Full Co-operation With Br. Empire Short of Conscription -- Says Ottawa

Parties Agree on Canada's Role in Possible Conflict Involving Britain

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, April 4th. — The Canadian Government is against conscription, the Prime Minister has told the House of Commons. Dr. Manion, leader of the National Conservative party, holds the same opinion. Parliament has been discussing that most important of all national questions, Canada's position in the event of war. Mr. King in his two-hour speech on foreign affairs said on the question of conscription: "The present Government believes that conscription of men for overseas service would not be a necessary or an effective step. Let me say that so long as this Government may remain in power no such measure will be enacted. We have full faith in the readiness of Canadian men and women to rally for the defence of their country and their liberties and to resist aggression by any country seeking to dominate the world by force." If Canada is faced by the necessity of making a decision on the momentous question of whether or not the country should participate in war, "the principle of responsible government which has been our guide and our goal for a century past demands that decision be made by the Parliament of Canada." It would be the duty of the Government to propose to Parliament the course which "in regard to particular issues it considers should be adopted and to stand or fall by the decision."

Mr. King was opposed to automatic commitments. He pointed out that there have been many critics who claimed that other Dominions have shown their willingness to pledge themselves unreservedly to aid Britain and that Canada had held aloof in the September crisis. Quoting from speeches by statesmen of other Dominions Mr. King showed that this was not the case. The Prime Minister was opposed to neutrality legislation. "Action of this kind would be aid and comfort to any country which might be inclined to aggressive action against the democratic peoples or against the United Kingdom specifically." Canada's decisions on the question of participation "will depend on the thoughts and feelings of the people."

In regard to the silence of the Government during the September crisis which has been criticised in some quarters, Mr. King said at that time the British Government was acting in a mediatory capacity and any belligerent statement would have created fatal suspicions that in spite of what the responsive mediator himself was saying, "The real intentions were somewhat different."

Dr. Manion agreed that the question of Parliament's participation in wars would be decided by Parliament. On the question of neutrality, Dr. Manion said that he knew of no considerable group in Canada that desired that Canada should not remain a part of the Empire. There was no doubt in his mind that "while we are part of the Empire, if Great Britain becomes engaged in war at any time, the enemies of Great Britain will consider themselves at war with Canada as well as with other parts of the Empire. Therefore, if Great Britain is at war, Canada is liable to attack, and so we are also at war, whether we are attacked or participate in the war, which participation, of course, must be decided by the Canadian Parliament." In relation to conscription, Dr. Manion said that in the last war the conscription of men to go to the front caused violent racial antagonisms, much disharmony, bitterness and misunderstanding. Furthermore, it was of no real value as far as the Empire was concerned. It brought the enrolment of about ten thousand men in an army of half a million who went overseas and therefore exercised "but a small effect upon the war." Dr. Manion suggested that a middle course was better. His suggestion was that there should be no conscription of Canadians to serve outside the borders of Canada; that "we should have full co-operation with the British Empire" short of this conscription. We should co-operate by means of voluntary units. The air was particularly mentioned as Canadians seemed to have a special aptitude for this branch of the service. At the end of the war, about forty per cent of the whole air force of the Empire consisted of Canadians. "We can also co-operate," said Dr. Manion, "by acting as a training ground for Great Britain and if desired for other parts of the Empire, by supplying munitions, food and so forth, and by fully protecting our own territorry." He concluded by saying that if we ever again have to participate in war, all must give their services on the same basis: "while some offer their lives others must not be permitted to enrich themselves through the tragedy of war."

Mr. Woodsworth said we should put a supertax on goods from Germany and we should refuse to send them materials of war. He thought that even at this late date Canada, small nation as she is, ought to take some steps to throw her influence for the establishment of something in the nature of the league of nations. "It seems to me," said Mr. Woodsworth, "that intelligence, idealism, co-operation, if you will, are greater in this world even as it is than the application of brute force, and what I would ask of my own nation is that more and more we should think not so much in terms of military defence but rather in terms of the promotion of justice." "Above all," he added, "let us place the higher values of humanity against the greed and the profit seeking which so frequently dominate our commercial life as well as our international relations."

Mr. King still held some optimism for the future. "Peace and security," he said, "for all will be attained as each country strives to add nothing to the dangerous flood of hate and hysteria, and seek to add something to the world's stock of understanding, confidence and goodwill."

Rush for Motor Licenses In Ontario Towns

In the four days ended with Saturday, no fewer than 1,624 motor license plates were issued at Brockville, Ont., in the last minute rush of motorists to obtain them before the time limit expired. There are now about 2,400 sets of plates in circulation in the district, and the usual annual distribution is about 5,000.

Provincial Police throughout Ontario received instructions from the Attorney General to launch prosecutions starting April 1 against all persons operating motor vehicles without new license plates and without drivers' permits. "The law will be strictly and aggressively enforced on and after April 1," the Attorney-General said in a circular letter.

Seasonal Matters Brought Up at Council Meeting

QUEBEC HEALTH DEPARTMENT GIVES WARNING ON WATER CONTAMINATION

The April meeting of Lachute Town Council was held last evening with Mayor W. S. MacKimmie presiding. There were also present Aldermen C. Durocher, K. McOuat, L. St. Jacques, O. Laurin, G. Muir, Z. Harbour, Jas. MacGibbon, L. Prevost and D. Pharand.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. C. Walker lodged complaint concerning dogs in the West End which were quarrelsome and a menace to public safety. The dog by-law was discussed and the question of muzzling the animals, but Mr. Walker was assured of protection for his and other children, by the council having the constable notify owners of said dogs that they must be kept off the streets.

Two applications for renewal of pool room licenses were received, from Messrs. Lafortune and Léonard. Lafortune's was immediately granted, but Léonard's right of recommend was challenged by some members of council as to whether it was a pool room of a "gambling joint" license that was required. There was a lively discussion, with many insinuations of children being allowed use of the tables contrary to law, and of gambling. A motion by Ald. Prevost that the license be granted brought an amendment from Ald. McOuat that the recommendation be held over for further consideration. The amendment was carried by a vote of 5 to 4.

J. Viverais was awarded the contract for collection of garbage, at the rate of $15 weekly. The mayor reported notification from the Quebec Health Department that the town must take precautionary measures for the public safety by better purification of water supply. It is contended that the town has raised the dam, with consequent result of flooding larger area and thus allowing greater contamination. It is reported that the water is pure at the lake but contaminated in the flooded area. The council are studying the matter for remedial measures.

St. Jerome Considers Taxing Of Billboards in Town

Two notices of motion to tax billboards in St. Jerome and to amend the milk delivery system, were made at a recent council meeting.

The St. Jerome Council will study at next week's meeting the possible rate of tax on all billboards in the town limits, there being several erected advertising national products.

In the matter of milk distribution the council will seek to find a way whereby milk can be delivered to homes and restaurants regularly and under more hygienic conditions.

Easter Greetings

from The Watchman Publishers and Staff

"IS IT NOTHING TO YOU ?"

Stay ye your haste and look to Calvary's hill !
Gaze at the Cross that points toward the sky !
Forget the rush of life; consider if you will
"Is it nothing, to you who now pass by ?"

Is it so long ago the Saviour died
That ye forget His words, "I am The Way ?"
He does not fail; His arms are opened wide;
Will ye not harken to His call today ?

In midst of rush and turmoil of our life
When thirst for pleasure stunts "the better part"
While hates increase, our world is torn in strife;
We look on grief and many a broken heart.

Will ye not pray that all our discord cease ?
Your loyalty the Master doth commend.
Look to the Christ ! He is our only Peace !
Look to the Cross ! 'tis here our troubles end !

Montreal. — Charles A. Hutchins.

Roadmaster Appointed

At the St. Jerusalem Parish Council meeting held in the Court House Monday afternoon, the following members were present — Mayor J. E. Walker, Councillors J. Clarke, S. Wilson, J. S. Pollock, E. W. Smith, F. Touchette and Secretary-Treasurer J. W. Gall.

Following adoption of the minutes of previous meeting, a number of bills were presented and payment ordered.

Mr. McRae was appointed as general roadmaster.

Youth Gets 2-Year Sentence In Reformatory, Setting Fire to Barn

"MAY THAT SUFFERING CRY RING IN YOUR EARS FOR YEARS TO COME"

JUDGE IS LENIENT TO YOUTH ON PLEA OF COUNSEL

In Police Court at Hawkesbury, presided over by Magistrate Labrosse, of Vankleek Hill, Roy Semple was sentenced to two years less one day definite, and one year indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory. Semple, 20-year-old West Hawkesbury youth, had pleaded guilty to arson.

Following his arrest about three weeks ago, he stated he had set fire to a large barn on one of his father's farms, occupied at the time by Alexander Clark. He did so, he stated, on instructions from his father, who told him he needed the insurance. The building was totally destroyed together with about 30 head of stock and farm equipment. The loss was placed at over $5,000. The father, Colin Semple, pleaded not guilty and elected trial before a judge and jury. Preliminary hearing in his case is scheduled to begin on April 17. He is being held in custody in the county jail at L'Orignal.

A strong plea for leniency was made for Roy Semple by Defence Council Woods.

"This young man," said Mr. Woods, "is approximately 20 years of age, and he does not look it, he has the mentality of a boy of 12 or 13. He did not realize the seriousness of his crime. He has very little education, having spent most of his life at farm work. There is no doubt he committed the crime because he was under the impression by so doing he was helping out his parent, who at the time seemed to be having some financial difficulties. He naturally deserves to be punished, but I would ask Your Honor not to send him to the penitentiary where he is most likely to come in contact with the wrong influences. I plead that leniency be shown him and that he be sent to a reformatory. In this way I am sure the ends of justice will be served just as well."

Crown Attorney C. W. A. Marion, of Rockland, in a short address stated he was not against a reformatory term. Arson, he said, was a very serious crime under the Criminal Code, and up to some years ago the maximum penalty was life imprisonment. This, however, has recently been reduced to fifteen years. He demanded an adequate penalty and asked that the full reformatory term be given.

After passing sentence Magistrate Labrosse, addressing the prisoner, said: "It was heart-rending to see what you did. To listen to those animals bawling while roasting alive, was awful. May that terrible, suffering cry ring in your ears for years to come."

Weather Risky News.. Wet Feet, Injured Dignity.. Poor Outlook for Glamor in Easter Parade

Conditions Bad for Sugar-Making Operations

Cambria — Farmers who are making syrup this season have met with laborious work in tapping the maples. It has been necessary to shovel roads, as the crust of snow made the bush impassable to horses.

Many of the fences in this section are still hidden, and mail boxes just clear the snow — although milder weather this week has thawed the surface appreciably. Road-breakers and mail carriers have had a difficult winter, and during the spring break-up it is expected several of the roads will be utterly impossible to travel on.

District Governor Pays Visit To Lions Club

FINE MEETING OF LOCAL GROUP WITH DELEGATION FROM MONTREAL

A visit from District Governor J. J. Brown, of Bowmanville, Ont., Deputy District Governor Horace Lapierre, of Buckingham, Que., and fourteen members from Montreal, attracted almost a full membership at the Lions Club meeting held in Desjardins Hotel last Thursday evening.

The meeting convened late, due to tardy arrival of the bus from Montreal which was held up between St. Hermas and Lachute by snowdrifts, but a royal welcome was accorded the visitors on their arrival.

Visitors from the Montreal Lions Club included: Dave Amory, President; C. A. Wylie, Secretary; A. E. Cadman, W. H. McLaughlin, Hal. Edwards, Jack Emo, Alex Grigg, Charlie Shearer, Bob Birch, L. T. Hays, Charlie Driscoll, Barney Mulroy and Ernie Parker.

One of the activities of the Lions Club in Lachute is their sponsoring of the Boys' Band, and the youthful members of this group were present to furnish several selections with their instruments.

Lion Phil Roy led the singing, and District Governor Brown, in a brief address, gave the members his version of true Lionism and its place in modern society. Its true vocation is to serve other people by giving all we can for what we get — instead of attempting to get all we can for what we give. In rendering service our own lives are lifted to higher standards. Lionism inspires the noblest endeavors and furnishes a field in which to labor, so that man's mission is to leave a richer heritage for posterity.

Mr. Brown's address will be reproduced in next issue.

New Post Office Open for Business at St. Andrews

St. Andrews news for this issue of The Watchman was mailed at the new village post office, which was opened for business on April 3. Looking very spick and span with shining brass, gleaming varnish, and up-to-date electric clocks, it is comfortably heated by coal furnace in the basement. The door is situated on Main Street, but the mail bags are delivered and received through a side window. A new landmark — and a new reference date, have been established. One may hear, ten years hence, some such remark as this: "1939 was a late spring — remember ! Folk crossed the river on ice to get their mail after the new post office was opened."

Condemns the Montreal Terminal Scheme

C. W. Peterson, addressing the Senate Committee, condemned the proposal to spend $12,600,000 on the C.N.R. Montreal terminal, which, he said, "presumably had been agreed upon by both the Government and its railway management."

He added that it was "clearly a deliberate violation of the whole principle of friendly co-operation, and definitely stamps this plausible appeal for cohesive effort as insincere. It bears rather all the earmarks of an attempt to block completely a rational solution of our railway problem."

From March to April, A Precarious Season in Town and Country

March went out with a gusto, and even the April "showers" last week-end were snowflurries — which added to the general discomforts of the season and of travelling conditions underfoot. Spring is definitely in the air (at the time of going to press) but this gives no surety whatever of a sunny Easter week-end; there is no safety in news comment on the weather, for the elements change so rapidly conditions may be entirely different when the newspaper is delivered and read.

From the meteorological bureau at St. Jerome, it is stated that this area received 19 inches of snow during March. The coldest day of the month was March 8th, when the highest thermometer reading was 13 below, and the lowest 19 below.

CONDITION OF STREETS

The condition of streets and sidewalks in town has reduced locomotion to a minimum. Slush on the walks and ruts on the thoroughfares are a discouragement to pedestrians and motorists, so that storekeepers, churches and theatres have suffered a noticeable loss of patronage.

It has been no uncommon sight to behold automobiles trapped in the ruts or bogged in the slush, even on the Main Street of town. Yesterday conditions were slightly better. The town had despatched men and machinery to level the ruts at the post office corner and other stretches. On the eastern portion of Main Street there were no U-turns, or turns of any description, for motorists desiring to change their course. Delivery trucks have had extreme difficulty in navigating, all week.

Traffic has been restored on the provincial highways both east and west. The bus service, which was interrupted for a time, was resumed on Tuesday.

Auto Carrier Trucks Are Barred from Highways In Quebec

SAVING IN TRANSPORT NOT PASSED ON TO BUYER, IS OPINION

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION DISMISSES APPLICATION OF TRUCKING FIRMS

Application for permission to operate auto carriers on highways of this province has been dismissed by judgment of the Quebec Public Service Commission.

Among reasons cited in the judgment are: Proposed equipment would be of a length greater than that allowed by law; recommendation was made in the report of the Chevrier Commission "that they be forbidden the use of the highways as constituting a danger to traffic"; lakeshore municipalities opposed passage of such carriers on the ground that the road is already overloaded with large trucks; and that "it does not appear that there is any probability of the saving of from $4 to $7 per car being passed on by the dealers to the public."

Three separate applications to the commission were made by Ontario trucking concerns, the firms being MacCallum Transport Limited, The Russell Car Transport and Wilbert Charlton. Central argument was in the application of the MacCallum firm and judgments dismissing the other two cited this case, although the applications were not joined.

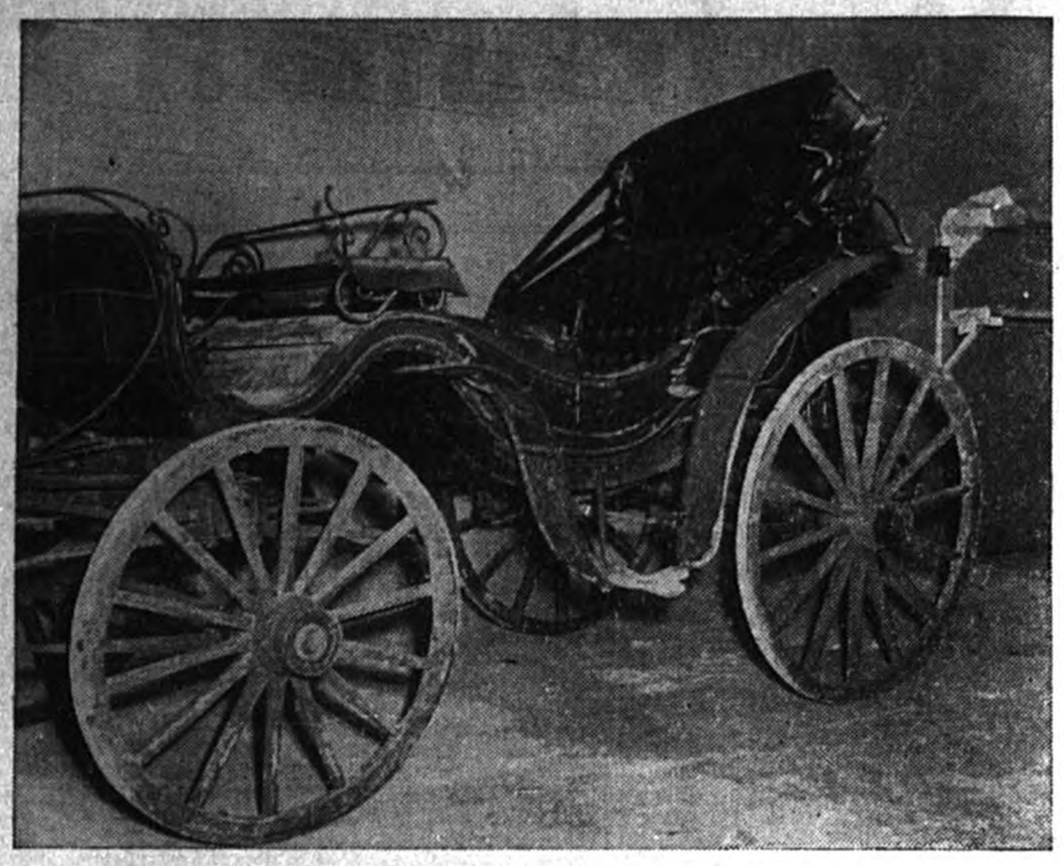

The hearing began January 12, 1939, and the applicants sought permission to transport automobiles from Oshawa and Windsor, or Oshawa alone, by means of special carrier equipment, which carry four motor cars direct from the factory to dealers' premises in Montreal.

Both railway companies opposed the petitions.

Dealers presented evidence that the service would save them from $4 to $7 on each car, and would effect quicker delivery of the cars.

"The question to be decided," the judgment states, "is whether the advantage of saving a few hours in delivery and saving a few dollars to the dealer on each car is sufficient to counterbalance the disadvantages entailed by this method of transportation."

The commissioners' decision was against granting the permit.

KING GEORGE MAY SEE COACH USED BY GRANDFATHER

When His Majesty's grandfather, King Edward VII, came to Canada as the Prince of Wales in 1860, he used the carriage (above) on an extended trip through the Upper Ottawa Valley. Although in its day it was undoubtedly the last word, it now stands out in sharp contrast to the cars being used today. Stored in Ottawa, and the property of the Women's Canadian Historical Society, the upholstery is now a faded blue velvet with trimmings of intricately designed silver. The Society is trying to have the vehicle reconditioned so that it can be on display during the forthcoming Royal visit.

House Delivery Starts, No More "Going for Mail"

Door-to-door mail delivery in St. Jerome commenced Monday — much to the disappointment of boys and girls who were in the habit, each noon on their way home from school, of stopping at the Post Office to gather up the letters for their parents.

Five letter carriers, under two inspectors from Montreal, began the delivery of mail to the 2,150 homes in St. Jerome. It had been announced some time ago that the mail delivery would start on April 3 if enough citizens provided their doors with letter boxes. The response was sufficient to warrant the installation of the service.

Man Awake 33 Days

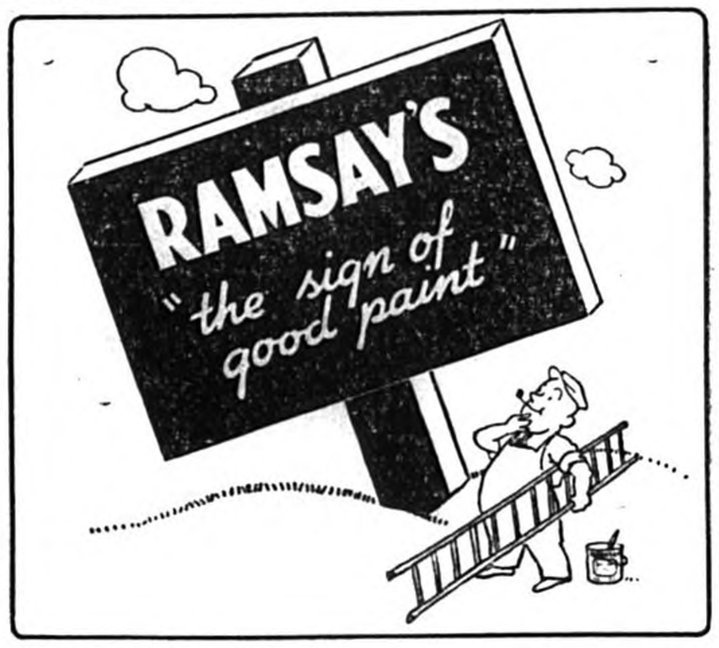

For the first time in 33 days, Florian Raditch, a barber of Belgrade, Yugoslavia, has enjoyed sleep, after drinking a cup of "poppy tea" recommended by a neighboring grocer. He slept for 90 minutes, and was overjoyed that he could rest even for a brief time. The man's insomnia was caused by a shotgun wad which entered the spine, and all the doctor's efforts to produce sleep failed.

Basis for Prosperity If Rail Deficits Cut

"It would be more rational and more in harmony with economic thought to look for a worthwh le upturn in Canadian business after we have cleaned house with our railways than before," reads an extarct from the submission of C. W. Peterson, of Calgary, before the Senate Committee on Railways.

"If $50,000,000 was deducted from our annual Federal deficit there would be a substantial basis for improvement," it is added.

Modern Car Demonstrated As Gas-Proof Shelter

If a foreign power ever bombs any Canadian city in a gas raid from the air, probably the safest place you can go will be in a modern automobile! In England, when the authorities recently rushed completion of bomb shelters and hurried the manufacture of gas masks for civilians, they discovered that air-conditioned Nash cars could be made into perfect havens from deadly gases.

After several people appeared at showrooms in London and asked about the possibilities of replacing fresh air filters with anti-gas filters in the Nash car weather-maker, some of these modern cars were turned over to Air Raid Precaution officials for tests. Tests were made in a gas tunnel after gas filters had been installed in the conditioned air system.

First tests were conducted in an empty car fitted with gas detection instruments. As the car was not moving, doors and windows were sealed with tape. The system, which takes in all air through the cowl ventilator, was turned on, and officials found that the car offered full protection.

Next, several tests were run off with six people in the Nash. None was equipped with a gas mask. Gas bombs were discharged around the car, and beneath the hood in the engine, but the occupants of the car felt no ill effects.

Officials explained that the sealing of the doors and windows probably wouldn't be necessary if the car were in motion, as outside air is taken through the cowl ventilator and through the conditioning system when the car is moving. This builds up air pressure inside which blocks entrance of air through the openings around doors, windows and floors. The air from the car is continually flowing out of these openings, and, of course, cannot come in at the same time.

Heaviest Man on Record

Daniel Lambert was the heaviest man on record. Born at Leicester in 1770, he was, during his youth, of normal build and fond of exercise, but began to put on weight with amazing rapidity in his early twenties. In 1806, on deciding to exhibit himself in London a special vehicle was constructed for his conveyance there. He was 5 feet 11 inches in height, and, to quote his epitaph, says London Answers magazine, "he measured three feet one inch round the leg, nine feet four inches round the body, and weighed 52 stone, 11 lb. (14 lb. to the stone)." At his death it was found necessary to take down the window and wall of the room in which he lay to allow of his being taken away. His coffin was 6 feet 4 inches long, 4 feet 4 inches wide, 2 feet 4 inches deep, and consisted of 112 superficial feet of elm. It was built on two axle-trees and four wheels and was rolled down a slope to the bottom of the grave.

Completing the Picture of a GOLDEN WEDDING

Mrs. Allen Quickfall, of Bridgeport, Ont., had just arranged a huge bouquet of Chrysanthemums, their Golden Wedding Remembrance from assembled children and grandchildren, when the telephone rang. It was a call from Kindersley, Sask., and the voice of Roy, her son, greeted her. What a surprise on such a day! Mrs. Quickfall writes: "We like to pass on to other sons and mothers the value and satisfaction to be obtained through the medium of telephone contacts, particularly so when the dear ones are scattered over the country."

Glace Bay, N.S., a Cape Breton mining centre of about 20,000 population, is going to continue to boast of being "Canada's biggest town." Electors voted 2,082 to 1,232 against seeking incorporation as a city.

ROLE OF CITY ENGINEER

New responsibilities assigned to city engineers in Great Britain during the past few years include such functions as : (1) gas decontamination of roads, sewers, vehicles, buildings, etc., (2) repairs to, demolition of, buildings; (3) rescue work; (4) repairs to roads, sewers, and water supplies; (5) prevention of damage or loss of life by flooding; and (6) provision of necessary buildings, such as decontamination depots, first-aid posts, and air-raid shelters. Other functions involving the local engineer are air-raid warnings, street lighting, storage and distribution of gas masks, and the protection of electrical plants.

PUBLIC ADMISSION TO COUNCIL MEETINGS

For the first time since Lancaster, England, secured its Charter in 1193, application was recently made at a Council meeting for the admission of representatives of a local tenants' association to the Council Chamber to hear a discussion on the "Differential Rents System," reports the County and Municipal Record. The town-clerk on the authority of a Court of Appeal case, heard in January, 1908, advised that neither the public in general nor a ratepayer in particular has the right to attend meetings of the Council without its consent, expressed or implied, and pointed out that the matter was one entirely for the Council to decide. It was unanimously decided that the representatives be refused permission to attend. The policy of the Lancaster Corporation has been very rigid in this respect, and even on November 9th in each year, when the new Mayor is elected, no member of the public is allowed in the Council Chamber, which, of course, has no public gallery, a point which was carefully considered when the Town Hall was erected in 1909.

CITY TREASURER, ARBITER OF FINANCIAL GRIEVANCES

As we all know, money is a very important factor in our daily lives. Unfortunately its importance usually springs from the fact that so many people are quite convinced that they do not possess a fair share of the money in circulation. To the average person, however, a shortage of cash merely means that the individual is required to do without something which he or she may regard as being essential to their happiness. It is rather different with a municipality. A town council regards money as being the oil which makes the municipal wheels go round and any shortage of cash in the municipal coffers may mean that the whole community is deprived of services which may be essential to the health and well-being of the citizens. If that position arises the citizens get angry and write letters to the newspapers, calling upon heaven to witness that the town has suddenly become afflicted with a body of town councillors so hopelessly incompetent that they are unable to provide ordinary municipal services. Then the town councillors get angry and, unless the treasurer proves himself capable of producing money like a conjuror produces rabbits out of a hat, his town council may tell him that it would be in the interests of the community if he found himself another job. When that unfortunate position arises the city treasurer girds up his loins and proceeds to teach the citizen who wrote so disparagingly about his town councillors a salutary lesson by tearing out of their reluctant pockets such amount of cash as he may require to pay for the services which the citizens demand from the town council.

—D. W. Pringle, City-treasurer, Capetown, S.A.

What we do upon some great occasion will probably depend on what we already are; and what we are will be the result of previous years of self-discipline. —H. P. Liddon

THE HOUSING SITUATION IN GREAT BRITAIN

Speaking at Hull, (Eng.), recently when he opened the 10,000th house erected by the corporation, Mr. Robert Bernays, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Health, said that the general shortage of houses, so acute at the Armistice, had now been largely remedied. The erection of houses for people who were being removed from the slums was proceeding apace, while with regard to the abatement of overcrowding, local authorities had in the main completed the initial stage of their task, and were now in a position to begin building the houses which were necessary to deal with the residue of the problem.

SUPREME COURT BUILDING TO COST $3,360,000

Cost of the Supreme Court Building under construction on the banks of the Ottawa River west of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa will be $3,360,000, Public Works Minister Cardin told the House of Commons in replying to a question of Howard Green (Con., Vancouver South.)

The Anglin-Norcross Ontario Limited, of Montreal, has been awarded the contract for the main construction work on the building at $2,550-000, he said. A number of other items brought the grand total up to $3,360,000.

SIXTEEN PERSONS LIVING IN ONE ROOM

A social worker in one of our cities recently reported that sixteen persons were housed in one room, the cause being unemployment on the one hand and the scarcity of low rental housing on the other. This is an indictment of our social and economic system that is too serious to be left to the ordinary channels of supply and demand, and the local authorities cannot take up the subject too seriously or too quickly. In this instance, which we understand is illustrative of thousands of other cases, the sixteen persons represented four separate families who, if given an opportunity, would be living decently; but because there was no work, and because of the charitable disposition of the first of these families which allowed the other three families to partake of what warmth this single room provided, sixteen potentially respectable citizens of Canada are compelled to herd together like cattle. Surely this is a crime against common-sense and morals, and if Canada is to keep in the vanguard of nations, Part Two of the National Housing Act — which deals with low-rental housing — must be made to work somehow. We note that at the April conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities this problem will be taken up and discussed; and it is hopefully anticipated that out of the discussions a workable solution will be found.

Homeless people mean dissatisfied and restless people. — Lack of houses means homeless people.

PHYSICAL TRAINING IN ENGLAND

The Chief Officer of the British Board of Education, in his annual report on the health of school children, devotes a chapter to Physical Education in which special emphasis is placed on the importance of organizers of physical training.

"There is little doubt," says the report, "that, in the main, those areas employing organizers are in the vanguard of progress in physical education and those lacking their services are at the rear. It is to be hoped, therefore, that those authorities who have not yet appointed organizers will take steps to remedy this omission."

WANTS AMUSEMENT TAX FOR CITIES

Provincial Government abolished the amusement tax in Ontario some time ago, but now it is reported the city council of Windsor wants the tax restored for the benefit of the municipalities rather than the provincial treasury.

Having been riding bicycles since the invention of the pneumatic tire without facing a traffic court, a man, aged 74, was fined in Dublin, Ireland, for crossing against the traffic lights.

Forward, Canada!...

It is an encouraging sign when parliamentarians turn to the radio in Canada to urge the need for moral rearmament, and advocate the move as a basic process to improve conditions under which we live.

In a radio address recently given over C.K.C.H., Hull, A. H. Mitchell, M.P., of Medicine Hat, Alta., launched the battle cry of "Forward, Canada!" Every Canadian must rally personally to that cry, he said; only as each individual puts to practice the principles of Christianity — absolute honesty, unselfishness, love and purity — can we hope to master such collective problems as unemployment, war, debt, and the other ills which plague society.

Following is a text of Mr. Mitchell's radio address:

We all know that Canada must move forward if she is to survive the pressure of swiftly moving times. The pressure is upon all the nations, including Canada, so we cannot avoid our share of responsibility. These are extraordinary times in our country's history, in world history. The probability of war in all its horror is in our minds and hearts each day. The futility of it — the folly — is plain to everyone if for no other reason than because so many millions of people get their livelihood from preparing for it. Through the building of armaments millions of people in all countries are able to find work and live whereas they were unemployed before. It seems that the preparation for war is the only effective way men have yet been willing to try in order to overcome our failure to find a way of living together. When people are unemployed and hungry they are desperate and turn finally to revolution with its chaos and destruction, but when their employment is in the manufacture of materials for war — and they would be unemployed if they were not doing this — then we keep our civilization alive by preparing to commit suicide. Was ever a fairy tale more fantastic ?

Who is to blame for this? Ordinary men like you and me are prone to blame someone, usually governments. We say, "If the government had only done differently — kept its promises — things would be as we want them." But the truth is that governments are no better than the people they govern. We might as well accept the fact that governments alone cannot be blamed for our failure to live in peace together. We blame our governments and forget that they represent us in fact as well as in law. We blame our systems and forget that we are our systems. If the systems are to be effectively changed there is one sure way to do it—change the people who make up the system. Would there be the ravishing effects of unemployment if everyone was absolutely honest — absolutely unselfish? Would there be anything wrong with commerce under those conditions? Supposing everybody cared enough and everybody shared enough; wouldn't everybody have enough? Any system could be quickly modified to perform its true functions most easily under those circumstances.

The problem of industry is the problem of the men who compose it. Only as a new spirit comes to men can a new destiny come to industry in Canada or the world. Worker and employer can be forged together in industry as labor, management and capital each accepts its independent responsibility to the nation and recognizes its function as a sacred trust under the guidance of God, to so discharge its responsibility to its fellows and to society that God's plan for our time and for all time may be found and fabricated into our national life. Surely the God who gave us the sinews of industry and nationhood has a plan whereby they will work normally so no one will want and nothing will be wasted. Why not find that plan and use it? Moral rearmament will help us to do this.

His Holiness, the late Pope Pius XI, clearly enunciated this idea in one of his Encyclicals when he said, "It is therefore very necessary that economic life be once more subjected to and governed by a true and effective principle." These true and effective guiding principles are absolute honesty, absolute purity, absolute unselfishness, absolute love. Everyone knows there is enough in the world for everyone's need, but not enough for everyone's greed. Therefore moral recovery must essentially forerun economic recovery. The challenge of today is not alone to our form of government but to our way of life. By daily living these principles the whole aspect of our national life can be changed. Everybody believes that, but we are all waiting for the other fellow to begin. Take the simple case of two neighbors, Jack and Bill. They see each other every day on the streetcar, going to work and coming home. Jack says to himself, "I'd speak to Bill if I thought he would speak to me," and Bill says to himself, "There's Bill again. I'd speak to him if I thought he'd speak to me." There is a lot of good friendliness and living together going to waste while each of us waits for the other to begin.

I read recently of a place whose climate is changing. Have you ever thought of changing the moral climate of our country ? Dou you think it can be done ? Well, I was mighty skeptical about it two years ago, but during that time I have seen lives restored, marriages repaired, crises prevented and human bridges built in this and other countries on such a scale as to convince me that not only can the moral climate be changed but it is changing and will continue to change in ever gathering momentum, as person after person leaves the wrecking crew of spotlighting the other fellow's failures and joins the construction crew of moral rearmament. Moral rearmament is a race with time for the re-making of men of our nation and the world. Morally rearmed men are the repair crew for a disabled world.

What would you be willing to give to see your country and the world safe to live in? Free from fear and worry, from conflict, war and hatred? Would you be willing to give as much as you may be called upon to give in the near future if war comes? Would you give everything for peace as you might have to do for war ? The eleven-year-old son of a friend of mine said recently, "If you want to stop war among the nations, stop war in the homes !" That fellow had the philosophy of MRA, Moral Re-Armament. How tightly must you hang on to your prejudices, your fixed opinions ? Would you be willing to invest them in a thousand years of peace ? Fixed opinions mean fixed bayonets. Changed lives mean swords beaten into ploughshares.

Advertisement Pays

Editor L. F. Wade knows what he is talking about when he argues it pays to advertise in his Jayton Chronicle. His last issue carried this full page advertisement sponsored by local firms: "Wanted — a good soaking general rain that will cover Kent county." Soon after the paper hit the street it started raining. It didn't stop until an inch and a half had been recorded.

At the dedication of a new fire engine in a little town, the following toast was proposed:

"May she be like the dear old maids of this town, always ready but never called for."

Suddenly a whistle sounds, one, two, three or several blasts, a combination of longs and shorts. It is not the signal for men to begin or end work at a factory, but it IS time to begin work. It is a fire call. It is time for the volunteer firemen to begin work. Do we as a community sufficiently appreciate the generosity and self-sacrifice of those who protect us from fires ? Obsessed With An Idea

Don't let yourself go "crackers" about things. That warning has just been given to his parishioners by the Rev. H. W. R. Elsley, for fourteen years vicar of Tokyngton, Wembley. "People in the congregation who get obsessed with one idea, as what the council ought to do, the wickedness of a neighbor, the decline of youth — are the bans of the vicar's existence," he said recently. "They are not peculiar to my congregation. You find them in every church in England. The root of the trouble is loss of a sense of proportion. These people think about the same thing until their vision is blinded to all else."

Obituary

LATE WILLIAM H. POLLOCK

The death of William Hugh Pollock, which occurred last Monday, removes another of this county's pioneers. Born on the West Gore Road, Mr. Pollock had lived his 87 years in this vicinity, the last 53 years at Hill Foot. His wife, Mary McOuat, predeceased him 10 years ago.

Left to mourn are his four sons, William D., at home; Sterling, in Montreal; James, at Hill Foot, and Edgar, at Brownsburg.

The funeral was held on Wednesday, conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, assisted by the Rev. S. J. Pike. The floral tributes bore silent tribute to the memory of one who was honored and respected by all who knew him.

LATE MRS. GEORGE BROWN

There passed to rest at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, on Monday, April 3rd, Annie Gladys Eliza, beloved wife of George W. Brown, of Lachute, in her 31st year. Being in ill health for only two weeks, her death came as a great shock to the family. Mrs. Brown was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hodge, of Thomas' Gore.

She leaves to mourn her loss a loving husband; two daughters, Glenna and Reta; two sisters, Mrs. Henry Lister, Mrs. Albert Gauley; three brothers, Alex, Norman and Lawrence Hodge, besides a host of sorrowing friends and relatives.

The funeral was held yesterday, April 5th, at St. Simeon's Church, interment being made in Lachute Cemetery. The pall-bearers were her six brothers-in-law, Henry Lister, Albert Gauley, Richard and Russell Brown, Oswald Thompson and Wesley Armstrong.

LATE MRS. WILLIAM BLAIR

The funeral of the late Mrs. William Blair was held on Monday, April 3rd., at the home of her son Alfred, at Perth, Ontario, and thence to Lachute, where the remains were placed in the vault awaiting burial at a later date in Ogdensburg Cemetery.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. J. G. Van Flyke, pastor of the Baptist Church of Perth, and was largely attended.

The deceased lady, formerly Miss Jane Horner, was born on May 18, 1854, at Grenville, Que., and was married November 11, 1872, to William Blair, who predeceased her 9 years ago. Of this union were born nine children, three having predeceased her—Jessie, Alexander and Mrs. F. Townsend (Minnie).

Mr. and Mrs. Blair, with their family, resided at Ogdensburg till the year 1911, when they moved to Kerrobert, Sask. There they made their home till Mr. Blair's passing. Mrs. Blair afterwards resided with her son, Alfred, in Lloydminster, Sask., until a little over a year ago, when they moved to Perth, Ont.

Mrs. Blair, happily known to many as "Grandma Blair," was beloved and highly esteemed by all who knew her and her loss will be keenly felt as she was always willing to lend a helping hand. She was a devout Christian and was a member of the Grenville Baptist Church before moving to Kerrobert, Sask., where she attended the United Church, there being no Baptist Church in that vicinity.

She leaves to mourn her passing, four sons and two daughters—William, Norval, Everard, of Saskatchewan, Alfred, of Perth, Ont., Miss Lillian M. Blair, of Chicago, and Mrs. David Tomalty, of Brownsburg, Que., also three sisters and one brother—Mrs. M. McGillivary, Grenville, Mrs. J. A. Cryan and Mrs. H. E. Hinds, of Montreal, and Mr. R. Horner, of Ogdensburg. The late Mrs. Blair is also survived by 31 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren.

LATE MISS FLORA C. HIBBARD

St. Andrews E. — The death occurred on March 30 at her home, of Miss Flora Cybella Hibbard, a member of one of St. Andrews' oldest families. While in poor health for several years past the end came rather unexpectedly, hastened by a fall several weeks previously.

Miss Hibbard was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society and took an active part, first in the Congregational Church and then in the United Church. During the winter months the Auxiliary met at her home in recent years. For about ten years she had devoted herself entirely to her elder sister, Miss Hannah Hibbard, whose failing sight, added to frail health, demanded a constant attendant. Previously she had taught in Sunday School for many years, and was leader of a mission band and always had a cheery welcome for young folk.

Bird lore was a lifetime hobby and she had the unusual accomplishment of whistling, at which she was adept, taking part in concerts in her younger years.

Her knowledge of nursing and her kindly advice made her a good neighbor in many an hour of need.

A short service was held at her home Sunday afternoon, followed by a service at the United Church, both conducted by the Rev. J. A. Mowatt. Mr. A. McLeod and Miss Maud McLeod, of Westmount, cousins, attended; also Miss Mabel Simpson, of Westmount. The pall-bearers were Messrs. G. Hamilton, H. Cairns, C. L. Brownlee, M. A. Snowden, V. L. Lilly and E. Chambers. The remains were taken to the vault and later they will be removed to Mount Royal Cemetery, Montreal, for interment.

Miss Hibbard was born in Montreal, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Ritchie Hibbard. She is survived by one sister, Miss Hannah Hibbard. Another sister, Mrs. C. May, of California, predeceased her several years ago.

LATE A. C. MacDONELL

St. Andrews E. — After a long illness, borne with Christian fortitude and patience, Albert Crosby MacDonell passed away on the morning of March 28th.

He was the last of one branch of the famous pioneer families, the MacDonells of Pointe Fortune, of which the late Judge MacDonell was the first. He had been a resident of St. Andrews East for 33 years, and for 20 years acted on the managing board of the Presbyterian Church.

The high esteem in which he was held in this community, was shown by the large concourse of people that attended his funeral, notwithstanding the bad weather; also by the beautiful floral offerings.

The funeral service was taken by his pastor, Dr. R. L. Ballantyne, assisted by Rural Dean Booy and the Rev. J. Mowatt.

The pall-bearers were Wm. Weightman, Edward Weightman, Leslie Snow, Hanson Bradford, Thomas Bradford and Howard Hardy — his three cousins, two brothers-in-law and a nephew.

Because He promised us that we should go on,
Through star pierced clouds until we reach His side,
We think of our beloved satisfied.
He has found happiness beyond the Dawn,
And we who live with earthly cares
Have learned to look beyond the vacant chair.

Presbyterian Congregation Welcomes New Minister

In large numbers the congregation of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church turned out to extend a welcome to their new pastor, the Rev. E. Orsborn, and his family, last Friday evening. Owing to the bad state of the roads, the induction party from Montreal comprising the Rev. H. S. Lee, B.A., Moderator; Rev. Dr. Allan S. Reid, Clerk of Assembly; Rev. Malcolm Campbell and Rev. G. L. Fulford, were late in arriving. In the interim the time was spent in congregational singing and becoming acquainted; refreshments were served to the gathering. At 10 o'clock the visiting party arrived and the new minister was officially installed into his new charge.

The Rev. Orsborn occupied the pulpit last Sunday in the Lachute and Brownsburg churches.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was held last evening with about 20 members present. Following a short business session, a Quiz Contest was held under the direction of "Professor" McFaul. This was more or less a "get-acquainted" meeting, the Society being pleased to welcome the new minister and his family. Rev. Orsborn will address the Club at next meeting; all members should make special efforts to be on hand.

A letter was received from Rev. H. Cousens, of Brockville, and through this column the Society congratulates him on his present fine group, and thanks him for his kind wishes.

The afternoon tea being held Saturday, April 15th, is to be under the co-operative auspices of the Y.P.S. and Y.W.A. With two such groups sponsoring the event, it is hoped that the public will give full support.

The Society has one more bowling games to complete the schedule, this game having been postponed, due to bad road conditions. No date has yet been set for the match, but members will be notified as soon as it is decided upon.

NO PLACE TO GO

Vera Hruba (above) is literally a woman without a country. The Czecho-Slovakian figure skater, in the U.S. on a temporary permit, was denied entry into Canada because "the United States then very properly could refuse to take her back."

Boys' Band Concert

During the third week of April the Boys' Band, of Lachute, are furnishing a concert in order to show the progress they are making. The recital is to be held in the Auditorium, and it is earnestly hoped that the public will support them in their effort. The young lads need your encouragement!

While the band is being sponsored by the local branch of the Lions Club, an earnest appeal for backing from the citizens of the town is made to ensure its success. Further particulars next week.

ATTENTION — Is this your lucky month? You may win a handsome 34-pc. set of Tudor Plate. See John McFaul's show-window. Drawing at Rex Theatre Apl. 15. — Lachute Golf Club. —1c

The Twelve Caesars

The twelve Caesars were Julius Caesar and the eleven emperors following him, most of whom were from his family. Nerva was chosen by the senate, and was the first to select a successor without regard to family. Following are the names and dates of the reigns of the twelve: Julius Caesar, 44 B. C.; Augustus, 31 B. C. to 14 A. D.; Tiberius, 14-37; Caius, 37-41; Claudius, 41-54; Nero, 54-68; Galba, 68-69; Otho, 69; Vitellius, 69; Vespasian, 69-79; Titus, 79-81; Domitian, 81-96. The title Caesar was given to all of the Roman emperors, until the time of Hadrian, after whom Caesar was the title of the heir of the throne, and the title of the emperor was Augustus.

An event important to every householder — the Rexall Spring One-Cent Sale at Beaton's, Lachute, offers sickroom supplies, tonics and everyday family remedies at practically half price. — Dates April 19-22.

Social and Personal

Mr. Harold Damant, of Cadillac, Que., is spending a few days with friends in Lachute.

Miss Janet McOuat spent last week-end the guest of Mrs. Gordon Bradley at Three Rivers.

Mr. Sydney Drew, of Ashbury College, Ottawa, is spending his vacation in Lachute.

Miss Agnes McMahon, of LaTuque, and Miss Grace McMahon, of Thurso, are spending the school holidays at their home in town.

Rev. Father Albert Vanier, C.S.C., former President of the University of New Brunswick, was the recent guest of Mr. C. Tremblay.

Notary J. F. Lavigne, who has been in hospital at Montreal for the past two weeks, is improving in health and expects to be home shortly.

Among the local High School teachers who are spending their holidays away are—Miss P. Bennett, at Bury, Miss B. Miller, at Sutton; Miss B. Jones, at Bedford; Miss D. Pritchard, at Wyman; Miss M. Cunningham, at Huntingdon; Miss E. LeGrand, in New York City; and Mr. Harry Pibus, at Knowlton.

Mr. Geo. Leggett, Jr., of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, is vacationing at his home in Lachute Mills.

Mr. Bill Taylor, of the Bank of Nova Scotia staff, is spending the week-end and holiday at his home in Huntingdon.

Mr. Stephen May, student at Lachute High School, left this morning to spend the holidays with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. E. G. May, at Ste. Agathe.

Misses Dorothy McFarlane, Alda Beattie, Dorothy McOuat, Evelyn Heatlie and Dorothy Copeland, of Macdonald College, are spending the Easter holidays at their respective homes.

Mr. Norman Sioui re-visited his old school, the Pointe-aux-Trembles Institute, on Saturday. He recommends that old pupils from here renew acquaintance with this school — as on this, his second visit in 19 years, he was most favorably impressed.

How 'Hello' Originated

The salutation "hello" first appeared in the English language as "hollow" or "hollo," being usually pronounced with the stress on the last syllable. In the Seventeenth century the common form was "hillo," which was replaced late in the Eighteenth century by "hallo" or "halloo." By the middle of the Nineteenth century this latter form had been supplanted by "hullo." The spelling "hello" does not occur in literature until about 1880, when the word became the common salutation over the telephone. Like most interjections, the original source of the word is unknown. "Holla," a closely related exclamation and salutation, is supposed to be derived from the French "ho," meaning ho, and "la," there. There is no evidence to support the popular theory that "hello" is a corrupted form of "hail to you." The French telephone greeting is "allo," evidently an adaptation from the English.

Mother's Standby in Treating
CHILDREN'S Frequent COLDS

If your children keep coming down with nasty little colds all winter, use Vicks VapoRub these three simple ways.

✓ For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. VapoRub's poultice-vapor action relieves local congestion—eases muscular soreness or tightness—helps the youngster relax into restful sleep.

✓ For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue. It melts, trickles slowly down—bathes the throat with soothing medication. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

✓ For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested ways to relieve the misery of colds.

L.H.S. ANNUAL NEARS COMPLETION

After relatively few meetings of the "Annual" editorial board, we are happy to announce that our material is almost ready to go to press.

The advertising editors are hard at work to get the advertising space sold, and this year's effort promises to be bigger and better than any previous edition.

The cover design has been decided upon, and only one more thing remains to be done before the covers go to press. Ever since the Annual has been on the market, it has been known as the L.H.S. Annual. This year the editors have decided to give the book a name; and we leave it to you to name it. To the pupil submitting the best name for the Annual, a free ticket to the Rex Theatre will be given. So get your brains working to give the Annual a good name, and, as your reward, we'll guarantee you'll see a good show at the "Rex." You may submit as many names as you wish. Please put title of book and your own name on the slip of paper.

As the editors spend their spare time in the library concocting new ideas, the following poem, from the pages of the Sherbrooke "Dumbel" seems very appropriate:

V. O. E.

"Dumbel staff meeting at four fifteen" . . .
Four fifteen no staff can be seen.
Four forty-five the meeting has begun;
Everything's quiet and the stragglers come.
Discussion, discussion, discussion and debate.
"Why are we here? We're hungry and it's late."
Debate, debate, debate and discussion,
"If they don't stop hammering, I'll soon have concussion."
Vote now, amendment, objection, vote again.
"When will we get out of here? Gosh, I wonder when?"
Someone has an idea, someone slaps him down.
"Hurry up and get to work! Come on, let's go to town!"
"Why all the enthusiasm?" "Enthusiasm — nix!
I'd like to have my supper, don't you see it's nearly six?"
"Just a minute—," "What was that?"
—"You know, I've got a hunch" —
"Will this go on forever? I should have brought my lunch."
The printers and the publishers, photographers and ads,
The should-haves and the can-haves the will-haves, and the hads;
Whom to pay, why to pay, what to pay and how —
"You've got to work to get this out It's almost too late now."
For twenty Dumbels sold, one free.
"Say, have you seen the show?"
They ought to get a dozen free. "You liked it? Guess I'll go."
"Put up your hand." "Why?" "Never mind, put it up anyway."
"Vote for what? Why should I vote?" "Oh you'll wake up some day."
Meeting adjourned. Meeting ad journed!
Whoopee! Let's go. Come on!
But, what with this and what with that, it's long before we've gone.
And the warning, my ambitious friend, in this my little rhyme,
Is — never print a magazine unless you've lots of time.

— Grace Babbitt, XI-A, S.H.S.

MONDAY'S QUIZ

On Monday, April 3rd, the new team of the United Church Young People's Society played the High School team "B" and won the game. 13-12.

Following were the contestants on the U.Y.P.S. team:

Stuart Armstrong, Capt.; Barbara Cunningham, Mona Bates, Douglas Gordon, Helen Jandron.

We were glad to know that Abel killed Cain, or else Cain shot himself.

There will be no contest on Easter Monday, April 10th.

U.Y.P.S. plays team "C" Monday, April 17th.

FROM OUR SCRAP-BOOK

Easter holidays start on Thursday — so we'll be seeing you in the comics.

TWO SIDES to Every Question

● By LYTLE HULL

Don't bother to read this if you are starving and can't get help anywhere. You are probably violently opposed to our form of Government and have joined the Communist Party. That Party will promise you food and plenty and it will keep its promise just as it has in Russia.

You can get food and clothes in Russia, if you like dead horse and the gunny sacks which the Bolshies call wearing apparel. You can even buy apples, if you have more money than you are allowed to earn. And you don't have to bother about the hereafter and Hell and all that sort of trash. Life is Hell all the time in Russia and you're "suspected" if you believe in Heaven.

Another nice thing about their system is that there is no family life. One isn't bothered by a lot of mangy children running about. The state takes these off your hands and weans them for you.

And you don't have to mull around at home with your wife or husband. The idea is that everyone shall live together in nice big wooden barracks with the old stove crackling in the central hall and unattractive gents with long inhabited hair making speeches about how happy you are.

If you should own your own farm, you are known as a Kulak, and get liquidated, which is lots of fun. In fact in Russia the original five million Kulaks have all been given a long, long holiday. Some of them were even allowed their choice between Heaven and Siberia. Most of them chose Heaven — and got it.

The Bourgeoisie, or shopkeepers and small business people, mostly went to Hell — or so the Bolshies tell us. But, after all, either one of these resorts is a pretty nice place to go after a season in present day Russia. At least, when you're in Hell, your children don't sneak around and eavesdrop to see if they can win a medal by reporting some remark of yours which will send you before the firing squad.

However, one doesn't really have to worry much about getting shot any more, because there are very few left worth shooting. Fifteen million is the average estimate of those who have been murdered by forcible starvation, shooting, etc., in the last twenty-one years, and now there's not one left with property or money enough to be killed for except the leaders, and they are fortunately shooting each other.

All you have to do to avoid the firing squad—and die slowly of mental misery and undernourishment — is to keep out of politics, keep your mouth shut tight, don't fall down on the job you are made to take, and don't look crosseyed at your boss.

And just to think — all these wonderful things we can have — and are going to get — if we will just carry on as we are doing. Don't take the trouble to find out what kind of men we are electing to office and don't — under any circumstances — write our representatives and object to some of the proposed laws which we don't like the smell of.

Don't bother to raise a kick when our friends turn pink and join the Communist Club.

But, above all, believe all the junk which is handed out to us by the self-styled Intelligentsia.—Then, when we have our next financial depression the Reds will take over and we won't have anything more to worry about — for long. . . . We must stop pooh-poohing the idea that "It can happen here."

It isn't "majorities" who have brought about the great social revolutions in history. It is tiny "minorities" who wait for the opportune moment, and then strike with murderous force.

Wells, Stones, Landmarks Where Many Make Wishes

Much interest is shown in ancient landmarks which are supposed to have the magical power of fulfilling wishes. Everyone has heard of wishing wells, but there are also trees, stones, and gateways to which similar stories are attached, says Pearson's London Weekly.

Near the ruins of Berry Pomeroy castle, South Devon, stands one of the oldest beech trees in Britain. This is called the Wishing tree. If you walk thrice around it, says a local tradition, your dearest wish may be granted.

The Wishing steps at Chester lead up to the famous wall that encircles the city. They are arranged in sets of three and are very steep. As you wish you must run up and down them twice without stopping.

But your wish will not be granted unless you have first walked right around the city wall—a circuit of two miles.

There is a wishing gate near Grasmere, Westmoreland, which is visited by thousands of holiday-makers because it inspired the poet Wordsworth to write "The Wishing Gate." According to tradition, you must touch the gate three times with both hands, repeating your wish aloud as you do so.

Ireland also has many romantic and mysterious landmarks. Among them is the Wishing stone which stands in the churchyard at Kilmakedar, County Kerry. Though it has been a wishing stone for centuries, this relic has special romantic associations because marriages were performed over it in days gone by.

Ancient Kings Ravenous

Famous are the stories and pictures telling how old English kings ripped apart a roast chicken or whole pig, ate with the "joints" clutched in their fists, and threw the bones on the royal dining room floor for the dogs. Meals lasting several hours were the rule, but hardly a one of these "banquets" would be considered fit food for a dog today because the meat, the main course, was not always fresh. People didn't know how to store hay and fodder as winter feed for live stock. So each fall, says a writer in the Washington Post, they slaughtered all but a few of their animals. The meat, poorly cured, soon began to turn bad. To disguise its taste and smell nobles used costly spices. Cows couldn't be milked in winter months. Fresh vegetables and eggs were not available. Fish, dried, was as bad as the meat. The only other foods were cheese, dried peas and beans, and bread.

Indian Named Red Jacket

Red Jacket (Sagoyewatha) was a Seneca Indian chief who fought for the British during the Revolution. Because of his ability as a runner, he was a favorite among the officers, one of whom presented him with an embroidered red coat. This made him conspicuous among his people who henceforth called him Red Jacket.

WOMEN SHOULD GET MAD

Miss Agnes McPhail spoke to the Ottawa Local Council of Women and made an unusually eloquent, moving address. She said that women must get mad and forget their lack of experience and go out in a mighty crusade to put order and common sense into this insane world. The audience was enthusiastic and inspired. We wanted to know what to do — but she did not tell us. That is the reason for the enthusiasm over the Leadership League. We want to be told what to do. But Mr. McCullough has not told us either. We look for our Members of Parliament to form a plan, but they have failed us — not only in Canada but in other countries. There are able, experienced men in the House with a varied and wide knowledge and it does seem that if they pooled their ideas that some way could be devised so that there would not be a surplus of fish, wheat and butter on one hand and near starvation on the other. Miss McPhail said that women could not have made a worse mess of things than men. That is certainly true. I do not want to see government turned over to the hands of women, but I do want to see women on every public governing body in Canada. Women are used to administrating, organizing and spending to a plan. They are more practical than men. Government is mostly large-scale housekeeping and it is a short-sighted policy on the part of the men not to make wide use of women's experience. We should not work as men and women but as a united people working shoulder to shoulder to do the best for our country. We do it in our homes, why cannot we do it in government ?

RANDOM THOUGHTS

The oftener I go to the House, the more I am convinced that in a country with party government, to accomplish much, one needs to belong to either large party. It may not always be so, but any time we have been in the House the members of the parties to the Left have done far more talking than either the Liberals or Conservatives. They talk endlessly and frequently. Only once have I seen them get full attention. No one apparently listens, but they talk on just the same. The Ministers usually get attention when they speak and some of the private members do, but very few and the Leftists least of all. The quality of the voice must have a lot to do with the attention given because a member with a pleasing voice is listened to by many more than those with uninspiring voices. What they have to say may not be nearly as important but they get more attention. Members of Parliament should go in for voice culture. Miss McPail told us that in the last election there was not one Liberal woman candidate; there was one Independent Conservative and the rest were of the parties to the Left. There were fifteen women candidates in the last election. It would appear from that, that women are not very good party members. Which is probably why the parties are not more enthusiastic about them. The average woman will vote from conviction and not follow her party blindly. This seems ideal for both men and women and it is not inconsistent with a two-party government.

MORE AND BETTER APPLES

On the same day, I bought a basket of Spy apples and two dozen oranges. The apples were 39 cents for a six-quart basket. As there were twenty in a basket that made them about two cents a piece. It was a very attractive looking basket — until you got to the second layer. The top apples were red, large and evenly shaped. The bottom ones were green and some of them were mis-shapen. They certainly were not all first grade apples and the bottom layer was only suitable for cooking. The oranges happened to be on sale and were two dozen for a quarter. They were not the smallest size but were about medium and cost about one cent a piece or half the price of an apple. Each orange was stamped with its California brand name and the oranges were uniform in size and every orange perfect. Of all the things we buy for our table, I think we have more trouble getting a satisfactory apple than anything else. This was true in Nova Scotia as well as Ontario. We are an average family and I am perfectly sure that if we could get good apples consistently we would use about twice as many as we do. Export markets are fine to have but there is a large, constant home-market that is neglected. We can buy other graded food stuffs, and we women want to know the grade we are buying and to be sure of getting the grade we pay for. The purchase happened to be made in Apple Week. If they want the customer to use more apples, let the growers and dealers do their part.

VIRGINIA BAKED HAM

Ham for Easter ! That seems to be a tradition and most people like to follow it. A boiled ham is good but a Virginia baked ham with its sugary, spicy crust is something very special. The packing houses have a new curing and the ham may be baked without first boiling it. There are special directions with each ham so just follow them. I may say that I boiled one of the new-cured hams, as my oven was in use and it was impossible to bake it, and in two hours it was so tender it was falling from the bone. If you want to bake the old-fashioned ham, boil until tender, probably about three hours, then remove the rind. Rub brown sugar into the fat, using as much sugar as it will take, then dot with cloves and bake in a slow oven of 350 degrees for about an hour, until gently browned. A slow oven is necessary as the brown sugar burns easily. Serve either hot or cold. If you serve it hot, mashed potatoes, spinach and freshly made mustard are the things to serve with it. Some cooks like to rub mustard into the fat, but I prefer the flavor of just the sugar and cloves and then serve with mustard. Suit yourself.

Fee, Fi, Fo, Fum -- Fudge

By Betty Barclay

Old-fashioned fudge parties are coming back into popularity, along with the clothing styles of grandmother's day. I have found a new way to make a variety of fudge, using the delicious chocolate, butterscotch and vanilla arrowroot puddings to be found at the grocer's. Arrowroot digests easily and makes the mixture smooth and creamy. Here are recipes for making fudge easily with the economical puddings:

Chocolate Fudge

1 package chocolate arrowroot pudding, 1½ cups sugar, ⅔ cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla extract.

Put chocolate arrowroot pudding, sugar and milk into a sauce pan; cook until mixture reaches 234° F., or forms a medium ball in cold water. Stir occasionally while cooking to prevent sticking. Remove from fire; cool until lookwarm. Add butter and vanilla. Beat until creamy and thick; pour into buttered pan; cut into squares. One-half cup chopped nuts may be added before beating. Makes a little over one pound.

Butterscotch Fudge

1 package butterscotch arrowroot pudding,. 2 cups sugar, ⅔ cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Put butterscotch arrowroot pudding, sugar and milk into sauce pan; cook until mixture reaches 234° F., or forms a medium ball in cold water. Stir occasionally while cooking to prevent sticking. Remove from fire; cool until luke-warm. Add butter and vanilla. Beat until creamy and thick; pour into buttered pan; cut into squares. One-half cup of chopped nuts may be added before beating. Makes 1¼ pounds.

Orange Cocoanut Fudge

1 package vanilla arrowroot pudding, 2 cups sugar, ⅔ cups milk, ½ cup shredded cocoanut, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tsp. grated orange rind.

Put vanilla arrowfoot pudding, sugar, milk and cocoanut into sauce pan; cook until mixture reaches 234° F., or forms a soft ball in cold water. Stir occasionally while cooking to prevent sticking. Remove from fire; cool until lukewarm. Add butter and grated orange rind. Beat until creamy and thick; pour into buttered pan; cut into squares. Makes 1¼ pounds.

Argenteuil a County of Supervised Children

FEW PARENTS REALIZE THIS AREA IS WELL ORGANIZED, CHECKED AND TABULATED FOR PUBLIC HYGIENE

SAFEGUARD AGAINST EPIDEMICS, RESTRICTION OF CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

Do you know that in Argenteuil County last year .... ?

The total population was 20,103 — including
Children enrolled in public schools, 2,935;
Children under 5 years of age, 1,480;
Children under 1 year of age, 364.
Deaths from tuberculosis, 13;
Deaths, children under 1 year, 31;
Deaths, children under 1 month, 20.
Typhoid cases reported, 3;
Diphtheria, 0; Scarlet fever, 53;
Whooping cough, 15. Measles, 66.

These interesting facts are gleaned from the report of the Argenteuil Health Unit for 1938. The report for this county also shows that:—

70.7 per cent of children, aged 5 to 10, have received full series of the anti-diphtheria treatment.

The Unit staff made 2,275 family visits during the year;

Examined 275 persons for tuberculosis;

Made 1,376 sanitary inspections in the county;

Gave 189 health talks;

Examined 1,645 infants under 2 years and 3,155 school-children.

Distributed 6,406 health pamphlets, and —

Travelled a total of over 20,000 miles in the fulfilment of these duties.

It is also interesting to note that through the agency of the Provincial Health Unit all milk supplies in the county are submitted for bacteriological examination four times a year, as a routine procedure.

HOUSE AND HOME

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

After you have cleaned your light woodwork, go over it with a coat of wax, particularly around the doors where fingerprints are bound to collect. If you use one of the non-polishing waxes, no rubbing is necessary and the wax will wash off whenever you need to give a thorough cleaning. An absorbent cloth will remove spots from a waxed surface and cut down the necessity of frequent washings.

Last week I went to a sale — a real country auction — and I came home with some lovely old shells. One has a delicate pink lining and I shall keep it to hold pansies and other short-stemmed flowers. The others I am taking to a florist to fill with small plants that thrive in just a little earth. So if you have any old conch shells in your attic, get them out and clean them up and consider their possibilities. The rage for Victorian things brings shells and whatnots out of the garret.

Kitchen pots and pans can be kept bright and shining if you follow a few simple rules. Each material needs special treatment to prolong its life and beauty.

Glass baking dishes and glass flameware will remain clear if you soak them first in warm water and then scrape off the softened food with a limber spatula. Polish with a mild scouring powder, wash in hot soap suds and rinse in scalding water.

Enamelware must be handled carefully because it chips and scratches easily. Sudden changes in temperature cause it to crack and chip too. Soak in warm water and then polish with fine scouring powder on a soft cloth.

Aluminum will stand hard wear and plenty of "elbow grease." Scouring pads of steel wool containing a scouring soap will keep aluminum utensils bright and shining and help you do the task quickly and easily. Pans that have become discolored after foods or water containing iron or alkali have been cooked in them should be treated with a solution of vinegar and water. Allow two tablespoons of vinegar to a quart of water and boil in the stained pan.

Women's Department at the N.Z. Centennial Exhibition

Near the close of the present year, New Zealand will celebrate the completion of her first century of civilization, in the holding of a Centennial Exhibition. This national effort will be of greater scope than any ever previously held in the country, and is intended to place on view tokens of the development of its products, and of the use made of its natural resources.

A feature of the Exhibition will be a Country Woman's Court, in which the crafts and workmanship of the women from rural parts of the Dominion will be displayed.

The New Zealand Women's Institutes will be represented in this display, and will draw upon the wealth of material available for originality of design and in decorative work. These designs will be based on native flora and fauna, and also on the lines of Maori art, in order that the work may possess national characteristics.

Next December, when Canada will be settling down in the grip of the long winter, summer will be holding sway in New Zealand, as a background for this great national event.

In readiness for spring-cleaning, dispose of your surplus goods and furniture through a Watchman "For Sale" advt.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

The story of Cynthia Parker, who was kidnapped when a child by Indians, has been woven into an opera by a young Texan composer, Julia Smith, of New York City.

Cynthia, who was impersonated in a recent production of the opera with several Texans in the cast, grew up among the Indians and married a chieftain who had bestowed upon her the title of Princess. Miss Smith is a charter member and pianist of the Orchestrette Classique which is composed of twenty-eight women.

Latvia has presented its highest civil order, a star spangled cross, to Miss Gertrude Warren, economist in the 4-H. work of the extension service of the Department of Agriculture. Because the American Constitution forbids government employees to accept any valuable thing from a foreign state or ruler, Miss Warren may not wear the order though there is no reason why she may not wear it when she retires.

Miss Warren, in her extension work for the U.S. government, has aided the Latvian government in organizing youth clubs. Latvia is an agricultural country and through Miss Warren girls and boys there learned a great deal about household arts and sciences, food conservation, farm problems and crop rotation.

Mme. Anna Paradowska-Szelagowska, Poland's first woman senator, was for many years an officer of the United Bank of Polish Lands with signatory authority. She is now an accounting expert attached to the Polish courts.

Fifty girl students have enrolled in a new course in aerodynamics at the Women's Polytechnic School in Paris, preparing to take jobs as engineers in airplane factories. The course was suggested by motor and airplane manufacturers because of the scarcity of men engineers.

'Dolphin' Candlesticks Date From Century Ago

Among the earliest items to be sought by collectors for use as historical accessories years before the great vogue developed for either blown or pattern glass, were candlesticks, particularly those popularly known as "dolphins," writes Ruth Webb Lee in the American Collector. Since the demand was great and the supply limited, reproductions duly followed. Genuine dolphin candlesticks were made both early and late, but it is as easy to differentiate their periods as it is to "date" costumes.

The first specimens were produced probably by the Boston & Sandwich Glass company, perhaps as early as the 1830s, certainly during the 1840s. The first to appear on the market apparently were those with the large, single square base. They are larger, heavier and are found more often in the soft, delicate opaque shades which were more in favor at Sandwich than at any other glass works.

Next in importance and almost of the same period are those with a double square base. This style was reproduced many years ago. None of the reproductions appear to have originated here, but were brought to this country from Czechoslovakia, largely through a New York importing house.

Isle Noted for Loneliness

The loneliest place in the British empire is Tristan da Cunha, the largest and the only inhabited island of a group of three situated in the middle of the South Atlantic ocean and named for a Portuguese admiral, Tristan da Cunha, who discovered these rocks in the sea in 1506. There is but the barest means of sustenance on the island. Fertile soil is scant, being continually washed away by rains, and rodents poach upon the carefully tended gardens. The fish supply is plentiful except in stormy weather, when it is dangerous to venture out on the rolling sea. Tristan da Cunha is an extinct volcano, the crater of which is filled with fresh water. The nearest land is St. Helena, where Napoleon died, 1,320 miles away to the north, with Cape Town 1,400 miles to the east.

Semi Annual Meeting and Distribution of Prizes to Men Curlers Tonight

Both the semi-final and final games were played in the granite competition at the Curling Club last Thursday. Mr. John MacKimmie and his team were winners of this event. Three games were played during the evening, which brought an end to the season's program — and just in time, for on Friday the ice was unfit for use.

Tonight the semi-annual meeting and distribution of the season's prizes takes place.

Three Games to Complete Dis. Bowling Schedule

Last Friday evening the Brownsburg United bowlers visited Lachute United, winning the engagement in a final score of 18-11. This was the last scheduled game for the Lachute United teams.

Forward, Canada ! . . .

If Canada is to take her rightful place among the nations, she must first resolve the conflicts within hearing by finding the highest common denominator of national loyalty, high enough to include all Canadians and challenging enough to re-awaken the pioneering spirit of our forefathers, so that our fight for freedom may be a fight for discipline and not for license, so that freedom may truly mean mutual responsibility for one another, expressed through our productive, distributive, social and political systems.

Canada as a nation can move forward whenever we wish to drop our cynicism, see clearly that greed, exploitation, self interest and fear are the heaviest burdens of overhead our young nation has to bear, and accept nationally the endurance, vision, responsibility and genius for government which are our true heritage from God. The cry today is for patriots. The word patriot to many of us has lost its meaning. We must restore it. A patriot is a man who loves his country so dearly that he will give his life to restore her life, individual by individual, until reborn citizens unite to recreate their nation. Canada, awakened to her real peril and her real opportunity, unified through sacrifice and morally rearmed, can become again a great constructive force in Empire and world affairs.

Views Are Modified on Neutrality; Canada Would Have Little Choice

Clearer Thinking, Plainer Speaking in the House; Racial Objections Give Way to Need of Solidarity; Conscription Issue Appears Settled

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, April 11. — Not in many years have Canada's relations with the British Commonwealth and the rest of the world been so freely and fully discussed as in the recent four day debate in the Commons on foreign affairs. The debate, after a breather, was resumed when estimates of the Department of External Affairs were before the House. In the face of dangers the existence of which cannot be evaded or ignored, there was clear thinking and plain speaking on the floor of the House. It helped to clear the atmosphere and to define Canada's position in international affairs in a little sharper outline. It was pointed out by some of the speakers that in the present situation in the world, Canada could not hope to remain a detached peaceful oasis in time of trouble, immune from wars that might be shaking the world about it. Few attempted to forecast what part, if any, Canada would take in case of international conflict. Parliament would decide that tremendously important question. At the same time the great difficulties that would be entailed by Canada attempting to remain neutral in the event of Britain being drawn into conflict, were drawn clearly by a number of members. The right to remain neutral and the policy of neutrality were two different things. Strong pleas were made for Canadian unity. A national spirit should be fostered and any attempts to stir racial feeling should be smothered. It was stated by several speakers that it would be the will of the people of Canada that would determine whether this country would take part in a war in which Britain was involved. In case Britain was attacked and bombs rained on London, such a wave of feeling would sweep over Canada that any government who opposed participation would be thrown out of office. That was the opinion expressed by a number of members. At the same time there seemed pretty general unanimity that conscription for foreign service would not be considered. That policy would not be adopted.

GOVERNMENT'S AGRICULTURAL POLICY

A new agricultural policy for all Canada is being unfolded by the Government. Concerning grain, as is already well known, the 80 per cent guarantee for wheat which obtained for the last crop, has been abandoned for the harvest of 1939-40. A sixty cent per bushel initial payment will be made to farmers (basis delivery, Fort William for number one northern wheat) with participation in any higher price received. There will also be an acreage bonus on the following basis: acreage payments will be made in an emergency year — 1939 is declared an emergency year — of one dollar an acre on half the cultivated acreage in all townships with an average yield of from 11 to 15 bushels per acre; and two dollars and fifty cents per acre in all townships with an average yield of from 0 to 5 bushels per acre.

In the years of crop failure caused by grasshoppers or drought of proportions of a national calamity, those townships with an average of five bushels or under will receive the $2.50 an acre on half the cultivated acreage whether it's called an emergency year or not and irrespective of the price of wheat. This price stipulation refers to a provision for the 1939-40 crop that the acreage bonus will be paid in full if the average price from August to December is not more than 70 cents a bushel. If the price is above 70 cents, one-tenth will be taken off the bonus for every cent that the price is above 70 cents. When 80 cents is reached there will be no acreage bonus.

The sixty cent advance and the acreage bonus will ensure the farmer a minimum return for his cash crop. The acreage bonus is given on half the cultivated acreage (whether wheat is grown or not) up to 200 acres.

A charge of one per cent of all the grain which goes to the terminals forms part of a fund to cover this acreage insurance plan. The remainder of the funds which may be necessary will be provided by the public treasury. The same principle is involved as in employment insurance, if adopted.

This acreage insurance is only part of a plan which will cover other branches of agriculture as well. In relation to grain, a bill will be introduced providing for the initial payment of 60 cents a bushel. There will be a measure to encourage co-operative marketing and to regulate the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. As explained by the Minister of Agriculture in Parliament, the Government is seeking to inaugurate a permanent plan, to formulate a national agricultural policy." It will endeavor with the approval of Parliament to lay down some general principle that can be applied to the dairy industry, livestock, fruit industry and other branches of agriculture.

The new agricultural policy will apply to all Canada, not to the West alone. The dairy industry has been putting forward its claims for some time to some measure of assistance from the Government. A plan is being considered of buying up the surplus of four million pounds of butter and issuing it as a measure of relief. A bill has been promised for the encouragement of the cheese industry. It is stated that the Government will give some sort of bonus for high grade cheese. This will help to improve the quality of Canadian cheese, which already ranks high, and give the quality greater uniformity. Assistance will also be given by the Government to the construction and improvement of cheese factories.

SPY LAWS TO BE STRICTER

In these stern and trying days in international affairs, Canada will tighten its defence against the work of spies. A strict band of secrecy will surround munition plants. The change in the criminal code, which will shortly be introduced will, it is believed, embrace similar provisions to some of those contained in the British Official Secrets Act. The object is to prevent our program of national defence being imperilled by hostile agents.

"Pressing" His Way Across Dominion

Ernest Champou, who stopped off at Lachute on a cycle trip across Canada in 1937, is again hitting the trail. Equipped with a can of gasoline, a pressing jacket and an iron, the 35-year-old French-Canadian started out by bicycle from Vancouver this week to dry clean his way to Halifax.

Champou, who cycled from Vancouver to Montreal in 1937, plans to travel about 25 or 50 miles a day, working his way across the continent by cleaning and pressing clothes wherever he stops.

100 Club Affairs Seen in Thriving Condition

YEAR'S REPORTS HEARD AND NEW BOARD APPOINTED

Linton W. Armstrong Is Elected New President

A satisfactory year's record was reviewed by the Hundred Club last evening at their supper and annual meeting held in Desjardins Hotel. The secretary's report, presented by Centurion L. Armstrong, gave a creditable accounting of social service work and achievements, while the treasurer's statement, given by Centurion L. Rozon, showed a favorable balance of finances.

The meeting opened under the chairmanship of Vice-President W. K. McArthur, and the retiring president, Geo. Héon, M.P., later assumed the chair. Serious discussion on the club's organization and procedures was heard in various speeches, this being a strictly business gathering for furtherance of the group's efforts and election of its officers for the ensuing year.

The slate of appointments was as follows: president, Linton W. Armstrong; 1st vice-president, Léonard Bedard; 2nd vice-president, W. K. McArthur; secretary, Geo. F. Calder; treasurer, Roger Gravel. Directors — R. Legault, D. Titman, L. Rozon, M. Navion, A. Prégent.

Following a few constructive and appreciative remarks by the retiring president, the president-elect assumed his new role and gave expression to some stimulating ideas for development of the club's objectives.

There were about 20 members in attendance.

The meeting closed with the national anthem.

Mid-Stream Amusement Park Mooted as Hawkesbury Relief Measure

PLAN TO DEVELOP ISLAND IN OTTAWA RIVER

If plans materialize, Hawkesbury is to have a modern amusement park this year. The project is being put forward as a measure to relieve the unemployment situation.

The proposed plan is to acquire Cobb Island, situated about 100 feet from shore in the Ottawa River, clear the land and construct a modern park and recreation grounds. In summer it is planned to have an up-to-date sand bathing beach, quarter-mile race track, baseball and football fields, and an open air dance pavilion. During the winter an open air skating rink, ski jump and bob-sled run would be constructed. Prominent business men and organizations are said to be behind the scheme; several local men expressed themselves as willing to form a company and finance the project. With 368 heads of families on relief, representing 2,035 persons, or over one-third of the population of the town, it was pointed out that the scheme would relieve this situation for several months at least.

Montreal Traffic Is Blocked Again by 6-Ft. Snowdrifts

UNUSUAL CONDITIONS FOR APRIL ADD TO HIGH COST OF ROAD CLEARING

A snowplow and 60 men with shovels were despatched Tuesday morning to tackle snow which packed during the previous night in the traffic-way this side of St. Hermas on the Montreal route. The drifts, which filled the narrow cut maintained by Laurentian Roads equipment over the windswept flats at this section, were from four to six feet deep, and the road was completely blocked for a two-mile stretch.

Citizens returning from Montreal to Lachute in the early hours of Tuesday morning were stranded at St. Hermas all night. The road was not cleared for traffic until 5 p.m. on Tuesday.

Arrested and Sentenced on Charge of Damaging Local Property

IN QUARRELSOME MOOD, BROKE PLATE-GLASS DOOR

Arrested by Constable A. Gervais Saturday evening in the West Ward, Edmond Massie, of Lachute, was lodged in the town jail until opening of the court room on Tuesday. Facing private prosecution to the charge of damaging property belonging to Geo. Y. Deacon, the prisoner pleaded guilty. Magistrate Geo. Rodger heard the case, and imposed a fine of $3 and $24.10 costs, or 10 days in jail.

Allegedly under the influence of liquor, Massie had entered into an argument with Mr. Deacon at his store in Lachute Mills. Becoming quarrelsome he was ejected from the premises, and had then kicked at the front door, breaking the plate glass.

A foreman for M. Frascarelli, contractor, for whom Massie had worked, guaranteed bail for the prisoner and Massie was released.

New Industry for Historic Site at St. Andrews

REPORTED WOOLLEN PLANT TO ESTABLISH IN OLD PAPER MILL BUILDING

It is learned on good authority that a syndicate has been formed to take over the old Western Quebec Paper Mills at St. Andrews East for the purpose of manufacturing woollens. This mill, on the site of the first paper mill erected in Canada, was renovated and put into working shape several years ago by the Western Quebec Paper Mills Limited, but after operating for a short time in the manufacture of special tissues, the machinery became idle and the plant was closed down. It is reported that repairs are now being effected in the flume and other parts of the property. Equipment is also being procured for the manufacture of certain varieties of woollen goods.

The following gentlemen are mentioned as associated with the promotion of this new industry — Messrs. L. T. Porter, Selwyn Irwin, John Allan, Col. W. D. Evans — which information, however, is not officially confirmed.

TWO NEW POSTAGE STAMPS FOR CANADA

Above are two new Canadian postage stamps issued to commemorate the visit to the Dominion of Their Majesties the King and Queen. The top stamp is red and black and carries portraits of Their Majesties. The bottom stamp is green and black and shows new portraits of the Princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. The stamps are scheduled to be issued on the 15th of May, the day on which the King and Queen are expected to arrive in Canada.

Property Improvement On Main Street

Work has been started on the renovation of Wilbur Walker's store property on Main Street. Extensive repairs are being made, and when finished with a new front, the building should present a much finer appearance and another addition to the Main Street's growing line-up of bright, modern stores.

Votes of thanks were expressed to the retiring officers and all who ha contributed in any way to the s son's activities.

Practical Aspects Of Lionism Make Stirring Topic

ARE WE LIVING LIONISM IN OUR DAILY LIFE?

Address Given Here by District Governor

A stirring address was delivered by District Governor J. J. Brown, of Bowmanville, on his recent visit to the local Lions Club with a delegation from Montreal. This meeting was reported in last issue, and The Watchman reproduces herewith the full text of Mr. Brown's remarks.

Lionism in our daily life is not a finished product. We are just learning how to apply Lionism to our daily routine of living.

We are good Lions at our meetings. We entertain high resolves and noble purposes. We offer ourselves for community betterment. We are, in short, 100 percenters. But all too often we leave our high and noble resolutions in the club room or meeting place.

We must live Lionism in our daily lives. We must give lionism a chance to accomplish its purposes through us, its individual members, in our daily intercourse with the world.

I hardly expect to cover this subject fully. No man can entirely compass this theme in all its magnitude, but may I in a few minutes endeavor to touch upon just a few points.

First of all — what is Lionism? — It is a huge success. No one can deny that, when you consider the growth from 150 Clubs to over 3,000 Clubs in a few years.

Can we definitely define Lionism? — That would be difficult.

1. Some might say it is good and progressive citizenship which helps us to pay a portion of the rent for the space we occupy on this earth. 2. Some might say that Lionism is the work of man carrying out the will of God. But whatever way you wish to define it, if we could but live our daily lives according to the Lions' Code of Ethics or the Lions Clubs' Six Objects, what wonderful citizens we would be. — But do we? I will not take the time to read to you those objects, but with such an array of aims and purposes, who can deny Lionism an outstanding place in modern society. Of course such a position carries with it a challenge for us to be of lasting and genuine service to humanity. How are we answering that challenge in our daily lives?

Consider the part of Object 1: — To create and foster a spirit of generous consideration among the peoples of the world. . . Are we gentlemen in our daily lives as kindly and considerate as we should be? How many times in our daily routine have we forgotten this? How many times have you and I overheard or possibly even made remarks that might better be left unsaid or unheard? Let me read to you a few lines that I think expresses this thought — "It's a pretty good plan to forget it." (Verses printed elsewhere on this page).

Consider Object 3:—Take an active interest in the civic, commercial, social and moral welfare of the community. . . Most of us do to a certain extent, but it is not always a constructive interest. We are prone to criticize the other fellow for his efforts and yet we would not accept his position if it were offered us. We ridicule civic bodies. We look for black spots in leaders of social, political, fraternal, religious and service organizations. That, gentlemen, is not living Lionism in our daily lives.

NEW STAMP

Another new Canadian stamp, showing the Canadian National Memorial in Ottawa, which will be released in May to commemorate the visit to the Dominion of the King and Queen.

Forget It!

If you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd,
A leader of men, marching fearless and proud,
And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud,
Would cause his proud head to in anguish be bowed —
IT'S A PRETTY GOOD PLAN TO FORGET IT.

If you know of a skeleton hidden away,
In a closet and guarded and kept from the day
In the dark; and whose showing, whose sudden display
Would cause grief and sorrow and lifelong dismay —
IT'S A PRETTY GOOD PLAN TO FORGET IT.

If you know of a thing that will darken the joy
Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy,
That will wipe out a smile or the least way annoy
A fellow, or cause any gladness to cloy —
IT'S A PRETTY GOOD PLAN TO FORGET IT.

— Verses cited by District Governor J. J. Brown at a meeting of the Lachute Lions Club March 30th.

Three Men Who Built Well and Truly...

PIONEER ANTECEDENTS OF WELL-KNOWN FAMILIES IN THIS SECTION

● By IRENE O. CARON, M.A.

(1) GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD

On the way to Durham, in Nottinghamshire, is a small village called Austerfield, and in the Austerfield Church a tablet bears the following inscription:

"This aisle was built in A.D. 1897 by the Society of Mayflower Descendants and other citizens of the United States of America in memory of Governor William Bradford, who was born at Austerfield and baptized in this church on the 19th of March, 1589. He was the first American citizen of the English race who bore rule by the free choice of his brethren."

Such was the tribute paid to William, son of William Bradford, more than three hundred years after he was born in the Manor House at Austerfield, the heir to considerable landed inheritance. The font in the church where he was baptized may still be seen today.

When about thirty-one years of age, he sailed for the New World in the Mayflower with the Pilgrim Fathers, and was appointed director of religion during the voyage. "The Mayflower sailed September 5, 1620. 'Plymouth Barbicain,' is the name of the house in which the Pilgrim Fathers slept the night before they sailed, the number of them being one hundred and twenty, and they sailed from Plymouth." When they landed in New England, they called their point of landing "Plymouth" after the place from which they had set sail. An interesting sidelight on the landing place of the Pilgrim Fathers is that, having read the writings of Sir Walter Raleigh and his fellow-explorers, they had debated whether they should set their course for British Guiana or Massachusetts.

William Bradford was made Governor of Plymouth, Massachusetts. In May, 1657, he passed away, "Lamented," says Mather, "by all the colonies of New England as a common blessing and father of them all." He was laid to rest amid the fathers of New England on the brow of Burial Hill at Plymouth, and, in 1825, a marble monument was erected to mark the spot where he and his son William are interred.

(2) THE REVEREND RICHARD BRADFORD

In 1789, Richard, another member of the Bradford family, left England for the New World. He settled in Canada. In his early manhood he had been a midshipman on Captain Cooke's vessel and sailed around the world with him. Later, he returned to England and went in for the ministry. After he took Holy Orders, he was connected with Norwich Cathedral. He became Chaplain of the British 49th Regiment and Chaplain to King George III, serving as minister in the church that Queen Charlotte attended. Queen Charlotte was the wife of George III, and, among her Ladies-in-Waiting was charming Lady Sarah Jeffreys, who won the heart of the Reverend Richard and married him while she was at Court. We read that, in later years, when they crossed the sea to Canada with their family, "they took a whole ship's cabin to themselves."

They sold their property before they left England and brought all their gold with them and "it was so heavy that it took a yoke of oxen to draw it," but they lost it all here. Richard had taken a partner after his arrival and left him in charge of some business one time while he went on a missionary trip among the Indians. When he returned, he found that his partner had decamped with all his money. That left him poor — poor but as "Lion-hearted" as another Richard of England had been.

The Reverend Richard Bradford was the first Anglican clergyman in the Ottawa Valley. St. Andrews East, Quebec, is where he set up his first church. He was rector there for nine years; and two years of his ministry was spent at William Henry, now Sorel. He served the Church of England in Canada from 1805 until the year of his death in 1816. In recognition of his services the British Government had made him a grant of one thousand acres of land in the Township of Chatham. This land was at St. Philippe, Quebec, and west of Lachute, where the Hammond farm now is.

His daughter, Harriet, married Joseph Abbott and was the mother of Sir John Abbott, who became the first Canadian-born Premier of Canada.

From his son, George Bradford, descended many prominent residents of the Ottawa Valley — among them the Bradfords and Hammonds of Lachute, the MacAllisters of Chute à Blondeau, the McConnells of Cushing, and the Cookes of Arundel.

The crest of the Bradford family consists of a deer's head above the motto "Fier et Sage," (Proud and Wise). The deer signifies their love of the chase and adventure, for when they were not sailing the seas or serving their country in some way, they loved to hunt, and, in the early days up along the Ottawa, it was no uncommon sight to see one of the Bradfords in his red coat riding to hounds.

(3) CAPTAIN JAMES COOK, R.N.

We should not have the full story of Richard Bradford's life, did we not know a little about the life of the great navigator with whom he spent some of his early impressionable years.

Accompanying Captain Cook on one of his voyages of discovery, Richard became converted during a storm and shipwreck at sea, but, no doubt, before this gale, had been inspired by the great navigator who played such a valient part in aiding General Wolfe to take Quebec in 1759 that he was granted a Royal Charter to explore the South Seas, and, about 1778, sighted the Hawaiian Islands, previously unknown to the rest of the world.

Besides being a great sailor, Captain Cook was a great social reformer, and took an interest in the men under him. We are told that — "The usual diet of common sailors on trips like this consisted of rancid butter, salt meat, worm-eaten oatmeal, and beer, but Captain Cook made the sailors eat fresh food whenever possible. He brought them onions and fresh meat and made them drink lemon and orange juice. The men never knew what the Captain was going to spring on them next. One day it might be sauerkraut, the next cocoanut milk, and the next cooked grass which had been gathered from an island. Sometimes Captain Cook had to order a man flogged for refusing to eat the fresh food he provided.

He made the sailors keep themselves, their hammocks and their ships clean. He had the cabins smoked out frequently. The men grumbled but they respected Captain Cook and obeyed his orders. As a result he lost only one man from disease on a trip which lasted for three years and eighteen days. This was a magnificent achievement. He opened up a whole new world to the people who made the geographies — the world of the South Seas, but he did something much more important — he helped to open up a whole new field to the people who made the health laws — the field of hygiene. He was one of the first men to show what cleanliness and proper food can do. Before his day many sailors who were on shipboard for a long time caught a disease called scurvy — one of the greatest bugbears of sea-faring men. It often attacked the gums and jawbones, but, as early as 1769, Captain Cook discovered that orange juice would make the teeth and bones of the mouth strong again."

In 1779, a year after he had discovered the Hawaiian Islands and named them the Sandwich Islands in honor of the Earl of Sandwich, the first Lord of the Admiralty, Captain Cook died, and was buried at Kealakekus Bay, Hawaii. Today one may see his monument standing there amid the palm-trees on the only spot of British soil within the territory of the United States.

DEFIANT

Premier Armand Calinescu of Rumania, who stated that Rumania would fight against any invasion of her territory, regardless of the attitude of other nations on the question.

Says Canadian National Workers Better Off

Allan Meikle, a member of two unions, one of which is the One Big Union of Winnipeg, told the Senate Committee that C.N. employees were better off, generally, even though the basic rates are the same. He cited the week's holidays with pay and the non-contributory pension plan as two examples.

Rabbits Damage Trees

Damage amounting to several hundred dollars has been caused in the district around Lacolle by rabbits stripping the bark from young trees, and many large orchards throughout the district have suffered considerably. Young cherry and maple trees suffered the heaviest loss. It is believed that the heavy snowfalls of the past winter forced the rabbits to gnaw the young trees as their only source of nourishment.

Would-Be Stand-Ins for King and Queen

A good-looking Maritimes couple are seeking jobs as "stand-ins" for the King and Queen during their forthcoming visit to Canada, government officials arranging the tour have revealed. The husband wrote that he and his wife closely resemble the royal couple and could easily take their place for the more tiresome processions. Scores of similar incredible letters are arriving daily in government postbags.

The Price Tag Shouts TOP VALUE!

PRICED RIGHT DOWN WITH THE LOWEST

YOU'LL look twice at the Pontiac price tag before you believe it! For the tag shouts TOP VALUE from bumper to bumper. The car's so big and beautiful — radiant with new distinction and packed with top-notch features, yet down with the lowest in price, down as much as $100 compared with last year.

Smarter looking — smarter performing — easier handling — a wonderful "roader" — and money-saving from the word "go"! That's the Pontiac story — and it means a whale of a lot to you, if you're out for all that's new and better at a price you want to pay. See and drive the two great Pontiacs — the "Arrow" and the "Chieftain". Convenient terms provided by the General Motors Instalment Plan.

YOUTH HOSTELS IN CANADA

There are thousands and thousands of people in this Dominion who have hiked, but it has been mainly on the lookout for work. Somehow or other this is not a country of walkers or hikers for pleasure. We build highways for cars but leave the pedestrian out of account, and a walk along a country road is robbed of much of its pleasure in dodging automobiles.

Despite the handicaps, however, hikers and cyclists appear to be increasing in numbers — so much so that the movement for youth hostels is on the way. New impetus is being given to hiking in Canada by a movement known as the Youth Hostels Association, already registered in a number of countries. The aim of youth hostels is everywhere the same — to enable young people to enjoy hiking and cycling in the beautiful outdoors of Europe and North America; to enable youth to find wholesome companionship along the road, travelling inexpensively, and acquiring a knowledge of their neighbor's land and customs as well as their own. One of the codes of the hikers is that they pledge themselves to leave the countryside unmarred as a result of their travel in it.

The youth hostels idea began in Europe in 1911, as the practical dream of a German schoolmaster. Since its inception, youth in millions upon the open roads of Europe have advanced youth hostelling from a national to an international influence. In 1930 hostels were opened in England; in 1933 one opened in Canada, and in 1934 the movement spread to the United States. Today there are thousands of hostels in forty different countries with several millions of members. As youth hostels concern themselves not at all with the religious or political beliefs, or social positions of members, the movement more and more is lessening racial distinctions.

So far Canada has but a dozen or more hostels and a scant hundred members. The first youth hostel in Canada was opened in the foothills of Alberta, and a total of twelve now forms a chain from the E. P. Ranch to the town of Banff in Banff National Park. In 1937 Canada was the twentieth country to be admitted to the International Youth Hostels Association, and extensive organization work is now being carried on to extend the movement from the Maritimes to British Columbia.

LARGE CITIES LACK COMMUNITY LIFE

There is a feeling gaining ground that the highest conception of community life is not to be found in the overgrown large centres of population, where the sense of tradition of neighborhood and local pride become almost entirely lost, while smaller areas of community life would lead to a strengthening of the character and morale of the public conscience.

—Canon S. T. G. Smith in Town and Country Planning

THE PRICE WE PAY

For civic, for economic and for reasons of safety, the location of industry in the modern state must be planned or we pay the price.

A part of the price is even now being exacted from us in the meaningless sprawl of the modern city, the cold impersonality of city life, tepid civic interest, and the progressive destruction of the older centres of industrial activity.

— Aneurin Bevan

THE DOUBLE STANDARD

We may meet in conventions until doomsday, we may discuss water and tax rates, law enforcement and violation, citizenship and partisanship, graft and embezzlement, malfeasance and misfeasance and all the varied forms of cussedness that political trickery or everyday dishonesty can conceive, but the millennium of civic administration will yet be far away until we cease to have one standard by which we judge offenders against private interest and property and a very different standard of judgment for offenders against municipalities and public interests of all kinds.

— Stanley E. Parkhill, Treasurer, Michigan Municipal League.

PARKING METERS

From every standpoint, Portland's experiment with parking meters is a demonstrated success. Traffic conditions in the congested district where they operate have improved. More people are enabled to drive to or near the stores they wish to visit because long-time parking is greatly reduced.

On the money side the meters not only have paid for themselves, but the city has benefited to the extent of $50,000 in additional revenues. From now on the rate of benefit will be doubled. Funds are thus provided for improvements in traffic control which it would not have been easy to finance otherwise.

Objections to the innovation have come largely from people who object to any sort of change. Most recognize that a charge of five cents for an hour's parking downtown is reasonable and just. —Portland Oregonian

CIVICS AS A SCIENCE

The great and numerous subjects connoted by the term Civics are of quite sufficient importance to constitute a department of instruction and investigation in our universities. If business men have found it wise to found university departments for the scientific study of Commerce, it is at least of equal importance that Civics should also find its place in our highest places of learning. There is no doubt that city surveys, civic exhibitions, and the science of town-planning, are generating a new educational movement in Great Britain and in the United States as well as in Europe, and we cannot afford to let such a movement pass us by. There is a School of Civics in Dublin, there is another in Edinburgh, and the movement has been extended to Birmingham, Liverpool, Newcastle and other places. A beginning might well be made in Canadian universities, until the pressure of public opinion demanded greater facilities, by the establishment of fellowships in Civics, linked to the present departments of Economics.

CONCRETE HOUSES FOR GLASGOW

According to The County and Municipal Record (Scotland) instructions have been given to the Glasgow Director of Housing to prepare designs for the erection of 1000 houses to be built of poured concrete. An experimental block containing four houses has been built of this material on a site at Carntyne.

The ground at Carntyne has been reserved for municipal housing, and a provisional decision was taken some time ago by the Housing Committee to use it in part for timber houses and in part for concrete building.

This intention has been subject to some reconsideration of late in view of objections to the proximity at certain points of the proposed housing to existing factories, and the matter is still being pondered by the committee.

For the scheme now projected of 1000 concrete houses it is proposed to use a site at Pennilee Estate, Hillington, a flat area of ground near the new Industrial Estate. With this change of site there may be a modification in the purpose of the scheme in respect that it may be directed to decrowding rather than to rehousing. That, however, is a point that is still under consideration.

This question of embarking on a large scheme of poured or cellular concrete houses—which have the advantage that they can be built without entrenching on the supply of bricklaying labour—was dealt with by the Sites and Buildings Sub-Committee of Housing recently.

This committee agreed to instruct the director to prepare six different designs for variety of architecture in the erection of 1000 houses on the ground at Hillington. The houses are to be of three and four apartments.

The sub-committee recommend that authority be given to the housing convenor and the chief architect of the Department to visit Stockholm for the purpose of inspecting schemes of concrete housing which have been carried out there.

T. C. A. Passenger Service Unites East and West

APRIL 1, 1939 is a memorable date in Canadian history. On that Saturday night the Trans-Canada Air Lines inaugurated its passenger service linking Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, North Bay, Winnipeg, Regina, Lethbridge and Vancouver, with connections to Calgary and Edmonton, Victoria, Seattle, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Prince Albert and North Battleford. The photographs above were taken just before the first planes left Vancouver and Montreal.

1. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, who officially opened the service, with H. J. Symington, K.C., and Wilfrid Gagnon, directors of T.C.A., photographed at St. Hubert Airport. Two years ago, Mr. Howe and Mr. Symington made the "dawn-to-dusk" flight across the continent which was the preliminary to the regular schedules now in effect. The stewardess is Annette Brunelle.

2. Trans-Canada's first baby passenger was little Miss Malleck of Victoria, B.C. With her mother, wife of E. Malleck, Victoria merchant, she flew to Winnipeg on the first flight. She is 10 months old.

3. Shirley Hudson, 10 years old, of New Westminster, B.C., "christening" the big Lockheed at Vancouver. In the bottle were the mingled waters of the Fraser and St. Lawrence rivers, symbolic of the closer union of the widespread Canadian provinces.

4. Johnson to Johnson—"Happy Landings!" W. H. Johnson, Jr., grain broker and prominent member of the Montreal Board of Trade, bought the first ticket out of Montreal. He flew to Winnipeg. Philip G. Johnson, Vice-President of T.C.A. (right) is speeding him on his way.

Going by Car? Then Here Are Some Tips

Soon several million motorists will be off on automibile tours. But not all will have the good time they expect. Headaches, backaches, and grief await many of them. Yet Paul W. Kearney, in the current Rotarian Magazine, indicates that these annoyances can be cut to a minimum by heeding a few common sense rules. Here is a condensed list of his do's and dont's for motorists:

1. Eat lightly while on a tour. Heavy eating causes drowsiness.
2. Stop now and then for a rest. Play catch or hang by your hands from a tree limb.
3. Take an emergency can of gasoline. One and a half million motorists ran out of gas last year.
4. Avoid excessive fatigue. If you must drive when fagged out, reduce speed and use extra caution.
5. Take along duplicate car keys but let someone besides the driver carry them.
6. Carry a tire gauge. When driving on a hot day, check tire pressures.
7. Have a block of wood suitable for use under your jack on soft ground.

Weather Signs

As a collector of saws on weather, Donald Goddard has come up with the following on the Goodyear Farm Radio News program on NBC: "Frost year, fruit year"; "Year of snow, fruit will grow"; "March damp and warm, does farmers much harm"; "If red the sun begins his race, be sure no rain will fall apace."

Perseverence, Plus

A life insurance agent called upon a big business man at the close of a busy day. When the agent had been admitted, the business man said:

"You ought to feel highly honored, young fellow. Do you know that today I have refused to see seven insurance men ?"

"I know," said the agent, "I'm them !"

Gas Tax Increased

The proposal to increase the tax on gasoline in Ontario to eight cents per gallon is being watched with intense interest in this province, because if the tax is put into effect in Ontario and does not cause too much trouble it will most certainly be put into effect here in Quebec.

It makes no difference that the motorists are carrying the heavy burden of the province, contributing about half the total revenue. If the government thinks it can get away with eight cents a gallon, then the tax will be raised. Therefore the experience of Ontario is of tremendous interest to everyone in Quebec.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Eustache Raymond and family in their bereavement. Miss L. Raymond passed away on Monday, her funeral being held from the Roman Catholic Church on Thursday morning.

The Senior Mission Circle of Maple Avenue Baptist Church held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. J. A. Campbell in Dalesville on Tuesday afternoon. As this was the annual meeting, the following officers were elected for the coming year : president, Mrs. Allen Kennedy; vice-president, Mrs. J. A. Campbell; sec.-treas., Mrs. H. Graham. It was decided to make Mrs. Robert Tomalty a Jubilee life member of the Missionary Circle.

The Brownsburg W.I. held their monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, April 6, at the Social Club. The president, Mrs. N. E. Smillie, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of the Ode and repeating the Creed. The convenor for the afternoon, Mrs. C. Stephens, for Canadian Industries, read an interesting article on carpets, their origin and the way they are made, a topic which was enjoyed by all present. Sunshine bags were brought in, and each convenor presented an item of interest in her department. A letter from Hutton and Corrie Rural Institute also was read. Easter cards were sent to shut-ins. A poem, "My Cross, Not His," was read by the president, and the meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

OBITUARY

THE LATE H. J. NEILL

Many relatives and sympathizing friends gathered at St. Aidan's Church, Louisa, on Thursday afternoon, April 6th, to pay tribute to the memory of the late Henry Jackson Neill, whose death occurred on Tuesday, April 4th. The Rev. C. W. P. Baugh officiated.

Deceased gentleman, who was in his 85th year, was born in Louisa about one mile from where he had resided for the past 55 years. A son of the late John Neill and Maria Cruise, he was the last of a family of twelve children. He was married in 1894 to Miss Mary Beattie, who survives him. To their union were born nine children, three dying at infancy; six still remain — three daughters, Mrs. Orrin Gordon, of Louisa, Mrs. Rennison Davidson, of Montreal, Mrs. Stanley Holt, of Lachute; and three sons, Andrew, of Lachute, Clarence, of Dunany, and Herbert at home.

He was a devoted member of the Anglican Church and took deep interest in its welfare, serving for many years as warden in St. Aidan's, Louisa. He was also greatly interested in the Orange Order. Having joined the L.O.L. No 717 when he was seventeen, he proved himself a faithful worker and served as secretary for over 20 years.

The late Mr. Neill was of a quiet disposition, and was respected and loved by those who knew him intimately.

The pall-bearers were his two sons-in-law, Rennison Davidson and Stanley Holt, his nephew, Henry Neill, Albert and Gordon Tomalty and Robert Gain, neighbors.

A short and impressive service was conducted by the members of the Orange Order at the grave. Floral wreaths were many and beautiful, testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

THE LATE THOS. H. GAULEY

Grenville — There passed away at his late residence in Grenville on April 4th, one of our esteemed citizens in the person of Thomas Horner Gauley, in his 87th year.

Mr. Gauley was the son of the late Robert Gauley, who immigrated from Ireland, and Jane Horner, his wife, of Chatham, Que.

Mr. Gauley had been in failing health for many years, but was able to go about his home until about six weeks ago when he suffered an attack of grippe, which gradually weakened him until the end came peacefully on the morning of April 4th.

Mr. Gauley was a member of Grenville Baptist Church and a constant reader of his Bible. He had a retentive memory, not only for incidents, but for days and dates of interest.

The funeral took place from his late residence to Grenville United Church, owing to road conditions, and thence to the cemetery adjoining St. Matthew's Church. The service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. R. Simpson, assisted by Rev. W. A. Dempsey, and the commital service by Rev. K. N. Brueton, rector of St. Matthew's.

The pall-bearers were his five sons — Willie, Eddie, Coral, Walter and Fred, and his son-in-law, Ernest Laumellier.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, formerly Margaret Arnold; three daughters — Emma, Mrs. John Steele, of Regina, Sask.; Nellie, Mrs. Hugh Madden, of Brookdale, Que.; Bertha, Mrs. Ernest Laumellier, of Farnham, Que.; and six sons — John, Willie, Coral and Walter, all of Grenville; Eddie, of Chatboro, and Fred, of Kilmar. He is mourned also by 31 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

THE LATE FRANK GOLDTHORPE

Morin Heights — After a long illness, borne with Christian fortitude and patience, there passed away at Morin Heights on Good Friday, April 7th, Mr. Frank Goldthorpe, in his 59th year.

Born in Sheffield, England, in 1880, he came to Canada in 1892. Since that time the greater part of his life had been spent in this vicinity, being employed with the Argenteuil Lumber Company for the past 27 years.

The deceased was an elder and a steward of the United Church, also a member of the choir; in the church he will be greatly missed, having taken an active part in all its work.

He leaves to mourn his loss a devoted wife and a loving daughter, Elma.

The funeral service, conducted by Rev. David Anderson, was held in the United Church on Sunday, April 9th, at 3 p.m., and was very largely attended. Beautiful flowers bore silent tribute to the memory of one who was both honored and respected by all who knew him.

The pall-bearers were Messrs D. Davis, Wm. Doherty, Joseph Brown, Chas. Campbell, Carl Seale and Melvin Dey.

Those who attended the funeral from a distance were—Mrs. Dunlop, Mrs. Brown, Messrs Geo. Brown and Alfred Kerr, of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Kerr, of Lakefield.

FORMER MINISTER PASSES

The death occurred at Lossiemouth, Scotland, recently, of Rev. W. E. Morgan, minister of Moyness for the past nine years and favorably remembered as Baptist pastor here in Lachute about 30 years ago. Mr. Morgan received his ministerial training in London, came to Lachute to occupy the Baptist charge for several years, and returned later to the Old Country. He won the esteem of his clerical colleagues in Scottish pastorates. Doing relief work in the United Free Church of Scotland during the war, he was ordained a minister in that denomination.

Mr. Morgan is survived by his wife.

LATE MISS R. E. SCOTT

On Saturday, April 8th, Miss Ruby Evelyn Scott, daughter of Mrs. Scott and the late John P. Scott, of West Gore Road, passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Graham, Lachute, with whom she spent the last three months of her life.

For upwards of 20 years Miss Scott made her home with her brother, Mr. William Scott, in Oxbow, Sask. But following her father's death some 3 years ago, she came back east to be with her widowed mother, and her brother, Wallace, on the old homestead.

Miss Scott was one of quiet demeanor and retiring disposition, but a woman of sterling moral character. She was highly respected by all with whom she came in contact, and was greatly beloved by those who knew her real worth.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. John P. Scott; three sisters, Mrs. Percy Pearson (Sadie), of Oxbow, Sask., Mrs. Walker Scott (Helen), and Mrs. William Graham, (Ethel), of Lachute; and 2 brothers, Wallace, of West Gore Road, and William in the West. The sympathy of many friends goes out to them in their sorrow.

The funeral service took place on Monday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Graham, Bedard Blvd. Rev. W. B. Rosborough, of Lachute United Church, officiated, and spoke words of comfort to the bereaved.

The hymns sung were: "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "Abide with me." The pall-bearers were Messrs. Gordon Pollock, Silas Elder, Randolph Rogers, Gordon, Edgar and Melvin Scott. Interment took place in the Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

THE LATE REVEREND FATHER LEON LAVIGNE

After a long illness the Rev. Father Léon Lavigne passed away on April 10th, at his residence in Lachute Mills. Born on April 11th, 1890, he was ordained a priest in 1915. He was Professor of English in Ste. Therese for a number of years — later being transferred to the Parish of St. Anselme in Montreal and thence to the Parish of St. Ambroise.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Augustin Lavigne of this town. He is survived by three brothers and three sisters, namely, Henry Lavigne, of Lachute Mills, Charles, of Ottawa, and Omer, of Senneterre, Abitibi; sisters — the Reverend Sister Ste. Augustine (Eva) of Ahuntsic Convent, Mrs. Joseph Legault, (Antionette) of Ste. Scholastique, and Miss Albertine, of Montreal. He was also a cousin of Dr. and Notary Lavigne, Miss J. Lavigne and Mrs. O. Paquette.

The removal of the remains from his home to Ste. Anastasie Church took place yesterday, where the body remained till after the service, held this morning at 11 o'clock.

Interment was made at the Lachute cemetery. The last rites were attended by a large gathering of friends, relatives and clerical colleagues.

BIRTH

DEATH

GAULEY — At his late residence, Grenville, Que., April 4th, 1939, Thomas Horner Gauley, in his 87th year, beloved husband of Margaret Arnold.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

GAULEY — The family of the late Thos. H. Gauley wish to express their sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for kindness and sympathy, and also for floral tributes, in their recent bereavement.

NEILL —Mrs. H. J. Neill and family wish to acknowledge with grateful appreciation the many messages of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes received during their recent loss of a dear husband and father.

SCOTT — We wish to acknowledge with grateful appreciation the many kindnesses shown to us by our friends and neighbors during our recent sad bereavement.

— Mrs. John P. Scott and family.

WAKE UP AND LIVE!

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

We are so accustomed to speak of failure, frustration, timidity, as negative things, that it is like being invited to fight windmills when we are urged to fight the symptoms of failure.

In youth we seldom recognize the symptoms in ourselves. We explain our reluctance to getting started as the natural timidity of the tyro; but the reluctance stays, the years go by and we wake in dismay to find that what was once a charming youthful diffidence in us is now something quite different, sickly and repellent.

Or we find a convenient domestic situation to bear the brunt of excusing us for never having got to work in earnest. We could not leave this or that relative lonely and defenseless.

Or we have the best of all reasons for not doing as well as we might. Most of us are under the necessity of choosing between work and starvation, and the employment we were able to find when it was imperative that we should begin earning is not work for which we are ideally suited.

When marriage and the raising of a family have been undertaken, the necessity is all the more urgent. We might be willing to wait through a few thin years if no one but ourselves would suffer, but to ask others to do so takes more selfishness, and more courage, than most of us can muster.

This necessity to fall upon the first work we can find is alone enough to explain why so few of us ever manage to bring our plans to fruition.

Often, at first, we have a firm intention of not losing sight of our real goal, in spite of the fact that we must make a living at uncongenial work.

We plan to keep an eye on our ambitions, and to work at them by hook or crook — evenings, weekends, on vacations. But the nine-to-five work is tiring and exacting; it takes superhuman strength of character to go on working alone when the rest of the world is at play, and we have never had any evidence that we should be successful if we continued, anyway.

And so without realizing it we are swept into the current of the Will to Fail. We are still moving, and we do not see that our motion is downstream.

Most of us disguise our failure in public; we disguise it most successfully in ourselves. It is not hard to ignore the fact that we are doing much less than we are able to do, very little of what we had planned even modestly to accomplish before a certain age, and never, probably, all that we had hoped.

One reason it is so easy to deceive ourselves is that somewhere along the way we seem silently to enter into a sort of gentlemen's agreement with our friends and acquaintances. "Don't mention my failure to me," we tacitly plead, "and I will never let the hint that you are not doing quite all I should expect of you cross my lips."

So we slip through the world without making our contribution, without discovering all that there was in us to do, without using the most minute fraction of our abilities, either native or acquired.

Yet we can escape by seeming at first to go backward; by admitting that there may be a real Will to Fail, and next, that we may be its victims.

"Waste Not, Want Not"

Garbage Yields Returns of Economic Importance in European Countries

ERSATZ

Ersatz is popular in all dictator-ruled countries. Mother Necessity has directed attention to conserving every scrap of usable material and to the employment of synthetic substitutes for some essential natural products, because of the economic straits in which these countries find themselves. The subject is of outstanding interest to cleansing departments, because of the key role they can play in the recovery of a number of waste materials. Many will recall how this work was organized during the Great War.

The threat of another international blood bath turned the thoughts of many officials to what might be expected of their departments should the nation find itself committed to fighting again.

Japan, Italy, Russia and Germany have not waited on the outbreak of hostilities to organize comprehensive schemes of waste recovery and utilization and to indulge in extensive publicity in connection therewith. Britain jogs along in the old free and easy way. Sometimes there is a clamorous call for scrap, at another time waste-paper is in demand, and there are occasions when rags are a very active market. But it is all so erratic, so unorganized. There is no State backing for or blessing of the work. Thereby much valuable material is irretrievably lost. There is also a plausible justification for saying that the country is poorer in consequence.

The Germans are viewing waste utilization very seriously. At the recent International Congress in Vienna, very frequent reference was made to the topic. In his speech of welcome the Minister of Economy and Work remarked : "You could gather from the words addressed to you by his Excellency, the Reich Minister, Dr. Frick, that public cleansing in Germany is not only being considered as being of the utmost importance from a social-political and hygienic point of view, but also from the standpoint of national economy. The economic utilization of the old materials gained in public cleansing is of great significance for the entire scope of German economy. For it is the 'fight against waste,' the prevention of the careless destruction of waste material which can be utilized again, that is called upon to assist in the materialization of the great goal set to German economy—the Four Year Plan."

The Vice-Chairman of the German Parishdiet, Dr. Zeitler, also stressed the same point. He said : "Out of the number of present-day tasks, I should like to point out the difficult problem of refuse utilization, a question which is far from being satisfactorily solved in all towns. In order to get the right angle towards this problem, we have to accustom ourselves to considering refuse not merely as an unproductive burden, the removal of which has to be accomplished with a minimum of costs. On the contrary, efforts must be made to utilize the refuse as far as possible in a way suitable from a national economical point of view. In some German cities remarkable success has been achieved in this field in recent times. In these cities the refuse, after a thorough sorting and grading, is utilized for agricultural purposes and has been the cause of a considerable increase in the yield of bad soil."

SOME OF THE SCHEMES

Further details of German schemes are therefore of interest, especially since the avowed purpose is to assist towards the attainment of self-sufficiency in raw materials and food.

Prominence is given in the "Four Year Plan" to the collection of garbage and food wastes for pig feeding. This work is done by all German municipalities in collaboration with a body termed the "National Socialistic Welfare of the Population." The material produced in each household is put in bins which must be provided by the house owner. They are collected twice a week by persons commissioned by the aforementioned organization. Wheel-barrows or carts call at the houses and the material may then be transported in large vehicles to the pig-feeding centres. In some towns the pig-feed is collected simultaneously with the other refuse in vehicles which have divisions for each class of material. In Hamburg alone, in the first working year, 8000 pigs were fed.

There is also a house collection of old materials and articles capable of industrial re-utilization. The work has been thoroughly organized, the aim being to have every household called on by an industrial collector. It is reported that usable material of every description is taken, with the exception of bulky objects like preserve tins, the transport of which is found not to pay. Why these are not flattened out puzzles us.

In August of 1937 it was decreed that all German municipalities with more than 35,000 inhabitants were obliged to see that they maintained constant sorting of their refuse in order to recover all articles, substances, and materials contained therein for further use.

Japan we have seen described as the "Land of No Waste." In that country periodic visits are paid to houses to collect all the used corks that have been discarded. They are then taken to a factory where cork goods gathered from all over the country are pulverized. An adhesive is first mixed with the powder and the mixture is then compressed in moulds of different shapes for bathroom mats, sandal soles, canteen covers, etc.

Used photographic plates are also utilized for the purpose of making, by a patent technique, cheap mirrors. Scrap iron is also made into pocket knives, waste rubber into toys, desk pads, etc., woollen rags into blankets, and old hats are used for the making of slippers, belts and many other things.

The skins of rats and mice are, in this Japanese "commodity mobilization," being commercially utilized. They are being used for the making of brief cases, vest coat linings, and as a substitute for more valuable materials.

Nor has Italy been neglectful of waste recovery from refuse. When the Abyssinian campaign was in full swing, the writer recalls seeing a film which illustrated the special measures being taken in that country to retrieve metals from refuse. It is common knowledge, too, that the search for cheap synthetic substitutes for more valuable and scarcer natural products has been vigorously conducted.

Even Soviet Russia has her decrees enjoining householders to co-operate in retrieving and thereafter passing on to industry paper, tin, scrap metal, and rags, and it is expected that specified minimum quantities of these materials shall be collected by each household. "Waste not, want not," is therefore receiving a world-wide recognition.

Municipal Record, Scotland.

"I noticed you gave the lady your seat in the train the other day."

" Yes, since childhood I have respected a woman with a strap in her hand."

"Stand behind your lover, false woman," thundered the Scotsman. "I'm going to shoot you both."

"It was so cold where we were," said the Arctic explorer, "that the candle froze and we couldn't blow it out."

"That's nothing," said his rival. "Where we were the words came out of our mouths in pieces of ice, and we had to fry them to hear what we were talking about." — Tit-Bits

HOW ABOUT THE ANSWERS ?
(Vancouver Province)

Once there was a political story going the rounds. A man was eulogizing a particular politician.

"He is exceptionally well up on all the political questions of the day," he declared emphatically.

A skeptical friend replied, with devastating effect: "How is he on the answers ?"

Some of the political movements under way in Canada just now recall that story to mind.

An American editor worries his hair grey to see that no typographical errors appear in his magazine. The Chinese editor is wiser than that. He wants to leave his readers the supreme satisfaction of discovering a few mistakes for themselves. More than that, a Chinese magazine can begin printing serial fiction and forget about it halfway. In America it might bring the roof down on the editors, but in China it doesn't matter, simply because it doesn't matter.

Naming Pere Marquette Railroad

Just how the Pere Marquette railroad got its name is a story known to few outside Ludington, Michigan. Ludington was originally named Pere Marquette after the explorer and missionary who died on the shore of the Pere Marquette river here, says a Ludington correspondent in the Detroit Free Press. When a railroad was projected across the state from Flint it was naturally called the Flint and Pere Marquette railroad. But before the road was completed here, James Ludington had acquired most of this town and the name was changed to Ludington. Then the eastern terminus of the road was extended to Detroit rather than Flint, which left the name meaningless. However, as the name had been widely advertised, its owners didn't want to change it entirely, so they just shortened it to Pere Marquette railroad.

Clock Silent Since 1898

Each year in October a clock repairer inspects and oils the grandfather clock standing at the head of the marble stairway in the governor's mansion, relates a San Juan, P. R., correspondent. But the clock has been stopped for 40 years. Its heavy pendulum will never click off another second. The hands stand at 6:21, the hour and minute when Gen. Manuel Macias left "Le Fortaleza" for the last time, at the close of the Spanish-American war. The Spanish flag still floated over the ancient mansion, citadel and home of countless governors of Puerto Rico. At his request, Governor Macias was not to see the Spanish colors lowered and the American flag hoisted. It was not until he was aboard a warship in the harbor that his aide hauled down the Spanish flag for the last time.

NEW WHITER PAINT

STARTS WHITER . . . STAYS WHITER

BEFORE developing C-I-L "Trutone" White, C-I-L research chemists surveyed the whole field of white paints. They realized that attractive though white houses are, most white paints soon lose their original glamour . . . soon become dull and faded.

But now, in "TRUTONE" WHITE PAINT, C-I-L has introduced an exterior finish that both starts whiter and stays whiter! "Trutone" White starts whiter because an exclusive C-I-L formula makes it that way. Stays whiter because it resists dust and grime . . . actually sheds dirt. Yet in spite of these advantages "Trutone" White costs you no more! In fact, it's more economical because it hides better, spreads farther, lasts longer!

This year, give your home more lasting distinction with "Trutone" White. You'll see the difference at once, and know that the difference will last! Specify C-I-L "Trutone" White to your Master Painter. Be sure you get it. Call on your C-I-L dealer—he'll be glad to help you with your painting problems.

Metropolitan reports to its policyholders—

HIGHLIGHTS OF 1938

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company is a mutual company. It is operated solely for the benefit of its 29 million policyholders, whose life insurance with this Company totalled over $22,612,000,000 at the end of the past year.

In 1938, more than $566,300,000 was paid to policyholders and beneficiaries, and $176,000,000 was added to statutory reserves for payment of obligations which will accrue in future years under present policies. Dividends paid in 1938 amounted to $103,940,000. A still larger sum—$118,042,000—has been set aside for dividend payments in 1939.*

Metropolitan has paid, since 1927, more than $5,000,000,000 to policyholders and beneficiaries.

More than $1,800,000,000 of life insurance protection was provided by the 3,330,151 new policies issued during the past year.

Assets held for the benefit of policyholders and beneficiaries—which include more than 100,000 carefully selected, diversified investments—amount to more than $4,900,000,000.

As part of its welfare program in 1938, Metropolitan distributed 68 million health booklets—an average of 1 every half-second—and published monthly health-education advertisements in magazines whose combined circulation for the year was over 300 million copies.

Metropolitan welcomes every opportunity to provide its policyholders with information that will enable them to have a clearer understanding of how the Company operates. To help accomplish this, the Company is publishing a series of educational advertisements in magazines, and seeks in various other ways to keep its policyholders informed. A booklet, soon to be available, contains a detailed account of Metropolitan's progress in 1938. We shall be glad to send you a copy on request.

METROPOLITAN LIFE CONTINUES PROGRESS IN 1938

Half a Billion Dollars Paid Policyholders for Seventh Consecutive Year.

OTTAWA, April 3rd. — Payments to Metropolitan Life policyholders and beneficiaries during 1938 exceeded half a billion dollars for the seventh consecutive year, according to the 72nd annual report of the company released today. The report also shows that dividends paid to policyholders during the past year amounted to $103,947,384, and that a still larger sum — $118,042,832 — has been set aside for dividends payable in 1939. Nearly one-half of this amount, or $57,765,510, will be paid to Industrial policyholders; $57,452,174 will be paid on Ordinary policies and $2,825,148 on Accident and Health policies. Included in the amount set aside for dividends payable to Industrial policyholders in 1939 is an item of $9,200,000 which will be applied to further the company's program, in effect for several years, of increasing the benefits under old Industrial policies. The 1939 dividends, when added to bonuses and dividends previously paid to policyholders, bring the total up to $1,438,485,045. The fact that the Metropolitan is a mutual company, operated solely for the benefit of its 29 million policyholders, is commented upon in the report which also shows that during the year 1938 a total of more than three-quarters of a billion dollars was paid to policyholders or added to funds held for their benefit.

HARRY D. WRIGHT
Second Vice-President and Manager for Canada, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who reports increased investments in Canada for the benefit of policyholders.

Commenting upon the Canadian business of the Metropolitan, Second Vice-President H. D. Wright, Manager for Canada, stated that the total amount of life insurance in force had shown a satisfactory increase during the year. "This steady progress, year after year, indicates the continued confidence of the people of this country in life insurance," he said. He pointed out that Metropolitan investments in Canada including Dominion, provincial and municipal bonds continue to increase and now total $267,781,040. Commenting upon these investments, Mr. Wright pointed out that since the company had commenced business in Canada in 1872, the total amount paid by the company to Canadians, plus the amount now invested here for their benefit, exceeded the total premiums collected in Canada by $138,500,000. Turning to the Health and Welfare activities in Canada undertaken on behalf of policyholders and in the interests of public health generally, Mr. Wright said that the Metropolitan had participated in 91 different health campaigns during the year; had distributed nearly 3,800,000 pieces of health literature; and through the operation of its nursing service had made 385,674 visits to sick policyholders without additional charge to them.

Referring to the company's total business in Canada and the United States, the year's report shows that the Metropolitan ended 1938 with a new high total of life insurance in force, the amount of such protection being $22,612,403,594, of which 51% or $11,556,261,130 was owned by Ordinary policyholders; 33% or $7,550,316,755 by Industrial policyholders; and 16% or $3,505,825,709 by Group policyholders. There was also in force Accident and Health insurance carrying a principal sum benefit of $1,449,927,200 and weekly indemnity of $18,500,602. More than $1,800,000,000 of additional life insurance protection was provided by the 3,330,151 new policies issued during the year.

The assets of the Metropolitan increased by the sum of $223,179,590 which brought the total of the funds held by the company for the benefit of policyholders and beneficiaries to $4,942,900,416 at the end of the year. The report comments that the assets include more than 100,000 carefully selected, diversified investments. The surplus and general voluntary reserves are now $313,391,071. This serves as a margin of safety — a cushion against contingencies which cannot be foreseen.

Boys' Band Concert

The first public concert by the newly organized Lachute Boys' Band has been arranged for Saturday evening, April 22nd. These young musicians, who have only been under training for approximately three months, are anxious to have the entire community share in the pride and pleasure of accomplishment which they themselves have experienced.

We have no hesitation in urging the citizens of Lachute to turn out en masse in support of these talented and ambitious boys, and we are assured that something entirely new and different in the way of juvenile entertainment will be presented for the public enjoyment.

In addition to the contribution of the local schoolboys, who will be the featured artists, a rare musical treat is in store. The Cornwall Schoolboys' Band have kindly offered their services as assisting performers, together with the Hawkesbury Junior Band and talented instrumental soloists recruited from several leading boys' bands in Quebec and Ontario.

In addition to individual selections by each band, a feature of the performance will be something unique in the way of massed band selections, in which some 50 boys of school age will combine under one leader.

Never before has Lachute had opportunity to witness the results of such well planned training among youthful music students, and the public are warned to reserve seats at the earliest opportunity. Tickets are now being offered for sale by members of the band, and patrons are advised to secure theirs while they are still available.

A matinee for school children only will be presented at 3.00 p.m. in the Lachute Auditorium, and the evening performance commences at 8.30 p.m. sharp. Watch for further details regarding ticket selling agencies.

Legion Branches Represented at Vimy Dinner

About 20 members of the Canadian Legion branches in Lachute and Brownsburg attended the annual Vimy Dinner held Saturday evening in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal.

Over 1,600 veterans were present to pay homage to their fallen comrades, for whom the Last Post was sounded and the usual one minute silence observed, the tension then being broken by the stirring notes of "Reveille."

"DUMBELLS" COME BACK TO ENTERTAIN

The old war days, particularly those behind front line trenches, were lived over again in the entertainment furnished by members of the famous "Dumbells" concert party. Red Newman, in dirty, tattered khaki, loaded down with equipment and rifle, stirred the crowd to rollicking humor with his old favorite "Oh, It's a Lovely War," and Al Plunkett revived fond memories with his first song, "I Know Where the Flies Go." Alan Murray, an artist well known in this particular vicinity, also contributed to the program.

During the evening little groups could be seen chatting over old times and reviving friendships with former pals whom they had not seen for many years.

DISTINGUISHED SPEAKER

Sir Gerald Campbell, High Commissioner for Canada in Great Britain, was guest speaker.

Introduced by Col. Nicholson, Sir Gerald maintained that there was not a single political leader in the British Commonwealth of Nations who desires anything but peace.

"In this British Commonwealth all want peace, even though opinions may differ as to how peace can best be achieved. And I don't mind betting," Sir Gerald added, "that there are statesmen in our Commonwealth who, though allegedly too old to fight, would sacrifice their lives if only they could know that by so doing they could save the flower of another generation from the sickening abomination of war."

Though speakers may place a geographical limit to Britain's frontiers, the High Commissioner continued, he believed that her frontier was something more steadfast — it was the frontier between freedom and naked force; between "liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to one's conscience," and the concentration camp, that breeding-place of hatred; it was the frontier between the spirit and the sword.

Concluding, Sir Gerald pointed out that Canadians had shown willingness to make the supreme sacrifice in order to hand down intact to their children what had been handed down to them.

"As your lives were spared, and you know so well what another war would mean, won't you see that your children value their inheritance, that they refuse to listen to those who tempt them towards 'isms' or those who hint that the best use of liberty is to give it up, to turn it in and get another model? Teach your children to build on the principle of civic, economic and political liberty which our fathers made their own and then passed on to us, changing possibly a few details to suit a changing world, but never allowing the hard-won triumph of our race to go for naught."

Among the Churches

St. Andrews Presbyterian

St. Andrews East — The Y.P.C. of the Presbyterian Church held their annual taffy party on Monday evening. Mr. John Irwin generously donated the syrup. There was a very good attendance considering the extremely bad roads. At their next meeting, the delegates to the Y.P. Spring Rally in Montreal will give their reports.

Easter services in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday were well attended. The church was beautifully decorated with lilies, white spyrea and colorful hydrangeas. At the close of the service, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hungerbuhler, of Bellevue, Carillon, was baptized by the name of Felix Anthony.

The Easter Thank-Offering of the Presbyterian W.M.S. was held in the church on Good Friday evening. Dr. Ballantyne spoke from the text, "Jesus wept." A short sacred concert was rendered by a choir of young men under the musical direction of Mrs. Webster. This service of praise was much appreciated by all who heard it.

At the annual convention of the Montreal Presbyterian Y.P.U. held in the First Presbyterian Church last week-end, Miss Janet Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Watson, Lachute Road, was elected recording secretary on the new slate of officers.

Ste. Rose United Church Officially Organized

Meeting as a group in the new Protestant School organized in September 1938, a number of the Protestant families of Ste. Rose, County Laval, held their first service on Easter Sunday as a congregation of the United Church.

Application was made through the minister of the Ste. Therese - St. Eustache charge of the last Presbytery to organize this group into the Ste. Rose United Church, and permission was granted, and the Ste. Rose United Church now becomes the third preaching point of the Ste. Therese charge.

Protestant services have heretofore been carried on in the summer months only in the community church, but the residents who live in this community the year round felt the need of a service throughout the year, and the new Ste. Rose United Church is the outcome. Mr. Arthur Chatham is the secretary, with Mr. Edward as treasurer.

Educationist, Musical Artist Now Visiting Lachute

Dr. Leslie Grossmith, accompanied by Madame Grossmith, is staying in Lachute on a short visit. Dr. Grossmith is an educationist and musical artist of international repute and hails from London, England.

On Tuesday at the Lions Club, the Doctor gave a short address and a brilliant piano solo, which was enthusiastically received. For the past few years he has been touring Canada and the States, giving in colleges and schools his lecture on "Character Building and the Power of Music."

His major musical composition is a grand opera in three acts, entitled "The Immortal Slave," a work on the order of such operas as Carmen, Faust and Rigoletto, based on the dramatic epic by Harriet Beecher Stowe, Uncle Tom's Cabin. The work contains many fine choral and instrumental passages, besides introducing a number of Southern American melodies.

Considerable interest is being shown in the visit of Dr. Grossmith and his wife, and no doubt an opportunity will be afforded for the public to hear this world travelled artist.

ANTHRAX

There the three animal diseases which also attack men, namely anthrax, malta fever and glanders. Fortunately, today animals can be vaccinated against these diseases, as human beings are against smallpox.

The disease which concerns man chiefly in this special field is anthrax, not because it is common for man to contract it from domestic goats, sheep and cattle, but because it is most frequently conveyed in furs and bristles imported from abroad.

Generally it is very fatal and it destroyed millions of heads of stock in Europe, before scientific men knew just how to treat it, the principal animals attacked being horses, swine, goats, cows, guinea pigs, sheep and rabbits.

It has been called by various terms, the chief ones being splenic fever, wool-sorter's disease, rag-picker's disease and malignant postule. Of all infectious diseases of animals this one has the greatest mortality rate.

In Russia in one year almost 75,000 horses died from anthrax, as well as a proportionately large number of farmers and soldiers whose business brought them in contact with these animals. Death usually follows the initial symptoms in a very few days which are those of acute poisoning.

Most frequently the anthrax germ comes into this country in bales of hides, bristles, furs, hair or wool, which despite fumigation, retain in most instances their virility.

Last year there were ten cases reported from one county in Pennsylvania, the patients all being employees of a factory importing goat hair from India and China, which was made into inner linings for clothing.

Many persons have contracted this disease from shaving brushes, the bristles, carrying the anthrax bacilli, coming in contact with an abrasion on the face, neck or hand of the person while shaving.

The Health Authorities in Pennsylvania immediately opened bales of these imported hairs and bristles from the Orient and found the anthrax bacilli present in the centre of the bales as well as on the sweepings collected from the floor.

Experiments have shown that the anthrax bacilli are more resistant to intense heat, antiseptics and germicides than any other germs and survive even the complete and thorough quarantine regulations designed to prevent them from living.

Fortunately this disease is far less common than formerly and the chances are that with improved hygenic methods in factories and more perfect disinfection at quarantine there will be no germs lurking in such imported materials in the future.

NIZAM OF HYDERABAD

The Richest Man in the World Eats Soup With His Fingers

The richest man in the world eats with his fingers. He doesn't use a knife, nor a fork, nor a spoon. He even drinks his soup out of his fingers.

I am not referring to the fastidious Mr. Morgan, nor to the bustling Mr. Ford.

No, the richest man in the world has never played the stock market. He has never seen Wall Street; and most of the people in America have never even heard of him.

His name is Nizam Osman Ali Khan Bahadur Fateh Jung Asaf Jah; but he is usually called the Nizam of Hyderabad, and he is a descendent of the old Mogul Emperors who swept down through the Kyber Pass and looted India centuries ago. He rules with a high hand over the richest state in India.

What does he do with all his wealth ? Well, for one thing, he has a harem filled with over five hundred women.

But he has one favorite, and she rides around in a Rolls-Royce limousine, with the shades drawn, so that the unworthy populace cannot gaze upon her royal face. He doesn't pay much attention to the other beauties in his harem. Did I say "beauties ?" Well, now that is a bit of exaggeration, for he inherited his harem from his father, who died twenty-three years ago.

The richest man in the world gets up every morning before dawn. He has four servants whose sole duty in life is to dress him. Each servant dresses a different part of the royal body. One man, for example, is the trouser specialist. He would be insulted if you asked him to help put on the royal shirt. No, sir, when he gets on the Nizam's trousers, he sits in the shade and rests up for the next morning's work.

The Nizam is an absolute monarch, with the power of life and death over fifteen million of his subjects; and the common people fling themselves humbly upon the ground as he passes by.

He eats breakfast on platters of gold. And what a breakfast. A dozen different kinds of hot soups; eggs boiled and curried and scrambled and stuffed and fried. His jaded palate is tempted by such rare dishes as curried peacocks and wild cranes and birds of paradise.

Although he has a barber, whose only duty in life is to keep him well groomed, he slips occasionally and goes about with his hair uncombed and his chin unshaved.

The Nizam of Hyderabad has chairs, couches, carriages, and even cannon, cast in solid gold and inlaid with emeralds and rubies. Of course, he can't shoot these golden cannon, because they are too soft, but they do mave a mighty impression upon the visitor.

He goes on regular shopping expeditions into the public market, tasting this food and that, and whenever His Exalted Highness admires anything, custom demands that the shopkeeper give it to him free of charge. So he does back to the palace with an army of servants carrying baskets of food that didn't cost him a cent.

The Nizam speaks perfect English, shoots tigers from the back of an elephant, wears rings in his ears, gives his favorite wife two hundred dollars a month spending money, and sleeps in a bed that doesn't have any springs.

Facts on Handwriting, By A Graphologist

The main body of one's writing changes with the emotions and health, but the signature usually contains the chief characteristics throughout life after the age of twenty-one.

One does not write merely with the pen. One's brain must first visualize the thought, then the words.

There are ten distinct diseases shown in handwriting apart from nervousness and fatigue.

From one's handwriting, it is possible to determine the correct type or color of dress for the individual. It is also possible to assist and encourage those who are depressed and to help many nervous people over seemingly impossible situations.

Vocational guidance is offered through the writing, and compatibility tests can be made in order to determine if the choice of a life-mate is to be correct. In this instance it is necessary to see samples of both types of writing, and not when written under stress or nervous strain.

Handwriting is the keynote of character. It is just as much a part of one's mental make-up as physical contour and color of hair and eyes. It shows plainly if one is slovenly in dress, or is neat and painstaking.

SOME TRUTH THERE

Father (bending admiringly over baby): "I tell you he's going to make a great politician."

Mother: (surprised and hurt): "Why, how can you say that ?"

Father: "Because he can babble so many things that sound wonderful but mean absolutely nothing."

WORK FOR RELIEF

One of the tragic things about unemployment is the loss of ability to work. You know yourself that if you are away from work for even a few days, it takes a little while to shake down and get into the habit of working again. When that is multiplied by a long period of unemployment it is not difficult to understand how people finally do not know how to work and have lost their desire to try. It seems to me that no one should get something for nothing. It is not a rule of life. If people are getting relief, then they should work for it. There have been objections to this from several sources. Sometimes the unions object to having men work for less than union wages. All right, if authorities are scared of the unions, let them work part time, at union rates, but make them work for their relief. That leaves them time to look for work. Others in charge of relief say that the cost is too great because of the cost of materials. The whole country needs tidying. Civic properties need cleaning and repairing. Weeds are rampant in the streets in the towns and by the roadsides in the country. Old useless buildings are eyesores. Much needed forestry work could be done. Playgrounds would be a great benefit in cities, towns and rural districts and every municipality owns idle, non-profitable lands. There are plenty of things to be done which cost very little. The rest of us have to work to live, so why shouldn't those on relief ? To give them their due, most of them would be willing. At first, anyhow. But something for nothing saps the morale of any but the strongest, and the majority of those on relief are not of the strongest. It is cruel to put men who have not worked for a long time at hard work. Yet that is what happens too often. They are not physically fit, they need to get into it gradually. If they had even a few days of work each week when they had to work for their keep, they would be in better condition to work both physically and mentally. Their morale would be better because people need to work to keep their self-respect.

THE NEW HAT

Husbands sometimes find their wives' new hats hard to take. Honestly, can you blame them for the styles ofter are queer even to the women. It isn't much fun to have the joy taken out of a new hat or dress because friend husband does not like it. I picked up an English magazine at the hairdressers' and an article in it said that women should get their husbands used to the new styles before they make a purchase. Show them the things in the windows. When a good-looking girl comes along remark on the new style of the hats and so on. Condition the husbands, so to speak. Maybe there is something in the idea. Men are more conservative than women, so if your husband does not like the new frock or hat, be philisophical and console yourself with the idea that maybe he will when he gets used to it. The English woman's idea was to get them used to it first.

NOVA SCOTIAN PORRIDGE BREAD

Almost every place we went when in Nova Scotia we got porridge bread. It is a very delicious brown bread and I have never found anyone but a Nova Scotian who makes it. I have tried several recipes and taking a bit from this and some from that, I have evolved this recipe which suits us. Every woman who eats it wants the recipe and even some of the men. Some of the weekly editors had tea with us and several asked me if I would put the brown bread recipe in the column. It is very easy to make even for anyone who has never made bread as it requires no kneading. Bring two cups of water to the boil, add 2 teaspoons salt and stir in slowly 1 cup of rolled oats. Cook until thickened, then add 2 tablespoons butter and 1 cup of molasses. Cool until luke-warm. Dissolve 1 fresh yeast-cake in 1 cup of luke-warm water. and add to the cooled oats mixture. Stir in 6 cups of bread flour (you may use 1 cup of whole wheat flour and 5 cups of bread flour if desired). Let stand in a warm place until doubled in bulk, which takes about 2 hours. Form into loaves. This will take 3 small loaves or two larger ones. Put a little flour on the board and flour your hands. Divide the dough and shape into loaves without kneading. The mixture is soft and sticky and rather messy to handle. You do not need to worry too much about getting the loaves very smooth as they seem to smooth out in the second rising. Put into buttered bread pans. Let stand in a warm place until doubled in bulk, again about 2 hours. Bake for an hour in a hot oven of 400 degrees. It keeps well but you will not have much chance of finding this out.

KEEPING THE DOUGH WARM

I was telling some friends how to make this bread when an inexperienced cook asked me how I kept the dough warm. Just in case there are others who do not know, I will add a few words on that subject. Cover your bowl with a clean cloth and wrap the bowl in a blanket and set in a warm place. If bread dough is risen at a temperature of about 88 or 90 degrees, you will get the best results. I usually set the bowl on a chair next the radiator and drape a blanket over the radiator and over the chair. This traps the heat in the tentlike structure and gives about the desired temperature. The rising dough must be kept out of draughts.

PINEAPPLE SQUARES

Rub together 1 cup flour and ½ cup of butter. Spread in a pan 8" by 12" and bake for 5 minutes in a slow oven of 300 degrees. Cover with the following mixture: 1 cup walnuts, cut in pieces; 1½ cups brown sugar; 2 beaten eggs, 2 teaspoons flour; 1 teaspoon baking powder; ¼ cup shredded pineapple, drained; ¼ cup cocoanut. Bake until set. This is another recipe salvaged from a tea. I haven't had a chance to try it yet but it was so good I wanted to pass it on without delay.

Strength of Left Hand Affected by Intellect

Of course, this correlation between handedness and degree of mental superiority or deficiency is subject to conspicuous exceptions. But as one goes downward in the scale of intelligence, the superiority of right over the left hand, as shown by gripping tests, decreases or is even upset by a stronger left hand.

The pure right-hander is found by most tests to have the advantage: the pure left-hander comes next; the various intergrades are at the bottom of the list.

Hand and foot tend to go together, so that the hand used on the spade is an almost infallible determiner of the foot which will be used on the same implement. Hand and eye likewise tend to go together, the right-handed person usually being right-eyed as well.

It has sometimes been supposed that a bodily balance is the highest state, in which the individual uses the right hand singly but the left hand in batting or sweeping, this being supposed to produce or to be the result of, a more symmetric bodily development.

Such a situation is found most frequently among superior males—those of the highest intelligence—while the commoner situation, in which the individual bats right-handedly but sweeps left handedly, is more usual among other males and among all normal females regardless of their level of intelligence.

Handedness is inborn and inherent, though there is still some question as to its inheritability. Handedness is correlated with other fundamental, biologic differences, such as those of sex and of intellect.

Handedness is also associated with the hair whorl on the crown of the head, an inherited characteristic which is little affected by training, as many persons can testify who happen to have one of these whorls on some other part of the scalp, which has stubbornly resisted the hairbrush during an entire lifetime. The righthander most frequently shows a clockwise whorl, while that of the lefthander is more likely to turn in a counter clockwise direction.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

Stamp collections which feature a wide variety of subjects; waterfalls, towns in different countries but with similar names, trees, fruits and fashions are being made by women in these days of philatelic interest. They are surprisingly interesting and novel, and I can readily see how women become enthusiastic over this hobby.

Emma E. Batchelor is concentrating on waterfalls, including far away Rhodesia's famous scenic ones to our own Niagara. And there are falls that some of us never heard of, in Mexico, Samoa and Tasmania.

Edith M. Brown collects stamps showing grains used for food and drink.

Mrs. Theresa M. Clark is devoted to stamps showing fashions for both men and women, while Dr. Louise Larrimore's hobby is collecting perforated initials and symbols on stamps.

Although it isn't done in China, at least by the best people, a group of young Chinese girls have been appearing in amateur theatricals in New York for the benefit of the civilian refugees in their native country.

Miss Virginia Chang, whose first name was bestowed upon her by her parents because they met in Virginia, was one of the group. She is called the most beautiful girl in Shanghai and is the daughter of the former Chinese Minister to Chile.

Others in the company are Ethel Chum, a granddaughter of Sir Shousen Chow, who was knighted by King George for his work in the Crown Colony of Hong Kong, and Mrs. Ernest Tong, leader of the group, is the wife of the Counselor of the Kwangtung Provincial Government.

Quebec at London Conference Of Countrywomen

It is expected that Quebec Women's Institutes will be represented at the London Conference in June by the Provincial President, Mrs. C. E. Petch, of Hemmingford, as well as by Mrs. Brian Ashworth, of Hull, Provinical Convenor of Immigration and Colonization. Other members have the matter of attendance at this important gathering of the Associated Countrywomen of the World under consideration, and it is hoped that Quebec will be well represented.

Quebec Women Grateful to Sponsor of Franchise Bill

ELECTORAL RIGHTS VOTED DOWN FOR FOURTEENTH TIME IN PROV. LEGISLATURE

CORRESPONDENCE TO THE WATCHMAN

Dear Sir:

Last week, for the fourteenth time, the women of this province were refused the provincial franchise — a right which the women of the eight other provinces have had for years. The Bill was sent to the Public Bills Committee, and a large delegation of women appeared before the Committee. Mrs. Pierre Casgrain, Miss M. M. Wherry, Mrs. John Scott, Miss Idola St. Jean, Mrs. Henri Vautelet and Mrs. A. Frenette set forth clearly and reasonably the many reasons why women should have the full franchise. Women, bearing all the responsibilities of provincial citizenship, such as obedience to provincial laws and payment of provincial taxes, are denied the greatest privilege of citizens. that of having a voice in the choice of those who make the laws and levy the taxes. There was no answer to these arguments, nor did the opponents of the women offer any reason for their opposition. The vote on the Bill was postponed, and when taken, once more refused the vote to the women of Quebec.

The women are grateful to Mr. P. A. Lafleur, M.L.A. for Verdun, who sponsored the Bill, and to all these members who spoke in favor of it and voted for it. As regards the other members, we only regret that they have such a poor opinion of the women of their own province as to think them incapable of exercising properly the rights which women elsewhere exercise with satisfaction to themselves and benefit to the communities in which they live.

Yours, Mina Snyder.

AMERICAN BOY

Karl McCready won the coveted title of "The Typical American Boy" and a cheque for $1,000. The Louisville boy won the title after 25,000 boys all over the country had been considered. In the picture he is receiving congratulations from his mother.

STALLED

Truck Driver: Use your noodle, lady; use your noodle.
Lady: My goodness, where is it ? I've pulled and pushed everything in the car.

He — I've wanted to ask you a question for weeks.
She — And I've had the answer ready for months.

Your Shoes

The life of a pair of shoes depends to a great extent on the care given them. If possible, avoid wearing the same pair two days running. They are all the better for a rest.

Put them on trees when you take them off. If they are damp, dry them slowly in a warm room.

Patent leather will not crack so easily if rubbed twice a week with vaseline. When cracked and old looking, it freshens up wonderfully with a coat of good varnish.

Keep the heels neatly levelled and as much as possible avoid getting your shoes wet.

Ill-fitting shoes represent money thrown away. Make yours fit you.

"A Musical Feast"

Pianowards she went,
And Satan-steered was she,
The bench did make "sweet moan," Anticipatory;
A moment o'er the frightened keys,
She waited, as a cat
Sure of her prey,
Then — one shrill squeak —
A treble mouse lay flat,
And all his little brother mice
Fled from the carmine nails
That pounced this way
And then pounced that,
Catching them by their tails.
A second breathless silence —
Then cruel basso tones
Proclaimed the finish of the feast —
The gnawing of the bones.

* * *

But when we gave her roses,
We said — "You played with verve,
Here's hoping you may go abroad,
And get — what you deserve."

— Elsie Clough.

Practical Aspects Of Lionism . . .

We are human. We all make mistakes and our greatest glory is not in never falling, but in rising after we fall.

To me there are three ideals that we should foster and dwell upon in Lionism.

1. Friendship. — It is the world's deep need. Friendship is always mutual. It is not enjoyed, indeed it does not exist until it is returned as well as given. It is never patronage. Friends meet face to face, look one another in the eyes, their smile is eloquent of a precious thing shared, it is built on respect for human personality. There is no trace of contempt in it, no desire for mastery, no secret love of ordering people about and no desire for power that hides deep down even in the best of us.

Kingsley says — "A friend is a human soul whom we can trust utterly, who knows the best and the worst of us, and who loves us in spite of our faults." Friendship creates happiness and promotes the good of one another. When friendships are real, they are not glass threads or frostwork, but the most solid thing we could imagine. It is ane of the fundamental ideas of Lionism. Are you living Lionism in this respect in your daily life ?

2. Then there is co-operation. — Each man's task in Lionism is of fundamental importance, but he can only do it if he co-operates with all other members in their tasks. It does no harm to think your own task is the chief one, if you will work with the others. In the watch, the mainspring and the hair spring must work together and no one can say which is the greater and it doesn't make a particle of difference, we must have co-operation and united effort. United effort built the pyramids of Egypt — the glorious temple of Solomon — the walls of China — opened highways through watery wastes of the oceans and levelled the forest and reared in its stead a united Dominion.

You have observed the strength of concrete. It is made by combining sand and crushed stone, neither of which has in itself the quality of great strength, but combined with cement, is a material which compares favorably with steel in firmness and strength. Lionism is a cement formed from the qualities of good fellowship and unselfish service and it binds men together into that which is stronger than an individual Lion — a Lions Club. — Ability to unite and co-operate with others is absolutely necessary in the progress of society. The Club member who is worth while is the one who measures up to a test of loyal co-operative living in his daily life.

When friendship and co-operation exist, there will be — 3: Service to mankind. . . Why should a man serve? To pay his debt. Because you do owe a debt. We do not pay for all or even most that we get. Who ever paid for a sunrise or sunset ? Who ever paid for a mother's love or a father's toil ? Who ever paid for the love of any noble woman or the friendship of any good man ? We do not pay for all or even most that we get. How can we ever pay for the contributions which other generations have made to the intellectual and spiritual heritage of our race ? Certainly we do not pay for life's greatest gifts, nor can we, but we are under heavy obligation to make at least some return. The vocation of every member of Lionism is to serve other people. Give all we can for what we get, not attempt to get all we can for what we give.

This is a glorious age. — Mind cannot fathom, tongue cannot utter nor can man conceive the boundless possibilities which await the pathway of the future. It is our path; into it we shall enter, its glories to make or to mar, and to us is given the task of transforming the vision into a reality.

We desire glory, you might say, but the glory that should face us as Lions, is not the glory of wealth, power and dominion, but the glory of friendship, co-operation and service. Let us live in our daily lives that we might achieve that glory. There is a reward for doing good.

In rendering service our own lives are lifted to higher standards, Lionism inspires our noblest endeavors and furnishes us a field in which to labor. Our only mission in life is to leave a richer heritage to posterity. While the world is rushing forward with a speed unsurpassed, there is left in the wake a backwash of disappointed and crushed human beings and like the Good Samaritan of old, the service club idea is patching the remnants and the bedraggled ends together and weaving them into a canvas of a more content and useful citizenship and in a world with its unfortunates we should be happy of the privilege of helping those less fortunate, because —

"There is a destiny that makes us brothers,
None goes his way alone,
All that we put into the lives of others
Comes back into our own."

Million Dollar Forestry Program Is Unemployment Relief Measure

Finance and Agriculture Take Lead in Debates

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, April 18th. — That most baffling of all Government problems, unemployment, is again being discussed in the House of Commons. Of course it comes up whenever the occasion offers, because the existence of a large body of unemployed is one of those facts which cannot be denied. A new link in the chain of measures dealing with this urgent question is the national forestry program recently announced by the Minister of Labor. The object of the legislation which will entail the expenditure of a million dollars, possibly more, is to give further employment and training to young men, to protect and develop forests, and to conserve wild life. There has, of course, been a lamentable waste mainly through fires in the great national heritage, the woodlands, during past decades.

Leading the Opposition attack on the whole question of unemployment, Mr. Massey, of Toronto, in a four hour speech, discussed employment and unemployment, relief for transient unemployed, training for the youth of the country, Canada's trade and the administration's trade policies. He suggested a policy of eleven points including the development of Northern districts and their resources, a forestry plan, national roadways, a nation-wide program for the re-establishment of youth, co-operation with private enterprise and a Dominion, provincial and municipal conference headed by Lord Willingdon to deal with the whole problem of reconstruction and rehabilitation. The speech was from the standpoint of the Opposition in Parliament. On the other side of the picture you have of course the various measures adopted by the Government including housing and municipal improvement programs, youth training and many other plans for relief of unemployed and the expansion of employment.

SOCIAL CREDIT IN PARLIAMENT

The parliamentary exponents of the social credit doctrine have not lost their ardor for their theories on banking currency and credit. The Minister of Finance in a resolution, asked Parliament to give the Government the authority to borrow a large sum to pay or redeem "the whole or any portion of loans and obligations of Canada, and also purchasing and withdrawing from circulation unmatured securities of Canada and for public works and general purposes." The amount asked was 750 million dollars. A social credit member suggested that Canada should issue 600 million dollars in currency to redeem an equivalent amount of the public debt of Canada, and thus save interest. The issue of this money in the opinion of the member would not mean monetary inflation — although the Minister of Finance had an opinion directly opposed to this. The social credit group wanted at least that the amount needed for "public works and general purposes" should be covered by the issuance of currency.

An "expansionist," not an "inflationist" policy is being pursued by the Bank of Canada, the Minister of Finance explained to the House. Under the Bank of Canada Act, that bank can and does control the volume of currency in existence. Expert officials of the bank study continuously the currency situation, to determine how much should be in existence "from day to day, from week to week and from month to month." This currency controlling body studies the question of currency circulation, the object being to "maintain a reasonable equilibrium in the business of the country." Mr. Dunning further pointed out that in his opinion, the Canadian banking system, as now operated, "is in a more secure position in relation to its depositors than it has ever been before in the whole history of Canada."

AGRICULTURAL POLICY

The Government's agricultural policy is being further rounded out by new bills being introduced in Parliament. It is a very extensive program. The encouragement of co-operative marketing is one of the main features of the policy. In addition to the measures which deal with wheat, there is a bill which encourages co-operative marketing in other grains besides wheat, in milk and milk products, vegetables and vegetable products, livestock and livestock products, fruit and fruit products, poultry and poultry products, honey, maple syrup, tobacco "and any other products designated by the Governor in Council." On these products the co-operatives will make an initial payment to producers, and the government guarantees the co-operatives against loss through this payment. It is explained that the initial price will "not exceed eighty per cent of the average wholesale price of such product over the three years preceding the year of production." Of course the producers will receive the benefit of any extra price received by the co-operatives, less the charges for "processing, carrying and selling."

The cheese industry is to be aided by an act which provides for a payment by the Government of half the cost of "constructing, reconstructing and equipping cheese factories. Insulation and refrigerating plants will be improved. The Government will also pay a premium of two cents a pound on "all cheese which scores ninety-four per cent or more points on grading by a dairy produce grader."

The objectives of the Government program seem to be to set up an agricultural economy which will retain the advantages of indiviuual initiative; to be in a position to compete in foreign markets with countries which have government controlled monopolies; to improve the quality of products and to ensure a more continuous supply of our products. The co-operative system which will, it is intended, play an important part in the scheme is of course voluntary, but inducements are made through the initial guaranteed price for producers to use this system extensively for marketing their products.

Premier Duplessis Attains His 49th Birthday

Junior Hockey Champions Honored by Their Sponsors

Rex hockey team, winners of the Lachute Junior League title this year, were feted by their sponsors, the theatre proprietors, in a social hour at the Capitol Theatre, Brownsburg, after last Saturday night's performance. Each member of the team was presented with a mackinaw windbreaker, bearing the team's crest. Refreshments were served and impromptu speeches were made, in which the thanks of the hockey boys were conveyed to Messrs. Angelo and Adi Fassio, the theatre management, who had made the presentation of these serviceable gifts.

Eastern Hockey Heroes Pay Informal Visit to Sanatorium Inmates

CHEERFUL SURPRISE FOR SPORTS-MINDED PATIENTS AT STE. AGATHE

During their week-end respite at Ste. Agathe a party of the Montreal Royals, Allan Cup contenders, paid a surprise visit to the Laurentian Sanatorium. Among the group who gave the patients this "cheerful break" were "Patsy" Seguin, Dr. Gordon Crutchfield, Gerry Heffernan, Johnny Acheson and President Hamilton. The visitors were welcomed by Drs. A. M. Bell and E. J. Smith at the Sanatorium, and sports-minded patients were pleased to make a personal acquaintance with players so prominent in the limelight of amateur hockey these days. Reg. Wallace, sports columnist, now at Ste. Agathe, voiced the appreciation and good wishes of the inmates. . . Royals tonight reach a decisive stage in their final series with Port Arthur.

K. of C. Members and Lady Guests Enjoy Soirée, Gathering of 100

AFTER-LENTEN PARTY PROVES POPULAR EVENT IN LOCAL COUNCIL

A social evening last Thursday at the K. of C. Hall, Foundry Street, was enjoyed by a gathering of 100 members and their lady guests. It was an after-Lenten party, the program of the evening consisting of cards, music and community singing. The rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion.

Dr. E. Lalande, Grand Knight of the Council, spoke a few words following presentation of the evening's prizes. He congratulated the ladies on their contribution to the success of the occasion — all the refreshments having been given and the event arranged by voluntary presentations so that the entire proceeds should go to the Council funds.

Lunch was served by the ladies, and opinion was unanimous on the unqualified success of the party.

Donors of the prizes included: Messrs. G. E. Dansereau, H. W. Ayers, Geo. Héon, L. Bedard, R. Courtien, Z. Harbour, M. Cousineau, G. Cousineau, A. Lamarche, J. P. Roy, T. Ayers, J. Gosselin, G. Valois, H. E. Desjardins, R. Legault, J. Gignac, E. Leger, Dr. E. Lalande and Messrs. Deslauriers and Rozon.

Héon Urges Compatriots to Moderate Extreme Racialism

M.P. GOES ON RECORD AS OPPOSED TO IMMIGRATION

Speaking to an overflow meeting of the St. Jean Baptiste Society in Montreal, Georges Héon, M.P. for this constituency, stated he agreed with the society that immigration should be closely restricted and that jobless Canadians should be our first concern.

Mr. Héon said further: "In matters of immigration as well as on the burning subject of foreign policy the best interests of Canada should prevail at all times and a broad Canadianism should inspire us all.

"I warn you, my fellow-compatriots, against narrow-minded attitudes and extremist views at this particular time of stress. As one who has daily dealings with the English-Canadians, I can assure you that our English-speaking friends are making a real and sincere effort to understand our view-point and are thoroughly sympathetic, less a few ultra-jingoes.

"Let us be firm, yet dignified in our legitimate demands, but given the extremely delicate domestic and international situation, Canada's unity must be safeguarded by keeping within the bounds of moderation and not stirring racial strife."

Quiz Box Yields Conundrum

Monday's quiz contest at the Rex Theatre was interrupted when a stray slip of paper caused one of those "riots of mirth" which the handbills advertise twice nightly, matinee Sundays. . . The incident is told in this week's "High School Notes" as follows:

— Margaret McKiddie was highly surprised to have the following question asked: "Bring brace and bit Monday for cleaning, also friction tape."

A. Fassio, the theatre proprietor, explains that this "inter-departmental note" between Rex and Capitol employees had been mislaid and evidently found its way into the quiz box in the theatre lobby.

Bank Manager Dies Suddenly While At His Work

J. H. BEAUDIN HAD SERVED SIX YEARS IN BROWNSBURG BANQUE PROVINCIALE

J. Henri Beaudin, 38-year-old manager of the Banque Provinciale at Brownsburg, died suddenly at 12.30 o'clock on Friday while working at his office desk. Mr. Beaudin had suffered from high blood pressure for some time, but had gone cheerfully about his business. He had been talking on the telephone a few minutes previous to his death. Returning to his chair he had slumped over and his fellow workers found him dead.

Dr. J. H. Mason, in his capacity as district coroner, made inquiry and found death due to natural causes. The victim probably had suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Beaudin had proved himself a popular citizen since assuming charge of the Brownsburg Banque Provinciale six years ago. He had started his career with the bank in his home town, Valleyfield, later furthering his experience in various departments of the Montreal head office. At Brownsburg he had replaced Mr. J. W. Lepine as manager of the branch. He is survived by his wife, formerly of Ottawa, and three young children.

Funeral service was held Monday morning in the Catholic Church at Brownsburg, where a large gathering paid tribute to his memory as a congenial friend and fellow businessman. The remains were taken to Ottawa for interment.

Earl Baldwin to Broadcast Over National Network

THIRD TALK OF SERIES SATURDAY NIGHT

The third and last in a special series of three lectures to be given by Earl Baldwin from Convocation Hall, University of Toronto, will be broadcast over the national network of CBC, Saturday, April 22, 9.00 to 10.00 p.m.

Tonight and Friday, April 20 and 21, 8.30 to 9.30 p.m., the former British Prime Minister will be heard in the first two lectures over Station CBY only.

Earl Baldwin, who will be presented with an honorary degree by the University on the occasion of his first lecture, will speak under the auspices of the Sir Robert Faulkner Foundation series. It is expected that he will make some phase of international politics the topic of his addresses.

Police Summoned Twice to Rout Ferocious Dog

A Siberian wolf hound created excitement in Hawkesbury on Tuesday when for over an hour it prevented railway employees from entering the C.N.R. station. The animal entered the waiting room accompanied by a transient, shortly after the agent, L. P. Maranda, opened the building. When another employee entered for work the animal attacked him without warning. From then on, no one dared to enter the room. Finally the agent called the police and Constable Leduc after entering the room had an exciting five minutes before he found shelter in the adjacent office with Mr. Maranda. All this time the transient turned a deaf ear to pleas to remove the animal. Finally the constable and the agent reached the station platform by a window, after leaving the door open between the office and the room the dog occupied. When the beast entered the office the pair banged the door shut. The transient was then forcibly ejected. All doors were then opened and the dog emerged and followed his master.

The excitement did not end there, for later the dog returned alone and again took possession of the waiting room. Passengers could not enter to purchase tickets, and business was done through a window of the office. Police were again called to the scene and this time Chief H. Giroux accompanied Constable Leduc. The Chief entered the room and succeeded in keeping the animal away from him with a club until both officer and dog were out on the station platform. There the Chief pulled his revolver and fired two shots but they only grazed the animal's head.

No one was injured beyond a few scratches and torn clothes.

Women Promised Votes When Liberals Return to Power In Quebec

RT. HON. ERNEST LAPOINTE MAKES STATEMENT IN MONTREAL ADDRESS

Women's suffrage will be granted in this province the moment that the Liberal party return to power, Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe promised on Saturday night, addressing the members of the Sir Wilfrid Laurier Women's Liberal Club, at the Reform Club in Montreal.

"Women," he said, "will soon have the right to vote in this province; as soon as the Liberal party is in power in Quebec. In all countries, in times of crisis, it is the women who have dedicated to men the course of their conduct. Let us hope that time will come when all their rights will be recognized in this province as they are in the other provinces of this country.

URGES PREPAREDNESS

If Canada is relying on pacts, treaties and covenants and the fact that it is 3,000 miles from Europe to protect its shores from attack, "we may be due for a rude and tragic awakening," Attorney-General Conant, of Ontario, declared in a speech at Oshawa.

Mrs. W. H. Sutherland, Past Conference Branch Pres., Is W. M. S. Speaker

EASTER THEME AND AN INSPIRING ADDRESS AT THANK-OFFERING

The W.M.S. of Lachute United Church held their Easter Thank-Offering Thursday afternoon in the church hall, a considerable number of ladies being present. The president, Mrs. F. S. McGibbon, was in the chair and conducted the beautiful Easter service prepared by the Dominion Board. She then introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. W. H. Sutherland, immediate past president of Montreal-Ottawa Conference Branch of the W.M.S., United Church of Canada.

After extending the sympathy of the Women's Missionary Society to the Lachute members in the loss of their beloved church by fire, Mrs. W. H. Sutherland referred briefly to the visit of Lady Tweedsmuir, first lady of the land, to the annual meeting of the Conference Branch held recently in the capital — to which meeting she brought the greetings of Herself and His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir.

The speaker mentioned briefly some of the accomplishments of the past year, Montreal-Ottawa showing a financial increase of $3,300, and an increase of $13,500 for all Canada. She touched upon the work in the new frontiers in Saskatchewan; the hospitals where motherhood is made safer; health education and sanitation in the schools; children's homes where children buffeted by circumstances, are being cared for. There was new work to report in Anglo-Saxon areas where economic emergencies and unemployment made new problems.

Mrs. Sutherland took a broader view across the seas to the Orient, where great changes are taking place. "Yet we are but touching upon the fringe of possibilities," she added.

"Easter speaks to us of conservation of spiritual values. The message of immortality, the immortality of influence. Are we wasting our resources?" Christ's 33 years appeared to be as an unfinished symphony. To all intents and purposes He was dead.

Health Unit Here Ranks Fourth In Contest

HIGH EFFICIENCY STANDING AMONG RURAL PUBLIC HEALTH CENTRES IN CANADA

In the fifth annual Canadian rural health contest, sponsored jointly by the Canadian and American Public Health Associations, the Argenteuil Health Unit ranks fourth. Announcement of the awards was made this week, winner in the Canadian contest being the St. Jean-Iberville-Laprairie-Napierville Unit.

This high standing awarded to the local centre is a credit to the progress achieved in Argenteuil by the provincial health officer, Dr. E. Lalande, and his staff.

These contests are an effective means of stimulating health promotion services across the continent.

Awards are not made necessarily to the healthiest communities, but rather on the effectiveness with which a community is meeting its health problems. Each city or county is appraised by a Grading Committee consisting of a group of carefully selected health experts from all parts of the county. Each community is appraised on what measures it takes: (1) to provide and safeguard its water supply; (2) to furnish adequate and safe sewage disposal; (3) to reduce infant and maternal deaths; (4) to combat tuberculosis and syphilis; (5) to protect its citizens against other communicable diseases; (6) to insure healthy children; (7) to protect and safeguard its milk and other foods; (8) to promote effective co-operation with its physicians and dentists in furnishing necessary services to all those who need them; and (9) to enlarge and improve its lay-understanding of ways and means of preventing sickness and death and of maintaining good health.

Familiar Figure Reappears In Old Business Stand

An old stand-by to many Lachute householders has made his reappearance at the Chinese laundry on Main Street — where Charlie Ying is now conducting business. This genial Oriental first established the laundry business here, but ten years ago left it in charge of his nephew, Charlie Fong, under whose name it now operates. While Fong is away enjoying a well-earned vacation in Hong-Kong and his native haunts, Charlie Ying has taken charge of the business again and feels quite at home in Lachute.

Not Hard to Explain

(Almonte Gazette)

Speaking before a meeting of Canadian businessmen recently, Premier Duplessis, of Quebec, said he couldn't understand why more British capital was not invested in his province. He went on to assure prospective investors that their money would be safe in Quebec and that any industrial concerns they cared to establish would be treated with consideration and justice. That is all very well but the fact remains that the average French Canadian is not sympathetic to Imperial ideas. He makes no secret of his antipathy for the British connection. Why then should the French Canadian Premier express astonishment if the British industrialists prefer to invest their capital in friendly countries and provinces. It is natural that a British businessman would prefer Ontario to Quebec and there isn't anything the French Canadian can do about it. It is one way England has of getting back at them.

Brownsburg Plastics Plant Scene of Fire

The fire which occurred last Thursday at the pyralin plant, C-I-L Plastics Division, in Brownsburg, has not seriously impeded production. It is reported the machinery is again in operation and the plant resuming normal activity.

The sprinkler system and prompt work by the company's fire contingent, with two hose lines in action minimized the damage.

PRENCH PRL3IDENT ALMOST SURE OF RE-ELECTION

President Lebrun of France has proved so popular as constitutional head of the republic that he is almost sure of re-election for another term. Above is a photograph of the President and Mme. Lebrun with their children and grandchildren, taken a couple of days before they sailed for England on a state visit to London.

HISTORY . . . . happiness

The only way to understand what is going on in the world today is to study what went on in the world in the past. What we regard as "new" problems are really very old problems indeed. Human nature has not changed since the earliest recorded times, and people acted from the same motives a hundred, a thousand or ten thousand years ago as they do now.

The only things that change are the material environments with which we are surrounded. What every generation regards as "progress" is the effort, not always successful, to find new answers to problems which have baffled humanity from the beginning of time.

The main problem which mankind has always faced is how to live in comfort and safety with the minimum of labor. In our time we have come nearer to finding the answer to that problem than any people ever did in the past.

But it is rather doubtful, it seems to me, that with all our machines and inventions we have found the road to the supreme goal of life, which is happiness. The ideal of every social organization must be the greatest happiness of the greatest number of its members. We are still far from that.

DEFENSE . . . . repetition

"This or any other nation to preserve peace, must be ever ready to defend its rights and protect its interests and its honor." That quotation sounds like something which might have been said in a legislative address yesterday. It was said in the American Congress — in 1839, just a hundred years ago.

Indeed, anyone who thinks that world conditions have changed greatly in the past century might profit by scanning the papers of a hundred years ago, as I have been doing lately.. One noted British journalist wrote in 1839 that "At a period when our country is threatened with hostilities by more than one of the continental powers it is worth while to consider the state of our colonial possessions."

That might have been written yesterday. The English people were as concerned then as they are now, a hundred years later, over the ever-present danger of war.

Then, as usual, the threat to Great Britain was the loss of her colonial possessions bordering on the seven seas. "It is more than probable," the English newspaperman wrote, "that the loss of several colonies would be the result of those hostilities with which, according to the warlike preparations of the present ministry, we are threatened." That is the major concern of the British people in the present European crisis.

TRANSPORTATION . . retarded

In 1839 the first proposal was made in the United States for a canal across the Isthmus of Panama. A resolution was adopted to consult with other nations involved as to its feasibility. It was more than sixty years before anything serious was done toward digging the Panama Canal, and more than 75 years before the canal was finished.

Business, as usual, was a long way ahead of government in 1839 in promoting the use of new inventions. In that year, when the U.S. Navy had only one steamship, the legislature of Louisiana voted to subsidize a corporation to build steamships to run lines to Europe.

I have long thought that the most serious result of the American Civil War was that it interrupted expansion in foreign trade and gave Britain a chance to displace America as the world's carriers of merchandise.

CHANGES . . . . . security

After studying pretty carefully a file of old newspapers of a hundred years ago I can't see that there have been any changes of consequence in the outlook of the general run of people. There is still, as there was in 1839, a considerable number of folks who want the Government to do something for them or their special interests.

There is still, I am thankful to say, a very large number of people who don't ask any favors.

The only fear I have for the future is that we may get so fixed in the habit of expecting the Government to do everything for us that we will be willing to give up our natural liberties in exchange for what seems, at the time, a greater measure of economic security.

CONCRETE HIGHWAYS are Safe... Permanent Economical

● Concrete paving is chosen by municipal authorities because it ends costly maintenance and so makes budgets more productive of needed new mileage. For the motorist, it eases driving strain, reduces fuel consumption and means far less wear and tear on tires and vehicles. Tires grip the smooth, skid-retarding surface of concrete, while clearly defined edges and exceptional night time visibility are other elements of safety provided by this modern material. As motorist and taxpayer, advocate concrete paving in your community.

GREAT BRITAIN'S DEFENCE SYSTEM

"My impression is that England will be a very tough nut to crack," said R. J. Richards, a New Zealand school principal, after a two months' visit to Great Britain. Mr. Richards was in England during the crisis last year, and during his travels through the country he noted several aspects of defence.

"It is difficult for the man in the street to know how prepared England is for a conflict," he said. "Apparently, the Navy is in first-class order. The Air Force is rapidly growing, and the means for its expansion are growing. Having spent the greater part of my stay in England in the West Country, I can say that I know of several old quarries, buried deep in the ground, where there are acres and acres of munitions stored away and all ready for use.

"I motored over the Cotswolds in July and saw several new aerodromes with immense hangars. Again in December I motored over the same country, and the hangars were earthed over with a considerable depth of earth and stone work, and covered with turf, so that they looked like huge, grassy mounds. I visited London after the crisis, and it was pathetic to see how the parks were all torn up."

MOVIE CAMERA TO RECORD TRAFFIC CONDITIONS

Mayor Stanley Lewis, of Ottawa, will enlist the aid of a movie camera to gauge traffic conditions at Connaught Place. Horace L. Seymour, advisor to the Ottawa Housing and Planning Association, made recommendations on this site with which the mayor was not fully in accord. He believed that expert knowledge of town planning does not necessarily mean authority in traffic planning, and will counter with visual evidence taken by a motion picture camera from some suitable location.

TO BUILD DAM FOR WATER STORAGE

The town of La Tuque, Que., intends building a wooden dam for water storage in all seasons, on Little Lake Wayagamac and part of River Petite Bostonnais.

The dam will be erected to hold the said waters to regulate the flow, and so insure uniform supply to aqueducts and to plants and also to regulate the water power.

Plans and specifications of the proposed work have been transmitted to the Quebec Department of Lands and Forests.

CLEAN-UP FORTNIGHT

"Clean-up Week" in Ottawa has been extended to a two-week period this year, April 24 to May 6, when citizens will be requested to make special efforts that the Capital may look spick and span in readiness for Their Majesties' visit.

Natural gas has been found in almost all the provinces of Canada but the principal fields producing in commercial quantities are in Alberta, Ontario and New Brunswick.

It is said that an Ottawa man who recently won $150,000 in an Irish sweepstake, has been showered with congratulatory messages from a wide area. Win and the world wins with you, lose and you lose alone. — Brantford Expositor.

CAPITAL HAS 19,739 BUILDINGS

Exclusive of private garages and outbuildings, there are 19,739 buildings in Ottawa, according to the records compiled by the assessment department. Of these 17,091 are dwellings. There are 11,421 single dwellings, 2,322 double residences, 875 rows, 1,305 duplexes, 384 triplexes, and 884 apartment houses. Counting each apartment as a dwelling brings the total number up to 31,477.

Of the houses, 7,239 are occupied by owners, 12,492 by tenants and 305 vacant; 7,642 apartments occupied — 2,546 duplexes, and 757 triplexis, with 496 vacant. Other buildings included 459 stores, 623 stores with apartments over them, 149 banks and office buildings, 224 colleges, churches and schools, 1,091 miscellaneous buildings and 102 buildings under construction when assessment was made.

The population is given as 144,202, an increase of 1,350 over the figures taken in 1937.

SIDEWALK CAMERAMEN SUBJECT OF LATEST POLICE INQUIRY

Street photographers in Montreal are the subject of a police inquiry, following complaint of Royal Cluxton of the Clean-Up Committee that cards handed out by such photographers to pedestrians litter the streets, the police department were thereupon instructed to investigate.

Two questions will have to be answered in the investigation: One, if the photographers have the right to operate outdoors on the street, and snap citizens whether they like it or not; and two, if the citizen who threw away a card handed him should be brought to book for throwing rubbish on the streets.

As regards the latter, it was pointed out that there is a by-law prohibiting the littering of streets, but most citizens just throw away advertising material handed to them on the streets; the police could not very well go about arresting the citizenry en masse, it was pointed out.

N.S. TO TAKE OVER TOWNS IN DEFAULT

Legislation which would empower Nova Scotia's Department of Municipal Affairs to take over "temporary management" of municipalities in cases of default, was given second reading in the Provincial Legislature on March 21st.

The bill would provide for management of the town or municipality by a person appointed by the Governor-in-Council if he deemed it "expedient" should a case of default arise.

The legislation contained similar provisions for the case where a municipality failed to pay into a sinking fund any amount it was required to pay, or where the municipality asked for such management.

Over expansion and consequent financial embarrassment have caused in many communities a pessimism which is not warranted by the fundamental soundness of Canadian conditions and its almost unlimited natural wealth.

5-Minute Biographies

Author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

O. O. McIntyre

For seventeen years, O. O. McIntyre wrote a column entitled "New York Day by Day." Four hundred and ninety-eight newspapers printed it, and about twenty million people read it daily.

He was the most celebrated commentator on New York life that the old town has ever known; and yet he was born out in Missouri and never saw New York until he was thirty-four.

To millions of people, Oscar Odd McIntyre — or "Odd" as his friends called him — was the most famous person in New York.

I was down in Amarillo, Texas, a few years ago and I found that folks down there talked about only two people in New York — the late O. O. McIntyre and the late Arthur Brisbane.

There were a lot of odd things about Odd McIntyre. For example, he was paid $2,150 per week for writing his daily column; yet he never talked, face to face, more than three times in his life with the man who paid him that salary.

He made more than $100,000 a year by writing; yet he didn't have a stenographer. He pecked it all out himself on a portable typewriter.

Odd McIntyre hadn't the slightest desire to go on the air, though he was offered thirty-one radio contracts in one year. One concern agreed to put a microphone right in his New York apartment and pay him five hundred dollars a minute for talking in front of it. He said he got goose pimples at the very thought of it.

I asked him why he turned down these fabulous offers, and he said, "Well, because I don't know how to talk." He told me he tried to make a speech once, at a dinner given for Jack Dempsey in Los Angeles; and when he stood up, he was so scared that he swallowed and stammered and couldn't say a word.

Odd McIntyre was born in Plattsburg, Missouri, where his father ran a hotel. His mother died when he was three years old; and so he was reared by his grandmother, in Gallipolis, Ohio.

Odd McIntyre worked as a night clerk in the hotel in Gallipolis, and there he saw travelling men from New York — men who wore spats and talked about Broadway with a knowing air. This country boy was tremendously impressed by all this glamour; so he resolved to travel himself.

He had no money and no "pull," but he had youth and the fire of ambition in his heart. He read all the books he could find about New York; and, after working on newspapers in Ohio for several years, he came to Manhattan and took a position on Hampton's magazine. Three months after he landed in town, the magazine failed. He then got a position as copy reader and make-up man on the Evening Mail; but he was sickly and incompetent — and so he was fired.

Then he started to do the thing he had always wanted to do. He began writing a daily piece about New York. But nobody wanted to publish it; so, in order to get a start, he gave it away to newspapers, until he created a demand for his work.

Odd McIntyre, the typical man about town, didn't drink and didn't smoke. The only thing he offered me was a package of chewing gum. He had a Rolls-Royce and a chauffeur. Yet his favorite exercise was walking.

He had his clothes made by Lanvin, the Paris dressmaker; and he had a wardrobe that would rival the sartorial trappings of the Prince of Wales; yet he sat around all day writing in his dressing gown and lounging pajamas.

He never had but one sweetheart — and he married her. He called her "Snooks" and she called him "Lover."

CABINET MINISTER'S "MAN THE GUNS" STATEMENT STARTLES BRITAIN

A good deal of consternation was felt throughout the world when Earl Stanhope, first lord of the British admiralty, broadcast from aircraft carrier "Ark Royal" the order for the British anti-aircraft guns to be "ready for anything." Newspaper reports state that Hitler intended to send five hundred German warplanes to drop pamphlets on the British fleet, but the news leaked out and Britain allegedly prepared to give them a warm welcome. Above are pictures of the Ark Royal (background) and two types of anti-aircraft guns, left, and right, on British ships. Centre is a photograph of Lord Stanhope, who apparently "spilled the beans."

JUVENILE BANDSMEN TO BE HEARD HERE

The Cornwall Boys' Band, which will take part in a juvenile band recital at Lachute Auditorium on Saturday, April 22, under auspices and in support of the Lachute Boys' Band. This latter group, a younger enterprise than neighboring Ontario bands, will give an account of themselves in a few instrumental numbers showing the progress made in their first three months of tuition. Their organizer and instructor is Mr. Wm Ormston, while the Lachute Lions' Club are original sponsors of the local band. . . The boys and their trainer look for generous public support.

The Fellowship Circle met on April 11th in the United Church hall. After a short period of worship and the reading of the minutes, Mr. Howard Lalonde took charge of the program. He recounted his personal experiences as a conductor of summer tours. At times quite strenuous, in very hot weather most trying, there were periods of hectic effort to keep a large party together or on time. However, there were many amusing incidents and existence was never dull. Mr. Lalonde's usual route is from Montreal to Chicago and return, then to Quebec City, up the Saguenay River and return to Montreal. Then all over again — but with new faces, new names, new luggage and new questions to be dealt with. . . Various games in the recreation room and refreshments completed the enjoyable evening.

The April meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held on the afternoon of April 11 in the church hall. An Easter responsive service was held by the president, Mrs. J. Edson. The Easter thank-offering was postponed on account of the bad roads. Mrs. Mowatt will address this meeting. Mrs. E. Charman read a chapter of the study book. A vocal duet sung by the Misses Catherine Cooke and Lois McClintock was much appreciated.

To Miss Dorothy Paxman, on the staff of the Protestant School, is expressed the deep sympathy of this community, in the bereavement she suffers in the recent passing of her mother, Mrs. W. E. Paxman, at Quebec.

The Town Hall was well filled on Saturday evening, April 15, for the entertainment put on by the Carolina Jubilee Singers. There were six men in the group — no ladies this time; the same manager and pianist as came two years ago; the other talent were new to us. The program was excellent and diversified. A reading, a whistling solo (and encore) two pianoforte solos, quartets, spirituals, folk songs in costume, with banjo accompaniment, and vocal solos — some rendered with child-like abandonment to the spirit of fun, others with the wistful pathos of longing for freedom inherited from their Southern plantation ancestry. . . The sale of tickets and door receipts amounted to $52. Half that sum and their expenses were paid to the Singers.

The Anglican W.A. met at the home of Mrs. Entwistle on Thursday afternoon — the contents of United thank-offering boxes sent to this meeting to be forwarded to Montreal by the treasurer, Mrs. Entwistle. Tea was served at the close.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Miss M. Prosser; vice-president, Miss Elva Kennedy; secretary, Miss Gladys McAdam; treasurer, Miss Florence Robinson. Plans were made to hold a concert on May 12. Miss Florence Robinson was chosen as the life member. Following this meeting, the Senior and Junior Mission Circles of the church arranged a program which will be presented at the church service on Sunday evening.

Such Stuff As Dreams

(Trenton Courier-Advocate

We were one of the many thousands who did not win money in the recent Irish Sweepstakes. But we have our dreams. Supposing we had drawn a horse that finished in first, second or third place, and we had come into a sizeable fortune, what do you think we would have done?

Well, one thing certain, no agent for anything would ever get within a mile of us and if he did, it would not do him any good. Then, what would we have done?

There is the possibility — yes, the probability — that our staff in the office here would be looked after for some time to come, and there would be a large sign on our front door which would read: "This business is closed for five years. The editor's gone fishing. For further details read your local newspapers."

Ah, to dream! As Shakespeare put it: "We are such stuff as dreams are made of, and our little life is rounded with a sleep." And, what a sleep, what a sleep! And—five years of fishing! Think of that, you pelicans, think of that!

Numerous Explanations Of Origin of 'Hoosier'

Some 14 explanations of the origin of the term "Hoosier" have been offered. Meredith Nicholson, in "The Hoosier," discussed most of them. The earliest record of the use of the word is thought to be John Finley's poem, "The Hoosier's Nest," printed in the Indianapolis Journal, January 1, 1830. It was argued that the word must have been well known at that time or Finley would not have used it with no trace of doubt that it would be understood.

Such authorities as Governor Wright and the Indiana historian, O. H. Smith, were convinced that Hoosier is a corruption of the pioneer greeting, "Who's here?" Sulgrove, another writer of Indiana history, alluded to the word as a development from "husher," a term given in pioneer times to a good fighter who was able to hush his adversaries, and applied to the "greenies from the New Purchase" who went down the Ohio river to work, and fought laborers from Kentucky. There seems also to be some support for the explanation that it is a mispronunciation of "hussar," popularized by a Polish colonel who lectured through the state in the early days, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News. It presumes that young Indiana men were captivated by the hussars as pictured by the lecturer, and took the name and pronunciation upon themselves. Hoosier was a family name heard along the river, and another explanation is that the fondness of Indiana people for cookies made by a Louisville baker named Hoosier gained them the distinction of being called "Hoosier's customers," and finally, Hoosiers.

In the Carolinas, Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri, a rough country man is called a hoosier without reference to Indiana, and it is thought by some that the name can be traced to a time earlier than the opening of the Northwest Territory.

Ancients Enjoyed Many Kinds of 'Iced Drinks'

Early history of ice cream is fragmentary and the name of the actual originator is not known. It is recorded that Alexander the Great, the Ptolemys and Julius Caesar preferred "iced drinks," made with wine and snow, resembling our water ices. The writings of Marco Polo mention certain frozen sweets he enjoyed in China in 1275. Italian records indicate a thriving ice cream trade there in the Fifteenth century and Catherine de Medici, when she moved from Florence to France, took her own "gelateria" or freezing plant with her. The first printed record of it in England appeared in 1769.

Legends differ on its introduction into America, but credit most generally is given to the Virginia Cavaliers, notes a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer. In 1777 what is probably the first advertisement for ice cream appeared in a New York paper. During the administration of James Madison, his wife, Dolly, served it frequently at her levees. In 1832 a Negro confectioner of this city, Augustus Jackson, offered ice cream for sale at a dollar a quart. Several accounts claim that this man and the chef at the White House during the Madison administration are the same.

Pioneer Chatboro Resident Is Called by Death

LATE MRS. JAS. O'BRIEN, SR.

Cushing — It is with sincere regret that we record the sudden death of Mrs. James O'Brien, Sr., who passed away on Sunday, April 8, at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gauley, Chatboro. Mrs. O'Brien, who was 80 years of age, was formerly Katherine Florence Pinkerton, daughter of the late John O'Brien, of Chatboro, and Mary Cameron, his wife. She will be much missed, having endeared herself to many by her gentle, friendly ways. She was noted always for her keen desire to make peace, and keep everyone happy around her. She was the widow of the late James O'Brien Sr., who predeceased her almost 22 years ago, and leaves to mourn her loss — two daughters, Mrs. Ed. Gauley of Chatboro, Mrs. J. Mott of Brownsburg; one son, Fred O'Brien of Greece's Point; one stepson, Mr. James O'Brien of Chatboro; and three sisters, Mrs. John Sittlington of Carillon, Mrs. John Donaldson and Mrs. J. A. Donaldson of Chatboro, as well as a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

The funeral service, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gauley, was conducted by the Rev. J. R. Simpson, pastor of Grenville Baptist Church, of which Mrs. O'Brien was a member, and the remains conveyed to Lachute vault, for interment later in St. Andrews East cemetery. Pall-bearers were James O'Brien, John Donaldson, John Douglas, Jr., Fraser Watson, Archie Graham and Wm. Chambers. There were many beautiful floral tirbutes from sympathizing friends.

Social and Personal

Miss Leona Garretsee, of Montreal, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Creswell.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hadley celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary on Wednesday of this week.

Miss Betty O'Connor, of Notre Dame de Grace, was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins.

Miss Marjorie Searight, of Montreal, was a week-end guest of her sister, Mrs. W. Davis.

Miss Nora Jackson, of the Bank of Nova Scotia staff, is on a three weeks' vacation, and is now visiting friends in Montreal.

Miss Agnes Hume, who has spent the past year with Mr. and Mrs. James Duncan, Thomas' Gore, left last week for Montreal, and will leave Saint John, N.B., on Saturday for her home in Glasgow, Scotland. She is sailing aboard the Duchess of York.

Mrs. R. Lortie visited friends in Montreal last week-end.

Miss Olive Staniforth, of Montreal, visited friends in town over the week-end.

Mrs. W. M. Cottingham left on Tuesday for Brockville, where she is now visiting friends.

Mrs. H. W. Giles and Miss Lila Giles are sojourning at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco.

Mr. Bob Hadley, of Siscoe, Que., visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hadley, and other friends in town last week-end.

Mrs. W. H. Sutherland, who visited Lachute to address the United W.M.S. Easter meeting, was a guest of Mrs. T. McRobie while in town.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Paquin returned recently from an extended visit to Florida. They also visited California and attended the World's Fair. They motored the entire distance, covering altogether about 14,000 miles.

Word is received from Mr. J. F. Lavigne, who has been under hospital treatment in Montreal, that he expects to be home to resume his notarial duties by next Thursday.

As Mr. Georges H. Héon, M.P., will be one of the honored guests at the annual dinner of the Parliamentary Press Gallery on Saturday next, April 22nd, he will not be in his office on that day.

Mrs. J. A. McGibbon extended a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by a standing vote of the members.

During the afternoon a solo, "The Old Rugged Cross," was given by Mrs. A. Taylor, and the meeting closed, after which dainty refreshments were served. The ladies were waited upon by the C.G.I.T. girls and their friends. During her visit here, Mrs. Sutherland was the guest of Mrs. T. McRobie

Scripture Union Week-End Gathering at Grenville

Grenville — During Easter week-end, seven girls belonging to the Scripture Union Bible Study Class of Ottawa, and eight of the class at Montreal, held a house-party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gauley.

Miss Lillian Perkins, organizing secretary of Scripture Union in Eastern Canada, was in charge.

During the week-end several discussion groups were held. On Sunday morning the worship service was taken by the girls, when Miss Hazel McDonald, missionary in the Gatineau district, presented the old but ever new and precious Easter story.

In the afternoon the group attended the United Church, where they had very kindly been allowed the privilege of conducting the service. Miss Rita De Pierro, of Montreal, presided at this meeting. Miss Margaret Way Ottawa, read the scripture and led in prayer, while Miss Lillian Perkins delivered the message.

During the service, Miss Nora Martin, of the Montreal group, and Miss MacDonald, of the Ottawa group, were each called upon to testify.

Those who have read this news item and have not before heard of the Scripture Union, might be interested to know that on April 15, Diamond Jubilee Celebrations of the Children's Special Service Mission and Scriptural Union were held at Royal Albert Hall, London, that there are a million daily readers, and that cards with the suggested daily Bible readings are now issued in 92 languages.

If there are those who wish to link themselves with the million who are already members of the Scripture Union, they may have all necessary information by writing to the procincial secretary of the Union, Mr. Roy Campbell, 324 Elm Ave., Westmount, Que.

But His life and work were not ended; His disciples went forth. . .

"Christ started a great work that it might be perfected in you and in me. We like to look at it all and think what a fine thing the Christian churches in America have done in sending these missionaries out, and of ourselves as "the sending churches."

A very wonderful thing is happening at the present time. As you know, a number of national Christian missionaries from these lands are in America bearing a message to us from their churches. It was a privilege to hear their message and a joy to meet them personally.

Mrs. Manikim, a delightful little lady of India, made a deep impression on us. Miss Mina Soga, that dynamic Bantu woman of South Africa, with her wholesome charm and natural eloquence moved her audience greatly. She referred to having long dreamed of a visit to a Christian country. "Why do you keep your religion within your beautiful churches? Why don't you go out after the unsaved?" she said. Dr. Yuasa of Japan, while in Montreal, said "I did so enjoy the drive about your beautiful city. One thing that impressed me was the great number of churches and of how you uphold the Cross of Christ, even placing one on the mountain top overlooking the great city. It is a fine thing to visit a Christian Canada." They have come with a two-fold purpose, Fellowship and Interpretation. One hesitates and wonders what their interpretation really is.

In the January Monthly Mrs. Forbes refers to the visit of a distinguished visitor, Koyoke San, the Japanese prima donna in "Madame Butterfly" with the San Carlo Opera Company of New York. Miss Koyoke, a graduate of our Azabu school in Tokyo, gives all the credit for her education and her musical success to the Canadian missionaries and their work. As we sat together at luncheon she spoke of her joy in coming to a Christian country to study but she said "I soon learned you are not all good." "However, (I can still feel the pressure of her hand on my own), I love the W.M.S. and all they stand for. I have not the words to say thank you, but if you will come tonight I will sing for you." We wonder too what interpretation our Madras friends would put on our Christianity if they could have known of the difficulties experienced by the committee in attempting to arrange for accommodation in our local hotels. There was no room for Christ in the inn. Years ago Japan sent envoys to other nations for suggestions for the advancement of their country. They accepted forms of government, military systems, education, culture, business practices, etc., "But," she said "we don't want your religion." Did they interpret it to mean "Business is business?" It is still so here today.

It is high time we as individuals, as church members, in a so called Christian land, woke up, and that the sending churches be willing to listen and learn from these younger churches our responsibility for interpreting Christ. Tremendous events are happening in the world to-day. Wars raging, nations re-arming, heartless cruelties being perpetrated, social upheavals. There are abuses and injustices flourishing and suffering and poverty abounding almost everywhere. Nearly everybody (who isn't too busy doing something) is crying out that something should be done. Why don't the government, or churches, or civic authorities, or people of wealth and influence, do this or that. While Premiers, M.P's, religious leaders, directors are beseiged with advice and suggestions, most of us think we know what everybody else ought to do. But we are inclined to lose sight of the fact that this new rule of justice and plenty and peace we long for is to be made up of US and others like us. We've forgotten that a golden world cannot be built out of men of lead.

We need to be reminded that if we are going to get anywhere with our dreams we must look to ourselves and see "What manner of men we ourselves are" and with the help of all the means at our disposal, make ourselves such as will best fit into this new and improved scheme of things. It is my firm belief that our greatest and most fundamental need to-day is not so much for men to support this or that theory of international relationships or of social reconstruction or economic practice, but it is for men who will find out where their God-given duty lies—who will reverently ask what Saul asked on that never to be forgotten occasion of his conversion, "Lord, what wilt Thou have ME to do?" And who, having found out, are ready to do it. A world of right doing, right living men must move forward in the way of peace.

I am sure that God would have each one of us begin with ourselves. You want the world to be a place of brotherhood and peace; then drive out from your own heart all hatred, jealousy and prejudice from which war and strife spring—and let love rule there instead. You want justice and fair dealing—then see to it that all unjust, unkind, narrow-minded thoughts are no longer harboured in your heart, but that sympathy and kindness towards all becomes the rule of you life. Drive out greed which is selfishness and allow Christ-like unselfishness to rule there. This may seem a slow way to attempt to remake the world, but it will be a sure way. Eighty thousand Auxiliary members desperately in earnest would transform a land like ours.

Then let us give expression to the Christ Spirit in our lives by practical deeds of kindness and love. One does not need to go very far these days to find a great amount of distress, suffering, poverty and want and loneliness and discouragement bordering on despair. God is giving each one of us who professes a religion of love an opportunity to minister in his own way and according to his capacity. Most of us have lived long enough to know that life offers us no joy greater than that which comes from loving service rendered to our fellows. Perhaps few of us realize the amount of good a little act of kindness does. I believe that generally speaking it is the little cruelties and injustices that make people bitter—and it is the little acts of love, which lie within the power of each one of us which seem to drive out the bitterness and breathe into the heart that was once sour the spirit of gratitude and peace. This makes all the difference to a life and to the world in which it is lived.

And lastly, God would have us remember that it is not what WE do that makes that difference, but what HE does. Without His aid we cannot overcome the selfishness and pride of our natures and live lives of love, that without His grace we cannot keep on dealing kindly and generously with our fellows. We must needs call for His help. We must seek Him in worship and prayer. We must realize our responsibiilty of prayer.

Last spring my executive listened to one of our missionaries tell of her experiences in the war area in China, closing with a testimony of God's power to cast out fear and she said "I knew you were praying at home—I could feel your prayers." It was a challenge to me. What of my prayers? Had she felt MY prayers? This missionary and several others are on the Pacific tonight on their return to China, still counting on us to support them by our prayers and to interpret Christ in our lives here.

And my dear friends, it seems to me that if we are going to be of any service in this great organization in which we as individuals form a part, it is our duty in these disturbing and difficult times to ask "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" And the answer comes back in the words of the prophet of old, "He hath shown thee, O man, what is good. And what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly making thy life such as will fit into a world of peace and justice, and to love mercy and let thy life be filled with deeds of kindness and to walk humbly with thy God, ever remembering His presence, His ever-guiding power.

Most of Britain's Large Animals Have Faded Out

In the British isles there are about 90 species of mammals, but a thousand years ago the number was much larger, for with the advance of civilization the larger species disappeared. Up to 200 years ago wolves roamed over the wilder parts of the country, and in Ireland they existed up to 1770.

In the reign of Charles II, writes Oliver G. Pike, F. Z. S., in London Tit-Bits Magazine, hunting the wild boar was a favorite sport, but as the great forests were cut down to provide land for cultivation this fine animal became extinct. Beavers were to be found damming up our streams when William the Conqueror landed.

Many place names in this country show that in the early days mammals were common. Boarhunt, Boarhills and Hogmer were named after the boar; Brockenhurst, Brockley, Brocketsbrae and Brock after the badger; Bearsden and Bearsted after the wild bear, and Otterham, Otterspool and Otterington after the otter. The first to go was the bear. This animal likes a secluded life, and as civilization increased it moved deeper into the fastnesses of the hills. The last specimen was destroyed in the Eleventh century.

As long as fox hunting is the sport of the rich, the fox will remain with us; in places the badger is persecuted cruelly, although it would be difficult to point out any harm it does, while the good it can do in ridding the countryside of noxious insects cannot be too highly emphasized.

Value of Leaf Mould

The chief value of leaf mould is in adding humus to the soil. For example, a sandy soil has not the capacity to retain soil moisture on account of its coarse open texture. The addition of humus changes the texture completely, making it absorb a larger amount of rainfall and during dry weather to draw larger supplies from the subsoil. Its addition to clay soils loosens all such, making them more easily worked and prevents baking and cracking during hot dry weather. Its value as a fertilizer is chiefly nitrogen, it lacks phosphorus and potash (the latter chiefly).

MONDAY'S QUIZ

Appearing before a large audience in the Rex Theatre last Monday night the two teams "C" and U.Y.P.S., settled down to answer the round of questions prepared for them. Although the questions were not very difficult, they were tricky, and disqualifications were the order of the evening. In spite of these many eliminations, both teams tried hard and the U.Y.P.S. managed to chalk up a score of 9 over the 5 points of their opponents.

Margaret McKiddie was highly surprised to have the following question asked :—

"Bring brace and bit Monday for cleaning, also friction tape."

This order, accidently dropped in the box, didn't count, so Margaret drew again and the contest continued. Team "E" plays the C.G.I.T. this Monday.

It has been decided to award points to the team for each game won. Four points are given.

Standing of Teams to Date :

A—20, B—15, C—17, D—27, E—0, C.G.I.T.—0, U.Y.P.S.—22.

Teams to play in finals :

U.Y.P.S.—8, A—8, D—4.

SOCIAL —

The pupils of Grades IX, X, and XI, intend to hold a taffy party on Friday evening of this week. A full attendance is not only hoped for but EXPECTED.

— AND PERSONAL

The pupils of L.H.S. are happy to welcome to the school Harold and Ruth Orsborn, who started school with us on Monday.

WORK ON ANNUAL CONTINUES

Work is still going on to complete the High School Annual. It is hoped that the edition may be "on the market" by the middle of May. To date no name has been chosen for the book; so get to work with your brains and pencils and see if you can win that trip to the movies that the editors are offering as a prize.

SPRING PASTURE

I never saw such silly cows
As my cows are today,
We turned them in the pasture,
They all began to play.
They galloped up the hillside,
Like horses running free.
They all cavorted down again,
And shook their horns at me.
Their bells are ringing wildly
To celebrate the day,
The youngest calf and oldest cow
Think spring is here to stay !

Hints for Homebodies

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman

BUSINESS IS GETTING BETTER

Business is picking up. How do I know ? Just feel the weight of your magazines and that will tell you. When business goes down, advertising is lessened and the magazines get smaller and smaller. Then, when it begins to pick up a bit, more is spent on advertising. Spring is a time of replenishing and let us try to buy as much as we can at home. Each purchase that is made in your own home town helps to keep the money in circulation and to provide jobs and keep people off relief. A little money spent is like a stone in a pool, with its ever widening circles. It starts with the merchant and ends up with the odd-job man or woman. There are times when it may not be possible to buy at home but if your merchant has not your requirements he will gladly get them, if you just give him a chance. One of the objections to ordering is the length of time one often has to wait. Things are speeded up now and the judicious use of the telephone and telegraph by town merchants might lessen the time required and increase sales. Charity begins at home — business should too.

GOOD LOOKS AND BRAINS

The old idea used to be that good looks and brains never went together in women. Maybe women helped the idea along as it used to be that men did not want women to know much. They still fall for the Dumb Doras, but the average men these days like women to know something. There are three women in the House of Commons, two on the floor and one in the press-gallery. All are good-looking and very different types. Miss McPhail is a good-looking woman, approaching the handsome type. Mrs. Black is a lovely looking woman with a very sweet face. There are other women whose age mellows them and gives them beauty, but I am sure Mrs. Black was a very pretty young woman — in fact she still is. Mrs. Evelyn Tufts is the only woman in the press gallery. She is a striking blonde who takes the eye of both men and women. She had done many interesting things from covering the Lindberg trial to flying to Alaska. She and Miss McPhail made the historic flight from Ottawa to Vancouver. Mrs. Tufts is an authority on credit-unions, and co-operatives. Three attractive women with looks and brains.

THOUGHTLESS CARELESSNESS

One day I went to my doctor's office and he looked so down-cast I asked him what was the matter. He told me this tragic story. He had a patient, a ten-year-old girl who had developed tuberculosis very rapidly and was in a serious condition. He could not understand where the contagion had come from and had tried very hard to find out. One day when he visited her, the mother said Mary was feeling bad because her Sunday school teacher had died. She was so good to her class of little girls, had them to her home very often, gave them parties, and taught them handicrafts. Idly the doctor asked what the woman had died from and the answer was consumption. Investigation showed that the woman had been in a sanatorium at different times. She knew she was tubercular and so did the congregation and the Sunday school officers. Apparently, the danger was never considered. The doctor was rounding up the rest of the class, and sending them to the clinic for examination. There is no need to draw a moral here.

PLANT FOR WINTER BLOOM

Those of you who have gardens, couldn't you tuck away, more or less out of sight, one or two Forsythia and Japonica shrubs for winter cutting ? Think of having branches of lovely bloom in the house in February and March. If your shrubs are planted for decorative purposes, as most of them are, you will hesitate to cut them. But if you have some extra bushes you can cut them freely and when brought into the house and put into water they will burst into bloom. We all have dreams and this is one of mine. Maybe some day we will stay put long enough for me to plant Forsythia. You do it and I will enjoy them by proxy.

COCOA ICE-BOX COOKIES

1 cup shortening, 3 cups cake flour, 1½ cups sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup cocoa, ½ cup chopped walnuts, 2 eggs.

Cream shortening and sugar, add beaten eggs,. Sift in dry ingredients and mix well. Form into two rolls and chill over-night. Slice and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees.

GINGER FORK COOKIES

¾ cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar.

Cream shortening and sugar, add well-beaten egg. Sift in dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pinch off a small piece of dough, roll in a ball and press down both ways with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven of 300 degrees for ten minutes.

Lemonades and Lemon Aids

By Betty Barclay

Unfortunately, in many homes lemons are seldom used except for colds, mayonnaise or an occasional lemon meringue pie. This is a rank injustice to the versatile and healthful lemon, which has uses which are almost unlimited.

First of all, a lemon juice bracer is a splendid regulatory drink. This consists of a glass of hot or cold water with the juice of a lemon and a quarter or half teaspoon of baking soda (bicarbonate) Such a drink when made a morning habit also helps to ward off colds.

Do you realize that lemon juice may replace vinegar in almost any recipe calling for the latter? Or have you ever tried any of the following simple lemon hints ?

For aluminum ware: When aluminum becomes dark, fill with water, add a sliced lemon and boil.

For woodwork : Use the juice of one lemon in 1 quart of water as a rinse when cleaning surfaces of painted or enamel woodwork. This will maintain the glossy surface.

For the hands: Immediately after washing dishes, drop a little lemon juice in the palms and rub well over hands to keep them soft and white. This also removes odors, such as fish or onions.

To rinse woollens: For each 2 pounds of blanket, use the juice of one lemon in the rinse water to maintain resiliency and to counteract shrinkage.

These are a few lemon aids. Now I shall give you recipes for a couple of unusual lemonades, and also two other recipes that should prove to you that our friend the lemon is good for far more than an occasional pie or jar of mayonnaise.

Golden Gate Punch

¾ to 1 cup sugar, 1½ cups lemon juice, 1 cup orange juice, 2 cups grape juice or juice from any berry, 6 cups water.

Combine. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 10-12.

Lemon Ginger Flop

1 lemon, extract juice, ½ orange, extract juice, sugar to taste, crushed ice to fill ½ glass.

Combine and fill glass with ginger ale.

Add a bit of shredded yellow peel from lemon.

Lemon Chiffon Pudding

Cream 2 tablespoons flour, ¾ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter.

Add 2 egg yolks beaten, ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 cup milk.

Fold in 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Bake in an 8-inch unbuttered pudding dish or individual custard cups, set in a pan of warm water. Bake 35 minutes in oven (360 degrees to 375 degrees F.). Will form a cake top with a layer of custard below. Serves 4-6.

Baked Fish with Lemon

Rub lemon juice over fish to be baked, covering the inside as well as outside. Salt and stuff or not as desired. Put in well-greased pan, dot with butter and bake at moderate temperature until done (about 12 minutes to the pound). Serve garnished with parsley and lemon slices or quarters. These should be large enough, and plentiful enough, to provide ample juice for flavor. Fish steaks may be baked in similar fashion. Rub both sides of steak with the lemon juice. Broiled or fried fish should also be prepared by rubbing with lemon and served with lemon garnish.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

With no knowledge whatever of physics or mechanics, as she admits, and with logarithms and logic as alien as they are to the average woman, Miss Beulah Louise Henry has, however, been able to design many successful inventions that have been a surprise to her scientific friends.

She has a laboratory in a New York hotel which looks less like a laboratory than it does like a very feminine dressing room. She herself painted the walls, the designs as well as the gay background, and there are mottoes that express what she is trying to do to help mankind, and particularly womanhood, to get through jobs and life with less effort.

Many of the thousands of daily travelers, commutors and those who are just taking a short cut, who pass through Grand Central Terminal, New York, have wondered about the organist who played from time to time. Mrs. M. Lou Read is the musician who delights so many hurrying people and gives them a cheerful greeting or farewell, using a portable electric organ. At first she played only on holidays and other special occasions, but after thousands of letters of appreciation of her music poured in, she has been installed as a permanent organist.

Women visitors to the New York World's Fair will be interested in seeing a floor made of cotton, and many of them will wonder how they can utilize it in their own homes.

Reports from England are to the effect that British women derive more satisfaction from their homes than the women of this continent, though they have fewer material comforts and labor saving devices.

Adult Education Takes Root In Eastern Townships

The movement known as Adult Education seems to have definitely taken root in the Eastern Townships and is making steady progress. Pioneer work done by Mr. R. Alex Sim, of McGill University last fall resulted in the forming of several groups, which have carried on with a fair degree of success through the winter months.

The centre of the movement has been in Lennoxville — a fit place for any educational movement, as the quiet little town on the bank of the St. Francis has been the seat of the University of Bishop's College since its earliest days.

A Community Council, the first to be organized in the Province of Quebec, was the centre point of the movement. From it four working groups have sprung, including a group studying Sociology for the community; a group on Co-operatives, a Handicrafts group, and a Junior Drama group. To these, in affiliation with the Community Council, the name of Associated Groups has been applied.

In addition to study groups, a survey of the town is being carried out; summaries of books studied are being prepared for group use; and the subject of supervised playgrounds for children, between school terms, is being seriously considered.

An office is being prepared for Mr. Sim's use, and this is taken to mean that the headquarters of the movement, in so far as the Eastern Townships is concerned, will continue to be in Lennoxville.

"Does your husband ever quarrel with you ?"

"Goodness, no ! He's too much of a gentleman. He just goes out and slams the door."

Great errors may be present in a profoundly good life and a spotless reputation may cover a meaningless existence with no positive expression of the good. — Edward H. Griggs

Stomach Cancer, Early Signs

Dr. Sarah M. Jordan, of Boston, in an address to the American Medical Association last year, analysed the early signs of cancer of the stomach. She says that there are two stages in the history of this affection, one preceding the other by weeks or months.

The symptoms to which reference will be made are both primary and secondary; that is, they appear in the very earliest stages as well as later on.

Of these, pain and distress in the stomach region is the earliest sign. It may appear as a general abdominal sign. It may show itself in the right or left upper quarter of the abdomen or in the shoulders. It is a common secondary sign as well. Loss of appetite, loss of weight and vomiting come next in order as primary signs, while nausea and vomiting are second in frequency as secondary symptoms. Loss of strength is common, while hiccup, belching, difficulty in swallowing, as well as diarrhoea or constipation may occur.

Loss of weight, appetite and strength are strongly suggestive of cancer of the stomach in a patient who complains of pain and distress in that region. These signs should at once send the person for X-ray and other aids to diagnosis.

A useful rule for both patient and doctor is that in a patient of over 35 years, abdominal discomfort of over a few days duration should be checked and if persistent re-checked with careful study, both X-ray and chemical. One of the best safeguards against cancer and indeed almost any disease, is periodic health examination. If the individual made it his habit to have an annual overhaul, what an enormous number of cancers, heart cases, kidney and lung affections would be caught early and at a time when they might readily be cured !

A little boy, after his first day at school, was questioned as to what happened.

"Nothing much," he said, "except that a lady there who didn't know how to spell 'cat' asked me how; and I told her."

A Girl's Creed

I believe in myself.

I believe in rating myself highly— without being conceited — because I know that what other people think of me is merely a reflection of what I think of myself.

I believe in doing anything that doesn't make me dislike or distrust myself.

I believe that women should use their reasoning powers more and think of their emotions less. Then they'd stop making the mistake of being too possessive.

I believe in love — but it must be based on firm friendship. Love at first sight usually turns into indifference on second thoughts.

I believe in being honest with myself but not scrupulously so with other people if it's going to make them unhappy.

I believe in dressing as well as I can afford, because it is everybody's duty to make this world as pleasant a place as possible.

I believe in saving as much as I can without ever being mean, because I always want to feel that I am independent even if it is only to the tune of a small sum.

I believe in doing or buying something now and then that is completely unnecessary and a little extravagant. It makes me feel a bit of a devil — and that makes me feel courageous. Without courage you cannot live and still be happy.

I believe in feeling friendly towards everyone, because that makes me — and other people — happy.

I believe in forgetting all the rotten parts of yesterday, enjoying every minute of today and not worrying about tomorrow.

I believe in being discreet in all things, and I believe, occasionally, in having a very bad memory.

I believe in keeping myself as fit as possible.

I believe in being able to keep up my end of a sensible conversation. We come from silence and pass into silence, but the years between are full of talk. And much hangs on how you talk.

I believe in God, because He has so often answered my prayers.

Cock o' the Walk

The cocker spaniel does not get his name from his confident manner although that might furnish reason enough for so designating him he is called the cocker because he was primarily used for hunting woodcock . incidentally, the springer spaniel comes by his name in much the same manner, says the American Wildlife institute His antecedents were originally known as "springing spaniels" because of their habit of springing towards game to flush it.

WAKE UP AND LIVE!

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

If the Will to Fail announced its presence with symptoms as uniform and unmistakable as those which indicate measles or a bad cold, it would probably have been eradicated, or a technique for combatting it would have been worked out, long ago.

There are, for instance, those who sleep from two to six hours a day more than they need to sleep to keep in perfect physical health. In any individual case, unless the sleeping hours far exceed the normal quota, it is very hard to be sure one has not to do with merely an unusually long sleeper. But when the note of compulsion enters, one can be sure of having found a true victim of failure. Those who are bad-tempered or only half alive if an early bedtime must be postponed, those who anxiously count each morning the exact number of hours spent in sleep the night before, mourning inconsolably any interruption, every hour of insomnia, are looking to sleep for more than its normal restorative function.

Next, still among the inconspicuous failures, the "introverts," are the waking sleepers: persons who allow some activity to pass before them almost without participation, or indulge in time-killing pursuits in which they take only the most minor and non-constructive parts: solitaire players, the pathological bookworms, the endless crossword-puzzlers, the jigsaw puzzle contingent.

Easiest of all to recognize as lovers of failure are the heavy drinkers. There are thousands who show the symptoms in so faint a form that they pass almost unnoticed: all those who drink knowing that it means a bad morning the next day, a vague and woolly approach to every problem until the effects have passed off; those to whom any drinking means physical discomfort, whether acute or trifling.

Anyone who has learned to expect these consequences and yet continues to lay himself open to them stands convicted of the desire to handicap himself, at least to that extent. It makes very little difference what the drink in question may be. If coffee disturbs you, if you cannot digest milk, and you nevertheless continue to drink it, you may escape the disapproval which is meted out to the highball drinker, but you are in the same class. And, plainly, unwise eating comes under the same head.

Turning to the active type, it may be said that the extroverts who pursue failure as their primary career find so many ways of doing it that the attempt to tabulate them all would be hopeless.

But, as examples, there are the relentless movie and theatre-goers, the nightly dancers, all those who count the day lost which has not a tea or dinner or cock-tail party in it. . . No, of course, there is nothing against relaxation and recreation when they are really called for, after a period of contributory activity.

But those who enter an objection to this classification too early and too angrily, crying that one must have recreation, give themselves dead away as setting an abnormal value on release.

As to aimless conversationalists, we can more readily see that others fall in that group than that we are included ourselves.

No reminiscent ring, no forced smile on our auditor's lips will stop us when we are habitually marking time with words — when we have the same unevolving round of topics, the same opinions to repeat mechanically, the same half-aimless observations to make on the same recurring situations, the same automatic indignation at the same old abuses, the same illustrations to prove the same points, and a few lukewarm arguments to bolster up what may once have been opinions but are now seldom more than prejudices.

Committee Outlines Program for First Stages of Royal Tour

Senator Griesbach Asks Authoritative Survey and Report on Defence Resources

Earnest Debate on Problem Of Unemployment

Ottawa, April 25th. — Just before the budget appears it isn't wise to make predictions, which may be so soon refuted. What is clear, however, is that the atmosphere in which this budget appears isn't conducive to lowered taxation, that is at least to anything spectacular in the way of reduction. The trade treaty with the United States, which came into effect on the first of the year, has been the Government's contribution to reduction in indirect taxation through lowering of the tariff. The budget will add to this the cancellation of the three per cent excise tax on goods on which concessions have been made in the treaty. In addition to this, the three per cent will be removed from some other commodities. This has been promised, to prevent inequities. There may be some other changes in the tariff, relating to investigations that have been carried out during the past year by the tariff board. But the number of commodities is not expected to be large. Of course, with an election not far off, it must be a temptation to a Government to make some reductions in taxation, but with the world as it is, with political storm clouds all over the earth, with our own country having to increase its armed protection against aggression, it just doesn't seem possible to expect much reduction. Government revenues have held up remarkably well, in spite of the business uncertainty felt in this as well as other countries.

THE ROYAL VISIT

It is just three weeks now to the arrival of the King and Queen in this country. Preparations, except for minor details, seem to be practically completed. The interdepartmental committee looking after these preparations have been very busy, and have been at intervals giving to the press summaries of the programs at the various towns and cities on the royal route across Canada. Whether the Dominion Parliament will have finished the work of the session by the time Their Majesties arrive in Ottawa is still uncertain. Everyone would like to see the Sovereign prorogue Parliament, the first time this has occurred in the Dominion. But the work of Parliament has to go on, and there is still a heavy agenda of legislation to be discussed. There are the comprehensive new deal in agriculture, electoral reform and the budget, as well as other measures.

In any event, the King will sign several bills that have passed Parliament by the time he arrives in the capital. On the way through the Senate now is a bill, already through the Commons, which makes it constitutional for the royal signature to be affixed to Canadian legislation, alongside the seal of Canada. Hitherto the regulations provided only for the signature of the King's representatives.

There will be much ceremonial in all cities, befitting the occasion, with salutes, guards of honor, functions by federal, provincial and municipal officials, but most important to the individual citizen will be the drives of Their Majesties through the various centres where the people of Canada, particularly the children, may be able to get a good view of the Sovereigns of the British Commonwealth. At this moment the program only up to the capital has been issued to the press. Details have been given of the arrival at Quebec, of the welcome of Their Majesties by the Prime Minister of Canada, the Lieutenant-Governor and Premier of Quebec and other officials and the federal, provincial and municipal functions at Quebec. Their Majesties will stay at the Citadel the night of their arrival. The welcoming ceremonies and municipal dinner at Montreal and the various functions during the four day stay at Ottawa are also described. The unveiling of the national war memorial will be an outstanding event of the visit to the capital. There will be broadcasts by the King at 1.45 p.m. on May 15 from Quebec; at 2.45 p.m.. on the 18th at Ottawa when His Majesty is unveiling the memorial; on May 19th by the Queen when she is laying the cornerstone of the new Supreme Court building. There will be the Empire Day broadcast from Winnipeg by the King on May 24th at 3 p.m., a further broadcast from Victoria at 6.00 p.m., May 30th, and at Halifax at 12.30 p.m. on June 30th, when Their Majesties are bidding farewell to Canada.

OUR DEFENCES

In the upper chamber Senator Griesbach has been asking for a joint committee of both Houses to ascertain the facts about our defences. He spoke on the bill which provides for the creation of a defence purchasing board. He thinks that Parliament should find out exactly how efficiently this country is prepared to meet an attack if an attack should come. With the industries of Britain and other countries being so fully occupied with preparing equipment for their needs, Canada should create an armament industry which can turn out the equipment we need. In the defence purchasing board he sees a body which could create such an industry. He feels that the head of the defence purchasing board should be a member of the country's defence council.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

The House of Commons has been spending several days on the discussion of this most difficult problem, how to deal with unemployment. The debate at times has become very bitter. Many speeches have been a diatribe against the Government, while several have sought to dig down to the manifold causes of the present situation, the world unrest and uncertainty, the restrictions on international trade, the new and scientific methods in industry with the use of new machinery which have thrown many out of employment. Appeals were made by some speakers to concerted action by Governments, federal, provincial and municipal, by finance, by individuals and by various agencies to solve this most difficult of all problems facing the Canadian people.

Popular C.P.R. North Shore Employee Enters Retirement, Friends Wish Him Well

WELL KNOWN TO LOCAL PATRONS; LONG SERVICE WITH CANADIAN PACIFIC

There is great satisfaction in work well done. The popular roadmaster of this C.P.R. division, Mr. J. P. Gallivan, better known as "Jim" to his fellow travellers and friends, is now enjoying a two weeks' holiday at the company's expense prior to his retirement after 48 years of honorable service. There is no question as to Jim's nationality, for he is Irish through and through. While travelling back and forth on the railroad he would 'feel' with fair accuracy the state of the roadbed, and out would come his little book to jot down instructions regarding rough spots in the track. While his wealth of Irish yarns will be missed by many a fellow traveller, his friends of the North Shore wish for him long years of happiness in which to enjoy his well deserved rest and his well earned pension.

Daylight Saving Time

Daylight saving time will be adopted in Lachute, as usual, when the general change comes into effect Saturday night, April 29th. Readers are given a perennial reminder to observe alterations in the train schedules and church services which become effective the following day, Sunday.

Business Changes, With Approach of 'Moving Day'

ABATTOIR TO ESTABLISH ON TOWN OUTSKIRTS

Several changes in business establishments are noted with the approach of May 1st, annual "moving day." When completed, the modernized store property of Wilbur Walker on Main Street will be occupied by a drygoods store on the east side and a tea-room and confectionery in the smaller premises on the west side — the business newcomers being, respectively, a merchant from St. Jerome and a Mr. Smith, of Kemptville, Ont.

D. P. MacDiarmid, grocer who has occupied Mrs. M. A. Belanger's store on Bethany Street, has now removed to the Adolphe Raymond property on Foundry Street, while F. S. Belleau, druggist, has moved from the east ward to Mr. MacDiarmid's former stand.

The former Miss Louise Goldsworthy, now Mrs. G. E. Helmer, is returning from Montreal with her husband to resume business at the novelty and stationery store which she started several years ago in the Jousse Block. Since her marriage this business has been continued by her parents.

Having purchased the tract of land known as the old Earle farm, a group of butchers and cattle dealers are reported to be establishing an abattoir. The enterprise, under title of the Corporation Lachute Ltée, will buy and slaughter cattle for packing and shipment of meat.

Reported as interested in this venture are Messrs. Jos. A. Duranseau, Léo Chas., Meunier and J. Brière. Buildings are being erected on the property, situated west of Lachute limits below the Ayers Limited dam. The farm was purchased by the syndicate from Michel Malacket, Lachute Mills.

Street Merchant Commits Suicide In Stable

DIES OF BULLET WOUND SELF INFLICTED

The verdict of suicide while in a state of mental derangement was returned by a jury here Monday afternoon, in the case of Joseph Muldowan, 28-year-old chip-potato vendor, who shot himself in the stable at the rear of his home on Water Street.

The tragedy occurred soon after the noon hour on Monday. His wife and brother-in-law, Victor Boyko, testified that Muldowan had gone out to the stable after dinner to water his horse. Boyko, going into the stable at 2.30 o'clock, found the man dead on the floor, shot through the chest with a 45-75 rifle. The gun was on the floor beside him.

Town Constable Alex Gervais and Provincial Constable Howard Jones were called to investigate. Muldowan had been shot near the heart, the bullet having entered his chest and emerged through his back. The police found the bullet on the floor, where it had fallen after striking a steel axle against the stable wall. There was no clue to reasons which had incited the victim's suicide. Dr. W. F. McMartin made examination of the body, and with the two relatives and police officers, gave evidence before a jury empanelled by Dr. J. H. Mason, district coroner. The jurors were Messrs. R. Vickery, foreman. Hector Lamarche, S. S. Campbell, S. McFaul, Geo. Licop and Horace Lamarche. The verdict of suicide was returned.

Joseph Muldowan was a native of Rumania. He was a familiar figure on the streets of this town, where he had made the rounds with his potato wagon for the past five years. He had no children; survivors are his wife and brother-in-law here in Lachute.

Loot of War, Relic from Collection Here Restored to White House

Far-Traveled Medicine Chest Found Home Among Treasures of Argenteuil Descendant

Returned to U.S. President By Mr. Archibald Kains

A mahogany, brass-bound medicine chest which was looted from the White House at Washington when the city was routed by the British in 1814 — a relic which has since found refuge in this county of Argenteuil, was returned this week to President Roosevelt by Mr. Archibald Kains, of Ottawa. The still handsome chest contains compartments for medicine bottles, pills and powders. According to Mr. Kains, it was stolen by his grandfather as his share of the spoils in the looting of White House.

Mr. Kains explains that his grandfather, Thomas Kains, who died in this country in 1856, was the purser of H.M.S. Devastation, an English man-of-war which anchored in the Patuxent River, and whose men participated in the capture and burning of Washington. He carried it with him in subsequent travels that took him back to England and thence to Canada, where as an immigrant he settled here in the Ottawa Valley. Later he was called back into active service and the chest went with him to H.M.S. Victory, famed as the flagship of Lord Nelson.

Mr. Archibald Kains came into possession of the chest on the death of his cousin, Mr. Charles Kains, of Greece's Point, and decided to restore it to the place from which it was taken.

Broadcasting Royal Visit Biggest Undertaking in History of C B C

TASK WITHOUT PARALLEL IN THE TWENTY YEARS OF BROADCASTING

Plans for broadcasting the visit of Their Majesties the King and Queen, from May 15 to June 15, are nearing completion. Broadcast coverage by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, in preparation for several months, will be the most ambitious hitherto known in Canada, with practically the entire CBC staff pressed into service. During the month-long tour, His Majesty the King will speak on five occasions, and Her Majesty the Queen will be heard once.

According to W. E. Gladstone Murray, General Manager of the C.B.C., the broadcasting of the Royal tour presents at once a unique responsibility and an unparalleled opportunity. Mr. Murray said, "Probably no other problem of quite the same dimensions has been faced before in broadcasting. Previous to this, the biggest actuality broadcasts were the Coronation, which lasted only one day, and the Berlin Olympics, which lasted one week.

"The discharge of these responsibilities imposes a task which in its dimensions and complexity has not, in my knowledge at all events, any parallel in the 20 years or so which now constitute the history of broadcasting.

"A great deal of special equipment is required. About 80 additional microphones will be employed. In Quebec, there will be 41 local loops."

The broadcasting of the tour will begin with a description of their departure from Portsmouth relayed from the BBC.

Prior to the actuality broadcasts in connection with the Royal tour, the CBC will present a series leading up to Their Majesties' visit. The six occasions on which Their Majesties will speak are listed below, and broadcasting arrangements as completed up to date will be published in a later issue of The Watchman. The CBC, each evening, will present a résume of the Royal activities during the day.

100 Club Members Hear Talk and Demonstration on Short Wave Radio

LOCAL "HAM" AND FELLOW-MEMBER EXPLAINS MYSTERIES OF AMATEUR TRANSMISSION

At a general meeting and supper held last evening by Lachute Hundred Club, one of the group's own members, Edgar (Ted) Hammond, gave the gathering an insight into his particular specialty and hobby, short wave radio. Well known as a pioneer of this locality in the technique of short-wave communication, Mr. Hammond unveiled something of the mystery which enshrouds this branch of radio in the lay mind. He afterwards tuned in amateur communications with a portable short-wave receiver.

Mr. Hammond described the "ham" fraternity as a widespread and organized group comprising members of all races, trades and professions. An item in their code of ethics was a pledge to public service, their equipment and facilities being available to assist in times of crisis or disaster. Amateur operators had, in fact, given valuable aid in such emergencies — the speaker mentioning among other instances the Mississippi floods, the New England hurricane and the Moose River mine tragedy.

For the interest of his listeners Mr. Hammond tuned in a conversation between his own station and an operator transmitting from VE3AGG at Kirkland Lake. His own station at Lachute Mills is registered under the cyphers VE2GH.

Mr. Hammond was introduced to the gathering by President L. W. Armstrong, and thanked by Centurion W. Gordon. Violin selections by Gaëton Forget were enjoyed among the musical numbers. Members and their guests numbered around 20. During the business discussion it was decided to hold an Amateur Night next month to augment the club's charity fund.

Quebec Relents in Opposition to Proposed Federal Unemployment Insurance

BUT STILL WARY OF THREAT TO "AUTONOMY"

The "constitutional" barricade appears to have been lowered as Quebec Legislature opens the way to discussion of unemployment insurance with the Federal Parliament. Quebec's former objection to the infringement of "provincial rights" by federal legislation for unemployment insurance, bade fair to block discussion of any such scheme, as far as its application to this province was concerned.

Confederation was brought about in times of calmness, not in troubled periods such as prevail at present, explained Premier Maurice Duplessis in the Legislative Assembly when putting through a measure whereby Quebec may come to an accord with the Dominion Government. The bill was given third reading by the Assembly. Its main portion is included in the clause which reads "the Lieutenant - Governor-in-Council is authorized to enter into, with the Federal Government, any agreement which he may deem just and in conformity with the interests and constitutional rights of this province, in order to establish a system of unemployment insurance from which the province will benefit."

In the course of the debate the Premier said Premier Mitchell Hepburn did not approve of constitutional changes in this connection. Hon. T. D. Bouchard said it was clear both the Quebec and Ontario governments believed unemployment insurance was necessary but he did not agree with the Premier's idea that reserve funds had first to be built up before a plan could be launched. Mr. Duplessis contended there could be no satisfactory system without a fund and a reserve.

Mr. Bouchard declared it was obvious the Premier could no longer resist the pressure of public opinion in favor of insurance.

THE KING'S MICROPHONES

This is an advance picture of the special microphone, a number of which have been produced by Northern Electric, to meet the requirements of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for use across Canada during the Royal Visit. They are specially designed to reduce to a minimum the wind noises prevalent hitherto when microphones are used out-of-doors. Above the wind baffle is mounted a sterling silver crown giving the whole a distinctively regal appearance. In addition a number of the new Cardioid type microphones will be used when His Majesty greets the Commonwealth of Nations on Empire Day, from Winnipeg.

Visiting Couple Prove Talented Entertainers

An entertainment of an unusual order was enjoyed by the children and staff of Lachute High School, in the music room of the school on Tuesday afternoon. Dr. Leslie Grossmith and Madame Grossmith, who have spent the Easter vacation in Lachute, proved themselves versatile entertainers in a program which, while high class, was not beyond the appreciation of their young audience. Dr. Grossmith, of London, England, is a member of a theatrical family and displays rare talent in his performances. In response to requests the program was repeated at a later hour for an adult audience.

Dr. Grossmith's talk on the character building qualities of music was presented with human, and humorous, sidelights which detracted nothing from his theme but kept his listeners interested. The Doctor went on to explain the mood and visualize the theme of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," which he "translated" in a brilliant piano rendition. Other presentations were an excerpt from "The Immortal Slave," an opera of the Doctor's own composition, and his own arrangement of an aria from Don Pasquale by Donizetti, in which the melody, base and variations were executed entirely with the left hand — a difficult undertaking. Madame Grossmith's numbers were in the Parisian vein, including a military song which was heartily received, Madame appearing with the traditional "kepi" and sword of the French soldier.

These numbers were all heartily applauded, and the program concluded with the National Anthem.

Local Public Becomes More "Band Conscious" as Young Instrumentalists Perform

LACHUTE JUVENILE GROUP JOINED BY BANDS FROM ONTARIO COMMUNITIES

In Lachute Auditorium last Saturday listeners gathered to judge the progress of a movement calculated to prove a lasting asset to this town and district.

The advent of an experienced band organizer and director to these parts in the person of William Ormston, has led to fine achievement in the forming of a boys' band, both in Lachute and Brownsburg.

Under sponsorship of Lachute Lions' Club the band, after but a few months' tuition, appeared for their first concert, supported by members of the Finch Boys' Band and the Hawkesbury and Maxville Junior Bands.

The Lachute instrumentalists, in their contributions to the program, acquitted themselves in a manner to win the commendation of their large audience. They gave their descriptive selection of "The Clock," and the old well-loved English air, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Fine leadership was apparent in the rendering of these numbers — also the evidence of that discipline and co-operation which form the prime foundation of any group-effort, whether in music, sport or any other undertaking. Contributions by the Ontario bands and soloists, revealing higher quality in keeping with their longer training, received well-merited applause, and a highly appreciated item was the pianoforte solo and discourse by Dr. L. Grossmith, a visiting artist of rare ability.

New Drug Found Effective Against Pneumonia

A spectacular new drug is called "Dagenan, or M & B 693." It has other and less readily pronouncable names and is made from sulfanilamide, the drug which has been found so effective in the treatment of a number of infections.

Dagenan is used in the treatment of lobar pneumonia, which our forefathers called plain inflammation of the lungs.

Pneumonia is a germ disease. Its origin was discovered in 1881 and four years later the pneumococcus was found to be the culprit. This formidable agent of disease, as seen under the microscope, is a small, slightly elongated, round organism, one end of which is lance-shaped, and it commonly occurs in pairs. There are 32 types or strains of this germ.

Pneumonia is a severe disease and the death rate, in some of the types, is high. There were 7,725 fatal cases of the affection in Canada in the year 1937. For this reason, if for no other, a drug which offers reasonable possibilities in treatment will be welcomed by the public and the medical profession.

These possibilities in regard to Dagenan are not yet completely proved, but in hospitals and in individual cases the new drug promises well.

Lloyd's Offer Insurance on Royal Visit at 30 Per Cent

Montreal agents for Lloyd's of London stated recently that a rate of 30 per cent was being quoted by Lloyd's on insurance covering the visit of the King and Queen to Canada next month.

Even at the 30 per cent rate the market for insurance on business dependent on the visit of the King and Queen is very limited and only a few underwriters are willing to accept the business. A rate of 10 per cent was quoted shortly after the plans for the Royal visit were announced and with the recurring crisis in Europe the rate has gone steadily higher until it reached 30 per cent on a thin market.

Until the time of Hitler's Czecho-Slovakian coup the rate quoted wa 12 per cent, but it rose steadily afterwards. As far as could be ascertained there have been no repercussions from the Albanian invasion.

CO-OPERATION

Panting and perspiring, two Irishmen on a tandem bicycle at last got to the top of the steep hill.

"That was a stiff climb, Pat," said the first.

"Sure and it was," said Pat. "And if I hadn't kept the brake on we would have gone backward."

Renovating Rideau Hall For Arrival of Regal Guests

In preparation for the visit of Their Majesties to the Dominion capital next month, Rideau Hall, home of the Governor-General and the Royal residence during the visit, is being renovated, redecorated and generally polished up for the occasion. One of the first renovation contracts let was for reflooring the vestibule, hall and gentlemen's cloak room and the ladies' cloak room on the first floor. The new flooring, white and green, mountain design, flexible tile, is a distinctive Canadian material and will brighten considerably all the rooms in which it is being used.

Oxford Group Leader To Be Interviewed on CBC Radio

Dr. Frank Buchman, leader and founder of the Oxford group, has recently arrived from England where the program for "Moral Rearmament" has reached national proportions. He is visiting several Canadian cities and will be heard in a special interview by R. T. Bowman over the CBC national network Saturday, April 29, 7.00 to 7.15 p.m.

In September, during the time of the crisis, Dr. Buchman took leadership at the Moral Rearmament Assembly in Interlaken, Switzerland, attended by 2,000 people from 43 countries. Dr. Buchman's address in East London, on his 60th birthday, four months before last September's crisis, gave content to the term "Moral Rearmament" and is considered to have evoked the present widespread interest in the subject.

Dr. Buchman, who was born in Pennsburg, Pa., has worked ceaselessly for moral and spiritual rearmament from the time of the Great War. In a statement to the press on his arrival in New York recently, he said: "Moral Rearmament is a race with time for the re-making of more nations and the world. It is a new leadership and the new thinking that everybody wants."

Dr. Buchman is accompanied by H. W. "Bunny" Austin, England's top-ranking Davis Cup tennis player, and over 10 other British and Scandinavian representatives.

Canadian Automobile Manufacturers Build Super-Cars for Royal Visit

MODELS WILL DWARF EVERYTHING ON THE ROAD

Oshawa — Two beautiful maroon automobiles, bigger and more beautiful than any previously produced in Canada, are being completed at Oshawa for use of the King and Queen during their tour.

Selected to provide two of the four carrs which will be used by the Royal party, General Motors of Canada assigned its most skilled designers to the task. Already familiar with the motoring tastes of the Royal family, having built six cars for its members in the past three years, General Motors incorporated in the two machines the ultimate in luxury and safety, with a high degree of visibility, enabling the occupants to be seen by the citizens of Canada before whom they will pass.

To everyone connected with it, this work is a source of pride. From R. S. McLaughlin, president, down to the humblest of the craftsmen engaged in assembling the cars, the job is prized as an expression of the devotion which Canadians feel for their Sovereigns.

A factor in the placing of this order by the Government was the fact that General Motors was able to guarantee that 75% of the labor and materials would be Canadian.

The wheelbase of 155 inches is longer than the biggest stock car ever built in Canada; the total over-all length will be more than 20 feet from bumper to bumper. The two vehicles are identical, with the exception of upholstery color, and defy comparison in any respect with the most luxurious automobiles ever built.

The beautiful bodies — finished in a shade of Royal Maroon which had to be perfectly matched with the Royal cars used in Britain — are of the Convertible Sedan type, with the glass sides extended much farther toward the rear to afford unobstructed view of the occupants. The upholstery is maroon in one car and beige in the other, with matching laprobes and carpets. When the tops are lowered, the occupants will be exposed to an unobstructed view from all sides, protected only by the circle of shatterproof glass which can be lowered into the body. Ample head room is provided for the plumed headdress which His Majesty frequently wears on formal occasions.

Among provisions for the safety of the passengers are the "safety tubes" in the tires.

Apart from their almost startling size, beauty of design and distinctive color, the two McLaughlin-Buicks carry the regal symbols; on each rear door there is a hand-painted Royal crest. A blue signal light supplements the specially designed driving lamps, and the Royal standard is imposed above the windshield as evidence that the greatest Dominion of the Empire is playing host to her King.

Windsor — Hundreds of skilled Canadian craftsmen are engaged in the task of building Royal motor cars which will be used by Their Majesties and the Royal party on their Canadian tour this summer. A glimpse of these men at work denotes immediately something of the unusual. An observer senses the pride these craftsmen feel.

At Windsor, Ontario, in the plant of Chrysler Corporation, a luxurious seven-passenger convertible sedan finished in Royal Maroon, is rapidly taking shape. The rear compartment is surrounded by shatterproof glass so that Their Majesties may see everybody and be seen by everybody.

Unusual features of this car are described by Chrysler officials. Royal etiquette decrees that no one may sit with his back to the King and Queen. So the rear compartment is equipped with two folding seats which, unlike those in most seven-passenger cars, will face the rear.

The rear compartment is upholstered in dark blue broadcloth. The material has an English box-cloth finish, and lends itself magnificently to the interior decoration scheme. A special blue carpet covers the floor.

The arm-rests in the Royal compartment are equipped with ashtrays and cigar lighters, while the moveable arm-rest in the centre has a large hand mirror on each side. One side of this arm-rest has a vanity case; the other side a pad and pencil.

Communication to the driver is facilitated by use of a dictaphone, and in easy vision is a fine eight-day clock — a provision that may conceivably spare Royal hands, already tired from waving acknowledgments to millions, the bother of reaching for a timepiece.

In the event of an unexpected shower the collapsible top can quickly be raised. Two hassocks in blue and two laprobes made of blue broadcloth are also to be carried, with cases for these robes when not in use.

Their Majesties may not encounter many foggy days while on their tour of Canada. But if they do, and at a time when their Chrysler Royal is in use, special amber foglights, mounted low, should prove of especial service.

The Royal insignia on the panel of each rear door raises the dignity of the car, in effect, to the status of Their Majesties' Canadian Royal Coach. The Royal insignia, illuminated, is also mounted above the windshield. And this insignia, in turn will be surmounted by the Royal Standard when Their Majesties are in the car.

A standard Chrysler Royal seven-passenger chassis on 138 inch wheelbase is used. The motor is a Standard Chrysler Royal engine.

HOUSING ACT SPURS CONSTRUCTION ACROSS CANADA

What is expected to be the biggest home construction season since the depression is now under way in every province in Canada. Stimulated by the National Housing Act which makes home building possible with a very small capital cost and the balance payable as rent, thousands of Canadians are realizing life-long ambitions for home ownership. Of particular interest this year is low-cost housing construction made possible through development of modern building materials. Above, a typical low-cost dwelling is shown, left, during construction as insulated sidings are being applied and, right, completed and ready for occupancy. Asphalt shingle roofings, factory fabricated insul-brick sidings, interior finished of insul-board make this home an efficient, practical low-cost dwelling which may be completely built in less than two months.

INVENTION . . . . profits

If you can invent something new and useful, for which people are willing to pay money, you can make a million dollars — maybe. It has been done, and it is being done all the time.

I know and have known many inventors. Most of them have had inflated ideas of what their invention was worth. What few realize is that it takes a lot of money and time to develop a new invention into marketable form.

Unless somebody is willing to take the speculative chance of large profits by financing the development of a new invention, there is little chance of making a million for the inventor.

GLASS . . . . non-shattering

I received an invitation the other day from the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia to attend a dinner in honor of the people who have spent some six million dollars to perfect a single invention, a new type of safety glass for automobiles.

The guests of honor were the representatives of five great corporations, the du Pont company, Libbey-Owens-Ford glass company, Monsanto Chemical Co., Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company and Carbon & Carbide Chemical Corporation.

Those great corporations are not the inventors, of course, of the idea of a "glass sandwich," with a sheet of tough plastic material between two sheets of glass to keep the car windows and windshield from shattering in case of accident.

The patents of the original inventors, an Englishman named Wood and a Frenchman named Benedictus, expired long ago. The safety glass made under those original patents was not good enough, so the glass-makers and chemical companies joined forces to try to find a better way to make still safer glass.

Hundreds of laboratory workers experimented for six years before the new kind of plastic "filler" for safety glass was perfected and ready to put on the market. That is the way most of the great new inventions of modern times are developed.

IDEAS . . . . . irons

Many people have a notion that all an inventor has to do to get rich is to think up a new idea. We've all had 'em. But you can't patent an idea; you can patent only a machine, device or method that will make the idea work. And that usually takes a lot of time and money.

In this column seven or eight years ago I told of a young Yankee mechanic who got an idea from watching the firebox door of the steam boiler in the factory where he worked. It "buckled" or changed its shape whenever the temperature got too high. The idea he got, from noticing that, was for an attachment for electric flatirons which would automatically throw off the current when the iron got too hot.

Just a few weeks ago I learned what had become of young John Sargent's idea. He took it to Professor Vannever Bush, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who interested some capitalists in it.

It took eight million dollars to perfect the invention and commercialize it, but Prof. Bush told me recently that more than ten million electic irons are now equipped with the Sargent thermosite control, and it is being used in many other lines as well.

The young inventor has got rich, but it took a lot of other people's money to make his invention make money for him and them.

FOOD . . . . . meats

We naturally think that, after some millions of years of human experience with foods, there isn't anything more to learn about the things we eat.

But scientific investigators have been working at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research for four years on the problem of making all beefsteaks tender, and now they've got it.

Dr. M. D. Coulter of the Institute announced the other day that by exposing meat to ultra-violet rays for two days the toughest "critter" becomes as easy to chew as a piece of cheese. The promise is held out that this new method will not increase the cost of meat to the consumer, so everybody can look forward to having tender roasts, steaks, potroasts and hamburgers, such as only the well-to-do enjoy now.

Who hasn't wished that he could increase his physical energy and endurance by "taking something?" The newest biological discovery is that you can find that "something" right on the kitchen shelf at home. Dr. G. R. Ray of the Long Island College Hospital, reporting on the results of a long series of experiments on all sorts of people, from athletes to office workers, says that ordinary gelatine will do the trick.

Plain, unflavored gelatine mixed with water, orange juice or what have you, a couple of ounces a day, not only adds to one's physical power but increases mental energy and activity. Other searchers have confirmed Dr. Ray's observations.

Crowded Inns Gave Us Purses

There's an odd little story behind that purse we dip into so frequently. It is linked up with the origin of the word Bourse, generally applied to foreign stock exchanges. In the Fourteenth century, says Pearson's London Weekly, the Venetians used to venture up from the Mediterranean in their stout little ships to take cargoes of spices to Bruges. Quarters were pretty crowded in the inns, so for the transaction of their business they established their headquarters in the house of a rich Dutchman named Van den Purse. It was after extensive British transactions with this Dutchman that we dropped the good old English word "money-bag" and adopted "purse." Purse, mispronounced, came to be spoken in Venice and elsewhere as "burse," and that name was given to markets where important money transactions occurred.

Famous Whirlpool

The maelstrom is a famous, but overrated whirlpool off the northwest coast of Norway between Moskenas and Mosken, two of the Lofoden islands. It is more properly a strong current than a whirlpool. This current flows alternately six hours from north to south and six hours from south to north, and especially at the changes produces angry whirls, which may sometimes be heard for several miles. The strait is navigable under ordinary weather conditions, either at low or high tide. During a northwest wind the passage becomes exceedingly dangerous, and few craft attempt to cross it then, since the currents are then strong enough to inundate a small vessel or toss a larger one against the rocks. The depth of the water, once supposed to be too great for soundings, is only a little more than a hundred feet.

The Power of Confidence

The following story has been related in The Financial Post as an illustration of what confidence does for the businessman, and the need for more confidence on the part of business men in respect of the outlook for 1939:

'There was a man who lived by the side of the road and he sold hot dogs. He was hard of hearing so he had no radio. He had trouble with his eyes so he read no newspapers. But he sold good hot dogs. He put signs up on the highway telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried, 'Buy a hot dog, mister!' And people bought. He increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He finally got his son home from college to help him.

"But then something happened. His son said, 'Father, haven't you been listening to the radio? Haven't you been reading the newspapers? There's a big depression. The European situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse. Everything's going to pot.'

"Whereupon his father thought, 'Well, my son's been to college, he reads the newspapers and he listens to the radio, and he ought to know. So the father cut down his advertising signs, and no longer bothered to stand on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"'You're right, son,' the father said to the boy. 'We certainly are in the middle of a great depression.'"

Man Wanted

A man for hard work and rapid promotion, who can find things to be done without the help of a manager and assistants.

A man who gets to work on time in the morning and does not imperil the lives of others in an attempt to be first out of the office at night.

A man who moves quickly and makes as little noise as possible about it.

A man who listens carefully when spoken to, and asks only enough questions to insure accuracy in carrying out instructions.

A man who looks you straight in the eye and tells the truth every time.

A man who does not pity himself for having to dig in and hustle.

A man who is cheerful, courteous to everyone, and determined to make good.

If interested, apply any hour, any place, to anyone.

'White Sands' Not Sand; Large Dunes Are Gypsum

The "white sands" that give their name to White Sands National monument, New Mexico, are not sands at all, according to strict scientific definition, says the interior department.

Most sand is composed of very fine particles of quartz and other hard rock, worn round and smooth by the action of wind and water. New Mexico's white dunes are made up of small fragments of gypsum, blown by the wind. Geologists believe this gypsum is formed partly in alkali lakes, and partly from water which "sweats up" from the ground among the dunes. The gypsum comes to the surface in solution.

When the water evaporates the gypsum is left as snow-white crystals. Wind piles them up in rippled dunes, sometimes 100 feet in height. The entire body of sand dunes along a 30-mile front is moving at the rate of approximately eight inches a year toward the town of Alamogordo, some 18 miles away.

Evil Spirits Blamed

When the Indian chief, Chicago, was young, he traveled across the Atlantic, coming back to his Illinois tribe with the news he had seen five tepees, one above the other. This was in the days before any Chicago building was more than two stories high. His braves would not believe him, and proved so conclusively that it was impossible that Chief Chicago agreed they were correct and that an evil spirit had played upon his senses.

Body of Ottawa Government Employee Recovered from River at Greece's Pt.

VICTIM WELL DRESSED, OTTAWA RESIDENT MISSING SINCE LAST NOVEMBER

Considerable excitement prevailed around Greece's Point, on the Ottawa River front, when at 3.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the body of one, Evan B. McFaul, an Ottawa civil servant, was found floating in the locks and recovered by the three Bertrand brothers, of Greece's Point. The body was identified by documents found in the pockets. The man was discriminately dressed, and on his person were found a gold watch and three bank books.

From information received, the victim was last seen in Ottawa about November 1st, and was walking down Wellington Street. He was an employee of the Transport Department of the Dominion Government.

The inquest is proceeding this afternoon, Thursday, under Coroner Dr. J. H. Mason, of Lachute. Constable Howard Jones and another provincial officer have been investigating.

Arthur Hallam Thomas, who at one time lived in Carillon and St. Andrews died on Easter Sunday in the Palmer Memorial Hospital, Boston, Mass.

Mr. Thomas assisted his father, the late Cyrus Thomas, in the work of getting out an distributing "The History of Argenteuil and Prescott," which had a considerable sale in Argenteuil County. He was born in Sutton, Quebec, 69 years ago. He leaves two sisters, Sarah C. Thomas, of North Reading, Mass., and Mrs. George F. Beaman, 338 W. 84th St., New York.

Mr. Thomas was a widower and left no children. His wife, formerly Miss Emilie Laun, of New York City, predeceased him about 16 years ago.

His body was interred in Pleasant Valley Cemetery, Abercorn, Que., in the lot where his father and mother are laid at rest.

Member of Early Local Family Dies in Toronto

LATE MRS. J. G. BRADFORD

Mrs. Janet Gray Bradford, member of an East pioneer family noted for their longevity, died on Monday at the home of her daughter, Florence, in Toronto. Mrs. Bradford, 90 years of age, was ill only a few weeks. Her mother died at the age of 104, and a half sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Bradford, of Cushing, is now 96.

The late Mrs. Bradford moved from the Hawkesbury district to Toronto in 1921. She was one of the oldest members of St. Mungo's Church at Cushing.

Calumet Resident Mourned By Community

LATE MRS. IRVINE PROPHET

Calumet — On Sunday, April 16th, Mrs. Irvine Prophet, of Calumet, passed away at Dr. Smith's Private Hospital, Hawkesbury, Ont. Mrs. Prophet was formerly Miss Olive MacGillivary, of the Scotch Road, and was in her 33rd year.

The funeral service was held on Wednesday, April 19th, from her late residence at Calumet, conducted by the Rev. W. A. Dempsey, of Cushing. Interment took place in the Calumet Cemetery.

She is survived by her husband and three children; her father, Mr. Wm. MacGillivary, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacGillivary.

The large attendance and floral tributes bore silent tribute to her memory.

Old Pioneer Is Mourned In Laurel Neighborhood

THE LATE PETER PARADIS

Laurel — It is with regret we record the sudden death of Peter Paradis, an old resident of Laurel, who passed away Thursday, April 20th, at the Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal. He was 69 years of age, a native of Trois Pistoles, Que.

Having endeared himself to many by his gentle, friendly ways, he will be missed in this countryside. He was noted always for his keen desire for peace and contentment in the neighborhood around him. He was a good church man, walking regularly to attend his church in Montfort, 10 miles from his home.

The late Peter Paradis is survived by his wife, Philomene Michaud; four brothers, Louis Paradis, of Trois Pistoles, Charles, of Laurel Station, Albert, of Montfort, and Nazare, of Fort Henry, U.S.A.; two sisters, Catherine, Mrs. Felix Moranda, of Quebec, and Emma, Mrs. Joseph Rioux, of Trois Pistoles; six daughters, Catherine, Mrs. Alphonse Gagné, of St. Michel, Lucienne, Mrs. Joseph Chartier, of St. Sauveur, Caroline, at home, Clemence, Mrs. Fred Tassie, of Montfort, Arthemise, Mrs. Laroche, of St. Jerome, and Ileanne, at home; and eight sons — Peter, of St. Sauveur, Fernand, of Joliette, Charles, Albert, Louis, Nazare, Joseph, and Edmond, all of Laurel. There remain also 21 grandchildren.

Mass was said at Montfort on Monday morning by Rev. Father Joseph Filion. There were many beautiful flowers from sympathizing friends.

Gathering and Presentation at Lachute Rd. Community Hall

A large gathering met at the community hall at Lachute Road last evening, the occasion being a farewell party to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bradley, who are leaving the community to live in Carillon.

After games, and music by Mrs. J. P. Bradley, Mr. Wm. Rodger called on Mr. John Fraser, Sr., who in his happy manner told how much Mr. and Mrs. Bradley would be missed in the community have lived in the place so long and been so active in all its undertakings; their home had always been a house of welcome, and their hospitality was known far and wide.

"While we regret the fact that this family is leaving our district," said Mr. Fraser, "we are glad to know they are going to reside in Carillon. We wish them health, prosperity and long life in their new home. . . In order to express our feelings in a more tangible form, we give Mr. and Mrs. Bradley these few presents from their neighbors and friends." Mr. and Mrs. Bradley were presented with a floor lamp, an Ayers overthrow and an electric clock.

Short addresses were also given by Mrs. G. S. Armstrong and Mrs. L. M. Hooker from the Women's Institute, where Mrs. Bradley will be greatly missed, Mr. E. Morrin, Col. L. M. Hooker, Mr. Linton Armstrong and others. Mr. Linton Armstrong aptly expressed the feelings of the gathering when he said there were two redeeming features in losing these friends — first, that they would be living nearby; second, that their farm had not been sold to a stranger, but to a young couple of the same community, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rodger.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley thanked their friends, also inviting them to their new home. The party sang "For they are jolly good fellows."

Refreshments were served, and the gathering concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

Building Material Men Return From 10-Day Meetiug In Niagara Falls

The question of "How to make it easier for the public to get more house for their money" was the basis of the 10-day intensive Housing Guild training course held at Niagara Falls, Ont., under the auspices of Johns-Manville, and attended by W. M. Cottingham, president of the Cottingham Supply Company, and two of his staff, Bob Miller and Hans Jacobsen.

"The building industry has changed a great deal in recent years," Mr. Cottingham stated. "Today, through the use of merchandising methods such as those advocated by the National Housing Guild, we are equipped to sell the public not only individual materials but completely 'pre-priced and packaged' houses.

"For example, not so long ago, a person interested in building a house had to deal with a variety of persons and agencies, namely: architects, contractors, sub-contractors, financial agencies, materials dealers, etc., etc. Today, under Housing Guild methods, we can take all of the details off the consumer's shoulders. He can come to us and select a house 'off our shelves' to fit his needs, and this house will only cost him so much per month f.o.b. his building site. We have not taken over any of the duties of these various agencies, we simply deal with them for the consumer." Home Improvements were also discussed and a plan laid out which now makes it possible for the consumer to have needed repairs and modern home improvements done at a predetermined price with payments by the month.

Intensive training in all of the phases of providing this type of service to the consumer featured the Housing Guild Course, according to Mr. Cottingham. Estimating, financing, new types of materials, and other subjects taken up during the course were discussed, each by an expert.

Lachute Presbytn. Y.P.S.

Following a short business session, last week's meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was addressed by the Rev. E. Orsborn. Mr. Orsborn chose for his subject, "Spring Cleaning," and illustrated that such a task should not be confined to the extent of our homes, but should be a moral and mental exercise as well as a physical one. The meeting adjourned, to be followed by a few ends of carpet bowling and the serving of tea and cakes.

Twenty members were at hand for the weekly meeting last evening, and this being "social evening" group games and bowling followed the brief business meeting. Reports from all sides indicated that the annual taffy party held last Friday at the home of Mr. M. Copeland was "bigger and better" than ever. The thanks of the Society are extended to Mr. Copeland and family for making such an enjoyable event possible.

The meeting closed with refreshments, Mr. and Mrs. Orsborn sharing the head of the table with their new "family." As the club activities terminate about the end of May, all members should try to attend the few remaining meetings — with special efforts for next week, as Mr C. L. Hall will address the assembly.

A report by the afternoon tea committee showed net proceeds of the tea to be about $40, this sum being divided between the Young Women's Auxiliary and the Y.P.S.

English Cup Final To Be Heard Over Radio

English soccer football will come to its traditional close when the Cup Final between Wolverhampton and Portsmouth will be held at Wembley Stadium on Saturday, April 29, before a crowd of over 90,000 spectators. The latter half of this climax of the English soccer season will be broadcast over the CBC national network direct from the Stadium on Saturday, 10.00 to 10.45 a.m. EST.

As a sporting event, the interest in the English Cup Final assumes that of an international occasion. Soccer lovers in all sections of the world will listen to the results with great interest and anticipation. Every year it brings some sixty or seventy thousand enthusiasts from all parts of England, all of whom have bought their tickets months before, as no money is taken at the Wembley turnstiles. It is an event often honored by the presence of the King and Queen, Her Majesty usually presenting the cup to the winners.

The match will be described by Thomas Woodrooffe, BBC sports commentator, and Ivan Sharpe, a well-known English sports journalist.

Odor Has Weight

The sensation of odor is caused by minute particles of a substance reaching the nose and affecting the olfactory organs. These particles have escaped by evaporation from a volatile substance. and since volatile substances will eventually evaporate completely their weight must have been made up of these particles. The particles have definite weight, and because odor is caused by them it may be said that odor has weight.

Meaning of Name Talbot

The name Talbot means "a bloodhound." Or rather, the common noun talbot is the (Old English) name of the original stock of bloodhounds, according to Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The word is seldom used except in heraldry, where the animal is often part of a device. But the name Talbot is frequently heard as a surname, less often as a given name.

Hot Baths in Jamaica

At Bath, in the parish of St. Thomas in Jamaica, the waters of the spring are the hottest in the island, with a temperature at the fountain head of 126 to 128 degrees Fahrenheit. These waters are sulphuric and are beneficial in gout, rheumatism, skin affections and fevers. They lose about nine degrees of heat in transit to the baths themselves.

Height of Mastodons

Mastodons were only 9½ feet tall at best. That makes them smaller than modern African elephants. The hairy ancestor of bald Indian elephants, the mastodons did have fierce-looking tusks that stretched seven and eight feet from their heads. They were massively built, with short legs and very flat foreheads. Mastodons vanished into history only yesterday, geologically speaking. Scientists say they roamed the earth "until a few thousand years ago."

Social and Personal

Miss Grace McMahon, of Thurso, spent last week-end at her home in town.

The Misses Coté and Mrs. A. Laverdiere, of Outremont, visited friends here last week-end.

Miss Anna Rosborough left last week to take a student dietetics course at the Montreal General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Alder, of Verdun, were week-end guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Graham.

Mr. R. F. Daw, of the Montreal Theological College, Montreal, was guest preacher at the morning service last Sunday in the United Church.

Mrs. W. E. Hartley and Mrs. J. A. Innes, of Montreal, were week-end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Armstrong, Lachute Road.

Miss Lillian Pollock, of Montreal, visited Mrs. Gordon Miller over the week-end, and while here was guest soloist at the morning service in Lachute United Church.

Rev. and Mrs. W. C. LeCras were in Montreal this week attending the consecration and enthronement of Bishop Carlisle. Rev. LeCras also attended the annual Synod meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith and daughter, Miss Audrey Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. George Giles and daughter, Carol, of Montreal, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham.

Rev. W. J. Bradbury, of Montreal, Clerical Secretary of the G.B.R.E., spent Sunday the guest of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. LeCras. While here he was guest speaker at St. Simeon's and St. George's Anglican Churches.

Mr. Harold Beveridge, of Montreal, renewed old acquaintances in Lachute on Tuesday.

Miss J. Valpy visited her sister, Mrs. A. Miller and Mr. Miller, in Ottawa last week-end.

Miss Edith Rosborough is returning home this week from Queen's University, Kingston, and will spend her vacation with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Rosborough, at the manse.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Giles are attending the 11th annual meeting of the Ontario-Quebec Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, being held at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, and the Seigniory Club, Montebello.

Engagements

Mrs. James McCarthy, of Montreal, announces the engagement of her daughter, Queenie, to Mr. Frederick Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Baldwin, of Morin Heights, Que.

Mr. and Mrs. John Miller announce the engagement of their daughter, Cora Alice, to Mr. Clifford Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Cunningham, of Arnprior, Ont. — the wedding to take place quietly on June 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCambley announce the engagement of her daughter, Wilma Charlotte, only child of the late William John Evans, of Lakefield, Que., to Leonard, eldest son of Mr. Walter Elder of Morin Heights, Que., and the late Mrs. Elder, of Montreal — the marriage to take place in early summer.

Mrs. Roy Elliott visited friends in Montreal last week-end.

Mr. Harry Moody, of Terrebonne, visited Mrs. Wm. Morrison on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Helmer are removing from Montreal to Lachute this week-end, to reside here and engage in business. They will share the residence now occupied by Mrs. Helmer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Goldsworthy.

Initiative Wins

Getting along in years, although only 50, Harry Dawson lost his job as a salesman in a clothing store. Dawson soon discovered how hard it was for a man of 50 to find a job. Then he had an inspiration. He had friends galore, among them men in business firms to whom he had given his trade for many years. What he did was to draw up a petition heading which read as follows: "To Whom It May Concern" — To any first-class clothing store which employs Harry Dawson, we pledge purpose of at least $5 worth of merchandise within three months after his employment begins." Then he went, first to his old customers, then his groceryman, hardware dealer, gas station, milk man, barber, and so on down the line, until he had 330 signatures who, with their families, represented 1,300 consumers. Armed with this petition, he went after a job again and it wasn't long before he had one.

COUNTER-FIRE

He thought himself very smart and, having bought a box of 500 cigars, insured them for a small premium. Then he smoked them all and sent in a claim for destruction by fire.

But the insurance company was too clever for him. They had him arrested on a charge of arson.

LIBRARIANS' EXCHANGE LEADS BOTH TO ALTAR

The exchange of librarians between Niagara Falls, Ont., and Halifax, England, has worked altogether too well, it was learned recently. Two young women involved in the exchange extended the original six-months period to a year. Now each plans to remain permanently in the new land — as a bride.

Miss Eileen Bickford, who went to Halifax in June, 1938, in exchange with Margaret Carnell has become engaged to John Hodgson. Miss Carnell is the fiancee of Henry Haigh, of Stamford, Ont.

WEDDINGS OF INTEREST

Brown-Shaw

St. Andrews E. — At the historic Christ Church on Saturday evening, April 22 at six p.m., Miss Hylda Mary Caroline Shaw was united in holy matrimony to Robert Anderson Brown, M.Sc., of Montreal; the rector of the parish, Rev. R. S. Booy, officiating. The bride is the daughter of Dr. George F. and Mrs. Shaw, of St. Andrews East, and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Burton T. Brown, Montreal.

The church was decorated with ferns and spring flowers. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Walter Windsor sang "Because." Maid of honor was Miss Rita Hardy, and Miss Lois Magee, cousin of the bridegroom, acted as flower girl. Dr. George Lovinger was groomsman and Mr. Watson Langlands, of Montreal, usher.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Dr. Geo. F. Shaw, wore a gown of old family lace, made on princess lines, over cream satin, with long sleeves gracefully coming to a point at the wrist, and with a slight train; and her mother's wedding veil of tulle illusion, held in place with tiny pale pink rosebuds. She carried a shower bouquet of cream roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of bud pink organza made on princess lines, with heart-shaped neck, turquoise accessories, and carried a bouquet of pale pink roses and sweet peas. The flower girl was gowned in pink organdy, with a double row of Irish lace at the waist, a tiny circle of roses and forget-me-nots in her hair. She carried a nosegay bouquet of pink roses and forget-me-nots.

Mrs. Shaw, the bride's mother, wore a gown of mauve sheer, with a tucked jacket, and baku hat of matching tone, with a corsage of mauve and pink sweet peas; Mrs. Brown, the bridegroom's mother, wore a gown of figured crepe, a baku hat with matching flowers and a corsage of sweet peas.

The couple left later for Montreal by motor en route to Quebec and points east, the bride travelling in a Suez crepe dress with box swagger coat of teal blue boucle, a Suez felt hat trimmed with blue grosgrain ribbon and matching accessories. They will reside at 3538 Lorne Avenue, Montreal.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. S. Burton Brown, Dr. Maude Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. M. Magee and Miss Lois Magee, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. O. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamlyn, Miss Grace Hamlyn, and Mrs. Ernest Mount, Miss Margaret Barclay, Mr. W. Hulbeck, all of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. James Peters, of Brownsburg; Mr., Mrs. and Miss Margaret Canning, of Cushing; Miss Helen Brown, of Knowlton, and Mrs. Beatty, of Ottawa.

Bisset-Young

Avoca — A very pretty wedding was solemnized here on Wednesday, April 19th, at 3 o'clock, when Mr. George Bailey Bisset, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bisset, Edinburgh, Scotland, and Miss Helen Evelyn Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Young of this place, were united in matrimony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. J. Pike, of the Brownsburg United Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father — and Miss Alice Young, her sister, acted as bridesmaid. Mr. Alvin Young, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

The bride was dressed in a white lace gown, with veil, and carried a bouquet of American roses, with maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid wore a dress of wine silk, with hat to match.

Following the ceremony, which was performed at the home of the bride, a reception was held. The Rev. S. J. Pike, in proposing the health of the bride and groom, presented them with a copy of the Bible. An array of useful and valuable gifts testified to the popularity of the happy couple.

MONDAY'S QUIZ

C.G.I.T. won over Team "E" this week — 8 points to 7. These same two teams will meet again next Monday night in the last contest before the finals for the silver cup.

Scores to Date : A 20, B 15, C 17, D 27, E 7, U.Y.P.S. 22, C.G.I.T. 8.

Points : U.Y.P.S. 8, A 8, C.G.I.T. 4.

SOCIAL —

The taffy party mentioned in our last week's notes proved a roaring and sticky success. The pupils turned out in full force, and while the syrup was boiling the dance steps were put into motion. About 10 p.m. the call to the kitchen was given, and pickles and taffy disappeared with great celerity. Enough syrup was left over to make several bowls of maple sugar, which, incidentally, also disappeared during the week.

Dancing was resumed after the taffy had been eaten and the party broke up about 11.30 o'clock.

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman
By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

PETER McARTHUR

Peter McArthur is one of our Canadian writers, whose work is wearing well. When his sketches appeared in The Globe and in The Farmers' Advocate, I saw them only occasionally, so was not very familiar with them until later, when they were in book form. His love of the land, his trees and his stock makes pleasant reading — and good re-reading. One of our son's friends was going to O.A.C. and during a vacation he had to write an essay on a Canadian writer and he came to me for suggestions. When I spoke of Peter McArthur, he had never heard of him. I lent him "Around Home," with its introduction by M. O. Hammond. I was delighted when he came back full of enthusiasm, planning to read his other books and hoping to own some of them. Every Canadian library, supplying books to rural children, should have Peter McArthur on its shelves. He would help them see the dignity and the pleasures of rural life. The Women's Institutes and the Home and School Clubs are always alert to furthering worthy objects. How about examining your libraries and if they lack Peter McArthur's books, supplying them? He has been brought to mind because I have been reading Gove Hambidge's new book "Six Rooms Make a World," and he tells us that Peter McArthur was his god-father.

WOMAN'S CHIEF OCCUPATION

Gove Hambidge tells us in the same book that the largest occupational group in the nation are the housewives not gainfully employed. He says that in the United States, (and probably the figures for Canada are about the same) 21% of the entire population are housewives not gainfully employed. And that the percentage is the same in 1939 as it was in 1870. This is somewhat surprising as with all the work that is now open to women one would expect there would be a smaller percentage of housewives. Home-making has always been women's work and probably always will be. Education for women should be directed towards this.

HOME ECONOMICS

When the subject of Home Economics comes up, some trustee is almost sure to say there is no necessity to have it taught in school as the girls' mothers can teach them to cook. Certainly they can teach them to cook. At least most of them can, but there are some pretty poor cooks too. Cooking is only a part of Home Economics. The girls are taught food values and how to plan meals so that the proper nourishment is provided to give healthy, strong bodies. They are taught how to plan their meals so as to use the cheaper foods to the best advantage, and the proper methods of cooking to make these foods most digestible. Sometimes the best house-keepers teach their daughters the least, because they, themselves are so good they cannot be bothered with a less efficient worker. A scientific knowledge creates interest and all girls should have an interest in home-making stimulated. School hours devoted to Domestic Science are so short that the teachers do not have a chance to teach it as it should be taught.

LEATHER CHAIRS

Most dining-room chairs have leather seats and proper care of the leather will add years to its life. A librarian told me that they used castor-oil to clean and nourish their precious leather-bound books. I figured if it were good for leather books it would be good for leather chairs. I have used castor-oil two or three times a year on the leather and it is in about as good condition as when it was bought twenty-five years ago. First wash the leather, or rather wipe it off, with a cloth wrung out of thick suds made from a very mild soap and luke-warm water. Rub with a dry cloth until thoroughly dry. Wait for a little, while until the leather dries out perfectly, then rub with a cloth wet with a few drops of castor-oil. It only requires a very little and more might make it greasy. Rub it in thoroughly and rub and rub. Then take a clean cloth and rub again. The leather will be clean, glossy and pliable.

April Babies

(By Elizabeth Newport Hepburn)

It may be merely fantasy —
I cannot tell you why —
But April babies seem to me
Like bits of smiling sky.
They come when gardens wake; they seem
Alert, expectant, gay;
They laugh, they cry, but tears soon dry
Upon an April day.

And all through life these April folk
Keep something of the spring;
They love to plant and prune and poke
In garden, love to sing;
They lift your mood like joyful birds,
Love you unchantingly.
They work with seeds, or paint, or words,
Know grief — and ecstasy.

Could I choose now, I'd be a wild,
Dream-haunted elfin April child!

LET THEM HAVE IT

(Moncton Transcript)

Lady Astor recently said in London that women have changed the world in the last twenty years, and unchivalrous males looking over the situation will be willing for them to take the blame.

A FROZEN MELANGE

Cooking by recipe is a good thing to do, but the woman who always must have a recipe (Cynthia Brown calls it a prescription), loses a lot of fun out of cooking. Some of the best things I make may never be duplicated exactly because I might never again happen to have those same ingredients on hand at the same time. A recent ice-cream was just one of those things. Looking about for something for dessert I found three or four Chinese Chews a little on the stale side and a couple of tablespoons of ginger marmalade in the bottom of the bottle. So I whipped some cream and added the marmalade and the Chews, broken in pieces. It requires a little more sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Remember a frozen dish always needs a little extra sugar. I froze the mixture lightly, until it was firm but not solid and it was a delicious ice-cream. So much so that it might be worth trying with nuts, dates and ginger if the leftovers were not available.

COCOANUT PIE

1¾ cups sugar, 1½ cups water, speck of salt, 1 cup cocoanut (heaping) 3 eggs.

Stir the sugar and water until dissolved, add cocoanut and boil slowly for a few minutes. Let cool. Beat 1 egg and the yolks of the other two and add to the cooled cocoanut mixture. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the other two eggs. Bake two pie shells for about 5 minutes in a hot oven of 450 degrees. Pour in the cocoanut mixture and reduce the heat to 375 degrees. Bake until set. This is a friend's recipe and makes the nicest cocoanut pie I ever tasted.

HOUSE AND HOME

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Do you know what the gardener means when he says his soil is fertile? Of course you realize that fertile soil produces bigger and better flowers and vegetables but more than that, to most of us, "fertile soil" is just a farmer's term.

But if soil is to be fertile it must have certain essentials such as proper drainage, texture and tilth, available plant food and the right reaction for plants as to their acid or alkaline requirements.

First of all, consider drainage. Given an ideal natural location the soil texture may need treatment to permit the ready removal by gravity of excess water following heavy rainfall. A soil of too coarse particles is unable to retain any moisture as well as some of the important food plants and is deficient in nitrogen and potash.

Too fine a soil holds too much water and drains too slowly for best plant growth. So you may need to improve the texture of your garden soil by adding fine particles to coarse particles or just the opposite. Most garden plants do best in a soil that is not excessively gravelly, sandy or clayey and which contains humus.

Humus, as you remember, is organic matter in the process of decomposition, such as leaf mold, which absorbs and holds moisture.

After the texture of the soil is made satisfactory the tilth is improved by cultivation. Digging and working — cultivating — soil, develops a mellow condition which conserves moisture, permits air circulation and increases the advisability of plant nutrients.

Available plant food must be soluble and in such form chemically that it can be readily taken up by the roots of plants.

When you plant your flower garden it's well to consider likes and dislikes. Some flowers like sunshine all day while others prefer it for shorter periods. Some like an acid soil, others must have an alkaline soil.

The design of the basin of the bird bath is of surprising importance. The side must slope gently in order to provide the birds with a shelf or rim in which they can wade without finding the water too deep. This takes care of both the larger and smaller birds.

The depth of the water at the outer edge of the basin should not exceed one inch and at the center and deepest place not over five inches. Most of the smaller birds dread deep water or anything that looks like it, but will go eagerly to a bath which resembles a shallow sandy beach.

Mistress: "Mandy, have you swept under the bed?"
Mandy: "Yassum, everything!"

Not Readily Forgotten

A Canadian teacher, stationed in North London among none too opulent people, tells, in a recent letter, of the busy time she spent during the "European crisis" of a few short months ago. "We had to tell the pupils to warn their parents to expect enemy bombers two hours after an outbreak of war. This was necessary to get their consent to the evacuation of the pupils to the more remote villages in the country."

Another of her duties was arrangement for transportation. Parents were interviewed and asked if they could provide any cars. Most of them, she reports, could not and she was rather taken aback when a nondescript little man timidly ventured that he thought he could lend four limousines! Inquiry developed that he was the local undertaker.

Out in the country the other side of the picture is described in another letter. After intensive work assembling and issuing gas masks the air wardens, who hold honorary jobs, were suddenly notified of their appointment as billeting officers. "We had had no sleep, what with trying to fit the masks together and give everyone a mask that would fit, when suddenly we found ourselves possessed of almost absolute power to walk into any house and demand billets for varying numbers of London children."

This letter ended on a plaintive note. "In return for the honor of being Head Air Raid Warden in my district I shall be permitted to put on a hat and coat and walk around through bombs and poisonous gases seeing that everyone else is safe—I'm going to join the army and get paid for being killed!"

In the Zoological Garden in London keepers stood by with high calibre rifles ready to kill any dangerous animals who might be freed by the bursting of bombs. Axes were ready for the snakes and the big elephants who have taken children riding on their backs for years past were slated for long walks into the country where billets were chosen, in barns with doors wide enough to admit the pachyderms.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

by W.E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

MICROBES

Man is far from being the master of the world in which he lives or even of his own career, because wherever he goes, on land or sea, high in the air or deep into the bowels of the earth, he is confronted by unseen foes.

These enemies are so numerous that some scientists say it is simply a matter of time before they will eliminate humanity from the face of the earth, for, says Dr. Nicholas Kopeloff, "they are ever mobilized for battle, ever active and give man no respite, awake or asleep."

This unseen host which are our perpetual enemies are called microbes. Until the beginning of the seventeenth century they were unknown for the simple reason that men's minds had not been sufficiently developed to recognize them and the devastation which followed in their wake. They are so infinitesimal that the majority of them can be seen only by the aid of the most powerful microscopes.

For example, it is estimated that it would take 15,000,000,000,000 typhoid fever bacilli to fill an ordinary teaspoon. Under the powerful modern microscopes, each bacilli is shown to have as distinctive features and shapes as human beings, and today more than 1,200 different species have been recognized.

No one can say definitely how long some of the more vital of these live but it is certain that they do remain visible for long periods of time. One authority claims to have demonstrated living bacteria in anthracite coal from mines in Wales and from Philadelphia.

Another says he definitely located bacteria in the inside of an antiquated brick taken from a Catholic mission house estimated to be more than 150 years old, and this same man says he found living bacteria in the pyramids built by the Incas of Peru more than a thousand years ago. So one is warranteed in assuming that bacteria are long lived.

Most disease producing bacteria flourish best at the temperature of the human body, which is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. Many of these parasites can be killed by boiling them in water for five minutes at 212 degrees Fahrenheit. It is strange that some of them can stand a temperature of boiling liquid hydrogen which is approximately 418 degrees Fahrenheit.

Low temperatures seem to be very agreeable to many bacteria and ice cream and other frozen delicacies often are the means used to convey these germs to others, one Latin American doctor having killed many people in experiments, by serving bacilli in ices, at banquets. I might say that this arch murderer was executed for his scientific crimes.

"We were among the first subscribers on the Line" says Mrs. John Schaeffer, Gowanstown, Ontario, "and we all use it a great deal. My husband is a drover and the telephone exchange gives him wonderful service!"

No farm home should be without a telephone. It banishes isolation and loneliness. And it's mighty handy to call relations and friends — and quick aid if need be.

Lach. United Win Carpet Bowling League Trophy

EQUAL WITH 'BURG UNITED IN GAMES WON, BUT AHEAD IN POINTS

On Friday evening the I.O.O.F. bowlers played Brownsburg United in the final game of the season's carpet bowling schedule. The honors were closely divided, the church teams being victors by only one point in the aggregate score.

I.O.O.F.	Brownsburg United
Wm. McFaul	E. Witham
G. Dimerse	C. Lutite
R. McArthur	K. Stewart
H. Cunningham (skip) — 11	A. Zimmer (skip) — 6
T. MacNaughton	O. Wheeler
C. Fletcher	C. Lutite
S. Campbell	L.Beecroft
W. K. McArthur (skip) — 4	G. Anderson (skip) — 10

Totals : 15-16.

With the playing schedule thus completed, Lachute United are winners of the league cup for this season, by virtue of their having a larger advantage in points. The presentation of the trophy will be made at a later date, notification of which will be given through the columns of this newspaper.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

FIRST SCOUT TEPEE AT WORLD'S FAIR

At the erection of the first tepee of the Boy Scout camp which will be a feature of the New York World's Fair, President Grover Whalen paid this tribute to Scouting: "We could not feel that this great exposition — international in character as it is, and representing all the social and economic needs of our country — would be complete if we did not have this Scout camp."

SILVER WOLF FOR DONOR OF ALBERTA CAMP

One of the noteworthy forms of service rendered Canadian youth through the Scout movement, in recognition of which Hon. Lt.-Col. J. H. Woods of Calgary was decorated by His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir, Chief Scout for Canada, with the Scout Silver Wolf, was the gift to Alberta Scouts of a splendid camp site on Sylvan Lake, near Edmonton. Each summer for some years "Camp Woods" has been a mecca for Scout campers and leaders attending training courses. Col. Woods is Provincial Scout Commissioner for Alberta.

A MONTESSORI SCOUTING EXPERIMENT IN EDUCATION

An experiment of unusual interest in combining the principles of the Boy Scout system of training with those of her general educational system is being made by Dr. Maria Montessori, the world famous educationist. The experiment is being carried out in Holland, where a number of Scout leaders are teaching the principles of Scouting to about fifty children in Dr. Montessori's schools.

Dr. Montessori states that she greatly admires the Scout movement, "because it has filled an empty space in education and supplied a need of great human importance, especially for the development of moral standards." Scouting, she says, is most helpful for the training of character — a training which is lacking in ordinary school education.

Salt of the Earth

(Tweed News)

Someone has said that those who pay their bills promptly are "the salt of the earth." They keep our business on an even keel — help us to pay our bills and meet our pay-roll. It is most important that we should express our appreciation to those who pay their bills on time. Those who are slow to pay, receive plenty of statements, but those who pay, never a word. So this is just to tell you that we appreciate and thank those whose obligations have been taken care of. By the way, how does the label on your paper read ?

Belief in Fairies

Scientists tell us that many years ago a pigmy race spread all over Europe They were credited with supernatural powers, and it is from them that we get our belief in fairies, observes a writer in London Tit-Bits magazine. But apart from scientists pure and simple, there are others who believe that fairies still exist. Years ago the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle submitted to the world photographs and facts about fairies. In spite of this, most people are still skeptical. It is not only in places like the wilds of Eire, the mountains of Wales and on the Cornish coasts that people believe in the existence of these little people. There is in Kent a Fairy Investigation society, to which belong scores of rational members, all sure that the "little people" are still to be found.
