FINE SUMMER HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE SATURDAY AFTERNOON

TWO SERIOUS OUTBREAKS AND MINOR FIRES LAST WEEK-END

Firemen were kept busy last Saturday answering calls to outbreaks of fire in the neighborhood, the most disastrous of which caused the destruction of a fine summer home east of town on the North River, the property of Mr. and Mrs. F. Penfold.

The home had been opened only about a week, Mr. and Mrs. Penfold having just recently come from Montreal. They had been burning brush in the garden, and shortly after the lunch hour on Saturday smoke was noticed in the wood shed adjoining the basement, and soon the entire lower floor was ablaze. Lachute Fire Department was notified, and an auxiliary pump was rushed to the scene over rough and partly flooded roads. The firemen met with difficulties, but were successful in reaching the river's edge and applying a powerful stream through 1,000 feet of hose to the elevation of the cottage, situated on a high bank overlooking the river. A strong breeze was blowing, however, and the interior of the house was soon a furnace of flame. Solidly built of cement, parts of the walls and the roof eventually crashed and the home was a total loss.

Constructive Ideas Receive Attention at Lachute Board of Trade Meeting

SEEK TO EFFECT OPENING OF
BERRY STREET BESIDE C.P.R.

A business session of the Lachute Board of Trade was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, at which many questions of general concern to the community were discussed.

One gratifying issue before the gathering was a decision that the members would lend hearty support to the Town Council to ensure that May 12th, Coronation Day, should be fittingly celebrated in town.

Attention was drawn to abuse practised by certain citizens in depositing their refuse on the banks of the river, thus creating an unsightly appearance. There is a dumping by-law prohibiting this practice, and the members urged that it should be strictly enforced.

The Board of Trade also fostered a petition to be presented to Town Council for the opening Berry Street through from Barron Avenue to Bethany, and requesting the C.P.R. to co-operate in this development.

Council Proclaims Public Holiday for Coronation Day

SEASONAL MATTERS

CUSSED SLUM AREA

The regular meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the Town Hall last evening, presided over by Mayor Dr. A. Rodrigue, with Aldermen C. Durocher, K. McQuat, F. Deslauriers, G. Muir, O. Laurin, G. Deacon, and E. Prevost in attendance.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Ald. Jas. McGibbon was appointed pro-mayor for the ensuing three months.

Gaëtan Masson was granted permit for construction of a stone building on Grace Street.

The Secretary read a letter from the Board of Trade suggesting that Coronation Day, May 12th, be proclaimed a public holiday; also drawing attention to the dumping of refuse on banks of the river; and petitioning for the opening of Berry Street, from Barron Avenue to Bethany. These suggestions were kindly received and acted upon.

The Mayor reported having received an invitation for the council to attend the blessing of new Ste-Anastasia Church on Sunday next, under the presidency of Bishop Deschamps.

Aldermen Muir, Deacon and Laurin were appointed a committee to look into the matter of placing signs at the entries to the town.

ent of the County Health Unit, drew attention of the council to the slum area in the West End, known as Laurinville, where there were 29 dwellings housing 41 families, 4 rows of buildings with no sanitation, and 250 people being subjected to a possible outbreak of typhoid. The case was urgent, said Dr. Lalonde, and the Council promised every co-operation.

Messrs. Alcides Laurin, G. Bedard and Harry Scott were appointed as valuers.

A zone meeting of Lions Clubs was held last evening at Buckingham, where Lion Gaëtan Valois, past president of the Lachute Lions Club, was elected to the office of Deputy District Governor for the coming term.

Large delegations from Buckingham, Ottawa, Morrisburg, Montreal and Lachute were present and after the close of the regular meeting all the members adjourned to College Hall, where a concert was presented by the "Stars of Tomorrow", under sponsorship of the Buckingham Club.

The Lachute Lions Club will hold their next meeting on Thursday, May 13, at Hotel Desjardins, when nominations will be received for officers for the ensuing term.

Ottawa, May 4.—The focus of attention has moved from the Dominion capital to the far west, now that the Coronation contingent has left. There are important routine matters being attended to at Ottawa, but no new strokes of policy can be expected until the prime minister gets back. British Columbia is in the throes of a general election; some observers say that there is one coming in Ontario. Anything may happen in Alberta. Liberal organizations, keeping an eye on developments in the Foothills province, say that every effort will be made to discover and support a strong Liberal leader there. So far none has been found. The sentiment is against a lawyer, and party ranks seem surprisingly short of promising young men in other walks of life. The Conservative party in Alberta shows no sign of being a force in the next election. The United Farmer organization is renewing its Mayor Charles Major, of St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, expressed his thanks and those of his citizens, to the company. He said: "The C.N.R. has always given us unequalled service and now we have a new station. Please accept our most sincere thanks." Raoul Audet is the station master.

MIDNIGHT FREIGHT DERAILED ON C.P.R. BETWEEN LACHUTE AND ST. HERMAS

NINE CARS OVERTURNED AND PASSENGER SERVICE DELAYED

The C.P.R. morning train service to and from Montreal was interrupted on Tuesday, and passengers experienced a delay of two hours, as result of a train wreck the previous night when the mixed freight No. 85 was ditched about a mile west of St. Hermas. It is thought a broken axle on a box car was the cause of the derailment, and nine cars were quickly piled up beside the track. Wrecking crews from Montreal and Ottawa were soon on the scene, and by five o'clock on Tuesday the wreckage was cleared from the right-of-way and the evening passenger service passed through on schedule.

Two cars of fuel oil consigned to S. S. Campbell of Lachute were among the derailed rolling stock, but were damaged only to the extent of slight leakage. A carload of beer also escaped serious breakage.

Officials from the C.P.R. Laurentian Division arrived on the scene within an hour after the accident. Three hoboes stealing a midnight ride had the scare of their lives, but they escaped injury and quickly took to the bush near the tracks. None of the train-crew was reported injured.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED 2 1/2 HOURS ON HIGHWAY

Motor traffic on the St. Jerome - Ste. Agathe Highway was blocked for two and a half hours Sunday afternoon when an automobile struck a bad hole in the road and suffered a breakdown. It is estimated that 150 automobiles were tied up until the damaged vehicle could obtain aid from a garage and be pulled aside.

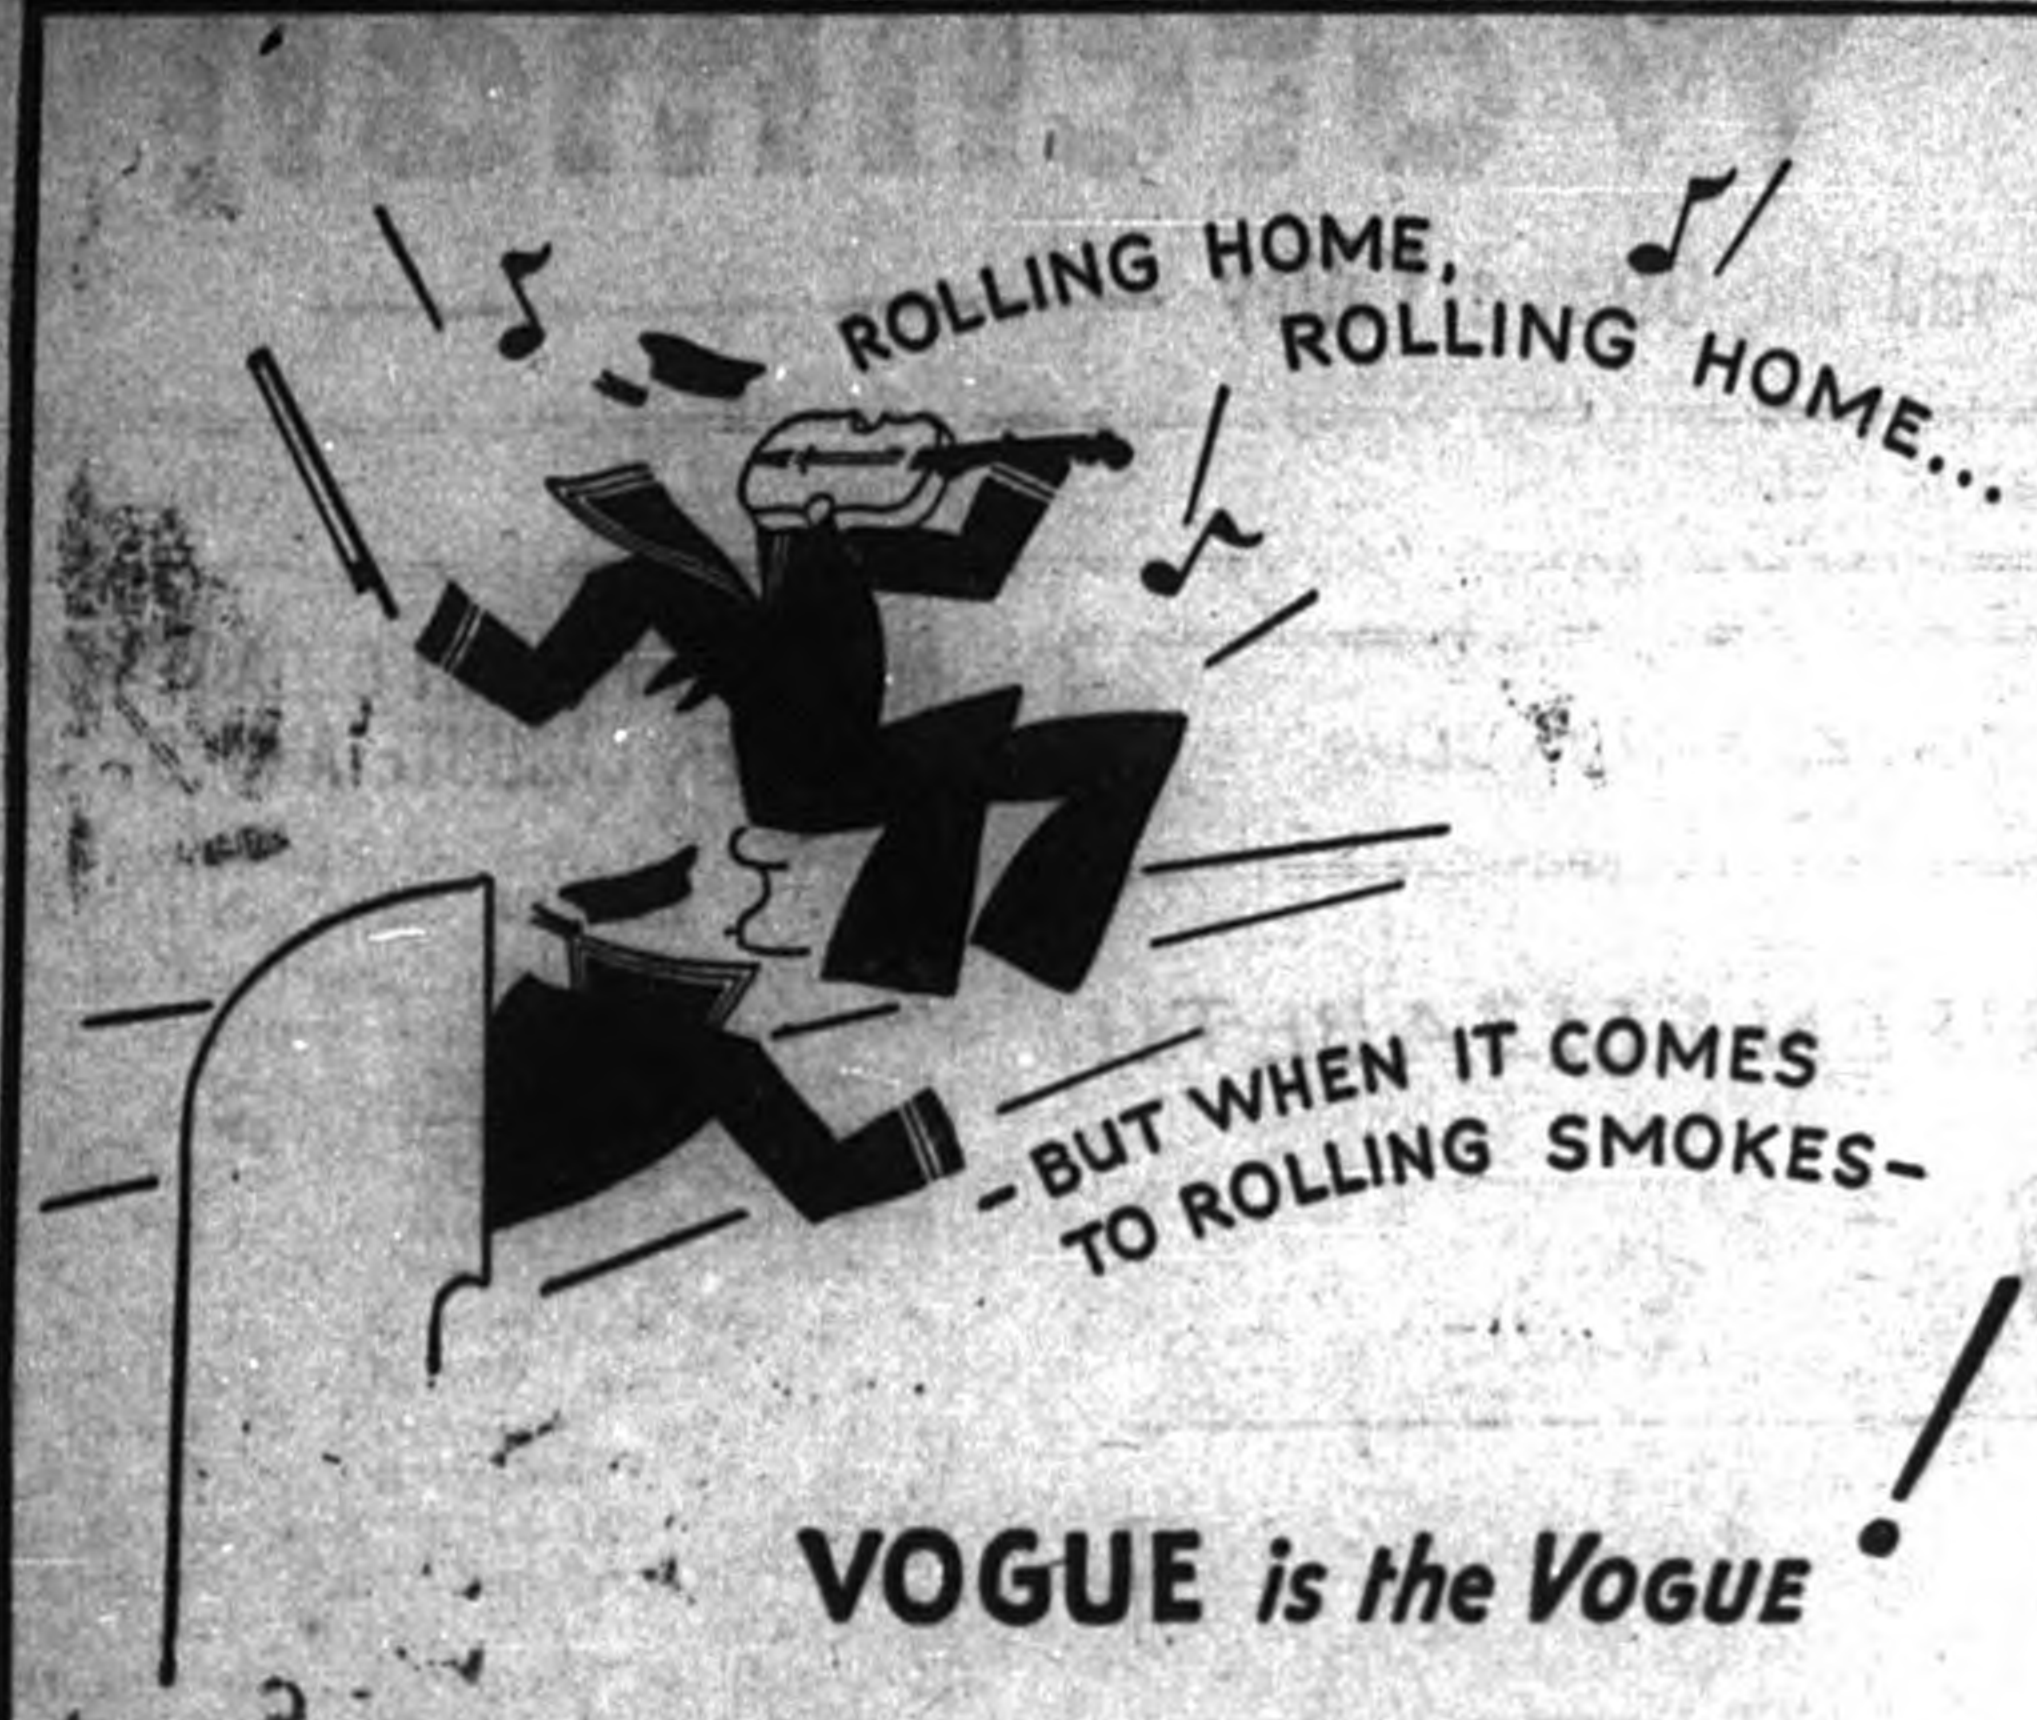

It was reported by motorists from this section last week-end that the road was still in poor condition, there being many holes.

Mother's Day, Sunday, May 9

If we could gather up the sunbeams all for you
And carry them beside you every hour through;
If we could fashion gowns of silver gleams for you,
Mother, our dearest friend, to make your dreams come true;
If we could smother all misfortune's unkind ways
And summon ships of joy and happiness instead;
If we could make the cosmic-harps through Earth to ring
In showers of golden music 'cross the spheres...
Then we would rise in unison with songs of praise,
And place upon your head a diadem of stars.
Kind heaven's gifts would all be yours upon this day,
Wrapped in a symphony of endless roundelay.
Now just a wish, a prayer, a grateful thought we send
With love entwined, to you, Mother, our most beloved friend!

DIVORCE liberalized

The British Parliament is considering, and seems likely to pass, a bill "liberalizing" the divorce laws of England, in spite of the opposition of the Established Church. At present there is but one ground for divorce in England, infidelity. The new law would grant divorce for cruelty, desertion, insanity or the sentence of either husband or wife to life imprisonment.

In America a strong movement is developing in the Episcopal Church to forbid the remarriage in that church of any man or woman who has been divorced. But at the same time several states are taking steps to make divorces easier. Divorce laws vary from that of South Carolina, which forbids divorce on any grounds, to that of Nevada, where little more than the fact that the couple have got tired of each other is ground for divorce.

Early in colonial days Americans adopted the view that marriage is not a holy sacrament but a civil contract. Except where a church which holds the opposite view is a dominant political force, that is the rule almost everywhere. And in America they have become very tolerant of divorce, especially where there are no children's interests involved.

FLYING bigger planes

Six huge airplanes, bigger than anything yet constructed, are being built for the new trans-Atlantic air service. They are half again as large as the "clippers" now flying across the Pacific, will have berths for 72 passengers and a crew of eight, and can carry 5,000 lbs. of freight besides the passenger load.

Flying at 200 miles an hour, these new Atlantic Clippers will be able to cross to Europe in 15 hours. In summer they can make the entire flight between dawn and dark. Passengers can eat an early breakfast in America and a late dinner the same day in England. They will be powered with four 1500-horse-power engines and carry fuel for a 5,000-mile flight. Only the wildest dreams of romancers like Jules Verne ever pictured a marvel like this.

The next big advance in flying will be high-speed, world-girdling planes flying in the stratosphere at 500 miles an hour. One is already being built. Aviation is still in its infancy.

TAXES new sources

When Michael Faraday showed his invention of the first electric dynamo to Mr. Gladstone, Queen Victoria's finance minister, the statesman asked what good it was. "Some day you will be able to tax it," replied the inventor. He was right. Every new invention when it gets into commercial use becomes a new source of tax revenue.

In England all the cost of broadcasting is paid for out of an annual tax on every receiving set. In this country every receiving set pays a manufacturer's sales tax which is included in the price we pay for it. Now it is proposed to tax broadcasting stations, on the theory that they should pay for the privilege of using the radio "channels" through the air. The more powerful the station, the higher the tax.

Somebody has to pay every new tax. Sooner or later a way is always found to make the ultimate consumer pay. The proposed tax on broadcasting would eventually be included in the price of products advertised over the radio.

RELIGION and reforms

I see about me increasing interest in religion by all sorts and conditions of men. Every war has been followed by a depression, and every period of recovery has been marked by a religious revival. The present renewed interest in religion is different, however. Dean Shailer Matthews of the Chicago University Divinity School calls it "jazz orthodoxy."

The heart of religious teaching and preaching in the past has been the appeal to the individual, to bring his own life and conduct into line with the commandments of God. In this age of collectivism, religion is dealing more with broad social problems, such as peace, race relationships and social justice.

I am enough of an old-fashioned individualist to doubt whether any social reform of lasting value can come about until the individuals concerned have reformed their own moral and spiritual lives.

Must Shut Off Motor

The next time you drive up to a gasoline pump in Ontario (says the Tara Leader) and ask for "Five, please", and leave your motor idling, don't get peeved when the attendant asks you to shut off the motor. For operators of gasoline tanks are now prohibited by law to deliver fuel to the tanks of any motor vehicle while the engine is running. It was revealed recently as the new regulations governing the handling of inflammable petroleum products were issued by W. J. Scott, provincial fire marshal. These regulations are patterned upon the lines of those in force in other countries.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

LOOKING AHEAD

Everywhere I find men's backs turned upon present discouragements, and minds busy with better goods, better methods, better ideas, better living.

I spoke to the head of a company about it. He said he had recently been holding a meeting of their English representatives. He told them casually that the company had hired an engineer and assigned him the task of making a world survey of their sources of raw material for the next twenty-five years.

One of the Englishmen exclaimed: "Confound you Yankees! What English company would ever think of hiring a man to look ahead twenty-five years?"

I concluded that it is a waste of time to worry about the future of American business. We have an asset more fundamental than gold supply, or raw materials, or electric power, or climate. That asset is a restless dissatisfaction with the past, a spirit of continuous improvement. As long as we are inspired by that spirit I believe that our future is secure.

THE BROTHERS CHRISTOPHER

I spent a week-end with my friend Bill Brown, whose famous health farm is just across the river from West Point. On Sunday morning we went to mass at Father Paul's and afterwards the good father came to the farm for dinner.

He told me how he had started his church and boys' school twenty years ago with little backing, and how, though the bills sometimes mount to terrifying heights, the money has always come from somewhere at the critical times.

"We live by faith", he said, and his face was a benediction. "This year has been harder", he continued, "because we have had so many more Brothers Christopher."

"Brothers Christopher", I repeated. "That is an order with which I am not familiar. Who are the Brothers Christopher?"

"Some call them tramps", he answered. "We are on the Albany Post Road", he explained, "and all sorts of men pass by. Some have left their jobs; some have quarreled with their wives; some are life-long victims of the wanderlust. We have a house for them in which they may sleep, and no questions asked. They may come to the kitchen for their meals, and if they know any trade they may help us with our building operations. When they have stayed with us as long as they want, they move on."

Listening to his gentle accents, watching the light of benevolence in his fine eyes, I felt encouraged. Life itself is the Albany Post Road. People hear of it only as a highway of business and pleasure.

Yet quietly, by the side of the road is Father Paul with his friendly hand and cheering word for the Brothers Christopher.

strength, but has a long way to go. The efforts to form a popular front are not particularly successful according to reports here. Until formidable opposition springs into being, the Social Credit party has nothing to fear from a general election. Premier Aberhart could be re-elected tomorrow, Ottawa thinks. But whether he could be re-elected the day after tomorrow depends on the success of the Liberals or other parties in building up an organization. That is what one hears in political circles at the capital.

WIDE RANGE

The Liberal party at Ottawa embraces a wide range of political and economic attitudes. It is broad enough to hold a Gerry McGeer and a 'Bob' Deachman, an Hon. W. D. Euler and a W. A. Tucker, a J. T. Thorson and an Hon. J. C. Elliott. The left-wing or low-tariff Liberals grow restive at times at the Tory legislation which they claim is introduced. No matter what policy it adopts, the Liberal party is always running into criticism. If it veers left, the right-wing or Tory element rebels; if it veers right, the insurgents of a progressive type threaten to leave the ship. If it sails down the middle (the usual tactics) both wings are dissatisfied. Allowing for the fact that a country so diverse as Canada is difficult to govern with satisfaction to all, I think one can safely predict that next session the 'Rump' of the Liberal party will be more vocal than it was last year. The government had more to put up with from its own members at times than it did from the official opposition, even last session.

POPULARITY OF MINISTERS

With the rebels, Messrs. Gardiner and Halsey are more popular just now than Hon. Charles Dunning. One often hears it said that since he came east, Hon. Charles Dunning has lost his sympathy for the west. This may merely mean that he has seen the viewpoint of the east and the Maritimes, of B.C. as well as the prairies, and that he is trying to strike a fair balance as between these conflicting interests. The opposition likes to stress this decline in the popularity of the Minister of Finance with some of the most ardent low-tariff members, and emphasize the growing popularity of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, no doubt to some extent hoping that a spirit of rivalry can be developed between them, to the embarrassment of the Liberal party.

Employment figures took an upward turn early in April, and for several months now we can expect a forward march. Though a serious core remains untouched, there is little doubt that by September 1st the largest body of persons will be employed in Canada since the last peak of good times.

Foreign trade also climbs to new high levels.

Paste This in Your Car

People who drive cars should read the newspapers. They should watch for the results of some of the many court cases in which motor accidents furnish the central theme. They might learn a great deal.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey gave two decisions in damage claims in London. In one case a retired farmer and his wife had been struck when crossing a street in London and the amount awarded there was $12,000.

The other was related to an automobile smash near Wingham in June of 1934, and the amount involved there was $20,500.

The average man does not possess $12,000, nor could he raise it. The number who have $20,500 or any hope of ever accumulating that amount is smaller, and yet these are the figures which are being dealt with in auto smash cases in the courts today.

It might do no harm to stick those two figures some place in the car where you can look at them when you are inclined to step on the gas and take even a small chance.

Perils of Typography

(From "Nature")

A correspondent has sent us a copy of a program for 1936-37 of a science society of a university, which contains two amusing misprints. The title of a paper to be contributed by a member of the zoological department of the university was sent in as "Life History of the Ling Cod." The secretary appears not to have recognized "ling" as a food fish of the cod family, so he altered the word to "living". The printers put the finishing touch upon the title by changing the last word also, so that the title appears as "Life History of the Living God", which must surely represent the most ambitious subject of a paper by a zoologist ever announced.

Small boy meets big boy returning from a fishing trip. The following dialogue ensues:

"Been fishin'?"
"Yes."
"Catch anythin'?"
"Haven't been home yet."

CONCRETE for Bridges combines Beauty with Utility

This attractive beam bridge at St. Andrews East, Quebec, is typical of the adaptability of concrete to traffic as well as scenic needs.

It combines beauty of line with unyielding strength and makes a permanent, easily maintained highway link that will keep pace with the growing demands of modern traffic for many years to come.

Consider the bridge requirements of your community. Outmoded and inadequate bridges should be replaced by structures that mean safety, freedom from traffic-interrupting and from tax-eating maintenance—structures that will enhance the natural beauty of your countryside. On all these counts, concrete is the answer.

Playtime, Death-Time

"Six-year-old Arnold Howse, of Penticton, lost an eye last week while 'playing soldiers'. A playmate thrust a wooden sword into his eye."

This brief item from the Enderby (B.C.) Commoner may serve as a timely warning to many. Playtime is here. Youngsters are getting outdoors on bicycles, roller-skates, coasters, and so forth. Little boys with red wagons will need be careful lest they run under the wheels of trucks. Bicycle riders will need to be equally cautious. Then, soon, the rivers and lakes will be calling to grown ups. Extra precautions should be used. Brakes should be used more than horns. Seats in boats should be used more than floorboards. First aid kits should be carried, in place of a hope that no one will be hurt. Summer-time is a glorious time. Let everyone determine that his carelessness will not make it a menace to life and health.

Mother's Day and the Other Fellow

A great deal of beautiful sentiment has been written about mothers—especially since Anne Jarvis of Philadelphia started the idea of setting apart a special day in her honor.

Most of us love our mothers—especially when we are little. When we become old enough to appreciate her self-denials on our behalf, then our love means even more to us—and, it is to be hoped, more to her.

But mother-love that doesn't get beyond sentiment is not worth much in this practical age.

For instance, I know a young fellow who claims to love his mother very dearly. When he is away to camp or visiting friends he has lonely spells, and can hardly keep back the tears, thinking of her. And yet when he is home she has to keep everlastingly at him to keep the woodbox full.

I know a young woman who would feel deeply hurt if it were suggested that she did not truly love her mother. And yet, she will come into the house and flop down with a magazine without asking her mother if there is anything she can do to help. Doesn't she know that mother has been on her feet all day until she can just about stagger?

I have heard of a fellow who becomes emotional over a "good mother" role at the movies. They say half what he spends in a year on luxuries would pay for an operation which she has long needed.

Then there is another fellow who goes to his club regularly, has occasional trips out of town, and apparently is very tender towards his old mother. I happen to know that the mother of his children has no club life and hasn't been off by herself on a trip in ten years.

Oh yes, the approach of Mother's Day reminds us of many "other fellows" whose love might take more practical turns. Among them are those who do nothing about the high mortality rate among those prospective mothers who lack kindness and medical care in the trying hours.

By this time you are asking, "Who is the author of this editorial, anyhow?" Answer: "Oh, just one of the 'other fellows' who hopes that all this beautiful sentiment on Mother's Day may bring some high resolves to treat mothers with consideration, so that more young women will look forward to being mothers of the type that men delight to honor."

Most Civic Auditors Claimed Unqualified

A charge that most municipal auditors were totally unqualified for their task and that no branch of municipal administration had been as badly neglected in the past as that of accounting and auditing, was made by H. L. Cummings, Ontario's Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, at a convention of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities held recently in Toronto.

"Do get away from the practice of appointing 'two good men and true.' They may be the finest citizens in the municipality, but know no more about auditing than I do about shoeing a horse. I don't want a condition of public affairs being regimented or Hitlerized to death, but do let us be practical and use common sense. We have done too much in both public and private life of muddling through," said Mr. Cummings.

The Deputy Minister also contended that taxes could not be considered as a debt, and therefore did not come within the confines of the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act for consideration. He wished, he said, that some municipality would "go to bat" on the matter. Despite opinions to the contrary which had been given in Ottawa, he maintained that the review boards had no authority to deal with taxes.

The Foot, the Bill and the Sock

She opened the door in answer to his knock. He stuck his foot in the door, to make sure she didn't shut it before he could thrust a bill into her hand. She stuck her fist in his face, to make sure he would withdraw the foot and the bill. He did so, but charged her in court with assault. This all happened in London, Ontario, and the judge, Magistrate Donald Menzies, ruled that "A woman has the right to defend her home."

Had there been no bill there would have been no foot, no sock in the eye, no court case. But had this case not appeared in court there might have been no limit to which bill collectors could go in endeavoring to collect bills.

Be that as it may, it is still true that a gentleman is one who pays his bill as cheerfully as he ordered up the goods.

In one generation, the rich man's luxury . . . the automobile . . . has become everyman's necessity. Is there still greater progress ahead? We believe so. If the present labor troubles are not prolonged, indications favor a sales gain of 15% for 1937 over the past year. According to the Automotive Industries, registration of passenger cars and trucks this year is likely to be about 28,500,000 as compared with 26,657,072 in the previous peak year of 1930.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES... AND THEIR BANK

CANADA'S TRADE WITH THE WORLD

In the last calendar year Canada had a foreign trade amounting to $1,663,093,000, an increase of 19.7%, as compared with an average of 8.1% for 24 leading countries. In this exchange the Dominion had a favourable balance (including exportation of gold as a commodity) of $393,000,000. Another feature of international trade was the tourist business, incoming and outgoing, totalling $355,368,000, the balance in Canada's favour being $155,958,000.

With the figures for tourist trade added to those for ordinary commerce, our international trade rose to $2,018,661,000, with a total balance in Canada's favour of more than half a billion dollars.

Banking plays a vital part in the upbuilding of the foreign trade of Canada, and foreign trade is the backbone of the native industries which are the foundation of Canada's economic structure.

In providing financial service for this enormous trade a leading part is played by the Bank of Montreal, which, with its 500 branches throughout Canada, its own offices in financial centres abroad, and its own banking correspondents throughout the world, carries through promptly and smoothly the task of financing the movements of an infinite variety of commodities.

The Bank's services include: Loans to importers and exporters; purchases of bills of exchange representing exports; providing commercial credits for purchases abroad; purchase and sale of exchange "futures" for protection against price fluctuation in foreign currencies; special wire facilities with the important exchange markets to speed transactions; reports of character and standing of foreign firms; commercial accounts; foreign currency accounts; safekeeping of securities.

HARRIS — MacDONALD

Large Company Attend
at Flint, Mich.

Central M. E. Church, Flint, Michigan, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday night, May 1, 1937, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Eleanor Ann MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. MacDonald, 816 East Fifth Avenue, and Paul P. Harris, son of Mr. N. E. Harris, 2201 Leith Street, were united in marriage.

About 175 guests witnessed the ceremony performed by the Rev. Walter B. Heyler, before a setting of palms and Tiffany baskets of spring flowers.

The bride wore a gown of white silk marquisette over white satin with a long veil of illusion confined to her head with the same orange blossoms which had been worn by her mother at her wedding. She also wore an antique gold bracelet which was worn by her grandmother 60 years ago. Her bouquet was composed of Johanna Hill roses, sweet peas and swansons.

Her sister, Miss Maxine MacDonald, was maid of honor wearing a gown of pink taffeta and tulle of pink rosebuds in her hair. Silver slippers and a bouquet of Briarcliff roses and orchid sweet peas completed her costume.

Miss Pauline Harris, of Bay City, sister of the bridegroom, was a bridesmaid, attired in peach net over satin. She wore a Juliet cap and slippers to match. Another bridesmaid was Mrs. Dale C. Massey, who chose green net over satin with Juliet cap and matching slippers. Both carried colonial bouquets.

James P. Donnelly was best man and the ushers were Lloyd F. Christensen and Dale C. Massey.

Mrs. Eva Parker, an aunt of the bride, played the wedding music. The bride's mother, Mrs. MacDonald, wore blue lace with dark blue accessories. A reception followed in the church parlors which were adorned in spring flowers in pink and white.

The couple left for Detroit and points in Canada. For travelling the bride wore blue crepe with lace trim and a powder blue coat collar with wolf. Her accessories were of navy blue.

Mrs. Harris was a graduate of Central High '36 while Mr. Harris graduated from Central High School in '34 and is a member of Beta Phi Sigma fraternity.

Relatives were present from Detroit, Saginaw and Pontiac, Mich., also from Lachute, in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Muir, Mrs. Ross Muir and son Richard, Mrs. R. McAdam and Mr. John Hadley.

Fires Last Week-End

Mrs. Penfold rescued the car from the garage, but very little of the household effects could be saved. The loss was partly covered by insurance—Mr. and Mrs. Penfold holding $5,000 coverage on the home and $2,500 on the contents.

HAY-BARN BURNED TO GROUND

The same afternoon a barn full of hay was destroyed on the farm of Roy Morrison, a mile east of the town limits. The structure was situated back from the road and the residence, near the C.N.R. line. The proprietor knew nothing of the outbreak until the barn was burned down, and it is thought to have been started by a grass-fire near the track, possibly caused by cinders from a passing train.

GRASS-FIRES IN LACHUTE

On the same day fire calls were sent in for two grass-fires which threatened to endanger properties. One was on the north side of the C.P.R. track between Barron Avenue and the Memorial Park, the fire having crept to the walls of the skating rink. The other blaze which spread out of control was above Grace Street on a property adjoining Mr. F. A. Brennan's. Both fires were extinguished, without damage.

Eye-Strain May Be Avoided

Readers suffering from eye-strain and headaches, caused by defective vision, are reminded that Dr. W. Finlay McMartin of Lachute is qualified to test the vision and prescribe suitable glasses. Equipped and trained for this work, Dr. McMartin will give consultations at his office, 285 Main Street, Telephone No. 166.

43 Men Plan Coronation

London—When the King and Queen drive in state to their coronation in Westminster Abbey, the most anxious officials in the parade of pageantry will be forty-three men who are directly responsible to Their Majesties for the smooth running of the arrangements.

They are members of a committee of the King's Privy Council, formed almost immediately after his accession to consider "the preparations necessary to be made for the Coronation of their Majesties." It is one of the few remaining committees of a great nation that does not include a woman as a member.

The official list of the committee as announced in the London Gazette — a Government periodical, without publication in which only a few things can be official, was as follows:

The Duke of Gloucester, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, the Archbishop of York, the Prime Minister, the Lord President of the Council, the Lord Privy Seal, the Duke of Norfolk, the Lord Steward, the Master of the Horse, the Duke of Portland, Lord Salisbury, Lord Zetland, Lord Crewe, the Lord Chamberlain, Lord Derby, Lord Crawford, Lord Stanhope, Lord Onslow, the Earl of Athlone, Lord Swinton, the Bishop of London, Lord Hewart, Lord Thankerton, Lord Wright, Lord Wigram, Sir John Simon, Capt. Anthony Eden, Mr. Ormsby-Gore, A. Duff Cooper, Malcolm MacDonald, Walter Elliot, Major Alexander Hardinge, Sir Austin Chamberlain, D. Lloyd George, Winston Churchill, J. R. Clynes, Sir Samuel Hoare, Neville Chamberlain, H. B. Lees-Smith, Sir Archibald Sinclair, W. G. Normand and C. R. Attlee.

Executive Group of 28

The Duke of Gloucester is the King's brother and it is to him that the other members of the committee look for the private interpretation of the Royal wishes. Actually the King makes his wishes known through one or other of his official mouthpieces, the Lord Chamberlain or other Ministers of the Crown.

But the minor and sometimes major causes for Royal disapproval rarely find their way to public expression. A hint is dropped from those nearest to the throne that "His Majesty did not (or does not) like that", and those responsible are duly admonished.

The London Gazette gave the following record of the appointment of this committee.

"It is this day ordered by their Lordships, in obedience to the commands of his Majesty in Council, that the persons whose names are hereunto annexed, together with any other persons who may to them hereafter be added, shall be an executive committee to consider, in accordance with such directions, as to the matters to be considered or otherwise, as his Majesty may be pleased to give, the preparations necessary for the Coronation of their Majesties, and that the said executive committee shall carry out any recommendations made by this committee after they shall have received the approval of the King."

Stage Set for Crowning of Royal Couple

Empire Capital Thronged with Visitors to Witness Coronation and Colorful Celebrations

London — Some idea of what is in store for Londoners in the way of color and picturesque personalities is afforded by visitors from the outposts of the Empire, now in London for the Coronation.

Every incoming ship disgorges its quota to the influx. Streets which normally resound to the tread of milling thousands of business people and shoppers are now packed with visitors, many in colorful native garb, and all on the same mission—sight-seeing.

Official Coronation contingents and thousands of colonial visitors are already in London.

The city presents the aspect of an international melting-pot. Brown skinned East Indians with their flowing turbans mingle with khaki-clad Australian, South African, New Zealand and Rhodesian troops, who were among the early arrivals. Occasionally bearded figures in flowing Oriental robes venture into the thronged by-ways, while a proud representative in Arab dress is not uncommon.

Several Sultans, some of whom Londoners have never seen, or heard of but little, will augment the scene of splendor. Among the most picturesque of this group is the Sultan of Trans-Jordan, the bearded Emir Abdullah, son of the Sherif Hussein, who aroused his followers to revolt during the Great War and fought side by side with the British forces in the Palestine campaign. The Emir distinguished himself during the fighting.

Another distinguished visitor, one of the few who attended the last Coronation, will be Seyyid Sir Khalifa Bin Harub, Sultan of Zanzibar. When he came to his throne in 1911, Zanzibar had been a British protectorate for several years. He respected that state of affairs when war broke out and kept the Arabs along the East Coast of Africa friendly to the British. He is the acknowledged head of the Mohammedans on that coast.

Many From India

From India will come the largest Coronation contingent, among them Sultans, Maharajahs and officials of high standing. Among them they possess fabulous riches.

One of the most distinguished and best known Eastern visitors will be the Sultan of Jahore, prosperous state at the southernmost tip of the Malay peninsula. He has frequently visited England and was married in a London registry office to a Scotswoman, the former Mrs. Helen Wilson. The Sultan is numbered among the wealthiest men in the world, and, on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee of King George V and Queen Mary, gave $2,500,000 as token of his loyalty, the money to be used to hasten completion of the Singapore naval base.

OLD LONDON SCRUBBED AND DECORATED

London has assumed a mantle of festive color.

With characteristic thoroughness, those responsible for the huge program of preparation have carried out their plans according to schedule, without fuss or fanfare. The result has been that Londoners are just becoming aware of the city's transition from everyday drabness into ceremonial dress, which will blossom next week into a riot of color and gaiety.

Seldom in its long and eventful history has "Old Smoky" undergone such a thorough outward scrubbing and sprucing.

Many buildings coated with the accumulated grime of years have been transformed into spotless monuments by water and paint; festoons of vari-colored bunting, flags of all sizes and heraldic crests are beginning to appear on every hand; merchants are vying with each other in display of patriotic emblems, foremost of which are pictures and souvenirs of the Royal Family.

Houses Adorned

Similarly, private residences have been painted and renovated; light standards along the principal thoroughfares have been given a new coat of silver and red paint and finishing touches are being put on temporary stands which will accommodate the throngs along the processional route.

Parliament Square has been one of the centres most affected. There the woodwork and scaffolding, skirting the Parliament buildings and Westminster Abbey, fill the eye completely, except for the occasional statue which appears to stand boasting of its point of vantage.

Human Interest Side to be Topic of Radio Comment

The human interest aspects of the Coronation will be dealt with in "Coronation Sidelights," a brief commentary by Harriet M. Ball, to be heard over the CBC eastern network tomorrow, May 7, at 6.30 p.m. EST.

Miss Ball will recall for her listeners some of the more obscure figures of the past who have been remembered because of their association with other Coronations and she will tell something of the people today who help to make the great ceremonies, their colour and pageantry, possible.

There will be the story of the school boy who carved his name on the back of the throne chair so many years ago, the story of a very human incident involving Princess Mary at the Coronation of King George V, and the story of the Westminster scholars and their part for generations in the crowning of England's kings.

A King's Impressions

One of the King's friends (narrates M. H. Halton, London correspondent to the Toronto Star Weekly), is a 50-year-old sailor who advised and counselled the new King's youth. "There was a time not long ago", this man told me, "when it was considered unseemly and disloyal for a friend of the King to describe the King's private thoughts and remarks to the world. But His Majesty said the other day, 'If telling the public my private thoughts will help you in any way, by all means tell the truth.' So I asked what George Sixth is thinking about his own coronation."

"He both dreads it and looks forward to it", said the King's friend. "He dreads it for only one reason—that he will be the centre of the limelight. He looks forward to it because of the terrific honor of his position — what man in the world wouldn't be proud to be crowned head of the British Empire in the Throne of Scone; because it means a period of gaiety and festivity for millions of his fellow Britons; and because he believes it will help strengthen the bonds of Empire. We were speaking about it the other day, and the King said, 'What a gathering of the clans we will have next May. The only thing I regret is that I won't be able to see the coronation procession myself'. He has been presented with a small model of the coronation coach drawn by Windsor greys, and he has spent hours with the little princesses arranging a toy procession with toy coach and toy soldiers."

"Is he worried about the details of the service itself?" "Not in the least", he replied. "He is brimming with confidence and good health. One thing that occupies his mind a good deal is the speech he will broadcast on coronation evening. He told me, 'If I can broadcast half as well as my father, I shall be content.' He described then that last Christmas at Sandringham when George V made his last and finest broadcast. He said there was a strange sadness in the old King's voice that day. He said his father knew he would never again broadcast to his empire. 'Just now', he continued, 'King George is reading histories of previous coronations, steeping his mind in the atmosphere of that curious anointing which is full of ancient ritual yet compact with living meaning to every person who has read England's story.'"

"And how does he feel at being England's King?" I asked. "He feels unworthy of his position but confident he will not fail in his job", replied the King's friend. "He has no illusions. He knows that he has one of the world's hardest tasks. The only thing he fears is too much adulation from the public. Like his brother, he hates to be put in a golden frame. But after all, kings can't be human beings. Their position doesn't allow it. But here we have an unpretentious King who knows his duty and accepts it, and knows above all that it is the monarchy that counts, not the King."

The King and Queen with their charming family—Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, who have already endeared themselves to the hearts of Britishers across the world.

Railway "Camping Coaches" To Accommodate Crowds During the Coronation

With the enormous crowds expected for the coronation in London, the heaviest portion of the transport problem will fall on the railways. British railways will operate over 200 long-distance excursion trains to London on the day of the coronation, May 12th, most of which will run mainly through the previous night to enable spectators to be in their places in good time to see the Royal processions, according to P. A. Clews, European Manager of the Canadian National Railways. To provide additional accommodation and relieve the pressure on hotels and boarding houses, the railways are placing camping coaches in the London and suburban areas and at places within easy access of the Metropolis. Seven or eight day season tickets to London are also being arranged in connection with South Coast resorts. The handling of passengers will not be the only big job the British railways will have to contend with. With the thousands of visitors in London for the event, there is the problem of feeding them, and this will entail transporting thousands of tons of foodstuffs.

Prayer for the King's Reign

Britain's Poet Laureate, John Masefield, has written "Prayer for the King's Reign", which appears in the official souvenir program for the Coronation of King George VI, issued at London. Mr. Masefield has already written a Coronation sonnet.

To God, the ruler over earth and sea,
Grant us thy guidance in the reign to be;
Grant that our King may make this ancient land
A realm of brothers, working mind and hand
To make the life of man a fairer thing;
God grant this living glory to the King.

Grant, to our Queen, the strength that lifts and shares
The daily burden that a monarch bears;
Grant to them both, thy holy help to give
The hopeless, hope, the workless, means to live;
The light to see, and skill to make us see Where ways are bad, what better ways may be;
And grace, to give to working minds the zest
To reach excellent things beyond their best.

Grant to them peace, and thy diviner peace,
The joy of making human wars to cease;
Make wise the counsels of the men who sway
The Britain here, the Britains far away;
And grant us all, that every rightness willed
In this beginning reign may be fulfilled.

John Masefield

Cost of 524,000 Pounds Doubles the Outlay of Previous Coronation

London — Official announcements disclose that the coronation of George VI is the most expensive coronation on record. The crowning of King George and Queen Elizabeth is to cost the Treasury the sum of £454,000, more than twice as much as the cost of the coronation of George V in 1911.

Actually the total cost is estimated at £524,000, but £70,000 of this will be provided by sale of seats on Crown lands.

The increased cost is caused by the undertaking of work never previously done by the Office of Works, rises in the price of raw materials, increased estimates for the Dominion, Colonial and India Offices, and cost of coronation naval review.

The Office of Works has this year undertaken the increase of accommodations inside Westminster Abbey, the erection of stands — at a net loss — along parts of the route, and decorations and floodlighting.

George VI, Descendant of Kings Himself a Gentleman in the Truest Sense

AN "EX-SERVICEMAN" HIS MAJESTY'S LIFE IN THE NAVY, ARMY AND AIR FORCE

It is essential to remember that George VI is a typical unspectacular "Ex-Serviceman." And that, in addition to a dull but dutiful service during the war — duties scrupulously performed and nothing shirked, "Prince Albert" fought and finally vanquished a private enemy of his own, persistent and painful ill-health.

Take this into account and you have a man who can understand and sympathize with the ordinary folk: who knows exactly what the grind of war and the grind of illness, can be. As a matter of fact, we have a King whom — nobody (except his very few intimate friends) knows: but this we do know about him, that this man is a typical Englishman. He is also a man who has never been beaten: and most of his life has been battles; quiet battles with difficulties.

We have to go back to that Cottage in the Sandringham grounds, first to meet Bertie, second son of the then Duke of York. Two things are important to remember, in any study of His Majesty's quiet, efficient career—the first, that he was the second son, and younger brother to an increasingly popular young man; and the second that fate had given him the appalling handicap of a stammer.

He was sent from his sheltered home to the very bracing atmosphere of the Naval Training College, Osborne, and he battled his way through; seven years of hard satisfactory work with, of course, no special privileges. "Being royal" was actually a handicap: there is the extremely pathetic story of the letter "home" written by Albert or his elder brother, when both lads were in the Sanatorium with measles. It spoke of the kindness of the other cadets to them: "they were nice to us in spite of our being royal..." And so Albert's seven years passed; two at Osborne, two at Dartmouth and the remainder afloat.

He went to sea in the Cumberland to complete his training with 60 other boys of his age. He did good work, reliable and unremarkable!

Then came the War: Prince Albert was on H.M.S. Collingwood and Prince Albert was carrying on feeling absolutely rotten: he was already a sick man, and it was only a month after War started that he was hurried on shore for an operation. Imagine this: a keen officer seeing action (for which he had been trained for years) and having to "go sick." His appendix was removed; but his illness returned; he had hidden his suffering and doggedly continued until someone told his superior officer that the ship's doctor ought to "have a look at Prince Albert", and he was looked at and rushed ashore.

His recurring illness brought him back home even after he had wangled his way back to his ship in February of 1915. A few days before the Battle of Jutland, Prince Albert was back with his ship: in time to play his part in the fight... a part that is typical of the King's career, for it demanded entirely unspectacular skill, a high degree of "common or garden" courage to do a job that was difficult — to serve in the fore turret of the battleship carrying on with his 12-inch gun under the officer in charge.

Then — his old illness "got" him again and there was ahead of the young man a difficult and extremely trying time while he attempted to get back to work and his doctors, to treat him! In the end at long last the trouble was diagnosed and he was operated upon for duodenal ulcer and — invalided home.

Poor Prince! Possibly then he did not know that, out of this grim time were to come two great assets; the first a tremendous fortitude in adversity that will never desert him — for he had started his career as the Prince who will not be beaten! And the second a friendship with a Naval Doctor, the present Sir Louis Greig, that has given him a true friend for life.

Directly he was able, he clamoured for work: home service this time with the Air Force — he worked with the R.N.A.S. from early in 1918 to July of '19 at Cranwell; he insisted upon spending Christmas of 1919 in France with his fellow-airmen rather than at home, as he well might have done, and Squadron-Leader H. R. H. Prince Albert (a qualified pilot as well) finally left the services in that year.

And then what? Prince Albert and Prince Henry then, at the wish of their wise father, King George V, took up the threads of life again by intensive work at Cambridge. And here the King started in on his characteristically unobtrusive work that was to end in the beginning of his real civil life career — the tremendous job of being King of the mightiest Empire the world has ever seen.

AT A SCHOOL-BOYS' CAMP

"Take care of the children and the country will take care of itself." This slogan, coined, it is said, by the King himself, gives a sweeping insight into his view of industrial welfare work. He is most closely associated in the minds of British people with his intense interest in the task of alleviating slum conditions in the industrial areas of Britain, and in particular with the job of making the lot of the younger generation more bearable. Most closely, of course, he is associated with the famous boys' camp which bears the title of the Duke of York's camp at Southwold. His Majesty is pictured above in this setting. At the boys' camp each year four hundred boys selected from schools and from the poorer districts of England by the Industrial Welfare Society, are gathered. Half are public school boys, the other half from the poorer working sections, who in no other manner perhaps would be able to enjoy a summer in camp, or to meet on a common recreational plane with the school boy who looms as such a large part of English life. They camp together, play together, hike and work and rest together on a basis of absolute equality. And each year in the past His Majesty, as the Duke of York, has been a visitor at the camp. Whether he will be able to spare time from the onerous duties of kingship is problematical, but certain it is that his interest will continue.

At camp, as our pictures show, he joins heartily into the full round of camp life. He runs races, he swims, he plays games and he strolls with his "charges" who look forward to this visit as perhaps the highlight of the entire camp experience.

The boys' camp is not His Majesty's only welfare interest. Anything that tends to alleviate the grimness and drabness of much of England's poorer section, draws him like a magnet. He was first president of the association which was formed to supply more and better playing fields and recreational centres for boys and girls. He has exhibited an amazing interest and an amazing knowledge of working conditions and the workers' problems wherever he has met them on his empire travels and while he is best known for his welfare work among the younger generation, every worthy cause tending to raise the standard of living for his subjects, young and old, will draw the new King's approbation and assistance.

May Is the Traditional Month for Crowns

May is a traditional month for crowns in England, and on May 1 the crowning of the May Queen is still celebrated with appropriate festivities in the rural villages of England.

Knutsford, in Cheshire, the original of "Cranford", annually chooses its prettiest maiden for this festival.

Edmond Spenser, the poet, wrote of May:

"Then came fair May, the fayrest mayd on ground,
Deckt all with dainties of her season's pryde,
And throwing flowers out of her lap around:
Upon two brethren's shoulders she did ride,
The twinnes of Leda; which on either side
Supported her, like to their sovaine queene."

Scenes in Britain on Coronation Eve to be Dramatized

Characteristic scenes in the lives of everyday people in Great Britain on the eve of Coronation will be presented to radio listeners in the final CBC Coronation Drama, scheduled for Tuesday, May 11, at 9 p.m. EST. "Tomorrow's Coronation", produced from the Toronto studios, will capture the scenes of excitement as London awaits the crowning of George VI and Elizabeth.

Brief visits to typical London homes, to smart cafes and corner houses will be described, and something of the joy and festive mood which encircles the great city, decked ready for the pageant of the day, will be conveyed in dramatic incident, narration and orchestral music.

"Tomorrow's Coronation" will be the final presentation in a series of seven dramatizations relating to the history and tradition of the British crown. The episode will stress the human interest side of the Coronation and will include a description of the routes the processions will follow, proceeding to and departing from Westminster Abbey.

Many Australian Visitors

London—It is estimated here that 25,000 visitors from Australia will be in London to watch the Coronation ceremony.

The total cost of this mass "excursion" is expected to be in the neighborhood of £10,000,000.

ABOARD H.M.S. "RENOVN"

A tour of East Africa in 1924 and 1925 began the Empire travels of the present King. The next important trip was the voyage to Australia, when the commonwealth's new capital, Canberra, was officially opened in 1927. That trip was enlarged into a world tour made aboard the battleship Renown, and during which the present King and Queen visited not only Australia and its sister dominion New Zealand, but also the Canary Islands, the West Indies, Panama (where American and Panamanian welcomes were extended to the party), Fiji and Jamaica and many other points.

On their East African tour in 1924-5, the Duke and Duchess "crossed the line" and His Majesty was given the usual initiation into Father Neptune's order of those who have sailed far enough south to cross the equator. But when the world cruise aboard the Renown began, either the lord of the sea or members of the royal party, or both, declined to accept the previous initiation as complete and final and insisted upon a second ceremonial. So (above) we see the prince receiving the attentions of the "barber" before being ducked in the traditional manner. He entered into the spirit of it all with zest.

The event sets the spirit that dominated the entire voyage, for once away from England and sailing his beloved ocean again, the Prince secured an absence of formality throughout the cruise. He visited every quarter of the battle cruiser from bow to stern and engaged in every sport which the ship afforded. A great deal of work was necessary as plans for functions ashore were made while the Duke and Duchess kept in daily communication with England and the infant daughter they had been compelled to leave behind.

In keeping with the loyal sentiments of this County and the Dominion,

The Coronation Ceremony

The Setting in Westminster Abbey... The King Takes the Oath and Is Anointed... He Receives the Symbols of His Station and the Crown of Edward the Confessor

(From the New York Sun Coronation Edition)

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth drive in state to Westminster Abbey on May 12 for their solemn coronation, a ceremony of color and high pageantry that dates its origin within that sacred fane from the coronation of William the Conqueror on Christmas Day, 1066.

From the first of her Norman kings to the last George, all the sovereigns of England, without exception, have been crowned in Westminster Abbey. Norman and Plantagenet, Lancaster and York, Tudor, Stuart, Hanoverian and Windsor all have there received the rite of coronation.

For rite it is, and a deeply religious one, a ritual framed in the setting of the communion service, the lineal descendant in the Church of England of the high mass that was formerly the occasion for the ceremony. And though it is not generally known, the fact is that the last rite in the chain of events within the wall is the administering of the sacraments to the newly crowned king as he kneels at the altar rail.

Heretofore the coronation ceremony has included a sermon and in all has taken three hours. On this occasion there will be no sermon and this omission, with others of minor nature, will reduce the time by one hour.

An anthem hails the arrival of the new monarch at the historic church for his coronation, and after he has taken his seat—not the throne in which he will presently be installed—there is made what is known as "the recognition."

Presented by Archbishop

The King is clad in a large, round, red velvet cap, trimmed with fur, and in a long, red velvet robe.

"Sirs, I here present unto you King George, the undoubted king of this realm; wherefore all you who are come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?"

This question is asked by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and, according to the ritual, the people signify their willingness by the united cry of "God save King George."

Trumpets sound and the Archbishop, attended by clergy, goes to the altar and assumes vestments in preparation for the ceremony while officers of the Royal Wardrobe spread carpets and cushions on the floor and steps of the sanctuary. The King and Queen, supported by the Bishop of Bath and Wells and the Bishop of Durham and preceded by peers of the realm carrying the regalia, advance in procession into the sanctuary.

Makes Gifts to Abbey.

On arrival at the altar tradition decrees that the sovereigns kneel and make certain gifts to the Abbey. The first is a rich altar cloth and the second an ingot of gold. These are accepted with appropriate prayers and the state regalia is then handed to the clergy and placed on the altar. The sovereigns and their entourage are assigned to special seats near the altar.

The administering of the oath, the most important and solemn part of the ceremony, now occupies the gathering. The Archbishop of Canterbury administers it in the following form:

Archbishop—Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the peoples of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa, of your possessions and in other Territories to any of them belonging or pertaining and of your Empire of India, according to their respective laws and customs?

King—I solemnly promise so to do.

Archbishop—Will you to your power cause Law and Justice, in Mercy, to be executed in all your judgments?

King—I will.

Archbishop—Will you to the utmost of your power maintain the Laws of God and the true profession of the Gospel? Will you to the utmost of your power maintain in the United Kingdom the Protestant Reformed Religion established by law? And will you maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the Church of England and the doctrine, worship, discipline and government thereof, as by law established in England? And will you preserve unto the Bishops and Clergy of England, and to the Churches, there committed to their charge, all such rights and privileges as by law do or shall appertain to them, or any of them?

King—All this I promise to do.

The King's Promise

After this oath is administered the King will rise from his chair and, attended by his supporters and assisted by the Lord Great Chamberlain, the sword of state being carried before him, will go to the altar, kneel on its steps and, laying his right hand on the Great Bible open at the gospels, say:

"The things which I have before promised I will perform and keep. So help me God."

Next he will kiss the Book and sign a copy of the oaths as

First to be presented are the golden spurs, then the Sword of State in a purple scabbard. With the sword comes the admonition "not to bear it in vain, but to use it as the minister of God for the terror and punishment of evildoers and for the protection and encouragement of those that do well."

There is the further charge: "With this sword do justice, stop the growth of iniquity, protect the Holy Church of God, help and defend widows and orphans, restore the things that are gone to decay, maintain the things that are restored, punish and reform what is amiss and confirm what is in good order."

The imperial mantle is placed upon him. This is of cloth of gold, lined with ermine. Next, the orb is placed in his hand. This, a golden ball surmounted by a cross, symbolizes the world below God and a king above kings.

tion of William and Mary in 1689 and derived from the presentation of a Bible to Oliver Cromwell when he was installed as "His Highness, the Lord Protector" in Westminster Hall. The Cromwell protectorship, by the way, was the only break in the continuity of eight centuries during which a properly anointed, invested and crowned monarch has not reigned over England.

Seated in Ancient Chair.

During the investiture with the regalia and the crowning, Kings of England are seated on the coronation chair, which is considerably more than six hundred years old.

It originally came from Scone in Scotland, whose kings had also been crowned in it. Edward the First of England carried it away with him in 1297 and rendered it as a solemn offering at the shrine of St. Edward the Confessor. Ever since then it has stood in the Confessor's chapel in Westminster Abbey. Four lions support each corner and between the chair and the bottom board is inclosed a stone.

scepter, he walks east to the throne on the dais and is assisted into it by the Archbishop and Bishops and other peers of the kingdom.

All the great offerings of State stand round the steps of the throne while the peers of the realm do homage to the new King.

The Coronation Chair

AN ANCIENT RELIC MADE FOR EDWARD I IN 12TH CENTURY

A new interest in the history of chairs has been aroused by the forthcoming coronation in England where historic chairs or thrones will be used in the ceremony. It is not generally realized today that it was not until the sixteenth century that chairs became common. For thousands of years before, a chair was an emblem of authority rather than an article of ordinary use. Common people used chests, stools or benches to sit on, while in India the people dispensed with seats altogether and accustomed themselves to squat on their haunches.

As a result the number of chairs which have been handed down from antiquity are few in number. Most famous of them is the chair of St. Peter in Rome, the chair of Maximilian in the cathedral of Ravenna, and the so-called "chair of Dagobert" in the Louvre.

England's most ancient chair is that made at the close of the thirteenth century for Edward I, in which most subsequent monarchs have been crowned.

Indians Carve a Totem as Coronation Present

Vancouver, B. C.—Indians of the Alert Bay colony on Vancouver Island have demonstrated their loyalty to King George VI by forwarding one of the finest specimens of tribal totem poles ever carved and dyed on this coast. About six feet high, carved in the images of the mystical thunder bird, harbinger of strength and good fortune, and other symbolic birds, fish and animals, the totem pole was shipped to Ottawa aboard the Canadian Pacific's "Dominion", and was taken in charge by Hon. T. A. Crerar, who was a member of Canada's official Coronation party. Canadian Pacific officials rushed the gift through to Ottawa in time for Mr. Crerar's sailing.

Indian agent M. S. Todd at Alert Bay, famous Indian village beloved of tourists on the inside passage to Alaska, described it as the finest totem he has yet seen, regardless of size. Its barbaric hues outshone the rainbow and the carving is particularly fine.

Traditions which have been in effect for centuries will be renewed as King George receives his crown from the Archbishop of Canterbury... One of the interesting features of the ceremonial is the Coronation Chair, which contains the historic Coronation Stone brought from Scotland in 1296.

did his predecessors before him. Then and not till then will the King be anointed. For this rite his crimson robes of State in which he arrived will be removed from him and he will be seated in a historic chair placed before the altar, where four Knights of the Garter will stand behind him with a cloth of gold.

The King now appears in a very close fitting, short, crimson silk coat over white knee breeches, white stockings and black gold-buckled shoes.

Consecrated oil will then be dripped over his head and the palms of both hands in form of a cross by the Archbishop of Canterbury. He pours it from a silver spoon.

"Be thou anointed with holy oil," he says, "as kings, priests and prophets were anointed."

It is this ceremony—the central rite of the coronation—that genuinely arouses the sense in the assembled multitude that from this moment forth, King George VI will be different from every soul in his realm.

For this once, in the whole ceremonial, it is not he who has the dignity of supremacy. In humility he holds out the palms of his hands for the anointing and in humility unfastens his garments for the Archbishop to anoint him on the breast.

Next one by one, and with appropriate prayers, items of the State regalia will be taken from the altar and presented to the King. The presentation is a formal one and after accepting them, he returns them one by one to the clergy, to be placed in custody of the appropriate officer of State.

Receives Gift of Gloves.

Now comes a curious lay intrusion into the ceremony.

A historic rubric declares: "The Lord of the Manor of Worktop, who claims to hold an estate by the service of presenting to the King a right hand glove on the day of his coronation and to support the King's right arm whilst he holds the sceptre and the cross, delivers to the King a pair of rich gloves."

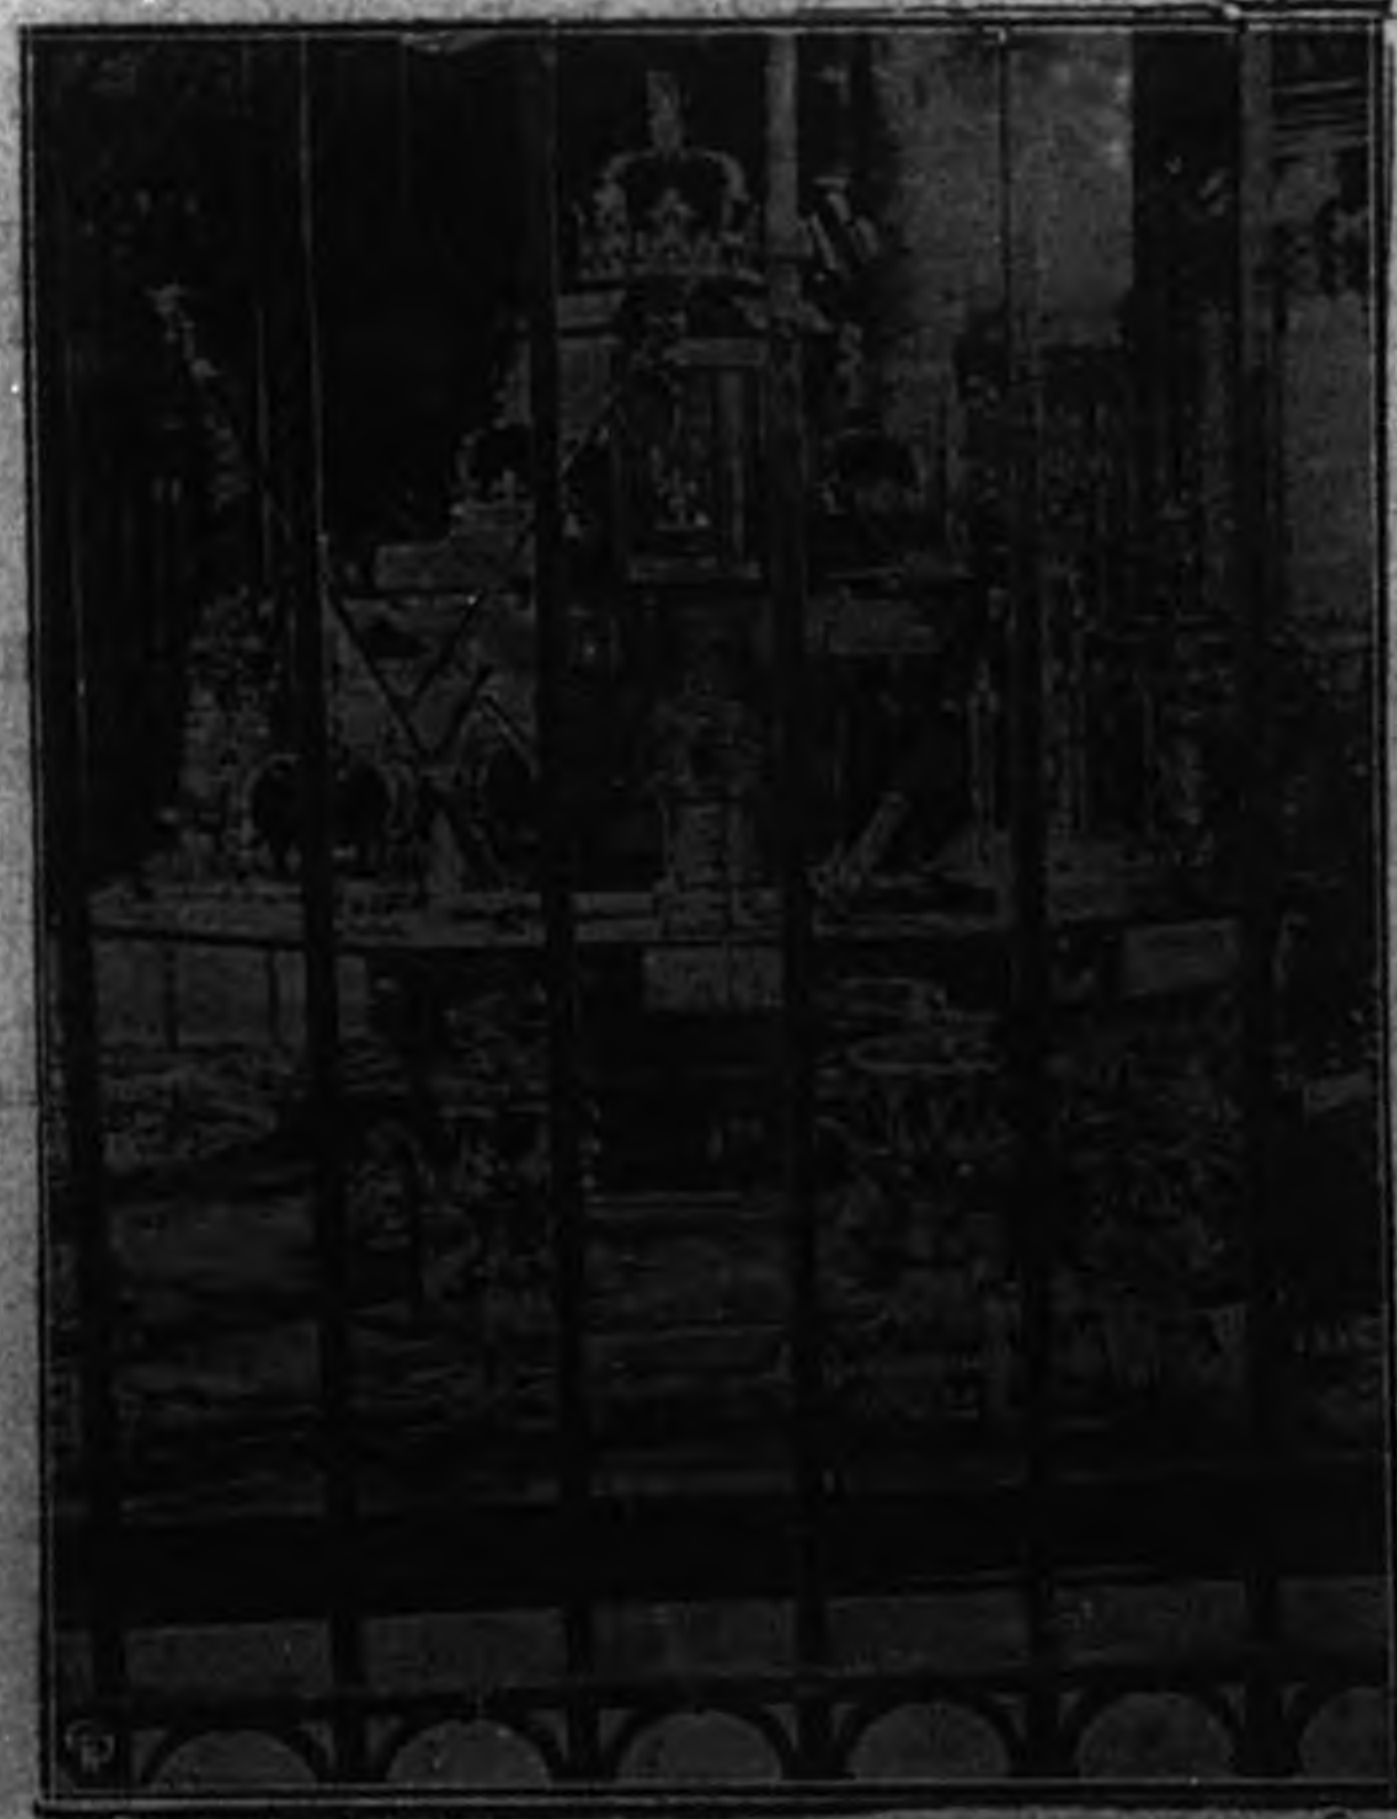

After the gloves have been put on, the Archbishop places a scepter in the King's right hand and a rod bearing a dove in his left. This latter is known as the Rod of Equity and Mercy. These working-tools of royalty, presented, now comes the actual crowning.

The rubric describes the ceremony this way. "The Dean of Westminster brings the crown and the Archbishop takes it from him, reverently putteth it upon the King's head, at the sight whereof the People, with loud and repeated shouts, cry God Save the King, and the trumpets sound and by a signal given, the great guns at the Tower are shot off. As soon as the King is crowned, the Peers put on their coronets."

The King is crowned, the signal has gone forth, but the ceremony continues. The enthronement is yet to come.

But before that takes place there is a ritualistic presentation to him of the Holy Bible. "We present you with this Book, the most valuable thing that this world affords."

This part of the ceremony was introduced at the corona-

Queen Elizabeth's Rule of Taste

"Captivating Charm Wins Every Heart"

London—The British commonwealth of Nations has a King and Queen after its own heart; an English gentleman and a Scottish lady able to maintain the Empire's ideal link of Royal prestige, while willingly advancing with social progress.

The 14 years of marriage of King George and Queen Elizabeth have been a devoted partnership of interests.

"Our home life is just like any other happy home." This reported saying of the Queen amplifies the King's words at the Accession Privy Council: "With my wife as help-meet by my side, I take up the heavy task that lies before me."

During the course of countless public engagements, when as Duchess of York she was second lady in the land, the Queen achieved great popularity. Her individuality is outstanding.

Harmony of Taste

"Captivating charm of Duchess wins every heart," was the heading of the Sydney newspapers on March 28, 1927, after her arrival with the then Duke of York, in Australia, on their first imperial mission, when he represented King George V at the establishment of the federal capital at Canberra. Throughout the subsequent 10 years she has continued to captivate; her charm, backed by sincerity, lively intelligence and unselfishness, is a lasting one.

All these things endear her to the British peoples, but perhaps what they most admire is her impeccable good taste. Innate and cultured, it is expressed in the harmony that surrounds her—in her work, home, dress, hobbies and entertainments. It is a part of herself; disciplined and subject to rule, it never fails her. It enhances her charm, radiating because she desires to please.

Despite the arduous nature of her public life—in busy seasons appointments for functions have averaged eight a day—she always graces the occasion. She has never been known to look awkward, out-of-place or bored. Her clothes are right. With unerring taste, she avoids the exaggerated, yet is never unfashionable. Petite and winsomely pretty, she has her own style; the mode is lightly con-ance test as the annual three to four-mile walk round the sections of the British Industries Fair at the White City, held in London each February.

The Queen's interest comes up smiling after such an experience as her descent into a Welsh coal mine. It is keen when her too mediocrally massive for modern ideas of domestic comfort, but the Queen has given personal attention to suitable alterations in England's state-liest home.

As a Gardener

A hobby which she shares with the King is garden planning. Many are the horticultural shows which they have opened throughout the country, and together they have enjoyed making changes and improvements in the layout of the gardens at the Royal Lodge. Last summer the Queen, as Duchess of York, attended the first meeting at the Guildhall, London, of the Coronation Planting Committee, and has given its schemes her patronage and support.

Nothing could be more acceptable to her taste than that the Coronation shall be marked by a constructive movement to improve and preserve the beauty of Britain by planting trees along new roads, flowering shrubs and fruit trees in suitable places.

Country life and pursuits have meant much to the Queen since her childhood spent in the Hertfordshire home of her parents, the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, and at the ancestral Glamis Castle in Angus. She is interested in outdoor sports and games.

That the Royal Family is a dog-loving one is well known. Her special favorites are decorative—beautiful yellow Labradors and a Tibetan Lion dog of rare and royal breed.

In the metropolitan world of entertainment, the Queen, so responsive to gaiety, adventure, pathos and beauty, enjoys all that is best in the theater and cinema, of drama, music and dancing. That she should deeply love Scottish songs, themes and plays is natural in one with the memory of ancient Glamis to enrich her taste from earliest years for the romance of her country.

formed to this with a touch of exquisite dignity.

It is a pleasure to watch her receive a bouquet when opening a sale of work or laying a foundation stone; to see her enter the royal box at a theatre; to admire her gracious platform manner. Unencumbered by shyness, she yet seems to be doing the particular thing gladly for the first time and giving it her whole attention.

Unflagging Interest

Mechanical routine would long ago have replaced joyous performance of duties if her interest had been feigned. It does not flag during such an endurpublic appearances are connected with the youth and child welfare activities, of which she is president or patroness. Her shrewd Scots sense is at its service; her good taste controls and voices it.

The Queen's rule of taste prevails in the furnishing and decoration of her homes. A favorite color scheme is Georgian green, oyster, soft reds and dark brown.

At the Royal Lodge, Windsor, she planned many improvements and additions, making this pleasant house an ideal summer residence for the little princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. Windsor Castle is

PROCEDURE FOR THE QUEEN'S CORONATION

Temporal. The Lords Spiritual are the bishops entitled to a seat in the House of Lords and the Lords Temporal are the rest of the peerage.

Thus, in their capacity of peers of the realm, the archbishops and the bishops are required to pay homage to the monarch they have crowned. They kneel before him and repeat the oath together in a special form for the use of the clergy. Individually, they kiss his hand.

The Temporal Lords do their homage; the dukes first by themselves, the marquesses, the earls, the viscounts, and the barons. The first of each order leads the rest in repeating the oath. Each touches the crown on the King's head and kisses the hand.

First of the Lords Temporal to advance will be the Duke of Gloucester. At the coronation of King Edward VII and of King George V there was a Prince of Wales to be first to take the oath. But on this occasion there is no Prince of Wales.

The Duke will doff his coronet and kneeling at the foot of the dais say: "I, Henry, Duke of Gloucester, do become your liegeman of life and limb, and of earthly worship, and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die against all manner of folk."

When the homage is ended, drums beat, trumpets sound and the congregation shouts, "God Save King George!" "Long Live King George!" "May the King live forever."

The scene which has so long centered round the King's Majesty now leaves him for a while seated on his throne, the sparkling scepter and the rod of equity in his hands, the crown shooting now and then its myriad glitter at a movement of his head.

The Queen's Coronation

The Archbishop and bishops withdraw to the altar and then anoint and crown the Queen, for whom the canopy is brought out again.

Unlike the King, the Queen Consort kneels before the altar to be crowned and anointed. She is anointed on the head only; she does not take the orb, nor is she invested with special robes.

Supported by her bishops she proceeds to her faldstool, where she kneels while the Archbishop of Canterbury says the following prayer: "Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness: Give ear, we beseech thee, to our prayers and multiply Thy blessings upon this Thy servant Elizabeth, whom in Thy Name, with humble devotion, we consecrate our Queen; defend her from all dangers, ghostly and bodily; make her a great example of virtue and piety, and a blessing to this kingdom; for Jesus Christ Our Lord, Who liveth and reigneth with thee, as Father in the unity of the Holy Spirit, world without end, Amen."

She then steps aside to another faldstool at the north of the altar for her anointing, her train being moved by her train bearers. Summoned by Garter King of Arms, the heralds bring out the lustrous golden pall which has canopied the King. The four staves are held by four duchesses. Stepping forward, they take their stations on each side of the train-bearers and carry the pall until it is above the Queen.

The Archbishop receives from the dean the holy oil poured from the ampulla into the spoon. He anoints the hair on the crown of the Queen's head, saying: "In the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost: Let the anointing with this oil increase your honor, and the grace of God's whole spirit establish you, for ever and ever. Amen."

Then the Archbishop, taking the jewel-encrusted ring, places it upon the fourth finger of Her Majesty's right hand, saying: "Receive this ring, the seal of a sincere faith, and God to Whom belongeth all power and dignity, prosper you in this your honor, and grant you therein long to continue fearing Him always, and always doing such things as shall please Him, for Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Now the crowning. As the Primate lifts the crown, he says:

"Receive the crown of glory, honor and joy, and God, the crown of the faithful, who by our episcopal hands (though unworthy) doth this day set the crown of pure gold upon your head, enrich your royal heart with His abundant grace, and crown you with all princely virtues in this life, and everlasting gladness in the life that is to come. For Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

At a signal the peeresses raise their coronets as if with one movement, and place them on their heads.

The Archbishop puts the scepter into the Queen's right hand and the Ivory Rod with the Dove into her left hand, saying:

"O, Lord, the Giver of all perfection; grant unto this Thy servant Elizabeth, our Queen, that by the powerful and mild influence of her piety and virtue, she may adorn the high dignity which she hath obtained, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

She rises from the altar and followed by the train bearers and supported by her Bishops she passes across the sacrarium and sweeps around, facing the King's throne.

She makes her obeisance to the King, and proceeds to her throne on the dais and the congregation see for a few fleeting moments the King and Queen seated side by side, crowned and with their scepters in each hand.

Thus ends the solemnity of the coronation, and the Archbishop proceeds with the Communion service. After the hierarchy have received the sacraments, they are administered to the King and Queen and the full ritual is completed.

The King is robed in purple velvet with the crown on his head, the orb in his left hand, the scepter in his right. While the bands plays the choir sings the National Anthem, and their Majesties go forth from the ancient fane to encounter the plaudits of the populace.

London Vacationists Take to Auto Trailers

Coronation year in Great Britain is expected to create a boom in motor car and trailer vacationists journeying to and fro like gypsies to see the pageantry in the seaside and country towns of the kingdom. It is estimated that nearly 200,000 people will spend their vacations in "motor caravans", as the English call the car trailer. "There were 10,000 more owners of trailers on the road in 1936 than in 1935", said B. Dolman, secretary of the Caravan Club of Great Britain. Their numbers are increasing annually."

Coronation Hymn

By Rev. Alexander Louis Fraser, Bathurst, N.B., in "The United Churchman"

O Lord regard the heart-felt pleas,
That now to heaven ascend;
From homes across the seven seas,
In one our voices blend.

While to the Empire we renew
Our vows of fealty,
Rid us of pride, and keep us true,
O King of Kings, to Thee.

And while the past is looking down,
A partner in the scene,
Be present Lord Thyself, to crown
With grace our King and Queen.

O keep the throne a sacred place,
Round which the virtues dwell;
The strain of years help it to face,
As freedom's citadel.

With Peace and Wisdom, hand in hand,
Help up to make our way,
Till over ours and every land,
There breaks the golden day.

CBC TO COVER CORONATION BROADCASTS

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will provide full coverage of broadcasts on May 12 in connection with the Coronation of His Majesty, King George VI. The broadcasts, which will cover every phase of the procession both to and from Westminster Abbey, the words of the Coronation service in the Abbey, the special "Empire's Homage" program, in which the Dominions and some of the colonies will participate, and the voice of His Majesty when he makes his first Empire radio address, as well as special broadcast features from the CBC's own studios and from London and New York, will commence at 4:00 a.m. EST and will continue until 3 a.m. EST, May 13. The CBC's short wave receiving station near Ottawa will pick up direct from London all overseas broadcasts, which will be fed to the national network through station CRCO.

The above composite illustration pictures: (right) Westminster Abbey, in which the actual Coronation will take place, the famous Coronation Chair, the Royal Coach, and a trumpeter, (left) views of the cities of Halifax, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, and the CBC's short wave receiving station at Ottawa which will play an important part in bringing in the broadcasts to Canadian listeners.

Official times of the overseas broadcasts are as follows: 4:30 to 5:00 a.m., departure of Their Majesties from Buckingham Palace; 5:00 to 7:40 a.m., the Coronation service in Westminster Abbey; 7:40 to 8:15 a.m., departure of Their Majesties from the Abbey; 8:15 to 9:10 a.m., arrival of the Majesties at Constitution Hill; 9:10 to 9:20 a.m., arrival of Their Majesties at Buckingham Palace. From 1:20 to 2:00 p.m. will be heard "The Empire's Homage", and from 2:00 to 2:10 p.m. the address of His Majesty will be broadcast. For listeners unable to hear all of the original ceremonies, the CBC will present a rebroadcast of the Coronation service from 2:30 to 4:45 p.m. and from 9:00 to 9:50 p.m. will present a rebroadcast of "The Empire's Homage" and His Majesty's address. All times will be eastern standard.

Fabulous Prices for Seats Along Route of Procession

London—More than £1000's worth of seats a day were sold by a single firm, the largest London firm of entertainment agents for the Coronation Procession. The price of seats varied from 5 guineas to 20 guineas each, and in most instances those from 10 guineas upwards include breakfast and running luncheon buffet.

Some of the seats in the neighborhood of Westminster Abbey fetch as much as 50 guineas each. Every seat sold by this firm carries with it a guarantee of an excellent view, and an assurance that there will be no difficulty in approaching the site and getting away from it after the procession is over.

HISTORICAL SOC. MEETS SATURDAY TO REACH IMPORTANT DECISION

DO OBSTACLES JUSTIFY ABANDONMENT OF THE CARILLON OFFER?

Correspondence which appeared in last week's issue of The Watchman concerning the Historical Society Museum has created a stir among those most keenly interested, and it would appear that there is now some spirit of rivalry as to changing the location from the originally proposed site in St. Andrews to the more recent suggestion of the old barracks at Carillon, better known as the Sovereign Hotel.

When the Historical Society was first formed, there was no thought beyond acquiring a small building which would house some relics of by-gone days. Later, in the course of securing memberships, enthusiasm grew and interest led to a wider activity. Then last year it was learned that Mr. Hungerbühler had purchased the old Bellevue estate at Carillon, and at an executive meeting of the Society, the hope was expressed that every effort should be made to preserve local landmarks, which were fast disappearing. Viewing a possibility that the new proprietor might demolish this famous old structure Dr. B. N. Wales, President of the Society, was requested to interview Mr. Hungerbühler and acquaint him with its historic value. The result of this interview was a very generous offer to donate the building and certain grounds, deeding it over to the Society for the purpose of establishing its museum; and the proprietor was thanked for his timely generosity.

As our correspondent has justly remarked, there is much to be considered; the obstacles of costly maintenance, and the burdening of future generations, have to be taken into account.

A meeting is to be held in the Court House, Lachute, at 7 p.m. (Standard Time) on Saturday, May 8th., to discuss this matter. It is to be hoped a good representation will be present to voice their sentiments on this project of county-wide importance.

The Watchman is hardly in accord with the motto advocated by last week's correspondent, viz: "Begin nothing without considering what the end may be." Pessimism or optimism predominates in almost every make-up, but one may hesitate or go fearlessly ahead, and in either case be sadly mistaken.

Lachute Boy Scouts Make Plans for Coronation Beacon

ROYAL SALUTE OF 21 ROCKETS

It has been definitely arranged by the local Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs to celebrate the coronation, on the evening of May 12th., with a Royal Salute of 21 rockets and a large beacon. A short camp fire program is being arranged and Rev. Henry Cousens has very kindly consented to address the gathering on the subject of the coronation and what it means to us in Canada.

Commencing about 8 o'clock this celebration will take place on the mountain between what is generally known as "Holland's" and "James' Hill."

The occasion of the coronation of King George VI brings scouting in Canada a new opportunity to demonstrate its loyalty—to a King and a brother Scout.

This is a community affair led by the Scouts, and it is their hope that everyone will join them in celebrating this great event.—That means everybody—old and young—from far and near. Let's plan to go!

Test Case on Scope of Montreal Sales Tax

RESIDENT BOUGHT CAR IN HAWKESBURY

Quebec legislature went beyond its powers by authorizing the city of Montreal to collect two percent sales tax from Montreal residents on purchases consummated outside the province, Paul S. Smith argued recently in a test case to decide the city's right to collect sales tax on his purchase of an automobile at Hawkesbury.

The sales tax, the Montreal lawyer contended, is levied on the price of the article purchased only, and the price belongs to the seller immediately the sale is concluded. And if a local resident is taxed on another man's property the levy becomes an indirect tax—strictly a federal government prerogative.

Moreover, Smith held, since the tax was levied only when the purchase was brought into taxable area, it created within Quebec province a tariff tantamount to an excise duty—which comes again within federal powers alone.

For the city, Alexandre Marier argued the impost was a direct one since the purchaser of the automobile was presumably the ultimate consumer. Since the same amount of tax would have been claimed had the car been bought in a taxable district, there was no question of any tariff or excise levy.

Written factums were ordered to be submitted by both lawyers, and Recorder Aime Leblanc has been informed his judgment, either way, will be taken as far as the judicial committee of the privy council.

PROCLAMATION Coronation of His Most Gracious Majesty King George VI

As Mayor of Lachute, I hereby proclaim Wednesday, the 12th. of May, 1937, Coronation Day, a civic holiday, in order to permit the citizens to join in celebrating the Coronation of their Most Gracious Majesties and in expressing their affection for and loyalty to the Royal Family.

A Citizens' Committee is making arrangements for a program of celebrations to mark the solemnity and due importance of Coronation Day.

—DR. ALEX. RODRIGUE, Mayor of Lachute.

It should hardly be necessary to request the citizens of Lachute to observe Coronation Day as a legal holiday, since it has been so proclaimed by higher authority. All public bodies and individuals should, therefore, consider it a duty to contribute to the observance of the day.

In order that the town present a gala appearance in keeping with the occasion, it is proper that all places of business and private residences should be suitably decorated.

Historical Society of Argenteuil County

NEWS BULLETIN

While it is the purpose of the Historical Society of Argenteuil to reach its main objective—the kind of museum outlined in its circulars—it is urged that our manuals on small museums be considered as our guides. These admirable text books of the American Association of Museums bear the stamp of common sense and business sagacity on every page. They "recommend no visionary or untried schemes, and none too costly or difficult for any small museum to undertake." . . . Their "fundamental principles are based on the lessons of one hundred and fifty years in the museum field. Hundreds of museums have been studied and their work interpreted on the basis of practical experience."

These standard manuals point the way that will solve the problems that confront the founders of rural museums: how to win, enlist and hold the interest of new members, particularly the clergy and school teachers, French and English, and all who look and work for the coming of a finer type of the "genus homo sapiens" so sadly needed in our time; how to obtain state, county, and municipal grants; how to attract the return of visiting tourists; why the expanding museum rather than the completed one is the more alluring to these visitors; why a large building is so desirable, and other problems too numerous to mention here.

In this connection the following adventure might be noted. Eight years ago (June 1929) the writer, when participating in a conducted tour through the Maritime Provinces, visited the famous Historical Museum at Fort Anne, Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, built about 1798, by order and largely under the personal supervision of Edward Duke of Kent (the great-grandfather of our present Sovereign George the VI) when he was Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in North America. The structure, in size and the arrangements of its halls and chambers is strikingly similar to the Barracks at Carillon, and it has proved none too large for the requirements of this museum. The eight attic windows in one slope of the roof, indicate that the structure could not have been less than 80 feet in length. Its exhibits fill seven of the rooms and two corridors. This noted Barracks Museum of the Annapolis Valley, with its tall chimneys and quaint fireplaces, attracts thousands every season, and the number is growing every year. At the meeting of the Society on Saturday evening, pictures of this museum can be shown to anyone interested.

The program outlined in the manuals would make the museum the joy and pride of the countryside and this consummation can best be achieved with a large building. For this reason the Carillon Barracks would seem to be an ideal place for the undertaking. Furthermore, its strategic location and its historic environment give it a special claim for consideration.

Motor Truck Used for Inspecting Water Main

DRIVE VEHICLE THROUGH 36-INCH PIPE

When the Los Angeles water department recently laid 15 1/2 miles of enamel-lined 36-inch water pipe, the need for a new method of inspecting the main for bare spots was recognized, as published in the Engineering News Record. The outcome was a motor-propelled vehicle operated by one man and equipped with a rotary brush, mounted on the front of the car and charged with static electricity to locate spots where the enamel coating of the pipe had chipped off. The car, driven by two six-volt storage batteries, moves forward through the pipe at 2 or 3 m.p.h. while the entire periphery of the pipe is swept by the charged brush. A spark will jump from the end of the brush strands to the pipe wall when the brush passes over a point unprotected by enamel. The vehicle has sufficient power to pull a trailer in which a second man relocates the suspected areas with a static hand brush and then paints the defective spots. The car was made collapsible so that it can go through elliptical manholes and 20-inch valves.

THE MAYFLOWER

At last I have seen the Mayflower, the Trailing Arbutus, that Nova Scotians love. A bouquet was purchased from a little coloured boy and later we went to the woods to look for it. It grows vine-like along the ground and the blossoms are hidden under the waxy leaves. The fragrance is lovely, sweet and slightly spicy, reminding one a little of the lilac. As a matter of fact, the individual blossoms in the clusters are rather like the little lilac blossom. The colour is pink and white and they are a very lovely flower to find so early in the Spring.

TO REDUCE TAXES

Wouldn't it be interesting if we could do our Spring buying like the Government does? Decide what we think we must have, get it, then next year try to pay for it. If we hadn't enough money on hand we would arrange it so that our children or even our grandchildren would pay for it in the years to come. Whose fault is it that the governments spend too much money? The people's. Most members want to reduce expenses just as much as the careful housewife does. Why don't they? Ask the people who are demanding constantly that more money be spent. No one goes to the government and says, "Do not spend money." They all go with their hands out. They want money for their particular project—let the other people do without if there must be economy. This goes on all over the country and pressure is brought to bear. I have never forgotten a conference I attended of trustees and educationists, and one of the reasons for calling it was to consider ways of reducing expenses. There was only one speaker of all the trustees present who made a suggestion to cut costs. Every one else wanted more money, increased grants. Cut the other grants but give them more. There is only one way to cut governmental expenses and that is to ask for less. The government is supposed to obey the will of the people, and they will to spend. Contrary to general thought, governments at the present time spend carefully on their own projects and money is not wasted. If we won't reduce taxes, the remedy lies in our own hands. Don't ask.

COMPLEMENTAL FEEDING

There are many baby superstitions and ideas that continue to be believed even though modern science proves them a fallacy. The old idea that breast feeding and a bottle should not be given at the same time is one of them. Women listen to their grandmothers or their next door neighbors instead of finding out the truth for themselves. There is no question but that breast feeding is the most satisfactory for a baby and should be continued until the proper weaning time if possible. When a baby cries after feeding or is fretful too soon before the next feeding, it may be that it is not getting enough to satisfy it. Many mothers give up the breast feeding in despair, but the best way to do is to continue the breast feeding and then to finish up with a bottle. Your doctor will tell you the proper mixture to prepare for the bottle feeding. Give the baby the protection of the human milk as long as possible. When the flow of milk is scanty, feed from both breasts at the one feeding as this stimulates the flow of milk. I wish there was a well-baby clinic within reach of every baby in the land.

FRIED SANDWICHES

Spring weddings mean plenty of parties. Parties mean sandwiches, and too often mean left-overs. Stale sandwiches are not so good but here is one way of using them that is sure to be popular. It is really the old-fashioned French toast, only made with sandwiches instead of bread.

- 2 slightly beaten eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix the ingredients. Dip the sandwiches in the batter and fry until brown. Serve savoury sandwiches with a tomato sauce or catsup and sweet ones with maple or corn syrup.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE

- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons cocoa
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix ingredients, stir over heat until the sugar is melted, then boil rapidly for about a minute. Add vanilla. This is a delicious sauce for cottage pudding or ice-cream. Serve it hot with the pudding and either cold or hot with ice cream. I like it fairly warm on the ice cream as then it turns it into a rather gooey sauce that is specially delectable.

RHUBARB AND PINE-APPLE JAM

- 6 cups grated or diced pineapple, fresh or canned.
- 10 cups rhubarb cut and peeled.

Sugar
Add enough water to cover the pineapple and cook until tender. Add the rhubarb and cook until the mixture is soft and the water evaporated. Measure and add equal quantity of sugar. Cook slowly until thick, stirring frequently. Pour into sterilized jars and cover with paraffin.

Blames Diet for Divorce

Dieting was blamed in part for divorces, by George Rector, noted chef and gourmet of New York.

Commenting, at a dinner given in his honor, that a friend noticed that nearly everybody in Reno, Nev., the divorce capital, was thin, Rector said:

"A hungry woman, reducing too quickly on some diet of raw vegetables and orange juice, is very likely to answer back so snappishly that she will find her husband giving her several yards of train ticket and the address of a good Nevada lawyer out of sheer self-defence."

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

The famous "silver bullet" used by British spies during the Revolution to transmit military intelligence, mentioned in many histories, has been acquired by Fort Ticonderoga, historic fortress that has been restored and is now a museum containing one of the finest collections of Revolutionary War relics in the United States.

Messages were written on very thin paper in a fine hand; these were placed in a hollow, bullet-like case of silver made so that it could be taken apart, and the messenger was instructed to swallow the bullet if captured.

With the bullet is the last message that it carried for the British, still legible to keen eyes. On the tenth of October 1777, a horseman was captured by the Americans and when being conducted to the quarters of General George Clinton, was seen to put something into his mouth and swallow it. Doctor Moses Higby was summoned. He administered a powerful dose of tartar emetic, which soon brought up the bullet containing the message intended for the British General Burgoyne. The prisoner was court-martialed and hung as a spy. One week later General Burgoyne surrendered to General Gates at Saratoga.

Dr. Higby preserved the bullet and its message and, after passing through many hands, it has now been presented to Fort Ticonderoga, where it is on display.

Frosting a cake is like trimming a dress—the result is either perfection, or just another one of those things. The more elaborate the cake itself, from the standpoint of flavoring, richness and added ingredients, the more simple should be the frosting. Thus, a very rich and fruited spice cake will be set off to best advantage with a plain frosting. Devil's food cake may be frosted with the same type of color frosting, such as a fudge or chocolate frosting.

New Paris style showings feature strikingly short dance dresses of organdie and embroidered tulle. Some have full swirl skirts while others have thick, rainbow-colored ruchings at the neck and hem.

grey or beige. Highlight these neutral colors with a youthful, gay, almost coquettish make-up, to be found in the pretty cosmetic packages. The blues, from navy to the very icy pale tints, call for make-up with a rosy caste. Avoid any hint of yellow in your complexion, accenting instead a smooth, satiny roseate skin tone.

It's smart to specialize on one thing so that it becomes identified with you. You might economize on some items and splurge on perfume. Or wear spic and span white gloves day in and day out, season after season.

Household Hint: Grease spots can be taken out of book pages by sponging first with benzine, then placing blotting paper on both sides of the page and pressing with a hot iron.

SUGAR IMPORTANT TO HEALTH

An authority from Vienna attributes "strikingly favorable results" in the treatment of heart disease and stomach ulcers, with table sugar. If I had this sort of complaint, I'd consult my doctor as to how to use the sweet. You know, sugar is one of our staples. The value of sugar "in relieving fatigue and supplying quick energy", also has scientific endorsement. The Vienna authority is believed to be the first to suggest the use of sugar in the treatment of certain, widely prevalent diseases. He, (Dr. Roht) claims to have used sugar in the treatment of stomach and duodenal ulcers, with good success. He noticed increase of appetite, with better food-tolerance, an increased supply of mucus, favored by the sugar.

He saw improvement in the habitual constipation in such cases, with notable gain in weight. Too, remarkable increase in nerve-force, less melancholia, and more happy disposition in the gloomy victims.

The relief was not immediate, but gradual and lasting. He says, "sugar is the most important nutritional element of the heart, in that it lowers blood-pressure and stimulates the liver and kidneys". Dr. Donald A. Laird, of Colgate University, contributes to a scientific symposium on sugar; he states that sugar contributes to restful sleep. This argues, almost, for a chocolate at bedtime, doesn't it?

Dr. Laird also declares it to be valuable in curing "vague feelings of fatigue, so common among physicians' patients." A remedy for "that tired feeling", so commonly met. In short, if sugar helps relieve mental and physical tire, and favors restful sleep, then it certainly is among our most valued foods.

Mother's Day—that day when sons and daughters gather to honor her in so joyful and touching a reunion that it takes her a week to clean up the dishes.

"Goodness, Egmont, this isn't our baby! This is the wrong carriage!"
"Shut up! It's a better carriage!"

An extremely interesting meeting of St. Mungo's W.M.S. was held in the Stone Hall, Cushing, on Friday afternoon, with Miss Elizabeth Read of Angola, Africa, as guest speaker. Miss Read carried her listeners back to the days of the first missionaries, to that part of Africa, touching on several happenings during the intervening years up to Christian Africans of the present day. It was a simple but touching story, interesting to all, but especially so to the Mission Band who were present.

Visitors from other Branches of the W.M.S. included friends from Brownsburg, Point Fortune, St. Andrews East, Hawkesbury and even Papineauville, the Papineauville friends having been attracted through the means of a clipping from The Watchman which had been sent to one of the ladies from Bermuda the result being a party of six from that quarter—which goes to show that it pays to advertise. In mission work we are advertising the gospel of Christ.

The Mission Band, under the leadership of Miss Iris Evans, gave the Call to Worship, also sang very sweetly "Tell Me the story of Jesus". They afterwards presented Miss Read, who is their Special Missionary, with a gift, Miss Audrey Watson making the presentation on behalf of the Mission Band.

Mrs. W. Usher welcomed the visitors and members, Mrs. Lilly of St. Andrews East replied to the welcome, and Mrs. S. O. Hartley of Cushing thanked the speaker and all who had helped make the afternoon a pleasant one. Miss Smith, president of the Hawkesbury branch read the Scripture. Epic of Courage in Rescue North of Mont Laurier Stricken 40 miles from civilization and medical assistance Armand Tremblay, guide and woodsman of Lac LaFerme, Que., was flown 120 miles to Montreal for emergency operations on Monday at the Royal Victoria Hospital.

But for the pluck of his employer, Charles Prefontaine of Montreal, Tremblay could not have lived. Prefontaine tramped the 40 miles from an isolated camp at Lac LaFerme, where the guide took ill on Saturday, summoned help by phone from Montreal and trudged the distance back again with a Mont Laurier doctor. They arrived two hours before a pontoon-equipped plane arrived from Ottawa.

Prefontaine left Montreal on Thursday and was met at Lac LaFerme camps by Tremblay. Tremblay was taken ill early Saturday while both men were far in the woods. He complained of severe internal pains.

Prefontaine took the woodsman to the camp, bundled him up in bed and set out before noon for Mont Laurier, to the nearest telephone and doctor. There was no good road to Mont Laurier—just a trail or two—and most of the traveling was through dense brush. He was on foot. Hardly stopping even for a rest, he walked all night and arrived at Mont Laurier at noon Sunday.

A call to Montreal started arrangements to have a plane sent in to Lac LaFerme and then Prefontaine got in touch with a doctor and started back to Tremblay with help. Another all-night trip on foot with the physician brought both men to the camp a couple of hours before the plane arrived. His companion on the return trip helped, Prefontaine said.

At the Royal Victoria Hospital, doctors said the operations were performed just in time.

ASSISTED BY BOY SCOUTS, WOLF CUBS AND C.G.I.T.

For the second time during Lord Tweedsmuir's tenure of the highest state office in this Dominion, Argenteuil has been honored with a vice-regal visit. Her Excellency Lady Tweedsmuir attended a meeting of the Argenteuil County Women's Institutes in Lachute Auditorium Monday afternoon, and with her gracious person and friendly discourse as guest speaker won popular esteem — just as His Excellency himself had delighted the people of this section with his presence at the unveiling ceremonies in St. Andrews last autumn.

Her Excellency was received at the Auditorium, by Mayor Dr. A. Rodrigue, Mrs. Archie Graham, president of the county Institute, and Mrs. G. W. Kuhring, honorary president. A guard of honor was composed of 50 Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs.

Lady Tweedsmuir inspected the display of handicrafts made by Women's Institute members, also an exhibition of goods manufactured in the county by various firms. The latter were in charge of Mrs. Jas. Hay Jr., County Convenor for Canadian Industries, while Mrs. Geo. Paul supervised the Home Economics display. An exhibit of handicrafts executed by Mr. Wesley Robinson, blind son of Mrs. Robinson of Upper Lachute branch, drew special attention on the part of Her Excellency, who purchased a beautiful rubber mat for use at the vice-regal residence. Lady Perley also made a purchase from this display.

Piano music was provided by Miss Juliette Rodrigue, daughter of the Mayor, and a duet was sung by Mrs. C. Duncan and Mrs. A. Taylor of Lachute.

Seven Coronation life membership pins were presented by Lady Tweedsmuir on behalf of the county and several of the branches. Mrs. Archie Graham received one as the gift of the county Institute; Mrs. Jas. Murdoch, of Mabel, one from Frontier branch; Mrs. E. Kettle, Jerusalem-Bethany branch; Mrs. A. Bothwell, wife of the county agronomist, Lachute branch; Mrs. J. E. Seale, Morin Heights branch; and Mrs. R. Bradley and Mrs. J. Gordon, former county presidents from their respective branches, Pioneer and Upper Lachute East End.

Obsolete Tugboat is Swept Over Falls Near Buckingham

A river tug owned by J. T. Garon of Montreal which had not been in use for the past few years and which was moored on the Lievre River, broke loose from its moorings and was caught by the current and swept over the falls at the power plant near Buckingham and smashed on the rocks below.

The rising of the water increased the power of the current. The boat was carried 100 yards before going over the falls, which are a drop of about 35 feet. After smashing on the rocks it sank in the eddy.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEETING SATURDAY GAVE NEW IMPETUS TO MUSEUM PROJECT

DR. W. P. PERCIVAL WAS GUEST SPEAKER

The consensus of opinion among members of the Historical Society and others interested in the establishment of a historical museum in the County of Argenteuil, gave unanimous approval to this project at a public meeting called in the Court House, Lachute, on Saturday evening last. A little delay in opening the meeting was caused by the late arrival of the St. Andrews contingent as the result of a breakdown en route, but the inconvenience was lost sight of in the general agreement that the offer of the Carillon barracks building, put forward by Mr. Hungerbuhler, was too good to turn down, although it had been thought that the maintenance and care of the building would prove too burdensome a project.

Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education for the Province of Quebec, said that we were truly "making history in Argenteuil". He recalled the colorful history of this province, and deplored the lack of historical museums throughout Quebec.

Argenteuil Communities Upheld Loyal Sentiment of King's Coronation

Stores and Residences Decorated, Gatherings and Church Services

While loyal Canadians thrilled to the radio broadcasts of coronation activities, which commenced yesterday before 5 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time) — Argenteuil lacked nothing of the general spirit and demonstration. Decorations in stores and in front of residences have been a distinct credit to many of the county's citizens.

Reverence, affection and frolic — all three were reflected in the variety of local observances. Pre-Coronation services were held in most local churches last Sunday, and yesterday at 11 a.m. a service in the Coronation theme was conducted by Rev. W. LeCras, rector, at St. Simeon's, Lachute. At Brownsburg a ceremony was held in the afternoon under auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion. Mayor Parizeau and Principal Denis Staniforth were speakers. The rally, held outside the Social Club, was well attended. French and English school-children participated, singing patriotic songs; the youngsters were presented with Coronation souvenirs, and adjourned to the school grounds where a tree was planted by the Women's Institute in commemoration of the day, and brief speeches were made.

In a lighter vein of celebration, a Coronation Ball was held Tuesday evening by the Anglican Y.P.S. at Lachute Auditorium, other dances in a patriotic motif having been held previously at Brownsburg and Lakefield.

Scout Beacon Illuminated Outskirts of Town.. Event Drew Many Spectators

The climax of these observances was marked by a Scout rally on James' Hill overlooking the North River, where Lachute Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs gathered to light their Coronation bonfire, forming a link in the chain of coast-to-coast beacons. Rev. H. Cousens and Mayor Dr. A. Rodrigue spoke on the significance of this ceremony and on Coronation Day impressions. A large crowd of citizens attended. The Scouts fired a Royal Salute of 21 rockets. A sing-song, and martial airs by the Lachute Brass Band featured in the program, which concluded with "Taps" and the National Anthem. Scoutmaster Chas. Duncan was master of ceremonies. Ready co-operation was given the Scouts by Mr. Wm. Copeland, Mr. Melvin Copeland and Colin Copeland, in permitting the use of their land and assisting with the arrangements; also Mr. Geo. Y. Deacon who furnished trucks to haul the wood. . . . A similar beacon-lighting ceremony was held at St. Andrews East.

Driver Falls Asleep, Is Killed by Own Wagon

ST. JEROME FARMER SUFFERS FATAL INJURY

Adelard Briere, 53-year-old farmer living just north of St. Jerome, lost his life early Monday morning when his horse climbed upon the cement gallery of his home while Briere was asleep in the wagon. The vehicle overturned, Briere was tossed out, and one of the wheels passed over his head. He died a few hours later.

Coroner Dr. J. R. Brals, of St. Jerome, held an inquest and the jury returned to verdict of accidental death. Evidence showed that on Sunday evening Briere had gone to St. Jerome in his wagon. He had started for home shortly after eight o'clock, and had fallen asleep on his seat. The horse, knowing the way, pulled the wagon up to Briere's home but upon reaching the house went too close to the cement gallery and started to climb up on it. The move caused the wagon to upset. Mrs. Briere, awakened by the noise, rushed out and found her husband unconscious. A physician was summoned, but Briere died without recovering consciousness.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER BANQUET HAPPY AFFAIR

INTERESTING THEME IN DECORATIONS

A successful "Mother and Daughter Banquet" was held last Saturday evening by the Senior and Intermediate C.G.I.T. groups of Lachute United Church. The gathering in the church hall numbered 72, comprising the girls with their leaders, mothers and guests.

Seven tables had been prepared, each decorated in a theme to represent a country. The head-table represented Canada; others carried emblems of England, Scotland, Ireland, Holland, Japan and Africa respectively. An interesting feature of this idea was the awarding of a prize for the best table — Africa being judged the most realistic, centred with a miniature African village. In charge of this table were Anna Brennan (Capt.), Freda Parker, Lillian Falconer, Ruth Brennan and Jean Beveridge. The prize was presented by Mrs. J. A. McGibbon.

Another award was presented by Mrs. McNell for the best scrap-book, a number of which had been made up to be sent to a children's hospital. Ruth Brennan was the winner.

Joint chairmen for the banquet were Margaret Dorion and Lois McFaul. The former proposed the first toast of the evening — to "The King", which drew loyal response in the singing of "God Save the King." A toast to "Canada" was proposed by Lois McFaul, and responded to with "O Canada." "Mother" was proposed by Jean Canning, and responded to by Mrs. G. Leggett. "The W.M.S." was proposed by Ruth Armstrong, Mrs. F. S. McGibbon responding. Toast to the "C.G.I.T." was made by Mrs. Geo. Y. Deacon, responded to by Ruth Brennan; and to the "Guests" by Dorothy Cooke, Mrs. C. Duncan responding.

A short sing-song was conducted by Miss Cora Millar, leader of the Intermediate group, and the happy affair closed with the singing of "Taps".

MRS. R. STRANGE AND DAUGHTER LEAVING FOR IRELAND

Organizations connected with Zion United Church at Apple Hill, Ont., honored Mrs. Robt. Strange and her daughter, Maureen, both active workers in the church, prior to their departure for Ireland shortly. Miss Strange was presented with a ring by the young people of the congregation.

At a farewell gathering of the congregation last week, Mrs. Strange was presented with a well filled purse. The Mission Band, of which Mrs. Strange has been leader, presented her with a scarf and Miss Strange with a birthday book.

COMMISSION TO STUDY SET-UP OF CONFEDERATION . . . DOMINION, PROVINCES AND TAXATION SPHERES

"The Ottawa Spotlight" By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, May 11 — Any day now we may have an announcement that the royal commission has been appointed to delve into the present set-up of Confederation.

Before the prime minister left for London he and his colleagues agreed upon the broad lines of the inquiry. It may be that an eminent economist from overseas will be chosen as chairman of the commission.

Many people shy away from discussions of constitutional matters, and well they may; but this one can be set forth in the simplest of terms.

pointed because the provinces say they are heading toward bankruptcy: that they cannot carry their present burdens without new sources of revenue.

That this is no idle alarm is evident from the situation in which the prairie provinces have found themselves. Alberta has actually defaulted on its bond obligations. Only the willingness of Saskatchewan to agree to federal terms and obtain extensive loans from the federal treasury saved that province from a similar fate. Manitoba has been tottering on the edge of a collapse for several years.

High Blood Pressure--A Healthy System Gone Mad

CAUSES AND MEANS OF PREVENTION

High blood pressure, writes John W. S. McCullough, M.D., D.Ph., is a train of symptoms and not a disease. Systolic blood-pressure should be from 115 to 130. Insurance companies suspect the condition of health if the pressure is over 140. The control of high blood-pressure rests in prevention.

The circulation of the blood is maintained by the force of the heart, the elasticity of the arteries, the power of the arterioles to contract and the forces of the capillaries and veins.

There are two blood pressures: (1) the systolic, which represents the force of the heart beat and the resistance to that beat, (2) the diastolic, which represents the peripheral resistance alone. These are natural processes.

High blood pressure in its first stage is an example of a healthy mechanism gone mad. A reasonable blood pressure is a good thing. High blood pressure is an exaggeration of a natural process.

A fairly high blood pressure is necessary for the maintenance of a proper blood supply in the working parts of the body. In the healthy person the blood pressure rises temporarily in conditions of increased activity, say of the muscular system, or through the chemical effect of adrenaline. Abnormally high blood pressure is brought about slowly and insidiously because of a multitude of reasons.

Causes

Strain and toxæmia (poisons in the blood), are the outstanding causes of high blood pressure. The condition begins as a habit of body and mind; it creeps into our lives while we are apparently well; often it is discovered in the course of a medical examination; its existence is one of the best arguments for periodical health examinations.

A few signs tell us that the person is travelling toward the condition of high blood pressure. Among these are: one's heredity, manner of living and thinking; one's habits and environment.

A person with high blood pressure who fails to heed the advice of his doctor in this regard, is heading for the grave. On the other hand, there is the true story of a physician, one of the five or six medical geniuses of the world, who at 45 received

The Department also reserves the right to demand from any successful tenderer a security deposit, in the form of a certified cheque or bond as above, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of his bid, to guarantee the proper fulfilment of the contract.

By order,

J. M. SOMERVILLE,

Department of Public Works, Ottawa, April 29, 1937.

the opinion of a very learned physician, to the effect that he had but two years more to live. The doctor gave up practice, retired to a quiet country life and died of cerebral haemorrhage (a stroke) at the age of 88.

What precautions must be taken against the evils of high blood pressure?

The diet must be regulated and the directions in this respect strictly followed. The use of salt must be cut down. Water should be taken freely and alcohol left severely alone. There should be moderate exercise. The hard-working and hard-living man must relax and reduce the strain of life; he must learn to play, to take holidays, to cultivate hobbies and avoid excesses of every kind.

Drugs have their place in the treatment of high blood pressure but they are for the individual case and should be left to the choice of the doctor.

Makes Living Renting Shirts

An enterprising New Yorker has started a brand new business, shirt-renting. His customers sign a contract with him which entitles them to three clean shirts weekly at 50 cents, four at 65 cents, five at 80 cents and so on. Each customer's name is stamped indelibly on the shirts he uses, which are bought to his measurement and are never worn by anyone else during the life of the contract. The fresh, clean shirts are delivered in boxes and the soiled ones gathered up, which, besides being laundered, receive necessary repairs and buttons before being returned to the wearer. This man now has several hundred customers and is making a good living at the business.

Of course it was the depression which brought the matter to a head, but a number of the provinces say that even restoration of better times won't solve the problem completely, that it goes deeper than that.

BANK ADVISED A PROBE

The economic enquiry made by the Bank of Canada into the affairs of the prairie provinces came to the conclusion that there were grave economic stresses in the present arrangement, and that it would be well if a royal commission went into the matter thoroughly and advised the Dominion and provincial governments what to do.

Put into the simplest possible form, the argument is this; the provinces were deprived, in 1867, of the power of levying certain types of taxation, and of printing money.

They have since found themselves obligated to make numerous new kinds of expenditures, never contemplated in the British North America Act, and they need a 'new deal'.

Before 1867 the individual provinces were able to collect customs and excise duties, and other indirect taxes. They agreed to give up this right, in exchange for annual subsidies.

When the constitution was written, the provinces were authorized to collect 'direct' taxes, that is, taxes taken from the individual.

The inference was that the Dominion would confine itself to indirect taxes, and leave the individual tax to the province.

This the Dominion did, pretty well, until the war years. Then, hard pressed for revenue, they began to collect personal income tax, which is certainly a 'direct tax'.

The provinces got along fairly well until a few years ago, although the sums they received from Dominion subsidies did not begin to approach that the Dominion Government has been collecting from 'indirect taxation'. The total sum distributed last year on provincial subsidies was only about $14,000,000, whereas the federal collections from indirect taxation were about $280,000,000.

The provinces have found themselves responsible for social legislation, a large share of unemployment relief, for mothers' allowances and workmen's compensation, for a share of old age pensions, for education and numerous other matters.

A CRITICAL STAGE

They have reached the point—some of them at least—where they cannot possibly continue to meet their obligations without some relief in the way of additional tax fields, or some lifting of their obligations.

This fact has been recognized for some time.

In a sort of retaliation for the invasion of their own tax fields by the Dominion, the provinces have for years levied what are pretty close to 'indirect' taxes, in apparent violation of the law.

In 1936 the Dominion government prepared an amendment to the B.N.A. Act which would have ratified these borderline taxes, on gasoline, amusements, etc. But the Senate killed it.

The above, broadly speaking, indicates the major task of the new commission.

Historical Society Meeting Gives New Impetus to County Museum Project

"If Argenteuil takes this highly progressive step", Dr. Percival said, "and establishes a museum it will do what only a small percentage of places have done either here or abroad. There are not many historical museums in this province. The McCord Museum in Montreal is one. Brome County Historical Society has its own building and collection of relics—even to an old wooden bench from one of the old country school houses."

Many of the counties of the province, the speaker asserted, have histories that should never be forgotten. It was highly unfortunate that sufficient care had not been taken to record in authentic form much of this history and to preserve many of the old documents, records and souvenirs. "It is still not too late to preserve much that is of supreme value", he said. "It is imperative, however, that this should be done at once while the memories still linger in the minds of many of our oldest citizens and while many of the treasures remain in their possession."

Noting that history museums should serve as a constant reminder that the past is intimately allied with the present, Dr. Percival said national pride, love of country and even love of neighbors were taught by means of history museums revealing the past to each generation. "On the experience of the past", he said, "future customs can be built."

Dr. Percival made reference to our educational system, where photographs have been sent to him of some of the earliest school buildings of the Province—some as old as 130 years. A few still remain that have passed the 100 mark and he urged that steps should be taken to preserve these buildings. Those teachers, men and women, wielded strong influences upon the young people of their time.

"One hundred and sixty-four years ago (1773) the first English schoolmaster, John Pullman, came to Montreal from New York and records show that he was starved out of his profession and compelled to seek employment as a clerk. In 1790 Montreal boasted of four Protestant teachers. One named Nelson had about 50 pupils and earned about $50 a year. In 1847 the whole sum received for Protestant education from the city council in Montreal amounted to $558.05. Even this was too much money for the Board to use and they invested the amount at interest, the Board having no use to which to apply it."

"Many of the earlier schools were built by private subscription. The school tax in Montreal in 1869-70 was less than one mill on the dollar. Now it is 10 mills and that is not sufficient. Instead of the school boards in Montreal having no use to which to apply $558.05 the Montreal Protestant Central School Board now expends well over three and a half million dollars per annum. One hundred years hence, when our successors read our balance sheets, they will doubtless think that we did more for the public education of children than our forefathers. So much will be to our credit. But I am hoping there will be still greater things to record of us by future historians."

Members decided to approach both provincial and federal governments for financial assistance in re-conditioning of the Barracks. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hungerbuhler for his generosity was recorded by the meeting, at which Mr. Justice E. Fabre Surveylor, Quebec representative on the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, and J. P. Lanctot, K.C., of Montreal and St. Andrews, were present.

Must Not Kill Monkeys, But Can Shave Pilferers

There are parts of India where a monkey may not be killed because he is thought to be under the special protection of a god. Unfortunately, observes a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine, the monkey does not behave any better on that account, and sometimes is not only a thorough nuisance himself—pilfering and raiding villages—but he is the leader of a band of female monkeys who imitate his mischief and do a sort of crazy follow-my-leader through the plantations and fields. They spoil and steal wherever they go, and this is the way—since the leader may not be killed—that the village rid itself of this marauding band.

First of all, the leader is trapped. A cunningly-concealed noose amongst the branches of a tree usually does the trick. Then he is tied up securely and his head and face are covered with a lather of soap. And after that he is shaved. When he is completely bald he is allowed to go.

What happens to him next? Why, the females of his band gibber and mock at him and finally drive him into the forest. Until his hair has grown again they will not let him lead them, and in the meantime the pack is broken up.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

RICH HAVE CAUSE TO WORRY

A young man, who is vice-president of a New York bank, told me that he dined recently at a fashionable resort.

"All the other guests were very rich", he said. "They were older people, many of them retired. They were shaking in their boots. They are afraid there will be a social upheaval and that their money will be taken away."

I told him I thought these people had a right to worry.

"The social order will not be over-turned", I said, "nor will people like your friends be stripped of their possessions. But I do believe that the rich will be poorer and the poor will have a degree of comfort and security that they have never possessed before. And this will be better for everybody."

In saying this, I am taking a position which is contrary to my own selfish interests, for while I am not and never shall be rich, I have an income that is much above the average. If taxes are higher, mine will go up with the rest.

But why shouldn't they? What have I done to deserve as much as I get out of life?

If I have used intelligence, it is not greatly to my credit. I happened to have been born into a home of culture. I was sent to college, and my expenses were paid.

Many rich people, who are worried for fear they will have to bear a larger burden in the future, have had all these advantages, plus the added advantage of inherited wealth. When they grumble they give me a pain.

Surely, we who have had the best luck in the country are going to be wise enough to recognize it and to assume cheerfully our full share of the load.

TAKE THE PROFIT OUT OF WAR

My friend Admiral Samuel McGowan was purchasing agent for the Navy during the World War.

He saw something of the fine idealism and sacrifice which war calls forth. But he saw, also, how greed and profiteering and the basest sort of foolishness wrap themselves in the cloak of patriotism and proceed cold-bloodedly to exploit the public necessity.

He suggests a plan for prevention that would entirely remove the present premium on war and in its stead impose a very heavy penalty.

I cannot see how any intelligent patriotic person can object to that proposal. If we had the sense and courage to write it into the Constitution at once we should destroy war propaganda, for no one would be so foolish as to spend money on propaganda when no money could possibly be made from war.

The silliness of war, under modern conditions of destructiveness, is almost as appalling as its horror.

Mgr. Deschamps, Bishop of Montreal, Officiated at Ste. Anastasie Ceremony Sunday Morning

Blessing of New Parish Church Attended by Eminent Clerics

The parishioners of Ste-Anastasia, Lachute, were visited by distinguished clergy and guests last Sunday to observe an impressive ceremony in the blessing of their new church. The proceedings were conducted by His Excellency Mgr. Deschamps, V.G., of Montreal, assisted by Rev. A. Gratton of Ahuntsic, who was in charge of this parish some 15 years ago. The high mass was said by Rev. Chanoine Picotte of Montreal, oldest surviving priest among those who have been in charge of this parish. Rev. Picotte was here some 30 years ago. He was assisted by Rev. R. Raymond, son of Mr. Adolphe Raymond, and Rev. E. Dallaire, son of Mr. Tel. Dallaire, both of this town.

Formal presentation of the new church to the bishop was made by Rev. E. Labelle, belowed priest of the parish, and a special address was given by Rev. L. J. Rodrigue, son of Mayor Dr. A. Rodrigue. In a few well chosen words Mgr. Deschamps congratulated all who had contributed to the materialization of this new House of God. He paid tribute to those who by their generosity and sacrifices had given further proof that churches could be built to suit the needs and circumstances of every parish. He remarked that the edifice was of fire-proof construction and spacious enough to hold everyone, so that the parishioners of Ste. Anastasie should not be found wanting in faithful attendance.

Also present at the ceremony were Father R. Lafleur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lafleur, Rev. L. Lavigne, Mgr. Chaussé of St. Jean, Que., Mgr. Coursol, Rev. A. Beausejour, Rev. L. Messier, Rev. J. Coté, Rev. P. Lapointe, Rev. E. Charlebois, Rev. G. Bleau, Rev. E. Cloutier, Rev. J. Bazinet, Mgr. Julien, Rev. Lecompte, Rev. Boisvenu, Rev. Raynault, Father Forget and others.

Architect for this new church building was Mr. E. Perron of Montreal, and the contractor Mr. Alcidas Laurin of Lachute. The stone was quarried from St. Coloman, and the building material is all-Canadian.

Rev. E. Labelle, the parish priest, is assisted in his pastorate by Rev. J. P. Savage.

At the close of this auspicious ceremony the Te Deum was sung for the happiness and long life of our new King, George VI, on the occasion of his Coronation.

HER EXCELLENCY LADY TWEEDSMUIR VISITS ARGENTEUIL COUNTY WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Her Excellency extended greetings from the British Women's Institutes and expressed her admiration at the work being done by branches in Canada, where, she noted, the idea had originated. She was happy to address this gathering, she said, as a woman and a fellow W. I. member; she wished to be looked upon as such. After thanking the ladies for their friendly reception, Lady Tweedsmuir spoke most interestingly on the subject of books—dealing especially with three authors from among her own friends, namely, Ann Douglas Sedgewick, Mary Webb and Virginia Woolf. She referred to Mary Webb as a dear friend, one who had labored long without recognition but had won post-humous acclaim for her works.

Warm thanks were expressed to the distinguished visitor by Mrs. G. Armstrong, a County vice-president and President of Pioneer, who voiced appreciation for the gracious and friendly manner in which Her Excellency had spoken.

Lady Tweedsmuir was presented with a bouquet of roses by little Constance James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. James, of Lachute Mills, on behalf of the Women's Institute; and on behalf of Ayers Limited Mrs. Graham, County W. I. President, presented Her Excellency with a beautiful throw.

The Canadian-Girls-in-Training of Lachute, numbering 42, and wearing uniform, were present with their leaders, Mrs. L. Morris, Mrs. Geo. Calder and Miss C. Miller, and later served tea. The table was centred with a cake made and decorated by Mrs. McCullough, Brownsburg, in the Coronation theme and in honor of Her Excellency's visit. Under a crown were iced pink and white roses, and the letters "Q.W.I." in pink icing. Lady Tweedsmuir cut the first piece, congratulating and shaking hands with Mrs. McCullough.

At the table with Her Excellency were Lady Perley, of Ottawa; Dr. Maude Abbott of Montreal; the provincial superintendent, Miss H. McCain; the county president, Mrs. Graham; the honorary president, Mrs. G. W. Kuhring; the county secretary, Mrs. H. R. Ardill; Col. H. Willis O'Connor, Mayor Rodrigue, Miss Juliette Rodrigue, Mrs. R. Bradley, Mrs. J. Gordon, Mrs. J. D.

Davis, Mrs. J. Boyd, Mrs. F. A. Brennan, Mrs. G. Armstrong, Mrs. P. Martin, Mrs. J. Beattie, Mrs. D. J. Rodger, Mrs. G. Y. Deacon, Mrs. J. E. Seale, Mrs. J. D. Weir, Mrs. W. Jackson and Mrs. W. Shearnsmith.

Provincial motorcycle police provided an escort for Her Excellency, meeting her car at the Perley Bridge; they were accompanied by Mr. Georges Heon as representative of Prime Minister Maurice Duplessis in this constituency.

The Lachute Auditorium was decorated with flags and spring flowers, and flags were flown in the Memorial Park adjoining the Auditorium.

AUSTRALIAN PROJECT TO INCREASE IRRIGABLE GROWING LANDS BY 1,000,000 ACRES

Seventeen years after construction work started, Governor-General Gowrie recently opened the completed Hume reservoir, which will increase the irrigable fruit growing and dairying lands of the Australian Commonwealth by a million acres — says a news despatch from Melbourne.

The eighth largest reservoir in the world, the Hume Reservoir is situated near the junction of the Murray and Mittamitta rivers at a point where the explorers Hume and Hovell crossed in 1824.

Pressing a button, the Governor-General released a huge volume of water through valves of the weir, which is the keystone of a vast irrigation scheme developed by the states of New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, with the aid of the Commonwealth Government.

The reservoir covers an area of 33,000 acres and holds 1,250,000 acre-feet of water, and is extensive to hold 2,000,000 acre-feet. The storage water runs up the Murray river 39 miles and the Mittamitta river 21 miles, and will ensure productivity to hundreds of thousands of acres where drought has heretofore killed many millions of sheep, as well as increasing irrigable lands by millions of acres.

Effects of a drought will be minimized in future and safety will be assured to fruit-growing districts such as Mildura and Renmark, and the growth of fodder for stock will be stimulated by periodical floodings of the lands. Within the next few years nearly $3,000,000 will be spent to utilize the available water for a great increase in fruit growing, and fat lamb production. The water may also be used for hydro-electricity.

In inaugurating the vast project, the Governor-General urged the careful preservation of the 6,000 square miles where the water originates in small streams, which is chiefly in the Australian Alps, thus to ensure a continual water supply and long life for the reservoir. The Murray river, which is known as the Mississippi of Australia and which divides the states of New South Wales and Victoria, is 3,400 miles long and drains a basin occupying an area twice as large as France.

Irrigation of the wide area was first advocated by Alfred Deakin, one-time Prime Minister of the country, who in 1885, as member of the Government of the State of Victoria, visited California to investigate the possibilities of irrigation as then developed in the dry lands of America. He persuaded George and W. B. Chaffey to found Australia's first irrigation settlements at Mildura and Renmark.

The present Murray conservation scheme comprising numerous weirs and locks, will have cost when completed $15,000,000, and of this amount $10,420,000 has already been spent. The Hume weir cost $5,500,000.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 16th, is "Mortals and Immortals." The Golden Text is: — "They that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you."

The following passages are selected from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: —

"And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not." (Malachi 3: 17, 18).

"Suffering, sinning, dying beliefs are unreal. When divine Science is universally understood, they will have no power over man, for man is immortal and lives by divine authority." (Science and Health, page 76).

Judging Auto Speeds

The Royal Automobile Club of Sweden has recently been carrying out careful tests to ascertain how far the estimate given by eyewitnesses of the speed of a motorcar can be relied upon.

Some 21,000 tests were made with people of all descriptions, including persons who claimed to be experts. Not more than 18 per cent of those tested were able to place the speed of a passing motor vehicle within 5 per cent of the correct figure. More than half were as much as or over 20 percent out in their estimates. People who, because of special experience, might be expected to gauge fairly accurately, were no better than others, and in some cases even worse.

The tests were held under varied conditions. Trials were made in town and country, in daytime and at night; the cars

FIRE CHIEF WALKS TO FIRE

In protest against the city council's refusal to grant him a car allowance, Fire Chief Jack Mitrella, of St. Thomas, Ont., walked a mile to the scene of a fire, arriving 25 minutes after the reels and in time to ride home on the equipment.

Striking from the estimates $200 for car allowance, the council instructed the chief to ride with his men to any outbreaks.

MERCHANT ACCEPTING RELIEF VOUCHERS INELIGIBLE FOR OFFICE

G. Kenneth Morrison resigned from the council of North Himsforth, near Callander, Ontario, following a decision of Judge J. A. S. Plouffe that a merchant accepting municipal relief vouchers is ineligible for municipal office.

Mr. Morrison operates a general store. He has served on the township council for nearly a quarter-century as reeve and councillor.

The township council had the power to elect to Morrison's seat the unsuccessful candidate who polled the highest vote in the 1937 election.

MAYOR AND FIRE CALL

While a house is burning down is no time to hold a council meeting to decide if the fire apparatus should be summoned, Mr. Justice Survever ruled in Quebec Superior Court. The judgment dismissed an inscription in law claiming the mayor of the Parish of St. Joseph de Chambly, Que., had no power to ask aid from the Corporation of the Village of Chambly Basin in case of fire without sanction by a regularly-constituted council meeting.

The point involves an action taken by Chambly Basin to recover $250 for the services of fire apparatus and 12 men from St. Joseph de Chambly during a blaze in the latter municipality. The mayor summoned the outside aid, and now St. Joseph de Chambly declares he acted beyond his powers.

In a state of emergency, which existed in this case, particularly as other buildings were threatened, the mayor was entitled to act on his own initiative, the Court ruled in dismissing the case.

A CEREAL TREAT FOR THE FARMER

Spread as if for a banquet, a table in the exhibition hall at the Central Experimental Farm piqued the curiosity of the crowd when, in April, the staff of this institution played host to the Ottawa Valley Seed Growers' Association. It might have been a breakfast table, for the dishes contained cereal seeds which, on closer inspection by the milling throng, some of whom seemed to forget their table manners, were seen to be reposing on a jelly that covered the bottom of each circular glass dish. There were rows and rows of these dishes containing sprouting seeds of barley, oats, wheat, corn, as well as of beans and peas. The dishes were arranged in paired rows, and it was observed that in the first row of each the seeds had sent out strong, healthy shoots, and that agar jelly on which they germinated was translucent and clean, a really tempting dish. But the seeds in the other row of dishes had germinated weakly and were surrounded by masses of dirty black and brown fungus growth which is responsible for the diseases known as root and stem rots of plants.

Seed Treatment Succeeds

"What makes the difference between the two?" inquired one whose interest had been absorbed by the objects on the table, and his attention was directed to the placards above, which informed him the only difference was that one lot of seed had been treated with an organic mercury dust that not only controls smuts of cereals but promotes germination and destroys the spores of root rot on seeds of all kinds. The contaminated seeds, from the same source as the healthy ones, were untreated. He learned, further, that some of the seed used in the tests was from elite and registered stock and shuddered to think that, despite its outwardly respectable appearance, the grain for which he had been awarded a prize at the fair might be harbouring the vile spores of root rot. He was so impressed by the evidence on the table, furnished by the researches of Mr. G. A. Scott, Division of Botany, that he vowed there and then to take no risks and to treat all his seed grain this year with the organic mercury dust. He considered the cost negligible, only three cents for the half-ounce of the disinfectant required per bushel of seed.

Another feature of interest at the Ottawa Valley Seed Fair was the new automatic seed treater for use with the mercury dust, which has been installed at the Central Experimental Farm and at most of the Dominion Experimental Stations, as well as in many seed cleaning plants, while to wheat growers of the Prairie Provinces the machine has been selling like hot-cakes!

Horses Fetched Good Prices at Recent Arnoldswold Sale

The highest price paid at the recent horse sale at Arnoldswold (reports Hawkesbury Echo) was $2,500, by D. J. Allison, Dryden, Mich., for a four-year-old Belgian stallion, a class A animal that won the junior championship of the Toronto Royal Fair in 1935. Runner-up in the bidding was former Premier Adelard Godbout of Quebec.

Warrix Footstep, a Clydesdale stallion, brought $1,000, while "Dr. McKay," brought $775. A pair of Belgian mares sold for $1,800.

Wyandots Rebecca, a former grand champion at the Royal Fair, reached $1,200. Mon Souhait de Glabais was sold for $1,000; two other Belgian stallions went for $900 and $860; the mares sold from $450 to $1,000.

The sale netted Gilbert E. Arnold, owner of Arnoldswold Farms, Grenville, over $50,000.

Wassailing Orchards

Wassailing the orchards is an old custom, which has its origin in central Europe and is still kept up in the Tyrol, Bohemia, and Germany, as well as in England. In Devonshire and other cider country, the farmer, his family, friends and servants march to the orchard, one member bearing a huge pitcher filled with cider and roasted apples, still blazing. They encircle the biggest and most productive tree and toast it thrice. Then it is sprinkled with cider, or a bowl of cider is dashed against it, after which is murmured the quaint incantation, "O tree! O tree! O tree! Bear fruit and flourish. Thy owner nourish. Give wealth and plenty." This ceremony over, they all repair to the house for a feast. Wassailing varies in different parts of England. Sometimes cakes are immersed in cider and hung from the branches.—London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Children Warned Against Picking Up Blasting Caps

Danger to children picking up and playing with carelessly discarded blasting caps, sometimes called dynamite caps, is prevalent at this time of year. Parents should warn their children that if they should find any lying about, to leave them alone and by so doing avoid serious if not fatal accidents.

These little pellets of concentrated power are not likely to be found, of course, in city streets and playgrounds. But alongside country roads, and in the vicinity of blasting operations, there is always a chance that children may find these copper capsules, which have maimed many youngsters and have killed others.

The blasting cap is a deadly instrument to the unknowing child or grown-up who picks it up and plays with it. For in spite of constant warnings, heedless users of these caps do occasionally leave them in ill-considered places.

These small aluminum or copper cylinders, bright and shiny, filled with a powerful explosive, are about one quarter of an inch in diameter, from one to two inches long, and resemble an elongated 22-calibre cartridge, except that some have wires attached to them.

One cap can tear a hole through a plate of steel one-sixteenth of an inch thick. A few together can burst their way through a two-inch plank of oak. If tossed into a fire, a cap instantly becomes like shrapnel, whose flying fragments are blinding bits for the eyes of all nearby. If lightly pounded with a hammer, or even pried and picked at, they are likely to explode. Then loss of sight or limb, if not of life, is inevitable.

Living Costs Increase

The cost of living is climbing. The general index of the cost of living for Canada, computed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was 82.2 in April as compared with 82.0 in March. The retail price index of foods rose from 75.7 in March to 76.8 in April. Considerable gains were reported for a wide range of foods.

but... ask your friends.

You'll be surprised at the number of people who really want you to have a telephone. Many of them don't even know you but they're interested nevertheless because of what your telephone means to their service. Too few telephones curtails service and the value of each individual instrument as well. The more telephones in service, the greater the value to each user. From the viewpoints of both service cost and service scope, every farmer is interested in seeing that every other farmer has a telephone.

CONCRETE

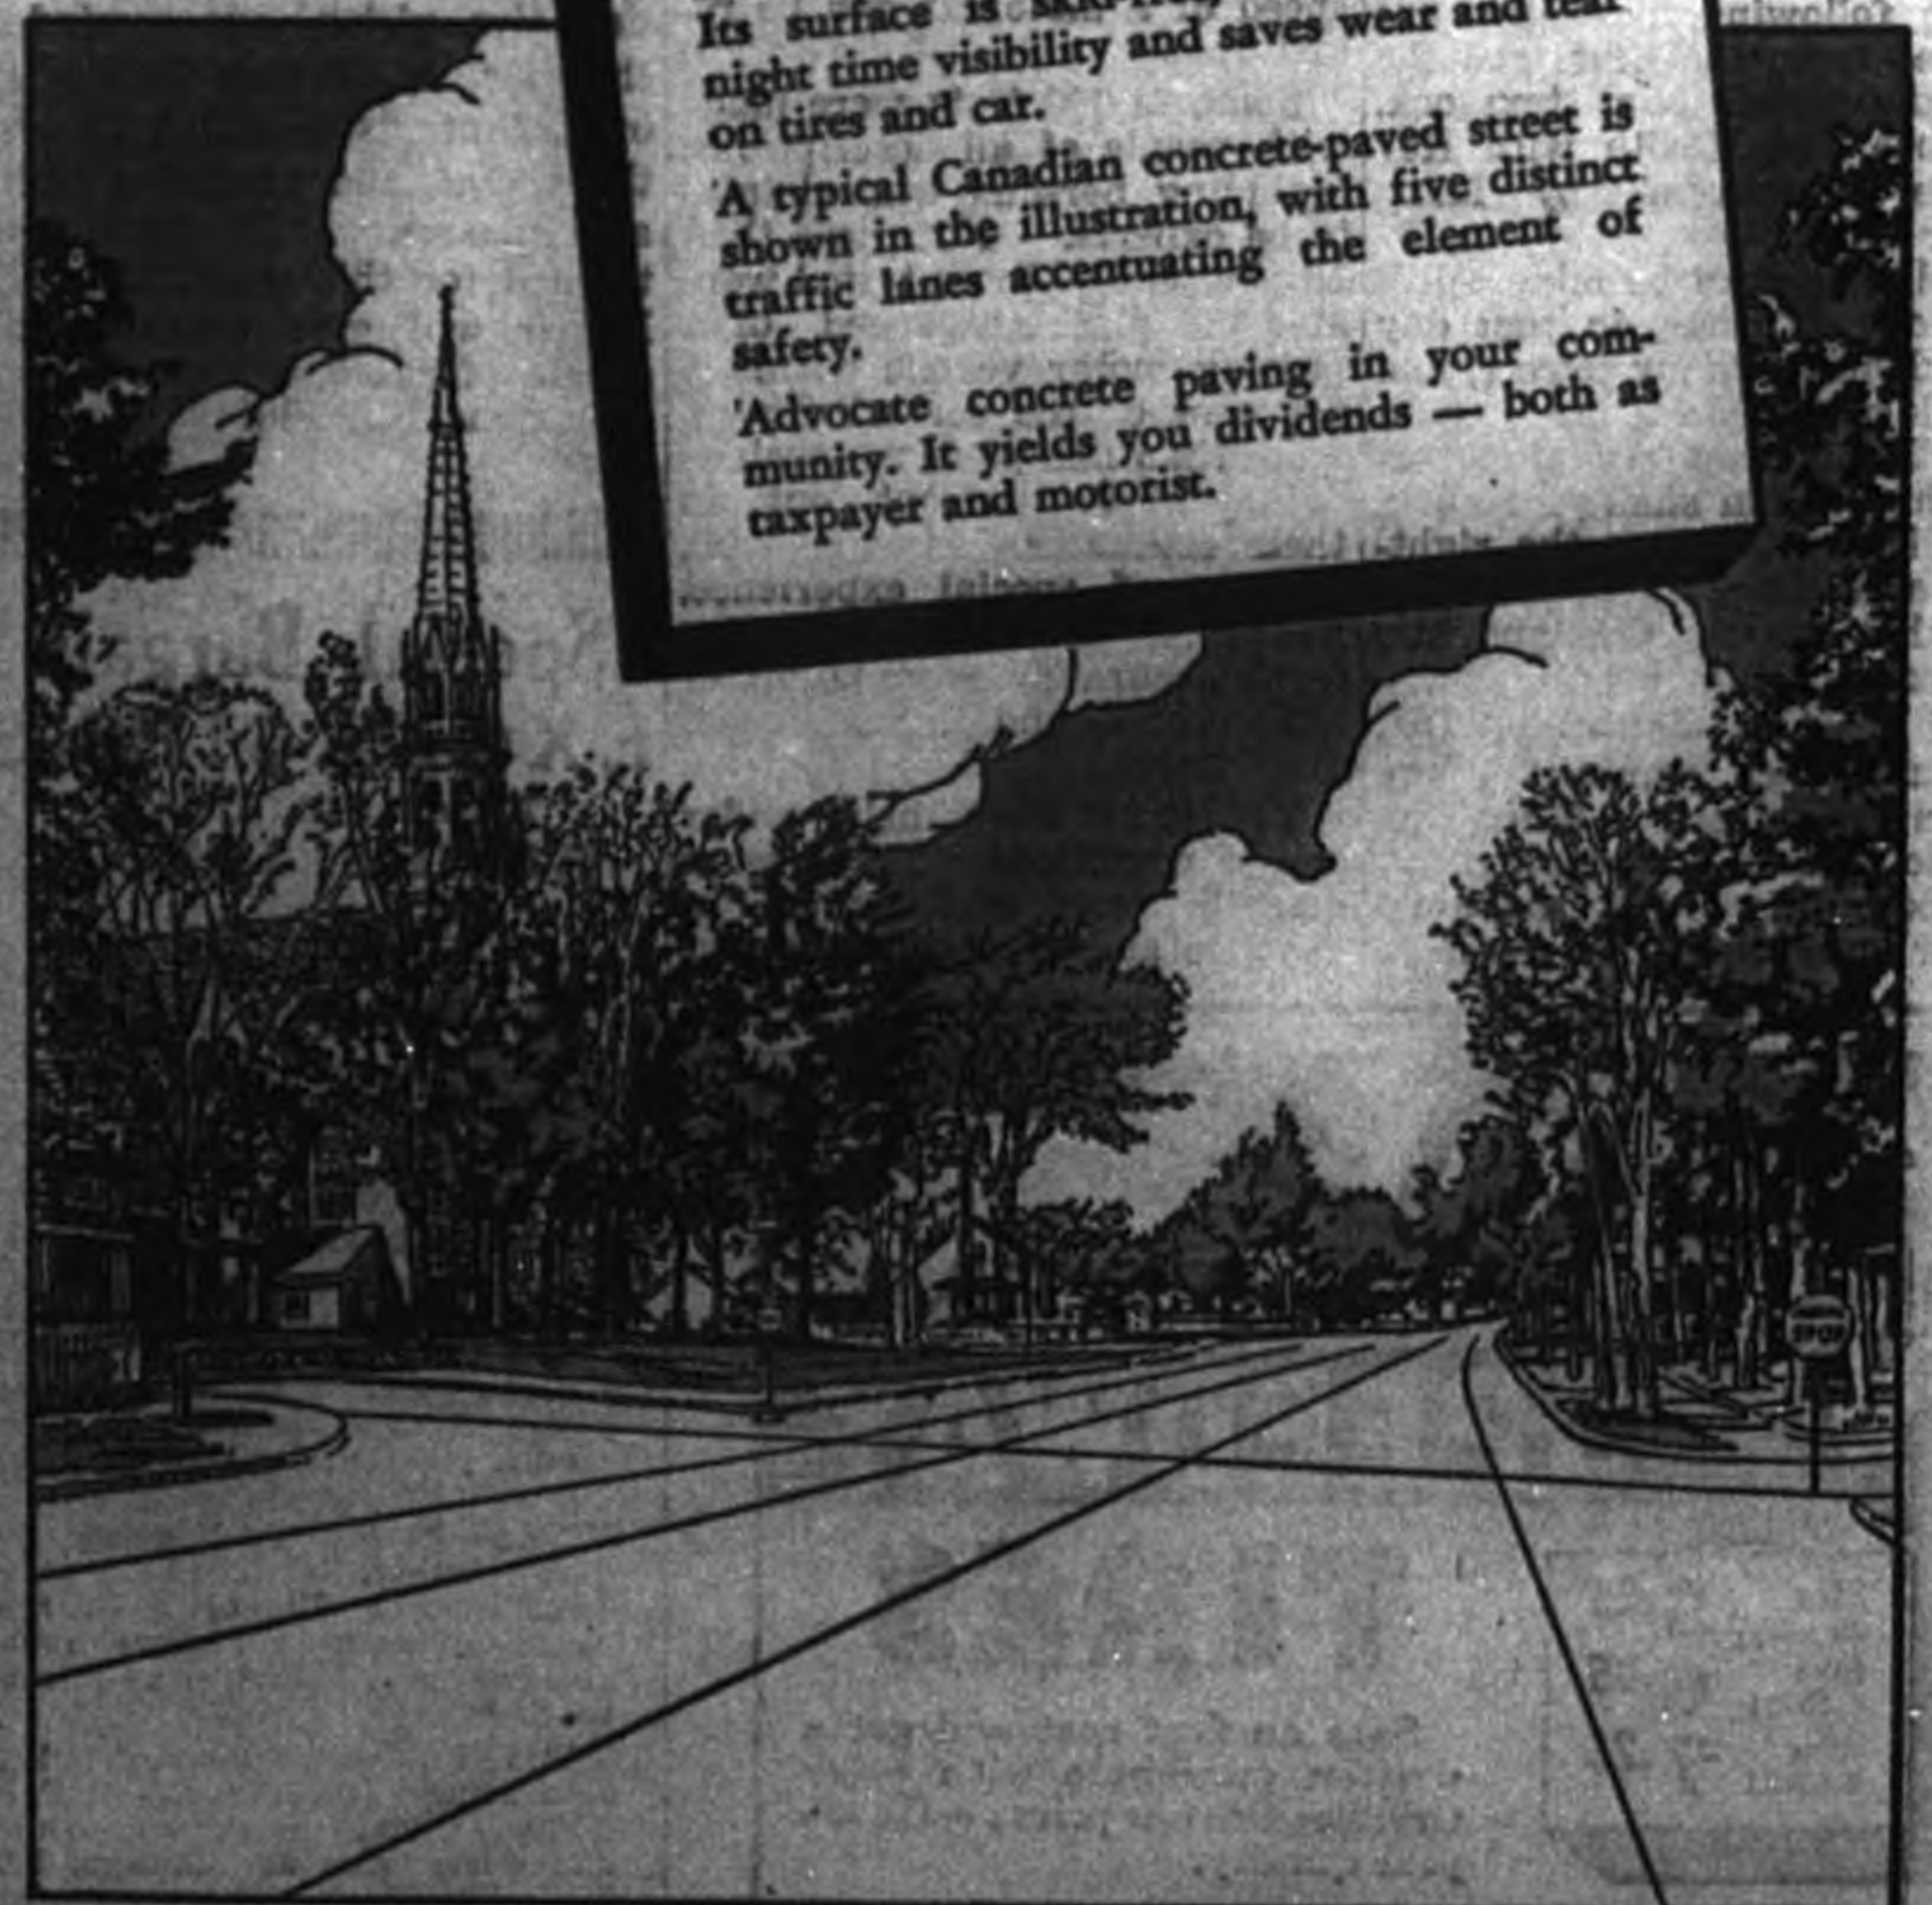

The Permanent Pavement
Gives You Two-Way Dividends

Streets and highways stand up under the punishment of modern heavy traffic — without costly maintenance — when paved with concrete.

Besides saving the taxpayer's money, concrete means driving safety, comfort and economy. Its surface is skid-free, affords excellent night time visibility and saves wear and tear on tires and car.

A typical Canadian concrete-paved street is shown in the illustration, with five distinct traffic lanes accentuating the element of safety.

Advocate concrete paving in your community. It yields you dividends — both as taxpayer and motorist.

Historical Society of Argenteuil County

NEWS BULLETIN

Members of the Historical Society who were unable to attend the General Meeting on Saturday evening, are no doubt waiting to hear of the decision, which was reached harmoniously and unanimously, regarding the offer of the Barracks for the Society's museum.

The visiting speakers, Dr. Percival, Judge Surveyer and Professor Nobbs of McGill, made a deep impression on the gathering of about 100 of the more active members from various sections of the County. Their clear and convincing addresses were received with warm response, and prepared the way for the unanimous vote for acceptance of the gift of the Barracks for the Society's museum.

Mr. Hungerbuhler's splendid offer, made without the stipulation of a deposit of $10,000 before the deed could be executed, was received with acclamation. This latest gesture on his part was made in order that the Society, when in possession of the gift, could inaugurate without delay a campaign for raising the needed funds. It should be further stated that, should the Society fail to raise sufficient money to ensure upkeep and maintenance of the building, Mr. Hungerbuhler has agreed to take back the building.

This is the challenge, and it now becomes a matter of honour for every member of the Society to aid in reaching a proper endowment. In accord with the advice of Mr. Hungerbuhler it was agreed that the ideal to be sought for in this regard should be $30,000. It was further resolved that no funds be expended till it is learned what grants from the federal and provincial governments, can be obtained. These will shortly be applied for.

The next meeting of the executive will be held on Saturday, May 29th., at 4 o'clock (Standard Time) at the residence of Mr. Lanctôt. St. Andrews, when he will present a plan for a collective county drive for the proposed endowment fund. In the meantime individual members could accomplish much in winning new members and preparing the way for this organized campaign.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

BRING IN THE CLOUDS

Without the clouds this would have been a dull picture. A K-2 filter over the lens brought them in. Exposure 1/25 second at f.8.

GO to any art gallery and examine the landscape pictures. Find one in which the artist has failed to put clouds in the sky. If you succeed you will have encountered a rarity in the world of art.

The fact is that even though a painter may succeed in capturing the true empyrean blue he seldom emits to put in a cloud or two, white, dark or tinted, despite the fact that a cloudless, blue sky is not an unusual phenomenon and hence true to nature. The painter appreciates that clouds in their many beautiful forms, "pavilions of the sun," as a poet once called them, are artistic contributions to any outdoor scene. Too, the artist who works in black and white rarely fails to put clouds in his sky because an expanse of plain white space is uninteresting.

Why do we not more often see clouds in amateur photographs? Years ago the qualities of photographic materials were such that it was very difficult to photograph clouds because there was no film so sensitized that it would register clouds distinctly. Today films are available which to a greater or less degree will do so, but if the little gadget known as a filter is used over the lens, clouds may be brought into the picture in their full form and beauty.

Nevertheless, many amateurs continue taking cloudless landscapes, their skies being represented only by a void of white or gray, or faint outlines of clouds at the best. The beauty of a great tumbling cloud, or the attractive canopy which a mackerel sky spreads above a landscape is absent in the print although present when the picture was taken. Why should not amateur photographers be cloud artists, too, when they have the means to do so? The trick the filter does is to hold back the violet, ultraviolet and blue light to which photographic film responds more sensitively than to the other colors, and in which clouds and sky are both rich. This allows the green and red light (also reflected from clouds) to register, and if the film is of the type especially sensitive to green and red, such as the super-sensitive panchromatic, the clouds come in still more distinctly. Naturally since the filter holds back all the light to some extent, somewhat longer exposures are needed than when no filter is used. Correct exposure can be determined by using the "filter factor" data furnished by the manufacturer.

Filters for recording clouds and for general use are yellow in different degrees of density, variously suited to different subjects. A good average filter costs only from $1 to $1.50, depending upon the camera on which the filter is to be used. This is an investment which pays high dividends in the satisfaction you get from the enhanced beauty of your outdoor photographs.

Every Job Has Problems

There are angles to a job that no one but the person doing it realises. Down town yesterday I met an artist friend who was rushing about checking up on a policeman's uniform and the insignia on a child's sailor suit, both of which she had to use in an illustration. Large libraries have reference sections of pictures which are used for this particular purpose. Just let an illustrator make the slightest mistake and what a howl goes up. My job this morning has been to shorten an article. It was to be a prescribed number of words and when it was finished, there were a few hundred too many. So the cutting process began — Some of it could be weeded out completely as being unnecessary. That was done first, then I went over it sentence by sentence and rewrote it, trying to give the same meaning in fewer words. Frequently, the form was improved by the revision. In case you want to know, I finished up well under the number. Talk about your jig-saw puzzles. I have cut before, but one time I had to do the opposite. Galley sheets came from an American magazine with the request to add two paragraphs to fill up the column and to return it by the next mail, special delivery. That gave me two hours. It got there on time. Most brains work quickly in an emergency. So each job has its own problems to make it interesting.

FINICKY APPETITES OFTEN ONE RESULT OF CONSTIPATION

When nothing tastes right, and you don't eat as you should, the trouble may be common constipation. Poor appetite is one of its symptoms. Others are headaches, listlessness and sallow complexions.

Constipation is usually due to "low-bulk" meals. Serve your family Kellogg's ALL-BRAN — a generous source of "bulk."

Within the body, this food absorbs twice its weight in water, and gently exercises and sponges out the system. How much better than taking pills and drugs!

ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Three times daily, in severe cases. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into appetizing muffins, breads, etc.

Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London.

THERE'S DANGER IN DELAY

Two little streams were rushing Down the steep mountain side, Racing with each other To the river deep and wide. One little stream kept rippling on, The other stopped to rest In a hollow where the daffodils In golden gowns were dressed. It circled around the willow trees And dropped behind a rock Where rosy little Mary-Belle Was washing her dolly's frock. She caught it in her shining pail, Nor let a drop go by, While up above the jolly sun Was shining in the sky. It dried the water drops until, There wasn't any more— While, down below, the other stream Had reached the river shore!

The tinkling of bells ceased as suddenly as it had begun and Tinkles was heard to say, "Oh, my broadcast!" to Mrs. Santa, "I had forgotten it. There have been so many exciting things happening that I cannot seem to get time to do what I came to the Green Forest to do... —Jack! oh Jack!" they heard her call, "send a message to Mrs. Santa, right away please. Tell her Nunka and I are both well. Ask her if the dear old Master is still asleep, and tell her I shall have lots of news for her when I get back home in the Fall."

A sleepy kind of a voice replied, "I am sending it; if she answers, I shall connect up with you."

"Thank you, Jack-in-the-Pulpit," cried Tinkles, "You are a splendid fellow to have for a friend."

"Were there any more messages, Mrs. South Wind?" Tinkles asked. "Yes, Tinkles, there were, but one of them, I think, can only be answered by Flat Tail the Beaver—unless you know how many different kinds of maple trees there are. Yellow Breast, the Sap Sucker, wants to know."

"If Flat Tail can attend to Yellow Breast's question, I shall be glad," Tinkles replied, "I know very little about the kinds of maple trees; anyway, I will be so busy attending to the Blue Bell Family when Nunka gets back that I would not have time to talk to the Sap Sucker — the greedy thing; I expect he wants to know about the maples so that he can get more sap from them."

A queer burring sound came from the little silver radio; a pause, then Jack-in-the-Pulpit's see-saw voice was saying, "There you are, Miss Tinkles! Mrs. Santa is speaking to you. Listen closely, please." The children crowded closer to the radio, their eyes bright with excitement. They were going to hear Mrs. Santa's voice at last.

"Tinkles dear" . . . the voice was sweet and low; it sounded as if it were just brimming over with good nature. "Tinkles dear, thank you for calling me. Isn't it wonderful that we can keep in touch with each other, through that nice Mr. Jack-in-the-Pulpit. And Santa is quite well; he is still resting. Now that I know how to get in touch with the Green Forest, I shall call you if he gets restless and starts off adventuring again. I have been very lonely for you and Nunka, but hearing from you like this has helped so much. If you see any of the dear little children of the world, whisper in their ear that Mrs. Santa loves them, and drop a kiss on the face of the tiniest, newest baby you can find. . . now I must go as I hear Roughy, the naughtiest of the North Wind Fairies, dashing about in Santa's room. He will be disturbed. Give my love to Nunka and tell him to take care of you. Goodbye." The word Goodbye floated so softly and lovingly from the little silver radio that each tiny child felt that it had been meant especially for them, and were filled with happiness. There was a few minutes silence, then Tinkles' voice again, saying softly, "Isn't she an old dear?" Little Sir Echo, who had arrived some time before, caught up the words and sent them echoing over hill and dale, until they must have almost reached the North Pole itself.

The silence which followed was rudely broken by the chattering of a huge grey squirrel. It was large, the children knew, because its voice was so loud.

"Why is Silky-Coat making all that noise?" Tinkles asked Mrs. South Wind, who was winding in and out among the trees, shaking each branch gently to see how many of them were firm enough to bear the weight of the new little shoots with which Old Mother Nature was planning to cover them—and snapping off those that were not strong enough, as the new shoots and leaves must not be wasted. "Ask Blue-Cap, dear," she sighed softly, "I am too busy."

Many Cannot Cry

Many persons cannot cry because their tear ducts do not function; many have a constant fever without any apparent disorder to cause it; many develop a temporary condition in which their fingers do not bleed when cut, while others have a form of defective vision in which they see only part of an object—such as only half of a man as he walks before them.—Collier's Weekly.

Nile Lies in a Gorge

Through its entire course through the mountains of Abyssinia the Blue Nile runs between volcanic rock walls 5,000 to 6,000 feet high, there being no break in this depth sometimes for a distance of 50 miles. The river is impassable during the rainy season. The River Hawash, the second largest in Abyssinia, has no known outlet.

Commons Members in Jail

Despite its hundreds of members, the British house of commons has had difficulty for centuries in getting a quorum of 40. Of the numerous reasons which they had for not attending the sessions, the most logical one was given in 1843. THE MOST UNIQUE SCOUT CAMP

One of the most unique Scout week-end "camps" held in Canada, if not in the Scouting world, is that enjoyed each Saturday afternoon at the Sick Children's Hospital, Thistle-town, Ont. It is a "camp" held in their ward by the crippled and bedridden boys of the Robert Louis Stevenson Scout Troop, all in full Scout uniform, gathered round their troop Union Jack flying from its indoor flagstaff. The "camp" is opened with a ceremonial raising of the flag, and at the conclusion of the afternoon's program of games, stories and the passing of Scout tests, the flag is duly lowered.

DEVELOPING PHYSICAL COURAGE

Outdoor men with plenty of physical courage sometimes have sons who are not fond of sports and who seem to lack courage. Too often these men try to make their sons over by forcing them into situations beyond their powers, such as throwing a child into the water to teach him to swim. Fears are not natural, they are learned and the way to get rid of them is to unlearn them, but not by force. Help them overcome a small fear and when that has been thoroughly conquered, go on to another, until gradually by kindness and patience, you may one by one unlearn the fears. A child, who at five was so terrified of the water that he even cried all the time his mother was in swimming, was a good swimmer at seven and is now as much at ease in the water as he is on land. He did not get this way by force. His parents took the time to help him become accustomed to the water, never letting him become frightened but gradually advancing each day. Men who are disappointed in their sons' physical courage may be themselves to blame as they may have caused the fears to develop by their own thoughtless insistence. It should be remembered that a child of low physical courage may have the highest moral courage.

A LESSON FROM AN ADVERTISEMENT

There is a fertilizer advertisement that I wish every child and its parents could see but I have only seen it in one American magazine. It is a two-page spread in colour and shows a plant that has had all the necessary elements to nourish it. Then it shows eleven more pictures showing the same kind of plant deprived of a single mineral. Some of them are fairly healthy but none can compare with the plant getting proper nourishment and most of them are stunted and withered. Children require most of the minerals that the plants require to make them healthy and flourishing and the only way they can get them is to eat them. Unfortunately there are no coloured illustrations of children, who have been deprived of minerals, available. We cannot experiment at will with children as we can with plants. Children should be taught what they need in foods and mothers are the people to do the teaching—yet how few mothers know themselves. Eating is one of the real pleasures of life, but it is not just a pleasure and we must learn to eat the foods we need, even if they are not the ones we want most. Fortunately the desired minerals are in so many and such diversified forms, and with a little care it is not hard to choose food that we like that is good for us too.

TO SALT OR NOT TO SALT

The question arises, should you salt a roast before it is cooked or after? Well, yes and no. If your roast has a fat surface, as for instance a loin of pork, you may season it before putting in the oven. If it has a cut surface, like a sirloin of beef, it should not be salted until after it is seared as the salt draws out the juices. Juices drawn out into the pan will make good gravy but the flavor of the meat will be not so good.

HOT WATER PASTRY

Those of you who have 'no luck with pastry' might try hot water pastry. It makes a crumbly pastry but a very tender one and it is almost impossible to fail with it.

- 3 cups flour
- 3/4 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking powder

Beat the water and shortening with an egg beater until creamy. Sift in other ingredients and stir with a fork until large balls form on it. Chill thoroughly before rolling.

PINEAPPLE TARTS

- 1/4 cup grated pineapple
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 3 eggs beaten
- rind and juice of half a lemon
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Mix the ingredients and fill unbaked tart shells. Bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees. Make 8 or 10 tarts.

Pensions for Women

—And why not? Who would have a better right to a pension than a mother of a family, widowed, or forced through failing powers to become dependent on those who have already all the responsibility they can carry?

In many homes the entire burden of financial budgeting is borne by a woman, although the money itself may be earned by the man. It is fortunate that this is so often the case, for men, as buyers, despite the best of intentions, might land the household on the rocks, since they little realize how the income must be stretched to cover all the necessities of life. Most women have to learn this lesson in home economics, and cheerfully spend their whole lives in doing so. If, in mature age, they find themselves unprovided for, a way should be found to meet their needs, without the stigma of receiving charity.

Quebec Women's Institutes are studying this subject of late, and are in sympathy with the trend of opinion in this direction.

USUAL PROCEDURE IS REVERSED

Most home-owners purchase furniture to suit the house, but occasionally the home is acquired after the furniture. In such cases, rooms must frequently be made to conform with the type of furnishings which are available.

If your room does not suit your furniture, funds may be obtained from any Canadian bank under the generous terms of the Home Improvement Plan to redecorate or modernize.

This was the problem a home-owner was faced with recently. The furniture, most of which had been in the family for generations, was Georgian, while the room itself was rather nondescript. The housewife decided to change the room completely.

Bookshelves were built in the wall on either side of the fireplace. The tops were arched and the shelves went all of the way to the floor. The moulding of the shelves conformed to the columns of the mantel. No mirror was hung over the mantel because the housewife planned to reserve the space for a family portrait. The fireplace was black tile, which did not conflict with the colours used in the room's decorations. A wallpaper in silver and grey stripes covered the walls. Against this neutral background the fine woods of the furniture stood out in bold relief. The woodwork was done in antique white.

The upholstery of the chairs was held to sombre tones, gaiety being introduced in the room through the use of flowers. Draperies, rugs and upholstery were in shades of gray, brown and white, with antique gold accessories.

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

Femininity is winning a more secure place than ever in the styles for summer. Camille, Madame Bovary, Mary of Scotland, all are helping to make this a season of sentiment. But it isn't a lace-valentine sentimentality—there's a current of sophistication running underneath.

A fragile, romantic evening gown, for instance, is worn with a sash of gypsy stripes, brilliant fingernails, a tiny flip bolero, or an audacious flower at the front of a tiny evening cap. Taffeta rustles wickedly under lace or net, and over the simplest of white frocks red is daintily cobbled with fuchsia to make a flaming sash.

To be "romantic to the fingertips" wear your nail polish as sentimental as you wish, in a soft smoky shade of old rose or mauve, or deeper robin red. Or keep it for the single flaming accent that marks you as a modern.

Your hands must be as white as camellias—this is no season for a suntan. Cream them until they are the texture of white satin. But don't forget that the hands of today are not the slim useless hands of a Marie Antoinette. Long, bony, muscular, they may show all the character of active, intelligent members of society as long as they are polished and finished to perfection.

Don't buy too many clothes. It is far better to put all your money on four nice outfits than to spread it thinly over seven or eight mediocre costumes. Remember, too, that exquisite accessories make even a cheap dress look expensive.

The really smart woman knows that the happy combination of good taste in clothes, correct make-up and pleasing manners is the secret of a fetching appearance. Don't be so swayed by current fashion trends that you sacrifice good taste for style. Skirts may be shorter, but if your legs aren't nice or if you are extremely tall, wear skirts that are flattering to you. There is a right length for everyone.

Triple-strand necklaces of graduated beads in luscious colors are popular in smart metropolitan shops where everyone is looking for the right costume accessories. The beads are made of catalin and look like precious stuff—jade, coral, turquoise, amber and garnet.

A famous foot specialist attributes the increasing number of thick feminine ankles to the added weight placed on them by wearing of high-heeled shoes.

High heels affect mental poise as well as posture and physical well-being, according to an orthopedic expert. "High heels are all right for brief periods or dress occasions," he said. "But when worn steadily for school, home or office, they throw the body off balance and affect a woman's peace of mind, stability, and clearness of thought."

Rinsing the hair after shampooing is very important. You can tell when you've got all the soap rinsed out of your hair if it "squeaks" as your hands press out the water.

When preparing cream of tomato soup from canned tomato soup or home-made tomato puree, add 1/2 teaspoon baking soda to each cup of soup or puree. This prevents curdling when the milk is added.

Household Hint: Before you hang away your hot water bottle, rub it with a cloth dipped in glycerine and it will be less apt to develop annoying leaks. The glycerine will keep it from drying out and make it last longer.

TOO LATE

"Was that sandwich quite fresh that you sold me just now?" asked a customer in the snack bar.

"Quite, sir," the assistant assured him. "Each sandwich we sell is wrapped in transparent, air-tight paper."

"Dear me," was the reply. "I wish I'd known about the paper!"

SUPPOSED TRUTHS

How many times we have pounced upon supposed truths,—only to find out, after more exhaustive study and experiment—that we were wrong! For instance I have preached for years that the pipe-smoker may bring himself a lip-cancer by long frequent massage with a pipe-stem. Now, a careful thinker observes that tobacco has little influence in causing cancer; in other words, any sort of stick would cause cancer of the lip just as quickly, used in the same way. No, mama, I'm not trying to encourage the use of tobacco; I'm just telling Grand-dad not to chew any sort of stick as a habit.

It is known that an exposed corset-stay may bring to light a cancer of the breast. No tobacco about that, but it is a villain, just the same.

And a medical writer tells us that blood-pressure is not permanently made worse by tea or coffee or even salt. That more folks die from lack of chlorides than from excess of them. That the intelligent use of these things never does harm.

Another thing we learn: If indisposed, go at once to your good family physician, don't seek him as a last resort, but as a very first and best aid in trouble. It will pay you.

We know now that meats are not "deadly poison" to the human organism. To be a "vegetarian" is to be a faddist—and all faddists are skating on thin ice. Nevertheless a finicky, evanescent public will do as it pleases with my full consent.

One of my own very satisfactory conclusions is, good common horse sense is a qualification to be proud of.

Gail Borden PIONEER MILK SALESMAN

Seventy-nine years ago Gail Borden invented a method of condensing milk in a vacuum. His vision opened the markets of the world to Canadian milk. Canned milk can go where fluid milk can't.

Gail Borden laid the foundation for the whole series of manufactured milk products that have followed, each a direct help in making dairy farming the most important branch of agriculture in Canada. Today, milk from Canadian farms is shipped and sold as dairy products throughout the world.

Borden has been selling milk products to the world since the turn of the century. Borden men along with others are working every day in home and foreign markets to increase still further, the use of milk and milk products.

This year-after-year effort is one reason why milk is the largest single source of income for thousands of Canadian farmers.

Coronation Day, May 12th., will long be remembered by the citizens of this town. After listening the radio broadcast of the Coronation of our new King and Queen in the morning, the townsfolk gathered at the C.I.L. Social Club at 8 p.m. The pupils from both English and French schools marched to the Club, where they sang patriotic songs. His Worship Mayor Pariseau and Mr. Denis Staniforth gave speeches, expressing their many thanks to the people of the town for their enthusiastic attendance, and they commended the harmony that existed between the two races, French and English. The children were reminded that, although they were of different races, they all had the same King and that they should be loyal to him and to their Country, for the boys and girls of to-day would be the men and women of to-morrow, and they should aim to become citizens that Canada would be proud of.

After this program, a large number gathered at the Consolidated School grounds, where a maple tree was planted in commemoration of the Coronation by the members of the Brownsburg W. I.—Mrs. P. Martin, the president, spading the first shovelful of earth. Short addresses were given by Rev. S. J. Pike, Mr. Pariseau and Mrs. Martin. The singing of the National Anthem brought this program to a close.

Supper was served afterwards, under the official leadership of President Mrs. P. Martin and other members of the Women's Institute. The sum of $13.80 was realized. Each player had the privilege of bringing a lady guest.

"Underground Railroad"

Name Originated in Ohio

The incident that is credited with having led to the coining of the term "Underground Railroad" took place in Ohio in 1813. In that year, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, a negro by the name of Tice Davids escaped from his plantation in Kentucky and was making his way toward Ohio.

Reaching the shore of the Ohio river, with his master in close pursuit, the fugitive knew that there was no other path for him but to jump in the water and strike out for the opposite side. After some time the master located a skiff and started out across the river in pursuit, all the while keeping his eyes on the escaping negro. Almost until he reached the Ohio shore the slave-master followed the fugitive with his eyes, but by the time he got out of the skiff and onto the land he lost track of the negro who had disappeared—somewhere.

The truth of the disappearance was that a group of abolitionists in Ripley, seeing the negro swimming breathlessly toward the shore, gave him a hand and hurried him away over the hills of Brown county, and he was guided from one station to another until he reached northern Ohio. Near Sandusky he settled down to spend his days in freedom.

Finding no trace of the missing negro after a thorough search in the vicinity of Ripley, the master spouted: "That fellow must have gone off on an underground road."

This incident and the master's remark became popular among the abolitionists who soon adopted the term "Underground Railroad" for their system of helping runaway slaves.

First U. S. Machine-Made

Paper Delaware Product

The great development of paper-making machinery and its introduction into the industry here dates back to the first quarter of the Nineteenth century. The first machine-made paper manufactured in the United States was made by Thomas Gilpin in 1817 on a cylinder machine in Brandywine, Del. The first Fourdrinier machine made in this country was made in 1829. In Europe machinery was utilized in the paper-making industry from about the year 1770.

Rag paper, which was known to the Chinese before the Christian era began, was introduced into Europe by the Saracens in the eighth century, first through Spain, then France, Holland, Italy, Germany, and England. The Saracens or Arabs are thought to have learned the art when they captured the Chinese city of Samarcand in 704 A. D.

There was little demand for paper at first in the American colonies, with few books printed, no newspapers for some time, and little personal correspondence. Parchment was still in use, while the paper that was required was imported from Europe. The first paper mill in this country was built in 1690 in Germantown, Pa.

COUNTY WOMEN'S INSTITUTES GATHERED FOR SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL CONVENTION

GREETINGS RECEIVED . . . OFFICERS ELECTED

—By the County Publicity Convenor

The seventeenth Annual Convention of Argenteuil Women's Institutes was held in the Consolidated School hall on Saturday, and was well attended considering the inclemency of the weather and the fact that the members had met together on Monday to welcome Her Excellency Lady Tweedsmuir—which meant a gathering of the clan from all corners of the County twice in one week.

The Roll Call showed that there were 92 members and three visitors present, as well as Miss H. McCain their Provincial Superintendent.

The president, Mrs. A. Graham presided, assisted by Miss McCain and Mrs. G. W. Kuhring who acted as secretary due to the absence of Mrs. Ardill in Bermuda.

Mr. Georges Héon, Premier Duplessis' representative for the County, was expected to welcome the delegates to Lachute but brought a telegram of greetings from Premier Duplessis instead, which he claimed

The Study Group of the Lachute Women's Institute held its monthly meeting in the High School on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. H. M. Gall in charge of the program. Owing to the unavoidable absence of Mr. G. Legault, who had been expected to speak on "The Proposed Changes in the British North America Act", the program was somewhat changed, and consisted of biographies of four prominent people — John McCormack, John Masfield, Wilhemina Stith and Walter Allward — the last-named being the Canadian sculptor who designed the Vimy Memorial. Mrs. Stuart Campbell at the piano played an exquisite selection, "Rustle of Spring", by Christian Sinding.

With Mr. Gillie Todd, who accompanied him and made several minor hauls, he landed the fish safely after a considerable fight. The trout measured 33½ inches.

FOREIGN MARKETS VITAL TO CANADIAN FARMER -- ARGUMENT FOR WELL-PLANNED TARIFF POLICY

"The Ottawa Spotlight"
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, May 18th.—The farmers of Canada will find considerable food for thought in a recent bulletin prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. It shows to what extent the Canadian farmer is dependent upon the export market.

The information is especially timely because an attempt has been made in some quarters in recent years to argue that the home market has now become such a large factor in Canadian agricultural development that a policy of high protection and restricted imports is now as beneficial to the farmer as to the secondary manufacturer.

Ever since the formulation of the 'National Policy', the farmers of Canada, along with the fishermen, lumbermen, miners and others engaged in primary production, have argued that while a policy of restriction in imports might build up urban settlements in parts of Canada, the growth was largely at the expense of the primary producer, whose chance of selling abroad fell rapidly as Canada ceased to buy abroad.

"TO LONDON TO SEE THE QUEEN"

Bound for London and the colorful celebrations in connection with the Coronation of King George VI, 158 High School girls from Canada and Newfoundland are shown as they sailed recently aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Atholl.

Travelling under the aegis of the Overseas Education League the students have viewed the Coronation procession from a stand in Hyde Park. Their program will also include an Empire Youth Rally at the Albert Hall, the Empire Service of Youth to be held in Westminster Abbey, which will still be in its Coronation trappings, at which the Archbishop of Canterbury and Dean of Westminster will speak, sight-seeing in London, two weeks as guest pupils at famous English boarding schools, and two weeks sea-bathing and hiking interspersed with lectures by noted British authors at Eastbourne. They return to Canada aboard the Empress of Australia from Southampton, June 24, arriving at Quebec July 1st.

Every province of Canada is represented in the party which embodies the pick of Canadian students. An equal number of boys sailed two days earlier and will return aboard the Montcalm, from Liverpool, June 23, arriving at Montreal June 30. Educational authorities throughout the Dominion co-operated in the selection of the students. Students who were unable to leave their studies for the Coronation will have an opportunity of visiting the Old Country during Coronation year. Boys will leave on the Empress of Australia July 2, for a 57 day tour of Scotland, England and Germany; and girls, specializing on Great Britain, sail from Montreal the same day aboard the Duchess of Bedford. Both tours will be under the direction of the Overseas Education League.

Military Band, Vaudeville and Simms' Midway to Furnish Attractions

The prize list of Lachute Spring Fair is now published, and contestants are busy scanning its pages in anticipation of securing some of the prize money for this year's exhibits.

A directors' meeting of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society was held in the Court House Saturday evening, at which Vice-President J. H. Black presided, and final arrangements were completed to ensure the success of this year's show, which will be held from June 16th. to 19th.

Mr. A. Bothwell, manager, has been kept busy supplying information to prospective exhibitors, and everything points to increased interest.

The scene of Lachute Fair, is now recognized as the finest show grounds in the Province. While lacking a covered arena the exhibition grounds include a perfect ring, well lighted, with a commodious grandstand and pavilion.

J. J. Gagnier's famous military band, an up-to-the-minute vaudeville performance, and exciting horse races make up a full program, while Simms' midway attractions will afford the fun of the Fair.

This big event is only three weeks away. The directors have done their utmost to ensure its success, and they need the co-operation of our citizens to boost the Fair, giving it their support and favorable publicity.

Men's Golf, Tennis Club Held Opening Meet

Campers Warned Against Poisonous Plants

With summer here again and many of us planning vacation and camping trips, it might be well to give a minute's thought to those who have the unhappy knack of sampling unknown berries they find while hiking through the fields and woods, and sometimes picking or touching certain plants and flowers that experience suggests we let alone. Poisonous plants, like their more friendly brothers, perform a definite service for Nature, but if we take care to remember a few of the more common ones we can avoid them and make our holiday much more enjoyable by doing so. Among others the larkspur, poison sumac, datura, sheep-laurel, poison ivy, bittersweet, hellebore, aconite, water hemlock, death cup, henbane, belladonna and poppy are to be mentioned as plants that should be kept away from the mouth. Some of these are native to certain regions only, but it is usually better to be careful than sorry in the matter of ruining one's holiday, to say nothing about one's health.

CATTLE REQUIRE SPRING MEDICINE

The lack of mineral, and especially the lack of phosphate in Canadian farm crops, has become more and more apparent in recent years. Some districts are no longer capable of growing crops with sufficient phosphate to meet live-stock needs in any season, and in seasons of drought, when the mineral content of all crops is lowered, phosphate deficiency becomes serious, says R. M. Rowat, B.Sc., an authority on salt, and will show itself in areas not usually subject thereto. Ontario and the Western Provinces have extensive areas with a shortage of phosphate, and no province has escaped the effects of phosphate deficiency.

Lack of calcium and phosphorus may show up in many ways. Most common in young animals is the development of rickets, and in mature stock it is found that bone brittleness, depraved appetite, stiff-sickness, general debility and thriftlessness, failure to breed, are all partly traceable to lack of these essential minerals.

Diseases due to lack of phosphate, which go under the various names of osteomalacia, aphosphorosis or plain "stiff-sickness", are essentially winter conditions, which develop slowly, reach their peak in the late spring, and then disappear for the summer, while the animals are on pasture.

Dairy cows are the first to show the effects of mineral deficiency, because they have a relatively high mineral need. A good cow, giving about 10,000 lbs. milk per year, needs nearly 40 pounds of calcium and phosphorus for milk production only. For her own maintenance and for the growth of her calf during the period of gestation, she requires another 20 pounds—total 60 pounds per year.

This is her actual bodily need. Under winter feeding conditions she has to consume as much as two pounds of mineral to assimilate one pound, and it can therefore be readily understood that a lowered mineral content in the feed at that time is a very serious matter. A ton of good timothy hay at best contains only 5 or 6 pounds of combined calcium and phosphorus. In drought years this may fall to 3 or 4 pounds and "stiff-sickness" is almost inevitable in such circumstances.

For dairy cattle in particular, a liberal allowance of calcium and phosphorus is required. Milk cows need both substances to make milk and produce strong healthy calves. An adequate supply of phosphate stimulates milk production and helps to ensure vigorous offspring.

Dicalcium phosphate supplied in the form of phosphated salt blocks or cattle-licks is an almost ideal combination of calcium and phosphorus. It supplies both substances in the proportion found in milk, and in a fully digestible form.

These are basic facts, well known to every student of live-stock nutrition.

Thirty hours after the beginning of incubation of a hen's egg the embryonic chick heart starts to beat.

Western Farms Increase

Farming in Saskatchewan has been rather discouraging during the past six years, but there nevertheless has been an increase of nearly 6,000 farms in that time, official figures show.

A VITAL MARKET

The bulletin of the Dominion Bureau shows how vital the foreign market still is for the Canadian farmer, especially those engaged in the production of wheat, cheese, apples, wool, milk products and hogs.

Thus, only 25 per cent of all the wheat produced in Canada is consumed at home. A market must be found abroad for the other 75 per cent. Loss of foreign markets would be quite fatal to the wheat producer.

Fifty-five per cent of all the cheese produced in Canada finds a market elsewhere, only 45 per cent being consumed at home. Loss of external markets would thus be ruinous to the cheese areas of Canada.

Over 53 per cent of the apples produced in Canada find a market in other countries, the home market taking care of the remainder. Here again Canada's policies in regard to external trade are absolutely vital. The wrong kind of fiscal policy could almost cut the apple industry in half.

Over 43 per cent of the wool, 27 per cent of concentrated milk products, and 20.7 per cent of maple products find their market in other countries. Over 16 per cent of the hogs or hog products are normally sold abroad (The figures are based on 1935 production).

Taking all Canadian agriculture, the home market absorbs 78.4 per cent of the production, while 21.6 per cent must be sold in other countries.

The argument is sometimes advanced that when nearly four-fifths of all production is consumed at home, the home market is so much more important than the export market that in framing fiscal policies at Ottawa the home market should be given primary consideration.

There are two answers to this. One is that the home market is not the static unelusive thing some people think, but rises and falls with general business.

SETS THE DOMESTIC PRICE

The other is that it is the ability of the farmer to dispose of the surplus—22 per cent of whatever it is—of his production at a favorable price which sets the domestic or internal price.

It sometimes happens that as much as 97 per cent of a product—such as live cattle—is consumed at home, yet the ability of the stockman to find a ready market abroad for the other two or three per cent influences the prices at home to a remarkable extent. When markets in other countries are bidding for the product, the price is usually satisfactory at home. When all external markets are closed, and a glut occurs, the domestic price slides down out of all proportion to the small additional surplus seeking a market.

The fact therefore, that Canadian agriculture finds in Canada a market only for 78.4 per cent of its production, and must exchange the remaining 21.6 for the products of other countries, indicates how close to the welfare of the industry a sane policy in regard to external trade must be. It gives point to the insurgent group in the government party which is clamoring for still more advanced views about exchange of goods.

It appears that at the imperial Conference the promotion of world peace by removal of unnecessary obstructions to the flow of commodities is receiving a good deal of attention.

More than 125 Studebaker dealers and salesmen from all parts of Ontario and Quebec assembled in Windsor recently to drive away over one hundred Studebaker passenger cars and trucks.

School-children Were Guest Passengers on Highway Cruisers' Initial Tour

NEW SUPER-COACHES PUT INTO SERVICE

On Sunday, May 9, the new highway Super-Coaches made their initial appearance in Canada at the Phillips Square terminal of the Provincial Transport Company in Montreal, before starting on an exhibition tour with officials, press representatives and 200 children from the University Settlement, St. Vincent de Paul Patronage and St. Patrick's Orphanage, as the first guest-passengers.

These Super-Coaches are part of the large fleet which will go into service between Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, and, later on, over the Champlain Coach Lines run between Montreal and New York. Classed as the most modern and luxurious buses on any highway throughout the world they possess many outstanding features, including two tons less weight than conventional bus equipment, higher seat decks to allow better scenic view, four-way reclining seats, adjustable footrests and motors of new and more powerful design installed in the rear.

Coronation Celebration Held in Arundel, Que.

Arundel—An enjoyable celebration of the Coronation took place here on the evening of May 12th., in the form of a bonfire and fireworks display, held on the hill-side overlooking the village.

Following the singing of the National Anthem, the Mayor of the municipality, Mr. C. J. Stanforth, spoke briefly of the significance of the occasion, and then set fire to the beacon.

By the light of the bonfire a presentation of medals was made by Mr. H. Cooke, chairman of the School Board, to the four scholars of various grades who had most distinguished themselves in recent examinations. The medals were of sterling silver, and had been struck in commemoration of the Coronation.

The winners of these prizes were as follows:

Senior grade, Jean Morrison.
Intermediate grade, Lillian Evans.

Elementary grade, Mary McArthur.

Primary grade, Clark Graham.

Mr. Marshall, principal of the school, then read to the gathering of school-children the address prepared especially for them by His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir.

Other items on the program included a five-minute address by Rev. G. H. Wolfendale and community singing led by Mr. Richard Sancton, and the celebration was brought to a close by fireworks and the singing of God Save the King.

Scout Beacon, Patriotic Social Held at St. Andrews

St. Andrews East—Coronation Day was observed here by the Boy Scouts in the fashion dear to a boy's heart—with a beacon fire. The troop acknowledged with gratitude the use, granted by the C. N. R., of the land bordering on the gravel pit. The Scouts were aided in the building of the beacon by Scoutmaster A. Snowdon and Mr. E. C. Calder of the Men's Committee of the troop. The Good Fellowship Circle of the United Church and the C.G.I.T. group were invited to be present at the lighting of the beacon at dusk.

A shower of rain curtailed the outdoor celebrations—the three societies going to the United Church hall, where the Scouts and C.G.I.T. were the guests of the Good Fellowship Circle. The hall was decorated with flags, flowers and portraits of the royal family—one showing the new King in Scout uniform.

The tea tables and refreshments were arranged by Mrs. W. Lamb and Miss M. Hooker. The songs and toasts which followed were directed by Mrs. G. H. Smith and Mrs. Lilly with Miss T. Wales at the piano and Mr. R. Montague as toastmaster. As no toast is drunk to the King on his Coronation Day "God Save the King" was heartily repeated three times, and the first verse of the anthem was sung. The first toast, proposed by Mr. Gerald Taylor in a masterly way, was the "British Empire"; it was responded to by Mr. E. Chambers, singing "Land of Hope and Glory", everyone joining heartily in the chorus. The next toast, "Canada", was proposed by Scout Roy DeWitt and was followed with "O Canada", sung by everyone present. The third toast, given by Mrs. G. H. Smith to "Our Guests, the C.G.I.T.", was responded to by Miss Mona Feley of the Group. The fourth toast, "Our Guests, the Boy Scouts", was proposed by Mr. Montague, who emphasized their motto, Be Prepared. The girls, with their leader, sang "For they are jolly good fellows." Col. L. M. Hooker of the Men's Committee of the Scouts responded in an appropriate short talk and the boys sang "Men of Harlech". The last toast, "To our Hosts and Hostesses of the Good Fellowship Circle," was proposed by F. L. Lloyd Lilly, and was responded to by Miss Jean Brown. One verse of "Blest be the tie that binds" was sung, and then the second verse of God Save the King closed a long and long-to-be-remembered day.

Golf Club Opening Meet

It was felt that many are not members simply because they have not had an opportunity to really try the game.

The opening date is set for Saturday, June 5th., and work is being pushed forward on the course in order to have it ready for that time.

Notes from Brownsburg

The roads in and around the village are in need of urgent repair. The asphaltting of last season has been torn up in several places and if some repair work is not done soon the damage will get much worse.

With the opening of the Summer season (if the present inclement weather can be said to represent Summer), the speeding automobile is again in evidence. The local council had to take action to educate the careless driver to respect the parking laws, and numerous signs have been erected towards the ing laws and numerous signs end. It would be well if the powers that be paid a little attention to the flying "Bluebirds" that scorch along the village streets to the common danger of the public, and especially in the neighborhood of both schools. Recently Canadian Industries Ltd. had to warn several drivers to respect the traffic laws on their property, with quite good effect.

BROWNSBURG

The Young People's League bowling team were guests of the Men's League at the United Church Tuesday evening, in a bowling contest. Despite some crack shots on the part of the men, they lost out to the Young People in both ends. Refreshments followed the bowling, served by the League. A series of games brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. J. Thompson on Wednesday evening. Included in their meeting was the packing of a box of clothing for the less fortunate folk in Montreal attending camps during the summer. The Society paid a fraternal visit to the St. Eustache Missionary Society on Friday evening last.

During the redecorating of the United Church, for the next Sunday or two services will be held downstairs in the basement hall. The church building is also undergoing complete new wiring, including several important changes.

Monthly gatherings will be the order of the Men's League of the United Church during the summer. Next month there will be an open meeting, when the ladies will be the guests of the League. Plans are being made for a number of outdoor affairs, including picnics and sports.

At the meeting of the Young People's Society of the United Church on Wednesday Mr. C. Stevens was the speaker. Arrangements are being made for the closing meeting with the end of this month, in the form of a banquet, when Professor W. H. Hatcher of McGill University will be the special speaker.

Young Lachute Lady Is Bride in Double Wedding at Toronto

With St. John's Evangelical Church, Toronto, as the setting, and in the presence of hundreds of friends, a pretty double wedding of particular interest in Lachute was solemnized on Saturday evening, May 15th., one of the contracting couples being Catherine Elizabeth, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Goldsworthy of Lachute, and Gibson Willis, second son of Mr. and Mrs. David Brown of Belfast, Ireland. Rev. W. A. Nisbet performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a white chiffon gown with little matching hat with noseveil, and carried a bouquet of Better Times roses. She was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Goldsworthy, gowned in powder blue flat crepe with small matching hat and carrying Johanna Hill roses. Mr. Frank Lowther was best man. Mr. Ernest Falconbridge and Mr. William Warwick were ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Gill, 22 Thorncliffe Avenue. The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing celanese acetate in pastel pink and felt hat in thistlebloom shade, with dark wine accessories, and corresponding corsage of roses and sweet peas.

Amongst former Lachute friends now resident in Toronto who attended the wedding were Mrs. (Rev.) G. Victor Collins, Misses Muriel and Leila Boyd, Miss Lois O'Reilly, Mr. Clifford McFaul, with Mrs. McFaul, and Mr. Wm. Glenn, with Mrs.

Glenn and little son, and those attending from a distance were Mrs. Albert Crompt of Montreal, Mrs. Wm. Moorhouse of Valleyfield, Que., Mrs. Victor Brooks and Mr. Lloyd Brooks of Oshawa, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Goldsworthy and little daughter, Mr. Weldon Champnews of Brantford, Ont., and Miss Eileen Goldsworthy of Kitchener, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown left later by motor for Lindsay, Oshawa, and Ashton, Ont., and Lachute, and are spending this week at the home of the bride's parents here.

Motorcycle Club Held Reliability Trials Here

The Sports Motorcycle Club of Montreal again favored Lachute for its annual spring meet, and some of the Club's veteran riders have traversed the Lachute-Dunany-Dalesville circuit many seasons now in contest with fellow motorcyclists. The machines took many hard knocks in last Sunday's trials. The route was marked as usual, and included nine obstacles and observed sections. These, and the gathering of riders in Lachute, attracted the interest of motorists and passers-by.

The 23-mile circuit had to be covered at an average pace of 15-20 m.p.h. The test was one of reliability rather than speed. Winners were—first, K. Scott; second J. Knox (Hawkesbury); third J. Ackland; fourth J. S. Knox (Hawkesbury); fifth A. Ponting (Ottawa). Mr. K. Scott was chairman of the contest committee. Hazards were labelled by such names as "Hog's Alley", "The Sink", "Pilgrim's Progress", "Fish Bowl" and "Hall of Fame."

It is urged that all members of the branch should attend, and a cordial invitation is also extended to unaffiliated ex-service men throughout the county.

JOBS and education

The principal reason why so many young people find it hard to get jobs when they get out of school is that they have not been taught how to do the things for which business and industry are willing to pay. That is my own summary of the report of Richard R. Brown, deputy administrator of the U. S. National Youth Administration.

It is just another finger-post pointing toward a complete re-vamping of our whole educational system. We have been training boys and girls to look down upon the real work of the world, and to regard the "white-collar" occupations as the only ones worth going into. There aren't enough white-collar jobs to go around.

I have long believed that for the vast majority the ordinary school can do nothing beyond, say, the sixth grade. At eleven or twelve most boys and girls have got all the formal education they will ever be able to use. A school system which would take them at that age and teach them the fundamentals of a trade or handicraft would at least prepare them to face the realities of life, and not to be ashamed to do work at which they might get their hands dirty. Those who have it in them to rise, will rise anyway.

DRAKE marriage money

To the English-speaking world "Frankie" Drake is one of the heroic figures of all time. He made the England of Queen Elizabeth the great sea-power, and was the first Englishman to sail around the world, the feat which won him knight-hood at the hands of the Queen.

Drake reported that he had careened his ship, the "Golden Hind", in a convenient harbor on the Pacific Coast, and had set up a tablet claiming the land as "New Albion" in the name of Queen Elizabeth. That was in 1579, and historians years ago decided that a small bay northwest of the Golden Gate must have been the place. It is on all the maps of California as "Drake's Bay". But a few weeks ago a young Californian, Beryle Shinn, wrote a new chapter of history. Stopping at San Quentin Point to change a tire, he found Drake's brass plate, half buried under a rock, where it had been for nearly 358 years.

It is of little consequence, of course, whether "Frankie" Drake went through the Golden Gate, or not; though just now when the great Golden Gate bridge has been opened for traffic, there is a romantic thrill in visualizing the towering "Golden Hind" sailing through that famous passage. But it was worth $2000 in hard cash to young Mr. Shinn, who had never heard of Sir Francis Drake. The award which the California Historical Society gave him for finding the plate enabled him to get married. That is important.

WAR against traditions

For a long time we used to fool ourselves by believing that the progress of civilization meant the end of war. Exactly the opposite has been proved true by a group of Harvard professors who have been studying the war records of every nation for the past 2500 years. We are living today in the most warlike period in all history. The first quarter of this century was the "world's bloodiest period", Prof. Sorokin reports.

The American and European sociologists who collaborated with Dr. Sorokin in this study agree that the present tendency to war is the result of decay in the type of culture which has dominated Western civilization for 500 years. The dawn of the present century marked a definite break with the past, and the present generation is in revolt against the old traditions. That, rather than politics or economics, lies at the root of war, these scholars say.

That sounds reasonable to me. Certainly I see evidence all around me of a great and active desire to change the old order of things. While I deplore the violence with which many of the prophets of a new day try to enforce their ideas upon the rest of us, I am not prepared to say that they may not make a better world than we have made. At any rate, it will be their world. They will have to live in it. But I confess deep sympathy for those who do not want to see their old civilization destroyed, and are ready to fight to save it.

A SCOUTING FAMILY

One of Nova Scotia's thriving Boy Scout units, the 3rd Halifax Community Group, which meets in Sir Charles Tupper School, claims nine members of one family on its roster. They are Scoutmaster L. A. Pelton, six sons, a daughter and a son-in-law. The daughter and two sons are leaders, two are Rover Scouts, one a Troop Scout Leader and the youngest a Wolf Cub Sixer.

SCOTT'S 'DISCOVERY' IS MANNED BY SCOUTS

One of the vessels which attracted special attention in the Coronation river pageant on the Thames was Captain Scott's famous Polar ship "Discovery I." The ship, now the prized possession of the Boy Scouts, was manned by Sea Scouts. It was used during the Coronation as a hostel for Scout visitors.

KING AND QUEEN REVIEW
SCOUTS AT WINDSOR

A thousand Boy Scouts from all parts of England and Wales, all either holders of the King's Scout badge or medals for gallantry, were reviewed by King George and Queen Elizabeth at Windsor on Sunday, April 25th, prior to the great annual National Scout Service in St. George's Chapel. With the King and Queen were Queen Mary, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, Princess Helena Victoria, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord and Lady Baden-Powell and Lord Somers. Also participating was a party of crippled Scouts from the Heatherwood Hospital, near Ascot.

A 24 YEAR OLD INTERNATIONAL SCOUT FRIENDSHIP

An unusual good turn performed 24 years ago resulted in a still continuing friendship between the Boy Scouts of Hastings and St. Leonards, England, and the Scouts of Portugal. In 1912 the Portuguese steamship Oceana was wrecked off Eastbourne, and the bodies of two seamen were washed ashore at St. Leonards. Members of the 2nd Hastings Scout Group arranged for their burial at the Borough Cemetery. The Portuguese Government on learning of this invited the entire Hastings Scout Group to pay a visit to Lisbon, where they were entertained with great cordiality. Continuing the friendship, the Hastings and St. Leonards Scouts will entertain a number of Portuguese Scouts on their way to attend the World Scout Jamboree to be held in Holland this summer.

CHEATING THE CROWS

"You needn't sit there, you nasty bird!" Cried Tommy with a laugh. And shook his fist at an old black crow Upon a tall, tall ash.

"Our corn isn't planted in that field, We've changed to another one, Because you ate so much last year— Dad said it wasn't fun."

TINKLES ARRIVES

The children were wondering, too, why the squirrel chattered persistently, and were not a little surprised to hear Blue-Cap say, in reply to Tinkles' question, "He's laughing at the other family; they are all out sliding down Flat-Tail-the-Beaver's dam. Silky-Coat tried it too, but he got his bushy tail all covered with mud, so he is sitting up on a branch and letting it dry in the sun while he watches the others sliding. Flat-Tail can scarcely work for watching them. I think he is longing to slide too, but he's too big to slide with the others. But he is going to have a Beaver party this afternoon. Beavers from all parts are to be there."

"How splendid!" cried Tinkles. "that will give us the opportunity to hear all about the different maples. Do you suppose the beavers will tell us if we keep very quiet?" "Of course they will!" cried a little Sora Rail. "I have heard them telling about them before, and if you like I'll tell them that you will come this afternoon, then they will know that you are their friends, as the Beaver Family are rather shy fellows."

"You may tell them, Mr. Blue-Cap, that I will come just as soon as Nunka returns. I want Nunka to hear about the maples too."

"You will not have to wait long for Nunka," said Mrs. South Wind, who had been resting on the top of the tallest pine tree. "I see him coming."

It was not long until a soft thudding sound told the children that Nunka had landed on the ground beside Tinkles. In rather a breathless voice he began to talk. "Oh Tinkles!" he cried. "The Sunset Queen is the most gorgeous creature I have ever seen. Her gown is a mass of colors, beautiful colors—yet all correspond and blend so nicely. She gave me the pink for the Blue Bells, and such a wonderful gown for you; but she said that I must not let you wear it until you went back to the North Pole, because the beautiful amber shot with peacock blue could be seen anywhere in the dark—that the darkness could not hide it, and that it would make you visible to anyone and any thing. She gave it to you so that in the darkest time of the year you will be a real Shining Fairy."

for the Good Master and Mistress." "She is very kind," Tinkles voice sounded just a bit disappointed; the little listeners knew just how she felt—they remembered how much they liked to wear their newest clothing.

As if shaking off her disappointment, Tinkles danced around a bit, laughing gaily. "All right, Nunka," she said, "put it in a safe place for me, but hide it well, for if I find it I shall be tempted to wear it whether I am visible in it or not. But—hurry, please, as we are going to Flat-Tail's pond in a few minutes to hear the beavers telling about the different kinds of maples. But first of all we must have a look at those baby blackbirds I hear peeping in their nest behind the pussy willows. I have read the 'Sing a Song of Sixpence' rhyme so often that I must see those tiny birds."

The sound of their creeping footsteps came back to the children as they moved away, and it seemed to them a long time before their voices came from the silver radio again. It was Tinkles and Nunka singing the "Sing a Song of Sixpence" song, to the tune of Yankee Doodle, as they flitted off to the beaver pond.

"I do hope we will be able to hear what the beavers say," cried Ted. "It would be quite nice to hear Aunt Jean tell us about the maples, but rare fun to hear the story from the beavers."

"It will be fun indeed," remarked Aunt Jean, "and I shall enjoy hearing the beavers' tale too, then I can sit quietly and finish knitting this sweater for the newest little baby that Tinkles is to kiss for Mrs. Santa."

CONSTIPATION

Every woman can protect her family from common constipation by careful menu planning. Often the cause of illness from constipation is lack of "bulk" in the diet. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies this "bulk" in generous quantity.

You can use ALL-BRAN in so many delightful ways. As a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Or make delicious bran muffins and breads—put it into griddle cakes, salads or soups, or over other cereals.

Just be sure each member of your family gets two tablespoons every day—and forget the illness caused by constipation. Serve three times daily, in severe cases.

You can also forget pills and drugs that nobody likes to take—and that so often fail unless the dose is constantly increased.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to help tone the intestines, and iron for the blood. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

JUST BETWEEN US !

A story from my life.
(A life that's not unusual—
Some pain — some fun — some strife.)

It all began when I began
As just a little tot,
I looked so very funny—Oh!
They hoped I'd change a lot!

It seems their hopes were all misspent,
For I remained the same.
Sad relatives discussed my looks,
And said: "My!—what a shame!"

But, somehow, I discovered smiles
Were welcome any place;
So I began to smile—and folks
Forgot my funny face.

SHIPS

Stories of the sea and boats in distress always seem to have an appeal and usually rate the front page in the newspapers. When you live on the sea-coast they are much more thrilling because you may have seen the boat as she left on the journey or perhaps it is the boat which makes the thrilling rescue at sea, or which takes aboard the sick sailor, that you have seen in the dock. When you hear on the radio that a vessel has been caught in an ice-jam or has been in a collision in a fog, it comes much closer if you actually have seen the boat. However, I find that there are people in Halifax who never bother to see a boat from one year's end to the other. The boats that tug at the heart are the little fishing schooners. They seem to come and go by night.

It is fine to see them come in at night but when you see them sail, perhaps in a blinding snowstorm, or in sleet or hail, or an enveloping fog, and you are shivering in a furcoat, with the heater on in the car, then you realize what hardships these men must endure. These boats are lonely looking boats, sailing out into the night with only their masthead lights visible. If the fishermen got a decent living, it would not be so bad, but to endure the hardships and to get a pittance seems unfair.

BIG FOR THEIR AGE

The child who is big for its age has its own particular problem and the mother of such a child needs to give it sympathetic consideration. In the first place, too much is expected of them. They are expected to act their size instead of acting their age. A teen-age who is over-size is apt to be very self-conscious. One woman told me that her whole childhood and youth had been spoiled because she was so big and was terribly self-conscious about it. Mothers can help by taking care with the choice of clothes. Dress them with consideration to their size. They should not be given too mature clothes, but then again they should not be babyish. The mother, in a desire to keep them their age, has a tendency to over-do the youthfulness of their clothes. There is a happy medium. Becoming clothes can do a lot to make a girl less conscious of her size. If dancing lessons are available, she should be given them to help her learn how to carry herself. Sports should be encouraged and for these she must have the equipment and the proper clothes. The overgrown boy has his problems too. We now have a guest, a thirteen year old boy, who is 5'9", weighs 150, his voice has changed and he might pass for eighteen. Temptations and responsibilities beyond his age are coming to him. Yet he enjoys playing on the floor with mechnanno or an electric train just as the average thirteen year old boy does. Mothers need to make allowance and to give extra help and support to the over-size child.

Bake in a slow oven of 325 degrees for about an hour. Cut in strips.

BEAN SOUP

Do you ever make a dish of soup with your left-over beans? You may use baked beans, lima beans or 'the little white beans that make the best pea soup'. Add a little water and a piece of onion to the beans and cook slowly until soft. Put through a sieve, add milk, a generous piece of butter and salt and pepper to taste.

Spring Fever Soups

By Betty Barclay

About this time of the year many of us find ourselves languid and tired. Nothing dangerous! Just Mother Nature complaining because we are continuing with our heavy winter eating with Spring already here. She gives us a touch of "Spring Fever" as punishment. Lighter foods are needed, but we must still have nourishment. How about some rich, light soups? Serve a large bowl, a light salad, a light dessert—and forget the heavy meat dish that night. Here are two excellent recipes:

LIMA PUREE

2 cups cooked, dried Limas
4 cups hot water
1 tablespoon grated onion or onion juice
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt

Rub Limas through a coarse strainer; add hot water, salt, pepper and onion. Heat to boiling point. Melt butter, add flour, stir until smooth, then add to hot soup, and cook five minutes longer, stirring constantly.

LIMA AND TOMATO SOUP

3 cups cooked, dried Limas
2 stalks celery
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1 1/2 cups cooked, strained tomatoes
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
3 pints water
2 slices onion

Put the Limas, water, onion and celery in a saucepan, simmer 30 minutes, then rub through a coarse sieve. Melt the butter, add flour, stir until smooth; add tomatoes and stir until hot, then add Lima mixture, green pepper and seasonings. Serve with crisp crackers.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING LAST EVENING

Watchman Editor Was Guest Speaker

With an attendance of about 30 members and guests, the 100 Club held another successful supper last evening at Desjardins Hotel, with Mr. J. S. Giles, editor and proprietor of The Watchman, as guest speaker. President Georges Héon filled the chair in his usual happy style. This being the Club's first assembly since the Coronation of King George VI, a toast was drunk to His Majesty and the Royal Family. With brief and appropriate sentiments Vice-President Dr. J. M. Drew proposed the toast, which drew a loyal response in the singing of God Save the King.

Business matters of the 100 Club were discussed, Secretary L. Armstrong also reading correspondence in connection with the "International" convention next month.

Centurion C. L. Hall then introduced Mr. Giles as speaker of the evening, and the gathering were told something of the early beginnings of newspaperdom in Lachute. Coming to Lachute as a compositor "duly indentured in the art and mystery of printing", Mr. Giles had taken employment in the old original Watchman Office and had aspired to own a printshop of his own. Money was scarce in those years of pioneer country journalism, a diversities came thick and fast, and the publishing of a small country newspaper with 300 subscribers—facing the opposition of several competitors—was an experience fraught with triumphs and hardships, thrills and discouragements. This had been Mr. Giles' formidable venture

Member of County Pioneer Family Dead in Alberta

SUDDEN PASSING OF FORMER RESIDENT

Was First Child Born in Old "Irish Settlement"

The district of La Pearl, Alta., was deeply grieved on Sunday evening, May 9th., to learn that Mr. Hugh Morrow had died suddenly from a heart attack. The deceased being in his usual good health, his death came as a severe shock to his family and neighbors.

Mr. Morrow was the eldest and only surviving son of the late Wm. Morrow and his wife, Susan McCluskey. He was born on January 12, 1862, in the township of Wentworth, known then as Irish Settlement. He was the first child born in that settlement.

At the age of twenty-one he joined the I.O.O.F. at Lost River, and was a steady member of that order, acting as W.M. for a number of years. In August 1890 he married Annie Morrison, daughter of the late Jas. Morrison and his wife, Kate Morrow, of Laurel, Que.

In May of the year 1910, Mr. Morrow along with his wife and family moved to their present home in Alberta, where he has since resided. He has lived to see the wild prairie cultivated into a flourishing community.

He was laid to rest in the La Pearl Cemetery on Tuesday, May 11th., beside his loving wife, who predeceased him almost seventeen years ago.

The burial service, which was largely attended, was conducted by Rev. Mr. G. Magnus of Wainwright. The pall-bearers were all pioneers of the district, Wm. Osborne, Robert Walker, Ernest Hawken, Dave Moncrieff, Joseph McCluskey and Robt. McCluskey.

Mr. Roger Gravel, former manager of the "A. & P." in Lachute, has returned to town and is now in the employ of T. McQuat & Son, Hardware. Many friends welcome his re-appearance in the local retail business.

THE KING SPOKE TO MONTREAL WITH A MIGHTY VOICE

What is said to be the largest and most powerful Public Address installation ever used in Canada was planned by the Montreal City Council as a fitting contribution towards the Coronation Day festivities at Jeanne Mance Park on May 12th. Thirty-six loudspeakers assembled on top of a forty foot tower gave faithful reproduction of the broadcast from England. The equipment was placed in operation at 5 A.M. and people up to a distance of two miles away reported being awakened by the sound. During the afternoon celebrations, one hundred thousand people stood in respectful silence and listened to the voice of His Majesty. (Photos courtesy "La Presse" and Northern Electric Co.)

REVIEW OF CANADA'S RECOVERY IN PAST FOUR YEARS SHOWS MANY ENCOURAGING FEATURES

"The Ottawa Spotlight"
By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, May 25.—The course This is a survey which might be made at any time, but there is a certain appropriateness about this season of the year, because it was almost exactly four years ago that the first unmistakable movement toward better times began in Canada. 1. National finances. Four years ago, we were told by pessimist leaders that we were headed toward "national bankruptcy". Three successive deficits of 84 million, 114 million, 221 million, coupled with the rising cost of meeting deficits of the Canadian National Railways and Steamships, and new demands from the provinces and the wheat fund, had created an alarming situation.

Perhaps the best way of sizing up the progress of the past four years is to take one after another the critical problems of the depression and see how we stand in regard to them now. (Continued on page 3)

County Women's Institutes Report an Active Month

Argenteuil County Women's Institutes have had an exceedingly busy month, receiving Her Excellency Lady Tweedsmuir and Miss H. B. McCain, as well as their usual activities. Coronation Members were made in every branch except one, that particular branch having made a life member just a month earlier.

Brownsburg Branch heard an interesting address on "Salt and its Uses", given by Mrs. J. A. Campbell. They served supper to a visiting bowling team in aid of the funds, held a tree-planting Coronation service on the school grounds, and a number of members attended the Lady Tweedsmuir reception.

Frontier Branch enjoyed a talk on "The Value of Raising Small Fruits" by Prof. Oliver of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, also two interesting and humorous papers on the advantages which farm women have over those of the city, by Mrs. W. Usher and Miss M. Whelehan. Arrangements for two prominent county meetings were made.

Members of the Historical Society are again reminded of the meeting of the Executive, called by the President to meet at the residence of Mr. Lanctôt, St. Andrews, on Saturday, May 29th. (4 p.m. S.T.) to which they will be made welcome.

The present stage of this Barracks-Museum project presents the possibility of an achievement quite monumental in its importance, whether or not government aid can at once be obtained.

At this time, Argenteuil certainly has a unique opportunity to win nation-wide distinction and the gratitude of posterity, as the pioneer in this new field of museum development, thus following the example of Old England and New England where the teaching museum is made the educational centre of the public school and an instrument of popular education. . . . Therein lies the strength of its claim for support, and a future of perennial interest.

The next theme of these guidebook reviews will be "The Trained Director" and his Understudy, the presiding genius of the institution, in whose hands rests its destiny; where can he be found, how long will his services be needed, how is he to be paid? Our Guides will advise us.

This is the crucial solution of the museum problem if success is to be attained.

Lachute also heard an interesting talk with lantern slides, on "Beautifying Home Surroundings", by Prof. Oliver, under the sponsorship of Mrs. C. F. James, with a roll call of "How to Rid Gardens of Pests". Arrangements for the Tweedsmuir reception and the county convention were made, and a report was given on the school-children for whom they had been supplying milk — the report showing that these children had gained in weight.

Jerusalem - Bethany Branch witnessed a cake-icing demonstration by Mrs. McCullough, and answered their roll call by a verse pertaining to "Mothers" also with instances of habits copied from mothers. Current Events were also given by Miss H. Hume.

Lakefield held a seed exchange among the members; arranged to make Mrs. Kyle a life member; raised their membership fee to fifty cents; gained one new member, and planned a card party. The branch also donated two books to the local school as prizes.

Morin Heights heard a report on "Immigration, and the Kind of Immigrant Canada Needs", by the convenor, Mrs. T. E. Seale. They answered their roll call by naming an immigrant who became a prominent Canadian. The branch made a life member of Mrs. J. E. Seale. A candy contest was held, and prizes given. Salad recipes were discussed, and the branch gained three new members; also $3.26 was collected for fireworks for a Coronation celebration.

Pioneer Branch heard a very interesting address on "The Value of School Fairs and Calf Clubs to the Youth of the Land" by Mr. Alec. MacLaurin of Ottawa, who told of the work done in Boys' and Girls' Clubs from coast to coast. Their roll-

QUEBEC PREMIER BARS FORCED CONVERSION MUNICIPAL BONDS

Conversion of municipal issues in the province of Quebec will not be permitted, declared Premier Duplessis when the Private Bills Committee of the Legislative Assembly commenced to consider the clauses of the City of Quebec Bill. The reference was to a general conversion clause for all outstanding city bonds, to be redeemed by payment of cash, or by new issue of bonds at a rate which council would determine, irrespective of their maturity date, in the same manner as if such bonds contained a general redemption clause. Contracts had to be respected in the province, said the Premier.

ONTARIO LIEUT.-GOVERNOR VIEWS LIVERPOOL SLUM PROJECTS

Hon. Herbert Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, has been making a keen study of slum clearance and housing projects in Great Britain during his visit to attend the Coronation.

Dr. Bruce also plans to see similar projects in London and Manchester, and probably in Birmingham and Leeds. The Lieutenant-Governor said he was much impressed with the progress made in that direction in the United Kingdom.

call was "Helpful Hints in Chicken Raising." The members also exchanged plants and bulbs.

Mrs. G. Armstrong read the "In Memoriam" notice to the late Mrs. W. Todd from Home and Country, also the poem "Familiar Miracle" from the same magazine by the Argenteuil county president, Mrs. A. Graham, and a letter of appreciation from a sick member for a plant. Mrs. R. Bradley, who had been a member of the branch for over twenty years, during which period she had served as Branch President, Vice President, Sec.-Treasurer and held different convenorships and had the honor to be second President of Argenteuil County, was made a life member by her branch at the Tweedsmuir reception.

Upper Lachute - East End had 22 members to answer the roll call of "Favorite vegetable and How to Prepare It", and to hear Mrs. H. Millar's address on "Garden Pests and How to Destroy Them." This branch also made Mrs. J. Gordon their Coronation life member.

BRUCE BARTON
Says:

MOVING MOUNTAINS IS NOT EASY

Mahomet, who after more than a thousand years has two hundred and twenty million followers, told the people that he was directly commissioned by the Almighty and hence endowed with super-natural powers. The Arabs, being skeptical, said: "If you will cause Mount Safa to come to you we will believe that you really have the goods."

Mahomet accepted the challenge and, full of faith in himself, commanded the mountain to approach. Nothing happened. Mount Safa did not budge an inch. This was a ticklish moment. Had he been a modern politician he would immediately have sought to divert the people's minds by crying: "I did my best, but the Supreme Court would not let me." Or, "The Big Interests have run around behind the mountain and nailed it down."

Mahomet was wiser. Said he: "God is merciful. Had the mountain obeyed my command it would have fallen upon us, and all you Arabs would have been killed. I, therefore, will go to the mountain, and I thank Allah for having had mercy on a stiff-necked generation."

The stiff-necked and barefooted Arabs, wooed by the candor and innate wisdom of the remark, concluded that so wise and frank a gentleman must indeed be endowed with something more than human intelligence, and promptly gave him their loyalty.

FOR GREATER EDUCATION

"Your problem is personnel", I said to a banker. "How are you solving it?"

"Well, we try to pick the smartest young men from the colleges, men who have majored in economics and finance. We start them in at the bottom and let them fight their way up. Some drop by the wayside, but the survivors develop into very good men."

"After your young man has had two or three years' experience in the bank, you ought to pull him out and send him into the heart of the country", I said. "Make him spend a year or two working on a farm, or with a section gang on the railroad, or clerking in a country store. Insist that he live on what he earns..."

"When he comes back to New York he will have some idea of how hard ordinary people have to work for their money. He will have a social as well as a merely financial point of view. A dollar will never become merely a sign or a sum to him. It will represent hopes and fears, ambitions and defeats, human sweat and blood."

I am one of those who believe that we are entering a period of great social changes. No matter how big and strong an institution or an industry may be it is going to be tested. Those institutions will win out which are headed by men of broad human sympathies; men who can see the other man's point of view because they have shared the other man's daily life.

"ADOPTS" DISTRESSED TOWN

Eastbourne, the English seaside resort, has "adopted" Blaenavon, a town in the South Wales distressed area, and will purchase provisions and clothes there to benefit trade in the town.

PRIZES FOR HOME BEAUTIFICATION

In an effort to promote civic beauty during the coming summer, the city council of Outremont, Que., has decided to inaugurate a city-wide competition, with cups to be awarded to the owners of the best-maintained properties. Every assistance will be given to property holders to insure the success of the plan.

For the purpose of the competition, Outremont will be divided into three wards, and a first and second prize will be given in each ward. In addition, a first and second general prize will be awarded to the two residences which are considered to be the most carefully looked after in the city. City gardeners will be available to give cost estimates and expert advice free of charge to residents, and will also be prepared to do improvement work, such as providing shrubs, soil and plants, at cost. The city will also lay sod on the lawns in front of houses, charging only for the actual cost of the sod requirement.

The Ottawa Spotlight

Weekly Review of National Affairs
Specially written for The Lachute Watchman
By Wilfrid Eggleston

To-day, no one talks about 'national bankruptcy'. The deficit in the national accounts will be almost extinguished this year, by the look of things. The demand of the C.N. is decreasing. The provinces are requiring less. No one to-day doubts the ability of the national treasury to emerge solvent from its present burden.

2. Wheat. Four years ago, the 'stabilization' of wheat had involved the Dominion government in a contingent liability of many millions of dollars. To-day, that has been cleaned up with a very small loss.

3. Unemployment Relief . . . Four years ago this burden was growing rapidly and fearsomely. This is a department in which recovery has been slow, but at last help is in sight. As compared with last year, when 29 million dollars was distributed by the Dominion for direct relief, it is expected that 19 millions will do this year. All relief camps have been closed up, and are not expected to reopen. Several cities of Canada have ceased distributing direct relief, and almost all others, except in the drought areas, are cutting it down substantially this summer.

4. External trade. Canada's exports in the fiscal year 1933 had fallen to 537 million dollars. In four years they have practically doubled, being well over the billion mark. Canada has risen from sixth place among world nations in 1933 to fourth place in the trade year 1936-37.

5. Unemployment. Exact figures are not available, and cannot be cited. But four years ago the number of persons unemployed was estimated to be over 700,000. Now, that figure has almost been cut in half. Employment in industry has risen 25 per cent in that time, which suggests that at least 400,000 additional workers have been engaged in Canadian industry and agriculture since the low mark of four years ago.

6. The physical volume of business has risen by nearly 40 per cent since 1933. That is, for every 100 tons of merchandise moved in that year, or created, or processed, there are now 140 tons being so dealt with.

Mining, production of electrical power, production of pulp and paper, have all reached new all-time levels in recent months. The grave disparity between farm prices and manufactured goods, so prominent four years ago, is being rectified.

So much for the advances. What are the 'black spots', the areas and industries failing to show proportionate improvement?

Provincial finances west of the Great Lakes are still in parlous condition. Except for British Columbia, nothing short of drastic action will save them from default. Remedial attention, to be followed by a royal commission inquiry, has already been given to this problem.

The railway situation improves very slowly. Direct relief remains abnormally high. The problem of the drought-stricken areas of the west grows rather than diminishes. The fishing industry in the Maritimes leaves much to be desired.

However, taken by and large, the survey is not a depressing one.

Coronation Film Showing Here, Tomorrow Only

The management of Rex Theatre is happy to announce the showing of the Coronation pictures tomorrow, Friday, for one night only. This feature comes direct from the Capitol Theatre, Montreal, and has been procured at considerable experience for this early date. The film will be shown as an additional attraction to the regular program.

Aim at Attractiveness and Utility in Bathroom Scheme

The bathroom is often a dressing room in some homes and it should be made as attractive a room as possible. In this day and age there are numerous products on the market that make it easy to modernize this oft-neglected place.

Funds for such modernization are available through the Home Improvement Plan, under which banks advance the necessary funds, and are guaranteed against loss by the Dominion Government up to fifteen per cent of the total amount advanced by them for this purpose.

Built-in shelves, similar to those used for books or glassware, add to the attractiveness of the bathroom. Bottles of lotions, creams and powders may be stored here, as well as fresh towels for the use of guests.

A large mirror over the basin is a boon to all members of the household, particularly when it is lighted by an adequate fixture which throws the light properly and does not permit a glare.

A recess tub adds to the illusion of grandeur and is a real convenience, making it easier to clean, and providing less of an opportunity for splashed walls and fixtures when the shower is turned on.

Walls may be tiled, papered with washable paper or any of a number of attractive composition coverings used. Floor and walls may match, if the owner desires, or a blend of color may be used.

All craft belonging to Sea Scout troops are now in the water and ready for summer training, it was reported.

CONCRETE

Means a SAFE Driving Surface

Even after you have straight roads, or properly-built curves, adequate sight distances, sufficient widths — even separating boulevards, grade separations, warning signs, traffic signals — there still is needed the safest possible pavement surface. Your own experience and that of countless other motorists tells you that concrete is safest. Its gritty surface is skid-resistant in all weathers. Its light gray color defines road edges and makes for safe night driving. Its flat crown makes the whole surface usable.

Advocate concrete paving, for safety, comfort and economy.

B.B.C. To Have World's Best Theatre for Television

Work is to begin at once on television's first theatre which will create a revolution in production methods. The theatre at Alexandra Palace, London, leased to the B.B.C. when they went there last summer but disused for lack of funds, will be equipped at the cost of a special government grant.

The auditorium will be altered to let a dozen or more stage sets be built round the walls.

Televised plays will thus be able to shift from scene to scene without interruption by fading one camera out and fading in another. Variety artists will be able to perform in front of their own scenery, as in a music hall.

Great galleries will be built in the roof to house the cameras for overhead shots. The most up-to-date system of lighting will be installed.

At present television has only one small studio, necessitating a fade-out and an interval when the scenery is shifted. Within eight months it will have the largest and best equipped studio in the world.

Auto Horns Unheard in Truck Drivers' Cabs

From time to time communications have been addressed to the Royal Automobile Club by members, pointing out that frequently their horn signals have gone unnoticed by drivers of trucks which are approached from the rear, due apparently to the fact that such drivers, enclosed in cabs, do not hear the signals. Manager McNamee, having been informed that in France a device had been put in use which, by means of a microphone or other appliance, picked up the signal and conveyed it to the driver ahead, wrote to the Automobile Manufacturers Association in New York asking if that body had considered the installation of such devices in commercial vehicles. Mr. Norman Damon, manager of the Association's safety department, wrote in reply as follows:

"It is our understanding that Western Electric Company's sound engineers have been conducting some research on this subject. We are advised that experiments showed that in order to step up amplification to such an extent that the approaching vehicle could be heard, a number of disconcerting non-related noises were picked up by the device. Further, the devices in their present stage involve the use of considerable power and rather cumbersome equipment."

Rules One Quarter of the Human Race

There are many countries and many rulers in the world, but no human leader has ever been looked up to as representative head of so many peoples as King George the Sixth.

A few months ago he did not expect to be King-Emperor, nor did he seek the exalted honor. And yet today, clean of record, dignified in person, respected and honored, there he sits, potentially the mightiest monarch of all time.

Nor does he rule by might and fear so much as by good-will and the spirit of co-operation.

Not only do the far flung democratic dominions of the British Empire look upon him as their unifying head, but millions in America, Belgium, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden and other lands look to him as representing the force by which essential human liberties may yet be saved for the enjoyment and enrichment of mankind.

Do We Expect Too Much?

"Today, in this complicated world, we have too many emotionally unbalanced homes and too many emotionally immature persons. Yet, with this handicap, we raise children, expecting them to ignore these influences and become the outstanding adults of tomorrow."

These words of Otis L. Graham before the Texarkana Rotary Club remind us of the homely but intelligent man who married the beautiful but dumb Dora. He hoped their children would be both beautiful and intelligent. You know the answer?

Mr. Graham also said that parents too often forget there are three vital things which are the right of every newcomer to this earth. These three vital things are "good breeding, good feeding (physical, mental and spiritual) and good leading."

Safety School Inaugurated in Toronto

Motorists in Toronto who persist in traffic offences will be notified to attend an instruction class in safe driving. Brig.-Gen. D. C. Draper made the announcement recently at the opening of the Toronto City Police Safety and Accident Prevention School.

Hogging the centre of the road, disregarding the pedestrians' right-of-way at intersections, disobeying stop signs, passing children playing in the streets at too fast a rate of speed without having car under control, are among offences qualifying drivers to enroll at the school.

After first lessons, the "student" will be brought promptly back to classes if he passes other cars at intersections, carelessly deviates from the traffic lane in which he is driving, passes other autos on the right, carelessly and abruptly turns corners at high speed or any of the other things that contribute to accidents.

A Desperate Case

No one should be permitted to go hungry in any land of plenty. That is why public relief was instituted. But the present set-up has its evils—one of them illustrated unwittingly in this letter written to relief headquarters in Boulder, Colo. "We made application for relief," the letter states, "but had to wait so long my husband had to go out and look for a job. He found one."

"It would tend to give us better government, more consistent, more solid, more stable government—if we had our mayor elected from the council and by the council instead of as at present. We could always count, then, on a man tried in the furnace; we should have him chosen by the men who know him best as a civic servant; and we should conserve and not waste experience and talent."

SILVERSON—In loving memory of our dear Jack, who departed this life May 28th, 1935.

'Tis lonely here without you, Jack,
There is such a vacant place,
Where we never hear your footsteps,

Our lips cannot speak how we loved
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God only knows how we miss you,
As we journey along on life's way.

Sadly missed by Mother and Father.

That tells how the heart is torn;
But the lonely tears of the after years,
And remembrance silently borne.

Report on Mineral Findings in Lachute Area

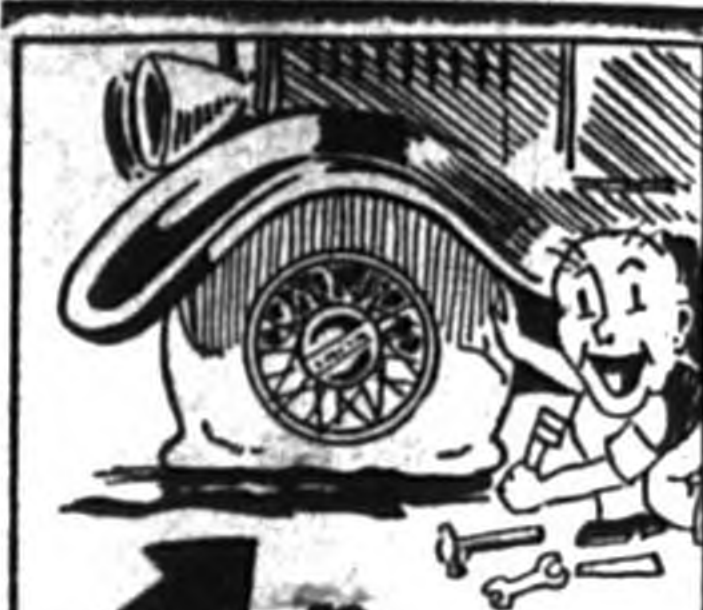

Notes of a geological study of the Lachute area, made by F. Fitz Osborne under instructions from the Quebec Bureau of Mines, indicate that this area is economically important—states a recent mining report. A variety of products including talc, graphite, feldspar, mica, phosphate, marl, marble, limestone and granite have been produced. The principal production at present is silica and magnesite dolomite. Canadian Silica and Kaolin Company has added a new diesel unit, and the growing use of magnesite has caused the Canadian Refractories to diamond drill their deposits to ascertain the position of ore bodies.

Potsdam sandstone is quarried near St. Canute for the manufacture of carborundum. Some research has been done on mining methods applicable to the kaolin deposits near St. Remi with a view of re-opening them; three diamond-drill holes were sunk on these deposits.

The geological observations made in the Lachute area gave evidence of the presence of other minerals that might be of economic interest if they were explored, and a probability that other minerals may be found.

Extensive Road-work in Progress Through County

CONTRACT GRANTED FOR TRANS-CANADA ROUTE

The Provincial Roads Department is particularly active through Argenteuil County at this season, and no less than 200 men are busy at one point or another patching up last winter's damages, white-washing road signs and posts, trucking gravel and generally making the roads fit for travel.

This is exclusive of the new artery being built on the Morin Heights—Sixteen Island circuit, where 150 men are in camp working at top-speed for an early completion.

We are informed that the contract for the Trans-Canada highway was granted yesterday at noon, and that at least 150 men will be at work from Lachute to the Perley bridge within another two weeks.

This substantial roads program should prove a boon all around in Argenteuil, and should greatly alleviate the relief situation. Mr. Geo. Héon, provincial representative, is being kept busy with the arrangements, and one is pleased to note the efficient and impartial manner in which he is handling this situation.

Burned on Calumet Company's River-Tug

Two men were taken to Dr. E. P. Kelly's hospital at Hawkesbury recently suffering from burns about the hands and face, the result of an explosion which occurred in a gasoline tug which they were attempting to start. The men are Philippe Cayen, 54, captain and engineer of the tug, and Timothy Lemay, 57.

Cayen said he believed the explosion was caused by a back-fire in the motor as it occurred while he was attempting to start it. Other men on board at the time escaped injury.

The tug is a thirty foot craft owned by a lumber mill in Calumet. It is used for towing small rafts of logs. The boat is a new one, and was brought down only recently from Ottawa.

Funeral Tomorrow of Former Upper Lachute Resident

THE LATE MRS. R. HODGE

It is with regret we record the death of the late Mrs. Richard Hodge, nee Elizabeth Strong, who passed away peacefully in the Montreal General Hospital on Wednesday, May 26th.

Mrs. Hodge was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Strong of Arundel, Que., and spent the greater part of her married life in Upper Lachute, later moving to Montreal.

In consideration of her many friends in Montreal as well as in Lachute, a short service is being held at 12.30 D.S.T. Friday, May 28th., from Armstrong's Undertaking Parlours, Park Ave., Montreal. Thence the remains will be brought to Lachute United Church for a further service, at 2.30 p.m. D.S.T.

Her former pastor, the Rev. B. B. Brown, of Wesley United Church, Montreal, will conduct both services, assisted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough of Lachute.

She is survived by five daughters and two sons, her husband having predeceased her six years ago.

Charge Postal Accounts

There was a time when it was not necessary to pay cash for stamps used for postage. The postmaster of the United States and of other offices extended credit and sent bills to patrons at the end of the month as one merchants do now, at one time in the early history of the post office. One such bill cherished by a philatelist reads: "H. Farnum & Co. to the Philadelphia post office, to postage for the month of August 1845—$27.57." The bill carried a memo which said: "It is confidentially expected that bills of postage will be paid by the tenth of the month, and it will greatly facilitate the delivery of letters from the boxes if gentlemen will have the goodness to pay their bills between the hours of 9 a. m. and 3 p. m."

Slot Machines Seized By Provincial Police

Responding to numerous complaints received against the operation of the gambling devices in the form of slot machines, the Provincial Police made a raid in the County last Sunday morning, and from Pointe-au-Chene through to Lachute they confiscated a number of these machines. It is understood this is only the first of a series of raids to be made by the Provincial Police, acting under orders from the Attorney-General's Department, who are bent on a general clean-up among those who are wilfully setting the law at defiance.

DO FAIRIES PEEK?

Where dainty trilliums grew,
I wondered what was hiding there
And drew off my little shoes—
And crept, quite softly in bare feet
To see what I could see—
No one was there, but I am sure
A Fairy peeked at me!

TINKLES ARRIVES AT THE BEAVER POND

The song had ceased, and instead the children heard gruff, funny voices which sounded like those of the performing seals that they had seen at the Fall Fair.

One voice, louder than the others, said suddenly, "Yes, Miss Tinkles, I have travelled a bit in my time, making my way from one stream to the other, and I have seen maple trees growing as far south as the State of Georgia. They call them the Mountain Maples down there; their growing range is from that mighty big river that the ocean boats come up in our own country, right out to Minnesota North, along the Indian Mountains."

"The Indian Mountains! Where are they?" asked little Lorette.

"I think he means the Appalachians," said Aunt Jean, "and I suppose you know what river he meant by the 'mighty big one'?"

"Yes, we do," said Ted. "That's the St. Lawrence."

"Then," continued the seal-like voice, "there's the Moose Wood tree, it belongs to the maple family. It is called the Striped Maple, but got the name Moose Wood because the moose were so fond of it they were always eating its branches."

"Perhaps that is why it grows so small and scrubby around here," said Bob. "Perhaps the moose keep the heads chewed off then."

"Perhaps," said Aunt Jean with a smile, her needles flying swiftly as she worked.

"Yes, there's a Silver Maple too, Miss Tinkles, although some folks call it the White Maple. But it is not one of our Canadian trees, although it is planted as an ornamental tree. It belongs down in the Mississippi, where it is one of the largest and most common of river trees. But the maple I like best is the Red Maple—or Swamp Maple some folks call it; it grows very high, sometimes 80 to 100 feet. It grows in eastern North America; and it would not suit the Sapsucker here, as it does not produce sap so plentifully as the other kinds do. Now perhaps Soft Fur here will tell you about some other kinds. He came from Europe, and should know more about them than I do."

A sudden splashing sound led the children to believe that the beaver, so unexpectedly called upon, had been seized with shyness and had popped into the pond.

"Fraid Cat, Fraid Cat!" screamed Blue Cap, the Jay. "Come on out, Soft Fur, and talk to us. There's no one going to hurt you."

A quivering voice said, "I did not know that I was expected to speak; and all I can tell you is that, in Europe there is the Norway Maple, that grows from Norway to Switzerland. Its leaves are very much like your sugar maple, but they stay on the trees two weeks longer and fall with very little change of color. Then, too, the Sycamore Maple has leaves very much like your sugar maple, but much darker in color, and thicker; it is a European tree. And now since Flat Tail has got me started, I am going to say that there is another maple which I have seen in swamps and along streams of the Mississippi valley, called the Box Elder or Ash-Leaved Maple, that grows as far as New York in one direction, north to Winnipeg and British Columbia in another, and as far south as Florida. And your own sugar maple is abundant through eastern North America and grows as high as 120 feet. I tell you, there's a grand splash when we cut one down as high as that!" Another splash told the children that Soft Fur had dived into the water again, as he had finished talking.

"Thank you, dear Beavers, for your interesting tales. Nunks and I have enjoyed them, but we must hurry off to attend to the Blue Bell Family, and I am afraid we will have to take our radio with us..."

Tinkles had scarcely uttered those words before the little silver radio disappeared, so quietly that none of the children could be certain just how, or in what direction it went.

"We are all quite sorry to lose the radio, but it has been kind of Tinkles to leave it with us so long," said Aunt Jean, "and before we part I think I shall tell you a little legend about the Sycamore Maple which is one of the most beautiful of European maples. In the 13th century, miracle plays were staged in almost all the churches in Europe. One of the favorite plays was the one depicting the flight of Joseph and Mary into Egypt. They were supposed to have rested under a sycamore tree, and as there were no real sycamore trees in the countries where the plays were enacted, this beautiful maple was chosen to take its place—and enacted, this beautiful maple was chosen to take its place—and that is how it got its name, the Sycamore Maple; and Sycamore Maple it remains until this day."

"Thank you, Aunt Jean," cried a chorus of voices, as the children trooped out for a jolly game in the yard at the back of the house.

Next story, "The Old Corn Planter" (Copyright) —AUNT JEAN

A negro mammy down south named one of her offspring "Morphine".

"Why do you call her Morphine?" she was asked one day.

"Cause Ah done heard white folks say morphine am a 'product ob de wile poppy, and if ebber a child had a wile poppy, dis am him."

CARE AND EFFICIENCY are the big factors in our dry-cleaning and steam pressing service. We guarantee our work on all varieties of goods and material. Such items as CURTAINS and WOOLENS renovated to perfection.

Look Behind the Mirror

In the average home, writes Leverett D. Bristol, M.D., the cabinet holding remedies for cases of sudden illness or accident often lies behind a mirror in the bathroom. In your eagerness to keep a constant check on the face reflected in the mirror and to apply various soaps, lotions, creams and powders, don't forget occasionally to give a thought to what lies behind the mirror and check up periodically on your supply of home first aid remedies and toilet articles, many of which must be clean and fresh to be safe and efficacious.

Start in by keeping the cabinet itself thoroughly clean, sanitary and in good order. Have a place for everything and keep everything in its place, so that you may put your hands on it immediately when needed. Keeping articles in accustomed places and avoiding the hurried grabbing of a box or bottle in the dark will prevent many a possible catastrophe through administering the wrong medicine in an emergency. At least once a year, the materials in the medicine chest should be examined and replenished with the discarding of old boxes and bottles. Remember that with age liquid solutions tend to evaporate, thus becoming more concentrated and often too strong for use. The medicine cabinet should be kept locked, or at least out of the reach of children. All boxes or bottles should be carefully labeled with date of purchase, nature of contents and intended use. To conserve space and expense and to prevent deterioration through ageing only small quantities of each substance should be kept on hand.

In general, it may be stated that the following articles should be included in home emergency supplies:

1. Instruments such as pairs of scissors and tweezers; a hot-water bottle, an ice bag and a clinical thermometer.

2. Bandages, gauze, absorbent cotton and adhesive tape.

3. A stimulant, such as aromatic spirits of ammonia, for use in fainting or shock; an emetic, such as syrup of ipecac, to produce emergency vomiting; a mild laxative, such as mineral oil, cascara sagrada, milk of magnesia, or sodium phosphate, to be used only infrequently; a remedy to alleviate pain, which should be used only as a matter of first aid and not continued except under a physician's supervision.

4. An application for first aid treatment of burns; an antiseptic, such as diluted tincture of iodine (3% per cent solution) for emergency use on cuts and scratches.

Ask your doctor, if you have any doubt as to what articles should be kept in your medicine chest or if you wish information as to the scientific medicinal value of any particular product. Don't get into the unwise habit of self-diagnosis or self-treatment; remember that your physician should be consulted in all except minor emergencies and that the home medicine cabinet is a poor makeshift for a doctor. If properly used as a first aid adjunct, the home medicine cabinet may be the greatest boon to health and safety in the home; if misused as a substitute for the doctor, it may encourage all sorts of self-medication, leading often to disastrous results.

In addition to first aid supplies listed above, the usual toilet articles, such as toothbrush and a dentifrice, should be included for routine personal and individual use. Not all articles of this nature are of equal merit. Your dentist's advice should serve to guide you in your choice of articles for the care of mouth, gums and teeth. To complete the contents of the medicine cabinet, small quantities of such articles as rubbing alcohol, boric acid, vaseline and sodium bicarbonate may be included, according to one's desires and needs.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUNDAY SERVICES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 30th., is "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced." The Golden Text is:—"I am with thee to save thee and to deliver thee, saith the Lord. And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible." (Jeremiah 15: 20, 21).

The following passages are selected from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:—

"No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord." (Isaiah 54: 17).

"Never fear the mental mal-practitioner, the mental assassin, who, in attempting to rule mankind, tramples upon the divine Principle of metaphysics, for God is the only power." (Science and Health, page 419)

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

A SEA SCOUT FLEET ON LAKE ONTARIO

Lake Ontario will this summer see a fleet under the Boy Scout flag. The Sea Scouts of Toronto, through the good offices of Commodore T. K. Wade of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, have acquired two additional schooners. With the two previously acquired, they now have a fleet of four of these old time craft, and in addition a motor auxiliary, and other similar craft.

SCOUTS TO PARADE AT TORONTO EX.

The popular parade of Wolf Cubs and Boy Scouts will again be featured at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, on the last day of the fair. The day will be known as "Citizens' and Boy Scouts' Day". An invitation will be extended to Cubs and Scouts throughout the province to come to Toronto and participate. In addition to the parade, there will be displays of Scout and Cub training activities.

A SCOUT LEADER'S INDIAN PLAY

A new venture in Boy Scout entertainment, an original musical play, "The Flight of an Arrow", was put on successfully by the 10th Wychwood Scout Troop and Cub Pack at Vaughan Road Collegiate, Toronto.

The story was the work of Scoutmaster Fred Tighe and the musical arrangement by Mr. W. H. Watson. The play concerns an Indian princess, a missionary's daughter kidnapped in childhood, and the search for her by a young Mounty whose parents had been murdered by the Indians when he was a boy.

WORLD SCOUT JAMBOREE POSTAGE STAMPS

Special postage stamps of three denominations have been issued by the Netherlands government in honour of the Fifth World Jamboree of Boy Scouts to be held in Holland from July 31st. to August 13th. next. The 1½ cent depicts a Dutch Boy Scout badge on a light green background, the 6 cent stamp depicts a drummer against a background of flags of different nations, calling the Scouts of the world together, and the 12½ cent stamp portrays the head and shoulders of a curly-headed Dutch Scout with arm outstretched in salute to the youth of the world. The stamps bear the legend, "Nederland-Wereld Jamboree, 1937."

MARCHING ALONG TOGETHER

My desk is at a window and overlooks the street. It is a lovely sunny morning and several mothers with their small children have been out for a walk. One woman and her small daughter, probably a three year old, were having a struggle. The mother wanted to hold the child by the hand and the child objected. They would go along hand-in-hand and after a few steps the child would free herself and walk along quietly by herself. But this did not suit the mother and she would again take the child by the hand and the performance would be repeated. I did not blame the child. Think how uncomfortable it would be to walk with an arm held up as this child's had to be to reach her mother's hand. No wonder she wanted to walk by herself. In a dangerous situation, it might be necessary, but on a quiet street it seemed a futile precaution.

Modern dairying—80 years old...

This 1937 season marks the 80th anniversary of modern dairying.

It was 80 years ago this Spring that Gail Borden established the first successful commercial plant to "can" yesterday's milk for use next week, next month or next year.

Gail Borden's first small factory started milk on its way to new and world-wide markets. Every dairyman shares in the wider markets and greater uses of milk brought about by his leadership.

Borden, on the 80th anniversary of modern dairying, pledges to continue this tradition of leadership in extending the uses for milk.

Dionne Babies in Radio Broadcast Tomorrow

The squeals and laughter of the world's most famous babies, the Dionne Quintuplets, and the voices of Dr. Allan Roy D'Amore, their physician, Judge J. A. Valin, of the board of guardians, and the nurses, will be broadcast throughout the North American continent when the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation present from Callander, Ont., from 5.30 to 6.00 p.m. EST, the celebrations of the quintuplets' third birthday party tomorrow, May 28.

CBC officials, now at Callander making preparations for the broadcast, report that the children, who now can talk, recite nursery rhymes and sing simple songs, have developed into real radio talent and are expected to provide the most interesting broadcast ever presented from this Northern Ontario nursery. As in previous broadcasts, officials of the CBC will work behind glass partitions to insure complete safety for the babies and portable microphones will be installed inside the nursery to pick up their sounds and voices.

About a mile and a half of broadcasting circuit will be strung from the hospital to the nearest pole line in order to carry the program to North Bay, thence to Toronto for transmission to the network.

Canadian Women in Public Positions

Sometimes we feel that the women's vote has been far from satisfactory because of the few women we have in office. There is one thing, if we have not quantity we have quality. When Miss McPhail was elected first, there were a great many sceptics. Time has changed that and even those who do not always agree with her (as few can), admire her honesty and courage and do not question her ability. One of Miss McPhail's greatest assets is her ability to change her mind. Only the small mind remains static. Mrs. Wilson has filled her position in the Senate with dignity. Mrs. Fallis has a special knowledge of the farm and its needs and is a fluent speaker. Mrs. Black, as the wife of a member, has been in the thick of politics for years and is a capable woman who knows her way about. Besides these members of both houses, there are official appointments which are capably filled. There is no woman who knows better what pleases the people than Nellie McLung and this should prove valuable on the Radio Board. Charlotte Whitten comes to mind as another valuable woman in the right place as Secretary to the Council of Child and Family Welfare, who contributes her special knowledge to the sessions at Geneva and brings back the experience of other countries. We may be going very slowly, but we are being sure, in the fine type of women we have in official positions.

Flour & Feed in Quantity MAIN STREET, LACHUTE

If you want extra choice specimen flowers of peonies you should disbud them the same as you do dahlias. Just save the center bud on each stalk, pinching out those on the sides at the leaf points. Of course, if you just want to have a good show in the garden, those side shoots will produce fairly good-sized flowers. But those who take pride in flowers of extra size and perfect shape will want to disbud peonies as well as, in some instances, roses.

In connection with roses a great deal depends upon the variety. Such freely blooming kinds of Gruss and Teplitz, and the hybrid perpetual roses which bloom during the month of June only, need no dis-budding. Grow them primarily for garden show rather than for cut-flower purposes.

Cultivate your roses. Feed freely with liquid manure; if extra large show blooms are wanted cut off all but the terminal bud. One sure way to get control of rose bugs is to pick them by hand into a can of kerosene.

Your dahlias should be staked as soon as you can get the twine around the shoot. Do not set out dahlia clumps, but divide them, leaving but one eye to each root. Do not plant any of the fleshy tubers unless they have a piece of the neck of the stalk on them, in which case they may develop an eye. The safest thing to do with dahlias is to plant the old clump and divide when the eyes begin to show, which would be after a week or ten days.

Treat yourself to a warm, soapy bath every day after your tasks are done and before the children troop in from school. You deserve that indulgence, and it keeps you young.

The simpler the garment, the more striking are the color combinations sanctioned by fashion.

SAFE ANTISEPTICS

It seems to me that every quack in the country is exploiting some "antiseptic". Nevertheless people do need antiseptics for emergency treatment.

The laborer "skins" his hand. It may be a poisoned wound; he has no certain way of knowing, but he must play safe. He has probably a bottle of tincture of iodine,—maybe a little of mercurchrome—quite likely a teaspoonful of carbolic acid at the house. There are no better antiseptics. He may swab the abrasion with either drug in its commercial state, except the carbolic acid, which he must reduce with water, one part to four. Prompt swabbing with a real antiseptic may preserve a limb—maybe life itself. One must not take any chances.

NOBODY ENJOYS TAKING MEDICINE!

Yet most people at some time suffer from common constipation. Why not correct this condition the natural way—by including a ready-to-eat cereal with your daily meals instead of taking weakening pills and drugs?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN adds the "bulk" the average system needs. In the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft, spongelike mass—which gently cleanses the intestines.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines and iron for the blood.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls a day, as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into appetizing muffins, breads, etc. Three times daily in severe cases.

ALL-BRAN is sold at all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

Why have a weather-beaten face? Before going out for your morning's shopping smooth hand lotion or foundation cream beneath your face powder.

Book of the Week: The Power of Sympathy, by William Hill Brown, is chiefly interesting because it was the first American novel. Originally published in 1789, only 15 copies are known today. The present edition by the Columbia University Press is an exact facsimile of the original reproduced by the photo-offset process.

Use a complexion brush and bath brush to clear away dead, flaky skin. Brushing is stimulating and invigorating, and the new underskin will be clearer and fairer.

If you are troubled with dry skin, try replenishing the body oil deficiencies by eating more butter, milk, mayonnaise, and olive oil.

Household Hint: When stewing rhubarb or gooseberries, add 1/4 teaspoon of baking soda to each two cups. This reduces the quantity of sugar required by one-third.
