CONSTITUTIONAL TALK HAS NO BOX-OFFICE APPEAL, SAYS EGGLESTON, BUT B.N.A. ACT REQUIRES SOME RADICAL REVISION

Ottawa Discusses Provincial Powers, Limitations, and Other Phases of Act

"OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, February 2 — The constitution has occupied the centre of the political stage in the past few days. It is not a subject which can ever expect to have a wide box-office appeal. You can write a fairly bright column about the abolition of hanging, or a new Canadian flag, or even Canada's defence policy. But what can you do with the legal and constitutional arguments, the lengthy historical reviews, the division of jurisdiction, and all the rest of it, in a review written for others than lawyers and politicians? Yet you can't ignore it. Once upon a time I taught Canadian history, and I confess I found the constitutional part of it pretty heavy sledding. Just the same, there is no choice: I shall have to devote some space to the subject now.

The matter was thrust into the centre of things by Mr. Bennett, who made, in the course of a co-operative and illuminating speech, the suggestion that a

Post Office to Appeal Radio Ruling in Britain

The Postmaster-General, under whose department radio reception is taxed in Britain, is to appeal against a decision of the Marylebone magistrate that loud-speakers in blocks of flats worked from a central radio receiver are not each liable to the wireless licence fee.

The magistrate recently dismissed summonses against 12 tenants of luxury flats at Bayswater for working radio sets without a licence.

He held that "working" a wireless apparatus must mean the tuning in required to get the sounds floating in the air, and not just plugging in to a connection in the wall.

J. H. Black Elected to Ayrshire Association Board

Argenteuil was well represented at the annual meeting of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association, held in Montreal last week, and J. H. Black was elected a member of the board, winning out in a second ballot between Gilbert McMillan of Huntingdon and himself.

Secretary Frank Napier was proud to report a total membership of 1,952, the largest in the history of the Association, while registrations were up over last year (1935) by 1,089. He reported 1,675 cows and heifers had qualified in R.O.P. during the year, of which 1,027 had been in the 305-day division and mostly all on twice-a-day milking, which was an increase of 162. Bulls qualified in the R.O.P. numbered 69, 30 as Class AA, and 374 as Class A bulls.

Presentation of the ten cups to owners and testers of the champion cows then followed, and hearty congratulations were offered by more than one speaker to S. J. Chagnon, director of the Provincial Farm School at La Gorgendiere, Que., upon his winning four cups. In replying Mr. Chagnon suggested that there was no secret about his methods of getting constitutional convention of the several parties, provincial and federal, be called to discuss amending the B.N.A. act. He apparently had in mind some such historical meeting as those at Quebec and Charlottetown at which the foundations of the

SOCIAL EVENING MARKED OPENING OF CARPET BOWLING THIS SEASON

ODDFELLOWS WERE HOSTS AT PLEASANT GATHERING

Following their regular meeting at McArthur's Hall on Tuesday evening the Independent Order of Oddfellows were hosts to the Young People's Societies of Lachute United Church, St. Simeon's and the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church. The occasion was the opening of seasonal activities in the carpet bowling league. A friendly game was played among members of the lodge and church teams.

After the game a dance was held, a 7-piece orchestra providing the music, under direction of Mr. Jas. Lowe. Mr. Lowe is an Argenteuil County boy, and his talented group comprises members of the Lowe family.

The young people served refreshments and a pleasant social time was spent.

THREE INCHES OF LAND FOR $4,000

Dr. A. B. Culhane, receiver for the Rockford (Ill.) National Bank, paid a record price for city real estate—$4,000 for a strip of land averaging three inches in width. Part of the bank building stands on the strip. The payment cleared the title to the bank property so that it might be sold.

NEW MAYOR AND TWO COUNCILLORS SWORN; FIRE LOSS $19,000 REPORTED FOR YEAR 1936

Little Change in Personnel of Committees... Tranquil Session Last Evening

The regular meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the Town Hall last evening, being presided over by the newly elected Mayor, Dr. A. Rodrigue. There were also present Councillors Jas. McGibbon, C. Duracher, O. Laurin, G. Muir, W. J. Deacon, J. Speight and E. Prevost — Secretary Germain Filion having duly sworn in to office the new Mayor and Aldermen J. Speight and E. Prevost.

Minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved.

Alderman McGibbon was appointed pro-mayor on motion of Alderman O. Laurin, seconded by Alderman Duracher.

On motion of Alderman McGibbon, seconded by Alderman Laurin, the committees were re-appointed, with Ald. Speight substituting in place of ex-Councillor Lamarche and Alderman Prevost replacing ex-Councillor J. Constantineau.

Fire Chief G. Y. Deacon presented his report of the year's fire losses and the services of his department.

The matter of payment to the Laurentian Roads Limited for maintenance of town roads during the winter months was left to the road committee, to make best bargain possible.

FIRE CHIEF PRESENTED ANNUAL REPORT

Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon gave the fire losses for 1936 as amounting to $19,097.50. This compares with $7,198 in 1935, $25,467 in 1934, and $9,335 in

YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED, ANNUAL UNITED CONGREGATIONAL MEETING

SUCCESSFUL YEAR REPORTED IN ALL BRANCHES

At the congregational meeting of Lachute United Church held last Thursday evening, a very encouraging year was reported by various branches and organizations of the church. The financial statement presented by the treasurer, Dr. G. A. Clunie, showed that the sum of $9,787 had been raised during the year. Of this amount $3,215, or almost a third, had been contributed to Missions. Under pastoral care of this church were 260 families and a total membership of 606. Rev. W. B. Rosborough referred to the loss of 12 members by death, only one of whom had been under the age of 60, and the oldest 98 years.

The following officers were re-elected: L. Armstrong, Congregational Secretary; Dr. G. A. Clunie, Treasurer; C. Duncan, Choir Leader; Miss Ruth Todd, Organist; E. M. Jones and R. C. Rogers, Auditors.

A warm expression of thanks was extended to Rev. and Mrs. Rosborough for their splendid leadership and help in all activities of the church.

NO QUORUM FOR PARISH MEETING

The regular meeting of St. Jerusalem Parish Council was not held last Monday, the councillors who attended being too few to form a quorum.

LACHUTE'S LADY CURLERS MADE FINE SHOWING FOR CALEDONIAN TITLE HELD TWO SEASONS

After a most creditable showing in the Royal Caledonian Trophy games this week, the two rinks entered from Lachute Ladies' Curling Club took an honorable defeat. The progress of these two quartets, skipped by Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, last season's trophy holder, and Mrs. E. H. Wilson, was followed with keen interest among enthusiasts here in the home town, and the turn of fortune which put them out of the running yesterday at Outremont, was learned with general disappointment among local club members. Mrs. Hutton of Ottawa eliminated Mrs. Cottingham, and Miss Campbell of Vankleek Hill beat Mrs. E. H. Wilson to qualify for the semifinals, to be played tomorrow.

The two Lachute teams, skipped respectively by Mrs. W. M. Cottingham and Mrs. E. H. Wilson, made a promising start on Monday, each rink winning its first-round engagement.

Mrs. J. A. McGibbon, Mrs. A. A. McQuat, Mrs. G. G. Mitchell and Mrs. W. M. Cottingham (skip) won against Mrs. W. J. Whitehead's Aberdeen delegation, playing at the Thistle Club. The score was 11-10.

The other rink, comprising Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. N. McNeill, Mrs. W. J. Deacon, Mrs. E. H. Wilson (skip), won their game by default against Mrs. Lamb's team from Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

On Tuesday the Lachute ladies won distinction as being the only entrants with two teams left in the third round, as Mrs. Cottingham skipped her rink to a victory of 13-8 over Mrs. W. B. McLean's Lachine rink (playing at Royal Montreal), and Mrs. Wilson won with a narrow margin of 11-10 over

Local Farmers will Approach Flood Area

TWO CITIZENS JOIN CONVENTION TOUR

Messrs. Douglas A. Rodger, of Lachute Road, and George Rodger of St. Andrews East, are leaving on Sunday for a four-day special tour to the Experimental Farm and Research Laboratories of Purina Mills at St. Louis, Mo. Several hundred farmers from all parts of Eastern Canada have booked reservations on the special train which leaves Toronto next Monday, and their visit will take them into the scenes of relief activity adjoining the flood areas. St. Louis is on the Mississippi River above its confluence with the Ohio, and although the city has been less effected by flood than centres in the adjoining states, it is expected the visitors will see much evidence of the distress and suffering at close range.

"THE NEED OF A DEFINED PURPOSE" (1)

The modern twentieth century museum, advocated by Laurence Vail Coleman and Arthur C. Parker, is winning public support and has in view a double purpose. The archives department for preserving the cherished records of our Historical Society, as outlined in its circulars, is destined to play a large part, as an incentive to the youth of the land to serve their country with devotion and deserve its grateful remembrance. This first appeal, because of love of home and country and pride in the achievements of the sons of Argenteuil, is strong and enduring.

But the museum proper has a stronger appeal to the average visitor in search of pleasure and recreation. "Doing what one must is work; doing what one wants is play... therein lies its greatest power" (2) which justifies the claim that "hour for hour, museums are able to

Two League Hockey Games Played Here During Week

HIGH SCHOOL ALSO MET HULL SATURDAY NIGHT

Saturday night's hockey at Lachute Arena gave a 3-2 victory to local players, in the 4-team-league encounter with Hawkesbury. Feelings ran high during the latter stages, and fistic encounters threatened to cut short the game. However, the match was played out to its conclusion.

Following this game, the Lachute High School met the Hull scholastic team, which had played previously in the day at Brownsburg. The visitors were unlucky on both occasions, having lost to the 'Burg in a 9-4 score, and suffering a 5-4 defeat again with the Lachute scholars.

The district league officials ticked off another game Saturday night, when Brownsburg lost to Grenville in a score of 2-4. The fixture was played at Grenville.

Fire Trucks Responded in Two Minutes After Alarm

Fire broke out last Friday noon in the construction shanty at the new St. Julien Church, and firemen responded promptly to subdue the blaze, which might otherwise have caused serious damage to nearby scaffolding and construction materials. Beyond damage to the wooden shed itself, the loss was confined to two tarpaulin covers. No insurance was held on the site.

Saturday evening the firemen were summoned again to a chimney blaze at the east end of Grace Street, near Bethany. An alarm was turned in from A. Ethier's butcher shop, and a spectator reported the two fire trucks arrived on the scene only two minutes after the summons.

Artificial Light Is Cheaper than Daylight, Says Engineer

A striking statement was made by John Ward, lighting engineer of the Holophane Company, addressing the Montreal Arts Club recently. Artificial light in large buildings is cheaper than daylight, he claimed. "It is a recognized fact", he said, "that artificial light costs less than daylight, because of the added expenditure required for heating a room equipped with enough windows to equal the illumination given by a good system of artificial light."

He stated that light derived directly or indirectly from electric lamps was supplanting daylight. "We must have windows", he added, "because no one wants to be shut up in a room without them. The reason for windows has become purely psychological—artificial light can give better illumination, more soothing to the eyes, and more comfortable."

give more than any one of the great universities" (3). Here we find an array of exhibits, labeled with the precision and technique of the museumist, that tells the story of the way our forefathers lived and how our grandmothers ran their pioneer homes, and we "come to think of history, not as dull, but as scintillating with the inspiration of biography and the fascination of romance." (4).

These trained museum administrators have adopted the name History Museum in preference to Historical Museum (that records of a curious past), for it makes the past live in the present, and furnishes a vitalizing dynamic in teaching continuous history which never grows stale.

For the same reason, if the exhibits of a museum are to have a meaning they must have proper labels, interesting and instructive, and indicative of the period to which they belong, whether it be a harpsichord or a fire-engine. These history-teaching museums are the latest phase in educational evolution, and, in the United States, are being established at the rate of one each fortnight. In 1935 there were already one thousand in the Union, and nine of them in every ten are small museums—many of them adjuncts to historical societies. Their importance to the school and to the cultural life of the community is so evident that they are destined to play a large part in the education of the next generation.

This is the lesson that Mr. Coleman and Mr. Parker are endeavoring to teach us. We may well close their message today with the words of one of Canada's greatest statesmen, Joseph Howe:

"A wise nation preserves its records, gathers up its mementoes, decorates the graves of its illustrious dead, repairs the great public structures, and fosters national pride and love of country by perpetual references to the glories and sacrifices of the past."

Capital Trust Corp., Ltd. Reviews Year of Progress

INCREASE IN ESTATES, INVESTMENTS, ASSETS

Continuation of the sound progress it has maintained through its 23 years of business, is the keynote of the annual report of the Capital Trust Corporation, Limited, which is being presented to shareholders.

Increases were noted in the amount placed in savings by the general public, in the estates under administration, in net profits, and in the balance carried forward from the profit and loss account.

The amount placed in the savings department by the public stands at $5,819,000. This indicates a steady increase, the amount last year being $5,614,000 and, for the previous year, $5,554,000.

Quick liquid assets—government bonds at market value, demand loans and cash on hand—increased by $55,095 to $2,141,993.77, being equal to 91.55% of the total savings payable on demand. This sum compares with $2,086,899.32 last year and $1,816,518.29 the previous year.

The number and value of estates under administration have increased. Total assets, including estates and agencies under administration, amount to $15,716,000.

During the year, the Company was appointed trustee for new bond issues totalling $3,593,300.

Net profits for the year were $55,471.73, being equal to 6.27% of the Company's paid up capital as compared with $53,342.09 last year. The reserve for depreciation of real estate has been increased to $42,381.40. Contingency reserve has been increased by $10,000 and now stands at $110,000.

The balance brought forward in profit and loss account on January 1st, 1936 was $42,706.92, to which has been added the current year's profit of $55,471.73, making a total of $98,178.65 and available for distribution as compared with $95,438.09 last year. This sum has been apportioned as follows: dividends paid during the year $26,526.78; provision for depreciation of assets $10,000; transferred to contingency fund $10,000; depreciation on office furniture and fixtures $2,254.51; provision for Dominion and Provincial taxes $5,020.68; leaving a balance of $44,376.68 to be carried forward, comparing with the balance for the previous year of $42,706.92.

A dividend of 3% was declared and is payable March 1, 1937, to shareholders of record December 31, 1936.

C.P.R. Opens a Unique 'Phone Inquiry Bureau at Windsor Station

An important step in furnishing information to the travelling public was adopted by the Canadian Pacific Rlys. on February 1. G. E. Carter, general passenger agent, announces that the Company has installed in Windsor Station an improved passenger inquiry bureau for patrons requesting information over the telephone as to times of trains, and also in regard to passage, parlor and sleeping car fares.

The new telephone information bureau is the first of its kind in Canada, and embodies the most modern apparatus of the Bell Telephone Company. Combining several former information services at one focal point, the new bureau will provide the quickest and most convenient method of settling travelling problems. The new bureau is a growth in keeping with the times. Additional services of the bureau will include giving information on routes and costs of all types of transportation, as well as arranging for reservation of certain classes of tickets. Entirely new equipment has been installed, the staff has been enlarged and specially trained, and 24-hour service will be given over a system of ten trunk lines under one telephone number, MARquette 5301. Five girls will be on duty at all times.

Instead of making two or three calls for information of train times and fares, and to make reservations, all this will be done by making one call to MARquette 5301. Patrons should still make reservations through the sleeping and parlor car reservation bureau, PLateau 2211.

More than a year's study and careful planning on the part of a joint committee representing the Canadian Pacific Rly. and Bell Telephone Company was required before the successful completion of this new service. To provide five operators on 24-hour duty in the new office, it was necessary to have the switchboard staff specially trained to handle the new equipment. New phraseology had to be established in both French and English to meet the new demands for these consolidated information services. Now, the mere push of a button on the specially-mounted 100-key equipment actuates special relays when sleeping car calls have to be transferred to that department, giving quicker service and doing away with switching for direct answers to all other inquiries.

R. G. Amiot, C.P.R. passenger traffic commissioner, Montreal, was chairman of the committee whose studies evolved the improved communication system, and all operating departments of the Bell Telephone Company were involved in the changes. Culmination of the project brings into being an information bureau that is unique in Canada.

Our Farm News Letter

Contributed by

B. Leslie Emslie, C.D.A. (Glas.) F.C.S.

FARMING EXTOLLED 3000 YEARS AGO

The Imperial Bureau of Soil Science, in its Monthly Letter of September, 1936, published a recent translation from the Sanskrit of a book on agricultural science, whose author is believed to have lived about 1300 B.C. He was Mahamuni Parasara, and the following tribute is paid him, in the introduction: "Glory be to the Saint Parasara who is an authority in agricultural science and whose advice is followed by farmers in growing various crops on their lands."

The book contains many excellent precepts which the present generation might well take to heart. The virtues of diligence and humanitarianism are extolled and the agricultural profession exalted. Thus: "It is only agriculture which helps a man not to be a beggar and it is only through agriculture that a man can be famous in the world, by being called a king."

"Even persons who possess gold, silver and jewels and much clothing beg from agriculturists. . . It is food which is life, it is food which is strength, and it is food which is the source of all wealth. . . Agriculture is glorious, agriculture is to be worshipped, and agriculture is the life of all animals. One can be relieved of sins like spite by means of hospitality. The man who is hospitable serves all humanity, and he is really a great man."

The principles of farm management are described aptly: "If the work of agriculture is well cared for, then one gets gold out of it; if however agriculture is neglected, then it brings poverty. . . For looking after livestock appoint men whom you can trust equally as yourself, and you should personally look after the farming operations, because agriculture, cows, archery, wife and kingdom are all almost destroyed by a moment's inattention."

Concerning beasts of burden and their care the following is noteworthy: "At the time of cultivation the animals should be driven in such a way that they are never subjected to extreme hardship. Crops obtained by giving bodily pain to animals are worthless for any auspicious work. . . If the cattle are supplied with seed-cake powder, grass and other nourishing substance, and allowed to graze morning and evening in the fields, then they never get tired."

REVERENCE FOR STABLE MANURE

A section of the ancient manuscript deals with the construction of cow stables which should be "strongly built, clean and devoid of any animal dung." Then the utilization of cow dung as manure is described: "In the month of Magh (January - February) the heap of cow dung should be worshipped with due respect and on an auspicious day the manure should be lifted with a spade. Then it should be dried in the sun and transformed into powdery form. It should be placed in the field inside small holes in the month of Fulgood (February - March). The manure thus prepared should be distributed in the field at sowing time."

While the farmer could not be expected to observe the "due respect" for manure, which Parasara enjoined, he ought to pay more heed to its material value and adopt means for its protection against loss of fertility.

Federal Member Claimed Governor-General's Guard Mounted on Cart Horses

As a man "who tamed horses in his youth", Jean Francois Pouliot, Liberal Member for Temiscouata, criticized the "use of cartage horses and improperly trained riders" as the Governor-General's mounted guard at the opening of Parliament.

Blaming the officers in charge of the escort "who seemed to lack any sense of the ridiculous", he told reporters those responsible ought to be discharged for allowing "such a clumsy performance" as that given by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards at the Parliamentary opening.

The Dragoon Guards were cavalrymen of the Non-Permanent Active Militia. Horses for the occasion were hired from Ottawa livery stables, Mr. Pouliot said.

"I don't blame the riders, but the horses they were riding are more accustomed to the delivery of bread and milk than to state ceremony. The horses made an infernal noise that day. Surely the cavalrymen who are chosen for the Governor-General's mounted guard should be properly trained army men and their horses the very best."

Two Transients Treated Hospitably at St. Jerome

Two strangers enjoyed the hospitality of St. Jerome one night last week. Not only did they find themselves a bed for the night but they also managed to get themselves a free supper.

They entered the St. Jerome Cafe and ordered a meal, which they ate heartily, and when the Chinese proprietor demanded 75 cents in payment they told him they had been sent to the cafe by the chief of police. This brought about a call to the police station and Chief Latour, not having sent anyone to the cafe, ordered a constable to investigate.

The constable, after hearing the story on both sides, decided to take the pair to the station. There, they admitted they were without money and had been hungry. They added that they were also in need of a bed for the night.

As the proprietor of the cafe did not want to lay a charge against the pair, the chief of police added to the hospitality of the city by having the two men placed in a cell and giving them protection for the night.

Relieves Workers of their Worries

One used to hear it said that clergymen should be kept free of financial worries so they could better concentrate on spiritual truths. J. Harvey Gravell, a paint manufacturer, has paid up the old debts of all his employees. He does not claim to be entirely philanthropic in this, as he believes they will render better service with a hundred-thousand-dollar debt lifted off their minds.

present Dominion were laid. He took it for granted that the constitution needed revising. Most people who have observed just how far the present Act stands in the way of reform, will agree with him. But how is it to be done? There must be reasonable unanimity of the nine provinces and the Dominion. Can it be attained? An effort was made last year, but what with the attitude of the Senate and the objections raised by several provinces, even that minor change could not be proceeded with. What hope would there be of an overhauling, aimed at bringing the constitution of 1867 into mesh with the conditions of 1937?

A ROUND TABLE TALK

Mr. Bennett, advocating a convention of parts and parties, thought that a round table meeting of this sort would start the revision hopefully on its way.

The Mackenzie King government, accepting Mr. Bennett's suggestion in the constructive way in which it was offered, still did not think that such a convention was necessarily the best way about it. Mr. Mackenzie King, putting his finger on what he thought was the place where the shoe pinches most at the moment, namely the taxing powers and the social obligations of province and Dominion, seemed to favor a royal commission or series of commissions, not, perhaps, to go into the whole question immediately, but to bear down on these immediate matters which demanded adjustment, and for which, indeed, some temporary relief might be needed even before a commission could report.

Before the week was out, news from London added emphasis to the need of discussion between provinces and Dominion on this subject. It is now clear that, as the B. N. A. act stands, the Dominion government has no administrative rights in the field of social legislation. It cannot enforce an unemployment insurance scheme, nor minimum wages, nor limitation of hours of labor, nor even old age pensions. These are, as the constitution is written, provincial measures.

QUESTIONS BEING ASKED?

Should they be left provincial measures? If so, then we must give up all our ideas about national social legislation along the lines listed above. Any province that wishes can put these measures into force: others need not. One sees what that means, and what problems of competition in industry, of migration, to provinces where social laws are better, or to provinces where production is cheaper, what problems in the fair division of federal monies, are involved.

Should the federal government be given power to admin-

One of the experiments in a written examination in science was: "Define a bolt and nut and explain the difference."

A girl wrote:—
"A bolt is a thing like a stick of hard metal, such as iron, with a square bunch on one end and a lot of scratching wound around the other end. A nut is similar to the bolt only just the opposite, being a hole in a little chunk of iron sawed off short, with wrinkles on the inside."

FASTER DELIVERY OF MAIL

More frequent railway mail service in several widespread areas has been announced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, Postmaster General. The speeding-up of delivery in these areas was incidental to the department's constant aim to provide the public with the most efficient postal service economically possible, he said.

The improved railway service affects areas from the Maritimes to the Western Provinces and in most cases provides for the doubling of frequency—from tri-weekly to daily except Sunday. In some cases a change has been made from baggage car to railway post office. The latter is a car manned by railway mail clerks who handle the mail en route, speeding up delivery by as much as 24 hours in some instances.

EDITORIAL

What Makes the News?

When two men are throwing knives at each other in the front yard, not many people will go out in the back garden to watch a man cultivate pansies. . . . There may be some ground for the complaint that Americans consider Europe a hotbed of political squabbles, and that newspapers on this side ignore the wholesome progress and activity that goes on over there every day.

Then again, it may be that Europe's news agencies are themselves to blame. The dogma of journalism brands disaster as greater in news value than social triumphs and the building of nations. American newspapers will furnish the type of news that is fed into their supply barrel; and the European dailies themselves constitute that supply in large measure.

Personally we would rather read about Germany's new housing program, Russia's campaign against drunkenness or Japan's advances in education, than all the turmoils, executions and political upheavals these countries can produce at will. . . . We like to believe that this is a factor to the credit of small country newspapers, where in constructive events make big news while crime and disorder rank second in importance.

Character Formed in Early Years

"Prohibition gave temperance a set-back that is difficult to overcome", writes Jessie Allen Brown in this week's Hints for Homebodies. The observation is made applicable to the home and the upbringing of youngsters, for the writer asserts there are no indulgences so attractive to young people as those which are forbidden by their parents.

Adults who read this regular column on page seven of The Watchman find in it many sound views and practical pointers. None is so qualified to advise on parenthood and home management as a mother with the faculty of observing, beyond the four walls of her home, the far reaching effects of child training. Not all mothers have this wider vision, and the discipline which they consider conducive to a child's immediate welfare may be forming characters deficient in the larger qualities of citizenship. Long-term viewpoints are more needed in the upbringing of children than in municipal budgets and town planning.

Hints for Homebodies are recommended to the attention of our womenfolk. Jessie Allen Brown's ideas on "forbidden things" this week are consistent with her usual good sense and sound reasoning.

Floods—Then and Now

People who remind us about the "good old days" would hardly have preferred being in a flood fifty years ago.

An announcer calls into the microphone: "Send high truck to such and such address, blind invalid weighing 260 pounds. Power boats necessary for confinement case, rowboat might capsize, couldn't be handled in current" . . . In the good old days there were no high trucks, no power boats.

Another announcer says, "Doctor waiting at such and such a street with medical supplies" . . . The horse and buggy couldn't have gotten that far in time.

"Typhoid shots are being given at school." In the good old days fever broke out wholesale in time of flood.

"Airplane dropped tents and supplies to 150 marooned on island hill", says a news despatch. These would have starved or died of exposure in the "good old days."

The short-wave radio advised rescuers of the location of people in danger, who without it would have perished. It also facilitated the giving and receiving of instructions where other means of communication failed or were non-existent.

Instead of hundreds of lives being lost, the total would have run into thousands fifty years ago.

Today, with modern machines and modern organizations such as Boy Scouts, Red Cross, W.P.A., National Guard and a universal willingness to serve, suffering has been mitigated and death has been cheated in ways that the good old timers could not have imagined!

Civilization and Safety

We are all familiar with stories of the tight-rope walker who tripped over his own door sill and killed himself, and of the parachute jumper who fell from a step ladder and broke his neck.

These incidents came to mind recently with the death of Martin Johnson in the Sierra Madre range airplane crash. Johnson and his wife had survived extreme dangers in Africa, including thousands of air miles and landings on narrow rivers, to come home and meet death on an airline with millions of safe miles to its credit. A few days prior to the accident, Johnson had said, "America, probably because it is the most civilized place in the world, is the most dangerous."

According to some of our city cousins, the small town is not too civilized. Possibly not, but we don't have the traffic and industrial deaths either. We'll all die sometime—but we'll live longer (thank you) taming the woods and the wild beasts of these rural areas we live in.

ducts, she is making a wonderful contribution to the work of Christ's Kingdom in Africa.

Mr. Harold Damant presided at the meeting on Friday evening. The speaker was thanked by Mrs. L. Morris, and Rev. W. B. Rosborough, and a very appropriate and beautiful solo was rendered by Mr. J. S. Giles.

St. Jerome Has Problem of Smoke Abatement

After listening to a delegation of residents living near the Eagle Lumber Company plant who complained of the smoke nuisance caused by the company's chimneys, the St. Jerome city council ordered the secretary to write to the company officials and request that a smoke destroyer be installed.

The councillors decided to permit the Municipal Hall to be used on Sunday for a ball to be held in connection with the winter carnival.

Nubell Gold Mines, Limited (No Personal Liability)

At a recent meeting of the Directors of the Nubell Gold Mines, Limited, complete satisfaction was expressed, not only at the progress being made in developing the properties, but also at the substantial condition of the treasury, as shown by the report of the auditor of the Company for the year ending December 31st, 1936.

Two engineers' reports were submitted to the Directors, one that of Julius M. Cohen, M.E., and through him, that of the resident engineer in charge of development at the properties. Both these reports were enthusiastically received and adopted by the Directors, as they were both of an encouraging nature as to the future outlook of the property. Mr. Cohen mentioned the presence of free gold in the quartz veins and said further: "Your property offers two contrasting conditions, namely, high gold values in a brecciated zone and sulphides with large tonnage possibilities", while the resident engineer stated in part, in his report: "Gold and tellurides have been seen in apparently barren looking rocks."

Four drill holes have now been completed being from 135 to 150 feet apart. These drill holes intersected heavily mineralized zones which were 12 feet, 35 feet, 58 feet and 60 feet in width, and the depths at which these mineralized zones were encountered were from 90 to 145 feet.

In view of the progress made and the substantial financial condition of the Company, as well as the promising outlook, the Directors raised the price of the shares to fifteen cents per share. Some held that the price should be made twenty-five cents, the price at which most other companies bring out their initial offering regardless of development. This, it was felt, would be quite justifiable, but as our policy has always been to advance prices gradually and have as much value as possible back of the shares, it was felt that for the time being, fifteen cents should be the price, and it was resolved that this become effective at once.

By continuing this gradual advance in price as developments and increased values justify, we feel that when the time comes to put the stock on the market at a higher price, there will be sufficient intrinsic value back of the shares to maintain this advance.

We believe, in view of the above mentioned facts, and particularly the enormous ore body intersected by the diamond drills, that this stock at fifteen cents per share affords a real opportunity to those who see fit to take advantage of it at the present time.

St. Simeon's Year Closed With Favorable Balance

REPORTS HEARD AT ANNUAL MEETING

The annual Vestry Meeting of St. Simeon's Church, Lachute, was held on January 20, with the Rector, Rev. W. LeCras, in the chair.

The Warden's report showed that all obligations had been met and a small balance carried over into the New Year. This was considered encouraging in view of the fact that extra assessments had been levied on the Parish. The various organizations showed that progress had been made, each having contributed towards the work of the church.

The following were elected to office:—Rector's Warden, J. Skuffham; People's Warden, Robt. Miller; Lay Delegates to Synod, S. E. Smith and A. Bothwell; Vestry Clerk, A. Bothwell; Select Vestry, Rector, Wardens and Mrs. S. Holt, Mrs. R. Miller, Mrs. A. Bothwell, Miss M. J. Valpy, and Messrs S. Holt, H. Sutton, A. Noble and Geo. Leggett.

Missionary to Angola, W. Africa, Spoke Here

FIRST HAND VIEWS AND NARRATIVES

Rev. S. R. Collins, B.A., one of the United Church missionaries in Angola, West Africa, was a visitor to Lachute United Church on Friday evening, when he addressed a meeting under the auspices of the Young People's Society. He gave a graphic account of the work of evangelization and education being carried on in the Portuguese section of Africa where the United Church maintains three central stations, 425 out-stations and four hospitals. The work is carried on by 16 missionaries and 389 native helpers.

Mr. Collins told of the struggle which is being carried forward by the missionaries and their helpers against ignorance, superstition and sin, and of the encouraging results in transformed lives, transfigured homes, and in a new and more wholesome type of community life. His address, which was intensely interesting, was illustrated by lantern slides.

INDIANA FLOOD SCENE

From the hillside where this photograph was taken, hundreds of residents of Tell City, Ind., located along the Ohio River in the valley below, watched the rising waters as they ruined their homes and property.

Lachute Band Sponsored Fine Dramatic Effort

BROWNSBURG PLAYERS IN CLEVER PERFORMANCE

A dramatic entertainment staged in the Auditorium last Saturday on behalf of Lachute Brass Band drew a full attendance, both at the matinee performance for children and at the evening show. A group of Brownsburg players featured in a drama entitled "Le Secret de la Confession"; the play, spoken in French, gave scope for clever characterization, and the players under direction of Mr. Omer Danis did full justice to the interesting plot, performed in two acts.

The cast included :

Cure Montmoulin, J. M. Danis; Lauser, a criminal, Leonard Lupien; Mayor, Ernest Lavoie; Notary, R. Hebert; Secretary, Leo Brunelle;

Director, L. Demers; Lawyer, B. Clement; Prisoner, L. P. Quesnel; Domestic, R. Neveu; Farmer, Omer Guay; Bearer, J. P. Quesnel; Policeman, F. Brisson; Hospital attendant, Paul St. Denis; President, Y. Pilon; Proctor, Omer Danis; Angel, Miss R. Legault.

During the intermission Miss Anne Marie Pariseau recited "Triedburga", by Father Delaporte. Other presentations included a duet, "Sing-Sing-Sing", by Mrs. O. Danis and Miss Laura Lupien, with piano accompaniment by Mr. L. Lupien; a tap dance by Misses N. Racine and J. Hebert, with D. Quesnel, Dave Maitland and Noel Racine, directed by Mr. Albani Carriere and accompanied by Mr. G. Forget on the violin; and a comedy, "Le Desespoir de Jocroisse", by L. P. Quesnel, E. Legault, G. Clement, and O. Guay.

The entertainment was also interspersed with instrumental selections by the band, directed by Mr. Alex. Guenette.

Parliament Hears of Dodges in Tourist Customs Exemption

PECULIAR SITUATIONS DISCUSSED

Some ludicrous situations, brought about by the $100 customs exemption on goods brought in from a foreign country, were aired in the House of Commons this week.

Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue, admitted that his department had met with difficulties in administering this privilege to returning Canadians.

M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rose-town-Biggar) pointed out there had been many complaints by people coming back to Canada who were obliged to pay duty on a radio which was installed in their auto, but the same radio came in free of duty if it were carried loose in the back seat.

Another case related by Mr. Coldwell was that of a man coming back from the United States in his car containing four new tires bought in the United States. He was warned (he crossed on the boat from Vancouver to Victoria), that if the tires were on the car they were dutiable, but if they were off the car they could enter free. The tourist in question removed the tires from the car wheels, ran the car in on the rims and brought the tires in free of duty. "If such things can happen", said Mr. Coldwell, "then this particular provision has been made ridiculous."

"The view taken by the Department", said the Minister, "and by myself, was that unless we depart entirely from the language of the item we cannot possibly declare as a Department that automobile tires on wheels, revolving and in use when they come into Canada, are 'goods included in the baggage accompanying residents in Canada returning.' Similarly we have said that we cannot rule a radio, affixed to a car as part of the car and used in the car abroad and coming back into Canada as part of the car, could be described as goods included in the baggage of the returning resident."

Another strange case came from Mr. Coldwell. "I cannot see this radio case is any different from a lady coming into Canada", he said, "wearing a new pair of shoes because she lost her sole in the United States—I mean the sole of her shoes. I fail to see the difference. I hope the legislation will make the interpretation more liberal than it has been during the past year."

We note with pleasure that Mr. S. J. Staniforth has been appointed second vice-president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, at their convention held in Montreal this week.

Friends of Mr. Henri Lefebvre, a patient in the Notre Dame Hospital, Montreal, and of Dr. Jules Lafleur, who is practising there but has also been on the sick list, are pleased to know that they are both much improved in health.

AUNT JEAN

FIRST TAKE A LOOK

A big owl sat on an old oak tree
When the evening skies were gray,
Hoping to catch a wee wood mouse
As he passed to his home that way.

But the wee mouse stopped and looked about,
Saw a shadow on the snow—
"That looks like an owl," said the wee wood mouse,
"Another way home I shall go!"

He scampered around the oak tree bole
To the shade of some cedars thick,
And the hungry owl did not catch him at all
For the mouse had been too quick.

When little folk go to cross a street,
They should stop, like the mouse, and see—
For the great big car that looks quite far

A SKATING PARTY (Concluded)

One of the smaller children had overheard Maude's words about guessing what was in Lila's schoolbag, and not being worried as to whether it was polite or not he shouted, "Hey Lila! we are going to have a contest!"

"How lovely", cried Lila, in her high-pitched voice, "May I have a part in it?"

"Yes, of course", giggled the lad, "you can be judge. We are all going to guess what you had in your school bag this morning." Lila's face again assumed a mysterious air. "What makes you think I had anything more than my school books in the bag, Master Impertinence?"
she asked.

"Because of the suspicious looking bulge, instead of its usual streamlined appearance", Maude cried, "Do tell us what is in it, Lila, I am about consumed with curiosity."

"Miss Martin will tell you at noon", said Lila, "and you may guess as much as you please until then. I shall not tell if you are right or wrong."

The school bell rang just then, and without another word the pupils hurried along, more mystified than ever. Maude in particular was so lost in wonder that she actually forgot to poke Alma, for the entire hour.
Just before the noon bell rang, Miss Martin said, "Children, I have a new duty—that of postman. When the bell rings please remain in your seats until your names are called, and when they are called you will please come up to my desk, receive your mail and pass out of the room quietly."

There was a tiny envelope for every pupil, and the moment they were outside there was great excitement in opening them. "An invitation to a skating party on Jones' pond on Saturday afternoon, with a weiner roast after. Hip, hip, hurrah!" was shouted in chorus.

"Lila's not so uppity after all,
is she, Maude?" whispered Alma. "Three cheers for Lila and her mother!" they all shouted, as Lila appeared in the doorway. The girl's face grew radiant. She had felt that she was not really popular with some of the pupils, but this eager acceptance of her invitation was certainly very pleasing.

Saturday was a perfect day and the pond seemed alive with color as the skaters glided about—blue, red and green sweaters neighboring with each other.

Maude, who had been a little late in coming, stood gazing at the scene for a few moments before venturing on the ice. "The rainbow has become unfasten-ed", she chuckled, "and has floated down to earth. But it's a happy looking sight just the same. Oh, how I wish this pond was the Amazon River. I just feel like skating on and on."

"Why the Amazon more than any other river?" asked Belle Gilby, skating over to her.
"Wouldn't our own North River do, or even the Ottawa?"

"No, it's the Amazon for me.
It is the widest river in the world and I feel just like skating on and on." "Oh, a sort of a non-stop marathon, eh?"
laughed Belle.

"Maude would be better in a skating marathon than in a tree-sitting contest", cried Alma; "she's the uneasiest person I ever had the misfortune to sit in front of!"—She held out her hand to Maude. "Come along with me, Infant!" she said, "then I shall know just where you are. If I let you skate alone I'll be expecting you to poke me in the back at any moment."

Maude accepted the proffered arm and away the two chums went to the other side of the pond.

It was indeed a happy afternoon, and a still happier time followed when, seated on sacks of hay around a bonfire, they roasted weiners and marshmallows till the moon came up.
"Isn't the moonlight wonderful", exclaimed Belle Gilby.

"Yes, and it is more than wonderful," remarked Bill Lonsdale, "it's useful as well.
Do you know, fellows, I was reading that moonlight is better than floodlights for landing airplanes with!" From airplanes the talk turned to war-torn Spain, and Maude ventured, "I have been doing some reading too, and do you know that the words 'Contraband of War' were first used in a treaty between England and Spain in 1625, and were actually applied to arms and ammunitions and the material with which they were made—and also that the name Spain originated from the Phoenician word, shaphan, meaning rabbit. In olden times there were so many rabbits in that country that the people couldn't grow crops fast enough to feed themselves and the rabbits too, but they are greatly reduced in number now."

"How interesting", said Bill,
"and it's too bad that it is not inhabited by rabbits now, instead of the human beings who have no regard for life, or for beauty of countryside and buildings."

"I have heard my dad say that war is a leveller", added Alma, "and it is certainly levelling Spain."

"Let's forget Spain and have a moonlight-firelight skate before we go home. Talking of war always gives me the creeps", concluded another member of the party.

For a few moments the hills rang with their merry shouts, then the night grew silent as with a final "Hurrah for Lila and her mother", the young folks trooped home.

Next story — "A Valentine for Dad."

FISHIN'

Supposin' fish don't bite at first,
What are you goin' to do?
Throw down your pole, chuck out your bait
And say your fishin's through?
You bet you ain't; you're goin' to fish
An' fish, an' fish, an' wait
Until you've ketched a bucketful
Or used up all your bait.

Suppose success don't come at first,
What are you goin' to do?
Throw up the sponge and kick yourself
And growl, and fret, and stew?
You bet you ain't; you're goin' to fish,
An' bait, and bait ag'in,
Until success will bite your hook,
For grit is sure to win.

A WOMAN'S SONG

A house to clean and a man to scold,
And a warm little sleeping babe to hold;
What does a woman want but this—
A house and a man, and a child to kiss!

A cake to bake and a floor to sweep,
And a tired little child to sing asleep,
And a man to welcome when work is past—
These are the things whose lure will last.

A vote and a job? Oh, I suppose That there are women who yearn for those,
Who'd rather be foot-loose, gay and free,
But—a house and a child and a man for me!

For a house, I'll choose this house to keep,
To scrub and dust and paint and sweep;
For the child, our own Elizabeth Ann;
And silent, awkward you for the man!

SAVES INDIAN LIVES

More than 30 years ago a bridge over a rocky stream at Palampur, Northern India, was destroyed by an earthquake, and not rebuilt. During the rainy season it became a dangerous torrent, and could be crossed only by fording, or many miles of detour. Each year a number of travelers lost their lives in attempting the crossing. Two years ago a troop of Boy Scouts of the Canadian Anglican Mission School at Palampur under Rev. Geoffrey
Guiton, a former Montreal
Scoutmaster, built a stout four-span bridge across the stream, since when the road has been constantly open and not a life has been lost.

Each In His Appointed Hour

Lincoln Meeker of Pitt Meadows, B.C., escaped serious injury and death when he drove his car into a freight train. Lincoln failed to see the train as he approached the crossing, and drove his auto into a box car.
He was carried about two hundred feet before being thrown from his auto, which miraculously saved him from serious injury. The automobile was a total wreck, but Lincoln's injuries were of such a minor nature that they were treated at home.

Contrast this experience with that of Guiseppe Sterzini, who received a slight scratch on the hand last week while rehearsing an opera scene, and died in a few days from blood poisoning.

Hints for Homebodies

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman
By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

HOPING FOR THE BEST

This business of writing a column is like a shot in the dark. You cannot know what will be interesting, but just hope you will hit something. Usually I write about things that interest me, and trust they will interest you too. I have been rather afraid that I was overdoing topics on Nova Scotia, but my Christmas and New Year mail, both from personal friends and newspaper friends, had so many comments on them that I am led to believe you are interested too. The New Year started wrong for me. For the first time I missed a column. The reason, there were 53 Thursdays in the year—one too many for me. The column was written and I was waiting for the proper time to mail it. I would like to tell you of one of the June-in-January days down here. We started out for a drive and we went—yes, you have probably guessed it, down to the waterfront. It was so mild that we sat in the park for an hour or more and watched the breakers. Just as we got there one of the Lady boats came in view. We watched the doctor's boat go out, and the liner slow up to take him aboard. Then the tug came along to dock her. A three-masted schooner came along with sails set. The fishing-boats all have power and we seldom see the sails, except just one to steady them. Just as she came to us, she took down her sails and went in to the harbour under power. On the distant horizon we could see the pilot-boat, ready to put a pilot aboard any large ships coming in. There were smaller craft about, and then to cap the climax the Duchess of Athol sailed.—An unforgettable afternoon.

THE FORBIDDEN THINGS

To most of us, old and young, the forbidden thing, the thing that we cannot have, is the thing we want most. I have felt that I simply must have a new evening dress. The money is in the bank to pay for it and now I have decided that I don't want one; the one I have is new to my friends here. I can have it, so I do not want it. The forbidden thing is the attractive thing, specially to youth. Youth is the time of rebellion and a desire for the unattainable. If parents could remember this, life might be easier for them and their children. Do not make things attractive by forbidding them. When cards and dancing were forbidden in many homes, the children from those homes were much keener about them than those from homes where they were allowed. The boy who knows he will be allowed to smoke when he is old enough is apt to start years after the boy who knows it will be forbidden. He will have the satisfaction of doing the forbidden thing. Prohibition gave temperance a set-back that is difficult to overcome. Adults took a surprising pleasure in doing the forbidden thing. The best thing we can do is to give our children decent standards and not make the less desirable things attractive by forbidding them.

DRIED APRICOTS

Many people who use prunes frequently never think of cooking apricots. They are a very attractive fruit, and along in the winter when the preserve bottles are getting empty it is a good idea to use some dried fruits. Look over a pound of apricots and separate carefully; if any stick together they will not soften properly in cooking. Wash, then cover generously with cold water, as they swell considerably. Let soak overnight. Cook slowly for 15 minutes, then add 4 cups sugar and continue cooking until the apricots are quite soft but not broken. It is better to cover while cooking, as the fruit floats and some may not be thoroughly cooked unless covered. This may look like a lot of sugar, but it gives a rich preserve that is tart. Bottle and chill thoroughly before using.

GOLDEN GLOW

Drain 12 cooked apricots. Whip $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cream. Beat the apricots with a rotary beater until thoroughly broken down. Fold in the whipped cream and add four cookies which have been rolled, or the crumbs from a couple of pieces of cake. Stir carefully, then taste to see if sweet enough, and add more sugar if required. Pile in sherbet glasses and chill.

More Tasty Fish Recipes

Try this delicious recipe for stuffed fillets of sole. It is one that is simple to prepare and one that every member of the family will enjoy. Choose six large fillets of equal size, which will serve four to five people. Make a stuffing by moistening a cup and one-half of stale bread crumbs with a cup or more, depending on the staleness of the crumbs, of hot, sifted tomato juice, one-half a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of minced parsley, and one-half a teaspoonful of pepper. A teaspoonful of mixed dried herbs may be added if desired. Spread this stuffing over three of the fillets, place over these the left-over three fillets, fasten at the sides with wooden toothpicks, lay on the grate of a baking pan with a thin slice of salt pork over each, pour into the pan a cup or more of fish stock, water, or water and tomato mixed and bake for half an hour until done, at 350 degrees F., basting every ten minutes.

Pan-broiled fillets à la Meunière are delicious too:

2 lbs. Canadian fish fillets; 1 tablespoonful finely minced parsley, 4 tablespoonfuls butter; juice of one lemon; salt and pepper.

Roll fillets in salted flour. Heat some oil in a frying pan and fry fillets until cooked a nice brown on each side. Remove to a hot platter. Melt the butter, add the lemon juice.

And don't forget that a good sauce always adds to the zest and enjoyment of a fish dish.

SERVICE CLUBS ARE RECOGNIZING THE NEED

One of the greatest things the Church can do is to provide a place for young people to meet and something for them to do. Youth, if given the opportunity, is more apt to do the right thing than the wrong. One large church has neglected its young people, has nothing for them but a none-too-interesting young people's meeting. Gradually the young people have left and there are few in the congregation but older persons. Some of the young ones may have gone to other churches, but it is doubtful. Another church of about the same size has kept its youth. Its greatest contribution was in providing a place for them to congregate and something for them to do. During the teen-age it is normal for boys to gather in gangs. One particular gang spent most of their spare time in the Parish Hall. There was provision made for the Scouts, and these boys were Scouts and later did Cub work. There were badminton courts and the game was always an excuse for the boys to gather round. Later some of this gang took over the routine work in the Sunday School and for years did the clerical work, looked after the lantern, distributed the papers, counted the collection and did all the things which amount to considerable work in a large Sunday School. The point is that, when they needed some place to be together the church had provided that place. Service clubs are recognizing that need. The Toronto Kiwanians have organized a boys' club and provided a place in old Trinity College for the boys to use. In a district which provided a great many delinquent boys, the number has decreased to almost nothing since the club was organized. Service clubs do a lot of practical Christianity.

When Should Diseased Tonsils or Adenoids Be Removed?

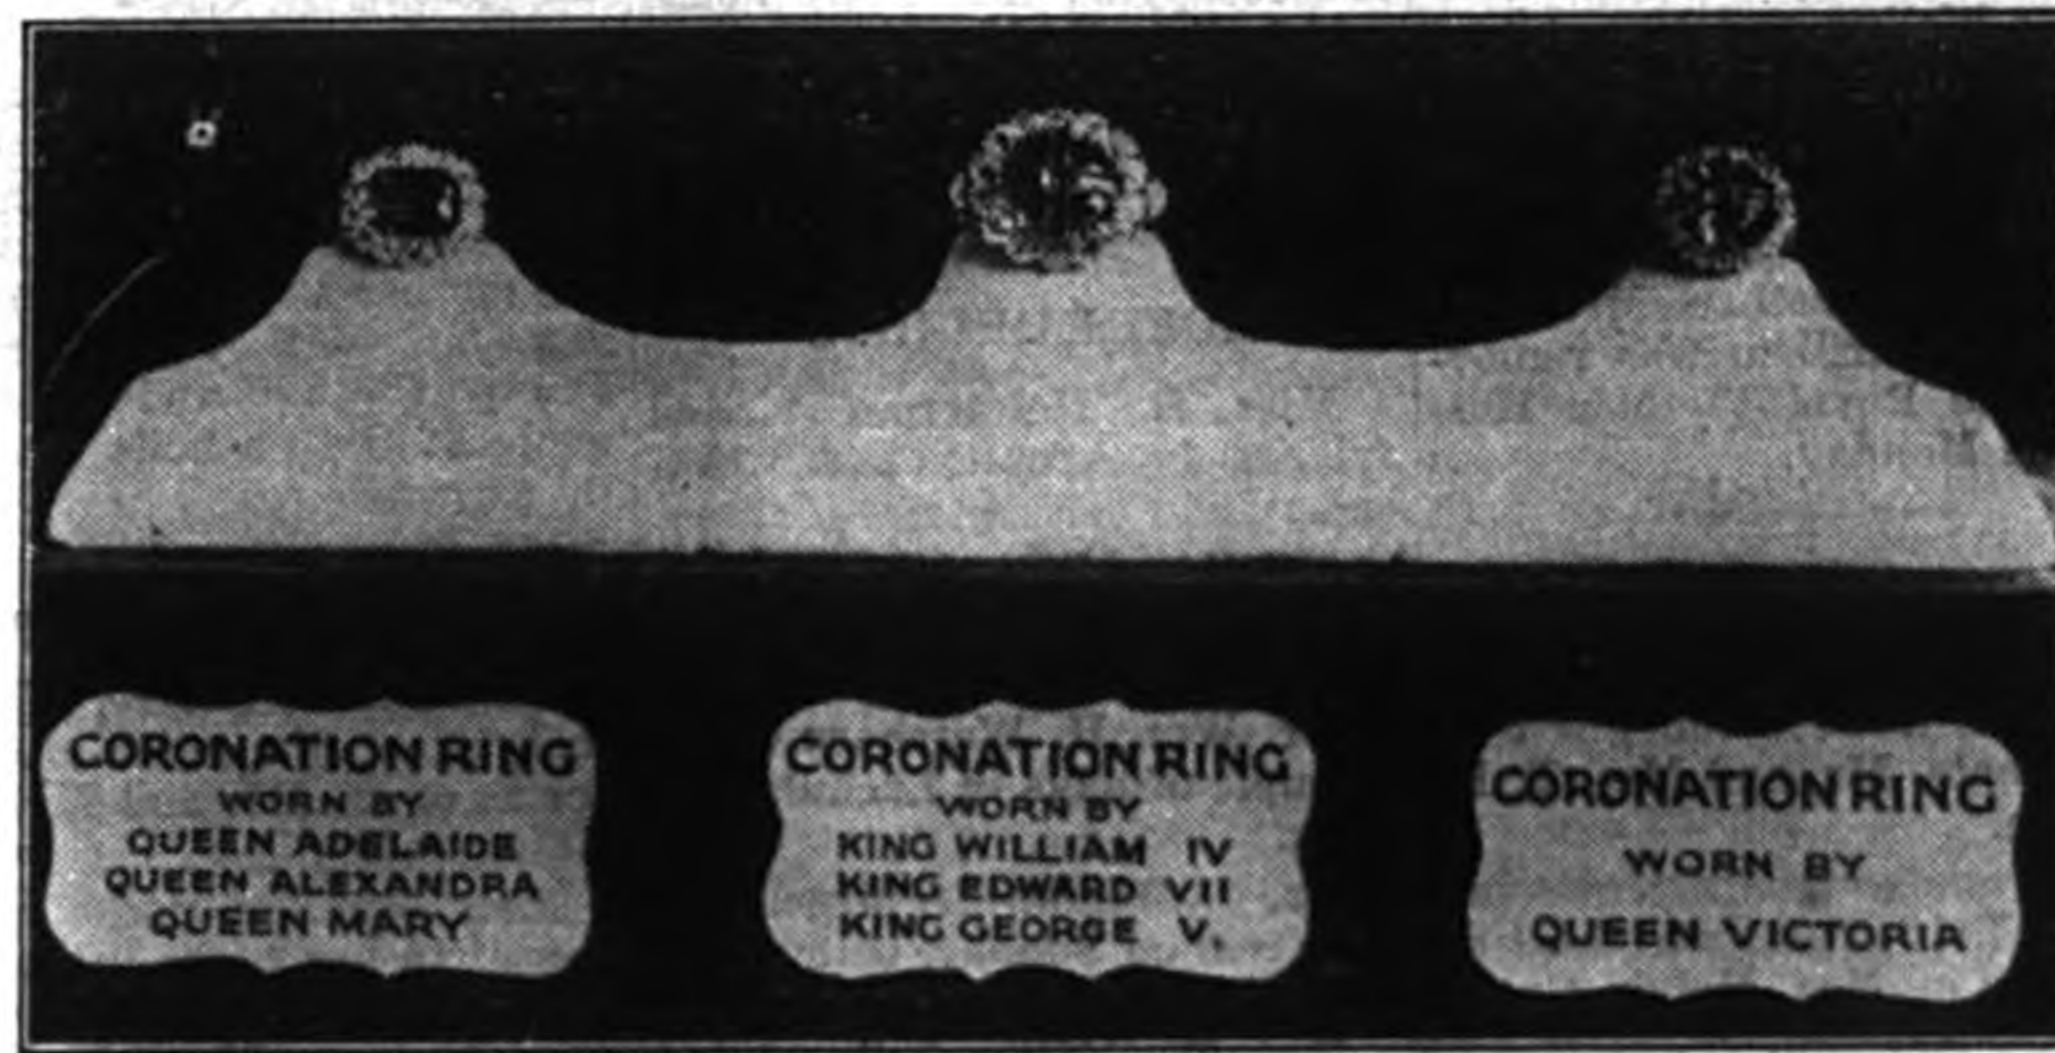

Parents need have no fear when the time comes that their child's tonsils or adenoids need to be removed, is the encouraging message from the Health League of Canada. "The operation of removing the tonsils and adenoids when it is needed in a child, is one of the most satisfactory in surgery", officials of the health organization state.

The following are indications for having a child's throat and nose examined by a doctor—abnormally frequent and long continued colds; repeated sore throat; enlarged glands in the neck, difficulty in breathing through the nose, mouth breathing, noisy breathing in the day, or at night; pains in the ears, deafness or discharge.

Tonsils and adenoids are tissues in the back and roof of the mouth. The tonsils are at the side of the back portion of the tongue, and the adenoids are higher up on the back wall of the mouth cavity. Ordinarily these tissues are small, but may contain crevices where moisture, debris and germs can nestle. Often, however, the glands increase in size and in the number of crevices. Two things then may occur. The tissues may become so large as to interfere with breathing and even swallowing. Or the many crevices may come to harbor large numbers of germs which day by day put out their poisons into the general system.

What happens then? Lower vitality, paleness, loss of weight, frequent illness, repeated sore throats and frequent colds. If the body defences are lowered by colds or fatigue or other illnesses, the tonsil germs may be able to grow more rapidly and have a more toxic effect on the system. The local result is an attack of tonsillitis or even quinsy, but it is to be borne in mind that local infection of the tonsils may

Fashion Flashes

By Alice Alden

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

MORE THAN A HINT of Spring fashions is contained in a beautifully tailored suit of black pique printed on small, gaily colored motifs. The jacket is lined in yellow woolen, which also makes the cleverly cut lapels and cuffs. The skirt flares below the hips.

NO USE doing without one odd jacket if your snow equipment is to be complete. The smartest women take with them an odd jacket of tweed, cut on mannish tailored lines and usually waterproofed. Such a jacket is not only very smart but most useful as well.

JUST A DASH of high color is used to add a charm to this season's white frocks. Thus, a white satin frock with crushed puffed sleeves and draped bodice has tiny red velvet ribbon bows nestling in sleeves and bodice so that they are just visible.

THE CROWNING POINT of some of the new Southern hats is the crowns that can be zipped open to give the hair more sun. Such a hat is of white fabric draped with colorful Paisley print. There is a matching Paisley scarf.

NEW LUXURY marks the latest slips. A lovely model is in white satin with deep ecru Alençon lace marking the bodice and the hem, the latter with a slit up the front. The bottom of the skirt is accented in appliques of the fern design in the lace.

IT ISN'T EASY to tell the difference between some of the newest nighties and a dinner gown. One of the latest of these frock-like night robes is in beige satin with yoke and short cap sleeves of hand-run Alençon. Shirring marks the front of the bodice and waist and holds the fullness of the skirt.

which develops into a wide hemline. The front is encrusted with lace appliques.

STILL HIGH is the crown of many a new town hat. A nice mid-season model is a turban in black grosgrain draped for height, with a border of draped chiffon in rust, yellow, beige and blue. A fine dot-embroidered veil falls to the shoulders.

JUST DAZZLING is the amount of color in some of the nicest resort daytime clothes. A useful ensemble has a dress of raspberry red linen with a tailored hand-blocked jacket in linen in a pattern of yellow, green and fuchsia.

Kisses, Crowds and Water

Dr. John L. Pomeroy, of Los Angeles, says that people should stop kissing, avoid crowds and drink plenty of water to avoid colds. What will be the result of this advice?

We venture to guess that young people will say, "What's a cold between friends." Gossips will say, "I just gotta get around even if I spread germs with news."

Then there are, according to all reports, thousands of people who only like water for bathing purposes or for variety in scenery. Maybe the doctor knew the pill business would be just as good if he did give out free advice!

ANOTHER PROBLEM

Mother—What is your baby brother crying for?

Junior—He's dug a big hole in the backyard and can't bring it in the house.

EVERY WOMAN FACES THIS QUESTION

How do I look to other people? So many women risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, poor complexions.

Yet common constipation can be ended so easily. Just eat two table-spoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or fruits every day, three times daily in severe cases. This delicious ready-to-eat cereal supplies the "bulk" needed to exercise the system—and vitamin B to help tone up the intestinal tract.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs more than twice its weight in water, gently sponging out the intestines. It never causes the artificial action of pills and drugs, that often prove ineffective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you see, is a food—not a medicine. It relieves common constipation the way Nature intended—so its results are safe. Buy it at your grocer's. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

Sad news has just reached this community of the passing of a former resident, in the person of Mr. Abraham Watchorn, who died on Jan. 26, in his 69th year, after an illness of several weeks.

The deceased was a native of Morin Heights, but had gone West some 30 years ago and taken up residence on a ranch at Elm Creek, Manitoba.

He leaves to mourn, a devoted wife, formerly Carrie Thompson; two sons at Elm Creek, Man.; six brothers, Fred, William and Edward, of Morin Heights; Thomas of St. Jovite, Wallace of Alberta, Frank of St. Louis, Missouri; and one sister, Mrs. L. O. Way, of Ruskin, B.C.

Sympathy is extended to the surviving relatives in this neighborhood.

BROWNSBURG

Mrs. Robert Silversen has returned to her home in Dalesville after spending the past few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Russell Kennedy.

The young-people of Maple Ave. Baptist church held a skating party at the rink last Wednesday evening, followed by a social time and refreshments at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Smillie.

The Provincial Transport service from Montreal was temporarily discontinued Sunday night when the snowstorm blocked the highway. The service was resumed Tuesday night.

The hockey match between the Hull and Brownsburg high school teams, which took place in the Brownsburg rink last Saturday, was well attended. The home team were winners with a score of 9-4.

The Young Women's Missionary Circle of the Maple Ave. Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Hector Mason on Tuesday evening. The meeting was well attended. Mrs. R. H. Morrison gave the topic, "Medical work in India."

Died in Hospital

On January 16th., 1937, there passed away at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, Lottie, the wife of Altona Chabot and beloved daughter of the late Paul Sabourin and of Mrs. Sabourin, Brownsburg, Que. Death was due to bronchial asthma and bronchial pneumonia. The deceased was in her 40th year.

The funeral took place from her mother's residence on Tuesday, Jan. 19th., to St. Louis de France Church, and burial was made at the Catholic Cemetery in Brownsburg.

GRENVILLE NORTH

Miss Enid McIntyre, of Montreal, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McIntyre.

Miss Beatrice Perks has returned to her home in St. Andrews, having been the guest of Miss Frances Murray for the past week, also visiting Mrs. Walter Gauley.

Mr. Fred Murray was a Sunday visitor at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Perks and Mr. Mrs. Lawson Taylor, St. Andrews East.

We are pleased to report that Mrs. R. Dodd, who has been confined to her bed for some time, is much improved in health.

Mr. T. H. Gauley is at present suffering from the effects of a fall and a severe cold. Friends hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. John Heatlie and Miss Shirley Heatlie were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murray.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Gauley included — Messrs. Elmer and Eddie Gauley of Chatboro, and Mr. John Gauley of Grenville.

The sympathy of this locality is extended to the bereaved relatives of the late Mrs. J. Fitzgerald.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Feb. 7th., is "Spirit."

The Golden Text is:—"We all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord." (II Corinthians 3: 18).

The following passages are from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." (Galatians 6: 7, 8).

"Emerge gently from matter into Spirit. Think not to thwart the spiritual ultimate of all things, but come naturally into Spirit through better health and morals and as the result of spiritual growth." (Science and Health, page 485.)

Musical Festival Arrangements Well Established

LACHUTE DISTRICT HAS REPRESENTATIVE

Arrangements for the first Musical Festival Competition in Quebec, previously mentioned in these columns, are now well advanced. Honorary local representative for this section is Mr. Chas. Duncan, Lachute, from whom any further particulars may be secured.

French and English church choirs, convent choirs, vocal and instrumental ensembles, and soloists, will be entered in a program of wide variety, and it is reported that some contestants are travelling 400 miles to Montreal to take part in the competitions.

Entries in certain classes will close on March 1st. Forms of application and particulars of the test pieces specified for performance, are available from the Festival Office, 1265 Stanley Street, Montreal.

As far as can be ascertained no entries have been made from this locality, but it is expected many will find interest in this commendable move, and that talent from this district will be represented in the subsequent contests arranged by the Festival committee.

The C.P.R. week-end excursion to Ottawa and Montreal were well patronized by people of Lachute and the surrounding district.

3 GAMES WITNESSED AT LOCAL ARENA

LACHUTE TRIUMPHS IN TWO LEAGUE MATCHES

A league game was played here at the Arena last Thursday, when Grenville — which has proved the most promising line-up in the district four-some — met the Lachute sextet in a scheduled fixture. It was a hard-fought game throughout, the teams standing at an impasse of 2-2 at close of the third period. During the overtime session Lachute took the lead for a third counter, and clinched a well-earned triumph with 3 goals to 2.

Perhaps one of the best contests in the League's brief schedule, a keen clash between Brownsburg and Lachute was witnessed here Tuesday evening. The game was close throughout, each team putting their utmost into a brand of hockey which might be considered a credit to the district. An element of luck favored the local line-up, turning the tide for a 3-2 victory, the laurels going to Lachute.

At a League meeting Tuesday night, Hawkesbury was granted its protest with Grenville and arrangements made for another fixture between these clubs. Otherwise the schedule would have concluded with Tuesday's game.

Play-offs will commence between Lachute and Brownsburg next week. Standing of the teams at this date is Grenville 8, Lachute 6, Brownsburg 6, Hawkesbury 4.

Saturday's game at Lachute Arena was between the local line-up and St. Jerome. After a neck-and-neck contest through three periods the score

Buckingham Station Master Appointed for St. Jerome

It has been announced that E. Lapointe, at present in charge of Buckingham Junction depot of the C.P.R., has been appointed to the post of station master of St. Jerome. Mr. Lapointe has been in the service of the C. P. R. for 39 years, having started as a telegraph operator at Buckingham Junction. His first post as station master was at Bordeaux, after which he saw service in several places, including Three Rivers. He returned to Buckingham some years ago.

Brownsburg Schools Are Closed Through Epidemic

(By Our Brownsburg Correspondent)

The Brownsburg Consolidated School and the Catholic are both closed on account of the influenza epidemic. Nearly every home in the district has been visited by the sickness.

Montrealer Injured While Ski-Joring Sunday Afternoon

ACCIDENT OCCURRED NEAR CARILLON

Ski-joring has become a popular recreation among ski adept in this section, but considering the dangers attending this practice there are remarkably few accidents reported.

"Gerry" Bernier, a young Montrealer, proved an exception to the good record last Sunday. Bernier sustained a fractured collarbone while ski-joring with three friends behind a car on the highway near Carillon. The young man, who was week-ending with the Simpson boys at St. Andrews, was brought back to the village, and after receiving medical treatment from Dr. D. T. McColl, was taken to the Montreal General Hospital by ambulance. The mishap occurred during Sunday afternoon.

stood at 4-4. St. Jerome having other attractions in their home town declined to play for a decision in an overtime session. Lachute therefore scored a tally in the vacant net and won with 5-4 by default.

On Saturday Lachute High School team visited Montreal for a return game with Mount Royal High. In a keen and closely contested match Mount Royal took the honors, with a score of 3-2. More complete details of the play appear on page four of this issue.

Resident Reaches 95th. Milestone

Mrs. John Campbell celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday yesterday at her home in Dallesville. The observance was quiet and unobtrusive, as befits the anniversary of a lady of simple tastes and advanced years. Mrs. Campbell has the distinction of being the oldest lady resident in this county. She was born on February 10, 1842; and among the pioneer folks of Argenteuil she gives precedence only to Mr. Matthew Scott of Lachute, who is several months her senior in years.

Mrs. Campbell was pleased to receive congratulations over the radio last Saturday, and The Watchman joins with her host of friends in wishing her a happy birthday.

East Settlement Lady Enjoys A "Ripe Old Age"

Buildings Burned, St. Andrews Store

(By Our St. Andrews Correspondent)

Mr. E. C. Calder, grocery proprietor, suffered a serious loss here on Friday evening last, when fire destroyed all his outbuildings. Providentially, there was no wind, as with the very unsatisfactory state of the waterworks in this village no help could have been given, and the outbreak might have been much more serious. Mr. Calder's car and the contents of the carriage shed were saved. No insurance was held on the loss.

Government Will Erect Costly Jail at Hull, Que.

Construction of a new jail at Hull, to cost $300,000, will be started this spring or early summer, Hon. J. L. Bourque, Provincial Minister of Public Works, announced this week. Mr. Bourque was in Hull looking over prospective sites for the new prison. On completion of the jail a new courthouse will be erected at an estimated cost of $350,000, he said.

Bank of Canada Investigates Condition of Prairie Provinces... B.N.A. Act and Defence Policy Under Discussion in Parliament

"OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

By Wulfrid Eggleston

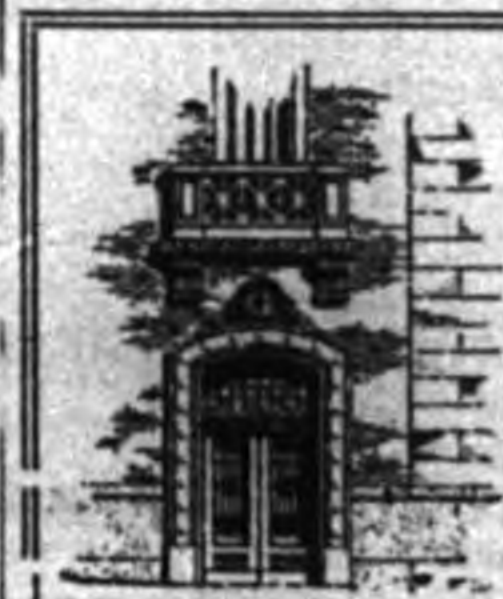

Ottawa, February 9.—Defence, the control of transportation, farm implements and their high price, war profiteering, free ports, home repair, the employment of Canadians on subsidized shipping, and the constitution, all had a part of some sort in a week which cannot be characterized as breath-taking. The committees are just getting under way, the Senate has resumed after a brief recess, the budget and the British trade agreement are still in the offing. The private members are still plugging away at their resolutions, some of which provoke highly academic debates, others serving the highly useful purpose of delineating public opinion, giving the government of the day a chance of hearing what the country is saying, and also, if it has made up its mind, what government policy is to be.

NOT TOO ENTHUSIASTIC

One hears that in party caucuses, which are not reported and are supposed to be held in considerable secrecy, the merit of Canada's new defence estimates is being dwelt upon. There is no suggestion of a violent uprising among government members from Quebec. But neither is there any zealous enthusiasm about adding $13,000,000

Historical Society of Argenteuil County

NEWS BULLETIN

"GETTING STARTED" (1)

In laying the foundation of the proposed museum, we are advised by Mr. Coleman to start modestly, even on a small scale, but with the clearly defined purpose and with the ideal always in view, not of a completed museum, but one ever enlarging on lines consistent with its historic, educational and creative purposes. Such a museum will have an individuality of its own, reflecting and expressing, in concrete form in its exhibits, the mind, the genius and the experiences of the inhabitants of the region to which it belongs, thus making the story "a living reality to its citizens" (2): For instance, the frontier log cabin displayed in one corner of the museum park, and given a proper setting, with an outdoor oven, and with a well balanced pole to raise the old oaken bucket, and pioneer fish net, with foot-stage at river bank, would tell the story that needs no label. (See illustration opposite page 64, Parker's manual).

Or perhaps an exhibit of the great potash kettle with leech tubs would prove a reminder of the old days when money was scarce and hard to get, and when the production of the salts of potassium and the sale of ashes was one of the few sources of revenue. Or there might be depicted on canvas the sugar camp of early days, with ox-team collecting sap from hand-hewed wooden troughs. Nor should the tollsome handicrafts of our grandmothers be forgotten.

"No History Museum is complete without an Art Gallery of Historic Pictures"—This will be the theme of our next.

St. Eustache Farm Helper Died After Attack by Bull

Sidney Haynes, 40-year-old farm hand of St. Eustache, died in Hotel Dieu Hospital, where he had been admitted a week previously after being gored by a bull.

When a bull got loose in a barn, Haynes tried to secure the animal but was trapped himself and one of the animal's horns pierced his stomach. It was at first thought he had a chance for life but complications followed intestinal injuries. He was taken to Montreal by ambulance from the farm on the outskirts of St. Eustache.

A Former Teacher of Lachute High School Dead

School pupils and friends of Mrs. Donald Smith, formerly Miss Pauline Fraser, regret to learn the news of her death this week. Miss Fraser was popular among the scholars during her two terms as teacher of Grade VIII at Lachute High School. Her home was in Leeds Village, Que. She left here in 1929 and married shortly afterward.

Annual Observance Has An Old Roman Origin

BEWARE — ON SAINT VALENTINE'S DAY!

Valentine's Day, as we observe it on February 14, grew out of an old Roman festival. At this Feast of Lupercalia, observed in Juno's honor, the young men of Rome drew tablets out of an urn. The youth who drew a certain maiden's name was supposed to consider her his one and only sweetheart for a year.

The person who receives your valentine may think that you are observing this ancient custom and expect a great deal from you. Hence, we say, beware.

Of course, you may be willing to lay your liberties at someone's feet in a sort of voluntary martyrdom. This thought is suggested by the recollection that of the 52 saints of the Church named Valentine, eight of them were martyrs.

But then, it is probably not much more than a coincidence that this lovers' festival is celebrated the day on which the church honors these saints. However, one of them was put to death in Rome on February 14, 270, during the reign of Claudius.

There is a story concerning one of the saints named Valentine, of more than passing interest. According to legend he spent much of his time helping the sick and needy. His hu-

Charles C. Evans, Sea Captain, Dead in N.Y.

WAS PUPIL AT WALKER'S SCHOOL AND APPRENTICE MACHINIST HERE

SEAMAN AND ENGINEER, HAD COLORFUL CAREER

The death of Capt. Charles Evans, a native of this community, occurred last Saturday at his home in Flushing, Long Island, N.Y.

The eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evans, he was born here at Lachute in April, 1876. "Charlie", as he was familiarly known, attended the Gavin Walker School near his home and at the age of fifteen he took a position with McQuat & McRae and became a machinist under the capable tutelage of Mr. Archibald Middleton. He moved to Montreal and assumed a position with Laurie's, still later joining the Quebec Steamship Company as engineer. Mr. Evans made many trips for his company to the West Indies and South America. In 1901 at Martinique, he was blown from his ship during the Mont Pelee volcano, and sustained permanent injury. Later, after the Quebec Steamship Coy. went out of business, he opened an office in New York as consulting marine engineer. Mr. Evans had felt very keenly the death of his brother Bob, last December, which was recorded in this paper. . . . Bronchial pneumonia, probably resulting from his injury at Martinique, was the cause of his death on Saturday afternoon last, Feb. 6th. The remains were cremated, funeral being held on Monday of this week.

REV. ROBERT STRANGE DIED ON TUESDAY

WAS FAVORABLY KNOWN HERE IN LACHUTE

News of the death of Rev. Robt. Strange at Apple Hill, on Tuesday, was received here with deep regret. He had been unwell for several weeks.

Rev. Mr. Strange resided for a while in Lachute after leaving his pastorate of the Ste. Therese United Church through ill health. With his wife and daughter he made many good friends in this community, proving himself a willing helper in the affairs of the Lachute United congregation. In the fall of 1935 he resumed his ministerial work, receiving a call to Zion Church at Apple Hill, near Alexandria, Ontario.

A native of Belfast, Ireland, Mr. Strange was 57 years of age. He had filled pastorates in St. Marks, Montreal, and Vars, Ontario, before going to Ste. Therese, and was an ardent worker in the cause of temperance.

Surviving are his wife and daughter, Maureen, also a brother, James, in Toronto. To the bereaved relatives sincere sympathy is extended from friends in this district.

manitarian interest did not falter even during his last illness. When he could no longer go, he wrote, sending many messages of courage and cheer.

Then there is still another angle to this Valentine celebration. According to a folk-tale, there is a German Saint Valentine who may be appealed to in case of epilepsy.—Possibly it would be well to bear him in mind for the day when you go completely daffy over your own valentine!

The Haunted Pond

Short Story written specially for The Watchman
By Mary A. Catton.

(Readers may recognize the mill pond at Dalesville as inspiration for the scene of this story. The plot and characters, however, are entirely fictitious.—Ed.)

Above them, the stars blink like rubies through drifting clouds — clouds driven by the wind of a spent storm that made shadows of a blue-blackness, livened by fire-flies like floating lanterns — watchful spirits of the dead.

"If Mother were only alive to enjoy some of these trips with us — and Sis, poor Sis, who once lived near to the pond and loved it so, when she was first married. That is over forty years ago now," remarked the older woman, for she knew by her own age.

"We'll soon be to the pond now," answered the younger one, who drove the car along this narrow, winding road that dipped down into the foothills of the Laurentians.

"How dark the shadows are behind those alders!"

"And the clouds moving across the face of the moon!" replied the younger one.

They could feel the uncanny darkness and blackness of the ditch at the side of the road, the soft banks of it, and stones, and tree-stumps, all along the winding desolate road-way that led to the Pond.

Suddenly, a shadow stretched across the way where a streak of moonlight momentarily flashed through between clouds and branches, just as their vigilant watchfulness had relaxed for the space of a second. The car swerved sharply at the foot of the hill, westward to the edge of the pond.

"Car gone into the mill-pond!" It was a man with tanned fair hair and blue eyes, who spoke with a foreign accent. He pointed his finger to the pond just as another shaft of moonlight dimmed the stars and lit up the swarming mosquitoes that covered the water.

The manner of the other, the mill-owner, who stood near, became grave. They could see the top corner of a car protruding above the water that threw up a flicker of light made by the breaking dawn.

"Better send for the doctor!" suggested Hans Olsen, the first speaker, who had been on the scene before the owner of the mill arrived. He spoke without looking at anyone in particular, and just as he had returned from diving, close to where the car pointed above the water.

"Drowned?" questioned the doctor, who had just arrived. "Drowned, sure. They were deep under water all right—they're dead!" said Hans.

The two still bodies lay on the grass at the side of the pond. Someone went for the coroner.

"In the water for several hours, at least," the doctor remarked to the Baptist minister who stood near.

"They were on their way home from camp — cabin, in the hills," said the mill-driver, a woman. "I have often met them on the way, and spoken to them at the foot of the hill where the cabins are," she explained. "They're both nurses," she added to a woman standing beside her.

"Accidental death!" pronounced the coroner. "Shouldn't have been travelling this road alone—at night—two women, without money.—If the car had needed repairs, or gas!" he continued, as if chiding the dead bodies, or giving advice to his listeners.

"Perhaps their purses are at the bottom of the pond," said another, with a shrug of the shoulders as she looked at the minister.

"Mebbe t'wuz took frae them, the money I mean," whispered a rosy-faced Scotch woman.

"But didn't the mill whistle blow some!" gasped a scared looking girl to one she addressed as "Mame", as she struggled to fasten her dress.

"Oh, mon dieu, some, yes! Mercy, nearly blew me out of bed. Thought there wuz a fire in the lumber-yards, shure!" answered Mame with the water-curlers in her hair.

"Two didn't hev been's bad as that, though," pointing her finger at the dead bodies lying on the grass, "a fire, I mean," remarked one without any stockings on, and in her bedroom slippers.

"Who heard th' screams, or th' splash, or wativer t'wuz?" asked a tired looking woman with two children hanging to her skirt, as she craned her neck trying to see more of the dead bodies.

"Who heard? Him there." It was a long-nosed woman with a red shawl who ventured the reply, pointing her finger at Hans Olsen. "He's a furriner — works in the mills — night watchman — boards and rooms in that there house t'other side the pond — Labelles," she continued, like a wound-up clock. "Him t'wuz heard th' splash, he said, an' blew th' whistle. T'other one, two weeks gone since, he heard too. Two men that time. Hans is a good swimmer. Has medleys fer divin' an' showed them t' Mame Labelle. He's in love with Mame," she confided, "but can't git married — no money, he says."

The well-informed one whispered these last words into the ear of her friend, when all the others had turned away paying no attention to what she was saying.

"Ugh, this place must be 'aunted! Sich 'appenins makes me feel creepy-like." A nervous-looking woman shuddered among the on-lookers.

"D'y remember hearin' about th' field a openin' up, an' swallowin' a 'orse, near t'ere t'wuz, too? Baldwin, th' carpenter, him t'wuz told th' story. 'E said 'is father wuz a sittin' at th' winds in th' kitchen a lookin' out at th' mare a-eatin' grass, when 'e sees th' groun' a openin' up, eavin' an' a rearin' like, an' 'eared a turble noise like thunder, an' th' colt, t'wuz, dis'pear'd — never wuz seen again! Baldwin, 'e says t'wuz a earth-quake."

This last speaker turned and looked around herself, as if expecting to see a thousand ghosts in conference on how to kill everyone in the village.

"But, this pond, and what has been happening here from time to time, cannot have anything to do with that horse affair!" declared the Baptist minister's wife, who had just arrived on the scene. She, too, looked pale; on the way over she had been thinking of the time when her husband was baptizing some converts in the pond one Sunday morning; one of them had slipped from his arms, a small one, and disappeared into the water of the pond, and was never

Age of Presidents
The youngest chief executive at the time of his death was James K. Polk who was fifty-three. Fourteen Presidents completed the Biblical span of threescore and ten; four of them reached eighty, and John Adams was ninety when he died. Among the Vice Presidents only three failed to attain the age of sixty; 16 reached seventy; five were more than eighty years old at the time of their deaths and Levi P. Morton, who was Benjamin Harrison's running mate, lived to be ninety-six.

White Horse an Emblem
The standard of the ancient Saxons was a white horse, and thus became the emblem of the County of Kent, states a writer in Answers Magazine. A galloping white horse is the device of the House of Hanover. There is a third "white horse"—a rampant animal, the device of the House of Savoy, descended from the Saxon horse. It is from the second of these that the popular inn sign, the White Horse, is obtained, and usually the animal is depicted as galloping, according to the capacity of the artist.

seen again.—Quick-sands, they had said.

The retired store-keeper of the village, who had been waiting until the minister's wife finished speaking, took a few steps nearer and raised his chin into the air, like one who has something special to say. "It was only a short time ago when another mysterious occurrence startled the good people of this vicinity. Farther up the mountain way, it was near one of the cabins in the hills, where the hill appears to have been pushed up by the weight of the great mountains that stand around it. Lakes and streams all about. Pretty! Mineral deposits there, in considerable quantity. There is one old lead-mine that is at a stand-still just now, to the north of the spot I'm telling you about. The hills around are densely covered with woods, and are said to be infested with wild animals. Dogs and other animals belonging to farmers and camp-dwellers disappear mysteriously there sometimes. The road-way that cuts through to the lake is narrow and winding, with many ups and downs, and large boulders hang overhanging from the banks, as if about to topple down on the heads of passers-by. Aye, and there are many pretty streams threading that ominous looking wilderness." Here, pausing the speaker adopted a poetic attitude, probably acquired from the minister whom he admired greatly. "Well, to make a long story short," he continued, "I believe it was one of these unfortunate ladies lying there, who was staying at one of the camps, was startled about three o'clock in the morning by an explosion that shook the ground and twisted the beams of the cabin as if they would break into pieces. There were two of them in the cabin and the noise awakened the other one—a girl, who was sleeping soundly. Neighbors heard the noise, too, and thought it was an earthquake. But the one who had been awake before it happened, said the noise was not at all like an earth-quake, but clean-cut, like the report of an explosion. This happened a little north of the cabin where they were. Now, that was a peculiar happening—a phenomenon, in fact, unless we accept the theory of gas-pockets under those hills. Then again, graphite being unstable stuff, it is possible that some old mining operations have left vacuum pockets that are commencing to leak

"Penny Wise and Pound Foolish Policy"

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE IS PUBLIC AND PRIVATE RESPONSIBILITY

In health matters, the great majority of Canadians are, personally and corporately, "penny wise and pound foolish."

The average citizen is quite ready and willing to pay doctors substantial sums of money for corrective and curative treatment... but begrudge a minor fee for an annual physical examination that might reveal an ailment before it has taken foot-hold.

The average town council offers no protest when bills, for large amounts come before them for hospital care of indigent patients... but rarely, from one year's end to another, take time to consider methods of removing the cause of illness.

Governments do not stint in their expenditures for hospital upkeep. They give generously to voluntary organizations that have to do with the care of the aged, the broken-down, the cripple, the handicapped, and expend enormous sums for the upkeep of institutions for the halt, the maimed and the blind without question. Governments are not so ready to spend money that would, if wisely spent, bring savings to government coffers ten-fold in ensuing years.

Governments are not to blame, wholly. Public opinion has not yet been seized with the importance of preventive health measures.

"Wait until the child is sick... and then we'll discuss what is best to do with it," is a too-common policy among citizens of Canada.

Communities and individuals alike strain every nerve to finance expensive institutions for the housing of people who should never have been allowed to become ill.

Religion and Russia's Revised Constitution

Russia's new constitution is "admittedly constructive". So say some of Russia's sternest critics. The clause which has pleased millions who believe in a better social order but who deplored Stalin's attitude toward organized religion, was that having to do with religious freedom.

Others, while they are pleased at the change, cannot forget an article by Joseph Stalin in The Worker's Voice of March 1, 1933.

In it the author states: "The party cannot be neutral toward religion and does conduct anti-religious propaganda against all and every religious prejudice. Anti-religious propaganda is a means by which the complete liquidation of the clergy must be brought about."

At Christmas time the churches which are still functioning were crowded. Perhaps Stalin is beginning to see that religion is a matter of the soul's attitude toward God—that the people hunger for a closer contact with this "power not themselves" which makes for abundant living.

Perhaps, in the four years since he wrote the article from which the above is quoted, he has realized that he can gain little co-operation from the United States and Great Britain unless he ceases to hamper those who minister to the heart. Light has crept into darker places than an atheist's mind. There is still hope. Time will tell.

Mistress (to new maid): "Now, Norah, when you wait on the guests at dinner, please don't spill anything."

Norah: "No, ma'am, I won't say a word."

A new bond salesman, dictating a few days ago, was in doubt as to the use of a certain phrase, so he said to the stenographer:

"Do you 'retire' a loan?" And the wistful-eyed one replied rather deeply:

"No, I sleep with mama."

A salesman asked a Scotch farmer to buy a bicycle. "They are cheap now and I can let you have a good one for seven pounds."

"I would rather put my money in another cow," said the farmer, reflecting.

"You would look mighty foolish riding around your farm on a cow now, wouldn't you?" said the salesman.

Said the Scot: "No more foolish than I would milking a bicycle."

"My daughter went to college for four years and never was kissed."

"That wasn't a college. It was a convent."

Sun Life Assurance Annual Report Shows Financial Strength of Company

Montreal, Feb. 9.—With an increase in assets of over seventy million dollars in 1936 and a grand total of more than seven hundred and seventy million dollars, the highest in the Company's history, the Annual Report of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada recently released by Arthur B. Wood, President and Managing Director, reveals a statement which is not only interesting because of its indication of the growth of this company, but also because it establishes beyond doubt the inherent strength and stability of the fundamental principles of life insurance. Since 1929 the assets of the Sun Life of Canada have increased by over two hundred and nine million dollars and in view of the substantial increase in the assurances in force during 1936 over those of 1935, a definite general recovery of business conditions cannot be doubted. Of special interest was the announcement by Mr. Wood that participating policyholders would receive increased dividend payments during 1937.

The Sun Life financial statement for 1936 is a strong one, for not only are the securities carried at book values, which, in the aggregate, are less than market value, but there is also an increase of more than ninety million dollars in the bond account since 1935, bringing the total of such account to three hundred and ten million dollars, or approximately forty per cent of the assets of the Company. During 1936 profits were made of over ten million dollars from the redemption or sale of securities and at the end of the year the cash in the bank amounted to sixteen million dollars. During the past year there has been a substantial increase in the company's investment income over 1935 and the average rate of interest earned on investments shows an increase for the second consecutive year. The financial statement shows reserves and surplus of over thirty-seven million dollars and includes a special contingency reserve of ten million dollars. The total income from all sources has increased to over one hundred and sixty-four millions, while disbursements are down, leaving an excess of income over disbursements for 1936 of over sixty millions. A feature of the disbursements reveals the undesirable trend in the taxation imposed on life insurance companies, the expenditure under this heading being nearly two million dollars during the past financial year.

Mr. Wood in his address at the Annual Meeting of the company touched briefly on business and economic conditions in the three countries where the Sun Life secured most of its business, namely, Canada, United States and Great Britain, pointing out that there are definite signs of a growing conviction among investors that interest rates have reached their low point and that the end of decline has been seen. He believed that rates might have a slight upward reaction from the low point of recent years. One of the highlights stressed by him was the fact that since the company issued its first policy in 1871 it has paid out over one billion dollars in benefits, seventy-seven million dollars being paid during 1936.

to the tax burdens of the country for such a purpose. Some of the French-Canadian spokesmen are arguing that, purely for the defence of Canada's coasts, some further expenditures are imperative. Others are saying that with communistic outbreaks not impossible even in Canada or in the neighboring country, it is as well to bolster the forces of law and order. A few are opposed to any increase. There will be some mutterings, but the whole affair has been skillfully staged by the government, and I should be surprised if any demonstration is put on within government ranks.

THE B. N. A. ACT AGAIN

The constitution insists on thrusting itself into discussions, and we had a further statement of policy from government spokesmen. It now appears that the Dominion will leave it to the provinces to make the next move. The latter have the legal right to inaugurate health and employment social measures. If they want them, and can't afford them, and would like the Dominion government to take them over, then they can say so. And if the provinces are sufficiently enthusiastic about the request, and sufficiently in harmony to secure an amendment to the constitution, presumably we shall see, some day, national measures of this sort.

It would, however, be idle to suppose that the Privy Council rulings have not postponed these matters for several years. I would be surprised to see a national unemployment scheme in effect during the life of this 18th parliament. It may, of course, be that we shall never have such a measure: that the provinces will decide to keep the right to operate such schemes, and will put forward the alternative of requesting more revenues. To many people a diverse country like Canada lends itself to a series of provincial schemes, adapted to the peculiarities of the several economic areas, rather than to a uniform national scheme. For example, one would expect unemployment insurance to appeal much more to industrial provinces, than to those in which the majority of the people are rural, and so, under the usual schemes are not eligible for the benefits. The same is true of some of the laws respecting minimum wages and hours of labor.

AND THE PROBLEM OF THE PRAIRIES

Though there has been a lull in public announcements, the financial position of the prairie provinces continues to cause much concern at Ottawa. Manitoba and Saskatchewan are exploring every opportunity of meeting their obligations, but they are running behind, and cannot step up their taxation much further—if at all—without running into the law of diminished returns. The alternative will be either a loan from some outside source, or some relief from their security holders. The latter might be voluntary or arbitrary. The Bank of Canada is engaged in making a study of the finances and economics of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. It is said to be for the benefit of security holders, who are reported to be scattered up and down the continent. If the Bank of Canada reported that these provinces were essentially solvent, and only needed a year of grace to put them on their feet again, they might be more inclined to accept some temporary compromise about interest payments. This may be the explanation, as I have heard advanced from reliable quarters. Or there may be more than that to the visit of the Bank of Canada officials.

Urges Farmers Cultivate Nut Trees in Canada

London, Ont.—George Hobden Corsan of Islington, who experiments with nut trees, believes much of the $5,000,000 spent annually in importing nuts into Canada could be diverted to the pocket of the Canadian farmer. He said he started experimenting in 1920 and now has 33,000 trees and 300 varieties growing on his 20 acres of ground.

POTATO NEWS

Demand has been greater than shippers could supply, Ontario buying freely while farmers are holding for higher prices. United States potato holdings on hand January 1, 26% less than a year ago, or 27,658,000 bushels less. This news has not affected the market, which remains dull or about steady in all the large U.S. cities. Maine reports very light trading with the bulk per barrel measure to growers in Arvestock points mostly $3.00.

The Canadian Market has continued to rise due to the larger shipments to Ontario. Prices to growers in the Maritimes average $2.10 per barrel, or $1.09 per 80 lbs. Retail prices are approaching the point where consumers will turn to other foods and dealers are buying only from hand to mouth.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES...AND THEIR BANK

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC INDUSTRY

Established long before the commercial use of electricity was even dreamed of, the Bank of Montreal has seen the hydro-electric industry rise from its infancy and has provided helpful financial service in every phase of the utilization of water power to industrial and domestic use.

With abundant snow and rainfall on the uplands, and ample reservoir capacity in numerous lakes, Canada is fortunate in having a reliable supply of water power within transmission distance of the principal industrial centres. Only one country, the United States, has a greater total of hydro-electric development.

More than three-quarters of the power equipment used in manufacturing industries in Canada is electric-driven. Seventy per cent. of Canadian homes, urban and rural, are equipped with this "modern servant."

Cheap hydro-electric power has been an important factor in the rapid development of the mining industries. It has been a deciding factor in the refining of base metals from Canadian mines, which only a few years ago was a monopoly of foreign countries. The use of water power has gone hand in hand also with the expansion of the great forest industries of Canada.

The production of hydro-electric power has advanced steadily since the recovery of 1932, reaching new high records each year. The per capita output is exceeded only by that of Norway, yet only one-sixth of the known available water power resources of Canada has been utilized.

Hydro-electric industries and their employees all over Canada find in the Bank of Montreal the convenient and helpful banking service they need.

Prosperity Note

"The 1930's have been lean years, so far, for most of us. Many felt that they were going backward. To your figures showing that a change for the better was in process last year, add this fact: Sixty new manufacturing concerns began operations in Vancouver, and sixty old ones added improvements or new equipment last year.

Keeping the Scrappers at Home.

Canada's legislation prohibiting those of a fighting disposition from joining either side in Spain will not appeal to some. They would prefer that people so pugnacious might be allowed to take the step and go farther, in the interest of greater peace at home.

Two Problems in Contrast

Puerto Rico has a population of 2,000,000 people in an area which cannot comfortably support more than 500,000. . . . Canada has a population of 10,000,000 in an area which could support humanity ad infinitum. . . . Both constitute a grave problem in population.

At least, it will be remarked, Puerto Rico has public revenues ample for the government of its 3,500 square miles. The same cannot be said of this country, under its present system of government.

But there is another side of the situation. Puerto Ricans are increasing at the rate of 40,000 a year, and according to the North American Review, in Puerto Rico "only one fourth of the area is capable of cultivation, and only one-twentieth is available for food crops. The people, who represents not only 60 percent of population but its most rapidly increasing part, lives in extreme poverty, undernourished, unable to resist disease. At present, 80 percent of the population are on relief rolls. . . . Millions have been spent to stem tuberculosis, syphilis and other diseases which are rampant; but the stricken have multiplied at a rate which has made facilities for medical care a drop in the bucket."

Canadians may console themselves with the thought that they have space enough and to spare, and that a problem in economics and finance is more savory than a menace of undermined vitality.

The Ore of the Iron Heart

Adolph Hitler recently said, "We must have that which is the most indispensable of all raw materials—the ore of the iron heart!"

Whatever else we think about Hitler and his regime, we must admit that he has accomplished much to improve the living conditions of the average German family, without resort to the bloodshed which has occurred in other countries. The credit may be due in large part to the raw materials he advocates above.

Montreal Board of Trade Criticized

Hon. J. Bourque, Quebec Minister of Public Works, criticized the Montreal Board of Trade for unwarranted interference in the recent discussions which centred about the transfer of the Ruben Clothing Company from Montreal to Sherbrooke. The Montreal Board of Trade, declared the Minister, had urged the Quebec Government to register its disapproval of the proposed transfer, and he held that a manufacturer had the absolute right to locate where he pleased without the dictation of labor unions. The Minister suggested that the Montreal Board of Trade attend to its own knitting and not meddle in matters with which it could not be rightly concerned.

The Hon. Mr. Bourque quoted a news item commenting upon the transfer of a clothing company from Toronto to Montreal. Labor officials had stated that this was the fifth clothing concern to move from Toronto to Montreal within the past two years. The Minister contended that it was inconsistent for Montreal authorities to welcome five clothing concerns from one city and then fuss and fume because one of its own manufacturers decided to move elsewhere.

The Late Mr. Grant Bryerton

With much regret we report this week the death of Mr. Grant Bryerton, which occurred on Sunday at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, after a long and painful illness.

The deceased, who was a son of Mr. Wm. Bryerton and the late Mrs. Bryerton, of Carillon, had suffered from poor health since his boyhood, but his cheerful disposition and active mind, together with the affection and care bestowed on him by his family, assisted him to endure his infirmities.

On Christmas he was seized with pneumonia at the home of his brother, Mr. Cecil Bryerton, at Carillon, where he and his sisters had come to spend the holiday from Montreal. He partially recovered from this attack, but complications ensued and on Feb. 1st, he was taken to the hospital for further treatment, which also proved unavailing and he passed away.

The remains were conveyed by train to Point Fortune on Tuesday afternoon, where they were met by a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives and taken to the United Church at St. Andrews. Service there was conducted by the Rev. J. Maclean of St. Mungo's, assisted by the Rev. Dr. George of Verdun United Church. Others who attended from the city were the deceased's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole of St. Laurent.

Besides his father he leaves to mourn his loss three sisters, Misses Violet and Myrtle Bryerton of Montreal and Mrs. Irving Fuller of Cushing, also three brothers, Messrs. Earle and Cecil Bryerton of Carillon, and Mr. Arthur Bryerton of Montreal. To them the heartfelt sympathy of the community is extended in the loss of their beloved brother. The large number of beautiful floral tributes bore testimony to the esteem and sympathy of many friends.

Ancient Cities in China

Compare With Great Wall

The city of Peiping has a fascinating history beginning about 2100 years before Christ. Peking, officially called Peiping, has seen the reign of over forty Mongol, Ming and Manchurian rulers. In reality the city comprises four different sections, each surrounded by imposing fortified walls.

The heart of Peiping is the "Forbidden City" with its yellow tile roofs, marble courtyards and pink walls. Prior to 1912 this was the abode of the imperial family and their retinue. Surrounding this is the "Imperial City" in which are to be found the lakes called "moat" and the winter palace. Encircling this latter city is the "Tartar City" in which are located the Lama temple, Hall of Classics, Bell and Drum towers, legation quarters, and the observatory which is the oldest in the world. Passing through the south gate of the "Tartar City" one enters the Chinese city where is situated the Temple of Heaven and the Temple of Agriculture.

Forty-five miles north of Peiping is the Great Wall which ranks with the Pyramids of Egypt as one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World. For 2,500 miles this great stone structure marks the border of Inner China. Not far away are the 13 Ming tombs with their Holy Way paved in marble and lined by huge mythological animals and figures. To the west lies the celebrated summer palace built by the late empress dowager, with its large lake, dragon island, rockeries and famous Marble Boat.

Mrs. Donald Campbell Died at Dalesville, Que.

After an illness of only one week, the death of Mrs. Donald Campbell of Lost River, occurred last Wednesday at the home of her son, Foster, of Dalesville. She was in her 73rd year. Formerly Mary Ferguson, Mrs. Campbell was predeceased by her husband in 1917.

The funeral service was conducted on Thursday, Feb. 4th., by Rev. Elmore H. Young, B.Th., of Maple Ave. Baptist Church, assisted by Rev. C. Hardie, pastor of Dalesville Baptist Church.

Mrs. Campbell is survived by two sons, William and Foster of Dalesville, Que., and one sister, Mrs. Wm. Dewar of Montreal.

The pall-bearers were her nephews, William and John Dewar, Montreal, and Messrs. Alex. Bethune, Jos. Kennedy, Allen Kennedy and Norman McGeorge. Those attending the funeral from a distance were — Mrs. Mary Ferguson, Mrs. Thos. White, and Messrs. William and John Dewar of Montreal.

Opening Games of District Carpet Bowling League

ANGLICAN YOUNG PEOPLE TOOK FIRST EVENT

On Tuesday evening the Lachute United and Lachute Anglican Y.P.S. played the first scheduled game of the Carpet Bowling League. The first game ended in a 7-3 lead for the Anglicans; the second gave United players a score of 9-5, which brought the aggregate score to 12-12. An extra end was played and the Anglicans gained 1 point, which gave a victory of 13-12 to the latter team. The players were as follows:

Lachute Anglican	Lachute United
Miss Valpy	Leola Belanger
Mrs. Holt	Grace Rosser
D. Dempster	Owen Todd
H. Stansfield	S. Armstrong

High School Hockey Team in Second Defeat

Lachute High School hockeyists met with defeat for the second time in their tilt with Mount Royal High last Saturday. The score was 3-2. The game was held in L'Arena Laurentienne, St. Laurent.

The contest proved fast and clean, no players receiving penalties, and excitement ran high in the third period when the score stood at 2-2 with only a short time left to play.

Lachute gained the advantage in the first period, Guy Gosselin netting the puck in a very nice play. The second period saw two counters for the Royalists, which left them in the lead for the opening of the third period. This last twenty minutes witnessed the scoring of a goal for each side, giving Mount Royal a hard-earned victory.

The Lachute boys express appreciation to those of Mount Royal for their hospitality on this occasion.

Extinct Animals

A list of all extinct animals would involve the inclusion of those which became extinct in the prehistoric period—many thousands of species. The outstanding species which have become extinct in the last century or two are the quagga, a South American wild ass allied to the zebras and similarly striped, exterminated during the Nineteenth century; the Arctic sea cow, exterminated at the end of the Nineteenth century, and the following birds: The dodo, solitaire, great auk, passenger pigeon, heath hen, Carolina parakeet, Labrador duck and Eskimo curlew.

Plant An Apple Tree

Planting time will soon be here again. Canada's loss in trees every year is very great and will at some time in the future constitute a very serious problem to the whole country. Not only is drought invited by the absence of trees, but dust storms often result from the same cause. Floods are becoming a menace to large sections of this continent, it is thought largely on account of the indiscriminate clearing of land.

The land must, of course, be cleared, but reforestation should follow. It is but a blind policy that clears and leaves nothing to take the place of what is cut down.

Of special interest to dwellers in the Province of Quebec is the replacing of the apple trees which were killed in the spring frosts of 1936. Quebec apples are well known for their flavour and texture and are excellent for every form of domestic use. If nothing is done to restore the number of trees there will very soon be a shortage of Quebec apples, and already such is the case in several sections of the Province. For the sake of the next generation, if the present one cannot profit by it, plant an apple tree for every one lost.

Nubell Gold Mines, Limited (No Personal Liability)

In a recent radio talk the Honourable T. A. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines, said, "Last year our mines expended in Canada a record total of more than two hundred million dollars for supplies and equipment, salaries and wages; and in addition they paid dividends amounting to seventy-eight million dollars."

Every individual who invests his money in a mining enterprise that is honestly endeavoring to make a mine, is assisting in the development of our natural resources, besides benefiting himself from the resultant dividends he in all probability will eventually receive.

Before investing, however, every person should ask himself these three questions: Is the Company well managed? Is it sufficiently financed to carry on development successfully and—are the properties meritorious?

To all of these questions the reply in the case of our Company would be an affirmative one. Our Board of Directors is made up of outstanding, successful business and professional men. Our treasury is amply provided to carry on development work for many months, and our properties are meritorious.

Assays of mineral from our properties made by J. T. Donald & Company show $7.00, $16.45, $33.60 and $39.90 respectively, or an average of $24.23 in gold.

The mineralized ore zones cut through by the diamond drills to date proved to be 12 feet, 35 feet, 58 feet and 60 feet wide respectively. Therefore we feel justified in saying that our properties have excellent merit.

It is predicted by mining authorities that the Louvicourt-Vauquelin district, right in the center of which our properties are located, will be one of the most active areas in the Province during the coming summer. Confirmatory evidence of this is to be found in the fact that Canada's most outstanding mining developers, such as Ventures Limited, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, and the Inspiration Mining and Development Company sponsored by Nesbitt Thomson & Company, Limited, have all acquired extensive holdings in these townships.

Probably the most advanced property in this district from a development standpoint is the Louvre, a short distance north west of our properties, assay results showing $24.00 across 28 feet as well as other attractive showings.

All things taken into consideration, we believe that the shares of this Company at 15 cents per share offer one of the best speculative opportunities for the investment of surplus funds. As previously stated, this price is much below that at which most initial offerings are made, regardless of development.

We are not aware of any Company in Montreal offering its treasury shares to the public at anywhere near this price that has as substantial a treasury, as competent management, as good a location and such an advanced stage of development.

Canadian Pacific Extends Air-Conditioned Service

The Canadian Pacific Railway Angus Shops at Montreal are humming with activity these days as the Company continues its comprehensive programme of air-conditioning. In the current year, air-conditioning equipment will be added to 136 cars, including standard sleepers, dining cars, tourist sleepers, parlor cars, and day coaches, and these, in addition to the 130 cars air-conditioned in 1936, will permit a very considerable extension of air-conditioned services throughout the Dominion.

Provision is made by the 1937 programme to provide air-conditioned dining cars on all trains carrying air-conditioned sleepers or parlor cars, besides additional sleeping and parlor cars for use on trains between Montreal and Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa, Toronto and Ottawa, and trains 39 and 40 between Montreal and Saint John, N.B. Air-conditioning of tourist cars for use on the transcontinental trains between Vancouver and Montreal and Toronto is a new and interesting feature of the 1937 programme. This will supplement last year's services which allowed air-conditioned standard sleepers, compartment-lounge, bedroom and parlor cars to be used on transcontinental trains between Montreal, Toronto, and Vancouver; the Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Chicago services; and the night trains between Montreal and Boston. Air-conditioned sleepers and lounge cars were also provided for the "Mountaineer" service between Chicago, St. Paul, and Vancouver. Some idea of the work connected with air-conditioning is given by the pictures above. Cars are stripped, as in lower right, and insulated to keep out heat, cold, and dust. The pictures at the left show some of the material being placed in the cars. The satisfaction written all over the face of the young lady, in "Lower 5," expresses the public's feelings toward this new type of controlled comfort. In the centre is a close-up of the control equipment, by which, as the arrows indicate, the individual can regulate the volume and direction of the flow of air.

Englishman's Impression of American Football

(Viscount Castlerose in the Sunday Express, London)

To one who does not understand the finesse of American football the process would seem to be as follows:

The teams form up crouching and facing one another. The ball is flicked out backwards, which is a sign for everybody to fall on everybody else and engage in a death struggle.

The result is a tangled mass of more or less mutilated humanity, but after the heap has seethed sufficiently the referee blows his whistle. The game stops and the ball is given to one side or the other.

Quite why the referee should have any preference in this matter is known only to addicts. To me it was a mystery.

The side who have won the ball then go into a committee meeting and always adopt the same method. Namely, they form a little circle, bend over so that the hush-hush instructions of their leader be not heard by the opposition.

When they have decided on their plan of campaign, which takes some little time, they form up and the game begins anew.

To every game there are four quarters, by which you must not infer that there is any sort of quarter given or asked for. There is, of course, the ball, but then it is seldom seen, being usually buried in the bowels of one of the players.

Never 39 Stars in Flag

There were never 39 stars in the flag. This is because the thirty-ninth, fortieth, forty-first, forty-second and forty-third states were all admitted in one year. North and South Dakota were admitted on the same day, November 2, 1889; Montana on November 8 and Washington on November 11 of the same year. The forty-third state, Idaho, was admitted July 3, 1890, so that on July 4, 1890, five stars were added.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PRINT "DODGING"

Pictures may be improved during enlarging by controlling tones with a "shadow brush."

WHEN an advanced amateur or professional photographer shows some of his beautiful salon pictures to a group of interested but uninitiated people, some of them are sure to ask questions such as these:

"How in the world do you get those lovely tones? How did you make this picture so dark in this part and light in that? How did you get the soft effect in this one? How did you get the light to shine so brightly on the principal object and scarcely at all on the rest of the picture? How do you make these objects in the shadowy parts dim yet visible; and objects in the light parts to stand out so distinctly? My camera won't take pictures like that."

And the cryptic answer is likely to be, "Neither will mine, exactly." Then, how do you get all these different gradations in shadow tones? These pictures are like paintings. Do you touch up the negative with something?"

And the answer will be, "No, I do not touch up the negative; I dodge the print."

"Dodge the print? What do you mean—dodge?"

Then comes an explanation of a method whereby a very ordinary picture, as recorded on the negative, may often be transformed into a work of art in the process of making an enlarged print of it. "Dodging," in the slang of photography, means interrupting some of the light passing through the negative to the sensitized paper during the printing of the picture. "Dodging" may be done in contact printing, but more effectively in making enlargements. It is done by holding something opaque between the light source and the paper, such as a piece of cardboard, in such a way as to keep the light from striking a certain area for a certain portion of the time. Thus, that part which continues to receive the full light will print darker than the part from which the light is held back. In other words, the light is caused to "dodge" a certain area.

Virtually, the shadow from the cardboard in the hands of the photographer is used as a paint brush. It serves to light the dark parts. In another way, a print is "dodged" by using a piece of cardboard with a hole in it. The hole lets through a pencil of light, which is manipulated over the surface of the paper and serves to darken the light parts. The intelligent use of a "shadow brush" or "light brush" in this fashion requires a preliminary study of the negative or a contact print as it would ordinarily register in order to discover where "dodging" would improve the picture. Often it means a number of trials before the result is satisfactory.

Amateurs who do not enlarge their own negatives may suggest to their photo finisher how they think a print may be improved by "dodging," and ask him for a special job on it. Of course, the greater satisfaction comes from doing this work yourself. But that is the way many of the lovely effects we see in salon photographs are obtained.

A Column for the Kiddies

SOMETHING TO LOOK FORWARD TO

"I wish I could be a little coon," Cried Bobby with a sigh. "Then I could sneak around at night And cry and cry and cry."

"And frighten all the bigger boys Who tease me every day; I'd make them hurry off to bed And under cover stay."

"I'd scare my teacher too, I guess, Because she made me stay In after school to write some words Well—just the other day."

"I think I'd scare our hired man, Because he made me work At things he could have done himself. The horrid, mean old shirk."

"But then another great big coon Might scamper after me, And I would be so scared myself I'd run right up a tree."

"So I guess I'd better stay A boy, just like I am. Perhaps I can beat those other chaps When I'm a great big man."

A VALENTINE FOR DAD

The Scott children were very busy making valentines for their friends, and had made them for all except their father. "What kind will we make for Daddie?" Bill asked.

"I have kept this extra big heart to paste on something for Dad," said Beth, "and perhaps we could just put some roses around it."

Bill looked at the heart rather uncertainly but did not make any remark. Beth, who had been watching his face, remarked, "You don't seem to like the idea, Billy Boy." "Well," Bill began rather slowly, when Harry cut in with "I should say not. Hearts and roses don't appeal to grown-up men like Daddie. They want something more manly." Harry was twelve and felt rather grown-up himself.

"Daddie likes roses, I know he does," cried Beth.

"Roses maybe, but hearts, aw shucks!" said Harry with a superior toss of his head. "Let's think of something else. Dogs or something like that."

"Then Daddie might think we were making fun of him. You know that he uses that funny phrase Doggone it! so much when he gets excited."

"He does too," agreed Billy. "I guess Harry forgot about that when he thought of a dog, and you know we should not send valentines that make people sorry. Just nice ones."

The discussion about valentines ended suddenly, for Daddie himself had come hurrying in through the door. "I'm sorry, Lou," he said to their mother, "I won't be able to go to town until this evening. Bob Baxter has just brought me word that Grandpa and Uncle Si are both sick and there is no one to do the chores. I'll have to go right over and attend to things for them. I can go to town this evening, but I did want to get that wood piled this afternoon before the snow covers it up. We have been fortunate so far in not having much snow, but you never can tell what to expect in February, especially around Valentine Day. We always look for the biggest storm of the winter about that time."

All the time their father had been talking Bill was softly poking Harry under the table and winking at Beth. Neither of them could understand what he meant by it and were inclined to be vexed, but hated to say anything while their parents were talking.

Their father called, "Good-bye, Kiddies, be good to mother until I get back", and closed the door behind him. Billy bounded out of his chair with a whoop of glee and turned somersaults across the room several times. "Hurrah!" he shouted finally, "A Valentine for Daddie!"

"Where? What?" queried Harry and Beth simultaneously while their mother sat smilingly awaiting Bill's explanation. She was certain that she knew what he would say, so was not surprised when Bill suggested, "Let's go out and pile the wood and stick big red letters made of pasteboard and crepe paper."

"Do you think we can do it well enough?" Beth asked.

"I'm sure we can, if we do it carefully", answered Bill. "Hurrah!" echoed Harry, "I think it's a capital idea. Bill and I move that we start at once. How about it, Mother? Do you think it will be all right for us to pile this wood for Dad?"

"If you do it neatly, I am sure that it will be all right. You can draw it into the shed on the big hand sleigh and pile it carefully."

There were no happier kids on earth that afternoon than the Scott children, as they toiled to draw in and pile the wood. "Dad's Valentine" they called it, and set the words "Valentine Wishes" up where he would see them first thing in the morning; and it was a happy Daddie who stared unbelievably at the neatly piled wood and who gathered the red letters and put them carefully away as a souvenir of the event.

Prohibit Filing of Mules' Teeth to Deceive Buyers

The Arkansas House of Representatives has passed a bill to penalize mule owners who file the teeth of animals with the intent to deceive prospective buyers. Representative Lloyd Darnell, the author, explained that "everyone looks at the mule's teeth to determine his age." The bill provides a maximum jail sentence of 30 days or a fine of not more than $150 upon conviction.

Cow Bones Wanted for Mah-Jongg Sets

Although they may not have known it, mah-jongg enthusiasts, of which there were many a while back, were playing with the shin or thigh-bones of a cow. Mah-jongg evidently still has its devotees, for China has been making inquiries as to possible sources of supply for cow-bones in Canada, according to the Industrial Department of the C.N. Railways. Most of the present supplies come from Argentina.

Majority of Male Prisoners Are Bachelors, Says Chaplain

Bachelors outnumber married men two to one in the penitentiary, Rev. G. R. Forester told members of the Lions' Club at their recent luncheon in Mount Royal Hotel. Chaplain of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, the speaker said criminal tendencies were most apt to develop between the ages of 20 and 30 years.

through. Therefore these occurrences, I say, may be due to some such defects beneath the earth's surface at the bottom of this pond, causing a suction so great at times as to draw even an automobile into its depths!" Here the mountain-theorist drew a deep breath and turned to look across the pond to the mill, apparently lost in reverie of a serious nature.

"Perhaps Hans will dive again, and try to find the purses those ladies had with them," queried one of the two men who had been standing apart from the others; his companion had stooped to tie his shoe-lace, which had been dangling and tripping him at every step. He hadn't taken time to tie them when he heard the whistle blowing.

"Shure, you're right, they must have had money on them," said another man, with a knowing wag of the head. His foot slipped on a log as he spoke, the last word, throwing him into the water at the edge of the pond.

Hans, the hero, came up out of the water holding two purses in his mouth—one black and the other brown; but no money was found in either.

Everybody stared. Their looks were question marks.

"No money!" they all exclaimed. "That sure is strange," said the man who operated a gas-station at the top of the hill; "I have often supplied that car with gas, and the one of them who drove the car always had rolls of money with her—I have noticed that!"

Morning passed into break of day, and far to the southward the dark shapes of cattle appeared, and the ding-dong of their bells awoke the rest of the sleeping villagers who were yet oblivious of the tragedy in their midst.

"Some people are born subjects of ill-luck, or whatever one likes to call it. Try as they may, they don't seem able to escape the groping fingers of adversity," remarked the minister as he sat down to breakfast with his family, after returning from the pond. He fell into a brief abstraction before proceeding to serve the plates. "Those unfortunate women have no doubt had a hard professional life—nursing is hard work—and now, this ending!"

"It is Destiny's doings, I suppose," said his tired wife with a sigh, as she began tying bibs on several of the youngsters before they ate their porridge.

Over the trail where the cattle had just passed, a horseman suddenly galloped towards the pond. A stray beam of sunlight flickered through the branches of the alder-trees, and reflected from the highly polished mountings on his saddle and uniform. He halted. The by-standers all turned to look in his direction. Suddenly the stillness was broken by his voice as he dropped to the ground and stepped towards Hans Olsen, and said with evident authority, "You scoundrel, I've got you this time!"

"A Royal Mounty, sure 'nough!" exclaimed a girl with rouged lips. "I've often seen him when I was workin' in Montreal," she continued, rivetting her gaze on the handsome officer.

"What has the fella been up to?" the older ones exclaimed with gaping mouths, staring towards the now absent Hans.

Hans, the hero of the past hour or more, had been wanted by the police for several robberies and incidental murder in which he was implicated, but he had, in this quiet Laurentian village, been able so far to elude his searchers.

A RARE COLLECTION

Once upon a time I had an idea that all this talk about the various things to be found in boys' pockets was just funny-paper stuff. I lived to learn better. But pockets are not the only place to store things. Today when I made a bed, this is what I found under the pillows: three books—a volume of Kipling, a Grimm's Fairy Tales, and the Story of the Nancy; one racing car; two aeroplanes; a large lump of plasticine; five soldiers, some B.B. shot; two apples; an orange; and a cookie. I may say that the boy who owned the collection had had to make his own bed for several days!

BUTTER

Somehow I just took it for granted that butter was butter wherever you went, but I find that even butter can be different in Nova Scotia. In the first place the shape of the print is different. It is half the height and twice the breadth of the Ontario print, and comes in two-pound slabs, which are marked off into quarter-pounds. The flavour of the butter is about the same but the quality is different—the degree of hardness. When the butter gets hard it gets very hard, quite unsplendable. It gets hard in the same way that beef dripping hardens. I have been wondering whether it is because of a different method of manufacturing or whether there is a greater degree of stearin in the butter fat. Marking the butter into quarter-pounds there is a greater degree of when baking.

CHERRY COBBLER

Cherry cobbler is one of those old-fashioned desserts which fit in with modern meals. If you have never made it, or haven't made one recently, do try one today. I wonder where it got its name—maybe because it can be cobbled up in a hurry. To make it, pour about a half a can of cherries in a dish. If you are using commercially canned ones, add a tablespoonful of sugar. Stir in a half-cup of water to make more juice, as it is mostly absorbed in the cooking. Make a dumpling dough. To serve four, use 1 cup sugar. Sift these and add milk enough to make a soft dough. While you are mixing your dough, have the cherries in the oven and drop the dumplings by spoonfuls on the hot cherries. Bake until browned, in a hot oven of 425 degrees. Serve hot with cream.

CHEESE STRAWS

When you have some pastry left over that is not quite enough to make another pie, try using it in cheese straws. Of course, there is no law against making paste specially for cheese straws. Roll the paste into a rectangle and cover one half with grated cheese and sprinkle with salt. Fold the paste over and press together around the edges, to seal and enclose the air. Roll and cover with cheese, and season with salt three times. Roll to about twice the thickness of pie. Cut in strips about a third of an inch wide. Bake in a hot oven of 500 degrees. Cool and store in a tin box. When a meal comes that is a little short or not very interesting (and those meals do come in even the best-fed families), serve tomato juice or soup and cheese straws. They are good with a salad, and for your bridge club try making a box of them, log-cabin fashion, and fill with salad.

TURNOVERS

Another favorite way of using ends of pastry is to make turnovers. Somehow I never can make turnovers that do not boil over and leak. Maybe you can manage it. If not, try cutting a round with a large cookie cutter, put a spoonful of jam in the centre, then bring the four corners to the centre, but not quite closing. This makes an attractive looking pastry that will not boil over. Puzzle—find the four corners of a round.—But you know know what I mean!

Children and the Weekly Show

A woman remarked that she was seriously disturbed by the movies that her children were seeing every Saturday.—Every Saturday! I was an innocent bystander, so said nothing, but I am going to boil over on paper! She had a right to be seriously disturbed, but the person to start with was herself. Why did she allow her children to go to a movie every Saturday—children of ten and twelve! The most serious harm was that in having entertainment provided for them on their one free day they were losing the ability to create their own amusement. The adult who cannot create amusement for himself is in danger. To have a child cooped up in a theatre when he should be out playing in the fresh air and sun is putting a burden on the child's health. Then, too, there is no theatre which has, each Saturday regularly, a picture suitable for children to see. I am all for the movies, and movies for children, but I believe in picking and choosing. Small children should not go to the pictures. They do not even appreciate them. I think it has been the experience of most mothers that they have taken a child to a picture that they thought would be thoroughly enjoyed, to find that the little one was bored. Older children can find entertainment in the movies, and after all we all want a certain amount of entertainment. Parents should exercise discretion in the pictures their children attend. There are plenty of good pictures, and each year the number is increasing. If your children are going to the movies every Saturday, is it because you find it an easy way to get them off your hands for the afternoon?

—Jessie Allen Brown.

"THE FAMILY DOCTOR"

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

SPEAKING OF TEETH

I doubt if anyone ever fully appreciates his or her teeth quite so much as when they have just been all extracted by the dentist. When the victim struggles through the agonizing days, trying to "break in" a set of artificial teeth, he remembers what a treasure he has lost in his natural teeth; if it were to do over again, he'd treat those native molars and incisors with a great deal more of respect than he did when he had them.

The modern advice as to care of the teeth is plenty voluminous; the ether-wave sizzles with the bray of the charlatan. The hawk mercifully besets you with his sugar-coated nostrum, and wise columnists hand you theories, sophistries and "isms". Those and many more. Why should I add my bit? Well, common sense at this time may not be amiss.

There is no law on God's green earth that requires the obedience as to how often you should see your dentist, or how often a man or child should apply a nostrum to any part of the mouth, gums, teeth or throat. Just the simple, well-known admonition: Be clean, alert against any harmful practice—and consult your dentist at the first symptom of rebellion in the dental region. There is no minimum or maximum on your visits to the tooth doctor; go when you need his services, be it one, none, or twenty times a year.

Continual and senseless scrubbing of the teeth is highly capable of doing grave harm; many a case of pyorrhea has been set up by the use of septic tooth brushes; the enamel of your teeth was not put there as a field for exploitation by the swarm of nostrum-vendors that infest the land. Nature gave us about all we need in food-elements for keeping the teeth clean. Look for them and use them—and don't believe everything you hear.

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

(A New Feature for Watchman Readers)

Captain Edward Molyneux forecasts a riot of color for spring fashions. In monotone silks, as in prints, color is the watchword. A wide range of blue tones is being accented in spring silks. Misty blues and strong purple-blues are new. Purple is newly accented, and the capucine range is an important one, highlighting glowing yellow-orange and pumpkin tones. Henna and horse-chestnut rank high. A hint of ashes-of-roses overlays the copper range for resort and spring wear. Brownish gold is another favored tone. Red ranks high. Cherry-red, cerise, ashes-of-roses, mauve pink and pale mauve red are leading tones. A wide range of green tones includes bright yellow-green, turquoise green, reseda green and stronger hues.

Book of the Week: Dorothea Brande's "Wake Up and Live" is a welcome spring tonic easier to take than the old-fashioned sulphur and molasses, and ever so much more effective. Very ably and interestingly written; Mrs. Brande shows how to recognize the "will to fail" and substitute for it the "will to succeed."

For reducing hips and waistline, a Hollywood dance authority puts the starlets through a simple routine of rolling and twisting exercises. Twenty-three inches is the maximum waistline measurement permitted on one leading movie lot. Here are the three exercises which have proved most effective: First, lie flat on the back on the floor, hands clasped above the head and ankles together. Then, without moving feet or head, twist the body from side to side. Second: after rolling comes the riding-the-bicycle exercise. Lie flat on the back and raise legs upward, balancing the body with your hands. Then move your legs up and down exactly as when riding a bicycle. Third: the twisting exercise consists of turning the body in a twisting swing from side to side while keeping the feet together.

With the vogue for patent leather, for those who would like one shade which will harmonize with prints and solid dark dresses as well, we suggest bronze patent. There are matching bags, too.

Views of old New York and other historical points are included in some wooden trays decorated with Currier & Ives prints shown at a smart city shop. One is of a mare named Lucy, winner of a race in Buffalo in 1872. The trays are impervious to heat and can be washed in hot water.

Sheer black capes are a new evening vogue. They are especially effective when applied sparsely with large white daisies, yellow centered.

A flower cart such as you might see on metropolitan side streets may bloom in miniature in your own home. It is made of tin, painted white or black with appropriate designs on the side, and with the correct handle and wheels. To hold its wares are four little pots which might be filled with ivy or flowers. It is an amusing and effective little affair.

Household Hint: When vegetables have been burned in an aluminum pan, soak the pan overnight in water to which vinegar has been added. It may then be easily cleaned.

Low Temperatures But Less Worry

Fashions don't matter in the Arctic, food is plentiful and work keeps you occupied... that is why Mrs. Mary Kost, a nurse, likes life with her husband at Aklavik, more than a thousand miles north of Edmonton where the mighty MacKenzie flows into the Arctic Ocean. Caribou forms their principal meat diet, and she and her husband, Vincent, go on 50-mile hunting trips in the fall and bring in a year's supply. If you would like to have the distinction, as did Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, of stopping at the world's northernmost hotel where worries are on the wane and good cheer abounds, then go to Aklavik. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kost will be your hosts.

DON'T LET CONSTIPATION MAKE YOU SICK

Do something about it and do it today. You can take endless pills—but just remember that chronic medicine taking is an unhealthy habit and often loses its effect.

Correct common constipation naturally by including sufficient vitamin B and "bulk" in your diet.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies vitamin B and the "bulk" you need. In the body, it absorbs twice its weight in water, and exercises and sponges out the system.

Rid your body of poisons and see how much better you'll feel. Try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for a week. If not satisfied, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company. Eat two tablespoonfuls a day, as a cereal with milk or fruits, or in cooked dishes. Stubborn cases with each meal.

Sold at all grocers and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

BROWNSBURG

The topic at the Men's League, held at the United Church on Tuesday evening, was led by Mr. C. Roberts, on the subject, "Is Communism the Enemy of Democracy?" A very interesting discussion followed the paper, in which the Christian religion was defended and maintained throughout. Last week Mr. T. J. Anderson addressed the league on: "Retirement at 60". The discussion brought out many sane reasons in favor of Mr. Anderson's well balanced arguments. Next week's subject will be, "The Foreign Missionary Enterprise in Relation to World Progress", and will be presented by Rev. S. J. Pike.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Fred Jordan on Wednesday evening. There was a large attendance. Plans were completed for the tea-meeting to be held on Feb. 25.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. T. Zimmers whose little girl, Danne Ellen, passed away suddenly the early part of the week. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Dalesville Church, the service being conducted by Rev. S. J. Pike, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hardie. Interment took place in the Dalesville cemetery.

An interesting meeting of the Young People's Society was held in the United Church on Wednesday evening, when Miss Mildred MacAllister gave a paper on the Book of Revelation. Next week the meeting will take the form of a sleigh drive.

GRENVILLE

Miss Lois Cooke has returned from Montreal after spending a couple of weeks with friends in the city.

Friends are pleased to hear that the children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hoare of Calumet, are recovering from scarlet fever.

Miss Densmore, of Stonefield, is staying for a while with Mrs. Fred Dewar of this village.

The village school was closed for a few days, the teacher being absent through illness.

It is fortunate that only one mild case of scarlet fever has been reported in this village so far, and very few cases of the grippe. Many have colds and minor ailments in keeping with the changeable season.

BROWNSBURG

Miss Hilda Townsend spent the week-end in Montreal.

While skiing on Saturday last Mrs. C. E. Prosser had the misfortune to fall and break her arm. Friends wish her a speedy recovery.

The Brownsburg W. I. meeting was held on Feb. 4th. Mrs. Connelly, Convenor of Publicity, had a paper read by one of the members on this subject. Rev. S. J. Pike was the judge of the poster contest, Mrs. Wm. Horner being the winner. The meeting was well attended.

Congratulations to Mr. D. McOuat, who celebrated his 85th birthday on Feb. 9th. Mr. McOuat is one of the oldest residents of Brownsburg and has spent practically all his life in this community, he enjoys the best of health.

Mrs. W. J. Morrow spent Monday visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. Robinson, who is suffering from an injury to her spine, caused by a fall.

CUSHING

Mrs. Irving Fuller spent several days in Montreal last week.

Mr. C. Bryerton spent Sunday in Montreal.

Major J. D. Weir, of Senneville, visited friends in Cushing on Sunday.

Mrs. Cora Rourke, of Montreal, was the Sunday guest of her mother, Mrs. George Bradford.

Mrs. Laura Morrow and daughters, of Greece's Point, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Morrow at Monalea.

Mrs. A. Graham is spending this week in Montreal, where she will attend the Mid-Winter Conference of Provincial Officers of the Quebec Women's Christian Temperance Union, and will also be a guest of the American Women's Club at the Windsor Hotel on Wednesday afternoon in company with fellow-members of the Canadian Authors Association. Miss Delafield of the United States will be guest speaker on this occasion.

The sincere sympathy of Cushing residents is extended to Mrs. Irving Fuller, Misses M. and V. Bryerton, and Messrs. Cecil and Arthur Bryerton in the loss of their brother, Grant Bryerton, who passed away after a long illness at the Royal Victoria Hospital on Sunday night. We also extend our sympathy to his father, Mr. William Bryerton of Carillon.

CAMBRIA

Mr. Victor Morrow and Miss Annie Morrow visited friends in Lachute last week.

Mr. G. A. Ryan has suffered a misfortune in the loss of one of his working horses, which was found dead in the stable one morning recently.

In connection with an item in the Cambria, Mille Isles news, made through a misunderstanding in last week's Watchman the paragraph in question should have read: Mr. Charles Kirkpatrick is cutting logs for Col. G. M. Strong.—Mr. Ward and sons are working for a different man, in St. Columban.

Friends of Misses Lily Pollock and Beatrice Draper are pleased to learn that they have fully recovered from illness which they had contracted while in the city.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Mrs. W. Windsor returned from Montreal on Wednesday evening. Mr. E. Neve is making good progress, but has been advised to remain in the city for two more weeks. Mrs. Neve is remaining with him.

A committee were in Montreal last week and a splendid selection of new books will be added to our Library.

Miss Elizabeth Wales spent the week-end at her home here.

Dr. and Mrs. D. T. McColl entertained the Young People's Club at their home, on Monday evening of last week. There were many present, and all spent an enjoyable evening.

Miss Alma Booy was a week-end guest at the Rectory.

A very successful euchre, also different games, were held in the Town Hall on Feb. 2nd., under the auspices of the R. C. Church. Many useful gifts were donated and the proceeds which amounted to $225, will go towards the funds of the church.

Mr. R. Montague, one of our Model School teachers, has the sympathy of this community in the death of his mother, who passed away at the family residence, Maisonneuve, on Jan. 30th.

Mr. Keith Pitcairn spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Pitcairn.

The World Day of Prayer will be observed this year in the Anglican Church on Friday, Feb. 12, Rural Dean Booy conducting the service.

The Boy Scouts entertained the C.G.I.T. last Friday evening to a skating party followed by a social time and refreshments served in United Church hall. An enjoyable evening was reported.

Mrs. P. Matthews, of Fulford, Que., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Perks, during the past week.

Miss Margaret Hamilton spent the week-end with her sister in Montreal.

In the Anglican Church services began on Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 2.30 p.m., and will continue weekly during Lent.

The Literary Society held its regular meeting on Monday evening, Mrs. B. McClintock having charge. Her subject was "Gems".

Word has been received from Mr. H. Woods, who is spending some weeks with his mother in London, England, (who is in her 92nd year). He reports a very rough and stormy passage.

Mrs. John Fraser returned home on Sunday after a sojourn of three weeks in the Montreal General Hospital. She is much improved in health following her operation.

Bushmaster Snakes

Bushmasters are rare in menageries, not so much on account of their scarcity in their native countries as because they seldom survive in captivity. They are highly strung snakes, and the rough treatment they receive during capture, for they are too dreadfully to be treated gently, usually causes a hunger strike that only ends with their death. They are the largest and most deadly of the South American snakes.

Rest for Captain Kidd

In 1696, Captain Kidd was the owner, by purchase, of a lot of ground in a part of New York city then just being sold off in building lots. The lot was in Tienhoven street, now Liberty street, near Nassau street. There, according to accounts of the times, says the New York Sun, he erected a mansion expecting doubtless "to pass the evening of his days in the city of his adoption."

Jerusalem Couple To Celebrate Golden Wedding

MR. & MRS. AND. WALKER
50 YEARS MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Walker will receive the congratulations of their many friends next week upon the celebration of their Golden Wedding Anniversary. Both Mr. and Mrs. Walker are life-long residents of this community and were married on Feb. 23rd., 1887, by the Rev. William Furlough. They settled on the Walker homestead situated on the West Gore road three miles north of Lachute, where they lived for seven years, and then moved to the Crozier Farm which Mr. Walker purchased, and has lived there for the past forty three years.

Their four children are still living. The oldest son, Gordon, resides on the farm with his parents, while the two daughters, Mrs. Norman Boyd and Mrs. William MacKimmie, reside in this community. The youngest son, John, at present lives in London, Ontario. They have seven grand-children.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker are still enjoying the best of health, taking an active interest not only in the work at home but also in the community at large.

Second Son of Lawyer Admitted to Quebec Bar

FERNAND LEGAULT SAILS FOR POST-GRADUATE STUDY IN EUROPE

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Fernand Legault, son of Mr. L. L. Legault, K.C., on his admission to the Bar of the Province of Quebec. After his grammar school education here in Lachute, he went to Montreal College, graduating with the degree of Bachelor of Letters and honors in French, Literature and History. Two years at Loyola College, on all-English curriculum, won for him the degree of Bachelor of Arts and honors in Cosmology, Political Science, Economics and first honors in Fundamental Law.

Following a family tradition—his father, a brother and an uncle being lawyers—he then took the Law Course at the University of Montreal, from whence he graduated after the regular course with the degree of Bachelor in Law.

While at Loyola College, Mr. Legault won a scholarship in the annual intercollegiate essay contest given under auspices of "Les Ecoles des Hautes Etudes Commerciales". At Loyola he was also a member of the Scientific Society, the Literary Society, and the C.O.T.C. at the U. of M. He was a collaborator in the Quartier Latin, official University paper, representative of the Law faculty to the Athletic Association, and Secretary of his graduating class. For two consecutive years, he reached the finals for his faculty in the tennis tournaments.

In 1932, Fernand Legault won the Bryant cup as tennis champion of the Lachute Golf and Tennis Club, and was tennis captain of the club for two years.

Mr. Legault will be sailing for Europe, next Saturday on the Ile de France for a post-graduate course in France and England. He is accompanied by the good wishes of his friends here in Lachute.

PLAN TO BROADCAST OPENING AT QUEBEC

Arrangements are being made whereby the opening of the Quebec Legislature on February 24 will be broadcast, thus enabling listeners-in to learn of the main lines of legislation which the Duplessis government will introduce during the course of the session.

Hon. E. L. Patenaude, lieutenant-governor of the province, will read the Speech from the Throne, in both languages, as he did on the occasion of the opening of the first session of the present Legislature last fall, which was also broadcast by radio.

Fernand Legault, son of L. L. Legault, K.C., who has been admitted to the Bar of Quebec Province, and leaves this week for a post-graduate course in France and England.

GRAIN STOLEN FROM BARN, LAKE SIR JOHN

SEVERAL BAGS OF OATS REMOVED WITH HORSE AND SLEIGH

The barn and summer home of James Peck, near Lake Sir John at Dunany, were broken into last Friday night, the theft of 6 or 7 bags of oats being reported to the Lachute authorities next morning. The farm is operated by Mr. Felix Giroux.

Constable Gervais, investigating the robbery, found footprints obscured by rain and snow which fell during the night, but the tracks of a cutter and hoof-prints of a horse were clearly defined, and may aid in apprehending the thief. It appeared that the intruder was quite familiar with the premises, knowing exactly where the grain was stored. The vacant summer-home near the farm buildings was also entered. Cupboards had been broken open but nothing had been removed.

Right of Way Re-established Near Pointe au Chene

RAILWAY MUST RESTORE GATES AND CROSSING

The Railway Commissioners at Ottawa have published a judgment ordering the Canadian Pacific Rly. to re-establish gates and roadway over the railroad tracks at a crossing half-a-mile from Pointe au Chene, in the Lachute subdivision.

Following an accident between a truck and train at the crossing last year, the railroad company closed the crossing. Olivier Menard, owner of a sawmill in the district, made application to the board for re-opening of the crossing.

The applicant offered to pay one-third of the cost and the board recommended the railway pay the other two-thirds.

J. W. CYR REPLACED AS TERREBONNE SHERIFF

E. SCULLY OF ST. JEROME IS APPOINTED TO OFFICE

E. Scully, of St. Jerome, has been appointed sheriff for the district of Terrebonne, according to recent announcement. Mr. Scully received official notice of his appointment with instructions to commence his new duties last Monday.

He replaces J. W. Cyr, who has held the position for 21 years and is well known in all sections of the legal district.

Long-Range Scheme to Avert Future Drought Disaster -- Water Conservation, Irrigation and Other Measures -- Outlined by Federal Minister of Agriculture

"The Ottawa Spotlight"
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, February 16.—The Dominion Government has not lost faith in the "drought stricken" West; it is confident that five years from now or ten years from now the "open prairie" will still be supporting close to a million people. Believing this, and knowing of no part of Canada where these people could be moved with any assurance that they would be any better off, it intends to finance the people through to better times, and meanwhile carry on a long-range scheme of rehabilitation aimed at preventing a return of the recent drought disaster, in the same degree at least. Such was the message given to the House of Commons by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, on the second reading of the Drought Rehabilitation Measure. The Minister spent nearly two hours in giving the Chamber a long and interesting account of the country, its extent, its problems and its probable future.

THE ART GALLERY OF HISTORIC PICTURES

Twenty-two years ago the writer, when visiting the Metropolitan Art Gallery of New York in company with a friend, witnessed a scene he can never forget—a procession of about twenty bright teen-age lassies, led by their teacher, touring the gallery in a study of history. We followed in their wake at a respectful distance, and were greatly entertained by the class discussion between teacher and pupils, and we can readily believe that what they saw made a deeper impression than what they heard, but each sense aided the other.

What an admirable way of teaching history, and every branch of learning—the kindergarten method on a larger scale, for children of a larger growth.

This is the lesson our guide books are endeavouring to teach us. If the proposed museum of our Historical Society is to deserve the support of the

LACHUTE BOY SCOUTS HELD SKATING PARTY

On Friday evening last the local Boy Scouts gave a skating party in lieu of the approaching Valentine celebration. After a session of skating, the boys and girls went to McArthur's Hall, where refreshments were served and entertainment provided. Mr. and Mrs. C. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Taylor and Mr. George Leggett Sr. were present and conducted the program with great credit. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and altogether the Scouts proved themselves excellent hosts.

ADVOCATES CHEQUE-BOOK MONEY

Claiming that "cheque-book money" would enable Canada to cope with such problems as the national debt, national defence, unemployment relief and public works without imposing too great a burden on the people, John H. Blackmore (above) Social Credit Leader in the House of Commons has introduced a motion in the House asking the Government to create the power to issue such money.

FIRST HOCKEY PLAY-OFFS STAGED DURING WEEK

RE-PLAY LEFT 4 TEAMS EVEN AT CONCLUSION OF SCHEDULE

After winning their protest with Grenville, Hawkesbury staged a re-play here last Thursday, beating their neighboring line-up by 6-4—to completely change the four-team standing at conclusion of the schedule. All four clubs—Grenville, Lachute, Brownsburg and Hawkesbury—now stood with 6 points to their credit, and it was a toss-up which teams should meet which, for the semi-finals. It transpired that Lachute should play Hawkesbury, and the Grenville team should play Brownsburg.

The play-offs consequently opened on Saturday, with top-notch enthusiasm among the fans, who packed the local Arena. Lachute met Hawkesbury in a keen encounter, the home sextet taking a decisive triumph with 6-3.

On Tuesday, playing again on Lachute ice, Grenville clashed with Brownsburg and took a 6-2 victory in the first of their showdown series.

Each of these two-team play-offs will be decided on a 2-out-of-3 basis and the finals, between the two winners, will depend on a 3-out-of-5 lead.

Lachute hockeyists played away last Sunday, with St. Laurent, reporting a victory of 6 goals to 3.

No Clue to Thieves In Robbery at Lemay Store

THIRD ROBBERY PERPETRATED IN 3 YEARS

The third robbery in three years occurred last Wednesday night at the J. D. Lemay store on Bethany Street. Clothing valued at nearly $200 was removed by the thieves, who entered by breaking the front door lock, and made their escape in a closed automobile.

The car, a new model, was seen outside the store at 2 o'clock in the morning, and three men were transferring goods from the premises. Mr. Jacques and Miss Francoise Lavigne saw the car from their home nearby and immediately telephoned to the Lemay residence. The store being on the same telephone line, the intruders heard the phone bell ringing, and hurriedly made their escape.

Constable Gervais was notified, and he communicated with Montreal, St. Eustache and Hawkesbury. It was evident that the car had speeded toward Montreal, for the toll keeper at St. Eustache reported that a machine answering

Sewell Trophy Games Start at Seignior Club

NO REPRESENTATION FROM LACHUTE THIS YEAR

Seignior Club — Women curlers gathered today at the Seignior Club for the sixth annual bonspiel for the Sewell Trophy.

Representatives from curling clubs in Montreal, Hamilton, Ottawa, Peterborough, Quebec, Outremont, Montreal West, Hawkesbury, Carleton Place, were expected to enter for the trophy, a set of silver curling irons with replicas, presented by the late W. B. Sewell, a former member of the Seignior Club. The winners last year were the Rideau Club.

The large entry list, of well over a hundred women, necessitates an early start and play, commencing at noon today will continue until late Sunday afternoon.

The Sewell Bonspiel is governed by the Elgin Trophy method of play, i.e.—

(1) All rinks will play three games of ten ends in Preliminary.

(2) All rinks with three wins will play "Sudden Death" to a winner.

(3) Rinks losing first two games played are eligible for Consolation Competition to be played, if time permits, after or during the finals for Sewell Trophy. If it is necessary to limit the number of rinks in this Consolation Competition the rinks having the highest total score in their first two games will be eligible.

(4) Prizes for winner and runners-up.

public in the interest of its French and English schools, its Art Gallery should be made one of its outstanding features.

While original oil paintings of classic and historic interest are quite beyond reach on account of their cost, their reproduction in glowing colors, by present day lithographic science, has brought them within reach at comparatively little cost, and their value in educational influence and as a lure to visiting tourists would not thereby suffer much loss. (See appendix for dealers in reproductions in works of art, in Coleman's manual.)

To provide wall space for a history-teaching art gallery worthy of the name, the museum should have a corridor not less than eighty feet in length.

Should there be an embarrassment of loans and gifts to this and other departments of the proposed museum, from the four bi-lingual counties of the Lower Ottawa, and should the structure be adequate in size, the methods of distribution and classification, of our sagacious and accomplished advisors, will bring satisfaction to all concerned.

In these modern days "museumology" is becoming an exact science.

For a history museum, what kind of library is needed? Mr. Coleman and Mr. Parker will advise us in our next.

ESSAY COMPETITION

Resolution Regarding a County-wide Essay Competition for School Children

Whereas the objects of this Society are to promote interest in the early history of this county and district, to foster an interest in historical matters and Canadian loyalty and patriotism;

Be it resolved That the Historical Society of Argenteuil County sponsor an Annual County-wide Prize Essay Competition.

That this competition be open to all school grades.

That the essays be not longer than 2,500 words.

That the subjects bear upon the history of the writer's locality or other parts of the Ottawa Valley.

That two prizes of $5.00 (five dollars) cash be awarded, one for French and one for English.

That three judges be appointed by the Executive of the Society, their decision to be final.

That the names of all competitors must be enclosed in a sealed envelope accompanying the essay.

That the essays be in the hands of the Secretary-Treasurer not later than April 1st.

Dr. Cushing very generously contributed an extra $6.00 towards the prizes for this year, making a total of eight dollars for each of the two prizes.

Please note that all essays must be in the hands of the Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Walter Windsor, St. Andrews East, Que., by April 1st, 1937.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Feb. 21st, is "Mind." The Golden Text is: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding." (Proverbs 3: 5).

The following passages are from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light."

and in him is no darkness at all." (1 John 1: 3, 5.)

"In divine Science, which is the seal of Deity and has the impress of heaven, God is revealed as infinite light. In the eternal Mind, no night is there." (Science and Health, page 511.)

THE MYSTIC SYMBOLS OF FERTILIZER TAGS

The manner of showing the abbreviated analysis of a fertilizer on the tag or bag, as 0-16-6, 2-12-6, 2-16-0, 4-8-10, etc., might well prove mystifying to some. In the order stated, the figures represent percentages of (1) available nitrogen, (2) available phosphoric acid and (3) water-soluble potash.

A question asked frequently is: If 2-12-6 represents percentages of the three fertilizer constituents, of what does the remaining 80 per cent consist? Well, nitrogen is a gas, phosphoric acid a liquid and potash an unstable solid, in their uncombined states, and require some other substance to hold them. Superphosphate, the main source of phosphoric acid in fertilizers, contains from 50 to 60 per cent of calcium sulphate which possesses a distinct fertilizing value, chiefly as a source of sulphur. But sulphur does not have to be stated in the guaranteed fertilizer analysis because it is always supplied, as an ingredient of superphosphate, where rational fertilizing is practised.

Triple superphosphate is an excellent material, but is not agronomically superior to the more commonly used carriers of available phosphoric acid, according to one authority. The reason is that in the manufacture of concentrated triple superphosphate the valuable calcium is excluded.

SHIP-WRECK LED TO THE DISCOVERY OF SMUT CONTROL

How often better ways may be discovered by fortuity, says B. Leslie Emalie, who describes how accident led to the discovery of means for controlling smut and bunt of grain by treatment of the seed.

The evolution of the safety match from the kind that strikes anywhere was due to the accidental omission of an essential ingredient of the chemical solution. The matches of this batch could not be induced to ignite, whether by scratching on a brick wall or on the seat of the pants. The despondent factory chemist, contemplating ruin, was rubbing aimlessly the head of one of the dud matches against a drying smear of the substance which had been left out, when, presto! the match lit! Thus by accident was born the safety match which strikes only on the box.

Origin of Seed Treatment

To a marine disaster we owe the discovery of seed treatment for the control of smut. Toward the end of the seventeenth century a wheat-laden sailing vessel was wrecked on the coast near Bristol, England. Farmers of the vicinity salvaged some of the grain which, being found unsuitable for grinding into flour, was used as seed. One observant farmer noted that the wheat grown from the brine-soaked salvaged seed was freer from smut than was the crop produced from home-grown seed. Writers of the eighteenth century refer to the practice of brining seed grain and to the influence of the salts of sea water in reducing the incidence of smut. But it was no longer necessary to wreck a ship in order to procure the treated seed. Any more than it was to burn down pigsties for the gratification of appetite on roast pork, which was done in ancient China following Bo-bo's discovery of the delicacy, if we are to believe "Ella," or Charles Lamb, in his "Dissertation Upon Roast Pig." That was another epoch-making, accidental discovery which led eventually to the invention of the gridiron!

Organic Mercury Dust

The treatment of seed grain with brine continued to be practised widely for nearly a century following the shipwreck, near Bristol, and then a chemist discovered the greater efficacy of blue vitriol for the purpose. But it was not until 1912 that European scientists, searching for new chemicals wherewith to combat diseases of humans, discovered that certain organic mercury compounds are highly toxic to bacteria and germ spores and yet comparatively harmless to body tissues. This was what investigators of seed treating had been waiting for, and thus science again came to the aid of the farmer by furnishing him with an inexpensive sure means of controlling seed-borne diseases and root rots of crops. And, speaking of inventions, there is now available an ingeniously simple automatic seed treater designed for use with organic mercury dust by an official of the Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, Sask. This machine is capable of treating from 80 to 100 bushels of seed grain per hour and is already in great demand from east to west.

"International" Machinery in Motion Pictures

Having assumed the local agency for International farm machinery and trucks, the Farmers' Supply Company is featuring an interesting motion picture on this well-known line of equipment. The pictures will be shown on Friday evening, 19th. inst., at the company's showrooms, Foundry Street.

Empress Winter Golf Tournament

While the rest of Canada is shovelling itself out of snowdrifts, Canada's only mid-winter golf tournament of an international character will be held on the Royal Colwood Golf Club Course at Victoria, B.C., from March 1 to 6. This is the annual Empress Winter Amateur Golf Tournament, now in its ninth year, which brings well on to 200 enthusiastic golfers from Canada, the United States, and Europe into competition for a large number of valuable prizes, including the Sir Edward Beatty Challenge Cup, Chamber of Commerce Trophy, Victoria Rotary Club Rose Bowl, and Matson Inter-District Team Cup.

Favored by summer-like weather, the tournament is the high-water mark of the social season for the winter colony on the sunny southern tip of Vancouver Island. Victoria will be in festive mood for the event, while Colwood's beautiful clubhouse and the regal Empress Hotel, with its gardens, conservatory, and Crystal Garden swimming pool, will form an ideal background for the colorful social activities which mark the six days of tournament play. Included as added attractions will be a dinner dance and entertainment every evening in the Empress Hotel, with presentation of prizes at a Grand Ball on Saturday night.

Golf experts and dubs alike will find competitions suited to them in the week's play at Royal Colwood, a lovely course constructed on park land, 6,291 yards in length, with a par 70 that was broken only once in tournament play. Play will be divided into classes for both ladies and men, ranging from open amateur events and handicap matches to features that stress the social side of the grand old game.

Powers of Parliament Are Prescribed by Present Canadian Constitution

B.N.A. ACT AFFECTS THE CITIZEN CLASSES

(Special Parliamentary Correspondence)

Probably the toughest bit of gristle that Parliament has put its teeth into in recent years is the British North America Act. This document, now in its 70th year, has ambled along as the framework of Canadian constitutional government without any provision made for its amendment. Amendments have from time to time been made by Westminster, upon an address by both Houses of the Canadian Parliament, with or without previous consultation with the Provinces. The nub of the problem today is this—must Parliament be thwarted in its efforts to deal with economic problems because of the interpretation of property and civil rights set by the Fathers of Confederation as matters of provincial jurisdiction?

By the recent decisions of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the reform program of the previous government was almost completely sabotaged. It is true that a measure affording relief from debt to the farmers was sustained. This was to be expected, as the powers of the Dominion to deal with matters of bankruptcy have always gone without challenge. Certain amendments, bringing unfair trade practices within the Criminal Code, stand. This means that what is deemed to be a proper field of criminal law is expanded with the arousing from time to time of public conscience.

The defeat of unemployment insurance is probably the greatest affront that Dominion jurisdiction has suffered in its effort to deal with problems clearly national in character. But that by no means represents the complete impact of the blow. The right to make treaties has always resided in the Crown, a right exercised in fact by the Cabinet. When the Versailles treaty was signed, the steps taken by Canada in ratifying that treaty were analogous to those taken by Great Britain. This procedure was clarified further by three Conferences, in the years 1923, 1926 and 1930, and the power of Canadian Parliament to make effective a treaty by legislation was put beyond question by the aeronautics and radio broadcasting cases. It was on the strength of these judicial decisions that the Dominion thought itself empowered to pass the Eight-hour Day, Weekly Rest and Minimum Wage, fixing conventions in keeping with obligations it had assumed under the Versailles Treaty and the National Labour organization. The decision in respect of these treaties is notice to the world that Canada's power to make a treaty without the concurrence of the Provinces has been greatly prescribed.

The discussion in Parliament was not precipitated by an attack from front-benchers. It was rather a circling movement, originating from Opposition Members of the House. It arose when Mr. Bennett, on a Motion to go into Supply, asked the Government to call a non-partisan Constitutional Conference to deal with methods of amending the constitution. When the debate was resumed at a later date, the decisions of the Judicial Committee had been made known through the Press. The most astounding feature of the discussion was the attitude of complacent abdication assumed by those who spoke for the Government. The conduct of the case by the Attorney General of Canada, especially his selection of counsel, was vigorously criticised by the Leader of the Opposition. Mr. Bennett, Mr. Cahan and Mr. Thorson agreed in suggestion that the Dominion should proceed to obtain amendments to enable it to deal with the social legislation that had been sabotaged. Labour Minister Rogers, however, contended that now that the Provinces have succeeded in their counter offences and made the last state of things worse than the first, a "wait-and-see" policy would be a fitting gesture on the part of the Dominion. Let the Provinces either agree to enact uniform labour laws, or let them agree to come to Parliament and surrender their recently renounced jurisdiction. This means in cold, plain facts that the man who now labours thirteen hours a day can expect relief when he persuades the Government of his own Province, the Governments of eight other provinces, and probably the Government of the Dominion as well, that he is entitled to an amendment of the law.

Spectators Saw Red

Horried bystanders rushed to the aid of Duell Broyles, pinned under a Tulsa, Okla., bakery wagon which was turned over, his head red with what appeared to be blood. On closer examination they found his head and face had been splashed with cherry pie filling, this being the extent of his "injuries."

More Than His Share of Teeth

People who have sparsely settled teeth or irritating false ones will be envious when they learn that Walter Miller of Edmonton has started cutting his fourth set of natural molars, and he is only twelve years old. His first three sets, which he had by the time he was ten, were all straight and good—while they lasted.

Flexibility of the Hands

It is a generally accepted principle that the fingering of a piano or organ keyboard will vary and be governed by the size and formation of the hand, and the webbing between the fingers, according to a musician in the Montreal Herald. Hands are not all the same in size and pliability, and rules which suited one kind of hand were unsuited to others. The lateral stretch between the thumb and the hand and between the fingers varies very much, and it is not always the largest hands which have the most flexible action. Some large hands are tightly webbed, and some small ones are very flexible and in the playing of arpeggios, the smaller hand will play the greater stretch more easily than the large hand.

Dolls Aided Witchcraft

Among African Negroes Dolls had a close connection with witchcraft. Among African negroes, a doll is supposed to have magical powers, and may be used to ward off evil, or offered up as a sacrifice.

Not so many years ago it was believed that to overcome an enemy it was only necessary to fashion a wax doll resembling him and melt it slowly before the fire, when he, too, would waste away with illness.

Toy animals, like those in Noah's Ark, miniature picks, shovels, and household articles such as a miniature tea service, were buried with the dead or were offered to the gods as imitation sacrifices. Thus a farmer would present at his temple little wooden sheep or horses; the housewife would offer small reproductions of household wrennals.

Mechanical toys, such as trains, dancing dolls, and swimming ducks, had quite a different origin. They were produced as scientific wonders, by the great experimenters of long ago, and were regarded as playthings fit for a king. The more ignorant people believe them to be miraculous and sometimes the makers had narrow escapes from execution as wizards.

The Ottawa Spotlight

Weekly Review of National Affairs
Specially written for The Lachute Watchman
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Mr. Gardiner recalled the cycles of drought and hard times through which the prairies had passed, and reminded the house that an overwhelming proportion of the government assistance rendered to the farmers in the drought area of 1914 was returned to the government as soon as the farmers were able to sell two or three good crops at reasonable prices.

FINEST WHEAT IN WORLD

There are nearly a million people in the affected area. The Minister explained why that country, under favorable conditions, produced the finest hard spring wheat in the world. He showed that it had been a combination of low prices and light yields that had driven the people down into destitution: before, there had been periods of low prices and good yields, and also periods of good prices and low yields. Such were trying, but could be overcome. But when price and drought together were against the farmer, it made the going especially tough. He was confident that better yields were coming, and that a combination of higher prices with larger harvests would restore that country to much of its old prosperity.

The original Drought Rehabilitation measure contemplated the expenditure of $750,000 the first year and a million a year for four subsequent years. The present bill permits larger expenditures if necessary. The Minister recalled that the drought had cost the Dominion Government at least 50 millions; and it would be money well spent now, if ten millions or so were put into measures which would help to prevent another disaster of the same sort.

This Week in History

Canada is fortunate in having a fairly limited number of dates to be ashamed of; the anniversary of one falls on February 17 and on February 19 at 7.30 p.m., Jack Kinnawin will tell his radio listeners something of the events which led to this date back in 1890. "This Week in History" will deal with the famous crime now known as "The Birchall Murder."

Birchall, who died by hanging for the murder of a twenty-four year old Englishman, John Benwell, is described as a "genius gone wrong." In his cell at Woodstock, Ontario, awaiting trial, he wrote in superb style the story of his life. He also wrote poetry of excellent merit and decorated the walls of his prison with fine drawings. Osler and Blackstock matched their wits on his account and these two great legal minds clashed again and again as the circumstantial evidence rounded out a story of unspeakable callousness and cunning.

Birchall's trial was one of the sensations of the era and he went to his death without confession. Radio's reminiscent columnist will recall this nearly fifty-year-old crime for the listeners of the CBC Eastern and Midwest network, most of whom have heard something of Birchall's story.

Meaning of Lustrum

Lustrum was the solemn offering made for expiation and purification by one of the censors in the name of the Roman people at the conclusion of the census. The animals offered in sacrifice were a bull, a sheep and a pig. They were led around the assembled people on the Campus Martius before being sacrificed. As the census was quinquennial, the lustrum came to signify a period of five years.

Antiquity Used Paint

Paint for protective or decorative purposes, made from a wide variety of materials, has been known since the early days of ancient times. Pliny, the Roman author who lived from 23 to 79 A. D., writes of finding in Smyrna a native lead, or cerussa, as it was known then, which was used for the painting of ships.

PROGRAM OF THE GOVERNMENT

The steps being taken by the federal government, in co-operation with provincial and municipal authorities, individual farmers, the railways, the organized grain-growers and other societies include the following:

Dams and dugouts, to preserve 'run-off'; small irrigation schemes at which farmers and ranchers can grow sufficient feed to tide them over dry years; hardy grasses; community pastures; demonstrations of new types of culture to end soil-drifting; introduction of drought resistant varieties of grain and other plants; tree-planting wherever practicable. Where farmers can be moved from the lighter and less desirable soils to adjacent lands where success is more probable government assistance will be given.

STATE AIDED HOUSING

The Dominion Housing Act, though very slow in getting started, promises to do much better in 1937. Hon. Charles Dunning told the House last week. In the first six months the money loaned for the building of homes was only $810,000; in the second six months it jumped to $3,037,000. The final quarter of 1936 showed home-building under the scheme four times that of the same quarter of 1935. To the end of January, 1937, a total of 1,119 'family units' (houses and apartments) had been provided for a total cost of $5,376,000. The early operation of the Act was mainly confined to the 'middle residential class' and the average loan was $4,861. In January this average had dropped to $4,123, which suggests that the more modest home-builder is beginning to find the scheme of some use. It will be recalled that under this Act the Dominion loans 20 per cent of the cost of a dwelling—the junior mortgage money, usually so difficult to secure—at a modest rate of interest.

14,000 Miles on Horseback

"We warrant he'll finish the journey standing up!" This is the conclusion made by Harry Price, in Review of Reviews for February, which states that R. M. Reid of Melbourne, Australia, has started on horseback for the coronation in London next spring.

G. W. SPINNEY, recently appointed Joint General Manager of Bank of Montreal.

Insurance for Auto Accidents

A strange digression of opinion is advanced by the Province of Quebec Safety League, and will be definitely urged at the coming session of the Quebec House. The suggestion takes the following form: "That primary automobile accidents costs be uninsurable and that they be borne by the individual operator." The decision was arrived at by executives of the league following discussion of the automobile accident problem in this province.

It is not long since automobile and safety bodies commenced agitating for compulsory auto insurance. Presumably, the reason was to protect the unwitting victims of road-hogs and careless drivers. Now, before the idea has reached the stage of discussion among legislators, we find one of the most up-and-coming safety organizations in Canada seeking a measure to reverse this suggestion—making the guilty motorist uninsurable (if we have interpreted the suggestion correctly), and to leave the victim in many cases unprotected for damages.

The reason given is that "it was felt that drivers who knew they would have to pay personally a part of the damages caused by their cars would be more careful on the road than if they were satisfied they had no responsibility." This reason may be sound; but on the surface of it, and realizing how many accidents are caused by drivers both morally and financially irresponsible, the logic is somewhat obscure.

Lent—the Theory and the Practice

For 1,300 years Christians have been observing 40 days of Lent in memory of Christ's death and passion. Some observe but forty hours. It depends on which tradition is believed concerning the length of Christ's fasting in the wilderness.

Some have observed Lent by watching what others did about it. But today, more Christians turn to a spiritual observance of this period, denying themselves material pleasures and distractions to concentrate more earnestly on the principles of Christ-like living. As Christ denied himself—not for mere ostentation, for the saving of a few shekels, or even for the saving of His physical life—so the meditations of Lent among His followers should be directed along lines of virtue, brotherhood and charitable living.

Christ's kingdom on earth is not a shibboleth for fervent repetition; it is a condition of harmony and righteousness which men can bring about, of their own will and with divine guidance. If the rush and bustle of material interference too easily obstruct the Golden Rule, now, during Lent, we should meditate on the theory of the thing, and determine the ways in which Christianity may become a practical theme in man's daily routine.

The Editorial Influence

The press is credited with a large influence in the conduct of affairs and the molding of opinions. But this influence would appear to be overestimated. At the expense of editors who labor over daily sermons to a doubtful audience, we cite the following result (from the New Republic of Jan. 13):

"Every bill of major importance that came before the 74th Congress with virtually unanimous editorial support was defeated, and every bill that was fought to the last ditch editorially was passed. This was equally true of the 73rd Congress, according to a review of editorials in 500 daily newspapers in key cities of the U. S."

The same fate, no doubt, befalls many community urges and uplift articles with which the journalists fill their pages. But the press is a determined instrument, and though editorial paragraphs may be skipped for the comic strips and the more lurid news, a legion of columnists and editors will continue to do their duty.

An Elusive Tablecloth

London City Corporation will reward anyone who can help them to find a tablecloth lost for 60 years. The reason is this: When the idea for Tower Bridge was first considered in 1877, Sir Horace Jones, the city architect, sketched his scheme on a blotting pad. This relic—the first design for the famous bridge—is in the Guildhall. At a banquet the same evening, Sir Horace elaborated his ideas by a sketch on a tablecloth. This tablecloth is also known to have been preserved, but it cannot be traced.

Arcand Law Obstructs Building

The officers of the Housing Improvement scheme are starting an intensive campaign to induce home owners or prospective home owners to borrow money and start building repairs (says a timely editorial in the Granby Leader-Mail).

If it is really desired to start a boom in the building trades, the quickest and surest way would be to have the building trades agreement under the Arcand Law abolished. That law has done more to retard building in this province than can be realized.

When a prospective builder or home improver learns that he must be governed by all kinds of red tape regulations and pay every man that wields a hammer or a saw on his house a minimum of fifty cents an hour, the job is likely to be postponed. There was one case in Granby of a cellar being excavated and foundations started, but when the building trades regulations were learned the whole project was called off. There are numberless other cases in which no start at all was made for the same reason.

If the Arcand Law were abolished (concludes the editorial), the building trades would start booming without all the artificial encouragement of the Housing Improvement scheme.

Noise Elimination in Montreal

Two of the most annoying noises in Montreal are well on the way to being eliminated, according to anti-noise experts. These two noises are steel riveting and breaking up of city pavements by use of pneumatic drills.

The riveting of structural steel is being replaced by welding, as is illustrated in the construction of a new bridge on the Montreal-Quebec highway. This bridge was welded into position.

Engineers have now discovered a muffler for pneumatic drills and hammers which cuts out approximately two thirds of the din emanating from these machines.

Canadian Education Week on the Radio Networks

Canadian Education Week, the last week in February, will be observed on the CBC radio networks. The idea behind Education Week is that of bringing attention to the possibility of improvement in Canada's educational system.

On Monday, Feb. 22nd., the Canadian Teachers' Federation, an organization embracing approximately 25,000 teachers, will have the CBC national network for a special broadcast from Vancouver. This broadcast will include brief addresses by Dr. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education in British Columbia, and James R. Mitchell, President of the Canadian Teachers' Federation. The Vancouver Bach Choir will provide a musical background for the program. This broadcast will be heard at 10.30 p.m.

Eric Newton, art critic of the Manchester Guardian will give a talk on the subject of "Art Education in Schools", under the auspices of the National Gallery, Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 7.45 p.m. Mr. Newton, who is now on a lecture tour of Canada, has been studying the teaching of art in Canadian schools. He has done a good deal of broadcasting in Great Britain.

Two Children Died In St. Jovite Fire

SIX OTHERS HURT WHEN HOME BURNS DOWN IN NIGHT

Two children were burned to death and six other persons suffered serious burns when fire destroyed the home of Octave Emond, St. Jovite farmer, early on Saturday morning.

The fire was believed to have started in the cellar of the frame house. Flames spread rapidly through the building. Emond and five other children were burned about the face and hands. They made their escape into the bitter cold in night attire. Mrs. Emond was the only member of the family to escape uninjured.

Emond, barefooted and suffering severely, walked through the snow to call aid at St. Jovite railway station, a mile away.

Survivors were taken to nearby barns, saved from destruction by the efforts of neighbors.

A jury under Dr. Brais, district coroner, returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of the two little victims.

Emond has two married daughters living with him and a large family of his own. Most of the grown-up children work at an inn in the village during the holiday seasons.

Time spent in hating another is too much exercise given your worst function.

WAGES ... the years

When I was a boy in New England my father, who was a minister, thought that I ought to learn some trade by which I could support myself if I failed to make good as a professional man, which was his ambition for me. He could earn journeyman's wages as a cabinet-maker, and was an expert farmer.

It happened that the trade to which I was apprenticed opened the door to a profession. I became a printer, and by that route a journalist. I found myself several times in my young manhood very thankful that I had a trade to fall back on at which I could always earn a living.

It was a good trade, too, and today is the best paid of all the crafts. Printers on newspapers and magazines earn the highest average hourly rate in industry, 87.2 cents per hour, the American Industrial Conference Board reports. Automobile workers come next, with 79.3 cents an hour. That is more than double what union printers got in the big cities when I worked at the case.

Progress ... workers

It was my father's idea that the only honorable occupation was one which helped to make the world a better place to live in. The wage-worker does that, when by his labor he converts raw materials into useful commodities and so adds to the world's store of usable wealth. The employer of labor aids by providing the machinery and tools—the "capital goods"—to enable the workers to produce more wealth with less labor. The merchant who distributes wealth by bringing commodities within everybody's reach is also helping to make a better world.

In my lifetime the world has steadily been getting better. Character counts for more in human affairs than it ever did before. Standards of conduct in human relations are higher than they have ever been. We are making progress.

Success ... not selfish

The most successful men I know are not vain of their ability to make money. I asked one of my friends, who has built a very large business, to let me write the story of his life.

"Not until I am dead," he replied. "It would embarrass me to be held up as an example for others. But if, after I have passed on, you want to write anything about me, say that I was fortunate in being able to give work to a great many good men, and to help make the world a pleasanter place in which to live for many others."

That is the spirit, I am convinced, in which most big business men regard their life work. Yet I hear demagogues denounce successful men as enemies of the workers! I have been watching the world go by for a good many years, and I have never known any man to succeed who did not help others toward success as he went along.

Religion ... today

All around me, wherever I go and whomsoever I talk with, I find signs of a deep and serious revival of interest in religion. There was a while, for a few years after the World War, when it seemed as if the people of the world had almost abandoned their religious beliefs. That phase is passing, and men and women, young and old, are returning to the realization that there is no salvation for themselves or for the world in its troubles, through anything mankind can do by itself without divine guidance.

I have sat at a luncheon lately with four or five different groups of business men, all concerned with trying to find workable solutions for the economic problems of the nation. Every time someone has brought up the suggestion that the only answer lies in religion there has been general agreement.

General acceptance of religion as the ruling force in human affairs will put an end to selfish nationalism and the motives which lead to war. And nothing else will do it.

Lachute High Wins Victory Over 'Burg Intermediates

THIRD GAME BETWEEN RIVAL TEAMS

The third game of the season between these two collegiate teams was played at Brownsburg. From the start, Lachute line-up held command of the play, taking the lead early in the first period and ending the first session 3-0 in their favor. As the second period opened Brownsburg tried to even up the score and soon rapped in one counter, the only one in their favor during this period. Lachute scored four more goals, ending the period 7-1. The third session was fast, with the 'Burg still trying for a lead. They finally scored another tally while the local boys found the net five times more, to end the game 12-2 in their favor. It was a fast, clean game, with only one penalty. The goals for Lachute were made by G. Powell 2, G. Gosselin 2, R. Bedard 1, G. Campbell 4, B. Langille 2, S. Drew 1—Hewitt and Ball scoring for Brownsburg.

Nubell Gold Mines, Limited (No Personal Liability)

In a recent radio talk the Honourable T. A. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines, said, "Last year our mines expended in Canada a record total of more than two hundred million dollars for supplies and equipment, salaries and wages; and in addition they paid dividends amounting to seventy-eight million dollars."

Every individual who invests his money in a mining enterprise that is honestly endeavoring to make a mine, is assisting in the development of our natural resources, besides benefiting himself from the resultant dividends he in all probability will eventually receive.

Before investing, however, every person should ask himself these three questions: Is the Company well managed? Is it sufficiently financed to carry on development successfully and—are the properties meritorious?

To all of these questions the reply in the case of our Company would be an affirmative one. Our Board of Directors is made up of outstanding, successful business and professional men. Our treasury is amply provided to carry on development work for many months, and our properties are meritorious.

Assays of mineral from our properties made by J. T. Donald & Company show $7.00, $16.45, $63.80 and $39.90 respectively, or an average of $24.23 in gold.

The mineralized ore zones cut through by the diamond drills to date proved to be 12 feet, 35 feet, 58 feet and 60 feet wide respectively. Therefore we feel justified in saying that our properties have excellent merit.

It is predicted by mining authorities that the Louvicourt-Vauquelin district, right in the center of which our properties are located, will be one of the most active areas in the Province during the coming summer. Confirmatory evidence of this is to be found in the fact that Canada's most outstanding mining developers, such as Ventures Limited, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, and the Inspiration Mining and Development Company sponsored by Nesbitt Thomson & Company, Limited, have all acquired extensive holdings in these townships.

Probably the most advanced property in this district from a development standpoint is the Louvre, a short distance north west of our properties, assay results showing $24.00 across 28 feet as well as other attractive showings.

All things taken into consideration, we believe that the shares of this Company at 15 cents per share offer one of the best speculative opportunities for the investment of surplus funds. As previously stated, this price is much below that at which most initial offerings are made, regardless of development.

We are not aware of any Company in Montreal offering its treasury shares to the public at anywhere near this price that has as substantial a treasury, as competent management, as good a location and such an advanced stage of development.

Late Miss Catherine Martin Well Known in Ottawa Valley

Miss Catherine M. Martin, well known in this vicinity, passed away at the Ottawa Civic Hospital on February 5th. last, after a short illness.

Miss Martin was the eldest of four sisters, all of whom predeceased her. She was born April 1, 1855, at Riviere Rouge, Que., a daughter of the late Charles Martin and his wife, Jane McLachlan. Her parents moved to Pointe Fortune when she was a child and there she attended school, afterwards taking her teachers' training. For over forty years she taught in various parts of the Province and was highly respected by her confreres in educational circles. Among the various places she taught were Pointe Fortune, Breckenridge, Glen Bean, Riverfield and East Templeton. After her retirement, she and her sister, Annie, returned to Pointe Fortune, and made their home there, until the death of her sister, when she moved to Ottawa. There she had spent the last fifteen years, being a member of Chalmers Church.

Surviving her are one nephew, Wyman Webb of Minneapolis, Minn.; two grand nieces and one grand nephew. The late Angus McLachlan of Pte. Fortune was a cousin, and Miss Martin was a frequent visitor at his home.

The funeral took place on Sunday, February 7, from the parlors of George H. Rogers Limited, with the Rev. Dr. J. W. Woodside of Chalmers Church officiating—to the Carillon Hill Cemetery where Rev. Arthur W. Williamson, an old friend and neighbor, had the burial service. A few of her old friends, among them Messrs. W. and B. Williamson, Cole and W. J. Pitcairn, gathered at the cemetery, and accompanying the remains from Ottawa were Mr. Webb of Minneapolis, Miss McLachlan of Arnprior, Miss Maud Russell Brasie and Mr. Russell McLachlan, of Ottawa.

Phillips Brooks once said: "Find your purpose and fling your life out into it; and the loftier your purpose is, the more sure you will be to make the world richer with every environment of yourself."

Lifelong County Resident Called By Death

AT FUNERAL OF
MRS. P. NICOLL

At a largely attended funeral on Tuesday afternoon, final tribute of respect was paid to the remains of Mrs. Elizabeth Nicoll, wife of the late Mr. Paul Nicoll, who died Sunday morning at her home in Lachute, at the age of 76 years. Formerly Elizabeth McFarlane, she was born at Hill Foot. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church and a widely respected resident of this community.

Mrs. Nicoll is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Thomas Davies of Montreal, Mrs. Raymond Millar of Winnipeg, Mrs. Ellen Peterson and Miss Anne of Newark, N.J., and Mrs. Roy Morrison of Lachute; also eight sons, Anderson, William and Albert of Newark, N.J., Edward of Aurora, Ill., Thomas W., of Port Arthur, Ont., Howard of Montreal, Andrew and Harold of Lachute. All of the above family, except Thomas, were present at the funeral. Mrs. Nicoll is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. William McOuat of Lachute, and Mrs. Simon MacKimmie of Calgary, Alberta; and a brother, John MacFarlane of Lachute.

There were two deceased children, the late Mrs. John Millar of Winnipeg, and George, who was killed in the Great War. The funeral service was held Tuesday, Feb. 16th., at the Presbyterian Church, conducted by Rev. H. Cousens, and was largely attended by her many friends. Pall-bearers were her seven sons.

to this description passed through between 3 and 4 a.m. The toll fee was thrust into his hand and the car speeded on before he had time to take the licence number.

The stolen goods included mostly men's wear and children's woolen suits. No trace of the culprits has been reported to date.

Miss Lydia Morrison Is Dead in Eightieth Year

With deep regret we record the death of Miss Lydia Morrison who passed away on Feb. 19th., at Dr. Smith's Hospital, Hawkesbury, in her 80th year.

Miss Morrison was born in Hawkesbury, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison, but was well known in Brownsburg and Lachute as she and her parents resided here for many years, during which time they were loyal members of the Methodist Church. Until two weeks ago she was in her usual health, but met with a most painful accident by scalding, which resulted in her death.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Geo. Law of South Dakota; two nephews, Mr. Hugh Morrison of Brownsburg, and Mr. Kenneth Morrison of Windsor, Ont.

The funeral will take place on Friday, Feb. 19th., at 1 p.m., from the residence of Mrs. J. B. Morrison, Hawkesbury, to the United Church of that town, and thence to the Lachute Cemetery.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The family of the late Mrs. Paul Nicoll wish to thank all friends and relatives for their kind sympathy in their recent sad bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted. Zimmer of Dalesville wish to thank all kind friends who extended sympathy in their recent sad bereavement.

PREMIER DUPLESSIS ON TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

BRIGHTER PROSPECT FOR ROUTE LAID THROUGH THIS SECTION

"When spending money constitutes a good investment, we spend—because there is nothing better than a good investment." Such words as these pronounced by Premier Maurice Duplessis at a banquet tendered on Monday last in Montreal in honor of the Premier and W. R. Bullock, M.L.A. for Westmount, inspire continued confidence in the Quebec Government and merit the support of all right-thinking men. Duplessis unfolds his program of progressive legislation. "We are going to reorganize our Roads Department as we wish our roads system to be the best in the country", he said.

This is good news, and it is to be hoped that Argenteuil will come in line for the unfilled promises of the previous government, to proceed with the trans-Canada highway. This section has been side-tracked long enough, suffering neglected roads on the north shore and a bridge at Pte-au-Chene that was condemned for several years by Provincial Government engineers and is a nightmare to those compelled to travel over it. It is high time this important scenic route came into its own. While the cost of roads varies, the Premier's remarks would intimate that the trans-Canada road should be constructed in the most modern and up-to-date manner, and if laid in concrete this would prove by far the best investment.

"It's the furniture folk come for the piano, Henry."

"But I gave you the money for the next instalment."

"Yes, I know, dear; but don't say anything. I'm going to pay them as soon as they get it downstairs. I've decided to have it in the sitting room."

AUNT JEAN HERSELF

WHAT BETTY FOUND IN THE BARN

"Riddle-a-riddle, riddle-ma-ree, All are alike as pea and pea—What have I got in my apron", said she.

Tom guessed eggs, and Bill said corn; Betty just laughed, her eyes full of scorn, "You sillies! They're kittens just newly born."

All were as black as black midnight, With not the faintest streak of white, But the children loved them, and laughed in delight.

THOSE MEAN LITTLE SNOWDRIFTS

It was Ted's job to keep the paths around the house and across the lawn clear of snow. The earlier part of the year he had not much snow to shovel, but was kept rather busy carrying sand to sprinkle on the ice so that dear old Grandmother and Grandfather could take their daily walk around the house several times — "Their Daily Freshener", Grandmother called it. She said that she and Grandfather needed this walk every day to keep the cobwebs out of their eyes.

The older children just laughed, but tiny Ted and May used to watch the dear old faces rather anxiously on days when it was too stormy for their grandparents to go outside, to see if there were any signs of the cobwebs Grannie spoke of. They did not understand, of course, that she had only meant that folks needed outdoor exercise in the fresh air to keep them clear-eyed and healthy. Although Grandmother was almost eighty years of age she was just as happy and merry as the children themselves, and so interested in their games and studies that Ted felt that he just could not neglect those paths.

When the snowstorm came he had to work quite hard to keep them smooth, because there were places where the little snowdrifts would gather every morning—and sometimes two or three times a day.

Ted grew quite angry with them; he shook his shovel threateningly and even made faces at them, but it did no good, he had to bend his back and dig hard to clear the snow away. Meanwhile, behind the rose bushes, the merry little breezes who put them there whistled and chuckled with glee.

Ted could not understand how the snowdrifts appeared when there had not been a snowstorm in the night. "Where does all this snow come from?" he asked himself one day. "It did not show in the night. Someone must be carrying it here"; and he dug furiously—the perspiration rolling down his small face and dripping from the end of his freckled nose. "And I'd just like to catch them at it!" he added.

As if in answer to his threat, a sudden blast of wind whistled by carrying with it a heap of snow which settled down right in the space Ted had just cleared. He stood still and stared. "I do believe", he chuckled softly, "that the Mischief Fairies are at work. Grannie told me just last night that they were always watching to get little folks into trouble, and I guess she's right. I am having lots of trouble with these mean old snowdrifts. But I just wish I could find those Mischief Fairies.—I'd show them!" As he stood brandishing his now shovel his grandparents had walked quietly up, until they stood behind him, chuckling softly at his threatening manner.

"What are you fighting, Teddie boy?" Grannie asked softly.

"Oh!" said Ted, rather startled to hear a voice behind him, "Jest threatening the Mischief Fairies 'cause they wont stop filling up your pathway, Gran" he said, his eyes dancing brightly. "See how full the path is already, and I have cleared it twice since I came out here. Jest wait until I clear it, once more, then you will have to step quickly to get over before it fills up again."

Having shovelled the path, he took his Grandmother's hand and the two of them hopped quickly over just in time, as a swift blast of wind filled the spot with snow again. "Those mean old snowdrifts!" cried Ted, but Grandmother said, "They're not so horrid as you think, Teddie. There are some flower roots by the corner of the verandah that they are trying to reach and cover up. See how the little flakes keep sifting, sifting over towards them." "But your path, Gran, it does not need covering up to keep it warm."

"No, but the snow-flakes have to cross it to get to the flower roots and they must stop wherever the Wind Fairies drop them."

"Then I wish they'd give them a good strong boost right across, while they're at it."

Grandfather had been standing looking wistfully towards the old mill while Grandmother and Ted were talking. "Selina", he said suddenly, "It is such a nice sunny day that I'd like to walk down as far as the mill, if you don't mind going into the house alone." Grannie looked into Grandfather's eyes a moment, before saying softly, "When little boys take notions I suppose they must be humored—but you must not go alone."

To be continued.

Lovingly, Aunt Jean.

Would They Lend That Horned Owl?

A horned owl has taken up its abode in a spruce tree on the Experimental Farm near Ottawa. At night he hunts rats and mice. He is so good at it that those who have heard about his success are figuring on borrowing him. At that, owls will probably not take the place of house-cats as pets.

Canadian Newsprint in the Bazaars of India

Where do the old newspapers go? Seeing how many millions of copies are turned out into the world, they are liable to turn up in all sorts of places. If you should happen to make a purchase in one of the bazaars in India the chances are your parcel would be wrapped in a newspaper that had performed its function as a news-sheet and was now devoted to utilitarian purposes. Nearly half of the paper imports into India consist of old newspapers, which for the last fiscal year amounted to 57,583 tons, according to the Industrial Department of the C. N. Rlys. Canadian newsprint is again making headway in the paper market of India after a setback, particularly in Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, and Lucknow. It is claimed that the use of Canadian newsprint is more economical, as it does not absorb ink to the same extent as some other kinds.

"Jumping to a conclusion", says Pathfinder, is the apt phrase for leaping with a parachute that fails to open.

EMPIRE SCOUTS AT THE CORONATION

It is estimated that 350 Scouts from over twenty different countries of the Empire will be in London for the Coronation of King George. To date representations have been indicated from Australia, Barbados, British Guiana, Burma, Bermuda, Canada, Ceylon, Cyprus, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Grenada, India, Kenya, Malta, New Zealand, Nigeria, Northern and Southern Rhodesia, St. Lucia and Trinidad. Sightseeing places along the route of the Coronation procession are being assigned to the visiting Scouts.

PLANS TO RESUME SCOUT MIGRATION

Plans for the resumption of assisted migration of English and Scotch Boy Scouts to the Dominions and Colonies are under consideration by Imperial Headquarters of the Boy Scouts Association. Prior to termination of emigration by the world depression upwards of 4,000 Old Country Scouts of suitable qualifications were assisted overseas, the majority to Australia as "farm learners". A number came to Canada on agricultural school scholarships. The Premier of South Australia will discuss resumption of Scout migration to that State during his visit to London for the Coronation.

Build Fire With Coal Beneath Kindling, Is Advice

The proper way to start a fire in a stove, furnace or grate is to put the coal on first, then the paper and then the kindling, Harold J. Roast, McGill University metallurgist, said in a lecture before the Mechanics' Institute of Montreal.

The reason for the unusual order, Mr. Roast said, was that the heat from the wood ignited the coal from the top in this way, releasing the gases to provide further heat and quicker burning. If the coal is placed atop the kindling, it is ignited from the bottom, and the gases escape up the chimney, with a consequent waste of heat.

The rapids opposite Mr. Todd's store are frozen over. Mayor Fish tells us this section of the river has only been known to freeze over once before, during his long residence in Lachute.

East Settlement—A successful meeting was held in the interests of Mr. J. C. Wilson as Conservative candidate for this county. (The opposing candidate is Mr. R. G. Meikle).

Correspondence—It has been circulated that I was opposed to union services of the two Presbyterian congregations and gave a casting vote against it. I say positively I was not chairman of the meeting and did not give such a vote. On the contrary I was always in favor of the proposed union.—S. MacKimmie.

Advt.—We are now opened in the store lately occupied by J. R. McQuat, and have on hand a general assortment of dry goods.—Fraser Bros.

Circuit Court for the County of Argenteuil is now in session here, the Hon. Judge Wurtele presiding.

Miss Ethel Winters, who has for some time been a faithful employee of the Lachute Knitting Co., has been engaged to fill the Post Office vacancy caused by the retirement of Miss Janet McDougall.

Marriage — At Cornwall, Ont., at the residence of the bride's parents, Miss S. Helvetia Brunneau, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Brunneau, to Mr. Eugene M. Jousse, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Jousse of Lachute.

Rev. Mr. Gagnon, of Alleyne, Que., has accepted a call to St. Simeon's Church.

Mr. Robt. Hamilton has just installed a phone. Call 80 for your bakery needs.

Fire broke out Saturday evening in the box stalls of Rodrigue's stables, adjoining Mr. A. Elliott's blacksmith's shop. Fortunately a number of people were at the station awaiting the train. Men rendered willing assistance, the hydrant was soon at work and saved what might have been a serious blaze.

A Weekly Series of Word Studies

How to pronounce "apostle?"
Apos-ul, without the "t" sound, is correct.

How is a criminal arraigned?
Is it at the court?

No. A criminal is arraigned at the bar, before the court for a crime, on an indictment, upon discovery of his crime.

Has "at length" and "at last" the same meaning?

No "at length" is an intermediate state; "at last" final.

At length he has come. At last he has died.

What is the meaning of "aye"?

Pronounced "ai", means yes. Pronounced "eh", always.

Is "a bad wound" correct?

No. The word bad should be avoided in referring to sickness.

Does "balance" mean "the rest" or "remainder", as the "balance of the evening"?

No. The balance is the amount added to the lesser, to make two amounts equal.

THE BOX-OFFICE TALKS

A good many weekly newspapers come to my desk and I have been watching the quality of the movies that are advertised. Some towns get all the best pictures. Others seldom get anything but the second-rate ones and worse. Why is it? Are the people in those towns indiscriminating picture-goers that will go to any and every picture; or are the better thinking people indifferent and do not bother to attend when there is a good picture? There is some reason behind it. The remedy lies with the public. If they refuse to attend the worthless stuff and make a definite point of going to the good pictures, they will get what they want. The box-office has the last word. Reformers talk a lot about improving the movies but they seldom do anything constructive.

To get three meals a day is a considerable chore, and any legitimate way in which this work can be lessened should be used. One of these ways is the intelligent use of left-overs. Do not dish up the same thing in the same way, but cook a sufficient amount to use in some other manner for another meal. Take baked potatoes, for instance. At first glance there is nothing very inspiring over a cold baked potato. But, ladies, there is! So bake enough potatoes for two meals and save time and energy, to say nothing about fuel. Try cutting your cold potato in thick slices, skin and all, and brown quickly in dripping in the frying pan. Looks a bit different and tastes good. Don't forget to shake some salt and pepper over the slices while cooking. If you have never made creamed potatoes from baked ones, you will be surprised at the improved flavour. Peel, then dice the potatoes and mix with cream sauce. Add salt and pepper and just a suspicion of scraped onion. Put in the oven from twenty to thirty minutes to allow the cream sauce to be thoroughly absorbed. By way of variety, add a little grated cheese to your cream sauce. Do you ever bake onions while your oven is on to bake the potatoes? Skin the onions and take off the outer layer. Put in a baking pan, dot with butter or bacon fat, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and bake. Baked onions have nothing to do with left-overs, you may say. Oh, well, I know that, too, but it was just another idea for food. At the present moment my oven contains enough potatoes for two days, onions, apple-crisp for dessert, and apples baking for tomorrow's breakfast. If I did not use the oven to cook non-mindable meals, I would never get this column written. May be, you use your time for knitting. Everyone to her own taste. I often wish I were a knitter. There is only one way to lessen your work, and that is to use your head and plan your meals so that they will dove-tail.

TWO-TIMING

If your family is too small to use a large (2½) can of tomatoes, try planning for two dishes. Drain the tomatoes and use the pulp for scalloped tomatoes. Season them with salt, pepper and sugar, cover generously with buttered crumbs, and bake in a moderate oven for a half-hour. Make a tomato jelly with the juice. Measure the juice and water if necessary to make a cup and a half. Season with about half teaspoon sugar, a scant half teaspoon of salt, a dash of pepper and a suggestion of onion juice, and heat. Soak 1 tablespoon gelatine in ¼ cup cold water, then add to the hot tomato and stir until dissolved. Pour into moulds which have been rinsed in cold water and chill until set. Yield, 4 moulds. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

GINGER FORK COOKIES

Three-quarter cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 2 cups flour. Cream shortening and sugar, add beaten egg, sift in dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pinch off a small piece of dough. Roll, in the hands. Place on buttered sheet and press down with a fork two ways. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for 10 minutes.

The Fetish of Matriculation

Dr. MacArthur, Deputy Minister of Education in Ontario, chose a good audience when he spoke to the Canadian Manufacturers Association on the fetish of the Matriculation examination. If more employers would recognize the value of Vocational Schools and put less emphasis on examinations, education would have a better chance to progress. Vocational Schools have had to labour under a class handicap. Working-class people have not wanted their children to go to Vocational Schools but have felt they were giving them a push up if they sent them to Collegiates. People of better education have not even considered the Vocational School. I have talked to a good many mothers in my home and school work, and too many of them used an apologetic tone when they said their children were going to Vocational Schools. This is ridiculous. It provides the most satisfactory education for the average child (and that is what most of us have). The pity of it is that town and rural children are denied the opportunity to attend. Vocational schools give theory and practice and teach also the so-called cultural subjects. The quicker we can get away from the awful adulatation of Matriculation and advance to greater use of Vocational Schools, the sooner we will have our children better educated. Educationists cannot move too far ahead of public opinion, and parents should make an effort to find out the real facts in education.

Beauty in Winter

In midwinter many women are annoyed by dry, peeling lips. Hands, ankles, and faces chap and roughen. Sometimes the skin of the whole body feels dry and uncomfortable. Doctors tell us that when the skin is chilled, the blood which carries nourishment does not circulate so freely near the surface of the skin and moisture is withdrawn. All this discomfort can be avoided by a few simple measures.

When you bathe, be doubly careful to rinse off every vestige of soap, and after drying, rub a little hand lotion over the whole body.

Take special care of your hands, avoiding strong soaps and very hot water as much as possible, drying the hands carefully after every wetting, using lotion half a dozen times a day, applying cream at night, and rubbing oil or cream thoroughly into the nails and cuticle.

Use an uncolored lipstick the last thing at night, or, if you feel depressed without a little color on your lips in the morning, use the natural-toned stick, the color of which will not come off on the pillow. Men who have dry, cracked lips also find the white lipsticks a comfort.—Ruth Murrin in Good Housekeeping

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

If you feel that you must reduce to retain a slender and youthful figure, here are some common-sense rules of eating that are given by one of the country's foremost health and beauty authorities. "Don't call it a diet," is one of the first things she insists upon, having seen the harmful results from strenuous fasts undertaken without proper medical examination and advice.

We live in an age of nervous tension. Most digestions aren't up to par. You need a certain amount of meat, but don't eat the fat on meat, or greasy foods. Eat lots of fruits, tomatoes, leafy vegetables. Have your vegetables cooked so that you can eat the skin—a lot of the mineral value is in the skin and just under it. You can eat a baked potato, but eat the skin too and don't soak the potato in butter.

Be sure your daily elimination is good.

Eat as little salt as you can.

You need a certain amount of sugar for energy. Try to get it through foods which contain high natural sugar content, such as raw fruits, beets and raisins.

If you're inclined to over-acidity, acquire the lemon habit. Take the juice of half a lemon in half a glass of water every morning about ten minutes before breakfast.

The sad part for those inclined to overweight is that it's no use eating to rule for a week, or a month. You can never let down. You've got to train yourself to pick and choose all the time, every day, at every meal. And even then, sensible eating alone isn't enough, you must have plenty of exercise, such as walking or a "daily dozen" from five to fifteen minutes every day.

If you are limiting your sweets and simply cannot drink coffee clear, without sugar, here's an "old-country" Scandinavian custom that is helpful. You take only one-quarter of a lump of sugar and hold it on your tongue while you drink your coffee. It has the same sweetening effect as though you had stirred up a teaspoonful or two in your cup.

Those who choose to regard the fact that men are decidedly fashion-conscious as news will fully overlook the fact that men have always been fashion-conscious. Consider the days when they wore frills and satins and jewels in eighteenth century France. When the vogue for ornate and bizarre buttons was current, one dandy appeared at court with watches worn as buttons. Men are quite as definitely slaves to fashion as women ever were.

Book of the Week: Della T. Lutes' "The Country Kitchen" is a small and saucy book as American as pumpkin pie. It is the story of a country family in the 1870's: of Father, autocratic, obstinate, kindly, generous, whose Achilles' heel was his appetite; of Mother, with plenty of spirit, who eased Father along because ructions weren't worth while, but who had her own ways of bringing him to terms; of "Delly", a little girl with wide eyes and sharp ears, who took it all in and now has put it into words.

For spring Paris forecasts white jackets with black skirts or with plain dresses. They are made on tailored lines and are matched by white accessories. There are still numerous black dresses, trimmed with a soft shade of dusty pink or with pale turquoise blue.

Household Hint: A small dish or tin of powdered charcoal, placed in an ice box, will keep the box sweet and odorless.

"Darling, do you think we could manage on $25 a week?"

Modern Girl: "Precious, get the license. I'll try it for a week."

IN REVIEW

Ho-hum! The millennial dawn approaches, thanks to our medical columnists. Every man his own dietitian, his own self-culturist, his own psychiatrist. The family doctor is headed for the long vacation when he shall have talked himself out of a job for all time to come.

Among my contemporaries I read that tobacco does not shorten life; that the snifter of corn whiskey is not guilty, nine times out of ten. That meat and salt don't have a blame thing to do with one's blood pressure—that both are actually essential to hitting on all six. That health exercises are often indulged up to a fatal point in many cases. That diet, rest and sleep are to be taken at the dictation of appetite.

Which knocks most of the medical theories and speculative hypotheses into cocked hats—almost. Every man his own doctor. He can go on living, and, die in his turn—so—he passes on.

All of which is so much piffle, written for the price, yet pregnant with horse-sense deductions.

No two men or women are exactly alike. Hence, there can be very few set rules governing the conduct of many. Here are some, however, that I may say I use myself:

Be temperate in all things. No human ever uttered better advice than that. Temperance in eating, drinking, working, thinking, sleeping, laughing, sighing, living, dying—temperate in all things. Observe that simple rule—and cut the doctor's bill to near zero.

Then, you will catch the "flu" or break your leg—or your wife will receive a visit from the stork—just any old thing will happen; then call the doctor, as you have always done.

END THE FEEL-PUNK, DRAG-FOOT DAYS

Dull headaches, poor appetite, sleeplessness are warning signs. You feel low—hate to work. These symptoms may point to constipation due to "low-bulk" meals.

Why throw these days out of your life—particularly when regular habits make you feel so good. Get "bulk" by eating a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

There's nothing experimental about ALL-BRAN. Millions of people have used it successfully. Scientific tests prove it is safe and effective. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Just eat two tablespoons daily. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN often. Serve as a cereal, or cook into delicious recipes.

What an improvement over pills and drugs. ALL-BRAN is a food—you buy it at the grocery store. Made by Kellogg in London.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

"I had to tell you right away!"

Bob Watson came home bursting with the news. The big break had come at last. He was now Department Manager at a big increase in salary. "Your Father will be delighted!" beamed Muriel, his wife. "Why not call him up?" "I certainly will—news like this demands Long Distance. And while I'm about it, I'll call Aunt Mary, too!"

The Watson family have found that to spread good news or in emergency, Long Distance is indispensable. Are you making best use of all that Long Distance offers?

Miss Catherine MacPherson Honored at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — On Tuesday evening employees of the Canadian Safety Fuse Division met in the C.I.L. Club Rooms here to honor one of their oldest employees, Miss Catherine MacPherson, who has retired after 30 years of faithful service. Miss MacPherson came to Brownsburg in November 1920, from Linlithgow, Scotland, where she had been employed in the Regent Factory.

Mr. M. V. Travers presented Miss MacPherson with a beautiful purse of money from the office staff and employees, after which Mr. Ardill, Superintendent, made reference to her faithful work with the company.

Refreshments were served, followed by moving pictures showing the Canadian Safety Fuse employees. An added attraction of the evening was the singing of several selections by Mr. James Duncan. A delightful social gathering was brought to a close with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Schenectady Massacre in History as Indian Fight

The Schenectady Massacre of February 9, 1690, which marked the deepest trough ever made by a foreign foe within the present historical limits of the United States, marked the first time in American history that white men had participated with Indians in the latter's savage methods of warfare. observes a Schenectady correspondent in the New York Times. It was not unprovoked, however, for in the previous summer the Iroquois, with English muskets and five kegs of English powder, had fallen upon La Chine on the St. Lawrence river. The Iroquois killed many Canadians and burned their houses.

The Iroquois remained in Canada until the fall of 1690, terrifying the inhabitants so that they were unable to harvest their crops. Frontenac, returning to Canada as governor, found it necessary to make an aggressive move to restore the confidence of his people and prevent the loss of his own savage allies. He forged the bolt that struck Schenectady at midnight on February 8, 1690, a force of 210 men, Montreal militia and Indians for the most part, which had made the journey on snow shoes over frozen lakes and snow-covered forest. Of the inhabitants of Schenectady, 90 were killed and 27 were taken captive.

The Pomeranian Dogs

It is the belief of many that Pomeranians originated in Pomerania. The early specimens were bred from the large and sturdy white Spitz dogs, and also bred from the sledge dogs of both Lapland and Iceland. In short—the wee Pom's heritage is rich with the tradition of the dogs from the frozen northlands.

Sometimes a Palace

When the Houses of Parliament are not in session the correct name for the building is Palace of Westminster. It ranks as a royal palace and is in charge of the hereditary Lord Great Chamberlain. Sovereigns from the time of Edward the Confessor to Henry VIII made Westminster palace their chief place of residence.

IN MEMORIAM

KEARNS—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Feb. 20th., 1935. Always remembered by her son and daughters.

MORRISON—In loving memory of Olive Janet, who passed away February 19, 1928. Ever remembered by mother, sisters and brothers.

CLEARY—In loving memory of our darling little Betty, who was called home on Feb. 15th., 1936.

Jesus came gathering little flowers—
On the way he gathered ours.
Inserted by Eddy and Gladys Cleary.

BOYD—In loving memory of little Lucy and Annie, who passed away March 10, and March 21, 1918.

And yet my little girls come not,
And I think they have missed the way
And strayed from the cold, dark country
To one of perpetual day.
I think that the angels have found them.
And, loving them better than we,
Have begged the Good Father to keep them
Right on through eternity.
Ever remembered by Father, Mother and family.

BOYD—In loving memory of little Walter Lloyd, who passed away February 3, 1927.

Our little lamb He lent awhile,
Pure as Himself from stain
Then said "My kingdom is of such",
And called him Home again.
Ever remembered — Mother and family.

BOYD—In loving memory of my little son, Norman, who passed away February 22, 1936.

But I am coming, I shall find you,
Norman, sometime—somewhere—
When His great will is done
And I am fit to stand once more beside you
To your high place I shall have leave to come:
If I could mend a broken cart today,
To-morrow make a kite to reach the sky,
There is no woman in God's world could say
She was more blissfully content than I.
But ah, the dainty pillow next my own
Is never rumpled by a shining head;
My singing birdling from its nest has flown
The little boy I used to kiss—is dead.
Forever in my thoughts—
Mother.

Delicate Situation Well Handled by Government, Says Eggleston

QUEBEC MOST SENSITIVE
ARMAMENT

"OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—Underlying the Quebec opposition to the modest increase in the defence estimates is the fear that it is the first step toward war. Toward participation in foreign conflict. Toward conscription. Quebec has not forgotten 1917; there is a profound disquiet over the turn events are taking. The more impetuous French-Canadians realize that all Canada is doing, so far, is to put our tiny defence machine into working order; and obtaining a few modern fighting planes which could dash here or there and make some resistance against an invader. But one has to remember that the French-Canadian members, like the English, speak for their constituents as well as for themselves. The fact that so many French Canadians, loyal Liberals on every other issue, should feel impelled to rise in the House and differ with the government, suggests that the apprehension in French-Canada, behind the scenes, is much keener than most of us realize. MRS. PETER R. MCGIBBON SUCCEMDED TO ILLNESS

MEMBER OF PIONEER
OF FORMER M.P.

A large gathering of relatives and sympathizing friends assembled yesterday afternoon at the residence of the late Mrs. Peter R. McGibbon, paying their last tribute of respect to one who was intimately associated with county affairs in a progressive period of their history. Mrs. McGibbon was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter McArthur of Dalesville, and widow of the late Peter R. McGibbon, a former representative for Argenteuil in the Federal Parliament. Her husband predeceased her 16 years ago. Mrs. McGibbon had a knowledge of early life in this territory, and of county traditions, shared by few of the older generation surviving today.

Death occurred early last Sunday morning at her home on Bethany Road, resulting from an attack of pneumonia. She was in her 81st year. The funeral was conducted yesterday afternoon by Rev. W. B. Rosborough and Rev. H. H. Cousens. All members of the family were present.

Burial-bearers were — Messrs. Dufferin and Hector McArthur, Montreal, R. S. McArthur, Lachute, John, Norman and Arthur McGregor, Montreal. The remains were taken to Lachute Cemetery for interment.

Mrs. McGibbon is survived by one brother, Archibald McArthur, of Lachute, and by her three daughters and two sons — Mrs. Robertson (Laura) of Calgary, Alta., Mrs. John Drysdale, (Christina) of Westfield, Mass., Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, (Hazel) of this town, Finley S. McGibbon, also of Lachute, and Russell D. McGibbon of Hoosier, Sask.

MAY RECEIVE EARLDOM

When Premier Stanley Baldwin retires — which may possibly be after the Coronation in May — he will be rewarded with an Earldom for his services to the nation. Mr. Baldwin would probably take the title of Earl of Bewdley, that being his seat in Worcestershire.

Wanderer Returns Here to His Boyhood Home

FORMER TOWNSMAN
23 YEARS ABSENT

Samuel Caron, who some years ago took up land in the Peace River District under the Soldiers' Settlement Scheme, landed home this week for a brief visit to renew old associations in Lachute. He has been pretty much of a wanderer since leaving the home town twenty-three years ago, his travels having taken him into many foreign countries, from which he gathered a wide and varied experience after seeing service at the front in the Great War.

In reflective mood, Sam referred pleasingly of the old associations and the years he worked in the Wilson Paper Mill; eight dollars a week, he remarked, seemed a lot of money in those days. It was very gratifying to him, to come back and find the town so well built up and the mills working to capacity. Sam was accompanied from the Northwest by his collie dog, who is his faithful companion.

Old Rival Teams Will Be Hockey League Finalists

Hockey fans have been hoping this season to witness something of the old vim and vigor between Lachute and Brownsburg — the rivalry which two or three years ago worked up a warm enthusiasm and evidenced some of the district's best hockey in recent years. But spirits ran so high that, somehow, the two teams appear to have fought shy of a serious contest of skill since that time, and on occasions when they have met together, neither team has appeared at its best.

As events have now transpired in the league eliminations, it may yet prove that Brownsburg and Lachute will match their strength with the keenness of former seasons; these two old rivals are left in competition for the finals and will contest for the league championship. Fans are anticipating a series well worth watching.

The first round of the semi-finals concluded last Thursday with Lachute hockey line-up qualifying for the finals, having won two out of three games with Hawkesbury. Thursday's match, here at Lachute Arena, gave the home team a decided victory with 9 goals to 1.

In the other section of the play-offs Brownsburg scored a

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY AT LUMBER-YARD OFFICE

SAFE RESISTED EFFORTS OF AMATEUR CRACKSMEN

An attempt to rob the safe at the business office of the P. & A. McGibbon sawmill was made in the early hours of Sunday morning. Mr. Morrisette, resident of Lachute Mills, became suspicious when he saw lights burning in the office at that hour, and telephoned an alarm to Constable Gervais. When the constable arrived on the scene, however, the burglars had decamped. It was discovered that they had entered through a window. Opening the safe, but were unsuccessful in their attempt to open it. Evidence pointed to the work of amateurs in the game of safe-cracking.

ST. JEROME FAMILY IS "DEFORTED" TO CITY

NEIGHBORING TOWN BARS
NEWCOMERS ON RELIEF

For the second time this year St. Jerome authorities have ousted a family on local relief, because it was found they had been residing in St. Jerome only a few months. Following the order police embarked the eight members of the family in an automobile and escorted them to Montreal.

The family, which came from Montreal, arrived in St. Jerome last October and the father and other members were unable to obtain work. The family was soon placed upon the list of those needing unemployment relief but investigation showed that it was not entitled to relief under the town's regulations.

St. Jerusalem Couple Feted on Golden Wedding Anniversary

MR. & MRS. ANDREW WALKER RECEIVED
PRESENTATION FROM FRIENDS

A large gathering of neighbors numbering about 80 people took advantage of the weekend to surprise Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Walker at their home in St. Jerusalem, and to offer hearty congratulations on their approaching Golden Wedding anniversary, which occurred on Tuesday of this week. The suggestion of such a gathering started in the Women's Institute, who, because of their representative membership, immediately made the arrangements which culminated in this very happy and successful occasion. In token of their good wishes for the future they presented the bridal couple of fifty years with a two-tone overthrow, and Mrs. Walker with a beautiful bouquet of fresh cut flowers.

THE LIBRARY AND READING ROOM OF THE MUSEUM OF HISTORY

"At the very outset, it should be a principle that the museum library is in no wise to be considered a rival to the establishment public or community library" (1).

It should be a library, not for circulation, but one for reference, for research, and for the enjoyment of the book-loving tourist, for the student pursuing his researches, and for the guidance of the administration. Surely our valued museum manuals to which we owe so much should have the most honored place.

The home of this library and reading room might be a beautiful chamber (14'6" x 15'4") with large open fire-place (4' by 5'), and sometime, when funds permit, made fascinating with the antiques and the furniture of early colonial days.

Mr. Parker would have us guard its portals against the introduction of books and magazines that make no contribution to its ideal purposes, and 4-1 triumph over Grenville at the latter place on the same night. On Tuesday the teams met once more at Lachute, Brownsburg again taking the honors, with a score of 6-2. The 'Burg line-up thus eliminated their opponents, and are now entered in a 3-out-of-5 final series with their old rivals, the Lachute team.

Saturday's game at the local Arena was an exhibition match staged between Ayers Limited and Brownsburg, the 'Burg line-up claiming the honors with a score of 5-4.

The afternoon game drew an enthusiastic attendance of the younger set, to witness a fixture between Lachute High School and Argyle School from Westmount. The home sextet were winners in this encounter, 8 goals to 2. Details are reported on another page of this issue. The visitors were entertained to supper at the High School hall.

REGULAR REPORT FROM COUNTY BRANCHES

Brownsburg Branch had 17 members present to enjoy the Valentine Exchange with which their roll-call was answered. Mrs. N. E. Smillie read an interesting paper on Publicity and Newspapers in general. This branch also held a Poster Contest, which was judged by Rev. Mr. Pike. Mrs. W. Horner won the prize, donated by the president, Mrs. L. Wilson. Mr. Pike spoke a few words of encouragement and approval of the work of the Women's Institute. One new member joined the ranks.

A hockey match between Brownsburg and Lachute boys had previously been held in the interest of this branch, with Mr. A. McCulloch the winner of the lucky ticket. A miscellaneous shower for a fire sufferer was also held.

Farm-hand Killed on C.P.R. Track

ACCIDENTAL DEATH IS VERDICT AT INQUEST

A verdict of accidental death was given Monday morning at an inquest in the case of Warren Diggins, 48-year-old farm hand in the employ of William Chambers. Diggins was walking along the C.P.R. track at around 5.30 Sunday evening when he was struck from behind by train No. 428. Hurled for a distance of 100 feet, the man was dead when picked up, and the body was brought to Lachute by the train crew.

Soft Weather Delayed Curling Club Activities

Mild weather has again held up curling activities and several important games have yet to be played.

The District Medals were won by Hawkesbury, who visited Lachute on Thursday evening last, while two local teams motored over to play in exchange games. Messrs. Rutherford and Allen with their teams won in Lachute by a good margin of 12 points, while in Hawkesbury Messrs. Todd and Valois played against Messrs. Kirby and Holtby, winning by 2 points.

The weekly supper was held, and, with the friendly games afterwards, was thoroughly enjoyed.

LIFELONG RESIDENT LAID TO REST THIS AFTERNOON

LATE DAVID TODD WAS
RESPECTED

David Todd, for many years a resident of Geneva in the parish of St. Andrews, Argenteuil County, died at his late residence in the town of Lachute on February 22nd, in his 83rd year.

Although Mr. Todd had been in failing health for some time, news of his death came as a shock to his many friends and relatives. Born in Upper Lachute, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Todd. He later moved to Geneva, where he spent most of his life. For many years he was an active member of the Presbyterian Church of St. Andrews E., and in later years an elder of the United Church of Canada, Lachute. While connected with these churches Mr. Todd was also a member of the respective choirs.

Mr. Todd was predeceased in 1923 by his wife, Katharine Buchan, who was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Buchan of Geneva.

Surviving are six sons and one daughter — Ross of Kiosk, Ont., Erle of Ottawa, Ont., Ewan of Detroit, Michigan, Alan, Douglas, Owen and Ruth of Lachute, Que. There remain also two sisters, Mrs. J. P. MacKimmie of Lachute, and Mrs. D. Currie of Montreal, and three brothers, John of St. Jerome, Que., Henry of Vancouver, B.C., and Robert of Lachute.

The funeral was held this (Thursday) afternoon, the service being conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough of the Lachute United Church, assisted by Rev. R. L. Ballantyne of the Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews East.

Spice of Humor in County Elections 50 Years Ago

A column of Election Echoes in "The Watchman" of Feb. 25, 1887, indicates that fifty years ago folks took their elections no less earnestly than today, but with a more generous spice of humor.

J. C. Wilson, Esq., polled a 214 majority as Conservative candidate. His opponent was Mr. Meikle, a lawyer of worthy memory in the annals of this County. Mr. R. G. Meikle being a Scot, was referred to as the Bagpipes Man, and doubtless with good grace and humor he digested these quips at his expense:

Election Echoes

Morin — There is great mourning among the few who lost their votes out in this picturesque part of the grand old County of Argenteuil.

Lachute — One of the candidates got upset out of a cutter on polling day, while the other got upset on his calculations for a 400-majority.

Lakefield — The "field" was well worked up by the loyal men by the "lake". It was sowed with good seed, and the yield was 32 of a majority for Wilson.

Augmentation — This part of the County, together with the ripe experience of Grenville, where folks are not so green as to be led like sheep to the shambles, helped to augment the Wilson majority by 71.

Chatham — This is a "ham" which has shrunk considerably in weight for the Grit standard.

Brownburg — This poll did business up brown in reducing Meikle's majority on former years.

St. Andrews — The good old saint stands firm on his principles. Strange that lawyers cannot manage him better; they could do more if they would become more saintly.

he further warns us of the danger of a static library, "one fixed and finally founded will prove as dead as the finished museum" (2). One that wins and holds the admiration and support of the public, "is the continually growing library, one that grows naturally as subjects need more light" (2).

While this projected library is historic in its purpose, bound volumes of such world-famous publications as the London Graphic, the National Geographic and the London Illustrated News, encyclopedic in their records of the triumphs of science and the important events of history, should have a place.

We already have the promise of a beautifully bound set of the latter, dating back to 1845.

In closing today, let us recall and remember the words of Lord Macaulay; "A people which takes no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by remote descendants."

St. Elmo's Fire

The name St. Elmo's fire has been variously explained. Elmo is an Italian corruption of Erasmus and one of the two saints bearing this name was formerly invoked by Mediterranean sailors in time of danger, writes Charles Fitzhugh Talman in the American Mercury. There is an Italian legend that the saint, having been rescued from drowning by a shipmaster, promised as a reward to display a warning light for the benefit of mariners whenever a storm was at hand. Another proposed explanation is that Elmo is none other than Helen of Troy, who, like her brothers, Paris and Polyx, was associated with components in the nautical folklore of classical antiquity.

Just a Dog's Life

A show dog's existence is not a happy one. It was probably in one of these contests that the phrase "a dog's life" was coined, says the Detroit Free Press. The pups are primped and petted and peddled from dawn to dusk. They're powdered and perfumed and painted without end. The jealous exhibitors wrangle among themselves and hint darkly that their lucky rivals are doing business with the judges. There is little sportsmanship in the dog game; it is a cold, commercial racket with few exceptions.

The English Riviera

The English Riviera may be said to include the coast towns of Exmouth, Brixham, Torquay, Paignton, Brixham, Dartmouth, Totnes and Torquay. It is the land which gave birth to the Elizabethan seadogs, Drake, Sir Walter Raleigh, Hardy, Gilbert, Davis, Hawkins, and it was from this coast that the squadrons of the East India Co. set forth in 1602 to lay the foundations of the British empire in the East.

Blood Money

Among the Goujuro Indians of Columbia if one accidentally cuts himself, or otherwise does himself an injury drawing blood, his family on the mother's side is due blood money, for, being of their blood, he must pay if he spills any of it. Compensation, in smaller amounts, has to be paid other relatives, and even friends can claim compensation to repay their sorrow at seeing a friend in pain.

3,500 Carloads of Feed Shipped to Drought Area

More than 3,500 cars of live-stock feed have been shipped to southern Alberta this winter from the northern part of the province, it is announced by Minister of Agriculture Chant. The minister stated arrangements are being made by Dominion and Provincial Governments to provide seed grain to farmers.

Helping a man to be his own best is the most kind and far reaching assistance.

Farm Stock and Crop Reports

POULTRY ON CANADIAN FARMS INCREASING

Poultry in Canada showed an increase of five per cent on June 1, 1936, when the census was taken, over the re-cording at the same date in 1935. Despite this increase the prices of eggs during 1936 averaged higher than during the previous year. This more satisfactory result, from the farmers' standpoint, was brought about by greater apparent consumption of eggs in Canada, aided by a firm demand from Great Britain. The increase in the number of young stock reared in 1936 should result in a gain in poultry population and greater egg production during the first half of 1937 compared to the same period of 1936.

More dressed poultry was packed for export during the marketing season of 1936 than for many years. This pack went chiefly to Great Britain, and a correspondingly large export trade to that market in 1937 appears to be in prospect. Over one quarter of a million pounds of dressed poultry were shipped to the British West Indies. Exports of live and dressed poultry in the United States increased considerably.

RUST-RESISTANT WHEAT READY

After several years of research work, the Cereal Division, Experimental Farms Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, announces that it is now ready to make its first large-scale distribution of rust-resistant wheat to farmers in the rust-affected areas of the prairies. Renown is the name of the new variety. It was produced at the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, Winnipeg, from a cross between Neward and a rust-resistant type bearing the number H-44-21.

POTATO NEWS

Potato holdings released for February 1st show the smallest supply on hand for many years in Eastern Canada. The market has remained steady, with offerings just sufficient to meet the demand and hold prices firm. The United States terminal markets have remained steady and Maine prices unchanged at $2.75-$3.00 per barrel measure, or $1.35-$1.45 per 80 lbs. Ontario potatoes scarce; truckers paying $1.50 per 90 lbs. to farmers.

This Week in History

The greatest architect the world has ever known, Sir Christopher Wren, will be the subject of Jack Kannawin's broadcast, "This Week in History", on Friday, Feb. 26, at 7.30 p.m. The address will be heard over the CBC network from Toronto, and will deal with the career of this impressive figure from Renaissance England. Sir Christopher died on February 25, 1723, at the age of 91, after a colorful life in which he witnessed the horrors of the Bubonic Plague, the Fire of London, and the subsequent rebuilding of London.

Wren was a graduate of Westminster School and Oxford University and his early years were spent in the study of science and astrology. It was not till he fled to Paris to escape the plague that he turned his interest to architecture. In the French city he was entranced with the many beautiful church spires and he went back to England determined to make his own country beautiful.

He was made Surveyor General of London after the fire, and rebuilt St. Paul's, which is the greatest monument to his memory. He died almost under its dome, for on the last day of his life he had made his customary visit to sit quietly in the great cathedral, and several hours later he closed his beautiful eyes for the last time at his own fireside.

Blind Farmer Makes It Pay

In the Rice Lake district near the village of Keene, Ontario Peter Robertson, 65-year-old blind farmer, milks his cows, does the chores, takes care of chickens, repairs his own fences, plants his crops and keeps house. And the interesting part about it all is that he runs his one hundred acres on a paying basis.

Trouble has come to him a-plenty. He has buried two wives and an 18-year-old son.

"It was not until the 15th century of our Christian era that the human brain became clever enough to invent a fork."

Thieves Stole Doctor's Car, Crashed into Pole

Thieves stole the automobile of Dr. Alfred Cherrier, of St. Jerome, and crashed into a pole on the Montreal highway just at the town limits. The vehicle was recovered in a badly damaged condition. The damages are estimated at $200.

The car had been left in the parking space of the Lapointe Hotel and when Dr. Cherrier went to take it he found it was gone. He reported to the police. Later a garage employee found the auto against a pole and reported the find to the police. The damaged car was taken to a garage for repairs. No trace of the thieves was found.

PLANS NEAR COMPLETION FOR BRITISH CORONATION

As plans near completion for the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at Westminster Abbey, indications are that one of the largest crowds ever to attend an event of any kind will witness the impressive spectacle. Traditions which have been in effect for centuries will be renewed as King George receives his crown from the Archbishop of Canterbury. One of the interesting features of the coronation is the Coronation Chair which contains the historic Coronation Stone brought from Scotland in 1296.

Cruelty to Animals A Punishable Offence

Mr. Fred B. Inkster, secretary of the Ottawa Humane Society, reports that the other day a motor car with three passengers was seen to halt at the corner of Laurier avenue and Nicholas street. One of the three dropped a kitten on the sidewalk and the car drove on.

Mr. Inkster points out that the Criminal Code has a penalty of imprisonment up to one year or a fine not exceeding $500 for any person "who abandons a dog, cat or bird or any other domestic animal or in any way causes unnecessary suffering." Simple humanity should make such a law unnecessary, but such instances as the one

Mr. Inkster mentions indicate that there are persons restrained by neither.

To the Arctic by Car

To be the first people to reach the Arctic Circle by automobile is the distinction which can be claimed by Harry C. Lessen and family, of San Jose, California. Last year they drove 355 miles north of the "Circle" through the undeveloped Petsamo Region to the northernmost shore of Finland in their 1936 Pontiac. Returning home they had many thrilling experiences to recount of their trip through the beautiful Scandinavian wilds, while they paid high tribute to the car which carried them without mishap over roads where automobiles had never been before. They set out on a 35,000-mile vacation through Europe with the Arctic Circle as their destination.

In Lithuania horses reared wildly and upset wagons when they saw their first automobile. In Tallin, Estonia, Mr. Lessen relates, city officials were so enthusiastic about an automobile offering comfortable transportation over their cobblestone roads that they immediately wired for three Pontiacs to be used in the city taxi service.

"I wonder why it is we can't save anything."

"It isn't our fault, honey. It's the neighbors. They're always getting something new we can't afford."—Powergrams

ALL SHADES OF OPINION

The government has managed, so far, to give out a ring of complete sincerity, in its declaration that the additional $13,000,000 being voted is purely for the defence of Canada against possible invaders; that not a cent is for any other purpose; that Canada has no commitments, either empire or foreign; that no expeditionary forces are contemplated. You can find, in the House of Commons, almost every shade of popular reaction to Canada's preparations. The C. C. F. group stands out boldly against it; a few of the Liberals privately feel that even in doing as much as it has, the party has sacrificed principle to expediency and political opportunism. There are many more—the great bulk of the Liberal party and some of the Conservatives—who feel that the action taken by the government represents the very least, within reason, that could be done under the circumstances; that much as we hate war and love peace, we ought to have our eastern and western coasts equipped with a little modern fighting equipment. We are told that Canada's expenditure on armaments is about the lowest per capita in the world, with the possible exception of a couple of South American countries.

It should seem to the government expedient, some time later, to vote more war estimates.

Meantime, the party ranks stand almost without a break. It is true that the wording of the "want of confidence" motion was such as to confuse the issue slightly. If it had been a straight negative of the defence appropriations, it would probably have caught a few more supporters. A number of Liberals feel sufficiently strong about it to vote against the individual estimates themselves, when they come up; but not enough to support a vote which, if it carried, would throw the present government out and bring along a general election.

Relief is in sight for the financially embarrassed provinces in the West, with the hope of a long range adjustment of some matters that have been growing more unsatisfactory for a long time.

A royal commission is to examine the taxing powers of the provinces and their social obligations. At present there appears to be a serious disparity between them. The cure may be to enlarge the provincial taxing powers; or perhaps to transfer some of their responsibilities. Some people are getting heartily sick of commissions; claim the country is over-run with them. The present government hasn't lost faith in the inquiry of eminent and impartial authorities into the problems of the day.

Meantime there is every indication that cash grants, or increases of subsidies, or loans, are to be made to those provinces incapable of worrying along further without help. Alberta is complaining that there has been discrimination; Ottawa denies it.

Miss Gush: "Some have eyes and see not, ears and hear not." Bored Guest (to himself): "But never tongues that talk not."

HANDLED PRETTY WELL

In view of the extreme delicacy of the issue, and of the phobia against war service in Quebec and the pacifism and indifference in some other parts of Canada, it must be admitted that on the whole the Mackenzie King government has handled the matter well. Mackenzie King's own personal record on behalf of peace and good-will the world over is sufficiently notable that there is the minimum of suspicion of jingoistic manoeuvres. There is not a chauvinistic mind in the Cabinet. They are men of peace, including the Minister of National Defence. Just the same, while the present delicate issue has been negotiated with a minimum of opposition or friction, it is not difficult to foresee what a storm could blow up in Quebec and on the prairies if

We look back at the fiendish cruelty of the "dark ages" and wonder why. So may those who look back on us a thousand years hence. But still, we have some good points.

WORN-OUT TOWNS

Herr Marcel Breuer, an Austrian architect, speaking in London recently, said: "Our towns are worn out organisms that can no longer adapt themselves either to the fresh possibilities offered by technical developments or the essential reforms we demand of them. Nor can it any longer be said that they correspond to contemporary hygienic requirements." It was pointed out that new districts of London and Paris were pertinent examples of almost entirely wasted opportunities."

RELIEF RENT BARRED IF JOBLESS-EVICTED

In a move directed to protect Verdun unemployed from untimely removal from homes leased for them by the city, the City Council decided to withhold payment of rent from proprietors, "big or small," who attempt to remove the workless before May 1.

Council adopted a resolution suggested by Mayor Herve Ferland to that effect. The Mayor said already he had received complaints from tenants. "It has been done already and we'll do our best to stop it," he told aldermen, all of whom voted for the motion.

The Council also went on record as favoring a four per cent maximum interest rate on mortgages. A letter will be forwarded to all Canadian municipalities suggesting a 2 1/2 per cent rate on loans or municipal debts.

A telephone pole never hits an auto except in self-defence.

PLANE REGULATES TRAFFIC

Traffic authorities in Chicago have completed plans to use an airplane in expediting traffic on week-ends and holidays around that city. Flying above the city, the pilot on this plane, in communication with patrol cars on the ground, will give instructions diverting cars from congested streets and highways to routes less used, thereby avoiding traffic snarls which sometimes keep hundreds of cars standing motionless for hours.

SMALL SCALE CIVIC HOUSING ENTERPRISE

An experimental housing scheme has been instituted in Cornwall, Ont., with the appointment of a Special Committee to study the problem and report at next meeting of the Council.

Mayor Aaron Horovitz pointed to the need for a program to remedy the housing situation as it affects families of the working classes, and recommended a start being made on a limited scale. In appointing a committee of five, the Council had the backing of the Board of Trade, which forwarded a resolution urging a beginning be made this year. The proposal is for the erection of not more than six low-cost dwellings. Relief labour would be used as far as possible, and the houses would be sold to approved persons on a rental purchase plan.

CITY OF QUEBEC LOSES ACTION

The City of Quebec was ordered to pay $4,342 damages to William Cantin Incorporated, leather merchants. The firm asked the sum for damages to leather caused by dust from a city asphalt plant near the leather factory.

HOUSING IN ENGLAND AND WALES

In England and Wales, according to official records, 3,018,126 houses have been constructed since the Great War—897,645 by the local authorities and 423,088 by private enterprise with state assistance; and 1,697,443 by private enterprise without state assistance, the latter in large part being built with funds provided by the building societies.

SEEK REBATE FROM "GAS" TAX

A motion was passed in Ottawa City Council that the Board of Control be instructed to petition the Ontario Government to rebate from the revenue derived from gasoline taxes the cost of "supplying extra service," in snow removal and the cost of "replacing water pipes cracked by frost," owing to such snow removal, for the purpose of maintaining motor traffic conditions. It was reported to the council that similar efforts had been made in other quarters.

"Scientific Approach to Traffic Problem"

The formation of a scientific committee to study the causes of accidents and to discover proper remedies, is announced by officials of the Province of Quebec Safety League. The committee will be headed by Professor W. D. Tait of McGill University and by J. S. A. Blois, president of L'Institut Psychologique. Members of the committee will follow the courses of psychology and other subjects useful in their task at the universities.

It was stated by Mr. Arthur Gaboury, secretary-general of the Quebec league, that scientists attribute many accidents to a natural or psychological cause and that when the cause has been found it will be comparatively easy to suggest the cure. For example, it has been discovered that motorists whose vehicles meet with accidents in the centre of a road are generally left-handed, and this explains their natural tendency to swerve towards the centre of the road rather than to the outside.

The committee will study such accident causes and try to find means of correcting natural faults, which will go a long way towards eliminating accidents. The committee will be appointed by the joint chairmen, and will start to make a survey of accident causes shortly.

Farm-hand Killed on Track High School Hockeyists Score Another Victory

Wm. Rhodes, engineer. Train No. 428, he stated, was travelling eastward one and a half miles west of Staynerville. It was on a downgrade, brakes were set and the bell was ringing. The fireman of the locomotive had called out to him that there was a man walking along the track, and Engineer Rhodes had sounded his whistle and stopped the train. It was too late, however, for Diggins, who gave little evidence of having heard the train, was struck in the back. He had been moving slowly toward the side of the track off the right-of-way. The engineer stated that the victim had his heavy mackinaw collar turned up, and the ear-lugs of his cap pulled down over his ears. He believed Diggins had failed to hear the approaching train.

David Milts of Montreal, fireman, corroborated this evidence, adding also that the train was rounding a curve at the time of the accident.

William Chambers, having duly identified the body, said that Warren Diggins was a Nova Scotia man, had been in this district for 12 years and had been employed by him for the past 14 months. He was sober and industrious. Mr. Chambers believed he was somewhat hard of hearing, and stated the victim had been slow in his actions. The deceased man had been visiting at the home of Danl. Thompson, a neighbor, and was returning home at the time. He was accustomed to walking along the track in this manner. Mr. Chambers related that he had had a narrow escape previously with a team and wagon at the highway crossing.

The jurors returned a verdict of accidental death, attaching no blame to any person.

The Late William Duffy Resided Here Many Years

HELPED BUILD DOME OF ST. JAMES BASILICA

The death of William Duffy, of Ottawa, occurred on Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. Lockwood, of Montreal, whom he has been visiting for nearly a week. Mr. Duffy, who resided many years in Lachute working for several years with R. McArthur as a plumber, died after a short illness, in his 89th year. He was born in Montreal, and during his early life he was one of the workmen employed in the construction of the huge dome on top of St. James Basilica. He later occupied himself with a plumbing business.

He retired a number of years past, and lived in Ottawa for some time. He went to Montreal a week ago and was ill only three days before his death.

He is survived by his third wife, formerly Euphemia Wheatley; three daughters, Mrs. H. Lockwood of Montreal, Mrs. R. O. Jones of San Francisco, and Mrs. L. Carpenter of Ottawa; and three sons, William of Lachute, Oscar of San Francisco, and Nelson of Montreal.

The funeral was held yesterday in Montreal.

The Late Mrs. Geo. T. Kennedy

A former well known resident of this district, Mrs. Geo. Kennedy, passed away on Wednesday, Feb. 17th., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. Ellis, Westmount.

Born on the old homestead now occupied by her brother, Mr. Archie McGibbon, she spent some 50 years in this vicinity. Her husband predeceased her in 1903. The years between 1905 and 1912 were spent in Lachute, the family then taking up residence in Montreal.

Three daughters, Mrs. Geo. Green, (Alice) of Edmonton, Mrs. R. Norman Murdoch (Daisy) of Oakland, Calif., Mrs. Donald Ellis (Violet) of Westmount, and three sons, Oscar of Colinton, Alta., Roy of Toronto, and Howard of Montreal, are left to mourn her loss, together with one sister, Mrs. T. Fraser, and one brother, Mr. Archie McGibbon.

The funeral was held in Montreal on Thursday, Feb. 18th., conducted by Rev. Malcolm Campbell, the remains being brought to Lachute, where they were placed in the vault for interment later.

Death of Richd. Brown, Morin Heights Resident

Morin Heights—There passed away on Saturday, Feb. 18, another resident of this place, in the person of Mr. Richard Brown. The deceased, who was in his 66th. year, had been in rather poor health for some time. His wife predeceased him two years ago. He is survived by two sons, Lorne, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, and Harold of this place, and one daughter, Dorothy.

The funeral service was held in the United Church on Saturday at 1 p.m., and was conducted by Rev. G. Perrigard. Beautiful flowers bore silent tribute to his memory. To the bereaved family the community extends its deepest sympathy.

Died at Dunany

The death of Mrs. Richard Holvoake occurred at her home in Dunany on Tuesday, Feb. 23rd. The deceased lady was 72 years of age. The only surviving relative is her son, James. The funeral will take place tomorrow (Friday) at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's Church. Burial in Dunany cemetery.

Married at Brownsburg

WILLIAMS — BOURNE

An attractive wedding was quietly solemnized on Saturday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bourne in Brownsburg, when Doris Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bourne became the bride of Alfred Roger Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Williams of Hawkesbury. Rev. S. J. Pike performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming dress of blue crepe and was attended by Miss Marjorie Williams of Montreal, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid. Arthur Bourne, brother of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home after which Mr. and Mrs. Williams left on a short motor trip and on their return will take up residence in Hawkesbury.

COMING EVENTS

Women's Institute

The annual meeting of the Lachute Branch, Quebec Women's Institutes, will be held in the High School hall on Tuesday afternoon, Mar. 2nd., at 3 o'clock. Roll-call—payment of fees.

Supper

The Board of Managers of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church intend holding a supper on Wednesday March 10th., in the church hall.

Local Boy Scouts Attend Annual Banquet in Montreal

The annual Boy Scouts' banquet at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, was attended by Messrs. L. Bullock, Jos. White and Clifford King of Brownsburg. George Leggett and Harold Deacon and Herbert Miles of Lachute. There was a total attendance of 1,080 Boy Scouts—officers and members of committees of Montreal and 14 other troops.

V. O. West presided at the banquet. J. E. MacPherson proposed the toast to The King and Lord Baden-Powell. A message was read from Sir Edward Beatty. Rt. Rev. Philip Carrington, Bishop of Quebec, gave a brief talk on his scouting experiences in New Zealand. The Bishop also delivered a message from Premier Duplessis to the Boy Scouts.

Mayor Adhemar Raynault of Montreal stressed the value of the Boy Scout movement, and that scouting was a great help in future life and citizenship.

A Certificate of Merit was presented to Scout Dunsmore McClatchie of Huntingdon for rescuing Wm. Allen of Atholston last August. Scout McClatchie is about 4 ft 6 ins in height, twelve years old and weighs 68 lbs; William Allen was 6 ft. 2 ins. in height and 27 years old.

A community sing-song was led by C. E. C. Rush, assisted at the piano by John Hodgson, who is leaving for Oxford University, England. The Vickers Boy Scout Silver Band, conducted by Leslie Blackburn, played during the evening. A concert was given by several Montreal troops, and the evening's entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

IN MEMORIAM

MONCRIEFF—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Olive Moncrieff, who passed away Feb. 26, 1936.

We do not forget her, we love her too dearly
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name;
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.

Ever remembered by husband and family, John Moncrieff, Arundel, Que.

Prizes Awarded for Costumes at Masquerade Ice-Carnival

The season's masquerade carnival was held last evening at the Lachute Arena, the event being well patronized by skaters and onlookers. Some splendid costumes were in evidence, both old and young entering in to the spirit of the occasion. Judges awarded prizes to the following for best costumes:

Ladies: Miss P. Beveridge, Miss E. Joly.

Girls: Lorna Giles, Antoinette Carriere, Therese Bernier.

Gentlemen: Messrs. Tremblay, G. Cousineau, Fournier.

Boys: John Giles.

NOTES AND COMMENT FROM BROWNSBURG

(By Our Brownsburg Correspondent)

ICY CONDITION OF BROWNSBURG HILL

As I write this, at least a dozen cars are in a snarl endeavoring to negotiate the hill approaching Brownsburg from Lachute. Again and again drivers force their cars to the hill top, only to lose momentum when the last vital yard has been reached and then drift helplessly back to their starting point at the base of the hill. One is reminded of the legendary figure who was condemned to push a huge snowball to the top of a high mountain only to find that on reaching the top he was unable to exert the final push to complete the task and sees it roll down again to the very start of his labour. Or perhaps more apt would be the spider of Robert Bruce who at last succeeded in reaching his goal; so also do these exasperated motorists, ultimately and by devious means, solve the difficulty which confronts them.

The present instance is not the only one in which weather conditions made it difficult for motorists to ascend this hill. Several times this season the same condition of affairs existed, and on each occasion pious resolutions were offered that "something must be done" to have the matter remedied. Yet the powers that be remain fluently inactive. Road authorities have obtained additional land to widen the road at this point but there the effort became expended.

ILLNESS NOT NEWS

So many people have been confined to bed with the "flu" that the report ceases to be news. Both factories were severely handicapped during the crest of the attack. Apparently the scourge is now abating.

SPORTS ARENA

Efforts are being made to build a new sporting arena at Brownsburg to take care of the many sports activities which our young men engage in. The promoters, who are preparing a prospectus and will eventually issue shares to erect the structure, intend to put up a building worthy of the district. It is understood that hockey, curling and ice sports will be under way for next season, with provision for other activities gradually attended to. The great need of a concert hall in Brownsburg has long been felt and with completion of the new venture this facility will be no longer lacking.

Month's Activities in County Branches Women's Institutes

Contest, the president, Mrs. A. Murdoch, having the winning program, and Mrs. John Heatlie coming second. The judges were Miss M. Walker, president of Jerusalem - Bethany branch and Mrs. A. Stewart, her secretary. The Publicity Convener of Frontier Branch donated the prizes, which will be presented at the next meeting. An extra prize will be awarded to Mrs. J. Girling for her very fine program, which unfortunately did not reach the meeting through an oversight of some one else, but was sent in by her. Publicity was given to every department by the reading of short articles, a longer paper being read by Mrs. Graham on Newspapers and Publicity in general. A chair and pantry shower for fire sufferers was also held on that occasion.

Jerusalem - Bethany had a paper on Temperance in the interest of Child Welfare and Public Health, by Mrs. Leonard Boyd. There were ten members present for the roll-call Valentine Exchange, also two visitors. Current Events were read by Mrs. Kettyle. Two quilts were sold and one sent to fire sufferers, for which a kitchen shower also had been held.

Lachute Branch stressed Immigration, a paper being given by Mrs. L. Morris, on "What Immigrants have given to this country." Letters were sent to sick members and sums of ten and five dollars donated to the Health Unit for cod liver oil and for milk for undernourished children.

Lakefield Branch held a social evening this month and donated bedding for fire sufferers.

Morin Heights stressed Education and Better Schools in a talk on music and its benefits to the community. Legislation was remembered by an article on Birth Registration in Quebec Province. Milk, its fattening or reducing qualities, was also discussed. Their roll-call was "Some outstanding event of your childhood." There was also an exchange of gifts made from flour or sugar bags.

Pioneer had a paper by Mrs. J. MacKenzie on the Pulp and Paper Industry and the problems confronting this industry. Their roll-call was a Valentine Exchange, also uses of old motor tubes. This branch featured a Health Poster contest; there were seven entries and four prizes were given. Plans were made for a pie contest in March. A towel shower was held for fire sufferers and a quilt also donated to the same cause.

Upper Lachute - East End had an address by Dr. McMartin of Lachute on the "Flu" and contagious diseases, namely scarlet fever, diphtheria and measles. Fifteen members were present to answer the roll-call with "A Daily Health Habit." This branch donated the sum of ten dollars to fire sufferers.

Your County President wishes to thank all branches who so kindly helped one of our fellow members who had lost her home and all its contents by fire. These acts of kindness, done so spontaneously without any plea having been put forth, proves that the W.I. branches do live up to their creed.

Another matter I wish to call attention to is the fact that all new yearly programs should be in the Publicity Convener's hands as soon as possible, with the cost of printing. Also, by special request of the Historical Society of Argenteuil, the Women's Institutes are asked to take particular notice of the contest being put on by them for school children, which was published in The Watchman of February 18th. The Institutes are requested to encourage and make this contest widely known.

A very interesting social meeting was held in Lachute Consolidated School on Saturday, Feb. 20th, when Miss H. McCain told her impressions of the Washington Conference of the Associated Country-Women of the World. Mrs. S. Campbell entertained with piano solos, Mrs. A. Taylor with delightful songs, and Mrs. Her-

MERRY WEATHER

The snowflakes are dancing and whirling
And fluttering about like elves
You can almost hear them chuckling
As they play and enjoy themselves.

The wind shrieks in loud laughter
And beats against the glass,
As though to coax the children out
On ice, like slippery glass—

Where he can blow and buffet them
And toss their hats away;
When it is merry weather
The wind and snowflakes play.

Grandfather looked down into Ted's eager face. "Do you think you could find time to come as far as the old mill and take care of me?" he asked, his eyes twinkling.

"Oh Grandfather!" cried Ted, dropping his shovel and rushing to clasp the old gentleman's hand. "Can we go right away?"—then—"Oh, I was forgetting Gran.—We must see her safely into the house first, mustn't we Grandfather?"

"Indeed we must, and we must ask her to walk softly so that no one will hear her going in alone and come out to look for you and me. They might want to stop us from going." Grandfather smiled down into Ted's upturned face. "They don't like little boys going around the mill pond, you know."

"Oh, but we'll be careful, Grandfather, we won't go close enough to slip in," said Ted.

"If I thought that you would, I wouldn't let either of you go," Grandmother remarked, looking at them with unsmiling black eyes. "You'll have to promise me, Ted, that you won't let Grandfather go too close."

"I won't. Cross my heart, I won't."

"Very well, then you may go, but do not stay too long or I shall come out to look for you." With this threat Grandmother tiptoed softly along the hall until she reached her room, and it was with sigh of relief that Ted watched her go inside and shut the door. Closing the outside door, he turned to speak to his Grandfather, but he was not there. For a minute Ted felt like crying. Grandfather must have been fooling him.

As he stood looking about, he noticed that Rover was pawing frantically at the ice-house door. "I'll bet Grandfather is hiding from me," Ted chuckled. "Good dog, Rover," he said, "to tell me where he is." Running to the ice-house he pulled the door open quickly. Although Grandfather had fastened it on the inside with a piece of string, Ted's quick jerk snapped the string, and with a merry "Haw, haw, Grandfather! — I found you," he popped his head in at the door.

"Well, well, so you did," chuckled the old man, "and we must not linger around here but get on our way before Bert and Tim come, or they will want to come with us, and—well, two is company, you know!"

"May Rover come too, Grandfather?"

"I guess we had better take him along. We might need his tail to hang on to if we happen to fall in the water."

Ted laughed gaily at the idea, and patting Rover's head he said, "Come on old fellow, we want you with us."

As if he had understood every word, Rover gave a yelp of joy and started off as fast as he could go, towards the old mill.

as he could go, towards the old mill.

"Rover is not playing fair," giggled Ted, "he should wait for us instead of racing ahead like that. Don't you wish you could run as fast as Rover, Grandfather?"

"I do indeed," Grandfather replied with a sigh, "but I guess my running days are over. But what has happened to Rover? Here he comes yelping back—and it does not sound like a happy yelp either."

SCOUTS MAY GET CAPTURED RUM RUNNERS

Fast, low, rakish craft crewed by hard-bitten, gun-spitting rum runners may soon be plying the Atlantic seaboard with peaceable crews of Boy Scouts, if a bill now before the U. S. Congress becomes law. The measure, sponsored by Congressman Mead of New York, will legalize the turning over of captured rum runners to groups of Sea Scouts for cruising and training.

REAL WOLF MASCOT FOR BOY "WOLF CUBS"

A live timber wolf, captured as a cub in Northern Ontario and brought up by one of the young members of a new Wolf Cub Pack at Mount Dennis, Ont., was the excitingly interesting central figure of the organization meeting of these junior Scouts. The wolf sat docilely on the "Council Rock" in the centre of the council circle of small boys while they practised their "Grand Howl."

ENGLISH OAKS FOR THE U. S.

English oaks, from acorns from ancient trees on historic English estates, will soon be growing in the United States. In response to a request from the United States Department of Agriculture received through the Boy Scouts of America, English Boy Scouts gathered acorns from 17 old estates closely linked with English history, and these have been forwarded by the International Scout Bureau at London. The estates included Windsor Great Park, the home of the King, those of Princess Mary, the Princess Royal, and the Dukes of Norfolk, Portland, Newcastle, Devonshire and Rutland. Acorns also were sent from the forests associated with Robin Hood and the poet Byron.

Camel Hair Is Gathered

Along Trail of Caravans

The manner in which camel hair is secured is unique and interesting. The hair is not sheared, plucked or cut off. In the springtime the camel sheds its hair, and in the trail of caravans there follows a man whose job it is to gather up the clumps of hair as they fall, placing them in a basket on the back of the last camel in the caravan. The hair is usually sold in the first town the caravan reaches, eventually being transported over desert and mountain passes to various dealers in the shipping ports of China, where it is sorted for shipment to the western world.

There is a tremendous variance in the quality and value of the camel's outer and under hair, according to a writer in the Boston Herald. The under hair is soft, short and much finer than the coarse outer coat, which is of no value in the manufacture of fine products. In the manufacture of fine, quality fabrics, only the short, fine, silken fibers of light tan color are used and until recent years this fine grade of hair was used exclusively.

JUST LEFT-OVERS

Large families have the best meals, for it is a greater inspiration to cook for a number than for just a few. A part of last year I was cooking for seven, and this year there are just three of us. I can tell you that we had far better meals last year. Now it does not seem worth the trouble of making some of the dishes for so few. When we ate a cake a day we had variety. I must get out and look for smaller pans and dishes. I will have to learn some new tricks for using food. No one likes stale cake, but there are things that can be done about it. A pudding from stale cake is not so good, but one with fresh hot cake is delicious, so I plainly see where my freshly baked cake will appear with a sauce, probably an orange or a lemon one, or perhaps with a spoonful of apple sauce over it and caramel sauce. Then the remainder of the cake will be iced. Part of the cake batter may be baked in muffin tins and will achieve variety that way. I find I have more left-overs. When I prepare what is adequate for three of us, it looks so little that I haven't the heart to cook it, so add a little more for good measure. From these same left-overs I am getting some interesting foods, and here is one of the best things we have had for a long time...

FISH AND CELERY CHOWDER

We had creamed celery for our dinner vegetable, and there was about a cup of it left over. Then I had about a serving of creamed fish. Not much, just the quantity you look at and wonder whether it is worth saving or whether to throw it in the garbage. Fortunately this went in the refrigerator instead. I decided to try a chowder with these two left-overs. So I boiled two potatoes cut in quarters and a couple of slices of onion. When the potatoes were soft, I mashed them with a fork against the side of the sauce-pan and added them, water and all, to the celery and fish, heated it and added milk slowly until it was the right consistency, put in a good piece of butter and tasted and added salt and pepper until it was just right. I told the family not to embarrass me by asking if it was fish chowder or celery chowder soup, but we all voted it was a success. A little imagination and the willingness to try anything once are a great help in cooking.

BAKED HAM SLICE

We are very fond of a hot Virginia baked ham, but a large ham and a small family are not too good a combination. So I tried baking a single slice in the same manner, and it was delicious. Cut off most of the fat from an inch thick slice of ham and chop the fat coarsely. Rub some brown sugar into the surface of the ham, sprinkle with the chopped fat and stick in a few whole cloves. Bake in a hot oven of about 450 degrees for an hour. Baked potatoes are a good accompaniment and may be baked at the same time.

ORANGE CHEESE ICING

Grate the rind of a small orange, add the juice and stir in enough icing sugar to thicken, until it is the right consistency to spread. Be careful not to make it too thick. Spread a plain butter cake with this icing and sprinkle with grated cheese.

Problems of Family Life

The greatest challenge to the womanhood of to-day is in the relationships of family life, writes M. Elizabeth McCurdy of the Quebec Women's Institutes. Many factors, unknown a half century ago, now assail family life and threaten to completely destroy its influences over those who form a part of it.

Among these are mechanical inventions, which lessen the work which women formerly did in their own homes. Weaving, spinning, knitting, the making of garments and bedding, even cooking and the conservation of fruits and vegetables; all of these are now done outside the home, and done so well that no possible fault can be found. This added leisure tends to separate the family. Again, the fact that thousands of women are now employed in the industrial concerns after marriage as well as before, reduces home life to the minimum; and homes built on no more solid basis than merely a place to sleep, eat, and hang up clothing, are quite liable to disaster.

Many tendencies towards the breaking up of family life trend towards a slackness of morals, and an increasing lack of reverence for marriage itself. Entered into lightly, without preparation or understanding, it soon becomes a joke of bondage from which both parties flee at early opportunity.

No one who considers this problem can fail to see that, in assailing the foundations of family life and relationships, the whole fabric of the social system is threatened. The family is the unit of the community. When it fails the whole national structure collapses, as the history of the past amply teaches.

In the hands of the womanhood of the country, therefore, lies the task of keeping the home altars pure, and the home itself a refuge eagerly sought by every member of the family group.

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

Everything goes into closets these days and there are all sorts and kinds of closets designed for the modern home.

One of the most ingenious closets is a baby closet. This solves the problem of how to dispose of those innumerable small belongings which always clutter up a house with the advent of a little stranger. Here, in a space not much larger than the width of a closet door, are shelves, drawers, cupboards and a movable cabinet on casters. There is a compartment for the baby's clothes, equipped with a rod and tiny hangers. One of the shelves holds the bathtubs and toilet articles. The cabinet has swinging shelves and when rolled out from the closet serves as a table on which the baby may be bathed.

The baby closet is painted pale blue (or pink for a girl baby) and the drawers have quilted blue satin linings. On the floor is blue linoleum in which are inlaid animal designs in darker blue.

In a model apartment planned for brides, there is a very practical closet opening off the combination living-dining room. It is intended for linen, silver, glassware and other table accessories. There are shelves for glassware, racks in which plates may stand upright, and below them a set of drawers for silver and table linen. Every inch of space is utilized and an amazing number of things are put away in a closet no larger than the width of a door.

If your bedroom has a narrow wall space between two closet doors, you can provide yourself with a convenient adjustable dressing mirror by attaching mirror panels to both doors and to the wall space. The doors must be hinged to swing in opposite directions.

A new line of wedding dresses introduced in Paris recently, featured a triple train, swung court fashion from the shoulders, and a wedding veil of real point d'Angleterre lace, encrusted on tulle and draped from a splendid diamond tiara.

Cocoa Egg-Nog: Beat the white of an egg stiff and while still beating, gradually add 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 tablespoon cocoa, dash of nutmeg and 3/4 cup milk. Serve cold.

Hats for spring have never been sillier or more enchanting. Some are peaked dunce caps in softest antelope or felt, with impertinent quills. Some are Napoleonic tricorne and bicorne, in black with color trimmings. Some are Tyrolean felts with high-pointed crowns. And some are coachmen's high hats, in the best historical manner.

Wendy Barrie, actress, who wants to gain rather than lose weight, recommends bowling for an hour twice a week as an ideal exercise. It doesn't steal pounds, she says.

Household Hint: Add a few drops of ammonia to the dish water in which particularly greasy dishes are being washed. This will cut the grease and make the washing easier.

Marriages solemnized in the urban centres of Canada during 1936 totalled 36,904 compared with 35,059 in the preceding year.

GENUINE HEART DISEASE

If ever a fellow needs skilled heart murmurs — easily diagnosed. I have had many patients who knew they had "leaky hearts". But there is not much, if any, noise about a plugged artery in the heart, and there is much more danger—much more.

The principal symptom, weakness and shortness of breath. One fails markedly in coronary disease, and it takes a physician to diagnose and treat it. Don't depend on home treatment until it becomes forever too late; and don't depend on physical exercise or manipulation-treatments. I'm advising you right.

If a coronary artery becomes plugged up, the heart-wall beyond the obstruction begins to weaken, because it is deprived of food. It may be "plugged" by bacterial processes—the infected heart. This may occur in a rheumatic subject, or in cases of influenza, or a chronic infected heart—hence the rush to remove tonsils, teeth, etc.

Probably obstruction in the coronary arteries is next to valvular disease in frequency; but diseased valves make loud

New Settlement Project

The Eastern Townships Settlement Society has adopted a new project during the past months in the settlement of a number of new families on farms in the newer portions of Compton County. The summer months were very busy, as shelters had to be erected and road making done to connect the settlers with the outside world. The scheme is gradually taking shape, and it is expected that a school will be started shortly for the benefit of the children of these real pioneers.

The Women's Institutes in the district have been asked to help in regard to necessities for these people, and are responding generously.

Q.W.I. Members Favor Women on School Boards

The members of Quebec Women's Institutes are vitally interested in the well-being of the schools of the Province, and are losing no opportunity to promote their welfare. Not only have they provided equipment, and hot school lunches, the latter adding greatly to the health of the pupils so served, but they have also raised to a high standard co-operation between the parents and teachers.

Their sphere of usefulness, however, is limited by the fact that there is no place as yet for women on the School Boards of the Province. This, they feel, is a mistake. Many of the best teachers are women, every High School staff having its quota. The mothers of school children are just as much interested in their progress as the fathers. The educational qualification of women for the position, particularly in the rural sections, is often better than that of the men, for perfectly obvious reasons. Why then do they not have a voice in matters pertaining to the well-being of their children during their years at school? This question needs an answer.

Try New Methods

An Englishwoman who works by the day for me has the right idea about things. She remarked that something I did was the way her little girl had been taught in cooking class. She said, "I always have my girl show me the things she learns in school because you never know when you are going to get some good idea. I always encourage her to try them at home. My neighbor makes fun of everything her little girl does in cooking class, and says that the teachers don't know anything about real cooking. She never wants to try anything new. I scalded my arm and the insurance company looked after it and paid the bills. The doctor sent a Victorian Order nurse every day to dress it. The doctor put tannic acid on it, and it was a fair treat the way it healed without any scar. The neighbor said I was silly to let them use any new-fangled thing like that on my arm. Every day she used to scold about the nurse and say what did a slip of a girl like that know, and that I would be a lot better looking after it myself. I just told her that the nurse might be a slip of a girl but she was trained. Just because a body is young doesn't mean they don't know things."—If more mothers were like this and worked with their children in trying new things and new methods, cooking classes would be of still greater value.

WHY PUT UP WITH PIMPLES, WRINKLES AND A SALLOW SKIN?

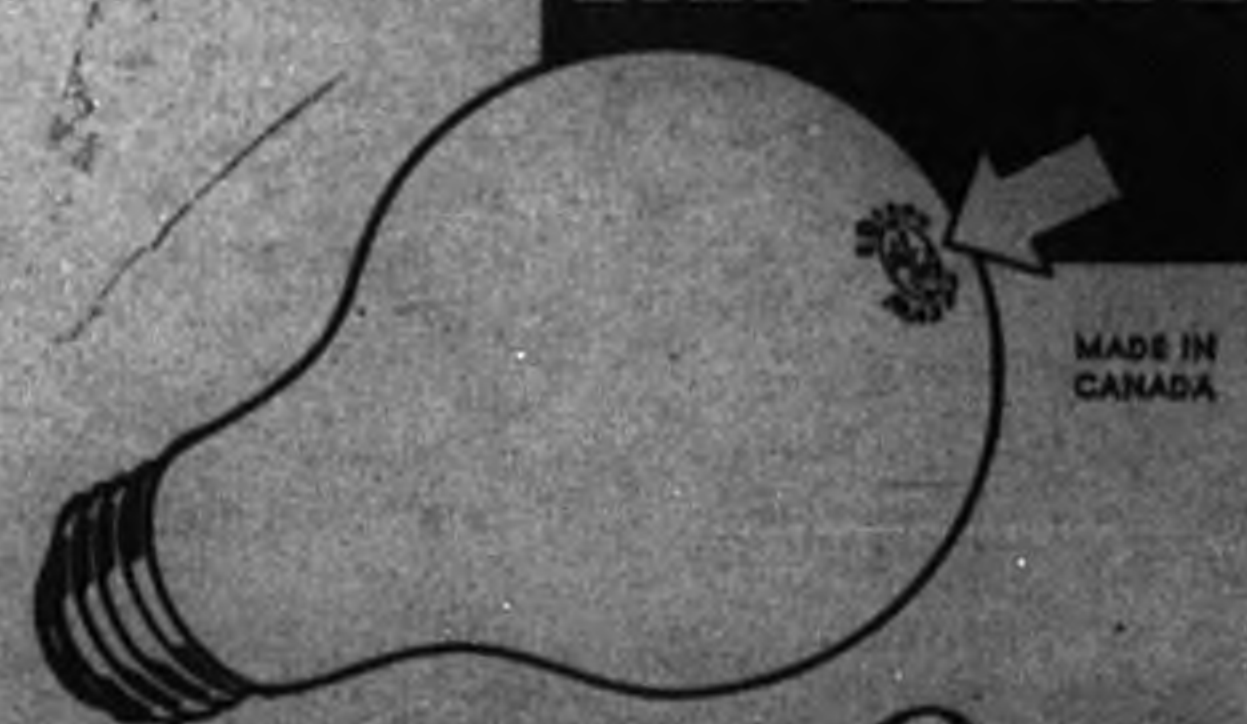

So many women throw their charm and beauty away — look years older than they are — because they neglect common constipation. They forget that badly balanced meals, over a period of years, can change how they look and feel.

Often their menus lack the "bulk" needed for regular habits. Then constipation, the beauty-killer, sets in. Other effects may be headaches, listlessness, sleeplessness.

Get "bulk" back into your meals with a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It absorbs moisture within the body, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system.

Just eat two tablespoons daily, either as a cereal or in cooked dishes. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London.
