REDUCTION IN GASOLINE RATION SEEN IMMINENT

Second Reading of Manpower Amendment Will Launch Full-Dress and Fiery Debate

Compulsory Service Age Limit to Be Raised from 30 to 35 in Near Future

Ottawa, June 3 (CP) — The House of Commons is still looking forward to debate on what at face value appears to be one of the most important items of the session—the amendment to the National Resources Mobilization Act which, when passed, will give the government power to impose all-out compulsory military service.

The $2,000,000 war appropriation bill resolution kept the House busy most of last week with Munitions Minister Howe and War Services Minister Thorson up for questioning. Mr. Thorson was still before the House Monday and Labor Minister Mitchell was to follow.

So the matter of amending the N.R.M.A. was kept in the background. The expected political problem caused by French Canada's opposition to overseas conscription was quiescent. Parliament Hill and the nation waited for what is expected to be literally a continuation of the plebiscite debate this spring when 37 members of parliament came out flatly against compulsory service outside Canada.

But whether passage of the N.R.M.A. amendment — nobody doubts that it will be adopted ultimately—will actually mean much, is a matter for argument. There were indications at the week-end that overseas conscription is not an immediate prospect.

Praised War Effort

Mr. Thorson told the House that "a strong case could be made" for continuation of the voluntary enlistment system, from the point of view of effectiveness of the Canadian war effort.

And Justice Minister St. Laurent confirmed in the chamber a report that he had written to a Liberal Club in his constituency that "there is no intention for the time being to bring in conscription for overseas service."

The plan was that as soon as the war appropriation bill is passed—sometime this week—Mr. King will move second reading of the N.R.M.A. amending bill, launching a full-dress debate on the measure.

While extension of the field of compulsory service was indefinite, however, there was virtual promise that the call-up age categories are to be increased.

Mr. Thorson said in the House that the maximum age for compulsory service might be raised from 30 to 35 years "within a very short time."

The minister warned, too, that the government has under consideration regulations which will prevent university students and those in Reserve Army units from evading compulsory service.

Civic Recommendations

Before the government this week are recommendations from Canada's municipalities on what should be done to strengthen civilian home defence and improve the living conditions of the underprivileged.

Delegates to the fifth annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities asked the government that federally-owned war industries pay an indemnity to the municipality in which they are located in lieu of regular municipal taxes from which the government claims exemption for defence plants.

They asked for continuation of the National Housing Act, a 25 per cent increase in old age and blind pensions and mothers' allowances; and a lowering of the minimum age for old age pensions from 70 to 65 years.

In view of municipal responsibility for A.R.P. organization they suggested local governments should be given authority to enforce protective measures and take over necessary services in emergencies.

On the military front, The British Commonwealth Air Training Conference has entered a new week of deliberations aimed at extension of the training agreement for two years to March 31, 1945.

On the Home Front

Two major developments on the domestic front are interesting Canadians this week. One is the prospect that less gasoline will be available for the average motorist; the other the new beef price set-up from coast to coast.

Already the Maritimes gasoline ration has been reduced by three-fifths. The indications are that while the reduction is not likely to be so drastic in other sections of the country the pleasure driver is going to find himself more restricted than ever so far as motoring is concerned, with definite announcement expected soon. Plans for cutting his gasoline quota are known to be under consideration.

Details of the new maximum beef regulations, part of the government program to maintain domestic supplies, were announced by The Wartime Prices and Trade Board last Friday.

Under the new scheme, 15 zones are set up across the country and uniform prices which packers and wholesalers may charge in each zone are established. The price range in various sections is small.

Livestock Entries For Lachute Fair Close Saturday

W.I. Handicrafts Among Interesting Displays

In view of the fact that Lachute is staging the only spring exhibition in Quebec and Ontario, high interest is foreseen among agriculturists from a wide area. A considerable increase in the prize money should give further assurance that livestock competition will be keen. Saturday, June 6, is the deadline for entry of exhibits, and acecording to the secretary-manager, Alex Bothwell, the last minute influx will meet full expectations.

The lighter attractions of Lachute Fair meet the tastes of all comers, regardless of their concern with its agricultural merits. The entertainment committee has booked an appealing program of band music and vaudeville, while the horse-racing events, midway and industrial show will offer diversions to make every hour enjoyable. Special interest of the lady visitors will be attracted to the handicrafts and home-cookery exhibit of the Women's Institutes, which will be featured again on the second floor of the Main Building.

Lachute's Women's Institute is in charge of the catering, and inspite of difficulties imposed by restrictions on foodstuffs and deliveries, this group is confident it can again meet the needs of the fair-going public and give entire satisfaction to dining-room and lunch-room patrons.

Lachute Spring Fair is enjoying favorable support from the farm journals of Eastern Canada. Here is a typical comment by the editor of the Ottawa Farm Journal:

"Lachute Fair directors are to be congratulated on having the courage to go ahead and stage their exhibition this year. Lachute has always staged a good show, and this year has considerably enlarged its prize money so that a very attractive proposition is offered exhibitors, despite many difficulties.

"Lachute should get good support from exhibitors, and in this connection it should be made plain that those from Eastern Ontario are especially welcome. It should be supported because it is a first class show which has always treated exhibitors well, and also as a measure of appreciation for the courage of those who direct it. Entries close on June 6. Lachute has always been particular about its closing date for entries, so that all who are considering sending stock should make arrangements at once. If there are any new exhibitors who may be unable to make up their minds we would like to say that we feel certain they will enjoy showing at Lachute. There is no trouble getting there from any part of Ontario."

Altogether, the directorate of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society anticipate a highly successful exhibition. The public can do their share by boosting this annual event—on June 11, 12 and 13—by attending the show and inviting their friends to share its attractions.

Blaze Destroys A Residence at Morin Heights

Morin Heights—Fire consumed the residence of Lawson Kennedy, a well known citizen and farmer, at noon on Wednesday, but willing assistance on the part of neighbors and townsmen saved practically the entire contents, including such items as a stove and bath-tub.

The outbreak, believed due to a faulty chimney, occurred in the roof and spread from the attic to the lower floors. A number of blankets and storm windows stored in the attic were burned. The property is on Route No. 30 at the southern limits of the village. Lawson Kennedy was some distance from his home when Mrs. Kennedy noticed the fire and raised the alarm. Chemical extinguishers were brought to the scene but were ineffective to curb the blaze.

The property loss, estimated roughly at $4,000, is largely covered by insurance.

ARGENTEUIL CONTRIBUTES OVER $28,000 IN RED CROSS DRIVE

Brownsb'g Scores Notable Success; Good Results in Most Districts

Quebec Province $2-Million Quota Is Exceeded by Over $39,000

The 1942 campaign of the Canadian Red Cross was an outstanding success in the Province of Quebec. The figure released at Montreal headquarters at the close of the campaign last Friday showed that $2,039,652 had been collected on the $2,000,000 quota asked.

Results in Argenteuil

Amounts reported officially for Argenteuil districts on that date, with the chairmen in charge of the respective areas, are listed in alphabetical order as follows: (the totals, in several cases, being considerably higher since these reports were submitted to headquarters; see below) . . .

Arundel, Mrs. R. B. Henry . $585

Grenville, Romeo Monty . . . $322

Kilmar, Mrs. L. R. Thomas and Mrs. R. A. Sancton . . . $400

Lachute, Mrs. G. Mitchell, Mrs. W. Cottingham, Philippe Roy $4,000

Morin Heights, A. Hamilton . $500

St. Andrews E., W. H. Cairns $1,600

The total for Argenteuil, on the basis of the above returns, is $27,672—but with additions due to late returns from certain districts, the final total is well over $28,000.

Commenting on a few of these localities it may be mentioned that St. Andrews far exceeded its quota; with an objective of $600 the canvassers collected actually $1,722.92 Brownsburg, meanwhile, with a quota of $15,000 collected well over $20,000. These returns are typical of the generous response.

In the case of Lachute the result is similarly gratifying, but here it should be noted that numerous town residents presently employed in Brownsburg were canvassed in that centre, and their contributions therefore do not appear in the Lachute total.

Chairmen Express Thanks

These returns are a distinct credit to the organizers in the various districts—several of whom, in turn, have asked that their thanks, for the support of willing collectors and generous donors, be expressed through the medium of The Watchman. This is particularly the wish of the chairmen in Lachute, where this newspaper has its most complete coverage.

Higher Returns Come In

In the returns above listed, the full amount of collections may not appear, as the official report gives only the totals communicated to headquarters at the closing of the campaign. Thus it is seen that St. Andrews rolled in a total higher than the official listing ($1,722.92) while Lachute's total returns are $4,666.68, Brownsburg $20,885.61 and Arundel $613.61.

Papineau District

Seigniory Club, Jas. A. Copeman and Dr. Louis Biron $1,600

Buckingham, Mrs. D. W. O'Shea and Mrs. W. E. Bell . . . . $12,100.

MASS AIR RAIDS OVER GERMANY

R.A.F. "Bombing-Up" for Night Attack

In a 90-minute hail of explosives 1,250 planes from Britain, last Saturday night, gave the city of Cologne and Germany's industrial Rhineland the greatest raid in the annals of aerial warfare . . . A raid of similar proportions followed over the city of Essen . . . Constant raids over occupied Belgium, Holland and France are hampering the industry and aircraft operations of the enemy. In the above picture R.A.F. Armourers are seen "bombing-up" a "Havoc" aircraft, in preparation for a night sweep over occupied territory.

Inspections Made In the Interests Of Public Health

Dept. Gives Record for Single Month

Quebec—Officers of the Quebec Department of Health and Social Welfare are untiring in their efforts to protect public health in this province, as may be seen by the number of inspections reported during the month of April. The report covers such investigations as are made by Health Unit officers, and inspectors in other divisions of the Department.

The following establishments were inspected: 250 bakeries, 1,387 grocery stores, 548 restaurants, 1,612 butcher shops, 223 public markets, 41 butter and cheese factories, 290 public dairies, 169 pasteurization plants, 969 dairy farms, 59 aqueducts, 158 wells, 224 sewers, 159 schools, 280 hairdressing parlors, 65 public halls, 96 hotels and taverns, etc.

In the course of the same month, 8,295 pounds of food was confiscated.

This work accomplished by Quebec sanitary inspectors shows that the Department of Health is endeavoring to protect the public in every way possible. The consumer buys what is on the market, and the Department, realizing its responsibilities, sees to it that the articles for sale, particularly dairy products, are hygienically pure and safe for consumption.

Lachute Man In Far East Air Squadron

A press photograph last week showed a number of Montrealers in a Far East squadron of the R.C.A.F. which distinguished itself by sighting the Japanese fleet and upsetting its plans for an attack on Colombo, Ceylon. Among the group appears LAC. John K. Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dixon of Dalesville, who was employed with Ayers Limited in Lachute prior to enlisting in the Air Force.

According to the description which accompanies this picture, the squadron had served in Britain with the Coastal Command previous to being assigned to Pacific patrol. Long-range Catalina flying boats are used in this division of the service.

BLACK MARKET TRADING ENRAGES BRITISH; RATION VIOLATORS ARE SUBJECT OF SCORN

By MARGARET BUTCHER

Written specially for the Midland Free Press Herald and The Lachute Watchman

Reading, Eng.—No, it isn't easy to write just now. One is so afraid, somehow, of swaying too much one way or the other: of being thought gloomy or — worse still — foolishly cheerful. So how about being quite natural and letting it run on as it comes? And that's just what I'm going to do.

The news, naturally, hurts and maddens us — just as it does you, I guess. Who and what is to blame? And all the while The Pattern goes on working out, and in spite of everything that is happening, I hope, a pattern of a better and more sensible world. Plenty of us can see that the world has been a bit of a mess for a long while; personally, I think it's been rather a mess for centuries. Perhaps this drastic and terrible spring-cleaning will do what nothing else has been able to do. For pity's sake, let's MAKE it do so!

For my part, I am convinced that all the trouble started (and always has started) from that shocking habit of refusing to believe unpleasant things. All over the world folk have done it; it seems to be inseparable from what we call 'civilization.' If you're comfortable yourself, and don't want to notice — or think about — something uncomfortable . . . well, simply pretend that it isn't there. So much more snug than disturbing yourself!

If somebody tells you the Other Fellow is going to do a disagreeable act before you can turn round, you look shocked and assure your informant that he has base ideas, and that the Other Fellow is a decent sort of chap, no doubt. Who ever heard — you think — of anybody going to a party with a knuckle-duster in his pocket? Well I may be wrong, but, if there are going to be suspected toughs at that party, it wouldn't seem to me to be a bad notion. But then, perhaps I have a naughty mind. All the same, I know, there might not be any occasion to whip out your hand and land somebody one. The party might turn out quite all right — as long as nobody grabbed more than his share of the cake.

Black Market Business

We are hopping mad about our own particular spot of cake-grabbing that is going on — this Black Market business. Something will have to be done about that. Last night I made a man I know promise faithfully that he would write to his Member of Parliament, and get a wad of signatures to his letter. If everybody would do that the stir would be enough to work the miracle. After all, what else can the ordinary, law-abiding citizen do? Here we are, making our rations do their work, trying to save — and these voracious, money-grabbing brutes go on pandering to the folk who just won't play ball.

What's the use of punishing the small man? It's the Big Boys at the top who've got to catch it. No you've simply no idea how an-

TOWN COUNCIL GIVES SUBSTANTIAL DONATION TO RED CROSS FROM PROCEEDS OF SALVAGE

ROUTINE MATTERS OCCUPY COUNCILLORS AT REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING

The regular session of Lachute Town Council was held in the town hall last evening; the following members were present—Mayor Hector Lamarche, Aldermen A. Guenette, S. McFaul, A. Rochon, J. Speight, S. Holt, L. St. Jacques, A. Bothwell and W. Morissette.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, on motion of Ald. S. Holt, seconded by Ald. J. Speight.

Aldermen L. St. Jacques, A. Bothwell and S. McFaul were appointed as a committee to confer with representatives of the British American and Imperial Oil Companies regarding the erection of a substantial fence around their tanks near the C.P.R. depot.

It was moved by Ald. S. McFaul, seconded by Ald. A. Guenette, that the Red Cross be granted the sum of $400 from the Salvage Fund to augment the local contribution to the national Red Cross drive.

A petition was received from ratepayers on Sydney and Isabella Streets for the construction of a sewer.

Ald. Morrissette gave notice of motion that at next meeting of council he would introduce a loan by-law for the purpose of building sewers.

Ald. L. St. Jacques gave notice of motion to impose a tax levy for sewers laid in the West Ward last year.

Troops to Get New Raincoats

Raincoats made from cheap white limestone powder are going to keep Canada's armed forces comfortable in dirty weather, it was made known today.

The Department of Munitions and Supply announced that the powder, transformed by the chemist's art into a polymerized vinyl resin, is being used as a substitute for rubber in making raincoats for sailors, soldiers and airmen.

After the resin is dissolved, pigmented in Navy, Air Force blue or Khaki, and plasticized for flexibility, the coating composition is applied to a cotton fabric of suitable weight and strength. Several more coatings are added, obtaining a "better-than-rubber" fabric ready for sheeting or the tailor's scissors.

"The synthetic raincoats are not only just as good as rubber," the Department said. "They are said to be better.

"In the first place, they are lighter. Suitable water-proofing can be achieved with three to four ounces of coating for every square yard, whereas more than double that weight of rubber would be needed."

The new raincoats are expected to resist light and heat better. They won't be affected by most alkalis, acids, alcohols, petroleum solvents, oils and greases. Put them in a temperature of minus 20 degrees Fahrenheit, says the department, and they won't crack. Heat them through hundreds of degrees and they won't burn.

As a parting shot, the Department warned the man in the street he will have to do without a new raincoat—"no crude, reclaim or synthetic rubber is available for him."

FOOD FROM FARMS ON LAND AND SEA

Before Britannia began to rule the waves and conduct her commerce upon the seven seas other adventurous mariners long ere the days of Columbus had trimmed their sails and braved the billows on voyages of discovery to other lands. The sagas of Scandinavia, both legendary and actual, record the daring exploits of these seafaring peoples, notably the excursions of Leif Ericsson, son of Eric the Red, who is believed to have landed on the eastern shores of Canada in the year 1000 A.D.

That the love of adventure and spirit of the old Vikings still lives and burns in the hearts of these northern folk, though now a fettered race, is shown by the following authentic tale, a modern saga of the sea: In this year of grace, 1942, there steamed unheralded into a Scottish port a vessel, flying a friendly flag, laden with a cargo of hides and butter from South America. The ship was chartered for a German port, but a slight error in navigation had been made. At the outset and during the greater part of the voyage the ship was commanded by Nazi officers. One day when these were dining and wining, the Scandinavian crew locked them in the saloon, relieved them of their command and changed the vessel's course!

The arrival of this butter boat, though not so publicly acclaimed, caused as great a sensation as did the arrival in Liverpool of the big cheese from Canada in 1893. This huge cheese was made in a factory at Perth, Ont., and exhibited at the Chicago fair where it proved one of the chief attractions. It was 6 feet high, 28 feet in diameter and weighed 11 tons. Milk equivalent to the output of 10,000 cows for one day went into its manufacture.

Cheese is the most concentrated of our dairy products. That is why Canada has undertaken to ship to Britain this year 125 million pounds of cheese. Shortage of shipping space precludes the export of butter to Britain, but evaporated milk is being sent in increasing quantities. Canada has a contract to supply Britain with 600 million pounds of bacon in 1942 and 23 million dozen eggs, both fresh and dried, this spring. It is expected that the total shipment of eggs for the year will amount to 35 million dozen.

This is a big order. That is why the Dominion Government decided to grant farmers a subsidy on fertilizers used for the crops which go into the production of these concentrated food stuffs for the British market. Farmers are responding valiantly and in a manner consistent with the highest traditions of the Empire. They will furnish the food for the life-line that links Canada to the heart of the Motherland.

BRIT. BICYCLES FOR CANADA'S WORKERS

To Share Special Shipment of 300,000 British Machines

London—Canada will be included in the share-out of the 300,000 bicycles which the Board of Trade in London has now agreed may be made in Great Britain this year to meet the definite war requirements of overseas territories.

"Petrol restrictions apply in Canada as much as they do here in Britain," Mr. H. R. Watling, Director of the cycle manufacturers' organization, said to an interviewer. "The need for transport by bicycle for munition workers and for the essential services in Canada is consequently as great as it is with us.

"The total figure of 300,000 includes components; and during the war only essential repair parts for users of British bicycles will be sent to countries in the Western Hemisphere.

"Naturally, we cannot send overseas anything like the number of bicycles shipped before the war, but arrangements have been made to send as many as possible to India, New Zealand and South Africa. Canada and the other parts of the British Commonwealth have not been forgotten".

SUSSEX MEN READY FOR NAZI INVADER

Defence Duty is an Old Story To Folk of Southern County

Hastings, Eng. (CP)—The Sussex Home Guard, watching now against any possible enemy invasion of the British coast, is probably one of the oldest home guard units in Britain. Generations of many Sussex families have defended the same districts of their country against would-be invaders for close on 200 years.

Ever since Sir Francis Drake's warning to "look to the defence of Sussex," Sussex families and their descendants have stood-to through wars and battles such as Trafalgar, Waterloo and 1914-18.

But 200 years ago the old Mobile Guard, similar to that now established at various points along the coast, was known as the "Flying Artillery." Their job was to transport volunteers to various scenes of action. The Mobile Guard was equipped with hackney carriages, disused stage coaches, farm wagons, and according to old records it was kept busy with various "red hot" tips from the government in London that the long-expected invasion was to be attempted in a matter of hours.

On more than one occasion down through the years the Sussex Home Guard has been praised in the House of Commons for its constant vigilance. But its members so far have never seen the enemy unless Nazi airmen of this Second Great War can be termed invaders.

SCOUTS WILL PROVIDE ANTIDOTE FOR NAZI POISON IN HOLLAND

That Boy Scout training would wipe out "Nazi poison" from Holland after the war was the prediction of Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands in a message to the Glasgow County Scout Conference. Said the prince: "I do not think there is any system which has so much to give to that cause as the Scout movement, and when Scouting is once more free to take its place in the national life of Holland, it will be of inestimable value in wiping out any traces of the Nazi poison."

WAR FLYING-BOAT HOLDING ITS OWN

World's Best of its Type, Craft Has Proved Worthy Fighter

London (CP)—"Old Reliable" of the sea patrol service of the Royal Air Force, the five-year-old Sunderland flying boat still justifies the British claim in 1937 that it was the world's best of its type.

The war career of the four-motored giant which pioneered the northern transatlantic air route for Imperial Airways and later lifted the unorthodox Atlantic-flying pick-a-back planes into the air, has been vital if generally unspectacular.

The war work of Sunderlands has been thousands of hours and hundreds of thousands of miles of dreary patrol in all climates and weathers. Only on rare occasions have its duties brought it into the news, though it was the first British plane acclaimed for a war exploit.

Life Saver Too

Two Sunderlands on Atlantic patrol, Sept. 21, 1939, heard an S.O.S. They raced to the torpedoed Kensington Court and set precedent for sea rescue by landing and picking up 34 survivors from the steamship.

First aircraft to be equipped with the famed British power-driven gun turret, the Sunderland earned the name "Flying Porcupine" from respectful German airmen because of its four-gun rear turret, two guns amidships and single-gun turret in the nose.

Apart from monotonous patrol duties over the North Sea, Atlantic and Mediterranean, the Sunderland has done valuable transport and rescue work against great odds in the evacuations of Norway, Greece and Crete. On some occasions Sunderlands carried distinguished fugitives to safety from German clutches.

On one evacuation job, a Sunderland crammed 87 men aboard — six in its lavatory—to bring them out of Nazi reach.

Can Fight Back

The Sunderland gave effective proof of its power of fighting back when one of them on convoy duty over the North Sea was attacked by six JU88's, shot one down in flames and forced a second to land in Norway.

A Sunderland on patrol over the Mediterranean attacked a U-boat and before the submarine sank, alighted to pick up three survivors as proof of the success. "Aeroplane" says that while the Sunderland's design is eight years old in conception, the claim made for the plane after first tests five years ago has not yet been "seriously challenged".

First Scheme of Cattle Health Insurance

Will Save Britain 50,000,000 Gallons of Milk a Year

(By Mail)

London—Fifty million gallons of milk each year, as well as large quantities of meat, are expected to be saved in Britain by a health insurance scheme for dairy herds, the first of its kind in the world.

The object is to reduce losses caused by the four principal scourges of dairy cows—mastitis, contagious abortion, sterility and Johne's disease. Although the scheme is entirely voluntary, it is expected that 30,000 British herds, comprising nearly half a million animals, will be registered in the first year.

The farmer selects his own "vet" who, in return for annual fees ranging according to the number kept, from 2s, 6d. for heifers to 12s. 6d. for cows, examines the herd at least four times a year and also makes any further visits required for treating animals affected. The farmer, on his part, is expected to look out for the first symptoms of disease and to comply with certain control measures.

The scheme will be run jointly by Britain's National Veterinary Medical Association and the Ministry of Agriculture who are providing free laboratory services for diagnostic work, abortion vaccine free of charge, and sulphanilamide at greatly reduced cost. A small committee is to be set up by the Ministry to settle disputes between the farmers and the veterinary surgeons.

Secretary M.P. Was First in Bagdad

London (CP) — Capt. Somerset de Chair, newly appointed parliamentary private secretary to Oliver Lyttleton, minister of production, was the first British officer to enter Badgad during the trouble with the Irakis.

At dawn, he was sent forward under a white flag to meet Iraki officers and arrange an armistice. Capt. de Chair was blindfolded before being allowed into the city and an Iraki officer was held as hostage against his safe return. M.P. for Norfolk, Capt. de Chair returned only recently from the Middle East, where he was wounded.

Saturday Is Salvage Day

A stroll along the residential thoroughfares on Lachute's regular salvage day, the first Saturday of every month, leaves no doubt that our citizens are becoming thoroughly salvage conscious. The cartons and parcels of salvagable material placed at the sidewalks for collection, give ample evidence of this fact. Nevertheless, The Watchman takes occasion to remind its readers, should there be any neglecting this effort, that salvage must play an ever-increasing part in providing the products used in Canada's industries. Every day there comes to light some commodity curtailed in manufacture, and reclaimed goods can prolong the supply in many of these lines.

Since the May salvage collection, added stress has been given to the need for reclaimable rubber. This should be remembered when citizens place their contributions for collection —along with scrap metal, rags, bottles, bones, fats, paper and cartons. If there is any neglect or hitch in the procedure of collection, a member of the council committee in charge of this effort should be advised of the fact.

All together — for a bumper salvage crop next Saturday, June 6 ! And remember, the sale of scrap materials by Lachute Town Corporation brings proceeds for some deserving wartime service.

Common Sense for Coal Consumers

A coal dealer in this community has been supplementing the nation-wide advertising campaign with some personal advice, exhorting the local public to order coal now for next winter's use. Coal is the sort of commodity which sells itself; it needs little boosting. Dealer-advertising is generally aimed at clinching the customers — which is only good business in these days of competitive selling.

This coal advertising, at the present stage of our war economy, appears however to be wholeheartedly in the interests of the consumer. Two factors which make coal deliveries problematical next fall are these: lack of adequate transportation, and shortage of labor . . . It is foreseen that railway cars will not be available to carry the usual peak demand, which comes just prior to the heating season — a demand which will be further increased in 1942 by the curtailed supply of fuel oil. Dealers obviously cannot stock sufficient coal to meet the fall rush, for this requires yard space than they have at their disposal . . . Also, if orders are not forthcoming NOW, it is feared the miners, many of whom are laid off during the summer months, will drift into other industries and not return.

In consequence of these facts, it seems urgent that the demand for coal be kept more or less consistent throughout the year. If the demand takes its usual seasonal slump, the means of supply will be overtaxed next fall. Therefore the consumer will be helping himself, and helping a vital industry, to order his 1942-43 coal supply at once.

Those Who Spend And Those Who Don't

Canadian people may be divided into two groups at the present time. One group is spending money as fast as it comes in. The others are piling up War Savings Certificates and Bonds as high as possible through rigid suppression of the temptation to spend as others are doing.

The spending group is finding it increasingly difficult to buy expensive articles, as war production increasingly curtails the manufacture of many peacetime commodities. But they manage to spend most of their current income by the purchase of many articles and services to be secured at low cost. Thus, Canadian amusement centres are finding it hard to accommodate the crowds. Retail stores are besieged daily by thousands of men and women who make a raid on merchandise costing from 25 cents to 15 dollars and 20 dollars.

There is one certain prediction which may be made now. When peace comes, the men and women who will be able to buy new furniture for the house, new cars, washing machines, radios and the like, or who will be taking holiday trips to Canadian and United States resorts, will not be those who are now spending their quarters and their dollar bills with reckless abandon. The spending spree after the war will be conducted largely by the people who are now investing in war securities.

It is much easier to "buy more War Savings Certificates now" when one visualizes them in terms of spending money after Hitler is beaten.

What Wins A War

The question has frequently been asked if Canadians are not being led astray by believing that the most necessary thing in winning the war is production of munitions, and that in order to produce munitions the sale of war stamps and bonds is the most important thing. Certainly they have their part in the winning of the war, but actually Canada can never be safe until the German army is defeated in the field.

This thought is beautifully expressed by the editor of "Business Week" who puts it as follows:—

What does it take to win a war? According to the slogans, war bonds will win the war, or production, or taxes.

But none of the slogans, of course, is true. Only one thing can win the war, and it has not been put into any slogan. For it reeks of blood, sweat, and tears, and such grim matters do not make slogans.

That one thing is fighting. Only fighting will win the war.

And before any people can fight to win, they must be filled with a fighting spirit. They must be for something or against something hard enough to throw in all they have. They must be willing to fight as naturally as they eat, sleep, or breathe.

Those to whom such a notion is distasteful should be reminded that their freedom was won for them by such fighters only a few generations ago; and that our one hope of survival now is that their fighting instinct still glows beneath the ashes of self-indulgence and easy living. No nation, rich, productive, pampered, scornful of others, can be maintained by any means short of readiness to fight at the drop of a hat.

— Granby Leader-Mail

Problems Are — People !

"There are no problems in production which are not people. People are the fundamental factor in every industrial situation," said Mr. Gordon England, Chairman of the Engineering Industries Association, whose plant turns out the famous Spitfires.

Problems are people! Different from saying that people are problems. Track down any problem to its source and there you find — a person. We hear a lot, about the "human factor" in industry — just plain "people" to Mr. England — and about personal relationships as the bottleneck in production.

Cases where these bottlenecks have been broken and production increased were reported recently in London, England, at a week-end conference of employers and workers who are applying a victory-building program in British industry.

Over 200 shop stewards, managers and directors, dockers, miners, steelworkers and mill girls from every main industrial area in Britain, brought plain facts about increased production, the successful working of shop committees, increased speed in loading and unloading ships, the reduction of absenteeism, and the rediscovery by thousands in industry of pride and joy in their work.

One case was a report of 400% increase in output from a northern munitions factory. This was the result of the first two weeks' work of a production manager called George who, thoroughly trained in moral re-armament, had been asked to take over a vital department where production had slumped seriously.

He found that machines and labor were plentiful, but that everyone was blaming everybody else. In a situation which is familiar on this continent, the night shift blamed the day shift, the operators blamed the raw materials, the toolsetters blamed their tools.

George surveyed the set-up and thought things over. He decided to appear in the morning before the night shift left and to stay on until they reappeared — a 16-hour day for himself. He talked personally with the men and found there was bitterness between the two shift foremen, who kept doing all in their power to increase bad feeling. Machines were even left out of adjustment at the end of each shift, impairing the efficiency of the next.

George got the two men into his office and, instead of blaming them, told them of his own mistakes at work. This was received in silence, but the effect was electric.

Co-operation sprang up between the two shifts. Bitterness gave way to friendly competition, and mechanical difficulties ceased to exist. By the end of a week they could plan for an output of two million components instead of the former 500,000. And George's department continues, after six months, to lead the factory in production and is the one in which least trouble is found.

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By H. H. GORDON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

CANADIANS IN ARRAS SECTOR HARASSED GERMANS WITH STRONG ATTACKS AT LA COULOTTE AND LENS

Canadian troops played a big part in minor operations that followed the Battle of Arras in the First Great War. Among these were attacks on the electric power station at La Coulotte June 2, 1917 and the storming of the central power station at Lens four days later.

Major activities on the Arras front ended May 17, but the Canadians from new positions established after their triumph at Vimy Ridge, continued to harass the Germans defending shell-battered Lens These attacks, although costly, kept thousands of Germans absorbed in the Arras sector while the French to the south sought to stabilize their lines after the failure of Gen. Robert Nivelle's offensive on the Aisne.

The plain in front of Lens was bathed in moonlight when Canadian soldiers leaped from their trenches on June 2 for the attack on the electric station and brewery at La Coulotte. Bavarians of the 56th Division made up the garrison at La Coulotte, virtually a suburb of Lens. Taken by surprise, they were trapped in tunnels and dugouts and the Dominion soldiers took more than 100 prisoners.

Strong Counter-Attacks

In other parts of the village the enemy inflicted many casualties on the attacking force from machine-gun nests, but all the objectives were captured before dawn the following morning.

During the night the German artillery poured high-explosive shells on the power station and the brewery and followed this up with several counter-attacks. Overwhelmed, the Canadians battled for hours, finally being compelled to withdraw to their original lines.

One of the most important fortified positions in Lens had been built around the central power station, but the Canadians succeeded in driving the Germans from the place on June 6.

Canadian gunners turned the station into a shambles. When the infantrymen entered the area they found it a pile of smashed bricks, twisted steel girders and the remains of railway cars which had been blown into the ruins of the power station from an adjacent siding by high-explosive shells.

Flier Pens Last Note In Praise of His Lost Colleague

In what is believed to be the last letter he wrote before an ill-fated flight over Germany, Flt. Sgt. Joey Jacobson, of Montreal, pays a tribute to a close comrade, Flt. Sgt. Roger Rousseau, also of Montreal, for his role in promoting better understanding between French-Canadians and English-speaking members of the Commonwealth.

The letter was written to Real Rousseau, a brother, after Flt. Sgt. Rousseau was shot down over enemy territory. The night he posted the letter, Flt. Sgt. Jacobson went on a bombing sortie and was reported by the International Red cross to have been killed in action. Later, Flt. Sgt. Rousseau was found to be safe and well as a prisoner of war.

Forming a close friendship during their training as observers in Canada, the young Canadians roomed together near their air station in England. They had been on more than 20 bombing missions and were to receive commissions.

Of his buddy, Flt. Sgt. Jacobson writes: "As a Montrealer in close association with French-Canadians, I can honestly say that Roger, during his 18 months in the Air Force, has done more to bring about an understanding between French-speaking countries, and all other English-speaking countries, including Canada, New Zealand, England, and America, than 99 per cent of the French-Canadian writers and politicians."

Tabulating Facts on Military Personnel And Industries

Efficient Machine Sorts Out R.A.F. At the Rate of 400 Men a Minute

(By Mail)

London—Essential facts about each of the thousands of members of the R.A.F. are now being sorted out by a special machine at the rate of 400 a minute.

Particulars about the man, where he is, what he is doing, are entered up on separate cards. The facts are first represented by tiny holes punched in the cards; the cards are then automatically checked up by another machine and placed in a sorting machine which mechanically groups and arranges them at a speed of 24,000 an hour. They finally go into a tabulating machine which "translates" the holes into words and figures!

Apart from the R.A.F., hundreds of the machines are today helping to speed Britain's war effort in factories producing airplanes all over the country, where they provide hourly records of output, progress of orders, availability of stocks, in short all the information essential for co-ordinating efforts to speed up and increase output.

Scotland Yard has introduced them for its statistics; and today they are also busily recording births, deaths, marriages, accident figures and Board of Trade returns.

It is sometimes tempting to make witty and unkind remarks at the expense of a friend. But remember that the people who laugh at them will laugh just as heartily when someone makes a similar remark at your expense.

Point Fortune — A party named St. Jean having snubbed 24 cribs of wood on the north side of the river below Cushing's Mills, some fiend loosened the lines during the night when the men were asleep in their cabin. The raft drifted into the upper pier of the boom. The men jumped to safety onto the pier, in their shirts and drawers. The band broke and 16 cribs went over the dam, the remaining 8 cribs jamming at the booms . . . The owner, who is a poor man, will lose over 400 cords of wood.

Lachute Family Bereaved Twice Within A Week

Late Gertrude Alma Scott

Just one week following her father's death, Gertrude Alma, daughter of the late Walter and Mrs. Scott, of Lachute, died after a lengthy illness of two and a half years. Though suffering considerable for many months, she had borne her sickness always with courage and Christian patience. Her death occurred on Saturday, May 30.

The late Miss Scott was in her 28th year. She was born in Shrewsbury, and after her family came to Lachute she attended Lachute Academy. For some years she was active in C.G.I.T. work. She was a member of the Anglican Church and of the Women's Auxiliary, and also belonged to the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association. For some time she was employed as a clerk in the Assad Clothing Store, after which she attended the O'Sullivan Business School, until she was taken sick.

Left to mourn her departure are —her mother Mrs. Walter Scott, one sister, Violet (Mrs. Albert Shepherd), and three brothers, Gordon, Edgar and Melvin, all of Lachute.

A brief service was held at her home on Robert Street on Monday afternoon, which was conducted by Mr. H. Charlton. Two hymns were sung, "My Glorious Victor" and "For You I'm Praying", the latter being a favorite which the deceased had requested several times during her sickness.

The funeral was conducted from St. Simeon's Anglican Church by Rev. B. J. Thorpe, assisted by the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh of Lakefield. 'Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" were sung at the service.

C.P.R. Shopmen Give Gun For Freedom

Canada's mounting share in the fight against the Axis was emphasized by Brigadier F. M. W. Harvey, V.C., Officer Commanding Military District 13, when on Saturday afternoon, May 23rd, he received the 100th naval gun produced at the Canadian Pacific Railway's Ogden Shops, at Calgary, as a gift from the munitions workers there to the nation.

"Let us hope that it goes into action soon," he said, "on a Canadian ship, with Canadian gunners behind its sights."

Although rate of production at Ogden has not been revealed by authorities, the 100th piece of war ordnance came off the assembly line there some time ago. Paying all shop costs and cost of material on this particular gun, the employees presented it to the country in a simple but impressive ceremony marking, as one of the speakers said, a fine spirit of national and industrial solidarity.

The gun itself is an all-purpose naval weapon, designed for use against submarines and surface craft, as well as sky raiders, throwing a shell of approximately 12 pounds from its long barrel.

In receiving the gun from R. Alderman, representative of the shopmen, Brigadier Harvey represented Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply for Canada. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company was represented by W. A. Mather, vice-president of Western lines, who officially received from the employees a cheque for shop costs on the gun, and by H. B. Bowen, Chief of Motive Power, from Montreal. J. L. Gubbins, works manager, acted as chairman.

The Guard of Honor was made up of war veterans among the shopmen under Capt. McLennan.

Pictures show Brigadier Harvey inspecting the Guard of Honor, the gun and a glimpse of the actual presentation ceremony.

BOOM IN OLD GEMS

London (CP) — The war has brought a boom in old gold and jewelry. Big transactions by syndicates have forced the price of second hand gold up to $50 an ounce and diamonds and other gems are selling at three and four times prewar prices. Engagements and marriages, speeded up by the war, have helped increase demand.

MANY CHURCHES HIT

London (CP) — A total of 378 Congregational churches have been damaged by enemy action, states a Council report to the Congregational Union of England and Wales.

Some of the speakers were numbered among the missing in the account of this sectional meeting given in last week's Watchman.

The first speaker was Mrs. Rupert Bradford, president of Lachute Auxiliary, who led the devotional period in the morning, and using a quotation from one of Miss Winnifred Thomas' articles in Missionary Monthly.

Mrs. John Owens, president of Cushing Auxiliary replied to the address of welcome given by Mrs. J. McGibbon.

Mrs. (Rev.) J. Bursey of St. Laurent, spoke on the need of friendliness to others and in particular to the stranger in our midst. Mrs. Bursey is Presbyterial Secretary for Community Friendship.

Mrs. J. S. Astbury, to whom we are indebted for the transportation of the Presbyterial President, Mrs. R. G. Gilbride and the other speakers from Montreal, gave a short address on mission work.

Mrs. Gilbride gave a short resume of work done, also mentioned Mrs. Astbury's kindness in bringing the Montreal ladies to Lachute, when they had been unable to attend other sectional meetings in outlying districts.

Miss Gollan was heard with great interest, part of her address appeared in last week's account.

Mrs. Johnston, of Brownsburg, leader of the Boy's Mission Band, also gave a short talk on her work.

We were pleased to have with us at this time members of our affiliated societies from Arundel, Morin Heights and Shawbridge. —J.G.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 7.

The Golden Text is from Acts 4: 24. "Lord, thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven. Thy faithfulness is unto all generations: thou hast established the earth, and it abideth." (Psalm 119: 89, 90).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science texbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The starting-point of divine Science is that God, Spirit, is All-in-all, and that there is no other might nor Mind,—that God is Love, and therefore He is divine Principle . . . No wisdom is wise but His wisdom; no truth is true, no love is lovely, no life is life, but the divine; no good is, but the good God bestows." (Page 275).

BLACK MARKET TRADING ENRAGES THE BRITISH; SCORN FOR RATION VIOLATORS

gry we are. I wonder how they would react to the promise of a firing squad? Anyhow, if this sort of thing should start on your side, don't you stand any nonsense — from the word 'Go'. If there is food it should be available to all, and at a reasonable price. And these folk who have always gorged themselves two or three times a day should learn that war — no matter who and what they are — means a salutary tightening of the belt. Oh, we know a good bit of what goes on, believe me! There is a nest of 'em, and it will have to be smoked out. And now I've spilled that, I feel better.

Don't Trust the Sun

Today—early in April—the sun shines warmly — at last. It has been a terrible winter; and even now I don't trust it. The frosts are still hard, and the poor Allotment lies there helpless. My warmest dressing-gown — carefully patched — covers me in the house; for we must save fuel, of course. The nice, kindly soul with whom I now live looks with an indulgent eye on this battered relic of better days, and has taken to the habit herself. She is a woman who has always been comfortably well off, and has had a beautiful home; yet she does not think of grabbing, or of wasting anything. As a matter of fact, all the people one really knows are pulling their weight.

We have just signed a paper offering shelter 'for a few hours' to any neighbor who may be bombed out. We all hope it won't happen, but we're ready. For our own shelter there is only a tiny cupboard under the stairs; but she's the sort of woman with whom one could share such adversity and maintain courage and self-respect. You remember 'Gran,' who raised her glass at her birthday party and said that she was glad, glad to be alive in these vital times? Well, this is Gran herself. We keep to our own rooms and don't worry each other, and I still do my cooking on my own private gas-ring—unless the downstairs oven is going, when I take a share in it, for economy's sake. Thus, gradually, does one learn to fit in with the rigor of the times. She has two sons in the East, but she shows courage and cheerfulness always. 'I don't wear my heart on my sleeve' she says, but I guess there are some rather sad anxious hours for her down there in her pretty sitting-room. . .

Wasting of Paper

Now there is this new order forbidding the wasting of paper — though it simply staggers me that anybody should waste. For the comfort of those dear souls who send me letters, papers or parcels from Canada, I can assure them that not one scrap is lost to the war effort. It is all saved up and, once a fortnight, put out in a neat bundle for the dustmen. This new order, I hope, will start a good national habit, for I am afraid we are an atrociously untidy nation. It has always been impossible to go anywhere within ten miles of a town without finding the woods and fields littered with picnic-remains, ice-cream cups and cigarette packets. Why on earth people can't bring back their rubbish—or bury it—I don't know.

One never sees rubbish in the streets in Scandinavia. That is one of the first things which struck me about the place. It's early training, of course; make the kids rubbish-conscious and the trick is done. So here's to the new law. Neatness may be one of the good things which will come out of this horrible mess of war. I guess we shall learn many things.

And there are folk with a lot to learn, I assure you. Some time ago, in the lounge of a hotel, I came upon a most unpleasant young man —apparently in a reserved occupation, since I have never seen him in uniform. A nasty little bit of work, that young man. There were just a few of us present and, for our entertainment and enlightenment, he started telling us how he could get a good suit without coupons. A wink and a tip, we gathered, in the right quarter, and the trick was done. The young idiot even mentioned the store. Of course, we were expected to exclaim: "How smart of you! DO give us the name of your friend!" And then, no doubt, he would shake his head knowingly and say that he couldn't give his pals away; and we would go home thinking what a very clever and worldly person he was. Actually, silence, flat and disapproving greeted his announcement. (Personally, I found myself discounting it as silly boasting, or there would have been some spectacular fireworks, friends.) He caught my eye and I glared back darkly. If he went about with that sort of tale, I said, loudly and firmly, there would soon be trouble for him and for the firm in question—and the sooner the better.

Yes, the whole story fell very flat and he then drifted out. When he sees me now he fades rapidly from the picture, realizing that the glove is down between us. He thinks of me, you may be sure, as 'that horrible little woman in the corner.' I am so glad.

Wins Divorce

Glamorous Rita Hayworth, idol of motion picture fans, won a divorce from her husband, Edward C. Judson, wealthy oil man, after testifying that "he was extremely jealous and quarrelsome." In response to a question from Judge John Gee Clark, the actress said that a "fair and just" property settlement had been effected between her and Judson.

VITAMIN 'A' HELPS TO BETTER SIGHT

Remember green is the color signal for vitamin A, necessary for good vision among other health factors. Yellow vegetables and fruits such as carrots, squash, apricots and peaches also contain this important vitamin.

Leaf lettuce is one, but just a leaf under a salad isn't going to provide the day's requirements. It must be eaten in quantity, includ- the outer dark leaves, which are highest in food value. In buying either leaf or head lettuce watch for fresh, crisp tender leaves.

Spinach is an early green vegetable. Cook for the shortest time necessary and with little water. That which clings to the leaves after washing is sufficient. Avoid using soda to retain color since it destroys vitamins A and C — advises Nutrition Services, Department of Pensions and National Health.

Onions add flavor to spring menus. Use the green tops finely chopped in salads.

A BOUQUET

We get so many brick-bats it is nice to get the occasional bouquet. I have seen no mention of it in our Canadian papers but here is what P. J. Phillip, the Ottawa correspondent for the New York Times has to say. He is writing about the success of the Price Ceiling, in Canada and says, "The most remarkable illustration of this law-observance in so far as the public is concerned has been the housewife's acceptance of the honor rationing of sugar at three-quarters of a pound per week, per person. That allowance is larger than in the United States. It is large enough to satisfy all reasonable needs. But what has been remarkable about it is that the public has not only kept within the honor ration but has so far kept under it that the sugar reserve is now in a very much better position than it was." If we can do this we can manage on a half pound and we can be trusted to reduce our tea and coffee too. If it means saving the lives of sailors it is little to ask us.

NO ENCOURAGEMENT LIKE SUCCESS

Probably some of you heard Bob Farnon of The Happy Gang tell about the performances of his symphony by the Philadelphia Orchestra. Do you remember him saying that the encouragement and approval he had received made him want to start on another symphony? There is nothing that makes one want to work like approval. This is specially true of creative work. I know that when I have had some approving letters, or have added a new paper to my syndicate, or have sold some article to a magazine it stimulates me to much harder work. That is one of the things parents are apt to forget in bringing up their children. We are so anxious for them to do well that we over-look their success and harp on their failures. If a child is successful in one thing it stimulates him to try harder over his failures, but if he never has the encouragement of success he is apt to give up trying. It is up to parents to see that their children have this feeling of success. There is something that every child does well and parents should remark and encourage this. In other words, lead from strength.

THE POOR EATER

So many mothers have trouble with their small children in getting them to eat. There are a few who are really indifferent to food all their lives, but most people like to eat and it is only natural that children should too. When a child does not eat properly it is usually a psychological difficulty, not a physical one. It has likely all started innocently enough. Perhaps the child has not been well and has not wanted to eat and his mother has been so concerned over it that has made the child feel very important. He has enjoyed having so much attention paid to him, so he has continued not eating in order to get it. The whole set-up should be changed. Instead of trying to force him to eat more, let it be a matter of complete indifference, and give him so little food he will want more. In the first place recognize the fact that a fast of a day or two will do no harm. Bring him in from play long enough before meals to get rested a bit so that he is not too tired to eat. Then give a very small amount of food. Give him servings so small that if he eats it he will want more. To want more food will be a surprise. Then give him very little more reluctantly. If he does not eat what has been given him, take it away from him after a few minutes and do not let him have it again. Act as you never acted before. Play a part. Pretend you do not care a bit whether he eats or not. The big thing is to build up a desire for food instead of a refusal. We are all contrary creatures and like what we cannot have. If he thinks he cannot have food, or if he gets very small servings he will want more. It very often pays to feed a child by itself so that there are no distractions. But do not let them dawdle over it. Just take it away. Even a small child knows you have to have gas to run a car. They can see that food is their gas and if they have not eaten they must rest more. There is not enough gas to run them far. Just tell them this it. Do not let a poor eater have food between meals at will. Give them a glass of fruit juice and a graham cracker or two, mid-morning and mid-afternoon. This is better than milk as it leaves the stomach quickly and does not spoil the appetite for the next meal. Try to change their attitude from that of fighting against food to wanting it.

SPICED BREAD PUDDING

1 Cup soft bread cubes, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon cloves, 2 cups scalded milk, 1 tablespoon molasses, 4 tablespoons melted butter.

Add bread cubes to scalded milk. Add the slightly beaten eggs and the remaining ingredients to the mixture. Pour into a greased casserole; set in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees until firm. Serve with cream.

PEANUT BUTTER DRESSING

1 Cup peanut butter or nut crush, ½ cup salad oil, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Combine all ingredients and beat with a rotary egg beater until well blended. Use on either vegetable or fruit salads.

Peanut butter is a good source of vitamin B1 and Riboflavin (B2), both of which are apt to be lacking in our diet.

No Sugar Needed To Can Rhubarb

There are various year-round ways of stretching the sugar ration, at the same time keeping monotony out of the wartime menu.

Rhubarb may be canned without sugar, and in this form will take less to sweeten when used in puddings and pies next winter. Here is the method recommended by the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture:

Wash rhubarb thoroughly. Drain. Cut stalks in one-inch pieces. Do not peel. Place in preserving kettle, covering with close-fitting lid. Set over low heat, or in the oven, until sufficient juice is extracted to cover the rhubarb, which takes about 20 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars, adjust rubbers and tops. Partially seal. Sterlize in a water bath for 16 minutes, or in the oven 20 minutes at 250F., then seal.

Strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, cherries, currants, plums and rhubarb can be packed in jars — crushed until the juice overflows, then sterilized. (A strong spoon makes a good crusher). In sterilizing allow five minutes longer than the time required when syrup is added. Fruit put down in this way is excellent for pies and puddings.

A Star Role for Salad Dressings

By Betty Barclay

This year, more than ever before, we must practice the trick of glorifying everyday greens and vegetables with a piquant dressing. Here are two delicately flavored dressings made by recipes with sweetened condensed milk. They can be made in five minutes and are smooth and failure-proof.

Economy Salad Dressing

1½ Cups (15 oz. can) sweetened condensed milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon dry mustard.

Blend thoroughly sweetened condensed milk, salt, vinegar, and mustard. Stir until mixture thickens. If thicker consistency is desired, place in refrigerator to chill before serving. Makes 1¾ cups.

Cottage Cheese Salad Dressing

⅔ Cup (7½ oz. can) sweetened condensed milk, ½ cup vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ cup cottage cheese.

Blend sweetened condensed milk, vinegar, salt, mustard, and paprika. Force cottage cheese through sieve and add to mixture, beating until smooth. (1 package — 3 ounces — cream cheese may be used instead of cottage cheese.) If thicker consistency is desired, chill in refrigerator before serving. Serve on fruit salad or salad greens.

OH, YES, FOLKS THERE'S FISH!

Salmon and Herring Going Overseas but Other kinds are Available

Ottawa, June 3 (CP)—Although Canada's entire pack of canned salmon and canned herring for 1942 is being sent to the United Kingdom, fisheries department officials said that Canadian housewives need not be disturbed.

They listed products of the sea still available for home tables:

Atlantic chicken haddies made from haddock, cod and hake; canned pilchards or anchovies from the Pacific coast; canned kippered herring and canned kippered snacks; canned sardines, and canned mackerel, pollock and tuna. In the shellfish class, canned lobster, clams, oysters and crabs will be available.

"True, housewives may not be able to secure what they formerly looked on as a regular standby in household diet, but there is a bright side to the picture, too," the department's statement said. "The domestic shortage of canned salmon and canned sea herring will be the means of bringing to many a Canadian table canned sea foods not formerly tried, and the introduction of many Canadians to varieties of fish they will agree have been too long overlooked."

PRISON CAMP SNAP BRINGS BACK PAY

London (CP)—A British prisoner of war sent his wife a photograph of himself taken at his prison camp and thereby unwittingly furnished her with the means of obtaining about $300 in back pay. The picture showed he had been promoted from private to sergeant during his imprisonment and the wife had received allowances only for a private.

40 MILES A DAY TO JOB AND BACK

Women Travel Long Distances for Heavy War Work in Old Land

London (CP)—Thousands of men and women are producing engines for Spitfires, Hurricanes, Wellingtons, Halifaxes, Beaufighters and other famous British warplanes in a factory once devoted to motor car engine construction.

Because of the isolation of the factory many of these employees have to make a long journey to get to their work. Jean Ross, a Churchill machine tool minder, rises daily at 4.45 a.m. walks 2½ miles to the bus and by the time she arrives home again at 9.45 p.m. she has travelled 40 miles.

Women comprise 33 per cent of the staff. They manufacture Merlin motors — 12 cylinder. Liquid cooled, they are the best airplane engines in the world—they call for such accuracy that some of the parts reach a quarter-of-a-thousandth of an inch, and it is women who carry out most of the delicate inspection of the parts.

GRANNY'S WAY, SUN AND SALT, IS GIVEN O.K.

Tin and Rubber Scarcity Brings Out the Good Old-Fashioned Methods of Preserving by Brining and Drying

Chicago, June 2 (CP)—Farmer housewives are using grandma's recipes to beat the canning shortage.

Foods from the spring victory garden, orchard, henhouse and dairy barn are beginning to find their way into cellars and pantries without benefit of precious tin and rubber.

With sunlight, a pinch of salt and simple kitchen utensils they're preserving everything from fruits and vegetables to cheese and meats.

In this back-to-nature movement Home Demonstration agents explain the methods to farm families and city folk as well in special training schools.

Four methods are demonstrated —drying, brining, cheese making and preserving eggs in water glass.

Miss Mary E. Loughead, an Arkansas extension specialist in foods and nutrition, explains that sun-drying is one of the oldest methods of food preservation known.

The only equipment necessary to sun-dry almost any kind of fruit or vegetable, she says is a clean surface such as boards, canvas or heavy wrapping paper, and a sloping roof with a southern exposure. The sun will do the rest.

Vegetable Solution

Brining is another easy method for preserving meats and some vegetables — cucumbers, cabbage, string beans, green tomatoes, small beets, carrots and corn on the cob. Brine for vegetables is made by mixing on the average of one pound of salt to nine pints of water.

Eggs bought during the spring when they are plentiful and comparably inexpensive can be kept in good condition for eight or nine months by storing them in a solution of water glass, or sodium silicate. The preserving mixture is made by mixing nine parts of boiled water and one part of sodium silicate. The eggs are placed in a crock and the cooled liquid is poured over them slowly, then the top of the crock is covered with a flour sack or square of muslin.

Cheese making is one of the oldest known methods of preserving milk. All equipment, with exception of a thermometer, is usually available on the farm. The method consists of heating the milk, curding, removal of the whey, pressing and curing.

"CAN WITH A PLAN" — SEASON'S SLOGAN FOR HOUSEWIFE'S WARTIME PROGRAM

Carry on with home canning! Make fruits and vegetables do their full share in building health for victory. Serve them fresh from now until fall, and can them for vitamin-rich meals when the growing season is past.

Can with a plan so that you will not have too much or too little of any variety. Can with care so that there will be no waste of products, time, energy, fuel, or sugar.

Chief causes of failure, says Miss Edith L. Elliott, Home Economist, Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, are poor products, too tight packing, carelessness in processing, opening jars after sterilizing, and improper sealing.

In canning, she points out, the preservative is heat; enough heat for the right length of time. Chemicals, even the common ones, salt and sugar are not necessary, and any others may be actually harmful.

Vegetables are canned without sugar, and so fruits may be done that way, too. The syrup permitted under sugar rationing is thin, but gives quite enough sweetening for palatability. It does not, however, act as a preservative as in thick preserves done in the open kettle and these are out under the rationing regulations.

Begin now to look over your canning equipment. Take stock of your jars. Examine the top edges to see they are smooth and free from chips. Rubber rings are highly important. New ones are best but this year old ones must be used if possible. A good rubber ring will not crack when bent or folded and will snap back to its original size when stretched. Test clamps and screw tops to be sure they make a perfect seal.

If you have more jars suitable for canning than you require for your own needs, share with someone who can make use of them. Press into use for jams and jellies those serviceable glass jars in which come peanut butter, conserves, salad dressing and the like. Jam tins, even cups that have lost their handles, and unused sugar bowls may be utilized with the aid of paraffin and an outer covering to keep off the dust.

Not everyone has a pressure cooker, and there will be no new ones, but everyone can have a water bath for canning, or use the oven. One does need a supply of small tools, but these are available in most every kitchen.

Miss Elliott has revised the canning bulletin issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to bring it in line with wartime regulations. This bulletin, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables," containing complete information on various methods will be sent on request by Publicity and Extension, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

CHURCHILL'S KISS FOR GIRL WORKER

Durham, Eng. (CP)—Miss Gladys Stoddard is the custodian of a kiss from Prime Minister Churchill to the girl workers of a munitions plant here. On behalf of the girl workers she presented Mr. Churchill with a cigar during his inspection of the plant. When he took the cigar the prime minister asked Gladys if he should kiss her. "Before I could answer," said Gladys, "he did kiss me".

To test the electric waffle iron for the right heat, place a sheet of white paper between the grids. When the paper turns brown, the iron is then ready to receive the first batch of waffles.

After the week-end guest had departed, the hostess was tidying up.

"There," she exclaimed in disgust. "I knew that friend of yours wasn't to be trusted. I've just counted the towels and one of them is missing."

"Was it a good one?" asked hubby anxiously.

Red Cross Seeking Co-operation of W.I.

The Canadian Red Cross last year asked the 75,000 members of the Women's Institutes of Canada to co-operate in a jam, jelly, canned fruit and honey project for Britain. The result of this co-operation was that 223 tons of these products were sent overseas.

This year the co-operation of Canadian Institutes is asked by the Red Cross in a national objective of 600,000 pounds of jam and honey.

Here's One Reason Clothes Are Rationed

London (CP)—No wonder there has to be a cut-down in the amount of clothes available. Before the war there were 30,000 factories and workshops making clothing for women and girls. Now only 1,500 are operating, the others having been turned to straight war production.

It is estimated that in the first year of clothes rationing in Great Britain 250,000 tons of shipping were saved on textiles alone and 400,000 men and women were released to the fighting services and war industries.

SAVE BEAUTY GADGETS FOR FUTURE REFILLS

Cherish the lipstick containers you now have on hand, girls! These and other such fancy divices as vanities, mascara cases, rouge and powder compacts are going to be mighty scarce. So are cold cream jars and bottles with metal and plastic tops.

The supply of most cosmetics themselves will probably be adequate if women use no more than they need, but the necessity for use of nearly all kinds of metals in the war effort requires that jars be made only with paper, or other non-permanent lids. Old containers that can be used over and over again for refills are now among the 'musts' on the personal salvage list.

NEW FOOD RACKET

London (CP)—Newest type of food racketeer calls on housewives in the guise of food inspector, asks to see their cupboards and makes "confiscations".

VISITING SCOUT'S TROOP AWARDED SILVER CROSS

An unusual gallantry award, a Scout Silver Cross for the 110th Glasgow Boy Scout Troop as a body, in recognition of exceptionally courageous service as stretcher bearers and hospital attendants throughout the heavy air raids of last year over the Clydeside, has just been announced from London. This is the troop of which Scout Hugh Bright, one of the four "blitz trained" Scouts now visiting Canada, is the Troop Leader. The decoration was also awarded the 110th's Scoutmaster, Thomas Kinvig, "for inspiring leadership given by him during the raids."

GIVE RADIO TIPS ON WARTIME HOLIDAYS

Patriotic vacations this year will be cheap, to save money for Victory Loans; near home to save gas, tires and railroad facilities; and full of sun and fresh air to save up stores of energy for a maximum war effort. Elspeth Chisholm, CBC's commentator on all sorts of things, has gone into the matter of holidays pretty thoroughly, and will tell National Network listeners her conclusions in a series of Thursday afternoon talks, commencing today, at 4.03 p.m. EDT.

The subject of today's talk is "Hiking Holiday", and subsequent broadcasts will deal with the delights and problems of bicycling, camping out, and canoe trips. Miss Chisholm has asked for tips from a number of experts on these matters, and it is expected that some of these experts will appear in person before the microphone in CBC's Toronto studios.

New Stamp Series To Be Issued July 1

Designs depicting Canada's part in the war, which will appear on a new series of Canadian postage stamps, were described to the House of Commons recently by Postmaster General Mulock.

Mr. Mulock also announced issuance of a new 16-cent air mail special delivery stamp.

Portraits of King George will appear on four of the stamps. He will be shown in naval uniform on the green one-cent stamp and the blue five-cent stamp. The brown two-cent stamp will carry the King's portrait in military uniform and the red three-cent stamp in air force uniform.

Agriculture will be represented in grain elevators which appear on the grey four-cent stamp and in a Canadian farm scene on the sepia eight-cent stamp.

A Ram tank, representing the army, will be shown on the dark green 13-cent stamp; a Canadian corvette ready for launching on the purple 20-cent stamp; a Royal Canadian Navy destroyer on the blue $1 stamp; and a picture illustrating the Commonwealth Air Training Plan on the six-cent blue air mail stamp.

The brown 10-cent stamp will show the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa with a Union Jack, and a munitions plant will be illustrated on the brown 50-cent stamp. The 10-cent green special delivery stamp will carry the Canadian coat of arms and flags.

The new 16-cent air mail special delivery stamp will show a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane in flight and will be of a blueish-violet shade.

FILMS BRIDGE GAP BETWEEN PUBLIC AND FRONT LINE

(Condensed from the New York Sunday Times)

In Canada one weapon has been brought into full use on the home front: that weapon is the film. With the exception of Russia and Germany no nation has been so sentitive to the importance of films in the war effort.

This year the National Film Board of Canada will produce and release an approximate total of 150,000 feet of film in 150 items. This output is divided between theatrical and non-theatrical films. Of these, the former category includes the "Canada Carries On" series, which alternate between those short subjects, describing Canada's relation to the world war, and those which describe Canada's war effort in more purely national terms; they include weekly news clips and novelty trailers on government campaigns; one-reel musicals incorporating patriotic choruses, and a news review in French.

The non-theatrical films are devised to bring information to specific audiences such as the Air Raid Precautions or the Women's Auxiliaries. These are departmental films on specific aspects of the war effort, films promoting tourism in Canada, films for the armed services, films prepared from overseas material showing what other countries are doing on matters of interest to Canada.

All this production is under the direct control of the National Film Board, which was established several years ago according to a bill drawn up by John Grierson, the dynamic little Scot who is now its executive officer.

Of the 1,000-odd theatres in Canada approximately 900 exhibitors today are showing the "Canada Carries On" series, and paying better prices for them than any other short subjects. Such films as "Atlantic Patrol", or "Letter from Aldershot" are bridging the gap between the public and the front line.

Ludendorff once said that propaganda is the pace-maker of policy. The Canadian National Film Board, in these films, is attempting to give the people a great hope and a great faith in themselves and in a brave new world. It is making the people full partners in the grim but hopeful odyssey of this generation.

"Ride 'Em, Cowboy" Is Wholehearted Fun

"Ride 'Em, Cowboy" — at the Capitol, Brownsburg, next Sunday and Monday—features Bud Abbott and Lou Costello with many wild, unbelievable gags and slapstick — with a full complement of pretty girls and happy tunes, and a complex of unbelievable situations.

Appropriately cast as a pair of hot-dog vendors at a rodeo who get into trouble and escape in a box-car which was reserved for a bunch of long-horn steers, Lou and Bud find themselves at a dude ranch, the setting for the rest of the fun, the melodies and the amount of romance which is allowed to seep in around the edges. This Abbott-Costello material is unashamedly patterned on the oldest of vaudeville and burlesque patter. But it gains lots of laughs and the audiences love it.

Straight roles are played by Dick Foran, Anne Gwynne and Johnny Mack Brown. The Merry Macs, the Hit-Hatters and the Ranger Chorus of 40 carry the musical part of the show. This is good, wholehearted fun of a type we seem to need right now.

Probe on Hong Kong Expeditionary Force Absolves Officers and Officials of "Error In Judgment or Dereliction of Duty"

"The Week at Ottawa"

By BOB FRANCIS, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 10 (CP) — Long-awaited findings of the royal commission which probed the dispatch of the Canadian expeditionary force to Hong Kong now are before members of parliament and the public.

The report of Chief Justice Lyman Duff, absolving Canadian government officials and officers of the services of "dereliction of duty or error in judgment," with one relatively minor exception, was under close study. Meanwhile parliament prepared for a debate on the touchy issue of conscription for military service anywhere.

After weeks of protracted debate, the House of Commons at adjournment time last Friday approved the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill resolution and gave the bill first reading.

The government's price ceiling policy was given a thorough going-over during the closing stages of the debate, with Finance Minister Ilsley defending it as the surest means of guarding against inflation.

With the war appropriation bill resolution out of the way, the decks are cleared for parliament to proceed with the agenda before it. Prime Minister Mackenzie King's proposed bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act—on which the conscription debate will hinge—is one of the major items. Another one is the budget. But when it will be brought down is anybody's guess.

Hong Kong Probe

Sir Lyman Duff's report termed Canada's expeditionary force to Hong Kong one of which the Dominion "can and should be proud." The report said inclusion of a small number of partially trained men did not handicap the expedition, nor was there evidence the force suffered through lack of certain equipment which failed to arrive.

Mechanical transport intended for the Canadian garrison would have arrived before the Japanese attack if the American ships carrying it had not been diverted by United States authorities. Arms and ammunition were shipped with the troops, however.

The chief justice did, however, suggest that the quartermaster's branch might have shown more "initiative and energy" and taken advantage of the opportunity to place some 20 motor vehicles on the transport which took the expedition to Hong Kong.

The royal commission inquiry, held in camera, was precipitated by charges from Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, that the expedition contained untrained troops and was not properly equipped.

Air Training Agreement

A new air training agreement was signed in Ottawa last Friday, formally confirming the previously-announced decision that the Commonwealth Air Training Plan will be continued and extended.

Under the new set-up Canada will bear one-half of the cost. New Zealand and Australia will pay the cost of training the men they send to Canada, and the United Kingdom will bear half the total cost, less the payments made by Australia and New Zealand.

The agreement was signed by representatives of the four British commonwealth powers who were in session discussing the plan for two weeks. It runs from July 1 of this year until March 31, 1945.

Changes in System

The national defence department announced that from now on men due for compulsory military service are being called daily except Saturday and Sunday, instead of once a month. The new system went into effect from June 8.

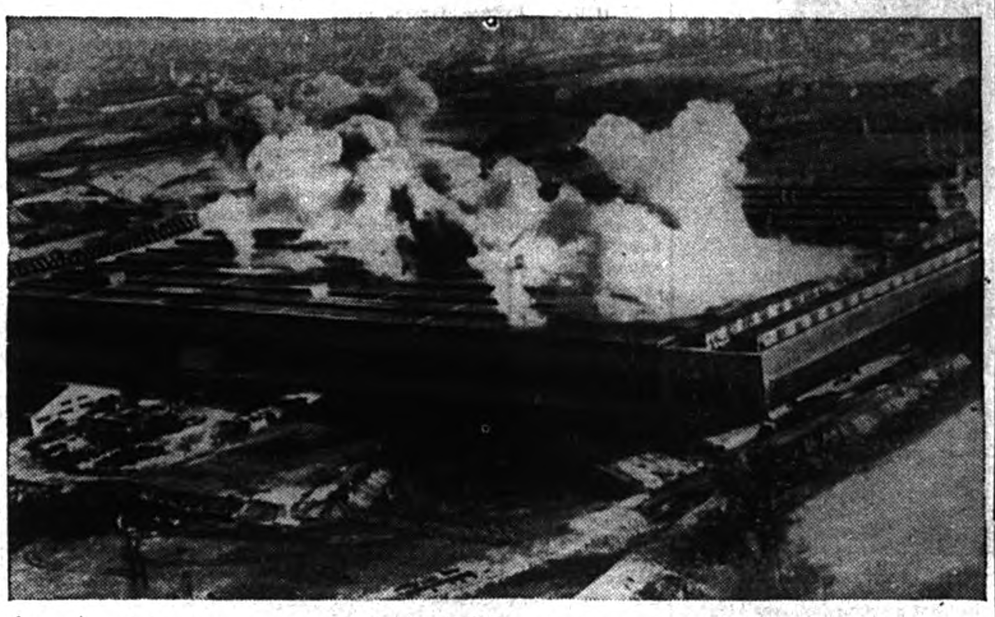

The men must now report to district army depots instead of going direct to basic training centres. For the present however, men continue to report directly to basic centres at Chicoutimi, Que.; Rimouski, Que.; Charlottetown; Fort William; Brantford, Ont.; Newmarket, Ont.; and Grande Prairie, Alta.

News of the week for housewives was the announcement that coupon rationing of certain commodities was on the way, with sugar likely to be the first item on the list.

Voluntary rationing had worked out satisfactorily so far with tea, coffee and sugar, it was said, but it was thought in the long run coupons would aid the buyer in keeping a check on his own consumption of goods.

Opening Events Presage A Good Golfing Season

SEVERAL AWARDS, LADIES' AND MEN'S CONTESTS, TO SINGLE FAMILY

OPENING PLAY SATURDAY

Under ideal weather conditions Lachute Golf Club held its opening tournament of the season on Saturday afternoon, June 6, attended by an enthusiastic turnout.

The Captains had arranged a 9-hole competition for ladies and an 18-hole competition for the men.

Both tournaments were keenly contested and some very good scores were registered. Miss Shirley Leggett was declared the winner of the Ladies' Handicap with a gross of 56—net 38, and George Leggett, Jr., for the men, with a score of 96 gross—net 68.

An appetizing supper prepared by the ladies was enjoyed by the players and club members.

The first weekly men's 9-hole handicap got off to a good start on Tuesday, June 9, with sixteen entries. Geo. Leggett, Sr., continued the Leggett family's winning ways by taking three straight prizes, performing the "hat trick."

Members are asked to bear in mind the next mixed tournament, on Wednesday, June 17; the ladies will again serve supper before the tournament, from 5.30 to 6.30 p.m.

The officers of the Club have worked faithfully so that golf enthusiasts may enjoy the privileges and comforts of the beautiful clubhouse.

A special sum of $100 has been set aside to provide prizes for the various events to take place during the summer, and the Captains have arranged a full and attractive program for the season.

Ladies' Club Events

Among the lady golfers of the Lachute Club a four-ball foursome was played on Tuesday, June 9, the winner being Mrs. W. M. Cottingham.

Next tournament will be held on Tuesday, June 16, at 2.30 o'clock.

2 Municipalities Donate, To Bring Lachute Total Close to Its Objective

As the result of two contributions from municipal corporations in the Lachute Unit's canvassing area, and a few additial donations from individuals, the total for Lachute in the Red Cross Drive now amounts to $4,872.18 — which is only $127.82 short of its $5,000 objective.

The Municipality of Wentworth and the Argenteuil County Council each have voted the sum of $100 since last report on the local canvass. Although the National Campaign is now nominally closed it is not too late for local organizations, or citizens who have been overlooked in the canvass to send in a donation and thus set the local achievement well over its quota.

W.I. Banquet in Observance of 16th Anniversary

REPORT HEARD ON FIRST MEETINGS OF GROUP IN BROWNSBURG

CHARTER MEMBERS PRESENT

Brownsburg—The Women's Institute of Brownsburg spent an enjoyable evening at a banquet on their 16th anniversary, held in the basement of the Maple Avenue Church on the evening of May 26.

The supper was sponsored by the young people of the church. The banquet opened with the singing of grace and repeating the Mary Stewart Collect.

The toast to the King was proposed by the president, Mrs. Chas. Vary, and responded to by singing "God Save the King". A toast was then proposed by Mrs. Pike to the visitors, and responded to by Mrs. C. Baugh, of Lakefield. A toast was given by Mrs. Lemuel Wilson to the charter members and responded to by Mrs. Arthur Campbell, of Dalesville, who expressed her pleasure in the work she had shared with the branch for the past 16 years.

The president then called upon Mrs. Baugh, county president, to say a few words. Mrs Baugh spoke of the Women's Institute Creed and how the members should try to live up to it in their daily lives . . . Mrs. Geo. Armstrong, of Lachute Road, honorary president of the County W.I., also expressed her pleasure in being present; she stated that she thought she would now be left to take a back seat as a new county president had been chosen, and she likewise made reference to the W.I. Creed.

The president then asked Mrs. John McOuat, charter member, from Montreal, to say a few words. Mrs. McOuat expressed her appreciation for the invitation to attend this banquet, and spoke of the first meeting of the branch when it was organized, of her work with the first president, Mrs. Z. L. Campbell, and the fellowship of those meetings. Mrs. Ruby Kennedy of Brownsburg gave a report of the earliest meetings. The first gathering had been held in the United Church on May 3, 1926, with eight members joining. On May 10 another meeting was held and 13 more members enrolled; thus the branch was formed . . . The president thanked Mrs. Kennedy for her fine report.

The pleasant evening was brought to a close by singing the Ode.

Watch Tires and Gas

(Winchester Press)

Motorists are cautioned to keep an eye on their tires and gasoline which are very attractive now to thieves. One local business man last week found that while his car was parked for a couple of hours in the afternoon on a business street in Montreal, an attempt was made to take one of his tires. When he returned to his car, he found the hub had gone and an attempt had been made to loosen the nuts holding the wheel.

Natural Causes in Death of Week-ender At La Baie, St. Andrews

HEART FAILURE GIVEN AS CAUSE

At La Baie, St. Andrews East, on Sunday night, the death occurred of Georges Fortier, of 1090 Cartier Street, Montreal. The victim, a widower, 51 years of age, was spending the week-end with his brother, sister-in-law and a party of friends at a summer camp belonging to Henri Ouelette.

Complaining of symptoms which he thought to be indigestion, the man was out rowing on the river with his sister-in-law and another woman, when the boat was brought to shore and he collapsed. Dr. A. L'Allier was summoned from St. Andrews village, and Fortier was carried to the nearby cottage on a storm-door. He appeared to recover, but as the physician was leaving, the man's friends hurried to recall him and the victim died soon after.

Investigating the circumstances, Coroner W. F. McMartin, M.D., prounced death due to natural causes.

Confirm Death of Brownsburg Man In Merchant Navy

Word that his son, Ward, was lost at sea through enemy action was confirmed in a message received from the Admiralty last week by Ernest Charles Kennedy, teamster, of Brownsburg. Kennedy worked in the tool shop of the Brownsburg munitions plant, later leaving for Verdun, after which he joined the merchant marine.

To the bereaved family, sincere sympathy is expressed by the community in their loss.

News of Kennedy's death was given out by the Ministry of War Transport in a list of 98 members of the merchant navy and fishing fleets lost by enemy action on various dates.

Brownsburg Now Has Systematic Salvage Canvass

FIRST COLLECTION IS MADE TRUCKS LOANED FOR USE OF COMMITTEE

REGULAR MONTHLY TOUR

Brownsburg — With their usual thoroughness of organization displayed in community ventures, the citizens of Brownsburg have commenced the collection of local salvage in a systematic way. The initial canvass was made Wednesday evening and regular collection will be made on the second Wednesday of every month.

Specially built receptacles have been placed at gates of the C-I-L and D.I.L. plants for depositing rubber salvage, and many old auto tires and rubber articles have been piled up in this way.

Outside the plant a committee has been set up by Sam Rose. They have obtained from Omer Legault the camp he used on the hill a number of years ago when driving logs down the river. This has been placed at the disposal of the committee and will be properly guarded.

Citizens who have placed their vehicles at the disposal of the committee are: Jim Hazel; Red Monette; Tom Carpenter; Bill Hewitt; E. Monette; J. Lacasse; G. I. McFaul; H. Pariseau; P. E. Mailhot; J. D. Lepine; J. Malacket; Tom Hall; J. R. Lafleur; H. Graves. The C-I-L truck has also been made available.

For the purposes of the collection, the town has been divided into nine sections having respective heads: J. D. Lepine; H. Jackson; S. E. Rose; Geo. Ball; Mrs. Earl Smillie; Jim Donaldson; Lem Wilson; Gaston Proulx; Adrien Lacasse.

Dennis Staniforth has been able to enlist the co-operation of the Boy Scouts and others will be asked to lend voluntary assistance to the collection.

St. Andrews Red Cross Receives Acknowledgment Of Efforts in Salvage

St. Andrews E.—The committees that are working on the salvage campaign will be interested in hearing of an acknowledgment received by the St. Andrews East branch of the Red Cross. Mr. Desloges, manager of the Montreal and District Salvage Campaign, writes as follows to Mr. Yale, Chairman of St. Andrews Salvage Committee:

"We wish to thank your salvage committee and yourself for the splendid work you did. If all salvage drives were conducted the way yours was, it would be a pleasure to receive shipments. . . . We can assure you that there were never any out of town or city drives where all the different kinds of salvage were put up in a way that was as easy to handle and load up as yours . . . There were 8,575 lbs. of salvage in the load we received from you."

FINE WEATHER NEEDED TO ENSURE SUCCESS OF SHOW

Big Entry List of Livestock

Main Building Booths Occupied by Industrial and Agricultural Displays, Women's Inst. Handicrafts and Cookery

Kiwanis Club Competition Saturday

An entry of horse and cattle exhibits much larger than in previous years, is recorded with the opening of Lachute Spring Fair, which took place this morning. The Fair will remain in full swing Friday and Saturday. Whereas last year's exhibits of Holstein cattle numbered only two herds, this year nine have been entered for competition. There are also more entries of Ayrshires.

In the horse classes Gilbert Arnold, of Grenville, has a showing of 96 fine animals; E. C. Budge has 13 Belgians, while other local and outside exhibitors will complete with entries of well-bred stock in various breeds.

Sheep, swine and poultry classes are well represented and will show keen competition.

Show-Ring Attractions

On Saturday morning at 10 o'clock there will be a boys' and girls' competition, in co-operation with the Kiwanis Club of Montreal, for the best judging of livestock and horses. In addition to prizes already shown in the prize list, $15 extra has been donated by local citizens in this competition.

Throughout the Fair there will be the usual horse-racing events in the afternoons, and close competition is anticipated from both local and outside owners. The race track, considered as one of the best in rural Canadian exhibitions, is in excellent shape, and there should be some very fine performances in the trotting competitions.

The show-ring in front of the grand stand will be in constant use for the judging, and for the scheduled jumping, competitions in saddle classes, tandems and single horses to buggy, with lady and gentlemen drivers, ponies and heavy draft horse displays. In between these events and the races there will be a vaudeville performance on the stage.

Main Building Exhibits

Space is well taken up in the Main Building. Cottingham Supply Company has a splendid show which exemplifies the firm's slogan, "Everything to Build Anything." Other exhibitors are R. McArthur & Son, J. W. Lefebvre, Federal Dept. of Agriculture, Ogilvie Flour Mills, F. Wexler Furs, Quaker Oats Co., Women's Institute Handicrafts, Provincial Dept. of Agriculture, Canada Packers, H. S. Sherman, Toronto, demonstrating with "Mendall" Cement, and Hollywood Perfumes—the former of which he claims will mend everything but a broken heart, while the latter product will capture any heart.

In the lunch counter and dining-hall, the ladies of Lachute Women's Institute are catering to the public with their usual friendly service and efficiency. From the splendid manner in which they have served the public in past year, it is hoped they will again be given hearty support in their effort to raise funds for war and social work.

On the midway set-up Fred Sims, director, presents this year a larger and better entertainment than ever. Ridee-O, the only ride of this kind in Canada and one of the show's new attractions, is something Fatal Accident In Sawmill at Grenville, Que.

HAWKESBURY MAN STRUCK BY FLYING BOARD IN DANSEREAU MILL

DIES OF INJURIES

Donat Menard, 40-year-old resident of Hawkesbury, died in the early hours of Saturday morning as the result of injuries sustained while working at the Dansereau sawmill three days previously.

According to the evidence of two fellow workers Menard, whose job was to clear lumber from the saw, was struck in the abdomen by a board flung from an edger. The accident occurred on the afternoon of June 3. The victim was immediately conveyed on a truck to Hawkesbury, where he received treatment from Dr. T. Smith after which the man walked to his home. The following day, however, his condition became worse and he was removed to the Notre Dame Hospital, where he succumbed to his injuries at 1 a.m. on Saturday.

An inquest was held at the office of Geo. Dansereau & Fils Ltée., mill operators. Under supervision of Dr. W. F. McMartin, district coroner, the jury composed of Grenville citizens returned a verdict of accidental death.

Donat Menard is survived by his wife and several children.

Check Your Methods To Save Energy — Is Conservation Theme

These days when conservation of labor is so important, home and farm workers might well take a leaf from the book of efficiency experts in industry whose sole job is to see that there is no waste of time or energy in the interest of increased production. In a hundred small ways the worker can improve his methods with an eye to turning salvaged energy in other useful channels.

Here are a few suggestions: Have all working surfaces at a comfortable height so as to avoid stooping or stretching, and keep frequently used articles easily accessible; keep knives, scissors and choppers well sharpened; fix doors, windows or drawers that stick, and latches, knobs, handles or hinges that have become loose; cut down on accidents by immediate repair of loose or broken steps on ladders or stairs; keep cleaning cloths, cleaners and polishes in a basket that can be easily moved from room to room on cleaning day; equip the kitchen with large, inexpensive trays to save steps when setting the table, baking and preserving.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

London (CP)—Lord Teviot was assured police are on the lookout for sales of wood alcohol disguised as whisky after he had told the House of Lords that friends had "just escaped death after very abstemious drinking in an eminent London hotel."

Metal Conservation

In a patriotic effort to conserve metal, the Province of Quebec is this year issuing only one licence plate to motorists. The province's patriotism is cancelled by the enterprise of a manufacturer of novelties, who has put on the market a "V for Victory" plate, of the same size, shape and metal as the missing licence-plate, and intended to fill the gap caused by official economy.

In past years, one dollar of the Quebec licence fee was supposed to cover the actual cost of the plates, and if the Wartime Prices and Trade Board had authority over provincial government transactions, it would seem reasonable for Quebec motorists to expect a fifty-cent reduction in their fees in lieu of the undelivered plate. But the province's attitude towards this suggestion was expressed by a very hearty gentleman in the Montreal licence offices, who said, "Last year you got two plates for one dollar; this year you get only one. That means more profit for us."

B.C. WORRIED ABOUT PICKERS ON FRUIT CROP

Big Apple Crop Expected; Local Help Scarce; Japs or Doukhobors May Be Brought In

Kelowna, B.C., June 8 (CP)—British Columbia's great fruit belt, the Okanagan Valley, faces one of the worst labor shortages in its history as the harvesting of a bumper crop approaches.

The war has cut deeply into the ranks of harvest hands. With the main harvest season still months away, fruit ranchers are worried lest one of the Valley's biggest crops—apples alone estimated at more than 7,000,000 boxes—be left unpicked on the trees.

The Valley is organizing to meet the crisis. Thinning of the trees, which begins in a few weeks, will be the first call for additional labor, but the big rush will come in September when the vast McIntosh apple crop must be picked in 10 days while the tomato crop is also at its height and canning and packing houses are operating to capacity.

Many areas have made a house-to-house canvass of citizens to form "harvest crops" of businessmen, women and children in case other means are not found to meet the labor shortage. The harvest season in the Valley may see townsmen in shirtsleeves working beside housewives and children in the orchards. It may see Japanese or Doukhobors brought in for the packing job.

Citizens Help Listed

Available men, women, boys and girls of fruit district towns who could aid in the harvest have been listed. As a result, Oliver district growers say they could squeeze by with an additional 50 to 75 pickers combined with available local labor.

Similar steps have been taken in the Penticton and Kelowna areas. At the former centre more than 100 persons — businessmen, stenographers, office workers, housewives and children — have answered the call of the Penticton Civic Committee for formation of a labor pool. At Kelowna a harvest corps of men, women and youths has been set up.

At these centres some housewives may be asked to provide lunches for a number of children during the harvest season, to release other mothers for the picking. Creches may be organized for the care of babies whose mothers are working in the orchards.

Appeal to Authorities

Kelowna and Vernon districts have pressed to have the Japanese brought in provided they leave again when the picking is done.

A delegation of the British Columbia Fruit Growers Association recently met members of the B.C. Security Commission in charge of evacuating Japanese from the coast. The fruit men received the Commission's promise not to oppose any effort to persuade the department of labor to permit the Japanese to aid in picking. The B.C.-F.G.A. has approached Labor Minister Mitchell on the matter and is awaiting a reply.

A similar labor crisis in the soft-fruit growing belt in the Fraser Valley may be met by bringing in hundreds of Doukhobor pickers from the B.C. Kootenay Valley. Penticton fruit growers say their labor problems could be solved if the Doukhobors could be brought to the Okanagan when the Fraser Valley pick is completed.

SMUGGLED NEWS WITH MILK CAN IN OLD EUROPE

Secret Papers Flood Nazi-Ridden Nation, Reach People by Many "Underground" Routes

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP)—Hundreds of underground newspapers read eagerly by news-hungry people who dare not listen to foreign broadcasts are being printed in German-occupied Europe. The number of publications from secret presses in Europe isn't known in London but Norway has 24, Poland 140 and Belgium about 40.

In Holland, France, Greece and Czecho-Slovakia, too forbidden newspapers are being printed by former journalists who resigned their jobs rather than work under the Nazis, students or people who work for the Germans during the daylight and against them by night. Death is the penalty for those who are caught.

Some papers which have reached London are crudely duplicated sheets with a circulation of fewer than 100. Others are well-printed with circulation of more than 20,000. In many instances the printing presses are hidden in forests and the papers are brought to town beneath piles of vegetables and distributed in loaves of bread or pushed inside empty milk cans.

Big Circulations

In Norway secret publications today include a full-sized newspaper under the name of Tidens Tegn (Sign of the Times), which claims to have a larger circulation than the old-established pre-war daily of the same name. Refugees from Poland report the great flood of illegal newspapers, including illustrated weeklies and a children's issue, is causing the Gestapo no end of trouble. In some cases the Nazis have distributed faked "Free Polish" papers and then arrested those found possessing copies.

Poland's underground papers have adopted names which symbolize the fierce desire of the inhabitants for freedom. They include the Sword and the Plow, the Barricade, the Fighting Worker, the Voice of Warsaw and the Fight for Freedom.

Dodge Nazi Police

Many of France's illegal presses keep changing their location to avoid discovery. La Voix de Paris mentions in each edition the number of "head offices" it has occupied—more than 40.

In Holland, as in London, Vrij Nederland (Free Netherlands) is published regularly, as is one called Geuzen, the name given to Netherlanders who played a major part in Holland's struggle against Spain.

Patriots in Czecho-Slovakia still talk of Jos. Skalda, one of their foremost editors. Throughout the height of German repression, Skalda published V Boj (On to Battle) which appeared every Friday.

Although he printed every issue at a different place, Gestapo agents finally tracked him down, killed him and dispersed his staff. But the paper didn't die. Refugees say that V Boj is appearing again under new management.

VACATION HAZARDS EXPOSE CHILDREN

Unlike blushing brides, children regard June as a time when school empties and summer begins. Vacations are at hand with the hazards to which they are exposed. For instance, there is the "old swimmin' hole" to which children turn for relief on a sweltering day. Most often they are unaccompanied and this, when a lack of supervision is considered, offers hazards that take their toll during the season.

Also, there are the traffic dangers to impress upon children. One of the first rules they should be taught is to look both ways when at a crossing. They should not play on the street nor hitch rides on vehicles.

Children on bicycles must, like motorists, obey traffic rules. Safety ordains that they ride to the extreme right of the street. They should not carry playmates on the cross or handle bar. In fact there are laws against this practice. All bicycles should be properly equipped with a light in front, a reflector behind, good brakes and a horn.

Want Pictures To Aid Allies

London (CP) — The Admiralty has appealed to Frenchmen through the Free French newspaper, France, for the loan of photographs taken in France, the French Empire or elsewhere in the world outside the United Kingdom. The appeal follows an earlier one to Britons and the pictures are used to supplement topographical information already possessed by the Admiralty. The authorities are interested particularly in pictures of towns, beaches, bridges, highways and railroads taken within the last 10 years.

19 Tractor Plows Resemble 'Tank Battle'

Cartwright, Man., June 9 (CP)—When Farmer F. R. Kidgell, member of the Cartwright Co-operative Farmers, was unable to get his crop seeded this spring because of illness, 19 members of the district co-operative came to his rescue and plowed, seeded and harrowed his entire 480 acres in a single day. "It was like a giant tank battle," said one of the spectators who gathered from the southwestern Manitoba district for miles around to witness the 19-tractor scrimmage.

London (CP)—City children evacuated to country areas are going to know what farming is all about after the war. Courses have been started for the older children to teach them mechanical and agricultural science.

PROFIT AND PLEASURE FROM SOIL TESTING

By G. R. SNYDER

Soil testing has successfully passed the novelty stage and is now being widely accepted by farmers as a real and valuable aid in the solving of soil fertility problems and in the determination of the best type of fertilizer to use to supply the plant food requirements of the many kinds of crops produced from Canadian soils.

Just how popular and beneficial soil testing has become is best illustrated by the following typical replies to a soil test questionaire sent out to farmers who had soil tested in 1940 and reaped the benefits in 1941:

Quebec Farmers:

"Your soil test report has rendered me a great service. I fertilized my land exactly as indicated in the report. On my registered oats there was no lodging, the grain was larger, the yield 10 bushels per acre higher, and I will have higher quality grain for the seed-cleaning plant".

"Your soil test report has rendered excellent service. I am satisfied that, in spite of dryness, I got a yield of 5 to 8 bushels per acre more. I harvested nice grain, straight, easy to gather, uniform, no noticeable lodging."

"Yes, soil testing is essential in this district. I have used fertilizer previously without soil test and did not have good results. I want to send more samples, one from the tomato field and the other from the pasture."

"Yes, we had used plenty of manure and lots of lime and were unable to understand poor returns. Apparently it was the lack of phosphorous and potash. This year our grain filled well and did not lodge."

"Yes, because it has taught me the points of difference in the soils on my property. This year my potato crop yielded very well, and the quality was superior; this in spite of the fact that the weather was extremely dry."

Ontario Farmers:

"Your soil test report helped greatly. The grain on the field that was fertilized according to test stood well where it was to lodge. The catch of clover and grass was excellent."

"Yes, sir! it is one good way to know the kind of fertilizer required to suit the soil. I had an increase of 15 to 20 bushels per acre of oats and a much better catch of grass seed."

"Your soil test has been a definite help in keeping our orchards in their present high state of vigour and health."

"We followed your recommendations to the letter. The yield of oats was doubled, and we had a better catch of new seeding. We want our corn land tested and information regarding the fertilizing of this crop."

Salute to Bravery — Significance of "Army Week"

In order that the people of Canada may have an opportunity of expressing their pride in the Canadian Army and to honor the Gentleman in Battledress, the Nursing Sisters and the members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, it has been decided to mark the period from June 29 to July 5, 1942, "as Army Week".

The glamor and the splendor of the armed services, the martial music and the colorful parades, are today largely a memory of peacetime. The red tunics and pillbox hats of our academy cadets . . . the parade-ground spectacle of a Kipling poem . . . these have given way to the grim realities of service, in a war yet unparalleled in history. Yet the spectacle is a symbol, a drama of high ideal and honor — the honor which sacrifices all in blood and dust, in fire and merciless seas, for the protection of home and country.

It requires no deep meditation to stir our esteem for those who serve in the armed ranks. The faults, shortcomings and abuses—these are many. Nor do we belittle the flaws in the machinery of war; we accept them as inevitable in this vast effort, instituted by a statecraft unused to its ways, versed only in the strategies of civil life and peaceful procedure. On the contrary, we cannot but marvel at the extent to which Canada's war enterprise has developed today.

In "Army Week" civilian Canada will doff its hat in a brief display of its feelings. We shall salute the soldiers, the nurses, yes and the airmen, the seamen who are saluting us — saluting our cities and our countrysides, our homes and schools and churches, not with pomp and display but with a grim and costly sacrifice.

Gasoline Categories

The gradual adjustment of unfair gas ration classifications, since the ruling was applied on April 1, is a welcome sign to minimum-rated drivers who, although anxious to do their share in economizing, have revolted at the concessions made to other motorists without apparent justification.

Prospects of a cut in the 5-gallon unit appear probable in the future. If this is necessary, the move will be accepted philosophically, we feel sure.

One complaint heard occasionally from the business category of drivers would seem, however, to have some foundation. Although their treatment may, in fact, be just and sound, it would call for a little explanation to those who do not follow the logic of officialdom . . .

The complaint concerns an understanding — or misunderstanding — that drivers in higher-than-"A" (i.e. business) categories cannot use any of their fuel supply for pleasure purposes. Apparently, a man using his own car in a business which requires a higher category, is deprived of the pleasure driving to which he would be entitled if it were not used for business. — If this is so, why? . . . One instance of an adjustment made on these grounds, is the recent case of a Toronto motorist. A number of friends wished to visit a community near the city, and one of them took the rest in his car so as to save gas. He had a higher-than-"A" coupon book, but because he took this short pleasure drive he has had to revert to "A" category.

Behind the Cash Register

Merchants of this community have been periodically urged by The Watchman to display a touch of salesmanship in disposing of War Savings Stamps, in lieu of change to their customers. Few of our retailers have been following this suggestion — an idea which if generally adopted, could give a marked impetus to War Savings.

Now, more than 90,000 retail dealers across Canada will be asked to pledge themselves to press the sale of these stamps for the war, as representatives of the National War Finance Committee, according to George W. Spinney, chairman.

Pledgees will receive official window signs confirming them in their appointment as representatives of the Committee, which is charged with selling the idea of thrift to Canadians through the regular purchase of War Savings stamps and certificates.

Mr. Spinney explains that if the sale of war savings stamps has not been on what might be called a "total war" scale thus far, one of the adverse factors was that in many cases people had to go some distance to get them. To overcome this, the aid of the responsibe merchants of Canada is being enlisted, and their obvious pre-campaign interest is of good augury, according to Mr. Spinney.

Having due regard to the increased incomes of many wage and salary earners in the Dominion, no means should be overlooked to remind Canadians of the twofold investment in every purchase of War Savings stamps or certificates — thrift and a stake in victory.

Ration the Talk

Parliament has been in session more than four months and still has to deal with the budget, most of the estimates, the Government's manpower policy. Members of the House of Commons seem to be reconciled to sitting through much of the summer.

Dr. Blair, Liberal member for Wellington North, has spoken critically of "excessive speechmaking" which, he says, "takes up the time of the House and wastes the money of the country". There has been similar criticism from other members.

The official report of House debates for this session already runs to 3,250 pages, which means some 3,000,000 words. Nobody would pretend that all of them were wise words, or even sensible words, or that democracy or the war effort would have suffered had a lot of them remained unspoken . . . A steady perusal of Hansard fails to show any great sense of urgency among most of the members. Debates take a leisurely course as though time were of little consequence. Some ministers have tried to speed up proceedings a bit, but without conspicuous success.

In the British Parliament, in war, they condense into a day or two a debate which in Ottawa would consume a month. We are not under the same necessity for a rationing of speeches, perhaps, but there should be attainable a happy medium . . . It is a matter in which the Government should take the initiative, because it can control to a very large extent the procedure of the House. Parliamentary speech-making certainly has a useful place in the machinery of administration — it is a safety-valve of democracy, as we have been told many times, and a useful precaution against any official tendency toward arrogance or arbitrariness. During the war, however, it does seem that a system of voluntary rationing in this matter would have its points.

Old People Enjoy June

This is the month given over in much of Canada to the mosquito, which is said to roam freely everywhere except among the Thousand Islands. Maybe one reason that the Brockville Recorder and Times opposed the now defunct St. Lawrence Seaway project was that if they had built a dam in the river and made it sluggish at the Thousand Islands region, the mosquito would have conquered this last refuge. Now that Mitch Hepburn has decided instead to build the dam on the Ottawa, things look bad for Pembroke, where the staff of the Standard-Observer will have to slap harder than ever in successive Junes to the end of time.

The best style of clothing for a Canadian June was set by Champlain, who is usually depicted with hip-high boots, a neck-ruff, a large floppy hat and body armor. It was this superior equipment which helped the Europeans to take the country away from the thoughtlessly naked red man. The recent suggestion that wartime clothing could be saved if more of us, including men, were to wear shorts this year is probably just an Axis trick to aid the mosquito in driving us off the continent.

One of the compensations of suffering from too many birthdays is that old people are less bothered by mosquitoes. Old people can wear shorts if they like and they may even live contentedly in Pembroke, for to the dull ears of the blissfully old there comes seldom the horrid sound of the mosquito. Old people enjoy the Canadian June.

In A Separate Country

The following story is vouched for by one of the party as being absolutely true.

Last week a small group of prominent men from Ottawa entered one of the best known resorts in this province for dinner. When the tea and coffee were being served, the waiter placed on the table a large bowl of sugar without being asked.

One of the party remarked to the waiter, "Don't you know that it is against the law to bring on sugar in that way?", to which the waiter gravely replied, "Oh, but this is the Province of Quebec!"

New Use for Hymn Books

A new use of hymn books has been found. In England the Church of England has more than one hymn book. During the present war, incidentally, cosmetics are not on sale in Great Britain. From these facts arose the following item in the Montreal Daily Herald: Hymn books that yield synthetic "rouge" were a surprise to Miss N. A. Warner, Home Office Inspectress in London. Girls at an approved school asked if they could change from "Hymns Ancient and Modern" to the "Church Hymnal." Mystified, the inspectress investigated. She found that the "Church Hymnal" was wanted because it had a red cover. By wetting a finger and rubbing the cover a fair substitute for rouge is forthcoming. "Hymns Ancient and Modern" are still in use.

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By H. H. GORDON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRITAIN AND FRANCE EXPELLED KING CONSTANTINE AND BROUGHT GREECE INTO WAR ON THE SIDE OF ENTENTE

Britain and France forced the abdication of King Constantine of Greece 25 years ago in the First Great War. The pro-German monarch, who sought to aid the Central Powers by keeping his country neutral in the European conflict, relinquished his crown June 12, 1917.

For nearly two years Constantine thwarted the efforts of Premier Eleutherios Venizelos and Greek liberals to put Greece on the side of the Entente Allies. He attempted to convert the monarchy into one of a more absolute type on the Prussian model and was said to have a secret understanding with the German Kaiser, his brother-in-law, regarding the part the country was to play in the war.

His attitude toward the Entente was ostensibly one of benevolent neutrality. Britain and France took strong measures in the autumn of 1915 when an Allied expedition landed at Salonika, but not before Serbia was overrun by the Bulgarians and Macedonia occupied.

Venizelos resigned as premier when the "King's party" refused to aid the Serbs. Constantine dared not show open hostility to the Entente, but the Allied army was subjected to every sort of petty annoyance by the Greek authorities.

In the summer of 1916 the supporters of Venizelos started an insurrectionary movement and this was soon followed by the organization of a provisional government at Salonika, recognized by Britain and France.

Backed by Fleet

Little headway had been made by the Allied forces in the Balkans and it was not until the early stages of the Russian revolution that the Anglo-French policy was crystallized. On June 11, 1917, a powerful Allied fleet, carrying a land force of 30,000 men, arrived off Piraeus, and the expulsion of the King was demanded.

Constantine abdicated the following day and his second son, Alexander, was proclaimed king. Venizelos returned to full power and the reunited Greek government declared war on Germany and her allies June 29, 1917.

"Tino," as the Greek king was commonly called, had received his military education in Germany. He was sent to Berlin when 18 years old and served in one of the Imperial Guard Regiments. It was during his stay in Berlin that he met Sophia Dorothea of Hohenzollern, sister of Emperor William II of Germany, who became his wife in 1889.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HELD AT BOSTON

Boston, Mass., June 8—The great task now confronting a liberated America, which more than three quarters of a century ago fought a four-years war to free the slaves, is to aid in working out the freedom of the whole world from slavery. The Christian Science Board of Directors told several thousand Christian Scientists gathered in annual meeting in Boston today.

Declaring that this would be the sentiment expressed by the Nation's martyred President, Abraham Lincoln, were he here today, the Directors pointed out that "through the ages tyrants have endeavored to govern and control men by engendering fear," and quoting from Mary Baker Eddy's work, "Miscellany" (p. 191), they further say, "Persecution is the weakness of tyrants engendered by their fear, and love will cast it out."

The Directors emphasized the world-wide emergency as presaging a more universal turning to spiritual enlightenments as the pathway to future world peace. Visitors at the conference were reminded in a report by The Christian Science Board of Lectureship that the union of Britain and America was foreseen forty-four years ago by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, as the instrument through which the rights of free peoples everywhere might be permanently established and protected.

This welding together of the two great democracies, under the impact of an international crisis, said the Lecture Board, is the consummation of the fond hopes of all Christian Scientists. The Board alluded specifically to a poem of this world-wide religious movement, Mrs. Eddy, which reads in part as follows:

"Brave Britain, blest America!
Unite your battle-plan;
Victorious, all who live it,—
The love for God and man."

The Directors announced the election of Mrs. Elizabeth F. Norwood of Brookline, Mass., as President of The Mother Church for the ensuing year.

The new President is the daughter of Isaac Paul Gragg, who served throughout the Civil War and was given the rank of Captain by Brevet for gallant and meritorious services. Her mother, Mrs. Eldora O. Gragg, C.S.D., was one of twelve students of Mrs. Eddy's chosen by her to form the first woman Reader in the Church.

To the incoming President the times appeared to constitute a challenge to Christian Scientists to face unflinchingly "a duty beyond anything they have ever before been called upon to face."

John Randall Dunn, retiring President, referred to the times as an opportunity to prove that "the healing Christ, is here, and that the light of Truth not only banishes the darkness of disease and sin, but can nulify all the hypnotic suggestions of the carnal mind, which seem to be working such mischief among the sons of men."

From the pages of the Scriptures and from the Christian Science textbook. Mr. Dunn cited many passages promising the victory of right over evil in no uncertain terms.

Reports made to the meeting stressed the theme of greater opportunity in the emergency to base the future peace of the world upon a higher platform of human rights, one dictated by recourse to divine rather than to human intelligence.

"Miss Jones," said the employer, "I may say that you're a very attractive girl."

"Really," said the typist, blushing.

"You dress well; your voice is well modulated; your deportment is also beyond reproach."

"You really mustn't pay me so many compliments," she protested.

"Oh, that's all right! I only wanted to put you in a cheerful frame of mind before taking up the matter of punctuation and spelling."

British Land and Air Commanders in Libya Warfare

Despite adverse weather conditions and transport problems created by their swift advance, the British land and air forces in Libya are continuing to batter General Rommel's fighting units and to destroy his supply lines, while the Mediterranean Fleet has virtually blocked the Axis sea lanes. Seen in this picture in discussion with another officer at Desert headquarters are (left) Air Vice-Marshal Arthur Coningham, D.S.O., M.C., Commanding the British Air Forces in the Western Desert, and (right) Major-General Neil Methuen Ritchie, C.B.E., D.S.O., M.C., who has commanded the Eighth Army since December 1941.

"I suppose you look forward to your day of release, don't you?"

"Yes, and it makes me nervous. You see I'm in for bigamy and my four wives promised to meet me at the gate."

"Anyone out ahead of us, Caddie?"

"Yes, sir—a gentleman with a caddie, and a man carrying for himself."

Thomas—My dear aunt, I don't want to fall out with him, I may have to spend a lot of time with him one day.

Late Lemuel Rourke Mourned in District Of Calumet, Que.

Calumet — Lemuel Rourke, a pioneer resident of this district passed away at his home in Calumet on June 3. He was in his 63rd year.

Always active in Christian work, the late Mr. Rourke was instrumental in building the "Faith Pentecostal Church" at Calumet, this Christian enterprise being the outcome of cottage meetings held in his home over a period of many years.

Reflecting the esteem in which he was held in the district, many were unable to gain admittance to the Calumet United Church, the place of his conversion some 35 years ago, where the funeral service was conducted on June 5 by the Rev. G. B. Griffin, of Evangel Tabernacle, Montreal, assisted by the Rev. Paul Kauffman, also of Montreal.

The Rev. Griffin spoke on "The Divine Appointment" taking his text from Hebrews 9: 27 — "And as it is appointed unto men once to die but after this—the judgment".

The scripture reading taken from Ecclesiastes 11: 9; 12: 1-14, and the hymns, "Since Jesus came into My Heart", "The Morning of Joy", and "O I want to see Him", were pre-arranged by the late Mr. Rourke.

The interment was in Calumet Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Euphemia Andrews; six sons, Austin, Herman, Elvie and John, of Calumet; Rev. William Rourke, of Edmonton; and George, of Montreal; two daughters, Mrs. Percy MacLean, of Calumet, and Mrs. Ernest Morrison, of Montreal.

The altar was adorned with white stocks and pink larkspur and other decorations in the church were carried out with white and pink peonies and palms. Mr. L. E. Elvidge was at the organ and the choir sang "Praise My Soul The King of Heaven". Mrs. Harold Ball, of Delson, Que., rendered "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Miss Hazel LeCras, sister of the bride, attended her sister. Mr. Reginald Redston was best man, and ushers were Mr. Walter Silverson and Mr. Frederick Taylor.

Mr. Fred Newell gave the bride in marriage. She wore a floor length gown of baby pink sheer, with finger tip veil of matching bridal veiling falling from a halo of pink ribbon, and carried a cascade bouquet of rubrun lillies.

The bridesmaid was wearing a floor length gown of turquoise blue sheer, with head dress of pleated net to match, trimmed with pink flowers and shoulder length veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of variegated flowers. Mrs. LeCras, the bride's mother was wearing a navy blue printed silk and sheer dress made in redingote style, white and navy accessories and a corsage of Better Time roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 4931 Piedmont Avenue. Here pink and white peonies and pink roses comprised the decorations. Brownsb'g Girl Becomes Bride of Baptist Pastor In Ceremony Here

Charlton - Kettyle

The Lachute Baptist Church, decorated with ferns, peonies, yellow roses and iris, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, when Miss Ethel Kettyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kettyle, of Brownsburg, Que., was married to Harold Charlton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Charlton of Toronto, Ont. The Rev. Charles Hardie officiated. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Frank J. Kettyle, sister-in-law of the bride. Mrs. Clifford Powell attended her sister as matron of honor, and Miss Gwenyth Vowles, cousin of the bride was bridesmaid. Little Miss Carole-Ann Kettyle, niece of the bride was flower girl. Private Stanley Charlton, R.C.S.C., brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Frank J. and Ernest Kettyle, Clifford Powell, brothers and brother-in-law of the bride, also Mr. Jack Daly of Toronto.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin floor-length gown with flowing skirt extending into a short train. A yolk of lace extended up to the shoulder line and the leg-o-mutton sleeves came to a point below the wrist. Her veil was of tulle-illusion held in place by a tiara of orange blossoms, and extended to the end of the train. Her only ornament was a necklace of brilliants, a gift of the groom. She carried Sweetheart roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The matron of honor and the bridesmaid were dressed alike in pink and blue gowns of chiffon made on Queen Anne lines with flowing skirt and tight waist, square necks and puffed sleeves. Their head dress was coquette veils held in place by tiny clusters of flowers. They carried sheaves of sweet peas and fern. The little flower girl wore a gown of dotted Swiss muslin in pink on the same lines as the attendants. The skirt was flounced into a short train and was trimmed with old fashioned beading with baby ribbon through it. She wore a halo bonnet to match and carried an old fashioned nosegay of tiny roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Kettyle, mother of the bride, wore dusky rose sheer with matching hat and accessories. She wore a corsage of roses. Mrs. S. Charlton, mother of the groom, wore Queen's blue sheer with white accessories, also a corsage of roses.

A reception was held on the spacious lawn of the bride's parents after which the happy couple left on their honeymoon to Toronto and points west.

The bride wore for travelling a gown of turquoise blue sheer with a quilted jacket and hat of the same material. She wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

On their return the bride and groom will take up residence in Lachute, where Mr. Harold Charlton is to be shortly ordained as minister of the Lachute Baptist Church. Mr. Charlton is a graduate of the Jarvis Street Baptist Seminary, Toronto.

"God, the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in the Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 14.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 89: 18. "The Lord is our defence; and the Holy One of Israel is our king."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Our fathers understood not thy wonders in Egypt; they remembered not the multitude of thy mercies; but provoked him at the sea, even at the Red Sea. Nevertheless he saved them for his name's sake, that he might make his mighty power to be known." (Psalms 106: 7, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The power of God brings deliverance to the captive. No power can withstand divine Love." (Page 224).

British Parachute Troops Training for Combat

Britain is now building up a powerful parachute army, equipped with the most modern weapons, in readiness for the day when the British Army will once more face the German Wehrmacht, in what may be the decisive battle. The parachutists sit with legs in a well in the bottom of the aircraft, parachutes hooked up by a strap. A red light warns "Get ready" and when it turns green the parachutists jump from the plane in turn, sliding down the hole into space, the breaking of the strap automatically opening the parachute. These bearers of a now familiar badge — Air Force wings surmounted by a small parachute — are volunteers from almost every regiment in the British Army. They must above all know how to fall, and rolling exercises figure prominently in the training. They are armed with Bren and Tommy guns.

Five Families Raise $85 From Scrap Iron

The Queen's Canadian Fund has received a gift of $85 from a hamlet of five families in Saskatchewan—collected by the salvage of scrap iron.

The contribution comes from Val Jean, Sask., and is forwarded by Donald A. Parker on behalf of seven of the inhabitants. He states that the money was raised by voluntary labor in the soliciting, collecting, breaking, hauling and disposal of scrap iron.

"Not one cent has been deducted from the proceeds realized for any expense in this connection," he writes. "We are only a hamlet of five families, and in a district that has pretty well been 'gone over' by buyers of scrap and much of what we had hoped to get has been sold to these men.

It is our hope that this donation will help to provide some comforts and the necessary things of life for the poor and distressed children and their parents who have lost their homes in the bombed cities of Britain."

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

By Jessie Allen Brown

HOARDING

There is considerable hoarding going on by women who do not realize what they are doing. For instance a woman bought three slips. She said the saleslady said they would not be able to get any more, so she bought the only three in stock. Now this woman is a well-dressed woman, who keeps her supplies in good shape, and I would be surprised if she actually needed three slips at one time. She is a very conscientious, patriotic woman, and would probably be surprised that any one might think she would hoard. Another woman bought two nighties. She remarked to her husband that the saleslady said these would be the last she would get with elastic in them, so he went out and bought her three more as a surprise. Now she has five nighties she has never worn. I wonder what the elastic will be like by the time they are worn out. A neighbor has bought stocks of any food she has heard a rumor might be short—canned salmon for instance. Another neighbor decided that as we lived in a coastal area, it might be advisable to lay in a supply of food for emergencies. So she has enough canned foods to feed not only her family but sufficient for city friends too, in case of an emergency. To my way of thinking, she is not hoarding, and yet she probably has more cans on hand than the woman who bought up supplies of articles that might be scarce. If you are buying supplies for present use, you are not hoarding. But if you buy to lay away because there might be a scarcity later on, then that is hoarding. Clerks have a good bit to answer for as they are continually suggesting further purchases. It may be out of kindness of heart in trying to look after customers. On the other hand they may want to boost their sales. In any case they should not do it, and people should not listen to their suggestions. Buy for present use only, and if the day comes when we have to do without, let us do without willingly and cheerfully with a clear conscience.

CALCIUM IN MILK

We are told over and over again that to be healthy we must have plenty of calcium in our food. We know that calcium is in fresh fruits and vegetables and in milk. Would you like to see a comparison of the amount of calcium in some of our foods? To get the same calcium you would get in two glasses of milk you would have to have:

26 pounds of beef, or 2 lbs. of broccoli, or 8 lbs. of Brussels sprouts, or 17 lbs. of potatoes, or 8 grapefruits, or 20 oranges.

The milkman has just brought our milk and that reminds me I did not have a glass yesterday, so I better stop right now and drink one. I try to make a point of drinking a glass of milk in the middle of the morning. I doubt if I ever will really enjoy it, but I do know I have a lot more energy when I drink the darned stuff, so down it goes.

CAKE

It ought to be no trick for an experienced housekeeper to make a fine textured tender cake, but for some reason my cakes have been coarse-grained and inclined to be tough. That made me mad and try as I would I could not make a cake that satisfied me. Finally I blamed it on the oven as it is an automatic electric one. Then one day I wanted to make a cake to use with whipped cream for dessert and the butter was not soft so I cut it up a bit and stuck it in the oven to soften, being careful of course not to let it melt. I mixed up the cake in a hurry and it was the first decent cake I had made. Since then I have been softening the butter in the oven and every cake has been good. Apparently the temperature of the cupboard I kept the butter in to soften was not warm enough. The harder I tried and the more I worked over my cake the worse it got. Even though the butter was out of the electric refrigerator over-night, room temperature was not high enough to properly soften the butter.

DRESSED PORK TENDERLOIN

Take two tenderloins the same size, and split them lengthwise, cutting the thickest side. Do not cut right through but enough so they will lie flat when opened up. Make your favorite poultry dressing. I like to make a little extra, and add a beaten egg, and make balls with what is left over. Spread the tenderloin with as much dressing as it will hold, then lay the other tenderloin on top, sandwich fashion. Wind a string around the meat from top to bottom to hold it together and bake from three-quarters to an hour in a hot oven of 400 degrees. Remove the string before serving. If the meat is not fat, put dripping in the pan, but do not add water, and roast uncovered. If you have added egg to the dressing, form the left-over dressing into balls and put in the pan for about twenty minutes to brown. The meat does not hold very much dressing so this adds to it.

CHOCOLATE MACAROONS

1 Can sweetened condensed milk, 3 cups cocoanut, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 3 squares chocolate.

Cut the chocolate in pieces and melt over hot water. Add to the milk and stir in the cocoanut and baking powder. Drop from a teaspoon on a buttered sheet and bake for ten minutes at 350 degrees. They will be soft when taken out but do not cook longer as the idea is just to set them. Makes about 40. This is a sugarless recipe and has been one of my favorites for twenty-odd years.

New Sugar Ration Will Not Affect Jam Making

Canning Regulations Are Unchanged by Order

Made necessary owing to transportation difficulties, the new sugar rationing order of May 26 cuts down the amount of sugar permitted each person from three-quarters of a pound to half a pound each week. This order does not affect the one issued earlier in regard to extra sugar for canning fruit. It is permissible to use one-half pound of sugar for each pound of fruit in canning or preserving, and three-quarters of a pound of sugar per pound of fruit for making jams and jellies.

DO BE CAREFUL IN FAMILY TAN

Dr. Sunshine Too Generous at Times, and Children's Skin Tender

The sun shines bright in your own back yard! Tire and gas shortages need not deprive you of vitamin D, the one that Dr. Sunshine gives. He's just as generous with it on your roof, back yard, front lawn or nearby river bank as he is at some distant seaside or lake resort.

There's more reason than ever this year for everyone in the family to look and feel vital. The prescription for a healthy, glowing tan involves more than just sitting in the sun. Begin with small rations or you'll be mighty sorry for yourself and a sorry sight to see, too. Don't stay in the sun for hours the first few times if you don't want to be burned to a crisp.

Lubricated Skin

A dried-out, shriveled up, leathery-looking skin is never a healthy, pretty skin. Don't let this happen to you, for you can keep yours soft, smooth, and well lubricated by using plenty of sunburn cream. It filters out the burning rays and yet at the same time permits tanning.

Remember there's no skin as tender as baby's and be even more cautious with it than with your own. Twenty minutes in the sun is enough at one time and, if the baby is now at sunning, shorten his time from five to 10 minutes at first. Never allow the child to be in the sun during the hottest part of the day.

Canadian Pacific Air Lines Girls Keep Trainers Flying

CANADIAN PACIFIC AIR LINES are making a notable contribution to Canada's war effort in the elementary training and engine overhaul fields. The young ladies shown above are working long and hard in the production end of the flying game and their trained efforts are of real importance in the task of blowing Hitler and Hirohito off the map.

In shops located at strategic points throughout the Dominion, girls, who were once stenographers, sales girls and students, are now busily engaged under the Canadian Pacific Air Lines' banner. Picture on the left shows Miss Ina Lane putting all the energy of her twenty years into doing her bit to back up her brother, Trooper Westley Lane, who is overseas with the Fort Garry Horse. With her is Miss Muriel Carr, also twenty, and both of them are sanding the wing structure of a trainer plane. The upper right hand picture shows Miss Muriel Stevenson, who confesses that she would rather assemble instrument panels as a contribution to the cause than sell dry goods in a department store. Her heart is in the work and the panels go together with a will. The lower right picture shows Miss Florence Nordal in a Canadian Pacific Air Lines operated engine overhaul plant. She is testing valve springs tension, a far-cry from her old job of clerk in a country creamery.

All the girls in this industry have one motto and it is to keep the training planes flying.

HE LET TARTS BURN

Sunderland, Eng. (CP)—It cost James William Ewart 10 shillings in court because he let his wife's tarts burn in the oven. The prosecutor called it wasting food. "I made a mess of them," said Ewart. "Just like King Alfred," commented the court clerk.

Fats Still Wasted In Home Kitchens

Saving and conserving what is at hand to relieve pressure on materials, time and labor is the fundamental note in the whole war salvage program.

In tests conducted in the kitchens of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, in poultry, beef, lamb and pork fats, indications showed that one way in which fat is wasted is in the failure to recover and use cooking fats in the home.

Chicken fats as well as fresh pork fats were found to make effective shortening agents. Chicken fat with its bland flavor and soft texture is ready for use immediately on being rendered, but smoked pork fat could be used for more purposes if clarified.

In rendering fat for cooking, the best results were obtained where the excess fat was removed from the meat before it was cooked. Chicken and beef fats rendered in this way could be used without clarifying.

A bulletin on rendering and clarifying and other information concerning use of fats available in the home, in addition to recipes for the use of each, is available from the Consumer Section Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

PENNY FINE FOR WREN

London (CP)—Millicent Attfield, a member of the Women's Royal Naval Service, was fined a penny for careless driving after the magistrate remarked that "it would be a cruel thing to fine heavily anybody giving her time to the country."

No More Eggs for Hair Shampoos

Women of Britain Must Not Rob Food Supplies for Beauty Stuffs

London (CP) — Food Ministry enforcement officers' latest problem is the bearing down on women facture at home of beauty prepara- alleged to have used food for manu- tions. They will be prosecuted if it can be established they are using eggs for shampoos, milk powder for face packs and fresh milk, flour, oils, butter or cucumber as beauty aids.

When the average person says, "As far as I know," he refers to an exceedingly short distance.

WOOL GATHERING? HERE'S FORMULA

Some Hints for Better Saving of Garments Through Summer

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—The life of all your woolens can be prolonged, with a little regular common sense care, like this:

1. Thoroughly brush garment after each wearing.
2. Hang the garment carefully on the right kind of hanger to prevent loss of shape and avoid frequent pressing.
3. Immediately after you have taken it off—coat, suit or dress—let it hang where there is free circulation of air before putting away in the closet.
4. Dry-clean all woolens and place in air-tight bags before storing for summer. Spray closets with moth preventive.
5. At intervals of a few weeks, all wool garments should be hung outdoors in the sun for a special airing and brushing.

To Avoid Accidents In the Home

A few rules will avoid many of these accidents.

Keep all medicines and chemicals dangerous to children on the top shelf of a locked closet where they are absolutely inaccessible.

Keep in the medicine cabinet only the simple remedies which as a rule are not dangerous. But the medicines that might cause trouble if taken indiscriminately should be kept on the top shelf. If the cabinet is within reach of a child it should have a lock which works automatically; the key should be kept only within reach of adults.

Label all poisons as such.

When giving medicine, read the label carefully before removing the cover.

Whenever you are through using a medicine or drug empty contents of bottle down the drain.

Use only safe household remedies. If you must have a product with poison in it, label and keep high on a closet shelf.

Keep the children out of the kitchen when you are using chemicals for cleaning.

What shall you do if you discover that your child has taken poison? Get the doctor and try to make the child vomit. To do this, touch the back of his throat with your finger. If syrup of ipecac is handy give a teaspoonful. If not, have the child drink a glass of soapy water. Then give plenty of plain water to dilute the poison. Read the label for the antidote.

Eternal vigilance is the price of your children's safety.

The annual convention of Quebec Women's Institutes takes place this year on June 30, and July 1 and 2, at Macdonald College. The Board of Directors will convene on June 30, to prepare business which will be brought before Convention. Several new features on the program give promise of a gathering of rural women of unusual interest.

Fish Tough Spots For Fickle Game

Always fish difficult places when general fishing is poor. Because such places are hard to get at, they are invariably neglected when fishing is good and shunned by most when fishing is bad. A strange thing about such places is that they never react the same as the general stream. That is, if it's a well-known fact that the fish in easy parts of a stream always start rising or stop rising at the same time, that schedule won't apply to the difficult places. The fish in them are ready to strike at any time if you have patience enough and skill enough to get a fly to them without making them suspicious.

Backyard Ice Rink

(Birmingham Mail)

Most men of the Canadian forces when staying in Birmingham visit the city's ice rink as a matter of course, and many exhibit great skill on skates. That is not surprising, since ice-skating is the most popular sport in Canada today. One husky soldier, whose speed was terrific on the rink, received loud applause from the onlookers. One asked him: "What do you think of the city's big rink?"

"Not bad, Buddy", he replied, "but I have a bigger one in my back yard at home!"

Sounds rather like a Yankee wisecrack, I know, but not so wide of the truth, for this fellow was a trapper and his home is a log cabin beside a large lake "Somewhere in the Rockies." The lake is frozen over for eight months annually, and is about one mile in width and three miles long!

ENTHUSIASTIC IN INTER-DEPARTMENT SOFTBALL GAMES

Brownsburg, June 9 — Inter-departmental softball is in full swing among enthusiasts in the Brownsburg industries.

The first part of the schedule will be complete on June 11. This was arranged to find out the relative strength of the teams with the object of building up the weaker ones, so that with the commencement of the second part of the schedule the teams will be reasonably equal in strength, provide keener competition and more balanced games.

Softball's latest boost is the preparation of diamond No. 3. This can be made an excellent ball field, and every effort is being put forth to accomplish that end. Art Agnew is the man behind the scenes. Henceforth each team will be engaging in two games each week with one night available for practice.

A low-score game between Plastics and Metallics departments resulted in a 7-5 victory for the Plastics team.

The highlight of the past two weeks' play was provided in the struggle between Laboratory and Plastics on June 3. Both teams were evenly matched with Plastics probably having a slight edge in pitching power. Plastics picked up 4 runs in the first inning; 2 in the third and fourth, and 3 in the fifth and sixth, to lead 14-6 at the end of the sixth. Laboratory had scored 2 runs in the second, fourth and fifth innings. In the memorable seventh inning, Laboratory was up first and smashed out 10 runs to lead and win the ball game 16-14.

Superb Hurling Helps Metallics

Superb pitching by Bill Hewitt enabled the Metallics Shop to down the Office 5-1 in a regular league softball fixture Friday night. Timely hitting helped Hewitt along in administering the first defeat in two years to the Office. Len Winchester hurled for the Office. While he showed regular form he was unable to overcome the control that Hewitt took on the game. From the commencement he held the opposition at bay, allowed a single hit, passed a few, but when there were signs of a threat he bored down and retired the side.

* * *

Ladies' Softball

Credit should be given to the majority of the girl players who have never played softball before, and who after one or two practices have turned out in force to engage one another with well balanced teams; who, far from being disheartened by high scores, curbed their disappointment by more frequent and enthusiastic practices. The managers of these teams are quietly and painstakingly making these beginners into ball players, and every effort is being made to balance the strength of the teams before the opening of the second half of the schedule on June 15.

In the belief that planned practice is the keystone of improvement, the diamonds are in demand these afternoons by the night shifts.

The girls have entered a team in the league from the Works Engineering. Sparked by peppy Beulah Gidden and managed by Art Holden, they introduced themselves to their rivals with an enthusiasm which, if maintained, promises to develop them into a contender for top honors.

Brownsburg, June 9—

Regular rehearsals and presentations are the aim of the newly formed French-speaking drama group composed of plant employees, who are now preparing their initial offering. There was a meeting Monday night in the anteroom of the Recreation Hall to decide on certain matters pertaining to the forthcoming production, particularly to the filling of a few vacancies that remain before they can complete their work.

Franchie Lafortune and Alexandre Dupont have charge of the production.

They are at present rehearsing a program for presentation at the Recreation Hall on June 25. If it is found to have sufficient merit it will be shown at other plants and outside of Brownsburg.

which should be tried and enjoyed; it is sensational. The old reliable merry-go-round also amuses both young and old; the Ferris wheel, games, vaudeville, rides and a variety of other amusements are there to keep the patrons busy and afford many hours of fun.

The many parts which go to make up this little centre of attractions looked strangely different when being unloaded piece by piece from the railway Wednesday morning; fair-goers will little realize the work connected with this larger enterprize. Then, following the show, these properties have to be dismantled piece by piece and packed up for the next exposition. As we watched the operations a moto came to our mind: "A place for everything and everything in its place." Still with all his worries, Fred Sims presents a genial smile; and we learned in conversation with him at the grounds, that every Wednesday so far this year, providing he makes a profit, he has donated a percentage to the Red Cross; to date he has given over $145—on which he is to be congratulated.

Now, folks, your attendance is all that is needed; with fine weather thrown in, to make this one of the best shows ever . . . And don't forget to patronize members of the Lions Club who will be selling tickets to aid in raising funds for cigarettes for our Argenteuil boys overseas.

An old-age pensioner, unable to write, drew a circle on her form instead of the usual cross.

"Why didn't you make a cross, as you usually do, Mrs. Green?" asked the postal clerk curiously.

"Well, my dear, it's this way," replied the old lady shyly: "I got married again yesterday and changed my name."

"She accepted me on one condition."

"And that is?"

LACHUTE FAIR A SUCCESS; SECOND ANNUAL SHOW IN WAR YEARS

15,000 MEN TO BE CALLED UP FOR TRAINING IN JULY

First Lottery Likely in August

"The Week at Ottawa"

By BOB FRANCIS, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 17 (CP — Debate continues in Commons on the bill to provide power to conscript men for overseas service. Outside the House, there is talk on just what will happen when the final vote on the bill is taken.

Certainly many members on the government side are going to oppose the administration in the vote. Just how many will not be known for many days but Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, resigned minister of transport and public works, has said he expects 50 Liberals to vote with him against the amendment.

Speaking on the amendment Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the House of Commons he saw no immediate need for conscription and expressed belief the plan to bring Canada's armed forces up to a strength of 750,000 could be accomplished without resorting to conscription. He said a responsible party government would only bring on conscription for overseas under conditions in which the government institutions of Canada were threatened with destruction.

Rev. T. C. Douglas (C.C.F. Weyburn) said in the House last week he would vote against the bill unless steps are taken simultaneously to conscript wealth and industry. That may be the C.C.F. viewpoint. New Democracy Leader Blackmore also called for all-inclusive conscription at the same time as conscription of manpower. Conservative House Leader Hanson, arguing in a different vein, said he would "insist" that a clause be inserted in the amending bill to make action to conscript men mandatory.

Might Be Close

Conceivably—although it is not believed in all quarters the Conservatives will vote against the amendment since it is at least a step in the direction of conscription—all the opposition groups might line up against the government in the vote on the bill.

If that happened, it would be — at best — a close thing for the government. With the Quebec Liberals and some from other provinces also opposing the administration, the government would face its first real test in a division since it was elected to power.

Conscription for overseas service actually appears only as a remote possibility following Mr. King's speech in support of his amendment to the Mobilization Act. Instead the necessity of home defence taking an increasingly important part in the government's deliberations stands out as an important consideration. Mr. King told the House that overseas conscription is not an immediate necessity and may never be necessary.

The Prime Minister's statement drew the reply from Mr. Cardin that the government has "betrayed" the people of Quebec. It was Mr. Cardin's first speech in the House since he resigned his dual portfolio of public works and transport last May 11 in protest against Mr. King's introduction of the bill.

Mr. Cardin said there have been attempts to appease and silence Quebec by promises that there would be no conscription, and to appease the rest of Canada by bringing in the conscription-enabling legislation.

Prospect of Vote

With no indication of how long it would be before a vote would be taken on the amendment, forces appeared to be jockeying on the floor of the House into somewhat the same lines they assumed during debate last spring when the plebiscite was authorized, but with the apparent difference that there may be more votes against the government when the division is held.

Coupled with speculation on the conscription debate is speculation on when Finance Minister Ilsley will bring down his budget and what it will contain. The indication is that it will be down before the end of the month.

The budget has been delayed this year because Mr. Ilsley wanted to get the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill and the $750,000,000 loan bill through parliament first. It seems likely he will present it as soon as it is ready, regardless of whether the debate on conscription is concluded.

Coast Defence

Reports of Japanese landings on the outer Aleutians following the Japanese raids on Dutch Harbour, Alaska, concentrated attention on Pacific coastline defence problems. Meantime appointment of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, 51, chief of the general staff, as temporary commander in the Pacific area, was announced by National Defence Headquarters. He replaced Maj.-Gen. R. O. Alexander, 54, general officer commanding-in-chief in the Pacific area, who is now inspector-general of the army for Central Canada.

General Stuart takes over temporary command of the Pacific area to deal with organization plans rising out of expansion of army forces in that command.

General Alexander succeeds Maj-Gen. T. V. Anderson, 61, former chief of the general staff, retiring after 42 years service.

At almost the same time came a suggestion from Arthur Slaght (Lib. Parry Sound) for establishment of balloon barrages to protect Halifax, Esquimalt, B.C., and other strategic centres.

July Call-Up

Canadians have been told the army is calling up 15,000 men for training in July, the largest monthly requisition so far. At the same time it is forecast the first lottery in connection with the call-up will be held in August, with the probability that drawings will be made in each service division rather than on a national scale.

On the home front, hard on the heels of the regulation cutting the sugar ration from three-quarters to one-half a pound weekly per person, housewives are warned that preparations for coupon rationing of sugar are being rushed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, with the prospect of coupon rationing by July 1.

Grenv'l Residents Are Plaintiffs in Accident Suit

HEARD IN SUPERIOR COURT, ACTION FOLLOWS MISHAP NEAR ST. CANUT

The June term of the Superior Court at St. Jerome, presided over by Mr. Justice Philemon Cousineau, has just been concluded.

Among the most important cases heard, were the three suits of Adelard Aubry, Napoleon Aubry and Patricia Allard, all of Grenville, against Kay Crabtree, of Crabtree Mills.

On November 17, 1940, a car owned and driven by Adelard Aubry, and carrying as passengers Miss Patricia Allard and Mrs. Napoleon Aubry, collided with Crabtree's car at the former C.N.R. crossing, 2½ miles west of St. Canut on Route 41. In the collision Miss Allard and Mrs. Aubry suffered severe injuries, while Aubry's car was partly demolished. The three plaintiffs alleged that the collision was due entirely to Crabtree's fault and instituted proceedings for damages, to the extent of $1,800, $576 and $310 respectively. Defendant pleaded contributory negligence to the extent of 50 per cent and claimed that the damages sought were exaggerated. Eighteen witnesses and two doctors gave evidence for the litigants.

Judgment was reserved, to be rendered later by the Court.

Geo. H. Héon appeared for the three plaintiffs and the firm of Charbonneau, Charbonneau & Charlebois for the defendant.

County Horses To Race Again At Field Day

STAR FEATURE IN LIONS' ANNUAL FIELD DAY PROGRAM, JULY 4

Enthusiasm in the arrangements for Lachute Lions Club field day—scheduled for Saturday, July 4, at the exhibition grounds — is evidenced in the co-operation of several advertisers in this issue of The Watchman, whose spaces have been donated to announce the event.

The occasion has been planned to raise funds for a patriotic cause, namely to send cigarettes to Argenteuil men on service overseas. This regular undertaking by the Lions Club has reached such proportions as to tax the resources and ingenuity of the membership; the coming field day, in consequence, merits a support from local citizens as generous as that of our merchants who are advertising the event.

A highly interesting feature of the program will be two horse-racing contests in which county owners and drivers will compete. The county race at Lachute Fair last week aroused a keen spirit of competition among the owners; this friendly rivalry will find new stimulus in the field day event, in which most of the same entries will display their merits.

Special appeal to the younger citizens is afforded in the program of various track contests. A men's ½ mile race, a soldiers' race, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycle races are also billed, and the B.D.C. Revue, which scored a notable success at the Brownsburg Recreation Hall, will again present its show, in five acts interspersing the field day program. The occasion will conclude with dancing in the evening, at the pavilion on the grounds.

Hawkesbury — Lawrence Curtis, of Ottawa, agent for the McColl-Frontenac Oil Company in Hawkesbury district, was taken to the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, following a recent accident at Calumet. Curtis was examining a loaded gun belonging to two lads of Calumet, when the gun went off, inflicting a bullet wound in his knee.

Curtis was taken to a Hawkesbury hospital by Robert Allen and later was rushed to Ottawa. Latest report is that his condition had improved and it was believed amputation would not be necessary.

Around the Race Track at Lachute Fair

A SPECTATOR'S COMMENTARY SPECIALLY WRITTEN FOR THE LACHUTE WATACHMAN

The County Race

Although Lachute Fair is now a matter of record there is still considerable speculation among the local race-horse enthusiasts as to the best horse in the County Race. This is largely due to the fact that a different horse crossed the wire first in each of the three heats.

Four of the five entries were more or less old-timers on the Lachute track. There was "Lee Todd", owned and driven by Delbert MacTavish, of Lost River; "Babe Ruth," owned by J. P. Bradley & Son, Lachute Road, and driven by Donnie Bradley; "Belle of Lakeland", owned by M. Ballantyne, of St. Andrews East, and driven by John Muir; and "Black Jinnie" owned and driven by Henri Joly, of Lachute. Then also, there was the "dark horse" of the race, "Polly Allstrange", owned by J. P. MacKimmie & Sons and driven by S. Craig. While there was a divergence of opinion as to the merits of this entry it was generally considered that "Polly" would certainly make it interesting for the other four starters.

In the first heat "Polly" broke at the start and lost so much ground that she could not make it up. The rest of the field were fairly well bunched until well into the second lap, when they settled into position with "Belle of Lakeland" leading, then "Lee Todd", followed by "Black Jinnie" and "Babe Ruth," a much older horse. They crossed the wire in that order, to be clocked at 2.17¼.

The starter had considerable difficulty at the outset of the second heat. Each driver seemed determined not to pass up even the slightest advantage. In this heat "Folly Allstrange" found her stride and led the field under the wire to be timed at 2.16½. "Belle of Lakeland" was a close second and "Black Jinnie" a close third.

The excitement in the third heat was intense. It was anybody's race. "Black Jinnie" got the pole in the first lap, with "Polly Allstrange" half a length behind, and "Belle of Lakeland" only half a length behind her. Even as they turned into the finish it was still a question whether the leading horse would be able to maintain the small margin she held over the others. However, to the roars from the grandstand, Henri "Punch" Joly drove his black mare under the wire, a popular winner. The time was 2.17½. "Polly" was second and the St. Andrews horse third.

The winner of the race as a whole was "Belle of Lakeland" with a first, a second and a third. A cocktail shaker, donated by North River Motors, was presented to the driver, John Muir, by Mr. Jos. Seale of Morin Heights, who was one of the judges and chairman of the Racing Committee.

* * *

There were four entries in the 2.16 the same afternoon. The three heats were won by "Jane Axworthy" owned by Giard & Riendeau, St. Hyacinthe, and driven by R. Bisson. This horse was timed at 2.12½, 2.12¾ and 2.14½.

Young Airman Killed in Night Training Flight

NEWS SHOCKS FAMILY AND FRIENDS; WAS VISITING HERE LAST WEEK-END

CRASHED NEAR MALONE WHILE FLYING FROM ST. HUBERT AIRPORT

News of the death of LAC. Charles Theoret was received this morning with deep regret. The young man was well known and popular among the younger set of the community and had been associating with his family and friends only last week-end, when on leave from the St. Hubert R.C.A.F. training school. He had attended the exhibition here on Saturday.

On Tuesday his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Theoret, Bedard Blvd., received a telegram from Air Force headquarters saying their son was missing in one of the four aircraft caught in fog during a routine training flight Tuesday night. The planes were said to have been making a circuit from St. Hubert to Ottawa, to Alexandria and back to St. Hubert. News was subsequently given that three of the planes had been discovered on a mountainside near Malone, N.Y., with one member of the aircrews dead and others injured. Further announcement this morning indicated that the fourth plane, in which Theoret was flying as a student pilot, had also been discovered, just outside Malone, and the young victim found dead in the wrecked machine. His instructor pilot, WO2, V D. Legacy, of Amherst, N.S., was also dead. The bodies were taken to Malone airport.

LAC. Charles Theoret was only 20 years of age. He completed his education at Lachute High School two years ago, was employed at the local branch of the Nova Scotia Bank and enlisted with the R.C.A.F. in June, 1941. He was nearing completion of his training and was to have received his wings on July 3.

Theoret is survived by his parents, two sisters, Blanche and Marjorie, and a younger brother, Jackie. To the bereaved family a host of friends and citizens extend their deepest sympathy.

Funeral arrangements will be made on arrival of the remains at his home in Lachute.

London (CP)—The Imperial War Graves Commission has listed 42,000 names of civilian dead in this war, including those killed in the Battle of Britain. One man was shown as being the sole survivor of a family group of 24 people killed in raids.

Transfers and Developments in Town Property

BUILDINGS CONVERTED AND HOMES ERECTED BY PRIVATE INITIATIVE

Considerable building activity is planned or under way in Lachute, not all of which is attributable to the town's wartime influx. Much of this is instrumented by permanent residents for their own use and will be an asset to occupied real estate, whatever surplus of living accommodation the post-war period may witness in this area.

It is noted that M. G. Assaly, Main Street merchant, who recently acquired the property of Dr. E. Christie, is now improving the exterior, fronting on the main thoroughfare.

Meanwhile, it is Dr. Christie's intention to convert the residence of the late T. Christie, nearby, into two tenements; in one of these the doctor will make his residence and conduct his practice. The alterations are now in progress.

Another old landmark, the small dwelling opposite the skating rink on Barron Avenue, formerly owned by the late Charles James, has changed hands. This has been purchased by E. L'Heureux, proprietor of Lachute Dry Cleaning, who will adapt the premises to house his plant, presently situated at the rear of Desjardins Hotel. This step has become necessary owing to the growing business enjoyed by the firm.

On the new Filion development between Main Street and the river, a double-tenement property under construction by Germain Filion, town secretary, is making headway.. One of these dwellings, it is understood, has been already leased. The property is on the west side of Harriet Street.

On this same development an attractive dwelling has been recently completed by Jos. Raymond, restaurant proprietor, and the occupants have moved in. This is on the thoroughfare named Barron Street; while on Thomas Street, another new roadway, a building is now being erected by John Lemay . . . Mr. Raymond has further capitalized on the housing shortage by converting part of the skating rink, which he owns, into a dwelling. The apartment occupies one end of the frontage on Barron Avenue.

Improvements are noted also in the tenement block on Main Street West owned by Geo. Y. Deacon. This property, formerly known as the Todd Store, has received a facial uplift with outside stairs, a gallery, and a new store-front, which is now in use as a florist's shop.

REMARKABLE UPTREND IN EXHIBITS OF LIVESTOCK

Over 12,000 Paid Admissions

PRIZE WINNERS LISTED IN ALL CLASSES; COUNTY HORSE RACE RESULTS

With careful provision made for the success of Lachute's annual exhibition in all its departments, the only unpredictable factor — the weather—took a favorable hand. In the brief rainfall which swept the grounds, the thousands of people in attendance, the exhibitors and the showmen, found only a refresher from the heat.

As usual, Friday proved the biggest of the three days, in point of admissions. During the afternoon patrons on the grandstand numbered well over 1,300. The total paid admissions at the gate, for the three days, were over 12,000.

Many newcomers among the animal fanciers made competition more keen than ever in the livestock classes, for which a larger sum was allotted in prize money this year. Enthusiasm ran high in the horse-racing events, particularly those in which local entries took part. The horse show, riding and jumping competitions, commanded admiration as among the most spectacular show-ring events. In the exhibition building, meanwhile, the industrial and agricultural displays attracted a steady stream of spectators, and of particular interest to the women was the W.I. handicrafts and cookery display. While the entertainment features were not so unanimously acclaimed, the midway attractions met full approval of those in search of light diversion, and generally speaking the show presented a creditable bill of amusements.

One department of the Fair which entailed much effort and wide interest in the English-speaking community, was the catering and refreshments, handled by Lachute Women's Institute. Scores of lady helpers gave assistance to this enterprise, and despite the oppressive heat and certain difficulties through curtailed supplies, cheerful service was accorded to the dining-room and lunch-counter patrons. And the profits of this undertaking, which go to war work and community aid by the W.I., proved an encouraging return for the labors involved.

Wartime Agriculture Exhibit by Federal Department.

The Publicity and Extension Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, displayed a three panel exhibit graphically depicting the need of increased production of wool, cheese and eggs, both for export and domestic consumption, and stressing for products of high quality through care and management of farm flocks, conservation of egg quality and good feeding practice. The centre of attraction in this 22-foot exhibit was an endless line of pigs and eggs crossing the "ocean" from Canada to Great Britain.

The livestock on exhibition included the largest number of horse and cattle entries on record. Nine herds of Holstein cattle were entered, as compared with only two herds last year. There were also 12 herds of Ayrshires.

Juvenile interest was evidenced by 36 boys and girls entered in the livestock judging contest organized by the Montreal Kiwanis Club.

George Hay, veteran member of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, officiated as ring-master. Light horses were judged by Dr. J. H. Fowler, of Guelph; heavy horses by Archie Hass, of Paris, Ont. Holstein cattle were judged by Jas. Henderson, of Portsmouth, Ont.; Ayrshires by Girard Tremblay, St. Eustache; Canadian and beef cattle, sheep, swine and poultry by D. A. McPhee, Vankleek Hill.

NEARBY COMMUNITY WAS ORIGINALLY AN IRISH SETTLEMENT

The little parish of St. Columban which forms part of Argenteuil electoral constituency, will celebrate its 100th anniversary on June 24. Founded by a group of Irish families, the community is one of Quebec's oldest rural parishes of such a background.

The occasion for the celebration is St. Jean Baptiste Day, and a day-long program has been arranged by Father M. Jodoin for the parishioners. Open air mass will be said in the morning by Father A. Leveille, parish priest of Ste. Scholastique and a sermon by Father C. Martel and blessing of cars will follow. A picnic, field day, band music and finally, fireworks, round out the day's schedule.

The parish of today consists chiefly of French-Canadian families with a number of Irish heritage remaining, as well as Lithuanian and Polish groups. There are approximately 60 families living in St. Columban, which geographically, is situated in the County of Two Mountains.

Hull, Eng. (CP) — War makes strange bed-fellows, even in the animal kingdom. A stray dogs' home also houses a monkey, a goat, parrots, budgerigers, chickens, rabbits and a goldfish made homeless by raids.

ONT. REEVE OBJECTS, POWER FOR QUEBEC FROM CARILLON SITE

Morrisburg Official Aroused

Cornwall, June 12—A resolution seeking protection of eastern Ontario interests in the projected Ottawa River development scheme at Carillon, was introduced at a session of the United Counties Council of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. The resolution was referred to council's resolutions and memorials committee for further consideration.

The measure was introduced by Fred Broder, Reeve of Morrisburg Village, who claimed that according to newspaper reports, Quebec province would obtain all the power to be developed in the Carillon project. He felt eastern Ontario had been neglected in the past regarding hydro development and said steps should be taken to prevent all the power from going to Quebec. With the St. Lawrence power scheme apparently a dead issue, additional power sources were essential so that eastern Ontario could attract industrial concerns, Reeve Broder said.

IT'S JUST WHAT GERMANS THINK

Here's a story about conditions in Germany, reported to have been told in a neutral country by a German businessman: "The British tried to invade Norway but the Fuehrer forestalled them. The British tried to invade Greece but the Fuehrer forestalled them. The British tried to starve Germany out — and the Fuehrer is forestalling them."

CHEERING WORDS FOR THE SOWERS IN WET ONTARIO

It's Not Too Late to Plant Grain, Say Experts, Despite Province's Wettest May of the Century

Toronto, June 16 (CP) — Faced with retarding effects of the heaviest record precipitation for May in Central and Southwestern Ontario in the present century, provincial agrarian experts have come to the aid of the anxious farmer with advice on late seeding under abnormal wet conditions.

John D. MacLeod, of the crops, seeds and weeds branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has it and here's what he says:

"There is still time to sow early maturing varieties of oats, barley, buckwheat and millet. Farmers cannot expect heavy yields, but if good early seed is used on well-prepared seed beds, the surplus moisture will assist in bringing the crop on rapidly and fair yields may be expected. If not, the crop can be cut for green feed."

Buckwheat Too

Mr. MacLeod said buckwheat was another important wet weather crop and could be sown up till the end of the first week in July and could be included in rations for all classes of live stock. As a smother crop for weeds, it is in a class by itself, he pointed out.

Even in the first week or two of June wide acres of grainlands in some parts of Ontario were under water. The all-time recorded high of rainfall in Ontario for May this year was registered by the weather sharps of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph as 7.9 inches. The average rainfall for May over a period of years is 2.98 inches. Up till this year they talked of a previous high record of 5.86 inches in May, 1924.

Counties suffering most from the excessive moisture this spring were Simcoe, Ontario, York and Dufferin. Other counties of Ontario's mixed farming areas reported much belated seeding.

Early Oats

Talking of seeding and seeds the agriculture department tells not only how but where. Mr. McLeod adds:

"Agricultural representatives in the various counties where there has been excessive moisture have lists where early maturing seed grains can still be obtained. Early varieties of oats include Cartier, Alaska, Ajex, Mabel and Dasix. They will mature in 90 to 100 days and should be sown at the rate of 2½ to 3 bushels per acre."

OXEN HAULED ENGINES FROM SHIP TO RAIL

Montreal — A recent visitor to C.N.R. headquarters was J. N. Phelan, of Winnipeg. "My grandfather was working for the Nova Scotia Railway, now a part of the Canadian National System, when locomotives for the line were manufactured in Scotland and carried across the Atlantic in sailing ships," he said in a moment of reminiscence. He went on to say that the locomotives in those days, on being landed at Halifax, were hauled by oxen from the waterside to the railway.

Just to prove he was still thinking of the past, Mr. Phelan produced a photostat of a timetable of the Nova Scotia Railway giving details of the "Fall Arrangement" of October, 1863 and, in telling the story of the timetable, added details of three generations of the Phelan family whose railway connection began prior to Confederation in Canada and has remained unbroken through a period of ninety years.

Angus was displaying to his neighbor, McDonald, the second-hand car he'd bought.

RATS IN THE WHEAT

Bromley, Eng. (CP) — Because Farmer Frederick Thomas Banfield failed to place a wire fence around a rick of wheat so as to prevent the escape of rats during threshing operations, it cost him the equivalent of $70 in court.

Army Week, June 29 to July 5 -- A Citizens' Show

Deserved tribute will be paid to Canada's soldier sons during Army week, June 29 to July 5, an event that will be suitably marked in every city, town and village from coast to coast.

Public and private buildings will fly flags throughout the week. The public will have a chance to attend "open house" at military training centres and schools, to hear the music of military bands and watch the stirring parades of Canadian soldiers. They will have the chance to entertain Army men in their homes and at dances and concerts. Service emblems will be displayed in homes, churches and business houses, while Honor Rolls will be prominently exhibited.

Dominion Day, July 1, falls in this week and as it marks the 75th anniversary of Confederation, it is fitting that the majority of towns and villages in Canada are planning a suitable celebration for that day. It will give added impetus to Army Week and to the deep-seated desire to honor the boys in khaki.

This is a citizens' show and every community in the country will want to have a part in it. Not only will it prove to the soldiers that they have not been forgotten by the public, but it will go far towards enlightening Canadians more intimately concerning the role of Canada's Army and the manner in which the troops are cared for and trained. Until the present time the Army has been somewhat overshadowed by the sterling performance of Canada's Air Force and Navy, which have seen action on many fronts while the Army has remained inactive so far as actual combat is concerned. It cannot be forgotten that in the end it will require an invasion of the European continent to ensure the defeat of Hitlerism. Then the Army will be called upon to play its part.

Canada has an army of which to be proud, and Canadians will have the chance during Army Week to demonstrate their true appreciation of the men who are making the greatest sacrifice in the battle to preserve our liberty. The days from June 29 to July 5 should culminate in the most memorable exhibition of patriotic fervour in Canada's history.

Remember the Boys Overseas

An appeal has recently been made for more letters and news to be sent to Canadians on Overseas service — says an editorial in our Granby exchange, the Leader-Mail. The remarks of our fellow editor on this subject may be quoted with timeliness, as "Army Week" is scheduled shortly to impress the debt of civilian Canada to her fighting forces.

The importance of mail from home is emphasized by officers handling army legal work, particularly courts-martial. They say that in many cases it is the soldier who hasn't been receiving mail from home regularly who runs foul of army regulations and winds up in a court-martial.

Court evidence shows that often soldiers facing charges testified they had not heard from home for a long time. It worried and depressed them.

One officer who studied these cases with an eye to helping out service men offers this advice for writing to airmen, soldiers and sailors overseas:

Make letters consequential and spend time on them; answer questions that the overseas man asks in his letters and answer them immediately and fully because unanswered questions lead to all kinds of doubt and concern.

Tell him what's going on in his old town, what relations and old friends are doing: become an amateur gossip columnist as you jot down small details about home life, for no news about his home is too trivial for a man on this side of the Atlantic.

Send him local news clippings from hometown papers—the little items that are only news in that particular community. Send cartoons from papers: they are always a hit in the camps.

Snapshots of members of the family and friends are cherished possessions of overseas troops. There are few who don't carry a few snaps around in their paybooks and all want more.

When several members of a family are writing fairly regularly to overseas relations or friends, they should stagger their letters so some will catch the different trans-Atlantic mails.

He is much more pleased if he gets one or two letters a mail rather than a batch of half a dozen at one time and then nothing for six weeks or more.

There are many local people who frequently remember the boys overseas by sending them cigarettes or other treats, by giving some a special overseas subscription to the local paper, or by sending letters. This particularly refers to people who have no close relatives overseas, and therefore do not write to them at regular intervals.

Such people deserve special praise, but unfortunately there are not enough of them. Everybody should remember more often the boys who are far from home. Even if a person has no special friends to write to, he or she can contribute a few cents weekly to one of the various funds that send over cigarettes to soldiers.

Sunburn, A Saboteur

Sunburn is among the dangerous seasonal ailments according to industrial medicine authorities, who state that during summer months it causes a greater loss of working time than any other ailment — Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director of the Health League of Canada warns. In the present urgency for wartime production in Canada's industries and farms, medical men suggest that people should be on guard against excessive exposure, especially on week-end outings and picnics.

For those who are only moderately sunburned, medical men suggest use of a tannic acid jelly preparation or application of tannic acid solution in packs to burned parts. This can be used while still fresh or prepared with distilled or sterile water.

Physicians warn against the use of grease, especially in badly burned cases, because in case of infection the doctor must first remove the grease, a process which may be painful to the patient.

Ticket Rationing of Foods A Logical Step

Mr. Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, has announced that a sugar-rationing scheme, by coupons, will be set up in Canada, and that the system will be extended to other essential commodities.

Mr. Gordon, noting the substantial decrease in the consumption of sugar, tea and coffee under the present system of compulsory rationing without coupons, goes on to say "coupons will be a great convenience to the public in keeping track of their consumption", and suggests that evidently it is desirable "that the use of ration cards and coupons should be introduced".

Most people will agree with Mr. Gordon. The rationing of essential important food commodities has been accepted by the vast majority of the Canadian people without complaint, and they are loyally meeting the conditions laid down. The use of cards and coupons is but another step, and a logical one, to make it easier for patriotic citizens to do their full duty in this matter—and harder for the unpatriotic few to evade the regulations.

Meanwhile, it should be understood, the present rationing regulations are in full force. And it is emphasized again by Mr. Gordon that buying any goods beyond immediate requirements is hoarding, and illegal. Inconveniences all of us may suffer are easily borne — but there is trouble when a few fare better than the masses of the people. Good citizens will not seek to obtain unfair advantages by buying up large stores of food or other commodities which they think may become scarce—they will take their chances with their neighbors. —Ottawa Farm Journal

Synthetic Rubber — Here's How

If you have difficulty in understanding the chemistry lesson in all the synthetic rubber talk, you're normal. Over-simplifying, the process goes something like this:

Basic material is ethyl alcohol, which can be made from starch grains or sugar, or synthetically from ethylene gas, a petroleum by-product. In the case of sugar, yeast is added to dilute solutions, a ferment sets up, and the resulting mash is distilled to produce alcohol.

The alcohol is converted into butadiene, which is a gas that can also be obtained from petroleum.

Butadiene has the property of polymerization, which means that one molecule can be built on another until you form a solid.

When styrene, a substance which can be obtained either from coal or petroleum products, is introduced with butadiene, the two substances condense or polymerize to form rubber.

Simple isn't it? — Montreal Herald

R.A.F. and German Airmen Fraternize In Irish 'Pub'

Flyers of the British Royal Air Force and some of their foes of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe regularly frequent the bar of a roadside inn some twenty miles outside of Dublin, drinking, smoking and talking peacefully in the same small public room.

This strange meeting of members of the two hostile air forces, probably unparalleled elsewhere in the world, takes place because the flyers involved have been interned by the neutral government of Eire.

The inn or pub is isolated in the farming countryside six or seven miles from the camp where the internees are confined. There are roughly forty pilots and aircrew members of both sides interned in the camp, and the Eire government scrupulously accords the R.A.F. and the Luftwaffe the same privileges of parole. — N.Y. Herald-Tribune

And then there was the merchant . . .

There was a merchant who refused to advertise in his local newspaper, saying "Nobody reads it," but who constantly secured handbills from some wholesale house, which were passed around and placed in the automobiles on the streets. When the merchant's daughter got married, he went gleefully to the office of the newspaper with a long story about the wedding. The editor set up the type, printed it on 200 bills and sent a group of boys out with instructions to place them in automobiles standing on the street. The merchant, who was subject to high blood pressure, is now thought to be convalescing in a hospital.

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By H. H. GORDON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

MILITARY GENIUS OF SIR ARTHUR CURRIE RECOGNIZED BY APPOINTMENT AS COMMANDER OF CANADIAN CORPS

Sir Arthur Currie, noted citizen-soldier, was appointed to command the Canadian Corps 25 years ago in the First Great War. His appointment was a marked recognition of Canadian leadership, vigor and resourcefulness and for the first time Command of the corps passed from an Imperial Army officer to a native-born Canadian.

As commander of the 1st Division, Maj.-Gen. Currie played an outstanding part in the operations that brought honor to Canada in the Ypres Salient, at the Somme and later at Vimy Ridge. He was knighted by King George V and the French government created him a Commander of the Legion of Honor.

When that brilliant British general, Sir Julian Byng, relinquished command of the Canadian corps to assume command of the Third Army, he indicated Sir Arthur as his logical successor. The appointment was announced June 19, 1917 and Sir Arthur was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general.

The Canadian commander was responsible for the triumphs of the corps at Hill 70 and Passchendaele in the late summer and fall of 1917. These victories inspired the Allies during the critical period that followed the failure of the French offensive at the Aisne.

Over the Rhine

During the last year of the war the Canadians drove forward from Amiens to Cambrai, Valenciennes and Mons. Following the armistice the 1st and 2nd Divisions began the long march from Mons to the Rhine where Sir Arthur Currie set up headquarters in the city of Bonn.

A writer on the war said of Sir Arthur: "In time the people of Canada will come to realize how great a figure Sir Arthur Currie was on the West Front . . . Had the war continued he might have gone far, his military genius recognized, his vigorous leadership proved, save that there must still have attached to him the proud disability of being a Canadian citizen soldier."

Born at Napperton, Ont. in 1875, Sir Arthur was best known as a Westerner. He left for British Columbia at the age of 19 years where he became a school teacher and later a real estate agent. He joined the militia in 1895 and entered vigorously into military life. At the outbreak of war he volunteered for active service and was appointed to command the 2nd Infantry Brigade.

With the Canadian army back to a peace-time basis, Sir Arthur was appointed Inspector-General, but in June 1920 he accepted the position of Principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University. He died in 1933 but his 13 years at McGill was a period of progress for the Montreal institution.

Add Engineers For Air Crews

New Rating Arranged for Aircraft of the British Coastal Command

London (CP) — The R.A.F. is training airmen as flight engineers for aircrew duties in long-range bombers and aircraft of Coastal Command. The trade, a new one, is open to men of all ages, even if their medical category is as low as 3B.

Their duties will be to advise the captain of the aircraft on the condition of its engines both before and during flights, to carry out engineering repairs in the air if the machine is damaged by flak or other causes and to act as spare air gunner in an emergency. They will hold the rank of sergeant and be allowed to wear the air gunner's badge.

Run-of-Mine Voter

Most Canadians have so many troubles these days that the troubles of political parties do not greatly worry them. They feel that it is up to the politicians to look after whatever serious worrying needs to be done about political parties. Canadians in general voted Liberal the last two times, but the rumor that the Liberals are having some domestic difficulties does not spoil the sleep.

The run-of-mind voter, indifferent to many things that the partisan cherishes, is apt to show up at any time with a surprising amount of common sense. Gullible, he can be led down the garden path, but he can't be depended on to stay there. He is self-centred and full of prejudices, but in his wandering way of voting Grit in 1926, Tory in 1930, then back again to Grit, he browses through the political fields hankering for satisfactory government. He can't recall ever having found it, but he is still hoping. — The Printed Word

"Homesick"

Erect and facing out to sea,
Somewhere on England's coast,
A suntanned young Canadian stands,
On duty at his post.

The far horizon holds his sight
To where the waning sun
Dips to the ocean's western rim,
Its day of glory done.

The strong young face is softened,
To a wistful sort of gaze,
For his thoughts are of sweet memories,
That time cannot erase.

He's thinking of his people,
And the scenes of home that lie,
Beyond the straight horizon,
Where the ocean meets the sky.

His father often told him,
Of the struggle years ago,
When the Allies fought for freedom,
On the fields where poppies grow.

So now that once again the voice
Of freedom calls for aid,
The young Canuck recalls with pride
The part his father played.

The part he played was not in vain,
For here on Britain's shore,
The son defends democracy
In these dark days of war.

Canadian sons, however grim
Your task allotted be,
For Canada you'll "CARRY ON"
Till final Victory.

The Probable Reason

(The Wheatly Journal)

The wail appears in the Windsor Star Letter Box: "Stop giving the farmers all the jobs; give the Windsor boys a chance." The reason boys from the farm get the jobs in Windsor factories wouldn't be because they learned how to work early in life, and are content to do their job without agitating for more money, more leisure, more this or more that, at the behest of disgrunted labor union bosses, who never did a fair day's work in their lives? Or would it? As a general thing a willing honest worker can get a job any time.

THRIFT is today on the march all through Canadian life. In industry, in the office, on the farm, even in the schools, THRIFT is saving for vital war requirements.

There was an earthquake in a South American town which badly scared the inhabitants.

Two days later the parents received the following telegram:

"Am returning your boy. Send the earthquake."

"It says here in the paper that in Egypt women carry baskets of fruit and flowers on their heads."

"That's nothing so remarkable. Women do that over here and call them hats."

French River and Devil's Gap Highlight Ontario Holidays

One of the surest ways of maintaining a proper perspective of things is to take temporary leave of the cares of a troubled world and get back to nature for a while . . . a trend that should be particularly popular this summer at French River Bungalow Camp, near Georgian Bay and Devil's Gap Lodge on the Lake of the Woods, where all the comforts of a metropolitan hotel are combined with the freedom and informality of the great outdoors.

Located in the heart of Ontario's loveliest lake and forest country, yet conveniently served by Canadian Pacific Railway lines, both resorts offer such popular vacation pursuits as fishing — and that includes matching wits with the giant muscalunge— hunting, canoeing, yachting, bathing and hiking, with the contrasting "city" delights of golfing, tennis, and dancing, in a setting that might well be a hundred miles from nowhere.

Consisting of attractive, electrically-equipped cabins and central community lodge, French River Bungalow Camp is one of the few resorts in the world where big game fishing can be enjoyed within earshot of the whack of a golf club. This miracle was achieved by carving a sporty nine-hole course from the woods surrounding nearby Dry Pine Bay, where golfers movements are frequently studied through the wide eyes of a wild deer.

Fashioned along similar lines, Devil's Gap Lodge, an exhilarating boat ride from Kenora station, provides unlimited opportunities for the summer sportsman or vacationist, whether his tastes run to stalking "muskies", pickerel, bass or trout, or simply acquiring a golden tan from a diving-float or lazily drifting canoe. Excellent boating facilities are maintained by the Lodge where guests have access to a nine-hole golf course and fine tennis courts.

Fishing is a major attraction at French River Bungalow Camp and Devil's Gap Lodge, handsome trophies being awarded for the largest muscalunge, bass and pickerel fished from their respective waters. Guides, boats, tackle and bait are also maintained for the guests' convenience.

OBITUARY

Late Miss Christina Graham

Cushing — Another link with the past has been broken with the passing of Miss Christina Elizabeth Graham, at an advanced age, at the home of her nephew, Archie Graham, where she had been cared for during the past seven months. The late Miss Graham had been a lifelong resident of this community, except for a few years in her early girlhood when she attended Kent Street School in Ottawa and resided with her sister, Mrs. Wm. Stephen.

Miss Graham had borne her long illness with patience and cheerfulness, always taking a keen interest in the activities of the community and of St. Mungo's Church, of which she was a member.

Two sisters remain to mourn her loss — Miss Margaret Graham, of Ormstown, who was with her in her last illness, Mrs. W. Candlish, Sr., of Montreal, and also a number of nieces and nephews, with their families.

A throng of friends, neighbors and relatives paid their last respects; among these were Miss M. Stephen, Miss M. Mumford and Mr. J. Stephen, of Ottawa; Miss M. Candlish, the Misses G. and I. Somerville, Miss H. Hoar, Mr. and Mrs. L. McGain and Mr. W. Godwin, of Montreal; and Keith McCaig, of Ormstown; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Robertson and son, of Mirabel.

The funeral service was conducted on Monday by the Rev. F. Morgan, of Ottawa, assisted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, of Lachute.

The remains were interred in St. Andrews East Cemetery, the pall-bearers being John Somerville, John Bradford, John, Allan, Cecil and James Graham. The flowers were very beautiful and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Graham and family, also her sister, Miss Margaret Graham, appreciate the kindly thought which prompted these tributes.

Pretty Wedding at St. Simeon's Church

Ward - Copeland

St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute, decorated with ferns and spring flowers, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday evening, June 6, at 7.30 p.m., when Myrtle Jessie, daughter of Mrs. Anthony Copeland and the late Mr. Copeland, was married to Lawrence Herbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ward, of Mille Isles. The Rev. B. J. Thorpe officiated.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Thos. McMahon. Miss Reta Copeland was her sister's maid-of-honor. Miss Vera Ward, sister of groom, was bridesmaid. Little Miss Florence Copeland, niece of the bride, and Miss Margaret Holt were flower girls.

Mr. Ralph Copeland, brother of the bride, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. John Ward, brother of the groom, and Mr. Albert Gain, cousin of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Ernest. She wore a floor length gown of white embroidered organdie over satin, having a fitted bodice with Peter Pan collar and a very full skirt. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a tiara of lilies of the valley. She carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses and maiden hair fern.

The maid-of-honor and the bridesmaid were dressed alike in pink and blue gowns of sheer, with head-dress of pleated net to match trimmed with flowers, and shoulder-length veils; each carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The little flower girls were dressed alike in floor-length dresses of yellow tulle over taffeta, with sashes of mauve velvet ribbon. They wore a band of yellow roses in their hair and carried a nosegay of tiny roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Copeland, mother of the bride, was gowned in Air Force blue crepe with black accessories and wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Ward, mother of the groom, was gowned in blue satin with white accessories, and wore a corsage of red roses.

CONFIDENCE GROWS IN FLYING SWEEPS OVER NAZI EUROPE

Veteran Squadron Leader Recites British Air Triumphs

London (CP) — "Our only wish is to see our offensive gradually increase until the Hun simply can't take any more," said the Squadron Leader.

He told of British air sweeps over enemy territory as casually as if he were describing some unexciting peace-time occupation at home. He was qualified to speak by having taken part in 100 "sweeps" since the start of the year.

"Our Spitfires armed and ready look sleek and deadly in their dispersal areas," he began. "The pilots are in their rest rooms playing cards, reading, listening to the radio or the gramophone. The joking and leg-pulling, the discussion of tactics and the general babble of the dispersal hut stops when a formal voice comes through the loudspeaker.

"It says: 'All pilots will report at 13:00 hours in the Wing Pilot's room.' It is now about noon. The card games end. The radio is switched off. The boys troop off to the mess for an early lunch. At 12:45 they're all back in the Wing Pilot's Room. It's all there on the map. Our course is planned. There's no drama about it. It's happened too often lately for us to be excited.

Off They Go

"Then we're in our Spitfires. The Leader goes off. His wheels come up and the other Spitfires roar up behind him. Thirty or more pilots now depend for their lives on the skill and judgment of the Wing Leader.

"We're at 20,000 feet over France. It's comparatively peaceful and quiet but everyone is watching out. Before you can count 10, the German planes are attacking, perhaps 10 of them above and two lots of 20 from either side.

"We mill round and round. The air is full of Hun aircraft. No sooner has one of us got his sights on a 190 than he has to pull up or turn because one is on his tail. Then by magic the whole sky is empty again except for a few smoking aircraft going down.

"My number two and I become separated from the remainder of our formation. We start for home and eight to ten huns come down to have a crack at the two of us. We turn to fight but there are rather a lot of them. We squirt here and there as often as we can. My number two puts his nose down and streaks for home. He lands with five cannon shell holes in his aircraft. Luckily, nothing hit me.

Grim Fights Aloft

"As you turn and twist in combat over France you realize your petrol won't last forever. When you make a dart for home, a Hun will come screaming down on you. He likes things his own way. If he sees you are determined, he gradually cools off.

"We see four Germans stooging peacefully along. They are in nice tight formation. They never know what hits them. Three are destroyed for certain. The fourth is almost certainly destroyed. The Hun I fire at goes down lazily, down and down. There's no smoke, no flame, nothing spectacular. He crashes in a plowed field.

Brownsburg United Ch. Ladies Forego Annual Lawn Social Event

Brownsburg—Owing to war conditions, and to comply with the rationing of commodities, the lawn social or garden party held annually under the auspices of the United Church Ladies' Auxiliary on the manse grounds, has been cancelled for this year, and instead a subscription list is being circulated by the members in the various districts. To date it seems as though the amount usually realized at this popular event of the season, will be over-subscribed . . . It is indicative of loyalty and devotion to the war effort for the ladies to make this decision, as it is also for the many contributors to support them in lieu of a time honored social gathering. The ladies desire to thank all those who have already responded to their appeal as well as those awaiting the solicitors.

Next Sunday will be marked by special services at the United Church, this being the occasion of the minister's ordination anniversary. At the morning service, the Rev F. R. Matthews, B.A., ex-president of the Newfoundland United Church Conference and a close friend of the Rev. S. J. Pike in his ministerial career, will preach. An informal service will be conducted by the minister at 7.30 p.m.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 21.

The Golden Text is from Proverbs 3: 19. "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else." (Isaiah 45: 18).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit, God, has created all in and of Himself . . . Spirit is the only substance, the invisible and indivisible infinite God. Things spiritual and eternal are substantial. Things material and temporal are insubstantial." (Page 336).

APPLICATION CARDS FOR COUPON RATIONING OF SUGAR
will be mailed next week to every Household in Canada

Canadians will be required to register so that ration cards, good for the 10 week period, commencing July 1st, may be issued immediately. At the end of that period a coupon ration book, good for six months, will be issued.

HOW TO REGISTER

Residents in Urban Areas not served by Letter Carrier, and Residents in Rural Areas

Application cards will be distributed to all householders through the post offices on or before Tuesday, June 23rd. Additional cards will also be delivered for every person resident in the household, who bears a different last name from the head of the household. If needed, extra cards may be secured from local post offices.

These application cards should be filled out immediately and dropped in the nearest mail box or post office. A pamphlet giving complete instructions will be delivered with each card. As soon as your name is duly registered at headquarters, ration cards, good for a ten-week period, will be mailed to you—one ration card for each person in your home. These will be for sugar only.

Coupon Rationing for Sugar Becomes Effective July 1st

Beginning July 1st, no one will be permitted to buy sugar for regular domestic use without a ration coupon.

Prompt co-operation on the part of the public in filling out and returning their application cards is necessary to ensure return of the ration coupon card in time to purchase sugar on or after the above date.

Remember—the amount of sugar allowed each individual under the new coupon rationing plan will be exactly the same as allowed at present—½ pound per person per week.

HERBS

There was a discussion on the pronunciation of the word herb. A series of radio talks had used the pronunciation which sounded the letter H, and none of us had heard it pronounced that way, but always with the mute H. I looked it up in the Oxford Dictionary when I got home and it sounds the letter H. It stated that the word was from the Latin and was a Middle English word and the H was mute until the 19th Century. Herb may be right, but 'erb sounds more natural.

THE GRAPEFRUIT JUICE SUBSIDY

There has been considerable comment on the subsidy given by the Government to Grapefruit juice. Comment both in and out of Parliament. The chorus being, why don't we use Canadian fruit juices? The answer to that is simple — there aren't any. Fruit-juices are taken to supply vitamin C. Tomato juice is a source, but it takes more than twice as much tomato juice to supply vitamin C as it does grapefruit juice. Canned grapefruit juice is one of the cheapest sources of this vitamin. Unfortunately apply juice has no vitamin C worth mentioning and cannot be used as a substitute for orange or grapefruit juice. They have been experimenting and have added vitamin C to apple juice, but there has not been sufficient time yet to find out the staying powers of this added vitamin. It is to be hoped this will be determined by September, and that if vitamin C can be added successfully, that the manufacture of apple juice will be continued as a Canadian industry. Even though it has no vitamin, it has minerals that are good for you and the Malic acid is a good aid to digestion. Serve Canadian apple juice often as it is pleasant to drink, but do not substitute it for orange or grapefruit juice.

FEAR

There are so many fears in this world. We have them all our lives. Many difficulties with children are caused by fears which we have failed to recognize and thus have not helped them overcome. Fears are learned and all too many are caused by a reflection of a mother's fears. You mustn't fight or you will get hurt; you mustn't touch that dirty thing or you will get sick; and so on ad infinitum. Caution is a good thing but not fear. Teach them to do things carefully. For instance have a small child take you across the street until he learns to be careful. Fear of dogs is a common fear. Perhaps a dog has suddenly barked loudly and frightened him. A neighbor's small boy ran crying to his mother, "the dog shouted at me". This child became quite a problem as his mother aggravated the situation by grabbing him whenever a dog came near. If a child has become frightened of dogs tell them pleasant dog stories. Tell them that when a dog wags its tail it is trying to say it wants to be friends. Try to get them to pat a friendly dog, but not one that is apt to jump up on him and scare him worse. The best solution of course is for the child to have a dog of his own. If the mother is frightened of thunder storms, the child is apt to be too. Take the child to the window during a storm and have him watch it as a spectacle. Have him listen to the length of time between the thunder and lightening. And teach him never to stand under a tree during a storm. That is caution, not fear. Children are often frightened of meeting people and that is a situation a mother can gradually overcome by having him meet more people in the security of his own home. Lead children away from fears but never force them.

CHOCOLATE SUNDAE PIE

1 Envelope unflavored gelatin (1 tabsp.) ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 3 tablespoons cold water, 1½ cups scalded milk, ½ cup sugar, 3 eggs, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ cup whipping cream, ¼ cup grated cooking chocolate.

Soak the gelatin in the water. Beat egg yolks, add dry ingredients, and stir in milk. Cook in double boiler until thickened. Stir in gelatin and vanilla, and chill until partly set. Beat and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into 9". baked pie shell. Chill. Cover with sweetened whipped cream. Sprinkle with chocolate.

MILK SHAKES

If you are trying to get the children to drink more milk, they might enjoy milk shakes for a change. To give variety in flavor add some prepared junket powders and shake well.

MAPLE BOILED ICING

Boil 1 cup of maple syrup until it will form a fairly firm soft ball when dropped in cold water. Pour the hot syrup over a stiffly beaten egg white and continue beating until firm enough to spread. If the icing is let stand for awhile before spreading on the cake it will stay put better.

CHOCOLATE SPONGE DESSERT

2 Egg yolks, 2 tablespoons cold water, ½ cup pastry flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ⅔ teaspoon baking powder, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 1 tablespoon corn starch, 2 egg whites.

Beat the egg yolks and water for three minutes. Add the vanilla and sugar and beat one minute more. Add the sifted dry ingredients and mix well. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill muffin tins two-thirds full and bake in a moderate oven of 325 degrees. Remove from tins and when cool cut a circle from the top of each and fill with ½ cup cream whipped, mixed with 4 marshmallows cut in pieces, 2 tablespoons sugar, and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Replace the tops. I cut mine with a cookie cutter and this makes a perfect circle.

B.C. HOUSEWIVES IN DETECTION CORPS TO SPOT ENEMIES

Women and Girls Enrolled as Coastal Observers to Forestall Japanese Air Raids

Victoria, June 15 (CP)—Scattered along the miles of rugged shore on Canada's west coast is a unique organization of housewives and fishermen, loggers and businessmen, who keep an unending night and day watch of the sea and sky for the approach of any enemy.

Made up of men and women, and even boys and girls—all civilian volunteers—this war-born organization is known as the Aircraft Detection Corps. Linked by a communication network to the defence nerve centre at Western Air Command, the Corps might give Canada her first intimation of the approach of any raider from the west.

All telephone, wireless and telegraph systems are geared to this defence organization. Even coastal vessels with their ship-to-shore radio are a part of the communication web which stands ever ready to carry a warning of the approach of Japanese ships or planes.

Trained Observers

The observers are trained in the recognition of enemy planes. They report the aerial movements of friend and foe alike to the Royal Canadian Air Force and also give information regarding unindentified or suspicious vessels.

The Corps has been in operation on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts since early in 1940 and close co-operation has been kept with the United States Air Raid Warning services.

On rocky promontories or whatever natural vantage points their districts provide, the observers of the Detection Corps scan the skies for aircraft entering the region under their scrutiny. Fishermen in their sturdy craft which go many miles to sea also keep a watch for suspicious ships or planes.

Reports Checked

When a report reaches Western Air Command in the curt code used by the Corps, it is checked with the available information on the known activities of ships or planes in the area from which the report came. If the presence of aircraft or ships does not tally with this information, the Air Force, Army and Navy are advised and the machinery of defence moves swiftly into action.

In addition to the civilian watchers all provincial policemen, foresters, lighthouse-keepers and ship's crews are co-operating in the network which an enemy would find it hard to pierce undetected.

Staked Savings to House Poor Family

Winnipeg, June 16 (CP)—Grey-haired Adjutant Eva Leadbetter of the Salvation Army parked her bicycle in front of a downtown office building here, made her way to a real estate agent's office and presented him with her life savings —$200.—to help buy a home for a deserving family.

"This is money I've scraped together out of living allowance given me by the Army, and out of money that came to me through the sale of family property at Prince Albert," she said, offering to give a further $10 every month to help pay off the balance. "The family has eight children. They should have a house with four bedrooms, a bathroom and a good-sized kitchen," the Adjutant stipulated firmly. "And for the sake of the children, the house should be outside the slum area."

BRITISH HOSPITAL UNIT AT BATTERED TOBRUK

The Hadfield-Spears Hospital Unit, composed of British nursing sisters and drivers, French Medical Officers and nurses, the Friends' Ambulance Unit, and Senegalese orderlies, is now working in the Western Desert forward areas. "Hair-Switch" Is Back in Style

Added Hair-Pieces Are An Aid to Getting Back To Granny's Ideas

By BETTY CLARKE

Remember the old-fashioned switch with which Grandma used to embellish her crowning glory? Well, it's back in style again, only now they call it a "band-o-hair" and use it in new and ingenious ways.

If your hairdresser grew too enthusiastic about your new short haircut, you can cover the damage with an obliging hair-piece that exactly matches your own shorn locks and adapts itself to curls, buns or bangs with equal ease.

Added hair pieces can solve many of your problems. The day you go swimming, with no time to be prettied at the hairdresser's before you don your long skirt for the evening, all you do is pin on curls which look as if they grew from your own head.

Wartime Stoves

Removal of unnecessary trimmings and other changes in designs for the new "wartime model" stoves, will result in a saving of sixteen per cent of the iron and steel which otherwise would have been used, Alan H. Williamson, Controller of Supplies, estimates.

"The housewives of Canada will be very well satisfied with the designs of the new stoves," said the Controller. "They will not be as beautiful as the old models, but they will be every bit as efficient."

The new stove order will affect the production of stoves of all types, except the big cook stoves for army and industrial camps. Wherever possible the output will be reduced and the design simplified.

The Controller urged everyone who has a stove not in use to place it on the market for sale. "Many thousands of pounds of steel and iron are tied up in unused stoves," he said. "By making such stoves available for others to buy, the demand for new stoves will be eased and the strain on the already desperately short steel supply will be, to that extent, relieved."

Get "Energy" Meals For Long Flights

British Flying Boats Have Cooking Galley

London (CP)—Feeding of Coastal Command crews on long operational flights has become a scientific business and instead of the odds and ends they used to pack the fliers are sent on their way now with food for "energy" meals aloft.

Each flying boat has its little galley with an oil cooking stove which can deal with a wide variety of foodstuffs. Typical menu for a 20-hour flight: breakfast — corn flakes, bacon and eggs, bread and butter, sugar and milk; lunch—steak, potatoes, fresh vegetables, dried fruit and milk; tea — tea, sugar; supper—milk, tea, sardines, sugar; supper—milk tea, sardines, bread, butter and sugar.

They had had a little argument. When the wife went into the hall she met the maid and became suspicious.

"Mary, were you listening?" she asked the girl.

IT'S ACHING FEET BUT FRIENDLY JOB WAITING ON STARS

Movietown Waitress has Few Big Tippers; Earnings Not So Large for Glamor Centre

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, June 8 (CP) — Another side of Hollywood:

Once a month Elizabeth Lampe, blonde, blue-eyed, with a smile like good news, spends $2.50 for treatment of her occupational ailment: aching feet and corns.

Elizabeth is a waitress at a big studio commissary. Three hours a day, six days a week, she hops from kitchen to tables and back again — quick, cheerful, smiling.

She clears 50 cents an hour, or $9 per 18-hour week, plus lunch and tips. Waitresses over the country who dream of Hollywood's golden coffers would be surprised. Elizabeth considers herself lucky if her weekly total, including tips, is $16 to $18. Last year she netted $449, would have made more except that an operation (total cost $201) forced her out for a month.

Matter of Tips

Tipping is better at Hollywood's big "class" restaurants, but Elizabeth serves a mixed clientele of studio white-collar workers along with stars and executives. A quarter is considered a good tip from a star. Damon Runyon is Elizabeth's best current customer. He orders a glass of milk and tips a dollar. But many people, says Elizabeth, can't afford a tip.

Tip or no tip, the Lampe shines on. Born in Sweden, reared in the Kaiser's old Germany, Elizabeth came to America at 16, has had her citizenship papers for three years. "Here," she says, "you can make a little money and do much with it."

Used to Dance

Once Elizabeth made an occasional $50 as a dancer while working as a waitress by day, and the banked proceeds paid for her operation and left enough for two War Bonds besides. She still banks at least $2 per week.

The easy friendliness of studio life is what appeals to her most about her job. She's Dutchie, Gretchen, Lizzie, Betty, Sonja—but seldom Elizabeth to her customers, most of them she calls by their first names.

After she appeared in a studio amateur play, she had a call for a screen test. She never "got around" to answering it.

SUGAR REDUCTION CAN BE PAINLESS

Sugar rationing won't hurt anyone. According to nutritionists, sugar does nothing more than supply quick energy and create an appetite for more sugar.

Here are "painless" ways to cut down on sugar: Gradually reduce amounts in tea, coffee and on cereals; make icings thinner or eliminate entirely; serve fruits in season in their natural state instead of in cakes, pies and puddings.

The Popular "Woodhouse and Hawkins"

For the summer months, CBC's famous comedy team will give up the weekly rendezvous at Manning Pool, Toronto, to appear before audiences throughout Ontario. Airmen on leave, girls of the R.C.A.F. and all good citizens who are in the mood for fun will be welcome at the meetings called by Messrs. Woodhouse and Hawkins, formerly of Winnipeg but for the past year residents of Toronto. The first port of call will be Timmins, Ontario, where the boys will help the Canadian Legion to put over its summer carnival. This picture with two of the celebrated R.C.A.F. Flight Sergeants keeping Hawkins in his place (at the point of a bayonet) in spite of Woodhouse's eloquent gestures was taken just before the whole show moved into the CBC Concert studios for a short run. The final broadcast will be heard tomorrow, Friday, June 19, at 8.05 p.m. EDT.

Barbara Stanwyck in Highly Versatile Role

They put up a statue to Senator Ethan Hoyt in the public square of the town because they were so proud of him. He was one of his country's greatest benefactors. And near the square lived a little old woman, a centenarian whom nobody knew much about. And then one day she told her story. And that story furnishes the matter of The Great Man's Lady — which is portrayed on the Brownsburg Capitol screen next week.

It is a deeply appealing story. It digs down into the frailty of human nature and its soars into the kind of heroism that is quiet and unrecognized because it is spanned over a long and outwardly uneventful period.

Ethan Hoyt is no hero to the movie audience whatever he may have been to his contemporaries. He is human, all too human. He leaves his wife in a fit of jealously, leaves her to associate with a broken-down gambler. He believes her dead, marries again and then she appears on the scene once more to become his inspiration for the rest of his life.

Hannah Hoyt is the self-sacrificing woman personified — a part which is superbly acted by Barbara Stanwyck. Miss Stanwyck has contributed many memorable portraits to the screen, but none of them equals this one. She gives you the woman Hannah, the loving wife, the mother, the old centenarian, a piece of acting, in short, that runs pretty well the gamut of the screen. Miss Stanwyck as Hannah the mother, receiving the news that the bodies of her two babies, drowned in a flood, have been found and buried, is something that cuts you in the quick. This is pathos at his best.

Next to Miss Stanwyck the best work is done by Brian Donlevy as the gambler, faithful to Hannah to the end. This is fine, restrained effort, too. Joel McCrea is handsomely cast as Ethan.

The fellow who wipes off his car once a month—maybe—will find that he can't treat a horse that way, if he makes the swap.

The salesman punched the doorbell and was greeted by a spinster. "I represent the Tightfit Wool Company," said he, "would you be interested in coarse yarns?"

A hopeful look came into the eyes of the spinster, as she breathed in reply: "Of course. Tell me a couple."

"Tortilla Flat" Story of Spanish Descendants In California

The singular task of teaching five people to speak a dialect they never heard fell to Dr. Simon R. Mitchneck, former professor of languages at Columbia University, on a motion picture set in Hollywood.

He was appointed co-ordinator of speech on the set of Tortilla Flat, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer adaptation of John Steinbeck's memorable novel, which will appear at the Rex Theatre Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

"In teaching the cast to speak like Californian paisanos, instead of using an accent which wouldn't be uniform, we decided to use a rhythmic pattern of speech," he explained. "The paisano voice has a vocal curve which moves upward, and the speech also has a certain catch in it.

Tortilla Flat comes out of the Metro studios as one of its most interesting productions of the season. The stories, which were related in their studies of northern California life have been put together to make a simple but effective screen play. It brings us a picture of Californian people descended from the early Spanish settlers of that state, lazy with a child's aversion to work of any kind, dishonest in their failure to recognize any responsibility to society, dirty, shiftless and cunning, the paisanos as drawn in Tortilla Flat are the more attractive for these things, and are, in addition, charitable, devout, without malice and capable of delightful philosophy.

If the picture has a message it is that of mistrust of all property. The inheritance of two houses brings nothing but trouble to the

Friday's Races

There were three races on Friday afternoon. Six horses started in the 2.30; the first heat was won by "Guy C. Etawah" owned by A. A. Simser, of Cornwall, and driven by J. W. Connors, timed at 2.19. The second and third heats were won by "Captain Flagg" owned by A. Demers, Montreal, and driven by A. Potvin. The times were 2.17 and 2.21¾.

Four horses started in the 2.20 and the three heats were won by "Brownwood Tiger" owned by O. Corbeil & Co., Montreal, and driven by J. Lachappelle, to be timed at 2.16½, 2.20¼ and 2.18¼.

There were also four starters in the 2.24. Each heat was won by "Princess Henley", owned by B. McKane, Kingston, and driven by the owner. This horse was clocked at 2.18¼, 2.19¾ and 2.19½.

"Free For All" on Saturday

The "Free For All" on Saturday afternoon was a hotly contested race — "Chestnut Bar", owned by E. Raymond, Ottawa, and driven by O. Tailfer, winning the three heats. The times were: 2.11¾, 2.09½ and 2.09.

The 2.27 the same afternoon was one of the best races of the Fair. There were six starters. A touch of local color was added with "Belle of Lakeland", winner of the County Race, among them. She gave a very good account of herself, finishing fourth in each of the three heats. The winning horse in each heat was "Lady Eleanor McKillop" owned by Giard & Riendeau of St. Hyacinthe and driven by R. Bisson. There was a little confusion at the finish of one of the heats in view of the fact that the leading horse broke just as she passed under the wire. The judges in their deliberation finally decided that, in view of the fact the horse had not gained, she be accorded first place. The times made in this race were: 2.16, 2.14¾ and 2.20½.

Although there were not as many entries as in previous years, there were some excellent races. As usual this program presented a great attraction, possibly the best of the entire Fair. The smaller number of entries this year may be on account of the war, but there are many who believe that more attention should be paid to the race track on the part of the Fair management.

BEAVER RETURN AFTER A CENTURY'S ABSENCE

Sydney, N.S. — After a century's absence, the beaver has returned to that portion of Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, comprised in the Cape Breton Highlands National Park, to carry constructing beaver lodges and dams as their ancestors did. Because of their valuable contribution towards the conservation of wild life, the beaver were brought to the park and released four years ago. Latest reports are that they are multiplying, states L. B. Gillis, Agent of the C.N.R. at Sydney. The grandeur of the scenery of Cape Breton Highlands National Park has been described as among the most magnificent on the continent. The park contains a splendid golf course and is encircled by the famous Cabot Trail.

INCOME TAX COLLECTIBLE AT SOURCE, LEVIES INCREASED

Debate Continues on Manpower Bill

By BOB FRANCIS, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 24 (CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley has announced his 1942 war budget described as committing Canadians generally to "hard work, plain living, compulsory saving and tax-paying" for the duration of the war.

The budget plan taxes incomes in a sure-pay and increasing measure. The most important features of the plan to many people are the combination of the defence tax and the personal income tax in a higher impost with part of the total repayable to the taxpayer after the war with interest at two per cent per annum. In the case of salaried persons this will be taken from pay envelopes "at the source" after Sept. 1.

Users of liquor and tobacco in various forms, soft drinks and other "luxuries" will help to meet the nation's estimated 1942 expenditure of $3,900,000,000, in increased prices sure to follow the higher excise imposts on these things.

Enemy Shells on West Coast

The attack on Estevan Point, first on Canadian soil since Confederation, also centred added interest on conferences at Washington, believed concerned with the possibility of a second front, between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt. There was speculation that Prime Minister Mackenzie King might go to Washington to take part in the talks.

Conscription Debate

Speaking in the debate on the bill to empower the government to impose conscription for overseas by order in council, Navy Minister Macdonald pointed to Britain to show that men conscripted for service in the naval and air forces had acquitted themselves well. He advocated conscription for overseas service.

Defence Minister Ralston said that the manpower plebiscite was "a green light to the government to go full ahead." He said the plebiscite meant the voters wanted the government to raise men in any way it thought necessary.

Talk of Second Front

Talk of a second battle front the pros and cons of a second front in Europe, with the Canadian armed services playing a leading role in any attacking force was heard in some quarters here as the paths of numerous United Nations leaders appeared — by coincidence or design — to be crossing at White House Washington.

Coupled with the presence of these dignitaries on this side of the Atlantic was the statement in a radio speech by Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the general staff and commander-in-chief of the west coast defence forces, that the "big innings" of the army in the present war is coming soon.

It was noted here that Stephen Early, press secretary to President Roosevelt, said speculation regarding a second front seemed "perfectly justified" in view of the third meeting in less than a year of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

Discussion in Commons

And while momentous events seemed in prospect as a result of this meeting there were big doings in the Canadian parliament, too, with a vote approaching on Prime Minister Mackenzie King's bill to empower the government if it sees fit to impose conscription for overseas service.

War Services Minister Thorson told the House the decision of the government is that "it is not in the best interests of the Canadian war effort that conscription for overseas service should be imposed at the present time."

"I submit this decision will bring Canada closer to its real objective than if the government were to act otherwise," he said.

Mr. Thorson said he hoped conscription will never be necessary but if it ever becomes necessary it will be only the second best method to fulfil the program for Canada's armed forces. More out-

Sgt. N. Bradley Reported Missing After Air Attack

WAS MENTIONED FOR GALLANT CONDUCT

News received by Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Bradley, of Carillon, that their son, Norman, Sergeant Wireless Air Gunner in the R.C.A.F., is missing after operations over Germany, has caused deep concern among friends and acquaintances of the family.

Only last month, Sgt. Bradley received special mention for his outstanding work in bombing raids over France and Germany. He went overseas last September, and had seen service in Iceland prior to being stationed with the bombing command in England.

Bradley's parents occupy the residence in connection with the Argenteuil Museum at Carillon. He has a brother, Douglas, employed with the Montreal Gazette, and four sisters — Mrs. R. Martin in Westmount; Mrs. J. H. Berryhill of Washington, who is at present visiting her parents; Miss Eleanor Bradley in New York and Miss Ruth Bradley in Montreal.

Salvation Army Trucks Collecting This Week In The Neighborhood

Salvation Army trucks commenced their tour of homes in this community yesterday and will continue during the remainder of the week. Lachute, St. Andrews and Brownsburg will be visited, and citizens are asked to have in readiness any chattels which may be saleable, or clothing which may be handed on to needy people by this charitable organization. Paper, scrap metal, bottles and rags may be included in the former, and garments for men, women and children, in the latter category. Good magazines and literature can also be made use of.

Attention of our readers is specially directed to the worthiness of this cause, now in the 60th anniversary year of the Salvation Army when its sphere of activity is at a peak due to the demands of war . . . Military Funeral Held for Air Crash Victim

Volleys Fired at Graveside, While Planes Overhead Dip Their Wings

Evidence of the sorrow of this entire community was apparent at the funeral and interment rites of the late LAC. J. Charles Theoret, who lost his life in an airplane accident near Malone, N.Y., while on night manoeuvres Tuesday, June 16.

The funeral took place on Saturday morning, the body being taken from the home of his parents on Bedard Blvd. to Ste. Anastasie Parish Church. Besides the eight pall bearers, some of whom were members of his training class in the R.C.A.F., there was an escort of ten airmen, in charge of Sgt. Vipond, and a firing party of ten in charge of Sgt. Gravel.

Proceeding at a slow pace to the sound of muffled drums, the Air Force contingent preceded the cortege. Immediately following the hearse with its flag-draped casket were the chief mourners and members of Argenteuil Legion Branch No. 70, and a long procession of citizens, in cars and on foot, paying tribute to one who, so young, had paid the supreme sacrifice.

Pilot Officer Geoffrey Hess, of No. 5 Manning Depot, was in charge of the entire ceremony, assisted by Officer Peter Lecoq, of St. Hubert, who was flying instructor to the deceased airman.

At the church, the funeral rites were conducted by the Rev. Father Trottier, Station Chaplain of No. 13 S.F.T.S. at St. Hubert, and Squadron Leader Hamel, of No. 3 T.C., Chaplain at the Wireless School.

Funeral directors were J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, assisted by H. Kingston, a veteran of the last war and wearer of the Congressional Medal, a United States award bestowed by Woodrow Wilson.

War Work and Agriculture Hold Interests of W.I.

Brownsburg answered the roll-call by donating an article for Bundles for Britain. Cooking recipes were distributed. A wire was received from a boy in the Forces acknowledging a parcel. Dr. W. Hooper, guest speaker for the evening, in his talk on the care of the teeth stressed the importance of a healthy mouth. He said that faulty diet was often the cause of tooth decay and proper food is one of the most important factors in building sound teeth. Dr. Hooper spoke also of the disease, trench mouth, and showed pictures illustrating the effects of this disease.

Frontier had eight members and one visitor present, and had as their roll-call "The benefits of experimental farms to the small farmer". The president read an interesting paper entitled "What is a hoarder?"

Lachute donated $50 to the Red Cross. Letters of thanks were read from soldiers overseas, also from a W.I. branch in England for tea, sugar and seeds sent to them. A further sum was collected to send tea overseas.

Lakefield held their meeting at the home of Mrs. L. Dawson with 15 members present and many visitors. During the month flowers had been sent to sick members, also a spray in remembrance of a deceased member. Miss Canning read an interesting paper on Home Economics. A soap contest was held. A successful W.I. birthday party was held on June 3 at the home of Mrs. Geo. Evans. This gathering was also the occasion of a shower given for the president, Mrs. L. Westgate, a bride of th's month, who received many beautiful gifts and good wishes.

Mille Isles held their meeting at the home of Mrs. George Wood. Ten members answered the roll-call by naming an old fashioned remedy for common ailments. Five visitors were present. A decision was made to give War Savings Stamps as prizes to the three local schools. The sum of $2 was voted towards the County Scholarship, and up to the present $8 has been given to the self denial fund.

Morin Heights held their meeting at the home of Mrs. T. E. Seale. Arrangements were made to send cigarettes to boys overseas, and to hold a social evening to provide funds for school prizes. Plans were made for a truck to collect the salvage in this district once a month. A cooking utensil shower was arranged for a member whose home was recently burned. Mrs. J. D. Davis, convenor for National and International Relations, read extracts from the books "My Name Is Frank", "The Merchant Marine" and "Experience with a Dive Bomber". Pictures were also passed around showing war conditions in England. "Helpful Hints in Hectic Times" was the subject for the roll-call.

Pioneer, reporting for the month of May, notes that 18 members attended the meeting, answering the roll-call by "Do you think the small farmer derives any benefit from the Experimental Farms?" An article on vegetables was read. Five dollars was donated for chocolate and comforts for men overseas. An exchange of pot-holders was held, and a flower contest . . . In June a discussion on shrubs and flowers most suitable for the locality was held, an exchange of slips and plants, and a contest, "My garden", with prizes given by Mrs. Bradley.

Upper Lachute-East End took as their subject Home Economics, with a paper on "Cooking in Wartime", and "My Favorite Jam" as the roll-call. A sick member was remembered.

Graduating Class From Ste. Therese Seminary Entertained in Lachute

Graduates in the classical course at Ste. Therese Seminary were guests of their classmate, Pierre Paul Desjardins, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Desjardins, in Lachute last Friday. The party arrived in town at 4 p.m. They made a tour of inspection, visiting St. Julien Parish Church and Notre Dame de Lourdes shrine on the Brownsburg Road, and were favorably impressed with Lachute and its surroundings.

Arriving later at Desjardins Hotel, they were received by the Misses Marguerite and Celine Desjardins with a number of friends invited for the occasion, and by way of celebrating the termination of their studies the visitors were feted at a banquet in the dining room of the hotel. Here the president of the class, Paul Emile Charbonneau, extended warm thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Desjardins as hosts to the gathering, and to their daughters for the friendly hospitality enjoyed by the guests. A period of social entertainment concluded this happy occasion.

Man, Dog Team On Three Year Trek to Coast

"Where there's a will there's a way" seems the motivating spirit behind an unusual visitor who appeared in town this week.

André Gouin when only 11 months old was stricken with infantile paralysis. At the home of his parents in Abbottsford he was given all possible care, but never fully recovered and when he grew up, was incapacitated for man's-sized work. Not to be outdone by his misfortune, he spent some time in Timmins doing odd jobs, until he conceived the idea of travelling. Procuring a good dog and a small cart he started on the road, selling pictures of himself and his outfit, in which he covered thousands of miles. Another dog was added, and with this team and a small rubber-tired conveyance, he appeared in town this week. The postcards, which he sells for a dime, bring funds to help support him and his animals.

Starting from Abbotsford on April 22, he spent a month in Montreal, and is now on his way to Vancouver. He expects to spend the summer in Toronto, passing by North Bay; next summer in Winnipeg and the following in Vancouver.

Gouin's longest trip in one day has been 25 miles, while his average distance in a day is eight or ten miles. He carries a camping outfit with him . . . One of his animals is part wolf and part police dog, while the other is a Collie.

Exhibition Returns Show Increase; Society Votes $500 to the Red Cross

The directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, at their meeting held in the Court House, Lachute, Tuesday evening, voted the sum of $500 to the Red Cross campaign for funds.

President J. H. Black was in the chair and Secretary Alex Bothwell presented an encouraging report of returns from the Lachute Fair, which showed substantial gains over previous reports.

The Buildings Committee were empowered to proceed with certain necessary improvements to properties on the exhibition grounds.

NATION'S ATTENTION TO BE DIRECTED TO LAND FORCES

All Patriotic Communities Will Unite To Honor Men and Women in Uniform

To Give Practical Display of Support

By BOB FRANCIS Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 23 (CP) — Canadians are going to spend the week of June 29 to July 5 taking an intimate look at the men who produce the dividends in their biggest investment — the Canadian army.

For seven days during "Army Week" — set aside by proclamation as a time for citizens to honor their fighting sons in khaki — the rank and file of the nation will see how the rank and file of the army lives, eats and trains.

Officially proclaimed as Army Week, its activities on the national program include parades, demonstrations and visits to army camps arranged by local authorities in the various military districts. Churches, industrial concerns, stores and service groups are co-operating with army authorities in the task of publicizing the event and decorating their establishments with flags and bunting.

Military officials suggest the week might be marked by a special effort to send parcels to soldiers overseas and at isolated points, and by a new resolve to write frequently to Canadian troops overseas.

Will Show Their Best

Just about every branch of the army will have a chance to demonstrate their training and operations to the public during Army Week. The Royal Canadian Artillery, for instance, will stage a thrilling demonstration of fire power and precision training when their guns, large and small, now rubber-tired and tractor-drawn, will be whipped into action by gunners trained to split-second accuracy. Big crowds are expected to turn out at army technical schools to see soldiers actually working at their machines.

The army has trained 18,000 men as tradesmen in the past year — 90 or more trades are taught in 60 technical schools scattered over the Dominion — and Canadian mothers and fathers during Army Week will see these sons of theirs in action on the technical front.

Camp life of the soldier will come under the keen eye of the parents, too, with Mother looking on to see how Johnny Canuck is making his bed, and Dad wishing he were young enough to get into another war and share the comfortable modern barracks and recreation halls.

Army rations go on the menu in Canadian restaurants during Army Week, if plans work out, and the public will get a taste of what the army eats for breakfast, dinner and supper.

Pleasant Surprises

Officials say there will be plenty of eyebrow-raising when people see the balanced meals of choice foods planned by army dietitians. Housewives have heard the suggestion, too, that they serve some meals at home on the army plan so everybody will get a chance to see how the boys fare in barracks.

In addition to training demonstrations and equipment exhibits there will be a sports program. Sport is an integral part of the toughening-up program in the army training schedule.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps will be on parade during army week, too.

Official program for army week designates Monday, June 29, as Soldier Day, when the country will be asked to pay tribute to the soldiers at home and overseas. All other days of the week are also specially designated.

Local President Reports on Legion Prov. Convention

FIFTEENTH ANNUAL MEET HELD IN DRUMMONDVILLE

The provincial convention of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., was held in Drummondville on June 18-19-20.

At the formal opening ceremony, the delegates were given a civic welcome by the Mayor and other prominent officials, after which the business of the convention commenced.

Important wartime questions and problems were debated at length and resolutions adopted dealing with the future welfare of the ex-service men of the last war, as well as the younger soldiers of the present war.

The campaign for new membership in the province, started last fall, resulted in a total of over 1,500 new members being added.

Reports were also submitted on the various activities of the Canadian Legion War Services Branch, who, among other things, take care of the social and personal welfare of the men in the armed services.

Over 200 delegates took part in the parade from the City Hall to the tomb of Major-General Feleric George Herriot, founder of Drummondville, where wreaths were placed by the president of the Ladies' Auxiliary and the provincial president, Jas. Boyd, Jr., which was followed by the sounding of the Last Post.

The highlight of the convention was the stirring speech made by the Dominion president, Mr. Alex Walker, to the delegates and guests in the banquet hall of the Manoir Drummond Hotel on Friday, June 19, which was broadcast over a national network. Following his address Mr. Walker was presented with a sword and pistol by President Dulieu of Drummondville Branch, which had belonged to Captain Trent, of the Royal Navy, one of the original settlers of Drummondville, now survived by his grandson, Frederick Trent.

Error in Reporting Of Paid Admissions To Lachute Fair

Attention is drawn to an error in last week's report on Lachute Spring Fair. The paid admissions numbering 12,000 persons were recorded for the single day, Friday — not for the three Fair days, as stated in the report.

Old Car and Outboard Motor in Brownsburg's First Scrap Collection

Brownsburg — The initial salvage canvass made by the newly formed committee for this centre was held last week, and among the items of metal scrap collected were an old automobile and an outboard motor that had seen better days at Lake Louisa.

Stressing the need for further supplies of scrap rubber, Sam Rose, chairman of the Brownsburg Salvage Committee, claimed that this first collection of scrap in the town was a very successful one. In all, 5,500 pounds of rubber, 6,400 pounds of scrap iron and 7,500 pounds of paper were collected. In the plant, the work of salvaging materials required by the Government is done constantly.

About a score of vehicles were used in the collection and numerous workers from the plant, aided by the Boy Scouts, helped in the collection. Together they took less than an hour to make the collection proper and three quarters of an hour to complete the unloading.

Mr. Rose expressed his thanks to those who loaned their vehicles to collect the scrap, the workers and the residents who rendered co-operation. So that the collection can be made efficiently, he said, it was essential that the public adhere to the instructions given as to the manner in which it was deposited and the material required.

MAN WORST ENEMY OF HIS NATION'S WOODS RESOURCES

Canada Already This Year Has Suffered Heavy Losses in Forest Fires

By DENT HODGSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, June 22 (CP) — Fires which swept through forested areas in Northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba this spring, destroying hundreds of thousands of feet of pulpwood and standing timber, were the worst in that area in some years, Manitoba forestry officials report.

But other prairies areas, which usually pay their share of Canada's annual $5,000,000 fire toll, have so far escaped, leaving the average damage about normal.

With the threat abated for the time being, forest rangers are going back into the now-charred areas from which they were driven a few weeks ago, to compute the extent of the damage and seek out the causes.

Human Carelessness

No reports are yet available on their findings, but officials say it is probable that, like the rest of Canada's forest fires, it will be found 75 percent were caused by human carelessness. Of the total Dominion forest fire damage, averaging about $5,000,000 annually, almost $1,250,000 can be chalked up to Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, where the far-flung forest areas lie north of convenient transportation facilities and the fires are harder to detect and fight.

Fifteen per cent of Canada's fires are caused by lightning, 10 per cent by unknown causes and the rest are classed as "preventable." Under this latter head are unextinguished camp fires, 20 per cent; careless smokers, 15 per cent; settlers 17; railways, five; industrial operations, two; incendiary nine; public works one and miscellaneous known causes six per cent.

Fire-fighting problems are unique, as labor must be drawn rapidly when it is needed, transported over great distances, and yet can only be hired on a temporary basis. Lumbermen or settlers whose possessions are threatened or who know from experience the fire menace usually make up the bulk of the fighters.

Fire Fighters Scarce

This year, however, so many men have been drawn into the armed services or war industries that provincial foresters found difficulty in obtaining enough fighters. In Manitoba, help was required from Indian reservations, and in Saskatchewan members of an active army unit in Prince Albert were rushed to quell a fire on the Prince Albert forest preserve. Fighters and equipment are often transported by plane when time is scarce or other transportation unavailable.

Fire prevention makes up the bulk of what the public usually refers to as "reforestation," an official here stated. Reforestation is usually thought of as meaning the raising and planting of young trees.

"Forestry departments do spend a lot of time and money planting trees," he stated. "But this is a slow and costly process, which has only a limited effect. The effective method of reforestation — the one most commonly used — is simply to conserve the forest areas, protect them from fire, and let nature do the work."

Here's What The Well-Dressed Soldier Wears -- A Suit For Every Occasion

PROVINCE RALLIES YOUTH TO RELIEVE FARM AND CANNERY LABOR SHORTAGE

Fully aware of the threatened scarcity next winter of strawberries and other small fruits as well as such garden vegetables as carrots, onions, radishes, peas, beans and tomatoes, unless the farmers and canneries in the Montreal area can get enough help to relieve the very serious farm labor shortage, the Provincial Government is making every effort to sell the students of Montreal, both boys and girls, the idea of coming to the rescue.

J. E. Lalumiere, director of the Quebec Juvenile Farm Settlement plan, announced this afternoon that when boys can be organized into groups of 100 to work 25 miles or more away from the city, the Provincial Government will pay their transportation.

To make the work as attractive as possible, Mr. Lalumiere said, the Government was trying to interest the Boy Scouts and other organizations as well as the schools to organize groups that would work well together, and to offer them camping facilities so that they could combine the fun of camp life with the work.

In addition to transportation, he added, the Government would also provide a superintendent or guardian for the camps, a cook and two kitchen assistants.

Mr. Lalumiere emphasized that the boys would be paid for their work, and pointed out that, in addition to the money they would earn and the great service they would be rendering, the experience gained would also be of benefit.

Liaison Committee

One of the latest moves this week was the appointment of a special committee to supervise the use of student help on the farms and in the canneries. This committee will handle the English-speaking boys and girls and act as a liaison between them and the farmers, while a similar French committee will be appointed early next week. Members of the committee include Prof. L. H. Hamilton, of Macdonald College; C. LaDue Norwood of the C.P.R.; E. J. Sauve, of the C.N.R.; R. W. S. Nutbrown, of Sherbrooke, and Mr. Lalumiere, who will sit on both committees.

There are three branches of the work, it was pointed out, namely, placing individual boys on farms to help with general farm work; organizing groups of boys, such as Boy Scouts, for picking and harvesting and other specialized work; and organizing groups of school girls for work in the canneries.

The canning situation is the most serious at the moment, Mr. Lalumiere stated. With operations scheduled to begin at the opening of the strawberry season this week canneries were sending out frantic calls for help.

Scores of extra girls are required by each cannery to strip the strawberries and perform other work in connection with canning operation, he pointed out. In past years, hundreds of farm girls and many unemployed girls in the city were glad to work during the preserving season and earn a little extra money. Most of these, however, are now working in munitions and other war industries and are not available.

Camping Out

Mr. Lalumiere appealed to high school girls to volunteer in groups for the work, and said that arrangements would be made to establish them in camps outside the canning factories. The Government now had available approximately 100 tents, together with beds, mattresses, blankets, pillows, stoves and complete kitchen equipment suitable for about 450 girls.

He emphasized that the girls must have the permission of their parents and that they would be well supervised, in fact, he suggested that girls volunteer in groups and appoint their own supervisor or matron.

Wages for work in the canneries he said generally ran from 22 to 27 cents an hour.

Farmers requiring help and student boys and girls ready to volunteer can obtain full information from Mr. Lalumiere at 424a Place Jacques Cartier, or from the Provincial Department of Agriculture at 152 Notre Dame street east.

Plans were being very carefully worked out so that mistakes made during a somewhat similar scheme in operation during the Great War would not be repeated one official pointed out.

"We are taking every precaution so that both the boys and girls, and the farmers and cannery people will be satisfied," he said, "for we expect that the situation will be even worse next year and every year until the war is over, and we want to build the scheme on a sound and practical basis."

Admitting that the wages paid for the work were not what would be called high, Mr. Lalumiere said that the Government was stressing the fun and experience that the students would obtain as well as the great patriotic service they would be rendering.

The situation was well illustrated, he said, by a little, elderly farm woman who was busy weeding a section of her garden, when a boy who had been placed on her farm came up to complain about not getting a higher wage.

"Look at the education I've had," he said.

"It's not your education we need right now," the woman, replied, "it's your courage and your muscle." — Montreal Standard

TOMATO DISEASE, ITS PREVENTION

By B. Leslie Emslie

Science Service News issued from the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, advises tomato growers to be on their guard against a tomato disease which in Canada was first found in southern Manitoba during 1940. The disease, which gives rise to black specks on the fruit, caused considerable damage in 1941. According to W. A. F. Hagborg of the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology, Winnipeg, the disease is of bacterial origin and is seed-borne.

Having tried several seed disinfectants, Dr. Hagborg states that best results were obtained by soaking the seed for 15 minutes in a solution made by dissolving one ounce of Semesan in 2½ gallons of water, the seed being afterwards spread out to dry. Success was obtained also, he says, with diluted Ceresan (1 part dust to 2 parts powdered talc, by volume). Excess dust should be shaken off through a wire screen and may be used again.

Dutch Sub Crew To Fight Again

A British Port (CP)—A midshipman in the Royal Netherlands Navy who sailed with two submarines out of Rotterdam under the very noses of the Nazis, has taken his officer's oath in this British port where he completed his three-year training period. Workers cheered when the 20-year-old navy man, bareheaded in the sunlight, raised his hand and repeated the oath aboard a Netherlands submarine.

This submarine had just completed her trials and there remained two months' work to be done before she would be ready for sea when the Nazis came to Rotterdam. Her commanding officer, from the top of a crane on the quayside directed fire of an army battery against German air transports landing on a nearby airdrome and then in company with another submarine, sailed out of Rotterdam for England.

ALASKA'S COWS HAVE TO LEARN TO WALK AGAIN

Dairying in North Has Problems all Its Own

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN

They'll be stiff for a few days and awkward on their feet; but Charlie and his staff — not forgetting Mrs. Charlie — are glad to see them out and trying. They were a little tired of looking at those same cows in the stalls where they had been for seven months.

In the broad Tanana valley here, there are many businesses with a similar farthest-north distinction — a bank, a movie theatre, a commercial radio station, even a city street department with a couple of blocks of paving to its credit. But Craemer's $90,000 a year dairy business has perhaps more interesting problems than the others. He sells his milk and dairy products in nearby Fairbanks.

The cows that have to learn to walk all over again each spring are only an example. These 60 bossies go into the big double-walled, steam-heated barn each October and stay there until May. They stand up all winter, but they walk so little that their muscles are stiff and their grazing habits broken before they get into the open air again.

Feeding Problem

The cold that keeps them indoors also complicates the feeding problem. Although the Tanana grass is good while its lasts, Craemer has to begin feeding grain in early September and continue into June. That with oats at $100 a ton and dairy mix at about the same price.

He grows some grain himself; but with only a 90-day season, the 320 acres he grows and the 200 he rents for fields and pastures don't produce enough for his needs. Silage must be made from oats and peas.

Sawdust insulates walls and ceilings; and heat is automatically controlled so that the temporature of the barn changes less than two degrees even though the outside may drop from 30 degrees above zero to 40 below in a single winter night.

Ills that plague many dairy farmers don't bother Craemer. Although most Alaska cattle came originally from tubercular stock, there has been no T.B. in his herd for more than 12 years. Other bovine diseases are equally rare here.

Sweeping the Cobwebs from Education

With the last agonies of June exams still fresh in the minds of higher grade pupils, mixed feelings prevail among our young hopefuls, to whom this ordeal comes inevitably with the closing of the school year. Some are in despair, resolved never to return to school; others are exultant with the confidence of a sure "pass".

Here's a happy thought for all, to dwell (not too fondly, however) on a certain trend in education now apparent on this continent . . . The California Board of Education has announced "that it means to change the requirements of teachers in English, so that the pupils will no longer be bothered with British authors, those being eliminated and their places taken by American literature and an appreciation of motion pictures and radio".

"Imagine", said a San Francisco newspaper commenting on this scholastic policy, "a high school senior permitted to graduate without knowledge of Shakespeare, Chaucer, Milton, Scott or Tennyson, but with a high rating in the screen art of Ginger Rogers and the radio appeal of Jack Benny!"

Remember the Parcels for Overseas

Another reminder, with the advent of Army Week, that civilian Canada has a happy duty to perform in maintaining the good spirits of her soldiers on active service . . .

Men and women in the Canadian Services overseas welcome parcels from home not because their rations aren't adequate, but like other mail, for their morale value. "Keep them small, but keep them coming," is the theme of many letters arriving from the United Kingdom.

What to send? Home-made sweets are fine, but you'll have to take the necessary sugar from your ration. (Canadian troops overseas are allowed a sugar ration of 14 oz. a week). Hard cookies, short breads, hermits and fruit breads and cakes are favorites.

If you send home-made candy, pour it direct into a cardboard or tin container lined with waxed paper. Don't cut in pieces. It travels better whole.

Send notepaper, pencils, packs of cards, toothpaste, razor blades, cigarettes, tobacco, handkerchiefs, socks, chocolate bars, toffee, fudge, butterscotch, lifesavers and chewing gum. The last two items make good chink fillers between packages as do handkerchief tissues.

Wrap foods carefully. In packing cookies, line the box with waxed paper and put a thin cardboard between each layer. Place less perishable kinds at the bottom.

Use sturdy lightweight container and stout wrapping paper and wrap or tie all parcels securely. Remember the 11-lb. maximum. A lot of goodness and variety can be packed into a 6-lb. parcel.

Sixty Years of Service to Mankind

Sixty years ago this month, The Salvation Army came to Canada. It consisted then of two men and an idea — the idea that men and women are given the breath of life to be something better than moral wasters and poverty-ridden failures; it embodied right principles — duty of God and duty to man.

While those two laymen who founded The Army in Canada had not even a roof under which to hold an evangelical meeting, they had a spark of the spirit which had prompted 36-year-old Rev. William Booth to quit his church among comparatively well-to-do folk seventeen years before, and to go among the slummiest slums in East London to "help those who most needed help" . . .

The Salvation Army today is glad, in all due humility, that the organization has a roof over its head in 420 communities and has a force of 1,445 trained Officers working full time on the Christian service program which will be uncompleted as long as there are emergencies in human lives and people who need help, moral, spiritual, physical, or material.

— This week in Lachute, St. Andrews and Brownsburg, we are witnessing the cheery solicitations of the Salvation Army, canvassing at our doors for the garments and wares discarded from our homes. If we could follow these items so gladly given by our citizens, there might come a revelation in the comfort they afford to those in stark privation . . . But the record of the Salvation Army needs no such intimate testimony; its work has won the commendation of humankind, and deserves cordial support in whatever manner the organization may appeal to Canadian citizens.

The Late LAC. Charles Theoret

Firm weld by youth of brave endeavour,
Eager to serve in Freedom's cause
That man might dwell in lands of peace;
Now passed beyond the portals of Life Expectant
Above the clouds of fear and doubt.
His spirit freed from Earth's alloy
Swift sped on silvery wings,
Has made a perfect landing
Upon that Shining Shore.

Where Democracy Was Born

When their relatives die, the Greeks no longer bury them in cemeteries. The cemeteries are full now. Instead the bodies are placed unmarked in garden plots. By avoiding mortuary declarations, the living can keep and use the dead's ration cards.

Tuberculosis brought on by undernourishment is now rampant in Greece. Meat, fish, potatoes and cheese are unobtainable. The present bread ration is five ounces per week.

In the Aegean islands 300,000 people forestall starvation by eating herbs, while Nazi objections to Red Cross shipments of Canadian wheat in Swedish ships are resolved. Thousands of islanders, their skin hanging in folds about their hunger-dulled eyes, have fled to Turkey in small boats. "Trying to halt them," said the mayor of Chios, "is like trying to drive clouds against a strong wind."

Tragic as were these stories told last week by escaping Greek refugees, there was still another story:

When British planes arrive over Greece to bomb Nazi submarine bases, there are still hundreds of Greeks who go to the rooftops. There they cheer and sing — and spit down at the despised Italian carabinieri who shoot up at them. On March 25, Greek Independence Day, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Athens was piled high with flowers during the night.

Sleep Under the Stars!

A sleeping porch is a delightful place, these June nights, especially in suburb or country, among trees and gardens, away from such early morning disturbances as, from 5 o'clock on, the rumble of cars, the rattle of garbage cans and the milkman's jingle. Overhead are the watchful stars; below, the drowsing flowers.

Bedrooms anywhere can be pretty stuffy, but over us sleepers on porches, the breezes stir the leaves to lullabies. The night winds come and go as lightly as the respiration of a child. Except for a swishing gust or a thrumming of rain now and then, the silence is deep as an unmown lawn. Even the little night-time noises of the household are shut away.

So while people in bedrooms, these mild nights, are easing the blanket load, we porch sleepers snuggle in, intent to keep heads cool, feet warm. We take long, delicious breaths. We dig comfortably into the pillow. We pull the covers close. In two winks, we are asleep.

Nothing wakes us, nothing disturbs us much until that thrice accursed squirrel runs over the roof. Why can't the silly beast remain in the treetops where it belongs? We roll over and open an eye. It is daylight but not sunup. The alarm clock ticking along, reads 5 o'clock. Two hours of rest before the alarm goes off! And how we crave that last two hours of sleep! We draw up the sheet to screen the light from our eyes.

And suddenly we are awake again, and it is nearly six, and now the crows are at it. There must be a dozen of them. Where they come from, why they prefer to be just here, are mysteries. And may heaven forgive us our half-formed, murderous thoughts! They are yelling their loudest, some near, some farther off. "Where? Where?" says one. "Here", says another. "What?" "Here?" "Where?" "Here, here".

And after a while they go away, and we lie peeping at the sunbeams glancing among the boughs, and are almost asleep again, when an officious cock pheasant, who never comes around the house by later day, shouts out, as if right under the floor of our porch, "Up, up!" "Up, up!" and again, "Up, up!" But it still isn't time to get up, and we stretch, and start thinking of things we have done, or would like to do, to cock pheasants, come next November, and wait with eyes closed for the alarm, and at last there it goes—"Br r r r, br r r r; br r r r , br r r r." But it's still only 10 minutes of seven, and that wasn't the alarm at all. It was a woodpecker.

Oh, yes, it's mighty pleasant on a sleeping porch at early morn in June, away from household noises, and from city noises; very pleasant, very pastoral. Beethoven writing his symphonies, would have liked it. He was deaf.

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By H. H. GORDON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

CANADIANS CONTINUED GALLANT ACTIONS ON ARRAS FRONT, CAPTURING STRONGHOLDS AROUND LENS

Led by Sir Arthur Currie, Canadian soldiers on the Western Front fought several bitter engagements in the vicinity of Lens 25 years ago in the First Great War. In the latter part of June, La Coulotte and Eleu dit Leauvette fell to the overseas troops who also gained a footing in Avion.

Following their outstanding success at Vimy Ridge in April the Canadians had advanced steadily eastward across the Plain of Douai. The siege of Lens was undertaken with renewed zest for the appointment of General Currie as commander of the Canadian Corps in succession to Sir Julian Byng had been greeted with enthusiasm by all ranks on its announcement June 19, 1917.

Canadian troops, co-operating with a British brigade on their left, made a successful attack north of the Souchez River on June 24. They captured an important section of the enemy's defence system. On the following day the success was followed up on both sides of the river and the Germans were forced back after making a strong stand at Hill 65.

La Coulotte was marked by the Canadians for a particularly bitter attack June 26. Earlier in the month the enemy had been driven from a strongly fortified position in a power station in the village, but a few hours later the Dominion soldiers were forced to hack their way out when overwhelmel by a German counter-attack.

La Coulotte Taken

In their second thrust against La Coulette the Canadians attacked behind an artillery barrage. Rapid progress was made on the whole front between the Arras-Lens Road and the Souchez River and from new positions preparations were made for a drive on Avion and Eleu dit Leauvette.

The attack was made on June 28. In conjunction with Imperials, the Canadian 4th Division swept into the outskirts of Avion, southern suburb of Lens. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the German 11th Reserve Division, garrisoning the town and more than 100 prisoners taken.

Avion was entered after one of the most spectular fights of 1917. The attacking force advanced over country that had been flooded and the Germans met the thrust with bayonet and bomb. The battle was fought in a violent electric storm and the roar of the guns was accompanied by rolling thunder and flashes of lightning.

For the first time in the war the Canadians used flame projectors as a preliminary to the attack. Street fighting developed in which the attackers proved superior and finally the Canadians consolidated a line through a portion of the shell-battered town.

In their combined advance the Canadians and the Imperials advanced between the Souchez River and Oppy over a front of more than a mile to a depth of 500 yards.

Red Cross Handles Many Inquiries and International Messages

"My six small children are somewhere in occupied Poland. Their mother is dead. My own father and mother were caring for them, but I have had no word since the Nazis invaded my homeland. Can you help me?"

Many such appeals reach the Inquiry Bureau of the International Messages department of the Red Cross on McTavish street, and very rarely does it happen that the Red Cross is unable to help.

During the month of June more than 350 were also received from countries occupied by Nazi forces. These were from countries such as Hungary, Norway, Austria, France, Belgium, Slovakia, Denmark, Holland, Luxembourg, Poland and Greece as well as from Germany and Italy. These messages were to persons residing in the Province of Quebec.

During the past year more than 4,000 of these messages have been delivered to anxiously waiting relatives of those who write brief, terse messages for which there is no means of delivery, except through the Red Cross.

The Polish father who appealed to the Red Cross to locate his six motherless children sent his message from his ward in a Montreal hospital. He had been confined there for sometime with a lingering illness. The Red Cross immediately went into action. The proper forms were filled out and forwarded to the International Red Cross at Geneva, Switzerland. Then a long wait ensued. The Red Cross notified the anxious father that the International Red Cross was making every effort to locate his children. The months went by. Finally a year had elapsed. Then one morning the mail at Adair House, the headquarters of the Red Cross on McTavish street, brought a package of 175 International messages. Among them was a brief letter from the Polish father's eldest daughter. It told that the children, as well as the grandparents were safe and all were in reasonably good health. It concluded with an effectionate personal note of cheer to the father in Canada.

A hurried call was made by the Red Cross to the Montreal hospital where the man had been receiving treatment, but he was no longer on the roll of patients. Records were searched for the past year in the hope of finding a forwarding address. Only then was it discovered that the father had died six months previously.

The Red Cross then undertook to find where he had been buried, and later started a message on its long, labourous journey back to Poland bearing its sad news. Information had been included as to which cemetery in Montreal the father had been buried, what clergy performed the last rites, and even the number of the lot of the burial space.

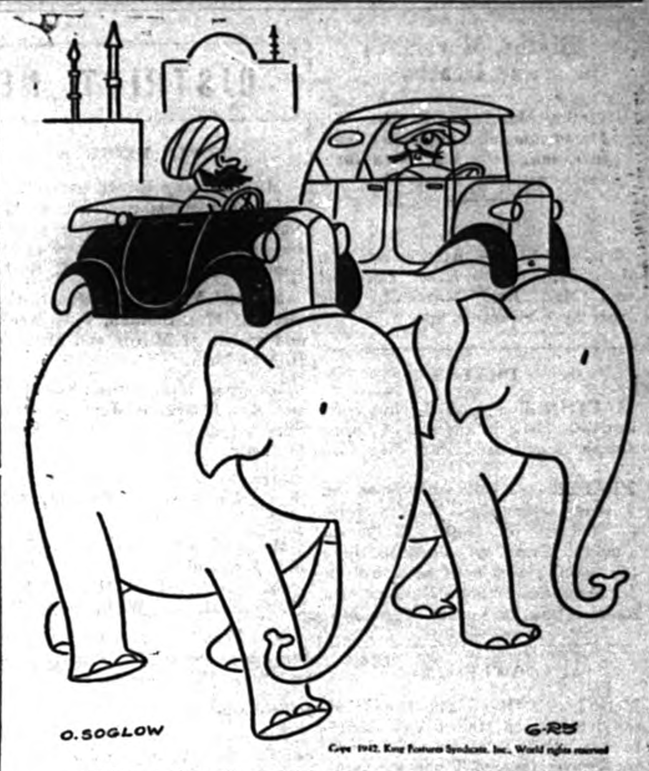

Weeks later, out of the farmlands of war-torn Poland, came a second message from the same eldest daughter. It bore her simply worded thanks to the Red Cross in Montreal.

UNLICENSED STORAGE

"I hear there's a rubber shortage in America!"

Laugh 'n Like It!

Employer: "Have you any references?"

Applicant: "No, sir, I tore them up."

Applicant: "You wouldn't think so if you had read them."

First husband: "That's Pauncefoote, of the Foreign Office. He's presenting my wife to the Sultan of Tralagalore tomorrow."

Young Wife (after dinner party): Oh dear, I took so much trouble to set out the salad daintily, and nobody took any.

Young Husband: Salad, darling! We all thought it was a new way of arranging the flowers!

Wilkins: Well, how?

Jenkins: By the teeth.

Wilkins: Chickens have no teeth.

Jenkins: No, but I have.

Sweet Young Thing: "Why are you running that harrow over the grain field?"

Young Farmer: "Oh, I'm raising shredded wheat this year."

And there was the Indian rope trick performer who was discharged from the navy because every time he climbed the rigging he disappeared.

SAVE OLD RAGS TO HELP WIN THE WAR

Every woman in every home has a hundred opportunities daily to be a vital cog in the war machine.

For instance, the Director of Salvage at Ottawa points to rags. They're desperately needed for war, — for wrapping delicately milled parts, for airplane wipers on airdromes; in army workshops, and aboard Canadian ships. Homes are the greatest source of supply.

In appealing for rags, as for other materials the Salvage Director says, "Do the job carefully and thoroughly so the material can be moved to the 'front line' fast."

Save white woollens; colored woollens; coatings and suitings; and cottons. Wrap each class in separate parcels, and, please, don't put clean and soiled rags together. Put old carpets and scrap sackings in separate containers.

Pack in cartons or old sacks and get them to your local salvage organization, or direct to a dealer in your community right away.

DO YOU KNOW

spoken than any of his cabinet colleagues, Mr. Thorson said he was "making a careful statement of government policy."

Canada's manpower resources were limited and the government might have to consider calling up married men. Last week the call-up age was lifted from 30 to 35 years, an indication the supply of single men and childless widowers is running low, the minister pointed out.

Resources Minister Crerar warned that, unless Germany is defeated in Europe, Canada may be forced to merge with the United States as a means of self-preservation. He asked French-Canadian opponents of conscription what hope they would have for maintenance of the constitutional rights they enjoyed in Canada if the Dominion became part of the United States.

Presentation to Teacher On Leaving Consolidated School at St. Andrews

St. Andrews East — The resignation of Miss Doris Leroy from the staff of the Protestant Consolidated School, was the "raison d'être" for a farewell party held in her honor by the School Board on Wednesday evening, June 17, at the town hall.

The Rev. Dr. Wm. MacMillan presided at the gathering, which was largely attended, and commented on the active part Miss Leroy had taken in the social life of the community, being a member of a Dramatic Club and a bridge club. Proceedings opened with community singing followed by a short program by former pupils — a piano solo, by Mary Robertson; a vocal trio by Geraldine and Isabel Morrison and Master Kenneth Morrison; a vocal duet by little Elizabeth Robertson and Master Murray Bryson; and a vocal solo by Miss Hazel Robertson. The accompanists were Miss A. L. Wales and Mrs. T. Webster.

Mr. Chas. S. Wales, chairman of the Board, presented Miss Leroy with a gold wrist watch, expressing the great regret with which her resignation had been accepted, after 14 years of excellent teaching service. He wished her continued success in her profession.

A man should never be ashamed to own that he has been in the wrong, which is but saying in other words that he is wiser today than he was yesterday.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Illustrated Lecture on Empire at War

"The Heart and Outposts of the Empire" was the subject of a talk and illustrated lecture given by Capt. T. W. Jones, of Calgary United Church, Montreal, in the Lachute United Church last evening.

The guest speaker, introduced by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, told of his trip overseas with the First Canadian contingent in December, 1939, of the work done by the YM.C.A. in England, of food rationing, of the bombings, and especially of London, where Capt. Jones was stationed during the greatest German blitz.

Slides were shown of Ireland, Wales, Scotland and England — of the great cathedrals as they were before the war in contrast to their present ruins. Capt. Jones then took his listeners to other parts of the Empire—Australia, Malta, Hong Kong and back home by way of the Pacific, across Canada from the western coast to Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

The guest speaker was thanked by Miss Barbara Cunningham, president of the Young People's Union, under whose auspices the lecture was held. The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Concert Held by W.A. Of Trinity, Lakefield

Lakefield — The concert held in the Gibb Parish Hall on Saturday evening under the auspices of Trinity W.A. was a great success. Among the artists of the evening were the Misses Hadley, with guitars and mouth organ; Miss Freda Conroy of Montreal, popular songs; Mr. N. Burton, impersonations; and the Louisa Minstrel Players. The latter gave an hour of entertainment with southern dialogue and songs. All of these players were from the vicinity of Louisa.

The Rev. C. W. P. Baugh made a brief speech, and Mr. H. G. Baugh acted as chairman.

Following the concert a social evening was held for the artists. The singing of "God Save the King" brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"Christian Science" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 28.

The Golden Text is from I Peter 2; 1, 2. "Laying aside all Malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings, as newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not." (John 1: 5).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science is dawning upon a material age. The great spiritual facts of being, like rays of light, shine in the darkness, though the darkness, comprehending them not, may deny their reality. The proof that the system stated in this book is Christianly scientific resides in the good this system accomplishes, for it cures on a divine demonstrable Principle which all may understand." Mrs. Kennedy, the bride's mother, wore a gown of navy sheer with matching hat and a corsage of pink roses and bouvardia. Mrs. Clifford, mother of the groom, was gowned in Air Force Blue, with navy and white accessories, her corsage cluster being of Briarcliff roses.

The bridal couple left by train for a visit to Niagara Falls and Toronto. They will travel by plane on their return to Montreal, to take up residence in Westmount.

AGRICULTURE MARCHES WITH OUR ARMED FORCES
Behind the lines where men and women are risking life to defend home and country, other men and women are toiling to supply the materials of war —ships, planes, tanks, guns. These manufacturers—management and workers alike—are thus fighting shoulder to shoulder with our armed forces.
But what about the farmers? They are doing a work of equal importance. They too are marching to battle, by toiling early and late to persuade nature to increase food and other essential supplies on which the issues of the fight so greatly depend. The farmer marches side by side with the soldier and his armourer.
Farmers who are doing their bit to help Canada's all-out war effort may find it necessary to borrow money at the Bank. You should not hesitate to discuss your requirements with our nearest branch manager. Your business will be regarded as strictly confidential.

WAR-RESTRICTED BRIDES OF YEAR PRETTIER STILL

More Price-Controlled than Their Mothers, Brides of the First Great War, but Radiant

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

Here comes the all-Canadian, price-controlled, ration-regulated war bride of 1942. She's the daughter of the First Great War bride, and just as radiant, though total war has robbed her of many traditional bridal trappings.

No silk satin for her wedding gown; today's bride wears rayon or cotton and likes it. No Bridal Illusion for her wedding veil; the famous mills of Nottingham, England, are engaged in war production, and the tulle of France has gone the way of all conquered luxuries. She may still have a pair of silk or nylon stockings for her wedding, but she's prepared to wear rayon from now on. Her undies are fine lace-trimmed cotton batiste or rayon instead of silk.

Those Hobble Skirts!

When Mother was married back in the days of the First Great War, the "barrel silhouette" was the fashion ideal and bridesmaids even wore hobble skirts (sometimes holding up the whole procession!). Fabrics still came from France, and satin was the wedding gown favorite, with georgette a fashionable innovation.

The bride of 1917 had her veil of illusion or tulle, or sometimes heirloom lace, covering her entire head, in "boudoir cap" arrangement. She wore a silk camisole and petticoat, ten-thread silk stockings and front-lace corset of heavy twill. Her "shower bouquet" had yards of dangling ribbons and she wore orange blossoms in her hair. Her engagement ring was yellow or green gold with high prongs holding the diamond solitaire and her engraved wedding band was made to match.

Simpler Outfit

The bride of this Second Great War looks younger and prettier in her simpler gown of organdie, dotted swiss or rayon satin, cut with narrow waist and wide skirt. Her hair is brushed up off her forehead, and she may have a halo headdress to match her gown. Her bouquet may be of simple field flowers or costly orchids, but it has a tailored look — no more dripping ribbons. Her engagement ring may be platinum or yellow gold, with diamond centre stone flanked by small brilliants in a smooth "bead" setting with no prongs to catch on things, and a wedding band to match. She's the new war bride, lovely and undismayed.

Lighter Outfits For High Fliers

Electric Heated Suits Replace Present Bulky Clothing in Air Fighting

Washington (CP) — United States and possibly other United Nations pilots will in the future fly in lightweight electrically-heated suits.

The U.S. Army Air Force has announced that before next winter several thousand electrically-heated flying suits will replace the bulky sheepskin-lined coats, pants, helmets and shoes with which pilots have had to contend for years.

The new flying apparel, designed by engineers at Wright Field at Dayton, Ohio, is a little heavier than the average man's fall suit. But it will keep him warm at temperatures as low as 60 degrees below zero.

As a result the pilot of a fast pursuit or bombing plane flying at 30,000 feet in sub-zero weather will not be handicapped by a pair of thick leather and wool mittens in operating his radio, firing his guns or adjusting his 100 or more instruments.

After July 1st no one will be able to purchase sugar for regular domestic use without turning in a ration coupon.

But, in an undertaking so vast, some homes may have been missed, or some cards may have gone astray. So, no matter where you live, whether it is in areas served by letter carrier or not, if your application card is not already on its way to Rationing Headquarters, you should wait no longer.

After filling in the card, according to the instructions on the pamphlet which was delivered with it, just drop the card in the nearest mail box or post office. It needs no forwarding address.

IF YOU HAVE NOT RECEIVED AN APPLICATION CARD you should get one at the nearest Post Office at once.

All Post Offices have received full instructions to rush application cards for coupon rationing to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board Office, where they will get immediate attention and the coupon ration cards mailed right back to you.

The ration cards being issued for use July 1st are for sugar only, and good for 10 weeks. At the end of that period a coupon ration book good for 6 months will be issued. Under the new system of coupon rationing, you are allowed the same amount of sugar as at present—½ lb. per person per week. The same provision as at present for additional quantities for preserving and jam and jelly making will be continued. Special voucher forms for this purpose are being supplied all retailers.

BUTTONS

When we hear that the number of buttons on men's clothes is restricted, we are apt to think idly, what difference can buttons make in our war effort. Just listen to this. They estimate that it will mean a saving of about 20 million buttons. These made of Bakelite will release enough material to make parts used in one million anti-aircraft shells. The estimate saving in casein buttons, that is a plastic made from milk, will release for export to England, at least 25,000 pounds of cheese. Besides saving of materials, there is a saving of skilled labor—enough labor to manufacture five light tanks. So the saving of buttons is not as trivial as it seems.

AFRAID OF THE DARK

Children sometimes suddenly become frightened of the dark. This is a serious situation and should be dealt with immediately. Sitting on mother's knee in the dark and being told a story makes a pleasant thing of the dark. Being taken to the window and shown the friendly stars helps to make the night interesting. A small boy was helped to overcome his fear by playing ball. His parents would roll a ball from a softly lighted room into another one which was dark. At first they were careful to send the ball just out of the light, and gradually increased the distance until the child forgot he was going into a dark room. Taking the child by the hand and going into the dark places, both inside and out, helps overcome the fear. It is a moot question whether it is wise to let the frightened child have a light or not. Actually it starts another habit which later has to be overcome. A child who is old enough to work a flashlight may be given one in bed. There never was a child who did not love a flashlight and the interest in using it in the dark room usually overcomes the fear. It is hard on the battery but conquering a fear is worth the price of a new battery.

RECKONING MEAT COSTS

The cost of meat should be reckoned not by its total cost but by the cost per portion. That is divide the number of people it serves into the cost. If you do this you may be surprised at some of the things you find out. You may discover that some of the meats cheapest by the pound are more expensive to serve than the meats which cost more per pound. You have to consider the amount of bone, gristle, and fat. More than once I have found I paid less for round-steak for meat pie, than for the so-called stewing beef. There was no waste to the round steak. The cheapest meat we have had recently was pork-tenderloin, and yet it's cost per pound was high. It cost 39 cents and served 7 portions, making the cost per portion about 5½ cents. It was dressed and if it had been served cold would probably have served more portions as it goes farther cold. If you do not know the cost per portion of your meats, figure it out for awhile, and see just what you actually pay for yours meats.

THREE DINNERS

If you make a jig-saw of your meals and fit them in one to another, you will have more interesting meals at least cost. When it comes to a jig-saw puzzle, I am an awful dud. About the best I can do is to fit the straight pieces around the edge. But when it comes to fitting in meals—that's different. To illustrate what I mean I will tell about three dinners. I bought loin veal chops, but as the veal was young the chops were pretty small for hearty appetites. Instead of buying more chops I got a veal kidney and a half-pound of mushrooms. Mushrooms are cheaper than meat right now. I sliced the kidney, took off the stems of mushrooms and browned the tops in dripping. We were having a guest for dinner and that was a more appealing dinner than just chops alone, and at no greater cost. At the same time I bought a porterhouse steak—a luxury these days. To offset this I bought a small piece of round steak and used it with the tail of the porter-house to make a stew. The stems of the mushrooms went into this and mushrooms make a stew fit for a king. When I use mushrooms in a stew I do not brown the meat but brown a little finely cut onion, and the mushrooms. The total cost of the meat and mushrooms was $1.43, and it served twelve portions for dinner, and enough stew for two breakfasts. So we had luxury meals at a little under twelve cents a portion by planning ahead.

APRICOT ICE CREAM

2 Eggs, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 No. 2½ can apricots, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ cup granulated sugar, few drops of almond extract, ½ cup milk, ½ cup whipped cream.

Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon colored—about 5 minutes. Gradually add sugar, continuing to beat. Add salt, milk, juice from apricots (about 1¾ cups) and the extracts; blend. Turn into tray of electric refrigerator and freeze at the coldest setting until mushy. Remove and beat with another beater until smooth, then fold in the appricots, which have been put through a sieve, and the cream. Continue freezing, stirring every 30 minutes. Serves 8 to 10.

Repairing Damaged British Aircraft For Further Service

Increasing numbers of British women are employed in British aircraft "hospitals", where a large percentage of salvaged aircraft, damaged during engagements with and against the enemy, are made good for further service. Those too badly damaged for for repair are dismantled and their various parts used as replacements . . . Private Nursing A War Casualty?

British Hospital Chief Thinks This May be One Result of Conflict

Worchester, Eng. (CP)—Private nurses will disappear in Britain after the war, it was predicted by Miss I. D. Irven, superintendent of the Nursing Institute here. She said she based this prediction on the belief nobody would have enough money to afford a private nurse and would go to hospitals, or utilize services of government health bodies.

JEALOUS NAZIS!

Because Netherlands women refuse to dance with Germans or Nazi Hollanders, dancing has been forbidden in Holland, says "Vrij Nederland," Free Netherlands newspaper published in London.

BEAUTY.

—Helen Jameson, Mme. Qui Vive—

BEAUTY'S FIRST LAW IS CLEANLINESS

Soap is the queen of cosmetics. A woman can't be too fussy about the kind of soap she buys, and there is something for her to learn about the way she uses it. It should be applied freely, foamed into a rich lather, every particle should be rinsed away. Unless it forms a suds it does not do a thorough renovating. Look at the hands of almost any small boy. Even after being washed they are grimy. Children hold their hands under the cold water faucet, give a couple of swishes with a bar of soap, rub the dirt off on the towel. It may be mean of us to say it but there are many mothers of small boys who use the same system when they wash their faces.

They seem to be afraid of soap. A little bit on a moist washcloth and that's all. The facial coat is supposed to be precious. It is the same as skin elsewhere on the body, only exposed to more dust; and scrubbing isn't going to do it any harm. Because of casual cleansings, blackheads thrive and and from little blackheads big pimples grow.

Some skin specialists make their beauty customers use shaving soap. Because it has to be rubbed in with the fingers there will be a rousing old scouring.

When the pores are filled with dust and incipient eruptions are making their presence known, there should be a steaming after the soap has been rinsed away. Dip a heavy washcloth in hot water, hold close to the face. This treatment is not suitable if the tissues have sagged, but for the young person it is ace high in the beauty pack.

One must remember that the skin exudes oil and that dust combines with it; the combination sets up a defensive against any kind of a cleaning operation. One needs plenty of time, plenty of energy. One good face scrubbing at bedtime is worth half a dozen quick swishings. If the flesh is sensitive afterwards use a cream, tapping it in gently. Skin surface should be bone dry before anointing.

Some women claim that their skins put up a protest after soap is used, getting red, smarting, burning. Chances are they have a case of slumbering eczema and soap wakes it up. Medical attention is the quickest, easiest way out of that dilemma. It is often found that the cause of a soap-mad complexion is lack of vitamins that the skin needs for its well being and amiable behavior.

It is not a good idea to use soap and water just before going out in strong sunlight or immediately after coming in. A cleansing with a light cream or oil is recommended.

EVERYBODY COOKS BUT MOTHER HERE

Vacation-at-Home Can Be Made A Real Holiday, According to One Expert

Toronto, June 23 (CP) — This vacation-at-home stuff is fine, of course for Pop and the kids. They can go golfing and fishing and cavorting as carefree as the breeze, at home or abroad, says a woman writer.

But what about Mom? What about those old three meals a day? After all, the only reason she ever consented to a hotel vacation was to get a rest from the cookstove.

Well, Mom, it can be done, even at home. Just put your foot down, turn off the electric and leave the cookstove. Tell the family they're going to have picnic meals for two weeks — and like it.

They will, too, when they find that a vacation from the cookstove means back-yard picnic meals, outdoor barbecues, casual catch-as-catch-can breakfast according to the likes of each.

Make each member of the family responsible for his own food. You can go so far as to make the coffee each morning and then let Pop and little Johnny and Mary forage in the ice box for their own milk and eggs and oranges.

Raw Eats

Go primitive, my good woman. Take a big bowl of carrots and tomatoes and lettuce and radishes and such out in the shade of the old apple tree at lunch time, and let the family eat 'em raw. With bread and butter and milk and maybe some fruit or cheese.

At night invite the neighbors in and broil steaks or hamburgers over a back-yard campfire. A small barbecue grill, which you can buy for about a dollar at any hardware store, will simplify the process. Let the guests butter their own buns and serve themselves to fruit and green salad and coffee. Then relax and enjoy food fit for the folks of Mount Olympus.

W.I.'s Create A Central War Fund

A decision recently arrived at by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada was the formation of a Central War Services Fund covering every province of the Dominion. This was done in order that W.I. work might be more effectively handled and interpreted from the national viewpoint. All Institute donations have been registered in this fund for the purpose of securing the grand totals. At present the fund has reached approximately $4,000.

Handles Dynamite Like Stock Candy

Believed Only Woman Blaster in the World, She Knows her job

Kenner, La., June 22 (CP)—Mrs. Melba Bergeron Mince, 21 probably the only woman blaster in the world who plays with dynamite professionally, has one ambition—to teach children how to handle explosives safely. Pert and pretty, she handles dynamite like stick candy, earns a tidy sum blasting tree stumps, but says she some day plans a school to teach the knack of dynamiting.

The auburn-haired girl first became interested in explosives when she began "going steady" two years ago with Albert Mince, now her husband, who has been a blaster for six years. Mrs. Mince is licensed by the United States government to buy and use explosives and does her own estimating and contracting.

"She can mix her own explosives, something I can't do myself, and when she begins to spout off technical names of various explosives I hardly know what she is talking about," her husband says.

WOMAN DOCTOR IS HONORED FOR GALLANTRY AT SEA

Dr. Adaline Miller, who signed on as ship's surgeon, was recently awarded the Order of Member of the British Empire after an ordeal at sea through which she served with outstanding gallantry. She had been only three weeks aboard on her first voyage when a German surface raider, firing at long range, shelled the steamer — the Britannia. There were six hundred passengers aboard and many were killed or wounded.

"I was so busy that there wasn't time to think about the shelling," she said later. "When the first shot came I arranged with two surgeons who were passengers that we should look after different parts of the ship. I never saw them after that. My headquarters was the ship's dispensary. Cries of 'Doctor come quickly' came from all around me. But everyone was wonderfully calm. More than ten of the men were badly injured and dozens were brought in with less serious injuries . . . the noise was terrific."

The order came to abandon ship and was signalled to the raider, but he continued to shell the Britannia and most of the life-boats were smashed. Dr. Miller left in one of the last boats, which was crowded with sixty-five men and women and contained several wounded men. Two of these died in a few hours. For the twenty-seven hours that the boat was adrift Dr. Miller tended the hurt and cheered and comforted the passengers.

The story has a happy ending and concludes with an extraordinary coincidence. The life-boat party was first picked up by a Spanish steamer and then transferred to an armed merchant cruiser. The first man Dr. Miller saw aboard it was her father, Surgeon-Commander Miller. He had spent three days of intense anxiety, for he had heard of the Britannia's SOS and knew that his daughter was aboard her.

Within an hour, father and daughter were operating on one of the wounded men and succeeded in saving his life.

GOLF SEASON HERE GETS INTO SWING

Tuesday, June, 16, Men's Competition, Sealed Hole—R. Gravel.

Wednesday, June 17, Mixed Competition—Mrs. Houlden and G. Tattersfield; Men's Sweepstake — Geo. Leggett, Jr.

The regular Tuesday night men's tournament was very keenly contested among the 16 participants, resulting in a tie between Tom Iddon and Gavin Walker, with a net 68. After playing an extra hole Tom Iddon finally won out. Runners-up with a net score of 70 included Geo. Leggett, Sr., and Geo. Tattersfield.

The ladies again provided a very appetizing supper, which the members greatly appreciated.

Dances at the club house are proving quite popular and the last such event, held on Saturday, June 13, drew quite a crowd; all voted the affair a complete success.

Members' attention is particularly directed to a full evening's movie and talking picture show (one technicolor golf picture and a full-length comedy) to be put on at the Golf Club Saturday, July 11, 8.30 p.m. The entire proceeds will go to provide a "Cigarette and Hamper Fund" for soldiers serving overseas. The organizing committee look forward to wholehearted co-operation and support.

Fox Makes Off With Golf Ball on Course At St. Andrews East

PAVING PROSPECTS, LAURENTIAN ROAD

Now that a supply of asphalt has been assured to the provincial roads department by the Oil Controller, prospects are that the road between Mont Rolland and Val Morin, which was commenced last year, will be paved this year. This work is covered by the contract given last year.

Some curiosity has been caused as to whether the Government intends to pave the section of the new highway between Mont Rolland and St. Jerome, a distance of 14 miles, and enquiry in government circles is to the effect that due to war conditions the prospects of this stretch being completed this year are not good.

Veterans to Parade On Field Day

In connection with the Lions Club Field Day being held on July 4, members of Lachute and Brownsburg branches of the Legion are asked to meet at 1.45 p.m. outside the exhibition grounds where they will line up and march through the main entrance. A large turn-out of all veterans is requested. Medals and berets will be worn.

PLAY IS KEEN ON SOFTBALL DIAMONDS AT B'BURG PLANT

Brownsburg—With three games in a single night among the inter-departmental softball teams in the local industries, the supply of forgotten men — the umpires — is woefully inadequate, and a scheme will be proposed at this week's meeting which it is believed, will remedy this situation. In this phase of sport the success of the league has in no small measure been due to C. Harding, O. Davis, R. Charbonneau, L. St. Onge and others, who have played or are now playing the game, and who enjoy the use of forceful sign language.

Art "Diamond" Agnew is steadily bringing diamond No. 3 into shape. The infield has developed from shifting sand to rock-like formation, and the fill for the outfield hollows is expected within the next few days.

GOLD SHIFT SCORES

Although they lost the ball game with Plastics on June 16, their first defeat in four starts, the Gold Shift supporters turned out over 100 strong to set a new attendance record for Men's League games, and root for the Gold Shift players. The Brooklyn Dodgers of the Brownsburg League, this spirited, loquacious, colorful, confident team, after leading 4-2 at the end of the third inning, allowed their opponents to score 6 runs in the fourth, 4 in the fifth and sixth to amass 16 runs, while they garnered 1 in the fifth and 3 in the sixth to lose 16-8. Both pitchers were steady with good control, though Nankivell appeared to have more spin on his ball. Poor support in all departments of the field was the main reason for dear old Gold Shift's downfall.

Office lost a tough one to Plastics on June 12. Winchester turning in one of his best efforts had the opposition 3-1 at the end of the fourth, but capitalizing on fielding errors Plastics scored 3 runs in the fifth and 1 in the sixth, to lead 5-3. However, Office came back with 2 in the seventh to tie up the game. In the extra innings played 2 more runs batted out by Plastics gave them a 7-5 victory.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

Office appears to be the team to beat to date, with five wins and no defeats, they are leaders in both leagues. This week marks the debut of Works Engineering. Metallics are to be congratulated for their constancy in practice, their steady improvement and vigor in games. — From "The Tracer"

Traffic Rules Apply To Bicycle Riders

Threatened with further gas restrictions motorists who are unable to have themselves placed in the required category are liable to turn to bicycling riding. If they do they will have to observe traffic rules just as though they were driving a car. Bicycles are vehicles and their riders must obey traffic lights, signs, lane lines and the rights of pedestrians. So far, it has been found that those who leave their cars in the garage and have taken to bicycling riding forget that they are not pedestrians, particularly when pumping their wheels through traffic.

The Provincial Government provides machinery and tools for the students, while the municipality furnishes the premises and other facilities. Director of the school is Jules Paquin.

"ROXIE HART" AT REX THEATRE, IS CHICAGO BURLESQUE

In Ginger Rogers' latest picture, Roxie Hart, (showing this week at the Rex Theatre), the producer, Nunnally Johnson believes he has forestalled any complaints from the Chicago Chamber of Commerce by placing the story a decade ago.

In one scene from the picture, Adolphe Menjou as an attorney says: "This country wouldn't hang Lucretia Borgia." And Lynne Overman, in another scene remarks: "A pretty murderess here is as safe as in her mother's arms."

Such dialogue might have been incriminating, indeed, had not Nunnally Johnson burlesqued Chicago's newspaper men, police and criminal attorneys rather than written a factual account of that particular period.

"It was a fabulous era," said Johnson, in talking of the background of Roxie Hart. "The public wept over the plight of murderesses if they had a pretty face. They were innocent girls caught in those throes of a big city, sweet, kind of girls who thought all men were big brothers, tender, loving girls who just accidently happened to have an axe in their hands when the police arrived."

Johnson, who lived in Chicago during the days about which he wrote for Roxie Hart, knew well this heyday of sob sisters. He quit newspaper work just as this era was ending to devote himself to short story writing which eventually led to motion picture writing.

Brownsburg, June 23 —

An amateur night under the patronage of O. A. Petersen, superintendent of Personnel, was held at the Recreation Hall, Monday, June 8. Herb Rumball introduced the program and Alex Dupont acted as master of ceremonies. Much of the organization work was done by Edouard Lafortune.

Community singing opened the program with Larry Rock conducting and Miss Jean Flynn at the piano. Bill Phillips, Lachute, and M. Maranda, Hawkesbury, gave piano recitals. The singing numbers featured Verne Valdron, of Dalhousie, N.B., with "The White Cliffs of Dover"; Therese Farmer, "Why don't we do this more often"; Germaine Gaudet, Moncton, N.B., "To You Sweetheart, Aloha" and "Apple Blossom Time". Gaetan Caron and Jimmy Gallagher were others who sang. As dancers, Donia Chatelain and Mendoza Filion proved entertaining, while Gaetan Forget accompanied on the guitar and Flarida Sauve on the violin.
