Promising Grain Crops Suffer Toll Of Heat and Dry Weather

HEAVY BUSINESS ON SECTIONS OF TRANS-CANADA AIRWAYS; TOURIST AUTO TRAFFIC IN JUNE EXCEEDED LAST YEAR

Election Date Is Still In Abeyance

Ottawa Spotlight—Parliament Hill is still in quandary about the election date. Perhaps some expert crystal gazer might discern the date in the glass, but there is a great difference of opinion among those you happen to run into on Parliament Hill. The last word of the Prime Minister on the subject, given after last week's Cabinet meeting, was that he hadn't made up his mind about it. The question remained in the same position as when he had discussed it with newspapermen before. It was simply this : that with conditions in Europe as they still are, he did not feel that the Government would be justified in dissolving Parliament. The announcement that a by-election would be held on September 25th in the Calgary seat formerly held by Mr. Bennett, although this was simply in accord with constitutional requirements, gave the general impression that the general election would not come for some little time. There is, however, a fairly strong feeling that the contest will come before the year is over. It isn't likely that any announcement of dissolution will come at the same time and that would be issued from the Capital.

Excessive heat and dry weather have taken disturbing toll of crops not only in the West but in sections of the East as well. After nature, however erratic it may be, had dealt in such a kindly way with crops during the major season of growth, it has been distressing to witness the damage in the ripening season. Mr. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, who recently returned to Ottawa from a trip to the prairie provinces, told reporters that "the beating that the crop had taken recently is not generally realized." In Western Ontario, fruit and grain crops have also suffered quite severely although peaches and plums are still plentiful. Good rainfalls would mean literally millions to orchard owners and tobacco growers. And of course dry weather means greater hazard of fires in forest areas. In Northern Ontario forestry aeroplanes have been keeping constant watch throughout daylight hours.

Motorists Injured In Two Highway Accidents

LADY PASSENER BADLY HURT IN CRASH

TWO YOUTHS INJURED AS BLOW-OUT CAUSES MISHAP

A woman passenger was injured Sunday evening when a Chrysler sedan driven by Mrs. G. W. Mitchell, 25 Crescent Heights, Ottawa, swerved in loose gravel at a corner eight miles east of town on the St. Jerome highway. The car turned over after leaving the gravel, in the neighborhood of the electric transformers at the Mirabel road. Mrs. Mitchell and passengers had been visiting a girls' camp near Ste. Marguerite, and were returning to Ottawa. The injured woman was brought to Lachute, and received treatment from Dr. J. H. Mason for cuts about the neck and chest. The other occupants of the car all received cuts and bruises in the crash, and the automobile was badly wrecked.

Two unemployed young men, in their early twenties, were brought to Lachute for medical attention Tuesday night after their ramshackle car, a 1928 Chevrolet, turned over twice and landed in a ditch near Belle Rivière, on No. 8 Highway. The pair were driving from Montreal to Ottawa in search of work.

The mishap occurred about 5 p.m., when a blow-out caused the driver to lose control and the car somersaulted into the ditch. A passing motorist brought the youths to Arthur's Corners, and a nurse rendered first aid. At 11 o'clock p.m. they were driven in to Lachute, where Dr. W. F. McMartin dressed their injuries. One, Edward Leonard, was suffering from a scalp wound and cuts, while his companion, Jos. Lewis, was also cut and bruised.

The car was left at Belle Rivière and the travellers were given a lift to Ottawa by an obliging motorist.

This generation is reported to be much slower in paying its bills than the last. The early settlers have passed away. — Ottawa Citizen

C.P. Express Chief Dies Suddenly at Huberdeau

SUCCUMBED TO HEART ATTACK AFTER SWIMMING

Alfred Chester Thorn, general superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Express Company, died suddenly at Huberdeau on Sunday morning, in his 59th year. Holidaying there, Mr. Thorn suffered a heart attack shortly after having gone for a swim.

Dr. Henry, of Huberdeau, was summoned but medical aid was unavailing. The death, reported to the district coroner here, was pronounced due to natural causes.

Mr. Thorn was born at London, Ont., and educated there and at Toronto. He moved to Quebec City in 1899 and entered the service of the company at that point on July 6, 1903, as clerk. He advanced steadily in the company's personnel, and was appointed general superintendent of eastern lines with headquarters in Toronto, in July, 1937.

Invasion of Grasshoppers, Farmers Cut Grain

For the first time in several years grasshoppers have invaded the district around Hawkesbury, and have caused considerable damage. One farmer across the Ottawa River had a whole field of grain devoured. Others, fearing that their fields would be a total loss, have cut their grain, although it is only about half grown.

Week-Ender from Montreal Drowned in North River Near St. Andrews

WEEK-END FISHING TRIP HAS FATAL OUTCOME

A verdict of "accidental death while crazed with alcohol" was returned by a jury Sunday evening inquiring into the drowning of Fernand Pepin, 28-year-old Montrealer, who was a member of a week-end fishing party at La Baie, St. Andrews East.

The jury under Coroner Dr. J. H. Mason, of Lachute, were told that Pepin with three other men and a woman had arrived at St. Andrews at 9.30 Saturday morning. Pepin had gone fishing in a boat that evening with a man named Boileau and a disagreement between the two men had ensued. Another man named Bertrand, in whose cottage they were camping, went to the village with Boileau, leaving the premises in charge of J. Dupuis This young man gave evidence that Pepin, during the night, had appeared around the premises and acted in an erratic manner, damaging the property. At 4.30 o'clock Sunday morning Dupuis had seen him walk to the river in a frenzy, and he had either stepped or fallen into the water. The man quickly sank beneath the surface and was drowned.

Provincial Police Officers E. Anderson, of Lachute, and Henri Beauregard, of Montreal, had been summoned to the scene during the disturbance, and they corroborated the evidence as to the victim's condition. The jury deliberated after hearing the testimony of other witnesses, and returned their verdict.

It is stated here that Pepin is survived by a wife and family of eight children.

PATRIOTIC SENATORS

(Victoria Daily Colonist)

Conservative Senators who voted in favor of railway unification were described by some critics as insurgents. Others will prefer to think of them as wholly concerned on the issue with the welfare of the taxpayers.

Veteran Pair Last Members of Local Cavalry Troop

WM. TODD, LACHUTE ROAD, CELEBRATES 90th BIRTHDAY

OLD MEMORIES REVIVED IN FRIENDLY CONFAB

There was tall talk when two old-timers of the Fenian Raid got together recently and revived their earlier experiences. The pair, both familiar with the pioneer growth of this countryside, were William Todd, nonagenarian of Lachute Road, and William H. Center, aged 87, a native of Geneva Settlement, who left these parts half a century ago and lives now in Martintown, Glengarry County. Mr. Todd, who celebrated his 90th birthday on July 20 last, visited his veteran colleague across in Ontario a short time ago. It was many years since they had met. Both are keen of intellect and the memories they recalled were as vivid as yesterday. These two are the last of the old St. Andrews Cavalry Troop, which played its memorable part in the Fenian Raid manoeuvres.

Mr. Todd, well known in this county, has spent his entire life in the farming community of Lachute Road. His advancing age has left him partially blind, but he enjoys the mellowing years of his span to the fullest extent. Mr. Center was a cousin of the late Stephen Center. From their family the community of Centerville gets its name.

The snapshot showing these two old friends was taken in front of a blacksmith shop adjoining William Center's home in Glengarry County, during Mr. Todd's last visit.

Council Still Dubious on Force of Department's Chlorination Ordinance

At the meeting of Lachute Town Council held last evening in the council chamber, Alderman Jas. McGibbon moved that the secretary communicate with Theo. Lafreniere, engineer of the Quebec Health Department, notifying him of the result on referendum for water chlorination, and asking him if the order issued was still to be put into effect.

Alderman C. Durocher was elected pro-mayor for the ensuing three months.

The Agricultural Society application for grant of $125 was presented to council.

Alderman E. Prevost gave notice of motion to borrow the necessary funds for installation of a chlorination plant, if same is to be put into operation.

SOOTHING WORDS LURED COW AWAY

A despondent cow apparently attempted to commit suicide at Miller's Falls, Mass., recently, by lying down on the main line of the Central Vermont Railway a few minutes before the fast freight train "Rocket" was due. Four sectionmen vainly attempted to move the animal with shovels, ropes, halters and words. Finally the owner, an unidentified woman, arrived, addressed the cow in soothing Italian. The animal sighed, rose and was led away.

Father, Son Killed By Lightning Bolt At St. Canut

FARMER AND YOUTH STRUCK IN FIERCE ELECTRIC STORM

Theodule Gauthier, 57-year-old farmer of St. Canut, and his 22-year-old son, Henri, were killed instantly when struck by lightning during a fierce electric storm in that section, around noon on Monday.

Both men had left their farmhouse at 9 o'clock in the morning to do their regular chores. When they failed to return for the noon-hour meal, Mrs. Gauthier became worried and a search party was organized. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon another son, Lionel, discovered the bodies of his father and brother lying about four feet from each other under a huge maple, some distance behind the farmhouse. Both bodies were badly singed. The men had apparently sought shelter from the storm under the maple when the lightning struck.

Dr. Guillaume Latour, of St. Jerome, coroner for the district, was notified of the tragedy and held a brief inquest at which he returned a verdict of accidental death.

Though electrical storms occurred over the lower Laurentian area during the day, no other casualties were reported and no damage was caused. The rainfall, however, was heavy.

BIG ENGINE PLAYED LEADING STAGE ROLE

Six hundred and fifty thousand pounds of glittering blue and silver machinery — locomotive 6400 of the Canadian National Railways which hauled the Royal train of King George and Queen Elizabeth on part of their Canadian tour — is playing the star role in the spectacular drama, "Railroads on Parade," presented daily at the New York World's Fair. The big engine has the leading part in the grand finale of the railroad presentation in which more than 200 people appear.

Royal Symbol on New District Phone Directory

To commemorate the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to Canada, the Royal coat of arms, printed in Royal blue ink, adorns the cover of the new Laurentian telephone directory for Lachute and vicinity, which has just been distributed by mail to local subscribers of the Bell Telephone.

"The Royal coat of arms replaces the familiar Greek god symbolic of the Spirit of Communication, as the only decoration on the cover of the new directory," explained J. J. Morrin, Bell manager for this district. "It is framed, top and bottom, by the Company's name, the date of issue, and the points to which distribution is made.

"Altogether, there are 4,500 changes recorded. About 3,800 of these new and revised listings are in the white pages of the directory, showing subscribers' names, addresses, and telephone numbers. Nearly 700 changes appear in the yellow pages of the classified section.

"In view of the large number of changes made since the last issue of the directory," Mr. Morrin remarked, "the need for carefully consulting the book before placing calls is obvious, if 'wrong numbers' are to be avoided."

Lack of Interest Seen In Referendum

TWO THIRDS MAJORITY AGAINST PROJECT

General apathy to the question of water purification in this town — in spite of a public discussion with Theo Lafreniere, provincial chemical engineer, two days previously in Lachute Auditorium — was shown in a total ballot of 245 out of a possible 1,200 voters last Friday. A two-thirds majority registered against the chlorination project, in the two polls — the total vote being 173 against and 71 in favor, with one ballot spoiled.

Mr. Lafreniere met the Mayor and Council prior to his discourse here on the subject of chlorination, and although the provincial ordinance was issued to enforce adequate and prompt measures to purify the water supply, it was decided to proceed with the referendum on Friday and ascertain the opinion of the public. Proprietors and tenants of the town were eligible to vote, but the response showed lack of interest or understanding in the question involved.

Weekly Publishers Holding Twentieth Annual Meeting

CONFERENCE OPENS TODAY; VISIT TO WORLD'S FAIR

GATHER FOR SESSIONS AT NIAGARA

Representatives of weekly newspapers from coast to coast, numbering close to 300, are gathering today at the General Brock Hotel, Niagara Falls, for the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association's twentieth annual convention. The three-day sessions will be followed by a trip to New York, where members and their wives will be entertained by various organizations and officials during their two-day visit to the World's Fair.

Representing The Watchman at this conference, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Giles are attending from Lachute.

During business sessions at the Falls, the ladies of the gathering are being entertained to afternoon tea and sight-seeing tours on the opening afternoon. Dinner at the Park Restaurant, as guests of the Niagara Parks Commission, will conclude the Thursday sessions.

At noon on Friday, following addresses and forums, delegates will adjourn to visit the Canadian Cyanamid Plant and be entertained to lunch at that Company's restaurant. Afternoon sessions will be given over entirely to group forums, led by representative weekly editors across Canada. A visit to the Whirlpool Rapids will be preceded by afternoon tea for the ladies of the party by courtesy of the Shredded Wheat Company.

The Association's much anticipated event — the trophy dinner — will be held Friday evening, when winners of the various competitions will be presented with their trophies and prizes. A dance on the Rainbow Balcony, as guests of the hotel management, will end the Friday sessions.

Concluding the business on Saturday noon, members will gather for luncheon as guests of Mr. Vernon Knowles, with Wm. J. Stewart, C.B.E., ex-Mayor of Toronto, as guest speaker. A trip to the old fort at Fort Erie via bus will be made by the entire party on Saturday afternoon, and members remaining over for the New York trip will end the day with a supper dance at the Convention Hotel.

A group of over 150 will leave Sunday morning via the New York Central Railroad, for New York City, to enjoy two full days and three nights at the Fair.

All in all, Mr. C. V. Charters, Managing-Director of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, has succeeded in lining up a very fine program of practical as well as entertainment events, and a record attendance is expected to celebrate the 20th birthday of the Association.

High School Youth Drowning Victim At Rivington

JURY GIVES VERDICT OF ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Morris Bates, 17, a popular young High School pupil, lost his life while bathing in the Rouge River at Rivington early Thursday evening, July 27th. Morris, son of David J. Bates, of Lachute, who has a residence also at Harrington — had gone to the river with a number of friends. Not being able to swim, he had stayed close to shore while his companions went into deeper water. When the swimmers came ashore they missed Bates. Searching around the spot where he had disappeared they found his body later in 10 feet of water.

A jury empanelled by Coroner J. H. Mason, M.D., of Lachute, held an inquest that evening at the Bates residence. The coroner examined Hugh McCabe, whose evidence was corroborated by Fred Leedham, another of the victim's companions. The verdict was accidental drowning.

Morris Bates is survived by his father; three sisters, Mona, Verna and Ivy, and one brother, Lawrence.

At the funeral, held Saturday afternoon at his father's home on Foundry Street, a large attendance of young friends gave evidence of the boy's popularity. Grief and sympathy in his untimely passing were shown in a beautiful array of flowers. Rev. W. B. Rosborough, of Lachute United Church, referred to the young man's activities in the Young People's Society, and in other wholesome enterprises among the youth of school and church.

The body was laid to rest in Lachute Cemetery. Pall-bearers were Roy Bedard, Gilbert Scott, Victor Thorburn, William Murdock, Gerald Riddell and Hugh MacCabe — all school friends or associates of the young victim.

Continue Negotiations on Project to Establish Silk Hosiery Plant

INDUSTRIALIST OUTLINES PROPOSITION

An interview between town representatives and A. J. Lallemand, Montreal agent for J. Terrey, industrialist of Alverson, Pa., has been followed by conferences regarding a project to establish a silk hosiery mill in Lachute. Mr. Terrey and his colleagues visited Lachute last Friday and again on Tuesday, to view possible sites and to discuss details of his scheme with councillors and members of the Board of Trade.

Mr. Terrey — with A. J. Lallemand, W. J. Terrey, J. McDonald and D. S. Johnston — referred to his successes in establishing similar mills in the United States and Eastern Canada. He sought the co-operation of interested citizens here, following out his plan to erect a modest plant for the manufacture of silk hosiery and to expand as the industry warranted increased operation.

Mayor W. S. MacKimmie and other members of the Board of Trade had a further interview with Mr. Lallemand in Montreal on Wednesday afternoon. It is understood that other locations are being investigated by the promoters as a site for their proposed factory.

Safety Code Booklet Is Issued for Bicyclists

Over 6,000 copies of the Quebec Safety League's "Bicyclists' Safety Code" have already been distributed. This is part of the campaign by the Safety League to educate bicycle riders in their duties on the road.

The Verdun Police have taken 1,000 copies; the Hull Police department 2,000; the Lévis Police, 200; the Westmount Police, 2,000; and an order has been placed for another 2,000 copies by Deputy Inspector T. O. Leggett of the Montreal Traffic Department.

Chief W. Gough, of the Westmount Police Department, in a letter to the Safety League states that he thinks this code is excellent and that every person riding a bicycle should have one for his information; this pamphlet is printed in pocket-size form with an attractive illustration on the cover page.

ANTI-JEW CAMPAIGN IS STARTED IN STE. AGATHE

WOULD KEEP VILLAGE FRENCH-CANADIAN

BILINGUAL PLACARDS BID JEWS "SCRAM"

The anti-Jewish drive which received publicity earlier this season from St. Faustin and other Laurentian villages, came to a head last week-end in Ste. Agathe with the leadership of the Catholic clergy. A sermon was preached to French-Canadian parishioners by Canon J. B. Charland on the importance of "remaining masters in our own community."

Warning against the use of any violence, Canon Charland commented on the anti-Jewish placards posted all over the village during the night of Friday-Saturday, emphasizing that these "had not been inspired by us." More than 200 of these posters were removed Saturday morning—a few by the police, the remainder by Jewish residents.

The bilingual notices warned the Jews in English—"Jews are not wanted here in Ste. Agathe, so scram while the going is good." The French version was "Jews are not wanted here; Ste. Agathe is a French-Canadian village and we will keep it so."

Believed to have brought the drive into the open was the recent arrest of a man for "obstruction of traffic," allegedly for refusing to make way on the sidewalk for other pedestrians to pass.

Police Chief A. Bergeron admitted that he had expected trouble Saturday night as rumors flew that youthful French-Canadians were set to "do a job on the Jews" if they persisted in obstructing the traffic, a custom frequently attributed to them in the village. Heavy downpours of rain kept people indoors, but police patrolled the main streets on which there are several Jewish stores, until a late hour.

On the previous Sunday Mgr. J. B. Bazinet referred to the Jewish question from the pulpit. And again last Sunday Canon Charland followed the campaign. He put the parish on guard against using any violence. "What we want is a campaign of justice," he emphasized.

After the sermon Canon Charland was asked what success he expected to obtain in his campaign to oust Jews from the Laurentians if the year-'round residents continued to sell and rent properties to non-Aryans.

"That's just it," he insisted. "It's as much a campaign of education as anything else. We must teach our people to rent their places to other Christians and not to Jews. . . ."

"You must not hate this race," he continued. "Our Lord cried over them. But if we mustn't hate them, neither must we give up our best traditions. There are some unfortunate concessions now being made. These should stop. We must fight in the best interests of all."

The Jews, the preacher added, had been persecuted down through the ages because they had not recognized Jesus Christ and they must be shown today that the Church must be respected.

"Why do the Jews always meet with opposition from people of other nationalities?" he asked. "Because they always work aside from other groups and because of that they don't deserve the sympathy of those who would work in the common weal."

"I put you on guard against any violence," the preacher went on, "but we must stick together. By doing so I think we'll find life much easier."

Anglican Cleric Reticent

Informed of the Canon Charland sermon, Rev. E. G. May, of the Anglican Church, thought "no good can come from such diatribes." At the same time he felt that perhaps, the Jewish population of Ste. Agathe "had not used their freedom quite in the way they should have." Rev. May made no reference to the matter in his sermon.

Hotel Takes Stand

For the first time one of the large hotels publicly announced that it would not receive Jews. There is a sign on the reception desk, put there only a few days ago, that reads: "This hotel has a reciprocal agreement with two Jewish hotels whereby we recommend them to prospective Jewish guests and they in turn, recommend our hotel to Christians."

The normal population of 3,000 in Ste. Agathe swells to about 5,000 in the summer. Approximately 35 or 40 per cent of this increase is accounted for by Jewish people from Montreal who have summer homes there, who rent cottages, or who go up every week-end to two hotels that cater exclusively to Jews.

The anti-Semitic posters were believed by police and others to have been glued on posts by men who toured the village in a truck during the night of Friday-Saturday. All the placards were high up on the posts and all faced the street and not the sidewalk.

Apart from the two Jewish hotels in Ste. Agathe, there are a Kosher meat market, a delicatessen store, a Jewish taxi company and one of two moving picture houses is controlled by a non-Christian.

TO RESTRICT ELECTION BROADCASTS ON RADIO

The news that political speches over the air will be restricted is most certainly welcome news to the long suffering radio listeners.

It is reported that Canadian air waves will not be flooded with political speeches in the approaching federal general election campaign as in previous campaigns. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is going to sacrifice revenue to listener interest.

In the election four years ago it made plenty of money selling network time for campaign speeches but listeners were annoyed at being able to get little else from their receivers. This time, CBC will make no money out of the election, but it will exercise its supreme authority to restrict political broadcasting.

CBC is going to supply time on a sustaining basis (non-commercial) to political parties on its national network. For the entire campaign of about two months it will allow only about 20 or 25 hours for political addresses. The government party is to have eight hours, the principal opposition party 7¼ hours, other recognized parties less. No election broadcast may exceed one hour. No time on the national network will be sold for election broadcasts.

But CBC will authorize the sale of time on the networks of private stations limited to provincial boundaries. On such networks and on individual private stations political parties may buy time.

All of which regulation will be fine if it is adhered to, which it probably will not be. —Granby Leader-Mail

Essay on a Cow

Writing an essay on "Cows," a student rises to the heights of wit when he says: "The most important part of the cow is the receptacle in which the milk is stored. This is called the udder. By a clever arrangement it is divided into four compartments, each with a separate tap. By this means the milk is divided at the source so that one part goes to the landlord, one to the mortgage company, one to the government and one to the farmer."

World's Fastest Car ?

Its Wheels Will Go Round 46 Times a Second

A car going at the 360 m.ph. which John Cobb hopes to achieve in August on the Salt Flats of Utah, would take less than three days to cover a distance equal to the circumference of tthe earth at the Equator.

Strange points about this all-British Railton are:

Its gasoline consumption is just over one mile to the gallon;

Although it weighs more than three tons it is so shaped that the head-on resistence at 300 m.h.p. is the same as at 60 m.h.p. for the ordinary car;

Every minute it eats up enough energy to lift a heavy express train clear of the ground;

At full speed the tires are one inch larger in diameter than at rest;

Every minute there are 30,000 gas explosions in the 24 cylinders of the two Napier engines;

The gases in the pipes from the carburetors to the cylinders are sucked through at more than three inches a minute.

The wheels go round 46 times a second;

In about a minute the tire's temperature goes up to the boiling point of water and tends to fly apart with a force of about 12 tons.

If John Cobb succeeds, he will be the first man to travel on land at six miles a minute.

During the first five months of this year countries in the British Empire have produced 62.6 per cent of the world's new gold. This may be added to other discouraging news reaching the belligerent dictators.

WHERE TOWNS AND CITIES SHARE IN GASOLINE TAX

The Legislature is lending a helping hand to Oklahoma's impoverished "stepchildren" — its towns and cities. It has granted them their oft-made request for a share of the state gasoline tax.

A bill passed by the Legislature contains the following provision : "Five per cent (5%) shall be transmitted by the Tax Commission to the treasurers of the various incorporated cities and towns of the State in the percentage which the population, as shown by the last Federal census bears to the total population of all the incorporated cities and towns in this State. Such funds shall be expended for the construction, repair and maintenance of the streets and alleys of the incorporated cities and towns of this State."

The allocation of the gasoline tax, based on this division, will bring each municipality about 62 cents per capita of its population. Under the provisions of the new law, apportionments are to be made monthly.

The new Act took effect May 31, 1939.

A MOVE IN THE HOUSING PROBLEM

In realization of the low-cost housing need on this continent, it is gratifying to note that several private investors are putting their idle capital into the building of homes for ordinary people of moderate means. The most notable of these is Edsel Ford, who has announced that he is about to build a large number of small houses to be sold on easy terms to people in the $20-$25-a-week income class.

In northwestern Indiana, between the prosperous manufacturing city of Gary and Hammond, another capitalist, Frank Hoess, is building houses, each on an acre of ground, on a system which enables a man with a job to buy his house with almost no down payment, and his monthly payments are graded to his pay-check.

Most houses cost too much for what the buyer gets. The need of the times is for cheaper houses as well as better houses.

A system which encourages capitalists to invest money in home building and at the same time encourages individuals to buy their own homes is truly in accord with the tradition of individual self-reliance.

FIRST WOMAN CHAIRMAN OF LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL

London, England, has its first woman chairman of the London County Council, Mrs. Eveline M. Lowe, one of the well-known educators and a popular member of the London Labor Party. Before she went to West Bermondsey to live she was vice-principal of Honerton College, Cambridge. She was elected to the Board of Guardians and began making personal contacts with the women who had charge of the local schools. The chairman is a sort of outside representative of the council, appearing at public functions, acting, in certain instances, as supreme arbiter, but never handling the actual work of the council.

PLANNING TOWNS FROM MARKET PLACES

If you think back into the subject for even a minute there must always be some element of social control in the use of land. There always has been, even in the most primitive communities, and in western civilization by-laws for controlling buildings have become more and more necessary as society has become more organized and complex.

Even in a primitive city which began as a collection of tents or booths, like a temporary fair or market as we know it today, individual owners of stalls could not do just as they liked. Some of them would very quickly tend to encroach on the gangways, and by rough and ready methods their stalls would be pushed back or even knocked down so as to leave room to get between them. If the collection of stalls got very numerous, and the crowds going between them much larger, the original gangways would prove insufficient. Some sort of beadle or warden would have to go round with a big stick and set back the building line. Probably in very early urban communities that was one of the functions of the king — one can imagine it as the earliest type of royal procession; the stouter the king the bigger the road. . . .

If I may use a jargon I dislike, but which some people seem to understand better than plain English, we are trying to rear a neotechnic species in a paleolithic habitat. Or I might put it more classically and say we are trying to grow the rarest and most delicate flowers in a builders' rubbish yard. We are so damned clever as technicians that it can be done, and we are doing it. But after 200 years of modern industrialism we are just beginning to think the flowers might look better, and grow better, if we cleaned up the yard.

—F. J. Osborn, on "Planning a Modern City."

NOTES ON THE RELIEF SITUATION

A relief investigator in a Canadian city was recently sent out to examine two cases where relief had been applied for, but where through a departmental oversight no action had been taken.

At the first house an angry wife complained : "It's been two weeks since my husband applied for relief. And not a thing done about it ! Well, he just couldn't wait any longer. So he had to go out and get a job." At the second house the applicants had not been forced to the dire extremity of seeking work. The husband was still at home, but he was very much vexed at the department's delay. He demanded of the relief investigator : "Is this the service you provide taxpayers in our city ?" —The Printed Word

OUTSIDERS LEARN MOST

It is axiomatic that the people who know least about a city are usually the ones who live in it. The remote and unusual beauty spots, the location of little-known streets, the total amount of our payroll and a rough summary of the industries operating here are frequently better known by visitors than by citizens themselves.

The Need for Health Education

"Organized health education is a comparatively new field and the recent inauguration of a campaign to raise funds for the carrying on of health education by the Health League of Canada has done much to prove how necessary it is. Workers in the present movement report that the main difficulty in obtaining the support which such an activity deserves is an astonishing lack of information on the part of almost everyone both as to the possibilities of preventive medicine from a scientific point of view and the means of developing a preventive program.

"Thousands of people do not even know what pasteurization of milk means. Even in areas where Toxoid is extensively used to prevent diphtheria few know what Toxoid is. The amazing figures as to the cost of illness and the pitifully small sum spent on prevention are news to the average citizen and very few have any conception as to the health machinery we have or what we should have. One could go on indefinitely and describe the many deficiencies in the sum total of information in the possession of most people — a lack which makes it difficult for them to improve either their own health or that of the citizens of our country.

"Many people canvassed enquired as to why the Government cannot do this work, forgetting that even in the very process of raising funds for health education by a voluntary society such as the Health League of Canada the volunteer enthusiast educates both himself and his prospects in a way no government machine could. And again governmental action follows public opinion. The Health League of Canada exists to create public opinion and will always need and deserve the support of the public to this end.

Never Say Quit

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill;
When your funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit.
Rest, if you must—but don't you quit.

Life is queer, with its twists and turns,
As everyone of us sometimes learns,
And many a "failure" turns about
When he might have won had he stuck it out.
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow,
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man;
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup,
And he learned too late, when the night slipped down
How close he was to the golden crown.

Success is failure turned inside out—
The silver tint of the cloud of doubt;
And you never can tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit —
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

The Ottawa Spotlight

This week or next Mr. Duplessis, Premier of Quebec, with some of his Cabinet, will come to Ottawa with some of the mayors of several large cities in Quebec, to discuss with the Dominion Government the question of the best method of dealing with pressing unemployment problems. Mr. Duplessis asked for the interview by a telegram to Mr. King. Unfortunately, Mr. King, himself, is spending much of this week in Toronto at the Liberal convention so that, as he replied to Mr. Duplessis, some members of his Cabinet could meet the delegation this week, but it would be only next week that the Dominion Prime Minister could attend a conference at Ottawa. The main question to be discussed will be how to harmonize provincial and Dominion views on relative amounts to be spent on direct relief and on public works.

Differences of opinion in regard to the administration of aid to municipalities also remain to be settled with the Ontario Government. The Ontario Government has asked that the Dominion's share in the cost of approved municipal projects should take the form of direct grants of fixed sums in advance of work being carried out. The Dominion Government does not agree to this. The explanation of Mr. Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, is that the principle of a 50 per cent contribution to the labor costs of approved municipal improvements is being carried out under agreements with other provinces, and there can be no discrimination in favor of any one particular province. The Dominion's fifty per cent of labor costs, Mr. Rogers says, is available to Ontario municipalities up to the total of 2½ million dollars allocated for this purpose to the government of Ontario.

The report of the Commission on Dominion Provincial Relations, under the chairmanship of Mr. Sirois, will be ready for the Government and the public of Canada about October 15th. The report will be divided into two general heads : One, a historical review and an analysis of the working of confederation; and Two, the Commission's financial appendices and summaries of the public finances of Dominion, Provinces and Municipalities and 13 research studies by members of the commission's staff.

The new Trans-Canada Airways is going a great deal of business this summer, and there seems to be no question that Canada is definitely taking its place in the world's system of civil air navigation. On sections of the air lines the service has during the past few weeks been taxed to capacity. New planes will shortly be delivered and it is believed that the Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg service will be doubled.

The tourist traffic, which means so much to Canada, after starting off rather slowly this year, is rapidly gaining momentum. During the month of June the number of motor cars entering Canada was 30,000 over the number for June last year. Despite the slump in the beginning of the tourist season, in April and May, the chances now seem to be that last year's total figure of approximately 4,350,000 cars entering Canada will be exceeded this year.

Otherwise, No Complaints

The Mayor of an important western city sends us a copy of a communication received at his office. . .

Dear Sir:

The following letter was received by me from a debtor some time ago, which I think applies to my tax case:

In reply to your recent and more frequent requests to send you a cheque, I wish to inform you that the present shattered condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to take your requests seriously.

My present financial condition is due to the effect of Dominion Laws, Provincial Laws, Municipal Laws, County Laws, Corporation Laws, Traffic Laws, Liquor Laws, Brother-in-laws, By-laws, Sister-in-laws, Mother-in-law, and Outlaws, all of which have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public.

Through these laws I am compelled to pay a Business Tax, Sales Tax, Amusement Tax, Gasoline Tax, School Tax, Water Tax, Excess Tax, Auto Tax, Hydro Tax and Syntax.

In addition to these irritating taxes, I am forced by that strong arm of the law to get a permit for this thing and that thing. I am required to get a Business License, a Dog License, Radio License, Motor License, Liquor License, not to mention my Marriage License.

I am also required and requested to contribute to every society and organization which the inventive genius of man is capable of bringing to life; to the Society of of St. Jean Baptiste, the Women's Relief, the Near East Relief, the Unemployment Relief, and the Gold Digger's Home, the Purple Cross, the Red Cross, the Black Cross, White Cross, Green Cross, the Flaming Cross and the Double Cross.

For my own safety I am required to carry Life Insurance, Liability Insurance, Burglary Insurance, Property Damage Insurance, Rent Insurance, Compensation Insurance, Accident Insurance, Collision Insurance, Rain Insurance, Hail Insurance, and Business Insurance.

The Government has now so governed my business that it is no easy matter for me to find out who owns it. I am inspected, expected, introspected, suspected, disrespected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded and compelled, until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race — and simply because I refuse to donate to each and all and to beg, borrow or steal money to give away, I am cussed, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied to, lied about, held up, held down, and robbed until I am nearly ruined.

I can tell you honestly, that failing a miracle, you will not be paid just now, and the only reason I am holding on to life is simply to see just what in hell is coming next.

Yours respectfully —

"So you are building a new house, eh ? How are you getting along with it ?"

"Fine. I've got the roof and the mortgage on it, and I expect to have the furnace and the sheriff in before fall."

SECURITY . . . . . daring

I don't know who first coined the phrase "Safety First," but I feel that he did the young people a disservice. Too many of them have grown up taking that slogan seriously, as a sound working principle of life.

Safety of others ought, of course, to be everybody's first consideration, but I sometimes think we are becoming a nation of cowards by applying the "safety first" idea to ourselves.

Nobody ever achieved anything of importance who made his own safety, physical or economic, the guiding rule of his life. Men grow great by taking chances. Nations prosper and increase in wealth and power precisely in proportion to the extent to which their people are ready and willing to take risks.

The word "security" is on everybody's tongue these days, as if it were possible for anyone to achieve security for himself or for Government to confer it upon him. That notion is what the "safety first" idea has grown into. If it took possession of everybody, nobody would get anywhere. To me it seems a better way of life to dare one's own chances of winning or losing.

HOLES . . . . . mystery

The only thing more interesting to most boys of all ages between five and seventy-five, than digging a hole in the ground, is watching some other fellows dig a hole. You never know what the digger may turn up.

The most mysterious part of this earth we live in is the part under the surface. We know much more about the upper air and the depth of the sea than we do about what is directly under our feet.

The drillers of oil-wells have taught the world a lot about the structure of the earth. There are several wells more than two miles deep, and geologists can tell, by studying the successive layers of earth and stone, what will be found at the bottom of the hole.

Before the Great War, an English engineer, Sir Charles Parsons, had a project for digging a hole several feet in diameter to a depth of two or three miles, in the belief that enough heat could be drawn from it to run the steam boilers and heat the buildings of a great manufacturing city. Now a drill has actually been invented which will cut a five-foot hole, and somebody may try it.

TREASURE . . . . . adventure

Most of the digging men do into the earth is in search of treasure of some sort. Nations have gone to war for centuries over the possession of land in which valuable minerals may be found.

A few days ago a new diamond field was opened in South Africa, and prospectors grew rich overnight digging the stones out of the blue clay.

Only a small fraction of the earth has yet been fully explored by treasure-hunters. Africa and South America hold unlimited opportunity for adventurous prospectors.

The deepest gold mine in the world, a mile and a half deep, is in South Africa. The owners have lately had an American company install an air-conditioning system to keep the lower workings cool enough for the miners to work in comfort.

American copper mines produce so much that they control the world price of that metal. Canada has almost a monopoly on cobalt and nickel, and new Canadian gold mines are constantly being discovered. One man who went prospecting for gold in Canada found radium, and made millions. Only those willing to take a chance of losing can win in the hunt for treasures beneath the earth's surface.

Origin of Morgan Horse Traced to Other Breeds

The founder of the house of Morgan in the horse world was a horse born about 1789—the property of Justin Morgan, who kept a tavern in Springfield, Mass., until he moved to Randolph, Vt., in the same year that was foaled the colt which was to perpetuate its owner's name. No one seems to have any knowledge of the blood strains of this famous sire, writes Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening in the Chicago Tribune. Some historians of Morgan horses say he was anything from a thoroughbred to a Canadian pony. Others claim many infusions of Arab, Barb, and Turkish blood. Be that as it may, a good horse was produced.

This founder of the clan was named Figure at birth, but renamed Justin Morgan when its offspring started to gain fame. He was a small horse, only 14 hands high and weighing 950 pounds; dark bay in color, with black legs, mane, and tail. The latter were coarse and heavy but not thick. His head was good but not very small—the forehead broad, with small ears set far apart. His eyes were medium size, dark, and prominent, with a pleasant but spirited expression. His back and legs were his most noticeable points—the former being extremely short, with shoulder blades and hip bones long and sloping. The legs were short, close-jointed, and thin, but with very wide bone and extremely well muscled for a horse of his size.

First to Develop Art of Fencing

When, after the invention of gunpowder, armor began to be discarded, it became evident that some other means of defense must be discovered, and it was in meeting this need that the art of fencing came into existence. The Italians were the first to recognize the fact that the point was more deadly than the edge, and that a thrust could be delivered more quickly than a blow, and to them belongs the credit of laying the foundation of the present school of fencing. They invented the rapier, a long, straight sword having a cup-shaped guard with quillons, which was the parent of the small sword and foil. The earlier rapier was a weapon of offense only, parries being made with a dagger held in the left hand, or the point avoided by a leap aside. Camillo Agrippa of Milan was the first man to divide the body into four parts and to assign a definite guard to each. Agrippa published a book in 1553 explaining his system, which is said to have been illustrated by Michelangelo.

Stoney Indians at Banff Springs Make Helen Keller Tribe Sister

Helen Keller, blind and deaf authoress and lecturer, and who through her sensitive fingertips sees and hears, was recently honored with a membership in the Stoney tribe. The colorful initiation ceremonies took place at Banff Springs Hotel, Banff, Alberta, during the Annual Indian Days sponsored by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The illustration shows Miss Keller receiving a snowy eagle feather, the insignia of her Indian name "White Eagle Plume" from the hands of Chief Walking Buffalo. Chief Jacob-Two-Young-Man looks on while Polly Thomson, Miss Keller's constant companion "interprets" for her blind friend.

Famous Dance Band to be Featured at the Ottawa Exhibition

To enable him to accept a three months' engagement at the popular "Murray's in Tuckahoe, N.Y." the Central Canada Exhibition Association has released Van Alexander and his Orchestra from their contract to play for dancing at this year's Ottawa Exhibition, August 21st to 26th. In his stead the Exhibition directors will present Mitchell Ayres and his orchestra, together with Mary Ann Mercer, songstress, and Joe Dale, baritone. Mitchell Ayres and his orchestra were featured for over a year at "Murray's" and his successful engagements at the Netherlands Plaza Hotel, Adolphus Hotel, Village Barn, St. Paul Hotel, Donahue's and other important hotels and cafes make them one of the most outstanding musical organizations of the day.

In making the announcement Mr. H. H. McElroy, manager of the Exhibition, stated that no other changes would be made in the arrangements, and that dancing would take place nightly. He added that Mitchell Ayres and his Orchestra, who are under the management of the Music Corporation of America, are considered by this body to be one of the outstanding dance bands on the continent.

At present Mitchell Ayres and his orchestra may be heard over the networks of the Columbia and Mutual Broadcasting Companies.

Sunday School Picnic At Grenville

The annual combined picnic of the Sunday Schools of the Parish of Grenville was held on Tuesday last, between 150 and 200 people gathering from Grenville, Calumet and Rawcliffe. Through the kindness of Mr. James Stewart, the beautiful grove on his farm was again used as the site of the picnic. Mrs. W. Stewart and Mrs. M. Anderson also made the tea. The children were taken to and from the grounds in vehicles supplied by Messrs. W. Brigden and W. Morrow. While the ladies prepared the lunch, the younger ones enjoyed a game of softball or engaged in swimming, swinging or other pastimes; some preferring just to sit around and talk. After lunch, ice cream and soft drinks were served by a faithful group of helpers.

Church Groups Active In St. Andrews E.

The chief item of entertainment at the Good Fellowship Circle, which met on July 25th, was a "scavenger hunt." About 20 couples competed. John DeWitt and Janet Watson were the first home with all the "goods" on the list, with Bobby Watson and Joan Duncan a close second. A nickel of "1919" vintage proved rather a poser! Soft drinks and cake were served at the rendez-vous, the recreation room of the United Church.

A much looked forward to occasion was the combined picnic of the Anglican and United Church Sunday Schools, which took place on July 25th in Brown's Grove.

The Anglican W.A. meeting at Mrs. Ewan Albright's was well attended. Final arrangements were made for the sale and tea which takes place early in August. The hostesses, Mrs. Ewan Albright and Mrs. Percy Burwash, served tea at conclusion of meeting.

The Young People's Society of the Presbyterian Church met on Monday night and despite a heavy downpour of rain a number of couples turned out for a scavenger hunt.

Conducts Boxing School In Lachute

Leo Girard, local boxing promoter, has started a school for boxing that will give the youth of this district an opportunity to learn the art of self defence. The sport itself is beneficial from the viewpoint of physical culture and self control, and this training may well prove useful in a difficult situation.

Girard himself is an experienced boxer, having trained with professionals in Montreal, and his knowledge is at the service of those interested. His promotion activities have proven popular, and the public has accepted the fact that his fights are conducted absolutely "on the square."

A Milk Bottle Hunt

Hints for Homebodies

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman
By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

"WONDERFUL FOR THE CHILDREN"

It isn't often you hear several women comment on a short story in a magazine, but "Wonderful for the Children," by Eva Burkhardt, in the July Chatelaine, is an exception. It certainly struck a sympathetic spark and I have heard several women speak about it. It tells the story of a woman who finally struck after several years of contending with family, relations and friends, at the summer cottage. Few women would have had courage enough to stick to her guns as she did. It is worth reading and too many women will find their own experiences echoed in it. Very often a cottage is no holiday for the mother — only a change.

GIVING THE MOSQUITOES THE RASPBERRY

Somehow, I have a fatal attraction for mosquitoes. No one else on a picnic will have even one little bite and I will be well decorated. Yesterday we spent in the Gatineau Hills and no one else had even heard a mosquito but I was well decorated in assorted lumps. One of the party said we must find some wild raspberries to cure those bites. I was a bit sceptical but being ready to try anything once, we searched until we found some and rubbed them on the bites. The sting went out of them immediately and today there is no sign of them. This friend grew up on a farm and it is a treat to go on a drive with her as she sees so much that the rest of us pass by. She has pointed out wild flowers I never knew existed, and she knows all the birds by sight and by sound. She says raspberries will cure any kind of bites, so that is a trick worth knowing.

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER

There is a great improvement over meals at hotels and boarding-houses catering to summer guests. Most of us, some time or other, have boarded some place where they gave us canned peas and corn for vegetables. The more "country" the places, the more apt you were to get them. They could not seem to get it into their heads that people, especially city people, craved fresh vegetables. Those times are pretty well over, and if you have the bad luck to find one, it might be a good idea to tell the nearest tourist bureau and they might change their ways.

SUMMER MEALS

Aren't summer meals the grandest things ? All those fresh vegetables and fruits. Sometimes I think, it is so hot today, I won't do much cooking. I seldom can stick to that resolution when I see the new vegetables simply coaxing to be used. Winter, maybe we can do with one vegetable, but never in the summer. And the new potatoes ! We love the little ones and I usually can beguile the grocer into picking me out the weeny fellows. It appears most people like to buy the big ones, so I have no compunctions. Most often I brown them whole in a little bacon fat, either on top of the stove or in the oven, if it happens to be going. They are grand covered with cheese sauce for a vegetable dinner. Or maybe you would rather have them rolled in melted butter and then in parsley. There is nothing much better than plain fried potatoes, nice and brown. If you like a little onion added to them, it is nobody's business but your own — maybe it is at that, if you happen to be going out in company. It seems silly to make many desserts in summer, when the fruits are in season. Three times a day suits me. Still, there is slight hiatus between the raspberries and the peaches and you may have to make desserts. We never have to worry over our vitamins during the summer as we cannot escape getting enough.

PRESSED TONGUE

Sometimes experienced housekeepers do not realize the difficulties the younger ones have in what we consider simple things. So if I write on what seems obvious, just think I am trying to help those with less experience. The other day, one young woman, who had been married for several years, said she had never cooked either liver or kidneys, because she did not know how, and her husband liked both of them. Others had not cooked one or other of them, and none of them had ever cooked a tongue. The organs, such as the liver, kidneys and tongue, should be used in our diets as they are all valuable. Today we will consider cooking a tongue. A beef tongue is the usual choice, although for a small family, three or four lambs' tongues is a good buy. Pickled tongues have more flavor than the fresh. Cover the tongue with cold water and bring to the boil, then simmer slowly until tender, usually from three to four hours. Let it cool partially, in the water. Skin the tongue, take out the small bones in the root and trim any fat or gristly parts. Coil the end of the tongue around the root and put in a small bowl. And when I say small I mean small. You will be surprised to find how small a bowl the tongue can be put in. Cover with a saucer which will fit inside the bowl and put a weight on it to give pressure. I have never found any other weight as satisfactory as the time-honored iron, as it spreads the pressure evenly. Let this stand over night, turn over and serve. It may be used the same day if it has been thoroughly chilled in the refrigerator for several hours.

PINEAPPLE SHERBET

1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup water, 2 teaspoons gelatine, 2 tablespoons water, juice of 2 lemons and water to make a cup, 1 small can crushed pineapple, 2 egg whites.

Soak the gelatine in the 2 tablespoons cold water. Boil the sugar and 1 cup of water for 5 minutes and add the gelatine. Stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice and water and the pineapple, then fold in the stiffly-beaten egg-whites. Pour into freezing pan and freeze at the lowest temperature until the mixture is stiff one inch from the sides of the pan. Stir thoroughly and return to the refrigerator, reset to medium, and freeze.

Schoolchildren Spin, Dye and Weave Their Own Wool

PIONEERING RURAL INDUSTRY AT VILLAGE SCHOOL IN ENGLAND

A village school of 47 children is pioneering a new rural industry in Hertfordshire, 30 miles from London. The school is Wilstone Church of England elementary school, near Tring.

With spindles made from tin lids and knitting needles, boys and girls of ten to fourteen years of age have spun their own wool, and woven scarves and slippers, caps and cushion covers, ties and tea cosies on small table looms.

The looms were made by the boys in their handicraft classes, and the boys are as enthusiastic weavers as the girls. The wool was taken from fleeces presented to the school by local farmers or bought locally.

The dyeing was carried out during the winter in stewpans and saucepans on the school fire, and the girls formed a rota of "pot-stirrers." Many of the dyes were made by the children from local plants and tree barks. Yellow shades were secured from rhubarb leaves or onion skins, brown tints from tea leaves or walnut leaves, or mauve from elderberries. Inks and chemical dyes were used for other colorings.

An immense "color card" hangs on the schoolroom wall. Specimens of wool, all dyed at school and varying from natural cream, buff, and brown to bright blue and scarlet, are pinned to it. Experiments are still being made to produce new shades.

The children are proudest of skirt lengths and scarves which they have made in six or seven different tartans, and which have aroused considerable interest among parents, other local residents, and officials of the local authority and of the Board of Education.

The County education authority has taken a keen interest in the work, and has recently presented a large new loom and a spinning wheel to the school for the extension of the work.

The school is showing a "Sheep to Scarf" exhibit at the Royal Agricultural Society Centenary Show, held this year at Windsor.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

Are we more interested in the poetry and folklore of Ireland than in that country's political uprisings ? I wonder. Miss Dorothy Macardle, in her lectures emphasizes this side of the Irish character, its love of literature and its wealth of folklore.

She herself is a poet and a playwright, having worked with the Abbey players. She served a term in jail for her support of the Republican government during the administration of President Cosgrove. She has a degree from the National University of Ireland and numbers among her friends the most important leaders in every movement.

Now people in New York can have a nurse for an hour a day, if that's all they need her. The Nursing Bureau of Manhattan and Bronx, New York, under the direction of Miss Alice E. Snyder, supplies this service chiefly for the white collar worker who needs some attention if kept at home by illness, and does not have to depend on the charity nursing service.

Miss Snyder says the hourly nursing service grew out of the needs of young men and women living alone in apartments and hotels. The nurse in attendance does not wear a uniform and carries her equipment in a brief case. She charges $2 for the first hour and $1 for each additional hour or fraction, up to $4.

Discouraging words about women in journalism have reached me recently. R. E. Wolseley, of North western University, says there is no doubt that women have reached their "deadline," and Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald says that "It's true that women are handicapped in the newspaper field by the conscious and unconscious opposition of men."

Natalie Kalmus, who has been working on color problems for nearly 20 years, is expert color chemist for Technicolor. First she was interested in photography and gradually got into screen work.

This year the women of Ecuador voted for the first time. In the city they supported the Socialist ticket, and in the country the Conservative.

During an intense love scene in the movies, when the hero was doing his stuff, a woman nudged her husband and said, "Why is it that you never make love to me like that ?"

"Say," he replied, "do you know the salary that guy gets for doing that ?"

Tommy (reading from book) — "It says here, dad, that in olden days folk were pounced upon by outlaws."

Dad — "Yes, and in these days folk are pounced upon by in-laws."

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

We have just had a centennial celebration in our town and in going through trunks for really old things every woman I know has unearthed clothes and gadgets of forty and fifty years ago that are of intense interest.

A taffeta bathing suit of the early nineteen hundreds was one of the choice finds, and since taffeta is popular again this year, we all gathered round to compare the "swim-suits" and "play-suits" of today with the bathing suit that was worn in the surf forty years ago.

It's small wonder women never swam more than a stroke or two because the suits were heavily stayed and yards of material added weight. But the glamour of the suit of yesterday has been revived in the suit of today and the girl who swims and dives as easily and expertly as her brother looks as charming and appealingly feminine as did her mother.

Summer's the time to swim and to have picnics and one good picnic always deserves another. There's nothing like a dip when the sun begins to go down to whet your appetite. A crisp salad, delicious sandwiches, plenty of fruit and hot drinks make a perfect picnic meal.

Picnic meals should be planned as thoughtfully as any other meals. Keep them balanced and digestible and go on picnics often.

If you are having a party this summer, borrow an old-fashioned custom of forty years ago and see to it that no guest finds it necessary to ring the door-bell. If you have a young daughter, station her at the front door to admit the guests and send them to the primping-room. No matter how informal the affair, this little courtesy should never be overlooked.

The thoughtful week-end guest doesn't delay finding a gift for her hostess. As soon as she receives her invitation she begins thinking about it and has it attractively boxed and tied ready to pack with her clothes. And by all means fit the gift to your hostess.

If you are visiting from the country, take fresh vegetables from your garden, fruits from your vines and trees, cream from your cow or flowers from your border. From town to country might suggest gardening aids, picnic accessories or one of the delightful new ideas for pleasant country living.

It's seldom a good idea to put house plants into the ground unpotted. Simply sink them, pot and all, into the ground for the summer.

Mirror Magic

Magic mirrors which reflect health and beauty to those who look into them have been fixed in the 34,000-ton Cunard White Star liner Mauretania. "These mirrors, which are infused with a peach glow, give you a sun-tan look as you admire yourself in them," said one of the Mauretania officers. "Not only do they radiate health and beauty, but help to banish sea-sickness threats. Passengers coming down to breakfast with an uncertain feeling, on seeing their reflection in these staircase mirrors will be given a new confidence in themselves and will, we hope, proceed happily to their meal. These Mauretania mirrors are designed to have a psychological effect on first voyagers. By making people look well the mirrors will help them to feel well and therefore to be well."

In friendliness, if not in pedigree, dogs competing in the "Mutt" show at Sunnyside recently had it all over the more pretentious specimens appearing at exhibitions of supercilious thoroughbreds.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

MEDICINE — 1600 A.D.

When the Great Black Plague ravished London approximately in the year 1603, medicine was still in its swaddling clothes, doctors uninformed but pregnant with superstitious beliefs, and the quacks making sums of money that would, even at this late day, be considered fabulous.

London, then a filthy, ill paved city, without sanitation of any kind, and notorious for its germ-ladened drinking water, very naturally suffered a heavy death rate from diseases of all kinds and relied upon superstitious beliefs to prevent and cure ailments. Naturally this was a fertile field for the quacks and they prospered. In fact there was not a large city in the Continent of which the same might be said.

Homes where death and mystifying diseases had entered were marked with a red cross, painted on the door; the origin of the medical symbol of today. And above the cross was painted, also in red, "God Have Mercy Upon Us," so that pedestrians might hold their handkerchiefs to their nose and run past.

It is estimated that more than 15,000 quacks flourished in the British capital then. They advertised their cures through the medium of the press and by handbills scattered about the streets and stuffed beneath doors.

Windows, doors, shops and houses were closed to prevent the "poisoned miasma" from entering and laying low the citizens. Fires burned at street intersections to clarify the air. The learned medical men of London gravely shook their bewigged heads and said the "Black Death was caused by a conjunction of Saturn, Venus and Mars"—and that medicine could do nothing for those stricken.

Physicians of the day, in common with the populace, had no knowledge of insanity or its treatment and the handling of these mentally sick unfortunates defies all description. The so-called insane asylums often sent, for a gratuity, patients to weddings and feasts, in charge of an attendant, who put them through their erratic performances, using a whip on them as though he were in a cage of wild beasts, and thus create entertainment for the guests.

Sundays, many London citizens spent part of the day at these horrible places watching the antics of the inmates, much as we take our children to the zoo at present. Hangings were common and public, and usually took place on holidays so that the crowds might gloat over the victims' struggle. When the culprit was disemboweled, as was often the case, crowds assembled days before the execution, in order to gain favorable locations to witness the revolting tragedy.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, August 6th.

The Golden Text is from I Corinthians 2:11. "What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Teach me to do they will; for thou are my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness." (Psalms 143:10).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The belief that Spirit is finite as well as infinite has darkened all history. In Christian Science, Spirit, as a proper noun, is the name of the Supreme Being. It means quantity and quality, and applies exclusively to God . . . In the Bible the word Spirit is so commonly applied to Deity, that Spirit and God are often regarded as synonymous terms; and it is thus they are uniformly used and understood in Christian Science." FRENCH CHEER BRITISH TROOPS

Troops of the Royal Brigade of Guards marched down the Champs Elysees in Paris in the great military parade that marked the celebrations of Bastille Day, France's independence day. This was the first time since the World War that armed forces of the two countries participated in joint exercises on French soil, and the British troops received a great reception. This picture shows the British soldiers during the parade.

A unique "championship" claimed for Sir Percy Everett, Deputy Commissioner of Imperial H.Q. of the Boy Scouts Association, who is shortly to visit Canada, is that of "Champion Headquarters Opener." During his association with Lord Baden-Powell in Scouting, Sir Percy is credited with having officially opened well over one hundred Boy Scout and Girl Guide headquarters halls in various parts of the British Isles. Sir Percy arrives in Canada August 11, and will make a coast-to-coast tour of the Dominion. While it is expected that he will meet Scout leaders and Scouts where possible, Sir Percy's main program calls for addresses before service and other clubs on special features of some of his other activities, notably as director of several of London's famous hospitals.

SENIOR BOY SCOUTS OF 22 NATIONS FRATERNIZE IN SCOTLAND

Rover Scouts representing 22 different countries assembled on the grounds of Monzie Castle, Crieff, Scotland, on July 16, for the opening of the Third World Rover Moot, or international gathering of senior Boy Scouts. Canada was represented by a contingent of eleven, under the leadership of Ontario's Commissioner for Rovers, Ronald Winter, of Port Credit. Other members were George P. Brook, Peterborough; Wallace C. Caswell, Tillsonburg; Harold C. Taylor, Delhi; William A. Hoag, Preston; Peter Inglis, Toronto; Deep Sea Scout R. O. Fairlie, formerly of Toronto; Rev. William Askey, of Winnipeg; Arthur Cook, Halifax; William S. Morwood, Verdun, Que.; Robert W. Pugh, Fredericton, N.B. Attached to the Canadian party was Rover Wayne Muller, of Bremerton, Wash. The fortnight's program of the Moot consists chiefly of events which bring about fraternizing of the young men of all the different nations and parts of the British Empire participating.

One must give more than a cheer in order to be a cheerful giver.

Sobriety and Drinking

By Frank Parker Stockbridge

The problem of how to drink liquor and still stay sober is one which has perplexed many a man who finds himself in a drinking crowd and wants to be a "good fellow," but at the same time has no desire to get drunk.

British colonials on outpost duty where there isn't much to do but drink have sometimes solved the problem by drinking half a pint of olive oil before going to a drinking party. The result is said to be reasonable sobriety and a stomach-ache.

Now a famous Vienna scientist has invented a method of making whiskey and other alcoholic beverages absolutely non-intoxicating, or so he claims in his patent application recently granted. A compound derived from starch or cellulose, by treating it with a derivative of acetic acid, which is vinegar, is added to the contents of the bottle.

From ten to 25 per cent is enough, it is claimed, to make it impossible for the drinker to get drunk, yet the taste and aroma of the beverage are unchanged. But since most drinkers drink to get the "kick" of partial or complete intoxication, the general adoption of this idea seems doubtful to me.

Coonjine Died Out With Mississippi Steamboats

Coonjine died with the passing of the Mississippi steamboat. You likely never heard the word unless you were reared on the shores of the big river or one of its tributaries where the steamboats came into dock daily. In that case, writes Garnett Laidlaw Eskew in Coronet, you will doubtless recall the weird, semi-barbaric, loose-kneed shuffle-slouch (timed perfectly to equally barbaric songs), by which the Negro roustabouts loaded and unloaded the boats. That was Coonjine—song and dance.

Many years ago, at the old levees, steamboats crowded as thickly as horses tethered nose-in to a hitching rail. The roustabout would swagger ashore at the end of the run and cut a swath among the women, staking big money on the roll of the spotted ivories.

The work was back-breaking; and it was to lighten their hard labor that the roustabouts sang their Coonjine songs. When a Negro sings he forgets he is tired. Steamboat captains and mates knew this and encouraged their rousters to sing. Subject matter for Coonjine songs covered a wide range—fights, police, love affairs, domestic embroglios, and nostalgia.

But mainly, Coonjine songs had to do with the work in hand; the boats, their speed and luxury; the individual characteristics of mate or captain or fellow roustabouts; and, under the ridiculous words, frequently a note of pathos at the hard lot of his downtrodden race.

Ole Roustabout ain't got no home,
Make his livin' on his shoulder bone.

Discovery of the X-Ray

German physicist, Wilhelm Konrad Rontgen, discovered the X-ray in 1895 and gave it that name because he did not understand the nature of the ray (X standing for an unknown quantity in science). He was professor of physics and director of the Physical institute at Wurzburg and while experimenting with a highly exhausted vacuum tube, on the conduction of electricity through gases, he observed the fluorescence of a barium platino-cyanide screen which happened to be lying near. He found that this radiation had the power of passing through various substances which are opaque to ordinary light, also of affecting a photographic plate.

How Word 'News' Originated

Popular etymology derives "news" from the initial letters of the names of the four cardinal points of the compass—north, east, west and south. It is said that before the time of newspapers it was customary to post events of general interest in public places under four columns headed "N. E. W. S.," the happenings from the north being recorded under N, those from the east under E, those from the west under W and those from the south under S. Hence the word "news." The theory is, however, without foundation. "News" is merely the plural of the word "new," and originally meant new things. In the Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries the word was variously written "newes," "newis," and "newys."

4 Accident Victims Taken to Hospitals In Hawkesbury

FARM AND HOME MISHAPS SEND SUFFERERS FOR MEDICAL TREATMENT

As the result of an accident at St. Philippe, Jean Real Roy, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roy, was recently taken to Notre Dame Hospital in Hawkesbury, suffering from severe cuts on his right wrist and arm. He was attended by Dr. C. E. Lafrance. According to information, the boy was working on the farm of Joseph Lafleur near St. Philippe when his arm became caught in some machinery.

Three other cases from this county have been under treatment in Dr. Kelly's private hospital, Hawkesbury.

While riding horseback for the first time at the Arnoldwold Farms in Grenville, Rodney Lefebvre, young son of Dr. Osias Lefebvre, Montreal, became frightened and jumped off. In doing so he suffered fractures of both bones in the left forearm and bruises about the body.

Fred McLean, 62, of Avoca, while unloading hay from a wagon in his barn, slipped and crashed to the floor below. Picked up and sent to hospital, he was found to be suffering from a fractured left hip.

Victor Roussell, 72, of Grenville, suffered a fractured left hip when he fell in his home last Thursday morning. According to information the aged man was recuperating from a long illness and while taking a walk about the house collapsed. According to hospital authorities his condition was serious.

OFFICERS INSTALLED IN ODDFELLOWS' LODGE

The Oddfellows' semi-annual installation of officers was conducted in the lodge room Saturday evening by G. E. Walker, District Deputy Grand Master, District No. 2, Montreal, in the absence through illness of L. C. Penfold, D.D.G.M. of District No. 1. Other Grand Lodge officers and visiting brethren were present from Montreal.

Three 25-year veteran jewels were presented to members of Laurentian Lodge No. 14, namely, J. H. Roberts, of Brownsburg, G. Demerse and W. K. McArthur, of Lachute.

Following the business session, the assembly adjourned to the lower hall, where a banquet and social hour were enjoyed.

To Celebrate Centenary of Bicycle in September

The direct ancestor of the bicycle which appears on our streets (and too often, on the sidewalks of this particular town) is being commemorated by the unveiling in September of a plaque to mark the hundredth anniversary of the invention of the first bicycle to be propelled by pedals.

The inventor was Kirkpatrick Macmillan, a Scottish blacksmith, and he was 29 years old when he mounted his bicycle and rode off to Glasgow to see his three brothers, one of whom, a former tutor of John Bright's, was rector at Glasgow High School.

"I met a man fleein' through the air on wheels," cried a shoemaker when he encountered the first bicycle in action, "and if it wasna' a man, then it must ha' been the De'il himsel'."

The plaque is to be placed on the wall of Kirkpatrick Macmillan's smithy at Courthill in Dumfriesshire.

It is estimated by the British cycle makers' Union that in the world today there are 61,000,000 descendants of this first bicycle. Last year Great Britain sent 576,458 abroad, of which total 156,166 were sold to foreign countries, a record figure representing in value £486,306.

HIGH ENTHUSIASM SEEN AT L. LOUISA REGATTA

PROGRAM IS WITNESSED BY LARGE CROWD

The annual regatta at Lake Louisa, held last Saturday in the bay off Liberty Hall, was witnessed by a crowd of over 400 people. Fair weather favored the event, and the general enthusiasm proved gratifying to the sponsors, the Lake Louisa Fish and Game Club — and more particularly to the committees in charge of arrangements. All classes of swimming and boating contests occupied a long afternoon program. At dusk in the evening, the lake residents and visitors assembled again to witness the prize distribution, held on the veranda of Liberty Hall. A display of fireworks, set off from a diving raft down in the bay, presented a colorful spectacle. The evening was concluded with a dance, music being provided by the regular Brownsburg orchestra.

On Sunday a sailing boat and sailing canoe race were held to complete the program of contests.

Boys' Rowing, 8 and Under — 1st, Wallie Emo; 2nd, Peter Small; 3rd, Graham Reid.

Boys' Single Canoe, 12 and Under — 1st, Buddie Emo; 2nd, Jack Archibald.

Men's Tandem Canoe, Open — 1st, H. Montgomery and G. Prosser; 2nd, J. MacKimmie and S. Drew.

Boys' Rowing, 10 and Under — 1st, Billie Murray; 2nd, N. Gallagher.

Chlorinator Viewed Here in Demonstration Trailer

Interest was attracted by a trailer which appeared in town last week in charge of Henry N. Armbrust, Providence, R.I., to demonstrate a machine for chlorine treatment of water. The plant, a product of Proportioneers, Inc., of Providence, was viewed by most of the councillors and many of those most concerned with water purification in this town. They were impressed with the compact simplicity of the plant, which uses chlorine solution mixed on the job and fed automatically into the system, in correct proportions with the varying flow of water. The housing of the plant requires a temperature above freezing in winter weather.

Enquiring about Proportioneers' installations in this province, The Watchman reporter was informed of several employed by municipalities and industrial concerns, notably in Montreal. In the Laurentians, a sewage treatment plant made by the same company, is in use by a hotel at Lac Oureau.

Keith Mercer, of Montreal, Canadian distributor, accompanied the demonstrator with this interesting trailer outfit — which, we were informed, had travelled over 23,000 miles during the past year in many states of the Union and in Canada.

Drowned in Trout Lake, Near Ste. Agathe

Rene Provencher, 17-year-old resident of Trout Lake, two miles south of Ste. Agathe, was drowned Tuesday afternoon while swimming in the lake with two companions. Provencher and his friends, Roger Briere and Paul Ouimet, both of Ste. Agathe, were about 300 feet from shore when he encountered difficulty and called for help.

Briere swam to his friend's aid and tried to bring him to shore, but he was forced to let go of the struggling victim to save himself.

The body was recovered 45 minutes later and Dr. R. Daze, of Ste. Agathe, tried artificial respiration without success. The case was referred to Dr. J. G. Latour, of St. Jerome, district coroner, for inquest.

Weekly Publishers At the New York World's Fair

THINK COST OF CANADIAN PAVILION IS WELL JUSTIFIED

Members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, numbering 174, with their ladies, were warmly welcomed Monday at the New York World's Fair by representatives of the Canadian Government and the Fair.

Following a bus tour of the vast Fair grounds and a visit to the Canadian Pavilion, the publishers were entertained at a luncheon arranged by Hon. W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, who organized the Dominion's participation at the Fair.

Acting for Mr. Euler, Douglas S. Cole, Canadian Trade Commissioner in New York and Canada's Commissioner-General to the Fair, welcomed the members of the association.

Julius C. Holmes, administrative assistant to President Grover Whalen of the Fair, greeted the Canadians in a speech which he explained was brief because "you don't expect a speech of welcome when you visit your brother's home."

Frank J. Burns, Kentville, N.S., immediate past president of the association, expressed the thanks of his fellow-members. He congratulated the Canadian Government and Department of Trade and Commerce "for the really excellent Canadian Pavilion." The money that had gone into the Pavilion, he said, had been "wisely and well spent."

Leo Casey, newly-appointed publicity director of the Fair, asked the Canadian publishers to feel "it is not a privilege for newspapermen to come to the Fair but rather their right."

The World's Fair management entertained the Canadians at dinner Monday night after which they were the Fair's guests at the "Hot Mikado," swing version of the Gilbert and Sullivan opera.

The visit of the publishers, following their annual convention at Niagara Falls, concluded Tuesday night.

Why Editor's Hair Turns White

(Midland Free Press)

Printers sometimes do strange things when they make up pages. They put articles under wrong headings and occasionally they transpose parts of two news items. Last week we published two articles, one telling of the photoplays planned for the Esquire theatre at Penetanguishene, and the other giving a report of the Sunday sermons preached at the Presbyterian General Assembly. We may as well laugh about it now as cry. If our hair had not been white already it would have turned so the minute we sat back to have a good look at the paper.

The last sentence on the Presbyterian article which appeared on the front page read like this: "Morning service was conducted by . . ." and then when we turned to the turn-over page the first words under the heading that met our eye were "expectant mother."

Now for what happened to the Esquire theatre story. We read about the big smash hit, "Stage Coach," and were told that in the stage coach were nine passengers including two women of shady repute. Claire Trevor, a lady run out of town by the reform elements; Louise Platt, wife of an army officer, and "the new moderator, Rev. Dr. Stuart C. Parker, who read the New Testament lesson, Rev. A. C. Stewart, of Knox Church, Midland, who read the Old Testament lesson, and Rev. M. B. Davidson, of Galt, who preached in the evening."

Gain in Quebec Tourist Business During July

The number of tourists who came to Quebec province last month was approximately 30 per cent greater than in July, 1938, F. D. Baril, director of the Provincial Tourist Bureau, reports. Most noteworthy about the increase was the large number of United States teachers and college professors visiting Quebec this summer, said Mr. Baril.

LUMBER TRUCK ROLLS OVER EMBANKMENT

TWO MEN INJURED IN CRASH NEAR CALUMET

Two Hawkesbury men, Fernand Seguin, 27, and Lionel Paquette, 25, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury when the truck in which they were riding rolled down a steep embankment about one mile west of Calumet. Seguin, the owner and driver of the machine, after being treated for several cracked ribs at Dr. T. W. Smith's private hospital, was allowed to go to his home. Paquette suffered minor cuts and bruises.

According to the authorities, the men were driving down from a timber lot in the mountains with a heavy load of pulp wood, and the driver is believed to have fallen asleep at the wheel. The truck, which finally came to a stop with the four wheels in the air, was a total wreck. The men were trapped in the cab but managed to get out unassisted.

Mail from Great Britain to Vancouver in 50 Hours

Last lap in a 50-hour airmail service between Great Britain and Vancouver was completed on Monday with arrival of a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane from Montreal.

The plane carried letters which were conveyed across the Atlantic aboard the Imperial Airways flying boat Caribou. The Caribou left Southampton Saturday and arrived at Boucherville, Que., on Sunday.

At Montreal, the transatlantic mail was transferred to the T.C.A. plane which flew it to Vancouver.

DEVELOPS BETTER LIGHT
Dr. Leslie E. Howlett, Ottawa, of the National Research Council, has perfected artificial daylight, which is better than the real thing for the color grading of furs, paint manufacture and other industries. In Prince Edward Island furs have been graded by north sky-light, which was subject to great variations. The Department of Agriculture asked the Research Council to work out a more satisfactory system, and Dr. Howlett did it.

Lachute Boys at Canada's First Musical Camp

75 YOUNG BANDSMEN FROM QUEBEC AND ONTARIO ENJOY BIG TIME

"Camp Melody," a boys' camp unique in character because of the fact that no boy is registered unless he plays some band instrument, brought to a close its first year's activities last Sunday evening with a massed band concert, held on the grounds of "Pine Lodge," Bristol, Que.

Established experimentally, by Mr. Wm. Ormston, with the object of creating a wider interest in band music not only among the boys but the public in general, the camp has in its initial year, enjoyed 100 per cent success in all its aims.

An aggregate of 75 boys around 14 years of age attended camp for two weeks at Green Lake, near Shawville, Que., and a total of eight concerts were presented during that period.

One of the outstanding qualities of the camp, which became remarkably evident to all those who were privileged to visit the boys, was the cheerful attitude of fellowship which the boys displayed toward each other. These youngsters were drawn from seven different communities throughout Quebec and Ontario and had perhaps never met each other prior to their arrival in camp.

Under the capable direction of Mr. Arthur Crighton, L.R.S.M., they welded themselves into a musical organization of rare accomplishment, each one playing his own small part without thought of personal glory, and all in the brief space of two short weeks.

One of the many results of this experiment is the fact that at least five boys' bands from small rural communities are in a position to enter the musical competition at the forthcoming Ottawa Fair.

It is planned to make "Camp Melody" a permanent institution for young bandsmen in Eastern Canada, and judging by the countless enquiries addressed to the superintendent from boys throughout both provinces, the success of the endeavor seems to be assured.

The camp management committee kept the boys not only active, but contented and happy, and this in spite of the fact that three hours of each day was devoted to the study of music. A fine sports program was also enjoyed by the campers and not a single boy returned home unable to swim, although a large percentage were unable to do so on arrival.

Following is the administration committee of the camp: Wm. Ormston, supt.; A. B. Creighton, L.R.S.M., musical director; C. H. McLean, commisariat; Dr. S. E. McDowell, camp surgeon; Miss M. Ross, R.N., and Miss E. Nesbitt, R.N., camp nurses.

One of the highlights of the vacation for the young campers was the arrival by 'plane of Mr. J. Nesbitt, of Ottawa, who flew in to the campsite for the last day of camp to escort his sister, Miss E. Nesbitt, back to Ottawa. The pair took off at sundown amid the lusty cheers of some 75 youngsters, who got a big thrill from this incident. One of the boys enjoyed a short flight over the lake with Mr. Nesbitt before the final take-off.

Local boys who attended the camp were as follows: Geo. Deacon, Bobby Todd, John Giles, Don Hooper, Don Jolly, Colin McOuat, Sidney Sheppard, John Assad.

W.I. MEMBERS MEET OVERSEAS GROUP

The Argenteuil Women's Institutes were well represented last Thursday, a large number of ladies journeying by automobile to the Capital to meet the Scottish W.I. groups who are travelling through Eastern Canada and to the New York World's Fair. Luncheon was held at the Rockcliff Park pavilion and was provided for the Scottish guests by the ladies of Aylmer W.I. The visitors, numbering 49, came in two large autobuses. Accompanied by Miss H. McCain, Quebec W.I. superintendent, they were greeted by the Aylmer Branch.

At the close of the luncheon a welcome was given by Mrs. Nesbitt, president of the same branch, and Miss Gratton, leader of the party, responded on behalf of the visitors.

A pleasant session was spent, in discussion of views and work of the W.I. in Canada and overseas, and exchanging membership pins. As the visiting party left for their next visit, Auld Lang Syne was sung in bidding them farewell.

Amateur Hour Entertainment At Summer Colony

The weekly Amateur Hour at Mooney's Log Cabin last week-end produced some fine entertainment for this vacation colony. The opening act of the program, a radio skit by the "Snappy Gang," with songs and stories, caused much merriment and was well played by Alison Duncan, Ottawa, as master of ceremonies and soloist, with Betty Marks, Montreal, Edna Macdonnell and Marjorie Howell, of Ottawa, as the orchestra. Other features were a harmonica solo by Archie Coey, Montreal, who also acted as "gongmaster" on the evening's program; a dramatic explanation of the definition of a blush by George LeMay, Ottawa; and a short playlet, "Happy Arrival," with Eileen Mulhall, George LeMay and James McLaughlin, Ottawa, taking part, the latter also acting as master of ceremonies of the evening.

Others taking part in the program were: Kay Maloney, Cliff Mulhall, Earl Mulhall, Sylvia Lennon, Grace Miller, A. W. E. Hellyer and Cecil Hellyer, Ottawa; Grace Barron, St. Philippe, and Dick Marks and James Wilson, Montreal. The night was rounded out with the usual community singing and refreshments for the whole gathering.

The Saturday night barn dance was well patronized, Lawrence Silverson supplying the music.

Tuesday saw the semi-finals reached in the horseshoe tournament, and the names of the prize-winners will be announced next week. On Tuesday night an impromptu bonfire was thoroughly enjoyed, community singing again being in great favor.

MARATHON PADDLER IS DROWNED AT KINGSTON

STE. AGATHE CANOEIST ON JOURNEY TO TORONTO

Special to The Watchman. — The body of Harold P. Nash, 38-year-old resident of Ste. Agathe, Que., was recovered from Lake Ontario on Sunday afternoon, nine miles west of Kingston, Ont.

Nash was paddling to Toronto from Lachine in a canoe upon which he had constructed a special cabin, where he stored provisions by day and slept by night.

At Nine-Mile Point, Nash beached his canoe, intending to visit friends in that vicinity. The canoe started to drift out, however, and the man, jumping in to recover it, suddenly disappeared. He apparently was overcome and sank before rescuers could reach the spot.

The body was recovered later by the provincial police. No inquest was held.

Relatives and friends were contacted late Sunday night and the body was sent to Toronto for burial.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife, the former Evelyn Florence, three daughters aged 12, 7, and four months respectively, all of Ste. Agathe; his mother and two sisters, of Toronto.

Anniversary Services at Grenville Baptist Ch.

The Grenville Baptist Church, which was organized in the year 1837, will celebrate its anniversary on Sunday, August 13th. This historic church has served its community well under the faithful leadership of a fine succession of consecrated ministers. There are still living five of the charter members of the church, four of whom are still in the community and active in their attendance upon its ministry. Besides these, there are scores of Christian people active in other parts of the Dominion who received their early Christian training in the Grenville church and who have joined the membership of other churches. It is difficult to measure the far-flung influence of these small rural churches.

All members, former members, and friends of the Grenville Baptist Church are extended a hearty invitation to attend this anniversary. Services will be held at the Grenville church at 10.30 (Standard Time) in the morning, and at Chatham West at 7.00 (Standard Time) in the evening. The pastor, Rev. James R. Simpson, will conduct both services.

"Moral Re-armament" Plea Heard in Messages from California Conference

FRENCH-CANADIANS AMONG CONFERENCE SPEAKERS; "CANADA DAY" AT DEL MONTE

THE LOGICAL ANSWER TO CONFLICT

"A new quality of life for all." The theme of this message at the Second World Assembly on Moral Re-armament on the Monterey Peninsula, California, was broadcast to the world just recently.

In a region that has known many conventions, more perhaps than any other community of similar population in the world, there has never been a conference to issue such hope and optimism as this movement for a spiritual awakening of mankind, which asks, "Why not try God ?"

In conference on the Monterey Peninsula gathered men of all creeds and many races earnestly and passionately seeking the way whereby brotherly love inspired by "God-control" might endow men with those spiritual qualities without which their all-too-human greeds, jealousies, hatreds and factionalism undermine the civilization that they have painfully constructed through the centuries — itself the mighty labor of men of faith.

It is the answer to the cynics, the "realists," the defeated, the dispellers of gloom and racial hatreds. The common man has been listening for such an answer. He knows that these forces that blind his eyes in their materialistic conceptions of life are the enemies of his spirit. That is why so many people look to Moral Re-armament as a spiritual movement in which they, too, may take a part.

There was simple logic in the plea of Dr. Frank Buchanan, leader of the movement.

Nearly all people are prepared to answer that they believe there is a God. It makes little difference how they would describe the God in Whose existence they believe.

Nearly all people would agree also that there is a way of conduct by man and by peoples, that is acceptable to God, in that it follows the principles of honor, truth, justice, peace, sacrifice and brotherly love, that are commonly accepted as the God-like attributes of man.

Catholics, Protestants, Jews, Mohammedans, Buddhists, and followers of all the other ethical religions of mankind are tacitly in this common agreement.

Moral Re-Armament asks — Then why not make this common belief a vital force in every aspect of your life ? In your family, shop, factory, labor union, business, politics, social relations, EVERYWHERE AND IN EVERYTHING.

The main headlines of this year have been made up of war stories, tremendous taxes to maintain instruments of destruction, strikes paralyzing industry, millions searching for jobs, depressed standards of living, espionage, murder, suicide, and all the rest of the news that emphasizes a decline in the human values which generations of noble men and martyrs have struggled through the centuries to enhance.

M.R.A. asks for a new quality of life for all, that under spiritual guidance man may practice brotherly love, and in recognition of a plan blessed by God a new war may be waged against all the elements that degrade human values. Creed, therefore, makes no difference in the enlistment for this cause.

In four tongues — Japanese, Swedish, Burmese and English — but all with one language, an appeal for "God guidance" was sent from the Monterey Peninsula to effect industrial amity and social reconciliation at home, to restore peace and good will among nations abroad, and to place youth at the head of a fellowship for "the new world order."

H. V. "Bunny" Austin, English Davis Cup tennis star, issued a stirring challenge to youth. Austin related that "when Moral Re-Armament came to me, I was hopeless. Now I see an entirely new vision of the world. Sportsmen, morally rearmed, can help remake the thinking of the world."

On the international crisis, he said that in M.R.A. "we have the answer — in a change of heart. . . No one," Austin continued, has a greater or lesser part to play. Youth must be either fodder for guns or the fabric of a new world order. We must forge a pageant of youth of every nation, party, class and creed who have the desire to become leaders of that order."

"CANADA DAY" AT CONFERENCE IN DEL MONTE

Del Monte, Cal., July 29. — Today was "Canada Day" at the second World Assembly for Moral Re-Armament. The four hundred Canadians attending the Assembly presented the picture of a nation morally rearming. It was the first time that the session was completely taken over by the representatives of one nation.

Brigadier W. G. Beeman, of Kingston, who served Canada as a soldier for thirty years, termed Moral Re-Armament "A new form of preparedness, available either for peace or for war." He said, "A fresh future will open for the veterans of both Canada and the United States when they become enlisted members of these spiritual shock troops. Moral Re-Armament gives the veteran a chance to prove his courage and his loyalty in this battle for his country's life."

Eric Bentley, of Toronto, leader of Moral Re-Armament in Canada, quoted King George's farewell message on the occasion of his departure from Canada. "By God's grace, your country may yet be the example that all the world will follow." Mr. Bentley declared — "Our task is to make these prophetic words a reality, and to build a hate-free, fear-free, greed-free nation."

How Canada, the melting pot of the nations, could become the bridge-builder between all the nations through a program of Moral Re-Armament, was demonstrated strikingly by half a dozen "new Canadians."

French-Canadian speakers included Madame Ritchie, of Montreal, and Roger Belanger, of Ottawa, son of a former French-Canadian member of the Ontario Legislature, who were outspoken in their conviction that no real chasm separated the two races, but merely "a shadow lying across the broad highway," and that true unity would come only through sacrifice. "Because I love my country, and because I love my race, I must serve both. Moral Re-Armament has taught me to strip myself of selfishness and surrender my prejudices, so that the best qualities of both races can be given to Canada," said Belanger.

Barefoot Boy's Pin Repairs Fire Truck

A barefoot boy in overalls stood by the roadside at Sharpsville, Pa.., when the gas throttle broke on the fire truck as it raced to a rural blaze. Precious minutes slipped by as the firemen worked in vain to repair the break.

"Try this," said the boy, unfastening a safety pin which held up his overalls.

It worked and a home was saved.

Quebec Had Highest Fire Loss Ratio in 1938

The Province of Quebec had the highest fire loss ratio of all provinces for the year 1938, according to figures from Government statistics, released by the Canadian Underwriters' Association, which, in its announcement directed attention to the fact that fires in dwellings "were largely responsible for this unsatisfactory situation."

For the last three years Quebec has had the highest number of fires reported in all provinces. Out of 42,644 fires reported in Canada in 1936, Quebec had 14,782, approximately 33 per cent of the total; in 1937, out of 44,660, there were 14,853 in Quebec, approximately 30 per cent; and in 1938, out of 44,104 in the Dominion, Quebec had the worst record of all provinces with 19,813 fires, or well over 40 per cent.

This situation can easily be improved and "Board" insurance companies are constantly utilizing all their services to help reduce these losses with the idea of reducing insurance costs. But a survey of the origin of fires in Canada in 1938 proves that a great deal can be done by citizens when it is shown that out of 44,104 fires in 1938, 13,719 were caused by smokers' carelessness and matches; 3,972 by stoves, furnaces, boilers and pipes; 3,870 by defective chimneys and flues and 2,625 by electrical wiring and appliances. In each of these principal categories citizens have the remedy in their own hands because these are all causes which can be largely eliminated by a little extra personal attention to the question of safety in the home."

He—They say she has decided to marry a struggling young author.

She—Well, if she has decided, he may as well stop struggling.

"Then you admit that you struck the plaintiff with malice aforethought ?" demanded counsel of the man charged with assault.

"You can't mix me up like that," replied the defendant, indignantly. "I've told you twice I hit him with a brick. There wasn't no mallets nor nothing of the kind about it — just a plain brick like any gentleman would use."

Nelson's Message in Modern Version

The tendency toward use of involved language by politicians is bothering A. P. Herbert, humorist and Independent member of parliament for Oxford University — says a London despatch.

In a letter to the Times he said this "corruption" also is creeping into the defence services and if Lord Nelson were alive now he never would say, "England expects every man to do his duty."

The admiral's statement, Mr. Herbert said, probably would run something like this:

"England anticipates that as regards the current emergency personnel will face up to the issues and exercise appropriately the functions allocated to their respective occupation groups."

Postal Rate Reduction

The Honourable N. A. McLarty, Postmaster General, announces that, effective 15th August, the rate on business reply cards for delivery within Canada will be reduced from four cents to three cents.

These cards are used by firms who desire to send out letters, enquiries, etc., and to obtain a reply without putting their clients to the expense of paying postage.

This concession follows closely upon the Postmaster General's recent reduction of 50 per cent in the special delivery fee for letters and a reduced rate for library books and is in accordance with his policy of endeavoring to popularize the various postal services and make them available to all at the minimum rates of postage.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

Led by Prime Minister Chamberlain, the British Empire is determined to avoid war — but not at ALL COST. Everything has been done to show the madmen of Europe that war will be a very sorry enterprise for all concerned. Great Britain's recent demonstration has shown that she is prepared in the air as on the sea. In France, the Royal Air Force made a profound impression. Observers realized that the famous British armada of the air is something with which to reckon. Furthermore, combined with the air force of France, the R. A. F. will cause any European combination to pause and ponder. In other words, the possibilities of war are becoming slimmer each day and in proportion to the preparedness of democratic nations. It is to be hoped that "pacifists" will stop tea-drinking to permit of a little sound, logical thinking.

HOW "GRAPEVINE" TALES ARE TOLD

Grenville Kleiser, well known writer has been lately warning all and sundry against stories told by either gossipers or genuine scandal mongers. He instances the harm that may be done by political canards which are destructive and libelous to those in the public field. But he is quite as condemnatory of the things we call "grapevine" tales that are told in all communities as fact, although they are the merest hearsay garbed with every transfer they have made from one mouth to another. To make clear his point Kleiser tells this story :

The inevitable "someone" reported that a minister went to a meeting which his wife attended against his will, and that in a fine temper he dragged her from the hall and violently forced her to go home with him. The clergyman, when told this yarn, mentioned the facts, which were : "In the first place I never tried to influence my wife. In the second, my wife wasn't at the meeting in question. In the third, I did not attend the meeting myself. In the fourth, neither of us had any wish to go there. And, lastly, I haven't a wife."

Undoubtedly in order to be convincing this story, too, has been a bit touched up. But not much. It's our experience as citizen and editor that it's never safe to trust the "grapevine" accuracy in "tales that are told." Faots can be had from the principals concerned. No other.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT — THE BASIS OF DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS

It is a truism that if you touch any part of municipal government under our form of society, you touch not only the provincial and federal governments but also the entire gamut and range of parochial institutions as well. Municipal government is therefore the very keystone of the national arch. Our liberties and responsibilities, our rights and privileges, all originate in the nucleus or cell of our democratic, respresentative form of government, which centres and has its life and being in our municipalities.

A WELCOME FOR F.D.R.

There were loud cheers in the British House of Commons when Mr. Arthur Greenwood, acting leader of the Labor Party, expressed the hope that President Roosevelt would break with tradition and repay the recent visit of the King and Queen to Washington. Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Greenwood remarked, would receive in England a welcome equal in warmth to that extended Their Majesties in the United States.

Nothing would please the British people more than to extend the hand of greeting to the gracious President and his lady. And should it be possible for the President's mother to be present also, British enthusiasm will know no bounds. The elder Mrs. Roosevelt was entertained at Buckingham Palace some five years ago and played a prominent part in the recent reception to Their Majesties at the Roosevelt home in Hyde Park.

It may be that the President will decide against an official visit to London during his term of office but millions of persons would like to see him make the trip while he is still President. Were he to accept nomination for a third term and be elected, it is difficult to see how anything would then stand in the way of an official visit to Great Britain. And, incidentally, a great many persons believe Mr. Roosevelt could win a third term in the White House despite the age old tradition against keeping Presidents there that long.

CITIES CHARGE SEWER RENTALS

Increased interest of cities in the adoption of sewer rentals or sewer service charges to meet the cost of municipal sewerage service is reported in a survey by U.S. municipal organizations.

Cities of less than 25,000 population make up the bulk of those now charging sewer rentals, while several places over 500,000 population are now considering the plan.

Few of the cities try to derive sufficient funds from rentals to finance all the costs of their sewerage system, the survey showed. Some of them use rental revenues to pay the debt service on new treatment plants, while others have turned to rentals to operate existing plants.

More than one-third of the cities surveyed base the charge on water consumption as measured by water meters. Another third make the number of plumbing fixtures the basis of charge. Others bases include the number of sewer connections, the type of property and metered quantity of sewage. A few small communities use uniform rates, which vary from $3.00 to $10.00 a year.

Members of councils are generally busy men, and the amount of detail now requiring the closest attention seems to be almost endless. People may be roused and heated by national questions or disturbed by international problems, but it is the local government service which has the most direct and vital influence upon every phase of the life of the individual.

How to Outwit Criminals

By W. E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

Juvenil, a Roman satirical poet, said in the year 80 A.D.: "If you wish to be anybody nowadays, you must perpetuate a crime that merits banishment or execution and escape punishment."

This one remark by that well known sage indicates that criminals thrived through the dawn of civilization and caused the authorities as much trouble, and the law observing citizen as much cause for speculation, as they do today.

As everyone knows, plastic surgery has been utilized by those antagonistic to established customs to alter the configuration of the face, hands and other portions of the body, thus enabling criminals to escape identification.

Many of the underworld denizens have actually had surgeons create scars on their faces and bodies for this same purpose and it is a matter of record that others have even had their eyes altered so that they changed from cross-eyes to normal eyes or from normal eyes to cross-eyes, as best served their purpose.

In numerous instances the ridges and whirls necessary for the fingerprint expert to study have been partially or completely erased by burns and chemicals. This is what enabled Dillinger, Van Meter, Klutas, Nelson and other public enemies to escape capture for such a long time.

During the past few years two men, Dr. Carleton Simon and Dr. Isadore Golstein, have devised and perfected a new method of identification, which will undoubtedly come as a terrific shock to criminals. It is based upon the many variations of patterns made by the interlacing network of blood vessels of the retina or background of the human eye.

It answers the challenge which that haughty and intellectual criminal issued to society, because it permits of no surgical attempts to alter this part of the body, without the great risk of blindness following — a risk even too great for the criminal minded to undertake.

Not only is the arrangement of the blood vessels of the eye permanent throughout life, but remains so for a long period after death. By the aid of a retinal camera, the retina or background of the eye can be quickly photographed through the eyes, and it does not require any medical skill to do so, being a simple mechanical procedure, which requires a fraction of a minute to accomplish.

Either or both eyes may be used. Any layman can do this work and the method of identification is as simple as that of fingerprint identification. Thousands of photographs thus taken show beyond doubt that no two retinal formations are identical. Crime cannot compete with science.

Something Missing

Two young men, 18 and 19 years of age, were in court at London, Ont., and when they appeared they had their jaws in leather slings because they had been broken in a car accident. Both were sentenced and because they could not pay a fine they went to jail.

The charge was that the driver of the car was drunk when he ran head on into a car from United States. There was a bottle of wine in the car and the driver had been warned by some of his friends not to drive the car. But he did.

Sending the young man to jail will probably satisfy the law, but what of it ? He cannot pay his fine, and he cannot pay for the damage he did to the other car, nor can he pay the bills which were incurred because people in it were injured.

Our law is actually pretty loose and easy. Here was a young man who carried no insurance in case he caused damage to others, but he could spend money getting drunk and then run wild and all the time he was putting it up to some other party to pay the bill for his nonsense. And the factors in that situation do not add up and give the right answer.

Our "English" Announcers

The King and Queen have returned home, but the "little" stories about their visit continue to circulate. An amusing one has to do with the arrangements made by the Canadian Broadcasting Commission to broadcast the reception at Toronto. The preparations naturally were elaborate for an event of such importance. Before Their Majesties arrived there was some talk of these preparations and it was even suggested that announcers would be brought out from England. Gladstone Murray and confreres frowned on any suggestion that the C.B.C. could not handle the job.

But when the Toronto reception was broadcast by an announcer with a pronounced Oxford accent, the suspicions of more than one listener were confirmed. Letters poured into the C.B.C. complaining of the importation of the "English" announcer. "Did we not have Canadians who do just as good a job ?" So the complaints went. They went unanswered for the C.B.C. was in an awkward box in that it did not want to admit that it had brought a French-Canadian announcer from Quebec City to broadcast the Toronto reception in English !

Ottawa Exhibition, Opening Aug. 21, Promises a Record In Program Attractions

One week from Monday next, on August 21, the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa will open to the general public, and Canada's biggest one-week exhibition will be under way. Under President H. Stanley Higman, the directors have spared no effort to make this year's Fair, the 52nd, go down as the best.

More than $30,000 has been set aside for prize money in the various departments. Entries have been exceptionally heavy and it is expected records in this regard will be announced when entries are all tabulated. Interest in the exhibition has been increasing year by year and thousands are expected to pour into the Capital by special trains, buses and motor cars.

Some of the finest entertainments on the continent will be seen in the startling grandstand show, which is featured by the gorgeous "World's Fair Revue." Leading theatrical entertainers also will be performing in the midway shows.

Weddings

Heavysege-Marshall

At 4.30 o'clock Saturday, Aug. 5th, on the terrace at "Laburnum," Black Lake, Dunany, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Culross, cousins of the groom — the marriage took place of Miss Anne Catherine Marshall, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Marshall, of Timmins, Ont., and Mr. Bruce Reid Heavysege, B.Eng., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Heavysege, of Lachine, Que.

The bridal party walked down a path of Picardy gladioli and sumac to the terrace, which was garlanded with clematis and gladioli. The bride looked lovely in a gown of midnight blue sheer organza and shoulder and head garlands of Miss Finch roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie Heavysege, sister of the groom, wore a frock of dusty pink crêpe Romaine and her flowers were sweet peas of a matching shade.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. H. Dryden Heavysege, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. F. Carleton, of Dunham, Que.

Immediately after the reception the bride and groom left on a motor trip.

Among the out of town guests were — Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Marshall, of Timmins, parents of the bride; Mr. Lou Marshall and Miss Jean Marshall, Mrs. Harry Gilbert, of Sherbrooke; Mrs. Carleton and Miss Frances Carleton, of Dunham; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Robertson and Mr. and Mrs. Hector Campbell, of Lachine. Included among other relatives of the bridal party were Mrs. Colin Campbell and Mrs. D. Joss, grand-aunts of the groom.

On Saturday, at 2 p.m., in the Church of the Transfiguration, Toronto, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized, when Dr. William Garard, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Garard, of Westmount Ave., Toronto, was married to Miss Elfreda Eileen (Freda) Wilkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Wilkins, of Pictou. Rev. E. Wasson officiated, assisted by Rev. J. M. Brownlee, of Athens, brother-in-law of the bride. Miss Bernice Scott played the wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of turquoise blue crepe with wine-shade accessories and carried Talisman roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her sister, Mrs. George Grant, was matron or honor, wearing a gown of pink sheer crepe with white accessories, and carried pink roses and blue cornflowers. Mr. George Grant was groomsman.

The young couple left by motor for a two weeks' honeymoon at Madoc, Midlands and other points in Northern Ontario, followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

On their return, Dr. Garard and his bride will live in North Toronto.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Soul" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, August 13th.

The Golden Text is from Lamentations 3:24. "The Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption."

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Through false estimates of soul as dwelling in sense and of mind as dwelling in matter, belief strays into a sense of temporary loss or absence of soul, spiritual truth. This state of error is the mortal dream of life and substance as existent in matter, and is directly opposite to the immortal reality of being." (Page 311).

THE HYMN OF HATE

Hate is one of the most intense emotions of which the human mind is capable.

It can lash its victim far more furiously than can sorrow or love or sympathy or even anger or fear. It soaks deep into the innermost consciousness of man; it warps his mind; it changes for the time his whole attitude on life, and if allowed to become a daily companion it is as difficult a habit to eradicate as is that of drugs.

Hate is a contagious mental disease which sometimes reaches the proportions of a vast plague. Today it is rampant, and one has to go far back in history to find a period when it has spread so broadly over the face of the Earth.

One of the world's principal difficulties today is that discord among nations has continued for such a long period that all sense of proportion has been lost and the people have allowed those keener perceptions — which ordinarily would be used successfully to lead them out of trouble — to degenerate into blind, useless, unconstructive, fight-breeding hate.

We are wont to boast loudly of our civilization of today. We read with horror of the atrocities of the Spanish Inquisition under Ferdinand and Isabella; we shudder in revulsion at the dreadful scenes in the Roman arena of Nero and Caligula and we recoil in amazement over the persecution of the Jews under Egypt's Pharoahs. "Thank God, such things couldn't happen today," we say. "That was centuries ago. We are civilized now!"

Mull that over for a piece of juvenile conceit! What happened in the torture chambers of Barcelona and Madrid during the last two years? What have the gentle Reds of Moscow been doing for the past twenty-one years? Consider the lot of the Jews in Germany today, and when you've added this all up the sum total is — Hate.

Class hatred in Russia, political hatred in Spain and race hatred in Germany.

The Bible teaches us a cure for this illness, but even that good book cannot compete with the hate mongers of today.

Numberless authors, playwrights, editorialists, public speakers and even some of those who preach the Word of God — spew forth their venom. The motion picture producer and the radio broadcaster do their share to corrupt the fair and decent mind of the people of the world, who in other days were wont to discuss a contentious subject in an open-minded and constructive way.

The people themselves have been splattered with this corruption until many of them now prefer to read or hear a vicious tirade against some race or creed or nation, which they have been taught to hate, than to read or hear an illuminating discussion on the subject.

Consider what these disseminators of hate and malice have done to the world.

They have driven the people to such madness that race hatred has become one of the burning facts of today; class hatred threatens trouble in almost any nation and national hatreds have been spurred to such a pitch that destruction stares the world in the face.

It would take a heroic national leader, at this moment, to face a rebuff by suggesting a conference of nations in which the international troubles could be ironed out. What chance has he of success? Many of the leaders themselves — upon whose clear-headed thinking the people of this world would depend — have succumbed to the siren hymn of hate.

At this very moment the world is trembling with agitation lest the Nazi Government make some rash move in the Danzig situation which would involve all Europe in war, whereas a peaceable conference would probably have found a solution to the trouble.

There is a cure for all this — if it is not too late — and that cure lies with the people. It is a tough cure because we have to dig the hate out of our own systems before we will be in a position to inform the Hate Mongers that WE have decided that THEY, in the future, will be allowed to appeal to our common sense and not to our emotions. That WE have decided that the other fellow may sometimes have right on his side — whether regarding his religion, his political theories or his claims to social justice, and that we are going to give him his "day in court." If we decide against him we will act against him — but with our brains, not our emotions.

The world is sick with Hate. If it is not too late, and if we start the cure over here, and it works — the other nations will follow suit.

Christ Church W.A. Sale, St. Andrews East

St. Andrews E. — Christ Church W.A. held their annual sale and tea in the Town Hall, on Saturday, Aug. 5th. There was a splendid display of hand-made articles, a very attractive donations stall, home-cooking and candy stall. The Misses Betty Albright and Lillian Fraser, in pretty red and white uniforms, were in charge of the candy stall. The tea tables displaying the new china recently purchased by the members, looked very inviting. The sale was a great success in every way.

Many Old Castles in Europe

There remain in Europe many castles that date back to the Middle ages. The defenses of the city of Carcassonne, near the Aude river in southwestern France, represent some of the best engineering of the Thirteenth century. Erected upon the ruins of Fifth-century Roman and later Visigoth defenses, they survive after restorations by Viollet-le-Duc between the years 1850 and 1860, magnificent examples of the skill of their celebrated builders.

WHY NOT!

Should men marry? By all means. If you get a good wife you will become very happy. If you get a bad one you will become a philosopher.

The Old Stone House, Grenville, Que.

"If I could speak," quoth an Old Stone House,
"I'd tell a tale of long, long ago . . .
So listen, children, as still as a mouse;
And I hope you will love it so.
I am nigh on a hundred years old, my dears,
But not tumbling down, so have no fears.
Surrounded by whispering elms, so stately,
I was built by a man who was tall and shapely,
A man who walked to the last with a stride,
And always a spaniel close to his side.
A Highlander true from his native Scotland
Whose judgment was honored by all the land.
But what of his wife so sweet and tender,
Who lived with her husband tall and slender?
She was loved by all, both far and near,
And this, I am sure you know, my dears —
I am quite, quite sure, as I have been told,
That each of them had a heart of pure gold.
Their children. — You ask, 'Had they many in all?'
Yes, fourteen, my dears, most of them tall.
Scattered they now are — both east and west.
I am sure I can say they all have been blest
With families and homes and all they desire.
But all have a love for my cosy fire.
For this is the home where they quarrelled and played.
E'en now they remember me, tho' all very staid.
I stand a little way back from the road
Behind as ever the Sault Rapids have flowed,
Bubbling, brushing their way over rocks,
Their curling, twirling, swirling ne'er stops.
Dashing, flashing, gurgling, glittering,
Madly moving, moaning, groaning,
Pushing, pulling, twisting, turning."

SASKATCHEWAN HOPES FOR A GOOD CROP THIS YEAR

These two contrasting scenes were taken in Saskatchewan. At the top is a granary near Regina in which the farmer stores bait for poisoning grasshoppers, and is aptly labelled "Grasshopper Inn." Below is a splendid stand of wheat, almost as high as the girl in the centre, which is typical of the wheat in the fields of Saskatchewan this year. . . Since this picture was taken the grain is reported to have suffered through heat and dry weather, but after its prolonged "drought cycle" the West is still optimistic for its grain crop.

SEE CANADA FIRST

The desire to see Canada must have been greatly stimulated by the Royal visit. I have always wanted to see the West but that desire is greatly intensified now. Every night when I hear the Trans-Canada plane leave, I wish I were on it. In Quebec and Ontario and as far west as Winnipeg, I could picture the King and Queen, because I had been in all the places, but from the time they left Winnipeg until they returned, the radio broadcasts could not mean as much as I had not been there. Then after they left Winnipeg on the return journey I could follow them every place but to Prince Edward Island and Pictou County in Nova Scotia. And I will never be satisfied until I cover that unknown ground. If that desire is so intense in me it must have affected many others the same way. Not only Canadians but people in the United States and in Great Britain. Canada is so varied and so large that few of us have a comprehensive idea of our own country. See Canada first is a good motto.

MRS. AITKEN AND THE EXHIBITION

The alert business man knows that it is wise to cater to the women as they do most of the buying. The Canadian National Exhibition made a notable move forward when they appointed Mrs. H. M. Aitken as the head of women's activities. Mrs. Aitken is an intelligent woman, with ideas, and common sense. One of her innovations is to invite representative women to meet at the daily luncheons, as she expresses it in the invitation, "where the women of Canada may get together to talk over their accomplishments of last year — their hopes for the coming year." It is a great stimulation to meet women who are doing things and it should be a time of mutual help and inspiration. This is just one of Mrs. Aitken's plans and it will be interesting to watch what she does for the women of Canada.

CANDIDATES SHOULD BE SUCCESSFUL MEN

Candidates for the next election are being chosen in many ridings. Individuals have little choice as the party machine swings into action. One thing which should be a governing factor is whether the candidate has made a success of his own life. That does not imply money only, but it does stand to reason that a person who can make a success of his or her own business life will have a better idea of how the nation's business should be run. Many successful men cannot afford to stand for election. Four thousand dollars a year looks like a good salary for a member of Parliament, but actually it is not very much. The member has to live in Ottawa, during the session, and keep up his residence at home, too. His hand is in his pocket all the time as everyone seems to think the member fair game and he dare not refuse. There are many good members with a wide and deep knowledge of the various concerns of the country but there are too many mediocre ones who are not much help. Sometimes these members, who do not cut much ice in the House, are expensive propositions, because they manage to get a lot for their constituencies and their supporters.

TO REVIVE FLOWERS

Have you ever been given a bouquet of flowers, or picked wild flowers, and by the time you got them home they were so wilted it would seem nothing could revive them? Fill a large flat pan with water and lay your flowers in it, blossoms and all, and let them stay in the water over-night. This will make them as fresh as the proverbial daisy and the water does not hurt the blossoms. When you pick the flowers in your garden, if you plunge them into water, the length of the stem, and allow them to soak for a few hours before arranging them, they will last much longer. Flowers, to keep well, need plenty of water and room to breathe—they will not stand crowding.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING

This is one of those recipes which is hard to give in definite proportions. It all depends on the sourness of the cream — and that is a hard thing to measure. Add salt, pepper, sugar, and vinegar to sour cream, a little at a time. Taste and add until you get it to suit. Pare and slice cucumbers very thinly and cover with the sour cream dressing. I never use it for anything but cucumbers, but I often find my guests putting it on tomatoes and lettuce as well. White wine vinegar is a good choice.

CRISP CUCUMBER SLICES

6 quarts cucumbers, 1 gal. white wine vinegar, 9 cups brown sugar, 1 cup mustard, 1 cup salt, 1 teaspoon tumeric, 1 oz. ground mixed spice.

Choose cucumbers around 4 inches long, not big enough to be seedy. Cut in slices, and put in a crock. Mix the remaining ingredients and pour the mixture over the cucumbers. Stir every day for ten days. Keep in the crock. The mixture is not cooked. This recipe is a friend's and I have had these pickles ever so often at her teas and parties and they are a crisp, crunchy pickle, and are very delicious.

MARSHMALLOW ICE CREAM

1 cup marshmallows (cut in pieces), ½ cup milk, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup whipped cream, pinch of salt, 2 egg whites, ½ cup grape nuts.

Melt marshmallows and sugar in the hot milk, add salt and allow to cool. Fold in the beaten egg-whites and the whipped cream and add the vanilla and grape-nuts. Turn into freezing tray and freeze slowly, stirring two or three times.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

FECUNDITY

So much publicity has been given the Dionne quintuplets born to French-Canadian parents the average individual is forced to the conclusion that this is the first time such an event has taken place.

A search of medical records, however, shows that while it is rather unusual, it has been duplicated many times and in several instances exceeded.

Some years ago a woman in Mayfield, Kentucky, had six babies within four hours, two of them are still alive. More recently a slender farm woman living near Mendon, Mo., aged 36, presented her husband with five boys and one girl, the little girl born first, and weighing ten pounds. All of the little ones were prematurely born, which is typical of multiple births.

Not very long ago three boys and three girls were born, at intervals of a half hour, to a 22-year-old woman in North Dakota, all but one dying within twenty-four hours afterwards.

It is rather strange that rural districts are more prolific in this respect than urban centres — just why no one can say.

Other medical writers incline to the belief that the birth rate of this type is influenced by warm climates, and fortify their statements by figures, but nevertheless it is true that Sweden, a cold country, leads the world in large families, while Iceland within the Arctic Circle, averaged twenty children to every married couple, until a plague swept over the country, which decimated the population.

In Canada, one family with 36 children received a substantial bonus for its donation to the population.

There have been many cases of quintuplets born in France, Silesia, Austria, Saxony, Russia, England and Italy, while the early Greeks and Roman writers on medical topics refer numerous times to such births among their countrywomen.

In Rome, there was recently a woman named Flavia Granata who in twenty-six years presented her spouse with 41 daughters and 21 sons. When married she was twenty-eight years of age.

Mrs. Mary Austin, wife of a Washington, D.C., policeman, during her thirty years of married life had 44 children — all sons.

In 1924, an Italian mother had sextuplets and a medical missionary reports the case of a Kaffir woman having six babies within three hours.

Only a few years ago a peasant's wife in Silesia had sextuplets and later gave birth to 38 other babies, only three being girls.

SEEING DOUBLE — TWICE

Irene and Madeline Spencer of Brewer, one of the 150 sets of twins that participated in the annual Maine twin party at Skowhegan, are shown with a set of twin lambs donated by Commissioner Frank Washburn of the State Department of Agriculture. MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

Gabriela Mistral, who has gone as a consul to Nice, France, for her country, Chile, thinks the women of North America have been an inspiration to the women of South America in social work of all kinds. Social service work in her own country and elsewhere south of the Equator is based upon our methods, according to her.

Senorita Mistral was recently offered the appointment of Chilean Minister to Central American countries, but she declined on the ground that the work would interfere with her writing. She is considered one of the foremost poets of the Spanish language.

Anni Voipio, of Finland, is an outstanding newspaper woman of northern Europe, and her editorials and splendid reporting for the Uusi Suomi, Finland's largest newspaper, have brought her fame on both sides of the Atlantic.

She is young, blonde, attractive and covers regular assignments in Swedish, French, German, English and Dutch. She is a graduate of the University of Helsinki and president of the Business and Professional Women of Finland. As the only woman reporter for her country she is covering the New York World's Fair, for which she received a state scholarshhip.

Exception is taken to a recent statement that discrimination between men's and women's wages is not a common practice. The Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor says that frequently women receive only 60 to 70 per cent as much as men.

Mrs. Sarah E. Duffy has succeeded to her late husband's office of city marshal in New York, the first woman to get such an appointment. She helped her husband with clerical work when he held the office.

HOUSE AND HOME

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

August and dog days—and the very human urge to lean on our hoes and read light fiction on a shady porch, thereby absent-mindedly or purposely overlooking the fact that certain plants must have attention now or never, and if we want them in our gardens we must bestir ourselves to do something about it.

Oriental poppies, madonna lilies, autumn crocus and meadow saffron, as well as peonies and iris, must be transplanted and established in August.

The autumn crocus will give you color in your garden late in September and on into October. They are a lovely lavender color but sturdy and strong. Plant them in sandy soil so that they will have good drainage and they will bloom autumn after autumn to repay you for working in the August sun.

Oriental poppies like a perfectly drained spot, too. If water stands on the crown of the plant throughout the winter there is grave danger of rotting it. Sandy soil mounded up around the plant so the water will drain away from it insures successful wintering for oriental poppies.

Molded salads and desserts are so popular for summer meals that I like to serve them often. They are most appetizing and at the same time one of the easiest dishes to prepare and serve, and here's a tip for their perfect unmolding. Submerge the mold for not more than ten seconds in a large pan of luke-warm water. Invert on the serving dish, and the shape slips out neatly.

Save laundry in summer by using small Turkish towels for hand and face in your bathrooms. They are so very easy to wash and require no ironing. Fold them straight when you run them through the wringer, hang them straight on the line and fold them neatly when you take them off the line, and they are ready to put away. Good quality towels may be purchased in a variety of lovely colors and are color-fast. Each member of the family may have his own favorite color with wash cloth to match.

Another summer work saver is effected by storing the silver you won't be using. First polish well. Then wrap in tarnish-preventive-treated paper or in one of the specially lined silver chests. There are bags of transparent cellulose paper made in various sizes that are most convenient for covering large pieces.

As the temperature goes up our energy usually goes down, so use all the "savers" on the market that are designed to save energy.

Adult Education Co-operates With Women's Institutes

A similarity of objectives of Adult Education and the Women's Institutes is tending towards a co-operation between the two which may become of great benefit to both. The Quebec Provincial Board of Women's Institutes has a Director of Adult Education in the person of Mrs. R. Thompson, of Abbottsford, who supervises the activities of the society along the lines of this new department. Mr. R. Alex Sim, a pioneer of the Adult Education movement in Quebec, is to be one of the speakers at the postponed annual convention of the Q.W.I., which takes place at Macdonald College next week, a fact which is confidently expected to help in unifying the forces of these two bodies towards their common aim — the education of people who are past school age.

A story is going around of an encounter between two well-known actresses.

Said the first: "I have just been to a beauty parlor."

"And was it closed, dearie?" asked the other, sweetly.

Coast of Historic Memories

Torquay, on the south Devon coast, is visited by many travelers. Protected by the oval-shaped Lyme bay and facing due south, it is advantageously placed. In the vicinity are architectural relics of note, among them Tor Abbey, founded in 1196. After the defeat of the Spanish Armada, one of the galleys was brought into the bay. This coast of historic memories has many interesting villages and nooks for the wanderer — Teignmouth, at the mouth of the Teign, Newton abbey, and Dawlish with its picturesque cliffs. Paignton is another well-known place. Exeter is not far away, with its cathedral of notable Norman towers, the ancient city wall, the Guildhall, and the Chevalier's house once occupied by Charles II.

Science Marches On

There is only one factor which will ever change the actual conditions of daily living, and that is science. Science, which plods sometimes and marches or crusades, seems immune to man, creed or dogma. Wars never hinder it, they help it to progress; it wins in peace, devastating plagues and pestilences give it the secret of how to combat them, it gathers rich stores of information from the very people who are worried as to how new political theories will affect them. Science goes on—quietly—seeking the paths of human enlightenment, exerting its passive influence and increasing strength on a sometimes unbelieving and skeptical world which challenges everything put before it, until it finds that the unaccepted theory has been subconsciously accepted and that what once was fancy has gradually become fact.

Early Inventors 'Outsiders'

The first effect of the patent laws was to give such heroes as Oliver Evans, McCormick, Morse, Bell, Westinghouse and Edison their chance. Most of these were "outsiders" in the sense that they were not identified with any industry. Thus Howe and Singer were not tailors when they invented their repective sewing machines; Whitney was a young teacher who thought of going into law when he invented the cotton gin; Fulton and Morse were artists; McCormick was a farmer, but his great rival, Hussey, was a sailor; Gatling, Maxim, nearly all the inventors of instruments for dealing death on a wholesale scale, were gentle civilians who had never smelled gunpowder.

PROVIDING FOR A PICNIC

Providing for a picnic tea
Is just as simple as can be;
And one thing you need and nothing more,
A key that fits the pantry door.
Arrange a call when no one's near,
Clutch what you want and disappear.

A RECIPE

Take half a pint of milk, a pound
Of sugar, mix and stir them round.
Include some soap or glue to taste,
Then beat the compound to a paste.
Leave on the fire an hour or less;
This should provide a frightful mess.

Grade V.

MY BED

How I hate to get up in the morning,
When I'm lying stretched out in bed,
How I hate to get up in the morning,
When a pillow there's under my head.

When the canary birds are singing,
And the lilacs are in bloom,
The only time I like to get up
Is when it's afternoon.

But I've got to get up in the morning,
When the school bus comes around;
I've got to be up by eight o'clock,
And then we "go to town."

Reading, Spelling, Arithmetic,
If you don't do it right you get the stick;
French and Geography, Oh,my, my,
Can I stand it or will I die?

Slow but sure the old clock winds,
Until it hits the three-thirty lines;
Then out we go, by twos and twos,
To get our coats and overshoes.

Back to the bus we all do run,
Then Harry Pollock "gives her the gun,"
And back to my home where I rest my head,
In my lovely, delicious bed.

Osler Farmer.

Electric Storm Mars Final Stages Of C-I-L Picnic at Brownsburg

PROGRESS OF ATTRACTIONS TILL EARLY EVENING PROVED PROGRAM CAREFULLY PLANNED

The C-I-L picnic held at Brownsburg on Saturday, August 12th, was literally both a success and a "washout."—A success inasmuch as flawless weather up to the early evening proved that the day's program had been perfectly planned; sporting events, band concerts, "Amateur Hour," and the numerous other items were carried off with a co-ordination that was quite remarkable. —A "washout" on account of the electrical storm and heavy downpours that occurred shortly after 9 p.m.; these quickly dispersed the large crowd, estimated at between 2,000 and 3,000 people, and forced abandonment of the remainder of the program.

Rifle, Trap and Skeet Shooting Events

The day opened with the usual Rifle Championship competition, which was won by George Prosser by a very slim margin. His score was 97 x 100. The other prize-winners in their order were David Golphin, 96 x 100 (judged second by best grouping), James W. Houlden, 96 x 100 and William Brown, 95 x 100. There were 31 competitors.

Immediately following were the Trap and Skeet shooting competitions. Once again the uncanny accuracy of George Prosser enabled him to make a clean sweep of the trapshooting prizes. He won every event, namely, the 10-Bird, 15-Bird and the 25-Bird, although he was forced to shoot off ties in every instance. His challengers respectively were (1) Mel. Fletcher and S. H. Stilwell, (2) R. Chambers and Alex McGibbon, (3) H. M. Sherwood. Mr. Prosser's excellent performance also won for him the High Aggregate prize.

In the Skeet shooting, another accurate shot, R. Simpson, won all the major prizes although the competition was very keen in both the 16 and 25-Bird events. Mr. Simpson, who hails from St. Andrews East, also won the High Aggregate prize for the entire Skeet shoot, the runner-up being Hub Tomalty, of Montreal.

Children's Events, Field and Track Contests

The children's events commenced immediately after lunch, and each contest was entered into with the enthusiasm characteristic of youth. Or was it because they knew they would receive a cash voucher which could be used in lieu of cash on the grounds, whether they were successful or not? Senior events were also run off without a hitch. Results of the sports program are held over for publication in next issue.

Entertainment and Amateur Hour

During the afternoon, the Brownsburg Boys' Band demonstrated its amazing progress with several musical selections. The band also gave a concert in the evening just prior to the "Amateur Hour" contest. In the latter program there were 20-odd entries, and it was very difficult for the three judges to choose the winners from the talent displayed. All numbers were heartily applauded by the audience, and the failure of the power to the broadcasting system prompted the crowd to crush around the platform from all directions. The first prize for the ladies was won by Miss Rhea Dagenais, whose charming voice captured all hearts. Harold Kettyle won the first prize for the men with a cowboy song, with his own guitar accompaniment. Miss Dolly Steere captured the second prize for the ladies with a Highland sword dance, while comedian Sam Clement took that honor for the men. The winners of third and fourth prizes for the ladies were Mr. Frank Kettyle and little Betty Cooley respectively, and for the men, Mr. James Cunningham and Son, and Mr. R. Lamarche.

Pipe Major McCurdy acquired quite a following of toddlers during his parade around the grounds. The skirl of his pipes was also quite pleasing to the grown-ups and while their feet itched to follow, their pride of maturity deterred them.

Brownsburg Softball Winners

While the score of 9-0 would seem to indicate an easy victory for the Brownsburg Softball team against Montreal C-I-L Paint and Varnish Division, yet the latter put up no mean exhibition. A large measure of Brownsburg's success must be attributed to E. Racine, who pitched a wonderful game, accounting for 14 of the 27 outs. Although small in stature, there is a tremendous force behind his pitching, as can be testified by Reg. Wallace, the Brownsburg catcher, who has been forced to relinquish softball for a time, to allow his bruised hands to recover.

Just as the dancing was about to commence, the threatening storm broke. Immediately all was confusion, as the crowd dashed for shelter. In the twinkling of an eye the fair ladies resembled bathing beauties, while the less-prepossessing men resembled those erections which are "allergic" to crows. To the brilliant flashes of lightning and the cacaphony of the thunder the stall-keepers hastily put away their wares, but not before considerable damage ensued. Motors were flooded, and it was some hours before many of the cars could be moved from the grounds. To recompense the stall-keepers somewhat for their loss, they will be permitted to operate their amusements at the League Softball Play-offs, which will probably take place on Saturday, August 26th. There will be no charge for admission to the grounds, and all visitors will be welcome.

Officers Elected by Municipal Assocn. At Morin Heights

PROGRAM IS OUTLINED AND OBJECTIVES REVIEWED AT ANNUAL MEETING

Morin Heights —

The Municipal Association of Morin Heights held its election of officers last Saturday evening in the "Commons" Hall.

In the absence of Professor Charles McKergow, retiring president, who was confined to bed, Dr. Victor Jekill took the chair. The chairman stated that through the kind efforts of Professor McKergow, Dean Brown's secretary had volunteered to provide sufficient copies of the reports of the president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer for the past year to give one to each member, and that he had been assured that these had been distributed. Therefore, since they had been read and adopted at a previous meeting he would proceed with the election of officers.

The Association was launched on the second year of its existence with an entire slate of local people at the helm. The retiring secretary-treasurer and founder of the Association, Major J. W. Green, was elected president. Mr. Bouchard, a director on the previous executive and local agent for the C.N.R., was elected vice-president. Mrs. Robert Seale, retired secretary and past president of one of the local women's organizations, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The directors were Messrs. Ned Watchorn, Gilbey, Vaillancourt, W. J. Seale, Fred Hammond.

With the organizing of a membership campaign, the executive will turn its efforts next towards assisting the C.N.R. in completing a survey of the district, through a questionnaire, with a view to establishing a winter train service that will meet as nearly as possible the needs of all interested. The next matter for consideration is the establishment of a central station in the village for the Bell Telephone lines. It is felt that the company is inclined favorably towards this idea.

The question of the town's water supply will also be a subject of study, and advertising for the winter trade will receive early attention, when it is hoped that those realizing the advantages of the scheme adopted last year will again co-operate, to make the work this year even more extensive.

Many other objectives are on the program of this association and it depends upon the support and number of members how quickly each may be disposed of. Anyone who is a good citizen of this municipality should feel that this is his own personal association and it is his duty to put a shoulder to the wheel. The membership fee is only 50 cents a year and there is no personal liability, as the association is incorporated. The membership fee is so small that it does not allow much to be spent on membership cards, notices and other desirable things furnished by clubs having higher membership fees. This, however, is compensated for by the keen desire of the officers and members to work with and for the individual members of the municipality, and they enlist most earnestly their aid and assistance in this worthwhile work.

Man Fell from Scaffolding

An accident on Tuesday afternoon befell a well-known townsman, Horace Riddell, who while engaged on construction work on the new Lachute United Church, fell 15 feet from an inside scaffolding, striking his head on a pile of building material on the floor below. Riddell suffered severe concussion and injuries to the head, chest and arm. He was treated by Dr. W. F. McMartin and taken to his home on a stretcher. His progress to date is reported as satisfactory.

Quebec Bureau of Mines Publishes Report on "Lachute Sheet"

The Quebec Bureau of Mines has just published Part C, of the 1936 Annual Report. It is a 91 page, 10" x 6½" with maps.

The report, dealing with the "Lachute sheet," is written in three parts. Part I, written by Dr. F. Fitz Osborne, describes the General and Economic Geology of the area; part II, written by Dr. H. W. McGerrigle, is a description of the Lowland Area; and part II, also written by Dr. Fitz Osborne, describes the Magnesitic-Dolomite Deposits of Grenville Township.

It is now available and may be obtained from the Director, Quebec Bureau of Mines, Quebec City.

Washout Halts Traffic on Highway 30 Between St. Adolphe, St. Agathe

The Morin Heights - Ste. Agathe highway, Route 30, was made impassable by a washout Sunday afternoon, during the heavy rainstorm which swept this area. A creek near the gravel road between Ste. Agathe and St. Adolphe, overflowed its banks and plowed a chasm across the road 20 feet wide and from three to five feet deep.

Immediately after the washout was reported autos began using a small sideroad nearby as a detour, but two cars soon got stuck in the mud and had to be later pulled out. A temporary plank bridge was made to enable waiting vehicles to pass.

FRENCH CANADA DISCUSSES M.R.A.

Widening and Surfacing of Grenville-Hull Highway

Widening and surfacting of Highway 8 from Lowe's corner, east of Grenville, to Plaisance, a distance of approximately 30 miles, is now under way with about fifty unemployed of the district getting jobs for three months at least. It is stated that only preliminary work will be done this year, the balance to be completed next spring. A new bridge over the River Rouge west of Calumet will also be built at this time. Raymond McDonald & Company, of Montreal, are the contractors for the highway reconstruction.

Reconstruction White's Bridge Urged By Delegation

The reconstruction of White's Bridge across the North River, which has been the subject of discussion during the past two years, is again being revived.

On Tuesday afternoon a delegation comprising Messrs. Amos Kerr, Geo. Peet, Lorne Dawson, A. C. Pollock, Jno. G. Hadley, and Jas. W. Gall, waited upon Geo. Héon, M.P., and stressed the necessity of a bridge at this point for the general convenience.

Resolutions from the councils concerned will be submitted to the Minister of Roads, and there is every hope that their pleas will be granted.

Plain Facts About Crop Insurance; What It Means to Prairie Farmer

GRAIN GROWER COMES "UNDER THE UMBRELLA" OF STATE PROTECTION; TYPICAL INSTANCED

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, August 16. — The searchlight this week swings out across the country to focus on the prairie wheat harvest. The size of the crop, the price it will bring, have long been of concern to almost everyone in Canada. When the western farmer has a lot of money to spend, business picks up everywhere. When there is crop failure, or disastrous price levels, everyone suffers, eventually.

This is even more true today than it was a few years ago. The wheat crop is now linked up closely to the Federal Treasury, and through the Federal Treasury to every taxpayer. We all have a stake as taxpayers directly in the fortunes of the West. In a sense we all rise or fall together.

A GUARANTEED MINIMUM

The wheat-grower has a minimum price guaranteed by the Dominion Government. He will get that much, anyway, no matter what world prices do. The basis of 70 cents a bushel for No. 1. northern wheat at Fort William means that at the local elevator the western farmer will get 50 or 55 cents a bushel for the average grade. At date of writing, the Government guaranteed minimum is about 17 cents above world market price.

Then in another way the Federal Treasury is behind the wheat crop. All townships in Western Canada where wheat production this year falls below 12 bushels per acre will receive benefits from the new "crop insurance" scheme.

CROP INSURANCE BENEFITS

The amount of benefit will depend on how badly the crop has been destroyed by the drought. Below 4 bushels per acre, the farmer may receive up to $400; below 8 bushels, up to $300; and below 12 bushels, up to $200. It depends on his acreage.

As an insurance "premium" for future payments of this kind, one per cent is deducted at the elevator for every bushel of wheat marketed this fall, and placed into a special fund. It will amount, on this year's crop, to a levy of about $1,500,000.

This new legislation will soften the blow a bit for those unfortunate farmers who, a few weeks ago, had visions of a fair harvest, but who have seen, once more (in some cases for the ninth or tenth time in succession) the hot winds and burning sun destroy their fields.

To illustrate what the new provisions mean, consider a wheat farmer of the prairies with 200 acres in cultivated land, 100 acres in wheat, who harvests a crop this fall of say seven bushels to the acre.

WHAT TYPICAL FARMER GETS

For the 700 bushels he threshes, he can get at the local elevator 50 to 55 cents — which is 17 or 18 cents above market price. This is a "boost" of perhaps $120 above what would happen if he were completely left to the mercy of ruinous prices.

Again, because his yield is so low, he will be entitled to the "acreage bonus" or insurance benefit. This will amount in his case to $1.50 per acre on 100 acres — or another $150. Of this sum, $90 will be paid him just before Christmas, and the remainder next March.

Such a farmer is thus assisted to the tune of $170 altogether. Not a princely sum, perhaps, but it may mean the difference between destitution and enough food and fuel for the winter. Instead of getting it as "relief," he is getting it as insurance.

TREND OF THE DAY

Those who deplore "state socialism" may prophesy dark things. It is the trend of the day. As a practical proposition, the rest of Canada simply cannot leave the export wheat producer exposed to the full blast of economic conditions. A lot of other industries in Canada have been brought "under the umbrella." The wheat farmer is just the latest of many. Who will be next?

The recent deterioration from drought of a "bumper" prospect — perhaps 500 million bushels — to something like 375 millions, was a bitter blow to many farmers. It does, however, from a national viewpoint, not only makes this year's crop easier to finance, but it prevents the glut from assuming almost hopeless proportions. There is next year to think of. If we grew two crops this year we wouldn't need any crop at all next year. Couldn't handle it, perhaps.

Young Man Meets Unusual Mishap On Motorcycle

MACHINE THROWN BY A TOW-CHAIN BETWEEN TWO VEHICLES

Lloyd Parker, 19-year-old employee of MacRae's Garage, while riding home to Beech Ridge on his motorcycle last Thursday evening, was seriously injured in a collision with a passenger car.

The accident occurred shortly before 7 p.m., under unusual circumstances. Parker was proceeding south on Bethany Street and drove between a truck and a car turning into Foundry Street at the intersection. The truck, driven by Horace Miron, of Boileau, north of Montebello, was towing the passenger car, and Parker drove over the chain between the two vehicles. According to one report the chain was slack and lying on the ground, but it tightened as the brake was applied on the second vehicle to avoid striking the motorcyclist. His front wheel passed over, but the chain then caught and hurled Parker against the car. He was projected against the handlebar of his machine and injured in the abdomen.

The victim was treated at the office of Dr. Jules Lafleur nearby, and was later removed to the Montreal General Hospital, believed to have suffered a pierced intestine. According to later reports, however, he is making satisfactory progress.

Traffic Officer H. Jones, of Lachute, investigated.

CONFERENCE AT NIAGARA FALLS AND VISIT TO WORLD'S FAIR AT NEW YORK

— By R. A. Giles

No more beautiful spot than the world famous Niagara Falls could have been chosen for the annual gathering of the Canadian Weekly Press at which were representatives from all parts of the Dominion and numbering with their wives over 300.

Headquarters for the convention was the General Brock Hotel, whose manager, Mr. Peck, and staff, did everything possible in making our stay most pleasant. From the rainbow roof garden, a magnificent view of the falls and surrounding district illuminated with one and one-third billion candle power of colored lights and above the stars in all their glory made one feel that they were actually in fairyland.

During our stay we were privileged to see the much talked of Indian Maharajah arrive with his sister and a large retinue of attendants, and when told he was extremely rich, could well understand that he would need to be, in order to maintain such a staff.

The first morning was taken up with registration, a reception through courtesy of Frank Prendergast of Imperial Oil Co., Ltd., and a luncheon by courtesy of J. J. Johnston Associates at which Mayor Hanniwell extended a hearty welcome. An address was given by Louis Blake Duff, talented after-dinner speaker.

Convention meetings were opened in the afternoon by President Burns, of Kentville, Nova Scotia, who in a splendid address extended a welcome to all, on this, our 20th anniversary. During the next two days prominent speakers were heard and matters of importance to weekly newspapers freely discussed, with an interchange of ideas, all helping each one present to produce a better and more interesting newspaper.

Speakers from across the border talked freely of the friendly relations existing between the peoples of these two great countries. Mr. Hutchinson, Secretary and Manager of the New York Press Association, in referring to the unsettled state of European affairs said in part, "Just as you do, we have an earnest desire for peace, but we have never and never shall desire peace more than freedom, freedom not only of government, but freedom to play the seven seas with our commerce. In a desire for peace without loss of freedom our Congress has struggled to write neutrality laws into our books that would protect us from war.

"But I remind you of that which you know as citizens of democracy, that our attitude when a world war comes will be determined not by that written in our law books, but by what our people feel in their heart. And our heart beats as yours.

"When the major crisis comes to determine whether totalitarianism or democracy shall prevail, I believe, the thought of the English-speaking people everywhere and the thought of other people who have a love for liberty will crystalize and be aptly expressed by the words of Benjamin Franklin, "We'll hang together or we will hang separately, and we won't hang separately."

A visit to and inspection of the Canadian Cyanamid Company's plant was most instructive and interesting but what pleased us most was to know that three former town boys were all occupying important positions with the company and were highly spoken of. They were Graham Macdonald, Norman Beers, and T. Petrie.

The Trophy Dinner held on Friday evening was largely attended. Cups were presented to the winners of various competitions in connection with newspapers and Past President Frank Burns received a beautiful tray in recognition of his services to the Association during the past year.

Home Destroyed by Fire

Grenville North—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nixon was totally destroyed by fire on Friday evening, Aug. 11th.

The origin of the fire is not known, but it started in the upper storey of the house and spread so rapidly that only a few articles were saved as no one could gain entrance due to dense smoke. A considerable sum of money, as well as furniture and clothing, was lost. There was no insurance on the building or contents.

Large Crowd Sees Local Boxing Bouts At Lachute Arena

FOUR KNOCK-OUTS IN EIGHT FIGHTS

Interest in local boxing circles received quite a boost on Thursday evening last, when the second contest was held under the direction of Leo Girard, at Lachute Arena. Over 600 people witnessed the fights, sponsored by the Laurentian Boxing Club.

Paul LaHaye, of St. Jerome, known in big time boxing spheres, was the referee, the judges were Mr. Geo. Héon, M.P., Jos. Raymond and Eddie Barker; the time-keeper was Lloyd Cruise, and the announcer J. H. St. Onge.

W. Fontaine was referee for the first bout, and E. Anderson, of the Provincial Police, acted as judge for Mr. Geo. Héon in this set-to.

The first contest was between local boys, C. Lalande vs. G. Lavergne, in the 100 lbs. class, and they received a good hand from the crowd as they battled through a round and a half. Young Lavergne found the going rather tough, due no doubt to lack of condition, and the referee stopped the fight in the second round, awarding Lalande the fight on a technical K.O.

Montrealers featured in the second fight, as Guy Courtois and Armand Diotte (finalist in the Montreal Golden Gloves), fought in the 118 lbs. class. Courtois was warned by the referee in the second round for low hitting, but in a rugged contest he won on points against Diotte.

The most attractive feature of the evening as far as local fans were concerned, was the next bout between Jim Rafferty and C. Hooper, in the 130 poundage. At the sound of the bell, both contestants came out fighting. Honors were fairly even during the early part of the first round, then Rafferty brought over a quick right, sending Hooper to the canvas, who took the count of three, and remained on the defensive until the end of that round. Again in the second round these boys put up a good scrap, but gradually Rafferty gained the edge, and another clean right to the jaw put the K.O. on Hooper in the middle of this round. Young Rafferty has only been training with instructor Leo. Girard for three weeks, but his performance in this fight shows he has good prospects.

In the fourth contest, 126 lbs., Pat Galfany substituted for Allan McGinnis against Paul Thibault, champion of the Town of Mt. Royal. This was a rugged fight, with Galfany showing speed and a good defence, while Thibault had a good right but missed often. Thibault drew blood from his opponent's nose in the first round, but the fight was fairly even, and a draw was awarded.

After the interval, a 148 lbs. contest was held between Geo. Golden of Brownsburg and Forbes Chapman of Lachute. Golden, a slow, shuffle-footed style of fighter, had the advantage of height and reach, but his right was missing regularly against Chapman. The latter was more aggressive, and after a real three round battle, Chapman was claimed the winner, to the approval of the crowd.

Local boys were in the sixth, Howard Ward, of Lachute, taking on C. Martineau, of Grenville, in the 130 lbs. weight. In a 3-round contest, these boys put on a real scrappy first round, both being willing to mix it freely. Martineau had an awkward style, leaving his face little protected, but was always ready to exchange leather. The fight was rugged, though marred by much clinching, and after three rounds was concluded a draw.

In the 148 lbs. contest between Sidney Murphy of St. Placide and Lionel Girard of Lachute, Murphy, a typical sandy-haired member of the fighting Irish, showed speed and lightness on toes against the heavier, rugged Girard, who also had advantage of reach. These fighters battled evenly for three rounds, though clinching predominated action, then in the fourth Girard earned a knockdown. The fifth and last round was more aggressive, and Girard again sent the game Murphy to the canvas for the knock-out.

The final fight was a professional exhibition between Clarry Harding, Montreal, and P. Haynes, of Ottawa. Harding, who turned professional last year, under the direction of Sam Gibbs, showed style and finesse in the art of leather pushing, and it was recognized that he could have put his opponent away sooner if he desired, than the third round when Haynes stayed on the canvas for the count.

The public is greatly interested in these boxing bouts, and Leo Girard is sincerely trying to arrange matches that will appeal. Those who are interested in the coming Lachute District Championship are advised to communicate with Leo Girard between August 22 and 28 inclusive.

People Require Tons of Food, Drink in Lifetime

Do you realize that if you live to be 70 you will have consumed 1.275 times your own weight? asks a writer in London Answers magazine.

The average person requires over 100 tons of food and drink during his lifetime.

Every day 1½ ounces of tea is needed for you, so that by the time you are a septuagenarian a ton of leaves has brewed 10,000 pints of tea for your delectation.

Two tons of bacon and 12,000 eggs are needed, too, for your nourishment during that period, not to mention the beef from 20 full-sized bullocks, 8 tons of potatoes, 6 tons of fish, half a million green peas, and enough lettuce to carpet a tennis court.

Upon your lifetime's loaf, weighing nearly 15 tons, you will spread a pat of butter weighing over 2 tons, and your accompanying wedge of cheese will weigh some 3 cwt.

World's Highest Railway

HAS DIESEL LOCOMOTIVE SPECIALLY BUILT FOR IT

An outstanding achievement of British engineering enterprise is the building of a Diesel locomotive to run on the highest railway line in the world, near La Paz, the capital of Bolivia.

The engine has now passed all tests, including the six-mile climb with a gradient of 1 to 14 along a series of sharp "S" curves from La Paz to the plateau 2,000 feet above the city and 16,000 feet above sea level.

Built for the Peruvian Corporation, it will operate on a circuit where conditions are so severe that engineers have hitherto believed them to be beyond the powers of such an engine, which they thought would prove so cumbersome and costly (compared with the present electric traction) as to be economically unworkable.

The Peruvian Corporation consequently placed a number of safeguards in their contract, and a firm in Leeds, Yorkshire, accepted the "challenge." The engine they built has now proved able to handle its load with ease at the highest altitudes of the tortuous mountain track and to be exceedingly economical on fuel.

Special features of the locomotive are: supercharged engine, 330 horsepower, with exceptionally large radiator to maintain an efficient temperature at high altitudes where air density and conductivity are greatly reduced; independently-fitted additional starting system, gasoline-driven, to avoid any possible delay; and a quadruple sytem of brakes.

Paving the Way

OPENING ANOTHER LINK IN CANADA'S MAIN STREET

● By P. A. NOVIKOFF

Seven years ago Canadians regarded with alarm the absence of a highway link between eastern and western Canada. True, there was a detour through the United States, but the international boundary and the added distance discouraged many car owners from touring from East to West or vice versa. Harkening to the clamour of motorists the Federal and Ontario Provincial Governments decided to build the Trans-Canada Highway. The western and eastern sections of the country already possessed a passable network of roads. There was only one formidable barrier to surmount — northwestern Ontario!

No sane contractor would have undertaken to build a road through this part of the Canadian hinterland had it not been for one redeeming factor—dynamite! This section is very rugged and is virtually solid rock from the Manitoba boundary eastward to Sault Ste. Marie. And only one thing could eat its way through its granite-like hardness—dynamite!

A few years ago, northwestern Ontario was practically unknown to Canadian motorists. Kenora, with a population of 8,000 located on the north shore of the beautiful Lake of the Woods, was isolated from the automobile world by jagged cliffs of stone. With the exception of a few trucks hardly a privately owned car was seen on the streets, as the condition of the roads made driving unpractical.

In 1935 the highway came through Kenora, connecting Port Arthur and Fort William with Winnipeg, and as though by a trick of sorcery the picture changed. In Kenora garages sprang up like toadstools after a warm rain. Today, the main street is jammed with motor cars, not only with those of local citizens but of hundreds of others, bearing the license plates of every province in the Dominion and practically every state in the Union. The tourists have found a new summer playground among the ten thousand spruce-clad islands on Lake of the Woods.

Many tons of high explosives have helped to bring the highway to its present state of semi-completion. Many more tons will be needed to forge the proposed final link — that difficult stretch between Schreiber and the Montreal River. This will be no easy performance, for there are countless rivers to be bridged, long stretches of quaking muskeg to be filled, precipitous mountains to be blasted through, and yawning chasms to span.

Probably the most costly sections of the roadway to construct were encountered between Kenora and Vermillion Bay, 40 miles eastward. Between Nipigon and Schrieber construction was equally heavy, at two points in particular — Karna Hill and Cavers Hill. Engineers were faced with mile upon mile of solid rock which required continuous blasting. Cuts reached a depth of 50 feet in places and fills a height of 80 feet.

A bronze plaque on a boulder blasted out of the roadway marks the boundary line between Ontario and Manitoba.

Where approaches warranted, bridges were avoided by filling right across lakes, often to a depth of 30 feet. A few of the quaking bogs were so deep, fills reached 100 feet downwards before the road bed showed signs of stability.

Both the completed and the uncompleted route of the Trans-Canada from the Manitoba Boundary to Sault Ste. Marie wind through a maze of lakes that are teeming with muskies and trout — a fisherman's paradise! Moose, deer, caribou and bear within a few miles of the highway are attracting an increasing number of big game hunters from "across the line." And in addition to being the means of opening north-western Ontario to tourists and big game hunters, this prodigious highway is bringing about a revivification of the gold mining industry. The Kenora district, one of the oldest gold producing areas in Canada, is experiencing a slow but steady comeback. Old mines are being reopened. New ones are springing up, many bordering the highway.

When the road was being built, claim seekers followed the construction gangs and pounced upon samples of rock blasted out for them at government expense. When gold-bearing quartz was cut through, a frantic race in claim-staking took place among gold seekers. Through favorable sections the highway is staked for miles on either side.

In Church...

— "It All Depends"

What do you think about when there is nothing very pressing upon your mind? In church for instance. . . In church one's mind should be concentrated upon the service and what the service means. Subconsciously, however, I fear that the minds of even the most devout stray a little. Bathed in that relaxing sense of peace and all-righteousness that attendance at Sunday service engenders, the average mind will wander around. . . Mine does.

Sometimes it is the fault of the parson. It was last Sunday. He lapsed into a colloquialism that sounded odd from the pulpit. To illustrate a point he referred to the many delays before the departure of the Children of Israel from Egypt. "But Pharaoh kept on stalling," he said.

Away went my mind from the sermon, to a conversation I had with the reverend gentleman six weeks ago. On that occasion he had referred to some arrangements I was making as being "jake" and with the indulgence of comparative youth (he is perhaps 25 years my senior) I had mentally patted him upon the back for having the courage to use slang, albeit the slang was 20 years behind the times. . . By that time my mind was well away from the sermon. I fashioned, mentally, an excuse for the slovenly habits of newspapermen who use the current idiom to express themselves because they are too lazy to seek out the right word in the right place.

"But Pharaoh stalled and the plagues descended upon Egypt," the repetition knifed its way through my consciousness and I realized that this was a case of the right word in the right place. It fitted absolutely.

That brought in another chain of thought. Was this use of slang not an excellent example of the care that we writers fail to observe? With us the use of slang means we are too lazy to search the dictionary for the right word. With him it must represent the other side of the medal. He must have rejected the "legitimate" words as not being sufficiently expressive and searched dilligently through the pictorial but less customary vocabularies of the vulgar, until he found what he sought.

In the office we have an unabridged dictionary compiled, originally, by staunch old Noah Webster. So on Monday I thumbed through the pages. And as is often the case when one tries to pick on another or feels consciously superior, I got my come-uppance!

"Stall, v.i., to stand, to maintain position. . . . ."

It is not slang at all!

So now I must apologize to the parson, and betray my ignorance of the language I make use of to earn my daily bread — all because I have unconsciously said the right thing for many years while thinking I was using slang. . . How many expressions do you use without being absolutely sure of their meaning?

Anyway, now I'll have to ask the lady of the house to invite the parson to tea, so I can abase myself. And if the first cup of the soothing beverage does not seem to have him in the right frame of mind, another cup shall be pressed upon him until, under the mellowing influence of the beverage upon which the sun never sets, he seems in the frame of mind to exercise forgiveness.

DON'T SHOW OFF

(Buffalo Courier-Express)

Here are the principal causes of traffic accidents, according to the Buffalo Board of Safety: Haste, thoughtlessness, selfishness and the desire to show off.

All these are failings shared by most of the human race. All of us at some time or other, are in great haste to go somewhere and to do something. All of us have our moments of thoughtlessness; and man is basically selfish. All of us like to show off, too, in greater or less degree — and inevitably do it.

But the Board of Safety report carries an urgent reminder. It is this: If we must indulge our human frailties, let us not do it while we are driving. If we must be hasty or thoughtless or selfish, or if we must show off, let us do these things while afoot. That may save human lives.

The meat shop of A. G. McArthur in the West End was broken into last night and the till robbed of its contents.

The company formed to erect agricultural buildings for the Society's exhibition, has raised $3,200 of stock. A property of Henry Hammond has been selected for the site.

The St. Andrews Troop of Cavalry is in camp at St. John's, with Capt. Wanless and Lieut. Albright in command.

Rev. Geo. Rogers, B.A., and his wife, arrived in Lachute from Montreal this week en route to Lakefield.

Some permanent fixture should be placed to keep strangers from crossing the old bridge at Cruise's gulley, which is a dangerous spot.

On Saturday evening inhabitants of Lachute Mills were alarmed by the continuous blowing of the paper mill whistle. Fire had started in the rag room. Mr. Fielding, an employee, noticing the outbreak, tied down the whistle and commenced to prepare the hose and start the pumps. Although in a bad place, the fire was soon drowned out; the town protector was dragged to the scene half an hour after the flames had been extinguished.

It is rumored in Brownsburg that Lepine's Saw Mill is about to change hands, to be turned into a furniture factory and the water power developed.

Mr. Robbie Beers, who came for a visit from Montreal, is down with scarlet fever.

Charles Bradford, 36 years of age, a young man from Huddersfield, who since coming to Lachute has been engaged as spinner at Ayers Co., Ltd., met a tragic death while visiting Mr. Fred Shaw at Centreville. Full of spirit he had caught hold of a wire clothes line, and while he was turning a somersault the wire broke and Bradford fell heavily to the ground. He died the day after being admitted to Montreal Hospital.

A Lion Likes Local Merchants

Last week the Bowmanville Lions Club took over the editorial page of the "Canadian Statesman." They did it well. One article which many local merchants would doubtless appreciate, ended with the following comment: "Some may say why worry about the local baker? Here is why: Because he pays taxes on his business and his residence, wages to his employees which are in turn spent with other merchants in the town. He supports local institutions, he co-operates with citizens for the betterment of the community. In fact, every move your local baker makes, as well as every other local merchant, tends to lower the taxes of his fellow citizens. He supports religious, charitable, sport and philanthropic endeavors, as a loyal and willing town-builder, which you would have to support to a greater degree if he were not in business here."
— Newmarket Era

"These expressions of goodwill are a constant inspiration to both the King and myself in our efforts to promote the true spirit of friendship throughout the world."

St. Andrews Church Groups

St. Andrews E.—The August meeting of the W.M.S. was held Tuesday afternoon, July 8 in the United Church hall. Mrs. J. Esdon, the president, led the meeting. The devotional service was conducted by Miss J. Grace Wales, Ph.D. A duet, "Son of God, Captain of Our Salvation," was sung by the Misses Joan Duncan and Bea. Hugman. Mrs. Esdon read a very interesting letter from Rev. David Martin, who recently was appointed to Norway House, one of the mission stations ministering to Indians as well as white people.

Miss Nellie Roberts, W.M.S. missionary-at-large, at Verdun, was the guest speaker. Miss Roberts was introduced by Miss Evelyn Wales, R.N., who has charge of the seven Protestant schools of Verdun and is closely associated with Miss Roberts in her work.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mrs. Mowatt. The Mispah benediction closed this very interesting program.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church was held on August 9th in the church hall. The devotional service was led by the president, Mrs. Jos. Bradley. The guest speaker was Rev. John Heyworth, who gave an interesting review of the book, "Alone," describing the adventures of Admiral Richard Byrd, from which he drew a most helpful lesson. A much appreciated solo was sung by Miss Margaret Hamilton.

Rev. Mr. Orsborn, of Bathurst, N.B., will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church for the next three Sundays.

The Women's Guild of the United Church met at the manse on the afternoon of Aug. 9th. The chair was taken by Mrs. J. Mowatt. It was arranged to have an afternoon tea on the manse lawn on Aug. 25. Regret was expressed that the treasurer, Mrs. E. Charman, was laid up with a sprained ankle.

Grenville S.S. Picnic

Grenville N. — A successful picnic was held in Mr. James Stewart's grove last Friday under the leadership of Rev. W. A. Dempsey, Mrs. Willie Gill and Mrs. W. Cole. The parents and children of Grenville were conveyed to and from the grounds by truck, through the generosity of Mr. Gilbert Arnold. The day was ideal for an outing and everyone, especially the little tots, seemed to enjoy the day to the fullest extent.

The Sunday School tenders a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart for the use of the grounds and for their co-operation in other respects; also to Mr. Gilbert Arnold for the use of his truck, and to the ladies for the time and energy they devoted to make this picnic a success.

WEDDING

O'Donnell-McCallum

A marriage of interest to the Brownsburg community was solemnized in Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, on Wednesday evening, Aug. 9th, when Miss Edna McCallum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hugh McCallum, became the bride of William Edward O'Donnell, son of the late William Edward O'Donnell and of Mrs. O'Donnell. The Reverend F. T. Norman officiated. The church was decorated with Easter lilies, gladioli, palms and ferns.

Given away in marriage by her mother, the bride was gowned in white satin made on fitted lines with lace yoke, cowl neckline and stand-up lace collar and having pointed sleeves with lace insertions. Her veil fell in long graceful lines from a Juliet cap of white satin and she carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli, lilies of the valley and bouvardia.

Miss Frances McCallum, sister of the bride and her only attendant, was in Queen's blue net over taffeta made with very full skirt. Her accessories were in burgundy shade and she carried a bouquet of gladioli, cornflowers and gypsophila.

Miss Helene O'Donnell, sister of the bridegroom, sang several selections, including Schubert's "Ave Maria." Mr. Arthur Brown acted as best man for Mr. O'Donnell.

Mrs. McCallum, mother of the bride, was gowned in printed silk made on closely-fitted lines, black accessories and her corsage bouquet was of pink roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. O'Donnell, the bridegroom's mother, was in a princess model gown of grey lace with matching hat and accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of pink roses and baby's breath.

Immediately following a reception, held at the Mount Royal Hotel, the couple left for a trip to the Adirondack Mountains. The bride travelled in a beige and brown corded silk ensemble with Japonica accessories and a corsage bouquet of gardenias.

On their return, they will reside in Montreal.

Ancient Well Once Used To Put Curse on Enemies

American visitors to St. Elian's well, not far from Colwyn bay, find that the story is true that the people believed in witchcraft until the Nineteenth century. The ancient well was used to put a curse upon persons against whom the Welsh entertained a grudge. This medieval convenience, unique in the British Isles but not unknown to several places on the continent, was known as a "cursing well." There it was customary to call down the vengeance of St. Elian upon one's enemies.

The ceremony was performed by an old woman, who (after she had received a sufficient fee) put the name of the accursed upon a piece of lead and dropped it into the water, meanwhile muttering imprecations and prayers. Sometimes the intended victim heard about the sinister doings and paid the old woman a similar fee to take the curse off again. This she did by reciting psalms and drinking water from the well.

These under cover appeals to witchcraft as a way of settling scores against foes who could not be reached in any other way continued until 1818, when the attendant at the well was jailed for 12 months for receiving money under false pretenses. After that the place lost its attraction for seekers after vengeance.

Hints for Homebodies

TEACH THEM TO SWIM

The number of lives lost through drowning each summer is appalling. The papers tell us, in the majority of cases, that the person could not swim. The motor car is giving more people opportunities to bathe and we need to make a more concerted effort to teach everyone, old and young, how to swim. Sometimes even a strong swimmer drowns, but it is the exception. Too many children do not learn to swim because their mothers are frightened to have them learn. This attitude needs to be changed so that mothers see that their children learn to swim for their own protection. Most drownings occur a few feet off shore and could be prevented if the victim could swim even a little. Service clubs and women's organizations should aim to teach every child in the country how to swim. There is water within reach of almost every community and there are many young men and women capable of teaching and supervising. I notice that Mr. Corson says the easiest and best way to learn to swim is by the use of water-wings. Mothers, protect your children by teaching them to swim. If you cannot swim, you will never learn younger, and that is one thing that even old people can learn to do.

A ONE-DAY BUSINESS

The spread between the price the fisherman gets for his fish and the price the fish eater pays for it seems to be beyond reason. One of the reasons the dealers give for it is that their business is largely a one-day business. I wonder if proper advertising could not overcome that. If the dealers advertise at all, they advertise for their Friday business. To a great many buyers, it does not make a hoot of difference what day they eat fish, but they think they are apt to get the freshest fish on Friday and they wait and order it for that day. For instance, a dealer advertised fresh mackerel fillets for Friday. I saw that advertisement and thought, wouldn't some mackerel be a pleasant change. And I wondered if it would really be good after having eaten so much fresh caught mackerel. However, I decided there was only one way of finding out and I ordered the mackerel. It tasted just as fresh as the mackerel we got last year at Hubbard's in Nova Scotia. My room was almost over the water and each morning shortly after sun-up I was awakened by the sound of the mackerel boats going out. Then around four o'clock we would see them come in after their day's fishing. The point is that had that mackerel been advertised any other day in the week, I would have bought it just the same. I paid 22 cents a pound. If the dealers could spread their business over the week instead of concentrating on a one-day business, their overhead would be less and they could sell cheaper. Proper advertising could do this. Anyhow, isn't it great that modern refrigeration allows us to have really fresh fish, so many miles from where it was caught? Incidentally, I am buying fish as fresh and just as cheaply as I bought it in Halifax. Halifax people pay high prices for everything they eat — even fish.

LIVER

Liver is one of our most valuable meats and should be given to both children and adults. Calves' liver has the best flavor but there are many people to like to use lamb's liver. Beef liver is just as good for us, but not quite as mild a flavor. It is the cheapest of all. Liver used to be soaked before cooking but nutritionists advise against this. The usual method of cooking is in the frying pan in bacon fat. The main thing to watch is the temperature. Just have a moderate heat as too hot a temperature will make the liver tough and horny. Some cooks like to brown the liver in a little fat, with or without onions, then cover with water, and simmer slowly for an hour. Thicken the gravy. Liver is usually served with either bacon or fried onions.

DROP-COOKIES

Not very many women go to the trouble of rolling out cookies these days, they either make ice-box cookies and cut them in slices, or they make drop-cookies. Even so, they like to have them as well-shaped as possible. If a measuring spoon is used for the drop-cookies, you will get rounder cookies, than if the ordinary shaped spoon is used, as the measuring spoon itself is nearly round in shape. If I want some perfectly shaped drop cakes for company use, I use the smallest size muffin tins and make a perfect round. It is a little more trouble but then we are usually ready to spend extra time and care for our parties. Roasting develops flavor and crispness in nuts and if instead of adding the nuts to the batter for drop cakes, you sprinkle them on top, you will find it makes a better tasting cookie. A half-cup of nuts is somewhat lost in the cookies, but if they are sprinkled on top, where they are all in evidence, they look right lavish.

FRUIT COOKIES

1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup butter, 1 cup raisins, ½ cup chopped walnuts, ¼ cup mixed peel (finely cut), 1¼ cups flour, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 eggs.

Cream butter and sugar and add the beaten eggs. Sift in the flour and soda and add the raisins and peel. Mix well and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet. Sprinkle the chopped nuts over the top. Bake in a moderately hot oven of 375 degrees.

CORNFLAKE MACAROONS

2 egg whites, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 cups cornflakes, 1 cup cocoanut, ½ cup chopped walnuts, 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Beat the egg whites until stiff and add the sugar gradually, beating after each addition. Add salt and vanilla. Fold in the cornflakes and cocoanut, then add the melted butter. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered tin, making the macaroon about the size you want finished as they do not increase much in size. Sprinkle the chopped nuts over them and bake in a moderately slow oven of 325 degrees.

Dress in Pawn 45 Years

Belgium's official pawnshop at present resembles several types of stores combined in one. Hundreds of bicycles, statutes of Napoleon and 42,813 pairs of sheets may be found pledged in the Brussels shop, which is under government supervision and has no competition. One client pawned 900 articles in three years, an average of nearly one a day. Another, who pawned a wedding dress, renewed the $10 loan by paying interest for 45 years.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

One of the most air-minded young women is Mrs. Brewster A. Gillies, of Syossot, L.I., who flies about in her airplane just as other women do in their automobiles. She considers it a comfortable and easy method of transportation, and she hops across Long Island Sound to lunch and back again as if she were making just an ordinary trip.

Mrs. Gillies has recently become president of the "Ninety-niners," an association of women fliers who originally numbered ninety-nine. Their purpose is to get more women air-minded, to simplify flying for women, and to promote their interest in the profession. Mrs. Gillies has been flying eleven years. She began when training at a hospital to be a nurse. She has three children.

With a gardener and four assistants to help in the planting, Dr. Sylvia Colla conducted some interesting and unusual plant propagation in the Argentine. In fact her work was so important that it attracted the attention of botanists everywhere.

The experiment was done with 126,000 plant cuttings and layers in the delta section of the Argentine at the mouth of the Panama River, in a suburb of Buenos Aires. The Minister of Agriculture sponsored the experiment and the government also is interested in her work. She uses a mixture that accelerates root growth. Dr. Colla has a doctorate from the University of Turin and was professor of botany in its department of agriculture.

Sterne Carrington, radio author, is said to be the first woman to have a play televised. "The Red Hat," which she wrote and in which Jean Muir appeared, was recently seen and heard over the U.S. National Broadcasting Company's facilities.

Maria A. Frasca, a recently appointed member of the New York City Parole Board, will sit on the board for the next ten years and help fix the indeterminate sentences that come to the board at the rate of 2,700 a month.

HOUSE AND HOME

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

August — and garden vegetables that offer a challenge to the ingenuity of cooks. We like to use lots of vegetables in the summer, but we like new ways of serving them, too. Try planking vegetables for a porch or garden dinner, only in summer I like to call it supper — it seems to sound cooler.

To go back to planked vegetables. One great advantage in the plank is that it keeps foods hot. Another advantage is that you can use a great variety of vegetables which permits each person to choose his favorites.

Dish washing is saved by having all the vegetables in one serving dish. Since you have a variety, smaller amounts of each vegetable are needed, with the result that you can combine plentiful with scarce ones, thereby using up small quantities that might otherwise go begging.

Choose and arrange your vegetables with an eye to their color. Each vegetable must be cooked separately before arranging on the plank.

Heat the plank thoroughly, and rub it well with fat. Then fill it with vegetables and put in a hot oven for ten to fifteen minutes. Brush all the vegetables with melted butter after they are put on the plank, so that they will glaze and brown a bit in the oven.

Here is a suggestion for a planked vegetable meal. Around the outer edge put a border of tiny new potatoes rolled in minced parsely. Next add a row of string beans, then diced beets. In the very centre put some flowerettes of cauliflower and sprinkle with grated cheese. Around the cauliflower put halves of sweet green peppers filled with corn cut from the cob, cooked and mixed with cream. Allow one-half pepper for each person to be served. Fill in spaces between the peppers and cauliflower with green peas or baby lima beans.

Maybe a word or two about the care of the plank won't come amiss. A good, heavy plank should last a lifetime, growing more and more indispensable with the years. Heat a new plank in a very hot oven until it begins to smoke. Then rub well with suet or other fat and heat again.

Always heat your plank and rub it with fat before using. Clean the plank by rubbing it well with paper, and then wash in hot, clear water. Dry quickly in the sun.

Stern Parent (to applicant for daughter's hand) — "Young man, can you support a family?"

Some Disease Preventives

Immunity to a disease means that one will not contract that particular disease. It implies resistence to the infection. Some diseases such as smallpox, measles and scarlet fever, confer immunity on the person who has had these diseases. Rarely will the victim of any of these diseases have the disease again. He has gained immunity.

Immunity to certain diseases may be secured by preventive measures. Preventives are available against smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, tetanus, cholera, typhoid fever and a number of others.

Of these, smallpox vaccine is the oldest and one of the best examples of the measures which will prevent disease. The vaccine against typhoid is another. The former has been in use since 1796; the latter is comparatively new but it is considered to be effective. It is given in three doses at weekly intervals.

Immunization against diphtheria is given by the use of toxoid. Toxoid consists of a minute quantity of the toxin or poison of diphtheria with its deadly qualities destroyed by a chemical such as formaldehyde. It is given at intervals of 3 weeks for three doses. The use of toxoid has worked a revolution in preventing the incidence of a malady which not so many years ago killed children by the thousands. About ten years ago Canada had 8,864 cases of diphtheria and about a thousand deaths each year. In 1937 the number of cases had been cut to about 3,000 and the deaths to 369 and many communities, year after year, have no cases and no deaths from this affection. The change has been due to the use of toxoid. In comparison England and Wales, in 1937, had 61,862 cases of diphtheria and nearly 3,000 deaths from this cause. It is fair to assume that if similar preventive measures had been in operation in England and Wales, the death rate from diphtheria would have been, not almost 3,000, but only 862!

Scarlet fever immunization is less universally used. So far its use has been chiefly confined to institutions such as hospitals for the protection of nurses and attendants. Undoubtedly it, too, will soon come into general use.

Unweds Told of Chances

Following announcement in Capetown of statistics just compiled, South Africa is boasting that an eligible bachelor or spinster has more chance of getting married there than in any other country in the world. Of every thousand eligibles in the country 22 are likely to be married this year. In the United States the figure would be 21, Britain 17, France 13, Japan 15, Denmark 18, Australia 17, and Germany nine.

Can You . . . ?

Can you wash up dishes —
can you make a bed?
Can you scrub and scour
until your hands are red?
Can you cook a pudding —
can you bake a pie?
Can you make a simple room
a pleasure to the eye?
Can you face a routine that may sometimes irk?
Can you keep on smiling —
never want to shirk?
Can you deal with problems and keep quiet as a mouse?
If you can, I almost think that you can run a house!

Can you make small garments — can you knit large socks?
Can you bear with trouble — stand some sudden shocks?
Can you soothe a baby —
cheer a weary man?
Make each precious quarter
do all the work it can?
Can you give a party —
arrange a birthday tea?
Tell the "old, old story.. to children round your knee?
Can you make a house so sweet that no one wants to roam?..
If you can, I really think that you can build a HOME!

SUNSHINE

The sun does much more than bestow new life on flowers and trees. It is unquestionably a disinfectant and a germicide, because it destroys numerous bacteria dangerous to the life of man and beast.

It warms the ground after the winter snows and causes seeds to grow and trees to blossom into leaves and fruit.

As a medicine it is unequalled, for its rays have great penetrating power and many have been cured of tuberculosis by exposing their nude bodies to its caress. It positively benefits other diseases, such as rheumatism, arthritis and neuritis when taken in the form of sun baths.

Within recent years there have been conducted a series of experiments with a view to determining just what, if any action, the sun had upon birds, animals, insects and snakes, and the result, attained by the scientific observers are remarkable.

For example, it has been demonstrated that wasps, hornets, and honey bees are particularly active from eleven o'clock in the morning until four o'clock in the afternoon on sunny days.

A sting from any of these insects before eleven o'clock and after four o'clock, is less painful, for the simple reason that the poison injected into the spot bitten is not as strong as it is between eleven and four o'clock.

Chemical and microscopical analysis of the contents of the poison sacs of these insects, show that on sunny days between the hours mentioned, the poison secreted is much more virulent. Incidentally the bees distribute more pollen and carry more honey to their hives on sunny days.

An intensive study of the action of the sun's rays on the three lethal snakes of this continent — the rattler, the copper head and the mocassin — produced the same results, as far as the contents of their poison sacs were concerned, and during the very warm months of July and August, in every snake examined, these sacs were actually distended with the poison thus secreted.

It was noted too that before noon and after four o'clock, numerous small animals bitten by them recovered, while death invariably followed when they bit similar animals when the sun was warmest.

Snakes and bees taken to Africa and exposed to the strong equatorial sun rays almost doubled their poison production.

Bees fed on the flower of the buckwheat produced more painful bites with greater swelling about the area of their sting. It was the conclusion of the investigators that all snakes, insects and animals absorbed much energy from the rays of the sun, which explains why these creatures like to bask in strong sunshine.

Highlights of Newspaper Convention and Tour

Other pleasing features of the evening were the donation of an Honorary Life Membership to Dave Williams of Collingwood, the oldest Past President present, and of a gift to Mr. Wright of Mount Forest, the oldest member publisher present.

Don Henshaw, an executive with A. McKim Advertising Agency was the guest speaker and made quite a hit with his address entitled, "What can you do with a guy like that."

Mr. Burns thanked the assembly for the encouragement he had received as President and passed on his good wishes to the new leader Mr. Tom. Halliwell, of Coleman, Alta. First Vice-President is Harmon Rice, of Huntsville, and 2nd Vice is Walter Ashfield, of Grenfell, Sask.

Thursday being the Queen's birthday the following telegram was sent, "The Canadian Weekly Newspapers in Convention extend to you the best wishes and warm regards on this your birthday."

All during the convention and in the various addresses given it was particularly pleasing to note the fine impressions that had been made and the close bonds of friendship formed through the visit of our King and Queen.

A trip to Old Fort Erie was most interesting. Constructed in 1803-1813 it was restored in 1939 by the Niagara Parks Commission. Now fitted up as a museum it contains many old relics quite a number of which were unearthed when the recent transformation was being made. Looking through as we did made one realize what vast changes have taken place in the past century.

At Niagara across the neck of the great whirlpool, cables have been strung and hanging from these cables the Spanish Aero Car takes tourists to and fro, giving a wonderful and near view of the whirlpool and rapids where Capt. Webb, the famous English Channel swimmer, lost his life.

From the Park Restaurant a grand view is obtainable of the Falls and here we were hosts of the Parks Commission, with Hon. W. L. Houch presiding and D. Leo. Dolan, of the Canadian Travel Bureau as guest speaker.

And so farewell to Niagara after a most enjoyable and profitable convention.

Up bright and early on Sunday morning we were soon speeding along the banks of the Hudson River headed for the World's Fair. Air-conditioned cars made travel most comfortable and with such picturesque scenery and happy companions the time soon passed until at 7.00 p.m. we reached our destination. After checking in at our hotel the Barbizon-Plaza, a bus tour of New York was given through courtesy of the Electrocut Company. Here we were able to view the city by night and were amazed at the speed of the traffic with so few accidents.

Service was the motto at our Hotel, and at any requested time, through an opening in the door is pushed a small box containing your breakfast. This consists of a thermos of coffee, sugar, milk, marmalade or jam and 2 rolls with butter. A cup, saucer, plate, knife and spoon are constantly in your room. This is a great convenience as well as a time saver and proved most popular with our party.

Of Interest to Ladies

What should prove of great interest to the ladies of Lachute and district is the sale of fine furs by a prominent Montreal furrier, which is to be held at the premises of "Au Beau et Moderne," 277 Main Street (opposite post-office), Lachute, on Aug. 18-19-21. A lovely display of guaranteed quality furs at reasonable prices is promised.

BACON IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT

The Hog PAYS in Pork...

AND THE HOG PAYS WELL! Properly fed, 350 lbs. of grain makes 100 lbs. of pork. Rail-grade prices are based on dressed weight . . . so well-fed hogs when Rail-Graded, pay the highest prices for their feed.

But "well-fed" does not mean over-fed. Good feeding calls for a balanced ration of grains and proteins. Grain, by itself, is not sufficient to develop and bring your hogs to market requirements economically. Proteins of animal origin, such as skim milk and tankage, are of equal importance. Proteins promote growth and save grain.

This representative Feeding Trial, with three lots of 21 pigs each, shows how grain may be saved and cost of production lowered by feeding protein supplement:

	Lot 1 Grain & Protein Supplement "A"	Lot 2 Grain & Protein Supplement "B"	Lot 3 Grain alone
Days on Feed	119½	129	214
Daily Gain	1.31 lbs.	1.24 lbs.	.74 lbs.
Grain eaten per 100 lbs. gain	321.63	392.76	611.84
Cost of Hog per 100 lbs. gain	$6.14	$5.97	$7.38

The feeding of Protein Supplements saved 219 to 290 lbs. of Grain, or from $2.48 to $2.82 per 200 lb. Hogs.

THE BALANCED RATION GAVE THESE HOGS THE OPPORTUNITY TO PAY THE HIGHEST PRICE FOR FEED—AND THEY PAID IT!

The Dominion Experimental Farms from coast to coast, raise and feed hogs to obtain unbiased breeding and feeding facts. Car Crashes Through Bridge Rail, Falls 30 ft. Into Rouge River

OCCUPANTS HAVE MIRACULOUS ESCAPE WITH ONLY MINOR INJURIES

Most serious of the crop of accidents here last week-end was a mishap at the Rouge River bridge over Highway No. 8, at Pte. au Chene, which occurred early Sunday morning. Fred Gauley, of Kilmar, with his wife and a party of friends, was driving home from a dance. Approaching the Rouge Bridge from the west a blow-out occurred in his left front tire, and the car, a Ford coach, tore through the steel rail when the driver lost control, and plunged over the bridge. It fell 30 or 35 feet onto the rocks below, the rear end resting in two or three feet of water.

The six occupants of the car were all dazed and injured. The victims were: F. Gauley, the driver, who was badly cut over the left eye and injured in the chest when the steering wheel was broken by the impact of his body; Mrs. Gauley, bruised about the forehead; Mr. and Mrs. Carmody, Hawkesbury, cuts and bruises; Miss Kitty Hamilton, Hawkesbury, head badly gashed and body bruised; Lawrence Purdy, Hawkesbury, cuts on the head and one hand.

The injured were taken to Dr. Kelly's Private Hospital at Hawkesbury, and after receiving treatment were all permitted to return to their homes during Sunday.

The car, a complete w[illegible], was recovered by a wrecking [illegible] from the Gauley Garage at Grenville.

Week-end Unfolds Chapter Of Highway Accidents West of Lachute

Most serious of the crop of accidents here last week-end was a mishap at the Rouge River bridge over Highway No. 8, at Pte. au Chene, which occurred early Sunday morning. Fred Gauley, of Kilmar, with his wife and a party of friends, was driving home from a dance. Motorist Seeking Direction Is Struck by Car from Rear

Shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday morning, a Toronto car proceeding west on the Lachute-Hull Highway No. 8, was struck from the rear when the driver turned into Highway 8-A by mistake and stopped to find his bearings. The left fork of the road leads to the Interprovincial Bridge, and the Ontario driver, Thos. Menzies Sargeant, who was headed for Hull, had followed this interprovincial highway by mistake. Jos. DeVarenes, a Montrealer, travelling in the same direction, crashed into the rear of Sargeant's car as it stopped. Neither Sargeant nor his wife were injured, but the second car was badly telescoped and a passenger, C. J. Giles, of Montreal, sustained a severe head injury.

A second mishap occurred at the scene when a passing motorist, without signalling his intention to stop, pulled up to view the damage. A cyclist piled into him from the rear, and although no bodily injuries resulted, the young bicyclist, Jos. Prevost, of St. Philippe, had his machine smashed in the collision.

Hit-and-Run Driver Arrested

At 5.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon near the same spot, an automobile driven by Isidore Chenier, of Montreal, was side-swiped by a hit-and-run motorist on the approach to the Grenville Bridge. The offender's license number was noted by three witnesses, and that evening L. A. Brazeau was apprehended at Vankleek Hill, allegedly under the influence of liquor. Traffic Constable H. Jones and Provincial Officer E. Anderson made the arrest and the man was taken to Montreal Sunday night and arraigned for trial. The case is being heard at St. Jerome today.

TRUCK AND PASSENGER CAR IN COLLISION

Two miles west of Lachute on the Grenville Highway on Sunday, unusual circumstances attended a collision between a truck owned and driven by G. W. Elliott of Cushing, proceeding west, and a Montreal car travelling in the opposite direction. Edward L. Lyons, of Montreal, driver of the passenger car, stated that Mr. Elliott was approaching him near the centre of the road, and believing he had no room to pass on the right side Lyons had swerved to pass him on the left, with the result that the vehicles had collided almost head-on. Both the car and the truck were badly damaged, but the drivers were uninjured.

Constable Howard Jones, of the Provincial Traffic Police, investigated the accidents

Dallaire Acrobats, Lachute Family, to Visit London

The four Del Rios, whose acrobatics are one of the most popular features of the Chez Maurice revue, "Midsummer Phantasies," seem to be in a fair way to attain their ambition to tour Europe, as soon as conditions on the other side of the Atlantic become more settled.

The Del Rios, members of the Dallaire family of Lachute, have appeared here several times in exhibition vaudeville at the annual fair . . . When the youngsters scored a hit in their first performance at Chez Maurice, the management immediately advised their New York booking representative to come up and look the turn over. He arrived and immediately after seeing the young Canadians perform opened negotiations with them to take charge of their future bookings. He was not long in discovering that while they were delighted with the prospect of appearing on what is known as "the big time," their minds were set upon getting to Europe. Before the agent left, they had his promise to arrange an opening in London with a tour of the continent to follow as soon as possible.

The Dallaires, three boys and a girl, were born in Lachute and were hardly out of the cradle when they started their acrobatic training under the direction of their father, who was well-known in local athletics. They made their first professional appearance when they were going to school and since then they have appeared in most of the large cities in the east.

Corner-stone Ceremony at New United Church

EVENT GIVES ENCOURAGEMENT FOR PERSEVERENCE OF CONGREGATION . . . RISING STRUCTURE MARKS TRIUMPH OVER DISASTER

An inspiring event in the religious life of this community took place Monday evening, when the corner-stone of the new Lachute United Church was laid by Rt. Rev. Dr. J. W. Woodside, Moderator of the United Church of Canada. The silver trowel was presented by Mr. W. H. Birks, of Montreal, and among others present were Rev. Dr. Wm. Munroe, Robt. Barron, Guy Toombs of Montreal, Geo. Héon, M.P., Georges Dansereau, M.P.P., and members of the Montreal and local clergy.

CONSTRUCTION PROCEEDS RAPIDLY

The work of reconstruction is rapidly proceeding and it will not be long before the United congregation will be worshipping in their new edifice, an imposing structure which has risen from the ruins of their beloved old church, destroyed by fire last February.

The contract for construction was awarded to the Richard and E. J. Ryan Construction Company, Montreal, for the sum of $26,570. This firm, in 1932, built the fine extension to Lachute High School, and their excellent work is appreciated the more because they are sons of Argenteuil who have "made good" in their sphere of business.

The furnishing, heating and organ are yet to be provided for, which will bring the total cost to approximately $37,000.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH

A solemn order of service accompanied the ceremony of laying the corner-stone, and a large gathering participated.

The minister, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, in his remarks outlined the history of the church—a story of deep interest to its local followers and a source of pride to many of the older generation, whose direct forbears played a lasting role in this phase of Protestant initiative in the community. Mr. Rosborough said, in part:

ANOTHER CHAIN STORE ROBBERY IN LACHUTE

A repetition of the recent Dominion Store robbery occurred Sunday night at the Atlantic and Pacific premises next door. The intruder gained entry by similar means, through a ground-floor window in the side lane, and from the limited aperture it is concluded that the thief was a man unusually small in stature.

First intimation that the store had been broken into was given on Monday morning by passers-by, who found the front door on Main Street left open. Town Constable A. Gervais and Provincial Officer E. Anderson were called to investigate. A quantity of cigarettes and chewing gum valued at around $50 had disappeared. The intruder had also attempted to open the safe, but had not succeeded.

NEW SILK HOSIERY MILL HERE NOW ASSURED

After three weeks' negotiations by Mayor W. S. MacKimmie, Aldermen, and members of the Board of Trade with the officials of the proposed silk hosiery company, they have definitely made arrangements whereby the company will establish in Lachute.

This company were considering the establishment of a new plant in Ontario, but after considerable discussion with Mayor MacKimmie and the Aldermen, were induced to decide on Lachute. The company officials are going right ahead to select a land-site, and expect to be ready for building construction with the least possible delay, and to be in operation shortly afterwards.

Plans and specifications of the factory are now in progress. The anticipated size of building will be 90' x 110', of brick and iron construction. The company representatives stressed their intention to do all in their power to make this new project worth-while for the population of Lachute at large, and anticipated every co-operation. They also assured Mayor MacKimmie that the people of Lachute would have the preference in the matter of employment.

Horse Bolts, Fruit Peddler Injured Near Grenville

As the result of an accident at the north approach to the Perley Bridge near Grenville, Paul-Louis St. Jean, 26, of L'Orignal, Ont., was taken to a Hawkesbury hospital last Thursday suffering from a fractured right arm and many cuts and bruises about the head and body.

St. Jean, who sells fruits and vegetables on this side of the Ottawa River, was on his way home when the horse he was driving became frightened at a passing truck and bolted. The victim was carried some distance before the harness broke, but he did not let go the lines after being thrown from the light delivery wagon until dragged about fifty feet on the ground. He was picked up by passers-by and removed to hospital.

A mongrel dog owned by St. Jean refused to allow anyone to approach the battered wagon containing what was left of the load of fruit and vegetables.

Won Prize in Song Contest

In "The Guardian," of Verdun, the name of Miss Bertie Morrison, daughter of R. H. Morrison, of Lachute Road, appears as one of the contestants in a sing-song sponsored by the Men's Club of the "Y." The contestants sang before an audience of approximately 18,000 people and Bertie and Teddie Rountree, who was her accompanist, won second prize.

Regulation Permits Partridge Hunting for One Month

Hunting of swamp partridge and grey partridge will be permitted in Quebec province this year between Sept. 23 and Oct. 22, according to an order-in-council made public by provincial authorities. A previous order-in-council, dated July 15, 1937, had prohibited hunting of the birds.

The new regulation forbids the killing of more than five partridge a day; having in one's possession at one time more than the legal "catch" of three days, and possession of any partridges after Nov. 6, will be punishable under the law.

The "Alouette", A Projected Community Centre for Municipality of Morin Hts.

(Contributed)

The "Alouette" is the name of the newest and most tangible evidence of the confidence which residents of Morin Heights have in the increasing appeal of the outdoor facilities of their municipality to the sports-lover. The "Alouette" is to be primarily a community recreation centre for the use of local as well as visiting members. It is financed almost entirely through the subscription of public-minded residents of the municipality who have long felt the need for such an institution and welcomed the opportunity to help it along. It is to be owned and operated by the Alouette Properties Incorporated, a company specially formed for the purpose and having a very broad charter, the priviliges of which, in addition to those which are customary for like companies operating a hotel, inn, cafe or restaurant, include a free rein in the promotion of games, athletic sports, public or private theatricals and the showing of motion pictures.

The building will have a large recreation hall with fireplace, a smoking room, a dining room, kitchen, office, dormitories, showers and lockers for skiers and members of the Sports Club, and a small number of well appointed bedrooms. The whole will be directed by a competent manager whose duty it will be to see that those who avail themselves of the facilities provided will have no reason for regrets, and that thereby it will become an important factor in building up the tourist business in the municipality.

It is with regret that several of those who are chiefly responsible for the enterprise, acknowledge that its main support must come from its liquor license, and in justice to them it is only fair to state that the original scheme upon which they expended considerable effort, was to have been in the nature of a dry canteen. It did not, however, receive the support or sponsorship, as was anticipated, of the local prohibitionists, so essential to establish it. The scheme was therefore reluctantly abandoned, and the present "Alouette" is to take its place. This latter idea was adopted as a result of a survey of the manner of financing athletic enterprises elsewhere. It was found that practically all golf and country clubs, many badminton and tennis clubs, the M.A.A.A. and the headquarters of several ski clubs provide for a good portion of their overhead through the revenue from their liquor license.

It is the intention of the company to add to the facilities which it now affords for indoor as well as outdoor sports, as the profits of the company permit, and as new subscribers can be interested. Enquiries regarding purchase of stock in the enterprise will be very welcome. The stock is of the 6% redeemable preferred type at $10 per share and common shares at $1. The common is only available through the purchase of an equal number of the preferred. It is the intention of the organizers that in time the preferred stock will be all redeemed, and those interested residents who have so splendidly come forward with support, will have practically all their money back and a prosperous and useful enterprise to boot—the revenue from which, they may employ for whatever municipal development for the young people they may consider best suited to their needs.

The "Alouette" Community Centre planned for residents and visitors at Morin Heights. This progressive scheme, sponsored by a group under title of Alouette Properties Incorporated, is described in the accompanying article.

No Issue to the Fore, No Bright Slogan Heard in Pre-Election Skirmishes

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, August 22.—Though a general election may be "sprung" any day now, there is a curious lack of clear-cut political issues before the public. In 1926 the "constitutional question" centering around the authority of the Governor-General was the highlight; in 1930 it was "cure employment or perish in the attempt"; in 1935 the cry was "King or Chaos." So far 1939 has lamentably failed to produce either an outstanding issue or a bright slogan. However, there is plenty of time for these to emerge.

In 1930 the show was stolen by the dynamic personality of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, who first raised the cry that unemployment was a national issue. In 1935 the sensation was provided by the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens and the launching of the "Reconstruction Party." One wonders what the coming election will provide along these lines.

LIGHT SKIRMISHING

Up to now the political leaders have satisfied themselves with light skirmishing. Premier King has been content to date to rely upon "the record," although the experience in 1930 with similar tactics should be a disturbing thought. Dr. Manion, curiously enough for an opposition leader, has also made quite a bit of the record of the Conservative party; he is busy defending attacks on Conservative policy. Third-party observers say that of course the explanation of the relative harmony between Messrs. King and Manion, is that there is no serious clash between them. They hold similar views on many matters. The Liberals, however, attribute the lukewarm, colorless nature of the campaign to date to the fact that the Conservative party has failed to produce an original or striking platform.

TARIFF TAKES BACK SEAT

One generalization seems safe: the tariff will not be the issue it was in 1930 and 1935, especially in the former. The Liberals, it is true, have lowered the tariff somewhat since they came into power: they have negotiated trade treaties, the tendency has been downward. But then Dr. Manion is clearly not anything like so enamored of high protection as Mr. Bennett was, so that if the Conservative party grows more moderate than before on this issue, and the Liberals rest on their laurels, so far as tariff reduction is concerned, the issue will be relegated to the background.

Dramatic Performance Given In Carillon Museum Grounds

On Saturday afternoon an interesting and picturesque event took place at Carillon, when a select historical program was presented under auspices of the Argenteuil Historical Society in the grounds of its museum. There, under the shade of the elms bordering the Ottawa and on a grassy stage formed by a natural elevation of the turf, dramatic recitations were given in costume, bearing upon the Indian and French-Canadian periods of our common history, and in another quarter of the grounds, an exhibition of dancing.

The proceedings were opened by Dr. H. B. Cushing, president of the Society, who dwelt briefly upon the historic significance of the Carillon site at the foot of the Long Sault Rapids as having been, in the 17th century, the starting point of fur traders and early missionaries on their way to the interior, and also as the scene of the historic Dollard conflict. He related the history of the Barracks itself, which was erected about 1830 by Commissary General Forbes, of Bellevue, for the accommodation of the Royal Engineers, a military unit sent out on the advice of the Duke of Wellington, to superintend the construction of a system of inland waterways (including the Carillon, Grenville and Rideau canals) deemed necessary for the defence of the country after the war of 1812, as connecting the Ottawa River with the Great Lakes without exposure to the unprotected American shore of the St. Lawrence.

The first item on the program was the recitation of Dr. W. H. Drummond's "Papineau Gun," by George Ross Robertson, who in habitant costume simulated "Bateese" to perfection and brought the poet's graphic description of the tragic events at the Battle of St. Eustache vividly before his hearers. His recital was preceded by an introductory talk and dialogue from Mr. Gordon Nelles, setting forth with great sympathy the causes that led to the Rebellion of 1837 and the ultimate victory for free government that resulted from it and from Lord Durham's famous report. . . Then followed what must be considered in many ways the crowning event of the afternoon, the presentation by Phoebe Erskine MacKellar, the accomplished Canadian actress, of three of Pauline Johnson's poems depicting Indian life, namely, "The Cattle Thief," "A Cry from an Indian Wife" being an episode in the North-West Rebellion of 1885, and finally the great poem, "Ojistoh." Clad in a sweeping Indian gown of tawny buckskin, with beaded Caughnawaga headband, and standing erect on a little platform with the broad Ottawa forming a magnificent background for every motion, Mrs. MacKellar's histrionic skill found ample scope in the sinuous grace and resourceful strategy of the Mohawk chieftain's wife she personated, who, bound to the saddle of her Huron captor and swaying behind him with every motion of his galloping horse, is freed from her thongs by her own resourceful strategy, and slaying him, gallops home alone, still the proud "White Star" of her tribe.—A truly great performance of a great poem presented in a setting that made it an unforgettable event.

For the second part of the program, the audience moved to another part of the green, entirely encircled by trees, where the Misses Nora and Patricia White, the latter only ten years old, pupils of Miss Osborne's School of Dancing at Ottawa, clad as boy and girl in quaint colors and old world fashion, performed a "French Peasant Dance" with perfect grace and absence of self-consciousness, to a charming violin and flute accompaniment performed by Mr. Dirk Keetbaas of Ottawa, and his son, Mr. Dirk Keetbaas, Jr.

The program was closed by a delightful violin solo, Dvorak's "Humoresque," from Mr. Dirk Keetbaas, Sr., followed by "God Save the King."

After the performance, refreshments were served in the grounds by a committee under the convenorship of Mrs. George Simpson.

Another dramatic entertainment by the same performers, this time a one-act historical play produced by Mrs. MacKellar, and interpretative dancing in costume by the Misses White, is planned to take place in the grounds of the museum early in September.

WEEKLY EDITORS' VISIT TO THE WORLD'S FAIR

— By R. A. Giles

(Concluded from last issue)

Arriving at the Fair, we were first treated by the management to a tour of the grounds.

Our first stop was at the Canadian pavilion where her achievements, attractions and resources are all prominently displayed. Naturally Canadian material, particularly lumber, has been used as much as possible in the construction of the pavilion itself, while inside Canadian maple and stained birch bound with strips of Canadian aluminum is used extensively in decorations, counters and show-cases. About 90 percent of the work of the pavilion was first done in Canada, leaving only the setting up of the pieces on arrival at New York.

The large entrance is symbolic of Canada's open door policy to all visitors and the lack of obstructional red-tape at her borders.

The huge map of Canada with the various provincial displays depict in all what an ideal place Canada is for attractions, resources, and industry.

Huge pictorial postage stamps enlarged many thousand times, replicas of those issued by the Canadian Government from time to time, depicting historical occasions, adorn the walls around the main entrance and side doors, presenting in all a very fine Canadian exhibit.

When we tell you that the New York Fair occupies as much ground as the whole town of Lachute, it will give some conception of its size and the necessity therefore of a number of different routes serviced by 100 Greyhound buses, and operating regularly between 32 stations. There are approximately 25 miles of asphalt and concrete roads inside the Fair grounds. The buses carry 48 persons and travel at a speed of 8 miles per hour. Other means of transportation are small tractor trains and electric taxi chairs, the latter of which hold two persons and quickly convey you anywhere you may wish to go. There are over 1,000 public telephones and some 2,000 specially trained and uniformed members of the police force. Added to the wonder of this great enterprise is the fact that the site was only a short time ago a huge bog and swamp and used as an ash dump. Engineering skill has however made this great transformation and unseen by the visitor are many miles of pipes, conduits, pile foundations, and electric wires, representing millions of dollars expended for the comfort and convenience of the thousands who throng the Fair.

It will be realized that in our two day visit, we were able to see only a few of the important buildings representing different countries. Most striking and beautiful in our estimation was the Russian Edifice under the title of Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Sculptured into the front of each wing of the pavilion are basrelief portraits of Lenin and Stalin, while within exhibits show the daily life, work and achievements of 170 million people in the first Socialist country in the world. Besides paintings and sculptures, handicrafts for which the country is famous are exhibited,—wood carvings, lacquer work, embroidery and hand-woven carpets and rugs from Central Asia and the Caucausus.

In the evening we were guests for dinner at the Knickerbocker Inn, Little Old New York, and enjoyed an entertainment program staged and styled in the manner of the gay nineties. New York of the old days with the Bowery in full swing, its streets lighted by gas, the old horse cars, hansom cabs and patrol wagon, take one back many years, while the entertainment includes comedy acrobatic acts, old-time prize fights and folk dancing.

Victoria Falls—a replica of the famous scene in the heart of Africa is a beautiful sight of mighty water leaping a precipice, bursting into creamy foam, boiling into the ravine below. The real falls with a precipitous drop of 387 feet are more than twice as high and twice as wide as Niagara and have been termed the greatest spectacle in the world. The replica is 186 feet long, and 22 feet high with 60,000 gallons of water per minute hurtling over its rocky face.

The British Pavilion containing in the Royal Room a replica of the Crown Jewels was among other attractions and there was a continued line-up at this point. In the Silver Room were displays of coins and medals. An original manuscript of Magna Charta was to be seen among other historic documents having been loaned by the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln Cathedral. A large panel — decorated with shields and arms — shows the direct descent of George Washington from King John who granted Magna Charta in 1215, and from 9 of the 25 Barons who became sureties for its execution.

Other buildings visited were that of France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Japan, and Turkey, all beautiful in construction and display, each portraying their individual industries.

Almost from any point on the grounds could be seen the 700 ft. high Trylon, symbol of the Fair's lofty purpose and adjoining it a huge hollow globe, 200 feet in diameter — the Perisphere. Visitors stand on two platforms suspended in space and revolving in opposite directions to gaze down on the beautiful city of tomorrow.

Merry Old England is typical of the old days across the sea with a reproduction of an old English Village, Shakespeare's house, Curiosity Shop, and good entertainment, with a restaurant where you can obtain the the favorite dish, "Roast Beef."

Railways on Parade was most picturesque, depicting the history of American Transport from the days of the covered wagon to the streamlined locomotives and de luxe trains of today. In 16 authentic scenes, actors, horses, locomotives, wagons and ships re-enact the part transportation has played in the opening up of our continent.

The Ford Company also have a wonderful display and show the first car built by Henry Ford and the steady improvements until the present day achievement in which we were privileged to ride in a half mile drive on a huge ramp overlooking the Fair and called the Road of Tomorrow.

General Motors had a constant line-up of people anxiously awaiting admission. Here we were permitted to take a tour and view in vast miniature what our country may conceivably be in 20 or more years from now. Six hundred moving chairs were each equipped with a sound device serving as a private guide on the Aladdin-like trip, which gave a continuous animated panorama of towns and cities, rivers and lakes, country and farm areas, industries, etc. The futurama is the largest and most realistic scale model ever constructed and contains over 500,000 houses, over a million trees, 50,000 scale model automobiles with 10,000 actually in operation.

In the Borden Plant is "The Dairy World of Tomorrow," where five breed associations exhibit 150 pedigreed cows. The main feature here is the electrically operated rotalactor (or revolving platform), on which cows are washed, dried with individual sterilized towel, and mechanically milked. In the reception room, we were entertained at luncheon and were delighted to meet Leonard G. Moncrieff, from Arundel, who is one of three attending from Canada.

Our last entertainment was at the Aquacade, a hugh amphitheatre seating 10,000 people with a stage 200 feet deep and 311 feet wide in front of which is a huge tank. Here famous divers, mermaids and mermen perform in the water to the tune of a splendid orchestra and with myriads of lights adding to the beauty of the scene.

And so we saw in two days what should ordinarily have taken two weeks, and trust that this brief review of our trip may be of interest and give our readers some small idea of the many wonders to be seen.

To the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, New York Central Railways, the Canada Steamship Lines, the various companies whose guests we were, we express our sincere appreciation for the many courtesies extended and without whose kindness this adventure would have been impossible.

Mr. Sam Dornan was thanked for his talk on the Royal Visit, having accompanied Their Majesties as our representative on this tour, as was also Mr. Ron Everson, of J. G. Johnston & Associates, who had given so much time to judging of the newspapers in competition.

ARMS MANUFACTURER

Eugene Schneider, 70, French arms manufacturer, is shown as he parried questions by reporters upon his arrival at Quebec in the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Britain, where he was met by Mr. Simard of Sorel, Que. He said he was in Canada "for some fishing" and would not admit that his visit might result in the building of munition plants in the Province of Quebec.

'Keep Fit' Campaign Vexes Textile Industry

England's textile trade is worried about the country's "keep fit" physical education campaign. Reports received in London show it is making women bigger. This is upsetting any calculations as to size of feminine garments and the textile makers are helpless in forecasting the amount of materials necessary.

ANCIENT RAILWAY IS SITE FOR ROADBED

Part of the original main line from Montreal to Toronto built by Grand Trunk engineers 85 years ago and afterwards relegated to minor service when a new line was established between Lachine and Dorval, in 1887, will provide two and one-half miles of site for the new highway entering Montreal from the West. After being used for car storage only, and no longer required by the Canadian National Railways, the rails were raised in 1935 and recently the land was acquired by the Provincial Government as part of the highway route. The Canadian National main line to Toronto leaves Montreal over a right of way established in 1846 when the Montreal and Lachine Railroad was built to "greatly contribute to the facility of intercourse between Upper and Lower Canada."

POLICE MAY SPEED ON DUTY BUT LIABLE IN LAW

Judge J. C. Reynolds ruled in a Division Court judgment at Kingston that a policeman, in the performance of his duties, may be called upon to exceed the speed limit, but that fact does not give him any privilege in a civil action.

Judge Reynolds granted Thomas Chrissley, of Inverary, Ont., damages of $96.50 and costs against Gerald Downs, Kingston Police Department traffic officer.

Chrissley's automobile collided with Downs' motorcycle at an intersection a year ago. Downs admitted he was travelling more than 40 miles an hour and Chrissley testified that he stopped at the intersection before proceeding. The motorcycle hit the side of his machine.

LONDON, AN INDESTRUCTIBLE PORT

London is now an indestructible port, thanks to the scheme of control and protection evolved by the Port of London Authority, it is claimed by Mr. W. L. Wrightson, chairman of the Authority's River Committee.

"We are prepared," he says, "to carry on, whatever may happen."

The Authority have allocated the sum of £250,000 for air raid protection to men working the docks system. All vital points have been protected and over 3½ miles of trenches are available for refuge from blast and splinters. Over 30,000 workers are being safeguarded in the P.L.A.'s own dock area, while owners of wharves and warehouses for 30 or 40 miles on each bank of the Thames have arranged for similar protection for their own staffs.

Moorings have been placed for about 78 ships in the lower reaches of the Thames. The small craft organizations, with some 10,000 barges and tugs capable of handling 1,000,000 tons of cargo, have been organized into a pool, and should any one dock system be put out of action, all these resources would be at the service of the port. Arrangements have also been made for evacuating essential foodstuffs and dangerous goods.

CHILDREN LEARN FIRE PREVENTION AND TRAFFIC SAFETY

Children using Montreal parks and playgrounds gathered recently in little groups of 25 in the fire station nearest to their playground to hear a talk on Fire Prevention by Lieut. John Query of the fire department. The idea to make the children familiar with traffic laws and the menace of fire was carried out by the playgrounds in co-operation with police and fire departments, during a children's safety week compaign.

A group of the children also visited Inspector Leggett at police traffic headquarters and learned why traffic laws are made. As another feature of the week the youngsters created safety posters which were judged, with cups being awarded to the winners.

CITY SALES TAX

Montreal's two per cent sales tax netted the city $44,296,706 for the past year. Montreal shoppers paid 85.78 per cent of the amount and metropolitan areas made up the balance.

MOTORIST WINS DECISION IN CASE OF HORN SOUNDING

Sounding an automobile horn at a time not considered necessary by a police officer is not always an infraction of part of the Highway Traffic Act which makes it unlawful to "sound a horn so as to make an unreasonable noise." George O'Connor, of Ottawa, won a traffic court decision over Constable Russell Berndt on this point.

O'Connor sounded his horn for two street intersections at one o'clock in the morning. He was stopped by the officer, who told him it was not necessary to sound the horn at that hour when there was no other traffic. O'Connor continued and at the next corner sounded his horn again. The officer issued a summons.

In his defence, O'Connor said he did not sound his horn loudly or long but he said he did sound it because he knew there had been a fatal accident at one of the intersections. As to sounding his horn after being warned, he said he did not do so in defiance but possibly because he was a little nervous after being stopped by the officer.

His council, James A. Burrows, K.C., pointed out that a horn was standard equipment on all automobiles and the law required that it be in working order. One of the first questions asked in a court action over an intersection accident was: "Did you sound your horn ?"

Magistrate Strike in dismissing the charge said there might be a suspicion that O'Connor, when he sounded his horn after being warned, wanted to assert his independence, but a factor in his favor was that no one contended the horn was sounded loud or unreasonably long.

THE AVERAGE HOUSE

Average house in the United States costs $4,300. Which, says an American commentator, is just about the number of months it takes to pay for one. — Hamilton Spectator

Britain's First Motoring Monarch as a Driver

London — A week or two ago you you might have found in a certain Coventry motor-car manufacturer's ledger the following entry :

"Delivered to His Majesty King George VI at Buckingham Palace one Lanchester standard saloon."

Just below you might have found another similar entry:

"Delivered to John Smith, at Newcastle-on-Tyne, one Lanchester standard saloon."

Just a couple of simple ledger entries about two perfectly standard British cars, yet they give an exact picture of the present popularity of motoring among all classes of the community in Great Britain.

The King's new car is the 40th to be delivered to Britain's reigning monarchs since King Edward VII took the first, a 6 h.p. model, in 1899. Nor is the King's interest in motoring confined to relaxing in the luxurious upholstery of the back seat in a stately Royal car. He is a very keen driver and the first real motoring monarch on the British throne.

His grandfather was not so very keen about motoring, because, after all, it was a difficult and nerve-racking sport in those pioneer days, when a man with a red flag was supposed to precede the "evil-smelling monster."

George V appreciated the comfort and convenience of motoring but was never known to drive a car, while the Duke of Windsor, as King Edward VIII, was so fond of air travel that he accepted motoring merely as a convenient means of completing the shorter cross-country journeys.

Whenever the opportunity arises, the King takes the Queen and the Princesses for a run in his own car. He is a cool-headed driver; he prefers to travel at a moderate pace and to enjoy the passing scenery. He carefully observes the 30 m.p.h. speed limits in built-up areas and has a friendly wave for the driver who lets him slip through a traffic jam.

When a new Royal coach is ordered, drawings of the chassis and coachwork are submitted to the King for approval. Often His Majesty makes suggestions; more than once he has offered a practical idea to assist the chauffeur.

The Royal cars used for the King's household can be recognized by "finned" radiators, which are now always black, their brass lamps, and the maroon coachwork.

The Royal State cars (those used only for State processions) are distinguished by the absence of license plates and registration numbers; but the King's own private car has a registration number and has to be licensed in the usual way.

C.N.R. Appointment

M. W. KIEL has been appointed Industrial Agent for the Montreal District of the C.N. Railways, according to an announcement by R. C. Johnston, General Superintendent.

Melroy Wilson Kiel is a native of Glenvale, Ont. His first railway service was with the Grand Trunk in 1911 as a stenographer. In the war period Mr. Kiel enlisted with the 148th Battalion, of Montreal, and served overseas. In 1923 he again re-entered the service of the C.N.R., and advanced to the office of Chief Clerk to the Commissioner of Industries at Montreal, which position he occupied until the present change.

It is also announced that W. J. McCarthy, hitherto Siding Clerk at Montreal, has been promoted to the position of Industrial Agent with office in Quebec City. Mr. McCarthy, a native of Montreal, received a bilingual education. He has been with with the C.N.R. since 1920, when he started as a junior clerk in the Industrial Department.

Mrs. Jones was spending a day in bed with a severe cough, and her husband was working in the backyard and hammering nails into some boards. Presently his neighbor came over.

"How's the wife ?" he asked.

"Not very well," said Jones.

"Is that her coughing ?"

"No. you fathead," replied Jones, "it's a henhouse."

No Doubt as to Election

If there is anyone who thinks that there is no election in sight, all he needs to do is to read the newspaper headlines. All over the country are stories appearing of new public works, subsidies to this industry and aid to this project. The municipalities are being encouraged to spend high, wide and handsome.

In Toronto last week the contract was let for a new post office to cost $2,137,000. In Montreal hundreds of men are working on the new C.N.R. terminals, which will cost $12,000,000 and may run to fifty odd. In Quebec City a $2,000,000 sewage system is being inaugurated. This runs down to post offices, public buildings and harbors in smaller places.

This is nothing new in Canadian politics. It was ever thus. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in 1935 on the eve of the election scattered public buildings across Canada. Hon. George Henry inaugurated a spending program when he last appealed to the public and Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn opened up the treasury last election.

This expenditure of public money is one of the weaknesses of democracy and if debts keep piling up it will ultimately be the undoing of democracy. But there is no doubt of an election — governments only spend in the fashion of the present administration on the eve of an appeal to the people. — Tara Leader

What about the third parties ? Can the C.C.F. break new ground ? For the first time they have a live national office and full-time organizers in every province. They have a bright and zealous national secretary, David Lewis, who promises all parties concerned "an effective campaign" this time. It will be interesting to see whether the C.C.F., which polled nearly 400,000 votes in 1935, and probably would have polled another 100,000 more if Mr. Stevens had not been in the field, can assume a position of real influence.

THE HERRIDGE ENIGMA

If all third-party strength was united, one could safely predict a real drive against the traditional parties. About a million votes were cast for third parties in 1935, and this was not so far behind the popular vote for the Conservative party. This raises the query as to the real significance of Mr. Herridge. He has failed in his first move, a "United Front" of those dissatisfied with the traditional parties. If he succeeds in the "New Democracy" campaign, which of the older parties' goose will he cook ? One strongly suspects ffom the effect of the Stevens insurrection in 1935 that a rallying of ranks behind the former Minister to Washington will make a serious dent in one or more of the other parties. But which one ? That will be the unknown quantity, perhaps, of the next election.

The writer feels fairly safe in this prediction, at least, that monetary reform, or inflation in some open or disguised form, will become one of the major issues, possibly the issue, of the coming campaign. And, as tempers warm up, and the contest gets properly under way, that ancient bogey of unemployment, especially unemployment of youth, will inevitably emerge and take a leading place among the issues of the day. The Bren Gun contract may be prominent, but I doubt it. Foreign policy is of the greatest concern, but the disposition is to let sleeping dogs lie.

Cambria Resident Dies Accidentally

LATE WILLIAM WOOD

Cambria. — The tragic death of Mr. William Wood on Friday afternoon, Aug. 18, in a car accident while driving to a field on his farm, is the fifth sudden death in this little neighborhood since February.

Mr. Wood was a respected citizen and an industrious farmer. His death will leave a vacancy in the home where his son and daughter remain, and for others of the family — their mother having predeceased him several years ago. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. V. Temple in the Mille Isles Anglican Church on Sunday, the church being filled to overflowing, many remaining in their cars outside in the rain. Beautiful floral offerings paid tribute to his memory. The family and relatives have the sympathy of this community in their sad bereavement.

The Late Gerald Foster

Gerald C. L. Foster, brother of Fred L. Foster who is well known here as district supervisor for Gatineau Power, died in Ottawa last Saturday after a lengthy illness. A native of Dorchester, N.B., his remains were taken to Saint John for burial.

Mr. Foster was connected with the Department of Mines and Resources at Ottawa for the past nine years. A graduate of Rothesay Collegiate and King's College, Windsor, N.S., he served overseas as a cyclist and with the artillery.

His widow, formerly Violet Reid, of Windsor, N.S., survives, with one son, Gerald C. L. Foster, Jr.; his brother, Fred Foster, Ottawa; a sister, Mrs. H. W. Heans, Saint John; and a half brother, A. B. Pipes, Saint John.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white embroidered organza with a veil of tulle illusion, and carried a bouquet of bouvardia and white gladioli. The maid-of-honor, Miss Margaret Stewart, and the bridesmaid, Miss Percival Mackenzie, were dressed alike in turquoise blue organza and carried bouquets of pale yellow gladioli.

Mrs. Wright, the bride's mother, wore a gown of pale grey georgette with a large red hat and corsage bouquet of red gladioli. Mrs. Farrell, mother of the bridegroom, wore blue georgette, and carried white orchids.

Mr. Gerald Farrell acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Black, Mr. Desmond Farrell, Mr. Paul Pitcher, Mr. Richard Wright and Mr. Hume Wright.

A reception was held at the farm of the bride's parents, near Lachute.

Calder-Marchant

The marriage of Emily Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Marchant, of East Angus, Que., to Harold Heatlie Calder, of Arvida, son of the late Geo. F. Calder, and of Mrs. Calder, of Lachute, took place at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, August 19th, at Christ Church, East Angus. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. S. Bown, former pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. W. W. Smith, present rector.

The church was attractively decorated with pink and white gladioli and asparagus fern. The bridal party stood before an arch covered with pink and white gladioli and centered with a wedding bell in white. At the base of the arch there were two large standards of flowers. The guest pews were marked with white satin bows and small sprays of gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. She wore a Kalmoar model on long graceful lines of white chiffon sheer, with a French lace long-sleeved close fitting jacket buttoned with tiny self-covered buttons. The finger tip veil of tulle illusion, in cap effect, fell from a bandeau of lily of the valley and tiny blue forget-me-nots, and was caught at the nape of the neck in a large bow. Around her neck she wore a necklace of lily of the valley, forget-me-nots and rose buds. In her hands she carried a white prayer book, covered with a corsage of rose buds, and from which fell streamers with slips of lily of the valley and forget-me-nots.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Nellie Marchant, of East Angus, who wore a gown of blush rose shade, fashioned like that of the bride. She wore a turban to match her dress, and silver slippers, and carried a shower bouquet of blue corn-flowers and rose sweet peas.

Mr. Charles Henderson, of Montreal, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Lloyd Somerville, of Richmond, and Mr. Roy Martyn, brother-in-law of the bride, of East Angus.

The wedding music was played by Miss Glenna Sutton, of East Angus, who played Mendelssohn during the recessional and also rendered soft music during the signing of the register.

The bride's mother wore peacock blue crepe, with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The groom's mother wore sheer black over cyclamen crepe and a corsage of pink and mauve sweet peas

The bride and groom left later for a motor trip through the Laurentians. For travelling the bride wore a Regina blue ensemble with hat, gloves, bag and shoes in Queen's blue. Her coat and travelling bags were grey. Her costume was completed with the corsage from her prayer book.

WAKE UP AND LIVE !

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

If you were to envisage the best possible example of the work you are about to undertake, what would it be? Find the best example of similar work that you can. What qualifications does it have? Which ones are vitally necessary? Which were added by the originator of that example?

With this analysis in hand, draw up a set of standards for your own use, putting down first those things which are absolutely necessary if you are to succeed at all; next those which are desirable if it is possible to include them; last, but most important to your personal success, those things which are your own contribution.

Now, before getting to work, drop your own point of view and see your prospective task from the position of your audience, of the "ultimate consumer." Who is to benefit by the activity? Who, if you are a creative worker, is your audience? Who, if you are selling an article, is your predestined customer? If you were in his shoes, what would you like to see included in the offering?

If you can imaginatively enter into the state of mind of those through whom you hope to attain your success, you can frequently add just those elements which will make your work irresistible.

Oddly enough, it is more often the creative worker who fails to expand the standards for his work by considering the half-formulated desires of his audience. Part of his intention, at least, must be to convey an idea or an aesthetic emotion to others, and he fails if he does not do so.

It is true that to have a constant gnawing fear that you are not pleasing others has a bad effect on work. It is true that if you look exclusively to please others, what you do will seldom be worth doing; but if your idea of success includes recognition, then the more you can learn imaginatively of your audience the better.

If, knowing their tastes, you can give them not only what they want but something much better than they, being non-professionals, could imagine, you are sure of your success.

Having taken all these things into consideration, having formulated as clearly as possible the ideal towards which your own work should tend, before launching it into the world you should check it against a set of questions which arise logically from the possession of well-defined standards.

Each line of activity will have a different set, each individual worker will alter the emphasis, oh have his

Minister Recalls History of Church, at Laying Of Cornerstone

"As many of you are doubtless aware, the work of this church dates back for considerably over a hundred years — which means that, for over a century, many splendid men and women have been giving themselves freely and unselfishly to the cause of God in this community.

"In the year 1834 the first church building was erected, and subsequently came to be known and spoken of as the 'Stone Church.' This building was used by the 'First Presbyterian Church,' which had affiliations with the 'United Church.' The Stone Church was made use of by the First Presbyterian congregation throughout its entire history.

"There was also a 'Church of Scotland' group which carried on its work under the banner of the 'Auld Kirk' until after the Disruption which took place in Scotland in 1843. At that time they followed the lead of Dr. Thomas Chalmers, and thereafter identified themselves with what subsequently came to be known as the Free Church of Scotland.

"Both congregations made use of the same church edifice for a period of 17 years. But in the year 1851 the 'Free Church' congregation erected a beautiful and commodious church of their own, which was subsequently known as the 'Brick Church.'

"In 1899 these two congregations, after prolonged negotiations, came together to form the Lachute Presbyterian Church, when a fine church building was erected on the site upon which we find ourselves this evening.

"In 1925 the Lachute Presbyterian Church, by majority vote, decided to become part of the United Church of Canada. At that time, the Methodist congregation, which had been in existence for over a hundred years, joined the Presbyterian group, which was favorable to Union, to form the Lachute United Church.

"The building erected in 1899 was commodious, comfortable, and well suited to the needs of the congregation. But, as you are all well aware, this fine edifice was destroyed by fire on February 16th of this current year. On account of that grave disaster the congregation, as at present constituted, has been faced with the formidable task of building anew the walls of our beloved Zion.

FINE SPIRIT IN FACE OF DISASTER

"During these critical months the spirit of our people has been admirable. Soon after the fire a building committee was appointed, and the services of a reputable firm of architects retained. Plans were soon formulated, the approval of Presbytery secured, and a contract for the work of reconstruction awarded. As a consequence, this important work is now well under way, and we are here, in large numbers this evening, to lay a corner or memorial stone in this House which is being erected to the praise and honor and glory of God."

Exhibit of Crystallized Gold

The finest mass of crystallized gold in existence is owned by the American Museum of Natural History and is on exhibition in the hall of minerals and gems. It was found in the Mother Lode district of Nevada county, California. The specimen weighs three and three-quarter ounces and has a lace or sponge-like structure, making a good size handful. The gold took this form when the rock in which it was originally a minor adulterant cooled and crystallized. The rock substances solidified at a much higher temperature than the gold, and the liquid metal finally gathered in one place under heavy pressure. The cooling process was long and slow, giving the gold a chance to crystallize Nuggets of gold so formed are common, but the crystalline form of gold is rare.

PRO BONO PUBLICO

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in his banquet speech, he believed most men, who entered public life, did so with the idea of service. I think he is right in this statement. Most men and women like the feeling of power and prestige which public life gives them but the majority of men see conditions, which are wrong, and have an earnest desire to better them. Unfortunately, they find there is so little they can do. World conditions are such that the individual can do nothing against them. It makes me boil when I hear people talking that everyone in public life is crooked and they are all in it for what they can get out of it. There may be some crooked men in it but there are some to be found in every walk of life. Most of them leave public life poorer then when they went into it. The best of them could make a great deal more money in other enterprises than they do in Parliament. Let us remember if we are not satisfied with the men who represent us in the Legislature it is we who put them there.

THE MOUNTED MOUNTIES

Old and young, everyone seems to get a thrill from the Mounties. To the tourists, the red-coated Mountie is one of the best-known things in Canada, and they want to see them. The Mounties stand guard at the Parliament Buildings, and indeed, at the other public buildings. This was not enough for the tourists. They were not satisfied — they wanted to see them mounted. What is a Mountie without a horse ? So to satisfy this natural desire, there is a Mountie, on a horse, standing guard at the Parliament Buildings during the afternoons. Very impressive, and very decorative, too, they look, against the background of the beautiful building. It is good business. Give the tourists what they want. Incidentally, there were some 38,000 of them went through the Parliament Buildings in the month of July. I would like to see them go even farther and have a mounted guard at the main gate. There is one on foot, but we might as well dress our show-window. The blue uniforms are a disappointment; the motor-cycles are endurable; but a Mountie on a bicycle is an awful let-down.

CHILDREN LIKE THEIR TEACHERS

Times have certainly changed. In our school-days it was a point of honor never to like a teacher. No matter what your private opinion was, you would never dare come right out in the open and say you liked a teacher. It just wasn't done. I happened to be sitting on the verandah the day school closed and the youngsters were going home in great excitement. "Did you pass" and "Who is your teacher" was being heard on all sides. The answers astounded me. "She's swell." "You'll like her." "You can't get away with nothing in her room, but she's a nice teacher." I didn't hear one uncomplimentary remark. The teachers are no better or no nicer than they were but the attitude of pupil and teacher has greatly changed. Teachers are not above being friends with their pupils and the old idea of school being a prison has gone. It is a healthy system. There is much criticism of the new methods in school. Give them a chance to see what they can do. Everything else has changed in this changing world, so why should we expect education to remain the same. It must change too, to meet these changed conditions.

BRING THE GARDEN INDOORS

Some of the annuals will continue to bloom for some time if brought into the house. At one time or another, Petunias, Marigolds, Lobelia, Alyssum, and Ageratum, have all continued to bloom for me. Choose healthy, well-shaped plants and with Marigolds and Petunias, pick out the low-growing ones. Soak the earth thoroughly and dig up, taking enough earth so that the roots will not be disturbed. Pot and let remain outside until there is danger of frost. Now is the time to plant a root of parsley for the kitchen window and chives, if you are lucky enough to have them. They tell me that mint will grow in pots, too, but I have never tried it.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

Hearty salads are favorites in the Fall, as our appetites have perked up a bit and we like something substantial. Here are three we often have.

SALMON SALAD

Drain a can of red salmon, and remove any skin and bones. Break into pieces with a fork and add an equal quantity of chopped celery and some shredded sweet green pepper. Mix with boiled salad dressing and serve on lettuce. The pepper blends especially well with salmon.

SARDINE SALAD

Arrange thick slices of tomato, rings of sliced Spanish onions, and sardines on a bed of shredded leaf lettuce. French dressing is good with this salad but any other may be used. When you shred lettuce be sure you snip the shreds cross-wise, as a long slithery piece of lettuce is as awkward to eat as unbroken spaghetti.

CABBAGE AND SARDINE SALAD

Chop cabbage and a little onion and mix with boiled salad dressing. Pack the salad into a cup to shape and turn on lettuce. Arrange sardines around the base of the cabbage. You can even have three little fishes swim over the dam.

CUCUMBER SALAD

Plums ! Plums ! Plums !

By Frances Lee Barton

Good old-fashioned plums, turned into jam by using the most modern recipe, will assure you of an excellent "spread" for your winter bread and biscuits. Can and preserve plenty of fruits and berries as they are in season. Today it's "plum time." Here is a "Plum Jam" recipe that is "plumb timely."

Plum Jam

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit; 7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar; ½ bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare fruit, pit about 2½ pounds fully ripe fruit. Do not peel. Cut in small pieces and crush thoroughly. Add ¼ cup water, bring to a boil, and simmer, covered, 5 minutes. (Sour, cling-stone plums give best color and flavor. If sweet plums or free-stone prunes are used, substitute ¼ cup lemon juice for ¼ cup of prepared fruit specified).

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and pour in bottled fruit pectin. Skim; cool quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

HOUSE AND HOME

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Summer diet presents a very definite problem in balance to conscientious home-makers. Too many heavy foods are distasteful, if not absolutely harmful, while light foods constantly served become insipid and tiresome.

So, in order to find a happy medium between the too hearty and the too dainty we turn to salads.

Summer salads, more often than not fill dual roles. The fish and meat salad answers for main course as well as salad course and the fruit salad does duty for both salad and dessert.

In planning salad meals, choose your salads first and build you menu around it. Such meals are bound to be well balanced and interesting.

Since the salad-dessert invariably is a fruit combination it's better not to make the first course of fruit. Jellied bouillon, chilled vegetable juice cocktails, appetizers such as sardines and highly seasoned stuffed eggs make splendid first courses for this type of meal.

I found a delightful old pressed-tin mold in an antique shop the other day that I filled with this jellied fish salad. The mold has a lovely fish curled around its edge with a variety of sea shells arranged in the centre.

Fish and Cucumber Salad

Two tablespoons plain gelatine, 1½ cups consomme (canned or made with cubes or extracts), 1 cup water, 4 tablespoons tomato catsup, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon onion juice, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 pound salmon (freshly boiled or canned), 2 teaspoons anchovy paste (optional but good), 2 large cucumbers.

Soften gelatine in 4 tablespoons cold water Heat consomme, water, catsup and lemon juice to scalding point (not boiling) and stir into gelatine which has been liquefied over hot water. Stir until thoroughly mixed and add onion juice, Worcestershire sauce and anchovy paste. Let stand until cool and beginning to jelly.

Break salmon into course flakes removing bones and skin. Peel cucumbers and cut in quarters lengthwise. Scrape out coarse seeds and dice. Mix fish and cucumbers and fold into jellying mixture. Turn into a mold and put in refrigerator to chill and become firm. Unmold on a bed of shredded mixed salad greens, seasoned with French dressing, and serve with mayonnaise.

You can use any kind of fish you prefer. Crab flakes, shrimp, lobster or a mixture of the three adding salmon, too makes a delicious salad.

Orange Juice and Vitamin C

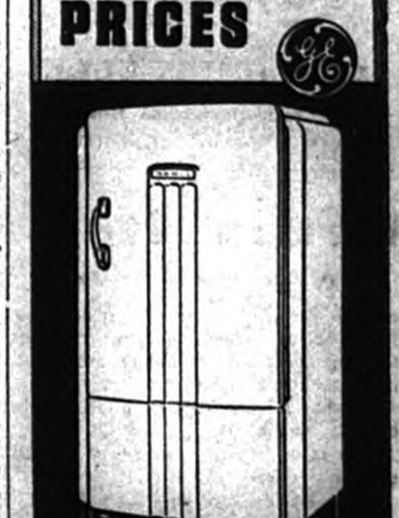

The practice of squeezing oranges at night, putting the juice in a lightly covered glass and leaving it in the refrigerator for use at breakfast, raises the question as to whether such juice loses its vitamin content.

Orange juice is one of the best sources of Vitamin C — which is so important to health that those who prepare it in the evening before using it, will be interested to know that early reports that this practice meant a loss, appear to be disproved by more recent research.

In an investigation of the Vitamin C content of orange juice performed in the laboratories of the Bureau of Home Economics, U.S. Department of Agriculture, it was found that there was no appreciable loss of ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) in orange juice stored for 24 hours in loosely covered glass jars in a refrigerator at safe refrigeration temperatures of 40 to 50 degrees.

It is clear, therefore, that fresh orange juice loses little Vitamin C potency on standing on the refrigerator if the juice is kept in a covered container to avoid access of air.

FAT PEOPLE

Most fat people have only themselves to blame for their condition. Early in life they, in all probability, started eating too much at meals and kept up that practice through adult life.

Or they are inclined to be lazy, neglecting to take proper exercise and spending too much time sleeping. All of these help in the accumulation of excessive fat.

Of course there are other causes for fat developing in the human being. The chief ones, over which the individual has absolutely no control, are the various forms of glandular troubles.

For such cases medical science has discovered a means that often proves helpful, namely the use of different glandular extracts. But the use of these medicaments is attended with extreme danger, and their administration should be done only by the physician.

It is the belief of the best informed physicians that there is no general medical treatment for obesity and the so-called fat reducing cures, advertised extensively, are positively liable to cause death because they have as one of their ingredients a drug which has already killed many hundreds of persons who have tried it, twelve trained nurses being among the number who had their lives snuffed out by a patent medicine guaranteeing to daily take a pound of flesh off those using the preparation.

If everything you eat seems to turn to fat, it is proof positive that through faulty metabolism, your system cannot use up the fats it produces fast enough, and you should consult your physician.

The best reducing method is to cut down on your food intake so that the fat will gradually disappear. Stop wines and alcoholic drinks, especially beer. Eschew sweets of all kinds, especially cake and candy.

Cut out butter, cheese and cream. Do not use salad oils. Eat water cress, lettuce, onions, and radishes, making a salad with lemon juice, as a dressing.

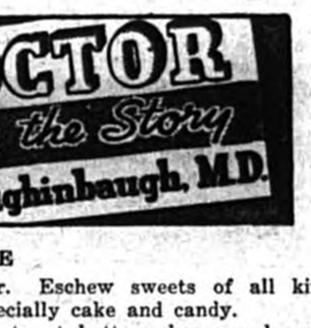

Plenty of raw fruit, some melon, berries and green vegetables, such as kale, spinach, dandelion, beet tops, and cabbage, make excellent food for those anxious to get thin.

Avoid as much as possible starchy foods — potatoes, bread, baked beans. Keep your mind occupied. Go to the movies and the theatres. Fishing and hunting will give you exceptional exercises tending to reduce your weight.

Baths, morning and night, are excellent for this purpose also. Bodily exercise which induce perspiration are good after your meals have had time to digest.

By thus combining diet, with curative measures and proper exercise you can add to your years and increase the comfort of living.

own idea of the proper order for these critical questions, but roughly the finished work should be measured in somewhat this way:

Is what I have done as good as the best in the field?

Has it everything necessary for all ordinary purposes?

Have I added any special values by way of an original contribution?

Have I made it as attractive and convenient as possible for those who are its logical users?

Have I considered whether there is another group to which it might also be made to appeal?

What more can I do before I release it from myself and send it out to make its own way?

Again, if you are one of a group of workers, imagination can help you in still another way by showing you where you stand in relation to those around you. When you have seen this you can work out a code for yourself which will remove many of the irritations and dissatisfactions of your daily work.

ROYALTY SMILES AT SWIMMING GALA

"Double up; you're with the Navy" is what the King said to Princess Margaret Rose, referring to their somewhat cramped quarters, as Their Majesties and the little Princess watched a swimming gala at the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth. The King and Queen appear to be highly amused at something going on in the tank.

Gathering Camel's Hair

The manner in which camel hair is secured is unique and interesting. The hair is not sheared, plucked or cut off. In the springtime the camel sheds its hair, and in the trail of caravans there follows a man whose job is to gather up the clumps of hair as they fall, placing them in a basket on the back of the last camel in the caravan. The hair is usually sold in the first town the caravan reaches, eventually being transported over desert and mountain passes to various dealers in the shipping ports of China, where it is sorted for shipment to the western world.

Hairy, Downy Best Known Among Woodpecker Family

Two of the best known woodpeckers, the hairy woodpecker and the downy woodpecker, range over the greater part of the United States. They differ chiefly in size, their color being practically the same. The males, like those of many other woodpeckers, are distinguished by a scarlet patch on the head, notes a writer in the Missouri Farmer.

One of the larger woodpeckers familiar to everyone is the flicker, or golden-winged woodpecker, which is generally distributed throughout the United States from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky mountains. There it is replaced by the red-shafted flicker, which extends westward to the Pacific. The two species are as nearly identical in food habits as their respective environments will allow. The flickers, while genuine woodpeckers, differ somewhat in habits from the rest of the family, and are frequently seen searching for food upon the ground.

The red-headed woodpecker is well known east of the Rocky mountains, but is rather rare in New England. Unlike some of the other species, it prefers fence posts and telegraph poles to trees as a foraging ground.

Woodpeckers apparently are the only agents which can successfully cope with certain insect enemies of the forest, and, to some extent, with those of fruit trees also.

Stones Placed on Track, Engineer Halts Train

Discovery of three large stones on the tracks a quarter of a mile west of the Lachute C.P.R. station, delayed the Ottawa-bound train last Friday evening by six minutes.

The train had pulled out of here shortly after eight o'clock when the engineer noticed something on the track ahead. He brought his train to a stop and examination showed there were three stones on the rails. One weighed about 15 lbs. and two weighed about 10 lbs. each. They were removed. It is believed that the stones were placed there by children.

Joyrider Is Apprehended By Radio Police

According to a Montreal news report, Harold Allen Racicot, 29-year-old resident of Lachute, will appear before Judge Amedee Monet in Montreal Friday to hear sentence pronounced in connection with a joy-ride he and a young lady companion had on Saturday morning — in an automobile not his own.

Racicot was the subject of two hours' search by radio police before being apprehended. He told the court that he had lost his way in the city and was trying to return the car when taken into custody with his companion, Mabel Pominville, 20-year-old resident of Ottawa.

Both were charged with taking an automobile without permission. The girl was released on a suspended sentence and Judge Monet allowed Racicot his freedom pending sentence on Friday. Maurice Provost, from whom the vehicle was taken, told the court the car had not been damaged during the unsanctioned trip about the city.

The Effects of Possible War on Dominion's National Economy

TENSE ATMOSPHERE IN EUROPE RECALLS EXPERIENCE, CANADA'S ADAPTATION TO WARTIME NEEDS

Ottawa, August 29—The meaning of European conflict on a gigantic scale to the Dominion of Canada is a subject for the prophet rather than the commentator. Who knows what the world would look like when the dogs of war had free rein for a few years?

There are, however, a number of effects which can be derived from Canada's experience in the last war.

The onset of war paralyses many of the usual peaceful agencies and devices for the exchange of goods and services. In 1914 Canada was in the first stages of what threatened to be a serious depression, and at first the war accentuated it. People were unemployed, and the first effect was to increase them. Trade was at a low ebb, and for a while fell to lower ebb. Trade to the alien countries, of course, ceased at once, both imports and exports. The difficulty about chartering steamship cargo space made it difficult for exporters and importers to continue. The threat of attack enhances insurance risks.

A RUSH FOR GOLD

There was a rush on the banks for gold, by persons who were afraid of financial upsets, and who wished to lay hands on a medium of exchange that would not depreciate. It was necessary to take steps to halt the rush, to authorize banks to meet their obligations in their own notes.

The Dominion Government needed large sums at once, and instead of attempting to borrow, it resorted to limited inflation. Nowadays the credit facilities of Canada are so up-to-date that such a step might be unnecessary. Still, a prolonged war means inflation, eventually. That seems to be a truism.

The last war meant a gearing up of the productive resources of the country. The slack of 1914 was quickly taken up. Many of the unemployed enlisted; many others were absorbed into the industrial life. Manufacturers converted idle industrial plants into munition factories.

SURRENDER OF LIBERTIES

War in a democratic state means a surrender, for a time, of the privileges which are held so dearly in peacetime. It means temporary acquiescence in virtual dictatorship. Such rights as complete freedom of speech and action can no longer be enjoyed. They are peace-time luxuries. If the country becomes deeply involved it may be necessary for the state to intervene in almost every walk of life, and in almost every industry. It may have to "plan the economy" in minute detail. Workers may have to be regimented to do this and not do that. Plants may be taken over to produce essential war supplies. Farmers may be ordered to grow certain crops and neglect others.

Hoarding is usually an accompaniment of war, as the threat is seen that certain commodities will soon be scarce and high in price. Governments have to step in to prevent it as much as possible. Profiteering is another accompaniment. That is met by the fixing of prices. Certain essentials, such as oil and fuel, are likely to soar anyway. It may be necessary even for a democracy to ration gasoline and other basic materials.

EMOTIONAL EFFECTS

On the emotional side, the first effects of conflict are stirring. There is a truce on ancient divisions, of party and religion, and a fervor of self-sacrifice. The ranks are closed, and emotion runs high. A state actuated by these sentiments and regimented by a dictatorship works with great smoothness and seeming efficiency for a while. It is this ideal for which the extreme "planned economy" people strive; they want all the advantages of war-time psychology without, however, the restrictions on the personal liberty which alone make such efficiency possible. Men like Walter Lippman say that such a goal is unrealistic.

As war is today, it would seem that North America would become one vast aeroplane and explosives factory, surrounded by fields of wheat and corn. North America contains a vast storehouse of the sinews of war. How could it remain unexploited with a war raging in Europe?

In the last war, Canada so improved the efficiency of her productive machine that she "paid for the war as she went along." She emerged with no increase in external debt and with a plant capable of producing as much or more than she could in 1914. But in other ways she never ceased paying for the last war. War bills never get fully discharged.

Pilot Injured When Plane Crashes Near St. Jovite

An airplane crash occurred Sunday morning when Nelson Trerrice, 20-year-old pilot of St. Jovite, was forced down on the shores of nearby Lake Ouimet. He was slightly injured.

The St. Jovite flier was testing a private plane and was alone in the machine when it developed engine trouble. Forced to land hurriedly, Trerrice banked steeply for the shore of Lake Ouimet and hit the ground hard. The plane bounced over on its tail. The pilot, escaping with cuts and bruises, was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital after receiving first-aid treatment from a St. Jovite physician.

Traffic Constable Injured On Patrol Duty

While patrolling the highways on his route west of Lachute, Traffic Officer Howard Jones was struck by a car Sunday evening and sustained an injury to the spine. He returned to Lachute on his motorcycle, and after examination by Dr. W. F. McMartin, was driven to Montreal by Provincial Constable E. Anderson and is receiving treatment in the Notre Dame Hospital.

It is understood the accident occurred at a stop sign near Grenville, when the Traffic Officer, having stopped his machine, was crashed into from the rear by an oncoming car. The fender of his motorcycle was damaged.

Jones is expected home this week, his injury not being of a serious nature.

PLAN REGISTRATION OF CANADIAN WOMEN

TO RENDER SERVICE IN NATIONAL EMERGENCY

That the women of Canada may be in a position to serve their country at short notice in some national disaster, a committee is now urging the "Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women." To every nation there come periods of national distress, caused by circumstances such as earthquakes, floods, tornadoes, crop failures, forest fires, grave economic depressions, epidemics, war, etc. To be prepared for organized aid and service in the event of war, a questionnaire being circulated seeks to establish how many Canadian women would be able to take British and refugee children into their homes, or to render service in other departments of activity. The objectives of this questionnaire are described by the committee as follows:

"1st.—The reception of children and adults in Canada. We feel there are many elderly people, invalids and children who are unsuitable for war service and who may have relatives in this country who would willingly receive them were they sent for and in some cases, arrangements made for their maintenance while here.

"2nd.—The replacement of men in industry by the women best qualified and trained to take their places were men to be withdrawn for the making of munitions and so forth.

"3rd.—If a war occurs in Europe, whether Canada is involved or not, and whether it is voluntary service or conscription, were we involved, the fact still stands that numbers of men will leave this country and go to the scene of action. Our desire is that all services that can be and are performed by women should be done by Canadian women and thus obviate many of the difficulties that arose in the last war by the removal of large bodies of men over long periods of time away from their normal social surroundings. By this is meant that, in the last war all Canadian women doctors, etc., to serve as such, had to enlist in the British services. The same is true of women engaged in welfare or other work, such as recreational rooms, convalescent camps or anything outside of strictly nursing services.

"4th.—If we are spared this last extremity of war we have in this questionnaire the most comprehensive survey of unemployment among women that has yet been undertaken and we are hoping, when we have completed this assay of women's potentialities in Canada, that we will be able to turn those energies toward the solution of this and other pressing questions in this country, such as the problems of youth, conservation and distribution of food, etc.

$5,000 Fire Loss As Farm Buildings Are Destroyed

FINE BARN AND ANIMALS ARE BURNED DURING THRESHING OPERATIONS

Loss of over $5,000 occurred last Saturday afternoon when the farm buildings of William Watson, Lachute Road, were destroyed by fire during threshing operations. A large barn erected last summer and equipped with modern stable fittings, was razed to the ground with contents of the season's hay crop. The older buildings adjoining—stable and machine sheds forming an ell to the new structure—were also consumed; and a horse and a pure-bred bull were lost. The damage was partially covered by insurance.

The Lapointe threshing outfit, tractor and mill, from Beech Ridge, had commenced work at the Watson barn that afternoon, and half an hour afterwards, at about 2 p.m., the fire occurred. Mr. Watson's son, Robert, distributing straw as it was delivered from the blower, said the mow suddenly became a mass of flame. Young Watson had climbed down to change the set of the blower, and had turned back to find the straw mow enveloped in fire. A horse which was tramping the straw was burned in the inferno, while helpers hurried to remove such stock and equipment as they could reach in the smoke and heat of the blaze.

William Watson, who rushed into the stable to release his bull, was trapped by the flames and escaped by a rear window. During his exit the heavy window crashed down on his hand and he suffered two injured fingers. Later a neighbor, Gordon Bradley managed to drive the bull out of the stable door, but the animal was so badly burned that it had to be destroyed. Meanwhile other men were trying to unhitch a team of horses belonging to John Fraser, whose wagon was at the threshing mill when the outbreak occurred. The intense heat hampered their work, and the horses were badly scorched before they could be finally set free. The load was on fire by this time and to save the wagon it was rolled into the field and the load pushed off.

Lachute Fire Brigade responded immediately to a summons, and with their auxiliary truck laid 800 feet of hose from a creek on the nearby property of Wm. J. Rodger. With two streams playing on the flames the fire was checked, but the framework of the milk house was the only structure of the buildings remaining. The Watson home, some distance from the blaze, although in danger from flying sparks, was closely watched and escaped the fate of the farm buildings.

There were many speculations as to the cause of the fire, but like similar disasters which happen occasionally in the operations of threshing, the blaze started almost with the suddenness of an explosion and none could say the exact cause or place of the outbreak.

Paul Lahaye, Well Known Sportsman, on Sick List

Sports enthusiasts and friends in this locality will learn with regret that Mr. Paul Lahaye, well-known sportsman and local representative of Dawes, Dow and Frontenac Breweries, has been ordered to rest by his physician and has been granted two months' leave by his employers . . . Readers will join in wishing Mr. Lahaye a speedy recovery.

An ex-sparring partner of Jack Dempsey and a well-known boxer, Paul has shown a constant interest in local sports since his retirement from the ring. No sporting event in this district has been complete without him and his advice and encouragement have always been cheerfully given. For the past few seasons he has been a Director of the Provincial Hockey League.

During his absence from duty his work has been taken over by his old friend and colleague, Mr. Ubald Rose, who is well known to baseball enthusiasts.

Barn Destroyed by Fire At East Settlement

The second barn fire within a few days occurred at four o'clock Monday afternoon, at the farm of Alfred Pharand, East Settlement. The property is about one mile south of the "four corners". No one was around the premises at the time, and the cause of the outbreak was unknown.

Lachute Fire Brigade was summoned for assistance, but arriving at the scene the firemen found the danger had subsided, the flames having been confined to the barn building. No livestock or machinery were lost, but the barn and season's hay crop were completely destroyed.

Dial Telephone for Morin Heights Subscribers

LOCAL PHONE SERVICE WILL BE DISTINCT FROM THE STE. ADELE EXCHANGE

To provide for growth in the demand for telephone service in several Laurentian summer resorts, the Bell Telephone Company of Canada is planning the installation of a dial telephone exchange at Morin Heights, and the improvement of its plant at Ste. Marguerite and Shawbridge, according to J. J. Morrin, manager for the company in this district.

"Morin Heights subscribers are now served from the Ste. Adele exchange," Mr. Morrin said, "but owing to the growing importance of this resort, it has been decided to establish Morin Heights as a separate exchange, and a dial office will enable us to provide the best telephone service at the lowest possible cost to the subscribers in a community of this size. However, long distance calls made by Morin Heights subscribers will still be handled by the operators at Ste. Adele.

"It is expected that the actual change-over will take place next summer. Meanwhile, a new building will be erected in Morin Heights to house the intricate dial switching apparatus; subscribers' telephones will be changed to dial equipped instruments, and considerable extensions will be made to outside lines."

A new switchboard is being installed in the Ste. Marguerite exchange, and new cables will be provided for lines entering the building.

This fall, additional rural facilities are also being erected out of the Shawbridge exchange to Lake Echo and Lake L'Achigan, necessitating the erection of 5 miles of cable, 13 miles of steel wire, and the reconstruction of 14 miles of pole line.

BROWNSBURG SECOND IN BOYS' BAND CONTEST

ENCOURAGING PERFORMANCE IN COMPETITION AT OTTAWA

Remarkable evidence of the merit attained by Brownsburg's young bandsmen during their brief career as a musical unit, was shown in their standing in the Ottawa Exhibition boys' band contest Saturday afternoon. Brownsburg boys came second in the competition, their performance proving a distinct credit to the group and to their instructor, Wm. Ormston. The juvenile band of Westboro, Ont., took first place, and Hawkesbury-Lachute came sixth. Judged by points the results were:

Westboro 34.9 out of a possible 40; Brownsburg 30.3, playing "Assembly Overture"; Cornwall O.C.O.T. 30.0; Finch and Community Boys' Band 29.0; Cornwall School Boys' Band 28.5. Hawkesbury-Lachute 27.0; C.P.R. Juvenile Boys' Band of Chalk River, Ont., 26.8; Shawville Community Band, 26.5; Morrisburg 25.0

Brownsburg Boys' Band has been in existence only since last February and their success was most gratifying to the citizenry who have lent support to this project. A monetary award of $75 will help appreciably to defray the outlay of establishing this unit. A number of parents and townsmen accompanied the local bands to the Capital.

Adjudicators of the entries were Lieut. Charles Benter, leader of the United States Navy Band which was playing at the Exhibition all last week, his assistant conductor, Lieut. Brindler, and one of the flutists, Richard E. Townsend. Points were given for intonation, attack, deportment and performance. In conversation with The Watchman representative, Lieut. Benter spoke enthusiastically of the ability demonstrated by the local groups, and of the excellent work achieved among these youngsters.

Each band gave two numbers, one for warming-up and the second on which they were tested. Enthusiastic applause from the young bandsmen in the audience testified to the appreciative and critical interest each competing group took in the other's performance.

The idea for such a competition originated with Albert Croasdale, R.C.O.C., and Lieut. W. B. Finlayson. In order to stimulate interest outside of Ottawa, no Ottawa bands were allowed to compete.

The winning band, in addition to receiving medals and one hundred dollars, was given a cup, kindly donated by Lieut. Benter. Bands in second and third place also received money prizes.

When Travelling Missionaries "Penetrated Into Wilds of The Gore, Near Village of Lachute" Ninety Years Ago

INTERESTING EXTRACT FROM "FIFTY YEARS OF MISSIONARY AND MINISTERIAL LIFE"—BY THE LATE REV. F. A. SMITH

From a pamphlet published by his father prior to his death in 1902, the following reference to early days in the Gore has been forwarded by Mr. Pemberton Smith to the present incumbent of Lakefield Parish, Rev. C. W. P. Baugh. The extract gives an impression of that community in the summer of 1850, as recorded by a young man sent as lay-reader to his first missionary charge on arrival in this country from Dublin.

Bishop Mountain had then the title of Bishop of Montreal, and his diocese included the whole of Lower Canada. In the course of the same summer Bishop Fulford came out from England to relieve the former of Montreal and a large part of the old diocese. Then Bishop Mountain took the title of Bishop of Quebec. (1850).

I found that during his absence from Quebec the Bishop had arranged that, while waiting for ordination, I was to proceed up the Ottawa to a place called the Gore of Wentworth, near the Village of Lachute, and there to do the work of a Lay-Reader under the supervision of the Rev. Wm. Abbott, Rector of St. Andrews. Accordingly, we took the steamer for Montreal, where we spent a day, proceeding by train to Lachine, and by steamer to Carillon, and thence by land to St. Andrews, and accompanied by the Rev. R. L. Stephenson, travelling missionary, I penetrated into the wilds of the Gore, then a very rough settlement inhabited by Irishmen of a pretty rude type, though possessing warm hearts. So primitive was the Gore in those days that I could scarcely obtain a lodging for myself, and during all my stay there my sister had to remain at the pleasant village of St. Andrews, where she formed a warm and lasting friendship with its kind and hospitable people.

Rough as were my surroundings in the Gore, I was not without encouragement in my work, and my intercourse with the people was pleasant on the whole. The church, a plain and unadorned edifice, was situated on the shore of a pretty little lake. There was a well attended service every Sunday morning. In the afternoon I went a few miles further through the forest—not always in the same direction—for service in a school-house. This, too, was well attended. Indeed, it was a surprise to me to meet so many people in the depths of the lonely woods who seemed really anxious to worship God and to hear His holy word. It was hard at first to know from whence they all could come. The houses were so far apart, and the families widely scattered over a large extent of only partially cleared lands. They manifested a commendable zeal in coming long distances to the services of the church, and when I visited them in their homes, I found them—the sick especially—grateful for such administrations as I could render them. Some, I found, who had left the old country many years before, and who during all those years had never seen the face of a clergyman.

No War, "They're All Bluffing" Is Henry Ford's View

The Sudbury (Mass) Globe quoted Henry Ford as saying there will be no war "because they are all bluffing."

"They don't dare have a war and they know it," the newspaper said the motor magnate declared in an interview on the tense international situation, while visiting his wayside inn.

He blamed the present war clouds on munitions makers and profiteering financiers.

Will Not Cut Relief of Volunteer Guards

Mayor Charles Daley of St. Catharines told city council that families of unemployed men who enlist for guard duty on the Welland ship canal will not be cut off relief until their earnings exceed their relief allowances.

"I have discussed this situation with the authorities," Mayor Daley said. "This is not a permanent enlistment. Any volunteers who are recruited for duty in the Lincoln and Welland Regiment are not enlisting for war service. If a war comes the recruits will have the opportunity to withdraw from the regiment."

Says Nazi Sympathizers at Kitchener Are 'Catalogued'

Kitchener police state that all the city residents suspected of being Nazi sympathizers have been "catalogued" as a precaution during the crisis in international events.

If advice is received from Ottawa that war has been declared, the police authorities said, the suspects will be picked up for questioning.

CHAMPION EGG LAYER

Inelegantly named Scrappy, this saucy little white leghorn is the world's champion egg layer, recently on display at the Seventh World's Poultry Congress in Cleveland. She laid 376 eggs in 359 days.

Cacao Tree an Evergreen

The cacao tree is one of those plants which does better in a foreign land than its home country. Native to Latin America, it is cultivated chiefly in West Africa. An evergreen, says the Washington Post, it bears buds, flowers and seed pods, all at the same time. Oddly, they grow on the trunk bark, not on branches or twigs. Though the tree is called 'cacao," its bean is named "cocoa. The two drinks, chocolate and cocoa, are both made from it, their only difference being in richness. Cocoa beans go through many roasting and curing processes before ending up in a cup, but their original growers, American Indians, merely dried them in the sun and ate them "as is."

Law on Glare Headlights

The Attorney General of Ontario has before expressed his determination that the law shall be enforced to obtain a better driving record for the province. He has now announced that Ontario traffic officers are to enforce with vigor the new regulations regarding headlights.

New cars must all conform to the new requirements for multiple beam headlamps, and the beam of lamps on cars now on the road must not rise higher than five inches from the centre of the lamp at 25 feet. It is safe to say that owners of cars possessing these intense beams are in a position to make any necessary change without much financial concern to themselves. They will all do well to realize that it is not only courtesy that demands the lowering of the lights when passing another car. It is now a regulation of the law which Mr. Conant says must be strictly enforced.

However, it is not only in the actual passing of the other car that the lights should be lowered. This law and courtesy should be observed well ahead of the moment of passing. That at least is the spirit of the law and its fulfilment serves the cause of safety in night driving far more than in merely observing the letter of the law.

New York Hotels Reduce Prices

Hotels in New York have now reduced their prices so that Canadians who plan a visit in order to see the World's Fair during the late summer and fall may do so more economically, according to the Passenger Department of the Canadian National Railways.

Indigestion is the mother of many a disagreeable disposition.

Seeing Through Steel Five Inches Thick

"Nothing that scientific investigation can achieve in the way of ensuring excellence of workmanship is being left undone by Canada in the execution of the aircraft orders she is receiving from this country," says a newspaper clipping from England.

Take the case of the X-ray inspection of castings. This has been carried to a fine art by the experts of the National Research Laboratories in Ottawa, who are passing on the fruits of their labors to the individual manufacturers. They use the rays to discover inherent weaknesses which cannot be revealed by human means. A wide range of tubes is used, their penetrating power varying from the very "soft" 5,000 volt rays suitable for examining thin sheets of asbestos cloth to the 600,000 volt rays capable of penetrating five inches of steel."

In the "old" days, sample castings were cut apart in the search for flaws. If these samples were found to be satisfactory the other castings from the same "melt" were approved for use, reliance being placed on the tendency for flaws to recur in castings from the same pattern and from the same melt. Even in these cases, however, there was considerable chance of missing large cavities. But nothing can escape the X-ray eye. All the castings for the structural parts of new planes are now being inspected by this method. Now they are almost completely flaw-proof.

Where flaws are found, X-ray pictures of the defects are sent to the foundries where the castings were made, and the necessary steps taken to ensure that they shall not be repeated.

The service of this electric eye is, indeed, so helpful to the foundries themselves that, in conjunction with the National Research Laboratories, a number of them are installing X-ray equipment of their own.

Motoring on Coal Gas

New Engine Which Does Away With Gasoline

British Members of Parliament are shortly to be shown new types of motor car engines driven by high-compression coal gas which, it is claimed, operate as efficiently as engines driven by either oil or gasoline.

Evolved at the National Gas and Oil Engine Company's works at Ashton-under-Lyne, England, it is believed that the new engines may well revolutionize the fuel aspect of road transport. The importance of the development in the event of war, when supplies of imported fuel may be precarious, is realized in Government circles, where a keen interest in the new engines is being shown. A scheme for rationing "petrol" in war time was announced recently.

Already the United Kingdom Gas Corporation is investigating the possibility of setting up gas-filling stations in various parts of the country. These will refuel gas-driven lorries and motor vehicles from cylinders containing compressed gas, or from gas compressors on the same principle as that used in putting air into tires. The whole operation occupies only a few seconds.

Observant Red Cap Helps Traveller

Montreal—Haste marked every movement of the passenger after his arrival at Bonaventure Station. Quickly he paid the taxi man, hailed a Red Cap, and fairly ran through the waiting room to catch the C.N.R. Train No. 16 for Portland. As he clambered on board the passenger recalled leaving a rug in the taxi. Hurriedly he asked the Red Cap to make a search. The train pulled out before Red Cap No. 11 could get a name.

With clues as scanty as in a detective thriller, the time of action from taxi to train being only three minutes, it seemed a hopeless task. Nevertheless, the station forces were soon at work and in the proverbial jig time there was a report from a Diamond Taxi driver who found a rug in his cab. How to find the nameless man was the next problem. Red Cap No. 11 proved to possess powers of observation, particularly as to the man's luggage. Accordingly a wire describing the passenger and luggage was sent to the conductor of No. 16, and in time a reply came from Norton, Vermont, saying the passenger had been found and please send the rug to an address in Ottawa.—Not entirely elementary, but an interesting study, Sherlock Holmes might observe.

We are judged by our company and that is why some men dislike being all alone.

PUBLIC AND UNIFICATION

The Hon. C. D. Howe speaking at Silver Lake, Lanark County, (said a recent issue of the Pembroke Bulletin) wanted to impress upon those who heard him that the Liberal party is a unit against the unification of our railways, while the Conservative party is divided. Probably the rank and file of both parties are for unification, and the party which would nail unification as its policy to the mast's head would have the better chance of getting returned to power. However, both of the leaders are after the railway vote, and when the Conservatives find that they did not get it they will get wise.

Those who urge Canadians to take more interest in politics are missing a vital fact. The fact is that Canadians are already among the most politically-minded people in the world. Canada was born in politics. Political deadlock was its father, and an Act of Parliament its mother. The British North America Act, the basis of the Dominion's laws, is a written constitution; so most of the rights and liberties of the citizens and of those groups of citizens which are called provinces spring from Acts of Parliament rather than customs. Not mores, but laws which have been debated and voted upon, are the foundations of the country. There is scarcely a law on the statute books which was not hammered and moulded by political machinations. The whole history of the country has been one of harangues upon the hustings and harangues within the House. We live and breathe politics because our entire Confederation is made up of political compromises.

But we have made such a fine art of politics that we have little energy left over for running the country. That is our weakness, our tender spot. We love the stratagems and tumult of the fight, but we do not greatly care what the fight is about. In that important particular we are among the world's most stupid people. To us an election is like a bull fight, with colorful caps waving, crowds yelling, horned beasts on the loose and horses prancing. It serves us right that through the years we have been left with many a dead horse. — The Printed Word

"The noble, silent men, scattered here and there, each in his department; silently thinking, silently working; whom no morning newspaper makes mention of — they are the salt of the earth. A country that has none or few of these is in a bad way." — Carlyle

CANADA'S FUTURE

A few days ago a young man—university graduate—talked at length about a "box car" tour he made this summer right across Canada. His stories of unemployed youth in hundreds "hoboing" from town to town and field to field in a fruitless search for work were disheartening to the "nth" degree. It is hard to believe that empty box cars could be packed to capacity with boys, young men and old men in this country searching for a living and experiencing nothing but destitution. Canadian methods do not include artificial stimulants for business. But it seems that the Government must do something to provide employment in the way of public works or—the results may be far from pleasant

THE WAR AGAINST WAR

Not in many years have the spirits of men been so troubled as today. The threat of war hangs like a shadow over the lives of millions of people. No human foresight can predict the future. The world is living under the shadow of dread.

In times like these it is inevitable that there should be a revival of interest in spiritual matters. Believers in the goodness of an all-seeing God are praying for peace, praying that their lives and those of their children shall not be sacrificed on the altar of war.

There is no other hope of enduring peace than that held out by the believers that somehow the spirit of God will take possession of the hearts of ambitious rulers who would plunge the world into war to gratify their personal vanity or to enlarge the material wealth of themselves or their subjects.

In the race for superiority in armament we are prone to overlook the one impregnable form of armament which would insure humanity against war. Only Moral Re-Armament will afford the security which armaments of steel and gunpowder can never afford.

Moral Re-Armament is no new thing. It is merely a modern name for the essential, fundamental truth that the causes of human misery and of war lie in the hearts of individual men.

A new awareness of this truth is moving millions today, bringing hope into their lives. One by one, men and women are experiencing a rebirth of the spirit. Under the slogan of Moral Re-Armament, a great and growing army of peace is breaking down the barriers of hatred between nations and races, between individuals and classes. Only when all those barriers are swept away will the shadow of war be lifted.

TWO SIDES TO EVERY QUESTION

By Lytle Hull

A PLEA TO PARENTS

The curriculum of public schools is partly outmoded. It isn't keeping step with the requirements of a rapidly changing condition of living. It is still somewhat "horse and buggy."

The logic of certain fundamentals can never change. The logic of the Ten Commandments, for example, is invariable and the logic of intensive mental exercise for the growing mind is as sound as the proverbial dollar. It is obvious that if the school curriculum contained nothing more advanced than the multiplication table, the output of our educational system would be well qualified to push a lawn mower.

The whole system of education is based upon the idea that by training and exercising the mind, with the most difficult work possible, the brain will become capable of solving the problems which one must meet in the hustling world outside.

There are few educational subjects more difficult to master than Latin, Greek and the higher mathematics—and none more useless in the future life of the average pupil. For the student who expects to take up such scholarly pursuits as the Church, the legal profession, writing, etc., these studies are of great value, but a knowledge of Latin and Greek will not add to the qualifications of the ordinary public school graduate when he is looking for a job—even though the labor he expended upon them has trained and improved his mental capacity.

The methods of teaching in our schools have advanced tremendously and a multitude of new courses are continuously being added, which are designed to be of practical help to the graduate when he goes out to earn his living. It is the old compulsory courses which have caused so much contention and discussion on the part of students, parents, teachers and school boards.

One side maintains that to give up the study of Latin and Greek would be to abandon the "sine qua non" of a finished mental training. Others hold that one must be equally well drilled, who has acquired a thorough knowledge of English, German, French or Spanish grammar and the faculty to speak fluently in two or more of these languages.

The inability of many public school graduates even to converse freely in their own native tongue, is a sad commentary on our educational system. Booksellers get rich selling dollar editions of "How to Speak English"; "Learn English and Get a Job" or "Make Yourself Popular in Your Home Town—Learn to Speak English in Twenty Lessons." Incidentally this perfectly lucid method of expression, the English language, is becoming so adulterated with inane slang that a visiting Englishman finds it hard to understand.

There are three courses which are comparatively as arduous as Latin, Greek and trigonometry, and certainly far more useful to the young person who has to earn a living after graduation. First, English Grammar—an intensely difficult subject to master and of vital importance in practically every branch of future activity. Why couldn't the hours spent on Latin be added to the insufficient time which is allotted to this far more important subject?

Second, Foreign Languages—Spanish, French, German or Italian. The advantages of being able to speak a foreign language are limitless.

The ability to converse in English and French, or in English and German, makes it possible for one to "get along" almost anywhere in the world and there are thousands of business houses which have places for young men and women who speak one or more of these languages. Incidentally, the same concerns, and all other business houses which employ workers, even though those workers be manual laborers, will certainly give preference to an applicant who speaks English correctly, over one who, through lack of training, is unable to express himself gramatically.

Third, History. Usually the public school graduate remembers that the Battle of Hastings was fought in 1066 A.D.; that Napoleon crossed the Alps, Washington was the first President of the United States and Julius Caesar conquered Gaul.

What little comprehension he acquired from his course in History is utterly useless to him, but a thorough mastery of the subject will endow an ambitious youth with a fundamental asset of inestimable value.

A businessman who is ignorant of economic history often falls by the wayside because he is unaware of certain trends which are sure to recur, and the man in public life is at a hopeless disadvantage if he is ignorant of precedents upon which to plan his political procedure.

To the writer, the student, the artist, historical lore is as the breath of life, and to one who cares to read, or to those who desire to understand the political trends of their time, a realization of the past is essential.

There is nothing new in the above dreary dissertation; the same old discussion has been hammered around until it is jellyfied, but nothing much ever changes in that Rock of Ages—the Public School Curriculum. Some day — maybe — parents will take a sufficient interest in their children to do something about it.

"STOP SAYING THEM"
(Lethbridge Herald)

The other day in the Presbyterian General Assembly two divines got into an argument and used some plain language about another denomination. Immediately there came requests from certain delegates that reporters present should not mention the incident. The clergyman is the chair thereupon "spoke words of wisdom." "The only way to stop regrettable things going into the press is to stop saying them," he told the delegates.

After working hard for a political job, a man can afford to take it easy.

The Cat Came Back
(Winchester Press)

The other day one of our subscribers told us a good story concerning his cat. The female feline was one of those kind that presented its owner with a fresh batch of little kittens every few months. Mr. Jones (fictitiously named) was fed up having to get rid of the kittens each time so he decided to dispose of the mother cat. Mrs. Jones suggested that they take the cat with them on a trip to Alexandria, which they planned for the coming Sunday. This they did, and as they were passing through a bush between Maxville and Alexandria, about 40 miles from Winchester, they allowed the cat to have her freedom. Well, that was the end of the cat and kitten nuisance, they said.

Next morning, when Mr. Jones opened the back door of his residence, he heard a casual "meow." Looking around, he saw the black cat. Said he to his wife, "Look what's here, I never thought she would find her way back home, but evidently she has. I'll fix her tonight." That evening Mr. Jones looked around until he found the cat. Placing her in a bag, he motored out to Cass Bridge and threw her into the Nation River. That's the end to be sure, thought Mr. Jones. But, strange as it may seem, it wasn't. Two days later the black cat appeared at the kitchen door, pleading for a meal. Mr. Jones' hair started to rise, he couldn't believe his eyes — but it was true, the cat was still with them. Mr. Jones fed it and it disappeared. That evening when Mr. Jones was mowing the lawn, he happened to glance at a hole in the end of the verandah, when lo and behold, out walked the mother cat with four little kittens trailing her. Just at that moment a neighbor's little boy had come over to the Jones house and, noticing the little kittens, asked Mr. Jones if he could have one. "You can have them all, including the old cat," replied the owner. "Well, I only want one," said the little boy, "we had two black cats but we don't know what happened to them, they haven't been around home for several days. Maybe they were stolen or got run over with a car, daddy says."

You can figure out the rest for yourself!

"Even though I may not be master of my political fate, I am the master of my political soul."

H. F. G. Bridges, M.P.P.

A DICTATORSHIP DEFINED
(Manchester Guardian)

A group of Frenchmen were talking politics. "And how would you describe a dictatorship?" asked one.

Several people proffered definitions which did not seem very concise or apt. Then up spoke a little fellow in the corner of the cafe: "It is a system of government," said he, "where everything that isn't forbidden is obligatory."

Geological Map, Lachute Area, Available from Department

During the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1939, the Mapping Division of the Quebec Bureau of Mines prepared and completed 14 new geological maps. Twelve of these were lithographed in color and the remaining two were in black and white.

These maps furnish valuable information to miners and prospectors in their search for ore, as the data contained in them very clearly define the numerous geological formations of the districts which they represent.

No. 408—Lachute Area, in two sheets; Terrebonne, Argenteuil and Two Mountains counties. (In color).

Calendar, Man's Record Of the Passing of Time

The calendar was brought about by evolution. It has been regulated by mathematics and astronomy. It has been compounded of superstitions, of religious rites. It has provoked some of the great dramatic situations of history, relates Seymour Korman in the Chicago Tribune.

The reckoning of time is as old as history itself. Primitive man noted the new moon, watched it wax and wane again. He knew the moods of the seasons. There was cold and warmth and he sensed they came at regular intervals.

The ancient Egyptians calculated time from the rising of the Nile (in mid-June). The North American Indians reckoned a journey in so many "sleeps."

The Incas of Peru erected cylindrical pillars and estimated solstices by measuring the sun's shadow. The theory of this stone and shadow reckoning is familiar in the sun dial.

Civilizations such as the Mayan, the Scandinavian, and the Babylonian had distinctive calendars many thousands of years ago. In classical Greece nearly every large city had its own calendar.

The calendar depends on the sun, the moon, the earth, and a star. The rotation of the earth around the sun gives the year, the rotation of the moon around the earth gives the month, the spin of the earth on its axis defines the day, the position of a star in the heavens gives the starting point from which to measure the year.

All of the celestial motions are chronologically independent. There never can be an exact number of full days in any lunar month or solar year, nor can there be an exact number of lunar months in the solar year.

Snow and Blue Geese

Unlike Canada geese, the snows seldom fly in V-formation. Adult snow geese have pure white bodies with black wingtips, with pink or pale purplish bills. Blue geese, about the same size as snows, have white heads and necks, grayish-brown bodies (not blue as the name indicates), dark red bills and purplish-red legs. The young are sooty-gray or brown.

Delivery Vehicle and Car In Main Street Collision

A head-on collision occurred Wednesday evening between a Lachute Bakery delivery van and a car driven by I. Assaly on Main Street opposite the west end of Foundry. Mr. Assaly had driven across the C.P.R. track southward and had swerved to avoid a cyclist, R. Laurin. Laurin and his bicycle were struck, however, and a box of tomatoes which he was delivering spilled across the road. Meanwhile Assaly, in swerving his car, met with the truck and both vehicles were considerably damaged in a head-on crash.

Constable A. Gervais and Provincial Officer E. Anderson investigated the accident. Neither Mr. Assaly, driver of the automobile, nor Gerard Menard, driver of the truck, was injured, but an occupant seated in the cab of the delivery van had several teeth knocked out. Roger Laurin escaped unhurt, though the wheel of his cycle was broken and his load of tomatoes a complete loss.

Arrive Home from 9,000-Mile Auto Trip to Coast

Weary with travel but thoroughly pleased with their experience, Mr. Arthur Campbell and his family arrived home Sunday afternoon from their 9,000-mile motor tour to British Columbia. They were absent two months on this trip, during which time they made many calls on relatives and old time friends. No breakdowns, punctures or mishaps of any kind marred their lengthy tour. Among the places they visited were The Pas, Flin Flon, Revelstoke, Banff and many interesting western points. A sight of more than usual interest on their itinerary was the Grand Coulee dam in Washington. This dam, still under construction, is the largest development of its kind in the world.

Leisurely Breakfast Starts The Day Right

"IT ALL DEPENDS".

Probably the hardest job mothers and young wives have to undertake is that of getting the family out of bed in the morning. You know, yourself, if you have a husband or youngsters, that you can call as often as you like, but, until middle age sets in, nothing short of a charge of dynamite is really effective.

And the plaintive wails that precede the actual getting out of bed are unbelievable!

We have a daughter in our house. I should say we have a daughter in our house during the hours devoted to sleep. At other times she is to be found in the lake, or diving from the raft, or away out on a canoe trip. No matter how hot the sun is, she and the ambitious gang of which she is a member are all hard at work taking exercise in one form or another and finding it fun.

But to get back to the wails.

Yesterday I took a hand. In my sternest manner I pointed out that night is the time for sleeping. I referred, as all fathers do, to the pleasant qualities of the hours when the morning is fresh.

"You want me to waste away to a shadow!", was the reply. "I've got to have sleep!"

It All Depends!

You see, only the day before the burden of her complaint was that the gang teases her about her size and what could she do to reduce?

Husbands—and I speak with authority—are worse. They lie abed until the last possible minute, cut themselves while shaving, rush for the train, the barn, or the street-car without breakfast, without a word to their wives and children. Is there any wonder that women, alone all day after a brief interlude during which their husbands appeared to look upon them only as unsalaried cooks and housekeepers, get the feeling that this is a man's world?

Middle-age seems to make a difference. With the middle years comes a realization that marriage is for every hour of the day and that the extra ten minutes or half an hour at breakfast can be a bright spot to lighten a wife's lonely hours when her husband is away. Your middle-aged couple seems to realize that the extra hour stolen from sleep at night is nowhere near as valuable as the few minutes' companionship in the morning.

Perhaps that realization is what makes England what she is today. England is a sort of "middle-aged" country. She has the calm of middle-age, the experience of middle-age. She may appear to "muddle through" but she doesn't really—she has done it all before and therefore can go calmly about what has to be done without the excitement or uproar of a younger country.

She goes calmly about her daily life. No Englishman would think of starting his day without his breakfast. In fact he goes further. He wouldn't think of starting the day without his morning cup of tea before he shaves. And you can face even such ugly facts as an unshaven face much better with a cup of tea under your belt.

No matter where he goes your Englishman sticks to this habit. He has done it in the icy wastes of the Antarctic, in the steaming jungles of Africa. Who knows, this leisure of

I have often since thought of those people in the Gore flocking to the very simple service provided for them, when I have had painful proof of the apathy of others in more favored places and more comfortable surroundings, who habitually neglected the assembling of themselves for worship in God's holy house.

Nor was my work in those wild woods without its amusing side. I generally went about on foot or on horseback — for roads that deserved the name, there were none. Once in riding to a school-house for service, I was met by the father of a large and well grown family. Looking with a humorous expression at the ancient steed on which I was mounted, he declared it was the very same horse that had drawn him to his wedding.

I generally devoted the afternoon to visiting the settlers. They were so hospitable that everywhere I was met with an invitation to tea. To decline might give serious offence. Now, as I aimed at paying a number of visits in succession, so much hospitality was overwhelming.

The Gore men were all, or nearly all, very loyal Orangemen. They told me how, in 1837, they formed a volunteer company and fought for the crown. In an adjoining township all were Romanists. Fortunately the two places were separated by dense wood, for if the opposing parties chanced to meet, a conflict was almost inevitable.

Early in September I heard from the Bishop of Quebec that I was to present myself for Deacon's Orders on the 22nd of that month, and afterwards to take charge of an extensive mission in the remote District of Gaspé. When my rough but kind-hearted Gore friends heard that I was to leave them, many were the expressions of good-will and regret, and I have ever since thought of them most kindly.

Lakefield W.A. Musicale

Lakefield—On Friday evening a large crowd attended the musicale given in the Gibb Parish Hall under auspices of the Lakefield W.A. Rev. C.W.P.Baugh in a few introductory remarks touched upon the war crisis, Mr. Horace Baugh then taking charge of the program.

The main performers of the evening were the Misses Powles and Miss Isobel McCambly. A feature of the program was a Japanese dance by the Powles sisters, dressed in Oriental costumes. Mrs. P. S. C. Powles gave a brief talk on the work of the Canadian missionaries among the Japanese people, and described some interesting customs of the Far Eastern countries.

The program closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

Brownsburg United Ch. Lawn Social

Brownsburg—The lawn social held under auspices of the United Church Ladies' Auxiliary on the manse grounds Thursday evening, Aug. 17, was a great success. The weather being ideal, a large crowd gathered for the event and, as usual, was not disappointed in the proceedings of the evening. An excellent program was rendered, including the Brownsburg Boys' Band and other select talent. The lighting of the grounds was undertaken by the Gatineau Power Co.; the various stalls and fish-pond were well patronized, while the ladies, assisted by the Junior Auxiliary, were kept busy serving refreshments. Neither time nor trouble was spared to make the event a success.

Rev. S. J. Pike, who acted as chairman, expressed the thanks of the ladies to all those who took part.

Among those who addressed the gathering were His Worship Mayor A. Brunelle, Mr. D. Staniforth, who recently arrived with his bride, and Mr. G. E. Evans, student-pastor of Avoca and Harrington.

"Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, Sept. 3rd.

The Golden Text is from Genesis 1:27. "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." (Matthew 5:48.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is the creator of man, and, the divine Principle of man remaining perfect, the divine idea or reflection, man, remains perfect. Man is the expression of God's being." (Page 470.)

BOXING EVENTS VIEWED BY ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD

NINE FIXTURES ON ARENA PROGRAM

Lachute Arena attracted a record crowd last Thursday evening, when nine boxing bouts were put on by the Laurentian Boxing Club. The fights were arranged by the local promoter, Leo Girard, and all were well matched.

The popular Paul LaHaye of St. Jerome was referee for all contests, the judges being Georges Héon, M.P., Lachute, Ed. Barker, Brownsburg, and Jim MacKimmie, Lachute; timekeepers at the bell, Lawrence Cruise and P. Roy, and the genial announcer Henry St. Onge.

Jean Martineau of Grenville and Roland Lefort of Lachute Mills, 108 pounders, were contestants in the first fight. The two initial rounds were lacking in excitement as they battled evenly. Martineau had a very solid left and was the sturdier of the two. The fighters warmed up in the third as both swung punches freely, and after the final bell, a draw was awarded.

The second contest was also a three rounder, with Cleo Hooper of Lachute and Armand Bilodeau of Lachute Mills in the 135 class. This bout was one of the best on the program, as Hooper and Bilodeau fought aggressively from the first bell. Both boys landed point-making blows, and in the opening round Hooper connected with a stinging right that buckled Bilodeau's knees. In round two they really warmed up, and many punches were exchanged, but Hooper had a slight advantage as he knocked his opponent off balance, and gave him a quick solid left at the bell. In round three Bilodeau was in distress with blood flowing from a cut mouth, but he took his punishment well, until at midway in the round Hooper dropped him for the knock-out.

Scotty MacDonald and E. Graham, both of Montreal, were billed for the third. MacDonald was the more spectacular boxer, having a good style, and in the early round he had reddened Graham's nose. Round two was marred by much clinching, although a few good blows were given by both lads and Graham showed to advantage on the defensive. In round three, Graham earned a knockdown, but it was mostly a slip on MacDonald's part, and both boxers traded blows freely. The next round was all MacDonald's, as he landed many telling blows that gradually tired his opponent. A note of humor was sounded during this stanza as Graham experienced shoe trouble, with his foot emerging periodically, to his embarrassment and the amusement of the crowd. Round five was again MacDonald's, and he was given the fight on points.

A 135-pound contest was staged next between Grant MacRae of Harrington East and G. Larange of Lachute Mills. This fight started in a mild manner, the boxers appearing the best of pals and loath to do much damage; but in the second round something happened to stir their enmity, and they swopped heavy blows at random in heated temper. MacRae bled freely at the nose and was tiring quickly as Larange hit often to the face, and at the climax Larange was given the decision.

The next contest was a hardy battle between Jim Rafferty of Lachute Road and Howard Ward of Lachute. This was a serious affair between two conscientious boxers, and at the bell they battled for all they were worth. Rafferty showed nice style against Ward's aggressiveness, and both fighters landed good blows. The first round was fairly even, though Rafferty slipped to the floor as a punch came from an awkward angle. The next set-to was equally exciting; Ward got in some telling rights and was the stronger of the two, although Raffetry took the offensive lead. Ward was warned by the referee for low hitting. Both boxers were bartering heavy punches in the third and final round, and it appeared that Ward had the slight edge in the fight, although the judges gave the verdict as a draw.

After the recess, two Brownsburg lads put on a good contest in the 147-pound class. Geo. (Shuffle-Foot) Golden and Victor Moore, the contestants, gave the crowd a scrappy three rounds. The first, however, was tame as very few punches were exchanged; in the next round, the lads mixed the leather at every opportunity, with Golden pushing frequent lefts and rights. The final period was fairly rough, both fighters becoming heated when the aggression hit a new high and Moore was warned by the referee as he tried to land a hay-maker when Golden was on the floor. Soon after, with both fighters trying their hardest to do some damage, they got into a bear clinch, falling to the floor, much to the amusement of the crowd. At the final bell a draw was awarded.

Bout number eight comprised heavier material, in the 175-lb. class, with Hector Gratton of Ste. Scholastique and Ken Kettyle of Lachute doing the honors. The first round was a good one, Kettyle proving the more aggressive against his heavier opponent, though both men landed hard b'ows. The next round was a real slugger, and some of the heavy punches, if they had landed squarely, would have earned a knock-out; as it was, both fighters sported bloody noses at the end of this round. Gratton tired in the last round, as Kettyle took the offensive; and it is likely this round was responsible for the judgment in Kettyle's favor.

Montreal and Lachute battled it out in the next contest, as Stan Wilkey and Lionel Girard represented their districts respectively in class 145. During the first clash, Girard forced the fight, but he was up against a scientific boxer with a splendid defence and a cool manner. Round two was fairly tame and little damage was done, though Girard got in a few good blows. The next was about even and more aggressive; Wilkey used a stabbing left to advantage and followed defensive tactics. The fourth round was much the same, both fighters opening up alternately, with Girard getting in two good rights just before the bell. In the last round-up Girard and Wilkey turned on the heat, though neither had the advantage. At this time, Girard was warned by the referee for not breaking clean, and a very even fight was given as a draw.

The last bout of the evening was the best on the program as Harold Delaney of Montreal slugged it out with Gene Racine of St. Eustache; both fighters were left handed, which is very uncommon in the ring. Delaney is a veteran of ringdom having fought over 400 fights in amateur and professional rings. These pugilists came out at the bell meaning business, and they earned respect for each other after exchanging a few solid blows. Delaney slipped, but the contest was even at this time. They "went to town" in the second, mixing blows, as these sturdy men pushed plenty of leather to the body and Racine landed a few telling facial blows. Both were willing to take the iniative in the fighting, and Racine missed no chance to nail his opponent. In the third round he almost landed the "good-night" punch as he followed Delaney to the ropes, but the Irishman was quick to see the blow coming and ducked in time. The fourth round was just as fast and evenly battled; at the finish an unfortunate accident happened—as Racine swung a solid left, the bell sounded and Delaney jumped into the air, the blow hitting him fairly low. For a few minutes he rolled on the canvas in agony; it was feared he might be seriously hurt, but after receiving treatment from Dr. Lafleur, Delaney recovered and was ready to conclude the fight. The final round was as spirited as the others, and Delaney and Racine received a grand hand from the 800 customers appreciating a good fight. This contest also finished as a draw.

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman

"PAPERCHASE"

To those of you who enjoy books about people, I recommend James Dunn's 'Paperchase.' He was a Fleet Street reporter and in this autobiography he tells of his life and many of the people he knew in London; in Ireland during the trouble there before the War, and in the War years. The writing is a delight. He has a lively Irish wit. Here is one of his amusing stories; during a Belfast riot an American film man attempted to erect his camera in Royal Avenue. He was promptly pounced upon by the crowd, who asked the usual question, "Are you Catholic or Protestant?"

"I'm a Christian Scientist," he replied politely. Whereupon both sides beat him up. To my mind, it is the best book of this type I have seen, since George Doran's 'Barrabas was a Publisher.'

MAKE HOME-OWNING PROFITABLE

To own one's own home, used to be the ambition of every family. Now it is a common story to hear, 'if I ever get rid of this house I will never own another.' One reason for this is that people do not stay put in the same place the way they used to, and it is a difficult thing to sell a house when one has to move. High taxes are the greatest drawback to house-owning. The principles of taxation have remained the same, even though living conditions have changed and the house-owner bears an unfair burden. The situation has been mitigated in a small way but not enough to be a real relief. If it were made profitable to own one's home, there would be an immense stimulation to business and work given to many now unemployed. There is a great degree of satisfaction in owning one's home but to most it is a luxury instead of a thrifty way of saving money. How to shift the burden of taxation from the householder is a problem. Business already feels it is being taxed out of existence.

BICKERING CHILDREN

In families with more than one child, bickering is usually a problem. The children do not mind it, as a matter of fact, most of them get considerable pleasure out of it — else they would not do so much of it. But it is hard on the bystanders. Too often mothers expect their children to love each other and be constant companions. They would love each other a lot more if they weren't such constant companions. There is always a difference in age, and why should the child of ten have to do the same things as the child of seven? And that is what too many mothers expect. Let them have friends of their own age and then when they are together it is a pleasant change instead of a boresome necessity. When the bickerings begin, let the children be separated. Not in so many words, because that adds drama and importance to the situation. The wise mother can find something for them to do in a different direction. Privacy is hard to get in a large family but each child should be trained to be alone at some time each day. An adult, who has few resources within himself, but must always be in the company of others loses a lot in life. Mothers can give this training and reduce family squabbles by managing a bit of privacy for each child.

EPSOM SALTS AS FERTILIZER

Some place or other I read that Epsom salts, in a proportion of one tablespoon to a quart of water, was a good fertilizer for plants. I tried it on the petunias in the verandah box and it was quite successful. The plants grew more vigorously and there were double the amount of blossoms. It has the merits of being easy to get and easy to apply.

BAKED HAM WITH PEACHES

Rub a slice of ham about an inch thick with a mixture of 3 tablespoons of brown sugar and 1 teaspoon of mustard. Put in a baking dish and pour around it ½ cup water. Cover and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Then cover the ham with halved, peeled peaches. Stick a clove in each peach and sprinkle lightly with brown sugar and dot with butter. Return to the oven and cook for about 10 minutes, uncovered. The ham may be cut in portions for serving.

GINGER PEAR JAM

4 lbs. pears, 4 lbs. sugar, 2 lemons, 4 oz. candied ginger.

Pare, core, and cut the pears in pieces. Put the lemons and the ginger through the chopper. Mix the ingredients and boil until thick (for about an hour). Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

SPICED CRAB JELLY

1 pk. crabapples, 5½ cups white wine vinegar, 3 cups water, 1 oz. of whole cloves, 1 oz. cinnamon bark, 1 tablespoon ground allspice.

Wash, remove stems and quarter the crabapples. Add the water and vinegar and boil until soft. Tie the spices in a bag and boil with the crabapples. Drain through a jelly bag, measure the juice and take an equal quantity of sugar. Heat the sugar in a slow oven. Bring the juice to a boil and add the heated sugar. Boil about five minutes, or until it jells when tested.

GRAPE CONSERVE

1 basket blue grapes, 4 oranges, 1 lb. seeded raisins, 4 lbs sugar.

Separate skins of grapes from the pulp. Add a little water to the pulp and boil until soft. Put through colender to remove seeds. Squeeze the juice from the oranges and put the skins of three through the chopper. Mix skins, strained pulp, juice and chopped oranges, raisins and sugar and boil until thick, about one half-hour.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

OPIUM

Opium which is made from the gum of a species of poppy, has been in use for over three thousand years, the source of its origin not being definitely known.

Homer tells of its possessing the power of producing sleep. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, knew of it and lectured to his students on its uses and abuses.

Two thousand years ago, the Turks added alcohol to gum opium, and produced what is known today as laudanum, which they used as a cordial, indulging in it so extensively that laws were passed prohibiting its sale, because men abandoned their business to imbibe it and be lulled into pleasant dreams.

In the early days of both Rome and Greece, the drug addict walked the streets, as he does today, stimulated by opium which he chewed, and as crimes increased, these early nations passed laws forbidding its sale.

It is therefore obvious that in ancient days there were drug addicts as there are today and that they were national problems, as they are now.

Many authorities believe that the drug called Rosh in the Old Testament, was nothing more or less than opium. It is erroneously believed that the Chinese first grew this poppy and that it came from the Land of Morning Calm to the West.

On the contrary its original habitat was Asia Minor and at one time it was extensively cultivated in Turkey.

England forced the Chinese nation through the Opium Wars, to buy a specified amount annually of gum opium, so that the shareholders of the poppy plantations in India, producing this drug, would get their interest regularly, and it was through this that the Chinese became opium addicts.

Opium can be both a slave and a master. It has wrecked thousands of lives and it has brought peace and rest to millions of sufferers.

Undoubtedly that medical mountebank, part fool and part philosopher, Paracelsus, did much to popularize the use of this drug in Europe, which he invariably carried in the pommel of his saddle.

My professor of materia medica, at the medical college which I attended, always used to tell his students that he could practice medicine with six drugs, and the one which he always mentioned first was opium.

Early surgeons, in the days before anaesthetics were known always gave patients a dose of crude opium or laudanum before they operated on them, which deadened the pain.

Lord Nelson, who lost his arm in a naval engagement, was one of the well known historical characters who was thus treated and he remarked after the operation, that he was only slightly conscious of what the surgeon was doing.

Many literary men have been victims of this drug, using it to stimulate their imaginations, as a result of which some of the most exceptional literature of the world was produced.

Cast Monotony Out of Meals

It's almost automatic, isn't it, to think of dinner in terms of meat, potatoes and some other vegetable? The only thing is to decide which kind of meat and what other vegetable, so that meals become almost routine. Why not break the monotony of such meals and as a start, think of fish instead of meat? There is such a wide variety of fish available to the Canadian housewife at all times that it can be served frequently and not grow tiresome. And then there are so many ways of serving it, such delicious garnishes to accompany it that a whole new field of culinary exploration is opened up. As the next step in getting away from routine, serve a salad or cole slaw instead of a cooked vegetable. That is a particularly appropriate step at this time of the year. As for desserts, there is no reason to be in a rut there, but if you are, the recipe below will please you. With this suggested menu, say goodbye to boredom and start a new dinner table era. There is nothing elaborate or difficult to prepare,—it's just a change for the better.

Menu
Finnan Haddie Delmonico
Cucumber and Tomato Salad
Crimson Crystal Dessert
Sponge Cake Coffee or Tea

Finnan Haddie Delmonico

1½ pounds finnan haddie, 3 tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, dash of nutmeg, 3 egg yolks (slightly beaten), 6 slices toast, 1½ cups of light cream or top milk.

Wash finnan haddie, drain, cover with cold water, and cook slowly until tender. Drain; separate into large flakes to measure 1½ cups. Prepare sauce by melting butter in top of double boiler. Add flour and stir to a smooth paste. Add cream and seasoning and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour a little sauce over egg yolks, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler, place over hot water, and cook 1 minute longer. Add finnan haddie to sauce. Serve on toast; garnish with parsley. Serves 6.

Crimson Crystal Dessert

1 package strawberry jelly powder, 1½ cups warm water, ¼ cup maraschino cherry juice, 12 maraschino cherries, quartered.

Dissolve jelly powder in warm water. Add cherry juice. Turn into shallow pan. Chill until firm. Cut into cubes. Pile into sherbet glasses with cherries. Serves 6.

Early Marriages Recommended

By Frank Parker Stockbridge

Too many young people postpone marriage until the man is earning enough to give his bride the comforts to which she has been accustomed. I have always believed that any girl worth marrying would put up with whatever her husband could provide, and that the man who marries young stimulates his ambition thereby.

Some studies of the effects of the depression on marriage indicate that in hard times young folk are prone to put off marrying until times are better, with the result that many times the other fellow gets the girl. The best chance for happy married life comes to those who marry young enough to get a family under way while the parents are still youthful.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, advises his students to marry young. He says that the reason fewer European marriages fail than here is our tendency to wait until our incomes are larger.

The European system of providing a dowry for the bride, by her parents, might well be adopted in this country too. The happiest marriages I have ever known about have been between youths of twenty and girls of eighteen.

A "Premature" Ambulance

A premature ambulance for premature-born babies is described by Dr. G. P. Hamblin in the Summer edition of "Health." It was designed to overcome a problem met with by doctors at the Hospital for sick children in Toronto. Recent work there showed that a large percentage of prematurely-born babies, no matter how carefully wrapped were admitted with a dangerously low body temperature. "This work," says Dr. Hamblin, "has shown that a premature baby with a body temperature above 96 degrees has over 8 times the chance of survival of one whose temperature is below that figure."

The writer proceeds to explain the designing of the premature ambulance to transport the baby from home to hospital in an environment up to or close to normal. "This ambulance" he points out "is merely a portable incubator heated by hot water and can be carried by any motor car. When a baby is born prematurely, the attending physician telephones the hospital to prepare the ambulance. The baby's father or a friend of the family then drives to the hospital for it, brings it to the baby's birthplace, the baby is placed within the ambulance and so the premature infant reaches hospital with almost eight times the chance for survival of most babies who do not arrive by this method.

"From the moment of his admittance to hospital, constant supervision is maintained in regard to body temperature. Many intricate mechanical devices are now available for this purpose. Recent work on the subject of temperature and humidity control of the premature infant's environment would indicate that while the baby's body temperature must be maintained about 98 degrees, the air that he breathes should be between 65 and 70 degrees. This would already make obsolete the electric incubator where the entire baby is in an atmosphere of 80 to 90 degrees. Research is now in progress at the hospital for sick children, Toronto, on a new type of incubator which is similar in design to the now familiar "iron-lung" and which keeps the baby's body temperature constant at normal, while allowing him to breathe air at the optimum temperature and humidity."

According to Dr. Hamblin over 100 babies were carried off in 1937 through prematurity and in 1936 over the whole of Canada there were 15.7 deaths due to prematurity in every 1000 living births.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

A coming field for women is that of arbitration, according to Antonia Hatvany, Secretary of the American Arbitration Association. "A woman architect or a woman engineer or an expert in banking or in textiles—if she is a good one—comes to be acceptable as an arbitrator," she says, "on exactly the same footing as a man who is an authority in these fields."

Women working on industrial and commercial jobs in New York State received an annual wage of $676 as against $1,211 paid to men, according to figures given for 1937.

For $1.50 a week a native family can live well in the Fiji Islands, where everybody who wants a job can get one, and where there has been no depression and no relief. This is the picture drawn by Miss Margaret Cleary, who was born there of English and Irish parents. And another thing about these islands, age does not affect a woman's status.

Miss Cleary has been studying at the East Harlem Nursing Service. She is a graduate nurse with an R.N. and has had four years' training in Australia and New Zealand. She has a Rockefeller fellowship to study public health and nursing, and expects to go back to help the islanders achieve better health benefits.

Leisurely Breakfast...

the early morning may be the key to Great Britain's character?

Perhaps the key to getting up in the morning is hidden in the teapot. I read in a South African paper not long ago of an inventor who had linked an electric kettle to his alarm clock. It sounded ingenious. By an arrangement of switches the kettyle is at the boil when the alarm wakes him and three minutes after he gets out of bed his tea is ready.

That, of course, may be going too far, but there is no doubt that the world would be a much pleasanter place for mothers, wives, hired men, street-car conductors, office boys and stenographers if we all got up in time to live at home a little while in the early morning.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

"Differences of political views or of a religious form, or of nationality do not influence you here, where you meet as brother men; brothers in Scouting, brothers as sons of the one Father, all following the same ends and trying all we can to help to bring goodwill and God's peace into the world in place of selfish bickering and war."—Quotation.

HOOVER ASKS U.S. SCOUTS TO HELP CLEAN UP CORRUPT POLITICIANS

An appeal to the Boy Scouts of the United States to help clean up "the real public enemies, the corrupt politicians," who he said were responsible for the army of nearly 5,000,000 criminals in the country, was made by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, before a great gathering of Scouts at the New York World's Fair. "Every boy you teach to hate crime," he said, "is a victory for our side. Keep it clear in your minds that good politics is a great and beneficial thing, but that corrupt politics is a criminal thing. There should be nothing but scorn and disgrace for anyone who betrays this greatest of vocations."

TORONTO SCOUTS CARRY C.N.E. INVITATION TO NEW YORK MAYOR

On their way to the World's Fair a group of 24 Scouts of the 124th Toronto (Eaton Memorial Church) Troop bore a letter from Mayor Ralph Day to Mayor LaGuardia of New York, inviting the latter to attend the Canadian National Exhibition in September. Mayor Day was formerly a Boy Scout of the 21st Toronto Troop.

SASK. PREMIER SUGGESTS SUCCESS OF SCOUTS BE STUDIED BY OTHERS

"For rapid growth and ability to plan a program to hold the interest of its members the Boy Scout movement provides an example that might well be studied by other organizations. In fact, as leader of a political party I seriously believe that their methods would bear investigation, for the amazing growth of the Boy Scout movement has been a source of wonder to leaders of many other organizations." — Premier W. J. Patterson, of Saskatchewan.

Royal Canadian Pacific Engine at World's Fair

An impressive feature in the "Railroads on Parade" pageant at the New York World's Fair, Canadian Pacific Railway Locomotive 2850 is attracting marked attention. The Royal decorations it still carries recall the important part it played in the westward passage across Canada of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth and make it the outstanding engine on exhibit.

Locomotive 2850 impresses at four daily shows as a powerful, efficient piece of machinery. It is, above everything, the engine which hauled the royal train from Quebec City to Vancouver, a distance of more than 3,000 miles, the longest continuous run ever recorded by a passenger train.

At the end of that run, Locomotive 2850 worked its way back to Montreal in regular duty, completing practically 6,000 miles of continuous service. The Canadian Pacific Railway announced that the entire trip had passed without engine trouble of any kind; that the locomotive was still in perfect condition and could, if necessary, be turned right around and operated back to the Pacific Coast again. It is one of 60 engines of the same series capable of a similar performance.

Four times daily during August the cyclopean Canadian Pacific locomotive goes on display at New York; and four times a day spectators echo the words of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth when she inspected the locomotive during the tour: "Isn't it a lovely engine?"

Standing on the engine in this picture are the "Gay Lassies of Yesterday and Today," members of the cast of the pageant.

World Girdle of Cotton

Lancashire Could Make 80 Rings Round the Equator

Manchester—Lancashire's production of cotton cloth is now so extensive that it would stretch eight times the distance between the earth and the moon, according to the latest figures which have just been published. The total output of piece-goods made for sale during 1937 was 3,376,175,000 linear yards, the equivalent of slightly over 3,000,000,000 metres.

The figures are only now available because there is necessarily a time lag before the total production from all sources can be worked out. They are difficult to appreciate, but it may be stated that the yardage of the products of Lancashire looms for the year was sufficient to provide a belt of cloth approximately 40 inches in width which would extend 80 times round the world.

These figures refer to goods made by the cloth manufacturers for sale. In addition there is the yardage of cloth made on commission which would provide another belt, not quite so wide, but sufficient to encircle the earth once again.

The clearest idea of all, however, can be gained from the realization that the cotton cloth production of England is sufficient to provide every living soul on earth (according to 1931 estimates) with two yards each.

Dramatic Play at Carillon

Another open-air entertainment featuring historical and other scenes as well as character dancing, will be held at the Historical Museum of Argenteuil County, Carillon, in aid of its winter upkeep, on Saturday afternoon, September 9th, at 3 o'clock. An attractive program will be presented comprising among other items a short historical play given by a group from Como, Que., and produced by Phoebe Erskine MacKellar, who will also repeat, by request, her brilliant impersonation of the Mohawk chieftain's wife in Pauline Johnson's beautiful poem "Ojistoh." In addition, the popular one-act Comedy, "Her Money's Worth," will be presented by the Lakefield Players. Other details will be given in next week's Watchman.

Weather permitting, the entertainment will take place in the museum grounds in the open air; otherwise within the building.

Quebec Law Against Use of Trucks for Passengers

The Quebec Safety League traffic committee, following numerous complaints, has asked Major E. C. Girouard, Director of Provincial Highway Police, to instruct his officers to be more severe in connection with those who violate the by-law concerning transport of passengers by trucks.

This regulation is contained in paragraph 6, article 49, of the Motor Vehicle Act, which stipulates that a violation of the act is committed by whosoever, "being the owner of a commercial vehicle or of a delivery car, uses same or permits the use thereof for the transportation of persons for a pecuniary consideration, whatever may be the number of persons, or for the transportation without pecuniary consideration of more than ten pers[illegible] at one time, unless, in either case, such persons are members of the family or employees of the owner who are being transported to the place where they are working or who are returning therefrom."

Referring to the Louisville tragedy, president Alfred Leduc observed that too many trucks were encountered on the highway, overloaded with children, and that it would not be long before another catastrophe occurred in this province.
