Dial Telephone System in B'burg Early Next Year

DISTRICT MANAGER DISCUSSES LOCAL CONDITIONS: "TRAFFIC LOAD" SHOWS NEED OF NEW EXCHANGE

Official announcement comes from Manager J. J. Morrin of the Bell Telephone Company that Brownsburg is to have dial telephone service early next year. "We plan to install a small dial telephone community office in Brownsburg consisting of 138 lines and 200 terminals," Mr. Morrin said in an interview.

"Under the present system Brownsburg telephone connections are made at Lachute. Steady growth in the telephone service demands at Brownsburg, however, has resulted in an increasingly heavy traffic load on the subscribers' lines between Brownsburg and the switchboard in Lachute. The change in service, consistent with Bell Telephone policy of programming well ahead, will avoid the necessity of overloading subscribers' lines and will take care of future growth. After the dial system is placed in operation, local calls will be switched directly at Brownsburg, allowing the present subscribers' lines to be used as trunk lines for inter-community calls only. Thus all Lachute telephone subscribers served from the local switchboard as well as those in Brownsburg will benefit by the improved facilities.

"Dial switching apparatus is certainly one of the most marvellous creations of science," continued Mr. Morrin. "It almost thinks like a human being — almost, but not quite. Operators are required to assist the robot — especially for making long distance connections. It would obviously be impractical as well as uneconomical to establish a manually operated long distance switchboard in addition to dial apparatus in every town and village. It is usual, therefore, to establish a centre in each district where all long distance calls are cleared.

"Every district has its natural focal point, through which the lines of communication between various towns in that district must pass, just as nerve cords lead to the brain in the human body. Thus a needless multiplication of lines is avoided. To determine the present and future telephone needs of every district in its territory and to find its focal point, the telephone company makes a fundamental survey of the district — a detailed and painstaking study into local conditions and prospects of future growth.

"According to our survey," Mr. Morrin explained, "the Town of Lachute is such a focal point, and it will continue to be so for many years to come. The Lachute exchange is the clearing centre for all between, let us say, Ste. Scholastique and St. Andrews. A manually-operated Long Distance switchboard must be located here. This switchboard can quite easily handle the local calls between Lachute subscribers as well as the trunk and Long Distance calls between neighboring communities. Dial switching apparatus in Lachute would not improve the service — for the common battery system installed here in February is fully as up-to-date and well-equipped as any dial system.

"Brownsburg will remain within the Lachute Exchange Area but with the installation of the dial unit at Brownsburg, individual and two-party service will be available in addition to rural line service outside the base rate boundary of Brownsburg at Lachute rates.

"The cost of a separate manual office to be established at Brownsburg, together with its attendants, was found to be uneconomical in comparison with the cost of a Community Dial Office."

PROPRIETORS MAKE BIG IMPROVEMENTS IN TWO LACHUTE BUILDINGS

ICE ARENA UNDERGOING INTERIOR CHANGES

In preparation for the winter activities, the proprietor of Lachute Arena, Jos. Raymond, is engaged in making a number of improvements for the greater convenience of his patrons. The waiting rooms will be considerably enlarged and the front interior, both upstairs and down, will be filled with reserved seats, all of which are to be heated by a modern furnace. Two rooms upstairs will afford better accommodation for the players, with hot and cold water and showers installed. The south side of the rink will give entrance to the reserved seats, while the north side is held for the general public.

Mr. Raymond is to be congratulated on his enterprise, and the public will generally appreciate these changes.

An invitation was recently extended to Lachute to enter a team in the Montreal Intermediate Hockey League, and it is understood the local application was accepted.

COMPLETE RENOVATION OF DOCTOR'S PREMISES

Laid Out for the Possible Addition of Hospital

The home on Main Street purchased recently by Dr. F. W. Fitzgerald — residence of the late Dr. J. M. Drew, has been undergoing extensive improvements, and the new doctor and his family are in occupancy.

Dr. Fitzgerald is a progressive young physician and a surgeon of considerable promise. A graduate of McGill and a post graduate of Northwestern University, he comes to Lachute with highest recommendation. He has completely renovated the surgery, dispensary and waiting room, the former being laid out and equipped on the most modern lines with a view to extending it in the near future as a private hospital. The decoration is in a combination scheme of light green and cream and the result is a credit to the Cottingham Supply Company, who handled the renovation of the premises.

C.C.F. MEMBER ENTERS THE FIELD AGAINST MANION LONDON RIDING PRESENTS NO LIBERAL CONTENDER

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT" By "Spectator".

Ottawa, Oct. 4th. — Last week was a nightmare in the Capital, or elsewhere in the world. It would be useless to suggest that the Government, with the thunder clouds of war on every horizon, could keep their minds on domestic problems. The mills of Government continued to grind; trade emissaries went back to Washington to clean up the final stages of the negotiations for a trade treaty with the U.S.; Judge Davis, royal commissioner engaged in the Bren gun contract probe, got well launched into the inquiry; but the Prime Minister and other ministers of the crown watched with apprehension the threatening crisis in Europe. A constant stream of messages from London informed the Dominion Government of every new phase in the negotiations with Herr Hitler, and all these communications, their purport kept secret, were carefully studied in cabinet conclave.

The gravity of the situation was clearly voiced in the Prime Minister's statement following the radio broadcast of Mr. Chamberlain. Mr. MacKenzie King said that the Dominion Government was in full accord with the statement made by Mr. Chamberlain; that the Government was preparing for any contingency, and Parliament would be immediately called if the peace efforts failed. The leader of the opposition, Dr. Manion, supported with his followers the Government's statement. Canada's position was made clear.

Quebec Musical Competition Festival Is Announced

The Executive of the Quebec Musical Competition Festival announce that the syllabus for the 1939 Festival, which will be heard from March 6th to the 16th in Montreal, will be issued to the public on October 13th. As there were 10,678 contestants in last year's Festival, the new syllabus is being looked forward to with very keen interest by many. It is anticipated that the entries will show a healthy increase over last year's number and that every effort will be made to raise the standard of musicianship presented to a yet higher level in the coming Festival.

All amateur musicians interested in taking part can obtain the syllabus from Mr. C. L. Duncan, Lachute, who is honorary local secretary for the Lachute area.

Young Girl Killed on Main Street of Grenville; Verdict of Accidental Death

Enthusiasm Shown in Plans for Plowing Match

The president and directors of the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association are doing their utmost to make the fourth annual plowing match, which is being held near Lachute on Oct. 20th, the largest and best in the history of the organization.

Several of the local merchants have made donations of prizes, including one walking plow, value $22, given by H. Lamarche, agent for the Frost & Wood Company. This plow will be offered as first prize in the plain plow class for men.

Three Local Men Are Officials of the S.P.C.A.

It is learned that three citizens of this town, John McKenzie, Romuald Bell and Napoleon Belanger, have enrolled as members of the S.P.C.A. — Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Any offenders in the consideration and treatment of animals may be taken in hand by these gentlemen and brought before a judge for trial.

SCHOOL-BOYS RECOUNT THEIR EUROPEAN TOUR AT LIONS' LUNCHEON

YOUNG LACHUTE PAIR SHOW KEEN OBSERVATION

That Hugh Brennan and Harold Deacon, Lachute boys, had learned much while on the school students' educational tour last June, was fully demonstrated when these young men gave an interesting and instructive account of their travels to members of the Lions Club at their regular dinner in Desjardins Hotel on Tuesday. They graphically described the places and people they had seen, and told of having in one day breakfasted in France, lunched in Germany, and dined in Czechoslovakia. The going was pretty strenuous; and having reached Prague, where they would have appreciated a good night's rest, they were disappointingly confronted with six leather couches instead of the anticipated bed. In Germany there are many fine stadiums, one of which they visited while a festival was in progress. Here 34,000 men were engaged in gymnastic performances, the second half of the program being devoted to 27,000 women gymnasts, exemplifying the ideals of healthful exercise and bodily fitness.

From the descriptions given by these young men of the countries they visited, there was not much that escaped their attention; they had facts and figures in plenty, and the fund of information they obtained will stand them in good stead as they venture later into the business world. The young speakers were introduced by Lion J. E. Walker, and Lion D. Tremblay expressed the thanks of the Club for their fine address.

Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 9-15

By Royal Proclamation, His Excellency the Governor General has designated Oct. 9th to 15th as Fire Prevention Week.

A MESSAGE FROM GEO. Y. DEACON, CHIEF OF THE LACHUTE FIRE DEPARTMENT

The local Fire Department wishes to emphasize the importance of Fire Prevention Week, and if every citizen will co-operate heartily, it will be possible to keep fire loss down to a minimum.

Loss by fire, in Lachute this year, has been very low... but it needs only one careless citizen to cause possible loss of lives and considerable property damage. It is the Fire Department's duty to bring this to your attention, and we ask your co-operation.

During the coming week there will be Fire Department parades, fire drills in schools, inspection of factories, public buildings, stores and dwellings, by members of the Fire Department — which, we hope, will all help to prevent fires rather than require the department's services to extinguish them.

We cannot afford to go on and be indifferent to the dangers. Fire Prevention Week is a particular week set aside to call attention to the menace of fire. Are you doing your part?

— GEO. Y. DEACON, Fire Chief.

FILLING VACUUM TANK BY LANTERN LIGHT

Grenville N. — Last Thursday night, while putting gas into the vacuum tank of his car, Billy Rainey received serious burns on his hands.

At the time of the accident, E. P. Stewart was with Rainey, holding a lantern but standing some distance away. In spite of this fact the fumes of the gasoline ignited. Rainey's clothing caught fire but he managed to beat it out, and in so doing removed the skin from his hands.

Walter Gauley was summoned to the scene, and Rainey was taken to Dr. Smith's Hospital at Hawkesbury, where he is receiving treatment but still suffering severe pain. This accident happened near Mr. Jas. Stewart's home. The car was completely destroyed.

I had rather have the pep to climb a mountain in my path than to have no mountain and no pep.

WON MILITARY MEDAL IN GREAT WAR; VICE-PRES. OF 'BURG LEGION

Mr. David McCulloch, of the C-I-L Dominion Ammunition Division at Brownsburg, has qualified for a 25-year service award with the company. In the "C-I-L Contact," a brief biography records that Mr. McCulloch is a native of Hamilton, Scotland, where he was born in 1881. He was a keen football player as a young man and a member of the Burbank Athletic team which won the Scottish Junior Cup in the season of 1900-1901. His first job was as a stone-planing machinist with Brown & Sons in Hamilton, but he turned to military life in 1904, when he was accepted by the Scots Guards. Mr. McCulloch was married to Miss Elizabeth Denholm in 1909, and has two sons, Alexander and David.

In 1913 Mr. McCulloch, who had left the army some years before, emigrated to Canada and joined the Spanish Pulp and Paper Company at Espanola, Ont. Three months later he joined the Dominion Cartridge Company at Brownsburg.

On the outbreak of hostilities in 1914 he was called to his unit, and in September of that year went to France. Later he was offered a commission, which he refused, and earned the Military Medal for an exploit on

Historic Montreal Is Subject of Study Group Discourse

Owing to the absence of Mr. Geo. Héon, M.P., who will address the Women's Institute on Oct. 18th on the topic of "Legislation," Tuesday afternoon was devoted to the Study Group of the Lachute branch, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Geo. Y. Deacon. The subject was "Historic Montreal." Miss Freda Mason, B.A., read an interesting sketch of the French regime in the early days, after which four French folk songs were sung by the pupils of the High School under the direction and with the accompaniment of Miss M. Marshall. A description of the Chateau de Ramezay was given by Mrs. Geo. Y. Deacon, and a charming lullaby dedicated to the "Quints" was sung by Miss Barbara Miller, followed by a reading from Drummond by Miss Marshall.

A short sketch of Canada under the British rule, by Miss Mason, brought this pleasant program to a close.

Returning to Canada in 1919 he was reinstated in the Dominion Ammunition Works at Brownsburg and is now in the Shipping Department. Mr. McCulloch is never happier than when pottering around in his garden,

CROSSED ROAD INTO PATH OF CAR

At 8.15 o'clock Saturday evening Miss Florida Simoneau, 17-year-old Grenville girl, was fatally injured when struck by a 1934 Plymouth sedan driven by Neil Maclean, 35, a mechanic of Breckenridge, Que. Maclean was proceeding from Calumet to Hawkesbury when the girl walked into the path of his car near an intersection opposite Lessard's butcher shop, on Grenville Main Street. Stopping immediately the driver, assisted by John Bell of Grenville, who had heard the crash from the nearby shop, rushed the victim to Notre Dame Hospital at Hawkesbury, where she died early Sunday morning.

A jury empanelled by the district coroner, Dr. J. H. Mason, of Lachute, met at Gascon's undertaking parlors, Grenville, on Monday evening and heard evidence from several eyewitnesses of the mishap.

Mrs. Telephore Poulin, of Grenville, stated that the driver was not proceeding at an excessive speed. The victim had been crossing at an angle from east to west of the roadway. Struck by the bumper of the car, she had been hurled 15 feet onto the pavement.

Two young girls, Jeanette Rochon and Juliette Lalonde, gave similar testimony, all of which indicated that Miss Simoneau had not heard, or seen the headlights, of the approaching car.

Dr. C. E. Lafrance, of Hawkesbury, who had attended the victim, gave his opinion that death had resulted from a fracture at the base of the skull.

John Bell told of having assisted the driver in removing the girl to the hospital; she was partially conscious, he said, and his testimony that Maclean gave no evidence of having been drinking was confirmed by Traffic Officer H. Jones, of Lachute, who investigated the case, and also having inspected the car, had found it in good order. "The car had skidded 35 feet on the pavement," he stated, according to tire marks at the spot where Maclean had applied his brakes.

Neil Maclean, in response to questions by the coroner, said that from a distance of 75 feet he had observed the girl walking slowly toward the centre of the road. He slowed down. Miss Simoneau appeared to hesitate, but without turning to look in the direction of the car, she stepped ahead in its path. The driver jammed on his brakes, but the girl, hit by the bumper, had fallen onto the grill of the car and was thrown to the pavement.

After due deliberation the jurors returned a verdict of accidental death, exonerating the driver of all blame.

Miss Florida Simoneau was the eldest of a family of seven, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hormisdas Simoneau, of Grenville. She is survived by her parents, five sisters and one brother.

Norman Draper, St. Andrews, Missing in New England Since Recent Hurricane

Lacking news of her husband, who was in the New England States during the recent hurricane disaster, Mrs. Blanche A. Draper, of St. Andrews East, appealed to the newspapers last week to try and locate him.

The reason of her anxiety is that her husband, Norman E. Draper, when last heard of from Albany, N.Y., on September 7, had stated his intention of returning to Boston, then coming to Montreal to meet his wife and son. Since then nothing has been heard of him, and it is feared that he may have been in the path of the wind and rain storm that did so much damage in the seaboard states.

Mr. Draper is 45 years of age, a nephew of Chief D. C. Draper, head of the Toronto Police. Mrs. Draper, who is staying with her father at the rectory in St. Andrews, is known to readers of The Watchman through her contributions to these pages.

The "Harmless" Neighbors

A conscientious parent was heard to say: "The greatest problems I have faced in bringing up my children has been my neighbors. It is these apparently harmless, clean-living neighbors, indifferent to the church, who, by their example, have proclaimed louder than words that ideals don't count."

Text of Address by Geo. Héon, M.P., Before the Young Men's Section, Winnipeg Board of Trade

"What Is the French-Canadian Interpretation of Canadianism?"

An Eloquent Appeal for Understanding

Following is an abridged text of the address given by Geo. Héon, K.C., M.P., before the Young Men's Section of the Winnipeg Board of Trade last Thursday:

I shall never have cause to regret my acceptance of the invitation extended by the Young Men's Section of your Board of Trade.

In view of the recent international events, the task which lies ahead of me this evening is fraught with difficulties and danger, but it has been rendered less onerous by the genuine warmth of your welcome, and the assurances received since my arrival in your beautiful city, that you will lend a most sympathetic ear to my presentation of Quebec's attitude towards national affairs.

I hope and trust, ladies and gentlemen, that you will receive the true significance of this address with a tolerance and broadness of interpretation such as will encourage more frequent interchanges of speakers and ideas as between East and West.

Let us not delude ourselves: we too often think of one another as strangers: we are shamefully ignorant of one another; we have been unparadoxically lazy in studying the History of Canada, and we have not yet learned the salutary lessons which such a study would so profitably teach.

To the Executive of the Young Men's Section, I am most thankful for this unique opportunity, and I shall not fail when I return East, to tell your fellow-Canadians and mine, just how keen the Junior Section has been to bring home to me the healthy truth that a Canadian of French descent should feel just as much at home in Winnipeg as in Quebec.

This gesture of the Young Men's Section is what I should call applied Canadianism of a practical order, such as should be found in principle, at least, within the hearts and minds of all Canadians. For Providence has ordained that this Dominion should be constituted, populated and governed by two main groups with a duality of origin; and never shall the Canadian people rightly ascribe to themselves the proud appellation of a nation, unless the individual Canadian ceases to look upon the other Canadian as a stranger or an inferior national type, the son of a vanquished foe or the descendant of a hated conqueror.

The first requisite to a united Canada is to drop from one's vocabulary such words as "majority" and "minority." This ideal union of Canadians can never be achieved unless one of us becomes penetrated with that spirit which made Confederation possible: a spirit of equal partnership between Canadians of French descent and Canadians of English descent, with a sincere respect for the rights and prerogatives of each. To put it more bluntly, the inevitable duality of our origin calls for renunciation of all pet prejudices and a condemnation of all racial, linguistic or religious bigotry.

Now, I must remind you immediately that these remarks represent nothing, but my humble personal views, and that unlike most politicians, I do not give to my words the character of a dogma which you must believe or be forever damned. My only purpose is to furnish some slight contribution towards national understanding, without which all talk of national unity is mere folly. I would like to spread among you the conviction that French-Canadians are the truest and most thorough Canadians, that their roots plunge down to the very core of Canada, and that, as such, they are entitled to the full respect and consideration of other Canadians.

Let us, then, delve into the history of French Canada, which is the history of Canada itself, and learn from the deeds of our ancestors what Canadians of French descent have done towards the building of this Dominion.

(Here follows a review of French exploration and settlement in Canada; the establishment of New France and permanent colonization of the country; persecution by and conquest of the Indians, up to the conflict between the British colonies of America and French Canada. . . . Although this phase presents a colorful chapter, one most convincing in the argument of Mr. Héon's theme, the section is unfortunately too lengthy to produce in these columns.)

There is one important fact to note before we come to the history of constitutional reforms and attempt to draw present-day conclusions: that is the growth of the population of French Canada, from the date of the foundation of Quebec to this day.

In 1660, there were 2,000 settlers in Canada; 3,000 settlers were brought in before 1700; 5,000 settlers came between 1700 and 1755.

Yet, the population of Canada grew as follows:

1660	3,200
1688	11,560
1720	24,424
1734	37,716
1763	65,000

Then 10,000 settlers, in the space of 100 years, had increased their numbers to 65,000. These almost unbelievable figures will explain what has been justly called the miraculous phenomenon of the birth of the Canadian race and "the revenge of the cradles." Today, three hundred years afterwards, these original 10,000 have blossomed out into 5,000,000 distinctly genuine Canadians scattered over this Dominion, and, regrettably indeed, into the New England States. It would not be remiss to say, while we are studying these figures, that if the Government does want to do something practical in the way of Immigration, it should first strive to repatriate the millions of Canadians who are now in the Republic to the South of us.

Truly, the survival and multiplicity of the French-Canadian race touches on the miraculous, and it is not unduly bold to state that a race which has been so continuously prolific, and has grown in the midst of almost unsurmountable difficulties and handicaps of climate, wars, poverty, internal clashes, persecution and dispersion, can never die or be absorbed, and it most richly deserves the respect and confidence of its fellow-Canadians.

Is it not then in order and simple fairness, that a race which has planted its roots so deeply into Canadian soil that it cannot be uprooted by any human agency, and wherein sleep 15 generations of its forbears, should be entitled to an equal partnership in the development of the very land it helped discover, enriched with its blood, and first made available to Christianity and civilization?

The latest available census reveals some interesting figures. There were:

English-Canadians	5,381,000
French-Canadians	3,000,000
Others	2,050,000

This method of census-taking, however, is not quite precise, for it has failed to establish a distinction between Canadians of British origin and the American group of Canadians, which totals, according to available figures, 1,200,000 souls. A true figure of the various groups would be very nearly as follows:

English-Canadians	4,300,000
French-Canadians	3,000,000
American-Canadians	1,200,000
European-Canadians	1,800,000
Other Canadians	250,000

Then again, the Canadians of British ancestry are grouped into English, Scottish and Irish ancestry, whilst the American, whose immediate forbears have been independent since 1774, is a Canadian of a distinct social and ethnic type.

If I have taken the time to delve into these figures, it is to show that each group is in minority to the sum of the others, and that strictly speaking there are no majorities in this country. Possibly defeated candidates think otherwise, but the political scarecrow of majorities and minorities when speaking of things racial, would quickly disappear if the various groups would remember that individually they have no title to the famous "majority rules" dictum. Hence, ladies and gentlemen, the need of the two main groups, whose languages are both official, and who total together four-fifths of Canada's population, to deal with one another, not as a majority to a minority or vice versa, but as respected and trusted partners, both anxious to meet on common ground for the success of the common venture, of establishing a sovereign, autonomous, self-supporting nation on the northern half of this continent.

In the face of this tremendous undertaking which confronts us all, what matter the renunciation of a prejudice, the generous interpretation of the Constitution, the respect of language and creed or the free exercise thereof?

Surely, the accomplishments of the French-Canadian race and the history of its development and growth are sufficient assurance that such a peaceable and well-meaning group is worthy of your friendship and respect — since they have at all times been, are today, and will ever be, willing to toil alongside their fellow-Canadians on a partnership basis for the prosperity and security of this country.

(At this point Mr. Héon referred to the unhappy circumstances of French-Canadians under the establishment of British rule, and subsequent relenting of the repression exercised by the British governors. The Constitutional Act was adopted, but in response to innumerable petitions the English House of Commons later set up a committee to consider an adequate form of civil government for Canada. The Assembly, however, denied the prerogatives of the Imperial Government and the administration continued to excite rancour between the French and the British in Canada. . . . Finally in 1857 the B.N.A. Act was passed, upon which the whole constitutional structure of Canada took form.)

Excellent books have been written on Confederation and the negotiations which preceded it, and I trust that you have studied the Constitution sufficiently to be aware of its most important provisions.

The basic principle underlying Confederation was the creation of a strong Central Government, together with Provincial Legislatures whose autonomy was absolute within their prescribed powers. So very careful were the Fathers of Confederation in provincial matters that Sir John MacDonald had expressed himself as follows on the subject: "Confederation has been created for the greater prosperity of the provinces. . . . and the Senate has been purposely created for the preservation of these rights." If one reads the speeches by some of the members of the present Senate, one is inclined to think that Sir John's recommendations have been forgotten.

Sir George Etienne Cartier struck a more sentimental note. He foresaw the creation of a new nationality and the death of all racial, linguistic and religious differences. He declared himself as fully convinced of the sincerity of his fellow-partners of the Pact, in respecting the rights of the French-Canadians. A perfect example of the state of mind of the French-Canadian delegates who sat at the Conference table was the insistent eagerness with which they asked that the rights of language and separate schools be guaranteed to the English minority of Quebec. The negotiations show that it was agreed by the Fathers that the French-Canadian minority in the other provinces were to be given similar treatment. To those who have read Cartier's public addresses and memoirs, it is self-evident that he would never have signed the Pact on behalf of French Canada unless he had been assured of this. It is a pertinent question whether, if Cartier came back today, he would be satisfied with the treatment which has been meted out to his compatriots by the Legislatures of some provinces. It is also pertinent to enquire whether Sir John would not severely chastise some legislators of today for the rough treatment they have given to its legislation.

Be that as it may. Now that we have reviewed together the historical occurrences which led to responsible government, and that you have discerned the true French-Canadian mentality — I am now in a position to give you my humble (and strictly personal) views as to the attitude of Quebec towards national affairs. This attitude cannot be very clear-cut; our national affairs are so mingled that no one is able, from the Premier down to the last Canadian, to see clearly through them.

Are we satisfied with Confederation? Why do we insist on provincial autonomy? Where does the remedy lie? And lastly, what about national defence?

French Canada is not absolutely satisfied with Confederation, although it feels it must honor its signature and will never violate one single obligation the B.N.A. Act implies. I challenge anyone to show one single instance where French-Canadians failed to honor every prescription under the Act.

I have already stated that the French-Canadian delegation came to the Conference which led to the adoption of the B.N.A. Act with the understanding that they were invited as partners: they knew it was the best bargain that could be made at the time, although subsequent events have shown that they thought they were driving a much better bargain than it has turned out to be. Cartier's unlimited faith in his partners and their successors caused him to lack ordinary prudence and legal precision in the drafting of the particular clause which covered the subject. It is evident that he considered that verbal assurances were equivalent to the written word; so they should have been, and were, in the minds of his immediate associates. The facts show that ensuing generations of statesmen — or more correctly, politicians — did not always feel in honor-bound to respect the words of their predecessors. This has caused keen disappointment amongst French-Canadians, and has given no real satisfaction to the transgressors themselves.

The history of Confederation shows clearly that the B.N.A. Act was both a treaty between two races and the establishment of a new political constitution for Canada. It must not be forgotten either that Confederation, in its present form, was principally the child of French-Canadian delegates. MacDonald was all for Legislative Union, whilst Cartier insisted upon, and obtained, a federation of provinces. It is quite clear that, if Cartier's views had not prevailed, Lower Canada would not have subscribed to the proposed constitution. Impartial historians have all agreed on this point.

The French-Canadians of that period were generally behind the movement, because they felt that both the English-Canadians and themselves had become tired of factional discords and were disposed to bury their differences. No one can doubt the good faith of French Canada at that time, nor doubt the sincerity or the motives which actuate French-Canadians today. The solution lies, it seems, in a happy, generous formula which will give both groups a maximum guarantee of their rights. The average French-Canadian, in his simple and straightforward mind, cannot understand — will never understand — why it is not possible for him, all over this Dominion which he discovered and pioneered, to speak French, write in French, teach his children in French. He feels that he can remain loyal to his country, indeed, love it passionately, work and toil for the common good, although he speaks the French language. This is not an impossible proposition, and if therein lies a solution to national understanding and unity, why not give it a fair trial and application? The unity and welfare of this Dominion are surely worth more than the retention of petty differences and narrow-mindedness! Let us, at long last, think generously, and legislate wisely. That would not be what some have very judiciously called "a concession"; it would be an intelligent step towards the consolidation of French-Canadian support for Canadian progress.

Legislators burdened with the task of uniting Canada should meet the demands of both English and French Canadians, which would make for better sympathy between these two elements of our population; they should carefully steer away from prejudices and their personal feelings; and as long as the demands would not interfere with the well-understood interests of Canada itself, they should see that legislation was immediately provided. No sacrifice or tolerance can appear excessive when the common good of the various elements of the nation is at stake.

I have not the slightest doubt that Confederation does not satisfy you; yet it has fairly stood the test of time, and if it is to be amended, it should be made perfectly clear to the contracting parties that all of their essential rights will be generously provided for, in advance. Solemn and written guarantees will have to be given before French-Canadians will willingly sit at a table where Confederation and its amendments will be discussed. There is not the slightest possibility of French-Canadians subscribing to the amendment or amendments of the Constitution before these guarantees are legally and clearly provided for in written form.

It is this fear — that centralization, through amendments to the Constitution, will further deprive French-Canadians of what they consider their birthright — which has made Quebec a foe of centralization and a thorough disciple of provincial autonomy. Immediately after Confederation French-Canadians sincerely believed, as they believe today, that the whole of Canada was their country; no better proof of this truth can be offered than the fact that their clergy, missionaries, discoverers and settlers have opened up the West to civilization. The truth of the matter is that French-Canadians had always looked to the whole Dominion as their home, just as much as it was to other Canadians. If, in late years, they have concentrated their efforts on the Province of Quebec it is because in some other provinces, it has been indirectly pointed out to them that they were only generously tolerated as a

Thanksgiving

For all things beautiful and good, and true;
For things that seemed not good yet turned to good;
For all the sweet compulsions of Thy will
That chastened, tried, and wrought us to Thy Shape;
For things unnumbered that we take of right,
And value first when they're withheld;
For light and air; sweet sense of sound and smell;
For ears to hear the heavenly harmonies;
For eyes to see the unseen in the seen;
For vision of the Worker in the work;
For hearts to apprehend Thee everywhere —
We thank Thee, Lord.

Orange Degree Teams in Competition for Trophy

Last Saturday evening members of the Loyal Orange Lodges of this county met in the L.O.B.A. hall at Lachute, where two degree teams — Arundel team under the direction of Wor. Bro. George Moore, of Rockway Valley, and Dalesville under Wor. Bro. Melville MacGibbon, competed for the annual silver cup trophy donated by Wor. Bro. H. W. Butler, formerly of Brownsburg and now residing in Toronto. The Dalesville brethren carried off the honors with 150 points against their opponents' 147 points.

The meeting was presided over by the county master, Wor. Bro. V. MacVicar, of Harrington. The three judges were visiting brethren from Montreal: Rt. Wor. Bro. James Clarke, Rt. Wor. Bro. H. Butler and Rt. Wor. Bro. J. Thompson.

After the degree competition the Grand Master for Quebec Province, Rt. Wor. Bro. H. C. Shipman, congratulated the contestants upon the excellent manner in which the work had been executed. Some 100 members were present. Light refreshments were served by the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association of Lachute, and the gathering concluded with the singing of the National Anthem. Rt. Wor. Bro. Robt. Crawford, of Ottawa, accompanied the Grand Master to Lachute.

The Huntingdon Gleaner Published for 75 Years

Sincere congratulations are being offered to Mr. Adam Sellar, publisher of the Huntingdon Gleaner, on the very fine 45-page anniversary edition just issued in celebration of this newspaper's 75 years of publication.

The front page portrayed a reproduction of the first issue published on Friday, September 18th, 1863, and one needs only to see the present weekly editions to realize what great progress has been made.

Founded by his father, Mr. Robert Sellar, the paper had a remarkable beginning and was then, as now, very widely quoted. On the father's death, Mr. Watson Sellar took charge, later handing over control to Mr. Adam Sellar, the present editor.

Advancement has been a policy of The Gleaner; and it is still progressing.

WIDOW OF FORMER OWNER OF GRANBY LEADER-MAIL DIED TUESDAY

In ill-health since June, Mrs. George Legge, a highly respected resident of Granby for the past 38 years, died Tuesday night.

Born in Buckinghamshire, England, in 1856, Mrs. Legge was formerly Sarah Jean Carter. She was married in Aylesbury, England, in 1888 and the couple came to Canada on their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Legge resided in Montreal until 1900 when Mr. Legge assumed control of the Granby Leader-Mail, which he edited until his death in 1932.

Mrs. Legge is survived by one son, Walter R. Legge, present editor of the Leader-Mail, and Mrs. Legge; three grandchildren, Helen, Donald and Carroll Legge, all of Granby, and several half-brothers and half-sisters in England.

The secretary was instructed to write these claimants for the value per acre they set, on the land under discussion.

On motion of Alderman Laurin, seconded by Alderman Durocher, the secretary was instructed to notify all delinquents that if their taxes were not paid same would be handed in for collection immediately.

Alderman Deacon moved that a request be made to the Municipal Commission, for permission to borrow $5,000 against tax arrears, should the money be required. This motion was seconded by Alderman Prevost.

Problems in Producing a Great Picture Drama

By Albert Lewin, Producer of "Spawn of the North," Classic by Joseph Conrad.

To the average movie-goer, the word Alaska suggests many things: glaciers, snow-capped mountains, vast and desolate tundras, mushing dog teams, furs, big timber, gold. But of the salmon fishing industry and the pirates that prey upon it, he knows nothing. That presented one of the most difficult problems with which we had to deal in making "Spawn of the North."

It seems amazing that an industry so pregnant with dramatic possibilities—one that has yielded more wealth to man than all the precious metals ever mined in the whole territory—should have been neglected so long by Hollywood. Because it has been, we were obliged to define our terms as we went along.

We had to explain the salmon run and the whole archipelago's dependence upon it for existence. We had to explain fish traps and fish pirates. And our definitions had to be skillful enough not to retard the action of the story.

More than a year was devoted to research into the salmon industry, the customs of its people, the lore and music of the Alaskan Indians. Scenarists were supplied with complete data concerning the locale and subject of the story. The score-writer received nearly 400 tribal chants from which he might distill an aboriginal theme, to be combined with the Russian and the American elements that dominated the infiltrating currents of pioneer Alaska.

For the picturization of an epoch is not to be taken lightly—even in Hollywood. "Spawn of the North" is not the work of one man, nor of a handful, but of an experienced and intent organization. Making it was an adventure, but an exhausting one, leaving us all feeling a little like Joseph Conrad when he "returned," as he said upon finishing Nostromo, from his "sojourn" in Costaguana.

(Note: "Spawn of the North" is appearing at the Capitol Theatre, Brownsburg, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday).

Cast Masters

Bronze-founding is one of the most difficult crafts on earth. A century and a half ago bronze castings were all done on the Continent; in Italy especially, where the craft has been practiced since the days of Cellini.

Those who wanted commissions executed usually placed them out of Britain to save the expense of sending fragile plaster casts abroad and then paying for them to be brought back again. About a hundred years ago, notes a writer in London's Tit-Bits Magazine, John Webb Singer, of Frome, traveling on the Continent, discovered the secrets that had been handed down in families through generations and returned to Britain to cast the first important group by a British bronze founder, that of Boadicea on the Embankment. His successors have continued his tradition.

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago

Friday, Oct. 5, 1888

On Thursday afternoon, Mayor Fish and Councillors Patenaude, Rodrigue, Hope, Fraser and the Sec. Treasurer, Mr. Simpson, paid a visit to St. Jerome with C. E. Norris of The Independent and G. T. Calder of The Watchman. A rainstorm struck the party, the wind and hail causing them to stop at Jeanveau, about half-way, where Councillor Rodrigue administered a plentiful supply of ginger tea with an affix of "ger" that was superfluous. The first sign of "the promised land" was the chimney of Rolland's Paper Mill. It took almost an hour to arrive at the telephone office in the centre of the town. The roads were in much the same condition as Lachute, with sidewalks not so good though perhaps more numerous. A company has been established headed by Mr. Beauchemin, who signed a contract with the council for the lighting of their streets with 16-candlepower incandescent lamps. The cost of the lights was 50c per month. A subscriber may take a 16-candlepower light and have it divided into two lights of 8-candlepower, placed in different rooms, at a slightly additional cost for the extra apparatus required.

Friday, Oct. 3, 1913

On Monday last a very proud gathering took place at Ste. Monique, in celebration of the 100th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Bazille Piché (née Emelie Lafleur). Mrs. Piché is very strong and active for her years and out of a family of nine children seven are still living, two of whom are great-grandmothers.

The many friends of Mrs. Joseph Lafleur will be sorry to learn of her accident which occurred on Monday afternoon. While driving with Mrs. Monette, their horse suddenly took fright and both parties were thrown from the rig, the former sustaining a broken arm.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Giles and Mr. and Mrs. C. Calder attended the ticket agents' convention at Cleveland, Ohio.

Rev. J. Clark Reilly, B.A., of Grenville, was united in marriage on Sept. 30th to Beatrice, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boright, of Mansonville.

The Market Man—"I think living's getting cheaper. For instance, two years ago them eggs would have cost you 50 per cent more."

The Customer—"Two years ago, when these eggs were fresh, they would have been worth more."

Do You Do This?

A careful study of fire records shows that at least 80% of fires are preventable. The following examples are given from among the thousands of known causes to show how easy fires can start, and the fatal results that may follow.

A man dropped a cigarette in a rubbish pile in a rooming house and burned to death eleven people.

A man dropped his cigarette in a couch in the lobby of a hotel. Fire resulted at 3 a.m. and resulted in the death of four people.

A mother in one of our leading college cities, for the five hundredth time, perhaps, started a fire with coal oil. The fire she started burned to death three children besides herself.

A man dropped a match on a garage floor, walked on and left it. A six-year-old child found it and ignited her clothing which resulted in burns that caused her death a few minutes later.

A man attempted to sleep and smoke at the same time—result, he set the bed afire, was overcome with smoke, and removed in an unconscious state. Only the timely arrival

Parable of the Employers And the Old Stranger

By Irving D. Tressler

A group of factory owners, chancing to meet in a restaurant, commenced discussing how sad it was that they were forced to dismiss so many of their employees each year because they were over 55 and too old for the fast pace of modern factories.

A gray-haired stranger at a neighboring table happened to overhear their discussion and spoke up. "Pardon me for intruding upon your conversation," said he, "but I am past sixty years of age, yet I handle my job without complaint from my employers."

The factory owners at the neighboring table laughed good-humoredly. "Surely," they replied, "you are an office clerk and that is work in which age plays not such an important role. You would not fit well into a job in one of our factories, because the pace is too fast for one of your generation."

"Perhaps so," returned the stranger, "yet I seem to manage well enough four days a week as engineer of a streamlined limited train which averages 80 miles an hour for 500 miles."

The factory owners cleared their throats in embarrassment and called long and loudly for their checks.

of the fire department saved him from being cremated alive.

Some grown-ups placed Strike-Anywhere matches on the kitchen table. Two small children acted upon the implied suggestion and carried some to their playhouse, innocently starting a fire. Result, a little boy was burned fatally.

Do you always think about the safety and welfare of those about you when you discard your match and cigarette stub? Are you mindful of the safety of the children in your home to the extent of providing safety matches, and keeping them out of their reach? Do you have proper respect for the dangerous properties of gasoline and always handle it with care?

Where Mexican Oil Is Flowing

(Excerpt from an article in "Asia"—by Eliot Janeway)

In April and May, despite the oil crisis, Mexican oil exports fell only slightly below the boom levels reached in April and May, 1937. The great bulk of the oil moved, following the period of expropriation, was going to Germany, a certain amount of it to Italy. In return, Mexico was receiving German steel and machinery of all sorts, and in ever-growing quantities. The German machinery was naturally concentrated in industries where more German machinery of a supplementary nature would have to follow. Quietly and without offending anyone, Germany was getting her foot inside the door of Mexico. And she was doing all this at precisely the time when the Mexican Petroleum Administration was being quoted in the New York Times to the effect that Mexico did not want to sell to her ally, Japan, because "we were afraid of the effect on United States public opinion." To date, however, there has been no audible outcry against the sale of Mexican oil to Germany. Following an initial transaction involving 1,080,000 barrels at $1 a barrel, an additional 10,000,000 barrels have been contracted for, payment to be made 60 per cent in German machinery and 40 per cent in cash. Eight million barrels of the last allotment are to come from Shell's expropriated wells.

And who is selling this oil to Germany? . . . They operate within the orbit of a group which is neither obscure nor unimportant. This group is the British division of Standard Oil.

If there be some weaker one, Give me strength to help him on; If a blinder soul there be, Let me guide him nearer Thee.

Outlines French-Canadian Stand on Home and Imperial Defence

minority. If they had been told that they were welcome, and extended a glad hand, you would not have today the prospects of a bitter fight between the Federal Government and the old provinces. Further still, it has not been economically proven that centralization is a remedy to our ills; those nations which have turned towards absolute centralization have become bankrupt, totalitarian or dictatorship states. When one thinks of Russia, Germany, Italy, nay, Czechoslovakia — where centralization has been the purpose of all recent legislation — one is not tempted to resort to centralization in Canada.

I repeat that decentralization is not the cause of our economic ills, even if some blundering and thundering politicians say so. The proposed amendments to the Constitution will not be the panacea which its promoters claim it to be. The real cause of our ills lies with ourselves and the improvident governments which we have elected since 1900. It lies in unreasoned economic development, and the orgy of extravagant spending. We have fooled ourselves with an illusion of false grandeur. We have forgotten that a nation is not powerful simply because it has unlimited territory; we have built railways whose executives quickly lost the sense of proportions. Hotels, stations, warehouses were built, costing millions of dollars.

Then the Great War came; we imagined Canada could save not only the Empire but the civilized world. The cost has been 80,000 useful young lives, a like number maimed and disabled, and hundreds of millions of dollars were drained from the exchequer. After the war, we found ourselves burdened with an enormous national debt, military pensions, nationalization of the railways. Yet our governments did not learn; they made special efforts and created commissions to find new methods of spending public monies. Finance and industry committed the same errors. Crooked promoters fleeced the unsuspecting public under the benevolent eye of a sleeping government. The fundamentally agricultural background of our economic life was forgotten; more and more industrial products flooded markets and filled warehouses. Companies which could only have prospered on a more moderate scale were over-capitalized. Rural areas were drained of their population; the small industry which had made Canada was ruined, and the whole economic life of Canada was placed in the hands of a few.

The inevitable happened: yes, the colossus crashed. We had imagined we could accomplish in a few years what England and other nations had taken hundreds of years to accomplish. Today we find ourselves at the crossroads. Which path shall we choose? This country will not recover unless the executives of our banks, railways, industry and commerce are prepared to make sacrifices. We must retrace our steps to a just appreciation of our duties, our importance and our financial means. Two words will indicate the path: common sense, just plain common sense. Therein lies the solution.

These considerations lead us to the matter of national defence and external policy, since they entail tremendous expenditures, and possibly a whole re-shaping of our policies. I beg of you, ladies and gentlemen, that you understand the difficult circumstances in which I am placed to discuss these matters, and I ask to be excused if the views I am about to express do not meet with your own. I am only trying to translate what I believe to be the views of my compatriots, and it is only with a sense of loyalty and duty to them and to you that I have decided to approach this subject.

The French-Canadian, through his newspapers and radio stations, is fully informed of the international situation. I have no doubt in my mind that every French-Canadian, man, woman and child, would gladly give his last drop of blood to defend the territory he discovered and where his countless generations of his forebears. Any measures taken to insure the proper defence and integrity of the geographical territory, and which are indicated by and proportionate to the actual danger, will meet with his full approval. The history of Canada shows that this is no idle boast: in 1774 and in 1812 it was the rampart of French-Canadian breasts which stopped enemy bullets and made this country safe from invasion and foreign conquest. If there were threats of an invasion today, history would repeat a thousandfold, and French Canadians would be found at the very forefront of danger. Yet, imperialism does not exist in French-Canada; it is felt that Canada is not a part of Europe, nor is it a piece of territory accidentally detached from the British Isles. For these reasons it has a right to decide for itself what its foreign policy will be, and it has a right to neutrality in British wars. In other words, Canada should be concerned with Canada, and the ghastly and costly experience of the Great War, absolutely barren of advantages as far as Canada is concerned, has taught the French-Canadian a profound hate for war, together with a staunch determination never to become foolishly engaged in a foreign adventure, however glorious it may appear.

Again, I ask that you do not for a moment imagine that the French-Canadian is anti-British; he is coolly and deliberately loyal to the King, not through sentimental reasons, but purely through intelligent reasoning and inherent straightforwardness of purpose. I have no doubt that in a war where England would be engaged, the French-Canadian would sincerely wish that she emerge victorious; yet his prime allegiance is with Canada. If he had to choose between Britain or any other country, including France, he would without a second thought, choose Britain. If he were placed in the position where he would have to decide between Great Britain and Canada, he would choose Canada; he cannot understand how some English-Canadians, who owe their prime allegiance to Canada because they came to its generous bosom for a haven and a living, can out-British the British in their imperialism.

If I were asked to state in brief the true sentiment of French Canada, I would put it thus: A French-Canadian will stand respectfully and sincerely pray to God that he save the King; but his heart will throb and his throat will ring with the notes of "O Canada."

But the French-Canadian it not against foreign participations for these reasons alone. He knows his geography of Canada better than anyone else, since his ancestors helped to make it. To him, her rugged coasts are a mighty deterrent to organized invasion. He can think of air raids and visualize them, but not in too great numbers; he knows that under favorable circumstances the ocean can be flown, but he is still looking for airplanes which can leave Europe and Asia in fleets and return non-stop. Even with airplane carriers, systematic large air raids could only be accomplished with difficulty, and home defence properly organized and manned would repulse these.

Looking at the international chess-board, he sees Japan fully occupied in China; Italy's desire for conquest lies logically in and around the Mediterranean; Germany's path, as has been too clearly indicated recently, lies eastward. Were Italy and Germany's plans changed to westward, Britain and France, with Russia at the back, not to protect Canada, but in their own interests, would prove quite a bit to swallow. Even then, it is reasonably certain that the United States would not stand idly by.

May I add that the French-Canadian is not alone in this interpretation of international obligations: the 3,000,000 Canadians of other than British descent seem to feel similarly, and English-Canadians in considerable numbers (I could name you some very eminent ones), have accepted this viewpoint of "Canada only," in the matter of defence. The bare truth, hard as it may sound to some of you, is that Canada is not a British colony with one language and one flag, but that it is an autonomous North American nation. Canada is not, as is in some quarters thought, a part of the British Isles, or Britain in North America, but Canada purely and simply. The one country to which both English and French-Canadians must belong is not England but CANADA, in large capital letters. Canadian national consciousness does not go to the point of sacrificing lives which are sorely needed here, just for the purpose of consolidating or changing the balance of power in Europe.

And now, ladies and gentlemen of Winnipeg, who have so kindly and so patiently listened to this exposé, may I be allowed to add these final words. The French-Canadian is, in the real sense, the truest Canadian; three hundred years of toil have made him so and severed his connections with another world. Canada is his love, his ambition, his home. In the hour of a grave crisis you will find French-Canadians of all political colors with one voice and one heart. The French-Canadian is loyal, generous, hospitable, anxious to live in peace and harmony: no one has a right to challenge his sincerity, his devotion to all things Canadian, his whole-hearted approval and support for any movement which will accentuate the development or prosperity of the land he loves so well. The French-Canadian element is the most united, most homogeneous group in Canada, and it is not divided by religious or linguistic differences. There are 3,300,000 French-Canadians in Canada; another 3,000,000 are in New England. It is quite easy to imagine what a powerful factor such numbers would prove to be in the material and moral welfare of this country, if they were allowed to blossom unhindered and unfettered. The French-Canadian is a devout Catholic, and his religion orders him to submit and obey to constituted authority scrupulously; he must practice Christian charity and tolerance towards his fellow-men. In his treatment of the English element he has been a worthy example of generosity and respect; is it not only fair that these sentiments be reciprocated, and that he be shown that his industry and national accomplishments are appreciated, and that he be encouraged to settle and develop this Dominion in any part he may wish to do so? It is easy to conceive what this country would be today, if each group had done as much for its development and betterment as the French-Canadian race has done.

Internal discontent is suicidal to a nation; we know where the discontent springs from, we know how it can be cured. Shall we not have the courage to tackle the evil at its very root, by first doing away with those racial differences and prejudices which prevent whole-hearted effort for the common good?

I say to you that any generous sentiment which you express in practical deeds to the French-Canadian will be returned a hundredfold, and will bear the richest harvest the field of inter-Canadian relations ever bore. We worship one God, we love one country, Canada. Shall we allow inordinate pride to stand in the way of a true national understanding?

I do not hesitate to say, and I may be freely quoted on this point, that Federalism will not successfully endure, nor will the edifice of Canadian nationhood remain unshaken, unless full recognition is bestowed equally upon the two racial elements of this Dominion, and their language, religion, traditions and institutions wholly respected. Sectarian politicians of any race must be scared away from the political arena and be replaced by real statesmen who will realize that this country is not prepared for, nor will it stand, strict uniformity. If the French-Canadian element is not allowed to develop according to its best traditions and rights, it will never be able to give its best effort to this Dominion. The letter of the law must be changed, or the present text must be given wider interpretations.

Canada will only become the Canada we dream of when all of us can loyally and sincerely stand together and sing "O Canada" without pangs of remorse or an inner feeling of hypocrisy.

Meanwhile, the Cross of Cartier still watches over us.

Social and Personal

Miss Mona Bates left last week to visit her grandmother in Fort William, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Creswell, of Carleton Place, are renewing old acquaintances in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Copeland and family, of Lakefield, have taken up residence in town for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hartley, of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mrs. Hartley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Armstrong.

Mrs. Alex Barker, of Brownsburg, entertained at a kitchen shower Saturday evening in honour of Miss Louise Goldworthy, whose marriage takes place the latter part of the month.

Mr. W. R. Lavis, second engineer on the S.S. Lady Drake, left Tuesday night to join his ship at Halifax, after spending the past week visiting his brother, Mr. Jack Lavis, and Mrs. Lavis.

Mrs. Norman Stewart left on Sunday to visit relatives in Montreal, en route to her home in Edmonton, Alta., after visiting Mrs. J. D. Campbell.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. McAdam were Mr. and Mrs. L. Russell and their daughters, Beverley and Shirley, of Verdun; Mrs. John Murray and daughter, Violet, of Rosemount; and Miss Lillian Bristoll, who is leaving shortly for England.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark included — Mr. and Mrs. Walter Watson, of Notre Dame de Grace; Mr. and Mrs. Albert McDonnell, of St. Andrews East; Mr. J. Thompson, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. L. Thompson and family and Miss C. Doig, of Lachute; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Creswell and son, Robert, of Brownsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Creswell, of Carleton Place, Ont.

the celebrant, and Dean Carlisle will be the guest speaker at the breakfast which will follow in the Parish House.

Presbyterian Y.P.S. Held First Social Evening

About thirty members attended the first monthly social evening of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. on Wednesday. The business was adjourned in quick order, there being nothing on the slate demanding immediate attention, and afterwards various games were enjoyed by the group. To close the evening, a light lunch was served. An unsolved mystery was precipitated by the fact that some members had just arrived from attending a "Harvest Supper" but calmly sat down and did their share (the mystery being where they put it all!) The Membership Committee extends a welcome to all who care to join in the Society's activities.

St. Andrews East Churches

St. Andrews E. — A special service of thanksgiving for the preservation of peace in Europe was held in the Anglican Church on Sunday morning and was well attended.

At the harvest thanksgiving service, which will be held in the Presbyterian Church on Friday evening, the Rev. A. Love, of Bishop Carmichael Church, Montreal, will give the address and Rev. Rural Dean Booy will read the lessons.

During the absence on vacation of Rev. J. A. Mowatt, the pulpit of the United Church is being occupied by students from the Theological College, Montreal.

Plans are going ahead for the usual pre-Christmas tea and sale by the Woman's Guild of the United Church, for Nov. 24th.

W.M.S. Sectional Rally

A sectional rally under the Montreal Presbytery of the Women's Missionary Society will be held in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, Lachute, on Thursday, Oct. 13th. Luncheon will be served by the ladies of Lachute.

The guest speaker, Dr. Elizabeth Thurott, of Jhansi, India, has had interesting experiences, not only as a medical missionary, but as an evangelist, a musician and a choir leader. Special music will be provided by Mrs. Seymour, of the choir of St. Andrews and St. Paul.

Evangelistic Meetings

Members of the historic Baptist Church at Dalesville are looking forward to a series of evangelistic meetings, starting on Tuesday of next week. Rev. W. L. Hisey, of Westboro' Baptist Church, is to be the evangelist.

Mr. Roland Cruise left on Sunday for Granby after a two weeks' vacation at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hay, of Ottawa, were the guests of Mrs. E. McCoy over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, of Templeton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Steele.

Mrs. R. A. Giles is spending a few days this week visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. Bolster, in Springfield, Mass.

Misses Margaret, Jean and Ethel McQuat were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McAdam over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman W. Reid, of Lorne Park, Ont., are spending two weeks here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carpenter.

Mrs. Harold Young left for her home in Quebec City last night after spending the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Armstrong, Lachute Road.

Weddings

Lafleur-LaPrairie

The marriage of Ruth Catherine, daughter of the late Richard L. LaPrairie and Mrs. LaPrairie, of Verdun, to Dr. Jules Lafleur, son of Mr. Louis Lafleur and of the late Mrs. Lafleur, of Lachute, took place Saturday morning at St. Willibrod's Church, Verdun, Rev. Father Roger Lafleur, brother of the bridegroom, officiating. Autumn flowers and palms were used to decorate the church. Miss Ellen Fisher sang during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Charles LaPrairie, wore a gown of cream lacelike sheer over taffeta, having a full skirt falling to instep length, a jacket on tuxedo lines lengthening in the back to form a short train, and long tight-fitting sleeves extending to points over the hands. Her fingertip length veil was held in place by a Juliet cap, and she carried a cascade bouquet of Easter lilies and lily-of-the-valley.

Her only attendant, Miss Lillian Madore, wore a gown of pale blue sheer, over taffeta, having a full floor-length skirt, and a short, tight-fitting jacket of the same material, with a heart-shaped neckline, and a doll hat of feathers; she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Lionel Lafleur acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Gerald LaPrairie, cousin of the bride, Mr. John Dickinson, Dr. Lucien Julien and Dr. Paul Letendre.

Mrs. LaPrairie, the bride's mother, wore a gown of black velvet, with a small hat and a corsage bouquet of red roses.

The reception was held at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. G. F. LaPrairie, and Mrs. LaPrairie, 5761 Deom Avenue, where baby chrysanthemums and white carnations were used in the decorations.

Dr. and Mrs. Lafleur left by motor for New York, the bride travelling in a blue tailored suit with navy accessories and wearing stone marten furs. On their return they will reside on Grace Street, Lachute.

Witham-MacLeod

The marriage of Eunice Rachael, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. MacLeod, of Pointe au Chene, to Mr. Frederick Thomas Witham, of Brownsburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Witham, took place on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 at the home of the bride's parents, Pointe au Chene, Rev. S. J. Pike, of Brownsburg United Church, officiating. Autumn flowers were used profusely, with garlands and bells, in the decorations. Miss P. MacLeod played the wedding march and Miss Grace Foster, of Brownsburg, sang "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a navy blue dress of chiffon crepe, with hat and veil, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Leslie Keay, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor and wore a dress of rust crepe and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

The groom was ably supported by Mr. Fred Hosgoode, of Brownsburg. During the reception, which was held at the bride's home, and following the toast to the bride and groom, Rev. S. J. Pike presented them with a Bible, to which the groom replied in very suitable terms.

Following the reception, the happy couple left by car for points in Canada and the New England States. On their return they will reside in Brownsburg. In addition to the many handsome and valuable gifts which they received, their Brownsburg friends wish them many years of happy wedded life.

Former Grenv'l Pastor Meets Brother After 30 Years

Grenville — The Canadian Baptist, and the Toronto Globe and Mail, tell the story of a re-union between two brothers — which will be of interest to readers throughout Chatham, Grenville and Stonefield who recall the Rev. J. B. Brown as a former Baptist pastor in those communities.

Mr. Brown has resided in Aylmer, Ont., for several years. He is now 77 years old and retired from the active pastorate seven years ago. But the little church at Iona was sorely in need of a pastor, so Mr. Brown has been filling the gap, and is now retiring from the ministry.

The Rev. J. B. Brown's first charge in Canada was at Niagara Falls, but he filled a number of pastorates in Ontario and Quebec. He is a son of the late Rev. Joseph Brown, veteran Baptist minister, of Norfolk, England. He has returned to his home in England twice since coming to Canada.

Now Mr. Brown is enjoying a visit from his brother, Sir Frank Brown, of England — who, with his daughter, Miss Margaret Brown, a graduate nurse, is making his first trip to Canada. Rev. J. B. Brown and his brother have not seen each other for 30 years, as Frank was in India during the Rev. Mr. Brown's last visit to his old home.

As a young man Sir Frank Brown joined the staff of the London Times. Subsequently, he was sent to India as secretary of a British Government commission, remaining there seven years, during which time he was connected with the Bombay Gazette.

On his return to England, he was decorated by the late King George V with Companionship in the Order of the Indian Empire. His understanding of Anglo-Indian affairs and the assistance he has been able to render the British Government brought him additional recognition when he was created a Knight in the Order of the British Empire at the Coronation of King George VI last year. He rejoined the staff of the London Times on returning from India, and is still with that newspaper.

Brownsburg United Church

The Men's League re-opened for the season on Tuesday evening with a house party at the home of the past president, Mr. Wallace Wilson. The topic, "The New Day of Peace," was taken by the minister, Rev. S. J. Pike, and provoked considerable comment. Several items of business were dealt with, including the opening of the library on Saturday evening next, when the lady friends are to be present. Delegations will also be present from Montreal and Harrington. Following the "fireside meeting" on Tuesday evening dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Wallace Wilson, assisted by her mother, Mrs. T. Williams. The new library, which consists of several hundred books, will be augmented by an up-to-date encyclopedia, the generous gift of Mr. Leonard Wilson. The library will cater to all lovers of books and representatives from the various organizations will assist in the distribution.

A harvest thanksgiving service will be held next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, in which the Sunday School will join the congregation. The Junior Choir will render musical numbers. The church will be decorated for the occasion, for which contributions of vegetables, fruits and flowers are asked to be sent on Saturday afternoon to the church. These will be distributed on Monday to needy families.

The executive of the Young People's Society is meeting at the home of Miss Dolly Steere on Friday evening of this week to arrange a program for the coming season. The Society will re-open next Wednesday evening.

Bible Society Dis. Secretary To Give Interesting Lecture

AN APPEAL FOR SUPPORT IN EFFORTS OF LACHUTE LOCAL BRANCH

On Sunday, Oct. 16th, the Rev. James Adams, District Secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, will pay his annual visit and give an address on "Colporteur Work in Northern Africa," which will be illustrated with lantern slides. The annual meeting of the local group, at which this address is to be heard, will take place in Lachute United Church at 7 p.m. on the above date, and a report of local activities will be presented.

Collectors in the various districts have been supplied with cards, and it is hoped that a ready response will be given in their canvass for this worthy cause. The Scriptures are being distributed in ever extending areas and the Bible has been received with gratitude by vast numbers of people who are discovering it to be the Word of Life. It has found its way into a thousand languages, broken down indifference wherever it has gone, and while in some quarters it has met with opposition, sooner or later the prejudice has given way to its onward march. It is recorded that in the year's work there were 11,318,575 copies of Scripture issued, and to the extent of public contributions the work will increase. The Lachute branch of the Society has always been one of the leaders in furnishing support, and it is hoped all citizens welcome the opportunity to further this work.

Anglican Y.P.A. to Gather at Arundel for the Fifth Montr'l Diocesan Conference

The fifth Montreal Diocesan Conference of the Anglican Young People's Association will be held at Arundel from Friday, October 7, to Sunday evening, October 9. Delegates from many places throughout the diocese are expected to gather at the Arundel rectory on Friday evening.

Saturday's program includes Corporate Communion at 8 a.m., at Grace Church, Arundel, followed by breakfast at 9 o'clock at which C. E. Goodhue, of Montreal, will give an address; the annual meeting of Montreal Diocesan Council, lunch and the election and installation of officers will follow, and a banquet will be held in the evening, at which the Rev. John Peacock, of Montreal, will be the guest speaker.

On Sunday there will be a church service at 11 a.m., and the closing session of the conference will be held in the rectory, leaving the afternoon free for sightseeing.

The A.Y.P.A. annual Thanksgiving Corporate Communion service for Montreal district will be held in Christ Church Cathedral on Monday at 8 a.m. Bishop Farthing will be

AND NOW A SEA SCOUT YARN

En route to a Scout camp, Tacoma, Wash., Sea Scouts ran ashore on an unmarked shoal. The shoal moved, and turned into a whale, which came to the surface, slid from under the boat and endeavored to smack it with its tail. A tail tip struck and bent the Scout craft's railing.

A CRUSHED-STRAWBERRY VICTIM

In response to a call from alarmed observers, police of Levis, Que., raced to a Boy Scout camp, to find a boy tied to a tree, his face apparently covered with blood. The blood proved to be crushed-strawberry make-up for the "victim" in a Scout frontier drama.

$100,000 FOR EXPANSION OF SCOUTING IN OKLAHOMA AND TEXAS

The sum of $100,000 for the expansion of Boy Scouting throughout Oklahoma and a part of Texas has been made available by Mr. Frank Phillips, of Bartlesville, Okla., through the Phillips Foundation. The fund will permit the employment of a considerable number of additional Scouting field secretaries.

A MOUNTAIN CLIMB FOR A CAN OF RASPBERRIES

During the summer's camp of the 1st Towsester Boy Scout Troop near Lamberis, at the foot of Mount Snowden, the Scoutmaster offered a tin of raspberries to any Scout who would climb to the summit in less than 3½ hours. Scouts T. Bell and W. Townsend accepted the challenge, reached the crest in 2½ hours, and collected the tin of berries.

ENGLAND LOSES ITS SCOUTING BISHOP

Scouting in England has suffered a loss in the death of the Bishop of Jarrow, the Right Rev. James Gordon, known as the "Scouting Bishop," because of the time given by him to active leadership in the movement, including 13 years as an outstandingly successful Scoutmaster, and six years as Assistant County Commissioner for Durham. At last year's World Scout Jamboree in Holland he was in charge of religious observances of the British Empire contingent, and filled a similar role at large Scout rallies in England. On such occasions he always wore the Scout uniform of short-sleeved shirt and shorts.

MORMON CHURCH APPROVES SCOUTING

"The Scout Movement is doing more for the youth of today than any other force for good. For that reason it occupies a prominent place in youth training in the Church of Latter Day Saints,"—President Heber J. Grant.

30,000 SCOTTISH SCOUTS GATHER

More than 30,000 Scottish Boy Scouts took part in a national rally in the stadium at the British Empire Exhibition at Glasgow. The program included a pageant depicting highlights of Scottish history.

A BORDER RALLY OF SCOUTS

A July border of 500 American and Canadian Boy Scouts at Edmundston, N.B., was greeted by Mayor J. H. Proulx. The gathering brought together Scouts from Presqu'Isle, Carleton Place, VanBuren and Madawaska, Maine, and St. Leonard, St. Basile, Perth and Edmundston.

Wood -- And the Future

By Frank Parker Stockbridge

Anyone who has seen pictures of "modern" architecture, or examples of some of the steel-concrete-glass buildings which are exploited as "the house of the future," or has read the numerous prophecies about the way people will live a hundred years from now, may easily have gained the impression that it won't be long now before nobody will have any more use for wood, and the carpenter's trade will be obsolete.

Just the contrary is true, according to L. J. Markwardt of the U.S. Forest Products Laboratory. Scientific study of wood as a building material has shown that it is much stronger and more durable, if properly selected and treated, than had been assumed. With half as much lumber as is customarily used in framing buildings, equally good and enduring structures can be built, Mr. Markwardt says.

Wood is easier to work with than any other building material, it is less costly than most, and forest reserves, far from being exhausted, can supply all the lumber needed for an indefinite time ahead. The standard dwelling is a "frame house." It looks as if that might continue to be the type of home in which the typical family of a hundred years hence will still be living.

Milk for Calcium Needs of the Growing Child

Neither man nor animal selects health-giving foods by instinct, declared Dr. L. H. Newburgh, Professor of Clinical Investigation at the University of Michigan, speaking at Calgary in connection with a campaign of the Canadian Medical Association to increase public knowledge of proper diet. Dr. Newburgh, a leading United States authority, asserted that chemical research had proven that instinct and appetite alone could not be trusted to tell people what they should eat.

The ill-health of mountaineers of the southern United States offers wholesale evidence of the effect of inadequate diet, said Dr. Newburgh. "The habitual food of large groups of people contains far too little protein," he stated. "Thus, in the south central portion of the United States, especially in the mountainous districts, the food consists chiefly of corn, molasses and salt pork. The natives are thin, pale, haggard, devoid of ambition and lacking in strength. It is characteristic that they accept their debility as a matter of course and evince no interest in overcoming it. Even though they are suffering from a protein deficiency, instinct does not prompt them to seek out protein-rich foods."

A child receives too little calcium for the proper development of bones and teeth unless it drinks four glasses of milk daily or takes the equivalent in the form of a pint of milk, four ounces of cream, an ounce of cheese, and a serving of some leafy vegetable, he contended. Since it would take 22 pounds of beef or eight pounds of bread to provide the calcium content of one quart of milk, Dr. Newburgh pointed out that it would be impossible to eat enough meat, eggs and white bread to fill the calcium needs of a growing child.

"Our forbears were wiser than they knew when they cherished the cow, for she patiently and with never a complaint extracts the calcium from large quantities of grass and delivers it to us in so small a package that we imbibe it with ease and pleasure," he commented, adding that physicians could prescribe calcium in medicinal form for the occasional child with whom milk does not agree.

He emphasized, too, the need for vitamins. These, he said, were lacking in the diet of the average big city dweller, causing "deficiency" diseases. Thus, in addition to milk, eggs and meat, he recommended that daily diet include one pound of green leafy vegetables and fruit, raw or cooked.

American Colonization

Started on James River

The history of American colonization has its beginning on the James river, that navigable arm of the Atlantic ocean through which its tides ebb and flow for 100 miles to the falls at Richmond.

At Varina, 50 miles above Jamestown, John Rolfe settled with his bride, Pocahontas, and first successfully cultivated tobacco in Virginia, says the Richmond Times Dispatch. In both the Revolutionary war and the Civil war the navigability of James river was an important factor. The channel as far as Bermuda Hundred could accommodate practically all ships during those early days, but from Bermuda Hundred to Richmond it was only seven to ten feet below tide.

In 1827 a federal survey was made, and in 1852-54 the first improvement of record was made at a cost of $44,000, at which time the water-borne traffic to Richmond amounted to about 100,000 tons a year. During the war the river was blocked by sunken vessels and military obstructions, and these were not altogether removed until 1870, when by act of congress $75,000 was appropriated for the opening of the Dutch Gap canal and deepening of the channel to Richmond.

In 1930 congress authorized straightening and deepening the channel to twenty-five feet from the mouth to a point near Richmond.

WE STRUCK LUCK AT THE HARBOR

Sometimes we strike luck when we go to Halifax harbor. Today one of the boys, when there, saw plenty of action. The Rotterdam, a cruise boat from New York, was flying the Blue Peter and was just ready to sail. We watched the tugs pull her out and turn her around in the harbor and then she steamed out to sea. An ocean liner is always a thrill. They look their best when they sail in the setting sun, as it lights up the white paint and makes them stand out as in a silhouette. The Rotterdam must be a fairly old boat as she has not the lines of the newer ones, but she is a large boat and still good to see. Just as she was drawing out of sight, we saw a gleam of sails, and as they drew nearer, we saw it was a four-masted schooner. I have seen quite a number of four-masted sailing ships at anchor but this is the first time I have seen one with her sails set. She was fairly heavily loaded with pulp wood, which made her look all the better. Her lines were good, and I am telling you that a four-masted schooner under full sail is an unforgettable sight. We heard the Rotterdam blowing her whistle to salute another boat and what should it be but the Bluenose. Many of you have seen her, either in Nova Scotia or when she made her trip to the Great Lakes. To one who loves ships, any boat is interesting, but there is something about the sight of a sailing vessel that captures the imagination.

TUNA

Tuna is one of our least used fish and yet it can be cooked in so many different ways. We cannot all get fresh tuna but we certainly can get the canned variety. I spent the summer at Hubbard's in Nova Scotia and there was great excitement when the occasional tuna was brought in to the fish-house just across the cove from my bedroom window, to be butchered. Yes! Butchered is the word they use. When you think that they weigh six and seven hundred pounds, you can understand the use of the term. Each year they have a Tuna Tournament in Liverpool, N.S. This year the tournament was a great success from the standpoint of numbers present and a good time, but the tuna themselves were a bit coy. Instead of the papas and mamas turning up, a flock of babies appeared. The largest tuna caught weighed only 68 pounds. The next week in came the big ones and again the six and seven hundred pounders were caught. I saw a tuna trap when out sailing one day. It is a large circular affair made of a net of heavy rope.

TUNA SANDWICHES

Many's the "chicken sandwich" I have made from tuna. My guests take one bite and say, "Ah, chicken." I seldom dissuade them. After all, I don't tell them they are chicken. Turn a can of white tuna meat into a colander and rinse well to remove the oil. Chop finely and add half the amount of finely chopped celery. Mix with sufficient salad dressing to moisten. I like to use a mixture of boiled dressing and mayonnaise. An oil dressing alone seems too rich but the boiled is a bit flat, so the mixture is just right. Add pepper and salt if necessary. Tuna is fairly salt so taste before adding more. Spread between slices of buttered white bread.

TUNA SALAD

Turn a can of tuna into a colander and rinse with cold water. Cut the fish into dice and add an equal amount of finely cut celery. Make other additions as you would to a chicken salad. I always like to add chopped stuffed olives and possibly either peas or shredded almonds. Mix with sufficient salad dressing to moisten, taste to see if it requires more salt and serve on lettuce.

JELLIED LAMB

1 package aspic jelly powder, 2 cups boiling water, 3½ cups ground cooked lamb, 3 tablespoons minced onion, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup chopped olives. Mix the aspic with the hot water and stir until dissolved. Cool slightly and pour the bottom of a mold with a little of the liquid. Arrange sliced, stuffed olives. Let stand until set. Add the remaining ingredients to the rest of the liquid and let stand while the decorations set. Stir well and pour into mold. Chill until firm. Small molds may be used if preferred. Garnish with lettuce or water-cress. This makes a good company meat and a convenient Sunday one for home consumption.

A Happy Bed-Time

There are some very wise mothers. When things are not to their liking, they find out what is causing the trouble and then set about righting it. One mother said that at night she came down tired out from putting the children to bed; and the children, themselves, went to bed cross and unhappy. Thinking it over she decided the children dawdled too much and she nagged at them trying to hurry them. She planned a new course of action. First, she started them to bed ten minutes earlier in order to have sufficient time. Then she kept her darning basket upstairs and darned while the children were getting ready for bed. This kept her mind and her hands occupied and made her less inclined to nag nervously. She told the children that the light would be turned out at eight o'clock but that if there was any time left after they were ready for bed, she would read to them. Like all children, they loved to have their mother read them a story. If it were necessary she helped the children, but she left them chiefly to their own devices. In order to get more reading they quit fooling and helped each other. The scheme worked well and the results were good. The children learned to do for themselves and to help each other — both good things; they learned to accomplish something without wasting time; they had the pleasure of hearing their mother read; and they went to bed in good humor. From the mother's standpoint it was equally successful. She enjoyed a pleasant time with her children; she did not come downstairs nervously tired from trying to hurry the children; and she got her darning done in the odd moments. When there are family upsets, do some constructive thinking. Try to find out the reason behind it, and then plan a way of overcoming it. — Jessie Allen Brown.

husband refused her money for this purpose. Two months treatment in a sanitarium seemed to help her. After she had been home one week, she started drinking again and is now in an insane asylum. Unquestionably the liquor problem is the worst type of sickness that confronts the doctor, for a majority of these unfortunate ultimately acquire drug habits.

HOUSE AND HOME

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Aunt Florinda's cookie-crock stood on the bottom shelf of the cupboard under her "bread shelf" in the pantry and the crock was always full. Whenever my mother took me to call on this great-aunt I was given two cookies on a little pink plate and a tiny fringed napkin. In the summer I sat on the top step of the side porch and in the winter on a low stool close to the hearth of the dining-room fireplace to eat the cookies because, despite the plate and the napkin, children might drop crumbs.

You know cookies are more desirable than cake for children. The dry crumb of the cookie is much easier to digest than the moist crumb of cake. Afternoon tea is easy to serve if you have a plate of cookies ready for the tea tray. Oh, there are ever so many reasons why it's worth while to keep a full cookie crock.

Here is a recipe for dropped fruit and nut cookies that I'm sure you will like.

Dropped Fruit and Nut Cookies

One and one-half cups brown sugar, ¼ cup butter or other shortening, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda, 3 tablespoons water, 1 cup chopped dates, 1 cup chopped nut meats, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs well beaten. Mix fruit and nuts with flour and add to first mixture. Dissolve soda in water. Add salt and vanilla and drop from teaspoon onto an oiled and floured cookie sheet. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for twelve minutes.

Chocolate brownies always are popular, so here is a good recipe for them.

Chocolate Brownies

Two eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 squares baking chocolate, ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup broken nut meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Beat eggs until very light and beat in sugar. Melt butter and chocolate, blending thoroughly. Add to egg mixture. Beat well and add flour, nuts and vanilla. Mix and spread evenly in a well greased pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for thirty-five minutes. Cool. Cut in squares and store in a tightly closed tin box.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

"If I Give Up, He Will"

A woman whose lot had been particularly hard during the depression, was exceptionally cheerful. Everyone remarked about it. They remarked about it because they knew that it was only by cutting corners here, going without, and giving up their Sunday trips, that they were able to keep their bills paid up sufficiently so that the dealers would continue to send them goods.

One day an intimate friend queried, "Why are you so cheerful?"

"I'm not," was the quick reply, "but — if I give up, he will."

Now that they have weathered the worst of it, the husband admits that there were times when he felt like quitting, but adds, "I kept thinking, what would it do to her? We never failed at anything before. We would find it hard to face ourselves in the years to come, realizing that we had failed at this."

— We are all in the same boat. When the waves break unexpectedly, almost knocking the breath out, and you feel faint at the pit of the stomach — take a look at that wounded fellow who still pulls his oar. He might jump into the sea if you so much as intimate that you are weakening.

Was it the sage of East Aurora who said, "Keep your chin in, and the crown of your head high; we are gods in the crystalis."

Mud spatters should be allowed to dry thoroughly before brushing. Then sponge with alcohol.

Women and Children First

By Catherine Parmenter Newell

Now is this old, heroic maxim come On evil days; the ancient chivalry Has fled . . . no longer can a pebble be

Inspired by bugle call, by flag or drum; And songs are lost amid the motor's roar

Speeding these winged instruments of death To hurl their flame and steel — to stifle breath —

And with such ease to loose the dogs of war Upon the frightened, the defenceless ones;

Yea, upon the piteous who must bear New ravages from earth and sea and air —

The ominous, enduring sound of guns — The wrench of hunger — and the smart of thirst . . .

Yea, upon these: "Women and children first."

Members of the Women's Institute in Scotland are looking forward to organizing a trip to Canada next summer. The last group to visit the New World took back such a glowing description of their trip that others have become desirous of seeing for themselves the wonders of a country so different from their own.

The trip will include several new features, among them an invitation, already given, by Lady Tweedsmuir, to attend afternoon tea at Government House.

The DOCTOR
by W.E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

ALCOHOLISM

Chronic alcoholism is considered a disease by some eminent medical authorities, while others insist that it is an acquired pernicious habit. Heredity no doubt is to a certain extent responsible for a craving of some stimulant to control excessive nervousness, and the victim sooner or later ascertains that liquor in small doses does overcome this bodily weakness, only to learn too late that he must gradually increase the quantity consumed to get the quieting results, and ultimately becomes a confirmed drunkard.

Today the intelligent doctor knows that a patient using liquor in excessive quantities has less opportunity for recovery from prolonged and acute diseases than the person who never drinks or who takes alcohol in moderation. This is particularly true in heart conditions, typhoid, pneumonia, yellow fever and illnesses which affect the heart and lungs. I never appreciated the truthfulness of this until I found myself in the middle of a yellow fever in Venezuela. Out of forty-six white patients, but one survived. Every one who died was a heavy drinker. The man who pulled through seldom tasted liquor and his recovery was due to the fact that his heart was able to do its work, when required because it had not been excessively stimulated by alcohol for years.

Consumption of Liquor

Directly and indirectly there has been an increasing death rate, due to the excessive use of alcoholic beverages, and the abrupt rise in automobile accidents can be traced to the greater consumption of liquor. Arculanus in 1483 wrote a wonderful description of chronic alcoholism — so exact that it might be used today in describing these cases. From that time on others have studied the unfortunate addicted to this stimulant but so far nothing definite has been accomplished, in making these so-called cures permanent. These cases are most confusing to the physician.

Twenty years ago I had a male patient, who in a drunken frenzy nearly killed his wife and daughter. After recovering from delirium tremens and realizing what he had done, this man never again tasted whiskey, and even refused it when he had pneumonia. Within a year I have had another patient, a mother of three children, who had never tasted alcoholic drinks until she was past forty, suddenly acquiring a liking for them. She neglected her household duties as well as her family and sold the furniture to get more liquor when her

Muskrat Builds Home He Can Live In, Also Eat

One of the rarest kinds of homes is one that can be eaten as well as lived in. The muskrat sometimes builds such a home in the form of the familiar house of flags which is so often seen in marshes.

Most often these houses are made of the flag plant which produces the well-known cat-tail. The leaves, stems, and roots are used in constructing the dwelling. These parts of the plant also form the main items in the muskrat's diet, especially when the plant is green. But when the rats become hard pressed for food, dried cat-tails are eaten too. And this is the time their homes come in handier than ever, writes Clarence Taube in the Detroit News.

Under close examination the muskrat house reveals itself as being quite an elaborate construction. Their conical shapes vary in size, ranging from 4 to 8 feet in diameter at the base and from only 2 or 3 feet in height to as high as 5 feet. From their broad bases they usually taper to a much smaller circumference at the top.

Above the water-line over the base, living room is provided for. Entrance is made from below the water surface, each house usually having several entrances.

No matter how severe a spell of cold weather may suddenly strike, the house rat is not frozen out of a supply of food. When a hard winter comes a muskrat colony can begin eating its dwelling and grow fat on this diet.

Criticizes "Improvements" on Lachute-St. Jovite Route

A correspondent to one of the city newspapers has taken exception to the makeshift improvements observed on Route 31 (Lachute-Arundel-St. Jovite). This highway is an important link in the Laurentian system — and might prove a more popular one if it could "live down" its unwholesome reputation among motorists. The writer states as follows:

Sir, — Whitewashing boulders instead of removing them; digging narrow trenches along the narrow roadsides instead of widening the road by putting shoulders on it and raising the level, seem to be two recognized customs on Route 31, one of the two Laurentian gateways from Montreal.

Route 31, if taken as a sample of the road building ability of our roads department heads, could hardly be

FEDERAL MEMBER FOR JACQUES CARTIER RESUMES MILLING CONNECTION

After eight years of absence, during which time he served the Town of Pointe Claire as secretary-treasurer, Vital Mallette, M.P., has returned to the milling industry. His appointment as assistant to the vice-president of Robin Hood Flour Mills Limited was recently announced.

Vital Mallette has been active in the milling industry since 1903. He was connected with various milling companies for the first 21 years of his business life. In 1925 he became secretary of the Canadian National Millers' Association, a position which he held until 1929.

In 1928, the Government of Czechoslovakia honoured Mallette by making him an Officer of the Order of the White Lion of Czechoslovakia for his efforts in negotiating a trade treaty between Canada and Czechoslovakia. This treaty was of very considerable benefit to Canadian flour millers.

In addition to business activities, Mr. Mallette has taken a keen interest in many branches of sport. He is the only French-Canadian ever to hold the presidency of the Canadian Branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club. He is a descendant of one of the oldest families in French Canada — a Canadian citizen deeply interested in all phases of his country's life. He has represented Jacques Cartier constituency at Ottawa since the election of 1935. Well known to all connected with the milling industry, his re-appearance in an important executive capacity will be well received in business circles and by the general public.

Giving entrance as it does to one of the finest sections of the Laurentians, Route 31 may have been a fair wagon trail or lumber trail twenty years ago, but in those days horses and wagons negotiated the road at the rate of one trip a day. Now that trucks have supplanted wagons and automobiles replaced horses, one would expect, with the high license fees and the gasoline taxes, that Route 31 would have been rebuilt.

No such luck, however. Trucks loaded with huge logs are forced to negotiate the narrow, twelve foot wide strip while the automobile driver risks his life in pursuing the truck and rounding the blind curves on his way to the beautiful lakes and streams of the district.

Until such time as this dangerous route is widened and straightened, all non-residents and tourists will, of necessity, avoid Route 31.

No doubt the Province of Quebec Safety Council will put up some sort of warning signs as is done in other provinces.

Crusoe, Word "Tobacco," Made Tobago Isle Famous

Occasionally cruising steamers call at Tobago, an island off the coast of Trinidad, Robinson Crusoe's island, and from whose name we acquire the word "tobacco," notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The main connection between Tobago and the outside world is by a government steamer of uncertain habits.

The name Tobago is said to have been bestowed upon the island by Christopher Columbus, who saw in its shape the resemblance to the smoking pipe used by the Caribbean Indians and locally called a "tobago," from which word, incidentally, we acquired the word tobacco. As to the Robinson Crusoe legend and its connection with Tobago, many garbled and misleading versions of it may be heard here.

The inhabitants of Tobago feel proud of the distinction of the island's connection with the sojourn of Robinson Crusoe. They lead the visitor to the cave where Crusoe dwelt with his man Friday, or point out the very beach where the immortal footprints were found.

The statement that Tobago is the real Robinson Crusoe's island may be disputed by some, as the island of Juan Fernandez, off the coast of Chile, has also been identified with Defoe's hero. Any doubter may compare the descriptions in the story with this Caribbean island in order to set all skepticism at rest. Crusoe relates, for example, that he sighted land from the island and knew it was "the great island of Trinidad, on the north point of the mouth of the Orinoco" (Orinoco).

Besides Robinson Crusoe, Tobago once sheltered another famous character, a hero of real flesh and blood—John Paul Jones, "father" of the United States navy, who made his residence here during 1802.

Local Witnesses Testify in Art Contest Fraud Case

JAIL SENTENCES GIVEN; OTHER CONSPIRATORS STAND FOR TRIAL TOMORROW

CITIZENS ARE WARNED: OPEN SEASON FOR "RACKETS" IN RURAL DISTRICTS

Two men pleaded guilty and were sentenced while six others were committed to further hearing tomorrow, October 14th, on charges of conspiracy to defraud hundreds of residents of country districts by means of an allegedly false portrait exhibition in which oil-painted enlargements and gilt frames were sold to contestants.

Witnesses who testified against the group included two victims from the Lachute district, namely, Florence Hume and Mrs. Annie Morrison.

Lorenzo Dube, 33, was sentenced to "time in jail" after he pleaded guilty and later turned King's evidence against the group. The other, who admitted his guilt, Roland Perreault, 31, was sentenced to eight days in jail. Crown Prosecutor Irene Lagarde declared that he also would be heard at the trial.

All proceedings took place before Judge C. E. Guerin, who listened to a half dozen witnesses from farming districts concerning the visits of the agents and Horace Viens, 28, alleged owner of the Université des Arts, St. Catherine Street East. Five others were committed to further hearing.

Each of the witnesses identified one or the other of the accused as the agent who had called and sold an oil-painted enlargement of a family picture for $3.98. The agents added that the picture could be entered in a contest, and that if the judges refused to accept it that the money would be returned, it was testified. Later, witnesses said, Viens visited the contestants and told them that their entries had a good chance of winning if a suitable frame were bought. The frame, police claimed, was represented to be 24 karat gold, it reportedly sold for prices ranging from $12.50 to $400.

Police officers reported during the hearing that sums totalling more than $25,000 were allegedly collected by Viens during the three years he is alleged to have operated the portrait contest. The complaint adds that no contest was ever held and that the reported prize money of $5,005, to be divided between 25 winners, was never distributed.

Taking the stand against the men with whom he had worked, Lorenzo

Dube explained that Viens told the salesmen to stress the contest angle in the sale of oil-painted enlargements. The agents were given documents, affidavits of their identity, trained in the proper approach and checked in the amount of their sales, the witness stated.

After a few witnesses had been heard, Philippe Monette, K.C., counsel for Viens, accepted committal for further hearing. F. X. Biron, counsel for five of the others, cross-examined witnesses closely, however, and obtained admission that they were satisfied with the enlargements for which they had paid $3.98.

Meanwhile various other schemes are reported to have been advanced by agents in the district of St. Philippe and Chatham — and one organization is now being investigated by Provincial Police officers. Citizens are warned to be on their guard against spurious propositions and to be certain of the legality of any enterprise in which they invest their money. Canvassers have shown a preference for aged ladies in the rural districts. As recently as last week one woman is reported to have given a substantial cheque on a photographic contest in which she was promised a prize.

"Art" Promoters Appear to Favor Chatham District

Mme. Philippe Comeau, of St. Philippe, gave the sum of $36.00 last May to representatives of a high-sounding "portrait" enterprise. Last Saturday she was approached by other agents of the company, who stated that her entry had been awarded a prize of $350. To collect this sum, however, she was requested to pay $108 as further expenses. Mme. Comeau gave a cheque for the amount. The agents endeavored to cash the cheque at a hotel, a store and the Banque Provinciale at St. Philippe, but without success.

The bank manager, Albani Lamarche, becoming suspicious, notified Provincial Police and traffic officers, giving the license number of the agents' car. This car was stopped at Lachute by Officer H. Jones. There were two women and three men in the auto. Police officers in Montreal, furnished with the identity of the visitors, are now investigating their operations.

Woman Receives Information She Is Winner in Lottery

Mme. Octave Lefebvre, St. Philippe, had an experience earlier in the week which aroused similar suspicions of misrepresentation. Approached by strangers at her door, she was told she held the lucky ticket and had won $500 in a lottery. She was required, however, to deposit $10 in order to procure the prize. . . . Mme. Lefebvre informed the visitors that she held no ticket whatever, had bought none, nor had knowledge of anyone having purchased a ticket in her name. She declined to pay the $10, even for so emptying a prize, and the visitors went on their way unrewarded.

150 ASSEMBLED FOR ANNUAL BANQUET IN LACHUTE AUDITORIUM

NOTABLES ATTENDED

The Columbus Day celebration was observed by the local K. of C. Council with a large gathering at Lachute Auditorium on Tuesday evening. The attendance numbered around 150 persons. Many honored guests and speakers were present, including gentlemen of prominent rank, both within the Order and in public affairs. The event was the fifth annual banquet of the Lachute Council No. 2752, and presided over by Dr. E. Lalonde, Grand Knight, proved a successful gathering in every detail.

Guests of honor included: Hon. E. A. Bertrand, of Montreal; Hon. A. Paquette, of Mont Laurier; Francis Fauteux, Montreal, Supreme Director of the Order; A. A. Gardiner, State Warden, of St. Lambert; S. A. Dussault, District Deputy, of Hull; A. Chevalier, O.B.E., Fourth Degree Master, of Montreal; W. H. Ayers, Commander of the Order of St. Gregory, of Lachute.

Speeches of an interesting and inspiring order were given by Hon. A. Paquette, Hon. C. A. Bertrand, M. Francis Fauteux, Father E. Labelle, Father L. E. Cloutier, Messrs. A. A. Gardiner, Geo. Héon, M.P., Geo. Dansereau, M.P.P., L. E. Dumais, H. Lamarche, G. Cousineau, F. Lavigne, N.P., and Dr. R. Coté.

The program of entertainment included music by Lowe's Orchestra, cornet selections by Mr. Alex Guenette, saxophone numbers by Mr. Horace Lamarche, accompanied by Mrs. Lamarche, and vocal solos by Mr. J. P. Roy, tenor.

Catering for the banquet was executed by the firm of Victor Regaud, Montreal.

AFFECTS CONFIDENCE OF THE PEOPLE IN GOVERNMENT DEFENCE OUTLAYS

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, Oct. 11th. — With the war clouds removed from the sky of Europe until a more suitable time, the capital of the Dominion has returned to normal. The pressing anxiety has vanished and the people, official or otherwise, can now avail themselves of the mildly stimulating diversion of the Bren Gun Inquiry. At the moment this investigation is the subject of greatest public interest in the capital. It relates to a contract by the Government with a firm in Toronto, the John Inglis Company, for the manufacture of 7,000 light machine guns. The British War Office also placed an order with the company for 5,000 guns. The contract was subjected to an attack in a magazine article written by Colonel Drew, of Toronto. The Government, in view of the allegations of the article, appointed a royal commission to make a thorough probe into all phases of the contract, its inception, its negotiation, etc.

A number of department officials have appeared before the commission and explained the course of negotiation for the manufacture of the Czechoslovakian gun in Canada from the time the department first began to be interested in the weapon. General Lafleche, Deputy Minister of National Defence, gave a full history of the negotiations with Major Hahn of the Inglis Company and with the War Office ending with the granting of an "educational" order for 5,000 guns from the British Government and the Canadian Government contract calls for 7,000 guns signed with the Inglis Company on March 31, 1938. The proceedings of the commission have been hampered by the (Continued on page 3)

Mayor H. Ball, Brownsburg, Addressed Hundred Club

About 20 members of the Lachute Hundred Club, at their regular supper in Desjardins Hotel last evening, were treated to a discourse by Mayor G. H. Ball, of Brownsburg, on his railroad experiences in the Northwest. Although laying no claim to eloquence, Mr. Ball recounted side-lights of railroad construction to the Hudson Bay route which graphically pictured the type of country and the difficulties it presented in this daring venture. The speaker had served as an engineer during the railway boom in Manitoba preceding the Great War. He recalled many humorous and exciting episodes in his experiences, yet revealed something of the hardships endured by men in the development of that particular territory.

Mayor G. H. Ball was introduced to his audience by Centurion L. W. Armstrong, and the thanks of the Club were voiced by Centurion Leonard Bedard.

In connection with Fire Prevention Week, an urge to exercise care against fire hazards was expressed by Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon, who briefly addressed the members.

Among the guests were Messrs. Smith and Ducharme, members of the Ottawa 100 Club.

Centurion Geo. F. Calder occupied the chair in absence of the president, Centurion W. K. McArthur was elected as vice-president of the club, filling the vacancy occasioned by the death of Dr. J. M. Drew.

Home Beautification Now Department of W.I. Work

ARGENTEUIL BRANCHES ASSEMBLED IN LACHUTE FOR SEMI-ANNUAL SESSION

PRINCIPAL C. L. HALL AND MISS H. B. MCCAIN ADDRESSED GATHERING OF LADIES

Forty-five members from different W.I. branches in the county met in the recreation room of Lachute High School to discuss plans for the future, and to listen to addresses from Principal Clifton Hall and Miss H. B. McCain, superintendent of Women's Institutes in the Province of Quebec.

A meeting of the Agriculture convenors, accompanied by two members from their branches, met at 10:30 in the forenoon to discuss the Home Beautification project, with the result that a slate of officers was drawn up, with Mrs. Lemuel Wilson, of Brownsburg, as their head, and composed of the Agriculture convenors from each branch, with the addition of Mrs. Earle Smillie and Mrs. Bert Graham. This slate — together with the expressed wish of the morning meeting that this project be taken up as a branch of the Institute — was presented to the afternoon session and carried.

A meeting of the Home Economics convenors was held at 1 o'clock to plan for the W.I. Handicrafts Exhibit for the June Fair. All articles must be the work of regular paid-up members of one of the branches of the Institute, and not something borrowed from an outsider for the time. Miss McCain was present at both of the committee meetings and rendered much valuable assistance by way of advice.

Principal C. L. Hall on Secondary Education

Mr. Clifton Hall, in his address on Secondary Education, claimed that he did not mean by the word "secondary" an education of inferior quality but a reference to the transition from public to high school education. The speaker made reference to what he called "the old formal studies," some of which were being eliminated from the curriculum, especially Latin, which Mr. Hall said "had gone." Formal grammar, too, had gone, but he hoped "not too far."

Mr. Hall claimed that the aim of a secondary education was two-fold. Firstly, to teach pupils to do better work more desirably than they would probably do. Secondly, to reveal higher activities of an increasingly differentiated range, and to make them desirable.

Mr. Hall favored Manual Training, and thought it should be adopted in every secondary school, one of its benefits being to dispel the idea that working with the hands was a disgrace. "The boys and girls in our secondary schools are mostly going to lead practical lives and should be trained by way of preparation for those lives." Mr. Hall did not believe in young people being forced to follow an occupation in life which they hated. "It is," he said, "one of the worst things in the world to do something that you do not want to do. It is a sin against yourself. No matter if you do make money in doing it, just consider how much better you could have done had you been doing the work for which nature fitted you."

The speaker favored an increase in social activities of the schools, thus causing pupils and teachers to live in better harmony. "The school," he said, "is always the slowest thing on earth to reflect changes."

Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh, of Lakefield W.I., introduced Mr. Hall as the guest speaker, and Mrs. G. Armstrong, of Pioneer Branch, thanked him for his most interesting address.

Miss McCain spoke of the different branches of the work and exhibited a "dummy" of the new National Home and Country, which had a replica of their "Excellencies" last Christmas card, also a letter from her Excellency and her portrait. This magazine is to take the place of the ones published monthly by the different provinces. It will be a link for us with all of the other provinces, as well as being a cheaper magazine than our small monthly one.

Miss McCain commented on the wonderful way in which the meetings of the day had been conducted, which was certainly encouraging for our new county president, who again thanked the members present for the confidence they had shown in electing her and hoped to be able to fill the position ably with their cooperation.

A sing-song conducted by Mrs. C. Duncan was not the least enjoyable item on the day's program; this was proven by the hearty way in which all present took part.

A Chapter of Accidents on Holiday Week-End

TOTAL OF FOUR MISHAPS BETWEEN LACHUTE AND GRENVILLE

A transport truck with the van torn from its chassis and shattered to matchwood, was the heaviest damage in a collision between two carrier vehicles on the Grenville Highway near James Heatlie's early last Saturday morning. The truck was owned by Delisle Frères, of Montreal, Traveling west it crashed into the rear of a milk truck driven by Laurent Laurin, of Lachute. Laurin's vehicle loaded with empty milk cans, was turning into a farm west of Heatlie's when the transport, loaded with beer, crashed from behind. Laurin's truck was also badly damaged. The Montreal driver stated that he had seen no signal of the other driver's intention to turn off the road.

Young Cyclist Struck

On Saturday at 4.20 p.m., René Cardinal, a Lachute Mills boy, riding a butcher's delivery bicycle, was struck by a car driven by J. P. Laniel, of Montebello, just west of town on Highway No. 8. Laniel was proceeding toward Montebello when he hit the bicycle, which was dragged for a distance of 25 feet. The machine was smashed completely but the lad, a nephew and employee of Gregoire Raymond, butcher, escaped without injury.

Four Imprisoned in Overtaken Sedan

Four occupants of a Plymouth 1938 sedan had a narrow escape early Sunday afternoon, when their car took the ditch and landed with its four wheels uppermost, just west of Calumet on the same No. 8 Highway. Mrs. A. R. Yale, driver of the car, lost control when leaving the paved surface and driving onto a loose gravel curve. The machine struck the ditch and turned upside down.

Three passengers in the sedan were Mr. Young, Mr. Yale and Miss Mary Gaudry. All three and the driver were trapped inside, and were released from the car by two young men, Maurice Pressault and Girard Lavoie, of Calumet, who happened to be passing by. The wrecked auto was towed to Welden's Garage in Calumet.

Bicyclist Is Injured at Dangerous Intersection

A fourth week-end mishap occurred on Sunday west of Arnold's at an intersection between the Trans-Canada route No. 8 and a by-road from Grenville Village. A cyclist, Edgar Lalonde, 22, of Grenville, emerged onto the highway and was hit by a Nash sedan driven by L. P. Chartrand, of Montreal. Chartrand was driving toward the Grenville-Hawkesbury bridge. Lalonde was accompanied by his brother, Armand Lalonde, also riding a bicycle. Armand had stopped at the crossing, but Edgar drove ahead onto the highway and was struck, his bicycle being dragged over 50 feet by the car. The young man sustained a bad cut on the head, which required five stitches. He was treated by Dr. L. P. Beaudoin, of Hawkesbury.

Traffic Officer H. Jones investigated the accidents — which, in spite of their number, took only a slight toll in personal injuries.

RURAL WEEKLY EDITOR JOINS CONTRIBUTORS OF "MAKING CANADA" ARTICLES

ADAM L. SELLAR, HUNTINGDON, GIVES VIEWS FOR CONSTRUCTIVE SERIES OF LETTERS

Mr. Geo. W. James, editor, Canadian Statesman, Bowmanville, and President of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, is striving to get opinions on "How to make Canada a better place to work and live in." His request that the editor of the Huntingdon Gleaner write expressions along these lines is indeed an honor.

The subject is stupendous for any humble weekly newspaper editor to give expression upon, yet every Canadian must have an opinion, otherwise he or she are not true citizens of Canada. Young people in their twenties and thirties, I am inclined to feel, work along the same lines as I did when passing through that stage of life; that to attain success in life the accumulation of dollars is all important. True, they are essential and beneficial, but dollars alone do not make for happiness and learning how to live. Usually the ambitious youths who are attaining success in accumulating dollars have a breakdown in health, and it is then they take time to consider what is important in life.

To make Canada a better place to live in, it must be a good place to work in. In order to accumulate the necessary dollars let the individual realize that all folks must live and share in accumulation of worldly goods. In place of assuming all responsibilities in operating your business, small or large, share that responsibility with your fellow men. They in turn will appreciate the confidence placed in them. Their brain and energy is placed in the work that is confronting them. In other words the combined brains are exercised in order to bring about the tangible results of a real successful business. The two men, or number of men and women that may have collaborated to bring about the accomplished task, have pleasure in looking back over their accomplishments, and what they might further pursue.

The happy environment that exists in the various progressive weekly newspaper offices that I know of are adopting this very principle of producing their newspapers. When this collaboration exists we find Canada's largest and best newspapers. If such is true to the conducting of newspapers, it must also be applicable to other business enterprises.

Canada is, generally speaking, a country made up of rural communities, small towns and small cities. In each and every one of these communities a Board of Trade is essential. Having a Board of Trade does not necessarily mean it is to function for the sole purpose of locating industrials and building up retail sales programmes. On the contrary, a Board of Trade is a non-sectarian organization that affords an opportunity to bring all men into contact with one another. The men learn more about their oppositions in business. They learn to acknowledge the good points in every man's make-up. After becoming so acquainted with their fellow-citizens they, too, cooperate with one another to their mutual benefit.

After all is said and done, we go through life for the enjoyments it

OUTLINE OF $165,000 SCHEME UNDER CONSIDERATION BY COUNCIL

For a number of years back, the question of a water and sewerage system for Brownsburg has been discussed, but for one reason or another no one did anything about it, beyond indulging in an academic discussion as to its possibilities. When the present Council's incorporation was mooted, it was invariably bound up with the water question, but the responsibilities of office cautioned the Council to act slowly and with deliberation. The recent Federal Loan facilities brought the water supply to the forefront of discussion once more, and now the Council has made preliminary investigation and received the findings of its engineering authority. There is no gainsaying the fact that an adequate water and sewerage system is urgently necessary in Brownsburg. Time and again sources of supply have been condemned, and there exists but the most primitive means of sewage disposal — a system more associated with a backwoods camp than a progressive village like Brownsburg.

The present proposal (as, indeed, any alternate scheme must also be) is entirely governed by the financial resources of the Council. The present income is too meager to allow of an expenditure to cover the cost of installing such a system. But the health and lives of the people are imperilled both from a condemned water supply and the hazard of fire. Some provision must be made and the responsibility rests with the governing authorities.

The scheme under consideration, at an estimated cost of $165,000, proposes to use the supply from Reardon's Lake with an intake line of eight-inch pipe. This line crosses the river about 3,000 feet above the C-I-L dam and strikes a direct line to meet the west corner of that square of streets which surrounds the Catholic Church, and comprises the area usually referred to as the French

Hill. This eight-inch line continues to the main street of the French quarter where it feeds a cross-line at the corner of M. Legault's property. This cross-line, which is also of eight-inch diameter pipe, is carried west along the main road to Mount Maple for a distance of 1,200 feet, where it supplies a reservoir situated on the left of the road at this point. East from Mr. Legault's corner, this line continues down the French Hill, crosses the river at the bridge adjoining the C-I-L factory gate, and proceeds along the road down by the St. Onge Hotel through the main street to the corner at McFaul's. This line is broken at each street intersection of a six-inch pipe which supplies each street north and south of the line. At the corner of St. Joseph Street and the Convent of the Holy Cross, a six-inch line is taken, which is carried along St. Joseph Street to about 300 feet south of Leonard Wilson's corner, where it ends. At the corner of the new road in front of the Anglican Church a six-inch line connects with the eight-inch main and is carried along Beaverboard or MacMaster Street, turns right along the front of the Canadian Safety Fuse Company's property and joins the St. Joseph Street line at Mr. Wilson's corner. From the top of MacMaster Street a six-inch line lies west to the C-I-L water tank and east along the street through Mr. Malackey's yard, and by Mr. Pasco's property to meet the Maple Avenue line at the road intersection. A short branch line is laid between the Nova Scotia Bank and Mr. Malackey's from the main street line.

The Maple Avenue line proceeds upwards from McFaul's corner to the street intersection at Mr. Robinson's and southwards to Mr. McVicar's, where it ends. The main or eight-inch line is continued from McFaul's corner east to the street intersection at Roy Jackson's and turns north

Auto Leaps Bridge on the Laurentian Highway

Six Montreal hunters, on their way to Ste. Marguerite, narrowly escaped death or serious injury when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into the little Rivière à Simon from a bridge on the Laurentian highway between Ste. Adele and Piedmont.

Though all occupants of the vehicle were badly shaken and bruised and the car was wrecked in the fall from the bridge, only one of the passengers, Edouard Limoges, 52, was admitted to Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal, where it was reported that his condition was not considered serious. One other man was treated at the hospital but was able to return home. The rest were treated on the scene and were taken back to Montreal in taxis.

Along that street to W. Cooper's, where it is joined by a four-inch line from Mr. Robinson's, completing the circuit of the Maple Avenue section.

The proposed sewerage system follows a line parallel with the water mains, the capacity being a 10-inch pipe, increasing to 15-inch and in a few instances to 18-inch. There are three outlets of disposal along the river. The first, which serves the French Hill sector, enters the river east of D. Cooley's corner, a short distance above the bridge at the factory gate. The second, which lies along St. Joseph Street, enters the river opposite Leonard Wilson's property, as also does a short line coming north from about 300 feet below. The third line starts with 10-inch pipe at Mr. Robinson's at Maple Avenue, and proceeds direct along the road. A second branch of this line starts at E. L. Johnson's and is joined to the main line at McFaul's corner. From the corner of the Nova Scotia Bank a pipe, which passes along the street to Mr. Malackey's and thence east by Mr. Pasco's to the Maple Avenue South Road, is connected with this line. Still another line leaves the corner at Wm. Cooper's and carries along that street to Roy Jackson's, which is the farthest east the sewerage is laid — crosses the school grounds and Mr. McVicar's

Find Radio Reception Is Affected by Aurora Borealis

Newark, N.J. — Returning to Newark from a 15-month meteorological expedition to the Arctic on a three-masted auxiliary schooner, Captain Clifford J. MacGregor said one of the venture's main accomplishments was a determination that the aurora borealis had a definite effect on radio reception.

MacGregor led a crew of 10 to within 175 miles of the North Pole and back to Port Newark.

Annunciation Man Acquitted on Charge of Murder

Emile Wagner, 44-year-old farmer of Annunciation, 60 miles north of Mont Laurier village, was acquitted of murder by a Court of King's Bench jury at Mont Laurier. Wagner stood trial on accusation of killing Aristide Boudrias, 32-year-old farmer, in a dispute over a line fence.

Evidence during the trial showed that the victim and his father had cut wood along a line fence and that Wagner had ordered them from his farm. A quarrel became a fight and Wagner was being choked, he declared, when he took a penknife from land and joins the main third line at a point between Mr. Graham's store and the Garage. The line is here increased to 15-inch and continues by Mr. McVicar's house across the property recently acquired by C-I-L, where it is joined by a 12-inch line serving MacMaster Street from the C-I-L office, and as an 18-inch line follows along Bridge Street in front of the C.S.F. Company's property to enter the river a few yards below the bridge. The capacity of the sewerage pipes is such that surface water will also be carried along the lines from 56 manholes placed at strategic points along the system. On the water lines it is proposed to erect 32 hydrants to supply fire hose in case of an outbreak of fire. The total cost of the complete system as described above is estimated at $165,000.

After deliberating about an hour, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty to Mr. Justice Alfred Durand, the presiding judge. Maurice Lalonde, M.P. for Labelle, acted as defence counsel while Ernest Charrette was the Crown prosecutor.

TAKE A GOOD LOOK at the most beautiful Dodge ever produced in all the 25 years of Dodge history. Actually two inches longer wheelbase, it looks even longer... Fenders are broader, deeper, longer and more massive. Definitely these 1939 Dodge cars are big cars and their appearance is ringing a challenge to all low priced cars.

And the RIDE! The physical sensation of riding in the new Dodge is that of gliding... Big bumps raise the whole car gently and as gently it settles back again... Small bumps are absorbed by the rugged new independent front wheel suspension and the airplane-type shock absorbers. Dodge gives you a true, Relaxed Ride!

Driving is simpler and easier. Steering these new Dodge cars is more positive and at the same time easier! Gear shifting in the Dodge De Luxe is very much easier than before. The gearshift lever has been moved off the floor on to the steering wheel where the same gear shifting motions become simpler and more convenient. The handbrake is at the left of the steering column so the whole front compartment floor is clear and roomy.

Independent front wheel springing with Amola steel springs and airplane-type shock absorbers.

DODGE—a leader in the introduction of all steel bodies and double action hydraulic brakes again brings you these priceless safety features. The Dodge "Safety Signal" speedometer is a NEW safety feature... When driving at speeds up to 30 miles per hour a green light glows on the speedometer dial, from 30 to 50 a yellow light and over 50 miles a red light warns you... A speed guardian for city and highway driving.

Come in today and see the New Dodge Six and the Dodge De Luxe. Give yourself the pleasure of driving one of these new cars. They are priced right down among the lowest priced cars. Your Dodge dealer will gladly let you drive and judge their brilliant new performance for yourself.

SPEED OF FARM TRACTOR DRAWS FINE

Trailed by a traffic constable in the City of Regina at a speed of 28 miles an hour, Earl E. Robinson had the distinction in police court of being the first man in Regina, possibly first in Canada, to be fined for speeding in a farm tractor. The penalty was $4 and costs.

Robinson said the tractor was driven to Regina from St. Paul, Minn., passing along streets of such large cities as St. Paul and Winnipeg without police objecting to speed. He said the tractor had a normal speed in high gear of 30 miles an hour and had averaged 28 miles an hour on the trip.

CRUSHED STONE ON SIDEWALKS, FROM GAS-STATION YARDS

The matter of cut stone, used to surface gasoline station grounds, which is constantly being spread over the sidewalks by the wheels of customers' cars, has been revived before the Ottawa Board of Control. Commissioner of Works F. C. Askwith reported that he had taken the matter up with garage and station operators generally, with the suggestion that a boulevard of macadam, inside the sidewalk line, would tend to prevent the nuisance, but that "on the whole" the operators were not enthusiastic about providing the funds for such work. The commissioner suggested that a licensing scheme, whereby such establishments would be licensed by the city, would not only bring in some revenue, but also would place them under the control of the city.

There are about 175 such establishments in Ottawa at present, it was reported, and a license fee of $10 per annum was tentatively suggested. The proposal is not new, having been first suggested about three years ago.

A HINT TO CANADIAN COUNCILS

District Justice Lennon of Dublin, Ireland, advised boys arrested for playing ball in the street to form a committee and ask the public authorities to provide playgrounds.

A FABLE ABOUT A MAP

Once there was an engineer who knew where everything was. He had the information in his head. He was able to remember that in Walnut Street there was a twelve-inch sewer, of vitrified clay, on a two per cent grade, six feet south of the north curb line. He remembered its approximate flow-line elevations and other intimate details. The location, size and material of water lines, valves, fittings, and so on were also impressed upon his incredibly accurate memory. He was a walking map of the city's underground pipes. His memory was his pride; it was also his protection. He knew where everything was; everyone else had to find out from him. His services were invaluable to his community, he was secure in his job.

But one day the poor, hard-working fellow died. The map that was in his head died with him, unfortunately. But the need to consult that map did not die. Sewers had to be extended and extensions had to be planned in the light of the location of existing structures. Water lines had to be repaired, replaced or tapped and the water works crew had to know where the nearest wye-branch was. And so on. And the map passed away with the poor, hard-working city engineer.

Tremendous was the grief that fell to the lot of the men the city engineer left behind him to carry on. "Ask Jake, the sewer foreman, if he remembers where this line is; dig a test pit to disclose the depth of that one, tell that plumber he will just have to dig around to find that wye." There were emergencies, such as water pipe breaks, when the details of the system had to be known immediately in order to forestall severe damage: the damages had to be borne. Costly explorations had to be made before even minor work could be done. The engineering staff began to go slowly mad.

At last the situation became so bad something had to be done about it. The new city engineer decided that a complete map and system of location records were indispensable. At considerable expense all the underground structures of the city were surveyed, and the assembled information transferred to a map of the city drawn to a generous scale. The field notes were carefully safe-guarded against damage or loss. On all extensions or alterations to the system made thereafter, complete notes were taken and transferred immediately to the underground map. And after that the engineering staff recovered its sanity, builders and plumbers recovered their good humor and the cost of doing work fell even below what it had been before the poor old hard working city engineer had died.

And now the new city engineer also knows where everything is. So does everyone else. The information is recorded and everybody is happy.

Moral: Insurance won't cover mental maps.

HUMORIST SUGGESTS "ROLLING ROAD"

A "rolling road" was the latest wrinkle offered by Jas. R. Rhyne, of the Arkansas highway department, for arbitrarily controlling the speed of cars.

The enlarged washboard effect would, he said, provide a smooth path for cars travelling at a moderate rate of speed, but the driver who exceeded the limits of safety would find his path a rough one.

"This," Rhyne chuckled, "is roughly the 550th idea advanced for reducing car speeds."

SIGNAL SPEECH LIMIT

To enforce the five-minute speech limit rule, green, amber and red signals have been installed in Tottenham, England, council chamber.

HELIUM advantages

By the aid of helium new records for deep sea diving were set recently. This gas, which enables airships to soar, also enables human beings to go deeper in the ocean than anyone has ever done before.

The trick is to pump a mixture of helium and oxygen into the diver's helmet while he is submerged. William Badders, Master Diver of the United States Navy, went down 401 feet from the U.S.S. Falcon and remained submerged at that depth for half an hour, with no ill effects.

The greatest danger to deep-sea divers is the necessity of keeping the air pressure inside the diving suits as great as that exerted by the sea-water from outside, which increases with the depth. Under such high pressures the nitrogen of the air pumped in penetrates the blood-vessels and causes a paralysis which is often fatal after the diver has been hauled up. With helium substituted for nitrogen that danger is eliminated.

TREASURE recovery

For nearly 150 years efforts have been going on to recover 10 million dollars' worth of gold bars which were sunk when the ship "Lutine" was wrecked on the coast of Holland in 1790. About a million dollars has been salvaged. Only a few weeks ago divers brought up another bar worth about ten thousand dollars.

Off the coast of Portugal divers have recovered nearly half the four million dollars of gold which went down with the ship "Atlantis" a few years ago. The "Lusitania" carried two or three million in gold when she was torpedoed by a German submarine in 1915. The wreck has been located off the Irish coast, and sooner or later that gold will be brought up.

All along the Atlantic coast of the United States are wrecks of ships which carried gold or silver, but which lie too deep to be reached by ordinary means. There is a million dollars or so in copper bars in the hull of the "Pontiac," 300 feet deep at the bottom of Lake Huron. Improved diving apparatus will make the recovery of most of such sunken treasure possible.

SUNSPOTS predictions

Whenever astronomers see through their telescopes an increase in the number of violence of magnetic storms on the surface of the sun, they nowadays make two predictions which so far have come true. They predict that there will be serious droughts over a period of years, and that in that period there will be excessive static interference with radio signals.

Sunspot cycles run about eleven years; five or six years of activity, then an equal period of quiescence. The present cycle began in 1931, and until 1937 there was an almost constant succession of drought years. Now, astronomers say, the magnetic storms on the sun are subsiding. There have been only two flare-ups since last Summer, the latest in April this year. Simultaneously, the past year has been marked by the heaviest and most widely-dispersed rainfall in years. In the first half of 1938 the average rain and snow was 12 per cent above normal for the whole United States. The "dust bowl" is green once more and the largest crops in years have grown in the wheat and corn country.

CROPS prices

Nothing is more certain in the long run to starve the farmers who grow it than a high-paying crop suited to a particular area, for which there is a brisk demand. That is one of the paradoxes of agriculture, and in it lies the reason for much of the agricultural distress of which we have been hearing so much in recent years.

A single "big-money" crop is always a temptation to farmers to abandon everything else in the effort to get rich quick. But as soon as it has been demonstrated that there are big profits to be made, competition becomes so vigorous that prices fall below the cost of production and the farmer who has put his land and his capital into a speculative one-crop venture goes broke.

Cotton, citrus fruits, tobacco and many others have ruined communities into which they poured wealth when they were first introduced. Brazil has been all but ruined by its coffee crop; the Central American republics which once flourished by growing bananas are now impoverished to the point where they have to import food supplies, so many of their farmers have neglected everything else to grow bananas. Like a bonanza gold mine, the flow of wealth from a single-crop farming system is bound to peter out in time.

MILK refrigeration

It must have occurred to everybody at one time or another that it would be a grand thing if milk could be kept sweet and pure indefinitely without refrigeration. Well, that's happened. Out of one of the largest chemical research laboratories has come a process, which has been patented, for preserving whole milk at room temperatures for as long as three or four months.

The thing is done by adding hydrogen peroxide and potassium iodide to the fresh milk and then heating it to 131 degrees for fifteen minutes to an hour. As little as six drops of peroxide and a third of a drop of the iodide to a gallon of milk so treated are said to be enough to kill all the bacteria which cause milk to go sour, more effectively than pasteurization does it.

According to the laboratory reports, the taste of the milk remains unimpaired for weeks, and no trace of the hydrogen peroxide can be found in it by the most delicate chemical tests. The slight trace of iodine makes the treated milk beneficial, especially in regions where the water-supply is lacking in iodine.

Says Scarcity of Squirrels Indicates a Mild Winter

Bradford, Pa. —Dah-sa-noch, "The Sagacious One," has predicted the coming winter will be a mild one. The Seneca Indian, who has seen 96 winters, pointed to the scarcity of black squirrels in the forests this autumn as one indication of a "green winter." A profusion of black squirrels, he said, always means deep snow and bitter cold.

Experiment on Skunks Succeeds — and Fails

Craig Phillips, youthful naturalist of St. Petersburg, Fla., has proved an interesting theory but reached an embarrassing conclusion. Phillips believed it possible to slip up behind a skunk and pick up the animal by the tail without olfactory complications.

Sneaking up behind a mother skunk and her brood he grabbed up one after another, the theory being that skunks spray only with their tails arched over their backs. All went well until he was faced with the problem of letting go. He had to eventually and the skunks sprayed in unison.

difficulty in obtaining the consent from the war office of the introduction of certain documents into the inquiry, which the war office considered confidential. There has been an exchange of telegrams. The War Office agreed to the production of the papers if the hearings when the documents were used were held in camera. As the object of the inquiry is to give the public full information in relation to the contract, the commissioner could not agree to this stipulation. However, the trouble is likely to be arranged satisfactorily very soon.

The importance of this investigation is great, as the people of Canada must be assured in these times when mankind's nerves are raw and tempers fretful, that the means of defence are efficiently handled by Government officials. Public opinion will want to be assured that everything about contracts of munition supply are clean and above-board, that the Government is keeping a close check rein on profits if private companies are given contracts. With these and other questions under investigation the people will above all want to receive assurance, even though this contract concerns only one type of weapon, that the Department of National Defence is using its best efforts to secure the most effective kind of defence armament and securing it as expeditiously as possible.

sible. It is only fair to say that General Lafleche's testimony affords considerable comfort in this regard. It is also to be hoped that the situation that has arisen in relation to the Bren gun contract will not have any curtailing effect on future orders for munitions and armaments to be placed in Canada by the authorities in Great Britain.

Domestic political questions do not arouse much interest here just now. The public mind has not had time to adjust itself to domestic affairs with the shadow of the international crisis removed such a short time ago. Probably when the by-election time comes closer interest will revive. From an economic point of view, the coming trade treaty with the United States holds a primary place of interest in the Capital.

The exact terms of this treaty and those of the pact between the United States and Great Britain are still matters of pure speculation. Freer markets in the United States, however, are expected on Canadian cattle, lumber and fish. In the British market Canada, through the Imperial agreements, enjoys a fixed preferential margin. There is a 6 cent margin on wheat, 10 per cent on lard, $1.40 a barrel on apples, 15 per cent on cheese. There is a quota of 2,500,000 cwt. per annum on Canadian bacon and hams, and specified preferences on copper, lead, zinc, processed milk, honey, fish, timber, asbestos and other commodities. The question is the extent to which United States producers may be granted a part of these concessions. These matters will be known only when the treaties are concluded and made public. In view of the recent European crisis, it is of value to consider the underlying meaning of the proposed Anglo-American pact. It has no political significance, but it is unquestionably an effort to create an agreement which will remove barriers to trade and point the way to closer trade co-operation among the nations of the world. It is an effort to remove economic barriers which are at least one of the potent causes of international misunderstanding and friction. For this reason Canadians are waiving the terms of the new treaty with goodwill, accompanied by a certain degree of natural anxiety. "Any day

You've heard the story of the farmer who knew how to grow first-grade produce—but did not know how to get first-grade prices? Ultimately he had to abandon farm—and everything. Neighbours told him to keep in touch with markets by telephone—but he had no telephone. So he "saved" money and lost his farm. A farmer gets better prices when he knows what the market is. A telephone keeps him in touch with markets, neighbours. Safeguards home and family in emergencies.

CORRESPONDENTS

CUSHING WEST

Mr. and Mrs. Pryor and family occupied their cottage on Sandy Bay Road on Thanksgiving.

Mr. Wallie Walford spent the week-end at Pine Cottage.

Dr. Cushing and family, also Miss Florence and Mr. Jas. Cushing, spent the week-end and Thanksgiving here.

The Misses Grace and Katie Whelehan spent Thanksgiving with their friends here.

Mr. Charles Kelly, who recently returned from Windsor, Ont., was a guest of Mr. E. Whelehan for Thanksgiving.

Mr. H. Young and Miss Edna Young, also Mr. Hugh Danford and Miss Violet Raitt, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Mattinson.

The Misses Dorothy and Helen Weir spent the Thanksgiving holiday with their parents, Capt. and Mrs. T. W. Weir.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hartley spent Thanksgiving at their cottage. Miss Olive Hartley was also a visitor here on Monday.

Mrs. Usher left on Friday last for Detroit, Mich., to attend the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Murray Watson, who passed away at her home there on Wednesday after a lingering illness. Mrs. Watson was quite well known here, having frequently visited her husband's family, and the latter has the sympathy of this community in his bereavement. Mrs. (Rev.) Norman Dowd and Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Keatley, of Ottawa, also went to Detroit to be present at the funeral.

Mrs. W. Davidson, of Como, who was visiting friends in this locality last week with her hostess, Mrs. O. E. Leroy, was a guest of Miss Whelehan on Friday last. Mrs. Davidson—as Miss Annie McKinnon—was, a number of years ago, a very popular member of this community, and her annual visits amongst her old friends are a source of much pleasure to them. Her son, Mr. Laehlan Davidson, was also a visitor here on Friday last.

MORIN HEIGHTS

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Watchorn and daughter, Barbara, spent Friday in Montreal.

Miss Phyllis Jowett, of Lachine, spent the week-end and holiday as guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. D. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Alder and Miss Thelma Alder were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Doherty.

Mrs. L. Kennedy and daughters, Patricia and Margaret, also Miss P. Russell, spent a few days in Montreal last week attending the wedding of the former's brother, Mr. Hugh Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Johnson and daughter, also Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams, visited friends here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Doherty and son have returned home after spending a few days in Montreal.

Miss Eunice Seale and Miss Veronica Ivall spent the week-end in Montreal attending the Teachers' Convention.

Mrs. Wm. J. Deacon and daughter, Louise, of Lachute, also Miss M. Davis, of Ottawa, spent Thanksgiving week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Watchorn and daughter, Doris, also Mr. Geo. Watchorn, Miss F. Steele and Mrs. A. Hamilton, spent Thursday in Ottawa.

Mr. B. Thompson and son, of Montreal, also Mr. M. Dawson, of Mille Isles, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Seale on Sunday last.

Mrs. J. Brown and infant daughter have returned home from Montreal.

A surprise party was held in Boyd's Hall last Friday evening in honor of Mr. Wm. Kennedy and his bride. A presentation of a studio couch and end table was made by Mayor J. E. Seale who, in a few well chosen words, extended a welcome and best wishes for future happiness to the bridal couple.

GRENVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Laumallier, of Farnham, were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Gauley, recently.

Miss Robertson, of Montreal, spent Thanksgiving Day here with her sister, Mrs. Lorne Cooke.

Mr. Lorne Cooke and Mr. Clifford Cooke, of Pogan Falls, spent Sunday at their home here.

Miss Evans attended the Teachers' Convention in Montreal last week.

Miss Evelyn McCullough commenced teaching on Tuesday at the Rouge school. Miss Brown is teaching at Dodd's school.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Madden and daughter, Doris, of Brookdale, were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Gauley.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

St. Andrews wore a welcoming smile over the week-end and holiday, as many new seats and dinner chairs were again occupied after several weeks' vacancy. A number of our folk, however, joined relatives elsewhere to celebrate the Thanksgiving season.

The summer and permanent residents who enjoy reading, express their gratitude to Mr. Hugh Allan, whose generous support made it possible to have the library open on two afternoons a week during the summer. Miss Jean Brown, librarian, while engaged in teaching near Grenville during the week, will be at the library on Saturday afternoons.

Opportunity will be afforded the young folk and those young in heart (if not in years) to hobnob with hobgoblins—and do a bit of gobbling, at the Town Hall on Oct. 28, when the ladies of the Anglican Church purpose holding a Halloween supper. Fuller notice will appear later.

Mrs. Edmund Brown accompanied her son, Mr. Rossland Brown, of Lachute, on a motor trip to Burlington, Vt., to visit her sister.

Mr. Ronald Delaronde spent the week-end and holiday with relatives in Montreal.

Mr. Willie Gates was at his home for the week-end and holiday.

Miss P. Say, of Montreal, was the guest of her cousin, Miss Dorothy McCallum, for several days.

Miss A. Dorion, R.N., spent the week-end and holiday with her mother, Mrs. O. Dorion.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Yale spent the week-end and holiday with relatives in Montreal.

Rural Dean R. S. Booy accompanied his daughters, Mrs. N. E. Draper and Miss Alma Booy, to Montreal last Tuesday. On Oct. 11, Dean Booy was called to Montreal to attend an important meeting of the Synod. Mrs. Draper has received a letter from her husband stating he had sustained an injury to his spine in a fall and was confined to hospital.

On Monday evening the first meeting of the Reading Circle for this season was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pitcairn. Part of the book, "Red Star Over China," by Edgar Snow, was read and discussed, also an article from the October National Geographic on "Augustus" was read.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church hall. Mrs. W. Lamb conducted the devotional period and Mrs. E. Charman read a chapter of the study book. Deep regret was expressed at the resignation of Miss Jean Brown as secretary. Mrs. J. DeWitt was appointed to that office.

GRENVILLE NORTH

Mrs. Monks and Miss Monks, of Montreal, were Thanksgiving visitors at the home of Mrs. Fred Cousins.

Miss Lilly Murray is at present visiting her sister, Mrs. Ed. Matthews, at Kilmar.

Miss A. Demers attended the Teachers' Conference in Montreal, and also spent Thanksgiving with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stewart have returned to their home here after visiting with their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, in Bronte, Ont.—also visiting at Niagara Falls and in Ottawa at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Milton Anderson.

REVISITS THE HAUNTS OF BOYHOOD DAYS

On Wednesday last some of the people in this locality were pleasantly surprised by renewing acquaintances with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gomeroy. Mr. Gomeroy came to this locality when a boy and was adopted by Mr. Sandy and Miss Isobel Fraser. In later years he married a Miss Isobel Fraser, niece of Mr. and Miss Fraser. Mr. and Mrs. Gomeroy are now living in Winchester, Ont., where Mr. Gomeroy has been employed for forty-one years with the one firm. Mr. and Mrs. Gomeroy are the proud parents of nine sons and four daughters. Two of their sons paid the supreme sacrifice in the late war. Two sons are doctors, and one is taking his degree in philosophy and another studying for a dentist. Mrs. Mary Bowden, a daughter, and son, Charles, of Chicago, were also with Mr. and Mrs. Gomeroy; also Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Cougler, of Williamsburg, Ont., another daughter and son-in-law. The party intended having a picnic lunch but weather conditions prevented them, so they drove to Mr. Gomeroy's old home, now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gauley, and there they enjoyed their lunch, sheltered from the rain. Mr. Gomeroy is 73 years of age, but hale and hearty, and he climbed the mountain once again as he had done in childhood days.

MILLE ISLES

Mr. and Mrs. Lou's Strong called on friends in Mille Isles last Saturday.

Mrs. George Williams spent a week visiting friends in Montreal recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Patterson were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Elder.

Mr. Guy Parent and Mr. John Williams spent the holiday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Williams.

Mr. Fred Murray and son, Gordon, of Montreal, spent the week-end at Lily Crest.

Col. and Mrs. G. M. Strong held a family reunion on Thanksgiving, the guests including—Mrs. Strong's mother, Mrs. Scott, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Thorp and son, Douglas; Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Patricia and Owen; Miss Maybee; and Mr. Noel Strong, of Haileybury, Ont., who is student at McGill University.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Wood entertained a large gathering on Tuesday evening. An enjoyable time was spent in card playing, and refreshments were served.

Mrs. A. Lovett and daughter, Josephine, spent a week's holiday here as the guests of Mrs. J. E. Ward.

Friends of Mrs. Robert Knight are pleased to hear of her marked improvement. She is now reported to be gaining in health, and it is hoped her condition will be much improved as result of her recent thyroid operation.

Mrs. J. E. Ward and son, Lawrence,

New Modern Market Opens Friday

Self-Service Is Feature of Up-to-Date Store

Dominion Stores will introduce to residents of Lachute and surrounding district tomorrow, the very latest in modern food marketing methods when the new Self-Service store is opened on Main Street. The Dominion Store has reconstructed its store and will continue to be among the leaders of improving local conditions. For twelve years the Dominion Store has been part and parcel of the town.

Incidentally Mr. Horsey, now Executive Vice-President of the Dominion Stores Limited, was a former Lachute resident. His father-in-law owned a general store at the present location of the Dominion Store.

Albert MacDonald, the manager, with his efficient staff, invite the public to visit this new store, to see for themselves the modern trend of food marketing.

The opening will be a community event. Dominion Stores are a vital part of the community, serving a thriving district, employing Lachute people, and purchasing a large part of their foodstuffs from residents of the district.

For twelve years Dominion Stores have played an important part in the community life of this town.

DOMINION STORES PURCHASE FROM LOCAL FARMERS

Besides proving a source where housewives can obtain clean, fresh groceries and provisions, Dominion Stores' rural units also play an important part in the community in which they serve. Farmers and gardeners must find a ready market for their produce. Shipment to cities means heavy transportation costs, with extra work in packing for long distances.

Dominion Stores realized early in the existence of the company that full co-operation with district farmers and gardeners was necessary. As a result, during the season, practically all fruits and vegetables are purchased from district growers. Butter and eggs are also purchased locally throughout the year.

Mr. Albert MacDonald, manager of the new Dominion Store, Lachute, who is a valued member of the "100 Club" and the Lachute Curling Club, as well as other organizations.

IN MEMORIAM

MURRAY — In loving memory of Clarence, who passed away Oct. 14th, 1935. Ever remembered by the family.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Andrew McArthur Campbell, who died Oct. 16th, 1936.

Oh! could we hear his voice once more,
And see his loving smile,
The one that would our hearts still cheer;
But we must wait awhile.
Some day, some time, our eyes shall see,
The face we loved so dear.
— Wife and Family.

LANGILLE — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Melvin, who passed away Oct. 12, 1934.

The rolling stream of life flows on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of him who once sat there.
The flowers we lay upon his grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath
Will never fade away.

— Ever remembered by Mother, Father, Sisters, and Brothers.

Diocesan A.Y.P.A. Conference, Stirring Gathering at Arundel

On Thanksgiving week-end the fifth annual conference of the Montreal Diocesan Council of the Anglican Young People's Association was held at Arundel. Judging by the reports of the assembled delegates, the conference was the most successful yet held.

The conference opened with a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, at which the Rev. G. H. Wolfendale, retiring chaplain, was the celebrant, assisted by the Rev. A. J. Poole. This was followed by breakfast, at which Mr. Clesson Goodhue, of Montreal, gave a short talk on "What this conference can mean to the A.Y.P.A." The morning session was taken up with business, receiving of reports, election of officers, etc.; the afternoon was devoted to a discussion on A.Y.P.A. problems.

Approximately 50 delegates sat down to the evening banquet, at which the gathering enjoyed a sing-song, a number of short toast-speeches and the main address by the Rev. J. O. Peacock, of St. Matthew's Church, Montreal. Taking as the theme of his address "We Youth," the speaker delivered a stirring challenge to the A.Y. members to live a Christ-like life — which could only be done by living in Christ and by His power.

After the banquet the delegates engaged in an old-fashioned barn dance.

On Sunday morning the installation of officers was held at the morning service at Grace Church. The incumbent, Rev. A. J. Poole, officiated at the service, while the Rev. J. O. Peacock gave the sermon and conducted the installation.

This is the first Diocesan Conference ever held outside Montreal, and the Arundel A.Y. branch may be justly proud of the manner in which they carried out their duties as hosts. Credit is also due to Tom Hanson, president of the Council, for the efficient manner in which the business was conducted.

Delegates were present from Calumet, Cowansville, Campbell's Bay, Kazabazua, Shawville, Farnham, St. Amedee and from the following churches in Montreal — St. James the Apostle, St. Columba, St. Matthew's, St. Alban's, St. Aidan's and the Diocesan College.

Officers elected for the coming year were: Patron, the Lord Bishop of Montreal; President, Tom Hanson, Montreal; Vice-Pres., Clesson Goodhue, Montreal; Secretary, Isla Craigie, Montreal; Asst.-Sec., Mary Morrison, Arundel; Treasurer, Malcolm Cady, Cowansville; Chaplain, Rev. J. O. Peacock, Montreal; Regional Vice-Presidents — Tom Shorrocks, Montreal, Milton Cochrane, St.

Amedee, Jack Lowday, Cowansville. An invitation was extended to the Conference to visit Cowansville next year.

Evangelist Nygren Opens Campaign in Brownsburg

Evangelist David F. Nygren

Last Sunday marked the opening of a Gospel Crusade in the First Baptist Church, Brownsburg. Evangelist David F. Nygren, Chicago, and Thomas O. Bugg, Niagara Falls, Ont., are in charge, assisting the pastor, Rev. James R. Simpson. The opening messages, "Conquerors," and "What's Wrong With the World," were arresting and inspiring. Services are held each evening at 7.30 o'clock and will continue over Oct. 23.

Crusader Nygren, formerly a newspaper man, is often called "Dynamite Fire Nygren." He challenges anyone to sleep while he preaches. Although this is his first campaign in this province, the present campaign is his fortieth in the Dominion. Mr. Bugg is a business man in Niagara Falls, Ont., and his love for the work of the Lord prompts him to engage in religious work from time to time.

Following are some of the subjects announced by Mr. Nygren: "Trumpets," "What I Would Do in Brownsburg if I Were the Devil," "A Hot Time," "The Greatest Truth I Have Found in the Bible."

United Church W.M.S. Thank-Offering Meeting

The autumn Thank-Offering meeting of the United Church W.M.S. will be held on Thursday, Oct. 20th, in the church hall at 3 p.m. Miss Olive Brand, from the Church of All Nations, will be the speaker. She will be dressed in Ukrainian native costume. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

Art of Printing, Topic of Paper at Y.P.S. Meeting

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was held last evening, some 20 members attending, presided over by President Earl Rodgers. A committee was appointed for the purpose of planning the annual banquet, to be held in the latter part of November.

An interesting paper, "When Printing was Thought a Devilish Art," was read by Cecil McFaul. This was a summarized history of the craft, especially in regard to the printing of the Bible. First signs of early printing are found in Japan, and a volume of wooden characters on a 16-foot board constitutes the earliest book, entitled "Diamond Sutra," and printed in 856 A.D. The forefather of modern printing was Johannes Gutenberg, who set up a shop in Mainz, Germany, in the fifteenth century. Beseet by financial difficulties, his shop was taken over by Faust, a money-lender, who strangely enough was charged with witchcraft and sorcery because he could print two Bibles identically alike. Happily, the magistrate was lenient in letting the prisoner off, although the court-room spectators roared for his death at the stake, as they claimed Faust was in league with the devil.

Following this discourse, a four-team carpet bowling competition was played.

When wealth is lost, nothing is lost;
When health is lost, something is lost;
When character is lost, all is lost.

Brownsburg United Church

A goodly number gathered for the opening of the library of the Men's League on Saturday evening, to which the ladies were also invited. Some sixteen came from Montreal, representing the Brotherhood Federation, and six from Harrington.

Mr. Russell Graham acted as chairman in place of the president, Mr. Leonard Bullock, who was unavoidably absent. A short program was rendered in which the visitors had a part, consisting of music, readings and speeches. Mr. C. R. Racine, of Montreal, was selected to exhibit the library collection, which he prefaced by a few well chosen words. This library includes an up-to-date encyclopedia, which is open to all the residents of Brownsburg. It is expected that before long Brownsburg, through the Men's League, may be able to boast of having a very fine circulating library. Following the ceremony of opening, refreshments were served.

An interesting incident in the proceedings Tuesday was the drawing of the first book from the library, which fell to Mrs. R. Clarke, of Montreal. The title of the book was "Songs of a Sourdough."

Mr. Geo. Meacock, blind preacher, of Montreal, was the speaker on Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Pike was also assisted by Commander Graves and Mr. E. Richards, both of Montreal.

The Ladies' Auxiliary were entertained at their regular meeting on Wednesday evening by Mrs. Erskine McQuat.

The Women's Missionary Society will go to St. Eustache on Friday evening, to be the guests of the Society there.

Big Alaska Picture Was Two Years in Preparation

By Henry Hathaway, Director of "Spawn of the North."

The actual filming of "Spawn of the North" was the least of our worries. All the "groundwork" had been laid carefully before hand. That, with any motion picture, is the main thing, and in the case of a major project like "Spawn of the North" it is three-quarters of the undertaking.

The picture was about two years in preparation. In the midst of the salmon run of 1936, I made a trip to Alaska to look over the country, to talk to fishermen and packers, and to capture, if possible, the spirit of actuality that was going to be so necessary to our tale.

Voluminous data were gathered by the Paramount Research Department, and the writing of the screen play began. A camera expedition was sent to Alaska for the filming of action and background scenes, and after 14 weeks brought back nearly 80,000 feet of material from which we might pick and choose. None of this will go to waste: scenes not used in the picture have been filed in the studio film library and will prove of value later on.

A huge Alaskan fishing village set was constructed on the sea coast, about 40 miles south of Hollywood, where the company spent several weeks on location. A fleet of some 25 seine boats was chartered. Other location sets were constructed at Lake Arrowhead. At the studio, workmen built a new steel-and-concrete tank stage, holding 375,000 gallons of water, and in this we launched three 17-ton fishing smacks and a power cruiser for close-range scenes.

In the matter of casting, every principal part was written with a particular player in mind, and we were able to secure everyone we had counted on — George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Louise Platt, Lynne Overman and Fuzzy Knight. Characterizations were thoroughly discussed, and with regard to every scene, before a camera turned. The Paramount music department were in on every conference, long before it came time for them to execute their work. In addition, songs were written by Burton Lane and Frank Loesser.

We began shooting the story March 21, this year; we finished June 18. And then came the scoring and the more or less maddening task of editing the completed picture. — And now, we hope you like it.

also attended the Teachers' Convention in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Burton and son, Scott, of Montreal, were Sunday and holiday guests of the Misses Cleland.

Mrs. Wm. Davidson, of Como, spent last week as the guest of Mrs. O. E. Leroy.

Mrs. R. J. Graham and son, James, of Lachute, and Mr. Gordon Alder, of Verdun, were guests of Miss Christie Graham on Thanksgiving.

Mrs. E. Frost, Mr. Clifford Frost, Miss Shirley Briggs, of Lachine, and Miss E. Lasalle, of Montreal, motored to Cushing on Thanksgiving Day, and visited Mrs. A. Graham.

Chromium Is a Silvery, Hard Crystalline Metal

Chromé yellow, chrome steel, chrome leather, chrome green, and chrome alum are the names of a number of outwardly highly dissimilar materials, and the layman may wonder why a single adjective, chrome, is used to describe all of them. The word means that they all contain the element chromium, a substance whose unusual and varied properties give it an unusual position in the chemical industry, says Dr. Thomas M. Beck, in the Chicago Tribune.

Chromium is a silvery, hard, crystalline metal. It is about as heavy as iron and melts at about the same temperature. It is obtained chiefly from the ore chromite, which is found in a few scattered deposits, chiefly in Rhodesia and New Caledonia. The ore is a compound of chromium with oxygen and iron. It is worked up by roasting with soda at high temperatures in a current of air. The resulting mass is then washed with hot water, which dissolves the chromium content as one of its compounds, sodium chromate, which may then be converted into the other desired compounds of the metal.

The name chromium is derived from a Greek word meaning color. The compounds of many metals, such as aluminum, lead, or zinc, are colorless (unless, of course, they are combined with some color-producing element). Compounds of most other metals exhibit a single characteristic color, such as the blue of copper compounds or the green of nickel. But the many compounds of chromium present an array of color that can be matched only by Joseph's coat.

BRAN IS A HARSH FOOD

There are fashions and fads in food as well as in clothes. Bran was all the fashion for a while and if you believe the advertisements, it seemed like a cure for all our ailments. There are many doctors who think that bran is too harsh and is apt to do damage to the digestive tract. As one specialist expressed it, "Bran is a good food for a horse; if you have the alimentary canal of a horse it is all right to eat bran; otherwise you had better leave it alone." Bran contains valuable vitamins and minerals but it is best taken when ground with the whole grain. If you wish to eat the bran itself, you will take the curse off it if you mix it with other foods and not eat it by itself. In this, as in many other food questions, there are differences of opinion, but it is well to play safe. Unfortunately, the people who should least use it, as for instance those with gastric ulcers, are the ones who are apt to try to correct their digestive disturbances and it is much too harsh. Use breads and cereals made from the entire grain and then you will not need to take a chance with bran alone.

REGULAR CARE

I have a friend who has the nicest looking hands — always have that well-cared-for look. And yet she is a woman with several children, does all her own work, is an enthusiastic gardener, and is into so many things that one wonders how she ever finds the time. I commented on her hands one day and said she must spend a lot of time on them. She said that actually she spent very little time, she was sure not more than five minutes a day, but she did give them regular systematic care. She keeps hand lotion, a nail file, an orange stick and cuticle remover in a cupboard by the kitchen sink. When her dishes are finished she uses hand lotion, and uses it any other time after her hands have been in water for any length of time. When the noon dishes are finished, she uses her orange stick and cuticle remover. Before she gardens, she puts cold cream under her nails to prevent the earth from getting into them. If she has been doing any specially dirty work, she washes some silk underwear or light washing, immediately after. This cleans her hands thoroughly as well as her clothes. Once a week, she spends a longer time and gives a proper manicure. It is the generous and frequent use of a hand lotion that does the trick. Have more than one bottle of hand lotion, but if you have only one, the kitchen is the best place for it, if you do housework.

NEW ENGLAND BOILED DINNER

4 lbs. corned beef, 6 carrots, 1 turnip, 1 small cabbage, 6 potatoes.

Cover the meat with cold water, bring to a boil, then lessen the heat and simmer gently 3 hours or until tender. About an hour before the meat is cooked, skim off the fat and add the carrots, thickly sliced turnip, the cabbage cut in quarters and the potatoes. Continue cooking until all are tender. Many people like mustard with a boiled dinner.

PINEAPPLE SHERBET

1 cup sugar, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons gelatine, 2 tablespoons water, juice 2 lemons plus water to make a cup, 1 small can crushed pineapple, 2 egg whites.

Boil sugar and 1 cup water for 5 minutes, soak gelatine in 2 tablespoons of water, add the gelatine to boiling syrup and stir until dissolved; add lemon juice with water added to fill the cup; add pineapple; and lastly the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into freezing pan. Stir after mixture is frozen about an inch from sides of the pan. Return to pan and reset to medium until ready to serve.

"Our club re lit boats -- Our members, crews."

"Seldom does one come across such a gem of a 'President's Address' as this delivered by Mrs. W. R. Jones at the Quill Plains Homemakers' district convention held recently at Pasewig. I just had to pass it on" — writes Elizabeth Bailey Price, Publicity Director of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

I like to think of our clubs as little boats and the members as the crews.

Once a year the little boats dock in Convention Harbor, where their cargoes of the past year's activities are checked over, ideas are exchanged, crews get acquainted and take on inspiration and enthusiasm to continue another year's cruise.

On arriving in harbor, we look over the crews, seeking out those we recognize. Sometimes we are sadly disappointed to find former members and acquaintances missing. Some have found it impossible to come in with their boat, others have not signed on this year. Some have left for other parts, and some have sailed out on that voyage into the life beyond.

How glad we are to make a new acquaintance and how pleasing to recognize those whom we met while previously in harbor and to be recognized oneself.

Perhaps another year some who are here today will be absent from their boat, and this is the question I think all true clubwomen should ask themselves. "If for any reason I should go overboard, would my services on the boat be missed?"

A sailor has his duty to perform, his responsibility to the boat, so it is with the crews of our little club boats. Each member should consider herself responsible for the success of the journey.

Sometimes we are caught on the snags of our carelessness, indifference, and selfishness. There are so many kinds of snags. Sometimes we are becalmed in still waters of activity, lie motionless, trusting to others to do the work, to keep the boat off the rocks. Snags and still waters can mean death to a boat crew, and they can be so to the usefulness of an organization. Two movements uppermost in present day affairs claim the attention of country women's organizations. Movements in the interest of peace concern all. Movements and projects designed to educate the rural youth, to make their lives more useful, fuller, and brighter, are the direct interest of women.

Not many years ago the farmer gained his knowledge of agriculture by the slow, expensive method of experimenting and was about two jumps behind in combatting noxious weeds and devastating insects, in reaping profits from earlier or more prolific

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

School days always bring ink stains to my house and I have learned to treat them immediately on their appearance.

A fresh stain is easily removed by sprinkling thickly with salt. As fast as the salt absorbs the ink, cover the stain with damp salt. Repeat until you are sure the salt treatment is no longer effective, and then sponge with skimmed milk. If you use whole milk you will have to finish up with a grease solvent to remove the butter fat.

Wash materials can be soaked in skimmed milk. Dried, stubborn stains may need to be soaked two days. Some types of ink require sour milk instead of sweet, but try sweet milk first. Equal parts of household ammonia and hydrogen peroxide make an effective ink remover, too.

One "cricket on the hearth" may not disturb you but crickets in numbers should be destroyed because they will eat almost anything and can do a lot of damage. Blow pyrethrum powder into furniture, along the baseboard and behind anything in a room that the crickets can hide around. The powder will suffocate them. Repeat the treatment in a day or so.

Stunning as the many wool dresses are this fall, they present a problem of personal daintiness to many women. I have found a new anti-perspirant cream that is a joy to use and completely effective. This cream is greaseless, astringent and at the same time soothing to the skin and gentle in effect. The regular use of it will save many cleaning bills and keep you comfortably fresh all day.

Tested Recipe

By Frances Lee Barton

Once upon a time there dwelt in the fashionable English resort of Bath a lady by the homely name of Sally Lunn — she ought to be the patron saint of all folk who gather together for an afternoon visit and refreshment. For she made a famous little tea cake which bears her name. But we've improved Sally's original recipe. Today we make our Sally Lunn more quickly — and more surely, with the aid of double-acting baking powder and cake flour, to give that feathery lightness so essential to hot breads.

Quick Sally Lunn

2 cups sifted cake flour; 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup butter or other shortening; 4 tablespoons sugar; 1 egg, well beaten; 1 cup milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream shortening, add sugar, and cream together thoroughly. Combine egg and milk. Add flour to creamed butter and sugar, alternately with milk mixture, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in greased muffin pans in hot oven (425° F) 25 minutes, or until done. Makes 12.

grains, etc. Today he goes to the experimental farms and stations, to the many useful branches of the provincial universities, where his experimenting is done for him and he has only to apply the knowledge learned.

Through the many opportunities offered by these same institutions, especially the universities, a young woman in her early twenties can be better prepared for homemaking than the woman with twenty years' experience. Therefore let us women of the Quill Plains district give our earnest support in bringing to our young people the courses offered by the university, designed to prepare them for useful citizens and give them happiness in doing well the tasks of rural life.

When our boats come in next year I trust there will be many young members in our crews and that our cargoes will contain much that is the expression of their handiwork and vision.

To all our boats and crews — Happy Landings!

Rural Home Beautification Local Group Gives Hints Timely to the Season

PROJECT IS ORGANIZED IN
ARGENTEUIL W.I.

At the fall convention of the Women's Institutes held in Lachute High School Saturday, it was decided that the Institutes in Argenteuil sponsor the Rural Home Beautification Association. The objectives of this organization are to — (1) Increase the value of property; (2) Make home surroundings more pleasant; (3) Make country life more attractive to young people; (4) Present a more attractive countryside to tourists.

The suggestions to be carried out include — general clean-up; making or improving lawns; planting of shrubs or trees; painting of homes; holding of meetings, when helpful papers or lectures could be given.

A special committee was appointed, including all Agriculture convenors of the eight Institutes in the County of Argenteuil, and it was suggested that if sufficient interest were taken in this subject, materials could be bought on the co-operative plan.

Now is the time for a general clean-up and to plant shrubs and bulbs for the spring. Bulbs suitable for planting are — tulips, crocuses, scillas, narcissi, snowdrops, and daffodils.

Notes for the gardener:

Avoid bruising and dislodging of roots of established shrubs. Hoeing is preferable to forking of the soil around the base of the shrubs.

Seed the lawn in the fall; the grasses stool better and the weed competition is less strenuous than with spring seeding. Cut, roll and fertilize, and apply fresh seed on thin spots.

Plant a sugar maple in your home grounds if there is none; no other tree provides more vivid color and more pleasing form, and it is durable.

October brings the last call for planting and transplanting in the perennial beds and borders.

The Correction of Squint

On two different occasions I have been asked by mothers to write something about squint. Both mothers said if they had known earlier they might have saved their children a lot of trouble. When a squint is first suspected, a child should be taken to a good eye specialist. The wearing of corrective glasses may be all that is needed to straighten the eye — provided the child wears them young enough. Two two-year-old children of my acquaintance are wearing glasses for correction right now. One little girl who wore glasses when almost a baby has straight eyes now at the age of seven. I heard a mother who has a ten-year-old with a decided squint, say that she knew she should have taken her daughter to a doctor but she could not bear to have her wear glasses when she was almost a baby. The consequence is that she has had a crooked eye all these years and now has to have an operation. No one wants a child to have to wear glasses at any age, but it is surely better to have them wear glasses, even when they are very young, if it going to correct the trouble and save an operation. To be successful, the correction must start when very young.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story by W.E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

EMERGENCIES

Hundreds of times I have been asked, "How is it that doctors and surgeons always seem calm in moments of stress and fit to meet any emergency which may arise?" There is a prevailing notion among the laity that medical men are cold-blooded creatures, who delight in cutting and giving nauseating medicines, and proceed with their work prosaically, callously and nervelessly. Nothing could be further from the truth.

In the first place, from the day they enter medical college to the day they graduate, students are impressed with the thought that throughout their careers they are to be confronted with unusual conditions, usually surrounded by persons who are terribly excited, and that they must of necessity remain cool and collected, and act with precision and the proper co-ordination of mind and muscle. In practice they soon learn that no case or surgical operation is a matter of routine to which they can become accustomed.

I know of one famous surgeon who, while operating, cut his finger tip with his scalpel, during a critical moment. He dared not think of himself, for the patient always comes first. He knew the danger which confronted him. The operation was finished and the wounded finger of the surgeon was then sterilized, but the deadly germs from the pus of the ruptured appendix had done their work. The doctor was dead within a week.

Dr. Robert T. Morris, the famous surgeon, said: "I cannot imagine a nervous surgeon doing an operation. Our intention is concentrated on saving a life." In cholera, yellow fever, bubonic plague and pneumonic plague epidemics, the physician enters homes without fear, because he has been taught that it is his duty to do so.

In the pneumonic plague in China, every doctor and nurse attending these victims died, but that did not prevent others of these professions from carrying on with the work, and there were more volunteers than were needed to fill the vacancies.

Most doctors and surgeons find it necessary to have a hobby to relieve the mental stress to which they are subjected. Many go in for painting, sculpturing, music, athletics, fishing and hunting. I knew one surgeon who took up etching to develop a more delicate control over his fingers, and another violin playing to make his digits nimble.

Florida Strait Island

Has a Fountain of Youth

Bimini, in the strait of Florida, has a Fountain of Youth—perhaps The Fountain of Youth, because it is the spring Ponce de Leon's guide had in mind when the two set out from Porto Rico on their famous search, observes a writer in the Detroit News.

That De Leon's guide was a native of Bimini and was merely trying to find the way home from Porto Rico supports the island's claim for its fountain. That the guide was a woman, an old woman and a bad mariner, accounts for the capricious course she set, the embarrassing blunders in Florida and all the subsequent confusion.

Water is rare in the northernmost islands of the West Indies and it is not surprising that reports of Bimini's well reached de Leon at Porto Rico. The wall is a rocky cavern, its sides green from the damp and shaded even at noon by the pigeon-plum and gumalmo trees that cluster around it. Although it has none of the legendary properties, the water is refreshingly cool and seems to instill vigor into the drinker.

Fable roots easily in such a fountain and to Ponce de Leon, facing old age on his beloved island of Porto Rico, it sounded like the answer to his wish for eternal youth in which to enjoy the beauty of his Caribbean home. Guided by the old woman, he and his followers ranged the islands of the Bimini group and finally landed in Florida, a short distance to the west.

Robert Morris Financial

Aid in Washington's Time

Robert Morris, called the "financier of the (American) Revolution," was born in England, January 31, 1734, but came to the Colonies when he was just a boy and began to build a considerable fortune.

A member of the Continental congress, he was reluctant at first to sign the Declaration of Independence. After he had changed his mind, writes Leslie Hartley in the Washington Star, his financial aid proved invaluable, and without his help Washington's soldiers at Valley Forge and at the battles of Princeton and Trenton would have found it almost impossible to survive.

An optimist and a born promoter, Morris possessed an uncanny ability to secure loans which served the Continental army well throughout the war. When Washington was forming his cabinet he requested Morris to serve as secretary of the treasury, but the latter declined, naming Alexander Hamilton in his stead. He served in congress, however, as one of the first two senators from Pennsylvania.

It was the irony of fate that the affairs of the "king of American financiers" should become so involved that he was thrown into prison for his debts, to be released only under the bankruptcy act. He died a few years later, a broken-hearted old man.

Brownsburg Council Insures Firemen; Debate Franchise, Chatham Telephone

OTHER MATTERS UNDER DISCUSSION AT REGULAR SESSION OF COUNCIL

Brownsburg—The monthly meeting of the Brownsburg Council was held recently, with Councillors G. I. McFaul, W. J. Graham, L. Ouellette, H. Pariseau and Mayor G. Ball present—subsequently Councillor D. Lepine and later L. Wilson.

The Secretary, Mr. E. Hebert, read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were duly adopted.

A letter was read from the Provincial Fire Inspector calling attention to the necessity of having an independent fire alarm system installed. The matter was adjourned and taken up later at the meeting when Fire Chief O. Legault informed the council he had not yet obtained the necessary information to put before the members, and a further adjournment was moved.

The Secretary read a quotation from a pipe manufacturing concern relative to the piping required for the council's road program.

Mr. McFaul inquired if the St. Hermas pipe was satisfactory. Secretary: "The manufacturer did not forward any for inspection." It was decided to order from the firm now quoting.

A number of men appeared before the meeting with regard to the road work undertaken by the council. Considerable discussion ensued, of a desultory interest. Apparently some of those before the council were not satisfied with the distribution of work, and some who had been at work and not continued during the course of the job were equally dissatisfied. The Secretary said the list made out at the request of the council was not adhered to; in fact, it was not called for.

Mr. Ouellette said he put the men on at the request of Mr. Lepine, and he selected married men as far as he could. He replaced a single man with a family. Some men were on the job before he undertook the work of looking after them. Subsequently, when Mr. Lepine arrived, he stated that the work was only of three days' duration and it was impossible to engage all that were looking for work. If some had a grievance he would give them a longer period the next time. The matter was dropped.

Mr. Girard appeared before the meeting to request the replacement of two lights which had been removed. These lights were at the entrance to the bridge going up the French Hill, where it was very dark. He alleged he got hurt in a fall because of the absence of the lights. The Secretary explained that only one light was removed; it was the property of the C-I-L and the council had no choice. The company removed the light as new lights erected a little distance away made this light unnecessary. The Mayor: "We will refer it to our road-men for a report."

Mr. J. Thompson also came before the council to request a light adjacent to his premises, which were on a new street. Mr. McFaul: "When that street is fully opened up, the light at present on Beaverboard will be transferred there. It is only a matter of a little time." This light was also referred to the council's road-men.

Mr. Ouellette referred to the dangerous condition of the hand-rail along the bridge and requested that something be done about it. The Mayor was of opinion that there was sufficient material on hand to do the necessary repairs. Mr. Ouellette: "I do not think so, we will have to get some more lumber." This matter was also referred to the road-men.

The question of insuring the members of the fire-brigade against accident was dealt with. Two insurance companies were seeking the business, and the terms and conditions of insurance were before the meeting. A representative from one of the companies explained the conditions and compared the advantages of one policy as with another. A premium of $4.55 for each member was stipulated for a $2,000 accident policy.

On the proposition of Mr. Pariseau, seconded by Mr. McFaul, it was decided to ensure with the Union Marine & General Insurance Company.

Mr. Arthur Robbins came before the meeting to seek continuation of a charter for the operation of the Chatham Rural Telephone Company. He explained that he had been appointed with Mr. Morrison to put the matter before the council, with a view of having the franchise, which had lapsed some eighteen years ago, renewed. The former franchise was for a period of ten years, and when it expired the matter was left in abeyance until he took over the position of secretary for the company. He then discovered that the franchise had run out and he was now seeking to have it renewed. The Chatham Company served the farmers in co-

New Version of Hit-and-Run; Car Backs into Victim

LOST RIVER RESIDENT IS HURT, VEHICLE SMASHED IN COLLISION

A hit-and-run collision with an unusual angle occurred just after midnight last Saturday, when an unidentified driver backed into a truck driven by Wyman McAdam, of Lost River, causing him personal injuries and considerable damage to his Ford light delivery. The mishap occurred at the junction of the Brownsburg Road and the Lachute-Grenville Highway.

A motorist, driving in a considerable hurry, crossed Barron's Bridge westward and missed the sharp left-hand turn toward Grenville. Seeing his mistake, he backed his machine and crashed into McAdam, who was driving westward in the same direction. Without waiting to see what damage he had caused, the unknown driver drove away and disappeared around the corner.

McAdam was in a dazed condition and Traffic Officer H. Jones, being summoned to the scene, drove the victim to the office of Dr. F. McMartin, in Lachute, where two stitches were required to close a gash in his head. McAdam's truck was also badly smashed.

Paper drinking cups may be more sanitary, but the old gourd dipper at the spring was more exciting. Frequently a lizard ran out of the handle while you were drinking. — Kiwanis.

New 'Casavant' Pipe Organ Now Being Installed

FINE INSTRUMENT A GIFT TO MARGARET RODGER PRESBYT. CHURCH

Good progress has been made with installation of the new pipe organ at the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church. The organ arrived last week from the firm of Casavant Frères, St. Hyacinthe, Que., and is being erected under charge of a technician from the plant.

The eight-stop organ has electric mechanism and the oak console, facing the choir seats to the east front of the church, is remote from the actual sound unit; the latter is housed in a recess to the west of the chancel, the pipes being visible through a handsome oak screen fronting the organ loft.

The organ will be played for the first time in public at a special dedicatory service on Sunday, Oct. 30. Dr. Malcolm Campbell, acting Moderator of the General Assembly, will officiate, and the music will be played by Mr. J. McL. Marshall, organist of Outremont Presbyterian Church. The guest soloist will be Mrs. Esther McLean, wife of Rev. Wm. McLean and well known Montreal soprano.

An interesting feature of this special service will also be a baptismal ceremony, in which the infant son of Rev. and Mrs. Henry Cousens will receive the name William Donald; the Rev. Mr. Campbell will perform the rite.

The new organ is a gift to the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church received from an anonymous donor.

Arundel Minister Inducted

St. Andrews — On Tuesday afternoon a meeting of the clergy of St. Andrews Deanery was held at Arundel, Rural Dean Booy presiding. At 8 p.m., the Rural Dean, on the authority of the Bishop, and assisted by the Rev. K. N. Brunton, inducted the Rev. A. J. Poole as incumbent of the Parish of Arundel.

operation with the Bell Company at a cost of about $6 a year. Their line was in good repair and any change would inflict a hardship on the subscribers; if it did not continue and the Bell Company took it over, it would cost the subscribers $16 a year each.

Mr. Graham: "The rates in Brownsburg depend on the number of subscribers with the Bell system. This fact makes your application a big question."

Mayor Ball: "For five or six subscribers it would not be worth while to hold this line."

Mr. Robbins: "Well, if we cannot continue this line I know that several members will not be able to take any system at a higher rate. They can't afford it."

Inter-provincial Competition in Plowing Match

SEVENTY PLOWS IN CONTEST, ENTRIES DOUBLE THOSE OF LAST YEAR

In point of entries, and enthusiasm evident among the contestants, the inter-provincial plowing match being held here today is the largest in the record of the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association, which organization sponsors this annual fall event. The match is being held just west of town at the farms of E. McGibbon and Jas. Paul, adjacent to the Grenville highway. A total of 70 plows have been entered, with as many as 23 in one particular class, and the contestants are almost double the number which competed last year.

George Morrison, of Lachute, is attracting considerable interest among the spectators with his team of oxen. In the Lakefield district plowing match on Tuesday he took second prize for plowing with this outfit, and is competing again today. Ten tractors are also running in the tractor-plow class.

Judges are Robert Leishman, of Lachute, H. F. Sauvé, of St. Hermas, Sam Morris, of Ste. Scholastique, and Andrew Bos, of Lachute.

One contestant, Oscar Labelle, has driven his horses 62 miles from Clarence Creek, Ont., to take part in the contests. Other Ontario districts represented are North Gower, Cornwall, Hammond and Leonard. Plowmen are competing from Hudson Heights and from the following communities in this Quebec section — St. Andrews East, St. Hermas, Ste. Scholastique, St. Augustin, St. Placide, St. Eustache and Harrington.

Clarifies Misunderstanding on Term "Local Butter"

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC

Last week, in connection with the opening of their "Self-Service" store, Dominion Stores Limited distributed a leaflet in which they stressed their policy of buying local produce, giving special emphasis to farmers' products. In the course of this article, it was stated: "Butter and eggs are also purchased locally throughout the year."

As we are the biggest butter sellers of the district, this declaration gave an erroneous impression among our dealers that we supply butter to the Dominion Store, in their wrappers, at a much lower price than we are selling it to them; for our wholesale price was higher last week than the retail price of the Dominion Store. We were blamed by many farmers, saying that we should not allow any cut prices in a product that is their principal source of income in this county, and that it is not going to help them if everyone tries to reduce their revenue, which is already too low.

To our dealers, as well as to our farmers who have the impression that we are supplying the Dominion Store with butter, we have stated that we are not, and that the "butter purchased locally" is not Lachute Creamery butter.

We take this opportunity to tell the public that we do not supply butter to anyone without its first being wrapped in our own wrappers. We would mention also that the precautions we are continually taking to improve the quality of our product, do

Section Improved on the Rawcliffe Road to Mines

Grenville N. — People of the surrounding community who travel the Rawcliffe Road, leading to Kilmar Mine, are pleased to note that the section of this road known as Kelly's Hill has been widened and graveled.

The Government, through Argenteuil's federal member, Mr. Geo. Héon, granted the money and Mr. Corl Gauley is overseeing the work. It is expected the improvement will be completed this week.

Colors Presented to Arg. Legion in Solemn Ceremony

COL. L. M. HOOKER RECEIVES PAST PRESIDENT'S EMBLEM

The consecration and presentation of colors to Argenteuil Branch No. 70 of the Canadian Legion was witnessed at Lachute Auditorium last Friday by a large gathering—whose interest in this ceremony testified anew that the service and sacrifice of Canadian manhood in the Great War is deeply respected in the public mind.

Chairman of the assembly was Mr. Harry Carpenter, the Legion branch president. The solemn order of service for such occasions was followed, Rev. Henry Cousens, the branch chaplain, leading the ritual. The King's Colors and Legion Colors (gifts of the late Rt. Hon. Sir Geo. H. Perley) were given over to members of the Legion branch by Lt. Col. C. F. Ritchie, D.S.O., M.C., and a presentation of flags to the Lachute Wolf Cubs followed—the King's Colors (gift of the Legion) by Col. L. M. Hooker, V.D., and the Pack Colors by their donor, Mr. W. Cottingham. (The address given by Lt. Col. Ritchie is reported on page six of this issue.)

A patriotic note was struck by Geo. Héon, M.P., as speaker of the evening, who lauded the selfless efforts of Prime Minister Chamberlain in having averted a disaster comparable to the great World War which this gathering recalled. He commended the Legion on its fine ideals of brotherliness, and recognized in them a certain spirit of "statesmanship" for the public weal, such as had been exemplified by Mr. Chamberlain and others in public esteem.

A feature of the observances was a tribute paid to Col. L. M. Hooker, who was presented with a past president's badge in recognition of his term as head of the Argenteuil local Legion in its initial two years of existence.

The audience were treated to a program of entertainment by Mr. Allan Murray, one of the original artists in the "Dumbells" concert party. He was ably accompanied on the piano in his character impersonations, by Mr. Lewis, who also rendered several musical selections. A hearty song was led by Mr. Ed. Round.

Veterans were present from Montreal, while a large delegation from the neighboring branch No. 71 in Brownsburg, were also present.

Que. Minister of Mines Guest of Geo. Heon, M.P.

VISITED NORTHERN PART OF CONSTITUENCY

The Hon. Onésime Gagnon, Minister of Mines in the Duplessis Cabinet, accompanied by his deputy-minister, Mr. L. A. Richard, spent Tuesday touring the constituency of Argenteuil with Mr. Héon, M.P. The party were accompanied by Messrs. Harry and Ernest Ayers, and Clement Tremblay, who were hosts at luncheon served at Carling Lake. They afterwards visited various lakes in the northern part of the county. There is a possibility that a national park may be created, and already steps are being taken to establish a bird sanctuary and game preserve.

Mr. Gagnon stated that he was also contemplating a complete change in the system of appointing game wardens, and that in the near future a clearer and wider definition of game wardens' duties would be published. The Minister expressed his pleasure at the natural beauties of this section, promised closer co-operation in the preservation of fish and game, and thanked the Messrs. Ayers and Mr. Tremblay most warmly for their hospitality.

Rush Civic Projects in Ottawa for Royal Visit

FIRST TIME REIGNING MONARCH HAS SET FOOT IN ANY OF BRITISH DOMINIONS

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, Oct. 18. — Canada will make full preparations to give an impressive, as well as warm and loyal welcome, to Their Majesties when they arrive here next summer. The warmth and loyalty will be a natural expression of feelings of the people, but there is also plenty of work to be done by Government officials in arranging details of the visit. This will be the first time that a reigning monarch has set foot in any of his Dominions, and credit must be given to the Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King for the happy opportunity to be given Canadians of greeting their Sovereigns on Canadian soil. Coming as it does at the close of the period of extreme world disquiet, there is something peculiarly appropriate in the visit to the senior Dominion of the monarch of the great democratic union of states which is the most potent force for peace in the world.

It is being suggested that the King may prorogue Parliament at the end of next session. Of course, while the King is in Canada, the Governor General will have no official position. He is the King's representative. But it is unlikely Parliament will be prorogued by the King unless the end of the session can be made to coincide exactly with Their Majesties' arrival. The session will probably be over before the King arrives. Still it is felt that there may be other visits. A very happy precedent has been created, and it is possible, according to some, that Their Majesties may be induced to favor Canada with a visit every five years. It has to be borne in mind, however, that there are the other great Dominions and India, and that Their Majesties live a busy and anxious life in these days of vigilance and trial in Europe.

Education Officer Inspects 2 New Rural Schools

IMPROVEMENTS IN SANITATION AND GENERAL FACILITIES FOR SCHOLARS

Mr. H. Billings, special officer of the Quebec Department of Education, paid a visit to Argenteuil County on October 13th to inspect new schools being erected in Lost River and Mille Isles District No. 3. He expressed complete satisfaction and congratulated the contractors on their good work.

The new schools will be a credit to these two communities and to the county. They are both being constructed with basements, furnace heating, hydro-septic toilets, and ample blackboards, and it is expected that they will be thoroughly equipped with movable chair desks, libraries, sand-tables and other modern requirements.

Mr. Billings also inspected the buildings at Mille Isles I and II, The Glen and Louisa, and was pleased with the outside painting and other improvements, particularly the new windows at Mille Isles II and the recently installed hydro-septic toilets at The Glen and Louisa.

Good Progress in Reconstruction of Carillon Barracks

ARRANGEMENTS ENSURE INTERESTING EVENT IN MUSEUM OPENING

Great progress has been made in the repair and reconstruction of the Carillon Barracks, which is being carried out under the direction of the architect employed by the Government, Prof. P. E. Nobbs, of McGill University, so that the alterations are now sufficiently far advanced to permit of the installation, in the "Officers' End" of the building, of the Society's annual loan exhibit, which will be open to the public on Saturday, Oct. 22nd, at 3.00 p.m.

Admission to this event is free to all interested, and the exhibition will remain open under a caretaker until October 29th.

This huge stone building — erected about 1833 for military purposes by Commissary-General Forbes, of Bellevue, Carillon, a veteran officer of the Duke of Wellington's staff during the Napoleonic Wars — was generously donated to the Historical Society by Mr. Felix Hungerbühler, the present owner of the Bellevue Estate, and was transferred to the Dominion Government. It has lent itself admirably to the new use to which it is now being adapted. In its present reconstructed state, the building contains in addition to lofty basement and attic accommodation for storage and implement rooms, etc., many spacious apartments which are being fitted up, some with museum cases for the display of special exhibits collected from the historic countryside, and others as period rooms of Seigneurial times, also an officer's and a soldier's bedroom, furnished in the military style of the early 19th century. Distinctive features are the "Dollard" or "habitant" room with huge fireplace and walls lined with pine, which has been faithfully reconstructed under the expert direction of Mr. Shirley Simpson for exhibition, and is on view on the present occasion; the Canadian Handicrafts room, where a loan exhibit is now kindly being installed with the help of the Committee of the Guild; the Sir John Abbott room, dedicated to the memory of this, the first Canadian born Prime Minister of the Dominion, who was a native-born son of Argenteuil County; and, last but not least, a great research library, occupying half the length of the building, lined with shelving and destined to hold the collections of books and archives on local history; this is to be known as the Dr. Benjamin Wales Memorial Library, in honor of the Society's founder and first president. In addition, there are Curator's rooms and workshop, and on the first floor a servery and tea-balcony and a commodious caretaker's apartment with modern plumbing and separate furnace.

For the present occasion there will be on view a special exhibit of old Canadian furniture in the "habitant kitchen"; a handsome collection of textiles, primitive furniture and other articles set up or loaned by the Handicrafts Guild as above indicated; a special exhibit of portraits, court costume and regalia from the Estate of the late Sir J. C. Abbott, which will later form a part of the permanent collection; sundry objects of historic interest from the McCord National Museum and the Bytown Museum at Ottawa; the large material sent in as loans or gifts from various parts of Argenteuil, Vaudreuil and Prescott counties, as well as the permanent collection of the Society.

It is hoped that members and friends resident at Lachute, Grenville, Hawkesbury, L'Orignal and various more distant points in the Laurentians will make up parties so that those who have not cars and wish to come may find transportation with others more fortunate.

of the sudden death, in an auto accident, of Bobbie Johnstone, of Montreal. "Bobbie" is well known in this locality. The sympathy of the locality is extended to Mr. Douglas Johnstone, his brother, and his wife, who was Miss Mary Stewart before her marriage.

Language Difficulties

The language difficulties among "New Canadians" are well illustrated by the following:

Dear Teacher:

I was today with my Annie to hospital, by a surgical doctor, for this she was not present in the forenoon in school.

Tomorrow — she is also to be in the hospital to see an eye specialist in the forenoon. And so — she comes not twice a week in the forenoons to school in the right time, at the flat-foot treatments.

Yours, Bronia.

"Ottawa Spotlight"

By Spectator

The City of Ottawa will make a great effort to get its plans for civic improvement in as advanced a stage as possible for the arrival of Their Majesties in the Capital. Just now, Confederation Square, close to Parliament Hill, is a hive of industry. Circular roadways and boulevards are in progress of construction. In the centre of the circular roadway stands the War Memorial, crowned by two bronzed figures, Peace and Freedom, while midway down the pylon are figures of soldiers now being put in place. Mr. King, the Prime Minister, said very likely King George would formally unveil the memorial when he came to Ottawa. Of course the full plans for the improvement of Ottawa's appearance cannot be completed before next summer. The programme will cover some years, but the approaches to Parliament Hill in any event will be neat and blooming next June.

The Prime Minister, Mr. King, and Dr. Skelton, under-secretary of state for external affairs, are taking a vacation in the South. They have gone to Bermuda, and while, as Mr. King said to pressmen before leaving, their exact itinerary was not settled, they might go to Jamaica or Florida. They have both had an extremely trying summer and are in need of rest. Dr. Skelton is the official who has been receiving the constant flood of information from London on the crisis in Europe. The strain on him has been very heavy, and Mr. King, just prior to departure, gave a very sincere eulogy on Dr. Skelton's untiring and self-sacrificing adherence to duty.

The very welcome news has been reaching the capital that Mr. Dunning, the Minister of Finance, who suffered from a heart attack towards the close of the last session, had made a good recovery and that he will soon be back at his desk. He spent a large part of the summer in the Maritimes, principally in Prince Edward Island, and for the past few weeks has been in watering places in the Eastern States. Irrespective of political leanings, everyone in Ottawa will be generally pleased to see Mr. Dunning on the job again.

A PROPOSED INTERNATIONAL AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCE

The suggestion of Mr. Bracken, Premier of Manitoba, that an International Conference on agricultural products marketing problems should be held in Winnipeg next December throws further light on the unfortunate condition of markets for wheat and other agricultural products. Whether as suggested by some, the duty of calling the conference suggested by Mr. Bracken's foresight should be laid on the shoulders of federal rather than provincial authorities is not the most important point. The Wheat Advisory Committee in London some months ago issued a report which warned of impending huge surpluses of wheat and suggested some concerted international effort should be made to deal with the surplus problem. Canada's wheat export surplus, after provision made for domestic consumption and future domestic seeding requirements, will be about 230 or 240 million bushels. Canada has guaranteed the wheat producer 80 cents a bushel on the basis of No. 1 Northern wheat delivered at the head of the Great Lakes. This is much higher than the price on world markets. The Government's action, may in perfect fairness be said to have two aspects. On the one hand it saved the West from the effects of demoralized markets and on the other hand has put a pretty heavy burden on the taxpayer.

THE BREN GUN PROBE

The Royal Commission investigation of the Bren gun contract made by the Department of National Defence with a firm in Toronto, is still proceeding and will likely not be finished for some days. The complaint has been made at the investigation that the case is being tried by the newspapers and the public. It has been suggested that all should keep an open mind until all the evidence is given and until the Royal Commissioner, Judge Davis, who is held in high esteem for fair dealing, gives his report. The suggestion is undoubtedly a good one.

The Owens Lumbering Company has already commenced operations in the woods and will inaugurate a vigorous campaign against the giants of the forest in Montebello this coming winter. Mr. Wm. Stanforth, a member of the concern, is in charge of the work.

Mr. Wm. Kennedy, jr., gave a lengthy survey on the waterworks proposal, and said, "After careful examination of the probable sources of water supply for the town, I am still of the opinion that my former recommendations are the most practicable and the best. Any objections which have been raised to the cost of working or maintaining a stationary steam pumping plant for fire purposes can be urged with greater force against the ordinary steam fire-engine. It is evident that the stationary engine, in a well-built house, with underground pipes always charged with water acting as leading lines of hose, has many advantages over a moveable engine, and would require even less cost and attention to maintain in full working order as the stationary plant may be made more substantial, and hence less liable to accident or derangement; yet the moveable is classed as one of the best means of fire protection for a town."

In committing itself to the construction of a 30-foot waterway from the head of the Lakes to the ocean, the Borden Government is conscious that Canada's need of such a trade channel is very evident. By practically bringing the Atlantic into the heart of Canada, this country will be taking another giant stride onward.

Anschluss Victim

Several months ago, Nora Gregor, Vienna actress, left the stage to marry wealthy Prince von Starhemberg, Austrian leader. Then came the annexation of Austria by Germany following which her husband was removed from his official position, his fortune seized and his castles and lands confiscated, leaving the couple penniless. Now his wife has returned to the stage in London to begin all over again.

Use Ultra-Violet Rays for Passenger Coaches

Montreal — Ultra-violet ray sterilizers are being used to purify the atmosphere of a passenger coach now in experimental service on the Canadian National Railways, and should the test prove the contentions of the engineers who have developed the idea, it is probable that the system will come into use on a large scale, particularly during the winter months.

The complete equipment of this first class coach in use on the Ottawa run is a development of the air-conditioning practice in use on the C.N.R. For summer, there has been incorporated a water spray, and the air driven through this spray is freed of all impurities. In winter months when the ice-cooled water spray is not required and it becomes necessary to furnish warmed air, the recirculated air in the coach passes through a grille which protects a battery of ultra-violet ray sterilizers, the generations from which purify the air, clear it of germs and provide clean air to be distributed throughout the interior of the car. Whether cool air is desired in summer or warm air in winter, the function of the conditioning and sterilizing mechanism is thermostatically controlled.

THE MISTAKE

A Vermonter saw a coat outside a pawnbroker's, priced $10.00, and thought he might dicker for it. He took it inside and said to the pawnbroker: "How much is this worth?" "Not more than $2," the pawnbroker replied. "I'll take it," said the Vermonter. "Take it," gasped the pawnbroker. "I thought you had come to sell it."

"MEN AT WORK!"

The most cheerful sign on the road

"MEN AT WORK" is an encouraging, cheerful sign upon the highway.

It is the happiest sign on the business highway too.

Business enterprise, making wise use of banking service, is the mainspring of employment.

The contractor responsible for that "Men at Work" sign gets the job of building that stretch of highway by being the lowest responsible tenderer.

Not always does he have the ready money to buy all the materials, pay wages and build it out of his own resources. He goes to the bank and, having assets and a good reputation, he negotiates such advances as he may need.

He orders materials, sets men to work. As the job proceeds, engineers' certificates enable him to collect from those with whom he contracted, and the work goes on.

The highway finished, the bank is repaid. Such repayments enable the bank to supply credit to other responsible borrowers.

A manufacturer gets a large order, with an early time limit for delivery. With only a hundred men, his factory cannot turn out the articles within the time required. With more men he can do it—but he lacks sufficient cash.

Operating his factory, as a going concern, with a profitable order and having a reputation for integrity, he asks the bank to lend him what he needs to pay wages.

The bank makes him a loan. He takes on more men. They get wages. The goods are turned out, delivered and paid for. The manufacturer repays the bank with the agreed interest.

He has his profit and can spend some money developing new business to keep his men employed.

How does a bank make these advances—where does the money come from?

Banks, having branches throughout Canada, mobilize the surplus funds of millions of depositors, large and small, and, based upon them, make credit available throughout the country as may be required.

Millions of little sums represent the toil, production and lifetime savings of Canadians—your fellow-citizens.

Safeguarding these deposits is the bank's first care.

Deposits of $1,000 or less—most of them much less—are owned by 3,770,000 out of Canada's 4,084,000 savings depositors. The total of all bank savings deposits in Canada is nearly $1,584,000,000; the average savings deposit in a bank is only $387.

Wisely safeguarded by Canada's chartered banks these deposits furnish credit that keeps "men at work" when used by Canadian business and industry—producing new realizable wealth from Canada's great resources. The country and all its people benefit.

In the field of business deposits, out of an average of 660,000 "current" accounts, 596,000 amount to $1,000 or less.

Savings deposits are, primarily, the basis on which banks can make loans.

Only the confidence of the people and their willingness to leave their money on deposit, enable a bank to lend money and—at small profit-margin to itself—serve the community.

We have mentioned the contractor and the manufacturer. The same process stimulates employment throughout the whole fabric of production, industry and commerce.

Loans to agriculture and for marketing agricultural products totalled in 1937, $88,294,000—9.0 per cent. of all ordinary bank loans shown on the return to the Minister of Finance, October 31st, 1937.

Of this sum $57,490,000 went to farmers, cattlemen and fruit raisers and $30,804,000 to grain dealers, seed merchants and grain exporters.

Other bank loans went to municipalities and school districts; wholesalers, retailers, manufacturers of and dealers in lumber, pulp and other forest products; fishermen; fish packers and curers; public utilities including transportation companies; stockbrokers and bond dealers; provincial governments; mining men; churches, parishes; hospitals; and to charitable and religious institutions.

Canada's chartered banks defend and protect the safety of the funds of depositors—the millions of thrifty souls we have described, whose life-savings they entrust to their banks.

No Canadian depositor, through the world-shaking events of recent years, has had to fear for the safety of a single dollar lodged with Canada's chartered banks.

The funds of depositors are their own—not a pool from which everybody may draw at will for any and every new financial experiment.

Brownsburg Council Meeting

Mayor Ball: "The Bell Company spent a lot of money improving our system here and we should give them every consideration."

Mr. Robbins: "We have a working agreement with the Bell Company, and if we did not have their switchboard facilities we could not operate. If we were any hindrance to them they could, within the terms of the contract, terminate the agreement within sixty days. They have no desire to disturb us, for they have the power if they so desired. If you grant the franchise, you can revoke it if you require at any time, after due notice."

Mr. Graham: "Can the agreement you got with the Bell Company cover your needs? We have no desire to get out of favor with them."

Mr. McFaul: "You have run along for eighteen years now without a franchise, why not continue for eighteen years more. We are paying under the new agreement with the Bell Company the same as they are paying in Lachute, and the number of subscribers has nothing to do with the rates."

Mr. Robbins reminded the members that their line had been the only means of telephone communication with Lachute after the recent storm. They had got the franchise in perpetuity from the Chatham Council. On the suggestion of Mr. Pariseau, the Mayor was to take the matter up with the Bell Company's representative.

The matter of providing water and sewerage was then gone into, and the council undertook an examination of the scheme as prepared by their engineer. A full description of this project was published in last issue of The Watchman.

"Country Doctor" Topic of Address, Lachute LionsDR. J. H. MASON IS SPEAKER AT CLUB MEETING

The Lachute Lions Club held their semi-monthly meeting at Desjardins Hotel Tuesday evening, with Lion President W. C. LeCras in the chair.

The chairman of the relief committee discussed the urgent need of funds to carry on the club's charity work among the needy of this town.

The president then called upon the guest speaker, Dr. J. H. Mason, of Lachute, who gave a very interesting and instructive address. His subject was "The Country Doctor." In his usual happy manner, the doctor related many stories of actual happenings in the practice of a country physician, including several instances from his own varied experience. He referred to certain epidemic diseases such as smallpox, diphtheria and measles, about which we know little today inasmuch as the bacteria causing these maladies had been largely stamped out by more sanitary conditions and greater precautions against infection. The speaker also stressed the need of a hospital in this community.

Lion J. E. Walker, in moving a vote of thanks to Dr. Mason, expressed a hope that the club would be privileged to hear him again on some future occasion.

Bible Society Annual Meeting at St. Andrews

St. Andrews — The annual meeting of the Bible Society was held at Christ Church on Monday evening, Oct. 17. Rural Dean R. S. Booy presided and Mrs. W. J. Pitcairn, secretary, read the minutes of last year's meeting and presented the report of this year's collections. Lantern views of colportage work in French North Africa were shown by Rev. James Adams, the Society's lecturer, to an appreciative audience. Rev. J. A. Mowatt was elected president for next year.

Two Returned Missionaries to Speak on China

The fall rally of the Women's Missionary Society, to be held in the St. Luke's United Church, Decarie Blvd., Montreal, on Friday, Oct. 28th, is to have the pleasure of hearing two of Montreal's women missionaries who have returned recently from China — Miss Jean Graham and Miss Mabel Carroll. After the tragic and horrible war that has gripped this hapless country of China for over a year, a stirring story is anticipated from these speakers. The two missionaries have just returned from China on furlough, and this is one of the first opportunities they have had to be heard in Montreal.

The St. Luke's Church is located on Decarie Blvd., just north of Sherbrooke Street. The meetings will be held at 8 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 at night, with tea being served by the Executive of the Montreal Presbyterial at 6 p.m. It will be a real opportunity for those interested in missions to hear first hand of the work that is being carried on in far-off China by the Women's Missionary Society.

Brownburg United Church

Next Sunday is to be observed as Missionary Day in the United Church of Brownburg, when the minister, Rev. S. J. Pike, will exchange pulpits with Rev. W. A. Dempsey, of Cushing, for the morning service. It will also mark the official opening of the quarter million "Fellowship" crusade being carried on in the United Church throughout the whole Dominion.

The Trustee Board, through a painting contract well executed by Mr. Roy Moore, has had the manse thoroughly redecorated.

Baptist Young People Held Rally at Brownburg

Brownburg — The Baptist Young People of the Ottawa Association of Churches gathered at Maple Avenue Baptist Church on Thanksgiving Day for their fall rally. The afternoon session opened with a period of worship led by the president, Rev. Keith Daniel, of Kenmore. The young people were then invited to take part in conferences, in which the following subjects were dealt with — Worship, Christian Stewardship, Christian Fellowship, Serving God as Young People, and Leadership and Methods. All participating found an hour-and-a-half too short, for the keenest interest was manifest in these topics. The gathering assembled again in the church at conclusion of the session and were later conducted on a sight-seeing tour of the beauty spots and places of interest in the vicinity of Brownburg and Lachute. Supper was served by the local young people at 6 o'clock, and at 7

Congregations Unite for Bible Socy. Annual Meeting

LACHUTE STANDS THIRD IN LARGE AREA FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

The annual meeting of the district branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in Lachute United Church last Sunday evening and was largely attended. Mr. T. J. Barron, the president, was chairman, and called upon the secretary, Mrs. L. Morris, to read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were duly adopted. A most favorable report was given on the work of local canvassers. Collections to this date amount to $162.77 (including the offering of $15.00 given at this service). The chairman commented on the fact that Lachute still remained third in the extent of its contributions among branches in the Montreal district, which extends from Cornwall to the Gaspé. Branches exceeding Lachute in their monetary support are Cornwall and Beauharnois.

The Rev. James Adams, travelling secretary for the Montreal district, gave an interesting address on the work of the Society in Northern Africa. His talk was illustrated by numerous lantern views taken in Morocco and Algiers. Mr. Adams mentioned the fact that the Society has over 1,000 colporteurs distributing the Scriptures in different parts of the world.

The Rev. H. Cousens submitted a resolution, which was adopted, as follows:

"That this Society records with deep regret the death of the late John Rodger, who was greatly interested in the work carried on by the British and Foreign Bible Society; and that we express our deep appreciation of the generous gift he has left the Lachute Branch of the Society for the continuation and expansion of its work, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to his sister, Miss Rodger."

Last year's slate of officers was re-elected, namely: President, Mr. T. J. Barron; vice-president, Mr. J. S. Gilles; recording secretary, Mrs. L. Morris; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. Bradley; asst. corresponding secretary, Miss E. MacKimmie; treasurer, Mr. J. Skutumpah.

Revival Meetings Continue

The revival meetings at Dalesville Baptist Church have been times of blessing to all who have attended. The messages have been timely declarations of the truth concerning human sin and God's salvation. The splendid audiences, which at times have nearly filled this historic old church, have been led to think on eternal realities such as judgment, heaven, and hell.

Sunday will be the last day of the meetings in Dalesville, so do not fail to be present, as you cannot afford to miss the blessing of Brother Hisey's ministry.

Beginning Monday evening at Brownburg Regular Baptist Church, the meetings will continue there each night for another week. Your presence and hearty co-operation are cordially invited. No matter what your church affiliation, if you love Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour and are concerned about the spiritual welfare of the community, come and help win the lost to Christ.

They re-assembled in the church. The young people from the Cornwall, Ontario, Union conducted a vesper service as a fitting climax to this day of inspiring and helpful fellowship.

Deanery Meeting Held; Arundel Pastor Inducted

Arundel — The induction of the Rev. A. J. Poole as priest of the Parish of Arundel took place on Tuesday evening, Oct. 18th, at Christ Church, Arundel. Evensong was conducted by the Rev. K. N. Brunton and the Rev. J. V. Temple, the lesson being read by the Rev. E. G. May. Following this, the Rural Dean, the Rev. R. S. Booy, proceeded with the induction. Mr. Poole, having affirmed his ordination oaths, was presented with the keys of the church by the churchwardens. Led by the Rural Dean, and accompanied by his warden, Mr. Poole was conducted to the font, prayer desk, lectern, pulpit and altar; at each place an appropriate Scripture was read and a short exhortation given. Finally, the congregation was exhorted to faithful support of their parish priest. The sermon was preached by the Rural Dean.

During the afternoon the regular meeting of the Deanery Clericus was held, when the Rev. R. S. Booy gave a devotional paper.

The visiting clergy were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Veit, whose kind hospitality was greatly appreciated. After the service refreshments were served to the visitors, and others, by the ladies of Arundel.

Arundel United Church Re-opened Last Sunday

EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS AND ADDITIONS COMPLETED

Arundel United Church, which has been closed for more than three months for extensive alterations and additions, was re-opened on Sunday, October 16th.

To celebrate the occasion, a supper was served by the ladies of the church on Saturday, the 15th, and a short program of singing and speeches followed.

On Sunday morning the church was crowded for the re-opening service, at which Rev. Walter S. Lennon, D.D., was the preacher, delivering an inspiring address.

While the building was still unfinished, its beauty of design and evident usefulness for service in the community was generally commented upon. The changes made include the construction of a nine-foot-high basement, providing a hall of good size with a kitchen and furnace room at the back, while the upper part of the church has been completely transformed by the addition of a tower at the north-east corner and a chancel and vestries at the west end.

The pastor of the church, Rev. C. Cushing, B.A., in a brief address made at the banquet on Saturday evening, referred to the whole-hearted support that had been given to the undertaking by the members and friends of the church, while the mayor of the municipality, Mr. C. J. Staniforth, and the visiting preacher, Dr. Lennon, both expressed it as their opinion that the result was a credit to the community.

Missionary from India Spoke at Sectional W.M.S. Meeting

A sectional meeting of the Montreal Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterial Church, was held last Thursday in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church. Members of the Lachute auxiliary were hostesses at a luncheon which preceded the meeting.

Miss Elizabeth Walsh presided. Miss Barron extended greetings to the visitors, to which response was made by Mrs. Charles Johnston, president of the Montreal Presbyterial. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. George Rodger and Mrs. Robert Bradley. Encouraging reports were presented for the Lachute auxiliary by Mrs. R. McFaul, for St. Andrews East by Mrs. Hyde, and for the young women's auxiliaries by Miss Black.

Dr. Elizabeth Thurrott, missionary stationed at Jhansi, India, now on furlough, spoke of conditions encountered by the missionaries in India and of the eagerness of the people to receive and understand the Christian message. She expressed her conviction that the evangelization of India would be brought about not so much by the work of missionaries going there from other countries as by the efforts of the people themselves. The great hope of missionary enterprise lies in Christian nurture of the children and young people through whom in years to come the present missionary achievements will be multiplied many-fold, she said.

Social and Personal

Miss Aileen Fee, of Montreal, was in town on Saturday last.

St. Simeon's Church, Lachute

The annual "Children's Day" service was fittingly observed at St. Simeon's Church last Sunday. The Sunday School scholars, carrying their banner and flag and singing the hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," proceeded into the church at the 11 o'clock service. The lessons were read by Stephen May, and Ruth LeCras was organist for the occasion. The rector spoke on our responsibility to the children and especially on Sunday school work, and urged for greater interest and co-operation for this essential work of the parish. During the offertory the Sunday School choir sang "Hushed was the Evening Hymn." The Lachute Sunday School will take part next Sunday evening at the Children's Service at St. George's Church, Brownburg.

On Tuesday last the A.Y.P.A. was re-organized with an attendance of 34 young people. Miss Patricia Bennett was elected president, Mr. Harry Pibus vice-president, and Miss Muriel Marshall secretary, for the balance of the year. Plans are being made to attend a rally at Grenville on Friday, Oct. 21st.

A junior branch of the W.A. has also been formed.

The Rev. Russell Brown, of the Peace River District, will be at St. Simeon's Church on Nov. 14th at 8 p.m. and will show lantern slides on his work among people in that part of the country.

Campaign Closes on Sunday

This coming Sunday marks the close of the special services conducted in Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownburg, by Evangelists Nygren and Bugg. The meetings have proven a blessing to the entire community.

Following is the program announced by the "crusaders" for the remainder of the series: Thursday, business and professional folks' night; subject, "What I Would Do in Brownburg if I Were the Devil"; Friday, young people's and Cheerio Club night, subject, "Married." The Cheerio Club will give an interesting program at the opening of the service. Sunday services are as follows: 11 a.m., "The Tale of Two Cities"; 7:30 p.m., closing service, "Praying Infidels — or — All Men, Sometime, Somewhere, Somehow, Pray to God." The pastor, Rev. James R. Simpson, and members of the church, extend to the entire community a welcome to these services.

Mrs. John Gauley, of Grenville, visited Mrs. P. Dobbie on Friday last.

Mrs. H. Beaumont, of Montreal, was the guest of Mrs. H. Slater on Saturday.

Mr. P. C. Campbell, of Salmon Arm, B.C., is visiting relatives in Lachute and vicinity.

Mrs. Geo. Floyd, of Verdun, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Walker on Sunday.

The Misses Marion and Hazel LeCras, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the rectory.

Mr. Louis Lafleur and family have left their residence on Foundry Street to live in Montreal.

Mrs. A. G. MacArthur, of Montreal, was the guest of her sister, Miss Charlotte Doig, on Wednesday.

Mrs. E. Robin returned on Sunday to her home in Montreal, after spending the past week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. McEntyre.

Miss Isobel MacKimmie spent the week-end in Montreal and while there visited her brother, Gerald, who is a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital.

DRESSED FILLETS OF HADDOCK

- 1 cup of milk
- 1/2 cup of flour
- 1 tablespoon of mustard
- 2 cups of grated old Canadian cheese
- 2 tablespoons of butter

Prepare a white sauce with the butter, the flour, the mustard, and the milk; add the grated cheese, season. Wipe the fillets with a damp cloth, cut in individual pieces, cover each piece with the cheese mixture, sprinkle with chopped parsley, place on well buttered oven dish, and cook 20 minutes in moderate oven. Fillets of any other kind of Canadian Fish may be used instead of Haddock fillets.

THE KIDDIES' EYES will sparkle when you bring in an appetizing platter of Fish. It's a dish fit for a king, with its delicious, palate-pleasing flavour... yet so inexpensive that you will have money left over for extra meal-time treats.

You can enjoy Canadian Fish and Shellfish all the year 'round — over 60 different kinds — fresh, frozen, smoked, dried, canned or pickled... as often as you wish. Many tempting recipes make it easy for you to offer delightful variety to hearty appetites.

Address by Lt. Col. C.F. Ritchie on Presentation of Colors to Legion

Following is the text of an address by Lt. Col. C. F. Ritchie, D.S.O., M.C., who represented the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion in presenting the colors to the local Legion branch here last Friday. (Report of proceedings on page one).

My first word is one of congratulation for this splendid gathering here tonight. This meeting will, I am sure, go down on the records of the Argenteuil Legion as an outstanding one.

I want to thank you most sincerely for the honour you have done me, in inviting me to take part in this beautiful ceremony; and also to thank you on behalf of Provincial Command for the compliment you have paid the Command in having one of its officers present these beautiful colours, which were so kindly donated to this branch by the late Sir George Perley, in whose passing you have lost a real and true friend. We are indeed very sorry that Lady Perley was unable to be here tonight, as I am sure it would have done her heart good to have seen this large gathering of Veterans and their families and to have witnessed this sacred ceremony which has just taken place.

Your Branch has only been in existence for the past two years and it is very gratifying to see the progress you have made, and to learn of the excellent work you have already done in this community in this short space of time.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF ANNUAL POPPY CAMPAIGN

It is also gratifying to see the excellent results you have obtained through your Poppy Day Campaign, as each year you have steadily increased the amount collected for distribution among your needy ex-service men and their families, and I am sure it does your heart good to see that by your efforts you have been able to spread a little cheer and happiness to those who need so much.

You will be interested to know that the distribution and sale of poppies and wreaths across the Dominion has been steadily rising each year and the indications are that this year will be the biggest we have had yet, and this means that we will be able to spread that much more good cheer and assistance amongst ex-service men across the country.

It is sad to think that there are yet so many who require assistance. That is a condition over which you and I have no control, but we can rejoice in the fact that through our own individual efforts we can take our part in helping to alleviate their worries to some small degree.

You will also be glad to know, I am sure, that the Canadian Legion is growing stronger every day. Quite a number of new Branches have been formed across the country since the Fort William Convention and the membership has increased by over 6,000. Tonight we have evidence of our growth in our own province through the large delegation of one of our baby Branches who are here from the Montreal Tramways Legion.

It is indeed a pity that all veterans are not united in one big veteran organization and those of you who have listened to our Dominion President or have read his addresses, will see that he is concentrating on this point of unity, but thank heaven the Canadian Legion stands head and shoulders over and above all others and is blessed with having the finest type of man that is available as its leader.

Our Dominion Government gives a sympathetic hearing to any recommendations put forward by the Legion, knowing that their demands are fair and square and not unreasonable, and in every case has given utmost consideration to their requests. We have had an example a few short days ago when we just escaped the tragedy of another war, where our Dominion President, rather than telling the Government what they should do, simply in his dignified way offered to the Government the services of the Legion to be used in any way they saw fit.

LEGION IS BECOMING WELL ORGANIZED

Here in our own province all Branches are pulling together; our membership is steadily increasing and your Provincial Command is concentrating on the formation of new branches, particularly in towns and villages where we know there are sufficient ex-service men to warrant the formation of a Branch, and we will indeed be very disappointed if at the next Provincial Convention we cannot announce to you the formation of a few new Branches.

SIGNIFICANCE OF COLORS

The King's Color, which I have just presented to you, stands for the whole nation, symbolized through the person of our King, and the Branch Standard stands for those who gave their lives for their country and for these reasons we pay homage to our Sovereign and our Glorious Dead by saluting these colors.

Therefore, always guard your Colors with care; ever live up to the ideals which they represent and may they ever remind you of the example set by our King and by our fallen comrades, and may you continue to prosper in your splendid work and play your part for the good of your community.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

At about half past nine o'clock on that memorable morning of November 11th, twenty years ago, when I was told that hostilities would cease about eleven o'clock, my first thought was one of thankfulness that war was over and done with, as I could not imagine at that time the people of any nation involved in that war would ever allow their nation going to war again.

It is true that was only an Armistice that was signed in November, 1918; the ceasing of hostilities or a truce. Then after many long months of discussion between the allied nations, peace was eventually signed and what a peace it has turned out to be. Certainly not the peace that men fought and died for. With the horrors and sufferings of those four long years of 1914-1918 still fresh in our minds and with so many among us still suffering and uncared for, the dark clouds gathered and the tragedy of another World War before us. Now, once again, we can observe Remembrance Day in the spirit for which it is intended.

Remembrance Day is the one day in the year when the nation, as a whole, pays homage to those who gave their lives in defence of their country. It is a day set aside to remind us of the sacrifices made so that we who live under the Union Jack may enjoy that for which it stands.

We must not break faith with them but rather see to it that their sacrifices were not made in vain.

While the Remembrance Day memorial ceremonies are dearer to the ex-service man because of the memories they evoke, Remembrance Day has been vested with a wider significance. We must have proper regard for those of a later generation which has now attained maturity.

The averting of war in the recent world crisis provides the opportunity for commemorating events of twenty years ago, and also for giving expression of thanks that civilization was rescued from the brink of disaster.

What a Parson Needs

An extraordinary combination of qualities is necessary in a clergyman, according to the Rev. J. G. Campbell, vicar of Oneote, near Leek, England. He must have "the voice of a B.B.C. announcer, a theatrical producer's ability, a doctor's bedside manner, and the sporting skill of Don Bradman, Alex. James and Tiny Bostock combined." In addition, he must be good at darts and billiards, and also possess doctrinal soundness, be a good talker, mixer and preacher, and, above all, a conventionalist. Mr. Campbell admits that he has few of these attributes and voices his detestation of convention in speech, dress and public deportment. He says that if he is expected to wear the orthodox funeral drab beloved by clergy 30 years ago, that expectation will not be attained. "I have a preference for loud check plus fours, a dinner jacket and bowler hat," says Mr. Campbell. "The highest type of dignity is honestly independent of dress or studied clerical mannerisms."

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman

ANOTHER MOVE

Once again the Browns have moved. This time to Ottawa. Having left Halifax with regret — we look forward to living in the Capital. Cities are like people; some of them have distinct personalities. And Halifax is one of the cities which has a flavour all its own. It is steeped in beauty, in history, and in tradition. Sometimes it is an exasperation, especially when one is doing business. It sticks to the old ways; and when you are used to newer and different ways, you find it trying. However, if it weren't for the retaining of the old customs, it would not be so individual, so you cannot have it both ways. We will miss the sea and the ships. During the winter there are several liners each week, but in the summer there is only an occasional one. But on the other hand, there are plenty of yachts to see in the summer. They are beautiful under sail and interesting to watch just riding at anchor by the Yacht Squadron. Having married a Nova Scotian and made many Nova Scotian friends, I have heard a great deal about the beauties of the province. I put down, at least some of it, to the natural affinity for their native land. But they did not tell the half of it. It is so beautiful that at times it is breath-taking. There is such a variety of scene. We have only had two years in Nova Scotia and I am very thankful for them. As I said, we leave with regrets, and yet look forward. I am hoping Ottawa will provide some interesting material for this column.

KITCHENETTE LIVING

What a quantity of gear it takes to equip a kitchen to get even one meal ready! We have been several months in hotels, summer resorts, and so on. As this is written, we are in a furnished apartment. There is an electric refrigerator, a kitchenette and a minimum of dishes. We decided we would enjoy having our breakfasts and an occasional other meal here, so started in to buy supplies. There were no pots and pans, so those were our first purchase. A saucepan, a frying pan and a coffee percolator have sufficed. I use tea-bags and make the tea in the coffee percolator quite nicely. (An Englishman wrote home that in Canada they make their tea in fish-nets). When we went to cut the bread, we had no knife; and I blithely bought a can of salmon for a salad and found we had no can opener. The woman upstairs, who is living similarly and takes her meals out, craved some brown bread, and having no knife, she cut it with her scissors. We are having quantities of salads and fruits, as we all enjoy them. Somehow, hotels and boarding places seldom have enough fresh things. We are having all kinds of company, mostly those we have met in the last few months who are boarding and are thrilled at a home meal. We are having a lot more fun with our company, when we have to wash a plate before they can go on with the next course or maybe take turns with a knife, than we do when we are in our own home and our table is set with sterling silver and our finest china.

A LOVELY BAG

My neighbor above (the one who cut her bread with the scissors) is making a very lovely bag. It is made from a piece of an old Spanish shawl and she is outlining the pattern in steel beads and putting it into a silver top — silver-colored, anyhow. Everyone has not the lovely old Spanish shawl to use, but any piece of brocade could be substituted successfully. The colors are rich and lovely and the steel beads seem to bring them out. That would make a pretty grand Christmas present.

DIVIDED HONORS

One of the difficulties in writing a column is to know what people want. The usual letter I get says, "I like your recipes because I can use them every day." Then this week I got a letter asking for more party recipes. I try to give some party recipes because we all like to have something a bit special when we entertain. However, I put the emphasis on the foods for every day because, after all, parties are only once in a while but meals come three times a day. This time I will divide the honors and have one of each.

GRAHAM LOAF

½ pint cream, ½ lb. marshmallows, ½ lb. dates, 1 cup chopped walnuts, ½ lb. graham crackers.
Soak the marshmallows in the cream until soft. Add the dates, cut in pieces, and the walnuts and graham crackers rolled into crumbs. Mix thoroughly and pack into a loaf tin. Chill for several hours. Slice and serve with whipped cream. This dessert may be made the day before using.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

PENNY SQUARES

1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup lard and butter mixed, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 cup currants, 2 cups flour, 1½ teaspoons nutmeg, 1 teaspoon soda.
Cream the shortening and sugar, add the milk, then the sifted dry ingredients and the currants. Bake in a buttered pan 10" by 10" for 45 minutes at 375 degrees. Cut into squares when cool. Glaze with cold water before cooking.

HOUSE AND HOME

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

A good light at your dressing table is most important if you want to look your best at all times. Your face must be evenly lighted in order to put on make-up smoothly. A strong, indirect light which gives no glare and makes no shadow is preferable. However, if you want lamps on your dressing table, have the lamps of head height and use shades. And just a hint I want to pass on to you about your make-up itself. A dark make-up absorbs light and detracts attention while a lighter one reflects light and attracts attention. Keep this in mind if you want to emphasize your best feature.

Quinces are the last call for fall canning. Even if you've canned all summer, don't neglect to make some quince jelly or old-fashioned quince honey. It's delicious to use with apples and will provide a new flavor for you.

When you bake apples put a teaspoonful of the honey in the cavity of each apple. Try adding it to apple pie — about half a cup to a pie. If you put whipped cream on pumpkin pie drop a spoonful of the jelly or honey on the whipped cream.

Interior decorators approve of slip covers all the year 'round, now. If you can have two sets, one for winter and one for summer, you can practically make your living room over for the different seasons. Strong, warm-looking colors are best for winter since they create a feeling of warmth and brightness on dark days. By the same token, soft, cool-looking colors are suitable for summer.

The heating season is upon us, but before it starts in earnest check over the system and the house. All the doors on the furnace should fit tightly. This includes the checks and dampers as well as the feed, clean-out and ash p't doors. Any cracks in the chimney should be closed up for safety as well as for a good draft. Be sure the furnace is clean.

As to the house, go over the windows for cracked and loosened putty. Replace wherever necessary. Weather-strip outside doors and windows that don't fit tightly.

A good way to take care of the crack between the upper and lower sashes of windows is to put a piece of transparent mending tissue over the crack. It doesn't show a bit and you can dust over it easily.

Tested Recipe

By Frances Lee Barton

One of the easiest guest suppers to serve, when you are trying to combine the roles of cook and hostess, is a single plate meal of cold cuts banked by a salad. Your choice of a salad will make all the difference in the world to the appeal of your supper plate. Here is a refreshing tangy salad — a perfect supper partner for cold meat. Flanked by a plate of hot biscuits and a dessert of cake and coffee, you'll have a meal your guests will enjoy, and one which can be prepared well ahead of their arrival.

Cranberry and Orange Salad

1 package orange-flavored gelatin; 1½ cups hot water; 1 medium orange, unpeeled and seeded; 2 cups raw cranberries; 3 tablespoons sugar.
Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Chill until slightly thickened. Put orange and cranberries through food chopper; add sugar. Fold into slightly thickened gelatin. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 6.

Found Text to Fit

A preacher in the hills of Arkansas, considerably wrought up over the "top-knot" style of putting up hair among girls and women, decided to preach a sermon on the subject. Then came the problem of finding a suitable text. After much searching, he found it in Matthew's Gospel, 24:17, "Top not come down." His congregation sat amazed when he announced his text but what the preacher failed to tell his hearers was that he did not quote the entire verse which reads, "Let him which is on the house top

MRS. C. LATTA MOURNED IN PRAIRIE COMMUNITY

The Blairmore Enterprise records the passing of Mrs. C. Latta on Sept. 27th, at her home in Cowley, Alta., in her 74th year.

With her husband and three small daughters Mrs. Latta had moved to Alberta from Eastern Canada in 1899. They homesteaded near Cowley, where Mrs. Latta had made her home until death overtook her.

A large crowd of friends and sympathizers assembled in the United Church for her funeral, conducted by the Rev. R. Upton, and interment was made in the Cowley cemetery. Many floral tributes were tokens of the esteem in which the departed was held. She was predeceased by her husband thirty-nine years ago, and by a brother, Thomas Sheppard, seven years ago. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Cleland, Etta; Mrs. Irwin, Ida; Mrs. L. Colvin, Rita (Kimberley, B.C.); six grandchildren and four sisters, Mrs. S. O. Hartley, Montreal; Mrs. (Dr.) Paitin, Cowansville; Mrs. Sam Armstrong and Mrs. Oliver Armstrong, Portage la Prairie, Manitoba.

Women on Guard

Women police made their first appearance in India when groups of Indian women, smartly dressed in khaki shirts and long white baggy trousers, took up positions outside two mills at Cawnpore where strikes were taking place. Wearing armlets marked "W.P.," they patrolled the factory gates unconcerned by the interest their appearance aroused.

MICROBES

The records of prehistoric ages show that disease is older than the first man, and this fact is proven by decayed teeth, spongy bones, rheumatic joints, and abscessed bones — (one of which recently exhumed was large enough to hold more than a quart of pus) — which have been found and which belonged to creatures living in the reptilian age.

Of course when men had emerged from their primitive status and for many centuries thereafter it was commonly believed that disease was caused by evil spirits.

With the discovery of the microscope, medical men were quick to learn that the causes of most diseases were bacteria, and then there stepped into the picture the master minds of such scientists as Pasteur, Lister and Koch, who ascertained that there was another world of which little was known and that it was peopled by a population invisible to the naked eye — a truly dangerous and "murderous population," Dr. Howard Haggard calls them.

In addition there were also found various bacteria which were silently working in the interest of mankind — genuine benefactors of humanity.

How long can bacteria live is a question that puzzles scientists. Do they live weeks, months, years or centuries? Within recent years it has been absolutely demonstrated that bacteria remain viable for long periods of time.

In fact one may with propriety say that they live almost indefinitely, provided, of course, that conditions are favorable for their survival.

For example, Dr. C. R. Lipman of the University of California has shown that living bacteria exist in coal taken from deep mines in Wales and also from Pennsylvania. In addition to this he learned that soil which had been sealed and kept immune from outside interferences for periods varying from twenty-five to sixty-five years, all contained living bacteria.

Adobe bricks—that is, bricks made from clay and water and dried in the hot California sun — and used to build one of the old Jesuit mission churches in southern California, were obtained, broken open and examined. From cultures made from the material in the centre of these bricks, living bacteria were found, and it is positively known that these bricks were more than one hundred and fifty years old.

So despite the strenuous work on the part of scientific men, it has not yet been determined definitely how long bacteria can survive, but the indications are that, given the proper conditions, they can exist for more than 2,500 years and yet remain viable.

MANAGER OF NEW DOMINION "SELF-SERVICE" STORE

Extends Personal Invitation

Mr. Albert MacDonald, manager of the new Dominion Store, Lachute, resides with his family at 371
Main Street, and has taken a keen interest in affairs of this town. He is a valued member of the Lachute
"100 Club" and the Lachute Curling staff extend a personal invitation to see for themselves the modern "Self-Service" system of marketing. It is the objective of the local management to make this enterprise a "friendly store" — in spirit, as well as in the confidence it enjoys among its patrons for reliable service.

Find Gold in Floors

Residents of Dawson, Alaska, are prospecting for gold in the floors of buildings which have stood since the early gold rush days. Apparently old-timers dropped gold dust between cracks in the boards in the days when gold was the medium of exchange.
D. R. Mackenzie, theatre owner,
hour when a new floor was laid in his building.

Four plays are being given Tuesday

Presbytn. Y.P.S. Learn "What Makes Humor Humorous"

"What Makes Humor Humorous" was the subject of a short but interesting address by Mr. Wilson Gall at the weekly Presbyterian Y.P.S. Humor is based on five main theoretical themes, all our jokes and funny stories being enlargements and variations of one of the five. These are:
embarrassment, unbelievable far-fetchedness, dialect, racial and practical. By taking these points more fully and offering suitable anecdotes by way of illustration, the speaker provided a very enjoyable half-hour.

Preceding the address, a short business meeting was conducted, the only item being in connection with the banquet. The committee report that details are under way, the date being tentatively set for November 25th.
The highlight of next week's meeting will be a "travelogue" by Harold Deacon and Hugh Brennan, who will give an account of their recent European jaunt. In view of the present intense interest in European affairs, this should prove an enlightening and interesting evening, and all members should make a special effort to be on hand.

Municipal Association Makes Recommendations to Village Council of Morin Heights

CONCERNING VOTE FRANCHISE AND GRANTING OF LIQUOR LICENSES

At Morin Heights on Saturday night, a meeting of the local Municipal Association was conducted by the president, Professor Charles M.
McKergow. The chief item of business comprised a motion to the effect that the Morin Heights council be requested to consider favourably and enact the necessary legislation to permit:—

(1) Summer or part time residents in the municipality to be eligible for election to municipal office.

(2) In the event that the forthcoming referendum should result in a vote favourable to a liquor license, the people of the municipality to enjoy the benefit of whatever profits may accrue from such an institution, and also retain control of its administration by its operation as a municipal enterprise.

This latter request, the president remarked, he felt it his duty to present officially to the council. Professor McKergow stated that it was contrary to his principles to subscribe to any enterprise which embraced the consumption or sale of liquor. He felt, nevertheless, that since there was a great possibility that the license promoters would secure the majority vote, he would like to feel that his association had taken the lead in helping to assure that the municipality and its people be given the opportunity to obtain whatever blessings and advantages such an institution would provide. Since this question has been a controversial one for several years, much bitterness has been in evidence whenever and wherever it was introduced.

Professor McKergow, however, guided the discussion skillfully, so that interesting and instructive facts were obtained from those who spoke for and against, and that which might have been a battleground resolved itself into a medium for the cool expression of facts.

The president of the Alouette Ski Club, Dr. Victor Jekill, was asked to report progress in connection with the winter sports development. He thanked several citizens for voluntary gratuitous services, notably Lawson
Kennedy, Alec Graves, Max Baume and Fred Kennedy. He reported that the work to be executed, as laid out by Mr. Smith Johanssen, had been almost completed, at a very much lower cost than was anticipated.
Also that the council had recognized the "Alouette" as the only official ski club in Morin Heights, and had handed over a grant of money to its secretary for the advancement of its work.

Dr. Jekill further stated that application had been made for membership in the Canadian Amateur Ski Association and that it was anticipated that a ski meet of some proportion would be held in Morin Heights this winter.

The C.N.R., he said, had co-operated to the extent of improving parking facilities for west-end travellers at the Val Royal station, which is increasing in popularity. Also an adequate train service had been promised.

Professor McKergow then made a plea for keener interest on the part of the townspeople in the planting of gardens and flowers to enhance the appearance of the village next summer.

The meeting then adjourned.

Bush Fire Covers Large Area in Avoca District

REPORTS OF DAMAGE AND DANGER TO HOMES EXAGGERATED

Stirred by rumors that an immense forest fire threatened homes and entire communities around Avoca last week, residents of the district are reported to have sat up Wednesday night in readiness to abandon their dwellings (.. but even this statement may have been similarly exaggerated).

A score of relief workers gathered from neighboring villages fought the flames, which started in the bush two miles north of Pointe au Chene; Chief Fire Ranger Fortier, of St. Jovite, who was personally at the scene, stated that a force of about 35 men battled the blaze, which on Wednesday morning was burning over an area roughly two miles wide and a mile long. Fortier stated the fire had never at any time assumed dangerous proportions as it was confined to a cut-over area containing very little full-growth timber. He estimated the loss as between $10,000 and $15,000. This estimate was corroborated by others who visited the scene of the fire. The report that some 250 men had fought the blaze was ridiculous, it was stated.

SMOTHERED BY RAIN

The fire was completely smothered by a heavy rain. The area, most of which is the property of Joseph Bonhomme, of Papineauville, bore mostly scrub maple and birch with a few good oak trees.

Cause of the fire was not definitely ascertained, but one rumor was to the effect that it had been started by hunters who had carelessly left their campfire burning. There were no farm-houses or other habitations within some miles of the area.

'Burg Pupils Had Educational Tour in Capital City

THIRD SUCCESSFUL VENTURE IN "EDUCATION BY OBSERVATION"

Brownburg — Following the procedure adopted in other years, the pupils of the Brownburg Consolidated School were taken on a tour of highly educational value by the principal, Mr. Dennis Stanforth. The initial trip was arranged and sponsored by the late Sir George Perley, to whose efforts and inspiration over 60 pupils, with their teachers, paid tribute during their visit to Ottawa on Saturday. Last year Mr. J. P. Lanctôt, K.C., provided a feast of entertainment and knowledge with an interesting itinerary in Montreal, arranged for the pupils' benefit. This year the party were forced to rely on their own resources, but so great has been the desire manifested in acquainting the coming generation with the achievements and the glories of the past, that the youthful thirst for knowledge is an "open sesame" to the halls of erudition and experience.

The school is indebted to those people of Brownburg who so generously provided transportation for the large party. The pupils and their teachers are fully alive to the obligation incurred, and express their sincere gratitude.

The tour in Ottawa comprised a view from the Peace Tower at the Houses of Parliament, with an interesting description by the guide. The clock and carillon were objects of careful attention. A visit to the Memorial Chamber, a stroll through the library with its half-million volumes, a seat in the House of Commons without even the necessity of an election, elevation to the Senate unhampered by political or party pull, and an inspection of Confederation Hall, were the highlights in the parliamentary tour. The Mint led away into the realms of economic thought — until someone propounded the theory that the one fundamental thing on which the whole science of monetary economics hinges is the ratio between the amount of money in circulation to the total national income — which, of course, is the total income of all the people, their total annual purchasing power. Napoleon's dictum dispelled the gathering clouds, and some lighter sub-

One Kindly Motorist Finds Courtesy a Waste of Time

Brownburg — Coming down the Dalesville road on Saturday was "a swell car," and issuing from its front was a stream of smoke, which indicated that a jammed brake-lining was on fire.

Going in the opposite direction, a kindly motorist noticed the burning brake. Unable to attract the driver's attention, he turned about and followed the burning car for almost two miles before overhauling it. Pulling ahead he informed the driver that the brake was burning — which seemed unnecessary at the time as the smoke was belching with increased volume. With a wave of his hand and an ungrateful shrug, the driver sped on — with his brake still burning.

POWER LINES IGNITE TRUCK-LOAD OF HAY

A STRANGE ACCIDENT ON STAYNERVILLE ROAD

Brownburg — Proceeding along the Staynerville road with a truck load of baled hay, a man named Court met with an unusual accident when his load came in contact with some low-hanging power lines. The contact of the wires caused a short circuit which set the load of hay on fire. Unaware that his vehicle was literally a flaming torch, the driver proceeded until halted by Traffic Officer Legault, who was on patrol in the vicinity. Feverish efforts were made to unload the dangerous cargo, and finally the burning hay was dumped on the roadside, where it continued to burn until well into the night.

It is stated that Mr. Court had his barns and produce and a considerable quantity of hay destroyed by fire some time ago, and that he was taking home a load to replace the hay he had lost by fire.

Loan Exhibit Draws Large Crowd to Opening Event at Carillon Museum

MANY ATTEND FROM DISTANT POINTS. WITNESS DISPLAY OF RARE HISTORICAL INTEREST

Hold Dance in Celebration of Oddfellows' 60th Anniversary

Oddfellowship in the Province of Quebec has now been organized for 60 years, during which time it has grown extensively from very small beginnings.

This anniversary of the Order was fittingly celebrated here on Tuesday evening when a large number of members of Laurentian Lodge No. 14, with their wives and lady friends, gathered in the lodge rooms for a dance. Music was provided by Lowe's Orchestra, of Grenville. During the evening refreshments were served.

District Deputy Grand Master Charles Belanger, of Montreal, with several friends, was present for the occasion.

What is likely to prove an event of first national importance was inaugurated last Saturday afternoon, when over 500 people assembled from all parts of the district as well as from Montreal, Kingston and Ottawa, and thronged the spacious apartments of the historic Carillon Barracks now under construction as a museum by the Federal Government. More than a hundred automobiles, a fair index of the crowd, were packed in the adjacent grounds.

The occasion was the annual loan exhibit of the Argenteuil Historical Society — the first such function to be held in these old barracks, which were built in 1824 by Commissary General Forbes, a veteran officer of the Duke of Wellington's staff during the Napoleonic Wars, and it is shown by the archives at Ottawa to have housed 108 soldiers and a proportionate number of officers during the rebellion of 1837. This fine old building was generously donated to the society by Felix Hungerbühler, owner of the Bellevue estate and was transferred from the Society to the Government by deed of gift to the Crown, to be maintained as a permanent museum for the Society's use.

A meeting was held at 3 p.m., with Dr. H. B. Cushing, president of the Society, in the chair, and addresses were delivered by Archibald Kains, of Ottawa, honorary president of the Society; Victor Morin, president of the Royal Society of Canada, and Senator A. K. Hugessen, together with George Héon, M.P., and George Dansereau, M.L.A. Warm congratulations were extended on the spirit and enterprise of the workers.

Tribute was paid to the splendid work of the late Dr. B. N. Wales, to whose untiring efforts and great zeal the Historical Society owes its formation.

Among other notables present were M. Gérard Melchess, a member of the Historical Society of Montreal, and M. Leopold Richer, president of the House of Commons Press Gallery.

One of the principal attractions was an exhibition of old Canadian furniture, kindly loaned by the Art Association of Montreal through Cleveland Morgan, which was installed in the habitation kitchen for the information of those who may feel inclined to donate similar articles; also a handsome collection of textiles, early furniture and other articles on loan by the Handicrafts Guild of Montreal.

A special display of photographs, medals, awards and uniform regalia from the estate of the late Sir John Abbott, loaned for the occasion, but which will later form part of the permanent collection, proved a great attraction, as also were a number of very interesting relics from the McCord National Museum, Montreal, and the Bytown Museum at Ottawa. Among other interesting relics was a dispatch case from St. Helena bought there by Major Stevens when guarding Napoleon, "kindly loaned by Gertrude Bradford," also a gun used at Waterloo by ancestors of Miss Doris Leroy.

A fine collection of five models of Ottawa River navigation boats, with 14 pictures, were on exhibit through kindness of R. W. Shepherd, of Montreal. A number of framed shields carrying coats of arms of the nobility of France, copies of water colors from originals in the heraldic museum at Versailles by Father Lachance, proved of rare interest, as also were the old prints and manuscripts relative to the Dollard defence of the Long Sault in 1660. A Breeches Bible of the 17th century and a fine exhibit of lanterns, guns and pistols were displayed by W. H. Latter and H. W. Hill of Montreal.

Among the interesting local exhibits was a Papineau baby carriage in which the McKay descendants of Louis Papineau were perambulated in old St. Andrews.

Settled as this country was by pioneers from the Old Land who brought with them many cherished possessions, in numerous homes throughout Argenteuil there must be stored many antiques and curiosities which would be welcomed by the Society. There is ample storage in the barracks and any such gifts to the museum will find suitable display, with due credit given to the donors.

BOGUS BANK-NOTES AGAIN IN CIRCULATION

CITIZENS SHOULD EXAMINE ALL $5 AND $10 BILLS

One or two merchants in Lachute report the reappearance of worthless Mexican bills which have a striking resemblance to Canadian currency. Bills reported to have been passed here are supposedly of five-dollar denomination, but are actually five pesos, bills of the State of Sonora, Mexican Republic; they were printed during the Pancho Villa regime and the issue is valueless.

About this time last year a number of five and ten peso bills were circulating here, and merchants lost money when they discovered the bills were "phony." Citizens are advised to scrutinize their paper money, and if fake bills are tendered, the police should be immediately notified.

The Old and the New at Fourth Annual Plowing Match

Pictures snapped at the fourth annual Plowing Match of the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association, which was witnessed by 2,000 people last Thursday. A total of 70 plows were entered in the different classes. Above may be seen the old and the new methods of plowing.

Co-operation is Fostered by H.S. Parents' Night

ANNUAL AFFAIR GIVES PLEASURE AND FILLS CONSTRUCTIVE END

Parents' Night, an unusual feature to promote closer understanding and co-operation between parents, teachers and scholars, was held at Lachute High School last Friday.

Pupils from the higher grades escorted the guests through the different class rooms, where they were greeted by the teachers of the respective grades and viewed some of the work being done by their children. As a result many were pleasantly surprised to see for themselves the efforts put forth by both teachers and scholars — the outcome of which, besides reflecting credit upon the homes, the school and the community, must show its influence in a wider sphere in after years.

Mr. Geo. Y. Deacon, chairman of the Protestant School Board, later addressed the gathering and extended a hearty welcome to the visitors. Dr. J. H. Mason and Inspector L. J. King gave short talks on the benefits that have been derived from consolidation and urged the parents to take more interest in the welfare of their children, to lend valuable encouragement to their education in the character-forming years.

The Rev. W. B. Rosborough expressed his pleasure in being present, and greetings were brought from Brownburg by Principal D. Stanforth.

Mr. C. L. Hall, principal of the High School, extended a warm welcome and further invited any who might care to visit the school when they could see the pupils in the course of their daily work. A cordial greeting was also voiced to the new teachers, and the gathering was urged to co-operate with the staff in order that the best results might be obtained.

Dainty refreshments were served, followed by a social hour of music and dancing.

CAR TURNED TURTLE, U.S. COUPLE INJURED

ACCIDENT TUESDAY MORNING NEAR LACHUTE

When their car took the ditch and completely overturned Tuesday morning on the Montreal highway a mile from Lachute, Mr. and Mrs. Sievers, motorists from Bridgeport, Conn., were injured, Mr. Sievers sustaining an injured back.

On their way to Ottawa the couple were approaching Lachute in their 1936 Plymouth coach, when they were "crowded" to the side of the road by a truck proceeding toward Montreal. The mishap occurred at Ben Hammond's corner, east of town on No. 8 highway at 9 a.m., on Tuesday. The American car, turning off the road, somersaulted in the ditch and landed with its four wheels uppermost. The truck did not stop, and the identity of the driver was not known.

Traffic Officer H. Jones investigated. Mr. and Mrs. Sievers were treated for their injuries by Dr. Fitzgerald, of Lachute. The woman, who was driving, received a severe cut on her left arm. The couple proceeded later on their journey.

Argenteuil M.P. Guest Speaker at Winchester Club

DELEGATION FROM LACHUTE BRANCH ATTENDS EVENING FUNCTION

A delegation of ten, representing the Lachute 100 Club, drove to Winchester, Ont., last Friday evening to attend a ladies' night banquet of the club in that town. The local members were warmly welcomed, and the fraternal spirit was strengthened by this social interchange between the two branch clubs. Several of the Winchester members had visited this county earlier in the year, on the occasion of the "International" Convention held at MacDonald Lake last June.

Geo. Héon, M.P. for Argenteuil, attended as guest speaker at the function last Friday. Mr. Héon, besides being president of the Lachute Club now in his second term of office, is president this year of the International Association of 100 Clubs.

While stressing the charitable practices of 100 Clubs and similar organizations, Mr. Héon painted the role of service club membership in a new light. The 100 Club was strictly non-political, he agreed, but he considered it within the scope of true community service to interest oneself in affairs of government... to the extent of exerting moral influence while ministering to material needs — influence to instill faith and confidence in this Dominion, good will and brotherliness between factions, and support for the "right man" to rise in public affairs, regardless of his party color. Mr. Héon instanced the case of a Canadian of the finest type, a man equipped for leadership, who had been induced to stand for public election; but the onslaught of abuse and mud-slinging had proved so revolting that this candidate had promptly withdrawn. It was little wonder that leadership held no appeal for the best type of manhood. The fault lay in the public attitude and abuse — a matter which might well become the concern of worthwhile clubs and organizations. This was not "politics," according to Mr. Héon, but a constructive spirit which, if adopted more generally in the private ideals of service men, could counteract those doctrines which were today undermining civilization.

The chair was occupied by Centurion Lanin, president of the Winchester 100 Club.

Mrs. Watson is merely naming the important people she reaches by telephone — some of them every day — saving endless delays, needless risks and many tiresome journeys. The telephone is so much a part of the daily routine that its importance is often overlooked — until, like Mrs. Watson, you actually start to check up on what it does for you.

The rates for residence telephone service are surprisingly low—only a few cents a day. You really cannot afford to be without a telephone.

Brand-New for Farmers

The automobile makers are letting the public in on the secrets of their new models, and looking over the trade announcements, it appears that anybody who buys one of the new 1939 models will get a better car for his money than he has ever been able to get before.

There is only one radical innovation in motor vehicles that has come to our attention. While they have been trying to make motoring more comfortable for road travel, nobody heretofore has thought to combine comfort with strict utility for the farmer who drives a tractor. If comfort is not needed there, it would be hard to say where it is needed.

The newest thing in tractors has an enclosed cab, with safety glass, cushioned seats for two, is air-ventilated and provided with a heater for cold weather. It has a self-starter, an electric cigar-lighter, a complete set of head and tail lights, and even a radio. If that doesn't take a lot of the hard work and monotony out of farming, what would?

This new motor vehicle, in addition to being able to pull plows and harrows across the field can "go to town" at forty miles an hour on the highway, hauling one or more trucks to market — and might also serve as a vehicle for joy-riding on moonlight nights.

At least, here's something new in farm equipment.

Small Town Interests on Wrong Track

How so-called "community interests" may conflict with the national scheme of efficiency, is brought to mind by the growing prevalence of "through highways" in Canada and the United States.

It is not so long ago that Lachute — through its Board of Trade, on instigation of town merchants — petitioned highway authorities to direct the Trans-Canada route through this town instead of around it. (Incidentally, the projected cross-country cut has never been made . . . and one may observe also, in passing, that our Board of Trade is now in the same cobwebbed state of suspension). The petition was no reflection on the business zeal of this town. St. Therese, nearby, and a hundred other towns, have made the same requests — illustrating, in their community viewpoint, only a lack of perspective for the wider welfare.

Happily, these civic petitions have all been ignored by roads departments engaged in the construction of through-highways. The very purpose of these routes is to expedite through-traffic, carrying it over the shortest possible route between important centres, avoiding the congestion of local traffic and the devious thoroughfares which give transit through our towns and villages. Through-highways decrease accident hazards at these points, and if every small community had been consulted on its preferences, there would have been no "limited access" highways or super-highways on this continent today.

Ottawa, in the construction of its Middle Road between Toronto and Hamilton, has compensated in a measure for the business lost to towns and villages which were located on the original highway but are now off the beaten track of inter-city travel. The province is helping to maintain business in these places by refusing to permit new gasoline stations, tourist camps, markets, tea rooms, etc., to be established on the Middle Road. Moreover, it will permit a certain amount of advertising at intersections on this road to draw attention to the towns, villages and existing businesses on either side of it. . . But this gesture is a pretence at its best, for it is generally recognized that tourists and through-travelers stop at wayside business places only when necessity demands. In the earlier mode for through-highways Lachute — and the many other communities which thought their interests were being slighted — did not realize this. But the foresight of highway engineering outruled their objections and saved the day.

A Tense Moment

How real was the imminence of war to English firesides in the tense moments of "the crisis" — is revealed to a member of The Watchman staff in a letter recently received "from home."

A relative, visiting in the North of England during the last minute deliberations, was in readiness to leave at short notice for her home on the south-east coast. With the declaration of war, the British railways would have been put to immediate service for mobilization, and private passengers ran the risk of being stranded indefinitely.

Later, returning home from her visit, our correspondent found that gas-masks had been issued to her neighbors. It was not long before the air-raid official in charge of this street, noting the occupant of the house had returned, called and delivered a gas-mask.

Our correspondent further states that evacuation of school-children from London was already under way. Billeting officers had canvassed the homes in towns outside the danger zone, and the writer had been listed to accommodate four youngsters from the metropolitan area.

In Canada, when news of peace brightened the sombre scene, relief and gratitude were heard in every utterance. But at this great distance it is difficult to realize the heavy weight that was lifted from the hearts of everyday folks across the Atlantic.

Government Regulation of Industry

The extent to which the Government is interfering in the operation of legitimate business is causing concern to all thinking persons.

We are constantly criticizing the way industry is regulated in Germany and other foreign countries and do not realize that it is fast becoming just as bad here in Quebec.

No owner of any business, large or small, can conduct his affairs in an efficient or economical manner, because he has to do everything in accordance with the whims of political lawmakers who know nothing about the intricacies or troubles of his business and care less.

Unless Mr. Businessman is constantly on his guard, he will commit some terrible crime unknowingly and make himself subject to severe penalties.

It is impossible to keep track of the multitudinous laws, regulations, orders-in-council, labor agreements, etc., which are being passed with reckless abandon with no thought as to their consequences; and as a result industry as a whole is being stifled.

Propaganda Censors the Truth

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. . . This is Hyperbole Fabricate taking you around the world on the 'news express', from which you will learn hot news, exciting inventions, mendacious canards commented and interpreted to confuse you, deceive you and prove to you that black is really white. . ."

"The ominous war clouds which hung over Europe are still as threatening as before Mr. Chamberlain was so indiscreet as to defy both tradition and conventions by flying to Munich. It is necessary that those dark clouds keep shading the horizon so that the Robber Barons of armament manufacture can gorge their money-bags to compensate for the feast denied them by Mr. Chamberlain's rash rescue of democracy from the shambles which had been planned. The truth is now so hard to recognize that I am retained at a high salary to peddle it over the air so that its dramatization will thrill you to your fingertips."

"England has sold Czechoslovakia down the river so far that no self-respecting Canadian can ever hold up his dismembered body and say with pride 'I fought for the freedom of small nationalities!' The glory of war has been denied this generation and if further concessions are granted it is possible that we may not be given the opportunity of profiting on the needs of your widows and orphans or to traffic on the blood of our heroes."

"In order to sow the seeds of discord and help in the dismembering of the British Empire, you must heed the demagogues who are spouting around the country that Canada will not fight unless the enemy can follow you right into the bush. After all, England is only your mother country — and who wants to fight for their mother anyway! It's up to her to fight for you, and you will make the armaments and planes which she so badly needs."

"From Palestine comes word that another Jew has been shot because he wanted the homeland of the Arabs. This broadcast has been made possible because the president of this broadcasting company is a Jew. In fact, all the big broadcasting companies are presided over by Jews, and they control the news which you hear over your radio."

"Mr. Hitler has the temerity to banish the Jews from Germany; because of your short memory, you must be in sympathy with the Jews, who are thus deprived of their vampirage on the life-blood of the nation. You should by now have forgotten that in January, 1934, when the Cologne Chamber of Commerce passed a resolution calling for the elimination of Jews from business, Mr. Hitler's government passed a law forbidding the molesting of any Jews lawfully engaged in business. That was February 7, 1934. In return, the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations endorsed a boycott against all goods made in Germany, and Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, wanted the Atlantic Ocean for a ring in which to fight Hitler for the championship of publicity. In March, 1934, Macy, Gimbel Brothers, and the Woolworth Stores announced their boycotts of all German goods. Wanamaker announced it had not bought a German-made article since 1933. In May, 1934, J. Tenerbaum, chairman of the boycott committee of the Jewish Congress, urged 10,000 college students to refrain from buying German books of all kinds. Those same Jews are now squealing because Hitler hits back. The poor Jews in Germany are paying the price for the mouthings of their subversive superiors, both here and in Germany. Germany is now planning to take Africa, and if some strong man does not appear to take command, the poor natives whom we took from Germany after the last war will be sold under Hun rule again. . ."

necessary had been supplied by previous commissions, and he reiterated his reasons for opposing the project. These were in the main the high and uncertain cost of the canal construction with the expense of deepening harbors along the route, the increased competition to the railways, which would result from the deepening of the waterway, and above all the power situation. There was too much electric power already in the hands of the Ontario Government and it would be many years before Ontario would have any use for the new St. Lawrence power. Mr. Duplessis also said that Quebec had all the power it needed with a reserve of millions in the province. Mr. Duplessis questioned the right of the Dominion to make a treaty as Privy Council decisions had affirmed that the bed of rivers belonged to the provinces through which the rivers flow. The jurisdiction of the Dominion was solely over navigation.

TRADE TREATY WITH THE UNITED STATES

It was believed here that the trade pact with the United States would be signed on or before Armistice Day. It looks now as if there might be a further delay. This is due, not to difficulties facing the Ontario treaty, but to the snags still to be overcome in the settlement of the collateral treaty between the United States and Great Britain. The two pacts are closely related. It has been expected that Canada would receive certain concessions in the American market as compensation for favors granted American products in the British market. It seems evident from reports that the British Government has not so far signified its agreement to some major concessions asked by the United States. With its hands so full in recent weeks with the crisis in Europe, the British Government has doubtless had little time to give the trade treaty the consideration it requires. It is believed, however, that word will soon be received in Washington on the British attitude towards the concessions asked. If no agreement is reached between Great Britain and the United States, the Canadian treaty will probably have to be amended in some of its clauses.

AIR DEFENCE

The air force of Canada is being organized into three administrative districts, one with headquarters at Vancouver, already established, another at Toronto and a third at Halifax. The Pacific command includes all units in British Columbia and Alberta. The Eastern command, with headquarters at Halifax, will cover the Maritime Provinces and part of Quebec. In the Toronto sphere will be Camp Borden and Trenton schools. The Toronto command will be responsible for the training of those entering the air service, but will not control service training of units under the Eastern or Western commands. The decentralization of responsibility for training and all air force matters concerned with defence of the coasts is said to "meet a very definite need with the enlargement of the force."

It is believed that, with the lessons of the crisis in Europe indelibly imprinted on the minds of Canadians, a strong demand for a substantial expansion of the air force will be heard in Parliament next session.

The inquiry into a contract for the manufacture of Bren light machine guns continues to be the centre of considerable interest in the Capital. Both the Deputy Minister and the Minister of National Defence have given evidence before the Commission. The probe has been going on from five to six weeks and gives no sign of being near an end.

SIR FRANCIS AND LADY FLOOD

Having retired from the post of High Commissioner in Canada for the United Kingdom, Sir Francis Flood is shown as he sailed from Quebec aboard the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Britain, with Lady Flood. Sir Francis has left the Civil Service to take the Chairmanship of a commission on land tenure in Bengal, India.

Hollywood's Own Sun

Sunlight is usually either too strong or not strong enough for perfect outdoor photography. It must be just right for scenes of fast action Westerns, for instance. If it is too bright there are too many lights and shadows. If it is too dull, the scene has a washed-out appearance and has no depth. A cameraman taking close shots, when the sun is bright, may resort to such a device as putting a net roof over the players in order to diffuse the light. Then he throws reflected sunlight on them by means of gold or silver-surfaced reflectors.

For long shots, riding scenes and landscapes, a strong sun is necessary so that the camera shutter can be speeded up to prevent blurring of the images. If the day suddenly goes dull, booster lights are used. With the aid of a 500 horse-power generator, regular studio lights are hooked up in such an emergency, playing their illumination over the important parts of the action.

One thing about nudists, you can't pin anything on them.

Found Dead Near Morin Hts.

Hanging in one of the rooms of his summer home at Lake Louis, one and a half miles from Morin Heights, the body of Jack Kerslake, Montreal, was found Saturday noon by Inspector Lauzon of the Provincial Police.

The body was identified a short time later by the victim's wife and brother-in-law and was taken to Montreal after Coroner J. G. Latour, M.D., of St. Jerome, had disposed of the case with a verdict of suicide.

On Saturday morning Mrs. Kerslake had informed Provincial Police officials in Montreal that her husband had been missing from home for three days, and that she had reason to believe he had gone to his summer home at Lake Louis. Orders were given to Inspector Lauzon, of the St. Jerome sub-station, to investigate. Kerslake had been dead some time when he was found.

Mrs. Kerslake stated that he had been despondent for some time, having lost his position.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWN — In loving memory of my father, Alex G. Brown, who died October 27, 1937.

A loving memory stronger grows,
As weeks and months go by,
And Hope and Faith assure us
Of a meeting in the Sky.

His loving daughter, Edith W. Brown.

ROGERS — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Samuel T. Rogers, who passed away Oct. 24, 1936.

A silent thought, a secret tear
Keeps her memory ever dear.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.
— Ever remembered by her husband and family.

Grenville Couple Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Grenville — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dodd, of Grenville, will observe their fiftieth anniversary on Saturday of this week. They were married on Oct. 29, 1888. Mr. Dodd was born Jan. 29th, 1864, and Mrs. Dodd was born Aug. 16th, in 1866. The couple have two daughters, Mrs. Earl McIntyre and Mrs. Corl Gauley; one son, Wesley Dodd, and eighteen grandchildren.

Late Mrs. Alex C. McPhee

Cowansville, Oct. 10.—Very largely attended, the funeral of Mrs. Alex C. McPhee was held here this morning, service being conducted at the residence of Rev. Dr. S. Wesley Boyd, of Emmanuel United Church. The cortege left for Lachute, where interment was made.

Born at Lachute in 1875, the deceased lady was formerly Janet Helen Rodger, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rodger, of East Settlement. She is survived by her husband and seven daughters: Elsie, Mrs. Geo. Cameron, of Montreal; Hazel, Mrs. A. Reid, of Valleyfield; Gladys, Mrs. Wells Laraway, of Sutton; Helene, Mrs. Harold Evans, of Montreal; Doris, Mrs. J. B. Masters, of Cowansville; Miss Jean McPhee, of Montreal; Miss Allison McPhee, of Cowansville. There remain also her brother, William Rodger, of Lachute Road, and three sisters, Mrs. W. H. Gordon and Mrs. William Scott, Lachute, and Mrs. John Black, of East Settlement.

The pall-bearers were G. Cameron, A. Reid, Wells Laraway, Harold Evans, J. B. Masters, sons-in-law of the deceased, and Mr. John McClure, of Cowansville. At Lachute, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiated.

Resolutions and Petitions Against Repeal of Prohibition

WRITER NOTES STRONG STAND FOR TEMPERANCE IN MORIN HEIGHTS

(CORRESPONDENCE)

October 26th, 1938.

Editor, The Watchman:

Dear Sir — It is not my custom to write and take valuable space in newspapers, but I request this privilege from you that I may present the opinion of a large number of people in the district of Morin Heights. I write, not from any bitterness, but only with a desire to bring into light one side of the controversy over the value or otherwise of local liquor licenses.

From a petition printed recently, and from another news item in the last issue of The Watchman in which mention was made of "the blessings" to be derived from the "institution" of a local liquor traffic, it is inferred that residents are overwhelmingly waiting for the legal sale of beer and wine. In the early part of the summer, a resolution was forwarded from the Women's Institute of Morin Heights asking the Council to make no change in the Prohibition By-Law. Last June the Official Board of the Morin Heights United Church sent a resolution to the Council asking for the maintenance of the Prohibition By-Law. A petition that concluded by asking "the Council of the municipality to maintain in full force the existing by-law which prohibits the sale of intoxicating beverages within this constituency" was signed by ninety persons, 83% of whom are electors. Many others gave this petition their warmest support without signing.

We cannot, with clear conscience,

Social and Personal

Mr. Owen Todd left last night to visit his brother, Mr. Ewen Todd, in Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Spence, of Montreal, visited Mr. and Mrs. Roy Elliott last week-end.

Miss Edith Morrison, of Beauchene, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. A. MacGibbon, and Mr. MacGibbon.

Miss Violet Alvarez, secretary of the Overseas Education League in Montreal, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Y. Deacon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brisebois and a party of friends from Pointe-aux-Trembles, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carpenter.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Toy and daughter, Elizabeth, of Lowell, Mass., visited Mr. and Mrs. D. Stalker recently.

Messrs. Sherwood Benn and Bruce Yarrow, of Belleville, Ont., were guests of Messrs. Ernest Lortie and Eugene Hotte on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hume, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Wade, and Mr. H. Cherry, of Russell, Ont., were in town attending the Argenteuil plowing match on Thursday and were guests of Mrs. J. P. MacKimmie.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute, held a successful birthday party and afternoon tea and sale on Friday last. The proceeds amounted to approximately $58.

encourage that which will make it easier for a brother or sister to stumble. We all stumble readily enough without endorsing it as a community "institution." Those who have business interests at heart will only have to be reminded of the opinions of world leaders in the business field to know what is best for Morin as a tourist resort. Says Roger Babson, "For every dollar of whiskey revenue received, we have lost $20 in the loss of legitimate trade." Again, from Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, "If we could abolish the liquor traffic, and I were responsible for raising the revenue of the country, I should view the prospect with the most complete complacency."

The people of Morin Heights are only asked to keep the community clear of this traffic. By so doing, the efforts of the newly formed Municipal Association to make Morin a sking and tourist resort of unique attraction will be greatly strengthened and forwarded. These great opportunities can be made into capital if they are not short-circuited by a liquor license.

Thanking you, Sir, for your indulgence,

Yours truly,
(Rev.) David R. Andrews,
The United Church of Canada.

Brownsburg United Church

Continuing the missionary spirit from last Sunday when the minister, Rev. S. J. Pike, exchanged pulpits with Rev. W. A. Dempsey, of Cushing, for the Missionary and Maintenance service — the service next Sunday morning will be given over to the Women's Missionary Society of the church. Mrs. (Rev.) J. A. Mowatt, of St. Andrews East, returned missionary from China, will be the speaker. It is the annual service of the Missionary Auxiliary, in which the congregation participates. The autumn Thank-offering will be taken.

A party representing the Men's League, went to Montreal last week-end to attend the convention of the Brotherhood Federation held in St. James United Church.

Anniversary Services in Shawbridge-Morin United

Anniversary Sunday will be observed in the Shawbridge-Morin Heights charge of the United Church next Sunday, October 30th. The service in Morin Heights at 8 o'clock will observe the passing of the 84th milestone of continual weekly worship by that congregation. It was not until 1866 that the first building was erected, during the ministry of the Rev. Erastus Currie. Since that time four buildings have been occupied. The present structure was dedicated seven years ago.

The Shawbridge congregation will meet at the usual hour of 11 o'clock. There the 110th anniversary will be marked. Records are not available to tell the age of the building, but it is known to be over 80 years old. A memorial communion table will be received during the service.

The Knox congregation in Cote St. Gabriel, worshipping at 2.30 o'clock, will give thanks for its 49 years of continued service in the present building. This church has had considerable repairs done to it this past summer, and has been re-painted outside.

The anniversary preacher will be the Rev. J. M. Tanner, D.D., of Lancaster, Ont. Dr. Tanner had visited these congregations before, and will be given a warm welcome by his many friends. All these and others are cordially invited to share in these thanksgiving services and hear the message of Dr. Tanner. The present minister of this pastoral charge is the Rev. David R. Anderson.

Fall Thank-Offering Meeting at Lachute United Church

An interested audience filled the Lachute United Church for the recent W.M.S. Thank-offering meeting.

The President, Mrs. F. MacGibbon, occupied the chair. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. R. Bradford and Mrs. J. A. MacGibbon. A solo was rendered by Mrs. R. A. Giles and a talk was given on Miss Pearl Chiang, who left recently for England en route to China. The speaker, Miss Brand, gave a forceful address on her work in the Church of All Nations in Montreal. The C.G.I.T. girls and the Mission Band were in attendance, and at the close tea was served in the church hall.

W.M.S. Gathering, St. Eustache

A very pleasant afternoon was spent on Wednesday by about 28 members of the W.M.S. of Lachute United, when upon invitation they met at the home of Miss Clara Miller at St. Eustache to join with the group there. They were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Martineau, and devotional services were led by Mrs. Jas. Hamilton, of Lachute. The president then introduced Miss B. Graham, of the Italian Mission, Montreal, who gave a vivid description of her work, both in the city and at the McCauley Camp, stimulating listeners to further efforts among those less fortunate. Tea was served and a happy reunion spent among old friends.

A.Y.P.A. Rally Successful Event at Grenville, Que.

Grenville — The annual fall Rally of the A.Y.P.A. branches of the Diocese of St. Andrews was held in the Masonic Hall here last Friday. Nearly a hundred young people gathered for the occasion, including members from St. Améde, Calumet, Grenville, and Lachute. The Young People's Club, of Hawkesbury, were guests of the Rally and there were a few visitors from other places. The president of the Local Council, Mr. Milton Cochrane, was in the chair, and the session was opened with a short address by the chaplain, the Rev. Cyril Earle, of Montebello. Short programs were put on by the various branches. Calumet presented a series of charades, St. Améde and Hawkesbury each gave a mixed program of musical items, songs and recitations. Lachute, being recently re-organized, did not have a prepared program but two of the members contributed individually. The entire entertainment was greatly enjoyed.

The programs were followed by dancing and it was interesting to note how geographical distances were forgotten, more often than not partners being members of different branches. The music was provided by Mrs. Russell Owens and Mr. Richard Dodd, both of Grenville, assisted by two of the members from St. Améde. Before the evening conclusion of the function the Rev. W. LeCras proposed a vote of thanks to the Masons for allowing the use of their hall gratis, and to Mrs. Owens and Mr. Dodd for their music. This was enthusiastically carried.

The young people of this rural Diocese, by their constructive leadership at the Diocesan Council at Arundel, and by their successful local rallies, as well as their activities in their own parishes, are demonstrating that they are just as wide awake and enthusiastic as their city cousins.

Presbyterian Y.P.S. Heard Interesting Travel Talk

The Presbyterian Y.P.S. were treated to an interesting travelogue last evening by Messrs. Harold Deacon and Hugh Brennan, who gave an entertaining description of their recent trip to Europe. Members of a schoolboy party, they proved to be able travellers and keen observers.

The business meeting preceding this talk consisted mainly of a resolution authorizing the annual payment of $5 to the Thanksgiving Offering Building Fund, and a resolution authorizing payment of $10 toward the organ installation expenses. The society also decided to re-enter the Carpet Bowling League, and appointed a two-man committee of C. McPaul and R. Underhill to represent the club at League meetings.

At next week's meeting, this society is playing host to a delegation from Montreal, who will give an account of the recent conference in Toronto, and as the meeting is also a social night, all members are asked to make a special effort to attend.

Riding the Rope

A day's journey in Zayul Province Tibet, may involve the crossing of one or more rope bridges; for glacier-fall floods would carry off wooden bridges. The rope bridges are made of plaited bamboo or cane; the ropes are often set in pairs, one sloping each way across the river, over which the traveler rockets at tremendous speed. In some places there is only one rope slung horizontally across the river; then the traveler either crawls upon it sloth-fashion, or, suspended by leather thongs to a wooden slider, is hauled by a guide rope.

ALDERMEN VISIT FAMILIES FROM ST. JEROME SETTLED IN ABITIBI DISTRICT

Five St. Jerome aldermen left last Friday for the Abitibi district to see for themselves the progress of the St. Jerome families who have settled in the north in the past two years, and at the same time to get first hand information on the scene for future families who might want to colonize the area.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

SCOUTS TOUR IN A TRUCK BOUGHT WITH FIREWORKS

Boy Scout visitors in Vancouver this summer included 24 enterprising boys from Santa Ana, California, on a sightseeing tour in a $1,400 truck. They had acquired the truck with money raised by selling fireworks. Their equipment included 13 small hike tents, with which they made an attractive camp in South Memorial Park.

THE FLAG IS NO LONGER UPSIDE DOWN

A certain eastern Boy Scout was given the duty of raising the Union Jack on the city hall for special occasions. There was a story behind the arrangement. For a certain holiday the city hall janitor ran up the flag, as was his wont. Presently, some one called him on the 'phone to tell him the flag was upside down. "Oh, is it?" he replied in surprise. Someone called the city clerk with the same information. "Oh, is it?" he returned. "I can't see any difference." He discovered there was a difference, and so it was decided to let the Scouts do it, "and then it will always be done properly."

HUMAN FENCES AND UMBRELLA HOLDERS

A number of unanticipated calls were made on the services of the Boy Scouts during the recent Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. When 200 school children unexpectedly arrived from Port Huron, Michigan, the Scouts were asked to show them about the grounds in small parties. On Children's Day an anxious airplane exhibitor sent an emergency call for Scouts to form a human fence, to protect his plane from a throng of crowded children. The most unusual call came when a downpour of rain interrupted a Bathing Beauty contest, and the Scouts were asked to supply umbrella holders for each of the fair contestants.

BUTTER IS BETTER FOR CHILDREN

The question has come in as to why my recipes usually call for butter and seldom for shortening. There are both personal and general reasons for it. The personal reason is because one member of the family cannot digest some forms of vegetable shortening as it invariably causes a digestive disturbance. There are some people who are allergic to cotton-seed oil. As ragweed causes hay fever in some people, so do other substances affect other people and they are said to be allergic to them. One friend was miserable for years until a modern doctor found that he was allergic to cotton-seed oils, and just as soon as he quit using a salad dressing made with an oil of this type, he regained his health. Plenty of people can use them with no ill effects, just as plenty of people are not affected by ragweed. There are some types of vegetable shortenings that melt at a temperature higher than body heat. These will stay in the stomach sometimes for days and are apt to cause trouble. Where there are children to feed, I always advise using butter, if possible, because of the valuable minerals and vitamins that butter contains. Butter at the present moment is 31 cents a pound, and a vegetable shortening is 27 cents. The average cake takes a half-cup of butter or shortening. So it would cost about 8 cents to use butter and about 6 1/2 cents to use shortening. I consider the extra cost of 1 1/2 cents in using the butter worth the money because of the extra vitamins and minerals — to say nothing of the improved flavor. If I am going to use a shortening, other than butter, I use lard, as the animal fat is more easily digested by my family. I am not condemning vegetable fats but I do prefer butter for children.

A STRETCHY MATERIAL

There are so many lovely new materials these days and they vary so that it is hard to know what is the best treatment for them as to laundering and cleaning. Even the hanging of them has its problems as some of them are stretchy. One of my pet dresses hung on a hanger all summer and when I put it on this fall, it had stretched until it was almost down to my heels and I felt like a trollop. I took it to the cleaners to be re-blocked and they told me not to hang stretchy materials from the shoulders, but to put a fold of tissue-paper over a hanger and to lay the dress over the hanger at the waist. This distributes the weight and it is not so apt to stretch.

LAMB CHOPS WITH ORANGES

Trim the fat from loin lamb chops and dip in melted butter. Broil chops for 8 minutes about three inches from the flame. Turn, season with salt and pepper, and place a slice of a peeled orange on each chop and broil for ten minutes longer. Dust with paprika before serving.

TRY

Try spiced gooseberries with hot chicken.

Try cream cheese and chopped marachino cherries, moistened with some of the cherry juice, as a sandwich filling.

Try serving orange marmalade with chocolate ice cream.

GINGER ICE CREAM

1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons ginger syrup, 1/2 teaspoon gelatine, dash of salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup whipping cream, 1/2 cup preserved ginger chopped.

Mix gelatine with 1/4 cup of the milk. Scald the remaining 3/4 cup and add sugar. Stir in the gelatine and stir until dissolved. Cool and add vanilla, lemon juice, syrup off the ginger and salt. Pour into freezing tray and freeze. Break the mixture with a spoon and beat with a rotary beater until smooth. Add the cream whipped just until it will hold its shape but not until stiff. Fold this into the frozen mixture, add the chopped ginger and freeze.

CHEESE CAKES

1/2 lb. cream cheese, 1/2 lb. butter, 2 cups flour.
Cream the butter and cheese together and rub in the flour as for pastry. Press half these crumbs into a buttered pan, pressing down firmly. Cover with apply jelly. Add 1 cup of flour to the remaining crumbs and sprinkle these over the jelly. Bake in a hot oven of 425 degrees and cut into strips when cool.

FIRST DRESS FROM MILK

Sixty-three quarts of cow's milk, made into wool at Milan, Italy, and sent to New York, made this smart Fall outfit, consisting of a brown worsted two-piece dress suit trimmed with rust and a darker brown wool coat. Italy is turning out daily ten tons of wool made from cow's milk in Milan, and has licensed factories in several other European countries, including England.

Tested Recipe

By Frances Lee Barton

When the chill, shivery days come, how pleasant for the tired home-comers to be greeted by the welcoming savory aroma of hot comforting stew. For when a stew is well and carefully made, it's a right royal winter dish. And when feathery light dumplings are in the stew this good old-fashioned dish becomes something to dream about. But the dumplings must be as light as light can be!

Feather-light Dumplings

1 cup sifted flour; 1 1/4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon melted butter; 1/2 cup milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Add butter to milk; add to flour and stir carefully until all flour is dampened and soft dough is formed. Drop from teaspoon on boiling stew; cover very tightly and cook, without removing cover, 5 to 7 minutes, according to size of dumplings. Serves 6 to 8.

Hair Upswing Here to Stay, Even in Bobs

Albert de Paris, international hair stylist, has predicted that the hair upswing will remain in vogue for two years, even though it may be "modified in a hundred ways."

After two years, he said, women will wear short bobs — "hair cut short in back but still going up."

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

REPORT OF W.I. BRANCH MEETINGS IN ARGENTEUIL

Brownburg Branch gathered at Mrs. W. Fletcher's summer camp at Lake Louisa and enjoyed a chicken pie supper. In the absence of Mrs. A. Campbell, Mrs. H. Graham read excerpts from different copies of "Home and Country" on Legislation. Mrs. H. Graham, vice-president, is acting in place of Mrs. Martin, the president, who, we are pleased to report, is recovering satisfactorily from an operation.

Frontier Branch has submitted no report.

Jerusalem-Bethany donated bedding to a needy person, and had as their roll call "My Favorite Candy Recipe." A demonstration on various ways of making rugs was given by Mrs. R. Robinson, as a Home Economics feature, under the convenue-ship of Mrs. G. Walker.

Lakefield W.I. served dinner at the Farmers' Club plowing match and renewed supplies in the district school's first aid kit. The members also planned to donate prizes in the two local schools.

Pioneer had, as an Agriculture feature, a discussion on the executive meeting concerning Home Beautification, and in line with the Home Economics department, heard report of the convenor on handicrafts at the coming exhibition, also planning a handicrafts display for their November meeting. A salad contest was held and prizes given. Mrs. L. Morris, county president, acted as one of the judges, and also gave an interesting talk on all branches of the work. Mrs. Arnold Parker and Miss E. Morrison assisted in judging the 13 entries. Their roll call was the name of a Cabinet Minister. Current Events on Legislation were read by Mrs. Cooke, and an interesting paper on "How Laws Are Made" was read by Mrs. Parker.

Upper Lachute-East End, as an Immigration topic, heard an interesting paper on "Ways and Habits of People in Syria." Their roll call was the name of "an immigrant who became a good citizen." Thirteen members and five guests were present. This Branch also held an enjoyable dance and disposed of a quilt, which added considerably to their funds.

Morin Heights enjoyed an address by the Anglican minister on Education, its value physically and morally, as well as financially. The members entered a spelling bee contest against Morin Heights High School, the W.I. ladies proving the winners. The branch was visited by the county president, who spoke on Home Beautification.

HOW IT STARTED

A Sultan at odds with his harem Thought of a way he could scare 'em; He caught a live mouse Which he freed in the house. Thus starting the first harum-scarum.

"I've finished with that girl."
"Why?"
"She asked me if I danced."
"What's so insulting about that?"
"I was dancing with her when she asked me."

PARENTAL ATTITUDE AT FAULT, CHILD EDUCATION

SEARCH AND REASONING MORE IMPORTANT THAN MEMORY AND FACTS

LIFE IS NOT AN EXAMINATION

There is such general dissatisfaction with our system of education that a change for the better must come. One of the greatest factors in the delaying of improvements is the attitude of parents. They are so accustomed to the emphasis of memory, and the examinations, that they cannot understand the necessity for change. Teachers, home and school associations, and educationists, generally, should put forth great efforts to show parents why we need different methods and what these new ideas are. School work should be a joy, but it is usually only a burden. We take our children and spend most of the time training their memories so that they can learn facts in order to put them on an examination paper and pass well. Instead of this awful emphasis on facts, they should be taught to reason and to search for things on their own account. They should have an opportunity to learn the joys of reading instead of having their English lessons consist of mutilating and pulling to pieces good literature, until all pleasure is taken away from that particular section for the rest of their lives. How many good books, or selections from them, that you studied at school, do you really enjoy? We should learn to live properly and joyously. School is the proper place to learn, but how few teachers can show the way. It is not entirely the fault of the teachers. The red tape which binds them prevents even the best from doing much, and the desire for parents to have little Willie pass well is equally to blame. Life is not an examination, yet how little does our school system train us for living a full life. — Jessie Allen Brown.

W.I. HELPS GIRLS FIND SUITABLE EMPLOYMENT

Last year, financed by the Provincial and Dominion Government, under the expert direction of Miss Bess McDermid, Superintendent — Ontario Women's Institutes assumed the responsibility of planning and administering extensive short courses to aid rural young women find part-time employment. Following a survey of "what was most needed," four courses — "Catering for Tourists," "Marketing Home Baked Foods," "Rugmaking," and "Simple Dressmaking" — were held in 25 centres. With the exception of rugmaking, each of the courses was held five days a week for four weeks. Enrolment showed the classes were attended by 622 — 62 per cent coming from farm homes.

From the food courses, three students have definite plans to sell home-baked foods on farmers' markets, six to establish roadside stands and two to take in summer boarders. Six have plans for tea rooms or tourists' homes and nine have found employment in tourist homes already established. At least 39 expect to use their courses to improve their economic situations.

As a result of the work in clothing, 12 students have definite plans to sew for others — one girl hoping to earn enough money from her sewing to attend art school. All will be able to do most of their own sewing and that of their families.

In rugmaking most enrolled with the idea of improving their own homes but the course has awakened interest in the possibilities of financial returns from such work.

Lakefield Players Take Award in Dramatic Festival Contest

Playing to a large audience, members of the Argenteuil Dramatic Society staged their third Annual Festival in Lachute Auditorium on Tuesday evening and honors were accorded to the Lakefield players, who again won the trophy, while the second cup was awarded to the St. Andrews group. Mayor Dr. A. Rodrigue gave the official welcome and ex-Mayor Dr. J. H. Mason introduced the participants. Space prohibits description of the plays for they were quite varied in character, and all were very well supported. Mr. W. W. Ahern, of the Montreal Herald, acting as adjudicator, admitted he had a most difficult task in his selection of the winners.

The casts were as follows:—

Brownsburg Dramatic Society ("Not Quite Such a Goose") — Mrs. Clarence Hardie, Mr. Joseph Suthren, Miss Eira Roberts, Mr. Kenneth Bailey, Miss Lillian White.

St. Andrews Players ("The Lean Years") — Ernest Rodger, Mrs. J. Bradley, Miss Beatrice Hugman, Dawson Burwash, Howard Lalande, Mrs. C. Brownlee.

Lakefield Players ("Her Money's Worth") — Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring, Mrs. Edgar Morrow, Mr. G. F. W. Kuhring, Mr. Edgar Morrow.

Brownsburg Women's Institute ("Mrs. Ryan's Boarders") — Mrs. Herbert Graham, Miss Fnyllis McAdam, Mrs. Lemuel Wilson, Mrs. Earl Smillie, Mrs. John Searly, Mrs. Wyman McGibbon, Mrs. William Fletcher, Miss Winnie White.

Veterans' Church Parade To Be Annual Observance

War veterans of the County of Argenteuil have decided to hold an annual church parade, the first of which will take place on Sunday morning, Nov. 6th, at the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute, when Rev. H. Cousens will give the address.

The two Legion branches, No. 70 of Lachute and No. 71 of Brownsburg, are uniting for this occasion. The annual services will be held alternately in Lachute and Brownsburg.

All veterans, whether members of local branches or not, are cordially invited to attend this first service in Lachute on Nov. 6th, and are requested to meet at the Auditorium at 10.30 a.m. Berets and medals will be worn.

Progress on New Post Office at St. Andrews East

St. Andrews — The cement foundation and steps of the new post office being completed, the bricklaying is going on apace and window frames have been set in place. With its completion another mark of modernity will have been acquired by this village. With two up-to-date garages and two fine cement bridges, also road improvements, much of the erstwhile rustic aspect has vanished; but the natural beauty of river, trees and gardens remain, a cherished heritage.

Appreciation for Aid to Dramatic Society Festival

(CORRESPONDENCE)

Lakefield, P. Que., Oct. 26, 1938.
Editor, Lachute Watchman:

Dear Sir — The third Annual Festival of the Argenteuil Dramatic Society attained even a greater success than its two predecessors. This was due in no small degree to the willing co-operation of several citizens and firms in Lachute. Mr. George Leggett came to our assistance to act as ticket clerk and brought with him a complete staff of doorkeepers. Ayers Limited granted us the use of rugs to cover the stage. The Bell Telephone Company loaned a telephone and Mr. J. W. Lefebvre let us have a sewing machine. The bulk of the remainder of the stage furnishings were lent by Mr. J. A. Lamarche. Mr. George Deacon gave us the use of a truck, to make the rounds to pick up the furniture and properties. Music was a feature this year and helped very much in bridging the gaps between the productions. We were fortunate to have so fine an artist as Mr. Leonard Lupien, of Brownsburg, at the keyboard.

In closing, may I convey the thanks of the whole organization to the above people and firms, to His Worship, Mayor Rodrigue, who opened the Festival, and to Dr. J. H. Mason, who made such a genial and effective master of ceremonies.
