning mine craters, barbed wire, machine guns, minenwerfers and shells. Hon. Ian A. Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, and Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions, were both junior officers of the Canadian Corps when its four divisions wrested Vimy from the Germans.

Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, Canada's first war-time Prime Minister and Sir George Perley, Canadian High Commissioner in London during the war years, are Conservative chieftains who will accompany the delegation.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, member of the Upper House, was bereaved by the war; Sir Eugene Fiset was Surgeon-General and Deputy Minister of National Defence throughout the conflict; Lieut.-General Sir R. E. W. Turner, V.C., successively commanded the 3rd. Canadian Infantry Brigade and the 2nd. Canadian Division before his elevation to the command of the Canadian forces in England.

Lady Currie, widow of the late Canadian Corps commander, Sir Arthur W. Currie, will be present as a guest of the Government, while Lady Byng has also been invited.

Attending the ceremony in their official capacities are Major General S. C. Mewburn, chairman of the Canadian Battlefields Commission, Brig.-Gen. H. T. Hughes, chief engineer of the Commission, and Col. H. C. Osborne, chairman of the Canadian section of the Imperial War Graves Commission.

Wedding

DAVIES — PAINTER

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Nina Painter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Painter, of Brownsburg, Que., and Mr. Phillip Henry Davies, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henry Davies, was solemnized at 4 o'clock June 27th., at the Church of St. James the Apostle. The Rev. Frederick Wilkison officiated. During the ceremony organ selections were rendered. Mr. James Walter Davies acted as best man.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a Grecian gown of powder blue with tea rose accessories, and carried a spray of talisman roses. Miss Barbara Wright, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a Victorian printed gown with white accessories and carried a spray of sweet peas and roses.

Mrs. Painter wore an ensemble of navy blue and white and wore a corsage of red roses. A reception was held at the Windsor Hotel, after which Mr. and Mrs. Davies left for Minaci.

A wise man will desire no more than he may get justly, use soberly, distribute cheerfully, and leave contentedly.

CRUSHED IN MINE

A very sad death occurred on Saturday, when David Provençal, 30 years of age of Harrington, was instantly killed on Friday afternoon when crushed by falling rock at the Magnesite quarries of the Canadian Refractories at Kilmar.

Dr. Mason, coroner of the district, was immediately notified and a verdict of accidental death was returned.

Provençal was a young man well thought of in the company, and his sudden passing is deeply mourned.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon, service being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Rosborough of Lachute. He leaves to mourn, a wife and two small children.

ARGENTEUIL COUNTY W. I. ACTIVITIES

Brownsburg had an instructive address from Dr. Lalande on Child Welfare and Public Health and a roll call "Habits copied from mother", also an interesting report of May convention by Mrs. Reynolds. Eleven members and one new member were present.

Frontier enjoyed a talk from Dr. J. M. Drew on "How to keep children well". Their roll call was "Wedding Superstitions". A Home Economic factor was the contest of articles made from a flour bag, and the winners were Mrs. J. Beattie, Mrs. W. H. Canning and Mrs. C. Dixon.

Jerusalem - Bethany had a paper on "Immigration" by Miss Myrtle Leishman and a roll call "What Immigrants have done for Canada."

Lachute had as their roll call "Uses for old tires". An exhibition of hand made rugs was given by Mrs. C. Duncan, also a talk on Pioneer rug making which was supplemented by a demonstration on binding rugs by Mrs. W. Robertson, also weaving by Mrs. L. Barron. Thirty members enjoyed this interesting meeting.

Lakefield stressed Public Health by having a demonstration on artificial respiration by the president, Mrs. W. Shear-smith and a paper on hints to bathers.

Morin Heights heard a very interesting paper on Folk Lore and Folk songs of the Gaspé Coast Fisher Folk by the Canadianization convenor Miss Bragg. They also had an exhibition of old time photographs and a candy contest, Mrs. Wm. Doherty being the prize winner. Their roll call was "Cooling Beverages."

Pioneer featured Canadianization and National Events, Education and Better Schools and Public Health. Mrs. L. M. Hooker read a paper entitled "A Nation's Health is a Nation's Wealth." Miss Morrin gave a reading on "Why do we read" and Mrs. MacKenzie an account on the Associated Countrywomen of the World's recent convention in Washington. Their roll call was "A habit copied from mother."

Upper Lachute - East End held a very interesting Educational meeting under the patronage of Mrs. Harvey Miller, who had as guest speaker Rev. H. Cousins, who gave a talk on the benefits of Education showing how we were benefiting by the education which others had received. Ten members were present to answer the roll call by naming prominent teachers of the county.

The Passing Scene

By M. V. Trayers

If one were to propose a mileage basis for letter postage it would be howled down as economic heresy. It would be pointed out that for 100 years uniform postal rates have been an unqualified success and the sponsor of a mileage rate plan would be scoffed into silence. One hundred years ago Sir Rowland Hill wrote and published a pamphlet suggesting the "penny post". Previous to that time postal charges were assessed on a mileage basis, and in some instances it cost as much as twenty-five cents to send a letter from one city to another a distance of a couple hundred miles. After considerable rumblings of skepticism Hill's proposal reached parliament, and a year later was put into operation. Postal revenue fell over a million pounds the first year, the practice of letter-writing was not then as universal as it is now. The following year the "penny post" balanced its accounts and from then on its success was assured, until now, one hundred years later the man who would suggest reverting to a mileage rate would possibly be a subject for mental examination.

What uniform postal rates has done for correspondence the flat transportation rate can do for our railways. Year after year the taxpayer has to dig down for the where withal to keep our railway systems in operation, and economists tell us that with a continuation of the present burden the country must inevitably go into bankruptcy. The railways of Canada cannot pay their way because the people of Canada will not utilize them, and the people of Canada cannot utilize them because they cannot pay the rates. Postalization of railway rates or a flat rate transportation would result in the fullest use of railway facilities. Mileage is an insignificant factor in the cost of operation. The railway company has a set schedule whether one passenger or one thousand passengers has to be transported. The cost of operation is practically constant. The fall-year revenue of the Canadian systems was met by an increase in rates. Increased rates brought still lower revenue until now the loss of revenue has to be made up out of the taxation, which puts us in the unenviable position that whether

CONGREGATIONAL FAREWELL SOCIAL

At Congregational Social held on the evening of Thursday, June 23rd. the people of the United Church in St. Andrews bade farewell to Rev. Mr. Macaskill, and the members of his household—Mrs. Beanson and Miss Mary Macaskill. A delicious supper was served in the Church hall by the ladies of the congregation. Mrs. Jeffrey and Mrs. T. MacAdam poured tea. Mr. W. J. Rodger acted as chairman, and called on a number of speakers including Rev. J. R. Heyworth, Rev. Mr. Rosborough, Mrs. T. MacAdam, Mrs. C. S. Wales, Dr. B. N. Wales and Mr. T. DeWitt. All expressed regret at Mr. Macaskill's departure and appreciation of his unwearied efforts for the good of his church and the community at large while in St. Andrews, and good wishes for his future. Mr. T. MacAdam on behalf of the congregation, presented Mr. Macaskill with a Bedside Communion Service. Miss Jean Brown, on behalf of the Good Fellowship Society, presented Mrs. Beanson with a handsome handbag, and little Lois MacClintock, on behalf of the Sunday School, presented Miss Mary Macaskill with a set of gold initials. Col. Hooker led in singing "For he's a jolly good fellow", and the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the hymn "Blest be the tie that binds."

The W. A. of the Anglican Church met at the home of Mrs. John Fraser, Lachute Road, on Tuesday, June 23rd. During the meeting Mrs. Beanson was presented with a Life Membership. Miss Robertson read the following address:—

"Dear Mrs. Beanson,
Now that the years during which we have been privileged to work under your capable leadership as our President are drawing to a close, we, your fellow members of the St. Andrews East Branch of the Women's Auxiliary, wish to express our appreciation of the faithful and devoted service which you have given without stint and regardless of personal convenience. We can do you no greater honor than to ask you to accept this Life Membership, offered with our love and gratitude. We hope that it will be a reminder to you of many happy meetings, and feel that to us it will be a link with one, whose use of her gifts, and devotion in the church's cause, have been, and will continue to be, an inspiration and example. We trust that your departure, which is a matter of deep regret, will be a matter of deep regret."

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, June 30th.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King will himself head Canada's delegation to the League of Nations meeting at Geneva next September because of the critical situation in Europe and the expected revision of the league covenant. He plans also to attend His Majesty's coronation in London next May, so he will not attend the unveiling by King Edward VIII of Canada's war memorial at Vimy Ridge on July 26 next. At that ceremony, the official government representatives will be Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, and Hon. C. G. Power minister of pensions and national health.

Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian minister at Tokio for the past seven years, has been promoted post at Washington in place of and transferred to a similar Major W. D. Herridge brother-in-law of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, who resigned shortly after the election. Hon. Randolph Bruce, former Lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, an unsuccessful candidate against Hon. H. H. Stevens Reconstruction leader, in East Kootenay, B. C., in the federal election last October is the new minister to Japan.

Already 8,689 single unemployed men formerly accommodated in the federal government camps are at work on the C.N.R. and C.P.R. on a special maintenance-of-way improvement program as subsidized by the Dominion government. From Ontario 2,938 men were taken on this work, 636 from Manitoba, 912 from Saskatchewan, 954 from Alberta, and 676 from British Columbia. The camps will all be closed this week.

CHILD DROWNING IN THURSO RESERVOIR

Falling into reservoir on the property of the Singer Sewing Machine Company at Thurso at 4 o'clock on June 26th., Louis Parent, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Parent, was drowned in ten feet of water. A younger brother, aged six, and a playmate, Aime Payant, six, also of Thurso, witnessed the fatality.

The body was recovered an hour and a half after the tragedy. Coroner W. J. Costello of Buckingham decided an inquest was not necessary.

Workmen at the Singer plant who were told by the younger Parent and Aime Payant that Louis had fallen into the reservoir, notified the unfortunate boy's mother who brought help to the reservoir.

SIR GEORGE AND LADY PERLEY ARE HOSTS

Education by Observation.

"I always knew that Brownsburg people were a fine, intelligent people, who took a keen pride in their homes and possessions, but their children as represented by this party of young boys and girls are a revelation to me and a credit to their parents and Canada."

Thus spoke Sir George Perley during the course of the luncheon which Lady Perley and Sir George had given to Mr. D. Staniforth and his party of school pupils in their recent visit to the parliament buildings at Ottawa. The idea of travel teaching was first broached by Mr. "Bill" King as a means of broadening the vision, and applying the principles of observation to education among the higher pupils of school. The Dominion Buildings were selected as the object of the first venture and after Sir George Perley became acquainted with the proposal, further difficulties vanished. In answer to Mr. Staniforth's call for transportation facilities, the pupils' parents and other car owners responded with alacrity. Over sixty pupils were selected and the joy and delight which expressed itself in the beaming countenances of those happy youngsters was adequate compensation, and assurance of success for the efforts of the sponsors of the tour. The happy parents were infected by the spontaneous gaiety of the children leaving the trip to Ottawa a festive and cherished memory.

Their reception at "the home of the nation's laws" was comparable to that of some distinguished visitor. Every contingency was provided for, and arrangements for their enlightenment and instruction were most complete. After a tour of the buildings conducted by experienced guides, who gave a short historical account of the various points of interest, the group were welcomed by Sir George and Lady Perley who graciously acted as hosts at a delightful luncheon in the Parliament Buildings. Mr. D. Staniforth on behalf of the party, expressed the thanks and appreciation of both parents and children for the interest and trouble Sir George and Lady Perley had taken in the visit. Sir George brushed the matter lightly aside and added the observation of our opening paragraph.

A tour of the Departmental Farms followed during which the children were taken in small parties and instructed in the

A rally of Argenteuil County workers, who lent themselves to the support of J. P. Lanctot, when he ran as a Union Nationale candidate in the provincial elections last fall, was held in McArthur's Hall on Saturday last to lay plans for carrying on the work in the coming campaign. Following the last election meetings were held and committees organized with the central committee at Lachute. The meeting today was presided over by W. M. Slott, of Lachute, and Euclid Ladouceur of St. Andrews.

A number of speakers including Dr. B. N. Wales, Notary J. F. Lavigne and Messrs. Gauley, Armstrong, Seale, Trayers, Ladouceur, Brunelle, Verdier and others contended that nomination should be again tendered to Mr. Lanctot, and about 125 representative workers from all sections of Argenteuil County present approved the declaration.

This decision was made known to Mr. Lanctot whose summer home is in St. Andrews and it was not long before he arrived at the hall and received an ovation. Speaking briefly he said he would not have considered entering politics again were it not for the fact that Mr. Duplessis, who had done such good work, needed strong support at this time.

We now have this county divided into twelve districts, organized not for party purposes, but for general good, whose business will be to study the needs and conditions of their varied sections. Then we can meet and discuss intelligently the questions arising from our inventory. I am not in favor of destroying wealth, but I do want to see capital humanized for the justice of the people who are the soul and strength of the nation.

"This is a provincial issue", said Mr. Lanctot, "and we must not know red or blue. We want to save our province and not our party. This is why the alliance was formed and Duplessis is entitled to our deepest thanks for the courage manifested in his efforts to expose the wrong-doings of the Taschereau Government now transferred to Premier Godbout and his new Cabinet."

Wedding

MacGIBBON — MacLEAN

The marriage took place at Brownsburg, on Saturday, June 27th., of Elsie Violet, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. MacLean of Harrington, to Mr. John Earle MacGibbon, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wyman MacGibbon of Brownsburg, Que. Rev. A. E. Hagar officiated.

The bride was gowned in pale blue crepe, white hat and accessories to match and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley.

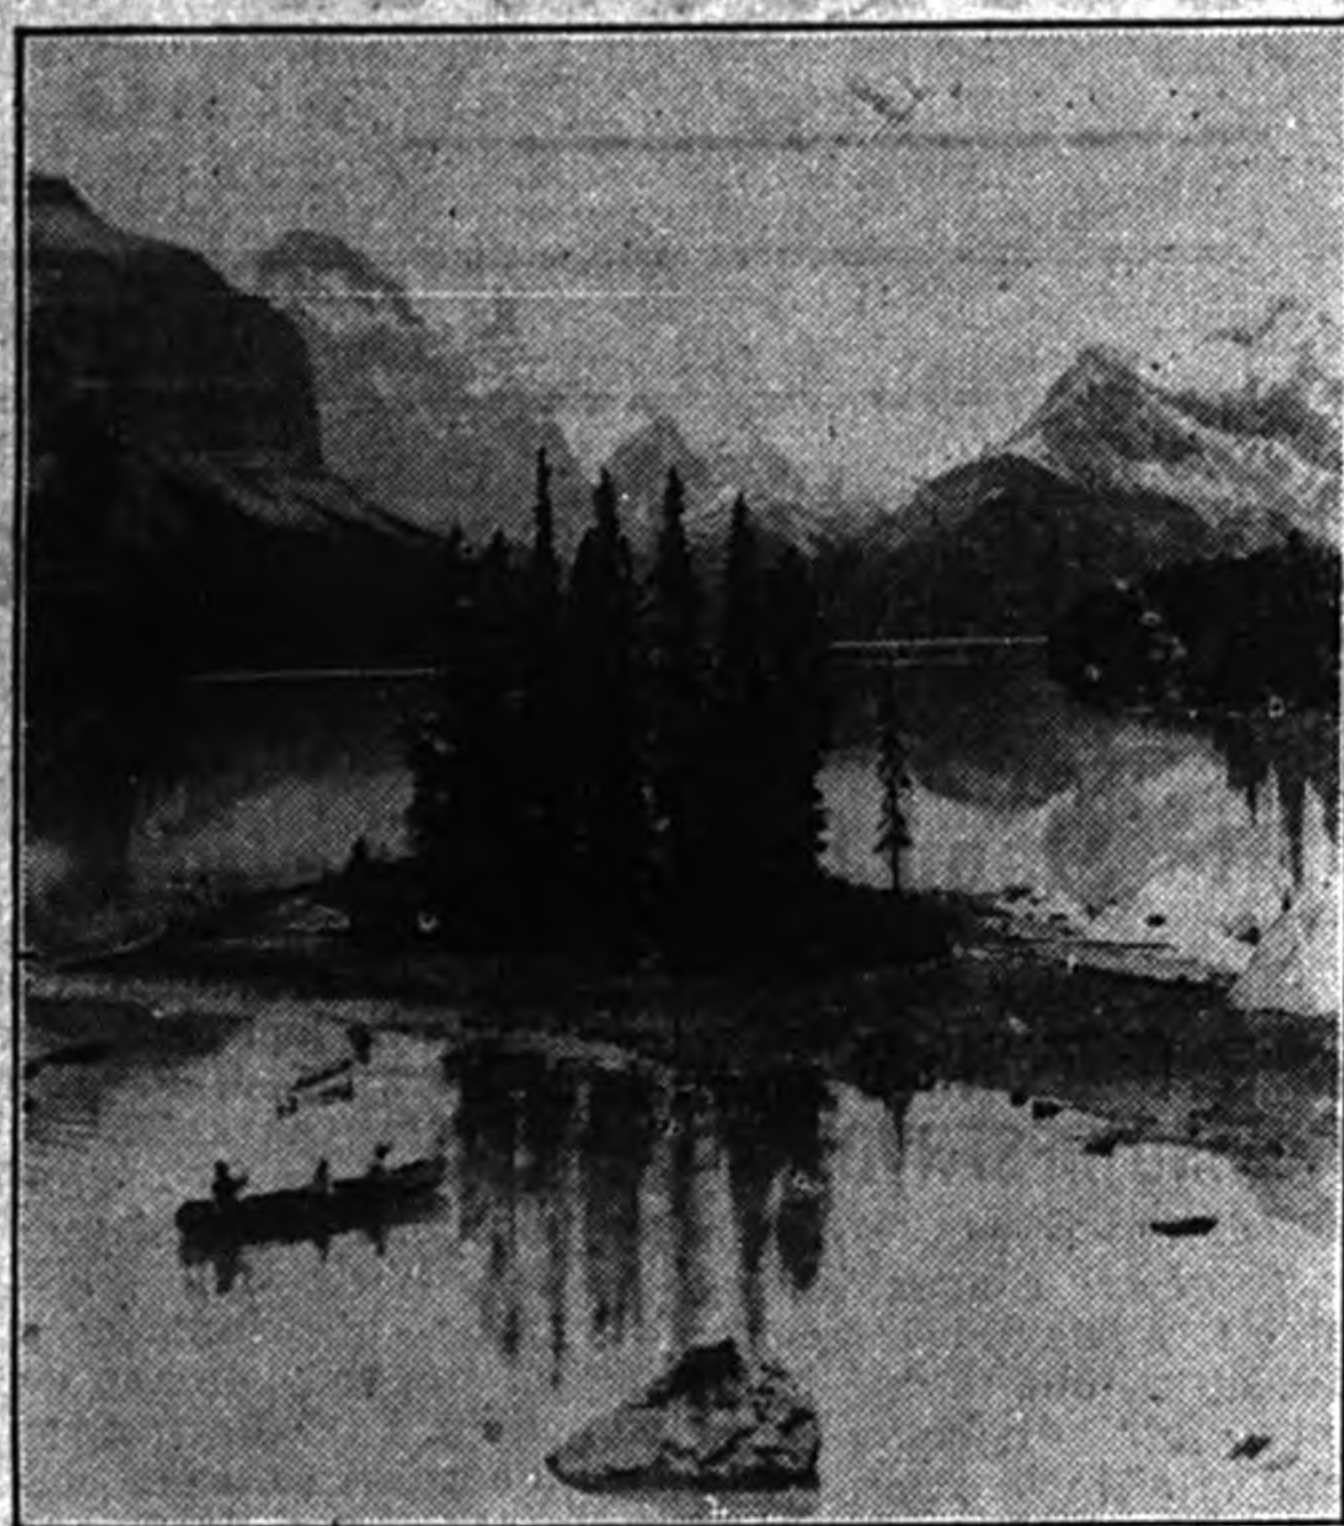

Mrs. Alwyn Stewart, sister of the groom, attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a dress of pink net with white hat and accessories to match. Her corsage bouquet was sweet peas.

The groom was attended by Mr. Alwyn Stewart.

After the ceremony, a supper was served at the LaSalle Hotel, Montreal. Later the bride and groom left for a motor trip to New York City. On their return they will reside in Brownsburg.

It is the highest part of the highest creed to forgive before memory sleeps, and ever to remember how the good overcame the evil.—Dickens.

The Narrows, Maligne Lake

The Rockies hid well some of their loveliest secrets. One of these is Maligne Lake, the fame of whose beauty grows yearly. Long before the coming of the white men the lake was known to Indian trappers, but in the latter half of the 19th. century the fur bearers were less numerous and the natives seldom returned. In 1875 Henry McLeod, a railway surveyor, was probably the first white man to explore that secluded section of what is now Jasper Park. He reached the lake via Maligne River after a weary struggle through dense timber, and called it "Sorefoot Lake."

This visit was soon forgotten and for another generation the lake was left in solitude. Then Mrs. Charles Schaeffer, an experienced mountain traveller, heard from a Stony Indian of the "great beaver lake" which he recalled visiting as a boy. In June 1908, with a little party of trail riders she approached the region from the South. And only from this recent date have the wonders of Maligne Lake been generally known. As the party approached on a clumsy raft what they believed to be the upper end of the waters they discovered the narrow channel, beyond which lies the hitherto unsuspected upper lake.

This is the crowning glory of the Maligne region. The great sapphire pool is walled like a natural amphitheatre with a circle of mighty, glacier-clad peaks. The overwhelming majesty of the Rockies seems to culminate in this hidden company of alpine Titans. Maligne Lake's ominous name is derived from its effluent river, a treacherous section of which was named with reason by half-breed trappers, "la maligne traverse." Perhaps it is fortunate that the upper lake and its surroundings were discovered by a woman, who had the understanding to bestow upon the features of the region such names as "Pixie Valley", "Sunshine Falls" and "The Veil of Tears."

Justice W. F. A. Turgeon of Saskatchewan, now completing his work as a one man royal commission into the textile industry, is to undertake a similar task into all phases of Canada's wheat marketing problems. On a previous occasion Justice Turgeon made an excellent report on that phase of the problem having to do with the physical handling of wheat. He will visit the United Kingdom and several European countries, and possibly also the Argentine and Australia as the Dominion's chief wheat competitors in the British market.

Even a more definite fight than has occurred this session between the Senate and the Commons - the Conservatives having a record majority in the Senate and the Liberals a record majority in the Commons - may be expected next year. Mr. King said he would not go "on his hands and knees" to the Senate. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the upper house, said apparently the government thought the Senate's only functions are "to simply strike out unnecessary commas and correct spelling and diction in the bills sent to them for approval." J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, said he felt the Canadian people would support action by the government to curb the power of the Senate. "We have the most antiquated form of control by a second chamber to be found in any democracy," Mr. Woodsworth declared, "and it is high time steps were taken to reform the Senate, if necessary by changes in the constitution."

With important government legislation having been approved this session on several counts, in connection with reorganization of the C. N. R. board, the radio commission, the Bank of Canada and a new National Harbour Board, the government will have to make a number of important appointments within the next few weeks.

Mr. King indicated the government intends to recast the Combines Investigation Act next session, and meanwhile any investigations required will be by royal commission. The Senate and the Commons deadlocked on an amendment to put "teeth" in the act as it stands, the Senate rejecting the government's proposal in that regard. No decision has been reached as yet by the cabinet on appeals to the Privy Council at London on the decisions of the Supreme Court of Canada with regard to the "reform" legislation passed by the Bennett government.

Canada's delegates to the League of Nations at its meeting within a few days will stand for lifting of the sanctions against Italy. The Dominion's chief delegates will be Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister at Paris, and Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner at London.

Ye Poor Rural Editor and Human Frailties

Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister tieth the knot and geteth 10 bones therefor. The groom standeth the editor off for a year's subscription. All flesh is grass and in due time the wife goeth to the boneyard. The minister handleth the burial ceremony and geteth his bit. The undertaker and even the grave diggers get theirs. The good-natured editor printeth a long death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry, a free ad for the undertaker and the doctor, and a card of thanks from the family of the departed. And the editor forgetteth to read the proof of this article, and the darned thing is published with a heading which readeth: "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place." And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great vigor. And they pulleth out all their advertisements and refuseth to pay for their subscriptions. And they swingeth the hammer unto the third and fourth generation. —Exchange.

MAKING A GARDEN

Man ploughs and plants and digs and weeds,
He works with hoe and spade;
God sends the sun and rain and air, and thus a garden's made
He must be proud who tills the soil
And turns the heavy sod;
How wonderful a thing to be in partnership with God.

Small Town Merchant Has Advantages

The problem the small town merchant has of competing with the city merchant in these days of long trips by autos has aroused keen interest everywhere in Canada and the United States.

A town in New York, located between two large cities, has solved the problem by a system of co-operation that is unique. Instead of competing, stores have adopted the idea of all becoming specialists in one line. The man who formerly handled clothing and shoes, now has only shoes, and consequently carries a better stock and attracts trade to his place from a wider area.

In the matter of overhead expenses, the small town merchant is much better situated than his city rival. He can have a larger and better display room for his wares, at much less expense than the city merchant. And if he takes advantage of the facilities at hand, and offers service he has at his disposal, he can easily make the city merchant "it's up and take notice."

The small town has another advantage, and one that cannot be overlooked. He has more opportunity to know personally every one of his customers. He knows what this one and that one prefers, and can arrange his stock accordingly.

Stand on your Own Feet

Stand on your own feet. Go it alone. This in substance was part of the advice given by Agnes Macphail to the graduating class of Ottawa Ladies' College a few days ago. Her actual words were: "Do not rely completely on any other human being however dear. We meet all life's greatest tests alone."

The child as it learns to walk must with quickened breath actually release its hold on safety and take its first steps alone. When he finally goes to school he must face those doubtful playmates as he enters the school yard for the first time, alone. When he learns to swim there comes a time when he must let go all safeguards and with palpitating heart trust himself to the water alone.

In the school room he works on his examinations alone. When he battles in his inner life with the problems of right and wrong he must battle alone. When he finally gets a job he must meet most of its trials as he did his try-out boss, alone. When sickness and pain come as they one day come to most of us he must meet them for the most part, alone. If bereavement comes he will find that he cannot divide his load of grief no matter how willing friends might be to share it. And when at last he reaches the point of departure for the great adventure he must step out into the unknown, alone.

All of this Miss Macphail might have said to the graduates. She could also have added this. Through learning to "go it alone" in minor details strength can be developed sufficient to meet the greater emergencies. And too, that man has been made the most dominant being capable of drawing on a power which can make him come off more than conqueror of all that would beset his path of progress at any moment in the great eternal now. Skirmishes he may lose, but miss the great objective, he need not.

W. I. EXECUTIVE MEETS DISTINGUISHED GUEST

TOWNS CANNOT REGULATE SPEED LIMITS ON PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

A municipal council has no right to regulate the speed of vehicles on public highways, declared Justice Hector Verret in Quebec Superior Court, sustaining an action by C. E. Audet against the Town of Coaticook. The judge held that clauses of the town's by-law were ultra vires, illegal and null.

The Town of Coaticook's by-law established a speed limit of 20 miles an hour on the town streets and a limit of eight miles an hour at intersections.

In rendering judgment against the town Mr. Justice Verret observed that whereas article 59 of the Quebec Motor Vehicle Act (R.Q. 1925, Chapter 35 and amendments) decrees "notwithstanding any general or special law to the contrary, a municipal council cannot, by resolutions or otherwise, regulate the speed of motor vehicles on public highways, excepting where it might apply to circulation in parks and cemeteries, etc." consequently article 61 of the by-law is ultra vires of the rights of the defendant. The court for these reasons upheld the action of the plaintiff Audet and declared illegal that part of the by-law reading as follows:

"No vehicle may be driven at a speed greater than what is considered reasonable in considering the width of the street and the density of the traffic or in such a manner as to be a menace to life or public property. The speed of the vehicles must in no case exceed 20 miles an hour in any of the streets of the town, and eight miles at the intersections of streets." The Court annulled that part of the above described by-law 250 of the Town of Coaticook, the whole with costs.

His Lordship pointed out that the company defendant admitted that there was no harm in providing a repetition of the provincial legislation, but observed that the regulation of speed limits was the exclusive prerogative provided under the Motor Vehicle Act.

RURAL-URBAN IMMIGRATION PROBLEM (Montreal Gazette)

There is very little immigration into Canada at present, but there is another type of immigration that is bothering municipal authorities in various parts of the country. That is the immigration of people from the countryside seeking to take advantage of the direct relief that is granted by the cities. In some cases the farms have suffered from lack of help, at harvest time especially, and schoolboys and college students have had to be called upon to fill the jobs that should have been taken by able-bodied men on relief. Montreal for the past several years has been a Mecca for dole-seekers from outside, particularly in the winter months, and this has been costly for the citizens. This is more of a matter for the aldermen to deal with than is immigration from abroad into the whole Dominion. It will take all their abilities to keep this abuse down. The trickle of immigration into the country is so slight as not to bother thinking aldermen, especially when they have pressing domestic matters with which to cope.

TRAFFIC VIOLATORS "JUDGED" ON SPOT

Flying police courts are appearing in the Budapest thoroughfares at unexpected moments to "court-martial" pedestrians and motorists heedless of the traffic regulations.

The flying courts, consisting of three magistrates, try culprits on the spot. They hear quick evidence and pronounce sentence, from which there is no appeal.

Pedestrians who cross the road at the wrong place or against the red light signal are fined one pengoe. Motorists who break some regulations pay more. Fines are paid on the spot. Four or five flying courts are constantly raiding the streets. During two hours of the first day of their work, they fined 69 pedestrians.

Persons on relief in New Brunswick for 1935 were double the number in 1934, according to the report of the Public Works Department tabled in the Legislature. In 1935 there were 14,438 on relief and in 1934 only 6,639.

London, (Ont.) City Council has provided $100 for "control of starlings". The task will probably fall to the city engineer. Suggestions range from liquored grain to a bounty.

"THE PASSING SCENE"

We use the railways or not we pay for them. Study of commerce records in other countries has elucidated the fact that a reduction of fifteen per cent a mile brought little if any increase in passenger traffic. A further reduction of fifteen per cent a mile brought much increased usage but no increase in revenue while a further fifteen per cent resulted in increased usage and increased revenue.

If a flat rate transportation charge was established over Canadian Railways what would be the result? The answer is exceedingly simple. Take your own personal demand, mark the increased amount you would expend in traveling to places that were hitherto outside the limit of your pocketbook, multiply this by the increase in volume such a system would bring and the result is apparent.

Postalization of railroad rates would crowd the railroads with passengers. The confines of our cities would be torn down and the cooped in population would swarm to the fresh air and beautiful scenery of our country. Millions of private capital would be released and put into circulation. Commutation would become more widespread with a resultant activity in real estate and building in suburban areas. Population would be redistributed and the festering sores of our sum-problems in a great measure healed. Manufactured products would be freely exchanged and the bugbear of freight charges eliminated. In fact the practical possibilities of the principle are unlimited.

AMERICANIZATION OF CANADA

William I Sirovich of New York is a member of the House of Representatives of the United States. Representative Sirovich says he is a research student of economic history, and in the course of his researches he has unearthed the enlightening fact that depressions disappear with the extension of boundaries. So what? That moving the international line or 49th parallel up to the North pole will cause the millions of undeveloped acres of Canadian soil to be an outlet for the United States unemployed. A resolution towards this end has been submitted by representative Sirovich and the House and Senate has referred the resolution to the Committee on Rules. Amongst other things discovered by this research student, was that the United States holds the chief interest for the younger generations throughout Canada owing to the fact that we listen to U. S. radio programmes, read U. S. magazines, use U. S. autos, and go to U. S. movies. (Please note representative Sirovich does not mean U. S. to represent United Soviets). According to representative Sirovich the United States rather than England is the hope of our future generations. Perhaps representative Sirovich's researches have not informed him that we possess sovereign independence on this side of his depression ending boundary, it might be advisable for representative Sirovich to continue his researches.

JEWS IN JERUSALEM

Behind the Arab-Jewish riots in Palestine lie a conflict of two nationalities, of two peoples, between two immiscible elements. Answering the call for a patriotic homeland, and influenced by the teachings of religious history certain Jewish leaders of wide influence throughout the world and particularly in England seek to erect a Jewish civilization on the battleground of General Allenby's triumphal success. Over 300,000 Jews have been settled in Palestine, since their coming schools have been built, roads have been opened, land has been cleared and developed, factories built and what was once a scene of desolation is now a hive of industry. The nucleus of an independent Jewish nation has been created, the atmosphere of which is distinctly Jewish. The Jews claim they have returned to their ancient home given to them by God. On the other hand the present possessors, the Arabs refuse to recognize the title-deeds; if any, which the Jews claim to possess, and despite the improvement and development, young Arabians refuse to become reconciled to the Jewish invasion. The thousands of years which have elapsed while the Jews were on a wandering tour of the earth has dimmed the Arabs recollection of the Jews ever being in possession of Jerusalem, but they have a very clear recollection, of what Lawrence of Arabia promised them, in all good faith, and they now assert their land has been taken from them and handed to the Jews for exploitation. Thus the struggle goes on and fanatical religious beliefs add fuel to the fire.

ber of the Cabinet, is to be present at the ceremony and will head the Government party. The group will leave Quebec, July 11, on the Empress of Britain.

Arrangements for the service on the Ridge are now approaching completion. The guard of honor will be found by the Royal Canadian Navy. Blue-jackets from H.M.C.S. Saguenay, which destroyer is accompanying the peace-time fleet of liners conveying the Canadian Legion's pilgrims to France, will be lined up in front of the Memorial to receive the King.

At the same time a civilian guard of honor is provided for. This will comprise 100 war veterans drawn from among the Canadian pilgrims. Twenty men are to be selected from each of the five ships, the choice being made by party and company leaders.

Three bands will accompany the pilgrims. The brass band of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery has been detailed, while one piper is being selected from each of the Highland units of the Canadian Militia. The 48th Highlanders of Toronto will provide the drummers, and a Permanent Force bugle band will be present.

A triangular section, with the memorial at its base, has been reserved exclusively for the Canadian pilgrims. With them will be several thousand Canadian ex-service men now resident in England, who are proceeding to the unveiling on an excursion arranged by the British Empire Service League.

Expectations are that more than 100,000 persons will attend.

MORIN HEIGHTS

School closed on Wednesday. Quite a number of the parents and friends attended the closing exercises. A picnic was held afterwards at Lake St. Louis.

The members of the Morin Heights W. I. held a picnic at Mrs. J. E. Seale's camp, Lake

Ann, on Thursday, June 24th. A very enjoyable day was spent Mr. and Mrs. Hector Paquette and sons, of Montreal, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Seale. Mr. L. Hollingsworth was also their guest over the week-end.

Miss E. Neithercut spent the week-end in Arundel, returning Monday to leave later in the day for her home in St. Johns for the summer holidays.

Miss Foxman has returned to her home in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Seale are visiting friends in Sherbrooke and other parts in the Eastern Townships.

Miss Marjorie Jowett, of Lachine is at present the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. D. Davis.

Quite a number are in Montreal attending the wedding of Miss Elva McCullough to Mr. Wm. Baldwin, which took place July 1st.

On Monday evening, June 29, Trinity Church was well filled it being the annual visit of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Farthing, who gave a very interesting and inspiring address.

Miss Olive Seale is spending the summer holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Seale.

Mrs. Gunning, of Montreal, is the guest of Mrs. A. Bethel this week.

GRENVILLE NORTH

Mr. and Mrs. G. Villeneuve, of Stonefield, also Mr. and Mrs. H. Villeneuve of Grenville, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mott and Mrs. Hugh Cousins, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Perks, St. Andrews East.

Mr. Wm. Cousins has returned home after spending a few days in Athelstan, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cooke.

Mr. Fred Murray and Miss Frances Murray were welcome visitors at the home of Mr. Geo. Perks, St. Andrews East, recently. Miss Beatrice Perks returned to Grenville with them.

Miss Enid McIntyre spent the week-end at her home here. We are pleased to report that Mr. Willie Stewart, who has been quite ill and confined to the house is able to be about again.

various activities of the Farm. On the journey home, the pupils expressed their grateful thanks and retained their happy memories.

United Church Minister leaves.

The departure of Rev. Mr. Hagar is deeply regretted. During his several years ministry in Brownsburg, Mr. Hagar has endeared himself to people of the various religious persuasions and has devoted his time, energy and means to the poor and needy. Every deserving charity found in him a ready and willing advocate. His well known interest in church union found him unsparing in the interests of the people as a whole, irrespective of demarcations. The community has suffered a loss by the departure of Mrs. Hagar and himself, and church functions will be the poorer without his kindly and genial personality. In his new home and work we wish them both the best of happiness and God's blessing.

Presbyterian Social Evening

The Presbyterian Lawn Social was a pleasant and entertaining affair. Quite a good crowd put in an appearance despite the threatening rainfall, which eventually forced the promoters to abandon part of their musical programme.

Marriages.

To the newly weds Miss Raymond and Principal Proulx and Miss E. MacLean and Earl MacGibbon, we offer our best wishes and congratulations.

Cycle Racing.

Bobbie's Taylor's latest success established a record in Montreal cycle clubs for 50 mile road race, in two hours and eight minutes. There were thirty competitors, thirteen finishing led by Bobbie.

MARRIAGE

ELDER — SILVERSON — At Lakefield, Que., on Saturday, June 27, 1936, by the Rev. A. E. Mount, assisted by Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, Viola, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Silverson, to Edgar Earl Elder, youngest son of Mr. Albert Elder and the late Mrs. Elder of Mille Isles.

Wedding

FARIS — MURDOCH

The marriage of Miss Jessie, Muriel Murdoch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Murdoch, of Brownsburg, Que., to Mr. Mason Albert Faris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Faris of Alymer, Que., took place last week at the Baptist Church, Buckingham, the Rev. E. Doherty officiating. Miss Bessie M. Murdoch, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Mr. Morris Davis acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss LaVoyne Doherty. After the marriage, a buffet lunch was served at the manse.

Mr. and Mrs. Faris later left for a motor trip to the various points in Ontario and New York State, the bride travelling in a fawn French wool tailored two-piece suit, with brown accessories to match.

On their return a reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where the esteem of the young couple was shown by the many beautiful gifts.

Guests from a distance were Mrs. D. Faris, Breckenridge, Que., Miss Jean Tullen and Mr. Morris Davis of Alymer East, Que.

Dominion Day at Lachute—a concert under the patronage of the Ladies' Working Association of Henry's Church was held in Victoria Hall on July 1st. Some of the most talented city amateurs as well as some of the best local talent took part in the program.

The cities and towns of every province of Canada, are responding to the call for relief of Vancouver sufferers. Lachute should, it is thought, come forward with its cotta of aid.

A young man, Thos. Pritchard, a student of Montreal Congregational College, who was stationed at Hawkesbury for the summer, was drowned in the Ottawa river last week.

From Regina we learn that the prospects are of an abundant harvest in the Northwest. One correspondent writes us to say that nothing could exceed the growth of all kinds of grain and root crops.

The first Canadian Pacific through train for the Pacific coast arrived in Winnipeg on Dominion Day.

30 Years Ago

Friday, June 29th., 1906.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Agricultural Society was held on Saturday last, at which judges for the Fall exhibition were nominated.

We note with pleasure, that at the examination held last week in the Dominion College of Music, Montreal, two ladies of Lachute have been successful. Miss Marie Bernier obtained her senior diploma, and Miss Jeanie Pollock, her intermediate diploma.

The town of Hawkesbury is to celebrate Dominion Day royally on Monday, July 2nd.. A first class program of sports, and amusements of all kinds, is being prepared. One of the features of the day will be the parade of allegorical cars. Music by brass band and pipers.

On Sunday morning last the following gentlemen were appointed elders of the Presbyterian Church for the ensuing year: Messrs. Duncan McGibbon, John Hay, William Hume, James Drew and Robert Boa.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Attend to Your Shadow Contrasts

Strong shadow contrasts, plus foreground objects and a foreground "frame," all combine to give these pictures depth and perspective.

WHAT makes some pictures seem real enough to walk right into, while others appear to be little more than a design on a flat wall?

The thing that makes the difference is that quality in a picture, variously called "perspective," "depth," or "third dimension effect." That puts objects in relief so that they appear solid, and makes it possible correctly to perceive their relative size and position.

In photography, this quality of reality is created chiefly by proper attention to contrasts in lights and shadows. Remember that to achieve reality in a painting, the artist creates light and shadow contrasts, but that in nature such contrasts do not always come ready made. They must be looked for. In nature what often seems a good picture to the eye is not a good picture for the camera lens, because of the absence of contrasts. The eye is aided by our imagination but not so the lens. In the print, the scene may turn out flat and uninteresting, especially if we try to include the whole country side in the picture.

Hence, to get perspective, pay attention to light and shadow contrasts. Look for vantage points that best reveal them. Usually the longer and more sharply defined the shadows the greater is the third dimensional effect and the appearance of reality of objects depicted. In outdoor photography there is value in taking pictures when the sun is low, because then shadows are long and accentuate the perspective. Always remember, too, the photographer's maxim: "Expose for the shadows and the high lights will take care of themselves." That, however, does not mean always to expose for a very deep shadow, but, in general, to expose to record detail in the intermediate shadows.

Another way to accentuate depth in a photograph, especially in scenic views, is to include a distinctive foreground object, which emphasizes the diminished size of objects in the distance, thus creating "depth." A human figure or tree, in the foreground at the right or left, will often serve the purpose and at the same time add interest.

Another way is to choose a vantage point which will give the picture a foreground "frame." Such a frame often serves where long shadows and distinctive foreground objects are absent. Foreground trees with lacy overhanging boughs are splendidly useful as frames. They are full of beauty in themselves, and, if in the print they show completely in silhouette, that is to say, in dark outline without interior detail, the effect is often all the better. Everything beyond is accented by the dark tone that strikes its deep note in front.

Similarly a foreground archway in a bridge or other structure is not only an attractive element itself, but helps the eye to move forward into the picture to the scene beyond.

Study these points before you "shoot."

MABEL WONDERS

By Aunt Jean

The oriole's nest is hanging
From our tallest elm tree.
And I am wondering if the baby birds
Get dizzy, same as me.
For their tiny cradles swinging,
Swinging all the time.
They surely must get dizzy
When they're old enough to climb.
From their nest's bottom to the top
Where they can see the world
I am afraid were I so high
My head would surely whirl.

IN LILAC TOWN

"Take her out to the sun-dial and let the sun pour down on her", droned Mr. Bumble Bee as he buzzed by on his way to draw honey from the lilac blossoms. "I do not know any place I would rather be than in Lilac Town just now" he said sleepily a few minutes later when full of honey he clung to a swaying iris leaf.

"Mr. Bumble Bee is right", said the sun bird; "the sundial is just the right place for Marylyn. We must carry her, there and let the heat help to brighten her up."

"Who is going to carry her, I'd like to know", snapped the dragon fly. "I know that I cannot help I am much too dizzy myself to help carry a big creature like Mary Lyn. Is there no one in Lilac Town that can carry her", said Jolly Jen the spider.

"If there is no other way I shall lend you my thickest shawl. You can wrap her in that and carry her quite easily."

"The very thing!" cried the Sun bird, "one of Miss Jen's spider web shawls will do nicely to carry her. I saw one drying on a rose bush this morning, I shall go and see if it is there yet. If it is I shall bring it."

"Oh no! please do not touch it Mr. Sun Bird", cried Jolly Jen, "that shawl belongs to Princess Rosemond the daughter of the Queen of the Rose Fairies. Her mother would never forgive us if we took that shawl. Why I spun it for the princess, myself, of the most costly of all my silken thread."

Just then a garden web worm came along on his way to the garden party.

"The very fellow, the very fellow" shrieked the cat bird, "get spinning my good man." The garden web-worm just curled itself up on the step of the summer house and made faces at the cat bird. "Why should I get spinning", he grumbled, "I came here to attend a party, not to work."

We want Marylyn to attend the party too, and she's too drowsy to walk, so we want a webbed shawl to carry her in as far as the sundial. We trust that the sun will wake her up.

"Who is Marylyn pray?" the web-worm asked standing straight up on end and looking at Marylyn with his queer little eyes. Garden White, the cabbage moth who had been peeping in, in hopes that there was a nice green cabbage some where around said "It's the swatter girl. I don't see what you want to bother about her for. She swats flies and pours powder on cabbage plants so that I dare not eat a mouthful in case that I am poisoned. She's just a horrid thing, let her sleep. She'd swat you too, Mr. Web-worm if she got a chance. If you are wise you will not spin a shawl for her to be carried in."

He does not need to bother" snapped Jolly Jen, her usually jolly voice quite sharp. While you have been talking I have been home and brought a shawl. Move out of the way all of you until I wrap it around her. We must hurry, for I saw Mr. Garden Warbler flying over to the post to sound the call to the party and we must not be late.

When Jolly Jen had Marylyn wrapped in the shawl the Sun bird took one corner, the cat bird another, the dorbeetle another and Jolly Jen the fourth corner. Marylyn hated the funny rocking motion as the strange procession started towards the sundial. They were just at the bottom step when the garden warbler sounded the call to the party.

Afraid of being late the bearers dropped Marylyn and hurried to the party. The bump awakened her up. She sat up, rubbed her eyes, struggled to her feet and hurried as fast as she could to the house to tell her mother all about the strange happenings.

Her mother smiled when she heard the tale and said "What wonderful happenings", but big brother Ned laughed and said "Fudge", Marylyn.

TORONTO AND BUFFALO SCOUTS EXCHANGE VISITS

Over consecutive week-ends in May a party of 135 Scouts from six Toronto troops visited Buffalo, and 110 Buffalo Scouts visited Toronto. The Canadian lads placed a wreath on the memorial to President William McKinley, and the American boys paid a similar tribute at the Cenotaph before the Toronto City Hall.

BOYS COMPLETE PLANTING OF ONTARIO'S "SCOUT FOREST"

Tree planting on Ontario's first major Boy Scout reforestation project, a 30-acre "Scout Forest" at Angus, near Lake Simcoe, was completed by Scouts attending the 7th Annual Scout Forestry Camp over the recent Empire Day week-end. The planting of the last vacant area was carried out by 116 boys representing 35 Scout troops scattered over southern Ontario, including 17 Toronto troops.

The Scout Forest was begun in 1929, on land leased by the provincial Scout Association. The trees started in that year are now considerably taller than the lads who planted them. In all a half million trees have been planted in the Scout Forest and adjacent areas by a total of some 700 Scouts.

The Boy Scout reforestation project was launched under the direction of Arthur H. Richardson, of the Provincial Department of Lands and Forests, as a practical way of interesting Scouts in reforestation. Since 1933, when shortage of provincial funds would have interrupted the project, the Scouts have paid their own way at the camps. An interesting fact is that the cost in no way affected the interest of the boys; in fact so keen have they been to attend that it has been necessary to limit the number each year to approximately a hundred.

During the camp the Scouts were addressed by Dr. W. D. Smith, M.L.A., of Creemore, who presented each with the 1936 "toggle" or camp badge. Upon leaving the boys were handed a souvenir packet of trees to plant at home, and for their troops a butternut wall plaque bearing the Scout emblem, and the legend, "Boy Scout Forestry Camp, Angus, 1936".

The coroner was informed that Scott had been missed at 3.30 on Friday afternoon but no search was started then. When he failed to return at night, however, it was decided something was wrong and a search was begun. It was only on Saturday morning that the body was found floating on the surface of the water opposite the house.

BATHER IS DROWNED

At St. Jerome, on June 28th., James Scott, 28 years of age, colored, of Los Angeles, chauffeur for J. D. Fox, film magnate, who is spending the summer at Lac des Sables, here, was found drowned opposite the Fox home on Saturday morning. It is believed he got beyond his depth and drowned before he could reach shore. The case was disposed of by Dr. J. R. Brais, coroner of the district, with a verdict of accidental death.

BARRIE on 'COURAGE'

It is strange how, when one has heard about something hitherto unknown, one will then run across it several times. This year the Valedictorian at The University of Western Ontario spoke on Barrie's 'Courage'. Up to that time I had never heard of it. A few days later I had a Press Club party as a farewell to Marian Keith who is moving to Brantford. The conversation veered round to Baccalaureate sermons and one girl said that she never would forget her Baccalaureate sermon. It had been preached by the Rev. Dr. Macgregor (Marion Keith's husband), and had been based on Sir James Barrie's 'Courage'. She had liked it so much that she had bought it and had read it every few months since that time. The next day I was reading E. V. Lucas, 'Reading, Writing and Remembering' and he tells of receiving an honorary L.L.D. when Barrie was retiring from the Lord Rectorship of St. Andrew's University in 1922, (Ellen Terry received one at the same time). The students made such a din that not a word of the preliminary speeches could be heard. Barrie spoke on Courage and had the hall in perfect control. The address was afterwards published in pamphlet form. The next thing for me to do is to read it. After hearing of it three times in quick succession any curiosity is aroused.

THE CHILD WHO HAS FAILED

Parents, what are you going to do about the children who have failed in their examinations? First, what attitude are you going to take? Are you going to talk everlastingly about it and never let them forget it? The child who fails is going to feel humiliated and inferior and will punish himself by his unhappiness if left alone. If he is nagged, he will end by being resentful and antagonistic, and probably will become indifferent. It is difficult for parents not to vent their disappointment but talking does not do much good. There is a reason that the child has failed and the parent should try to find what has caused it and to prevent further failures. Are you sure about the child's health? Have you given him a physical examination? Failures are often due to unsuspected poor sight or failure to hear properly. Removal of adenoids and diseased tonsils sometimes works miracles. Children who are anaemic are listless and tired and cannot do good work. Have all these things checked by your family doctor before you blame your child too much. One of the most frequent reasons for failure is the tired child. If your child is not getting enough sleep then you are to blame. That is a part of a parent's duty to control hours of sleep. It cannot be left to the child because they seldom want to go to bed. Before you blame the child who has failed, too much, see that your own skirts are clear of blame.

TO PASTEURIZE MILK

To women who are accustomed to supplying pasteurized milk to their families, it is a worry if they cannot do this when they go to the country. It is a simple matter to do it at home. Place the bottle or dish of milk in a pail of water, with the water almost at the level of the milk. Heat until the milk is 145 degrees. Set the pail on the back of the stove for thirty minutes, then cool the milk as rapidly as possible and put in the ice-chest. If there is not a thermometer handy, heat until the water boils. Remove from the fire, pour out about one-third of the hot water and fill up to the former level with cold water. Keep the milk in this for thirty minutes then cool as rapidly as possible and place in the ice box. Undulant fever, which is caused by contagious abortion in cows, is becoming more frequent each year. Farmers would be well advised to pasteurize their milk for the protection of their families.

THE WORKER SHOULD EAT

Appetites are apt to be small in hot weather and very often people do not eat enough to provide energy as there seems to be a prevailing idea that one should not eat much in hot weather. There are people who work harder in the summer than at any other time and these people should see that they have proper meals. Salads and fruits are necessary but we should not live on these alone. We need the proteid foods, so if you lessen the amount of meat, eat more eggs, fish and cheese. Cottage cheese is a good summer food. The worker should not neglect the desserts as they require the starches and sugars for energy. We need to change the character of our foods in summer but any person who is working hard needs to eat enough. Summer limpness is often caused by insufficient food. That is true of the worker, if our activities are less, our food intake should be lessened accordingly.

SANDWICH SPREAD

2 eggs
1/2 cup granulated sugar

WEDGEWOOD POTTERIES GO MODERN

SIX GENERATIONS OF WEDGWOODS AND THEIR WORKPEOPLE

The firm of Josiah Wedgwood and Sons, Limited, who have manufactured pottery at Stoke-on-Trent, England from 1769, is planning to move to a new site.

The firm state that negotiations are proceeding for the development of an area of more than 300 acres. The factory, which will have the most modern lay-out and equipment and firing technique, designed to avoid the smoke nuisance, will be the centre of a garden village having eventually 500 workpeople's houses, as well as playing fields. The building will be so designed as not to detract from the rural amenities of the district. The proposal was announced to 900 workpeople by Mr. Josiah Wedgwood, the managing director.

The official announcement states that "the decision to move from a place in which six generations of Wedgwoods and their workpeople have spent a large time of their lives has not been made with a light heart. The present factory is hallowed by tradition and by the memory of the long succession of skilled craftsmen who have loved and been proud of the work they did there."

I LOVE LIFE AT 70 (Condensed from Physical Culture)

Anna Steese Richardson

On my 70th birthday the Advertising Club of New York gave me a party. During the previous month I had addressed five conventions, and before that I had made a strenuous 14,000-mile trip of 81 days' duration, during which, without missing an engagement, I had made 108 speeches. I had returned to New York feeling and, so people said, looking younger than when I left home.

At 50 I had not felt young. I recall perfectly the very morning that I sat straight up in bed, startled by the realization that old age was just around the corner. How was I going to spend it? My forebears had been long-lived; but they had had the means to retire gracefully and lead a contented, social life, while leisure interests and I parted long ago.

So I deliberately set out to combat the ailments of old age—the degenerative diseases which cripple, infect and weaken both men and women. My dizzy spells were traced to eye strain; I consulted a progressive oculist. The rheumatic twinges were traced to infected teeth. They came out. Intestinal poisoning, which makes most of the trouble we have to face from 50 on, I began to fight unremittingly, with the help of osteopathy, hydrotherapy, exercise and diet.

I began to study what food was good for me and what disagreed with me. No doctor can decide this very individual problem for you. You learn for yourself which foods will sustain your strength and which will create the discomfort, however slight, which eventually will weaken your entire digestive tract.

I decided that regular exercise was necessary, and even now, at 70, I still give 10 minutes a day to calisthenics. I follow this light routine: Before rising while lying flat in bed, I flex certain muscles and joints—my fingers, wrists, elbows and shoulders; then my toes, ankles, knees and hips. After rising, I do a few simple exercises to flex the neck. These are important for circulation, which affects the sight. Finally, I have three exercises for bending at the waistline and one for rising on the toes to strengthen the arches of the feet.

I emphasize the importance of these exercises because without them I would have the same difficulty in getting in and out of cars, stepping off curbs, even stumbling and falling; that some of my old friends have.

Long ago I learned that the daily bath in the tub is a severe drain on the strength of an elderly person. I take a tub bath only every other day and a sponge bath on the alternate day.

At home I live like a luxury-loving tabby cat. I do not belong to the large group of women who have become habituated to self-denial and practice it when it is no longer necessary. For me the comforts, little luxuries, the delicacies of life which all women love, are not extravagant but are aids to efficiency and cheerful living. At 70 I outfit my toilet table with those articles which you might expect to find a young matron using, and today I have a clearer, fresher skin than I had at 60.

My philosophy may be all wrong, but I think that life owes me a lot. I don't mean by that, that the world owes me a living. It is up to me to earn that—or marry it. I believe, however, that life owes me certain satisfactions and joys, and I can't have these if I am sick and filled with fear for the future. I have never been a rich woman. In fact, I have known when the chances of being able to pay the next month's rent seemed pretty dim. But there never was a time when the prospect was hopeless, or when I was afraid to take the next step, however hazardous it seemed; and this was because I had the venturesome spirit which dwells in a healthy body.

The Week's Fashion News

By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

Summer has eluded us for the last week or so and the effect has been quite apparent in the fashion scene. Tailored suits again see the light of day for general daytime occasions and when the summer frock is worn it often is accompanied by a jacket chosen for warmth as well as for fashion. The ideal costume for such weather is a light weight wool skirt, a contrasting flannel jacket and a shirtwaist or light-weight wool sweater. Combine brown, green and yellow, for instance, or navy, may wine and white or black and white and a touch of red. Light-weight knitted suits were also in evidence and they both looked smart and kept the wearer comfortable.

Enormous trifles to wear with your white suits was the subject of a recent New York advertisement and we find Montreal stores stressing the same "trifles" in displays. Tie silk halters for example or big colorful cotton ones. The latter you can make yourself by raiding the handkerchief department. Flowers in dark colors for the lapel were another suggestion . . . and big sporty pins another. Colored kid or patent leather belts come in for a share of the publicity and stocks are well supplied with the kind you are sure to like.

Going to a summer wedding? . . . You should have no difficulty in finding a grand gown for the occasion. Floating nets, organza, filmy chiffons or crisply cool taffeta should be your choice. In softly printed or beautiful pastel shades and on long flowing lines with billowing skirts and plenty of feminine detail in shirring and ruffles and pleatings in sleeves or capes or bodices.

Stress is being laid on the Princess silhouette for both day and evening wear. Slim and fitted and flattering to the youthful figure in particular, it promises to be a big fashion. Watch it and keep it in mind when planning those late summer or early Fall dresses. Like a cool sheltering shadow are dark sheers for summer. This, the substance of a recent article on black or navy sheer daytime dresses. Again we emphasize their importance. If you haven't one don't neglect to see them the very first time you are in town. They answer so many summer needs and do away with so much unnecessary laundering, etc.

Hundreds of kiddies are off to camp. And happy are the number equipped with sturdy, cool sports togs fashioned to stand-up under severe strain and to look reasonably fresh after good hard wear. Shorts, slacks, cotton shorts (in new dark shades), warm sweaters, plenty of socks, warm pyjamas for cool nights, and a good fitting bathing suit or two are necessities on the list and these are provided in economic reviews in all the stores.

Noticed several big reduction offers in dresses and fabrics very smart and practical for present and all summer wear. If you're thrifty you may have the fashions you admire at a price you will know on sight is not nearly the usual for the quality of the merchandise. Watch the newspapers for these events.

WORD A DAY

"How would you define a modern bride, anyway?"
"Modern bride is a featherless biped who is willing to begin housekeeping with one skillet, one can opener, one kettle, and at least two bridge tables!"

Boss—"But, didn't you get off just last week to attend your grandmother's funeral?"

Office Boy—"Yes, Sir. Poor granny came near being buried alive that time!"

To Suffer or Not to Suffer!

Does suffering at childbirth make motherhood?

A woman doctor, at the Kansas City Medical Association Convention last week, put forth the thought that if twilight sleep eliminates normal suffering at childbirth, a mother's personality might be damaged. She is the mother of three children herself and claims that the pain of normal child bearing has been over-publicized and is needed by woman as "an essential experience." One doctor who instituted a substance to make the experience painless claims he made a great mistake.

A discussion by women doctors who had had difficult times in bringing their own children into the world would be very enlightening. Until such takes place, any male physician with a heart, who has seen difficult birth and watched the life sapping after-effects, is going to vote for the most improved form of twilight sleep.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 5th, is "God."

The Golden Text is:—"Thou shalt have no other gods before me." (Exodus 20:3).

"Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel and his redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God." (Isaiah 44:6).

"Christian Science strongly emphasizes the thought that God is not corporeal, but incorporeal,—that is bodiless. Mortals are corporeal, but God is incorporeal." (Science and Health, page 116).

CONSTIPATION* MAY BE MORE SERIOUS THAN YOU THINK

It Causes Discomfort, May Even Lead to Disease

Constipation* is not a condition to be treated lightly. Continued neglect of regular habits of elimination tend to lower your resistance. Then there is the actual discomfort. For constipation* is one cause of headaches, poor appetite, listlessness.

Common constipation usually develops when you eat meals that lack sufficient "bulk." Your system fails to get needed internal exercise. Fortunately, today, you have a generous source of effective "bulk" in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Within the body, the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass, which gently cleanses the system. This natural laxative food also supplies vitamin B and contains iron.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, etc. Two tablespoonsful daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company as an effective laxative food for constipation.* Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk"

CUSHING

Messrs. Allan and Robert Simpson, of Ottawa, accompanied by Mrs. Hemphill spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. R. Evans the early part of the week; Mr. and Mrs. J. Colter and small sons, also of Ottawa, were guests on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham and son, Allan, spent Saturday in Thurso.

Mr. A. Graham motored to Montreal on Sunday, the Misses Ivy and Elsie Graham returning home with him on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Maw and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. Sleeth and family have opened their summer cottages for the holiday months.

Mrs. Edgar Reside, of Breckenridge, spent a few days the guest of Mrs. E. Burke, of Chateauboro, and other friends.

Miss Margaret Canning returned home on Saturday evening, having finished her work as teacher in Alwyn school for the season.

Mrs. Stoddard and her brother, the Rev. John Bowman of Philadelphia, U.S.A., were the guests of Rev. and Mrs. H. Taylor at Ingleside.

Mrs. J. McAllister Sr. is occupying her daughter's summer home at Chute-a-Blondeau.

The Frontier Branch of the W. I. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Murdoch on Friday evening and held a very interesting meeting. Mrs. J. S. Giles, being the guest speaker of the evening, gave a delightful account of her recent trip to Bermuda, showing at the same time photographs of places visited and some of the inhabitants. A very interesting report of the convention was given by Mrs. S. O. Hartley which was enjoyed by visitors from other Institutes; Mrs. Faris of Breckenridge Branch being one of those present. At the close of the meeting a double shower was held for Mrs. Mason Faris, a very recent bride and Miss Violet Murdoch, a bride-to-be. The county president, Mrs. A. Graham, presented the gifts stating that they were just small tokens of the Frontier Branch's appreciation of the two young ladies' helpfulness during the summer months in assisting with social programs. Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch held at the same time a reception for their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. M. Faris, whose marriage took place at Buckingham on June 19th. A very large party of neighbors and friends were in attendance and a most enjoyable evening spent. The table was adorned with a huge wedding cake and streamers of white attached to the ceiling drooped down and were daintily fastened to each of the table corners. Amongst those who attended from a distance were Mrs. Faris, Miss E. Fuller, and Mr. M. Davis of Breckenridge also Mrs. S. Thompson, Thurso

LAKEFIELD

Right Reverend John Cragg Farthing, Lord Bishop of Montreal, visited the four churches in Lakefield parish on Sunday, June 28th. At 10 a.m. His Lordship celebrated the Holy Eucharist at Louisa, assisted by the Incumbent of the parish, Rev. C. W. P. Baugh. The address, based on the text "Worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness", was both inspiring and beneficial to the large congregation.

At 2 p.m. the Bishop, assisted by the Incumbent, conducted Evensong, followed by the Dedication Service, at St. Paul's, Dunany. Dr. Dumbille acted as organist. The Bishop congratulated the Incumbent and congregation on the wonderful improvements to the church building, then proceeded to dedicate the new Memorial Window, erected by Major Smith of Lachute, the one surviving son John, and his co-executor in memory of Samuel Smith, his wife and eleven children; also two altar vases donated by Mrs. Patterson. A new hymn board made and presented by Mr. Nelson Morrison, was also made a permanent fixture in the church.

At 4 p.m. a Confirmation Service was held in Shrewsbury, when five candidates for Confirmation were presented by Incumbent. His Lordship spoke very fittingly to the candidates, and urged each member to walk in the way of righteousness as a "member of Christ's body—the Church".

At 7 p.m. a Confirmation and Dedication Service was held in Holy Trinity Church, Lakefield. The service, conducted by His Lordship assisted by the Incumbent and Rev. W. C. LeCras of Lachute, was held in the presence of a congregation which filled the church to overflowing.

Fifteen candidates, eleven male and four female, were confirmed by the Bishop. The latter then proceeded to dedicate numerous new additions to the church. A beautiful Altar Cross, the gift of Mr. Robinson of Montreal, new Prayer Desk and Lectern Books, the gift of the relatives of the late George Rogers, a Memorial tablet erected by Mr. W. A. Rogers of Montreal, and a tablet erected by the W. A. and a number of summer residents, as a tribute for the work of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Mount, were dedicated. The choir, composed of thirteen members, led the singing, Rev. A. E. Mount acting as organist.

On the completion of his visitation His Lordship expressed gratitude and satisfaction at the progress of the Parish, under the incumbency of the Rev. Mr. Baugh. Rev. Baugh accompanied Bishop Farthing to the service at Mille Isles on Monday afternoon and also attended the service in Morin Heights on Monday night.

Among those passing the summer vacation at the Parsonage Lakefield, are Miss G. Baugh, B.A., of Three Rivers; Mary Baugh, B.A., Beatrice Baugh and Howard Baugh of Montreal. Miss Baugh recently completed her first year Arts Course at McGill University.

LAKEFIELD

This community wish to congratulate Miss Viola Silverson, whose marriage to Mr. Edgar Elder took place on Saturday of last week.

Amongst those who entertained in honor of the bride were Mrs. Owen Bingham, of Montreal, at a Towel shower; Mrs. Edgar Morrow, Lakefield, and Mrs. Geo. Silverson, Thos. Gore, at Miscellaneous showers. J9-2c.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Dr. Maude Abbott spent the week-end at her home here.

Miss Hilda Shaw is spending holidays with Dr. and Mrs. G. F. Shaw.

Mrs. J. W. Brown and little sons are spending the summer at their cottage here.

Mrs. W. C. Stonnard is in the city this week.

Miss Adria Dorion is the guest of her mother, Mrs. O. Dorion.

Among those of the teaching profession who have returned to spend the summer holidays in this neighborhood are Miss B. Woods, Miss E. Walsh, Miss B. Rodger, Miss M. Taylor, the Misses Kay and Ruth Bradley.

Mr. Robt. Woods is the guest of his grandparents, Rev. R. and Mrs. Miller.

Mr. Macaskill and family are leaving for Morwood, Ont., his new charge, Wednesday, July 1st.

Miss Alice Hooker and Mr. Edgar Hooker motored to Ste. Anne-de-Bellevue on Sunday, and spent the day with friends there.

The Presbyterian S. S. held their Annual Picnic on Monday at Mr. Albert MacDonell's beach on the Ottawa River.

Miss Janet Watson spent Dominion Day at her home on Lachute Road.

A committee of the C.G.I.T. called on Miss Mary Macaskill at the Manse and presented her with a beautiful handbag as a memento of many happy gatherings and camp-fires.

On the evening of June 26th., a number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Calder, gathered at their home and gave them a Surprise party, it being the 10th. anniversary of their wedding. A beautifully decorated box containing many useful Tin-wedding gifts was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Calder, after which Bridge and delicious refreshments were enjoyed.

Mrs. Windsor handed the certificate and Gold Cross Badge to Mrs. Bezanson, later pinning on the latter.

Mrs. Bezanson was much moved, and spoke feelingly of her affection for her fellow-members of this branch of the W. A.—of her appreciation of their willing co-operation and loyalty, and of her regret at leaving them. As a parting message, she besought them to pay special attention to the W. A. side of their work. While recognizing the importance of parochial needs, she yet felt the missionary needs to be, at this time especially, so urgent, that she hoped they would always keep the thought prominently before them.

The Guild and Choir presented Mrs. Bezanson with a small clock and marble letter weight, as a token of their affection and esteem.

St. Mungo's Church, Cushing Celebrates Centenary

Saturday and Sunday were gala days at Cushing. They were more, they were holy days. Families scattered o'er this Dominion and the Union were joined again; friends met with friends, and in the exercises of those days memory was stirred with recollection of the sainted dead.

The response in attendance and contribution was most gratifying to the committees in charge. These under the direction of the minister Rev. Jas. W. Maclean had laboured with the utmost devotion and that their effort was crowned with success is a cause of great thanksgiving.

The weather was ideal. The time was well planned. The multitudes were expectant. The old church was fresh from the hands of the renovators. The Choir was augmented with former member from abroad. Organists of an earlier day directed the service of praise and special speakers were invited for the occasion. Under such conditions it is not strange if there was an interest and spirit that any preacher might covet for his weekly service.

The Memorial Service at eleven Saturday morning inaugurated this historic celebration. Rev. J. W. Maclean conducted the devotions and introduced the son of the fourth minister, Mr. Fraser thanked the minister for kindly welcome and the congregation for the invitation. "There was no reason", he said, "why he should be chosen, only that this man was born here and because of the almost forty years of service of my father."

The text was Rev. 14-13. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth; Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours and their works do follow them."

The life and work of former ministers was briefly recalled and examples taken from some of the old families of what the training and teaching had meant to the world. The lesson was that each day and generation had its duty to perform and that no one could despise the day of small things.

Mrs. James MacAllister played with her accustomed skill. Dr. Ross had pressed her into the service at the age of fifteen. With intervals she directed the service of praise for over forty years in St. Mungo's and often on occasion since she has freely given of her help. As Edith Bradford she was presented with a silver tea set by the congregation on the eve of her marriage. Richard Bradford was her grandfather.

Dinner was served in the old stone hall, lately renewed and opened with these proceedings. After the bountiful spread for which the ladies of St. Mungo's are noted, the throng returned to the church for the services of greetings and God-speed. The minister was assisted in the reading and prayer by Rev. James M. Fraser, the speaker of the morning.

Mrs. Griffiths who had so ably assisted in the morning service sang appropriately "A Little Bit of Love". The speakers included representatives from surrounding places, sister

School Board Elections

Meetings for election of School Commissioners of the Protestant and Catholic Boards were held on Monday last. The lack of any opposition was not from point of indifference, but rather a tribute to the efficiency of those whose turn it was to retire, and Messrs. Dr. Mason and James W. Gall of the Protestant, with Messrs. P. Chabot and W. Lefebvre were again elected to carry on the good work.

TOWN COUNCIL

The regular meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the Town Hall on Thursday, July 2nd., there being present Dr. J. H. Mason, Mayor; and Aldermen J. Constantineau, W. J. Deacon, H. Lamarche, K. A. McOuat, F. Deslauriers, O. Laurin.

Following the reading of minutes which were duly approved, it was moved by Ald. Laurin, seconded by Ald. Constantineau, that the seigniorial rent roll will be homologated without any charge.

On motion of Ald. Deslauriers, seconded by Ald. Deacon, the council approved the Bell Telephone plan 2982 to replace poles on the Brownsburg Road.

It was moved by Ald. Lamarche, seconded by Ald. Deacon, that the secretary be instructed to write the C. P. R. calling their attention to the danger existing by the fact that their sidewalks have no railing at the crossing at the park, and also that they be requested to widen their crossing at the bridge.

Moved by Ald. K. McOuat, seconded by Ald. Deslauriers, that the roads department be requested to have some calcium spread on Grace Street.

It was also moved by Ald. Lamarche, seconded by Ald. Deacon, that the Roads committee be authorized to interview Mrs. W. J. Todd and other interested parties in connection with the purchase of right of way to open Grace Street in line with Milway Street.

BISHOP VISITS GRENVILLE PARISH

The venerable Bishop of Montreal visited the Parish of Grenville on Friday last, and conducted the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation. At Trinity Church, Calumet, nine were confirmed in the presence of a large congregation. At St. Matthew's Grenville, four were confirmed. The heavy rains and thunderstorms caused the congregation to be comparatively small. At each church the Rector presented the candidates and also read the Explanatory Introduction from the Prayer Book, including the Scripture passages which give authority for this Rite. The Bishop gave a helpful address to each class and also addressed both congregations on the general work of the Church. On the Sunday following all those who had been confirmed were communicants at Holy Communion.

St. Simeon's Sunday School

St. Simeon's Sunday School held their annual picnic on Saturday afternoon, July 4th., at Mr. John S. Pollock's grove. In spite of the inclemency of the weather a very encouraging number of children and parents turned out to enjoy the picnic.

The usual races and sports were keenly contested, and an egg and spoon race for the men and a rolling pin throwing contest caused much merriment.

Oranges, peanuts and ice cream were served to the children, and a basket lunch brought the happy afternoon to a close.

The prizes were distributed after supper and a few words of appreciation to the helpers were tendered by the Rector, this was followed by a hearty cheer for Mr. and Mrs. LeCras.

THE LATE WM. COWAN MILLER

There passed away at his home on Main Street, East Ward, on Saturday, July 4th., Wm. Cowan Miller, an old and respected member of this community.

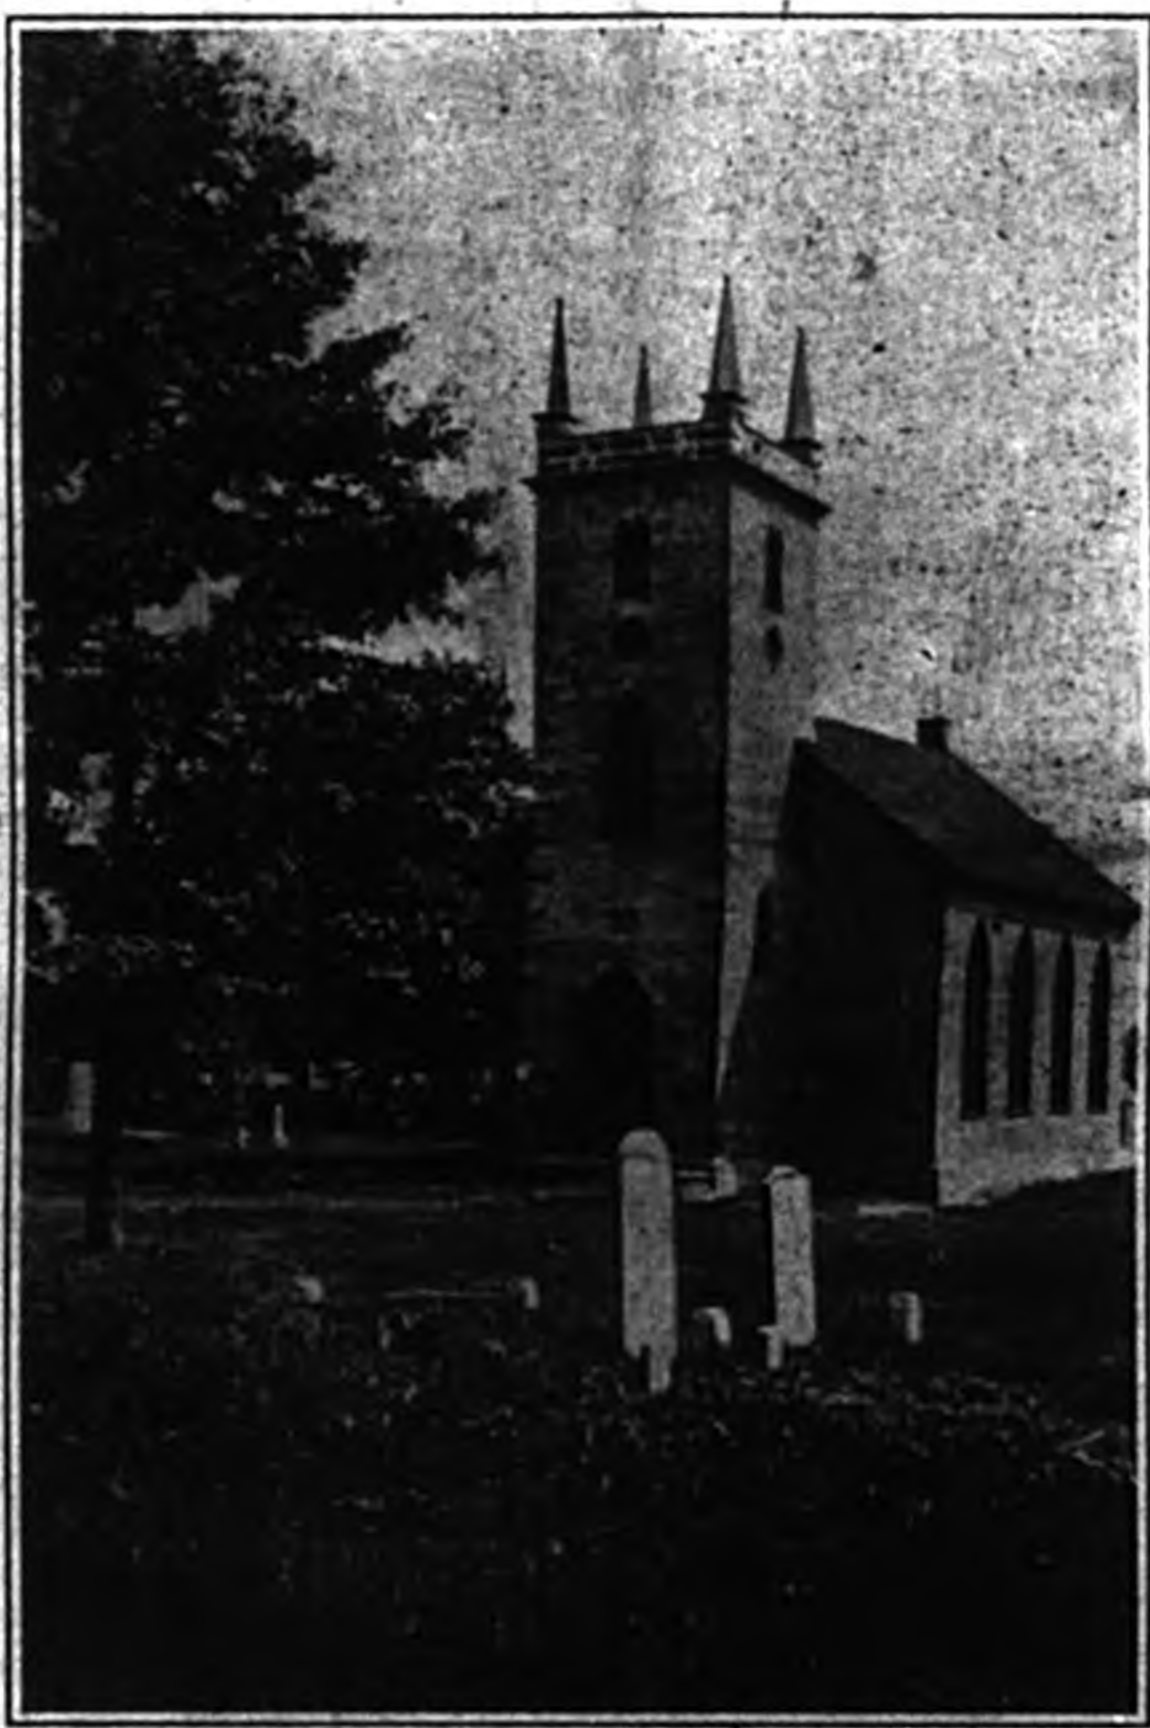

Born on June 15th., 1856, at Cote St. Louis, Two Mountains, he was the eldest son of the late Charles Miller and Mary Vart. His early life was spent in farming, afterwards going to California, Nevada and Montana, later returning to his native heath where he has since resided. He is survived by his widow Elizabeth Miller and two sisters, Mrs. Geo. Campbell of Montreal, and Mrs. A. Berry of Lachute.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, service being conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, with a large number of friends being in attendance. The remains were interred in the pretty little cemetery at Lachute in which he, with others, had taken such pride in beautifying.

ROBERT WORK DRAWS GOOD SENTENCE

Detective Robert, of the Provincial Police, made no mistake when he picked up four suspects at Lachute Fair. It was most fortunate for Mr. St. Jacques, that the men were caught with the $56.00 on them and that he was able to identify some of the bills. The prompt action of Robert put a crimp on their work or it is safe to bet these light fingered gentry would have lined up others in turn. However, they were landed at St. Jerome and at their trial this week before District Magistrate Donat Lalonde pleaded guilty and sentences were handed down as follows:

Larris was sentenced to two months for the theft and two months for vagrancy; Blurton was sentenced to six months on the theft charge and four months on the vagrancy charge; Abramovitch was given six months for the theft and three months for vagrancy. Silver was sentenced to four months for theft and three months for vagrancy.

Historic St. Mungo's, on the banks of the Ottawa river in Cushing; the old stone church which has stood as a monument to the pioneers of the district for 100 years, had its birthday celebrated on July 4th. and 5th. by services held in the church both of these days, and by a splendid concert on Saturday night, held in the Stone Hall, which is six years older.

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, July 7 — Improved seasonal employment conditions have led the King Government to announce a further 10 per cent cut in the monthly grants-in-aid to the provinces for direct relief for July, August, and September. The announced objective of the government last March for the closing of the federal relief camps for single unemployed men by Dominion Day has been achieved with 12,000 being given work on a railway maintenance-of-way program subsidized by the government and 657 on farms and the balance of 2,484 in general seasonal occupations.

For July, August, and September the federal government will pay a total of 2,345, monthly to the nine provinces for direct relief, compared with 1,751,250 monthly in the last months of the Bennett regime and $9,066,218 in the first four months of the King government during the mid-winter period when, in Canada, seasonal employment is at its lowest.

Bennett government direct relief monthly grants around October when it went out of office were as follows:—Prince Edward Island, $1,250; Nova Scotia, $40,000; New Brunswick, $25,000; Quebec, $500,000; Ontario, $600,000; Manitoba, $135,000; Alberta, $100,000; Saskatchewan, $200,000; British Columbia, $150,000.

Last November, for four months, these grants were increased by 75 per cent by the King government. They were cut 15 per cent for April, May and June, and now, under a further 10 per cent cut, the monthly grants to the provinces until the end of September, when the payments will be revised again in the light of conditions then obtaining, are as follows: Prince Edward Island, $2,844.85; Nova Scotia, $53,550; New Brunswick, $33,468.75; Quebec, $669,375; Ontario, $803,250; Manitoba, $180,781.25; Alberta, $133,875; Saskatchewan, $267,750; and British Columbia, $200,813.50.

Premier Godbout Promises Bonus to Farmers

Weddings

SEALE — MURDOCH

The marriage of Violet Lynda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Murdoch to Chester Willis Seale, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Seale, of Morin Heights, took place on Wednesday at the Dalesville Baptist Church which was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns. Mrs. C. Hardie played the wedding music, and sang "All Joy be Thine" during the signing of the register. The bride given away by her father, wore a sheer blue chiffon with long fitted lines, a large Milan straw hat trimmed with blue and carried Johanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Marjorie Murdoch, who was gowned in a flowered organza, and carried pink carnations and baby's breath. Mr. Thomas McCullough acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Kenneth Murdoch, brother of the bride and Mr. James Murdoch, cousin of the bride.

Following a reception at the home of the bride, Mr. Seale and his bride left for a motor trip through Vermont and New York; the bride travelling in a blue crepe silk suit with white accessories. On their return they will reside in Morin Heights.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. Johnston, Mrs. F. Squires from Montreal; Miss E. G. Perkins of Danville, Que.; Miss Margaret Lawrence, of St. Eustache, Que.

ELDER — SILVERSON

A quiet wedding took place at Lakefield, Que., on Saturday, June 27, at 11 o'clock, when Viola, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Silverson became the bride of Mr. Edgar Elder of Mille Isles.

The Rev. A. E. Mount performed the ceremony assisted by the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh. Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a pale blue pebble crepe ensemble, with large picture hat and accessories to match. The bride wore a corsage of pale pink roses and was attended by her sister, Miss Lena Silverson, while the groom was supported by Mr. Percy Williamson.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents. Only immediate relatives were present. Later Mr. and Mrs. Elder left for a motor trip to Ottawa and other points in Ontario.

Among those who previously entertained in honour of the bride were Mrs. Edgar Morrow, Lakefield; Mrs. Geo. Silverson, Thos. Gore; and Mrs. Owen Bingham of Montreal.

BISHOP FARTHING'S VISIT

The annual visit of the Bishop of Montreal to Lachute and Brownsburg, is always an event to which the people of St. Simeon's and St. George's look forward to with great pleasure. On Monday last the Bishop addressed a representative congregation at Brownsburg. On Tuesday at Lachute the Bishop conducted a "Quiet Day" for the Clergy of the Deanery; the subject of his talks was the "Purpose and Power of the Ministry." Drawing on a life net in spiritual experience his words were wonderfully helpful and greatly appreciated by those who were privileged to listen to him. In the evening the Rite of Confirmation was administered to a class of thirteen, and before a congregation which filled the church. The candidates were presented by the Premier Adelard Godbout of Quebec, has outlined the government's program which included farmers' bonuses and minimum wages for workmen not protected by a collective labor agreement.

The premier combined his outline of government policy with a plea for clean elections and added the promise that in future "members of the government will not be allowed to be directors of companies which have business with the government."

"During the weeks preceding the vote, more details of the Liberal platform will be unfolded but I want an honest election and also an election limited to honest and frank discussion of the issues," the premier said.

Aid to Farmers.

Speaking to the province's farmers, Mr. Godbout who is also agriculture minister, said the problem of the land was one of economic necessity and logical economic policy demanded that all efforts be made towards agricultural expansion.

"Farmers established in old rural centers will receive a bonus of $10 an acre, up to five acres, each year, for lands which need to be cleansed, drained and otherwise placed in a state for proper culture," he said.

And to help the farmer meet foreign competition the government planned a butter bonus of three cents a pound and a bonus of 1½ cents a pound on cheese to run from Oct. 1 to May 1 to compensate for high winter production costs.

Bonus Proposed

From Nov. 1 to Aug. 1, he said, the government proposed to pay a bonus of $1.50 for each pig raised by Quebec farmers and classified as "select" and $1 for each pig classified as "bacon."

From Aug. 1 to Nov. 1 these bonuses would be $1 and 75 cts. respectively. In addition the premier said the government planned to pay 25 per cent of the cost of building modern pigeries with a minimum of $100 a piggery.

"As another step to aid agriculture, the government will appropriate $2,500,000 to intensify the policy of land drainage," the premier said. "The sugar beet industry will be stimulated by bonus payments and the government will lend special efforts towards stock breeding."

On Colonization.

The premier promised $5,000,000 would be directed towards colonization. "Colonists will be chosen for their integrity and competence and bonuses for clearings will be raised from $10 to $15 an acre up to five acres a year and until 30 acres have been cleared and put into cultivation and 20 acres actually plowed," he said.

"In effect, bonuses which are deserved should replace allocations for unemployment here, as elsewhere," added the premier. "Relief works will replace charity."

Rector, Rev. W. LeCras, Rev. Rural Dean R. S. Booy read the scripture part of the service and also presented two candidates from St. Andrews East. Reverends G. Addie, Rawdon, and C. Stone, Montebello, were also in the Chancel.

The Bishop congratulated both parishes on the work done during the past year, and pleaded for a continued interest in the cause of Missions which had suffered considerably because of the prolonged financial depression. The clergy were guests at the Rectory with the assistance of the Ladies' Guild.

A CENTURY OLD SERMON

The 100th. anniversary services of St. Mungo's Church, Cushing, is causing deep interest in this community and many are looking forward to the reunion of old time friends. Getting back to the "Good Old Days" as some are often being reminded, the Rev. Mr. Maclean took advantage of the occasion to read a sermon preached by Rev. Wm. Mair, in 1834, and which is reproduced herewith.

This sermon was preached by the Rev. Wm. Mair, the first Presbyterian minister in charge of Cushing services, then known as Chatham. It is more than a century old, as it was first preached at Grenville in 1834. Grenville Augmentation, Chatham and Hawkesbury Mills all being preaching stations at that time. Rev. Mr. Mair's text was taken from Matthew 5-16 "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your father which is in Heaven."

The conduct of good men is here very beautifully denominated light, to intimate, no doubt, its intrinsic excellence and universal utility. Light is that fluid which discloses to us the greatness and grandeur of external creation; virtue is that which displays the dignity and heavenly origin of the soul. Light spreads cheerfulness and joy over the whole animated world; virtue diffuses delight and satisfaction through the mind of the virtuous man and over the sphere in which he moves.

This light, all who are possessed of it, are required by our Lord in the text, to let it shine before men, and the purpose for which we are enjoined to do so is, that others seeing our good works, may be led to glorify our Father which is in heaven.

This passage is evident opposition to a practice which prevailed at no great distance of time, in the christian church to a very wide extent. The practice to which I allude is that of retiring from the world of living, as was the case in nunneries and cloisters, completely secluded from all intercourse with men. Besides that, such a practice is perfectly irrational when considered as an expression of religious devotedness or self denial since it removed the person, who betook himself to it, from the field of trial and exertion. Even although these recluses had kept themselves free from the more common sins, which originate from mingling with society, there would have been little praiseworthy in such purity. Where there is no opposition there can be no victory, and where there is no vicious temptation there can scarcely be that which we account virtue. But besides this, as we have said, such a practice is clearly and peremptorily discountenanced by this text and many others of the New Testament which might be stated.

It must be remarked, however, that although in this passage, Christ commends his followers to let their good deeds shine before men, we are not to suppose that he intended an ostentatious display of our religious behaviour. The reason subjoined to the precept must never be lost sight of, that others seeing our good works may glorify our Father in heaven. If we make a great deal ado about our religion and our religious experience, wherever we are, in whatever situation or circumstances, and that too for the purpose of passing in the world as persons of uncommon sanctity, let it be understood that this is not the sense in which the injunction in the text is to be taken. This was precisely what our Lord censures so frequently and so noigmantly in the conduct of the Pharisees. Such a display of religious feeling and impression, the world has learned long to suspect, because it has found from sad experience that it is not incompatible with the basest duplicity and fraud. Such a trumpet, the genuine disciple of Christ does not need, and does not use. He lets his light shine before men, it is true, but it is not in words, or looks, or dress, it is in the uniform conformity of his actions with the revealed will of God. He is above telling the world that he is pious, forgiving, humble, charitable. He lets them see it by the sober, modest, relenting, merciful and compassionate acts of his life. It is in this way he puts the world in possession of the important fact that he is a Christian, and he does it for various reasons, which all are agreeable to the laws of his Master, and among the rest, for this one, that he may bring others to glorify his Father which is in heaven; that he may persuade them to adopt the same faith and follow the same conduct with himself.

That this mode of gaining over the wicked and unbelieving to the knowledge and obedience of the truth will be efficient, by the blessing of God, is what we intend to show in the subsequent observations: and in the conclusion of the discourse, we shall endeavour to prove that this is our duty.

We are to show them, in the first place, that the conduct herein calculated by Christ upon all his followers, to let their light shine before men, will, under the divine blessing, be efficient to produce in wicked and unbelieving men a desire to glorify their Father who is in heaven.

There is no principle perhaps stronger in our constitution, certain it is that none shows itself sooner, than the principle of imitation. In childhood it is by this principle that we acquire the rudiments of language, and it is by the same power that we acquire habits which, in the greatest number of instances, cling to us through out the remainder of life. Indeed, imitation appears to be the first and chief organ of improvement in early life. Hence it is that bodily and mental habits are formed long before we have arrived at that age, when we are capable of perceiving their utility or danger. But for the difficulty we find in tracing out the different sources of our opinions and habits, we should, I conceive, upon investigation, discover that more than the half of them originate in imitation. Several of our corporeal habits we can easily follow to their sources and are ready enough to allow, in most cases, that they derived their birth from imitation. But there is a certain pride which most men feel, in wishing to be thought to form opinions for themselves. From a desire therefore to conceal from the world the fact of their imitating others, in thinking as well as acting, they come to persuade their own minds that their opinions are all of their own forming, that in so far as the principles of belief go they have been totally independent of every one. But the truth is much otherwise. Our opinions, as well as the great majority of our bodily habits take their rise, in a great measure, from imitating some individual, living or dead. Few men act independently of others. To prove how insensibly and how generally we are influenced by imitation we need only to reflect what a resemblance in speaking, in acting and in thinking, prevails among the inhabitants of the same district, city or nation. Those who in early life have from any particular cause been removed from the place of their birth exhibit a kind of mixed character, both in a mental and bodily point of view. They retain some portion of these habits intellectual and corporeal which form the principle of imitation they formed when at home, and mixed up with these, some others which they acquired when among strangers. In short such persons exhibit on all occasions

Land, Industry, Valuation and Taxation

The next property I was interested in was an old wood yard that I had bought somewhat over twenty years ago for $60.00 and at the time of my purchase most every one called me a fool for buying it at all and as land has much depreciated in value here since then the valuers now value it at $100.00 and naturally I rebel at that figure to no purpose. The Mayor said I might improve the property and build on it and make money out of it and I might do a number of other things and increase its valuation. I told him I would be taxed more highly than ever if I did, but all I said was ignored and the councillors proceeded until they came to a property that I had been interested in for some time and repeatedly attempted to have its valuation reduced to no purpose. In the mean time said property had been purchased by a brother-in-law of one of the valuers and down came the valuation, in spite of the fact that buildings had been put into repair and houses were rented, I remarked about this circumstance and again the mayor gave as a reason that the valuers must be supported in their work and as before no heed was paid to my exception to the case and the council in a body continued to make a check up of the work of the valuers until they came to a property recently purchased in a great state of delapidation by a Montreal doctor. The chimneys were falling down, the front gallery had rotted away, the roofs were all leaking and indeed, the house and all the outbuildings were fast falling into decay and if it was to be saved at all, desperate measures had to be applied and at once, and before it could be satisfactorily repaired a great lot of tearing down had to be done before any building up could be accomplished. Even before the place could be approached, with a truck half loaded with material for its repair, the road had to be fixed, as a half loaded truck made the attempt with sorry results. It went through the road and stuck axle deep in soft mud and before it could be extricated its partial load had to be drawn away piece-meal with buildings on the place, viz: a horses and wagons. The best 30 by 40 foot barn was reserved by the seller and rolled away onto the next lot leaving the stones of its foundation staring you in the face like a bad debt you were not able to meet together with stones of the foundation of a former barn that had some years previously been burned down and left there staring you out of countenance as well, like monuments of departed greatness there they stood to remind one of better days. Such were the conditions of the place at the time of purchase, and to obviate all this and make the place habitable at all, old sheds and back kitchens had to be torn down never to be rebuilt while those that were allowed to remain had to be re-roofed and the chimneys had to be rebuilt and repaired generally for from cellar to attic things were out of gig and required repair so some lumber was necessary and had to be bought for a commencement. Then all of a sudden the valuers appeared and increased the valuation of the place and among them the mill-owner from whom the lumber had been bought to make the repair, but he paid no heed to the fact that on account of the sales of lumber he had made his property had become more valuable to a certain extent, nor yet did he remark about the buildings that had been torn down or rolled away off the property. He was for raising the valuation of the property particularly as the lumber that he had sold had gone into new roofs and the stones that had belonged to the two barn foundations had been straightened up to some extent to relieve their unsightly appearance and made into a regular pile and rock plants planted among them and in the other case of the old foundation the rocks were covered and leveled and made into a tennis lawn.

Men for railway work were drawn from the 163 government camps as follows: Nova Scotia, 244; New Brunswick, 491; Quebec, 1,256; Ontario, 2,695; Manitoba, 891; Saskatchewan, 660; Alberta, 901; British Columbia, 1,715, a total of 8,853 men. From other sources the railways took on 2,297 additional men.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures showed a gain of 23,295 persons employed by 9,690 reporting firms on June 1, as compared with May 1. Compared with June 1, 1935, an increase of 47,721 was shown in the number employed. The report showed 963,513 employed as of June 1. Improvement was reported in manufacturing, particularly in the food and lumber divisions. There were important increases noted in logging, mining, communications, transportation, highway and railway construction and maintenance, services and trade.

In its latest telegraphic crop report issued on June 30, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported dry weather has caused a general and serious reduction in crop prospects in the Prairie provinces. Effective rainfall of the previous week was limited to the Peace River district and parts of east-central Saskatchewan. It was stated that the need of rain was urgent and many reports indicated already serious drought damage. Conditions in the wheat belt in the mid-western United States have been even worse and such as to have eliminated that country as an exporter of wheat this year.

Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner at London, spoke Canada's mind at the League of Nations meeting at Geneva this past week in favor of the lifting of economic sanctions imposed against Italy at the outset of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict. Canada's other delegates at this meeting are Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister at Paris, Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canada's permanent resident representative to the league of External affairs at Ottawa.

Three of the younger members of Parliament, Denton Massey, Conservative, Toronto, Rev. T. C. Douglas, C.C.F., Weyburn, Sask., and Paul Martin, Liberal, Windsor, Ont., will be among the Canadian delegates to the World Youth Congress to be held at Geneva beginning August 31.

Automobile accidents killed 1,224 persons in 1935, compared with 1,115 in 1934; the Bureau of Statistics reported. Montreal had 109 killed by automobiles; Toronto, 74; Vancouver, 43; Winnipeg, 24; Hamilton, 16; Quebec City, 17; and Ottawa, 25. There were 877 drownings during the year.

Lady Byng and Lady Currie, widows of former Canadian corps commanders in France during the Great War have been invited to be the Government's guests at the Vimy Ridge memorial unveiling on July 26.

The death of F. W. Perras, Liberal member for Wright, Que., created a vacancy in the House of Commons, the second by death since last October.

Justice W. F. A. Turgeon, Saskatchewan, is to be a one-man royal commissioner to investigate all phases of Canada's wheat problem.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 12th., is "Sacrament."

The Golden Text is: "To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased." (Hebrews 13:16).

"And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him. . . . And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you." (Luke 22:14, 19, 20).

"The true sense is spiritually lost, if the sacrament is confined to the use of bread and wine. The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual signification, it was natural and beautiful. Jesus prayed; he withdrew from the material senses to refresh his heart with brighter, with spiritual views." (Science and Health, page 32).

traits of domestic and foreign character and leave one ignorant of their history, at a loss to what nation he should assign them. For the same purpose we might refer to the identity almost of character which is seen in the same family; to the minute and nice copyings of imitation which are sometimes seen in the circle of close and intimate friendship. But every one who at all looks at the world as he passes through it, let his medium of conversation be ever so contracted, must be quite satisfied that the principle of which we have been treating is one of the widest and strongest influences.

Now, in order to make these remarks bear on the subject before us let it be further observed, that the principle of imitation is of a very indiscriminating kind. It too generally takes up just what is given it, without stopping to examine its qualities. Hence it is that we are just as ready to copy what is bad as what is good; nay from a tendency in our nature, which revelation can only explain, we are more prone to follow that which is vicious than that which is agreeable to the will of our Maker.

It is true that friendship and intercourse often encourage imitation. But it is equally true that the bad qualities of our friends or associates are apt to become the subjects of imitation as their good ones.

Now from these reflections upon the extent and power of the imitative faculty, if they are well founded, and it is presumed that experience will certify most of them, it will, appear how effectual the example of the good may be made, in overcoming the evil habits of the vicious, and removing the ill-founded objections of infidels to the truth of our religion. There is a danger of too much indulgence being given to men of profligate lives. A more marked and decided discountenance should be shown them by the friends of virtue and christianity.

Since they are determined to take liberties which are at variance with the laws of God and hostile to the happiness and comfort of society, they should be forced to pay for their liberties. Men of confirmed piety and benignity of mind, however, are perhaps disposed to yield too much scope to the vicious. They are apt to obscure and darken the brilliancy of their character out of mere sympathy to the creatures of totally abandoned behaviour. But such sympathy is beyond all question injudicious, as it tends to conceal from the infatuated object of it the enormity and danger of his guilt. Let the christian allow the native excellencies of his heart and conduct at all times to appear in their full and glowing dimensions. Let his awful and trembling fear of offending God manifest itself in his conversation and the blasphemer will learn in time to speak less inadvisedly with his lips. Let him impress by his actions a rooted and permanent hatred to all impurity and those who are addicted to such practices will at least lose the opportunity of feasting their polluted imagination through the medium of language. Let him in all his transactions with the world, in the most secret as well as open, abide by the sacred and simple rules of justice and the dishonest will be alarmed into honesty. Let the christian evince on all occasions a proper regard to truth and integrity and the liar and dissembler will insensibly slide into an adoption of such plans as are consistent with these virtues. Let the professed discipline of Christ, in imitation of his Master, display on every opportunity a quick and lively sensibility whenever he discovers distress of whatever kind, whether it arises from poverty, disease or oppression, and the cruel and unfeeling will hide their heads. Let him in a word, express in the broad and legible characters of a good life, his firm adherence to the Gospel of the son of God. Let christians of every rank and station, whether they move in the higher the middle or lower ranks of life, let them act in this way and to act in this way is what is implied in being followers of Christ and how many out of love, of reverence, out of fear, out of dependance, will sit down to copy their excellences into their own character. If every christian parent were to act in this way, instead of the deformed ugly portraits which they insensibly draw and imitate, how would their children come forward to the world adorned with all the mild but manly virtues of christianity. How seldom should we have the first efforts at articulation exemplified in blaspheming the name of the Great Being from whom they so lately received existence. If every master were to hold out to his servants such an array of heavenly graces, then instead of borrowing the oaths and aping upon a lower scale the vices of their superiors, we shall find servants honest, faithful, kind and pious.

In short, if every man, let his sphere or exposure be what it may, high or low, act in obedience to the directions of his religion it is not extravagant to calculate that an immense reduction of the open vices of vice would be the result. Bad men as well as good are capable of imitation. Only give them, as far as you are concerned, christian conduct to imitate and they will gradually drop their present appearance and assume, perhaps to themselves, imperceptibly, an aspect and demeanor altogether different. The reason that so many are found in a christian land devoid of all taste for religion, and completely absorbed in the gratification of their passions, is not because the principle of imitating what is right is dormant or that its energies are spent upon sin, but it is because they have so little different from themselves to imitate in the believers of the Gospel. The wickedest man finds always some points of resemblance between himself and others. If he is dishonest he pacifies his conscience with reflecting that there are so many who make a greater noise about religion than he does, who are chargeable with perhaps a greater share of deceit and knavery than he is, and so on, of all the other violations of the divine law.

People will never be right in their economics until they are right in their hearts.

Hating the strong never helped the weak.

Fatality by Drunken Driver JURY FINDS MARTEL CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE

Armand Martel, 28 years old, electrician, of St. Therese, was held criminally responsible for the death of Chrysane Paquette of St. Jerome, who died on the 6th. of July at Hotel Dieu, Montreal, from injuries of the accident which happened on the road from St. Hermas to Lachute on the night of Friday, July 3rd. On the request of coroner J. R. Brais on Tuesday, at the Court House in St. Jerome, an inquest was held and the jury in less than two minutes found the prisoner guilty as above, the verdict being given at 1.45.

From the story told by Martel at the inquest a straight admission was made that they had been drinking at St. Therese, Belle Riviere, and St. Hermas, which is condemnation enough without that of being found driving on a much travelled road without a licence. Expressed regrets is poor compensation for the death of Paquette which occurred in hospital three days after the accident. Too much leniency is extended towards those hailed before legal authorities on charges of driving under the influence of liquor. The laws in this particular should and must be rigidly enforced.

churches, and of government. Regrets for absence were read and greetings conveyed from Lord Tweedsmuir, Sir Geo. H. Perley, Rev. F. L. Jobb, Dr. Paterson, Mrs. DeGruchier, Mrs. Catherine King of Shanghai and Mrs. Grace Schagel Webb of California. Donations of $155. were enclosed.

Rev. Mr. Maclean gave a sketch of the congregation. Three churches were built under Mr. Mair's ministry, St. Mungo's, St. Giles and the original of the Hawkesbury church. In later times and even before his death Hawkesbury was separated.

Mr. Arch. C. Kains was present to represent Sir George H. Perley. He quoted from a letter of his grandfather Archibald MacMillan of Grenville regarding the state of the early settlers.

Rev. W. B. Rosborough of Lachute, referred to his part in the induction and ordination of the morning speaker at Black River Bridge, N.B., nineteen years ago and of the baptism of John Robertson, his third son. He referred to the wisdom of the present celebration quoting: "A people who take no pride in the worthy achievements of remote ancestors will never accomplish anything worthy of pride by remote descendants." Also the words of Joseph Howe, "A wise nation preserves its records." What was true of a country was true also of a church. He congratulated Mr. Maclean and his noble band of helpers.

Mr. Macfarlane of Vankleek Hill, referred to the wish regarding the morning speaker that his father and mother could have seen him. Somehow, he said, in a way he could feel rather than describe, he knew they were even now rejoicing with us.

With the many voices and many gods of today, we need the church and the Christian message as never before.

He closed with the wish that one hundred years from now the recollections of two hundred years could be manifest in the work of God.

Rev. Mr. Cousens of the Presbyterian Church, Lachute, appeared in a threefold capacity. First, as a former student minister with grateful recollections of welcome here. Second, as from a sister church and third as representing the Presbytery of Montreal, as such he said, "I assure you of our cordial greetings. The day is part when one communion can rejoice in growth at the expense of another. It is our hope and prayer that you and your congregation may prosper and that this church may continue to minister to many generations.

Mr. Porteous of Grenville, brought greetings of a sister church also over the century mark.

Rev. Norman Dowd of Ottawa, referred to the best sermon ever preached by Mr. Fraser, as that which he preached by his ministrations in the homes of his people. I know personally of the sad news he had at times to break and of the broken hearts he had to bind up. I like to think I am associated with this people as they cross the bounds of a new century.

Dr. Harold Cushing recalled the days when the Cushing family occupied the large square pew to the right of the minister. Many scenes had been recalled as he sat in the morning service in the old pew. His address of reminiscence concluded with the sincerest of wishes for the days to be.

Dr. Ben Wales of Cushing, represented St. Andrews. He too recalled earlier days, especially a visit to the old Stone Hall seventy years ago, where the entertainment was given entirely by the Cushing brothers. This was at a Christmas festival and the crowds were astonished with their conjuring tricks and their gymnastic performances.

CUSHING WEST

Mrs. Jas. Harcourt and two little sons of New Glasgow and Mr. A. C. Pinkerton, of Montreal, were guests of Mr. Pinkerton Sr. over the week-end.

Guests of Dr. Cushing during the Centenary celebrations of St. Mungo's last week-end were the Misses Ross of Kingston, and Miss Barron of Lachute. Miss Helen Byers was also a guest of Miss Marjorie Cushing over the week-end.

Mrs. Elvira Connor, of Boston, Mass., who is visiting relatives in this locality is a guest of her niece, Mrs. C. F. Watson, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Whelehan, of Montreal, arrived on Saturday and will occupy their residence here for the months of July and August.

Miss Grace Whelehan, of Montreal, is spending a two weeks' vacation with her sister, Mrs. Douglas Hartley.

Mrs. Usher was the hostess of a large family party during the Centenary celebrations. These included her sons, the Messrs. Owen and Franklyn Keatley of Ottawa; her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wishart of Belleville, with their little daughters, the Rev. and Mrs. Norman Dowd of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Watson of Maniwaki, and Mr. W. J. Holliday of Montreal, Mr. Murray Watson of Detroit, also motored in and visited his mother, Mrs. Jas. Watson, and other relatives during the celebrations.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Reilly, of Ottawa, also Mr. and Mrs. Sayers of Montreal, were guests at Mrs. C. L. Cooke's for the Centenary celebrations.

Mrs. Malcolm McNaughton with her daughters, Mary and Helen, and son, Fraser, of Black River, N. B., who was a guest of Miss Whelehan for the St. Mungo's Centenary is spending part of this week in Ottawa as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Kains.

Miss May Fraser, of Montreal, and Mr. A. of Ottawa, were guests of their cousin, Mrs. M. McNaughton at the home of Mr. Whelehan, on Sunday.

Alderman J. A. Forward, of Ottawa, accompanied by Mrs. Forward and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kyle were callers at Mr. Whelehan's on Sunday, having motored down for the morning services at St. Mungo's. Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Whinfield of Calumet, were also visitors at Mr. Whelehan's on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McMurtrie, of Toronto, who are spending the summer with Mrs. McMurtrie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Kennedy at Owen Sound, motored down and spent last week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Whinfield at Calumet, and also spent a day visiting friends in this vicinity.

NEW BASEBALL BOOK BY "SHAG" OFFERED FREE OF CHARGE

Something that is bound to appeal to every baseball fan, young or old, is the new booklet, "Baseball and How to Play It", written by Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy and published in attractive form by The Canada Starch Company. The famous manager of the Montreal "Royals" is an ardent lover of the game, and in his book his enthusiasm for baseball is manifest, making most interesting reading.

Step by step, "Shag" explains how every position on the field should be played, the chapter on "Pitching" being one of the clearest expositions of how the different curves and "fast ones" are thrown, ever to appear in print. Illustrations help to make the author's points easily grasped, and the sections dealing with methods of training, as well as the brief resume of the rules of baseball, are especially valuable to players, young and old. This book can be obtained in either English or French.

The Canada Starch Company are offering to send this booklet free to anyone who writes name, address and the words, "Baseball Book", on the back of a label from a tin of "CROWN BRAND" or "LILY WHITE CORN SYRUP" and send it to them.

Social Policy

Turning to the government's social policy, he said: "Workmen not protected by a collective labor agreement extension law will be protected by a minimum wage law fixed by the legislature."

"Lumberjacks will be given the same rates of pay as those employed on the public domain and injured workmen will have the right to select their own physicians. Fees will be set with the co-operation of the College of Surgeons and Physicians."

The premier said there will be a family allowance to maintain widows and orphans and the government will pay for educating one child in large families. Pensions of retired school teachers will be raised to their old levels.

Mr. Godbout re-affirmed his statement of two weeks ago that the government's policy called for a parliamentary commission to probe the provincial administration and make recommendations to the government.

ARE YOU ON THE BORDERLINE OF ACTUAL SICKNESS?

Constipation* Causes Discomfort, May Lead to More Serious Troubles

You may have days, perhaps even weeks, when you feel below par. Not sick enough to go to bed, but certainly not at your best. The trouble may be with your diet. Poorly balanced meals can affect your physical condition.

Meals which lack proper "bulk," for instance, may lead to common constipation. Continued neglect of this condition causes discomfort, may lead to headaches, poor appetite, listlessness.

Guard against common constipation.* Make sure the meals you eat contain plenty of "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a generous source of effective "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, and gently cleanses the system.

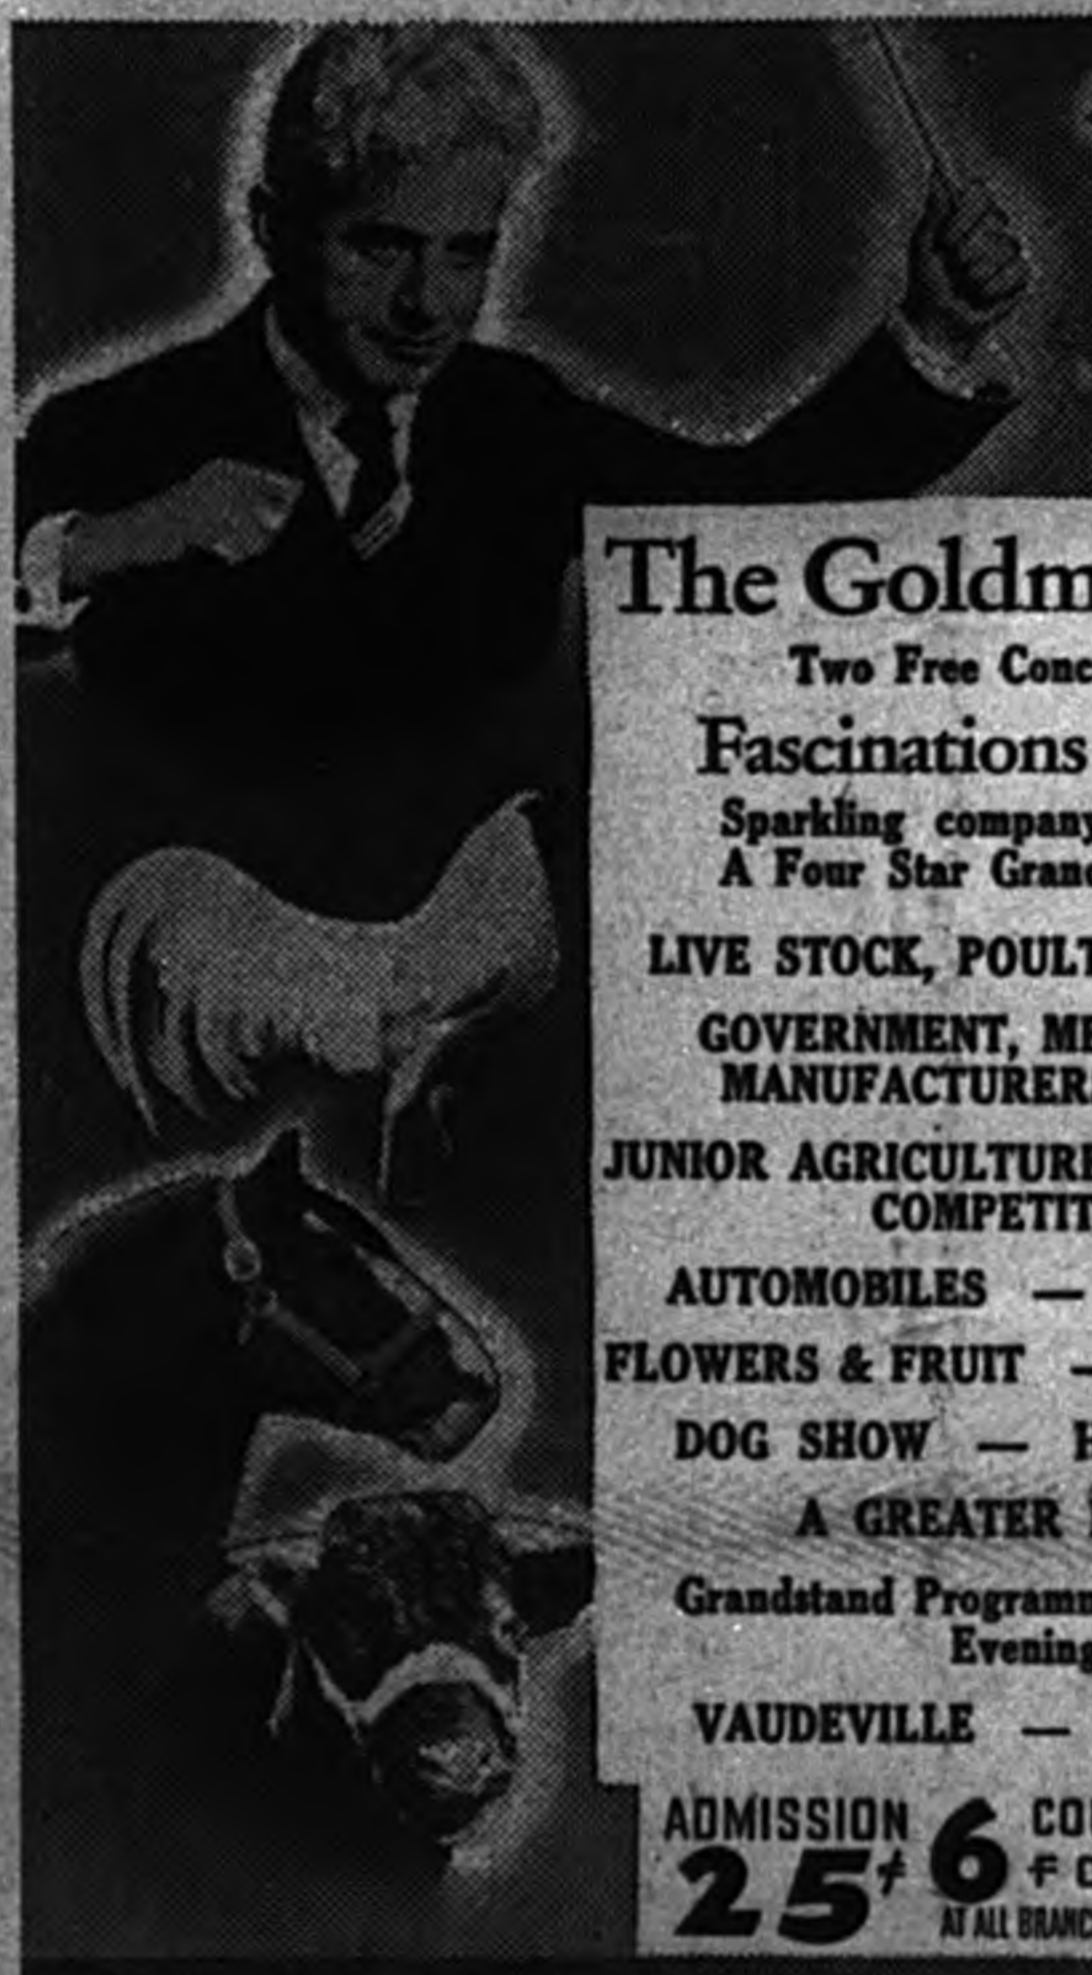

Two tablespoonfuls daily, with milk or cream, are usually sufficient. Stubbish cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. Serve ALL-BRAN either as a cereal, or cooked into muffins, breads, etc. Eat it regularly for regular habits.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held on Wednesday last. The committee appointed at last meeting, to see probable cost of widening Water Street, reported that Mr. Bonhomme had offered 10 feet in width off the property reaching from Main to back street for the sum of $850., for which sum he also agreed to make and put the road in good order.

Dominion Day, the 39th. anniversary of Confederation, was joyfully observed in all parts of Canada. The rapid development of the resources of the country, revealing undreamed of mineral and agricultural wealth has inspired the people with hope, confidence and cheer and the national birthday, therefore, was generally and heartily celebrated.

The many friends of Mr. A. D. Kennedy will learn with regret that his Western trip of last year has fully convinced him of the fact that Port Arthur offers him greater business advantages than his present location. Mr. Kennedy expects to leave for Port Arthur in August.

St. Andrews—The closing exercise of the Sacred Heart Convent of St. Andrews took place on Tuesday of last week. The contest between the English and French course, for the gold medal was won by Miss Murphy of Carillon.

SNOW SHOWERS IN JULY

By Aunt Jean

"Mummie it snowed last night", said little Laura May, Her face pressed to the window-pane

Just at the break of day.

"My garden bed is laden quite I hope there comes some showers

The horrid snow that came last night

Has covered all my flowers."

Right out of doors she hurried

But paused in deep surprise

Beside the snowy flower-bed

And gazed with startled eyes.

"Oh mother come and see", she cried

"It hasn't been the weather,

My pretty little white rosebush

Has just lost every feather."

"Jetty Land!" she gasped in surprise. "Jetty Land, why I never heard of the place before." Getting out of her chair she went around behind it to see where the voice was coming from and saw that the funny crack in the wall of the nursery was much larger than it had ever been before. It was just like a high arched doorway. In this doorway stood a large brown mouse, sleek and fat.

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

The North Waterloo Boy Scouts Association has leased 65 acres of land on the Grand River as a district camp site.

And now the Scouts and Guides have paid their tribute to the famous Dionne Quints. Five summer cabins built at Okema Beach, northern Saskatchewan, have been named after the little "prospective Guides."

HE UNDERSTOOD BOYS PERFECTLY

"We must thank Lord Baden-Powell for founding the Boy Scout Movement. There is no doubt that he is one of the greatest of psychologists, and must have understood boys perfectly." — His Eminence Cardinal Villeneuve at the present rally of Quebec Scouts Catholics.

JR. FOREST WARDENS TO BECOME SCOUTS

Steps toward enrollment of the Junior Forest Wardens of the Quebec branch of the Canadian Forestry Association as Lone Scouts of the Boy Scouts Association were announced at the annual conference of Quebec Scouters at Granby. The announcement was made by Provincial Commissioner T. H. Wardleworth. The woodcraft qualifications of the Junior Forest Wardens are similar in general to those of a Second Class Scout.

1937 WORLD SCOUT JAM- BOREE NEAR HAARLEM, HOLLAND

The scene of the World Boy Scout Jamboree of 1937 has been definitely fixed at Vogelenzang, Bloemendaal, a village ten miles west of Amsterdam, and two miles north of ancient Haarlem, Holland. The dates probably will be July 31st. to August 13th., with the official opening on August 2nd. There will be ten sub-camps, of 3,000 Scouts each, and the Camp Chief will be Colonel A. Diemont Chief Commissioner of the Dutch Scouts, De Nederlandsche Padvindes.

Adversity is like the period of the former and latter rains—cold, comfortless, unfriendly to man and to animal; yet from thence come on the flower and the fruit, the date, the rose, and the pomegranate."

CORDELIA'S ADVENTURES IN JETTYLAND

Cordelia was sitting by the fireplace in her tiny rocker watching the dancing flames. It was almost her bedtime. She was sorry that it was so near as she did not want to go to bed. She had had quite enough of being in bed for the last week. She was just recovering from the measles, the horrid things had made her miss so many pleasures, among them going to the country with Ted and Baby May, so she thought that she should be allowed to stay up later than usual each evening to make up for some of the lost time, but Julia knew that would be against the doctor's orders and saw to it that her little charge went to bed in good time. She told Cordelia that if she wanted to get strong and well again and get out to grandma's farm for a little visit before Ted and Baby May came home she would have to go to bed early.

Cordelia wanted more than anything to be in the country with grandma, who had had the measles so often that she said she simply could not take them again, but her small cousins had not had them so Cordelia had to be left in town until the danger of infection was over. Tonight her nurse had been called downstairs to speak to a visitor. She had not wished to leave Cordelia alone and had asked Katie the cook, to sit with her but it was Katie's evening out and her friend was as Katie said "Waiten" for her at the back dure this minit, so of course she could not be expected to stay.

"I'll be all right alone until you come back. I'll just sit her magnin that I can see mother and Ted and Baby May out at Grandma's until you come back." "Magnin pictures" was one of Cordelia's chief delights.

As she sat there waiting, the fire burned lower and lower, dark shadows gathered behind chairs and tables until she began to wish that Julia would come back as she had not lighted the lights in the room before she left. The thought of the little grey mouse she had rescued from her grandma's water tank came to her mind and she began to feel pleasantly happy at the thought of her good deed, and was just snuggling down into the cushions of her chair when a voice close behind her startled her by saying, "Just what are you doing her at this hour of the night, right at the door way of Jetty Land. Are you lost? Perhaps that is the reason you are out so late."

Cordelia felt quite frightened when she heard that voice.

SQUEEZING ALL THE GOODNESS OUT

The other day I watched a child with an orange. He bit a chunk out of the end opposite the stem. "Why did you start it there?" I asked. "Because", he answered, "it hangs by the stem when it grows and most of the juice is down here. Anyways it draws out here better." As he sucked on the skinf of liquid sunshine, his chubby fingers squeezed and squeezed. "That's the way to get all the goodness out" he said.

And I thought to myself, how thorough! Why not take a bit of poetry today and turn it over and over in the mind, to see where the best thought should come out, and then mentally pummel it until I too "squeeze all the goodness out."

I tried it. It works swell. Only I didn't throw the shell away. It's still good. It's full of liquid sunshine. Have some? It's called "The Great Lover" and it's by Rupert Brooke.

GEORGE IV

The impression that the English histories give of George IV is that of an extravagant sensual, profligate king. I have just read Fulford's "George IV" and he gives him credit for doing considerable in encouraging the arts and literature, and finds excuses for many of his shortcomings. He helped found the National Gallery, made collections of old masters for the palaces, established libraries, as he was one king who read, and was a patron of architecture. Those are some of the good things. Now for the other side of the story. George III was jealous of his oldest son, a situation that is rather frequently to be found in royal families. So the king did not give the prince an allowance sufficient to keep up his position, his allowance being much smaller than many of his friends. Naturally he got in debt. He was married to a woman he had never seen while he was in love with Mrs. Fitzherbert, a commoner. His wife was neither attractive nor capable and failed both as a wife and a princess. Granted, she had not much help from her husband. A history of the times gives us to understand that mistresses were usual among the upper classes so that George IV was not unique in this respect. To rule as regent for so many years was a trying situation for the best of men and certainly George IV was not that. Fulford gives such a different impression that I hunted out other books on George the fourth and on the regency period and found to my surprise that all substantiated Fulford. Many years after his death the Duke of Wellington who had no cause to like him said, "He was indeed the most extraordinary compound of talent, wit, buffoonery, obstinacy and good feeling, in short, a medley of the most opposite qualities with a great preponderance of good that I ever saw in any character in my life."

TO STERILIZE WATER

If there is any doubt as to the purity of the water it may be sterilized by the following method, recommended by the Department of Public Health. (1) Purchase chloride of lime in metal or glass containers, rather than in cardboard boxes. Make up a stock solution of chlorine by rubbing to a thin cream a teaspoonful of chloride of lime with a little water in a cup, then fill the cup with water. (2) Dilute this solution with three more cupfuls of water. (3) Add a teaspoonful of this stock solution to two gallons of drinkign water to be sterilized, thoroughly mixing and allowing to stand for at least ten minutes before using.

This stock solution, if kept in a tightly stoppered bottle, will retain its strength for a week, and will sterilize badly polluted water in ten minutes.

PROVIDE READING FOR CHILDREN

Summer-time reading for children is often neglected, yet it should be provided. Children have more time to read and they need to have something which they can do quietly, which will be interesting and yet restful, in the hottest part of the day. It is a peculiar thing but parents will spend money willingly, for toys, shows, ice-cream cones, and amusements of various sorts and will begrudge the money for books. Spend some money on books of lasting value for your children's vacation.

THE VACUUM BOTTLE

The vacuum vottle is one of the most useful of our summer accessories. When driving, fill it with cold water for use on the trip. It is often difficult to get a drink of water when it is most desired. Never heat the baby's milk and carry it in a vacuum bottle. Carry the chilled milk and heat when required. When the fire is going make a tea or coffee for the next meal and fill your bottle and save time and effort. Sometimes it turns very cold in the summer nights and some member of the family requires a hot-water bag. Fill your vacuum bottle with boiling water and then at bed-time the water is ready to fill the bag. The wide-mouthed jars are excellent for keeping salads and fruits cold for picnics as well as for providing hot foods. As in most things, you get what you pay for and you will save money in the end by purchasing the best bottle.

PARTY SALADS

Here are two salads which are specially good party ones. The first one, one of my friends makes by popular demand each time, her bridge-club meets at her place.

PINEAPPLE AND COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

1 can shredded pineapple
1 pint cottage cheese
1 small can pimento
1 package lemon jelly powder
1 tablespoon vinegar
Drain the pineapple. Add sufficient water to the pineapple juice and vinegar to make 2 cups. Bring to a boil. Add jelly powder and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Cool, then add pineapple, cottage cheese and chopped pimento. Mould and chill. Serves 8.

LIME AND MINT JELLY

1 package of lime jelly powder
1 1/4 cups after dinner mints crushed
1/2 cup crushed pineapple
1 cup whipped cream
2 cups water

Dissolve jelly powder in hot water and let chill until slightly thickened. Beat until fluffy. Fold in mints, pineapple and whipped cream. Mould and chill. Serve with salad dressing which has a little whipped cream folded into it.

THE KIND THE VIMY RIDGE MEMORIAL COMMEMORATES

Eleven years they have worked putting together that million and a quarter dollar pile at Vimy Ridge in honor of our war dead. Thousands will journey or are en route to see its unveiling by King Edward on July 26th. The great event recalls a letter written nearly twenty years ago by one whose shade may be standing by when the living thousands stand about with heart wrenching memories.

This one wrote the letter before going up front for "the great push" on July 1st. Typically, he left orders that this note to his parents was not to be delivered unless he actually became one of the "costs". A shot ripped through his stomach next day. That's how the London Times got hold of the letter.

In cheerful mood he hoped that since this was to be one of the biggest battles it would help end the war quickly. He said that his buddies who had just been playing rag football were happy too. No one thought of himself as being killed. Of course he says "it is always possible." And then: "It is impossible to fear death out here where one is no longer an individual, but a member of a regiment and of an army. To be killed means nothing to me, and it is only you who suffer for it; you really pay the cost."

"I have been looking at the stars, and thinking what an immense distance they are away. What an insignificant thing the loss of, say 40 years of life is, compared with them! It seems scarcely worth talking about."

"Well, good-bye, you darlings. Try not to worry about it, and remember that we shall meet again really quite soon."

"This letter is going to be posted if... Lots of love. From your loving son."

What depth of affection is here let loose. Feelings which only death in prospect could have so brought to the surface.

"Good-bye you darlings." At home one had probably been "mater" and the other the "old man." When away he probably spoke of them with reserve as "my people." "Good-bye, you darlings!"

No form of government, however idealistically planned can make a strong nation of a people who want to leave God and righteousness out of their program.

Wedding Invitations and Announcements are a specialty of the Watchman Print. Their quality rivals the work of city engravers. In Old English or Script type... Don't assume that local printing is "not good enough." Call and inspect our samples; we leave them to your judgment.

Cake Talks

By Barbara B. Brooks

Somehow or other, no matter what the weather or the time of year, if we have growing children in the family or a man who still has a little boy's yearning for sweets, we find cake bobbing up in our menu whether we had planned it or not. A teasing plea from the youngest or a hungry exclamation from the man of the house that he'd like "a good big piece of cake for a change" and all our resolve to give our family only light, modern desserts goes by the board.

But the homemaker is wrong who has a guilty conscience when she serves cake. She will be doing a favor to all who eat her product if she uses a little originality in choosing the cake to serve, for there are many that are tossed together quickly and are light and digestible, as well as inexpensive. Best of all, they are deliciously new in flavor, and have enough sophistication that even the ultra-modern hostess can serve cake to her guests without feeling that she has gone back to the Nineties for her dessert ideas.

It is hard to choose from the many new and tempting cake recipes. The two given here fit two separate occasions. The coconut krispie cake is simplicity itself, and ideal to make in the twinkling of an eye for the family dinner or for the children when they want something special. Its frosting, if such it can be called, is made deliciously crisp and chewy by a new use of wheat krispies or corn flakes.

But the recipe that "takes the cake" is that for frosted ginger bread bars. They look delectable and taste even more so. The gingerbread bars are ideal for afternoon tea or bridge parties, as well as being a wholesome dessert for a child's party.

COCONUT KRISPIE CAKE

2/3 cup shortening
1 1/4 cups sugar
3 eggs
3 cups cake flour
2 1/2 tps. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla extract
2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1/4 tsp. salt
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup corn flakes or wheat krispies
1 cup chopped nut meats

Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating one minute after each addition. Sift flour with baking powder and salt and add alternately with combined milk and flavoring to creamed mixture. Beat well. Fold in egg whites, beaten stiff but not dry. Pour batter into greased cake pan, with waxed paper in the bottom.

Beat eggs well, add brown sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Add flavoring, salt coconut, corn flakes and nut meats. Mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on top of unbaked cake batter and spread evenly. Bake in moderate oven (350°F) about 45 minutes.

Yield: 1 large loaf cake (9 x 13 inch pan).

FROSTED GINGERBREAD BARS

By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

■ Schiaparelli's new success in the millinery world is her Phrygian toque. With its tendency to close fit at the base and fold into front interest or to height in the crown it is another form of her madcap series and promises to be every bit as popular as those gone before. It can be so manipulated to be flattering to most any person.

■ Berets as usual are the big fashion news for mid-season. In black velvet for the most part and this year's crop is both youthful and original. There is the petal beret with the detail Paris is so fond of—the College girl number which follows sailor lines and the many others which jut out in front or come down coyly over one eye. Feathers and decorative pins are smart finishing touches.

■ Postillion hats with their high crowns in stove-pipe, manipulated or folded varieties are leading for sports and travel wear. Their brims are straight, dip slightly at front and back or roll dashingly all around. New York and Paris fashion photographs are full of this type hat at the moment.

■ Copper is the newest novelty colour for evening. Buy it by the yard and have it made up to your own special taste and requirements. An aftermath of the London Tan vogue it promises to live into Fall. A bright rust is also a fashionable choice for evening. Combine either with green and you've a sportswear first in colour, too.

■ Tailored print suits were tops at the races in Paris. New York favours them, too, and smartest Montrealeers have at least one in their summer wardrobe. The prints may be large or small and the colours gay or subdued as you prefer. The cut is so very important and you must see that the dress and the jacket fit you perfectly.

■ There is a detailed look in high-cut shoes for Fall. Prepare to wear these higher cuts for they are coming in. There's nothing cumbersome about them either. So well-cut—so carefully designed are they that they flatter the foot even while they cover it practically up to the ankle. Watch for them. Accustom yourself to the idea now.

■ Printed cotton bathing suits are a new success on the beach. Cut on dressmaker lines with flaring skirts they are a welcome change from the snug wool suits of other years. The wool suits are still the most practical choice, of course, especially if you're a good hard swimmer.

Former pastors, the Rev. A. Patterson and F. Jobb were prevented for various reasons from attending the St. Mungo's Centenary, but Rev. Patterson's granddaughter, Miss Burton attended from Joliette. The late Rev. Mr. Usher had as a representative from his family, Mrs. Usher, now resident in Cushing and Mrs. McLeod (his daughter), who is the wife of the Rev. Mr. McLeod of Alexandria; Mr. O. Keatley, son-in-law, of Mr. Jobb was also present.

Mrs. Cole, of Grenville, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Smith on Monday.

Miss Alida Burke, of Chateauboro, is spending two months at Weir.

Mrs. Walter Smith, of Cushing, passed away on Wednesday morning of this week.

The following are spending the summer vacation at their respective homes—Misses Laura Davis, Annie Cooke, Ella Cooke, Edith Cooke, Muriel Graham, Edna Moncrieff, Grace Boyd, Jean Smellie and Messrs. Wenville Graham, Gavin Graham, Melvin Graham.

Miss Gwen and Master Harwood Bennett are spending the holidays at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Hugh Boyd.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

The Sunday School of the Presbyterian Church held their annual picnic at Macdonell Beach last week. There was a large attendance of children and parents, and although the weather was cool every one had a good time. The games were in charge of Rev. Mr. Miller, Leslie Gates and Robt. Woods.

The Sunday School staff are very grateful to kind friends, who donated money and prizes, also to Miss Libbie, Lena Walsh and Mrs. Porter for taking the children to the beach.

At the St. Andrews Presbyterian Church on Sunday next, Dr. Douglas Hawken will be guest organist, and Mr. E. Hawken, baritone, will sing.

Macdonell Beach is an ideal place for picnics. Safe swimming, good tables and seats, kitchen and good stove, bath house and a fine clean shore.

Miss Chisholm, Miss Hilda Wilson, of Montreal, Mrs. E. Larmonth and Mrs. Douglas Roberts of Ottawa, were recent arrivals in St. Andrews for the months of July and August.

Messrs. John, Lloyd and Danny Muir were home last week, visiting their father, Mr. John Muir.

Miss Alison Rodger is spending a few weeks with friends in Toronto.

Rev. and Mrs. Livingstone, of Vermont, visited Dr. and Mrs. Ballantyne during their short visit to Canada last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell, of Westmount, and their family, are occupying Dr. Kerr's residence for the summer.

The Dramatic Club of the Presbyterian Church will repeat their last play, "Cranberry Corners" at Cushing, on July 18th. See advertisement in Watchman.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Miss Gladys Hyde is spending her holidays at her home here.

Mrs. E. Larmouth, with a party of guests, is occupying her summer home in St. Andrews.

Mrs. Eaton and Miss Audrey Eaton are visiting relatives. Mrs. and Miss Cunningham were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. R. Brash.

Mr. and Mrs. Draper were recent guests at "The Rectory"

John DeWitt spent a short holiday at his home.

Mrs. Griffiths was the soloist at the Anglican Church on Sunday evening, and her singing was much enjoyed by those present.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Howell entertained their family on Dominion Day.

Miss S. A. McCallum was a week-end visitor in St. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Kerr were guests of Mrs. H. W. McQuat, on Saturday and Sunday.

Miss J. H. McMartin is spending some time at the home of the Misses Hibbard.

Miss Chisholm and Miss H. Wilson are visiting friends in St. Andrews for several weeks. Mr. E. C. Calder and son, Billy, spent several days and Mrs. Calder spent Sunday at Sixteen Island Lake.

Rev. and Mrs. Pickup, of Montreal West, are summering at the Taylor cottage, Carillon Hill.

Among the St. Andrews people who attended the 100th. anniversary service in St. Mungo's Church, Cushing, were—Mrs. Robert Simpson, Mr. Shirley Simpson, who was one of the soloists, Rev. J. R. and Mrs. Heyworth, Dr. B. N. Wales and the Misses A. L. and Evelyn Wales.

Ronald de la Ronde spent the week-end with Walter Starnes in Cushing.

On Friday evening, July 3rd., the Rev. G. H. Smith was inducted into the pastoral charge of the United Church, St. Andrews, Point Fortune and St. David's.

The service was in charge of the Rev. W. B. Rosborough of Lachute, who was assisted by the Rev. Stephen Pike of Brownsburg, and Rev. E. Martineau of St. Therese. The large congregation assembled

Mr. Clarence Lemay, of Calumet, was in Grenville on Monday.

BROWNSBURG

The regular monthly meeting of the Brownsburg Women's Institute was held on Thursday last, July 2nd., at the home of the President, Mrs. Lemuel Wil. It being grandmother's day, the president gave a prize to the grandmother having the largest number of grandchildren. The prize was won by Mrs. S. Edwards, who had 15 children, 34 grandchildren, and 10 great grandchildren. Their was also a life membership pin presented to Mrs. J. P. Seary by the County President, Mrs. Archie Graham who gave a very interesting address on Institute work. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Geo. Calder of Lachute, who spoke on "Legislation." Mr. and Mrs. Kuhring of Lakefield, Mrs. Archie Murdoch of Brownsburg, Mrs. Geo. Deacon of Lachute, Mrs. John McQuat of Montreal, Miss A. Poitras of Ottawa, and Mrs. Reside of Breckenridge, Ont., were among the visitors of the evening. The hostess served tea and refreshments at the close of the meeting.

George Dansereau the Choice at Liberal Convention

Nominated by James McGibbon at the Liberal Rally, held in the Auditorium on Monday last, Mr. George Etienne Dansereau was again selected as the standard-bearer in the Liberal interests for the county of Argenteuil. The seconder was Wilfred Desjardins, and the nomination was greeted with loud cheering as Mr. Dansereau made his way to the platform.

Messrs. David Black, and A. Brunelle acted as joint chairmen and on the platform were Hon. E. Stuart McDougall, Provincial Treasurer; Hon. Chas. A. Bertrand, Attorney-General and Provincial Secretary; L. L. Legault, K.C., Mr. Munich, Notary; Philip Valois, Guy Legault, B.A., L.L.B., and Desiré Dubois, K.C., of Montreal.

Ex. M.L.A. Geo. Dansereau briefly extended his thanks to the electors for honoring him with the nomination. With the short time in which he had been permitted to act as the Provincial representative he had not had the opportunity of putting into fulfillment the promises made of certain works, but if returned he would make good. He thanked Mr. James McGibbon for having placed his name before the meeting and said it was real good to see such a splendid spirit of co-operation which bespoke perfect unity of the two races.

Mr. Guy Legault introduced the Hon. C. A. Bertrand, who said he felt crushed when he reflected that he had been given two portfolios, when only three weeks ago he was merely a humble lawyer. However, after he had had a long talk with Premier Godbout, and the latter had told him he needed his services, he felt that he had to do his utmost to aid the Premier in the task of rejuvenation of provincial affairs. It had been, in reality, a call to greater social action. He was in politics because he believed that no one had a right to kill the fine political doctrines which had guided the Liberal party, even though it might be that some matters had gone astray, continued Mr. Bertrand. "We will do so in order that the Ministers may again be respected, and secure the confidence of those for whom they govern. We must have a restoration of the confidence of the people."

Mr. Bertrand said much had been said and written of late in regard to the Provincial Police. The police had a right to maintain order, but not to act in such manner as to interfere with the full right of citizens in political affairs, and he intended to see to it that the electorate was free at the forthcoming elections, and to insist on exact, that the elections be honestly conducted. He did not know if there was any foundation as to the charges against the Provincial Police which were so freely and even lightly, brought forward in the press. Officially, he did not have the knowledge that such was the fact. He did not know that a condition close to turpitude had risen, as was claimed, but he did intend to carry out his responsibility in police matters to the fullest extent, and if there was any foundation to the rumors, would not hesitate to do his duty. Beyond maintaining order at election times, the Provincial Police had no role, said the Attorney-General, and would not be allowed to pass the limits set for their conduct. At the same time, he warned, he did not wish people on the other side of politics to think that the government intended to go to sleep and permit others to do as they wished, for the honesty must be on all sides.

Following a brief introduction

SUCCUMBS TO HEART ATTACK

The sudden death of Joseph Longtin, hotel-keeper of Ste. Scholastique, while paying a visit to Godfroy Delorme's summer camp at St. Placide, on Tuesday last was seized with a heart attack and died when in only about 2½ feet of water. A little girl near by was the first to notice something wrong and when taken from the water, life was extinct. Dr. J. H. Mason, coroner of the district, empaneled a jury who brought in a verdict that Mr. Longtin was not drowned, but had died from natural causes, probably heart failure, and his being in the water was only an incident of the case.

SAUVE IS NOMINATED

Jean Paul Sauve, son of the Hon. Arthur Sauve, one-time Postmaster-General of Canada, was chosen to carry the colors of the National Union in the constituency of Two Mountains, at a party convention here today. He contested the riding in the November elections last year as a Conservative.

A man who has already seen service in the Legislature of Quebec, Mr. Sauve was defeated last year by Jean Rochon, Liberal who was elected with a majority of only 14 votes.

Ald. Henry L. Auger, of Montreal, presided at the convention.

MOTORISTS BEWARE

Starting today, the city and provincial traffic police are out after auto drivers who can show no licence and who offend against the traffic laws regulating the speed of cars and driving conditions generally.

The entire city is to be patrolled by the municipal traffic men on motorcycles and the entire Island of Montreal will also be patrolled as never before by provincial police in numbers far in excess of those engaged in any other traffic campaign carried out by the provincial police.

The drive to rid the highways of irresponsible chauffeurs will continue for the remainder of the summer months.

City and provincial police who check up on the number of autos that carry licence plates, declare that 40 per cent of the drivers now on the streets, have not taken out a driver's licence for 1936.

The Late Mrs. McGalliard

After a short illness, the death occurred on July 7th., 1936, at Avoca, Que., of Jane Craig, wife of the late Gideon McGalliard, in her eighty-sixth year.

The family surviving are two sons, John of Avoca, and Hugh of North Bay, Ont., also two daughters, Mrs. P. Dobbie of Lachute and Margaret of Avoca, six grandchildren and one great grand daughter.

The funeral, which took place on Thursday was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough of Lachute United Church. The pall-bearers were her two grandsons, John and Gordon Dobbie and two nephews, Leslie Craig of Montreal, and Charles Burns of Hawkesbury, Ont.

6,400 Vets Leave to Honor Fallen at Vimy MAIN BODY SAILS TO-DAY IN FLEET OF FOUR SHIPS

Embarking on the greatest peace-time mission in the history of Canada, the main body of 6,400 pilgrims to Vimy Ridge sailed from Montreal this morning in four ocean liners.

Amid scenes that will be charged with the memory of another armada putting out of Halifax more than 20 years ago, veterans of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, their wives and children will leave for France. There, on the ridge that the blood of Canadian youth made forever a part of Canada, they will witness His Majesty the King unveil a great memorial to the war dead on July 26.

The pilgrims will march up gangplanks to the music of regimental bands. They leave the harbor in ships decked with bunting, escorted by two grey destroyers of the Royal Canadian Navy, and sent on their way by the cheers of crowds along the waterfront and the blasts of ships' whistles.

Beginning at an early hour, ten special trains and three regular trains steamed into city railroad stations, bringing pilgrims from Ontario and the West. In automobiles and buses and transported to the dockside, where the liners awaited them.

Four ships go today, a fifth tomorrow. It will be the greatest sailing in the history of the port of Montreal, and the largest mass movement out of Canada since the war.

PILGRIMAGE TO FLANDERS (Apologies to the late John McCrae)

"In Flanders Fields where poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row
Soon shall be heard the living tread
Mingling near a million dead,

Who fell amid the battle's glow.
Perchance some woeful tale or yarn
Of Cambrai, Vimy, Ypres or Marne
Shall rise again as twilight fades
In Flanders' Fields.

Whispering 'mid the graves they go,
They who fought there long ago,
Pilgrims to scenes forever famed,
To "No man's land" where terror reigned,
And awed are we by things they know
Of Flanders' Fields.

Katherine Thomson, Preston (aged 12).

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT" By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, July 14th.—James R. Murray, chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, is selling grain these days, and the prospects are the government will get rid of practically all its big carry over from the days of the former board under John I. McFarland as chairman. The wheat is being sold at current rates, as it has been the policy of the government and the Murray board since its appointment last December. There will be no holding off from selling to get an even higher price. The government's policy is to get the carry over out of the way of this year's crop.

The prospects of this year's crop are not bright. It may be below 200 million bushels, compared with about 265 millions last year. The price, rising sharply for some time past, may reach around $1 per bushel. Where the drought is causing damage, the federal government will have a relief problem this fall and winter of considerable proportions.

The government has decided to contribute up to $50 each on dug outs on the Prairie Provinces for watering livestock. Already over 3,000 applications have been received for such assistance, mostly in Saskatchewan and southwestern Manitoba, since Alberta irrigation schemes provide water there. John Vallance, chief federal government officer on Prairie drought rehabilitation works, with headquarters at Regina, is in charge of the dug out and other allied works.

Justice W. F. A. Turgeon of Saskatchewan has been named royal commissioner to investigate all phases of Canada's wheat problems. Col. the Hon. J. L. Ralston, K.C., Montreal, former Liberal minister of national defence, will assist Justice Turgeon as counsel. Justice

LATE CYRIL BOYD DIES IN HOSPITAL

After an illness of over a year's duration, death came to Cyril Boyd, on Friday evening, July 10th. at the Grace Dart Home Hospital.

The funeral service took place at St. Simeon's Church, Lachute, on Sunday, July 12, and was conducted by Rev. W. LeCras.

The remains were interred in Lachute cemetery, borne to their last resting place by his cousins, Clarence, Ernest and William Rogers, Gordon, Edgar and Melvin Scott. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and four children, father and mother, six brothers and one sister.

SEIGNIORY REGATTA

Yachts and cruisers flying the pennants of many clubs are joining the sixth annual cruise to the Seignior Club this weekend, to take part in the annual cruiser regatta on the Ottawa river.

So far, twenty-five boats are expected, and many more from Ottawa, Montreal and other points, will arrive at the Seignior Club before the express cruiser race at noon, the cruiser formation procession at two thirty o'clock followed by the regular cruiser race Sunday. The club's small harbor is reserved for the use of members' boats, other boats anchoring out in the Ottawa river opposite the Log Chateau.

LANCOT WITHDRAWS

News that Mr. J. P. Lantot, K.C., has withdrawn from the political field has been learned with considerable regret by his many supporters of last year. In the previous fight, with his opponent Mr. Geo. Dansereau, he scored well considering there was but eight days in which to do his campaigning, and when he again consented to run at the meeting held in McArthur's Hall two weeks ago, it was considered by the party workers his chances of success were excellent. Mr. Albini Lamarche who, with Notary Lavigne last year gave way for Mr. Lantot, is not of the same mind this time and feels the time is ripe for him to test the sincerity of the friends whom he claims has been urging him to battle for the honors.

Think Firebugs to Blame

During the last few days no less than six fires have been set, police claim, by a pair of firebugs who have been alarming the village of Grenville this week. The last one occurred during the early hours of Sunday morning, when Rev. H. D. J. Brosseau, the parish priest, on hearing a noise in his shed, investigated. Upon nearing the building two youths hurriedly made their escape and due to the darkness were not recognized. A small fire had been started among some dry wood.

Since the first outbreak several citizens have patrolled the village nightly.

Rights without duties make anarchy; duties without rights make slavery. Rights and duties indissolubly united one to another make liberty.

From the French (La Romaine)

The usual annual employees picnic was held at Brownsburg on Saturday. Favoured with delightful weather, a good programme with lots of entertainment, and a happy holiday-making crowd, the event was a great success. Perfect organization, governed by foresight and efficiency, reflected credit on a courteous and hard-working committee, especially the general secretary Mr. S. Stilwell to whom in a large measure thanks is due. Tribute must also be paid to the cheerful co-operation of the employees present, who were out for a good time and sought to contribute to the general enjoyment of all present. The various events of the day were run off without a hitch to mar the pleasure of those in attendance. The pleasantly situated little grounds of the Dominion Ammunition Co., offered an ideal vantage point among the shady groves and leafy bowers from which to view the races and competitions, and incidentally to retreat from the discomforting rays of "Old Sol."

The socially prominent extended large patronage and contributed much to the background from which the festivities were viewed. Among those present were Mr. J. Cadham, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ardill, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cockfield, Mr. A. J. Quinn, Mr. G. L. Martin, etc. For the first time in a number of years Sir George Perley who was on his way to the Canadian ceremonies at Vimy, was absent Mr. J. P. Lantot, K.C., of St. Andrews, was among the interested spectators, as was His Worship H. Pariseau, Mayor, Councillor G. I. McFaul, Coun. A. Brunelle, etc.

Mr. E. Smillie, who was in charge of the rifle competitions had his contestants on their marks in early morning and after forty entrants had blazed their way through the Championship it was decided that Mr. E. Cockfield had annexed the beautiful cup donated by Mr. L. Cadham, Montreal, the other winners in order of merit were J. (Jack) Golphin, J. Roberts, M. Laidlaw and W. Wilson.

Mr. Bert Steere had a busy day with his Trap-shooters as the entries were numerous and ties were plentiful. Mr. Bill Brown, who to the surprise of many also ran in the rifle competition, had the pleasure of winning the five bird event. R. Chambers was second; Alex. McCulloch third, and B. Jackson, fourth.

In the fifteen bird event Alec. McGibbon, P. Quesnel and C. Jackson were the winners. Murray Laidlaw was tops in the 25 Bird event with J. Golphin and W. Wilson in the other positions.

The feature events of the day were conducted by M. V. Trayers who had charge of the children's races and set the little tots racing to the tune of every child a prize at the tape. Excitement and interest was chiefly centered in the little ones, and it was a delight to watch the friendly rivalry of the numerous contestants.

Mr. Arthur Mullan, an elder of Hudson Heights, who has for nearly forty years been Superintendent of the Sunday School, spoke. He rendered the early association of St. Mungo's in the large square pew to the left of the minister. The message from his church was "Hope for success in the new century."

Rev. M. Tucker referred to his induction in St. Giles. The Presbytery had laid this only upon the late Mr. Fraser. The address was a masterpiece, the prayers were uplifting for he was a man of great strength. He referred also to his visits to the manse, while others were being shown the garden of the view from the roadside — he preferred the parlour and the sight of the beautiful specimens of Mr. Fraser's art.

Inspired by what has been said in this celebration may you as a people, go on to greater things for Christ and His Kingdom.

Rev. T. W. Jones in giving the concluding address, presented the greetings of Montreal Presbytery. He also brought to the minister, to the Board and to the people the heartiest greetings of the Conference. My boyhood church was a small chapel in Oxfordshire. From a class of six, one is at home with God, four entered varied but definite Christian work in the old land; the sixth is speaking to you this afternoon.

You cannot tell the outcome of the work of this congregation. This should be the occasion for pledging yourselves to a rededication of spiritual power; and may that pledge be the sign of still greater triumph than that of the past.

Miss Alice Davidson of Kingston, presided at the organ on Saturday afternoon.

The supper hour was followed by the evening program with Rev. Mr. Cousens presiding. After a full program with city and local talent, Miss Mildred Douglas presented a lantern survey of scenery and life. Portraits of Rev. James Black, Mr. Lemuel Cushing, Mr. Jas. B. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. David Mullan Sr., Rev. Donald Ross, Rev. James Fraser, Dr. Paterson, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Kains, Mrs. Wheelan and Mary MacArthur were among those shown.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the Saturday celebrations to a close.

Sunday morning saw many new faces as they gathered to the ancient shrine. The minister presided and the South minister quartette rendered two selections most acceptably. Rev. D. L. Livingston of St. Albans, Vt., was the special preacher. He was a student minister in St. Mungo's seventeen years ago. He recalled the encouragement from the kindly reception there. He read from Psalms 151 and 122. He found his text in Psalms 137, verse 5. If I forget thee O Jerusalem let my right hand forget her cunning. He preached on masterly discourse on "The Church."

"Too many today", he said, asked what is the church doing? They should say "What has the Church not done?" Others sit on the church instead of in the Church.

A fly on the greatest masterpiece cannot see any beauty there. The critics can see nothing good in the church. In my church there are two beautiful windows—standing without they are meaningless but from within they are radiant with inspiration. So it is with the church. She must be known and loved to be appreciated. One must be within to see the strength and beauty of her life and service.

A service of rededication was concluded by the minister. Mrs. J. D. Weir played the organ on Sunday morning. Miss Emily Fraser, the youngest sister of the late James Fraser was present Sunday morning together with her nephew Archie Fraser of Ottawa, and her nieces, Mabel Fraser, Mrs. T. Thomas of Coaticook, and May Fraser of Montreal.

The Sunday evening service was in charge of Rev. J. M. Fraser with Rev. Mr. Cousens of Lachute Presbyterian Church as the special preacher. Mrs. Maw of Cushing sang and Miss Alice Davidson played except for the last hymn "Blest be the tie that bind", when Miss Doris Leroy, organist of St. Mungo's was specially requested to officiate.

Mr. Fraser took occasion to mention some names and facts omitted on Saturday.

Rev. Mr. Cousens gave a very thoughtful discourse from the text "Thy words have upholding him that was falling", or a Moffet translates, "Your words have kept men on their feet."

The prophets were types of greatness. Their words kept Israel on their feet. Jesus words kept men on their feet. Brace up, realize that men and women are dependent upon you. They are looking to you for support. I am thinking of those who have kept men on their feet during the past seven years. The church kept your forefathers on their feet. There have been allusions to wasps, to cats and dogs—unfortunately, I think if it should lead any to think that the sermon didn't count. But I remember one whose eyes were often closed, but who drank in comfort from many a sermon in this church.

He closed aptly with the story of The House by the side of the Road—"Be a Friend to man."

Rev. J. W. Maclean gave the announcements and Rev. Mr. Cousens pronounced the benediction. Though the milestone of a century was passed and St. Mungo's with new purpose enters upon the future with trust in God who in the past has so richly blessed.

The committee propose issuing a thirty two page booklet to record the proceedings of the Centennial and to give a survey of the past history. Mrs. William Usher, Grenville, R. R. No. 1 or Mr. Irving Fuller, Lachute, R. R. No. 5, would be glad to hear from those interested.

Sit down to-day and write either of them: "I will subscribe one dollar for three copies of the Centennial Booklet." Sign your name and mail at once. We need 150 such replies to undertake publication of a work worthy in some measure of the event. It is proposed to select from the pictures of historic interest screened on Saturday evening and from other pictures to complete as far as possible the line of ministers. Up to this time no portrait of Rev. William Mair, the first minister, has been found.

St. Mungo's Church was established and continued in connection with the Church of Scotland until the union of 1876 when it entered the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Fifty years later another union took place and the congregation entered the United Church of Canada. Reference was made to the commendable attitude shown at that time by the small minority. Since Union the Methodist cause of Grenville, Calumet and Cushing has been combined with the Chatham congregation.

WILL ACCEPT CASH

Business Man: "Young man, my time is worth exactly $100 a minute, but I will give you a 10-minute interview."

Caller: "Make it five minutes and I'll take cash for the other five minutes."

Mrs. Williams could only find two aisle seats—one behind the other. Wishing to sit with her sister, she cautiously surveyed the man in the next seat. Finally she leaned over and whispered:

"I beg your pardon, sir, but are you alone?"

Without even turning his head in the slightest, but twisting his mouth and shielding it with his hand, he muttered:

"Cut it out, sister, cut it out—the wife's with me."

THE LATE

MRS. WALTER SMITH

Cushing community has once again been called upon to part with one of their beloved members after a very brief illness, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Smith, who was but a month of being 81 years of age, was formerly Mary Elizabeth Knox, daughter of the late Robert Knox and his wife Mary Nicholson, came to Canada with her parents in 1863 from their home near Belfast in County Down, Ireland, at the age of eight years, and was able to recall for the benefit of younger members of her family and friends reminiscences of that slow voyage and her adventures on board ship. The greater part of her life was spent in Cushing, and its immediate neighborhood. As the wife of the late Mr. Walter Smith, who predeceased her nine years ago, she was a model housekeeper and a splendid mother, caring more for the contentment of her home and family than active social life. The words given to hospitality, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, best describes her as in her quiet friendly way she went about her home tasks.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her daughters, Miss Mary of Montreal, Mrs. F. C. Wilkins of St. Andrews East, Mrs. A. Starnes of Cushing, and Mrs. E. Bryerton, with whom she lived. Two sons, Walter of Montreal, and Robert at home. Three brothers, Mr. John Knox of Hawkesbury, W. A. Knox of St. Philippe Road, and Joseph of Saskatchewan, as well as her seven grandchildren.

The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Jas. Fraser of Livingstone Creek, Ont., son of her former pastor, the late Rev. Jas. Fraser, assisted by Rev. J. W. Maclean of St. Mungo's where she and her family worshipped. The remains were interred in St. Andrews East cemetery, the pall-bearers being her two brothers, J. and W. A. Knox and her nephews, L. D. Smith, Jas. Hammond, Jno. Kettyle and Albert Mitchell. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

LANGUAGES IN CANADA

So many languages are spoken orators of each happened to be assembled on Parliament Hill at one and the same time, the Peace Tower would be a veritable Tower of Babel. There are no fewer than thirty languages listed by the census, and there are a good many others not listed.

English is the prevailing language, and is the mother tongue of considerably more than half of the population, and a very large proportion of those whose mother tongue is another language have learned to speak English. There are over 2,300,000 people who learned French in childhood. Next come the Germans with over 360,000, the Ukrainians with over a quarter of a million, and the Poles with 118,000. Chinese, Japanese, Dutch, Flemish, Greek, Italian, Spanish, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Icelandic, Gaelic, Austrian, Bohemian, Bulgarian, Russian, Slovak, Syrian, Arabic, Yiddish and many other languages are spoken in the Dominion.

Feller Institute Renovated for Incoming Pupils

A great squad of cleaners and painters have taken charge of classrooms and dormitories out at Feller Institute, as the historic old building undergoes its summer cleaning in preparation for the new pupils. Mothers in particular will appreciate the necessity of a thorough "going-over" after an occupancy of ten months by more than a hundred active, mischievous boys and girls. Then, too, absolute health demands clean, sanitary surroundings, and the authorities at Feller consider that it is money well spent to thoroughly scour and repaint the rooms before being occupied by fresh groups of students.

Feller Institute, as many know, was founded one hundred years ago by Mme. Feller of Lauzanne, Switzerland, to bring the gospel and education to French-Canadians. It has now extended its sphere of good to include English boys and girls and has an outstanding record of a century of religious and educational association with the Eastern Townships of Quebec Province.

Weekly Review of National Affairs
Specially written for The Lachute Watchman
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Turgeon is now in England and will visit several European countries to investigate marketing conditions there. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Dominion minister of agriculture, who sailed for England on Saturday, will consult with Mr. Turgeon while they are both abroad.

Announcement has been made that the Dominion government will appeal to the Privy Council in London from the decisions of the Supreme Court of Canada on June 17 last with regard to the validity of the Employment and Social Insurance Act, the Weekly Day of Rest in Industrial Undertakings Act, the Minimum Act and the Limitation of Hours of Work Act. Certain of the provinces, particularly British Columbia, are appealing the decisions touching the validity of the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act and Section 498A of the Criminal Code providing penalties for certain business practices. No appeals will be taken to the Privy Council by either the Dominion or any of the provinces touching the Natural Products Marketing Act and the act setting up the Fair Trade and Industries Commission, both of which were held beyond the jurisdiction of the federal Parliament by practically unanimous decision of the Supreme Court here. The government will likely bring in a modified marketing act of its own next session, calculated to be within the jurisdiction of the Parliament here.

The death of Hon. P. J. Veniot, Liberal member for Gloucester, N.B., former postmaster-general, creates the second vacancy in the House of Commons. The by-election in Wright county, Que., caused by the recent death of F. W. Perras, former Liberal member, will be held August 10. The Gloucester by-election will be held later.

Chief Justice Brown of Saskatchewan has been named chairman of the Saskatchewan board of review under the Farmers Creditors' Arrangement Act in place of Justice McLean whose resignation took effect July 1. Prime Minister Mackenzie King will go to Quebec for the visit on July 31 of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, of the United States to His Excellency the Governor-General in summer residence at the Citadel there. In August Mr. King hopes to make a trip west to Vancouver before leaving for the League of Nations meeting at Geneva in September.

Six cabinet ministers are now abroad. Hon. C. A. Dunning, finance minister, Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, and Hon. Mr. Gardiner, agriculture minister, on trade and marketing matters, and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of Justice, Capt. the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, and Major the Hon. C. G. Power, minister of pensions and national health, as official government representatives to attend the unveiling of the Vimy memorial by King Edward VIII on July 26. Hon. J. E. Michaud, fisheries minister, is on an inspection trip to the B. C. coast.

Following legislation passed last session, the government has announced seven appointments in connection with pension's administration, all appointees being returned men. Brig. General H. F. McDonald, formerly of Vancouver, is the new chairman of the Pension Commission; Clifford B. Reilly, K.C., Ottawa, is a new commissioner; and Col. C. W. Peck, V.C., Vancouver, is an ad hoc commissioner for six months. The new body, Veterans' Assistance Commission includes Lt. Col. J. G. Rattray, C.M.G., D.S.O., Ottawa, former chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board, chairman Brig-General Alex Ross, Yorkton, Sask., Canadian Legion president, and Lt-Col. H. LeMoine de Martigny, Montreal, with Huntly Sinclair, Ottawa, as secretary, Dr. R. J. Kee, Ottawa, is named to the Pension Appeal Court.

L. C. Brouillette headed a delegation of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Products Ltd. asking the government to fix a higher price than 87½ cents per bushel for the new crop year. Decision will not be made, however, for some weeks.

Ottawa Exhibition in only Six Weeks

Outstanding Features for 49th. Annual Event. Goldman and His Band. Dates For Receiving Entries.

In six weeks the Ottawa exhibition will be in full swing.

This admittedly is the outstanding weekly event in the Capital, and the 49th. exhibition promises to more than uphold the standing. Even when the depression was the center of discussion there was no retrenchment by the directors and management. The fine prize list was maintained in all departments, new features were added to attract the public, and the best entertainment available was obtained. This year the directors are confident that the exhibition will set new records.

Edwin Franko Goldman, the king of bandmasters, and his famous band will be heard in two concerts daily without any extra charge. Those who have heard the international famed band over the radio can be counted to give a great welcome when Goldman comes in person to lead his band.

For the stellar night attraction, augmenting the vaudeville, there will be the four-star revue, Fascinations of 1936. With a cast of 42, mostly girls, a large revolving stage, glorious costumes and lighting effects, swing music, dances and elaborate ensembles there is assurance that the presentation this year will eclipse all previous outdoor productions. Vaudeville, fireworks, horse races, a new midway, dog show, evening horse shows, automobiles, pure food, wild animals, game birds and live fish from the Ontario government, government exhibits, displays by merchants and manufacturers, poultry and pets, flowers and fruit, livestock, junior agriculture, women's work, hobbies, child welfare demonstrations, baby show women's institutes' displays, and scores of other factors will combine to make the 1936 exhibition outstanding.

The exhibition dates are August 24th. to 29th. but August 1st is the closing date for entries in the horse, cattle, sheep and swine departments and also for the horse show, which will again be a free attraction each night in the Coliseum.

In several other departments, including junior agriculture, horticulture, dairy and other food products, handicrafts, poultry, seeds, fruits and vegetables, an extra week is allowed for receiving entries, the closing day being August 8th. Entries for the Women's Institute displays, the child welfare department, baby show and hobby show close on August 15. The dog show will be conducted August 26th. to 28th. and entries for it close August 15th. Directors of the exhibition have laid down a strict rule that no entries received after the date for closing will be entertained.

There have been several changes in the classifications in the various departments, and anyone who has not received a prize list showing these may obtain one by writing.

IS MONEY MONEY

Once upon a time there was a king and he was called Louis the Fifteenth. He spent money as they are spending it now. He just spent it and spent it and one day somebody dared say something to the King about it. Oh, he said, after me the deluge, it would last out his time, and so that was the difference.

But all the trouble really comes from this question is money money. Everybody who lives on it every day knows that money is money, but the people who vote money, presidents and Congress, do not think about money that way when they vote it. When you earn money and spend money every day, anybody can know the difference between a million and three.

It is awfully hard for anybody to think money is money when there is more of it than they can count. That is why there ought to be some kind of system that money should not be voted right away. When you spend money that you earn every day you naturally think several times before you spend more than you have and you mostly do not.

Whether you like it or whether you do not, money is money and that is all there is about it. Everybody knows it. When they earn it and spend what they earn they know it, they really know that money is money and when they vote it they do not know it as money.

That is the trouble with everybody, it is awfully hard to really know what you know. When you earn it, and spend it you do know the difference between three dollars and a million dollars, but when you say it and vote it, it all sounds the same. Of course it does, it would to anybody, and that is the reason they vote it and keep on voting it. So, now please, everybody, everybody, everybody, please, is money money and if it is it ought to be the same whether it is what a father of a family earns and spends or a government if it isn't sooner or later there is disaster.

News that the Ontario Government's decision to push on with highway building work is welcomed by many people in our neighboring province. In the Province of Quebec lies ample scope to follow their example. We have within our own county work of absolute necessity waiting. For instance the Montreal-Hull highway, the scenic route between the two cities north of the Ottawa. This has been underway for several years and still it is practically shunned because of the piece meal manner in which it is being handled.

Public expenditure on improvement of our highways under economic and proper management can be a sound investment. Apart from the tourist business, however, good highways should be an asset to the Canadian people. Our government is being faced with the problem of finding money to spend on beneficial public works, but when the contracts are given, there should be strong supervision to see that the work is properly executed and the roads made for permanency, rather than the method in which they are now generally handled.

When a fountain, 300 years old, in the Luxembourg Gardens in Paris began to behave as if it were tired, plumbers investigated recently and found the bottom well stocked with fish which had come through pipes from the Seine.

No. Thank you. The spell is broken. God Save the King. Arises from your accubation. The day has ended.

One of the outstanding visitors at the C-I-L Picnic held at Brownsburg last Saturday was J. P. Lanctot, K.C., St. Andrews National Union Candidate for Argenteuil in the last provincial elections. TO THE ELECTORS OF ARGENTEUIL

Montreal, July 14, 1936.

Since there is now an offer of other candidates in Argenteuil County, to represent the National Union Party and to fight the Provincial Government, and considering that it would have meant at the present time, considerable sacrifice to run another election and to exercise a public mandate, I have decided not to be a candidate for the next provincial election.

I take this occasion to express my sincere thanks to the electors who have honored me with their confidence at the last election and who insisted on having me as their candidate again.

The electors of the County of Argenteuil may be assured that I shall always be their true friend to work with them in the county's interest, and that I will continue in the future, as I did in the past, to help promote the application of the program upon which the two parties who have formed the National Union agreed before the last election.

J. P. LANCTOT

PEACE ALONE NOT ENOUGH

Sometimes we fail to realize that the government of the American city, during the past few generations, has changed from a policing agency to a service agency. It was not so very long ago that the primary emphasis in local government affairs was on the maintenance of law and order. But the assurance of orderliness is no longer the main responsibility of the community's governing agency; urban life in 1936 cannot thrive on peace alone.

Services, an ever-expanding list in every-expanding degree, are called for—services that are indispensable to urban life even though government as such were to be abolished altogether. Even an anarchical city would require streets, sewers, water systems, schools, fire protection, garbage collection, and so on—if it is to remain a city. The costs of these services we should properly consider the costs of city life, for the only way they can be avoided is by a return to an agricultural or even a pastoral civilization.

Public Works Engineers' News Letter, June 1936.

Aged Resident Passes,

THE LATE MRS. JOHN JACKSON

It is with deep regret we record the death of Elizabeth McClintock, widow of the late John Jackson, who passed away peacefully on Friday, July 10, 1936, after a long illness of several weeks at the age of 85 years. She was born in Point Fortune, Feb. 8th, 1851, and was married in June 1876.

Mrs. Jackson was a member of the United Church and for many years taught Sunday School in the Methodist Church. She was a woman of sterling qualities and much interested in all good work. She was a great reader and was able to discuss fluently what she read. She taught school in her younger days at the Seignory and Point Fortune.

Mrs. Jackson was much loved and respected, not only by her family, but by her neighbors and the whole community.

The funeral service was held on Sunday afternoon, and was conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, who spoke comforting and tender words to the large company of relatives and sympathizing friends. Many beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony to the bereaved family.

She had one daughter, Mrs. David Barclay (Bessie), who predeceased her two years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons, William of Lachute, and John of Kemptville, Ont.; one sister, Mrs. K. Barclay and one brother Wm. McClintock, both of Point Fortune. The pall-bearers were her grandsons, Harold and Sydney Barclay of Brockville, Ont., Wm. Jackson of Kemptville, Ont., Ernest and Hugh Jackson, E. W. Smith of Lachute.

Relatives attending from a distance were W. E. McClintock, Mrs. Geo. Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Scanlon, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Barclay, Mr. Alex. Barclay, Miss E. Walker, all of Point Fortune; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Knight of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jackson and family of Kemptville, Ont.; Mr. D. E. Barclay and family of Brockville, Ont. and Mr. Wm. Barclay of Winchester, Ont.

CORRESPONDENCE

Montreal, July 13th, 1936.

To the Editor,

"The Watchman",

Dear Mr. Editor:—

May I be permitted to ask a small space in your paper on a matter which is not meant to be controversial but a friendly thought.

I read with considerable pleasure the report of the Centenary Anniversary Celebration of St. Mungo's Church, by the people of Chatham and vicinity, at Cushing, Que.

Having summered at this beautifully situated spot on the banks of the Ottawa River, I have always been, and will always be, interested in any community or social activities the people of this delightful community undertake.

Therefore my question is this. I wish it distinctly understood I am not criticising the organizers of the Centennial, but in hearing the many discourses that took place, and in reading the report in the Montreal Gazette of July 8th, that many old timers gathered together there brought reminiscences of earlier days, the thought struck me that the eulogies, etc., paid the many old time Reverend Ministers, were undoubtedly quite in order, but I found it strange that no reference was made of one old timer in that community, whom I have no hesitation in saying, was to my knowledge the staunchest lay church worker of any denomination I ever knew of; absolutely unselfish in his endeavours to serve the church as well as the community, at all times. He is Captain J. D. Weir, better known to all as "Dave Weir". I have known "Dave" for over thirty years, and as stated above I have lived in the community, and know whereof I speak. Space would not permit me to cite all the good deeds I know he has done from the heart for this community, and the Church, whose Centennial has been proudly celebrated.

However, be that as it may, I think it would be very interesting reading for the younger generation, Mr. Editor, if "Dave", at this glorious period in the life of Cushing, P. Q. would do a little reminiscing himself and spin a good yarn of the trials and hardships, the old time lay members of the community went through to keep their Church progressive and alive. I know some of them myself, but I think they could better be described by "Dave." I think you know "Dave", Mr. Editor. I happened to have the pleasure of reading a short complimentary paper by you on what you saw of his work, on a trip made by you down the St. Lawrence from Montreal to Quebec. Well I cannot say too much for him also; his kindness to all he comes in contact with, whether it be in his daily life's occupation, or his community life at Cushing, P. Q., is refreshing to all men of good will.

It is therefore the reason why I find it strange that no reference was made of him during the Centennial held recently. I think he is deserving of mention at least.

Therefore, Mr. Editor, as the time is opportune for a few reminiscences of the earlier days, and the part played by the lay members of this old church, I am sure it will be very interesting if, through your columns, "Dave" could be asked to tell a good story. I again assure you it will be interesting, and very good reading for the younger folk to digest and profit thereby.

Thanks very kindly for your patience with me, I remain always,

"A Friend of Cushing, P.Q."

GOLF TOURNAMENT

A number of golf enthusiasts gathered at the Lachute Golf Club on Wednesday evening for a Mixed Tournament. After supper was served the game got under way, which was in the form of a Two Ball Foursome. This was won by Mrs. J. R. Charron and Mr. Garfield Clarke. The prizes donated by Mr. C. Tremblay, were then presented by him to the winners. About 45 being present.

The Late Miss Morrison

The death of Miss Louisa Morrison, which occurred at her home on Bethany Street, on Monday last came as a surprise to her many friends. Deceased was 64 years of age and had lived on their farm in Bethany up to a few years ago when she came to live in Lachute, purchasing a house on Bethany St. She leaves to mourn, one brother Thos. B. Morrison and an adopted daughter, Marian. The funeral conducted by Rev. H. Cousens, was held this afternoon, from the Presbyterian Church; interment taking place in Lachute Cemetery.

tion by James McGibbon, the Hon. E. Stuart McDougall said "Our stock is going up." The speaker said when in Quebec a couple of weeks ago he thought the Liberal party were in for a pretty thin fight. It looked pretty blue and black to him a week ago, but now he is about with that fine spirit of his had announced his programme, there appears to have risen a feeling that there was an upward surge, and I can assure you that I personally, and all my colleagues, feel the same way. We feel that we are on the upgrade, and moving forward. It is anything but a lost cause now.

Mr. McDougall said that it was not well to be over-confident, for elections were like sports events—liable to be lost because of over-confidence.

"We must put our backs up against the wall and fight, and the harder we fight, the more successful will we be," he added on this theme.

The Liberal party was a unified party, said Mr. McDougall, while against it there was missing one of the old line parties, and it was much a case of the Liberals versus the field. He felt confident that Premier Godbout, because of his sincerity, and love of hard work, could do a great deal for the province. The Premier had the added qualification of knowing what the farmers require, and the proposals made by him appeared to be perfectly satisfactory. There had, of course, to be limits to expenditures, and it was the speaker's own task to guard the treasury, for it was obvious that the more spent the more money had to be gathered in through taxation, and those who felt the government was not sufficiently generous should bear in mind that the fine financial reputation of the province should be maintained.

The Teachers' Institute assembled here during the week and has been largely attended by local teachers as well as many from a distance.

Communities which will not provide themselves with ample protection, should learn a lesson from the city of Montreal which is now threatened by the Insurance Companies with either an increase of rates or an abandonment of the city. Penny wise policy is, here as everywhere else, pound foolish in its character.

G. C. Arless, Photographer, of Montreal, will open a Studio in Mr. J. A. Bedard's premises in a few days. Parties desirous of having first-class pictures taken, had better give him a call.—Adv.

Mr. J. W. McCourt, B.A., has been engaged by a joint meeting of the Commissioners and Directors, as Head Master of the Academy for next year.

30 Years Ago

The excursion to the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, under the auspices of the Argenteuil County Agricultural Society was a great success. Our Federal member, Sir George Perley, accompanied the excursioners on their visit to the farm.

The Alpha Baseball Club of Montreal are to play a friendly game of baseball with the D. C. Company on their grounds, at Brownsburg, on Saturday next. Reports from the North-west this year predict a wheat crop of 130,000,000 bushels. Such a promise revives talk of Canada as the granary of the British Empire.

The 11th. Battalion Argenteuil Rangers left on Tuesday of this week to go into camp at Three Rivers, under command of Lt. Col. Jekyll, Major J. Scale and Major S. E. Smith.

Bishop Carmichael will hold a Confirmation Service in the Episcopal Church on Sunday, July 22nd.

NAUGHTY PUSSY GREY TOES

Naughty Pussy Grey Toes Dozing in the sun. I wonder if she's dreaming Of the naughty things she's done.

She knocked o'er daddy's ink-well
Broke it on a chair.
She jumped upon the table
Nibbled sister's cake,
And spilled the water in the pie
The naughty, little rake.

By Aunt Jean
Cordelia stared at the mouse in astonishment and not a little year before looking hastily around to see if Julia was coming up. To her surprise and horror there was no sign whatever of the fire place, her cosy little chair or any of the dear familiar nursery furnishings, nothing but darkness lighted only by a dull glow that formed a background for the mouse as he stood watching her.

"Where am I?" Cordelia gasped in a frightened voice. "Oh I am afraid that I am lost!"
"Just what I thought," said the mouse, "but you have nothing to fear. I shall take care of you and you are quite welcome to Jetty Land. Won't you come inside?" he queried stepping to one side with a very polite bow.

But faltered Cordelia, "I am too large to go inside."
"Not at all" chuckled Mr. Soft Fur, not at all. Why you are only a wee bit taller than myself and the doorway is almost too high for me to reach the top. Come right in; you won't bump your head!"

Cordelia stepped inside ducking her head as she did so but found that there was no need as Mr. Soft Fur had said, she to her amazement was but slightly taller than himself. "I cannot understand what has happened me she faltered, I seemed to have changed all in a moment. It is quite disturbing."
"Do not worry about it" said Mr. Soft Fur, just enjoy the present and do not worry about the future. That is the way we live here in Jetty Land. But come my dear, we must hurry. Soft Fur will be wondering what is keeping me so long. I shall go first as I know the way but I shall try not to go too quickly so that you can follow me quite easily.

Dropping down on his paws he pattered softly off, ahead of her. The way was dimly lighted for Cordelia's unaccustomed eyes but she managed to keep right behind him in spite of the little rustlings along the way, that filled her with terror. Once something soft came bang right against her and with a frightened squeak turned and ran in the opposite direction. A startled "Oh!" escaped Cordelia in spite of her determination not to allow herself to be afraid.

A squeaky chuckle floated back to her from Mr. Soft Fur who was still pattering on in front, that sent a spasm of fear through her. "I wonder, of I wonder if I am being led into a trap she whispered, trying to still her trembling legs. Why does Mr. Soft Fur chuckle like that at my fear if he is my friend? He was still chuckling. She stopped determined to follow no further but to turn and find her way back to the doorway. She looked back but it was so dark behind her and light the way she was going that she changed her mind about going back and kept on following Mr. Soft Fur who had by that time stopped chuckling and was speaking to her. "Are you tired, my dear, he asked". "No, Sir", Cordelia replied just a little nervous. "You need not be, my dear, you are quite safe with me even if that blunderer Silly Curly did bump into you. At least I thought that he did, by the way he turned and ran in terror the other way. He always boasts that he is afraid of nothing on earth and yet he ran like a scared rabbit. It is too funny. What a joke it will be for the folks of Jetty Land when I tell them." Mr. Soft Fur chuckled again so long that Cordelia realized that he had not been laughing at her fears at all, but at Silly Curly's fears, whoever he might be.

Cordelia was to find out who he was much to her regret before she left Jetty Land, but not knowing that she kept trotting along beside her leader gaining more and more confidence as the way grew wider and smoother and the smell of something good cooking floated out to her. She suddenly remembered that she was hungry and had meant to ask Julia for some bread and milk before she put her to bed. The light diet she had been kept on during her sickness had not been very satisfactory. Suddenly Mr. Soft Fur stopped, straightened up knocked three times on a wooly looking doorway, then whispered through the keyhole, "Hurry Mother Soft Fur, I have a visitor with me."

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

GONG

The foreman of an electrical repair shop was interviewing a bright boy who was applying for a position.

"Do you know anything at all about electrical apparatus?" asked the foreman.

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply.

"What is an apparatus?" asked the foreman.

"What is an armature?" asked the foreman.

FAITH

There was once a man who wanted to hire an office boy. There was a long line of boys waiting at his door in response to a notice in the newspaper.

"Well, my lad," said the man to one who looked like a good prospect, "you've seen the long line of boys outside waiting for this job; is there any particular reason why you should have the job?"

"Yes, sir," replied the boy. "I'm the only boy who brought his dinner."

He got the job.

ENVIRONMENT INFLUENCES OUR IDEAS

I have received a very gratifying letter from a woman who used to live when a child in the same town that I did. I really do not know her as she left when I was quite young. She says, in part, "So many thoughts you express about many different things, just express my sentiments and I sometimes wonder if our childhood's training by parents who had much the same outlook on life in a somewhat similar background might partly be the explanation". Now there is an idea. How much does our environment in childhood determine our thoughts and opinions in after life? There is no doubt it has an affect. There are towns which consist largely of people of the same type with the same viewpoint. That is why towns differ and each have their own atmosphere. There are rural sections where the people seem to be cast in the same mould and in an adjoining district they will be cast in a different mould. Our influence is wider than we think; just as the pebble dropped in the water influences water a long distance away, so do we change almost imperceptibly the lives of those around us. Those of us who grow up in a small town have a great deal for which to be thankful.

NEW DAYS REQUIRE NEW WAYS

A friend who has a family of teen-agers has adopted a very successful way out of a difficulty. They spend the summer at the beach and the youngsters all have different activities and different friends. It was almost impossible to get them all home for supper at the same time and there was continual strife. The mother realized that it was difficult for the youngsters to get there on time, if for instance they were sailing, or in the middle of a golf game. And so much of their fun was with outside friends that they felt they were being spoiled in always having to get home on the dot. So they decided that directly after dinner they would get supper ready and then they would each help themselves at any time they chose. Sandwiches were often made and each person's were wrapped in waxed paper. If salads were the choice, they were arranged on individual plates and put in the ice-box.

Anything else that was required each got for themselves. The dishes used were few and each stacked their own and they were done in the morning. The mother found that the actual work was less and the dividends in lessened nerve strain on all were great. New days require new ways and we should be flexible with our families.

TO COOL QUICKLY

If you wish to cool a food quickly, set the hot dish in a large pan of cold water, stir occasionally and change the water if necessary. The food will cool quicker this way than if put in the ice-chest immediately. When cool, place in the ice-chest to chill. Incidentally this method of chilling will save ice.

CANDY FOR DESSERT

Last summer I used candy very frequently for dessert and we all found it a pleasant change. Cooking should be reduced to a minimum and we all get tired of making desserts. I use fruit for most of my desserts but I found that it was not quite enough as we seemed to keep a supply of the not too rich candies in the house and we found the fresh fruit followed by some candy to be a very satisfactory dessert. It was no work, cost no more than the average dessert, was dietetically satisfying and we all liked it. So what more could you ask?

RASPBERRY VINEGAR

Place berries in a stone jar and cover with 1 pint of vinegar to each pint of berries. I like to dilute the vinegar a little. Let stand over-night. Strain. Measure and add 1 cup of sugar to each cup berries. Boil ten minutes and bottle. To serve, add a little to a glass of water.

3/4 cup cocoa
2 1/2 cups water
2 cups sugar
Boil ten minutes. Add four or five teaspoons to a glass of milk.

Is Music your Hobby?

(Contributed)

We are told science has proved that men with hobbies live longer than those without some sort of definite pastime. In the field of hobbies his spare-time that to enumerate them all would require a good-sized volume . . . though music, as a hobby, is one of the finest there are. A knowledge of music is equally important to a well-balanced education as is a knowledge of mathematics of language. But there is a difference in the breadth of such knowledge for music is the national tongue that binds all hearts and all tongues and is a force that appeals to the old and young alike no matter what their station in life. If you have ever contemplated learning something about this fascinating subject why put it off any longer? Truly there is no short-cut to Art, but does one have to take up the study of music with the idea of becoming a great artist—absolutely not! Such an achievement is beyond the power of most of us—but to be able to take an hour of our time during the evening and play several popular or classical airs, even just for our own enjoyment, is a satisfaction that too few enjoy. The advent of radio and talking pictures is claimed to have killed most of the ambition in us towards attaining any sort of goal in the musical line. But do we always have to have a definite idea that we will earn an amount of money before we do anything? This would seem to be a poor way in which to look at things. If we are skilled in our chosen profession, or work, there is no doubt but that we will eventually "arrive"; but in the hobby—how many of us are amateurs—really knowing and loving our particular hobbies but at the same time not indulging in them for the sake of monetary gain but rather as a means of usefully employing spare-time that would otherwise be lost to any account.

As the road that leads to success is usually easy to find but not as easily followed—because it means making haste slowly—a point that most of us wish to avoid. We want to play or sing like accomplished artists with little or no effect on our part to learn the fundamentals, which must be known by beginners in no matter what sphere of the artistic world. Music is inimitably bound up with the other arts, and whether one enjoys dabbling in paints and water-colours; or admits that he has an engaging tenor voice; or is in the habit of scribbling verses in his leisure hours, a knowledge of music will greatly enlarge the individual's horizon to the appreciation of many subjects kindred to the one that he is interested in, for example: biographies, various processes of manufacture, publishing, and the theatre. In addition to this, the study of music will cultivate the memory, and train the ear to distinguish what is really music and that which passes for music.

To take up the study of music as a hobby is to help yourself to a lot of enjoyment that you would otherwise miss. If this hobby introduces you to many beautiful melodies that you never knew existed you will be repaid a hundredfold; and should you, in reading the lives of the great musicians of both the past and the present, find in this reading an inspirational message that will serve to lead you on to a higher and a more useful life than you have been repaid a thousandfold.

—H. C. Lalonde.

Cut off the pink pulp and the green skin from watermelon rind. Cut in strips, cover with salted water (1 tablespoon salt to 1 quart water) and allow to stand overnight. Remove from water, add enough fresh water to cover and cook until rind is tender. Drain. Boil together sugar, vinegar, water and spices tied in a bag for ten minutes. Add rind and cook until transparent. Remove spice bag. Place rind in sterilized jars and fill with syrup.

"Crown Brand" Corn Syrup Offers Free Baseball Book

Just off the press is a new booklet entitled "Baseball and How to Play It" written by Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy, one of Canada's best known sportsmen, and Manager of the Montreal "Royals"—last year's International League pennant winners.

It is a book that will be enjoyed by all lovers of baseball, old or young, and to younger players especially the hints contained therein should be of special interest and value. In simple, direct and interesting style, "Shag" analyses his favorite game, telling how each position should be played, with illustrations to help make every point clearly understood.

The section dealing with the art of pitching will be of great help to young pitchers, as the proper methods of throwing every curve, as well as the "knuckle ball" and the "fast one" are explained in detail. The chapter on batting contains many valuable tips that should assist almost any player to an improved batting average. "Shag" also gives many helpful hints on base-running, although he admits that since the arrival of the "lively ball" this part of baseball has been much neglected, and gives as instances of its decline, the cases of Hank Lieber of the New York Giants and Rip Collins of the St. Louis Cardinals, who played the entire season last year without stealing a single base.

The book is illustrated—in addition to the pictures showing the different plays—with pictures of the Montreal "Royals" and Toronto "Maple Leafs", as well as pictures of some of the "all-time greats" of baseball. A brief resume of the Rules of Baseball is included, as well as a special talk on training and diet, which will be valuable to all athletes. The Canada Starch Company is offering the new book free to all who send them a label from a tin of "CROWN" or "LILY WHITE" CORN SYRUP, with their name and address and the words, "Baseball Book", written on the back. This book can be obtained in either English or French.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 19th., is "Life."

The Golden Text is: "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17: 3.)

"O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard: Which holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved." (Psalms 66: 8, 9.)

"God is divine Life, and Life is no more confined to the forms which reflect it than substance is in its shadow. If life were in mortal man or material things, it would be subject to their limitations and would end in death. Life is Mind, the creator reflected in His creations." (Science and Health, page 331.)

Makes Railway Epic

Adult Education Supplies Ideals of Democracy

The failure of democracy in other countries focuses attention on our own situation here in Canada. The time is rapidly approaching when something must be done to combat present social disorganization.

It should be obvious that the remedy lies in clarifying the ideals of democracy out of the muddy waters of partial understanding, in giving meaning to the catchwords which so often are the tools of demagoguery, and in developing abilities and devotion to service. For accomplishing all this the best instrument, and the only assured one, is education. Since voters are past school age this education would come under the heading "Adult Education."

Popular ignorance of what democracy really is and destructive selfishness have impaired its effectiveness. The whole adult community is affected and adult education in mass fashion would seem to be one of the solutions of the problem.

THE LATE WM. COWAN MILLER

There passed away at his home on Main Street, East Ward, on Saturday, July 4th, Wm. Cowan Miller, an old and respected member of this community.

Born on June 15th., 1856, at Cote St. Louis, Two Mountains, he was the eldest son of the late Charles Miller and Mary Vart. His early life was spent in farming, afterwards going to California, Nevada and Montana, later returning to his native heath where he has since resided. He is survived by his widow Elizabeth Miller, his brother-in-law, Thomas Miller, and two sisters, Mrs. George Campbell of Montreal, and Mrs. A. Berry of Lachute.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, service being conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, with a large number of friends being in attendance.

The pall-bearers were Walter, Harvey, Charles, John and Gordon Miller, all nephews of the deceased, and Charles R. Miller, cousin.

The remains were interred in the pretty little cemetery at Lachute in which he, with others, had taken such pride in beautifying.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. William Miller and Mr. T. Miller wish to express their sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for sympathy and floral tribute in their recent sad loss.

CUSHING WEST

IMPOSING CEREMONY, BLESSING OF CORNER-STONE NEW CHURCH

CHURCH DIGNITARIES, MUNICIPAL COUNCILLORS AND DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PRESENT

The ceremony of laying the corner-stone for the new parish church of St. Anastasie was witnessed last Sunday afternoon by a large gathering of citizens and visitors. Mgr. J. Conrad Chaumont, Vicar-General of the Montreal Diocese, officiated, and was assisted by a former priest of this town, Rev. J.-A. Gratton of St. Nicholas, Ahuntsic, and Rev. J.-N. Briere of St. Lambert, a former curate here. The thanks of the parishioners were fittingly conveyed to Mgr. Chaumont by Rev. Father E. Labelle, who also paid tribute to the church board and congregation through whose efforts the construction of a new church had been made possible, and to the painstaking work of M. J.-E. Perron, architect, and to M. Alcidas Laurin, the contractor.

A pleasing feature of the occasion was an appropriate sermon by Rev. L.-J. Rodrigue, son of Dr. Alex. Rodrigue and native of this town, who is now teaching at the Ste. Therese Seminary. His text was from Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians: "The corner-stone of the church is Jesus Christ." He reviewed the religious development of this parish, the sacrifices of its pioneer workers and the progress leading up to this erection of a new church edifice.

Mgr. Chaumont then blessed the corner-stone, and added his tribute to the religious ardor of the parish.

"Features at the Ottawa Exhibition include a comic opera, 'The Gingerbread Man'; an exhibition of automatic gas buoys on the lake, similar to those used on the Atlantic Ocean; a grand championship lacrosse match and balloon ascensions."

YOUNG BATHER DROWNED AT BELLEFEUILLE BRIDGE

A young Montrealese, Robert Raymond, 17, was drowned in the Lake of Two Mountains Sunday afternoon. Plaque Laval police learned that Raymond with several other young companions had gone to the beach at St. Eustache Bridge to spend the day. He was not a very good swimmer, and got beyond his depth in the lake where, apparently exhausted, he sank from sight before his friends could reach him.

The body was recovered and brought ashore almost at once and artificial respiration was practiced. The young man was pronounced dead by an interne from the Royal Victoria Hospital, from which an ambulance was called.

The beach where the mishap occurred is situated at the Plage Laval end of the De-Bellefeuille toll bridge, on route No. 8.

SELECTION FOLLOWS WITHDRAWAL OF J. P. LANCOT

Since the withdrawal of Mr. J. P. Lancot, K.C., from local candidature for the Union National party, the selection of a successor has caused some little excitement, which culminated in a meeting of delegates at the Court House in Lachute last Tuesday evening.

There was a good attendance of local party workers, keenly interested in upholding the Union-National representation. The question of the choice of candidates was fully discussed. The names of Notary J. F. Lavigne, Mr. Albini Lamarche and Notary Rodrigue were presented, but the latter withdrew with an expression of thanks.

The Central Organization was represented by Mr. Aube of Montreal, who briefly addressed the meeting and expressed the need of collaboration between the parent and local organizations, sinking all differences for the good of the party.

Owing to the fact that the delegates had been called out to a previous meeting, when they had nominated Mr. Lancot, (who for certain reasons found it necessary to withdraw from the campaign, leaving on Friday for a trip to Europe)—the delegates had been further summoned to another public meeting, and it was fitting that they

IMPROVED CONDITIONS, MAIN ST. PARKING

The town roads department has now marked parking spaces for the accommodation of cars on Main Street. For a long time automobiles have been left in the centre of the thoroughfare in haphazard and unsightly fashion. With the new arrangement motorists must park their machines in clearly defined spaces. The town authorities enforcing this rule, and also a keener respect for stop signs among certain drivers, will bring greatly improved conditions in local traffic.

Council Opposes Plan For New Gasoline Station

At a special meeting of the Town Council called on Tuesday evening to consider an application by Provincial Motor Club Inc., for permit to establish a gasoline and auto service station in Lachute, the aldermen registered disapproval by a strong vote. Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason presided. The Secretary was instructed to write the Corporation refusing permit, in accordance with the Council's decision. It was considered that the proposed location, at corner of Bethany and Foundry streets, was already too congested as regards traffic and width of thoroughfare. There were other arguments in opposition to the scheme.

Largest Exodus to Europe Since War ... Passports Reach Peak ... Heat Damaged Crops ... Sanctions Lifted, Italian Lemons for Canada.

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT" By Wulfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, July 21—Of chief interest at the moment are the departure last Thursday of five ships carrying about 6,000 Canadian veterans of the Great War to France to take part in the unveiling ceremony by His Majesty King Edward VIII of the Dominion's war memorial at Vimy Ridge on Sunday next; lifting of sanctions against Italy in common with other countries of the League of Nations, on Wednesday last; and continued speculation on the possible size of this year's wheat crop on the Prairies and the current prices for wheat and the sales of the Wheat Board.

The Canadian Legion Vimy pilgrimage constitutes the largest single exodus to Europe since the war, 17 years ago. France is spending upwards of $130,000 on an entertainment program for the representatives of her war time Allies, all of whom were invited to spend five days in France at the expense of the government of that country. The ceremony will be broadcast by radio in Canada and sound pictures will also be taken for showing later throughout the Dominion. From Ottawa, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, C.M.G., will radio a brief message as part of the Vimy ceremony, at which also President Blum of France will speak. Many other Canadians are travelling abroad this summer since passports to the number of 4,000 were issued in May and over 5,000 were issued in June, the largest number incidentally in any month for the past five years.

Weekly Editors in Annual Convention At Winnipeg, Manitoba

The annual meeting of weekly newspapermen from all over Canada was held recently at Winnipeg when it was our privilege and pleasure to attend.

In speaking casually Winnipeg seems a long trip, but taken in variation of rail and boat, it is one of the most pleasant and enjoyable that can be wished for. Leaving Lachute on Friday evening by C.P.R., we arrived in Toronto early on Saturday, then proceeded to Port McNicol where the luxurious boat Assiniboia was waiting to take us through the Great Lakes. A splendid cabin on the top deck which we occupied for two nights and five really should give full expression to their choice.

Ballots were then distributed, and delegates holding properly certified credentials were given the privilege of voting. This resulted in a count of 60 votes favoring Notary Lavigne, and 15 for Mr. Lamarche.

FARM DWELLING WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Early on Monday morning fire was discovered in the rear shed at the residence of Amedee Lemay, on Lachute Road, not far from the Ayers Limited power plant. The fire brigade was summoned from Lachute; in the meantime, however, both wells on the property had been pumped dry and as there was no other available water supply nothing could be done to prevent the spread of the flames. In consequence the whole dwelling was burned to the ground. Fortunately there was sufficient time for the inmates and neighbors to save the furniture. Damage is estimated at $2,000. The building was not insured.

Lad's Four Fingers Severed in Wood-Cutting Machine

Edgar Church, aged 16, was the victim of an unfortunate mishap last Tuesday afternoon while at work in the Dominion Shuttle Co's., Lachute Mills. His left hand became caught in a veneer cutting machine and his four fingers were taken off diagonally, thus handicapping the young man for life. He was taken to Dr. J. H. Mason's office for medical attention, and is reported to be making good progress. Church had been working in the veneer mill only a few weeks when he suffered this painful accident.

NATIVE OF ARGENTEUIL HAD NOTABLE CAREER IN POLITICS

HON. R. ROGERS WENT WEST, AND LATER BECAME MINISTER IN CONS. CABINETS

Hon. "Bob" Rogers, born here at Lakefield, Que., 72 years ago and familiarly known among county agriculturists, died on Tuesday at Homewood Sanitarium, Guelph. Mr. Rogers went West many years ago to carve out a career. He had since filled important cabinet posts in several Conservative federal administrations. He had been in the sanitarium for about two years and death was caused from infirmities of advancing years.

His last appearance in a federal election was in 1930 when he recaptured the South Winnipeg seat from J. C. McDiarmid, by whom he was defeated in 1926.

Mr. Rogers was born in 1864 and spent his boyhood years amid the rural peace of this locality. His father, George Rogers, was a merchant who also held the position of Lieutenant-Colonel of the Argenteuil Rangers, a well known militia regiment. The young Robert was educated in the schools at Lachute and Berthier, later attending business college in Montreal.

PICTURESQUE CAREER

For almost a generation recognized as one of the most astute political strategists in the Dominion, Hon. Robert Rogers' career was a picturesque one. In both the federal and the Manitoba arenas he filled important cabinet posts, but his fame rested largely upon his ability as an organizer and his success as a Conservative tactician. In the latter respect he was perhaps the foremost stalwart of his party, and even when political vicissitudes found him with the small end of the vote he continued to exert a potent influence in legislative realms. In the hectic controversies of his time he was always one of the chief combatants, but he had in a high degree the gift of personal friendship, which extended to some of his bitterest political foes.

GRENVILLE CAR IN RARE ACCIDENT LAST WEEK

CORNWALL DOCTORS DO CLEVER SURGERY ON INJURED LAD

Wilfred Masse, aged 11, of Alexandria, owes his 50-50 change for life to the skill of Dr. J. A. Hurteau and Dr. M. A. Kelly of Cornwall, following an accident last Thursday in which he was struck by Gaetan Dansereau of Grenville, who was driving through Alexandria. Actually the lad ran into the side of the auto while playing "tag", and was pierced in the chest by a door handle of the machine. Mr. Dansereau was driving south at a slow speed, accompanied in the car by Rev. Father Poulin of Montreal.

The lad was given first aid by local physicians, then rushed to Cornwall hospital. There Dr. Hurteau and Dr. Kelly found all the ribs over the heart from the ninth to the 12th were broken and the flesh about the heart torn so they could see the organ beating. They gave him a chance of 1,000 to one for life, but he remained conscious.

The doctors administered an anaesthetic and Dr. Hurteau went to work. He placed seven stitches in a cut in the heart, 1 1/2 inches long and 1-8 inch deep, and stitched the pericardium (the sac surrounding the heart) which was cut for a length of three inches, then he cut away the broken parts of the ribs and rebuilt the chest wall.

Several times the boy's heart appeared to cease beating, and the doctors administered oxygen and other stimulants.

60 MILES AN HOUR IS DANGEROUS PACE ON HIGHWAY

Potential Menace Is Aply Illustrated

A Firestone Tire advertisement in the press describes the potentialities of a speeding car in a very apt manner. When the speedometer registers 60, (it states) your car travels 88 feet in one second and has the same comparative capacity to inflict damage as if you drove off the top of a nine-storey building!

OFFICERS INSTALLED IN LACHUTE I.O.O.F. LODGE

The semi-annual installation of the members of Laurentian Lodge No. 14, Independent Order of Oddfellows, was held in McArthur's Hall on Tuesday evening. District Deputy Grand Master Bro. J. J. Gould and his suite were present from Montreal and installed the following officers: P. Carpenter, J.P.G.; T. Izzard, N.G.; J. Martin, V.G.; S. S. Campbell, Rec. Sec'y.; G. Demerse, Fin. Sec'y.; W. J. Deacon, Treas.; W. R. McFaul, Warden; J. A. Campbell, Conductor; Rev. W. B. Rosborough, Chaplain; A. Murdoch, R.S.S.; E. McFaul, L.S.S.; J. Cunningham, R.S.N.G.; Geo. Brennan, L.S.N.G.; N. J. Boyd, R.S.V.G.; W. Campbell, L.S.V.G.; D. R. Bradford, I.G.; W. K. McArthur, O.G. Appropriate speeches were given and refreshments served in a pleasant hour following the installation.

INTRICATE ARRANGEMENTS FOR RELAYING OF CEREMONY

Tentative plans for a nationwide broadcast of ceremonies at the unveiling of the Canadian war memorial at Vimy by His Majesty King Edward VIII, on July 26, have been announced by the Canadian Radio Commission. While transmission difficulties, which have yet to be overcome, make some phases of the broadcast indefinite, it is expected that the proceedings will be heard in Canada from 8.30 to 9.45 a.m. EST. A Commission staff announcer now at Vimy will describe the activities in both English and French.

Colourful scenes will mark this great peace-time gesture on the spot where, twenty years ago, Canadian troops fought and were victorious in one of the greatest battles of history. More than 6,000 Canadian service men, as well as distinguished personalities from Canada, England, and Europe, will see Britain's youthful King unveil the great white memorial erected in tribute to those gallant Canadians who made Vimy Ridge forever a part of the Dominion.

The broadcast, scheduled to start at 2.00 p.m. Vimy time (8.30 a.m. EST), will bring to listeners descriptions of the arrival of His Majesty, as regimental bands play the National

Let your light so shine before the world in all its purity and lustre, such as it emanates from the unobscured fountain of revelation, let it so shine in your families, in your friendly connections, in your ordinary affairs, in your amusements, in truth only evince to mankind on all occasions that you are not ashamed of being a Christian, and out of the hosts of friends of Christ will be found thousands who will draw many after them from the principle of imitation. There are few men who have not some to esteem and respect them for one cause or another; and if there be any whose influence or authority does not reach beyond themselves it must be owing to the want of Christian principle or Christian conduct.

The poorest man in the land, if he be sincerely uniformly actuated by the spirit of the gospel, will command to a certain extent, the respect and may therefore attract the imitation of others. Those however who move in the higher walks of life, to whom a numerous clan of people, unknown perhaps to those who occupy lofty stations, look up for sanction to their conduct ought to be particularly careful to let their light so shine before men. Their equals with whom they are daily sharing the blessings of intercourse, those immediately below them, downwards till you pass to the industrious multitude whose object it is to supply the splendid world with all that is dazzling and overpowering in their appearance, these are all more or less ready to catch and imitate either the voices or the virtues of the great. What a wide and fertile field for doing good is here presented to those whom God has elevated above thousands of their fellow creatures. But it is not those alone who are distinguished by titles and offices of high trust in a country, who can be thus serviceable to the spread of virtue and piety in the world. The field no doubt contracts as we descend through the various gradations of society but still, if cultivated, it will yield an abundant harvest. Everyone has his own family, his own neighborhood, his own circle of acquaintances, by whom his conduct is noticed and imitated.

Now it may occur to many that this principle of imitation can carry a man that has been prone to vicious indulgence but a very little way in the Christian character. It may, it will be thought only to conceal from the world, the evil principles of the heart which formerly expressed themselves in the actions of the life. In short it is only converting open profligates into concealed hypocrites. But this is no simple text which stands at the head of this discourse, we might suspect and even disbelieve such an opinion. Our Lord knew human nature too well to give more force to the principle of imitation than it will really bear. When he enjoins his followers to let their light so shine before men that they may thereby be led to glorify their Father which is in heaven, he gives no more influence to example than experience every day proves it to have, nor to the tendency to copy example than the same experience proves it to possess.

We have therefore still further to observe that men not only imitate the actions of one another but also their opinions and principles.

The truth of this remark is proved by every individual experience. The opinions of a person whom we highly esteem for the dignity and excellence of his character whom we are ready to copy in our practice, become so sensibly our own, purely from the conviction that the judgments of such a person must partake of the general worth which prevails in his ordinary behaviour. The mind insensibly slides into the imitation of another's modes of thinking upon any subject, without, in a great number of cases ever investigating the propriety and justice of them. He whom we respect is of this or that opinion, that is a sufficient argument with thousands to become converts to any set of doctrines. This is what is called an authority in judging upon any subject. Now every one knows how omnipotent authority is in the world. How few think for themselves. How great an influence great names exert over the minds of men.

This deference to the authority of others however, is not entirely blind. It proceeds generally from the perception of some real excellence which the individual is clearly in possession of towards whom it is shown. So strong is the tendency in men to imitate the modes of thinking which prevail amongst those whom they otherwise respect, that philosophers or they who proudly affect to think for themselves, have in all ages laboured to correct it. But the truth is that the very men who censure this tendency of our nature and point out so forcibly its pernicious consequences, are themselves not free from the charge of imitation in this respect. They have all their favourite authorities differ from those of the vulgar in nothing more than the superior intelligence by which they are distinguished. Something or other has recommended them to their esteem, perhaps something of a very trivial kind, and from their partiality to this, they adopt with implicit credulity their everything else.

Such are the delusions which the wisest men often practice on themselves, fancying themselves to be free of those prejudices of which they so zealously strive to rid others. From these remarks we observe how easy and natural the inference is which is drawn in the text, that, from the display of Christian excellence before men, we may safely conclude that the wicked and unbelieving may be won over to the practice of righteousness and the adoption of the truth. Whatever is seen to produce rectitude of life, though abstractedly considered, it may be possible to conjure up objections against it, will be found in the end to obtain a wide and hearty reception. If therefore the infidel saw that Christianity wherever it was externally embraced, brought for the peaceable fruits of righteousness, that in all circumstances and situations, the Christian was distinguished by the piety and moderation, the candor, the justice, the resignation, and in one word the charity of his behaviour, if in short the Christian excelled other men as far as his religion excels any other, then might we expect that many who now blaspheme the only name by which we are called, who glory in their free-thinking and above all things regard it as the most acceptable service they can render the world to accelerate the extinction of our faith, would see the folly and madness of their conduct and betake themselves to that system of belief which alone can effect the high perfection of their nature. And when we add to this the contentment and happiness with which an undeviating adherence to the precepts of the Gospel is always accompanied, it is impossible to resist the conclusion that the effect of such a combination of excellence and of happy results would produce a proportionate number of imitators.

Upon the whole then we reflect upon the universal tendency of men to imitate what he admires, or rather to imitate what he often holds, we must be prepared to admit that by letting our light shine before men, is the most efficient way to induce them to glorify our Father who is in heaven.

But we must be convinced of more than this, for in the second place, we have to remark that so to let our light shine, is the bounden duty of every Christian.

If to promote the spread of true religion in the world be the duty of Christians, and none will hesitate that it is, then to let our light shine before men is also our duty, for nothing is so effectual to the dissemination of religion as the virtuous example of its friends. To recommend to the world the gospel of Christ, various methods have been resorted to. Persecution has been tried and as was to be expected, and is at all times to be wished, it failed in its object. It produced contempt instead of love for the faith. It fixed a stigma upon religion which time only had the effect of wearing off. Arguments have had recourse to and these certainly have been attended with no inconsiderable success. They have silenced every rational attempt at shaking the stability of our faith, and if they have not accomplished the convictions of unbelievers, they have at least put it beyond their power to alarm the Christian world with any new or formidable objection.

First Public High School

In 1821 Boston established the first public high school in the United States. This school, patterned after the academies, did not at first prepare for college; it offered, rather, a variety of courses of the modern (non-classical) and practical type. In 1827 the Massachusetts legislature passed a law requiring towns of a certain size to establish high schools. Few of the towns acted upon this law until Mann became secretary of the state board of education, but by 1850 Massachusetts had 64 public high schools—probably more than all the other states combined. The high schools later undertook to prepare pupils for college and thus combined the functions both of the old Latin grammar schools and of the private academies. In the country as a whole the high school made little progress until after the Civil war.

The United States' loss on wheat due to terrible drought conditions there has been estimated as high as a billion dollars. The American government has appropriated $1,500,000 for immediate relief in 12 arid states and an additional $3,000,000 for long term relief measures. Blistering heat in the West, and also in Ontario, has wrought great damage to the Canadian crops. It is still too early yet for any official estimate as to the size or quality of the crop to be harvested.

Directors of the Western Stock Growers' Association have asked the federal government to set up a $5,000,000 stabilization fund to purchase all cattle forced to market from drought conditions at a fair price for quality offered. It is doubtful however, how the request can be granted, because the government has no money available for such a purpose and it divested itself voluntarily from the wide powers under "peace, order and good government" taken for itself by the Bennett government. Some assistance of some kind will be forthcoming, however.

Prime Minister King officiated at the corner stone laying of the new $400,000 legation and residence being erected by the French government in Ottawa. The British and U. S. residences and offices for their representatives so that Japan is the only country with a minister here with permanent accommodation for its representative. Mr. King, in a timely speech, seized the opportunity to comment on the significance of such a little bit of French soil in the heart of Canada and the little bit of Canadian soil at Vimy in France. "Thus Canada speaks to the world asking it to behold what a world may become which buries deep the feuds of past generations and forgets forever its enmities of race", Mr. King observed.

Lifting of the sanctions against Italy apparently came in time to avoid a shortage of lemons in Canada, the use of them having risen sharply during the torrid heat wave across the Dominion in recent weeks. Ordinarily Canada's lemon supply comes partly from the States and partly from Italy. It will likely take some months for the normal trade between Canada and Italy to be resumed with the lifting of sanctions which were imposed last November because of Italy's invasion of Ethiopia.

The Canadian government, as far as is known, has not become as excited about the German airship Hindenburg flying over parts of eastern Canada as have sections of the British public for her flying over sections of England on her recent flights from Germany to New York. Meanwhile, Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, has been inspecting sections of the proposed trans-Canada air mail route from Ottawa as far west as Winnipeg. The objective is to have such service right across Canada in operation by 1938.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, and honorary colonel of the Calgary Highlanders, has been awarded the Canadian efficiency decoration, according to a recent announcement of the National Defence Department. Mr. Bennett recently celebrated his 66th birthday in Vancouver.

Death of a guard in the Kingston penitentiary following an attack by an inmate will likely be investigated by the royal commission on penitentiaries when it begins its inquiry in the fall.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's governor-general, has been indisposed at Quebec lately. Whether his illness will prevent his scheduled trip to Western Canada early next month remains to be seen.

Quebec's Cancellation Stamp

In Quebec a postmark used for the cancellation of stamps reads in English, "Observe Sunday", and in French "Observez le dimanche". American papers have been noting this fact and urging U. S. readers to follow the good example.

Eighty-Year-Old Peony Bloomed this Summer

When William Johnston of Toronto left his home in Donegal, Ireland, over 80 years ago, he brought with him one of the peonies which bloomed in the garden of his home.

It came to Toronto by oxcart and river boat after crossing the ocean in the hold of a sailing ship, and was planted in front of Johnston's log cabin, which still stands in the centre of the Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

The peony was transplanted later to a new home in Peel County near Dixie, then in 1892 back to Toronto. This same peony has bloomed in the garden of Oscar P. Johnston in Toronto, grandson of the man who brought the ancient flower from Ireland.

Once after it was moved the peony did not bloom for 35 years, said Mr. Johnston. On another occasion all but a small piece of the root was stolen, but again the plant survived and bore flowers.

Promise Best for 49th. Central Canada Exhibition

Big promises are being made this year by the directors and management of the Ottawa Exhibition which will open on Monday, August 24, for six full days and nights. They promise the finest exhibition ever held in Ottawa and that is saying a lot for this is the 49th. year for the Central Canada Exhibition Association and a wonderful record has been established. All factors in the big exhibition have received special attention, and there will be variety and excellence in the entertainment and educational features.

Of special import is the announcement that Edwin Franko Goldman, the king of bandmasters, and his famous band will be heard in two concerts daily without any extra charge. This will be the first visit to Ottawa of the famed leader who has won the highest international reputation and whose admirers for his radio programs number hundreds of thousands.

For the feature night attraction will be "The Fascinations of 1936," a four-star revue with a cast of 42, mostly girls. This will be presented from a revolving stage with special lighting effects, magnificent settings, gorgeous costumes and novel innovations. It will set a new standard for outdoor offerings and will bring back the days of the musical comedies on the legitimate stage before the movies. This will be augmented by vaudeville acts, top line attractions from the amusement places of the United States and overseas, closing with a spectacular fireworks display. Each afternoon there will be a grandstand program, including vaudeville, horse races and sports.

Then too there will be horse shows in the Coliseum each evening, dog show, a new midway with the latest in rides and shows, livestock, poultry, pets, flowers and fruit, automobile show, baby show, hobbies, handicrafts, government displays, exhibits by merchants and manufacturers, junior agriculture, pure food, handicrafts and scores of others.

Prize lists and descriptive matter will be forwarded on application. In some departments the entries close on August 1st.

Correspondence

A REPLY

Dear Mr. Editor:

In reply to correspondence of last week signed "A Friend of Cushing" I would say that this letter is not controversial either, but explanatory, as of course your surprised correspondent only having summured in Cushing could not be expected to know that the Centennial Celebration which has so recently taken place was staged to celebrate the building of the church one hundred years ago (and just by the way, Capt. J. D. Weir had nothing whatever to do with that). It was also, a memorial service to the primal builders of the congregation and the past revered ministers who have died and gone to their reward.

Capt. Weir not being a "dead one" in any sense of the word therefore could not be mentioned in the remarks made from the pulpit and platform during the session. In the enumeration of families of the congregation by the different speakers, the House of Weir (all of whose members have been kindly active in church work) received its full share of approbation.

Nor could your correspondent be expected to know that the very full and very fine account of the proceedings which have appeared in your columns during the past two weeks was not written by a Cushing resident, but by one of the visiting clergy who was present for all of the sessions, and very kindly took notes.

It was an abbreviated account of the actual happenings of the celebration only, special reference to any of the workers of the present day could not be included in it and would have been decidedly out of place.

If Mr. Weir desires to write yarns of the past, for the Watchman, I am quite certain they will be appreciated by his old neighbors and brother laymen who labored with him, and are still laboring in the arduous work of keeping the old church's wheels, as it were, running.

Cushing community appreciates all that Mr. Weir has done in the past and is still doing for Cushing and for St. Mungo's, but it refuses to place him on the ancient or antique shelf which, to my understanding, your correspondent of last week has unintentionally done, in calling him an old-timer and expressing surprise, that no mention was made of him at the Centennial celebration.

St. Mungo's congregation was not celebrating and eulogizing the workers of today, but the dead past. Mr. Weir belongs to the active, present day workers and it would have been befitting him, to include his name in the memorials amongst these old-timers and back numbers.

One Who Has Also Known "Dave" for 30 Years

Discoverer of Eucalyptus
Sir Joseph Banks fitted out a vessel at his own expense and accompanied the famous Captain Cook on his first voyage around the world in 1768, and when they touched the shores of Australia (then called New Holland), Sir Joseph was the first man to see and describe the Eucalyptus which grow by the millions in California. He called them "Gum" trees because of the exudations of gum on the trunks and Gum trees they still remain to us. The Araucaria was first introduced from the Society Islands in the Pacific and named by him, while the same is true of the famous "Bird of Paradise," Strelitzia, which he introduced from South Africa and named in honor of his friend Queen Charlotte Sophia of Mecklenburg-Strelitz.

Making History in Argenteuil

Extracted from the Files of

50 Years Ago

Friday, July 23, 1886.

The present population of Ottawa City is reckoned at 35,000.

Mr. Gladstone and his colleagues have sent in their resignation to the Queen. Lord Salisbury has been summoned by Her Majesty.

Mr. J. W. McQuat, B.A., has been engaged by a joint meeting of the Commissioners and Directors to the position of head master in the Lachute Academy.

Trotting matches are being held next Wednesday on the racing park of Mr. Duncan Paul, Bethany. For particulars see posters.

On Wednesday, 28th., there will be a binder trial on Walter Paul's farm adjoining the race course.

The Teachers Institute assembled here during the week has been largely attended by teachers from a distance, Dr. Rolins, Inspector McGregor &c.

Quite a number of tourists are sojourning in the village of Hawkesbury, which only requires a railroad to be complete.

Friday, July 20, 1906.

The excursion to the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, under auspices of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, passed off very successfully on Wednesday last. Mr. Geo. H. Perley had provided a splendid dinner for all comers. Credit is due to our enterprising C.P.R. ticket agent, Mr. W. J. Todd, who organized the excursion.

Mr. Jas. W. Gall of Mont Tremblant is visiting friends in town.

Carillon—Mr. and Mrs. Todd, of Geneva, were guests of Mrs. J. Nicholls at Willow Cottage on Sunday evening.

Cushing—The noon train of the C. & G. R., carrying passengers from the lower boat, in passing over the switch at McCormick's Station to allow the train with those from the Ottawa boat to pass through, left the rails and for a short time confusion reigned supreme.

Cushing—Proceeds of the social held at Mr. Geo. Nicholls' amounted to $48, which considering the size of the crowd gives rise to suspicion that there must have been some scaling of the back fence.

"FIRE FOLLOWERS" HANDICAP FIREMEN

Lachute Fire Department might benefit by the aid of an ordinance such as came to our attention recently, adopted by the city council of Danville, Kentucky. This by-law provides penalties for drivers of vehicles, other than those on official business who do not pull to the curb until all fire apparatus has passed when an alarm has been sounded. Also, no vehicle shall travel closer than 200 feet within the block where the fire apparatus is in operation.

Both phases of this ordinance are applicable to the difficulties of our local brigade—especially the first. "Fire followers" obstruct the passage of engines and equipment to a lesser extent than they hamper the progress of firemen in the wake of these trucks, hurrying to reach the scene of the outbreak. On many occasions our firemen, driving their own cars, have been held up by a line of motorists anxious to see what is going on. If common sense cannot curb this practice, a town ordinance might prove effective. At least, they think so in Kentucky.

LAST JULY AND THIS

A year ago some people thought that war might break out between Britain and Italy. This year British sea dogs are leaving the Mediterranean and sanctions are being lifted. It is expected that Italy will meet Britain's peace gestures by withdrawing her Libyan troops.

WHERE MANY LIVE LONG

There is no talk about Canada's healthful climate that can equal a demonstration of it. We think of this when the time comes round each year to greet our nonagenarian friends around Lachute. Better than advertising the advantages of this section or that would be a faithful playing up of the old people. Regardless of what the philosophers say, about it being more important to live well than to live long, most of us want to live long and trust that we will live well enough. Heaven may be a place where streets are paved with gold—yet few seem anxious to go there. Good old mother earth under the feet seems preferable to gold in the realm of hope. To feel otherwise would show lack of appreciation for what the Creator has done for us thus far.

ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO THE LATE "BOB" ROGERS

One does not need to have been of his political faith to mourn the passing of the Hon. Robert Rogers. After years clouded by illness this stalwart of the West has passed over to his political Valhalla. A half century of campaigning is at an end.

With his tall, frock-coated figure and his silvery mane, which he wore in the fashion of Mac-

Donald and Laurier, "Bob" Rogers stalked through the halls of Parliament like a figure of the past. Although others in the House were his senior and although he did not enter the federal field until 1911, he seemed in his person to epitomize the great tradition of the 80's and the 90's and the early 1900's.

During those years Mr. Rogers was an active political leader in the West of his adoption, but it was as a shrewd general, a politician who fought hard and fearlessly for his party, that the country knew him. When he arrived in Ottawa a quarter of a century ago he already had a national reputation.

"Bob" Rogers has been described as a typical westerner. Actually he was a native of this province. As a young man, a very young man indeed, he left Quebec and moved to the sparsely settled territories of Southern Manitoba. He was a leader there when the country was growing and at a time when leaders were sorely needed. No doubt it will be this section which knew him long as "Fighting Bob" which will remember him longest and honor his memory most of all.

About one-third of the Indian population of Canada, states Hon. T. A. Crerar, are now on relief. It is to be hoped the Indians are duly grateful for the blessings of a paleface civilization.

WATERED ELEPHANTS FROM FIRE HYDRANT

Fire Chief Clarence Abels, of Dravosburg, in the suburbs of Pittsburgh, was hailed into court by a water company, charged with giving 1,000 gallons of water from a fire hydrant to four circus elephants and a camel. Superintendent of the company claimed a violation of the contract that "fire hydrants can be used only for quenching or quelling fires." The case took a humorous turn and the outcome is not reported.

FINED 26 POUNDS STERLING

Freed by a coroner's jury of responsibility in the death of Joseph Mousseau, who died of gas poisoning, Delphus Ratelle, a Montreal plumber, pleaded guilty to the charge of having made an illegal gas connection. It was following this connection that Mousseau died, after having been overcome by gas escaping from the Montreal Light, Heat and Power main.

Ratelle admitted he had made the connection at the request of the dead man. Ratelle lived in the same house as Mousseau, but in another apartment, and had been doing odd jobs for him.

Pointing to the danger of illegal gas connections, Angus Ogilvy, counsel for the power company, said that Mousseau's death was an example of what might follow such action. He said the company was endeavoring to put an end to illegal connections to remove the possibility of such accidents.

Ratelle was fined 26 pounds sterling and costs, or one month in jail. The fine was imposed in pounds because the charge was laid under an old statute of the company which estimates the penalty in pounds.

WATER IS STILL FREE

In the office of the Oklahoma City water department (states the Bureau of Municipal Research at Philadelphia) hangs a sign said to be the perfect answer to the man who objects to water meters 'because water ought to be free'. It reads in part: 'Water Is Still Free—If you care to go down to the river, dip it up, carry it home in a jug and take chances on the contamination to which it has been subjected. Do you know that in a thousand gallons of water furnished to you, a service rendered commonplace by reason of its dependability, in addition to the removal of a large portion of the unnecessary minerals it contains, filtering and sterilizing it, the delivery has required more than 2,000,000 foot-pounds of work—and that the cost to you is 5 cents per ton? Where else can you get more for your money?'

dinner given by the Daily Winnipeg papers, Mr. L. W. Brockington, K.C., excelled in a discourse which will long be remembered by all present.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: President, L. J. Bennett of Carman, Man.; 1st. Vice-Pres., G. W. James of Bowmanville; 2nd. Vice-Pres., Frank Burns of Kentville, N. S. Directors from various provinces included W. R. Legge of Granby and R. A. Giles, Lachute.

The convention over a few days spent in Winnipeg and despite the temperature at 108° we were able to take several motor tours. Needless to say there was terrible drought—cattle panting and dying in the fields and crops being burned up for lack of moisture. It was a question for a few days as to whether or not the crop would be a failure, but rain did come and once again the farmer, particularly, smiles and looks for a good year.

A most pleasant evening was spent with Mr. and Mrs. E. Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Styan, old friends and former residents here, both of the boys being stars of the old Hockey Team. All are looking well and send kind remembrances to their many friends here.

Leaving Winnipeg Tuesday evening by C.P.R. we again enjoyed the boat trip through Lakes Superior and Huron, reaching Port McNicol at 8 a.m. Friday and Toronto about noon. The Toronto train connects with our local at Ottawa and Saturday morning saw us back home.

Saturday afternoon found us back at Lake Louise, enjoying the beauties of the Laurentians and while we were deeply appreciative of the many courtesies extended us we were glad to get back and had that old familiar feeling that "There's no place like home."

To anyone wishing a quiet restful trip we would recommend a holiday through the Great Lakes by C. P. R. boats which leave Port McNicol every Wednesday and Saturday.

Vimy Ridge Unveiling To Be Broadcast

Anthem and O Canada. Microphones will pick up the sound of the Royal Salute, and the Commission announcer will give a running commentary as the King inspects the Guard of Honour. After presentations have been made to His Majesty, President Blum of France will be received by the King. When they reach the dais a memorial service, at which distinguished Canadian clergymen will officiate, will be held.

Following this ceremony, if present plans are carried out, the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will deliver a message from Canada. This message will be transferred to Vimy by the trans-Atlantic telephone, the British Broadcasting Corporation, and the French Ministry of Posts, Telegraphs and Telephones. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, and Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, will be heard then, direct from Vimy, after which His Majesty will be invited to unveil the memorial.

As the flag-draped structure is bared a regimental band will sound the "Last Post." Two minutes' silence will follow, at the conclusion of which another regimental band will play the "Reveille." According to present arrangements President Blum will pay tribute to Canada and Canadians on behalf of the French Republic.

Climaxing the colorful scenes will be the playing of "Land of Hope and Glory" as 6,000 pilgrims, their heads bared in reverence for their fallen comrades, prepare to take their departure from the once famous field of battle. The Royal Salute and the playing of "La Marseillaise" and "God Save the King" will conclude the ceremonies.

Golf Tournament for Fire and Police Chiefs at St. Andrews

Members of the Province of Quebec Police and Fire Chiefs Association are holding their fourth annual golf tournament and field day today at St. Andrews Golf Club. A lunch and a banquet are on the program of the day and a special display of fireworks will close the proceedings. Races, baseball, tug-of-war, quoits and swimming are being provided for those members of the association who are not golfers. There will also be a fishing competition with a prize for the captor of the largest fish.

Imposing Ceremony at Blessing of Cornerstone

The devotions closed with the strains of the Magnificat, accompanied by instrumentalists of the Lachute Band under direction of M. Alex. Guenette. The crowd then filed past the corner-stone in a long line.

Among clergy of the neighboring parishes, other honored visitors graced the gathering. Surrounding the Vicar-General were Mgr. L.-N. Dubuc, of St. Jean-Baptiste, Montreal; Rev. Donat Chaumont, assistant director, Seminary of Foreign Missions, Pont Viau; Rev. Alexis Léveillé, V.F., Ste. Scholastique; Rev. Eugène Cloutier, St. Julien Parish; Rev. E. At the business sessions during Thursday and Friday, many subjects of newspaper interest and varied printing problems were freely discussed and proved most helpful to all in attendance.

Winnipeg as a city with its beautiful outlay, and splendid buildings, parks and gardens could not have done more to make our stay both profitable and pleasurable. A luncheon was enjoyed at Assiniboine Park when an official welcome was given by Mayor Queen. At night a dinner was tendered by the Government of Manitoba at the Buildings of the University of Manitoba. All the addresses were most inspiring but at the

Feller Institute Renovated for Incoming Pupils

A great squad of cleaners and painters have taken charge of classrooms and dormitories out at Feller Institute, as the historic old building undergoes its summer cleaning in preparation for the new pupils. Mothers in particular will appreciate the necessity of a thorough "going-over" after an occupancy of ten months by more than a hundred active, mischievous boys and girls. Then, too, absolute health demands clean, sanitary surroundings, and the authorities at Feller consider that it is money well spent to thoroughly scour and repaint the rooms before being occupied by fresh groups of students.

Feller Institute, as many know, was founded one hundred years ago by Mme. Feller of Lauzanne, Switzerland, to bring the gospel and education to French-Canadians. It has now extended its sphere of good to include English boys and girls and has an outstanding record of a century of religious and educational association with the Eastern Townships of Quebec Province.

Late Miss E. Kirkpatrick of Thomas' Gore

A highly respected member of the Thomas' Gore community passed away last Sunday, in the person of Miss Edith Kirkpatrick. The high regard in which she was held was evidenced by the large number who attended her funeral service, in Thomas' Gore Church, last Monday afternoon.

The service was conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, who was assisted by Rev. Roy Hisey. Favorite hymns of the deceased were sung, "He leadeth Me", "O Master let me walk with thee", and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus". In his address Mr. Rosborough paid a high tribute to the character of the late Miss Kirkpatrick, and spoke of the faithful and conscientious service she had rendered in the Thomas' Gore Church for a goodly number of years. He also addressed some very comforting words to those who are bereaved.

Miss Kirkpatrick, who was a daughter of the late James Kirkpatrick, is survived by a brother Mr. John Kirkpatrick, of Thomas' Gore, and by two sisters, Mrs. Elmer Berry of Thomas' Gore, and Mrs. John McCullough of Morin Heights. They will have the sincere sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

Duplessis Sees $2,000,000 Saving, Provincial Accounts

WOULD ABOLISH QUEBEC PATRONAGE SYSTEM

An annual saving of $2,000,000 in government administration costs and abolition of a large number of provincial commissions was promised by Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale chieftain, in a campaign address on Saturday.

Mr. Duplessis promised the inquiry begun during the last legislative session by the public accounts committee would be resumed if his party was returned to power and said a provincial rural credit system would be established to aid farmers of the province.

Farmers had long been neglected under the Taschereau administration, the opposition leader said, and he charged Premier Godbout with copying the program laid down by opposition speakers in the last legislature.

"We are in the election fight to see justice done to all classes of the population," said Mr. Duplessis. "We want to put an end to the system of patronage and favoritism which has existed in Quebec for the past 30 years."

"We will abolish commissions which cost the province hundreds of thousands of dollars every year and replace them by expert men, chosen not because of their political leanings but

Canada's Railway Centenary

THIS year is Canada's railway Centenary. On July 21st, 1836, Canada's first steam train was operated between Laprairie and St. Johns, Quebec, over the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway, the first link in the chain of railways which now constitute the Canadian National System. The opening was made the occasion for a gala celebration at which tribute was paid by the leading citizens of Lower Canada to the founders of the Company. These far-seeing men, whose immediate object was the creation of a transportation link between Montreal and New York, were pioneers of Canada's development.

But perhaps even they could not visualize the vast country that would be built up as a result of the introduction of the steam railway. The sixteen miles of line over which the "Dorchester", Canada's first locomotive, hauled the coaches carrying the distinguished guests of the Company, has developed into the great Canadian National System, with 24,000 miles of line serving Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The drawing, depicting the start of the first train, is from a painting by Adam Sheriff Scott, A.R.C.A., and is reproduced by courtesy of the Royal Bank of Canada.

"Meet My Sisters"

Few brothers will use those words with greater pride during the next few decades than Joseph Robert Telephone Dionne of Callendar, Ont. Of course, there is the possibility that a number of older sisters of the same age will "ride" a fellow somewhat. However, if he grows up hale and hearty he can always say, "I was supposed to have been quints but nature decided to concentrate her goodness in one piece."

CONSTIPATION* MAY SLOW YOU DOWN

Correct It by Eating the Right Meals

The most common type of constipation is due to insufficient "bulk" in the diet. When you continue to eat poorly balanced meals, over a period of weeks and months, faulty elimination often develops. You feel uncomfortable, lack your accustomed vigor.

Eat a balanced diet. Include milk, fruits and vegetables as protective foods. Also sufficient "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a convenient source of "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the intestinal tract.

Fruits and vegetables contain some "bulk," of course. But scientific tests show that, with certain people, this "bulk" is largely broken down within the body. This does not happen to the same extent with ALL-BRAN. When you eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you can be sure of obtaining effective "bulk."

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into soups, breads, etc. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN often. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company as a natural laxative food for constipation.* Eat it regularly for regularity. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

A BARNYARD MIX-UP

Bossy Billykins, the goat,
And Buntzy Bunt, the sheep,
Met in a hurry one fine morn,
And tumbled in a heap.

Up scrambled Bossy Billykins,
Up scrambled Buntzy too,
Both as mad as mad could be—
Oh dear, what will they do!

Said Billykins, "You stupid sheep
Why did you trip me so?"
"And Buntzy Bunt, "You silly goat,
You tossed me, don't you know?"

"And I will toss you once again"
Said Billykins, coming nigh,
But Buntzy was too quick for him
And bunted Billy's eye!

Old Ponto nipped at Buntzy's heels
And made him turn so quick
That he slipped and tumbled down
The hill.

Head foremost in the creek.

Billy gave him one long look
Then ran with might and main,
"For fear," said he, "that silly sheep Might scramble up again."

Continued

Cordelia's heart was beating like a trip hammer as they waited for admittance outside of the wooly door. Suddenly it opened, and a stream of light shone full in Cordelia's face, making it hard for her to see the dainty little mother mouse standing in the doorway; it was only when she heard Mr. Soft-Fur saying "This is Mrs. Soft-Fur my dear", that she realized they were not alone. Cordelia bowed politely, but her attention wandered to the mischievous movements of two young mice who were creeping slyly up behind their mother. "And this is—" Mr. Soft-Fur hesitated. "I am afraid I do not know your name, my dear?"

"Cordelia Crooks", Cordelia said rather shyly, taking her eyes for a moment off the two young mice. "This was their moment. With a rush they sprang towards Cordelia, each one seizing a bow of ribbon which tied the ends of Cordelia's thick braids of hair, and between squeaky giggles chirped the chorus of an old song 'Oh Bedelia, I want to steal you, Oh Bedelia I love you so.' They swung backwards and forwards, clinging to the ribbons, while a group of younger mice stood up on their hind paws staring at the performance. This strange creature that their father had brought home, and their brother and sister's still stranger actions, were something quite new to them.

"Stop it at once, Clip" cried Mrs. Soft-Fur, "you should not be rude to guests". She drew nearer to Cordelia and seizing the two young rascals she dragged them away.

Just then an old bent mouse appeared from behind a curtain. "I am going to the kitchen," she said, "to attend to the pudding." "So are we!" cried the two naughty mice, "Come on Cordelia!" Breaking away from their mother they sprang towards Cordelia, who shrieked and darted through between the curtains after the old bent mouse, Clip and Flip following.

The old mouse looked up in surprise at their noisy entrance. She had not noticed Cordelia as she had passed by, but after she had looked at them for a moment she smiled and said, "Ah! a visitor from upstairs. Sit down my dear!" She pushed a three-legged stool towards her as she spoke turning to shake her spoon at the two little mice. "Be quiet at once! you naughty little mice" she said, "or Grannie will beat you." "Beat away Grannie!" giggled Clip, "the more you beat the better the pudding, they say." He winked at Cordelia, who had sat down on the stool, tired after her nerve-wracking journey to Jettyland. "It will not be pudding that I shall beat if you make me angry," Grannie Mouse replied, trying to speak severely—but twinkles appeared in her eyes, and seeing this the two young mice set up such a shout of squeaky laughter that both Grannie Mouse and Cordelia found themselves joining with them. They were joined shortly by Mrs. Soft-Fur who held a tiny baby in her arms and was followed by several other little ones.

"Let me take the baby", said Grannie hobbling across the floor. "Just for a moment then, Grannie, as I want to weigh him, to see if he has improved any since last week."

Grannie took the baby mouse and sat down. "Improved!" she said, "He feels much heavier, to me. Those arrowroot biscuits have done him so much good." "Well", said Mrs. Soft-Fur, "I should have been much disappointed if they had not, after all my trouble in carrying them downstairs. So many weary trips! But if little Snip has improved I shall not mind the trouble."

"So that is where mother's arrowroot biscuits went to", Cordelia cried. "How I wish that mother could know; she blamed Ted and me for eating them!"

By this time Mrs. Soft-Fur had baby Snip in the weighing cloth, and was cooing with delight at his increase in weight. "A whole pound, Grannie, a whole pound", she cried excitedly. "I knew those biscuits would do it. Oh, I am so happy."

"Cordelia Crooks is not so happy", said Clip. "How do you know?" their mother asked. "She just told us that she and her brother got blamed for eating them!" "Oh I am so sorry", Mrs. Soft-Fur said.

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

Beware Poison Ivy

"Poison ivy is more prevalent in summer, and summer tourists and cottagers would be well advised to acquaint themselves with the plant itself, and with the remedies for poison ivy", say officials of the Health League of Canada.

The plant may be found growing in a variety of conditions and can best be recognized from the leaf formation which is arranged in threes, similar to the strawberry plant. Unlike the soft strawberry leaves, the ivy leaves are smooth and somewhat leathery in appearance.

The irritating oil from the plant produces a severe inflammation of the skin, which spreads from one part to another by rubbing and scratching. It is important, therefore, that soothing applications be used, such as cold boracic solution, cold epsom salts solution, and the astringent effect of a weak sugar of lead solution is beneficial. Isolated patches of poison ivy inflammation may be painted twice a day with a one per cent solution of potassium permanganate; this stains the skin, but the stain may be removed by gently scrubbing with soap and water.

Tree-Sitting Wagon Secret Out

A tall tale of a wagon which has been in a tree near Welland Ont., for half a century, has found access to the news-ways just recently. It seems that the wagon, needing repairs, was left along the road one Hal-lowe'en day this long time ago. Returning with tools to fix it the next day the owner spied it high in a sturdy elm. The world's best tree sitters can't match its record. Noticing some people looking at it recently, Mr. I. Ivey of Windon alighted from his car and with an eye-twinkling bit of pride announced that he helped put the vehicle there fifty years ago.—He didn't know he was talking to its owner, Lemuel Rachard. Murder will out!

SOUNDS FISHY

Maybe you've heard the story about the two Montreal bankers who applied for admission at the pearly gates. Saint Peter asked them a few questions, then told them to wait until he checked their records. When he returned the bankers were gone—and so were the pearly gates.

Leaves of Plant Close on Any Visiting Insects

There are a number of insect-eating plants, but one, called the Venus Fly-Trap, which grows in Carolina and Florida and nowhere else, is by far the most remarkable, notes a correspondent in Tit-Bits Magazine. The insect caught has small chance of escape.

The leaves of the plant, arranged in rosettes, each have two lobes. The lobes are hinged at the midrib and each has spines along its margin, while its upper surface is covered with glands. These secrete a purplish juice and, furthermore, each lobe has, set among the glands, three very sensitive bristles.

The moment an insect touches the bristles the leaf lobes close around it, the spines along the edges interlock, and the glands begin to cover the insect with a fluid which kills it. But the leaf takes so long to absorb its meal that it rarely has more than two in its lifetime.

LEADERSHIP

Have you ever noticed how suddenly some organizations will forge ahead, for no apparent reason? Most probably it is because there is someone at the head who knows how to get the best of those who are working, too. It is not always the president who has the best ideas who accomplishes the most. It may be the one who can use the capabilities of the executive to the best advantage. One person leading can make a wonderful difference. Those of us who listen to orchestras know how two leaders can take the same music and make it sound very differently. The principal of a school can make such a difference in the entire atmosphere. I have been watching just such a difference. The same teachers, the same pupils, the same curriculum. Yet the school is altogether different. Part of this change has come about because of sports. A year ago there was one baseball team. This year there are twenty teams, boys and girls. Last year there was one football team and a few scrubs. This year there were twelve football teams. Everybody playing the game — in more than one sense of the word.

TRAY MEALS

If the truth were told, I doubt if there is a mother who does not at some time get fed up with holidays. The trouble is that she sees too much of the children. And on the other hand, very likely the children feel that they see too much of her. Meal time is apt to be an explosive one. Mother is more tired then, than at any other time and nerve ends seem nearer surface and more easily upset. Children are apt to be irritable when they are hungry and so meal time which should be a happy time is often just the opposite. One easy way of offsetting this is to give tray meals and let the children eat by themselves. Then mother and Dad can have a quiet meal in peace. Giving the children an occasional meal alone is very little extra work, sometimes I have found it much less work, and the pleasure it gives is worth it. If trays are non-existent, large plates or even pie-pans for the small children may be used. Sandwiches with some fruit and cookies and a glass of milk or chocolate are easily prepared. Let each child take its own supper and eat it where it likes. To read and eat makes a quiet interlude in the busy day of an active child.

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SWIM

Years ago it was thought dangerous to teach children to swim. Now it is thought more dangerous not to. Each year there are an appalling number of drownings but most of them are of non-swimmers. My parents were frightened to have me learn to swim. Probably yours were too. They used the excuse that it was too far for a girl to walk to the river and then swim. Maybe they thought so but the thought was inspired by fear of danger. The consequence is that I did not learn to swim until I was grown up and am the kind of swimmer who likes to walk out as far as possible and swim back. In a danger situation I would be useless. Off-hand I can think of only one of my contemporaries who is a really good swimmer. And she learned to swim in a Y tank after she grew up. Because our generation has resented not being able to swim well may be one of the reasons that the next generation are such good swimmers. Cars have made swimming possible to many who formerly would seldom see the water. So protect your children by teaching them to swim. It should be taught in school. Many less useful things are. London, Ontario teaches its sixth grade pupils to swim and it is only a matter of time until the person who cannot swim will be an exception in this city. One ambitious youth in a small town made a bit of pocket money by teaching boys to swim. He used to take six or seven boys at a time at ten cents a lesson. Some days he had a group in the morning and another in the afternoon. The boys met at his home and he looked after them until they got back. It saved many anxious moments for the mothers and was a good scheme all round. However it is done, make a point of seeing that your children learn to swim for their own protection.

SWEET CHERRY CONSERVE

2½ pounds sweet cherries
¼ cup water
¼ teaspoon almond extract
7 cups sugar
½ pound seeded raisins
1 cup chopped walnuts grated rind and juice of 2 lemons
1 cup liquid pectin

Put cherries through the grinder. Add water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Measure the fruit adding water if necessary to bring up to 4 cups. Place in a large kettle and add sugar, raisins, nuts and lemon juice. Bring to a full rolling boil over the hottest part of the fire, stir constantly and boil hard for 5 minutes. Remove from the fire and stir in the pectin. Stir and skim for 5 minutes to prevent the fruit from floating. Pour into sterilized glasses and seal with melted paraffin.

PINEAPPLE LEMONADE

1 can grated pineapple juice 3 lemons
1 pint water
1 cup sugar
1 quart ice water

Boil sugar and water 10 minutes. Add pineapple and lemon juice. Cool and strain. Add ice water and serve.

Woman's Place Not at a Typewriter

TAX FOR BACHELORS

The fair typists in the Government offices of Budapest are alarmed by the reported decision of the Hungarian Government not to employ them any longer.

In the opinion of the Government, woman's place is not at a typewriter, but in the home.

The girls, however, are not to be the only ones to worry. It is now thought certain that a bachelor tax will be introduced very soon. This decision, it is pointed out, would help to soften the blow for the women stenographers and typists, by giving them greater opportunities in the marriage market, and thus helping the Government to prove its belief that woman's place is the home.

Sunday School Picnic Held at Grenville

In the beautiful grove lent by Mr. James Stewart for the occasion, the Sunday Schools of St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, Trinity Church, Calumet, and Rawcliffe, held their annual picnic on Wednesday, July 15th. The children were taken in trucks by Mr. W. Morrow and Mr. H. Bridgen. Altogether about 150 assembled, many coming in private vehicles. Games of various kinds were played and the beauty of grass and trees and stream was enjoyed by others. The serving of lunch kept several of the ladies busy; but they did the work very efficiently and all were abundantly satisfied. The weather was cool enough to make races and games a pleasure, but no rain fell to mar the day, so that everyone from the tiniest tot to the oldest adult thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The races resulted as follows (as nearly as can be ascertained):
Boys and girls under 9, 1 Neil McCallum, 2—

Boys over 9 and under 12, John Rayson, Arthur Keatle.

Girls over 9 and under 12, Evelyn Cousins, Beulah Welden.

Boys over 12 and under 16, Melvin Matthews, Clifford Cousins.

Girls over 12 and under 16, Katie Rainey, Stella Cousins.

Boys 16 and over, W. Rainey, Leslie Welden.

Girls 16 and over, Violet Cousins, Dorothy Cousins.

Three Legged race, John Rayson and Ronald Matthews; Evelyn Cousins and Margaret Gauley.

Thread Needle Race, W. Rainey and Margaret Welden; Clifford Cousins and Mary Low.

Minute Race (Senior), Ida Welden; (Junior) Gladys Welden.

Shoe Race (Senior), May Conway; Katie Rainey; (Junior), Stella Cousins, Jeanette Reeves.

Baby Death Rate Cut In Province

DECREASE OF 50 PER 1,000 IN THE PAST NINE YEARS

The infant mortality rate of the Province of Quebec decreased from 142 per 1,000 in 1926 to 92.2 per 1,000 in 1935, Dr. Alphonse Lessard, provincial director of health, announced recently.

"Not only has the rate fallen off 50 in the past nine years, but from 1934 to 1935 alone, there was the considerable decrease of 4.6", Dr. Lessard said.

On the basis of the number of births in the province last year Dr. Lessard estimated 3,763 infants' lives were saved by the decrease in the mortality rate. This extensive improvement was largely due to the system of county health units established throughout the province, where mothers received expert advice and pre-natal care, and where babies were carefully looked after following birth.

Sterilization Feared By Insanity Doctor

Sterilization presents a danger, as a means of controlling the spread of lunacy, in that authorities are "too apt" to sterilize the wrong person, said Dr. Harvey Clare, medical superintendent of the Homewood Sanitarium, Guelph.

One possible solution to the problem, he said, would be for the parents to have more say in the selection of husbands and wives for their children.

Dr. Clare said $13,000,000 was spent annually in this country for the upkeep of mental institutions, $5,000,000 of which was expended in Ontario. In January, 1934, the population in Ontario mental institutions totalled 13,000 and in Canada, 36,000.

Now She Doesn't Look So Good

There was once something about the beauty or personality of a common class Cuban miss, Eldemira Sampedro, to make Alfonso de Bourdon of the Royal House of Spain want to marry her. Now she doesn't look so good to him; at any rate he is determined to have his lawyers prove that he was "imposed upon" so that the courts will annul the marriage. Marrying a commoner is more uncommon than divorce.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 26th., is "Truth."

The Golden Text is:—"God shall send forth his mercy and his truth." (Psalms 57: 3).

"These are the things that ye shall do; Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbour; execute the judgment of truth and peace in your gates; And let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his neighbour; and love no false oath: for all these are things that I hate, saith the Lord." (Zechariah 8: 16, 17).

"Because Truth is infinite, error should be known as nothing. Because Truth is omnipotent in goodness, error, Truth's opposite, has no might. Evil is but the counterpoise of nothingness. The greatest wrong is but a supposititious opposite of the highest right."

The Week's Fashion News

By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

Hats are finding so many ways to originality this season. front is again evident in recent fashion showings.

Napoleonic lines inspired by a wave of patriotism in Paris are showing. Square brim types back from the brow remind one of Napoleon's hat. The Directoire influence with high crowns and much manipulation is another important note as is the small hat theme perched audaciously to show your curls. Wings are an important trim in Paris also. So you see there is no reason at all for thinking that you can't get a fashionable hat that absolutely becomes you. One type is bound to be yours.

Casual knitwear has adopted to some extent the broad shoulders so apparent in dresses. This is often achieved with pleats at the top of sleeve. It is interesting to note that in Paris four out of five dresses have this broader line. Not the great exaggerated sleeves of last season but a more subtle broadening often just at the top of the sleeve.

Tunics are still the popular theme for day and evening. They are expected to give place to peplums for daytime although predictions are that they'll retain favour for evening. The peplums are in circular lines and emphasize the smallness of the waist. Quite smart in jackets to top straight line frocks.

Circular skirts with plenty of swing are news. Good in dresses, separate skirts and high fashion coats. The evening skirt dipping and flowing at back but slightly shorter at Shoes with higher lines and neat little button trims speak of the 1880 influence as do the fitted waists in many of the new frocks. Inconspicuous colours are another phase of this theme. Prepare to hear about it for Fall.

Copper tones in hosiery are expected to continue in popularity throughout the Fall. Taupes are also important and they blend well with the new shades.

Deep red and green are two good shades. Rusts and coppers are much in favour also, and you're going to hear much of Coronation red and purple throughout the entire season.

Velveteen is advanced as a smart fabric for dressy coat and hat set for kiddies. Vivid contrasts are carried out with the velveteen on tweeds. The favoured colours are wine, aqua and rust in this fabric.

Furs are once again in the limelight and the new styles for the coming season are particularly all assembled and ready now. Retail stores will be showing them shortly and you will note that again variety is the theme. Broad shoulders and fitted waists are important. The Princess line is also smart and, of course, the short haired swaggar. It is a good plan to look into the fur question at this time of year. Even if you can't buy till later you get an idea as to what you want and plenty of time to decide on what is best for you.

Welcome First Train

The cowcatcher of old Engine 371 makes a fitting platform for these costumes of the 80's adorning belles of 1886 who took part in the pageant at Port Moody, July 3, celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the first C. P. R. train from Montreal to the Pacific. The old engine, driven by the original engineer, hauled into Port Moody a string of six old-style wooden cars handled by the original conductor of the first train in a colorful re-enactment of the event. More than 6000 visitors, including scores of rail veterans in service in '36, flocked to Port Moody for the celebration.

A parade of uniformed Scouts bearing the flags of all the nations represented in Rotary was a unique and popular feature of the opening night of the North Pacific District Rotary Conference at Vancouver.

Child Mourned at Louisa

THE LATE
PHYLLIS CRESWELL

The death of little Phyllis Creswell came as a great shock to the community of Louisa. She passed away at her home on Tuesday, July 21, after a brief illness of only five days.

She was born at Louisa on Jan. 19, 1929, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Creswell. Besides her loving parents—she leaves to mourn one sister, Eileen, and four brothers, Horace, Harry, Allen and Watson.

Interment took place in the Louisa Cemetery.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Creswell in their sad bereavement.

"Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Lawn Social Given at Lakefield

The lawn social, under auspices of Trinity W. A., held on the grounds in Lakefield Wednesday evening, was a great success. The weather was very favorable, despite a short shower towards the end of the program. Rev. C. W. P. Baugh acted as chairman, and with his usual witty remarks treated the audience to many hearty laughs. The program consisted of songs by the Choir of Lakefield Church; whistling by George Belanger; songs by Mrs. McCrindle; guitar selections by Miss Hazel Camp; songs by Murray and Barbara Sherritt, accompanied by Charles Westgate with the piccolo; "Two Old Friends", with Mr. Fraser and Mrs. Robertson; "The Farmer's Lament", by Mr. Owen Todd accompanied by Miss R. Todd at the organ.

Magnet Successful in Road Equipment

The Quebec Department of Roads made experiments recently with its new truck with an electro-magnet bar for keeping highways clear of metal. The truck picked up 18 pounds of metal in its first trial run. Deputy Minister of Roads J. L. Boulanger reported.

On a six-mile stretch near Little River, outside Quebec, six pounds of nails, pins, hooks, etc., or "approximately one pound of dangerous matter per mile," were picked up. On an eight-mile stretch from Limoulin to Zoological Gardens at Charlesbourg, the magnet collected 12 pounds of nails, hooks, pins, bottle caps and other metal pieces.

"Our government will be a representative government. The farmers, the laborers, all classes of Quebec province will be represented in our administration."

For six years, Premier Godbout had sat in the cabinet of former Premier Taschereau, said Mr. Duplessis. Mr. Godbout knew the policies of the Taschereau administration and approved legislation adopted.

"Now," said the opposition leader, "Mr. Godbout says his government is not responsible for the sins of its predecessors." Mr. Duplessis said the royal commission which Premier Godbout promised would continue the work of the public accounts committee would not satisfy the opposition.

"The Liberal party are not going to be their own judges," he said. "Fortunately the people of Quebec will not be fooled by such pretensions. We want the inquiry before the public accounts committee and we promise you it will be continued."

Mrs. Elbirt Berry, Mrs. John McCullough, and Mr. John Kirkpatrick wish to express their sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for sympathy and kindness shown to them in their recent sad bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

RUMBOLT—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away July 24, 1935.

Mother dear, we think of you, And think of how you died; To think you could not say good-bye Before you closed your eyes. No one knows a mother's worth Until she's taken from this earth. But when we see your picture A smile still seems to say, Do not weep for me dear family We shall meet again some day.

Ever remembered by her loving children—Alice, Mabel, Delmar and Raymond.

BENNETT—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Jas. Bennett, who passed away July 22, 1933. Ever remembered by the family.

As a lad I well remember
Sitting on my mother's knee,
While she read me bible stories
And explained them all for me,
Then we bowed our heads together
While she taught my lips to pray
For her God to keep me safely
Through the night until the day.
Then when sickness came upon me
And I was confined in bed,
My dear mother sat beside me
Her dear hand upon my head.
But those days are gone forever,
Mother rests beneath the sod,
Yet her prayers are ever with me,
I am guided by her God.
So while life and breath are left me,
I will not give up the race,
I will struggle up the mountain
Till I meet her face to face.

HON. EDWARD STUART McDUGALL

Provincial Treasurer

In the appointment of the Hon. Edward Stuart McDougall, B.A., B.C.L., K.C., to the Treasury of the Provincial Government, an old Montreal family contributes another minister to the Quebec Government.

Born in 1886, the son of James McDougall and Lena Lusher, Edward Stuart McDougall attained his B.A., in 1907, and his B.C.L., with first rank honours in 1913.

Always an athlete, he came first before the public of Quebec Province as a brilliant hockey player and a member of the old Quebec hockey team. At this time he showed promise as a golfer and footballer and, from 1907 to 1908, captained both the Quebec Golf and Football Clubs.

In 1910, Edward Stuart McDougall joined the law firm of Brown, Montgomery and McMichael.

With the outbreak of the war a promising career was temporarily interrupted for, with many others of the flower of Canada's youth, he joined the famous Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, in June 1915. He served with distinction until the signing of the Armistice and, in 1918, he returned to Canada with the rank of Major.

Major McDougall married Katherine Eleanor McKenzie, of Toronto, in 1917, and in 1919, there was born to them their one daughter, Margaret Patricia. In the same year he returned to practice in the City of Montreal and entered into partnership with Dan. P. Gillmor, K.C. In 1922, he became a member of the firm of Wainright, Elder and McDougall and, since 1928, in which year he was made a King's Counsellor, he has specialized in Mining Law.

The Major has served as a Member of the Council of the Bar of Montreal since 1934 and, since 1935, on the General Council of Quebec Bar as well. He is a member of the Montreal Board of Trade, The University Club, the Royal Montreal and St. Andrew's Golf Clubs.

Major McDougall carries to Quebec many tenets dear to the heart of old McGill. Ever a hard worker and an enthusiastic athlete, this soldier-sportsman believes it is the birthright of every man to play as well as to work, and that it is a duty to value and preserve the physique with which he has been endowed. In all sincerity, the Major hopes to "break 80" at 65 and in his more expansive moments looks forward to "breaking 65" at 80.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT APPEARS CERTAIN

Two "National" Candidates

NOTARY LAVIGNE AND ALBINI LAMARCHE TO REMAIN IN FIELD

Although elections are but 18 days away there promises to be a lively time, before it becomes known who will represent Argenteuil in the next Provincial Parliament. On the one side Mr. Geo. Dansereau has been accorded the candidature for the Liberals, by unanimous vote of the convention recently held.

With the withdrawal of Mr. J. P. Lanctot from the field, whose nomination was wholeheartedly given at a meeting in McArthur's Hall (but who was not acceptable to certain interests in Montreal because of his association in defending the Textiles), there is trouble in

CHILD DROWNED IN NORTH RIVER

Paul Bedard, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bedard, of St. Andrews, was drowned in the North River at the rear of their home at 6.15 o'clock Friday evening. The child had been playing in a boat with his 7-year-old brother, and fell into the river, drowning in 4 or 5 feet of water. The body was recovered at about 8 o'clock by Mr. Bedard, who dragged the bottom of the river with a rake.

Coroner Dr. J. H. Mason of Lachute was notified and held an inquiry Friday night. It was learned that Albert Hamel, working with a motor boat nearby, had been the only one to witness the accident besides the older brother. The verdict was accidental drowning. The child was buried Saturday afternoon from the St. Andrews Parish Church.

SHOULD FULFILL OLD ELECTION PROMISES!

DISCRIMINATION SHOWN IN MATTERS OF PROV. ROAD IMPROVEMENT

While Provincial leaders are now making their appeals to the electors, it is well that Quebec Government should be reminded of the promises they made in previous campaigns.

The Liberal Government, through its Minister of Highways, definitely promised the County of Argenteuil in a speech at Lachute (some years ago now) that the Trans-Canada Highway would pass through or near this town—that it would be a first class road of cement-concrete construction, similar to the Taschereau Boulevard.

The preliminary work was done; the grading is now finished, prepared for a concrete surface, and conditions are ideal for concrete because materials are at hand. The engineer's department admits that concrete construction is best and does not cost any more than a high class "black base permanent."

But despite these facts, it is now stated that they are to lay a low cost surface—carpet or "tapis", as it is called in French—which form may be quite suited to roads off the main highways but is not at all serviceable for the Trans-Canada, where traffic is now fairly heavy and is bound to increase. Trucks and buses are increasing as regard size, number and speed, and it is a mistake, when

WILL ASK COMPULSORY AUTO INSURANCE

Immediately after the provincial elections officials of the Province of Quebec Safety League will press the government to enact compulsory insurance for automobiles. The league has already placed in the hands of the provincial superintendent of insurance a model system by which every automobile shall be insured and each individual shall feel a personal responsibility for the maintenance of low rates of premiums.

NEW HIGHWAY BRIDGE OPENED AT PIEDMONT

The new bridge over the North River on the highway between Piedmont station and Piedmont village was officially opened and blessed by Abbe Gohier, parish priest, on Sunday. The bridge was named Gagliesi, after the mayor of Piedmont. It is a cement structure 156 feet long by 24 feet wide, erected at a cost of $25,000. It took three months to build.

Mayor Gagliesi broke a bottle of champagne over the bridge after Mrs. Gagliesi had cut the ribbon to open the way.

GOVERNOR GENERAL TO VISIT ST. ANDREWS E.

PREMIER AND OTHER NOTABLES EXPECTED FOR UNVEILING

An executive meeting of the Argenteuil Historical Society was held in St. Andrews Saturday afternoon, to study plans for the annual meeting which is purposed to be held around the first week in October. At that time St. Andrews is to be honored with a visit from the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, who has consented to unveil a memorial to Sir John Abbott, Canada's first Prime Minister, at a dedication ceremony in Christ Church, of which Sir John was a former honored member.

The occasion will be a memorable one. The beautiful new St. Andrews bridge will be then completed and suggestions are that the bridge shall be formally opened and named the Abbott Bridge, because of the important role played by Sir John not alone as Premier, but as one of the leading lawyers of his time. It is also expected the Premier, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Rt. Hon. Sir Geo. H. Perley, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and other Cabinet Ministers will be present.

Ste. Rose Man Found Dead in N.B.

Circumstances leading to the death of Henry Landry, middle-aged resident of Ste. Rose, Que., puzzled police on discovery of the body in the Madawaska river in New Brunswick last week. Two wounds apparently made by one bullet were given as the cause of death. Said to have been used by Landry, a canoe pierced by a bullet was found drifting in the river about two miles away.

Landry, a bachelor, lived alone some miles from Edmundston. He was last seen alive nine days ago. Floating among logs, the badly swollen body was found by a camp-owner at St. Jacques. Two sisters of Landry identified the body.

All possibilities in connection with the death—murder, accident or suicide—are being investigated by the police.

Expressions on Unveiling of Vimy Monument Evidence Deep Sentiment and Desire for World Peace

In a spirit of thankfulness for their example, of reverence for their devotion and of pride in their comradeship, I unveil this memorial to Canada's dead.

—King Edward VIII.

In the name of the Republic of France I thank His Majesty King Edward VIII for having paid our country the honor of his august visit to this field where the French, British and Canadian armies fought side by side. To the thousands of pilgrims who have traversed the ocean to come and stand on the soil where they and their brothers fought in the war, I address the most fervent expression of sympathy from France.

—President Lebrun of France.

This monument is a fresh pledge that we shall not break faith. I would wish that this manifestation of patriotism, if it does not actually take the form of a prayer, should at least have the attribution of prayer for universal peace.

—Monsignor E. A. Deschamps, of Montreal

If a tenth of the amount spent on war was spent on remedying the ills of life there would be a condition that would approach men's ideal of the Kingdom of Heaven on earth.

—Dr. Maude Royden at Toronto.

England and France fought upon the Heights of Abraham for the possession of Canada. At Vimy, Canadians, descendants of English and French pioneers, came home to fight for their motherland.

—The Sunday Observer, London.

The day belonged to men who walk with the living only in spirit, and to the 6,000 of their comrades and kin who stood with faces upturned in the sun toward the white-crowned woman before the monument's two towering pylons, the woman who is Canada, brooding over dead sons who lie in a foreign field.

—Capt. W. W. Murray, M.C. Canadian Press Writer.

On the soil of Canada two races, nurtured and cradled by old France, reared and brought to national maturity by Great Britain, have faithfully preserved the ideals of social progress and democratic liberty derived from their two mother countries.

—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice.

Let us not despair, for we are gathered here not only in the commemoration of those who died, but for the rededication of the nations here represented to the sacred cause of peace.

—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence.

It was under no compulsion that the Dominions and Colonies sent their sons to fight side by side with the soldiers of France and Britain. They responded to an inward call that told them something dearer than life was in jeopardy.

—The Sunday Times, London.

Canadian Drought and U. S. Cattle-Slaughtering ... Federal Govt. Not in the Bakery Business! ... By-Election in Gloucester, N.B., Aug. 24.

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT" By Wulfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, July 28.—Whatever form Dominion government assistance will take for Western farmers whose livestock has been hard hit by the widespread prairie drought, it will not be a policy of wholesale destruction of animals to relieve the situation, Prime Minister Mackenzie King indicated after a lengthy cabinet consideration of the problem. Co-operating with the provincial governments concerned, it is likely the Dominion government will assist in transferring large numbers of cattle and other livestock to more favored sections of the West and in sending feed and fodder and water to other stocks in the dry areas.

The United States government, it is understood, is carrying out a policy of slaughtering about 1,000,000 cattle in the drought stricken mid-western states. The King government's policies have been opposed to such drastic intervention touching agricultural production and every effort will be made to meet the Prairie situation to have cattle and other livestock on hand for export to the States when, later, the effect of the present slaughtering policy there produces a demand for Canadian live cattle.

Month's Record of W.I. Activities in Argenteuil

Brownburg W.I. held a very interesting meeting, with Mr. George Calder as guest speaker. Twenty-one members attended and 11 visitors. Two new members joined the ranks. A pleasing part of the program was the presentation of a life membership certificate and pin to Mrs. J. Seary by the county president, Mrs. A. Graham, on behalf of the Branch. Mrs. Graham also addressed the meeting on the work of the Women's Institute. Mrs. Kuhring, Hon. President, gave a short account of the Board meetings at Macdonald College. The Secretary, Mrs. Smillie, read an interesting account of the Convention.

Frontier met at the home of Mrs. J. Murdoch, having a meeting on Education, with Mrs. J. S. Giles giving a Travel Talk on her trip to Bermuda. The roll was, "Your choice of abode in Canada." Home Economics was stressed by holding a Members of the Junior Car Club of Great Britain, who left on the Queen Mary last Wednesday for the first British motor rally to be held in the United States and Canada, will visit Montreal in their brief tour before sailing home. The group, who are bringing their cars with them, are making a short motor tour starting at New York, and will embark at Montreal for the homeward trip.

CHIEF DUFRESNE WON JOHN IRWIN TROPHY

More than 150 gathered last Thursday at St. Andrews Golf Club for the annual tournament of the Province of Quebec Police and Fire Chiefs' Association. There were prizes for all the competitors who toured what is termed the "tricky St. Andrews layout."

Chief Dufresne won the low gross for the third year in succession and retained possession of the John Irwin Cup.

Director J. B. Boyer, of the Dorval Police and Fire Department, presided at the banquet following the tournament. Selwyn "Pete" Irwin, son of John Irwin, president of McColl Frontenac, donor of the main trophy, represented his father at the presentation of awards for the day's events.

MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END

HEAVY TRAFFIC AND FAST DRIVING CAUSE OF MISHAPS

The fine weather and heavy traffic last week-end augmented the season's crop of auto accidents by several mishaps in this neighborhood.

On Saturday night a speeding car ran over an embankment returning from Lakefield on the Lachute highway. The machine landed upside down and its appearance, when towed to Deacon's garage, suggested that the occupants had escaped serious injury only by a miracle.

Returning from the Laurentians Sunday night a roadster from Montreal came into collision with another automobile on the highway between Brownsburg and Dalesville. The steering wheel was driven down to the seat, and a lady passenger was thrown backward through the rear cover into the rumble seat. There was also a child riding in the rumble seat, but the extent of injuries to the occupants was not ascertained.

Lachute in the Gay Nineties

COMMUNITY LIFE WAS NOT WITHOUT HUMORS

The Editor, Toronto, Ont. Dear Sir—

It was 46 years ago this summer I spent a month or two in Lachute during the time I was studying at McGill and the Montreal Diocesan College, for the Ministry. Rev. Mr. Saunders (afterward Rural Dean) was the Anglican clergyman at that time.

Norris was editing the Independent along with his sister Mrs. Massiah. I stayed with Mrs. Quinn, who was justly proud of the good matches all her four daughter had made (Mrs. Senator Owen, Mrs. Cushing of Montreal; Mrs. McQuat and Mrs. Morrison).

SCHOOL LEAVING RESULTS POSTED AT QUEBEC

Results of the Province of Quebec June examinations for school leaving were announced this week. Julian C. Smith, a Westmount High School pupil, heads the list with 920 marks out of a possible 1,000. One Lachute scholar, George Owen, is listed for first class standing, with 807 marks. Other candidates from Lachute High School passed with the following standing:

Ivy Bates, 639; J. R. Beattie, 723; Jean Harper Beveridge, 629; Mary E. Joyce Clarke, 673; Gladys Davis, 619; Margaret R. Graham, 685; Lorna A. Hammond, 545; Irene E. McFaul, 656; Hazel M. McMahon, 541; Ruth I. McMahon, 670; Edith W. McQuat, 664; Lillian R. McQuat, 587; George Owen, 807; J. D. Picken, 620; Eunice M. Seale, 709; Mary E. Starnes, 607; Lillian Gordon, 580; Gertrude Morrison, 643; Jean Picken, 533; Bernice Roberts, 557; Eunice Cullen, 513—the five last named having entered only in supplementary subjects, having passed the remainder in a previous year.

TAXI HOLD-UP BETWEEN LACHUTE AND ARUNDEL

CAR STOLEN BY ARMED PASSENGER

A Montreal taxi-driver, M. Dubois, came into Lachute late Tuesday night and reported that he had been held up by his fare about 15 miles north of here on the St. Jovite highway, and had his taxi stolen at the point of a revolver.

He was left standing on the highway and had to walk several miles before being picked up by Donald McRae who was driving from Harrington to Lachute. Mr. McRae had previously seen the Diamond taxi traveling northward. Provincial police here communicated with the Montreal office and a police broadcast was given describing the motor car.

Dubois told police that he had picked up his fare in Montreal and had undertaken to drive him to Huberdeau and St. Jovite. At a lonely spot on the road at about 11.45 p.m., the unidentified man drew a revolver from his pocket, pointed it at Dubois and ordered him to get out of the taxi. Dubois complied without resisting.

A Hundred Year Old Sermon - Given at Centenary Observances, St. Mungo's Church (Concluded)

—There is still another way open for the friends of religion to vindicate its cause and forever to conclude the war which so long has waged against the authority of heaven, and that is by exemplifying its genuine spirit in the public and private tenor of their lives. To stand up in defence of religion upon the principles of reason and philosophical argument, is what but a very few are equal to. But to argue in its behalf by the purity and integrity of your lives, is what may be compassed by every man. Not a little of that amazing progress which Christianity made at its first promulgation by the Apostles, is to be traced to the impeccable character of its friends. Behold how these Christians love one another, was the exclamation of a person who had by no means any desire to extol the virtues of the faithful beyond their real merits. They extorted from a world lying in wickedness or mused with idle theories, expressions of deep admiration. And, if by this means they did not always succeed in opening the mind to the admission of divine truth, they at least prepared it more effectually for listening to the arguments by which it was to be proved and enforced. Let us follow their example, and in proportion as we do so, so will our success in overcoming the enemies of the cross be similar to theirs. It is to be feared that a great part of the infidelity which maintains its ground amongst us, notwithstanding the able defence that the Gospel has had, is to a very considerable extent to be imputed to the irregular lives of Christians. What a dreadful accusation. To think that while we are praying that the kingdom of God may come, we are exerting all our influence over the public mind to stop its progress, that while we ourselves affect to be Christians, we are labouring, and labouring most successfully to unchristianize the world. Few Christians in their hearts can wish this. It must be an oversight. They can have no desire to see the light of the sun of righteousness extinguished in the world and the doubtful glimmerings of nature substituted in its place. Let us then, as we value the glory of God and the extension of the Messiah's kingdom, as we lament the condition of the thousands who are sitting in the dark regions of the shadow of death: let us while engaged in the affairs of the world, or partaking of its amusements, while in prosperity or adversity, in health or in sickness, embellish our situation by the splendor of our Christian graces. Thus may we be the honored instruments of adding to the church such as shall be saved.

In the last place let it be observed that we are bound to let our light shine before men, because if we do not, we shall, in great measure, be accountable for their misery in a future world.

The multitude of beings who are now looking up to you for a sanction to their opinions and practices are immortal beings. The complexion in which their character now is, they have borrowed from you. You perhaps struck the first spark of vicious inclination which, blown by the heat of your example and cherished by the native thoughtlessness of youth, has diffused itself over the whole mind. You may be removed from them, or they may be removed from you and by that change they may be left to complete the wickedness which you began. They may not be known to you; but they are travelling onward to eternity along with you and at the bar of God you will meet them. They will there recognize the sinner of their innocence, the fatal beacon which encouraged and cheered them on to destruction. Not to speak of the awful aspect of the judge, what soul-appalling voice will that be which these infatuated creatures will lift up against you, when the depth of darkness yawns to receive them, they look back and with a look of unmingled despair, fix their eyes on you as the author of their eternal ruin. O what a responsibility is laid upon us all, to let our light shine before men.

We cannot calculate the force and the extent of our example. If we have any one particular virtue to recommend us to the imitation of our fellow men, and if connected with this virtue, we are deformed by any palpable vice: the very thing which saves our character from utter reprobation, may be the means of inducing some unfortunate individual, to risk his everlasting safety upon the imitation of our character. An easy good temper or a light airy fancy, sometimes makes a man of the most profligate manners, the idol of the inexperienced and simple.

A flash of wit, will often not only pardon but throw a delusive radiance over a character which is loathsome by its vices. If we are therefore alarmed at the thought of being instrumental to the ruin of others; if we would tremble at the idea of acting in subservience to the future and endless disgrace of our children; if we are alive to the tenfold misery that must await those who have not only themselves run in the path of iniquity but encouraged others also to tread it along with them, or if we would rejoice to behold those who respected and loved us in this world, raised to the unspeakable glories of the heavenly state and that through the saving influence of our example, then let us be at all times, upon our guard to obey the injunction of Christ in the text—Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven. Adorn the doctrines of God your Saviour in all things, having your conversation in the world as becometh the Gospel. Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, that great shepherd of the sheep, make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

Oysters Change Sex from Year to Year

In the oyster world along the Atlantic coast of North America, the males and females interchange as between the sexes from year to year. In any one year a male may be a female and the next year the female may become a male. This change in sex has been under observation by the Biological Board of Canada for the past six years in connection with one of the oyster beds along the Prince Edward Island coast.

Canadian Year Book Issued for 1936

Publication of the 1936 edition of the Canada Year Book is announced by the General Statistics Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Canada Year Book is the official statistical annual of the country and contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of the natural resources of the Dominion and their development, the history of the country, its institutions, its demography, the different branches of production, trade, transportation, finance, education, etc.—in brief, a comprehensive study within the limits of a single volume of the social and economic condition of the Dominion. This new edition has been thoroughly revised throughout and includes in all its chapters the latest information available up to the date of going to press.

The 1936 Canada Year Book extends to over 1,150 pages, dealing with every phase of the national life and more especially with those susceptible of statistical measurement. Special features include—a special article, "Canada on Vimy Ridge", by Colonel A. Fortescue Duguid, D.S.O., B.Sc., R.C.A. Director of the Historical Section (G.S.) Department of National Defence; new material on fertility notes and multiple births in Canada has been added to Chapter V; immigration tables of Chapter VI have been placed on a calendar year basis to facilitate international comparison; statistics covering the construction industry in Canada are published for the first time in Chapter XV, amplifying the information on contracts awarded and building permits, statistics of which have appeared regularly in the past. The introduction to the External Trade Chapter (XVI) has been revised by the inclusion of an abstract of the value and quantum of world trade abridged from the League of Nations' "Review of World Trade, 1934". Section 9 of Chapter XVII dealing with Merchandising and Service Establishments has been entirely revised and rewritten to cover the estimates of retail trade made since the 1931 Census; a new series of monthly indexes of retail sales, 1929-35, is also included as well as principal statistics of chain stores and the motion picture industry; and there are many other interesting additions on facts of economic importance and general interest.

The death of His Majesty King George V on Jan. 20, 1936, received with deep sorrow throughout the Empire and with world-wide regret, and the succession of King Edward VIII to the Throne, have been appropriately marked by the reproduction, as frontispiece, of the official Proclamation of the Government of Canada made on Jan. 21, 1936, accompanied by the latest official photographs, obtained through the courtesy of the respective Court photographers.

Owing to the urgent need for economy in the distribution of Government publications, it has become necessary to make a charge to all individuals receiving the Canada Year Book. Persons requiring the Year Book may obtain it from the King's Printer, Ottawa, as long as the supply lasts, at the price of $1.50, which covers merely the cost of paper, printing and binding. By a special concession, ministers of religion, bona-fide students and school teachers may obtain paper-bound copies at the nominal price of 50c. each.

The Ottawa Spotlight

Weekly Review of National Affairs
Specially written for The Lachute Watchman
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources, acting minister of finance, and member of the cabinet sub-committee on wheat, stated that the best available estimate given the government here for this year's crop is between 225,000,000 and 250,000,000 bushels, compared with about 260,000,000 bushels last year. The government expects prices will be good for the new crop. It is understood the Murray Wheat Board has its carry-over down to around 115 million bushels with prospects of getting down to around 90 millions by Aug. 1, the official date of the new crop year.

Both Premier King and Mr. Crerar ridiculed a report that the government and the two Canadian railways are jointly planning to open a great series of bakeries and grocery shops in England to market Canadian wheat there. It is true the King government is anxious to follow a steady sales policy for Canadian wheat to be turned into bread on the Englishman's table, but no such drastic, not to say fantastic, policy as the opening of bakeries in England is even being considered.

The National Employment Commission has announced its intention, during August of registering all unemployed on relief for the purpose of getting much more detailed information than has been the case in the past. The unemployed not on relief will be registered later by local advisory committees yet to be named. Hon. Norman Rogers, labor minister, again emphasized the government's determined policy not to open this fall the relief camps for single unemployed.

The government has announced the by-election in Gloucester, N.B., occasioned by the death of Hon. P. J. Veniot, former postmaster general, will be held on Aug. 24. The Parliament buildings flag was half masted last week for Hon. Robert Rogers, veteran Winnipeg privy councillor, who died at Guelph.

Premier King and Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner at London, have been named by King Edward on a special Dominion's commission touching his coronation next May. While expressing the hope King Edward will visit Canada after his coronation, Mr. King stated, quite definitely, that the government here has heard nothing of any such suggestion. Following the example of the British court, the Canadian government concluded last week the period of full mourning for the late King George V. A further period of half mourning will be observed. The King has named A. F. Lascelles, C.M.G., former private secretary to the Earl of Bessborough as governor-general here, as one of his assistant private secretaries. H.R.H. the Duke of York, heir presumptive, has named as his private secretary, Sir Eric Mieville, private secretary to Lord Willingdon as governor-general in Canada and later viceroy in India. Arrangements may be made for an Empire train showing the primary and manufactured products of different Dominions to make a six months tour of the United Kingdom during coronation year.

The government has extended for one year from Sept. 30 next the Canadian - New Zealand trade treaty. Last year New Zealand sold Canada $2,500,000 of goods while Canada exported $10,000,000 of goods to New Zealand.

While there has been talk of the Peace River district seeking secession from Alberta, it is doubted here if such a drastic step is actually taken. It would require an act of Parliament and approval by the Alberta legislature.

Premier King had consultations here last week with Hon.

Randolph Bruce, Canadian minister-designate to Japan, and with Sir Herbert Marler, former Canadian minister at Tokio and newly appointed minister to Washington.

Discrimination in Roads

permanency is necessary, to consider anything but concrete on this highway between Ottawa and Montreal.

With the Federal Government contributing 50 p.c. of the cost, why should Quebec not take advantage of the offer! Changes in government and policy may occur in the next three or four years, and this highway, if not permanently constructed now, will have to be resurfaced again. And there is no guarantee that Quebec will be able to procure the 50 p.c. contribution for re-surfacing at that time.

Of course, low cost is the prime consideration in the work now undertaken. But are we in Argenteuil to be given the cheapest kind of pavement, while Richelieu, Vercheres and St. Hyacinthe counties are actually getting reinforced concrete concrete highways of the best type? No. 3 highway (Levis-Montreal) is being improved with 22 miles of cement concrete, over three quarters of which is now completed. St. Hyacinthe - Montreal Highway has recently been improved with a 9-mile stretch. Further work is in preparation. Mr. T. D. Bouchard being ardent for a concrete road from Montreal to Quebec, and the Provincial government is paying 100 p.c. So when permanent roads are being built in this province, why should Argenteuil, with its superior claim in respect of the Trans-Canada route, receive only inferior types of road surface?

It is fully recognized that our Provincial representative, Georges Dansereau, M.P.P., had not much opportunity during his brief tenure of office—but now is his chance to fight, and declare with other county aspirants for office, that we need this road, and to pledge themselves to force this promise to fulfillment.

Early Resident Has Amusing Recollections

Mr. Frost was manager of the Ville Marie Bank, having married Miss Weir, a daughter of the President. Mr. Currie kept hotel in the West End (Lachute Mills), where the English Church had recently acquired two convert families, Mr. Fish, and Mr. Ireland (the latter having once been a local preacher of the Methodist Church).

The two lawyers at that time were Mr. Palliser and Mr. Bampton, (the latter at one time having been a Commissioned Officer in the Royal Navy.) They were both Anglicans. Mrs. Hampton then kept a millinery shop. I also knew a family of Morrisons, first cousins of the Currie's. An Englishman, a Mr. Manly, kept store in the West End (Lachute Mills). There was a commercial traveller living down near the old Scotch Church whom I can always remember because, when I collected for some Sunday School purpose, he gave me $3.00!

Mr. Mackie was Minister of the old Scotch Presbyterian Church, and the first funeral I ever went to in Canada was conducted by him, (the deceased was an absolute stranger to me.)

Mr. McDowell was the Methodist Minister. He was much exercised over revival meetings during the time I was there.

Mr. Furlong was the Presbyterian (Canadian) Minister, one of whose daughters might have married Mr. Taylor, Anglican Minister at Morin Flats, if the latter had not sold her father a horse which went backward when harnessed. Mr. Bampton, with whom I was particularly friendly, told me he decided to go to the Presbyterian Church as it was not good for business for both lawyers to attend the small congregation of St. Simeon's. Two weeks later I saw him back again; he said the change was too great for him!

Lachute must have been a healthy place at that time for the undertaker, a tall, lanky, cadaverous individual, told me business was bad; nobody was dying, and that he had to use his axe on the door posts for firewood.

Norris of the Independent had a picture of a judge with his hand held out behind his back, and a pair of scales going down on one side—for which he nearly got into trouble.

I was always anxious to help in the service, which Mr. Saunders discouraged, so Mr. Frost said I should read the clauses in the Litany at choir practice, while the choir practiced the responses. One Sunday, however, Mr. Saunders took ill and sent word for me to take the service, which I did with a vengeance, going through the Prayer Book up to the Communion Service, including parts authorized and unauthorized for an unordained man to take. When I left, the Sunday School gave me a little combination outfit of brush and comb etc., for my dresser, which I still have. Mr. Frost made the presentation.

Mrs. Frost was a wee woman who undertook to mother me, and keep me on the straight and narrow path, especially in the matter of me having anything to do with girls!

I used to be very proud of calling myself a Montreal Diocesan Theological Student (I was barely eighteen years of age)—which amused the young men of my own age, and I sometimes heard it flung after me, when walking on the streets.

Rodrigue's Hotel was a land mark at that time.

Yours very truly,
J. N. Hunter.

The Schol Commissioners are making known the value of the Lachute College and Academy, which stands the 2nd. Institution of its kind in the Province of Quebec, and surpasses them all as a training school for teachers. The publication of an Annual is a step in the right direction.

Mr. H. M. Cockfield, B.A., late principal of Lachute Academy, was the recipient of a complimentary dinner, given by his many friends in Lachute, on Saturday evening last, on the occasion of his approaching marriage.

Our worthy mayor, R. Duddridge, left this week for a tour through the United States. We hope the trip will be of benefit to him, and that he will return with renewed vigor.

A through mail service between Moose Jaw and Port Moody has been established. The mail between Winnipeg and Victoria will now be conveyed in four days.

STAY EAST, YOUNG MAN!

To the list of present day similes we add another, "As obsolete as a harvesters' excursion"—for nothing could be quite so dead as those summer migrations, which took our surplus youth every harvest season to the grain fields of the West. It is not so long ago, either.

Nowadays the West seems to utter a sinister warning, that no unemployed should enter seeking work. Even British Columbia and Saskatchewan unemployed who may have ideas of going to Alberta for harvest work, have been warned to stay at home. Drought has cut down crop prospects in Alberta and no work will be available for outside help, according to officials of the Government Employment Service.

The harvesters' excursion may be remembered as a symbol of erstwhile prosperity. By many old excursionists it will also be recalled as an adventurous break in their youthful experiences.

THOUGHTS BEFORE AN ELECTION

In the throes of a political campaign electors of Quebec are urged by a Protestant cleric to consider their responsibilities as personal and individual. Commenting on the charges and counter-charges of bad government, Ven. Archdeacon Gower-Rees asserted in a recent sermon that "such charges reflect not only upon governments and administrators but also upon the electorate, which places them in power."

"It is an almost paralyzing thought," the minister said, "that many who know so little about the great issues of the moment are to determine the policy of the Province, and indirectly if not directly, to influence the policy of the country." He labelled the thoughtless voter "a menace to the country", termed such thoughtlessness one of the defects of democracy, and declared: "It is not my function as a Christian minister to discuss the policies of the different parties, but it is my duty to call attention to the sacredness of our responsibilities as voters."

—Added to the "paralyzing thought" here mentioned, conscientious citizens of this province think ominously of the votes which are not merely careless but actually for sale—a condition which it is beyond the dignity of the pulpit to discuss. This is a painful reflection on men's sense of honor, and while governments may be put in power by these very votes, it is incumbent upon right-thinking electors to exert their influence against dishonesty and, further, to insist on electoral reform in this province.

GULLS THREATEN WATER POLLUTION

In Great Britain the seagull is becoming an inland bird, and is proving a menace to fresh-water supplies.

At the annual general meeting of the Fresh-water Biological Association of the British Empire, held in London recently, it was stated that serious concern was being caused by many water undertakings by the increasing presence of gulls in inland reservoirs.

At Preston inland reservoirs, as many as 200 of the birds had been observed at one time, while the Metropolitan Water Board was also being troubled. The gulls had been traced to sources which were definitely polluted, and were the carriers of serious diseases.

On behalf of the Metropolitan Water Board it was stated that every possible measure, including guns, crackers, and nets, were being taken to drive off the birds, but without much effect. The presence of swans was also a source of pollution.

The same difficulty, it was announced, is also being experienced at Budapest, and investigations are at present being carried on there in an effort to solve the problem.

PARKING PROBLEMS ARE ANCIENT HISTORY

The parking problem, says an exchange, as one of the difficult phases of traffic regulation, is not so new as one would think. It is reported that in 45 B. C. the parking of chariots on the highway caused such a nuisance that Julius Caesar issued a decree that they could not enter the trading centres during market hours.

It is estimated that within a year 265.12 tons of soot have fallen on each square mile of Glasgow.

IN MEMORIAM

MCCULLOUGH — In loving memory of our dear sister, Ailsa, who died July 28, 1934. Two years have passed, how long it seems, But in our hearts, her face still beams. For we who love her only know How much we lost two years ago.

Always remembered by Winnie and Archie.

DEATH

McGIBBON—On July 26, 1936, at his residence in Chatham, Duncan R. McGibbon, in his 81st year.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Everett McGibbon wish to express their thanks and appreciation to their many friends for sympathy and kindness in their recent bereavement; especially to Mr. Alphonse Marchand.

Three-Cornered Fight Appears Certain

the opposing camp through a local division, in which Notary J. F. Lavigne and Albini Lamarche are aspirants for the honors.

Last Tuesday another meeting was called at the Court House, when addresses were given by both the Duplessis candidates, who had been duly nominated. To test the feeling of delegates present from all sections of the county, a vote was taken. The result recorded 75 votes, 60 in favor of Notary Lavigne and 15 for Mr. Lamarche.

While Mr. Lamarche has been named by headquarters as the official candidate Notary Lavigne, at the request of many of his friends, has also decided to run on the Duplessis platform. Thus it appears that a three-cornered election is assured in this constituency.

Regulations on Exemption

REGULATIONS PRESCRIBED BY MINISTER

(a) All goods in respect of which exemption is claimed shall be declared in writing on Customs Declaration Form E 24, in duplicate, unless the total value upon which exemption claimed does not exceed $5.00.

(b) The exemption granted shall be limited to goods actually accompanying a returning resident of Canada and brought in by him as baggage at the same time exemption is claimed, and shall not be granted to any person under the age of fourteen years.

(c) A person who has been allowed exemption of less than $100. on a previous occasion shall not be entitled to add to the amount of a subsequent exemption of the difference between the amount previously allowed and full exemption.

(e) Returning residents must state in their declaration in Canadian currency the price actually paid for all goods purchased abroad in respect of which exemption is claimed and must state a fair market value for all goods obtained abroad other than by purchase, such as gifts. The purchase price or value stated is not necessarily the value for duty, but must be declared in order to assist the appraising officer in arriving at the correct value for duty. To facilitate appraisal invoices or sales slips should be presented where possible.

(f) If personal effects or goods taken should be advanced in value or improved in condition while abroad by reason of repairs or alterations further than that necessarily incidental to wear and use while abroad, the cost or value of such repairs or alterations is subject to duty. Such cost or value may, however, be included within the $100 exemption.

(g) In cases where goods for which exemption is claimed have a combined value of over $100 exemption is to be applied, where practicable, to the goods subject to the highest rate of duty.

(h) All dutiable goods obtained abroad for which exemption cannot be allowed, must be entered at customs and duty paid in the ordinary course.

(i) These regulations shall not be construed to be applicable to any goods the importation of which is prohibited, except as specifically provided for in Tariff Item 703 (b).

Non-Residents

Cigars and cigarettes in personal baggage of non-residents: fifty cigars or less, two hundred cigarettes or less, and two pounds of manufactured tobacco or less, in open packages, or in cartons, found in baggage of traveler not being a resident of Canada, may be delivered free of duty.

Many Auto Accidents Over Week-End

Two Montreal sedans, a Ford and a Plymouth, met in a crash on Tuesday on the Lachute Road to St. Andrews. No serious injuries were sustained although the cars were badly smashed, one being towed later to Lachute and the other to St. Andrews.

As result of a collision at Carillon on Monday two sisters, Rachel and Florida Chalifoux, were removed to hospital in Hawkesbury suffering from shock and minor injuries. It was reported an automobile driven by P. E. Allarieu of St. Jerome and a car driven by A. Robert of Montreal were in the crash. The Chalifoux sisters were in Allarieu's automobile.

Calumet Lawn Social

Rain and the threat of rain caused the members of the A.Y.P.A. at Calumet to transfer their lawn social, in aid of Trinity Church, to Lavigne's Hall. In spite of the unfavorable weather the social was well patronized, and a considerable sum realized. The young people, (and their older helpers) worked hard and deserved the success they achieved.

The cake donated by Mrs. L. Whinfield for a Guessing Contest was won by Mr. E. Godin. The correct weight was 7 lbs., 2 ozs. Five people guessed equally close and Mr. Godin won the draw.

MONTREAL OTTAWA TORONTO

National-Duplessis Candidate

J. F. Lavigne,

Officially Chosen by Argenteuil

TO THE ELECTORS OF ARGENTEUIL

Following the convention held in Lachute on Tuesday July 21st., where 60 delegates out of a total of 75 present from all sections of the County chose your humble servant to be the Candidate in the forthcoming elections under the banner of Mr. Duplessis, I feel that it is my duty to accept the nomination, and therefore I am pleased to announce that I will contest this constituency in the interest of the National Party under our leader, Maurice Duplessis, the Prime Minister of to-morrow.

I enter this fight as a Duplessis Candidate at the request of the electors of Argenteuil, and I can say that I did not seek the nomination, but that it was offered to me. I am not imposing myself on the electors, and I am not imposed by anyone. I was the choice of the delegates of Argenteuil at a convention duly called and held; I respect their verdict, and I take this opportunity to once more tender my sincere thanks for the vote of confidence I was given by your delegates.

I hereby pledge my utmost support to my leader, Maurice Duplessis, and I make a special appeal to the right thinking electors of this County, conservatives, liberals and independents, to cast their vote on the 17th. of August in my favor to help to free our good old Province of Quebec of the Taschereau - Godbout corrupted and corrupting regime.

I will start my campaign next week; the places and dates of meetings will be given in this paper.

I sign myself the Candidate of the People, chosen by the people.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. LAVIGNE.

Canada's First Engine and World's Largest Streamliner Featured at Railway Centenary

Railway Pioneers' Hopes far Exceeded

Speaking at the recent celebration of Canada's railway centenary held at St. Johns, Quebec, the southern terminus of the Champlain and St. Lawrence, the first line in the Dominion, S. J. Hungerford, president of the Canadian National Railways, outlined the tremendous strides that had been made in railroading since he entered the railway business 50 years ago.

"I can say in all truth that which has been accomplished has transcended the vision of the pioneers," Mr. Hungerford said. "Those who planned the Champlain and St. Lawrence and brought it into being no matter how optimistic they might have been, could hardly have foreseen what a mighty instrument of national welfare the railway was to be in Canada. The railway has been, and is the mightiest single force in the welding together of Canada and in the preservation of it as a nation. It is a mighty servant of the people. When this railway was conceived there was likewise brought into being that chain of circumstances which led to the formation of the Canadian National Railways, with its services to every province of the Dominion. It is the aim of the Canadian National Railways, the largest railway system on the North American continent, still to be in the vanguard of progress; to be a worthy instrument in the development of this great nation."

THE OLD CLOCK'S MORNING SONG

Rattle-dum, rattle-dum, rattle-de-dum
Some of them snore and some often hum
Tickety-tackety, tickety-tum.
Good morning, good morning, you jolly bright sun!

Tickety-tackety, tickety-too,
I've waited for you all the long night through,
Rattle-dum, rattle-dum, rattle-dum, rouse
No sound but my own in this whole big house.

Tickety-tackety, tickety-tall,
'Cept a wee gray mouse that lives in the wall
Rattle-dum, rattle-dum, rattle-dum doo,
Dickie's still sleeping and Dorothy too
Dingety, dingety, dingety dong,
Hurry up drowsy heads, don't sleep so long!

"Yes", repeated Cordelia, "Ted and I got blamed for eating those arrowroot biscuits, as Nannie the cook was away and mother was attending to the kitchen herself that week—but I am sure Mother will be pleased when she finds out how much good they have done the baby—What do you call him?"

"We call him Snip" the mother mouse said, "he is such a little rascal to chew things, even the things that we would rather he would not chew."

Before she could add another word the young mice all began to sing—

"Oh we're all Ips, we're all Ips
Our mother named us so
If you don't believe us little mice
Just ask our Auntie Flo."

"Your Auntie Flo is not here just now, so I guess I'll just have to tell this little lady that my daughter, Mrs. Soft-Fur here, is a bit of a poet and likes to have things rhyme, so she has named her children—first Tip, the serious one. He is a great fellow for books."

"Books, books, Cordelia Crooks, remember," giggled one of the lively little mice who had swung from her ribbons. "Books, books, and not looks."

Cordelia looked at Tip and felt that she agreed with the saucy little chatterer. Tip was not a beauty but he had kind, shy eyes.

"Then", went on Grannie Mouse as though she had not noticed the interruption, "the one who has just tumbled over that pile of nutshells is Trip—and rather well named. She's always falling over something. The two who followed you in here as Clip and Flip. Clip is always in mischief and Flip, who is his twin, just goes flip right into every bit of mischief, after her brother." While they were talking Snip, true to his name, had been busy with the weighing cloth and had chewed it so that before his mother could catch him he had broken through it and had fallen into a pile of bread-dough.

"Oh, my good bread dough!" wailed Mrs. Soft-Fur, "My good bread-dough that I worked so hard to scrape from the cook's table upstairs." Cordelia felt sorry for her, but could not help remembering Nannie's growls when she brought her bread-board out to use just the day before. "Thim plagued mice" she had muttered, "wash this board iver so clane, and if there a hollow in it at all they'll find it and scrape and scrape. Some foinde day I'll be foindin' that they have taken it clane away with thim."

She wanted to laugh at the idea of Mrs. Soft-Fur or the old mouse carrying off Nannie's bread-board, but after a brief struggle with her emotions the desire to laugh passed. It was well for Cordelia that she did not laugh as unfriendly eyes were peeping at her from behind a curtain, and they would have been certain that she was laughing at poor little Snip's accident.

"Can I help you, dear Mrs. Soft-Fur?" she asked, going up to her as she sat hushing baby Snip, who had been frightened by his fall.

"Come now, come now", Grannie Mouse said coaxingly, "Come to Grannie while your mother gets some water to clean you with. Come now, Grannie will sing to you." Snip let himself be coaxed into his Grannie's arms while she swayed backwards and forwards on the stool, which creaked and groaned an accompaniment to the words of her song—

"Hush-a-bye, my Baby Snip dear,
Daddie's gone for cheese,
Gone to where he'll hear the cat purr,
Hear her sniff and sneeze,
Naughty Pussy tries to catch him
Daddy he's too smart.
There, I believe I've got you laughing
Bless your little heart."

Clip and Flip, who had gone outside, came suddenly back to the room calling excitedly, "Oh Mummie, the tap is running, the tap is running!" Mrs. Soft-Fur waited to hear no more but ran from the room.

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

Papa (to Johnny, four years old): "Won't you have another piece of duck, Johnny?"

Johnny: "Yes, please, father, I will. Duck's my favorite chicken, 'cept turkey."

World Famed Band To Be Heard at Ottawa Exhibition

Goldman, King of Bandmasters, on First Visit to Capital. Elaborate Revue to Top Night Program. Unusual Offerings.

So high a standard has been set by the Ottawa Exhibition in the last few years that it is increasingly difficult to make each year better than the previous. For this year, however, the directors are confident that new records will be established as nothing has been left undone to make August 24th to 29th a memorable week.

It is a matter of taste, but most exhibition visitors doubtless will make sure of hearing Goldman, the king of bandmasters, and his world famed band. This will be the first visit to Ottawa of the noted organization and it will be heard in two concerts daily from the shell bandstand for the entire week.

Topping the night program will be The Fascinations of 1936, a four-star revue. Vaudeville acts that will thrill and amuse, elaborate fireworks, horse races, sports, a new midway with the latest rides and shows, dog show, nightly horse shows in the Coliseum, Highland dancing, etc., will be outstanding factors in the 1936 exhibition. Displays by the Dominion and Provincial governments, civic displays, exhibits by merchants and manufacturers, flowers and fruit, poultry and pets, automobiles, pure food, livestock, junior agricultural competitions, child welfare, baby show, hobbies, women's work, model home and scores of other interesting departments will provide education, surprises and pleasure for all.

Intending exhibitors should write at once for prize lists as in some departments the entries must be in by August 1st. Reduced railway rates, special parking for automobilists, and coupon tickets which give six admissions for one dollar also will prove an inducement to visit the Capital in Exhibition week.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman.
By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

BAD FOR THE HEART

A friend of mine engaged a maid, a smart looking girl from the country who had never worked out before. She was instructed in her duties and her mistress told her she was to take a bath and told her how often she expected her to take one. The next morning the girl was ironing when she suddenly quit, went upstairs and came down all packed ready to leave and in tears. She said that she had been thinking it over and she didn't want to take so many baths as she never had a bath in a bath-tub and she heard it was bad for the heart.

THE TOO ACTIVE WOMAN

There is a type of woman who annoys me greatly—the woman who is always busy. Of course it may be jealousy on my part. We all know women who are never idle. They must always be doing something. If they sit down they have to have a piece of work of some kind in their hands. It might be called a mental St. Vitus dance.

Anything to be busy. You seldom find a woman who is always busy that is a thinker. We had a neighbor once whom another neighbor called 'crazy clean'. She had a small apartment and she worked day and night. She polished her floors and then kept them covered with newspapers. She cleaned her furniture and kept the chairs covered with dust protectors. Her children could not play in the house and her husband was seldom home except for meals. Unless she was going out she was never out of a house-dress. I often talked to her as she worked on her steps or verandah and the first time I saw her in her street clothes I did not recognize her. She had a flair for clothes and had exceptional style (her grandmother was French, perhaps that had something to do with it). Most pretty women who can wear clothes like to dress, but not she. She had to work. If she sat down she had some sort of work in her hands. Her children had some lovely clothes but seldom were allowed to wear them. Very often a woman who is always working is the very saving kind. The worst of it is, they pride themselves so on being such workers and are forever talking about it. I heard a rich woman say the other day that she never was very well but she knew the reason. She worked so hard and was never idle a moment. Every once in a while she had to go to bed for a few days to get rested and then she was all right again. I say moderation in all things. Even in work.

MORE MILK

Use more milk in the summer to provide the required protein. Most of us desire less meat in the summer, yet the body activities go on, and waste tissue must be replaced and in children growth maintained. Proteins are the only food constituents which will do this so be sure that you use plenty of milk in the summer. It will round out the fruits and vegetables, which we all desire, very nicely.

LAUNDERING TROUSSEAU LINEN

The depression has developed new ways of making money. A widow who has the knack of doing up linen beautifully has made a business of laundering trousseau linen for brides. Usually there is so much linen to do up that it is quite a chore and the brides in this small city (and their mothers) gratefully turn over this job to the woman who does it so well. She takes a great pride in her work and it has become so the vogue that the wedding hardly seems legal if she has not laundered the fine linens. Perhaps here is an idea for someone who wants to earn some money.

TUNA SALAD

1 cup tuna fish
1/2 cup celery chopped
1/2 green pepper chopped
2 tablespoons chopped olives
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon mild vinegar
1/4 teaspoon paprika
3/4 cup salad dressing

1 tablespoon gelatine
1/4 cup cold water

Soak the gelatine in the cold water, then dissolve over hot water and add to salad dressing. Flake the fish and add, combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Turn into individual moulds and chill. Serve with lettuce.

SAUCE FOR BEETS

1/2 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup vinegar
1/4 cup butter
1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
Cook until thick, stirring constantly, and pour over hot sliced beets.

DREAMS

3/4 cup butter
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 cups flour
Mix well, spread in shallow pan and bake about 15 minutes. Remove from the oven and cover with the following mixture.

1 1/2 cups brown sugar
1 cup each walnuts and coconut
2 well-beaten eggs
2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
speck of salt
Bake in a slow oven of 250 degrees until nicely browned. When cool put in squares.

How to Make-Up

Most rules of make-up are based on the fact that different colors seem to alter the shape and size of things. So use two powders, one darker than the other, to subdue or bring out the contours of your face, advises Dorothy Cooks in July Pictorial Review.

If you want to make heavy jowls look thinner, use a darker powder there. If you want to "fill-out" sunken cheeks or give greater width to pointed jaws, use a lighter powder shade on the lower half of your face. If you want to subdue bulging or puffy eyes, use a dark eye shadow and darker face powder around them. If your eyes are sunken, bring them out by lightening the surrounding skin tone. If your nose is big and prominent, tone it down with a darker powder. If your chin recedes, bring it out with lighter powder. Both powders you use should be in the same color as your skin tone. Don't be afraid to use lipstick to make your mouth both wider and fuller than it is, if it is narrow. If the corners don't reach to a point directly below the pupil of your eye, use lipstick to carry them out. Pencil the upper lip more heavily than the lower, and give the outline of the lips an upward tilt at the corners.

Juvenile or Adult Immigration, Which?

The doors of Canada have been practically closed to all but the financially independent for several years and the wives and children of men already established in this country. With the removal of and recovery from economic stagnation, this ban will doubtless be somewhat lifted, since Canada needs and must have immigration, if she is ever to develop her unbounded resources.

It might be of interest to consider the question of juvenile immigrants, instead of allowing adults to enter the country, and that for several reasons. Youth finds it much easier to adapt itself to the customs of a new country, differing so greatly from the land of their birth. Different methods of farming and marketing, seasonal changes, new languages to learn, and laws to obey, are all very difficult for the older generation, set in its ways, and impatient of everything that does not bear the stamp of the traditions of their fathers.

Young emigrants would not have this handicap, and would be more able to adopt the standards of Canadian life and merge themselves in its citizenship.

Perhaps no organization in Canada to-day gets closer to the New Canadian than the Women's Institutes. Wherever possible these are helping the strangers within reach by friendly gestures; advising them in the management of their homes; selection and cooking of foods; care of their children; often coming to the rescue in times of sickness and distress. The younger members of immigrant families are much easier to reach in community social life, and find themselves welcomed at all gatherings planned by the Women's Institutes.

Lachute Branch stressed Agriculture with an enjoyable motor trip to Ottawa Experimental Farm, and later had a delightful social hour and tea at the Chateau Laurier through the kindness of their host, Sir George Perley. Their regular meeting program included reports of the Convention at Macdonald, also reports of proceeds of work in connection with Lachute Fair. Thirty ladies were present.

Lakefield made plans for holding a sale of home cooking and listened to instructive reports of the Provincial Convention from the delegates. They replied to their roll call by naming their favorite author.

Morin Heights held a picnic meeting at Lake Anne, the summer home of Mrs. J. E. Seale, and presented their hostess with a beautiful piece of jewelry, this being the anniversary of her birthday. Their roll call was, "Your home town". Delegates to Macdonald College presented their reports of the Convention.

Pioneer heard a splendid report of Convention given by Mrs. Geo. Armstrong, covering many interesting subjects, also a paper on Immigration, "What the Immigrant gives to Canada" by Mrs. J. McKenzie, and answered their roll call by giving their choice of abode in Canada. They also made plans for a picnic and sale of home cooking.

Upper Lachute - East End conducted their meeting under difficulties, the president and secretary both being unavoidably absent. The eight members present replied to the roll call by naming their favourite summer resort, and heard an interesting report of the Annual Convention, given by Mrs. W. McFarlane.

Hire Lady Bouncers

Because so many women are patronizing bars in New York City since repeal of the 18th amendment, owners are installing "lady bouncers" whose duty it is to remove members of their sex who become tipsy. George Ross, news correspondent, describes three such bouncers now on duty in as many saloons. One of them, Lois Defee, is six feet two, and with other physical proportions in accordance. She throws out both men and women drunks.

The Week's Fashion News

By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

Butterflies in the hair and on hats are seen all about Paris. Ear-rings gleam from every ear in Paris reads a recent line in Vogue. Dull gold accents are right on black. Gay flowers are shown on black velvet hats. These are accessory notes with a future. They proclaim the vivacious mood of fashion for the coming season in regard to those little added touches that make for complete chic.

Beaded embroideries reflect the Persian influence predicted for Fall importance. A recent Schiaparelli model had a beaded design on the chest, the only highlight on an otherwise black costume. Another fashion with a future. Watch it.

Other important influences are the Directoire as already mentioned in hats, the Empire, the Peasant and the Sporting trends. Each has its own particular fashion points but the average busy woman develops a casual individual mixture of all for her own particular fashion. In other words you pick from the whole whatever best becomes you and assemble your costume with an eye to its complete correctness as well as the becomingness of each individual piece. In this way everybody is not going to look like everybody else and the result is so much more charming that way!

Suede-like fabrics... dull and rich effects are important for Autumn. There is a new feel of elegance expressed first and foremost in the fabric. Fashion is depending more on the quality of these fabrics, rather than on startling lines to make the fashion picture more than worth your attention.

Covered insteps... square toes... square heels... tongues... buckles... stitching... piping... low side cuts... black patent trims... dark green and dark wine are important shades: black suede for formal wear... this is the shoe story in a nutshell.

Black satin leaps to its perennial favour once August is near — a perfect bridge-the-season fashion, as are all the other blacks New York is giving so much attention to at the moment.

The slim silhouette is the best for evening... some with slits and others with subtle drapery. These are worn with the fashionable tunic coats or wide new-looking shorter jackets.

Colours for day according to the latest issue of Vogue: Black most important — wine, brown, cypress green, reds dulled with darker shadows... various lively blues and dark slate-blue are in evidence. Colours for evening: lemony yellow, chartreuse, pink, oyster, ivory and gold.

New Locomotives Poems in Steel

Canada's newest railway locomotives are poems in steel, graceful, light-weight, semi-streamlined, machines capable of 110 miles an hour. Radical departures in construction have been made in the Canadian Pacific Railway's five new "3000" engines, the first of which was taken over on Monday, July 27, at a brilliant ceremony which was broadcast on a nation-wide radio net-work through the facilities of the company's Communications Department, and which included addresses by Sir Edward Beatty, G.B.E., K.C., L.L.D., chairman and president, Canadian Pacific Railway; His Worship Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal; William C. Dickerman, president of the Montreal Locomotive Company, where the new locomotive was built; and J. N. Burke, Canadian Pacific veteran.

The new Jubilee Locomotives, so named because they will go into operation in the jubilee year of the company's transcontinental passenger service, will pull a completely new type of train, lighter than the ordinary, semi-streamlined, and comfortable. The new coaches are under construction.

A CLEAN-UP JOB

Anyone passing through the village of Mervin could not help but remark on the cleanly and orderly appearance of the streets and lanes. This is due to the fact that for two or three days the Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs, under the able direction of their respective leaders, have been out with rake, shovel and wheelbarrow cleaning up the season's accumulation of rubbish so natural to the small western village. The boys and their leaders are to be complimented on their public service.
