ONE DEAD, 11 INJURED IN COLLISION OF CARS AT GRENVILLE

Crash Occurred at Ogilvie's Corner, East of Grenville

18-YEAR-OLD DRIVER HELD CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE

The death of Sarah Catherine McQuaig, 17-year-old Vankleek Hill girl, at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, was the tragic outcome of an automobile crash near Grenville in which 11 others were injured. The girl died in Dr. Kelly's Hospital, Hawkesbury, as the result of a skull fracture. She was unconscious since the accident, which occurred Sunday at 8.30 p.m. when two cars collided on No. 8 Highway one mile east of Grenville.

INJURED OCCUPANTS MOSTLY YOUNG PERSONS IN TEENS AND TWENTIES

Traffic Officer H. Jones and Provincial Detective R. Jargaille, of the Homicide Squad, investigated. Other injured occupants of the cars were — Mrs. Polidor Girard, 39, of Brownsburg, critically hurt and now in hospital at Hawkesbury; and the following less seriously injured: Polidor Girard, Gisele Girard, 10, Jeannette Girard, 15, Roland Girard, 19, Rolande Girard, 18, Arthur Guilbault, 22, all of Brownsburg; Yvette Gingras, 20, St. Jerome; Charles Anderson, 18, Gordon Kerr 17, Vankleek Hill R.R. 3; and Gwen Blaney, 17, Fournier, Ont.

The accident occurred on the highway east of Grenville. One of the autos, driven by Anderson, was going west, while the other car, driven by Girard was going in the opposite direction when the crash occurred. Both autos were wrecked.

Miss McQuaig, who suffered fatal injuries, was a passenger in the west-bound car. A jury empaneled by the acting district coroner, Dr. W. F. McMartin of Lachute, heard evidence at an inquest into her death, held yesterday afternoon at Boyd's restaurant, Grenville. Predictions to the contrary, there was no inquest held under Ontario jurisdiction.

Council Asks Levelling of Disused Crossings

Testimony was given by Polidor Girard and his son, Roland, who were driving in the eastbound car; by Chas. Anderson, 18, driver, Gwen Blaney and Gordon Kerr, occupants of the westbound car; Alex Gordon, garage mechanic, Brownsburg; Officer H. Jones and Detective R. Jargaille.

Evidence showed that Girard, when approaching Ogilvie's Corner, a wide curve on the highway, drew to the side of the road and almost stopped as the other car appeared approaching at a fast rate of speed. Tracks on the pavement indicated the Ontario car, going west, had skidded 120 feet after the brakes were applied, with one wheel off the shoulder of the road.

After deliberating on the evidence the jurors returned a verdict holding Anderson criminally responsible for the girl's death. The young man was held as a material witness to appear in court at Montreal today.

Opportunities always look bigger going than coming.

Flat Tires Prove No Obstacle to Auto Thieves

Car Abandoned Here And Another Promptly Stolen

To lawless men with itchy feet, the theft of an automobile is the easiest expedient — so easy, it seems, that frequently one theft will be followed by another when the culprits, running into difficulties, abandon their conveyance as lightly as they acquired it.

About the time a car was reported stolen here last week, another from Montreal was found abandoned in Lachute.

Parked outside the Larocque residence, East Ward, on Tuesday morning, Oct. 29th, a 1938 Ford sedan belonging to Lucien Savard, insurance agent, was stolen.

The car, newly overhauled at a garage, was headed eastward; it was found next day at Ste. Therese in a condition which suggested it had been driven at a reckless pace. Two strangers who had been seen in Lachute, were suspected. The car was minus some tools, a dashboard clock and some insurance papers.

A police officer, finding the strange car on a Ste. Therese thoroughfare, removed the ignition key and locked the doors. Returning later, it was apparent to the officer the thieves had come back and attempted to re-enter the car.

Meanwhile, on Wednesday a car owned by the City of Montreal was found on Melke Street, Lachute — where the thieves had apparently left it and seized the Savard car. The Montreal machine had been stolen two days previously from Chas. Desbaillets, chief electrical engineer of the City, who later came here to retrieve it. The car had two flat tires; a motor rug was missing — also the dashboard clock!

Ste. Adele Resort Prepares Trails for Ski Season

Ten railroad officials from the United States visiting Ste. Adele to view the winter tourist attractions of that district, were greeted with dynamite blasts to demonstrate the resort was paving the way for a bigger and better season. The blasting operations were part of a wide improvement scheme sponsored by the new Ste. Adele Lodge, whose adjacent ski slopes are amongst the finest in the Laurentian district. Runways on Hill 80 will be considerably improved by the clearing process, while new trails will be available on neighboring hills.

The recent survey of American railroads adds further emphasis to the importance of Laurentian ski trails in the American sporting picture. More and more ski trails are being explored by American visitors every winter, and, judging by enquiries and preparations it is said the coming season will be no exception.

Trainees Are Called for Second Camp Period

NOTICES ISSUED TO MEN ELIGIBLE FOR GROUP

Ottawa, Nov. 6 — With the second 30-day military training period scheduled to commence November 22, notices have been issued by the registrars of the thirteen Divisional Boards of the National War Services Department to single men of 21 and 22 and a small number in the 23-year-old class to report for medical examination.

In making this announcement, Major General L. R. LaFleche, Associate Deputy Minister, stated that the instructions make it clear that all medical practitioners in good standing throughout Canada have been appointed examining physicians by Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services, and that all examination fees will be paid by the Department. At the same time, he stressed the fact that each man must sign the medical examination form on which appears the doctor's report on his physical condition.

Major General LaFleche pointed out that since the time of national registration — last August — many young men have enrolled in universities and colleges, or have joined the Navy, Army, Air Force or a Non-Permanent Active Militia unit. "If notices to report for medical examination should be received by any of these men, they must immediately inform the registrar."

Any application for postponement of training must be made to the Divisional Registrar within eight clear days of the date appearing on the notice for medical examination.

All men eligible in the second group who are found to be medically fit will be notified. Transport warrants will be issued if necessary.

Damages Awarded In Accident Claim

SEQUEL TO COLLISION OF CARS ON MAIN STREET

A court action heard at St. Jerome on Monday before Justice Louis Cousineau, involved damages incurred by J. A. Menard, of Lachute, in a collision between his bakery truck and a car driven by Mr. J. Assaly, also of this town. The collision occurred on the evening of August 30th, 1939, just south of the C.P.R. level crossing at the Memorial Park. The bakery truck was badly damaged.

Witnesses described the nature of the accident and the extent of the damage. Town Constable A. Gervais gave evidence, with Gerald Menard, driver of the truck; also a passenger in the vehicle, a Montreal auto dealer, and a garage repairman were heard. Legault & Legault, Lachute attorneys, represented Mr. Menard, while counsel for Mr. Assaly, Beauregard & Beaudry, offered no defense, agreeing to abide by whatever judgment the court rendered. Justice Cousineau gave judgment for a sum approximating $400, including damages and costs of the case.

Still the Poppies Grow

In Flanders' Fields — sacred to our memory — new crimes have been perpetrated; new massacres, new atrocities, under slightly less horrible names. New armies have passed — mightier, speedier armies, trampling their victims under a robot heel, to the beat of pounding cylinders.

War today is different. It is impersonal — terrible — inhuman. And the smoke of battle over Flanders' Fields, it is a pall of dull despair that cloaks a conquered people.

Yet still the poppies grow.

This Flanders is a paradox of poppies and of bloodshed, a land of eternal peace and relentless war. Yet it is a paradox no stranger than the position we now find ourselves in. For today we bend our every effort on a war of destruction, while still we dearly cherish those who fought and died for peace! And plainly our duty lies in both.

Still the poppies grow: a symbol of the faith we keep with those who died, in vain, for peace — our faith with the boys who now grow old among us — and with the rows of little crosses they left behind.

Remembrance Day, next Monday, is the twenty-second anniversary of the Armistice and the Victory, which promised, then, so much. Let us honor again the glorious dead. And the disabled, the maimed, the needy veterans from that last grim holocaust of Flanders — let us help them always as they deserve. . . . Wear a poppy on Remembrance Day!

Road Elevations at Former C.N.R. Right-of-Way

BILL FOR IMPROVEMENT OF UP. LACHUTE WATERCOURSE

Following a decision of the St. Jerome Parish Council at its regular meeting held last Monday, a request is being submitted to the Board of Railway Commissioners for lowering of the right of way at level crossings of the C.N.R. recently abandoned in this section. The tracks have been raised from the disused line passing through the parish, but at several of the level crossings there is still an elevation in the roadway. Hazardous and inconvenient even when the line was in operation, these elevations now serve no purpose and the council seeks to have them removed.

Besides routine business of the council, a bill was passed to proceed with improvement of the Upper Lachute water course, taking advantage of a grant for this purpose from the Quebec Department of Agriculture.

Mayor J. G. Hadley presided, and there was a full attendance of councilmen, including S. Wilson, P. Gordon, E. W. Smith, R. Morrison, F. Touchette, A. C. Pollock and the secretary, J. W. Gall.

Chapter of Delays In Court Hearing Of B'bg Lawsuit

Again Postponed, Through Illness of Magistrate

Litigation on the Brownsburg waterworks contract, despite the urgency of the case, has been hanging fire for over a month. It was on October 3rd an injunction was granted to plaintiff, A. Auclair, to halt work on the project. Since that date the court hearing, once adjourned, has met repeated delays.

The case was last set for Monday of this week, when it was expected the arguments would be concluded and judgment rendered. Here again, circumstances intervened, and through sickness of the appointed judge the case was again postponed, until next Tuesday, Nov. 12th.

Suit for damages against the municipality was started under Justice Philemon Cousineau in Superior Court. After the September and October sessions at St. Jerome, the magistrate was due to hear cases in Montreal. Chief Justice Greenshields, however, consented to his presiding over the Brownsburg contract suit and one other important case at St. Jerome. The litigants later were notified of the sickness of Judge Philemon Cousineau, and no other Superior Court Judge being available, sitting was deferred. According to last advice, the local case will definitely be heard before Judge Louis Cousineau of Montreal, formerly of Hull, next Tuesday at St. Jerome.

Roosevelt Re-election Good Omen As Canadian Parliament Resumes

U. S. Three-Term President Has Demonstrated Sympathies in Material War Aid to Britain

Ottawa — These are politically active days, on this side of the Atlantic. While the federal parliament has been settling down to a session vitally concerned with war problems and the successful prosecution of Canada's effort in the war — the turmoil of elections in the United States has subsided, with President Roosevelt returned for his third term, an unprecedented turn in the history of White House and presidential affairs. The triumph is a favorable factor in the destinies of Canada and the British Empire, since Roosevelt's sympathies, translated into practical support, are avowedly with Britain in her conflict with the dictators. Britain felt sure in the belief, also, that America's aid would continue should Willkie have been elected; but the outcome of Tuesday's vote makes the issue doubly certain. President Roosevelt's statement that Britain was buying 12,000 more planes in the United States and word from London that the British will purchase freight ships to the value of at least 50 million dollars give some indication of the extent of this material aid.

As parliament opens, the centre of war interest has shifted from British and German skies to the Mediterranean, where Greece fights the Italian invader and where the next moves of the Axis powers are awaited tensely. The Canadian parliament will settle down to its work with the gravity of the struggle undiminished and with its duty clear and urgent.

Factories and plant extensions in Canada for which financial commitments have been made by the Crown have a total value of some $250,000,000, the minister of munitions and supply, Mr. C. D. Howe, announced recently. Some of these plants are already working, others are on the way to completion. The latest step, in the production of munitions being undertaken in this country is the manufacture of large aerial bombs.

Women's Institute Meetings Reported

ALL BRANCHES HELD OCTOBER SESSIONS

At the Brownsburg W.I. meeting Mrs. J. Seary spoke on "Plants of the Breakfast Table", such as coffee, cocoa, etc. Mrs. G. Armstrong, county president was in attendance and asked members to report all Red Cross and Refugee work. The Branch agreed to buy a war loan certificate.

At the Jerusalem-Bethany Branch meeting an interesting paper on "Canada's Woman Member" was read. At the September meeting a paper of Education was read by the convener, Miss Leishman. One large and one crib quilt were quilted at this meeting.

Miss Philips, formerly of Macdonald College, gave an illustrated lecture on "The Physiological Aspect of Nutrition" at the Lachute Branch meeting. Plans were made for the travelogue which is to be given here on Nov. 11th. The roll-call was "Household Hints".

Frontier Branch reports an interesting address by Miss M. Tait, teacher of Cushing School, on "Bringing Out Our Possibilities". Five dollars was donated for prizes for pupils in the county writing in the Temperance Educational Campaign. "Thoughts By The Way", on education in the love of poetry, was read by the president.

Month's Voyage While Awaiting Call to R.C.A.F.

YOUNG MAN SERVES ON OIL TANKER

Douglas Prosser, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Prosser, Brownsburg, entered his name to enlist with the R.C.A.F. some months ago; but tired of waiting, he took a job as junior engineer on an Imperial Oil tanker. The boat left Montreal, with Prosser aboard, and his call to the R.C.A.F. arrived the same day. The young man returned home this week after a month's cruise to Jamaica and South American ports, on which the brief shore leaves were the most interesting highlights of the voyage.

Prosser is going to Montreal immediately to report for service, and hopes to become a pilot in the Air Force. His younger brother, George, aged 20, is already a pilot, stationed in training at Windsor Mills.

A plant in Quebec will have an annual output of 100,000 bombs weighing 500 pounds each.

Britain has been shipping to Canada some aircraft needed for the air training plan, but most of its aircraft manufacturing facilities will henceforth be fully employed in the manufacture of service planes for fighting and bombing. Canadian and American plants are therefore doubling the number of training planes they are producing for the Commonwealth plan.

Col. Ralston, minister of national defence has returned from an inspection of the defences of the Maritime Provinces. "My trip has been rapid," he said on arrival here, "but I have seen coast defences, troops on fortresses and guard duties and in training. I have visited the large concentration of C.A.S.F. troops at strategic points and I have seen and heard of the work of the first militia training centres under the national training plan. Never have I been more proud of being Canadian than after seeing the accomplishment of staff, engineers and workmen in bringing into being new and improved coastal fortifications, the building and servicing in record time of new camps and extending existing facilities."

Counterfeit Bills Bring R.C.M.P. To Investigate

Storekeepers Are Victimized During Visit of Troops

The passing of several counterfeit bills in this town is attributed to "parasites" of the recent army occupation — which brought a brief boom to Lachute, disorganized the business routine, and caused no small consternation among our storekeepers. About $40 or $50 in counterfeit American bills was handed over the counters of Main Street stores on Saturday, Oct. 19th — the day on which upwards of 3,000 troops visited this district. R.C.M.P. officers have since been making investigations, and general opinion is that the local storekeepers were victimized by men who traffic on the confusion of busy moments and crowded places.

The bills were all of $10 denomination, and were said to have been skillfully executed. The Dominion Stores, Atlantic and Pacific, Duchesneau Hotel and Argenteuil Bazaar were among firms visited by the miscreants. On discovery of the swindle, bank officials promptly reported the matter to headquarters.

dent. Mrs. G. Armstrong, county president, read an article bearing on the W.I. creed. Paper towels and other accessories were provided for district schools. Two war certificates were purchased and a quilt batt furnished for a Red Cross quilt. It was decided against subscribing to the Macdonald magazine owing to the prominence of liquor advertising. A pledge was signed for abolishing the wet canten and for the restriction of liquor advertising except in the place of sale.

Lakefield welcomed two new members to their Branch. Supplies were provided for the first aid cabinets in two local schools. Plans were made for the holding of a banquet at the Farmers' Club annual meeting, also for the making of a quilt for the Red Cross.

The Mills Isles Branch met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Wood. The county president was welcomed to the meeting by Mrs. Kuhring. Mrs. Kuhring resigned her office as president and Mrs. Maxwell was nominated in her stead. The new library of 291 copies, for children and adults, is completed; $52.00 has been donated to the Red Cross; $52.45 was raised at a bean supper and dance, Ward's Hall. The vacancy in the office of Convener of Legislation, caused by Miss Seale's absence, was filled by the appointment of Mrs. Edgar Elder. Mrs. Kuhring read a paper on "Municipal Laws". On behalf of the members and friends Mrs. Shearer presented the ex-president, Mrs. Kuhring, with a token of remembrance. The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Water Tax Rebate, Absentee Citizens

LENGTHY DISCUSSION AT MEETING OF COUNCIL

One of the highlights engaging attention of the city fathers at their regular monthly council meeting, was discussion on a number of applications for rebates of water tax. The council placed a resolution on the books last May to effect that ratepayers be informed, should their premises be vacant they must notify the office and a small fee of 25 cents would be exacted for cutting off the water supply.

Ald. F. S. McGibbon moved that all accounts be handed over to the water committee for investigation, and rebate granted to those entitled; but a rider was attached to the resolution in which no claim for less than three months' rebate would be entertained.

A letter of complaint was received from H. M. Lavigne as to the bad state of the road in front of his property. This was duly recognized by council, and the matter will be given attention.

The total cost of Foundry Street sewer was reported as $8,175 and the tax is now to be levied for payment of this installation.

Speaking on behalf of a number of west end citizens, W. J. Deacon requested the town to investigate the cause of a bad odor arising from the sewer, which was causing anxiety and inconvenience to many householders.

Notice of motion was given by Ald. McGibbon that he will introduce for adoption a by-law to revive or amend the business tax by-laws. This he deemed advisable through information submitted by the secretary, to the effect that in 1941, the town will be deprived of revenue of $369 paid by the C.N.R. and will have to face a further expenditure of 5 per cent of all pensions to the aged, widows and blind paid to citizens in the Town of Lachute. This is to be a levy by the Provincial Government on all Quebec municipalities.

Present in the council chamber were — Mayor W. S. MacKimmie, Ald. A. Scott, L. St. Jacques, W. Morissette, F. S. McGibbon, E. Prevost and D. Pharand.

AUTUMN FICTION FOR WINTER READING

By

CHRISTINA PALLISER CHAPMAN

(A paper presented before the Study Group of Lachute Women's Institute)

In following our literary menu — we now come to the salad course, which should be fresh at least, pretty and open-air, with sometimes a touch of novelty in the dressing. The best book in this class, and one which I warmly and affectionately recommend, is Naomi Royde-Smith's delightful "Urchin Moor". It is a long and lovely novel, written in beautifully clear style, and very interesting. The scene is of today, and the characters are mature people. It might be read for the sake of the charming house, or for the development of character, but mostly for the intense nature of the plot, which only develops as the story moves on toward its end. Such a book!

Victor Canning's "Mr. Finchley Takes The Road" is a book of open-air England just published. I have not yet looked at it, but I have met Mr. Finchley in some of Canning's earlier books and like him very much. Watch for it.

Beverly Nichols' "Green Grows the City" is a sort of transplantation of his delightful "Down the Garden Path" into the city. He moves into a London house, which has a perfectly dreadful back yard; with skill, patience, and much amusement he changes it into a really lovely spot. "Sold to the Ladies", by Dorothy Bennett, is a lively tale of the purchase of an old barge by three or four New York business women, and their transforming it into a houseboat to which they go night after night as they leave their various offices and employments. It makes one envious.

Francis Brett Young has a new and pleasant novel in this class. It is to be called "Mr. Lacton's Freedom" in England, and in the United States "The Happy Highway". It is a story of a business man who wanted to "get away from it all", which he did, with entertaining results.

I think I shall introduce here some novels whose scene is in Canada, past and present.

Mazo de la Roche's new Jalna book, "Whiteoaks Heritage", is one you will probably all want. It is not yet published, but will be soon. Do not confuse this with "Whiteoaks Chronicle", in which the publishers have bound up all the Jalna books to date. "Quietly My Captain Waits", by Evelyn Eaton, is perhaps the most successful of the season's novels with a Canadian background. It is laid in Nova Scotia about the year 1700, during the French occupation. I am told that Miss Eaton has received $40,000 for the film rights. This must mean that it is picturesque and adventurous.

"Mine Inheritance", by Frederick Niven, is an exceedingly well told novel by an experienced writer. It is a tale of the famous Selkirk Settlement, when Lord Selkirk brought out a shipload of Settlers from Scotland, via Hudson Bay and planted them in Manitoba.

"The Champlain Road", by Franklin McDowell, is a prize novel too. It is laid in Ontario, in the vicinity of Lake Simcoe, and is a good novel.

"The Loon Feather", by Iola Fuller, is not exactly in Canada, but is just across Lake Superior from us. It is in the Hiawatha country, and is a thrilling tale of the fur-traders, with all sorts of romance thrown in.

Where to put C. F. Forester's new novel is a bit of a puzzle. It is called in England "The Earthly Paradise", and was the choice of the English Book Society, the fourth time that Forester's novel has received their monthly honor. The other three were his Captain Hornblower Series. The American title is "To The Indies". This is the tale of the conscientious lawyer, Don Narcisco Rich, who sailed with Christopher Columbus and met many strange adventures.

Would you believe, we have five books this fall with titles in which the word "Tide" occurs? They are: "Moon tide", by Willard Robertson, a tale of the San Diego waterfront. "The Tide of Fortune", by Stefan Zweig, a series of 12 historical miniatures.

"On the Long Tide", by Laura Krey, described a little later on.

"A Song of the Tide", by Ernest Raymond, also later on.

"Tide Still Flowing", by Humphrey Jordan, another of his delightful adventure stories of the sea.

For our dessert, I have made a list of the new books which are fairly light-hearted or at least not gloomy, the general tendency being toward sweetness.

One of the best books of the season is D. F. Stevenson's "The English Air". It is quite her most successful novel; the story of a fine English family and their young German cousin who comes to visit them.

Margery Sharp, who wrote "The Nutmeg Tree", has produced a new novel called "The Stone of Chastity". It is quite entertaining, verging a little on the improper in places, enough to be amusing, though, I think, never transgressing. It is not tops,

"Hiking Through South America" is considered by experts as a triumph of amateur photography. The Toll Brothers brought back from the 16-month tour a display of pictures equalled, for interest, only by the colorful narrative they unfold in this new travelogue.

Boy Accidentally Shot

With a rifle bullet in his abdomen, Andre Dagenais, 14-year-old boy from Lesage, near Shawbridge, was taken to hospital Sunday critically injured.

The boy was wounded by a bullet from his own gun as he returned home late Sunday afternoon from a hunting expedition. Young Dagenais' gun discharged as he neared his house. He was taken to hospital immediately after the accident and rushed to the operating room. Several hours later hospital authorities reported that his condition was critical.

in my opinion, and I would say borrow it rather than buy it.

Elizabeth Goudge's new novel, "The Bird in the Tree", has been a great hit with summer people, and seems to be keeping up through the fall. She is rather charming in her characterizations and style.

A new writer, Isabel Scott Rorick, has produced a novel called "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat", a rollicking story of a happy marriage, with a good deal of snappy and amusing back-chat.

Angela Thirkell has written her yearly meringue, this time it is called "Before Lunch". It is in the same class as her earlier novels — the English countryside, and county families, the squire, the rector, tea at the vicar's.

Among novels which we might term sophisticated are a new one by Gertrude Atherton and another by Vicki Baum.

Gertrude Atherton, at the age of 83, has written a very good novel, entertaining, amusing, and completely sophisticated, called "The House of Lee". She begins it with language which is only the ultra-hard-boiled super-young are supposed to command. The novel is laid in California, and the principal characters are a widow and her three daughters, who have been left high and dry by the recessions of fortune during these last ten years.

ASSURING PAYMENT OF BILLS

In the State of Oregon one utility company has adopted a very effective method of collecting delinquent water bills. Instead of turning off the water completely, the company attaches to the meter a device which slows the flow down to a mere trickle. After waiting ten minutes for a water glass to fill, or four days to fill a bathtub, the tardy payers usually are eager to pay their back bills.

QUEBEC MINING COMMUNITY HAS QUICK DEVELOPMENT

Within a period of four years Malartic, Que., has risen to the dignity of a town, and in that brief span the development has been substantial. Malartic, in the mining territory of Northwest-Quebec opened up by construction of the C.N. Rlys., is on the branch line running from Senne-terre via Val d'Or to Noranda. Mines in Malartic have a daily production of 3,200 tons, employ 750 men and require a large payroll. The town is well equipped with necessary municipal services, has good school buildings, churches, banks and shops.

THUMB-PRINTS OF PAWNBROKERS' CUSTOMERS

Indianapolis has adopted an ordinance requiring pawnbrokers to thumb-print customers before loaning money on merchandise. The pawnbroker, after taking the prints, must turn them over to the police before noon on the day following the transactions. This ordinance has already led to many arrests and recoveries of stolen property. —Popular Government

AMBIGUOUS!

Beside one of the New Hampshire highways is a sign which reads: "By order of the District Board, cows grazing by the roadside or riding bicycles on the sidewalk is hereby forbidden."

THERE'LL ALWAYS BE AN EMPIRE.

An extra verse to "There'll Always Be An England"

There'll always be an Empire:
An Empire of the Free,
An Empire strong to drive out wrong:
To guard and rule the sea;
An Empire built by Britons
From every land and clime,
An Empire built on truth and right,
To stand the test of time.
What are you going to do
For Freedom and Justice, too?
Fight for the right with all of your might;
Britons, arise!
And this is true; Nations will honor you;
Stick to your guns, batter the Huns,
Freedom's the prize!
Freemen of the Empire.
The noble Flag's unfurled,
The Lion's roar from Britain's shore
Will echo round the world.

A Helmsman for the Conservative Party

The absence of an effective Opposition brings to mind a problem of great public interest — the leadership of the Conservative party.

Recently the grapevine telegraph from Ottawa erroneously reported that the Conservatives had decided that it would be disloyal, or inexpedient or something, to hold a convention to name a leader while the war was on. This would have meant that Mr. Hanson continue as leader until the next election. It likewise would have meant that the Conservative party would remain in ignominious opposition and perhaps not even remain the official Opposition. Mr. Hanson has considerable ability and much experience as a parliamentarian, but even he will admit in his candid moments that he is not the one to lead out of the wilderness the party of Macdonald and Borden and Meighen and Bennett.

There is some leadership timber among Conservatives outside the House of Commons. Even thoughtful Liberals who think of Canada before Liberalism will concede that it would make for good government, and less boredom for Mr. King, if these were brought into the House. One outstanding Conservative, who is young enough to remain in Opposition for some time (but who might not have to) is Major M. A. MacPherson, former provincial treasurer of Saskatchewan. He likely could be drafted, and the fact that Saskatchewan recently has elected a Conservative indicates that under his leadership Conservatism would have a good chance for revival on the Prairies. —The Printed Word

TOWN PREPARES TO MOVE

The 124-year-old township of Greenville, Mo., will pack up and move two miles north of its present location, late this year or early next.

Greenville is to be flooded by waters backed up by the Wappapello dam, due for completion about July 1, 1941. The dam is designed to check floods such as those which wrought extensive damage in Dunklin County, Missouri, and in north Arkansas many times in the past several years.

Many homes and some business buildings will be moved to the new location, and the school board will erect a new model school.

BLOW SOUNDS FIRE ALARM

Apparatus from three fire stations dashed to an Ottawa fire alarm box, only to find it had been sounded by the impact of a truck against the post upon which the box was mounted. The front wheels of the vehicle caught in the street-car tracks, and the truck was thrown to one side, striking the post.

WORLD'S OLDEST BATHROOM BUILT 5,000 YEARS AGO

The idea of a separate room in the house for bathing purposes is 5,000 years old, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

The Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago has excavated in Iraq, once ancient Babylon, a room about 15 feet square in the Palace of King Urnimmar. The room has a floor of water-proof bitumen with a drain made of clay tile. Here the king stood while slaves threw water over him.

Thus, says the Bureau, the world's oldest bath-room is a predecessor of the modern shower cabinet. The fact that the room was built three thousand years before the beginning of the Christian era is established by the imprint of the name of the king on all of the bricks used in the construction of the palace.

In the five thousand years since King Urnimmar stood in his crude shower cabinet of clay and bitumen, the bathroom has developed until today it has become one of the most colorful and modernized rooms in the house.

There are many isms today to perplex us — Nazism, Communism, Fascism, and so forth — but most of them will cancel each other out. There is only one ism which kills the soul, that is pessimism.

TREATISE ON TAXATION

When taxes for rearmament annoy,
Revise that proverb everybody knows—
The power to tax is the power to destroy
Our foes!

When mounting billions take away your breath
And make your head spin like the well-known Axis,
Recall that now we have our choice of death
Or taxes!

—Gerald Rafferty.

On Italy's Doorstep

Britain Delivers Goods to Mediterranean Port

London, Oct. 15 — A billiard table has been delivered to the Samagusta Club in Cyprus by its London makers, a tribute to the respect in which Italy holds Britain's Mediterranean Fleet.

The makers have been exporting billiard tables for a century. One recently recovered from a house in Scotland was originally supplied to an English Officers' camp during the Crimean War.

"This table", runs an inscription upon it, "was erected in Donybrook Fair English Camp, Crimea, in the winter of 1855."

During the present war the firm, which is directed today by the fourth generation of its founders, has sent tables out to officers' messes in Egypt and Palestine and it continues to export to different parts of the world full-size tables, replacements and accessories.

WHISKY FOR TOURISTS

Plans to bring more tourists to this country with the lure of cheap liquor are a form of good neighborliness which American mothers and wives are not likely to appreciate.

The Mechanics Behind Air Warfare

A fighting aeroplane with a balky engine is as useless as a crippled duck. Lack of engine power might leave the crew helpless before the foe in battle or might plunge them into the sea or into rough inhospitable country on a long flight.

Royal Canadian Air Force pilots, Air Observers and Air Gunners have a warm regard for the highly skilled Aero Engine Mechanics of the R.C.A.F. who keep the aeroplanes serviceable. Their work is unspectacular, but just as important in its way as the work of the trained men who fly the planes. A crew charged with taking a bomber 400 miles out over the Atlantic on convoy patrol, for instance, must be sure that the engines will maintain a steady, rhythmic roar and not falter and fall into silence when a landing field is over the horizon.

The powerful engines of R.C.A.F. receive all the care and attention of thoroughbred racehorses. Engines are inspected before and after flight, and any worn parts immediately replaced. Valve clearances are carefully checked and everything possible done to keep the engines and controls in perfect condition at all times. At regular intervals of 300 or 400 flying hours, the engines are temporarily removed from service for a complete overhaul. The engines are taken apart, cleaned, and all parts minutely inspected for flaws and for signs of wear. Any worn parts are replaced and the engines are re-assembled and tested on a test stand before being placed back on their mountings in the aircraft.

The modern aircraft engines are complicated pieces of machinery, and their care and maintenance must require careful training out at the R.C.A.F. Technical School at St. Thomas, Ont., which has turned out some 1,500 mechanics of all types so far and is turning out 150 more each week.

The aero engine mechanics course lasts about 18 weeks and provides a practical education in the craft for Canadian boys, many of whom come from garages and technical schools all over the country, so that they have a trade to work at when the war is over.

Review of National Affairs

A full and complete mobilization of the Canadian people in the war savings program was urged by the prime minister and Mr. Halsey, the finance minister. Canada's war effort will fully succeed, it was emphasized, only by every Canadian developing a sense of trusteeship and assuming a personal responsibility for the conduct of the war. The people should make a searching examination of every personal purchase. "If that purchase involves foreign exchange, or is a product of domestic mechanical or construction labor, it should be entered into only with a full realization that it might have been translated into munitions of war". In refraining from purchases that compete with the war program of production, Canadians were told that they could make a worthwhile contribution to the cause for which we are at war, "but that contribution can be doubled in effect as these savings are invested in War Savings Certificates, thus making the money available to the government."

The perils of war at sea were brought home again to Canadians when the merchant vessel St. Malo, formerly a French freighter was sunk by enemy action, and the fate of the long overdue minesweeper Bras D'Or remained shrouded in mystery. The 34 survivors of the lost Destroyer Margaree shortly will return to Canada from Bermuda.

While there is no limit to the requirements of munitions and other war materials for the armed forces of the Commonwealth, Canada can at least fill the needs of Britain in one economic necessity. This is in the supply of essential foodstuffs produced in Canada. At the moment Mr. Gardiner and his associates are in Britain perfecting a new bacon agreement or a renewal of the old. Canada is fully prepared to give Britain all the bacon her population needs, even though Denmark, which supplied half of the entire British imports of bacon, remains entirely cut off. As Mr. Gardiner said in London, "Canada has now enough wheat to supply Britain with her full requirements for the next three years". It is, of course, the wheat situation which presents the major economic problem in Canada.

What some people don't know about driving would fill a hospital — and frequently does.

Kidderminster, Eng. (CP) — Earl Baldwin, speaking here, said a nation in which men and women laid down their lives for their friends such as Britain's public were doing is unconquerable.

PRESENTATION TO PASTOR LEAVING MORIN HEIGHTS UNITED CHURCH

Morin Heights—The United Church service on Sunday morning, Oct. 27th, was largely attended, the occasion being the 8th anniversary service, also the Rev. David Anderson's farewell sermon. His theme was "Upon this Rock I Will Build My Church". During the service the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie, of Shawbridge, was christened, receiving the names Edward Donald.

Friends of this community greatly regret that Rev. and Mrs. Anderson are leaving, but are pleased to think they are going to carry on an important work at St. Columba Mission House, Pt. St. Charles.

An official board meeting was held in the United Church the following evening, after which a large number of friends in this community and Cote St. Gabriel gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Davis. Here the Rev. and Mrs. Anderson were presented with a beautiful studio lounge as a token of the esteem in which they are held in the community.

Mrs. J. D. Davis made the presentation, following which the Rev. Mr. Anderson presented the congregation with an oil painting of Christ, to be hung in the church.

PRESBYTERIAN Y.P.S.

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Young People's Society was held Wednesday evening, with about a score of members present. The business part of the meeting was centered on the banquet which is to be held on November 21st.

Mr. George Calder was the guest speaker for the evening, and gave an interesting talk on the last war and its effect on the people of Canada.

The meeting closed, after which bowling and community singing were enjoyed.

32nd ANNIVERSARY SERVICES, BROWNSBURG UNITED

Brownsburg — Next Sunday, Nov. 10th, Brownsburg United Church will mark the 32nd anniversary of the present occupied building and the 99th year of the church in Brownsburg.

Composed of both streams of the former Methodist and Presbyterian branches, the present church was set apart as a separate independent congregation on May 8th, 1925, having been served by Rev. E. C. Cassidy from that year to 1929, Rev. A. E. Hagar to 1936, and Rev. S. J. Pike, the present minister.

The present building was erected in 1908, being opened and dedicated under the ministry of Rev. T. Mitchell, resident at Lachute. From 1841, or before, Brownsburg was served from St. Andrews East Methodist connection, though it appears from 1878 to 1880 that Brownsburg was the Headquarters of the charge, of which Rev. John Hiscow was minister in 1878 and Rev. Robert W. McKechnie in 1879 and 1880, both residing in Brownsburg. From 1865 to 1878 and again from 1880 to 1925, both congregations of Brownsburg were served by the Methodist and Presbyterian ministers residing in Lachute. The year 1925-26, following organic Union, it was served jointly as one group.

The present congregation is looking forward to the 100th anniversary next year with prospect of a more detailed observance.

The preacher for next Sunday morning will be Rev. B. T. Holden, M.A., D.Th., of Hawkesbury. In the evening the minister will conduct the service. It is hoped the hours of work, in the present war effort, may be favorable to the congregation.

Palate Poll Reflects

'Personality' of Eaters

While celebrities of stage, screen and radio profess a liking for epicurean dishes, the tastes of other public figures are for the more conventional foods. The preferences, which seem to prove that what you eat determines your personality, were collected in a "palate poll" conducted by the National Restaurant association.

Numbered among the gourmets are Bette Davis, Lillian Gish, Dorothy Lamour, Cecile B. De Mille and H. V. Kaltenborn. Miss Davis likes to start her "perfect dinner" with caviar and egg, Miss Gish with a "bit of DuBonnet," Miss Lamour with fresh shrimp served on cold artichoke leaves with whipped mayonnaise. Mr. De Mille votes for crab creole with sauternes as an appetizer and roast pheasant with burgundy for the entree, and Mr. Kaltenborn forgets about the European troubles of his radio broadcasts in a meal that starts with blue points on the half shell and winds up with cognac served in an inhaling glass.

But if you're entertaining a senator, congressman, governor, mayor, or sports notable, more common fare would be in order.

Gov. Keen Johnson of Kentucky submits a combination of tomato juice, old-fashioned bean soup, broiled steak, greens, beets, potatoes, head lettuce with Roquefort dressing, milk and ice cream with cake as his "company dinner," but breaks down and confesses under the heading of "remarks" that "my favorite menu really is: hog jowl, turnip greens, cornbread, navy beans, buttermilk and cherry pie."

Sen. Guy M. Gillette of Iowa casts a ballot for roast beef or steak, but admits that he is willing to trade either for meat pie. Sen. Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota says he likes his chicken soup thick and his vegetable soup thin.

Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado adds this thought after listing his preferences: "Give me a glimpse of a Colorado sunset and as twilight falls over the Rockies, I would change places with no man on earth." Mayor Dan B. Butler of Omaha, Neb., prescribes a heavy repast and concludes under "remarks" that "after eating a meal like the above, too full for remarks." Mayor Brantly Harris of Galveston, Texas, also under "remarks," says: "A good couch to go to sleep on" suits him best after his favorite dinner. Mayor J. J. Kaufman of Tacoma, Wash., admonishes: "Don't forget the finger bowl."

Toll Brothers Presenting New Travelogue

Crossing the Andes on Foot

An adventure which only youth could accomplish — was the discovery of South America, ancient and modern, by two Toronto university graduates, the now famous Toll Brothers. "Hiking Through South America", their lecture to be given here on Nov. 11th, is a topic choicefully illustrated with screen projections, and provides two hours of entertainment covering the highlights of their 16-month tour. —Presented under auspices of Lachute W.L.; see advt. on page eight.

On Bathtubs and Bathing Customs

Bathing customs vary the world over. North America has more bathtubs than all the rest of the world put together. Ninety-five per cent of all these utilities are found in the Western continent.

But the Finns have their sauna, a room for dressing and another for bathing. They heat stones in a big stove, then splash the water on the stones raising a great steam. They sit in this steam, rub themselves with epsom salts or whip themselves with the branches of trees and then take a plunge into a snowbank.

The Japanese are daily bathers in water at 120 degrees F. Cold baths are only for penitents. The private bathtub of a Jap family is in full view of the street and the public baths accommodate both sexes without any embarrassment.

Bathing in Rome has fallen off from the days of the Emperor Diocletian. Gone are the days when a Roman bath occupied 50 or 60 acres with marble tubs and modern conveniences. Now-a-days it takes 15 minutes to half an hour to get the water heated while the tubber sits shivering in an icy atmosphere.

The Germans are away behind in bathing facilities. The older German houses are lacking in modern conveniences. The tubs often have corrugated bottoms which give the sitter-down a surprise. There are plenty of public baths in the larger cities, but soap is non-existent. The towels are large enough for the mainsail of a yacht.

The Laps and Eskimos save themselves a lot of trouble; they never bathe. They are on a similar footing with the lamas and Buddhist Priests of India. The latter never bath nor wash their faces so that in the course of life they are clothed in a strata of filth.

In India, the average native bathes in the nearest river, bathing being a part of his religion. The better class bathe under primitive conditions and if there is a bathroom one must watch out for the venomous snakes which conceal themselves in sponges.

The Arab eschews water; he rubs himself with the sand of the desert. When the native Ethiopian desires a bath he drives the cows, goats and sheep out of the river and takes possession. The European living in that country contents himself with the historic bowl and pitcher.

In dry places of Southwest Africa, bathing is expensive. A four-gallon tin of water costs $1 and each additional one 25 cents. The water is not wasted; it is used to satisfy the thirst of the plants about.

In Belgium, the rentier of an apartment is obliged to install his own fixtures and when he bails out, he takes them with him.

Davis was winner of a spelling contest. The county president was present at this meeting. Five dollars was given to the local Red Cross fund. A gift was presented to the retiring president, Mrs. Lacken, who is leaving to reside in Montreal.

It was decided that the Branch buy three war saving certificates, also make the afghan and quilt proposed by Miss Rettle. A demonstration on correct table manners at home and abroad, also the setting of a table, was given by Mrs. F. S. McGibbon, of Lachute.

Car Found Abandoned

A Ford 1928 car with a Papineauville license was picked up by police this morning on Princess Street, near the Wilson Paper Mill, where it is said to have been standing unattended since Wednesday morning. Officer Howard Jones has communicated particulars to Montreal headquarters.

water is lugged in cans from the basement to the attic and after use is carried down again. The newer houses have baths and 4000 of the better hotels have bathrooms, either adjacent to rooms or on each floor. But they are scrupulously clean and well appointed. The average Englishman would sooner go without his breakfast than his morning cold bath.

Russia is an expensive place for the bath. A bathtub costs 2000 roubles — the cost of a grand piano. Soap is unheard of and the average Russian bathes once in 18 months. In apartment houses the tub is commonly used as a convenient receptacle for coal or vegetables. Sanitary conditions in Spain are abominable. They spend too much money on revolutions to have any for modern conveniences.

In Paris, only 25 per cent of the population have private baths but there are over 100 public baths each with twenty or more tubs. The average Parisian takes three baths a year but statistics say that Paris is one of the cleanest cities on the Continent. As matters stand at present the major portion of the world's population is an unwashed army.

Autumn Fiction...

Vicki Baum always writes an interesting novel, and people persist in reading her books long after they have slipped out of the best-seller lists. Her new one is called "Central Stores". It is exciting and really to quote an English review, a highly spiced melange. That woman can write.

And a list of good novels which, for lack of a better name at the moment we might term unsophisticated. I find this type of novel extremely well-liked by women, these novels with a human and often a domestic appeal. This year we have Hilda Morris's "The Vantage Point", the story of a teacher in a private school who lost her position and had to manage to support herself and her growing young son.

Elizabeth Corbett gives us "Mr. and Mrs. Meigs", and it is quite as good as her others about the redoubtable Mrs. Meigs, who everyone laughed with and loved.

For candy... There have been three rather delightful books published, which you might like to hear about. They are each a sort of little journal, by an Englishman, all good. The most important of these at the moment is "Mrs. Miniver" by J. Struther, of which you have likely heard. The publicity this book is getting! The chapters appeared in the London Times day by day over a year ago, when they were brought out in book form. They did not elicit over here, however until the Book of the Month Club took it up.

Another little journal is by the well-known English writer E. M. Delaford, in her Provincial Lady series. It is called "The Provincial Lady in War Time", and you can imagine just about what it is like.

The third is a journal called "Letters From England", or some such title, by Mollie Panter-Downes, not yet published. These letters are taken from the New Yorker, and have been eagerly read every week as perfect reporting of English life and wit during war-time.

Cecil Robert's new book "And So To Bath", is lovely reading. It is a drive from London to Bath which he says took him three months. In it he visited every spot of history and beauty on that road, the oldest and most travelled in the British Isles. His book is well worth while.

We have a few novels which I might term psychological. One of these is by Isabel Paterson, who writes "Turns with a Bookworm" in the Sunday New York Herald Tribune. It is called "If It Prove Fine Weather", giving an insight into a woman's nature which, critics say, makes Kitty Foyle look like the work of an amateur.

A second in this class is by a well-known writer, Kathleen Coyle, who calls her book "Who Dwell in Wonder". This is a beautifully written psychological study of Mrs. Luttrell and her three daughters — "a novel of great intensity and quick tempo, a likely best-seller." (Adv.)

Another in this class is by a new writer Nancy Ross. It is called "Take the Lightning" (what extraordinary titles this type of novelist invents!) The scene is in California, at a University, with a young professor of psychology and his young wife. The pictures of university society are very amusing.

And now, after these several diversions which we name as we please, we come to the cheese and coffee course. As before I shall divide it into two groups, one historical, and one or two older titles.

Historical novels continue to pour from the pen of English and American writers alike; they are much better written and more human and entertaining than they used to be.

The English novelist Phyllis Bentley has given us a fine novel called "Take Courage" (American title "The Power and the Glory"). It is laid in Yorkshire in the seventeenth century, and the stirring times of the English Revolution, Charles I, Cromwell, Charles II. A good novel.

Beatrice Kean Seymour's novel "The Unique Field" brings us through three generations of a fine English family, whose fortunes are interwoven with the slave trade in the 18th century. How proud we can be of our mother-country's history, of her courage, her sacrifice, and her civilization!

Laura Krey wrote a long and rather beautiful novel called "And Tell of Time". Her novel this fall, two years later, is "On the Long Tide", and tells of the time when Texas was winning its independence from Mexico. We do not often get an entertaining and pleasant book about Texas; it is really a lovely country.

"Broadside", R. W. Daly, is a first and an excellent novel of the Napoleonic Wars, seen through the eyes of a young Irishman in the British Navy. Those were stirring times. We can today, perhaps better than at any time since 1805, appreciate the feelings of the English as they waited then on their shores for invasion by Napoleon, and their jubilation over the battle of Trafalgar which put such a complete finish to all such fears. Small wonder the English idolize Nelson!

CARRY ON, CANADA

War has changed our radio programs considerably and the C.B.C. is doing some good work. "Carry On, Canada" is specially worth noting. The material used is good. It is informative and inspiring. It stirs our emotions and makes us proud, and we need to be lifted up. It is produced with a finish and a dash, both dramatically and musically, that is too often lacking in our Canadian programs. It is not the only good, new, program but it is one of the best, so Carry on, Canada.

HELD UP AS AN EXAMPLE

Parents have a mean trick of holding up another child as an example. It may be a brother or sister or it may be just a friend. I happened to say to a friend that Kay was such a nice girl, my friend said "she is one of the nicest girls I ever knew, but it is only the last few years that I have been able to like her. All my life my mother held her up as an example. As a little girl I was told how well she did everything, from getting good marks at school to helping with the housework. As we grew up and I did the foolish things most girls do, I was told that Kay did not do them. The consequence was that I hated her and could not appreciate what a fine girl she really is". That too often happens. It is bad enough when it is an outsider but it is worse when it is a member of the family. Teachers are not immune from this mistake, and many a child is belittled in school because it has not made as good marks or behaved as well as the older brother or sister.

LIVER AND KIDNEYS

At a Red-Cross sewing meeting, the talk turned to food, as it so often does when women are together. One of the women remarked that she was going to have Liver and Onions for dinner. Another one said she had never married ten years and had never cooked liver. Her husband liked it but she did not know how to cook it. It appeared there were several in the group who never served liver nor kidney. The thought struck me, that there might be other women who did not know how to cook them and this was an idea for my column. Then one of those co-incidences occurred which delight me — a newlywed wrote to ask if I would tell her how to cook kidneys. Both liver and kidney are valuable meats and should be served frequently as they contain broil or cook in the frying-pan on top muscle meats.

TO COOK LIVER

The old idea was to let liver stand in hot water for a few minutes, but this is frowned on now as it extracts some of the juices. Calves liver is better flavored than beef liver but either may be used. Lamb's liver is very delicate and many prefer it when available. Cut the liver in slices and broil or cook in the frying pan on top of the stove. Broil in a hot oven for five minutes or until well-browned, season with pepper and salt, then turn over and broil another five minutes. To fry, some like to dip the liver in flour before cooking. Personally, I prefer it without flour. Fry it in a little bacon fat and cook until nicely browned. Turn frequently. The most important thing is to use a moderate heat, as too hot a heat makes the surface tough and horny. Serve with bacon or fried onions.

SPANISH LIVER

Brown the sliced liver in hot fat, cover with water and simmer until tender, about an hour. Thicken the gravy with a little flour mixed with cold water. Pour the gravy over the liver and serve.

BAKED LIVER

Have the liver in one piece and either lard with salt pork or place several pieces of pork over the top. Add a little water or Brown Stock, cover and bake for two hours, uncovering for the last twenty minutes.

ONION SAUCE

Boil four medium onions until tender. Chop them coarsely and add to a cup of Cream Sauce. Serve with sausages.

CORN FRITTERS

2 Cups canned corn, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg, well beaten, fine dry bread crumbs. Mix the ingredients and add enough bread crumbs to make a mixture soft enough to drop from a spoon. Heat a little butter or other fat in the frying-pan and drop the corn mixture from a tablespoon. Cook until nicely browned. Serve with meats.

"You must give up staying out at night", said the doctor.
"You think the night air is bad for me, doc?"
"No," said the doctor, "it isn't that. It's the excitement after getting home that harms you".

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

Personal Problems

By Anne Thomson

"I don't care," says Anne, aged seventeen, "if I'm not asked to the dance. I'd rather stay home, anyway". But she does care, and so does her mother, who is bewildered because her girl seems to be left out, and other girls are invited everywhere. Perhaps it is mother's fault, a little too. It doesn't do to be too emphatic about what a girl should wear, in the first place. Remember, when your mother laughed because you wanted to put pads in your hair, or wear a hobble skirt, or use a little bit of face powder? Suppose your daughter does want to look like everyone else... her hair to her shoulders, saddle shoes, a "sloppy joe" sweater, and a bow on top of her head. If you make her dress the way you think she should, and the other girls laugh, you will make her self-conscious. Also, better to let her have a compact, and put a bit of powder on her nose, and better to buy her a pale rose-colored lipstick, than have her different from the rest, if it makes her unhappy. If she still doesn't seem to click, can you persuade her to invite little groups in to her house... to form a small club for "war-work", or to get interested in a church or school group and really work at it. Always have cocoa and biscuits on hand, and make her friends welcome, and if she is popular with the girls, in time she will also make the grade with their brothers.

Jane B., Bracebridge, Ont., comes to us for advice. "I am fifteen years old, and I have just started to go out with boys a little. I go with a slightly older crowd of girls and they keep telling me not to be too enthusiastic, not to seem too eager for dates, and to let the boys do the chasing. Well, I can't help being enthusiastic, and I like dates. Why don't boys like girls who show a little pleasure in their company? I don't want to go steady, or "catch" a boy, I just want to enjoy myself".

If I were you, I would go ahead and enjoy myself. Put yourself in a boy's place. Does he want to take out a girl who seems half bored in his company, and doesn't show any bright side? Be as enthusiastic as you please, if that is natural to you, and you will get farther than if you would try to hold yourself down and be stilted.

Mrs. G.B. is worried about her son. "He spends all his time alone, or with two other boys. He is eighteen, and he seems to be missing so much fun. He reads a lot and won't go to dances or out to parties at all. How can I break him of his shyness?"

Don't try to force him. If you can't get him to go out, see if you can persuade him to have a small party at home, and if he refuses, just let him alone. Many boys don't become interested in a social life until they are much older than eighteen.

Eleanor K., Moose Jaw, Sask., is twenty years old. "I have been going with two boys, one of whom is working, and the other not. The one who is working wants to marry me, but he is older... about twenty-eight, and he likes to spend every cent he makes. He is fairly generous to me, but I'm afraid he doesn't save much. The other boy is quieter, and is twenty-two. He hasn't a job, but he does

The Fifth Columnists In Adolescence

Too vigorous indulgence in athletics, too many parties, continued late hours, insufficient rest and sleep and repeated spells of sickness all contribute to a weakening of the resistance of the human body and assist in the spread of tuberculosis.

This statement was made today by Dr. Gordon Jackson, Medical Officer of Health for Toronto, whose department is conducting one of the most extensive and comprehensive surveys ever held to discover the incidence of tuberculosis among pupils of high school age. The survey is being made in a number of secondary schools in Toronto.

"Only the tubercle bacilli can cause tuberculosis", said Dr. Jackson. "But overwork, strain, dissipation, hard times, improper food, discouragement and similar burdens are the fifth columnists which prepare the way and make the path easy for it."

"Of all the deaths from tuberculosis which occurred in Toronto last year, in the age group 15 to 29 years, 35 percent were those of females and only 15 percent were males. It may be noted that in the accepted high school group, 15 to 19 years, 35 percent were those of females and only 15 per cent were males. It may be noted that in the accepted high school group, 15 to 19 years, the deaths were 2½ times greater in girls than in boys, and that those younger age groups supplied approximately 25 per cent of the total deaths for the city of Toronto."

Dr. Jackson was asked to predict how many of the pupils examined in the present survey would have a positive reaction. Said he: "We don't know. It shouldn't be more than 20 per cent of those tested; it probably won't be less than 10 per cent. In 1,000 pupils that would mean 100 reactions."

IN LIGHTER MOOD

"What's your idea of civilization?"
"It's a good idea. Somebody ought to start it."

An old lady of the village was angry because she had not been invited to a picnic her friends were going to. The morning of the event the hostess relented and asked her to come.

"It's too late", she snapped. "I've already prayed for rain".
"I believe," said the cheery one, "that for every single thing you give away, two come back to you."
"That's my experience, too," the pessimist said. "Last February I gave away my daughter, and she and her husband came back in August".

odd jobs, and helps at home, and I like him better. He also gives me things, but they aren't expensive gifts. What shall I do?"

If there is any doubt, Eleanor, I would say wait a few years and see. When the right man comes along, I don't think you will find there will be any doubt in your mind... However, of the two, the one who is younger seems better, since when a man is 28 his habits are pretty well formed, and if he spends all his money now, there is no reason to think he will be more provident after you were married.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN
Famous Authority on
Good Manners and Good Taste

PROPER USE OF CLOTH

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,
1. Would you please tell me if it is considered proper to use an ecru lace tablecloth for a dinner party?

It was always my impression that this kind of tablecloth should be used only as a cover when the table is not in use. However, my friends tell me that it is entirely proper to use it in place of the regular linen cloth, to give a festive air to the dinner party. Will you please give me your advice?

—Hostess

2. If you tell me it is proper to use this table cloth, will you also tell me if I could use plain linen napkins with it?

1. This type of lace cloth is entirely appropriate to use for the more or less informal dinner parties that most of us give. This kind of lace cloth (the ecru is apt to be softer in effect than the white) does add a "festive air" to a party. Usually there is an interesting central decoration or panel that lends itself to an effective background for your center decorations. In other words, "play up", dramatically, the design on the cloth.

Also, if your dining-room table has a good-looking top, you may let the wood show through the cloth. Or you may like to put the cloth over a lining (also ecru).

It isn't either smart or in good taste to use any kind of linen or lace cloth as a "covering" for your dining-room table when it is not in use. Clear it off the cloth, and use something interesting on it, such as a silver or glass or pottery center bowl or vase, or a pair of vases, with flowers, if this is possible.

2. I do wish makers of this type of lace cloth would provide with them sets of matching napkins. Some do—but usually we have to add them ourselves. If you are buying such a cloth, try to find one that has napkins with linen centres (of the same shade as the cloth, of course) and edging of lace in the same design as the lace of the cloth.

If this isn't possible, the only alternative is to use plain linen napkins, as nearly as possible the shade of the cloth (or they can be "dipped" to match). If you are very lucky you can find ecru-colored Italian linen napkins, with a simple hemstitched border. This is an excellent solution.

TIP ON TABLE MANNERS

When you stir your tea or coffee or whatever, stir it briefly. No need to be too prolonged or enthusiastic about the procedure!

COURTESY TIP

When you are about to leave a party, say good-by first to the hostess and then to the host. To each say something appreciative about their hospitality.

DO YOU KNOW?

Are Toothpicks a New Invention?

The toothbrush is only as old as the end of the 18th century, but the toothpick is a very ancient device, being used by civilized people right through the ages. Agathocles was poisoned by means of a medicated quill handed to him after dinner one day in the year 289 B.C.

Why do Clergymen wear Black Clothes?

It was Luther who set the fashion for clergymen to wear black clothes. He was undecided as to what to wear, when the Elector sent him, as a present, a valuable length of black cloth. The cloth was made into a suit and black has been the regulation color ever since.

Court Rules Indian Not Exempt from Seizure

A plea by an Indian who has not abandoned nor lost his tribal rights, that his wages are not seizable because of the fact that he is an Indian and comes within the terms of the Indian Act, was dismissed by Mr. Justice C. G. Mackinnon in the Superior Court.

The action was that of Frederick Peterson of Oka, against Geo. A. Cree, a member of the Oka Band of Indians, who has not taken advantage of any white man's laws beyond the extent of the Indian Act. Peterson secured judgment for $580 and tried to collect by putting a seizure on the wages of Cree, who is an employee of the Canadian Pacific Express Company. Cree asked the seizure be quashed on the ground that the Indian Act provides exemption from seizure for personal property of Indians.

His Lordship pointed out that Cree maintains a whole year residence in Montreal, in addition to keeping a place on the Oka Reserve. He could find no legal basis for holding that the Indians wages are situated on the Reserve, and dismissed the contestation, allowing the seizure to stand.

DISORDERS WHICH CAUSE CHRONIC PAIN IN ABDOMEN

There are a number of disorders which produce pain in the upper part of the abdomen and it is not always an easy matter when such pain occurs to tell from just what source it is coming. That is why, when a person has chronic pain in the abdomen, he should be examined by a physician. The pain, even if it is located in any particular part of the abdomen, may be caused by a number of disorders. Delay and self-treatment may be dangerous. Disturbances of the stomach, liver, gallbladder, appendix, intestine, even the heart, are but a few of the conditions which may cause abdominal pains.

As a rule, pain in the upper part of the abdomen is due to a disorder of the stomach or liver. One frequent cause of the pain is excessive acid in the stomach.

In excessive stomach acid, there is a burning pain in the upper part of the abdomen, usually occurring several hours after a meal. This pain is relieved temporarily by taking food or certain alkali substances, such as baking soda. It seems to occur particularly in well nourished individuals who are nervous. There are recurrent attacks of such pain.

In order to make a definite diagnosis, a chemical examination of the contents of the stomach is necessary, and such examination in cases of hyperacidity reveals that there is an excessive amount of hydrochloric acid present.

A lack of acid in the stomach may also be responsible for pain in the upper part of the abdomen. The pain in this condition, however, generally is slight, but in occasional instances may be severe and at a time when there is food in the stomach. A chemical examination of the stomach contents will show the lack of acid.

In these instances, the appetite is poor. A lack of coloring matter in the blood, or anemia, is another of the symptoms present.

Another cause of pain in the abdomen is acute inflammation of the stomach, which produces a type of rather widespread discomfort and tenderness rather than actual pain. This condition, as a rule, starts suddenly with loss of appetite, headache and nausea. In some cases, there may be fever lasting from one to three days.

In chronic gastritis, there is usually a feeling of distress or heaviness after meals, but pressure over the stomach produces pain. Often, the pain is not severe. Sickness to the stomach, particularly in the morning, excessive gas formation, and constipation, are other symptoms present in chronic gastritis.

Ulcer of the stomach produces severe pain which develops from one to three hours after meals. This pain is relieved by emptying the stomach. The pain occurs rarely at night but may be relieved, to some extent, by food or by taking baking soda. Nausea and anemia are other symptoms which may be present. As a rule, a patient with ulcer of the stomach has a good appetite although he may dislike taking food because he knows that eating is liable to bring on attacks of pain.

In the case of ulcer of the stomach, the use of X-ray is necessary to give a definite diagnosis. From what has been said, it can be seen why, when pain develops in the upper part of the abdomen, a complete examination, including study with the X-ray, is advisable. The stomach contents should be analyzed and, if necessary, the gastroscopist. When the cause of the pain is found, treatment for relieving it may be more effectively carried out and much can be done to produce a cure.

IS ULCER "CANCEROUS"?

"Is a peptic ulcer of the stomach cancerous? If an individual has not cancer now will he have it after an operation for removal of the ulcer?" —H.G.K."

Answer

Ulcer of the stomach is not cancerous. Removal of the ulcer will help keep cancer from developing.

Unfair to Employers

Although military training has been made compulsory for certain age groups, it should not be assumed that young Canadians called up are any less ready to serve their country than if they had volunteered, or that their employers are less ready to co-operate with the Government in the training plan. Some of the local tribunals set up to consider cases for exemption from training or deferment of the training period seems to have adopted the view that their functions are to dismiss such cases rather than to consider them.

In one case, a firm had a branch office where both the manager and his assistant were liable to be called for training in October. It seemed reasonable that both should not be called at the same time, if the business was to be carried on satisfactorily, so application was made to the local tribunal for deferment of training of one of the men. Both were called.

In another case, a key man was called although his employer had asked that his training be deferred until after January 1, because the business in question reaches its peak during the last three months of the year.

Since it is the intention to operate the training camps continuously, it cannot make any conceivable difference to Canada's war effort whether John Doe serves his month in October or January, but it may make a great deal of difference to John Doe and his employers.

It is in the Government's own interest to see that scrupulous fairness is observed towards business and individuals.

SUMMON PROVINCIAL PREMIERS TO CONFER WITH FEDERAL GOVT.

To Readjust the Financial Set-Up Between Provinces And the Dominion

Ottawa —

The nation's federal representatives have come together at a grim and serious hour to discuss and administer Canada's part in the war. There was, however, no despondency in the Speech from the Throne delivered by the Governor General, the Earl of Athlone, in the Senate Chamber at the opening of parliament. It gave a clear impression of confidence in the outcome of the conflict and showed the determination of the Canadian people to prosecute the war "to the utmost of our strength". There was no mention of the proposed legislation except that measures would be for the "welfare of Canada" and prosecution of the war. "You have been summoned at this time," the speech said, "that opportunity may be afforded for the fullest consideration and discussion of Canada's war effort and of national problems which war has served to intensify or create". International tension, the speech pointed out, had been heightened by the alliance of the Axis powers with Japan, but events of greater significance had served to confirm our faith in the ultimate outcome of the struggle. "First and foremost has been the magnificent resistance of the United Kingdom". In the face of a common peril there has arisen, the speech said, "a closer association and an increasing measure of co-operation between the United States of America and the nations of the British Commonwealth". This week the debate on the Speech has been in full swing.

Conference Called on Sirois Report

The Premiers of the nine provinces have been asked by Prime Minister MacKenzie King to come to Ottawa in January to discuss the recommendations of the Sirois Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations. The Dominion Government have carefully studied the proposals in recent months and favor their adoption.

The commission's recommendations included the assumption by the federal government of provincial debts and the responsibility of maintenance of unemployed who are able to work. Provinces were to surrender to the Dominion their right to collect income taxes, corporation taxes and succession duty taxes. The present statutory subsidies to provinces were to be discontinued but there were to be substituted national grants to provinces to help those in difficulty to balance their budgets. Unemployment insurance was one of the recommendations of the commission and parliament has already passed the necessary legislation and is putting a nationwide plan of contributory job insurance into effect. The Dominion-Provincial conference in January will discuss the whole comprehensive program of readjusting the financial relationship of Dominion and Provinces, which was the result of three years' intensive study by the members of the Commission and a body of experts.

Although there could be no official expression of opinion at Ottawa on the result of the presidential election in the United States, it was quite evident at the opening of the session that the spirits of members of parliament have been buoyed up by the reelection of Mr. Roosevelt. From practical experience they had come to know that the president has a profound sympathy with the British cause and they saw in his reelection to the White House a continuance on an expanding scale of material assistance to Britain. Word from Washington that after a conference with President Roosevelt, the head of the British Purchasing Commission, Mr. A. B. Purvis, is flying to Britain, has confirmed this view. Purvis told reporters he expected to return with more orders for war materials from Britain. There has been practically no reference by anyone here in regard to domestic issues in the U.S., nor critical comment on the defeated candidate; but human nature being what it is, there has been no hesitation about expressing pleasure that a tried and trusted friend is at the head of a great republic for another four years.

It will be on the war program, with financial problems arising from it, that parliament will be likely occupied for the entire time until the adjournment for the Christmas recess.

Many people are so busy telling the world what is wrong with it, they haven't time to improve it.

Star Seeks Haven 'Between Montreal And Ottawa'

MADELINE CARROLL FAVORS THE OTTAWA VALLEY FOR OFF-DUTY RESIDENCE

Following on the recent visits of movie notables to the Seignory Club and Laurentian spots, this week Madeline Carroll is reported to have stated in Montreal that she is "seeking a quiet haven and may settle in the Ottawa Valley". Her home in France is in the hands of the Germans.

The blonde French-Irish screen actress is quoted as saying: "I am seriously thinking of acquiring a property near Montreal. I would love to find an old house between Montreal and Ottawa to which I could come between pictures".

Dressed modestly in black mourning for her sister Marguerite who was killed in a bombing of London several weeks ago, Miss Carroll spoke wistfully of her home in France. "Quebec reminds me so much of France, where my last home was, that I would dearly love to live here", she said. "I would like an old house steeped in the traditions of French-Canada. I would feel at home".

Friends are helping her seek a house which would suit the conditions she has laid down.

Madeline Carroll has since left for New York but will return next Sunday to take part in the CBC "Face the Facts" broadcast at 9 p.m. She is scheduled to speak in French after a Cabinet minister gives an English address.

London Can Take It!

A topical subject to be presented shortly at the Rex and Capitol Theatres is the one-reel picture "London Can Take It". Scenes taken at the Empire metropolis, with accompanying comment by Quentin Reynolds, of Collier's Magazine, give an accurate portrayal of the air raid damage, the organization which musters every anti-aircraft and civilian unit to meet these enemy attacks, and the morale of the Capital, which has risen so nobly in its hour of trial. These are facts to command our heartfelt concern and reactions to stir our loyal admiration. It is to be noted that this picture, produced on the scene of action, is distributed in Canada and the United States by Warner Bros., under approval of the British authorities, and the profits of the release go directly to the London relief fund.

Ellsworth Toll Heard in New Travelogue

Up-and-Coming Explorers, Ontario Brothers Depicted In Scene and Story

Advertised as "an adventure which only youth could accomplish", one would judge from the visual evidence that the Toll Brothers' hike through South America was truly a feat to be undertaken only by those of youthful years and agile limb. Ellsworth Toll, lecturing at Lachute Auditorium Monday evening on this tour, proved himself also an accomplished and entertaining speaker.

The travelogue, presented under auspices of Lachute Women's Institute, drew a capacity house. A hundred extra chairs had to be added to accommodate the overflow after the regular seating facilities and gallery were filled.

Mrs. C. Duncan, the W.I. president, introduced Mr. Ellsworth Toll, who promptly put his audience at their ease, and thereafter held them spellbound to the extent that utter silence prevailed even among the many schoolchildren in the gathering.

The brothers' long journey — by land and sea, tramping, hitch-hiking, by railway, and (across the Andes) on foot with a pack donkey — covered a period of 16 months. But in two short hours the lecturer touched upon the highlights of human interest in

Farm Laborer Is Struck by Car

REFUSED ADMITTANCE TO HAWKESBURY HOSPITAL, IS CONVEYED TO MONTREAL

Refused hospitalization after being given first aid treatment at a Hawkesbury hospital last week, Joseph Duplante, 62, formerly of Ile Perrot, Que., was conveyed by ambulance to St. Luke Hospital, Montreal.

Duplante was struck by an automobile opposite the farm property of Fred Cousens two miles northeast of Grenville on Highway No. 8. He suffered a compound fracture of the left leg and head injuries.

After attempting to have the victim treated in one Hawkesbury hospital, Constable H. Jones, who investigated the accident, took the man to another hospital, where he was given first aid but refused hospitalization. A call was then sent to Montreal traffic headquarters and arrangements were made to send an ambulance from St. Luke Hospital.

Driver of the car was Paul Emile Seguin, who was going west toward Hawkesbury. Duplante, it was stated, had called at the Cousens home around 6 p.m. seeking accommodation. Being unable to take him in, the residents had directed him across the highway to another farm. The man was struck while crossing the road. Duplante was described as a farm hand; he had no home or relatives.

Infant Killed When Car Crashes Into Rear of St. Jerome Truck

The death of 10-month-old Claude Lebeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lebeau, Cartierville, Friday night when an automobile crashed into a truck on the St. Jerome highway five miles north of Cartierville, was declared accidental at an inquest held by Coroner Hebert.

Mr. Lebeau testified that he was driving towards St. Jerome when he was blinded by an approaching automobile and failed to see the truck parked on the road ahead or its rear light. He estimated the speed of his car at 35 to 40 miles an hour.

The truck driver, Max Greenspoon, of St. Jerome, said that he stopped at the side of the highway to give a lift to a soldier.

Mr. Lebeau escaped injury, but Mrs. Lebeau was taken to Cartierville Hospital with a fractured leg and other injuries. The child died soon after arrival of Dr. A. Gagnon, who was summoned to the scene from St. Martin.

Goebbels was speaking to the German people about how the British were bombing women and children. At last he concluded by saying: "Are you going to take this lying down?"

A muffled voice from the back said: "Isn't that what the reporters are doing?"

ARMISTICE DAY REVERENCE STIRRED DEEPER BY NEW WORLD CATAclysm

Remembrance Service and Laying of Wreaths at Cenotaph; Successful Poppy Day Campaign

Generous Response to the Annual Poppy Campaign

Local response to canvassers in the annual poppy campaign was highly gratifying to the organizers. While some of the outlying districts have not yet been heard from, the result in almost every section has exceeded that of previous collections, and this year's sales will total almost $400. A good part of this must be paid out for purchase of the wreaths and poppies, but the Legion will still receive an appreciable amount to place in its Benevolent Fund.

The Legion expresses its sincere appreciation through this newspaper, to all who have assisted in the campaign.

Those collecting in Lachute were — Misses Louise Deacon, Joan Stansfield, Lorna Giles, Margaret Aitkin, Annie MacRae, Joan Stewart, Yvonne Bedard, Ruth MacNaughton, Eda Rascofsky, Beryl Underhill and Blanche Theoret.

Collectors and assistants at Morin Heights were — Billy Roberts, Barbara Watchorn, Marion Champagne, Ida Temple, Betty Temple, Mrs. A. E. Morgan, Mrs. Wm. Kennedy and Mrs. J. D. Davis.

Cushing comprised rather a large district and was handled most efficiently by Mrs. Irving Fuller.

Details of the various amounts collected by districts and the names of other helpers will be published in next week's issue.

Charge of Criminal Negligence Is Laid Against Motorist

ARRAIGNED AT ST. JEROME AND RELEASED ON BAIL TILL NOVEMBER 25

Charles Anderson, 18, of Vankleek Hill, was arraigned last Thursday at St. Jerome on a charge of criminal negligence arising from the death of 17-year-old Sarah McCuaig in a highway accident near Grenville.

Anderson, found responsible of criminal negligence by the coronor's jury, was ordered to appear for preliminary hearing November 25. He was freed on bond of $950.

Following the inquest Anderson was taken to Montreal by Officer H. Jones; and was later escorted to St. Jerome for arraignment.

Sacrilege of Present War No Deterrent to Our Honor for the Dead

The annual Remembrance Day service at Lachute Auditorium was well supported, the exercises commencing shortly before 11 o'clock Monday morning and the two minutes' silence being solemnly observed on the stroke of the hour.

Argenteuil Branch No. 70 of the Canadian Legion was represented by an attendance of many of its veteran members, wearing berets and war medals and carrying the banners of their order. The Lachute Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs attended in full strength and also gave valuable assistance in the proceedings.

Chairman was the county's federal representative, Jas. W. McGibbon, assisted by Geo. H. Héon. On the platform were members of the Protestant clergy, who took part in the program. Special speaker for the occasion was the Hon. Capt. N. Noseworthy, chaplain of Military District No. 4, Montreal.

It was regrettable, observed the speaker, that certain people had disparaged this observance of honoring the Great War dead, in view of the sacrilege which is being committed again on the very ground over which they trod. It was evident, he stressed, that the principles for which those of a former generation had fought and died were the very same ideals as inspired the men who stand today, facing the same deadly foe. The victory of 1918 had won nothing but an armistice, it was true. Suspicion and hatred had followed — the evils which they had fought to vanquish, and the same canker which the present conflict must remove, definitely and permanently. There was that difference, learned from sad experience, namely that German brutality — the lust of Hitler and his hordes, for they were one and the same — must be held more lastingly in leash. But the objective was the same, the ideals, the spirit and the sacrifice. While Britain stands, she must raise her sword wherever oppression threatens. So also shall we, today as yesterday, honor those who die in that great cause. ... In the words of Tennyson:

"Till the war-drum throbbed no And the battle flags were fur'd In the Parliament of man, The Federation of the world."

Addressing the French Canadian listeners, Mr. Héon then interpreted the gist of the speaker's remarks. He stressed, also, the error of the past and the lesson of the present, that victory must be decisive and its achievements upheld with every force at our command. He quoted in conclusion, "Those who are not willing to fight for their liberties are trespassers on their enjoyment".

At the Cenotaph in the adjoining park, children from Lachute High School had meanwhile assembled for the remaining exercises. They were addressed briefly by their principal, C. L. Hall, and by the Chaplain, who impressed upon them the significance of this day and the obligations it implied to the younger folks and citizens of tomorrow.

Wreaths were then deposited at the memorial by representatives of the churches, ladies' groups, service clubs, fraternities and business firms. Last Post was sounded by Scouts George Deacon and John Giles, and the observance closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Siren Sounds for Chimney Fires

With nothing more serious in recent weeks than the Fire Prevention parade, the Lachute apparatus has appeared infrequently on the town streets. Two minor calls, for chimney fires, brought the brigade into action this week — Monday afternoon at Mrs. J. P. MacKimmie's residence on Main Street, and Tuesday evening at Ernest Prevost's, Hope Street.

The only important service the department has been called upon to render of late, was during the barn fire at Beech Ridge, where the fire-fighters with their auxiliary truck averted possible loss of the home and contents.

"If an individual's only desire is to do as little work as possible and to be paid as much as possible for doing it, then his case is hopeless."

AUTUMN FICTION FOR WINTER READING

By CHRISTINA PALLISER CHAPMAN

(A paper presented before the Study Group of Lachute Women's Institute)

In 1915 Erskine Childers wrote a novel called "The Riddle of the Sands", which some of you may have read. In England it sold by the thousands, but did not get so far on this side of the water. It is being reissued now in the United States and, says Christopher Morley, "it is absorbing, and of an almost fantastic timeliness". It is an exciting yarn of two young Englishmen who go out duckshooting and discover quite by accident a carefully planned invasion of England from the Frisian Islands off the coast of Holland. "I was assisting", writes the author, "at an experimental dress-rehearsal of a great scene to be enacted in the near future, a scene when multitudes of sea-going lighters, carrying full loads of soldiers, should issue simultaneously in seven ordered fleets, from seven shallow outlets, and under escort of the Imperial German Navy traverse the North Sea and throw themselves bodily upon English shores." The battle of Jutland put an end to such plans, but who knows how much of this is going on just now, waiting for the escort of the German Air Force. These details, set in fiction over twenty-five years ago, forecast to a startling degree the actual events of the present moment. . . . I understand that later on this is to be issued in Pocket-Books at a much lower price. Two or three amusing books would be welcome just about here.

Did you read "The Adventures of Hiram Holliday?" I did, and enjoyed it extremely. The author, Paul Gallico, has another one for us this fall, also about Hiram, called "The Secret Front". I quote from the publisher: "With Europe crashing about his ears the irrepressible Hiram plunges into further adventure. Robin Hood of the copy desk, Don Quixote of war correspondents, a veritable lion in the guise of a mouse, he ranges from besieged Warsaw to Scapa Flow; tracks down the mystery of Hitler's impersonator; saves a girl in the nick of time, and outwits the Gestapo at its own game".

Another amusing book is "The Terror of Peru", by Meade Minnigrode. It tells of an adventure in Spain and in Peru, about the time that Jacques Cartier roamed the seas. It is one of the best light adventure novels of the season.

"The Vanishing Virginian", by Rebecca Yancey Williams, is a chronicle of the eccentricities of a Virginia gentleman, a strong individualist who will remind some of us of Clarence Day's Father. Father put on a Great Show. The life, the entertainment, the hunting, the parties, Father is in them all, and all enjoyable. The book is extremely well reviewed.

Books dealing with the war are many, but be on your guard against the very highly advertised war books.

An agreeable novel, with the war as its background, is "Landfall" by Nevil Shute, who has three or four good novels to his credit. The scene is laid in and around the English Channel. Timely is the word, and I am told it is light, entertaining, and informative.

Clare Boothe's new book, "Europe In The Spring", is one of the best fall books, judging by what its readers have told me. The author, a remarkably able young woman with no axe to grind, has just returned from

3. Squadron-Leader Kingsford Smith, an Australian, in the "Southern Cross".
4. A 'carat' is a word used to denote the fineness of gold; it is, also, the name of a weight equal to four grains. A 'carrot' is an edible root of reddish-yellow color.
5. Amerigo Vespucci, a merchant living in Florence, Italy.
6. Thirty-two.

Women's Institutes Equip A Hospital Room

The Women's Institutes in Huntingdon and Chateauguay Counties have provided furnishings and equipment for a maternity room in the new Barrie Hospital in Ormstown. Europe. It is written in a fever, and how that woman can write!

Stephen Leacock's "History of the British Empire" is excellent.

Beverly Baxter's Men, Martyrs and Mountebanks is a series of short biographical sketches of a great many of the men whose names we see daily in the news. It is extremely well done, and worth reading.

Three books about France: The best, so far as I can learn, is "J'Accuse", by Andre Simon. After I read it I felt I could understand the collapse of France a little better. We were not so different from France ourselves on this side of the water.

"Tragedy in France", by Andre Maurois, is by a better-known writer, yet it has not the information of "J'Accuse". It appeared in Collier's Weekly, and is rather sketchy.

"I Saw France Fall", by Rene de Chambrun, is by a soldier who fought. The Count de Chambrun took in a lot of sights and experiences, was present during portentous meetings of the great. This is his story of what happened. He should know considerable, for his wife is Pierre de Laval's daughter. However, this book is appearing in two sections in the Ladies' Home Journal, one section before the book is published and one after, so you would be quite well advised to read it there.

I think myself finished, yet there are a half-dozen books which should be tucked in somewhere. One of them is Christopher Morley's "Kitty Foyle", which has been going strong since last winter. It is a book which has been much better liked by the younger generation than by the older. Kitty is very modern and up-to-date herself, a young Irish girl living with her father in Philadelphia. The novel is mostly taken up with Kitty's love-affairs and her successes or failures in earning her own living; it is a diary, following her life closely from childhood right up into womanhood.

If you read Compton MacKenzie's "East Wind of Love", and "South Wind of Love", you will be interested in the third book of this series, "The West Wind of Love", which is receiva great deal of praise from its publishers.

Ernest Raymond has been writing a trilogy on London. The first was called "We, the Accused", the second "The Marsh", and this fall the third called "A Song of the Tide". Ernest Raymond is a good solid English writer whose work is respected and enjoyed.

VET'S MEMORIES OF 1915.

While serving in the Ypres section in the early part of 1915 we were billeted in an old brewery, and were soon using some of the big barrels as baths.

One of our lads, after looking suspiciously at the cloudy water in one of the barrels, turned to a corporal and asked how many had already used it.

"Three", answered the N.C.O.

"Only three?"

"Yes, three", repeated the corporal. "The West Kents, the East Surreys and the H.L.L."

WHAT money? Why—the money in the banks! The money carefully put away by you and your neighbours in savings accounts. The money you could have spent today but wanted to keep safely against some future need. The businessman's money for use in his normal operations. There are more than 4,846,000 bank deposit accounts, savings and current. Within these two classes the great majority of deposits are small or of moderate amount. Q But you'd be wrong if you assumed from this, that the rest of the deposits are owned by the few! Quite the contrary! The railways, for instance, have deposits in the chartered banks — and that indirectly includes the whole population of the Dominion. The trade unions have deposits. Millions of policy-holders share in the ownership of insurance companies' deposits. Q And don't overlook the deposits of wheat pools; farm co-operatives; churches; municipalities and municipal hydro commissions, school districts; school children's penny bank savings deposited with the chartered banks; and commercial and mining corporations with very wide lists of shareholders, large and small, all over Canada. Truly, money on deposit in Canada's chartered banks is owned, in fact, by you and your fellow-Canadians.

[In war, as in peace, Canada's Chartered Banks maintain, uninterrupted, their useful services — safeguarding depositors' funds; facilitating the nation's business — looking forward to peace with freedom as the only sure basis of enduring prosperity.]

Victoria Is Popular In The Winter For Warm Weather And Summer Sports

Canada has an evergreen playground where snow is an ephemeral novelty, flowers bloom every month of the year and even in mid-winter the day's recreation can include yachting, tennis, hiking, lawn bowling, fishing or a round of golf over the fast, green fairways of any of a half dozen outstanding courses.

Victoria, centre of this beautiful British Columbia evergreen playground, has become in recent years an outstanding Canadian "winter" resort; this year it seems to be on the verge of its busiest season with international exchange offering Americans an attractive financial inducement of ten per cent on their dollar, while Canadian lovers of mild weather will find that Vancouver Island has the only resort of this kind on the continent which they can visit now that holiday trips to the United States have been banned. The main competitive sports event of the season is the Empress Winter Golf Tournament which is held on well trimmed grassy fairways and greens at a time when other Canadian courses are several feet under the snowdrifts. This year's tournament, the 13th annual, will be held on the Oak Bay course, March 9 to 15. The outstanding social event of the season is Christmas at the Empress Hotel where Canada's most-English city celebrates with the time-honored boar's head, yule logs, wassail bowl and carols. The contrast between Victoria and the rest of Canada in winter-time is particularly marked after a train trip through the Canadian Rockies, then at their loveliest in a mantle of ice and snow. Vancouver Island produces such rarities—rare to the rest of Canada, that is—as strawberries in December, salmon fishing all winter long, new-born lambs in January and roses in February. The pictures above show the Empress Hotel, and typical "winter" scenes, hiking, golfing and yachting.

C.A.S.F. in England Have Their Own Truck Assembly Plant

GENERAL MOTORS AND FORD FACTORIES HERE
SUPPLY NECESSARY PARTS AND MATERIAL

(Special English despatch to the Montreal Gazette)

Along the winding English road comes a Canadian army convoy—a long line of powerful trucks carrying troops, ammunition and supplies, faster and more efficiently than they have ever been carried in the whole of military history. On those big, drab trucks depend the mobility and striking force of the Canadian army. Whence do these vital vehicles come?

Who are the men who build them? The story begins far from this winding road in Britain's battle zone. It begins in a Canadian motor factory, in Windsor perhaps, or Oshawa. There the parts are made and crated—engines, frames, wheels, cab bodies are neatly packed in big wooden boxes so that they will occupy the minimum of precious space in a ship's hold.

The Royal Navy helps to steer the ship safely across the Atlantic despite Nazi mines, bombs and torpedoes. In a British port the crates are swung ashore. By train they are rushed to a modern motor assembly plant, operated by Canadian Military Headquarters.

High above the plant float silvery barrage balloons to keep the German bombers at a respectable distance. Outside the gates Canadian soldiers stand guard night and day to make sure there is no sabotage. But step inside the plant and the war seems far away. You might be back in Canada, watching trucks being assembled in Oshawa, or Windsor.

You meet C. S. Finkle, superintendent of the plant. He wears a grey tweed suit, is brisk, businesslike and 40, Queen's graduate in mechanical engineering, was on the staff of Detroit architect Albert Kahn assisting in the design of the Stalingrad tractor plant and other big Russian factories. He served the Ford Motor Co. in Windsor, Montreal, India and Winnipeg before coming to England last March.

Mr. Finkle explains that the plant is officially known as the Canadian Mechanization Depot. He shows you over the whole plant, 160,000 square feet of it. First you see the crates unloaded beside the railway track that runs right into the factory building.

He refers to these crates as S.K.D. It turns out that this means "semi knock-down." For some time the factory was operating on a C.K.D. (complete knock-down) basis but found the slight saving in shipping space was not worth the extra time required in assembly. Promptly the plant returned to the more efficient S.K.D. system.

Mr. Finkle arrived last March with four other Canadian motor experts. All they had to start with was an empty building. It had been a car assembly plant but had closed down when war broke out. Now there were few tools or workmen.

Tools were soon obtained but labor presented more of a problem. With Britain's own war industries going full blast most assembly men had already been absorbed. The Canadian technicians had to take what labor they could get. Most of the men were completely inexperienced.

On one occasion a Canadian technician noticed that the trucks were coming off the assembly with this and that out of place. He checked back and found that one group of men were so eager to learn all they could about motor car assembly that they had swapped jobs to broaden their experience. A riveter was bolting on wheels; a wheel bolter was handling the rivetting machine. They were

Protection from Bombers

In addition to the ordinary problems of high-speed production, these men also have to cope with the danger of bombs. They have worked out an ingenious scheme for fending off the German raiders.

Each night every workman locks his tools in a box and puts them in one of several trucks. The high cycle motor generator set, electric tools, arc welders and other major equipment and office records are similarly removed every night. The loaded trucks are driven to widely scattered parts of the district and put under guard. Next morning they are driven back to the plant and the tools are put back to work. The whole scheme has been worked out so efficiently that it only takes 10 minutes at night to put away the tools and 10 minutes in the morning to get the plant in operation. Even if the factory were heavily bombed by German planes during the night, production could be resumed almost immediately. The valuable tools would still be intact.

Moral, Shop at Home!

A moral for those who do their shopping outside their home town may be found in the following, taken from the Port Elgin Times: "A Canadian sent his false teeth across the line for repairs. Now he cannot send the money for them across and the dentist won't return them without payment, so he is living on soup. Serves him right. Be true to your dentist and your false teeth won't be false to you."

National Christmas Present

There are still several shopping days before Christmas, but it is not too early to begin shopping for one present—a present to be given by a grateful nation to the men who are serving it in the Army, Navy and Air Force. Pay and Allowance Regulations make no provision for anything in the way of a Christmas bonus, such as many private employers are accustomed to give in appreciation of loyal service. In this, as in other matters, government may advantageously study business practice.

The choice of a national Christmas present is not difficult. Christmas is essentially a home festival and, for the majority of our men on active service, the most welcome gift would be a home leave, and privilege to return to their families for the Christmas season. While this would not be practicable for men serving abroad, it should be easy to arrange for those who are still in Canada. The only difficulty is the expense.

Most young men, when they leave home to take a job in normal times, do not go far away. The young man from the farm goes to the nearest town; the young man from the town or village goes to the nearest city. Getting home for Christmas is not an insoluble problem for them, even if their wages are small. In the C.A.S.F., a young man from Sarnia may find himself in Vancouver or Halifax

Do You Know?

Why the Bow on a Man's Hat?

Like so many of the customs of today, it is a relic of ancient days when feathers, plumes and dangling pieces of ribbon formed a part of a man's headgear. This ornamentation was always worn on the left side of the hat because, were it put on the right, it might interfere with his means of defence, and this would have been a serious matter.

Why the Term "Hauled Over the Coals"?

In early times, a person who was put up for trial had to prove his innocence or guilt by walking barefooted over a patch of red-hot coals. According to whether he was burnt or not, so he was found guilty or otherwise. This ordeal was popularly known as "being hauled over the coals", and from this obvious meaning, the term has grown to stand for any form of scolding.

at Christmas time. The cost of a return ticket to his home at the cheapest available rate, would be equal to two or three month's pay.

Since hitch-hiking facilities are poor in December, Christmas leave will be worthless to our forces unless it is accompanied by free transportation. If Parliament will act quickly enough, free transportation can be granted. The members, who are themselves accustomed to travelling on pass between their constituencies and Ottawa, cannot consistently argue that soldiers, sailors and airmen are less worthy of similar privileges.

Some men will have to remain on duty at Christmas time, although it is to be hoped that as many as possible will be given leave. Their own officers and the Y.M.C.A. will make every effort to give them a merry Christmas, but it would be fair for Parliament to make a special Christmas grant to be used for the benefit of those who cannot be given leave. Thus there would be no empty stockings.

This Strange World

Two years ago Eddie Dowell of Champaign, Ill., told N.K. Crawford, car dealer, that he would buy a new automobile when he had saved enough nickels—and he wasn't kidding either. For the other day he walked in with a beer case jammed to the top with five-cent pieces and drove off in a 1941 model.

Five-year-old Marion Louise Doane of Houston, Tex., is known as "Hard Knocks Marion", and has caused intense excitement because she's been at kindergarten a whole month without accident. Here is the reason for the excitement: She was born in a hospital elevator without nurse or doctor. Before she was two she fell off a bed and bit off half her tongue. She soon afterwards fell off a porch swing and broke her nose, and twice since she has broken her nose!

This is strange! Virginio Gayda, prominent Italian editor, is in Munich conferring with Dr. Deitrich on plans for a new international society of journalists which will be "absolutely intolerant of all corruption in journalism". Now if they had only stopped at the word "intolerant".

Veteran's Thoughts On Observance Of Armistice

The following talk was given last week by Mr. Geo. F. Calder before the Presbyterian Young People's Society in Lachute.

"Most of you gathered here tonight have already done your daily dose. I am sure it is your habit to attend the meetings of your society, more for your entertainment and enjoyment than for your instruction; consequently the subject under discussion is treated usually in a light or humorous manner. However, in treating the subject of Armistice 1940, I cannot find it in my heart or soul to treat it with humor or levity.

"I happen to belong to that generation upon whom the burden of the last war fell most heavily. The Hon. Anthony Eden, speaking in New York a little over a year ago, said: 'Our generation, in England, is sometimes called the lost generation'. Fortunately that is not so true in Canada as it is in England, although it does bear a striking resemblance. We have lost many of the most brilliant, certainly the most noble of our members, who today would be filling the positions of trust and responsibility, were they living; and what is left is only a remnant of what was; yet I believe that our generation has a message for your young, or shall I say younger generation — for after all, they say no one is ever old in their own estimation!

"It is not my intention to make any patriotic appeal to you for personal services; this is not the place nor the time, and I know that I am expressing the feeling of every ex-service man when I say that, until we are able and permitted to take up again our unfinished task, not one of us would wish to urge others to do so. Yet the burden is there, it must be met; but I hope and pray that it may pass from your generation and not bear as heavily upon you young people as it did upon my generation.

"However, the message we have for you tonight is this: Right has never been defeated and never shall be defeated; and our cause is Right. But while this is true, we can look at the various monuments over the length and breadth of our land, and we read these words: 'Lest we Forget'. But did we not forget? Ah yes, we did forget. We read the immortal words of John McRae, 'If ye break faith with us who died, we shall not sleep though poppies grow in Flanders' fields'. But we did break faith; can they sleep with the iron heel of German oppression all around them?

"Vengeance is mine saith the Lord. That we must always remember, but never again must we allow the circulation of propaganda that both sides were equally guilty of starting the last war. If there was any doubt the last time there can be none this time. One of the things that has cut me to the core is a poster — I do not know under what auspices it was printed; it is a poster of a battle scene, and underneath it written 'Field of Dishonor'. We do not glory in war, we never have and never will, but to state that my comrades died in dishonor, frankly it hurts. . . . Yes, never again, must we allow this to happen. And when the war is successfully concluded, as it will be and must be, we must see to it, that although vengeance shall be left to Him to whom it rightfully belongs, never again shall a nation be allowed to write off the stain of guilt until they and their people have repented and made restitution for their sin. When this darkness shall have passed away and we are again in the light of reason, we must see to it that there shall be established a Society (call it a league of nations if you will, the name matters not) which shall have authority to decide the disputes of nations, and have also the power to enforce to the end, that never again shall one or more nations have it in their power to threaten, by military force, our freedom of conscience, our religious faith and our Christian civilization.

"That is the message which my generation has for your generation and all other present and future generations."

Lost time is never found.

The "Hawks" started fast, and held a 16-8 lead at half time. The Big Blue team found its feet from then on, and was in almost continual possession of the ball, scoring two free throws and two field goals to Hawkesbury's one.

Mr. Scott, of Hawkesbury, refereed the game, and Harold Barbour, of Knowlton, was the official score-keeper. The teams comprised —

Tompkins had dined overwell at the house of his friend in London, and it was well past black-out time when he departed, so his host lent Tompkins a large electric torch and sent him on his way. An hour later the host was awakened by the violent ringing of his door-bell. Looking out of his bedroom window, he was astounded to see Tompkins awaying below.

"Just thought I'd bring your torch back, o' man," he hiccupped. "I found my way home with it perley."

Remembrance Day To Womanhood Of the World

For the Womanhood of the world, Remembrance Day has a profound and personal meaning. Twenty-six years ago every woman's home was threatened. Out of it marched her men and youth. Away from her marched part of her life. Away to fight and perhaps die for the home and all for which it stood. Left behind, she bore the deeper scars of sorrow and pain.

To her, as much as to any, they threw the torch, that it might burn in every home. By its light the women could teach the new generation the truths and principles which would make all the sacrifice of that conflict worthwhile.

In the new generation lay then, as lies now, the hope of a new world. In the light of the lives given for us then, and those fighting for us now, how have we as women, measured up? They died for the best they knew.

We have failed to live for the best we knew. We have tried, in our way, to deal with the effects of these conflicts carrying within our hearts all the time conflicts of our own. We have reached into our purses, given of our time and energy. We have yet to give the most priceless gift of all.

There is a line of our men, firm, grim, resolute. They patrol the sky and the sea and land to keep us safe. What stands behind that line? If we in the home tolerate any ill-feeling, irritation, or resentment in the course of our day, we compromise the sacrifice they make. If we are content to be self-indulgent or soft, we sap their strength. If our children do not find peace in the home, we break faith.

Of all that we can give, is not the greatest gift our homes built on the principles for which our Empire stands — honor, justice, faith in God.

On each Remembrance Day we keep silence. Can this not be a time of listening to the voice of God above the strife and confusion? Listening for our part in a plan of re-making and re-building. This can happen every day for each one of us in every home.

In such homes the new battle will be fought, — the battle against the

Late Mrs. R. Dewar Mourned In River-Front Community

There passed away on Tuesday evening, Nov. 5th, at her residence in Stonefield, Mary Jane Angell, widow of the late Robert Dewar. She was in her 76th year.

Mrs. Dewar was in her usual good health until a week before her passing, when she suffered a heart attack. Following a second seizure she passed peacefully away, her death coming as a shock to her family and friends.

She is survived by four daughters and four sons — Lillie, at home; (Annie) Mrs. G. C. Conway; (Stella) Mrs. G. Hampton; (Jemima) Mrs. R. Matthew; George, of Toronto, Stanley, Ernest and Harris; also one sister, Mrs. James Stewart, and eleven grand children.

The funeral service conducted by the Rev. K. N. Brunton in St. Matthew's Church (Anglican) at Grenville, was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The remains were tenderly laid to rest in the family plot adjoining the church. The many beautiful floral offerings and expressions of sympathy showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Wm. An-

causes of war in our human nature. Out of such homes will come the builders of the new world: Youth free of fear. Youth aware of the wrongs that must be righted. Youth courageously shaping the life of the new day. Shaping it to ancient truths with a reborn spirit.

Another generation is throwing the torch. The homes behind the new line can hold it high. It will burn brightly only if it is fed by our sincerity and constancy. There is a hope for the days beyond the war only if we and our home become different now.

On this doubly significant day, let us remember with gratitude our dead. Nothing can replace them.

But let us honor them as never before in building that for which they died. Their hope will live as we live this day for the future.

SUPPER AT GRENVILLE, BY ANGLICAN W.A.

Grenville — The annual supper arranged by the Grenville W.A. and friends was held Saturday evening in the Masonic Hall, again kindly loaned by the Masons for this occasion. An unusually large number of people enjoyed the ample supper, following which the tables were cleared away and a short program was given. This was provided by the girls and boys of the Front Road, under the capable leadership of Miss Melba Crooks. The young people later enjoyed a session of dancing.

STIRRING APPEAL VOICED AT UNITED CHURCH LAYMEN'S RALLY

All pastoral charges in the North Shore district of the Montreal Presbytery, with two exceptions, were represented at the annual laymen's supper held Friday evening in the basement of Lachute United Church. There were delegates from the Brownsburg, Cushing, St. Andrews, Ste. Therese and Shawbridge charges, besides a large attendance from the local congregation.

After welcoming the visitors, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough as chairman called upon Rev. Dr. Wm. Munro, who has attended nearly all the local laymen's gatherings, in his capacity as Secretary of the Presbytery. He spoke with authority on the varied departments of "M. & M" work. He pictured the interest of his listeners not merely as a financial aid but as an investment of their lives, their devotion and sympathy in the welfare of brother men. The Rev. R. G. Katsunoff, minister of the Church of All Nations and an ever-welcome visitor to church functions in the district, sang two very acceptable numbers during the evening. Mr. Katsunoff's modulation of voice and eloquence of expression were perfectly suited to his themes. Miss Ruth Todd accompanied at the piano.

The speaker of the evening, Rev. G. G. D. Kilpatrick, D.D., principal of the United Church Theological College, Montreal, gave a stirring exhortation to the men, to apply their energies and resources to the needs of the hour in church extension. "A great door and effectual, is open to me — and there are many adversaries", St. Paul had said; and in quoting, Dr. Kilpatrick laid emphasis on the conjunction "and", implying the cheerful acceptance of adversity, typical of Paul but a challenge to modern-time disciples of Christianity. The speaker bade his listeners interpret the "M & M" symbol (Missionary & Maintenance) in less impersonal terms, not merely as a department of work but as an urgent call from neglected fronts, from homes in Canada and abroad in dire spiritual need. He left little doubt in the minds of his audience that the demand for church extension is imperative. The "untapped resources" of the United Church alone, if put into action, would permit an advance all along the line, he claimed. The last but not least opportunity of the Christian Church, is an open door to the rebuilding of a shattered world — a momentous task which will confront mankind in the coming years.

Thanks of the gathering — to the speaker, to Mr. Katsunoff, and to the ladies of the church for the excellent supper they had provided — were extended by the Rev. J. A. Mowatt, of St. Andrews. His comment on the missionary needs abroad, voiced from a personal experience in the work of the United Church in China, aptly climaxed the force of Dr. Kilpatrick's appeal.

In the social exchanges which followed, old acquaintances were renewed among the gathering from different parts.

PRESBYTERIAN Y. P. S.

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Young People's Society was held Wednesday evening, with over 20 members present. Final arrangements were drawn up for the banquet which is to be held next week. Dr. Fitzgerald, guest speaker of the evening, gave an interesting talk on different medical practices. The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS AT MAPLE AVENUE BAPTIST

Brownsburg — Maple Avenue Baptist Church is looking forward to a few days of evangelistic meetings conducted by Mr. Nygren, beginning Wednesday evening Nov. 20th. Services will start with a song service under the capable leadership of Mr. Nygren's assistant, Martin O. Wedge. The community is well acquainted with Mr. Nygren's work; he came here two years ago, and friends cannot speak too highly of him. Mr. Wedge, while a stranger to this section, comes with the highest recommendations from churches where he has led the singing in campaigns.

A hearty welcome is extended to one and all to be present, as Mr. Nygren and Mr. Wedge bring messages in the Living Word and in the ministry of song. Services will commence each evening at 7:45 o'clock.

WOMEN'S GROUPS IN THE ST. ANDREWS CHURCHES

St. Andrews E.—The annual Thanksgiving Offering of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening, Nov. 7th. The Rev. E. Orsborn of Lachute was the guest speaker, and gave an inspiring address that will be long remembered by those who were privileged to hear him.

A choice musical program was given under the direction of Mr. Harrison, organist. The first item was an anthem by the choir; "The Holy City" was well rendered by Mrs. J. P. Bradley and Mr. George Rodger. A very fine quartet selection was sung by Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Webster, Mr. Charles Hyde and Mr. George Rodger. Mr. Harrison's organ voluntaries are always appreciated by the congregation, who are fortunate in having this accomplished organist in charge of the praise services.

A large box of cookies was packed at the manse and sent to St. Anne's Military Hospital for Remembrance Day. A box of clothing was also packed for the supply secretary in Montreal.

The president and several members of the W.M.S. of the United Church met at the home of the supply secretary, Miss K. Pitcairn, last Thursday afternoon. Two cartons of useful clothing were packed and later sent to the Presbyterian Supply Secretary in Montreal.

The W. A. of the Anglican Church met at the home of Mrs. William Ball on Wednesday afternoon of last week. A ball was packed for their supply department.

REV. JAS. ADAMS APPOINTED AUXILIARY SECRETARY

Cambria — It is noted that the Montreal Auxiliary Bible Society recently appointed Rev. James Adams, B.A., B.Th., as district secretary in charge of the entire Auxiliary.

G. A. Franck, F.R.G.S., formerly the Society's provincial secretary in Chenatu, China, was named temporarily to assist Mr. Adams in the work of the Auxiliary.

The meeting, presided over by Rev. D. L. Ritchie, D.D., was held in the Bible House, 1450 Union Avenue, Montreal.

HIGH COST OF SCHOOL-BOOKS

There have been quite a number of editorials in the Weekly Newspapers on the high cost of school text-books due to their frequent change. It is bad enough when one stays in the same Province but when one moves it means a complete set of books for each school. Our lad has had four different Latin text-books and four Geometries, in three years. Latin and Geometry of all subjects. The Provinces should get together on their curricula and their text-books. When people stayed put it did not matter if each Province went their own way, but people move around a great deal more these days and it is a great handicap to the children and a great expense to their parents. The need is more pressing now as so many soldier's families are living in different places because of the War. This is another method of co-operation by which money would be saved.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Some of the signs we see as we drive about have their amusing sides. Here are a couple which appealed to us. Amethysts are a product of Nova Scotia and they very wisely feature them for the tourist trade. On Cape Blomidon there is a sign which reads, AMETHYSTS AND SOFT DRINKS. There is a sign in one of the County towns of New Brunswick, which says FUNERAL HOME, and painted directly beneath it is ROOMS TO RENT.

MARITIME ROAD-SIGNS

The road signs showing the names of the places in the Maritimes are attractive looking ones but are a plague to read. They are long narrow ones and have the letters under each other. We are accustomed to reading from left to right and not from North to South and by the time the eyes get adjusted, there has been time to see only a letter or two and unless you are familiar with the names you cannot guess what they are.

BEEF AND KIDNEY STEW

Buy beef and kidney in the proportion of one kidney to each pound of round steak. Cut the steak in cubes, removing the fat. Put the fat in the frying-pan and when hot add the cubed steak and brown. Slice the kidneys and remove the hard centre portion. It is easier to do this with the scissors than with a knife. Put in a sauce pan and cover with cold water. Bring slowly to just below the boiling point and drain, discarding the water. Put the drained kidney and the browned beef in a sauce-pan, rinse out the frying-pan with water to get the browned particles and add this to the meat, using sufficient water to cover it. Add a finely minced onion and salt and pepper. Simmer slowly for two hours, then thicken with flour wet with cold water. Taste and add salt if necessary. I like to make enough for two days, and cover with pastry for Beef and Kidney Pie for the second day.

LAMB'S KIDNEYS

Slice the kidneys and remove the white centre portion. They may be used alone or with beef in a stew as in the above recipe. They are good fried in a little butter or bacon fat. This is a popular breakfast dish with the men and is good with lamb chops or bacon for dinner. When you buy chops get the butcher to leave in the kidney, in either lamb or veal chops.

COOKIES

1 cup butter, 3/4 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 eggs, 1 1/2 cups sugar. Sift the flour and baking powder and rub the butter in as for pastry, add the sugar and beaten eggs and mix well. Roll thin and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees. Decorate if desired or put together with jelly.

SAVORY SHRIMP

Cook a finely chopped onion and a green pepper if available in a tablespoon of butter, cooking until tender but not browned. Add a small can of pimientos, minced, and 1 cup of strained tomatoes. Simmer until the sauce is well blended. Add a can of shrimps and heat. Serve on toast or with boiled rice.

Throughout the night her husband had been muttering "Florie", and at breakfast she tackled him.

"Florie?" he echoed. "Oh, that's the horse I backed yesterday."

A day or two later a letter arrived and wife opened it. When hubby came home that night she handed it to him.

"Your horse has written to you," was all she said.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

What Shall I Wear?

"What shall I wear?" is a personal question that rears its head over and over again when we receive an invitation to a party. When we go to a party appropriately dressed, we feel at ease; inappropriately dressed, we feel out of sorts with ourselves and out of step with the other guests.

Here are a few guide-posts to answer the what-to-wear questions oftenest asked me:

The first thing is to discard the self-conscious attitude of hesitating to ask a hostess what type of dress you are expected to wear to her party. If, in her invitation, she has given no clue as to the type of dress that will be appropriate, she will be delighted to tell you. Better to do this than to be unhappy after you arrive.

Sometimes the problem rests between a girl and a man. Here again a direct question brings the answer. If, for example, a man has asked a girl to dine with him, or to go to a dance, or if a girl has invited a man to dine at her house or to go with her to her club dance, a question from either to the other as to the dress expected is correct and sensible.

To a luncheon, women wear street-length dresses or suits, and they wear their hats during the luncheon whether it is given in a home or in a restaurant. Sometimes, however, when only a few intimate friends are lunching with a hostess in her home, the hostess may ask her guests if they wish to take off their hats.

At a tea or afternoon reception, women guests wear street-length dresses or suits — the same type of clothes they wear to a luncheon — and hats and gloves. They may leave their gloves with their wraps, if they wish, or they may wear them until refreshments are served. But they should not wear their gloves — and this means both gloves — when refreshments are being served.

While in some communities the hostess at a late-afternoon party may wear a "long" dress, and may request her "deputy hostesses" to wear long dresses, the women guests do not usually wear long dresses to a tea or afternoon reception. Even when the hostess and co-hostesses wear long dresses, these dresses are not of the formal evening type, backless and sleeveless. Most often they are of the ensemble type—long dress with a bolero or other type of short jacket, matching or harmonizing with the dress.

This type of dress — a formal dress with a jacket or with this season's fashionable overblouse (often of a brilliant lamé) — is a godsend as an answer to what-to-wear for many occasions. The dress is suitable for formal wear, and, with the bolero or jacket or overblouse, is appropriate for a variety of functions, such as a dinner party or other evening party that you know is not to be strictly formal.

If you wish, you may wear long gloves to a formal party, a formal dance, for example. But long gloves aren't worn as much as they used to be, and if you do wear them, don't tuck them in at the wrist. When you take off your gloves, take them off entirely.

If a woman is inclined toward stoutness, she shouldn't wear large-figured prints, satin, or roundabout stripes, too much drapery, too many frills. If you're a man inclined to be stout, avoid loud colors, plaid, checks.

A woman shouldn't wear her wrist

Surgeons Look Through Woman Patient

Made Transparent for Benefit of Science for Two Years and Lived

Chicago, (CP) — A living transparent woman, made so for two years by surgery, has revealed new facts about the activity of the human digestive system. Her story was made public at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, where her case was handled.

She was 28, medium height, brunette, affable and willing to try the experiment and a good subject for it. The transparency was confined to a part of her digestive system.

She had been sent to the research hospital because a fistula — an opening through the abdominal wall into the large bowel — had formed after a kidney operation. To close this fistula two operations were necessary.

The outstanding discovery was that drugs which stimulate the large intestine inhibit the action of the small one, and vice versa. This immediately explained many things about the gas pains common after surgery. Morphine, a standard drug after surgery stimulates the small intestine but paralyzes the large one.

After two years another operation closed the fistula and restored her to normal.

"I've got a surprise for you, my dear," said Hubby. "I've varnished the kitchen floor while you were out."

"And I've a surprise for you, darling," responded Wifie. "You've used a jar of corn syrup to do it with."

There's a lady sings in our choir
Whose notes went higher and higher,
Till they reached such a height
They went clean out of sight,
And they found them next day in the

Etiquette

By Alice Barber

Miss P. C., Amherst, N.S., has a list of questions. "When is it correct to shake hands?" she asks. "When saying goodbye to a person you have just met, do you say, 'I am pleased to have met you'?" "When a boy takes you to the pictures or any place, should you thank him?" "What should you say? What do you say when a boy thanks you for a dance?"

As a matter of form, a lady very seldom shakes hands. She may offer her hand to a younger person or to a person she wants to honor. She seldom offers her hand first to an older person, or to a man, and a man never offers his first, but waits for the lady. When saying good-bye, you may say, "It was nice to have met you", or "I'm so glad to have met you." By all means thank your escort, and say simply, "Thanks very much, I have had a lovely time." When a boy thanks you for a dance, say, "I enjoyed it, too."

watch with formal dress unless it is a very small one of the jeweled type, more a bracelet than a watch.

It's good business to dress for business in good-looking business clothes. A simple, dark tailored dress or suit — nothing fussy or frilly, nothing conspicuous.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN
Famous Authority on
Good Manners and Good Taste

YOU CAN SERVE TEA IN SIMPLEST WAY

Quite mistaken is Mrs. Homemaker who thinks that she should not attempt to serve tea to friends or neighbors who drop in during the afternoon. Her plaint is that she has not "the right accessories". Tea should not be considered a formal rite to be indulged in only by those fortunate hostesses who own a silver tea service.

Your china teapot will probably brew more delicious tea than will be served in the silver service. You will have some kind of simple tray, using with it the cream pitcher and sugar bowl you ordinarily use. Small plates (your bread and butter plates) cups and saucers and napkins make up the remainder of the service.

Then you can "whip up" some dainty sandwiches from your provision shelves, or serve, as the English do, very thin slices of buttered bread. Undoubtedly there will be a cake or some cookies in the larder.

And there you are — it's tea time!

ACCEPT THE HONOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am going to a dinner with my husband. As he is presiding, I have been asked to reply to the toast for ladies. Do you think it is my place to do so?

2. Will you please give me an idea as to what I should say? There will be about two hundred present.

1. I urge you by all means to accept this honor that has been given you.

2. You do not give me much background as to the occasion and its reasons, and these naturally would be what you would talk about in your greeting. But I imagine that you would not have to say more than an appreciation of the toast-proposal to "The Ladies". First, of course, you address, "Mr. Toastmaster... Ladies and Gentlemen". Then, perhaps: "I have been given the very great honor of responding to the toast to the ladies, and I want to thank you, in their behalf and in my own, for your gracious toast and for your friendly wishes. This is a happy occasion for every one of us, and we want to tell you how deeply and highly and especially we thank you for your hospitality... A great poet has said, 'A word is dead, when it is said, Some say. I say it just begins to live That day'.

"I hope that this is true, and that our words of thanks and appreciation will live with you always. We want them to."

THE COURTEOUS PERSON WAITS HIS TURN

When you are standing in line at a post-office window, at a ticket office, bank, or at any place of business, don't disregard the rights of other people.

The person who has come first should be served first. People who try to barge in ahead of others at a stamp window or ticket window — or into a public telephone booth! — are bores and pests.

And pests, too, are the ones who, when the wait is long, make impatient or disagreeable remarks to strangers. "How poor are those who have not patience!"

INGENIOUS!

The Public Library of West Hartford, Conn., has, like most other libraries found great difficulty in getting its books returned, so they recently announced that, for one week, they would place a barrel on the front steps to receive books more than six months overdue. The announcement added: "No fines and no questions asked."

WAR MINISTERS GIVE ACCOUNT TO DATE OF CANADA'S EFFORT IN ALL DEPARTMENTS

Report Great Strides in Naval Preparedness; Standstill on Automobile Models for Duration

"THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT"
BY M. McDUGALL

Ottawa, Nov. 26th — In quiet, business-like fashion, ministers of the war departments have given an account of their stewardship to parliament and the Canadian people. It has been a story of heroism and devotion to duty already shown by air and navy men and an army of fifty thousand soldiers in Britain and in Atlantic outposts. Parliament too has been told of the work of all three services manning this country's defences. But overshadowing everything else has been the marshalling of Canada's forces both of men and material for the struggle that still lies ahead.

J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, issued a warning to the Canadian people against easy optimism. The war had not yet been won. We must not only bring all our resources into use, "but in addition we must restrict as far as possible civilian use of all those resources that can be used for war. . . . If we are really honest in demanding a war effort to the utmost," he said, "we must expect to be taxed until it hurts." Canada's war effort was now about one billion dollars a year. These expenses had risen from 40 million in June to 82 million dollars in October. Revenue receipts in this fiscal year to date were 145 million over last year. Seeking to arouse the people to the imperative need, of greater sacrifice, the minister said their obligations to economize, to pay taxes and to invest in war loans would increase.

The Minister was opposed to the suggestion of Social Credit members, that the war should be financed without an increase in taxation or debt. With a billion dollar expenditure this would lead to "wild inflation." If counter measures to prevent inflation were imposed it would mean severe bureaucratic means such as price fixing and espionage on the actions of every individual. In those countries that had suffered from inflation it was regarded as a "national calamity". The next loan, he said would be issued next summer. In the meantime financing would be carried on by short term loans.

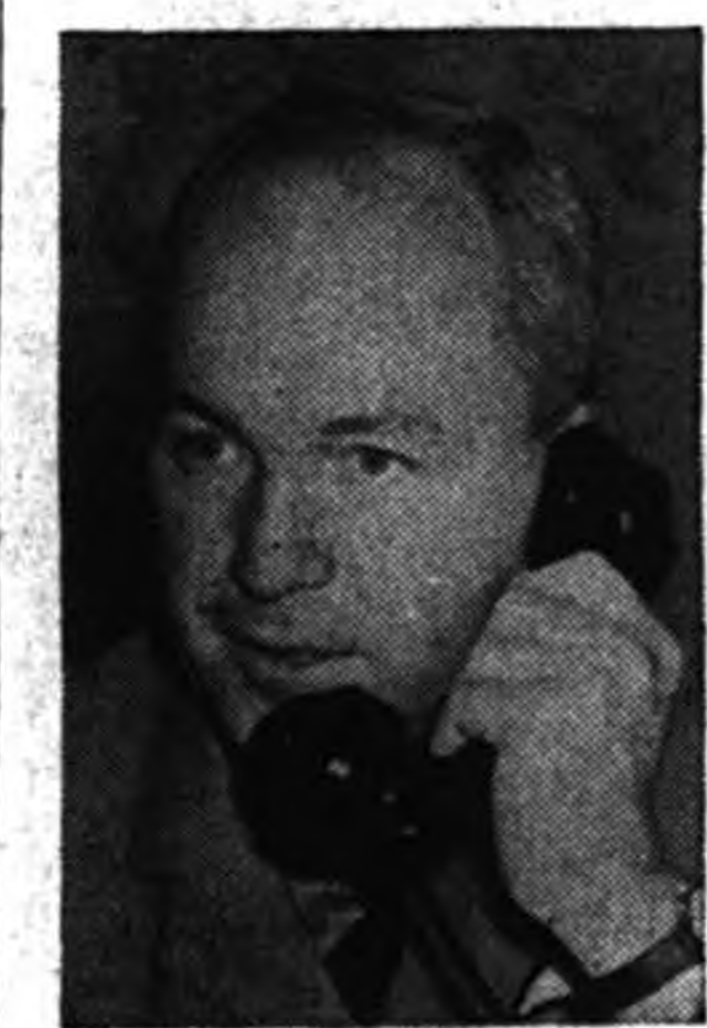

The new Naval Minister, Angus L. Macdonald, in a speech reminiscent of the voice of the Maritimes in Confederation days, told the Commons that Canada was planning a new naval policy. "I do not believe," he said, "that the Canadian people wish to continue indefinitely a policy which demands of Britain the sole responsibility of guarding our trade routes or which on the other hand takes shelter behind the existence on this continent of a great and friendly power." Canada's dignity and pride will demand "we assume our proper share of the burden of naval service hitherto borne so largely by the Motherland." With the appointment of the Permanent Joint Defence Board of Canada and the United States, which involves defence by sea, land and air, "we must assume our full share of responsibility in this regard." The grand total of Canadian naval personnel was now 14,387 and there were 155 ships in the naval establishment. Before the end of the coming fiscal year 100 ships and 10,000 men would be added. The Minister also announced that a Canadian naval college would be established (later it was said the location would be Victoria, B.C.). Destroyers and possibly cruisers would be built in Canadian shipyards.

To Revise Law on Quebec Electoral Voting Lists

WILL ADOPT BASIS OF DOMINION ELECTIONS IN THIS PROVINCE

Quebec Government is moving toward sweeping reform of its antiquated electoral machinery — according to Campbell Carroll, writing in the Montreal Gazette.

This is important news not only to all qualified male voters of this province but to its women as well, who will be entitled to cast their ballots in any provincial general election or by-election from January 1, 1941, on. Victor Bedard, chief provincial electoral officer in the Montreal district, intimated that all future elections in this province will have their legal basis on Dominion electoral laws. This would obviate the necessity in this province of statutory revision of the electoral lists every two years with all its attendant costs of staff, printing and rental of premises to say nothing of the time and effort lost in retracting electors who have moved in the interval.

There is no such thing as revision of lists in Dominion elections. What happens is that 49 days before voting day there is a house-to-house canvass to determine citizens eligible to vote, the check being made by two officers of different political allegiances.

The house-to-house canvass offers the best guarantees in every respect. The two canvassers check each other as to qualified voters in any constituency, and the voter is told exactly where to cast his ballot.

"There is only one real solution for all our troubles, and the name thereof is Peace."

Public Petition on Closing of Saloons

Cushing W. — This locality was canvassed last week by a deputation with a petition to be sent to the Provincial Government requesting the Sunday closing of saloons in the province. The attitude of the community in the question was expressed by the almost unanimous signing of the petition.

B'burg Record in Poppy Sales

Brownburg — The local Branch of the Canadian Legion has released its report of the poppy campaign in Brownburg. A total of $148.18 was realized from the sale of poppies and $57.75 from wreaths, making a grand total of $205.93. This figure constitutes a record for the locality, and the achievement was due in the main to the energy of High School girls, under the direction of Principal D. Stanforth. The care exercised by the girls in preparing no doubt contributed to their success. The names of the canvassers are — Misses Jean Kennedy, Mary Kennedy, Dora Gunn, Marien Scudamore, Rhoda Wilson, Gwyneth Vowles, Jean Birch, Audrey Thorburn, Doris White and Vera Bourne. Due to pressure of work the members of the Branch were unable to take such an active part in sales this year as they did in the past, and they are anxious, therefore, to pay public tribute to the magnificent way in which the girls undertook their task.

The customary parade and ceremony at the memorial had to be omitted this year, but a short service was conducted at the memorial by the Rev. S. J. Pike and the Rev. J. R. Simpson.

To Improve Course In Domestic Science

A departmental grant of $1,000 will enable the Lachute High School commissioners to extend the facilities of the Domestic Science course, which has merited the approval of scholars and parents alike since its adoption on the curriculum.

During the Christmas recess it is planned to effect changes in the school kitchen, increasing the floor space, laying Battleship linoleum and erecting cupboards. The government grant will also be applied to the purchase of new equipment, including a wood range, an electric refrigerator, enamel-top tables and two electric sewing machines.

I'm telling you, you have to hand it to these people. They can take anything and come up asking for more."

On October 4th, enemy fliers dropped hundreds of incendiaries and although the night was stormy and wet they burned fiercely. The Canucks extinguished many but those not endangering property were allowed to burn themselves out. They also witnessed the working of the famous "Molotov Breadbaskets".

He tells of spending a morning in an air-raid shelter dressed only in pyjamas while some "nifty" dog-fights went on overhead. Later Powell witnessed a terrific air-battle, which he describes in the following words:

"What a terrific air-battle! What a collection of planes! A sight you see once in two lifetimes. You can certainly believe all you hear about the Hurricanes and Spitfires, they are magnificent! We saw Hun planes on fire and crashing to earth, Jerry pilots bailing out and whatnot! What a sight! It's amazing — and a little horrifying when you think of it!"

A pleasant interlude for the boys of Powell's section is an occasional meal at a pub graced with the intriguing name, "The Leg of Mutton and Cauliflower," near a town noted for its Downs, its horses and a particular kind of salts!

Editor Has A Problem

From the space-buyer of a big advertising agency comes the enquiry this week: "Advertising Manager, The Watchman.—Please advise whether you are agreeable to running telephone and mail order advertising of a Montreal departmental store."

The Watchman has turned down these offers before, just as it has consistently refused to handle liquor advertising. . . . But this time, we stop and think.

We think of the civic-spirited merchants who, through thick and thin, have carried their advertising in our pages. Year in and year out they advertise. And in fairness to them we have loudly discouraged our readers from buying out of town. We have drummed the shop-at-home theme as ardently and as frequently as we have written "pay your subscription" to fill some vacant corner in our paper.

Then we think of the merchants who never advertise (and they are many!) Week after week our national advertisers boost the products they handle; and they have never co-operated with an inch of personal advertising. . . . We think of the stores from which we have been purchasing for nearly half a century, yet which buy neither advertising nor printing from The Watchman. . . . And we think of these merchants, profiting by our exhortations to buy-at-home and our policy of withholding mail order advertising. Through our loyalty to the merchants who advertise, we find we are helping those of their competitors who consider it idle charity to patronize the home town print-shop.

That's our problem this week. "Please advise, are you agreeable to running telephone and mail order advertising?" At this stage we want to hear from our merchants — the ones who don't advertise. If the answer is "No", perhaps they can give us some good reason.

J. F. Lavigne, Lachute Notary, Dies Suddenly of Heart Attack

A GENIAL FIGURE, WON WIDE FRIENDSHIP THROUGH PROMINENCE IN COUNTY POLITICS

Late J. Félicien Lavigne

Served Overseas in the Last World War

All ranks of the community, both French and English, were represented at the funeral rites held Tuesday morning in Ste. Anastasie Church for the late J. Félicien Lavigne. Known throughout the county, Mr. Lavigne had practiced the profession of Notary Public for many years in this town. His death was sudden, resulting from angina pectoris which seized him early Saturday morning, and to which he succumbed within an hour. Born in Lachute July 4th, 1895, he was 45 years of age.

The youngest son of the late Joseph Lavigne and Marceline Lalonde, he received his early education at Ste. Therese Seminary. He then became a student in the University of Montreal, from which he graduated with the degree of B.A. in 1915, afterwards taking up the study of Law, but before completing his course he joined the 1st Canadian Tank Battalion and went overseas. After the war he resumed his law studies and in due course was admitted to the practice of his profession as a Notary Public, establishing his office here in Lachute.

He was a staunch friend and admirer of the late Rt. Hon. Sir George H. Perley, for whom he had been an ardent campaigner in the elections of this riding. Himself a candidate for provincial honors, he had suffered defeat with good grace, remaining always loyal to the Conservative cause.

He was a supporter of many public movements. A member of the 100 Club, Curling Club, the Knights of Columbus and the Canadian Legion, he was well liked for his friendliness and his ready wit.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife, Jeanne Lavigne, and young daughter, Marcelle, his brother, Dr. Albert Lavigne, and two sisters, Mrs. Omer Paquette and Miss Jeanne Lavigne.

The funeral, held at 10 a.m. Tuesday from the parish church, was largely attended. Mass was sung by Rev. Father Legaré, of St. Sauveur, assisted by Rev. P. Labelle and Rev. J. Vaillancourt. The Revs. J. L. Rodrigue and E. Corbell celebrated mass at the side altar. Singing was under the direction of Rev. E. Ladouceur, of Ste. Therese, and Miss Juliette Rodrigue was organist.

Fellow members of Argenteuil Branch 70 of the Canadian Legion formed a guard of honor, marching on each side of the hearse.

A profusion of flowers gave mute evidence of the popularity he enjoyed in professional and community circles. The remains were borne to the West-End Catholic Cemetery. Pall-bearers were—Geo. Héon, Gaëtan Valois, J. R. Charron, M. Vermette, Dr. J. Caron and L. Labelle. The cortege was led by H. St. Onge.

Boy Scouts Need Discarded Toys

Boy Scouts of the Lachute Troop are collecting damaged and discarded toys, which they are busy repairing at their workshop at the Farmers' Supply Company premises, Foundry Street. These playthings will be delivered at Christmas to underprivileged boys and girls of the community. The Scouts usually send a parcel of toys and candies, also, to the West.

Any householders having toys or games to donate, kindly phone Troop Leader Fred Assaly, No. 155, or leave parcel at Farmers' Supply.

St. Sauveur Feud Brings Litigants Again to Court

LACHUTE COUNSEL ARGUES APPEAL OF EX-MAYOR ON DAMAGE SUIT

In Court of Appeal at Montreal last Monday Dr. J. Octavien Lapointe, former mayor of St. Sauveur, appealed against a judgment awarding Edward Foissy, one of the councillors, $200 damages for defamatory remarks made at a council meeting held at St. Sauveur in October 1938.

According to one observer there are two "clans" in the village, and they alternate in electing the mayor and councillors. The "ins" and the "outs" are perpetually at war.

The episode which engaged the attention of the King's Bench ensued in 1938, following the building of a waterworks system. One of the "clans" wanted the service extended outside the village to supply the Nymark Hotel. The other side was against. Dr. J. Octavien Lapointe, leader of the "outs" at the time (he having lost in the mayoralty in 1936) went to a council meeting on October 26th, 1938, and secured permission to address the Council. He addressed Councillor Ed. Foissy, and referring to the building of the water works plant, commented that Foissy's nephews and a brother-in-law had worked on the project to their benefit. Foissy retorted that his relatives had benefited no more than others. Dr. Lapointe is then alleged to have said that Foissy had "dirty" hands in the matter of the construction. Action was entered, and Mr. Justice Alfred Forest in the Superior Court gave judgment in favor of Foissy against Dr. Lapointe for $200 and costs. Dr. Lapointe appealed.

L. L. Legault, K.C., of this town, was counsel for the appellant, and claimed it was a matter of "clan" warfare. There was continual bickering. Just previous to entry of the present action, said Mr. Legault, Dr. Lapointe had brought Foissy and another councillor named Aubry into court for having voted for a project in which they had been personally interested, and the court had condemned each to a fine of $25. That case had been repealed too. So, argued Mr. Legault, the present trouble was all part of a greater whole.

J. A. Beaulieu, K.C., counsel for Foissy, said the expression "dirty hands" was commonly used in an electoral campaign. "My hands are

Transformation In Class-Room

GRADE I KIDDIES FIND EXCITING CHANGES

When Grade I of Lachute High School was taxed to capacity with an enrolment of over 50 pupils, it was decided on recommendation of Inspector-General E. Giles, of the Protestant School Commission, to divide the grade into two separate classes and engage a new teacher. The problem of accommodating the extra group was solved by partitioning the large classroom. Cottingham Supply Company, local contractors, were requested to execute the job overnight — which they did. The partition was substantially constructed, and the kiddies arriving to take their customary places next morning found two rooms instead of one.

Miss Marjorie Walker, Grade I teacher, turned half of her young pupils over to Miss Kathleen Morrison, of Arundel, who was engaged as teacher by the school board.

"clean, you wash your hands," was a common expression from the hustings. It was different however, when the storm of political passion had subsided, and it was used at a council meeting. He contended the judgment should stand.

The four judges hearing the appeal, took the matter under deliberation.

Court Hearing on Highway Fatality

TRIAL SET FOR ASSIZES, PROBABLY IN DECEMBER

Preliminary enquete in the case against Charles Anderson, 18-year-old motorist, held criminally responsible in the death of Sarah McQuaig of Vankleek Hill, was held Monday at District Magistrate's Court in St. Jerome, Justice D. Lalande presiding. The charge arises out of an accident at Grenville on Sunday evening, Nov. 3rd, in which the 17-year-old victim was fatally hurt and 11 others were injured.

Four witnesses were examined by Philippe Valois, acting as Crown Prosecutor. These included Edwin Pridham of Grenville who was among the first at the scene of the accident; Constable H. Jones, who investigated; Polidor Girard, who was driving home to Brownburg when his car was hit by Anderson's machine going west at Ogilvie's Corner; and Gordon Kerr, a passenger in Anderson's car.

Legal counsel for the defense was Paul Smith, Montreal attorney.

The case was set for Criminal Assizes, likely at St. Jerome during the coming month. Anderson meanwhile is at liberty on bond.

17,000 used medicine bottles of the desired size were collected by the Boy Scouts of Saint John, N.B., for the hospital unit of the R.C.A.M.C. of that district.

Bank of Montreal Report Reveals War-Time Strength

ASSETS OF $961,334,955 SHOW ONLY MODERATE DECLINE FROM ALL-TIME HIGH MARK

After a year of war-time conditions, the annual statement of the Bank of Montreal reflects again the strength and solidarity of an institution which for 123 years has been in the forefront of Canadian finance. Assets of $961,334,955 show some contraction as compared with the previous report, when an all-time record of $1,025,508,367 was established — due in part to transactions of a special nature, as was explained at the annual meeting of shareholders — but showing a substantial increase over the total of $874,256,828 reported in 1938.

The profits for the year, after making appropriations to Contingent Reserve Fund and provision for bad and doubtful debts and Federal and Provincial taxes, were $3,435,941, as compared with $3,462,446 in 1939. The increase in the bank's contributions to public revenues is indicated by an increase in Federal and Provincial taxes from $1,188,413 to $1,927,824, or $739,411. The profits are the equivalent of 4.5% on the capital, rest and undivided profits, showing no appreciable change.

Strong Liquid Position

The profits are the equivalent of strongly maintained. Quickly available resources, totalling $663,185,436, show some contraction, largely as the result of the reduction of holdings of government and other bonds and debentures from $517,171,255 to $461,827,040, but are still at the high ratio of 75% of all liabilities to the public.

The bank's part in financing the expansion of business activities throughout the country is reflected in an increase of over $13,000,000 in loans "to manufacturers, farmers, merchants and others," at $233,560,368, compared with $220,548,911. Loans to provincial and municipal governments, including school districts of $35,313,063, compare with $36,712,818.

Deposits, at $848,865,349, compare with $914,909,050; the reduction in deposits can be taken as a result of the withdrawal of the special transactions already referred to and public participation in government war financing.

Profit and Loss Account

After payment of the usual dividends and appropriation of $500,000 for bank premises, $55,941 was added to the balance of profit and loss compared with $82,446 in 1939; the total balance in this account is now $1,321,642.

Following are salient features of the statement, which is for the year to October 31 and is published in the bank's usual "easily understandable" form:

	1940	1939
Total Resources	$961,334,955	$1,025,508,367

Part of School Is Rented To Aid Building Fund

The lack of funds which caused abandonment of construction on the Hawkesbury high school is to be remedied by renting the completed ground floor to a manufacturing firm. Mayor Leandre Maisonneuve has announced that negotiations between company and the town council, which have lasted for some time, have been concluded.

Allowances were made in the plans of the building for additions as funds permit. Work was halted after completion of the basement floor when finances ran low, but the rent obtained from the firm will be added to the construction funds.

Occupation by the manufacturers is effective immediately and operations are expected to begin about the first of next year.

No Sunday Milk Delivery in Ottawa for Past 40 Years

ONLY EIGHT OTHER CITIES ON CONTINENT HAVE 6-DAY SERVICE

The possibility of selling milk in larger quantities, in an effort to reduce the number of deliveries and lessen cost, was referred to the executive for consideration by the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association annual convention recently.

F. W. Jones, of the Ottawa Dairy Company, said whether a six-day-a-week milk delivery system would ever materialize in Toronto depended on how quickly it could be established and how it was introduced.

Ottawa had had no Sunday deliveries for 40 years and citizens there seemed satisfied. There were only eight other cities on the North American continent where there were no milk deliveries on Sunday.

Limitation of deliveries to six days a week would lower overhead charges from 1 1/2 per cent to 2 per cent, he said.

airport for further foot and car drill, being entertained at lunch by F. H. Wheeler at the Grey Rocks Inn. The Ste. Agathe section is commanded by Kenneth W. Harrison, of Lauretude Inn, while F. H. Wheeler is commander of the St. Jovite section. Drills will be held weekly with instructions in first aid and target practice.

The Show Goes On; Firemen's New Year's Ball As Usual

Realizing that civic services must go on in spite of war and its demands, Lachute Fire Brigade at their last regular assembly and practice decided the annual Firemen's Ball would be held as usual. A committee was appointed to discuss decorations for the Auditorium, and other arrangements. The dance is being held on New Year's Eve, which falls this year on Tuesday. Lowe's Orchestra will be engaged to provide music, and ladies of the Loyal Orange Benevolent Association will attend to the catering.

Scouts of the 2nd Saltash Troop, England, have their own fire-fighting unit, a trailer pump drawn by the Scoutmaster's car. They have on several occasions given valuable aid in fighting fires following German bombing attacks.

More Communities Affected By Govt. Rentals Control

Rent control was extended during October to several more communities where increased industrial activity has caused an intensified housing shortage. Studies of rent conditions in other towns and cities are also being made while Ottawa officials are also investigating new housing needs.

Meanwhile private building is continuing at top speed in many centres and several comparatively large building developments are in prospect. Greatest demand is in the small house field where purchase can be arranged under the National Housing Act which limits single unit loans to a top of $4,000. Because of this there is widespread demand for materials suitable for use in this type of construction and a growing interest in small home design.

Private small home building projects now under way in several parts of Canada are illustrating the benefits of factory-fabricated materials for exterior surfaces and interior finishes. Since much of the building will be done during the winter months, "dry products" which can be applied, regardless of weather conditions, are much in demand. There is also the question of labor to be considered and projects requiring the services of only one type of labor are being given the preference.

A large number of the small homes completed during the summer and fall months were of brick or brick veneer construction, but this type of building does not permit of speedy construction nor of steady building during the cold winter months. It also requires insulation as an additional application. On large scale developments, and on single unit construction, as well, there has been a growing preference for balloon frame construction, utilizing

AN ADMINISTRATION WITH SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Quebec Roads Department may take another tip from the Department in Ontario, where highway administration is invariably miles ahead in paved surface and steps ahead in sound policy.

Ontario is already announcing the sale of 1941 vehicle permits; more than that, the Highways Department is officially advertising these permits. "Secure yours early and avoid the last minute rush" is the opening theme of a current newspaper ad; but reading on, one finds a subtle sales talk that would do credit to a veteran toothpaste campaigner. We quote, for the exasperation of our readers in Quebec:

"There has been no increase in the fees for permits or drivers' licenses. The fees charged in Ontario are still lower than in any other province of Canada or in the neighboring states.

Table of comparison of fees in Ontario and two neighboring provinces and states for three popular makes of passenger cars:

Car	Ontario	Quebec	Manitoba	N. Y.	Michigan
No. 1—4 cyl.	$ 2.00	$17.80	$14.00	$12.00	$ 8.40
No. 2—6 cyl.	7.00	22.00	16.50	15.00	10.50
No. 3—8 cyl.	10.00	21.30	16.50	14.50	10.15

"Ontario's highway system is the largest in the Dominion..." We could continue, but of course you have interrupted to enquire why Quebec should appear highest in the above listing. Yes, why? Between bumps and toll bridges, we're asking you.

The advertisement, incidentally, concludes on a human note. (Quote) "Special request to motorists: When driving along the highways these increasingly cold days and nights, give our Soldier Boys a ride."

PASS UP PRECEDENTS

In response to an appeal that soldiers in active service ranks be given free transportation on railways, the Hon. J. L. Ralston, defence minister, has replied that this is without precedent.

Even Mr. Ralston must know that this is a most feeble excuse for refusing the enlisted men, whose pay does not permit such luxuries as travel on the people's railway.

In this statement he is not entirely correct, for in Britain leave for soldiers is accompanied by free transportation to their destination. If precedent must be followed, here is precedent.

It is true that in some phases of the war precedent is lacking as Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France can witness and the Balkan states may soon agree.

We do not recall any precedent for Lieutenant Robert Davies and his engineering squad which removes time bombs at the danger of being blown to bits at any moment. Nor is there an established precedent for a mad rush to air raid shelters when enemy planes come overhead with their cargoes of death.

Hang precedent in this case, say we, and if this be treason, let the most be made of it. No one is going to complain about lack of precedent or on any other score if those in the C.A.S.F. are granted the right to travel without charge to them on the railways of this dominion.

Challenge of the Press

"What are you, the public, going to do with the world we have to write about?" — was the answer a newspaperman gave when asked "What are you going to do for news when the war is over?" The public, the people, are news. What happens to them is news. Behind the greatest headlines, whether it be war, an earthquake, a flood, a Royal visit, are people. From the humble homeless to reigning monarchs there is a story that people create and the press publishes and gives back to the people.

To Canadians what happens in Canada is of utmost importance. Canada is dear to them because it is their homeland. The people are Canada. What they do, the way they live, moulds this nation. It depends upon what you and I are, and what we do daily, that will shape the destiny of this young and great nation and make the news for our papers to print. We can be "Public Enemy No. 1" in our nation and the headlines by creating destruction, broken homes, panic and hate. Or we can be "Nation Builder No. 1", creating united homes, by being panic-proof ourselves, by being honest in business and by simply loving our neighbor as ourselves. What you and I are, multiplied a million times, so is our nation. We each have a part, for we are each a part of Canada.

What we see and read in the paper depends on us. The challenge is to us. "What are you, the public, going to do with the world we have to write about?" — asks the press. What is our answer?

"It is a mathematical certainty that Germany will lose."

FLOWERS FOR OTTAWA

The Department of Public Information at Ottawa has had its quota of criticism — mostly from editors running shy of meatier victims. But we hand the laurels this week to a product of this Department, by which Ottawa proves itself a match for German propaganda in at least one line of publicity.

We have just received advance copies of a pamphlet, "The Two Ways of Life." Pictures tell the story, but there is sufficient text in seven different languages to make the illustrations explicit.

The two ways of life are the dictatorships and the democracies, and in the frontispiece of this booklet the opposing themes of tolerance and intolerance are vividly presented—the latter with a page from Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and the former with quotations from three democratic leaders, His Majesty King George, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King and Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

Topical comparisons are contained through the pages, forcefully illustrating the contrast in government, religion, education, politics, the press, electoral practices, etc., in the dictator and the democratic countries.

Designed principally for circulation in Canada, the title of this brochure in French is "Eux et Nous", and besides the two official Canadian tongues the explanatory text appears in German, Ukrainian, Polish, Italian and Norwegian.

A very creditable work, both in its editorial content and in its technical arrangement.

TALE OF TWO CITIES

London always offered an interesting contrast to Paris. Both were mighty cities, but most visitors thought of the British capital as sedate and of the French capital as gay. London, for all its size, gave the impression of insularity; Paris was cosmopolitan and at home to everybody.

In appearance the two cities also differed completely. London is often spoken of as dingy. It was never that, except in its slum areas. But its stateliness was sombre. Paris was more airy and more colorful. Its architecture suggested elegance; its sidewalk cafes advertised leisure; everywhere in its street life there were verve and animation. Nowhere was the contrast more pronounced than among the people at play. In Hyde Park, Kensington Gardens, and up the Thames toward Richmond holiday seekers took their pleasures gravely. In the Gardens of the Tuileries they were orderly enough, too, but quick and easy laughter was never absent. It never occurred to the French that they could learn to be sad.

Today the contrast between the cities is greater than ever. Wide areas of London lie in ruins. Paris is practically untouched. The streets of London are pocked by bomb craters; the workers toil to their offices and factories over piles of rubble, and some of the city's noblest monuments are marred or blown to bits. The monuments of Paris, largely dedicated to past victories, are all unscathed. Death rains down continually from the skies over London. The skies above Paris are empty and serene. Anyone can walk from end to end of Paris with no danger of sudden destruction. London nights are deafening with the roar of warfare which means annihilation for some citizens each hour. Paris sleeps in peace. Yet no one in the world doubts which is the deadlier city of the two.

"Ottawa Spotlight"

By M. McDougall

In another eight months, C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply announced, the present industrialization in Canada would be at its "peak." At the end of that time Canada should be producing the practical maximum of war materials of which the Dominion is capable. About 850 million dollars worth of war orders have been placed by Canada and Britain through the Ministry of Munitions and Supply. The joint investment of the British and Canadian governments in war supply plants in Canada has reached a total of 255 million dollars. Canada will shortly be manufacturing practically all kinds of guns, and the plants are already turning out or will shortly be manufacturing a wide and varied list of munitions and war equipment. Tank production will start early in 1941, except for engines, which will have to be imported. The construction of aircraft is expanding rapidly, but the growth is to some extent dependent on obtain machine tools from the States. There is an increasing output of planes from Canadian factories for Britain, as well as training planes for the joint air training schools. To create further efficiency in the vast organization, for the production of war supplies, a War-time Requirements Board has been established to "plan the most productive and direct use of available supplies, plants and facilities and arrange priorities."

The Minister announced that contracts for the construction of 18 large merchant vessels had been placed with Canadian shipyards. He also said that in the interest of war industry a "freeze" order had been issued on models for automobiles, railway cars, radios and numerous household appliances.

U.S. Dollars Urgently Needed

Many Canadians do not seem to realize that, with certain exceptions, it is against the law for them to hold foreign currencies — which of course, includes United States dollars, so urgently needed to buy war materials abroad. It is the function of the Foreign Exchange Control Board to gather in all foreign exchange arising out of our exports, tourist expenditures in Canada, and from miscellaneous sources and release it for purchases of aeroplanes, guns and other much needed equipment, principally in the United States. If any Canadian has United States dollars, or any other foreign exchange in the form of bank accounts, bills, cheques, drafts, or similar instruments in his possession, without the permission of the Board, he is not only evading the law and leaving himself open to prosecution, but he is hindering Canada's war effort.

A new recruit, on being taken up for his first flight, remarked to the plane pilot: "I say, it's a bit cold up here, isn't it? Can't you turn that fan off?"

"If there's a newer and better way to get catsup out of a bottle than by spanking it on the bottom", moans the editor of the Peterboro Examiner, "then we'd like to know about it". We can't help you, mister; and it's just as futile as trying to get obedience out of your offspring that way.

NEW ICE CREAM FOR DIABETICS

A new ice cream for diabetics has been produced at the University of Illinois containing about 40 per cent as much sugar as the standard product.

Scientists at the institution substituted a mixture principally of milk proteins for the glycerine used previously in efforts to freeze a low-sugar ice-cream. These proteins came from fresh skimmed milk and reduced the glycerine to 4 per cent. Flavors produced satisfactorily were pineapple, pistachio, lemon, orange, mint, apricot, vanilla and chocolate.

One out of each 260 persons in the United States is diabetic, the scientists estimated, and hence might receive benefit from such a product.

A number of British Scout Troops have suffered the loss of their meeting places "through enemy action." In one recent week two Troop Headquarters were struck by German bombs and reduced to ashes.

WEEKLY HEALTH ARTICLE

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health

RELIEF POSSIBLE FOR HEADACHE VICTIMS

Occasionally, successful treatment of disorders may result from totally different methods. A few months ago, migraine headache was shown to be successfully treated in many instances with vitamin B-1 or thiamin.

Recently, Dr. G. E. Drewyer, of Flint, Michigan, reported successful treatment of migraine headache with chondroitin, a substance made from cartilage.

Headaches may become so troublesome and painful as to make it impossible for individuals to carry on their work. In many instances, they must remain in bed until the pain is relieved.

These severe types of headache may develop in the condition known as migraine in which there is not only headache but also often sickness to the stomach and vomiting.

Just exactly what produces migraine headache is not known, although it has been suggested that they may occur in individuals who are sensitive to some food or to some other substance with which they come in contact.

In many instances, headaches much like those peculiar to migraine occur, for which no apparent cause can be found.

Dr. Drewyer has made a study of fifty patients with these types of headache whom he has treated. Many of these patients had been receiving calcium preparations or glandular extracts, such as thyroid. In addition, during an attack they were given treatment with such drugs as ergotamine tartrate.

The entire fifty patients were given chondroitin. However, only thirty of these have been under treatment for more than six months. In a great majority of these thirty patients, before treatment was started the attacks were so severe as to completely prostrate the individuals, and the attacks occurred as often as once a week or more.

Physicians gave four capsules of the preparation three times a day after meals. A number of the patients who were benefited by it have now taken this preparation daily over a period of more than two years. Of these thirty patients studied, more than two-thirds were completely relieved of their symptoms; eight have been relieved partly, while one-fifth have obtained no relief at all. However, those patients who were not relieved by the cartilage preparation were benefited by the ergotamine tartrate injection into a muscle.

Of the other twenty patients, the results obtained were about the same as with the thirty treated over the longer period of time.

This preparation is not meant to be given to give relief to the patient after the headache has developed but, rather, is suggested for use to keep the headaches from occurring. Its exact action is not, as yet, determined. However, Dr. Drewyer believes that it is a valuable preparation to aid in the prevention of migraine types of headaches.

Of course, when an individual develops migraine or any type of headache, it is necessary that a careful examination be carried out to determine, if possible, just what is producing the difficulty. Sometimes, a hidden infection in the teeth, tonsils or sinuses may be located which, when cleared up, leads to complete relief of the difficulty. In some cases, sensitivity to foods may be discovered and when these foods are omitted from the diet, the symptoms vanish. In certain instances, some disturbances of the eyesight of the sinuses, or of the glands of internal secretion may be the underlying cause for repeated severe headaches. If no cause for the condition is discovered after a study, the protective measures employing drugs of various types may be advisable, using other drugs to give relief from the headaches when they develop.

No individual with repeated headaches need suffer the continued pain, for relief is possible.

COUNTY HEALTH UNIT

Under auspices of the County Health Unit, a lecture on tuberculosis was given in the Lachute Auditorium on Wednesday evening by the "Committee of Defence Against Tuberculosis."

Over 200 people were present to hear Dr. Geo. Migneault, who is a specialist in this disease, chairman of the Medical Board of Sacred Heart Hospital, and a member of the Committee.

Dr. Migneault dealt with tuberculosis in a very practical manner, illustrating his lecture with slides showing the different aspects of the lung infection. A series of motion picture films were shown following the lecture.

The Health Unit expresses the hope that everyone will profit by the advice given and assist the "Committee of Defence Against Tuberculosis" in their efforts to combat this terrible scourge.

Curé Lacourse presided at the meeting and fittingly thanked the speaker.

PRESBYTERIAN W.M.S. AT ST. ANDREWS EAST

St. Andrews E. — The November meeting of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. P. Bradley on Wednesday of last week. The attendance was good. The address for the day was given by the pastor, Rev. D. McMillan. His subject was "Why I believe in Missions", and he showed plainly that discipleship of Christ meant missionary effort.

It was a very splendid address and one which will no doubt create greater missionary enthusiasm in the organization.

The offertory solo was sung by Miss Hamilton, whose clear soprano voice is well adapted to solo work.

Arrangements were made to send the usual boxes of Christmas cheer to the inmates of the Old People's Home.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, De-nounced" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist throughout the world on Sunday December 1st.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 45:22. "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. . . Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." (Ephesians 6:10,16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christians must take up arms against error at home and abroad. They must grapple with sin in themselves and in others, and continue this warfare until they have finished their course. Christian experience teaches faith in the right and disbelief in the wrong. It bids us work the more earnestly in times of persecution, because then our labor is more needed." (Page 29).

REV. H. COUSENS, BROCKVILLE, IS GUEST SPEAKER AT PRESBYT. Y.P.S. BANQUET

The Presbyterian Young People's Society held their annual banquet on Thursday night, Nov. 21st, in the church hall. Seventy-five persons, including members and guests, sat down to the turkey supper.

Afterwards toasts were proposed to the King, by the president; to the Church by Miss Eileen Beatty; and to the guests by Mr. David Morrison. Mr. Jim Duncan gave a fine exhibition of singing in the cowboy style, accompanying on his guitar, and later in the evening Mr. Owen Todd, as guest singer, favored the gathering with two beautiful selections. Many old favorites followed, in a general sing-song, with Miss Helen McFaul at the piano.

The guest speaker of the evening, Rev. Henry Cousens, was introduced by Miss Jean Black. Mr. Cousens gave an address which will long be remembered by those who heard it. He discussed the relationship of the church to the present war, and said that everyone who is loyal to his church and country will realize that the church is in the front lines, and that through our faith in it will come the power to win the cause for which we are fighting.

Old acquaintances were renewed later between Mr. and Mrs. Cousens and members of the church and the Society.

Regular Y.P.S. Gathering

The Presbyterian Young People's Society held their weekly meeting on Wednesday evening. As a result of the bad weather, only about a dozen members were present. The principal discussion of the evening was the concluding of business of the banquet. No entertainment was provided for the evening, but a good program is expected for next week.

EVANGELISTS AT BROWNSBURG CLOSE CAMPAIGN WITH SERVICES NEXT SUNDAY

Brownsburg — The Nygren-Wedge Gospel meetings held in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church for the past ten days, come to a close this Sunday with two services, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Following are the subjects announced: Morning service, — "A Forgotten Word"; evening, — "Another Blackout After Hitler's Blackouts." At the evening service Mr. Wedge will sing a number of solos, among others, "He's the Fairest of Ten Thousand to My Soul," written by Mrs. James Simpson, the pastor's wife. The closing message by the evangelist is of a startling nature and contains food for thought, according to Rev. James R. Simpson, the pastor.

Why expect men to unite on religion when they can't on anything else?

Poppy Day Campaigners

In addition to the list published last week, due credit is extended to the following collectors who covered the Mille Isles District — Mrs. George Woods, Mrs. G. Ryan, Mrs. Wesley Dawson, Miss G. Dawson and Mrs. J. W. Maxwell.

In Arundel, Mr. A. K. Campbell, school principal with his three teachers, organized the collection by the school children and exceeded previous collections.

Miss Horner, teacher at Weir, most capably handled that district.

A Call to Arms

Oh, loyal sons of Canada,
You're testing time is here;
To bear the arms of battle,
The call comes loud and clear.
So bolster up your courage,
Don't falter by the way;
Your Country needs your service
So come without delay.

The fight is on, my comrades,
The same as days of yore;
We're fighting for our freedom
As we never did before.
So come my fellow countrymen
And be like loyal sons,
To show those haughty Germans,
What we do when we have guns.

Our fathers fought before us,
For reasons just like these;
So do not act the coward,
And get shakey at the knees.
But fight like men and heroes,
And show what YOU can do
When you really want and have to,
Come and join us, will you please?

Our homes hang in the balance,
Our freedom is at stake;
We know what we are fighting for
We're making no mistake.
We ask you now to help us,
Do not fail us now my friends;
For help must come from somewhere,
Or else it is the end.

Pleasure Trips to the U.S.A.

Canada is urgently in need of aeroplanes, aeroplane engines and parts and other vital war requirements. Most of such materials must be purchased in the United States and must be paid for in cash, in United States dollars. To secure these, less important calls upon Canada's available supply of foreign exchange, such as pleasure travel, must be subordinated. That is why the Government has asked Canadians to forego pleasure visits to the United States. It is not that Canada is spending less money in the United States than heretofore. As a matter of fact, our expenditures are running to record levels. The question is one of deciding on the relative importance of the purposes to which our foreign exchange resources may be used. Obviously aeroplanes and other munitions of war

A resident of Canada must have a permit to take Canadian or American dollars to the United States. The Foreign Exchange Control Board supplies United States dollars and gives permits to take them out of Canada for legitimate business trips, travel for health reasons and in certain other special cases. Otherwise, however, Canadians desirous of visiting the United States for pleasure will not be permitted to take out of Canada either Canadian or American dollars.

All parents whose kiddies have "outgrown" their toys, or lost interest in any of their playthings, are urged to hand such items to the Boy Scouts, who will fix them up attractively to gladden the hearts of less fortunate children at Christmas.

—With the need of cheer so evident in the poorer homes, and with the Scouts' organization ready and willing to undertake this fine effort, it becomes all citizens to encourage the work and give every assistance they can.

Everything is funny as long as it is happening to somebody else.

HINTS FOR HOMEBODIES

By JESSIE ALLEN BROWN
Specially written for Readers of The Watchman.

THE MERCHANT MARINE

Recent events have made us all proud of the Navy. When you live in a Port city you are even more conscious of it because of the presence of so many sailors. Before the War you could tell the ship they were off, from the name-bands on their caps, but there are no names on their hats these days. News of the ships is a more personal thing on the Coast. You may have seen the ship which figures in the news, or at least have heard it was in Port. You may not know any of the officers or the crew but your friends do. When a ship is lost the men lose all their belongings. The radio informs us that the officers have to re-fit themselves. If that is so, it does not seem just. There does not seem to be a clear understanding as to what comprises the Merchant Marine, or as the King calls it, the Merchant Navy. As I understand it, the Merchant Marine is any ship, which is neither a pleasure boat, nor a part of the Navy. We need to give great thanks to the courage and daring of the Merchant Navy.

MONEY-MAKING IDEAS

How to find a new way of making money for war purposes, is the problem, all over the land. Here are two ideas being used. The I.O.D.E. in New Brunswick is raising funds for a Spitfire to present to their own Lord Beaverbrook. To help raise the funds, the Admiral Beatty Hotel has donated the chairs which the King and Queen used at luncheon and tickets on a draw are being sold, with the King's chair as first prize and the Queen's as second. The Duke of Rothesay Chapter makes the Christmas wreaths for the largest store in Saint John. The last method appeals to me as it is a definite constructive method. I am mentioning this early as some of you may be able to use it.

FOOD COSTS

The Labour Gazette of August 1940, gives some very interesting statistics on the cost of living during various years. I wish I could give them all to you. They give the cost of many staple foods, in July, of eighteen of the years from 1900 to 1940. Prices rose sharply through the war and were high in 1918, but they were much higher and were at the peak in 1920. I haven't the space to give the figures for all the foods but the total cost of the foods listed, in 1914 was $7.42; in 1918 was $13.00; in 1920 was $16.84. Prices dropped until in 1933 they were $6.95, which was exactly their price in 1905. In 1938 they were $8.57; in 1939 they were $8.07; and in 1940 they were $7.70. So we cannot complain too much about the rise in food prices due to the War. They also list the average cost of staple foods in the different Provinces. All through these years Quebec and Prince Edward Island have been the cheapest places to live and British Columbia always the most expensive. Here is the average cost by Provinces in July, 1940.

Nova Scotia	$8.86
New Brunswick	8.90
Ontario	8.70
Saskatchewan	8.34
Prince Edward Island	8.24
Quebec	8.11
Manitoba	8.72
Alberta	8.65
British Columbia	9.55

PICKLED BEETS WITH HORSE RADISH

2 Cups cooked beets, finely chopped, 1/2 cup horseradish, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon celery salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup vinegar.

Bring the vinegar to a boil, then add the seasonings and pour over the chopped beets. Mix thoroughly and seal. This is a pickle which can be made at the present time and can be used to fill up the already emptying pickle bottles.

ENGLISH MONKEY

2 Cups breadcrumbs, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs beaten, 1 cup mild cheese, cut in thin pieces, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper or cayenne.

Mix the ingredients and let stand until the crumbs are soaked. Cook in a double boiler or over slow heat until the mixture has thickened and the custard set, stirring frequently.

These days when there are so many sewing meetings, it is nice to have something for supper that can be prepared ahead of time. This mixture may be made in the morning and then cooked while you are setting the table.

No genuine observer can decide otherwise than that the homes of a nation are the bulwarks of personal and national safety. —Holland

Follow Accepted Form in Signing Christmas Cards

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

Before you order your Christmas cards you should know what form of name is proper for you to use on them. You should be sure when it is or is not correct to use your name with its title.

Christmas Cards are of two kinds, formal and informal. If you decide to have formal cards, the message is expressed in the third person; the name is put above the message; and the title — Mr. and Mrs., or Mrs., or Mr., or Miss — should be used before the name.

Here, for example, is a usual and correct form for a formal card, either engraved, printed, or written by hand:

Mr. and Mrs. John Holiday wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

We should keep in mind that the following form is not correct:

Merry Christmas and Happy
New Year
Mr. and Mrs. John Holiday

Nor is this in good form:

Best wishes for a Merry Christmas from
Mr. and Mrs. John Holiday

Why aren't these forms correct? Because a name at the end of a message is, a signature, and a signature is informal. That is, it is not prefixed with a title.

Therefore, if you wish your name to appear after the message on your Christmas cards, here are correct forms for the signature (engraved, printed, or hand-written):

Mary and John Holiday
Mary and John
The John Holidays

In the majority of cases the names on Christmas cards, when they are put after the message (that is, as signatures to the cards), and whether they are engraved, printed, or hand-written, have the wife's name first—Mary and John, or Mary and John Holiday. This form is considered

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson (Mme. Qui Vive)

SALLOW COMPLEXIONS

Girls with sallow complexions lose faith in cosmetics. That is not surprising since creams, bleaches and lotions will not create the peaches-and-cream effect on a skin of that character. Makeup doesn't help very much, though the brilliant lipstick does make the face more vivid. The most luscious shade of rouge may go sour when used on the sallow skin. The poor victim gets so discouraged she feels as if she would like to skin herself and grow a brand new epidermis.

Let her be hopeful. Her beauty task is an inside job. Something wrong with some item of the digestive works — stomach, liver or intestinal tract. Sometimes the dingy skin is due to lack of water, so five or six glasses a day should be taken. The human body is composed largely of water, needs plenty to keep its engines going.

Elimination may be faulty. The various avenues of elimination must be active. Lungs washed with fresh air, the skin surface scoured so that waste products are removed, the digestive apparatus functioning normally.

It is a wise plan to begin the day with a glass of water to which a lemon and a pinch of salt have been added. Every other day one can substitute tomato juice, which has a whitening effect upon the skin because of properties that act upon the digestive organs. Orange and grape juice are recommended. The diet should include plenty of raw vegetables, like celery, cabbage, carrots, chicory, endive and lettuce.

No fried foods, rich sauces or gravies, very little pastry. Lemon should be substituted for vinegar when salad dressing is prepared. Meat should be eaten but once a day. Condiments are out.

We're learning more and more all the time about the effect of foods upon appearance.

Choosing make-up is a tough matter. Rachelle powder, slightly darker than the complexion, will tone down the yellow cast. Rouge and lipstick should not be of true red, but slightly on the orange side. Raspberry lipstick will make the skin look greenish; that state of affairs won't win any beauty prizes.

Dress colors decrease or increase sallowness according to their character. Browns and beiges are fatal. Coral can be worn, but not red. Black is the happiest choice, gives richness to the skin.

Believe it or curl up your nose, but the girl with the sallow skin looks well in white, as does the summer girl when tanned a golden brown.

more polite.

Also logical is the point of view that when the wife writes the signatures, courtesy demands that she write her name last.

Either form is correct, but customarily the wife's name is first.

However, when children's names are included in the signature, the father's name always comes first: John and Mary and Baby, or John and Mary and Johnnie, or The Holidays — John, Mary, Johnnie, Polly, and Bob.

You should answer immediately an invitation to a party where the number of guests is a consideration. For example, a dinner, luncheon, bridge party, buffet party.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN
Famous Authority on
Good Manners and Good Taste

DATE PROBLEMS LEAD TO DIVERS QUESTIONS

One of the questions frequently asked me is, "What is the most tactful thing to say if you want to refuse a boy a date?"

The answer depends on what you want your refusal to mean.

If, in refusing, you wish to discourage further attempts of the boy to date you, the most tactful thing to say is, "I'm sorry, but I'm going to be busy on Saturday evening." If the boy continues to ask you for dates and you don't want to go out with him, you'll have to continue to give "busy" as your excuse. Eventually he'll get the point!

But if you don't want to close the door on future invitations from him, then you should give a more specific reason: "I'm so sorry that I can't see you on Saturday. My two cousins are arriving from Chicago on Friday to spend the week-end with us."

This leaves the suggestion of "another time" up to the boy.

Question: "When a boy calls for me at my house, should I introduce him to my mother, or to any other member of my family who happens to be around?"

Yes, by all means. Not to do this shows that your thinking is all wrong, and that your manners are shoddy. Do the young man the honor of introducing him to your mother — always — and to any member of your family who happens to be around. This is also, of course, a courtesy you owe your family.

Question: "Is it proper for a girl to call a boy on the telephone?"

It is proper for a girl to telephone to a boy if she has a real reason to do so, a really valid reason. But whether girls are willing to admit it or not, men are still old-fashioned about wanting to take the initiative in telephone calls. It's usually true that the girl who wonders about the propriety of calling a boy on the telephone is the one who is inclined to invent excuses for calling him. The wise girl is the girl who lets the boy do the telephoning.

Question: "Is it the girl or boy who should bow or speak first, when they meet?"

The girl is given the privilege of acknowledging acquaintanceship with a boy. Generally however, when they know each other well or even fairly well, this formality isn't observed, and they bow or speak simultaneously.

Question: "Is it the girl or the boy who suggests that it's time to start home from a dance or other party?"

This is the girl's responsibility, and the boy should immediately follow her suggestion!

Question: "How should a girl acknowledge a compliment from a boy?"

By saying a gracious "Thank you", or, "Thank you very much, Bob. I'm so glad you like it." Her words should be gracious, but a bit on the casual side — she shouldn't appear overwhelmed!

Question: "When a boy has taken a girl out for the evening, should he thank her or should she thank him?"

The mannerly boy thanks the girl for the evening, and the mannerly girl expresses her appreciation of the boy's thoughtfulness and of the evening's fun. She might say, for example, "I've had a grand time tonight, Tom. Thank you so much for asking me to go to the dance," or, "It was a delightful evening and I enjoyed every minute of it."

War Gifts from Scottish Women's Institutes

The Scottish Women's Institutes during the early autumn presented to the Scottish Branch of the Red Cross, and to the Navy, Glasgow Military Hospital, and the Royal Air Force valuable and timely gifts for use in these services.

The equipment included an ambulance, a mobile Physical Therapy Unit for the Kingseat Naval Hospital; an Alpine Sun and Sollex Lamp for the new Military Hospital in Glasgow, and three Duo-Therapy Combined Ultra Violet Rays and Radiant Heat Units for use in three R.A.F. Stations.

The presentation took place in the city chambers in Edinburgh, and the gifts were handed over to the representatives of the various bodies concerned.

The money for these gifts came from every part of Scotland, from women many of whom had suffered and are still suffering from the war and its consequences.

Dogs Seldom Live to

The Age of 20 Years

The question as to how old dogs get comes up frequently. Some dogs live longer than the average and a few breeds are noted for their longevity.

In general, while dogs have been reported as living into their 20s, such cases are decidedly unusual. The average dog does well if he lives to be from 12 to 15 years old.

One old-time method for figuring a dog's age was to check the period during which his growth continued and to multiply that by seven to get the age the dog would attain. Such a procedure is not necessarily accurate because many outside factors such as diet will have their effect upon the life of a dog.

A dog is actually approaching old age when he gets to be 10 years old and his exercise and his food should be regulated in accordance with this fact.

Some dogs retain all of their vigor up to almost the end of their lives, but there are others who slow down perceptibly and who grow deaf, lame and generally less physically able.

Care in feeding the right amounts of the correct foods will do the most to keep a dog so that he goes beyond the average age. A fat dog is one out of condition, and a dog out of condition is more likely to pick up the various diseases which may strike him low.

Next to feeding and probably of equal importance is the proper amount of regular exercise. In fact regularity of all habits will help to give a dog long life. Regular times of exercise and regular lengths of exercise should be the course for any dog, if he is to be healthy.

Little dog ills should be cared for at once lest they grow and sap the dog's strength. The dog's teeth should be watched for decay and bad teeth should be extracted.

St. Jerusalem of Argenteuil, as forming part of lot number one thousand three hundred and thirty-four (pt. 1334) bounded on the south by the said boulevard, on the east by an emplacement situated on the same lot and belonging to the vendor, on the west, by the emplacement belonging to the buyer, and on the north by the residue of said lot belonging to the vendor; measuring sixty-four feet on the boulevard, ninety feet in depth in the east line, and one hundred and nine feet in the west line, and seven feet in the north line; the whole English measure, and without building."

To be sold at Ste. Anastasie church door, at Lachute, Argenteuil County, WEDNESDAY, the EIGHTEENTH day of DECEMBER 1940, at TWO o'clock in the afternoon, (Daylight saving time).

Firms Encourage Employees In War Saving Effort

More than 2600 business establishments throughout the Province of Quebec are now co-operating with the provincial war savings committee by making available to their employees the regular purchase of war savings certificates through deduction from salaries and wages, the committee stated.

The life insurance managers, whose nine companies started on Oct. 21st to canvass all the firms, have covered about twenty per cent so far. They report that in the majority of firms canvassed, at least 75 per cent of the employees are wholeheartedly behind the efforts to raise funds for the prosecution of the war and at the same time provide a bake-log of interest-bearing savings for themselves. An interesting feature of the results shown to date is that many firms where 100 per cent of the employees are participating are not in the so-called high wage class. It is noted also that in a third of these 100 per cent companies a very large proportion of the employees are women. Savings run from a dollar to five dollars each month, with a good many firms having employees in the higher bracket. With a few exceptions, the establishments that had not previously put the deduction plan into operation have now taken the necessary measures to play their part in this national undertaking.

Lachute Troop, Boy Scouts

This week the Boy Scouts opened their meeting with a game, following which each patrol leader assisted his patrol in some branch of Scout work. A game of floor-ball followed.

The meeting was ended with a Court of Honor session.

The Boy Scouts wish to thank Mr. Ralph McQuat for extending the facilities of his workshop at the Farmers' Supply, for repairing broken toys.

Among those present at the opening of the Tweedsmuir Room, new Social centre for ex-Scout soldiers and sailors at Halifax, N.S., was a former Scout sailor of the Royal Navy from Halifax, England.
