War Issue Seen as Dominant Note in Provincial Election

" Of Greatest Importance for Future of Canada That Forces of Unity and Harmony Triumph "

OBSERVER SEES ALTERNATIVE OF GRAVE RIFT BETWEEN TWO CANADIAN RACES

Ottawa, Oct. 3rd.—The searchlight this week swings upon the provincial election campaign in Quebec, for the whole temper and pattern of Canada's war effort may be affected by the political developments of the coming three weeks.

The direction in which affairs in Quebec are proceeding remains somewhat obscure but the campaign is certain to clarify the main issues. The situation has in it so many potentialities of discord and distress, that one can understand the apprehension of the Quebec Liberal leaders in Ottawa. The more hopeful view is that the campaign may prove to be "a blessing in disguise" and result in a basis of mutual understanding between the two great races which make up the Dominion of Canada.

The fear here is, that the Duplessis campaign, launched as a protest by provincial autonomists against what is termed "a campaign of assimilation and centralization", may develop into a non-participation drive which would seriously embarrass the national government in its effective prosecution of the war.

If a drive of this kind does develop, Ottawa believes that it can be headed off before it grows into a significant movement, but some courageous and drastic steps will be necessary.

What are the Facts?

First, what are the facts? There is an element in Quebec, unquestionably, which is not enthusiastic about participation in the war, which fears eventual conscription if the war is prolonged and the task grows more formidable.

Judging from the evidence now available, however, the majority, perhaps the great majority, of French-Canadians look upon the present conflict as other Canadians do. They realize that it is a struggle of international law and decency against Hitlerism and gangsterism. They realize that the defeat of Britain and France would leave North America exposed to the domination of a ruthless European power. They realize also, that as a part of the Canadian federation the French-Canadian has enjoyed privileges and rights in regard to race, custom, law and language which would disappear overnight if Canada fell victim to foreign aggression.

Recruiting in Quebec, so far, has been well up to the level in other other parts of the country.

The war issue will be dominant in the Quebec campaign and it is difficult to see how it can be prevented from growing into the prime factor. If so, perhaps the best possible thing would be for the Canadian people, French and English alike, to face the question frankly and seriously, and "have it out."

Make Issue of It

If this view is accepted, the French-Canadian members of the present government will enter the campaign against Premier Duplessis and seek to make the election a test of Quebec's attitude toward Canadian Confederation and toward the war now being waged. It will be pointed out that the liberties of French Canadians are being defended in Poland, on the seas, at the Siegfried Line, that our King is at war against Hitler, and that if we are loyal to our own country we must not falter.

Every lover of Canada will deplore the main issues, and not the least those hundreds of thousands of thoughtful far-sighted French-Canadians who see in an "autonomist" drive at this moment a boomerang against French-Canadian interests.

It takes only half an eye to see the potential ill-will between French and British in Quebec, and French and British in Canada, which may arise if the present development turns into dark paths. That is why every one of statesmanlike calibre especially deplores the decision which was made to raise the issue now, when it is of the greatest significance that all Canadians pull heartily together in the face of a colossal peril.

Perhaps, on the whole, the issue having been raised, it should be settled now, once and for all. But it is of the greatest importance for the future of Canada as a nation that the forces of unity and harmony triumph in these coming weeks.

Britons are to pay a minimum of 37.5 per cent income tax next year on taxable income. It makes those little boosts of ours on beer and tobacco look like small potatoes.

St. Eustache Farmer Injured, Wife Killed, When Truck Crashes Into Train

Mrs. Edmond Pilon, 63, of St. Eustache, was killed instantly when a truck driven by her husband crashed into a C.P.R. locomotive at the Cremazie Boulevard crossing in Montreal on Saturday morning.

The St. Eustache man was taken to Montreal Neurological Institute suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries. He was not considered to be in any immediate danger.

The St. Eustache farmer and his wife were driving into the city with a truck-load of apples when the vehicle struck the Montreal-Quebec train. The truck hit the side of the locomotive and damaged it so badly that another locomotive had to be sent to continue with the train.

The driver of the truck was hurled a distance of 50 feet while his wife was crushed in the demolished vehicle. Broken barrels and contents were strewn all over the crossing.

Decide Quebec Music Festival Will Be Continued, With Competitions Next March

Much thought has been given by the executive of the Quebec Musical Competition Festival to the advisability of continuing the Festival for March 1940, owing to existing conditions. A meeting of the Festival's executive was held to decide the question. Advice has been sought from all quarters concerned, and the preponderance of opinion has been to continue the Festival for 1940, possibly on a slightly reduced scale. From the 11,354 competitors of the last Festival, 8,962 competitors were children of school age. The conditions and lives of the school children during this period should be kept as normal and enjoyable as possible. A wire from Western Canada concerning the chain of Music Festivals across Canada was read to the meeting, as follows : "No suggestion yet that English judges will not come to Canada. All Festivals planning on basis that they will be here." During the last war many of the Festivals in England continued and it is expected that this will be the case wherever possible in this present crisis.

Handicrafts Topic at Lachute W.I.

Lachute branch of the W.I. held their regular meeting in the High School on Tuesday afternoon. The guest speaker was Mrs. O. Gorman, of the Montreal Handicraft Guild, who gave an interesting talk on handicrafts, supplemented with a demonstration. In conclusion, Mrs. Gorman gave several samples of her work to those present.

Two Killed at Ste. Rose C.P.R. Rail Crossing

Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Golfman, 60 and 62 years old respectively, of Outremont, were instantly killed Sunday morning when their automobile was struck by a C.P.R. train at a railway crossing near Ste. Rose.

The couple were out enjoying a customary Sunday motor drive. Generally the other members of the family accompanied them, but they happened to go out alone on this occasion.

The train was northbound when the automobile crossed its path about one mile east of Ste. Rose station. Parts of the wrecked machine were hurled over 200 feet by the force of the impact. The train came to a stop and when members of the crew reached the victims they were dead.

Provincial Police were notified and the bodies were taken to Montreal.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK -- OCTOBER 8 - 14

Common sense and common precaution will save lives and property from fire hazard . . . .
Consult your firemen if in doubt on safety measures.
—Fire Chief GEO. Y. DEACON

SAFETY BEGINS AT HOME IN PREVENTION OF FIRES

These simple suggestions, if followed by everyone in the family, will make your home safe from fire . . .

Put lighted matches and smokes out before you throw them away.—Keep matches where small children cannot reach them. Never smoke in the garage barn or attic, nor in bed.

Remove rubbish, waste papers and all unnecessary combustible materials. Provide metal ash and trash cans. Burn rubbish only in a safely covered brick or metal incinerator. Watch the fire.

Examine all stoves, furnaces, and smoke-pipes to make sure they are safe and well away from woodwork or other burnable materials. Have needed repairs made at once.

Value the advice of your fire chief, who says that many fires are caused by dirty or defective chimneys. Have the chimney cleaned regularly, and have all defects repaired.

Avoid the danger of flammable liquid fires and explosions by keeping no gasoline in the house. Do dry cleaning with safe liquids or send the work to the cleaner. Never start fires with kerosene.

Notify a qualified electrician of electrical trouble. Replace "blown" fuses with new ones — not pennies. Avoid home-made wiring jobs.

Teach everyone in the family to be careful of fire, to watch stoves, fireplaces, electric irons and all other possible fire causes, and to remove old rags, papers and other rubbish.

Fireproof your home as far as possible by fire-safe roofing, fire stopping in hollow walls and partitions to stop the spread of flame, and a non-combustible basement ceiling.

Inquire of your fire chief, when buying a fire-extinguisher, to be sure of getting the right kind. Don't hesitate to ask your firemen whenever you have questions on fire prevention.

Remember, when telephoning a fire alarm, to be sure your address is clearly understood.

Explain to everyone in the house what to do in case of fire, how to put out fire in clothing by wrapping in a rug or blanket, what to do when grease catches fire in the kitchen.

Save life and property from needless destruction by fire by keeping the principles of fire prevention always in mind and never taking a chance with fire.

St. Viateur Beats L.H.S. In Baseball Game

The Lachute High School boys met St. Viateur College team last Tuesday in a six-inning game, with a final score of 4-3 in favor of the College. This is the first baseball game the L.H.S. team has played. The score was tied 3-3 in the fifth and the College boys brought in one point through an error made by the other side. Both teams showed fine sportsmanship.

Blessing of New Church in Parish of St. Julien

MGR. DESCHAMPS PERFORMS CONSECRATION CEREMONY

Sunday was an auspicious occasion in the west end Parish of St. Julien, when consecration of the church edifice was performed by Mgr. A. E. Deschamps, bishop-auxiliary of Montreal. For this notable step in their religious development, the parishioners are duly grateful to Messrs. Ernest and Harry Ayers, to whom they owe the gift of this stately building, the new St. Julien Church.

Assisting Mgr. Deschamps was Rev. Father H. Leveillé, curé of Ste. Scholastique; Rev. E. Labelle, curé of the neighboring parish of Ste. Anastasie, Lachute; and Rev. Touchette, of the Diocese of Montreal, acting as master of ceremonies.

Present with the Rev. L. E. Cloutier, priest of the parish, for whom this was a particularly inspiring occasion, were clerics from the surrounding churches and institutions. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ayers and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Ayers, in attendance with their respective families, were given grateful recognition in the proceedings. Many prominent citizens joined the church officers and members in this religious celebration.

Red Cross Organized At St. Andrews East

St. Andrews E.—A meeting to organize a Red Cross Branch was held on Saturday in the Town Hall. Major D. J. Corrigall, Commissioner for Quebec, outlined the work being done by the Red Cross, and gave a brief history of its origin. The following officers for the year were elected by the meeting and officially installed by Major Corrigall :

President, Rev. Mowatt; 1st vice-president, Col. L. Hooker; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. Bridge; 3rd vice-pres., Mrs. Booy; treasurer, Mr. Bridge; rec. secretary, Miss M. Ladouceur; corr. secretary, Mrs. DeWitt. Several committees were also named.

REFORM TERM IS GIVEN, THIEVING BY JUVENILES

Young miscreants in this town have been pilfering around homes and stores for some time to the extent that they commit their petty thieving as if by routine, and sufferers tolerate the evil with much the same complacency.

Several thefts from cellars, gardens and back sheds have been reported in the centre and west wards. From the warehouse of the MacKimmie Bakery a few days ago, four dozen boxes of salt were removed from a case and boys were caught selling them nearby at a nickel apiece. The premises of R. McArthur & Son, plumbers, have also been visited by children several times, and loose change taken from the shop. Cars have also been stripped of removable accessories.

Householders have reported losing clothes and foodstuffs, and in certain instances the victims have followed up their losses and lodged complaint with the young culprits' parents.

It is reported one young offender, a girl, has been committed to a five-year reformatory term . . . It is time these depredations were stopped, before this petty thieving develops into robbery of a more serious kind, and the town's police committee should make every effort to curb the evil.

Banning of Platform Speeches Is War Measure, Not Aimed at Que. Election

The following statement was made at Ottawa last week by W. S. Thompson, Director of Censorship :

Action was taken to withdraw microphones from platforms of political meetings throughout the Dominion, during the period of the war, prior to the announcement of a provincial election campaign in Quebec, and the censorship authorities had no knowledge that such an election was contemplated. The Defence of Canada Regulations were made effective on September 3rd for the security, defence, peace and welfare of Canada. Regulation No. 39 says :

"No person shall by word of mouth, spread reports or make statements, false or otherwise, intended or likely to cause disaffection to His Majesty or to interfere with the success of His Majesty's forces or of the forces of any allied or associated Powers or to prejudice His Majesty's relations with foreign Powers, or—Spread reports or make statements, false or otherwise, intended or likely to prejudice the recruiting, training, discipline, or administration of any of His Majesty's forces."

After consultation with Colonel R. P. Landry, Broadcasting Censor, it was found that radio station managements had no satisfactory means of preventing statements contravening the Defence of Canada Regulations from being made when broadcasts were picked up from public platforms. It was therefore decided that during the period of war emergency political broadcasts should be confined to studio broadcasting.

FIRST AID BY EX-SCOUT

A stout bit of backwoods first aid was that performed by Archie Macdonald, a former Patrol Leader of the 1st Fort Erie, Ont., Scout Troop, and a companion, while prospecting in the rough country north of Timmins. Coming upon another prospector gravely wounded by the accidental discharge of a rifle, Macdonald rendered first aid, improvised a stretcher, and with the help of his companion, bore the wounded man 27 miles through the bush to Timmins Hospital.

Arm-Chair Tacticians Constitute a Nuisance

Arm chair critics are already at work and in view of the fact that they are glib-tongued and loud, they constitute a nuisance rather than a menace to the country in time of war. Already they have been asking why the British have not attacked, etc., etc. Anyone who will stop to use his head for one minute will realize that in the first place very little news can be given the public of troop movements or actions. That would be aiding the enemy. In the second place, one should stop to realize that army commanders know their business. Then there is the fact that it takes a good many days to move a large army into the field. Many trained observers are hoping that the weather will remain good enough for the British and French to advance this autumn. Otherwise there will be another winter of waiting in mud.

Dom. Champion Wins Cycle Race, Montl.-Lachute

COUNTY REPRESENTATIVE COMES IN FOURTH

The Montreal-Lachute cycle race, held last Sunday, was won by René Cyr of the Club Cycliste Canadien, Montreal, recently crowned Canadian champion by virtue of his recent triumph in the Quebec-Montreal classic. He romped home an easy winner, one and one half minutes ahead of the rest of the field, in the relatively slow time of 1.45.30. Sprinting down the whole of Main Street, the "champ" looked then as fresh as at the beginning of the race. Cyr was outdistanced at the start of the race, but, nearing St. Eustache, he overlapped the field and led from then on. In last year's race he was a near winner. His triumph Sunday is another laurel to his credit. The County of Argenteuil was ably represented by Bob Taylor, of Brownsburg, who came in fourth.

Quite a large crowd witnessed the finish and excitement ran high, specially when a near accident was averted by the slimmest possible margin. Four cyclists jockeying for a favorable position to end the race, had to contend not only with one another, but with three cars travelling in the same direction. Vaillant, of the C.C.C., came near crashing into the crowd, when one car came abreast of him as he crossed the finish line. He was crowded toward the middle of the street and only by able and cool steering of his bike averted what might have resulted in a painful accident. It might be suggested that, if future races are to be held, a cable be stretched in the street to hold the crowd back, thus clearing the way for the cyclists — something which was lacking in last Sunday's race. The race was under the sponsorship of a local sportsman, Bob Taylor Sr., of Brownsburg, and was supervised by officials of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association.

René Cyr, Canadien, (1.45.30).
Gunnar Erickson, Wolfe.
Norman Wilkins, Wolfe.
Bob Taylor, Wolfe.
Robert Vaillant, Canadien.
Georges Trépanier, Sylvestre.

New Bandmaster Directing Juvenile Groups Here

PLANS DISCUSSED BY ADULT COMMITTEE

On Thursday evening last, parents of young musicians in the Boys' Band, together with the Lions Club Band committee, met at the High School to discuss the future of the Band and to meet the new bandmaster, Mr. J. R. Shannon.

It was decided at that meeting to form a committee of parents with Dr. W. Hooper as chairman, to work in conjunction with the Lions committee. Plans were formulated to increase the membership of the Band to make it a worthy undertaking.

The Band had its first rehearsal under Mr. Shannon on Tuesday afternoon, with a full attendance of the members. Mr. Shannon intimated that he would like to meet any boys between the ages of 10 and 17 who might be interested in joining the group, at the regular practice next Tuesday in the music room of the High School, after the school session. At that time Mr. Shannon will explain all the requirements necessary to join, and also demonstrate the various instruments of the Band.

Young Lad Electrocuted By 17,000 Volt Wire

According to information received, the boy had lined up a set of ear phones, attached a long piece of hay wire with a rock on the end, and thinking a 17,000 volt transmission line of the Gatineau Power Company was a telephone wire, he threw the hay wire across it in an endeavor to obtain some signals on the ear phones.

Indifference of Smokers

In 13,719 instances last year smokers were careless and caused $2,427,000 worth of property to go up in smoke. Fires from this cause are top-ranking in the list of causes, as reported to the Dominion Fire Commissioner's office for 1938. Ten years ago this type of fire numbered slightly less than 3,000 for the whole of Canada. But with a steady increase in the number of smokers, principally among the fair sex, there appears also to have developed an indifference to the hazards of fire from carelessly disposed cigarettes, tobacco and matches that is hardly imaginable. With an increase of 430% in the number of fires from this cause, "Smokers' carelessness" can now be classed as Public Enemy No. 1 as far as fires are concerned. The question arises, are women more careless than men in the matter of smoking? Unfortunately, there are no statistics to enlighten us on this score, but the fact remains that far too many fires are started through the carelessness of smokers and only a careful disposition of cigarettes, matches and tobacco can stop it. Perhaps if these nearly 14,000 people responsible for this loss could be gathered together in one place and could witness nearly 2½ millions of dollars worth of property go up in smoke with the cries of several entrapped persons mingling with the crackling of the flames, they would exercise more care in their smoking habits.

Did Columbus Dicover Social Diseases?

Dr. Victor Robinson in the British Journal of Dermatology and Syphilis presents an array of facts which seem to verify the validity of the American origin of syphilis. So far not a single case of this malady has been produced in pre-Columbian Europe. It is significant that within a year of the return of Columbus from the Island of Haiti, syphilis had spread from Spain to Italy and France.

Capitan Gonzalo Fernandez Oviedo y Valdes, a Spaniard who lived in Haiti, evidently possessed a streak of humor. He says: "Many times in Italy did I laugh, hearing Italians say the French disease, and the French calling it the disease of Naples; and in truth both would have hit it right if they had called it the disease from the Indies."

There was at least one humanitarian among the Spanish explorers under Christopher Columbus. His name was Las Casas. This man devoted most of his life to the welfare of the Indians and was known as the Apostle of the Indies. Las Casas agrees with Oviedo in stating that the natives of Haiti gave syphilis to the white race. Both say that the natives treated the disease successfully with guaiacum.

The Spanish surgeon, Ruiz de Isla, with 40 years experience in the treatment of syphilis, called it the Serpentine disease. He had observed over 20,000 cases; de Isla confirms the statements already mentioned, namely that syphilis was unknown in Europe until Columbus and his crew returned from Haiti and infected the inhabitans of Barcelona.

Some modern clinicians believe that Columbus may have suffered from syphilis, for his good health prior to his discovery of America contrasts strongly with his subsequent invalidism. He suffered from arthritis and eye disease; he had prolonged fever, swollen legs and cardiac dropsy. None of this is conclusive evidence, but the evidence of Oviedo, Las Casas and de Isla is sufficiently strong to fasten on Haiti as the origin of syphilis and the crew of Columbus as its carrier to Europe.

FIRE PREVENTION IN THE HOME

The best place for fire prevention to start is in the home. Charity should start there according to the ancient saying, and certainly safety should come first. In order to safeguard the home, inspection should be made, not only Fire Prevention Week but periodically throughout the year. All heating and lighting equipment examined, chimney and pipes kept clean of soot. No smoke pipes permitted through combustible walls; disposition of ashes safeguarded. The fuse cabinet should be of metal or asbestos lined. Fuses in all fuse blocks, none of them bridged, and not over 15 ampere fuses used in branch circuits. All drop cords should be insulated, and not supported on any conductive material. Electric irons always detached when not in use and kept on metal stands.

Matches should be kept out of the reach of children and the children should be regularly taught the danger of fire and not to play with matches. The safest type of match to use is the "Safety Match" which may be lighted only on the box.

Closets should be kept clean and all rubbish removed from the entire premises. Cleanliness is next to Godliness. Perhaps that is the reason it always plays such an important part in fire prevention.

This year again special emphasis is being placed on the inspection of dwellings during Fire Prevention Week, October 8-14.

RADIO — USES AND ABUSES

We have heard little criticism on the banning of platform speeches on the radio during Quebec's election campaign. It is popular belief that the air can be more aggreeably loaded with lighter stuff, programs which are not only more pleasing to the ear but generally more constructive.

There can be little question, for instance, that radio entertainment has done much to improve the public's taste in music. More and better music than most people ever heard before the radio came, is available by merely moving the dial.

In his great prophetic vision of the future, "Looking Backward," Edward Bellamy more than fifty years ago predicted that people would some day be able to get music by merely turning a switch. He little dreamed how close at hand was the fulfilment of his prophecy.

One of the best things about the radio is that one can turn it off whenever it becomes boresome. This privilege is exercised most on the "commercial" announcements, in which announcers try by exaggeration to persuade listeners that something dreadful will happen to them if they don't rush out and buy a can of this or a tube of that right away. No sensible person believes them; but there must be a lot of the other sort of folk, or advertisers wouldn't keep on paying for radio time to advertise their nostrums.

Much has been said about the educational value of radio programs, but most of the so-called educational programs we listen to have been pretty dull. The truth is that radio, like the movies, is a branch of the show business, whose chief concern is to entertain. —And this distressed old world needs all the entertainment it can get.

CANADA AT WAR

Canada is in a state of war. This fact was emphasized very clearly by the national budget of September 12th, which made every citizen take on a new tax load. Many would like to have seen a more spectacular demonstration of the Canadian mind in the present world crisis—such as conscription and the sending over immediately of an expeditionary force to France. But parliament adopted the right course in making the Dominion's first direct contribution that of supplies to the fullest extent of its capacity, and in providing men for the air service as fast as they can be trained. The new taxes are to be used for the conduct of military, naval and air operations "in and beyond Canada", and while these operations are primarily for home defence and in aiding the defence of Newfoundland and the French possessions of St. Pierre and Miquelon, they will undoubtedly be extended to facing the enemy in his own country—as an overseas division is even now being prepared—for inasmuch as we have taken up the gauntlet which the arrogant Hitler threw so contemptuously in the face of nations that respect the given word, we must see the thing through to a finish.

But Canada is fighting for more than the plighted word, she is fighting for the permanence of democratic principles on which her own constitution is based—the sacredness of human personality, the liberty of thought and action, the responsibility of citizenship, the rights of minorities, and justice for all. These are principles for which men have struggled and died since the dawn of Christianity, and which the British people in the development of their nation have made peculiarly their own, and out of which has grown that great confederation of free nations known as the British Empire. As an integral part of that empire, and on her own volition, Canada is the guarantor of constitutional rights which ensure the sanctity of home life and inspire brotherliness in men. Herr Hitler, the Nazist, would destroy all these great heritages and privileges; therefore he and his ideology must be completely eliminated if the present and future generations of Canadians would live in security and peace.

The Slow Minded

From the Writings of
Dr. Frank Crane

If you feel that you have a "slow" mind, don't worry about it. Pretty good company exists in that class.

Pierre Curie, the famous discoverer of radium, which is one of the great achievements of the generation in which he lived, used to say to his wife and co-worker, Marie, that he always felt that he possessed a "slow" mind.

Charles P. Steinmetz, the electrician, who was called a "wizard" because of his genius in mathematical work, said he hated the multiplication table when he was a boy at school because it took him such an extraordinary length of time to master it.

It is a familiar tale that Edison's teacher wondered if he were really bright, and that Grant's mother almost concurred in the acceptance of the popular nickname for her son of "Useless Grant."

Thackeray, the English novelist, once said that he often felt that he "had no head above the ears."

"And Moses said unto the Lord . . 'I am slow of speech and of a slow tongue.' "

Yet all of these men achieved superlative things.

There are other qualities in character more valuable than nimbleness of wit and the faculty for making immediate decisions.

The mental hares hop about conscious of their sprinting superiority.

Over a short course they have things their own way. But the course of Life is a long one.

An immed ate viewpoint gives all advantage to the nimble mind, a long bird's-eye view reveals the power for perseverance which lies in minds which are thought to be "slow."

"Thou sayest," wrote Marcus Aurelius in his Meditations, "Men cannot admire the sharpness of thy wit . . . . Be it so. Show these qualities then, which are altogether in thy power — sincerity, gravity, benevolence, frankness, endurance in labor."

The main thing is to acquire the habit of thinking things through.

Do not be satisfied with what some one else has said. See a thing clearly in your own mind.

A man who accustoms himself to relying upon his own mental processes has accomplished a great deal.

He has the kind of independence that men need, independence of intellect. He is not so apt to give way in great crises as the man who forms quick conclusions, but forms them upon the ipse dixit of other people. Don't be alarmed therefore if you feel that you are slow. The main thing is to be thorough and honest.

"No safety device has yet been invented to take the place of the one just above the ears."

MODERN POLITICS

Candidate: "It is my intention to conduct a bunkless campaign."

(Regina Leader-Post)

By and large, most people contribute no direct time or effort to making democratic government work. Such contribution as we do make is usually confined to criticism of those who are giving their time to make it work, whom we lump under the name of "politicians." All this is true enough. It is regrettable to note that in the case of Regina there are some people who can simply be put down as lazy. Regina has its "beefer" element — those who are forever criticizing but who, in not a few cases, are too lazy to go to the polls when voting day comes. We must be alert to our responsibilities to the state. The state is the people, collectively. The state properly has its responsibilities toward the citizen but the citizen has equal, even perhaps greater responsibility to the state. Government, in any form—municipal, provincial or national—will never be efficient and worthwhile on the basis of an uninterested society. Public apathy may be a more serious enemy of democracy than is dictatorship.

Advice to Germany

Now, Hitler cuts a sorry figure
Before a world amazed, agape;
His hand, too quick upon the trigger,
Battered poor Poland out of shape;
The madman could not brook delay,
So threw his prospects all away!

It's true that he destroyed the Poles,
In spite of their sublime resistance;
But he has compromised his goals,
Getting the Russians as assistants;;
Their "peaceful pact" will make men laugh,
For Hitler now must stand the gaff!

With Germany's machine of war
He swept a people off the earth;
Men greater than himself, by far,
In valor and in honest worth;
The Reich's sane men must find it galling
That so much plunder goes to Stalin.

Hitler has now a different neighbor,
Much baser than the valiant Poles;
All his expenditure and labor
In slaying bodies, torturing souls,
Is vain: he halves his "living space"

For Danzig and the Corridor
Could have been his in fair discussion
If he'd cleared another corridor
In land that now is Eastern Prussian,
And put the folks so dispossessed
Into the corridor in the West;
The port of Memel so would be
The Polish outlet to the sea.

But now he has, as eastern neighbor,
A man whose ruthlessness is equal
To his own so pitiless behaviour;
We'll not see, presently, the sequel;
But one day, more or less remote,
Stalin will have him by the throat!

When Germany has fought the Allies,
With interchange of blows tremendous,
Experienced defeats and rallies,
Causing destruction most stupendous,
Comes Russia's time to intervene
And "communize" the ravaged scene!

Its Fuehrer-fiend the Reich should outlaw,
And cease its warring à l'outrance,
No longer be the Russian's catspaw
But, in good faith, with Britain, France
And other self-respecting nations,
Eschew its crimes and depredations,
(The Allies' shower of leaflets minding, Surcease from war and havoc finding.)

W. A. Leggo, Darien, Conn.

Eye on Canada

No doubt an attack of some sort against Canada has been considered in the general German strategy.

That is evident by the anger voiced in Berlin at President Roosevelt's assertion that Canada and all other countries in the Western Hemisphere would be guarded against German or any other aggression. Nazi spokesmen popped off angrily when they learned the news of Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that Washington is not going to tolerate unfriendly neighbors.

In addition there is the report of German submarines being sighted off the Maritimes. Some of these have been in the Bay of Fundy and others have been in the Atlantic off Halifax.

As a matter of pepping up the morale of the German people at home, Berlin would like to report that a Nazi submarine had shelled a Canadian city, or that German airplanes had bombed Canada.

With long distance airplanes able to get far away from home, and with under-sea vessels on the prowl in many places, it might be possible for a German adventurer to fire a few shots or drop a few bombs in the vicinity of some Canadian centre.

That is why the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Navy were right on the job before the war was commenced officially. They were guarding against surprise attacks. The Canadian General Staff had been working long hours to be ready.

The Nazis must have been figuring on some raiding in the direction of Canada. When Mr. Roosevelt reminded Germany that the United States would protect all North American countries from aggression, it made the Nazis mad no end.

FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

CUSHING WEST

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nicholls are visiting friends in Stardale and Vankleek Hill at present.

Dr. Cushing and family spent Sunday at their residence, having as their guest Dr. R. G. M. Harbert, who returned last week from Bermuda where he spent the past three months.

Dr. Wallie Walford spent Friday at Pine Cottage.

Mrs. S. O. Hartley has closed her residence and returned to Montreal for the winter. Mrs. Laurence Hartley and little daughter, who were her guests have also returned to the city.

Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) McLeod, of Alexandria, Ont., was a guest of Mrs. Usher last week. Mrs. Usher and Mrs. Franklyn Keatley motored to Alexandria on Friday.

Mrs. W. Davidson, of Como, who has been making her annual welcome visit to her old friends in this locality, was a guest of Mr. and Miss Whelehan on Friday.

Miss Mildred Gaston, of Montreal, arrived Monday on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Gaston.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Whelehan, also Miss M. Whelehan, motored to the city on Wednesday.

Visitors at Mr. Leonard Young's cottage for the week-end included, besides the family, Mr. and Mrs. Starke and the Misses Livie and Whillock.

Mrs. W. Canning and her daughter, Margaret, also Mrs. C. L. Cooke, were in Grenville last Sunday on receiving news of the sudden death there of their cousin, Mrs. A. Goudy.

CUSHING

Mr. and Mrs. H. McComb and daughter, Lois, of St. Chrysosthome, spent Saturday visiting at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. R. Dobbie and Mr. and Mrs. J. Bradley, Carillon.

Miss H. Hoare, Mrs. T. Labatt, Mr. Sampson and Mr. W. Godwin, of Montreal, motored from the city on Monday and spent the day at Mr. Godwin's cottage, "Glenelen."

Miss Margaret McKiddie, of Vide Sac, spent the week-end with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dobbie.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Scott in Lachute.

The Young People's Association of St. Mungo's will meet at the manse on Saturday evening of this week.

Mr. Allan Graham spent Monday in Montreal.

Frontier Branch of the W.I. held an interesting "Education" meeting, four of the district teachers being present. Miss Tait of Cushing School, Mrs. Craig of Stonefield School, and Miss Murdoch of Chatboro School, favored with addresses on the subject. All three stressed the benefits accrued from close co-operation with the parents. Miss Copeland exhibited a number of drawings, most of them in colors, which gave an insight into the work done at Macdonald by way of art training for teachers. Miss Copeland has a decided gift for art, judging by the work she has done, and hopes to encourage her pupils to become interested too. Short talks were given also by Mrs. L. Morris, county president, and Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring, provincial convenor of Canadianization and National Events, who were present as judges of the costumes worn by the children and the grown-ups. Two prizes were given for each. Of the children, Francis Murdock as Cowboy Jack, and Vivian Heatlie as Little Bo-peep, were considered ties for first prize. Children receiving honorable mention were Irma and Audrey Heatlie as the Little Match Girl and Little Boy Blue, Marlene Murdoch as Little Red Riding Hood, and Elaine Dixon as a Pierrot. Adult ladies' costumes, first and second were Mrs. C. Dixon as a colonial lady and Mrs. A. Murdock a seventeenth-century lady.

Red Cross matters were discussed by the members after an instructive talk by Mrs. Kuhring whose provincial office makes her a direct link with the Red Cross headquarters, and the general idea was that members would work in connection with their nearest Red Cross station instead of forming many small units, which only makes the business part of the work more complicated for those in office at headquarters.

LAKEFIELD

A large number of friends and acquaintances gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Hodge on Friday evening and after congratulations had been extended to the young couple the evening was spent in music and dancing. Refreshments were served, and the party voiced their wishes to the bride and groom for a very happy future. The numerous gifts they received testified to the popularity of Mr. and Mrs. Hodge among their community friends.

HARRINGTON

Mr and Mrs. H. McClary, of Sweetsburg, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Shaw.

Mrs. Roberts, returned missionary from Abyssinia, gave a very interesting address and lantern slides on her work there, last Friday night.

Mr. Wm. Horsnall, of Montreal, spent the week-end here.

The Harrington Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. R. Swail next Tuesday.

Miss Verna Bates has returned to Montreal to take up her duties as nurse in the Montreal Western Hospital.

ST. ANDREWS EAST

Mrs. F. Patton has returned from Montreal, where she spent a few days.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Thos. McAdam and family in the grief occasioned by the passing of Mrs. McAdam's sister, Mrs. Tuck, of Lachine. Mrs. Tuck had just returned home after a visit with Mrs. McAdam.

Mr. Edgar Hooker and Miss Alice Hooker visited the capital recently, travelling from Montreal to Ottawa by airplane.—A most enjoyable trip, they report.

Mr. Howard Lalonde is spending the winter here with his mother.

Mr. Hugh Robertson has returned to Montreal, after a vacation spent in travelling Northern Quebec. With two companions he flew north, then took to canoes to navigate the return journey. He reports good weather during the trip.

Mrs. John Allan and Mrs. Wm. Ball motored to Montreal for the day on Monday.

Lloyd Lilly, Walter Starnes and Ronald de la Ronde cycled to Lachine and return on Monday, calling on friends en route.

Mr. and Mrs. George Perks are visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Matthews, at Fulford, Que.

Mrs. Robert Bell and Miss Katherine Bell of Massachusetts, are guests of Miss H. V. Wales.

BROWNSBURG

Mr. and Mrs. C. Merryfield, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. McCulloch.

Miss D. Steere and Miss A. Petley spent the week-end in Montreal with friends.

Mrs. G. Todd, Mr. and Mrs. D. Staniforth and Miss Jean Todd spent the week-end in Montreal with relatives.

Miss Ruby O'Brien was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. McAdam.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Wilson were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Reynolds at Billings Bridge, Ont.

Among those who attended the annual meeting of the Ottawa Baptist Association, which was held at Vernon, Ont., on Oct. 3-4, were the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Simpson, Mrs. F. Barker, Mrs. J. Mason, Mrs. A. Campbell, Miss Enid Campbell, Mrs. A. Kennedy, Mrs. J. McKenzie, Miss Shirley Heatlie and Mrs. Raymond Warwick.

Misses Dolly Steere and Annie Petley were week-end guests of Mrs. Stewart in Montreal.

The Junior Auxiliary of the United Church held their meeting at the home of Mrs. Arthur McAllister on Wednesday evening, when Miss Eva Hazel was presented with a beautiful table lamp in honor of her approaching marriage.

Misses Lida and Edith Gilmour spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Hair in Montreal.

Wedding bells will ring in Brownsburg this month when three of our young ladies will be married, namely Miss Elva McFaul, Miss C. Martin and Miss Eva Hazel. The following have been hostesses at showers for the brides-elect—Miss Annie Williams, Mrs. C. J. Wheeler and Mrs. Arthur McAllister.

Mrs. Peter McQuaig attended the W.I. meeting in Lachute on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Kettyle visited relatives in Mountain, Ont., during the week-end.

Mrs. W. H. Tomalty spent part of last week in Mount Maple visiting Mrs. Arthur Tomalty, who had the misfortune to fall and break her hip; her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Chlorination Loan By-Law Passes Third Reading

PROVISION ENSURED FOR SAFEGUARDING WATER

MEETING OF TOWN COUNCIL

At a meeting of Lachute Town Council held last evening in the town hall, the final move in chlorination measures for the town's water supply was effected by the passing of By-law 150 to borrow the sum of $5,000 for installation of the plant, the said loan to be for a term of 15 years.

Those favoring the by-law were Aldermen Prevost, Muir, Laurin and St. Jacques, Alderman McGibbon opposing.

Car-Wheel Passes Over Boy's Head; Injury Slight

Hartland Murdoch, 18-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Murdoch, Lachute, was run over yesterday, the wheel of a car passing over his head, but is reported alive and well today by miraculous good fortune.

Geo. E. Hamilton, of Montreal, having parked his car on the corner of Gilbert and St. Charles Streets, opposite the Murdoch home in the East Ward, was conversing with Perley Murdoch on his veranda, when the child slipped away unseen and crawled underneath the car. Hamilton had started his engine and put the car in motion, when he heard a warning shout from Henry Decoste, a bakery driver, and stopped immediately. The car had advanced several feet, and the child was picked up from under the rear, badly scratched about the head. According to the father, and to Decoste, who witnessed the incident, the rear wheel passed completely over the child's head.

The youngster was treated by Dr. W. F. McMartin, and is today reported little the worse for his misadventure.

Cars Crash on Route 30

At 9.30 o'clock Monday morning a collision occurred between cars driven by Mrs. Ralph Andrews, coming to Lachute from Lakefield, and Inspector L. J. King, travelling north on Highway 30.

Accompanying Mrs. Andrews were her 5-year-old daughter, Patricia, and another passenger, Allan Trickey, aged 16. The youth was hurled against the windshield when the cars crashed, and sustained a broken nose. He was brought to Lachute for treatment, by Traffic Officer H. Jones, who investigated

The accident occurred at a curve just south of the approach to Lake Sir John bridge. Both cars were considerably damaged.

OBITUARY

RESIDENT OF MILLE ISLES DISTRICT IS DEAD

Cambria — This neighborhood is saddened by the death of another citizen, Mr. George Kirpatrick, who passed away Sunday night in hospital in Montreal. The suddenness of his passing has cast a gloom over the community, as he had undergone an operation and friends had hoped for his complete recovery.

He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, formerly Maude Ward, three sons, Freeman, Danzil, Sydney; and two daughters, Olive (Mrs. Neill) of Montreal, and Phyllis at home; also many relatives and friends.

LATE MRS. A. L. PERREAULT WAS WELL KNOWN IN LACHUTE

Mrs. A. L. Perreault, a well known resident of Lachute, died in Montreal on October 2nd. She was the daughter of the late O. B. Lafleur, of Lachute, and leaves to mourn her loss her sister, Mrs. L. N. Fortier, of L'Annonciation; and three brothers, P. A. Lafleur, M.P.P., of Verdun, Joseph Lafleur, of Joliette, and Louis Lafleur, of Lachute; also twenty-five nieces and nephews.

The funeral service was held this morning, Thursday, at Ste-Anastasie Church, Lachute, and was attended by a very large gathering of relatives and friends. Her nephew, Rev. Father Roger Lafleur, o.m.i., assisted by Rev. Curé E. Labelle and Rev. Father Savage, officiated.

OLD AND RESPECTED RESIDENT PASSES TO HER REWARD

This community was saddened to learn of the sudden death, on Wednesday, of Mrs. Geo. F. Calder, widow of the late Geo. F. Calder, who was registrar for this county over a long period. Mrs. Calder had been in good health up to the time of her death, had attended church last Sunday and followed her regular daily routine. She passed peacefully away in her sleep in the early hours of Wednesday. She was in her 78th year, and was born at Beech Ridge in the year 1862, the daughter of William Rodger. In 1892 she was married to Geo. F. Calder, who at that time was proprietor of the Lachute Watchman. Mr. Calder predeceased his wife in February, 1930.

Left to mourn are her five sons, Dr. John Calder, of Brantford, Ont.; George, of Lachute; Ernest, of St. Andrews East; James, of Montreal; and Harold, of Arvida. Another son, William M., was killed during the Great War while serving in France. Mrs. Calder also leaves three sisters, Miss Mary J. Rodger, of Westmount; Mrs. David Hawthorn, of N.D.G.; and Mrs. C. J. McOuat, of Cowansville, Que.

Mrs. Calder was associated with the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church at Lachute for many years, and was an active member of the Women's Missionary Society. She was also vice-president of Lachute Branch of the Canadian Red Cross. A devoted mother and a trusted friend, she will be truly missed by those who knew her intimately.

LATE MISS DORIS BROWN IS DEEPLY MOURNED

Shrewsbury—This community has been shocked by the sudden passing of one of its beloved young people, Miss Doris Brown, whose death occurred at the Montreal General Hospital on Friday, Sept. 29th, after a very short illness.

Doris was 21 years old and her cheerful disposition had won for her a host of friends.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, assisted by Mr. Horace Baugh, and was largely attended by sorrowful friends and relatives. The hymns sung were "A few More Years Shall Roll," "There Is No Night in Heaven" and "Rock of Ages."

Pall-bearers were her three cousins, Stanley, Victor and Alfred Brown, and her uncle, Dan Brown. Interment took place in Shrewsbury.

BIRTH

MARRIAGE

HAY-COWAN—On September 27th, 1939, Elsie Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cowan, of Lachute, Que., to Allan Malcolm, son of the late Mr. James Hay and of Mrs. Hay, of Lachute, Que., the Rev. Malcolm Campbell, of the First Presbyterian Church of Montreal, officiating.

DEATH

CALDER—At her late residence, Lachute, Que., on Oct. 4th, 1939, Jemmima Rodger, beloved wife of the late G. F. Calder. Funeral from the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute, on Friday, Oct. 6th, at 3 p.m. to Lachute Cemetery.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Jacques Cartier

This daring navigator won the proud title of "Discoverer of Canada." In 1534 he made his first voyage and landed at Gaspe where he planted a 30 foot cross and claimed this new land for François I of France. The following year he sailed up the river to Stadacona—now Quebec—where he spent the winter of 1535-6, sailing home in the Spring, carrying glowing tales of this new land of great promise.

NEW MARKETS

THE courage and vision of Cartier opened up a new world. In the same spirit of adventure and enterprise, Canadians, assisted by this Century-old Bank, are continually making voyages of discovery in business. As new products are developed and markets found, the experience and facilities of this Bank are playing their part in Canada's March of Progress.

We invite business men to discuss their banking problems with us.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The Presbyterian Y.P.S. regular weekly meetings have been resumed, last night being the second this season. About 25 members attended and participated in election of the following officers:

The treasurer's report showed a substantial bank balance, resulting from the fine results of the Society's enterprises last season and the summer garden-party. The Society authorized the usual Thanksgiving contribution of $5, and other plans are under discussion to devote some of the funds for other phases of the church.

Following the business meeting, members enjoyed a few ends of carpet bowling, and group singing, to close the evening with refreshments. All old members, and any potential ones, are invited to attend, the next meeting being Wednesday, Oct. 11th, at 8.30 o'clock.

Brownsburg United

Brownsburg— Harvest Thanksgiving services will be observed in the United Church on Sunday next, with special music and sermons. Committees from the Young People's and Junior Auxiliary will have charge of the decorations. Contributions of vegetables and fruits will be received at the church Saturday afternoon. The decorations will remain up until the following Sunday, Oct. 15th, for the church anniversary services, when the Rev. E. C. Cassidy, former pastor, will be the special preacher. Mr. Cassidy will receive a hearty welcome.

The executive of the Young People's Society met at the manse Tuesday evening to consider activities for the autumn. A slate of meetings, with programs, was drawn up to be presented to the opening meeting next Wednesday evening.

The Junior Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Arthur MacAllister on Wednesday evening. Several items of business were discussed.

St. Andrews E. United

St. Andrews E.—A pre-communion service was held in the United Church on Thursday evening, conducted by Rev. J. A. Mowatt, the pastor.

The October meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church will be held on Tuesday afternoon, Oct 10, in the church hall. The thank-offering service has been postponed.

Induction of New Minister, Presbytn. Church, St. Andrews

St. Andrews E.—The Presbyterian Church was the scene of a momentous event in our community life and the church's history, Friday evening, Sept. 29, when the induction of their new minister took place. The Moderator of the Montreal Presbytery, Rev. Mr. Lee, was in the chair. Rev. Mr. Meredith read the scripture lesson and gave a discourse based on James II, verse 23: "And he (Abraham) was called the Friend of God." Abraham, he said, cherished the things that God loved. Abraham showed an unfaltering trust, saying, "It shall verily come to pass, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." Does God trust us? Mutual trust leads to mutual fellowship; mutual fellowship leads to service—often entailing sacrifice.

The Moderator took the induction ceremony.

Rev. I. A. Montgomery, of Kensington Church, N.D.G., a fellow student with Dr. MacMillan, gave the charge to the minister, stressing courtesy, tact and courage as necessary attributes. The charge to the congregation was given by Rev. J. M. Kik, of Campbell Memorial Church. His text was, "Ye are our epistle—read and known of all men." A congregation, to be a worthy epistle, must take heed to prayer, Bible reading, a knowledge of the shorter catechism and the Westminster Confession of Faith; also practise the grace of giving that the Lord's work may prosper.

A letter was read from Dr. Ballantyne, from Napanee, Ont., where he and Mrs. Ballantyne are on vacation. He extended a cordial welcome to Dr. McMillan and family.

After being welcomed by the members of Montreal Presbytery present, Dr. McMillan and family were introduced to members of the congregation by Mr. George Rodger.

The church was decorated with vases of gladioli and asters. Mrs. J. P. Bradley, organist, accompanied the singing of hymns. After the reception, Rev. Dr. Morley, of Stanley Church, tendered thanks to the ladies. Among the guests present were Miss Wilham, of Springfield, Rev. Mr. Reed and Rev. S. Wilham, of Calumet.

Social and Personal

Dr. and Mrs. John Hope, of Siscoe, visited his mother, Mrs. John Hope, last week.

Mrs. Lindsay Lee, of Tisdale, Sask., is visiting her mother, Mrs. A. Beers, in Lachute Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McArthur and daughter June, left today for a motor trip to New York City and other points.

Miss Evelyn Dumouchel, of Ottawa, was the week-end guest of her aunt, Mrs. S. S. Campbell and Mr. Campbell.

Mr. J. Smith returned from a motor trip to Sherbrooke, Granby, Ayers Cliff and other points in the Eastern Townships.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent de Conde, their daughter Joy, and son Jarvis, of Montreal, were week-end guests of her mother, Mrs. P. Cruise.

Weddings

Evans-Kennedy

The marriage of Lillian Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. L. Kennedy, of Pine Hill, to Mr. Merlyn Evans, son of Mrs. William Evans and the late Mr. Evans, of Birmingham, England, took place at the home of the bride's parents on Saturday afternoon, September 30th, at 2.30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. R. Simpson, pastor of Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg, and the wedding music was played by Miss Ruth Todd.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white crepe gown with short veil, and carried a bouquet of white gladioli.— The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Elva Kennedy, and her cousin, Miss Florence Robinson, as junior bridesmaids; they were gowned respectively in blue and pale pink taffeta and carried bouquets of asters and ferns. Mrs. Kennedy, the bride's mother, wore a navy blue crepe dress and a corsage of roses.

Mr. Owen Todd acted as best man for Mr. Evans.

Following the ceremony a supper was served, after which the happy couple left for a motor trip to points in the United States. On their return they will reside in Lachute.

Hodge-Scott

Lakefield—The marriage of Edith Myrtle, daughter of the late Mr. Geo. Scott and of Mrs. Scott, Lakefield, Que., to Henry Lawrence Hodge, son of the late Mr. Thomas Hodge and of Mrs. Hodge, also of Lakefield, took place quietly at Trinity Church here Wednesday, Sept 27, at 7 o'clock, the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh officiating. The Wedding March was played by Mrs. Baugh. The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Gordon Arnott, wore a dress of navy blue crepe-de-chene and a large navy blue picture hat, with accessories to match. She was attended by her sister, Ida, who wore a brown costume with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodge will reside at Lakefield.

Rhodes-Chapman

Timmins United Church manse was the scene of a very quiet wedding on Saturday evening, September 16th, when Gertrude Lena, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Chapman, became the bride of Rodney Sinclair, second son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Rhodes, of Matheson, Ont., Rev. W. M. Mustard officiating.

The bride's parents formerly were residents of Lakefield. Que.

The bride looked attractive in a grey tweed tailored suit with Royal blue matching accessories, with a corsage of blue violets.

The witnesses were Mrs. W. M. Mustard, of Timmins, Ont., and Miss Helen O'Keefe, of Schumacher, Ont.

A Summer's Idyll

(In the Laurentians)

Moonlight night on the mountains,
Spires of trees pointing high,
Fireflies streaking in myriads
Of gleams 'gainst a cloudless sky;
Mars in his daring nearness—
A beacon of orchid light—
Proclaiming : "Yet worlds to be conquered,
In the courses of Time and Might!"

The hush of sleeping birdland,
Spreads far over vale and hill—
Like a fulsome benediction—
Loud Amen-ed by whippoorwill.
Deep through the sedgy shadows
Come tunes from the rivulet—
Deep, snake-winding the lowland meadow—
A Saurian enchantment.

Here, by this open casement,
A listening Dreamer hears—
In this beauteous night's fulfillment,
The Answer long sought by seers.

'Police' Dogs Must Be Trained

A dog of any breed is a police dog when trained for police work. The German shepherd, long used for police work in Europe, is commonly known as the police dog in spite of the fact that the Labrador retriever has been proved by the only tests ever conducted on a practical and extensive basis to be the best breed for police work. For some reason black German shepherds are commonly referred to improperly as Belgian shepherds. There is, however, a Belgian sheepdog which is rarely seen in this country. It may be black, but not necessarily so, and either long-haired or short-haired. It is a smaller dog than the German shepherd.

Dansereau-Lavigne Contest Is Probable in Election Here

Great activity is on foot as the political parties are lining up for the elections on Oct. 25th. Present indications point to the two old rivals, Notary J. F. Lavigne of Lachute, and Georges E. Dansereau, M.P.P., Grenville, as candidates for the honors. Both parties will have selected their candidates by Saturday.

Red Cross Meeting

The local branch of the Red Cross held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the Victoria Hall, a large number of ladies being present. No immediate request has come from headquarters as yet, but the members were asked to be ready for any work in connection with the Red Cross. Many have signified their intention of joining the local group. The annual meeting, with election of officers, will be held in November, and a cordial invitation is extended to all those interested.

New Alphabet Marks Ataturk's Memory

Many monuments were left by the late Kemal Ataturk to mark his modernization of Turkey, but perhaps none will be more enduring or stand longer than his change in the language of the conutry. This was decreed with the writing of a completely new alphabet just 10 years ago.

Today this alphabet is in almost universal use in the country, is thoroughly launched in the schools, which for centuries had taught a confusing combination of Arabic and Persian characters. It substitutes a clear set of Latin letters for the Arabic.

But no easy task was this change. For a time the new alphabet was being studied on the streets, in the trains, in the stores, homes, schools, everywhere. Every day for months the newspapers printed a familiar picture of some object captioned with the old Arabic characters and the new Latin equivalent. At the same time the signs over the stores were changed to Latin, station names were changed, the Latin influence was infused on all sides.

Latin was chosen because of the splendid phonetic values it gives to the Turkish tongue. The Arabic influence in the Turkish language never had proved entirely satisfactory, and resulted in countless queer forms of pronunciations. Incidentally, the new alphabet has spread so that the literacy of Turkey today is many times higher than it was a decade ago.

District News

DALESVILLE

Summer inhabitants of the Lake Louisa and Dalesville districts have dwindled to a few hangers-on, though this should be one of the most enchanting months to those especially who are artistic minded—because of the changing tints of the foliage across the mountain-sides. There, of course, was an element of compulsion in the going for those who had children returning to school; but for those who are still fortunate enough to be staying on, there is a delight in living amid so much of picturesque nature. One would need to travel far to find anything in landscape more beautiful than is to be seen in the Laurentian districts. —M.A.C.

MODERN WOMEN

By Dr. M. L. Maffett

King Carol II of Rumania has appointed Maria Popp, fifty-two year-old suffrage champion, to the Senate. She is the first woman to receive such an appointment.

Renting a second-hand airplane and being a pilot, Barones Lisette von Capri, Swiss aviatrix, has travelled more than 10,000 miles by air in the United States and Mexico.

Among the leaders in the movement to reduce illiteracy in the South American countries is Senora Amanda H. Labarca, wife of the Chilean minister of War, who occasionally lectures in the United States as a visiting professor.

She is a professor of education and sociology at the University of Chile, and has visited all but three of the republics of America below the equator.

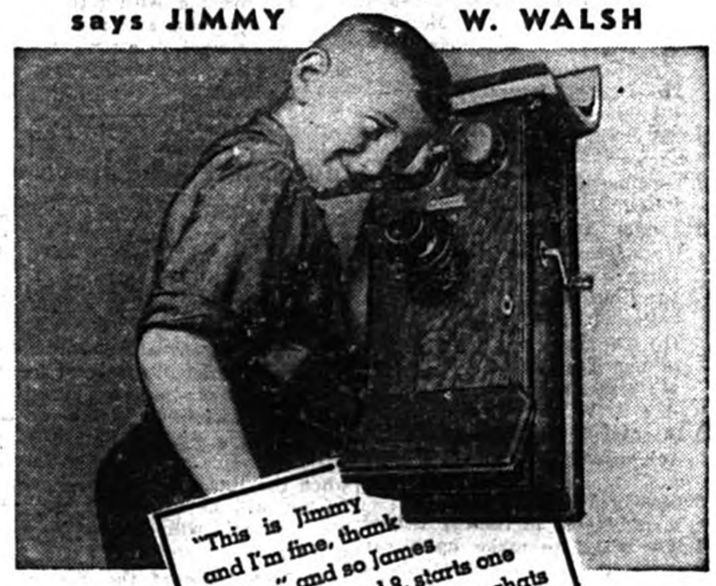

Senora Lebarca says that she and her associates look forward to the time when illiteracy will scarcely exist. There are night schools for adults and Sunday classes in the arts and trades for workers. Rural schools are offering classes in agricultural subjects.

Quebec Women's Institutes Ready for War Work

The branches of Quebec Women's Institutes are everywhere responding to the needs created by the war, and are either organizing into Red Cross groups or becoming representative units where a Red Cross already exists. In some counties, as Sherbrooke, all branches are already co-operating with the Red Cross in every way possible; and in others, as Montcalm, a Red Cross branch of 25 or more members has been organized by the W.I., and all are ready to begin work when instructions reach them.

After a long struggle for civil rights, French women have gained their first major victory. Parliament has approved a law recognizing women as the legal equals of men, and giving them the privilege of contracting civil obligations.

"HELLO AUNTIE"
says JIMMY W. WALSH

"This is Jimmy and I'm fine, thank you . ." and so James W. Walsh, aged 8, starts one of his many telephone chats with his Aunt in Strathroy.

"Once my husband preferred to go in town to see people — but now does all that on the telephone," says Mrs. Walsh. For $2.05 a month the Walsh's have a private line, occasionally call a brother in Toronto on Long Distance. "It came in mighty handy last winter when my mother was sick. We had to call the doctor several times."

No farm should be without a telephone. It's "mighty handy" to call relations and neighbours — and quick aid if need be!

FISH is Delicious AND SO EASY TO PREPARE

SALMON SANDWICH DE LUXE

Remove bones and flake one small can of salmon. Mix with 2 tablespoons horseradish, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 4 tablespoons mayonnaise, seasonings. Spread generously between bread slices; spread outside of each sandwich with melted butter, toast on both sides under low broiler heat until brown. Pour over the sandwich a sauce made of melted cheese.

POTATO AND FISH CASSEROLE

Flake one pound of canned or cooked fish and place in casserole. Slowly melt ¼ lb. cheese in double boiler; stir in ⅔ cup milk. Pour this over the fish. Cover the mixture with mashed cooked potato, and line the rim of the casserole with unbaked biscuits. Bake in hot (425°) oven until biscuits are done.

There are so many delicious varieties of Canadian FISH available all the year round, no matter where you live, that you can add pleasing new dishes to the family menus.

And remember, Fish is nourishing, and is easily digested. Ask your dealer about the different kinds of Fish he can get for you, and arrange to serve Fish to your family often.

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman
By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

THE COLUMN SEEMED FUTILE

The copy for this column is sent to the newspapers for a month at a time. Usually this is satisfactory, but it sometimes prevents writing about a current event, as the month's copy has been sent. This is what happened last month, as the column went out just before the culmination of the crisis. As I looked the column over each week as it appeared, it seemed so futile, and so far from the things about which we were all concerned, and I felt rather ashamed of it. However, I have had several letters, expressing pleasure in reading something normal and not concerned with war, and asking me to continue this—these made me feel better. I try always to make this column a reflection of the things which intrest the average woman, and this I will continue to do. I cannot ignore the war, as none of us can do that, but I will try not to let it dominate. As one of the letters expressed it, 'there is a need for reading matter to help us forget the war, if only for a short time'.

THE OPENING OF THE SESSION

The opening of the session was intensely interesting. The House was crowded. It seemed as if every member was present. The galleries were crowded with visitors, even to a limited number of standees, and many were turned away. I never saw so many in the Press Gallery. It looked as if every paper in the country had its representative there. There was no going in and out nor reading of papers, nor writing letters. The members were listening. The mover and seconder to the Addresses from the Throne, and Dr. Manion, who also spoke, were all men who had served in the last war. Their speeches were short and had practical suggestions. There was general sympathy for the Prime Minister as he seemed to be very tired and depressed. There were times that one could scarcely hear him and one wondered if he would be able to continue. Then at other times he would rise to eloquence and turn and address different sections of the House. No one knew just what he was going to say and there was a feeling of tenseness and an impatience with any verbosity on the part of any speaker. Everyone wanted them to get on with it and to hear what Canada was going to do. We did not learn to what extent Canada would participate, but at least we knew that she was in the War. Throughout the entire session, there was a willingness to co-operate, that was comforting.

PRESERVE US FROM FEAR AND GREED

What the developments in the food situation will be for Canada no one knows as yet. The best thing we can do at present is to go along normally, being saving of food stuffs and wasting nothing. Preserve us from greed and fear. It was greediness which caused the sugar shortage as if we had bought normally there would have been plenty for all. Eventually we will be told what is required of us and in the meantime a continuance of normal living, as nearly as we can manage, seems to be the best thing we can do.

CELERY

Celery is at its best and cheapest now and we should make good use of it in our meals. I use only the very tenderest, choicest, pieces on the table, but I do not waste any of it, as every last bit of it, except the leaves, is utilized, some way or another. We often have celery soup, and I have found that adding potato makes a better flavoured soup. Creamed celery makes a pleasant variation in the list of vegetables. The celery itself is very bland, so it is improved if about a half of an onion is cooked with the celery. Use very little water in cooking it and make the cream sauce with part milk and part water in which the celery was cooked. Sometimes, by way of a change, I add some grated cheese. Celery improves almost every salad. If you use it in sandwiches, never put it through the grinder, even though you grind the remaining materials. It loses its crispness, so cut it finely with a knife. A pinch of sugar improves any cooked celery.

CELERY SOUP

1 cup celery, cut fine, 1 onion, 2 potatoes, quartered, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 2 tablespoons flour.

Cook the celery, onion and potato, until tender in about 2 cups of water, adding the teaspoon salt. Crush the potatoes against the side of the saucepan. Make a cream sauce with the butter, flour and milk. Add to the cooked vegetables. Add a few grains of sugar, and taste to see if more salt and pepper is required. This is one of the recipes I don't make by prescription, but use the quantities at hand. However, the above quantities are about right, but you may use more celery if you like. Let the soup cook at a low temperature for a short time to blend the flavors. A dash of paprika on each serving improves the appearance.

GREEN TOMATOES AND ONIONS

Here is an old-fashioned green tomato recipe. Slice 4 green tomatoes and 4 onions into a frying-pan and add just enough water to keep them from sticking. Cook until the vegetables are tender. Season with salt and pepper and a good lump of butter. Serve as a vegetable.

Hints on Fish Cookery

If you have never done much fish buying or cooking you will need a few pointers to enable you to get the best for your money. For those who are old hands at this department of household management, a brief review of the points to remember when purchasing and preparing fish will not come amiss.

The housewife is wise to find out what varieties of fish her locality offers when purchasing fresh fish and the season when it is abundant and moderately priced.

In selecting fresh fish, look for smooth, moist skin, firm flesh, fresh odour, full bright eyes and gills, and firm fins and tail.

One pound of fish fillets usually serves three persons but when buying whole fish with head and tail, count on about half a pound for each portion. Keep the fish in a tightly covered pail on ice or in a cold refrigerator. If it cannot be kept cold, cook at once and reheat later.

Fish has a high nutritive value and is easily digested. There is little waste in preparing it and it takes only a few minutes to cook, which added up, make fresh fish a delicious as well as an economical dish.

BAKED WHOLE FISH

Fish weighing 3 to 6 pounds (salmon, mackerel or whitefish)
Oil or melted fat
Finely sifted bread crumbs

Prepare the fish by cutting off head, tail and fins, then splitting it down at the backbone like a finnan haddie so that it will lie flat open. Oil a baking pan and place fish in it, skin side down. Sprinkle well with salt, then strew all over with finely sifted bread crumbs. Now sprinkle over it oil or melted fat Place in a hot oven of 500 degrees. Add no water. Bake quickly until well browned, allowing about 10 minutes per inch thickness of fish. The heat may be reduced for the larger fish towards the end of cooking time.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

Sugar Shortage in the Canning Season

Toronto, Sept. 26—The sugar shortage has it health aspect, and from this standpoint the Government has been urged to act immediately, by the Women's Division of the Health League of Canada.

This organization held a special meeting to protest against "unwarranted and unpatriotic hoarding by certain groups in the community."

Pointing out that the shortage became evident at the beginning of the season when crops of fruit are being canned, the Women's Division adopted a resolution affirming that "interference with this normal preparation of foods for winter consumption will have serious effects upon the health of the population, both children and adults."

It was decided to memorialize the Governments of Canada, Ontario and the City of Toronto, asking that immediate steps be taken to investigate the reasons for the shortage and to issue a proper supply of sugar for all householders without delay.

Most people will echo the saying of the annoyed English housewife who declared that she wished Hitler would marry and settle down.

Pasteurized Milk for Hospital Patients

Toronto, Sept. 26—More than 80 per cent of hospital patients in six Canadian Provinces are given the protection of milk pasteurization.

Results of a survey now being made by the Health League of Canada were announced for the benefit of delegates to the American Hospital Association, at whose convention in Toronto the Health League had two educational exhibits, including one exclusively on pasteurization.

The six provinces on which data is complete, with the percentage of patients served only pasteurized milk are: Ontario 98%; Manitoba 85%; Nova Scotia, 74%; Saskatchewan 71%; New Brunswick 70%; British Columbia 54%. These six provinces have a total of 476 hospitals, with a bed accomodation of 34,355. The total number of beds in the hospitals serving pasteurized milk is 28,424 or 82 per cent.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story
by W. E. Aughinbaugh, M.D.

THIS HAPPENED

"In my forty years of practice," said Dr. W. H. P., "I had what I have always considered my strangest experience a year after I had hung out my shingle, and although it has been thirty-nine years since it happened, I recall it as vividly as if it had taken place yesterday."

Knowing there was a good story coming, I asked the doctor to tell me what he had in mind.

"Well," began the medico, clearing his throat and contemplating the cigar which he was smoking, as he turned it over and over in his hand, "this took place New Year's day.

"When I was a young physician, it was the custom, as you recall, for medical men to wear beavers and garb themselves in long frock coats, and, of course, I adopted this style of dress, because it identified members of the healing art and to a certain extent was what one might term 'ethical advertising.'

"I received a call, and was asked to hurry to a small stationery store about two blocks away. Gathering my equipment in my little bag, I hastened to my patient.

"As I arrived at the door of the store an excited man greeted me and said: 'He's in der back room. Be quick—his brain is busted.' I entered the store and was shown into the room back of it—the living quarters of the family.

"To my amazement, on his hands and knees was a giant of a man, butting his head against the wall, like an excited goat.

"In places he had knocked the plaster off, until his mother, fearing that he would fracture his skull, got a heavy pillow, and whenever he made a lunge at the wall, she would rush ahead of him and interpose the pillow between his head and the wall, to prevent him from injuring himself. Other members of the family stood about, terror stricken and crying.

"I removed my silk hat and gloves with deliberation and placed them on a table. In my most commanding voice I asked, 'What are you trying to do?'

"Forgetting his goat complex, the man rose to his feet, gave me a wild look, bellowed, 'Hello, Caesar—what are you doing here?' and rushed at me. We went down together, and rolled over the floor, the screams of the family adding to the excitement and bringing in aid from passersby.

"Ultimately, with six men holding him on the floor, I gave him an injection of hyoscyamus and he drifted into dreamland, but my top hat, my frock coat, my trousers, shirt, collar and tie were completely destroyed as far as further wear was concerned.

"Of course, I sent a bill for the clothing ruined and strange to say it was promptly paid.

"This man remained my patient until his death twenty years later, and every time he imbibed too much of the antidote for the Keely Cure, he became a goat and executed his peculiar antics of butting walls, furniture and everything in sight."

HOUSE AND HOME
By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

October's nut brown days are with us once again, so it behooves the gardener who wants to plant peonies this fall to order his stock now. There are dozens of varieties in white, pink and red, as well as double and single blossoms.

The Mrs. Livingston Farrand is considered the most outstanding pink by many authorities. This is one of the extra fine new peonies that is high up in the price range.

Other pinks that are of the first rank are Blanche Ring, Diadem, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. W. L. Gumm, Walter Lindgren and Westhill, Splendid, pure reds are Blazing Star, Dearborn, Dixie, and half a dopen others.

Prepare the soil several days or a week before you plan to plant the roots. Enrich with old manure, digging it in at least two feet deep, and mixing well.

While you must make a deep bed for peonies, be sure not to plant the roots deep. The "eyes" or buds on the crown should be two or three inches below ground level, with the roots going straight down into the well-pulverized soil. Roots mustn't come in contact with the plant food or fertilizer, so put your plant food in the first six inches of soil in the bottom of the hole.

Peonies like a well drained spot with plenty of light and air and room. Partial shade is desirable because the delicate colors of the blooms fade if exposed to the full sun all day. Also they very definitely resent being planted where others have grown before. They prefer and demand fresh settings.

An occasional coat of wax applied to the polished surfaces of your furniture will make the daily dusting an easy matter. Wax seals the pores of the wood, enhances and preserves the grain and develops a hard, dry finish.

Inside the house we'll be putting up winter draperies and getting out the woolens. If you're planning to re-drape the windows this fall, be sure to have plenty of fullness in the draperies so that they may hang in graceful folds.

By the way, don't hesitate to say "draperies," when that is what you mean. The word "drape" is a verb and should not be used as a noun.

An important point to watch in the selection of your draperies is the material. Be sure that it harmonizes in color, texture and "feeling" with the other articles in the room. Damask or velvet draperies would be most uncomfortable with sturdy maple furniture and hooked rugs.

Post-War Reactions Are Factor in Govt. Planning for Agriculture

War Demands and Their Relation to Crops And Products of Canadian Farming

Ottawa, October 10—The Canadian farmer will play an important role in the war. The problem just now is how to plan production when the future is so obscure. Departments of Agriculture, colleges and technical agriculturalists are grappling with the matter but they admit the limitations of present knowledge. A conference was held at Ottawa last week and the whole field surveyed as carefully as possible. A few general propositions can be laid down with some confidence.

Several definite steps to control prices and markets in specific commodities have already been taken, and others are planned.

The wheat farmer is profoundly concerned, of course, with the heavy crop just harvested. The situation has many awkward angles. All British buying is in the hands of J. Rank, the British miller. It appears that as part of the economic war against Germany, surpluses are being lifted from the Balkans and other areas which might supply the enemy. Prices somewhat above world markets are being paid to attract this wheat.

Lowers Canadian Demand

Meanwhile, of course, this lessens the demand upon Canadian wheat. Exports to all countries in the first two months of the crop year were only 22 millions. October is usually the big export month but the submarine menace and Britain's buying policy may delay shipments.

The statistical position does not encourage a belief in a sharp rise in wheat prices. If left alone, the market would probably not go up for awhile. There is a strong sentiment across the country, however, against continuing to sell wheat even to Britain at a figure below the cost of production. The first decision of the government was to let the 70 cent minimum price ride, and to leave the Winnipeg market nominally open. This policy may be revised later. A practical difficulty will arise if a higher minimum price is set before the season ends, because many farmers are accepting the open market price and will feel victimized if later on the government minimum is raised. Those who sell to the board, of course, participate in any additional returns.

The long view for wheat is better, though highly obscure. Much depends on the extent of war's ravages in Europe. In the last war over 10 million acres went out of wheat production on that continent. Britain and France are plowing up pasture land to plant potatoes, sugar beets and other bulky foods. This will reduce their supply of fats, of bacon, milk, cheese, beef, etc. More of these things will thus have to be imported from abroad.

Agricultural economists here do not seem to expect an increase in Canadian wheat acreage as a result of war. Rather a relative increase in the price of hogs and bacon, lamb and mutton, wool, beef, horses, etc., should tend to decrease it. In the semi-arid ranching country there will be alternative crops which may pay better than wheat. This may be true, also, in the irrigated lands. Moreover, coarse grains for feeding may go up in price and cause some switching from wheat. More wheat will be fed, if it stays relatively low.

First effects of war demoralized the apple market and the cheese market, and steps were taken to bolster the apple market. The authorities are afraid a low relative price for cheese may induce many farmers to abandon its production in favor of butter, cream, powdered milk and whole milk. They believe cheese will be needed badly later on, and if allowed to collapse, the cheese industry may be unable to revive itself and meet the demands. However, prices are again somewhat better. The situation is being closely watched.

In the last war things were left alone for the most part, and the irregular and extremely sharp rise in farm prices caused distortions and over-productions which had a grave post-war effect upon Canadian agriculture. Any government planning which is done in this war will be carried out with one eye on post war conditions.

The one commodity which the government appears completely confident should be boosted without hesitation is hog products. Bacon will be in great demand, it is believed. Naturally this will make a heavy call on barley, wheat, and other feeding products.

The possibility of a shortage of seeds, bulbs, etc., especially those normally imported from abroad, is being dealt with. Wastes due to parasites, insects, pests, etc., will be attacked with special vigor. Farm planning is being stressed.

New Attractive Service Station Being Erected Here

Work is proceeding on the construction of a cottage-type gasoline and service station, to occupy the space fronting the old Medical Hall on Main Street, Lachute. The venture will be a company-owned station, probably under the management of a local supervisor, proprietors being the Champlain Oil Company who have leased the site.

The projected premises are described as highly modern, with stucco finish and metal roof on a cottage-style office to the west of the lot; entrance to the service station, equipped with car lift, pits and newest equipment, to the east; and latest style gasoline pumps facing the main thoroughfare.

Engaged on construction are two local firms, Cottingham Supply Company and Alcidas Laurin.

Suffers Eye Injury in Unusual Mishap

Accidentally poked in the right eye with the end of a pencil, J. A. Lambert, young accountant of the Ste. Agathe branch of the Bank of Montreal, learned from his physician on Wednesday that he may lose the use of the injured eye. Lambert was reading a newspaper at his home on Sunday. Beside him sat his sister-in-law with a pencil in one hand. As she turned a page of the newspaper, the pencil struck his eye.

COMMITS SUICIDE WITH DYNAMITE CHARGE

Tragedy at 16 Island Lake

Using a stick of dynamite and a detonator, Edmond Tasse, 22-year-old caretaker at the summer premises of Father Gagnon near Sixteen Island Lake, killed himself on Tuesday morning. The young man, a son of the late Dominique Tasse of Sixteen Island Lake, was said to have suffered a disappointment in love.

A jury under Coroner J. G. Latour, M.D., of St. Jerome, returned a verdict of self-destruction in a moment of mental aberration.

The coroner was informed that Tasse was at the camp in the morning with three companions, Viannay Richard, Gerard Bernard and Roger Tasse, a cousin. He suddenly ran out of the camp and barred all the doors and windows. He then went to a tool box, picked up a stick of dynamite and a detonator and headed for a workshop a short distance away. As he went, he warned his companions not to come near the place,—"Come for me later," he said He had been gone only a few minutes when his companions heard the explosion. They rushed to the spot and found Tasse's body badly mutilated; the face was unharmed, however. The young men immediately reported the case to the authorities, and the provincial police investigated.

Bicycle Racer Is Champion In Wolfe Cycle Club

Honors went to Bob Taylor, local bicycle racer, in winning his club championship race by 1 minute—17 seconds over his rival, Gunner Erickson, who finished second in the recent Montreal-Lachute race.

The Wolfe Cycle Club event was over a twenty mile course, in the time of 58 minutes and 38 seconds. The first three to finish were B. Taylor, 58. 38⅘; G. Erickson, 59. 55 ⅘; P. Laberge, 61. 0⅘.

RARE MUSICAL PROGRAM IN SACRED CONCERT

Recital at St. Julien Church

The Romanesque architecture of the new St. Julien Church, Lachute Mills, presented a striking spectacle last Sunday evening as the exterior flood-lighting gave this stately building an added touch of grandeur.

On this occasion, the church was open for a sacred concert given by L'Association Chorale Saint-Louis-de-France, under the direction of M. Charles Goulet, D.M. The organist was M. Antonio Létourneau, L.M. The event was sponsored and arranged by Mrs. W. H. Ayers, who also entertained the artists and a number of friends at the Ayers home on conclusion of the program.

The concert was one of the finest sacred musicales ever given in Lachute, and the large attendance enjoyed a program which demonstrated the rare quality of the pipe organ and rich vocal tone, with an inspiring setting of the beautiful interior of this church.

The organ prelude, by Guilmant, brought out rich chords in the fine Casavant organ. To the dramatic strains of Wagner's "Pilgrim's Chorus" from Tannhauser, the male choir sang "Laetabitur Justus", and being the most familiar of the numbers given, this found greatest favor with the audience.

"Pater, Pater!" an extract from the Seven Words of Christ, was sung by tenor C. A. St. Hilaire and baritone Paul Trottier, with the chorus accompanying.

Other sacred pieces were given, including "O Salutaris" sung by M. Charles Goulet, and "Toujours à Toi, Seigneur," sung by M. Paul Trottier, and a very simple but harmonious number by Abbe Boyer, entitled "Sanctus." In conclusion of this recital M. Letourneau, at the organ, played "Fiat Lux," a masterpiece of Dubois.

Lachute's Fire Department Stresses Fire-Prevention Theme This Week

Lachute Fire Department is collaborating fully with the Dominion-wide campaign for fire prevention programmed this week. The brigade turned out with full equipment on Tuesday evening, parading the streets of Lachute with illuminated banners and sirens blowing. Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon gave brief talks last evening to the Boy Scouts and to the Hundred Club, stressing the need of precautionary measures to minimize the town's fire loss. Fire drill is being held in all the schools, and inspection of public buildings by the fire officials will complete a thorough program on the part of the local brigade.

Boy Hunter Shot Dead With His Own Rifle

With a bullet through the head and his rifle beside him, 15-year-old Marcel Verdier, of St. Adolphe, who had been missing since Saturday, was found in the bushes one quarter of a mile from his home on Tuesday morning. The body lay beneath leaves and was completely hidden. It was only by accident that one of 200 searchers led by Mayor B. Chartrand happened to move some of the leaves and saw the remains.

Examination of the body showed the bullet had gone into the boy's body below the chin and had pierced his head, coming out at the back. He lay on his back. It is believed he stumbled as he was travelling in the bushes and the rifle discharged. He had started out on Saturday morning at 7 o'clock to go hunting. When he failed to return at night a search was started and by Tuesday morning 200 men including roadmen working in the neighborhood had been enlisted.

Following the recovery, the body was taken home and Coroner J. G. Latour, M.D., of Saint Jerome, was summoned. Provincial Police were also called to investigate. The jury heard the evidence and a verdict of accidental death was returned.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning. The young man was the son of Gabriel Verdier, road inspector in the employ of the Department of Colonization.

Alouette Ski Club Holds "Gloom Chaser" Event

Morin Hts.—The "Gloom Chaser" held by the Alouette Ski Club at the Commons Clubroom, Morin Heights, last Saturday night proved something more than a novelty. There was a large attendance, in the neighborhood of 230 members and guests of the club.

The orchestra did justice to their enviable reputation, and Eddie Alexander, their leader, who came direct from the radio broadcasting studio and who had organized a substitute orchestra to officiate in his absence at an important Montreal dance, was heartily received. He in turn enjoyed the evening so much that he was seen with members of the executive making plans to return for an "encore" in the near future.

The hall, where ample table and sitting accommodation was provided about the spacious dance floor, was tastefully decorated with autumn foliage. Whole trees had been cut down in their most colorful dress and carried into the hall to contribute to the delightful effect, which drew congratulatory remarks from the attendance.

There were two door prizes, both of which were donated by local members; a live duck presented by Paul Baumel and a pair of ski-poles by Ronnie Boyd were drawn for and provided a handsome dividend to the winners.

Bingo and a wheel of fortune amused those who did not care to dance. The hot dog department provided the gathering with necessary food and as the hours sped, was appreciated by many.

The executive desire to thank their many supporters for aid in the sale of tickets, poster circulation, supply of trees, decoration of the hall, refreshments and the work of directing the proceedings the night of the dance. Such gratifying results surely augur well for a successful year.

Election Campaign Launched In Argenteuil County

Through meetings held in every section of this county, public appeal is being voiced by Notary J. F. Lavigne (Union Nationale), and Geo.-E. Dansereau, M.P.P. (Liberal) the two candidates selected at their respective party gatherings in Lachute last Saturday.

Both candidates are popular young men of the county, and they are making best use of the brief campaign in advancing their arguments to win favor at the polls.

Timely Topic at Opening Meeting of Hundred Club

Renewing their activities for the 1939-40 season, members of Lachute Hundred Club met last evening for their regular dinner in Desjardins Hotel. Introduced by Centurian Geo. Calder, the guest speaker, the Rev. E. Orsborne, gave a very interesting address on the subject "Dare we hope for a world without war?" Recognizing we are facing a sociological problem, the speaker drew a graphic picture of the different nations with their massed populations and varied standards of living. He pointed to the underhand, perhaps underestimated, influence of munitions magnates, and the financial power they wield upon the destiny of nations. Against this, he measured the strength of agencies diligently at work for peace—from the schools, churches and community groups, to the great world organizations whose objective is international accord. Mr. Orsborne's conclusion was that we might still dare to hope—working, praying and campaigning in a personal role, for peace among men.

With Centurion L. W. Armstrong, president, occupying the chair, the meeting made initial plans for the club's activities and there was optimism for a season of worth-while achievement.

"War Cry" - Instrument of Politics - Has More Real And Ominous Aspect for the Quebec Canadian

Does Germany Want Quebec ?

Letter in Montreal Gazette

Sir,—I wonder if your readers might be interested in the following views expressed to me by a German citizen some little time ago. I chanced to meet this man in a restaurant and, quite informally, we got into conversation. He was perfectly frank in telling me that he was a firm supporter of the Nazi regime and was in constant communication with the leaders of the movement in the fatherland. During our conversation he made a statement that did not then seem of importance, but since the Munich affair and the commencement of present hostilities it seems to have been a clear indication of the aims of present-day Germany. I asked him if he ever anticipated a day when Germany would regain her African colonies. He told me that he quite foresaw a time when she would be able to demand them if she wished, but it was unlikely that she would make such a demand, as there were other places more to her liking.

Pressed for an explanation, he said that should Germany ever succeed in forcing Britain and France to make concessions she would forget her former African territory and, instead, demand a part of Canada. This portion, he explained, would be the eastern section of the Dominion. Eastern Canada, he continued, has all that Germany has not. Germany needs gold, heavy minerals and shipping ports on this side of the world. The Province of Quebec can supply the minerals and the gold and the Maritimes can supply the ports. The shipping facilities of the St. Lawrence River are also a tempting bait well worth the gamble of a major war. With such resources Germany could well dominate the world. When I asked if the western provinces of Canada would not be more useful on account of the opportunity they might offer for wholesale emigration, he explained that the Nazis had no reason for desiring that part of the country. They could obtain adequate grain supplies from Russia and the Ukraine and would not wish to open up a new frontier on the Pacific coast. Eastern Canada, and especially Quebec, would be the first thing demanded from a defeated Britain.

He then told me that he considered that the people of this part of the country were foolish in thinking that the United States could protect them if Germany was in a position to dictate terms to Britain and France. He pointed out that a victorious Germany would have the support of both Russia and Italy as well as being able to enforce a neutral attitude on the part of smaller nations. Should she succeed in eliminating the power of France and Britain, the Allied fleets, if not in German hands, would be banished from the sea. In this position and aided by her own allies, Germany could withstand any action on the part of the United States. In fact, under the circumstances it would be suicidal for the United States, fighting alone, to interfere. Granted the strong position which victory in Europe would give, it is likely that Germany would be able to make terms with Japan and to induce her to draw Canadian defence forces to the Pacific coast; her reward, of course, being a strip of territory in that region. This action would provide a threat to the United States and render her unlikely to throw her forces into any conflict with the new German masters of Quebec and eastern Canada.

If this is a true picture of German aims, and I have no reason to doubt that it is, it would appear that we in this part of the world stand to suffer more than anyone should the present war terminate in favor of the enemy. Occupation by German troops would mean the immediate imposition of German law, the German language, and conscription of men and resources for the benefit of Germany. There would be neither personal nor religious liberty and the policy of the Nazis would be put into force at once.

The position of the people of this province in particular can well be imagined . . . . Under the circumstances we can come to but one conclusion—Germany must be defeated in Europe. If she is not, Britain will be unable to refuse any demand she might make and this part of Canada would become German property. That is not a pleasant outlook. It is foolish to say that "Britain could not give Canada away." Britain would be unable to prevent Germany taking the part of Canada that she desires—and the United States would be powerless to help. For our own protection it is absolutely necessary for every able-bodied man in this part of the Dominion to take up arms and demand the right to protect our province and its neighboring provinces against the Nazi threat. If we have any love for the Province of Quebec, for its liberties and all that it means to us, we must force the government to allow us to go overseas in our thousands and kill this threat forever. We must choose between fighting and defeating the German overseas or serving him in Canada

Planes Cannot Catch Fire

With the R.A.F.'s New "Crash Switch"

A new device for aircraft, designed to prevent or put out fire in any emergency either during flight or on the ground, has been adopted by the Air Ministry and is being fitted as standard to R.A.F. aircraft.

Switches cause automatic inundation of the engine compartment with methyl-bromide—the most effective anti-fire chemical known—if the aircraft crashes, or turns on its back while landing, or if fire breaks out while the machine is in the air.

The inventor is a retired British Naval Officer, Capt. H. M. Salmond, C.I.E., R.I.M., a cousin of Air Marshall Sir John Salmond, who worked on the problem of automatically preventing fire after a near relative had been in a car crash.

Before accepting the idea, the Air Ministry required that the extinguishers should be worked automatically in less than ten seconds after the minimum rate of loss of velocity which would cause crash conditions and serious damage to the machine.

Tests carried out at Royal Aircraft establishments showed that the requirements were met, and the Air Ministry began to fit the equipment experimentally to R.A.F. machines. It will be a standard part of all R.A.F. aircraft in future.

ENDLESS GAME

A man mortgaged his home to buy an automobile. Then he went around and tried to mortgage the car to get money to build a garage.

"How are you going to buy gas?" curiously inquired the man of whom the loan was asked.

"Well," replied the other slowly, "if I own a house, a car, and a garage, I should think any dealer would be willing to trust me for gas."

Many Ways of Protecting Homes from Fire

BUILDING MATERIAL DEALER DESCRIBES TRENDS

Four ways to protect a home against fire — which if universally followed would save Canada thousands of lives and millions of dollars each year — are outlined by W. M. Cottingham, of the Cottingham Supply Company, Johns-Manville distributors, in connection with the observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 8-14.

"The necessity of using good, fire-safe construction when building, and periodic checking to eliminate hazards thereafter, is obvious when one reviews the huge fire damage in this country," Mr. Cottingham said. "This damage constitutes one of the most tragic wastes of property in the nation, amounting as it does in a typical year to a loss of over $1,000,000 each day."

Mr. Cottingham's suggestions for eliminating fire hazards in new construction are :

1. The outside surface of the house, both roof and walls, ought to be as fire-resistant as possible. Exposure to heat and flame of nearby fires is the greatest known cause of fire in Canada, accounting for losses of more than $26,000,000 annually.

2. Mansonry chimneys must be carefully bu.lt and lined with continuous flue tile. A space of at least two inches should be provided between the masonry and wood framing.

3. Properly firestopped walls and partitions prevent fires from running quickly through flue-like hollow wall and floor spaces. Insulating the home with rock wool prevents the spread of fires, but also provides year round comfort with savings on fuel costs.

4. All electric wiring should be done by licensed mechanics, with electrical equipment bearing the seal of approval of the Underwriters' Laboratory.

Householders should inspect their homes periodically for potential fire hazards. Most dangerous hazard of all is waste and rubbish stored in cellars and attics; others include storage of ashes in inflammable receptacles; carelessness with matches, cigarettes and cleaning fluids; defective chimneys and heating apparatus, and storage of paint-stained or oil-soaked rags or mops in closets or other unsafe places.

Throughout Fire Prevention Week distributors of fireproof building materials will be active in co-operating with present and prospective home owners in suggesting methods of reducing the hazard of residential fires.

Making History in Argenteuil

50 Years Ago

Friday, Oct. 10, 1887

In this age of improvement, progress and change, our village sidewalks remain "in statu quo"—wretched.

The fife and drum band keep up their semi-weekly practice, and occasionally parade our streets at the close—making night hideous or melodious according to the taste of the sleepers.

In all the papers that we take up, we find full accounts of local fairs and general exhibits, all of which are said to be the very best ever exhibited in this country. This certainly looks like prosperity, and we are led to the conclusion that the country is not so inetrievably "ruined" as our Grit friends have made such a howl about.

Mr. Fish has completed the repair and improvements to the fish-rack at his mill dam. We should say it possesses all the conveniences necessary for ascent of "the finny tribes," and should satisfy the most fastidious fish, or the most critical Inspector, In fact, fishes that would not climb this ladder don't deserve to have one.

Bush fires are reported by railway men to be raging in different parts of Quebec, east and west of Montreal. This accounts for the heavy smoke enveloping us for the past few days.

The many friends of Lieut.-Col. Barr will be sorry to learn of his death, which occurred on Wednesday last in Montreal. Deceased gentleman, born at Covey Hill, Que., some 70 years ago, was an old soldier, having fought in the Fenian Raid. A loving wife and four daughters, Mrs. J. McFaul and Mrs. Robt. Hamilton of Lachute, Mrs. Massey and Miss Barr of Montreal, are left to mourn his loss.

Recently received news from London states that the ice-breaking ferry steamer built by the Armstrong Whitworth Co., to the order of the Canadian Government, to operate between Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, was launched at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and was christened "Prince Edward Island" by Mrs. G. H. Perley, wife of acting Canadian High Commissioner. The Hon. G. Perley and Earl Grey were present.

The following amounts have been received for the patriotic fund : O.B. Lafleur & Sons $85, employees $15, A. McFaul & Bros, $20, employees $42.60

Mr. Wm. McKimmie enjoyed a pleasant trip to Montreal on his motorcycle last week-end.

CONJECTURES ON THE WAR

On the probabilities of the conflict in Europe, it is mere folly to venture an opinion. Even observers to whom the strategies of the last great war are still vivid, find this new warfare strangely revolutionized.

The virtually impregnable Maginot and Seigfreid Lines have turned battlefield engagements into a tournament of military machines. Hand to hand military encounters, bayonet charges with their mass toll of life, may be as obsolete today as the epic of the Life Brigade. Military technicians may know the ropes, but the layman is completely in the dark. Even the news despatches on this war tell him next to nothing. Infantry fighting, such as these meagre reports have described, suggest gangster methods on the modern program, with light, automatic firearms and machine guns . . . . "This war will be won as much in the tool shops and the manufacturing plants . . . " says the Toronto Financial Post in an editorial entitled A Technicians' War. The snipers still play havoc with their long-range rifles, but on the field and in the trenches even the rifle may be outdated.

In the air, those dirigible ships which scored high in long distance raids of the last war, have been replaced by fast bombing planes. And whether these will wage destruction on the civilian cities of England, France and Germany, is not an imminent certainty at this stage. England and France, we are assured, are well prepared for this form of belligerence, and for poison gas attacks; but it is equally certain they will not take the initiative by bombing German cities.

Some observers believe victory will depend on the endurance of resources — that it is a battle of ships against ships. blocking the avenues of supply. — Which sounds reasonable; it is in this direction that naval strength must count most effectively, for in the destruction of life and property, in the conveyance of massed troops and seizure of territory, ships can achieve comparatively little. The days of invasion by sea, such as the Roman and Norman conquests and the attempt of the Spanish Armada on Britain are past and outdated. Air and naval craft have the potentiality to strike terror by bombardment and instil fear in a victimized people, but the vital spots of a nation are too well guarded and concealed today, to permit of their wholesale destruction.

Still others say it is a war of intrigue and propaganda, a battle of wits in which the vanquished will fall by treachery and revolt from within. In this kind of strategy the arch-enemy of Britain and France is a past master.

The two great European wars bear similarity in one factor, namely, the aptitude of that non-commital "Wait and See," which became a British by-word in 1914-18. The prophets, taking refuge in this slogan, may still look wise yet know nothing.

FREEDOM OF THE MOVIES

Starting from nothing only 30 years ago or so, the motion picture industry has become not only one of the largest and most prosperous business enterprises in the world, but one which touches directly the lives and the interests of more people than any other.

The U.S. Government has brought suit under the anti-monopoly laws against the major film companies and their managements, to break up practices in the industry which are said to prevent local exhibitors and their audiences from showing and seeing the pictures they want.

It is not a function of Government to pass on matters of art and personal tastes, but it seems proper that Government should do what it can to prevent any combination of private interests from imposing restrictions upon what pictures the people are permitted to see.

"A BLISTERING EDITORIAL"

Printers find out about people. One of them, Albert Murray, has views on the Caspar Milquetoast characteristics of some citizens which were aired recently in "Shining Lines." He pictures a red-faced man entering a newspaper office in a hurry. "Conditions in this city," shouts he, "are a scandal. Your paper ought to expose this man. I will give you all the facts. You ought to come out with a blistering editorial against him. It is your civic duty."

The editor hears him through, then speaks : "I tell you what we will do," he says calmly. "You write our paper a letter exposing the scandal and we will be glad to publish it over your signature."

A period of silence follows, during which the visitor cools down rapidly. He seems to shrink in size until he looks like a collapsed balloon. When he speaks again, it is in a different tone, lower and almost apologetic :

"Why," he says, somewhat flustered, "you cannot expect me to do that. It would get me into trouble. It would hurt me in my business."

After this speech the visitor begins to realize there is little more he can say. The editor watches him move toward the exit and smiles. "It was ever thus," he says, and goes to work.

YOUNGSTERS TAX-CONSCIOUS

A Toronto hostess did her good deed the other Saturday by entertaining at ice cream and cake two little girls from small but neat owner-occupied homes in the slums. On the way home they were driven past Casa Loma.

"Gee !" said one small lady, "the taxes on that place must be something awful !"

The incident is reported as indicating that the propaganda of the tax-conscious is beginning to have its effect on the young.

—The Printed Word

NEWS . . . . . censored

We are not getting much news, so far, from the war front in Europe. What comes through is mostly in the form of brief official statements. No reporters have been permitted to go to the front with the armies at war, and whatever they can pick up from behind the lines is carefully censored by the governments concerned before it can be cabled or sent by wireless.

There are several reasons for this lack of reliable news from the war front. Newspapers and press services have more and better reporters in Europe than they had when the last great war began. They are doing their best to get the news and send it back to their papers. But the fighting nations have learned a lesson from the last war, and so have the newspapers.

One of the lessons the nations have learned is that newspapermen are not so ready to take unconfirmed statements as truth. Another is that news about the movement of troops, once disclosed, becomes public property instantly. The radio picks it up from the newspapers and the enemy learns what the other side is doing.

ATROCITIES . . . . . beware

In the beginning of the last world war, in 1914, the newspapers were filled with stories about German atrocities in Belgium. Reports of Belgian babies with both hands cut off were told wherever people got together, and gradually were magnified into such absurd stories that sensible people stopped listening to them. These atrocity stories did much however, to inflame public opinion against the Germans.

I have never been able to find out whether such stories were inspired by the British and French propagandists, or were mere unconfirmed rumors picked up and cabled across the Atlantic by reporters a great deal less responsible than the ones now in the field of war.

In time of war it is a sound plan not to listen to or believe most of the rumors you hear. Wait until the reports are fully confirmed. I was "war editor" of one daily paper in the Spanish-American war, managing editor of another in the World War, and had the handling of war news in the Japanese-Russian and Boer wars. My hardest task was to try to separate mere rumors from the facts. That is the newspapers' hardest job today.

RADIO . . . . . danger

The big broadcasting companies are learning, and so are their listeners, that they cannot cover the war with microphones. In the first place, they can't send reporters with radio equipment out with the armies. The military people have a monopoly on radio facilities on the field. At best, the only news radio can possibly send from the scene of action is scrappy bulletins, which mean nothing until they are assembled and edited.

So far, radio reporters in this war have been dependent on the newspaper reporters for most of their news. The best service they have rendered has been to broadcast comments and interpretations of war news by competent journalists who know how to judge the truth and importance of daily developments.

The greatest danger the people face in this crisis is the danger of having their minds tainted and their judgment warped by propaganda or wholly false statements and conclusions based on false premises, but put forth as wholly true. Heard over the air in the tones of the expert arouser of emotions, such propaganda can make the unthinking believe almost anything, for the moment.

THEOLOGICAL, NOT MEDICAL

"Well, Bill," asked a neighbor, "I hear the boss has had a fever. How's his temperature today?"

The hired man scratched his head and decided not to commit himself.

" 'Taint for me to say," he finally replied. "He died last night."

Why Canadian Airmen Excel

In the war upon which we have just entered, it appears that our principal contribution to the cause will be the supplying of fighting planes and airmen Canadians excel in the air. In the last war, even before the formation of the Canadian air force, over half the cadets in the Royal Air Force were Canadians. Many theories have been advanced as to the reason why boys from this country stand out above all others in aerial warfare. One famous Canadian ace explained it as due to the fact that nearly all Canadian youngsters learn marksmanship at a tender age, potting at rabbits, birds, and squirrels with twenty-two calibre rifles, and also learn the essentials of aerial manoeuvre playing hockey. The intuition developed in carrying a puck in the fastest game in the world is much the same as the intuition necessary to outguess an opponent in the air.

Asbestos production in Canada during the first six months of 1939 totalled 144,207 tons compared with 132,171 tons in the corresponding period of 1938.

Only Rumors !

During the past two weeks we have heard some of the most wierd and wonderful tales of spy activities and the like that we ever hope to hear. Naturally, in our business such stories have to be investigated if they have any local connection whatsoever. So far they have been tales, the figments of fertile imaginations or the enlargement to the thousandth degree of a casual remark. It is a natural thing for such rumors to start in troubled times, and when once they are started it is impossible to keep them from spreading and growing in color. Perhaps it should be pointed out that ofttime such rumors may damage the reputation of an innocent man, and should be accepted with a grain of salt. Unless definite information can be secured it is unwise to repeat such stories, for libel and slander laws are just as effective during war times as during peaceful days. Some of the stories we have heard would make marvellous fiction—and, fortunately, that is just what they have proved to date.

Miss Tita Wales is spending the week in Montreal, visiting her sister, Miss Evelyn Wales.

Miss Evelyn Hugman is convalescing from an appendix operation and is spending two weeks at the home of Mrs. B. N. Wales.

Dr. and Mrs. Gruner accompanied their son and his family, and Dr. Mullally, of Montreal, paid a visit to friends here on Monday, Thanksgiving day.

Miss Beatrice Robertson with her mother, Mrs. William Robertson, attended the marriage of Mrs. Robertson's granddaughter, Beatrice Barclay, in Montreal last Saturday, Oct. 7th.

Dr. M. Abbott is at present in Boston.

Dr. D. Fraser and Mrs. Fraser, who have been occupying Mr. John Fair's house, returned to Montreal on Thursday.

Mr. Harry Barclay, his daughter, Mrs. C. I. Gobat and family, have returned to their home in Miami, Florida. "The Hill," Carillon, where they resided for the summer, is under the charge of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Murray—the former an expert on lumber.

Another expert recently arrived here, is Mr. J. H. Bell, of Toronto, and Peterborough. Mr. Bell is in charge of operations at the mill.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Yale visited friends in Montreal from Thursday till Monday.

Roy DeWitt, who is attending West Hill High (Grade XI), was home from Wednesday until Monday evening last.

Dr. P. Belleau is moving into the house which Miss Hibbard recently vacated.

Sympathy is extended from this community to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Calder and son Billy, in the passing of Mr. Calder's mother.

Mrs. Mowatt's mother, Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, who has been a guest at the United Church manse during the summer, returned to Montreal last week.

Her home community rejoices in the appointment of Miss Bessie Rodger, Lachute Road, to the staff of Montreal West High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Mowatt and Mr. Boswell Mowatt, of Montreal, were week-end and Thanksgiving Day guests of their parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Mowatt.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Brownlee and little daughter, Sheila, were in Montreal over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. R. Montague was in Montreal for a few days.

A rummage sale, held on October 3rd, by the Women's Guild of the United Church, proved quite popular. Thanks are due to Mrs. B. N. Wales for the use of her bungalow, lighted and heated.

Mr. V. Lloyd Lilly visited relatives in Montreal over the Thanksgiving week-end.

Miss Elizabeth Wales, of Grand-Mère, Que., spent the week-end and Monday at her home.

Most of the summer residences were occupied for the week-end and Thanksgiving. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jeffrey had as their guest, Miss Watson, of Montreal. Mr. Alfred Howell had a family party at his home.

Mrs. H. McEwan attended the Teachers' Convention in Montreal last week.

Mrs. W. C. Stonard, Mrs. Wm. Lamb and Mrs. V. Willett were in Montreal on Friday.

Mrs. John Allan and Miss Libby Walsh motored to Ottawa on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jeffrey, of Montreal, were guests of Miss E. Hendry on Monday.

On the evening of October 3rd, the Aurora Borealis displayed a splendor excelling any recent display. It was vividly brilliant over the whole northern arc of a clear, moonlit sky, streaming from the zenith to the horizon. Especially noteworthy were the large areas of ruby color.

DALESVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Grant, of Valois, Que., visited the Misses Catton over Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris and daughter, of Troy N.Y., and several others also visited Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Catton.

The Dalesville roadmenders are again on their jobs. More necessary money has been secured. Many dangerous corners have already been removed and many more are soon to be done.

New Hired Hand: Well, boss, what time do I have to git to work mornings?

CAMBRIA-MILLE ISLES

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Watson, of Cushing, visited at Mr. Samuel Dawson's on Sunday; also Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rodgers, of Lachute, accompanied by Mrs. W. J. Rodgers and Mrs. George Tucker of Dixie, who spent the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Dawson. Mr. Dawson is still in poor health.

The Farmers' Club of St. Canut have purchased Mr. Forget's creamery, St. Jerome, and Mr. Duncan Dawson is transporting cream to St. Jerome from the Mille Isles farmers.

The Boy Scouts' Camp, Tamaracouta, was broken into and robbed recently. It is but a few years since effects were stolen from Dr. A. Willey's home, the thieves entering by a window during their absence of a few days; also this summer, when a truck-load of visitors parked in a field nearby, Dr. Willy's boathouse was broken into and several articles stolen. The times have changed, and locked doors no longer prevent thieving; yet we recall some years ago one might leave the doors open and go to church with no fear of intruders during one's absence.

To the English and French Speaking Electors of Argenteuil

I respectfully ask you to cast your ballot in my favor on October 25th next.

Our political opponents, in their scramble for votes, have again, as in the elections of 1916-1917-1921-1925-1926-1930-1935, pulled out of the closet their old War-and-Conscription bogey. However, the electors of Argenteuil are too intelligent to fall victims of these despicable tactics and have fully realized that this is a Provincial election with Provincial issues involved.

The B.N.A. Act (Art. 91) clearly stipulates that Militia, Military and Naval services, National Defence are strictly and exclusively under Federal jurisdiction, so that whatever may be the result of the next Provincial election, the prosecution of war will still rest with our Federal authorities.

But, since our opponents have made War-and-Conscription an issue in the present Provincial election, I wish to define my attitude on this point as follows :—

"THIS COUNTRY IS NOW AT WAR AND WE ARE ALL BRITISH SUB-"JECTS. AS ONE WHO SERVED OVERSEAS IN THE LAST WAR, I STAND FOR "VOLUNTARY CO-OPERATION WITH GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE, ACCORDING "TO OUR MEANS AND RESOURCES.

"IF IN THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY AT QUEBEC, THE QUESTION OF "CO-OPERATION EVER COMES, I WILL VOTE FOR CO-OPERATION. I AM PRE-"PARED TO RESIGN AND ABANDON MY PARTY AND MY LEADER IF A BILL IS "BROUGHT BY THEM AGAINST CO-OPERATION. CANADA SHALL REMAIN WITH-"IN THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH OF FREE NATIONS.

"I BELIEVE IN COMPLETE HARMONY BETWEEN OUR TWO GREAT "RACES. THERE IS NO ROOM FOR RACIAL STRIFE IN QUEBEC, AND I AM "STRONGLY AGAINST SEPARATISM AND ULTRA-NATIONALISM".

My stand having thus been made abundantly clear, let us revert to strictly Provincial issues and judge the Duplessis administration on its record of accomplishments in Argenteuil.

It is not exaggerated to say that Argenteuil has received more from the Duplessis Administration than it has from any other Government since Confederation, and all classes and creeds have had fair and equitable treatment.

Highways and streets have been economically paved, all secondary roads have been improved, municipal roads have been widened and gravelled, tourist by-roads have been opened to the various lakes, bridges have been built.

The present Administration has concerned itself with the immediate welfare of the farmer and the numerous farm loans extended speak eloquently for the record achieved in this regard. Many a good, loyal Argenteuil farmer would not be on his farm today, if the Provincial Farm Loan bill had not been passed.

In the domain of education, grants have been substantially increased, whilst our old men and women, our blind people, our needy mothers and their children have been provided for.

Liberals and Conservatives have been treated alike, and no man has been refused or made to suffer because of his political color.

Do you prefer to see this fair, generous treatment to all the Argenteuil electors continued, or do you want to return to the old Taschereau-Godbout-Bouchard-Vautrin-David regime and submit yourselves to the "Old Gang" when unless one was a Taschereau enthusiast and bowed to the will of the party organizers, he could neither secure work nor help?

The present Provincial Administration will surely be re-elected. Argenteuil can show its appreciation of the generous treatment and favors received by VOTING FOR and ELECTING

Yours very truly,

J. F. LAVIGNE, N. P.

Aux Electeurs d'Argenteuil

Nos adversaires, tentant d'escamoter des votes, ont recours aux mêmes tactiques qu'aux élections de 1916-1917-1921-1925-1926-1930-1935, et sortent encore du cabinet l'épouvantail de la guerre et de la conscription. Les électeurs d'Argenteuil sont trop intelligents pour ne pas comprendre ce misérable jeu et réaliser que l'élection actuelle est une élection provinciale, sur des questions et des problèmes provinciaux.

L'Acte de l'Amérique du Nord, (Art. 91) établit clairement que tout ce qui a trait à la Milice, à la Défense Nationale, dépendent exclusivement du Parlement Fédéral, et quelque soit le résultat de l'élection Provinciale qui s'en vient, la conduite de la guerre dépendra des autorités Fédérales. Toutefois, puisque nos adversaires n'ont rien autre chose à offrir que la guerre et la conscription, je désire définir mon attitude sur ces questions ainsi qu'il suit :—

"LE CANADA EST MAINTENANT EN GUERRE, NOUS SOMMES TOUS "SUJETS BRITANNIQUES. J'AI FAIT DU SERVICE OUTREMER DURANT LA DER-"NIERE GUERRE ET JE SUIS EN FAVEUR D'UNE COOPERATION LIBRE AVEC "LA GRAND BRETAGNE ET LA FRANCE, SELON NOS RESSOURCES ET NOS "MOYENS.

"SI A L'ASSEMBLEE LEGISLATIVE DE QUEBEC, LA QUESTION D'UNE "COOPERATION LIBRE VENAIT, JE VOTERAIS POUR UNE COOPERATION LIBRE. "JE SERAIS PRET A RESIGNER ET ABANDONNER MON PARTI ET MES CHEFS "S'ILS PRESENTAIENT UNE MESURE CONTRE LA COOPERATION LIBRE, ET JE "CROIS QUE LE CANADA DOIT DEMEURER DANS LE COMMONWEALTH "BRITANNIQUE DES NATIONS LIBRES.

"L'HARMONIE ENTRE LES DEUX RACES DOIT REGNER, ET IL NE "DEVRAIT PAS Y AVOIR DE QUERELLE DE RACE DANS QUEBEC. JE SUIS "CONTRE LE SEPARATISME ET CONTRE L'ULTRA-NATIONALISME."

Il n'est pas exagéré de dire que le comté d'Argenteuil a obtenu plus de l'Administration Duplessis qu'il n'a obtenu de tous les autres Gouvernements depuis la Confédération, et toutes les classes et croyances ont reçu un traitement juste et équitable.

Tous peuvent constater que des grandes routes et des rues ont été pavées, que tous les chemins secondaires ont été améliorés et les routes municipales ont été élargies et gravellées et que des routes de touristes, conduisant à divers lacs, ont été ouvertes. Des ponts ont été bâtis un peu partout. L'Administration Provinciale actuelle s'est également souciée du bien être du cultivateur, et les prêts aux cultivateurs dans ce comté en témoignent éloquemment. Il y a plus d'un brave cultivateur du comté d'Argenteuil qui ne serait pas sur sa terre aujourd'hui, si le prêt provincial aux cultivateurs n'avait pas été institué.

Dans le domaine de l'instruction, les octrois ont été sensiblement augmentés, tandis que nos vieux et nos vieilles, nos aveugles, nos mères nécessiteuses et leurs enfants ont reçu un traitement de faveur.

Libéraux et Conservateurs ont été traités sur un pied d'égalité et personne n'a eu à souffrir à cause de sa couleur politique, dans le comté d'Argenteuil.

Voulez vous que cette façon généreuse de traiter tout le monde soit continuée, ou préférez vous retourner au régime Taschereau-Godbout-Bouchard-Vautrin-David, ainsi qu'à la "Vieille Gang" alors que si quelqu'un n'était pas un enthousiaste partisan de monsieur Taschereau, et s'il ne se pliait aux quatre volontés des organisateurs rouges, il ne pouvait obtenir d'ouvrage?

Le Gouvernement Duplessis sera sûrement ré-élu. Je crois que le comté pourrait témoigner de sa reconnaissance, pour les faveurs et les traitements généreux reçus, en votant pour moi et en m'élisant comme leur député à Québec.

Votre tout dévoué,

J. F. LAVIGNE, N. P.

Late Grenville Resident Laid to Rest

Grenville—The funeral of the late Mrs. Alex Goudie took place Wednesday afternoon, Oct 4th, from her residence to the Presbyterian Church, of which she had been an active member for many years. Rev. Mr. Back, of Hawkesbury, conducted the service. She was laid to rest in the cemetery at Chute-à-Blondeau, beside her late husdand. The funeral was largely attended.

Mrs. Goudie passed away quietly in her sleep on Saturday morning, Sept. 30th. She leaves many relatives to mourn, among whom are her daughter (Eleanor) Mrs. Place, of Ottawa; Alex, in Bermuda; Fred in New Brunswick; Willie Goudie and Lorne Goudie, of Ottawa, Stewart Goudie, of Montreal; (Alda) Mrs. J. MacKay, of Ottawa.

Funeral Rites of Former Carillon Citizen

Cushing W. –At an early hour Wednesday morning, Oct. 4th, the death occurred in the Montreal General Hospital of Theodore Bryerton, a former well-known resident of Carillon and vicinity. Though he had been ill for some weeks the news of his death came as a surprise to his many friends.

The remains were conveyed to the home of his sister, Mrs. W. H. Villeneuve, at Carillon, where the funeral took place on Thursday morning.

The deceased, who was in his 62nd year, was one of seven sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bryerton, Carillon. Being of a genial and kindly disposition he was very popular, and the funeral was attended by a large number of his old friends.

He leaves one son, Mr. Kenneth Bryerton of Montreal. His wife, formerly Miss Mary Farrell of Centreville, passed away some years ago.

Those who attended the funeral from a distance were his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole, of Montreal; the Misses Myrtle and Violet and Mr. Arthur Bryerton, and Mr. P. L. Conroy, also Miss Lillian Barron of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Chaufty and daughter and Mr. Robert Bryerton, of Carthage, N.Y.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Father Beaulieu, of Carillon, and the remains were laid to rest in the family lot at St. Andrews Cemetery.

Among the Churches

Sectional W.M.S. Rally At St. Andrews

St. Andrews East—A sectional rally under auspices of the Montreal Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews East, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. R. Bradley gave the address of welcome. Mrs. Charles Johnson, president of the Montreal Presbyterial, brought the message from that group, after which a most interesting account was given by Miss Whatling of her work in India.

Tea was served in the church hall at the conclusion of the meeting. A large representation from Lachute and Montreal attended the meeting.

Brownsburg United Ch.

Brownsburg — Next Sunday will mark the twenty-first anniversary of the present United Church building and the ninety-seventh anniversary of the congregation. Rev. T. C. Cassidy is to be the special preacher on this occasion. Mr. Cassidy, residing in Lachute, served Brownsburg before the consummation of Union in 1925, and on the setting apart of the present congregation in 1928 continued to serve while residing in Brownsburg, when the present manse was purchased. Many old friends will be glad to see Mr. Cassidy again, as he will, equally, be pleased to preach to his former congregation.

Annual Meeting of Bible Society

The Lachute branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society will hold its annual meeting on Sunday evening, Oct. 15th, at 7 o'clock in the United Church hall.

Rev. James Adams, B.A., of Montreal, will give a lecture on "British Kings and the Bible," illustrated by a set of very fine slides.

Several of the churches have agreed to give up their evening service so that their people may attend this meeting. Everybody welcome.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

A meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was held last evening with about 20 members present. Following the opening devotional, a short business session consisting mainly of discussion on the annual banquet was held. This was followed by a reading from Reader's Digest, by the president, Miss Jean Black.

An executive meeting is to be held in the near future with the object of planning a series of programs for the entire season, to be of interest to the Society at large and the individual members. Rumor reports that a party, presumably Hallowe'en, is to be held toward the end of the month, and although not yet official, all members should make efforts to attend the next one or two meetings, as all details may be released there. Next week's topic will be the World's Fair, described by a couple of members who were fortunate enough to have been there recently.

LEGION SMOKER

The Lachute Legion smoker and installation of officers is being held this evening in Victoria Hall, instead of in McArthur's Hall as previously announced.

IN MEMORIAM

LANGILLE—in loving memory of our dear son and brother, Melvin, who passed away October 12, 1934. —Ever remembered by Mother, Father, Sisters and Brothers.

May heavenly winds blow softly,
O'er that sweet and hallowed spot,
Where one we loved lies sleeping,
Who will never be forgot.

MURRAY—In loving memory of Clarence Murray, who passed away Oct. 14th, 1935.—Ever remembered by the Family.

Time speeds on, four years have passed
Since death its gloom, its shadow, cast
Within our home where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will;
His vacant place there's none can fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we'll meet again.

BROWNSBURG

wered to by a labour saving hint. Mrs. John Seary, convenor of Home Economics, read an interesting paper on "Fish in the Diet." The meeting closed with the national anthem.

The W. A. of St. George's Anglican Church held their October meeting on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Peter McQuaig, with Mrs. W. C. LeCras, president, in the chair. A missionary bale was prepared to be shipped to Moose Factory.

Entertained for Brides-Elect

Miss Cecilia Martin was presented with a tea wagon, at the home of Mrs. M. Carruthers, and was entertained at a china shower at the home of Mrs. Jos. Suthern.

Miss Eva Hazel was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Wyman Hazel. Miss Hazel and Mr. Harold Smith also received the presentation of an overthrow and a sum of money, from the Choir and the Men's League of the United Church.

STAMP COLLECTORS' SERIES

The Caymans -- Exporters Of Turtles and Ponies

Bidding farewell to the new world which he had discovered for civilization, Columbus hoisted his sails and turned toward Spain in June 1503. About 180 miles northwest of Jamaica he sighted a group of islands which he called Las Tortugas. So was recorded for geography the land known chiefly today for its export of green turtles and ponies.

Las Tortugas are now the Cayman Islands, a dependency of Jamaica. Situated in the Caribbean sea, the group consists of Grand Cayman, Little Cayman and Cayman Brac, embracing an area of 104 square miles. The population is approximately 6,000. Grand Cayman is 17 miles long, and four to seven miles wide. Georgetown is the capital.

Here through the long lazy days of the Caribbean the small population devotes itself largely to turtle fishing, rope making, and shipbuilding. Rope, turtles and ponies are the chief exports. Ships flying flags from every section of the world drop anchor in Cayman's ports for these products.

The government of this British dependency is administered by a commissioner. The governor of Jamaica appoints 25 justices of the peace. There are 13 government primary schools with approximately 1000 registration and six small private schools. The islands have their own postage stamps, issued in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the reign of the late King George V.

Hints for Homebodies

By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

'THIS NETTLE DANGER'

'This Nettle Danger' is the title of Phillip Gibb's latest book. It is taken from the speech of Hotspur from Henry IV, quoted by Sir Neville Chamberlain on his way to Munich. 'Out of this nettle danger, we pluck the flower, safely.' As a work of fiction, this book is not so important but it gives an understanding of the people and the events which have led up to the present situation. The story is about an American reporter, who is sent to England and other European countries as a foreign correspondent. His English friends are married to people of other nationalities and he comes into intimate contact with the home life in several countries. Gibb leaves us with a better understanding and a liking for people of other nationalities. It is instructive reading at the present time.

A NEW HORROR OF WAR

The radio has become one of the horrors of war. It is not as bad as it was at first, as the C.B.C. has wisely controlled it, and the American networks are curtailing their broadcasts. There are some, of course, who want it, but it seems to me we are all too anxious and worried, to be harried unnecessarily. Two of my friends, both intelligent women, gave contrasting opinions on the same day. One said, she hardly went out of the house as she sat glued to the radio. The other said, she kept her radio turned off all day, as she could not stand the frequent news broadcasts. The newspapers seem more valuable than ever as they give us authentic news in detail, and we can take it, if and when, we want it. There was a great diversity of opinion over the wisdom of broadcasting Hitler's Danzig speech. Some people were not very much worked up over it and felt it was almost criminal to allow his propaganda to be heard. I felt when he was speaking we might as well hear it and know what he was saying. The trouble is there are people with so little intelligence they believe all they hear.

'INSIDE ASIA'

History, which should be a most fascinating subject, is too frequently poorly taught. History evolves around people, so why not teach it through biography. That is one of the reasons for the popularity of John Gunther's books, 'Inside Europe' and his more recent 'Inside Asia.' He writes his history around people—and people are our greatest interest. I found 'Inside Asia' interesting but not as completely fascinating as 'Inside Europe.' Probably, the difficulty of the unfamiliar names has something to do with this. It is a good book to dip into, as one can pick out the parts in which one is most interested. Apparently, others have thought this as the copy I read came from a lending library and I found a good many pages uncut in different parts of the book. The record showed the book had been out about a half-dozen times. One person kept it so long he might as well have bought the book. Or more probably it was a she, as women seem to patronize lending libraries more than men. John Gunther gives the impression that he knows what he is writing about and gives confidence in what he says. His broadcasts were restrained and interesting.

PLENTY OF HONEST FLATTERY

A friend has an up-standing, well-behaved, mannerly, family of almost grown-up children. Just about as nice a family as could be found any place. I asked her how she managed to bring them up so well. Her answer was, 'by using plenty of honest flattery, there is always something worthy of praise and it makes them want to live up to your high opinion of them.' She does not give them only praises, because I have heard her quietly straighten them out and give them orders, which had to be obeyed. Parents in their desire for perfection in their children too often tell them only about their faults. Consequently they feel everything they do is wrong and are frustrated. On the other hand, there is the foolish parent who thinks everything their children do is right. Plenty of honest flattery is a good rule for both parents and teachers—but it must be honest.

HOUSE CLEANING HINTS

To wash rugs, use a very thick suds of mild soap-flakes. Wring out the cloth and rub a small section of the rug. Rub immediately with a dry cloth. The back of the rug must never get wet. . . . .Wax the window-sills and you will find them easier to keep clean. . . . . To remove spots from your tables, put some spirits of camphor on a piece of cheese-cloth, let it stand until the cloth is slightly damp, then rub the spots.

FRUIT SALAD

Take a few bottles of your peaches and pears and add pineapple and cherries to make a bottled fruit salad. Use canned pineapple, which is canned in chunks, or cut wedges from the sliced pineapple. Use marachino cherries to the extent that your taste or purse allows, or failing this, your canned cherries may be used. Mix the fruits together, bring to the boil and bottle in sterilized jars This mixture of fruits makes a welcome change in the usual assortment on your cellar shelves.

NUTMEG SAUCE

1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, a dash of salt, 2 cups boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter,1 teaspoon nutmeg.

Mix the sugar, flour and salt, add the boiling water and stir. Add the butter and boil for five minutes, and stir while boiling. Add the nutmeg. Serve with Cottage or steamed pudding.

A Winter Shortcake

—By Frances Lee Barton

Even though fresh fruits and berries have taken their leave, don't banish that delectable dessert, shortcake, from your table. For there are winter shortcakes as well as summer shortcakes. And among the prizes in the winter shortcake group is —

Apricot Coconut Shortcake

2 cups sifted cake flour; 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; ¼ teaspoon salt; 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening; 1 cup sugar; 1 egg, unbeaten; ¾ cup milk; 1 teaspoon vanilla; ¾ cup cream, whipped; 2 cups drained apricots, cut in quarters; 1 can moist, sweetened coconut.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together well. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in a greased pan 8x8x2-inches in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 minutes. Split warm cake in half. Spread whipped cream over cut surface of one-half of cake; arrange 1 cup apricots on cream and sprinkle with ½ can coconut. Adjust second layer, cut side down and repeat garnish. Cut in squares and serve at once. Serves 9 to 12.

Canned peaches or pineapple, oranges, bananas, or other fruits may be substituted for apricots in this recipe.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

MODERN WOMEN

By Dr. M. L. Maffett

It seems odd that the young woman who is national president of the American Women's Society of Certified Public Accountants should not live on a budget, but I dare say she gets on well without it. However, Miss Gertrude Priester, the young woman in question, says she wishes she could live on one.

She stepped into the presidency of the women accountants' association from the treasurership of the society, and serves also as assistant treasurer of the Authors' League of America, so there is little about budgets that she doesn't know. There is hardly any discrimination against women in the field of certain accountancy, she says, and salaries of men and women are about equal.

Some women are particularly proficient in managing hotels, and one such is Miss Britt Arpi, of Rattvik, Sweden, who actually had a hotel thrust upon her and has operated it successfully for some time. Miss Arpi has been in the United States looking over some of the large eastern hotels to see if she could get new ideas for her own.

Her hotel is in Siljansborg, which is in the heart of Sweden. It is visited by many Americans, who, she has discovered, are glad when they arrive at her hotel to dispense with the national dish, smorgasbord, because by the time they reach Siljansborg they have had a good deal of the traditional hors d'oeuvre. But she does serve a great many other local dishes which Americans like.

Miss Mary White, noted white rat dietician of Columbia University, has for some time conducted special studies in clinical work and vitamin therapy. She is research assistant in the department of physiological chemistry.

Alice-Marie Forte, of Newark, N.J., who is six years old, is the youngest member of the National Doll and Toy Collectors Club, and owns one hundred and fifty dolls, among which are 40 tiny Victorian figures under a glass bell.

Mrs. Eliza B. K. Dooley, artist and social worker, is Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization in the Port of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

SMOKING

"The man who smokes thinks like a sage and acts like a Samaritan, while he who does not smoke has never known great griefs or refuses himself the softest consolation," said one philosopher.

Burton in his Anatomy of Melancholy called toacco "divine, rare, super-excellent, far above potable gold and the philosopher's stone, and a sovereign remedy for all diseases."

Some authorities claim that tobacco was cultivated in Asia before Christ, and was smoked and chewed by the masses, coming ultimately to North America with the Indians, via those islands which resemble stepping stones and which reach from Siberia to Alaska.

Walter Raleigh acquired the habit of smoking, learning it from the American Indians, who cultivated the weed, and then introduced it to Europe.

I presume the question asked most of physicians by their patients is: "Doctor, does smoking or using tobacco harm me?"

Although I have never used Lady Nicotine in any form, my answer is "In moderation tobacco will not hurt you, but used excessively, like anything else, may lead to many grave results, especially affecting the heart."

The great trouble with those who smoke, and this applies to those who drink and who are heavy eaters, is that it is so easy to exceed the harmless minimum — and that is where the true danger lies.

In this connection let me say that it is a fact that the increasing death toll from cardiac diseases is closely parallel with the increasing use of tobacco throughout the country.

And what is more to the point, the various heart conditions have materially increased among women, since they began to smoke cigarettes.

I do not consider cigarettes any more apt to bring about a cardiac condition than I do the use of cigars, pipe smoking or taking snuff.

While the human body does rebel first at the use of tobacco, it readily adjusts itself thereto. And there can be no question but that some individuals are more susceptible to nicotine poisoning than others.

Used mildly and not to excess, tobacco is stimulating, just as is tea or coffee. Tobacco is more often indulged in, taken in larger doses, and affects more functions of the human machinery than any other stimulant of this type, and when used to excess undoubtedly does stamp an "injurious seal on the physique and morals of the smoker," says Dr. S. Seilkovitch, a cigarette smoker for over 50 years.

Excess smoking causes loss of appetite, indigestion, heartburn, dimness of vision, palpitation of the heart, nervousness, headache, cough, giddiness, and as a local irritant on the mucous membrane of the mouth or lips may give rise to cancer

You will materially benefit yourself and perhaps extend your life by cutting down on your use of tobacco.

HOUSE AND HOME

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Even before your outdoor garden is put to bed, you should start bulbs for indoor winter blooming. Narcissus, tulips, hyacinths and daffodils will form a succession of flowers for you.

But don't make the mistake of crowding the bulbs. One handsome plant full of healthy flowers is quite as effective as four or five straggly plants with scattered bloom. A single bulb of the popular Paper-White Narcissus, planted in a bowl five inches in diameter and five inches deep, will thrive and produce strong, beautiful foliage and flowers. If a large bowl of flowers is needed for table decoration, several plants of uniform development can be transplanted. Merely wash the roots and rearrange in a fresh bowl of pebbles.

After you snuggle the bulb in its bowl of clean pebbles, be sure to keep the bowl filled with water. The roots draw their food from the water, the stones acting as an anchor for the roots to wind around. Allow about one-third of the bulb uncovered above the pebbles.

Ordinarily we calculate about three weeks for Narcissus bulbs to bloom, but the time varies a few days either way.

Hyacinths are often grown in water for indoor blooming, although they can be forced in a specially prepared soil.

Tulips and daffodils wanted for indoor blooming are successfully grown in the same loose, rich soil prepared for Hyacinths.

It requires a long period for these bulbs to develop. Keep them in a dark, cool place, until plenty of roots show through the bottom of the pot. This will take from six to eight weeks in the case of Hyacinths, and twelve weeks for Tulips and Daffodils.

Keep the bulbs well watered at all times, but be particularly careful when the bulbs are first planted. The soil should be so saturated that water will run from the bottom of the pot.

An occasional coat of wax applied to the polished surfaces of your furniture will make the daily dusting an easy matter. Wax seals the pores of the wood, enhances and preserves the grain and natural color, and develops a hard, dry finish that repels dust and fingerprints.

Tuberculosis Deaths Decreasing

Today the average white person at ages up to 25, has about one chance in 30 of eventually dying of tuberculosis. Barely 20 years ago the chances were twice as great. This is the encouraging information given by one of the greatest insurance companies operating in the United States and Canada. This change is due to the unremitting efforts of the anti-tuberculosis societies, physicians and philanthropic people working on this continent.

As is the case with many affections, the chances of eventually dying of tuberculosis for males of any age are substantially greater than for the average female of the same age. The chances of an eventual death for the newly born males are 35 in 1,000, while for females they are but 25 in 1,000. For both sexes the chances increase slightly as the child grows older and reach a maximum of 37 in 1,000 at about 15 for the boy and 26 in the 1,000 at about 10 for the girl.

At age 35, out of every 1,000, 32 will eventually succumb to tuberculosis, while for females of the same age this disease will eventually claim 18 out of every 1,000. Tuberculosis still has an attraction for persons of middle age, for at age 50 the figures for males and females are 23 and 13 respectively.

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD

Massage throat, chest, and back with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

VapoRub's double action brings double relief. It acts as a poultice to penetrate the surface skin; and its soothing medicinal vapors are breathed direct to the irritated air passages.

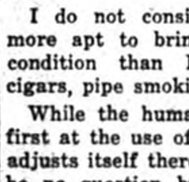

Try it, to loosen phlegm—to clear air passages—check tendency to cough—and also to relieve the tightness and soreness of chest muscles.

Legend of the Sunflower

A Greek legend tells of the origin of the sunflower and why it is the symbol of constancy and adoration. "Clytie was a beautiful water nymph of Hellas. One day she left her home among the waves and went to Olympus, where she saw Apollo, the sun god, and fell in love with him. Apollo, however, was enamored of Calliope, the muse of epic poetry, and paid no attention to Clytie. So she sat on the ground gazing at the sun from the minute it appeared until it dropped beyond the horizon. For nine days Clytie sat and pined away, refusing to return home. Finally her limbs sank into the earth and became roots, her body a slender stem, and her beautiful face became a flower resembling the sun and following its course all day long."

Canada Envisioned as Pulse of Britain's Vast Aerial Strength

BELIEVED, WITHIN ONE YEAR, COMMONWEALTH COULD FURNISH, EQUIP AND FLY POSSIBLY 4 - 5 THOUSAND PLANES A MONTH

Ottawa, October 17 — There is a dramatic, breath-taking quality about the vision of Canada's part in the European conflict which begins to take form from the co-operative air training plans which will bring on to Canadian soil tens of thousands of Australian, New Zealand and British pilots, gunners, photographers, aircraftsmen, radio operators and mechanics in the most grandiose conception of the war.

In the first few weeks of the struggle, many Canadians were puzzled and even depressed at the lack of spectacular activity on the part of the Allies in general and Canada in particular. They missed the hectic mobilization of vast contingents of infantry, the bands and the banners, the jingoism and the fanfare which seemed to be a necessary preparation for adequate participation.

A More Colossal Contribution

Now it is clear that in every respect Canada's contribution will be more vital, more colossal, than was ever dreamed of in 1914.

It may take a little longer to get into action, but once the process is geared up to top speed, it will be tremendously impressive. The awareness by Hitler of the air resources of the empire being mobilized out of reach of the bombers of the Reich, being manned by the fearless, clear-eyed, steel-nerved youths of the British Commonwealth, growing ever in strength and skill, capable of flying across the Atlantic as trained squadrons, spanning the Atlantic in eight hours, ready to leap into any breach—this, we think, will be perhaps of more value in winning the war for democracy than any other single element of the war, except possibly Britain's mastery of the seas. And the latter is essentially a defensive feature. The air force assembled in Canada may be the offensive effort which will ensure a world in which fear of slavery and dictatorship has been once more banished.

Plans, of course, are no good without energetic and intelligent prosecution. But good plans are a good start, and the present arrangements call for speedy and widespread expansion of air training in Canada.

Sources of Supply

Present manufacture of aeroplanes in Canada for the Canadian Government is being carried on at six different plants across the country from Montreal to Vancouver. Additional contracts are being let. The squadrons from New Zealand and Australia will bring with them large numbers of machines. The British pilots will fly machines manufactured in England. In addition, assuming that the U.S. neutrality law is amended, Canada, France and Britain will buy a large number of aeroplanes and aeroplane parts from the United States.

Canada produced 3,000 aeroplanes in the past war. Last year only 300 machines were manufactured in this country of all types, but production is being stepped up rapidly.

Between them, the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations can supply endless squadrons of fighters, bombers, reconnaissance and photographic planes. Britain alone is said to have reached a level of 2,000 a month, and France another 500 a month. Within a year the British Commonwealth will probably be able to build and buy, as well as equip and fly, a total of perhaps 4,000 or 5,000 aeroplanes a month.

The resources of Germany in first-line planes may have been a little greater to begin with, but she will be rapidly overshadowed, especially if she has to rely entirely upon her own efforts.

The limiting factor for Germany is, probably, not the capacity to build machines or train pilots, but the supply of the necessary high-test gasoline. The modern aeroplane engine is so delicate that inferior gasoline rapidly destroys it. Germany produces only a small percentage of the gasoline needed in these days of mechanized and aerial warfare. North America alone produces three-quarters of the world's supply.

Will the use of Canada as the air depot of the democracies bring on our heads the air attack of the enemy? Possibly as a sporadic thrust, aimed at testing our morale. But no decisive stroke can be so delivered. Though Britain and France were devastated, this flow of machines would still continue and provide the turning point against any German effort. That is the vision.

"Autumn Fiction for the Winter Menu"

STUDY GROUP TOPIC

Treating an interesting topic in a very novel manner, Mrs. B. Chapman, as guest speaker at the Study Group meeting of Lachute W.I. in the High School on Tuesday afternoon, suggested timely fiction for every mood and every taste. From her address, entitled "Autumn Fiction for the Winter Menu", readers gathered welcome hints on current books. Adapting her recommendations to the theme of a varied-course meal, Mrs. Chapman dealt briefly with many novels, from light romance to the heavier subjects of history and biography . . . . Mrs. Chapman, who is highly qualified to speak on literary topics, was formerly Miss Christina Palliser of Lachute. She is now a resident of Montreal.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. A. Taylor, and the thanks of the ladies were expressed by Mrs. C. Duncan.

—This interesting discourse will be published in The Watchman as space permits.

ANNUAL BANQUET HELD

Columbus Day, highlight in the calendar of the Knights of Columbus order, was marked here by the annual banquet, held in Lachute Auditorium on Tuesday evening. Around 175 members of the local council, wives and lady guests, joined in the celebration, with Dr. E. Lalande, Grand Knight, presiding.

Principal speaker of the occasion was the Rev. E. Lambert of Montreal, and brief discourses were given also by A. Provencher, of Three Rivers, representing the State Council; L. E. Grothé, vice-Master Supreme of the fourth degree; and Justice A. Monet, ex-District Deputy. The toast to the ladies was proposed by Dr. R. Dumais, of Lachute, seconded by G. Laurier, of Huberdeau.

Stanwood Orchestra, from Montreal, provided music for the dancing, and caterers were the firm of V. Rigaud, Montreal.

Noted among the gathering were Messrs. G. E. Dansereau, J. F. Lavigne, H. W. Ayers, other prominent citizens and a delegation of members of the fourth degree.

Wolf Caught in Trap Set By Mille Isles Farmer

Cambria— A big wolf was caught here last week in a trap set by Douglas Dawson. Stock on the neighboring farms had been attacked and slaughtered—Norman Patterson, having lost four sheep and Ben Pollock a large lamb. These depredations prompted Mr. Dawson to set the trap. Although he caught one wolf it is believed there are others at large, as some of the sheep carcasses were almost entirely devoured in a short time, indicating more than one animal had been preying on the flocks.

Two Rousing Political Rallies in Lachute

OPPOSITION LEADER AMONG SPEAKERS

The political organizations have been actively campaigning this past week, in various sections of the county. Lachute has had its share of the party rallies.

On Friday evening the Union-Nationale candidate, J. F. Lavigne, N.P., supported by Geo. Héon, M.P., and other speakers, held a meeting in the Lachute Auditorium; and on Monday the same building echoed with the enthusiasm of the opposing party—the leader of the Quebec Opposition, Adelard Godbout, then speaking on behalf of Geo. Dansereau, M.P.P., the official Liberal candidate.

Both meetings were well attended, and the audiences were keenly attentive to all speakers—indicating a certain realization of the seriousness of the issues.

Gouin Representative Makes Last-Minute Entry for a Three-Way Contest in Argenteuil Constituency

W. A. Dupuis, L'Action Liberale, Joins Lists with Dansereau and Lavigne, Old-Party Contenders

Three contestants are in the Argenteuil political field, having been duly nominated on Wednesday at proceedings in the Lachute Auditorium. The candidates are J. F. Lavigne, N.P., Georges Dansereau, M.P.P., and W. A. Dupuis, representing l'Union Nationale, Liberals and l'Action Liberale respectively.

The Auditorium was packed for the occasion, and a large portion of the audience were women, showing their interest in the hope of securing the franchise.

Messrs. J. E. Walker and J. P. Lanctôt were joint chairmen.

Candidate Lavigne was the first speaker. In his native tongue he outlined his policy and the accomplishments of the U.N. Party in this county.

Mr. Dansereau spoke next, first in French, then in English, appealing for unity among the two races at this critical time. He criticized the regime, and the Three Rivers speech of Maurice Duplessis.

The third candidate, W. Aldéric Dupuis, attempted to state the viewpoints of his leader, Paul Gouin, but hecklers made the going tough, and the speaker was obliged to retire. One over-boisterous disturber was ejected by the police.

Notary Lavigne spoke next in English, claiming that more had been done for Argenteuil County in three years than in the previous forty, and he enumerated progressive policies of the U.N. Party. He criticized the Federal Government for building a $9,000 wharf at Huberdeau, and asked whether the "German U-boats were expected up there."

A Liberal rebuttal came from Mr. John Lang, barrister, of Montreal. He took issue with Mr. Lavigne for dealing in petty personalities at this serious time, and gave Mr. Dansereau credit for having proposed the measure for assistance to mothers in this province. He agreed that roads had been built by the opponent party, but claimed they were unpaid for, and asked why the Union Nationale had not stated their true financial plight in this election. Concluding, he stated that Mr. Lapointe had done much for Quebec, and was fighting for a united Canada.

Georges Héon, M.P. for Argenteuil, replied to Mr. Lang with the records of road grants given to Lachute, Calumet, Mille Isles and the Gore; he read letters from these municipalities, also one from the Argenteujl Agricultural Society, in appreciation for grants received. Mr. Héon said he held Mr. Lapointe in esteem, but stated that the Minister of Justice should be in Ottawa directing the war policies of Canada, and not concerning himself with provincial politics.

Other speakers gave views in support of the three parties, and except for an odd interruption, were given a fair hearing.

Prize-Winner at Cornwall Plowing Match

LOCAL FARMERS ATTENDED

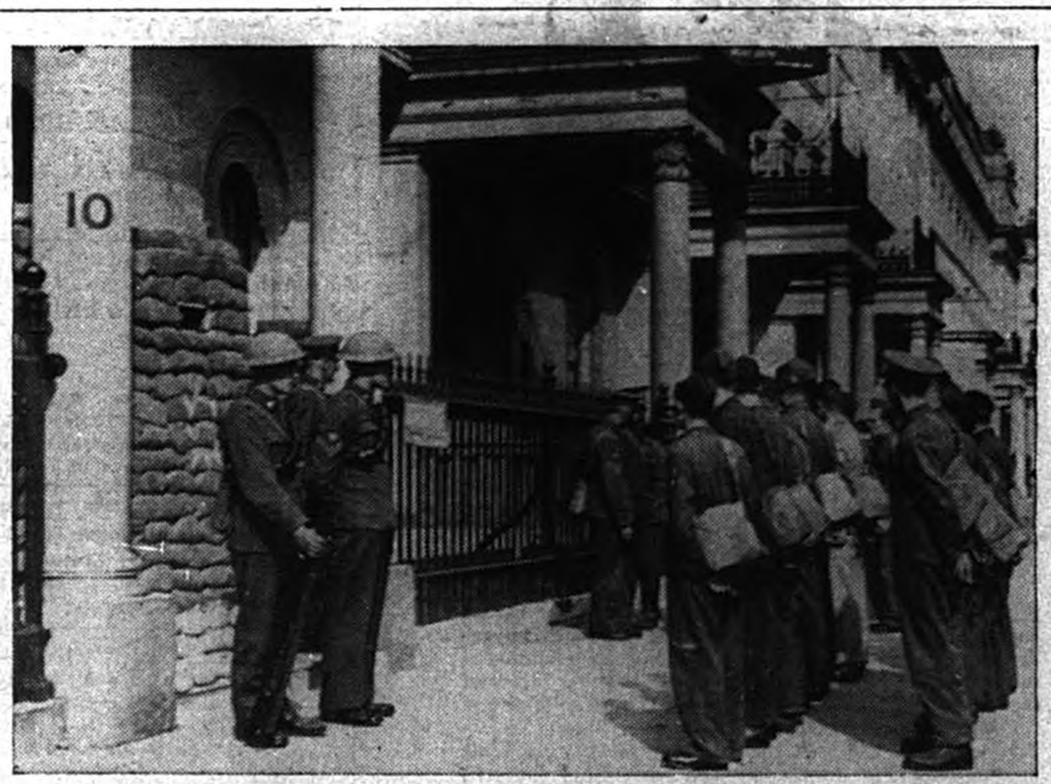

A well known Lachute farmer, Alex Doig, returned home from the International Plowing Match at Cornwall, Ont., last week with two handsome trophies—a cow-hide club bag and a ladies' wardrobe week-end case, the latter a complimentary award to his daughter, Miss Myrtle Doig, in honor of her previous performances. Mr. Doig's prize was for second place in the walking-plow contest, Visitors' Class, and his success surprised him somewhat, as Mr. Doig states he had not plowed a furrough with a walking-plow for at least 20 years.

Miss Doig was not present at the Cornwall contest this year. Her father's helper was Angus Pollock, and among local citizens who attended the match were J. E. Walker and Gavin Walker, Ben Roger, Robt. McFaul, Ben Hammond, Ed. Kettyle, J. E. Wood and others. Contestants took part from Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New York State, including three young ladies with tractor plows. Winner in this class was Miss D. Higginson, of Hawkesbury.

'British Kings and the Bible' Topic by Rev. Jas. Adams

CONGREGATIONS UNITE FOR ANNUAL MEETING OF BIBLE SOCIETY

A most interesting lecture was given by the Rev. Jas Adams, provincial secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, last Sunday evening in Lachute United Church hall.

The address, entitled, "British Kings and the Bible", was illustrated by colorful screened pictures. Mr. Adams commenced his lecture with the period of Edward the Confessor, who reigned from 1042 to 1065. Known as a deeply religious man, this monarch died just before the completion of Westminster Abbey which he built. Reviewing the history of British kings the speaker dealt at length with the spectacular reign of Henry VIII, who was responsible for the formation of an independent church in Britain. During this period, the first English version of the New Testament was published, being the result of the struggle of the martyr, Tyndale.

The next important point he dwelt upon was the manner in which King James I sought to give his people a true translation of the bible, employing the classical scholars of Britain in this work. The translation is used to this very day, and is known as the James I edition.

Victoria the Good played an important part in making the bible a book of popular authority and she claimed that the greatness of Britain was founded on the teachings of the bible. During her reign, the magnificent building of the British and Foreign Bible Society was erected in London.

Briefly Mr. Adams spoke of the periods of King Edward VII and George V, the latter being a devout churchman who did his best to further the advance of religion.

Speaking of our present King George, Mr. Adams mentioned the fact of His Majesty giving a Testament to all of his military subjects now engaged in the great struggle, and urging them to read it often. To close his address, Mr. Adams showed the picture of Their Majesties, and the National Anthem was sung.

The meeting was the annual assembly of the Lachute branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

The business session of the evening proved encouraging. Last year, the local branch had come third in 127 districts, Cornwall and Sherbrooke being first and second respectively. This year collections had increased, and the officers and members were grateful to those who had given their support . . . For the current year, collections to date amounted to $188.57, with two more canvassers to be heard from.

All the local Protestant clergy participated in the service, while Mr. T. J. Barron, president, directed the proceedings and Mrs. L. Morris filled her role as secretary.

The officers for 1939-40 are—president, Mr. T. J. Barron; vice-president, Mr. J. S. Giles; secretary, Mrs. L. Morris; treasurer, Mr. Cliff Cunningham; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wm. Bradley.

"Dare We Hope for a World Without War?"

Following is a résumé of the address delivered recently by the Rev. E. Orsborn, minister of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, before a gathering of the Lachute Hundred Club . . . .

An immense sociological problem faces those who would rid the world of war. At the present time the yellow and brown races are crowded for space in which to live. Canada, the United States and Australia are among those countries that have room to spare. Why not move over and make room? Because we could not tolerate the low standard of living existing among the over-crowded peoples. The more advanced nations of the earth tend toward a steadily declining birth-rate, and yet it is these peoples that have control of the greater part of the earth's surface. The pressure of the demand for more room to live, more comforts and, in general, a higher standard of living, is being constantly increased by the less privileged peoples of the earth; and this tremendous problem must be overcome before wars will cease.

Since the last war much has been written about the armament manufacturers and other big business concerns as promoters of war. Certainly, if wars were to cease a huge industry would disappear. A giant network spreads over Germany, Italy, Sweden, Great Britain, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Spain, Holland, New Zealand, United States and Canada. It has been frequently stated that Adolf Hitler drew his financial support for his drive to power from two directors of the Skoda plant in Czecho-Slovakia. Francois de Wendel, of Paris, is head of a great munition industry and at the same time is Regent of the Bank of France, member of the Chamber of Deputies, part owner of four newspapers and of the Havas news agency. To uproot an industry of any kind which had such vast power would be a serious undertaking and yet, if war is to cease for ever, such a thing must be done.

In the cause of peace, various agencies are diligently at work and some success has been achieved. A new patriotism of common sense is becoming increasingly apparent. We realize more than ever before that not only military forces are casualties in war, but men, women and children everywhere suffer and die because of the conflict. Not only do all citizens within a given country suffer through war, but the suffering of one nation will spread. Just as the injury of one finger will bring suffering to the whole body, so will war in one or two nations bring suffering and loss to other nations throughout the world.

The schools and churches are busy nourishing the germ of peace. As children are told of modern warfare as it really is; as they are inspired by the thrilling stories of the heroes of peace such as our explorers, and engineers, and scientific discoverers; and as they correspond with children in other lands as they are now being encouraged to do; the possibility of peace and the love of peace will grow forever greater.

The League of Nations did not fulfil all the hopes that had been entertained regarding it. It did not stop Italy in Ethiopia nor Japan in China. But, let us remember, that since Adam and Eve lived in the Garden of Eden such an attempt as was made in the League of Nations had never been tried. It was an experiment and it failed to a considerable extent. But does not every real gain come through a process of trial and error, through experiment and failure? The League of Nations and the World Court at the Hague will yet play a noble part in the furthering of happier relations between the peoples of the earth.

Can we hope for a world without war? Yes, hope and work and pray. We go together to make war when we feel we must do so. Let us go together for peace! Jesus taught us long ago that to hurt another is to hurt ourselves and to help another is to help ourselves. There are grave difficulties to be overcome, but, please God, the time will come when we shall learn to live together and to play together as one great family.

Dwelling Across Ottawa River Is Menaced by Fire

Cushing—Residents of this section were startled on Saturday forenoon by seeing smoke pouring out of a building adjacent to the home of Mr. D. Kirby across the Ottawa River, but what might have proved a very disastrous fire was checked by willing neighbors, who drew water in trucks after the home water supply was about exhausted. The woodshed and winter's supply of wood, also many bushels of grain over the woodshed, were destroyed. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Lachute Winners In Two School Baseball Games

Canada, Where Airplanes Open Frozen Fastnesses

Hard schooled are the Canadian air pilots who have flown literally millions of miles, carrying mail, men and supplies into the country beyond the rail heads, deep into the Arctic Circle itself. Intrepid flyers, they have brought the Dominion to the threshold of a new frontier.

So it happens today that Canada leads the world in the carrying of freight and express by air, hauling into the northland some six times as much in a year as all United States domestic and foreign routes. Mining supplies and the equipment of the new mining towns, for example, are being transported in ever increasing quantities by air.

Thus the whole future development of the Dominion is linked with its planes and pilots, for the Canada still to be developed lies in the frozen fastnesess, inaccessible to train and ship.

Down from the north come daily huge cargo planes, carrying out concentrate or bullion from the Dominion's new mines, taking back supplies, and flying emergency trips in event of accidents. At the same time a vast amount of aerial survey work is carried on, mapping new roads through virgin country, new harbor plans, new townsites.

Long since planes have been used widely for forestry work, to detect fires, to check timber limits, and record cutting operations. Shown on a current Canadian air mail stamp is one of the Dominion's northland ships flying to make contact with the nearest steamer point.

There is a right and a wrong way of expressing yourself, as, for example, the millionaire who was disclosing the secret of success. "I owe success to one thing and one thing alone," he said." Pluck, pluck, pluck."

Autumn Reverie

"The falling leaves number our years!" It was autumn-time when Richard Jeffries wrote those words, and possibly just another as beautiful an autumn as this has been. During these last two weeks or so, the mountainsides in this Dalesville district have been tinted with a riot of colorings. These contrasting with the delicate meadow tones in the lowlands, where rivulets criss-cross in snake-like fashion, certainly make some charming pictures. And all this beauty has been ours. Ours to enjoy, ours to hold in memory—so beautiful one sometimes wonders if it is real, or a dream.

Soon, however, this Truth and Beauty of the poet's and artist's souls must pass—objectively, I mean. But subjectively, we will continue to keep it. Yet, like life with all its glowing sunshine and happy experiences, undertones and overtones of the music of living, they, too, must pass into the silence and "the falling leaves number our years!" . . . . while the way of life tells us that there are compensations, surely but silently awaiting in what the seasons following are to bring.

Winter, with its beautiful white blanket, will benevolently cover all this gorgeous beauty to prepare it for return to the heart of Mother Earth in whom to regain vitality for another season. . . . And there too, Mother Earth works out her own subtle pictures of Truth and Beauty with which to surprise even the most expectant of us.

"The falling leaves number our years!" Are we fully aware of the certainty of the passing of Time—when we, too, must take our places amid the fallen leaves, and, like them, join the throng where compensations await in the endlessness of Truth and Beauty.

For Health

Rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago and kidney disorders are very frequently caused by "faulty elimination." A new preparation known as VANFAX which has just recently been introduced in Canada, is based on an old prescription which has been used for over thirty years in England with highly satisfactory results. VANFAX does not contain any ingredient which could be injurious to any part of the system and is also very pleasant to take. SUPERHIGHWAYS AT LITTLE COST

The "excess condemnation" system of land appropriation, which works successfully in Europe, has not hitherto been used on this continent, but is now under consideration by the U. S. Bureau of Roads for projected "superhighways" traversing the entire country.

Instead of taking for highway use merely a strip just wide enough for the new road, the plan would call for purchasing a much wider strip, perhaps a thousand feet or more, which could be resold for a variety of uses after the new roads were in operation.

This method of turning back lots and farm lands into highway frontage of much greater value has heretofore worked solely to the benefit of individual property owners. It is in the nature of a gift from the Government.

Perhaps the outstanding example of the excess-condemnation method was the construction of a broad highway through the heart of the city of London, before the World War. To build a street 150 feet wide the city took a strip a thousand feet wide. What had been back yards became front lots on a fine new street.

It is a general practice here for governments to pay more than the property is worth when a new road is projected. If government could buy land for the new highways at its actual value, and resell the frontage for filling stations, tourist camps, hotels or other purposes, it might be possible to build the new road system at a smaller expense to the taxpayers.

CIVIC FATHERS TO "KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING"

Since Canada entered war with Germany, the municipalities in their civil role are confronted with the question—what should, or what can, they do? And probably the best answer comes from the old war song, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," for it would be but a poor service to the Dominion's war effort if in any way the mayors and councils lessened their activities as local administrators. Indeed, the best contribution the local authorities can make to the national effort is to see that local affairs are running smoothly and efficiently, and that civic problems are not neglected but solved in the light of the new conditions that are likely to arise as war continues.

In this respect there is the cost of unemployment relief which the Federal Government will no doubt relinquish, thus leaving the whole responsibility to the provincial and municipal authorities. This is a problem which will be largely solved by munition production. Nevertheless, there are many recipients of the dole who have become unemployable, and their problem will be for each community to solve for itself.

There is the question of debt obligations and other local financial problems to be solved on present revenues, for certainly every extra dollar of public revenue that can be raised must be used only for the national war purposes. Undoubtedly the municipal authorities have a difficult task before them to keep things going smoothly and efficiently under war conditions—but it will be worth-while, for their efforts will be a real contribution to the great cause this country is now engaged in.

"DIVISION OF MINING VILLAGES"

The rapid growth of mining in Northwestern Quebec resulted in the construction of dwellings scattered here and there all over the countryside. No provision whatsoever had been made for sanitation or public utilities. In a number of cases they were eyesores.

To remedy these conditions and to insure that they would not be continued in future, the Honourable O. Gagnon, Quebec Minister of Mines and Fisheries, early in 1937 organized a "Division of Mining Villages" in the Bureau of Mines. This division, under supervision of a municipal engineer of wide experience in this work, has now complete charge of all mining villages and works in co-operation with the Department of Municipal Affairs.

The selection of location easily accessible to the surrounding mines, and with a background of scenic beauty; the installation of public utilities and other things which make life pleasant in a community, all come within the scope of the Division of Mining Villages. It also supervises the sale of lots from which the money to carry on this work is derived.

The province has been fortunate in having men of vision who planned the villages of Duparquet, Noranda and Bourlamaque, model communities which have received favourable comment from all who have visited them. The villages of Malartic, Sullivan, Cadillac, Pascalis and Rouyn South have been planned and built under the direction of this Division and during the present season further extensions are being carried out.

WORK AHEAD FOR THE RED CROSS

The service of the Red Cross in the last great war is one of the brightest spots in the history of that terrible conflict. If the present conflict in Europe develops into another such long-drawn-out struggle, the Red Cross will be called upon again to give the sort of help for which it is equipped, to every nation at arms which will accept it. It will be the one form of service which will be welcomed by all who remember the heroic and useful service given twenty-five years ago.

There probably will not be the immediate, intense need of the Red Cross now that there was in 1915. That war caught most of the nations of Europe unprepared, lacking in medical and hospital supplies and personnel, and with poorly organized military medical staffs. Today there has been ample time for preparation, military surgery and nursing is on a much more scientific basis than it was then, and the call for help will be neither so sudden nor so urgent.

Nevertheless, it is probable that there will be much that the Red Cross can do to alleviate suffering on both sides. Workers will be as much concerned with wounded Germans as with any others. Red Cross is as international as pain. It knows no nationality, discriminates in favor of no race.

GIANTS . . . . vegetarians

Not long ago I met with a group of adventurers who gather on occasion to recount their experiences in exploring the little-known corners of the earth.

One of them was just back from a dangerous journey into the back country of western China, which few white men know much about. The men and women of that mountainous region, he told us, are the tallest and strongest race in the world, except possibly a certain African tribe, also mountain folk.

To carry his outfit, the monks of a Buddhist monastery supplied him with twenty porters, he told us, each of them within an inch or two of seven feet tall, and all having unlimited endurance and vigor, though some were men of seventy or older.

The reason for their astounding size and strength, at least one reason, the narrator told us, is that these people never eat meat. Instead, they live on a diet in which rice provides the starches and soya beans the necessary protein, or source of muscular energy. Their longevity and perfect health my friend attributed to the fact that this diet does not introduce bacteria into the system, but tends to destroy dangerous bacteria from other sources.

SOYA . . . . . profits

We have all heard the amazing tales of the ability of Chinese and Japanese laborers and soldiers to live and do hard work on a few handfuls of rice as their daily ration, but my Chinese friends and Americans who have lived in the Far East tell me that is mainly bunk. They eat rice, naturally, for it is the easiest form of starch for them to grow, but they depend for physical energy and growth on soya beans, prepared in numerous ways, most of which don't taste very palatable to Americans and Europeans.

I have long held that the Chinese are the most civilized people in the world. They have had a longer experience in living in one place than any other race. While the other races were roaming the forests, eating whatever they could find growing wild or the animals they could catch or kill, the Chinese were learning to grow their food.

How long ago they discovered that soya beans would supply them with the proteins necessary for vigor and growth, nobody knows, but they have not been handicapped by the need to provide cattle ranges. They don't need beef, as they eat little meat.

We are just beginning to learn something in this country of the value and uses of that amazing vegetable. Some millions of acres of soya beans have been put under cultivation in the past few years, from northern Canada to southern Florida. Farmers have found it a valuable pasture crop which puts nitrogen into the soil better than alfalfa does. Its hay makes excellent ensilage. It will grow anywhere, on almost any kind of soil, and seems to be immune to insect pests and plant diseases.

There is profit in growing soya beans at 60 cents or so a bushel, with twenty or more bushels to the acre, with the cattle fodder and land improvement as by-products.

OIL . . . . . by-product

What started the soya-bean boom was the demand for more and cheaper vegetable oils, for use in making paints, varnishes and lacquers. Out of these oils, extracted from the soya-bean, some progress has been made in the production of plastic materials, which can be moulded into any shape and stand hard usage. Henry Ford has been the leader in utilizing soya-bean plastics for the interior trim of motor cars.

We probably are not on the way to becoming a race of giants through our consumption of soya beans, but we're eating more and more of this useful product every day. For that matter, we've been consuming soya beans for years, in the form of Worcestershire sauce and its imitations, which are based upon fermented soya beans flavored with spices.

DOUGHNUTS . . . . . dogs

Soya-bean meal or flour has a rancid, bitter taste unless it is processed to remove the unpleasant flavor. Technical men have been working for years to produce a soya-bean flour which would not offend the palate. Now they've got it, and great quantities of soya-bean flour are being milled and sold, to doughnut bakers and the big packing houses which produce the finest grades of frankfurters.

Commercial doughnuts made with a mixture of soya flour contain more nourishment, retain their flavor and freshness longer and never get hard or stale. The humble hot dog can be made with less meat but with just as great protein or nutrition value by mixing the ground meat with soya meal or flour, and at lower cost per hot dog. It's a safe bet that the frankfurter-on-roll you buy at the quick-lunch counter is about a third soya bean.

Probably better and more nourishing bread could be made with soya flour, but people want their bread pure white, and there's a tinge of yellow in the soya flour milled so far. But scientists promise they'll get that cured before long.

Unique Wind Indicator for Dublin's New Airport

Dublin's new £400,000 airport at Collinstown is being fitted with a novel type of landing direction indicator which cleverly disregards sudden gusts of wind but clearly tells pilots the average wind direction.

Designed and made by a British firm (Messrs. Chance Bros. Ltd) the "robot" indicator will be the first of its type in any airdrome in the world. The position of its main vane alters only when a definite change of wind direction takes place, and is maintained for a given period of seconds.

It is capable of remote control and remote indication. The officer in the control tower can "see which way the wind is blowing" by merely glancing at a repeater on his desk, and can also, if necessary, switch over the controls from "automatic" to "manual."

In the manual position the indicator can be rotated into any position and kept there. On switching back to automatic control the indicator will immediately take up correct position according to the average wind direction. Other equipment for guidance of aircraft includes a mile-long line of contact lights, let into the ground, to assist aircraft to land in foggy weather

The new airport will not be completed before next spring, but it is expected that limited use will be made of it this winter. There are 300 acres of landing area, but 700 acres have been acquired for future extension.

POOR KID

A school teacher, after examination of her pupils in her class by the school nurse, wrote the following note to the parents of a certain little boy: "Your boy, Charles, shows signs of astigmatism. Will you please investigate and take steps to correct it."

The next morning she received a reply from the boy's father, who wrote: "I don't exactly understand what Charlie has done, but I have walloped him tonight and you can wallop him tomorrow. That ought to help some."

End of Civilization ?

The Barrie Examiner says: "It has repeatedly been asserted in recent years that another world war would be the end of civilization. That is true in the sense that all wars have put an end to civilization for the time being. War is a relic of barbarism, and what is termed civilized warfare is more barbaric than that of ancient barbarism itself." The Examiner quotes: "If winter comes, can spring be far behind?" In other words, we must have the bad before we can enjoy the good, says the Examiner. We certainly do not agree with those who said—and perhaps we were among them—that another war would wipe out our civilization. Those who said things like that said them to try to prevent another war. Nevertheless, a large-scale war is bound to bring about tremendous changes in our civilization.—So, can severe economic and social upheavals be far behind?"

Old Bell, Steelyard Inn Links Town to the Past

A link with the days when the quiet town of Woodbridge, England, was a busy center of shipping and sea-borne trade, the Old Bell and Steelyard is one of the famous inns of Suffolk, says the Sunday Times, of London.

Woodbridge ships set forth from the River Deben to join the English fleet that met the Invincible Armada, and throughout the Seventeenth century there was a brisk traffic to the Continent, so that the people of Ipswich complained of Woodbridge competition.

It was during these busy times—probably about 1650—that the steelyard, which is the chief feature of the inn, was constructed. Steelyards were used for weighing wagonloads of hay, corn and other produce, and their use can be traced back to the Roman settlers in Britain.

The steelyard at Woodbridge had not been in use for some years, when in 1897 it was taken down and sent to London for the Victorian Era exhibition. It was re-erected, and the lead poise weight of 112 pounds is preserved in the inn. As far as is known, only one other steelyard—at Coham, in Cambridgeshire—survives in England.

The inn is of much earlier date than the steelyard, for it was built in the second half of the Fifteenth century, and though its timber frame shows signs of its antiquity, it is still in excellent condition.

As far back as 1740 it was known as the "Stillards," and it has since been called the Bell, the Blue Bell and now Old Bell and Steelyard.

Most Southerly Large Glacier

Palisade glacier, at the head of Big Pine creek, about 15 miles west of Big Pine, is California's largest and also the most southerly large glacier in the United States. Its highest elevation is 13,400 feet and is about three miles long by half as wide, with a drop from head to foot of 1,100 feet. Its background is a series of skyscraper peaks, including Mt. Palisade, elevation, 14,254 feet; Mt. Sill, 14,190; Agassiz Needle, 13,882, and Mt. Winchell, 13,749.

Earth Tremors Felt Here This Morning

A distinct earth-shock lasting several seconds was felt here just after 7 o'clock this morning, Thursday. The tremor awakened a number of people from their sleep.

The quake, according to radio news this noon, is reported to have occurred in an area of Quebec, Eastern Ontario, New York and the New England States. No damage or casualties were reported.

St. Jerome Population Gains 2,000 in Five Years

Rev. Emile Dubois, parish priest of St. Jerome, announced from the pulpit Sunday that the population of the town and parish had increased by 2,000 in the past five years. The annual parochial visit just completed showed the population of the city and parish was now 12,764, 10,623 in the city. The Roman Catholic population is 12,607, an increase of 689.

In the city schools there are 1,143 boys and 1,219 girls, while the total number of pupils in all city and parish schools is 2,813.

Cure Dubois reported that there were 36 non-catholic families, a total of 157 individuals, in the district.

Colored Tracks for Cyclists

Accident prevention in Switzerland is likely to be effected to some extent by pinking a cycle track with red pigment to ensure a contrast with the ordinary concrete surface of the roadway, from which it is further distinguished by being elevated about five inches. This is formed on each side of the Solothurn-Berne road, one of two important routes now in course of construction. One gathers that the raised track is limited to the city area, and that no grass verge intervenes between it and the carriageway. Nor is there any intervention — even in the form of a rail — between the track and the footpath, although the two are on the same level. Pink coloring, the cyclist's common-sense, and the pedestrian's elementary prudence are regarded as a sufficient combination to prevent trouble in daylight. When night comes the coloring of the track should be easily discernible, but to increase visibility circular reflectors are embedded in the concrete kerbs at intervals of about 150 ft. and at such an angle that they reflect light projected by vehicle headlights. Beyond urban areas, where cycle tracks agree with carriageway level, reflectors are mounted on low posts, which are placed 165 ft. apart. A newly constructed road elsewhere is characterized by two cycle tracks (with bituminous surface) and a single footpath.

CABINET MINISTER LOST HIS SEAT

When the Minister of Education of New Zealand (reports the N.Z. Board & Council) was speaking at the opening of a new central school, a small boy slipped into the Ministerial seat and, with a sigh settled down with his little legs barely reaching the edge of the chair. Everybody laughed except the Minister, who was obviously unaware of what had happened; but when about to conclude his speech he turned around, there was a roar of laughter from the crowd. "I see there has been a general election and I have lost my seat," he said. "However, there is much to be said," the Minister added, amid renewed laughter, "there is more hope for the future than when I was sitting there." Remarking that he had great pleasure in declaring the building officially open, the Minister took the boy by the hand and said, "Come on, my friend; we will open the school together." And they did.

Defying Rules of the Road

It is useless to continue worrying and lecturing the 90 per cent or more of careful competent drivers, as we have been doing. These good drivers are not responsible for the accidents in which property is damaged and life destroyed. It is the small minority of law defiers who are responsible, and for these lectures are worse than useless. What is needed is penalties.

Our success in the campaign to clear our streets of danger will be in direct proportion to the effort that is made to apprehend and punish offenders—to the activity of the authorities in running down the culprits and to the severity of the sentences in the traffic court.

80% WATER POWER UNDEVELOPED

The present recorded water power resources of the Dominion of Canada, according to the recently issued annual review of the Dominion Water and Power Bureau, Department of Mines and Resources of Canada, amount to a total of 20,347,400 h.p. under conditions of ordinary minimum flow and 33,617,000 h.p. ordinarily available for six months of the year. This quantity of power corresponds to a potential turbine installation of 43,700,000 h.p. The existing total turbine installation is 8,190,722 h.p., so that more than 80 per cent of the water power of Canada still awaits development. The figures of available water power quoted are based upon rapids, falls and power sites, of which the actual drop or the head possible of concentration has been measured, or at least carefully estimated. Many unrecorded rapids and falls of undetermined power capacity exist on rivers and streams from coast to coast. These will only become available for tabulation as more detailed survey work is completed; this is particularly true in the less explored northern districts. Also, no consideration has been given to the power concentrations which are feasible on rivers and streams of gradual gradient, where economic heads may be created by the construction of power dams, unless definite studies have been carried out and the results made matters of record.

A FINAL APPEAL

The TASCHEREAU LIBERALS are trying again to grasp political power and patronage: they have grown lean from being three years away from the trough and dire hunger directs their desperate efforts.

True to their traditions, they agitate War and Conscription to mask the real issues, and revert to grotesque cartoons and broken pillars to try and fool the voters. The only pillars which the DUPLESSIS ADMINISTRATION brought down, were the pillars of corruption, favoritism, blackmail and fear which held the Taschereau regime in power. The only ruin which DUPLESSIS brought about, was RUIN FOR THE POLITICAL FAVORITES AND LEECHES WHICH HAD BEEN HANGING ON AS SO MANY BARNACLES ON THE SHIP OF STATE AND PREVENTED THIS PROVINCE FROM FORGING AHEAD IN THE REALMS OF EDUCATION, SOCIAL SERVICES, PUBLIC WORKS, AGRICULTURE AND GOOD ROADS.

Pioneer Submarine Men Made Ridiculous Errors

In the early days of submarining when John Holland and his contemporaries were theorizing and experimenting in underwater cruising they made many ludicrous mistakes and stumbled into predicaments that they barely wiggled out of.

Pioneering in a new and capricious element, these inventors necessarily were so engrossed in the simple functions of diving and surfacing they often overlooked the attendant problems of trim, navigation, orientation, pressure and the reaction of men and machinery to the confines of air tight hulls, writes Fred Hampson in the Baltimore Sun. Like most trail blazers in the field of mechanics, they took their chances and learned as they went along. Maybe that explains why one old pigboat chugged out into deep water with a dory tied to her superstructure, dived and pulled the rowboat under, where it promptly fouled the diving rudder. Feverishly the crew blew the tanks and came up, cut the dory line and thereafter dispensed with surface lifeboats.

Endless are the yarns about subs that dove well but not wisely and got stuck in the mud. The famous old Tarpon made at least one such descent. She went down off Block island, not far from the place the S-4 was lost, and bottomed purposely. When the crew tried to pull her loose neither her tanks nor engines could budge her.

A mud bottom exerts a tremendous suction. The Tarpon was not equipped with the air-cleansing chemicals carried on modern subs, and after a while the atmosphere grew heavy and foul and the men became drowsy. With touching confidence in their skipper they rolled into their bunks one by one and went to sleep, leaving the worried commander alone in the control room. Luckily an early-morning shift in tides broke the suction and the boat, already lightened to maximum buoyancy, bolted to the surface like a cork. The slumberers were tossed rudely from bunks and forthwith began to grumble about the rough ascent.

WAKE UP AND LIVE !

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

A most difficult mental discipline is to arrange to put yourself into situations where you must act non-habitually, where you must adapt yourself.

Members of the Army, the Navy, the priesthood, some societies, are constantly in a state of living under orders; and we recognize in them a resiliency that is absent from the characters of most men and women who live according to their own convenience.

It is not easy to get this resiliency back into our lives, but it is a quality too valuable to be lost. If the following recommendation seems somewhat too dramatic, almost too ridiculous, be assured that the results will show the worth of the discipline.

On a number of slips of paper — twelve will do to start with—write instructions like these :

"Go twenty miles from home, using ordinary conveyance." (In other words, don't just get out a car or hire a taxi, if you can afford it, and drive somewhere. Take street-cars, buses, ferries, subways,)

"Go twelve hours without food."

"Go eat a meal in the unlikeliest place you can find." A restaurant in a totally foreign quarter of a city is good here. Asking for food at a farm-house is better, if you are hardy enough to be so unconventional.

"Stay up all night and work."

Seal these slips of paper in twelve envelopes, shuffle them thoroughly and put them in a drawer. Whenever you think of it, shuffle them again.

Every other week, or on a given day of each month, pick one of the envelopes, open it, and perform your own command. I may be raining pitchforks on the day you command yourself to travel twenty miles by common carrier; nevertheless, unless your state of health absolutely forbids it, you go.

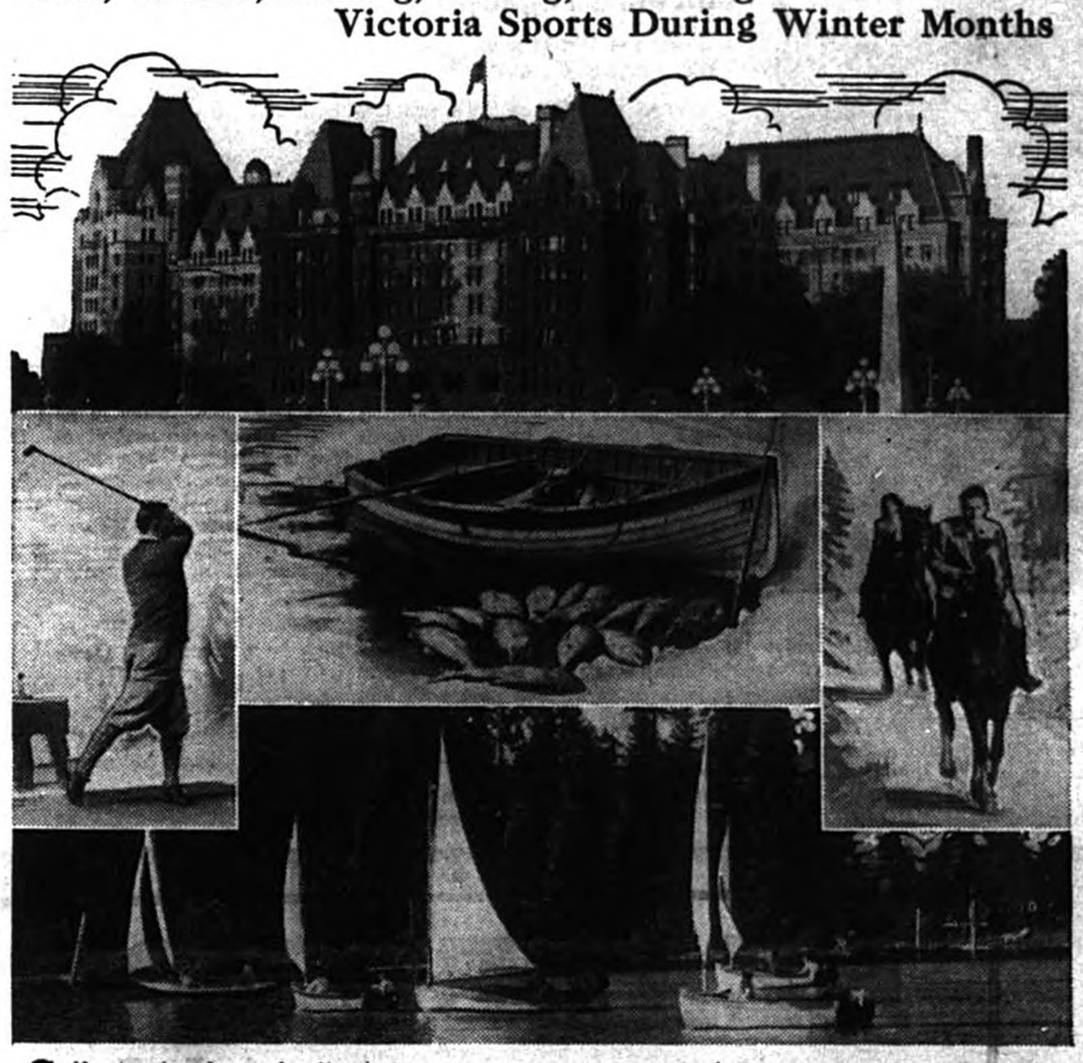

An alternative method is this : from time to time give yourself a day on which you say "Yes" to every request made of you which is at all reasonable. The more you tend to retire from society in your leisure, the more valuable this will be. You may find yourself invited to go sleigh-riding in your twenty-four hours; you may be invited to change your job.

The sleigh-ride should certainly be accepted, however much you may hate straw, thick blankets and cold weather. The job-changing, fortunately, can be submitted to examination, since it is only "reasonable" activities which you are to undertake without second thought. Don't be afraid nothing will occur on that day; it is astonishing how many small requests we can turn aside daily rather than interrupt our even course.

On this system, work out other disciplines which are good for your individual case. There are two ways of making them.

First, become aware of some weakness or inadequate performance on your part; then decide, perhaps after experiment, whether the way to correct it is to set yourself to doing the exact opposite, or whether—as in curing the habit of talking too much about one's own interests—acting a ludicrous and over-emphasized parody of the failing will be more effective.

Golf, Tennis, Fishing, Riding, Yachting Victoria Sports During Winter Months

Golf, tennis, lawn bowling, riding, hunting and fishing may be unusual winter sports for most of Canada but not for Victoria, beautiful Island capital of British Columbia, where snow is a novelty, flowers bloom throughout the year, and overcoats are excess baggage.

Winter golf is the sport that attracts widest notice to Victoria's wonderful year-round climate, but the West Coast has its pilgrims who are drawn there each winter by the splendid weather and the series of unusual sports and social attractions made possible by the fine weather.

Winter fishing is a major sport in Brantwood Bay where sizeable grilse and spring salmon are caught by trolling. Fly fishing for steelhead salmon up to 20 pounds is found in east-slope rivers such as the Oyster, Cowichan, Englishman's, Nanaimo, and Big and Little Qualicum.

Best known of the winter attractions is the Mid-Winter Golf Tournament which will be held this year on the Royal Colwood course, March 3-9. Keen competition, a sporty course and good golfing weather, added to the many prizes of which the most important is the trophy presented by Sir Edward Beatty, make the tourney one of the most popular in Canada.

Riding, hiking, lawn bowling, boating are but a few more sports that are as popular in Victoria in winter as in summer. Fiestas are arranged from time to time, named after flowers then in bloom. Probably the most picturesque celebration is the Christmas festival in Old English style, complete with boar's head, yule logs, wassail bowl and carols.

Victoria and the Empress Hotel have enjoyed a growing popularity in recent years. A real impetus has been given this season by the fact that foreign exchange under war pressure makes a Canadian dollar worth considerably more in Canada than in the United States.

Use of First Railroad Rail

Wooden rails for use in mines were used as early as 1555 on a tramroad near Barnard's Castle company, Durham, England The first use of iron plates to strengthen the wooden rails was at the Whitehaven collieries, Cumberland, England, in 1738. In 1754 iron plate rails were laid in a wagon way, connecting the Coalbrookdale Iron works in Shropshire with additional smelting furnaces at Horsehey. The first iron rail over which a train operated by a steam locomotive was on the Stockton & Darlington railway, England. This road was opened September 27, 1825.

BOY SCOUTS THE WORLD OVER

Former world's heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney has been elected to the Executive Board of the Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York.

A summer visitor to Canada was Juke Waterman, a Dutch Boy Scout from near Amsterdam , who came across to meet Saskatoon "pen pals" with whom he had been corresponding for some years.

A new kind of good turn came the way of Scouts on duty this year at the Ottawa fall fair—the fixing of ladies' high heels loosened while tramping about the grounds.

SUMMER OF SEA SCOUT CRUISING

A record summer of long distance cruising by Canadian Sea Scouts this year included 1,000-mile trips to the New York World's Fair by the Scout yawl Jellicoe and the auxiliary whaler Cutty Sark, a nine days' cruise of the Gulf of St. Lawrence by Quebec City Sea Scouts in the Curlew, and a two weeks' cruise of the Gulf of Georgia by Vancouver Scouts in their sailing life-boat Sea Lion. The visit of the Montreal Sea Scouts to New York was returned by 14 American Sea Scouts aboard the S.S.S. Flying Dutchman. Toronto and Oshawa Sea Scouts did considerable cruising about Lake Ontario.

4,000 SCOUTS' OUTDOOR CHURCH SERVICE

Four thousand Boy Scouts from the East Toronto districts of Danforth, Beach, Riverdale, Monarch Park, Gledhill and Woodbine, attended the annual East Toronto Scouts' Own church service at Riverdale Park. Clergymen of four churches conducted the service.

BLIND SCOUTS QUALIFY IN FIRST AID

LIFEBOAT FOR BROCKVILLE SEA SCOUTS

A large lifeboat formerly used by the life-saving station at Coburg, on Lake Ontario, has been acquired by the 7th Brockville Sea Scout Troop. The boat, which is 25 feet long, was purchased from the Dominion Department of Transport, and was delivered to the Sea Scouts by the government steamer Grenville.

P.E.I. LIEUT.-GOVERNOR'S TRIBUTE TO BOY SCOUT TRAINING

The Boy Scouts have enlisted my interest because I am convinced that the outdoor life and training, with the lessons in discipline, service, courtesy and little acts of human kindness which these young minds receive, cannot fail to produce the highest type of manhood. I like the Scout Promise. There is something about it that inspires one with confidence and courage every time you hear it repeated . . . . I for one believe that these boys will develop into men who will carry our civilization to the highest point it has ever reached.—From farewell message of Lt.-Gov. George D. DeBlois of Prince Edward Island at the conclusion of his period of office.

A Quebec Scout Group charter has been issued for a Troop and Cub Pack of Indian Boys at Port George, on James Bay, 600 miles from Montreal.

BUILDERS of CANADA

Louis Hébert

Louis Hébert, Canada's first practical farmer, was a member of that little colony at Port Royal (Annapolis Royal) who, in 1605, first attempted to cultivate Canadian soil. Later, in 1616, he settled in Quebec, made a clearing on the heights of Cape Diamond, cultivated it with his own hands, acquired a fief and became, except for Champlain, the leading citizen of Quebec. Above is depicted a monument to his memory which today stands in the City of Quebec.

SEED TIME and HARVEST

IN those far-off days Louis Hébert had no bank to give him assistance or encouragement. Today it is different. This Century-old Bank, actuated by a genuine desire to promote Canada's basic industry, always welcomes opportunities to serve the agricultural community.

Lincoln's Legacy

DR. FRANK CRANE

A great man leaves the world two legacies. One is the ideal which inspires young people to become more serviceable and worth while. The other comprises those speeches of common-sense and idealism that we remember and repeat and revere because the great man said them. In time they become part of the thought of those who repeat them and have an influence upon their lives.

Such are Thomas Jefferson's: "Let error be free so long as Truth is free to combat it"; Theodore Roosevelt's: "The law of worthy life is fundamentally the law of strife"; and Benjamin Franklin's: "Diligence is the mother of good luck."

Few men have left a richer legacy of the second form than Abraham Lincoln. Put this nugget from the mine of his understanding up somewhere in a place where you will see it every day: "Stand with anybody that stands right. Stand with him while he is right, and part with him when he goes wrong."

Only the rare and the great man is able to do that.

Here are two tests: When the one you dislike most says something right, can you take his side? When the one you admire and like best, is on the wrong side, does the fact that you like him blind you to the error?

Everyone has his pet hate. It may be a man in public life, a newspaper, a writer of books, or an attitude of mind. When he meets it, it acts like a red flag to a bull. The test of that person's character is whether he can recognize the right when it comes from one of his hates. You can't go very far in life without meeting the problem.

The easy thing to do is to condemn all the ideas of those with whom you disagree in the main. Most people don't like the ideas of the ones they don't like. They judge ideas on the basis of who said them. Everyone is a mixture of truth and error. Even the people we dislike. Only a Silurian-brained individual can get up a pure unadulterated hate. Others catch the occasional gleam of goodness and truth that is present in the worst.

Emerson says somewhere that a man is cultured "as soon as he sides with his critic against himself, with joy." Similarly, a man begins to become great, in the Lincoln sense of the word, when he arrives at the place where he can stand with anybody that stands right as long as they are right, without regard to his likes and dislikes.

When Lincoln was assassinated the mortal part of him disappeared, but the better part, his spiritual influence, still lingers. Around him has grown up, perhaps, a wealth of myths, but most of them serve to give point to his character. He will remain for all time as the inspiration to the youth of the world, who can do no better than to imitate his sterling honesty, his sense of humour and his strong sense of right.

Early Use of Submarines

Contrary to general belief, the World war did not see the first submarine attack. In 1776 a Continental one-man submersible attempted to plant a bomb in the hull of a British ship in New York harbor. the bomb however, exploded harmlessly, says the National Geographic society: Undersea craft were tried out in the War of 1812 and again when the Danish blockaded the German coast in 1850. It remained for the American Civil war to finish the lesson. Although the price paid in life and lost ships was heavy, the Confederate "Davids" (so-called because of comparison in size with Federal "Goliaths") finally proved to the world that undersea vessels could effectively damage and sink enemy craft.

Old Connecticut's Fame

In all its history, Connecticut probably never received such glorification as it did at the hands of De Tocqueville, the famous Frenchman, when, speaking at a Fourth of July dinner in Paris some 90 years ago, he said: "Dere vas one leetle spot called Connect-de-coot. I found by de Constitution he was entitled to six of his boys to represent him in de House of Representatives. But I found dat more than 30 on dat floor was born in Connect-de-coot. And den ven I was in de Senate, I find de Constitution permit dis State two of his boys and I find nine of the Senators was born in Connect-de-coot. And now for my grand sentiment— Connect-de-coot, de little yellow spot on de map, dat make de clock-pedler, the schoolmaster, and de Senator; de first give you time, de second tell you what to do with him, and de third make your law and civilization."

HEADED FOR BANKRUPTCY with Duplessis

1 What is the word of Mr. Duplessis worth? . . . Instead of reducing taxes, as he had promised, he has increased them to an unbearable load. How has he used these revenues?

2 An increase of $73,184,430 — just 200%! But it doesn't seem to worry Mr. Duplessis. At Sherbrooke, he said: "Yes, we have spent millions of dollars, and we will continue to do so, even though our children will have to pay for it!"

3 And that's not all! . . . What about the 23,000 cheques issued by the Government and which had to be honoured by the banks although no provisions had been made?

4 In three years, an increase of $41.65 per capita — 73%! About $208.25 for every family!

5 The last two loans of the province have cost the phenomenal sum of $1,384,000 in commissions and brokerage charges — that is, an average of 2.35%. The charges on the total number of loans amount to $5,569,500 — a complete loss to the province!

6 "Surpluses"? Yes, a "surplus" of failure! Mr. Duplessis himself admitted this in the prospectus filed at Washington when he obtained his big loan in the United States.

Among the Churches

United Y.P.S.

The Lachute United Young People's Society held their first meeting of the season last evening in the church hall, with about 20 members present. The president, Mr. Harold Deacon, was in the chair. Plans were made for the raising of the necessary year's allocation.

The program was under the citizenship convenor, Clifford Armstrong. Miss Ruth LeCras favored with two piano solos and Mae Gordon with two vocal numbers. Fire Chief George Y. Deacon gave a very interesting talk on fire prevention and measures that should be taken to reduce fire losses.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was held last evening, with about 20 members attending. The opening exercises were followed by a brief business meeting, plans for the Hallowe'en party being under consideration. This party is to be held at the home of president, Jean Black, on Friday, October 27th. An announcement was made of the Fall Rally being held this coming Saturday at St. Lambert, Que., and a delegation to represent this Society is planning to attend. The evening's program consisted of a "travelette" by two club members, Allan Walker and Cecil McFaul, who gave interesting accounts of their trip to New York City and the World's Fair. Next week's meeting is to be held as usual, with final details of the forthcoming party to be completed.

Brownsburg United

Brownsburg—The Rev T. C. Cassidy, of Montreal, a former pastor, was special preacher at the anniversary service in Brownsburg United Church last Sunday morning, taking as his text Rom. I :14, "I am debtor." Mr. Cassidy prefaced his sermon in speaking of the delight it gave him to return after ten years absence and meet so many of his former friends. Referring to his text Mr. Cassidy said, "The man that has what the other man needs, is a debtor to that other man." It was not the law of greed where the superior owned and used the inferior, but the law of love and service which enabled the inferior to assimilate and enjoy the superior qualities of life—drawing the illustration from the mother and the child, in its dependence and trust upon the strength and power and sacrifice of superior qualities of affection.

A special anniversary offering was taken. The Pastor, Rev. S. J. Pike, conducted the service, welcoming Mr. Cassidy back to his former pulpit—and intimating as to the large place he still holds in the affection and esteem of the congregation.

St. Andrews East Services And Group Meetings

St. Andrews E—The thank-offering service of the W.M.S. was held in the United Church on Wednesday evening, Oct 11.

The opening devotions were led by Mrs. J. Esdon and Mrs. V. F. Lilly, with Miss H. Wales at the organ. The minister gave a heart-searching talk on the service of the W.M.S. members to their community as well as to the foreign field. "The radio, telegraph, and airplane make known to the far corners of the earth," he said, "what is done and said in Canada." Thus it behoves each member to substantiate in her own home and community life, the sort of teaching that the missionaries, whom they support, are conveying abroad. By insincerity and intolerance they cause some to turn away from the Kingdom of God. Now that most parts of the world are brought into neighborly relations with each other, the auxiliary which serves faithfully in all department of the society, is fulfilling its mission. To meet a stipulated allocation and then consider their duty done, is to fall short of the aims to which they are pledged.

The president thanked the Rev. J. A. Mowatt for his kindly counsel, and was seconded by Mrs. M. M. Yale.

The Anglican W.A. met at the home of Mrs. T. Ball on Thursday afternoon. There was a fair attendance considering the bad weather. Plans were discussed for a dinner to take place early in November, possibly in the United Church hall. The bedspread donated by Mrs. T. Ball has been quilted and finished at her home, with the aid of several members. The W.A. express their keen appreciation of the kindly interest taken by Mrs. Ball in the Dorcas department of the work. Tea was served after the closing prayers.

St. Andrews East branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society held their annual meeting on Monday evening, Oct. 16th, in the United Church. Rev. Jas. Adams' illustrated lecture, "British Kings and the Bible" proved most interesting. Total subscriptions amounted to $65.75.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Mowatt left by motor on Monday for the New England States, where they will spend a ten days' vacation. The service on Sunday will be conducted by a student from Montreal Theological College. The following Sunday, Rev. Andrew J. Mowatt, of Hudson, Que., will occupy the pulpit.

Marriage

White-McFaul

The marriage of Miss Elva G. McFaul, daughter of Mr. G. I. McFaul and the late Mrs. McFaul, to Mr. Harry W. White, son of the late Wm. White and of Mrs. White, took place on Saturday, October 14th, at three thirty o'clock, in the Brownsburg United Church, the Rev. S. J. Pike officiating.

Mrs. A. Gordon, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor, and Miss Anne Williams was bridesmaid. Mr. W. White, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. A. Gordon and Mr. J. White. Miss Eleanor Hanson played the wedding march and during the signing of the register played Lizst's Liebestraum.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin made on princess lines with a very full skirt extending into a long train in the back. Over the gown she wore a tightly fitted jacket trimmed with net ruching around the high neckline and down the front and having long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her veil of tulle illusion fell from a halo wreath of orange blossoms and extended beyond her train. She carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The matron of honour wore a gown of dusty rose satin with a bustle bow at the back and having a full skirt ending in a short train. Over the gown she wore a short bolero jacket. On her head she wore a flowered headdress with a shoulder length veil in front and falling to the waist at the back. The bridesmaid wore a gown and head-dress in Ice Blue, the same style as that of the matron of honour. Both carried bouquets of Columbia roses and blue cornflowers, and wore silver slippers.

Out-of-town guests included—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryant, Miss Evelyn Bryant and Mr. H. Jordan, all of Outremont; Captain and Mrs. Walter McBroom, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Lambertson and family of Interlaken, New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy visited friends in Shawbridge on Saturday last.

Messrs. Geo., William and George Watchorn, Jr., spent Monday in Montreal.

Mr. Thos. McCullough, of Montreal, also Miss F. Murdoch, of Brownsburg, visited friends here last week.

Provincial W.C.T.U. Convention Held at Granby, Que.

The 55th provincial convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union—which was attended by three Cushing ladies, Mrs. W. Usher as second provincial vice-president, Mrs. A. Graham, Quebec Editor, and Mrs. S. O. Hartley, delegate for the Argenteuil and Vaudreuil Unions—was held in Granby the second week of October with a large attendance of members from all parts of the province. The oldest member present was Mrs. J. Geggie, of Beauport, who was 85 years of age and the only living charter member of the province. Mrs. Geggie has been Convenor of Legislation for Quebec for more than 53 years and is still actively working along that line.

Among the important visitors who attended for a time, were Lady Forget, mother of Madame Pierre Casgrain, and Madame Beique, both of Montreal. These ladies requested the co-operation of the members with women who are so actively interesting themselves in votes for women, in this so-far-behind-in-that-matter province. Madame Beique was the speaker, and spoke very eloquently for the cause of women's rights.

Guests at luncheon, outside of the clerical brotherhood, were Mayor Boivin, of Granby, Alderman J. G. Fuller and Mr. Walter Legge, editor of the Granby Leader Mail.

Mayor Boivin welcomed the convention very warmly and expressed the hope that, instead of it being 30 years before the next W.C.T.U. convention was held in Granby, it might be not less than five. The Mayor described the industries of the town, their new parks and the "bon entente" existing between the two races. This he hoped, would continue not only in Granby but all over the Dominion, and that we would always be a part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Alderman Fuller warmly seconded the Mayor's welcome and congratulated the members of convention in having reached this stage of their being, the centennary of the birth of their great leader, Frances Willard, when all other temperance organizations formed so many years ago had passed out of existence. In speaking of the lack of manly interest for want of time and other reasons, Mr. Fuller repeated a parody on a verse of the Psalm of Life.

"In this world of toil and struggle
In the modern rush of life,
You will find the temperance hero
Represented by his wife."

Mr. Legge in a short address said what struck him so forcibly was the work which the W.C.T.U. was doing by way of Scientific Temperance Education among the children. He had been watching that for some time and hoped that the W.C.T.U. would be encouraged in its continuance..

Another speaker of great interest was Mr. Henry J. Moore, of Islington, Ont., the originator of the International Peace Garden between Manitoba and the United States, in whose honor a bronze tablet stating this fact has been placed on the monument erected in the garden to commemorate so many years of peace between the two countries. Mr. Moore spoke very strongly on the causes of war,

ARUNDEL

The many friends of Mrs. Lilla Padgett, a former resident of Arundel, were sorry to hear of her sudden passing at her home in Los Angeles, Cal.

Mr. James Brechin, of Grenville Bay, and Mr. George Moncrieff, visited friends here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke were week-end guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Cooke.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the manse on Wednesday last.

Congratulations to Mrs. William Thomson, who celebrated her 92nd birthday on Wednesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cooke.

Misses L. Mattinson and Muriel Graham, and Mr. Melvin Graham, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Graham.

The regular meeting of the C.G.I.T. was held at the manse on Friday evening.

Miss Ethel Morrison, of Montreal, was a Sunday guest of her sister, Miss J. Morrison.

The many friends of Mrs. Jane Rathwell are pleased to see her home again after having undergone an operation at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Messrs. Albert Ward and Arthur Woods, from Cambria, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Bennett.

Mr. W. Richards and Mr. G. Bennett, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Boyd.

Mrs. Lloyd Bennett and daughter, Gwen, were recent visitors of Mrs. Margaret Boyd.

By Mary E. Dague
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

Delightful as it would be, very few of us are able to furnish a new home completely when we first move into it. But after all, it's not necessary, and for myself, I like to prolong the thrill of buying new furniture and making changes in my rooms.

For the bride who must choose the first essentials in furnishings, it's wise to begin by purchasing simple things of good quality which may later be shifted to other rooms. For example, I knew a bride who started off her dining room with a gateleg table and Windsor chairs. In a few years, when she was able to furnish her dining room with the permanent pieces of her dreams, the gateleg table was promoted to the living room and the chairs were scattered throughout the house.

In a similar fashion, maple pieces in a living room can be demoted to the sunroom when mahogany and walnut can be afforded for a more formal living room.

So first of all, make a list of the furniture you must have in order to begin keeping house—if you are a bride. Then, whether you are a bride or a housekeeper of long standing just moving into a new house, make a list of the furniture you like and want to finally acquire. Then check with your budget, the architecture of your home, your style of living and the habits and occupations of the members of your family.

This presents the whole plan at a glance and enables you to choose wisely, so that each addition brings you just so much nearer to your heart's desire.

Fall is an excellent time to start new lawns and repair old ones. Mellow, moist soil is essential for germinating the seed, and cool weather aids in developing deep roots. The seed bed should be deeply dug, finely raked, and well fertilized. Sow seed at the rate of four pounds to 100 square feet of lawn. Then roll or firm the seed into the soil.

In an old lawn that is being renewed, loosen the soil and feed it well before sprinkling the grass seed.

There's a new straight-sided glass saucepan that has more uses than you can count on both hands. You will find it perfectly at home on top of the stove, in the oven, in the refrigerator or at the table. It's light, to handle and easy to wash, as well as being most attractive. For a shower or bridge prize, it would be sure to please any woman who does her own work.

A MILLION DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS DENOTE CONFIDENCE

You, too, will enjoy banking AT CANADA'S PIONEER BANK

Here is a letter from a school teacher recently received among numerous others by one of our branches observing the 50th anniversary of its establishment:

"I write to congratulate the C---- branch of the Bank of Montreal on the celebration of its jubilee anniversary; and to wish it continued prosperity and success.

"As one of the smaller depositors in your bank I have been enrolled there for most of the fifty years; and have certainly appreciated the courtesy and friendliness of the staff—and the feeling of safety which the name 'Bank of Montreal' has always meant to me.

"Hoping our future relations may be equally pleasant, and that many new friends may be added to your list,

PRACTICAL HELP

As usual the Women's Institutes have been practical and have made jam in many centres, to send to England. There will be many willing hands when we know what is most wanted. The jam could not wait and the Institutes were up and at it. In the Great War there was a great waste through the poor knitting that was done by many of the workers. Knitting was out of fashion and there were very few who knew how. Hand-knit things have been worn for years and there are a great many good knitters now. There are plenty of school-girls who knit well, as well as those older, so the soldiers should not have to suffer from mistakes in knitting. Those of us who cannot knit might buy wool for those who can.

THE HARD-OF-HEARING

It is queer the way some diseases have a corresponding mental condition. Some make a person very depressed and melancholy, others are invariably optimistic, in tuberculosis. Deafness seems to be associated with sensitiveness. The hard-of-hearing will struggle against it until they are considered stupid rather than acknowledge their condition. A person who does not see well does not mind saying so but not the deaf person. The person with failing sight will use any assistance in seeing but the deaf waits until the last ditch before using any of the contrivances which may help them hear. I knew a pretty girl who gave the impression of being plain dumb. She seldom said anything but just smiled sweetly, or would content herself with yes and no and too often said them at the wrong time. Beautiful but dumb seemed to fit her exactly. Finally, she became so deaf it could not be hidden, and she seldom left the house. We found that actually she was unusually bright but was so sensitive about her deafness that she would not acknwledg it. This sensitiveness is added to the burden of the deaf. A school for the blind is usually a very happy place as the blind or those who are nearly so, are a happy optimistic people. Somehow, the blind get more sympathy than the deaf. Deaf people have to use a great deal of their potential energy in their struggle to hear, so they are apt to tire easily. A little thought would help us make things easier for our deaf friends. If a child is not doing well at school, it is wise to be sure he hears well, as even slight deafness makes a difference.

'ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL'

Just after writing this, I went to see 'Alexander Graham Bell'. It is a very fine picture and gives one an added sympathy for the deaf. We could do with a lot more pictures of this kind. Brantford was incensed over the fact that no mention of it was made in the picture. As a sop they have inserted a picture of the Bell home and the Memorial in Brantford to Alexander Graham Bell.

ELECTRIC WAFFLE IRONS

Electric waffle irons are becoming very popular. Brides get them for wedding presents, mothers get them at Christmas, and others just go out and buy them. Waffles always have been popular but they were trickey to cook and were not generally made. A good electric waffle iron is almost fool-proof, so it is no wonder more people are buying them. There are many good waffle recipes. Adding melted butter and a beaten egg to a prepared pancake flour is a quick trick. We were invited out to supper last night and had waffles and sausages, much to the delight of the boy of the family—to say nothing of his parents. The meal was perfectly planned and is one that has evolved from many trials, I imagine. First we had lentil coup. While we were eating our soup, the hostess poured in the first lot of waffles and they were ready to eat by the time we had finished our soup. After we had eaten plenty of waffles with maple syrup, and little browned sausages, we had apple-sauce and cookies for dessert. It was perfect dessert, light, and not too sweet. Fresh apple-sauce is at its best right now, but later in the season another fruit might be chosen; grapefruit would fit the menu admirably.

WAFFLES

2 cups flour, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons melted butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat the egg yolks until light and add the milk and melted butter. Stir into the sifted dry ingredients, fold in the stiffly beaten egg-whites. My friend says that these are improved by letting the batter stand in the refrigerator an hour or two before using. If there is any batter left over at night, she keeps it in the refrigerator and uses it for breakfast the next morning.

ROAST LAMB CHOPS

Have loin lamb chops cut about two inches thick. Roll the chops and wrap each one with a strip of bacon and tie into shape. Season with salt and pepper and roast in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for about 50 minutes. Boil potatoes until almost tender, drain, cut in quarters and put around the meat for the last half-hour. Baste once or twice to help brown them. Baked squash is a suitable vegetable and there you are with your dinner all in the oven. Pare the squash and cut in squares large enough for individual service. Rub in a little brown sugar to the inside surface and dot with butter. Season with salt and pepper and put these in the oven at the same time you put in the chops. It is to be hoped you have some home-made mint jelly to serve with this. If you haven't you can buy it, you know.

What's in a Name ?

By Frances Lee Barton

The recipe below is called "Chocolate Cottage Pudding," but to me "Chocolate Mansion Pudding" would be equally appropriate. The pudding is economical enough to be served in the most humble cottage but delicious enough to grace the table of our most elaborate mansion.

Chocolate Cottage Pudding

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream well. Add egg yolks and beat thoroughly; then chocolate and vanilla. Add flour, alternately with milk, heating after each addition until smooth. Fold in egg whites. Turn into a greased pan, 8x8x2 inches. Bake in moderate oven (325° F.) 50 minutes, or until done Remove from pan. Serve warm or cold with plain or whipped cream. Serves 12.

BUT THEY SANG

Mother : "Well William, did you do anything beside eat at the Sunday school picnic."

William : "Yes mummie; we sang a hymn called "We can Sing, Full Though We Be."

one of them being selfishness. He illustrated his lecture with colored pictures of the garden, in the making, and as it is now, and also of quite a number of the workers. The Women's Institute plot, of which he had several views, was very beautiful.

Rev. T. W. Jones, of Montreal, on another evening gave a vivid and inspiring account of the life of Frances Willard, depicting in glowing terms her works of tenderness and mercy. Frances Willard, he declared, had a wonderful background; this he traced back until the time of the freeing of the slaves in the United States, due in large measure to some of her predecessors, one of whom had taken a poor emancipated slave into his own house and brought him to his dinner table, to the dismay of certain members of his family. One of his daughters in an attempt to have this slave removed from the table said that her sister Sophia had a delicate constitution and felt that it would upset her stomach to have to eat at the same table as this black man. "Could he not wait?", she asked. The thundered reply she received was, "No ! He cannot wait; but she can." To a background like that Rev. Mr. Jones thought that Frances Willard owed her tenacity of purpose and spiritual outlook on life . ...

Many beautiful solos were rendered by Granby friends, also sacred music by the choir and the church organist, Mr. Saddler, who was in attendance. Mrs. F. R. Matthews, of Lennoxville, paid tribute to those lost by death during the year, of which there were 30 in number, the first name to be read from the list being that of our own Mrs. John Hodgson, of Carillon. A white carnation was placed in a vase as each name was read.

Mrs. Henry Wilson, of Athelstan, read the tribute to Their Majesties, the King and Queen, and Mrs. Reese, of Athelstan, L.T.L. leader for the Dominion, conducted the Children's Hour. The members of the Mission Band, under leadership of Mrs. (Rev.) T. Scott, entertained the convention with two short temperance plays which showed that they had grasped the meaning of their temperance teachings, especially in the play "You Can't Fool Us."

Wakefield Loyal Temperance Legion won the silver cup 'for keeps,' for the second time. Sutton "Y" won both the silver cup and the banner for greatest increase in membership and for the best program during the year. Madison W.C.T.U., of Montreal, were adult winners of the cup for the greatest percentage of membership increase.

Mrs. Jas. Mabon, a one-time Lachute resident, and president of the Quebec Unions, in her annual address extolled the work done along the line of temperance by our Roman Catholic friends, who gave such valuable assistance during the interviewing of the CBC on the question of broadcasting liquor advertising over the radio. She also expressed satisfaction in the action of members and organizations petitioning our Minister of Defence for the abolishing of the "Wet Canteen" in soldiers' training camps, knowing that "alcohol has definite poisonous effects upon the brain and nervous system of man, and it is by its depressant and habit-forming narcotic action that this drug interferes with self-control, judgment, discretion and physical mental efficiency." The above quotation is from the lips of an eminent physician, Haven Emerson, M.D.

Who will help us in this work by petitioning Hon. Norman Rogers for abolishment of the "Wet canteen?" Our boys need their self-control, and their physical and mental efficiency in what is before them in this great war menace.

The DOCTOR Tells the Story

DANCING

Dancing is the child of Music and of Love, says the poet, but often it is the product of a diseased mind, as I shall endeavor to demonstrate, and the play of limbs and rhythmic bodily movements of the dance only too frequently indicate mental maladies.

Primitive men danced to keep themselves agile and to give vent to their pent up emotions. Then religion made dancing a part of its ceremonies.

There was nothing graceful or beautiful in these early dances, for they consisted of jumping up and down and howling, and lacked cadence and rhythm.

The eary Egyptians, about 5,000 B.C. began to make dancing an expressive art, and later David danced before the Ark; and the ancient Hebrews had imposing dances for various religious festivals. The Greeks and Romans added oak leaves and garlands of flowers to the sinuous movements of the body.

The Howling Dervishes, the Devil Dance of the Lamas in Thibet, the Nautch Dances of India and the various dances of the North and South American Indians, were all religious interpretations.

Even the early Christian Churches favored dances, for in the church of St. Pancras, in Rome, there still exists a stage near the altar, where priests and the congregation danced, led by the Bishop.

This has since been discontinued, for a Papal decree abolished this form of worship in 744, since which time dancing has become a form of social entertainment. The minuet was developed in 1650 in France; the waltz in 1770 in Germany, from which point it swept over both the Old and the New World.

Unquestionably the greatest exhibition of mass hysteria was during the Fifteenth century, which gave birth to the so-called Dance Mania, one of the "queerest emotional disorders that ever affected large groups of human beings," says Dr. Howard W. Haggard.

Perhaps it had its inception in the numerous unusual emotional disturbances which typified the opening of that century.

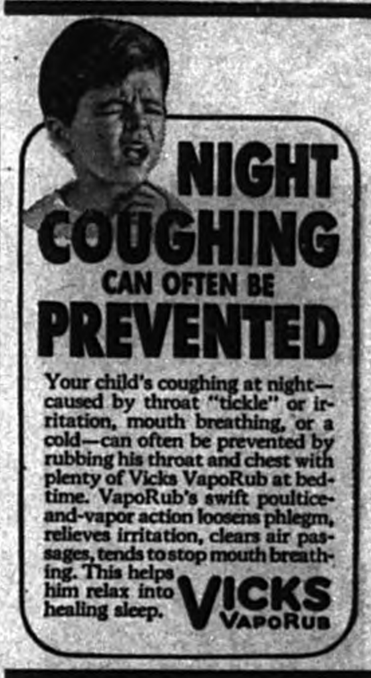

Unheralded throughout Germany and France, groups of people would gather in the open places and public squares of cities and villages, join hands to form an enormous ring, and proceed to dance, slowly at first but rapidly afterwards, contorting their bodies, their eyes glazed, screaming and jumping in wild excitement, as froth dripped from their mouths.

Ultimately they fell exhausted, their places in the ring of hysterical people being promptly taken by others who went through the same gyrations, finally to collapse.

Along country roads these mad masses wended their way, recruits joining them. Stores closed, business came to a standstill and crowds of curious followed the syncopators. Lost children, whose parents had become deranged, added to the excitement.

In 1418, this mania reached its climax in Strasbourg, Germany, and one observer noted more than 2,500 men and women, hands clasped with their neighbors, in a gigantic ring, executing this wild dance.

Finally it disappeared and since then has not disturbed mankind.

Your child's coughing at night—caused by throat "tickle" or irritation, mouth breathing, or a cold—can often be prevented by rubbing his throat and chest with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. VapoRub's swift poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation, clears air passages, tends to stop mouth breathing. This helps him relax into healing sleep. VICKS VAPORUB

Canada's Postal Service

Canada's first postal service dates back to the French regime, when letters of the governor and the intendant were carried by an appointed messenger, who was also permitted to carry mail intrusted to him by private persons. The fee allowed the messenger by the intendant commission was 10 sous for a letter between Quebec and Montreal, and 5 sous to Three Rivers, with proportionate charges for greater or shorter distances. The first of these couriers was Pierre de Silva, known as "the Portuguese" who received his commission from Raudot, the intendant, in 1705. When Canada came under British rule the first regular postal service was established in 1763 by Benjamin Franklin, then deputy postmaster general for the American colonies, who opened a post office at Quebec with subordinate offices at Three Rivers and Montreal.

Seaweed Is Used as Food Also for Healing Wounds

Many of the edible seaweeds contain valuable properties such as iodine, iron and other useful, curative marine salts. From the time of Pliny onwards they have been extolled for their nourishing and healing powers, according to an authority in London Answers Magazine.

On the west coast of Ireland a seaweed called dillisk, after being chopped up fine, forms the basis of a stew made with shellfish, milk, potatoes and oatmeal.

Lord Bacon remarked of the roots of the sea holly that if added to Malmsey wine in which the yolks of eggs had been beaten, "such drinke will strengthen the back." Candy was also made from this plant in the Seventeenth century by Robert Burton, an apothecary of Colchester.

Sloke is a popular seaweed in South Wales, large quantities being consumed in the form of laverbread. It also possesses remarkable healing powers when applied over an open sore or cut.

Holiday-makers on most of our coasts are familiar with bladderwrack, the coarse seaweed which litters the beaches after a heavy gale. The bladders with which the plant is studded are full of a glutinous substance much used as an external embrocation after being steeped in spirit.

Electors of the County of Argenteuil:

After a unanimous convention of the Liberal delegates of the County of Argenteuil, I stand before you for the third time and ask for a renewal of my mandate as your representative in the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Quebec.

According to the constitution, my mandate had two years more to run, but Mr. Duplessis, faced with financial bankruptcy, seized the opportunity of the turmoil of war to hide his evil administration behind the smoke-screen of the war cry, thus hoping to bring about disunion, hate and ill-feeling among our fellow citizens. But this desperate and criminal move is acting as a boomerang which will bring him down in defeat.

As the official Liberal candidate, I fully endorse the program of the Hon. Adélard Godbout, leader of the Provincial party. I am proud to serve under such a chief whose main fault, according to his political opponents, is that he is "too honest to be in politics".

I follow Mr. Godbout's policies in accepting the statements of Messrs. King, Lapointe, Cardin and Power in the present national emergency.

Confident in the national spirit of my fellow citizens of English descent, I know that they will not be lured by the shameful tactics of Mr. Duplessis in shifting the blame of the present election on the shoulders of the Federal Government. If our opponents are willing to wage the battle in that field, let them remember that we, the people of Argenteuil, are satisfied and pleased with the Federal Government to whose policies we owe a 24-hour-a-day humming of our industrial plants located in Lachute, Brownsburg, Kilmar and elsewhere. For the laborers, these activities mean the end of unemployment, of misery and poverty.

The resignation of Mr. Layton, one of the English speaking representatives in the Duplessis Government, shows clearly that the English speaking people will not fall for Mr. Duplessis' political stratagem; you know a vote for Dansereau is a vote for Godbout, a vote for Godbout is a vote for King and Lapointe, a vote for national unity.

The Liberal platform affects the vital interests of our laborers. The program of the Liberal party is a comprehensive and progressive one. It includes reforms and legislations concerning the working, farming classes. The Liberal party has always been concerned with the welfare of the workers. In many phases, it has been a pioneer in social legislation. We will fully cooperate with the Federal Government for unemployment relief works; we will continue the road works. Those in progress in this county will be continued and I assure the laborers that they will retain their employment on the road when we spring into power on the 25th of October.

To the farmers of this county the Hon. Godbout is a well-known man and they feel assured that the agricultural class will be well taken care of under his able guidance.

Among other measures of legislation, we advocate the vote for women in the provincial elections.

I feel that I have always acted to the best of my knowledge and ability, and tried in every way to serve and help the people of my constituency. Brought up in this county, I am deeply interested in the welfare of its people and I believe that I know their needs and interests.

I ask your support and your vote, not only in my behalf, but in behalf of the whole of Canada, so that you will send to the Legislative Assembly the representative of a party who will work for the unity and harmony of Canada.

Electors of Argenteuil, I know that you will not fail Canada in this national crisis, and that you will vote for the Liberal party.

I thank you,

Electeurs du Comté d'Argenteuil:

Choix unanime d'une convention libérale des délégués du comté d'Argenteuil, approuvé par le parti libéral et mon chef Adélard Godbout, je viens pour le troisième fois devant vous, électeurs d'Argenteuil, vous demander de renouveler mon mandat de député à l'Assemblé Législative de Québec. D'après la constitution, ce mandat était valable pour cinq ans, mais le premier ministre de la province, acculé à une faillite financière, a décidé soudainement de tenir des élections dans l'espérance que les bruits de la guerre couvriraient la résonnance de ses coffres-forts vides.

Candidat Libéral officiel, j'endosse complètement le programme du chef libéral l'Hon. Adélard Godbout, je suis fier et heureux de me réclamer d'un pareil chef dont le plus grand défaut d'après ses adversaires politiques "est d'être trop honnête pour faire de la politique".

Je revendique la politique de M. Godbout qui est celle de King, de Lapointe, disciple de Laurier, de Cardin, dans la présente élection. Je connais trop bien le bon sens, l'intelligence et la finesse de mes électeurs pour croire que la lutte électorale portée par nos adversaires sur le terrain fédéral, leur fera oublier les erreurs et les fautes du gouvernement Duplessis. D'ailleurs, ouvriers d'Argenteuil, c'est dû à la politique du gouvernement fédéral que les usines de Lachute, de Brownsburg, de Kilmar et autres travaillent à plein rendement et éloignent devant vos yeux le spectre de la misère et du chômage.

Vous savez que les libéraux comme par le passé, sauront protéger efficacement vos intérêts au sein de la Confédération, vous savez qu'un vote pour Dansereau est un vote pour Godbout, qu'un vote pour Godbout est un vote pour Lapointe et qu'un vote pour Lapointe est un vote pour le maintien et l'avancement de notre prestige et de nos droits et de l'unité nationale.

Le programme libéral est un programme constructif de législations ouvrières agricoles et sociales. Le parti libéral a toujours aidé les ouvriers. Ce fut, sous un gouvernement libéral, que les contrats collectifs furent introduits pour la première fois en Amérique. Nous coopérerons complètement avec le gouvernement fédéral pour assurer des travaux de chômage; nous continuerons et intensifierons les travaux actuels de voirie en cours dans Argenteuil. Les journaliers d'Argenteuil actuellement occupés à ces travaux de voirie peuvent être confiants que leur emploi continuera d'être assuré après le victoire libérale du 25 octobre.

J'ai conscience d'avoir toujours travaillé dans le meilleur des intérêts de ce comté et tous ceux qui viendront comme par le passé, solliciter mon appui pour des oeuvres louables, seront assurés de mon entier concours et appui. Elevé dans Argenteuil, j'en connais très bien les intérêts et j'ai à coeur le progrès et la prospérité de ce comté.

Je vous demande donc votre vote pour le 25 octobre prochain, non seulement pour moi mais pour envoyer à la chambre, un représentant du parti libéral qui continuera l'oeuvre d'unité et d'harmonie que nos adversaires essaient de détruire.

Georges-Etienne Dansereau

More Activity on Canadian Soil Than in the Last World War

GOVT. BUILDING SPACE IN DEMAND FOR OCCUPANCY OF NEW BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS; THOROUGH SURVEY OF RESOURCES IS PRIME MOVE

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

Ottawa, October 24 — So many things are happening in so many different spheres of action that it is not easy in a concise review to seize upon the more significant items and weave them into a complete story. . . All that an alert correspondent hears cannot be told, because it might divulge useful information to the enemy.

The Government is attempting to satisfy some of the legitimate curiosity of Canadians by launching a series of "Periodic Broadcasts on the Work of the Fighting Services."

Canada is of course fighting on the financial, economic and idealogical fronts as well as in a military way. It would be just as reprehensible to disclose some of the financial and economic secrets as the military ones.

Fortunately most people realize that many things are going on all over the country about which they will not be aware until the hostilities are over, and that it is not in the public interest to disclose them. They accept the situation.

NUMEROUS BOARDS

One index of the far-flung activity of the Canadian Government is the way in which boards and commissions are springing up at the capital, taxing the floor space and other facilities. During the recess some of the sessional space is being used, but when Parliament is called it will have to be given up. A temporary office building is to be rushed on Wellington Street, to be built, it is said, in four weeks. Space has been commandeered at short notice in other office buildings, private lessees being rather unceremoniously ousted. Fortunately for the Government the Confederation and Justice Buildings are available, and the new Supreme Court Building will be finished before long. Residence rentals are being affected, too, and the realtors of Ottawa expect that by the end of this year practically all houses and apartments will be occupied. If the war is protracted, this situation is sure to be accentuated, because the direction of the war will mainly come from here, and far more of the war effort in this war is being undertaken on Canadian soil than in the last war.

SURVEY OF RESOURCES

The first stage of any major operation such as Canada's participation in the conflict, involves a complete survey of resources. Some of this had been done before the war, and the material for the rest of it was, largely, in existence at the outbreak. But it has been necessary to coordinate the information.

The farm resources of Canada, for example, are reasonably well known to start with. The Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists in conjunction with agricultural schools and colleges is available for any draft upon the scientists and administrators. Similarly, a survey of technical research in other lines is being made. A third step of that kind was the meeting last week of the employment agencies so as to take stock of skilled workmen and assist in placing such men as they are needed by industry.

Financial resources have been appraised and the first mobilization has taken place. Funds are being placed at the disposal of the British Government to assist them in buying wheat and other war supplies from Canada. It is interesting to note the change which 25 years brings. In the early stages of the last war the shoe was on the other foot; Canada had to be financed by London and later by New York before it was considered practicable to float the first Canadian War Loan.

CONSERVATION OF SUPPLIES

Canadian essential war supplies, wool, nickel and other metals, war equipment, etc., are being conserved and no exports are being permitted except by license. This serves to prevent supplies reaching the enemy, and also to prevent stocks being sold when they are likely to be needed in the early future in this country's war effort.

The export of steel scrap and iron scrap is completely prohibited. The export of capital, except in permissable cases, is also banned.

The next big news item will be the arrival here of the Australian and New Zealand air missions. The British mission is already establishing itself and a great job of planning and coordination will be under way early in November.

Died of Lockjaw Through Neglected Injury

A verdict of accidental death was returned by Dr. Joseph Pagé, of St. Benoit, district coroner, in the case of Paul Emile Robert, 25 years of age, of St. Eustache, who died of lockjaw at the Notre Dame Hospital on Saturday afternoon in Montreal.

Robert was injured on October 10 but did not see a doctor for several days. When he finally sought medical attention blood poisoning was so far advanced that he was rushed to the hospital, but it was too late.

The coroner was informed that Robert was employed on the highway as a laborer and that he had accidentally struck his foot with a pick.

County W.I. Meets For Semi-Annual Conference

NEW BRANCH WELCOMED INTO COUNTY ORGANIZATION

The nine branches of Argenteuil Women's Institute held their half-yearly conference in Lachute High School on Saturday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Leslie Morris, in the chair, assisted by her secretary and treasurer, Mrs. D. J. Rodgers and Mrs. R. Muir respectively.

Some of the items emerging from this conference were—

That all local branches should have their books audited yearly. This, the President said, was very necessary.

In future, acting on the advice of Mrs. Watt, head of the W. I., the words "Club Woman's Creed" are to be eliminated from our program books and meetings, and the words, "The Mary Stewart Collect," used instead, and some corrections made in the so-called creed, which had diverged slightly from the original creed framed by Mary Stewart.

Helpful books and assistance in matters concerning the different branches to be applied for to Miss Alice Dresser, of Richmond, Que., to whom this task was allotted at the provincial convention and upon the resignation of Miss McCain.

The branches are to discuss at their next meeting the question whether it is possible to carry on without a provincial supervisor, also make suggestions as to how this may be done. Another decision to be made is whether the provincial convention shall in future be held in June as hitherto or in August as in the past season; the results of those deliberations to be sent to Mrs. L. Morris as soon as possible after the meetings are held.

A resolution passed concerning the fee paid to the province, was that Argenteuil County, would not support the idea of paying fifty cents per member to the provincial treasury, instead of the twenty-five cents per member that has been called for for many years. A fifty-cent local fee is necessary though, to cover all initial expenses in connection with the branches.

An invitation is extended to all members to join with the larger body, "The Associated Country Women of the World," at the small cost of two cents per member; it was hoped that all branches would accept this invitation.

It was decided to continue the Handicraft Exhibits at the Argenteuil Fair, and this year's exhibit will consist mainly of knitted articles, a list of which may be obtained from the local or county convenor of Home Economics. If more space is available quilts of different sorts will be exhibited.

The Home Beautification department was joined with Agriculture, making one department of work instead of two.

The name of the pupil from rural schools winning the Argenteuil W.I. scholarship to be used in Lachute High School this term.. was given as Joyce McCullouch, of Kilmar.

The prize donated by Mrs. L. Wilson, of Brownsburg, (past convenor for Home Beautification), went to Mrs. Archie Murdock, of Frontier Branch, for the best book of pressed wild flowers, weeds, leaves, with names listed. Judges were Mrs. H. Banford and Mr. A. Bothwell, County Agronomist.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Rev. E. Orsborn, of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, who favored the W.I. with the same address which he gave very recently to the Lachute One Hundred Club, entitled, "Dare We Hope for a World Without War?" This particular topic was given by special request, and was much appreciated.

At conclusion of the conference supper was served in the dining room, with Pioneer Branch, the first branch to be organized in the county as honored guests in recognition of their silver anniversary. Mrs. A. Graham, of Cushing, hon. county president, in a few words extended the congratulations of the sister branches, making mention of past officers of this branch who had done so much to perfect the organization, namely the late Mrs. D. Todd, the late Mrs. John Cook, and Mrs. Robert Bradley, now the gracious hostess at the Carillon Museum of the Historical Society of Argenteuil. Mrs. Graham wished Pioneer Branch continued success in their work and enlargement of their membership, after which Pioneer Branch members were called upon to stand and receive the hearty congratulations of their fellow members. Mrs. James McKenzie, of Pioneer, replied to this congratulatory speech, expressing thanks of the members of her branch and giving a résumé of the Branch when first organized. Among other things Mrs. McKenzie said that Pioneer Branch, first called the Argenteuil Home Maker's Club, was formed 25 years ago, in the first year of the Great War, and it seemed a coincidence that they who were now in their 26th year should see another war and be confronted with Red Cross work just as their early members had been. This branch had changed its name to Pioneer in 1928. Twenty ladies who had been members had passed on during the 25 years, while others had become members of other branches.

What the president called "Our Baby Branch" was then invited to stand and meet the members of the other eight branches, who were pleased to welcome them into the organization. This newly-formed branch, called by the old, time-honored name of Mille Isles, with their president, Mrs. G. W. F. Kuhring, were introduced by Mrs. A. Bothwell, who in company with Mrs. L. Morris, the county president, had been present at the organization of the Mille Isles branch and who in future will take great interest in their welfare.

A very nice two-storey birthday cake made by Mrs. L. Wilson and decorated by Mrs. McCullouch, both of Brownsburg Branch, was donated in honor of Pioneer's 25th birthday, and was much enjoyed by all those who partook of it. Upper Lachute-East-End Branch were convenors for the tea hour.

—J. Graham,

THREE MEN ARRESTED ON NARCOTICS CHARGE

Discovery of the first cultivated opium-poppy field in Canada was revealed by Royal Canadian Mounted Police this week, when three Montreal men were arraigned before Recorder C. E. Marchand at St. Jerome on charges of conspiracy and cultivation of opium in contravention of the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act.

The poppy field was found on a private farm at Lake Connolly, 12 miles north of St. Jerome. The three prisoners, arrested by officers of the R.C.M.P. narcotics squad, were listed as Omer D'Anjou, 43, Hormisdas Cote, 40, and Mario Bertrand, 38. All three pleaded guilty to both charges and were sentenced to six months' additional three months on the cultivation offense, with an added term each of three months for conspiracy.

The farmer on whose field the opium-poppies were found was not arrested. R.C.M.P. authorities were satisfied he knew nothing of the type of plant he had been growing. He explained to them, they said, that he had been hired by the three Montrealers early in the summer to grow the poppies for them.

Police had been aware of the plot to cultivate the opium since the conspiracy was hatched; they explained how one of the three conspirators had approached an officer to join the outfit, unaware of his connection with the R.C.M.P.

At the time, however, it was decided to withhold police action until the poppies had had a chance to grow out of the ground. As soon as this occurred and the category of the plant was definitely established as "true opium," the three men were rounded up.

The field was burned.

Horses Stray, One Falls Into Canal and Drowns

Cushing W.—A number of horses from the pasture of Mr. Gilbert Arnold at Grenville strayed on the bank of the canal below the Stonefield Lock last Friday morning, when the Steamer Britannette in passing caused a general stampede among them. One fell over the bank into the canal and before help could arrive became exhausted and sank. The horse was a valuable young animal.

Sequel to Railway Thefts Here, Two Are Sentenced

Pleading guilty to 12 charges of robbery in Lachute, Carillon, Ste. Scholastique and Louiseville in railway cars and stations of both the C.N.R. and C.P.R., Paul Tremblay, 30, and Marcel Levesque, 28, were sentenced by District Magistrate Donat Lalande at St. Jerome on Monday.

Tremblay was sentenced to five months on each charge concurrently, while Levesque, who returned a portion of the $12,000 worth of goods stolen, was given only three months in jail. Both Tremblay and Levesque were arrested in the district of St. Jerome by railway detectives.

No "Plum and Apple" Jam For the Troops

London — "Naffy" is now sending out many thousands of tons of goods a week to the soldiers, sailors and airmen of the British Empire in the War.

"Naffy" is the fighting man's name for the N.A.A.F.I. or Navy, Army and Air Force Institutes — "Servant of Those Who Serve" as its proud motto proclaims. At the London warehouses, which cover some twenty acres of ground, it is catering for all the tastes of the troops.

Jam, no longer "plum and apple", can be bought in many varieties, from apricot to strawberry. Peanuts and toffee, chewing gum and humbugs, and dozens of kinds of biscuits are on the menu; and Service shoppers can buy all kinds of buttons, belts, jig-saw puzzles, mouth organs, even birdseed.

In its stoves "Naffy" is smoking nearly 6,000 tons of bacon a week and more than 100 varieties of cakes, patties and so forth, are being baked.

Some 20,000 lbs of tea a week is being sent out, specially blended to suit the water of various districts, and this apart from tea for Messing purposes which is issued by the R.A.S.C.

Last year's turnover was £10,000,000 and out of its pooled resources the N.A.A.F.I, today one of the biggest supply services in the whole world, is giving concerts and shows to men and women in camp or on active service abroad.

"Pound Day" Held in St. Jerome

A "Pound Day" collection held last week in St. Jerome, in aid of the poor housed by the Soeurs Grises de la Croix d'Ottawa, netted a total of $405.

G. Dansereau, Argenteuil M.L.A., Retains His Seat; U.N. Party Vanquished, Liberals Sweep into Power

G.-E. DANSEREAU, M.L.A.,

Liberal Candidate Polls Majority Over 920; Voting is Keen

In a torrential sweep which removed the Union Nationale party from power in Quebec last night, Georges Etienne Dansereau, Liberal M.L.A. for this constituency, retained his seat in a very decisive contest. His majority, 615 votes in the last provincial election, 1936, was increased by half to 926, as J. Félicien Lavigne, N.P., his U.N. opponent, polled 1,753 ballots against Dansereau's 2,679. The reason for this Liberal increase, apart from the influence of party issues, was the sterner opposition of two candidates, Lamarche and Lavigne, in the 1936 contest—as compared with the opposition of Lavigne and the l'Action Liberale newcomer, Dupuis, in yesterday's voting. Dupuis, polling only 145 votes, carried little weight.

Results published at this date are unofficial but may be taken as sufficiently accurate to indicate the trend of local voting. In spite of the reputed indifference of many electors, due to what were considered distasteful arguments and sordid issues, the Argenteuil ballot was strong—4,577 votes being cast, as compared with 4,685 in 1936.

Speculation on the outcome of this election throughout the province was generally vague and non-committal, even among those supposedly "in the know." Although, as a direct result of the announcement of this untimely election and the unpopular issues upon which it was based, it was evident the Duplessis regime had suffered a loss of prestige—it is safe to say that the landslide came as a complete surprise to the electorate.

Voting in the Argenteuil polls, according to figures released last night, resulted as follows—these returns, however, being unofficial until the District Returning Officer makes the final count :

The election of 1936 was also a landslide, although at that time it was not a complete surprise—the Public Accounts Investigation of the Liberal regime having exposed some surprising facts to the general electorate. The result of that election, held on August 17, 1936, was

Argentl. Plowmen Stage A Keen Contest

WINTRY WEATHER CUTS USUAL HIGH ATTENDANCE

The plowing match organized by the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association was held Tuesday, commencing at 8 a. m., on the farm of George Armstrong, Lachute Road, in a frosty atmosphere which detracted somewhat from the attendance of spectators. Among the farming community this annual field day arouses increasing interest every year, this being the fifth annual event of its kind in the county, and all classes were keenly contested. Officers of the Association this year are — George Hay, president; Amedee Maisonneuve, vice president; and the county agronomist, Alex Bothwell, secretary.

All plowing was done in the sod, classes being provided for plowmen 14 years of age up to men over 50, and for tractor and horse-drawn implements of single-furrow, two-furrow and high-cutting Scotch type.

Judge of the tractor and plain plowing classes was Prof. L. G. Heimpell, of the Department of Agricultural Engineering, Macdonald College. Judges for high cutting plows and for the plowmen over 50 years of age, were Robt. Leishman, Lachute, and O. Charbonneau, of St. Benoit, while Donald Cumming, of Lancaster, and Sam Morrin, Ste. Scholastique, judged the two junior classes for boys and also the gang-plowing.

Visitors from Macdonald College with Prof. Heimpell were Prof. Lattimer, of the Economics Department, Mr. W. Kalbfleich, lecturer in Agricultural Engineering, and also Mr. Gledall. Geo. Héon, M. P. for the constituency, showed keen interest in the teams and performance of the competitors. Several contestants took part from Ontario and points across the Ottawa River.

Donald Bradley, Lachute; Marcil Lapierre, St. Hermas; Real Mondu, Lachute; Joe Mallette, Lachute.

Best Crown, Donald Bradley.

Best Finish, Real Mondu.

Hotel, House and Barn Burned Near Piedmont

Fire destroyed a hotel under construction, the summer home of L. Gauthier, of Montreal, and the barn of E. Brousseau at Piedmont on Friday afternoon causing a loss estimated at $15,000, partly covered by insurance.

The fire started at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon when workmen left the hotel to work in a garage opposite. The flames spread quickly through the building under construction and then to the summer home and garage of L. Gauthier. A short time later sparks flew over the Brosseau home and set the barn afire.

Volunteers formed a bucket brigade but were unable to save the contents of the home and barn.

"AUTUMN FICTION FOR THE WINTER MENU"

Following is an address delivered by Mrs. B. Chapman, Montreal, as guest speaker before a literary meeting of Lachute W. I. Study Group:

I suppose there is not one member of the Women's Institute who does not very frequently, if indeed not daily, compile a menu for her family. Her effort is to use the different kinds of foods available so as to produce a healthful, varied, and balanced ration; a little of everything and quite a good deal of something, is about the practice we follow, and the main demands are balance and variety.

It occurred to me that planning the reading for a whole long (and possibly trying) winter might be planned out in some such sort of style, though of necessity very much longer, more varied, and more detailed. So in looking over the list of the new season's books it seemed just possible to arrange them in the pattern of the menu for a very long and formal dinner, to last about six months, which need not of course be taken in order, but with nothing omitted that could possibly be crowded into it.

So we would have cocktails, hors d'oeuvres before and during the meal; some soup; a little fish; an entree; the roast or piece de resistance; salad, varied desserts, cheese and fruit, coffee, and cigarettes. Let us see if we can sort our books as easily.

Without clinging too closely to the simile I shall try to set before you a menu for the mind which will be fresh, varied, stimulating, interesting, refreshing, and nourishing, observing that no one book or even two or three can possibly be all these things. Some items will suit practically every one; some will disagree with certain persons, while some readers can take it all, and it is my idea that the most of my listeners belong to this latter group.

First, the cocktails. These should be something utterly unexpected, both in subject and in treatment, and exceptionally welldone. Outstanding in this class are three books, not very long, beautifully written and thoughtful, and as wide apart as the poles from each other as well as from ourselves. These are "The Hopkins Manuscript", by R. C. Sheriff, "Black Narcissus", by Romer Godden, and "Double Entry", by Constance Rutherford, all from England.

"The Hopkins Manuscript" is the most extraordinary as well as the best written of the three, and I do recommend it very warmly. It is written in the first person by a quite ordinary man, full of his own interests and his own importance, who is thrown into the most extraordinary natural phenomenon anyone could possibly imagine. It is written so easily and smoothly, in such a comfortable, reasonable, and logical fashion, that one finds one's self believing every line, we slip into it so naturally. To tell the story would be to spoil the story. It is first-class, and will well repay a second reading.

"Black Narcissus" is a story of today, of a group of Church of England nuns who go into Tibet- - - the same Tibet we saw in "Lost Horizon"- - - to start a school for children and women. It is not long, the psychological development rings true, and if read slowly and thoughtfully will prove immensely interesting. It is not a book to skip, and the English is lovely.

"Double Entry" is a curious book and a very nice one. Also a novel of today it is the story of a young English girl married to a man who is intensely interested in archaeology. Their honeymoon is taken in France, at a castle where some important digging is in progress. The young bride suddenly discovers herself to be possessed of clairvoyant power by which, when holding in her hand a recently dug-up relic she suddenly becomes aware of the circumstances surrounding this castle four or five hundred years ago, when it was one of the fortresses of the bloody Hundred Years War between England and France. This power is rare, but is not denied by psychologists, and the book so beautifully written is a most convincing and entertaining novel. One experience follows another, each plays its corresponding part in end, while most exciting, is not the modern life of this couple, and the altogether a surprise.

A fourth novel which might come into this group, though it is rather long, is Clemence Dane's "Arrogant History of White Ben." I cannot say much about it, I have not yet read it and you possibly heard it reviewed over the air. It is powerful as Clemence Dane's books usually are, it is completely new, and goes into the realm of the mystic which is sometimes hard to follow; her books are always important to the well-informed reader.

So much for the cocktails; what about the hors d'oeuvres? Always a problem, we are very apt to fall back on some old standby. I thought that perhaps some of the new volumes of Short Stories might fit in comfortably here. E. M. Delafield has a book called "Three Marriages," consisting of three novellas one describing a marriage in Victorian times, one Edwardian, and one of today. Practically the whole of each married life is dealt with, and in each novella there is ample material for a good novel.

Noel Coward's volume of short stories, "To Step Aside," I have not yet seen, but he is a gifted and amusing writer, and his book should prove most acceptable.

John O'Hara's "Files on Parade" might prove caviare to the general, if you like O'Hara you will like the book, otherwise likely not.

And now for the soup. We need a book of an agreeable quality, perhaps a trifle lengthy but quite clearly written, and with some oddity of flavour. I cannot give you a better one than G. B. Stern's "The Woman in the Hall,'" which I recommend warmly. It is written in a style as smooth as cream; the characters are all distinct; the incidents are completely usual and would seem reasonable to any woman; the oddity comes in the character of the central figure, Laura. She is quite charming, has all the womanly virtues of modesty, industry, kindness, neatness, and motherliness, extremely feminine in her attitude to life, but you never met any woman like her in any book before. It is an excellent novel, long, and most entertaining.

Another suggestion, and a very good novel indeed in this class, is Cecil Robert's "They Wanted to Live." This is a continuation of his excellent novel Victoria 4:30 of a couple of years ago. It picks up some of his characters and sends them travelling to Paris, to Vienna, to Buda-Pest; they meet with some of the other characters in the earlier novel; and they enjoy the beautiful countryside and the interesting native ways of the Hungarians (which I have been informed by a Hungarian gentleman are extremely well done.) It is not written in the same shape as Victoria 4.30, it is a continued narrative. There is a little international politics in it, but not enough to flavour it too heavily.

A third might be Helen Hull's "Frost Flower." This has been rather a favourite of mine. It is laid in a prosperous New Jersey suburb, where the husbands commute to New York each day. It has to do with a married couple who love each other, whose children are beginning to grow up, into whose life a scandal suddenly commences to ooze, not from today, but from something which happened this scandal is, and how this couple worked it out individually under very difficult circumstances of temperament and family relations, makeup a first class modern novel of the better class. It is completely human in every respect, is a good length, and the minor characters are as well and as carefully drawn—with their difficulties and solutions—as the major ones. This book was serialised.

The fish course might serve us for travel; we hear that fish go from one side of the ocean to the other as casually as a liner. I would take Somerset Maugham's "Christmas Holiday" in first place. Easily one of the leading novels of the year, though not particularly an agreeable one, any more than any of his others. It is the story of a week in Paris spent by a youg English gentleman whose father considers him old enough to take his holidays alone. It is beautifully and smoothly written, a first-class novel. Off-colour in spots, though not, in my opinion, in a harmful way. However, there it is, travel, and what do you expect? Have to be ready for everything. This was serialised also.

Another book which goes abroad is Mary Borden's "Passport for a Girl." It is a story of Vienna of today; coupled with its title no further description is necessary. Mary Borden is well up among the better-class woman novelists. It is not particularly harrowing, though certainly in spots.

Vicki Baum's "Shanghai '37" is also a good novel; even readers who do not care for Vicki Baum consider this a first-class book. The scene and the time can be gauged from the name, Shanghai nineteen thirty-seven. It is written something in the manner of Grand Hotel, her first and best novel, giving separately the early private and personal life of a group of characters of many nations, ages, stations, and both sexes, then collects them all into Shanghai at one crucial moment. It is quite long, and I have received very excellent reports on it from good readers.

Sir Philip Gibb's latest novel, "This Nettle Danger," takes us from New York to London to Berlin and back to London again, closing after Mr. Chamberlain's return from Munich last autumn. It is one of his best, entertainingly written, with the broad and kindly view which makes us all so fond of Sir Philip. There is a great a great many years ago. What deal of most interesting detail of lives among good society circles in all three cities, a pleasant love-story, in fact, more than one; some insight into politics, and to the English reaction to the crisis; on the whole a first-class novel of today, and another which I would warmly recommend.

Another book about China is Pearl Buck's "The Patriot," quite a long story of a young Chinese Gentleman married to a Japanese lady, and the result on each of them of the war between their dearly-loved countries. I have not had one reader tell me she did not like this novel and it has been circulating steadily since the early spring. Pearl Buck can write a novel which holds one's interest steadily, and her human ideals are on rather a high tone.

For entrée I shall take something rather bland, following the somewhat highly-sasoned offerings already listed

Stamps of Naval Bases

Great Britain's three naval bases in the Mediterranean Sea issue their own postage stamps. Gibraltar, the western entrance to the sea, has been issuing stamps since 1886, when stamps of Great Britain were overprinted. Later that year similar stamps with the colony's name appeared. These early issues are quite scarce. In 1903 the stamps portraying King Edward VII first appeared, and remained in use till 1912, when the George V stamps were issued. Not till 1931 did pictorial stamps appear for Gibraltar, and these showed the harbor with warships and an inset profile of George V. Last year's King George VI issue showed many views of the rocky naval base, all with inset profile of the King.

Malta, just south of Italy, and in the centre of the Mediterranean, has been issuing stamps since 1860. As early as 1899 this colony issued pictorial stamps, showing native and ancient boats, and the historic scene of St. Paul escaping to Malta after a shipwreck. This scene is shown on a number of later stamps as well. In 1901 the harbor at Malta was shown, and numerous views of the harbor have appeared on subsequent issues. The Edward VII stamps were issued in 1903, and the George V stamps in 1914. In 1921 the current stamps were overprinted with "Self-Government," and the next year two new designs appeared, showing allegorical figures of Malta and Britannia. Another new George V issue was printed in 1926, with pictorial high value stamps. The George VI stamps, issued last year, show most views of the naval base.

Cyprus, at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, started out with overprinted stamps of Great Britain in 1880, issuing its own stamps the following year, these being quite valuable. Edward VII stamps first appeared in 1903, George V stamps in 1912. In 1928 a pictorial historical set was issued marking the fiftieth year of Cyprus as a British colony. In 1934 a scenic set appeared, with inset profile of George V. A somewhat similar pictorial set was issued last year with inset profile of George VI.

All three colonies had similar silver jubilee stamps in 1934 and coronation stamps in 1937.

BOY CRUSOE FOUND

Having lived alone for three years and existing on seaweed, plants and roots, ten-year-old Jose Perez was discovered on one of the lonely Gallpagos Islands by the crew of an Ecuador cruiser which happened to call there. Reports received in Quito are that the lad had gone to the island with some people who had illtreated him, and he had run away into the interior.

The plumber rang the bell and, as it happened, both the master and mistress of the house came to the door. As they stood in the hall the husband, who was very methodical, said:

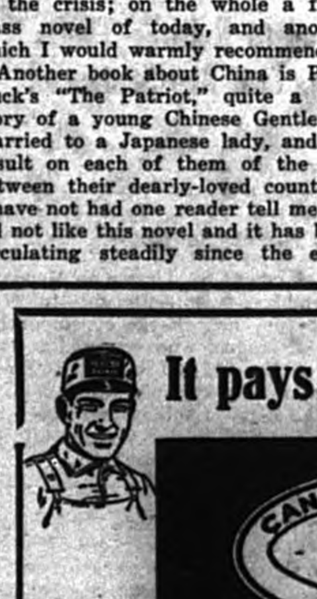

"I wish before we go upstairs to acquaint you with the trouble."

"I'm very pleased to meet you, Ma'am" said the plumber.

EDITORIAL

A CHEERING WORD FOR THE AGING

"The spirit of youth is a fine thing, but far less humane and potentially joyous than the spirit of maturity", says Roy Helton in October Harper's Magazine."Youth is conventional, largely unoriginal, indeed, almost exclusively imitative, and has to be. Glorify that and one glorifies whatever is the moment's fashion, whether communism, facism, pacifism or militarism. Youth follows. It rarely leads. Youth's imitations of maturity are the source of its daring and its occasional enterprise....

In a study of twenty-five of our foremost biologists, psychologists and physicians, one looks in vain for confirmation of the popular superstitions concerning old age. Life does not wear men out, mentally or physically. Accident and disease may do so, faulty diet may do so; but not activity of mind or body."

Another word from John Adams seems appropriate here: "Old minds are like old horses; you must exercise them if you wish to keep them in working order."

CIVIC EDUCATION IN CANADA

Some time ago we received a communication from Mr. A. J. Livinson, M.A., of Montreal, who for years has devoted much of his time to the study of civics, particularly as they relate to Canada. In his letter Mr. Livinson urges the establishment of a School of Public Administration, its main purpose to be the training of leaders in civic government. He points out that in other countries, the United States especially, many universities have special courses in government and public administration, but that Canada lacks such tuition.

Mr. Livinson's plan for such a school includes lecture halls, a civic museum, a motion picture theatre, etc. He takes the stand that civic education should begin at the top—the university—and work downwards toward the public school. In other words he would perfect the theory of local government before tackling the practical side, the assumption being that it is a complex piece of machinery which can only be handled successfully by specialists.

In this assumption Mr. Livinson is entirely wrong, for the principles of local democratic government are very simple—in fact their very strength and practicability lie in the ease with which they can be understood and carried out by ordinary men of good will. We venture to suggest that, of the thousands of councillors, aldermen and mayors in Canada, most of them have a working knowledge of the fundamentals of civic government. What is wanted in Municipal Canada is not professionalized mayors and aldermen but a trained civic service on the lines of the Federal Civil Service. Councils come and go but the officers stay on, and it is on their efficiency and integrity, far more than on any special knowledge of the council, that the success of local administration depends.

Where civic education is needed is in the schools, starting in the lower grades. We have in mind an attractively illustrated school reader which was adopted many years ago for the primary schools of England. The first chapter of this reader told the story of the policeman—the only representative of law and order feared by every boy—how his wages came out of taxes, why he wore a uniform, and so on. The next chapter was on the streets and public buildings and how they were paid for out of the taxes. The third chapter was devoted to the county, its highways and parks, and how the money was collected for their upkeep. Then came chapters on parliament, that made the laws of the nation, the army and navy, the dominions and colonies and how they are governed. And finally came the chapter on the King as the head of the State. By the time the pupil, with the aid of his teacher, had got through that reader he had a sound elementary knowledge of British systems of government. Yet the reader was written for children of ten years; and we suggest that if a similar reader were in use in all Canadian schools, there would soon be an enlightened public opinion regarding local and national public affairs.

THE DEAR OLD LADY

That old busybody, Dame Rumor, has been having the time of her life for the past few weeks. She is far from idle in peacetime, but then her stories have to compete with published news, which is more accurate if less imaginative. In wartime, when some small portion of the news is suppressed in the public interest, the dear old lady does her best to satisfy a news-hungry populace.

She has a feminine scorn of technical details. Discovering the Bremen in every harbor from Cape Horn to Spitzbergen, she overlooks the fact that many of these ports could not float a ship of the Bremen's draught. Lately she discovered that the reason for the sugar shortage was that the available supplies were being commandeered by munitions manufacturers for making explosives. This is a plausible story, since the skill of organic chemists is no doubt sufficient to convert the carbon of sugar into almost any other carbon compound. The flaw in the story lies in the fact that there are thousands of cheaper sources of carbon, which is the commonest element in nature.

Such flaws do not worry Dame Rumor. She can account for the sugar shortage in other ways. She knows for a fact that such and such a firm is hoarding a secret reserve, that another firm was fined thousands of dollars for the same offence. Point out that the managers of the firms in question have been spending sleepless nights trying to cope with an abnormal demand for sugar and to devise means of limiting individual purchases so that no customer will suffer, and Dame Rumor waves the facts aside. She herself has stored away as much as her pantry will hold, but it never occurs to her that this might have something to do with the situation.

The dame is a super-patriot. She has a garbled knowledge of current events and not many weeks ago was loud in her denunciations of Mr. Chamberlain. Now she delights in clamoring for the internment of anyone who repeats her own remarks. Particularly is she delighted when her victim has a Germanic name. It is quite irrelevant that most German-Canadians were here long before Hitler was heard of. Dame Rumor would intern them all, if she did not have them shot.

Sometimes kindly, often malicious, always untrustworthy, Dame Rumor will continue to thrive for the duration of the war. Her tongue will clack with the speed of her own knitting needles, producing tales as grotesque as some of the socks that she will send to the unfortunate troops. For both tales and socks, laughter is the only antidote.

WAKE UP AND LIVE !

By DOROTHEA BRANDE

If you are the possessor of a very vivid imagination, you probably can practice with no more than the clue in the sentence: Act as if it were impossible to fail. If you are not, or if you have been badly hurt by failure, there may be some difficulty in beginning to act effectively, but there need not be very much.

To get at it more slowly, the idea is just this : Instead of starting wherever you are, take time first to "make up" your state of mind, the mental condition in which you are going to work.

You first give yourself a model. Everyone has had a taste of success in some line, perhaps in a very minor matter. Think back to it. What you want to recapture is the state of mind in which you once succeeded.

Be careful now; you do not want to overshoot the mark. Don't jump ahead into the elation which followed the success itself. Just recapture the steady, confident feeling that was yours when you knew the fact that was demanded of you, when you realized that you could do the thing that was necessary, that what you were about to do was well within your powers.

Now transfer in imagination that success-sequence to the work in hand. If you were absolutely certain that everything about the present work would go as smoothly as everything went when you succeeded in the past, if you knew that what you are beginning would certainly go well, from the moment you begin till the moment of the work's ultimate reception, how would you feel? What is the state of mind you would be in as you launch out into it?

Fix your attention on that, for that is to be your working frame of mind. Until you can reach it, refuse to begin; but insist to yourself on reaching it as soon as possible.

When you have found the mood hold it steadily for a while, as if waiting for a word of command. All at once you will feel a release of energy. You have received from yourself your working-orders, and you can begin. You will see that you no longer have to push yourself to do the work; all your energy is free to push the work alone.

Next, work till you feel the unmistakable onset of true fatigue. Real fatigue. The early flagging of attention will be only the old state of mind trying to creep in once more when your attention is elsewhere. If that happens, stop a second and say to yourself, "No. That is the way I will not think! Clear out the impulse entirely, and go on working.

When your muscles and your mind honestly protest that they have done all they should do for the time, stop and find some relaxation.

When the time for relaxation comes you will find that you get the full joy of playing at last.

There are some persons who have been so badly bruised that, although any unwarrantable indulgence towards oneself should be guarded against, it may be necessary to begin this system by practising it only for a short time each day, and in some secondary desire.

Friendship

Into the melodious symphony of life,
A magic chord is sometimes clearly heard,
Lending a deeper meaning to the strain,
Translated to the heart without a word.

Across the years forever it vibrates;
Time cannot still the memory of its power;
Distance does not its beauty e'er efface,
For in the heart it dwells—a lovely flower.

This golden chord of love and friendship sounds
The theme that is the music's melody;
It softens all the harsher notes of life,
And makes the whole a happy harmony

— Dorothy Sproule

Si Peterkins Says :

Once more "The frost is on the punkin' and fodder's in the shock." But what shocks me is that while nature has given mankind one of the finest crops of life-givin' fodder they have ever had, human bein's has produced the wust crop o' death-dealing' devices the world has ever see. If the folks in the old countries hada paid more 'tenshun to the doin's of the Lord in days gone by, they might not be a-raisin so much hell today.

Scouts Banned in Poland

One of the tragedies of Poland was the prompt wiping out by Hitler and Stalin of its Boy Scout organization, numbering 130,541 boys and leaders. Poland has always sent strong contingents to world Boy Scout and Rover Scout gatherings, including the 3rd World Rover Moot, held last July in Scotland. Hitler previously had banned Scouting in his own country, then in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. Mussolini did the same in Italy, notwithstanding the strong appeal for Scouting, by the Pope. The dictators' objection to the Scout movement is its code of international youth friendliness.

Some Conifers Not Evergreen

Conifers are trees that bear woody cones containing naked seeds. Pines nemlocks, firs are familiar examples. The term to the average individual means an evergreen, but actually some conifers are not evergreen—for example, the larch and bald cypress. Both of these are conifers, but drop their leaves in the fall.

At the Camel Market

Before buying, a prospective camel purchaser examines the teeth to determine the animal's age. Marks of a good camel are good teeth, a good hump, which means plenty of reserve energy, and foot pads that are solid and not cracked by heat or rocks. Camels have seven stomachs and can travel seven to nine days in winter without drinking water.

The Moon's Craters

Copernicus crater is 56 miles across. Since Galileo Galilei turned the first telescope on the moon in 1610, astronomers have counted 30,000 such craters. Some believe them extinct volcanoes. Others think they are the result of meteors striking the moon. The moon rotates, but as the same side is always toward the earth, about two-fifths of the moon's surface has never been seen by earthly astronomers. The visible part shows no life.

Victoria, Canada's Evergreen Playground Calls to Country's Sports Loving People

The Empress Hotel, centre of Canada's famed Evergreen Playground where summer sports continue in full away throughout the winter, is on the threshold of the best season in its history, according to reports from Canadian Pacific sources in Canada and the United States.

There are several reasons for the promise of greatly increased travel to beautiful Vancouver Island but the most important one at the moment seems to be that international exchange inequalities, brought about by the war, make each dollar worth ten cents more in Canada than it is in the United States.

The West Coast has many attractions for the traveller who likes his winter without snow. The gardens of the ivy-clad Empress and other beauty spots on the island retain their beauty and freshness all year round; riding, golf, tennis, swimming, fishing and lawn bowling continue throughout the winter; the Mid-Winter Golf Tournament, from March 3 to 9, is an annual event which attracts enthusiasts from all over the continent; Christmas at the Empress is a celebration complete with boar's head, yule logs, wassail bowl and carols, with a novel after-dinner social glass out on the open lawn.

The contrast offered by Victoria is really amazing, especially after a train ride across the country. From the windows of the warm train the traveller will see typical Canadian winter scenery, — and then Victoria with its flowers, its magnificent weather, and its year-round golf and other summer sports.

DISTRICT OF TERREBONNE

Superior Court
No. 6663

DAME MARIE-ROSE DELORME, wife separated as to property of Henri Debien, of the parish of St-Louis de Terrebonne, district of Terrebonne, duly authorized to "ester en justice" for the purposes hereof, by judgment of Hon. Justice Phil. Cousineau, dated May 9th, 1939, plaintiff; vs. HENRI DEBIEN of the parish of Saint-Louis de Terrebonne, district of Terrebonne, farmer, defendant.

"A land situated in the parish of Terrebonne, to the countenance of three acres in width, to the public road, by the depth of eighteen acres in width and there taking two acres in width to the complement of forty acres starting from the public road, the whole, more or less, the said land bounded to the south by the public road to the north for another part by the lands of the cordon and for the other part by the number 72, on one side to the west by the No. 68 belonging to Clovis Ouimet, and to the east part by the No. 72 and part by the residu of No. 71 and of which it forms part and belonging to Télesphore and Joseph Delorme; the said land known and designated, to know:

1. As being the largest part of the official number sixty-nine (69) of the parish of Saint-Louis de Terrebonne, to the mortgagee cadastre of Terrebonne county, this part of the said lot No. 69, which forms part of; bounded to the south by the public road which divides it from the emplacement of Rodrigue Lemay Delorme to the north by the lands of the cordon, to the west, by the number 68 and to the east part by the lot No. 72 and part by the lot No. 61;

2. As being a part of the official number seventy-one (No 71) of the said parish of Terrebonne, to the said mortgagee cadastre; this part of the said lot No. 71 which forms part of; having approximatively one acre in width, on all the deepness of the said lot No. 71, and bounded to the south by the public road, to the north by the No. 72, to the west by the said No. 69, and to the east by the residue of the No. 71 of which it forms part and belonging to Télesphore and Joseph Delorme, with the house and buildings thereon erected."

But subject, in favour of Rodrigue Lemay-Delorme and his wife, Zelima Joly, the following annuity to know: to pay to the said Rodrigue Lemay-Delorme and his wife, Dame Zelima Joly, and to the survivor of them, without diminution, and until death of this survivor, the life-annuity composed as follows:

"Three hundred pounds of flour, "one hundred pounds of soup-peas, "two hundred pounds of beef, composed of a front quarter and a hind "quarter, a fat pig of the weight of "three hundred pounds, two gallons "of wine, seventy-five pounds of but-"ter, two hundred pounds of white "sugar, sixty pounds of soap, twenty-"five pounds of beans, twenty bags "of potatoes, fifty dozen of eggs, "milk as needed;

"All these articles of annuity which "will be of first quality, shall be de-"livered at the residence of the don-"ors, as follows: the milk, the eggs, "the soap, the sugar, the wine, the "flour, the butter, the soup-peas, and "the beans, upon request of the don-"ors;

"As to the other articles of an-"nuity, they shall be delivered as fol-"lows: the pig and the beef hind-"quarter at Christmas, the potatoes, "half at the spring and half at aut-"umn, and the other quarter of beef "upon request, and by parts, to the "wishes of the donors."

Therefore the said Rodrigue Lemay-Delorme and Dame Zelima Joly had given priority to H. Fortin, farmer of St.-François-de-Sales, concerning the mortgage of $2,500.00, affecting the land above mentioned."

To be sold at the door of the parish of Saint-Louis de Terrebonne, TUESDAY, the FOURTEENTH day of NOVEMBER, 1939, at ELEVEN o'clock in the forenoon.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. W. R. McFAUL

After a long illness, Mrs. William R. McFaul, of Lachute Mills, passed away at her home last Thursday, October 19th.

Formerly Maud Seale, of Louisa, Que., she was married to Mr. W. R. McFaul 29 years ago and had been a resident of Lachute since her marriage.

Mrs. McFaul was in her 58th year. She was a member of the Lachute Anglican Church, and a conscientious worker for the St. Simeon's Guild.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. W. C. LeCras at St. Simeon's Church on Saturday, and numerous floral tributes bore evidence of high esteem for the deceased.

Liberal Majority . . .

Maurice Duplessis took exception to the Federal application of the War Measures Act. The challenge was taken up by the Federal Ministry, and results would seem to indicate that the people of Quebec are behind Canada in the world conflict.

The question of participation in war is one for each nation to decide for itself. To what extent national events or interest are involved, is a question for cool judgment, not emotional backbiting; and it is regrettable that, once again, contentions of this kind have been abused as an instrument in the conflict of political parties.

LATE CHAS. J. MOORE

Mr. Charles John Moore, a lifelong resident of Hill Head, Que., passed away peacefully at his home on Tuesday, Oct. 17th. Mr. Moore was 80 years old and had been in declining health for some time.

The funeral service was held at his late residence on Thursday, Oct. 19th, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiating, assisted by the Rev. C.W.P. Baugh. Many friends and neighbors gathered to pay last tribute to one who will be sadly missed in the community.

Those left to mourn are his three sons, Arthur and Charles N., at home, and Neal G., of San Diego, Cal.,—his wife having predeceased him 18 years ago. He is also survived by his two brothers, Levi and William. Deepest sympathy is extended to them in their bereavement.

Pall-bearers were Chas. Moore, of Montreal, Arthur Pollock, Ed. Kettyle, Hugh Martin, Albert Scott and Wm. Scott. Interment was in Lachute Cemetery.

Among those attending the funeral from a distance were Mr. C. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Dryden and Mr. J. Stephenson.

LATE MRS. J. HAMILTON

Morin Hts. — The funeral service of the late Mrs. John Hamilton, formerly Annie Doherty, was held here on Monday afternoon in the United Church, service being conducted by the Rev. D. Anderson.

Mrs. Hamilton had been confined to her bed for the past seven years.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sons George, Robert and Archie, of Morin Heights, and Nelson, of Kitchener, Ont.; two daughters, Mrs. J. Gauley, of Montreal, and Mrs. J. Ryan, of Winnipeg; also two sisters, Mrs. J. Payne and Mrs D. Hammond, of Manitoba.

LATE HARRIS BERNSTEIN

The passing of Mr. Harris Bernstein on Friday, Oct. 20th, removes a well known figure from this county. For over a half century, Mr. Bernstein travelled with his merchandise throughout the farming community and was a familiar and well-liked visitor in many of the rural homes surrounding Lachute.

McFAUL—Mr. Wm. R. McFaul and family wish to thank neighbors and friends for their sympathy, kindness and floral tributes in their recent bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON — In loving memory of dear Mother, who passed away Oct. 30th, 1938.—Her loving daughter Maizie, and David.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There's not a day that passes,
Mother,
That we do not think of you.

MACK — In loving memory of Georgena Allard, wife of Russel Mack, who passed away suddenly at Hawkesbury, Ont., Oct. 29th, 1936, aged 23 years. Loved and remembered always, by Gordon and Kay, Nova Scotia.

THOMPSON—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Albert Thompson, who passed away October 30th, 1938.—Ever remembered by Dollie and Roy.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by, we miss you more, dear Mother;
Your loving smile and gentle face,
No other one can fill your vacant place.

Among the Churches

United Ladies Forming War Service Unit

At a well attended meeting Friday evening at Lachute United Church, the ladies of the congregation decided to organize a "war service unit" to collaborate with the Red Cross and assist in supplying the needs of that organization. Under the chairmanship of the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, the meeting appointed a nominating committee, comprising presidents of the various ladies' organizations within the church, to select a slate of officers. Their recommendations will be submitted tomorrow (Friday) at next assembly of the group.

Brownsburg United

A delegation of the Men's League went to Montreal last Sunday afternoon to attend the public service in St. James United Church in connection with the Montreal and District Federation, of which the League is a branch.

The devotions next Sunday will be of a varied character. The morning service will be under auspices of the Women's Missionary Society, when Miss J. King, of the Community Friendship Department, in Montreal, will be the speaker. The evening service will also be of special interest, the music being furnished by the Brownsburg Boys' Band under leadership of Mr. R. Shannon. A hearty invitation is extended to the public to come and enjoy this sacred music, in which the boys have become proficient as well as in the more classical themes. The service will begin at 7 p.m., the band playing a special prelude. Popular hymns have been selected.

United Y.P.S.

Misses Mona Bates, Barbara Cunningham and Marjorie Gordon were appointed to act as Christian Fellowship, Missionary and Games convenors, respectively, for the present year.

The Rev. W. B. Rosborough gave a talk on "Losing—Gaining", which was very much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Donald Nichol, of Ottawa, Thank-Offering Speaker

The autumn Thank-Offering meeting of Lachute United W.M.S. Auxiliary will be held in the church hall on Thursday, Nov. 2nd, at 3 o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by Mrs. Donald Nichol, of Ottawa, who is a prominent member of the Ottawa Presbyterial Executive. She is an Eurasian born and brought up in India, and has been living in Canada for about five years. She has made many warm friends through her magnetic personality and inspiring messages.

This meeting is open to all. The W.M.S. hopes that many will be able to attend and enjoy a time of thanksgiving.

Mrs. A. Taylor and Mrs. C. Duncan will sing. Tea will be served.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was held last evening, with 20 members attending. Following the devotionals, a short business meeting was called, the Society resolving to support financially the proposed installation of coat-hangers in the rear of the church. Members planning on attending the President's Hallowe'en party but who have not the means of transportation, should communicate with Cecil McFaul; costumes may be worn, but are not compulsory.

Mr. Orsborn inaugurated a series of "10 minute discussions" which he will deliver during the year on the Apostles' Creed, and as introductory to his subject, emphasized a single thought which he said should be remembered during the series of discourses. This was, "God is Love", and embraces the basic principles of our Christian faith. Concluding with a discussion on the first two words of the Creed itself, Mr. Orsborn dwelt on the word "believe" which word was not only an acceptance of the actual material evidence, but also a spiritual instinct, with an acceptance of unseen evidence.

Jean Pollock reported on the Fall Rally held last Saturday at St. Andrew's Church, St. Lambert. All branches of young people's work were fully discussed, with one in particular which seems to be claiming a great deal of attention, namely Leadership Training. Montreal societies have planned a course covering this phase, which any interested members may attend. The assembly was addressed by Rev. Berlis in the afternoon, and by Rev. James Millroy in the evening, the convention concluding with a banquet.

Following the report, a discussion on its various aspects took place, and closing with the singing of the National Anthem, the meeting was adjourned. Next week, the program will be in the form of a newspaper, a type of meeting always popular with the Society.

All members are asked to be present if at all possible, as plans are progressing for a series of fall programs, which will embrace a full quota of members.

S.S. Promotion Exercises At Lachute United

The basement of Lachute United Church was filled to capacity last Sunday morning at a special service devoted to the promotion exercises of the Sunday School.

The congregation gathered to witness this pleasing ceremony, marking the pupils' promotion into higher grades.

Seven members of the school, Marie and Elsa Jacobson, Helen Martin, Margaret, Elizabeth, and Sydney Shepherd, and Willie McKenzie were presented by the pastor, Rev. W. B. Rosborough, with prizes for regular attendance, these pupils not having missed Sunday School throughout the year. Honourable mention was also made of Gwen Clark, Joyce Stein and Margaret MacKimmie for faithful attendance.

To the singing of "Opening the Gates," the children, led by senior members of each class, marched through the floral gates and took their places on the platform. To some it was their first participation in these exercises, while to the other pupils each successive year adds to the impressiveness of the promotion ceremonies.

New W.I. Branch Formed At Mille Isles

Mille Isles, a new branch of the Quebec Women's Institutes, was inaugurated recently when about 60 guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Barnes.

Mrs. L. Morris, county president, was in the chair and a number of ladies from Mille Isles and outskirts were formally organized into a W.I. unit. The officers elected for this new Branch were as follows: president, G. W. F. Kuhring; vice-president, Mrs. Gilbert Ryan; secretary, Mrs. Wesley Dawson; treasurer, Mrs. George Wood.

After the installation of the president, Mrs. K. S. Barnes and Mrs. A. K. Hugensen volunteered to represent the Branch as Red Cross members. Knitting and sewing for the Red Cross will be included in the activities of the Branch as well as the regular Institute departments. Twelve members were enrolled.

The first regular meeting of this new Branch was held on Oct. 13th, at the home of the Misses E. and J. Riddell. Seven new members were enrolled and plans made to co-operate with the Legion in selling poppies during Armistice Week.

A welcome was extended to the school teachers and plans made to co-operate with them.

Through a generous donation by Mrs. K. A. Barnes and Mrs. A. K. Hugenson six pounds of wool was provided, making it possible for the Branch to begin knitting for the Canadian Red Cross.

A demonstration was given on how to take slips off plants, and planting procedure, each member being given slips and sphagnum moss for trial.

Convenors for the various departments were then appointed, as follows: Agriculture, Mrs. Henry Wood; Canadian Industries, Miss Veronica Ivall; Canadianization and National Events, Mrs. Walter Maxwell; Child Welfare and Public Health, Miss G. Riddell; Education - Better Schools, Mrs. Russel Patterson; Home Economics, Mrs. Andrew Shearer; Immigration, Miss Joyce Riddell; Legislation, Miss Eunice Seale; Publicity, Mrs. Wesley Dawson.

About 60 persons were present and enjoyed the refreshments served by the hostess, and the social hour that followed.

Weddings

Morrison-Andrew

Livingstone United Church was the scene of a marriage at 3 o'clock on Saturday, October 21, when Miss Mary Dick Andrew, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Andrew, of Outremont, became the bride of Mr. Morton Murdoch Morrison. The Rev. R. K. Fairbairn performed the ceremony. Yellow mums and autumn foliage formed the decorations. The organist of the church rendered the music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in a gown of moon-glow French crepe, with small hat to match; she wore as her only ornament a silver locket, the gift of the groom and carried an arm bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley.

During the signing of the register Mrs. H. Kelly sang "Oh Promise Me" and "This is My Prayer for You."

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a short motor trip to the Maritimes, the bride travelling in a brown coat with mink trimming and brown hat. On their return they will reside on Durocher Ave., Outremont.

Smith-Hazel

In the Brownsburg United Church manse, at 7.30 o'clock Thursday evening, October 12th, the marriage took place of Eva Florence, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hazel, to Mr. Harold Watson Smith, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Smith, of Mystic, Que. The Rev. S. J. Pike officiated.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. K. H. Smith, and Mr. D. Smith, of Mystic, Que., mother and brother respectively, of the bridegroom.

Martin-Graves

At 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 21st, in the Brownsburg United Church, the marriage was solemnized of Miss Cecelia Margaret Martin, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, to Mr. Herbert Douglas Graves, both of Brownsburg, Que. The Rev. S. J. Pike officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of ivory brocaded satin made on Princess lines with tiny self-covered buttons extending from the simple collar to the waist line in front. Her veil of embroidered tulle illusion fell from a coronet of lilies-of-the-valley and ended in a long train; and she carried a bouquet of Calla lilies and fern.

The bridesmaids, Miss Myrtle Campbell and Miss Margaret Low, were gowned in ice-blue and dusky pink respectively; their gowns of chiffon over taffeta were made on simple lines, having very full skirts, with matching jackets of shirred chiffon, and they wore doll-hats. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Erwin Martin, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Russell Martin and Mr. Herbert Graham.

Mrs. J. Martin, mother of the bride, wore a gown of empire blue crepe and cut velvet with navy accessories.

The wedding music from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. C. J. Wheeler, and during the signing of the register she played, "I Love You Truly."

A reception to about 100 guests was held in the church hall following the ceremony; the decorations were carried out in pink and white.

The happy couple left later by motor for Windsor, the bride travelling in a grey suit with blue accessories.

On their return they will reside in Brownsburg.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Lough and Master Stewart Lough, of Verdun, Que., Mr. and Mrs. E. Baldwin and Miss E. Baldwin, of Montreal; Mrs. Simon of Red Deer; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Martin, of Thurso, Que.

Hundred Club Masquerade Hallowe'en Night, Tuesday

Patrons of the Hundred Club Hallowe'en masquerade ball are advised that the sending of invitations has been curtailed this year, and the executive are relying on direct sale of tickets. This change of practice is to save unnecessary expense, as the event is strictly a charity affair for the Club's welfare funds. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Club.

The support of local citizens is urged in this good cause. Costumes are optional; to emphasize the fun and spirit of the occasion, however, all dancers must wear masks until judging of the costumes. Prizes will be awarded, and with good music, favors and efficient catering of refreshments, an enjoyable time is assured.

The Boy Scouts are again lending their assistance at the cloak room. Admission prices have been reduced to $1.50 a couple and $1 single.

From the interest already displayed, the Club anticipates a fine attendance and an interesting show of costumes.

Hints for Homebodies

Specially Written for Readers of The Watchman
By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN

THREE BOOKS

In times of stress, people very often read more non-fiction. I like to read memoirs, biography, and autobiography. Recently, I have been reading some by women. The first was 'I Wanted to Be an Actress', by Catherine Cornell. Anyone interested in the theatre will find this fascinating reading. Without a doubt, it is the most modest autobiography I have ever read. Geraldine Farrar calls hers 'Such Sweet Compulsion'. Although it is written entirely by Miss Farrar, a part of it is supposedly in her mother's words. Somehow, the writing seemed to fall a bit flat and although there is plenty of interesting material, it was not used to the best advantage. It is to be hoped the treatment of German music and musicians during the Great War will not be repeated again. The third book, is 'Look in Your Glass', by Ruth Gordon, which is running in the Atlantic Monthly. It is always amazing to me how people can remember the details of their early years. Among other things she writes of the various stores and their windows on Main Street with a wealth of detail. The candies she used to see were very similar to the ones we saw in our childhood, but I am sure I never could have remembered them, although as she mentions them they come back to me. This book has interested me because it brought back so many of the small things in my early life, which I had forgotten.

EDNA FERBER ON THE JEWS

Edna Ferber has this to say of the Jewish families of Appleton, Wisconsin, in her autobiography, 'A Peculiar Treasure', — incidentally, Edna Ferber is of Jewish parentage. 'The children did not stand spectacularly high in their studies, in the athletic field or in any of the arts, probably because they had never experienced racial or religious oppression. It is usually the persecuted Jew who naturally tries to compensate for oppression. It has always been my contention that the Jew, left in peace for two hundred years throughout the world, would lose his aggressiveness, his tenacity and neurotic ambition; would be completely absorbed and would vanish, as a type from the face of the earth. Paradoxical though it may seem, in spite of the degradation of the body, the humiliation of the spirit, the agony of mind, the torture of the soul which has been visited upon the Jews of the so-called civilized world in the past five years, the gorgeous irony of it is this; Adolf Hitler has done more to strengthen, to unite, to solidify and to spiritualize the Jews of the world than any man since Moses. I never have heard a satisfactory answer to the riddle of the world's attitude towards the Jew.

EVACUATED CHILDREN

The women of England have to be prepared to take into their homes as many children as there are rooms in the house, exclusive of the kitchen. Count up the rooms in your house and think how you would like to have five, six, seven or more children quartered on you. Where would you put them to sleep? Have you enough bedding to keep them warm? Have you enough strength to cook for them? and look after them? If they are accompanied by an adult it is not necessary to do the cooking but they must be allowed the use of the kitchen. There will be many women who are able to do all that is required of them but there must be many elderly women who will be making a big sacrifice. We feel that war hits us hard here but actually we know nothing about it.

A COMFORTABLE HOME

From now on we spend more time in our homes. Have a look-see around yours to find out if it is really comfortable enough to make your family want to stay at home. One mother was very much worried because her teen-age son never wanted to be at home but always was anxious to be going some place. He liked to read but seldom settled down to it. She knew that part of it was due to the restlessness of his age but she felt there must be some reason why he never seemed to want to stay at home. One day he unconsciously gave her the clue. Getting up from his book he said, 'there is no place in this house where a fellow can be comfortable.' She realized this was true. The head of the house had a comfortable chair, and so had she, but those long legs of her son had grown so quickly that the chair which used to be comfortable was no longer so. She felt that although she had no money to spend on new furniture, it must be found, as it was important to try to keep her son in his home. She took him down town and fitted him with a chair which he found to his liking. By taking a table from another spot and moving a lamp, she provided him with a comfortable place to read. She plans soon to buy him a table with a book-shelf, so that he can keep his books handy. Her scheme has worked; now that he has a place to put his apples and his cores and to keep the book or magazine he is reading and a proper light to read by, he settles down to read. Each comfortable chair should have a table and a light for reading or sewing. If your house is not comfortable for every member of the family it is not a proper home.

PUMPKIN PIE

1 can pumpkin or 4 cups cooked pumpkin, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 teas. cinnamon, 1 teas. ginger, 1 teas. salt, 2 eggs, 2 cups milk.

Mix the pumpkin, sugar, salt and spices, stir in the beaten eggs and then the milk. Pour into unbaked pie shells and bake at 400 degrees until the centre is set and the pastry browned. I use canned pumpkin as it is dependable in quality and never watery. It is cheaper than buying pumpkin and cooking it. I make one pie at the time as pumpkin pie must be eaten while fresh. The filling will keep for some days in a bottle in the refrigerator.

Raw Fish Diet Urged by Nova Scotia Doctor

Nova Scotians, Canada's leading fishermen, were given some advice on how to eat the commodity of which they are such prolific producers. "Eat it raw," was the counsel given to members of the Nova Scotia Economics Association by Dr. H. B. Atlee, Halifax physician.

"The trouble with our fish is we cook it," Dr. Atlee continued. "We should eat it raw. Raw fish and a little bread and butter would give us lots of vitamins. You lose the real good in fish by cooking it.

"This province, endowed as it is with an abundance of fish and apples, is capable of producing the healthiest race in the world from a dietetic standpoint."

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

70,000 Tractors for the English Land Girls

London— British farmers have now got 70,000 tractors ready to plough 1,500,000 acres of grass land for crops to maintain Britain's food supplies.

In 1914 not one British farmer in a hundred had even seen a tractor Today British tractors show a vast improvement in design over the few thousand which were put on the land in 1917. As they are much lighter they can everywhere replace the horse; and with pneumatic tires in place of the old steel wheels, not only are their upkeep and fuel consumption both lower, but manned by the growing army of land girls they can now be used for haulage work.

In many districts of Great Britain the methods of application of machinery are today second to none in the world, and this wider experience, coupled with the huge contingent of tractors now available, assures the fighting forces of more than adequate support on the home front.

Bread and Other Words

Amongst other things, bread is responsible for the words "lord" and "lady." "Lord" is derived from Saxon words meaning "the owner or winner of the loaf," while "lady" comes from one meaning "the distributor or giver of the loaf," says London Answers Magazine. Bread is now baked in all kinds of flavors from orange to cheese, and in all kinds of different shapes. These shapes, though presumably traditional, seem to have no practical explanation. Why do they bake their bread so rigidly square in Wales, and round in some parts of northern England? No one knows! It is just old custom.

MODERN WOMEN

By Dr. M. L. Maffett

At the age of eighty-five, Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Larkins, of McPherson, Kansas, is still carving objects out of wood. She started her avocation at the age of ten, when living with her parents in Sweden. Specimens of her work are scattered all over the States and even in the homes of several of the royal families of Europe. President Roosevelt has a dog carved by her nimble fingers.

It was through her interest as a child in carving that she developed this interest into a career. For fifteen years, King Gustav of Sweden and his mother sponsored an art shop where her work was displayed. The king himself bought tiny horses from her, paying $25 each. For the past forty years she has lived in Kansas and she spends five or six hours a day at her work bench.

The Wood Yukon Expedition includes one woman, Mrs. Walter Wood, wife of the leader of the group. The party set out for the most forbidding areas on the North American continent, and Mrs. Wood was entrusted with one of the jobs essential to the project's success, ground photography and sketching. The expedition was undertaken by the American Geographical Society.

Genevieve de Colmont, of Paris, France, is the only woman on record to navigate a boat of any kind down the Colorado River. She made the trip with her husband in a foldboat.

Frau Stella Kornerup, of Denmark, has had the cooperation of women of Sweden and Finland in staging a Scandinavian Art Exhibition at Charlottenborg.

Probably one of the youngest women in Finland ever to be nominated for Parliament is Anni Voipio, president of the Finnish Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. She is an outstanding journalist, and frequently represents her paper in foreign countries.

After only six hours of instruction, Jacqueline Cochran, noted aviatrix, made an instrument landing. She was the first woman ever to land "under the hood"—without any view of the ground.

Modern Technique

Modern technique in permanent waving aims at lasting results with a minimum of discomfort for the client. The newest machines are designed for this purpose, and, efficiently operated, achieve the desired effect . . . Catherine's Beauty Studio, new beauty salon in the Giles Block, Main St., is modernly equipped and supervised.

Women in Breeches

New Uniforms Designed for Britain's Auxiliary Services

London—Hundreds of thousands of Service dress items have been rushed out from British factories since war began, to meet the needs of the new legions of women in uniform.

The Women's Auxiliary Territorial Service alone was responsible for the purchase of some 20,000 uniforms in the first three weeks of war and such is the capacity of industry that one store in London which makes outfits for all types of women's organizations reports that its workshops turned out in a single week nearly three times the quantity of uniforms they were sheduled to complete.

Women who are giving their time to war work as members of the Women's Voluntary Services have had a famous London dress designer to choose their regulation outfit. It is a grey-green herring-bone suit and overcoat, with a ruby blouse and a striped scarf combining those shades. More than 10,000 green overalls have already been completed for their use in office work.

The Auxiliary Fire Service women are rigged out in navy blue, piped with scarlet, and their headgear is rather like a ski-ing cap. Nurses' kit varies from the red and grey for Army nurses to the more sombre blue and white of the St. John Ambulance volunteers.

TOYS

Children are the family jewels—the blossoms of humanity. The great atheist, Robert Ingersoll, said, "The laugh of a little child will make the holiest day more sacred still," while Bacon remarked "Children sweeten labours, make life happier and mitigate the remembrance of death."

Primitive people loved their offspring as much as the parent of today, and it was to add to their comfort and happiness that toys were made to amuse them.

The life of babies since the dawn of time to the present has varied but little. No matter what pestilence stalked through the land; no matter if wars took their toll of lives; or if famine or depression came to nations, children always had toys.

Necklaces of seeds, sea-shells, or polished stones, through which a bole had been drilled, were strung upon the sinews of some animal and placed about the neck and arms of the babies, and were undoubtedly the first toys known to mankind.

Then came the rattle, fashioned first out of a gourd, in which the seeds had been dried and later for children of royalty they were made of ivory.

Animals of clay, inside of which pebbles were placed to make a noise came next. Specimens of these early toys have been found in caves and ruins, dating back thousands of years before Christ.

The Egyptians were perhaps the first to make dolls. The earlier ones, dating 3,000 B.C., were made of carved wood, painted, with wigs of human hair.

Even Eskimo babies had dolls carved of whalebone, and the Negro bushman's little ones in darkest Africa were not denied the pleasure of these diminutive mannikins.

The early Aztecs and the Chumus, who lived in Peru, 25,000 B.C., made dolls of baked clay, but the Greeks and early Romans developed the doll industry to a new high, when they manufactured them, so that their arms and legs moved and their eyes opened and closed.

Then doting parents had miniature carts, wagons, chariots, houses and small ships made from wood, leather, lead and bronze, to amuse their infants.

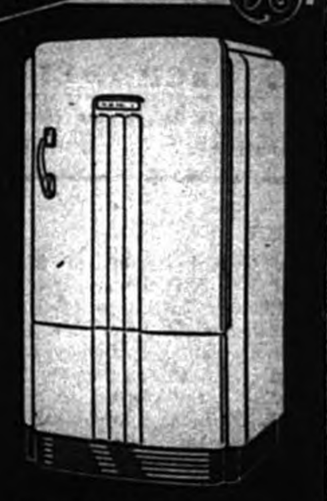

A monk who lived during the year 1463 invented the kiddy car, and the ones of today are almost exact replicas of the various styles he devised, so that small boys might scoot about much to the amusement of their parents.

Thousands of years before Christianity came into the world, mothers taught their offspring not to cry, primarily because such noise attracted prowling beasts of prey or might indicate to enemies their presence.

Hands were placed over the babies' mouths when they started to cry and by action and deed they were impressed with the fact that pain or happiness must be borne stoically, which accounts for the silence of primitive infants.

We doctors of today have found it possible to do the same thing with newborn children, and today in hospitals babies are seen and not heard, for from the moment of birth, the attending nurse teaches them that silence is golden, and the little ones soon learn that howls, tears and screams get them nowhere, and it is surprising how they accept the inevitable and behave.

IN CANADA It's Apple-Time RIGHT NOW!

JUICY, perfectly-ripened Canadian apples are in . . . fresh from Canada's finest orchards! Plenty of them, too—those that normally would be exported overseas, as well as our own usual, generous supply. And—thanks to the higher minimum grade requirements—there are greater-than-average qualities of the finer, fancier, higher-grade eating apples.

So, all through this year's apple season, order liberal quantities of Canadian apples . . . for eating, cooking, entertaining . . . and for jellying and preserving. You'll enjoy them immensely—and you'll be doing your country a SERVICE at the same time.

And remember, Canadian apples are Government Graded. Ask to see the grade-mark on the container when you buy!

Britain's Constitution Not Like That of U. S.

Great Britain does have a constitution, but it in no way corresponds to ours. It is mainly unwritten and customary, but its development is marked by certain outstanding and fundamental laws, the principal ones of which are the following:

The Magna Charta, adopted in 1215, which secured annual parliaments and the equal administration of justice;

The Act of Union with Scotland, 1707;

The Act of Union with Ireland; 1800;

The Parliament Act of 1911, which enabled the commons to pass certain acts without the concurrence of the other chamber;

The Government of Ireland Act, 1920, and the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act of 1922;

The Westminster Act, 1931, bringing to an end the control once exercised by parliament over the Dominions, and recognizing their equality of status with the British government and cabinet.

The constituent parts of the British constitution describe the sovereign, the legislative, the executive and judiciary.

Cock of the Rock Clever Dancer in Native Haunts

In the dense forests of South America through which flow the Amazon river and its tributaries, lives the cock of the rock, according to naturalists who have described him, the most beautiful bird in the world. He is a glorious creature, in a coat of bright orange, black-tipped wings and tail, and a marvelous double crest which runs backward from the tip of his bill, over the top of his head, like the ridge of a helmet.

To see them dance, relates a writer in the Michigan Farmer, you must peep through the underbrush in the dense shadows. If you are fortunate, you may see a score of birds in a natural amphitheater, the spectators gathered on bushes surrounding an open space in the center—the stage.

Here this radiant, feathered actor takes his place, and his solo dance begins. With lowered wings, and outspread, pumping tail, he walks round and round the stage, scratching the ground and springing into the air—the spectators in the bushes, meanwhile, giving every evidence of keen enjoyment of his act.

When he is tired, he joins the spectators, while another male takes his place on the stage. Nobody knows how long the dancing continues—probably until every young brave has done his stunt.

The show is all put on for the benefit of the shy little females, demure and brown, with small crests, only suggestions of the gorgeous ones of their mates.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT TO AID ENGLAND

Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, may be the first son of an American president to change his nationality, according to a report from London. Roosevelt has become a British subject so he may aid the Allies by becoming an official of the British Ministry of Shipping. Roosevelt fought in the British army during the World War.

"Autumn Fiction for the Winter Menu"

and described. We begin with Dorothy Canfield's "Seasoned Timber," a very thoughtful and high-minded book, a story of life in her much-loved Vermont, a state loved by many of us as well. It is long, carefully done, and shows the strong love of freedom and the individuality which has always characterised Vermont people, as well as their respect for the individuality of their follow-creatures, men and women.

Dorothy Whipple — who wrote "Greenbanks" several years ago — brings us "The Priory," a long, carefully-written novel of English life in one of the lovely English counties. The Priory is a fine old house which has survived since pilgrimage times, and is occupied by a family comprising Father, a Major of about fifty, his sister, his two lovely daughters, the household suffering rather severely from the lack of a mistress, for the mother of the two daughters, now in their late teens, has been dead for many years. It is a very entertaining novel, with many developments in different directions, high and humble, of love-affairs, some happy, some not so happy, and it has a happy ending with everyone, even the twin babies, well looked after. It is a novel of today.

Dorothy Hewlett's "Victorian House" is also an intriguing novel of early Victorian times, English family life, the scenes laid partly in the English countryside, where a stern parent, not unlike Mr. Barrett, governs the lives of all dwellers in Victorian House. The bulk of the story, however, is in London, about the time of the building of the Crystal Palace, and there are some very good historical scenes informing us on that important project, some of which remind us of what we read about the New York World's Fair, and we see Victoria and her beloved Albert visiting, inspecting, and approving the great building which owed so much to the Prince Consort. Some of the street scenes in London, however, are heartrending; one cannot sincerely speak of "the good old times" in the face of such evidence. The book is lively, honest, and decent; there is plenty of variety in incident and plot, and has a comfortably happy ending. It is quite long, nearly six hundred pages; quite the proverbial Victorian novel.

For the roast, or piece de resistance, I have selected some titles from the reliable and settled novelists who have pleased us so often in past years. Some of them are not yet published, but they should be on the bookstore counters before the end of October.

First I suppose we might put Sir Hugh Walpole's "The Sea Tower," which some of you have read in serial form. It is a novel which in some aspects suggests "Rebecca" only without that towering form overshadowing everything else in the book. It is a story of the marriage of two completely likeable young people, settling down to live down in Cornwall where the young husband manages an enormous estate for his father and mother and brother. It is not particularly long, like all Sir Hugh Walpole's the people in it live and move about in perfectly natural fashion; the main interest is centered on the young wife and her husband's mother.

Francis Brett Young's novel, "The City of Gold," is a continuation of his novel of two years ago, "They Seek a Country," and carries along the story of John and his Elizabeth. "The City of Gold" is, of course, Johannesburg. The book is long, well done, as we might expect, and extremely interesting. I should most certainly place it among the leading books of this autumn. The historical scene is accurate, sympathetic, and informative. The life in South Africa rings a romantic note in our ears; there is more than one love story.

I have read Storm Jameson's "The Captain's Wife," and found it a novel almost impossible to lay down. Many of you will remember "The Lovely Ship" and its rather overpowering heroine, Mary Hervey, who ran her own shipyard. Do you also recall her daughter Sylvia who ran away with one young man and, when she found he did not intend to marry her, turned around and almost instantly married an elderly sea-captain who had long been fond of her. Well, this novel, "The Captain's Wife," is the story of Sylvia, married to Captain William Russell. I think this is a book you will find satisfying; the lovely English is a delight to the ear and to the mind.

Most of you will want to read Anne Bridge's "Four-Part Setting." The scene is laid in China, where she wrote her first and most successful novel, "Pekin Picnic." It should make a fine addition to any list for winter reading. It is not yet published and I have no particulars, but relying on her past performances, I do recommend it.

Susan Ertz is a very satisfying writer. Her new book is called "One Fight More," is a novel of New York and Connecticut society life, and is very entertaining and well done. In my opinion Susan Ertz has never yet written anything that was not well worth an educated woman's time, attention, and enjoyment.

I suppose a good many of you read "Senator Marlowe's Daughter," which was followed by "Honor Bright" and "Parts Unknown." Well, Frances Parkinson Keyes has done it again, and this fall she offers us "Great Tradition," the story of an attractive young man, of American and German parentage, who re-visits Germany, the home of his grandparents, about the time of Hitler's rise and with youthful impetuosity joins the Hitler Youth Movement. He visits relatives in Spain and falls in love with a Spanish lady, returns to Germany, experiences complete disillusionment, and returns to America. There are two love stories in this fine novel, both powerful and strongly-contrasted. It is nearly five hundred pages in length, and comes to us with the very best of recommendations from publishers and reviewers. I think you will like it very much indeed.

Doris Leslie, who wrote those excellent novels, "Full Flavour" and "Fair Company," has another book of the early 19th century, "Another Cynthia." It is quite a good novel, but unfortunately of necessity rather circumscribed in description of its heroine's activities. Cynthia is a pretty lady, a stage beauty, and the enamorata of more than one prominent man of the day. The scenes of stage and court life of the Regency period are very carefully done, and it contains a good deal of general information which is interesting. Once more, however, it is a book that when people talk of "the good old times" one could use as testimony that those days were to our times as night is to dawn.

Any one who read John Masefield's "Dead Ned" will read with alacrity his fall offering "Live and Kicking Ned," which continues the life—also early nineteenth century—of a young medical student who was hanged for body-snatching or some such crime, and then resuscitated by certain of his colleagues. As with all Masefield's novels the writing is simply beautiful, and his plots are all most absorbing and exciting.

Keep your eyes open for Martin Hare's "Polonaise." She is an English woman writer married to a Pole, and has lived in Central Europe. She has several good novels to her credit, notably "Butler's Gift" (Published in America as "Enchanted Winter") and "English Rue," which has been very much liked. Her new book "Polonaise" evidently deals with Poland, and I am sure it will be entertaining and pleasing.

Our old friend Frank Swinnteton, almost the dean of today's novelists, has published his long-promised novel, "Two Wives." It is bound to be good, and the title is delicious. It is not yet published here.

Stuart Cloete, who wrote "Turning Wheels" two years ago, that gripping story of the Boers in South Africa, brings out this fall his new novel called "Watch for the Dawn." It is also of the Boers in South Africa. It has not yet been published in Canada, though the American edition has been out since August.

There is a certain amount of non-fiction which is always popular in a reading-group. I carefully refrain from political writings dealing with the anxieties of the moment. We have all and more than we can digest in the newspapers. There are, however, each fall some very lively and entertaining memoirs and biographies which charm us for their beautiful writing, for their wealth of incident, and for their attitude to life and their views upon it. First among these I think I shall put J. B. Priestley's "Rain Upon Godshill." Three years ago he wrote "Midnight on the Desert" which I am sure many of you enjoyed. It was autobiographical and "Rain Upon Godshill" is also autobiographical. It has been extremely well reviewed, and if you are going to swerve from fiction you could do no better.

A completely charming book is A. A. Milne's "Autobiography." Parts of it appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, and I found it delightful. He is the poet of "When We Were Very Young," and other books for children. He was also assistant editor of Punch, and his life in London brought him into company with nearly all England's literary lights, most of whom appear in the pages of his book, "Autobiography." It is a very happy book indeed, and I can recommend it very warmly.

R. H. Mottram, an experienced novel-writer, publishes this fall "Traders' Dream," the story of the founding and the long life of the East India Company. If the book be half as interesting as its subject I think we shall all want to read it. Think of Clive and Warren Hastings, think of the Black Hole of Calcutta and the Indian Mutiny, think of Pondicherry, Delhi, Bengal, all those romantic names, and see if you can afford to miss it.

Lord David Cecil's "The Young Melbourne" is receiving a great deal of publicity. It is completely charming and informative, and is the earlier life of Victoria's great first Prime Minister.

Daniele Vare's "Laughing Diplomat" of a year ago, has been a joy to everyone who read it. He is an Italian Ambassador who has represented Italy in half the civilised countries of the world. His experiences in China are what people find most interesting, I think, though his lively amusing style, and the fact that an ambassador meets everyone worth meeting, will colour and make interesting the whole of this very good book of memoirs.

Countess Fingall's "Seventy Years Young," is the completely delightful memoirs of a reigning beauty, who has been received into the highest society in the land for a half century and more.
