PETITION FROM WEST-ENDERS REGARDING MORE ADEQUATE SERVICE, REVIVES ATTENTION TO TOWN SYSTEM

WILL ENLIST SERVICES OF AN ENGINEER

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held Wednesday evening, at which Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason, Aldermen C. Durocher, K. McQuat, R. Muir, O. Laurin, Jas MacGibbon, W. J. Deacon and H. Lamarche were present.

Ald. MacGibbon gave notice of motion for special levy of tax to cover costs of putting in the sewer on Grace and Wilson Streets.

It was moved by Ald. Laurin, seconded by Ald. Durocher, that permits for building be granted to Messrs. Bedard, Gibeau and Brisson, and that the secretary issue instructions accordingly.

Petition was presented from ratepayers of Robert Street for laying of a sewer. It was requested that further signatures be procured and brought in at next meeting.

The financial report for last three months was adopted on motion of Ald. MacGibbon, seconded by Ald. Durocher.

The question of town water supply came to the fore again, when a largely signed petition was presented from residents of the West End requesting the town to give them better service, as the supply at present, through a 4-inch pipe, is entirely inadequate for the growing population. An 8-inch main is requested. The petition gave rise to general discussion, in which there was a united feeling that the main from the intake would have to be enlarged. Ald. Deacon was of opinion that the services of a competent engineer should be secured to make a survey and thorough test of our present system. In this the Mayor was entirely in accord and urged the special committee to proceed with investigation at once and report at next meeting.

HIGH SCHOOL MARKS GRADES X AND XI

Graduates from Lachute High School this year reach the highest number of any year in the history of the school—with the exception of the class of 1934, when there were twenty-four graduates. In Grade X eighty per cent of the candidates passed, and in Grade XI eighty-three per cent passed. The complete list of marks for these two grades is given as follows:

Ste. Scholastique Court House Being Demolished

LOCAL LITIGATIONS AND LURID CRIMINAL CASES ARE RECALLED

Since the beginning of July workmen have been busy tearing down the old stone Court House at Ste. Scholastique. It had been condemned as dangerous some five years ago and recently the Provincial Government decided to remove the building, which was in danger of collapse.

Just what will occupy the site of the old Court House and Jail is not yet known, but it is reported there is talk of erecting a modern building as a women's jail, to house women sentenced in the neighboring districts and even Montreal, in cases of long terms.

The building which is being demolished was commenced in 1859 and completed in 1860. In 1925, however, the district seat was transferred to St. Jerome and the old building was left vacant. The land on which the building stood had been donated by Joseph Lacombe, grand uncle of Ligouri Lacombe, present Mayor of Ste. Scholastique, and by Oscar Barcelo. The first building was destroyed by fire in July, 1864, and two women, waiting trial on charges of infanticide, lost their lives. The new building was started at once and was finished at the end of the same year.

In the yard of the jail there were four persons hanged during the time that the jail and court house were in use. The first of the executions there brought Ste. Scholastique into prominence when, on March 10,

ARRESTED AFTER TAXI HOLD-UP AT HARRINGTON

Already facing sentence on a charge of armed robbery, Emil Boukalam, 19, of Toronto, was arraigned in court on Saturday on a second charge of holding up Marcel Dubois, Montreal taxi driver, north of this town, on Tuesday night of last week, and stealing his car and $1.50 in cash.

Boukalam had been arraigned on July 30 on a charge of holding up Charles Brown, cashier at Murray's lunch room, 962 St. Catherine street west, and stealing $39. He was arrested shortly afterwards and pleaded guilty when brought into court. Sentence will be pronounced in the first charge on August 22 and enquete on the second charge opens today.

83 YEAR OLD LADY MILKING COWS

Among county celebrities who merit distinction and break records for something-or-other, The Watchman takes off its hat to Mrs. Ellison (Bessie) Bradford of Chatham, who at the age of 83 enjoys perfect health and a digestion which might be the envy of folks half as young. In the routine of daily labors Mrs. Bradford is by no means "on the shelf", for she assists regularly with the milking and chores around the farm.

Studying to Avert Huge Cattle Loss in Drought Area of Alberta ... Juggling Portfolios at Ottawa ... Fixing a Minimum Price for Wheat-Growers.

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT" By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, August 4th.—These are holiday days at the Capital, and only a handful of ministers are left to carry on the affairs of state.

The portfolios of those ministers now overseas are spread among those still here; and when one or another of the latter go away for a few days the additional burden has to be assumed by one of the five or six still remaining at Ottawa. Thus we have Hon. Mr. Elliott, the Postmaster-General, acting as Minister of Agriculture; we have Hon. Mr. Ilsley, who is Minister of National Revenue, subbing for Hon. W. D. Euler (on his way from Russia to Holland) as chairman of the sub-committee on wheat. Then when Mr. Ilsley goes down to the Maritimes for a few days the chairmanship of the wheat committee passes along to Mr.

Howe. What happens, if at this juncture, Mr. Howe also has to leave the capital for a few days, it is a bit difficult to calculate. Of course with so many ministers away, affairs don't move very fast, and the most vital and important decisions are put over if possible.

Vital Matters to Settle

But there are two or three things which must be settled at once, including the fodder problem in Western Canada, and the minimum price of wheat which is to prevail for the next few weeks. The government has been giving close attention to these matters. The registration of the unemployed and the launching of schemes to relieve the jobless are also matters which cannot wait. Some progress is being made in that field also.

1897, Cordelia Viau and Sam Parslow were hanged together for the murder of Mrs. Viau's husband. The pair were placed in cells which abutted. The prisoners, anxious to communicate with each other, managed to pierce a small hole through the thick wall at the back of their cells and talked through it until the day they were led out to the scaffold together.

Warden Fired Shots To Quell Riot

This hanging was marked by disorders and hundreds of persons, unable to get into the jail yard, attempted to break down the doors with a battering ram. To quell the riot Warden Lapointe had to fire several revolver shots.

Following the abandonment of the building in 1925, it has become unsafe, until this year the Government decided to tear down the structure. The contract was given to a Ste. Therese firm and at the beginning of July men started their task.

It will be some weeks yet before the work is completed. The

ST. COLUMBAN PARISH MARKS CENTENARY

On Sunday last the Parish of St. Columban held celebration in honor of the 100th. birthday of its founding. Solemn High Mass was held, followed by a luncheon and sports in which parishioners took part. Since the church is at present undergoing repairs, and since the parish, though founded in 1836, did not begin the full extent of its activities until 1837, the official centenary observance has been postponed until next year. An elaborate celebration is anticipated.

ANOTHER ARREST MADE IN BANK HOLD-UP

In a further sequel to the Nova Scotia bank hold-up in Lachute, it would appear that the cogs of the law grind slow but surely. The elusive Thos. Finnessy, suspected of being a participant in the theft here last April, was arrested Tuesday night in Ottawa. He gave his age as 27, and no fixed address. The man is held on a warrant, sworn out by the magistrate at St. Jerome, which charges that "Thomas Finnessy and others did, while armed, hold up and rob the Lachute branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia of a sum of $3,576.28".

MONTREAL STAR REPLIES TO HON. J.S. WOODSWORTH

BRITISH EMPIRE GREATEST INSTRUMENT FOR GOOD THAT EVER EXISTED.

It is difficult to make out what Mr. Woodsworth wants. He admits that, according to international law, Canada is automatically at war when Great Britain goes to war. Then he seems to insist, as if he was saying something novel, that the amount of effort which Canada will make in any war will be decided by the Canadian Parliament. In asserting this so violently, he is merely hammering on an open door. Everybody admits this. It is the policy of Mr. Mackenzie King and the inferred policy of Mr. Bennett.

But Mr. Woodsworth seems to want us to say something about something right now. He waxes quite earnest over it. He declares that "we would be doing the fair thing" if we notified Great Britain of what? For the life of us, we cannot make out what this mysterious thing is he wants us to warn the British about. They already know that the Canadian Parliament will vote money, men and measures for any war effort we may make, and that no one else has any power to do this. What else is there to tell them?

We cannot declare in advance that we will or will not participate in any utterly unpredictable conflict in the future. We all know and agree that our people will be very reluctant to join in any war. Mr. Bennett said very bluntly during the last campaign that, if the European governments blundered into war over the Ethiopian affair, Canada would not participate. What he meant was, we imagine, that a League war with Italy would not be serious enough to call for Canadian help. As the British always said that they would not fight unless France and the other League nations fought with them, this was probably quite

25th YEAR OF REAL "UNION" CHURCH

Residents of Lac Marois, a summer resort in the neighborhood of Shawbridge, last Sunday celebrated the 25th. anniversary of the building of their church, which is a "United" Church in the true sense. Informal and non-denominational, the service was conducted by Rev. George Irving, of New York, whose family has spent many summers at the lake.

As a representative of the early summer residents, J. P. Copeland told of the history of the building of the church. As early as 1903, he said, regular services were held at various private residences. In 1910 a committee was empowered to proceed with construction of a church building. Land was deeded to the community by J. F. Raphael. For the most part, the building is unchanged today, though necessary repairs have been made from time to time. The church is free from debt, and each year contribution is made to the funds of the Children's Memorial Hospital and the Grace Dart Hospital. Until a few years ago all community events, such as socials and entertainments were held in the church building.

Married in Lachute

In the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, at 3 o'clock on Wednesday, July 22nd, Catherine, only daughter of the late Mr. Neil MacMillan and of Mrs. Isabel MacMillan, Outremont, Que., was united in marriage to Delbert Roderick, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. MacTavish of Harrington East. The Rev. H. Cousins officiated.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Kenneth L. MacMillan, of St. Hilaire, Que., the bride wore a suit of white shark-skin with blue and white accessories. She was attended by Miss Floris Craig of Montreal, and Mr. Lorne MacTavish acted as best man for his brother.

CALUMET MERCHANT IS BEREAVED

DR. L. E. DE CHANTAL DIED IN STATES

On Sunday, the 2nd. inst., there passed away at Albuquerque, New Mexico, Dr. Leonard Eric de Chantal, son of Eric D. de Chantal of Grenville Bay and Calumet. Born at Grenville Bay in 1892, he attended Ottawa University, where he starred as a rugby player, and also McGill, where he graduated as doctor of medicine in 1918. Dr. de Chantal practised medicine in Ste. Agathe des Monts with Dr. Roddick Byers, then at Trudeau, Saranac Lake, N. Y., and Wallingford, Conn. In the latter few months he had also been practising in Albuquerque, New Mexico, where he died last Sunday of heart failure.

Left to mourn him are his wife, formerly Dorothy Jane Thompson, daughter of Clarence E. Thompson Jr. of New Haven, Conn.; his father, Eric de Chantal; his mother; three sisters, Eva, Mercedes and Blanche, and four brothers, William, Arthur, Wilfrid and Laurent.

The funeral is taking place in Woodbridge, Conn., tomorrow, Aug. 7th. His parents, sister Mercedes, and brother Wilfrid, left on Wednesday, motoring to Connecticut for the funeral.

Paper Mill Closed While Dam Repaired

The bed of the old North River has come to light in strange places since the sluices J. C. Wilson Company were opened yesterday to permit repairs. This dam was badly broken by ice last spring. The paper mill is closed and as many of the employees as possible are engaged on the repair work, which will take at least two or three weeks, it is believed. A new wood flume is also being constructed. Although the paper machines are idle, work is continuing as usual in the bag factory.

true. If Britain had fought alone as certain "belligerent pacifists" wanted her to do, God knows!

For Canada to say now in advance that she will not participate in any war forced upon the British Empire would be silly, secessionist and untrue. Let us offer a supposition. Suppose Japan declared war on the Empire and landed an army under cover of her splendid fleet in British Columbia, we imagine that Mr. Woodsworth himself would issue a call to arms. This is what renders it so supremely idiotic to try to pledge ourselves to any programme in advance.

Our possible relations to any war that may break out are a very serious business. They should not be discussed and the public mind confused with purely academic propositions. That brilliant Canadian, Lord Beaverbrook, has an article in the current "American Mercury" in which he urges a military alliance between the United States and the British Empire. This must be a new high in academic theorising — and no one can possibly know this better than Lord Beaverbrook.

There probably is not a single Congressman or Congressional candidate in the whole United States — to say nothing of a President — who would dare present such a policy to his constituents. To imagine that the Americans, who will not even enter a League of Nations, would bind themselves in advance to fight Britain's wars for her is totally to ignore American sentiment and American history. Such a policy is impossible — quite as impossible as what would appear to be Mr. Woodsworth's blanket war policy to be adopted at a time when not even a soothsayer knows where the next war is to occur, who is to fight in it and to what extent the very existence of the British Empire and modern civilization may be at stake.

Moreover, both these policies are quite unnecessary. They are much ado about nothing. When the time comes, Canada will decide where her duty lies in any war. And she will decide right. Mr. Woodsworth's careless and haphazard allegation that "most British wars, in the light of history, could not be justified" is only the habitual mental attitude of theorists who set up in the shelter of free institutions, preserved for us by these very wars, certain high moral standards and then condemn any act of the past which does not fit wholly into these blue prints of perfection. The wars of Clive were not "justified" by the moral standards of the Sewing Circles, but they made the British Empire "the greatest instrument for good, under God, that has ever existed."

Nor is it "necessary" to antagonize and alarm American opinion by asking them to tie their hands for the future in any military alliance with the British. The United States will fight in self-defence when the time comes, and it will fight for nothing else. This is true of all nations — though some nations, including our own in days past, interpret wars of conquest as measures of self-defence. Our good neighbors fought the Mexican War in much the same spirit.

As for the future, we are not much impressed by the confident assurances of the Americans that nothing will drag them into another war. If forces arise in the Old World that seem certain to overwhelm all free people within their reach, we venture to think that the American nation will not sit supinely and stupidly by and watch the destruction of the last barricade, the British Empire, between them and a new Genghis Khan.

Rheumatism in Stone Age

Even in the Stone Age, some 4,000 years ago, Britons suffered from rheumatism. This was shown by the skeleton of a Stone Age man dug up at Notgrove long barrow, in the Cotswold hills, in the west of England. This Stone Age veteran showed extensive signs of osteoarthritis, indicating that when alive he was crippled with rheumatism. Experts take this as a sign that the climate of these isles was chilly in winter.

St. Mark's Decorations

According to the ancient laws of Venice, every merchant trading in the East was required to bring back material for decorating St. Mark's, and every successful general or admiral returning from an Eastern campaign was expected to carry some offering for it. "Not one of the hundreds of columns and capitals within or without the church was originally built or constructed for St. Mark's," writes Arnold Lund in "Venice."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Aug. 9th., is "SPIRIT."

The Golden Text is,—"Thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness." (Psalms 143: 10).

"God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." (John 4: 24).

"In the Bible the word Spirit is so commonly applied to Deity, that Spirit and God are often regarded as synonymous terms; and it is thus they are uniformly used and understood in Christian Science."

The Whip-Poor-Will

(Toronto Star)

No doubt people who live in the country think nothing of it but city people who go to the country for a couple of weeks or a month in the summer can never make out what the whip-poor-will means by the night-life he leads.

It is not difficult for any person to form a sort of theory as to the life of any of our native birds, but no amateur can readily account for the whip-poor-will. He makes it a point never to be seen by day and never to be silent by night. From dark to cock's crow he shrills the night with his cry. Why does he shout so? Why does he never feel that he has shouted enough and why does he not take a rest?

It used to be believed in Europe that the whip-poor-will milked goats, as was also charged against a variety of snakes, but these beliefs have been abandoned. Where a herd of goats is found at dusk whip-poor-wills are there, but experts say that it is the insects which fly about goats that attract the whip-poor-wills. One could imagine a more attractive lot of insects obtainable elsewhere by a discriminating bird.

The whip-poor-will can sit in a tree a hundred yards from your bedroom window and shout his cry sixty times to the minute for an hour, for two or three hours. It is only towards morning that he begins to get hoarse and to blur his notes. He does not relent. He is ruthless in keeping it up.

What does he get out of it? Why the mad and remorseless vocal industry of the whip-poor-will? He is of the fly-catcher family of birds, but his incessant outcry can scarcely attract flies, for he does not seem to pause long enough to eat. He is noisily in one place and in a moment he is equally noisy in another. How and why does he do it?

Still, it would be a pity if he didn't. The whip-poor-will convinces the city man that he is really in the country, far from the crowded and sordid haunts of men. He feels that if he cannot hear the whip-poor-will he is still too near the stock exchange and the voice of Big Ben on the city hall. The city man for a change welcomes the call of the whip-poor-will and it soothes him in safety to sleep. No night with such a bird in it can do harm to him.

National-Duplessis Candidate, J. F. Lavigne, Outlines Party Reforms

As promised in my letter to you in last issue of The Watchman, you will find in this paper the dates and places of meetings to be held in the interest of our party, to which meetings ladies and gentlemen are all cordially invited. To the ladies I may say that I hope their right to vote will be recognized by the next legislature under leadership of Mr. Duplessis, who has already voted for this bill, when it came before the house at the last session. My Liberal opponent in this campaign has voted against the bill, but I pledge the ladies that I will give my support to the measure if I am elected; I believe that the women of Quebec Province are entitled to the same rights as women of all the other provinces in Canada.

I fully endorse the program of my leader, Maurice Duplessis, which program will be explained in detail at our meetings throughout the County. I will only mention here a few reforms that the National party intends to introduce in this Province.

Abolition of the Dillon Law, the worst law that was ever passed by any civilized country in the world.

Abolition of the Legislative Council, that old rubber-stamp in use only in Quebec, all other provinces having dispensed with it.

Minimum salary for the labor men—who in some cases are not remunerated in proportion to the services they render their employers.

A Provincial loan for the farmers at lower rates of interest, the Federal loan having proved a failure in this Province.

Lower rates for registration fees and judicial proceedings.

Reform of the Succession Duty Act, so that small estates will be protected.

Six months licenses for cars only used during that period, and part of the license to revert to the municipality where the cars are owned.

Provincial Police to be replaced by the R.C.M.P. which, proverbially, "always gets its man"—a force composed of trained men who never fail in their duty. Old age pension to be applied in a better way, and a pension to be given to widow mothers in need.

The above reforms are not promises, but they have been brought before the legislature by our party and rejected by our opponents—who are now full of promises since the Taschereau regime was overthrown. The Committee enquiring into public accounts has frightened them, after the restitution of Brother Antoine, who was taking such great interest in the Province, or rather out of it, and after it was proved that Mr. Vautrin, Minister of Colonization, cost this Province $34,000 during a period of 14 months, and other scandals were divulged, which are not one-tenth of 1 per cent of what will be brought before the public when Mr. Duplessis continues the enquiry. If Mr. Godbout (the new man—not Mr. Godbout of the Taschereau regime) continues his extravagant promises, it will not surprise us if he assures the electors of Quebec he will pay them $25. per month—as did Mr. Aberhart of Alberta.

As mentioned in my communication of last week, I say again that I did not seek to be your Candidate in this election. I stood in support of Mr. Lanctôt, who I thought had the right to be Candidate in the present elections and of whom the electors of this county would have been proud. In this connection I direct your attention (in another column) to a letter addressed to me on July 22nd. last.

Once more I ask your support—to help liberate our good province from the Taschereau-Godbout corrupted and corrupting regime.

J. F. LAVIGNE.

The Ottawa Spotlight Weekly Review of National Affairs Specially written for The Lachute Watchman By Wilfrid Eggleston

There are now said to be 700,000 cattle in Alberta and a large additional number in Saskatchewan for which some help will be necessary unless rains come immediately and assist the feed situation. After a complete canvas of the situation there are four alternatives:

(a) destroy a large number, as is done in the United States, taking the culls out, of course, and the government compensating the farmers;

(b) have the canners and other inferior animals taken out and processed for sale with the assistance of packing houses;

(c) move feed from areas where it is plentiful to where it is scarce, and

(d) move cattle from drought areas to eastern Canada or some other region where feed is more plentiful. The first alternative has been ruled out with some finality by the government; but it is almost certain that all of the other three will be employed to some extent. There is some difficulty in finding adequate feed supplies close at hand. The usual surplus of hay in northern Alberta is said not to be available this year. The packing companies have offered to assist in processing up to 100,000 head of the thinner cattle, if guaranteed against loss in the transaction. While this would be a big proposition it would only touch the fringe. There is still a hope of disposing of some cattle to the exchange for oil and other products. Farmers in Ontario have in many areas some surpluses of feed, but they cannot carry many cattle over the winter, their shelter in most cases being only sufficient for their own needs.

Copious rains in the drought belt any time up to the 10th or 15th of August would materially alter the whole feed complexion; but if they do not come the least that can be said is that a very serious state will prevail and all resources of province, dominion, railways and private industry will be needed to avert a costly loss of livestock.

That Minimum Price

The federal government is not disposed to do anything final about the minimum price of wheat for the forthcoming year until at least they have reports from their ministers now overseas. A statement is being made from Winnipeg concerning what will be done between the beginning of the new crop year (August 1st) and such time as a decision can be made. With current prices soaring above last year's minimum, it is quite possible that the government will feel that its duty will be done if it repeats last year's price. There is however, pressure being brought to bear by some western organizations to raise the minimum. Some schools of thought, on the other hand, are disposed to advocate that the minimum price should be dropped altogether. The act which created the board does not give them any option in this matter however. They must set a minimum price; but this price in turn must be approved by the ministry at Ottawa.

The National Employment Commission is holding meetings, working on a census of the unemployed, and studying a large number of plans put forward by individuals, societies, firms and organizations calculated to provide work.

Brilliant Soloists in Famous Goldman Band

Music Lovers at Ottawa Exhibition for Week of August 24th to 29th.

Music lovers who have heard of the Goldman Band under the direction of that king of bandmasters, Edwin Franko Goldman, or who have been enthralled by radio programs by this famed organization, have another reason for visiting the Ottawa exhibition which will open on Monday, August 24, for an entire week. Goldman and his band will be heard each day in two free concerts at 4 and 6.15 p.m., and for the engagement will feature two brilliant cornet soloists, Leonard B. Smith and Frank Elsass, who will bring to exhibition patrons an entirely new repertoire of solos. Both are only nineteen years of age but they "have everything."

In these days of the screen, one sighs for the old time musical comedies with real people on the stage and with all the color and lighting effects which as yet cannot be produced in films. Sign no more, for in The Fascinations of 1936, the four-star revue which will top the evening grandstand program, exhibition patrons will find an outdoor production presented from a revolving platform, that will equal the top liners of the legitimate stage.

The other features of this exhibition run the whole gamut of education and entertainment. A new midway with the latest in shows and rides, vaudeville of the best type, fireworks, dog show, livestock, horse races, poultry and pets, automobile show, pure food show, junior agricultural competitions, unusual displays by the Dominion and provincial governments and by civic departments, exhibits by merchants and manufacturers, hobbies, handicrafts, women's institutes, evening horse show, baby show, child welfare and scores of other features will appeal to all.

Petty Thieving on the Job

—John Edwin Price

We have spoken in this column of the employer who wouldn't put his hand in your pocket and slip out 25c a day, but who might pay you 25c a day less than he actually thought you to be worth.

Not all employers belong to this class by a long shot, although the specie is known to exist. The other day an employer raised a question about questionable employees. He asked, "Why is it that a person working for me would not think of entering my home to take a trinket, yet thinks it is alright to snatch a box of paper clips or other office supplies, or if he is a factory worker, does not hold himself above pocketing materials or even a tool occasionally?"

I do not think I gave him a satisfactory reply. Nor could I answer why an employee will "take" thirty or forty cents worth in time by dawdling instead of giving value for his pay in full service. An era of better feeling on both sides can be helped along by a little more old fashioned honesty.

J. P. Lanctôt, K.C., Endorses Notary Lavigne as Candidate for National-Duplessis Party

The following letter, referred to by J. F. Lavigne in his manifesto, attests the approval of Mr. J. P. Lanctôt, former Duplessis standard-bearer in the County, to Notary Lavigne's candidature in the present campaign:

Montreal, July 22nd, 1936.

Mr. Félicien Lavigne, Notary.
My dear Friend,

Following my remarks made in favor of your candidature in Argenteuil County, I have pleasure in reassuring you of my entire support as a Candidate for the Union Nationale in the elections of August 17th.

You are privileged to communicate this letter to all our good friends in the County, and I hope they will give you the same support as they offered me when I left Lachute after the meeting held in the Court House on July 21st.

I cannot close this letter without sincerely thanking you for the loyal support you gave me during the last election of November 25th, and also for the support you were ready to assure me in these forthcoming elections.

Very sincerely yours, (Signed) J. P. LANCTÔT.

Lack of Roads

Throughout the great hinterland of China, there are very few of what might be termed roads. As a case in point, there is Central China which, outside of the main cities, has practically no really hard-surfaced roads and a relative scarcity of even dirt highways. During the past decade the Government of Central China has been working on a highway development scheme and today there are approximately 56,000 miles of either dirt or macadamized roads in the country. This absence of proper highways has been one of the major obstacles to the greater use of motor cars in China.

"GET IN OR GET OUT OF THE EMPIRE"

B. O. Schonegeval, J.P., of London, England, who has been on tour to encourage settlement of English colonists in less crowded parts of the Empire, said recently in Montreal: "People in England have the idea Canada has shut its doors to the Britisher." There can be nothing strange in this impression, for whatever Canada may be doing to attract tourist visitors no effort has been made in recent years to invite immigration. Mr. Schonegeval remarked that there was £30,000,000 idle in Britain left over from a colonization scheme in which the Dominions were to pay half the expense—but in his opinion the Motherland should spend that allotment regardless of whether the Dominions contribute.

"We cannot forbid Italy to conquer Ethiopia while leaving a large part of our own Empire undeveloped", Mr. Schonegeval said. "The time is fast approaching when the Dominions must decide either to get in or get out of the Empire. England has the money, the people and the goodwill. You have the space. You need only demonstrate your goodwill for us to pool our assets and build within the Empire."

CHICAGO EX-MAYOR IS

NO LONGER ANTI-BRITISH

William Hale ("Big Bill") Thompson, former Mayor of Chicago, stated in Toronto that previous stories of his animosity towards Britain and the Royal family, which have become almost legendary, were "all a mistake." He declared that reports of his denunciations of England and threat to punch the late King George on the nose were "based on falsehood, and manufactured by newspapers."

On the 42nd. birthday of King Edward VIII, June 23rd., he had nothing but praise for the present King. He eulogized King Edward as a "fine young man, a real democrat, and the best salesman the British ever had."

"All Bill Thompson ever did", he added, "was to stand up for George Washington and the principles he stood for. And for that I was called a pro-German and a traitor."

TABLET SET ON PEACE BRIDGE

Traffic on the International Peace Bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ont., was stopped last month for the first time in nine years while delegates of the Associated Countrywomen of the World erected a tablet to international peace and friendship. Mrs. Alfred Watt, of London, Eng., international president, presided at the ceremonies.

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON TO BRING UNUSUAL GIFT

It is reported that the Lord Mayor of London, when he comes to Canada for the Vancouver celebrations, will bring with him four swans as a gift to the City of London, Ont. A home for the birds has already been arranged at Springbank Zoo.

News of the coming gift, arranged by Dr. H. A. Stevenson, member of Public Utilities Commission, was received in a letter from the Lord Mayor's secretary. It stated that Vintners Company, "one of the senior city guilds", had offered to supply the swans.

Tennis Tournament at the "Please Yourself" Club

The Club Tournament at the "Please Yourself" Tennis Club has been enthusiastically followed by the number who are becoming increasingly interested in this excellent sport. The finals of this popular event are to be played on the courts of the club on Tuesday evening, Aug. 11th. The management has arranged for seating and parking accommodation, while the Lachute Brass Band will be in attendance.

The Club Championship Tournament displayed some good tennis, Mr. Fernand Legault and Miss Margo Cheley reaching the semi-finals before being eliminated. The finals and Club Championship, which will be played on Tuesday evening, will feature John Cheley vs. Rene Beauregard and Marthe Larocque vs. Alice Bernier.

Face the Issues in Coming Elections

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor, "Watchman"

Dear Sir:

The issue in the present election campaign is likely to become submerged and forgotten in the welter of anomalies and absurdities which confront the electors of Argenteuil, and unless some action is taken in placing the facts fairly and squarely before the electorate the prevailing apathy will result in wholesale abstention of voters, making Argenteuil the Cinderella among the counties of Quebec.

The election issue is clear-cut and unequivocal: Corruption and bribery versus purity in public life. On the one hand we have the Godbout obliquity, heirs to the Taschereau patrimony of obloquy unable to withstand the search-light of public inquiry, seeking the suffrage of the people in an effort to escape the nemesis of a just retribution. On the other hand we have the avenging sword of justice wielded with sincerity of purpose and honesty of disinterested achievement by Maurice Duplessis, pledged to the extermination of place-hunters and job-seekers and the establishment of purity in public life.

These are the issues and in a moment of great crisis, as we are now faced with, it behooves us to exercise our civic responsibility with due determination to assist in the great work of a people resurgent. Future generations will judge us on our action at the polls in this election. The moment of victory is at hand and the choice is wholly and completely ours. Are we to suffer the ignominy of the coward's brand by refraining from voting when our civic responsibility demands it? Are we to perpetuate by default the regime of corruption and bribery which is showing us its other face in an effort to delude us? Or are we to do the right thing and vote for the people's choice pledged to work in the people's interest and observe purity in public life. The choice is ours to make or to make.

In this constituency a side issue has been introduced which serves to make for confusion but which in reality is capable of easy solution by the observant voter. I refer to the third candidate seeking provincial honours.

In the last election when the people of Argenteuil sought to throw off the yoke of the Taschereau octopus, the task was entrusted to Mr. Lanctot, a rising politician of great promise and ability and an experienced Counselor of brilliant record. Mr. Lanctot carried the people's banner in honour and respect. That his efforts were not crowned with success in his small measure due to the apathy of which I warn as well as the general belief that the ousting of the Taschereau regime was a well nigh impossible task. Now when the seemingly impossible has been accomplished another candidate jumps into the field and over the heads of his party organization, disregarding their wishes and flouting their commands, starts a campaign of vilification and backstabbing which forced Mr. Lanctot to retire from the contest.

This retirement be it noted was at the request of Mr. Duplessis in the interest of the province as a whole and to the detriment of Argenteuil county. Mr. Lanctot's so-called "friend" seeking to make political capital out of the fact that as a notable lawyer he was engaged to transact the affairs of a large company, as he was in duty and conscience bound to do in fulfilment of his oath of office.

The withdrawal of Mr. Lanctot obligated the County Organization to select another candidate and in due time a representative convention of delegates selected Mr. Lavigne to be the people's standard bearer. The voting at the Convention left no doubt as to what the people thought of such electioneering tactics and of whom they wished to have the honour of upholding the best traditions of Argenteuil county.

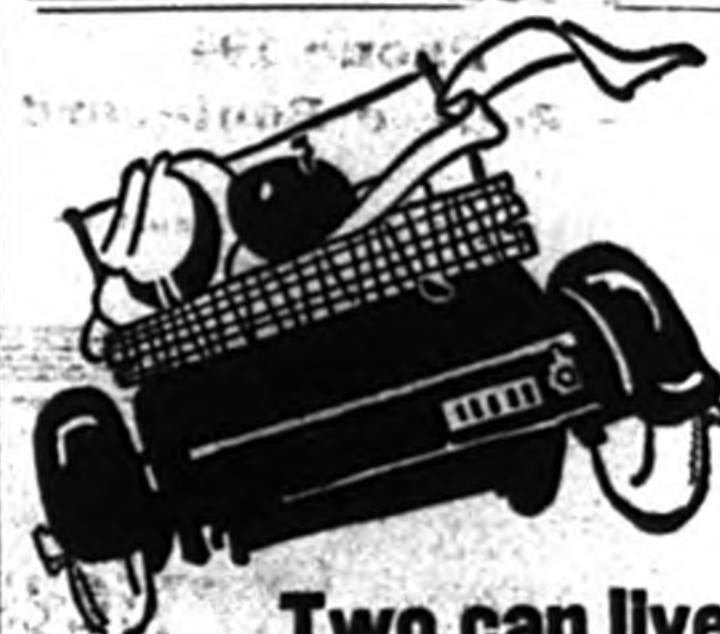

Now it's up to the people of Argenteuil to stand by their Organization's choice and elect the man chosen to observe purity in public life. Cut out this wire-pulling and job-seeking. Clean out the corruption and bribery which for too long has festered our public administration as revealed in the late inquiry, and have done with the back-stabber and place-hunter — this vile excrement of the body politic.

—A Voter.

"It does not make much difference who is elected next President. The country is going ahead just the same."

—Henry Ford.

Sirs,

Less than a year ago, I came before you, asking your vote and your support, and you did me the honour of electing me as your member for this County, to represent you in the Legislature at Quebec.

You may ask yourselves, why are we at the present time faced with a provincial election? Those of you who have read the parliamentary debates at Quebec, will remember that the Opposition has, by constant obstruction, refused to allow the budget to be voted, and so the Province has been deprived of the subsidies necessary to carry on the public services of the Province. The Government was thus forced to dissolve the House and call for another election.

I again come before you and solicit your vote and your support.

Due to the fact that the Opposition has refused to allow the budget to be voted, I have been unable to obtain the necessary subsidies to carry out the program of roads, colonization and public education that I had prepared and asked of the different departments at Quebec. I come again before you, as a supporter of the Honourable Adélard Godbout, Prime Minister of this Province, who has prepared one of the most elaborate and concrete programs that has ever been presented to the electors of the Province.

This program answers the needs of all classes of our population. It will benefit the farmer, the working man, the trader and—in a word—all the population of this Province.

The Honourable Mr. Godbout is a son of a farmer, and a farmer himself: he has spent all his energy to help the farmers of this Province. And the corner-stone of his program is assistance to agriculture, and to make the farmers of this province prosperous.

Although you may have heard the Prime Minister himself on the radio, or read his program in the newspapers — allow me to mention the most important features:

FOR FARMERS:

Bonus of $10.00 an acre for clearing land.
Bonus on butter and cheese for export.
Bonus on raising of pigs for export.
Bonus for construction of modern piggeries.
Government to borrow $2,500,000 to spend on drainage of lands.
Bonuses to assist sugar beet industry.

Government assistance for stock breeders.

Creation of stations to supply lime for fertilization purposes.

Assistance to small rural industries.

Backing for small co-operative warehouses for farmers' goods.

New system of rural credits to be established.

COLONIZATION:

Independent organization to control Government plans.

Bonus for clearing land, to be raised.

FOR WORKMEN:

Minimum wage law for all workmen.

Family allowance to maintain widows and orphans.

Grants of 100 acres to all families of 12 children and the complete education of a child of a family of 12 children.

Relief works to replace state charity.

New rural electricity policy to work towards lower rates.

Company law to be enacted to protect savings.

ADMINISTRATIVE CHANGES:

Extra-parliamentary commission to study provincial administration.

Promotion of employees according to merit.

Merging of all statistical services under one branch.

GENERAL:

Law to prevent members of Government from being directors of companies doing business with it.

Co-operation with Federal Government in regard to fisheries.

Extension of Bouchard plan to fisheries industry.

More easy access to hunting and fishing regions of Quebec.

The press at large, not only of this Province but of the whole of Canada, have declared this is the most elaborate and concrete program ever prepared by a Provincial Prime Minister.

I am convinced that the application of this program will bring back prosperity to the farmer, protection to the workman, and the welfare of all classes of society, and will give to the young men of the Province faith in the future.

I will do all in my power to support my leader in the execution of this program, and as your member I will see that the benefits to be derived from the application of this program are shared by the electors of this County.

In regard to the needs and wants of the County of Argenteuil, I have prepared a list of grants for colonization, public education, and also a vast program of road work that we will be put into execution if, as I hope and expect, I am elected on the 17th. of August next your member for the Legislature at Quebec.

I am convinced that in supporting the program of the Honourable Mr. Godbout, you will assure the prosperity of our Province and the welfare of this County.

I have the honour to be, sirs,

Your devoted servant,

Georges E. Dansereau

Our popular fellow townsman, Mr. A. D. Kennedy, is shortly to leave for the West, but prior to his departure the citizens and friends are tendering him a farewell banquet in the Victoria Hall on Tuesday next, which speaks more for his manhood and character than can be said in print.

The Annual Picnic of the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday Schools took place on Friday last at Calumet. The weather favoured the occasion, and a pleasant time was spent together.

The Calumet Mining Company have struck some large veins of graphite in the tunnel. There is every prospect of a very rich graphite deposit on their property.

Dalesville—Mr. A. Murdoch and family, who leave shortly for the West, were tendered a farewell social by their many friends of this community on Friday last. The chair was occupied by Rev. Mr. McDonald.

WHO WAS TO BLAME

Anne Elizabeth Annabelle Lou Was making a terrible "How do you do," Her dollie was lost and she was sure she had Been stolen, by someone quite terribly bad She stamped and raged all through the day Tossing her playthings out in the hay As she searched and searched in her wild mad way, Quite forgetting the old stone wall Where a blue eyed doll sat on a stone Covered with moss and shaped like a throne Surrounded by fairies and pixie folk too, Longing and longing for Annabelle Lou,

All through the night and all through the day She had sat right there in her stiff little way Her blue eyes staring, her hair wind-tossed, Thinking how terrible it was to be lost!

CORDELIA'S ADVENTURES IN JETTYLAND

Cordelia stared at the speaker in surprise, "The tap is running?" she said hesitantly, as if not quite clear about the matter. "Just what does that mean?" "Come and see", said Clip, seizing her by the hand; the nails of his little paw tickled her and sent queer little shivers all over her, but there was nothing she could do about it but go with him. She was too much afraid of him to do anything else. She could see that, as his Grannie said, he was well named Clip.

Taking her to what seemed to her the very darkest corner of the room, he pointed to where a small basin made of birch bark sat on a high stool. Into it there trickled slowly what looked like nicely browned gravy, and smelled just like it too. Looking up to see where it came from, Cordelia saw a faint point of light. "Where does that light come from?" she asked Clip, who still clung to her hand. "From the big light in the kitchen upstairs. Dad went back up after he brought you here and I expect he is rummaging round to see what he can find that you would like to eat. We like to eat all the things you eat, you know, but we cannot always get them just when we want them. But tonight Dad seems to have been fortunate. That is real, fresh, warm gravy dripping into the basin." "But how?" began Cordelia. Not waiting for her to finish, Clip went on, "You see, we mice and our Uncle Rat chewed a hole in that corner which is right at the end of the kitchen table. Your cook sets the gravy on the table and Dad sneaks up the table leg when she is carrying the vegetables into the dining-room, and tips the gravy-boat so that part of it at least flops out and down that hole right into our basin." "How very clever," Cordelia found herself saying, while she looked longingly at the faint spot of light and wished that she were small enough to climb up to it and through the hole to the kitchen above. "Is it our kitchen the gravy comes from?" she asked. But Clip did not reply; instead he drew her away from the point of light as if he had read her thoughts and did not wish her to be thinking of home. Clip had taken a real fancy to Cordelia and was hoping that she would never leave Jettyland, yet his love of fun and mischief was so great that, while wishing her to stay, he could not keep from teasing her—as was clearly proven by his actions outside where Soft Fur and Grannie Mouse had sent them so that the noise of their playing would not disturb Baby Snip, who had gone to sleep after the unpleasant experience of having the bread-dough combed and scrubbed out of his hair.

"Let's have a game of tag," said Clip as they ran outside, led by Tip. "Hurrah," cried Clip, "run Cordelia, run, or I'll catch you." Cordelia felt that she would never forget the sensation she had as she scampered around in the semi-darkness, to which her eyes were getting accustomed, with Clip scampering after her. She wanted to scream, but did not dare to after the first tiny shriek she had uttered when the chase first began. That mouse she had met in the tunnel might be about and hear her. She ran so fast that at first Clip could not catch her, and it was not until she stumbled over a heap of rags in a corner that he did catch her. Panting, he seized her by her thick braids of hair. "Now, you wild March Hare," he chuckled, "you will stay right here until I get my breath then you must catch me and not lose yourself in any of the alleys either."

As they stood there panting, Cordelia caught sight of the inside of the Soft Fur home. It had such a familiar appearance that it made her homesick again. "What is your Home made of?" she asked.

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

Boys and Girls Enjoy Hayrack Rides

Because city boys and girls think they are missing something enjoyed by their fathers and mothers, hayrack rides are coming back into popularity. At Brown Deer Park in Milwaukee, Wis., one of the amusements this summer will be scheduled hayrack rides every evening over five files of a winding drive in the park. Farmers living nearby will supply the racks, hay and horses, and do the driving.

B.C. BOY SCOUTS ON FOREST PATROL

The forest fire patrolling of a 55-mile square (over 3,000 square miles) timber area on southern Vancouver Island was carried out last summer by the Scouts of the 1st. Sidney, B.C., Scout Group. For the work, the boys were divided into five patrol groups. The troop received the thanks of the Provincial Forestry Department.

"GUS THE DUCK" BECOMES A SCOUT

"Gus," a duck sent to a department of the New York Natural History Museum to be killed and stuffed as an educational exhibit for children, objected to the role so stoutly that kind-hearted heads of the Department of Experimental Biology deferred his fate. As a result "Gus" became a problem boarder. Solution of his disposal, at least for the summer, was found in an arrangement to send him to a Long Island Boy Scout Camp.

A BIG DAY ON GRAND MANAN

The presence of His Honour Lieut-Governor Murray MacLaren and a gathering of some 2,500 residents of Grand Manan marked the ceremonies which created this Bay of Fundy Island a Scout Association district under the New Brunswick Provincial Scout Association. The school children were given a holiday, and the Lieutenant Governor inspected the various Scout units in company with prominent local and provincial Scout leaders. He presented a Medal of Merit to Scoutmaster Howard P. Douglass in recognition of the important part played by him in the development of Scouting on the island.

Invalid Cause of World-Wide Radio Disturbance

Sir Donald Banks, Director-General of the British General Post Office, states that a nationwide campaign against electrical interference with broadcast reception is to be undertaken.

The Post Office Department, under which radio matters in Britain are controlled, is preparing plans for a national campaign in which 100 specially fitted anti-interference cars will be employed.

"Although our engineers claim to trace 98 per cent of the sources of complaints received," Sir Donald says, "strange problems confront them, such as an interference of an unusual type which was recently observed, and which for a time baffled both our own experts and those of many foreign countries."

"This interference caused inconvenience to many commercial radio services, and America, where its effects were particularly strong, requested the assistance of our engineers as well as those of European countries."

"I have just received information that after much investigation, the source of interference has been traced to a hospital in America, where for medical purposes, a large coil of wire was wound round a patient and radio frequency currents applied."

"Owing to coupling effects, high tension power lines passing over the hospital were energized, and these acted as an efficient transmitting aerial. Each time the patient moved he varied the frequencies thus transmitted, and thus unwittingly increased the confusion of the investigators."

First Trip of Fast Mail

On September 17, 1875, great crowds at Chicago welcomed the first fast mail train, which completed the run from New York in 23 hours—about half the previous postal time between the two cities. In addition to a car for guests, the train consisted of four especially designed and equipped postal cars, manned by a picked crew of clerks who handled, en route, more than 30 tons of mail matter.

Red, White and Blue Are

Popular Hues for Flags

Red, white and blue, colors that come into the minds of people whenever flags are mentioned, are the most popular hues, it happens, for the flags of the world, says a writer in the Montreal Herald. Red is used more generally than any other color in flag-making, followed in order by white and blue. Next in order, but much less popular than the three leaders, are yellow, green and black. Orange, which appears in the banners of three countries, about exhausts the colors used in the world's flags. One country (Spain) uses purple. Brown does not appear on any national flag.

Astronomical devices are favorites of flag makers. Stars are used by many countries and there are suns and moons, the latter usually in the form of crescents. Brazil makes use of a circle of the firmament showing the Southern Cross and neighboring stars and the Southern Cross also appears in the flags of Australia and New Zealand. Alaska has placed on its flag the Great Dipper and Pole star.

Other countries use characteristic symbols—Afghanistan, a mosque; Cambodia, an eastern temple; the Republic of Lebanon, a cedar; the Papal state, crossed keys and triple crown; Germany, a swastika; Slam, white elephant; and the Soviet union, a hammer and sickle. Tibet shows the sun rising over a snowy mountain.

THOUGHTLESS CRUELTY

The other morning while at breakfast we saw a commotion in the apple tree by the garage. It looked like a bird flying wildly. We used the field glasses and found that a bird had a string tied around its foot and the other end was caught in the tree. The bird was flying in a panic-stricken way. It could have perched but apparently was too frightened. The lad got a ladder and from the roof of the garage managed to rescue the bird. It was a martin and someone with thoughtless cruelty had tied a string around its leg. Boys and girls because of their interest in birds and animals too often cause cruelty by not thinking.

STARLINGS

For some years starlings have come in thousands to the trees a block or two down our street. They are offensively noisy and offensively dirty. After trying milder methods the civic authorities have used shot-guns. This has killed some and scattered the rest. We can tell you it has scattered them. Scatter them from two blocks down the street to our block. The night before last it was almost impossible to sleep with their chirping. The movement of them in the trees sounded as if a hose were turned on. Last night 2 shots were fired in our trees. Ten birds were killed and the rest left. For how long I cannot say. It is a sight to see them coming to roost at sundown. They will come in masses of thousands, circle round until they find their favorite trees, then descend to make life miserable for their human neighbors.

DRIED MIGNONETTE

In an old fashioned story (for the life of me I can't remember which one) I read of drying mignonette to use as a sachet in drawers and linen cupboards. It sounds interesting and all I wish is that I had a mignonette bed to try it out. Maybe some of my readers will.

HELP THE CHILD TO TELL THE TRUTH

Sometimes parents are very disturbed to find that their child has told them a lie, but do not realize that the lie might have been avoided had they questioned them differently. When you know a child is guilty do not ask them if they are and throw the burden of a possible lie on them as well as the misdemeanor itself. The child wants to please the parent and will lie to avoid bringing about disapproval. Very often they lie because of fear of punishment. Make your questions such that they will avoid a lie. A boy had played truant one afternoon and his mother found it out, that same afternoon. When the lad came home she asked him where he had been, and he shot back 'why'. She told him exactly what she knew and he told her the truth, where he had been and why he had not been to school. He had the burden of guilt in playing truant, but as he was not given a chance to lie that burden was not added to his offense, as it might very well have been if he had been questioned in a different manner.

MINT FOR SUMMER DRINK

It must be just imagination but a drink which has a bit of mint in it always seems to taste cooler. It has a refreshing tang. August is a grand month to make delicious drinks as fruits are plentiful and bits of fruits of any kind may be added to your drinks. If there is any fruit syrup left over from preserving keep that for your pitcher of punch. Crush any fresh fruit that is at hand and use it. Special recipes are not required but just use this and that, with plenty of lemon juice and a bit of crushed mint for added flavor. Keep sugar syrup on hand and your work will be lessened. If I am using tea as the basis of my punch I like to pour the hot tea over the mint leaves and let it stand until cool. Don't overdo this mint business. You want just a suspicion of flavour and not an overpowering one. Here are some more mint recipes.

MINT SAUCE

1/4 cup finely chopped mint leaves, 1/2 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon sugar.

Mix ingredients and let stand in a warm place for a half hour to infuse. The vinegar may be slightly diluted if desired.

CURRENT MINT SAUCE

Break about two-thirds of a glass of currant jelly into pieces but do not beat it. Stir gently about 1 1/2 tablespoons of finely chopped mint leaves and a little grated orange rind. Serve with lamb.

MINT JELLY

1/2 cup vinegar, 1 cup water, green coloring, 3 1/4 cups sugar, 1 cup mint leaves and stems, 1/2 bottle pectin.

Wash mint but do not remove leaves from stems. Put into large saucepan and crush with potato masher. Add vinegar, water and sugar and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire. While mixture is coming to a boil, add coloring a little at a time until you get the desired shade, using coloring that acids do not fade. As soon as mixture boils and pectin, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from fire and skim. Strain and pour into glasses. Cover with paraffin while hot. Makes about 5 glasses.

Is Home Economics Education Worth While?

We read a lot now about correct diets, improved methods of housekeeping, proper clothing and care of children, adjusting ourselves to live peacefully together — writes Mrs. G. S. Walsh, W.I. Provl. Convenor of Home Economics. Most newspapers contain educational information on these subjects. Women's Institutes have undertaken this as part of their program, and talks, book reviews and demonstrations are given. Has there been any practical result from this campaign?

When we see the big healthy children produced in most of our homes today we feel that there has been an improvement over the methods of care and feeding of a generation ago. Infant mortality is lower, and general health appears to be better. It is not so many years ago that "walking the floor with the baby" was a nightly pastime. Now it is almost unknown, due to the regular routines and feeding formulas.

One Women's Institute branch feels that their efforts toward proper clothing of small children resulted in the children of that community being much more warmly clad during the past winter than had been the case in the last few years.

Many people with ailments of various kinds are now able to correct these by means of diet. In serious cases this is under the direction of a doctor, but people with some dietetic knowledge are better able to carry out directions, and later prevent a recurrence of their trouble.

Home-makers now make sure that there are plenty of vitamins in the family diet. Lettuce and tomatoes are used in most homes as a matter of course. Not so many years ago tomatoes were looked on with extreme distaste and seldom served. Pickles and tea and coffee are now looked on for what they are — not foods, but extras to be used only if they are found not to disagree and cause harm.

Of course there are lots of diet faddists whose theories must be avoided, but those with some general knowledge of dietetics are less likely to be caught than those who know nothing about it, but believe all they are told.

Better planning of homes and housework has resulted in more time for women to devote to improving their minds and mixing with other people. This all helps to give a broader outlook on life and results in less tendency to mean gossip.

There can be much more done by education in Home Economics, but the results apparent now prove that any effort in this line is well expended.

Too Old at Thirty

Women who are said to be too old at thirty for various kinds of work, are to be trained in Hull, Eng., for domestic jobs in private houses and institutions. These women, losing their jobs in the depression, have been unable to get back because of the competition from younger women and girls. Training centres are to be set up and the women will be paid 18 shillings a week while they learn their new jobs.

She Pays Alimony

For the first time a woman has been ordered to pay alimony to her husband in New York. She is Mrs. Sadie Picker, by profession a remover of warts. A judge in the court of domestic relations has ordered her to pay her unemployed husband, George, $4.50 a week. The payments beg in immediately and continue until Mr. Picker finds a job. Mrs. Picker declares it is a "disgrace for me to have to support a man." The judge ruled, however, the question of sex had nothing to do with alimony.

Complexions Inherited

Colors Hard to Explain

Your complexion which you inherited from your ancestors, who gradually developed the correct pigmentation to enable them to live healthily in the country to which they belong, has been found to be due to a mixture of at least three separate pigments—black, red and yellow. Even among the so-called white peoples, asserts a writer in the Montreal Herald, the amount of pigmentation varies considerably. There are all stages from very fair to dark. The two extremes—blonds with their light-blue eyes, sandy light, brown, red or flaxen hair, and fair complexion; and brunettes with dark eyes, dark brown or black hair, and dark complexion—are easily differentiated. Between these, according to medical authorities, are innumerable intermediate types. The commonest of these have dark or black hair, with gray, hazel or blue eyes, the combination of dark eyes and fair hair being rarer. The full significance of the color in the human skin is difficult to explain, but it is in all probability a protection against sunlight—especially the active rays—and heat.

Early Ohio Hats

In the early days in Ohio, hats were made in practically the same way as shoes and clothes. When a man or boy wanted a hat, he put in his order two weeks "in advance" to give the hatter time to make the head covering after taking the man's measurements. Made of wool or fur, or both, with the beaver or the other fur lining most of the material, the hats were worth the $6 to $10 they cost the customer. As the stiffening of hats with gumshellac was unused in those days, glue taking the place of waterproof gum, the hats would become flabby if their wearer was caught in the rain. Thus to preserve their expensive hats the pioneers carried with them an oiled silk or gingham covering to put on in the rain.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SURE SIGNS

(St. Catherine's Standard)

When a boy commences to wear a necktie, he is growing up, remarks a contemporary. When he cleans his teeth regularly, parts his hair scrupulously, and shines his shoes, it means that he has a girl around the corner somewhere.

The Week's Fashion News

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman
By the Montreal "FASHION SCRIBE"

■ The August Sales of furs and fur-trimmed coats are in full swing in the various town stores. So far the response has been quite good. Have seen many a woman enthuse about the values and the smart new styling. The general comfort and warmth has not been forgotten but it has been achieved without any loss of fashion importance. In Canada where our winters are so vigorous this is very important. Fabrics are richer looking than in several seasons past. Patterned suede cloths, nubbed woollens and smooth types are all being shown. Black and brown predominate but there is some inclusion of deep green and wine. Fur collars on the fabric coats are smaller in many cases and close-fitting, giving the garment an attractive youthful air. When the collar is of long haired fur, as fox, the new effect is achieved by a certain ripple in the line tending to widen the shoulder and make the waist look slimmer. In fur coats the same collar effects are apparent and the body lines are Princess or Swagger types. Claims are that the better values are obtained in August and that the same fabrics and furs will be much more expensive later in the season.

■ Raised patterns are decorating knitted woollens. This gives something new to work on and it would be well to watch the trend. The raised design is also apparent in some of the imported French woollens—the nub or little tab being either in the same of a contrasting colour.

■ Paris reports continue to talk of hats with the upward and forward movement and recent arrivals bear out the statements. Crowns have taken to all kinds of tricks to achieve this new fashion.—You'll see them folded, tucked, topped with velvet flowers and even boasting new looking tabs. And you'll find these Paris hats far more wearable than usual—or perhaps, I should say, far more suitable for practical wear.

■ Black and beige is a colour combine receiving considerable attention at the moment in New York. A grand idea for bridging the seasons.

■ Semi-Annual Sales of furniture and house-furnishings are also in full swing in various stores. A TOUGH TIME IN SUMMER

Most churches have a tough time during the summer months. The beaches, the mountains and the roadsides have a very urgent appeal to so many of us to get out in the open. Some of us "play hooky" more than others, while none of us would vote to do away with the one institution whose chief business is to uphold idealism.

WHAT YOU EAT HAS A LOT TO DO WITH HOW YOU FEEL

Correction of Constipation* Is Often a Matter of Menus

For years, the medical profession has insisted that proper diet is more effective in promoting health than the indiscriminate use of patent medicines. Today, they are seeing their teachings bear fruit.

For instance, millions of families have learned that common constipation is largely due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. Many of them correct this condition by the regular use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

This delicious cereal supplies generous "bulk" in effective form. Within the body, its "bulk" absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and contains iron. It may be served as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into tempting muffins, breads, etc.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not a "sure-all" — but it does correct common constipation. It is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Feb. 7, 1936. I testify that Mrs. Rueben Welden cured my baby of eczema with five treatments. It was in fact a hopeless case. He is now four years old and had never walked, so I took the baby to Mrs. Welden and with one treatment, three weeks later he walked. His feet are still small but he is doing fine. I thank Mrs. Welden that my baby is alive today and able to walk. — Mrs. Adelard Dinelle. —1p

ONE-DAY RADIO BAN ON ELECTION TALKS

The Canadian Radio Commission has applied a 24-hour ban on political broadcasts immediately preceding voting day in Quebec. Sunday will therefore be void of election orations for radio listeners — who will be generally thankful for this small mercy. The special radio committee of the house last session recommended a 48-hour silent period and this provision was incorporated into the act establishing a radio corporation to take the place of the commission. The act, however, has not been proclaimed and the commission is not strictly bound by its terms.

DIVER WATCHED HERE WITH INTEREST

A diver in full "regalia" has been engaged during the past week adjusting the water main which runs across the river-bed by Barron's Bridge. The iron pipe had shifted, due to ice or other forces under water at this point, and leaks had occurred in the main. The appearance of a diver on the scene of activities aroused more than usual interest, and a small crowd of spectators has been constantly in evidence at the spot.

YOUNG LACHUTE COUPLE WEDDED SATURDAY

Pariseau — Constantineau

A wedding of more than usual interest to the younger set of this community took place on Saturday last at 8.30 a.m., in the Church of St. Anastasie, Lachute, when Miss Suzanne, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Constantineau, was united in marriage to Paul E. Pariseau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Pariseau, both of Lachute. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Binette, of Ottawa, cousin of the groom, assisted by Rev. Father Labelle.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her father. She looked charming in a gown of powder blue with veil to match, carrying a prayer book adorned with roses and ribbons.

During the service the girls' choir of the 'Enfants de Marie,' of which the bride is a member, rendered some beautiful selections. The soloists were Misses Cecile Laurin, Lilianne Leger and Therese Raymond and the organist Miss Isabelle Larocque.

A largely attended reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Foundry Street, the newly wedded couple leaving at noon for a trip to the Saguenay, followed by the good wishes of their many friends. On their return they will reside in the East Ward.

Successful Scout Camp by Grenville Troop

The First Grenville Troop, Boy Scouts spent a very pleasant week in camp at MacLeod's Lake, near Kilmar, from Aug. 3rd. to 8th. inclusive. Rain was falling when the tents were being pitched, but not a drop fell after they were up. The site was the same as last year and some of the camp necessities still remained for use. A "barder" made by Lone Scout Kirby of Kilmar was useful in preserving perishable food. Two new tents, purchased by the troop were used for the first time. Much of the time was spent in swimming in MacLeod's and Slavery Lakes, but some games were played and badge work done. Each patrol took a day in turn as cooks.

ROUSING POLITICAL MEETINGS AS PARTY STALWARTS STRESS CLAIMS AND PLEAS

Govt. and Opposition Leaders Both Heard from Lachute Platform

Prime Minister Last Evening, Duplessis Today, Upholding Local Standard-Bearers

Attention was centred around the Auditorium last evening at one of the most rousing assemblies held in Liberal campaigns through this county. Scores of Provincial and Traffic Police on the scene may have suggested apprehension of a large-scale riot, but no such disturbance took place. An enthusiastic welcome and general good spirit prevailed, to greet Quebec's Prime Minister, Hon. A. Godbout, and his followers in support of Georges E. Dansereau, the Liberal contender.

Again this afternoon, as we go to press, the Auditorium echoes to the pleas and expletives of Opposition speakers, Mr. Maurice Duplessis and his stalwarts urging support of Albani Lamarche, National candidate in the local melée. The numbers attending at both sessions indicate no lack of political fervor in the old constituency of Argenteuil.

With Mayor J. H. Mason in the chair last night, and L. L. Legault, K.C., sharing the introductory role, views were aired forcefully in both languages and echoed afield by loud speakers outside the Auditorium building.

"Six years ago a Professor at Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere—today Prime Minister of Quebec," said Mayor Mason in honoring the Liberal leader. Mr. L. L. Legault joined in the tribute, congratulating Mr. Dansereau also on this occasion which happened to be his birthday, and after a few forceful comments by Mr. Guy Legault, the candidate himself took the floor and the heat of the oratory was well under way. In his address following, Mr. Allan Chambers, President of the Federal Young Liberals Association, explained the reason for promised bonuses to agriculture. While Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King was seeking markets through his representatives abroad Mr. Godbout, he contended, was fostering the agricultural industry here in Quebec. "Sale of surplus products means the difference between prosperity and just living," he claimed.

THREE CANDIDATES SPOKE

Nomination proceedings held at Lachute Auditorium on Monday last proved a disappointment to many party enthusiasts, since it was generally anticipated there would be no third candidate at the final showdown. Mr. Georges Dansereau following his nomination as the Liberal standard-bearer, has been actively at work in forcing fulfilment of undertakings previously pledged by the government for this county. He had something to say concerning these matters, in his address from the platform. It is considered that the heat of the fray will exist mostly between Notary J. F. Lavigne and Mr. Albani Lamarche, the former arguing that he is the choice of the people, nominated by delegates of the party organization in Argenteuil, and Mr. Lamarche upholding the fact that he has been named as choice of the central organization in Montreal. Both claim therefore to be official candidates of the

Citizen of Chatboro Died Suddenly

LATE LEMUEL FORRESTER

The death of Mr. Lemuel Forrester of Chatboro, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Forrester of Dumblane, Scotland, occurred suddenly in Montreal on Tuesday of last week.

The funeral was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Hugh Mitchell of Mabel, conducted by Rev. Mr. Maclean of Cushing, where many friends gathered to pay their last respects to the deceased. Mr. Forrester was a member of the Dalesville Baptist Church, also a faithful brother of the Dalesville Orange Lodge.

He leaves to mourn his loss one sister, Mrs. Hugh Mitchell, of Mabel, and three brothers, Norman of Toledo, Ohio, Archie of Henriburg, Sask., and Donald of Montreal.

National-Duplessis movement, and the outcome of their campaigning cannot be easily foreseen, since there are strong county factions in support of both.

Rising Wheat Prices Give Prospect of Valuable, If not Plentiful Crop ... Gain in Federal Revenues

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, August 11.—To offset some of the gloom caused by the widespread failure of the grain crop in western Canada, and the serious fodder shortage which will compel extraordinary measures to relieve the ranchers and stockmen, there are of late several more hopeful developments becoming evident at the capital.

Rising wheat prices, accompanied by a general improvement in other farm and garden prices, reflecting mainly the drought of North America but in part overseas influences, are gradually restoring a better balance between agricultural and manufacturing prices. This disparity has long been held by economists to be one of the main factors retarding recovery in Canada. The farmer

BRITISH MOTORISTS PRAISE CANADIAN HIGHWAYS

—BUT THEY DIDN'T "DO QUEBEC"

Comments of a group of British motorists in Montreal last week were very favorable to the quality of the main roads in Canada. With the exception of the immediate area of New York city, they preferred this country's first class roads to those of the states through which they passed south of the border. They also found they could make better time on the roads here than in England, where there were more congested areas to reduce the speed.

Many citizens in Montreal were interested in the English cars brought over by these British motorists, who had made the trip from New York and spent a day sight-seeing in Montreal before embarking for the return passage.

ROUGE BRIDGE, WHITE'S BRIDGE AND HIGHWAY WORKS ASSURED

SUBSIDIES MADE IN PRESSURE OF ELECTIONS

An announcement of interest in the Nomination Day speeches was made by the Liberal candidate, Georges Dansereau, M.L.A., who stated that as representative for this county he had definitely procured grants for highway work as promised here in a previous Liberal campaign. This fulfilment of promises follows immediately on an article in The Watchman columns drawing attention to the Taschereau Government's disregard for its commitments; the pledges are being redeemed somewhat late in the day, but are nevertheless appreciated in this county, and credit is due directly to Mr. Dansereau's influence in the matter.

Grants have been made to cover the following constructions in Argenteuil: Bridge over the Rouge River at Calumet, $50,000; White's Bridge, St. Jerusalem $30,000; 17 miles Lachute - Hawkesbury highway, $116,150; Morin - Montfort highway, $25,000.

Mr. Dansereau assures the public, through his manifesto in this issue, that whatever the outcome of the present election, the above mentioned works will be duly carried out.

Congregational Activities at Maple Ave. Baptist

The Senior and Junior Missionary Circles of the Maple Ave Baptist Church held a joint meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 11th., at Mr. and Mrs. Brady's summer home in Dalesville. There were 45 present.

Mrs. J. A. Campbell, president of the Senior Circle, opened the meeting and led in the devotional period. Mr. C. E. Prosser, president of the Junior Circle, then took charge and called on Miss Ruth Campbell, who gave an interesting talk on "Home Missions". Mr. Robt. Kennedy gave an account of his recent trip through Europe; he expressed his appreciation of being able to visit the different countries because it had given him a greater sympathy for the people who come to Canada from other lands. He congratulated the members of the circle on the wonderful work they were doing.

On Sunday evening last nearly every seat in the Maple Ave. Baptist Church was occupied, when the pastor of the church preached a very heart-searching message, his subject being "The

YOUTH BADLY SHAKEN IN FALL FROM TREE

Jos. Dumais, 18-year-old son of Mr. L. E. Dumais of the Main Garage, suffered injuries last evening in falling from a tree near Dalesville. He was awaiting the arrival of friends from Brownsburg and had climbed a tree to view the road for their approaching car. It happened that a branch snapped and he fell 30 feet to the ground. He was brought to Lachute and received medical treatment for facial bruises, a sprained back, arms and leg. Dumais is employed in the accountant's office of the D. C. Company, Brownsburg.

NEIGHBOR TOWN INSURES -- PLAYGROUND MISHAPS

The St. Jerome Town Council decided last week to take out public liability insurance covering possible accidents to children and others using the playgrounds at two different parks in the town limits.

It was also decided to install electric lights in one of these areas, to allow the children to play in the evening until nine o'clock. The council also appointed two guardians.

FINNESSY SENTENCED, BANK ROBBERY CASE

EIGHT YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Thomas Finnessey, charged with hold-up in connection with the bank robbery here on April 14 last, was arraigned before a Justice of the Peace at St. Jerome last week. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for enquete until Wednesday.

The prisoner, who was arrested in Ottawa, was placed in the jail at Bordeaux until the enquete proceedings.

It was stated that Finnessey had admitted he was a member of the Norman "Red" Ryan gang and that Ryan had been a participant in the Lachute robbery.

"Red" Ryan, bandit who was shot to death in Sarnia, Ont., on May 4 last, was one of the four men who entered the Bank of Nova Scotia, held up the manager, and escaped with the sum of $3,567.86 in cash.

Pleading guilty yesterday at trial in the St. Jerome courts, Finnessey was sentenced by Mr. Justice Donat Lalande to eight years in St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary.

World sentiment runs to extremes. Once people almost bowed in dust at the presence of a lord or industrial head. Now many feel that all the world needs is laborers. One view is as lopsided as the other.

Quebec Plowmen Will Compete at Cornwall Meet

Assurance has been given that at least 35 prominent plowmen from this province, as well as several good plow teams, will participate in the International Plowing Match to be held at Cornwall on October 6-9.

Considerable interest is being displayed also by New York State farmers along the international border, for whom special classes have been opened up. In the past, the entrants have been almost exclusively from Ontario, but it is expected that this International Plowing Match will, for the first time, take on a truly international and interprovincial aspect. Commercial concerns and Quebec officials are sponsoring the entries from this province. A team of oxen from Quebec is also promised as a novelty attraction.

Common Sense During Conventions and Elections

CORRESPONDENCE

Lachute, Aug. 7

Editor, Lachute Watchman.

Referring to the letter in your last week's issue, under the non-de-plume of "A Voter" with the caption "Face the Issue in Coming Elections", it would appear that your correspondent used very libelous expressions towards the termed "third Candidate", which he may have considerable difficulty in substantiating.

However, the writer along with "A Voter" finds common ground to admit it regrettable the retirement of the undoubted honourable and brilliant Mr. Lanctot, under whatever circumstances were responsible, but wishes to point out to your correspondent that the ordinary elector's privilege is only to record charges of vilification, etc., by where he casts his vote on the ballot paper, and it would have appeared much more sportsmanlike to have allowed Mr. Lanctot to take the issue of such charges himself, which I am sure the honourable gentleman is most capable of doing, and would have preferred to do so.

I beg to recall to your correspondent last November's campaign, when the County Organization with the same two Candidates seeking nomination at that time referred to the Central Committee at Montreal, rather than listen to the people's choice, and with the further objective of saving the cost of a Convention. The Central Committee at that time recommended Mr. Lanctot, as the standard-bearer for Argenteuil County, and both the local Candidates and the County Organization accepted this nomination.

As your correspondent remarks and explains in detail that Mr. Lanctot at the request of Mr. Duplessis himself, in the interests of the Province as a whole, was asked to retire, and the Central Committee and Mr. Duplessis himself nominated the allegedly "back stabber" third candidate referred to, who incidentally still remains "the Official Candidate."

Mr. Editor, I now request and appeal, in order to show no partiality to any of the candidates during this campaign, that this letter be published, and to the Electors and the County Organization, as in last November to accept this nomination in the same spirit as last year, and the only remaining hope of the writer is that the Electors of Argenteuil will not be prejudiced enough but broad-minded, and put the interests of this Province before those of Argenteuil

County alone, and by their vote demonstrate their common-sense in ridding the Province, as one Candidate remarks, from "a corrupt and corrupting administration."

"IF"

(With humblest apologies to Rudyard Kipling)

If you can keep your head amidst the whirl
Of promises and pledges flying about
If you can bring yourself to wait and listen
And not go crazy at the things they shout.
If you will hear a modern Ethiopia
Is to be built before the snow-flakes fall;
And that life for you will be one song of gladness.
And never once think who's to pay for all?

If you can travel around to all the meetings,
And bump along the washboard on your way;
If you can hear the old bus shake and rattle,
And never think about the tax you pay.
If you can see the bright lights of the city,
And watch the spraying fountains rise and fall,
And then go home and pump your pail of water,
And light the old coal-oil lamp on the wall.

If you can clap and cheer the things you're promised,
And think about the road-work done last year.
And learn of men dismissed after the voting,
And still believe the speaker is sincere.
If you can hear that what you know to be true;
Is not what you have thought or you recall,
And that the things you read of theft and scandal,
Were just imagination after all.

If you can see your savings growing smaller,
And taxes growing bigger day by day,
And never give a thought of how tomorrow,
You are going to make ends meet or pay your way.
If you can feel all these things and keep cheerful;
And then remember there's work to be done;
You'll vote a change in power to save your province,
And what's more—you'll be a man, my son.

Human Leather

During the French Revolution a tannery was established in France for the preparation of "leather" from the skins of victims of the guillotine. There are evidences that this human skin was used rather extensively at the time for book bindings. One such book is said to be on file in the Library of Congress in Washington.

Ten Vital Rules for Safe Driving

Ten simple but vital rules for safer driving are being publicized by P. G. Hoffman, Chairman, Safety Traffic Committee, Automobile Manufacturers' Association, and President of the Studebaker Corporation, South Bend, Indiana. The rules are:

1. Never overtake a car unless you are positive that there is ample space ahead; that means of course, never on a curve or a hill.
2. Slow down when approaching all intersections, including private driveways and thus have your car under complete control and prepared to stop.
3. Slow down when approaching any child or pedestrian, and thus be prepared for any unexpected movement.
4. Keep your brakes and lights, in fact your entire car, in good condition, as safe a condition as when it was new.
5. Stop on red traffic signals and stay stopped until the light has turned green. "Rushing" signals invites disaster.
6. Come to a dead stop at stop signs, because the other fellow has the right of way.
7. If you have been drinking, don't drive. Of course, you believe you are sober, but the evidence is all against "sober" drivers who have been drinking.
8. Slow down to compensate for slippery streets caused by rain, snow or ice.
9. Slow down when driving at night. There is no substitute for daylight when it comes to visibility.
10. Always drive at a speed which will permit you to stop within the assured clear distance ahead. If you don't get in a jam, you won't have to get out of one.

NEGLECT OF CONSTIPATION* IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Delicious Cereal Corrects This Condition in a Natural Way

Immediate attention to constipation* is important for two reasons. It causes discomfort, and may lead to headaches and loss of appetite. It also tends to slow you down.

When elimination continues to be faulty, over a period of time, your general resistance may be lowered. And a weakened body is less able to fight off the infections that abound in every crowded place.

The most common type of constipation is that caused by insufficient "bulk" in meals. In Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you have a delicious source of effective "bulk."

Within the body, the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass and gently cleanses the system. This tempting cereal also furnishes vitamin B and contains iron.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into tempting muffins, breads, etc. How much pleasanter to enjoy this natural laxative food instead of taking pills and drugs.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk"

Montreal Star Subscription Rates Advanced

Owing to a general increase in the cost of the publishing business, including such materials as ink and paper, it was recently necessary to increase the wholesale price of the Montreal Star to dealers. Now, for the same reason, the publishers find it necessary to increase the rates on the Star to subscribers, and subscription prices effective from August 6 are now: $6.00 per year; $3.25 for six months; $1.75 for three months; $1.20 for two months and 60c per month. Subscriptions may be paid or renewed through The Watchman office, agents for the Montreal Star.

National-Duplessis Candidate, J. F. Lavigne, Outlines Party Reforms

TO THE ELECTORS OF THIS COUNTY—

For benefit of the womenfolk in Argenteuil and throughout the Province—I repeat, I confidently hope that their right to vote will be recognized by the next legislature under leadership of Mr. Duplessis, who has already voted for this bill, when it came before the house at the last session. My Liberal opponent in this campaign has voted against the bill, but I pledge the ladies that I will give my support to the measure if I am elected; I believe that the women of Quebec Province are entitled to the same rights as women of all the other provinces in Canada.

I fully endorse the program of my leader, Maurice Duplessis, which program will be explained in detail at our meetings throughout the County. I will only mention here a few reforms that the National party intends to introduce in this Province.

Abolition of the Dillon Law, the worst law that was ever passed by any civilized country in the world. Abolition of the Legislative Council, that old rubber-stamp in use only in Quebec, all other provinces having dispensed with it.

Minimum salary for the labor men—who in some cases are not remunerated in proportion to the services they render their employers.

A Provincial loan for the farmers at lower rates of interest, the Federal loan having proved a failure in this Province.

Lower rates for registration fees and judicial proceedings.

Reform of the Succession Duty Act, so that small estates will be protected.

Six months licenses for cars only used during that period, and part of the license to revert to the municipality where the cars are owned.

Provincial Police to be replaced by the R.C.M.P. which, proverbially, "always gets its man"—a force composed of trained men who never fail in their duty.

Old age pension to be applied in a better way, and a pension to be given to widow mothers in need.

The above reforms are not promises, but they have been brought before the legislature by our party and rejected by our opponents—who are now full of promises since the Taschereau regime was overthrown. The Committee enquiring into public accounts has frightened them, after the restitution of Brother Antoine, who was taking such great interest in the Province, or rather out of it, and after it was proved that Mr. Vautrin, Minister of Colonization, cost this Province $34,000 during a period of 14 months, and other scandals were divulged, which are not one tenth of 1 per cent of what will be brought before the public when Mr. Duplessis continues the enquiry. If Mr. Godbout (the new man—not Mr. Godbout of the Taschereau regime) continues his extravagant promises, it will not surprise us if he assures the electors of Quebec he will pay them $25. per month—as did Mr. Aberhart of Alberta.

As mentioned in my communication of last week, I say again that I did not seek to be your Candidate in this election. I stood in support of Mr. Lanctot, who I thought had the right to be Candidate in the present elections and of whom the electors of this county would have been proud. Mr. Lanctot, moreover, has now expressed warm approval of my candidature.

Once more I ask your support—to help liberate our good province from the Taschereau-Godbout corrupted and corrupting regime. Vote, next Monday, for a Better Province, and a Better County!

Yours very sincerely,
J. F. LAVIGNE.

that the total purchasing power of wheat farmers this year will be the best for several years. It may be recalled that the harvest of 1932 was the third largest in the history of the country, but the average value at the farm was only 35 cents a bushel and the estimate of the value of that wheat crop by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was only $154,800,000.

Even if this year's western wheat crop is only 215 or 225 millions, plus an eastern crop of 15 millions, it is obvious that at prices now current the total value would be somewhat greater than it was in 1932. Indeed, the prospects are now that it will be the most valuable crop since 1930.

STOCKS ON HAND MORE VALUABLE

There is another aspect of the sharp advance in wheat prices which should not be missed. The wheat board has been selling wheat at these prices of a dollar and over: also, it still had, at the end of the crop year (July 31) over a hundred million bushels of wheat to sell. Part of this wheat was, perhaps, carryover from previous years and may by now be standing in the books at a dollar or over. On this there may not be much profit, but at any rate there does not appear to be much likelihood of further loss.

But the most part of the 100 millions still on hand must be what was bought from the western farmer on a basis of 87½ cents a bushel during the last year. It was understood at the time that this was an interim payment, and that if the board made any surplus, it should be distributed pro rata among the farmers who delivered to the board. Of course there are storage and financing charges on this wheat to deduct, but it would not take much further advance in wheat prices to yield a tidy sum to be distributed among the farmers who sold wheat last year—many of whom had no crop this year and will be grateful for a small extra payment on last year's wheat.

GAIN IN REVENUES

Another more optimistic feature in the news is the substantial gain in federal revenues and the slight decrease in expenditures. The improvement in four months is in the neighborhood of 25 million dollars. The employment figures are also a little better, after some months when, allowing for seasonal changes, they made practically no headway. The figures showing persons on relief, aside from the drought-stricken areas of the west, where there will be some increases, are expected to show marked reduction during this summer, as compared with a year ago. Business in general is more buoyant, and would have been much more so had it not been for the harvest collapse in western Canada, and the drought in Ontario, which did serious damage. On the long view the light wheat harvest may prove to have been a good thing, but it is small consolation for the destitute farmers.

Consultations continue regarding the feed situation in the west, and the ranchers begin to grow restive. There are numerous and somewhat involved negotiations to complete before Ottawa will be ready to disclose its policy in full. Meantime some of the ranchers don't know whether to sacrifice their stock now for what they can get, or hang on, confident that the government will come to the rescue in adequate fashion.

Only Few Days To Ottawa Exhibition

Outstanding Educational And Entertainment Factors... Increased Entries In Livestock.

It is now only a matter of days until the Ottawa Exhibition is under way, and this year, more than in the 48 previous years of this exhibition, there is an appeal for all. The week of August 24th. to 29th, undoubtedly will be a memorable week for the Capital.

In theory, livestock and agriculture are the backbone of an exhibition. Those interested will have their wishes gratified this year as the entries show large increases over those of previous years, and the aristocrats in horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, pets and dogs will be seen at their best. Other educational factors include junior agricultural competitions, child welfare demonstrations, domestic science, women's institutes, government, municipal and school displays, and scores of others.

Entertainment is sought by exhibition visitors and this year it will not be difficult to find it. The Goldman band, with that king of bandmasters, which is known to all radio fans, will be heard in two free concerts daily. Music lovers are showing their appreciation by purchasing the coupon tickets which give six admissions for one dollar, as they want to hear all the programs.

Always a Mecca for those seeking diversion, the midway this year will present the latest in rides and shows. Old people become young on the midway, where city and country people meet for real enjoyment.

In front of the grandstand, The Fascinations of 1936 will top the evening program. Ottawa will be at its best in exhibition week and the welcome sign will be out. Those who wish to go home contented should plan to remain in Ottawa for several days.—No longer can one do the fair in a day.

CUTTING COST OF ENTERTAINMENT

Last week in Nova Scotia a new ruling on amusements went into effect. The tax on movies and other forms of fun has been cut in half. That's what came of Premier Macdonald and a representative of the moving picture industry getting their heads together. People who have not yet been put back into regular employment are not so likely to listen to dangerous radicalism if their recreation is less heavily taxed.

STILL TAKING CHANCES

It has been said that men who went over the top during the World War had a better chance of coming out of most battles alive than does a person who starts out for a Sunday afternoon ride. And according to facts revealed by "Sudden Death" and similar literature, their chances for an agonizing death were no greater.

Now we wouldn't try to take the joy out of your Sunday's outing, but it should make the most careful of us Canadians even more careful, to realize that with all their safety publicity motorists across the border still rammed to death 15,390 good Americans during the first 6 months of 1936, and mangled many more.

That is 500 less than during the first six months of 1935 but much still needs to be done to curtail drinking and chance-taking — the two main causes of premature deaths today.

One Official Candidate

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Editor :

The joint meeting which was held in the Auditorium on Monday afternoon cleared up once and for all the question which has existed in the minds of a large number as to who really is the official candidate for the National Union Party in the County of Argenteuil.

It seems strange that there could be two candidates who were both calling themselves official. One could not help but think that there must be one official and the other only calling himself official.

The matter has now been settled. There can be only one official candidate for the one party and there is only one official candidate for the National Union Party in this County. He is the one who has been selected by the delegates acting according to their rights under the constitution of this country. Anyone who has been selected otherwise has no right to call himself official. Neither can anyone in Montreal claim the authority to select our candidate, especially when their choice is as unacceptable as is the case at the present time.

Why is it that a candidate is being "imposed" on this County? Is it because there are some underlying motives of which we know nothing? Moreover, why should any man allow himself to be imposed and continue to impose himself on this county? Must he not be prompted by purely selfish motives? Can it be that such a one has the best interests of the County at heart? Can it be patriotism—the desire to serve, which compels him to continue when it is so apparent he will lose his deposit?

Who knows the answers? I know there are but few who are going to risk losing the votes.

In any event it does not greatly matter. The wisdom of the choice of the delegates was admirably displayed; not only by the most creditable showing on Monday afternoon but also by the support which he is receiving in all parts of the County.

—Supporter.

ful speaker in French, though somewhat weary and hesitant in the English tongue. This was not his first call at Lachute, for he had attended agricultural functions previously in this county. He paid tribute, with his fellow speakers, to the late Georges Dansereau Sr., and to his son and worthy successor, the present representative of Argenteuil at Quebec. The Prime Minister dealt with accusations of the Duplessis group, with the "inquiry" on which they had capitalized, and concluded his outline of program amid a hearty ovation. "It is a program which we will not only put into effect, but one which we will improve and enlarge upon," he said.

Mr. A. H. Tanner, an old county campaigner who had contested for honors here in 1911, was an eloquent exponent of the Liberal ideals, and referred to the Opposition leader in terms of a "patricide, fratricide and homicide of his principles."

The spirit of the meeting was upheld with similar zeal by subsequent speakers grouped with local partisans on the platform. These speakers included Messrs. Philippe Valois, Jean Rochon, Liberal contender for Two Mountains, Prof. Fredk. Hogan, Paul Dalmé, President Young Liberals Assn., Montreal, and L. Lacombe, Federal member for Two Mountains. Hon. F. L. Connors, who was to have taken part in this meeting, filled a radio engagement in political interests at Station CFCF last evening.

It is a matter of regret that no resumé can be given of sentiments conveyed at the National-Duplessis rally, now in progress at the Auditorium. "Face of Christ." This sermon was repeated by request of the congregation. At conclusion of the sermon the Choir rendered a selection entitled "Face to Face."

The church is looking forward to the anniversary services this Sunday, when Rev. Bob Munro, famous evangelist, will be the guest speaker. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend these services.

Many may be interested in the ordination of Elmore H. Young, B. Th., which will take place on Wednesday, 26th. inst., at 3:30 o'clock, and the ordination service at 8 p.m.

To the Electors of Argenteuil

Sirs,

Less than a year ago, I came before you, asking your vote and your support, and you did me the honour of electing me as your member for this County, to represent you in the Legislature at Quebec.

You may ask yourselves, why are we at the present time faced with a provincial election? Those of you who have read the parliamentary debates at Quebec, will remember that the Opposition has, by constant obstruction, refused to allow the budget to be voted, and so the Province has been deprived of the subsidies necessary to carry on the public services of the Province. The Government was thus forced to dissolve the House and call for another election.

Last week I told you I had prepared a vast program for road works, subsidies to colonization and education, and other grants necessary to the development of this county. Said program had been accepted by the Honorable Ministers at Quebec, but could not be carried out due to the Opposition, who refused to vote the necessary credits, as I have already stated.

Nevertheless, I have succeeded in obtaining definitely for Argenteuil County some important road works, and construction of bridges, which have been granted in accordance with the agreement passed between the Hon. Rogers, Minister of Labor in Ottawa, and the Hon. T. D. Bouchard, under the Relief Plan.

These works will be executed, whatever may be the issue of this present election, and I am happy indeed to think that I have carried on a tradition transmitted to me by my father, and have done something which will really benefit the citizens of this county for years to come.

Here is the official list of bridges and highway works which has been decided by the Federal and the Provincial Governments, and which have been sanctioned by the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec.

ARGENTEUIL :

Calumet. Montreal - Hull Route. Bridge on Rouge River $50,000.00

ST. JERUSALEM :

White's Bridge. Lachute - Morin Route. $30,000.00

Lachute - Hawkesbury, 17.1 miles, preliminary works $10,200.00

Foundation, gravel and covering $105,950.00

Connecting road between Montfort and Morin Heights, in Morin and Howard Townships $25,000.00

Once again, therefore, I come before you, and solicit your vote, with the confidence that you will accord me your support—not only for having accomplished my duty towards you to the best of my ability, but also for this important reason, that I am a candidate of the Honourable Adelard Godbout, Prime Minister of this Province, who has prepared one of the most elaborate and concrete programs that has ever been presented to the electors of the Province.

This program answers the needs of all classes of our population. It will benefit the farmer, the working man, the trader and—in a word—all the population of this Province.

The Honourable Mr. Godbout is a son of a farmer, and a farmer himself; he has spent all his energy to help the farmers of this Province. And the corner-stone of his program is assistance to agriculture, and to make the farmers of this province prosperous.

Although you may have heard the Prime Minister himself on the radio, or read his program in the newspapers — allow me to mention the most important features :

FOR FARMERS :

Bonus of $10.00 an acre for clearing land.

Bonus on butter and cheese for export.

Bonus on raising of pigs for export.

Bonus for construction of modern piggeries.

Government to borrow $2,500,00 to spend on drainage of lands.

Bonuses to assist sugar beet industry.

Government assistance for stock breeders.

Creation of stations to supply lime for fertilization purposes.

Assistance to small rural industries.

Backing for small co-operative warehouses for farmers' goods.

New system of rural credits to be established.

COLONIZATION :

Independent organization to control Government plans.

Bonus for clearing land, to be raised.

FOR WORKMEN :

Minimum wage law for all workmen.

Family allowance to maintain widows and orphans.

Grants of 100 acres to all families of 12 children and the complete education of a child of a family of 12 children.

Relief works to replace state charity.

New rural electricity policy to work towards lower rates.

Company law to be enacted to protect savings.

ADMINISTRATIVE CHANGES :

Extra-parliamentary commission to study provincial administration.

Promotion of employees according to merit.

Merging of all statistical services under one branch.

GENERAL :

Law to prevent members of Government from being directors of companies doing business with it.

Co-operation with Federal Government in regard to fisheries.
Extension of Bouchard plan to fisheries industry.

The press at large, not only of this Province but of the whole of Canada, have declared this is the most elaborate and concrete program ever prepared by a Provincial Prime Minister.

I am convinced that the application of this program will bring back prosperity to the farmer, protection to the workman, and the welfare of all classes of society, and will give to the young men of the Province faith in the future.

I will do all in my power to support my leader in the execution of this program, and as your member I will see that the benefits to be derived from the application of this program are shared by the electors of this County.

I am convinced that in supporting the program of the Honourable Mr. Godbout, you will assure the prosperity of our Province and the welfare of this County.

I have the honour to be, sirs,

Your devoted servant,

Georges E. Dansereau

Irish Settlers in St. Columban as Early as 1834

SPICE OF OLD ERIN IN COMMUNITY OF 60-ODD FAMILIES

The little rural community of St. Columban, which in the past has enjoyed wider fame than in the present, was the subject of an interesting sketch in the Montreal Gazette, its brief history being reviewed in connection with the centenary, of the parish, observed just recently. Facts of colorful interest are noted, and The Watchman takes liberty to print herewith portions of the article:

St. Columban — It was in 1834 that settlers first began to come here in 1835, and in 1836 more came and the first base of the parish was laid at the close of the year 1836. In 1837 the parish began to function, a chapel already having been erected.

Situated four miles north of St. Canut, St. Columban was at one time well known throughout the province. It was settled by a group of Irish families which had been aided to the spot by Father Phelan, P.S.S., who later became a bishop. The monuments and stones in the cemetery opposite the church bear a number of old Irish names and the various sections of the parish are designated by such names as Cote St. Patrick, Cote St. Michael, Cote St. Nicholas, Cote St. Paul and Cote St. Andrew.

NOW HAS 66 FAMILIES

The population of St. Columban was never large but of late years it has diminished slightly and today there are 66 families, with a population of 280 persons. The principal industry of the parish is today that of the first days—lumbering. But there are also granite quarries which are being operated. The village consists of the church, the presbytery, the post office, housed in a building 100 years old, a school and the saw mill.

Today there are left only about twenty Irish families and there are an equal number of French-Canadian families. Several other nationalities are represented in the remainder.

Erected in 1861, the church, a wooden structure, stands immediately south of the original chapel of the parish. It has a seating capacity of 300 persons. The present presbytery is the fourth to stand on the same site. The previous one was destroyed by fire in 1914. It is a handsome brick building and contains a small chapel, where, during the winter season, the Blessed Sacrament is kept, by special permission from the Archbishop of Montreal, because the church is too cold for use except on Sundays.

On Sundays, however, Mass is celebrated in the church, which is lighted by old-fashioned oil lamps suspended from the ceiling. The sanctuary has the main altar and primitive ornaments. Near the entrance of the church there is a harmonium. The parish priest acts as choir master, organist, sexton and he even tolls the bell.

Though one hundred years old the parish has shown little advance with the passage of the years. The residents are few and widely separated. One section served by the parish priest is ten miles from the church. In the summer the present pastor uses an automobile, but in winter only a sleigh can be used. Instead of a horse Abbe Presseault, present curé of the parish, has a dog team of two powerful Great Danes, named "Jack" and "Prince". He frequently makes the ten-mile run to the farthest point of his domain to teach children French and English and to give them religious instruction, much like the first settlers in Canada. As in the old days of the colony, the priest is doctor, lawyer, adviser and friend of his flock. He toils with them and personally supervises the repairs of the church, having labored with his parishioners in making the presbytery repairs.

The curé is a man with modern ideas. He desires to celebrate with dignity the hundredth anniversary of the little parish above the shores of the North River, and he is making improvements with the aid of his parishioners and his friends. A gasoline engine aided by batteries, gives electric light and power in the presbytery. There is even an electric washing machine for the convenience of the housekeeper. It is reported that an electric iron is in the course of manufacture, though it is feared it will require too much energy for the plant. But the curé hopes in time to bring things up-to-date.

The former provincial Minister of Roads has visited the parish and promised to try to have a good road built, and it is hoped that in the near future electric wires will bring light power, heat, telephone and radio to the community, which was the first Irish parish in the diocese of Montreal. The records of St. Columban are mainly in English.

Measure Rain-fall by the Yard

Inches are inadequate in measuring recent rainfall in Northern Queensland, Australia. Tully reports seven feet of rain in 10 weeks. Innisfail and Babinda had more than six feet, and they were run close by several other towns. Mackay could report only a yard and a half, but its total rainfall if up to the average, should measure enough to float a battleship.

Northern Ohio Indians

The Eries, for whom the lake was named, were at one time the occupants of northeastern Ohio, as well as of the whole southern shore of Lake Erie from near the site of Buffalo to Sandusky bay. They were kin of the Iroquois, but bitter enemies, and it seems that about 1650 a merciless war broke out between them. The Iroquois were superior in numbers and organization, with the result that they practically exterminated the Erie nation, a few remnants of it being received into other tribes. The lands of the Eries were thus left largely in possession of the Iroquois. They were also occupied to some extent by more westerly nations—Ojibwas, Chippewas and Potawatommies.

Ruins of Pompeii

When the fury of the volcanic conflagration which destroyed Pompeii 79 A. D. was past, the site of the city was a sea of ashes, the upper parts of buildings not destroyed sticking out and serving as a guide-post to those who returned to dig among the ruins. By the third century a number of buildings had been erected to the north of the city. This second Pompeii was, however, abandoned in the eleventh century on account of the frequent earthquakes, eruptions of Vesuvius and incursions of Saracens.

St. Andrews-by-the-Sea

The growing popularity of beautiful St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, N.B., was shown this year by the great increase of visitors during July. Privileged vacationists from all over the world spent happy days at the Bay of Fundy resort golfing, swimming, fishing, sailing, playing tennis, dancing, or just lazing in the sun on the warm sand of Katy's Cove, sections of which are seen above in the top three pictures. Several golf tournaments have been held already on the sporty 18-hole and 9-hole courses connected with the Algonquin Hotel, and famous golfers have pronounced the links in excellent condition for other matches that will be held before the hotel finally closes at the end of the first week in September. The recent visit of President Roosevelt of the United States to the district has attracted great interest to his summer home at Campobello Island. Many American visitors have been at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea for the season. Another popular spot has been the Casino, where dancing and picture shows provide entertainment.

Humble Pie

By Roe Fulkerson

I was brought up in one of those old-fashioned families. I was hand spanked. My mother was well aware that there were two sides to a hair brush, and she used either one on me as the occasion required. She never made me eat spinach, though, because mothers did not know as much about diet those days as they know now.

There was one kind of food, however, that she made me eat. If I did not want to eat it, I was spanked into eating it in generous quantities. It was pie! All my life there had been one kind of pie I hated to eat. My mother felt that it was necessary that every child learn to eat that kind of pie.

The sort of pie my mother spanked me into eating was Humble Pie! To this day I hate the stuff. For me to go to a man and say, "I was wrong", or "I was mistaken", or perhaps "I am sorry", or "Please forgive me", requires that I summon all that moral courage that my mother spanked into me in my younger days. Outside of parsnips and spinach, Humble Pie is the thing I am least fond of.

In my maturity, however, I realize that if a man is going to be a real man, from time to time he must eat a generous slice of Humble Pie if he wants to keep his friends, if he wants to live happily with his own life, and if he wants to keep the respect and the love of his children.

A man can sit and alibi to himself until he works himself up into such a frenzy of indignation and develops in his own mind such a sense of injury that he will go out and hit some man on the nose, divorce a perfectly good wife, or wallop some defenseless child. Nine times out of ten, he does those desperate things because he is trying to hide his feeling of inadequacy.

I know of no diet which produces such instant reaction on the human system as Humble Pie. At no time in my life when I have eaten a slice of it, have I failed to find that the other fellow was more than willing to reach his hand out to me and share the unpalatable food with me. —Kiwanis Magazine.

Golfer (to members ahead): Pardon, would you mind if I played through? I've just heard that my wife has been taken seriously ill.

Leeches Still Used

Brockville Recorder and Times

While today we do not refer to the family physician as a "leech", and have associated the mental image of that remedy with the dead past, it is a fact that leeches are still employed in blood-letting. Canada got over 6,000 of them last year. Some came by parcel post, an Ottawa druggist informs the bureau. The same druggist states that a number of years ago when he used a leech to take the blood out of a beautiful black eye which a customer late one Saturday night and acquired, he had great difficulty in stopping the bleeding, apparently that being one of the troubles about the use of leeches

Novel Train Takes Convention to Their Door

OPEN FOR INSPECTION ONE DAY IN MONTREAL

The Rexall Train, world's first convention train, which will stop at Bonaventure Station all day next Tuesday, is creating interest along the route of its 29,000-mile tour through the United States and Canada. In the first three months of the trip, more than 80,000 inspected the exhibits aboard the 12-car train and its specially built 350-ton streamlined locomotive.

Conceived by the United Drug Company to hold conventions of Rexall agents in 109 cities and towns in every state and in Canada, the train is revolutionizing sales technique by taking the convention to the dealer's doorstep instead of asking him to travel long distances and take off several days from his business. The schedule is so arranged that few Rexall dealers need travel more than 100 miles from their stores.

Designed especially for convention purposes, the train includes four cars for merchandise exhibits, two cars which comfortably accommodate 250 in convention sessions and are used at night for dancing by those attending the convention, a cafeteria-diner serving lunch and dinner for Rexall agents and their guests at the meetings and a lounge car for their convenience. Any from this vicinity who desire to inspect the train next Tuesday at Bonaventure Station, Montreal, may do so by procuring a free pass at Beaton's Drugstore, Lachute.

Camel Has Hard Battle; Can Endure Punishment

The camel's life is about as hard as any animal has to bear. It lives in the desert where blinding dust storms sting its eyes, and where water is scarce. The hot sands grind its feet. It must live days without food. And if nature had not been extraordinarily kind to it, probably not a single camel would be alive to lone over the desert today. But it is marvelously protected against these hardships, according to a writer in the Washington Star.

Its nostrils, for instance, are slanting, and it can close them in sandstorms so that part of the stinging dust is kept out and air still can get in. Its lashes are thick and long and shade its eyes from the blazing sun and glaring sand almost as well as awnings would.

Its feet are padded with callouses against the blistering sand, and so are its elbows and knees and even its chest, so that it may kneel and lie down comfortably.

Its humps are life-giving emporiums where extra fat is stored for use during the harshest days. Humpless camels couldn't live long.

But the camel doesn't starve if his teeth can help him, for they're sharp and pointed and as strong as steel and can chew the toughest shrubbery. And the camel can smell water across vast distances of sand.

Once he reaches an oasis (or pool) he not only slakes his thirst—he fills the pouches of his stomach with water besides. These pouches, which are really a part of his stomach, he may then close off to keep the water in storage against the thirst of another long, dry journey. The camel generally lives for 40 lean years.

Copenhagen Porcelain Is Marked With Wavy Lines

Royal Copenhagen porcelain has a regal background. The first attempts to found a pottery in Copenhagen are shrouded in mystery. Between 1730 and 1756 suitable kaolin was discovered on the Isle of Bornholm and pottery-making was started under the direction of Mehlhorn, a modeller from Meissen. But there is no definite information until about 1760, when a Frenchman named Lournier was making a soft paste at Copenhagen. These efforts were short-lived but may account for the French appearance of the porcelain, says a writer in the Kansas City Star.

In 1775, King Christian VII of Denmark gave the enterprise his support and the government took over the factory which had been re-established by Muller, a chemist who used the hard paste.

The Royal Copenhagen mark is three wavy lines, said to denote the three belts of sea which divide the islands of Zealand and Fueno from Jutland.

Papyrus Said To Be Oldest Bible Manuscript

Four fragments of papyrus roll on which the Book of Deuteronomy is inscribed, said to antedate by 300 years any other Bible manuscript, was found in John Ryland's library in Manchester, C. H. Roberts, Fellow of Oxford University, states in a new book entitled "Two Biblical Papyri."

The roll, which is part of the Greek version of the Old Testament, the Septuagint, was written in the Second Century, B.C., Roberts said.

(According to legend, the original Septuagint, which is still used by the Greek Church, was written in Alexandria in 72 days by 72 Jews at the command of the Egyptian ruler, Ptolemy, some time between 280 and 130 B.C.)

Roberts said the Papyri, part of a wrapping used to surround mummies which the library bought in 1917 in a large bundle of miscellaneous Papyri, bore no indications of its origin.

Service at Louisa Beach on Sunday last was well attended. All residents and visitors at the Lake are invited to be present on Sunday next when Rev. D. H. McVicar of Buckingham will give the address. The meeting will be at Mr. R. Hamilton's summer home. Collections are being donated to the Children's Memorial Hospital, or if sufficiently large one half will be given toward the Fresh Air Fund.

Concert at Cushing

(By Our Cushing W. Correspondent)

A large and appreciative audience assembled in the Stone Hall at Cushing on Friday evening last and were treated to a delightful concert put on by Mr. Leonard Young and a party of artists from New York. The performers were Mr. and Mrs. Robbins, the former a very fine baritone, while Mrs. Robbins delighted the audience with her graceful and artistic dancing. A dramatic historical sketch arranged by Mr. Young and in which he and Miss Edith Hallam participated, was another feature of the program. There were also a couple of songs by Mr. Norman Attenbrant, which were much enjoyed, and one of Anstice's "Mountaineers" who was present contributed to the program, to the huge delight of the crowd. At the close of the concert Mr. Irving Fuller moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Young and his friends, which was heartily approved. The proceeds, which will go to St. Mungo's Ladies' Aid, amounted to almost $60.00.

IN MEMORIAM

GRAVES—In loving memory of mother, who died Aug. 14, 1934.

One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled,
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled.
Our Father in his wisdom called
The boon His love had given;
And though on earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in heaven.

Inserted by the Graves family.

COUSINS—In loving memory of my dear husband, Hugh Cousins, who was called home August 14, 1935.

No one knows the loneliness,
The want, the emptiness of life and care
But those who have lost a loved one
And have been called this cross to bear.

Ever remembered by his loving wife.

GRAVES—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. John Graves, who passed away August 14, 1934.

Two years have passed, how long it seems,
But in my heart her face still beams;
For I, who loved her, only know
How much I lost two years ago.

Ever remembered by her son Herbert.

ST. ANDREWS-by-the-GEE!

—Being a story of vicissitudes and perils which befell a golfing pilgrim on a certain day in May at St. Andrews East, Que.

—From August issue, "The Montrealer and Canadian Passing Show"

If any hardy golfer ever starts to tell you his favorite golfing story by saying—"Did you ever play over . . .", just choke him off. He has never played G-O-L-F until he plays St. Andrews-by-the-Gee! (The official name is St. Andrews—the descriptive phrase is the author's—the mildest, by the way, which he used on that memorable day in May, 1936).

Man! That's a golf course—right from the first tee to the ninth green, the Pre-Cambrian Ice Shove—the Sahara Desert—the Great Lakes—the Grand Canyon—and the other assorted hazards, roughs, swales, mountains, forests, etc., combine to break your spirit, ruffle your serenity and make your life, for the moment, barren, desolate and forlorn.

Think not that your second nine will be better than your first—no, no, gentle reader, for there are two distinct sets of hazards—one for those who have never played at St. Andrews and the other for those who have played it and who think (perish the thought) that they have discovered and conquered them all in the first time around.

Take for instance the first hole. It looks quite simple—one tees off well within range of the kibitzers on the club house verandah—the land gently slopes away from you and, barring a slice or a hook, no serious trouble develops. But the second shot—"Aye! (as another great writer said) there's the rub! From a couple of hundred yards out one gets the same feeling as when attempting to throw a bean through the neck of a beer bottle at fifteen paces. A spiteful tongue of forest land extends for 75 or 80 yards out from the green on the left and on the right extends the bush which you have been trying to get out of all the way down the fairway—it's sure narrow—and only a sharp-shooter can possibly hope to negotiate it successfully (Ye Pilgrim was not successful).

A short turn through the trees and we came abruptly on to a slightly elevated plateau looking over a gently rippled lake.

"What beauty—what peace—what limpid, pure depths—mayhap dryads dwell therein"—so spoke the lover of nature—and then the golfer in me took control. "Fool—you have to shoot over that lake"—the farther shore faded a hundred yards into the landscape—the ripples became positive leers on the face of St. Andrews' Neptune—the limpid depths held menaces unspeakable—I could just feel the golf balls in my bag jumping and struggling to get into the water.

But Lady Luck or Old Man Habit came to the Pilgrim's aid, and his tee-shot soared majestically over the lake and far up the hillside beyond, toward the green. Not so his companion, however, the fascination of those smiling waters was just too much for him. While it is only about 135 to 140 yards from tee to farther shore—and this friend had driven 210 yards from No. 1 tee—six goodly Crowflites described, forested acers and disappeared beneath the wavelets. (He finally played from the grass on the far shore, feeling that $4.00 worth of golf balls was enough for this one hole.)

Then came the Desert. Even after weeks of recuperation the memory of struggling through the sand dunes is still vivid in the mind. That sand is peculiar to St. Andrews. It is magnetized—for a golf ball, anyhow. Five precious strokes were wasted, breath and temper were exhausted, when Ye Pilgrim finally emerged in the general vicinity of the green—three putted, from sheer exhaustion and carefully noted a "10" on the card.

Other holes there were, with their petty annoyances—but none to compare with the first four or five, several of which have been described for your edification. If you ever feel in a par-busting frame of mind—go to St. Andrews—no professional or amateur has ever broken par there so far and, who knows, you may be the lucky one. Ye Pilgrim ventures the assertion, however, that your haughty spirit will be chastened by a baptism of actual fire and brimstone (mostly applied by your own language) and that, whatever par-shattering ambitions you may have had, they will be evaporated before the sixth hole has been played.

Some day when the fires of youth have started to burn lower and self-control has become the predominating characteristic of his personality, Ye Pilgrim will again journey to St. Andrews and play another 18 holes—maybe if one didn't lose one's temper they'd get a fairly good score. In any event there is a ranking 114 to be wiped out, but a wiser, more thoroughly seasoned (mostly peppered) golfer has had a real experience. Fifty—yea, a hundred miles, is not too far to travel to play over this delightful, beautiful but extremely vicious golf-course—St. Andrews, by-the-GEE!

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

In recognition of the value of Scout training to the boys of the community, a grant of $25 was made to the Trail-Rossland Boy Scouts Association.

SCOUTS RESTORE AN HISTORIC BRIDGE

An old pack-horse bridge at Thornthwaite, in the deep and lonely valley of Nidderdale, Yorkshire, has been repaired by the Christchurch School Boy Scouts, Harrogate. The Scouts undertook the restoration at the request of the Yorkshire Archaeological Society.

O.A.C. PRESIDENT LIKES BOY SCOUTS

"A good Scout is a good Canadian. It is my experience that since Scouts and Cubs have been established on this side of the water there is a different attitude on the part of boys. No one thing does more to put growing boys on the right path than the Scout Movement."—Dr. G. I. Christie, President of Ontario Agricultural College.

EDINBURGH RAISING $50,000 FOR SCOUT HALLS

An appeal for £10,000 to set up Boy Scout centres in non-Scouting areas of Greater Edinburgh has met with such success that the first new hall, to cost £1,000, is now being built at Stenhouse. It will accommodate 250 boys, and will be used by different Scout troops on different days. Similar halls will be erected at Piton and Craigmillar.

ENGLISH SCOUTS MAY NOW BE REAL BACKWOODSMEN

A woodland estate of 240 acres, Great Tower Plantation, on Lake Windermere, in England's beautiful Lake District, has been presented to the Boy Scouts Association by Mr. W. B. Wakefield. The gift realizes an old dream of English Scout leaders, of some day acquiring an extensive wooded camp site where English Scouts could really practise backwoodsmanship. The donor is a member of the National Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A., and one of Scouting's earliest supporters. He assisted at the first Scout camp at Northumberland in 1908, and held the first hiking and training camp for Scouts. It is interesting that this hike covered much of the country now included in Great Tower Plantation.

BOB SAVES THE BIRDS

A tom-tit and a chick-a-dee both built a nest close by. Just where the leafy elm trees are reaching towards the sky.

So now I have to hang around to keep him scared away. That these wee tiny baby birds may grow and fly away.

CORDELIA'S ADVENTURES IN JETTYLAND (Continued)

All the little mice started laughing when Cordelia asked what their home was made of. Such funny, creaking laughter. Just like the noise made by tiny swallows in their nests under the eaves of the stable at Grandma's farm. Exasperated at their continued laughter, Cordelia said, "I think you are very rude to laugh, when I am a guest."—Cordelia was not keen about being laughed at.

"You are right, Cordelia. We have no business to laugh," said Flip, "but it is funny that you do not recognize your own pink sweater!"

"My own pink sweater?" gasped Cordelia. "How in the world did it come down here? I thought that it was safe in my clothes cupboard."

"You thought it was safe in your clothes cupboard did you?" said Clip, making an attempt to imitate Cordelia's voice, which set the other young mice chuckling again. "Well it was not, you left it on the blanket box in the attic, the day you were up there trying on your grandmother's dresses. It fell down behind it, and, well, after that 'it was just too tempting', as Uncle Grey Toes always says. We needed a warm home, so Mother and Daddie and all the relations went up, cut it in pieces and carried it down here." "Little Snip helped too," said Flip, "He was smarter than any of us at cutting it."

Cordelia was astonished, and not a little frightened. She was not supposed to take her grandmother's dresses out of the box and try them on, and she did not think anyone knew that she had been disobedient. "How do you know I was trying on my grandmother's dresses?" she demanded, her voice echoing back to her from a distant corner of the gloom, as she turned to face Clip, who had moved slightly and was peering ahead, as though expecting to see

Alaska's Lottery Known as "Nenana Ice Pool"

Just as other countries have their favorite lotteries, and sweepstakes, so Alaska comes in for its sweepstakes known as the "Nenana Ice Pool." One puts down a dollar bet on a freak of Nature, says the Washington Star.

You set the date when you estimate the ice will break and flow down the Tanana river, designating the hour and the minute. For example: You select April 1 (though 'tis no April fool's stunt), designating the hour and the minute. This is considered your booking for your chance in lottery. Here's the way the winner is determined:

A crowbar is set in the ice, a wire runs across the frozen river six feet below the ice stake. This wire is connected to a clock on the shore. When the ice breaks and moves downstream contact is made, which stops the clock. There is a thunderous roar of breaking ice, flowing down the river. This tremendous noise keeps up for many days as the ice breaks up and flows with the current. Very often the ice jams cause floods. This great tide feeds the Yukon river in Alaska. It is a very spectacular sight, especially at early dawn. It has been found necessary at times to dynamite the ice, which accumulates in great boulders, to prevent overstacking of the river banks.

The "ice stake" is awarded to the person whose lottery ticket registers nearest the automatic stopping of the clock-time. There is no graft and very little overhead expense, and the full sum, with exception of minor expenses, goes to the lucky winner. At "Nenana Ice Pool," held in Fairbanks, the winner received over $80,000. The whole performance is automatically operated and no one can possibly be cheated.

Successful bridge is the triumph of mind over chatter.

UNRECOGNIZED TALENTS

I have just finished reading 'The Life and Letters of John Galsworthy'. It tells of his school-going days, and one monthly report said that he was doing very well generally but was very poor in English Composition. The next non-fiction book I read was 'Daniel Frohman Presents' and in it he says that when Jenny Lind was very young she went to a teacher in Paris who listened to her sing and told her that she had no voice and had better go home again. Latent talents are too often unrecognized for lack of encouragement. Fortunately sometimes they are too strong to be drowned.

A SYMPATHETIC UNDERSTANDING

Most of us who live in Ontario have little knowledge of drought, but after this we will have a more sympathetic understanding of the trials of our Western friends. Our raspberry bushes were just loaded up, and died too. The apples under the red astrachan tree literally baked. Rose buds came into full bloom over night or dried up without maturing. We should be very thankful, that these extremes of weather so seldom come.

THE GYPSY TRAIL

Each summer sees more people taking motor trips. Maybe it is the gypsy in us but we are turning into a nation of wanderers. Some of us like to travel in state and others like to camp on the way. Then there are others who like to get some of their own meals. We are a family who like to do all three depending on the time, the occasion and the mood. Experience teaches you to do things the way you want them. Most people who camp carry the convenient gasoline stove. If one is trying to make distance, too much time cannot be spent in preparation of meals and it is a convenience to make a hot drink and store in the vacuum bottles for the next meal and then the stove does not have to be lighted. Trying to carry the minimum of utensils I have found that the saucepan can be used as a teakettle very handily. Then I make tea in the vacuum bottles by using tea-balls. The cork will hold the string of the tea-ball in place and prevent it from falling in, then when the tea has steeped long enough, out come the balls and there is no muss to clean up and no extra dishes to carry. A supply of paper bags into which you can slip the frying pan or any other utensil, keeps things clean and easy to handle. Cheesecloth makes the handiest of dish cloths and wash cloths, as it dries out in the twinkling of an eye. It is fun buying food along the way as every town has something a bit different, but after all, if there is anything that smells and tastes better than bacon and coffee cooked in the open air I have yet to find it. Campers are born and not made. You either like it or you don't. Those of you who do not like it miss a lot of fun.

CREAMY RICE PUDDING

If you are an addict to a vegetable dinner, as I hope you are, you will need to serve a substantial pudding to balance your menu. A good rice pudding is a suitable one as it adds proteid in the milk and eggs. There are a good number of people who do not like rice puddings and judging from some of the ones I have tasted, I do not wonder. Try this one on your family. It has been evolved over many years of trial and error and it just suits us. Put a cup of water in the top of a double boiler and when it boils add 1/2 cup of rice, boil until the water is absorbed stirring frequently. A fork is the best to stir rice as it does not break the rice grains. Add 2 cups of milk and 1/2 cup sugar and bring to a boil. Put over boiling water in the bottom of your double boiler and cook for 1 1/2 hours, stirring occasionally. If you like raisins add them now.

If they are cooked with the rice they will give you brownish spots and your rice will not be a nice creamy colour. Beat 2 eggs slightly and pour into this a part of your pudding, stirring steadily. Turn this back into the pudding and stir gently with a fork to let the egg mixture run through the pudding. Cook just until the egg sets, stirring gently once or twice being careful not to break up the custard unduly. It just takes a minute or so to set the egg and if you cook it longer the custard will curdle and you will ruin the appearance of your pudding. Turn out immediately into a serving dish and cool. Serve with cream. This takes less working time to make than any pudding I make.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

2 cups flour
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons melted butter
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup blueberries
1 egg
Sift dry ingredients and add blueberries. Add gradually milk, beaten egg and butter. Stir just enough to mix the ingredients, as too much stirring makes holes in the finished muffin. Bake in greased muffin tins in a hot oven of 400 degrees for 25 minutes.

City Supplies Washer-Women

The City of Johannesburg, South Africa, has announced that it can supply native washer-women and janitresses to those who seek such help. At its native Women's Hostel 120 native women now live and earn their living by doing laundry work or going to homes to do washing or housecleaning. To help them in their laundry enterprise the city has installed electric irons and a telephone.

Successful Gatherings in Lakefield and Parish

Rev. W. W. Davis, B.D., of Ottawa, preaching at a special service in Holy Trinity at Lakefield Sunday evening, urged the congregation to learn to see God in everything, particularly in Nature. Outlining the story of Elijah and Elisha, he compared the task of ancient worshippers to the worshippers of today. At the regular Lakefield Sunday morning service the Incumbent preached on the Epistle for the day.

On Sunday afternoon several members of the Choir of Lakefield Church attended the Orange Service at St. Aidan's Church, Louisa. Rev. C. W. P. Baugh outlined the earlier stages of Protestantism and dealt with the life and times of William of Orange. The members of the Lodge assembled and returned to the lodge room after the service, where they were addressed by Master Brady and Mr. McNeil.

The Women's Auxiliary of Trinity Church, Lakefield, held a successful bazaar in the Gibb Parish Hall on Saturday last. The weather was ideal for the occasion, and the bazaar was well attended. The "Fancy and Useful" table was in charge of Mrs. T. McCambly, President, and Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh; Home Cooking and Vegetables, Mrs. G. L. Rogers, Mrs. B. Williamson, Mrs. A. Trickey; Novelty table, Miss Amy Kyle; Flowers and Candy, Mrs. Shearnsmith, and Miss Grace Mount. The tea tables were in charge of Mrs. G. Peet and Mrs. L. Dawson, assisted by the Misses Myrtle Evans, Mary and Beatrice Baugh. The Fish Pond was in charge of Mrs. R. Andrews; and Refreshment Booth, Mr. H. G. Baugh.

"Mummy", asked the little boy, "how long is it since daddy died?"
"He didn't die, darling", his mother sighed, "he joined a golf club."

Canada's Oldest Woman Morse Operator, 93

The recent celebration of the 100th. anniversary of the completion of the experiments of Samuel F. B. Morse in perfecting the electric telegram, which was observed by old-time Canadian National Telegraph operators in conjunction with Canada's railway centenary, has developed that probably Prince Edward Island has the honor of having the oldest living woman Morse operator in Canada, Miss Penelope Howatt, of Crapaud, age 93. Miss Howatt was operator in charge of the telegraph office at Crapaud from March, 1876, until May, 1915.

Chinese and Japanese Noted for Small Hands

The average Chinese and Japanese man or woman wears a smaller glove than the average European or American. In China, the principal demand for gloves is among the foreign population and this trade, which is for the better quality article, is catered to mainly by Great Britain, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. France, along with other continental countries, shares in supplying the limited demand for high-grade kid and suede ladies' gloves. About 70 per cent of the total imports are absorbed by Shanghai. Japan supplies practically the whole of the native demand which is of an inferior quality.

Like Beings From Another World

When the Nascope, supply ship of the Hudson Bay company, touches points in the northern Arctic with civilization's knick knacks (from bathtubs to moving pictures) it must seem to them like a visit from another world. On last year's trip moving pictures were taken of some of the Esquimos. They were then allowed to see themselves disappearing on the screen.

The ship carries two main cargoes, "Supplies and good cheer." Craig Harbor, 800 miles this side of the North Pole, is the last stop this year. Mission stations, schools, and Canadian Mounted Police headquarters will be touched en route.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 16, is "Soul."

The Golden Text is:—"Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; Who healeth all thy diseases." (Psalms 103: 2, 3).

"Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength." (Isaiah 40: 28, 29).

"There is neither growth, maturity, nor decay in Soul. These changes are the mutations of material sense, the carrying clouds of mortal belief, which hide the truth of being." (Science and Health, pages 310, 311).

Saint Joan of Arc Was a Gentle Peasant Girl

Saint Joan of Arc, a gentle peasant girl who led the soldiers of France to victory at the siege of Orleans, was born in the village of Domremy, in 1412. While her brothers and sisters were sent out into the fields with their father, her mother kept Joan at home for the spinning and weaving. Thus she grew to strong and comely girlhood, known throughout the village for her gentleness, charity and piety, notes a writer in the Philadelphia Record.

Driven by visions (revelations from Heaven she believed them to be) to leave her home and make her way to the court of the uncrowned king of France, she prevailed upon him to accept her as the rescuer of his country. Clad in full armor, with sword and banner, Joan of Arc was mounted on a charger at the head of the French troops. Fired by her courage, they marched on Orleans, defeated the English and then marched on to Rheims.

There, with Joan at his side, Charles VII. was crowned king of France in the cathedral which was damaged almost 500 years later by the Germans in the World war. Joan's success was short lived, for in May, 1430, she was captured by the English, imprisoned for a year and on May 30, 1431, she was burned at the stake in the market place at Rouen. Twenty-five years later she was found innocent of the charges against her, and in 1919 she was declared a saint.

THE "GENTLER" SEX

A woman in charge of a certain Spanish sector is said to have ordered rebel prisoners shot. "They ate too much." Probably just a misunderstanding of the old statement "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach." She thought, "The way around a prisoner's stomach is through the heart."

The hands that are sticky with jam today may wield the artist's brush tomorrow.

Mystery Bird

"Townsend's Bunting," a bird in the Smithsonian Institution collection, is one of the greatest mysteries of ornithology. It was found in Pennsylvania in 1833 by a man named Townsend. No bird like it had ever been seen before and a second one has never been found. It is believed to have been a hybrid, the result of some strange, never-repeated mating.—R. J. Newman, Philadelphia, Pa., in Collier's Weekly.

Greatest Drought

Probably the greatest drought ever experienced in the history of the Southwest extended for 23 years, between 1276 and 1299. It was associated with extensive disturbances. Then the rains came again and history continued with minor ups and downs for 300 years. Then came another terrible drought, between 1573 and 1593. Another 300 years before the devastating drought came again, between 1894 and 1904.

"Today", said Daddy, "I'm going to Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Halifax, Saint John, and New York, but I'll be back in time to put you to bed tonight." "Oh-h", replied sonny, nonplussed for the moment — then, remembering his own Long Distance talk with Granny, 300 miles away—"I know—you're going by telephone!" Which is just what Daddy intends. ARGENTEUIL CONTINUES UNDER LIBERAL STANDARD

Georges Dansereau Honored Again With Representation of County

SPLIT VOTE SAVES THE CONSTITUENCY FOR LIBERALS

If party votes indicate the public sentiment, the anti-Government fever which swept this province last Monday also found voice in the local polls—for the Union-National vote in Argenteuil exceeded the Liberal count by upwards of 300 ballots. Not a complete landslide, nor by any means an expression of straight party leanings—this Union-National predominance is also non-effective, for the vote was split between the two Union candidates, J. F. Lavigne and Albani Lamarche, leaving Mr. Dansereau, the Liberal contender, far ahead with a 600-odd majority.

Argenteuil therefore remains Liberal, but the situation shows clearly that, with a united flank in keeping with its name, the Unionist movement here would have taxed every resource of Liberalism, and even so, would probably have carried a victory to augment the Duplessis surge at Quebec.

The standing, according to figures returned by poll officers to Mr. G. Valois, D.R.O., are—Dansereau, Lib., 2179; Lavigne, U. N., 1564; Lamarche, U. N., 942. Majority for Dansereau over Lavigne, 615. Majority for Lavigne over Lamarche, 622. To Mr. Dansereau this newspaper joins in extending congratulations. Partisanship aside, his triumph meets with general satisfaction throughout the county, for his personality and integrity have won him friends among all parties, and his efforts on behalf of this territory have not proved unavailing.

Analysis of County Returns

The most notable trends were evident in the Lachute polls, from which results were first issued. With their usual inclination to Conservatism, the Lachute booths registered a heavy count for Mr. Lavigne, giving him a 163-vote majority in town. Things looked prosperous for the Lavigne supporters until returns drifted in from the outside polls, which soon showed the sentiment was not general throughout the division.

Fashionable Marriage of Young County Residents

KEAY — MacLEOD

The marriage of Miss Sadye Ellen MacLeod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. MacLeod, of Pointe-au-Chene, Que., and Mr. Leslie Keay, of Kilmar, Que., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keay, of Wolverhampton, England, was solemnized in the United Church here last Saturday afternoon, the Rev. S. J. Pike of Brownsburg officiating. Ferns, gladioli, autumn flowers and clarkia in pastel shades were used in the church decorations. Miss Ruth Todd, organist of the church, played the wedding music. Miss Eunice MacLeod, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. Victor McKale, was the bridegroom's best man, while Mr. Richard Sancton and Mr. Frederick Handy, both of Montreal, acted as ushers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory satin, made in long fitted lines, with high neck and large pleated sleeves. She wore a small toque of matching material with nose veil, and satin shoes, and carried a bouquet of GEORGES E. DANSEREAU, member of respected Grenville family and son of the late Geo. Dansereau Sr., former M.L.A. for the County—who will continue as Liberal representative for this constituency in the Quebec House. Mr. Dansereau polled a majority of over 600 votes in Monday's elections.

Yet with 13 polls having reported, Mr. Lavigne still held a slim majority. With 24 polls heard from, however, Mr. Dansereau had pulled ahead with a 300 lead. In Brownsburg North, Mr. Dansereau and Mr. Lamarche held an equal number of votes, with Mr. Lavigne in the minority. Otherwise the only polls voting in favor of Mr. Lamarche were St. Philippe with a 24 majority and Ogdensburg with 9. In St. Adolphe also Mr. Lamarche was only one vote behind the Liberal candidate. Mr. Lavigne's biggest majorities outside of Lachute were polled in Louisa, Mille Isles and Lakefield.

OFFICIAL U. N. CANDIDATE LOSES DEPOSIT

According to the Quebec Election Act and amendments as at 1932, the minority candidate is required to secure 50 percent of the number of votes polled by the winner. This clause prevails apparently even though the contest is three-sided, and Mr. Lamarche, who was termed official Duplessis candidate, consequently loses his deposit.

Talisman roses and maiden-hair fern. The maid of honor was wearing mauve chiffon made in long fitted lines with high neck and long loose sleeves, with gloves and crepe shoes of the same shade. She carried pastel shaded sweet peas and baby's breath. Mrs. MacLeod, the bride's mother, wore a black printed chiffon gown with black accessories, and a corsage bouquet of red roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at "Cosy Inn." Afterwards Mr. and Mrs. Keay left for Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other points, the bride wearing for travelling a brown and fawn plaid suit with brown hat and accessories to match. They will reside at Kilmar. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Handy, of Westmount, Mrs. W. J. Falle, of Cartierville, and Mrs. P. Broden and daughter, Gertrude, of Montreal.

The financial statement of Lachute Protestant High School Commission, for year ending June 1936, has been received from Dr. G. A. Clunie for publication. Owing to limited space in this issue, however, the report will be held over for next week's Watchman.

BRITISH SCOUTS CAMP AT DALESVILLE

A party of British Boy Scouts from the Leeds Modern School, England, and in charge of Dr. Norton, were camping over the week-end on Mr. J. A. Campbell's premises in Dalesville.

DUPLESSIS GAVE FAIR ELECTION FORECAST

Maurice Duplessis, K.C., Quebec's next premier, was the one man whose forecast of Monday's election was more or less accurate.

Last Thursday night, at Hull, the leader of the National Union announced to the crowd that not only would his men sweep the Liberals out of power, but that the Godbout men would not elect more than fifteen M.L.A.'s to the next Legislative Assembly. —He knew whereof he spoke.

KIDDIES' BAZAAR HELD FOR HOSPITAL CHARITY

A Children's Charity Bazaar was held last Saturday at the cottage of Mrs. H. T. Gilles, Lake Louisa. Each year the children living on this section of the lake, through their own efforts, have been able to make a sum of money for the less fortunate kiddies in the Children's Memorial Hospital. This year the sum of $17.35 was raised. Besides the sale of useful articles one of the features of the afternoon was a miniature "Zoo", composed of many familiar "wild" animals commonly seen at the lake. Those who took part in the bazaar were as follows: Patsy, Henry and Ann

MOTORCYCLISTS WILL RUN TRIALS HERE

A new course has been mapped for the motorcycle trials, which arouse considerable interest in town and will be held here again over the week-end. The itinerary is usually a circuitous route covering Dunany, Louisa, Dalesville and returning by Brownsburg to Lachute. The new course selected by the Sports Motorcycle Club will not be announced to the competitors until immediately before the race.

BRITISH MOTORISTS AT SEIGNIORY CLUB

Bringing greetings from His Majesty the King, to his Canadian Dominion, 66 motorists from England, dubbed by him "Empire Ambassadors", arrived in Canada last week, being the second British motor rally to visit this country during the present month.

The 23 cars, having travelled the highway from Quebec, pulled up at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, and were at once met by a crowd of curious spectators.

On Saturday they proceeded on their tour, driving out to the Seignior Club at Montebello, where they were guests at lunch and later they continued to Ottawa for dinner at the Chateau Laurier as the guests of the Ontario Motor Club.

The tour ends in New York whence they return to England on the liner Queen Mary, embarking on Aug. 26th.

ACCIDENT AT BROWNSBURG ELECTION MEETING

Brownsburg — During the course of an election meeting here in support of Mr. Lamarche a regrettable accident occurred, which caused serious injury to at least two people, while a few others escaped with minor abrasions. The stairs leading to Mr. Donaldson's hall rested on two beams supporting a small landing. A few people standing on the landing caused both beams to give way, precipitating them into the roadway. Mr. Bert Steere apparently fell through a portion of the stairway breaking some of his ankle bones, and necessitating his removal to hospital. Mrs. L. Carriere, who was also standing on the landing fractured both bones of the leg. Both patients are reported progressing slowly.

Subsequent examination showed the beams to be defective where they joined the wall of the main building.

$40,000 FIRE DESTROYS ST. JOVITE SAWMILL

With a loss estimated at $40,000, not covered by insurance, the sawmill, factory, wood yard and garage owned by G. Vanchestein at St. Jovite was destroyed by fire at an early hour Tuesday morning.

When the flames were discovered they had already obtained good hold in the mill adjoining the sash and door factory and were spreading to the garage.

Volunteer firemen fought the flames, concentrating their efforts on preventing further spread of the fire. But the blaze spread to lumber in the yard and this was destroyed also. There was danger for a time of other buildings being ignited, but firemen managed to confine the outbreak to the mill property.

WELL KNOWN AGRICULTURIST SUCCEUMS TO BRIEF ILLNESS

SUDDEN PASSING OF WILLIAM A. BRADLEY

The rather sudden passing of Mr. William Andrew Bradley, which occurred early this morning (Thursday) at his home in River Rouge, gives occasion to widespread regret, for Mr. Bradley was highly respected throughout this district, where he was born and raised to a life of constructive citizenship. Mr. Bradley succumbed to a brief illness of only five days' duration, in his 58th year; he had previously enjoyed good health.

He was born at Lachute Road, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley. Taking active part in community enterprises, he was for many years a director of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society and an elder of the Presbyterian Church at St. Andrews.

Mr. Bradley was married to Miss Gertrude Walker of Lachute, who survives to mourn her deep loss, together with two sisters of the deceased—Mrs. Henry McQuat, St. Andrews, and Mrs. Percy Burwash, River Rouge; also two brothers Robert and John Bradley of Lachute Road.

The funeral ceremonies will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. standard time, from the Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews.

FORMER CHIEF JUSTICE WAS WIDELY RESPECTED

HON. J. A. C. ETHIER NATIVE OF ST. BENOIT

Hon. J. A. C. Ethier, former Chief Justice of the Montreal Circuit Court, and a former representative for Two Mountains in the House of Commons for more than 25 years, died last Friday in Montreal. He was in his 69th year.

The former Chief Justice had a distinguished career at the Bar, in politics and in commerce. He was appointed to the bench in 1925, retiring in 1934 due to ill health.

He was born in St. Benoit, Que., in 1868, and educated at the Montreal College. Called to the Quebec Bar in 1895, he established his practice in Ste. Scholastique, serving as mayor of the town for 10 years, and during his legal career he acted for many years as deputy Prothonotary in the judicial district of Terrebonne.

In 1896 he represented the Two Mountains division in the House of Commons and was re-elected in 1900, 1904, 1911, 1914 and 1917. He was a Liberal in politics.

The deceased was also the founder of the Ste. Scholastique Fire Insurance Company, serving as secretary of the company for 25 years.

The funeral service was held Monday in St. Clement Church, Viauville. The body was later brought to Ste. Scholastique for burial.

Many Appointments to be Made at Ottawa... Drought and Unemployment Relief... The Legality of Alberta Scrip.

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, August 18th.—The capital is waking up from the lethargy and inactivity which usually descend upon it with the hot weather; and with the return from Europe of several ministers a good deal will be done in the next four or five weeks, before Premier Mackenzie King sets off to represent Canada at Geneva. About forty appointments are reported to be pending, including a Board of Governors, a General Manager and an assistant for the new Broadcasting Corporation, several new directors of the Bank of Canada, a new directorate for the Canadian National Railways. There are the government departments yet to amalgamate, Railways and Canals being joined with Marine, plus the civil aviation branch of National Defence; and Hon. T. A. Crerar's miscellany, including Interior, Immigration, Indian Affairs, Northwest Territories and Yukon and Mines.

The first thing to be dealt with is the fodder problem in western Canada—which is urgent. Ranchers don't know whether to sacrifice their cattle now, thin and fat alike, or hang on and take a chance that fodder will be so costly that it will ruin them. They want an immediate announcement of policy from the government. Continuous and extensive negotiations have been going on, with the railways, the packers and others in the picture, as well as the federal and provincial governments. The railways are Added to other record-breaking distinctions, the huge "company" of 1,000 boys and leaders who put on the play "Boy Scout", one of the last London theatrical season's biggest successes, was notable for its discipline. The boy actors were handled as a gigantic "Scout Troop", with Ralph Reader, the producer-director, in the role of Scoutmaster. "Boy Scout" played to packed houses on four successive nights at Albert Hall, one of London's largest auditoriums.

W. I. Branches Report Month's Activities

Brownsburg and Frontier held a very interesting joint social and picnic meeting in the Stone Hall, Cushing, with large number of both Branches present. The roll calls were—A Joke, and "Where I met my husband". Races, contests, etc., were enjoyed and prizes given. Special notice was given to the grandmothers, as this was

GOLD ON A BROWNSBURG FARM

A SHORT STORY, specially written for readers of The Watchman
(In two instalments)

—By A. M. CAMPBELL*

How capricious Fortune saw fit to bestow one of her most gracious smiles upon a tramp, a mere tramp wending his way over highway and byway seeking for employment, seemed just another of her coy and wayward dispensations.

True, Ben Yates was a tramp of a deserving type, but there are hundreds as like him as peas in a pod; hundreds of young Canadians whose forefathers came over the sea in ships, bringing with them little else than a legacy of memories, but who, by their fortitude and adaptable endurance virtually shaped the destinies of the Dominion, and bestowed upon their spirited posterity the attributes which distinguished Ben Yates—Ben Yates the tramp, who located the rainbow's end in Brownsburg, County of Argenteuil, P.Q.

Ben was a tall, dark-haired stalwart of twenty-two. He set out from Halifax in the merry month of May with the declared idea of "seeing things." The depression in trade that had fallen like a blight on the land had obscured his hope of securing employment in keeping with his ambition. He therefore determined to set out on foot, and take what was to be got by going after it, for the summer months, when—according to certain more or less Babsonian predictions—the industrial fog would be lifting and the Blue Sky of Prosperity would become visible again.

He schemed to work his way to Toronto and to take train from there to Kirkland Lake, the El Dorado of many a Canadian youth, where he felt sure he would find something worth while, so with a light heart and a kit-bag of his own make upon his back he set forth, eager for adventure and all the six feet of him aglow with a spirit of enterprise.

At Fredericktown he found work in a tannery. The job might easily have become permanent had he so willed it for his work was highly satisfactory, but he was eager to reach Montreal, the first stage of his plan, so after two weeks in the tannery he went on tramp again, the fortnight's pay augmenting his slender emergency fund considerably. At Montreal he got a job in a garage. That he held for another fortnight, when his moveable objective now became Ottawa. But keeping constantly to the highways becomes irksome to the pedestrian. The day and night motor traffic on Quebec Provincial main roads is so continuous that it bores even a tramp with its sameness. Therefore Ben, after covering the distance between Montreal and Lachute, with only two days' work in between, mapped out a detour to Ottawa by way of Brownsburg, St. Philippe, and Hawkesbury, and hence back to the main highway. Acting upon this change of route he started out from Lachute early in a perfect morning in June. Striding through the handsomely wide Main Street of Lachute, so unusual in the majority of small towns, he reached the Auditorium, where he slowed down to admire the arresting beauty of the Memorial Park. There stood the soldiers' monument amid an early wealth of the greenest grass Ben had ever seen, flanked on the left by the stately Auditorium, and on the right by the bridge and a vista of the river gleaming in the morning sun and peacefully flowing until lost to sight among the gently rising hills.

Slowing Ben walked up to the monument, cap in hand, and read the names carved in the stone. He was deeply moved. A momentary surge of anger swept over him as he thought of the millions of names, graven like these, on many monuments in the home towns of the world. And for what? To end war? Vain sacrifice. Ben's mind went back to one day sixteen years before, when his mother received the news of his father's death. Killed in action—fighting in the war to end war, and now, the nations of the earth feverishly getting ready for a greater, more devastating war than the last!

Ben crossed the bridge and took the Brownsburg road still pondering over the degeneracy of modern scientific warfare. In the good old days when kings quarrelled they fought in person and at the head of their retinues. Different from the dictatorial despots of the present day, arising out of obscurity to a one-man control, who by the scrape of a pen decree the sacrifice of millions of their serfs. Those glorified mob orators sprawl over desks, intoxicated by power, dealing out mass murder and the reversal of civilization: They are public enemies in the first degree: Every name cut out on every 1914-18 memorial stone demands that they be outlawed and, well, there are still a few leser islands in the seven seas which might hold them in hostage.

Ben had walked a mile along the road before he began to sense the quiet beauty by which he was surrounded. It impressed him like a prelude to a greater beauty beyond where hills rise higher and streams sing their joyous songs in quicker tempo, and where the horizon is lifted above the sylvan slopes up into the azure of an ever mounting sky.

As Ben neared the hill that drops sheer down to Lepine's saw mill, he found a squad of men employed in taking off the top of the hill and dropping the debris over the side—reversing the method of raising the road by deepening the ditches. "Here's a chance of improving my muscular set-up" thought he, and strolling up to the foreman of the gang asked politely if any more help was required. "Where you from?" queried the foreman, eyeing Ben up and down.

"Halifax, Nova Scotia" answered Ben with just a perceptible hint of pride.

"No chance. I'm sorry. But this is relief work. Only local talent—and married men at that," explained the foreman.

Ben did not look unduly cast down. Quite casually he produced cigarettes and matches, and after they had lit up the foreman smiled and said—"Your only chance of getting a job on this relief gang is to go into Brownsburg and get married. After the honeymoon you could become a charge upon your wife's father, and then, you might be put in line for three or four days work."

They stood chatting for a time and then the foreman seemed to remember something. "How would you like to work on a farm for a week for two?" he asked; "There's an opening with Pete Forgan, a rather cranky farmer, over there on the right. He told me last night that he had work for a decent young chap who does not talk politics nor chew tobacco. If you could answer all his questions you would qualify for Minister of Agriculture, but he's a good sort: I worked for him years ago and willingly would again. Tell him I sent you: That will go a long way with him and save a lot of questioning, for he knows I wouldn't send him just anybody." Ben took that as a compliment, and to his surprise the foreman shook hands with him at parting, a touch of friendliness which pleased Ben mightily.

"Good morning Mr. Forgan, I've come after a job, sir; the foreman of the relief gang advised me to come, he thinks I might suit you."

For a full minute Pete Forgan stood looking at Ben without speaking. This caused Ben no embarrassment, for he remembered what the foreman said about questions, and thought the farmer was taking time to marshal them.

"Well, what do you know about farming, young man?" "Less than I have yet to learn" said Ben, with a smile. "Good enough" chuckled the farmer, "young fellows who know it all give the boss a bad time. You look fit. Yes I like your looks: Can you start right away?"

This surprised Ben. It was so different from what he had been led to expect that he felt impelled to tell the farmer what he had not mentioned to anyone since he started out.

He hoped it would not be held against him that he had just graduated from the University of Halifax and not finding a ready opening had decided to work his way to Northern Ontario, before the fall, where he understood he might find something in keeping with his aims. Meanwhile, any honest work would be welcome to him as a useful experience. Ben's apologetic air during the recital amused the farmer. Here was no boastful college man, vainly proud of his educational attainments, but a modest and demure young fellow, good to look upon, and with a pleasant soft voice, telling the whole truth about himself almost as reluctantly as if he were confessing a fault.

"It's lucky for you that you didn't tell me that before your pay was fixed," said the farmer, "or I might have made it a couple of dollars less." "Or I might even have asked for a premium," he added, with a humorous glint in his eyes. Anyway, Ben was hired, and set about his work with a will.

In a few days, when he was getting accustomed to things, Ben stopped in his tracks and stood looking first at one point then at another in the "sixteen acre" field near the house.

"What are you seeing in the big field" asked the farmer who was nearby.

"Oh nothing much, only those two streams puzzle me Mr. Forgan."

"Peter to you, Ben: Peter to my friends. I'm Mr. Forgan only to Machinery Salesman and Election Agents, but what about the two streams?"

"Well then, Peter, they have got me guessing: One stream runs across the field and the other along the side of it. They both seem to come from the same place, up there by that clump of cedars, and they join each other at the creek below, making an island of half the field."

"I've been on this farm forty nine years" said Peter slowly, "and I've seen the two streams every day of that time, without troubling to think about them. But come to think of it I believe you're right, Ben. Only one stream flows into the marsh by the cedars and two come out: We'll go up and look at it tonight after our work is done."

Their investigation proved interesting. They found that in some road widening operations which had taken place previous to Peter's coming to the farm, a huge granite boulder had been tipped into the marsh and had come to rest in a way that caused it to divide the flow of the water. Time and the natural law of least resistance had favoured the formation of another channel.

"It's time I quit," groaned the old man. "Here's a mere youth finding out in less than a week what I couldn't see in forty-nine years. Save us what a farmer he'd make! With his 'scientific knowledge', which after all, looks to me like real good common sense."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Aug. 23rd., is "Mind."

The Golden Text is:—"Great is our Lord, and of great power: his understanding is infinite." (Psalms 147: 5).

The following passages are selected from the Christian Science textbook by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discernor of the thoughts and intents of the heart." (Hebrews 4: 12).

"The Christian Scientist, understanding scientifically that all is Mind, commences with mental causation, the truth of being, to destroy the error. This corrective is an alternative, reaching to every part of the human system. According to Scripture, it searches the joints and marrow, and it restores the harmony of man." (Science and Health, page 423)

SCIENCE ADVISES AGAINST MEALS LOW IN NEEDED "BULK"

Reports ALL-BRAN Supplies
This Dietary Adjunct

Scientific tests have shown that meals which miss the proper "bulk" tend to cause constipation. This condition causes discomfort, and may lead to headaches, loss of appetite, even serious disease.

Avoid these faulty meals by adding Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to your menu. It supplies generous "bulk" in convenient form. This absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and contains iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is often more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables as it does not break down within the body. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN may be served as a cereal with milk or cream. Sprinkle over soups, salads or other cereals. Or cook into appetizing muffins, breads, waffles, etc. It adds a delicious nut-sweet flavor to your recipe.

How much better than taking patent medicines—sometimes harmful! ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

British Railways want Canadian Ties

Plans are under way in Britain for the use of Empire-grown timber for railway ties, following an investigation which was commenced some time ago and for the purposes of which two experts representing British railways made a tour of eastern and western Canada, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. The London, Midland and Scottish Railway has been purchasing a considerable quantity of hemlock ties from British Columbia for experimental purposes, and Douglas Fir ties from that province are being used in increasing quantities. In 1934, 14 per cent of the tie and crossing timber purchased by this railway came from British Columbia, while last year the quantity amounted to 49 per cent.

Ground Hogs Sought By European Zoos

The ground hog (Var. Marmota monax) may be a nuisance on this side of the water, but as it is peculiar to the American continent, European zoos covet it as a unique specimen. Six couples of these interesting rodents, which were born this spring at the Charlesbourg Zoo, near Quebec, were shipped by Canadian National Express to the Brussels Zoo.

They decided to block the newer stream—which they did in half a day—and at the next ploughing its course could be covered, which would make the field more valuable for crops, and also more easily worked.

At this point, Peter, after deep thought, made up his mind to reveal to Ben the secret of the farm, the great secret of his finding gold upon it, as witness the two pails full of "nuggets" hidden in the attic, and which no other eyes had ever beheld. "I've just got to tell him about the nuggets I've been picking up for years. Then I suppose he'll start something and change the name of the farm to 'The Brownsburg Consolidated Gold Mining Corporation' maybe. Ah, well, I'll be through with it all soon enough. I can't take money nor farms nor earthly treasure with me when I go, and I've lived six years over the 'allotted span' already. Yes, I'll tell Ben."

Acting upon this resolution the next morning he began talking about the farm, praising its productivity, its easy access to the village, its picturesque situation and its health promoting qualities, just for all the world as if he were a land-agent trying to sell an estate, and ended up by saying in a stage whisper — "And what would you think of it Ben if I told you there's Gold on it?"

"Gold", echoed Ben, "I should say it's not impossible, but I rather doubt it. The land is alluvial and shallow, and any gold in it would have been found long ago. Besides, the rock is mostly—"

"Come into the house", broke in Peter, "and I'll show you what I have found. Pounds and pounds of gold quartz, and nobody knows about it except us, Ben, and all gathered in the last three years, — since my wife Lydia died" he added softly.

They went upstairs to the attic where from a zinc pail Peter took two or three pieces of quartz and held them out to Ben, expectantly.

At a glance he knew the shining particles in the quartz to be iron pyrites, and soberly explained to Peter that "All that glitters is not gold" and that the yellow crystals were a compound of iron and sulphur and were comparatively valueless, unless when found in large quantities or shales, when they can be used in the manufacture of sulphuric acid. You are not the only one to be taken in by the gold-like appearance of pyrites, Peter. Week after week the Mineral Departments of well known newspapers get specimens of the speckled quartz, and patiently repeat the disappointing fact they contain only iron pyrites."

Peter stood the shock stoically: He even smiled, and that same afternoon he was seen in the garden neatly arranging the bespangled quartz blocks in a border for a flower bed.

Now, Ben's two weeks of casual farm work were up. Neither one of them said a word about it. In that short time a spontaneous friendship had grown between the sedate farmer and his young helper; which years of close association could not have made more real. Ben was reluctantly telling himself that he must be getting along, while Peter was hourly fearing the event, and pondering over reasons or excuses for preventing the inevitable. As the third week neared its end Peter at last broke the silence on the subject.

"Ben", said he, "I rather fancy that you want to be on your way, according to your schedule, but I am selfish enough to want you to stay a little while longer. Maybe you will have noticed that this house is out of proportion to the size of the farm. Originally the extent of the farm was five hundred acres, but gradually it was reduced to two hundred. It belonged to my wife's uncle who at his death left the house and farm to her, Lydia, my wife. She loved the house and I loved the farm. Forty-nine years ago we came here, and here our two children were born:—Arthur, killed in the war, two days before the Armistice, and Lucy, married and settled in British Columbia these twenty years. Three years ago my Lydia died, and since then a neighbor's widow, a Mrs. Smith and her daughter, come every day, as you know, to do the housework and run the dairy.

I do everything else, with occasional help, but I never have enjoyed it, since I was left alone, so much as I have in the last fortnight. You have re-organized me, Ben Yates, and I feel I could do anything to keep you here. That is selfish of me I know; I am aware your course in life is laid and I am going to watch you run it—during the time left me, but couldn't you stay here a little while longer? I'll tell you why I ask this:—For the last two years I have rented the house for the months of July and August to a Mr. Stanstead, a Toronto banker. His wife and daughter and a maid-servant take up residence here, and he comes and goes as time and business permit. He sometimes brings a week-end friend or two, and they range the country round, fishing and hunting. Last year he hired a young man from the village to go out with them, and that boy had the time of his life. The family are due here in ten days from now. When they come I retire to the two rooms over the kitchen. Now if you could stay until after they come, and as long after as suits you, I promise you will have a grand time. He's a fine man is Stanstead and I'd love to see him and you together. Sleep on the proposition Ben, and let me know in the morning . . . Good night . . . son."

Touched by the kindly overtures of the farmer, Ben resolved, after consideration, to modify his "walk and work" scheme. He could save about six weeks by taking train from Lachute and still would reach Toronto by the time he had planned. True, he would miss getting acquainted with a string of fine towns, but he had enjoyed every minute of his stay on the farm and had found a sincere friend in Peter Forgan, to compensate, so he decided to humour the old man and stay.

willing to take a one-third cut in rates on cattle and fodder, if the government will pay the rest. The packers are willing to handle up to 100,000 head of thin animals, canners, etc., at cost, paying the owner a nominal initial price, perhaps a cent a pound, if the federal government will guarantee them against loss. It boils down to the question how much Ottawa is willing to cough up. As Ottawa has been going through that process pretty steadily now for years, she is probably getting used to it.

A NATIONAL CALAMITY

The western drought again ranks as a national calamity: and there is no fear that the necessary funds will not be forthcoming, to care for the people and their animals through the winter, and to finance the planting of the next crop. In addition to alleviation of the immediate distress, a long range rehabilitation program for the drought areas will be prosecuted. But this government realises that unemployment and drought relief can only come from one source: from the pockets of the people in other parts of the country, most of whom have troubles of their own. There will be as little waste and extravagance as possible in the operation. The federal government wants to know, before a number of drought and fodder projects are authorized, what the bill is going to be.

ARE PROSPERITY BONDS LEGAL?

Official Ottawa moves with even more than habitual caution on the request of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce to rule that the "Prosperity Certificates" out in Alberta are against the law. It would not take a layman five minutes to decide, with the pertinent documents before him, whether stamp scrip could legally be issued by a provincial government or not. But it will take the law officers of the Crown longer to probe the constitutional and judicial refinements of it. And the longer they take, presumably, the better Premier Mackenzie King and his colleagues will like it. Ottawa has no desire of getting mixed up in a dispute about Social Credit. They don't want to be listed as obstacles to the revival of prosperity in Alberta. Of course if it comes to a show-down, they may have to rule on the matter. If they say that Alberta can issue stamp-scrip, they surrender some of their rights under the constitution; and they also make it official for any other similar body to issue substitutes for money. It's like a gigantic chess game: Edmonton had the last move, and now it's up to Ottawa. Like chess games in private life, there may be quite a while before the next move.

The farmer's bins were well scraped this summer, judging by the wheat crop carry-over.

A20-2c JOSEPH FORTIER

Only about five million bushels were believed to be still on the farm at the end of the crop year (July 31st). Last year the estimate was nearly eight millions, and most years it is higher still. Farmers were either hard up for cash — a chronic condition on all the farms I know—or they were afraid that the 1936-37 official price was going to be lower than 87½ cents. That was the appearance, a few weeks ago. But now it looks as though 87½ cents will be retained, with the board hoping that the current market stays up above a dollar meantime.

Final Touches for Ottawa Exhibition

SCORES OF FEATURES
FOR MEMORABLE
WEEK IN CAPITAL

Final touches are being put to the buildings and grounds of the Central Canada Exhibition, where next week will be staged an impressive cross-section of the agricultural, commercial and cultural life of Eastern Canada.

In a few days, highways will be humming with traffic as thousands of people from Ontario and Quebec, from adjoining New York state, and from other sections of Canada and the States, converge upon Ottawa to see the Dominion's largest one-week exhibition.

Directors and management have spared no effort to make the 1936 Ottawa Fair "the best ever", and present indications are that their efforts will be well rewarded. For not in years has the number of entries been larger nor the quality of the exhibits finer. In addition, many improvements to the many buildings in Lansdowne Park, permanent site of the exhibition, have been made and never has the park itself been more attractive.

As usual, residents of Canada's Capital City have made provision to entertain the thousands who pour into their community during exhibition week. Accommodation for all has been arranged, thanks to the many hotels and rooming houses situated in the city.

Dozens of features, with something going on all the time, are embodied in the 1936 show.

Edwin Franko Goldman and his world famous concert band, with famed soloists and every member a noteworthy musician, will play twice daily in the shell bandstand.

Central Canada Exhibition for years has been noted for its magnificent grandstand performances. This year is no exception. Some of the best vaudeville in North America will be seen this year.

Of interest to farmers, and to many city people, too, will be the livestock display. Entries in the livestock departments far exceed in number those of previous years.

The nightly horse show, held in the Coliseum at no extra charge, will be a really stellar event, at which some of Canada's finest horses will be seen.

A host of other attractions has been planned to make a visit to the fair a day of profit and entertainment.

To miss the 1936 Ottawa Exhibition is not to be thought of. It has become such a part of the Canadian scene that no one can afford to miss it.

Son: "I want a drink."
Father: "So do I; go to sleep."

Keep Name on Mail Box

(Tara Leader)

In connection with the article in last week's issue of the Leader concerning the racketeer who has been "high-pressuring" farmers into paying 50c to paint their names on mail boxes, a rural resident made the statement that a farmer paid well for the rural mail boxes and he did not have to keep his name on the box unless he so desired. This is a mistaken impression, for the Postal Regulations specify that while the rural mail box, once paid for, becomes the absolute property of the purchaser to be used for mail purposes, the department requires that it be properly erected, kept in good repair, and with the patron's name legibly lettered thereon. Failure to do this may result in the department discontinuing service to that box.

Rats Have Intelligence

All rats go to sea when they have a chance, but old Rattus rattus—otherwise known as the black ship, Indian or old English rat—shows more enthusiasm for life at sea than any other species. These huge rodents, together with their larger and fiercer brown cousins, Rattus norvegicus, originally inhabited central Asia. But when the ships of western nations began to touch at Asiatic ports back in the Thirteenth century, the rats promptly climbed aboard and have been carried to all parts of the world, asserts an authority in the Washington Post. All species of rats are very intelligent, which makes their extermination virtually impossible. Using a stick, it is said they even lead their blind about, especially on long overland treks. And it is believed, although not proved, that they preserve mice as a source of fresh meat when other food becomes scarce!

When you think of the bond issues the next generation must pay off, it's no wonder an infant yells when it's born.

TRAGEDY AT ELECTION TIME

The tragedy which occurred last Saturday at Louiseville, where 22 lives were lost in a railway crossing accident, caused a grievous shock to this election-frenzied province. That the victims of the crash were a party homeward bound from a campaign meeting is actually no reflection on electioneering in this province—for accidents are liable to occur in connection with any gathering of people, be it a fire or a funeral.

In provincial election time, the casualties tell heavily upon personal feelings and reputations, rather than upon life and limb. Aside from these painful assaults on character, the time is generally one of excitement and jubilation. That is doubtless why the grave toll of human life at Louiseville strikes home to the sensibilities of Quebecers.

The number of victims of youthful age, too young to vote—besides arousing deeper regret—gives cause for wonderment, since they were returning by truck from a political meeting.

CIVIL WAR IN METROPOLIS

Civil war is not confined to Spain, Syria or the French Republic at this time. Only last Monday hostility and violence were rampant in Montreal. We cite the following from the Canadian press—not that Canadians are the least bit proud of these conditions, but just by way of showing that the election of public administrators is a bloodthirsty affair quite at variance with the constructive, national purpose for which elections are designed.

"More than a score of cracked heads, the arrest of 250 persons on charges of 'telegraphing', the reported seizure by the provincial police of about 50 'blackjacks' and a dozen 'knuckle-dusters', marked yesterday's provincial elections in Montreal. There were fights in nearly every riding in the city and in one instance 20 members of the provincial police had to be rescued by city police when they were threatened by an angry mob of more than 200 persons."

—We wonder what the voter in Great Britain, or in any other sane or orderly country, might think of these friendly proceedings in Quebec elections.

HUMAN REACTIONS ARE STRANGE

Another interesting news item this week tells of a Catholic priest in Ontario paying a fine of $25 for having failed to return or remain at the scene of an accident. It would appear that he was, to all intents and purposes, a "hit and run driver"—one generally a subject of contempt among his fellows.

In this instance, however, we would draw the line. It is not conceivable that a cleric of any religious order can be devoid of compassion for injured person, the victim of an accident on the road. It is not easy to believe the driver in this case ignored his responsibility in the mishap, or deliberately sought to escape it.

One is compelled to believe that panic plays a part in many "hit and run" disasters. In the human mind the natural reaction of a crash is one of momentary panic. The prime urge may be to stop dead; or it may be to hurry away; or in another case there may be no blind impetus, only a nervous paralysis which prevents sane action. How quickly a driver may recover his equanimity depends on his mental make-up—and human intellects vary a lot.

The case in question illustrates, we believe, the fact that "hit and run" drivers are not all criminals who throw life to the discard and flee the penalty of their errors. We have little sympathy for such offenders, but at least it might be well to give charitable judgment on occasions.

Securing Birth Certificates for Purpose of Old Age Pension

CORRESPONDENCE

Registry Office, Lachute

Editor, The Watchman.

Dear Sir:

In view of the fact that, with the advent of Old Age Pensions, many inquiries have been received at this office, I would ask you to publish the following:

The Registry Offices in the Province of Quebec have nothing whatsoever to do with the record or registering of Births; they deal with land, titles of immovable property only.

Births are registered by the various Ministers, in a register of Civil Status, which is kept by them in duplicate. One of the duplicates, which is an annual register, is forwarded to the Prothonotary of the District, in this case, Joseph Fortier, St. Jerome, Que. The other duplicate is kept as the permanent record of the Church. Extract certified either by the Minister or by the Prothonotary, make due proof in the Courts of this Province. Those not adhering to any recognized Church may have their children's birth registered, in the same manner, by the secretary of the municipality where they live. This, however, is seldom done.

In short, to obtain a certificate of birth, you should apply either to the Prothonotary, Mr. Fortier, or to the Minister of the Church to which your parents belonged or adhered, at the time of your birth, giving names of your father and mother, name and location of Church, and approximate date of your birth.

Yours very truly,
W. Geo. Rodger,
Registrar.

Notes and Comment from Brownsburg

Mr. Wyman McGibbon's car was a total loss after an electrical defect had set fire to it.

The election passed off quietly at Brownsburg, although the results were quiet different from what was generally expected. A much larger vote was expected for Mr. Lamarche, who for years has been in close contact with the people as secretary-treasurer of the council. Although Mr. Lavigne polled the lowest vote, it was much larger than his supporters has anticipated. Some last minute abstention upset the calculations quite a bit, and numerous people kept away from the polls. Mr. Dansereau increased his poll for last year, his plurality of 13, reversing the majority of 49 obtained by Mr. Lanctot.

The issues in the present election were too unsettled until late in the campaign.

Death Claims Well-known Figure at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — We regret to record the death of Mr. Al St. Onge, late hotel-keeper of Brownsburg. Mr. St. Onge was widely and universally respected. Of mild unassuming disposition, covering a generous and sincere heart, his passing will be mourned by a host of friends. His house board was ever at the request of the suppliant, his generosity was unbounded and his popularity widespread.

The deceased was in failing health for some time and his death was not wholly unexpected. Nevertheless, the sudden shock of the announcement after his appearance at the polling booth earlier in the day cast a gloom over the community. The funeral took place on Thursday and was of large, representative proportions.

Oldest Botanic Gardens

The oldest botanic gardens in the world are situated on the island of St. Vincent, in the Windward Islands. It was established in 1763 and it was to obtain breadfruit tree specimens for this garden in 1787 that the British naval vessel Bounty sailed to the South seas, where the famous mutiny on the Bounty occurred. Eventually Captain Bligh, of the Bounty, was brought back to St. Vincent with 530 choice specimens for the gardens.

No White Elephants

There is no such thing as a white elephant, according to a writer in the Montreal Herald. Animals so described are simply albinos found only in India and Siam. When an albino was captured it belonged to the king, and the white elephant was often a serious financial obligation for the royal exchequer as feeding and housing it came very expensive. A needy king would request one of his noblemen to keep the animal for him, and this mark of royal favor found its value expressed in terms of having a white elephant on the hands.

The Pyramid of Cheops

The Pyramid of Cheops, largest of the three great Pyramids at Gizeh, originally was 482 feet high. Its base covers 13 acres. Erected by slaves 3700 years B.C., it continues to arouse wonder. But the increasing gigantic proportions of modern engineering products indicates that 3700 years hence there will remain hundreds of monuments to the present era that will dwarf the Egyptian structures.—Los Angeles Times.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SHOTS OVER BRIGHT WATERS

Artistic value and extra light combine to help the photographer in scenes that include an expanse of water. Clouds and back lighting enhance this shot.

If you live by the sea, lake or river, or when you spend time by them for health and recreation, don't forget that you are in a photographers' paradise.

Always where there is water, by it or on it, there are presented to the amateur picture-taker scenes of charm, beauty, action and human interest, as subject and background for eye-delighting photographs. The ocean surf, the mirrored calm of still waters in bay and inlet, the beauty of shore lines, seaport villages nestling at the water's edge, shadowed wharves, majestically moving steamships, speeding motor craft, graceful sailing yachts heeling to the wind, the men of the sea doing their salty tasks, and, inland, much the same scenes on lake and river—what more in opportunity for the camera enthusiast?

In addition, where there is water, one seldom has to complain of lack of light, even on the stormiest day, for water is a natural, sometimes dazzling, reflector. Indeed, if you will take note, color tones of most everything that composes the scenic frame of bodies of water are more brilliant—bluer, greener, redder, yellower, whiter—than in landscapes. Chances for clear, sharp pictures are the best.

This over-sufficiency of light is something to allow for when you are making pictures over the water on bright days. Beware the large stop opening. Just as you squint your eyes on the water, the diaphragm of the lens generally must be stopped down to a small opening to keep it from letting in too much light.

Cameras with fast lenses and ultra-rapid shutters are decidedly an advantage on the water, as elsewhere, because, when you want a close-up of a racing motor boat or the dive of a bathing beauty, the required extra speed is available, but the inexpensive fixed focus box type of camera does a splendid job with many marine scenes. Its average of clear, sharp pictures over bright waters is high. Good enlargements, too, may usually be obtained from the negatives. The second or smaller stop opening is the one to use where light is so intensely reflected.

Aboard steamships and sailing yachts are wonderful chances with any camera for striking angle shots, up or down, of funnels, sails and rigging, with cloud-studded sky or whitecaps as a background. Again, vessels at anchor in the shelter of a breakwater where outlines of their hulls are reflected in the water's surface often make enchanting pictures if thought is taken of the composition. On the water, too, we find the best opportunities for pseudo-moonlight pictures, shots taken into the sun when it is low (with fairly small lens opening), catching the shining path of its reflections from the dancing waves.

BILLY'S GHOSTS

Stretching glossy necks, peeking at Bill,
Bill was fishing by the rippling brook
Can full of worms, well-baited hook.

Can tipped over, out went the worms,
All in a heap of wiggling squirms,
Crows stretched long necks, sidled up close—
There were no worms left when they quietly rose!

Not one in sight on the whole green lawn.
"There are ghosts in this place" wee Bill said,
As he caught up his pole and swiftly fled.

Cordelia was beginning to feel at home with the wee Soft Furs when the teeter board was introduced and she was begged to get on one end. She was afraid at first that it wouldn't hold her weight, it looked so slender, but she sat down on it after much coaxing. She and little Flip were on one end with Trip, Flip and Tip on the other. All went merrily for a time until Clip suddenly squeaked, "Oh I am falling, I am falling!" and went sliding down to the extreme end dragging his brother and sister with him. Before Cordelia could catch Flip she had slipped away from her and was down at the opposite end of the board, which of course had now much more weight than the end Cordelia was seated on, with the result that Cordelia was poised high in mid-air, clinging to the board with all her might. At first Cordelia had thought it all an accident, the half-smothered giggles that came from the lower end of the plank told her that it was just another of Clip's funny tricks. How long she would have to sit in that position she could not tell. It all depended on how long Clip's funny mood lasted. Anyway, no matter how long they kept her there, she would not cry out. Her eyes sought the corners of the half-darkened place as she sat waiting for the merriment at the other end of the board to wear itself out. From one corner shone a patch of light, and in that light spot something red gleamed, something strangely familiar. "What is that red thing dangling over there?" she asked sharply. "It looks like one of the hair ribbons I lost a month ago." "It is," squeaked Tip, "and I must run and tell Mother that the signal is out!" He jumped from the board so quickly that he sent it bouncing up and down in such a manner that Cordelia kept her seat with difficulty. Tip ran to the house calling, "The signal's out! The signal's out!"

Cordelia felt that the other Soft Furs were preparing to hop from the board, so she hopped down too—which was a movement that they were not expecting and the board, which had been suspended in the air, came down bang on a pile of nut shells tossing the little mice in all directions. "Cordelia Crooks, you mean thing", Flip began indignantly. "Mean yourself", giggled Clip in her ear, "Who slid away from Cordelia and weighed the plank down so that she would be away up in the air? Eh, Miss Flip?" "Oh, I forgot" said Flip, "I suppose she has the right to pay me back if she wants to." "I really did not mean to toss you" said Cordelia, but I was afraid that if I didn't jump quickly I would get tossed myself, and while your bones might be too soft to break, mine were not." "Oh tut", giggled Clip, "we never break bones in this place. But come on in, Mother might need you." "Need me?" Cordelia said in amazement, running with the others. "Yes, the signal means we are going to have company, and Grannie always says that company means work." "About that signal, or rather, that ribbon of mine—how did it get down here? It was one of my best, and Mother had to buy me new ones when it disappeared." "You should not have left it hanging down into the very doorway of Jettyland, if you didn't want it to disappear," said Tip, "—It was a temptation for us mice." Cordelia knew that Trip meant temptation, but then mice were not supposed to know everything anyway, so she let the mistake pass. "My dear!" cried Mrs. Soft Fur as they entered, "Could you help Grannie with the pudding, you are so big and strong; and I must go and welcome my guests." As Cordelia went into the kitchen she looked quickly back, then stopped to listen. It might have been her own mother welcoming guests. Mrs. Soft Fur was bowing gracefully in the doorway and saying "Welcome, welcome my friends. For you the hearth fire glows." "Where in the world did your mother hear that speech?" she whispered to Tip. "By listening, by listening of course. You can learn more by listening than any other way."

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

DINAH, THE PUP

Our neighbors have a roly-poly black pup, very appropriately called Dinah. The pup sleeps in the garage and sometimes when night comes feels a bit lonesome and cries for her mother. She doesn't howl all night but every once in a while whimpers lonesomely. The neighbors have a kitten too and it did not think much of having a pup around the place and would arch her back up and spit whenever Dinah tried to make friends. After a day or two she passively tolerated the pup but would not let it come near. Two or three nights ago the cat stayed out all night. There she was, curled up in the garage with Dinah. There has not been a cry out of the pup one night since and the kitten sleeps with her to comfort her. Con, our Irish terrier, does not object to the pup but he does not make friends with her. He ignores her and when she gets too friendly and playful gets up and walks away in disgust. He did the same thing with another pup and when it got a bit older and could really play, Con used to have some very good times but would always leave the scene when he had had enough play.

CHILDREN LEARN BY HANDLING

One of the problems of the mother of the child that has started to walk is to prevent it from handling things, pulling the books out of the book-cases, emptying the kitchen cabinets, taking things off tables, and so on. It is perfectly normal for the child to want to do this. If it did not try, there would be room for worry, as it might be an indication that there was something wrong. It is wise to prevent temptation as much as possible. That does not mean that the contents of the sitting-room must repose on the piano out of reach. But it does mean that it is not fair to leave a valuable breakable thing within reach of a small child who has not had time to learn to discriminate. The best way to help is to provide plenty of legitimate things for the child to handle. Give it blocks or boxes which fit into each other, spoons, clothes-pegs, kitchen utensils, as well as the usual toys. One mother whose baby loved the things in the kitchen cabinet to the point of destruction, solved the problem by putting things in one part of the cabinet that the baby could have and when she started for the cabinet opened that section and told her that it was baby's, then when she would start for the other section she said no that was mother's. The baby soon learned what she could have and as there was plenty of material for her to handle to satisfy her desires she quickly learned to leave the rest of the cabinet alone.

LIVE IN THE PRESENT

There are those who are happiest when they are very unhappy. Mothers will say their happiest days were when the children were small and they had to struggle through hours of the day and night crowded with work and worries. Men work hard for success and when it has arrived, look back and feel the happy days were the days when they had the most worries and the hardest work. The Irish have a talent for being happy when they are most unhappy. I am Irish in a good many things but have too much of the Scotch in me to enjoy unhappiness. My philosophy of life is to enjoy each day as it comes and not look back with regret for the happy days that are gone, nor to dream too much of happiness in the future. Let us enjoy the things that we have and the days as we live them. No day can come again so let us make the most of it while it is here.

A HOLIDAY FOR MOTHER

Has the mother in your family had a holiday? I mean an honest to goodness holiday without a meal to plan or a child to look after. Cottages are grand, but no one will deny that the meals there are often more of a problem than at home where there are greater conveniences. A day or two away from the children is a holiday of greater benefit to a mother than a much longer one with them. Mothers have a way of thinking that they cannot be spared. Sometimes it comes as a shock to our complacency to find how well they got along without us and what a good time they had. If other arrangements cannot be made, it might be feasible for friends to exchange children so that each may get a holiday, however short.

An Open Letter to Our Teachers

—From a Lover of Children

As the educational term is fast approaching, Miss Ruby Stewart's words, spoken at a Prince Edward Island Teachers' Convention, could well be taken to heart by all our teacher readers. Miss Stewart claims that every teacher keeps a "Mental Medicine Cabinet" in her classroom, the fittings and contents of which are as follows—

Praise—a tonic-drug which can be safely administered in small doses.

Sympathy—which should always be administered to patients in private.

Faith—nourishing. Include in the daily diet.

Suspicion—a deadly poison.

Reproof—to be used only in severe cases and in small quantities, and must never be mixed with Publicity, or an explosion follows.

Understanding—may be administered in unlimited quantities.

Former Argenteuil Lady Died in Oregon

Friends in this community will learn with deep regret of the death of Mrs. Geo. Dolbow of La Grande, Oregon, which occurred at her home on July 24th. The deceased lady was formerly Jennie O'Brien, eldest daughter of the late James O'Brien, of Chatboro. She was married to Mr. Dan. Douglas, who died a few years after marriage, leaving one little daughter. Later his widow and daughter went to Oregon, where she married Mr. George Dolbow.

Besides her loving husband, she leaves four married daughters and several grandchildren to mourn her loss, also an aged step-mother in Chatboro, two brothers, and two sisters, Mrs. Dolbow was sixty-four years of age, and had enjoyed good health until about six months ago, when she became ill. Through her suffering she remained cheerful and courageous, until the end came and she passed peacefully away in the presence of her family. Although it is thirty eight years since she went to Oregon the late Mrs. Dolbow was always pleased to hear from her loved friends in Argenteuil County.

Quebec's Women's Institutes to Co-Operate in Colonization

At the recent Provincial Convention of the Quebec Women's Institutes held at Macdonald College in June, it was decided that the department of their work hitherto known as Immigration should include Colonization in whatever workable form it can be carried out.

The Women's Institute realizes that there is room for effort in making strangers in Canada feel at home, and in amalgamating them into the citizenship of the country. The customs of commerce and the different methods of working on the land are very strange to new-comers, and kindly advice in all of these matters is needed in order to help them to establish roots in Canadian soil.

IN MEMORIAM

PROPHET — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Alice Elizabeth Kennedy, who was called from our midst August 25, 1935.

Dear is the grave where a dear wife and mother is laid
Sweet the memory that will never fade

We do not forget her, nor do we intend
We loved her too dearly, and will to the end.

Her life was a labour of love,
Her heart for her family beat true,
She cheerfully did her duty to all —

What more could a mother do?
Ever remembered by her Husband and Family.

BROWNSBURG CYCLIST IN 100-MILE RACE

CAME THIRD AMONG SEVENTEEN STARTERS

It is gratifying to note that Bob Taylor, promising young bicycle racer of Brownsburg, is keeping to the fore in Montreal cycling circles.

Last Sunday Taylor entered his first really long grind, from Verdun to Rigaud and return. The weather was not very encouraging; nevertheless Bob mounted his wheel with high hopes and ambitions.

At the 40-mile mark he broke away alone. He was chased by four other riders; one of his own club members and three riders from Sylvester Club caught up, and from that point it was a neck and neck run through the balance of the race. Bob took all the sprints, but at the final one he was overtaken by another racer. All five came in with only a wheel's width between them, Taylor finishing third. His time was 4 hrs. 21 m., which is considered good pacing. There were 17 starters and ten to finish, the second five arriving just 25 minutes later. Seven had dropped out. Taylor's triumph in third place is therefore another marked credit to his speed and endurance.

KEEN INTEREST SHOWN IN TENNIS FINALS

On Wednesday evening at the courts of the Plaisir-Vous Tennis Club a large crowd of tennis fans witnessed an excellent brand of play staged by the six finalists in the Argenteuil County Championships.

A trophy donated by Miss Marthe Larocque was won in a clever match by Miss Blanche Theoret, who defeated Miss Peggy Beveridge in straight sets.

The Ladies' Singles final, between Miss Marthe Larocque and Miss A. Roy of St. Andrews, gave indication of being a long drawn-out affair at the outset, but Miss Larocque after capturing the first set applied the pressure and from then on the match was all hers. The Lachute girl won in scores of 6-3, 6-0.

Following the ladies' match came the Men's Singles final, between John Cheley of Lachute and René Beauregarde, Lachute Mills. Beauregarde as usual played his steady, slowly-paced ball, but it was evident that this style of play would prove to be ineffective against the hard base-line drives and crisp volleying of Cheley. When Beauregarde realizes that he must hit out in order to make his point then we can expect a better match between these two. Cheley won in scores of 6-1, 6-1.

Many a motorist insisting on his rights gets them quick enough, last sad rites.

Drastic Measures to Relieve Drought Areas... Expenditures Suggest Another "Heavy Deficit"... To Exploit British Market... The Housing Problem.

"The Ottawa Spotlight"
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, August 25—The first thing the cabinet did when the ministers had returned from overseas was to deal with the drought and fodder situation in western Canada.

Final arrangements are still to be concluded and the problem will need continuous attention until next summer. But meantime the following assistance appears to be likely:

Free shipment of feed from areas where there is a surplus to the drought area. The railways will reduce their rates one-third and the federal government pay the remainder.

Free movement of cattle from the drought areas to others where feed is plentiful, within the province.

(The provincial and federal governments are likely to find it necessary to buy up all surplus hay, oats, barley and greenfeed in Alberta and Saskatchewan, to prevent speculation and export to the United States of feed fodder.)

An Election Come-Back

BROWNSBURG READERS, ATTENTION!

An impression exists among certain Brownsburg readers that discrimination was shown in according space to candidates for advertising their meetings and policies through these pages. The Watchman asserts, this is utterly untrue.

The candidate favored by those lodging the complaint sent a notice of his campaign meetings to this office at 12 noon on Thursday, Aug. 6th., which was too late for publication that week. A note of explanation was printed in the issue. Our next edition was open for advertising by said candidate, but he made no request for space.

Candidates for either party were in no way favored as regards advertising in this paper. Any accusation to the contrary is founded on false information.

Veterans to Organize Here

A number of local war veterans have expressed a desire that a branch of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. be formed in this district. Plans are not definite as yet but it is proposed to hold a meeting of those interested, announcement of which will be made in next issue of The Watchman.

Deacon in the chair, discussion centred on matters of interest to sportsmen and property owners. A game warden is engaged every fall to prevent illegal fishing in this lake. It was urged that in addition to a stock of trout fry to replenish the fish next year, young bass or pike might also be introduced to check species of fish which are preying on the lake trout.

GOLD ON A BROWNSBURG FARM

A SHORT STORY, specially written for readers of The Watchman

—By A. M. CAMPBELL

The eventful day dawned; dawned as all other days have done from time immemorial. The varying significance the dawning of some days have over others is due to the fictitious weight imposed upon them. They are so fraught with anticipated events that they loom larger in the horological sequence of the sidereal day. They carry an inflated importance which gives them the appearance of slothful movement, reluctant to be on time, and a tardy disregard for the excitement with which we seek to invest them.

Albeit, it was the day of days for Mrs. Smith, Peter Forgan's daily housekeeper, and her daughter Flora. They had bustled about for the greater part of the week cleaning the house as if the fate of empires depended upon their industry. Now they rested from their labours, conscious of duty well done, and with an inward sense of satisfaction that the whole place was spick and span and as free from every speck of mortal dust as if its occupants had been disembodied spirits instead of dusty farmers who hung their overalls on the floors and dropped tobacco ashes all over the place.

The farmer himself took part in the general renovation. That morning he arose with the lark, and curried his splendid team of Clydesdales, and braided their tails and manes with blue ribbons so bravely that they stood just as if waiting for the show judges to come and hang prize cards upon their graceful necks.

The Stansteads arrived late in the afternoon, and after supper Miss Violet and her father strolled into a partitioned-off part of the farm tool-house and began selecting fishing rods and tackle with the avowed intention of trying their luck at daybreak the following morning. While they were so engaged Peter Forgan passed the door.

"Ho Peter", cried Stanstead, "Come in here and let us talk things over. I am due back in Toronto on Tuesday, but when I come again I shall try to squeeze in a couple of weeks. How about getting a fishing companion this time? Do you know of any likely young fellow around here?"

Peter's eyes twinkled, but with an effort he managed to keep a straight face as he answered:—

"Oh, ah, well, there's my hired man Ben Yates, a very willing lad he is. You could try him out this week end and if he suits you I reckon I could spare him when you want him."

"Good idea, Peter, that's fine. Let's have a look at him: He hasn't gone to bed already has he, as you early birds do around here?"

"You'll have to leave seeing him until the morning. I'm thinking", said Peter. "He's gone to a lecture at Lachute Auditorium. Let me see, what's the lecture tonight? 'The theory of Relativity', or 'The Seventeenth Century Poetry', I'm not sure which, but he won't be home until past bedtime."

"Good Green Glasses!" cried Stanstead, "whatever kind of a bird is he anyway?"

"Bide your time" chuckled Peter with a delighted grin at the effect of his imaginary lecture, which wasn't a lecture at all, but a concert of Seventeenth Century Music. "Ben's a rara avis sure enough, and he's not all feathers either."

"I've taken over your assistant" said Stanstead the next afternoon, as he and Ben came in with a creel of fish, supplemented by a dozen more on a string. "Say Forgan, did you ever see a catch like this", displaying the creel, "all cleaned and ready for cooking? One of these times, Ben says, we may perhaps catch 'em cooked."

The first month of the Stanstead vacation had passed; the banker's two weeks had been devoted to fishing, golf, boating on Lake Louise, cross country tramps, and automobile rides, accompanied by Ben, and the other two weeks when the claims of the banking business could not be ignored, Ben's services were claimed by Mama Stanstead and her daughter Violet.

Indeed, Mrs. Stanstead was so pleased with the "farm hand" that she took the stolid Peter Forgan into her confidence on the subject.

"Wherever did you get that wonderful boy?", she demanded, "He is the most perfect gentleman I ever met. Who is he? At times you would think he was some Oriental Monarch, full of regal dignity, and all the time he is the dearest, most thoughtful of boys. Where did you find him I ask you? 'Where did you get this prince in disguise?' I wish I knew his mother", she added thoughtfully, "she must be a happy woman." "And speaking of happiness: I actually caught Violet crying this morning. My stately daughter crying? I was alarmed and asked what was the matter; 'Matter! Mother, nothing's the matter!' she said, 'I'm just happy: I want to go to the top of a mountain and sing!'"

Peter controlled himself and in a matter of fact tone proceeded to answer her questions separately.

"His name is Ben Yates; He was one of the unemployed; He walked from Halifax to here; He did odd jobs by the way; He's a good hand on the farm and I'm willing to hire him permanently, but his mind is set on going to Northern Ontario. Gold mining, I suppose," and added reminiscently—"He knows gold from iron pyrites, I know that."

Then abruptly he asked, "How old is the girl? Yes, I mean Miss Violet: How old is she?"

"She will be eighteen next month", was the answer.

"Eighteen, ha, ha! And Ben is turned twenty two, ha, ha!" laughed Peter.

"Good heavens, what do you mean Peter Forgan?" cried the mother. "I assure you no word of love has passed between them. Don't I know? Haven't I been with them all the time?" "I don't doubt that", said the farmer with a grin, "But you are the Locksmith that love laughs at. They both have eyes. Oh they're in love right enough, I know the symptoms, the girl crying in secret happiness and the boy, as I saw Ben yesterday, seated on a log by a murmuring stream, a pencil in hand, a piece of paper on knee, head poised sideways and eyes lifted to the tree-tops. Oh, there's nothing half so sweet in life as Love's young dream!"

Stanstead arrived at the farm on the following Friday, bringing with him a cronie for the week-end—a Mr. Faversham, a noted Toronto lawyer with a sporting reputation. Tennis being one of his specialties, tennis therefore soon became the topic of conversation which led to Faversham and Violet playing a set of singles. Faversham won. Stanstead and Faversham next played a set which Stanstead lost 2-1. Then Violet and her father played another set which she won.

A set of doubles was then suggested by Mrs. Stanstead. This met approval, and Faversham gallantly offered himself as Mrs. Stanstead's "pair."

"Oh no" said she glibly, "Thanks just the same, but I shall play by proxy if you don't mind. There's a boy here who plays a good game; he is about equally matched with Vi, he shall be my substitute. He and Vi will play you Mr. Faversham, and daddy." Violet signified assent. She was flushed with play anyway, and her blush was not noticed because she turned quickly toward the house in quest of her prospective partner. She knew where to find him for she had seen him up at a window of the house watching her play against her father.

The match ended in a complete triumph for the youthful pair. Youth and Beauty won all three sets from the combined forces of Capital and the Law.

Faversham was enthusiastic in his praise of the young players and declared Ben to be a coming star in the tennis firmament, shook hands with him firmly, and drawing him aside said "Congratulations, Ben—by the way, what is your name besides Ben, I don't think it have heard it."

Ben smiled. "I am just 'Ben' here Mr. Faversham, an abbreviation for Benbow Yates, as I am known at home in Halifax." "Benbow Yates!" echoed Faversham, "Benbow Yates! Your father went over with the CEF and fell at Vimy Ridge?" Ben nodded.

"Why man, what are you hiding here for? Don't you know there's a hue and cry out for you? You are supposed to be in the region of Kirkland Lake and the Canadian Radio Commission have been seeking information as to your whereabouts for a week or more, and here I find you on a Quebec farm milking cows and what not, playing the farmer. Don't you want the job they have for you out west?"

Faversham had been talking excitedly, but dropping his voice he asked "Don't you want the folks here to know who you are? What's the secret Ben? I shall respect it."

"There is no secret" said Ben quietly. "I am simply a tramp, working my way to Kirkland Lake. When I left home I told my mother I might reach there, or be home again, by August, and this is as far as I have come. But what job do you refer to; tell me, I'm keen to hear it."

The principal of the University of Halifax is a friend of mine. He personally broadcasted for you over the radio. I heard him and knew his voice and manner so I phoned him and got all particulars. I was interested the more because I knew your father, Benbow Yates, and guessed it was a son of his they were after. It seems your Principal wrote to the Head of Applied Science at a Western University, saying he had a graduate of outstanding merit he would like to see well placed, and it so happened that a position in the Western University was about to fall vacant, so the westerner wrote to his Halifax friend telling him that his protégé might apply formally but that the position would be his—on the personal recommendation of your Professor. That is the job awaiting your pleasure to accept it, so now I am going to telegraph to your Professor that I have found you asleep in a hayrick so to speak, and I believe he will issue a sort of Habeas Corpus writ for your immediate production, so eager he is to find you."

The Lion's Den

In the city of New York, a worthy young man had spent the last of his savings. For weeks he had sought work diligently, but the answer was always the same; "Sorry, nothing now, but we'll keep you in mind if anything turns up." With his money gone he made a final effort to get employment. He went to the zoo, but the answer was discouraging. They didn't need any more help. He turned away, beat. Noticing his extreme dejection, the man he had interviewed called him back.

"You're pretty badly in need of a job aren't you?"

"Yes", with a brave smile. "I was thinking; our big ape—a great attraction to the children—died two weeks ago. We haven't been able to replace him, but we have his hide. Did you ever do any trapeze work?"

"I can learn."

"Fine! Come in tomorrow." In the course of a couple of weeks a holiday occurred and the zoo was crowded with children and their parents. An enthusiastic mob watched in front of the big ape's cage, while its occupant put on a rollicking show. Swinging across the upper part of the cage, however, he missed his mark and crashed open the iron door, which was unlocked, and tumbled into the lion's den.

There was a momentary hush, then pandemonium reigned. Children screamed, and women fainted.

Inside his den the lion recovered from his astonishment, then cautiously advanced, snarling toward the ape. The ape backed away in confusion, while the lion continued to press. In desperation the ape looked beyond the lion's den to see if a keeper was on the way to his rescue, but he saw none. He retreated to the back wall of the den, breathing a prayer, aware that his end had come. And then he heard the lion whisper, "Don't be a darn fool. You're not the only guy in New York who needed a job."

Ship Accident Resulted in Discovery of Glass

Thousands of years ago a ship's crew of hungry Phoenicians had an accident: Through it they learned about glass!

It all happened when they tied their boat with a cargo of soda salt to a river bank in Palestine and began building a fire to cook their food.

Finding no convenient large stones, they used huge lumps of the ship's cargo to support their pots near the flame. It was then, notes a writer in the Los Angeles Times, that the heat from the fire melted the soda, fused it with the sand of the river bank and produced a transparent substance, which in its improved form we know as glass.

"Where is Violet?" suddenly demanded Stanstead, looking up from the game of cribbage he was playing with his wife. "Fifteen two, fifteen four, fifteen six and two for a pair—where is Violet, and where also is Benbow Yates?" replied Mother Stanstead, pegging eight holes.

Stanstead's eyebrows went up, and he stared at his wife a full minute as she deftly dealt the cards. Catching sight of a dimple in her cheek that only appeared there on certain occasions, betokening a complaisant attitude of mind, it dawned upon him that the question carried the answer to his, and a faint smile at his own density lit his face, but his interest in cribbage flagged and forsook him, and at the end of the game he went out into the garden "to have a smoke with Peter Forgan."

Peter sat in an alcove in the garden, a picture of dejection, legs crossed, elbow on knee, chin in hand, and a stony look in his eyes.

"Hello Peter" said Stanstead. Peter's eyes moved only. He sat still and said nothing.

Stanstead sat down beside him and filled his pipe, lit it and began to smoke in silence, which became irksome. At last he spoke, "Your hired man has blossomed rather rapidly, don't you think? . . . I have been the blind man of the party, I can see . . . I knew that Violet rather liked Ben, but had no idea they loved each other. Did you know, Peter?"

Thus addressed, Peter came to life. He slowly rose, stood before Stanstead, took a deep breath and said "Sure I knew, everybody knew, and was glad, but I thought it would take time to grow. I wasn't prepared to find that the little fellow who used to shoot arrows had gone progressive and now uses an up to date machine-gun. Speed, speed, speed is, what counts nowadays. And yet they've gone for an old fashioned buggy ride. Can you believe it? They came up to me, arm in arm, out of the garden, and says Ben, 'Will you lend us your horse and buggy?' 'What's the matter with the car?' I ask . . . 'Oh the car is too speedy for us', says Ben, 'We prefer the buggy, we want to go to Lachute to phone to my mother. Something important to tell her, haven't we dear?' Well then, Miss Violet blushed a rosy red and standing on her tiptoes whispered in his ear what sounded to me like 'Tell Peter too, my love, he's an old dear' or something like that. Then Ben he just looked at me and said, 'Yes, Peter, There's gold on your farm, and I have found it."

"That's what he said, and if you ask me, she's a mighty big nugget is Miss Violet, I bet she weighs over a hundred pounds."

THE END.

Ducks Become Shot-Poisoned

(From Scientific American)

Wild ducks often escape hunters' gunfire only to be poisoned fatally by lead shot which they eat in dabbling for food in marshy areas. Waterfowl losses from lead poisoning are common, and many ducks die from eating only four or five lead pellets.

The slow, toxic action of the lead first causes ducks to lose their power of flight, and then their ability to swim or walk. In this helpless condition, even should they survive the ravages of the poison, the birds are likely to become victims of the elements or of predators. The American Bureau of Biological Survey called attention to this waterfowl menace in 1919 and pointed out the hopelessness of any remedial measures.

But the outlook for preventing lead poisoning of waterfowl is somewhat brighter now. By mixing lead and magnesium, scientists of the University of Minnesota and of the Biological Survey have developed an alloy that disintegrates in water, or, if it is eaten by waterfowl, breaks up rapidly in the gizzard and passes through the intestinal tract before a fatal dose of lead can be absorbed by the bird's body."

Apple Tree From France First Planted in Canada

Sieur De Monts cleared land at Port Royal in 1605 and in 1603 Pierre Martin brought young apple trees from France and planted them at Belle Isle, near Port Royal, says the Montreal Herald. They grew and other Acadian farmers became interested and propagated apples. Having come from the wine-producing part of France, Pierre Martin and his neighbors, no doubt, made choice cider from their apples. The winter evenings would be made cheery by a drink that would sparkle like the champagnes of Normandy.

Scarcely sixty years after Martin had planted his first orchard there were 1,500 apple trees in the vicinity of Port Royal. Benham had 40 acres of land planted to orchards and all thriving well. When the New England colonists entered the country in 1760, they were amazed to find many small orchards, bearing well. They realized that this would be an asset to their farms and before long, many of them had established orchards.

The first apples to be grown in North America were the Gravensteins, the finest apple of Normandy, prized for its juiciness and flavor.

The first apple trees in Quebec were planted in 1673, thirty years after those in Port Royal. The Fameuse was the variety and is still popular.

White Ash Favored Wood Because It Holds Shape

White ash has one outstanding quality which commends its use in machinery and tools exposed to the weather: this is its ability to hold its shape. Because of this attribute many prefer to use white ash rather than oak or hickory, according to a writer in the Rural New Yorker.

The wood of white ash is lighter than that of oak, hickory or maple, and for this reason is used extensively for ladders, wagon boxes and hayracks. The boy who wants to make a light, strong, snappy bow for hurling his arrows cannot find a better wood than a straight-grained piece of white ash. The wood is strong and tough, coarse, straight-grained, moderately hard and very resilient.

White ash is used extensively in vehicle parts, handles, agricultural implements, boats, sporting goods, etc. It does not wear well, and for this reason will not render long service in moving or rubbing parts.

jacent road-work and water conservation projects. Possibilities of the former have been fairly well exhausted in the recurrent dry areas, and the latter is a limited thing. Not more than $200,000 at the most can be spent this fall on dams and dug-outs.

A great deal of the distress in the west this year is in a district which has had to be helped once or oftener in the past six years, and the machinery can readily be set up to deal with it. It will be necessary for Ottawa to increase substantially the monthly "grants-in-aid" of the two most seriously stricken provinces, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

During last winter, Saskatchewan was getting $350,000 a month and Alberta $175,000. On the first of April these amounts were reduced 15 per cent, and later there was another small reduction. Now they will have to be stepped up again.

Saskatchewan came down with an ambitious program calling for the total expenditure of $12,000,000 and Alberta has similar ideas. Both will be looked after, but the grants will probably be a little shy of original requests. The federal government is getting revenues in a bit more freely than last year, but once again, nevertheless, we are heading into a heavy deficit. That 'balanced budget' is still quite a way off.

PROMISING BRITISH MARKET

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, came back from the United Kingdom impressed with the possibilities of the market over there, if we go after it. He thinks the annual shipment of 100,000 live cattle should not be difficult. The British market deserves more study, and Canadian products deserve more advertising. He has a vote of $300,000 which he can use toward this end, and a small staff will probably be set up over there soon, responsible to the Minister of Agriculture here, to push this affair.

The National Employment

Commission is looking into the housing question; and is trying to solve the financial end, admitted to be the stumbling block to progress. The high cost of money and the consequent high rents have made it unsound for builders and owners to go ahead. If a housing scheme could be launched with money at little more than the quotation on gilt-edge government bonds (say 3½ per cent) it would be commercially profitable, and the houses could be rented at prices within the reach of the average working man, it is believed. Anyway, the commission is going to take a crack at this end. Probably the government will in the long run have to come to the rescue, but private enterprise is in the meantime going to be given a chance to work it out. A building finance corporation is one suggestion. Repairs as well as new houses would be included.

More Work, Less Talk at Local Meetings!

Discussion on trivialities occupies valuable hours in the meetings of almost any organization, while important questions will be settled in a matter of minutes. Some persons will commence an oration on his pet ambition or pet peeve, and the thing is started. It goes on and on, until the subject is talked out, and that sometimes takes hours.

Greatly at fault in most cases are lax chairmen who permit useless talk to drag on and on. But then there are others, the men and women who win admiration by limiting talk on trivial matters to a minimum. Unfortunately, they are few and far between.

Men and women who might some day be eligible for offices in various organizations are bored by these long-winded speeches; they come to a few meetings and then stay away. Sometime or another they are asked to take office or work on a committee, and they think: "Why should I waste my time listening to those windbags?" and often capable workers are lost.

Long-winded oratory doesn't very often help a situation; it kills interest in what otherwise might be a popular organization. Work can be done just as efficiently with less talk.

Pistol Caps Explode in Letter

Ottawa—A postal employee at Rosseau, Ont., was busily stamping letters with the cancellation stamp, built like a hammer, when he was startled by an explosion in one of the letters. It is against the law to send explosives through the mail so a report of the occurrence was sent to the Postmaster.

It developed that a father in Toronto received a request from his wife at Rosseau to send their son some caps for his toy pistol. The father complied, putting the caps in the envelope with his letter. The electric stamper in the Toronto Terminal failed to explode the caps but the sturdy blow in the Rosseau Post Office did the trick. No decision has been reached as to any action on part of the department.

To the Electors of Argenteuil

I take this opportunity to thank, most sincerely, all those who cast their vote in my favour on August 17th., and especially the numerous friends and supporters of the party who have generously and gratuitously given their time for the success of the cause which we were defending, without having in mind the thought of "patronage" or "a job."

I appreciate the whole-hearted support given by the 1564 electors of Argenteuil who favoured my candidature. I will always be at the service of every one as in the past, regardless of petty politics; and let us hope that the new Government, under the leadership of this great patriot, Maurice Duplessis, will bring to our Province a new era of prosperity, and free it for ever of the past regime of "Believe or Die."

"GO CANADIAN OR GO ELSEWHERE!"

Somewhere we saw the above slogan, standing up like a wart on a nose. It implied coercion and compulsion; it smacked of the old press-gang methods—and impressed us as equally out of date!

Loyalty to home, school, club or community is much to be desired. It is especially coveted at this season, when community folks are beginning to consider their fall programs.

Members are filtering back from vacation haunts and summer distractions. Those who have the spark of love still burning for their church, for their lodge, for their favored organizations—will do well to remember how their interest was won.

They were probably "sold" on certain things about the movement, club or group. Their enthusiasm henceforth did not need to be whipped up. It was like spontaneous combustion—containing the elements of potential fire.

Or to change the figure, an interest was created within them. Henceforth they were like a car with a self-starter. Old time cars were started by a crank and main strength and ignorance. So "loyalty" is too often agitated by a crank, with malignity and sarcasm.

We would rather see our people made curious, their interest aroused by good example—than to see them pressed into service. It takes more thought, but it creates more self-starters.

—Be a Communitarian. Everyone can do something for some organization in the community. Make your life count for something worthwhile outside your immediate personal interests. Be a Communitarian, and you are sure to be a better humanitarian.

DEMAND FOR DESIGNS OF PRIZE-WINNING HOMES

Interest in the Dominion Housing Act has shown quite a noticeable increase in recent weeks, since the prizes for the architects' competition for houses under the act were announced. Numerous applications for loans are coming into the department with the expressed desire to use one or other of the five houses placed first in the competition in which 526 architects across Canada participated.

Already 2,000 booklets have been sent out by the Department of Finance, indicating a definite interest in small house building under the Act.

The winning award, of somewhat modernistic type, with flat roof, is proving popular, according to the number of applicants for loans for houses following this particular plan.

"BOOM" MINING TOWN NOW HAS UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

Canada's youngest mining centre — Goldfields, Sask., on the shores of Lake Athabasca—is suffering from a serious unemployment problem because of a large influx of men lured by reports of the richness of the field, according to reports received at Edmonton.

With new arrivals daily by airplane adding to the number of men already unable to obtain employment and many more expected with the arrival of boats, it was estimated the permanent unemployment figure would reach several hundred and Government action would be necessary.

FLEXIBLE WOOD FOUND BY ENGLISH PROCESS

The Forest Products Research laboratories at Princes Risborough, England, has reported that wood can be made flexible, like rubber, and new possibilities for one of Nature's most primitive products are opened out.

The process for making flexible wood is an extension of that in use for bending it. After being steamed it is compressed at both ends in the direction of the fibres until it loses from 15 to 30 per cent of its length, whereupon its flexible properties are revealed.

At the laboratories the process has been tried with success on ash, beech and elm, and it is believed it would apply to most English hard woods.

London is closing many streets to traffic and turning them into playgrounds.

ACCIDENT PATIENTS

Mr. Bert Steere and Mrs. L. Carriere are still confined to hospital but are reported to be much improved. Considerable time must elapse before the injuries received at the recent election meeting can be repaired sufficiently to allow the patients to return home.

THE ELECTION OF COUNCILLORS

On completion of their term of office three councillors were declared to have vacated their seats — Messrs. G. I. McFaul, A. Brunelle and W. Graham. An election to fill the vacancies will be held in the near future.

BACK FROM VIMY

The last of the Vimy pilgrims have arrived back and report a wonderful and inspiring pilgrimage as well as vast changes which have been wrought among the scenes and places where the 1914 holocaust was enacted. The feverish bustle of war has given place to a happy land of peace and prosperity.

IMPROVEMENTS

Much as we may dislike the present condition of our unfinished roads they are a considerable improvement on their pre-election condition. It is to be hoped that work will be shortly resumed to complete the service.

Building is going on apace. Several new dwellings are in course of erection and more have been cleared, making quite an addition to the housing accommodation available. Public spirited citizens have contributed handsomely to beautifying the village by the provision of sidewalks outside their residences. At the present rate of progress and with a continuation of the spirit shown, we should ere long have the sidewalk question a small matter for the council to complete.

SCHOOLS

The Catholic Schools open on Tuesday 1st, and the Protestant Schools one week later. The children are now busy preparing for their new classes, advancing to higher grades with the fall opening.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mrs. E. H. McCoy of Lachute, Que., announces the engagement of her daughter, Elinor Mary, to Mr. Donald M. Hay of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hay of Lachute. The marriage will take place the latter part of September.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Mrs. W. A. Bradley wishes to thank her many friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes in her recent sad bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

COMBIE — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who departed this life Aug. 30th., 1933.

"O happy hours we once enjoyed"

How sweet their memory still, But death has left a loneliness The world can never fill."

This Week in History

An early engagement of the Great War, crushing in its effect upon the morale of a great army and almost overlooked by many of the historians until very recent years, was the historic Battle of Tannenberg which commenced the last week of the first month of the war to end wars—August 26, 1914, to be exact.

The Battle of Tannenberg was a fierce one-sided affair between the Germans and the Russians, on the eastern front. Hindenburg started his war career there—but over the Canadian radio mid-east network, this evening, Jack Kananwin in his broadcast, "This Week in History", will point out that Ludendorff was really the brains of the affair, as he was of many German affairs throughout the four frightful years that followed.

At 6.30 p.m. today (Thursday), Radio's Reminiscent Columnist will add another chapter to his fascinating stories of past tragedies and triumphs with this story of Tannenberg which marked the fate of Russia, opened the way for the Revolution and gave Communism its birth.

ADVISED TO EAT BRAN FOR HER CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helps
Miss Hanson

Read this enthusiastic, voluntary letter: "Just a line to let you know how much I appreciate Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I was troubled with constipation. I asked my doctor what to do. He said to eat bran."

"I tried other brands but they weren't so good, so I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and it is just wonderful. It makes delicious muffins, too." —Miss Agnes Hanson (address upon request).

ALL-BRAN provides mild "bulk" — missing in the average meal. This delicious cereal also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. It is often more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this natural food pleasanter than patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Sold by all grocers. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Mrs. George Bennett has returned home from Lakefield after spending a couple of weeks as the guest of Mrs. Arnott Sr.

Miss Irene Caron, formerly of Lachute, who recently returned from the Vimy Pilgrimage to France, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Rupert Bradford for a few days before returning to her school in Regina, Sask.

At a tennis tournament on the Ayers Limited courts, Lachute Mills, finals will be played next Sunday afternoon between Miss M. A. Rochon and Miss Rose A. Rochon, also between Rene Beauregarde and Claude Tessier. The games commence at 2.30 p.m. Admission to the grounds is free.

Water to be Turned Off Next Sunday

Notice is given by the Town Officer that the water will be turned off in Lachute next Sunday afternoon from 2 o'clock, D.S.T., to permit repairs to the mains. Citizens please make provision accordingly.

But the Ford V-8 stands out again this season, supreme in its class and the ideal average-man's car!

If you have not enquired into the fine qualities of the 1936 Ford V-8 — its stability, comfort, performance and economy — call at our show-rooms and ask for a personal demonstration.

IN ADDITION—ask the man who owns one, either this year's model, last year's, or older Fords — and catch the note of satisfaction in that quality which ranks perhaps highest in car records — namely ENDURANCE.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

You Don't Necessarily Need
An Expensive Camera

You don't need an expensive camera to get fine pictures. The one above, taken with an inexpensive camera, won the grand prize in an international contest.

THERE seems to be the belief among many people that it is necessary to own an expensive camera to take good pictures. Pages could be written describing the limitations of some and the versatility of others but as our space is limited the subject must be discussed rather briefly.

There are many types of cameras to meet every requirement of the photographer, whether he is an amateur or professional, but no camera is capable of taking all types of pictures under all conditions. It is true that some cameras are more versatile than others. One may have an extremely fast lens which permits the taking of snapshots under adverse lighting conditions and if it also has a very fast shutter you can take pictures of subjects moving at extreme speeds. Other cameras have lenses and shutters of various speeds to take pictures—and good ones—within certain limits and conditions.

What I want to impress upon you is this:—You do not necessarily have to own an expensive camera to take good pictures of the usual run of subjects. For instance, in an international amateur snapshot contest conducted not long ago by a large manufacturer of cameras, film and photographic supplies of all kinds, the Grand Prize of $10,000 was awarded the picture taken with an inexpensive camera, which goes to prove that intelligent use of a camera is the first requisite for good pictures.

The same rule applies to movie cameras—and here is the proof. Each year the American Cinematographer, a magazine published primarily for professional movie photographers, conducts an amateur movie contest and receives entries from practically every civilized country in the world.

Under the critical eyes of Hollywood's ace cinematographers, who acted as judges, small, inexpensive 8 mm. movie cameras won a brilliant victory for their owners in winning first and second awards in the 1934 competition. The final decision of these critical judges should convince the world's worst pessimist that he need not wait until he thinks he can afford an expensive movie camera before enjoying the thrills of amateur movie making.

There are thousands of people who are denying themselves one of the great pleasures of life in not owning a camera of some kind—"still" or movie—for there are models priced to meet the limitations or capacity of every pocketbook and all of them take good pictures—pictures you will enjoy now and in years to come.

"Now, boys," said the teacher, "if I stood on my head and the blood ran down into it I should turn red in the face, shouldn't I?" "Yes sir," agreed the class. "How is it then Brown, that when I am standing upright the blood doesn't run into my feet?"

Brown: "Because your feet ain't empty, sir."

JUST A DOG

Maud C. Jackson

Tom has a fine Scotch collie, Bill has an Airedale pup, Bob has a big police dog. That tries to eat you up. They say my puppy isn't much bigger than a frog. And hasn't any ped-i-gree. And so he's just a dog. But he's a real smart puppy; He seems to understand The things they say about him, For he comes and licks my hand. And when I smile and pat him, They know, and so does he, That though he's just a dog to them, He's all the world to me.

"Just think, we have been married 24 hours." "Yes, it seems as though it were just yesterday."

"XACTLY MIXUS SMIX"

"Anything else Mrs. Smith?" "Yes, I want some cereal." "We have a special to day on Krisp Kraxies." "Haven't you any corn flakes?" "No, but we have Korn Krumbies." "What are those Whole Wheat-ex?" "They're very good, but have you tried these Jumbo Flax?" "Those will be all right, and have you any crakers—I mean crackers?" "Well, we have Snix Snax and Nix Nax and Crispie Bixits, or perhaps you would like some Butter-bix." "How about some prexels—I mean Pretzels?" "We have Pretry Stix." "Oh, all right." "Anything else, madam?" "Yes, two stalks of excelery, a can of tomaxoes, a dozen ex-here; read it off this list. I can't talk right any more . . . Thank."

AUNT JEAN HERSELF

A RUDE AWAKENING

The rooster crowd his morning salute
And waked a wrathful Ted
Who was chasing pirates o'er the main
Though soundly asleep in bed.

"Now, but for you" the wee lad cried,
"I'd have caught a pirate king,
I'd have hauled him up in County Court,
And watched him kick and swing,

For his misdeeds upon the sea,
All the wicked things he had done—
But you just had to wake me up
Before the mornin' sun.

Now just for that you'll go without
Growled Teddie, thumping his pillow, hard,
In hopes that he'd dream again.

"Mrs. Soft Fur must have been listening at our door", said Cordelia, "for I have heard my mother welcome her guests in just that way." "No doubt you have", said Grannie, rather sharply, "but we will not talk about it just now. We must hurry if we are ever to get this pudding out of the pot and ready for the table."

"Let me help you", cried Cordelia running to her side. "I'll help too" said Mr. Soft Fur, suddenly appearing from one of the many openings . . . Going to the fireplace he tipped the pot slightly to one side, while Cordelia struggled to lift the pudding out with an immense spoon. She had it almost to the top when it fell back with a splash, causing Mr. Soft Fur to snatch his tail up in his paws and dash away from the fireplace. Cordelia uttered a frightened "Oh", as Grannie bent aside to avoid getting the steam in her face, and Trip tumbled backwards over a stool.

Grannie removed her spectacles and wiped them carefully with her apron. Cordelia stood in fear waiting to see what was going to happen. Grannie had evidently counted ten before she spoke (as all little folk should do when they are angry), for her voice was very gentle as she said—"You are not very much accustomed to that work are you, my dear?" "No", faltered Cordelia, her voice trembling. "I have never tried to lift a pudding out of a pot before." "I thought so!" said Mr. Soft Fur coming back to the fireplace, "and now, suppose you hold the pot while I lift it, then you can help me carry it to the table."

This plan was carried out successfully and in a few moments Cordelia and Mr. Soft Fur were proudly bearing the big pudding to the dining room.

As they entered a sudden silence fell on the place, and a number of curious eyes were turned in Cordelia's direction. But she was so busy helping to set the pudding down safely that she didn't notice them at first. Then her attention was again taken by the tablecloth. It looked so very like one of her mother's best linen napkins that she could scarcely keep from asking about it; but she felt that she must not be suspicious of everything she saw in Jettyland. Besides, Mrs. Soft Fur had come quite close to her, and whispered "I am waiting, Cordelia, to introduce you to our guests. . . This is Cordelia Crooks", she said, addressing her friends; "Cordelia, this is Aunt Fannie Long-Toes and Uncle Roughy Long-Toes; Uncle Silver Back; Aunt Minnie Long-Ears, and Aunt Susie Bright-Eyes", and so on and so on—until Cordelia felt quite confused with all the long toes, bright eyes and long ears. They all looked alike to her!—That is, almost all, except two in particular, who seemed to

THE KILTY DRUMMER'S GOOD TURN

Just prior to the start of the big annual Scout church parade at Saint John, N.B., this year, a woman approached the bass drummer of St. John and St. Stephen's Kilty Troop pipe band and asked him to give his best exhibition of drumstick twirling passing a certain house. The drummer complied readily. Afterwards he learned, he reported, "that an old lady lived in the house, and her son used to be a drummer, and was killed in France. She likes to see the drumsticks twirling. It reminds her of her boy."

Hints for Homebodies

RESPECT FOR THE THRONE

When we read the history of the Georges and William the Fourth, one of the things that seems most amazing is the lack of respect for the throne. The cartoons, the doggerel and the disrespectful statements that were made are almost unbelievable. It shows clearly the love and the respect that has been given to Queen Victoria and her descendants. Perhaps the fact that the ruler was a woman may have had something to do with the change in attitude. Probably the Prince Consort may have helped bring about this change, because although people may not have liked nor understood Prince Albert, they could not help but respect him. The succeeding kings have been rulers to respect and to love and the press has accorded them the treatment they have merited. The light way in which the newspapers and magazines of former days treated the royal family comes as a surprising shock.

GERANIUMS

The old-fashioned geranium is staging a come-back. What a bright cheerful flower it is. Not much care and plenty of bloom. We see it as an edging to foundation planting. There is just such an edging along our street and the salmon-pink blooms make a pleasant contrast to the green of the shrubbery in the background. We find it in the window-boxes and in pots on the steps. Another gardener with an eye to colour puts a blooming geranium in a spot which lacks colour interest for the moment. Being in pots they can be moved around to suit the needs of the season. Later on slips may be started for winter blooming. I, for one, am glad to see the geranium back into favour.

THE TRYING SIXTEENS

Almost the identical problem has come to me twice in the same week. One of the real advantages of parent education is that parents find that the problem which they thought was peculiarly their own, is one that many parents with children of the same age, face. And misery likes company. I will tell you one mother's story and the other is almost the same. Her sixteen year old daughter approves of nothing the parents do or say. Once in a while the father may be all right but the mother—never. If they are out for a walk and the mother happens to say 'what a nice house', the daughter will say, 'how can you like such a house'. If she admires a dress in a window, she hears, 'your taste is dreadful'. If she buys anything for her to wear, she simply refuses to wear it. She heaps scathing ridicule on the mother's own clothes. She argues all the time and objects to everything the younger children say or do unless it is to support them in a disagreement with the parents. From a peaceful happy house she has turned it into a house of friction. This mother is a woman with a keen sense of humour and quite a lot to say. If she recognized that this is a phase that her daughter is going through and that unpleasant as it is she eventually will get over it, and if she could only see the funny side of it, it might help. If Booth Tarkington wrote some of the situations it would be funny, but undoubtedly it is hard to see the funny side of it when you have to live with it. Part of the girl's actions are caused by the desire to feel important. The parents should go out of their way to find opportunities of making her feel important both at home and abroad. She might be given buying responsibilities for herself and the house. If the parents firmly decided that there would be no arguments it would lessen the tension. The mother specially has argued endlessly, with annoyance. It is not easy to keep quiet but it can be done and it takes two to make an argument. She might say something like this, 'We will just think differently on this matter'. And then keep quiet. Each argument has made the daughter enjoy the turmoil she is causing. It takes a lot of wisdom and forbearance to handle such a situation but if parents could see it as another

The Value of Cheerfulness

By John Edwin Price

When the glum days come along it doesn't matter so much whether or not you have a large bank account as it does whether or not you have a reserve of cheerfulness on which you can draw.

A rich man might not loan you money, but a cheerful person just gives you good cheer as easily and readily as though it were the measles. Moreover, you are better off and he's no poorer.

Not only does cheerfulness make a poor man rich, it also makes a dumb man joyously wise and enables him to eat his doughnut while others are weeping in the hole.

Moreover, the cheerful person is good mannered. He may not know which fork to pick up first at a banquet, but he soon puts those near him at ease and makes them feel glad they came.

Then too, the cheerful person is a good traveler. He isn't in a hurry just to catch up with a goal. He goes up little side roads for scenes others miss, and if the day's journey has shown no lakes or mountains, he hasn't missed the wayside flowers nor the insects disporting in the sunlight. Nor is he too tired to take in the glories of the sunset wherever he may have arrived at nightfall.

Louisa H. Alcott used to say, "It is a part of my religion to look well after the cheerfulness of life and let the dismal shift for themselves."

Not bad!

Nor is this, from Charles Kingsley, who laughed a great deal, loved a lot and lived well: "The men who I have seen succeed in life have always been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on their faces and took the changes and chances of the world as they came."

CHOCOLATE CAKE

1 cup granulated sugar
1½ cups flour
¼ teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon soda
pinch of salt

Put all ingredients through the sifter then stir in 2 beaten eggs and 1 cup sour cream. Mix well and bake at 350 degrees. This is a delicious cake with a slightly different flavour than the usual chocolate cake.

TOMATO HAMBURG

If you are tired of the usual meats and are looking for something tasty, try this for a change. Brown 2 lbs. of hamburger in a little dripping, until it has lost its red colour and is slightly browned. Season with salt and pepper and add 1 can of tomato soup and a little water. Cover and cook slowly for about an hour, adding water if necessary. Thicken with flour rubbed smooth with a little water.

Woman of 84 Cooked for 80 Men

Eighty men gathered at a barn-raising on the farm of Mrs. Elizabeth Walters in the State of Iowa. Mrs. Walters, who is 84 years of age, did all the cooking and fed her guests right royally.

stand out as different from the others. One was a very kind-looking mouse and oh, so familiar looking. The other had cruel, mean little eyes just like the wicked old pig out at grandfather's farm, only smaller, and his teeth were long and curved. She could not help shivering when he looked at her. She felt that he could be no other than Silly Curly. The name, she thought, should have been Wicked Curly instead. But supper was ready, and all of the group gathered around the table. Cordelia was given the place of honor beside Mr. Soft Fur, and was very glad to find that the kind-looking mouse without waiting to be asked, had seated himself on the other side of her.

"You do not seem hungry, my child", he said softly, as a few minutes later he noticed that Cordelia was not eating anything. "It is all so new and strange that it has taken my appetite away", she replied, looking curiously at him. She could not get rid of the feeling that she had seen him before.

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

A MATCH

"Old Tom's going to marry Miss Flighty. She can ride, swim, dance, sing, drive a racing car and pilot an airplane. Real all-rounder!"
