Western Grain Crop Heralded as Bright Spot in Economic Scene

BUT ASIATIC AND EUROPEAN AFFAIRS SO TURBULENT, PREMIER WITHHOLDS PRONOUNCEMENT ON ELECTION

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, July 4th. — The fears that overshadow the world from the unrest of two continents centering about Tientsin in China and Danzig in the Baltic were reflected in the statement by the Prime Minister, Mr. King, when he announced that it would be some little time before he would decide when an election would be called. "At the moment," Mr. King said, "matters are very serious. We all hope they will improve but I would like to take at least part of the summer to consider the Asiatic and European situations before launching a campaign." Mr. King referred to the recent remarks of the Premier of France, Mr. Daladier, which were "very grave." The statement from Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary, has since emphasized the seriousness of the situation. There was the possibility that the Canadian Parliament might have to be called in special session, as was contemplated last summer when the Munich affair gathered to a head, the Prime Minister stated. "All things considered," said Mr. King, "I believe much might be gained and nothing lost by waiting a few weeks before reaching a decision about the general election."

These days there is a weekly meeting of the Cabinet. One of the matters now under consideration is who will be the members of the new defence purchasing board. This board was authorized by an act passed during the past session. Its functions will be to make contracts for munitions and equipment for Canada's defence needs. The Department of National Defence will requisition whatever is needed and the board will immediately see about asking for tenders and placing the contract. There are, of course, other appointments to be made in various branches of the Government, the personnel of a penitentiaries board being one, but it may be assumed that foremost in the minds of Government members is the personnel of the defence purchasing board, which now by statute is an integral and most essential part of the machinery of re-armament.

MANUFACTURERS SEEK BRITISH MUNITIONS ORDERS

At a conference between members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and members of the Dominion Cabinet, the manufacturers have been informed that the government "is not only willing but anxious to have Canadian manufacturers obtain arms orders from the United

Masked Stranger Robs Householder of $10

A stranger, tall in stature, entered the apartment of Romeo Legault on Elizabeth Street between 8.30 and 9 o'clock Saturday evening, and stole a sum of money. Mrs. Legault was alone in the house. Having recently returned from hospital, where she had undergone an appendix operation, she was in bed at the time she heard the man enter. Thinking it was her husband, she called, and the marauder, wearing a mask, approached and demanded money. Now thoroughly scared, Mrs. Legault pointed to the corner of the room, where the visitor helped himself to ten dollars and left the house, which he had entered with a false key.

Police were notified and are now investigating the robbery.

Fell 60 Feet from Roof of Church at St. Andrews

St. Andrews E. — While painting the roof of the Roman Catholic Church here, Donat Larocque lost his foothold and fell 60 feet to the ground. A passer-by, E. Chambers, ran to his aid, summoning the priest and doctors. Father Dulude administered the last rites. Drs. L'Allier and Belleau responded and found that the man's arm and back were broken. He was conveyed in Ladouceur's ambulance to Dr. Smith's Hospital at Hawkesbury.

"Don" Larocque, as he is popularly known here, is unmarried and about 25 years old. A brother is employed as janitor of the post office. Up to Tuesday evening it was reported he was doing as well as could be expected.

Young Lachute Man on Bicycle Killed in Crash With Auto

H. CARPENTER, 18-YEAR-OLD CYCLIST, DIED 15 MINUTES AFTER STRUCK BY CAR ON ROUTE 29

Swift death on the highway claimed another young citizen, Harry Carpenter, aged 18, on Tuesday evening about two miles south-west of town.

Cycling toward St. Andrews, the young man was struck by a car around 7.40 o'clock near Arnold Parker's, on Lachute Road, and died of internal injuries about 15 minutes later.

A jury empanelled by Dr. J. H. Mason, district coroner, held an inquiry at the Parker home later in the evening. Chief witness was Gilbert Demerse, Lachute Mills, driver of the car. He had been driving toward St. Andrews and stated that Carpenter was cycling left of the centre of the road as he passed two pedestrians walking in the same direction. He apparently intended to remain on the left side while the car passed, but as Demerse approached, the cyclist turned toward the right of the road in front of the car and the driver, although heading into the grass along the side of the highway, could do nothing to avoid hitting him. The victim was dragged beneath the car for some distance. The machine was backed up to release him. This evidence was confirmed by passengers riding with Mr. Demerse — Robt. McArthur, of Lachute, W. J. and Chester Fletcher, of Brownsburg. The four had been on their way to an Oddfellows' ceremony at Carillon cemetery.

Carpenter was placed in a more comfortable position. He was conscious, and although complaining of pain in his back, did not appear to be seriously injured. Soon afterward, however, he lapsed into unconsciousness and died. Dr. E. Christie, who was summoned to the scene, gave testimony as to the nature of the lad's injuries, which were mostly internal.

The only other witness was Arnold Parker, nearby resident, who had been walking along the road toward his home when the cyclist turned out to pass him. The car, he said, had passed at a reasonable rate of speed.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, exonerating the motorist of all blame, and the body was brought to the Carpenter home on Brownsburg Road, West Ward of Lachute.

The young victim was well known among the younger element of the community and also by the older citizens, among whom he had made the rounds recently collecting radio licenses. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carpenter, and one sister, Miss Lorna Carpenter.

The funeral is being held this afternoon (Thursday) from St. Simeon's Church, Lachute. To the bereaved family sincere sympathy is extended by the people of this community.

Bishop Carlisle Cuts Centenary Cake at Trinity Church Celebration, Lakefield

IS GUEST PREACHER AT AUSPICIOUS SERVICE TO COMMEMORATE 100th ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH

GEO. HEON, M.P., HEARD IN AFTER-DINNER SPEECH

Over 400 persons attended the centenary celebrations at Holy Trinity Church, Lakefield, on Tuesday, July 4th.

At 9 a.m. the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh held a celebration of the Eucharist in the church. At 11 a.m. Bishop Arthur Carlisle, of Montreal, was the guest speaker. Rev. C. W. P. Baugh officiated, while the scripture lessons were read by Rural Dean R. S. Booy, of St. Andrews East, and Rev. W. Garner, of New Luzerne, N.Y. Other noted clergy in the chancel were Rev. Stanley Andrews and Rev. R. G. Fiander, of Montreal; Rev. E. G. May, Ste. Agathe des Monts; Rev. W. C. LeCras, Lachute; Rev. W. R. A. Radmore, Terrebonne; Rev. T. W. Ball, St. Andrews East; Rev. J. V. Temple, Morin Heights. The special music for the occasion was under the direction of Rev. A. E. Mount, of Lakefield.

The Bishop, in his sermon, traced the history of the Christian Church from earliest times, drawing a parallel with the century of progress made by the Lakefield church. He stressed the three words, Vision, Participation and Devotion. At this service he also dedicated several memorials, gifts of the Women's Auxiliary.

Dinner was served afterwards in the Gibb Parish Hall. The large, three-layer centenary cake, decorated with one hundred candles, was cut by the Bishop with a silver knife.

The after-dinner speakers were introduced by the rector. The main speaker, Georges Héon, M.P. for the County of Argenteuil, expressed his firm belief in moral re-armament, and stated that if Canada was to prosper everyone would have to live the Christ-like life. He added that it was the duty of all Canadians to live as Christians because everything they possessed in life "belonged to the Almighty." Mr. Héon was given loud applause by the gathering. The next speaker, Rev. W. Garner, recalled a number of interesting episodes which occurred during 1909-12, the years he was in charge of the parish. Rural Dean Booy congratulated Rev. Baugh, and also made a short address.

At 3 p.m. the Bishop gave an address on "The Challenge of the Church Today." "Now is the time to fight for God, bring on what you may. If we had a fraction of the faith we should have, there is nothing that could stand against us. We must strike a triumphant note, instead of complaining about dwindling English populations, shriveling interest rates and so forth," said the Bishop. Knowledge, sacrifice, and devotion were the three essential factors in this challenge. The Bishop added: "Knowledge — because we need information about the past, the best cure for pessimism being a study of history. Sacrifice — because the Church calls for toil and labor. And personal devotion, which is the root and spring of everything else." He also dwelt upon Gen. Booth's quotation, "I think it must have been that Jesus Christ must have had all that there is of me," which Booth stated when asked the secret of his success. After the address a Deanery meeting was held for the clergy and church officials.

At the evening meeting the centenary celebration committee, with H. G. Baugh as chairman, extended votes of thanks to the Montreal newspapers, The Lachute Watchman, and the Molson Newscaster for publicity; to the Trinity W.A., for the dinner; to Mrs. Trickey for making the centenary cake; to the T. Eaton Co. for supplying the candles and holders; and a general resolution was passed to include all who had assisted in making the celebration a success.

Four officers from the Provincial Traffic Department were in charge of the traffic, and the day passed without a mishap.

The offering from the morning service, which amounted to $53.00, was given towards the Diocesan Mission Budget.

When Local Car Escorted Royalty

Among snapshots of the Royal tour of particular interest here, is the above taken at Sherbrooke, in which a Lachute car is pictured as it proceeded first in the escort behind the Royal automobile. The Veterans' guard of honor appears lining the route, as the car with its load of R.C.M.P. officers is passing a spectators' stand. The auto is a Plymouth DeLuxe convertible touring sedan belonging to Cyril Drew and purchased here at MacRae Motor Sales. Finished in black, with white-wall tires and red leather upholstery, this car was chosen for Royal duty by R.C.M.P. and Scotland Yard officials because of its smart appearance and its adaptability for the occasion. The owner also appreciated the honor thus conferred.

Local M.D.'s Make Move in County Hospital Project

URGENT NEED PROMPTS RENEWED EFFORT TO LAUNCH INSTITUTION

Convinced, from professional experience, of the need of a hospital in this county, the Argenteuil Medical Association comprising physicians from this area agreed on Tuesday to proceed with a project to establish an institution for hospitalization of local cases. The decision was made at a meeting in Lachute council chamber on Tuesday, and it was agreed to submit the plan for consideration at next assembly of Lachute Council.

The scheme previously outlined had met opposition from various sources, but the need of a hospital is so urgent that the doctors now feel urged to press the plan to completion. Their project provides for a 30-bed hospital open to patients of all nationalities entered by any physician of good standing in the Society. A board of governors would be representative of the surrounding municipalities. The staff would comprise Catholic and Protestant nurses, and the enterprise conducted on a bilingual basis. No specific site or building is selected, as yet, but the hope is that a new and scientifically planned structure may be erected.

The meeting voted unanimously to proceed with further plans. Dr. J. H. Mason presided, Dr. W. F. McMartin filled the role as secretary, and the county doctors were well represented in this discussion.

ORGANIST INVENTED THE LOCOMOTIVE WHISTLE

The locomotive whistle can claim a musical pedigree. It was invented by an English organist more than a century ago following a level crossing crash between a train and a farmer's cart on the Leicester and Swannington Railway. In its original form it was known as a "steam trumpet."

Double Drowning Tragedy At Ste. Marguerite

11-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNS IN FUTILE ATTEMPT TO SAVE YOUNGER SISTER

Diving into Lake Masson to save his nine-year-old sister, Francine, from drowning, Pierre Algrain, 11 years of age, failed in his effort and both children were drowned last Saturday.

The victims were pulled out of the water by their father, who had been told of the accident by a witness, but all efforts to revive them were in vain. L. B. Temple, of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power, went up by areoplane with an inhalator to resuscitate the children, but arrived too late.

On Sunday evening the children were rowing on the lake. On the shore nearby was another little girl. She told the authorities that Francine had leaned over the edge of the boat and fallen into the water. Pierre jumped into the water and swam to his little sister. She seized him about the neck and he was unable to break her hold. The children struggled for a short time, and then both sank.

The little witness rushed to the father of the children, who ran to the edge of the water and saw the children as they rose to the surface. He swam out as best he could, not being a good swimmer himself, reached the children and managed to pull them ashore. They were carried into the house, but were dead before Mr. Temple arrived by plane with the inhalator.

One-Third Population of Hawkesbury on Relief

Regarding the relief situation in Hawkesbury, Mayor L. Maisonneuve stated last week that several families are in dire circumstances. No clothing or wood is now given relief recipients and only about half their rent is paid. Many children have not been sent to school for lack of wearing apparel. "I have done all in my power to remedy the situation, but to no avail; even officials of the domestic and juvenile court are trying. The situation is certainly serious."

One of the several homes referred to by the Mayor was lately visited by newspaper representatives. The old four-roomed house was practically bare, upstairs there was absolutely nothing and the wife stated she had to give all the furniture away to meet the balance of the rent to avoid being thrown out on the street. The woman said that she had to cook on a neighbor's stove. The husband said that he had cut up over one-third of the furniture for fuel, including chairs and cupboards. The family now, numbering four, receive $9.60 every 15 days, which has to cover everything.

Mayor Maisonneuve stated that at the present time 460 heads of families were on relief in the town, representing about 2000 persons or aproximately one-third of the population.

"I was told by a most highly educated Jew once that the racial, or anti-Jewish laws enacted by Hitler at Nuremberg were mild compared with the racial or anti-Gentile laws of the Mosaic faith." — Douglas Reed

Vankleek Hill Curling Club Refinances for Improvements

At a recent meeting of the Vankleek Hill Curling Club means were discussed to improve the ice surface of the two sheets. One of the propositions put forward was that the Curling Rink Company pay the costs for the present and that they be repaid yearly by the curling club.

James Taylor, president of the Curling Club Company, was present and rejected this suggestion but said he would favor the selling of debentures now held by local residents. With the above suggestion the curlers have got busy and have now about 60 per cent of the shares purchased or sold for the holders of debentures who desire to sell. Money has been raised by means of a note and the work of improving the ice is now under way.

Omission, High School Examination Reports

The names of the following pupils of Grade IX were unintentionally omitted from the pass list submitted to The Watchman last week: Ruth Armstrong, Muriel Alexander and Isabel Simon, who were all successful and have been promoted to 10th year.

St. Julien Parish Holds Fete on Dominion Day

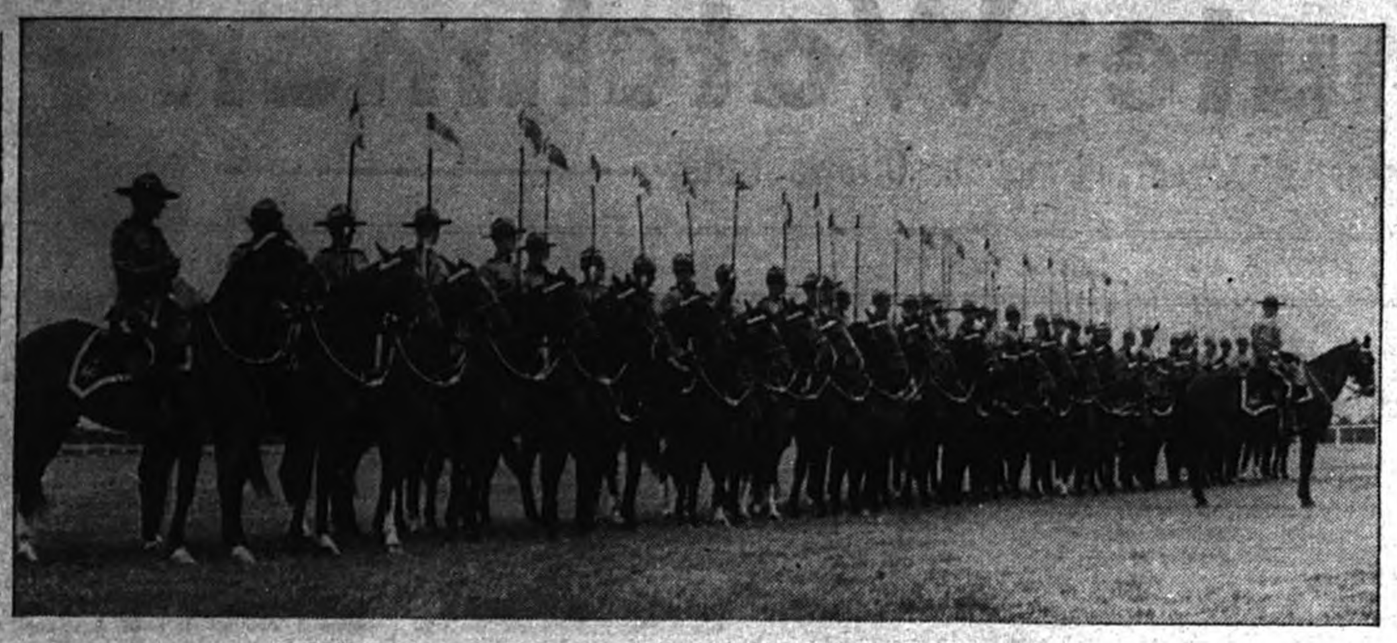

SPORTS AND ENTERTAINMENT ENJOYED BY LARGE GATHERING

The St. Julien field day, organized under the presidency of J. P. Roy, first venture of its kind in recent years for parish work, attracted a large crowd to the exhibition grounds on Saturday, Dominion Day. It is estimated about 1,000 persons enjoyed the sports program and entertainment arranged by the committee. Owing to rainshowers earlier in the day, dragging of the race-track delayed the sports events, and the program was somewhat curtailed. The spectators, however, witnessed a variety performance, with cycle and motor cycle riders from Montreal clubs and from this vicinity, also horse racing and athletic events. The results of the contests appear on page two of this issue. The track program was under management of Messrs. John McDonald, R. Godin and D. Lepine.

In the evening, grandstand spectators were treated to an entertainment including musical talent from Lachute and Brownsburg. Announcer and master of ceremonies was Philippe G. Roy. Amplifiers were installed for better sound effect. The artists included Prof. P. Carriere and Miss Quesnel, of Brownsburg, with dancing numbers, and Mr. J. Lupien, pianist, with a choral group from Brownsburg. The Lachute Brass Band, under Director Alex Guenette, and the Brownsburg Boys' Band, led by Gordon Anderson, provided music during the day. Mr. P. Robinson, accordionist, also gave appreciated selections.

A moving picture show, brought by the Associated Screen News, included films of the Royal tour in several Canadian cities, Washington and New York, the coronation ceremonies of Pope Pius XII, and other interesting features.

The effort was in aid of funds for St. Julien Parish.

SUDETEN REFUGEES HAPPY IN NEW HOMES IN WEST

Winnipeg, Man.—Sudeten refugees recently settled in the St. Walburg district of Northern Saskatchewan experienced many happy surprises when they arrived in the western farming areas. They were relieved when they learned there was no need to arm against Indians, pleased to know they will be able to grow potatoes and make sauerkraut in Canada.

J. J. Wieler of the Colonization Department of the C.N. Rlys., in charge of three large parties of refugees, found they are making excellent settlers. "What strikes them most in this country is the freedom of movement," Mr. Wieler asserted. "They have to adjust themselves to that. And the thing that overjoys them is the abundance of good food. They are fond of pork and were pleased when told they will be able to "raise pigs."

CAPITALISM

There is too much talk going around about the evils of the "Capitalist System." It is being talked about by college professors and others charged with the education of youth.

The idea that there is essentially something wicked in making a profit out of business is penetrating into the minds of the uninformed and ignorant in a way which is dangerous to the welfare of the nation.

We are not in a position to charge the obvious attacks upon business and industry to the influence of Communistic propaganda, though goodness knows there is enough of that.

We are inclined more to put the blame upon the loose thinking of public leaders and teachers who have never had an opportunity to learn for themselves how the world of business operates.

Intelligent people understand that the only place the Government can get money to support the needy is by taxing business, profits and property. No business, no profits; no profits, no taxable income. A lot of people would have to go to work to support themselves.

Our whole economic life is built upon the right of capital to engage freely in productive enterprise, being responsible to the people for the abuse of that right. We have reached a high standard of comfort and purchasing power for average man, just because Capital, large and small, has been ready to take the risk of loss in the hope of profit.

That is the Capitalist system. We do not believe that it is all bad. Certainly its results have been mainly good, not alone for capitalists but for everybody.

LAYMEN'S PART IN HEALTH PROGRAMS

The performance of federal, provincial and local health organizations rests almost entirely on the qualifications of the personnel, but there remains a valuable service for the layman to perform. That is to create public opinion in favor of health conservation.

In this respect voluntary associations have given leadership for many years to public-spirited citizens—both professional and lay—in the promotion of preventive measures, but to a very large extent they place their dependence upon lay co-operation.

One thing that the layman can create in the public mind and in the minds of local governing bodies is an appreciation of the absolute necessity for properly trained personnel if public funds provided for health work are not to be largely wasted. This was pointed out in an address before the National Organization of Public Health Nurses at Kansas City by Dr. C. E. Waller, Assistant Surgeon-General of the U.S. Public Health Service.

"To be competent to perform these services," he stated, "the layman first must inform himself. He must know something of the theory and thought behind social work; know what social needs are essential in the community and what activities may be considered luxuries; know whether the existing official agencies are maintaining the highest standards of performance."

CIVIC ADVERTISING

Not to be outdone by the United States government with its famous "Power Play," Winnipeg has developed a moving picture of its municipal plant (states an exchange, Public Ownership). In a recent issue of its bulletin the picture is described as follows:

"Comedy, sports, thrills, music — all contribute to City Hydro's new moving picture show, available free of charge for lodge meetings, club gatherings and church organizations."

RURAL PHONE MANNERS

Some interesting points in telephone etiquette were brought out at the annual meeting of a nearby rural telephone company. The matter of "listening in" or interfering with a conversation was taken up; and it was decided that a fine of $5 will be imposed on anyone found guilty of those offences — points out the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder. In the course of the discussion one subscriber asked, "How long are you supposed to talk ?" "Three minutes," he was informed.

It is easy to understand the complaint of one subscriber, that at times it was practically impossible to secure the line. A party line with perhaps ten or a dozen connections represents a lot of possible conversations and there are bound to be times when two or three will want the line. But a lot of the trouble could be avoided if people would stick strictly to the three-minute limit instead of settling themselves comfortably for an extended "visit" over the phone. Three minutes may seem a long time when one is waiting to get off an important message; but it is not so long that any interest is likely to suffer by the short delay.

This business of "visiting" on the phone is more, we believe, a matter of thoughtlessness than anything else. Or, perhaps, just another form of selfishness.

As for "listening in," it is in the same class as reading other people's letters. A $5 fine is not a bit too stiff. Do those who indulge in it ever stop to consider what a mean, sneaking trick it is ? Evidently not, for often, when one calls a rural line, he can hear the clicks of several receivers as they are picked off their hooks.

After all, the whole code of telephone etiquette may be summed up in the two short sentences — "Mind your own business !" and "Other people have rights." —Winchester Press

WAKE UP AND LIVE !

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

Don't hypnotize yourself into success.

This is important to understand, for many people, and with some reason, dread and fear anything that is based on hypnotism, even in the form of self-suggestion.

You are advised to use, first, a minimum of will — just enough to decide to try a new process. Then the imagination takes over until your mind is clear, cool, and "pleasant" in tone; not confused, diverted, troubled or foggy.

The difference lies just here : in intensive autosuggestion there is a serious danger that the mind will get as much out of touch with reality in the other direction as it was in its day-dreaming or depression; that it will become, as the French say, exaltée, a word for which we have no exact and satisfactory equivalent.

But "extravagantly elated" is about what exaltée implies, a state of mental intoxication as dangerous as it is temporarily delightful. You cannot live on those peaks; and if you could. you would, again, find yourself unable to act effectively in the world of reality. Without such action you are as far from success, as deep in self-delusion, as ever.

Confident, steady, freely-flowing action is what we need. Then safe delight begins. The mind, cleared of its doubt, begins to expand and enjoys its own activity; the rewards of satisfactory action begin to show themselves. An elation which has nothing to do with delusion or hypnotism naturally follows, and has no later reaction to nullify it.

Second, the advice is not to make "affirmations" such as "I cannot fail," "I am successful in all I do," and so on. This procedure, which is helpful with many, has too much in common with auto-hypnotism for those who do not thoroughly understand the principle on which they are working as they follow it.

Most of us are brought up short by prosaic common sense when we try to use the "affirmative" method, and for one who can successfully make use of it there are a hundred who feel ludricous when doing so.

There are others who succeed for a while and then find themselves worse off than before. There is no disapproval whatever for the method when used by those for whom it is, we might say, temperamentally suitable. But for sceptics of even a mild order, it is likely to be more irritating than helpful.

Thirdly, the advice is not to dash out and impress others by posing, pretending or downright lying about one's successfulness. The only one to impress, at least at first, is yourself and that only to the extent of making yourself a congenial working-atmosphere.

The recommendation, once more, is simply this : Act as if it were impossible to fail.

It is the creative imagination which is to be called on, and if that fact is kept fully in mind there will be no danger of slipping once more into the bad old habit of dreaming the world into a different shape while life slips away. Remember again that "Success depends on a plus condition of mind and body, on power of work, on courage." It is that idea which must be held firmly in mind : that the test of whether or not one is dreaming or imagining correctly the mental work. Any mental activity which turns backward for longer than it takes to correct a mistake and to replace an unsatisfactory habit with a good one, is minus, and cannot be continued if you hope to lead a fuller life.

ROYALTY . . . in Washington

I was in Washington when King George and Queen Elizabeth paid their Royal visit to our National Capital. I was one of the comparatively few for whom standing room had been reserved when the visiting monarchs held a reception for the Senators and Representatives in the rotunda of the Capitol Building.

I can report that King George VI is a pleasant-faced, intelligent-looking, slender gentleman of 41 who looked and acted as if he were having a good time, and his wife, Queen Elizabeth, is much prettier than her pictures show. She is a little woman, about five feet two I should say, decidedly in contrast to Mrs. Roosevelt's six feet.

Washington has never been so gaily decorated, nor its inhabitants so enthusiastic, over the visits of any other celebrites. That is quite natural, since no celebrites of such world importance have ever visited Washington before. The titular head of the world's greatest empire paying a call on the head of the world's greatest republic was an occasion to celebrate.

I have seen, at more or less close range, many heads of nations in the past sixty years, but few who made as good an impression.

MONARCHY . . . . . symbol

It is a good deal of a joke to call the British Empire a monarchy. The word means government by the rule of a single individual, as contrasted with anarchy, which means no government at all, and democracy, which means rule by the people.

Britain is so far from being a monarchy that the present King has about as much authority or control over the government of the Empire as the lowliest of his subjects. Not really quite as much when you consider that he cannot belong to any political party and cannot vote, even for a town councillor, let alone a member of Parliament.

He is a symbol. He cannot give advice to his Government, but must take the advice of the Cabinet and sign where he is told on the dotted line.

All that is expected of the King of England, and the Dominions, Emperor of India, etc., etc., is that he shall behave like an English gentleman and uphold the dignity of the Empire. He does that extremely well.

DEMOCRACY . . . . people

When you stop to think of it, the British Government is a great deal more democratic than the American. All of the power is in the hands of the common people, who elect the House of Commons. The Commons selects the Cabinet, which the King must appoint, from its own membership, and the Cabinet so appointed is called and actually is "the Government."

When Charles I tried to dictate to Parliament, the people rose in wrath and cut off his head. English kings have been pretty careful ever since about meddling with Government.

Queen Victoria got away with a good deal of interference in public affairs, but the only one of her successors who tried it, Edward VIII, King George's oldest brother, was forced to resign the throne less than three years ago.

The King cannot veto an act of Parliament. Since 1910 the House of Lords has been deprived of all power to override any act of the House of Commons.

There is one way the King can get rid of a member of Parliament whom he dislikes. That is to elevate him to the Peerage, by making him a Baron, Earl, Viscount, Marquis or Duke. That makes him ineligible to sit in the House of Commons and shunts him into the House of Lords, where he can talk but not vote.

U.S. PRESIDENT . . . power

By comparison with the King of England, the President of the United States occupies a position of enormous power. He is the sole executive of the nation, charged with administering the laws enacted by Congress. If he disapproves an Act of Congress he can veto it. He can and does recommend legislation to Congress, and takes an active part in politics.

The President, like the King, has a Cabinet, but the members of the American Cabinet are appointed solely by the President and are in effect merely his personal clerks or executive assistants. And he can do many things, without consulting Congress, which no English King would dare to attempt.

REPORTS TO PRESIDENT

The United States Ambassador to Japan, Joseph Grew, is pictured at the door of the White House in Washington where he reported to President Roosevelt on the Far Eastern situation.

Growth of Oysters

The shape of oysters is affected by the type of bottom on which they grow. On hard bottom they grow wide in proportion to length; on soft bottom, in which they tend to sink, they become the prized, relatively long-shelled "coon" oysters. Beds producing the latter type of oysters are most likely to be under shoal water, more easily reached by wading, which is the oyster-gathering technique used by the Indians. Hence the high proportion of "coon" oyster shells in the Indian shell mounds represents an unconscious selection of the high quality, shoal-water oysters in ancient times, rather than a deterioration in the quality of the modern mollusks.

STONE — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Ernest James, who passed away on June 27, 1938. —Ever remembered by his father, mother, sisters and brothers.

As time goes by we miss him more.
His loving smile, his kindly face —
No one can ever take his place.
We often sit and think of him,
The things he used to say and do.
And wonder why he had to die,
Without a chance to say good-bye.

Observe Silver Anniversary Of Pioneer W.I.

About 50 guests and members were present on Friday, June 30, in Geneva Hall, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Pioneer W.I. This group was formerly the Argenteuil Homemakers' Club, which was started early in 1914 at a Farmers' Club meeting in the same hall, by the late Mrs. MacFarlane, née Miss F. Campbell, of Macdonald College, who at that occasion was introduced to the ladies by the president, Mr. E. Cooke.

Tea was served by five young ladies and afterwards the president, Mrs. G. S. Armstrong, proposed a toast to the King, which was responded to by the singing of the national anthem.

An address of welcome to former members and guests present, also an outline of the work accomplished by the Branch since 1914, was given by Mrs. Armstrong, who also asked all present to stand a moment in silent memory of the 20 members who have passed on — the secretary reading the names.

A toast to the former members was given by Mrs. E. Cooke, and responded to by Mrs. Richard Morrison, of Lachute, an early president.

Mrs. John Gordon, guest speaker, after congratulatory remarks, spoke of the many changes to benefit the homemaker in the past 25 years — electricity, labor saving devices, etc.

Mrs. R. Bradley also spoke on Institute work, and Mrs. L. Morris, the county president, referred to the Institute work not only in Canada but in all parts of the world.

Mrs. Morris also presented life membership certificates to three members of the Institute, namely, Mrs. G. S. Armstrong, Mrs. Jas. Cowan and Mrs. Jas. MacKenzie.

Much regret was expressed in the absence of the superintendent, Miss H. McCain, through illness. A letter of regret and good wishes for the future, was read from her.

A.Y.P.A. Members Gather, St. Amedée Parish

A rally of the A.Y.P.A. branches of the Deanery was held at the home of Mr. Milton Cochrane last Wednesday, St. Amedée branch being the hosts. The rally took the form of a weiner roast. Mr. J. Bradley Owen, of Arundel, conducted a community singsong, and dancing was enjoyed on an open-air platform. A collection was taken for the work of the Sunday School by post in this diocese, for which the A.Y.P.A. is responsible. The following branches were represented: St. Amedée, Calumet, Grenville, Lachute and Arundel.

Early American 'Ordinary' Forerunner of the Hotel

The early American public house or "ordinary" as it was commonly called, was the crude forerunner of the modern hotel in this country. With the development of roads these "ordinarys" increased. Gradually the old name was dropped, and the public houses, with their taprooms and great fireplaces, became known as taverns. About the time of the Revolution the word hotel was found in general use, relates a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

In 1794 the City hotel, a New York house with 73 rooms, was opened. It was considered a tremendous establishment in its time. Soon other hotels were built in Philadelphia, Boston, and Baltimore. The new establishments were confined, however, to the principal eastern cities until the development of the railroad.

The first steam trains carried many commercial travelers westward into new business territories. Quickly their numbers increased and as quickly hotels sprang up in the towns and cities which became their stopping places.

Seary-Hewitt

The marriage of John Joseph Seary, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Seary, of Brownsburg, Que., to Miss Elsie Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hewitt, also of Brownsburg, took place on Saturday afternoon, July 1st, at 3 p.m., in the United Church, which was filled with a gathering of well-wishers. Rev. S. J. Pike performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Miss Winnifred Seary as bridesmaid. Mr. R. N. Cruise, of Lachute, acted as best man. The wedding marches were played by Mrs. Cedric Wheeler, organist of the church, and during the signing of the register Mrs. Wm. King sang "O Promise Me."

The bride looked charming in a gown of white crepe-de-chine, with veil and accessories, and carried a bouquet of tea roses and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid wore a gown of blue net over white silk and accessories. Mrs. Hewitt, the bride's mother, wore a mauve crepe-de-chine dress, and Mrs. Seary, the groom's mother, wore a dress of crepe taffeta of rose-romantic color.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, where about one hundred persons were served. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. A. Phillips and Misses Eunice and Murial Phillips, Mr. J. Seary and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Seary and Miss Gwendoline Seary, all of Montreal.

A large number of costly and useful gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple.

The bride and groom left immediately after the reception for the Thousand Islands, where their honeymoon will be spent. On their return they will reside at Brownsburg.

In Arundel United Church at 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening, June 28th, the Rev. C. Cushing officiating, the marriage was solemnized of Velma Moncrieff, second daughter of Mr. John Moncrieff and the late Mrs. John Moncrieff, to Mr. William Ronalds, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ronalds.

Pink and white peonies with ferns banked the chancel, and the guest pews were marked with clusters of blue lupin and syringa tied with white ribbon. Miss Stella Cooke, organist of the church, played the wedding music. During the signing of the register, Miss Margaret Cooke sang, "O Promise Me."

The Undersea Sword

SHORT STORY

— Written by a boy of fourteen,
Frank E. Draper

One morning in May, 1916, a ship carrying two million dollars in gold bullion was torpedoed, and sank in three hundred and sixty feet of water in the Atlantic Ocean. Every man on board was killed except one — an engineer, who was found afloat six hours later.

He told a weird story when rescued, about a curse on the ship: "Ye see, it was this way," he explained, "I was warned not to go aboard her. Rumor had it that Old Bill Cummings, heir to the famous African Ruby of priceless worth, was to ship with us incognito, and that the gem was cursed, and sure as shooting we'd meet with disaster. . . . Me, I wasn't for swallowing a fairy tale like that, for it was a pretty good job for me — good pay and all; and besides, I'd figgered this ship as safe as any other in war-time. Guess it was, too, for me, anyway. . . You see, the torpedo blew the engine room clean out from under me, and I came up, that's why I'm here. Guess the rest must have been trapped, for on a merchant marine vessel like the "Lady B," there ain't much chance of survival when a torpedo hits."

A few years later Daniel Jones, the engineer, heard many interesting facts about the "Lady B" and her sunken cargo, but the most important was the supposed "Ruby Curse," for every diver who had gone down undersea after it had lost his life. In each case the life-line had been cut as clean as though with a sword.

Daniel Jones pondered over this. "No human being could LIVE under the sea and cut life-lines," he told himself, and in that part of the Atlantic there were no sharks or octopuses. The more he thought about it, the more determined he was to learn just what was the nature of these undersea mystery-deaths. He wasn't afraid of the "Ruby Curse," for he had survived, so maybe he'd be the one to settle this question once and for all. He'd saved about two hundred dollars, which would buy a heavy rubber diving suit, helmet and lead shoes. The more he thought about it, the more he was sure he'd win out, so he betook himself to a salvage company and put the proposition up to them.

"Percentage if I win. . . My insurance if I lose," he offered.

"Shake," said the salvage agent. "It's a deal."

One cold but clear day in October, 1926, Daniel Jones, with his salvage equipment and the necessary men, arrived at the spot where the "Lady B" went down. Dan put on his diving suit and was lowered directly over the deck of the sunken ship. He crept carefully along to the captain's cabin, hoping to locate the safe with the million dollars in gold, and perhaps the ruby.

A hole had been blown in the steel wall, just large enough to admit a man in a stooping position. Dan peered in . . . what he saw made him quiver all over, for there, almost as in life, sat the captain, his skeleton leering insanely at a huge ruby attached to a strong gold chain wound about his bony fingers, and dangling over the solid oak table which had withstood the time and tide. . . . Dan wondered, if, when he had gone through the broken steel aperture and smashed the window through which he could see the captain so plainly, the water might wash away the ruby and the remains of the captain too. Was it fate? thought Dan; fate that had shown up who the mystery man, Bill Cummings, really was? Or maybe the captain was only looking at the jewel when the torpedo struck. Dan bent lower to enter the broken steel wall. Just then he had a premonition and quickly lowered himself flat. A huge piece of sheet metal curved across his vision. He realized how nearly he, too, had missed death, for had he gone an inch farther into that ship, his life-line would have been cut. The suction of water caused by the entrance of a man in a diving suit would have made a swinging piece of steel cut his life-line.

Up above, one of the men at the pump felt a slackening of the life-line. He hollared loudly to another fellow: "Hey, come here quickly. . . . Guess poor old Dan got his. Look! the line's slack. — Golly . . . must 'ave been cut clean through like the rest. That's seventeen men gone to glory over that gold. Shall we haul 'er in, Bob? . . . . No, look!" he continued. "Line's tightening. Say! He's tapping for ups. — Haul 'er in, Bob. I'll keep the air pumping. — Careful, now; Dan might 've got the bends. Hey, you chaps over there, get the compresson chamber ready — can't never tell when we'll need her. Heave to — heave to. Steady there— not too fast. That's it — not so quick on that hauling line. He's still got to have air."

Bubbles broke on the surface — thick soapy-looking bubbles, and the man at the pump felt a sickening dread as he kept the air flow as even as possible. Bob worked cautiously at the hauling line and soon called to Tom at the pump: "Hey, Tom, ease up on the air, only a few more feet of line and Dan'l be up."

Then up popped a helmet, and soon Dan was climbing the steps at the side of the salvage boat.

A hearty sigh of relief broke from the tightened throats of Bob and Tom as the diver appeared none the worse for his experience. Eager hands removed his helmet. Dan rested awhile as he told what he had found.

"Solved the mystery. I'm going down to chop off a piece of the old steel wall that so nearly got me. Get me an axe, and an undersea torch — might have trouble with the steel. And when I give the signal, Bob, see that the hauling hooks are lowered."

Dan always clipped his words, never wasted time on useless conversation, so Bob did not question him. He knew Dan would explain everything when his work was completed; thus neither he nor Tom breathed a hint as to their fears for his safety.

In due time they lowered Dan, once more over the side. He worked easily now, with no fear of disaster. The broken, swinging sword-like steel offered an exciting problem, but nerves such as Dan's welcomed any physical difficulty, and he managed to dislodge it without damaging his life-line. And he thought of a lesson he had once read in college: "For every supernatural thing, there is a natural explanation."

Some hours later, Dan and his crew sailed for home the richer by one million dollars and a priceless ruby.

Grenville — It is with extreme regret that we announce the death of Mr. Hugh Cumming, head lockmaster at Grenville, who was the last of the old staff of pensioned lockmasters originally appointed to the canal, and died literally in harness, at the ripe old age of 62.

Mr. Owens mentioned last week that in Argenteuil, under the Mercier Government, it took $1,000 of the colonization grant to see that $500 was expended. — This is almost up to the style of the Lockwood job, where the questions the Liberal majority would not allow the witnesses to answer, indicated that it cost $6,800 to collect $10,000 claim against the Government. — Montreal Gazette.

Dalesville L.O.L 1453 will hold a grand picnic on July 12th, with fife and drum music by A. Calder and W. Gauley, of Grenville.

THE CASTLES

There has been a run of pictures bringing back nostalgic memories to middle-aged people like myself. The latest is "The Story of Irene and Vernon Castle." Whether it is as good a picture as the other Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers pictures I cannot say. It was good to me because the music brought back many good times, mostly dancing good times, and made me remember dancing partners and other friends I had not thought of for many a long year. Certain tunes are tied up with people so that invariably we think of them when we hear the music. How closely the story of the picture follows the lives of the Castles I cannot say. Probably, quite closely as Mrs. Castle adapted the story herself and acted as adviser for the music, clothes, dances and atmosphere generally. It is the first time that the life of a living woman has been filmed. I can remember wearing dresses and hats like several of Mrs. Castle's. The dancing of the Castle Walk was interesting because it showed the beginning of the walk which has been a definite part of modern dancing ever since. We have never gone back to the old round-and-round style. Whether the Castles ever danced in Canada or not, I do not know. I never saw them and I have missed few of the well-known dancers of my day. Dancing, which gives us grace and beauty, and strength and rhythm, is truly creative art.

SPECIAL SERVICE

We live in a second floor apartment and of course have to go down-stairs to get the mail. Our Irish terrier, Con, is usually around outside when the postman comes. He is great friends with the postman and if he is any place in sight dashes off to meet him. Then the postman gives Con the mail, rings the bell, and up comes Con proudly carrying the mail. I don't know who is prouder, Con, the postman — or I.

HELP THE BLIND

There is one appeal I never refuse, and that is to buy from the Canadian Federation of the Blind. They are doing a useful work in helping the blind to work. The value of work in the usefulness and happiness of an individual is understood more now than ever before. Besides helping the blind, we are helping ourselves. You are getting full value for your money as they turn out useful, well-made articles. We are asked to buy so much useless trash that it is a satisfaction to get something that is well-made. Most of us need to get value for money spent and that we do when we buy articles made by the blind.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

Chocolate cake is a prime favorite summer or winter. The cook likes it even more in the summer, as it keeps moist for such a long time. New recipes are always coming along and I give most of them a try, but here are the ones I like best. They are all different and I use them for different occasions and purposes.

Chocolate Cake No. 1

¼ cup butter, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup sour cream, 2 eggs, 4 tablespoons cocoa, 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ cup walnuts (optional).

Cream butter and sugar, add well-beaten eggs. Add the sour cream and the sifted dry ingredients, alternately. Bake in an 8" by 8" pan in a moderately slow oven of 350 degrees. I like to add the walnuts but that is a matter of choice. Seldom being able to get sour cream, in these days of electric refrigeration, it is not often I get a chance to make this one, although it is the one I like best, I have used sour cream with good results.

Chocolate Icing

5 tablespoons cocoa, 5 tablespoons water, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons cream.

Cook the cocoa, water and butter until thickened, and stir while cooking. Cool, then add cream and vanilla, and stir in icing sugar to thicken. It will take about 2¼ cups. Do not make the icing too stiff. Remember it stiffens and sets with time and the icing should be quite soft.

Chocolate Cake No. 2

½ cup butter, 1¼ cups brown sugar (firmly packed), 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 eggs, 4 tablespoons cocoa, 1¼ cups sweet milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream butter and sugar and add unbeaten eggs, one at a time and beat well. Measure flour after sifting. Then sift in the dry ingredients, alternately with the milk, a little at a time. Bake in a 10" by 12" pan in a slow oven of 325 degrees. This is a good recipe if you want to use sweet milk. For some reason or other I usually ice this cake with seven minute icing, then dribble melted chocolate over the top. This one has the honor of being named by a university professor, Silhouette Cake.

Chocolate Cake No. 3

1 cup granulated sugar, 1½ cups flour; ¼ teaspoon each, cloves, cinnamon, and nutmeg; ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon cocoa, pinch salt, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour cream.

Sift the dry ingredients and stir in the well-beaten eggs and the sour cream. The cream is the only shortening in the cake. One friend, who does not like chocolate cake, is very fond of this one. The spice gives it a different flavor.

Rub steel blades of knives with emery paper before putting away for any length of time and they will not rust. Remember this when you close up house for a month or so.

A clean aluminum coffee pot cannot affect the flavor of the coffee.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

While her husband unearths skeletons of weird creatures all over the world, and particularly those of dinosaurs, Mrs. Barnum Brown does her bit along with the other members of the expedition, organizing the camp and helping to prepare the bones of the priceless treasures dug up.

Her husband is the well-known explorer for the American Museum of Natural History of New York, whom she met when he was on an expedition to India and she was completing her education abroad. She observes the everyday life of the strange people among whom they live. She likes particularly the expeditions to Wyoming and Montana, where Dr. Brown has found the largest and best preserved skeletons. When snows put an end to the expeditions, Mrs. Brown returns to the lecture platform to tell about her adventures with dinosaur hunters.

Ida M. Tarbell who, at the age of 81, says she was a very modern woman in the trust-busting days about which she has written many books, visited the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia in 1876.

She was a freshman at Allegheny College then and was eager to see the telephone, which was considered a childish gadget at that time. Because people laughed at it in its days of infancy shows how wrong they can be about new ideas, Miss Tarbell says. "It just doesn't do to close your mind on anything," is her comment.

Mrs. Lillian S. Dodge draws an annual salary of $100,000 and is scarcely known outside her field, which is the manufacture of cosmetics. She is president of her own company and has offices in New York, Paris, London and Montreal. She financed one of the first experimental airplane flights and has been decorated with the Legion of Honor by the French Government.

One of the attractions for women at the New York World's Fair is an exhibit of five million dollars worth of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and other precious stones in one display.

Hanna Reitsch, German woman aviator, has established a world's record for round-trip glider flying. She flew from Darmstadt to the Wasserkuppe and back, a distance of 155 miles, in a motorless plane.

CLEAN-UP

A library chairman, being told that some incunabula had been found in one of the cupboards, at once ordered the library to be closed, and requested the Medical Officer of Health to have the premises immediately disinfected.

This was a story told by Colonel Vere E. Cotton at the Library Association Conference at Liverpool.

And for the benefit of other people who might have done the same thing, incunabula are books printed early, especially before 1500.

HOUSE AND HOME

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Last week I did a bit of quite unintentional antique-ing and acquired an appealing old blocked-tin teakettle.

In case you are like my husband and can't for the life of you see why I'd want such a thing, I'll tell you first of all that it fits perfectly on the largest element of my range and water heats in no time, thereby saving current. Its shape and the tiny spot of clean tin showing through layers of dirt, as well as its usefulness, were the reasons I bought it.

The old books on "household management" recommend kerosene and red brick dust for the cleaning of tin ware, but I discovered that kerosene and scouring powder applied with the finest steel wool obtainable, does the trick beautifully and my teakettle has the patina of lustrous pewter.

Even the most modern and efficient of kitchens can be planned to fit your own personality. Pine paneling and gingham for the Early American farmhouse type of house and the woman who likes blocked-tin teakettles; metal and glass for the ultra modern and gleaming enamel for the average up-to-date home that doesn't follow a definite period.

You can also put yourself into your kitchen by the choice of your color scheme. Soft, pastel colors if you are the "feminine" type. Strong, vivid colors if you are the vigorous, forceful type, and one clear tint with glass and metal predominating structurally if you are the utterly efficient type of person.

Look out for rose bugs! Go over the bushes every day or so with a can of kerosene in one hand and a heavy glove on the other. Shake the flowers so the insects will fall into the can. This seems to be almost the only way to get rid of these pests because there is probably no spray really effective in destroying the bugs that will not at the same time injure or even kill the roses.

In the wild flower garden keep in mind that the acid soil plants should have the ground around them permanently mulched with conifer needles or rotting oak leaves to maintain the acidity. Early summer is a good time to renew this covering.

Plants that bloom throughout the entire season should be top-dressed occasionally with some good fertilizer to maintain their vigor. Continued flowering puts a heavy strain upon any plant and makes it necessary to increase the food supply in the soil.

The best time to paint a porch floor is in warm weather and after several dry days because the under side of the boards must be thoroughly dry. Obviously, the cracks between the floor boards will be at their widest. Fill them with a good crack filler, selecting a kind that will stand up under all weather conditions. Run linseed oil into cracks too narrow to fill otherwise. Be sure the filler is perfectly dry before painting the floor.

WOULDN'T WORK

Go-ahead Canvasser: "Good morning! I have here a simple device to prevent doors from slamming—"

Irate Housewife: "Not this door, thank you!"

Women's Choice

By Inez Innes

Propaganda has us all convinced that only women are concerned with being attractive to the opposite sex. Whereas anyone who has ever seen a man smooth down his hair before ringing his girl's doorbell ought to realize that men are just as interested in making a good impression as women — only they try harder to appear nonchalant.

So — even though they would never think of asking us what we like — we'll tell them, knowing good and well they'll make use of the information.

We like:

Men who worry a little, but not much, about our comfort.

Men who shave often enough and close enough.

Men who aren't timid about unexpected situations.

Men who make us feel cute. (Men may not like the word, but there is no other way to express the feeling).

Men who don't always let us have our way.

Men who can be counted on in little things — to send us flowers when all the other girls will be wearing them; to notice a new dress; to make us feel that we are lovely looking, when the sun or a cold has wilted us completely.

Men that other girls try to take away from us.

We could very well get along without:

Men who are sissy.

Men who bawl out waiters and taxi-cab drivers.

Men who bore us with windy, oration-like conversations.

Men who have no more to recommend them than that they are "steady and reliable."

The DOCTOR Tells the Story by W.E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

DREAMS

Dreams are the pictures which develop in our brains when reason is asleep. They cause tears and torture and they bring the touch of joy. They cling to one during his waking thoughts and they assume the dimensions of heralds of eternity.

Perhaps dreams are the true interpreters of one's inclinations. They have played important roles in the destinies of individuals and nations. They have been woven into many mythologies, and welded into sad and also beautiful stories.

The Bible repeatedly refers to dreams and various interpretations of them. I am certain that comparatively few people live who do not place more or less credence in these things which develop in their minds when wrapped in sleep.

Perhaps dreams have done more than anything else to make man believe that he was possessed of a spirit, which could leave his body.

Very naturally many superstitions have developed as a result of dreams. It is the popular belief that dreams go by contraries.

For example, to dream of death means that you will get good news; to dream of fire means one will receive money from some unexpected source; dream of a marriage and you will attend a funeral of a friend or relative; dream of bad teeth and misery awaits you; dream of fishing and your luck will be most wonderful. Indeed, books might be written, in fact, have been written, recording what to expect as a result of dreams.

I doubt if any truly scientific work has ever been written by competent observers regarding dreams.

Some authors have announced that if they ate much meat at dinner they had dreams suggesting trouble. Welsh rarebits were certain, according to De Foe, the author, to produce the most horrid dreams imaginable.

Freud, the famous psychoanalyist, laid great importance on dreams. Other psychoanalyists have completely disagreed with him, and hold that it is more than likely that all dreams, instead of having one meaning, are "freighted with thousands of annotations," says Dr. Logan Clendenning.

The church, at one period, approved of the dream miracles of Saints Cosmas and Damian, because to dream of these Holy Men meant recovery to those who were ill.

The early Greeks had dream temples where the afflicted went to be annointed by the priests, and dream they were cured. One man who lost an eye claimed that he dreamed that the empty orbit was filled in his sleep and he awoke with two eyes. Old men went to dream of hair at the Temple of Asklepios and claimed that they awoke with thick crops of hair.

Coral Reefs, Flamingos Cited for Great Beauty

There are on this earth a few things so exquisitely beautiful that to believe in them one must see them, writes Gilbert C. Klingel in the Baltimore Sun. One is the unearthly fairyland of a coral reef seen from undersea. Another is the flamingo.

I shall never forget my first view of these flaming scarlet creatures. It happened in 1929, when I was shipwrecked on the island of Inagua, British West Indies. Our ship had been ground to pieces on a coral reef and we had waded ashore through the surf, our clothes soaked and in tatters, ourselves weary to exhaustion. Almost in mockery the setting sun was tinting the world with refulgent gold.

From high above came a faint honking—such plaintive mournful notes as the wild geese sing on the north wind. We looked up and saw that from the interior of the island was coming a great flock of scarlet flamingo, wings ablaze in the sunlight. Like geese, they were flying too, in V-shaped formation, hundreds of them, guided by a leader. The scarlet of their wings flashed and flared, set in vivid contrast by the velvety black of the wing tips.

The Ottawa Spotlight

Kingdom, and any stories to the contrary are wholly unfounded." At this meeting following the manufacturers' convention at Bigwin, Ontario, the delegates from the Manufacturers' Association explained to the Prime Minister and his associates that they contemplated sending a group of experienced manufacturers to England to study British war munition needs that could be made in Canada and to get orders. The Prime Minister told the delegates that this mission would be helped by the Government. A cable would be at once sent to Mr. Massey, the High Commissioner in London, to see that the manufacturers were introduced to the proper authorities. The technical officials of the Department of National Defence would also lend their assistance. It was pointed out at the same time that contracts would have to be made direct between Canadian manufacturers and the British authorities. The Canadian Government could not act as agents for either the purchasers or the manufacturers. "The British Government," said the Prime Minister, "has been informed officially and in writing that we would welcome such orders, but we have made it clear that Canadian companies must make their contracts direct with the British Government."

ALIEN PROPAGANDA IN CANADA

There is every indication that Government departments are becoming more and more concerned with the spread of subversive propaganda in Canada. During the last session members of Parliament on several occasions drew the attention of the House to the growth and boldness of this propaganda, and have protested against its continuance. In a land of free speech, there is always wide latitude given to the expression of individual opinions and for this reason the forces of the Crown move with greater caution and deliberation in affairs of this kind than in non-democratic countries. During the session the Minister of Justice informed the House that the department, through the R.C.M.P., were keeping close watch on subversive propaganda from all sources. The feeling is growing in Ottawa that the time is becoming ripe for more rigid measures of prevention through various departments including officials at ports of entry where objectionable literature gains access to this country. These customs officials, as well as officials of the Post Office Department, Justice and External Affairs, are all stirred to the urgency of combatting the evil of the spread of literature which aims at the disruption of our political integrity. Most of the propaganda is from Nazi sources, although some is of Communist origin.

While the shadow of world affairs lies across the Capital at Ottawa, the domestic situation is felt by all official circles to hold one very important feature which should promote optimism. That is the crop situation in the West, with all that a bountiful harvest means to the whole economic fabric of Canada, to purchasing power in the West, to railway earnings, to the farm implement and other industries. The prospect of a return of the Province of Saskatchewan to its one time stature as a vast wheat granary is remarked upon with satisfaction.

Chateauguay Valley Hospital For Ormstown, Que.

Tenders for the building of the Barrie Memorial Hospital at Ormstown have been accepted and construction of the Chateaguay Valley medical centre will begin within a short time.

The Montreal construction firm of Walter J. Hunt tendered the bid of $17,000 to renovate and adapt a modern building housing a score of hospital beds with up-to-date operating rooms and other services.

Inspired by the gift of the late Margaret Barrie, who willed $11,000 to the community for a hospital when she died seven years ago, the whole district undertook a campaign to raise the remainder of the needed sum last spring, and the Board of Governors announces that the campaign has passed its $10,000 objective by more than $4,000 in donations and pledges.

Surrounding towns, Huntingdon, Howick, Riverfield, Aubrey, Havelock, St. Chrysostome, Hemmingford, Rockburn, Covey Hill and Franklin Center, aided in the campaign and will benefit from the new community hospital.

Why A Railway Engine Puffs

The puff-puff of a locomotive is familiar to all, but few people seem to know just what causes the noise, according to operating officials of the Canadian National Railways. It is explained that a puff is the noise made by exhaust steam that is let out of the smoke-stack after the steam has pushed the piston along the length of the cylinder. One puff comes at the end of the forward stroke and another at the end of the backward stroke, four puffs to every revolution of the driving wheels.

Pushing the piston back forces out the steam that pushed the piston forward and as this used steam is still under some pressure, the operation of ejecting it through the smoke-stack is accompanied by noise, hence the puff. Engines puff louder when starting because a great deal of steam is admitted to the piston to gain maximum power. As the engine gathers speed "brute" power is not needed and less steam is admitted per piston stroke. The puff-puff then becomes a steady purr.

Manion Replies to Criticism by Herridge on Established Parties

CZECH COMPANY TO ESTABLISH INDUSTRY AND MODEL TOWN IN ONTARIO

CABINET IN WEEKLY SESSION

Ottawa Spotlight — The eyes of Ottawa, like all other capitals, are these days directed to world affairs, which are being watched with the keenest anxiety. A situation with such dire possibilities must of necessity cast its shadow everywhere. At the same time the administration of domestic affairs must go on, and the cabinet at weekly sessions is getting into operation measures passed at the close of the last session. It is expected that the personnel of the new defence purchasing board will soon be announced. There is no intimation whatever as yet who the members will be, but the greatest care is being taken in the selection of this board which will have the duty of making all contracts for equipment and material for the country's defence. The Cabinet is also engaged in making arrangements for the creation of the central mortgage bank, not a light task either, as this measure aims at cutting down mortgages on farms and dwellings to reasonable figures and at reducing interest to more uniform rates. The work of setting up the machinery of appraisal of property in various parts of the country will be one of the heaviest tasks connected with this measure. Up to the present the Cabinet have not decided who will be named on the new penitentiary board, but these appointments are likely soon to be announced.

COMMISSION ON DOMINION PROVINCIAL RELATIONS

From present indications it will be perhaps two or three months before the Commission on Dominion Provincial Relations has its report in completed shape for the Government and Parliament. The commission has been engaged on a task of the greatest scope and intricacy. The briefs and other submissions presented to the members at their sittings in the different centres, the studies carried out by commission experts into all branches of the inquiry, and the sifting out and digesting of this mass of information have taken more time than expected. It was thought some time ago that the report would be ready by July 15th. The time, however, has been advanced, and word is expected shortly of the date at which the report and recommendations will be submitted. When one realizes the importance of the aim of the commission and the amount of work and thought needed to carry out the task efficiently, there is not likely to be much complaint at the added delay. There would be likely much greater complaint if the commission, having carried out its duties conscientiously so far, should scamp its work at the end.

Chlorination of Water Supply Now In View

PURIFYING PLANT WILL ENSURE SAFE WATER

A matter which has been often debated in council here, namely the chlorination of water supplied to the Lachute system, now appears to be settled. It is learned that an ordinance has been issued from the Provincial Ministry of Health calling for purification of the water supply, and that steps for adequate treatment must be completed by August 15th next. The order is resultant from unsatisfactory water samples submitted to the department for examination over a long period. The town received notification that clorination would be necessary, and if the authorities here had reasonable objection to this step they were requested to confer with the Minister on July 3rd to state their case. No objections were raised by the town however on this date, so it is anticipated the details of a chlorination project will be studied without further delay.

At a council meeting held last evening it was decided to hold a meeting for discussion on Wednesday next, July 19, the public being invited to attend and give expression to their views. Messrs. Cyr and Lafreniere, Montreal chlorination experts, will also be asked to appear and give information on the subject.

Adjourned Meeting of Lachute Town Council

An adjourned meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the council chamber last evening, at which were present Mayor MacKimmie, Aldermen Jas. McGibbon, E. Prevost, C. Durocher, K. McOuat, D. Pharand and the secretary-treasurer, G. Filion.

Minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed and accounts of $5,643 were presented.

Valuators of last year were reappointed.

A pool room permit was extended to Armand Rochon.

Damages of flooded land at the waterworks intake, from A. and S. Pollock, came up for discussion again and Mr. A. Kerr was nominated as arbiter for the town.

Mr. Don McRae was leased the passage-way adjoining the town hall, for the sum of $48 per year.

An order from the Provincial Health Department having been received to the effect that chlorination be adopted for the town water supply, the Council decided to call a public meeting for general discussion on Wednesday, July 19th.

J. Hadley Is Elected Mayor, Parish of St. Jerusalem

NOMINATIONS FOR 4 SEATS HELD YESTERDAY

At nominations for mayor and three councillors in the Parish of St. Jerusalem, held from 10 to 12 a.m. Wednesday, Secretary Jas. W. Gall received nomination of John Hadley for the mayoralty, without opposition. Mr. Hadley replaces Mr. J. E. Walker, who has held office for several terms as mayor.

Arthur Pollock received an acclamation to seat No. 1, vacated by the retirement of Councillor John S. Pollock. Roy Morrison was elected by acclamation to seat No. 5 replacing Councillor James Clarke. Simon Wilson was re-elected by acclamation to seat No. 6.

Lawn Social Held Indoors As Weather Man Frowns

St. Andrews E.— On July 6 the proposed lawn social planned by the Women's Guild of the United Church was held indoors owing to the threatening weather.

The program opened in the church hall, with the pastor in the chair. The first item was a vocal duet by Messrs. E. Chambers and Lloyd Lilly, "When Ye Gang Awa', Jamie" (in costume); Miss Ada Allan followed with a reading, from Braille; Mrs. Dorothy Duncan then favored with two charming solos.

Rev. J. A. Mowatt then called upon Rev. John Heyworth for a short address. His impromptu remarks were in a reminiscent vein as this is his seventeenth vacation spent here. The youthful harmonizers, Geraldine, Isabel and Kenneth Morrison, contributed a vocal trio; and this was followed by two songs by Mrs. D. Duncan. The artists responded generously with encores.

Next an intermission was called, when everyone descended to the recreation room to enjoy ice cream, cake, candy and soft drinks. Also the fishpond proved very popular. The air was delightfully cool, which added to the enjoyment of the second part of the program. This consisted of a recitation by Miss Allan (with an encore); and a skit, "Church 'n Everything," which proved very successful despite the eleventh hour preparation by its authoress, Miss Grace B. Wales, and the players, Misses J. Grace and Grace B. Wales, Mrs. C. Brownlee, Messrs. E. Chambers and V. L. Lilly. Hearing that another playlet which had been promised for this occasion had to be omitted owing to the illness of a player, Mrs. Mowatt sent over an S.O.S. call to "young" Grace Wales on Monday, with the above happy result.

One Change in Personnel Of School Boards

Two commissioners of the Lachute Protestant School Board, J. W. Gall and E. K. Wilson, were re-elected for another term at nomination proceedings held last week.

In the Catholic School Commission, J. H. St. Onge was re-elected for another term, and Hector Lamarche was elected commissioner without opposition to fill the seat vacated by J. W. Lefebvre.

Orange Gathering Twelfth of July Well Attended

MEMBERS PARADED WITH PIPERS AND DRUMMERS

The Orange celebration and picnic yesterday, the twelfth of July, was attended by upwards of 2,000 persons, fair weather favoring the occasion. The picnic and gathering were held in the Lachute exhibition grounds, and during the afternoon the Orangemen in regalia and with the banners of their Order, the ladies of the L.O.B.A., and the Orange Young Britons, numbering over 150, paraded through the town to the music of drummers and pipers from the 65th Regiment Black Watch, of Montreal. The various lodges throughout this county were well represented. Inspiring addresses on the ideals and principles of Orangeism were given during the celebration by Rev. E. Orsborn and Rev. W. Tompkins of Lachute, Rev. C. Hardie of Dalesville and Rev. C. Cushing of Arundel. Chairman of the proceedings was the county master, Melvin McGibbon, of Dalesville Lodge. Sports and entertainment were enjoyed during the afternoon. Ed. Barker had charge of the events. Two veteran Orangemen, Dan McIntyre, of Grenville, aged 88, and Henry Trineer, also over 80 years young, marched in the parade. James Gauley preceded the marchers, mounted on a white horse.

4-Year-Old Boy Revived By Artificial Respiration

Working for half an hour Dr. E. P. Kelly, Hawkesbury, on Saturday night saved the life of 4-year-old Maurice Grandmaison, by artificial respiration. The lad had fallen into four feet of water in the Ross Creek and when he failed to come up, cries of some of his playmates sent his father hurrying to the scene, where he pulled the boy out. Dr. Kelly finally succeeded in reviving him.

Double Drowning at Bevan Lake, Near Weir

Afternoon Visitors Met Tragic Death

A double drowning tragedy occurred early Saturday evening at Bevan Lake, between Weir and Arundel, when William J. Babe, a railwayman, of St. Thomas, Ont., and Mrs. Florence Robertson, nurse of the Bell Telephone Company, Montreal, lost their lives. An inquest conducted late that night by Dr. J. H. Mason, coroner, confirmed the deaths as accidental. It was believed Mrs. Robertson lost her life attempting to rescue Mr. Babe, despite the fact she was a poor swimmer.

Mrs. Robertson and Mr. Babe, who was visiting in Montreal, had motored to Bevan Lake to visit friends with Miss Gabrielle Gareau. They had arrived at the lake early in the evening and had decided to go for a swim before dinner.

The three guests had gone swimming with Mrs. Mary Deans while their hostess, Mrs. N. Whimbley, prepared the evening meal. They had been in the water for only a short while when the tragedy occurred. Though both bodies were recovered within 10 minutes, artificial respiration failed to revive them.

Although both Miss Gareau and Mrs. Deans were swimming with the two victims at the time, neither of them could describe exactly what happened. According to Coroner Mason, Mr. Babe had swum out ahead of the women, followed by Mrs. Deans and Miss Gareau. Mrs. Robertson, who was a poor swimmer, had remained close to shore.

After swimming out more than 50 feet from the shore, Mr. Babe turned and started to swim in towards the shallow water. He then sank under the surface.

"It appears," Dr. Mason said, "that Mrs. Robertson, who was near the shore, and probably watching the swimmers, saw Mr. Babe go down and fail to come up, and thinking she would be able to save him, plunged into the deeper water after him."

As soon as Mrs. Deans and Miss Gareau realized that their two companions had disappeared, they called help and started searching for the bodies. Nearby residents, among them being Harry Boyd and his two sons, Gilbert and Walter, succeeded in finding Mrs. Robertson's body first. It was found little more than five minutes after her disappearance in about six feet of water. Mr. Babe's body was recovered a few minutes later, in about 10 feet of water and about 20 feet farther in the lake.

Dr. Reginald Henry, of Arundel, was summoned and artificial respiration was practiced for three hours without results.

Mrs. Robertson was a native of Dorchester, N.B., and a graduate of the Royal Victoria Hospital. She joined the staff of the Bell Telephone Company in Montreal ten years ago, following the death of her husband.

Provincial Officer "Gets a Ticket"

The usual procedure was reversed in an incident last week, when a Lachute man handed a ticket to the provincial police officer who stopped him on the highway.

It was across in Ontario, where Adi Fassio, of the Rex and Capitol Theatres here, was distributing pamphlets to advertise the film, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." On one side of the handbills appeared a big swastika, which aroused suspicions that our local friend was circulating "subversive propaganda" — a matter on which the Federal authorities are frowning severely these days. It was not long before Mr. Fassio was halted by a burly provincial officer, who demanded to see what type of literature he was handing out. As the policeman examined the bills, the official temperature moderated and the pair discussed the film in a friendly way. Mr. Fassio slipped a complimentary ticket to the officer as he continued on his way, and both were "happy about the whole thing."

Aged Man Found Fatally Attacked By Bull

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY

The victim of an enraged bull, John Moore, 77-year-old Mille Isles resident, was found gored and trampled to death early last Thursday morning, July 6th. Discovery of the death was made by a farm helper, who came across the body at 6.30 a.m. in a field near the farm buildings. The bull which had attacked Mr. Moore was always believed to have been a quiet animal.

Coroner Dr. J. H. Mason, of Lachute, investigated and pronounced the death accidental.

The aged victim lived with his sister, Mrs. James Dawson, at Mille Isles. According to a local report Mr. Moore was bringing in the cows from the field. His sister had requested him to wait for someone to accompany him, but he had gone to the pasture alone. Neighbors believed that the bull approached the man when some distance in the field and, Mr. Moore, backing up, had fallen, his head striking a stone. The blow, they believed, had probably been fatal, and the bull had only torn his clothing.

Canadian Resources Bulletin Has Article on Museum

The Canadian Resources Bulletin for July 1st., issued by the Department of Mines and Resources, makes the following mention of the Argenteuil County Museum:

CARILLON MUSEUM RECALLS HISTORIC PAST

Stirring days in Canada's early history are recalled by the Carillon Museum at Carillon, Quebec, which was officially opened on June 24 by Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources. The conversion of the old Carillon Barracks, built about 1830, into a historical museum has been brought about through the efforts of the Historical Society of Argenteuil County with the assistance of the Dominion Government.

The immediate neighborhood of the museum is rich in historical associations. It was here in 1660 that Dollard des Ormeaux and sixteen other Frenchmen made a gallant stand for eight days against eight hundred Iroquois. A rough palisade fort is believed to have existed, and although these valiant defenders were killed to the last man, the colony at Montreal was saved. Carillon was named after Carrion du Fresnoy, an officer of the Carignan regiment, in 1670.

One of the best preserved examples of military architecture of the period of early British rule in the Province of Quebec, the building is a four-storey structure, located at the foot of the Long Sault Rapids on the north bank of the Ottawa River, about seventy-five miles from Ottawa. It was erected by General Forbes, himself a veteran of the Napoleonic and Peninsular wars, for the accommodation of the Royal Engineers, a military unit detailed to this locality for the construction of the Carillon-Grenville Canal. This canal is said to have been built on the advice of the Duke of Wellington during the troubled years that followed upon the war of 1812, and it is still used in the transit of freight betwen Montreal and Ottawa. The archives reveal that the barracks building also saw military occupation during the rebellion of 1837-39.

The most revered traditions of the French and English sections of the population of Argenteuil County are centered around the old Carillon Barracks, and its development as a historical museum provides a lasting memorial to the stirring events with which it has been associated.

Cyclist Is Injured by Hit-and-Run Driver

Walter G. Ross, a 28-year-old Montrealer, while cycling toward Lachute was struck by the door of a truck which swung open as the vehicle passed him some distance west of St. Hermas at 9 o'clock last evening. The cyclist afterward reported he had been hit by a red truck covered with a tarpaulin. The driver did not stop, and the young man, severely injured about the head, was picked up by two motorists, who brought him to Lachute. Treated by Dr. W. F. McMartin, he was later sent to hospital in Hawkesbury for X-ray and medical observation. Traffic Officer H. Jones, of Lachute, was notified and is investigating the accident.

Visitor Impressed, Lachute Has No Parking Problem

"HAD NO IDEA HOW WIDE THIS STREET. . ."

In the July 1st edition of Canadian Countryman appears a favorable reference to the Lachute 1939 Spring Fair, and an interesting impression of this town from an outsider's viewpoint. "Mac's Meanderings," a regular feature in the above journal, gives the following observations:

VERDICT ON SPRING FAIR— "EXCEPTIONALLY WELL MANAGED"

"Not satisfied with visiting one of the Spring Fairs in this part of the country (Toronto) I needs must step out to attend another. Ormstown Fair was last week, and that at Lachute was this week. I had never attended the latter before. . . .

"To get to Lachute we crossed the Interprovincial bridge at Hawkesbury and followed the north shore route towards Montreal. I think Lachute is about 16 miles from the bridge. It is quite a large town about three or four miles, I would say, from the first sizable range of Laurentian Mountains, with the North River flowing through the centre of the town. The situation of the town, and particularly of the fair grounds, is beautiful. The fair itself seems to a casual visitor like myself to be well managed — I would say exceptionally so. But if I were to be asked what impressed me most in a brief visit to Lachute, I think I would say it was the main street.

"I have no idea how wide this street is nor how long. The length is not important, but whoever designed it for width must have had some sort of a prophetic vision of the motor traffic conditions of this period. I would imagine that there would be no parking problem in Lachute for the simple reason that the cars all seem to park in the middle of the main street. From end to end the whole centre of the street is marked off in stalls for cars pointing diagonally towards the centre white line — a row on each side of the centre for the full length of the street. And there is still room for temporary parking along the curb and room on each side of the double-row central parking space for about three cars to drive abreast."

E. C. Roy Is President of Buckingham Lions Club

E. C. Roy was installed to the office of president of the Buckingham Lions Club for 1939-40, at a meeting last week.

Past President G. G. Woodward thanked the club for co-operation and good will during his term of office and welcomed the new president.

Car Dealer Takes Livestock As Trade-In Models

Chatham, June 26 — When most automobile dealers accept a trade-in on a new motor car, they put it on their used car lot. But Leo Wildgen, prominent Chatham dealer, turns his trade-ins out to graze on his farm. He's the only Ontario dealer on record who takes livestock as down payment on new motor cars — and he's been doing it for nineteen years.

Mr. Wildgen is married, has four boys, one girl, 18 head of cattle, 90 hogs, 17 brood sows, 8 horses, a 300-acre farm under cultivation and a well-equipped garage on Wellington Street, with a staff of 12. He has been a General Motors dealer for a number of years. His wide and varied experience enables him to talk the language of farmer and automobile dealer alike.

"Here's how it works out," Mr. Wildgen explained. "A farmer may want to buy a new McLaughlin-Buick or Pontiac, but he has a few head of surplus livestock which he wants to turn into cash first. Instead of having to wait for perhaps six weeks before he can make a deal, he'll come down to me and I'll allow him the value of his livestock as a down payment on the car he wants. As a result, the farmer has sold his livestock and secured his car at the same time."

Horses, according to Mr. Wildgen, have a trade-in value of anywhere from $75 to $175, while cows will bring from $40 to $100.

94 U.S. Teachers Tour Eastern Canada by Bus

Ottawa was visited Sunday afternoon by a large party of school teachers from Southern United States. The party of 94 teachers, which was made up of 91 women and three men gathered from Tennessee, Florida, Virginia, North and South Carolina, arrived in four large buses. The cavalcade also included a baggage truck and a passenger car.

The purpose of the 22 days' tour which left Greenville, N.C., on June 22, is to supplement the teachers' general education. The group entered Canada near Quebec City. After their visit to the Ancient Capital, they called at Montreal Saturday. On Monday they headed from Ottawa for Toronto and the following day re-entered the United States by way of Niagara Falls.

Says Real Canada Now Well Known in England

Pictures of Canada, published in Great Britain during the Royal visit to the Dominion, "convinced a lot of people in Britain that Canada, after all, is not a place of log shacks," said A. B. Wood, Montreal insurance executive. Back from a trip to Britain, he said the real Canada is becoming known there, largely due to the Royal visit.

Word 'Uncle' From Latin 'Uncus,' Meaning a Hook

When we speak of paying a visit to "uncle" we mean we are going to visit the local pawnbroker and "pop" something to raise money. No doubt the pawnbroker has come to be looked upon as an accommodating "uncle" who lends us cash when we are in a tight spot. But that is not how the word "uncle" originated in connection with the local money-lender. It had a different beginning, notes a correspondent in Pearson's London Weekly.

"Uncle" was not used here in any benevolent sense. It comes from the Latin word "uncus" meaning a hook. When articles were deposited with the pawnbroker long ago, a hook was employed to lift them. Many of the pawnbroker's regular customers were students, and they gradually brought the word "uncus" into common speech as a reference to the pawnshop. This degenerated into the modern "uncle."

Incidentally, when lifts were instituted and the hook discontinued, we altered the phrase to "up the spout," spout being the slang term for a lift.

And in case you don't know, the two brass balls over the single one in the pawn-broker's emblem are supposed to represent the odds against regaining your property—two to one against.

The Ottawa Spotlight

ELECTION TALK GROWS

While, as previously intimated, it will be some time before the date of the general election is announced, there are daily further signs of the gathering of the forces of the political parties. A flutter of excitement following the decision of Mr. Herridge to oppose Mr. King in the constituency of Prince Albert, if the combined groups and independents not included in the regular Liberal or Conservative ranks asked him to run in that riding. Recent attacks by Mr. Herridge, leader of the "new democracy" movement, on the two "old" parties, have been met with a sharp rejoinder from Dr. Manion, leader of the Conservatives, at a meeting at Ottawa. He denied the statement made by Mr. Herridge that the Parliament of Canada was not a "free parliament." "We have never had anything else but a free parliament since 1867," said Dr. Manion. The selection of candidates to contest various ridings is keeping the minds of the people alive to that event recurring every four or five years, sometimes oftener, by which the people of Canada select their representatives to the Federal Parliament. It will unquestionably not be very long before the election is held but, as announced a little while ago by the Prime Minister, events in Europe will be carefully watched before a decision of the date is made.

BATA PLANT WILL SOON BE CONSTRUCTED

Work will soon be started on the new plant which the Bata Shoe Company, a large Czechoslovakia firm, will erect at Frankford, Ontario. A principle which will be followed by the Department of Labor and the Department of Immigration is that only where similar labor cannot be supplied by Canadian citizens, will the company be allowed to bring in experts of their own from Czechoslovakia. The company will follow lines which they have already adopted successfully in their native country, in Britain and elsewhere they have been conducting manufacturing operations. They will construct a "model" town, with recreational and community organizations, theatres, schools, etc. The workmen will acquire land and model houses will be built. Apart from key men, that is experts essential to put the company into operation, all workmen employed by the company will be Canadians.

A heavy accumulation of work met the Prime Minister on his return from the Royal tour. He had hoped, he told newspapermen at a recent meeting, that he could have had a rest for a short time after his return from that journey across country, but that hope had not yet been realized. Although Cabinet meets only once a week, each day is fully occupied with state affairs.

$30,000 In Prizes Offered At Ottawa Exhibition

With almost $30,000 offered as premiums and prizes, most of which will go to farmers and stock breeders, Ottawa Exhibition is almost ready with its 1939 show. Dates this year are August 21 to 26 with pure bred entries closing July 29, Junior Agriculture, Poultry, Agriculture and Dairy Entries on August 5; Women's Institutes on August 12 and Handicraft on August 5.

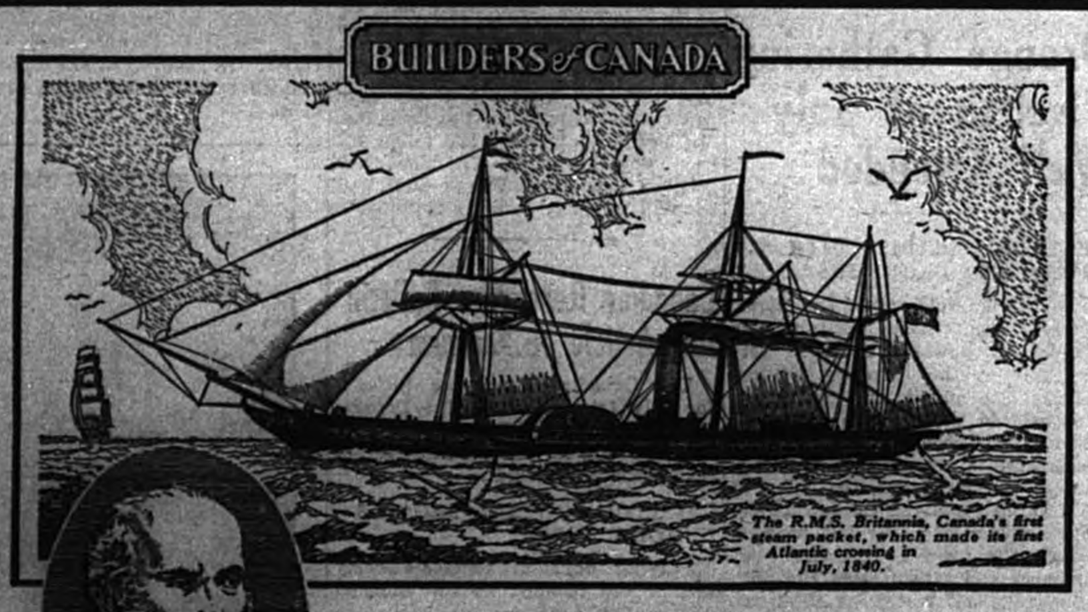

The big prize list is off the press and will be sent to anyone interested who drops a postal card to H. H. McElroy, Exhibition Manager, Journal Building, Ottawa. There are many changes this year, some new classes and more generous prize money in other classes. For instance, $500 has been added to the prize money for horses. There are some interesting new classes for farmers' teams and grade agricultural horses.

Ottawa Exhibition is certain to be more interesting than ever to the visitor outside the city. One new departure is a big show of the latest in farm implements and machinery in the fine exhibition building used for automobiles, now known as the Industrial and Machinery Building. So the best building on the grounds will be turned over to the implement manufacturers, who have promised an outstanding display.

Practically all space in the buildings has been sold. The amusement end of the fair will be brighter than ever, and as a special attraction the United States Navy Band, one of the finest musical organizations in America, and one often heard over the radio, will play two free concerts daily all week. Another new feature will be a huge tent with a special floor for dancing and a well known swing band to play the latest tunes.

BUILDERS of CANADA

The R.M.S. Britannia, Canada's first steam packet, which made its first Atlantic crossing in July, 1840.

Sir Samuel Cunard

Born in Halifax in 1787, Sir Samuel Cunard was the founder of the Cunard Steamship Line and the pioneer of regular ocean steam navigation. His was the dream of "an ocean railway", as he termed it, with steam operated ships crossing with the regularity of railways on land.
This dream was realized exactly 100 years ago—in 1839—with the formation of the "British and North American Mail Steam Packet Company." The next year, R.M.S. "Britannia" arrived in Halifax, July 16th, 1840, completing her maiden voyage.

A Three-Point Program for Health of this Community

That this community is developing signs of public health consciousness in an organized way, is gratifying to the few groups and individuals who have labored thanklessly along these lines for years. Till this stage, the advocates of hygiene and sanitation have met with general apathy, but three projects now being intelligently considered point to a belated realization — that Lachute is backward in precautions for public health and provisions to hospitalize the sick, and that remedial measures are in order.

The county hospital scheme, referred to several times in this newspaper, is now being taken in hand by those best fitted to know its urgency. The Argenteuil Medical Association is studying the details of the project and enlisting the favor of county and municipal authorities, to establish a community hospital in which to treat illnesses and injury, to isolate infectious patients, hold clinics and perform surgical operations. Few communities of this size are without an adequate hospital, and this enterprise needs little argument to commend it to the public mind.

Less obvious to the lay citizen, however, is the urgency of the other measures now in view. Both equally imperative for the preservation of a healthy community (or, to state the case more emphatically, to prevent disastrous consequences among the citizens of this town) — the needed precautions are, firstly, the pasteurization of milk, and secondly, chlorination of our water supply. Through these two sources an alarming variety of diseases may be spread; to mention three — tuberculosis, typhoid and undulant fever. There are cases of all three ailments presently active in this town. . . It is fair to mention that, with dairy cattle of this county under government inspection against bovine tuberculosis, milk is a negligible factor here in the spread of Tb. This guarantee, however, does not eliminate the danger of typhoid, undulant fever and other less prevalent complaints spread through bacteria in milk.

Argenteuil County Health Unit, under its provincial health officer, Dr. E. Lalande, is backed by at least one service club, one men's organization and a growing public opinion in favor of milk pasteurization. When the recommendation for a civic by-law comes before the Council of this town, it is confidently hoped our aldermen will treat the matter with the consideration it deserves, and thus ensure reasonable security to the health of our citizens.

Water chlorination, the third and equally imperative need, although falling similarly upon the responsibility of our council, has been neglected too long and is now made a compulsory measure by order of the Health Department at Quebec. . . . . A somewhat scandalous condition in Lachute's water supply become known a few weeks ago, since which time many householders have felt constrained to boil all the water they use for drinking purposes. It is an appalling condition when citizens are in dread of danger through their most essential daily commodity; and it is opportune that the province has stepped in at this point and forced the issue for purification.

Whether we like it or not, diseases caused from contaminated supplies are now evident in our midst. It is a conclusive argument that plans be adopted, here and now, for milk pasteurization and water purification in this town.

Stop and Consider — At the Water's Edge

More often than not, a chairman will take fifteen valuable minutes to introduce a speaker who "needs no introduction." . . And so, each season, editors reiterate those warnings which are apparently "needless to repeat" — yet which, too often, still remain unheeded.

We summarize here the advice of James W. Danner, lifeguard, whose article, "Drowning Is So Unnecessary," in the Baltimore Sun, appears condensed in the July Reader's Digest. . . .

1. Don't swim far from shore, unaccompanied by a boat. The exhilarating cool water gives you a false sense of power. But this stimulation lets you down suddenly and you are shocked to find all at once that you are too exhausted to return to shore. You could have swum just as far parallel to shore. Incidentally, it's sound advice never to swim alone, even in shallow water.

2. Don't swim until two hours after eating. If you do, the sudden screaming pain of stomach cramps may double you forward in a knot. Often every muscle is paralyzed. You can't move a finger to save yourself.

3. Don't stay in swimming until you are very cold. Muscular cramps often result from exertion when fatigued and chilled. Muscular cramps are less overwhelming than stomach cramps but are more common. They may be very painful, and the affected member may be made entirely useless. But the biggest danger is the blind unreasoning panic into which cramps throw most people.

4. Don't plunge into cold water when exhausted or overheated, especially after playing strenuous games. It is a severe shock to your heart and may induce stomach cramps.

5. Don't try to rescue another person by plunging in yourself, unless you have had life-saving training. At our beach during the last three years 40 bathers, unskilled in lifesaving, attempted to aid drowning persons, were grabbed in strangleholds, and had to be rescued themselves.

Even the best lifeguards seldom make swimming rescues. They use equipment : a boat, buoys, heaving line, surfboard. Anything which will support a person or which may drag him to safety may be used: a log or plank may be pushed out, or an oar or fishing pole extended, or a towel flipped out may be enough to save a life, since many people drown each year within only a few feet — even inches — of safety.

6. Don't fight against a current should you become caught in one. Each year good swimmers are drowned simply because they don't understand this principle. In a stream one should always swim diagonally across the current, with its flow.

7. Don't get panicky if caught in an undertow. The undertow is merely the receding movement of water piled up by wave action on a sloping shore. It won't "suck you down." It will merely carry you out into deep water. Swim only with the crest; relax and rest during the trough, letting it carry you out. The next crest will carry you several feet toward shore again.

Remember this always : Death is at your elbow in the water. And drowning is a horrible death. Don't let anyone tell you it is not. So don't ignore the common-sense rules that prevent it.

HATS . . . . . beavers

When the first colonists of New England began to explore the natural resources of the New World, they found the most valuable thing for export was beaver skins. There were plenty of beavers, they were easy to catch, and their furs brought high prices in England, for the beaver fur turned out to be the very best fur from which to make felt hats.

A good beaver hat would last a lifetime or longer. It would shed water and was much lighter than hats made of rabbit or cheaper furs.

I haven't been able to find out when or by whom the shape of the hats worn by Englishmen was changed from the peaked crown to the flat-topped hat with out-curved sides, but it was some time in the 1700's.

Then a Frenchman, in 1760, invented the silk hat, which is no good at all as a hat except for show and it's a lot heavier than a good felt hat.

But by the early 1800's everybody who had the price was wearing silk hats. No politician's outfit is complete without a silk hat. Every "stuffed shirt" wears one.

COMFORT . . . emancipation

Most of us ordinary people, unless we have to dress in stiff, formal clothes for special occasions, wear much more comfortable attire than we used to. We men haven't yet got our summer clothing down to the few ounces which the ladies wear, but we don't wear such heavy clothes or as many of them as our fathers did.

Men in the South dress for hot weather more sensibly than those in the North though it can and does get as hot in July and August in the North.

Most of us wear ready-made clothes, and I suppose there isn't as much profit for the makers and dealers in cotton goods as in the wool they still try to clothe us with in the summer.

We men have, however, achieved a considerable degree of emancipation by the general adoption of the soft, unstarched shirt with attached collar as proper wear for all but the most formal occasions. We still wear too many folds of cloth around our necks in hot weather, but give us time. We may yet be as free as the girls.

PAJAMAS . . . . nightshirts

I don't know what proportion of men stick to the old-fashioned nightshirt; probably more than one would imagine if he tried to buy one in a store. Pajamas are a very modern innovation for sleeping wear in this country. I never saw or even heard of them until I was in my thirties.

Pajamas, which are pronounced "pyamas" in the Hindu tongue whence we get the name, originated in the hot lands of India, where two light garments tied in the middle with a string, are about all that anyone can stand, even for dress-up.

The English administrators of the Indian government adopted pajamas as semi-formal lounge clothes for strictly "stag" affairs in the hot Indian nights.

I don't know why any man should prefer pajamas to the more comfortable long night shirt, cotton in summer, cotton-flannel or wool in winter. I suspect that a very light percentage of men feel the way I do; uncomfortable in bed with a string tied around the middle. I suspect, in fact, that many men still stick to nightshirts.

An Irishman was visiting in America for the first time. Going along the highway he saw a sign, "Drive slowly. This means you." Stopping in astonishment, Pat exclaimed : "Faith, how did they know I was here ?"

Just Politics

Denton Massey, M.P., says : "The ghastly and shameful neglect of young Canadians from coast-to-coast is the most inexcusable shame of this government at Ottawa." There is neglect and it is shameful, but it comes ill from Mr. Massey as the supporter of a government which made even less effort to help youth. The present federal government has introduced the quite excellent dominion-provincial youth training plan, but it has been of little or no help in Ontario, we understand, as a result of the perversity of the Hepburn government. The Bennett government relied on high tariffs to cure all troubles and the King government has relied on a few trade treaties to cure all troubles, but neither plan has been an outstanding success. We Canadians must work out some scheme for management of our affairs which will give us the efficiency of the dictatorship and retain for us all the liberty of the democracy. The liberty of being on relief is not to be highly cherished. — Newmarket Era

Ten in Cash

Our favorite parson, who long ago told us of the penniless but appreciative bridegroom who, in lieu of cash for the ceremony, offered to fix the rectory gas meter so it wouldn't register, has a new story of the same ilk, the experience of a fellow minister to the souls of a fashionable congregation.

A bright young parishioner, who had been christened and confirmed by the rector, was married and after the ceremony the best man, with customary delicacy, handed the clergyman an envelope. The envelope was found to contain a cheque for $10. This was deposited in the course of a day or so and in the course of another day or so it bounced right back.

"Look here !" said the rector on the first occasion after the honeymoon when it was feasible to buttonhole the bridegroom. "That's not the way to start out in life. You shouldn't get into the habit of issuing cheques if you haven't the money in the bank."

"A cheque ?" asked the groom, wide-eyed. "Let me see it . . . Hey, Canon, look at that signature ! That's the best man's signature. I gave him ten bucks in cash to pay you."

Across the silent borderlands of now and yesterday,
Our memories evoke for us the face,
the touch, the smile —
Of a friend whom we have "loved long since and lost awhile."

GORDON — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Robt. Gordon, who passed away July 14th, 1935.
— Inserted by the family

"Gone but not forgotten."

BRECHIN — In loving memory of a dear aunt, who passed away one year ago, July 14, 1938. — Ever remembered by her niece, Margaret.

The midnight stars are shining
Upon your silent grave,
Beneath it sleeps the one we loved,
The one we could not save.
You left behind some aching hearts
That loved you most sincere,
That never did and never will Forget you, Auntie dear.

THEY GAVE THE ANSWERS

We who are puzzled by the answers given by the wise men of the ages to the perplexing questions about the meaning of life will not be less ignorant when we learn the answers given by the birds and beasts in Robert Clairmont's poem — but we may be ever so much more ready to laugh :

"When did the world begin, and how ?"
I asked a lamb, a goat, a cow.
"What's it all about, and why ?"
I asked a hog as he went by.
"Where will the whole thing end, and when ?"
I asked a duck, a goose, a hen.
And I copied all the answers, too—

Regret

(By Grace Noll Crowell)

These are things that I shall not forget,
When the day's work is done;
The little kindnesses I may have shown
To any one;
The burdens I may have helped to bear
Throughout the day,
For comrades walking with me down the way.

Not one regret that I had done too much,
When there was much to do,
But this I know, when the long hours pass
In swift review,
I shall look back and wish that I had done
Oh, so much more,
When I turn in at evening to my door.

MORE CANADIAN NEWS

For some time I have felt we get too large a proportion of foreign and international news in the C.B.C. broadcasts. The Canadian news is tragedy, or abnormal, or ludicrous. The provinces differ so much and we do not know enough about the other parts of our country. There is interesting normal news to be told and it would help us to be a more united Canada. We got some of the sort of thing I mean over the air during the Royal visit. Did you know there were fifty aeroplanes regularly flying out of Edmonton? Or did you know Saskatchewan had more horses than people? I was so glad to hear the announcer say that the Council Chamber in the Province House at Halifax was considered the most beautiful of any in Canada or possibly in the Empire. I had not known it was considered so. Province House, itself, (and isn't that a beautiful name for a legislative building), is a gem of Georgian architecture. The Legislative Chamber is a most beautiful room and I slipped in several times just to feast my eyes on it. The decorations are not ornate but its simplicity and the perfect proportions of the room are satisfying. There is so much to be known about the rest of Canada. Normal, everyday life should be a part of our news broadcasts.

A MUSIC APPRECIATION HOUR

The general trend in education is to make students want to do things themselves. The idea being, you get much more out of a thing you want to do, rather than being forced into it. There has been an interesting experiment in Glebe Collegiate, Ottawa, this year. Blythe Young, one of the senior students is very much interested in music and felt that there were other students who, given the opportunity, would be interested in hearing good music. So he started a Music Appreciation Hour. It was held every other Tuesday for an hour after four. There was no compulsion and just those interested came. He thought there might possibly be fifteen or so who would be interested. There were as many as seventy and the average attendance was between thirty and forty. There were others interested but could not come on Tuesdays. However, that day was best for most. It was strictly a student affair, although the teacher who directs the band and the orchestra acted as consultant and attended when possible. There were no discipline problems as the boys and girls attended because they wanted to, and it was quiet enough to hear the proverbial pin drop. They listened to the best of concert, operatic and orchestral music. Some of them brought records which they owned, but most of the records were loaned by the dealers in music. Information about the composer and of the particular selection was given. Sometimes there were requests for longer compositions, such as concertos, and these were given on the Tuesday which did not ordinarily have a meeting. Radios are developing a love for music in the younger generation, as they are having an opportunity to hear good music. This idea is worth trying but it should be strictly a student's affair directed by and for, those who love good music and welcome the opportunity to hear it.

VARY THE WORK

One of the problems of holidays is to keep the children occupied. I was going to say "amused," but occupied is the better word. A steady diet of play can become a bore. Every mother has heard the bored, "there is nothing to do." A spot of work for even the small children is a good idea as it not only occupies time, but, leisure after work is always more precious. Few children like to help around the house and I sometimes wonder if mothers are not a little to blame. We give them jobs which are not specially interesting. Really, there is not much thrill in washing and drying dishes or setting the table. Try them out on the other jobs around the house and even if the results are not the best at first, and even if it is more trouble to have them to do it than to do it yourself, let them learn by doing. Vary the work and let them try their hand at different things. Think over the things you give your children to do and if it is always dishes or the table, use your ingenuity and find them something more interesting to do.

TO CHLORINATE WATER

If you are at all doubtful of the water you are using, it is possible to chlorinate it for personal use. Make up a stock solution of chlorine by rubbing a teaspoonful of chloride of lime to a paste with a little cold water in a cup, then fill up the cup with cold water. Dilute this solution with three cups of water. This is called a stock solution, and if kept tightly closed will keep its strength for a week. To sterilize the drinking water, add a teaspoon of this solution to 2 gallons of water and let stand for at least ten minutes before using.

RASPBERRY JELLY

3 quarts raspberries, 1 bottle pectin, 7½ cups sugar.

Crush the berries thoroughly, place in jelly bag and squeeze out the juice. There should be 4 cups of juice. If not enough juice, add water to the pulp and squeeze again. Measure the juice and sugar into a large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over the hottest fire and add pectin, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard exactly ½ minute. Remove from the fire, skim and pour into glasses. Seal with wax or transparent paper seals.

COFFEE CREAM

½ lb. marshmallows, ½ cup hot coffee, ½ pint whipping cream.

Melt the marshmallows with the hot coffee over a gentle heat, stirring constantly. Cool and fold in the cream which has been whipped. Pour into one large or into individual moulds or sherbet dishes and chill until set. Garnish with whipped cream and marachino cherries if desired.

Science Tells Why Lemonade Is Cooling

By Betty Barclay

Frosty glasses of lemonade, garnished with lemon slices and mint! What simpler or better refreshments are available for a summer afternoon or evening? A tray of crisp crackers and an assortment of vegetable snacks completes a garden-fresh menu that's both cool and cooling.

Science now explains that the popularity of lemonade on warm summer days has an excellent basis in the fact that vitamin C, of which it is a generous source, actually mitigates the effects of heat. Only recently scientists at the University of Milan discovered that exposure to high temperature caused a 50 per cent loss of vitamin C from the body tissues—and lowered vitamin C reserves go hand-in-hand with the tired feeling we get when the weather is hot.

That's why lemonade is so refreshing. In fact, if you would keep cool in warm weather, it's a pretty good rule to have one or more drinks every day of lemonade or orange juice, which is another rich source of vitamin C. These citrus fruit beverages are healthful in other ways, too.

To Make Lemonade

For each person served, extract the juice from one lemon. Sweeten to taste with 1 to 3 tablespoons sugar or honey. Stir until this is dissolved. Add 1 cup cold water and ice to chill. Garnish with mint sprigs and slices of lemon, placing a slice of lemon on the rim of each glass.

Lemon Fizz: Make lemonade with carbonated water.

Lemon Sherbet

Another delicious form in which lemons bring coolness to a warm day is Lemon Sherbet. Boil 2 cups sugar and 1 cup water together for 5 minutes. Fold this syrup slowly into 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Add 1 cup lemon juice and 1 cup water. Beat well. Pour into freezing tray and set cold control at fast freezing. Freeze stiff and beat or stir thoroughly. Return to freezing compartment and finish freezing; or freeze in crank-type freezer. (Makes about 1 quart. Serves 6-8).

Birthday

I said my birthdays
And I were through—
But I didn't mean you
Could skip them, too!
I may not count them,
But I still expect
With the usual roses
To be bedecked,
To be greeted with an extra
Special hug,
Five pounds of chocs,
And a Persian rug,
And cautioned to shut
My pretty eyes
While you slip on a bracelet—
Surprise, surprise!
With all these items
I have no kick;
I just want to skip
The arithmetic.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

Miss Verna Simon has compiled a supplementary work book for seventh grade pupils who are studying geography. Educators consider it a practical and interesting presentation of the subject and they have urged her to write books for use in other grades.

The British Government is forming special women's organizations as an adjunct to the Territorial Army, after the system used in 1914-1918.

More than one hundred nurses are assigned to assist the corps of physicians at ten first-aid stations on the grounds of the New York World's Fair.

The average British housewife washes an acre of dirty dishes, a mile of glass and three miles of clothes and scrubs five miles of floors yearly, according to the home service director of a British commercial association.

A 29-year-old ship's captain is Anna Shchetinina, the first woman to achieve this rank in Soviet Russia. She studied at the Vladivostok naval school and began spending her summers at sea at the age of sixteen, first as a "cabin boy," then as a sailor.

The studio of Mrs. Cora Scovil in New York is a bit startling to a visitor who arrives unprepared for what she will see. Everywhere there are nude figures made of plaster, lined up for their finishing touches. They are there to have their eyes painted, hair and eyelashes added, and otherwise made to look like fashionable manikins.

Mrs. Scovil, a widow, has built up her business since 1930, when she had very little money. She originated the patchword posters after the war. Her manikins are lifelike to the point of being almost uncanny. A numerologist told her to change her name from Cora to Vajah and she would become wealthy. She did, and she has.

Home Economics a Part of Education for Life

Quebec Women's Institutes function in co-operation with the School of Household Science at Macdonald College, one of its best working departments being carried on as Home Economics.

While this practical side of homemaking is invaluable as far as it goes, women of the future are going to need more specialized training in Home Economics. Just as special education is needed in all professions, so this is becoming imperative in the care of the home where knowledge, technique and skill are as necessary as they are in engineering, architecture, and the office of the lawyer or the doctor.

The basis of all Home Economics teaching is, of course, health, both physical and mental. This is no matter for hit-or-miss experiments. Of greatest importance to health is the study of foods, balanced meals and food values. Hand-in-hand with this goes sanitation and hygiene, biology, chemistry, physiology and child psychology in relation to home life — all of those factors upon which health depends.

Beauty is distinctively a health factor in the home. This is no longer necessarily the exclusive possession of the rich, for money cannot buy the power of choice of restful, artistic effects, or the knowledge of design, color and arrangement necessary to secure harmonious surroundings in a home.

Careers in Home Economics will be a phase of the future more common than at present, for the demand for trained dietitians for hospitals, hotels, factories, orphanages and public institutions all over the country is on the increase, and there is room for thousands of trained women in this particular sphere of usefulness.

HOUSE AND HOME

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Many a June bride is now a July housekeeper, with housewifely cares heavy or light according to her experience. Marketing, meal planning, cooking and cleaning fill days that were formerly spent on the golf course and tennis court. So in order to accomplish all your housekeeping duties and also have some time for outdoor activities you will have to work out an efficient system.

In the first place, don't dawdle about your work. It's a habit that grows on you and is extremely tiring. Not that you should hurry and rush through tasks under nervous tension but train your hand to move quickly and surely without unnecessary motions. Plan your work and allow yourself a reasonable amount of time for each job.

It's a good idea to plan meals at least three days ahead. That reduces marketing to twice a week and saves a worth while amount of time. Make it a rule never to let yourself be entirely out of any staple article. Re-order supplies at least three days before you will need them.

Now is the time, too, to break yourself of such habits as disorderliness and perpetual tardiness.

I once knew a girl who was the soul of neatness and order after she went into her own home as a bride. But before her marriage she was utterly careless of all her possessions and of other people's time. It's so much easier to put things away when you are through with them than to wait for a regular "clearing-up time." "Order is Heaven's first law," you know, so why not make it the first law of Home.

Here's a recipe for a dessert you can make in the morning and put in the refrigerator until you want it for dinner.

Frozen Ambrosia

Six juicy oranges, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup crushed pineapple, 1 teaspoon granulated gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 cup whipping cream, few grains salt.

Squeeze juice from oranges. There should be about 2 cups. Drain pineapple and combine juice with sugar and orange juice. Soften gelatine in cold water and reduce to liquid over hot water. Stir into fruit juices and pour into freezing tray. Whip cream and add salt and pineapple. Cut and fold into orange mixture.

Don't try to mix well, because you want a marbled effect. Freeze until very firm and cut in slices or squares to serve.

This can be frozen in a crankless freezer. Pack in six parts crushed ice to one part ice cream salt and freeze four hours or longer.

"We have everything on the menu today, sir," the waitress said.

"So I see," the customer said. "How about a clean one?"

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

SANITY IN EATING

Cicero, a wise philosopher, who lived about fifty years before the birth of Christ, said, "Just enough food should be eaten to maintain strength and not enough to overburden it."

Millions of men and women are in cemeteries today, who might have added years to their lives had they observed the simple suggestion of this sage. If people would only stop short of their appetite—eat less than they desire — they would be saved many doctors' bills and much suffering.

Perhaps the most outstanding illustration of this truth is the story of Count Lugi Cornaro, who lived in Italy about the same time that Christopher Columbus was making his now famous voyage.

Born a weakling, he further impaired his vitality by extreme dissipation and by overeating and drinking. At thirty-five years of age he was given up to die, and awaited his summons into the next world.

While meditating upon his past life he developed a strong desire to continue living. This led him to give strict attention to his food, to his conduct and to his personal hygiene. He lived to be more than 95 years of age, and enjoyed every minute of his existence, frequently remarking that he got more of the good things out of life as age descended upon him than he did in his hectic youthful days. At 83 he wrote a book on how to live.

He was a keen hunter, following the hounds on horseback, until a few years before his death. He engaged in numerous occupations and was continually occupied with extensive business affairs. And his great ambition was to impress upon others the fact that they could do just as he had done if they made the proper bargain with themselves to do the right thing — to live temperately.

He never consumed more than twelve ounces of solid food daily, which consisted chiefly of thin soup, bread, eggs, meat or fish. Vegetables he seldom ate because they did not seem to agree with him. But he drank every day a few ounces of wine.

I remember greeting former President Porfiro Diaz, of Mexico, on his 85th birthday. He too was abstemious in both eating and drinking. He told me that that morning he had gone into the mountains on foot and killed two deer — a truly wonderful performance for a man of his years who had the cares of a great country on his shoulders.

WAKE UP AND LIVE!

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

Clear out, by an easy imaginative feat, all the distrusts and timidities, all the fears of looking ridiculous which you may hardly suspect of being treacherous trouble-makers in your life.

You may find that if you can imaginatively capture the state of mind which would be yours if you knew you were going towards a prearranged and inevitable success, the first result will be a tremendous surge of vitality, of freshness.

Those fears, anxieties and apprehensions, you see, were far more than mere negative things. By acting as if they were important, you endowed them with importance, you turned them into realities. They became parasitic growths, existing at the expense of everything that is healthy in you.

While we allow them to sap us, we are allowing the nourishment which should go towards expanding growth to be used for feeding monsters, cherishing the freaks and by-blows of the mind instead of its extraordinary and creative elements.

So that it is not that one is suddenly given wonderful new powers; by ceasing to let fear hold its frustrating away we come into the use of already existing aptitudes which we formerly had no energy to explore.

We discover that we already possess capacities we had not suspected, and the effect, of course, is as though we had just received them. And the rapidity with which these capacities make themselves known when once the aspects are favorable for them is truly somewhat startling.

Next, there is the further experience of seeming to become, in contrast with one's old self, practically tireless. Actual records of working periods introduced by using this formula would strain the credulity of those who have never yet had the experience. And these periods are not followed by any depressed reaction.

There is always so much ahead, and it is so clearly seen, that there is no chance for depression to set in. When the mind is turned back from its onward drive to consider all the tribulations of the past, all the possible mischances which might conceivably happen, it cannot, of course, at the same time explore the road into the future.

But once absolve it of the thankless and unnecessary task, and it rewards you by seeming to fly where before it had stumbled and groped.

"Our thoughts become true in proportion as they successfully exert their go-between function," as William James says. And even more fully and convincingly, the late Hans Vaihinger worked out these conceptions in his book, The Philosophy of "As If." It is certainly plain that in most matters of life each of us must act "as if" this or that fact were a self-evident truth.

For one thing, if we insisted on proving the reality or efficacy or even probability of most of the conceptions on which we base our practical procedures, we should have no time left in which to act.

So, in general, we accept the premises for action which are presented to us on good authority, and use them as proved unless or until our experience causes us to doubt the wisdom of so doing.

In everyday life, then, if you are ineffectual in your daily encounters and unproductive in your work, you are to that extent acting as if you willed to fail. Turn that attitude inside out, consciously decide that your "As If" shall be healthy and vital, shall be aimed towards accomplishment, and you have made success a truth for yourself.

The law of nature is: "Do the thing and you shall have the power; but they who do not do the thing have not the power."

NOTICE

Mr. Henri Fournier hereby gives notice that unless the furniture which is now in his house, belonging to J. McIntosh, is claimed and settlement made within fifteen days on outstanding account, same will be removed from his premises. J13-2p

'Vegetable' Method of Tanning

The "vegetable" method of tanning is the oldest and most important process in the leather industry. This method uses juices from the hemlock, chestnut, oak, spruce, or the hard South American quebracho. Ninety-six per cent of the leather used for soles is cured with these "vegetable" extracts, according to an authority in the Chicago Tribune. In the Nineteenth century, however, the tanning power of chromium salts was discovered as a cheaper process. Chrome tanning reduces the thickness of leather and is therefore undesirable in soles. Uppers are thin slices of the tanned hides and the chrome tanning is highly effective in producing pliable softness. The mineral process is faster, taking about one-quarter of the time of the bark extract process.

Used Verse From Micah

An excerpt from the eighth verse of the sixth chapter of Micah is in the rotunda of the Library of Congress at Washington, D. C. It reads: "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" It is one of the many inscriptions that form part of the decoration of this building.

CATHOLIC SPEAKER

One of the principal speakers at the National Catholic Social Action Congress in Cleveland was Senator Joseph O'Mahoney, who is seen as he told delegates that he would "like to see taxes reduced so that business in its proper sphere — in the production and exchange of commodities — be encouraged."

Elimination of Cartierville 'Bottleneck' Commences

Work on the Reed street highway project to eliminate the Cartierville route "bottleneck" started this week, the contract having been awarded to Duranceau and Duranceau. The road is to be completed by September 1, according to Hon. Anatole Carignan, Quebec Minister of Roads.

Actual start on construction was confirmed by the contracting firm, which is doing the grading, levelling, laying of the concrete base and the concrete finish. The highway is to be 30 feet wide, the contractors said. It will run from the Canadian National Railways tracks to the Cartierville bridge.

Last fall, the laying of the sewers and drainage system was done.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

FORMER BOY SCOUT ONE OF THE QUEEN'S BODYGUARD

One of the four members of the special body-guard for the Queen supplied by the R.C.M.P. at Regina formerly was Scout James Coughlin of the 9th Winnipeg Troop. Appropriately he held the Dominion amateur middle-weight boxing championship for two years.

A CORNSTALK GOOD TURN

A rural good turn carried out by some 60 Windsor, Ont., Scouts was the collecting and burning of old corn stalks infested by the corn borer on an Essex County farm. The work was done under the direction of the county agricultural representative and corn borer inspector. The boys made 30 large fires of the stalks and incidentally used them for roasting hot dogs.

BOY SCOUT BREAKS OUT ROYAL STANDARD AT FAIR PAVILION

An honour highly appreciated by Boy Scouts was the selection by officials of the Dominion Government of a Boy Scout to break out the Royal Standard at the formal opening of the Canadian Pavilion at the World's Fair by His Majesty the King. The duty was assigned to fourteen-year-old Donald Scobie, of the 14th (St. Andrew's) Ottawa Troop, and he was sent to New York on this special mission.

FORMER BRITISH LONG DISTANCE CYCLIST TO VISIT CANADA

The holder of one of Great Britain's long distance cycling records — 217 miles in 24 hours — will be a visitor to Canada in August. He is Sir Percy Everett, Kt., M.A., F.S.S., Deputy Commissioner of Imperial Headquarters of the Boy Scouts Association. Although the record was made in his younger days, during the heyday of bicycling, Sir Percy is still a member of the Cycling Touring Club of Great Britain. He excelled in other sports, and was champion "miler" while at Queen Elizabeth' School, Ipswich and captain of the school cricket eleven. It was his interest in sport and general outdoor activities that first interested Sir Percy in Boy Scouting. He acted as one of "Scoutmaster" Baden-Powell's assistants at the historic first experimental Scout camps on Brownsea Island, Dorset, in 1907.

Upturn in Export Trade Seen as Distinct Sign of Recovery

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED ON THREE FEDERAL BOARDS; OTTAWA MOURNS TWO DISTINGUISHED PARLIAMENTARIANS

Ottawa Spotlight — There have been important developments in the last few days in relation to three pieces of legislation passed last session. Appointments have been made to the Defence Purchasing Board, to the Directorate of the Central Mortgage Bank and to the Salt Fish Board. This means that there will be no delay in getting these organizations into operation.

NEW DEFENCE PURCHASING BOARD

The members of the Defence Purchasing Board are R. C. Vaughan, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, temporary chairman, C. W. Sherman, head of a steel firm of Hamilton, C. E. Gravel, director of several companies, and H. B. Chase, chief official in Canada of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. This board, which will soon set up its office at Ottawa, will make all contracts for supplies and equipment for Canada's National Defence. This refers to all contracts in which more than five thousand dollars is involved. The Department of National Defence will requisition the board for certain armaments; and the board will issue tenders for their supply. There may he occasions when it is considered the calling of tenders is not in the public interest. If contracts are let without tender, it is provided that profits shall not exceed five per cent. If the profits are higher the extra amount is paid to the Government in taxes. In addition to negotiating actual contracts the board will supervise their performance as well as other contracts now being executed. With the National Defence Department the board will examine Canada's requirements and survey the facilities of Canadian factories to supply these needs. As far as possible, Canadian industries and labor will be used in the equipment of Canada's defences. Should the case arise where it is deemed necessary to order something outside, the reasons will be explained by the board to the Minister of Finance.

DIRECTORS OF CENTRAL MORTGAGE BANK

On the 14th of July the new Central Mortgage Bank Act was proclaimed. Before the Act came into operation three directors were appointed to the new bank which will aim at bringing the mortgage structure of the Dominion, in farm and urban districts to a more uniform standard in relation to interest rates and the relative value of mortgages to the value of property they cover. The directors named are P. A. Chester of Winnipeg; F. W. Wegenast, K.C., of Brampton, Ontario, and J. A. Brillant, of Rimouski, Quebec. The executive officers will be the same as those of the Bank of Canada, Graham Towers, the governor, and Donald Gordon, deputy governor, assuming similar functions in the new bank. Dr. W. C. Clark, Deputy Minister of Finance, will also be on the directorate of the Mortgage Bank.

The purposes of the bank are two-fold: to solve the immediate problem of excessive and harassing indebtedness, and to bring about a permanent improvement in mortgage lending practices, through making mortgage credit available on a more flexible and equitable basis. The rates to rule hereafter, through adjustment, on farm mortgages will be five per cent, and on urban mortgages of prescribed size five and a half per cent. Arrears of interest up to two years back are to be written off, and mortgage principals to be adjusted to eighty per cent of appraised values of properties. Lending companies becoming members of the bank will have money available from the bank for lending on mortgages, the rates of interest to be charged on these mortgages being not more than two per cent above the yield on long-term government bonds. The Government and the lending companies will absorb the losses caused by the adjustment of principal and back interest on a fifty-fifty basis.

THE NEW SALT FISH BOARD

The salt fish industry which has suffered through competition of countries which have been subsidizing the export of salt fish, will receive Government assistance through a board of three men just appointed. Meetings of this board have been arranged. The board consists of Dr. D. B. Finn, of Halifax; Mr. Burke, also of Halifax, and Captain William Deal, of Lunenburg; Dr. Finn has served as director of experimental fish stations on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Mr. McInerney is secretary-treasurer of the United Maritime fishermen and Captain Deal commands a fishing vessel actively engaged in the fishing trade. The board, the creation of which was authorized by statute last session, is designed to aid the salt fish trade through seeking new markets, studying processing and marketing methods and is empowered to assist exporters to the extent of 25 per cent of the value of fish exported. Appropriations for this financial aid were made in parliamentary estimates.

Foreign Trade Improves

There has been a promising rise in Canada's export trade during the first half of 1939. Last year the curve was downward, but this year the recovery has been marked and augurs well for the future. The exports of domestic produce in the first six months of this year have reached a total of about 462 million dollars, an increase of 18 per cent over the figure of 391 million for the first half of 1938, but still below the amount for the same period of 1937 when the figure was about 528 million dollars.

Flags on Parliament Hill have been flown at half-mast in tribute to two distinguished pariamentarians, both of whom have held Cabinet portfolios and who have contributed materially to the conduct of Canada's public affairs. These are the late W. G. Ernst, of Lunenburg, formerly Minister of Fisheries in the Bennett regime, and Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State in the present Government. Both men were highly esteemed at the Capital.

SUPPORT FOR MANION

There is no doubt that Dr. Manion commands and deserves, the support of the majority of the Conservative party against the opposition of the reactionaries on the one hand, and Mr. Herridge and his visionary left-wingers on the other.

STORM MOST SEVERE IN BUCKINGHAM SECTION

STRUCK BY LIGHTING, BARN AT THURSO BURNS

In a storm last Thursday night, which appears to have struck more severely around Buckingham than in the Lachute area, lightning destroyed a barn near Thurso containing between 10 and 12 tons of hay and several hay wagons, all of which were burned.

At Angers, six cows were killed when lightning struck a tree under which they were standing. The farmer found the cattle dead next morning.

At Buckingham, two cows were killed and several trees were blown down by the storm.

St. Jerome Protests Establishment of Czech Factory

TOWN LEVIES TAX ON OUTSIDE CONTRACTORS

To protect local contractors, the council of St. Jerome has adopted a by-law whereby contractors from outside, establishing themselves in the town, have to pay a special tax of $150 in addition to the regular contractors' tax of $25. Outside contractors will also have to pay another $12.50 for permission to establish, bringing the total tax to $187.50.

The town council decided to send a letter of protest to the proper authorities against the establishment in this country of a Czecho-Slovak shoe factory.

It was also decided that billboards on city properties will not be tolerated in the future and no permission for the erection of such billboards on city land will be given.

Health League of Canada Issues Summer Warnings

Warning signals have been put up by the Health League of Canada in the hope of reducing the number of preventable deaths of summer vacationists.

First, there is the resumption of the campaign commenced last summer to extend a knowledge of artificial respiration and to impress upon those in charge of supposedly drowned persons to continue efforts, for hours if necessary.

Then, there have been the League's many warnings against the use of raw milk.

In addition, at this season it is pointed out that every care should be taken to ensure the utmost sanitation by the burning of waste, with care lest the fire spread. No waste material should be allowed to reach the waters of spring, river or lake.

Poison ivy should be avoided and summer living quarters screened against flies and mosquitoes. All food, of course, should be screened, and if possible refrigerated.

Diets should be given attention, green vegetables replacing many of the sugars, starches and fats.

Light-colored, loose-fitting clothing should be worn, changes of underwear should be frequent, with the daily use of the bathtub.

Finally, there is the warning that while sunlight supplies the valuable Vitamin D and is known to increase one's power of resisting disease and to promote health generally, there is such a thing as danger from an excess of sunlight. The skin and the eyes should be guarded against too much strong sunlight. Twenty minutes to a half hour is sufficient for most people to expose themselves the first day out in a bathing suit.

Do not drink water from an unknown source without first boiling or chlorinating it. The Department of Health in Ontario and some other provinces supply chlorinating materials for campers on request at a nominal charge.

DOMINION STORE HERE SCENE OF ROBBERY

During Wednesday night or early Thursday morning of last week, the Dominion Store at Lachute was broken into and robbed. Discovery of the theft was made when the staff came to their work Thursday at 8 a.m. It was found that a window under the side entrance to the upstairs premises had been broken and two of the five iron bars removed. From the store a quantity of cigarettes valued at $15 had been taken, also $26 worth of cash change which had been hidden under the counter.

Store officials in Montreal, being notified, come out on Thursday morning and Town Constable A. Gervais was called to investigate. Neighbors had seen or heard nothing of the miscreants, but it is suspected they are of this locality and familiar with the lay-out of the store.

Scout Council, Club Members Visit Tamaracouta Camp Near Mille Isles

ROTARIANS AND LIONS SEE BOYS' SUMMER RESORT

Cambria — On July 12th the Montreal Boy Scout Council made its official visit to Camp Tamaracouta, where 500 Scouts from the Montreal district were completing the last week of the first camping period of the 1939 season. Representatives of the Montreal Rotary Club and the Lions Club accompanied members of the Council.

C. E. C. Rush, camp chief, conducted the visitors on a tour of inspection of the 20 troop camp-sites located on the 350 acres which comprise the camp proper.

Following lunch, which was held in the dining hall capable of seating 550 Scouts and leaders, Robert I. Hendershott, president of the Montreal Scout Association, welcomed the visitors.

Included in the visiting party were: James M. Fraser, T. H. Wardleworth, S. G. Holland, W. Copeland Finley, F. C. Anderson, W. G. E. Elliott, Norman Friedman, A. B. Morris, Gordon C. Robinson, W. W. Haldimand, A. R. Woods, Robert Walker and Leslie R. Thomson.

With the Canadian Authors' Association In Convention at Halifax, N. S.

(Specially contributed to The Watchman)

The Canadian Authors' Association of the Dominion of Canada, several members of which reside in Argenteuil County, held convention in the old historic town of Halifax, Nova Scotia, under the leadership of Mr. Leslie Gordon Barnard, Dominion president, whose short stories and serials are quite familiar to readers of our own Canadian magazines. In this he was assisted by Miss Laura Carten, president of the Halifax branch. . Friendliness and desire to serve seemed to be the slogan of the people of Halifax, who met every train until the last day so that no delegate should arrive unwelcomed.

Halifax boasts of several "first things" in Canada, some of them being — the first printing press; the first newspaper (our old reliable Gazette having had its foundation in that city); the first public garden, and in Old St. Paul's Church of England the first church of British origin built in Canada, its Sunday School being the first Sunday School with a continuous history. . . . Of several of these things Miss Carten spoke with pride in welcoming the delegates to Halifax.

Mr. Barnard in his presidential address appealed to the writers to "keep their pens out of bitter ink," in other words to refrain from bitter attacks on persons and parties.

In his address on "Down the years from '21," John Murray Gibbon, veteran publicity agent for the C.P.R., gave a short list of the books published in 1921 with comments on their popularity. Mr. Gibbon offered an immediate prize of one dollar to the person who could tell him which one of the books published in that year was still a best-seller. There were many guesses but none gave the right answer, and all were surprised to be told by Mr. Gibbon that it was "People's Life of Christ," by Dr. Paterson Smyth. In speaking of publishers, Mr. Gibbon classed those who published only at the expense of the author as "vanity publishers." "The local producer," Mr. Gibbon said, "finds no market for his wares, while the syndicates make about $1,000 per week."

Ste. Therese to Celebrate

Construction of seven arches in Ste. Therese and at the town limits has been started in connection with the celebration on July 30 and 31 of the 150th anniversary of the foundation of the town and parish.

A committee of citizens has prepared an elaborate program, which will include the presentation by the parishioners of new bells for the church.

The program for Sunday, July 30, calls for a solemn High Mass in the morning with an official dinner at noon. In the afternoon there will be a parade in which 35 floats will take part. At 7.30 o'clock there will be the blessing of the new church bells. On Monday, July 31, there will be a special church service for the dead.

"TOURIST ATTRACTION" NOW TRAFFIC HAZARD

Quebec's farm boy will have to unharness his lop-eared mongrel and pack away his dogcart as a result of a new ruling by the Provincial Roads Minister.

The order announced by the Minister, Hon. Anatole Carignan, was that the dogcart, once prized by the farmer for its handiness but lately used only to parade up and down country roads for the benefit of tourists, won't be allowed on the roads any longer.

Mr. Carignan said the carts by their numbers had become a traffic nuisance and were not the kind of tourist attraction that Quebec wants.

Once upon a time, when the carts were used for farm chores, tourists saw them speeding about big farms or clattering along tiny lanes laden with milk cans.

Then miles of travel through Quebec sometimes brought only a glimpse or two of the little, two-wheeled rigs, galloping dog and barefoot boy pelting along to keep pace.

$1,200 LOSS BY THEFT, STORE AT CALUMET

"OUTSIDE TALENT" SUSPECTED IN WHOLESALE CLEAN-UP

The store of H. G. Brannan, Calumet merchant, was robbed of $1,200 worth of drygoods stock during Saturday night. The goods included a large quantity of clothing, and although rain had obliterated the tracks it was certain a vehicle had been been brought to the scene and the stolen merchandise loaded into it. Provincial Officer Anderson, of Lachute, was notified and is investigating.

A neighbor, passing at 7.30 o'clock Sunday morning, first noticed the front door of the store had been broken into. Mrs. Brannan was immediately notified, and telephoned Mr. Brannan, who was himself absent in Pembroke. Neighbors, on being questioned, said they had seen no strangers in the vicinity, nor had they heard any disturbance during the night.

Queen Hears of Namesake Born to Local Couple, Day of Royal Visit

GRACIOUS WISHES EXPRESSED BY LADY-IN-WAITING

Rev. and Mrs. Chas. Hardie, of Dalesville, were delightedly surprised to learn recently that the birth of their infant daughter on the day of the Royal visit to Montreal — and whom they have named Elizabeth in honor of that occasion — has become known personally to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth. Quite without the knowledge of Mr. and Mrs. Hardie, a friend communicated this news to Lady Mary Nunburnholme, one of the Queen's ladies-in-waiting, and a personal letter, which we quote below, has been received from Lady Nunburnholme. The letter reads as follows:

"I am sorry not to have answered your letter before, but I feel sure you will understand we have had so much to do and letter writing in the train was very difficult.

"The Queen was very much interested to hear of Mrs. Hardie's good fortune, and that her daughter has been named Elizabeth. I hope both mother and child are doing well.

"Thank you very much for writing me this piece of very interesting information.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) Mary Nunburnholme."

Barber Is Fined $1

Lorenzo Lapointe, a St. Janvier barber, was found guilty by District Magistrate D. Lalande of having failed to charge the rates fixed by law for his trade. He was sentenced to a fine of one dollar and costs or three days in jail.

The offence with which Lapointe was charged occurred on January 10, 1939. According to evidence Lapointe did not keep a barber shop, but did the work at his home, and fixed no price, taking whatever was offered him. Two witnesses swore that they had haircuts in Lapointe's home and each had given him fifteen cents, with which the barber had been satisfied.

Resort in Laurentians Is Planned by Austrians

Plans to establish a summer and winter sports centre in the Laurentian mountains, northwest of Montreal, are under way, it was stated in Ottawa this week.

The Immigration Department said a small number of key men from Austria, now part of Germany, have been granted permission to enter Canada. The project will be financed by European capital.

The centre, patterned along the lines of Swiss and Austrian mountain resorts, will provide employment for Canadian workers, it was stated. Exact location in the Laurentians for the centre could not be learned.

BE A GOOD CITIZEN
(Gananoque Reporter)

Life is too short to be wasted in saying mean things about other people. Try to take a generous view of other people's actions; even if you can't bring yourself to think kindly, at least control your tongue. When you analyze the subject you find that it is nearly all a matter of habit which grows on you if you're not careful, with the passage of the years. You get the habit of making spiteful remarks without realizing how much harm it does you and how little it affects the other fellow. A loose tongue is a dangerous weapon anywhere, anytime. Be careful of yours that it may not bring sorrow and ruin upon your head in the end. Watch out for unkind remarks, for such remarks infallibly return. Nothing is gained by knocking. Be friendly!

Contests for Councillors and One Mayoral Seat in Municipalities

Morin Heights — Keen interest was taken in the municipal election held here on Monday, July 17th, to elect the mayor and three councillors. This was the first election held since an action was taken last year to disqualify the mayor.

The result of the voting shows that the mayor and his whole slate was elected, the results being as follows:

Councillor, Seat No. 4 — J. D. Davis, acclamation.

Councillor, Seat No. 2 — Oscar Forget, acclamation.

Certain community issues came forward in the Morin election, and a heated enthusiasm was apparent in many quarters, but the decisive result is seen as a demonstration of confidence in the policies of Mayor Seale and his supporters.

In Grenville and Augmentation, Mayor Wm. Beauchamp was re-elected by acclamation at nomination proceedings conducted by the municipal secretary, H. G. Brannan. In an election held Monday for three councillors the following were returned:

Joseph Arthurs, 125; John B. Deslauriers, 122; John A. Prophet, 120.

Defeated — Thos. Garland, 58; Ed. A. St. Amant, 30.

Councillor, Seat No. 1 — Noel Brunet, 126; Robert Gain, 116.

Water Chlorination To Be Submitted To Referendum

OPPOSITION RAISED AT MEETING LAST EVENING

Notwithstanding the fact that an order has been issued from the Department of Health in Montreal calling for the chlorination of Lachute's water supply, setting the 1st of September as the latest date for its installation, the town council at last evening's adjourned session decided to call a public meeting of ratepayers and tenants, at which the representatives of the Health Department would be asked to meet the people of the town in a frank discussion of its necessity.

In order to relieve the council of responsibility it was further decided to hold a referendum on July 28th, when the citizens will be given the opportunity of expressing themselves as to whether they want chlorination or not.

Mr. Arthur McOuat, ex-Mayors C. Tremblay and Dr. J. H. Mason spoke strongly against chlorination, the former referring to a more grave issue, the pollution of the North River through sewage entries. Mr. Tremblay read former letters from Mr. Lafrenière, in which he had stated that if the town took its water from Lake Sir John no chlorination would be necessary.

Dr. Mason gave a frank opinion that Lachute had as good water supply as any town in the province and no cases of typhoid in his 33 years could be attributed to the water.

Mr. L. W. Armstrong, of the County Health Unit, said tests and analyses of the town water were such as to demand chlorination for the public safety.

Dr. W. F. McMartin, supported by Drs. Mason and Lafleur, sought support for the county hospital in which it is proposed there will be 30 beds. The Council agreed to send all their indigent cases and give the Medical Association their moral support in this project. The Mayor was named to accompany the medical committee in conference with the County Council.

WHEN KING OF THE BELGIANS OPENED LIEGE EXHIBITION

With Canadian Authors in Convention at Halifax

Professor Allison, of Winnipeg, following Mr. Gibbon, spoke chiefly of the authors of those days, stressing E. Myers as one of the great writers of that age. Dr. Allison claimed that the West would have been lost to the British Crown but for Myers' writings and continuous bringing of the West to their attention.

Sir Charles Roberts also paid tribute to Myers, calling him "The Father of Canadian Literature," and one of the most important men in our history.

Mr. Wilfrid Eggleston, of Ottawa, well known to readers of The Watchman for his weekly articles on parliamentary doings, gave a wonderfully interesting address on free lance writing, mentioning many things that were illuminating to the free lance writer. . . At the close of this discourse, the president, Mr. L. G. Barnard, lauded Mr. Eggleston's address as "informing, entertaining and challenging."

Mr. Young read a lengthy paper from Mr. Marsh, of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, that was of great interest, stressing the fact that while written articles were meant for the eye, spoken articles were addressed to the ear, and writers sending them to the C.B.C. (who were in the market at all times for good material), should remember this fact. Poetry, also being a vital, living thing, should have dramatic appeal for radio production.

Other interesting speakers were Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott, whose beautiful poem of farewell to Their Majesties appeared recently in newspapers all over Canada; Prof. Martin, of King's College, N.S.; Miss Jessie Beattie, of Galt, Ont.; Mrs. Mary Weekes, of Regina; Sister Maura, of Nova Scotia, whose poems appear in the Montreal Star's poetry corner from time to time; Dr. V. B. Rhodenizer, of Acadia University; Miss E. Nutt, president of the Art School of Halifax; Miss J. O'Conner, past president, Nova Scotia Branch; Mr. H. Peirs, president-elect; and Judge E. F. Surveyer, of Montreal. Mr. Hugh S. Eayrs' address, read in his absence, entitled "Should Publishers Be Shot!" was exceedingly entertaining.

Mr. John Murray Gibbon was presented with the medal won by him and donated by His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir as a literary award, and Mrs. Madge MacBeth, of Ottawa, was elected Dominion president of Canadian Authors for the next two years, the usual term of office.

During their stay in Halifax the authors were entertained to dinner by the province and welcomed by Premier A. McDonald; by the City of Halifax and welcomed by Mayor Mitchell, who very wittily said in reference to a thunderstorm the first afternoon "Why, the very heavens applauded your coming"; by Senator Denis at Green Acres, a beautiful spot on the border of one of the Waverly Lakes, where the authors were conveyed in cars driven by Halifax friends and also were given a boat ride around the expansive and beautiful Halifax harbor, with someone pointing out places of interest as we passed. A drive to Peggy's Cove with a picnic supper on the rocks within the shadow of the lighthouse, was also enjoyed; porpoises could be seen in sportive mood off the rocky coast. The final day was given over entirely to a drive to Windsor, Grand Pré and Wolfville. The first stop was at Haliburton House, Windsor, where Judge Halburton, the author of "Sam Slick" and other humorous tales, once lived. The supposedly ghost-haunted grounds are being renovated, also the house, by the government, who have taken it over and are hoping to get back most of the furniture it once contained and to make of it a museum of interest. The Canadian Authors were the first party to have been welcomed there since it had become government property. The welcome was given by H. S. McMillan, Minister of Highways, also by Mayor Lohnes. Halifax seems to have become museum-conscious, as we were informed by the guide on our tour of the citidal that this, too, was to be renovated and used as a museum to house articles of interest in connection with the army.

At Grande Pré, too, we found in the Memorial Hall, built on the site of the old church destroyed when the Acadians were expelled, a museum of great interest. As we wandered about the grounds noting the statue of Evangeline, who in real life was Emmeline Bellefontaine; Evangeline's well; the markings which told us that this had been the old priest's house; the place where Col. Winslow's army had encamped—one of the lady members of the party was heard to exclaim, "Why, I would have been mad if I had died without seeing all this."

At Wolfville the party was entertained to tea by the I.O.D.E. in the library of Acadia College, before proceeding to "The Ridge" to gaze down in delight on the beautiful, fertile Gaspereau Valley, from its slopes dotted here and there with fragrant fern, then back to Halifax, where goodbyes must be said to old friends of other conventions and new ones of this one, with the words of one of Halifax's oldest C.A. members ringing in our ears :

"When from troublous care you would relax,
Come back, dear friends, come back to Halifax."

Youth Fatally Shot While Removing Rifle from Car

Lorenzo Lajeunesse, 19, of Rivière Desert, near Buckingham, was fatally shot when he accidentally discharged a rifle by pulling it muzzle first from an automobile.

The heavy bullet shattered a cigarette lighter as it entered the youth's abdomen, and his father, Hormisdas Lajeunesse, was cut about the face and arms by fragments of the lighter. Lorenzo died almost instantly. Dr. T. Lachapelle, the coroner, decided an inquest was unnecessary.

Lorenzo and a friend, L. Charron, had just returned from shooting deer destroying the Lajeunesse grain crops. The youth stepped from the car to tell his family of having shot one of the marauding deer and turned to drag the rifle from the rear seat. The trigger caught and discharged the weapon into his side, the bullet fracturing his spine.

The local game warden had issued the youth a special permit to shoot the deer, in an effort to scare other deer away from growing grain crops.

Those Who Make Errors

Tired of being criticized about some trifling errors in his paper a fellow editor once wrote : "We'd be pleased to find a merchant or clerk who never made a mistake in putting up an order, a lawyer who never lost a case through his own errors, a delivery man who never left a parcel at the wrong house, a radio announcer who never misprounounced a word, a singer who never struck a false note, a doctor who never made a mistake, a post office employee who never put mail in the wrong box, a woman who never forgot to put salt in when she was cooking, or to put tea in the teapot before putting in the water. Bring in some of your paragons who find it so easy to criticize us. We want to see if they're human. —Tara Leader

St. Columban Parish Holds Annual Sports Day

DEATH ON THE HIGHWAY

As the vacation season reaches full swing the annual slaughter of men and women on the highways begins to climb toward its peak.

There are a couple of million more cars on the continent this year than last year, and greater incentives to motor travel in the attraction of the two World's Fairs and tourist facilities in the U.S. and Canada. It will be, therefore, something like a miracle if the highway death toll of 1939 drops below that of 1938.

Everybody concerned with the problem of how to reduce highway deaths seems to be agreed that there are three major causes for the annual holocaust. The first of these is whiskey, the second is a sort of insanity which possesses even ordinary sane men once they get behind the steering wheel and impels them to try to pass the driver ahead, whether there is room to pass or not. The third, and greatest source of accidents in this particular section, is the roads themselves.

There may be no such thing as a foolproof road, but some of the European countries have built highways which come close to being safe for any driver at any speed. It will take a long time and a lot of money to criss-cross this continent with wide, smooth highways separated into traffic lanes, with no side roads entering on the same level and no grade crossings of other roads or railroads, all well lighted and efficiently patrolled. . . Until such time motorists must recognize the deficiencies and exercise unceasing care.

NEGLECTING TOURIST OPPORTUNITIES

Quebec is lagging far behind in the race for that most lucrative business — the tourist traffic.

Recent visits to Ontario and the Maine Coast have convinced the Leader-Mail editor that this province is losing out badly in this tourist traffic and that one of the principal reasons is that we are getting a well-deserved reputation for bad roads and hazardous highways, made dangerous by deep ditches and unlighted vehicles.

Whether rightly or wrongly, American tourists are getting the idea that Quebec does not want them.

While the Government has announced an extensive program of road construction, the fact that this work will be delayed as long as possible shows that the desired results are votes and not tourists. —Granby Leader-Mail

VANCOUVER AND LONDON

"Were you, my Lord Mayor, to find yourself in the City Hall of Vancouver, you would see there on the coast of the Pacific Ocean, some 6,000 miles from this Guildhall, an exact replica of the mace which in this old City of London is the symbol of your authority. The sight would stir the imagination of any man who holds your high and ancient office. So it was with me."

— Extract from the King's speech at the Guildhall, London.

DOG ENTITLED TO ONE BITE

The State of New York has refused to pass a law asked for by the post office authorities, providing that a postman if bitten by a dog in the course of his duties could collect damages from the dog's owner.

Postmen have to go into people's yards, at least as far as the door, unless there is a mailbox outside the gate. It is a well understood principle of law that a trespasser — someone who goes on another person's property without permission — must take his own risk of being bitten by a dog.

But it hardly seems fair to compel the servants of the people, going their rounds to deliver the mail, to assume that risk.

To be sure, there is a remedy against a dog known to be vicious. After he has bitten two or three people a postman or anyone else can bring an action for damages if a dog of known bad character bites him.

But the argument which prevailed in the New York Legislature was that under the old Common Law of England, which is more or less the fundamental law of every American state except Louisiana, "every dog is entitled to one bite." So the Legislature, with more sympathy for dogs than mail carriers, voted down the proposed law.

We like dogs, as most folks like dogs. We don't like dogs that bite, especially when they bite the mail man.

If there were some way whereby a dog could be taught to discriminate between the postman and the tax collector, we would be in favor of giving the dog as many free bites as he wanted at the latter functionary. But not at postmen.

IDLE DOLLARS ARE WORTHLESS

Idle dollars do not employ labor or provide markets, and it is, therefore, a serious concern of everybody if private capital, because of uncertainty or fear, seeks refuge in unproductive safety. That is what continues to be the case despite government "pump priming" and spending.

The supposition is that as a result of uncertainty as to investment, capital has become wary. If uncertainty as to investment has had its effect, confidence in good investment will bring it back.

Business has been badly muddled during the past spring because of the lingering war clouds. Industry has lagged even more than should be expected, and further delay in timing the business return is anticipated.

Given a go-signal, Canadian industry could initiate a rather rapid business recovery, but fear and uncertainty cloud the outlook. To remove these factors is a major objective to which every agency, public and private, should direct its attention and effort. —Renfrew Mercury

SULFANILAMIDE . . panacea

That's a new drug of which everybody will hear more and more. It is the new drug which comes nearer than any other yet discovered to being the panacea for which medical science has sought for centuries.

"Panacea" means, literally, something which cures all diseases. Sulfanilamide doesn't do that, but it has cured more different kinds of diseases than any medicine previously known.

It literally kills disease germs by smothering them to death. Certain types of germs, when they invade the human body, produce a chemical known as hydrogen peroxide. Without that chemical the germs die, instead of multiplying and causing disease.

Sulfanilamide acts upon substances in the blood-stream in such a way as to prevent the germs from extracting the oxygen necessary for them to produce the peroxide. Result, the germs die and the patient recovers.

So many reports by physicians all over the world of almost miraculous cures of diseases formerly practically incurable or nearly always fatal, have been made about this new drug, that doctors everywhere are beginning to use it with confidence that it will save lives that otherwise would have been lost.

POLIOMYELITIS . . paralysis

That is the name of one disease for which no certain cure has been found yet. Its common name is infantile paralysis. Most of its victims catch it when they are children, but President Roosevelt was attacked by it when he was 41 years old.

Now another famous man has been found to be a victim of this same dreaded disease. Lou Gehrig, the "Iron Man" of baseball, whose record of 2,130 consecutive games, in which he batted in more than 2,000 runs, 500 of them homers, has never been equalled, found himself unable to play his old game at the beginning of this season.

For two years Gehrig had been complaining of pain and weakness in his arms. A week or two ago the doctors told him he had chronic poliomyelitis and could never play again.

AUTOGIRO . . . . . safety

When Juan de Cierva, the Spanish inventor, brought out his "autogiro" ten years ago, it looked to many people like the answer to the problem of flying for everybody. With its wings arranged so they look like a horizontal windmill, it can rise or land in a space little larger than an ordinary back yard; it is practically foolproof in operation and if the engine stops it doesn't crash.

The main reason the autogiro hasn't come into wider use is that it doesn't fly fast enough for most people. Ninety miles an hour is about its limit, and people want to travel about 150 or faster when they go up in the air. Besides, its "pay load" isn't big enough.

Now the autogiro is getting its first real commercial test. On July 6 the U.S. Post Office Department began flying mail across the Delaware River, between the roof of the Camden, N.J., Post Office and the Philadelphia Post Office roof.

If this plan works successfully, Uncle Sam plans to use autogiros between many other mail points. Maybe the post offices of the World of Tomorrow will all be built with flat roofs for the flying postmen to land on.

UNCERTAINTY . . predictions

What's going to happen in the stock market or the next election? Plenty of prophets will tell you, but will they tell you correctly? A couple of Harvard University investigators have been looking into this matter of predicting the future, by getting a large number of people to predict their own future actions and then checking up to see if they were right.

If you can't tell for sure what you are going to do tomorrow or next Sunday or a week from Tuesday, how can you tell what anybody is going to do some time in the future? The people whose predictions were checked with the occurrences were practically all wrong. Women were further wrong in their predictions of their own behavior than men were.

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago

July, 1889

Messrs. Brisson and Vallee have launched the first steamboat ever built in Lachute. It is a yacht fitted with a 10 h.p. boiler and engine and will run eight miles per hour. It is the intention of the owners to make regular trips to St. Jerome.

Our readers will regret to learn that through business troubles Mr. A. Boa has been obliged to make an official abandonment of his property for the benefit of his creditors, at the instance of Frotheringham and Workman, Montreal.

At a meeting of the directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society held in St. Andrews last Saturday, it was decided to hold the annual exhibition in Lachute. The president stated he had taken advice as to the ability of the directors to establish Lachute as the permanent place for holding exhibitions when the buildings were owned by a company.

In a competition for the medal offered by Mr. Grimes to the Gun Club, the victor was Mr. Jousse.

Geo. Morrison, Robt. Morrison and John Hay have been appointed by the Agricultural Society to award prizes for best crops in the county.

25 Years Ago

July, 1914

1. T. Gray & Co., $35,000.
2. Jno. Seers and L. S. Cunningham, $42,700 per mile for 3-inch granite with rocmac finish, or $50,400 for 4-inch.
3. Lafleur and Berniquer, $8,000 per mile for water macadam, and $10,000 per mile for granite, and top finish of tarvia $2,850 extra.
4. Jackson Bros., for $39,810, also one for water macadam at $28,514.
5. Salmon Bros., $45,482.
6. Plamondon, $10,600 for water bound granite, or $13,700 bituminous bound macadam.
7. Gall & McDonald, $11,799 per mile.
8. Charbonneau, $34,980 rocmac finish.
9. Blais & Gagnon $9,350 for water macadam and $12,350 for tarvia.

On motion of Councillors Scott, seconded by Councillor Lefebvre, the contract was awarded to Messrs. Lafleur & Berniquer.

Election of School Commissioners for the Parish of St. Jerusalem was held on Monday, when Thos. Pollock, of Hill Head, and R. Muir, of Upper Lachute, were appointed.

Night Scene at New York World's Fair

This striking night view of the New York World's Fair is the scene that greets many visitors as they enter the grounds from the huge north entrance, capable of handling as many as 40,000 persons each hour. In the foreground is the Johns-Manville building, devoted to home building, modernization, and decoration, and featuring a complete "laboratory" of new buildingmaterials and new ideas on home planning and construction. This building is the World's Fair headquarters for the Cottingham Supply Company, Lachute, and other Johns-Manville dealers.

Local Firm Describes Rare Attraction, Shelter Area At World's Fair

BUILDING SUPPLY DEALER HERE TELLS OF ATTRACTIVE LAY-OUT IN EXHIBITS

Anyone who dreams of owning a new home, or who wants ideas for improving his present home, has a thrilling experience waiting for him in the Shelter Area of the New York World's Fair, according to W. M. Cottingham, of the Cottingham Supply Company here. The five acres of exhibits in this part of the Fair are filled with new ideas for better living and give numerous suggestions on how to save money in home building and remodeling.

"No one," Mr. Cottingham says, "will be able to leave the Shelter Area without learning at least one new idea on how upkeep costs in his home can be lowered, and one new idea that will make for better family living — whether it be a new way to arrange furniture, or a new way in which to build and finance a new home.

In the Johns-Manville building — one of the leading features of the Shelter Area — visitors see an "avenue" of eight Guildway homes in attractive scale-model form, and learn about the new method for buying homes, the Guildway plan, that makes it almost as simple to buy a new house as to purchase an automobile.

Designed by outstanding architects, these Guildway homes carry "price tags" which enable the prospective home-owner to buy his home as a complete "package" with price known in advance.

Dramatic photo-murals and displays in the J-M exhibit show how this has been made possible on a large scale through the formation of local housing guilds — similar to the Cottingham Housing Guild here in Lachute. Each Guild represents the leading architects, contractors, financing agencies, realtors and material dealers in a community.

With the various branches of the building activity co-ordinated in this way, Mr. Cottingham explains, local housing guilds are able to place a single all-inclusive "price tag" on each of the Guildway homes shown at the New York World's Fair — as well as on other homes designed for local needs — and thereby enable prospective home-owners to purchase in one single transaction with low monthly payments under the NHA plan.

To show how homes can be modernized — attic space turned into extra bedrooms or studies, kitchens and bathrooms made more modern, and basements turned into attractive recreation rooms — Johns-Manville has included in its exhibit a series of rooms which demonstrate the attractive wall and ceiling treatments possible with the modern materials now available. Virtually every nook and cranny of the average home is explored in this section of the exhibit.

Mr. Cottingham adds that a special hall has been set aside in the building for the use of J-M dealers when they visit the Fair. In addition, a booth has been set up to give special attention to visitors desiring information on the Guildway homes, or the building materials and remodeling ideas schown in the exhibit.

In "Tomorrow Town," another attraction of the Fair's Shelter Area, visitors will see an actual village of 15 homes demonstrating the most modern building materials and equipment, and the latest in home planning and design. Representative of the homes shown in the village, according to Mr. Cottingham, is the "Triple Insulated Home No. 15," which embodies the most recent developments for protection against fire, weather and wear, and yet is built of materials — such as asbestos shingles, rock wool insulation and steeltex base for plaster — that are readily available to all home buyers here.

Wear Bones of Deceased Relatives in Their Hair

It's the men, not women, who wear hairpins in Papua, New Guinea, an expedition to the island reveals. What's more, males of inland tribes insist on using bones of dead relatives to fashion the ornaments, which are worn over the ears, anchored in thick hair, states a correspondent in the Washington Post.

Use of a bone is not so unusual in pins. These implements have been made from anything that was available. It's not improbable that the very first pin—devised many thousands of years ago—was nothing more than a convenient thorn picked off the nearest branch.

But when men started making them of metal, they really went to town. Pins unearthed in ancient Egyptian tombs are made of gold and have elaborately carved heads. Now so common as to be rarely thought of, pins once were a luxury for only the rich. Poor people had to make out with slivers of wood.

Inventions by Alexander Bell

Before he had reached the age of 17, Alexander Graham Bell had devised a method for removing the husks from wheat. Among his more important inventions may be mentioned the harmonic multiple telegraph, the fundamental method that underlies the electric transmission of speech in any form in any part of the world, the magneto-electric speaking telephone, the photo-phone for transmitting speech and other sounds to a distance by means of a beam of light, an induction-balance with magneto-electric telephone for painlessly locating bullets or other metallic masses lodged in the human body, telephone probe to determine the position and depth of metallic masses in the body, the spectrophone for determining the range of audibility of different substances in the spectrum, tetrahedral kites and kite structures. Bell was joint inventor of the graphophone and flat disc records for recording and reproducing speech, music and other sounds, and also joint inventor in a number of improvements designed to promote aerial locomotion in connection with the Aerial Experiment association (1903-08).

In addition, a clown or a piper will be engaged for the entertainment of the younger element.

There will be no charge for admission for children, but adults, other than those employed by C-I-L or the Canadian Safety Fuse Company, will be admitted on payment of 25 cents.

Meals, candies, soft drinks, etc., will be obtainable on the grounds, and there will be a wide variety of games of skill for those so interested. Everyone is welcome and an interesting day is assured for those who attend.

Defects in Southern Pine

Most commonly recognized defects and blemishes that may occur in Southern pine are the following: Checks, decay, holes, imperfect manufacture, knots, pitch, pitch pockets, pitch streaks, pith, shakes, splits, stain or discoloration, wane and warp. Naturally the better grade of southern pine, the freer it is from defects or blemishes. The decay is defined as disintegration of the wood substance due to the action of wood destroying fungi. The words dote and rot mean the same as decay.

Monastery Depends on Spring

St. Anthony's monastery, founded in 315 A. D. in the mountains east of Cairo and believed to be the oldest continuous monastery in the world, depends upon a single spring of water which flows out of the perpendicular rock wall of the adjacent mountain. Should this spring fail, the beautiful gardens of St. Anthony's would die and the monastery would be compelled to close down. Persons visiting the monastery after dark are hauled up to a small door in the wall by means of a rope.

Hunters Find Moose Are The Wariest of Animals

The moose is capable of great speed and has remarkable powers of endurance, writes Mortimer Norton in the Montreal Star. It is an awkward, clumsy animal, but never fails to inspire interest and respect when seen in the forests or feeding on lily pads in wilderness river.

In winter moose seek the elevated ridges where hardwood trees abound, and when the snow gets deep they "yard up" in the valleys as do the whitetailed deer. They move about according to the supply of food available—stripping maple, buttonwood, birch and aspen trees of their leaves and small twigs.

A moose will trot, run and jump when occasion demands and can crash through thick underbrush with ease. It is also a good swimmer. When stalking a moose, the hunter must go quietly and proceed against the wind, for these animals have keen sense of hearing and smell. This is why, together with the density of the forest, it is so difficult for the hunter to see or get within firing range of one of these wary creatures.

Indeed, moose will often locate in almost impenetrable swamps, where the only practicable means of bringing them within reach is to use a moose call. Where possible the method of still-hunting is to be recommended, so that the quarry will have a reasonable chance for its life. An experienced moose caller is frequently able to lure a bull moose out of the swamps where the waiting hunter can drop it with a well placed shot. This method entices the game to its death without the slightest warning and under this practice a section of the country can easily be depleted of its necessary breeding stock.

Where the terrain is not so thickly wooded then the sportsman will rely on his initiative to track down the moose and bag it by still-hunting, or, during especially dry weather, by an organized drive.

Ye who are old remember youth with thought of like affection.

Church Organizations at St. Andrews East

St. Andrews—The Good Fellowship Circle met on Friday evening, July 14, in the United Church hall. Rev. J. A. Mowatt addressed the gathering on "Economic Difficulties." At the end of his address a study group was formed, which met at Mr. C. T. Wales' home on Monday evening, and the next meeting will be held on Friday evening at the same place. The Fellowship Circle will continue to meet on alternate Tuesdays through the summer. Games and refreshments filled the remainder of the evening.

The W.M.S. of the United Church held the regular monthly meeting on July 11 in the church hall, with Mrs. J. Edson presiding. The August meeting will be held on the 8th, at 3 p.m.

The Anglican W.A. meeting held at the home of Mrs. V. Willett on July 13th was very well attended. The members are contributing for a special set of dishes to be used for afternoon teas and at socials. Arrangements were discussed for the coming sale and tea, and a most enjoyable time was spent over the tea cups at the close of the meeting.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Truth" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, July 23rd.

The Golden Text is from John 17: 11, 17. "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are. . . . Sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Shew me thy ways, O. Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day." (Psalms 25:4.5).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We know that a desire for holiness is requisite in order to gain holiness; but if we desire holiness above all else, we shall sacrifice everything for it. We must be willing to do this, that we may walk securely in the only practical road to holiness. . . . Jesus said, 'Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God.' (Truth" (pages 11 and 341).

The Gospel Service Radio Program

On Sunday, June 23rd, there was inaugurated over Station CKAC, Montreal, a new religious program known as "The Gospel Service." This service, heard from 10.00 to 10.30 a.m., is sponsored by a group of private citizens of Montreal who are desirous of bringing to as large a number of our good people of the Province of Quebec and as far as this radio station will reach, the good news contained in the Gospel message, which is for all mankind without regard to nationality, denomination or color.

Surely in such difficult times as those through which we are now passing, when everything in our highly rated civilization seems to be on the verge of collapse, and the whole world exists from day to day in a state of uncertainty and perplexity, we all need the Words of the simple Gospel brought to us as frequently as it is possible to do so. What is sweeter and more satisfying to the troubled soul than the calm assurance which we can always find in God's Word, especially when it is spoken in a plain sincere address or sung in hymns of praise by men and women who have given their hearts and lives to the Lord's service here on earth.

It is the desire of the sponsors that much good will result in the hearts of men and women who listen in to these Gospel services.

The address of "The Gospel Service" is P.O. Box 24, Montreal, and letters telling of how listeners like the program will be gladly received.

The bride, who wore a delphinium blue gown with picture hat, was given away by her uncle, Mr. Robert McMurtrie, late of Pyeng Yang, Korea. The attendants were Miss M. A. Higginson, a cousin, and Mr. John Owens, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony the wedding party and guests sat down to a delightfully arranged luncheon. After a short sojourn in New York, the bridal pair will leave for their home at 291 Scotia Street, West Kildonan, Winnipeg.

SCOUTING ESSENCE OF DEMOCRACY SAYS COLONEL ROOSEVELT AT WORLD'S FAIR

"I am very keen about the Scout movement. I am keen about it because it is so thoroughly American. It is as American as Indian corn. And I'll tell you why,—it is organized and run by American citizens in their capacity as private citizens. It is not supported by the Government. It is not directed by the Government. Nobody is forced to contribute to it by law. No one is ordered to join it by edict. It is composed of all the youth of the country. There is no distinction. It makes no differentials on account of creed — Protestant, Catholic and Jew, all belong. It makes no differentials on account of race — colored and white folks belong. It preaches tolerance, not intolerance. It glorifies peace, noth war. Above all, it is to me the essence of democracy, in that it teaches that liberty is not license; in that it teaches that when we accept all of the great privileges of this great democracy, we must assume at the same time the responsibilities." — Col. Theodore Roosevelt, at opening of Scout camp at World's Fair.

Clean or Safe Milk ?

There is great need to emphasize the distinction between "clean" and "safe" milk. The public is confused and even misled by terms which seem to imply all the values and yet carry no guarantee of "safety." These misleading terms are "accredited milk" and "standard milk," which enjoy more or less official recognition although neither the one nor the other are "safe."

Milk from tuberculin-tested cows is supposed to be safe as far as tuberculosis is concerned. Such, is not always the case. There are cases where tuberculin-tested cows, certified as tuberculosis-free, have had tuberculosis.

Clean milk is desirable. Milk that is free from dirt, from adulteration, and which is ordinarily pure, is a minor condition in comparison with a milk that is free from disease. Milk should not only be clean, but it should be safe so that if used by ourselves or our children, it will not carry such diseases as tuberculosis, undulant, scarlet or typhoid fevers, septic sore throat, diphtheria or the summer complaint that still takes the lives of thousands of children who are obliged to use raw milk. There is but one universal protection against milk-borne disease. This is pasteurization. To be effective, pasteurization must be properly carried out. The milk should be heated to a temperature of 145° F., kept at this temperature for 30 minutes and at once cooled to a temperature of 40 to 50° F., and kept at the latter temperature until used. Treated and kept in this way milk will maintain its sweetness and purity indefinitely. The great ocean liners passing between Montreal and Liverpool commonly take on a supply of pasteurized milk and cream on this side of the water which is sufficient to carry them across the Atlantic and back again. There is never any trouble with sour milk. No disease follows in the wake of milk treated in this way. Pasteurized milk is the only safe milk for old and young.

Kerosene Brought Oil Lamps

The development of a process of distilling kerosene from crude oil brought about the making of lamps designed especially for kerosene. These lamps gave much better light than the tallow candles formerly used. The production of kerosene was the main reason for the existence of the oil industry at first. As time went on, drilling for oil spread from New York, Pennsylvania, and western Virginia to Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana. When drilling spread into the West, the term "wildcat" as applied to oil wells came into use. It was applied to the search for oil in new areas "out among the wildcats" of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Hence its application to drilling in unproved territory.

Value of Color in Eggs

Many believe that brown eggs are richer and more nutritious than white ones. But there is no foundation for this belief, as analysis shows that eggs are practically the same in chemical composition regardless of the color of the shell, and that no difference exists in the food or nutriment content between the light and dark colored eggs. Some localities consider white eggs the choicer, while others believe the brown ones to be superior.

TO PASTEURIZE MILK

If you are unable to buy pasteurized milk, you may pasteurize it yourself by using the following method: Put the milk in the inner container of a double boiler and fill the outer with water, so that the water is almost as high as the milk inside. Heat until the water boils. Remove from the fire and pour out about one-third of the hot water, then fill up to the former level with cold water. Let the milk stand in this for 30 minutes, then cool as quickly as possible and put in the refrigerator.

HAMBURG WITH VEGETABLES

Summer is a time of company and when they travel by motor it is not always possible to be sure of the exact time of arrival. We need to choose foods that will not be spoiled by standing. Here is one of our favorite meat dishes which I often make when the time of a meal is uncertain, or when I want to get dinner in a hurry, as it can be prepared ahead of time and re-heated. Brown a pound of Hamburg in a little dripping, I usually cut up an onion finely and brown it a little before adding the meat, but this is not necessary. Stir the meat occasionally and when it is nicely browned, add a can of vegetable soup. I use undiluted soup and add just a little water. Cook slowly for about an hour. Taste to see if it requires any more salt and pepper. When more company has arrived than I have expected, I have added a can or two of spaghetti, to this, to stretch the amount. This makes a grand hearty dish for a hungry crowd at a summer cottage. A meat pie is a good choice for an uncertain dinner hour. The pie may be prepared and cooked after your guests arrive, or it may be baked and re-heated when required.

FLOWERS AT THE EXPERIMENTAL FARM

I wish you could all see the flowers at the Experimental Farm in Ottawa. Anyone would enjoy seeing the flowers and those of you who are garden-minded would learn a good deal from the gardens. The Farm is truly an experimental one and there is so much to see. There are quantities of everything and one needs to see it every week to find things at their best. The tulips were a sight to see. There were lilacs of every kind and description. Then came the irises and the peonies and the briar-roses. I have never seen anything like the irises for size and color. Some of them were as beautiful as orchids. They are not only a sight but something to smell. The air was heavy with the fragrance of the lilacs. The iris was more delicate and the smell of the briar roses was something to remember in your dreams. I never knew there were so many shades of briar roses before. Yellow, and varying shades of pink, shading down to a cream. The rock garden has been alive with bloom. All the well-known reliables are there and many unfamiliar ones that kept one busy looking at their labels.

WEEKLY FLOWER SHOWS

Blessed are the towns that have active Horticultural Societies. They beautify the town generally, and foster the enthusiasm of the individual gardener. Usually the competitions or shows are limited in number. One small town had a splendid idea. They had a show — not a competition — every week throughout the blooming season. Each Friday the Horticultural Society had a display in one of the local store windows. It aroused a great deal of interest and was a pleasure to all flower lovers — and that means most everyone. Admiddedly, it must have been considerable work. But what good thing isn't? If your society has not tried this, it might be worth trying.

GIVE THEM NATIVE FOODS

It seems to be a difficult thing to make those who cater to tourists understand that these visitors want to get something different from the things they get at home, things characteristic of the country they are visiting. A woman told me the other day she had been on a two weeks' tour in the Maritimes and not at one single meal could they get fish. I hasten to add, that was ten years ago. They have learned better now. They tried to get it but were told always there was not. To cap the climax, one day she asked specially if she could not get mackerel but was told there was none to be had. A few miles further on they smelled a smell and on asking about it, were told it was mackerel that was being used for fertilizer. At one hotel there were several people from Ontario and they hunted round until they found a place they could buy lobster, so they got some and ate them in the hotel bedroom. Fish was no treat to the Maritimers and they did not understand it was what the visitors wanted most. We were on a five day trip and we had all the fish we wanted and that was some order. The men of the party had fish three times a day. I tried mackerel once for breakfast but that was too much, so fish twice a day did me. Several times we had fish or clam chowder for our soup course and followed that by lobster or some other fish for the main course. Tourists want fish in the Maritimes and our experience was that we got grand fish beautifully cooked.

GINGER-BREAD

When the occasional cool day comes along, why not surprise the family with hot gingerbread and hard sauce for dessert. The very smell of its spicy fragrance is appetizing. This very moment our place is the grandest mixture of hot gingerbread baking in the oven and mint jelly just out of the kettle. There are many good recipes but this is the one we have found to be best — ¾ cup white sugar; ½ cup butter; 1 cup molasses; 1 egg; 1 cup warm water; 2½ cups flour; 2 teaspoons soda; 1 teaspoon each, cloves, cinnamon, ginger.

Cream butter and sugar and add molasses and the well-beaten egg. Stir in the warm water and add the sifted dry ingredients. Mix well and bake in a buttered pan 10 inches by 12 inches in a moderately slow oven of 350 degrees. This is a rather thin batter. Half the quantity may be made in an 8 inches by 8 inches pan as it is a fairly large recipe. It keeps moist for days.

Baking the Blueberry

By Frances Lee Barton

You may not be able to paint the lily successfully, but no matter how much you relish plain blueberries and cream, you can bake this tasty blue morsel and produce a roulette that will amaze and delight. Try serving blueberry roulettes to your family or guests. There is only one drawback. You'll be pestered for repeat orders as long as blueberries are on sale:

Blueberry Roulettes

2 cups sifted cake flour; 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; ½ teaspoon salt; 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening; ⅔ cup milk; melted butter; 1 cup fresh blueberries; 4 tablespoons sugar.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl. Turn out immediately on floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll in oblong sheet, ¼ inch thick. Brush with melted butter; cover with blueberries and sprinkle with sugar. Roll as for jelly roll. Cut in 1-inch slices and place in lightly greased muffin pans. Brush tops with melted butter and sprinkle with additional sugar. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 20 minutes, or until done. Makes 20 roulettes.

A Fallacy Exploded

Here is proof that should disprove conclusively the popular misconception that salt is harmful to the human system, that it causes hardening of the arteries, dilutes the natural lubricants in the body joints, and results in deposits of salt in the system, paving the way to rheumatic diseases.

An article in the current issue of the Oval, magazine of Canadian Industries Limited, reports that scientific studies by physiologists in leading laboratories have proved conclusively that salt through perspiration must be replaced to restore the necessary balance, and the medical profession is in agreement that the use of sodium chloride, or common salt, either in loose form or as small compressed tablets, is a safe and successful method of counteracting or warding off the effects of excessive heat fatigue.

Prompted by the general belief that salt was harmful to the human system, Safety Engineering, an authoritative American magazine, recently conducted a survey among leading American medical authorities, and the following sentence sums up their combined opinions: "Inasmuch, however, as the good that is done by salt tablets outweighs the conjectural harm that might occur to a very small number of people, the use of salt in hot industries or hot weather should be encouraged."

HOUSE AND HOME

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Summer time should be lazy time — a good time to let your head save your heels — so plan your work carefully and make the most of all the modern range contrivances on the market.

The electric range of today with its automatic control will cook your dinner while you go on an afternoon jaunt. You know the research workers tell us that thoroughly chilled food will keep in perfect condition for two hours in the oven before the heat turns on. You can put an entire dinner, with the exception of the salad, in your oven, set the time and temperature controls and go away to come home and find your dinner ready to serve.

One-dish meals with a salad and dessert are ideal summer dinners, too. It's always necessary to have one hot dish in every meal and a casserole dish of meat and vegetables is easy to prepare and serve.

If you change your menus with the seasons you will do much to keep a fresh and interesting point of view. We need less heavy food in summer than we do in winter. Light, easily digested foods with plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables make nourishing, pleasant fare.

Serve porch and garden suppers and have plenty of picnics. A thorough spraying under the chairs and tables and on nearby trees and bushes will keep flies away long enough to enjoy your meal. Use any good fly spray and use it generously.

A screened porch usually becomes a veritable summer living room and if you use flower boxes and flower pots you can make it into a bit of a garden. Pot and box gardening is highly satisfactory because you are privileged to have exactly what you want. You can always move and change the plants to suit your whims.

In this kind of gardening every plant can have exactly the soil and moisture and exposure it needs. There is no fear of draught since the plants can be watered daily and face the sun unwilted and fresh.

You can raise some annuals in the vegetable garden and transplant them into pots and boxes when they are in full bloom. Pompon zinnias, marigolds, ageratum, petunias, the annual balsam — the old-fashioned lady's slipper—lend themselves to charming arrangements on account of both their colors and forms.

Choose your pots with care, considering carefully the effect you want to attain. Large strawberry jars are attractive on a terrace or porch floor, bright pots holding green vines are effective on wall brackets and red clay pots of various sizes are best arranged in groups or in rows.

Sues for Trousseau

A young Latvian farmer had everything prepared for his wedding to the daughter of another farmer living at some distance away, when she telegraphed him that her mind was changed. It was too late to notify the wedding guests, so the breakfast was held, in total disregard of the usual introduction having been omitted. At the last moment the recalcitrant bride turned up, not to redeem her pledge, but to recover her trousseau, which had been sent to the house of her future husband. The young man's father, however, refused to let her have the clothes and ornaments until she paid the expenses of the wedding celebrations. As a result the matter is before the courts.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

Although she is past eighty, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt,, noted feminist and suffrage leader, has undertake another job; one, however, which will not require much of her time or tax her strength. She is honorary chairman of a group which has put forward the American Mothers' Declaration.

This is a declaration supporting "the basic principles of democracy as it should be lived in every home in America." The words are those of Mrs. William Dick Sporborg, chairman of the national committee which expects at least five million American mothers to sign the declaration of support of the five freedoms—speech, the press, assembly, worship and petition.

Of all the foreign nations that have been displaying their treasures at the New York World's Fair, the only country to give a woman the post of commissioner-general at the grounds is Lithuania. Madeleine Avietenaite holds this distinguished office.

When Lithuania became an independent nation twenty years ago, Miss Avietenaite returned to her native country and became private secretary to the Minister of Foreign Affairs. The first parliament under this new regime was opened by a woman who is now 76. There were seven other women in this governmental body.

The first electric brain — a model, of course — was demonstrated recently in Chicago by Dr. Edith Klemperer, the inventor. Neon tubes controlled by electric switches run through the model. They duplicate flashes of thought, automatic movements such as breathing, and the complex reactions of certain types of minds.

A career mother who admits that it may be a little unusual at the age of 22 to have two boys, care for them and earn a medical degree in five years, is Dr. Sarah H. Maiden. She is a member of this year's graduating class of the University of Tennessee, and has been living in Memphis.

Scottish Women Will Visit Canada

On July 20 a group of 60 Scottish women, members of the Scottish Women's Institutes, will sail on one of the Donaldson liners for Canada. They are expected to arrive in Quebec on July 29, and from there will start on a tour of Canada by Greyhound bus. The group will travel by bus during the entire trip, and will stop in overnight cabins during the most of their itinerary.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story by W.E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

CANCER

Archigenes, who lived in the second century, was perhaps the first surgeon who operated on a patient with cancer and his description of his observations in this field are interesting.

Hippocrates, Galen, Celsus and other early medical writers recognized this disease also and learned then, as we doctors know now, that if properly treated in its initial stages, the possibilities of saving the life of the patient were very good. The early Arabian surgeons, borrowing pages from Greek medicine, operated regularly on cancer patients with success, and perhaps made the greatest advance of the time in the treatment of this condition.

When the microscope was first devised it was considered a scientific toy and medical men paid slight attention to it in doing research work on it in studying diseases. Gradually, as it was perfected, its great possibilities were seen, particularly in studying the smallest units of the living tissue of the body, namely the cells; for the human body is nothing but an aggregation of cells.

Then came Virehow, who discovered, with the aid of the modern microscope, that disease was merely the changed and disordered cells of the living tissues. Today no physician's equipment is complete without a modern microscope and it serves a thousand purposes in making a diagnosis.

If you suspect you have a foreign growth in any part of your body, do not for one minute have anything to do with the quacks who thrive on people thus troubled. These men know nothing about cancer and the most remarkable thing about the leading quack who specialized in cancer treatment is that he died of this very disease recently. The thing to do is to consult your doctor and abide by what he advises.

Last year the majority of persons who died of cancer in the United States never went to a registered person for assistance. Instead they consulted quacks, took their remedies and died, when a great number of them might easily have had their lives prolonged or been completely cured.

One quack for a large fee sold each person a bit of blue glass "which when the sun's rays shone through it on the cancer, cured the ill one"; a Chinese herb "doctor" sold perfumed joss sticks for the cure of cancer and printed a testimonial from a United States Senator, in which he thanked him for curing him.

Twenty years ago I operated on a doctor's wife for cancer and she is today alive and well. Every doctor can give similar testimony. Deaths from cancer can be reduced materially in this country if doctors are consulted and quacks ignored.

FAMILY HITCH-HIKE FROM VANCOUVER TO MONTREAL

This family started out from Vancouver with three cents capital to hitch-hike to Montreal. When this picture was taken they had reached Regina. Their clothing business in Vancouver was foreclosed and they hope to start up in Montreal again. Mr. and Mrs. Brien Symons and children, Edith and Benny, are relations of Andrew Symons, deceased, described as a millionaire British Columbia gold mine operator. Mrs. Symons is on crutches as a result of injuries to her knee when a football player kicked her accidentally whilst watching a game at the Pacific Coast.

South American Jungles Motherland of Our Corn

The long-sought motherland of maize, historically the chief agricultural crop in America, is credited to the jungles of Central South America, according to reports to the National Academy of Science by investigators from the Texas Agricultural Experiment station, writes Thomas R. Henry in the Washington Star.

Corn was found by the earliest white explorers as a cultivated crop throughout the Americas, essentially in the form known today. It had been domesticated by the Indians from some wild grain, but there was no trace of this hypothetical ancestor. Only two grasslike growths remotely approached it—teosinte in Mexico and Central America and tripsacum, which grows through the southern United States southward through Mexico.

Neither approached very closely the cultivated maize which seems to have spread from two centers where two great civilizations had been built up upon it—Peru and Yucatan. The Texas botanists conducted their search for the origin of corn within the grain itself by microscopic study of the structure of its chromosomes, or bundles of genes which are the units of heredity.

These show clearly, they report, that it could have descended neither from teosinte or tripsacum. The former grass, they maintain, actually appears to be a later development from a cross between maize and tripsacum. There are tripsacum elements in the corn grown in the United States, but these apparently are only later developments.

IT'S ALL IN THE STATE OF MIND

If you think you are beaten, you are;
  If you think you dare not, you don't,
If you like to win but you think you can't

If you think you'll lose, you're lost —
  For out in the world you'll find
  It's all in the state of mind.

  Ere even his works begun.

Think big and your deeds will grow;
  Think small, and you'll fall behind.
Think that you can and you will;
  It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you are outclassed, you are;
  You've got to think high to rise;

Life's hardships don't always go
  To the taller or handsome man;
But soon or late the man who wins,

Eileen Marshall, Grade XI

I want the finest auto known,
  I want to win world-wide renown;
I want to live in manner grand,
  Without a care upon my mind;
With servants waiting my command;
  The adulation of my kind.
I want the very best to wear;
  Upon the choicest foods to dine,
I want to have the truest and
  Most influential friends for mine.
I want to have a chance to vaunt
  Myself among the great and brave;
I want the wisdom not to want
  So many things I cannot have.

THE WOODPECKER

The woodpecker pecked out
And made him a home

One day when I watched

And he had on a hood

Human Burglar Alarm

Further evidence that old customs never die in Great Britain comes to notice in Yorkshire. Each day at 9 p. m. in the town of Ripon a hornblower stands in the center of town and blows a blast to each of the four points of the compass and a final one before the mayor's house. The custom has been handed down from Saxon times, and the hornblower was once paid for acting as a human burglar alarm during the night.

Election Discussions Are "Relief from Anxiety Over Affairs Abroad ... Reminder of Liberties We Enjoy as a Democracy"

HEPBURN AND DUPLESSIS WILL PLAY NO PART IN FEDERAL CONFLICT, OBSERVERS STATE

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, July 25th.—Talk of elections continues to stir the air in Ottawa, with observers indulging in the interesting but uncertain occupation of trying to decide how political winds are blowing, what chances this or that party has of increasing its membership, and what will be the approximate lineup in the next House of Commons. However uncertain prophecies may be, discussions on elections are nevertheless a relief from the anxieties over affairs abroad, because whatever the severity and sometimes bitterness that may attend an election, it is one of the great bulwarks of our democratic institutions. It is a reminder as it comes around in regular course of the liberties we enjoy as a democracy.

From Toronto word came a short time ago that Premier Hepburn of Ontario will take no part in the next federal election. He is not going to make any election speeches at all. "I have stated," he said, "that Ontario legislature members are perfectly free to take whatever action they please." Despatches from Ottawa seem to show that in that province the National Union members will follow their own individual inclinations in the federal election campaign. Premier Duplessis has frequently stated that he is in the provincial, not the federal field of politics. The idea current some months ago that the Premiers of Ontario and Quebec might form a bloc in the federal field is no longer credited by political observers.

DEFENCE PURCHASING BOARD

The Defence Purchasing Board, the personnel of which was recently named, is getting rapidly down to business. Under the chairmanship of R. C. Vaughan, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, the board has taken up offices in the Parliament buildings and is setting about gathering its office staff and studying the present position of defence equipment contracts. It is quite clear that there will be no delay in getting the machinery of the Board in working order. The Board will make defence contracts where more than five thousand dollars is involved, and will look over the operation of the other contracts which have already been let. In the estimates last session, 63 million dollars was appropriated for national defence purposes.

Ontario Province Sued in Highway Accident Fatal To Hawkesb'y Resident

NEGLIGENCE CLAIMED IN MAINTENANCE OF WINTER ROAD

MRS. BEAUDOIN VICTIM, AND OTHERS INJURED

A writ of summons in the Supreme Court of Ontario in behalf of Dr. Louis Philippe Beaudoin, of Hawkesbury, executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Jacqueline Beaudoin, has been issued by John B. Woods, solicitor, against the Ontario Department of Highways, for damages sustained in consequence of the death of Mrs. Beaudoin on April 27, from injuries received in a motor collision with a truck on Highway 17 in the township of Cumberland. The writ was filed at L'Orignal. Also seriously injured in the accident were Therese Beaudoin, 13, and Louis Beaudoin, 15, daughter and son of Dr. Beaudoin.

It is charged that the collision was caused by negligence as to the construction and maintenance of the highway.

Second Writ Issued

Another writ has been issued by Mr. Woods on behalf of Frank Mayotte of Hawkesbury, in which Mr. Mayotte claims damages for injuries received in the same accident. Mayotte was the driver of the Beaudoin car. He received a fractured skull, compound fracture of both arms and internal injuries. Both writs were for unstated damages.

At the inquest into the death of Mrs. Beaudoin, which was held at Rockland a few days following the accident under Coroner Dr. Martin Powers, a verdict of accidental death was rendered. No blame was attached to either driver, the finding being that the accident was due chiefly to the icy condition of the highway at the time.

Over a quarter of a million .22 calibre cartridges are manufactured each day at Brownsburg, in which almost one ton of metal is required for the bullets and almost 500 pounds of metal for the cases.

Murdered Prospector Leaves Estate of $31,177

WILL OF GILBERT BENNETT IS PROBATED

The estate of Gilbert Bennett, Sudbury prospector, formerly of Arundel, who was murdered with his partner, Wilbur. (Tom) Sawyer, May 15, was probated in the Sudbury district court last week. His son, Wilbur Sydney Bennett, was named sole heir to the estate valued at $31,177.

First evidence of the double murder was the discovery of Bennett's empty canoe floating on Wanapitei Lake May 23. Three days later, Bill Cassleman, aged recluse, slipped a police posse and disappeared into the fastness of the Mountain Creek district. The 73-year-old recluse's body was found on May 31. Police said Cassleman was responsible for the double slaying.

Talk of Establishing Mill for Silk Hosiery Manufacture

A three-man delegation from Lachute held an interview in Montreal last Friday regarding possibility of the establishment of a silk hosiery mill here. The visitors included Mayor W. MacKimmie, Alderman Jas. McGibbon, and the town secretary, Germain Filion. Conferring with Arthur J. Lallemand of the International Publishing Company, they were told that his client, Mr. J. Terrey, of Alverson, Pa., one of the leading men in the business, was considering the erection of a mill, and that the possibilities of Lachute, as a prospective site, were being considered. Mr. Lallemand assured the delegation that his client would visit the town for a closer study of conditions.

Car Plows Through Rail, Rolls Over Embankment

THREE ESCAPE, AS SEDAN LANDS UPSIDE-DOWN IN RIVER AT ST. ANDREWS

St. Andrews E.— As the result of a mishap Tuesday at the bridge on the Rivière Rouge highway, a fine Chevrolet 1939 sedan stands in Ed. Leedham's garage, wrecked almost beyond repair. The occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Larose, of Montreal, and their little son, suffered bruises and minor cuts when the car skidded in loose gravel and ploughed through several pickets of the bridge guard, one remaining embedded in the telescoped engine. The car then rolled down the embankment, landing upside down in the river. Fortunately the river is low at this season, and the doors did not jam. The woman was able to get out first and then assisted the others. Dr. P. Belleau gave medical aid and found Mr. Larose had suffered a broken arm. The trio were taken to the hotel in St. Andrews to recuperate after the mishap.

Crash on Brownsburg Road

On Monday evening at 11 o'clock a Montreal car driven by Fred Schmid, when passing a truck near Lepine's lumber factory on the Brownsburg Road, collided with an automobile driven by Miss Brodeur, also of Montreal. The cars sideswiped and Schmid's auto went into the ditch, the driver sustaining severe injuries. The man was treated by Dr. W. F. McMartin, of Lachute, for a compound fracture of the left arm. Miss Brodeur, driver of the other vehicle, escaped without injury.

Traffic Constable A. Leger and Provincial Officer Anderson, of Lachute, investigated the accident.

Store Robbed as Thieves Continue Depredations

MARAUDERS ABANDON SAFE, ESCAPE WITH GOODS

The Farmers' Supply Company on Foundry Street, Lachute, was victimized early Sunday morning in what appears to be a growing epidemic of robberies in the Montreal district — a a crime wave attributed, in some opinions, to the release of certain prisoners from the jails as a favor in consideration of the Royal visit.

The robbery at the Farmers' Supply gave evidence of experienced safe-crackers, who, in their effort to blast the safe door with nitro-glycerin, appear to have been interrupted and made a hurried exit.

Investigating the robbery next morning Constable A. Gervais and Provincial Officer Anderson, of Lachute, found footprints in the dirt floor of the adjoining garage — through which the intruders gained entry to the premises, after breaking a window from the side-lane. The men had emptied a bag of oatmeal on the floor. Police believed it had been their intention to move the safe onto the oatmeal so as to deaden the noise of the blast. At this stage, however, they were doubtless disturbed by passers-by and made a getaway. From the shelves and counters a number of razors, tools and small wares had been taken, the loss being estimated at roughly $40.

On Monday a fingerprint expert from provincial headquarters arrived to make an examination of the safe, and investigation of the robbery is in the hands of the provincial police.

Pros and Cons of Chlorination Aired in Public Discussion

THEO. LAFRENIERE, PROVL. CHEMICAL ENGINEER, GIVES ADVICE ON PURIFICATION OF WATER SUPPLY

A small but representative audience, including both skeptics and supporters of a water purification project for this town, heard an explanation of the subject of Theo. Lafreniere, C.I., of the Quebec Health Department, last evening in the Auditorium. The speaker was introduced by Mayor W. S. MacKimmie.

How Water Is Contaminated

Explaining the manner of contamination in Lachute's water supply, namely through animal and human excreta from farm lands, farm buildings and habitations in the area drained by the water-course, Mr. Lafreniere quoted the confirmation of laboratory reports—the last of which had been analysis of a water sample submitted by the town to McGill just recently. This had shown a count of 180 bacteria (B. Coli — germs of intestinal origin), which, stated the speaker, was decidedly questionable. (National health standards class a count of 1 to 2 bacteria as safe). The incidence of disease in these B. Coli would render the water indisputably dangerous. Lachute, through constant usage, might have developed a degree of immunity to these infections; however, the danger exists for visitors and strangers using the water, as well as for the local population. A single case of typhoid in the watershed supplying the Lachute system would menace the health of this town's 5,000 population.

Two Methods of Purification

As a remedy for this condition the speaker described the process of filtration and of chlorination, the former being the most costly in capital outlay but also the most efficient. Chlorination, the injecting of chlorine disinfectant to kill the germs, was a simple procedure for purification of water. It required a plant and suitable building, with a competent operator. There was nothing new or experimental in the process; over 1½ million people in this province alone are using chlorinated water. Properly controlled, the disinfectant was tasteless.

Illustrating the costliness of neglect, Mr. Lafreiniere mentioned the town of Gatineau Point, which had suffered liabilities for a typhoid epidemic, before chlorination of water had been enforced there by the province. Mansonville had also suffered an epidemic, and Lachute was one of the few remaining towns of its size in the province which lacked the approved protection.

Cost of Chlorinating Plant

Mr. Gaboury, also of the Quebec Health Department, was questioned by members of the audience on the costs of installation. It was learned that the most efficient chlorination machine would cost $2,600, plus the meter. This would employ liquid chlorine in a cylinder container — a reliable means of supply as there is no variation in its strength. Or a cheaper plant, employing chloride of lime, could be installed; this, however, would be found more costly in supply. The two types of plant are in operation in nearby towns, namely Buckingham and Hull.

Mr. Lafreniere was questioned by Mr. C. Tremblay, among the audience, on the capital costs of chlorination and filtration plants, and their relative expense for maintenance.

Lachute's Long Record for Pure-Tasting Water

Mr. H. M. Gall, commenting on the town's enviable repute for pure-tasting water, enquired why at this

3,500 Attend C.P.R. Picnic At Pointe au Chene

Three special trains, of 50 coaches in all, passed through Lachute Saturday morning to Pointe au Chene carrying employees of the C.P.R. Angus Shops, with their families and friends, to the 16th annual C.P.R. picnic. The event was held under auspices of the company's Amateur Athletic Association, and the picnic grounds presented a gay spectacle as over 3,500 persons of all ages mingled in the holiday spirit at this gala outing. Races and contests were held, events being staged for children under five, men over fifty and all ages and classes between these extremes.

Coca-Cola Day Big Event On Kiddies' Calendar

The J. P. MacKimmie & Sons bottling works on Foundry Street was invaded by a crowd of youngsters on Monday afternoon, to receive the advertised gift of a Coca-Cola drink and a free hat. The crowd became so numerous that Paul Courville was delegated to remove the line-up from the thoroughfare and Photographer A. Fortier was summoned to take a picture of the happy gang. Forty-two cases of drinks were dispensed from the coolers, and it was estimated about 1,000 children enjoyed Coca-Cola "on the house."

Brownsburg Rifle Team in Contest

This rifle team from the C-I-L at Brownsburg took part in the 15th annual small bore shooting tournament of the Quebec Province Rifle Association at Lachine, Que., on June 18. The C-I-Lites are, left to right — Messrs. W. Brown, D. Golphin, Major James W. Houlden, captain of the team and a well-known Bisley and Dewar marksman, B. Jenkins, E. Hawks, A. McCulloch and D. Prosser. Mr. J. Golphin was also a member of the team but does not appear above. Mr. A. McCulloch won first place honors in the intermediate 100-yard event and the intermediate section of the Association Match.

Spectacular Rally for Moral Re-armament, at Hollywood Bowl

30,000 Hear Personal Challenge from Followers of Movement; Speakers from Several Nations

"They came in limousines. They arrived in jalopies that barely chugged along the traffic-jammed roads leading to Hollywood Bowl; they came afoot, in wheel-chairs, in buses, in taxicabs" — writes a Los Angeles journalist, describing the spectacular meeting last week which climaxed a Moral Rearmament assembly of representatives of 30 nations in Los Angeles. The gathering marked the end of communuity luncheons and breakfast club chats where moral re-armament was explained and re-described. It brought together for the first time all the strength of the vast movement — leaders from Burma, London, East Africa, Australia, China and Japan — and showed 30,000 persons how it might work.

Flashing from the rear of the acoustical shell of the Bowl they signified M.R.A.'s four guiding principles: absolute honesty, unselfishness, purity and love. And above the half-dome itself shone the legend: "New Men — New Nations — a New World!"

Police stated 10,000 were turned away from the Bowl. They went home disappointed. From all over the Southland the thousands gathered to hear of "Moral Re-armament" from those who started the movement. Men like Dr. Frank N. Buchman, founder of the Oxford Group; H. W. (Bunny) Austin, the diminutive, fiery British tennis star, and gnarled Tod Sloan, who preached labor discontent under London's docks until he embraced the movement.

Miles Phillimore, Cambridge graduate and son of a British peer, told how he had sought the friendship of Bill Rowell, the leader of 460,000 of East London's bitterest unemployed. And Rowell corroborated his story.

"Supposing everybody cared enough and everybody shared enough — wouldn't everybody HAVE enough?"

Waiting Deplored

To crystallize what M.R.A. meant, George Eastman, leader of the movement in Los Angeles, declared: "We do not need to wait until war is at our doors; until guns are rattling and our boys are marching off to the front. Why not do the thing now that you and I can do it in a constructive way? Build a world fence that will make those things unnecessary."

Dr. Buchman Talks

Five minutes later Dr. Buchman himself was telling the 30,000 how it could be accomplished.

"Tonight," he said slowly, "you will witness a preview of a new world. It is a world in which we are yet green." Dr. Buchman did not outline M.R.A. at once. He let his "teammates" speak for themselves. Graggy Scotsmen from Inverness and the Clyde shipyards; George Muff, Laborite M.P. from London, who termed "horrible" the fact that Britons have fitted babies for gas masks; and Ruth St. Denis, the dancer, who said that "tonight is the supreme hour for which this wonderful Bowl was created."

Personal Challenge

Bunny Austin, the former Davis Cup champion, declared: "It's a challenge to each one of us, to give our lives to change conditions by changing human nature which created them. And we must start with ourselves.

Cites Last War

"When I see the distress around me and know of the threat of another war even more terrible than the last, I wonder if they have died in vain. I know they have not thus died. Because I know that moral re-armament can banish war and make peace permanent.

"If only —" the little sportsman added earnestly, "if only we will sacrifice enough. Sacrifice our lust for personal advancement, glory and success; rid ourselves of fear and greed, and pool our energies and talents in the creation of a new world of men and women, strong, united and at peace!"

Others spoke — a Nebraska schoolteacher; a screen actress; T. S. Mitsui, of Japan; a Negro woman from Harlem; and Baroness Diane de Watteville-Beckstein, whose three sons in Paris are old enough to die in the next World War.

Vacationists in Holiday Mood At Riverside Resort

MOONEY'S LOG CABIN IN SEASONAL SWING

Summer activities started off in full swing at Mooney's Log Cabin over the last week-end. Rivalry was keen in the horseshoe challenge matches. Softball games were played, besides the regular community afternoon swimming parties. Saturday night was the occasion of the usual barn-dance, in which all the colony participated, with Lawrence Silverson and George Duncan supplying the music.

On Saturday night the first of the Amateur Nights of the summer season was held. Various members of the colony contributed their bit in tap-dancing, story-telling, piano and vocal solos. Features were a musical monologue, "The Underworld of London After Dark," by Thomas Cribb, of Montreal, and the story of the rise and fall of "Ferdinand, the Bull," dramatically told by Master Paddy Murphy, of Ottawa. All joined in the community singing which followed the program, and refreshments were served before the gathering dispersed. Miss Clare Maxwell, Ottawa, and Thomas Cribb accompanied in the singing, Lawrence Silverson played the violin for the tappers, and J. A. McLaughlin, of Ottawa, was master of ceremonies.

Sailing on The Great Lakes

Canada's "Pocket Ocean Voyage" from Fort William to Port McNicoll by Canadian Pacific Great Lakes Steamships is a unique 542-mile trip with all the thrills of ship life.

The Canadian Pacific steamships Keewatin and Assiniboia take slightly more than a day and a half for the voyage through lakes and rivers, a good deal of the route being along pretty shoreline but some of it completely out of sight of land. From beautiful Georgian Bay on the east, the ships pass into Lake Huron whose length of 207 miles and width of 101 miles make it the second largest of the Great Lakes. Then comes the lovely St. Mary's River, the international boundary, and the last part of the voyage is through Lake Superior, largest fresh-water lake in the world.

The sturdy Clyde-built Canadian Pacific steamers are luxuriously fitted for this summer service. Each ship has seven attractive de luxe rooms with private bathrooms, five of the seven being equipped with twin beds and two with double beds. All rooms have running water and there are lights in every berth. Public and private bathrooms have tile flooring, built-in bathtubs and showers. The public rooms are beautifully finished.

High class service includes barber, hairdresser, manicurist and valet. There is an excellent dance orchestra aboard and the cuisine is famous. Both steamers are fully equipped for deck sports, there being facilities for shuffle board, bull board, deck quoits, and deck golf.

Regular sailings, from June 17 to September 16, provide for two eastward and two westward trips each week, the Great Lakes providing an alternate route — air-conditioned by Mother Nature — on a cross-Canada trip, or a distinctly unusual type of summer holiday affording the pleasure of ship life on the calm waters of the great inland seas.

The Poison Ivy Season

Poison ivy is a joy-killer in many parts of Canada and this is the season to be on guard. City dwellers especially suffer from the effects of contact with this dangerous vine as being less accustomed to seeing it, they fail to recognize it.

The mere touching of poison ivy is likely to cause a peculiar inflammation of the skin to break out at the point of contact. Sometimes there is a slight redness and itching; at other times, contact is followed by large swellings with extensive blisters, accompanied by severe burning sensation.

When poison ivy has been accidentally touched, the use of ointments or cold creams should be carefully avoided, as when these dissolve they spread the poison. First aid consists in washing the parts afflicted with alcohol or coal oil or with non-ethyl gasoline.

As poison ivy is so common, hikers should avoid touching poison ivy or anything resembling it. Walking through underbush is dangerous and even letting clothing come in contact with poison ivy is risky.

The vine can be identified by its leaf formation. Its leaf is divided into three leaflets, which differentiates it from the harmless Virginia Creeper, another common vine, as the latter has five leaflets. The flower of the poison ivy is a small greenish one and its fruit pale green during the early part of the summer. After ripening, the fruit turns ivory white.

To be on the safe side, whether one knows positively or not that a vine is poison ivy, any three-leaved creeper should be avoided.

"And you promise never to let me down?"

Citizen of Pointe Fortune Is Laid to Rest

LATE W. E. McCLINTOCK

The death of William Everett McClintock, a highly respected resident of Pte. Fortune, Que., occurred at his home early Wednesday morning, July 19th.

Mr. McClintock was born Jan. 22, 1855, the eldest son of the late William McClintock and his wife, the late Margaret Dunbar, of Pte. Fortune. There he spent most of his life. In his early years he engaged in farming and held the position of secretary-treasurer of his township for many years. He was also an active member of the Methodist Church, succeeding his late father as secretary-treasurer, which position he held until forced to resign owing to failing health. He leaves to mourn his passing, one sister, Mrs. Catherine Barclay, of Pointe Fortune, eleven nephews and four nieces.

The funeral service, held Friday, July 21, at the United Church, was largely attended by both French and English. The pastor, the Rev. J. A. Mowatt, officiated and spoke feelingly of the departed life of service to his Master and his kindly service to his fellow men.

The floral tributes were of great beauty and bore silent testimony to the memory of a beloved friend.

The pall-bearers were six nephews, Messrs. William and John Jackson, Arthur and Bernard McClintock and Alex and Ross Barclay. Interment was made in St. Andrews East Cemetery.

Relatives attending from a distance included: Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson, Kemptville, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. William Barclay, Miss Mary Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. George Barclay, Winchester, Ont.; Dave and Sydney Barclay, Brockville; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Knight, Miss Catherine Knight, Ottawa; Mr. Arthur McClintock, Thetford, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fattee, Hawkesbury; Mr. John McIntosh, Miss Anna McIntosh, Breadalbane, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McClintock, Misses Lois and Caroline McClintock, St. Andrews East; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Jackson, Mr. Hugh Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Walker, Mrs. D. McPhail, Mrs. A. ## City Clerk of Cornwall Dies; Former Lachute Townsman

LATE WM. A. HOUSTON

William A. Houston, of Cornwall, a former resident of this town — whose interest in curling activities is perpetuated here in the Houston trophy — died suddenly on Saturday afternoon after a seizure of illness on the greens of the Lawn Bowling Club at Cornwall. He was taken to the Cornwall General Hospital but died shortly after being admitted.

Mr. Houston was secretary-treasurer of Cornwall, and was in his 57th year. A son of the Rev. R. L. M. Houston, he had gone to Cornwall at an early age, when his father was appointed rector there. Rev. Mr. Houston died suddenly under somewhat similar circumstances, at the church rectory, when in his 56th year.

William Houston entered the service of the Molson's Bank when in his 'teens, and continued with the bank until its absorption by the Bank of Montreal. He acted as manager here in Lachute and later, in 1928, resigned from the Bank of Montreal at Hensall, Ont. He went back to Cornwall as representative of the Canada Life Assurance, and returned again to Lachute, later setting up business in Cornwall as agent for the Canada Life. He was their representative until January, 1936, when he was appointed to the municipal position he held to the time of his death.

Mr. Houston was secretary of the Cornwall Board of Trade from 1935 to 1938 and was also secretary of the Board of Health. He assisted in the organization of Trinity Men's Club and acted as its president for four years. He was also a member of Cornwall Lodge of Masons. He was always interested in sports.

Besides his wife, the former Miss Bessie Valleau, of Ottawa, daughter of George E. Valleau, manager of the British American Bank Note Company, he leaves two sons, Robert and William Houston, at home. He also leaves two sisters, Miss Alice Houston, V.A.D., and Miss Helen Houston, both of Ottawa. The former, a nursing sister overseas during the Great War, was mentioned in dispatches.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at Cornwall, and was attended by the following citizens from Lachute: Jas. W. Gall, S. S. Campbell, J. S. Giles, R. Todd, E. M. Jones, and John MacKimmie.

Former Ottawa Civic Employee Dies in Brownsburg

LATE CLEMENT V. ROBERTS

Clement V. (Clem) Roberts, a former employee of the Ottawa Waterworks Department, passed away at his residence, Brownsburg, on Monday, July 17, following a lengthy illness.

Born in Wales, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Griffith J. Roberts, he came to Canada 19 years ago, settling in Ottawa. About 17 years ago he was employed by the waterworks department, where he worked until ill health forced his retirement last October. Mr. Roberts had been residing in Brownsburg since March of this year. He was a great lover of dogs and was well known in Ottawa kennel circles.

Surviving are his wife, the former Jane Ann Riley; his sister, Mrs. James Roberts, of Brownsburg; one brother and two sisters.

The body was taken to the parlors of George B. Burney & Son, Ottawa, where the funeral service was conducted on Wednesday afternoon, July 19, at 2 o'clock. Interment was in Beechwood Cemetery.

QUEBEC THEATRES REOPEN ON REPEAL OF TAX INCREASE

Quebec City's 11 moving picture theatres, closed for five weeks in protest against increase in the civic amusement tax, reopened July 10th, following an agreement between Premier Duplessis and Mayor Lucien Borne for repeal of the amusement surtax.

Announcement of the reopening came shortly after Premier Duplessis in a letter delivered to the Quebec mayor suggested "immediate" disappearance of the tax increase which caused the city's 11 theatres to close June 2 in protest.

Greatest disappointment of the fans over the theatre closing, was loss of newsreels of the tour of Their Majesties in Western Canada and the United States.

YOUTH CAMPS FAVORED

Vocational camps envisioned in the Canadian Corps Association's plan for training unemployed youths would "return dividends to the country from their earliest stages," Col. C. E. Reynolds, president of the association's Ontario division, claimed in a statement at Toronto.

Col. Reynolds, replying to Labor Minister Norman Rogers' statement explaining the Federal Government's rejection of the scheme, held that ultimately such centres would be a source of "vast revenue." In their early stages the chief returns would result from increased tourist traffic made possible by the opening up of new territory by the young men, such as construction of roads from travelled highways in to lakes not yet known to the public.

Eventually the country's wealth would be augmented further through reforestation schemes carried out under the plan. Col. Reynolds said the Government is setting cost of the camps at $50,000,000 yearly, disregarding evidence that the yearly outlay would be "very much less than this amount."

250-LB. ANVIL STOLEN FROM CITY WORKS

Ottawa City Police recently reported a 250-pound anvil had been stolen from under the Bank Street bridge, where some work was in progress by the city. The anvil, the property of the corporation, had not been locked up with the other tools when workmen quit work.

ROYAL GIFT TO POLICE

The New York state police received a $250 cheque from King George VI in recognition of assistance given the King and Queen on their recent visit to the United States.

Major John A. Warner, superintendent of state police, received an autographed photograph of the rulers. He said the cheque would be deposited in the state police private fund.

GUN PERMITS

(Galt Reporter)

It is likely that every law-abiding resident of Ontario will attend conscientiously to the business of the registration and the police will know after July 1 where every harmless revolver is, but will they know about the one that is going to be utilized for the next holdup or for the waylaying of a citizen on the streets?

One revolver in the possession of a criminal or a potential criminal is more dangerous than ten thousand such weapons owned by dependable householders who are more or ness undecided in their own minds as to why they keep these things at all.

Approximately 100 American cities are using parking meters to control traffic congestion in their business districts, the International City Managers' Association reports.

BRITISH SOCIAL SERVICES AT NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

A completely new departure in British Government participation in international exhibitions has been made by devoting a large section of the British pavilion at the New York World's Fair to an official description of British social services. The exhibit, which is known as the Public Welfare Hall, was planned for the Department of Overseas Trade. It presents the wide range and high standard of British social services as a logical expression of modern democracy which does not sacrifice the individual to the State, and preserves personal freedom and self-respect. Special emphasis is laid on housing and slum clearance, national insurance and contributory pensions, the employment and training services of the Ministry of Labor, the health of mother and child, public education, and facilities for leisure and recreation, both bodily and mentally. A separate section is devoted to village life.

Changing Britain

One of the most prominent features, known as "Changing Britain," is a large model, 15 ft. long, which shows in perfect architectural detail a typical British town. The spectator first sees it as it was when the "Mayflower" sailed 300 years ago. The scene then changes before his eyes to the middle of the nineteenth century, with factories and slums jostling each other, and with public health, public education and community services practically unknown. The scene changes finally to the city of today, with its modern social services typified by schools, clinics, community centres, employment exchanges, new housing estates, slum clearance, and so on. The work is not yet complete, but amazing progress has been made, especially since the World War.

The housing section shows how one-third of the population of Great Britain live in houses built within the past 20 years. The ordinary three-bedroom house costs no more than £450, and public subsidies enable thousands of such houses to be let at 10s. to 12s. a week. Slum clearance is graphically illustrated by a working model.

Village Life

The British system of public education is illustrated by a moving model with dozens of tiny figures symbolizing the child's progress up the educational ladder.

Revolving scenes in tinted photomontage show in succession how modern Britain provides services for the care of mother and child at every stage, a contrast with the practices of other times and countries which is justified by the saving of thousands of infants' lives.

The village life section includes a model of a Cotswold village and a number of miniature stage-sets, showing the translation of public health and education services into rural terms as well as modern expressions of the age-long communal feeling of the English village like Remembrance Day and Women's Institutes. Extracts from the parish minutes of Sulgrave (home of the Washington family) show how democratic self-government continues to flourish in small villages as vigorously as at Westminster.

BRANDING RECKLESS DRIVERS

A plan to make motorists safety conscious through embarrassing reckless drivers has been worked out by city officials of Scranton, Pa., according to reports of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The plan involves the painting of circles on the rear of violators' automobiles.

A yellow ring would be painted after the first offense, a red ring after the second violation, and for a third offense, the color would be blue. It is proposed to leave the circles on automobiles for 30 days. The city legal department is studying the plan to determine whether such punishment is lawful.

LEAVES THE WORLD

A line of cars wind slowly o'er the lea,
A hiker plods his absent-minded way
And leaves the world quite unexpectedly!

Boy — "And now, doctor, that I've told you I am going to marry Anne, there's one thing I want to get off my chest."

Doctor — "You must tell me about it, my boy."

Forget What You Heard

You get a very different impression of Germany, her government and her people when you read one of the advertisements of the "German State Railways" appearing in Canadian publications. A picturesque picture of a German town adorns an advertisement in a recent Financial Post. You are invited to "come to beautiful Germany for a thrilling, romantic summer holiday." "You will be warmly welcomed." You will "thrill to the charm of a romantic Rhineland, the glories of the blue Danube; revel in Goethe's Weimar; taste student gaiety at Heidelberg; see the art treasures of Berlin, Dresden, Munich (part of Germany now, you know). Or the supreme musical experience of the festivals of Bayreuth and Salzburg! Or regain your health at one of Germany's world-famous spas." Imagine going to Nazi-land for your health! "You and your family will enjoy a world of pleasure, gaiety, fashion, history, romance, art and sport!"

And there is a "60 per cent reduction in railroad fares for Canadian visitors. Travel marks permit a further saving to you of about 40 per cent on your tourist expenditures. Canadians need no visa. Germany is now as inexpensive as it is delightful!" What a happy world this would be is there were no arms, armaments, wars or rumors of war. We could put our extra energy into the production of goods to enable us all to take a turn at travel in the other fellow's country.

Teaching Children How To Save Lives

A timely article in "Health," official publication of the Health League of Canada, which has been compaigning for a wider knowledge of artificial respiration methods, is contributed by Wills Maclachlan, of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. In this article he says:

"The Schafer method of artificial respiration is sometimes known by someone about watering places and bathing beaches. It is, of all methods, the most satisfactory. It is so simple that it should be familiar to everyone. It is recommended that senior pupils in the schools, both boys and girls, should be taught to practice it. Knowledge of the kind, will sooner or later prove to be a life saver. Employees of public utilities practice it regularly at least once a month. It may be successful even when there has been no perceptible pulse, or other signs of life, for several hours. After the patient has started to breathe, it will be necessary to transport him in a lying position to his home or to a hospital so that he may be put to bed. He must not be allowed to sit up, stand or walk. He must be transported in a lying down position. Experience has taught that under such circumstances the heart is in no condition to stand the strain of sitting up and that, in the past, lives have been lost where the persons have been allowed to stand or walk. In bed, the patient should be treated as for surgical shock — that is, by the use of warmth, quiet and the necessary stimulants.

To summarize:

1. Remove the victim from electrical contact, gas or water as quickly as possible.
2. Start artificial respiration by well trained persons, as promptly as possible.
3. Use warmth. Hot water bottles, blankets, etc.
4. Do not stop artificial respiration until the patient breathes or there are definite signs of rigor mortis.
5. Transport the patient in a lying position to home or hospital and put to bed.

As a final word let me repeat that in cases of electric shock, gas poisoning and apparent drowning, artificial respiration by means of the Schafer method is, of all methods, the simplest and best. Diligently and persistently carried out, it will save the lives of many persons which otherwise would be lost. The method should be learned by everyone."

CENTRAL MORTGAGE BANK

On a floor of the new Bank of Canada building, the new central mortgage bank is also getting down to work. The board of this bank was appointed at the same time as the Defence Purchasing Board. While, however, the defence board can get into full swing without much difficulty as in its main functions it carries on and expands work already being done by the National Defence Department, the bank has a more complicated body to organize. It has to deal with the whole mortgage structure in both town and country throughout the Dominion. An important forward step was taken a few days ago by the appointment of D. B. Mansur as general superintendent of the new bank's operations. He has been inspector of mortgages for the Sun Life Assurance Company. The general policy of the bank will be in the hands of the directorate, of which the governor and deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, and the Deputy Minister of Finance are members with three other members recently appointed. An important duty of the new bank, now being carried out, is securing the lending companies, insurance and trust companies as members of the bank. In co-operation with the bank, these companies will make their agreements with the mortgage debtors under contracts approved by the bank directorate. A task that may take a little while is getting the appraisal machinery in working order, that is the machinery which will help in one of the major aims of the bank, to get the whole mortgage structure of the country down to a position where mortgages will not be over eighty per cent of the appraised value of property and where farm mortgages will not bear interest higher than five per cent and urban mortgages over five and a half per cent. Many regulations will have to be issued defining clearly terms used in the provisions of the central mortgage bank act. Getting the whole new mortgage system under full sail will take a little time, but it is expected that great strides will be made before the first of September. The object before the board, however, is to get everything in working order before the autumn payments on mortgages become due and then and thereafter the provisions of the new act will apply.

NEW TRADE TREATIES

Government officials are now engaged in preliminary steps for the renewal with whatever changes experience has shown to be needed, of our trade agreements with New Zealand and the West Indies. In the case of New Zealand there are new import regulations in that Dominion which will be discussed. The balance of trade is quite heavily in Canada's favor. With British West Indies, exports are of a much more varied kind than imports, but the trade is closer to equilibrium. Imports in this case, however, are higher than exports, the figure for twelve months ending April of this year being about nineteen and three quarter million dollars, while exports aggregated about fourteen and a quarter million. These include not only the islands but British Honduras and British Guiana. The largest item of import is sugar; other commodities imported include fruits, bananas and grapefruit, some fresh vegetables, rice, ginger and spices, cocoa, beans, and coffee.

'Cultivating' a Thirst

To people who think of English ale or German lager as the best beer that can fill a sudsy glass, it may come as a surprise to learn that the best hops in the world are raised on the North American continent. Of the 1,275 acres under hop cultivation in Canada, no less than 1,235 are located within a radius of 20 miles in the Fraser Valley of British Columbia, according to an article by J. G. Scully appearing in the current issue of the "Oval," magazine of Canadian Industries Limited.

The mild climate and fertile soil of the Fraser Valley received the weather-sensitive hop with kindness and the hop responded nobly. But even under such favorable conditions production of earlier days did not reach more than four bales to the acre. Of late years, however, owing to improved commercial fertilizers and the powerful aid of the auxiliaries of industrial chemistry in combating the hop's insect enemies, production has risen to a minimum of eight bales to the acre. In 1937, production attained the figure of 1,500,000 pounds; a solid illustration of the benefits of the progressively more efficient methods of modern husbandry.

FORECASTS . . . . . peace

No mental exercise is more stimulating than to try to imagine how things will be made and done and people will live in the future.

It is rather unsafe for the prophet, however, if he dates the chances too soon, or doesn't have some solid foundation of knowledge of the direction in which the world is heading. Nobody who reads this will be around a hundred years from now to find out whether I've guessed right or not.

For one thing, I feel sure that in another hundred years most of the people living in the world will have found out how to manage to live side by side without fighting. That will make the world of 2039 a happier place for everybody.

It will come about with the steady increase in understanding between peoples. And that will come about through the means of communication, such as radio, television, aviation, moving pictures and still undiscovered applications of them.

A hundred years from now it is unlikely that everybody will speak one language, but I believe that every school will teach the rudiments, at least, of some world language, which might be English or some artificial tongue like Esperanto.

FLYING . . . . . speed

Some time ago a test pilot at the Curtiss-Wright flying field in Buffalo sent his plane through the air at a speed greater than anybody had ever flown before. The speed recording instrument stopped recording at 575 miles an hour, but both the pilot and his passenger agree that they flew even faster than that.

I wouldn't want to guess how fast men will be able to fly a hundred years hence. New materials, new kinds of engines, new devices to control the plane, may easily make it safe to fly at a thousand miles an hour.

As more flying is done the cost will diminish. Then everybody will fly. When a worker can fly to a new job a thousand miles away in a couple of hours at the cost of half a day's wages I think the international barriers against the free exchange of labor will have to break down.

MATERIALS . . . . . future

New kinds of materials for every conceivable purpose are pouring out of the research laboratories so fast today that it is perfectly safe to predict that in a hundred years the everyday things we use and even the homes we live in will be built of substances of which we have as yet only the faintest hints.

To the generations living today celluloid is so commonplace that few can remember when the first of the cellulose plastics was a startling novelty. We use vulcanite or "hard rubber" for a million purposes without thinking how new a product it is.

In a couple of generations I believe that fibrous, flexible and unbreakable glass will be in general use. In a hundred years people will be building their houses out of fabricated plastics and glass bricks, perhaps, and heating them by electric current which will then be cheaper than coal, wood or oil fuels.

INDUSTRY . . . co-operation

In the world of a hundred years hence, so much larger a proportion of the things which people use and even eat will be produced in factories by processes of which we have as yet only a hint, that a greater and greater proportion of all the people will be workers in industries.

In a completely industrialized world I believe the social organization will be far more co-operative as between groups or classes.

Labor will have more than a say in the problems of management and the division of profits, if any. Management will uniformly maintain the best possible relations with Labor. And Capital will have to be content with more modest returns on its investment.

I think it possible that the individual capitalist will have practically disappeared in a hundred years, and that financial resources for the promotion of new industries and the enlargement of old ones will come from pools of capital accrued in the insurance companies, building associations, savings banks and such places, out of the earnings of the workers and the managers themselves.

CHANGE . . . . . human

It is ten to one that my guesses about the future are all wrong, as anyone's must be. But of one thing I am certain. The world and the ways in which people live in it will not come to a fixed stop in a hundred years — not in a thousand or a million years from now.

Whatever the world is like in 2039 there will be great numbers of people who will want to change it. Some of them will merely grumble and complain, but a lot of others will be busy trying to make it easier, more comfortable, and more beautiful to live in.

There will be plenty others who will try to tear down all the new things and go back to the older ways. There will be people trying to get more than their just share of the world's wealth, and others making no contribution at all to the common wealth but demanding that they be supported as well as those who do the world's work.

Human nature is one thing that does not change. But in spite of the defects of human nature, the world and its ways keep on changing forever.

Pros and Cons of Water Chlorination Discussed

stage the supply should need purification measures. Some of the physicians, he said, had stated there had been no typhoid here attributed to the drinking water at any time. . . . Mr. Lafreniere replied that while this might be true, analysis over a long period of years had shown contaminated water and the recommendation to purify it, was nothing new. The danger might prove costly to the public health at any time.

Water "Full of Typhoid"?

Mr. Gall, anxious to abate a disquieting rumor that Lachute's water was "full of typhoid germs" (and for the particular attention of the press) asked the speaker if he could state that this was the case, from analysis of the local water. Mr. Lafreniere explained that no bacteriologist could either deny or affirm the presence of typhoid — since it is not practically possible to isolate such germs in water analysis. The presence of B. Coli (excreta), however, indicated that typhoid or intestinal infection would certainly be present in the water should any such diseases occur in the drainage area above the intake.

Replying to a question by Mr. T. Barron, the speaker also stated that it was impossible to protect a watershed of this nature from contamination; it had been legally established, farmers could not be denied the right to graze cattle, spread manure or otherwise operate the farm lands they owned.

Keen interest was evidenced in questions posed by the audience. Among other facts Mr. Lafreniere stated that, in the event of faulty servicing, there would be no danger to consumers from an overdose of chlorine disinfectant; that purification in no way affected the reaction to soap, i.e., the "hardness" or "softness" of water; and that the St. Jerome water supply is chlorinated the year round.

In view of the fact that samples taken by the County Health Unit over a long period indicated that the Lachute water was unsafe — and viewing the possible consequences of this condition — the speaker left among his listeners a general impression in favor of water chlorination.

Freezing Temperature

The freezing temperature of water is 32 degrees only at normal sea-level air pressure. If you go up on a high mountain where the atmospheric pressure is reduced, water will freeze and remain frozen at temperatures above 32 degrees. This is one reason why snow stays on mountain tops all the year round in some places, even though temperatures rise. In places below sea level, the air pressure is greater and so the freezing point for water is lower than 32 degrees.

Accidental Death Verdict In Highway Tragedy At St. Dorothee

N.Y. CAR IN COLLISION WITH OKA BUS

The death of David Curle, 72, of Newburg, N.Y., passenger who was instantly killed in a car-autobus crash at Ste. Dorothee on Friday night, was accidental, according to verdict given at the coroner's inquiry.

Other passengers in the automobile who were injured were Curle's son, David, 46, who was driving; his daughter-in-law and his granddaughter. David Curle suffered several fractured ribs and cuts about the body, and Mrs. and Miss Curle were cut and bruised. Two others in the back seat escaped injury.

J. P. Gosselin, driver of the Provincial Transport bus on the Montreal-Oka route, said that he had seen the Curles' car approaching a curve at a high rate of speed. Believing that it might have difficulty in rounding the curve, he applied his brakes and slowed the bus down. The approaching car, however, instead of continuing on the new highway, swerved sharply to the left where the old road runs, and the collision ensued.

Ernest Sherman, of St. Eustache, said that he had seen the automobile when it was approximately 200 feet from the scene of the accident. The driver must have mistaken the old cut-off for the new highway, he added. Sherman estimated the speed of the bus at from 20 to 25 miles an hour and that of the Curles' car as "moderate."

American Mining Magazine Features Quebec Prospecting

An interesting picture on the front cover of the July issue of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, draws attention to Quebec prospecting. It portrays a prospector, with fully loaded pack, standing beside his canoe, and is appropriately named "Off to the Bush in Quebec."

The Quebec Bureau of Mines notes an improvement in prospecting this year. While it may not yet be great, it is of notable proportions. The men in the field this summer are of high calibre, prospectors who have been successful in the past. This augurs well for the present and future of mining in Quebec and the province is pleased to have men of this type attracted to its mineral fields.

The continuance of the mining industry rests with the prospector, for without his pioneer work the industry would eventually collapse. Quebec Government has recently enacted legislation with regard to these men which should allow them to reap more substantial returns for their arduous work.

Abandon C.N.R. Branch from Hurdman to Hawkesbury

Application of the C.N. Rlys. for abandonment of the line between Hurdman and Hawkesbury has been granted by the Board of Railway Commissioners. The line, known as the L'Orignal subdivision, runs through 56 miles of mixed farming territory.

In its judgment the board said: "There is no doubt that the abandonment of this line of railway will cause some inconvenience to shippers at the various points but the annual loss to the railway company in cost of operation is far greater than any inconvenience which the public may suffer."

The board directs the company to proceed without delay to place the abandoned right-of-way in the possession of the adjoining landowners either by conveyance subject to trusts or encumbrances heretofore created or by long-term leases at nominal rentals.

Considered Unfair

E. O. Bertrand, M.P. for Prescott, considered it would be unfair to abandon the line even if the local service did show deficits. He believed the line would eventually become a valuable one.

In the judgment Hon. Hugh Guthrie, chairman of the board, said: "In my opinion the line of railway between Hawkesbury and Hurdman must now be considered as merely a branch line running through a good agricultural district, but one which offers little or no prospect of increased railway transportation. Dairying is the chief industry carried on by the farming community and dairy shipments throughout this district, as well as generally throughout Canada, are now being carried to a very large extent by motor transport upon the highways. Apart from the shipment of dairy products, the only other important article of transport is the matter of hay or straw."

Service at Old Mill

Brownsburg — With the lengthening twilight and a balmy breeze and service at the old mill, under the auspices of the United Church, last Sunday evening was much enjoyed by those who attended. Augmenting the singing of old familiar hymns, a duet by Mrs. Cedric Wheeler and Miss Dolly Steere was very acceptably rendered. The sermon was delivered by Rev. S. J. Pike. Another service will be held there next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, when a cordial invitation is extended to all who can attend.

Successful Garden Party Held

On Friday evening last, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Young People's Society and the Young Women's Auxiliary, there was held a garden party on Mr. and Mrs. Alex Pollock's lawn. Under ideal weather conditions, people came together to enjoy a very interesting program. The artists were certainly to be congratulated on their fine entertainment, which they gave so willingly.

May the members of these two church societies take this opportunity of thanking all those who contributed to the program. They also wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Pollock so kindly for the use of their lawn, and all those who attended, making the event so successful; proceeds amounted to $80.

W.A. Lawn Social

Lakefield — On Thursday evening the annual W.A. lawn social was held in the Gibb Parish Hall, and proved a successful event. It had been intended to hold the social on the parsonage grounds but owing to the cold weather it was held in the Parish Hall. Over 200 people enjoyed the varied entertainment provided by Montreal and local talent. Refreshments were served during the evening and community singing was enjoyed by both young and old.

Next to honor, courage is the greatest human quality. Next to the destroyer of honor, the most despicable person is he who supplants another's courage with fear.

Ministers Exchanged Pulpits

St. Andrews E. — Rev. W. B. Rosborough, of Lachute United Church, exchanged pulpits with Rev. J. A. Mowatt for Sunday morning service. He chose for his text, Rev. XXI, verse 1, stressing especially the words, "There was no more sea." One member of the congregation, on looking up the chapter later in the day, happened to use a bible belonging to her grandmother, and found that phrase underlined in blue pencil, and in the margin, "Rev. Mr. Lang, Aug. 31, 1884" — the reference being no doubt to Rev. Gavin Lang, of St. Andrews Church of Scotland in Canada.

Next Sunday Rev. John Heyworth will again conduct an evening service in the United Church at 7.30 (D.S.T.).

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, July 30th.

The Golden Text is from Jude 1:21 "Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" (I John 4:20).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "It should be thoroughly understood that all men have one Mind, one God and Father, one Life, Truth and Love. Mankind will become perfect in proportion as this fact becomes apparent, war will cease and the true brotherhood of man will be established. Having no other gods, turning to no other but the one perfect Mind to guide him, man is the likeness of God, pure and eternal, having that Mind which was also in Christ." (Page 467).

Cancer mortality, which has been so seriously increasing year by year, may have reached its peak. In 1937, the deaths in Canada totalled 11,961; in 1938, 11,980 — a difference of only 19.

50 Years Ago

July, 1889

Jos. Bates, of Avoca, was married recently to Miss Martha Reid, at Lachute, the Rev. John Mackie officiating.

Some local desperadoes broke into Manley's store, Lachute Mills, on Friday night, rifled the till and attempted to break open the safe.

Mr. Hardie, of Brownsburg, came into Lachute on Saturday night and left his horse in Lamarche's shed. Upon returning he found it gone, and did not recover it until next morning when it was found tied to a telegraph pole on the road to St. Philippe. The culprits were tracked and compelled to make good the damages.

The Methodist Sunday School held their picnic in Wm. Polson's grove, and during the afternoon Captain Howard kindly conducted a large number through the Cartridge Factory.

About 500 members of loyal Orangemen were in attendance at the annual picnic, and a fine dinner was provided by Mr. W. Burch, Alex McRae playing the pipes and Prof. McLean of Avoca the big drum.

July, 1914

Last week Jno. Hay, M.P.P., visited the northern part of the county and in Arundel he met the school commissioners and a number of others from the district who assembled in Staniforth's Hall. Mr. Hay made announcement that the Provincial Government had consented to give the sum of $1,600 toward the erection of a model school building. A vote of thanks was immediately tendered.

For the Boa Trophy at Brownsburg, Mr. Golphin made a good showing with 22 out of 25, and Messrs. A. M. Campbell and S. Watson made good scores, all the others falling behind, due principally to the heavy thunder clouds in the background.

The death of two old and respected residents of Cushing is recorded, in the persons of Mr. Robert Sittlington, for a number of years lockmaster at Stonefield, also Mr. Robert Davidson, who had but recently disposed of his farm near St. Philippe and with his wife and daughter, Miss Alice, was temporarily staying with his sister-in-law, Miss B. Nichols.

AT THE NATIONAL ART GALLERY

The National Art Gallery and the Museum must be a considerable factor in education. Each time I have been there, I have been struck with the number of young people who were there. There are always a few youngsters who flit hither and yon, without paying much attention to anything. These are only a handful. There are some of collegiate age but more in the stages just beyond that, and these look interested and are really seeing things. A pioneer country has not much time for art and the finer things generally, being too much concerned with the realities of living. We are past the pioneering stage now and our young people are increasingly interested in what might be called the cultural side of life. This is evidenced at the Art Gallery, and I have seen it, as there is only a sprinkling of older people present, the rest all being definitely young.

A REPORT CUTS TWO WAYS

"What Luck," the autobiography of A. A. Milne has been published in The Atlantic Monthly. He was a guest at a dinner of preparatory schoolmasters. The burden of the speeches was the obstructiveness of parents to their beneficient labors. Mr. Milne made a speech, although he had disclaimed any desire to do so. He told of having given his son a choice, that very evening, of a proposition in Euclid or a chapter from Treasure Island, as a bedtime story, and the lad chose the Euclid, as it was much more fun. He goes on to say, "All children are like that. There is nothing that they are not eager to learn. And then we send them to your schools, and in two years, three years, four years, you have killed all their enthusiasm. At fifteen their only eagerness is to escape learning anything." It was not a popular speech. To quote still further: "A school report cuts both ways; it is a report on the teacher as well as on the taught. 'Seems completely uninterested in this subject' may mean no more than the master is completely uninteresting." His father had a school, and he says, "In Papa's house it was natural to be interested, it was easy to be clever."

THE INFORMATIVE WASH

The funny-papers often have jokes about knowing things from the neighbor's wash. There is something in it. Ordinarily, I wouldn't know as I am not much for noticing things, and am not very curious. However, there is a wash I cannot help seeing as it hangs directly in front of my eyes, when I am at my desk. I can tell a lot about this household. Incidentally, it is of one of our best known public men, a name you all know. I know the family is industrious. When I get up at 7.30, one line of washing is out every Monday morning. I know they are thrifty, as well-placed patches are to be seen. I know they are clean, as the curtains and the furnishings are washed so often. I know their house is well-stocked by the size of the washings. I know the wife is interested in handwork. I have never seen so many quilts in any one house before. Day after day, literally, for weeks, there have been hand-made quilts on the line. Sometimes just one, sometimes more. I have envied her those quilts as some of them are beauties. I know the man has an old-fashioned streak, as he wears long union suits and flannelette nightgowns. And yet this family would certainly say I knew nothing about them. They'd be surprised! It makes me think of a Scotch woman who did my washing for a while. She used to take it home as she had an electric ironer and it seemed silly to do it here and use a hand iron. She told me one day she liked to take it home as she wanted the neighbors to see it hanging on the line.

MOTHER-MADE FEARS

Mothers are too often responsible for fears in children. Too many mothers are over-anxious and make cowards of their children. If they do not become full of fears, their lives are made miserable because they cannot do what other children can. There are too many grown-ups who cannot swim because their mothers were afraid to let them go in the water. Children should be trained to be careful but not to be afraid. It is good for children to do things and to exercise all their powers. We mothers have too much imagination. We sit at home and suffer when the children go swimming, as we are sure they will go beyond their depth. We just know they are going to be run over by a car. We can think up the direst disasters when they are a few minutes late. If we betray our anxiety we spoil their pleasures. If we talk too much about them, we lessen the value of our cautions. Help them by teaching them to do things properly, then let them develop common-sense by giving them a chance to exercise it. Mother-made fears are too common.

HAM LOAF

1 lb. smoked ham, 1 lb. fresh pork, 1 cup breadcrumbs, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, speck of pepper, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 tablespoon brown sugar.

Remove most of the fat from the meat and put through the chopper. Add the beaten egg, milk, crumbs and pepper (no salt), and mix well. Put in a buttered loaf tin and sprinkle the top with mustard and the brown sugar, which have been mixed together. Bake in a slow oven of 250 degrees for 2½ hours. Serve cold with horse-radish.

BUTTER TARTS

Three tablespoons butter; 1 cup granulated sugar; 1 egg; 1 cup currants. Cream the butter and sugar and add the beaten egg and stir in the currants. Put a teaspoonful of this mixture in unbaked tart shells. The secret of success with this recipe is in the baking. Bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees for ten minutes, then reduce the temperature to 350 degrees. In an electric oven I turn off the top heat and the lower to medium for five minutes, then turn off the heat completely and let the tarts bake in the declining temperature. These are good any time of the year but they make a grand picnic dessert and a little squashing doesn't ruin them.

More than 8,800 women sailors now work aboard Soviet ships, according to recent figures. Nearly 22,000 work on river boats on the Volga and other streams, including mechanics and several skippers.

HOUSE AND HOME

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

"Al fresco" meals for week-end guests — and in the twinkling of an eye, even if the hostess is her own cook! Of course, the guests are impressed by the efficiency and admire the ease and charm of the hostess who can accomplish such apparent magic. But remember that back of every meal that appears with little or no effort there is clever planning and intensive preparation.

Paradoxical as it may seem, you will save yourself much work if you serve your guests breakfast in bed. It saves all the dining-room work, and gives many precious minutes for those tasks you want to get out of the way by yourself.

I have light-weight tin trays that I painted myself that are just the right size to hold a light breakfast of toast and coffee and fruit. Small two-cup coffee pots, individual sugars and creamers and covered toast plates are available to fit any pocket-book.

From the guest point of view, breakfast in bed will be luxury. She will feel that you are the Perfect Hostess, and will sing your praises to the skies.

If you prefer to serve a late, hearty breakfast, serve it on the porch, and serve in buffet fashion. This enables your guests to string along in a leisurely manner, and keeps your dining-room clear. Foods cooked and served in heatproof dishes will keep hot and palatable for the late comers. If the food must be re-heated, it's no trick at all to warm it in its own dish.

All meals are delightful served outdoors and quite simple menus are desirable. A luncheon of salad with rolls and a fruit shortcake with coffee can be served within ten minutes after you come in from church or a game of golf.

Prepare the salad and arrange it in its bowl ready for serving. Cover closely with a refrigerator "cap" or with two thicknesses of waxed paper fastened securely with rubber bands. Split and butter the rolls and put them in a covered glass baking dish ready to re-heat. Serve them in the same dish to keep them piping hot.

Make and bake your shortcake and then reheat it while you are eating the salad.

Make all these preparations while your guest is having her breakfast in bed.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

The Screen as a Lifesaver

Who was the first man, or woman, who thought of screening doors and windows? History fails to name this benefactor of mankind. Yet more lives have been saved in the last quarter of a century by the use of the simple screen door than can ever be calculated.

The first screen door or screen window may have been a hundred years ago, or more. But it is only within the memory of the middle-aged of today that this protection against flies came into common use. It is not long ago that if you went to a country hotel for dinner, you had to fight for your food. Before you could get a spoonful of sugar you had to chase away a regiment of flies. They covered every eatable in sight.

On the farms they were worse than in the cities, because of their preference for stables and barns. Laying their eggs in manure piles, or garbage, or other disgusting places, they flew into the house to carry filth wherever they alighted. If there were no such thing as a germ, the very thought of the offensive nature of dirt carrying house flies makes one wonder how civilized people could have tolerated them for so long. Even today so many households, in town and country, are so careless about the presence of flies that at this season of the year it may be especially timely to recite a few facts about the common house fly.

A single female fly will lay about 120 eggs at one time. As it requires only 10 to 14 days for the growth of a generation from egg to adult fly, there may be 12 generations in a summer. That means countless millions of flies from a single fly during the summer season.

Flies are not merely dirty in their contacts between disgusting objects and exposed food, but they are the carriers of disease.

Biting flies, such as the horse-fly, which abounds particularly in stables and houses, infect by piercing the skin. Non-biting flies, such as the house-fly, transmit diseases by transfer or infection on their bodies and legs, but especially with their excreta.

Flies can fly eight miles in a single day. They are strong on the wing. They may, therefore, bring disease germs to a home from infected dumps miles away.

Typhoid fever, cholera, dysentry and other intestinal diseases are especially transmitted by flies. Anthrax, erysipilas and skin infections are commonly carried by flies. Tuberculosis, leprosy and many other diseases are spread by these persistent enemies of mankind.

The suppression of the common house fly may be accomplished by striking at their breeding places. Since automobiles have so largely replaced horses, there has been a noticeable abatement of the fly nuisance in cities. But there are other points of attack. One is the garbage receptacle. It should always be kept covered and the garbage wrapped before being placed in it. Outdoor toilets are favorite spots for flies to lay their eggs and are an especially dangerous source of infection, the flies carrying the germs to the house. Where such open toilets are necessary, chloride of lime should be kept on hand and used freely. Summer camps should not only be protected in this manner but a chloride solution should always be used in the washing of camp tables and dishes.

After all possible efforts are made to reduce the fly population there will still remain the problem of keeping the germ carriers away from human contact. That is what makes door and window screening more than a mere comfort — a protection against disease.

Never let a fly into your house!

FASTING

Men of all nations have been "faddists," since the dawn of recorded history.

Smindyrides, the Sabyrite, started a cult which had as its basic idea the thought that it was wrong to see the sun rise or set, and for twenty years he never witnessed this phenomenon.

Faddists, before the time of Christ, lived on raw vegetables, roots and herbs, eschewing meats of all kinds. Others subsisted entirely on milk. The early Etheopians wondered how the first white men they saw could live on bread when the only diet they knew was raw meat — which incidentally they prefer to this day.

In Greece, lived a group that ate raw fish and drank only sea water. The Emperor August ate only a crust of dried bread for supper and had one division of his army do the same thing.

Seneca, the philosopher, was a dry bread faddist, and always ate standing up because he argued that it was easier for his food to enter his stomach, when in that position. He, too, established a school of fool food faddists.

When Rome was in its greatest glory, the entire nation, following the faddistic teachings of some now forgotten man, ate but one meal a day, and that only after the sun had set, because they argued that the quiet of the evening was the right time to assimilate food, and not the busy hours of the day while engaged in work.

Herodotus of Halicarnassus, who lived in Egypt 2,500 years ago, started a fad which he observed while travelling in the land of the Pharos—that of fasting three days each month, refusing even a drink of water during these periods of abstinence.

Savage tribes, of Africa, the Pacific Islands, and North and South American Indians, fasted for days before going on a hunt and their women folks did the same when their men were away fighting.

There is no doubt but that in some cases fasting does benefit the individual, while in other instances it has the opposite effect. It is remarkable how long one can exist without food or drink.

Only recently a convict refused food or water for sixty-three days, desiring to commit suicide, and accomplished his purpose, while a newly born infant, left in a paste-board box in a railway station baggage room, where its unfortunate mother had checked it, actually went for five days without sustenance of any kind, when taken to a hospital, made a quick recovery from its imposed fasting.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

It is interesting to know that the Cuala Industries in Dublin are to be continued. This organization was founded by two famous Irish women, the Misses Elizabeth and Lily Yeats, sisters of the late William Butler Yeats, the poet, and of Jack Yeats, the artist.

To perpetuate the industries a board of directors has been appointed and a new corporation formed to take over supervision of the Cuala Publications and the Cuala Press, and Miss Elizabeth Yeats will continue as secretary and managing director. Recently a few American friends formed the Cuala Associates to foster a broader appreciation in America of the Cuala achievements, which include, besides exquisitely bound volumes, embroideries of great beauty.

A circus has to have a wardrobe lady just as any stage production has, and Mrs. Margaret Graham, wardrobe mistress for the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus, says she is the happiest woman in the show.

She has been in the business ever since she was a girl, and she hopes to stay in it all her life. As a cowgirl with Buffalo Bill Cody's show she had a grand time until the show was stranded. Then she joined the circus and was a bareback rider for a long time. But she likes her present job even more than riding. She loves beautiful clothes but isn't above making an elephant blanket.

Mme. Daniel Vavasseur is the first women to earn the appointment as Administrative Voting Commissioner of France, though women have no vote in that country as yet. Mme. Vavasseur is a member of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

A RARE SCENE IN WESTERN CANADA

These men don't want to be unemployed, so they gather outside the land office at Hudson Bay Junction, Sask., waiting to file on homesteads. The opening up of land in that area around Prairie River district of north-eastern Saskatchewan started a minor land boom. Twenty-five years ago this scene was common at land offices in Western Canada, but today it is very unusual.

Curling, Played on Ice; Sixteenth Century Game

Curling is a Sixteenth century game which, like golf, was invented by the Dutch and popularized by the Scotch. It is strictly a winter pastime and is played on ice. It is a leisurely and homey looking sport in which the high point of action occurs when a pair of old gaffers with ordinary housecleaning brooms start sweeping like mad in front of what appears to be a tea kettle skidding along the ice. The curling stone, which is a curved piece of granite weighing about 38 pounds, gets its tea kettle appearance from the handle which spouts out of its top side, writes Tom Reilly in the New York World-Telegram.

It is strictly a team game, with four men playing on a side. Just to make it a bit more confusing these combinations are known to the fancy as "rinks" rather than teams. The most important man in any "rink" is called the "skip," which seems to be an abbreviated way of calling him "skipper" or captain. Each man has a broom and after the stone starts sliding they sweep in front of it when the "skip" commands.

Curling really is a combination of bowls and shuffleboard. The length of each court or "sheet" is 138 feet "from hack to hack." A "hack" is nothing more than a small board inserted into the ice at each end of the "sheet" and on which the man about to curl the stone puts his foot, much as a pitcher toes the slab. In front of each hack are three large concentric circles, and it is the object of the game to toe the hack at one end of the sheet and spin the stone as nearly to the center of the circles on the other end as is possible. After all eight men have had their shots the stones are measured as in quoits and the score announced. The players start first at one end of a sheet and then reverse. Fourteen "ends" or trips up and down the "sheet" constitute a match.

University Foundations For Support of Students

A fellowship is a university foundation designed for the support of students. The institution arose in the Middle ages and originally was nothing more than a charitable foundation to defray the cost of lodging and board for needy students. At a later period it was generally granted after tests of fitness.

In the English universities, where the fellowship system attained its greatest development, the fellows were at first undergraduates, but gradually came to be chosen from those already holding the university degree. In American universities fellowships are regularly distinctions conferred to enable students to pursue advanced graduate work as distinguished from scholarships, though the term scholarship is occasionally used in this sense. They are usually endowed by private donors and produce incomes varying in amounts, tenable for terms of one to three years, states a writer in the Indianapolis News. They are usually open to the graduates of other colleges, and are assigned either on competitive examination or as an honorary distinction. Holders are generally expected to pursue their studies at the institution conferring the fellowship and to perform certain duties. In some cases holders may be permitted to study at other institutions, and some fellowships are specifically intended for work in foreign schools.

The number of endowed graduate fellowships has rapidly increased. Some universities offer a definite number of special fellowships, and a number of indeterminate fellowships, depending on the standing and number of applicants.

Holiday Activities at Joly's Farm

An able committee composed of Mr. Romeo Rivest, Mr. George Crothers, Mr. Catley and Mr. Pearson of Montreal, and Mr. E. A. Sweeney, of New York City, while Mrs. Romeo Rivest, Mrs. George Crothers and Miss Josephine Wiltshire planned a program which was zestfully entered into by all.

On Wednesday a baseball game was keenly contested by the "Has Beens" vs. the "Never Was," captained by Mr. Bill Henwick and Mr. Hart Young, resulting in a tied score. Mr. E. A. Sweeney was congratulated on his expert umpiring.

Mr. Rivest, assisted by Mr. Crothers and Mr. Pearson, directed water sports Thursday afternoon and land events in the evening. A reception was held at which prizes were distributed to the winners as follows:

Blind Race, free for all: Mr. Hart Young.

A bonfire was enjoyed Friday night on the sandy beach. The committee provided refreshments and the guests entertained with songs, stories, and music. Prizes were awarded to Miss Florence Rybinick for a delightful Czechoslovakian song and to Mr. George Crothers for his rendition of "Down by the Old Mill Stream." On returning to the house a pleasant hour was passed in dancing.

The Right of Every Citizen

As a speaker at the recent Canadian Public Health Association Convention said: "Whether the doctors like it or not, some kind of health insurance is bound to come to Canada."

This was in line with the statement of the Dominion Minister of Pensions and National Health, at the Health League dinner in Toronto, when he referred to the fact that 34 countries in the world have some form of health insurance, Great Britain looking after 19,000,000 people in this manner. He added: "I don't believe that Canada will be far behind."

With the growing public sentiment in favor of some form of insurance against loss of time through illness as well as the cost of illness, it may be that the solution will be in a co-operative scheme between municipal, provincial and federal authorities, as the Hon. C. G. Powers has suggested. At all events, most health-minded citizens will commend his statement that "every citizen is entitled to protection from disease as he is to police protection for his property and person." — Winchester Press
