GREAT BRITAIN AND CANADA FIGHT AGGRESSION

LACHUTE HIGH SCHOOL OFFICIALLY OPENED

GRADUATION CLASS MAKES HISTORY

The 1939-40 school year of the Lachute High officially commenced on Tuesday evening, September 5th, when the Lachute Auditorium was completely filled with interested parents, friends and pupils, when honors were extended to school prize winners.

Chairman of the School Board, Geo. Y. Deacon, directed the proceedings, and assembled on the platform were the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, Rev. Orsborn, Inspector King, Dr. Clunie, J. W. Gall, Wm. Jackson, Kilgour Wilson, Geo. Héon, M.P., Stewart Campbell, Chairman Dixon of Brownsburg School, Dr. J. H. Mason and Mrs. Geo. Leggett, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Morris, representing the Women's Institute.

The school band opened the meeting with "O Canada," followed by a musical number, and Bandmaster Wm. Ormston and the boys are to be congratulated on the splendid progress made. Mr. Ormston appealed for more boys to join the band, and judging by the interested hearers, there should be a response.

Chairman Deacon then called on Rev. Rosborough, Mr. King, Dr. Mason, Rev. Orsborn and Mr. Dixon to say a few words.

Mr. Rosborough expressed his pleasure at being able to attend, congratulated the proficient students, and advised them to study dutifully throughout the year.

Inspector King contrasted the old method of teaching with fear against the modern trend of co-operation, and asked for a full understanding between parents, pupils and teachers.

Dr. Mason, who was school board chairman a few years ago, said it was a privilege to speak before such a gathering. He congratulated the committee on improvements made, and stated his pleasure with the school band. He then mentioned the necessity of spiritual culture, and illustrated with a glimpse of his visit to Germany, where he saw young boys being trained for the militia, but neglected with the teaching of religion.

The Rev. Orsborn asked the pupils to realize their opportunity, and stated that education was the only means to overcome racial prejudices.

Chairman Dixon brought greetings from the Brownsburg School, and congratulated the Lachute High School Board and students.

The distribution of prizes followed, and two pleasing features were mentioned. Principal Hall stated that a record number of pupils graduated this year, and thereby making history. Then, for the first time, the County W.I. gave an entrance scholarship to the most proficient rural scholar, and Miss Joy McCullough of Kilmar School won the scholarship for entrance to Grade VIII. Mrs. Morris made the presentation.

After the presentation, Chairman Deacon asked Mr. Geo. Héon to speak. Mr. Héon expressed his affection for the Lachute High and congratulated the commission and pupils. He then gave the students a message, saying it was their privilege to attend such a splend'd school, being one of the best in Quebec, and gave the credit to the fine qualities of the principal, commission and teachers. He asked the students to put their best efforts in their study, and to prepare themselves to fulfil the important role as Canadian citizens.

Speaking to the audience at large, he said he had been requested to give some news on the world crisis..

He said that Canada was at war, and was standing by Britain, but reassured his listeners that there was no need of panic or fear. Every precaution is being taken by an efficient organization, and that at present, no request had come from the British Government for Canada to send troops. Mr. Héon stated that he was officially informed that the allied forces were adequate to repel Germany, and that Canada is requested to co-operate in supplying arms and credit. "The duty of Canadians is to attend to daily tasks," Mr. Héon said, "and to remember Earl Baldwin's words at Toronto, when he said, "He serves the Commonwealth best, who serves Canada first."

Mr. Deacon thanked Mr. Héon and the meeting was closed by the school band playing "Annie Laurie" and "God Save the King."

A complete prize list is found on page two.

VANKLEEK HILL FAIR TO BE FILMED

The Frank Carlson Productions of London, England, are producing a travelogue movie of the rural life in Canada, and have been shooting scenes for the past few months. Our neighboring Ontario town of Vankleek Hill is indeed fortunate in being selected for the filming of their Country Fair, which will be included in the complete travelogue of the "Country Life in Canada."

This movie-travelogue will be the second of a series, the first, made in 1936 with Government approval which has been most successful, dealt more exclusively with the larger cities and big Canadian industries. It was felt that a film depicting the country life of Canada would be incomplete without scenes of a Fall Fair.

The film will be made without cost to the town, and in return for the help received, it is promised that a full copy will be presented to the town free of all charge or obligation and will become the absolute property of the town.

To co-operate in Empire Defence

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"

Ottawa, Sept. 5 — The outbreak of war in Europe found Canada united in its determination to co-operate with Britain to the utmost in opposing the Nazi policy of aggression against weaker nations.

The Capital went to sleep on the evening of August 31st still believing that peace might be retrieved. Over in Europe the fateful drama which the world has been watching with fascinating dread reached zero hour while most Canadians were asleep.

Once Germany took the irrevocable step, Canada worked fast. Premier King was up all night, reading and listening to the reports of the international descent into the abyss of war. At 7.30 a.m. he was at his office in the East Block. At 9 a.m. his colleagues arrived for their emergency meeting. At ten minutes after nine Mr. King came out and gave waiting pressmen news that a proclamation was being issued summoning Parliament to meet on September 7th.

MOMENTOUS CONFERENCE

Cabinet council continued to meet. At one o'clock that day members of the press were again summoned for a momentous announcement. The writer, who was among the thirty newspaper correspondents gathered in the Prime Minister's office, will never forget the brief, subdued meeting, by far the most eventful of the scores of similar conferences in the past with Premier Mackenzie King and his predecessor, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett.

Mr. King was grave, his face lined, his lips trembling a bit, but his voice firm as he read to us from the announcement it had been decided to give out.

The answer was no surprise, but it was epochal, just the same. He did not say "Canada is at war." Nor did he say, "Parliament will decide." But he made it unmistakably clear that Cabinet Council had weighed the consequences and had decided that whatever Britain undertook to do in Europe, she would find Canada wholeheartedly by her side. This was the recommendation which the Government will lay before Parliament this week; no one doubts what the nature of Parliament's answer will be.

Mr. King was obviously anxious that the message of the Government's decision should be flashed around the world at once. He said, as he ended the reading of the notice, that this was the message, he had no doubt, that Canada was waiting to hear . . . and he added, in a voice barely audible . . what the world was waiting to hear.

Premier Mackenzie King is a man of peace, a conciliator, a Christian. Only God knows what it is costing him to be the head of a state in a time like this when the sword is the appropriate weapon. But now that the maelstrom has swirled Canada into the orbit of world war, he will lead the country with all courage and devotion.

EFFECT ON CHRISTIAN UNITY

In the past there has been much speculation as to the effect upon Canadian unity of another crisis like that of 1914. Some persons have openly predicted Canada would split. That the isolationists would stand out. That one great race would refuse to co-operate. There was no sign of that at Ottawa in the opening days of the grave period now upon us.

The issue is even clearer than it was in 1914 to the vast masses of people on this side of the Atlantic. The negotiations leading up to conflict have been followed almost hourly by persons in the most far-reaching parts of the country. The habitant of French-Canada has been kept acquainted with developments. He sees that an era of unopposed Nazi conquest would soon draw Canada within its orbit.

The anti-Christian nature of Nazi philosophy is another potent factor. The agreement with Soviet Russia, while it may have helped Hitler immensely with his tactical military problem, has cost him heavily in moral opinion in a good deal of the world. This is especially true in Catholic portions of the Dominion of Canada.

The Government here has no illusions about a cheap or easy victory. They prepare for a long and fearful conflict. But they are confident that might will be opposed by might, and that the democracies will survive any test to which they may be subjected. Participation on the side of France and Britain will be wholeheartedly and persistent. So the signs indicate.

MORAL RE-ARMAMENT THE WAY TO PERMANENT PEACE

AN APPEAL FOR WORLD UNDERSTANDING

On August 29th last, Dr. Frank Buchman gave the following message over a world broadcast from San Francisco, California. During the week it has been given prominence in the London Times and many other leading British newspapers. The address is published in full by citizens of Lachute who are convinced that the principles which it enunciates are everlasting. The text of Dr. Buchman's address is as follows:

"I speak on behalf of those millions, known and unknown, in every country who have found in Moral Re-Armament a common life transcending all the barriers that separate man from man, and nation from nation, and who are convinced that Moral Re-Armament is the only permanent cure for crisis.

"There is an answer to crisis and it must be made known. Crisis shows our failure. Before crisis ends in catastrophe, have we the courage to face its real cause? We, ourselves, are the cause. It is the way every nation and everyone of us have been living that has brought us where we are.

"Every nation and every individual is responsible for the existing situation.

"The failure lies not with one nation, but with all. We are all guilty. For in every nation those forces are at work which create bitterness, disunity, and destruction. Nations, like individuals, have turned a blind eye to their own faults while pointing the finger at each other. Selfish men and selfish women make front line trenches necessary. A wave of unselfishness sweeping through our nation and every other nation would be the permanent answer to war.

"We have all wanted peace. We have sought it in pacts, in leagues, in alliances, in changes of systems, in economic and disarmament conferences, and we have sought in vain. We have wanted peace, but we have never yet paid the price for peace — the price of facing with God where we and our nation have been wrong, and how we and our nation, as God directs, can put wrong right.

"A new spirit comes when we make an honest apology for our own mistakes instead of spot-lighting the mistakes of the other nations. There is a common meeting-ground in the fact that we all need to change — nations as well as men. In a crisis of this kind, if leaders change, they can change their people; if people change, they can change their leaders.

"The crisis is moral and can only be met in the spirit of Moral Re-Armament — the spirit of honesty, justice and love. Moral Re-Armament means the power to change people — your enemies as well as your friends, the other nation as well as your own. We must be prepared for unexpected paradoxes.

"Every man is responsible for his nation. Nations will make honest apologies and rectify past mistakes when the peoples of those nations demand that kind of national policy.

"Each man has an immediate part to play. He can accept for himself a change of heart. He can decide to listen to God daily. He can start to build a hate-free, fear-free, greed-free world. There is enough in the world for every nation's need, but not enough for every nation's greed.

"The sacrifice necessary for lasting peace is nothing compared with the useless sacrifice of war.

"There is still time for a selfish, fear-driven world to listen to the Living God. The forgotten factor in diplomacy is that God has an inspired plan for peace, and the means to carry it out through men and women who are willing to obey.

"Above every other loyalty is loyalty to God. In obedience to the God of all peoples, every nation will find its true destiny. This is the truest patriotism. It requires the highest courage. It gives the greatest strength.

"A nation's surest defense is the love and gratitude of her neighbors. The people of the nations will support to the utmost those statesmen who shall seek in this spirit to avert catastrophe and build that peace without bitterness which all men desire. Will the statesmen and leaders of every nation unite in this program which puts right the past and reconstructs the future?

"The millions who already know these great truths must pass them on

BROWNSBURG CYCLIST IN LONG GRIND

EXPECT ANOTHER CONTEST, MONTREAL TO LACHUTE

Bob Taylor, Brownsburg cyclist, is maintaining his reputation among the best cycle-racers in Montreal and elsewhere, having recently entered his second long grind of this season, in Quebec-Montreal, placing fourth in very good time, 7 hours, 52 minutes, 2-5 seconds. The race took place Sunday, Aug. 27th. Between the first five arrivals there was only a matter of inches, the winner being St. Edmond, Quebec; 2nd, G. Erickson, Wolf Club, Verdun; 3rd, D. Perou, Lachine; 4th, B. Taylor, Wolf Club; 5th, G. Launay, Quebec.

On August 20th, Bob Taylor rode a trial race from Three Rivers and return to Montreal, 200 miles, and won by three miles of a margin, as a result of which he is picked for the Dominion Championship contest on Sept. 10th.

Mr. R. Taylor, Sr., expects shortly to arrange another race from Montreal to Lachute, similar to the contest held last year. The previous race proved a successful venture, for which the promoter gives much credit to the support he received from local merchants and citizens.

HAMPSTEAD WEDDING OF LOCAL INTEREST

BRIDE FORMERLY OF LACHUTE

Crawford-Boyd

The marriage of Edith Mary Lavina, daughter of the late John Boyd, of Lachute, and of Mrs. Boyd, of Montreal, to Mr. James Jackson, of Montreal, son of Mrs. John Barron and the late James Thomas Crawford, of Toronto, took place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, in St. Matthew's Church, Hampstead. Rev. G. E. Trueman officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ernest J. Boyd, wore a frock of dragon-fly blue crepe, with a matching hat and a corsage bouquet of white orchids and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Doris Boyd, who was her sister's only attendant, wore a brown frock with a hat of the same color and a corsage bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mr. Douglas West was best man for Mr. Crawford.

Mrs. Boyd, the bride's mother, was in an ensemble of navy blue crepe Romaine with a matching hat and accessories, and wore a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Barron, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of sapphire blue crepe with a wine hat and accessories and a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's mother, and later Mr. and Mrs. Crawford left on a motor trip to Spring Falls, N.J.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO GIVE DRAMATIC PLAYS

ON THE OTTAWA BANKS

As announced in last week's Watchman, a second open-air dramatic entertainment in aid of the Historical Museum of Argenteuil County will be held on Saturday afternoon, September 9th next, at 3.00 p.m. The program, which will again bear upon the Indian and early French-Canadian periods of our history, promises to be as interesting and even more spectacular than that given in the grounds of the museum on August 19th last, and a large attendance of members and friends of the museum is expected. The proceedings will be opened by a short address on "The Bon Entente," delivered both in French and English by Mme. Torans, of Ottawa, followed by a habitant reminiscence of three Royal visits to Canada by Miss Anne Dewar. Mrs. MacKellar's vivid impersonation of the Mohawk chieftain's wife in Pauline Johnson's poem, "Ojistoh" (repeated by request), comes next and will serve as an introduction to the central feature of this part of the program, which consists of a short historical play, reproducing with the help of canoe and motor launch, certain scenes taking place on the grassy banks of the Ottawa, presented by a Como dramatic group and produced by Phoebe Erskine MacKellar. The tragic note struck in this episode will be relieved by the next item, a one-

PRESIDENTIAL PIN GIVEN LION W. LeCRAS

Members of the Lachute Lions Club had an interesting session at their regular meeting held in Desjardins Hotel on Thursday evening when Lion LeCras was presented with a jewelled pin for services rendered by him during his term of office as president. The presentation was made by President Lion P. Roy, who afterwards called upon Lion LeCras to report on the International Convention held in Pittsburg recently. Graphically describing the high lights of the trip, Lion LeCras told the members of the inspiration received in meeting the 12,000 brethren who had gathered in the interests of their varied clubs to compare activities of their social work.

Lachute Club was to be host in St. Andrews East this month to a golf tournament among the Lion clubs of the district, but owing to the gravity of war conditions the local club has called it off and are individually devoting the money which it would cost to the Red Cross Society.

Silence is the wise man's armor for self-defence.

SKELETON UNCOVERED BY WORKMEN

While digging a culvert on Wednesday morning close to the Rouge River Bridge, on the Montreal-Hull highway, human bones were unearthed about four feet below the surface. An investigation by coroner Dr. Jas. H. Mason, showed the remains to be probably 100 years old, and being without identity, were re-interred. Just how a burial would have been made here a possible century ago, must be left to the reader's imagination. Probably there was a cemetery at this spot, but more likely it was the humble home of one who dwelt along the bank of the Ottawa River.

Lionism is a peaceful fighter because by persuasion, without petulance, it struggles for success in good works, and for the correction of bad habits, both public and individual.

LACHUTE RED CROSS SOCIETY

The Lachute Red Cross have received many inquiries about their plans and have written to Provincial Headquarters for instructions. In the meantime, anyone wishing to join may give their fee of One Dollar to one of the Officers. Watch for further notices of meetings.

CARS CRASH NEAR PERLEY BRIDGE

At the intersection of the two roads this side of the Perley Bridge, two cars ran into each other, both being turned upside-down and badly damaged, one beyond repair. The accident occurred at 12.45 p.m. on Sunday when Ulderic Paquette, in a 1936 Ford with Ontario license and headed for Montreal was struck by a 1929 model Essex, driven by Ulderic Leveillé, who was headed east on the river road. Damage to the Ontario car was placed at $125, while the Essex was smashed beyond repair. Both wrecks were removed to Poulin's Garage at Grenville.

Traffic Officer Leger was called to the scene immediately.

Fortunately no very serious injuries were received by the several passengers with the exception of 16-year-old Eugene Paquette, who sustained a dislocated shoulder. Medical treatment was given at the Hawkesbury Hospital.

Getting and spending at high pressure is barbarous and unChristian.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS AGES TOTAL 470 YEARS

Simon Whelehan, 80, of Cushing, drove his car on August 28th to Concord, N.H., a distance of 325 miles, in nine hours, to take part in a reunion of brothers and sisters whose combined ages total 470 years. In the group were six whose ages range from 70 to 84 years.

Hostesses were Mrs. Elizabeth Hart, 63 High Street, and Mr. E. A. Saltmarsh, 105 School Street. Others present were Edward and Margaret Whelehan, Cushing, and Mrs. Annie Funcheon, of St. Philippe, who all returned after the celebration.

Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness, and its power of endurance. The cheerful man will do more in the same time, will do it better, will persevere in it longer, than the sad or sullen. — Carlyle

FATAL BEAUTY ON THE ROAD

(The Printed Word)

It is a waste of time to argue whether women car drivers are worse than men, for the average male driver is so deplorable that he cannot sensibly be taken as a basis of comparison. The only matter worth discussing in this connection is that good-looking drivers are terrible. This proposition cannot be disputed with success. It remains only to consider why good-looking women drivers are so bad.

The reason is that they are accustomed to having their own way. They go first through doorways, so they naturally expect to go first through intersections. Their less beautiful sisters have learned through sad experience to get along the best way they can while afoot, and therefore they are less domineering when behind the wheel of a motor car.

The ironic joke on beautiful women (and incidentally on those unfortunates whom they run down) is that the modern slanting windshield prevents other motorists and pedestrians from seeing inside the car and realizing that the driver is a beautiful woman. Because they cannot see her clearly, they treat her as though she were a normal driver of a motor car. They do not always assume that she will navigate her vehicle along the middle of the road, over the white strip. They rather expect that she will pause at stop streets. They do not provide against the contingency that she will be talking with the other occupants of her car in animated and irresponsible inattention to the details of avoiding destruction.

Don't blame a witness for having no memory when testifying before 12 men who have no opinion.

"I know a BARGAIN when I see ONE!"

Come to think of it, he's right. For where will you find anything comparable in value—so much—for so very little?

Every minute, day or night, the telephone is ready to serve your social, business or emergency needs. You may have grown accustomed to this service—you may think nothing of talking across continents and oceans!

But when you do think it over, you realize that the modern telephone represents the greatest value in terms of service that money can buy!

Telephone service is widely used because it is courteous, efficient, yet surprisingly inexpensive. Nothing else yields so much for what it costs!

MILITARY EXPERTS MODERNIZE FIGHTING FORCES

While diplomats and ministers held the spotlight in world affairs today, the average man is apt to forget and to overlook some of the busiest, hard-working men of the whole panorama. They are the senior officers of the military forces. In Great Britain these officers have had a particularly difficult job in view of the terrific speed at which they were compelled to work. Navy, air force, army and all auxiliary forces had to be enlarged, equipped and turned to the methods of most modern, mechanized warfare. Great tribute is due to the chiefs and their subordinates for the speed and efficiency with which their tasks have been executed during the past hectic period. Modernization has been carried to extremes, and indicates that the British army will be more than a match for the foes

QUEBEC CITY CONVENTION OF CANADIAN GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION INDEFINITELY POSTPONED

The decision of the executive committee of the Canadian Good Roads Association to cancel their twenty-fifth Annual Convention scheduled for Quebec on the 12th to 14th of this month will, we feel sure, meet with general approbation.

Geo. A. McNamee, energetic secretary of the organization, states that inasmuch as the services of many of the members and delegates, holding high administrative offices in various parts of the country, (including prominent lecturers, engineers and members) will be required in other fields of activity at this time, all are agreed that the best interests of the country and Empire will be served by following the course adopted.

The time and energy so far spent toward the convention will not be lost as many of the varied addresses, lectures, etc., will be passed along for publication among the papers and magazines of the day.

LET US FIGHT TO WIN . . . BUT NOT HATE

Great Britain and Canada is at war. We in Canada hardly realize the situation at the present time, although thousands of our men have already exchanged their Stetsons for steel-helmets, and donned khaki.

This isn't a war to end wars . . . we have learned our lesson. When peace eventually comes, we will prepare for any other eventuality.

We have to fight . . . and fight hard to win. But let us not hate. None realize better than the Anglo-French Governments that war is not wanted by the German people as a whole. They are children of misfortune and of hardship, as series of national catastrophies befel them after the Great War. We know they suffered . . . we know they were demoralized . . . and we know that they needed a leader.

Hitler came, and he achieved miraculous success in a short time, but with it, he became infallible . . . and was called "God." The movement rushed on in uncontrollable fury, and the German people were carried away by the tidal-wave of a mad-man.

We will fight them and beat them . . . but let us not hate.

CANADIAN BROADCASTING AND THE WAR

The C.B.C. has a great responsibility to the Canadian public in times of war. For weeks now, the world has been living in a state of nervous tension and we were keyed up to expect the worst. Everywhere people were asking, "Have you heard the news ?" and on every possible occasion they sat with their ears glued to the loud speaker. No matter what program was on, whether a children's story, philharmonic orchestra or drama, a sudden break came. then an over enthusiastic voice would shout, "Flash . . . . . it is reliably reported that so and so and so," etc.

This is all very well for keeping up with news . . . whether it is true or not, but there is a limit, and common sense must be used. As far as Canada is concerned, this responsibility is the C.B.C.'s. They can control these news flashes to three regular times a day, and then people will be able to concentrate on their daily routine instead of living in a state of nerves from one minute to the next.

WHERE QUEBEC WILL STAND

If Anti-Christ ever appeared in human form on the rapidly reddening horizon of war, surely this sinister figure must be visible now when the Nazi prosecutors of the Christian churches in Germany and the godless rulers of once Holy Russia have joined blood-stained hands across a deep gulf, once filled with the most violent mutual recriminations, for the single purpose of plundering or partitioning a Catholic Christian country like Poland and driving out of Eastern Europe every last shred of the essentially Christian influence of Great Britain. In such a line-up, there can be no question at all about where Quebec will stand.

LAWNS WILL BE GREEN AGAIN

Don't worry because your lawn was burned up by drought. Prof. J. S. Owens of the University of Connecticut says it will recover if it has a good turf of bluegrass and bent grass. Just keep the mower adjusted two inches above the ground, let the clippings lie where they fall, and add a bit of high nitrogen fertilizer now and then, he advises.

Lawns are like human hopes, alternately flourishing and withering. If they have the right underlying foundation and are cultured and nourished properly, lawns will live. Human hopes, likewise, must be grounded in honest, generous, sincere, and noble impulses to attain a sure basis of ultimate fulfillment. Then, despite droughts of despotism, physical or mental, they cannot fail of full fruition when watered by faith and fed by spirituality.

BRITAIN SENDS A PHYSICAL EDUCATION TEAM TO STOCKHOLM

This picture shows the Ling Physical Education Assoc ation Team which represented Great Britain at the Lingiad in Stockholm going through a rehearsal prior to the Lingiad.

HOLLYWOOD LIFE

Movie fans from all over the world flock to Hollywood in the tourist season, hoping to get at least a glimpse, if not an autograph, of one or more movie stars. Much bunk has been written about the glamorous life of actors and actresses, and the fabulous salaries young men and women get for apparently doing nothing but play around. As a matter of fact, there are few people who work harder for their money than the movie folk. When a picture is being made, the glamour girls have to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning to start their hair-do' and make-up for the day's work, which begins in the studio at 8. They work until 5 or 6 o'clock on the set, and get to bed by 8 or 9. While a picture is in work they have no time for play.

Between pictures the movie actors and actresses make up for lost time by having as gay a time as they know how. Those are short, brief intervals for the successful ones. The discipline and demands of the studios do not permit of any sort of frivolous behavior while they are working on a picture.

Not only tourists but residents are crazy about the movies. I went to a preview at the celebrated Chinese Theater in Hollywood and the streets were jammed for blocks with crowds watching for a glimpse of the stars as they arrived. The picture was "Stanley and Livingstone," and when it comes to your theater don't miss it. It is one of the most stirring pictures I have ever seen.

DIESEL . . . . . future

For a good many years I have been making occasional predictions in this column of greater use of the Diesel type engine for purposes for which gasoline engines are generally used. For years heavy power plants have been using Diesels, but the problem of buiding them for use in places where weight has to be considered is still not completely solved.

One of the big automobile makers, however, has come out with a Diesel-engined truck, and I am sure the rest will follow suit. A motorcar maker produced a light-weight Diesel some years ago, which was put in an airplane and flew the plane from Detroit to Washington, but it was still too heavy for high-speed flying.

We are going to come, some day, to Diesel engines for flying and for everything else we use power for. They are simpler. than gas engines, need no electric sparks, and run on heavy oil which is not inflammable and which gives much more power to the gallon than gasoline does, besides costing very much less. Young men of a mechanical turn of mind ought to begin to learn all about Diesel engines. They will have plenty of chance to use their knowledge.

EDUCATION . . . . Danes

The more I talk with young men and young women who are just getting through high school or college, the more I pity the victims of the modern system of education.

For we have set up a scheme of keeping children in school until they are too old to learn anything fundamentally new about the ways of the world and how things are done. The education they get is given them by professional educators, who do not know any trade or busines but teaching, and most of what the students get out of school or college tends to make teachers of them, in turn.

There are too many school teachers trying to run public affairs, giving advice based on theories of business and government in which they have no practical experience.

The best-governed and best--educated nation in the world is Denmark. There children start to learn a trade at 14, but they are taught in school to read the best literature and to think. The result is that every Dane is educated, in the real sense of understanding how people act and think and how the work of the world is done. Danes buy and read more books than any other people.

CHILDREN . . . . tolerance

As I grow older I am more strongly convinced that the old preach too much to the young. Most of us oldsters are so sure that we know all about the way of life and how to live it that we think we owe it to our children to lecture them about things which do not seem wrong to the childish mind.

Nothing is more pitiful to me, than to see a child or a class of children wriggling impatiently while a teacher or a parent tries to impress them with truths which everyone should know but for which most children are not ready until they are in their middle 'teens or older.

Children learn more from chance remarks dropped by their elders than they do from all the lectures and sermons they ever hear.

Nothing gives youngsters such a wrong slant on life as to hear their parents constantly criticizing neighbors, acquaintances and public men. One who hears no good spoken of anyone in his childhood is likely to grow up believing there is no good in anybody.

I am thankful that I was reared in a home where no careless criticisms of unfair judgments of others were ever heard, a tolerant home.

INTOLERANCE . . . growth

The wide-spread anti-Jewish feeling is a new thing since my boyhood. I had Jewish boys and girls as schoolmates, and I cannot remember that any of them were ever regarded as being different from us Christian youngsters.

My father was a Christian minister. His truest friend in every sense of the word was a Jewish merchant. I remember my father saying once that this old-clothes dealer was the most honorable man he had ever known. I think that had something to do with keeping me from sharing the ridicule of Jews which I heard later in life.

That tolerance of my father for the beliefs, customs and points of view of everybody else, whether he shared it or not, has made me all my life impatient with people who go about proclaiming their personal superiority to others who happen to belong to a different race or profess a different religion. It also makes me certain that the greatest danger to the world is the teaching of racial superiority as a national doctrine.

CHARACTER . . . superiority

After all's said and done, nothing counts in this life but personal character. No race and no religion has a monopoly on character.

I sat at a dinner not long ago at which the host was a Chinese, as were three of the other guests. There was an Irishman, an Italian and a Dane at the table, besides my own American-English self.

The talk ran, naturally, on the Japanese invasion of China. Several of us expressed a poor opinion of the Japanese character. Then my Chinese host spoke.

"We of China do not judge a man by his race but by his personal character," he said. "The great K'ung Fu-tse, whom you call Confucius, taught us that there are but two kinds of people, the superior men and the inferior men, and that we should try to be superior men. The superior man is the man of character, whether he is Japanese, Chinese or European. There are superior and inferior men everywhere. Some day the superior men of Japan will regain control of their country and we shall have no more war."

There was a lesson for all of us.

FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

LAKEFIELD

Miss Mary Baugh, B.A., and Mr. John Baugh have resumed their teaching at North Hatley and Campbell's Bay, Que., respectively.

Lakefield Protestant School was opened on Tuesday morning, with Miss Beatrice Baugh, B.A., in charge. The opening address was given by H. G. Baugh.

On Sunday last at the Anglican Churches in Lakefield, Dunany, Shrewsbury and Louisa, stirring addresses were given by Rev. C. W. P. Baugh and his assistant, H. G. Baugh. They spoke of the satisfaction citizens should have in the value and nobility of the cause which they had undertaken in the present war. While they did not lay the blame directly upon the German people for their actions, they stated that the German people were not in a position to revolt against Chancellor Hitler for his far-flung ambitions.

Special prayers were offered for the outcome of the war, and hymns chosen for the day were particularly suited for the world situation.

The national anthem was sung by all with much fervor at the services.

New Glasgow, Que.—For more than two years the vestry and church wardens of St. John's Church, New Glasgow, have been engaged in the work of beautifying and improving the cemetery of their ancient church. More than 100 years have passed since the first of the hardy pioneers whose remains are lying in the cemetery adjacent to the church, laid the foundations of the first sacred edifice to occupy this site.

Many families of their descendants, now removed to other parts, have generously contributed to this object. About $500 has already been spent on the work, but much remains still to be done.

The correspondence and other work connected with the cemetery have revived, in the minds of the present congregation, the memory and the merits of those who have gone before, and it is now thought appropriate to celebrate their memory and the memory of their brethren of the other Protestant churches who founded New Glasgow, Kilkenny and Paisley by their united endeavors.

For this purpose, therefore, on Sunday, Sept. 10th, at 2 p.m., standard time, a solemn memorial service will be held in St. John's Church (Wesleyville), New Glasgow, to which all the English speaking peoples here, in surrounding parishes, and wherever they may be, are cordially invited.

The surrounding clergy have been invited to attend, and it is expected that the Rev. Rural Dean Booy, of St. Andrews East, will be the preacher.

The Ven. Archdeacon D'Arcy Clayton, of Perth, Ont., whose father was for so many years incumbent of the parish, has also been invited to be present and assist in the service.

It is hoped that the attendance at this commemoration will be very large and that it may awaken in many hearts a memory of what we owe to the zeal, devotion and industry of those who laid such firm foundations to the educational and religious institutions of our country.

WED AT POINTE FORTUNE

Hawksbury, Aug. 31. — The marriage took place in Pointe Fortune United Church of Miss Marjorie Isabel Wyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wyman, of Chute a Blondeau, Ont., to James Richard Pattee, of Hawkesbury. Rev. J. A. Mowatt officiated with Miss Frances Follis, of Pembroke, Ont., as organist and Mrs. Hanson Bradford, of Chute a Blondeau, Ont., as soloist. For the occasion the church was decorated with gladioli and ferns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in white with long full skirt and short jacket. She wore a shoulder length veil and carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses. Attending the bride were Mrs. John Douglas, of St. Philippe, Que., as matron of honor, and Miss Elmina Wyman, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid. John Douglas, of St. Philippe, acted as best man, and the ushers were Keith and Allister Wyman, brothers of the bride, and Pattee Kirby, of Hawkesbury.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Pattee left on a short motor trip to western Ontario. They will reside in Hawkesbury.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN

PRESENTATION TO MRS. ARDILL

The Brownsburg Women's Institute entertained in honor of Mrs. Harry Ardill at the home of Mrs. Wyman McGibbon on Friday last, Sept. 1st. Following the tea, a presentation of a crystal rose bowl was made by Vice-Pres. Mrs. Lemuel Wilson in the absence of Mrs. N. E. Smillie, the president, who was unavoidably detained from being present. Mrs. Ardill expressed her appreciation at the beautiful gift, a token of friendships formed through the years and regretted leaving the associations and work of community interest.

GRENVILLE NORTH

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stewart were Mr. S. Wilman, Calumet; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Paige, Grenville; Miss Jennie Bates, of Avoca; Mrs. Cooke, of Flint, Mich.; also friends from Timmins, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart have returned from Ottawa to their home here and have had as their guests Mrs. Alex. Hamley and her granddaughter, Miss Joyce Hamley. Mrs. Hamley before her marriage was Miss Millissa Stewart, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stewart. She was born and educated here, and after her marriage removed to Duluth, Minn., where she has lived ever since, Mr. Hamley having died a few years ago. Mrs. Hamley also visited with her sister, Mrs. E. Wilman, at Calumet.

ALOUETTE SKI CLUB

The annual meeting of the Alouette Ski Club of Morin Heights, will be held in deference to its majority membership, in Montreal, on Tuesday evening next at 6.30 o'clock.

The place of meeting, through the kindness of one of the members, will be at 1241 Mountain Street. A meal will be served at the nominal cost of 50 cents inclusive of tax.

This is an important meeting, as the constitutions of the club will be read and adopted. Also the executive for the coming year will be elected and a programme of activities outlined.

Let us not feel that the great crisis into which we have plunged is an excuse for lagging interest in projects such as the activities of our Ski Club. Many members may have to drop out to serve in the army, but it is our duty to encourage those who remain at home to fit themselves in body and mind for the tasks which a conflict such as the one on which we are embarked, will demand. Nerves of steel, bodies trained to endure hardships and clear, keen brains will be much needed before we can hope for victory.

The Alouette Ski Club can play its part in building up these requisites. Your support is needed now, even more than ever and you will be very welcome at the meeting.

As the membership list does not seem to be quite complete, we will appreciate hearing from any senior or charter member who has not received a copy of the constitution or if he should know of a friend who is a member and has been missed in this distribution.

Communications to J. C. Binns, 4903 Colbrooke Ave., N.D.G. Montreal, will receive prompt attention.

All members, save juniors, have the right to vote. This should not exclude them however from joining us at our meeting.

Friends of members who are interested in the work of the Club will be welcome as guests at this meeting.

Please let us know as soon as possible whether or not you will attend.

MORALITY AT STE. AGATHE

A prominent local woman, the mother of four children, was arrested in Ste. Agathe last Sunday because her slacks were considered indecent by the local constabulary. She was hailed to the Town Hall, but released after being given the once over by the guardians of the town's morals. The lady was clothed, we are told, in full length slacks — a costume that would not have attracted passing notice in Notre Dame de Grace — and had merely stepped out of her car for a moment to purchase a film. No, the lady is not Jewish; and the affair consequently had nothing to do with the current anti-semitic feelings of a section of the populace of the mountain resort. It is just another example of carrying well-meaning moral endeavor so far as to become ludicrous. What would the town's police officers do if some of the women tourists one sees in Montreal decided to stay a while at Ste. Agathe ?

ST. JEROME TRAFFIC UP

Highway Crowded With Vacationists Hurrying Home

Exceptionally heavy traffic during the Labor Day week-end through St. Jerome was noted, but it was remarked that there was heavier traffic headed towards Montreal than towards the mountains. A large number of cars bearing United States licenses were travelling south and it is believed that the start of war in Europe was influencing a great number of tourists who were in the district to hurry home.

Between eight o'clock in the morning on Friday and four o'clock in the afternoon, city officials noted that there were 32 cars a minute passing in one direction or another. The south-bound traffic was particularly heavy between three o'clock and seven o'clock.

"Who did that to you face ?"

"Rosemary did it."

"Why did she do it ?"

"Because I smacked her."

"But you mustn't smack little girls."

"Well, all the other boys were fighting, and there wasn't one left for me, so I had to fight Rosemary."

"I believe in remaining mediocre."

ON ENGLAND'S SIDE

Declaring "I want to be the first American to enlist against the Nazis" Jack Fleming, Jr., 29, appeared at the British Consulate in Philadelphia in an attempt to enlist as pilot in the British Royal Air Force. He is twice married, and the disinherited son of multi-millionaire John J. Fleming.

BROWNSBURG

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tomalty and family spent Sunday visiting in Hill Head.

Miss F. McOuat spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. McOuat.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Ardill and family left on Monday for their new home in Vaudreuil.

Mrs. John McOuat, of Montreal, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Erskine McOuat.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Prosser and family spent the week-end with relatives in Longueuil.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Robbins, of Toronto, and Mrs. Z. L. Campbell visited relatives here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Curran, of Boston, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Creswell last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. McKiddie, of Ottawa, and Miss Grace McKiddie, of Toronto, were recent guests of relatives here.

Mrs. Norval Blair left on Thursday last for her home in Saskatoon, Sask., after spending a few weeks here; she was accompanied to Perth, Ont., by Mrs. G. Creswell and son, Robert, also Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Curran.

Rev. J. R. Simpson began a series of sermons on Sunday evening last, the first being "The Altar of New Beginnings." On Sept. 10th (evening), his subject will be "The Altar of Consecration." A welcome is extended to all, to attend these services.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Substance" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, Sept. 10th.

The golden text is from John 6:27, "Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." (Hebrews 11:3).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay . . . That matter is substantial or has life and sensation, is one of the false beliefs of mortals, and exists only in a supposititious mortal consciousness. Hence, as we approach Spirit and Truth, we lose the consciousness of matter." (Pages 468 and 278).

to the millions more. If those people who are listening now will ask those millions who are already living Moral Re-Armament how to begin, it will help change the world quickly. A hundred million listening to God will form a world opinion that will make war unnecessary. On account of the crisis we are now speaking to the world instead of waiting until December 1, 2, and 3, when there will be a hundred million people listening.

"We need nation-wide thinking action. We have war because we cannot make peace. We can gain by peaceful means far more salutary ends than we could otherwise obtain. We must point to the new era, the new type of personality, the new home, the new industry, the new type of government that, by the force of its constructive program, will outlaw war and industrial unrest. During these days we must develop the framers of the just peace — the peace that will be permanent. If this thinking had dominated Versailles, we would not now be again in the throes of crisis, and twenty years of tragedy would have been averted.

"The menace of war makes us rethink all our values. Personal and national surrender to God is a world necessity. Civilization is at stake.

"The future lies with the men and nations who listen to God and obey."

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago

September, 1889

The new sign of Mr. J. S. Riddell is a credit to his store-front and leaves no doubt who keeps shop beneath, not what his taste and nationality are. The thistle and the braw both have a place.

Although we have a by-law prohibiting driving at a speed faster than eight miles an hour, some of our racing citizens persist in coursing through town at a break-neck speed. It would seem that the brutes who sat with feet in the stirrups had about as clear a conception of the law and safety as the dumb animals on which they sat.

A barn in Lakefield belonging to Mr. T. Burns, carter, was burned to the ground last week.

Misses Bettie, Ellen and Katie Clunie are in Lachute a short time previous to their departure for Three Rivers.

Mr. Cyprien Lafleur, father of Alfred Lafleur of Lachute Hotel, died at Ste. Adele. He was an old resident of Lachute, and uncle to Mr. J. St. Jacques, butcher.

On Monday night Mrs. T. Jackson and Mrs. St. Quentin, on their way home from prayer meeting in the Baptist Church, lost their way. The night being extremely dark, in the downpour of rain they walked into the river opposite the Campbell sawmill. Their outcries attracted the attention of passers-by and they were assisted to safety . . . The town is either too poor or too mean to erect a few oil lamps.

Our town officer was sworn in Monday by a police magistrate in Montreal, and is now prepared to arrest any person at sight, for fast driving or violation of the peace.

25 Years Ago

September, 1914

Edina — Even this tiny community is affected by the big war. People are wondering if any of our young men will be called upon to fight their country's battle.

Cushing — Mr. T. Weir, Sr., who has been over to Scotland on a visit to his old home, arrived on Canadian soil by the steamer, Cassandra, from Glasgow.

Mr. R. G. McConnell has been appointed acting deputy of mines. He is an Argenteuil boy and stands preeminent among the geologists of the world.

Cushing — The "Maggie May" and her crew have been ordered to patrol Lake St. Louis, and went on duty last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Armstrong spent Tuesday with friends in Terrebonne.

Protest has been served on Lachute Town, instigated by several prominent citizens, regarding a contract issued for macadamizing certain streets, held to be of illegal procedure and not in accordance with specifications set by the provincial engineer. . . The contractors are Messrs. Lafleur and Berniquer; the requerants are B. S. Stackhouse, E. H. Wilson, Thos. McOuat, Arthur McOuat, Wm. Berry, H. J. Giles, J. A. McGibbon, G. H. Creswell, Chas. Bedard, W. H. Garretsee; and the document of protest was prepared by H. J. Creswell, M.P.

The Canadian Northern Railway are now operating through passenger service, Quebec to Ottawa and Toronto. This train leaves Lachute westbound at 6.55 a.m. daily, arriving at Ottawa 10 a.m. — M. Roby, Agent.

TRANS-CANADA MOTOR ROUTE THROUGH THE ROCKIES

By shipping their automobiles by rail over the Selkirk Mountains, motorists may now travel over the Trans-Canada Highway from Port Arthur, Ontario, to the Pacific Coast. The only unfinished portion of the all-Canadian route is a stretch of about twenty-three miles on the Big Bend Highway between Golden B.C., and Revelstoke, B.C., and as in the past few years, a daily automobile transport service between these points will be provided by the Canadian Pacific Railway during the 1939 season, ending September 30.

Motoring in the Rockies provides unforgettable thrills.

Within the national parks of the Rockies excellent motor roads lead to mountain wonderlands.

With the exception of Glacier National Park, reached only by rail, all national parks in the Rockies are accessible by motor car.

SCOUTS A TOURIST PUBLICITY ASSET

The friendly reception given by the Scouts of London, Ont., to a troop of American Scouts from Texas at the time of the King's visit is credited by The London Free Press with bringing a number of Texas tourists into western Ontario.

SCOUTS AND FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

As annually for some years, the Proclamation concerning National Fire Prevention Week published in The Canada Gazette includes a section calling upon Scout leaders to give instructions to their boys in the best means of co-operating with municipal fire departments.

HAMILTON SCOUTS RAISED THE UNION JACK DURING THE KING'S VISIT

Throughout the period of the visit of Their Majesties to Canada this summer, Scouts of the 19th Hamilton, Ont., Troop each morning raised the Union Jack on the flagpole in Gore Park, in the centre of the city. A bugle note drew the attention of passing citizens to the ceremony, and many halted and stood at attention or removed their hats.

SIR PERCY EVERETT NOW "EAGLE CHIEF"

"Eagle Chief" is the new name of Sir Percy Everett, Deputy Commissioner of Imperial Headquarters of the Boy Scouts Association, now touring Canada. The name, and membership in the western branch of the Cree tribe of Indians, was dramatically conferred upon the Scout Commissioner by Chief Sampson, in full ceremonial dress, at a Scout Jamboree at Camp Woods, on Sylvan Lake, near Edmonton. Forming a background for the campfire ceremony were representatives of the tribe and a large number of Scouts dressed as young Indian braves. The name, Eagle Chief presumably was suggested by the fact that Sir Percy soared down to the lake from the skies in a plane, and left by the same eagle-like means. The new honorary chief was presented with a ceremonial headdress of feathers and a beautifully beaded belt pouch.

WHAT'S THE USE

LAST GERMAN WARSHIP RAISED AT SCAPA FLOW

Almost twenty years after the German warships sank from view in Scapa Flow, the giant battle cruiser "Derfflinger" was raised — seven hours ahead of schedule — from a depth of over twenty fathoms. She is the 39th to be salvaged, and no more are to be brought up. The Derfflinger shelled the East Coast of England in the Great War. The photograph was taken as the hull of the cruiser broke water.

CHEAPER HOUSES

The reduction of the cost of building a house is one of the central problems of the day.

To own a home and a little land is the legitimate ambition of nearly all Canadians. Until we have made it possible to realize this, we have not succeeded in Canada.

More than half of the urban population can afford to live in houses selling at between $2,000 and $4,000. Yet only a small percentage of the houses built last year fell within those price limits.

A substantial reduction of the cost of home-building, a present objective of the powers that be, is certainly a laudable one.

To do this, and yet not decrease the standards of building-trade workers, material dealers, builders and other persons directly involved, is a problem, largely a problem in efficiency in an industry known for the contrary.

It is a real challenge to Canadian ingenuity, to be met boldly, skillfully, and wisely.

— Montreal Herald

MONTREAL'S TERCENTENARY

(Local Government Administration)

The City of Montreal, Canada, is determined that the tercentenary celebration in 1942 will be worthy of its great traditions and its present importance as the commercial metropolis of Canada. Under a special Act of the provincial legislature, the City Council has appointed a bilingual commission of ten members with the Mayor as Chairman, which will have full charge of the programme of events to take place throughout the year. Already the local historians, writers and artists have made a start in their respective fields to bring out the colorful story of the city. And there is plenty of material to work on. Romance and drama have interwoven themselves with almost every decade of Montreal's history; and from the day of its founding by Maisonneuve some 300 years ago, hardly a generation has passed without the city being the scene of some notable event that has had nation-wide reverberations.

CANADA HAS LIST OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Canada may not be the most important country in the world, but we'll venture to say that, for a country with slightly over ten million of a population she has contributed more than her share of original ideas and inventions, which have been adopted by every nation of the universe.

The following are a few things that can be verified by existing historical records :

1. Canada built and sent the first steam boat across the Atlantic.
2. Canada built and demonstrated the first compound steam engine in the history of the world. The effect of this invention was the doom of the sailing ship as a factor in ocean commerce.
3. Canada built and demonstrated the first railway sleeping cars.
4. Canada built and demonstrated the first submarine telegraph in the history of the world.
5. Canada originated the idea of making paper from wood pulp.
6. Canada demonstrated the first practical electric railway in the history of the world.
7. Canada built the world's first electric stove.
8. Canada originated the idea of electric heating.
9. Canada originated the idea of Standard Time, which has since been adopted by every civilized country in the world.
10. Canada originated the idea of the panoramic Camera.
11. Canada originated Marquis and other more recent wheats which have built up the commerce of the West, both in Canada and the United States.
12. Canada first isolated helium in commercial quantities.
13. The idea of the telephone originated in Canada and the first long-distance trials of the instrument were made between Paris and Brantford.
14. Canada gave to the world the idea of the all-electric radio.
15. Insulin is of too recent date to require more than mention in this list.

CHINA'S BANK NOTES

Great Britain Now Printing 1,000,000,000

Two British printers of bank notes are now carrying out contracts, given to them by the Govenrment Central Bank of China, for printing 1,000,000,000 notes; neither the exact total nor the value of the notes can be divulged.

Four hundred extra hands have been engaged to cope with one of the contracts, which will take a further year to complete; the other has already been completed.

The original plates are to be kept in Great Britain and the notes themselves will go to China by various routes.

There are but few bank note printers, other than Government factories, in the world, and other orders for Bank Notes are now being carried out in England for Costa Rica, Salvador, Greece, Turkey, Egypt, Persia, Siam and Switzerland.

BACK TO THE LAND

We hear a good deal about the "Back to the Land" question, but there is a definite movement going on, about which little is said. Better transportation is making it possible for people to move out of the larger centres and go a few miles out. Thrifty working people are building small houses where they can have a garden and where taxes are less. People with more money are acquiring small estates. All over Canada you can see this happening. Residential sections are changing as people leave the close-in sections and move out. Residential real-estate values rise and wane as sections become fashionable and then after a period of years slowly lose their popularity.

PLAN BEFORE BUYING

Most women are doing a bit of window-shopping and are planning their Fall wardrobes. To be well-dressed one needs to be appropriately dressed and to have the proper things to wear to suit the occasion. I have never forgotten one erratic friend, who had plenty of clothes but seldom chose the right thing to wear. One memorable week she wore an evening dress to a beach dance, where everyone else wore sport clothes; at an informal women's party, she wore a sport dress, and the other women wore the fussier afternoon dresses; at a town-dance she wore her afternoon dress and was the only one not wearing evening-dress. She had the proper dress for each occasion but did not wear one of them at the right time. Think over the things you do most and choose clothes that are suitable for your activities. You have to decide, too, whether to buy a good dress and wear it a long time or a cheaper one that lasts a shorter time. If you can content yourself to wearing a dress for some time, the better dresses are much cheaper in the long run. At the present time I have a dress for which I paid twenty-nine dollars. It is of the sheer type and is wearable the year round. It comes back from the cleaners as good as new and I have worn it three years and have felt well-dressed every time I have put it on. Last winter I bought a little dress for seven-ninety-five and it was smart and looked well for two or three months. Then it began to lose its shape and sending it to the cleaners did not improve it much. Consequently, it hangs in the closet, not worn but just bedraggled. The dress which cost the most to begin with was a much cheaper dress in the end. All these things need to be taken into consideration before buying and proper planning will save you money and you will be better dressed.

THE TRYING FIRST DAYS

You mothers, who worked before you were married, look back to those days, and see if you don't remember how you felt when you started a new job. You were keyed-up, nervous and apt to feel rather tired and maybe a bit irritable, because of it. That is just the way many children feel in the first days of school. They have a new teacher and new subjects and they may be keyed-up, too, but without sufficient experience to know what is wrong with them. Mothers can make life easier. See that they have meals which appeal to them with a little snack for after school. Get them to bed at the proper time. Night closes in earlier and it is easier to do. Keep away from irritating things as far as possible. It is a wise mother who shuts her eyes and ears and lets pass things, which at other times, would merit a reprimand. An occasional spell of spoiling never did harm to man or beast. First days of a new term may be the right time to spoil a child. Just long enough to get adjusted.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

OF BLEEDERS' DISEASE

The newspapers some years ago contained long accounts of the illness and death of Count Covendonga, former heir to the throne of Spain, who was a victim of what is called hemophilia, or "bleeders' disease."

Suffering from a cyst on his hip, he had it opened by a doctor who was unaware of his patient's hereditary taint — a taint which has gone down the ages through the Hapsburg family — and after the operation he bled to death.

The young Czarovitch, murdered in the Russian uprising, was a bleeder.

Bleeders' disease was first recognized by an Arabian surgeon, who lived from 1013 to 1106, and who wrote a wonderful treatise on it. His name was Albucasis, and he must have been a genius for he devised about two hundred different surgical instruments.

He spoke of men in various Arabian villages who after being wounded, bled gradually to death, because their blood would not clot. He even had several cases among children, who had started bleeding by rubbing their gums.

One remarkable thing about hemophilia is that modern doctors know very little more about this strange and baffling disease than did Albucasis, but they have learned that the disease descends through the male.

In other words, the female children of a bleeder will bear male bleeders but the girl babies born will be immune from the disease. However, they can transplant it to their masculine offspring.

When these bleeders are cut and start to bleed, blood flows from their mouth, ears, nose, and places cut or bruised, and is found also in their excreta.

So far, no positive or definite method of preventing bleeders being born has been discovered and there is no means known of stopping the bleeding once it has started.

Fortunately there are relatively few bleeders in the world, the largest colony of them existing near Cape Cod in the United States.

Obviously normal people refrain from marrying them, and when they work they invariably use tools which are dull, while their agricultural implements chiefly consist of those made of wood, in order to reduce the possibility of being cut or bruised.

In all my years at medicine I have seen just one bleeder. While walking through a market, a projected butcher's knife scratched the back of his hand.

Knowing he was a bleeder, he immediately took a cab and arrived at the hospital, very much depressed. Despite the aid of our best medical men, he gradually bled to death.

Of course, the story got in the papers, and for days our hospital was bombarded with remedial suggestions from laymen, which included prayers, eating pickles, herring, honey, tripe, using snuff, drinking iodine, salt water, bay rum, and so on.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Maybe you are one of those women who can wear rubber gloves when you do most of those household tasks that are inclined to stain your hands. I hope you are, because I'm not, and consequently I'm always trying to remove stains from my hands.

Fruit and vegetable juices settle around the nails and along the side of the first finger on my right hand, with dire results, so that I keep up a constant crusade against discolored nails and hands.

The old standby for softening hands is made effective as a stain remover by merely adding a few drops of pure hydrochloric acid. Glycerine and rosewater has been the classic remedy for roughened hands for generations, and the addition of hydrochloric acid turns it into a bleach as well.

A mild bleach for your face and arms can be made at home by combining one part glycerine with two parts lemon juice. This solution will subdue freckles most satisfactorily.

Take the following formula to your druggist and let him make it up for you, and then use it faithfully during the canning season to keep your hands presentable:

Rose water (triple)—400, glycerine —100, hydrochloric acid (pure).

If you dislike to wash your electric fruit juicer when you only need a small amount of juice, look into the new hand juicers on the market. There are several kinds that are very easy to use and simple to wash and that get all the juice.

All fruit juices are ideal summer drinks with the citrus fruits heading the list. Scientists tell us that vitamin C actually mitigates the effect of heat so that orange juice which we can drink undiluted is the most potent of the juices.

If you have leaf lettuce in your garden, you may like to try a salad of lettuce rolls. This is an ideal salad for a buffet or a garden meal because the salads are made up individually, and are easy to arrange on a large platter for serving.

Lettuce Roll Salad

Large lettuce leaves, 1 cup cottage cheese, ½ cup chopped nut meats, ½ cup grated carrots, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons orange marmalade, mayonnaise.

Wash lettuce leaves, crisp and pat dry. Mix cottage cheese, nuts, carrots, salt and marmalade and spread on leaves. Roll loosely and fasten with a small wooden toothpick. Arrange on a chilled platter around a bowl of mayonnaise to serve.

Mrs. Bibi Lindstrom, of Stockholm, Sweden, is the only woman artist of her country who designs sets for moving pictures. She is a graduate of the Royal Academy in Stockholm.

A BOX OF WANDERING-JEW

I saw a window-box planted with nothing but Wandering-Jew, and it was very effective. It was in an apartment and could not get very much sun, but it was enough for the vigorous Wandering-Jew and it was thriving lustily. The vines were not too long but were very thick, as the ends were nipped off and planted as slips. Its cheapness recommends it as this box of growing green had started with a quarter's worth of plants.

PEACH MARMALADE

6 lbs. peaches, 6 lbs. sugar, 2 oranges (put through grinder), 1 small bottle marachino cherries cut in pieces.

PICKLED PEACHES

8 lbs. peaches, 4 lbs. brown sugar, 1 quart vinegar, ¾ cup mixed whole spices.

Dip the peaches into hot water a few at a time and then skin them. Steam the peaches until fairly tender, then pack into bottles and pour the syrup over them. To make the syrup, boil the vinegar and sugar for 15 minutes, tieing the spice in a bag and removing when done.

CUCUMBER RELISH

12 large cucumbers, 6 onions, 2 red peppers, 2 green peppers, 2 quarts vinegar, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 tablespoon tumeric, 3 cups brown sugar, 6 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup flour, 2 tablespoons salt.

Put cucumbers, onions, and peppers through the chopper. Mix the dry ingredients and stir to a paste with a little of the vinegar. Add the remaining vinegar and the chopped vegetables and boil for fifteen minutes, slowly. Bottle and seal.

THE EATING OF THE GREEN

By Frances Lee Barton

Colors have certain traits that are universally sensed. The green of grass or leaves; the green of the ocean; green salads, beverages and desserts—all give one a feeling of coolness at sight.

Remember this when serving meals. A cool looking salad attracts. A cool tasting salad delights. A carefully balanced green salad is ideal for these early Fall days, particularly when the thermometer is still too high for comfort.

Sea Dream Cheese Salad

1 package lime-flavored gelatin; 1 cup hot water; 1 cup grated cucumber; 1 tablespoon vinegar; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese; ¼ cup sliced green pepper; 1 cup diced celery.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cucumber, vinegar, onion, cayenne, and salt. Force through sieve. Chill. When slightly thickened, add ½ to softened cream cheese. Fold in green pepper and celery, turn into individual molds, and chill until firm. Fill molds with remaining thickened gelatin mixture. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise, if desired. Serves 6.

COOKIES ALWAYS APROPOS

By Frances Lee Barton

Time marches on. New dishes appear. New methods of cooking are discovered. But the cookie is as popular with us as it was with our parents or our grandparents. New recipes like the following should tend to make it even more popular:

Mahogany Ice Box Cookies

4 cups sifted cake flour; 4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; ½ teaspoon salt; 1¼ cups softened butter or other shortening; 1½ cups sugar; 2 eggs, unbeaten; 4 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 2 cups shredded coconut.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Combine butter, sugar, eggs, chocolate, and vanilla, beating with spoon until blended; then add chocolate. Add flour gradually, mixing well after each addition. Divide dough in two parts. Place on waxed paper and shape in rolls, 1½ inches in diameter; roll each in waxed paper. Chill overnight, or until firm enough to slice. Cut in ⅛ inch slices; bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderate oven (350° F.) 10 minutes, or until done. Makes 7 dozen cookies.

PUBLIC HEALTH DISPLAY AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

The world's fair, the national exhibition, the county fair — all are media through which public education is carried on. In Canada, one of the best means adopted by the Health League of Canada to interest the public in health is to present an annual display at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

This year, through the generous cooperation of the Exhibition authorities, a more attractive display than ever before has been made possible for Canada's health education agency.

The exhibit has been designed to impress upon visitors various phases of health work. One large section is devoted to the need for the pasteurization of milk. Another section is devoted to the various activities of the Health League, attention being drawn in a spectacular manner to such topics as diphtheria and its prevention by toxoid, venereal diseases and their control, artificial respiration and periodic health examinations to reduce the toll of cancer, heart disease and other causes of death.

An important point stressed by the Health League exhibit is the enormous cost of illness in Canada, half of which is preventable.

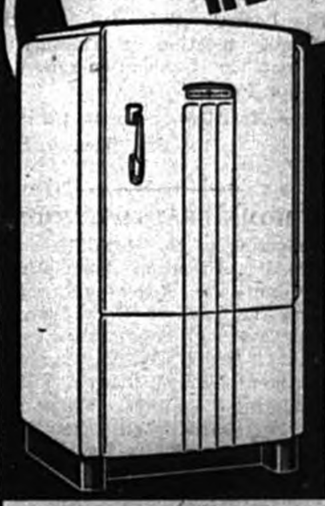

POST OFFICES ALONE SURPASS UNITED CHURCH

The Dominion Post Office alone surpasses the United Church of Canada in the number of its branches, for no other institution, whether railroad or bank, exceeds the church's total of 7,493 preaching places, according to a recent statement made by Rev. Dr. A. Lloyd Smith, Montreal minister and a former Home Mission secretary. He made the statement by way of illustrating the vast extent of the United Church's home missionary activities.

It is perhaps because of its immense character that the average member of the church fails to realize what is being done in this respect, and the romance contained in missionary work, according to Dr. Smith. He said that people are inclined to believe that privation, hardship and heroism are a part of the missionary enterprise, without stopping to think of what is actually being accomplished.

Spreading from the Atlantic to the Pacific, mission work is today handicapped by lack of men and money, Dr. Smith stated. Not since church union, he said, have younger men been needed in the church as they are today. A family can make no greater contribution today, he held, than to send a son into the missionary field. To emphasize this point, he recalled that 20 missionary fields in one section of Canada have had to be left vacant because men are no longer available.

"It is spectacular nonsense to suggest that all the provinces could be abolished." — Hon. Norman Rogers

'Cent' Name for 'Penny'

The word "cent" is the official name of our 1-cent piece, "penny" being merely a colloquial name for the coin. An act of congress passed August 8, 1786, prescribed the word "Cents: The highest copper piece of which 100 shall be equal to the dollar." On October 16 of the same year congress ordained "that no foreign copper coin whatsoever, shall after the first day of September, 1787, be current within the United States of America." This law removed the English penny which had circulated freely in this country until after the Revolution. But the name penny had been transferred to our cent in popular usage and has clung to it ever since.

ENGLISH DOCTORS' DILEMMA

In England, there has been a strong agitation to increase the consumption of milk and the movement has presented a dilemma to the doctors.

They know how essential milk is for the growth of children, but on the other hand they also know how dangerous milk can be when it is not made safe by pasteurization. In the absence of compulsory pasteurization they have to refrain from urging the use of the one food they realize is most needed.

The point was recently advanced in the House of Lords by Viscount Astor when he said that the great need at the moment was cheaper and safer milk. A few days before he had addressed a conference organized by the British Medical Association and he told the House of Lords that up to date the great medical profession had not been able to act with complete vigor in the campaign because they realized the difficulty in urging mothers to give their children more milk when they could not, at the same time, guarantee that the milk available was reasonably safe.

It was indeed regrettable that two or three of the main proposals of the Milk Bill which the Government brought forward last December, which would have assisted substantially in making the milk supply cheaper and safer, had been dropped and were not included in the present Milk Bill. There was prejudice, in some minds, Viscount Astor said, against the pasteurization of milk. His own inclination was to oppose pasteurization because he was a milk producer who wanted to sell raw milk, but he had to recognize that there was this problem and he thought that the farmers were shortsighted if and when they opposed measures to facilitate the pasteurization of milk which did not come from tubercle-free cows. Evidence as to the value of pasteurization was overwhelming. If there was an educational campaign he hoped the findings of authoritative bodies on pasteurization would be put before the public. —Winchester Press

WORLD'S LONGEST 'PHONE

Six Thousand Miles of British Equipment Is Shipped to Russia

A British firm recently shipped to Russia the last consignment of equipment for the world's longest carrier telephone system, which will run for nearly 9,000 kilometres (about 6,000 miles), crossing Siberia and covering practically the entire breadth of the U.S.S.R.

It will give direct communication between Moscow and Khabarovsk, which is near the Manchukuo border, north of Vladivostok; this enormous distance will be covered by an open wire line, divided into five links of 2,117 kilometers, 1,443 kilometers, 1,867 kilometers, 2,414 kilometers respectively.

Specially designed transmission apparatus which will make it possible to operate several telephone and telegraph circuits simultaneously, and, in addition, a channel for broadcasting or picture transmission, are included in the contract.

Standard Telephones and Cables Limited, of London, were given the contract for the work, at a figure exceeding £300,000.

A CHINESE WEDDING TANGLE

Here is an amusing story which shows that, in spite of civil war and Westernization, the Chinese retain their ancient sense of the practical.

Two Chinese brides were being conveyed in the traditional sedan-chairs to their husbands' homes. On the way they were overtaken by a storm, and brides and bearers took shelter in a neighboring tea-house.

When they came out, the brides entered the wrong chairs. The bearers did not notice the error because the brides were heavily veiled.

It was only when the brides reached their homes where the husbands had prepared a feast for the relations that the mistake was discovered.

Then a family council took place. As it was established that all four families were of equal financial and social status, it was decided that what Fate had ordained must be accepted. With general acquiescence each husband then kept the wrong bride.

Geo. Heon Takes Commendable Stand on Canada's Participation in War; Stirring Speech in House

Interprets French-Canadian Attitude; Nationalist Ideals Suppressed "For Time of This War"

SUPPORTS VOLUNTARY SERVICE, BUT IS OPPOSED TO CONSCRIPTION OF MAN-POWER

Expressing, as he stated, "the views of the majority of my constituents—in whose good, hard common sense I have absolute faith," Georges Héon, M.P. for Argenteuil, submerged his nationalistic leanings to collaborate in the best interests of the country and the empire, declaring a clear-cut and logical stand in last Saturday's debate. Mr. Héon's address defined what is probably the general attitude of French Canada in the present crisis. The text of his remarks is published hereunder.

Mr. Speaker, the free and autonomous Canadian nation finds itself today in one of the most serious situations with which it has ever been confronted. Although pressing domestic problems are still unsolved, a decision has been made for the nation, and by this decision all dutiful Canadians must abide, whether it be in conformity with their own personal views or not. Through this commitment we find ourselves at the side of Britain, Poland and France in their struggle against Herr Hitler and his adventurers, who are seeking to dominate the world by force.

Various opinions have been and are being held as to the wisdom of such a momentous decision; yet at this stage we cannot help feeling deeply that the utmost moderation should be observed in pronouncements and that calm thinking and cool judgment should be with all of us. Public men of both races, whether in the federal, the provincial or the municipal arena, who will seek to capitalize upon this extremely dangerous moment to further their own cheap political advancement, and, to achieve this end, will publicly fan the flames of racial antagonism or divided loyalties, are traitors to Canada, because they seek thus to wreck the whole edifice of Canadianism which generations of French and English-Canadians have so laboriously striven to erect during the last 150 years.

Equally condemnable are those dishonest and unfair propagandists who distort the issues at stake and print or utter words that inspire fear in the minds of Canadian women and children. Our people do not need to be sold the idea of the present war, and grotesque propaganda will not help them to decide where their duty lies. Freedom must reign in every Canadian mind and heart, particularly at this time; for no positive reaction will come that will be profound and sincere unless every Canadian in his heart and soul has decided freely where his loyalty lies.

Are we not to profit by the lessons of the last war? Must we see re-enacted those deplorable scenes and hear again those utterances which then took place, thereby causing bitter antagonism between our two great races? Shall we have repetitions of the deep dissensions wrought by the war and the conscription issues, which were then used by unscrupulous politicians to secure votes and to set one section of the country against another? I cannot believe that this will be so, and we should pledge ourselves immediately, so to conduct ourselves during the present war that Canada shall emerge from this crucible a stronger, freer and more united nation.

We cannot and should not at this trying time cast epithets at one another; rather must we gather in one mighty effort to keep this great country together, remembering always that a disunited, bankrupt Canada would be a severe liability to the British commonwealth of nations. Accusations of disloyalty and treason must not be carelessly flung around just because important sections of Canadian public opinion have vastly differed up to now on the all-important question of foreign policy. Speakers have said it before me. Our various racial elements make for division of opinion, and Canada would be the poorest country in this troubled world to live in, similar to Russia and Germany, if anyone were made to suffer because he dared to offer a sincere opinion as to what Canada should or should not do in the event of war. We are told that we are engaged in a war to end dictatorship. Well, we would be a dictatorship ourselves if attempts were made to impose extremist views on that section of Canadians whose ancestors fled from Europe to escape those very conditions which we are now being asked to help to sweep from the face of Europe itself.

May I now be allowed, on behalf of my own people, to make this urgent plea to my English-Canadian friends? Never have I striven to be more sincere or convincing in all my life, than in the appeal I am about to make. An immense majority of my compatriots have never concerned themselves with foreign affairs. They have never kept track of the sinuous courses of European diplomacy, nor have they taken time out to look up the meaning of "putsch" and "anschluss" or seek on a map of Europe the strategical value of Memel and Pomorze, Warsaw and Lodz, Lauterbourg or the Saar basin.

The French-Canadian has been mostly concerned, as were his ancestors before him, with clearing the forest, tilling the soil and providing food and shelter for the children with

Fine Dramatic Performance In Grounds of Carillon Historical Museum

About 200 people, coming from Montreal, Ottawa, Como, Hudson, Brownsburg, Hawkesbury, Grenville and St. Andrews, assembled Saturday afternoon in the grounds of the Historical Museum at Carillon for the second open-air dramatic entertainment given this season under the auspices of the Argenteuil Historical Society. Proceedings opened with a short address by Mme. Lorans, of Ottawa, explaining the organization and ideals of the "Bonne Entente" Society, and with a delightful habitante reminiscence of "Three Royal Visits to Canada," delivered in costume by Miss Anne Dewar. This latter item was an original poem describing, in the style of W. H. Drummond, the arrival in 1860 of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales (later King Edward VII), who passed through Carillon on his way to Ottawa; of the Duke of York (later George V) at Montreal in 1902; and recounting some charming incidents during the recent visit of Their Majesties at Ottawa and in the West. A repeat perforamnce followed, at request, by Phoebe Erskine MacKellar, of Pauline Johnson's poem on the Mohawk chief's wife, "Ojistoh."

A feature which appealed to the entire audience was the presentation by a Como dramatic group, trained by Mrs. MacKellar, of a short historial play by Betty P. Sandiford, entitled "The Bone Spoon." The incident portrayed took place in a late afternoon in September, 1650, when three Frenchmen, refugees from the Iroquois' devastation of their Huronic Mission, had disembarked from their canoe and had just awakened from a sleep of utter exhaustion. One of the three, a mere boy, Gaston Soufflot by name, was prostrated by a fever and unable to travel farther. Loath to leave him, they were forced to do so through an accident which deprived them of their food while they slept. Concealing his weakness, Gaston staggers to his feet and waves adieu to his friends in the departing canoe, throws down the spoon they had left with him, and sinks among the rocks off-stage to die. The action in this first part was powerfully depicted by Messrs. A. G. Dann as Duval, Eric Kippen as de Courcy, and Dennis Gillson as the heroic Gaston. The second act brought the scene to the present day. nearly 300 years later, when five modern young people arriving in high spirits in a motor launch, land at the identical spot of the earlier episode. Struck by the beauty of the scene and feeling the influence of the past alive within it, Prudence, heroine of the play, a girl of seventeen endowed with psychic power, reconstructs from her imagination the earlier scene and recounts to one of her companions the story that "might have happened here" and describes her "French boy" who "might have called Adieu to his friends — like this." Searching before they leave, for a can-opener lost from their picnic basket, she comes upon the antique bone spoon wedged among the rocks, thrown there by Gaston so long ago and cries before they sail away, "It did happen — it's true — it's true!"

The actors in this part of the play were the Misses Marian Francis, who rendered the part of Prudence with a tender mysticism and sincerity that revitalized the scene, Joy Thomson and Betty Curren, with the Messrs. Colin Kerry and Michael Elson. The motor launch, the "Blue Streak" of the play, was kindly loaned for the occasion by Dr. Keith Pitcairn, of Montreal, and the canoe used in the first act by Mr. Yale, of St. Andrews.

In the second part of the entertainment the audience again enjoyed the exquisite dancing of the Misses Nora and Patricia White, (granddaughters of Lester Simpson and Elizabeth Ewing, of St. Andrews), who performed in costume their charming peasant dance from Old Provence, and also interpretative dancing to the strains of Chopin's music on a flute accompaniment by Dirk Keetbaas, Jr., who carried on alone in the absence of his father, Mr. Dirk Keetbaas, of Ottawa, violinist, who had just been called to military duty.

The rather serious nature of the program was delivered at its close by the play, "Her Money's Worth," a comedy which has carried off several prizes in the County Dramatic Contests, presented by Mr. and Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring and their associates, of Lakefield, Que.

At the close of the performance, tea was served on the lawn to guests bringing a basket lunch. In the absence of Dr. H. B. Cushing, President, in Vancouver, the chair was taken by Mr. G. F. W. Kuhring.

Home Beautification Is Theme of Meeting

A meeting of the Rural Home Beautification Association was held in the Lachute High School on Friday evening, when Mr. R. W. Oliver, of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, gave an illustrated address on "The Principles of Garden Planning."

The meeting opened with "O Canada," after which the W.I. county president, Mrs. L. Morris, gave a short address. Mrs. A. Taylor rendered a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Stuart Campbell, and a community sing-song followed. Mrs. Lemuel Wilson introduced Mr. Oliver, and Mrs. Geo. Armstrong moved a vote of thanks to the speaker following his interesting discourse. The singing of the national anthem closed the meeting.

Emergency Causes Change In Air Mail Services

The British Post Office advise that, owing to the presept international emergency, the arrangement under which all first class mail posted in Canada for the empire countries was carried exclusively by air beyond England under the Empire Air Mail scheme as the normal means of transmission, has been temporarily suspended.

All first class mail to the empire countries will in future be conveyed by surface transport at the former rate of 3c for the first ounce and 2c for each additional ounce.

However, it is proposed to inaugurate a restricted surcharged air mail service beyond England to former "all up" destinations, which will be maintained at the air postage rate of 30c per half ounce or fraction, to include trans-Atlantic air conveyance. The same rate, 30c per half ounce, will also apply to air mail routed via England addressed to all other places in Africa, Asia and Australia. The above rate has been substituted for the former surcharged air mail rate of 25c.

If trans-Atlantic air conveyance is also desired, the rate will be 60c per half ounce.

The estimated time of transit in days from England will be, roughly, three to Alexandria, four to Basrah, five to Karachi, eight to Singapore, ten to Darwin, twelve to Sydney, five to Kisumu and seven to Durban.

Lachute Red Cross Branch Rallying Membership

The Lachute Red Cross Society has been informed from headquarters that it may be a short time before definite instructions for work can be sent to the different branches. The regular monthly meeting of this branch will be held on the first Wednesday of October, and it is urgent that as many persons as possible join the Lachute Red Cross before that date.

Young Men from District Enlist for Service

Among the young men of this district who have recently joined up for service in the present crisis are — Ernest W. Rodger, St. Andrews East, with the Royal Canadian Regiment at St. John's; Carl Demerse, as a signaller with the Royal Canadian Artillery; Jock Cunningham and Bob Fulton, in the 13th Highlanders.

A number of young citizens have also made application for the Flying Corps and are waiting to be called.

WAR — 25 YEARS AGO!

"GREATEST MALEFACTOR IN ALL HISTORY"

(Extracted from Watchman files of a quarter century ago).

August 21, 1914 — The war session of Canada's Parliament opened on Tuesday afternoon with a simplicity of ceremony emphasizing the national crisis.

Canada, now a state in full manhood, comes forward to assume her full responsibility at Britain's side, where she will stand through thick and thin. . .

Today a crisis such as had never to be dealt with before, is upon the world. One of the greatest trustees of power in our time has won himself the bad eminence of being the greatest malefactor in all history. . . Unspeakably bad as Nero was, the bloody swath he laid was but a thin red line, by comparison with the carnage the war reapers Kaiser Wilhelm has brought into the field will cut across Europe. . .

The most important parliamentary business yet to be disclosed is that to provide ways and means for doing Canada's part in this great crisis.

Alouette Ski Club Shows Keen Activity in Review At Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Alouette Ski Club was held Tuesday night in Montreal. The attendance comprised a representative group from Montreal and from Morin Heights. The retiring vice-president opened the meeting and called upon Dr. Victor Jekill to take the chair and give the annual report. A short review of the history of the club reminded the assembly that it was formed under the auspices of the Municipal Association of Morin Heights, on September 24th, 1938. It had introduced in an official way to the Canadian Amateur Ski Association the terrain at Morin Heights at an official cross country and down hill competition held on January 21st, 1939. This was attended, despite unfavorable weather conditions, by 77 competitors from various clubs of the Laurentian zone. The Intervillage League Meet was held on March 11th, 1939. This was also a most successful event. A number of competitions were held throughout the season for the club members. These were well attended and did much to interest the local people in skiing.

From the names of members who won laurels in competitions afield, those of Lloyd Watson and Albert Basler deserved special mention. The performance of these boys was indeed a credit to their club.

The Ski Guide Corps, which was organized last season, proved its value in keeping the youth interested in the trails, the development of their own individual skill and the enjoyment of local facilities by the guests.

A special ski map had been printed of this district and it was the desire of the meeting that improved marking of trails be undertaken to facilitate its use.

The down hill run, which is a sporty drop of 500 feet in a half mile laid out by Mr. Johannsen on the eastern slope of Hurtubise mountain, seems with a little attention, to be again in excellent condition for the thrill seekers.

Appreciation was expressed on the part of the club to the officials of the C.N.R., who co-operated so continuously in making the season a success, to Bobs Walker for the funds which provided for the costs of a St. John's Ambulance service each week-end; to Major Coates and men of the St. John's Ambulance for their cheerful co-operation, especially in providing instruction in first aid to the Ski Guides; to those who conducted competitions with such skill and understanding. and to the retiring executive and friends who made the club's activities possible.

The election of officers resulted in an acclamation for the following four ex-service men and one newly enlisted recruit: Dr. Victor Jekill, president; A. L. Perry, vice-president; John C. Binns, secretary; H. M. Mawhinney, treasurer.

Executive Committee: Pierre Racine, Edward Kneeland, A. C. Scott.

Herman Smith Johannsen, charter member of the club, was asked to define his idea as to the most useful purpose of a ski club in war time.

Mr. Johannsen complimented the club for having the initiative to carry on under the trying circumstances, and confessed his conviction that a greater need than ever existed for such institutions. He said he felt that the school boys and girls especially of High School age, first in the location of the terrain and secondly from Montreal, should be encouraged to and provided facilities for toughening themselves for a struggle which might soon involve them. Mr. Johannsen put stress on the value of cross country skiing as against the

Outline of Canada's Policy and Contribution in Time of War

Press Gallery Observer Views "Most Moving And Inspiring Session" in His Experience

SPEAKERS DROP POLITICAL SHAMS AND MASKS; MINOR DISSENSIONS ON WARTIME PROGRAM

Ottawa, Sept. 12 — Canada's war policy can be forecast with confidence now that the Prime Minister has given to the House of Commons a complete statement. The main points are:

1. Canada will co-operate to the limit of her power and resources with Britain and France in the struggle now raging in Europe.

2. The present Liberal administration will not introduce compulsory military service, believing that the interests of the country on balance are against such a move, and that under the circumstances voluntary effort will be more productive than a regimented system.

3. Canada's contribution in the first stages of the war will consist of the training and sending of air forces, in taking over from the British fleet the protection of Canadian and adjacent Allied shores, in the manufacture and dispatch of aircraft and parts, in the production and forwarding of vast quantities of foodstuffs and munitions of war. No large-scale expeditionary force is envisaged at the present time.

4. Canada will participate to the full in the economic warfare against Germany by seeking to prevent the shipment of any goods to Germany or the purchase of German goods.

5. A determined drive to prevent war profiteering will be made. In a passage of great vigour, Prime Minister MacKenzie King branded those who would profit upon the misfortunes of humanity as "members of the underworld."

6. The Premier promised Canada that political patronage for contracts would receive his own personal and determined denunciation. He undertook to abandon all political manoeuvring in pursuing the prosecution of the war.

A STIRRING DEBATE

Last Friday's debate in the House of Commons was in many respects the most moving and inspiring session witnessed by this writer in ten years of membership in the Press Gallery.

A spirit of profound earnestness seemed to have swept away the shallow political sophistry and strategy which had at times been prevalent. All speakers dropped the shams and masks of political debate and spoke from the heart. Premier Mackenzie King, who came in so fatigued that he was afraid he would be unable to speak extempore at all, found strength to make a long impassioned, forceful, emotional address — one of his finest, a thousand miles above the classic address to the Liberal banquet in August.

For once, the mover and seconder of the Address in Reply had something to say. From comparative obscurity came two admirable speakers, Colonel H. S. Hamilton, of Sault Ste. Marie, J. A. Branchotte, of Compton. Hamilton spoke like a seasoned veteran, a Cabinet Minister. Really a vital, constructive address, full of meat and delivered in an eloquent moving manner. Blanchette was less impassioned, but seasoned, sane and persuasive. Dr. R. J. Manion made a short address in which he abandoned completely any idea of making political capital. He, too, offered numerous co-operative and constructive suggestions. The Prime Minister thanked him in the warmest possible language for his spirit of helpfulness manifested from the very beginning of the crisis.

VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS

With his old indomitable courage, J. S. Woodsworth took the unpopular view against participation, against war in all its phases. With one exception, a cry of "Shame," the House listened to his obviously sincere appeal in respectful and tolerant silence. He was a voice crying in the wilderness.

The Social Credit leader (J. H. Blackmore) raised an issue which I expect will become the controversial core of coming months. Compulsory national service on all fronts, including industry and capital as well as man-power, — or voluntary effort, prompted by every possible Government agency? The Government is for the latter. Social Credit members in the House are for the former. There will be considerable agitation in parts of the country for conscription of all effort and resources. There is much to be said for both sides. For a confederation with racial and cultural minorities, in a relatively free democratic economy, it may well be that suasion rather than compulsion will produce the best all-round results.

Interest Maintained in Boxing Events at Arena

Although not as lively as previous tournaments, last Thursday's boxing at Lachute Arena drew quite a crowd, most of whom expressed satisfaction in having their "money's worth."

Moore and Maiden put on a good bout and were fairly evenly matched.

Hooper was winner over Bideau in a third-round knock-out, although Bideau played up well in the first two rounds, the second of which found both on the floor.

The bout between Golden and Kettyle was brief, both starting out with hefty blows and uppercuts. Golden was knocked off balance twice and finally went to the floor, after which, suffering pain in his neck, he walked to his corner out-of-commission for further fighting.

Racine and Girard put on some splendid sparring in the first two rounds, while the third was roughed-up somewhat, with a few uppercuts and punches to the face. This bout of five rounds was an even draw.

Youngsters appeared next in the ring, and aroused considerable fun. They were well received and put up a good match. Levine was very confident at the start and endeavored to follow some of the dodging tactics of the old-timers, but young Chapman went right after him and roughed it considerably in the last round. Both were game, and both had the honors in a draw.

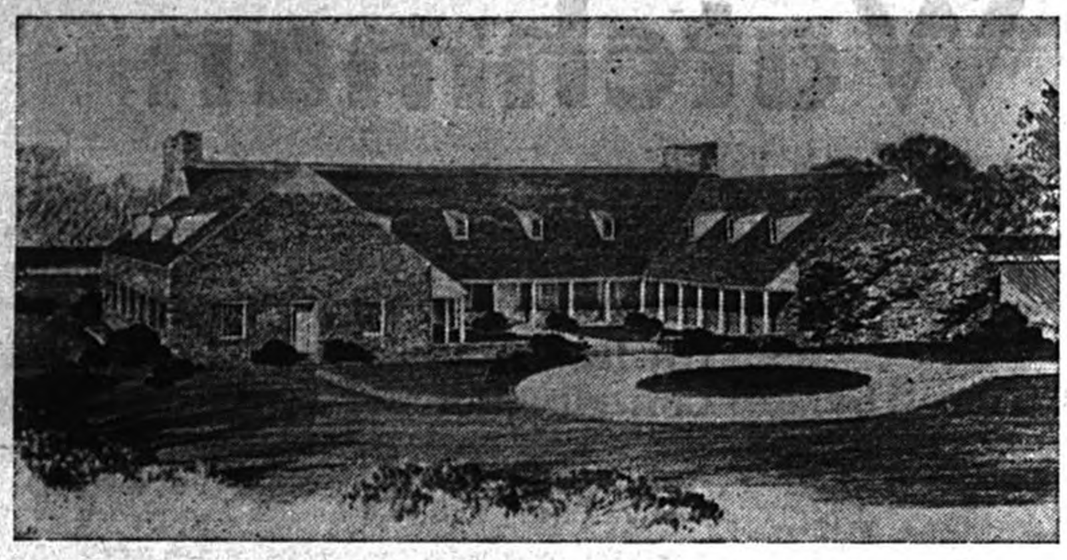

Car Used by Royalty On Exhibition Here

Direct from the Automotive Building at Toronto Exhibition, where it has been on view for the past two weeks, the Chrysler Royal model specially built and equipped for the recent tour of the King and Queen, was displayed at MacRae's Garage, Main Street, for a few hours on Tuesday afternoon. The car attracted a crowd of interested spectators, many of whom sought the distinction of occupying the same seat as Their Majesties had occupied during their motor tour, but only a very few were so privileged. The car was also taken to the High School, where the youngsters showed keen interest.

This Chrysler model carried the Royal couple in Quebec City, Montreal and Ottawa, and is now calling at various Chrysler dealers' establishments for public inspection.

Blood Transfusions 275 Years Ago

In an old book on medicine discovered by a Swedish scholar, it is shown that blood transfusion was practiced 275 years ago. The book was printed at the royal academic printing works at the famous Swedish university town of Upsala in 1764. It says: "Over 100 years ago attempts were first made to improve the health of weak people and prolong their lives by pouring into their veins the fresh blood of young animals."

World Series Will Be Broadcast Over CBC

Sponsor Pays $300,000 for Broadcasting Series in North America

Exclusive broadcasting rights for the 1939 baseball world series have been signed by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the Gillette Safety Razor Company, who will sponsor the series in the United States and Canada.

Broadcasting the series in North America will cost approximately $300,000, it is announced by J. I. Stampleman, president of the Gillette Safety Razor Company of Canada, Limited.

The announcement of the sale of the broadcast rights to the World Series was made recently by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball.

With newspapermen, photographers and sports writers attending, the Canadian contract was signed by Mr. Stampleman for Gillette, and Dr. Augustin Frigon for CBC. Roland Beaudry, sportscaster for the network, who has been assigned to do the French announcing during the Series, was also present at the signing.

The World Series, starting early in October, will be carried over the entire CBC network which includes 35 stations.

Farmer Rides Cow to Market

Back on the road for the first time since motherhood recently was Sunbeam, the cow that begins where horses leave off.

For in addition to having taken her master and his family hundreds of miles on her broad back, Sunbeam has given them seven gallons of "grade A" milk a day as well.

Her owner, Mr. Joseph Webb, burly 36-year-old Debenham, Suffolk, farmer, claims Sunbeam is the only "riding cow" in the vicinity of London, Eng.

He rides her to market at Aspall five miles from his farm. He rides her shopping through Debenham's streets. His two sons, William, aged nine, and John, aged seven, take it in turns to ride her to school when their father is not using her.

"I have been riding her regularly for three years and she loves it," Mr. Webb told a reporter. "People won't believe the villagers here when they are told about it. Visitors come for miles to see her.

"Sunbeam is not a bit scared of traffic, and although she refuses to gallop she is more docile than any horse. There is no fear of her bolting.

"I haven't a single horse on my farm. I do not need one when I have Sunbeam."

Keeping Horse Mangers Clean

At this season, when horses have not been kept regularly to stall feeding, much refuse gathers in the manger and it becomes a source of danger to horses where hay and roughage are allowed thus to collect. Some days a little green feed is laid on the top of the hay, and this, if not cleaned up, will soon mould and heat when hay is laid on top of it next day. There is sure to come a day when someone ties a hungry horse to the manger and he may decide, however unpalatable, to eat the last particle of the moulded roughage, and the result will be a sick horse. We are well aware that some horses are more subject to colic and indigestion than others, and that other things than unclean mangers may cause trouble, but this factor is important all the same. Watch the mangers for refuse.

The shoe dealer was engaging an assistant.

"Suppose," he said, "a lady customer were to remark while you were trying to fit her, 'Don't you think one of my feet is bigger than the other?' What would you say?"

"I should say, 'On the contrary, madam, one is smaller than the other.'"

"The job is yours."

NOTABLE MESSAGE FROM BADEN-POWELL TO WORLD GATHERING OF ROVER SCOUTS

Of notable interest, against conditions in Europe and the Far East, was a special message of Lord Baden-Powell from his place of retirement in Kenya to the 3,600 Rover (senior) Scouts recently gathered for the 3rd World Rover Moot at Crieff, Scotland, from 22 different countries. Said the World Chief Scout in part:

"You, the coming manhood of your several countries, are giving a real contribution to the pursuit of peace by coming together, as you are going, from all countries to make friends with one another, and mutually to strengthen your belief in your ultimate success as an army of peace. Remember, you are only a small detachment of that army, which numbers not hundreds only, but millions of Scouts and older Scouts about the world, all following the same ideals, and an army that will soon have to be reckoned with.

"The evil of present times is that the leaders of certain countries have a too narrow sense of patriotism. They have a selfish desire to promote the ambitions of their own country without regard to the interest of others. On the other hand, whatever the leader's aims may be, the people themselves in every country under the sun desire peace. It is obvious that nations must work together for the common good if there is to be prosperity and happiness for all.

"In these days of easier communications and the closer international relations of trade and commerce, it should be practicable.

"You will recognize that the first step towards peaceful co-operation between nations is that the different people should get to know each other better, and should practice that outstanding principle which is as important in your own individual life as it is between nations — namely, to understand with toleration the other fellow's point of view.

"That is why I have just said that you Rovers are doing a real service towards international goodwill; you are doing it if you use the opportunity accorded by the Moot to make friends and to get to understand the ideals and feelings of your neighbors of other countries. Let this be your aim during the short time you are here together."

Grocer: "You were gone longer on your auto trip than you expected."

Autumn Hints on the Common Cold

If the sum total of suffering, inconvenience, sequelae and economic loss from common colds be obtained, it would at once elevate these infections from the trivial into the rank of the serious diseases. The autumn is the time for colds though they may occur at any time of the year. Many of us have from one to three colds a year. One attack produces little immunity.

It is a group of acute infections of the mucous (lining) membranes of the throat and nose, often extending into the windpipe and larger bronchi. The sinuses, that is the hollow spaces adjacent to the nose, are frequently involved. The infection may be confined to the nose when it is called rhinitis; it may affect the throat as in tonsillitis, or as a pharyngitis; the larynx as in laryngitis, and the bronchial tubes as in bronchitis.

The popular idea that a cold is due to a draught is scarcely correct. Exposure to draughts, sudden changes of temperature and chilling of the body are predisposing causes of colds, but no cold can originate without the specific micro-organism or bug which is the essential cause.

Some say that a common cold is due to a virus, that is a germ so small that it cannot be seen under the microscope. Many different germs seem to be associated with colds. Perhaps the cause is a combination of viruses and germs. Common colds may not be a single disease but rather a group of infections which vary in severity and catchab lity.

Colds are caught from other persons having colds just as diphtheria is contracted from diphtheria patients. Arctic explorers, exposed to all the conditions popularly supposed to produce colds, do not suffer from those ailments until they return to civilization and become infected by contact with their fellows.

Prevention and Cure

The two really important matters about colds are, first, their prevention, and second their cure. Prevention may be summed up in the avoidance of those having an infection especially in street cars, offices and other poorly ventilated places. Colds, like other diseases conveyed in the secretions from nose and mouth are often transferred by direct and indirect contact through kissing, the common drinking cup, the roller towel, pipes, toys, pencils, fingers, food and other objects contaminated with the fresh secretions which carry the disease. Vitiated air, draughts, dust, sudden changes of temperature, exposure to cold and wet, overwork, loss of sleep and improper food all have effect in causing colds. It must be admitted on the other hand that the most vigorous will contract colds if they receive the infection, while some persons are so immune that they appear to resist attacks of cold year after year.

Persons with colds should at once go to bed and stay there as long as there is any rise of temperature. Methods of cure had best be left to the doctor. Some persons pin their faith to bed, a hot bath and a drink of whiskey. Others use vaccines. There is one vaccine, namely that prepared by Rosenow, which, taken by mouth in doses of ten drops once a week, is said to prevent the onset of a cold and taken daily in the course of a cold seems to break it up. It is worth trying.

SUGGESTION TO REDUCE SPEED LIMIT FOR NIGHT DRIVING

The best safety rule for all night motorists is "that old slogan, slow down at sundown," according to Harry G. Fester, manager of the Ontario Safety League.

Mr. Fester remarked recently there were almost as many highway accidents in darkness as in daylight although traffic at night was much lighter. Accidents would be reduced, he said, if drivers slackened speed sufficiently to drive always within range of their headlights.

W. G. Robertson, general manager of the Ontario Motor League, expressed the opinion that some form of rigid restriction not now contained in the highways traffic act would be necessary for the protection of Ontario motorists.

Suggestions offered by the two officials to help solve the highway problem included:

1. Establishment of separate day and night speed limits on the highway, with the daytime rate left at its present 50 miles per hour and a night time reduction to 40 miles per hour or less.
2. Establishment of a fixed speed limit on the most heavily travelled thoroughfares with 40 miles an hour being both the maximum and minimum speeds, and overtaking automobiles made illegal.
3. Inspection of all used cars offered for sale in the province and refusal of permission to sell any car not certified by the Government as being "roadworthy."
4. Establishment of a minimum speed on certain highways, with motorists who wished to travel at lower speeds being required to use alternative routes.

BEAUTIFYING A CITY WITH FLOWERS

One of the most interesting activities associated with the City of Montreal tercentenary programme of 1942 is the fostering of flower growing in the home gardens of the citizens, especially those of the workers, by the holding of garden and flower competitions during the intervening years. It is confidently hoped that the cumulative effect of these competitions will be to make of Montreal during the tercentennial year a great floral city. In this the Tercentenary Commission and its associate organizations have undertaken an ambitious scheme, for although Montreal — thanks to its geographical situation which gives it a fine setting of mountain and river, and to the abundance and variety of its trees — is one of the most beautiful cities on the North American continent, it is not in any sense of the term a "flower city." Where in other cities flowers are to be seen growing in the poorest neighborhoods, one can travel for miles through the poorer districts of Montreal and not see a single bloom. Even in the better-class districts flower gardens are not very plentiful, and were it not for the greenery of the trees on the sidewalks many sections of Montreal would have a very drab appearance. In some of the suburban municipalities, however, the story is very different. For instance, the City of Westmount is rich in its residential floral displays — every garden a picture pleasing to the eye. By contrast, Montreal notwithstanding its magnificent botanical gardens and its fine parks in almost every district, is not flower-minded at all; but if the Tercentenary Commission can change that attitude to the extent that flower growing will become a popular hobby among the mass of the people by 1942, it will have made a most notable contribution to the success of a great civic anniversary; for then the natural beauty of the metropolis will have been augmented by nature's loveliest gift to man — flowers.

WILLIAM LYON PHELPS AT HIS BEST

In his Autobiography with Letters (15s. net) William Lyon Phelps relates how Gene Tunney, when heavyweight champion of the world, delivered a lecture to a Yale Shakespeare class, in which, talking of his favorite play, Troilus and Cressida, he happend to say : "Now Ajax was a big powerful man without much brains, just like Jack Sharkey."

The next day a reporter called up Sharkey at his training camp and said, "Tunney says you are like Ajax." It is possible that Mr. Sharkey thought Ajax was some kind of a disease, for he responded, "You can tell Tunney there is nothing the matter with me at all."

By May 10th 25,000 copies of this autobiography had been sold in the United States. And it is one of those books from across the Atlantic which readers here will read with eagerness. It matters not how little they know or care of the author when they begin, he will soon be very real to them. For nearly four decades William Lyon Phelps had been America's most popular lecturer on literature, letter-writer, literary critic, authority on Browning, conversationalist, and traveller. He is such an all-round enthusiast that he finds it necessary to insist that he, too, has his hates.

"I am amused when I see myself described as one who likes everything. Here is a partial list of things I hate: Musical comedies, over-long novels in the shape of trilogies, free verse when it is not poetry, all forms of simplified spelling, especially thru, female legs in the daily news, personal items from Hollywood, hypocritical enthusiasm from radio announcers, books written by 'tough guys,' biographies where the author feels more important than the subject, nightclubs, postum, buttermilk, cauliflower, parsnips, vegetable marrow, panatella cigars, good meat plastered with thick gravy, paint on young faces, pageants, the pronunciation of Joan with two syllables, the spelling Vergil, the substitution of hand-me-down words for thinking, such as complexes, mother-fixation, defence-mechanism, escapist, wish-belief, accenting of positively on the third syllable, and the following words : Angle (used inaccurately), message, gubernatorial, pools for eyes, wailed for replied, contact as a verb, wistful (for Charlie Chaplin). I particularly hate the word gotten. I was pleased when a man telegraphed his wife, 'Have gotten tickets for the theatre,' and the telegram was received, 'Have got ten tickets for the theatre' and she showed up with eight eager friends.

"And I hate the whole group of novelists whom I call the Medlar novelists—the medlar is a fruit that becomes rotten before it is ripe."

Autobiography with Letters is about many things and many people. Unaffected, full of anecdote, observation, humor, it gives portraits of its author's intimate friends, writers like Conrad, Galsworthy, St. John Ervine, Hardy, Chesterton, Maeterlinck, and such celebrites as Henry Ford, Edison, Helen Wills Moody, and Gene Tunney. It has many stories which will go the rounds, as for instance :

"After Raleigh lectured at Yale he departed for Princeton, and we sent word that whoever should meet him at the train could not miss him on account of his great height. Well, there was another big fellow on that train who had an American sense of humor and ready speech. The train drew in at dusk; a huge man stepped off, and the Princeton Professor asked, 'Are you Sir Walter Raleigh ?' Instantly the man replied, 'No, I am Christopher Columbus.' "

TROUBLES . . . Everywhere

One of the very few things upon which practically everybody agrees is that there is something wrong with the psychology of world relationships in our time. We are more keenly aware of the world's troubles today than our fathers were because we read and hear about them. International strife, international struggles in every land for control of governments, economic warfare of a hundred kinds, social insecurity, class hatreds, general disrespect for law and order — make your own list of the world's troubles.

Up to that point you'll find most folks agreeing with you. The disagreement begins when you start discussing the causes of the unhappy state of human affairs, and the appropriate remedies. Not more than a handful of people ever agree on what has got us into the present mess, and what ought to be done about it.

Countless remedies are proposed, all different. My old family doctor said, when I asked him how to cure a cold : "If anybody knew that, you wouldn't see so many cold remedies advertised." Most of the plans and programs being put forth to cure the world's ills are the same sort of quackery.

HOPE . . . . . Groping

Not in a long lifetime have I seen so many different kinds of people in every walk of life so keenly concerned about the unhappy state of human affairs. Never have I seen or heard of so many earnest, well-intentioned persons and groups devoting their lives and their fortunes to efforts to bring humanity back to peace — peace between nations, peace between warring elements inside of national boundaries.

That much of the energy is misdirected, that the remedies proposed cannot all be effective, and that some of those attempts to reconcile peoples with peoples and to solve the unsolved riddle of social justice are likely to have the contrary effect, does not lessen my hope of a better world than we have ever lived in. Rather, the very fact that great multitudes are seeking the answer gives me renewed faith that out of the present glaring conflict will come the discovery of a way.

MORALS . . . . . Crux

I read and hear a great and growing volume of expressions by thinking men, leaders in political and industrial fields, leaders and thinkers among workers, philosophers, students of social problems and ordinary people like you and me, all saying the same thing in different words. The thing they say is that the present clash is a moral crisis, and that it can be solved only by application of moral principles to the world's problems.

Disagreement begins when people ask for the definition of "morals." A course of conduct or line of action which seems entirely moral to one man may appear to others quite immoral. Yet the essentials of morality have been preached and taught for thousands of years by great spiritual leaders, all of whom the world respects and one of whom the Christian world believes to have been the very incarnation of God.

The reason why the well-known and easily grasped principles of morality have never been applied in human affairs is that they are hard medicine for men to take who are ambitious for power, for glory, for wealth, for worldly security or for luxury. They delude themselves by believing that such things are essential to human happiness.

REARMAMENT . . . . MRA

I have been lately in California observing at first hand, both from without and within, the largest and most widespread movement in modern times to bring the essential principles of Christian morality back as a living, vital force in human affairs. Moral Re-Armament — "MRA," as its followers abbreviate it — is a world-wide effort to change the world by changing the lives, and therefore the outlook, of the people in it.

Started by the founder of the "Oxford Group," Dr. Frank Buchman, less than a year ago, MRA has already teams of workers in sixty countries and has enlisted the support of the rulers and political leaders of many nations, who see in it the one possible solution for national and international problems.

Literally like an army with banners, a thousand men and women from all the world descended upon California in July, and from the Hollywood Bowl to the Treasure Island World's Fair, stirred the whole Pacific Coast to a new realization that all our world problems are human problems and therefore moral problems. Within a month thousands in California had joined the hundreds of thousands of men and women elsewhere in the world. Their lives had been changed, and they had found peace and happiness such as they never had known or dared to hope for.

I think everybody will agree that if everybody were honest, none was selfish, all led pure lives and literally loved their neighbors as themselves there would be an end to war, to social and economic strife and inequalities — in short, a revolution. Everybody will agree, too, that a change in the lives of men cannot be wrought by human power but only by the Divine Spirit.

So Jesus taught. Stripped of all theological and sectarian dogma and doctrine, these principles of the Oxford Group are the essential principles of all religions. The Group has no organization, no creed, no doctrines other than those. It asks none to change his church affiliations, but rather urges all to help bring fresh spiritual strength to the church.

Invisible Fathers

Thirteen hundred little children stand in the Yasukuni Shrine in Tokyo. They are silent and sober, with the great black eyes of Japanese children. But they do not cry as they pray silently, with little heads bowed.

They have been brought from every corner of Japan by a war relief organization, for a ceremony. And they all have one thing in common — their fathers have been killed in the Chinese invasion.

A general and prince, clinking with medals, speaks to them. Their fathers are not dead, the voice assures them, only invisible, still watching them to see that they serve well the state their fathers served.

Which is the way of the Militarist all over the world: not only to take away the most precious lives, but to insist that this is a very fine thing, and to induce in the next generation the mood that will make them walk cheerfully up to the chopping block in their turn. — Ottawa Citizen

Why Pass Judgment ?

Idle gossip is about the worst work that the human mind can be asked to undertake, says George Matthew Adams, the well-known writer. Especially if that gossip concerns some individual about whose background and daily thoughts there is not one iota of knowledge. It is like discussing an undiscovered country.

The uncaring do so many things open to gossip that their conduct can be easily overlooked as unimportant —but if a man or woman once becomes prominent and useful, then it is that the gossip mongers get busy, as though it were their duty (having nothing else on their mind) to find some flaw of character on which to leap. How easy it is, then, for those who do not know, to unjustly misjudge.

We find it difficult, even, to understand ourselves. How unintelligent, then, for others to think that they understand us better, and so place ourselves as superior judges of our thoughts and actions.

There is nothing constructive about passing judgment upon some one else, or in idle gossip about him or her.

The atmosphere becomes clear and clean, and there is an elevated tone to everything spoken, when, in a gathering place, people begin to say good things about an absent one, or about one in high public affairs.

If I were the publisher of a newspaper I would not allow a column in my newspaper that talked scandal, or idle gossip. Interesting talks about real people, yes. But there would be no key-hole reporters on my staff. I could get along without readers only attracted to the troubles and misfortunes of others, or their mistakes.

It is bad enough to pass judgment upon one you know without extending that to those whom you have never met, or known. Friends do not misjudge, or gossip.

— Winchester Press

Eye Wants Book

The "Great Red Book of Eye," which is 400 years older than Magna Charta, is being sought by Miss M. E. Short, mayor of Eye, England. It contains manuscript copies of the four Gospels and was taken to England in 636 by Saint Felix. It was apparently borrowed by a nobleman about 80 years ago and never returned. Eye wants to reclaim it for an exhibition of local documents.

It is not enough to pass good laws. It is necessary to administer and enforce those laws. —Thomas. E. Dewey

The Brownsburg W.I. are holding a card party on Oct. 3rd. Watch for further particulars.

The Senior Mission Circle of Maple Avenue Baptist Church held their September meeting at the home of Mrs. J. A. McKenzie, Lachute Road, on Tuesday evening. Mrs. J. S. Giles led in the devotional part of the meeting and Mrs. J. Warwick gave an interesting account of the life of the late Mrs. Mary Bates McLaurin, pioneer missionary to India. Delegates were appointed for the Associational Rally to be held in Ormand, Ont., on Oct. 3-4. Mrs. Allen Kennedy, president, presided at the meeting.

The September meeting of the Brownsburg Women's Institute was held on Thursday evening in the Social Club room, with the president in the chair. Response to the roll-call was "My Favorite Magazine or Paper." Mrs. L. Wilson was unanimously appointed convenor of Child Welfare, and Mrs. D. McCullough was appointed convenor for the Red Cross, for Brownsburg Women's Institute.

Mrs C. Vary, the official delegate, gave a report on the convention at Macdonald College and Mrs. L. Morris, county president, spoke on Institute work and the recent annual convention.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Mr. Shirley Simpson has returned from a trip to New York and the World's Fair.

Mrs. F. R. Roth is spending several days in Boston, Mass., and attending the wedding of her nephew, Mr. Wm. Doyle, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Anderson Brown returned to Montreal last week from the island of Anticosti, where they spent the summer. Mrs. Brown spent Friday with her mother, Mrs. F. G. Shaw, then proceeded to Compton, Que., with Mr. Brown, who is engaged with the Moe Lake Mining Co.

Mrs. Jas Morrison, Mrs. Geo. Brassart, Col. and Mrs. H. Brassart spent Sunday with Mrs. A. McDonnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Crevier were in Montreal for the week-end.

Mrs. N. D. Cameron and little son, David, are visiting relatives in Montreal.

Mrs. Geo. Simpson returned to Westmount on Sunday with her family.

Mrs. F. McCallum motored her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Neve, and Nurse N. Cooke, to Montreal on Thursday and returned for them on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Arthur Fournier, who started the butcher business which was taken over by his brother, Patrick, ten years ago, is again in active business. Last Friday he opened a butcher shop in the new building which he erected this summer on a lot purchased from the late Mr. A. McDonnell. It is a brick, two-storey structure, with dwelling, having an inside staircase. Mr. Patrick Fournier continues in business and a third butcher shop is operated by Mr. R. Robillard.

The reconstruction of Mr. K. de la Ronde's home, which was undertaken by Mr. Bernard McClintock, is nearing completion. It is built on a new foundation farther from the road than the old homestead, destroyed by fire on Dec. 26. Dormer windows, sunroom and stone fireplace make this a most attractive and modern home.

School opened on Tuesday morning, Sept. 5. Mr. C. L. Brownlee, principal, and Mr. R. Montague, spent most of the summer at Queen's University, Kingston. Mrs. H. McEwan has charge of Grades IV and V. Miss D. Leroy was greeted by several new faces, though most of them had familiar surnames. A new drain replaced an old one, during the summer.

A harvest thanksgiving service was held on Thursday evening Sept. 7th, in Christ Church. Fruit, flowers, vegetables and grain, admirably arranged, made a colorful decoration. Dean R. L. Booy conducted the service and the Ven. Archbishop Gower-Rees, of Montreal, was the guest preacher. He referred to the harvest service as the most popular festival of the church. The deepest feeling of God's bounty is usually realized by those who sow and reap, he said, receiving the reward of their labor directly from God's hand. Looking to the future he propounded the question, "Does God know what is going to happen?" Having spent four and a half years as senior chaplain of the C.E.F. in the World War, he encountered all sorts of queries. This was asked by a young engineer wnose family had suffered greatly in the war. The answer he gave then is the answer he gives now, an emphatic "No." God has given to man the will to choose and follow his own way. The preacher affirmed his belief in the power of prayer, and called upon the hearers to engage in sincere and frequent prayer. So we may learn the will of God and prepare ourselves to accept His will.

The solo, "Spirit Divine," was sung in a sincere and impressive manner by Mrs. Fred Robertson.

The fine entertainment staged on the riverbank lawn at the Barracks Museum was enjoyed by as enthusiastic, if not quite as large, an audience as the last one. The play by the Como group was as impressive to the players as to the onlookers, many of whom, no doubt, wished that all history could be learnt in that realistic manner. September 9 was a red letter day in the social calendar, and also marked a step further in the interests of the Museum.

tow-up and ride down type so very popular everywhere. He also pointed out the excellence of the Morin Heights terrain for this purpose and added that the club should pursue its work with even greater vigor than before.

The president then thanked Mr. Johannsen and accepted his suggestions as a basis for a war time policy for his club. He said further that since the physical training of the enemy's youth was a factor upon which they put such reliance, it seemed logical that we should meet the challenge by concentrating on the physical development of our school children. The president further remarked that the advice and co-operation of both youth movement leaders and teachers was solicited so that the new policy of the club might be carried out in the most effective way. No official C.A.S.A. meets for the club would be asked for this year.

The C.N.R. representatives promised their support in working out the transportation problems involved in Saturday skiing parties for the school children.

Anticipating difficulties in financing this undertaking which could not be expected to be self supporting, it was decided to organize a dance on the Saturday before Thanksgiving as a preliminary effort to raising funds, and the customary willing co-operation of the entire municipality of Morin Heights was solicited.

Social and Personal

Miss Alma Riddell, of Montreal, visited friends in town last Sunday.

Mr. Wm. McFaul and son, Lester, of Ottawa, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McFaul.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McEntyre are on a motor trip this week to Quebec City, Ste. Anne de Beaupré and other points.

Miss Effie Pollock, who has returned from Bermuda, spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pollock.

Mrs. A. C. Shong, of Milwaukee, Wis., has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham for six weeks.

Miss Grace McMahon, of Thurso, was a week-end visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. McMahon.

The Misses Jean Graham and Freda Parker, and Mr. David Morrison, left last week for Macdonald College to take the teachers' course.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Bain and family, of Amherst, Mass., were the guests of Mrs. John Scott and other friends over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Calder and daughter Linda, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Boyd, of Montreal, and Miss Evelyn Hamilton, R.N., of Temaskaming, Que., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hamilton.

Engagement

Lt.-Col. and Mrs. J. E. Seale, of Morin Heights, announce the engagement of their younger daughter, Grace Margaret, to Mr. Leslie Gordon Hollingworth, of Montreal, the marriage to take place in the Morin Heights United Church on Saturday, Sept. 23rd.

Entertain for Bride-Elect

Mrs. James Warwick entertained at a "cup and saucer shower" on Thursday evening, and Miss Grace Lavis at a "kitchen shower" on Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Louise Parker, whose marriage to Mr. Lawrence Cruise takes place on Saturday.

Presentation to Young Townsman

On Wednesday evening a banquet was tendered to Mr. Lawrence Cruise at the St. Andrews Inn. A large number of friends gathered to wish him well in his approaching marriage. Toasts were proposed to the bride-elect, Miss Louise Parker, and to Mr. Cruise, to which the honored guest fittingly replied.

A beautiful set of silver cutlery was presented as a token of friendship, from the many attending, for which Mr. Cruise expressed his sincere appreciation.

After the supper a happy time was spent in singing old-time songs, Mr. Paul Courville officiating at the piano.

Honored on Approaching Marriage

Among those who have entertained recently in honor of Miss Grace M. Seale, of Morin Heights, whose marriage to Mr. Leslie G. Hollingworth, of Montreal, is to take place on September 23rd at Morin Heights United Church, are —

Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Allan Buxton, Mille Isles, who entertained at a crystal shower; and Mrs. J. Douglas Davis, Morin Heights, who entertained the C.G.I.T. and the choir of the United Church. Since the organization of the C.G.I.T. group several years ago, Miss Seale has been its leader, and the girls presented to her a walnut occasional-table — the presentation being made by Miss Eunice Seale, one of the first members of the group. On behalf of the choir, Mrs. Rogers presented Miss Seale with a pottery-based table lamp.

Many old friends, gathered also at the home of Mrs. W. J. Deacon, Lachute, on Sept. 13th to show their affection in tangible form by a shower of pyrex cooking dishes and a silver cream jug, sugar basin and tray.

Among the Churches

Harvest Thanksgiving at St. Andrews East

On Thursday, Sept. 7th, the Festival Thanksgiving for the "Blessings of Harvest" was held at Christ Church, and it is no exaggeration to state that, the large number present listened spell-bound to the message delivered by the Venerable Archdeacon A. P. Gower Rees, M.A., D.C.L., M.C., the guest preacher.

Led by the ladies' choir, the congregation certainly obeyed the injunction of the Psalmist to "Praise the Lord, for His mercies still endure, ever faithful, ever sure!"

Mrs. Fred Robinson, soprano soloist, gave a very devout and pleasing rendition of the sacred song, "Spirit Divine," by Bernard Hamblen, and Mrs. K. Dorion, organist, rendered most efficient service as accompanist.

As in previous years, the ladies of the W.A. were responsible for decorating the church.

The rector, Rural Dean Booy, wishes to express his sincere thanks to all who contributed in any way to the beauty and dignity of the service.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Matter" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, Sept. 17th.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 73:26. "My flesh and my heart faileth: but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noon-day." (Psalms 91; 5, 6).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The material so-called gases and forces are counterfeits of the spiritual forces of divine Mind, whose potency is Truth, whose attraction is Love, whose adhesion and cohesion are Life, perpetuating the eternal facts of being . . . The manifestations of evil, which counterfeit divine justice, are called in the Scriptures, "The Anger of the Lord." In reality, they show the self-destruction of error or matter and point to matter's opposite, the strength and permanency of Spirit. (Page 293).

Annual Meeting of Bible Society

The Lachute branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society will hold its annual meeting on Sunday evening, October 15th, at 7 o'clock in the United Church hall.

Rev. James Adams, B.A., of Montreal, will give a lecture on "British Kings and the Bible," illustrated by a set of very fine slides.

Several of the churches have agreed to give up their evening service so that their people may attend this meeting. S14-O12-2c

Lakefield W.A. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of Lakefield W.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lorne Dawson. The treasurer reported that approximately $100 was realized at the annual bazaar held last month.

It was decided that two new heaters should be purchased for the church, the rector and Mrs. T. McCambly being appointed to make the selection. Plans were made for the annual "Harvest Home" to be held on Thursday, September 21st, with Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, of Montreal, as guest preacher. It was agreed that the dinner served after the thanksgiving service would be free to the local school children only.

Rev. A. E. Mount closed the meeting with prayer.

Two beautiful iron lamps have been purchased from Montreal for the front entrance to Holy Trinity Church. Not only do they add considerably to the appearance of the church, but they will also be extremely useful in the evenings when the congregation enters and leaves the building. Another lamp of similar design is to be placed over the entrance of the Gibb Parish Hall.

Great Grandson of Founder Is Church Anniversary Speaker

Grenville — Preacher at the 107th anniversary of St. Matthew's Church, on Monday, Sept. 21st — the Rev. C. C. Phillips, is a man closely connected with this district by his ancestry. His great-grandfather, Rev. Joseph Abbott, was the builder of the churches at Grenville and Lakefield, and to him this district owed much in its early days. Mr. Phillips is the grandson of Sir John Abbott, the Grenville boy who became Prime Minister of Canada, and the son of Canon Phillips, for many years rector of Hawkesbury. In his own right, Mr. Phillips is known as an interesting speaker. He was for some years rector of Fitzroy Harbour, and is now rector of North Gower, Ontario. It is interesting to think that 107 years after the church was built, the great-grandson of its founder should preach at the anniversary service.

Christianity is not merely a scheme to increase the population of heaven. Its purpose for its followers is not primarily to get to heaven, but to bring heaven down to earth.

Mighty 'White Dwarfs'

In the depths of space are a number of planetary nebulae—clouds of stars—the center stars of which are the hottest known to astronomy. Abnormally hot and abnormally small, these center stars are known as "white dwarfs." One such is about half the size of this earth, but is so dense that it contains 1,000,000 times as much substance—its density being 36,000,000 times that of water. In other words, while a cubic foot of water on earth contains 1,000 ounces, a cubic foot of matter in this star contains 1,000,000 tons. A pin head of this starry matter would crush a man to death, says London Tit-Bits magazine.

Applying the Term Free Lance

Sir Walter Scott and later writers applied the term free lance to professional soldiers of the Middle ages whose services were purchasable by any feudal lord willing to pay the required price. Sometimes the free lance was a roving knight who had a small band of armed horsemen under his command.

E-I-R-E-N-I-C-O-N

Is it human? Is it righteous?

Poor blind humans on this Island
Whirling through an ether sea,
Circling out upon this earth-ball
One of many spheres that be —
Canopied by air and cloud drift,
Far apart from other life,
Far removed from other planets,
Yet unsettled, yet in strife!

Why dissensions here amongst you?
Little peoples, what's your aim?
What's the purpose of your being?
Is it money, greed, and shame?

Surely you were not intended,
Made and fashioned as you are,
In His likeness, The Ideal,
Thus to wrangle, steal, and war!
Rather gather up the sunbeams,
Gather up the moonbeams, too,
And the star-gleams to your bosoms,
Then refresh with morning-dew.

Look upon your gifts, God given,
Out upon all beauteous earth,
Broad expanding fields and forests,
Lakes and rivers filled with worth.
Sun and moon and stars to guide you,
Go be happy and agreed —
Mankind in your more than plenty,
Share and share with those in need!

Finest of all things created!
Superbeings given trust
Over all the lesser herdlings
As your super brains think just!
Prate of million lives conserved —
Millions more though, made to bleed,
Fight and die in beastly warnings
On grim battle-fields, for greed!

Is it human? Is it righteous?
Is it what your God gave out?
No, it can't be! Other purpose
Speaks out from the signs about.

Individuals of all nations,
Harken to the voice of God!
Pledge your interests in a hand-shake,
Guaranteeing war outlawed;
Making hearts beat light and happy—
Proving you, yourselves have answered:
'Man, the superman, has risen
Up to what is best within him;
Taken God into his graces,
Changed to heavens all earth's life-book;
Erased what's brutal from its pages—
From all pagan bloody pages;
Making harmony and brotherhood
Reign instead of the old devil;
Scrapping all cruel war's habilliments —
All cruel war's destructive weapons;
Bringing mankind as was ordained
Into peaceful life co-mingling,
Based on love and kindly feelings;
Firm denouncing what's demeaning;
All one God, one flag, one people
In a world-wide Federation
Guided by a code of Ethics,
Rather than by bombs and field-guns,
Or by flags that wave unfurled!"

Or, Great Man come out of jungle!
Rise to what your highest dictates:
Brothers as to brothers should you
Join your hands in friendly peace,
Till the day come when you must go
Onward from this earth-worn pilgrimage —
Ever onward, ever upward,
To God's foreordained intention:
Happiness and all perfection —
To the Great Supreme Fulfillment.

Jack Horner's Choice

By Frances Lee Barton

"He stuck out his thumb and pulled out a plum and said 'what a brave boy am I.'"

Jack Horner was not the only one with a plum complex. This delicious fruit has millions of friends. Now that fresh plums are obtainable (as well as home canned), why not featured an unusual plum dessert in your home? Let your little Jack Horner stick in his thumb and pull out a plum — figuratively speaking, of course!

Plums Grenadier

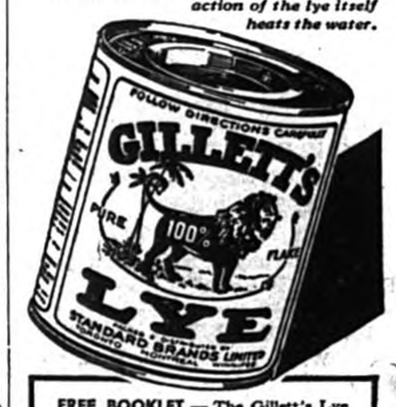

1 package cherry-flavored gelatin; 1 cup hot water; 1 cup juice from plums; 1 cup canned or stewed fresh blue plums.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add plum juice. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in plums. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Serves 6.

Lifts Grease OFF POTS AND PANS

No need to scrape and scrub in slimy water. A solution* of Gillett's Pure Flake Lye just lifts off grease layers . . . loosens hard-baked food . . . takes the drudgery out of washing up. Keep a tin always handy!

*Never dissolve lye in hot water. The action of the lye itself heats the water.

FREE BOOKLET — The Gillett's Lye Booklet tells how this powerful cleanser clears clogged drains . . . keeps outhouses clean and odorless by destroying the contents of the closet . . . how it performs dozens of tasks. Contract for the erection of the Agricultural Exhibition buildings has been awarded to Chapman and Drysdale for $1,750.

A crowd of Italians arrived here this week to work on the St. Andrews railway. They are distributed along the line in tents. McLennan, the contractor, has undertaken to have the grading completed in 60 days.

Mr. Owens, M.P.P., gave a pleasant excursion to a few of his friends, up the North River on the steam yacht owned by Mr. Brisson. The party proceeded 10 or 12 miles upstream from Barron's Bridge.

The Sunday School of St. Luke's Church (Rev. G. Rodgers, rector), held their annual picnic in Lachute recently.

The Great Northern Railway Co. have opened an office for the engineers of the St. Andrews branch, over the store of Robt. Banford.

Nine candidates from Lachute Academy have received highest-grade non-professional teaching diplomas, as follows: Model School—Alexander Dewar, St. Andrews; Elementary—I. Pollock, Hill Head; Annie McOuat, Brownsburg; Mary Armstrong, Genoa; Janet McLean, Brownsburg; Maggie Clarke, Lachute; Adeline Knauf, Thos.' Gore; Maggie Strong, Cambria; Carrie Dixon, Dalesville.

Mr. Rodrigue has erected a fine new barn on his farm, south of the railway track, East End.

K. Davidson, an employee of this office, had his foot crushed in a press and part of his big toe taken off. Dr. Menzies is in attendance.

Good grades of granite, marble, limestone, and sandstone are quarried in Canada.

The special war session of parliament, just closed, is the shortest on record, and in several ways the most notable. Never before were so many matters of urgency to this country so promptly grappled with. At no other time was a meeting of parliament so free from contention. The truce to party strife was perfect; and that so much business of grave importance could be transacted without partyism —all within the short term of five days—is a cause for public congratulation.

St. Andrews—150 persons, French, English and Scotch residents, met in the Town Hall to form a branch of the Red Cross Society.

Dunany — Recent visitors at Clear Lake were — Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McBurney, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McKenzie, Mrs. W. W. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. P. Chabot, Mr. J. R. Parris, Mr. John Hope and Mr. H. Slater.

At the Lachute Academy reopening on Wednesday, a presentation was made to Miss Paton, who is leaving Lachute for Montreal after filling her position for over a quarter of a century as teacher of the primary classes.

Moving pictures will be resumed on Saturday at the Albert Hall, Mr. Bishop having returned from a two weeks' motor tour through the Thousand Islands district.

After 12 years of patient waiting Mr. A. D. Hogg has just received his silver medal award for active service in the South African war.

Ward McAllister, of Lachute Road, has disposed of his farm and is holding a sale of stock and implements.

For many years the Oddfellows have been meeting in the upper part of McFaul's Store in the West Ward. A change becoming necessary, Mr. Robt. McArthur, one of the most enthusiastic members of the Lodge, was meditating the erection of a new store, and Laurentian Lodge asked him to furnish a building that would be adequate for their needs as well. With every willingness Mr. McArthur applied himself to the task, and on Sept. 1st, 255 guests were invited to its formal opening. It is a hall of which the order may be justly proud.

Customer: "Aren't prices high now?"

Merchant: "Yes, madam, everything has gone up except writing paper; it is still stationery."

Hints for Homebodies

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman
By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

HAVE A HOBBY

When you are making your fall plans do not neglect planning to learn something new. Join a class, or start one. You can listen to a lecturer, or you can do your own leading. We get a lot more out of organized work, and learning with others, than we do working by ourselves. A home and family are not enough for any woman. Store away treasure for the days when you have more time and less family. If you have continued to interest yourself in things, you will not develop into one of those pitiful women who do not know what to do with themselves after their families are grown up. Adult education is one of the greatest of modern movements. If you are bewildered and need direction, get in touch with your nearest university. They help those who have not had much formal education as well as the better educated. If they have not what you want, they will direct you how to go about getting it.

NEWSPAPER PEOPLE

As a class, newspaper people are the most interesting I have ever met. For one thing, they know so much. Sometimes you hear it said that the papers print too much. When you hear them get together, take down their back hair, and really talk, you are amazed at the things they know and do not print. Inside stuff always has its appeal. There is so much professional jealousy in many walks of life, but it does not appear in newspaper work. True, they are always glad to beat the other fellow, but they are just as ready to help. That is the thing that struck me so forcibly when I first started to write for publication. Other writers and editors helped me in every possible way — even to suggesting markets. Whenever I sell something, or extend the market for this column my writer friends are as pleased as if they had done it themselves. They are so encouraging, too. If something pleases them, they will say so. Weekly editors are busy people and yet they will take time to commend something that pleases them. Not only editors who print this column, but others, and often they are people I have never met. I have had considerable contact with musicians and know their inability to work together, so the contrast was refreshing. An artist friend tells me that same inability exists among artists. She has recently started to write and she cannot get over the friendliness and encouragement other writers have given her. Not only words, but concrete help. The friendship of other writers has been my greatest gain from my writing.

STAINS ON THE KITCHEN SINK

Even with good care, sometimes brown spots come on the sink. Sometimes it is under the sink strainer, or perhaps tea or coffee cause them. If you use a little Javelle water, you will find that it will bleach them right out. It works equally well on the enamel table-tops. I have never found it necessary to use it on a bath-tub, but I imagine it would clean up any brown spots there, too.

TESTING JELLY

There are several tests which may be made to tell if the jelly has arrived at a jellying point. Let the jelly boil for five minutes after the heated sugar has been added. Remove from the fire while you are testing it to prevent over-cooking. Put a little on a cold plate and cool quickly. If it can be pushed back with a spoon, it is cooked enough. Another way of testing it is from the point of a spoon. Dip a spoon into the syrup, cool slightly, and if the jelly does not come off in drops, but runs together in flakes, the jelly is done. The most accurate method of all is with a candy thermometer. Fruit juice should jell from between 218 and 222 degrees. Dead ripe fruit will not jell, so be careful to choose fruit a little on the green side. The addition of a little lemon juice is a help as the acid increases the jellying power.

PEPPERS

There are two kinds of peppers — sweet and hot. It is very easy to distinguish them. The hot peppers are smaller and have a pointed end. The sweet pepper is larger and the end does not come to a point but is rather blunt. The red pepper of either variety is the green one ripened. It is well to remove the seeds of either variety with a spoon and not with the hands, to avoid a burn. Once after making a pepper pickle, my hands were so badly burned we had to call a doctor. I spent the night with my hands in a basin of cold water!

SWEET RED PEPPER JAM

12 sweet red peppers, 2 cups vinegar, 3 cups sugar.

Remove the seeds from the peppers and put them through the food chopper. Sprinkle with salt and let stand for three hours. Drain and rinse with cold water. Add the vinegar and sugar and boil slowly until the mixture shows a tendency to jell when tested on a cold plate. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Serve with meats or use in sandwiches.

PLUM JAM

A reader has asked me to repeat my plum jam recipe, so here it is. It is really a jelly with the fruit left in. Wash the plums and cover with water until you can just see the water. Boil for twenty minutes after the fruit comes to the boil. Measure and add an equal quantity of sugar. After it comes to the boil again, boil for five minutes. The pits will separate after the sugar is added and they are easy to skim out by using a slotted spoon or a fork. Bottle in sterilized jars and seal.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

British Prime Minister Approves Associated Countrywomen

The following is a quotation from the welcome voiced by Mr. Chamberlain to the recent gathering of the Associated Country Women of the World, in London:

"Country life, and the pleasures, and pursuits of country life are common to all nations, and I can imagine nothing more likely to make for international friendship and understanding than a gathering of the country women, not only of the British Empire, but from all of the countries of the world."

The Women's Institutes are a unit in the A.C.W.W., and were taken from Canada to England during the Great War. They played their part in both countries as a helpful and practical influence, and stand ready once more to aid their countries in every way possible in the present conflict.

Ulster Women Create A New Industry

Belfast — The nimble fingers of Northern Ireland's needlewomen have within a year won for them recognition in three continents for producing fine tapestries and "petit point."

The tapestries are of a kind hitherto only obtainable from a few European centres where the craft has flourished for many generations but is now declining for a variety of reasons.

The 400 workers employed up to now are making tapestries in traditional European designs and appropriate to various furnishing "periods" in fulfilment of orders from the U.S.A., Canada, the Union of South Africa, and Australia.

When choosing Northern Ireland, and particularly County Fermanagh, as the birthplace of the new industry, the founders were swayed by knowledge of the hereditary needlecraft skill of Ulster's womenfolk; but until the last year true tapestry has never been produced in Ulster, with the exception of Victorian "samplers."

Allied to tapestry is "petit point," probably the finest needlework in existence with its 1,600 stitches to the square inch. Here again, Ulster needlewomen have quickly proved their skill, for today examples of artistic workmanship, indistinguishable from their European prototypes which have centuries of experience behind them, are finding their way to the farthest corners of the earth.

HOUSE AND HOME

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

New curtains do as much for a room as a new dress for the average woman, and the curtains should be chosen for many of the same qualities you demand in a dress. Price, beauty, durability and purpose naturally influence your choice of a new dress and these same factors are of prime importance when you curtain your windows.

First make up your mind what you want your window and its curtains to do. Privacy, control of light, a screen for an unsightly view, or a frame for a charming view — the purpose of your curtains determines your choice of fabric and the style of the hanging.

If privacy is your object, either glass curtains or Venetian blinds are essential. You can make the glass curtains yourself if you like, because they require the simplest kind of sewing.

Accuracy in measuring, cutting, basting and stitching is the only requisite because the actual sewing is "plain" indeed — a simple running stitch if you make them by hand or straight stitching if you do them on a sewing machine.

Have all the necessary rods in place and then take the measurements with a yardstick.

Straight, tailored glass curtains planned to secure privacy are shirred on a rod set inside the window casing next to the glass. The curtains are made with an inch heading above the rod, inch hems on both edges, a two-inch hem at the bottom and they reach just to the window sill. Overdraperies are hung on rods attached to the corners of the window trim.

Ruffled glass curtains are delightful in some types of houses and can be tied back or hung straight. Make them with an inch heading, shirr on inset rods and hang to the sill.

In the garden we must keep right on weeding. Wire grass and weeds of every sort should be conscientiously watched for and ripped out of the beds and borders before they have started to form seed heads. If you let these seeds form and ripen they will withstand the winter and germinate joyfully and prolifically in the spring. A weed in time saves more than nine, to paraphrase the traditional stitch.

MODERN WOMEN

By Earlene White

In her green twill uniform Mrs. Jane O'Toole Daly may be seen almost any day in Central Park, New York, where she weeds, prunes, thins and transplants young plants in one of the gardens which dot the large breathing spot in the metropolis. Mrs. Daly works, rain or shine.

She says boys seldom harm the plants and flowers, and they love to come and smell the blooms. She never has any real trouble with them, but carries a police whistle on a chain in case anything should happen. She has been an employee of the Park Department for more than twenty-five years. She and Mrs. Adele Meagher, at Crotona Park, the Bronx, are the only women employed as regular city gardeners in the city.

Mrs. Alexandra Morettis, of Athens, Greece, has a unique position in her own land, that of member of the Ministry of Tourism and Press, and it is her special task wherever she is assigned to go, to give detailed information about Greek industries, commerce and travel facilities.

She likes the United States for many reasons, one of which is the fact that the U.S. was the first government to recognize the independence of Greece. Another reason is that when, as a result of the World War, a million and a half refugees swarmed into Greece, the United States sent money to Greece to help care for them.

Sylvia Weaver, fashion editor of the Los Angeles Times, said recently about getting a job, that you should put your mind definitely on something you want and stay with it. And as to journalism, she says you can start at the top.

Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, of Hungary, originated the idea for a World Centre for Women's Archives, which is to collect and preserve documents and also make them available to students, historians and others. Mary R. Beard, co-author with her husband, Charles A. Beard, of historical works, is one of the leaders of the movements on this continent.

Members of the Housewives' Club of Reykavik, Iceland, have founded a free training school in domestic subjects.

Good Old Swimming Days

The first costume was a long, shapeless garment of flannel in which the modest maiden, and her mother, took her daily dip.

Then came a "more advanced" style — trousers long and straight to the ankle, where they were drawn in. With these were worn a blouse-tunic extending to the knee, and the sleeves reached to the elbow at least. The material used was flannel or rep, black or blue, with red worsted braid as a decoration.

It took five yards of material to make a bathing costume in 1868.

Stockinget was first used about the year 1886, when one-piece garments "came in," with a detachable short skirt. About these costumes, the fashion expert warned: "Care should be taken lest they reveal the figure when wet."

With the advent of mixed bathing, costumes became rather more prim again, with long trousers and even black stockings, to make the proceedings more seemly.

One wonders what our great-grandmothers would think — and say — about the brassier-shorts outfit of today. At least it's more attractive than their angle-trousers and baggy tunics.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

CHARMS

Charms were used by primitive men to keep off the evil eye and to ward off disease.

When I was a boy, fifty years ago, every man, woman and child in the little town where I lived wore about the neck a bag containing a mixture of gum camphor and powdered sulphur, to insure themselves from contracting any malady. Babies had their ears pierced, by the brutal method of driving a needle through them, and then bits of straw were inserted in the holes to keep them open until healed, after which earrings were substituted to take the place of the broom straws.

Mothers would tell you that this was done so that the baby would not have sore eyes. Many foreigners, male and female, adults and aged also had the lobes of their ears punctured and brass rings inserted therein, and that custom was particularly prevalent among the Italian organ-grinders.

With the coming of spring, children were given thrice daily a tablespoon of molasses and sulphur "to clean their blood" and if the town had an epidemic of measles, whooping cough, smallpox or scarlet fever, an additional bag was suspended from necks, containing asafetida — perhaps the most vile smelling drug that exists.

The heat of the body and the perspiration increased the volume and strength of the odor that came from those supposedly protected, so much so in some instances, that a skunk would, by comparison smell like attar of roses.

As one grew older and such diseases as rheumatism developed, the sufferer invariably stole a potato from the grocer, put it in his or her pocket and kept it there, feeling certain that in time they would get well. Horse chestnuts were carried until they shrivelled to half their size, absorbing whatever disease they were supposed to cure.

In a village on the Chesapeake Bay, the negroes who followed fishing and oystering always carried a large piece of alum in their trousers pockets, so that in case they were knocked overboard by a boom jibing, they would float until they regained consciousness and thus be saved.

I have heard many of them tell how, after being rescued, they looked for the alum and it was gone, but it saved their lives. Of course they did not know that alum rapidly dissolves in water, and that they like all the others who followed these practices, were victims of ignorance.

Most parents are firmly convinced that if their children have talent it is inherited; if they have any meanness they pick it up from the neighbors' children.

whom providence has blessed him from year to year. The practice of the golden rule, the presentation to the nation of stalwart, intelligent sons and daughters, the defence of their territory against aggression, have been to my compatriots their main expressions of patriotism. The church, the little village, the large family, the soil enriched with their sweat, the peace and restfulness of the Quebec countryside, have drawn and kept their attention for three hundred years. The sons of French Canada have not been brought up to an atmosphere of militarism, nor have they spent their young days in playing with toy cannon and soldiers. Most of us have never shouldered a gun except to provide game for the family table. Very few have ever had even elementary military training. It cannot be expected then that in three days every one of them will be clamoring for a one-way passage to the western front, or that, like some of us, their hearts will skip a beat at the mention of peace in Europe and the independence of Poland. Yet their honesty of purpose, their love of freedom, and devotion to Christian institutions, their loyalty to their king, cannot be challenged. It may well be that this passionate love for their own land has somewhat obscured the wider, the more international outlook of the welfare of mankind which we are now being asked to uphold and defend. But let me assure hon. members that when Baptiste discovers that his freedom, institutions and essential rights which he prizes so dearly are really threatened, there will be no one who will fight more savagely to defend them. Meanwhile do not judge him harshly or impute to him motives that he never even conceived. Give him the British treatment of fair play and fair dealing, and his courage will not fail when an emergency arises.

Now, Mr. Speaker, speaking as a French-Canadian and proud to be one, I wish to state most emphatically that my race never contemplated disloyalty to the king, nor is there at this moment any doubt as to where our duty lies. Our long and honourable history testifies eloquently to that effect, and it can be truthfully said that if this country is in danger of attack from within or without, if it be true that our liberties and freedom, our institutions and existence, are seriously threatened, every single French-Canadian, young and old, will approve and support every step taken to ensure the maintenance of our status as a free nation within the British commonwealth, together with assuring the absolute inviolability of our territory.

Mr. Speaker, I have in this house at one time—and I do not regret it—expressed nationalistic views. I am still at heart a nationalist. But I claim to be also a good Canadian. And I have no shame in sitting on my nationalistic principles for the time of this war. I have stated in this house that I was of the opinion that Canada was not necessarily at war when Britain was at war, and I have insisted that we should be the masters of our own destiny and that we should not and could not docilely accept direction of our foreign policy from anyone else. I still submit that we cannot be made pawns on the international chessboard, nor should we be ordered about. I still adhere profoundly to these views, and I have no apology to offer for having expressed them in times of peace. Further, I believe and have always believed that under international law our neutrality might have been proclaimed, provided we had the means to defend it. Yet it would serve no purpose to discuss these views today, because the issue of neutrality or war has been decided, and we have cast in our lot with that of Great Britain and France. The government of the day has a large majority. I have no doubt that it will declare itself able and willing to accept full responsibility for what will be done in the time to come.

I do not mind stating here that had France and Great Britain concluded an alliance with Soviet Russia, I should have doubted their sincerity in the defence of Christianity, and would have opposed participation, because I would have considered such an alliance a direct prostitution of all the Christian principles of freedom and individual liberty which we have now undertaken to uphold and defend.

The evident perfection of the double-crossing methods followed by the Russian authorities should be sufficient indication of what may be expected here in Canada if communism is allowed to filter through. Communism can do no less than undermine our national edifice, and it should be considered an open enemy to Canada on the same footing as nazism. These two false ideologies are basically the same, and a further immediate danger lurks in the fact that they have to all intents and purposes recently merged in Europe, and will certainly do so here if not immediately checkmated. Yet there are some individuals in Canada who still have sufficient effrontery to glorify the communistic principles of their Russian comrades.

I accept unreservedly the view which has been expressed that we are in a state of war now, not so much because we are a part of the British commonwealth of free nations but because we have already made known to the world that Canada stands at the side of Great Britain. That, in my humble opinion, is a direct and positive commitment from which we cannot recede, and we must abide by it. The government have spoken to the world for the nation, and we are definitely, irrevocably and in honour bound by what our government have said and done.

I for one deeply regret that the enormous sacrifices of men and money during the last war have not provided Canada with sufficient guarantees of lasting peace. There is no doubt that after the present conflict Canada will secure a clearer definition of its international status, so that it will not be eternally bound to the changing courses of European diplomacy. However, this does not change our present international situation, and we must be prepared to face a long war with a treacherous, inhuman and diabolically intelligent enemy.

This parliament must now decide the degree and form of co-operation which Canada shall furnish to the allies. To my mind this co-operation should be such that, although it shall be precious and constant, it will not endanger the unity and internal peace of this nation, nor bring about financial ruin or economic suicide. The preservation of true Canadian interests should be our prime purpose, over and above the desire to help our allies, because we must ever remember that we owe ourselves first to Canada, which, notwithstanding what may be said, is the first country we are sworn to honour and defend. Nothing, however, should be done to weaken faith in the British link, and we must proceed by such means and degrees as will convince every Canadian that it is a privilege and an honour to belong to the commonwealth. Nothing should be done in the nature of coercion which will even faintly resemble nazi means and methods. British ties and connections appear indispensable to us, but we must be prepared to do what is essential to preserve and maintain these links here. More than ever I think we must take stock of our financial situation and the everyday living conditions of our own people before we allow our loyalty and sympathy to run away with out better judgment. Our first responsibility is the welfare and security of our people, and we would not be serving the cause of the commonwealth or the principles of government it has come to represent if in these early days of conflict we embarked upon a policy of such proportions that the physical and economic well-being of the bulk of our population would be seriously threatened.

In the three days preceding this session, Mr. Speaker, in common with so many others from the province of Quebec I was inundated with letters and telegrams telling me what I should do and what I should not do. In view of these communications I immediately set out to consult representative English and French-Canadians in every poll of my constituency, and those I invited to my causes were both Liberals and Conservatives. I have spoken to clergymen, labourers, farmers, industrialists, young men and mothers, and I obtained these results: fifteen per cent favor enforced participation to the last man and the last dollar. Twenty per cent are for complete isolation. Sixty-five per cent want co-operation within our means and resources, preferably by the extension of credits, gifts of provisions and foodstuffs, and the manufacture of planes and munitions. Voluntary enlistment is also approved. I must say frankly and sincerely, however, that in my constituency at least there is a very strong and earnest sentiment against conscription of man power.

My first duty, as I see it, is to the constituents who elected me, and I adopt the views expressed by the majority of my constituents, in whose good, hard common sense I have absolute faith. So, Mr. Speaker, I shall support co-operation with Great Great Britain and France. That co-operation, however, must first take into account our immediate and best Canadian interests, and that co-operation must not deprive the individual Canadian of his inalienable right to choose honestly for himself whether he shall or shall not serve. The preservation of individual liberty and freedom must be the keynote of this co-operation; for he serves devotedly only a cause which he espouses freely, while he who fights for a cause in which he does not believe is beaten before he starts. Perhaps I could best express my thoughts on the matter by saying that those who have indicated a desire to enlist should be immediately accommodated, while those who think they can serve Canada by carrying on their tasks at home should not be molested. As I said before, we are engaged in a struggle for freedom. Let freedom of thought and action be first maintained and honoured within our own borders. Let every Canadian be made to feel that freedom, autonomy, justice and absolute liberty for everyone will forever be practiced in this country, in time of peace as in time of war.

With these reservations I declare without hesitation that I choose to align myself with those other French-Canadians who feel that their greatest security and best guarantee at this time lie within the British commonwealth. Let me repeat that: I align myself with those who feel that their peace, security and welfare at the moment lie in the sincere acceptance of the will of the majority of this house. I shall vote for the address to indicate my willingness to co-operate. Of course at the same time I reserve the right to decide on each measure and estimate that may be brought into the house. I do not subscribe to a blank cheque policy in matters of war, because when it comes to the lives of men and colossal expenditures, every elected member must very carefully study the measures brought down, since they directly affect the immediate safety and welfare of every man, woman and child in each constituency throughout the country.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I wish to close with these words: War is the very negation of Christianity. Evidently, instead of rearming morally, as we should have been doing, we as individuals and as nations have been in some way derelict to the divine precept. Should it be said that He has cast his wrath upon the world, and ordered that for the second time in twenty-five years we must be subjected to anxiety and misery? Be that as it may, it behooves Christianity to accept respectfully that which has been permitted by Him to happen. Surely we must no longer hesitate to vow voluntary obedience to His command, "Love thy neighbour." We must abandon and fight to the last ditch the pagan concept of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. Yet I am sure victory shall be achieved, for He will not permit that one man shall rule by the sword without dying by the sword.

Canada Has Economic Advantage Over War-Prepared Countries

Should Permit Substantial War Contributions With No Great Detriment to Standard of Living

Ottawa, Sept. 19—In a score of ways the Dominion Government is mobolizing man-power and economic resources of Canada so as to make the most effective contribution to the cause of the democracies.

Given whole-hearted co-operation by the Canadian people, the authorities here are satisfied that Canada can make a greater addition to the strength of Britain and France than any other member of the Commonwealth.

While every Canadian will be called upon to make wartime sacrifices, the potential resources of Canada are so great that the surpluses needed to aid Britain and France can, with efficient and zealous organization, be provided without reducing the standard of living in Canada much below present levels. In this respect Canada is vastly ahead of those countries which have been living "from hand to mouth" with every ounce of potential energy diverted into war preparation.

Vast Reserves of Strength

Canada has a great reserve of strength, economic and financial. This was demonstrated in 1914-18, and her capacity is far greater to-day than it was then. Her population is nearly 40% higher. There are upwards of 300,000 unemployed persons capable of being absorbed into industry (half of them now on relief). If war demands grow still greater, another 200,000 persons could probably be drafted from occupations which could be neglected somewhat in wartime to more productive occupations.

The efficiency of Canada's productive machine can be rapidly improved under the stress of war demands. Economists point out that full productivity and employment would increase the national income at least one billion dollars annually. In other words an annual contribution of one billion dollars a year could be made to the Allied cause without reducing the present standard of living in Canada. Under extreme stress, and with some privation, this might even be doubled. The magnitude of these figures is best measured by a comparison. During the past five years, Germany has spent about four billion dollars a year upon her war machine. Canada alone, once her efforts are geared up to fullest production, might be able to throw in a contribution of two billion dollars annually into helping to win the war. Germany is believed to have reached her maximum economic capacity, whereas most of the two billions that Canada could contribute would be new wealth, created by the employment of idle manpower and idle resources.

These are startling facts, and it will be well to remember them when peace-time comes again. They are a challenge to our unemployment and low standards of living of recent years.

Fair Division of Burden

Though the financing of Canada's war effort will be a heavy burden upon the Dominion Government, the budget of last week is an encouraging sign that the load is to be distributed as fairly as possible among the Canadian people.

The money to finance the war will come from three sources:

1. New taxes, and higher yield of old taxes.
2. Borrowing.
3. Transfer of sums now spent on unemployment relief, wheat and other agricultural assistances, deficits on the government railways and steamships, to war effort.

In 1914-1918 the government provided something like 400 million dollars a year for four years toward winning the war. This time the sum will be greater if the war lasts as long.

However, the cessation of unemployment, the higher prices for agricultural products, and the full employment of Canada's transportation systems will lift a load of upwards of 200 millions annually from the Dominion treasury. This sum can then be spent upon war effort, and will lessen by that amount the sums needed to be raised by taxation and by borrowing.

The productivity of the new taxes can only be estimated. In the first full year they will approach 100 millions, I expect. If this is so, the necessary borrowing will not be a large item. The government has no intention of creating a lot of 'war millionaires' comfortably fixed up with 'tax-free' bonds. That mistake of the last war has been carefully studied since. It is safe to say it will not be repeated.

Buckingham Editor Dies

Albert H. Parker, owner and editor of the weekly Buckingham Post, died at his home on Sunday. He was 81.

Parker went to Buckingham from his Manotick, Ont., home at the age of nine and had lived there ever since. In 1903 he took over the Buckingham Post. He was known as an authority on the history of the district as well as a trout fishing enthusiast. He was a member of several local and district service clubs.

Sanatorium Takes Initiative In Establishing Red Cross Branch at Ste. Agathe

The Laurentian Sanatorium at Ste. Agathe des Monts is taking the lead in forming a Red Cross Society for the district. The ladies of the Agatha Guild, Trinity Church, have been invited to co-operate. The Sanatorium is in a position to do constructive work of this kind, for the matron, Miss M. Buchanan, has a large staff of registered nurses who can offer their services for the training of those who feel it is their duty to help in the cause.

For the past two and a half years, the patients have been encouraged in occupational-therapy as an important part of their cure. A few hours a week are devoted to certain light occupations such as leather work, basketry, weaving, knitting, etc., under the expert attention of Miss Robertson, a graduate therapist. It is now suggested that the occupational-therapy classes be taken over by the Red Cross Society, and the services of the patients used in the best manner for the benefit of the Society.

Apathetic to Strains of National Prayer

As patriotism rises to the need of the hour a commendable note is sounded in the playing of "God Save the King" at the local theatres, preceding and concluding each evening's program . . It is deplorable to notice, however, that even some of the leading citizens among our English-speaking community neglect to stand during the playing of their national anthem . . . While young Canadians are signing up for service and destinies unknown, it would appear too great a strain on the patriotism of these few older citizens to rise from their seats during one stanza of "God Save the King."

Ottawa Winter Fair Is Cancelled

The Ottawa Winter Fair, scheduled for November 14-15-16-17, will be cancelled this year due to the Coliseum being required by the Department of National Defence. Dr. E. S. Archibald, President, made announcement of the cancellation this week.

BETTER HIGHWAY SIGNS IN QUEBEC NEXT YEAR

Changes in the present system of road-side markers, which will warn motorists of hazards of the highway as well as indicating approaches to towns and villages throughout the province, are planned by the Quebec Roads Department.

Engineers acting under the instructions of Roads Minister Anatole Carigan, are studying a new traffic sign system which will be installed during the winter months and which will be completed when the highways are opened to tourist traffic next spring.

Approaches to historic towns and villages of the province will be marked by signs carrying the coat-of-arms of the town and bearing the date on which the town or village was founded.

Another innovation being considered is the embellishment of bridge approaches and intersections. It is also planned to rebuild and preserve the hundreds of old mills which dot the countryside and to enhance the historic value of other spots which would be interesting to visitors.

Quebec Bureau of Mines Opens Up New Territory

The Quebec Minister of Mines and Fisheries announces that contracts have been let and construction has started on a new mine road in the province.

This contract is for the construction of a section 38½ miles long on the new main road from Senneterre to Flordin and Lake Rose mines. Last year, this road was stumped and cleared for a distance of 73 miles. As the Bell River is navigable in a northerly direction to a point roughly 35 miles from Senneterre the new road will be completed from this point for a distance of about 38½ miles northward to allow transportation by auto-trucks. This new road and a branch road 3.42 miles long will serve the Flordin mine in Desjardins Township, Abitibi Territory, where the International (Quebec) Mining Corporation have already embarked on an extensive development program, and also the Lake Rose mine in Currie Township.

At present there are more than 500 men engaged in different sections of the mining area, in the various provincial road projects.

Bell Telephone Policy Clears Way for Employees to Enroll for Service

In a practical gesture to co-operate with the Dominion program, the Bell Telephone Company has been prompt to outline its policy affecting employees who desire to enlist for war service. A circular signed by C. F. Sise, president of the Bell, states: "The service which we as a company render the community, was never of more importance to the country's welfare than it is in this grave crisis. Already we have pledged ourselves to do everything within our power to aid the Government."

The circular further outlines "the extent to which we are prepared to aid those associating themselves with the Militia and Air Services Forces," including the following provisions:

1 Regular employees in the service of the Company as of September 1st, 1939, shall be granted leave of absence with eligibility to benefits in case of death in accordance with the Plan for Employees' Pensions, Disability Benefits, and Death Benefits.

2 The Company undertakes to re-employ such employees upon discharge from the army, navy, or air force service, and the period of time covered by such services will be credited to the employee for the purposes of the Plan for Employees' Pensions, Disability Benefits and Death Benefits.

3 On behalf of the dependents of married employees and of the dependent children of employees who are widowers, payments will be made by this Company which, together with service pay and all allowances from the Government, will equal the employees' basic wage. In no case, however, shall the amount payable by this Company exceed one-half of the employees' basic rate of pay.

4 In the case of other employees with dependents, the Company upon submission of the necessary evidence as to dependency will give consideration to the granting of an allowance on behalf of their dependents.

Usually the louder a man talks the less it amounts to.

Mayor C. J. Staniforth, Arundel, Elected County Warden at Regular Council Session

PASS MOTION TO OPEN FUTURE ASSEMBLIES WITH PRAYER

The regular quarterly meeting of the County Council was held in the Court House, Lachute, last week with Leslie Adamson, Warden, of Wentworth; W. X. Beauchamp, Grenville and Augmentation; R. Legault, Calumet; C. J. Staniforth, Arundel; Jos. E. Seale, Morin; D. McTavish, Harrington; J. G. Hadley, St. Jerusalem; A. Bertrand, Township of Howard; R. B. Owen, Montcalm; A. Dawson, Mille Isles; H. Lapierre, Carillon; J. Chambers, Chatham; and A. O. Kerr, The Gore, in attendance.

On motion of Councillor Legault, seconded by Councillor Owen, C. J. Staniforth was named and elected as Warden for the ensuing term, 1939-1940.

Jno. L. Skaife, of Fletcher, Skaife and Co., was elected auditor on motion of Coun. Hadley, seconded by Coun. Adamson.

On motion of Coun. Owen, seconded by Coun. Hadley, it was voted to rent quarters in the Court House for use of the Provincial Police.

Zenophon Plouffe was named as special superintendent, at the request of the Parish of St. Jerusalem, to act on establishment of a ditch petitioned by rate payers of East Settlement Front Road, South.

It was moved by Coun. Seale, seconded by Coun. Adamson, that Coun. J. G. Hadley be authorized to sign cheques in the absence of the Warden.

It was also moved by Coun. Legault, seconded by Coun. Bertrand, and resolved, that in future all meetings of the County Council be opened by prayer.

A resolution was passed on motion of Coun. McTavish, seconded by Coun. Kerr, approving a resolution sent from St. George de Beauce, asking the Government to take over entire payments for hospitalization of public charities and insane patients, as the municipalities find these accounts too burdensome.

THE DUKE OF WINDSOR RETURNS HOME

The Duke of Windsor has returned to England to help Britain in her present conflict with Germany. The Duke and Duchess are staying with friends in the country, a few miles south of London, until His Royal Highness receives an appointment with the forces. —It is reported the Duke will shortly proceed abroad as a major general in the British expeditionary forces.

Cyclists Have Responsibilities As Unit in Traffic System

(Ottawa Journal)

Bicycle riders, new and otherwise, boys and men, need to realize that they are units in the traffic problem with responsibilities recognized under the Highway Traffic Act; that recklessness can be displayed with a bicycle as with a motor car or a ten-ton truck; that care, caution and common sense are as essential to the rider of one as the driver of another.

Bicyclists ought to be trained in a few simple rules: to ride in a straight line, to signal left turns, to keep close to the curb, not to carry a passenger, and above all, not to take any chances. If a bicycle collides with a motor car it is invariably the bicyclist who gets the worst of it.

Youngsters in the pride of their first machines ought to be instructed in safe riding, told to obey traffic signals, to use moderate speed. They should be told that a good rider is a safe rider, that a competent rider rarely if ever finds himself in an accident, and that anything worth doing at all is worth doing well.

Traffic Officer on Job After Accident

Traffic Constable H. Jones, of Lachute, who suffered injuries while on highway patrol recently, is again on the job. Jones returned to his regular duties on Monday.

HUNTING SEASON BRINGS WARNING ON FIRE-ARMS

"Now that the hunting season is open it is my duty to warn the public of the dangers of various types of firearms" declared president Alfred Leduc of the Quebec Safety League, at a meeting of this organization held recently.

"It is most important to know how to use firearms safely. Each year, through carelessness, many people are killed. Hundreds of children also die from wounds caused by firearms which they believe to be unloaded.

"Before using a firearm," Mr. Leduc said, "you should break the gun, remove the bolt or put the safety catch on; or if it is an automatic one, remove the magazine and the cartridges. After a misfire, one should wait at least a minute before clearing the gun. Be sure the gun is unloaded before cleaning it. Keep the gun thoroughly clean at all times, and use only good ammunition."

Mr. Leduc finally recommends that all firearms should be kept under lock and key, away from young children.

Horse Loose on Highway, Crashes With Automobile

A Lachute car on the front road of Cushing was damaged Saturday evening, about dusk, when passing three horses which were being turned out to pasture. The animals belonged to Doremon Lemay. One, becoming frightened as the car passed, swung blindly toward the automobile and damaged the door and fender.

Occupants of the car, Denis Giroux with three passengers, escaped injury, and the horse was none the worse for the near-disaster it had caused.

Titles Decided and Contenders Eliminated in Arg. County Pre-Championship Bouts

PRELUDE TO TONIGHT'S TITLE BOXING AT ARENA

Eliminations for the county boxing championships were staged on Thursday last at Lachute Arena, but several classes were short of the numerous contestants expected by the fans, and in these instances the title honors were decided with neither preliminaries nor elimination bouts.

Two contestants appeared in the 92 lb. class, Gaston Lavergne and Albt. Chapman. Although billed for three rounds, the bout was extended to four as the opponents stood even on points. In the fourth Lavergne won a slight advantage, which claimed for him the title in this class.

In the 118 lb. class, there were only two contenders, Armand Bilodeau and R. Lefort. In all three rounds Bilodeau had the edge on his opponent, and the judges awarded him the decision, and the title accordingly.

Cleo. Hooper, in the 135 lb. class, met a newcomer in Ward Kennedy, of Brownsburg, who in spite of his limited experience proved a tough fighter for the hard-hitting Cleo. Hooper failed to down his opponent but won the bout on points, thus claiming the 1939 title in his class.

In the 147 lb. category Howard Ward, of Boyd's Express, came forward as the sole contender. Being unopposed he challenges contest in the championship line-up next Thursday, and it is since learned that Jules Lamarche, son of J. Albani Lamarche, St. Philippe, will match his skill with Ward on that occasion.

The 160-pounders were more numerous, four boxers coming out to compete. Matched for the first bout were P. Moore, Brownsburg, and P. Brazeau, Grenville—the latter a new light in the club. Both tipping the scales at 150, the fighters were well matched, and after an extra round were judged even. Brazeau declining to stand for a fifth round, the decision went to Moore on pronouncement of the referee, Leo. Girard.

Second bout in the class was between Harold Maiden and Lionel Girard. This proved an interesting contest, but Girard's more experienced tactics gave him an easy decision in the three rounds. . . . Moore and Girard are therefore billed for the championship tilt on Sept. 21st.

Super-attractions at next Thursday's show-down will be Rodger Dulude and O. Barriere, stars in Montreal boxing circles; also J. Racine, St Eustache, versus J. Morin, a finalist in the Golden Gloves, and seven other bouts between city and provincial amateurs of high renown . . . The trophies to county champions in the various classes will also be presented.

Social Agency Appreciates Summer Shipments, Flowers For Underprivileged

(CORRESPONDENCE)

Editor, The Watchman,

Dear Sir:—

I would appreciate it if you would be good enough to convey, through the columns of your paper, the sincere thanks of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies to all those in Lachute and surrounding districts who contributed flowers from their gardens or assisted in any way to make possible shipment of such generous quantities of lovely flowers to Montreal each week during the past summer season.

Again this year the Lachute flowers were distributed principally upon the playgrounds in the most congested areas of the City. Here at the close of the day's activities long queues of children waited eagerly, and with what patience they could muster, for the small bouquets given to each by the playground supervisors. Five minutes after completing the distribution, we are told, hardly a child was in sight, all having rushed home immediately with the precious flowers.

The potted plants were again received with grateful thanks and were sent to selected homes where it was known that they would receive tender care during the long winter months.

Lachute over the years has established a reputation for generosity and efficiency in this very worthwhile work, which has once again been splendidly maintained.

Yours very truly,

Hazeldine S. Bishop,

Secretary.

BUSINESS AS USUAL IN LONDON

The London brokers are back on the curb doing business as usual despite the threat of aerial bombardments from Germany. A few hours before this picture was taken air raid alarms had blasted their warnings over the British capital and everybody took cover. Ten minutes after the "all clear" signal had been given the brokers were back on the job looking for business.

Golden Wedding Celebrated At Hudson Heights

COUPLE HAVE LONG RECORD OF SERVICE TO CHURCH AND COMMUNITY

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mullan, of Hudson Heights, received congratulations last week-end on the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Mullan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Mullan, of Cushing, and the former Elizabeth Turner, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. N. Turner, of Montreal, were married on September 17, 1889.

Two years previously Mr. Mullan acquired the general store at Hudson Heights, where in the intervening half-century it has become one of the most familiar landmarks in the district. For 43 years he has been postmaster in the community and on the silver jubilee of King George V was given a silver medal in recognition of his serviecs in this capacity. At the congress of Quebec Postmasters' held in 1938, he was presented with a silver muffin dish for being the oldest postmaster in the service.

Deeply interested in church activities the couple have played an important part in the work of the Hudson Methodist, and later in the Wyman Memorial Church, in Hudson. Mr. Mullan, besides having been elder for many years, was about a year and a half ago presented with an illuminated address in recognition of his having been for over 40 years superintendent of the Sunday School. Mrs. Mullan is one of the oldest members of the Ladies' Aid Society, organized over 50 years ago, of which for a considerable time she was president. The society presented the couple with a vase of 50 golden roses in recognition of their anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullan have had 11 children, one of whom is deceased, and nine grandchildren. Four of their sons served in the Great War.

A Profession, Not a Trade

The American Medical Association was recently a defendant in a suit instituted by the U.S. Government, the indictment charging a conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. The Federal Court in the District of Columbia has now ruled that the American Medical Association did not and could not violate the act and the press has been loud in praise of the decision. A typical opinion is that of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which says:

"The Federal Court decision in the District of Columbia holding that practice of medicine is not a trade but a profession is in accord with common sense. From the termination of that distant era when the only surgeons were barbers and when the treatment for every ailment was to bleed the patient—from a vein rather than the pocketbook—the layman has recognized that fact. The American Medical Association takes the issue to the courts and the decision that the Sherman Anti-Trust Act does not apply to the practice of medicine results.

"It is a victory for the medical profession. The prosecution contended that organizations and physicians had agreed to forbid group health doctors to practice in Washington hospitals, had refused consultations with them and had threatened them with expulsion from medical societies.

"Group health and hospital insurance has been attacked on the grounds that it is an entering wedge for state or socialized medicine. Some have criticized public health agencies on the same basis. It is difficult to follow their course of reasoning. People will continue to select their physicians in the future as they have in the past. Summoning a doctor, except in cases of great emergency, never has been and probably never will be comparable to calling the police or fire department when there is a burglar or a blaze in the house. The personal relation that always has existed between ethical physician and patient should continue."

Don't get the idea that everybody is working against you; many of them don't even know that you are around.

Theft of 100 dynamite sticks from a shed in one of the quarries of the Canadian Kaolin Silica Products Ltd. at St. Remi, is being investigated by provincial detectives.

The theft was discovered one morning by workmen who found that a shed containing the explosives had been broken into and the contents removed. A barn fire had occurred near the village the previous evening, and it was believed the theft had been perpetrated while the fire was in progress. It was also rumored that the fire had been set, probably by those who stole the dynamite.

The various plants of the company are being guarded by company watchmen.

The Early Christian Church

The division in the early Christian church, which resulted in the separation of the Greek Orthodox or Eastern church and the Roman Catholic or western church began with the political division of the Roman empire and the founding of Constantinople. After the "great schism" of 867, the two churches were reunited until the final separation came in 1054. The Baptist church, as a separate denomination, dates back a little more than three centuries. The first English Baptist church was founded in 1609 by Rev. John Smyth.

Death Valley, Lowest Point

Death valley in California is 276 feet below sea level and is the lowest point on the continent. It is a barren, desert, alkaline strip of territory, about 50 miles long, and averages between 20 and 25 miles in breadth between the crests of the inclosing mountain ranges. The name was given it by the survivors of a party of 30 emigrants who lost their way there while traveling to the Pacific coast in the days of '49, and of whom 18 died in the sands after enduring great hardships for days.

Interesting Facts About Sleep

Do you know that, while sleeping, you turn completely every sixty minutes? From hour to hour you move so that every muscle is relaxed and every nerve quiet . . .

Sleep is, of all things, the most essential to life. The loss of only two hours of your normal sleep makes work very much more tiring, and it takes several nights' unrestricted sleep to make it up again. Sleep is a remedy. It compensates for many things, and allows the human machine to rebuild after the depredation of fatigue.

To get the maximum benefit from sleep we should sleep well, rather than long, but there are very few of us who can maintain good health on less than eight hours' sleep out of each twenty-four. To sleep well, we need the right surroundings and the right beds. In the right bedroom, there should be little light and no noise, while the colours used should be restful blues and greens.

Many people were surprised when Commander Byrd, before his winter-long Antarctic voyage, spent as much time selecting the mattresses on which his expedition would sleep, as over the choice of scientific instruments they were to carry. He knew by experience that poor sleep meant tired bodies, jangling tempers, reduced capacity for work. A Viennese doctor once proved that business men were more than 10 per cent less efficient after a single night on an unduly uncomfortable mattress; for eight hours on a hard bed gives less real, deep, healing rest than seven on a modern spring interior.

Have you ever realized how important sleep is to you? Two hours' less sleep a night will make work almost literally twice as hard for you.

During a good night's sleep you move from twenty to fifty times, so that each muscle of your body is relaxed and rested. If your bed is lumpy and hard, this relaxation is impossible, and you wake tired and nervy. The ideal mattress supports you firmly, but yields to every movement, supporting every part of your tired body. It contains no lumps you can't lie on; it's the right length and the right width—so you can settle down to sleep in luxurious ease.

If sleep is important to you, how much more important is it for your children? Authorities state that children six to seven need eleven and a quarter hours each night; eight to nine-year-olds from nine and three-quarter hours to ten hours. Even eighteen to nineteen-year-old youngsters need half to one hour's sleep more than the adult average, regularly, on a bed which co-operates to give them perfect rest. To sleep comfortably, lie in a loose easy position, and wear garments which do not constrict the flow of blood to any part of the body. Close your eyes and leave the rest to a good mattress —it knows best!

Little Betty, aged nine, knelt down by the side of her bed and prepared to say her prayers.

"Please, God, make Rome the capital of Turkey," she asked.

Betty rose to her feet.

"Well, mummy," she said, "that's what I put in my examination paper today."

New Beauty Studio

The manageress of "Catherine's Beauty Studio," situated in Giles Block on Main, above the Gatineau Power office, wishes to announce to her many friends and acquaintances that her studio opens for business on Tuesday, Sept. 26th — specializing in various kinds of Permanent Waving, hair dying and bleaching, and all other branches of beauty culture at reasonable prices, with or without appointments.

Since time began, nature provided the human body with a restorative which the ingenuity of man could not supplant. Sleep builds healthy bodies and smiling faces.

Simmons' contribution to nature's gift is added sleeping comfort—support to the tired body to ease each sleeping movement.

Just as the riding comfort of the modern automobile depends on delicately adjusted shock absorbers for smooth performance—so does "BEAUTYREST" give added sleeping comfort through the action of over 800 sensitive pocket springs.

WORTHWHILE EFFORT

Stimulated by Winnipeg's astonishing record of traffic safety, Vancouver sought to do something similar, but three attempts to establish "100 deathless days" were stopped by fatalities. Evidently there is a lot of luck as well as care in the setting of safety records; but Vancouver's discouraging experience will assist in making the public conscious of what must be done if life is to be protected. Another attempt is worth the effort.

CIVIC WORKERS MAY NOT ACCEPT CIGARS

The cigar, traditional gratuity of United States politics, has been added by Mayor LaGuardia to the list of "presents" which New York City employees may not accept. "Even the acceptance of a cigar constitutes misconduct on the part of any employee of the city in any department," said the mayor.

HIGH STANDARD OF OFFICIAL ETHICS

As is well known, the civic service in Great Britain has attained a high standard of efficiency, due in a large measure to the direct responsibility placed upon the permanent officials in the administration of local government. But efficiency in itself is not considered sufficient by the service. Personal conduct must be beyond reproach, as is indicated in the following statement of professional ethics adopted at the recent conference of the National Association of Local Government Officers :

The first duty of a local government officer is to give his undivided allegiance to the authority employing him. With his private activities the authority in general is not concerned, so long as his conduct therein is not such as to bring discredit upon the service in which he is an officer.

For that conduct public service is entitled to demand the highest standard.

The maxim laid down for a court of law, that it is of fundamental importance not only that justice should be done in it, but that it should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done, applies with equal force to the local government officer. Public confidence in his integrity would be shaken were the least suspicion, however ill-founded, to arise that he could be in any way influenced by improper motives.

From this it follows that the local government officer, as a public servant, must not only be honest in fact, but must be beyond the reach of the suspicion of dishonesty.

He is not to subordinate his duty to his private interests; or to put himself in a position where his duty and his private interests conflict. He should not make use of his official position to further those interests; but neither is he so to order his private affairs as to allow the suspicion to arise that a trust has been abused or a confidence betrayed.

He should be courteous to all with whom his duties bring him in contact.

The public expects from the local government officer a standard of integrity and conduct not only inflexible but fastidious. It is the duty of the service to see that the expectation is fulfilled.

Undoubtedly the above is a high standard of professional ethics to live up to; but we believe that the great majority of municipal officials in Canada have also a high sense of their duties and live accordingly, even attaining the standard set by their British confreres, and this notwithstanding the fact that the Canadian municipal officer does not always enjoy the same security with regard to his position or his future as does the British official, who in this matter is protected by the central government.

POLICE SILENCER

Mayor William E. Kane, of Woburn, Mass., who originated the never-carried-out idea of exhibiting drunks in a lion's cage and who recently removed all beds from Woburn's fire houses on the ground that firemen were not paid to sleep, has now ruled that all Woburn's policemen must be silent on duty except when conversation is needed on official business.

Mayor Kane said his order to the police was intended to do away with unnecessary chatter which would interfere with departmental efficiency.

DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN CONVICTIONS ON ANTI-NOISE BY-LAW

In reply to a suggestion of the Ottawa Board of Control that the Chief of Police study the by-law with respect to noises, and submit recommendations regarding the by-law, the board was advised by Police Chief J. Downey that he could not suggest any additional noises which should be prohibited. He felt that noises which might possibly be annoying residents were made by persons going about their legitimate business, and pointed out it was practically impossible to obtain a conviction under this by-law; the Courts demanded at least three or four witnesses to swear they were disturbed by the noise, and witnesses were very backward in these cases.

He felt the police were often unfairly criticized about noises, but were actually doing all they were permitted to do under the law.

NEW ROADS IN SOUTH AFRICA

In 1935, the Union Parliament of South Africa passed the National Roads Act, which sanctioned the finance and construction of a Union-wide system of arterial National roads, amounting to 5,400 miles, all of which is to be bitumenized, and necessary financial assistance to be provided by the Treasury. The establishment of a National Road Board and National Road Fund were the two main provisions of this Act. The scheme provides for the construction, repair and maintenance at the sole cost and charge of the National Road Fund. The estimated income of the National Road Fund from 1936 till 1943, the expected date of completion, is $60,000,000; $2,500,000 from special grant, and $57,500,000 from a tax of 6 cents per gallon on imported petrol.

MOTORISTS MAY PARK 12 MINUTES FOR PENNY

Complaints by motorists in cities with parking meters that they must pay for a full hour's privilege when they park only for a few minutes have led many cities to install penny meters — according to an exchange, Texas Municipalities. The penny meter allows for as low as 12 minutes' parking time.

In Salt Lake City, Utah, where 2,000 parking meters recently were installed in the business district, motorists may insert either penny or nickel coins. One to four pennies will buy from 12 to 48 minutes' parking time. One nickel will buy an hour's time. If the motorist plans to shop for more than an hour, or attend a movie, two nickels may be inserted into the meter.

Recruiting Note

At the outbreak of the Great War Henry was a lad in his late teens. Like many other Canadians he was attracted to the army, partly by the romanticism proper to his age, and partly by the conviction that it was his duty to do his bit towards making the world safe for Democracy. Most appealing to his imagination was the ubiquitous poster, showing the golden-haired little girl asking "What did you do in the Great War, Daddy?" Though Henry was not married at the time, he felt that some day he would be, and he was going to be prepared to answer that question without embarrassment.

So Henry enlisted in the C.E.F. where he served efficiently, but without special distinction, until the Armistice. Then he resumed his interrupted career and except for occasions of batallion reunions, Vimy dinners and the like, he gradually relegated the War and his part in it to the back of his mind.

Years passed and Henry acquired, in the order named, a wife and a golden-haired daughter, Rose. Rather to Henry's disappointment, while Rose asked questions about every conceivable subject, the great question remained unasked and unanswered until this year.

A few weeks ago, Rose, who reads the newspapers and listens to the radio, apparently realized that there were points of similarity between the world situation now and in 1914. Quite suddenly one evening she came to Henry with the long-awaited question, "What did you do in the Great War, Daddy?"

Henry smiled modestly and answered : "I was a soldier, dear."

Rose said nothing for a time, but she looked at her father. One could see that she was mentally comparing the natty militiamen whom she had seen on ceremonial parades with Henry's now far-from-military figure. Her innocent eyes rested first on Henry's bald spot, passed to the fringe of gray hair beneath, and rested on his middle-aged paunch. Then— she laughed.

Keeping a White Elephant

Most of us have unwanted and usually unsightly objects about the house which we keep because somebody gave them to us or because we spent good money on them in a weak moment. We call them "white elephants." This phrase came to us from Siam, where the white elephant is sacred, notes a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. Being white, it could only be possessed by royalty, it could not be worked, and it had to be kept in a regal state. A favorite method of ruining a courtier was for the reigning monarch to make him a present of a white elephant. The cost of maintaining the animal in its proper state was a ruinous business, for the recipient could neither give it away nor sell it. In the end the king would have his wish and regain his elephant.

DRIVERS . . . . . women

Whether women are better drivers than men, or vice-versa, is a question to which nobody has an entirely satisfactory answer. I think it depends upon the age and experience of the driver more than upon any other factor.

In my family the best driver, by all odds, is my daughter. I began to teach her to drive when she was fifteen. She has driven more than half a million miles in twenty years, without an accident or a ticket for traffic violations, and only one bumped fender.

I can rever drive as well as she, for I started too old. I was past thirty before automobiles came into general use, thirty-five before I ever drove. Nobody who starts to learn after maturity can fully master a new skill, especially one which calls for such complete co-ordination of body and mind as driving a car.

The best and safest driver is the one who learned to drive while still in his or her 'teens, and who has been driving long enough to have absorbed the importance of expecting the fellow in the other car to drive badly. That and quick reaction to traffic signs and signals are what makes a good driver.

FLYING . . . . . jobs

The U.S. Government is beginning a program of training college students for flying. It takes plenty of time to make a good flyer. More than half the college men who begin training in the Army and Navy flying schools are dropped before they finish the course. Some men just can't learn to fly expertly.

It takes even longer to train competent airplane mechanics, and more of them are needed than flyers. It takes five or six men on the ground for every one in the air, to service the planes. That opens a great opportunity for youth.

There seems to be one of the greatest opportunities open to boys of mechanical tastes, in learning to be skilled airplane mechanics. Jobs are close ahead for 150,000 such trained workers, at good wages, and the big airlines are beginning to set up schools for apprentices, in which high school graduates can learn, in four years, all there is to know about taking a plane apart and putting it together again, and get paid while learning.

CIVILIZATION . . . . . food

According to Dr. Elmer Drew Merrill, professor of botany at Harvard University, there were no food plants grown on this continent which were also grown elsewhere in the world, before the white men settled here, and only one domestic animal was common to both hemispheres. The Indians and the peoples across the Atlantic both had dogs.

With no cattle, sheep, or swine, no horses, no crops except Indian corn in North America and potatoes in the western part of South America, there was no civilization. Dr. Merrill points out that civilization begins with permanent settlement and community life is based upon agriculture.

Whole tribes had to migrate from season to season in search of food that grew wild, fish they could catch and game they could kill. They could not live otherwise. Therefore they could build no permanent homes and develop none of the arts and crafts which are the foundation of civilized life. They could own no property but what they could carry on their backs, for they might never come back to the place they started from. It was a free life, but not a very comfortable one.

Watchman Want Ads do 'big advertising' for folks of modest means.

For Health Insurance

With the growing public sentiment in favor of some form of insurance against loss of time through illness, it may be that the solution will be in a co-operative scheme between municipal, provincial and federal authorities, as the Hon. C. G. Power has suggested. At all events, most health-minded citizens will commend his statement that "every citizen is entitled to protection from disease as he is to police protection for his property and person."

BOOK REVIEW

"The Ownley Inn" By Joseph C. Lincoln and Freeman Lincoln

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. Toronto, 2, Canada. Price $2.75

Joseph C. Lincoln needs no introduction to readers of good fiction. He has written over forty books since 1902, and many of them were best sellers. His son, Freeman, is also a writer of merit, and the combined authorship of senior and junior Lincoln had great success with "Blair's Attic."

"The Ownley Inn" is another product of the dual writers, and it is a story that will appeal to those who appreciate the Lincoln yarns of New England humor . . . . with a dash of mystery.

Sepatonk Island, off the New England coast, is a summer resort where visitors patronize the Ownley Inn, the proprietor being Seth Hammond Ownley. The resort is usually a place of quietude, but after the arrival of Dickson Clarke, who is searching for a very valuable book has been stolen from his library, mystery and death disturb the inhabitants.

Clarke, who had disagreed with his fiancee, Anne Francis, finds himself in an uncomfortable circumstance when Anne surprises him as he is bending over the bloody and unconscious body of Perry Hale, an unscrupulous book collector.

The events, as told by Ownley and Clarke, develop sharply, as murder and kidnapping are used by the guilty. Ownley, who is the chief magistrate of the Sepatonk Island, plays an important part in bringing the climax of the book to an exciting pitch, and the method used to solve the mystery will appeal to the reader's imagination.

European War Is Sermon Topic

Rev. J. R. Simpson, speaking on Sunday morning concerning the war in Europe, said: "We have been shaken from the ledge of security on which we have taken refuge repeatedly until we believed it, that there would never be war again . . . We have reason to be deeply concerned, for the enemies of this Empire have at their disposal machines of destruction that have felt the touch of 21 years' perfecting with the most skilled workers.

In answer to the question, "What is at stake that we have been drawn into war?" he said: "Our very civilization is at stake. Liberty of worship. The principle of freedom of speech, and the right of God in determining the destiny of men and of nations, have all been challenged, and that upon the very ground where their cause was sponsored.

"The autocrat principle of Hitlerism has cut off the lives of those approving its views in Germany, and in so doing, the inalienable right for men and women the world over has been defied. The clash of wills has ended in war. We hate that word. It breathes of frustrated justice and bruised and bleeding love. God, I believe, would choose the rightful battle-ground where the principles, liberty and righteousness, must first hold sway before they can become a world-wide principle, the human mind heart and soul. But men have rejected this chosen battle-field and have pushed it out of their lives, thinking to supplant right with might, and conscience with cannons, bayonets, bombs and torpedoes. Arrayed so, both sides stand to lose much of value. We are not at war with the German rank and file. We fight for a principle that has been wrestled from them, and pray God that they may benefit in the victory which may be not too far distant."

DANGEROUS !

Among the political stories circulating by word of mouth in dictator countries, a favorite concerns three men sitting on a bench. One, who was reading a newspaper, exclaimed "Tch, tch !" The second glanced at the paper and said, "Tch, tch !" Whereupon the third rose and announced, "If you fellows are going to commit the dangerous folly of talking politics, I'm off." — Exchange

Praying Mantis Perfect In Its Stalking Manner

Some wild creatures are immune from destruction by human beings, because legends have caused them to be looked upon as sacred Robin Redbreast is an example, for it is considered unlucky to kill a robin or destroy its nest. Some think it unlucky to kill a spider, but the most fortunate creature is the praying mantis, writes Oliver G Pike, F Z. S., in London Tit-Bits Magazine.

The mantis preys upon other insects; it requires a lot of food and as there is an unlimited supply all around it will often kill, eat a small portion of its victim cast it aside, and capture more When wanting a meal it sits among the green vegetation looking exactly like the surroundings and it takes a trained observer to detect it as it stands motionless, body erect, forelegs raised In this position it appears to be in an attitude of prayer.

Sometimes it waits until an insect comes within striking distance, at other times it will stalk the prey, and this stalking has been brought to perfection It moves so slowly that action is almost indistinguishable, then like a flash the two long legs go forward, and the insect is gripped in a firm hold between the toothed edges of these limbs.

The ancient Greeks looked upon the praying mantis as a small god. In parts of India the mantis is considered a creature favored by heaven, and if a person is fortunate enough to have one settle upon him he is thought to be a saint. In all parts of the world it is either considered sacred, or legends protect it.

Great Power of Music

Music has power not only to soothe, but also to irritate and to destroy. Sounds are caused by air vibrations which produce high or low notes according to their frequency. The lowest note audible to the human ear is about 16 vibrations per second, and the highest is 20,000. The higher the note the more disagreeable it can sound, and these vibrations have a damaging effect upon the nerves if experienced too often. Others can shatter glass vessels; Caruso could break a wine glass by singing a certain high note, and many scientists believe that in this power lies the secret of the shattering of the walls of Jericho, as related in the Bible.

Use of Fiery Cross in Scotland

Telegrams may be handier and swifter, but much of the romance of early days died when the fiery cross went out of use as a message in Scotland. The cross was made of two sticks of wood and the ends were burned in fire, then dipped in goat's blood. In emergencies two runners of the clan were each given a fiery cross and sent out through the countryside, to call the clan slogan and give the name of a meeting place. At each village a fresh runner took the cross and continued rallying the clan, for every male had to report to the chieftain at once. The last fiery cross recorded in Scotland was one sent out in 1746

September Activities of Women's Institutes

Brownsburg W.I. Branch heard an address by Mrs. John Mason, county convenor for Education and Better Schools, on that subject. The county president, Mrs. L. Morris, was present and told of the plans and aims of the Provincial Executive which were formulated at the recent Provincial convention held at Macdonald College. Mrs. C. Vary, Brownsburg's delegate, also gave a very fine report of the convention itself.

Frontier Branch held a well attended meeting on Legislation, at the home of the local convenor of that subject, Mrs. Jas. Murdoch, Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring, county convenor of Legislation and provincial convenor for Canadianization and National Events, was present and told of the doings of the Provincial Executive at the annual provincial convention. Mrs. A. Starnes, Frontier's delegate, gave an interesting account of the convention body's doings.

The roll call was quotations on law or lawyers. Mr. G. F. W. Kuhring addressed the meeting on "The Padlock Law" and its origin, and also on Communism, which was the chief cause of the invoking of the Padlock Law.

Lakefield heard an interesting account of the convention from Miss Myrtle Evans. The branch welcomed the teachers of the vicinity, disposed of an afghan in aid of the funds, and had as their roll call the name of a Canadian college. Mrs. Robert Tomalty, of Hamilton, Ont., was the fortunate recipient of the afghan.

Lachute Branch held a reception for the teachers and heard a very full report of Macdonald Convention given by Miss May McGibbon. Their roll call was one of reminiscence, being "Where I first went to school."

Morin Heights, after a somewhat lengthy holiday, heard the convention report from Mrs. Lacken, their president; read and discussed the message broadcast by our beloved King to his people regarding the declaration of war against Germany; also an article on the restoration of Fort Henry as a museum. The meeting also discussed the matter of becoming affiliated with the Canadian Red Cross. The county president was a guest of the branch and presented, on its behalf, membership pins to two of its charter members, Mrs. J. Douglas Davis and Mrs. William Doherty.

Pioneer reports that a number of its members attended the Home Beautification meeting in Lachute Consolidated School, as well as having a report at their meeting of convention proceedings; hearing impressions of the visit of our gracious Sovereigns, King George and Queen Elizabeth, by Mrs. Cooke, and the story of an English W.I. read by Mrs. Parker. An appropriate gift was presented to a member.

Upper Lachute-East End had a visit from the county president, Mrs. L. Morris, who recounted the doings of the W.I. convention at Macdonald College. As an educational talk Mr. J. E. Walker gave the history of the old East End School, and Mrs. Harvey M llar, who had attended the World's Fair, told of things seen and heard at the Fair. Their roll call was the name of their first teacher.

(Note to Branches—Your Press Superintendent requests prompt reporting of work done, now that all of the branches have settled down after the holidays to regular meetings; it is exceptionally hard to get the county report out early in the month, because of the delay in receiving the branch reports—and your Superintendent should not have to telephone you for them.)

WAKE UP AND LIVE !

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

There is undoubtedly something game-like about pertinent activity: those distressful cliches of a few years ago, "the advertising game," "the engineering game," "the restaurant game," had some excuse in reality.

The vocabulary of men who are successful in the sense that they have amassed huge fortunes abounds in terms taken over from the jargon of sports: "A fast one," "Out of bounds," and so on.

Purposeful action seems quicker, clearer, more straightforward and enjoyable than any other. In reality, you may be working more slowly and carefully than ordinarily; still the fact that there is no confusion of issues, no part of your mind off woolgathering as you move, gives an unmistakable "tone" to activities which are being carried on in the proper way.

It is just this tone that you are setting yourself to recapture by imagination when you remember the mood of an earlier success. Once you have found it in the past, made use of it for present action, and noted the similarity in pace which results, you will be able to strike the right rhythm without the elaborate preliminary imaginative activity.

Further, this rhythm sometimes crops out unexpectedly, in the middle of unimportant events; it is a promise that, if you can get away and at work, you will find yourself "in vein." So you will come to recognize its onset and be able to turn it to your advantage.

This feeling of pace, or tone, or rhythm — it represents itself differently to differing temperaments — will be your evidence that you are headed the right way. This is no recommendation to hasten your physical action in working. That may or may not come to pass.

It is not so much any real briskness that is being considered here as it is the fact that unimpeded movement in a forward direction is pleasant and rhythmical, movement which goes unwaveringly towards success.

Let us consider one great class of successes, of which almost everyone has had some personal experience, or at the very least has met in the lives of those about him: the state called the courage of desperation.

In the most extreme cases, this courage arises because some catastrophe or series of misfortunes has completely wiped out every alternative to success. "He has nothing to lose," we say of one in this situation.

Very well, then; he acts with a directness and daring which he could not ordinarily command. So often that it has become a matter of legend for us, this action is attended with overwhelming success.

Desperation does cut off one alternative. But desperation is not needed, is not the only tool which will cut away the possibility of failure. Imagination will do the work even better and more neatly. And we are left with Courage-facing-in-the-right-direction.

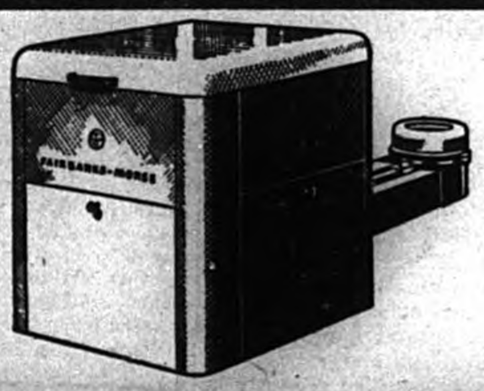

Courage facing in the right direction is the sine qua non of success. It is to reach that stage that we put ourselves through exercises in flexibility and restraint, learn to turn imagination away from apprehension and into useful channels, determine to act wisely in minor matters in order to store up courage for the major issues of our lives.

We use our heads to get the greatest good from our gifts and abilities, refusing ourselves the weakening privileges of dreaming, avoiding responsibilities, following the line of least resistance, acting childishly.

Success, for any sane adult, is exactly equivalent to doing his best. What that best may be, what its farthest reaches may include, we can discover only by freeing ourselves completely from the Will to Fail.

Young Cyclist Injured by Hit-and-Run Motorist

Arthur Sauve, 14-year old Vankleek Hill boy, is in hospital at Hawkesbury suffering from a broken left leg, cuts and bruises about the body, possible internal injuries and shock, the result of being struck by an automobile on Saturday.

According to police, Sauve was riding towards Vankleek Hill on a bicycle near the Bond service station when a car going in the same direction crashed into him, hurling bicycle and rider into the ditch. Picked up by service station attendants he was rushed to hospital immediately. The car did not stop. Vankleek Hill and Provincial Police are investigating.

Pepys' Ideas on Ships' Cabins

The difference between modern outlook and the ideas of the seventeenth century is demonstrated in some notes on Pepys' ideas of cabins on board ship in the August issue of the Port of London Authority Monthly Magazine, issued in London, England.

"The importance attached to cabins nowadays contrasts curiously with the attitude which prevailed when Mr. Pepys worked for the Admiralty. At that time cabins on board ship were not only considered a nuisance and waste of space, but definitely undesirable. Pepys attributed all the faults of the officers and slowness of naval ships to cabins.

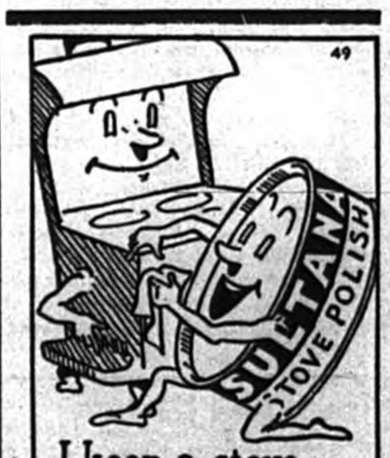

"It was said that the unlimited number of cabins built in the King's ships were costly, gave rise to the pestering of the ship, contracting of sickness, temptation to officers to neglect their duties and misspend their time in drinking and debauchery, the danger of fire, and disputes between officers regarding the disposal of cabins."

What a different view is taken regarding passenger accommodation on ships of today! Liners now supply comfortable cabins to suit the requirements of all passengers, whether it be third or first class. Palatial ships at moderate rates are to be had for the taking.

Safer Dead Drunk

A police judge in Florence, S.C., fined a drunk $11 for being "half shot." The defendant arose in loud protest, declaring that only one week before, he had been fined only $6 for being dead drunk. "That fine will stand," the judge announced sternly, 'because a man dead drunk is less of a nuisance than one half shot." The judge might have added that behind the wheel of an auto the semi-pickled driver is infinitely more of a nuisance than his dead-to-the-world prototype.

Trio Arrested in Jewish Hotel After Receipt of Threatening Letter

POLICE OFFICER STRUCK WITN CROWBAR.

Inspector Robert, of the Provincial Police, was struck over the head with a crowbar in a fight that occurred in the Lakeside Inn at St. Faustin Station, when officers of the provincial police arrested three local men as they broke into the hotel. The police officer suffered a deep cut on the head which required several stitches. He was treated by a local doctor. The prisoners were taken to St. Jerome and arraigned before a justice of the peace. They were released on bail of $500 each and will appear before the district magistrate later.

The capture is said by the police to culminate a seven-day wait in the hotel which was closed for the season.

It is claimed by the police that the hotel is Jewish owned and that a letter threatening it with destruction had been received by the owner, S. Parnass.

Early last Wednesday morning, someone broke open the front door and Inspector Robert went to meet him. As he advanced the intruder struck him over the head with a crowbar. Detective Aubichon, who was also inside, rushed to his aid and captured the assailant. Two other officers were outside and caught two other men who were standing by the door.

One man, Flodorin Lirette, 35, is charged with assulting an officer in the discharge of his duty and with breaking and entering by night.

The two others, Georges Landry, 19, and R. Boivin, 22, are charged with breaking and entering by night. All three are St. Faustin residents.

English Monetary Unit Once Was Pound Weight

The English monetary unit, the pound, was originally a pound weight of silver, and corresponded to the Roman libra (Latin pound weight), from which is derived the "£" designating this denomination. This pound was soon known as the Pound Tower because the chief mint of the country was established in the Tower, and by it the weight of English coins was regulated. It contained 5,400 grains and was divided into 12 ounces of 20 pennyweights each. The Pound Troy superseded the Pound Tower in 1527, and contained 5,760 grains, writes Flora MacFarland in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The shilling, a division of the pound weight of silver, corresponded to Roman solidus, and the penny, which represented the 240th part of a pound, corresponded to the Roman denarius. Hence we have the abbreviations L, s and d.

The Roman system of computation was adopted by all European countries after they had accepted Roman Christianity. In England it was adopted by Ethelbert of Kent at the beginning of the Seventh century.

The District of Columbia

The tract of land known as the District of Columbia, which is coextensive in area with the city of Washington, was acquired by the federal government in 1789 from Maryland in pursuance of Article 1, Section 8 of the Constitution, which provides: "Congress shall have power to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding 10 miles square) as many, by cession of particular states, and the acceptance of congress, become the seat of government of the United States . . ." Maryland, in 1788, and Virginia, in 1789, passed acts together to cede 10 miles square for the seat of government of the United States. But in 1846, the tract of land south of the Potomac ceded by Virginia was, upon petition of the inhabitants, receded by congress to the parent state.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

TOWN COUNCIL SUPPORTS SCOUT TRAINING

A contribution of $300 was voted by the Town Council of Kemptville, Ont., toward the camp fund of the local Scout troop, to ensure that every Scout could attend camp, "for the benefit of the training."

GIVE SCOUTS SATURDAY SHOESHINE RIGHTS

The Saturday "shoeshine rights" on the streets of Sutherland, Sask., were given the local Boy Scouts by the Town Council, as a means of raising troop funds. In granting the concession the Council commended the activities of the Scouts.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE SCOUTS START A FOREST

Some 12,000 young pine trees were planted by Scouts and Cubs of the Upper Canada College Scout Troop at Norval, Ont., as the first step toward developing a 150 acre college campsite. The trees were planted under direction of Mr. A. H. Richardson, of the provincial forestry department, and a Scout commissioner.

A LEAGUE OF NATIONS BOY SCOUT CAMP

The more than 200 Boy Scout camps registered in Ontario this summer included the "New Canadians Camp" of the Scout Troop of All People's Mission Church, Niagara Falls. The nationalities represented in the camp included Czechs, Slovaks, Germans, Russians, Hungarians, Ukranians, Poles, Roumanians, Serbians, Austrians, Jugo-Slavians and English. Visitors declared the camp a model of tidiness and good organization.

SCOUTS CONDUCT JUVENILE TRAFFIC COURT

Boy Scouts Joseph Daley, 14, and Fred Dunham, 13, respectively are "judge" and "prosecuting attorney" of a Juvenile Traffic Court, at Laporte, Ind., set up to take care of a serious bicycle traffic problem. Under the law bicyclists must be treated the same as automobile traffic violators, but police hesitated to act against boys and girls. As a solution Mayor Alban M. Smith chose two outstanding Boy Scouts to conduct a weekly juvenile court, giving them authority to inflict penalties varying from the imposition of an essay on traffic rules to the impounding of bicycles from one day to a week, and fines of from 25 to 50 cents.

AND SCOUTING STILL GROWS

The Boy Scout movement upholds law and order; the development of character; the development of the way of thought implied in such words as fairness, democracy and Christianity.

For that reason the Boy Scout movement is not wanted in Italy and Germany. For that reason, the Boy Scout movement is now to be abolished in Bolivia, and replaced with miiltary training of all Bolivian boys and girls between 15 and 20.

That does not worry the Scout movement. It has no intention of deviating from the lines it has followed for over 30 years; which have won it the youth of over 30 countries all over the world (almost 100,000 in Canada alone; a million in the United States).

"Patriotism," Edith Cavell is reported to have said, "is not enough." It may be enough for the youth of Germany and Italy (and now of Bolivia), but it is not enough for the Scout movement, which is truly international in its composition and outlook.

Just how international, has been shown by the great Jamborees in England, Holland and Switzerland, where Scouts from China, Texas, India and France found a common meeting ground. Scouts from Germany and Italy used to attend these Jamborees in the pre-Hitler days. In the pre-Hitler days, too, it was common for English Scouts to go touring in Germany, where they were royally welcomed. But no more.

Under the watchful eye of Hitler and Mussolini, the young children march, salute, use toy guns, sport daggers and gas masks. They learn to hate other nations. That is not, can never be, the way of Scouting.

It is not, you will note, that Scouting has died in these countries; the nature of the movement is to grow vigorously. It has been abolished by official decree. Because something was wrong about the movement? Or because something was wrong about the country which abolished it? The answer stands out with unmistakable clarity.

IT'S A POOR JOKE—

When someone blushes with embarrassment.

When someone's feelings are hurt.

When something sacred is made to appear commonplace.

When it is directed against someone's infirmity.

When everyone cannot join in the laughter. —Christian Advocate

Bones of Saint Rest in Cartagena's Old Chapel

Cartagena is one of the oldest cities on the Spanish Main. It is renowned as the home of Colombia's patron saint, San Pedro Claver, a godly man of early Colonial days who wore a crown of thorns, let insects bite him, and devoted much of his time to healing the wounds of slaves brought over from Africa, recalls a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

San Pedro lived in the monastery which still bears his name. His bones repose in a glass case upon the altar in the chapel. They are covered by a silken canopy, from the top of which his skull looks down.

Captain Lawrence Washington, brother of George Washington, laid siege to the port in 1741, but was unable to capture it.

The city was founded in 1533 and contains much of its old-time scenic attractions. Mosquelike domes and Moorish towers emphasize the skyline. There are many fortifications. It is because of their former strength that the city was called "Little Carthage." These fortifications inclose the city, often with ramparts 30 feet high and from 40 to 100 feet thick. They aroused great envy and chagrin in the minds of Sir Francis Drake and Sir Henry Morgan, who had to resort to many stratagems before being able to break through the circle. The forts were originally built to resist pirates and were the stoutest and most majestic on the Spanish Main. The old moats are dry and overgrown with jungle.

The hill which dominates the landscape is called "La Popa," from the summit of which outlooks scanned the seas for the sails of pirates. In a little shrine on this hill reposes an image of the Virgin Mary, to whom all Cartagenians used to pray for deliverance from the buccaneers

Presidents as Slave-Owners

Ten men who have occupied the presidency were owners of slaves. They were Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Tyler, Polk, Taylor, Johnson and Grant. The first eight of these were slave-owners in the full sense of the term and most of them had slaves while holding the office of President. Andrew Johnson bought a few slaves whom he kept as personal servants, but he never sold one of them. Ulysses S Grant was at one time joint owner of at least one slave and accordingly was technically a slave-owner. After his marriage his father-in-law presented a slave boy to him and his wife.

Parish Priest Struck by Burglar in Presbytery

EPIDEMIC OF SIMILAR ROBBERIES IN DISTRICT

Surprising a burglar in the presbytery at St. Placide early last Wednesday morning Parish Priest Laurent Charron was struck a blow in the face by the intruder, who escaped. The burglar did not have time to steal anything. Curé Charron was only slightly injured.

He notified provincial police and investigation showed that a rear door had been forced open.

A large number of robberies in presbyteries throughout the district have been reported. Nearly all have been performed in the same manner, that of forcing open a rear door or entering by an unlocked door while the parish priest is at the church celebrating Mass in the early morning. Reports of such robberies have come from Pointe Fortune, Hudson Hghts, Rigaud, Grenville and many other points.

Treatment of Cancer

The British Medical Journal says: "It is admitted on all hands that with modern methods of treatment properly applied, many if not all cases of cancer are curable if treated in a sufficiently early stage."

Cancer is originally very small — a single cell so small that it can be seen only by a powerful microscope. This single cell divides and multiplies in an uncontrolled manner. The initial process is purely local and it is only at a later date, usually not long, that the cells begin to spread along the lymphatic channels and reach the nearest glands. In the case of breast cancer, the cancer cells first spread to the glands of the armpit. Most cancers of the breast should be discovered before this happens. Later on, if not treated, the cancer cells spread through the blood stream and may reach any part of the body.

The early signs of cancer are important. These are roughly: lumps, irregular bleedings, sores that do not heal, chronic hoarseness and changes in the ordinary habits of digestion and evacuation of the bowels.

BUILDERS of CANADA

Lord Selkirk

In 1803, Lord Selkirk, the colonizer, planted his first group of sturdy Scottish Crofters in Prince Edward Island. Later in 1811 and 1812 he brought out two larger parties of colonists and established them in the valleys of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers. Ft. Douglas, pictured above, was built by him in 1813 near the present site of Winnipeg, as their headquarters.

NATION BUILDING

JUST nineteen years after Selkirk and his Red River settlers built Ft. Douglas, this Bank first opened its doors. For over a century, it has served Canada in providing the "sinews of peace" that has helped make it possible for this new country to develop into one of the foremost nations of the world.

Cruise-Parker

The wedding of Miss Louise Frances Parker, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen Parker of Montreal, to Mr. Laurence N. Cruise, son of the late Mr. John Cruise and Mrs. Cruise, of Lachute, Que., took place quietly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin R. Kyle, 5046 Victoria Ave., Montreal, on Sept. 16 at 4 o'clock. Rev. J. A. Johnston officiated.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Herbert D. Parker, of Ottawa, and was gowned in brown silk velvet shirred in front and caught at the neck with a gold brooch, hat and shoes to match, with a corsage of Talisman roses and lily of the valley.

Mrs. A. Beers wore a navy blue dress with a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. J. Cruise, mother of the groom, wore blue printed crepe with net and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Kyle served refreshments, with flower decorations of yellow and mauve astors.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. A. Beers, Mrs. J. Cruise, Mr. Lloyd Cruise, Miss Grace Lavis, of Lachute, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Parker and laughter, Pauline, of Ottawa.

Ward—Zimmer

The marriage of Hazel Lorraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Zimmer, of Coteau Station, Que., to Mr. Alvin H. Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ward, of Lachute, took place at five o'clock Saturday afternoon, September sixteenth, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. H. A. Naylor, of Valleyfield, Que., officiating. Mrs. George Helmer, of Lachute, played the wedding music. The house was decorated with autumn flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an afternoon dress of Brittany blue crepe, her hat and accessories being of dawn grey, and she wore a corsage bouquet of briar roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. Russell Noble, of Lachute, was best man for Mr. Ward.

Mrs. Zimmer, mother of the bride, wore an afternoon dress of heliotrope crepe, with black accessories, and mink furs, her corsage bouquet being of Better Times roses. Mrs. Ward, mother of the groom, wore a flowered crepe dress with white accessories and mink furs, and a corsage bouquet of Better Times roses. The reception was held immediately after the ceremony, pink roses decorating the table.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Ward left on a short motor trip, the bride travelling in a suit of mauve wool crepe with grey accessories. On their return, they will reside in Lachute.

Among the Churches

A Great Privilege

We read in the four Gospels that there were some five thousand hungry men, besides women and children, gathered on the shore of the Sea of Galilee one sultry afternoon, and that the Master said to His disciples, "Give ye them to eat."

Philip replied, "Two hundred pennyworth (about $300 of our money) of bread is not sufficient for them that every one may take a little."

"How many loaves have ye? Go and see."

"There is a lad here," said Andrew, "that hath five barley loaves and two small fishes, but what are they among so many?"

The lad was willing to let Our Lord have his buns and fishes and, in the hands of the Great Master, the food was increased sufficiently to feed that multitude.

The millions of humanity on this earth are hungry for the Word of God which alone can satisfy their spiritual hunger and enlighten their darkness. What are we doing to supply them with that Word? "Give ye them to eat" is the Lord's command and our great privilege.

Since the British and Foreign Bible Society was founded, nearly five hundred million volumes of the Scriptures have been sent to all parts of the world. But there are still millions who have never heard the good news of salvation.

In His compassion for that hungry multitude on the seashore Our Lord hastened to supply their need; but in so doing he called Peter and James and John and the other disciples to help distribute the food. So He calls on us to help distribute the Word of God among the needy millions. If we give what we can, of our means or of our services, to help in the good work, our gifts, great or small, in the Master's hands will be able to work miracles. Our Lord needs many helpers — translators, missionaries, colporteurs, and tens of thousands of people who by their gifts and services support the work of Scripture distribution.

It is the aim of the Bible Society to place within reach of every man, woman and child in the world the Word of God in their own tongue.

St. Andrews Church Groups

St. Andrews East,—The September meeting of the W. M. S. was held in the vestry of the United Church on the afternoon of the 12th. The business session was taken by the president, Mrs. J. Esdon. It was arranged to hold the Thank-offering service on October 10. Mrs. V. Lilly led the devotionals and Mrs. M. M. Yale read a chapter of the study book, "The World in Canada," by J. I. Mackay.

The Anglican W.A. met at the home of Dr. Maude Abbott on Thursday September 14th. Ten members were present. Mrs. T. Ball having donated a patchwork quilt, of her own making, the members were invited to help with the quilting at a later date. The meeting closed with prayer, after which a delicious tea was served.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, Sept. 24th.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 64:4. "Since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For the Lord of hosts hath purposed, and who shall disannul it? And his hand is stretched out, and who shall turn it back?" (Isaiah 14:27).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Reality is spiritual, harmonious, immutable, immortal, divine, eternal. Nothing unspiritual can be real, harmonious, or eternal . . . Let us learn of the real and eternal, and prepare for the reign of Spirit, the kingdom of heaven,—the reign and rule of universal harmony, which cannot be lost or remain forever unseen."

Queen Mary's Outrider

Royal Tribute to Britain's "Courtesy Cops"

Any rank-and-file police motor cyclist on "courtesy cop" duty in Great Britain may now suddenly find himself requisitioned as an escorting out-rider to Queen Mary while she is motoring through the police division to which he is attached.

Provision of a patrol preceding the Royal car has been decided upon to avoid risks in unescorted drives as a consequence of Queen Mary's motor accident earlier in the summer on her way home from watching the tennis championship at Wimbledon.

No particular officer will be detailed as an escort. The police chief in each division will be responsible for supplying one of his specially trained patrol men while the Royal car remains within the boundaries of his division.

The decision marks a new improvement in the use of police motor cyclists as "wardens" against road accidents, first tried out in April of last year. The men were at once nicknamed "courtesy cops" because their attitude to road users was one of "education rather than prosecution."

The experiment has proved so successful that the House of Lords has urged its extension at a cost of about £2,500,000 a year; and, on the basis of the reduction in accidents effected by motor cycle police patrol work in Lancashire, it is estimated that the system would save over 1,000 lives and 100,000 injuries a year.

The selected police motor cyclist will be on Royal duty when Queen Mary goes in her maroon and scarlet saloon to some specially important function at which big crowds and heavy traffic are expected. This car is in the same Royal color as the King's; for her entirely private visits to friends, and for shopping expeditions, Queen Mary uses a dark green saloon car, the index number of which, beginning with the single letter "A," is known to every policeman in London. When she drives in this car, Queen Mary will continue to have no escort, for, on these trips, not even Superintendent Green, her personal detective, or Mr. O. Humphrey, her chauffeur, know where she is going until she gets into the car.

Her motor cycle escort will now ride in front of her on all semi-official as well as official occasions when Superintendent Green telephones the route to Scotland Yard. From there it is passed on to police stations affected, so that constables can be placed at every road junction which the Royal car is to pass and hold up all other traffic to give unhindered passage to the Queen Mother with her advance guard on his motor cycle.

DIFFERENCES IN TIME

The different times used in Canada are indicative of its size. Yet we are so accustomed to them, we seldom realize it. Atlantic time, which is used from St. John, New Brunswick, eastward, is four hours slower than Greenwich time. When we get to the far West, Pacific time is used from Field, Alberta, to the Pacific Coast in British Columbia, and it is eight hours slower than Greenwich time. The difference in time must be quite a problem for the broadcasters. I know we listened to different programs when we lived where we used Atlantic time, than we heard when using Central time. Some of our pet programs we missed altogether, as it was too late to sit up for them.

CONSTRUCTIVE THINKING

It is a difficult thing for a party partisan to find any good in a speech from the opposing side. Present conditions are making many voters ready to listen to anything constructive from any party. When you are listening to political speeches, listen with a critical ear and an open mind. The speaker, who only criticizes the other parties, is not going to accomplish much. Listen carefully to the speaker who has some constructive plan of action. It is an easy matter to tear to pieces but it is more difficult to do constructive thinking. Josephine Culbertson says of a bridge hand, "to make a plan even if it is a bad one." It is a good idea in either private or public life.

QUALITY BRINGS INCREASED CONSUMPTION

Economists claim there is need of a larger market for the products of the primary producers, those who supply us with food. I earnestly believe there is a large home-market to be developed. If consumers could be sure of getting good products, they would buy a great deal more. To illustrate this by our own experience, Green peas is a vegetable which must be fresh and good or they are not worth buying. In London, Ontario, peas are all marked shelled, probably because of a local regulation. We would try them hopefully once or twice and then give up in despair. Shelled peas lose their sweetness very quickly and they were usually dry and hard into the bargain. We tried to get good peas while in Halifax but had no luck so did not bother with them again. In Ottawa, we have been able to get good unshelled peas, consequently we have bought them four or five times a week, all the time they were in season. It is difficult to get a good sweet turnip. To one nice one, you get three or four bitter ones. Consequently, we use very few of them. In Halifax, they were uniformly sweet, so we used them all winter long. It is difficult to be sure of really fresh eggs — that is, eggs not more than three days old. We got them from a farmer in London for a short time, but were never sure of them in Halifax. In Ottawa, we get them from a dairy and we get them really fresh. Consequently, we use more eggs. Good apples are hard to get. We will get the best of bacon then we will get some with rancid ends. I watched women buying berries and tomatoes in a chain store, which grades its fruit and vegetables. They had good raspberries at two baskets for a quarter and beauties at fifteen cents. Only one woman chose the cheeper ones. Almost everyone bought the perfect tomatoes. We are getting excellent blueberries in branded quart boxes from New Brunswick. Every berry is dry and firm and good enough to eat with cream and sugar. Result is we are using more than ever before. When we can depend on getting good products our consumption is increased considerably. We are an average family and the same thing must hold good for many other consumers. It is wise to try to get foreign markets but the home market is always here and it is capable of great expansion, if more attention is paid to quality and proper grading.

USE NATURAL COLOR CONTRASTS

We eat with our eyes and food which looks attractive has a much greater appeal. This time of year, tomatoes, cucumbers, celery and lettuce are on most of our tables very frequently. Each on its separate dish. it is just another meal. Arrange them on the same plate attractively and the color contrasts titillate the appetite. Separate the head of lettuce, or if you use leaf lettuce cut it in shreds. Pile the lettuce in the centre of a large flat plate, or failing that, a platter will do. Let the stalks of celery, radiate from the centre like the spokes of a bicycle. Arrange your tomatoes, cucumbers, or what have you, between these spikes and your plate will be a picture. I like to add color and savor by cutting a ring of sweet green pepper on some of the tomato slices. To over-decorate food is not in good taste but it is easy to make it attractive.

PEACH CANDY PIE

Arrange layers of sliced firm peaches in a baking dish and cover each layer thickly with brown sugar. Rub together one cup flour, one-half cup brown sugar and one-quarter cup of butter. Sprinkle this mixture over the peaches and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees until the peaches are tender and the topping is browned, probably about 40 minutes. Serve with cream.

CUCUMBER AND PINEAPPLE SALAD

2 tablespoons plain gelatin, 1 medium sized cucumber, 1 cup shredded cabbage, ½ cup celery cut in small pieces, 4 slices pineapple diced, ½ sweet green pepper diced.

Mix the celery, cucumber, and cabbage and season with salt. Soak the gelatin in 1 cup of cold pineapple juice for five minutes. Measure the remainder of the juice from the can and add boiling water to make two cups. Pour this over the gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill this mixture until it begins to set, then stir in remaining ingredients. Mold and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

HOUSE AND HOME

Now is a splendid time to transplant plants and trees from the woods. Growth is over for the season, but there is time for the plants to establish themselves in their new surroundings. Be sure you are supplying approximately the same conditions in the way of exposure, soil and drainage in the new site that the plants enjoyed originally.

Put down in your garden notebook any changes you contemplate in planting and border arrangement. Mistakes that have been made are obvious object lessons now but may be forgotten by next spring if they are not recorded in black and white.

When closing summer cottages, leaving all household equipment in good shape and perfect order makes for easy and quick opening for the return next summer. So go over supplies and utensils and furniture for repairs and replenishing.

A thorough inspection of all your stoves and metal appliances may save you much discomfort and many dollars next season. A tiny rust spot now may develop into a hole or an unsightly blotch if it's allowed to remain all winter. It's a good idea to wipe all metal with a cloth moistened with kerosene. This will be effective in preventing rust.

But to remove rust apply a paste made of oxalic and phosphoric acids, glycerine and ground silica. Put the paste on the rusted surface and let it remain in a warm place for fifteen or twenty minutes. Then wash off and wipe perfectly dry. This formula for removing rust is recommended by Dr. C. F. Mason in an article in "Chemical Industries":

Removal Formula

Oxalic Acid—20, phosphoric acid—20, glycerine—10, ground silica—50.

MODERN WOMEN

By Dr. M. L. Maffett

Painting portraits of rooms, lovely and beautiful ones of course, is a new venture undertaken successfully by Elizabeth Hoopes, who has specialized in this type of artistic work for six years. The idea came to her when she took groups of students to the famous museums in and near Paris to paint some of the beautiful rooms there.

Returning to the United States, she began painting portraits of rooms in private homes, and held an exhibition of twenty-four of her pictures. This led to other commissions, so that she is busy making lasting portraits of living rooms, dining rooms and swimming pools. She won a prize from the Architectural League, and recently has been associated with Norman Bel Geddes in some of his exhibits.

Autograph collecting has taken a decided spurt in the last year or two, enthusiasts ranging from the one who gets her prized signatures by writing to outstanding men and women everywhere, to the hordes of girls and boys who swarm around stage doors.

One of the former is Mrs. Lebrun Rhinelander of New York, who started at the age of ten with Kipling's autograph and now has seventy valued ones, including autographs of Mussolini, King Edward VII, the late Mrs. Russell Sage, Caruso, Gadski, Marshall Joffre, Lord Roberts and Kate Douglas Wiggin. Mrs. Rhinelander has never bought an autograph.

There are 205 pages of useful information in a book called "Consumer Buying in the Education Program for Home-Making," which is put out by the U.S. Office of Education, Department of the Interior.

Souffles that Don't Flop

There is one member of a luncheon party which should never sit down. It's very embarrassing to the hostess when her guests are seated at the table, to have the main dish — the soufflé — not only sit down but fall flat on its face. But as wise cooks know, this never need happen. So if in the past you have hesitated to make a soufflé because it might fall, try this delicious recipe and banish that bogey forever. The addition of quick-cooking tapioca to the soufflé will keep it high and handsome all the way through.

This salmon souffle is ideal for luncheon. It is easy to make and has a delightful flavor. A light salad and a simple dessert are suggested to complete the luncheon.

Salmon Soufflé

4½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon minced onion, 1 cup milk, 1¾ cups salmon, 3 eggs (beaten until thick and lemon-colored), 3 egg whites (stiffly beaten,) 1 cup water and 2 bouillon cubes.

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, salt, onion, milk and stock in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add salmon. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold in egg-whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) one hour, or until firm. Serves eight.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

On Dates

To the Arab, the Egyptian, and millions of other people, semi-civilized and cultured, the date palm is accepted as a symbol of beauty and life—beauty because it stretches its graceful fronds toward the sky as if appealing to God for aid for those who tread the desert sands and the far reaches of Africa—life because its fruit feeds millions who inhabit these inhospitable lands.

To them the date palm is a divine gift, for it serves man in many capacities.

Houses and crude habitations are built from its wood; its fibre make raiment especially adapted for the climate; its wine has special stimulating properties and lacks the aftermath usually attendant upon an alcoholic drink; its fruit feeds the hungry and is especially stimulating and body building, and when death comes to the follower of Allah, his body is wrapped in a shroud made from its bark.

No wonder the Mohammedan repeats daily as one of his prayers of gratitude, "Thanks to Allah, who gives the palm."

The date palm tree is spoken of and written about in documents which saw the light of day thousands of years before the coming of Christ. It played an important part in the husbandry and the religions of early men, and was the first tree on which artificial fertilization was ever practiced by the Mesopotamians, who were exceptional horticulturists and who later tried similar experiments upon the fig-tree.

History also credits these people with producing the nectarine, which is not, as some people believe, a cross between a peach and a plum, but a distinct species of fruit.

Mohammed, the founder of the Moslem religion, who lived during the years 570 and 632, and who began life as a camel driver, existed during the years of his dire poverty almost exclusively on dates and water—a diet, forced by necessity upon millions of nomads of the desert to this day.

Later in life, when men rose up to call him the Prophet of God, he added to his daily menu cucumbers and camel's milk. For stimulating purposes, he drank the fresh unfermented wine of the date, made by pouring water on fresh dates and allowing it to stand overnight. This drink, known through the East, is a favorite among Mohammedans still, and it is called "nabidah."

Perhaps there exists nowhere a more virile, vigorous and healthy race with less creature comforts than the Arabs, and dates, fresh or dried, with date wine, are their principal foods.

Dates and camel milk have all the food essentials of a complete diet. The fruit supplies sugar and minerals, with vitamins, while the milk provides the protein fat and calcium with other vitamins. Try a diet of fresh dates if you want to reduce and remain strong and healthy.

THE CHILDREN ARE GONE AND LONDON'S PARKS ARE DESOLATE

A week ago this park rang with children's laughter and everywhere youngsters were in evidence playing under the mighty trees and on the grass. Today these parks present a scene of desolation—the children have gone from the cities—and only the occasional elderly person sits under the trees or walks across the playing fields.

'Dun' Written on Clay

In Babylon, in days of old, they used to write their letters on clay tablets—the first "printed" words known to man. Here is the translation of a letter written in Babylon, on a clay tablet, 4,000 years ago, and dug up—literally. It is from a Mr. Sin-erish to a Mr. Elmeshum and reads, according to Edward Chiera in "They Wrote on Clay": "To Mr Elmeshum speak: Thus saith Mr Sinerish: May the God Shamash grant thee life You say you do not know how you can pay back more than one bushel of grain out of the five bushels which you are supposed to give me. If in truth you are my brother, repay at once the grain which you mention so that my field will not lie fallow. Further: I have written you about the money of Mr Zidanum. Collect it and bring it also."

The Island of Anticosti

(Contributed)

As the island of Anticosti seems to be a place "shrouded in mystery" for many of us, it might be rather interesting to get a little first-hand information about it from someone who spent over two months of this past summer on the island.

The island is reached by means of a boat called the "Fleurus" operated by the Anticosti Shipping Company, a subsidiary of the Consolidated Paper Corporation. In the spring and fall this boat sails from Quebec, but in the summer when a cruise is run down to the Maritime Provinces, passengers can go aboard at Montreal. The trip from Quebec to the island takes about thirty-six hours, and is truly delightful.

Owned by the Consolidated Paper Corporation, the island lies in the western part of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It is 135 miles long and approximately 25 miles wide. There are over one hundred rivers, streams and brooks running through the island emptying into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, ranging from Jupiter River, ranked with the finest salmon rivers of the world, about fifty miles long, to the numerous rivers and small streams varying from two to thirty miles.

There are numerous animals roaming wild on this interesting island, including silver, cross and red fox, white-tailed deer, reindeer and moose. Beaver, otter and muskrat are also found in the streams on the island. The white-tailed deer are particularly interesting to visitors, as they come close to the different spots of habitation all round the island.

The island is a haven for birds of all kinds, including wild geese, duck, plover, jack-snipe and numerous other species. Inland can be found partridge and other game birds. There is also excellent deep-sea fishing at all points around the island, but of course the main attraction to the sportsman is the salmon fishing, which is "among the finest in the world." Fishermen come from all over Canada and the United States to participate in the keenly interesting sport. In Anticosti rivers, the weight of salmon ranges from about 6 pounds to 25 pounds, occasionally heavier.

The trout fishing in these rivers is also worthy of consideration by the salmon fisherman. In most of the salmon rivers there is excellent fishfor sea-trout, and up-stream the brook trout is abundant.

The climate during the summer months is very pleasant. The temperature ranges from a minimum night temperature, in early June, of about 40°, to a mid-day maximum of about 70° in August.

The population of the island at the present time is about 500 persons, mainly French, there being only four or five English-speaking families.

The islanders are very fortunate in that they have all the conveniences of city-life — electric light, running water, and a telephone service covering a large part of the island.

There is a very comfortable hotel, "Hotel Ellis," operated by the Consolidated Paper Corporation, where visitors to the island may spend a pleasant holiday. Then, in addition, there is the famous Menier Villa, a beautiful home built for himself by Senator Menier, the French chocolate king, during the time the island was in his possession. It is most luxurious and contains any number of treasures in the way of tapestries, china and carvings imported from France. It is now used by the Consolidated Paper Corporation as a guest house for fishermen and distinguished visitors to the island, where they may obtain the maximum of comfort and convenience.

Port Menier is now the main settlement and harbour on the island, and the greater part of the poplation is concentrated there.

A Government Radio Telegraph Station is maintained at Port Menier. There are also various radio beacons and light houses for the protection of shipping.

It is interesting to note, in this connection, that the officer in charge of the Government Radio Station is Mr. J. A. Doig, a former resident of Lachute, Que.

Information contained herein was obtained partly from personal observation on the island, and partly from the Consolidated Paper Corporation's booklet, "The Salmon Streams of Anticosti Island."

Maxims for Success

The following maxims were carried in a pocket-book by a distinguished man of business . . . .

Keep good company or none.
Never be idle.
If your hands cannot be usefully employed attend to the civilization of your mind.
Always speak the truth.
Make few promises.
Live up to your engagements.
Keep your own secrets, if you have any.
When you speak to a person, look him in the face.
Good character is above all things else.
Good character cannot be essentially injured, except by your own acts.
If anyone speaks evil of you, let your life be such that none will believe him.
Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors.
Ever live (misfortunes excepted) within your income.
When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day.
Make no haste to be rich, if you would prosper.
Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind.
Never play at any kind of game of chance.
Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it.
Earn money before you start to spend it.
Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again.
Never borrow, if you can possibly avoid it.
Never speak evil of anyone.
Be just before you are generous.
Keep yourself innocent, if you would be happy.
Save when you are young to spend when you are old.
Read these rules at least once a week.

Native : "Well, there's not much competition."

Lapse in Highway Construction But Rail Expansion Foreseen

Canada's "War Machine" Gets Quietly, Efficiently Under Way; Average Citizen Little Aware of Measures Already Put Into Effect

Ottawa, Sept 26 — Canada now moves swiftly to play her part in the war. Every day brings forth some additional evidence that the machine is being "stepped up." Much of the movement is behind the scenes and for reasons of policy is not being advertised.

Almost without the average citizen being aware of it, the government has taken to itself practically unlimited powers. It can act swiftly and secretly to pursue what it believes to be the best policy for the nation. Prices and wages can be fixed, securities and savings taken over, information repressed, individuals detained. These are potential powers, and some may not be exercised. But the power is there, in unlimited quantity. It is one of the accompaniments of war.

The new swift developments of the past few days are in three or four separate fields :

1. Military action comprises the decision to enlist, train and equip two divisions. A division numbers about 15,000 men. It is the smallest complete battle unit, and includes three brigades of infantry (4 battalions each) divisional artillery, divisional engineers, supply, signals, etc. One of these divisions will be ear-marked for service overseas, the other, for the time at least, for home defence. The units will be raised at many local centres and given preliminary training. Then there will be concentration into provincial or regional training camps. Unlike the last war, there is no intention of burdening the democracies by sending over inadequately equipped and half-trained troops to add to the transportation and feeding difficulties of the Allies. The Canadians will go abroad trained in Canada and equipped with Canadian supplies.

2. This will be supplemented in other fields. There will be a big expansion in naval activity, and Canada will rapidly build and outfit a fleet of anti-submarine craft, so as to relieve the British navy of the need of patrolling Canadian waters and so as to assist in convoying Canadian goods. There will be a tremendous expansion in the training of air-pilots and craftsmen.

3. Canada's production of war equipment and supplies will go far beyond the needs of her own war forces. She will become one of the major supply factories for Britain and France. Aeroplanes, artillery, shells, high explosives, machine guns and other direct fighting weapons will be produced, and so will the numerous incidental needs of wartime. Already the new war supply board, headed by a leading technical industrialist and the National Research Council are geared up to get the machine into full operation. Numerous contracts have already been let and others will be let as fast as possible.

4. Canada will be one of the main sources for foods and metals. Steps are being taken to control cheese and apple markets and government supervision of other supplies is expected. There is such a large crop of wheat that restrictions upon trading of it may not be immediately introduced, but the expectations for the future are that this vital commodity will also be under close government supervision. Even as it is now, the government is in control of a great measure of wheat marketing.

5. On the financial and fiscal side, there are unannounced evidences that the expansion of bank credit is beginning, in a quiet and well controlled way. Capital projects by provinces and municipalities are being discouraged, so that their demands for structural and building materials will not interfere with the war effort. There is likely to be a serious lapse in highway construction for a while. The railways, on the other hand, are planning to spend rather freely to bring the transportation needs of the economy at war into good shape.

6. Restrictions on voluntary enlistments are being made so as to ensure that men with special qualifications, badly needed in the effort to get the industrial machine well under way, are not drawn off into military service. Many skilled men are required in modern mechanized armies, and these will be accepted, up to the number absolutely needed in khaki. But most of the specialists and highly skilled workmen will be needed in the great drive now being launched to produce a vast flood of war munitions.

Quebec Election Is Announced for October 25th.

NOMINATIONS CALLED FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 18

Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec, in a statement in which he said the Union Nationale government wishes to consult the electors "on questions which should be brought forward in every democratic and parliamentary regime," announces that provincial elections will be held on Oct. 25.

The statement added: "Let each and everyone who has forgotten, or who may forget, understand that Quebec intends to preserve its full autonomy and to demand from the federal authority, such as it may be, the integral rights which are guaranteed her by the constitution.

"Invoking the pretext of war, declared by the federal government, a campaign of assimilation and centralization, manifest for several years, is accentuating itself in an intolerable manner.

"Ministerial orders have been passed by Ottawa, by virtue of the 'War Measures Act,' with the desire and the effect of centralizing at Ottawa, because of the war, all the finances of individuals, municipalities, provinces and the country in general."

All attempts "of which the effect and consequences are to deprive the provinces of revenue . . . constitute a most reprehensible attack against provincial prerogatives," the statement said.

Quebec cannot and should not lend itself "to manoeuvers which would bring about the ruin of provincial autonomy and, as a result, the ruin of Canada.

"The government of the province, conscious of the rights of the people, has decided to submit to the electorate questions of the greatest importance, some of which, the most vital ones, have arisen recently," the Union Nationale chief said in his statement.

The general election will be the first the Union Nationale party has faced since it came into power in August, 1936, when it swept the Liberals, who had held office for 38 years, out of power. In five by-elections, however, government candidates were elected.

Nominations will be held Wednesday, October 18, and voting will take place the following Wednesday, October 25, after four sessions of the legislature.

C-I-L Outlines Policy on Employees Who Enlist For National Service

COMPANY GRANTS LEAVE OF ABSENCE AND MAINTAINS BENEFIT FUND PRIVILEGES

Montreal, Sept. 26—The protection of position and service, the payment of allowances and the maintenance of pensions and death benefits to all employees who apply for and are granted leave of absence for military duty, are provided for in a statement on policy covering national service issued by Canadian Industries Limited to all its employees in Canada.

The company's policy, which is in effect until further notice, covers all male employees in its service prior to September 1 last who are granted leave of absence before enlistment in the military, naval or air forces of Canada or her allies for service either at home or overseas. It also covers those who were on the reserve of these forces before September 1 and who may be called upon to serve.

The statement declares that every effort will be made to re-instate employees in active employment on their return from national service and that in the event of the old job having been discontinued the most suitable one available will be offered. Employees taken on after September 1, will be engaged for the duration of the war only and promotions made during the war will be subject to adjustment afterwards.

For the first month of service the company will pay full salary or wages without deductions on account of government pay. Commencing with the second month of service the company will pay the difference between the employee's regular salary or wages and the amount he receives from the government in pay and separation allowances, and in the case of those not in receipt of separation allowance the difference between two-thirds of regular salary or wages and government pay. "The company," says the statement, "hopes to maintain these payments without change, but in view of the uncertain future will review the subject each September."

Provision is also made to credit each employee with the full time of his national service so that his continuity of employment service will not be broken. The death benefits under the Employees' Benefit Plan and also eligibility under the Pension Plan are to be continued for those who enlist.

In a message to employees Arthur B. Purvis, President and Managing Director, says in part: "C-I-L has an important part to play in the national effort in which all will now be engaged. Whatever the extra demands put upon us, let us all pull together so that our record may be one of which we can all be justly proud."

Building Internment Camp

Construction crews are building detention quarters for enemy aliens in the forested areas of the Petawawa military encampment 20 miles north of Kingston—it is reported.

About 200 aliens now under detention at old Fort Henry on the outskirts of Kingston, will be transferred to the camp in about three weeks.

Under construction are dining hall, administration offices, dormitories and other buildings, and the settlement will be enclosed by a high barbed wire fence.

WHO SAID ELECTION ... IS THIS PATRIOTISM ?

"Autonomy of the Provinces" is, ostensibly, the key-note on which Premier Maurice Duplessis calls an election in Quebec . . . The rights, the desires, the opinions of indlviduals appear negligible beside this momentous issue — for, by a certain inadequacy of provincial constitutions, the man-in-the-street has no say whether he desires an election or not; it rests, apparently, with the Premier and his Cabinet—who merely "represent" the people. In this hour of national trial, to the butcher and the baker in Lachute it is of small moment whether Mr. Duplessis should carry his autonomy doctrines with 71 seats, a few more or a few less..With 71 out of 90, many are willing to concede that his government has given a good account of itself. In view of this political advantage, why, then, put the taxpayers to the untimely expense and disturbance of an election? Mr. Duplessis, at this critical time, stands to lose rather than to gain by his "autonomy" cry. Folks are too occupied with more ominous affairs, to ponder whether Ottawa is infringing on Quebec finances in the execution of its national program.

Fined for Hunting Without License in Ontario

John Tryen, 21, and U. D. VanEvery, 22, both of Montreal, pleaded guilty in police court at Hawkesbury, to charges of hunting in Ontario without a licence and of using firearms on Sunday. Magistrate Raoul Labrosse, of Vankleek Hill, sentenced both men to fines of $20 and costs on the first count and $15 and costs in the second case. Game Warden Wayne Robinson, of Ottawa, and Game Warden Raymond, of Apple Hill, laid the charges.

Gerard Beauchamp, 28, of Grenville, was fined $10 and costs for driving an automobile without a permit.

Members Hear Report on New United Church

EDIFICE WILL BE OPENED EARLY IN NOVEMBER

The report of Dr. G. A. Clunie, secretary-treasurer of Lachute United Church, submitted to a congregational meeting held in the Sunday School hall on Monday evening, proved highly gratifying.

An encouraging factor had been the ready response to the appeal for funds, which had assured that the new church building would be opened free of mortgage. The work of reconstruction has been executed by the Ryan Construction Company and the builders will have their contract completed in record time. With necessary delay to permit thorough drying out, the installation of seats and the new pipe organ will be immediately proceeded with, and it is anticipated the church will be opened early in November.

The thanks of the meeting were tendered to Mr. W. M. Scott as chairman of the building committee, and to his very efficient staff.

GENERAL IRONSIDE

Chief of the Imperial Staff, is seen above in London going to the War Office carrying his gas mask and a tin hat in case of sudden emergency. Lord Gort and General Ironside are the two men on whose shoulders the British have placed the responsibility of guarding the destinies of the British troops.

Guards Placed on Buildings, Hospitals and Schools In Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury's request to the Ontario Municipal Board to be allowed to appoint men to guard local buildings and other important places has been granted, and 33 local men are now on duty, working in eight-hour shifts of 11 men each. The men are all unemployed. Request for their appointment had to be made to the Municipal Board because Hawkesbury is under Government supervision.

Places under guard are the town pumping station on the Snye Islands, the reservoir tank, the Grey School, the Sacred Heart Academy, St. Joseph's Academy, the Public and High School building, the post office, Notre Dame Hospital, Hopital du Bon Pasteur, and the private hospitals operated by Dr. T. W. Smith and Dr. E. P. Kelly. Local business firms have also taken precautions to guard their plants.

Former Buckingham Mayor Was Born in St. Benoit

J. Palma Lahaie, former mayor of Buckingham, died Tuesday at his home. He was 91.

Mr. Lahaie was mayor of Buckingham in 1900 and 1901 and prior to that was a councillor when Buckingham was a village. He was also a veteran of the Fenian Raids.

Born at St. Benoit, Que., he moved to Buckingham in 1860 at the age of 12 from St. Marthe, and obtained employment in a general store. In 1882 he went in business and operated a store and tailor shop which he carried on for many years.

Automobiles in Collision at St. Philippe Corner

While automobile accidents have declined with the ebb of the season's rush, a collision at St. Philippe this week indicates the need of unfailing care upon the highways. Two cars were badly damaged, though no injuries were sustained, at 11 o'clock Monday morning when a 1939 Chevrolet coach proceeding west on Route No. 8 struck the rear of a St. Philippe car driven by Ed. Bertrand, which, coming eastward on the highway, had turned at the intersection to the Staynerville road. The driver of the westbound car, Donald B. McLeod, of Montreal, was on his way to Temiskaming, Que. As he applied the brakes, his machine skidded 234 feet on the road, according to Traffic Officer H. Jones, of Lachute, who investigated.

Bertrand's car was taken to a St. Philippe garage, while the Montreal auto was brought to Lachute and later towed to the city for repairs.

EVENT TO FINISH HERE AROUND 2 P.M. SUNDAY

Robt. Taylor, Sr., of Brownsburg, is sponsoring a second Montreal to Lachute bicycle race, with the collaboration of merchants and citizens of the community.

It is stated this event, to take place on Sunday, Oct. 1st, will feature several of the fastest cycle-racers in Canada—among them, R. Cyr, the Dominion champion. Other crack riders in the line-up will include, G. Perron, H. Emond, Murch and Taylor; these were the first five to finish in the recent Quebec-Montreal run. The last named, R. Taylor, Jr., is a county boy with a high cycling record this season.

The promoter anticipates a fast race and a fast finish. Leaving at 12.30 p.m. the cyclists will arrive here at around 2 o'clock. Spectators are asked to keep the thoroughfare clear and to park cars in the centre lane. The finishing line will be at the Lunch Car on Main Street.

Quebec is Canada's second largest manufacturing province, accounting for 29 per cent of the Dominions manufacturing output in 1937.

CBC Cleared Decks for War News Broadcasts

Canada's national radio broadcasting system, like all other large enterprises in the Dominion, has made rapid adjustments to meet the changed conditions imposed by the war.

When the outbreak of hostilities became imminent, radio in particular had an unusual responsibility imposed upon it, without precedent for guidance, or time in which to develop plans.

When the crisis broke, emergency provisions were effected to ensure the Canadian listening public of up-to-the-minute service of all important news flashes in co-operation with the Canadian Press, special broadcasts and foreign commentaries. Leave of CBC employees who had not as yet taken their holidays was revoked; programmes from distant points were cancelled and substitute entertainment was heard from Toronto, with everything in readiness to be cleared for immediate news. Twenty-four hour shifts were introduced at all key stations.

To further facilitate the release of special news, CBC engaged an extra Dominion-wide duplicate transmission circuit. By this means, broadcasts originating in distant points, such as Vancouver or Halifax, were brought directly to the main Toronto studios, there to be re-transmitted over the regular network circuit. This permitted immediate broadcast cut-ins on all programmes of important news, sent directly to the Toronto offices.

Trophies Awarded Argenteuil County Boxing Champs

FINALS ARE DECIDED AT ARENA TOURNAMENT

The boxing champions of Argenteuil received official recognition last Thursday evening, when Geo. Héon, M.P. for the constituency, congratulated and presented cups to the winners, as follows : 80 lbs., Gaston Lavergne; 126 lbs., Armand Bilodeau; 130 lbs., Cleo. Hooper; 147 lbs., Bernard Belanger; 150 lbs., Lionel Girard.

A good crowd witnessed the tournament in spite of a somewhat frigid temperature. Due to the illness of Paul Lahaye, the refereeing duties were performed by Mr. Leo. Girard, with exception of one bout. The judges were Ed. Barker, Ed Anderson and Geo. Héon, M.P., with Wilfrid Lafontaine substituting for Mr. Héon in the first fight. Many boxers from Montreal and other districts took part in the meet, most of the honors going to the former.

Two Montreal 70-pounders, Geo. Wilkins and Harry Abbott, were in the first bout, and for youngsters they put up a creditable show, their efforts being awarded a draw.

The 147 lb. county championship was decided in the next contest, with Howard Ward and Bernard Belanger in the ring. The first round was fairly even and far from exciting, as the boxers were studying each other's style and looking for openings. The second was more aggressive, as Belanger showed a good left and nimbleness on his feet. This advantage was offset by the ruggedness of Ward. After the end of the regular three rounds, a draw was awarded, so another round was fought, and Belanger proved slightly superior as he landed a few point-getting rights which earned him the championship.

Montreal battled Lachute in the next fight, as Jim Gopfrich met Cleo. Hooper in the 130 class. Gopfrich had advantage of height and reach, and in the initial stages his experience showed greater superiority.

Alouette Ski Club Will Be Host to Young Montreal Ski-ing Enthusiasts

ORGANIZING SOCIAL EVENT AT MORIN HEIGHTS TO INITIATE FUND

Morin Heights—

The executive of the Alouette Ski Club have concluded that their activities for the coming year assume a national character—in emphasizing development of the physical side of the local youth, and to participate in this so far as the limitations of their club permit. With this in mind, Mr. Harold Bott of Montreal High School, father of the famed ski-jumping sons, attended a meeting and gave the executive his views. He told of the field of opportunity this phase of activity holds; how the facilities for ski-ing practice both on the Mount Royal and Westmount mountains were decreasing, while the need for them was on the up-trend. He said that in each year only one organized day event, which was held through joint efforts of the Penguins Ski Club and the Red Birds of McGill, at St. Sauveur, was open to the majority of Montreal school children. This, he stated, was such a treat to many, that he knew any efforts to provide additional events of a similar nature would be of national benefit and would be greatly appreciated by the children. He promised the assistance of his experience and associations to the Club in this work, and was eager under pressure of the times, to see it undertaken.

It was decided therefore, that the people of Morin Heights be called to a general meeting at "The Commons" on Saturday evening, Sept. 30th, at 8 o'clock to appoint a committee for organization and execution of their phase of the work. Following this, representation will be made to the Canadian Amateur Ski Association for its assistance, with a view to providing facilities for teaching the children in Montreal in special classes to prepare them for practical work on the terrain. In this way there will be no break in the continuity of the scheme. It is felt that the Morin Heights boys and girls will enjoy this opportunity—of rendering double service in the national cause in time of need—first by helping to

50 Years Ago

Friday, Sept. 26, 1889

It is to be regretted that persons occupying such high and honorable positions as that of Mr. Joly, should be so indifferent to the claims of the Sabbath. When a public debate was to take place between Mr. Joly and Mr. Debouchervilie, and the time and place left to Mr. Joly, he appointed the Sabbath as the day of discussion, and that whole day was spent in publicly combatting each other at St. Croix.

On Thursday of last week the Agricultural Society of Argenteuil, held its Annual Exhibition at Lachute. The dinner was held at Lafleur's Hotel, and was on strictly temperance principles and practice. The chair was occupied by the President, John Hay, Esq., having on his right Dr. Christie, M.P., and on his left the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott.

Sir John A MacDonald passed through Lachute by special train to Ottawa, on Thursday.

Death and Injuries Result of Double Highway Mishap Near Ste. Therese

A double accident just north of Ste. Therese on Saturday afternoon claimed the life of a 17-year-old cyclist, caused critical injuries to two auto passengers and general shock and contusions to two others.

The death occurred when Roger Chartrand of Ste. Therese, rode his bicycle to see the first accident and was struck by the automobile near the scene. He was taken to the Ste. Jeanne d'Arc Hospital, Montreal, with the two persons more seriously injured in the first crash. He died next morning of a fracture of the skull.

The injured were Maxwell Brand, of Montreal, suffering from internal injuries, and Mrs. Henri Therrien, of Lake Brule, near Ste. Agathe, suffering from a fracture of the skull, a broken right leg and a compound fracture of the upper jaw. Both are in a critical condition.

Two others, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Royston, were taken to their home in Ville LaSalle, suffering from general bruises.

The first accident happened when Royston's automobile, travelling north, collided head on with Brand's auto, travelling south on the wide roadway, Provincial Police, who investigated were unable to learn why the collision had occurred.

After the accident, a crowd collected and Chartrand rode up on his bicycle, and in the jam of traffic, crossed into the path of another auto which struck him down.

Channel Island Becomes A New "Gibraltar"

British Fortress on Alderney Will Command Shipping Route and Bay of Biscay

The Air Ministry is reported to have taken over almost one-fifth of the little island with the consent of its 1,100 people and to have completed arrangements for an Air Force base.

It is understood that the Government believed it could make Alderney impregnable in two years. It would command both the English Channel and the Bay of Biscay. Lying 10 miles off Cap de la Haye, France, and 50 miles south of Portland Bill, England, it is three and a half miles long and a mile wide.

County Boxing Champions Receive Trophies

Early in the next round, Hooper found himself in real trouble as his opponent turned on the heat, and blood was gushing from a bad cut over the right eye. The referee stopped the fight, and a technical knockout was awarded the Montreal boy.

Another K.O. decided the following bout, when Lionel Vezeau of Cartier Club met Percy Brazeau of Grenville. The fight started in a spirited manner, and Vezeau landed two lefts and a right to the stomach, almost winding Brazeau. Toward the end of the round, Vezeau connected a good right to his opponent's jaw, felling him to the canvas for the count.

The 150 lb. county championship was won in the next fight, as Lionel Girard exchanged leather with Victor Moore of Brownsburg. This bout showed little of championship calibre, as very few punches were exchanged throughout the three rounds. Though Girard took the lead in the offensive, little damage was done, and the championship was awarded to Girard on points.

Bobby Jones, 80 lb. brown bomber of the Cartier Club, met Gaston Lavergne of Lachute in the next match, and this set-to pleased the crowd, as they battled to a draw.

In the 108 lb. class, Sam Jacobs of Cartier and Guy Racine of St. Eustache featured in the next fight. Both landed telling blows in the first round, but in the next Jacobs gained the advantage as he sent many rights to Racine's jaw, and as Racine found the going too rough a technical knockout was given Jacobs.

The best fight of the evening was between Marcel Viau of Montreal, and M. Poirier of Joliette, in the 112 division. Although the contest lasted only one round, there was more action packed into this than in most of the other fights. Both were battling to the limit as they exchanged many punches in the three minutes. Poirier came out after a clinch showing a cut over the right eye, and the referee decided to stop the fight after the first round, thereby giving Viau a technical knock-out.

The next bout was in the nature of an exhibition contest, as Roger Dulude and Jean Barrière, veterans of the Montreal ring, mixed it up for five rounds.

Popular J. Racine of St. Eustache met Tony Morin of Montreal in the final match. Morin had the advantage of reach, and Racine tried to provoke him by various tactics in order to lower his guard. But Morin, having spent many hours in ring warfare, knew what his opponent was up to. Very few punches were exchanged, and the affair as a whole was quite tame. A draw was awarded, though the Montreal boxer landed more point telling blows.

Where Dogs Are Fed Pears and Lobsters

Started either by volcanic action or prolonged rains, a disastrous mountain slide recently brought death to scores in picturesque St. Lucia, tiny island in the British West Indies. So the land believed to have been discovered by Columbus in 1502 made the headlines.

But St. Lucia rarely does that. There is no great commerce, no activity there to put it in the newspapers. For the most part its 66,000 inhabitants, largely Negroes, lead a prosaic life engaged in the gathering and the shipment of bananas, sugar, copra, limes, cacao, nutmegs and logwood.

Much of the island is uncultivated, a wild beautiful garden in the Caribbean. Fruits, flowers and countless varieties of spices grow in abundance. Food is so plentiful that the ordinarily expensive alligator pears and lobsters are fed regularly to the house pets. Everything grows lushly under the hot tropical sun of St. Lucia.

Castries is the only town of consequence on the island. As a British naval station and capital it has long been fortified, and is one of the best defended spots in the British West Indies. Its harbour is landlocked, providing exceptional and strategic facilities for the Royal naval forces as well as an important harbor for commercial shipping.

St. Lucia was created by volcanic action. Volcanoes may destroy it again, but meantime life goes on there remote and undisturbed by the troubles of the rest of the world. The harbour at Port Castries is shown on a current postage stamp of the island.

COASTAL WATERS HAVE THREE TEMPERATURES

There are three temperature levels of water during the summer off the coast of Nova Scotia and in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, according to the Natural Resources Department of the C. N. Rlys. During the summer there is an upper warm layer, middle cold layer and bottom warm layer. In the winter time the upper layer gradually becomes cold but the other two layers remain practically the same. The knowledge of these temperature levels is of great value in the deep sea fishing industry.

SASKATCHEWAN CREATES NEW PROVINCIAL PARK AT LAC LA RONGE

Lac la Ronge, frequently referred to as the most scenic body of water in the Prairie Provinces, has been made a provincial park by the Saskatchewan Government. The new park will cover approximately 1,100 square miles and will take in almost the entire lake; the settlement of Lac la Ronge at the southern end of the lake, however, will not be included. Above are pictures of the Lac la Ronge road (top) showing the Moose antlers which mark the 3rd Meridian, and (bottom) grading the Lac la Ronge road on the east side of Montreal Lake.

Frenzied German Finance

(Granby Leader)

Mr. Arthur G. Warren, who is an annual summer visitor to Granby, is showing a souvenir of special significance at this time, depicting "Frenzied Finance" as it was in Germany in 1923, and it carries a message which may well be studied by advocates of printing press money.

This souvenir is the wrapper of a parcel mailed from Germany in November 1923 addressed to his daughter, Miss Helen Warren, Worcester, Mass.

November 1923 was about the time that Germany's inflated money was at its peak. The postage for this parcel which weighed only four ounces, amounted to 64,000,000,000 marks. The total postage with the mark at par would have been $15,245,000,000, yet the actual value of the postage was only one and a half cents.

This value is based on a news item in the New York Times of December 22nd., 1923; which by a strange coincidence deals with the exact sum which appeared in postage on this parcel. This item read in part, "A heavy decline in Federal and State bonds on the Boerse this week was based on semi-official statements that the (German) government will continue to treat these loans as pure paper mark securities. That means that the Republic's entire funded indebtedness of 64,000,000,000 marks omitting the recent gold loan, is worth in gold at the present valuation of the mark, exactly one and one-half cents."

It is a remarkable example of unrestricted inflation, and the greatest argument against inflation is that once started it continues to grow rapidly with no hope of restriction. Many people in the Allied countries hope for Germany's financial collapse through this or some other method.

Neutrality in the U.S.A.

Editor, The Watchman:

The writer hopes that his views being expressed in verse will not detract from any cogency they may have.

While Europe's great democracies
Are fighting to save our civilization,
Menaced by the autocracies
With brutal method and evasion
Of the most common decencies
Used by good men of all degrees . .

Must we be neutral in our hearts,
Indifferent to the holocaust
Blazing and blasting still those parts
Of Poland, where already lost
And suffering people cry in vain
For rescue from war's hellish rain?

All honor to Great Britain, France,
Who rate the highest praise we know,
Ready 'gainst Hitler to advance
(That scheming, plotting, lying foe,
Adept in every phase of cheating,
Now apt to get a well-earned beating!)

Indeed his beating has begun:
This man of craze and egomania
Has met his peer, for on the run
Stalin has wedged in, next Rumania;
While Hitler coveted her soil
So fertile, and her fields of oil.

The arrogant, bombastic Fuehrer
Pretends complacency, content,
Says so 'twas planned; but nought is surer
Than that this untoward event
Came like a sword-thrust at his heart
When Joseph Stalin got the start!

With German blood and German treasure
Spent in a smashing, mighty blow
To blast a nation, little pleasure
Comes to the conqueror, we know,
Who halves his conquest with a rival
Who may endanger his survival.

No, we can't harbor feelings neutral
Between aggressors and their victim;
We take our stand against the brutal
Invader, for our fervent dictum
Is: "Down with invasion and brutality". . . .
We cannot think, or feel, neutrality!

—W. A. Leggo, Darien, Conn.

WAR . . . . . danger

The war that the whole world has been dreading is under way. No one can guess its outcome. In time of war the unexpected always happens.

In declaring America's neutrality President Roosevelt pointed out that people cannot be expected to be neutral in their thoughts and sympathies. I have lately traversed the United States from end to end, and talked with all kinds of Americans. I found them, almost to a man, hoping and praying for the defeat, not of the German people, but of their leader, Adolf Hitler. The greatest danger, I think, is that our general hatred of Hitler and his methods may turn to hatred of all Germans.

PROPAGANDA . . principles

I hear many people talk about "propaganda." Most people use the word vaguely, as if it meant some mysterious force which can make common-sense people believe that black is white.

I have too much confidence in people, to believe that they are easily fooled. Lincoln was right when he said that you can't fool all the people all the time. Scatter-brained minorities frequently make a loud noise under the influence of propaganda, and sometimes causes the sane majority a lot of trouble, but it takes no propaganda to keep the citizenry in general secure in their devotion to the fundamental principles of democracy.

One of those principles, the bedrock of democracy, is the right of the people to govern themselves, through administrators of their own choosing. The other is the right of everybody to teach or to believe whatever doctrine is acceptable to him.

DEMOCRACY . . . beginnings

Digging through the history of America for the first seeds of democracy I found them, not in Massachusetts nor Virginia but in the little colony of Providence Plantations, now the state of Rhode Island. Roger Williams, a minister of Salem, was expelled from Massachusetts because he boldly preached the doctrine that State and Church should be separate.

Friendly Indians sold Williams land at the head of Narragansett Bay, where he welcomed settlers of all races and religions. The preamble and bill of rights of the colony's code of laws, adopted in 1647, is a remarkable document. It reads thus :

"The form of government established in Providence Plantations is democratical; that is to say, a government held by the free and voluntary consent of all, or the greater part of the free inhabitants. . . . .

These are the laws that concern all men; and otherwise than what is forbidden herein all men may walk as their consciences permit them, every one in the name of God."

TOLERANCE . . . . . basic

The very idea of tolerating political or religious beliefs contrary to those of the rulers seemed sinful to the Massachusettts Puritans. When Quakers first appeared in their colony they were deported to Barbados, some had their ears cut off, others, including women were hanged for their professed belief.

Roger Williams welcomed them, though he did not like their religion. They settled the island now called Rhode Island, and founded the town of Newport.

Jews were also banned from the other colonies. In 1684 they petitioned the Providence colony for the right to settle there and were assured they would have equal rights with all others. Within a century the Jewish citizens of Newport were counted the wealthiest and most enterprising in New England. The first synagogue in America was built at Newport in 1763.

DANGER . . . . . intolerance

Today the Quakers are among the most generally respected citizens of America. One of their sect, Mr. Hoover, was President. But we have been bombarded for years with propaganda, from abroad and from within our own boundaries, against the Jews.

Fortunately this sort of attack has not kept members of that able race from attaining high elective and appointive offices. The Governor of the most populous state is a Jew. There are Jews in both houses of Congress, on the Supreme Court bench, the President's Cabinet, the diplomatic corps and in numerous other high offices.

When we circulate or give heed to anti-Jewish propaganda, we are departing from the principles of democracy first set forth on this continent by Roger Williams. Our liberties are in danger from that sort of intolerance.

Happiness in 10 Rules

1 Make up your mind to be happy. It is largely self-hypnotism.

2 Make the best of your lot.

3 Do not take yourself too seriously and imagine that everything that happens to you is of vital importance.

4 Do not take others too seriously, nor worry too much over their opinions.

5 Do not borrow trouble nor worry about the future. Enjoy to-day and meet tomorrow when it comes.

7 Keep in circulation. Go around and meet people.

8 Do not hold post mortems over mistakes you have made or sorrows that have befallen you.

SEEK TICKET REFUND AFTER 62 YEARS

An unused portion of a railway ticket from Chicago to Boston which was purchased in the Grand Trunk Railway ticket office 62 years ago, and recently found in the effects of a late resident of Andover, Mass., has been presented to the passenger department of the Central Vermont Railway for refund. The unused portion of the ticket was good for travel between Montreal and White River Jct.

Historic Sites

Motoring over the highways of Ontario and Quebec, one is occasionally moved to wonder whether the marking of historic sites is properly the duty of the Dominion Government. Certainly, it is a task that should be performed, but is it not possible that the performance would be more satisfactory if it were entrusted to residents of the localities affected, particularly those who have made a hobby of local history?

The trouble with most of our historic sites as now indicated by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board is their sameness. One heap of stones in a field so closely resembles another heap of stones in another field that there is no temptation for a hurrying motorist to stop and read the small bronze plates that give reasons for them. At a distance of a few yards the plate marking where Montgomery fell at Quebec is indistinguishable from that marking where he kept a tavern on upper Younge street.

Moreover, the sites marked by the Dominion Government are those hallowed by association with events made deadly dull by Canadian history as taught in our public schools. There is plenty of local history still uncontaminated by text-books, fully as deserving of stone and bronze as the incidents deemed worthy of official commemoration. There have been election battles fought in the back townships with more bloodshed than dignified the rebellion of William Lyon Mackenzie. Get an old inhabitant of any small town talking in a reminiscent mood and you will elicit more and better history than Ottawa ever dreamed of.

It is worth while talking to the old inhabitants if only to learn that our ancestors were human. That fact is carefully concealed by the official bronzes. If our history is to blossom by our roadsides, we need the enthusiastic amateur rather than the formal gardener. He can be found in many places, but his natural home is not Ottawa. —The Printed Word

Late Grenville Resident Was 95 Years of Age

MRS. JOHN WHITEHEAD

Grenville—The oldest resident of this section of the county passed away in the early hours of Friday morning, in the person of Mrs. John Whitehead. Mrs. Whitehead was the daughter of the late J. Hutchinson, who was born in the year 1799 and died at the age of 105. She herself was over 95 years of age. Up to six years ago her health and vigor were undiminished, but at that time a fall greatly affected her health. However, she remained clear of intellect and with very good hearing and eyesight up to the last week of her life. She was born at Grenville and lived the whole of her life on the Front Road there. In that community especially, she will be greatly missed. She was buried on Sunday afternoon in the churchyard of St. Matthew's, the service being conducted by the rector. A crowded church testified to the respect in which she was held by the whole neighborhood.

Mrs. Whitehead had three daughters, Marion Whitehead, Mrs. W. Drysdale and Mrs. Standish. Of these, Mrs. Standish is now living, at Rougement, and was present at the funeral, with Mr. Standish and her son, Ivan. The other two are both dead, Mrs. Drysdale leaving two children, William and Mrs. C. Canning, who were also present. These reside in the States. Among the mourners was Mr. Harry Bingham, who has served Mrs. Whitehead faithfully for many years.

New Advocate to Open Office in Lachute

With office in the Menard building, 301 Main Street, Lachute, a newcomer to the professional ranks of this town, Maurice Paquin, B.A., LL.L., is opening a notarial business on October 9, and will give courteous and confidential service to clients. Mr. Paquin comes as a notary from an established Montreal firm with whom he has been in partnership for some time, and is expert in matters governing personal status, estate and property in this province. —05-2c

Founder Is Honored at Local W.C.T.U. Gathering

The old Sovereign Hotel, now the Historical Museum in Carillon, might almost be considered to have been re-dedicated anew by the holding on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 20, of a Women's Christian Temperance meeting there in honor of the centenary of Francis Willard. White with pink-blush peonies are being planted all over our Dominion and in the United States, in memory of this Christian woman who did so much in her lifetime for the uplift of women and children, and for humanity in general, and whose influence is still felt in the continuance of the organization she formed the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Argenteuil-Vaudreuil Union, too, planted a peony that afternoon thus dedicating this place, where liquor had been sold for so many years, to the cause of temperance. The peony was planted beside the entrance to the building, by Mrs. David Barclay of Pointe Fortune, one of the oldest members of this union. Mrs. W. McLaughlin, also of Pointe Fortune, made the dedicatory prayer. Both ladies having been members for 43 years, were an example to those of us who would shirk responsibility along the lines of temperance work.

Members from Lakefield, Lachute, Cushing, Pointe Fortune, St. Eugene and Hawkesbury were in attendance to hear the guest speaker, Mrs. Florence Orr, matron of the Montreal Women's Jail. Mrs. Orr being also a member of the nursing profession is well qualified to speak on many subjects concerning the welfare of women and children. One thing Mrs. Orr is certain of is that men who drink should never marry. Homes are made unfit for the rearing of children by drink. "'If you wish to save the nation you must first save the child, and in order to save the child you must go to the root of the matter, the home." "Life," she said, "is like a bank; if you put wisdom and truth into it you will be able to draw from it" . . . . "Parents," she said, "should not allow their daughters to go to big towns and cities to look for work. Many an innocent girl has found herself in jail when only looking for work, or in the toils of inhuman monsters who traffic in souls. If answering employment advertisements, find all about the place that is advertising, from the ministers, etc., before going. There would be fewer heart-broken parents if that were done . . . . And to young people who desire to leave home in search of so-called freedom, I would say—there is no freedom outside of the home; you are freer there than anywhere else in the world and bitter experience has taught many young folk that truth." Mrs. Orr took the four letters, W.C.T.U., as the text of her talk. "Women," she said, "are the deciding factors in the fate of the world, and in their hands lies the fate of nations." If children were given the proper training the world over, in the homes, there would be no such thing as war." . . . . The word Christ an involved a great adventure as following in the steps of the Master was an adventure and to do this we needed the helmet of salvation and the girding of righteousness. "Temperance" was a goal to strive for; we must make people realize that bodies, while they need nourishment, do not need poison—and alcohol is nothing less than poison which unfits men for work and makes of their homes a hell . . . . "Union", too, is something to strive for, and in union and God's strength the W.C.T.U. organization will go forward in this work for the Master.

—J. Graham,
Provincial and County Press Supt.

History Will Tell

Mr. J. S. Woodsworth wrote his own political obituary in parliament last week when he declared his personal stand for pacifism. It is true that Ramsay MacDonald was a pacifist throughout the great war, and that public opinion so greatly changed after the war that he became prime minister twice. We believe also that Lloyd George opposed Britain's entry into the Boer War, and made himself very unpopular, but lived to become prime minister. But they were young men, and Mr. Woodsworth is not. He will not remain active in politics long enough to capitalize on any public revulsion toward war. Mr. Woodsworth stood for his principles, and for his principles he was booed by the less thoughtful of his parliamentarians. Soon they will be acclaiming acts of heroism on the field of battle, but they did not appreciate the greater heroism of the man who dared to stand alone. They crucified him because he stood firm for what he believed to be the teachings of Jesus Christ. —Newmarket Era.

Social and Personal

Miss C. Farmer and Mr. Farmer, of Lachine, visited Miss Janet Farmer last Sunday at the home of Mrs. J W. Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Lavery, of Flint, Mich., and Miss Willow Lavery, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McArthur.

Miss Doris Bulloch, of N.D.G., who has spent the summer months in this vicinity, is progressing favorably, after suffering a fractured arm.

A number of ladies from Lachute attended the miscellaneous shower on Tuesday at Mrs. Geo. Peet's, Lakefield, in honor of Miss Myrtle Scott, whose marriage took place on Wednesday.

Mrs. Edwin Kempton, of Orange, N.J., visited her mother, Mrs. R. J. Millar, last week.

Misses Kitty and Beebe Foley and Miss Therese Berniquer, of Montreal, visited the latter's mother, Mrs. Jos. Berniquer, last week-end.

Rev. and Mrs. W. C. LeCras attended the funeral of the late Archdeacon Almond, held in Trinity Memorial Church, Montreal, on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carpenter and Miss Lorna Carpenter spent Sunday in N.D.G., as guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Bulloch; while there they attended the memorial service in Christ Church Cathedral.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos Drysdale, of Lachine, Que., were the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Catton.

Miss Hazel Tibbits, of Shawinigan Falls, visited at the home of Mrs. Robt. Miller over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Dobbie, Miss Maud Dobbie and Mr. J. McGalliard visited friends in Harrington on Sunday.

Quite a number of masons from Argenteuil Lodge, No. 67, attended the Masonic gathering held in Hull on Saturday last.

Pte. Jock Cunningham, of the R.H.C. Regiment in Montreal, spent last week-end with his parents. Miss Gertie Cunningham, nurse-in-training at Dr. Smith's Hospital, Hawkesbury, spent Sunday at her home.

Mr. Walter Legge, of the Granby Leader Mail, accompanied by Col. J. B. Payne and Dr. Paul Leplante, also of Granby, paid a short visit to town on Tuesday last. They were returning from the Kiwanis Convention, held in Ottawa the early part of the week.

Golden Wedding

A happy evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McPhail, 44 Chatham Street, on Monday, Sept. 25th, when 30 or more relatives gathered to celebrate their fiftieth anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. McPhail were married by the late Rev. John Mackie and made their first home in Dalesville, afterwards taking up a farm in Chatham, from which they removed to Lachute a few years ago. Three children were born to them—Ruby, (Mrs. Everett McGibbon), Muriel (Mrs. Leslie Tomalty), and Roy, of Thurso. All were present at this celebration, with the three grandchildren.

Mrs. McPhail, who is in her 70th year, was formerly Miss Margaret Walker, daughter of the late Andrew Walker and Catherine Dunbar. Mr. Duncan McPhail, now in his 77th year, was the son of Daniel McPhail and Anne Ogilvie. Both are enjoying good health and are staunch members of the Lachute Baptist Church.

Many gifts were presented them, among which was a very pretty tea set. Mr. McPhail thanked his guests for their kindness and the gathering closed with the singing of "God be with you till we meet again."

Marriage

Hollingworth-Seale

On Saturday afternoon at Morin Heights United Church the marriage took place at half past three o'clock of Miss Grace Margaret Seale, daughter of Lieut-Col. and Mrs. J. E. Seale, of Morin Heights, and Mr. Leslie Gordon Hollingworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hollingworth, of Montreal. Rev. David R. Anderson officiated, and bronze and yellow helliniums decorated the church. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Hector Paquette, aunt of the bride, who also accompanied for Mrs. W. J. Deacon, of Lachute, who sang "I Love You Truly," during the signing of the register. Mrs. Allan Buxton was matron of honor. Mr. Gerald Leverette was best man and the ushers were Mr. Carl Seale and Mr. Gerald Cummings.

Colonel Seale gave his daughter in marriage. She wore plum novelty crepe with matching accessories, pearls, the gift of the bride-groom, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

The matron of honor wore midnight blue crepe with accessories to match and carried dark red roses. Mrs. Seale, mother of the bride, was in cruise blue, with black hat trimmed with a blue ostrich feather, wearing a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Hollingworth, mother of the bridegroom, was in navy crepe with matching hat and wore a corsage of dark red roses.

The bridal couple left later for a wedding trip by motor to the Maritimes. Going away Mrs. Hollingworth wore a plum boucle top coat over her wedding costume with a silver fox fur and corsage of pink roses. They will reside in Dixie, Que.

Local members of the Presbyterian Church are most keenly interested in a service to be held in St. Andrews East Presbyterian Church on Friday evening, September 29th, when Rev. William MacMillan, B.A., D.D., will be inducted into that pastoral charge. Several of the clergy prominent in the Presbytery of Montreal will participate in the ceremony.

Next Sunday morning being Communion service, a special effort is being made to have every member present. This is in keeping with the special events of the month, with the following Sunday as Harvest-Thanksgiving and Sunday, Oct. 15th, as the Anniversary Sunday, when Rev. E. C. Cassidy, a former pastor, will be the special preacher.

"Harvest Home" Observed at Trinity Church, Lakefield

Lakefield—Holy Trinity Church held its annual "Harvest Home" on Thursday, residents from every part of the community gathering in the church to render thanks for the blessings of the harvest. The local school children enjoyed a holiday in order to attend the service at eleven o'clock, at which the guest preacher was Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, M.A., B.D., rector of St. James the Apostle Church in Montreal.

In his sermon Mr. Wilkinson urged the congregation to live the simple yet sincere life that Jesus lived, for simplicity, he said, is the keynote of the Christian life. He stressed the fact that everyone should appreciate the beauty and wealth to be found in nature.

The service was conducted by Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, assisted by Mr. H. G. Baugh. The music and choir were under the direction of the Rev. A. E. Mount.

An arch of ground-cedar formed the entrance to the chancel, while the altar and windows were banked with gladioli.

Following the service members of the W.A. served dinner to about 150 people in the Gibb Parish Hall.

At the regular Sunday evening service at Trinity Church, the congregation had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Arthur Davidson, well-known Montreal violinist. Accompanied at the organ by Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh, he played "Abide with Me."

At St. Andrews East

St. Andrews East—The Women's Guild of the United Church met on Thursday afternoon at the Manse. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Thos. McAdam. A rummage sale was arranged for Oct. 3rd, and a dinner for Oct. 12th, from 6 to 8 o'clock. The usual picnic tea followed the needlework session.

The induction service of Rev. Wm. McMillen, D.D., into the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church, takes place on Friday evening, Sept. 29th. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Anniversary Observed at St. Mathew's, Grenville

Grenville—On Thursday last, St Matthew's Day, the church at Grenville celebrated both its patronal festival and the 107th anniversary of its building. The event was observed by a special service of evening prayer, with appropriate hymns and prayers, and by a celebration of the Holy Communion in the morning.

At the evening service the special preacher was the Rev. C. C. Phillips, of North Gower, Ont. Mr. Phillips is the great grandson of the Rev. Jos. Abbott, first rector of the parish and builder of the church. As Mr. Phillips was preaching, your correspondent was struck by the thought that probably his great grandfather had preached from the same pulpit. (The pulpit was given back to the church at the centenary by Mr. Willis Crooks, who occupies the old parsonage). In his address Mr. Phillips recalled his ancestor's connection with the parish, and also his own, he having been born in Hawkesbury.

A special offering for the anniversary was received at this service.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, Oct. 1st.

The Golden Text is from Proverbs 13:7. "There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing: there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee." (Isaiah 43:2)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Who that has felt the loss of human peace has not gained stronger desires for spiritual joy? . . . The loss of earthly hopes and pleasures brightens the ascending path of many a heart. The pains of sense quickly inform us that the pleasures of sense are mortal and that joy is spiritual." (Page 265).

Work on Famous Terminal May Soon Cease, Report

It is reported that the policy of the Dominion Government with regard to public works projects now in progress will be that these works will be suspended as rapidly as recruiting and private enterprise take up the slack in employment.

Presumably this will apply to the $2,000,000 addition to the postal terminal in Toronto, for which there has been no public enthusiasm, and to the Montreal terminal project of the Canadian National Railways, on which it has been proposed to spend $12,600,000 in the next three years, and of which there has been much criticism.

The Montreal terminal is a Canadian National project, strictly speaking. But 40 per cent of the expenditures is to be charged to the Dominion Government direct, as a relief work. Moreover, as the Canadian National has not the funds to pay its share of the 60 per cent bond issues, that, like all other C. N. R. projects, would have to be guaranteed by the Dominion and the interest would be added to the annual C.N.R. interest which has to be paid by the general taxpayer.

CANADIAN COW WINS AT WORLD'S FAIR

Of 150 carefully selected Canadian and United States cows at the New York World's Fair, an Ayrshire owned by W. H. Coverdale, of Kingston, Ont., has been named Elsie, the living embodiment of a commercial artist's conception of what a cow should be. Elsie, who was known as Star Beauty in the eight years of her life at the Lemoyne farm of the Canada Steamship Lines president, is a great producer and her good manners have made her popular with the agricultural college boys who are her attendants at the fair. She is milked three times daily and on two of her daily visits to the famous rotating milking machine operated by the Borden Company she does a solo act which attracts hundreds of observers. The exhibit of the 150 cows was arranged by Ayrshire, Jersey, Holstein and Brown Swiss breed associations of the two countries, the milk company providing the building, equipment and staff for the cow-to-ultimate-consumer exhibit.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

BOY SCOUTS WILL REPEAT THEIR SERVICE OF THE GREAT WAR

In ready fulfilment of the offer of their services by Sir Edward Beatty, President of the Boy Scouts Association, and prompt acceptance by the Prime Minister, the 100,000 Boy Scout leaders of Canada are preparing to carry out their obligation of "duty to God and the King" by rendering every possible non-military wartime home service.

That this service will prove of value is indicated by the record of Scout service during the Great War, but for which many important civilian activities would have moved at a much slower pace, particularly in 1914. In practically every city and town trained and uniformed Scouts were available in troops, or singly, to run messages on wheel or afoot, to help at a refreshment booth, a bazaar, a fund-raising entertainment; to usher at meetings, or wash dishes in a Red Cross kitchen.

As the general war work developed their activities broadened. They were used in connection with Victory Loan campaigns, and Red Cross; Y.M.C.A. and other patriotic fund drives. They met troop trains, and acted as guides and messengers. Later they met the trains of returning sick and wounded, carried their luggage, and assisted in every way possible.

At Halifax, Saint John, Quebec and Montreal, they met hospital ships. In the country districts they aided farmers whose farm hands had joined up. Many city boys also did long weeks of farm labour, through the harvest or the fruit season, without pay, or turned their earnings over to the Red Cross.

The wives of families of soldiers overseas were looked after. One Toronto Troop besides having a large war garden of its own, planted and tended 15 gardens for the wives of soldiers. In smaller communities there was such service as the sawing of the winter's wood for war widows, doing chores and running errands over long periods for families without men folk.

Numbers of Scouts gave valuable service in hospitals, one Winnipeg Scout putting in a total of some 600 hours in hospital attendance. One Toronto Scout was credited with 690 hours at the folding and packing of bags at a Red Cross depot.

CUSHING

Mr. G. W. Elliott, accompanied by his son, Fenton, from Ottawa, spent several days last week visiting old friends in Sawyerville, returning early this week.

Mrs. J. Gleave and son, Russel, of Montreal, spent the week-end at Lorncrest and had as their guests Mr. Allan Soper and Robert Stewart, of Westmount.

Week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham were the Misses M. Stephen and M. Mumford, of Ottawa, Miss E. Meikle of Aylmer West, Ont., and Miss C. Graham, Messrs Quentin and Elden James of Lachute.

Capt. and Mrs. J. D. Weir and Miss Eileen Weir, of Senneville, spent the week-end at their Cushing cottage.

Messrs. Harry Trotter and Allan Hollingsworth were week-end guests at the home of Miss A. Weir.

Mrs. L. McGain, Miss Pauline and Mr. Ashley McGain, of N.D.G., occupied the Elliott cottage over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Dugan and family, of N.D.G., were week-enders at Riverside Cottage.

Mrs. S. H. Beecher and family, Miss Margaret and Mr. John Maw and Miss Sutton, of Montreal, occupied Lilac Lodge for the week-end.

Mrs. Greenleese of Toronto, Mrs. McCaw and Mrs. Webb of Montreal, and Mrs. Croll of Hudson, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fuller on Thursday.

The Misses Myrtle and Violet Bryerton, also Mr. Arthur Bryerton, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bryerton and Mrs. I. Fuller.

Mrs. John Funcheon and daughter, Helena, visited their Monalea home on Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Davidson, of Como, is the guest of Mrs. O. E. Leroy this week.

Mrs. Barton, of Prescott, and Nurse Barton, of Ottawa, were week-end guests at the manse.

Mr. Sandy Stalker was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Weir for the week-end.

The Harvest Home supper held in the Stone Hall on Saturday night was very successful from every point of view. Supper, decorations and programme of pictures, southern and other melodies, left nothing to be desired. The young folks of Cushing, assisted by Montreal friends, sang from the galleries while Miss A. Davidson played the accompaniments between pictures—which were those of Their Majesties' visit to Canada, regulation films, and some taken by Miss M. Douglas personally; there were also some beautiful views of South Carolina taken by Miss Douglas which included wonderful old buildings, dancing pickaninnies, with scenes on the beach, goat-wagons, and some beautiful gardens.

ARUNDEL

Mrs. Jack Hammond, of Erindale, Ont., was a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Margaret Simon, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Cooke and Miss Margaret Cooke spent the week-end at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke, the Misses Marguerite Henderson, Agnes Gilfillan, and Mr. Jack Gilfillan, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Cooke over the week-end.

Miss Muriel Graham and the Messrs. Macdonald of Chambly, Gavin and Melvin Graham, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Graham.

Messrs. Herman and Edward Graham spent a few days last week in Ottawa, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham.

Mr. John Dobie and sons, Stanley, Arthur and Clarence, Mrs. Alexander, Russel McMahon and Lila Dobie motored to Hemmingford to hear the farewell sermon of Rev. J. Fletcher, B.A., B.D., who is returning to his home in Ireland.

Mrs. Gouldthorpe and son, Faul, and the Misses Hamilton, of Montreal, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander.

Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Sutherland, of Sydney, N.S., were recent guests of Mrs. James Dobie.

Mr. Gibson, the Presbyterian student rector, has completed his summer work and returned to college in Montreal.

On Saturday evening, Sept. 23rd, an unusually enjoyable concert was held in Staniforth's Hall. A group of Montrealers, led by Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bulley, put on a program that had their audience enthusiastic from beginning to end. Miss Elizabeth Foley, unique as an elocutionist; her niece, Miss Mary Foley, with a pleasing soprano voice; Miss Winnifred Kermath, piano-accordion soloist; little Junie McMahon, tap-dancer; and Mr. Frank Conway, comedian, combined with the Bulleys themselves to produce a most entertaining and diversified program. The Girls' Guild, under whose auspices the entertainment was given, have every reason to congratulate themselves upon the evening.

CALUMET

Mrs. W. E. Brigden spent last week visiting friends and relatives in Montreal.

Miss Marjorie Searight, of Montreal, was a week-end guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Hillicker.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Trineer, Sr., have moved into Calumet for the winter.

Mr. T. H. Foreman, of Ste. Agathe, was a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Foreman, for the week-end.

Mr. A. Gardiner, of Montreal, and Mr. G. Robinson, of Macdonald College, were week-end guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Robinson.

Messrs R. Robinson, C. G. Foreman, R. C. Whinfield, A. Comba, H. G. Brannan and L. G. Martin attended the Masonic meeting in Hull on Saturday, Sept. 23.

Mrs. C. Welden and sons, Donald and Gordon, of Montreal, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Hilliker for the week-end.

Miss Ellen Foreman, of St. Lambert, was a week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Foreman.

Calumet Trinity Church celebrated Harvest Thanksgiving on Sunday, Sept. 24. The church was very tastefully decorated with flowers, autumn leaves, corn, fruits and vegetables. Rev. K. N. Brueton's sermon dealt with the origin of harvest thanksgiving and was much enjoyed by all present.

CAN HAUL TEN TIMES THEIR OWN WEIGHT

Just before the completion of the Liverpol and Manchester Railroad in England, the company offered a prize of five hundred pounds ($2,500) for a locomotive that could run at least 10 miles an hour and pull three times its own weight. Three engines competed for the prize, which went to George Stephenson on October 6 1829, for his famous "Rocket," which with 12¾ tons attached, made the remarkable speed of 30 miles an hour.

Today the 6400 engines of the C. N. Rlys., largest streamlined steam locomotives in the British Empire, are capable of reaching a speed of 100 miles an hour. The locomotive and tender in working order weigh in excess of 650,000 pounds or 325 tons, and can haul more than ten times their own weight.

SLACKS

Summer brings out the usual crop of slacks and shorts and the usual crop of criticism from the older women and a few men. Their idea seems to be that the girls and women wear them to show off their figure. This may be true of some of the girls but I doubt if any of the women think this. They need only look at the other women to know it is not so. There are places and occasions where slacks and shorts are an offense against good taste. Just as much so as if one wore an evening dress on the beach. If they are worn at the proper times, they are all right to wear and I believe that women wear them for their comfort and not for their looks. Fewer women are wearing shorts each year, as they realize they are not for the mature woman, but they do like slacks. It is not to be wondered at. There is nothing more maddening to try to step across a ditch, climb a fence, or get into a boat and have your skirt halt you midway because it will stretch no farther. Sometimes skirts are made wide enough, but slips are never built for width. When one is picnicking and sitting down on the ground, it is a constant effort to keep skirts and knees where they ought to be. So the next time you see a woman in slacks just remember that she probably knows how she looks just as well as you do, but she is dressed for comfort. Women have more sense than men about clothes anyhow, when they find a style that is comfortable they adopt it, whereas men continue to wear uncomfortable clothes.

HOLLYHOCKS

The Hollyhocks at the Experimental Farm in Ottawa are beyond description. The variety of colors is simply amazing. There are shades of pink, ranging from the most delicate, right through to the deep pinks, the rose shades, and coming to a climax in the cerise. The mauves are very soft and deepen in intensity through the lavenders to the deep purple. There are yellows from the soft creamy shades to the deeper lemon yellow. And to give accent to them all, they've the pure white. Just by way of variety, they have developed variegated hollyhocks, hybrids of the various colors. These are interesting because of the wide variety of color mixtures, but they are not as beautiful as the clear shades of one color. If your garden just boasts of the kind of hollyhocks grandmother used to grow, you will find a new delight in experimenting with the new varieties.

HOME-SHELLED NUTS

By the time summer has come, shelled nuts are not always as fresh as they ought to be, and is there anything that tastes worse than a bit of rancid nut? If you buy the nuts in the shell and shell them yourself you will get a much nicer nut. The flavour is so superior that if I can manage the time, I shell my own nuts, the year round. Try them this way and cut them in pieces large enough to be crunchy, then see if you don't agree with me. To have good food, it pays to take trouble even over the little things.

MUSHROOM SOUP

Mushroom soup is a handy thing to have on hand for quick meals. It is a good mixer and its flavor seems to blend with any of the savory foods. When unexpected company arrives or when you come in late and have only a short time to prepare a meal you will find it an ever-ready help. I have used it with canned lobster, salmon, tuna, shrimps and chicken. It is good with hard-boiled eggs. Put that end of cold roast meat through the chopper, add a little onion if you like and mix with the mushroom soup. Cold ham is especially tasty and you can always buy cooked ham. Chopped hard-cooked eggs may be used alone or added to any of the other mixtures. I use a condensed soup and add milk if the mixture is too thick. Sometimes I just mix and heat. Other times I turn the mixture into a baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and put into a moderate oven. By the time the table is set, your meal is ready. Toast or hot biscuits or rolls are good to serve with the creamy mixtures. Prepared biscuit flour is another of the handy helps. I have added left-over peas or beans and they increased the quantity and added to the flavor. I have a piece of a cooked tongue in the refrigerator this minute. We have had two meals off it now, so I think I will cut the rest of it in pieces and mix it with mushroom soup. With this we will have fresh peas, chopped beets, and little new potatoes rolled in melted butter and then in chopped parsley. Doesn't it make you hungry?

BANANA CAKE

¼ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, ¼ cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda., 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 bananas mashed, 2 cups flour.

Cream butter and sugar. Beat 2 egg yolks and 1 white until light, reserving the other white for the icing. Add the eggs to the butter mixture, then the sour milk and the bananas. Sift in the flour, soda and baking powder and stir until well blended. Bake in a 10" by 12" pan in a moderate oven of 350 degrees.

FLUFFY ICING

4 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon of milk, 1 egg white, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, icing sugar.

Cream the butter thoroughly, then add icing sugar, a little at a time, and stir well. When the icing is about thick enough and thoroughly stirred, add the egg white beaten until stiff. Add more sugar, if required, but do not make the consistency too stiff. Pile the icing on the cake, not spreading too smooth, but leaving in little whorls.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

MODERN WOMEN

By Dr. M. L. Maffett

The moving spirit of the Composers' Press is Felice Haubel, who puts in a full day six days a week at the organization's offices in New York. The Composers' Press is trying to find a place in the sun for composers of symphonic music by helping them to get their compositions published.

Friends nominated Mrs. Wilbur Clark to the office of Police Chief of Warren, New Hampshire, just for fun, but she won the election and is the only woman to hold such a position in New England.

According to Melvina Pumphrey, of the publicity staff of one of the air lines, there are possibilities for women writers in the aviation industry. The heads want enthusiastic women to tell other women about the advantages of flying.

By the secretarial route, Mrs. E. M. Statler has become chairman of the board of directors of a large hotel company, succeeding her husband when he died. First she worked as secretary for the editor of a humorous magazine, then became what she called the "trouble shooter" for the hotel man whom she later married. She likes women guests in her hotels, now numbering seven, located in cities from Boston to St. Louis. She sees that rooms for women have all the gadgets a woman traveler may need, and at the same time she looks out for the comfort of the men. She thinks women are patient when things go wrong in a hotel.

Easy Rules for Brewing Perfect Coffee

By Betty Barclay

No matter how small the budget, any hostess can make a reputation on her coffee, if she observes three vital rules: the coffee equipment must be 100 per cent clean; measurements must be exact and brewing time must be timed to the dot. When brewing decaffeinated coffee by the percolator or pot methods, remember that a slightly longer time is required to bring out the coffee's rich, fragrant flavor.

You can score a five star success as a coffee brewer with any kind of apparatus if you follow the rules exactly. You now can buy a special drip grind in decaffeinated coffee as well as ordinary coffee, so hostesses can serve this favorite beverage after dinner or with midnight snacks without checking up on their guests' sleeping problems.

Drip Coffee

Use one well-rounded tablespoon drip grind decaffeinated coffee for each cup (½ pint) of boiling water. Preheat drip coffee pot. Put coffee in upper compartment of pot. Pour fresh briskly boiling water over it. Cover and let stand in warm place until all water has dripped through once. Remove upper compartment and cover pot. Serve.

Coffee Soufflé

1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon ground decaffeinated coffee, 4½ tablespoons of quick-cooking tapioca, dash of salt, ⅓ cup sugar, 3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored, 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Scald milk with coffee and strain immediately. Add quick-cooking tapioca and salt, and cook 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Cool. Add egg yolks and fold in egg whites. Bake in greased baking dish, placed in pan of hot water, in moderate oven (325°) F.) 60 minutes. Serve with Custard Sauce. Serves 6.

A WEE VISITOR

A little boy called on his aunt, who lived next door. "Hello, Aunt Sue," he greeted her, "nice day." Then, after a minute's embarrassed pause, he came to the point, "Aunt Sue, I smell something that seems like pie with raisins in it."

"Yes, Billy, I have some mince pies, but they're for company."

He pondered this and then suggested hopefully, "I came to make a little bit of a visit myself."

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Accessories are an important fashion point for the autumn. Gloves, hats, bags and shoes in one of the new fall shades are effective as a means to making last season's suit do double duty. Fashion forecasts brown as the leading color and never has brown been available in such subtle tones. Ginger browns, plum browns and Ethiopian browns make your choice wide. Monotones—different tones of the same color used in a costume — will be very smart this fall.

It's gratifying to know that the green tinge on the outside of Valencia oranges does not mean that the fruit is not fully ripe. Instead, as the fruit reaches full maturity it is characteristic for it to take on a greenish tinge. This is especially true late in the season because the longer the fruit matures the more apt this green tinge is to occur.

The juice of one lemon in a cup of hot water taken every morning before breakfast is a splendid toner-upper—unless of course you happen to be allergic to citrus fruits. In that event, try a cup of plain hot water.

If you are planning to take up some annuals for potting indoors watch them closely for signs of insects and disease. Examine your plants in tubs and garden jars, too, to be sure they are healthy. Proper spraying and dusting now will make them strong and thrifty for winter blooming and growth. It's not worth while to take up fragile and blighted plants for indoor blooming.

One of the secrets of prolonging the life of cut flowers lies in the method and time of cutting them. First of all the stems should be cut on a slant. This prevents them from resting flatly on the bottom of the container.

Next, it's most important that flowers should be cut at the correct stage of development. A good general rule to follow in this is that the single varieties may be cut in tight buds and the double ones cut when they are fully opened.

Also, flowers remain fresh longer when placed in opaque containers rather than transparent vases.

Asters and chrysanthemums will keep fresh much longer if sugar is added to the water. Use four tablespoons sugar to each quart of water for the 'mums and one teaspoon of sugar to a quart of water for asters.

By Frances Lee Barton

If chicken has graced your Sunday dinner table, don't give way to despair when you see the "pickings" and mourn the absence of left-overs for Monday night supper. Just attack the remains, gently but firmly, and you'll be amazed at the meat you'll get off the bird. You'll only need a cupful in order to have a grand chicken salad for a cold supper the next night. Then you'll be filled with the grand and glorious feeling of looking lavish and being economical.

Chicken Salad Mold

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin; 1¾ cups hot chicken stock, free from fat; 2 tablespoons vinegar; ½ teaspoon salt; dash of cayenne; 1 cup diced chicken; 1 cup chopped celery; 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper.

Dissolve gelatin in hot chicken stock. Chill until slightly thickened. Combine remaining ingredients and fold into slightly thickened gelatin. Turn into loaf pan. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serve in slices. Serves 6.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

EMERGENCY CASE

The average layman has not the least conception of the pathetic, humerous and strange cases which come to the emergency departments of the hospitals of the country.

I had been an interne about twenty-four hours, and was standing in front of one of our smaller operating rooms, when there was brought to me a young colored man, with what seemed to be a horn protruding from his forehead, for a distance of about six inches.

An examination disclosed that instead of a horn, the thing was a section of the barrel of a shot gun. While hunting the gun burst and a portion of it imbedded itself in the frontal bone, doing comparatively little injury, for I withdrew it easily and the man made a prompt recovery.

To me one of the most humorous incidents of this nature happened in a city near New York recently. A woman excitedly approached the young interne of a large hospital. Accompanying her was a boy of about eight years. Over his head was pulled a very large paper bag, and from within the bag came heart-breaking sobs, as the mother led her child to the physician.

"What is the matter?" queried the medical man.

"Plenty," screamed the over wrought parent. "The boys in our neighborhood play soldier, and each one of them has one of those steel hats the German soldiers wore in the World War—except my son. So he improvised one"—at the same time withdrawing the paper bag from the little chap's head and exposing an enamel pot. "He put this thing on to lead the charge against the enemy and could not get it off. My neighbors and I have tried for an hour to get it off his head but it seems to stick tighter and I brought him here on the suggestion of my friends. I came in a bus and everybody has been laughing at us. I have never been so humiliated in my life," moaned the distracted lady.

But internes are accustomed to meeting and dealing with unusual cases. The boy was ordered to bend over and cracked ice was inserted around the rim of the bowl. As it melted it congested the skin of the scalp and made the hair slippery and the misused utensil was easily withdrawn.

Without waiting to thank the doctor, the mother yanked the boy by his arm out of the emergency operating room yelling at him, "Wait until I get you home." And thus an embryo general was vanquished.

If Your Child Has A NASTY COLD

Relieve the Misery Without Dosing

Rub chest, throat and back thoroughly with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Right away, VapoRub goes to work . . . two ways at once.

VapoRub acts on the skin like a warming stimulating poultice. At the same time it gives off medicinal vapours that are breathed direct into irritated air passages. This direct, double action continues for hours after restful sleep comes. Often by morning most of the misery is gone.

Why risk increased discomforts by drastic "dosing"—relieve misery externally with VICKS VAPORUB

Few in Canada Fully Appreciate Liberty Under British Flag

The eminent German historian and writer, Emil Ludwig, one of that vast number of distinguished refugees from the Reich, gave a British audience something to think about a few days ago. Said Herr Ludwig:

"Very few in this country fully appreciate your liberty. Had you ever lived in a country where your letters were opened, your telephone wires tapped, where the reading of rertain newspapers and the listening to certain wireless stations was prohibited under threat of punishment; where teachers were obliged to teach in a manner dictated by the state; where houses of relatives might be raided in the dead of night and the occupants dragged into concentration camps; where the ministers of churches disappear and cannot be traced, and are never heard of again; where your best friends may be robbed and assassinated because they belong to a different religion—only then would you recognize the deep significance of the tower of Westminster, and the fact that the personal liberty of every citizen of this great country is guaranteed. —Fort Erie Times

Making the Most of Your Job

Here are a few suggestions on how to be successful today—simple, plain advice by Lowell Thomas' Commentator magazine that will help any ambitious youngster to a better job:

1. Get started anywhere. Don't be too choosy about picking a job these days. Take what you can get.
2. Remember, this job has some hidden opportunity which you can dig up, fashion into something worthwhile.
3. Be interested primarily in the business. Don't let your employer feel that your personal interests come first.
4. Be punctual. While nothing may be said about coming in late or leaving early, or about extra long lunch hours, such actions do not help you.
5. Take time off only when absolutely essential. Frequent sick leaves stand in the way of advancement.
6. If you have a complaint either take it to the proper superior or keep it to yourself. Don't speak behind the boss's back. Such tales have a nasty way of getting back to him.
7. If you have any ideas, write them out and submit them to your superior. Ideas build business. Yours may help.
8. Be patient these trying times in the matter of salary increases. Your employer may be having a tough struggle. Stand by him. He will more than make it up to you when things brighten.
9. Stop envying the other fellow's job. Concentrate on making the most of yours.

Rails Should Do Better As War Traffic Grows

Greater traffic and economies flowing from co-ordination of the two major railways in Canada may ease the burden of war taxes, it is stated by observers of transportation matters.

The belief is based on the fact that, although the total of wages will rise with traffic, fixed charges and general overhead should remain near the level prevailing in recent years of lower traffic. And if, as some seem to expect, there is at least a temporary welding of the two systems to effect the most efficient and economical transportation possible, there will be economies similar in nature, if not in amount, to those described by the Canadian Pacific in its urging of unified management.

Alouette Ski Club . . .

build up sound minds and bodies in these young people of Montreal's tomorrow, secondly by acting as hosts and showing them the wonders of their countryside. It presents an inspiring picture this thought of happy hearts, ruddy cheeks and increased confidence, hope and virility for this new generation. It should help to dispel some of the gloom of the coming war years and make for increased moral and physical security of all.

The executive desires to show that it has not overlooked its responsibilities in connection with funds for this work, and it desires to start off with a timely "real old Gloom Chaser" at Morin Heights on Saturday night, October 7th, in "The Commons" Hall. The music will be provided by Montreal's favourite society swing orchestra under the direction of the radio director, Eddie Alexander, well known by dancers at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, the Auditorium, and dances of the Montreal Badminton Club.

All those with perpetual or temporary long faces, all those who know the young people are going to the dogs and sit up nights about it, should reserve ringside seats at the unusually small sum of 50c. each; and if you hang on to your blues throughout the evening, call on the way out and get your money back.

Time enough and reason enough when it comes, to be sad and gloomy. Let's count our blessings, shoulder useful tasks and go about the execution of them as cheerfully as we can.

Help us put over our Gloom Chaser. it will do you good and think of the happy hearts the proceeds will bring next winter. —Contributed
