LIONS CLUB SET FOR BUMPER FIELD DAY; PATRIOTIC CAUSE

HARDER WORK, PLAINER LIVING, CLOSER BUDGETING

Nation Settles Down to New Kind of Life, While Prime Minister Sees War Duration Extended by British Reverses in Africa

By BOB FRANCIS, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 2 (CP)—The conscription debate approached its climax on parliament hill this week, but the citizens of Canada were preoccupied with a topic of more immediate concern — Finance Minister Ilsley's hard-hitting 1942 budget.

They settled down to a kind of life they—as a nation—had never known before, a life of harder work, plainer living and a stricter budgeting.

And on top of Mr. Ilsley's tough-to-swallow tax increases came Prime Minister Mackenzie King's statement on his return from Washington that the war may last two, three or even four years.

As the first shock of the biggest war budget started to wear off, Canadians began to realize what tough sledding is ahead. But many also began to realize just what the Finance Minister intended, that by omitting some luxuries and non-essentials from their day-to-day living they could save the difference between their old and new tax bills, and perhaps a little extra as well.

Protecting West Coast

The immediate facts of war also came closer home with the announcement of Royal Canadian Air Force units operating with United States fliers in Alaska. Working from U.S. bases on the north-western approaches to their own continent, the Canadians are flying for the first time in search of an enemy making a direct attack on the mainland.

At the same time it was officially disclosed that west coast defences generally have been strengthened against possible further thrusts by the Japanese against the North American continent.

After conferences with Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons that British setbacks in Africa have had more effect on the duration of the war than its ultimate outcome. He said that "instead of ending in 1943," as some had hoped, it might go as long as four years, and described the middle east situation as one of the most critical the United Nations have faced.

While observers considered the implications of Mr. King's statement, Air Minister Power, speaking in the conscription debate, said he would support overseas conscription when it became necessary.

He said the plebiscite vote indicated that his Quebec South constituents did not agree with him, but that the people of Canada as a majority had called on the government for action. If his electors so desired, he was ready to vacate his seat.

In the same debate, Defence Minister Ralston forecast widespread changes in employment to make more men available for the army.

He said that in the event of a conflict between national security and national unity, security would have to be given preference.

Labor Minister Mitchell warned that Canadians had not even touched the "fringe of sacrifices" necessary for victory, foreshadowed compulsory registration for women for war work soon and hinted other means of "compulsion" may be used to maintain labor supply.

Mother, Daughter On Bicycle Trip To North Bay

On a lengthy jaunt by bicycle from Montreal to North Bay, about 350 miles, Mrs. A. Gath and her 14-year-old daughter, Anita, from Fredericton, N.B., stopped off to visit friends here Sunday. From Fredericton to Montreal they made the first lap of their holiday trip by train, there climbing aboard their bicycles for Lachine. Proceeding via Point Fortune and ferry to Carillon, they stopped at Lachute Saturday evening. Protecting the baggage on the carriers of their machines, a white waterproof cover bears the name "Fredericton, N.B.", in black letters. This device, according to the visitors, has evoked many a friendly greeting from Maritimers they have met on the road. The venturesome cyclists are clad in shorts, light clothing and sun helmets, but are prepared for changes of weather with rain-capes and warmer togs.

Elderly Citizen of Lakefield Dies Suddenly in Auto

ADDLEY G. SHERRITT VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK WHILE IN ST. JEROME

Lakefield, Que. — The sudden passing of Addley George Sherritt on Saturday evening came as a great shock to this community, where he had spent his entire life. His death occurred at St. Jerome where he and his son had gone on a business trip. Leaving his father in the car, Wilbert Sherritt returned in a few minutes' time to find his father slouched in his seat, where he had succumbed to a heart attack.

The late Mr. Sherritt was in his 84th year; he was the second youngest son of Capt. George Sherritt, and his wife Isabella Arnott. In 1885 he married Ellen Hammond, who predeceased him 14 years ago. To their union were born seven children—Olive (Mrs. C. Westgate), Stanley and Clarence, all of Boston, Mass.; Wilbert and Mildred (Mrs. Lorne Dawson), of Lakefield, Que.; Sarah, who died in childhood, and Louise, whose death occurred three years ago.

Addley G. Sherritt was a life-long member of the Anglican Church and a loyal supporter of the Orange Lodge.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon from his late home to Holy Trinity Church, the service being conducted by the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, assisted by Mr. Horace Baugh, the Rev. A. E. Mount playing the organ music while the congregation and choir sang three favorite hymns of their departed neighbor — "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say", "The Sands of Time are Sinking", and "Peace, Perfect Peace". Many beautiful flowers bore silent tribute to his memory. Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining Holy Trinity Church.

Thatching Record Set In England

Novel British Machine Makes Mile of Rick Matting In A Single Day

(By Mail)

London — An invention patented in 1896 but stillborn because it was before its time, has been produced in a modernized power driven version to help on Britain's agricultural front.

It is a thatch-making machine which enables ricks to be covered at half the cost and one fifth the man-hours of the old method, and is being made in hundreds for Britain's next harvest.

Straw fed into the machine is stitched into a continuous mat, which is then cut into convenient lengths generally of 9 ft. or 12 ft. The manufacturing cost is about 3½d. a yard (with wheatened straw at £4. 10s. a ton) and the production rate is from two yards a minute, although one farmer claims that he can make a mile in a day. The job can be done at any time of the year and the matting stored in rolls until required.

County Agricultural Committees are finding that the machines solved many of Britain's wartime problems. Unskilled labor can be used either on the farm or in the committee's central depots, where lengths of matting can be made and distributed to farms in the locality.

Public Support in 'Army Week' Endeavor Will Boost Fund for Soldiers' Cigarettes

The Field Day sponsored by Lachute Lions Club is billed for the coming Saturday, July 4. As with the last big event held on Lachute exhibition grounds — the annual Spring Fair — all plans are in readiness, and fair weather is the only requisite to assure the success of this event. And it is hoped the Field Day will be equally favored in this respect.

The gala occasion, now becoming an annual feature on the Lions Club program, is particularly timely in the national observance of "Army Week", since it is a project wholly in aid of a patriotic cause. The success of the Club's voluntary enterprise, to furnish cigarettes for Argenteuil men on service abroad, is now well proven. It is indicated, however, that the undertaking has grown to such proportions that it has taxed the financial resources of the members, who — although they will continue the work at all costs — urgently require the support of the community to carry on.

Grateful acknowledgments of the Lions' gifts have been published from time to time. As further example of the cheer imparted by their shipments of cigarettes, here are a few more messages from boys overseas:

Pte. Frank Williams, of the 1st Battalion Black Watch (RHR) writes, (May 1)—"I received the cigarettes last night. To you I owe many thanks; it is a great thing to receive these smokes, as it is very hard to get them over here."

Pte. Harry Shears writes as follows (April 27)—"I can assure you they are more appreciated than ever now, as the price of cigarettes has gone up to 2/- for 20 (48 cts.). Without cigarettes to smoke or The Watchman to read, it would be real lonesome."

From Corp. W. R. (Bob) Miller, 2nd Batallion R.C.E. (April 14)—"May I take this opportunity of expressing how much I appreciate the 1200 cigarettes received from you recently. Your generous gifts, that have arrived so regularly, are greatly enjoyed."

The foregoing extracts from letters received by Lion Chas. Walker, committeeman in charge of this service, speak for themselves; and it is felt the coming Field Day project, in aid of this work, should commend itself to the public's hearty support.

The preparations for this event, commencing at 1.15 p.m. next Saturday, provide an attractive program. Interest will run high in the county horse-racing, while bicycle and foot races for classes of different age and sex will arouse keen competition. The Brownsburg B.D.C. Revue will be presented in fine stage acts interspersing the sports. The drawing for various prizes will be held before the grandstand, and in conclusion dancing will be staged at the pavilion on the exhibition grounds.

Patriotic-minded citizens — indeed, all who pride themselves on a spirit of community service — are urged to make this a family outing, to bring their youngsters and their friends to swell the crowd.

A detailed program of entertainment is published elsewhere in these pages.

Que. Death Rate In T.B. Lowered

Encouraging evidence that the Province of Quebec is making steady headway in its fight against tuberculosis was given Saturday at a joint meeting of Anti-tubercular Leagues and the Christmas Seal Committee in Montreal.

Hon. L. A. Taschereau, president of the Christmas Seal Committee, lauded especially the increasing education and willingness of more people to aid in stamping out the disease.

He warned the meeting — at which plans were laid for the 1942 campaign — that "we must not stop while moving along this progressive road." Although government reports indicated lowering death-rates in most counties and cities, Mr. Taschereau said that the reports for Quebec and Ontario were not entirely favorable, nonetheless. "The time has come for us to tighten our ranks and fight this disease by presenting a common front. National unity is required in all battles", he said.

According to a Department of Health report, submitted by Dr. A. R. Foley, 50 to 71 counties had seen their death-rates from tuberculosis reduced between 1938 and 1940, as compared to the period from 1935 to 1937. Best figures were recorded for the Magdalen Islands, where the rate was 207.5 deaths per 1,000 persons infected during the first period, and 138.4 in the latter period, a variation of —69.1.

Outbreak of Fire In West Ward

A dwelling-house blaze at the corner of Bedard Blvd. and Main Street West was subdued by quick action of the Lachute Fire Brigade at 9 o'clock this morning. The fire which was confined to the kitchen of the house, caused between $200 and $300 interior damage, which is covered by insurance. Cause of the outbreak is not known; there was no range in the kitchen, and no stove-pipes to ignite.

The property, occupied by F. Lepage, is owned by Wm. J. Deacon, Lachute Mills.

Army Recruiting In Laurentians

VISITS IN "ARMY WEEK" BY DIS. RECRUITING OFFICER MAJOR W. H. SCOTT, M.C.

Montreal, June 30—While this week is known as "Army Week" and the fact is being advertised from coast to coast of the necessity of recruits for the Reserve Army, military authorities in Military District No. 4 are also emphasizing the fact that recruits for the Canadian Active Army are more than ever required in order to keep our overseas forces up to full strength; and, with a view to stimulating enlistment in the Canadian Active Army, Major Walter H. Scott, M.C., District Recruiting Officer, M.D. 4, has left on a recruiting campaign in the Laurentian Mountains and is visiting the following points —

Arundel, Morin Heights, Huberdeau, Weir, 16 Island Lake, Montfort, St. Jovite.

In order to assist persons desiring information on the Army, a Civilian Adviser has been appointed in the person of Mr. Walter Reid, well known postmaster at Montfort, who will be available at all times.

St. Jerome Record With Ration Cards

The Town of St. Jerome, Que., made a record for all Canada on sugar rationing on the night of June 25 when 2,587 sugar rationing cards were picked up by canvassers before 8.00 p.m. and 12,934 rationing cards were written by them before midnight. This was the job for which five days had been allowed. Ottawa officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board congratulated the St. Jerome organization.

HOLSTEIN CATTLE BRING BIG PRICE

Hudson Hts., June 29—The Mont Victoria Farm's world-famous herd of Holstein Friesian cattle, the life-work in breeding of the late T. B. Macaulay, was sold here today for a total of $130,950, an average for the 68 listed animals and two baby calves of $1,926.

Boys' Brigade and Scouts at Church

Brownsburg—The attendance at the United Church service last Sunday morning was considerably augmented by a Company of the Boys' Brigade from Montreal, under the command of Capt. Alex Lough, who with the local troop of Boy Scouts and Cubs, under Scout-Master Rooney, occupied the major portion of the centre row of the auditorium. The service was conducted by the minister, Rev. S. J. Pike, who welcomed the boys in a hearty manner . . . The boys of the Brigade are camping for ten days at the Boy Scout grounds kindly offered by F. R. Vowles.

During the service on Sunday morning Mr. Pike invited Capt. Lough and Scout-Master Rooney to accompany him in the rostrum and each say a word about his group of boys. Both leaders spoke briefly; Scout-Master Rooney outlined the work of the Scouts as a local organization and appealed to the parents present for their hearty support. Capt. Lough gave a brief sketch of the Boys' Brigade history, their object and program as a Christian as well as a community group. Both speakers also intimated their pleasure at being present and having this opportunity to speak to the congregation.

A chorus, "Land of our Birth, We pledge to Thee," was rendered by the boys, after which Mr. Pike gave them a brief address. The congregation remained standing after the service while the boys filed out to line up for the parade back to their quarters.

'Stamp Girls' To Appear Shortly

One of the bright little features of the July Savings Stamp drive will be the appearance of Stamp Girls in the various provinces. They will be dressed in identical costumes, wearing jaunty blue caps with white blouses and short red skirts.

In some provinces the age of the Stamp Girls will be about 14 years. Other provinces are planning to employ the services of the older type.

All Stamp Girls will be doing double duty. They will be authorized to sell Stamps, but in addition they will prove to be colorful reminders of the fact that Canada needs every cent which her citizens can invest in war securities.

SUGAR COUPONS NOW IN USE BY HOUSEHOLDERS

Ruling States Coupons Must Not Be Detached Until Due Date . . . Many New Phases of Activity by Prices Board

Notes Up-to-Date for Dealer and Consumer

Sugar rationing coupons — which have by this time been generally distributed to applicants —must not be detached from the rationing cards before the due date. Each coupon attached to the card represents one pound of sugar. It is not transferrable and refers only to the holder of the card. No coupon will be valid if it is detached before the date to which it applies—according to ruling by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

THE BUDGET AND PRICES

A special order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was issued immediately after the budget authorizing the addition of taxes on goods and services to be added to maximum prices charged by sellers of such goods and services.

No increase in prices is permitted except on goods or services on which the new or increased tax has actually been paid, and manufacturers and merchants have been advised that they are not allowed to pass on any greater sum than the exact amount of the tax.

DORMANT AND SURPLUS STOCKS PUT INTO ACTION

"Wanted—dead merchandise for live buyers" . . . That slogan is today selling thousands of dollars' worth of surplus or stagnant stocks that might otherwise have been disposed of at mark-downs, or even sold as scrap. Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers have found a means of moving, at a profit, items on which they were previously prepared to take a loss or write off altogether.

With countless plants swinging from peacetime production to war purposes, large amounts of miscellaneous articles are now lying idle in stock rooms or assembly shops. Supplies, of certain metal goods especially, for civilian use, are tapering off, and those who need such articles must, therefore, seek them from every available source.

Retailers and wholesalers saddled with stocks, dead due to a change in consumer demand, are in a similar position.

Confronted with a situation calling for immediate action, the management-service section of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board stepped in and set up a dormant stock department which is acting as a clearing house for surplus stocks needed elsewhere. It has already diverted to direct war use many items which might otherwise have gone into the scrap heap. It is a non-profit service, its only objective being to bring buyer and seller together. Sales are made directly between the two principals involved, and no commissions are expected or accepted.

The inventories of many manufacturers contain a host of items for which the owners have no immediate use and of which someone else is probably in pressing need. When supplies cease to be current, they are more often than not disposed of as scrap. The Department deals only in excess or surplus stocks. Its activities do not involve what is known as junk items, but only materials for which the present proprietor has not further use.

Thousands of dollars of stock have already been moved with a minimum of trouble to the principals. The department has long lists of available items from mild steel bands and bars to hollow

2 Listed Missing Now Reported as Prisoners of War

RELATIVES RECEIVE NEWS OF FLT.-LT. JAMES WATSON AND SGT. NORMAN BRADLEY

Cushing W.—Friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Watson, Maniwaki, are rejoicing with them in the news they received last week that their son, Flt.-Lt. Jas. Watson, who was recently listed as missing, is now reported a prisoner of war in Germany. This news, which came through the medium of the International Red Cross, in some measure relieves the anxiety of his parents and relatives.

* * *

Carillon — News was received here on Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Bradley that their son, Sgt. W/AG. Norman William Bradley, who was previously reported missing after air operations over enemy country on June 17, is a prisoner of war in Germany. Knowledge of Sgt. Bradley's hazardous role in air attacks from British soil, had caused grave concern when he was officially posted as missing, and this news conveyed by the Red Cross to his parents and family, brings renewed hope to their circle of friends.

Passenger Buses to Burn Anthracite

Conversion in London to Cut Ocean Tankers' Cargoes

(By Mail)

London — Twenty of London's giant passenger buses will soon be trailing behind them miniature anthracite furnaces so that they can run on producer-gas instead of gasoline. In their million miles a year of road service the 20 buses will save something like 175,000 gallons of gasoline; and, if the whole of the 800 London Transport buses suitable for conversion are fitted up for the new fuel, deep-sea tankers will be relieved of the job of carrying 7,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year.

But this is only one item in Britain's campaign to save gas. Already 1,000 commercial vehicles are burning producer-gas, and the Government recently announced plans for 10,000 more vehicles equipped with the system, which will save 30,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year.

The launching of this great fleet of vehicles producing their own carbon monoxide gas is the successful result of continuous research into fuel problems since the war began. The first producer-gas unit was made by an Englishman during the last war but subsequent development has been principally in Europe, where, however, it centred rather upon the charcoal fuel to be had there rather than on the coke or anthracite used in Britain. The present success of British chemists and engineers has therefore been achieved from an entirely fresh start.

Proud Mother Receives Wings For Dead Airman

In an impressive ceremony for the presentation of wings to graduate fliers at No. 13 Station, St. Hubert R.C.A.F. Training School, a civilian resident played a touching part. The ceremony was held yesterday afternoon, and was witnessed by Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Theoret, their two daughters and young son, of Lachute — who were bereaved by the tragedy which cost the lives of three airmen from this training school on June 16. Mrs. Theoret received the wings on behalf of her son, the late LAC. J. Charles Theoret, who was killed in the crash of four planes on night manoeuvres.

The renowned old battleship H.M.S. Warspite has more than 500 bombs dropped around her during naval action with Italians off Calabria in July, 1940, but there was not a single direct hit.

SURPLUS APPLES TO GO AS DRIED OR APPLE JUICE

Nova Scotia's Famous Yield Not To Be Lost for Lack of Export; Maritime Crops Generally Good

By GORDON McKEAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, June 30 (CP)—Better spring weather has put crops 10 days to two weeks ahead of usual in the Maritimes this year, a survey of agriculture in the three seaside provinces shows. While crop prospects are good, a farm labor shortage is causing some concern.

In Nova Scotia, Agriculture Minister John A McDonald plans to relieve the labor situation by using high school boys and girls, men granted harvesting leave from the army and volunteers from cities and towns.

New Brunswick agriculture officials also plan to use high school students and young women and men ineligible for military service, but, as in Prince Edward Island, no definite plan to gain more agricultural workers has been announced.

Some large farms in Prince Edward Island are having difficulty in getting help, but this applies to not more than 10 per cent of the farms.

Apple Crop

Spring brought a good bloom to Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley apple orchards, but the "set" of the bloom is reported poor, due to generally dull weather during the setting period. Agricultural officials said it is still too early to determine accurately the apple yield this year.

The Canadian market absorbs from 200,000 to 350,000 barrels of Nova Scotia apples annually, and while in former years large quantities went overseas, since the war started the balance of the crop has been processed by drying or conversion to apple juice and other apple products.

The average crop is about 1,500,000 barrels, tree run, or about 1,250,000 barrels of packed apples. This year the unmarketed crop will be dried under a scheme arranged between the Nova Scotia Apple Marketing Board and the federal government.

N.S. Vegetables

Heavier planting of vegetables is reported in Nova Scotia and the crop prospects appear good. There was some frost damage to beans planted for canning and the fixed price set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is not encouraging to growers, agriculture officials said. The acreage of peas planted for canning is about normal and a good crop is expected.

About 110,000 pounds of wool have been received at the three government grading stations at Truro, Mabou and Antigonish. The wool is grading high, about 85 per cent being classed "military style."

N.B. and P.E.I.

The most favorable planting season in recent recent years has given New Brunswick agriculture a good start this season and crop prospects are bright. Due to the potato agreement between Canada and the United States, opening up a larger United States market, farmers have been advised to reconsider their potato acreage plantings and to increase them if feasible.

Prince Edward Island crops are growing well, with moisture conditions improved recently. The potato acreage is normal and the hay crop, which now appears light, may improve before hay making starts in three weeks to a month.

Wartime conditions have brought about increased hog production and with it an attempt is being made to step up the amount of home-grown grain through increased seeding of barley and mixed grains and by application of commercial fertilizer to grain crops. Farmers are increasing milk production where possible.

Dominion Textiles Shows Que. Industry In War Effort

Montreal, July 2 — The extent to which Quebec industry has thrown itself into the war effort is indicated by some comparative figures released by Dominion Textile Company Limited.

The cotton textile industry of Quebec, which produces nearly three-quarters of Canada's cotton goods, is 11 times ahead of its 1914-18 war production records. The mills have turned most of their facilities to the manufacture of direct war materials or essential articles which have an indirect bearing on the war. This fact is all the more inspiring when it is considered that the cotton industry, even in wartime, must maintain a certain percentage of its civilian production to clothe the nation and provide specific textile necessities of life.

At present it is estimated that 150 million yards of direct war products and other essential materials are turned out by the Quebec industry in a year's time. Among these items are anti-gas cloth, aircraft fabric, camouflage cloth and nettings, tire fabrics for army equipment, gun covers, parachute strapping yarn, webbing for rifle and machine gun slings, waterproof materials for the navy and merchant marine, bandage cloth and scores of other products including, of course, uniform cloths and linings.

Two other figures are of particular interest. Dominion Textile reports that its plant employees now earn 28 per cent more per hour than at the outbreak of war, and that the company pays 5.4 times as much in taxes as the total paid in dividends to its several thousand shareholders.

VICE-ADMIRAL LORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN, BRITISH CHIEF OF COMBINED OPERATIONS

Since October, 1941, Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten has been responsible for planning and developing the successful British "Commando" raids. A cousin of King George, he is one of the most brilliant Commanders of the present war. His appointment as Chief of Combined Operations was kept a secret until April following the successful raids on the coast of Norway, at Bruneval and on St. Nazaire in occupied France. He is 41.

DIG MINE FIELDS FOR WAR-NEEDED SCHEELITE ORES

Germany Had It to Make Tungsten-Tipped Armor Piercing Bullets; Canada Seeking It for the Allied Cause

By DENT HODGSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, June 29 (CP)—Canadian geologists, seeking to fill pressing needs of the Dominion Department of Munitions and Supply, are intensifying a country-wide search for scheelite, principal tungsten-bearing ore, which has become one of the most strategic rocks of the war.

Tungsten — formerly used for electric lamp filaments — is used in peace time to harden the tips of cutting tools. In war, it has become a vital alloy for armor-plating and for armor-piercing projectiles. Reliable reports say the Germans, who had amassed large quantities of the mineral before the war, were able to penetrate British tanks with tungsten-tipped machine gun bullets in the first battle of Libya.

The name, "tungsten," is derived from two Swedish words meaning, "heavy stone," and was originally applied to the ore, scheelite, a light-colored rock with a waxy lustre, varying in shade from yellow to brown or grey. Scheelite is a soft rock, but tungsten, used as an alloy with steel, can produce a bullet with remarkable armor-piercing qualities as yet undiscovered in other alloys.

China Had It

Principal supplies of the world's scheelite formerly came from China, in the rocks bordering the Burma road. When Japanese invasion cut off supplies from Eastern Chinese ports, it continued to flow down the Burma road and was exported from Indo-China. These supplies are now cut off and the allies have had to discover new sources.

Other deposits are found in Australia, Portugal, Bolivia and Latin America and the United States. Recently, in an abandoned mine in the west central states, U.S. geologists found what is believed the largest scheelite deposit on the continent, but Canada must look for her own supply.

Scattered deposits of scheelite are common in Canada, but usually in such small quantities that production is impractical. Canada has one mine producing scheelite in British Columbia, another in Nova Scotia, but these are small scale projects far from sufficient for her demands. It is estimated the Dominion's munitions industries require 25 tons of the ore daily.

In Manitoba, a fairly extensive series of deposits discovered in 1917 near Falcon Lake in the southwest section of the province is being re-examined by Dominion and provincial geologists in the hope of striking a bed sizeable enough to start production.

Modern method of prospecting for the ore is by means of a fluorescent lamp, which can determine acurately whether or not a deposit is worth mining.

Scheelite is often found in conjunction with gold mines and several mines in northern Ontario and Quebec which have been discarding it as useless for years now are producing it in small quantities.

"S.O.S." has a new meaning for many Canadians overseas. Interpreted, it now means "Send Over Smokes."

BRITISH FARMER MUST GROW MORE TO ASSURE FOOD

Warning Given that Essential Supplies Must Come More and More From Within Britain Itself

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Unless Britain's 300,000 farmers, striving to keep the nation's food bins stocked, increase agricultural production, the British housewife will find her housekeeping problems increased and Britons generally will have to give their already tightly drawn belts another yank.

Essential food supplies at present are greater than a year ago, but whether the public will have to adopt a more rigid "austerity" diet depends on the current home-grown crop because imports may be further restricted through urgent needs of the fighting services.

"Grow for Victory" was the theme of a message R. S. Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, gave farmers as he warned them the government would have to make further demands "owing to changes in Allied strategy." He did not elaborate his reference to strategy, but observers believed he was hinting at the possible opening of a second European front. For such an operation every available ship Britain and the United States can spare will be needed. In this event it is likely importation of food would have to be curtailed for a time.

Ships Needed

The Minister's forecast of intensification of agricultural production "contained something more than the consequences of the Battle of the Atlantic," commented the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post. "It would be reasonable to assume that our agricultural palicy is to make use of ships for something more than the bringing of food to these shores."

Farmers already have been asked to produce this year all the milk used in Britain; at least half the beef and mutton consumed; all the wheat used to make flour, bread and cake and all the necessary vegetables, oats and sugar.

If this target and whatever new demands the government may make are attained, the farmers will be feeding four of every five persons compared with one of three in peace-time. Increased food production, coupled with rationing, has saved an estimated 8,000,000 tons of shipping — equal to handling over about 1,600 ships for fighting purposes.

Farmers Alert

"I feel the farmers are on their toes and can see their way clear to meeting the demands," Mr. Hudson said. "But they may have to do a bit more in the bargain. A fifth of the country's farms are producing almost the maximum of which they are capable. Another fifth are classed as 'efficient' producers who can provide five per cent more food. Of the remainder, half must increase production by 15 per cent and the other half by 20 per cent."

To help reach the government's goal more land will have to be reclaimed and plowed and rabbits, rats and rocks which have created havoc among crops will have to be destroyed.

A REPORT ON CROP PROGRESS AND PESTS IN THIS DISTRICT

The Agricultural Division of the Provincial Bureau of Statistics has published its second telegraphic crop report of the season, reproducing the summary of information received from the district agronomists.

Through collaboration of the Plant Protection Bureau, Department of Agriculture, the bulletin contains also a note on the development of plant diseases, insects and pests in this province.

For the district of Argenteuil, Two Mountains, Labelle and Terrebonne, the following report is given: Meadows and pastures are still good, but progressing slowly owing to dryness, which is also retarding growth of cereal crops. Live stock are doing well. Fruit crop is expected to be good but that of small fruits only average.

Agricultural Pests.—Tent caterpillars and cut worms are prevalent in large number throughout the Province. Cabbages, cauliflowers and onions are greatly injured by root maggots. Seed corn maggots are voracious this year and potato beetles very numerous for this time of the season. Same crops as usual are infested by aphids. The most alarming vegetal diseases actually are the apple scab and the bacterial blight. Up to June 13, correspondents report drought and wind nearly everywhere and also a few late frosts.

For Efficiency of the Salvage Effort in Quebec Province

To cope with the growing task of organizing salvage in this province three assistants will be given to Mr. Roger Charbonneau, who was charged with this work in October last. Mr. Charbonneau becomes provincial salvage supervisor, with offices at 1212 Aldred Building, Montreal. The Province of Quebec having been divided for salvage purposes into three districts, regional organizers will be designated to assist Mr. Charbonneau.

BEAR RAN OVER HIM

Hudson Bay Junc., Sask. (CP)—Walter Goyak, member of a fire-fighting crew operating near here, considered himself lucky when he escaped after suddenly finding himself between a mother bear and her cubs. Goyak tripped and fell flat while trying to escape. The huge she-bear ran over him but left him uninjured.

Dept. of Agriculture Encourages Raising Of Bacon Hogs

Quebec—Intensive effort to improve quality and quantity of bacon production has been undertaken by the Quebec Department of Agriculture. A motion picture on the selection and raising of good bacon type hogs will shortly be released. Produced in color by Associated Screen Studios of Montreal in the French language, it is primarily for showings to farm audiences and agricultural schools. It illustrates good bacon types, and shows proper methods of care, feeding, and preparation for market.

The bacon production campaign was undertaken to aid in filling the greatly increased demand from the British market. As a further stimulus to increased production the department of agriculture has been selecting good type breeding sows as they are offered on the livestock market, and purchasing them to be placed on farms throughout the province. It is expected the new motion picture on hog raising, entitled "Le Porc à Bacon" will be ready for rural showings within a few weeks.

For A Happy Holiday

Summer is generally looked upon as a restorative season — a time when we can laugh and play and generally relax in our glorious summer sunshine and so generally build up our resistance for the more demanding winter months.

But summer brings health hazards which, whilst well known to all, are unfortunately neglected by thousands. Contaminated water and milk, unsafe food supplies, over familiarity with "old sol" or poison ivy, to say nothing of the possible tragedy of drowning, may mar the holiday you had planned to restore your health.

The Health League of Canada offers the following rules for safe and happy holidays:

1. Take sunbaths in easy doses.
2. Learn what poison ivy looks like and teach your children too — then avoid it.
3. Be sure your water-supply is pure.
4. Make certain the milk you buy is pasteurized — if not, pasteurize it yourself.
5. Don't take too much exercise at once.
6. Don't swim on a full stomach.
7. Learn how to paddle or row.
8. Learn how to do artificial respiration — you may save somebody's life.

An Arresting Example

There is one drug store proprietor in Montreal who is selling $1,000 worth of War Savings Stamps a month. His name is A. Labarre, of Ontario Street East, who serves a community comprising both English and French speaking Canadians, in the neighborhood of the Canadian Vickers shipyards.

Mr. Labarre is one of thousands of Canadian retailers who have volunteered to push the sale of War Savings Stamps in their own stores. Simple arithmetic reveals that he sells about 140 of the 25 cent stamps daily.

Here is an example of individual enterprise that excites the imagination. If 10,000 fellow merchants kept pace with Mr. Labarre, the total sale of stamps in stores alone would reach $120,000,000. a year. And that total, added to the increased amounts expected from the sale of War Savings Certificates in industrial plants, post offices and banks, would go a long way to help Canada meet its new War Savings objective.

Credit for Mr. Labarre's achievement does not belong wholly to Mr. Labarre, of course. Much depends on the whole-hearted co-operation of his customers, who put up the money. Thus, if 10,000 other merchants are to equal Mr. Labarre's record in this and other communities in the country, they too will need the enthusiastic support of their customers.

Have you bought your full share of stamps this week? Are you planning to buy your full share every week?

Conscription of Wealth

"If I had my way, the first conscript in Canada would be money", Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie told the Canadian Legion convention in Winnipeg. The Smith Falls Record, and a host of thinking Canadians besides — no doubt including his Legion listeners — yould like Mr. Mackenzie to explain what he means exactly by this statement.

If Mr. Mackenzie is referring to the conscription of wealth — remarks The Record — he has only to look at the income tax, excess profit tax and other taxes which now affect "wealth" to see what his government is doing. It is in the happy position, politically, that it has conscripted the wealth of the wealthy while lightly passing over the wealth of the masses and, for a considerable time, avoiding conscription of manpower.

Conscription of wealth is a figure of speech which evokes more cock-eyed comment than the average run of war contingencies. We therefore take occasion to quote a few sound arguments from a banker, who should know his currency and securities in terms of true national value. The following extracts are from an article by J. Taggart Smyth, Montreal, in the current issue of The Municipal Review:

We hear a clamor for complete mobilization and conscription of wealth, but nobody seems to realize that we have had just that, ever since the beginning of the war and probably even before. It all hinges on what one means by wealth. During the last war, none of the belligerents thought of confiscating bonds, debentures and mortgages, life insurance policies or bank accounts, not even Germany nor downtrodden France; nor are they doing it today. On the contrary, they are doing all in their power to encourage these forms of savings. Now there is a very valid reason for this attitude . . .

During the first months of the last world war, some of our so-called economists forecast that Germany must collapse within six months, because that is as far as her gold supply would carry her. They never stopped to think that Germany nor her people could eat gold, turn it into armaments nor use it to clothe the soldiers. It could only be used outside the country, to purchase the necessities of life and warfare, and Great Britain has blockaded her coasts. Yet Germany kept up the struggle of four long years and lack of gold had nothing to do with her eventual defeat.

The mistake these people made and are still making is in their conception of what constitutes wealth. Mortgages, bonds, debentures, insurance policies and bank accounts are not wealth. Wealth, in the concrete, is the produce of our soil, our rivers and subsoil as prepared and fashioned by the brain and brawn of man; and the symbols I have mentioned are simply the certification that the community guarantees the value of these products to the legitimate owner of them. It therefore follows that warfare may be carried on indefinitely without gold or silver and therefore without the signs and symbols representing them, just as long as the earth yields its fruits, the rivers their fish and the subsoil the minerals that are necessary for war, and that the state has the manpower to produce these goods and fashion the products. When one speaks therefore of the conscription of wealth, he must think in terms of produce and manpower and forget the symbols.

Conscription of wealth is also translated in terms of the income tax, not by the symbols which represent it, but in terms of the labor it represents. The Government of Canada, sensing the need of foodstuffs and other commodities, requests Canadians to be sparing in the consumption of materials and in some cases has put a ceiling on what may be consumed. Further, in order to make sure that people will cut down on the consumption of wealth, the Government, through the income and national defence taxes, forces all its citizens to work for it gratuitously, each according to his ability and strength.

For instance, the married man earning $12,000 or less, and the single person earning $600 or less, give none of their time to the Government because they are supposed not to be able to afford it. But neglecting the lower brackets, the man who earns say $2,000 above the exemption, has to give almost two months of his work free to his country; if the excess is $5,000, he contributes three months of his time, and if it is $25,000, he has to work for his country free of charge for half of the year.

As you may note, governments are realistic and only take real wealth. They do not bother about things that count only as symbols. If they were so misguided as to seize the symbols, mortgages, shares, bonds and debentures, insurance policies or bank accounts, production would cease, thereby disrupting the entire national economy and making the country fair game for its enemies. These symbols represent invested produce and labor and, in the form of plant and machinery, they produce other wealth which the state needs to carry on its wartime activities. Destroy these plants and machinery, and the symbols representing them — shares, debentures and bonds — become immediately worthless. And this is equally true of all other symbols, or as some of them are called, notes or certificates.

The people who clamor for complete mobilization of wealth usually mean something altogether different. They would have the Government despoil the people of the hard earned fruits of their toil and divide it up amongst the prodigals who have been content to do as little as possible and spend the proceeds as rapidly and as uselessly as they could.

An Ancient Art Goes Modern

An invention described this week by our industrial correspondent in London, reminds us of an ancient craft little known in these parts of Canada — or elsewhere on the continent, to the best of our knowledge. The device is a power driven thatch-making machine, to speed work on the wartime agricultural front.

In the British Isles hay and grain stacks are capped with thatched roofs. Thatching is a time-honored craft. It consists of matting grain-straw to form a weather proof and rain shedding roof, which is staked to the stack and held with thongs of straw. The traditional "thatched cottage" is roofed in this manner. These are common in the villages and countrysides of England, as any tourist knows.

The only example of thatching known in this particular area is a picturesque, single-storey hostelry situated near Shawbridge, Que., and believed to be the property of a Montreal firm. On a recent visit to Sherbrooke another example attracted our attention, in a modern replica of the English cottage; but on closer view its roof proved to be an imitation of the real thing, moulded in galvanized iron.

Thatching is tedious and highly specialized work. But the new machine mentioned in this week's bulletin from London is designed to reduce time and cost in the fabrication of thatch matting . . . Thus modern methods are introduced in yet another of England's old-time customs.

Comparable Pests

There is a rather striking similarity between the modus operandi of the German submarine and that of the ordinary cutworm, which is well known to farmers and gardeners. The submarine sneaks along below the surface of the ocean and watches through a periscope for the approach of a defenceless ship. Should one come near enough one or more torpedoes are discharged, after which the undersea craft gets busy in an effort to dodge depth charges dropped by destroyers or other hostile war craft which have become wise to its presence. A cutworm dives below the surface of the ground and stays there until darkness sets in, when it crawls out seeking a plant it may devour or destroy. Gardeners do not use depth charges to exterminate submarines, but some dig them out and kill them while others set poisoned bait for them. Cut worms deserve about the same treatment which is accorded to enemy submarines. — Hartland Observer

The Saboteur Menace

It is re-assuring to have the word of the attorney-general of Ontario that an immediate survey is to be made of the precautions already being taken against the saboteur bent on the blowing up of such a valuable wartime resource as the Niagara Falls hydro-electric plants. The tin-hatted armed sentries now guarding bridges and power plants have all the more incentive to keep alert, but they should not be left to do more than they can.

So few are the details given out of the capture of the eight men in the United States that much is left to the imagination. But it does not need a wild imagination to remember the long uninhabited and unguarded stretches of Canadian coastline where the resourceful, determined saboteur may enter. Greater watchfulness at vulnerable points is the remedy against such entry. — Ottawa Citizen

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By H. H. GORDON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHANGES IN ARMY COMMANDS SENT LT.-GEN. E. H. ALLENBY TO LEAD BRITISH FORCES IN EGYPT AND PALESTINE

Comparatively unknown as the commander of the British 3rd Army on the Western Front, the man who later entered Jerusalem as conqueror left the battlefields of Arras and Vimy 25 years ago to command British forces in Egypt and Palestine.

He was Lt.-Gen. Edmund Henry Allenby. Less than two years afterwards he returned to Britain to be given the baton of a field marshal, elevated to the peerage as Viscount Allenby of Megiddo and Felixstowe and rewarded with a grant of £50,000.

There was a link with Canada in all this. At Vimy and Lens the Canadian Corps fought as part of Allenby's 3rd Army. Early in June, 1917, Sir Julian Byng was promoted to the command, being replaced as head of the Canadians by Sir Arthur Currie. Allenby went on to win victor's laurels in the Holy Land, but he renewed associations with his Canadian friends in 1934 when he attended the reunion of the Canadian Corps in Toronto.

Allenby's appointment to the Middle East command was announced June 30, 1917. He succeeded Sir Archibald Murray who had pressed the Turks back through the Sinai Desert to southern Palestine where under the German general Kress von Kressenstein, they defended a line from Gaza to Beersheba.

A courageous, tireless soldier, Allenby is remembered for the remarkable victories resulting from forces in Palestine, attacked their rear and destroyed the army as a fighting force. This cavalry movement has been regarded as one of the greatest military successes of the Allies in the First Great War.

Friend of Lawrence

In the popular mind he was linked with Col. T. E. Lawrence, the "Lawrence of Arabia." Allenby quickly recognized the merits of the erstwhile Cairo civil servant's plan to foment revolt among the desert tribes and gave it full support. Indeed, some of Allenby's success has been attributed to the indefatigable Lawrence.

Profoundly stirred by the implications of British success in the Holy Land after centuries of Moslem domination, General Allenby entered Jerusalem on Dec. 11, 1917 after issuing a proclamation affirming his intention to protect all its sacred buildings. He and his men entered the Holy City on foot through the ancient Jaffa Gate.

As Lord Allenby he returned to the scene of his successes in 1919 to be High Commissioner for Egypt. He held the post until 1925, through the long sequence of political trouble and disturbances arising out of the agitation for independence. His administration did not escape criticism, but it was characteristic of the man that he adopted conciliatory rather than coercive methods.

Lord Allenby held 18 foreign orders and many other honors, including an honorary degree from the University of Toronto. He was 75 years old when he died in London May 14, 1936.

Canadian Stopped 'Em

Two men, wearing the uniforms of a Nazi airman and soldier, walked together through Worthing streets during the week-end carrying their Germans helmets under their arms. They represented a parachutist and a glider who had "just landed". No one took any notice of them. Even a policeman gave them no more than a cursory glance. They were eventually stopped and challenged by a Canadian soldier.

The "enemy" proved to be two Canadian soldiers who were on their way to give a lecture to Civil Defence workers on the detection of enemy troops.

—The Rally (Aldershot)

Tax at the Source

Collection of all income tax at the source, that is by deduction from pay cheques as is now done with the national defence tax, is . . . a logical step to take. The system of defence tax collection has worked well. With income taxes on the rise, it is easier for the taxpayer to pay as he goes than to have to meet his full payment at the end of the year. Besides, it is in line with the policy of discouraging spending. —Victoria Times.

MEMORIAL TO FIRST TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT

St. John's Nfld. — When John Alcock and A. W. Brown made the first non-stop trans-Atlantic flight from Newfoundland to Ireland on June 14, 1919, in a Vickers "Vimy" bomber, regular transcontinental and trans-oceanic air line service was born, although at that time it was just a dream of the future. To mark the event a memorial will be unveiled in St. John's in August on the site from which the intrepid British airmen took off on their epoch-making flight.

This year witnessed the inauguration of the first regular air service between Canada and Newfoundland carrying passengers, mails and express when a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane made the first trip on May 1 last from Moncton, N.B., to St. John's airport.

The British Foreign Office has before it a proposal that doctors enter the diplomatic field after the war. It is suggested medical attaches in British embassies abroad would aid in maintaining health by pooling the world curative and preventive medical knowledge.

Once A Politician — Always A Politician

A recent issue of the Montreal Gazette told the following anecdote regarding a politician from a neighboring constituency:

With permission of the censors, this story should be entitled "It can only happen here."

Shortly after the outbreak of the war, a prominent leader of the then National Union Government who occupied an important post in the administration of the affairs of the Province of Quebec joined up, much to the embarrassment of his "Chief."

Last week, however, the politician in question proved that in spite of the two years which he has spent in the army he has not forgotten his ways of political persuasion which he used to be elected in the Laurentian Mountains.

Addressing a group of soldiers in an Eastern Township training camp not long ago the former politician opened his remarks with "Ladies and Gentlemen."

He was just about to add "Messieurs, les Presidents." when somebody reminded him he was adressing a group of soldiers.

Fewer Falls, Through Cuffless Trousers

Falls are second only to motor vehicle accidents as a cause of accidental deaths. They are nearly four times as numerous as deaths from drownings or from accidental burns.

Curiously enough, when the Government ordered that cuffs be eliminated from all future made trousers it helped in this respect for long and loose trouser cuffs have always been dangerous.

A number of commonsense suggestions for the prevention of falls have been mentioned. They include: Always look in the direction you are walking; don't hurry on slippery surfaces; don't stand on boxes or makeshift supports; walk up or down steps; keep away from the edges of elevated platforms and stagings, unless safeguards are provided; do not alight from or board moving vehicles; pick up any loose objects in your path so that others will not trip over them and where necessary always use safety belts.

The real backers of our victory effort are not the people who slap themselves or each other on the back but those who put their back into it.

Many New Phases of Activity by Prices And Trade Board

head cup point set screws and thousands of other stocks for which it is constantly on the lookout for a potential purchaser. Among the first blocks to be moved was a supply of toy airplanes. Some manufacturers have reached the unit quota set by the controller of supplies, and now have some spare parts left over. Many of these are listing such stocks with the department. One man sent in details of some motorized equipment he had on hand because of cancelled orders to stocks being frozen and purchase permits refused.

Typical of the reception the idea is getting among business men is this excerpt from one of the first letters to be received by the department: "We have heard this morning from X company who are willing to take off our hands the 3/16 x 1" box cadmium plated rivets we referred to you a few days ago. This is very quick service and we appreciate your assistance in getting rid of this obsolete item."

Another reads: "We have today received a very nice order for surplus stock. We wish to thank you for your help in placing these two orders. We feel you are doing good work not only for industry but for the war effort generally in directing surplus stocks to where there are shortages of essential materials, or where they will do the most good."

Another executive writes: "The plan will be very helpful in disposal of surplus materials for which there might otherwise be no use. It will also permit the purchase of items otherwise impossible to obtain under present conditions."

The plan has received the endorsation of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, whose officers were so enthusiastic about its possibilities that they volunteered to circularize the 4,000-odd membership with details of the project.

Any manufacturer, wholesaler, or retailer who has a list of items lying idle in his factory, warehouse, or store, is urged to communicate with the Dormant Stock Department, Management Service Section, Division of Simplified Practice, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, 1903 Metropolitan Building, Toronto.

DON'T BLAME THE WAITRESS

If, when you go to a restaurant, you don't get sugar unless you ask for it, don't blame the waitress or the manager. Under the regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board no public caterer is allowed to serve sugar to any customer who does not ask for it and when it is asked for, not more than three lumps or two teaspoonfuls be supplied for any beverage.

NEW WINE AND OLD BOTTLES

The biblical proverb, "For you cannot put new wine in old bottles", applied to the leather bottles used in the middle East. Today we protect the flavor of wine by using glass bottles which may be used over and over again, and the patriotic aim, according to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, is to return bottles so that they may be sterilized and used again for new wine or other liquids.

WHAT IS A CUP OF TEA?

The directions for making wartime tea recommend one level teaspoonful of tea to a cup but many housewives ask what is a cup. The answer, as far as the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is concerned, is a "standard measuring cup of eight ounces".

This, of course, is much bigger than the average tea cup, so to avoid waste and also to keep the tea from being too strong tea makers should govern themselves accordingly.

New "Honor Roll" for Use in Churches

The Department of National Defence has just issued a special large-size "Honor Roll", which is available to business firms, churches, educational institutions and organizations whose members have volunteered for Canada's Active Force.

This Honor Roll, designed by A. J. Casson, R.C.A., symbolizes in heraldic form the historic majesty of the British Empire. The basic motif is the Canadian Coat of Arms, with flanking shields reproducing the maple leaf of Canada, the shamrock of Ireland, the thistle of Scotland, the rose of England, and the fleur-de-lis of French Canada. Shown in the design of the base are the heraldic flags of the Navy, Army and Air Force.

Reproduction is by a process which gives special brilliance to the colors, and at the same time provides the greatest degree of permanence. It has all the richness and dignity of a fine piece of illumination and is a fitting recognition of those loyal men and women who have volunteered for Active Service.

It is available in three sizes, having a maximum space for 212 names, 412 names and 612 names. Smaller Honor Rolls in two sizes are also available without cost, one with space for 12 names and the other for 36 names.

The Honor Roll will be supplied without cost other than packing and express charges.

Requests for illustrated folders should be addressed to the Director of Army Recruiting, Room 305 Laurentian Building, Ottawa.

Lachute Man Takes Bride in Montreal Church Ceremony

Scott - Copeland

At four o'clock, in St. Martin's Anglican Church, Montreal, on Saturday afternoon, June 27, the marriage took place of Hazel Myra, daughter of Mr. Nathaniel Copeland, of Dunany, Que., and the late Mrs. Copeland, to Francis Allan (Frank), son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Scott, of Lachute, Que. The Rev. Canon Howard officiated.

Mr. D. A. Hinchliffe, organist of the church, played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Mrs. W. Carmichael sang "Oh Promise Me."

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was unattended. She wore a floor-length gown of Elizabeth blue crepe, a small hat made of the same material with a shoulder-length veil, and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses and baby's breath.

A reception for the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends followed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Horwood, Earnscliffe Avenue, sister and brother-in-law of the bride. Afterwards the happy couple left by motor for Toronto and the Muskoka Lakes.

The bride wore for travelling a rose silk jersey dress with a matching camel's hair jacket and white accessories, she carried a coat of navy blue boucle.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Scott will reside in Lachute.

Married Quietly At Fort William

Gorman - Spriggs

The marriage of Miss Gwenllian Edith, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. George Trimnell Spriggs, of Sydney Mines, N.S., to Mr. John Francis Gorman, of Lachute, son of the late Mr. S. L. Gorman and of Mrs. D. Williams, of Brighton, England, was solemnized quietly at 10.30 o'clock Saturday morning, June 27, in St. Paul's Church, Fort William, Ont.

The bride's father, the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, rector of Trinity Church, Sydney Mines, performed the ceremony. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. James Carnegie, of Port Arthur, Ont.

Given in marriage by Mr. George R. Green, of Fort William, the bride wore a light blue street-length dress, made in redingote style, with accessories to match, and a corsage of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gorman left on the S.S. Keewatin, Canadian Pacific steamship, for Sault Ste. Marie, and from this point they motored via Sudbury and Ottawa to Lachute, where they will take up residence.

The bride's travelling costume was a blue sports ensemble.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"God" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 5.

The Golden Text is from I Samuel 2: 2. "There is none holy as the Lord: for there is none beside thee: neither is there any rock like our God."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." (Deuteronomy 33: 27).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The facts of divine Science should be admitted — although the evidence of these facts is not supported by evil, by matter, or by material sense — because the evidence that God and man coexist is fully sustained by spiritual sense. Man is, and forever has been, God's reflection. God is infinite, therefore ever present, and there is no other power nor presence." (Page 471).

United Church Scene Of Pretty Wedding, Lachute Couple

Ward - Boyd

The marriage of Miss Evelyn Irene Boyd, elder daughter of Mrs. E. Myrtle Boyd, of Lachute, to Mr. Howard Wm. Ward, third son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ward, of Lachute, took place at half past four o'clock on Saturday afternoon in the Lachute United Church. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough, minister of the church, officiated.

Miss Hilda Boyd, sister of the bride, and Miss Mildred Ward, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids, while Miss Vera Scott, cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl.

Mr. Bert Sullivan, of Toronto, cousin of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Air Gunner Geo. Boyd, brother of the bride, and Air Gunner Allan Atwell, both of Lachine, also Messrs. Cyril Ward and Ernest Boyd.

During the signing of the register Mrs. D. H. Gordon, of Montreal, sang "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her eldest brother, Mr. Douglas Boyd, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white lace with tulle veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in floor-length dresses —Miss Boyd in turquoise blue, Miss Ward in yellow sheer and Miss Vera Scott in pink organdy, and all carried nosegays of assorted flowers.

Mrs. Boyd, mother of the bride, wore a gown of navy blue sheer with white hat and white accessories, and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Ward, mother of the groom, was dressed in navy sheer with navy accessories with a corsage of roses.

Following the marriage a reception was held at McArthur's Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ward leaving later by motor for Toronto and other points. For travelling the bride wore a rose dress with powder blue hat and white accessories. On their return they will reside in Lachute.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Montreal and other points.

"PULL TOGETHER", VICTORY REVUE, APPEARS IN MONT'L

Montreal, June 28 — Management and labor, French-speaking and English-speaking, got together this week in the spirit of "Pull Together Canada" when this revue played to enthusiastic audiences here in Montreal.

Many Montrealers formed parts of the cast of this patriotic revue which made its first Montreal appearance this week. The volunteer cast presented the revue under the patronage of His Worship the Mayor and prominent Montreal citizens, which included the Presidents of both the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. and heads of their local Labor Unions.

So great was the demand for further performances of the Revue that the cast stayed to give two special shows — for the Sun Life employees on Wednesday and the employees of Canadian Vickers Aircraft Company last Saturday.

Signed by Alfred Charpentier, President, Confederation des Travailleurs Catholiques du Canada; Paul Fournier, President, Montreal Trades and Labor Council; T. Prezeau, President, Montreal Labor Council; a congratulatory message read: "We have all seen 'Pull Together Canada' and agree that it is an essential piece of work. This war can only be won through industrial co-operation, and the revue has shown us in a simple, practical way how labor and management can get together. When we admit our faults and forget our pride, national unity will be easy to achieve. When we have learned to agree among ourselves, then we can hope to secure lasting peace. We would like to see the revue shown widely in the Province of Quebec and throughout Canada."

This revue shows how to build sound homes—teamwork in industry—a united nation. The opening scene "In the Mayor's Office, Anytown" depicts a woman volunteer war-worker who is anxious to play her full part in the war effort, but who, when asked to work with "Mrs. Homemaker," refuses, and in so doing sends the indicator of a giant "morale detector" to zero. When she learns that morale is "how you live, where you live" and that "we can't have 'V' for Victory until we have 'U' for Unity," she starts right in to pull together with her associates and the indicator of the automatic morale detector rises and finally hits 100 per cent.

A striking scene is "Keeping the Wheels A-Turning" in which Miss Trust (a woman dressed in red) sows seeds of dissension between management and labor. She sets one group against the other, each blaming the other for everything that is wrong. Friction and discard grow, production slows down, and finally the industry collapses. "Jack Canuck" then steps in and shows that the only way to get the wheels a-turning again is to get rid of Miss Trust and get together in the spirit of honesty.

That rubber stamp means we can say Canada's cotton textile industry is 11 times ahead of its war production records of 1914-18.

The industry is delivering about 215,000,000 yards a year of aircraft fabric, ammunition pouches, anti-gas cloth, camouflage netting, gun covers, parachute webbing, powder bags, uniform cloth, web equipment and other essential materials.

Dominion Textile is proud to have a part in this. We also wish to report that our plant employees are earning 28% more per hour than in 1939, and we pay 5.4 times more in taxes than the total paid in dividends to our several thousand shareholders.

HENS WOKE UP MINUS FEATHERS — CHIT-CHAT FROM ENGLAND

By MARGARET BUTCHER

Written Specially for the Midland Free Press Herald and The Lachute Watchman.

Reading, England—This is 'most irregular.' I know it. It is pure talkativeness on my part. But here I am, with time on my hands, thinking of my friends over there: feeling grateful to them for kind thoughts and letters and things which reach me now and then and show me that we ARE friends.

I feel quite embarrassingly useless just now; so, with typewriter balanced somewhat precariously on a bed-table, I mean to fill in some of the time, anyway, by being talkative.

Feeling useless, with All This going on, is not too good. I look askance at my rations (and other titbits, if truth must be told) and wonder if I have any right to snap up all this food. Less and less do I understand those folk who, doing nothing at all, grab all they can. Yes, the truth is that this chill really got me down, though the bright shining of the sun today puts a very different complexion on things. Before long, with any luck, I shall be galloping about on the Allotment, as arranged.

But how truly maddening it all is! Why on earth should anybody go down under silly complaints when there is so much happening in the world? It isn't as if one wants to crock up — or even fears it. No sensible person is 'complaint minded' these days. Yet along comes that nerve-jab, that punch of horrid, personal realism, right in the middle of something else; and with a wince, a howl and some private cussing, one crawls between the blankets. And how kind folk are, to be sure! One expects to hear somebody say: "Now, you get into a hole somewhere and don't bother me. We're all too busy for this civilian nonsense now." But nobody says it, bless them.

Something For Easter

The Gardening Partner has come along with a most practical gift. "I'm putting on something new for Easter," sanys Gran's voice, through the door. "So am I," I answer. "A crutch."

And a crutch it is. What he has made it of goodness alone knows, but it works. And what a difference it has made! It is a hundred steps towards recovery already. Yet all the while I keep wondering what that other ultra-sensitive soul . . . the one who was so disturbed by my noises . . . would have said to the 'thud-thud' of a crutch! It is a profound thought, isn't it?

Yesterday, when everybody else was out, there was a tinkle at the bell. I thudded to the window, threw out the door-key, and in came Cookie. Yes, our own kind Cookie, busy — as usual — bothering herself about other people. You remember the story of Cookie and the Teapot? It was not a cup of tea, this time, but a most excellent bit of fish.

"I hope you won't be offended," says Cookie, coming in with her nice smile and her spotless overall with the cherry-red facings.

Offended? My dear Cookie! Then, from her overall pocket, peeps the smooth (and almost strange) contour of a new-laid egg. Offended! Just the same wonderful woman who, in that awful blitz, thought of nothing but caring for others. The same kindness, even without an emotional spur. I guess that she has always been like that: that her strange courage during that dreadful time was built on a solid foundation of habit. If any proof was needed I've had it.

Bunch of Daffodils

Then there is the barrister's wife with a bunch of daffodils, and the blue-eyed little Scotswoman with a packet of cigarettes and some amusing gossip. The lovely friends who have housed the East End refugees are in and out, too—doing such dull things as paying bills and lugging along the rations, so that I need have no worry. And of course there is 'Gran' herself, with a darling little meal on a tray, and a thousand other little attentions. It causes me the most awful confusion, believe me, for I've a perfect horror of being a public nuisance. But things are on the mend, and soon I pop the crutch in a corner, get up and toddle down into the town . . . job-hunting. The war — at last — has killed mine.

It's a pity, because it was useful enough; but anything to do with paper is suffering now. The shortage grips us more and more tightly. For many weeks now I have worked on all kinds of odd scraps; even the backs of letters and telegrams! But the Powers That Be have decided now that this is the end; so there we are. I wonder what my next activity will be? Somebody, you may be sure, will engage a willing female who is not liable to be 'registered' just yet; so I am not fretting. Anyway, the folk I have been working with are dispersed, and that busy room, out there in the country, is empty again. No more cycling over those hills and valleys.

It was certainly an experience while it lasted, and I was terribly sorry to say "Goodbye" to them, the dears. Just before I went away I sped over for a farewell party and a 'doss' on the couch. How fond one had grown of those kind and pleasant people! We worked so hard and so happily together; and when the mornings were bitter, so that I arrived frozen, there was always a cup of hot tea saved for me. They all lived tea saved for me. They all reprenial at breakfast. Yes, there is something very sad about this unavoidable breaking-up; I mustn't think too much about it. I am rather sneakingly thankful that, if I had to crawl between the blankets for a bit, it has happened just now. At least I am not falling down on a new job. It all dovetails very nicely.

Fowl Play

I have been very amused by a letter from my friend up in the north. If I didn't know it to be a true story I should think she had furbished up a chestnut for me; but many a time have I seen some fantastic old idea repeat itself in real life, so I am not really surprised.

She tells me that the sisters of a farmer, living near her, had some hens which they treasured. The farmer also had some cherry brandy — equally treasured, no doubt, that went bad on him. The brandy, consequently, was thrown out into the hens' bowl — rashly enough! — and no more was thought about it. Later on, when the sisters came home from shopping, they found all the poultry stretched out, looking as dead as poultry can. The women were terribly upset; they just hated the idea of losing every penny on those fowls. With the best will in the world I still think they behaved badly, for how did they know it wasn't 'tainted meat' Well, they weren't bothering about that, evidently, for they both got well down to it, plucked all the birds, stacked them up in the kitchen and went off to tell the local carrier to fetch them that afternoon and take them in to market. On their return from this call they found — to their horror and amazement — a bunch of naked fowls rushing round the kitchen.

'When I saw them yesterday afternoon,' writes my friend, I simply couldn't believe my eyes. Those women had made little flannel jackets for them; some white, some red; and two of them were wearing garments made out of multi-col,red scarves.'

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

By Jessie Allen Brown

Isn't it a treat to hear a clear-thinking man like Donald Gordon speak? Those broadcasts with the Labor and Farm Forums were specially good. It is a fine thing to hear two sides of a question and we get it on those broadcasts. The woman speaker on the farm broadcast spoke as if she had a chip on her shoulder, which lessened the value of her contribution. The fact fact that we, ourselves, consumers all, must watch the prices was well brought out. With such a complicity of things to consider, it is a miracle that the Price Ceiling is working as well as it is, and we may well be thankful that Canada had the courage to initiate it.

PRESERVING ALLOWANCES

The Sugar Administration has very wisely decided to base the sugar allowance for preserving on the weight of the fruit as purchased. Basing the sugar allowance on the weight of prepared fruit would be very confusing. However, they are asking us to count any left-over sugar as a part of our regular ration, and to lessen our purchases accordingly. We are lucky to be able to get the sugar we require for preserving, so let us co-operate by using as little as possible, and by reducing our rationed purchases by the amount remaining from our jam making. Actually we have had to do without so little, let us do without with the best of good-will.

USE TWO TEA-POTS

Experts tell us that the way to get the most out of our tea is to use two tea-pots. Draw the tea five or six minutes as usual, then pour off the liquid into a warmed tea-pot. Then pour freshly boiled water over the leaves again. The second brew will not be quite as strong as the first, but will still be good tea. More and better tea is made in this way, than would be made if the same quantity of water was poured on the leaves all at once, or by adding hot water to the leaves. It is surprising how quickly we can adjust our habits. We are sticking strictly to using half less tea and a quarter less coffee, and although we missed it the first few days, we soon got used to drinking less.

OUR SWEET TOOTH

As a nation we have a sweet tooth. We must cut down our sugar but we should still make deserts and use recipes which require very little sugar or use substitutes. I am going to try to give you as many dessert recipes of this type as I can. Sometimes these are more expensive than the ones we have been using but not always. We are accustomed to using sugar for quick energy and if we do not have a sweet of some sort we will feel let down.

BAKED CUSTARD

3 Eggs, slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup honey, 3 cups scalded milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla, nutmeg.

Combine the eggs, salt, and honey, and add the milk slowly stirring constantly. Add vanilla, sprinkle with nutmeg. Pour into mould, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees. Custard cups will require from 30 to 35 minutes, but a large mould will take from 45 to 50 minutes to bake. If a knife inserted in the centre of the custard comes out clean the custard is baked.

RED CURRANT JELLY

Strip the currants from the stems and put into kettle. Add water until it almost covers the currants. Cook until the currants are very soft. Drain through a jelly bag. Measure the juice, then boil for twenty minutes. Add sugar, using three-quarters of a cup of sugar for every cup of juice, bring to a boil, and cook until it jells, usually about five minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

You can cover the pulp with water again and make a second boiling. It will not be as full of flavor but will still be a good jelly.

TESTS FOR JELLYING POINT

Use a thermometer, bring juice to 218 degrees.

Put a teaspoon on a cold plate and cool quickly, if it can be pushed back with a spoon, it is cooked enough.

Dip a spoon into the juice and if sufficiently cooked the drops will run together and come off in flakes, not in drops.

GRAPENUT ICE-CREAM

¼ lb. (16) marshmallows, 1 cup milk, 1 cup grapenuts, 1 cup cream whipped, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Dissolve marshmallows in milk over slow heat. Cool, add grapenuts, and fold in whipped cream. Freeze. This is simple and good.

Beauty on the Air

A name which represents pleasant memories for concert and radio audiences almost anywhere in Canada belongs to the charming brunette pictured above. She is Frances James, native of New Brunswick, resident of Toronto, and, for the past ten years, a favorite star of the CBC. She is currently featured with other leading Toronto singers and musicians on the weekly musical comedy programme, "Curtain Memories", which is produced from the CBC Toronto studios under the direction of George Stewart. The next programme, with selections from favorite operettes and musical comedy successes of years gone by, will be heard Wednesday, June 24 at 9.30 p.m. EDT.

Tips from Consumer Information Service

Foot Comfort Today Comes Before Style

The old admonition, "use your head to save your feet" takes on new meaning now that walking to save gasoline puts a special obligation on said feet.

Foot comfort, an important factor in general efficiency at any time, lies in comfortable shoes, making care in buying essential.

Decide the type of shoes most suitable for your particular needs, then insist on careful fitting. Never buy by the size of your last shoes. Standard sizes just don't exist, so have your feet carefully measured each time. Shop for shoes when you aren't rushed and keep trying on until you get a really comfortable pair.

Shoes that fit properly should be an inch longer inside than the end of the big toe. The ball of the foot (little toe to great toe joint), should rest on the widest part of the sole. The shank of the shoe should fit snugly under the arch, and the shoe should hug the heel, fitting firmly at the bottom as well as the top.

To keep shoes shapely, always insert shoe trees when they are not being worn.

Fat Conservation Is Vital for Victory

Fat conservation is vital for health and for the United Nation's program for victory.

Fat from canned meats, surplus from roasts, dripping from the roaster, and fats that settle on water in which meats have been boiled or stewed are good sources of fat for cooking.

Cut it all up into small bits and boil in water until thoroughly melted, then strain through several layers of cheesecloth laid in a strainer. When cold there will be a solid cake of good fat with water underneath. Lift it off. Scrape the sediment from the under side, and it can be used for baking. If you want to refine it further, melt a second time in fresh water and repeat the clarifying process.

Fats that have an onion or savoury flavour, as from stuffing or stews, are good for meat pie crusts, gravies, and for frying purposes.

Rabbit Clubs Are Formed in Britain

Schools are being urged by the British Board of Education to form rabbit-keeping clubs. Already many schools are contributing to the nation's food stores by raising rabbits, and it is believed that much more can be done if co-operative clubs are formed which will enable them to buy feeding stuffs and wire netting. So the Board of Education is circulating advice on the feeding and housing of rabbits. Any school which has a garden, or access to hedgegrow waste, could support enough rabbits to produce about 200 pounds of meat a year. Larger schools could of course produce far more.

FEWER CLOTHES FOR THE BRITISH

New clothes rationing books came into operation on June 1 in Great Britain. Instead of sixty-six coupons, men and women now have only fifty-one for the next twelve months.

How much to pay for clothes, and where to buy them, and left to the individual. But once the fifty-one coupons have been used up there is no way of getting additional ones, except for persons who have been blitzed, until a new rationing period.

Just how are people using their clothes coupons? Just what will fifty-one scraps of paper buy?

They will buy for a woman: a winter coat, a winter dress, a pair of shoes, a nightgown, a set of underwear, two pairs of stockings and four small handkerchiefs. If she substitutes a summer dress for the winter one, she can also buy a slip or a corset. And if she lets her old coat do another year, she can buy a skirt, a cardigan and a pair of ankle socks.

The man in the family can buy a suit, an overcoat, a shirt, one pair of wool socks and a tie. If he leaves off the vest of his suit, he can substitute a pair of shoes or an extra pair of non-wool trousers. Or, if he is well fitted out with top clothes and wants to invest all his coupons in underwear, he can buy two suits of winter undervests and drawers, two pairs of pajamas, a bathrobe, a pair of bedroom slippers and a dozen handkerchiefs. Certain coupons cannot be used before October 12.

There are allowances for special cases. In addition to the bombed-out, who are given enough coupons to make a fresh start, workers in certain heavy industries — of such varying categories as shipbuilders, chimney sweeps, quarry-men and chemical workers — get a supplement to the basic ration.

Children's coupons, as well as those for boys and girls of 'teen age, are worked out on a special scale.

A quarter of a million tons of shipping have been saved on textiles alone as a result of the last twelve months of clothes rationing and nearly 400,000 men and women have been released to the fighting forces and to industries directly engaged in war production.

Hens Woke Up Minus Feathers . . .

It has given me a deep distrust of poultry-buying — if ever I should prove as ambitious as that; but I should certainly have liked a peep at that extraordinary football team.

Unequal Struggle

The Gardening Partner, having no assistant at the moment, is waging his unequal struggle alone with the wireworms. In the evening he generally clumps in for a few minutes, all furrowed brow and clods of earth, mainly trying to hide his natural rage with my uselessness. From his enormous pockets he produces a titbit or a smoke, to be sure, but I am certain he is simply furious. And why not? I sit up here feverishly mending coats and other things he produces for my attentions, but what use is that, after all? Until I can walk (nay, hop and skip) I am a log, a mere figurehead of a female. Most irritating to a busy man, I am convinced. Also most irritating to the mere figurehead, I assure you.

And, every day, my radio, here on the table, brings me the news. These Bad Patches . . . Yet, the very fact that it has gone on for so long makes the whole thing quite imponderable. The Allies must be the most maddening foe in the world; so many times (by all accounts) 'dead' — but won't lie down! How can any propaganda explain away such folk and their doings? I should hate the job. I should be afraid of such people, yes, afraid; and there, I suspect, you have the answer to much of the vicious ereulty which is taking place against us. It is the raw and natural reaction to anger and fear. There we are, just going on and on, privately convinced that 'the tide will turn.' It must be utterly infuriating.

And perhaps, through all this, we really are learning from past mistakes. How the Other Side loves to quote those Mistakes of ours! and how illogical he is about them! 'See' — he says — 'you camplain of what I do, but remember the time when you did the same thing to So-and-So.' I cannot decide whether he means it to be apology or justification; if it was so shocking, then is it his excuse for doing it then? No; I shall never fathom the depths or propaganda. Not even if I have to meditate here for another month! But I shal'nt. Very, very soon I shall be hopping around, as sprightly as ever.

Well, I've enjoyed that little talk — and I hope I haven't been a bore!

THIS PLOWGIRL MEANS TO KEEP FEMININE CHARM

Runs a Farm, But Figures Women Should be Just "Lovely" When Boys Come Home

Boston (AP)—Woman need be the less charming because she is working on the farm, in the factory, or in a hard-boiled business world. So thinks Margaret Wilson, author of "The Woman You Want To Be," who runs a farm in Connecticut with one hand, a charm school with the other.

In discussing women and the war, Miss Wilson issues a warning:

"The greatest danger in all this to women is in forgetting why our boys are fighting, why we are taking their places or working alongside of men in industry and farming. We must remember they are fighting for us. We must remember they are to come back and find the lovely ladies they left behind—not mechanized robots. It is up to women to work as hard at staying feminine, keeping their beauty and charm, as they do at filling their jobs.

What Man Likes

"Man dislikes nothing more than a woman without grace and femininity, one who has assumed mannish characteristics in speech and action. The test of a woman in this crisis is to remain completely a woman. Her greatest contribution will be in keeping her femininity."

Miss Wilson is not only talking—she practices what she preaches. While she lives in a comfortable cool, field-stone house on 55 acres in Connecticut, it takes manual labor to make the farm produce what she needs. A big part of that work is done by Miss Wilson herself; yes, the woman who has taught hundreds of thousands the meaning of charm. She plows her gardens with a small tractor, digs and pulls out weeds with hands that are soft and pretty and sprays her fruit trees against insects. This is no easy job — it's hard work and the only help she has is one elderly man.

Oil for Protection

Clad in her work clothes Miss Wilson doesn't forget that her hands, face and hair need more care than ever to keep them lovely. She coats her face, arms and hands with oil, using no make-up except lipstick when she's farming, and wears canvas gloves to protect her hands. She buys them by the dozen pairs.

Emphasizing the importance of "breathing spells," she occasionally stops her work to relax, lying down under a tree to stretch for a few minutes. A "must" on her beauty list is plenty of cool water or fruit juice.

Miss Wilson recommends that every woman should have a knowledge of nutrition. She should study vitamin charts and learn the value of food. It doesn't cost any more to eat for beauty as well as for appetite.

That's how she stays charming down on the farm.

Cut Sewing Machines For Home Use

No more sewing machines for home use will be manfactured while there is acute need for metals for war, the Department of Munitions and Supply has ruled.

When those now in process of manufacture and stocks on hand are disposed of there will be nothing else to do but make those available give the longest service possible. Permits will be granted for making essential repair parts, but extra care may often eliminate this procedure.

Take care of your sewing machine needles. To avoid breaking, see that the presser foot or attachments are securely fastened by the thumb screw. A large needle and thread to correspond should be used on heavy work. Avoid pulling material when stitching to avoid bending the needle and thus rendering it useless. The machine feeds the work without assistance.

If the machine runs hard after standing idle for some time, use a little kerosene in the oiling places, run the machine rapidly, then wipe clean and oil. Keep well oiled at all points indicated in the instructions that come with the machine.

See that the belt has the correct tension. This should be only enough to keep the belt from slipping.

HOUSEWIVES PLAN A PEACE KITCHEN

London (CP)—A group of London housewives have helped design the type of kitchen they would like incorporated when bombed homes are rebuilt. Plenty of cupboard space, safe storage for food and hot water "from the tap," are emphasized in their drawings which were exhibited by the Royal Institute of British Architects.

Money for the Club

Here is a suggestion in answer to the perennial question, "How are we to raise money for the club?" How about showing a film, instead of having a tea?

The National Film Board at Ottawa has films which can be obtained free of charge for the use of women's clubs. Most of the pictures were taken in England and have to do with civil defence and women in war work. They can be obtained by writing to Miss Anne Macdonnell, National Film Board, Ottawa.

CALLING ALL TEACHERS

London (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Chips are going back to school, the London County Council having written all teachers up to the age of 70 asking them to return to classrooms to make up the shortage caused by military service.

A lady complains to an exchange that none of the knitting books tell how to make a parachute jumper.

"I'm not going to blush when my soldier boy comes home!"

"THE WAY I look at it is this. My boy enlisted of his own free will. He's got to do without a lot of things he's been accustomed to. I wouldn't feel right if I couldn't go without something too!"

"The least I can do is to work hard and save. My kitchen, my shopping bag, my work basket are the nearest I can get to his battlefront. But I can buy War Savings Stamps — and lots of them — every week, so that he may have the tools to win. And that's what I'm doing! How about you?"

Buy War Savings Stamps from banks, post offices, telephone offices, department stores, druggists, grocers, tobacconists, book stores and other retail stores.

Wins D.S.O.

Last February, a former Canadian radio announcer became the acknowledged hero of a sea epic. "Ted" Briggs, one of CBC's Royal Visit commentators and more recently a member of the Halifax studio staff had, for the third time, been mentioned for having performed "excellent and invaluable service at sea". This month brought the proud award that "Ted" Briggs' former CBC associates knew he deserved. In the King's Birthday Honors, Acting Lieutenant-Commander W. E. S. Briggs was cited for the D.S.C. Here he is as he appeared on leave just after the rescue of the torpedoed tanker, "Tachee", which won him the Distinguished Service Cross.

Boy Scouts The World Over

As an example in cloth saving, the Boy Scouts of Preston, Ont., are encouraging other boys to go through the summer, like themselves, wearing shorts instead of "longs."

Vice President Henry J. Wallace was one of the United States' first Boy Scout leaders. In the early days of Scouting he adopted its principles for a group of Sunday-School boys in a little Presbyterian church in Iowa.

SOUTHERN ALBERTA SCOUT SEEDS FOR BRITISH SCOUT GARDENS

Nearly 450 pounds of Government-approved vegetable seeds were shipped by Boy Scout troops in southern Alberta, as their part in the Dominion-wide Scout campaign for seeds for British Scout "Dig-for-Victory" gardens.

THE NORWICH SCOUTS AND THE BLITZ

Nearly 400 Boy Scouts were on duty during and following the ferocious Nazi "reprisal" raids on Norwich. Their fearless carrying-on in spite of dive-bombing and fires won unstinted admiration. They ran messages, fought incendiaries, rendered first aid and assisted in countless other ways. After the blitz they distributed special notices to the population, guided people to rest centres, reunited families, for inquiring sailors and soldiers secured information of families in wrecked areas. They salvaged and moved furniture by vans and Scout trekcarts, helped at emergency food centres, and prepared meals over fires in open spaces. They assisted with feeding arrangements for police, firemen and rescue workers from outside points, and guided these helpers to desired points. In addition they looked after hundreds of injured dogs and cats. Incidentally several of the Scout troops lost their meeting places and all their scouting equipment. One Troop lost its out-of-town headquarters, a building of concrete and wood built entirely by the boys over several years. Facing the heap of rubble one of the boys inquired cheerily of his district commissioner, "When do we start rebuilding, Skipper"?"

St. Jerome Terminus Of Mountain Buses

As a result of its co-operation with wartime transportation services, and of the large number of motor coaches withdrawn from general travel routes to provide transport for war workers, troops and others engaged in essential movements, the Provincial Transport Company has re-affirmed its announcement of the earlier season that bus services for public travel between Montreal and the Laurentians will not run this summer any farther north than St. Jerome.

Now that the vacation season is here, a tremendous number of telephone calls from would-be travellers are being received daily at the company's terminal, but R. G. Perry, passenger traffic manager, states that it will be impossible for public motorcoach service to be carried beyond St. Jerome.

5 TONS OF DISCARDS

After the sorting of a collection of books and magazines for soldiers' reading, the Boy Scouts of Windsor found themselves with five tons of old and dilapidated "discards." Sold as paper salvage, a substantial sum was realized and turned into the Scout "Chins Up" fund for war distressed Scouts of Britain.

BELGIAN NAZIS COMPLAIN OF WAR SCOUTS

The Brusseler Zeitung, a pro-Nazi paper, has protested against the continued activities of Belgian Boy Scouts, notwithstanding their disbandment by the German invaders' decrees. The Scout movement, the newspaper declares, "has been a hotbed of pro-Ally sentiment," the boys "persisting in the same foolish faith in the Allies as their parents."

MOSCOW DEFEAT GRIMMEST FILM

Britain Seeing Picture of Nazi Brutality and Military Setback

London (CP)—Some of the grimmest scenes shown on the screen are contained in "The Defeat of the Germans Near Moscow," a 60-minute film now being shown in Britain. It can scarcely be described as entertainment, but critics reported it was a picture everyone should see, a graphic lesson in Nazi brutality, with many thrilling moments."

Fifteen Soviet cameramen helped make this record of Hitler's defeat before Moscow and the film takes its viewers into the very heart of the fighting. At close hand, you see the capture of an inhabited post, the rout of the Germans at the point of the bayonet and the long trail of dejected prisoners.

Most impressive scenes, hardly something for the squeamish, are pictures taken after the battle for Moscow subsided. They reveal all the atrocities perpetrated by the Germans — tortured prisoners, women hanged, children put to death, prisoners blown up or burned alive in locked houses.

GVT. ANNOUNCES SUBSIDY ON BUTTER PRODUCTION

Prices and Trade Board Criticized, Charged Lack of Understanding on Farmers' Problems; War Risks and Compensations Overhauled

By BOB FRANCIS Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 8 (CP) — With Finance Minister Ilsley's gigantic war budget approved and the end of the contentious conscription debate in sight, M.P.'s are beginning to look forward to their holidays before long.

Some observers believe the House should be able to complete its business in two or three weeks, with most guesses putting final adjournment around July 24.

As evidence that parliament is beginning to speed up the legislative pace, the budget debate lasted only three days, with the House sitting nearly an hour later than usual last Thursday to dispose of it. Details of budget resolutions have yet to be discussed in committee. The resolutions cover drastically-increased income taxes and other imposts to raise revenue to meet soaring war costs.

Apart from the budget resolutions the War Risk Insurance Bill and the cleanup on the debate on the bill empowering the government to impose conscription for overseas service by order-in-council, little major business remained to be considered with the exception of civil estimates.

The budget drew from G. K. Fraser (Con. Peterborough West) the comment that Mr. Ilsley reminded him of King Midas, who turned to gold everything he touched. He said the minister's statement that he expected to raise revenue totalling $1,481,000,000 seemed like a fairy tale.

Farmers' Problems

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board was under fire in the House by Tom Reid (Lib. New Westminster) who said the board had no knowledge of farmers' problems. He said Agriculture Minister Gardiner had had a "terrible fight" to get relief for the farmers and added the Prices Board was composed predominately of bankers and industrialists and had no representation of labor or farmers.

Meantime the board announced a six-cent-a-pound subsidy on butterfat. Purpose of the new subsidy, equivalent to five cents a pound on dairy butter is to combat an anticipated shortage of butter during the winter.

The agriculture department long has urged higher prices for farm produce while the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was opposed to raising the retail price of butter because such a move would puncture the price ceiling. The new subsidy will not mean an increase in price to the consumer.

Wheat Agreement

From Washington came an announcement of a new wheat agreement between Canada, the United States, The Argentine and Australia, as wheat-exporting countries, with Great Britain entering into the agreement as a wheat-importer.

Trade Minister MacKinnon said the new agreement under which Canada is allotted 40 per cent of total post-war wheat exports, provided facilities "for action at the proper time to provide a measure of stability to wheat prices in immediate post-war years."

In the House of Commons Fisheries Minister Michaud described an order-in-council providing for compassionate grants of up to a total of $2,400 for a fishing boat and gear lost or damaged by enemy action, subject to certain qualifications.

The order is supplementary to the War Risk Insurance Bill which Finance Minister Ilsley has said is being substantially altered.

Elections were held at meetings of the Protestant and Catholic School Boards, respectively, on Monday morning, to appoint members on the expiration of commissioners' terms. J. W. Gall and E. K. Couple Celebrate 50th Anniversary Of Their Wedding

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE HAY BOTH LIFELONG RESIDENTS OF THIS COMMUNITY

MANY GATHER TO EXPRESS GOOD WISHES

Mr. and Mrs. George Hay, of Lachute, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Saturday, July 4. A reception was held in their honor in the afternoon and evening, at their residence, 12 Brownsburg Road, and many relatives and friends gathered to offer congratulations and good wishes on the occasion.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hay have been lifelong residents of Lachute. George Hay was born 77 years ago at the Hay farm, situated between Brownsburg and Lachute. He is the fourth son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, of Chatham. Mrs. Hay, formerly Miss Annie Clunie, is the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Clunie. She, too, was born at Lachute, 73 years ago on the Steuan farm, and later moved to what is known as the Clunie home, at which place their wedding was solemnized just 50 years ago.

George Hay started in business by shipping horses to Manitoba, and later exported horses from this country to Liverpool, England, and imported Clydesdales, Shires and Hackneys from Great Britain.

Meanwhile Mr. Hay became actively interested in the affairs of this community. He was a member of the Town Council for a period of six years and acted as Mayor for two years. He has been President of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, and has served as a director of that organization for many years.

Mr. Hay is known virtually from coast to coast as an authority on fine horses, and his services have been in great demand in judging at the various shows. These duties have taken him at different times to the Toronto Exhibition, Guelph Winter Fair, Brandon, Saskatoon, Ottawa, Three Rivers, Quebec and Halifax.

George Hay has also been very active in the past as a curler with the Lachute Curling Club. Some years ago he skipped a local rink through to the finals of a Dominion wide contest, for the Lord Elgin trophy — an achievement of no mean merit in the "roarin' game."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hay have been active in church work, Mr. Hay being an elder of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute.

The couple had seven children, four of whom are still living—

RAINSTORM INTERRUPTS LIONS' FIELD DAY EVENTS

1,000 People in Attendance, But Deluge Brings Disappointment as Sports and Entertainment Program Well Under Way

Prize Winners Listed in Sports and Drawings

A widely-advertised event of last Saturday, the field day held by Lachute Lions Club at the exhibition grounds, drew a crowd of around 1,000 persons, but the occasion was marred by unfavorable weather. An electric storm and downpour of rain interrupted the program at three o'clock, after the track events and two heats of the horse-racing had been run off. The rain brought disappointment to the crowd, who were by this time keyed to enjoyment by the attractions carefully planned for their entertainment.

A colorful touch to the occasion was given by arrival of the Brownsburg Boys' Band in their smart uniforms. They headed a parade of Great War veterans and Boy Scouts, with their banners flying, and the column, lining up before the grandstand, was given a rousing reception.

Lion Philip Roy announced the foot and bicycle races, and all events were keenly contested. The sulky-races were called by John A. MacKimmie, and as far as the weather permitted their continuance, the heats were followed with keen local enthusiasm from the crowd, the five entries being all county horses and drivers. Only two heats were run before the deluge flooded the race-track.

On the platform before the grandstand the Brownsburg B.D.C. Revue, a well-co-ordinated troupe, staged one of their dance routines, to the accompaniment of the Brownsburg instrumentalists, but this introductory act was as far as the talented troupers could proceed with their show.

As the rainfall subsided and the crowd had mostly dispersed, the prize-drawings took place before the grandstand. The winners of these, and of the sporting events on the program, appear on page 8.

B'bg Dairies Take Initiative to Cut Sunday Delivery

NO ROUNDS ON SUNDAY, BUSINESS ON STRICTLY CASH BASIS

PLAN APPROVED BY THE QUE. DAIRY COMMISSION

A scheme to be inaugurated by Brownsburg dairy operators commencing August first, may be the first instance of adoption of a plan under consideration as a compulsory wartime measure by the Quebec Dairy Commission.

The three dairies, conducted by Lacasse, Lemay and McAdam, respectively, in the Municipality of Brownsburg, have decided to discontinue Sunday deliveries, and also to do all business on a strictly cash basis. This plan has been fully approved by the Quebec Dairy Commission, and the impression is that the scheme will become general in the province.

Due to shortage and restriction in glass manufactures, another wartime economy is to be practiced by these three dairymen. If a customer requires two quarts of milk, two quart bottles must be placed for collection by the milkman, or the number of bottles corresponding with the order.

Milk required for Sunday use may be obtained in the Saturday afternoon delivery, which will be made after 4 o'clock.

2 Houses Struck By Lightning in Week-end Storms

SUMMER COTTAGE RAZED BY FIRE, OCCUPANTS ESCAPED UNHURT

A summer cottage at Clear Lake, Dunany, was struck by lightning in the early hours of Saturday morning and was burned to the ground. The cottage, the property of Mrs. Danl. Joss, was situated at the west end of the lake. Mrs. Joss and her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Armstrong, had arrived from Montreal Friday evening to stay at the lake. Lightning set fire to the dwelling at the height of a storm around 4 o'clock Saturday morning. The occupants had difficulty in escaping, as the flames spread rapidly. Neighbors hurried to the scene, but nothing could be done to save the cottage or its contents. Meanwhile a motorist, passing by the scene, conveyed the two ladies to the farmhouse of Oscar McDougall, not far distant.

The force of an electric storm which swept this area Saturday afternoon appears to have been centred on the Bethany settlement, where one house was struck, trees were ripped, and lightning was seen striking the rods of farm buildings. The home of Ed. Kettyle was struck by a bolt, which caused minor damage to woodwork and floor-coverings in the front of the house. Mrs. Kettyle was alone in the house at the time, and although severely shaken, she escaped injury.

English Girls in N.S. Aid Compatriots

Last month, a group of young English girls, exiles from their school in Brighton, which is now affiliated with Edgehill School in Windsor, Nova Scotia, presented Edward German's "Merrie England" in aid of the Queen's Canadian Fund.

The play was produced and directed by Miss Briggs and Miss Marshall, teachers from "Roedean," one of England's most famous girls' boarding-schools. The two English mistresses came to Canada in July, 1940, with 46 girls evacuated from Roedean and sent to Edgehill.

The arrangement has proved extremely successful, the youngsters like their new home and the people in it, but they have not forgotten their less fortunate compatriots in the civilians' front line of defence.

Their wish to help the impoverished victims of Nazi bombs in the "homeland" resulted in a charming and nostalgic performance of "Merrie England" in the tree-shaded garden of Edgehill school.

Prov. Law and Fed. Law Conflict In Rental Case

IMPORTANT ISSUE AIRED BY ATTORNEYS FOR LOCAL LANDLORD AND TENANT

The new order, No. 108, of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, which regulates relations between landlord and tenant during the period of war, gave rise to a legal debate heard before Magistrate Donat Lalande here in Lachute recently.

The question under litigation was as follows: If a tenant receives notice to vacate the premises in accordance with Order No. 108, but does not reply to said notice by informing landlord of his intention to continue the lease, and remains in occupancy of the premises beyond the period of notice—will the laws of this province apply for expulsion of the tenant, or will the special federal laws enacted for the wartime emergency govern this case?

At the hearing, Maurice Paquin, attorney for the landlord and plaintiff (James Colford, of Lachute) claimed that a "saisie-gagerie" in expulsion, according to the common law of the province, was the only applicable measure to restore to the latter possession of the rented premises. His main argument was that, according to Order No. 108 of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, if a tenant who receives notice to leave the premises does not answer by notice of renewal, provided for by the said Order, his lease is ipso-facto cancelled and no longer exists. There being no lease, therefore, it was argued the common laws of the province should apply, to expel a tenant occupying premises without permission of the landlord.

The tenant, Robert McGoldrick pleaded through his attorney, Georges H. Heon, that the expulsion according to the law of this province was ill-founded, and that the landlord should have proceeded before the Rent Committee of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He claimed, therefore, that the action should be dismissed.

The case is under deliberation.

Census Shows 6,069 Increase in Occupied Farms

There are now 734,760 occupied farms in Canada, an increase of 6,096 or .08 per cent over the figures for 1931, it was announced in a report Friday night by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Of the new figures, 50,172 are fruit and vegetable farms.

The increase, however, was not apparent in Ontario but was confined to Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, which showed increases of 13.4, 8.3, 3.0 and 2.1 per cent respectively.

The increase in the total number of farms during the decade is more important than the figures indicate, due to the adoption of an improved method of combing the "non-resident" farms. They are farms which lie partly in two enumeration areas and where each part is enumerated as a separate farm. The part on which the operator resides is termed a "resident" farm. In past censuses such parcels of land were enumerated as two farms, thus showing a total above the actual figure. In the 1941 census such farms have been combined with the corresponding resident farm when they are located in the municipality or district.

Minor Sons in Crash, Parents Held Responsible

JUDGE REJECTS PLEA OF PARENTS BASED ON GOOD UPBRINGING

$900 DAMAGES AWARDED IN GRENVILLE MISHAP

In the Superior Court at Terrebonne, Mr. Justice Alfred Duranleau gave judgment in a recent action resulting from an automobile accident, proclaiming parents' legal responsibility for damage caused by their minor children.

Girl Killed in Crash

The case arose out of a collision at the junction of Route 8 and Route 8A at Grenville on November 3, 1940. Two fathers were defendants in the case—Thomas Kerr and Leslie Anderson, farmers, of Vankleek Hill. Kerr allowed his 17-year-old son, Gordon, to drive the family automobile on a pleasure trip to Lachute. Gordon took along with him Charles Anderson, 18, and two girl friends, Sarah Catherine McQuaig, 17, and Gwendolyn Blaney, 18. The youths each had driving licenses issued in Ontario, and during the journey between Vankleek Hill and Lachute they took turns at the wheel. Charles Anderson was driving when, near the international bridge at Grenville, he lost control of the car, which collided with an automobile driven by Polydore Girard, of Ville Lasalle. Girard's car was demolished and he, his wife, two children and a guest passenger were hurt. Sarah Catherine McQuaig, passenger in Kerr's automobile, was killed.

Girard sued the boys' parents, Thomas Kerr and Leslie Anderson, jointly and severally for $1,940.51 damages. Their defence was that, having given their sons good home training and a sound school education, they could not be held legally responsible for the damages caused by the automobile under their sons' control.

Plea Is Dismissed

Mr. Justice Duranleau dismissed the plea and condemned the defendants to pay plaintiff $900.30 and costs of the action. "Parents," said His Lordship, "cannot escape their legal responsibilities by establishing that in the home, at school and in church their minor children have received proper training and a good education, and then pleading the physical impossibility of preventing the damages caused by the said children, if and when it is proved that the parents permitted the children to use the thing which caused the damage. Would not a father who allowed his minor son to go hunting with a firearm assume the responsibility for any accident that might result from the boy's imprudence? Surely in cases like the one before the court a parent's responsibility is engaged when he permits his minor son to obtain a driver's license and habitually to use the family car, unaccompanied by his parent. Defendants vainly attempted to justify themselves by invoking their son's pretended competence to drive an automobile. A youth of 17 or 18 years may be capable of driving a motor-car, and may do so prudently while under his parent's observation, but, left without protection, is he not exposed to the dangers inherent in youth? Defendants did not give them a protection which would render valid the plea that defendants could not prevent the act that caused the damage in this instance."

His Lordship held that the parents in these circumstances could not escape liability for the boys' acts by invoking the clause in Article 1054 of the Civil Code which excludes a parent from legal responsibility if it be established that the latter could not prevent the act which caused the damage.

L. L. Legault, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff.

Pair Arrested After Crash Of Autobus

CHARGED WITH TAKING VEHICLE WITHOUT PERMISSION

On his way back to Montreal from a special trip to Brownsburg Monday night, a Colonial Coach Lines bus driver parked his autobus outside the Lido restaurant, and went inside for a bite to eat. This was at 9.15 p.m. When he came out a few minutes later, the vehicle had disappeared.

After a half-hour search the bus was located—a mile from here in the direction of Lakefield; it was up against a tree in a ditch, wrecked. Tracks on the road indicated it had hurtled about 300 feet in the ditch before stopping. A telephone pole and a dozen fence poles had been snapped by the heavy bus.

Detective A. Caron and Traffic Officer Howard Jones arrested Gaetan Brisson, 22, and Richard Demers, 19, both of Brownsburg. They were charged with having taken the bus without permission. Neither of them was hurt in the crash. The two young men were taken to St. Jerome for arraignment on Tuesday.

Council Divided On Strikers' Use Of Auditorium

REQUESTS FROM UNION PRES. FOR FREE USE OF THE TOWN BUILDING

The regular meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the town hall last evening. Mayor H. Lamarche and Aldermen A. Guenette, S. McFaul, J. Speight, S. Holt, A. Rochon, W. Morrisette, A. Bothwell, L. S. Jacques and O. Laurin were in attendance.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Owing to a strike at the Dominion Shuttle Company Ltd., A. Bonin, president of the Joiners' and Carpenters' Union, appeared before council to request free use of the Auditorium basement during the time of the strike.

Ald. Morrisette moved this request be granted, and Ald. St. Jacques, supported the motion. General discussion ensued in which most of the aldermen aired their views. Ald. McFaul took strong exception, stating that the Government were frowning on all strikes and if the hall was given free it would be encouraging the strikers. Ald Guenette solved the problem by an amendment that the fee be set at $2.00 a day, which was passed in a vote of 5 to 4. Ald. Guenette, Speight, Laurin, McFaul and Holt were in favor, while Ald. St. Jacques, Rochon and Morrisette voted against the amendment; Ald. Bothwell said he opposed both motions.

A breezy visit from J. Jeffrey, of the C.P.R., set the council right on the question of increased taxes. Mr. Jeffrey informed the councillors that, according to a new ruling published in the Official Gazette, the town was prohibited from further increase of levies beyond those of 1941.

On motion of Ald. Morrisette, seconded by Ald. St. Jacques, the council decided to purchase the additional land on Berry Street from the C.P.R., for the sum of $100, and it is understood that the railway company will remove the poles at their own expense, the width of the street to be as agreed on in previous correspondence between the town and the C.P.R.

Peace is a matter of people and how they live rather than of pacts and how they are written.

Only One Change In Council Seats 3 Municipalities

REPORTS FROM JERUSALEM, GORE AND WENTWORTH TOWNSHIPS

As two-year council terms expired this week, reports of the elections given by the secretaries of three district municipalities—St. Jerusalem, Gore and Wentworth—show only one change in the personnel as result of nominations held yesterday.

In the Parish of St. Jerusalem Councillor Peter Gordon was re-elected to Seat No. 2, Felix Touchette was re-elected to Seat No. 3, and W. H. Warwick replaced E. W. Smith in Seat No. 4—Councillor Smith declining re-nomination on the completion of his term. Secretary of the municipality is J. W. Gall.

In the Township of Gore the secretary, Geo. Peet, reports similar acclamations for the return of three councillors—Austin Kyle in Seat No. 1, John Good in Seat No. 3 and Geo. L. Rogers in Seat No. 5.

Three re-elections were recorded as vacancies occurred also in the Township of Wentworth. Pierre Tassé, Laurel, was returned to Seat No. 3, Wilfred Morrison, Dunany, to Seat No. 4 and Norman Boyd, Dunany, to Seat No. 6. Edward M. Jones is secretary of this municipality.

V.C'S SCOUT TRAINING WAS USEFUL

An Anzac V.C., Sgt. A. C. Hulme, who won the decoration in Crete, had this to say of Boy Scout training: "It was while in the Scouts that I had my initiation in the arts of stalking and fending for oneself, and strangely enough when on ticklish jobs in Crete my thoughts would often go back to the Saturday afternoon stunts when in the Scouts as a boy. I often wished I had learned more about reading trail signs."

CALL TOWN FOLK FOR OWN SAKES TO AID HARVEST

Ontario Promises Big Crop; Farm Department Leader Asks Help in Harvest

Written for The Canadian Press By BILL ARMSTRONG

Toronto, July 7 (CP) — Labor shortage, not weather conditions, is now the greatest worry of Old Man Ontario in the war-essential agriculture industries of the province.

"We need every bit of labor we can find—from cities, towns, villages, military camps or anywhere —in order to harvest present and coming crops," said W. R. Reek, deputy minister of agriculture. Mr. Reek pointed out the average age of the man on the farm in Ontario today was nearly 50 years.

This shows that many of the younger farmers and farm-hands have gone into the war services and some of the older men have come out of retirement to do their bit on the farms. Willing as the veterans may be they cannot be expected to cover as much work of the summer's day on the farm as they used to.

"This year the yields of hay, wheat, oats and barley promises to be the largest for many years," Mr. Reek pointed out, "and it will be to the townsman's definite advantage to see that this crop is harvested: the farmers can always get along somehow, but the city man needs the food."

Not only does the fate of the 1942 harvest hang in the balance but also next year's production. Unless the present crop is harvested satisfactorily, the acreage of fall wheat and the spring grains of 1943 will be cut down due to insufficient plowing.

More than 8,000 high school students have been organized into "Farm Commandos" by the provincial farm service force to aid in taking in the crops. But they are not enough: at least 2,000 more hands are needed. Local organizations such as boards of trade and service clubs with the assistance of their agricultural representatives are organizing help in their communities.

Weeds Invasion

Meanwhile, the same rains which made possible the great crops have threatened to turn pastures, the farmer's cheapest source of feed, into a liability. King Devil and Orange Hawkweed are spreading rapidly, and will jeopardize future crops unless proper cultivation and seeding with a permanent pasture mixture provides a turf dense enough to smother the invader.

Excellence of pasturage throughout Ontario has been reflected in an increased milk flow and greater cheese production. Livestock are in good condition, generally due to making good gains on the pastures. Beef cattle are scarce and farmers are finding difficulty in obtaining grazers. However they are tending to increase the numbers of hogs, dairy cows, sheep and lambs, and hens and chickens. Authorities expect a sharp increase in the latter two categories.

In some counties about five per cent of the usual grain acreage will not be seeded owing to spring floods but elsewhere the crops range from average to above average. In order that growth may maintain the progress which has been shown recently, more rains are needed to prevent the land from baking in the hot sun.

In the more southerly counties along Lake Erie, the fall wheat is beginning to turn already and harvesting will be under way by July 18, and throughout the remainder of the province about a week earlier than usual. Because of the rains, the average grain stalk is about a foot longer than usual.

Ontario fruit trees displayed the best bloom for many years, but in some cases the prolonged rains and late frost affected the set and prevented spraying. Nonetheless, the late-blossoming fruits such as sour cherries, raspberries and grapes show great promise. Apples, Japanese plums and prunes will undoubtedly be light and peaches will be variable, but on the average fairly good.

British "Stirling" long-range bombers, capable of carrying an eight-ton bomb load, have already struck hard at Germany's industrial centres, and with other types of heavy British bombers, will strike even harder in the future. TALK "BOYS TOWN" IN NORTH ALBERTA

Funds Voted for Start of Plan to Keep Youth on Right Track

Edmonton, July 6 (CP)—Preliminary plans are being made for what is hoped will eventually be a "boys' town" project at St. Paul, Alta., 60 miles northeast of Edmonton,—a scheme calculated to prevent juvenile delinquency and give youths manual and technical training.

Growing out of efforts to provide a dormitory for boys of the St. Paul district attending high school in that town, discussion began about the possibilities of establishing extensive recreational and educational facilities for the youths.

Most Rev. J. H. MacDonald, Roman Catholic archbishop of Edmonton who is the leading figure in the project, said development will go slowly and future steps taken will depend upon the problems arising. The Knights of Columbus in Alberta voted $2,000 from provincial funds to assist the plan and will recommend to the organization's supreme council in the United States that it donate $5,000.

It is stessed that the project will not be along the lines of "boys' towns" in the United States provided for delinquents but more of a plan to prevent delinquency.

Heat and Sun Cause Summer Complaints

Care against trying to get a summer's suntan during a weekend is advised at this season of the year. July and August are the months when employees go looking for a suntan they hope will make them as brown as a Zulu, only to discover that the sun has burnt them so severely that an uncomfortable feeling, and even sickness, is all they have earned for their pains.

Sunstroke and heat exhaustion are two prevalent summer complaints. The way to prevent sunstroke is to wear proper clothing so that the head and neck are protected. The symptoms are flushed face, hot, dry skin, full, strong pulse, intense headache, unconsciousness, high fever. The ordinary treatment says to remove patient to a cool, shady spot, loosen clothing, lay patient on back, apply cold on face, neck, chest, armpits, keep patient quiet, and when conscious serve cool drinks, but no stimulants.

Heat exhaustion can be told from a cold skin, profuse sweating, pale or purplish face, cramps, dizziness, sickly feeling, pulse weak, sighs when breathing, partial or complete collapse. The thing to do is to remove patient to a cool place, loosen clothing, lay flat on back with head low, keep patient covered and warm; when conscious, give patient hot coffee or tea, but never water.

TRIM NEW SHIPS SWELL CONVOYS ON EAST COAST

Ravages of War Cannot Stop Merchant Ships In and Out of Canadian Ports

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An East Coast Canadian Port, July 6 (CP)—Harbingers of victory are the huge caravans of merchant ships that run regularly into this port.

Despite the ravages of more than two years of war, the convoys still steam in — long, pitching lines of vessels eagerly pointed toward the sanctuary of the harbor gates. In appearance they have changed radically through the months and despite all the U-boats can do they increase in size as the conflict goes on.

Once these merchant ships looked weary, dun colored and streaked with rust, soot and labor. They were unwashed and caked with salt smears, but that was before the United Nations really got their ship-building program working.

Now the convoys are made up of ships that look like prosperous burghers, natty in their grey coats. Their fat, smooth-plated bellies sag like well-filled market baskets with the loads they carry to keep the allied nations fed and fighting.

Well Designed

These additions to the merchant fleet are well designed, well equipped ships despite the speed with which they were turned out. Trim clipper bows and cruiser sterns and deep ample bodies characterize them.

Any day they may be seen entering this harbor, materializing out of the haze blurring the horizon and slowly, proudly shouldering through the Atlantic swell to their berths. With propellers barely kicking, they resemble sturdy working men enjoying a slow walk home, secure in the knowledge of a job well done.

Flags of all nations fly from their masts and men of all nations live in their forecastles, handle their gear and keep their engines turning.

Protecting these motley crews and their ships are warcraft from Britain, Canada and the United States. Lean, proud-looking destroyers, smart in camouflage and bristling with guns, dart importantly in and about the vessels, ignoring this one, signalling that one, but continually on the alert, even this close to home.

With them are the boisterous corvettes, tumbling over the waves in their eagerness to help. Pitching more wildly than the highest-riding merchant ships, they twist and turn and swoop as they bustle about their duties.

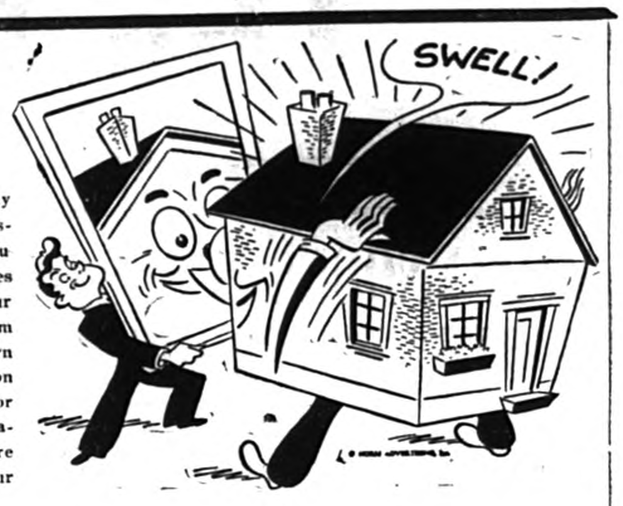

With the convoys are the flying boats of the Royal Canadian Air Force, continuously on the job. As they ease through the submarine net, the ships seem to take on new life. Safety acts like a tonic, and immediately their engines beat out a stronger, more jubilant tune as they glide to their moorings and a few days rest.

If Victory Can Be Bought

There will be no doubt as to the response of every Canadian to the staggering new budget that the Minister of Finance has just brought down. Everyone will cheerfully meet the sacrifices that will be demanded and pull in their belts to raise a sum that exceeds that of the average pre-war British budget. If victory can be bought, surely Canada will have it.

But can victory be bought by money alone? In this war where ideas rank equally with the force of arms, we will need more than dollars to win. We will need as well the superforce of an unconquerable spirit. This is the added plus which it is the job of everyone to produce. Dollars can't buy this spirit. Parliament can't vote it. It is our task to build it. We need citizens with an enduring and united will to win. We need sound, happy homes that give men something to work and fight for. We need the kind of teamwork in industry that will make our war machine run at full speed.

This spiritual investment must be as great and as much a part of our war effort as all the material investments that we are making. How can we go about it? Well, there are three very simple steps—change, unite and fight. Change—from old moulds and prejudices, accept new standards of perfection and teamwork. Unite — you cannot have a united effort in the country if some have private wars at home! Fight — to produce sound homes, teamwork in industry and a united nation.

This kind of spiritual investment will hasten victory and build the foundations for total victory.

The Cost of Living

In plain terms one of our recent exchanges voices a comment on the paradox of price control with indisputably rising prices. This situation is generally felt among consumers, but little in the way of tangible expression has been given to the complaint . . . The announced increase in the cost-of-living index this week, to 116 and seven-tenths, somewhat appeases the sentiments expressed in the following article, from the Three Rivers Chronicle, but there is still much room for adjustment to the satisfaction of the average consumer and wage earner. The Chronicle stated, in an issue of last month:

We have it on official authority that the cost of living in Canada is being held at levels practically identical with those which prevailed in September of last year. As a result of this, the compensating bonuses are not being made mandatory, wages having been frozen rigidly for almost a year.

Yet the reports we hear on every side from housewives and others make us think of the old story about the prize-fighter who went into the ring and got on the receiving end of a lot of leather in the first round. Back in his corner, his manager patted him enthusiastically on the back. "That big stiff never laid a glove on yer," he told his protégé. This kept up for several rounds, with the pugilist getting more and more battered. "Never laid a glove on yer," reassured the manager. But the fighter could stand no more. "Naw?" he sneered, "then, watch that referee in there for somebody's been whalin' the tar out of me!"

In much the same way, and despite the official reassurance of the cost-of-living officials, Canadian consumers are finding the purchasing power of their spending dollars steadily diminishing.

The "Financial Post" recently suggested that Canada's much-vaunted cost-of-living index is a flop; that it isn't telling the truth when it purports to show that living costs are no higher now than they were six months ago.

The same paper queries whether storekeepers who report prices each month to the cost-of-living authorities in Ottawa are really reporting all price changes, fearing a fine or imprisonment for violation of the ceiling. In the second place, deterioration in quality in certain lines of merchandise, without change in price really means an increase in real living costs. Thirdly, the "bargain basement" is becoming almost entirely depleted, thereby causing consumers to pay considerably more for similar merchandise than they did during the "base" period.

Whatever may be the reason, one would have a hard time trying to convince the average housewife that the cost-of-living is the same as it was last September. Meat is one frequently cited commodity, though it is very hard to establish there has been a definite price-increase, since the butcher has a ready argument to explain that the joint for which he is now asking forty per cent more that he did last September is really a superior cut.

In the meantime the consumer is taking it on the chin, and trying to make his pegged salary or wages stretch a little further, through reduction of his own standard of living. Admittedly, an attempt to control commodity prices is far better than letting the country drift into rocketting inflation, but it is very obvious that the present system is far from perfect. Especially do the cost-of-living indexes seem to require a thorough overhaul or a new method of compilation.

Ottawa Fair A War Casualty

Directors of the Central Canada Exhibition Association all along have taken the position that during the war the military authorities had first call on Landsdowne Park—states an editorial in the Ottawa Farm Journal. Last year it was possible to hold the annual fair in tents without inconvenience to training activities, and the public enjoyed the somewhat informal atmosphere of the enterprise. This year plans were far advanced for another tented exhibition, but they now have been cancelled at the request of the Department of National Defence. The Department finds that the Army Basic Training Centre at Landsdowne Park would have to be moved to another base, that a month or more of training would be lost, and nobody has the least criticism of the decision that the Ottawa Fair, like that of Toronto, must be suspended.

For many years the Central Canada Exhibition Association has served well the large area from which it has drawn exhibitors and patronage. It has done much to encourage the agricultural industry, and many a young farmer has found inspiration and aid. For the people of Ottawa the fair has been an annual event keenly awaited and greatly enjoyed, mainly for its entertainment value perhaps but nevertheless possessed of a distinctively educative value.

For this year, and probably for the duration of the war, the fair is suspended. But the experience and knowledge which have gone into it will not be lost, and presently the Central Canada Exhibition will resume, to go on to bigger and better things. Meanwhile it is doing its bit towards the winning of the war.

"Men at Work"

One of the unsung heroes of this year is the fellow who takes a job on the midnight shift and tries to get his sleep in daytime. Unsung but not undecorated. The city of Hartford, Connecticut, full of aircraft workers, has invented a decoration for him — or for his house, which may be better.

The insignia is a flag with the city seal in blue on a white field with the words "war worker" below in red. When hung out a window in the morning the flag may be interpreted "Please go 'way and let me sleep", or "Man at work"—sawing wood in order the more efficiently to saw up stainless steel or aluminum alloy during eight or ten hours of the next night.

A Worthwhile Ideal

We have long held a sincere respect for Premier Adelard Godbout of the Province of Quebec, who, in spite of the handicaps that have been put in his way, has consistently worked for a greater measure of unity between English and French races in Canada. The following paragraph from a recent address by that gentleman expresses a sentiment that applies anywhere in Canada:

"If I could only instil in the people of the Province of Quebec a true spirit of Canadianism, to make them think in terms of Canada instead of just their own province, I would be satisfied with what I had accomplished during the few years I had been in public office. The day all Canadians get together and think along these terms, that will be the day we will begin to make progress."

The Proper Sequence

First came policemen and the firemen's band. After those, the soldiery. Because the British Broadcasting Company pointed out, "we always put the civil authority before the military in Britain."

That is why we British people feel that with all our faults we are truly democratic. The people rule through their ballots. Often they make errors, sometimes serious. But always they retain the power, again through their ballots, to correct their errors.

The Army and the Navy are the creatures of a civil authority which is responsive to the people. Whenever there is any substantial armed force, it consists largely of civilians, temporarily doing patriotic duty, and not of professional militarists.

Two boys were teaching a friend to ride a bicycle. After helping him on to the saddle they pushed him off downhill. As he did not return they went in search of him. Meeting an old lady, they asked her if she seen a boy on a bicycle.

"No," was the reply, "I've not seen anyone except a boy sitting in a ditch mending umbrellas."

For Mr. Chaloult . . .

(Barrie Examiner)

Mr. Rene Chaloult, the French Canadian gentleman who is weeping about the conscription of his people for overseas service and the fact that it might bring French Canadians in combat against Frenchmen, should read the appeal recently sent out of France. "Our country is still at war," it said. "The representative of the people of France—De Gaulle—fights with the allies. A great imprisoned force is behind him in France." Mr. Chaloult, as far as we can find out, has never raised his voice in condemnation of the shooting of hostages by the Nazis.

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By H. H. GORDON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

RUSSIANS BEGAN AN OFFENSIVE THAT SURPRISED LEADERS OF THE CENTRAL POWERS

Patched-up Russian armies launched their last offensive 25 years ago in the First Great War. For a week or so they fought with amazing success over battle-torn Galicia, but faltered when Austro-German reinforcements were thrown against them and in less than a month were driven back, surrendering all the territory gained in the 1916 campaign.

The attempt to capture Lemberg, capital of Galicia, caught military leaders of the Central Powers napping. Following the first phase of the Russian revolution in the spring of 1917 they had virtually suspended hostilities on the Eastern Front, believing that the Czarist armies would disintegrate under the influence of political propaganda from Petrograd.

Their hopes proved deceptive. The Russian coalition government, formed soon after the abdication of Czar Nicholas II, sparked by War Minister A. F. Kerensky and Gen. Alexei Brussilov, revived a spirit of loyalty among the troops at the front. The Entente Allies had done their part and quantities of munitions and war supplies had been sent to Russia.

Brussilov, Russia's ablest general, worked out plans for the Galician offensive. The attack began July 1 and within a few days 18,000 prisoners had been captured from the surprised Austro-German armies.

Key Points Captured

Fighting under command of Gen. L. G. Kornilov, the Russian 8th Army met with the greatest success. By July 11 the important towns of Halicz and Kalisch were taken in spite of the fact that the attacking force had been literally thrown together for the assault. Another Russian force made gains near Brzezany and Koniuchy, but its success was not so spectacular.

Then came the turning point. Austro-German reinforcements were rushed to the front and stemmed the advance with vigorous counter-attacks. The military staff was handicapped severely by bad communication and lack of discipline in the ranks.

On July 16 Kornilov was obliged to evacuate Kalisch and matters were further complicated when disorders broke out in Petrograd. Kerensky, who had been with the advancing Russians, returned to the capital to deal with the disturbances.

When the Austro-German counter-offensive was at its height one Russian regiment deserted and soon the army was in full retreat. Tarnopol was recaptured by the Austrians on July 23 and gains made by the Russians in almost two years of fighting wiped out completely.

During the remainder of the summer and in the fall months German and Austrian forces pressed the Russians back all along the Eastern Front. A few attempts were made to reorganize the army but the Bolshevist revolution in November put an end to these efforts and paved the way for cessation of hostilities Dec. 2 and the singing of the treaty of Brest-Litovsk in March 1918.

DEMOCRACY AND TOTALITARIANISM

Principal C. L. Hall Is Speaker at Sunday Evening "Fireside"

Despite the criticism levelled at democracy, the irrefutable advantages of this form of Government towered over what the peoples of the totalitarian states have to endure — C. L. Hall, principal of Lachute High School, told the Fireside Club of industrial employees at Brownsburg last week. Head of the Lachute School for the past 12 years, he is now leaving for another post on which he has not yet decided.

His talk consisted in surveying the forms of government in democratic countries. The survival of their customs and way of life depended on the outcome of the war. The aim of the Axis powers is to introduce to democracies a form of government that would deprive citizens of the rights and privileges they now enjoy.

He cited the advantages of democracy as the writing of letters, listening to the radio and being able to comment on the conduct of the war; newspapers and the freedom of the press; the right to worship, and local loyalities such as provincial and county observances.

Free correspondence among people in totalitarian states at present was prohibited, he declared. People in Canada who had short wave radio sets could listen to German broadcasts even in the presence of the Government's legal agents, such as the R.C.M.P.; we are allowed to discuss phases of the war, and then there were the newspapers which keep us posted with true accounts of what is happening. Provision was made for a certain latitude in war-time, he agreed, but this was merely not to give information that would comfort the enemy. Through the ballot the people of a democratic country pronounce itself on the conduct of the war. Then there were such things as local loyalities, for instance a holiday in Quebec that was not observed in Ontario, and vice versa.

These advantages are worth safeguarding, he claimed. They are now imperilled, but the democracies offered advantages that cannot be found in totalitarian states where regimentation and censorship are the mainstems of government rule. He described the practice that totalitarian countries adopted in fusing the people into new groups to deprive them of their rights. They redistributed the boundaries of a country into what are known as "gauen", and those are headed by a "gauleiter". This is the district leader, the "gestapo" agent.

"If you want anything, just groan!"

INVENTIONS GO MORE PRACTICAL

London (CP) — Patents Officers say the war has reduced the number of inventions submitted for patents, mainly because most applications came from countries now over-run by Germany. Meantime, authorities said, pure, inspirational inventon has given place to matter-of-fact, fractional development, mostly carried out by teams of scientists working in government or university laboratories on war schemes.

Though Britain entered the war with one-third of the shipyard capacity it had in 1918, larger tonnage of naval and merchant ships has been built than in the first three years of the First Great War.

Every time a voluntary system fails it's as much a defeat for democracy as the fall of France, Hong Kong, Bataan or Singapore.

. . . Nor will the end of the war necessarily mean any great easing of the taxation burden, for, unfortunately, Canadians are "paying as they go" only about 50 per cent of the cost of the war and government.

STORIED SPOTS FROM SEA TO SEA

By W. J. Banks, B.A.

St. John's Gate, Quebec City

The heavy traffic of St. John Street, Quebec's great shopping thoroughfare, passes through massive St. John's Gate. A modern structure designed in keeping with its storied past, it occupies the site of one of the portals of the original French fortifications. These dated from the seventeenth century and the first St. John's Gate saw many epochal events in the history of New France. Here some of the survivors of Montcalm's gallant but defeated army reentered the city after the battle on the Plains of Abraham, though the dying commander himself passed through the St. Louis Gate, a few blocks to the south.

On the momentous New Year's eve of 1775-76, when the continent's strongest city was undergoing siege, the Americans planned to create a diversion near the St. John's Gate while the main attack developed elsewhere. But the detachments assigned to the burning of the gate encountered deep snow and other obstacles which prevented the fulfilment of their purpose.

As the Upper Town grew the St. John's Gate, which led out to the Ste. Foye road on the heights or to the Beaufort ferry down the steep Cote d'Abraham, became increasingly busy. In 1791 the British, who spent tens of millions of dollars on Quebec's defences long after the city's historic sieges were past, tore down and replaced the rickety old gate. The second gate, too narrow to handle modern traffic, again gave way in 1865 to a graceful, four-arched structure costing the city $40,000. And our own century has seen the gate changed further to accommodate tramcars and automobiles.

Local Campsites Popular With Montreal Boys' Brigade Groups

BROWNSBURG CAMP NOW CONCLUDED, OTHER UNIT TO VISIT ST. ANDREWS

OFFICERS GIVE INSIGHT INTO BOYS' TRAINING

The Boys' Brigade 5th and 7th Companies of Montreal have terminated their 10-day period at Brownsburg, and another unit of the Brigade, the 1st Montreal-Westmount Company, is due in these parts Saturday to encamp for two weeks at Riverview Farm, St. Andrews, the property of Albert Dorion.

Through Capt. A. Lough and Lieut. Geo. Booth—in charge of the Brownsburg camp—an insight was given into the ideals and activities of their organization. The Boys' Brigade is a church enterprise combining religious culture and physical development in its training. The bible class may be regarded as the spiritual centre of the Brigade organization, and the uniform of its members typifies its ideals—the field service cap a symbol of the "helmet of salvation"; the white haversack representing the "shield of faith"; the brown leather belt corresponding to the "girdle of righteousness". The Bible is a part of these boys' equipment as essential as their uniforms; it is regarded as their "sword of the Spirit".

Capt. Lough and Lieut. Booth, in an interview with The Watchman, expressed keen appreciation for the aid extended by Brownsburg friends toward the success of this camp. They made special mention of F. Vowles, on whose grounds they pitched their tents; to E. McOuat, a neighbor who gave the use of an ideal swimming pool at the site of a power dam on his property; and to the Boy Scouts, for the use of their clubhouse. The officers felt their visit had considerably stimulated local interest in boys' work.

The program of the boys' vacation included a field day on Saturday and a baseball engagement with the Brownsburg Boy Scouts; church parade on Sunday morning, June 28, in company with the Boy Scouts and Cubs, to Brownsburg United Church, and also divine service on Sunday, July 5, and an open air service on the camping grounds the same evening . . . There were 19 boys and their two officers attending this camp.

Montreal-Westmount Unit To Visit St. Andrews East

The 1st Montreal-Westmount Company will set out for their camp-vacation at St. Andrews East on Saturday morning, most of the boys travelling by bicycle. The camp is located at Riverview, on the North River, a little west of the town. It is expected some 20 boys will attend for the full period, to occupy three tents under the following N.C.O.'s—Sgt. Edwin Goring and Cpl. Robert Burriss; Cpl. James Wright and Lance-Cpl. Geof Camp; Lance-Cpls. Robert Eastwood and Alan Keith.

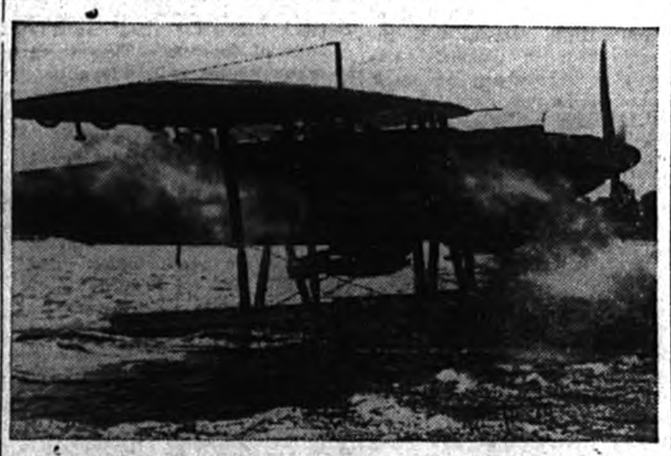

Captain J. Howard Richardson will be Camp Commander, with Lieut. Alex Upham as Second in Command. Staff-Sergeant Robert Morrow will act as Adjutant.

A full program has been drawn up, including trips of interest, many of which will be cycle trips. Boating, swimming, athletics as well as model-building are all a part of the daily schedule and with the traditional evening camp-fire and vespers, will give the campers all the diversions to be desired. Indian Council Ring will form a part of the evening camp-fire. The boys will parade to Sunday church services led by their bugle and drum band. In the afternoon, parents and visitors will be welcomed, and also for the evening drum-head services.

The new Jubilee crests will be introduced in time for camp as well as a light-weight shirt for parade uniform. These have been much needed, especially during the summer months, and will be received with welcome by the boys.

As the Brigade prepares to celebrate its Diamond Jubilee, camps throughout Canada will feature Jubilee Night. This is a night devoted to portraying features from 1883 down to the present year. The Jubilee song, now the favorite theme of all B.B.' boys, will find a warm spot at all sing-songs.

ROYAL YUGOSLAV SEAPLANE SQUADRON OPERATING IN THE MIDDLE EAST

Yugoslav pilots, ground staff and maintenance personnel who escaped from their country when further air resistance to the German invaders became useless, later formed a new Seaplane Squadron. The Squadron, now serving with the Allied forces in the Middle East, carries out a daily patrol over the Mediterranean. The youngest member is a 14-year old apprentice. Picture shows a Royal Yugoslav Seaplane Squadron aircraft setting off on patrol.

"Only Under the British Empire Could Such Nonsense Exist"

(Montreal Standard)

The attitude of French-speaking Canadians to compulsory service overseas is discussed in a recent editorial in the Tucson, Arizona Star. Here is an extract.

"The American people have an interest in this matter (compulsory overseas service in Canada), because Canada, America and Britain are now partners in this great war. There are millions of American people who cannot understand why they should be compelled to furnish their husbands and sons for overseas duty when their northern neighbor, Canada, does not. Ultimately when the full truth of the disparity of Quebec's contribution becomes known, millions of American people are going to be righteously incensed. The spectacle of America and Anglo-Saxon Canada doing most of the fighting while the French-Canada dictates her own contribution and then expects her special minority rights protected, will not make sense to the American people. Only under the British Empire could such nonsense exist.

"It is time now for those who claim minority rights to realize that such rights imply duties. If Quebec expects to maintain the respect of the American people she will have to do her equal part of the fighting instead of offering shallow excuses and wailing like a spoiled child. If the Canadian Government expects to enjoy the respect of the American people, it will have to impose conscription on a par with the United States. The Canadian Government has a record of so scrupulously respecting minority rights, of coddling a pampered child so long, that failure to impose equal conscription will appear more and more as an effort on its part to place its own personal political welfare ahead of that of victory and have American people assume burdens which it should assume without further fear."

The Late Mrs. C. R. Amy

Avoca—The sudden passing of Mrs. C. R. Amy, formerly Jane Viola Kelly, on Friday morning came as a great shock to this whole community, where she had been born.

Mrs. Amy was 32 years of age. Her death occurred in Avoca, where she had gone to spend a day; she had been visiting for some time in Lachute with her sister, Mrs. Gordon Brown.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from her sister's home in Lachute, to Avoca United Church. The service was conducted by the Rev. S. J. Pike, of Brownsburg, and the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, of Lachute.

She leaves to mourn her loss a loving husband, C. R. Amy, of Montreal, two sisters, Mrs. F. W. Kelly (Susan) of Hawkesbury, Ont., and Mrs. Gordon Brown (Ethel) of Lachute; also nieces and nephews and a host of friends.

Many floral tributes bore evidence of the esteem in which she was held. Interment was made in the family plot at Avoca Cemetery.

CONSCRIPTION BILL PASSES SECOND READING, 158-54

Ottawa, July 8 (CP)—The conscription debate in the House of Commons passed a historic milestone Tuesday when members approved second reading of the government bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act by a vote of 158-54.

The vote on the conscription-enabling measure ended four weeks of almost continuous debate and followed shortly after Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared that overseas conscription is imposed, members would be given an apportunity of showing confidence or want of confidence in the administration.

Crowded galleries saw 46 Quebec Liberals, two Quebec Independents and six members of the C.C.F. party unite in opposition to the bill, while the Conservative and New Democracy groups voted with the government.

The bill will receive third reading after consideration in committee.

Air Minister Power disclosed Tuesday that Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons as well as Canadian Army units have been stationed in Alaska. A statement released by the minister said United States commanders had given the Canadians a most important role in the operations and that they were "doing everything in their power to make the Canadian squadrons comfortable."

Boys' Brigade and Boy Scouts Attend Services On Dominion Sunday

Brownsburg—The Boys' Brigade with their officers, Captains Lough, Booth and Smyth, joined by the local troop of Boy Scouts and Cubs, paraded again to the United Church on Sunday morning. It being Dominion Sunday, this seemed particularly appropriate to the occasion.

Scoutmaster Rooney, who accompanied his troop, placed the flag in front of the church near the rostrum, to give, as it were, commanding evidence that the Nation and the Church could unite wholeheartedly on this the 75th Anniversary of Confederation.

The Minister, Rev. S. J. Pike, conducted the services, assisted by Mr. John Parkes, of Montreal, who had a special message for the boys. Mr. Parkes also, with his little son, Buddy, rendered a suitable vocal number, accompanying on the harp. Capt. Booth also gave a trombone solo. At the close the salute to the flag was given, with the singing of the national anthem.

An open air service was held in the evening at the boys' camp, where upwards of a hundred attended. Conditions were favorable and the service was greatly enjoyed by all present. Several musical numbers were rendered, including an item by the choir and the Brigade hymn, "Will Your Anchor Hold?" by the boys themselves. Mr. Parkes brought a very stirring message, as well as a contribution in song in which his young son again joined. The old gospel hymns from the large suspended sheets were sung heartily accompanied by Mr. Parkes on the harp.

Before the service closed the Rev. S. J. Pike called on Capt. Lough and Smyth for a brief word.

Next Sunday morning the quarterly communion service will be held at 11 o'clock. The evening service will be held at the old mill and home of Mr. and Mrs. John Graham. It is hoped weather conditions will again be favorable, for this gathering in the open air.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 12.

The Golden Text is from I Corinthians 11: 28. "Let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." (Matthew 26: 41).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When the human element in him struggled with the divine, our great Teacher said: "Not my will, but Thine, be done!"—that is, Let not the flesh, but the Spirit, be represented in me. This is the new understanding of spiritual Love. It gives all for Christ, or Truth. It blesses its enemies, heals the sick, casts out error, raises the dead from trespasses and sins, and preaches the gospel to the poor, the meek in heart." (Page 33).

CONTINUED SAVINGS ARE ESSENTIAL FOR VICTORY

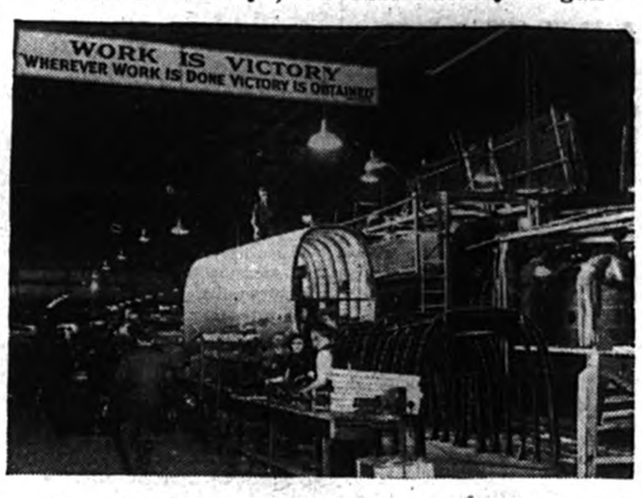

At the present time, a nation wide appeal is being directed to all Canadians by the Dominion Government, asking that purchases of War Savings stamps and certificates be accelerated and maintained on the basis of regular monthly instalments.

The necessity of sustained and large-scale lending to the nation's war chest, to facilitate our maximum war effort, must now be apparent to all our readers. This can only be attained through the aggregate result of the efforts of every person able to purchase stamps or certificates, be they large or small.

We must therefore prepare ourselves to co-operate with the government in saving everything possible, that we may help provide necessary finances for our ultimate victory.

Do not burn or destroy this publication. Sell it or give it to a salvage organization. It is needed for victory.

"Work Is Victory", Aircraft Factory Slogan

Scene in a British aircraft factory engaged in turning out "Halifax" heavy four-engined bombers. The manufacture of these and other types of heavy bomber has been and will continue to be greatly increased to carry out the R.A.F.'s intensified plans for bombing targets in the heart of Germany. The "Halifax" weighs 27 tons fully loaded, carries 5½ tons of bombs and has a range of 3,000 miles. It has a defensive armament of eight Browning machine guns.

NEW SIDELIGHTS ON PRICE CONTROL

Court Decreases Profits

David Lepine, Joliette tire dealer, was fined $200 and costs for illegal sale of tires by Justice Allard last week. This fine, following prosecution by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, was a sequel to a two months' closure of Lepine's business ordered in late April by the controller of supplies. It seems to be unprofitable to contravene wartime regulations.

Turn In Your tubes

Collapsible metal tubes — tooth paste, shaving soap, cold cream, artist's paints, or what have you? —to the nearest retailer who deals in such things, says the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

From these used collapsible tubes a great deal of tin is reclaimed—and the Army, Navy and Air Force need tin!

Surgar For Service Men

Members of the Armed Forces on subsistence allowance, or who go on leave for more than seven days will be issued with sugar ration cards by their own officers.

If the leave is for a shorter period than seven days they will depend on their hosts for sugar.

Show Summer Shoes

Retailers who were asked by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board not to display rubber products in their store windows have been releases from their obligation for the time being so far as summer footwear is concerned. Purpose of the relaxation is to allow merchants to clear their stocks.

Board Sets Wood Prices

Maximum prices for fuel wood have been set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for the Municipalities of Coaticook, Drummondville, Granby, Grandmere Shawinigan Falls, Sherbrooke, Three-Rivers.

These prices are based upon the order which declared that such designations as "bag" or "load" must not be used and that all prices must be in cords of 128 cubic feet or fractions of such cords.

The maximum delivered prices of dry fuelwood in the municipality are: Hard maple, quarter-cord in 12 inch lengths, $4.00; one-third cord in 16 inch lengths, $5.30; three-eights cord in 18 inch lengths, $5.55; half cord in 25 inch lengths, $7.25; three-quarter cord in three foot lengths, $10.00 and full cord, four foot lengths, $13.00: Mixed hardwood (including yellow birch, hard maple, oak and, not more than twenty per cent of the total, while birch and soft maple) $3.75; $5.00; $5.25; $6.75; $9.00 and $12.00: hardwood slabs, quarter cord, 12 inches, $3.25; one-third cord, 16 inches, $4.25; half-cord, 24 inches, $5.75; full cord, four foot lengths, $10.00: soft wood slabs, quarter-cord, 12 inches, $2.50; full cord, four feet $7.00.

Maximum prices for green fuelwood in the classifications quoted above are fifty cents per cord less than dry fuelwood of the same kind and length.

"I had to learn to handle myself," said an officer, "before I could learn to handle men."

Youngsters Raise $5 For Queen's Fund

Proceeds from a kiddies' candy and refreshment table conducted during two days this week on the Main Street, amounted to $5. This sum was proudly handed to The Watchman today by Frankie Bedard, with a request to pass the money along to some worthy war service. The boy was not particular as to where the money should go, but was emphatic that it was "for the war". This welcome donation will therefore be transferred to the Queen's Canadian Fund for Air Raid Victims.

Frankie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas Bedard, was assisted in the venture by three of his pals—Grant Riddell, Gordon and Tommy Jamison.

Married in Montreal, Couple to Reside Here

Silverson - Hynes

The marriage of Evelyn Grace, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hynes, Montreal, to Mr. Gordon Earle Silverson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Silverson, of Lakefield, Que., took place on Saturday afternoon, June 27, at Grace Church, Montreal, the Rev. W. M. Trivett officiating.

The decorations in the church were carried out in pink snapdragons, blue delphiniums and white peonies. Mr. C. W. Botting presided at the organ and during the service, the hymn "Gracious Spirit, Holy Ghost" was sung. During the signing of the register, the choir rendered the hymn "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white floral organza over satin, with a finger tip veil of tulle illusion and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. Cecil Payne was matron of honor and was gowned in blue floral organza over satin, made in similar style to that of the bride and carried a bouquet of pink and white larkspur.

Mr. Lawrence Silverson, of Lakefield, was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. G. M. Hynes and Mr. C. Gordon Hynes, brothers of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the decorations were carried out with garden flowers. Later Mr. and Mrs. Silverson left on a motor trip through Ontario and on their return will reside in Lachute.

SAVE RAGS

THESE MATERIALS ARE VITAL TO WAR INDUSTRY
METALS (PARTICULARLY THOSE OF IRON AND STEEL)
RAGS
FATS AND BONES

ALL war industries need rags . . . handfuls of rags . . . pounds of rags . . . tons of rags. And you can help supply them.
Without rag wipers to clean the cutting lubricant from planes, millers, drills, lathes, Canadian war workers would be inefficient, their output reduced, their efforts hampered.
Without rags, explosive plants would slow up, aeroplane factories would find their production cut, and wheels of shell factories would dawdle.
Start an old-fashioned rag bag in your house today. All kinds of old, worn-out, too small and otherwise useless garments are badly needed by war industries—everything from cotton underwear to old shirts and ties—from Grandpa's red flannels to Grandson's seatless corduroy pants.
These are real sinews of war which you can supply. Every rag in your home should go to war industries through your Salvage Committee. Clean out and clean up on Hitler!

Storm-Bound British Destroyer Covers 150 Miles Under Sail

As a result of heavy weather encountered in the Atlantic, the steering gear of a British destroyer jammed and engine trouble was experienced. The destroyer was on convoy duty, and rather than delay another ship by seeking its aid, the Commander had an improvised sail hoisted. By this means the destroyer covered the 150 miles back to harbour unaided . . . Picture shows the damaged British destroyer under sail.

Boy Scouts The World Over

A CONVOY ATTACK IN MINIATURE MODEL

Cubs of the 1st Harlington (Middlesex) Wolf Cub Pack collected nearly £50 for the local Warship Week by showing in the foyer of a movie theatre a miniature model representation of a Nazi attack on a convoy. The scene included a submarine half submerged, a destroyer in the act of dropping a depth charge and a German plane crashing into the sea. Every detail was complete, to rung ladders for the bridges and lifeboat equipment.

SCOUT TRAINING STANDS OUT

The development of character, courage, and sense of responsibility produced through your lectures and practical application of woodcraft, camping, swimming, navigation and handicrafts of various sorts, all add up to a total which makes the Boy Scout stand out far ahead of the average boy who has not had the advantage of this training. — Col. R. G. Whitelaw, Director of Military Training.

POLISH-CANADIAN SCOUTS DO THEIR BIT

A large Boy Scout troop of Polish-Canadian boys of St. Stanislaw's Church, Toronto, is playing its part in encouraging the Polish war effort. With funds raised by an entertainment a radio and a phonograph were purchased and sent to a Polish military training camp in western Ontario.

SCOUTING AN ANTIDOTE FOR JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

Juvenile delinquency has shown a sharp increase, due to wartime conditions. The Boy Scout movement is providing an effective means for combatting this. Scouting enables boys to plan and do things with other boys of their own age, and gives them a chance to share with others a training which tends to equip them for a happy and normal life. — Judge H. S. Mott, of the Toronto Family Court.

SCOUTS STILL FIND "PEACE TIME" OPPORTUNITIES

That the heroic roles being played by British Boy Scouts during Nazi air raids has not led them to ignore other calls upon Scout heroism was indicated in the posthumous award of the Bronze Cross to 13-year-old Scout Lawrence Humphries of the 3rd Broseley Troop, Shropshire. Scout Humphries lost his life in a vain attempt to save a friend, a boy bigger than himself, from drowning. The same announcement of awards recorded the presentation of a Silver Cross to Scout Gordon Stewart of the 1st Craiglockhart Troop for saving a 15-year-old girl skater who had broken through thin ice last winter.

Cornwall Scouts have been gathering used medicine bottles urgently needed at the local training centre dispensary.

Trail, B.C., Scouts gathered 275 tires and two large bags of rubber heels, inner tubes and other articles in a week's rubber drive.

Death Leap

A few seconds after this photo was made, the woman you see perched on the ledge at the eighth floor of the Genese Hotel in Buffalo leaped to her death before the horrified eyes of a crowd that had gathered on the street below. She was identified as "M. Miller, of Chicago." A policeman who rushed into the hotel in an attempt to stop the woman was too late.

Foot Comfort

Foot comfort, an important factor in general efficiency at any time, takes on a new meaning now that the latest gas restrictions give rise to more walking.

Insist on careful fitting, and never buy by the size of your last shoes. There is no such thing as standard sizes, so have your feet carefully measured. Shop for shoes when not rushed, and keep trying on until you get a really comfortable pair.

Shoes that fit properly should be half an inch longer inside than the end of the big toe. The ball of the foot should rest on the widest part of the sole. The shank of the shoe should fit snugly under the arch, and the shoe should hug the heel, fitting firmly at the bottom as well as the top.

To keep shoes shapely, always insert shoe trees when they are not being worn.

Start a drive for SCRAP RUBBER

If every person in Canada earning a living from pulp and paper were to collect an average of only 5 pounds of scrap rubber, that would mean approximately two and a half million pounds which the Government sorely needs! Five pounds is not a great deal. You'll probably find it quite easy to collect many times that amount when you dig out those old tires, rubber boots, overshoes, hot water bottles, etc. Get your neighbours interested, too. Your local salvage committee will welcome your help.

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

HUSH

No matter where we live we are warned not to talk or spread rumors about the War. This cannot mean so much some places but it takes considerable self-control when you live at the Coast. There are certain things one cannot help but see. Sailors from the Navy and the Merchant Service tell their experiences and when everyone is so interested it takes restraint to keep from telling what you hear. Many people's work brings them in direct contact with what is happening. Occasionally a mis-guided person will tell things better left unsaid, but all-in-all it is surprising how little there is.

A CHANGE AT HOME

Families will stay at home this year as never before, so every effort should be made to make outdoors at home more comfortable and enjoyable. Nearly everyone likes to eat out-of-doors, but mothers sometimes think it is a lot of extra work. It need not be. In fact it can be less work, as the table does not need to be set, and less dishes can be used. Trays are an ideal way as each tray can be set and everyone can look after himself from there on. Tin trays are still available in some stores. Cookie sheets make dandy trays as they are a good size. If there is no suitable table outside, the ever useful card table can be used if trays are not available. Casserole dishes are a good choice for an out-of-doors meal. If bread or rolls are buttered in the house there will be a saving of dishes and it is more convenient. We need relaxation and change and if we cannot have it away from home we should try to have a change at home. It is surprising how much more willingly children will help and how much more they can do when it comes to having a picnic meal.

PLAY ON EQUAL TERMS

It is natural for children to want to play with children their own age. If your child plays most of the time with either older or younger children by choice, look into the matter as there may be a reason for it. Sometimes the timid, backward, child likes to play with older children because it gives a feeling of protection. He knows he can follow in their footsteps without having to make any effort to think for himself. He needs to play with children of his own level to learn to develop initiative and independence. It is just as serious for a child to choose to play with children younger. He may develop into a bully if he is always with someone he can boss. Children need to look out for themselves with the give and take that only children of their own age may give. Sometimes they prefer playing with children of the opposite sex for very much these same reasons. They do not have to compete on the same level. If children of the same age are not handy to play with, mothers should make an effort to see that they are available sometimes. It is a mistake for children of a family to always play together. They need outside competition.

SYRUP FOR FRUITS

Thin Syrup — 1 part sugar to 3 parts water.

Medium Syrup — 1 part sugar to 2 parts water.

OVEN CANNING

Use firm, sound fruit for oven-canning and do not use bruised or over-ripe fruit. Prepare the fruit, then pour hot syrup over it and allow it to cool. Fill perfect jars with fruit to within ¾ inch from the top, then add syrup to within 1½ inches from top. Place on rubber ring and top and partially seal. Cover a shallow pan with three thicknesses of brown paper to absorb any juice which may overflow. Place the jars an inch apart on this and process in the oven. Berries of all kinds should be done in an oven at 275 degrees. Quarts require 1 hr., and pints 40 minutes. After removing from the oven tighten the top. Do not fill up with syrup as the fruit is now perfectly sterilized. Do not invert, as this destroys the vacuum, which helps give a perfect seal.

POTATO DUMPLINGS

1 Cup left-over mashed potatoes, 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg.

Sift flour, salt, and baking powder. Add mashed potatoes and beaten egg. Knead a little and form into a roll 1½ inches in diameter. Chill. Cut off in pieces an inch in length and steam over water or over a stew. Try these with fried onions.

CUSTARD ICE CREAM

2 cups milk, ⅓ cup corn syrup, ⅓ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup cream, whipped.

Mix the sugar, cornstarch, and salt, then stir in the corn syrup. Add the scalded milk slowly while stirring. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens, then cook for five minutes longer. Add hot mixture to beaten egg yolks, then cook for three minutes longer. Chill and add vanilla. Beat the egg whites until stiff, and whip cream, and fold both into the chilled mixture. Freeze in refrigerator tray until firm.

REDUCE FOOD COSTS — IMPROVE HEALTH

Cook potatoes in their jackets; don't discard the outer leaves of lettuce and cabbage; save all the water in which vegetables are cooked to put in soup or add to gravy; don't cut or shred fruits or vegetables for salad until the last possible moment before serving; insist on bread made from vitamin B (Canada Approved) flour. All these little things add up to better health through increased vitamin intake without adding to food costs, and good health is vital for victory.

Potatoes can be a dependable source of Vitamin C, but too frequently 50 per cent of this valuable quality is lost in the cooking, according to Nutrition Services, Department of Pensions and National Health. Much of the vitamin C content can be saved by cooking potatoes in their skins. This should be done not only in baking potatoes, but in boiling as well. They can be cooked in their jackets and peeled just before serving, or with the new potatoes many people like to eat the tender skins.

The dark green outer leaves of lettuce and cabbage are coarser in texture than the inner leaves but they are 10 to 30 times richer in vitamin A, so shred them up and put them in the soup pot or mixed salad. Leaf lettuce, by the way, is richer in vitamin content than head lettuce.

Bread made from Vitamin B. White Flour (Canada Approved) contains several times more vitamin B, and more iron than ordinary white flour. (Mental depression, lack of morale, fatigue and irritability are said to be attributable in large measure to deficiency of vitamin B.

Lemons to Banish Summer Fatigue

By Betty Barclay

Few fail to feel fatigue on hot, humid days. Scientists claim we lose Vitamin C through perspiration — and there you have the answer to "that tired feeling".

Vitamin C is a daily requirement. The more we perspire, the more we need. So remember your lemons when old Sol is doing his worst. A frosty glass of lemonade is rich in Vitamin C and it may be enjoyed at lunch, dinner or between meals.

Do you like variety? Try a combination of apple and lemon juice. Or add two tablespoons of lemon juice to a cup of grape juice. Or add lemon juice to your morning glass of orange juice.

A lemon shake is a nourishing drink. For each glass use the juice and grated peel of one-half lemon. Add two tablespoons sugar syrup, one-half cup water and one egg, well-beaten. Mix thoroughly in a shaker. Pour into glass. You'll enjoy it.

And lemons may be used to give added zest to many a meat dish. Here's a recipe for those who crave "something different":

Stewed Veal with Lemons

¼ Cup butter or other shortening, 2 lbs. boneless veal, 1 onion, salt, 1 teaspoon flour, ½ lemon.

Melt shortening with chopped onion, add veal and brown meat, turning often to prevent burning. Remove, add flour to butter, stir, add a little cold water, more hot water and put meat cut into pieces back into this gravy. Cover and let stew until tender—1½ hours. Before serving, add juice of ½ lemon to gravy.

"Are you engaged to Harold!"

"Yes, I have promised to marry him as soon as he has made his fortune."

"That isn't an engagement, that's an option!"

Just so her fans won't be lonesome, here is a stunning new picture of Dorothy looking very sophisticated and dramatic.

Women's Services In Old Land

Service Girls

Eighteen-year-old Elma Wilson, Auxiliary Territorial Service bombardier from Strathaven, Lanarkshire, has been "mentioned in dispatches" by the Girl Guides Association. She was wounded in the leg but nevertheless rescued a soldier who had been even more severely wounded during the bombing of an anti-aircraft station.

Members of the A.T.S. take their hats off when entering restaurants or hotels for meals. The girls of the Women's Royal Naval Service, on the other hand, don't. It seems to be a practice which grew up of its own accord and the Admiralty, questioned about it, says the W.R.N.S. "can do as they please" in this connection.

Women Army Doctors.

There are 130 women doctors serving with the Royal Army Medical Corps. They wear its badges and colors, hold the same ranks as men doctors, but they don't look after the troops. Their job is the health of the A.T.S. girls.

At Worthington girls from 14 to 16 are being trained as bicycle mechanics to relieve a labor shortage.

He Wasn't Dead

Happiest "widow" in Britain is Mrs. Norah Pritchard. After six messages from her "dead" husband, she is still trying to convince the Admiralty he wasn't lost with the Dorsetshire. Even after the Admiralty gave her papers to draw a widow's pension, she received a cable from her husband saying. "No news of you for some time. Please telegraph me." The Admiralty later admitted it seemed certain Pritchard was alive but until the information had gone through official channels the records would not be changed.

JUTE BAG SALVAGE IS VERY IMPORTANT

Go all out on the salvage of jute bags! There isn't a scrap of jute being imported into Canada now, and a situation already bad will be worse unless every effort is put forward to salvage and conserve the supply of bags available in this country, reports the National Salvage Committee.

The farmer should return empties to his feed dealer or sell them to a second-hand bag dealer who will repair them and sell them to the mills. A very real shortage may occur unless bags are kept moving from the emptier to the filler. All bags are needed. There are large numbers of bags in urban as well as rural homes which should be put back into circulation.

A reader of a health column would like to know what makes his mouth water. Wonder whether he ever thought of giving a bit of credit to the little woman's cooking.

INSTITUTE FOLK IN BRITAIN TO MEET "BY POST"

Members of Canadian-Patterned Groups Keep in Touch Without Travel

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — In other years the members of the Federation of Women's Institutes came from one end of the country to the other for their annual general meeting at which current and future business was discussed at length. But not this year — the meeting has been postponed and business is being conducted by post. This step was decided on as a means of avoiding "unessential use of transport facilities."

(Women's Institutes in England were founded by Mrs. Alfred Watt of Collingwood, Ont., who was afterwards president of the Associated Country Women of the World. The British Women's Institutes were patterned on the Canadian Women's Institutes, the well-known organization of the Dominion's rural women from coast to coast.)

Members of the British Institutes will get copies of the annual agenda dealing with such subjects as equal pay with men for equal work done by women, post-war planning for education and housing, part-time work for women and post-war and international friendships. Said one official: "Their replies will help us to gather an idea of what our members are thinking so that we will not be out of touch when the war is over."

Waste and Frills Out of Fashion

Waste and frills are out of fashion! The ruffles you omit from your next pair of curtains will help spread the available supply of cotton which will become growingly scarce because of the increased demand for war purposes, as well as shortage of labor and materials for manufacture.

Those who make their own curtains and slip covers can contribute to the war effort by sticking to the simplest styles,—straight-hanging tailored curtains that stop at the window sill, and slip covers without a pleated apron.

Considerate care of household fabrics is just as important as careful buying. Buy washable fabrics whenever possible. Dirt is the enemy of fabric life. Wash or clean curtains and slip covers before they get so dirty that harsh cleaning methods must be used.

The collection of discarded flower pots is the latest salvage activity of Sarnia Boy Scouts. The pots are washed and sold to florists.

BRITAIN TO BAN TABLE JELLIES

Manufacture of table jellies is soon to be prohibited in Britain. Food Minister Lord Woolton admits they are popular but says they are in no way essential. About 100 London restaurants have been supplied with dried meat to try out on their customers, and say the restaurant men, the customers ate it up and didn't know it from fresh meat. It's best in minced form.

COWGIRLS DOING REAL GOOD WORK

Taking Places of Men, They Are Good at Branding and Other Range Jobs

Denver, Colo., (CP)—There's a soprano accent this summer in that old western roundup refrain: "Git along little dogie; git along," as ladies and dudes, too, take up the slack of a cowboy shortage and ride herd.

It's not surprising that so many cowboys have gone where the fighting is thickest, leaving their herds behind. Each month the cowboy shortage has become more acute.

The Colorado War Manpower committee told this state's ranchers: "Don't be so choosy. The rancher must be prepared to take city youths and women and white collar workers. He must relax frivolous hiring rules based on prejudice."

Cowboys were flagerga sted because they long had considered their work strictly for the two-gun, he-man type.

Says L.W. Van Vleet, owner of one of the largest ranches in Colorado: "I was skeptical about the women because it takes a pretty husky fellow to stay all day on a branding job. First, there are more than 500 head of cattle and calves to be rounded up and driven through the timber to branding corrals. Then the calves have to be separated from their mammas.

"But I had lost some cowboys to the Army and so I gave the women a chance. They did a good job for me. It added sort of a whimsical note to the branding picture to see the women roping and wrestling the steers and the cowboys were skittish at first with women around them, but all in all it was a successful day."

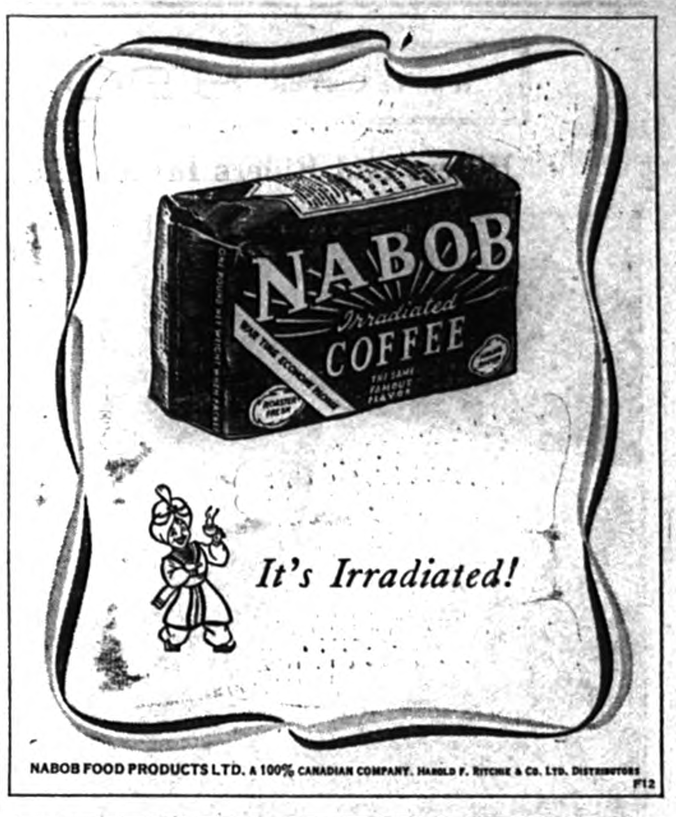

In addition to using women, ranchers also have worked out a plan for pooling equipment and cowboys, as they did in days of the open range and are holding co-operative roundups.

GAGS 'CERTIFIED FOR MIXED FORCES'

With Women as Well as Men in War Camps, They're More Careful With the Shows

London (CP) — There are so many young women serving in the British forces now that entertainment is being arranged with them especially in mind.

Bawdiness and off-color gags are being deleted from shows for the forces and the man with the blue pencil is 61-year-old Lt.-Gen. Sir John Brown. He says the test he applies to all shows before passing them as "certified for Mixed Forces," is: "If I had a daughter would I take her to see it." Sir John has two sons.

"In camps young men and women live in close proximity," he added. "What might be alright for a music hall is a different proposition in a camp hall. Also, what is inoffensive if done by first-class artists, can be very offensive, done by a second rate company."

BRANDED WIFE

Worcester, Eng (CP) — James Taylor, 36, convicted of branding the word "liar" on his wife's back with a red-hot poker, was sentenced to 16 months at hard labor after the wife told the judge she forgave her husband. The judge had made up his mind to sentence the man to seven years.

Do not burn or destroy this publication. Sell it or give it to a salvage organization. It is needed for victory.

QUINTS' COOK IS NOW AIRWOMAN

Great Aunt of Famous Five Gives Officers Some Callander Dainties

Fingal, Ont., July 8 (CP)—Out in the kitchen of the Officers' Mess at Fingal's bombing and gunnery school, turning out meals for the men who keep the station moving, is Airwoman Grace De Mers, great aunt and former cook to the Dionne quintuplets.

When a Canadian Press reporter visited the station, AW. De Mers had just collected her mail and in it was a letter from Callander, Ont., with several pictures of the quints, taken with their great aunt just before she enlisted.

"They really are lovely children," she said. "They had the best appetites and they'd eat anything. They liked to cook, too, and they always wanted to help me in the kitchen." she started to whip up a chocolate cake. "Just like I used to make for my nieces," she said.

Teamwork is the only alternative to dictatorship. It must not fail.

Hikers and Riders Invade Eagle's Domain

There are many ways of enjoying the scenic wonders of the Rocky Mountains, but none more intimate or soul-satisfying than following the less-frequented trails and byways, on horseback or on foot, under the friendly guidance of two of Canada's leading alpine societies . . . the Sky Line Trail Hikers and the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies.

Both groups have set the date and planned colorful itineraries for their annual outings which this year will cover some of the Rockies' major scenic highlights in the vicinity of Banff, Alta. The Trail Riders will set out from Banff Springs Hotel July 24, and will enjoy five days in the saddle, as well as the joys of camp life en route. Their main camp will be located at lovely Egypt Lake about half-way on the trail.

The Sky Line Trail Hikers, whose members rely on their own legs rather than horse-power, have their annual "safari" scheduled for July 31 to August 3. They too will start out from Banff, and armed with camera and alpenstock, will explore the district around Simpson Pass and nearby Sunshine Valley where their main camp will be located.

Founded by J. Murray Gibbon, general publicity agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway, both organizations have world-wide memberships, and continue to enroll new members every year. Each year they take to the trail, the Sky Line Hikers on foot, and the Trail Riders mounted on sure-footed mountain-bred horses.

The riders and hikers proceed leisurely, stopping at frequent intervals to fish for trout in the glacial waters of Rocky Mountain streams, "shoot" big game with their cameras, study interesting species of alpine flora, and marvel at the breath-taking panorama. And when day is done, they gather around friendly campfires for hearty meals, sing-songs and later sleep in tee-pees or under the stars.

MALTA SCOUTS AND THE 8th SCOUT LAW

The continuous bombing of Malta might be expected to try the ability of its Boy Scouts to live up fully to the 8th Scout Law, concerning smiling and whistling "under all difficulties." A former English Scoutmaster, now in the Royal Navy on the Malta station, writes of the Maltese Scouts' work as messengers, telephone operators, orderlies and A.R.P. assistants, and adds: "All the Service personnel are full of praise for their unfailing helpfulness and cheerfulness, even under the most terrific bombardment — and that's saying something in Malta. They are grand! I've never seen anything better. Their homes are bombed and machined-gunned day and night, but even the Boche with all his atrocities can't get these boys down." A Scout Commissioner on the island writes of a young Wolf Cub (junior Scout) at the funeral of a woman friend killed by a bomb: "At her funeral on Saturday I was walking behind the coffin alongside a little Cub, who was carrying a wreath. An air raid was going on overhead. But the little chap never turned a hair."

Navy's 15,000 Radios

Do Not Give Away Positions to the Enemy

London—Portable radio sets for ships' crews which do not give away positions to the enemy, are now in use in Britain's Royal Navy.

The Navy has received more than 15,000 sets and £25,000 raised by voluntary subscriptions has been spent by the Admiralty in supplying them. Corvettes, minesweepers, sloops, submarines and torpedo-boats are among the small craft whose ship's companies can now listen in when off duty. As the sets are "screened", they do not re-radiate, and so do not disclose the ship's position to the enemy.

The manufacturers made several modifications in a standard portable radio, giving it an exceptionally strong cabinet and fitting up the "chassis" so that the set would be able to stand up to the many hard knocks likely to be received under Service conditions. It has roughly 800 separate parts.

No accumulator is necessary and the battery gives 240 hours' service. The makers have been able to issue fresh batteries at the rate of 1,000 a week, and 10,000 valves have been sent out in the last twelve months.

The Royal Air Force has been supplied with 5,000 sets and the Army has had 8,000. They are being used in many remote districts of Britain as well as in Iceland and the Middle East.

The manufacturers carried on producing the sets throughout the "blitz" although their factory and workshops were actually razed to the ground and many essential parts and machine tools destroyed. Despite these difficulties, they have been able to carry on, and there are more than 100,000 of their sets in use.

Proposes Higher Health Category

As part of an editorial entitled "Living in First, Working in Third" the following appeared in the last issue of Contact:

"Lest we be accused of preaching, crusading or just downright prudery, let us come to and make our point. There's a job to be done in winning this war and we are only just beginning to get into our stride. Men and machines are needed in all fields of operations and on all fronts — alone, neither can accomplish anything, but co-ordinated and working together they can conquer anything. Both must be kept in first class shape, in perfect running order, capable of smooth performance 24 hours a day, seven days a week without a break-down. We expect it of our machines, why should we exempt our manpower upon whom the demand is not nearly so heavy? And therein lies the moral of this column.

"Back to the simpler life for each and every one of us. Plenty of sleep, fresh air, exercise and simple, nourishing food. Perhaps if we walk a little more, drink a little more (of what is good for us), exercise a little less strenuously and keep regular hours (work permitting), we may eventually lift ourselves, our children and our children's children into a much healthier class than we are today".

It may not be polite but it is wise to look a gift car in the tires.

He—"Please!"
She—"No!"
He—"Just this once!"
She—"No! I said."
He—"Aw hell, ma! — all the rest of the kids are going barefoot!"

ENTERTAINED BY CANADIAN CORPS OF COMMISSIONERS

Brownsburg, July 7 —

Bristling with talent and propelled at a sharp tempo, the amateur variety show sponsored by the Canadian Corps of Commissioners on the night of June 30 was one of the best seen at the Recreation Hall for some time. Sgt. Jack Morris and Henry Quesnel were instrumental in organizing the show and putting it across, making it one of the most successful ventures staged here in quite a while. As master of ceremonies, Quesnel made the announcements and introductions with the confidence of a professional.

There was no lack of dance numbers, and there was not one of them that was not good. Teamed together, Albert Malaquette and Yvonne Lamin whirled around the stage with a grace and abandon that were heartily acclaimed by the audience. Larry Fournier proved to be a capable performer but Quesnel wound up the program by putting on a dancing display that stamped him as one of the best troopers to come out of Vankleek Hill and points west.

Mimicry manifested itself in a variegated way and two of the performers had a full repertoire of animal sounds and general noises. A skit entitled "The Spirit World", apart from being a parody on spiritual seances, had a trace of originality.

Those who took part in the program were — Gaetan Forget and the Jive boys; Mary Nicholson, Rock brothers, Jacques Brisebois, Rachelle Brisette, Dixieland Kids, Germaine Gaudette, Jerry Millette, Gaetanne Caron, Jean Flynn, Pierre Bissonnette and Pop Nichols.

PRIME MINISTER'S HINT ON CONFIDENCE VOTE CAUSES STIR IN HOUSE

Peter of Yugoslavia First Reigning King to Occupy Speaker's Gallery

Three More Ships Reported Torpedoed In Convoy in the St. Lawrence River

By BOB FRANCIS, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 15 (CP) — For the second time in two months, Navy Minister Macdonald has announced in the House of Commons submarine attacks on shipping in the broad reaches of Canada's great waterway — the St. Lawrence River and Gulf.

His latest announcement, made Monday, told of the torpedoing in the Gulf "about a week ago" of three ships of the United Nations with casualties of four killed and four missing against 99 saved.

He gave little detail except to say that the residents of the region in which the sinkings occurred had shown "the highest measure of charity and kindliness" toward the survivors.

Mr. Macdonald's disclosures came two months to the day after his last announcement of a submarine attack. That was on May 13 when he announced that two vessels had been sunk down in the St. Lawrence..

The other major development of recent days on Parliament Hill was Prime Minister Mackenzie King's solemn assurance that members of the House will be asked to vote confidence in the ministry before conscription for overseas service is enforced. His promise of a vote seems to have come as a surprise to some of his party colleagues.

At all events, even if the more outspoken reports of party controversy have no basis in fact, the Prime Minister's speech marks a new phase in the wild-and-woolly conscription debate which opened June 10 when Bill 80 was submitted to the House.

The specific purpose of Bill 80 is to enable the government to introduce overseas conscription by order-in-council through eliminating clause 3 of the National Resources Mobilization Act. Mr. King said in his speech, a few minutes before the Commons approved second reading of the bill, that if his administration ever decided to pass an order extending conscription to service abroad, he would see that members had an opportunity, "not for a second debate on the question of conscription, but of showing their confidence or want of confidence in the administration."

Speech Caused Stir

Some political strategists believe that some of Mr. King's colleagues are insisting that the government should have the power to invoke overseas conscription the minute it becomes necessary, without reference to Parliament.

Certainly, the speech caused no little stir among members. Their worry seems to be that it would be difficult to introduce a vote of confidence without paving the way for some debate on conscription. Another point is precedent. An authority on House procedure reported that only once since Confederation has a Canadian government introduced a resolution asking for such a vote — in 1926, when the late Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe, then acting House Leader, asked for approval of the government's holding office without a clear majority in the House.

Some political speculation also was prompted by Mr. King's statement that if the moment for conscription arrived "and I should be in office at the time," he would ask his followers to join with him in seeing that Parliament was immediately informed.

The phrase "if I should be in office at the time" has been interpreted in certain quarters as a hint that the Prime Minister might not remain in his present post much longer. Others took it to mean he regards conscription as still a long way off.

To Explain Points

Clarification of these points can be expected in the House, either in committee stage of the bill or on third reading. Mr. King, meanwhile, has given a description of the government's policy which may become a catch-phrase — "not necessarily conscription, but conscription if necessary."

There were other important developments in the Commons as the sitting drew nearer to the summer adjournment, expected late this month.

Members awaited a statement from Navy Minister Macdonald on a report brought before the House by J. S. Roy (Ind. Gaspe) that three ships of a 14-vessel convoy were torpedoed in the St. Lawrence River July 5. Mr. Roy said he had heard from his constituency that the attack occurred opposite Cap Chat in the St. Lawrence.

He was promptly censured by the Prime Minister for making his statement without consulting the Navy minister.

History was made in the Commons when King Peter of Yugoslavia, in Ottawa for a brief visit, became the first reigning monarch to sit in the speaker's gallery in the green chamber.

Later the 18-year-old king told a press conference that the Yugoslav army, waging guerilla warfare in the hills of his homeland under Gen. Draja Mihailovich, will go on fighting "as long as it can —as long as it has something to fight for."

Farm Properties Damaged by Wind

STORM VENTS ITS FURY OVER LACHUTE ROAD COMMUNITY

A windstorm which accompanied the lightning and heavy rain of Saturday evening appears to have swept with hurricane force across the level farms in the Geneva and Beech Ridge communities. Several large elms were blown down on the St. Jacques property, Lachute Road, while nearby residences and farm buildings suffered considerable damage. Roofs on the dwelling, barn and garage at Leslie Hooker's were lifted and galvanized sheets flung in different directions, some of the twisted sheets being found several acres from the site. A silo was also blown down.

A barn roof and silo at Jas. Thompson's suffered similar damage, and a veranda attached to the Jno. Fraser residence was lifted from its foundations.

The storm reached its height shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

Schoolboys Want Work on Farms

A committee formed for the placing of English-speaking youths in seasonal employment has received a large number of applications from High School boys who are willing to work on farms for the summer months. The committee is now anxious to contact farmers who could avail themselves of these services.

While many of the youths may have scant experience in farm work, there are doubtless many chores and odd jobs in which their help could prove valuable during the busy season and the existing shortage of farm labor.

Any local farmers interested in engaging one or more of these young helpers, are asked to communicate with the office of this "Committee for Placing English Boys on the Farm," 152 Notre Dame Street East, Montreal.

Motorcyclists Are Hurt in Collision

A motorcyclist and passenger suffered injuries in a collision with a car on Main Street, in the shopping section, Saturday evening. Willis Kennedy, 20, driving his motorcycle, and John MacRae, 25, riding on the pillion seat, were thrown to the street when passing the automobile, which turned off the traffic lane toward the centre parking-lot. Driver of the car was Réal Lamarche, of Lachute. Both machines were travelling westward on the north side of the thoroughfare. The street surface was slippery after a heavy rainfall.

The crash-guard of the cycle caught in the front bumper of the car, and Kennedy fell with his leg under the machine he was riding. He and his passenger, both residents of Brownsburg, were taken to the office of Dr. F. W. Fitz-Gerald. Kennedy received several stitches in his right knee and right elbow. MacRae was bruised on the right arm.

Couple Feted on Silver Wedding

At their summer cottage at Fraser Lake Mr. and Mrs. William S. MacKimmie were feted recently by a party of relatives and friends on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary. Between 40 and 50 guests were present; among the relatives were Mr. and Mrs. MacKimmie's son, Douglas, on leave from Uplands R.C.A.F. station, and a cousin, Albert MacKimmie, from Bridgeport, Conn. Employees of J. P. MacKimmie & Sons and many community friends attended.

During the happy occasion John A. MacKimmie made the presentation of a silver coffee service, tendering felicitations and hearty wishes to the couple on behalf of their friends.

Swimmer Drowns In North River At St. Andrews

YOUTH, 16, MAKES VALIANT ATTEMPT TO RESCUE YOUNG SOLDIER

BUT VICTIM CRIES TO EXHAUSTED LAD TO SAVE HIMSELF

Pte. Arthur Vosburgh, 21-year-old member of the Montreal Military Transport unit of the R.C.A.S.C., lost his life by drowning, around noon last Sunday in the North River at St. Andrews East. He had gone swimming just above the dam, with a 16-year-old companion, Norman Wheeler, who made a valiant attempt to rescue the victim.

Pte. Vosburgh had accompanied Pte. and Mrs. Ralph Wheeler and their family by car from St. Eustache, and they were spending the day at St. Andrews. Both youths were swimming across the river, when Wheeler, some distance ahead of the soldier, heard his friend in difficulties. Vosburgh, who was only recently out of hospital with an attack of mumps, appeared to have suffered cramps. He sank beneath the surface twice. But meanwhile Wheeler had turned back, and endeavored to tow his friend to the shore opposite to which they had entered the water. Vosburgh, finally sensing his rescuer's state of exhaustion, muttered to Wheeler, "Go on . . . save yourself . . . I'm finished." The 16-year-old boy, who had also been in hospital recently for an operation, was forced to relinquish his hold and, in a state of near collapse, barely managed to struggle to shore.

Wheeler recovered sufficiently to summon help. His father, Ralph Wheeler, called for assistance to bathers farther down the river. A boat was brought to the scene and it was not until 1½ hours later that the body was discovered on the river bed. Diving into the water, over 15 feet deep, two St. Andrews swimmers, Rowan Simpson and Jacques Haspeck managed to bring the victim to the boat, but at this stage artificial respiration was unavailing.

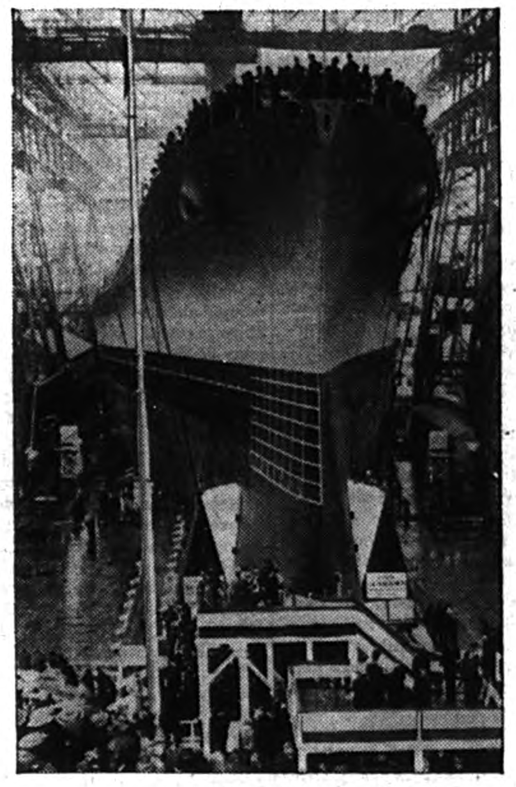

Constable Howard Jones, of the Provincial Traffic Police, arrived at the scene to investigate, and Dr. W. F. McMartin, district coroner, was notified at Lachute. He later conducted an inquest at Calder's Store and a jury of local citizens, headed by E. C. Calder, returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

Military authorities took charge of the body and took it to Montreal pending funeral arrangements. Pte. Vosburgh, a native of Phillipsburg, had been a frequent visitor with the Wheelers — Pte. Wheeler also being a member of the R.C.A.S.C.

We should feel sorry for those people who possessed of great intellects, use their power in cynical and destructive ways. A gifted mind should be a searchlight, not a death ray.

DEADLOCK IN STRIKE AT WOODWORKING PLANT

U. S. Battleship "Alabama" Launched Nine Months Ahead of Schedule

The 35,000 ton U.S. Battleship "Alabama" was launched nine months ahead of schedule. Almost immediately after the launch the keel of the 45,000 ton "Kentucky" was laid in the same shipway — a typical example of the speed-up in U.S. shipbuilding. The £20,000,000 "Alabama", sixth of the new "Washington" class battleships and specially designed to carry an added weight of armour, guns and ammunition, will have a speed of 27 knots and will carry nine 16" guns in addition to secondary guns and the latest anti-aircraft guns. Picture shows launching of the ship "Alabama."

Judge Permits Miscreant Pair To Join Army

TOOK PROVL. TRANSPORT BUS WHILE DRIVER IN RESTAURANT

PARKED CAR STOLEN, MAIN SREET EAST SATURDAY NIGHT

Following the disappearance of an autobus outside the Lido Restaurant Monday night, July 6, and later discovery of the vehicle in a ditch this side of Copeland's Bridge on No. 30 Highway — the two culprits, Gaetan Brisson, 22, and Richard Demers, 19, both of Brownsburg, were arraigned at St. Jerome on Thursday. The pair were ordered to appear for trial on July 30, facing a charge of taking the auto without permission, and other counts. The Provincial Transport vehicle was damaged to the extent of $500.

On request of the two young men, the Judge gave them permission meanwhile to join the army.

A Ford coupe, 1930 model, bearing license No. 141-558, was stolen during Saturday night on Main Street, East Ward, where it had been parked by its owner, Donat Roy, of Grenville. In the early hours of Sunday morning Roy went to enter the car and drive home, but found the machine missing. Traffic Officer H. Jones investigated and reported the theft to provincial headquarters.

At a special meeting of Lachute Town Council, held last evening, it was decided, concerning the market, that after 10 a.m. vendors shall have the right to sell their own products from house to house by paying the market fee of 50 cents per day.

It was also decided to instal a sewer on sections of Sydney Street.

M. Malacket was granted the use of Lachute Auditorium, for one night per week for 52 weeks, at a fee of $400.

Industrial Operations Halted

Affects War Orders in Execution By Dominion Shuttle Company Lt'd

No settlement has been reached in the strike at Dominion Shuttle Company Ltd., Lachute Mills, which has been in effect since July 6. The walk-out, involving 218 workers from all departments of the industry, was staged by the men in agitation for higher rates of pay.

At a meeting on Tuesday, July 7, the day after the strike was called, representatives of the employees and an inspector of the Regional Labor Board received a proposition from the management to pay increased wages to certain classifications of workers. To date the company officials report no acceptance or refusal of this proposition. Meanwhile the strikers have been assembling at intervals in the Auditorium, which the Town Corporation has rented to the workers for their deliberations at a nominal fee.

Shipments of orders — which are now largely for war purposes — have been made by the company during the strike, but actual manufacturing operations have ceased.

West End Hotel Changes Hands

The Victoria Hotel, in the West End, has been acquired by Louis Joseph Joly, an old employee in the dying room at Ayers Ltd. woollen mills and a well known figure in the Lachute Mills community. Since the death of Hector Rochon, late proprietor, the hotel has been conducted by Mrs. Rochon and her son. Mr. Joly purchased the business last week.

Boys' Brigade at St. Andrews Camp

St. Andrews E., July 13 —

A thrilling time was spent by the advance guard of the 1st Montreal-Westmount Boys' Brigade, pitching camp on Saturday on the farm of Albert Dorion, St. Andrews East. During the early part of their operations, plans were interrupted by the storms; however a pleasant night was spent when at last the final peg was driven.

The boys attended service in the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, parading to and from the church in band formation and carrying their colors. One of the leading bandsmen having injured his arm, the band strength was weakened somewhat, but it is expected this will be substantially augmented this coming Sunday when the unit will again parade to church. In the afternoon, a number of friends visited the camp, including Capt. D. T. Corlett of the 3rd Montreal Company and Lieut. Ernest Perrault. These officers were accompanied by their families and remained for dinner and until late afternoon. Capt. Frank Varty of the 15th Toronto Company also went out of his way to visit the camp and spend a few days with Capt Richardson and the boys.

The boys are planning to hold an athletic and aquatic meet this Saturday, if plans materialize, and will have a special campfire program in the evening, when the awards will be presented. Mr. W. Duncan, father of Pte. Don Duncan, will take motion pictures of the events.

The Company are elated over the thrilling reception accorded their mascot, Master Halvard Johnson, whose performance was to perfection. He will remain the permanent mascot of the unit, taking part at all formal functions and parades.

The officers and boys deeply appreciate the kindness extended to them by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dorion, and hope to spend many more camping periods in St. Andrews.

HAWKSB'Y FARMER IS BADLY BURNED

Hawkesbury — Allan Dandy, of East Hawkesbury, was painfully burned about the legs, arms and face when he fell while carrying a lighted kerosene lantern. On his way to the barn, the young farmer tripped and fell, and burning fuel saturated his clothing. He was taken to Dr. Smith's private hospital for treatment.

Becomes Major in Artillery O'seas

Announcement of the promotion overseas of Major Russell G. Cowan from the rank of captain reached friends in this district recently. A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cowan, he went overseas as a lieutenant with an artillery unit in 1939. Last fall he was promoted to the rank of captain. A brother, Capt. T. Alex Cowan, is adjutant of an anti-tank unit, and another brother, Leslie, resides at Grenville. Mrs. Henry Burri, of Port Hope, Ont., is a sister. Before the war Major Cowan was employed in the Canadian Pacific Railways, and at that time he held his commission in the 2nd Field Regiment of Artillery.

First Quebec Woman Named to School Board

Mrs. Ethel Dixon was elected commissioner of the Protestant School Board of Longueuil and Montreal South this week.

In close contestation with Norman I. E. Edwards, Mrs. Dixon is the first woman to be elected commissioner on a Protestant School Board in the province of Quebec.

The election was a tie but the returning officer gave his deciding vote in favor of Mrs. Dixon.

Farm Forum on Radio July 20

STRESSING AGRICULTURE'S PART IN THE TOTAL WAR EFFORT

That a healthy democracy must have its foundations in intelligent community action has become increasingly apparent from reports furnished by National Farm Radio Forum secretaries. It has been shown that small groups of farming people can contribute an immense amount to the nation's war effort, but some means of co-operation has to be worked out. Some countries already have achieved the basis of co-ordinated agricultural effort. In Great Britain there are the County War Planning Committees and, in the United States, Agricultural Planning Committees are encouraging the use of approved scientific methods. These are operating not only to increase production but to conserve the nation's material resources. In the Soviet Union there is a comprehensive national plan which includes all branches of agriculture.

In Canada, National Farm Radio Forum has provided an opportunity for farmers to discuss how best to solve their common problems. It has built up a network of intercommunicating groups across the Dominion which meet in school houses, community halls and private homes, to stimulate the country's war program of food production and encourage the setting up of county and municipal committees to administer problems relating to the project. Farm Forums, in cooperation with the CBC, work for improvement in production and marketing conditions as well as health, education and social life in farm communities. Regionally, too, they can discuss problems peculiar to their own sections of the country.

This coming season twenty thousand farmers, their wives and children will set themselves the problems of their own occupations in post-war life. Their considerations will, it is hoped, contribute importantly to the understanding so necessary if true partnership in the national life of Canada is to be achieved. The next CBC Farm Radio Forum will be broadcast Monday, July 20, at 8.30 p.m. EDT.

Promoted

G.D. Brophy, widely experienced Canadian Pacific Railway passenger traffic official, has been appointed Assistant General Agent at Montreal, and takes over his new duties in the office of F. C. Lydon, General Agent, immediately. The announcement was made by George E. Carter, General Passenger Agent. Mr. Brophy's promotion is another stepping stone in a long career devoted to Canadian railway passenger problems, a career which has taken him from coast to coast in Canada and to many of the heavy duty centres in the United States. Prior to his promotion he was City Passenger Agent at Winnipeg, which post he assumed on April 1, 1941.

CURTAIL TRAVEL ON BUS SERVICES OUT OF MONTREAL

The Provincial Transport Company has been forced to make a number of week-end changes in schedules for public travel, particularly on Sundays and on holidays, because of the heavy services the company must maintain for the transportation of war workers.

As the number of coaches available for the general public is limited, pleasure travellers are requested to return home on Sundays by the afternoon or earliest evening schedules. Coaches are no longer obtainable to accommodate all those who formerly waited until the late trips on Sunday evenings.

It is also announced that shuttle services will in future, be maintained on Sundays for local passengers between Montreal and Woodlands (via Basin) and between Montreal and Plage Laval, and that no local passengers between Montreal and these two places will be carried on Sunday, or on Labor Day, on certain scheduled coaches between Montreal, Beauharnois and Valleyfield; Montreal, St. Eustache and Brownsburg; and Montreal, St. Eustache and Oka.

The Plage Laval shuttle will operate from the Provincial Transport's North End terminal only, the frequency of service depending on the number of motor-coaches available each Sunday.

FORM DEFENCE CLUB IN RURAL DISTRICT

Prairie Community in Saskatchewan

Bulyea, Sask. (CP) — Residents of this central Saskatchewan district have organized a "civil defence club" including members from the surrounding towns of Earl Grey, Silton, Gibbs and Strasbourg.

Already the club has formed the Bulyea Rifle Club, affiliated with the Dominion marksmen organization, which meets regularly to hold competitions training civilians in sharpshooting.

Plans are being pushed to set up a committee which would include the Mayor and Council, the fire chief, the town constable, an authority on the public utilities of the district, and a first aid teacher.

Care of Unemployment Insurance Books Is Urged on Employees

Although Unemployment Insurance has been operating in Canada for a year, many insured workers do not fully appreciate the importance of their insurance books, said W. H. Anderson, of the Employment and Claims Office at St. Jerome.

If workers could get the idea that their insurance books are in the nature of a bank account upon which they draw in periods of unemployment, they would be more likely to see that the books are properly stamped and taken care of.

Nobody with a bank account, said Mr. Anderson is careless of his pass book. He realizes that he is responsible for taking care of it and that it is his record of money deposited to his credit and available for him to draw. But the insurance book is even more important. In the case of a bank pass book, the record is always available at the bank and a lost book can be prepared with ease and accuracy. But the insurance book contains stamps for which the employer and employee have jointly paid, and is the only record of contributions made. Accurate records to prepare a new book may not be available, and a book once lost may mean the loss of benefits.

At the opening of the fiscal year employees under the Unemployment Insurance Act were re-registered and new books issued to them. In them will be recorded one year's contributions to the Insurance Fund. While a worker is employed, the employer is responsible for seeing that the book is stamped correctly. The employee has the right to examine his book at intervals.

If a worker has a new position, he must turn his book over to his new employer at once, and stamp entries will be continued in the book where the former employer left off.

When the employee has no new job to report to he takes his book to the Employment and Claims Office, registers as unemployed, and deposits his book at the office. He will be given a receipt for his book and this he must keep as long as the book remains in the Claims Office. When he obtains work his book will be returned to him. Turning in the book is an essential part of a claim for benefit, since the insurance book is a conclusive evidence of contributions, on the basis of which benefit payments are made.

ROYAL AIR FORCE CHANGES MEANS, MEN AND METHODS

Better Equipped than Luftwaffe, R.A.F. Now Has More Serious Personnel, and Training Free from Welfare Hazards

London, July 14, (CP)—The Royal Air Force has changed almost completely in equipment, personnel and methods since the beginning of the Battle of Britain two years ago.

Then there was a ration of one R.A.F. plane to four German aircraft; today the British have more planes than the Luftwaffe's estimated 6,000. The R.A.F. fought the first year of the war with a miscellaneous collection of bombers, none of which hed been tested in warfare. The German Junkers, Dorneirs and Heinkels had been tested in Spain.

Today the four-motored Lancasters and Halifaxes dump as many bombs on Germany in a week as the entire command did in the first six months of 1940.

The Luftwaffe has been unable to build a four motored bomber comparable to the British heavy ships as yet. Nor have the German designers answered the challenge of the twin-engined Manchester, a plane which carries a bomb load equal to that of many four-motored craft.

The early Hurricanes and Spitfires have been replaced by new models of greater fire power, increased speed and manoeuverability. Cannon of increasing calibre sprout in place of machine guns.

Working with the two veteran craft are new fighters like the Whirlwind, Typhoon and Bristol Beaufighter.

The contrast between the men who fly the new models and those who sent their aircraft hurtling into the Battle of Britain is equally marked.

A Gallant Band

The men who fought in 1940 were almost entirely pre-war R.A.F. pilots or members of the R.A.F. Volunteer Reserve. They were gay and gallant. During operations the atmosphere around the fighter and bomber stations was more like that of a fraternity house before a big football game than a base for operations.

Those pilots built the tradition on which the present morale depends. But the heirs carry on in a different atmosphere.

For one thing these boys have different roots. Most are drawn from the great mass of young British manhood who flocked to the colors in 1939.

Their training schedule, unlike the Luftwaffe's was only slightly curtailed by actual warfare. The men are largely the ones trained in England, Australia and Canada under the Empire Air Training Scheme.

The atmosphere of the picnic is gone even from fighterstations. There is little heavy drinking and on days when operations are scheduled most airmen confine themselves to a glass of beer. Not that the R.A.F. has gone sissy. There are real "strafes" when the boys hit London on leave.

They talk the "business" of bombing Germany or shooting the Luftwaffe out of the sky incessantly. The old law that shop cannot be talked in the mess has been overridden by airmen.

Some are philosophers, some as foolish as any freshman. Aesthetes and potential gangsters fly wing to wing.

The most conspicuous feature of their code is the insistence on modesty. Understatement is the approved mode of description and "bullthrowing" is out.

Chambers of Commerce Decry 'Americanizing' Of Quebec Province

Resolutions Passed at Annual Conference, Held at Ste. Agathe

The annual meeting of the Regional Congress of the Quebec Federation of Chambers of Commerce was held here on July 9, with Ste. Agathe receiving the Laurentian Chambers of Commerce at the town hall.

Delegates from many municipalities were headed by Alfred A. Paradis, president of the Federation, and E. Genest, director of external relations, both of Montreal; George Dury, president of the St. Jovite Chamber; J. W. Cyr, ex-president, St. Jerome; Samuel Thibault, vice-president, Mont Laurier; Dr. Jacques Cartier, president, l'Annonciation, D. J. A. Comptois, president, Ste. Therese; Gaston Gibeault, president, Ste. Agathe and G. A. Latour, president, Montreal.

With C. G. Robidoux, of l'Annonciation, presiding, the meeting had as a main feature discussion of the problem of Quebec province retaining its ancient, French-Canadian type of interest for tourists. Mr. Dury and Msgr. J. B. Bazinet, chief speakers, urged that "Americanizing" of Quebec be avoided, and that the land should be settled on and passed on to the children of the people of the province.

Some of the resolutions adopted by the meeting included those for: Termination of the highway between Mont Rolland and St. Jerome; full observance of the Sabbath by commerce and the trucking industry; the selection of a new flag for Canada; adoption of "O Canada" as the national anthem; and resumption of a bus service between Montreal and Mont Laurier.

Highlight of the meeting was the banquet Thursday evening which took place at the Hotel Maurice.

Among those who attended were Hon. Hector Perrier, Provincial Secretary; Lionel Bertrand, M.P. for Terrebonne; George Caron, M.P. for Maisonneuve; and Adhemar Raymond, Mayor of Montreal.

WARTIME ECONOMY FERTILIZER GRADES

The early history of the fertilizer industry in Canada contains musty pages of records that are hair-raising when considered in the light of present knowledge. Thirty years ago one found mixtures such as 1-6-1 and 1-8-1, containing half their weight of sand, being offered the farmer at scandalously high prices. Ignorance on the part of both buyer and vendor might have been pleaded in excuse; only the latter was careful to secure his own profits.

Then there was little or no government supervision of the incipient industry, but in recognition of the growing need for some measure of control the Fertilizers Act of 1922 came into being. This Act provided that every fertilizer mixture offered for sale must contain a total of not less than 14 units of plant food and that neither nitrogen nor potash could be stated in the analysis unless present in the amount of at least 2%. Besides, each fertilizer, with declaration of its constituents and guaranteed analysis, had to be registered at Ottawa and receive its identifying registration number.

Intended primarily for the protection of the farmer, the Fertilizers Act soon earned the approval and support of the reputable manufacturer and removed from others the temptation to transgress, or made a negative virtue compulsory through legislation. During the past decade the establishment of provincial fertilizer advisory boards has relieved the Fertilizers Act administrator of some responsibility in exercising control and be further contracted. In each territory there may be only four grades available for what are termed general purposes. Naturally, the fewer the grades the greater will be the efficiency of manufacturing and shipping operations in plants where labour problems are acute and the rush season imposes a heavy strain on resources. In one plant on the east coast the problem of labour became so desperate that men of done much to reduce the number of grades on the market. With the restoration of the War Measures Act means were provided to enforce curtailment which conciliation and concession had failed previously to achieve.

Now that we have in Ottawa a Fertilizer Administrator deriving authority from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, regulations much more drastic are being applied to the fertilizer industry, and the list of fertilizers to be offered for sale during the season of 1942-43 will the Canadian Armed forces had to be called in to solve it.

A reduction in number of fertilizer grades will work no hardship on the farmer. The abbreviated list will cover adequately the needs of the crops insofar as anyone is competent to predict them. Crop response to fertilizing is influenced by several factors, including the uncontrollable and unpredictable one of seasonable conditions. It is estimated that of the fertilizer applied for a given crop only approximately half its phosphate and potash is utilized by that crop, the residue remaining for the benefit of those following in the rotation.

Some of the fine distinctions made in adapting fertilizer formulae have amounted to hair-splitting, and the crops certainly gave no indication that they knew the difference. Many of the popular fertilizer grades are based on no definite experimental evidence, and the present seems opportune to apply the precepts evolved from an accumulation of reliable data now available. The Fertilizers Administrator, having in mind the visible and perhaps limited supplies of fertilizer ingredients, will determine, with the aid of his provincial committees, the analyses of the fertilizers to be offered for sale next season and in this the interests of the farmer will be given priority.

Vitamin Boost in Ful-O-Pep Brings Young Pigs and Sows Many Healthful Benefits of Tender, Young Cereal Grass, Nature's Richest Vitamin Combination.

● Is it any wonder, that pigs, hogs and brood sows thrive so wonderfully when a feed is rich in vitamins? Feed must supply the rest, and the ordinary corn and skim milk ration is low in some Vitamin values!

FUL-O-PEP HOG FEEDS contain a Vitamin Boost derived from nature's richest vitamin combination—tender, young cereal grass converted into a feed ingredient of amazing Vitamin richness—along with other Vitamin-rich sources. Vitamins that help combat premature farrowing and dead pigs, pneumonia and other diseases . . . to help promote appetite and digestion and sound bones.

Double-Barreled Advertising

Commencing with this issue, an advertising plan along patriotic lines is receiving the collaboration of 40 local tradespeople, merchants and dealers. Details of the idea appear in special advertising columns on page six.

This layout has a double purpose — firstly, to familiarize our readers with all the trades and services they require, ensuring their attention by a search for hidden names; and secondly — in rewarding bearers of these names with War Savings Stamps — to encourage the wholesome habit of saving for the war effort. This motive is in timely accord with the Government's present stress on voluntary investment.

Forty business men and women — a fair cross-section of the commercial community — have expressed their approval in a practical way. We trust our readers will reciprocate in the venture, both by supporting these advertisers and by responding to the War Savings urge.

Penny-Watchers Wanted

The first reaction of some Canadian citizens to Mr. Ilsley's drastic new budget was to reach a hasty conclusion that after paying increased income taxes and compulsory savings, they would have no money left to buy War Savings Certificates and Victory Loan Bonds.

No one will accuse the Minister of Finance of having failed to place Canada's current war problem honestly before the people of Canada. He reported that we would have to collect about four billion dollars to carry on during the fiscal year. He said that even with the increased taxes, he anticipated about two billion dollars revenue from taxes, and that the other half of the year's war bill would have to come from the voluntary purchases of certificates and bonds.

Mr. Ilsley was reasonably sure of his ground when he laid his new plan before the House of Commons. He knew that the large sum of two billion dollars to be raised through the sale of Canadian securities will be available. And he also recognized that that money will be available only if each individual does his share in cutting down his private spending to a bare minimum.

In days of easy money, and we have had this kind of period during the past two or three years, people have become accustomed to thinking in terms of dollars rather than in pennies and dimes. Under the first impact of a budget such as we have just had, there is a common tendency for men and women to keep on thinking in terms of dollars. We hurriedly review the large items of our personal budget, such as rent, food and clothing, and can see no possibility of cutting down on these major items. We forget to remember that for centuries back substantial savings have been built up through unceasing vigilance against the careless spending of small pieces of silver. The men and women who will budget every cent of their income during the next year, and who will pinch each penny, nickel, dime and quarter before spending it — spending small change only after weighing the value to be received against the value of that change to our country at war — will always have money left over for War Savings Stamps, War Savings Certificates and Victory Loan bonds.

An Inconvenient Law

The regulation which prohibits those who fill the position of town councillor from supplying goods or services to the governing body of which they are a member, has provoked not a little controversy in times past. It is based upon a general law regarding the independence of parliament and its application is very general. At times it creates inconvenience in small towns where the number of persons engaged in a certain line of business is limited. An amendment to the law has been at times proposed but no action has been taken. The practice has been in numerous instances to disregard this regulation though doubtless the dislike of such an attitude has had the tendency to keep those who have been willing to do so from serving in such a capacity.

Taxes Compared

Tables show Canadian income taxes still are below the British levels. Such comparisons do not tell the whole story, however. Municipal rates are higher in this country, and there is nothing in the United Kingdom to correspond to our provinces with their tax-levying powers.

Facts from Files Of the Last Great War

Twenty-five years ago — recalls The Printed Word — an elderly, sweet-faced guide, female, on the upper floor of Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford-on-Avon, embarrassed Canadian soldiers in her party by stopping her lecture to expatiate on the "generosity" of Canadians crossing the ocean to "help" the Old Land in the war. Up to that moment, and since, those Canadians, and probably all others in uniform, had felt their presence was a duty and that the fight was for the preservation of Canada as much as for any other country on the Allied side.

Two things brought this old incident to mind. One was Mr. St. Laurent's view, as expressed in the Canadian House of Commons, that English-speaking Canadians don khaki because of a filial regard for the Mother Country. The Minister of Justice may have founded his speech on observations as to how some people in the British Isles regard us rather than how English-speaking Canadians themselves regard Britain. One might guess that Mr. St. Laurent has been, in fact, in London on privy council business more often than he has been in Toronto or Winnipeg or points west.

The other reminder of that old leave was a private conversation wherein a native Canadian ventured the opinion that it is the intention of Britain to use colonials as shock troops. We denied this but had to admit that one could easily gain such an impression because the British themselves seem ever ready to grant to Australians, South Africans, East Indians and Canadians all possible credit in any news dispatches sent from Britain or other scenes of battle. Added to this is the natural instinct of cable editors to play up the exploits of the home-town boys. It is highly probable that most Canadians think that Canadian flyers have outnumbered all other flyers in those recent raids on German cities.

It always has been that way. A Briton in the United States in 1918 reports that he got the impression that the only people fighting were doughboys. We ourselves have heard Yanks in Britain at that time complaining because English newspapers reported little of the activities of Pershing's command. The Canadians were a little better off in that regard if they read the Express, owned by Sir Max Aitken who is now Lord Beaverbrook.

If quality of men, leadership, training and equipment were equal (which of course they never are) the number of casualties would seem to indicate which of the Allied nations in the last war bore the brunt of actual fighting. On such a scoring the Russians sacrificed the most, their casualties (dead, wounded, missing and prisoners) being 76.3 per cent of the men mobilized. However, Russia had an inordinate number of prisoners and missing due to her relatively early defeat in the the field. The French, with far fewer being captured or missing, suffered no less than 73.3 casualties of the total number mobilized, which was 8,410,000 in her armies. Casualties among the British were 35.8 per cent of the 8,904,367 mobilized. Casualties among the armies of the United States were only one fifth of one per cent of the 4,355,000 mobilized, due, of course, to the fact that only a small percentage of the actual number mobilized ever were in battle. Canada's killed in action in the four-year period were about the same as the United States killed in action in a much shorter period, with an army eight times as large.

Our idea of the proper use of the armed forces of the United Nations is that each branch and each nation should perform those tasks for which it is best fitted. In such a perfect organization the Britons from Hampshire, Glasgow, High Hampstead, Aberdeen and Trent-on-Sea, will have been found to have done their share. But other people will have had to do the finding out.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, leader of the Commandos has a pet expression to the effect that something of which he approves is "all tickety boo", and in case Americans do not understand this outrageous piece of English, it should be explained that it means "okey-doke".

No one ever thought that the time would come in Canada when the profession of dump-picking would be elevated to the rank of the most highly patriotic civilian calling.

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

CONFLICT BETWEEN GERMAN MILITARY AND POLITICAL LEADERS LED TO RESIGNATION OF CHANCELLOR

Dr. Theobald Friedrich von Bethmann-Hollweg, political leader of Germany for three of the four years of the First Great War disappeared from the stage of international affairs 25 years ago.

Growing conflict with military leadersand his declining power in the Reichstag led to Bethmann-Hollweg's resignation as Imperial Chancellor on July 14, 1917. Emperor Wilhelm, confronted with what was virtually an ultimatum from his military advisers, accepted the resignation.

The chancellor had been five years in office when he made the decision to violate the international treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of Belgium. Only a few hours before western Europe was plunged into the war, Bethmann-Hollweg, in his parting interview with Sir Edward Goschen, the British ambassador, referred to the treaty as a "scrap of paper" and demanded whether the British government had considered "at what price the compact would have been kept."

Bethmann-Hollweg had risen through the usual legal and official stages of promotion to the chancellorship to which he was appointed July 14, 1909.

Indecision and half-heartedness characterized his actions in domestic politics, but he shared the Emperor's ambition of placing Germany as political leader of Europe and predominant in the field of industry and commerce.

In 1911 relations with France became strained to the breaking point when the Imperial gunboat "Panther" slid into the Moroccan port Agadir. War with France seemed inevitable, therefore he courted British politicians in an effort to obtain assurances that Britain would observe a benevolent neutrality "if war should be forced upon Germany."

What he meant by this was revealed later in his memoirs when he accused France of rendering war unavoidable by planting troops on German soil, and Russia of having opened hostilities with air raids which never took place.

Submarine Warfare

The controversy between German political and military leaders over the question of unrestricted submarine warfare saw the first inroads made on Bethmann-Hollweg's influence. For months he had stood against the German naval staff on the issue, haunted by the fear of United States entry into the war.

When President Woodrow Wilson threatened to break off diplomatic relations with Germany following the sinking of the Lusitania and other vessels in 1915, the German government came to terms by issuing an order in April 1916, precluding submarine commanders from sinking any merchant ship at sight.

Early in 1917 the success of German submarines led the German naval staff, backed by generals Hindenburg and Ludendorff, to renew their demands for the revival of the "sink on sight" policy.

Bethmann-Hollweg's opposition was beaten down and the Chancellor was forced to announce Jan. 9, 1917, that unrestricted submarine warfare would be resumed Feb. 1. Two months later the United States entered the war.

The German chancellor refused to accept responsibility. It is said he told the Kaiser early in 1917: "I can give your Majesty neither my assent to unrestricted U-boat warfare nor my refusal. I submit to your Majesty's decision."

Bethmann-Hollweg took no further part in politics after 1917 and died on New Year's Day 1921.

Late Kaiser Wilhelm's Guns Being Used Against Germany

Germany, the old Germany of the late Kaiser Wilhelm, has contributed a goodly share to the Canadian campaign for the conservation of scrap metal and its subsequent use in the manufacture of arms and weapons for the present war.

It all came about through the activities of the Military Museum on Sussex street, under the direction of Major Gustave Lanctot, which turned over to the official scrap heaps and thence to arms and munitions factories several hundred guns of all calibres, captured by the Canadian Army from the German Imperial forces between 1914 and 1918.

As the size of the museum building fell far short of space requirements when viewed in relation to the amount of material available for display, many guns, some duplicates, triplicates even of artillery already on show, had to be disposed of.

Here is the list of the guns captured from Kaiser Bill which have been turned into shot and shell to blast little Adolf Shicklegruber (alias Hitler), from his European positions, if and when the second front is created and the Canadian Army goes into action. Field guns, 275 (these include cannon of 77, 150 and 210 calibre); trench mortars, 101; minniewerfers 211 and other types of guns, 68, making a total of 655 guns furnished the United Nations in the war against the little paperhanger by his Imperial predecessor, William of Hohenzollern.

Recent Labor Order Aims at Direction

Because the tools of war cannot be left idle, the Canadian Government has passed an order expected to solve one of the problems of our emergency, the distribution of workers where they are needed. By virtue of this new order, all transfers of employment of men and women in the country are now cleared through offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. This way, they will be able to keep a record of the labor supply and supply shortages where they are indicated.

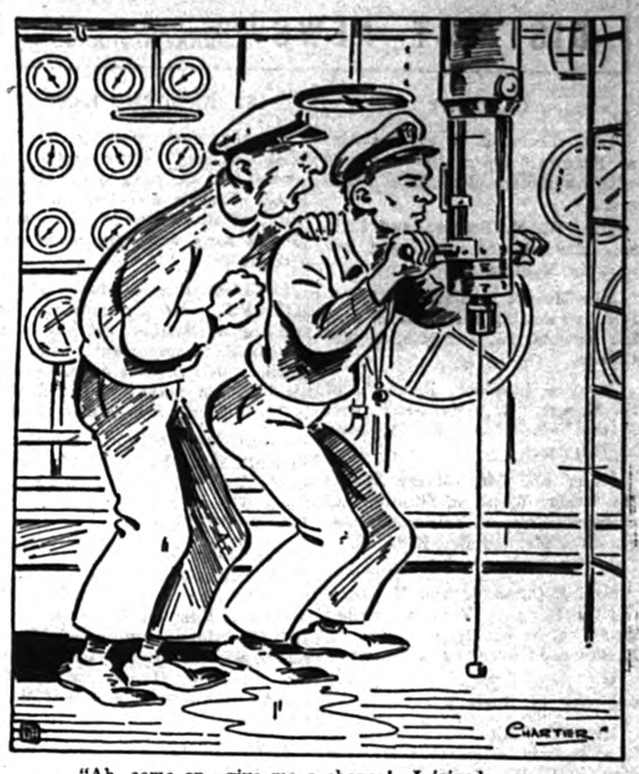

It is in the nature of an approach to the rationing of labor and a step toward the proper balancing of it. Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service, who has charge of this work, points out that it does not mean "freezing" men and women to the jobs they now hold, but if their transfer is deemed against the best interests of the war effort, persuasion will be used to direct labor in the channel of best interest to the country. "Direction by persuasion" is the way he explains it.

Any firm wishing to hire men and women must have an approval order from the local Selective Service office. The individual also must have approval for his change of occupation or employment. One of the main objects of the channelling of labor is to keep track of its movement, cut down its excessive mobility. This will act as a check on the balance of manpower in Canada, not only among vocations but, more important, between different parts of the country.

Direction is the underlying feature of the new labor order; there is no compulsion.

"Oh, but father," protested his daughter, "this is an upright piano."

He had filed a petition in bankruptcy. The time came for him to be examined as to whether he should be declared a bankrupt. He rattled off a long list of liabilities, and then he was asked what if any, his assets were.

"The only asset I can name," he announced, "is that I'm in my seventh week in a national puzzle contest."

"That was frozen stiff, too," said the sailor.

NAVAL BATTLES PUT ON CANVAS

Cairo (CP) — Art lovers in future years will have a chance to see how the British Navy won its victories in the Mediterranean. Lt.-Cmdr. Rowland Langmaid, first official artist assigned to any British fleet in this war, has been given the task of putting outstanding battles on canvas.

Langmaid, giving up a job as naval censor in Alexandria, says he intends to put down in black and white for photo reproduction and possible exhibition in galleries every major naval engagement. He has completed some paintings of night action in the battle of Cape Matapan and now is depicting the recent rout of a heavy Italian squadron during the Malta convoy operations by cruisers commanded by Rear Admiral Philip Vian.

Langmaid is 44. He studied at the Royal Academy in London and the Royal College of Art in South Kensington. His work has been exhibited at the Royal Academy and also in Philadelphia galleries.

NO TICKEE, NO LAUNDRY

A letter recently addressed to the messenger errand and distribution service of the Canadian National Telegraphs and coming from Sherbrooke, admitted in the opening paragraph that this branch of the telegraph service gets a lot of strange requests in the course of a year's business. But the sender submitted another problem to solve —that of locating a small parcel, containing two shirts, at a Chinese laundry on a certain main street, and to arrange delivery to a local hotel. On this particular street there are literally hundreds of Chinese laundries but, fortunately, the writer sent the laundry ticket and the establishment was quickly found and the shirts delivered as requested.

HOUSING PROBLEM GROWS IN LONDON

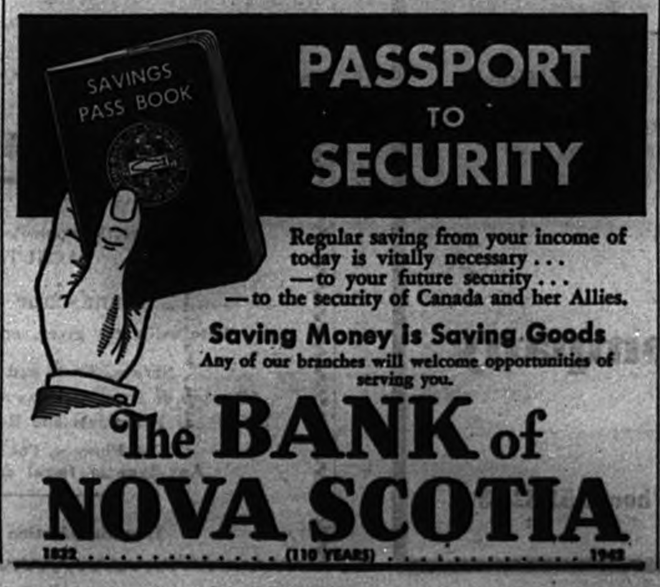

London (CP) — Modern, five-room furnished apartments in London rent at anywhere from $150 to $200 a month — if you can get them. The same goes for unfurnished houses.

Hundreds of tenants who took apartments and houses on short leases more than a year ago when many dwellings were empty because of raids, now are being asked to pay more rent or vacate.

Even so, demand for living quarters far exceeds the supply and an even bigger rush is expected. Absence of air raids on London has drawn many evacuees back.

"There are very few flats obtainable today," said an official of the Property Owners' Protection Association.

Under the Rent Restriction Acts, the rent of only unfurnished apartments and houses is controlled. Increases, however, can be made subject to certain conditions such as improvements.

A MALTA SCOUT'S LAST GOOD TURN

One of the recent stories from heroic Malta is of a 17 year old Boy Scout who held a lamp during an entire night while men were extricating people from the debris of a bombed building. He was killed a short time after when a bomb burst near a house in which he was decorating a room for a children's party.

DROUGHT AREA SCOUTS' PATRIOTIC EXAMPLE

The Boy Scouts of the 300 population community of Lucky Lake, in the former drought area of Saskatchewan, provide this example of patriotic enterprise: A Milk for Britain Fund contribution of $22.65; for a Scout Chins-Up Fund for Britain, $4; a freight car load of salvage; made and installed linen cupboards in the local hospital; provided two Scout first aiders with kits, four messengers and a bugler for the Lucky Lake Security Corps.

BOY SCOUTS HAVE "SALVAGE CARTS"

Boy Scout ingenuity is being demonstrated in the varied means found for collecting salvage — sleighs, toboggans, wheelbarrows, handcarts. In one instance an old grocer's delivery wagon, with numerous Scout "horses" prancing between the ancient shafts. Many troops have built trek-carts — two wheeled carts which can be pulled by hand. The wheels come from bicycles, old buggies and light wagons. An Ottawa cart rolls on wheels from an ancient hearse. Perhaps the palm for labor saving improvisation would go to the Scouts of Armstrong, B.C., who are using a car trailer drawn by an old pony.

Examination Papers Show 'Boners'

Berkeley, Calif. — Correcting examination papers at a large university is not all dull routine. Now and then the professors come across some choice "boners."

Here are some gathered in a survey by the Daily Californian, student publication of the University of California:

"The dome of St. Clement's is supported by eight peers, all of which are unfortunately cracked."

"Browning wrote principally heroic cutlets."

"Shakespeare lived at Windsor with his merry wives."

"A spinster is a bachelor's wife."

"The object of 'he' is 'she'."

"William Tell shot an arrow through the apple while standing on his son's head."

"The opposite of pessimist is bigamist."

"A grass widow is the wife of a vegetarian."

"The Mediterranean and the Red Sea are connected by the Sewage Canal."

Christian Science Sunday Services

"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 19.

The Golden Text is from John 5: 26. "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "How excellent is thy loving kindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings . . . For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light." (Ps. 36: 7,9).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is, always has been, and ever will be independent of matter; for Life is God, and man is the idea of God, not formed materially but spiritually, and not subject to decay and dust . . . Because Life is God, Life must be eternal, self-existent. Life is the everlasting I AM, the Being who was and is and shall be, whom nothing can erase." (pp. 200,289).

Pretty Wedding in Buckingham Church

Wiseman - Leishman

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Stephen's Church, Buckingham, Que., on June 30, at 8 o'clock p.m., when Alice, younger daughter of the late Mr. Robert Leishman and of Mrs. Leishman, Lachute, was united in marriage to Mr. Thurlow Austin Wiseman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wiseman, of Buckingham. The church was beautifully decorated with standards of white clematis, spirea and delphinium. The Rev. J. E. L. Joyce performed the ceremony and the wedding music was played by Miss Gertrude Halliday.

The bride, who was unattended, wore a street-length model of tropical blue cabana crepe, designed with scalloped neckline and bracelet-length sleeves. Her head-dress was a halo of blue and white flowers with a shoulder-length veil. She wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses, bouvardia and baby's breath fern. Her accessories were in white and the only ornament worn was a golden bracelet, the gift of the groom.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wiseman, amid the good wishes of their friends, left by motor on their honeymoon. For travelling the bride wore a beige coat over her wedding dress, and white accessories. On their return they took up residence at Buckingham, Que.

WARTIME ACTIVITIES REJUVENATE PICTOU

Shipyards and War Industries Bring Boom to This Quiet Nova Scotian Seaport

Pictou, N.S., July 13 (CP) — From a quiet seaport that got excited once a year when a lobster fisherman's carnival brought as many as 15,000 people to town, the impact of war has made Pictou a boom town and now the streets look like Old Home Week every night, minus the flags and bunting.

Pictonians who had a quiet existence after the start of the war when most of the town's young men joined the fighting services, are now a bit bewildered at the hurried activity which the establishment of a shipyard and other war industries has brought into their midst. The 1941 population of 3,050 is expected to double shortly.

To accommodate the influx of workmen a new town is rising on the hill above the shipyard, a town of 300 pre-fabricated houses. Three staff houses for single men have already been erected and two are now occupied. A new dining hall in conjunction supplies meals for the men.

At present however, the housing situation is acute. Unable to find rooms in Pictou's now crowded homes, some of the men are living in garages. Others have found accommodation miles from their work. During the winter some were living aboard a dredge which was on the marine railway.

New School Needed

An eight-room school will be needed for the new town, according to Mayor T. A. MacKay. Wartime Housing, Limited, which built the staff houses and is erecting the pre-fabricated dwellings, will build the school but the town must staff it.

The demand for electric power has shot upwards, mainly due to the shipyard's consumption and a new line around the harbour from Stellarton is being constructed to augment the electricity which now flows through a submarine cable under the harbor waters.

From all this activity merchants who had rather a lean time after the start of the war are now finding their greatest worry is not lack of customers, but difficulty in obtaining the goods wanted by the swollen population. Business has joined the boom, with several new stores in the downtown section and a new laundry projected.

The old town has not seen so many and so rapid changes since Scottish pioneers first settled here in 1773 as the vanguard of highland immigrants to the Maritime Provinces.

CORRESPONDENCE TO THE EDITOR

COMMENT ON EXTRACT FROM TUCSON STAR

Lachute, Que.
July 14, 1942

Editor, The Watchman

Your extraction, "Only under the British Empire could such nonsense exist," July 9, from the Montreal Standard which was taken from the Tucson (Arizona) Star, inspired some thought.

As the article states, it would not be fair for Canada to expect equal rights with United States and Great Britain after the war if Canada did not do her share to win the war.

But who is to decide this point? The editor of the Tucson Star? I don't think that such articles should be printed unless information has been obtained to warrant such an argument. For the United States to complain that Canada has not conscripted men is bad judgment. We should be proud that we have enough boys that don't have to be conscripted. We serve without being forced. Be proud of that, Canada! Don't let the Americans try to disgrace us with articles like the above.

Taking a per capita comparison of the armies of the two countries, Canada has a larger army than the United States. Another comparison, the dates on which the two countries entered the war. We did not wait until the Axis powers were on our doorstep. No, we were in it at the start. Were the Americans?

I think that publishers should put their space to better use than creating antagonism between two allied countries. It is a scientific fact that men marching in step over a bridge can shake it down, but men walking in discord will have no effect on it. The same reasoning applies to war. If we do not fight it unified, the Axis will wipe us out, one by one. Remember, in unity is strength. And strength is what we want right now.

—Sincerely
George A. Coombes.

LETTER OF THANKS IN BEREAVEMENT

To the Community of Avoca

Dear Friends:

There are occasions on which a man finds himself at a loss for words. This was the case in my recent bereavement. When my wife left your community, her memory remained in the place where she had spent her infancy. Some of the fragrance of her life must still have lingered in her home surroundings. This was demonstrated the moment word was circulated that she was missing.

One of the thoughts that will linger upermost in my mind is the unremitting search that was made for her remains. This hazardous task was undertaken with the loss of both time and material to all who gave assistance.

I am, with the kindly co-operation of your editor, taking this unconventional method of thanking you all from the bottom of my heart. How better can I express myself than in the words, "The friends thou hast and their adoption tried, grapple them to thy soul with hooks of steel."

Please accept my sincere thanks for all that you have done in my hour of trouble.

Yours sincerely,
—Cecil R. Amy

One day, on the floor of the House of Commons at Ottawa, a member of the opposition accused Sir John of appropriating a part of the political program of the other party, declaring, "Sir John has stolen the brains of the opposition."

In an instant Sir John was on his feet, protesting. "Mr. Speaker," he cried, "the honorable member has accused me of petty larceny."

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Trois Pistoles is a pleasant Quebec town, east of Riviere du Loup, on the Halifax main line of the C.N.R. The name is said to have originated when a French mariner of the ancient days, seeking fresh water, let fall overboard a silver mug valued at three pieces called "pistoles". The name clung, and today the community has a reputation for the summer school conducted there annually by the University of Western Ontario, where undergraduates receive practical instruction in the French language.

The ladies of St. Mungo's are planning a new venture for Saturday night, July 18. — a salad tea, which they are serving in the Stone Hall in aid of the work of the church; a short programme will follow . . . Their last venture, the anniversary concert, was well attended and enjoyed by lovers of high-class entertainment, as the Rev. N. A. Keith of Lachine rendered interesting portions from Shakespeare, refreshing the minds of many of his listeners with the old familiar lines. Miss Pitkethley, of Ottawa, in humerous contrast gave excellent imitations of a Cockney lady with her husband and family en route to a picnic at the seaside, and other choice bits regarding first experiences at a base-ball game.

These Girls Enjoy Australian Climate

Somewhere in Australia (CP) — Nurses were not the only American women brought to Australia after the start of the war.

Secretaries Ruth Cunningham of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., and Ruth Anderson, of Gibbon, Neb., have been here since early March. Long-Time government employees brought out by Brigadier General Arthur R. Wilson, they had the distinction of being the only War Department employees of their sex to be sent to Australia.

How do they like it?

"Fine," said Miss Cunningham, "the people are very kind and the climate — after Washington — is wonderful."

SLIMMING NO FACTOR

London (CP) — The report of a committee which inquired into conditions in the Auxiliary Territorial Service says the girls are so robust and have gained so much in health since they joined that many of them are "simply bursting" out of the uniforms which fitted them when they were enlisted.

THE WOMAN'S PAG

By Jessie Allen Brown

FEWER MAIDS

There are more women doing without maids than I have ever known. A part of this is due to a shortage of help as girls have left house-work and gone in to other work. A greater part of it is due to the fact that women can no longer afford to keep help. Salaries have not gone up even though prices have. Then there are the many whose husband's business has been affected by the War, until in some cases there is no longer any business. The class of people who keep help are generally those who take their responsibilities seriously, and increased giving, and the buying of War Bonds, to say nothing of their taxes, have left them with much less to pay their living expenses. Many women are enjoying the freedom they have while maidless. You are generally supposed to be free if you keep a maid. That is so in some things but one's home is run in many ways to suit a maid. One of the freedom's is to eat whenever you want to, and to linger as long as you want after a meal, especially when there are guests. One is mentally putting on the gas to increase the speed so that the maid can get at the dishes and get out. There are compensations and draw-backs in most everything.

NUTRITION IN ADVERTISING

Advertising is quick to take hold of what is in the mind of the public. Have you noticed the amount of advertising that is concerned with nutrition these days? Not only food Companies but many others. There is a lot to be learned from these. Sometimes they are misleading. They tell the truth alright but their comparisons are turned to their favor. They may tell you that their product has so many more of a certain vitamin than some other good food. That may be true but they have picked out a food which is low in that particular vitamin. This is not always the case but it has occurred frequently, However, there is valuable information in many advertisements, and you would do well to study them.

NO TEA FOR GARDEN-PARTIES

Women are puzzled what to do about their annual garden-parties and teas for money-making purposes. The Government has asked us not to serve tea or coffee, nor to sell things which require sugar, to raise money. I feel we have no right to continue these affairs and serve tea, even though we do reduce the amount of tea used. Any homecooking using any sugar at all should not be put for sale. It is still possible to serve refreshments. Drinks made with fruit juices and sweetened with corn syrup can be served. Everyone likes sandwiches, so why not limit the refreshments to sandwiches. It is time we changed our attitude towards a number of things and realize we cannot continue to do things as we did in peace time.

A WORD OF WARNING

Just because the weather is hot don't feel you must go without food. There are many who work harder in summer than at any other time and they need to be well fed. There will be more people working hard this year than usual and to have sufficient energy one must have enough food. Naturally, we like to have more fruit and vegetables but we must have the protein foods too. If you do without meat some days, then see that it is replaced with eggs, fish or cheese.

RUBBER BATHING SUITS

Those who still have rubber bathing suits will need to take the best of care of them. When you put it on, roll it, step in to it, then pull up gently without tugging. It should be rinsed in clear cold water after each wearing. Then dry it in a towel and when it is thoroughly dry, shake a little talcum in it. Never hang it near the heat to dry, and keep it in a cool dry place. Good care will lengthen the life of the precious rubber swim suit.

RASPBERRY MARLOW

1½ Cups raspberries, ¼ lb. (16 marshmallows) ½ cup dates, thinly sliced, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped.

Crush the berries thoroughly and heat with marshmallows, over hot water, until the marshmallows are melted. Add dates and chill. Fold in the whipped cream and freeze without stirring.

PRESSED CORN BEEF

Wash a 4 lb. solid piece of corned simmer until tender, about three hours. Let cool in water, then beef. Cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Remove scum and drain. Put on a large plate and cover with another plate, and weigh down with a heavy weight (an iron or even a stone will do). Let stand in the refrigerator for 24 hours. This will slice well.

Culinary Cues

Ethel M. Chapman is a native of Halton County and a distinguished graduate of Macdonald College. She is the author of several delightful books and editor of the Home Section of the Farmer's Magazine. She is an expert in matters relating to nutrition and food conservation and will make this her subject when she appears as guest speaker on the National Farm Radio Forum, Monday, July 20, at 8.30 p.m., E.D.T.

BEAUTY

—Helen Jameson, Mme. Qui Vive—

SHAMPOOING THE HAIR

The beauty industry, which extracts millions of dollars from our purses every year, has a grievance. When you get your hair done you'll be sure to hear about it. The vogue for coiffures with smooth crowns and rolls, or smooth crowns and ringlets, has resulted in a frenzy for home shampooing.

When the finger wave flourished, the hairwash had to have professional attention. Not now. They soap the pretty mop, do it up on metal curlers that keep them awake and miserable all night, save their money for ice cream sodas or what have you?

Economy and thrift are worthy virtues, but one wonders just how the brain wool is faring. Girls of school age can't be expected to know much about getting tresses shining clean, are likely to do a hurried job, and the effects then would be debilitating to the glorious mop — as soap scum is a menace. If they feel that they must reduce the beauty budget, let them heed these suggestions on shampooing.

Three needs there are: the right kind of soap, a bath spray with a current of water strong enough to knock you down, plenty of energy.

There are soaps that adapt themselves agreeably to the skin, but that do not act favorably upon the hair. Beauty shop owners are fussy about shampoo mediums; the right ones rinse out quickly and easily, others cling to the hair shafts and in time make the permanent wave limp.

To rub a bar of soap on the head — as the members of the male sex —is to have an unsatisfactory head washing. Take a bar the size of ordinary toilet soap, place in a quart mason jar, add a scant one-half teaspoonful of borax, fill the jar with boiling water, let stand three days before using. You will have enough soapy liquid for six or eight shampoos. After you pour off the clear top portion to use, add more water to the remainder.

Brush the hair well, massage the scalp for several minutes.

Use the bath spray before soaping so as to remove surface dust. Use some of the soap, distributing it well. Be lavish with the elbow grease. A half-hearted shampoo is no good at all. Rinse well with the spray, having the water as hot as you can bear it. Fluff up a second lather and rinse that away.

Have at hand a quart of water to which three tablespoonfuls of vinegar have been added; pour over the head. Then for a final rinsing. Don't have the water cold if you have a permanent; the hair won't curl as well as when the water is warm. Give the scalp a friction before winding the ends of the hair on curlers.

"Thank you, madam," said the counsel at the end of a long cross-examination. "I hope I have not troubled you unduly with all those questions."

"Not at all," replied the witness. "I have two small children at home."

For women's shoes a fashion writer suggests an adjustable heel. Something, say like Laval.

BRITISH CHILDREN LEARN ABOUT "AMERICAN WAY"

British teachers are going to school these days to learn about the American way of life, past and present. When they have finished their courses in American history and literature, arts and politics, social and domestic habits, they will relay their knowledge to the children of Britain.

"We must teach our children that America is not just another England or another Europe," said the Rt. Hon. R. A. Butler, President of the British Board of Education. "It is a country of its own, which developed a civilization in many ways not like any other — a new way of regarding things which we must enable our children to understand imaginatively and mentally."

It was American Ambassador John G. Winant who opened last July in London the first in a series of short courses for teachers on the United States of America. By May of this year there had been twelve such courses for teachers at different centres, with around 2,500 teachers enrolled in at least one.

"This is a small percentage of the total number of British teachers," Said Mr. Butler, "but it will suffice to ensure that in most secondary schools and in some elementary schools in every area there will be teachers who have had the opportunity to extend their knowledge of the United States. They will act as a focus for further local study groups or courses which may be arranged."

The Local Education Authorities leave it to the teachers to frame their own syllabuses for American studies in their schools. There has been some experimenting in the best lines of approach with the pupils. One interesting example was "America Week" held recently by the Solihull High School for Girls, in Warwickshire. It was directed by the headmistress, who had attended one of the Education Board's short courses, and by a staff member who had been an exchange teacher in an Illinois High School.

During the week a series of talks was given on topics ranging from travel, holiday and lecture experiences to education, home life, social customs and the position of women in America. A display was arranged to illustrate the geography, history and natural history of the United States. Two rooms set aside for reading were equipped with American books and magazines. The pupils afterward wrote essays on, "What Impressed and Interested Me Most in America Week."

Other schools made similar experiments, and one in southeast London held an American Speech Day.

Already there is an increase in the demand for books on the United States. Educational Publishers have responded, in spite of wartime restrictions on output, with textbooks and teachers' handbooks.

The theme of this new trend was sounded last summer by the Board of Education in a memorandum issued to all schools. ". . . It is well that the children of England should learn something of the ideals that inspire that nation (the United States), of the men that shaped its history, and of the forces that are working to bring her to our side in our greatest need."

To further the movement, Mr. Butler urges a large-scale post-war interchange of British and American teachers. "Our whole foreign policy since the last war would have been better if we had been thoroughly grounded in a knowledge, not only of the United States, but of Europe," he said.

100—SHE DEFIES NAZIS

Great Yarmouth, Eng.(CP) — Mrs. Eliza Holmes, centenarian who was bombed out of two homes after being evacuated from here, has returned to her old home. "I'm not leaving here again for anyone —including the Germans."

Housewives are now urged to give all their surplus fat to the government, and, gosh, how a lot of them only wish they could.

AIRWOMEN PERFORM NUMEROUS DUTIES

Women's Auxiliary Air Force Now Has 100,000 Members

London (CP) — The Women's Auxiliary Air Force, a struggling infant when Hitler went marching into Poland, now is 100,000 strong and three years old.

It celebrated its birthday with a parade of 1,000 W.A.A.F.'s, trim in their blue uniforms, in London. They marched past Air Commandant Trefusis-Forbes who was on hand for the first public appearance of the W.A.A.F. at a defence rally in London, July 2, 1939, when it was decided they should be uniformed as they are today.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal was the one who decided the W.A.A.F. should wear blue instead of the khaki worn by the Women's Royal Air Force which operated in the First Great War.

Just to show how the W.A.A.F. has grown, it had only five trades when it was organized and now it embraces 54, from laundering to navigational charting for airmen flying out at sea.

Air Commandant Trefusis-Forbes was in the ranks of the Women's Volunteer Reserve in 1915 and was a company commander in the A.T.S. in 1938. The W.A.A.F. was formed from the 48 Royal Air Force companies of the A.T.S.

Incidentally, one of the latest W.A.A.F. recruits is Lady Jean Bruce of Kirkcaldy, Scotland. She is a 19-year-old direct descendant of King Robert the Bruce, the man who watched a spider try again and again and then, inspired by its example went out and fought and won.

Red Cross Arrangement To Supply Jams, Jellies For British Isles

With the increasing restrictions on sugar, both in Canada and in Great Britain, the Quebec Division of the Red Cross has undertaken to provide for this shortage by supplying jam and honey to the people of the British Isles.

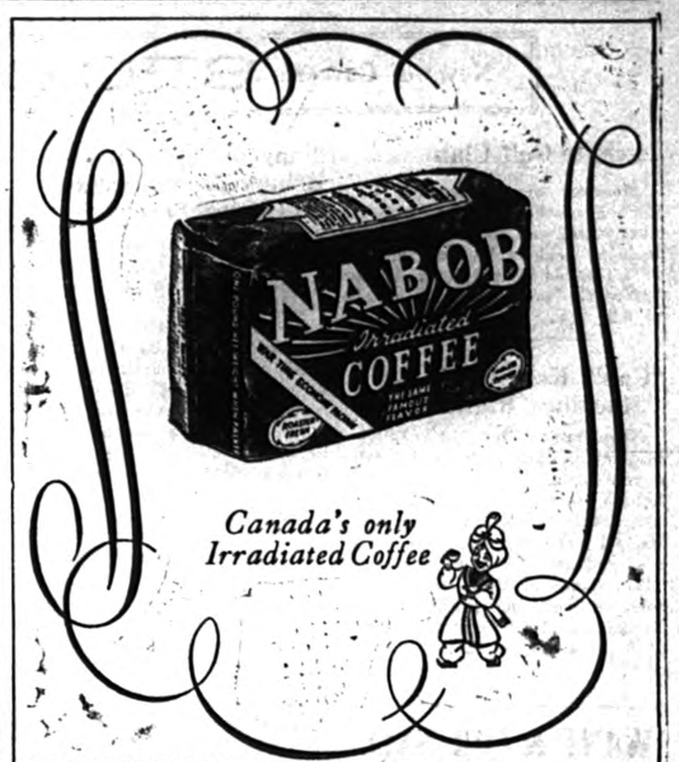

Working in co-operation with the Women's Institutes and the Cercles des Fermières in Quebec an objective of 42,000 pounds of jam has been set. The Red Cross will provide the pails, each holding two and a half pounds, and the Women's Institute and Cercles des Fermières will supervise the canning of the fruit. Strawberries, raspberries, blueberries and other such edibles will be utilized, as well as apple jelly and honey later in the season.

The Red Cross is already in touch with apple growing associations in the province as well as the honey producing organizations, seeking co-operation in the project which aims to provide for the shortage of sugar overseas. The Red Cross is also seeking the assistance of people throughout the province in providing the fruit for jam and jelly.

Residents are asked to contact their nearest Red Cross Branch or the local Women's Institute, who will welcome donations of fruit to be preserved. Shipment will then be made to Red Cross House in Montreal from where the jam, jelly and honey will be forwarded overseas for distribution.

During 1941 the Canadian Red Cross in various provinces preserved and shipped to the British Isles a total of 450,000 pounds of jams and jellies.

This year the objective has been raised to 500,000 pounds, following a request from the overseas office of the Society, where officials stressed the need for larger quantities to make up for the sugar shortage in the diet of Britishers during the coming winter.

BUSY WOMAN PLANS RUBBER FROM CANE

Fulfilment of Scheme Will Release Material for the Manufacture of Tires

Belle Grade Fla. (CP) — Deep in the heart of the Everglades there's a little woman with a big idea.

Mrs. Ruth S. Wedgeworth has rubber on the brain.

Already she is one of the biggest independent farmers in the Glades. She operates single-handed three farms, a packing house with 200 employees and a fertilizer plant that mixes more than 2,000 tons of fertilizer yearly. Mother of three children, she still finds time to act as bank director, steward of her church and director of a hospital.

But all that is not enough. Mrs. Wedgeworth is convinced that in the rich Everglades farm country is the solution to America's synthetic rubber problem. She plans to make it from sugar cane, peanuts and sweet potatoes.

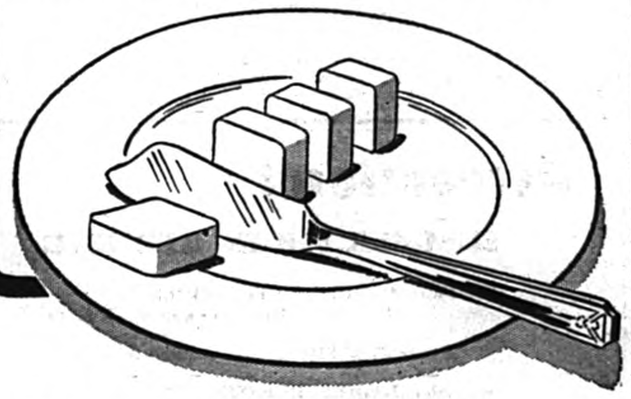

Right now she heads a committee of Florida farmers who have pledged themselves to plant 100,000 acres of America's Sugar Bowl to these three crops — object rubber.

The plan originated by the United States Sugar Corporation, calls for a $75,000,000 project. And all Mrs. Wedgeworth and her fellow farmers are waiting for is an official "go" sign from Washington.

As proposed to the Federal Government by Clarence R. Bitting, president of the sugar company, the farmers and corporation would put up a third of the cost and the government the balance for the construction of processing plants and shipping facilities. Mrs. Wedgeworth's farm group has reacted favorably to her committee's first report on the proposal by sending an enthusiastic endorsement to official Washington, ask-that the way be cleared and necessary priorities granted for the purpose.

No claims have been made that the elastic from the vegetable matters is any good for tires. In its present state of development, however, they say it is oil resistant and can be used for protective coating for textile fabrics for gas masks, balloons, pontoons, and tarpaulins. In this way other rubber used for these purposes could be released for the manufacture of tires.

BUTTER is four Pats a Week in Britain

HITLER chose "Guns instead of butter." So the Nazis have guns! We must catch up . . . and beat them.

They tortured people to make them save. We must save willingly.

So it's up to us, each one of us, to economize of our own free will . . . to economize and buy War Savings Stamps so that we can outstrip our enemies with planes and tanks and guns and ships . . . so that our soldiers may be better equipped than the enemy they have to conquer.

Women must help by economizing in the kitchen, by patching and darning, by shopping carefully and cutting out waste. Make up your mind now to buy one, two, five or more War Savings Stamps every week. You can. You must!

"Can't Keep Their Stockings Right"

New York, July 13 (AP) — Mayor LaGuardia observed in the course of a radio interview that British women seem unable to wear their stockings properly. He had just praised the attractiveness and dress of New York girls. "The women of Great Britain are rosy cheeked and healthy," said LaGuardia, "but somehow they can't seem to keep their stockings right."

'Song of the Islands' Brings Tropic Scenes To Capitol Screen

Visitors to Hollywood studios who have heard tall tales of the tricks of the camera trade, are usually amazed to find that Hollywood outdoes itself to provide authentic backgrounds and sets.

Of course an artificial flower here and there is not going to make much difference one way or the other, but when a company invests its money in some set which they feel is going to be a permanent part of the studio's property, it builds for the future.

Such a set for instance, is the island lagoon and harbor used in 20th Century-Fox's "Song of the Islands" which in its basic form is a permanent adjunct of the studio.

You may have seen it in many films which include a waterfront pond, which, with the addition of several four-masters, or a batch of palm trees, or various other flora and fauna, suddenly blossoms forth as any one of the four corners of the world.

In Song of the Islands, booked for the Capitol program of July 31-Aug.1, the lagoon had to be converted into the harbor of a tropical island which forms the background for the romantic byplay of Betty Grable and Victor Mature. The use of technicolor made it imperative that authenticity be followed to the letter, for what might not show up in black and white would reveal itself in color.

Other players in this unusual technicolor musical include Jack Oakie, Thomas Mitchell, George Barbier, Billy Gilbert, Hilo Hattie and Harry Owens and his Royal Hawaiians.

"Miss Farmerette, 1942" Radio Review of Farm Service Force, Niagara

School children, business executives, young housewives and a whole brigade of white collar workers who ordinarily take their vacations in summer resorts near and far, have shown their determination to hasten victory by foregoing the easy pleasures of boating and swimming this year. They have gone to the aid of the Canadian farmer and their services are going to add important ammunition to Canada's fighting machine.

The responsibility of making every acre yield double is the farmer's; the task of gathering in the crops has become the city's dweller's.

On Saturday, July 25 at 8.30 p.m. EDT, the doings at the Ontario Farm Service Force camps will be reviewed briefly during a broadcast in which "Miss Farmerette of 1942" will be crowned in the presence of the Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone. The Hon. P. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture, for the Province of Ontario, will address the listeners and Harry J. Boyle, Ontario Farm Commentator, will interview the lucky young landworker who is chosen for the current year's honors.

Gestapo Agent in 'Joan of Paris' Acts From Experience

Alex Granach, who was one of Europe's foremost character actors before the war, had no trouble at all with his new Hollywood movie role.

Granach, whose political views caused Hitler's Gestapo to hound him from country to country knows all there is to know about the part assigned to him in RKO Radio's wartime drama, "Joan of Paris", which co-stars Michele Morgan and Paul Henreid at the Rex Theatre here next Sunday and Monday.

He portrays a Gestapo agent . . Forced to flee Berlin when the brown-shirted Nazis seized power, Granach was just making a new reputation for himself in Vienna when Hitler's troops invaded Austria. The actor escaped to Warsaw, found an acting post there and was doing quite well when the German hordes ravaged that hapless country.

Granach's next stop was Moscow. This was before Hitler began his Russian campaign, and the German officials in the Russian capital brought so much pressure, that the harried actor was compelled to leave.

He finally worked his way to Hollywood, where he managed to find an occasional role until he heard that Producer David Hempstead and Director Robert Stevenson were looking for someone to do the part of the Gestapo man in "Joan of Paris".

The role is a rather important one. A friend told him that the part called for a timid, little type of man, who is viciously mild. Armed with this information, Granach presented himself at the office of Producer Hempstead for an audition. And, being a fine actor, he was the epitome of mildness—

Strangely, Hempstead was totally unimpressed—.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Granach," he told the applicant, "But you don't seem to be the type. What we want is a fellow who scares you when you just look at him!"

Granach, who has faced more than one emergency during his long and distinguished career, did some quick thinking and an even quicker change of character!

"So," he roared at the producer, leering like a cross between Frankenstein and The Shadow, "So I'm not the type, eh?"

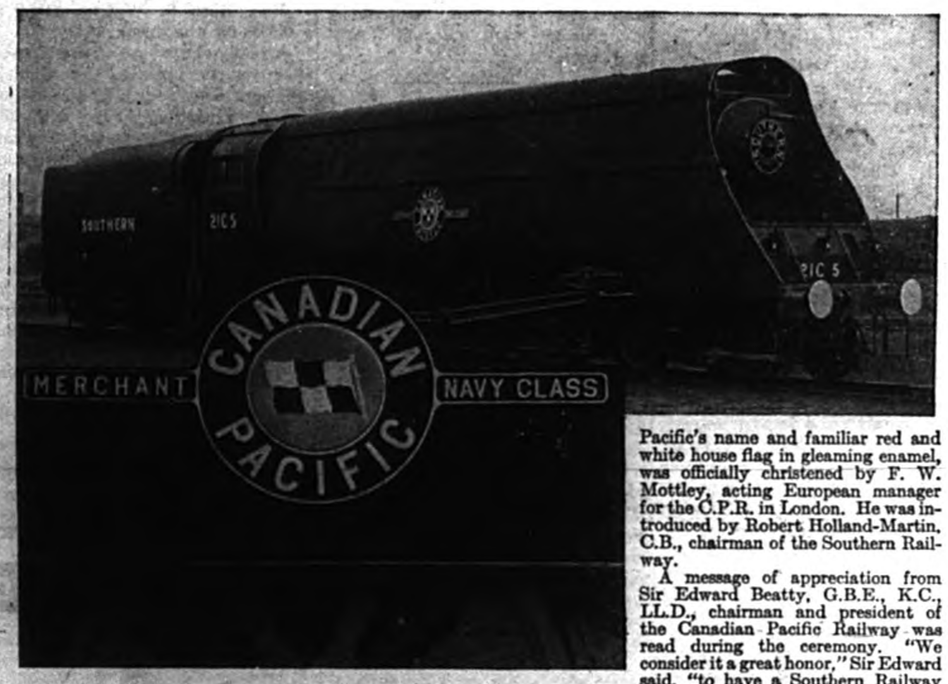

Hempstead backed up in alarm. Then a smile of appreciation replaced the startled look on his face.

"Well," he said, "maybe I was wrong. Right now you seem just the type. There's only one thing wrong."

"What?" asked Granach, somewhat less vehemently.

"I'll give you the part," said the producer, "but you'll have to eliminate your terrifying sound effects. You see, you have to act a menace throughout the picture — without speaking a single line!"

Pacific's name and familiar red and white house flag in gleaming enamel, was officially christened by F. W. Mottley, acting European manager for the C.P.R. in London. He was introduced by Robert Holland-Martin, C.B., chairman of the Southern Railway.

A message of appreciation from Sir Edward Beatty, G.B.E., K.C., LL.D., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway was read during the ceremony. "We consider it a great honor," Sir Edward said, "to have a Southern Railway locomotive designated 'Canadian Pacific' and look upon it as a tribute to the men of our own fleet who have lost their lives at sea or are still serving heroically."

A glimpse of the "Canadian Pacific" appears above, while inset is shown the engine's glittering nameplate with the chequered house flag of the company's steamships. Designed for both passenger and freight service, the new engine will be clad in "battledress" for the duration, after which it will appear in the glamorous green that characterizes the Southern Railway's engines in peacetime.

Engine Bears Canadian Name On Britain's Southern Railway

THIS newest and smartest of British locomotives, the fifth in the new "Merchant Navy" series built and operated by the Southern Railway, was appropriately named "Canadian Pacific" at a ceremony recently in Victoria Station, London, in the presence of a guard of honor and officials of both the Canadian Pacific and the Southern Railways. The latter company, one of Britain's great railways, conceived the happy idea of naming each of these engines after one of the steamship companies serving the port of Southampton, peacetime berth of the Canadian Pacific's great white Empresses, which in war-time camouflage are now acquitting themselves with notable gallantry.

The powerful new locomotive, whose streamlined sides bear the Canadian Regulations requiring Canadian soldiers to have $160 in accumulated pay and wait for a cooling-off period of three months before marrying British girls, didn't faze Private James McBride of Sioux City, Iowa, stationed in England.

Within a week after the regulations were made, he was ready to wed. He had the necessary amount and his commanding officer had given him permission to marry three months before. His wedding to Private Kathleen Purcell, of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, was the first marriage under the new regulations.

McBride, 23 a dispatch rider in the Canadian Army Service Corps, was serving in the United States Army when war started in Europe. He applied for a release, came to Canada to enlist and went to Britain with the first contingent of Canadian soldiers. He intends to take his bride to Arizona after the war.

Tank Car or Truck For Hauling Milk

Toronto, July 8 (CP) — Consideration is being given to the hauling of milk by tank car or truck, rather than milk cans, in an effort to reduce haulage costs, Controller Robert H. Saunders told a deputation of the Toronto Housewives Association. "I understand Ottawa is considering the hauling of milk in tank cars or tank trucks. It is being done in some of the big cities of the United States and it would bring about a reduction in haulage costs," Controller Saunders stated.

Unrest in Factories; Strike Continues at Dom. Shuttle Co., New Walk-Out at Textile Mills

Agitators Cause Considerable Damage to Office and Plant Premises at Shuttle Co.

The strike at Dominion Shuttle Company Ltd. took an aggravated turn last week-end when, during absence of Provincial Police guards who had been stationed at the works for several days, strikers stoned the buildings, breaking the large plate windows and at least 49 smaller panes of glass. The police, a force of four provincial officers under Capt. E. Auger, had beendetailed to maintain order since the first indications of violence a day or two earlier, when the strikers barricaded the public thoroughfare with railway ties and menaced certain workers not in sympathy with their agitations.

It is recalled that the day after the strike was called, July 7, representations were made by the workers to the management of the firm. The men, with an inspector of the Regional Labor Board, in reply received a proposition covering increase of wages to certain classifications among the plant workers. This proposition was not accepted, and the strike involving 218 employees has continued, tying up production in the various departments.

Prior to the outbreak last week-end, when the strikers caused considerable damage to the premises, the most spectacular of their demonstrations were several torch-light parades at night, starting from the Auditorium and Memorial Park where the men have been congregating.

The local organization of strikers is known as Unit 2632 of the United Brotherhood of Joiners and Carpenters of America. Roland Bonin is the local president, John Deschamps vice-president, and Felix Brisebois financial secretary.

It is understood that the Unit called a strike while negotiations were under way with Dominion Shuttle Company for increases in pay, and that the Quebec Labor Board officials refused to undertake further arbitrations unless the men returned to work. The employees' demands were said to stipulate a 20 cent general increase on the hourly rates of pay; this, the management considered, was excessive.

Enquiry into the wages paid at this plant indicates that they measure up to, and in many instances exceed, the schedule of pay demanded by ordinance 30 of the Quebec Labor Law. There were, admittedly, three or four youths receiving only 21.4 cents an hour; 40 per cent of the employees however were paid 31 cents an hour and over, while the remainder received 50 cents and upwards.

Plant officials appealed to the Attorney General's department for police protection when barricades were placed across the thoroughfare; it was at a stage when the police guard was relaxed, that the demonstrations became more violent. The Company's new office building suffered heaviest damage, when the plate windows were stoned.

Up till noon today, Thursday, differences between the management and the employees were no nearer to a settlement.

union committee of the United Textile Workers of Canada, since the agreement on which they resumed work after their last dispute is still unexpired, having the effect of a contract with the firm's directorate.

A meeting between the management and the workers' representatives was held this morning. The latter presented their demands, which are at present under consideration; it is expected many of the strikers will return promptly to their work and that a satisfactory settlement will be reached within a short time.

Strike at Mill of Ayers Limited

A walk-out at Ayers Limited textile mills occurred yesterday afternoon. About 60 per cent of the employees in different departments of the mills left work. It is reported they made this move on instigation of their local organizers but against the advice of their

NEW PHONE DIRECTORY ISSUED FOR DISTRICT

Featured by a buff cover of somewhat different design, Lachute's new telephone directory is being delivered to local subscribers this week. This cover will make it easier to distinguish the new book from the old, and will alternate with the green one used in the last issue.

Since there are more than 4,100 new and changed listings in the alphabetical section alone, the importance of consulting the new book carefully before placing calls is obvious, if the "wrong number" nuisance is to be avoided.

To prevent errors, the old directory should be discarded promptly on receipt of the new one. It has been suggested that it be included with other paper to be contributed to the national salvage campaign. In order further to assist in conserving paper, those who are moving should not forget to take their telephone directories with them, instead of obtaining a new one.

It is interesting to note that the Dominion Post Office collects well over $10,000 a year for delivering the directories of The Bell Telephone Company of Canada. In the largest cities, books are distributed by messenger, but all the smaller deliveries are made through His Majesty's Mail.

Hon. T. D. Bouchard Visits Town, Irons Out Contention With Waterworks Contractors

Firm to Proceed with Repairing of Streets Government Dept. Will Undertake Paving

The Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Quebec Minister of Roads, made a personal visit and enquiry last Friday afternoon at Brownsburg, where the roads situation, since the laying of sewers and water-mains, has been a contentious subject between the Town Corporation and the contractors. The Minister's visit was arranged through the representations of the Hon. G. E. Dansereau, M.L.A. for Argenteuil, who accompanied his senior cabinet colleague to look over the conditions and to confer with Mayor G. A. Ball and the councillors of Brownsburg.

Trouble had arisen through a deadlock with the contracting firm, Legacé & Belanger, who declined to complete their agreement and restore the thoroughfares to the condition they were in prior to excavation work. The firm felt justified in their stand since there had been a promise given by the provincial department to surface the roads in this busy industrial centre, and unless some agreement might be reached the contractors' work would be futile when the province later started surfacing operations. An alternative plan was an agreement to share expenses, and either the government or the contractors undertake the entire job.

At this stage the matter had stood for some time, with the water and sewer installation more or less complete, up to final details of street drainage. This was one of the factors which precipitated a showdown, for during the recent storms many property holders had complained of flooding in their basements. One citizen, a hotel proprietor, had gone so far as to institute proceedings for damages against the municipality. The trouble has been that, owing to loose gravel, uneven surface and no established sidewalk lines, up to this point it has not been practical to lay catch-basins into the storm sewers. Rains have therefore caused flooding, and meanwhile the roads, already in a deplorable state, have been further cut up and washed away.

A deadline, on which the contractors were to decide or proceed with this roadwork, had passed, and the Hon. T. D. Bouchard took up the matter virtually as arbiter between the municipality, the province and the contractors. Meeting with the council in the Brownsburg Social Club after generally viewing the situation, he recommended that the contractors proceed with their part at once, repair the streets and instal drains into sewers. There are 11 catch-basins to be introduced and, as extras to the contract, drain facilities for several "dead ends" and other minor incidentals. It is understood the Hon. Bouchard had in mind a possible shortage of material and labor for immediate paving by the Government, but he gave assurance his Department would go ahead this season with the least possible delay, and it is believed the highway from Lachute to Brownsburg will be similarly dealt with.

The city fathers expressed general satisfaction with the interview; they believe it has furnished a remedy for at least one of their immediate worries.

Secret Hearing on St. Lawrence and Discussion On 'Drew Letter' May Prolong Ottawa Session

Startling Hint on U-Boat Activities, Lt.- Col. Drew's Charges on Hong Kong Inquiry, Stir Furore in the House

Three Sittings A Day as Commons Clear the Decks for Adjournment

By GEORGE KITCHEN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 22 (CP) — The House of Commons is operating on a basis of three sittings a day in hopes of clearing the decks for adjournment this week-end but political observers are of a couple of minds as to whether the members can make the deadline.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the chamber a meeting of party leaders had set the end of this week as the objective for adjournment. The announcement drew a chorus of desk-thumping approval from the members.

But that was before the "Drew Letter" incident stirred up a heated discussion between party chieftains and threatened to prolong the forthcoming debate on the Hong Kong inquiry report. The letter, criticizing the report, was sent to Mr. King by Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader and one of the inquiry counsel.

The objective-setting announcement also came before J. S. Roy (Ind., Gaspe) threw the house into a dither by demanding the secret session to discuss U-boat activities in the St. Lawrence river, which sweeps past the front door of his constituency.

An announcement by Speaker James A. Glen after the secret sitting, which took up all of last Saturday, said the discussion was devoted to "the question of coastal defence." The situation was explained by Defence Minister Ralston, Air Minister Power and Navy Minister Macdonald.

Press and public were excluded from the sitting and guards were posted at the entrance to the chamber.

Since then, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House Leader, has expressed his intention of using the Drew letter, of which he has a copy, as the basis for his remarks during the Hong Kong debate. Others who have access to the document undoubtedly will do the same. In fact, Defence Minister Ralston said in the House he was sure a great many members could use the arguments put forth in the letter to "their hearts' content—make them their own."

May Sit Next Week

There are some observers who feel that a prolonged Hong Kong debate will carry the session past the deadline into next week. A few say that if that happens the House may sit another week.

On the other hand, some spectators believe that the debate-weary members will make short work of the business on tap and be ready and willing to rise at the appointed hour.

On top of the Hong Kong debate, the House entered the week with civil estimates to be dealt with and with third reading still to be given to the so-called "Conscription" Bill, which amends the National Resources Mobilization act to make compulsory overseas military service possible by order-in-council.

Discussion over the Drew letter arose when Mr. King refused to table the document in the House after agreeing to do so at the request of Mr. Coldwell, who said he would take the responsibility. Mr. King said he had received legal advice that the 32-page letter was a violation of the order of secrecy under which the inquiry was held.

Two days later Mr. King told the House he had received a second letter from Col. Drew which he also declined to table because it was in the same category as the first. In the second letter, Col. Drew demanded that the Hong Kong report and his own criticism of it be "tested on the basis of the record."

A Secret Session

The second major political development of the week was Saturday's secret session. It came after Mr. Roy said information in his possession indicated all was not well in the St. Lawrence area. Supporting his proposal, Mr. Hanson asserted that he, like Mr. Roy, had received reports of a "startling nature".

During the budget discussion, Arthur Slaught (Lib., Parry Sound) trod on Finance Minister. Ilsley's toes when he suggested that Mr. Ilsley relieve the burden of the taxpayers by issuing $1,200,000,000 of new Bank of Canada money—a proposal similar to that consistently advanced by New Democracy members.

Declaring that he would rather leave the government than attempt to finance the war in that manner, Mr. Ilsley said that "if we put $1,000,000,000 of new money into circulation it would blow that price ceiling to kingdom come." He went on: "Any person who thinks we could issue $1,000,000,000 without the wildest kind of inflation is making a terrible mistake."

Mr. Hanson indicated that he was interested in what Mr. Slaught said, although affirming his "old fashioned" ideas on such matters.

SPENT HALF A CENTURY AMONG LITTLE KNOWN AINU RACE

INTERESTING VISITOR AT ST. ANDREWS EAST

St. Andrews E.—This village has been honored by the presence of a distinguished visitor, Archdeacon John Batchelor, O.B.E., who worked as a missionary for 64 years in Japan. He left that country about 11months ago, planning to go to England, whence he had started out in 1876 to go as a missionary to Hong Kong. He had to leave Hong Kong owing to fever and so he elected to go to Japan. He learned Japanese and also the language of the Ainus, among whom he labored for more than half a century. He is considered the world's leading authority on the anthropology of the Ainu race, the aboriginals of Japan. These people, who have been repressed constantly by the Japanese, now number only about 15,000 and most of these are half-breeds. Archdeacon Batchelor is the compiler of the only dictionary in the Ainu language. His studies had led him to believe that the Ainu race were true Aryans, being descended from a branch of the Caucasians.

Archdeacon Batchelor is accompanied by his niece, Miss F. R. Andrews, who also was a missionary to Japan.

July Activities in Four Branches of County W. Inst.

Women's Institute activities for the month of July are reported by the following branches:

Brownsburg held a Grandmothers' Social Evening, at which 14 members and four visitors were present. A household groceries contest was won by Mrs. Campbell, and a bean guessing contest by Mrs. Ball. A profit of $24.70 was realized on the drawing of a quilt, Mrs. Wynan McGibbon being the winner. A sale of home-cooking realized $6.63.

Frontier held a picnic meeting in Mr. E. Whelehan's grove. Sports for the children were the order of the afternoon, with prizes given by the Branch. Plans were made for future entertainments in aid of the Institute work.

Pioneer paid tribute to a late member, Mrs. John Fraser, who passed away on June 23. A paper by Mrs. Hooker on the Beet Sugar Industry was read. Mrs. Baugh, county president, gave an interesting talk on the work of the Institute and the Convention at Macdonald College. Australia was the topic chosen by Mrs. J. MacKenzie, and Mrs. Geo. Armstrong spoke on the saving of sugar; $8 was donated to the Mental Hygiene Fund for work overseas.

Upper Lachute - East End heard a report of the Provincial Convention. A sick member was remembered. Plans were made for holding a basket picnic during August; $5 was donated towards the County Scholarship. Miss Cyr drew the winning ticket on a quilt.

MINER-PADRE GETS D.S.O.

London (CP)—Neville Metcalfe, 28-year-old miner-padre who believed that work at the coalface was a better means of understanding his people than preaching in the pulpit, has been awarded the D.S.O. for gallantry during the Burma retreat.

Recovering from Injuries Inflicted by Enraged Bull

St. Andrews E. — Col. L. M. Hooker, Lachute Road, is recovering from an injury to his leg, suffered recently when he was gored by a bull in his barn. Fortunately, after being knocked down, Col. Hooker was able to roll out of reach of the animal.

SALVAGE DRIVE RECORD FOR THE SCOUTS OF WOODSTOCK, N.B.

What probably is a salvage record for a junior organization was made by the fifty Boy Scouts of the 1st and 2nd Woodstock, N.B., Scout troops. In a salvage drive throughout the town and district lasting from 8 a.m. to midnight they filled a warehouse with material of all kinds to the value of $600. The first $100 received was presented to the Red Cross. The Scouts launched the salvage campaign when adults failed to move, and are now handling it as the official salvage organization.

Federal Bridge Tolls May Be Lifted Soon

Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Minister of Roads and Public Works, at the government offices in Montreal, stated he had talked with C. D. Howe at Ottawa over the week-end in regard to the two federally-controlled bridges—the Victoria and the Harbour—on which tolls are still being exacted. There are also five municipally-owned bridges in the province on which tolls are collected, and the provincial government, following abolition of tolls on its own bridges last session, is now anxious to have a full clearance of the system.

The prospects were encouraging, said Mr. Bouchard, as to the latest Ottawa conversations.

Lions' Field Day Nets $764. for Cigarette Fund

MEETING HELD AT THE LACHUTE GOLF CLUB

Meeting at the Lachute Golf Club last week, members of the Lions Club were presented with a very encouraging report by Lion Phil Roy on their Field Day, held recently. This event yielded a total net profit of $764.11 for the Club's cigarette fund.

President J. S. Giles and Past President Phil Roy were delegated to represent Lachute at the Lions' International Convention in Toronto this week.

A troop of 40 Belgian Boy Scouts took part in a Scout rally at Buxton, Derbyshire, attended by the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire.

Loading Up a "Beaufighter" Aircraft

With the R.A.F. twin-engined "Beaufighter", R.A.F. fighter aircraft are now able to reach out over an extreme range of 1,500 miles. The "Beaufighter" manned by a crew of two, pilot and an observer, is one of the most heavily armed of the R.A.F. fighter aircraft. Picture shows a "Beaufighter" at a station in the North being given its deadly load of machine-gun and cannon ammunition.

News Photo Display At Recreation Hall

Brownsburg, July 21 —

A display of news photos describing events and recent happenings in Canada and other countries, is to be seen at the Recreation Hall. These photographs, with English and French captions, are changed at least once a week.

The subjects they treat range from the introduction of new methods in war industry to the Armed Forces; visits paid to the Canadian Capital by the Crowned heads of European Countries that have staked their lot with the United Nations; scenes that tell the story of the inhabitants of an ordinary little village in the South of England; the devastation caused by air raids on the other side, and other aspects of the war.

Field Day Held By Boys' Brigade For Local Lads

CAMP CLOSING CEREMONY TOMORROW EVENING

St. Andrews E.—The Boys' Brigade in camp here arranged a field day for the boys of the town Wednesday afternoon. The visitors were requested to bring lunch, and supper took the form of a picnic, thus giving opportunity for good fellowship. The sports events were held on the farm of Albert Dorion, Riverview Dairy, and an interesting evening program was planned, featuring a camp-fire and sing-song, with stunts.

The Brigade paraded last Sunday morning, led by their band, to the United Church, where the Rev. J. Mowatt delivered an inspiring address based upon the theme of "Courage". In the evening, the boys attended the Presbyterian Church, where the Rev. Dr. MacMillan gave an equally inspiring message on "Faith, Hope and Duty", basing his theme upon the Brigade insignia of the Anchor. Both services featured the Brigade hymns, "Underneath the Banner of the Cross Arrayed", and "Will Your Anchor Hold".

The Camp welcomed Frank Tock as an additional camper this week, and Sgt. Edwin Goring returned for the week-end.

Some of the boys have taken interesting cycle trips to Oka Beach, Cushing and many of the surrounding points of interest, and other tours are on this week's schedule. Many camp improvement projects have been completed, including the camp entrance gate.

The camp closing ceremony will take place on Friday evening, when all awards will be presented.

We have seen a lot in this war of plans to make officers and men in the army "tough" but we haven't read a word about the sergeant-majors.

SCIENTISTS WORK WARTIME WONDERS

Those in Agricultural Field Make Big Contribution to War Effort

Washington, July 20 (CP) — Among the heroes of this war give a thought to agricultural scientists.

In peacetime, they lead a comparatively simple life. They try to make something out of what we have too much of; and improve production of what we don't have enough of.

Multiply those problems by 1,000 and you'll have what they are up against today.

Some of these days very soon, for example, we may have a cotton-filled "sandbag;" cotton plastics for blackout shades; turpentine smoke screens; rosin gas masks for animals.

Staple cotton (instead of linters) soon may be used for smokeless powder in big guns, for anti-aircraft shells and even rifles.

Forestry products may soon be used in place of aluminum for planes; wood cellulose in explosives; charcoal in gas masks; fire resistant woods in hundreds of war materials and as substitutes for raw cork.

Any time now there may be a new canning material, something previously undreamed of.

New insecticides (to replace those imported) may be on the way. New turfs (greases) are being developed to withstand multiple airplane landings and to keep down dust which often is a give-away to enemy scouting planes.

Agriculture is one of the key agencies in the allocation of forts, training centres, flying fields, artillery and bombing zones. It has a big hand in locating new war industries, and has been one of the chief forces for decentralization of military production.

Leather is becoming more resistant to wear and water. There are new substitutes for hides, leather and tanning materials.

One of China's Greatest Leaders

Deputy-Chief of the Chinese General Staff, General Pai Chung-hsi is one of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's most trusted military leaders and a brilliant strategist. A Military Academy graduate, Mohommedan, and known as a thinker, General Pai joined forces in 1920 with General Li Tsung-jen, the man of action, in order to rid their native Kwangsi Province of war lords. Immediately the Sino-Japanese war began Generals Li and Pai were given the command of military operations.

PARCELS GET THROUGH

The British Red Cross Society received word from the International Committee at Geneva that investigation showed there is no excess pilfering of prisoners-of-war parcels. Clothing thefts were highest with loss in January and February 1.32 per cent.

SHEEP AND CATTLE BREEDING METHODS SPREAD TO BRITAIN

Large Scale Experiments in Artificial Insemination

London—Britain has begun the Empire's first large-scale experiments in artificial insemination, the revolutionary breeding process whch after the war will do everything to bring the world's flocks and herds back to normal.

Britain's experiments in artificial inseminaton, already successfully practised in Soviet Russia, are being conducted by the Cambridge School of Agriculture and the National Institute for Research in Dairying. They show that in one year a single bull or ram can fertilize fifteen hundred cows or ewes, bringing the best blood in the world to the humblest keeper of livestock from thousands of miles away. It is the small farmer, unable to purchase a good bull, who will benefit most.

There has been some doubt about the reaction to the new departure of pedigree breeders with a vested interest in the sale of bulls, but serious opposition from them is not expected although artificial insemination will certainly lower the prices of second grade bulls.

Apart from Russia — Denmark, the Netherlands and Italy had all taken up artificial insemination before the war. The dairy breed societies in England have now recognized it and framed regulations for registering the animals so bred. Breed societies in the United States have actually sponsored the artificial insemination societies; and, with the present experiments in England, the outlook for building up the world's livestock population is definitely hopeful.

SURPLUS OF BRICKS

In these days of shortages there is at least one commodity of which Britain has far too much — bricks. There were 744,000,000 in stock on April. Production is meeting demand so these bricks are surplus.

WARTIME COURSES GIVEN WOODSMEN

Methods Studied to Improve Production in Pulp and Paper Industry

Mont Laurier, Que. — At Venne Depot, fifty miles northwest of here, an unusual wartime course of instruction has just been given. Picked woodsmen from the leading pulp and paper companies of the Dominion have been studying to see how more pulpwood can be cut with the existing manpower available for woods operations, how waste effort can be eliminated and how greater economy can be effected in the use of equipment and materials.

With many lumberjacks serving overseas in the forestry corps and in the fighting units, the manpower shortage is affecting the pulp and paper industry. Since replacements are not available, the solution of the problem is to increase the efficiency of those that are left. With roughly one hundred thousand men in the woods at the peak of the season, an increase of even one per cent in efficiency would be equivalent to putting another thousand men to work.

The course was a combination of practical demonstrations of improved methods and informal discussions of points which had to be ironed out. Classes and field work on cutting technique were held together with demonstrations of tool fitting and care of equipment.

There was also a competition in bucksaw filing among the sixty odd delegates. The final session was devoted to the care of horses and harness, a course which has particular significance now, in view of gasoline and equipment restrictions.

The course was under the direction of A. Koroleff, forester of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, and the delegates were the guests of J. W. Sutherland, woodsmanager of the Lower Gatineau division of the Canadian International Paper Company Limited, who together with his staff lent valuable co-operation. This was the first such industry-wide course ever held in Canada.

SPLENDID RECORD

London (CP) — The Air Ministry News Service reported that more than half the R.A.F. men forced down into the sea returning from raids against Germany in June were saved. The Air-Sea rescue service — joint R.A.F.-Royal Navy scheme — did the life-saving.

WALKS ON METAL FEET

London (CP) — Two-year-old Roger, one of the babies in London's Hospital for Sick Children, had his feet amputated when he was only a few months old. Now he does all the things other children do, walking on a tiny pair of artificial feet made from airplane metal.

SPLIT AT PRO-NAZIS

London (CP) — Netherlands patriots who insult pro-Nazi Netherlands volunteers on leave from the Russian front have been warned by the German commandant in the town of Heilo that if they continue to spit at them the "strongest measures will be taken."

Not to be outdone by a mere bunch of college presidents, the jealous old thermometer has had to start giving out a lot of extra degrees, too.

AGRICULTURE SPEED INSPIRES INVENTION

New Machine Plants 200 Cabbages A Minute in Britain

(By Mail)

London—One thousand machines which plant young cabbages at the astonishing rate of 200 a minute are now helping the farmers of Britain to speed up food production.

Hitched to a tractor, the robot planter has a travelling chain of iron fingers to which the plants are fed. A broad furrow is opened up in the soil into which the plants are suspended by these grippers, and, at the same time as the plant is released, two wheels firmly press down the soil around it. A water tank holding 40 gallons can also be fitted to the machine, and an adjustable quantity of water automatically poured into the furrow at the roots of the plants.

From one to four operators can feed the machine with plants at an average of 3,000 each person per hour, thus making an immense saving in time and labor. The spacing in the row of plants is mechanically accurate and can be controlled and adjusted to the distance required; the depth at which the seedlings are planted is also adjustable.

The robot can also plant potatoes by a simple arrangement of special cups attached to the grippers. It can be used too for lettuce, onions, leeks, swedes, sugar beet, strawberries and tomatoes. Its iron fingers have a rubber covering which enables them to handle the most delicate plants quite gently while placing them firmly and evenly in the furrows.

The machine, which is a British invention, is now being produced at the rate of more than a thousand a year. It is electrically welded and made with great precision. The Ministry of Agriculture have bought a large number for Britain's war Agricultural Committees set up in the different counties.

Argenteuil Crop Report

The latest provincial crop report gives the following information on agricultural progress for Argenteuil and neighboring counties:

Hay yield is superior to that of last year. Low moisture supplies and cool nights are affecting cereals and pastures. All crop conditions are mediocre.

A more general report on agricultural pests, states: Situation concerning insects and vegetal diseases seems to be satisfactory. Rainfalls of July, followed by a cool weather, have certainly stopped development of insects which were at first causing anxiety. Apple bacterial blight is found nearly everywhere and will necessitate a good cleaning in orchards during next winter. Daisies and hawkweeds are most prevalent among weeds.

"FREDDIE'S" NEW POST

SAVING SUGAR FOR CANADIANS

"Of linked sweetness long drawn out," wrote the poet — a thought which might suggest the sugar rationing scheme. Sweet-touthed Canadians will certainly have to stretch their sugar supply further than formerly, denying themselves perhaps the crystal cubes that used to sweeten their tea and coffee. But those who have already made this slight sacrifice find it no real hardship.

Describing village life in England 600 years ago, a historian stated that all salt used for preserving meat was produced by evaporation in pans on the seashore, and that a couple of bushels of salt cost as much as a sheep. While salt was dear and scarce, sugar was unknown except to the very rich. The poor had little to sweeten their lot, apart from the honey enjoyed by those who owned a hive.

Like many other things that were once regarded as luxuries, sugar became a commonplace necessity but now threatens to recede into the luxury class again. Canada has its own sugar industry and must strive for greater independence in this commodity. Sugar beets are grown on the rich loams of Kent County, Ont., on the irrigated lands of the Raymond district in southern Alberta, on the fertile soils of the Red River Valley in Manitoba and now in the old province of Quebec, where a factory at St. Hilaire will be ready to process the first commercial crop of beets this fall.

Neither in Manitoba, as the third season opens there, nor in Ontario has the weather proved cooperative this spring. Unprecedentedly heavy and frequent rains have interfered with planting and, later, brought both beets and weeds along so rapidly that the limited labour available has been hard pressed to cope with cultivation and "blocking." Despite the urgent need for more Canadian sugar, the beet acreage in Ontario has been reduced by more than half. Owing to lack of help fewer fields were planted, and many that were have been ploughed up and sown to corn or other crops.

To help solve the labor problem large numbers of Canadian-born Japanese were brought to the best fields of Ontario and distributed among nine camps in the territory. But the labor supply was still short of the urgent demand for action if the beet crop was to be saved. The citizens of Chatham and other urban centres then accepted the challenge and responded nobly by volunteering their services in the field. Tradesmen, clerks, bankers, doctors, lawyers, armed with hoes, moved to the attack on the beets and weeds. The casualties were many aching backs and blistered hands, but they saved sugar for Canada.

Too Much Sun !

A warning against too much sun bathing is given by Dr. Norman Wrong, in the current issue of "Health Magazine". Dr. Wrong, demonstrator in dermatology, University of Toronto, discusses facts and fallacies about the skin.

The chief function of the skin is to protect and cover, but "equally important, however, are its functions of heat regulation, of elimination of sweat and of acquainting us with our sursoundings through its sensory nerves," he declares.

"The skin is admirably suited to resist harmful physical agents such as heat, cold, drying, wetting, abrasives and minor violence." Dr. Wrong points out, "If this were not so, humans could not live in the tropics, the Arctic, on the desert and in the water. Fats and oils can be applied to the skin and will lubricate and soften, but are not absorbed. The skin can not be nourished or "fed" by rubbing in a cream any more than a piece of leather can be "fed" by oiling it. Vitamins added to skin creams are practically useless in their effect."

Our skin resists chemicals extremely well, according to Dr. Wrong, with the exception of such rare chemicals as mustard gas. It also resists remarkably well the invasion of most bacteria encountered. Pimples and boils are purely local skin infections, he declares.

It is dangerous to have too much sun, although "our skin offers fair protection against the ultraviolet rays of the sun. Tanning is an effort on the part of our skin to protect us further and, of course, the negro has the most protection of all against the sun's rays. Sun bathing, in moderation, is very healthful and undoubtedly increases our resistance to infection, and is a sure prevention of rickets. However, the vogue for sun-bathing is undoubtedly as harmful as moderate sun-bathing is healthful. Severe sunburn can make a person as ill as a heat burn, and sunstroke is not uncommon here."

"In Australia," Dr. Wrong states, "where sun bathing is almost a religion, the amount of skin cancer is greater than anywhere else in the world." He concludes: "Fair people must use discretion and moderation in their sun-bathing."

A Substitute for the Barn-Raising Bee

The days of the barn-raising bee are not so remote that the people of rural districts have forgotten the good times they had at those gatherings. In many communities a revival of this custom will tie in with the National Salvage drive—the scrap-blitz to collect the 600,000 tons of scrap needed to keep Canadian steel mills rolling during the next 12 months.

On many farms are discarded implements, machines and boilers too large and heavy to be delivered to collecting depots by individual effort.

Local communities might organize "bees" so that this material will get on its way to mills and factories. At the same time they will bring back, for a day at least, some of the good times and the feeling of helpful service rendered which attended these gatherings of a less strenuous period.

Fertility of Soil is Farmer's Concern in Food Production

While the 1942 food production effort is progressing satisfactorily, there are possibilities of next year's agricultural needs being still greater than those of the present. All signs point to the opening of a second battle front in Europe, and huge amounts of food will be needed for both the fighting forces and the liberated peoples. Thus, weak spots noted in this year's crop production should be strengthened and the strong points made still stronger.

Farmers are reminded, on the basis of experimental work and practical experience, that fall fertilizing of meadows and pasture is as good as, and generally superior to, spring fertilizing. And in this regard, an authority on the subject, G. R. Snyder, points out that analysis of the soil will show its exact deficiencies, its definite requirements in fertilizer and lime. Soil tests provide this information, and the testing is performed free of charge by agricultural colleges, experimental stations and several of the fertilizer companies.

While pastures, meadows and fall wheat are the crops demanding earliest attention, the wise farmer will take soil samples early this fall from all fields that are not producing as well as they should. Fortified by exact information, he can then make a real contribution to the war effort by measures to improve his 1943 crops.

Let's Not Fool Ourselves

Readiness for total victory implies not only the armed strength to lick our opponents. It means the thinking and planning which will insure that we won't have to do it again in another twenty-five years. And the events of the past six months have not yet moved most of us far enough from our pre-war habits of living to give reason that if our arms should win tomorrow we would not revert to the irresponsible, selfish ways that since Versailles have added up to this mess.

Those who are pitching in to "finish this thing up" so that they can get back to the "good old days", are fooling themselves.

Perhaps one trouble is that for too many of us the war is still being fought by nameless soldiers and sailors thousands of miles away. We have been subjected to no such 1000-plane bombing raids as those which turned Cologne and Essen into a shambles recently. We have experienced no starvation like that which wiped out 500 daily in Athens last winter. We have not yet had to go through the rubble and ashes of a "blitz" like Britain did, and find through the experience of common suffering just what things don't matter and what eternal values last through, on which a new world can be built.

Until the building of a new world becomes our fighting objective instead of a return to what was once called "normalcy", Canada will not be prepared for total victory regardless of news from the battle fronts.

The place where that preparation for total victory can start with most people is so mundane and simple that they often overlook it in their search for heroic action. It is illustrated by the change in the program of the general manager of an aircraft munitions factory, included in a number of stories just cabled from England about the current effect of the war on the everyday life of the average Briton.

This man's pre-war day ran something as follows "Up late, therefore tired. Rush for breakfast; quarreling with wife. Arrived too late at the works to read his correspondence. Dashed around the works with indigestion, quarreling with department heads. Late for lunch. After which dictated letters in a rush, the problems in the works mounting up during the afternoon. Arrived home late, exhausted, to find wife irritated by spoilt meal. Could not decide to go to bed." (It might be added that any resemblance to persons of your acquaintance is purely a coincidence.)

Now his slogan for total victory is, "To hell with compromise". It has had this effect on his daily schedule: He gets up at the same time as the workers and is able to make tea for his wife. He has leisure for breakfast and to read correspondence . . . He was enabled to reconcile two heads of departments, and apply to the works the same principles he was practising in his own life.

This resulted in top production figures achieving double the goal which the Ministry of Production has regarded as impossible. Then home in good time, no longer worn out.

Recently this general manager had a talk with one foreman about the change in his mode of living and the need for full-hearted co-operation these days. The foreman replied; "You're dead right. You mightn't believe it, but there are two foremen here who have not spoken for three weeks."

Said the manager: "Obviously your job is to tackle this."

A few days later he was inspecting the factory and was greeted by the foreman: "Those two foremen now get on together, sir. One of them was myself."

LONDON CLEARS RAID DAMAGE TO START BUILDING

When London residents read of mass raids by the R.A.F. on German cities with resulting devastation, they can look at scenes like the above with a certain grim satisfaction. For this is part of the Heart of Empire, still scarred by the all-out Luftwaffe raids which blasted and burned London but could not conquer Britain's fighting spirit. The picture was made from Ludgate Hill looking west towards St. Bride's, Fleet Street and Reuter's; and shows how the work of demolishing, clearing and rebuilding has already started.

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

SIAM DECLARED WAR ON GERMANY AND AUSTRIA-HUNGARY; GAINED SEAT AT PEACE CONFERENCE

The titanic struggle of 25 years ago gradually expanded to include nations from every corner of the world. Suddenly it reached out to envelope "The Kingdom of the Free"—Muang Thai, known better as Thailand or Siam.

This nation of 10,000,000 which was to become an enemy of the United Nations in the Second Great War, found itself at war with Germany and Austria-Hungary on July 22, 1917.

Britain had particular reasons for looking with a benevolent eye on this little monarchy, comparable in size to Manitoba and wedged between the British and French possessions of Burma and Indo-China. British capital controlled the country's big teak business, and the infant tin and rubber industries were showing great promise.

The Siamese government in midsummer, 1917, sent notes to Berlin complaining of the unrestricted submarine warfare. The German reply was to the effect that Siam should keep her ships off the sea. Her response was war.

German nationals in Siam were interned, and enemy shipping in her ports was confiscated. Britain removed the troops stationed there to counteract German intrigue. A Siamese military contingent was dispatched to France.

At Peace Conference

When the war was over, Siam emerged without a single military casualty, and any expense was over-compensated by being on the winning side. Participation prevented Siam from becoming a French or British protectorate and earned her a seat at the Peace Conference where Germany was forced to sign away her extra-territorial rights by which German citizens had been exempted from jurisdiction and Siamese courts.

With this move, the whole principle of foreign judicial privileges became undermined, and a new legal code appeared. By 1926 all the other countries had renounced their rights as well, and Siam was left alone to develop her own form of government. Seven years later a coup d'etat established a dictatorship of the Siam People's Party with its national and socialist policy. This government directed Thai sympathies toward Japan and her Asiatic "Monroe Doctrine" rather than to Britain.

In recent years border disputes with French Indo-China, a hangover from the 19th century, caused friction between France and Siam. Japan's mediation in 1940 settled matters in favor of Siam. Then the Nipponese capitalized on their new gained popularity, and continued to incite their new friends against the Allies.

Consequently Siam was used last year as a base for Japanese attack on her one-time friend and benefactor in Burma and Malaya. Recently, too, she recognized the Japanese-sponsored Wang Ching-Wei government of Nanking, China. In response to this action, one of the Chinese newspapers, Ta Kung Pao, has demanded virtual post-war sovereignty of the Land of Sacred Elephants.

Pedestrian Wins

It is no longer true that a pedestrian is a motorist on his way to or from a parking lot. The pedestrian of today is more frequently a chronic biped, and if he has an automobile locked away somewhere, with a lock on the gasoline cap and locks on the wheel nuts, he uses it mainly as a truck to transport bulky goods such as Aunt Martha.

On a continent which has boasted that it had enough motor cars to give everybody a ride at the same time, the stray motorist begins to encounter greater and greater difficulty in driving his car through the crowds of pedestrians at street crossings. Of course he has always had difficulty in making pedestrians get out of his way, for pedestrians dislike motorists even more than motorists dislike pedestrians. An odd thing about these dislikers is that they are interchangeable, the man on foot becoming furious with men on foot as soon as he himself gets into a car, and the motorist snarling at motorists as soon as he himself gets out of his car. In this civil strife it has been the man in the machine who usually triumphed because of weight of metal; but now a glorious day dawns for the man on foot. There is less need for him to fear crossing the street when he has swarms of other pedestrians about him to help glare at the few motorists. Let the dude in the motor car yell! Let the wild horn blow! The pedestrian, hunted these many years, is coming into his own at last.

Old Art Treasure Back in Manitoba

Presented to Marquis of Lorne in 1881

Winnipeg (CP)—The war has resulted in the return to Manitoba of a valuable art treasure, the silver model of an Indian rider hunting buffalo, which had decorated the mantle of a room in the Duke of Argyll's Roseneath Castle since 1881.

The model was presented to the Duke, then the Marquis of Lorne, by John Schultz, a member of Parliament for Lisgar constituency. It was brought back to Canada by Peter Fyfe, Glasgow dealer, and will be auctioned here.

WARNS PEOPLE MUST CONTINUE WAR SAVINGS

Although it may appear impossible in the face of the new budget, Canadians must continue to respond to voluntary war savings appeals made by the National War Finance Committee, according to Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance. Stern and grim realist, and deeply concerned, the man who regulates Canada's purse strings has since served notice on the people, 'that it may seem hard, it may seem impossible, but time after time in the past we have found that things we thought impossible were possible."

"I have been disturbed and annoyed," he said, "by the excess of optimism that has developed on this continent, perhaps not so much here as in the United States." There were those who said the winning of the war was just a matter of time.

"The people of this country," he added, must brace themselves to a period when serious thinking, grim determination and full realization of our predicament must take possession of all of us.

"I would make this one point very clear; compulsory savings represent only 10 per cent of the amount that must be borrowed from the people."

Sugar Ration Provisions For Home Canning And Preserving

Sugar ration cards, distributed to consumers throughout Canada, have attached at the lower edge five coupons, each valid for the purchase of one pound, or two weeks' individual supply. No. 1 was not to be detached or used before July; No 2 was good only on and after July 13; No. 3 from July 27; No. 4 from August 10 and the last one from August 24. Thus the prescribed allowance of sugar is provided for ten weeks, or up to the end of the first week in September, by which time it is expected ration books good for six months will be issued. However, there is another row of coupons on the temporary ration card, lettered from A to E, which could be brought into use by the necessary authorization in event of ration books not being delivered in time.

Enquiries disclose a good deal of misunderstanding in regard to obtaining sugar for home preserving and canning, and it is evident that some people think the individual allowance must cover this, and therefore that much home-grown fruit will be wasted. The fact is that there is definite provision in the order for the issue of extra sugar for this purpose.

Persons who get all their meals at restaurants, hotels or clubs do not require to surrender ration coupons. There are various controls applied to operators of these places, one being the limitation on sugar in any quarter to 70% of the quantity used in the corresponding quarter of 1941. As sugar containers were on every table at that time, and patrons as a rule served themselves generously, whereas they may now obtain sugar only on request, and not more than three lumps or two teaspoonfuls at a serving, it is likely that the 70% provision will not be found seriously restrictive for some time to come.

OBITUARY

Former Lachute Lady Dies at Smith's Falls

Late Mrs. Ross A. Parker

At the Smith's Falls Public Hospital, on July 13, Mrs. Ross A. Parker, formerly Mary McLean Smith, died after a brief illness.

A private funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from her late residence to Hillcrest Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Tanton officiated.

She leaves to mourn her loss a loving husband and two sons—Arlington serving overseas in the 1st. Field Regiment R.C.H.A., and Rosswell, of Smith's Falls; also her father, S. E. Smith, Lachute, four sisters—Hanna of Montreal, Emma of Oconomowoc, Wis., Blanche (Mrs. R. A. Wight) of St. Laurent, and Grace of Bourlamaque; and three brothers — James of Flint, Mich., and Stanley and Ted, of Lachute.

Many floral tributes bore evidence of the esteem in which she was held.

THE HEAD OF 'VARSITY ON SCOUTING

"I have long believed that the Boy Scout movement is one of the sanest and most influential of modern educational efforts, and that Lord Baden-Powell was not only a fine general but an educational leader of the highest quality. He aimed to reach, to train and to discipline boys at the most difficult and critical period of their lives. He conserved human energy not by repressing it, but by giving it a constructive expression and a right direction." —The Hon. and Rev. H. J. Cody, President, University of Toronto.

Newest Canadian Pacific Diner Serves Maritimes

ATTRACTIVE to a degree and efficiently modern, the Canadian Pacific Railway company's newest addition to its fleet of dining cars is the Canterbury, which was especially designed and constructed as an answer to the heavily increased traffic on the important Canadian Pacific line between Montreal and Saint John, N.B. Four fine pictures of historic Maritime scenes are displayed in the car, a note of compliment to the district which the car will serve.

Soon to go into service on the short line connecting Canada's Metropolis and the Atlantic Seaboard, the Canterbury is beautifully finished throughout in natural satin finish birch. Tables and chairs are also of natural finish birch, the chairs also being covered with brown morocco leather. The heating pipe grilles, window sills and rods, and the curtain boxes are of gleaming stainless steel, the curtain boxes serving both to cover the roller curtains and to conceal an individual light over each table. Comfortably spaced, the tables are arranged in the customary manner and provide accommodation for thirty diners simultaneously. The floor of the main room is covered with a rug, brownish in tone, and the floor in the passageways is covered with red-tone marboleum.

Women travellers who visit the kitchen will find it as bright and clean as their own kitchens at home, painted light buff and the lower portion a light brown while the table tops are of monel metal. The kitchen is 30 feet, seven inches by six feet, eight inches, and equipment includes an insulated range, charcoal broiler, refrigerator, ice chests, meat trays, storage space, several sinks and a variety of cupboards. An innovation is that the overhead lockers are equipped with a device which locks a complete row with one lock instead of individual locks for each compartment.

An attractive buffet at the entrance to the dining room is of plain natural birch, while this finish is also employed in the steward's roomy office at the opposite end of the car from the kitchen.

Heating for the car is thermostatically controlled.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Salad Tea Held by St. Mungo's Ladies

Cushing —

The salad tea held by St. Mungo's ladies in the Stone Hall was much enjoyed by the grown-ups and especially by the children, who had a happy time playing games on the lawn, while waiting to stage the short program which followed the serving of refreshments. This program consisted of folk dancing by little Zena Cade, first robed in an old-fashioned floor-length gown of frilly white with butterfly bow-sash, to the tune of Old Folks at Home, and later tap dancing in a different costume. Zena received much applause and returned to the stage several times in reply to insistent encores. Other children assisting by chorus singing were Jean Genesst, Betty Walbridge, Marjorie Margaret, James and George Dorion; also Myrtle and Myrna Gaston sang in duet.

Church Concert at Morin Heights

Morin Hts. — The concert presented by Trinity Anglican Church on Saturday evening in Davis' Hall was a decided success. Despite the extreme heat, the hall was filled to capacity. The main feature of the evening was the show put on by the Minstrel Players of Louisa, under the able direction of Mrs. Clarence Neill. Their performance brought rounds of applause from the audience. Also on the program were musical selections by the Hesse Brothers of Kilkenny; and a skit by Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Baugh entitled "A Minister's Mistake."

The chairman for the evening was Mr. H. G. Baugh.

Lawn Social Held by St. Simeon's Church

With many misgivings, owing to the sugar situation and the difficulty of getting a sufficient supply of soft drinks and ice cream, it was finally decided to hold the St. Simeon's lawn social as usual at Mrs. Rutherford's home, Hill Foot, and the efforts expended were amply rewarded. About 500 people attended, partook of ice cream and cake and then listened to the program of local talent which was presented. The beautiful grounds at Hill Foot, decorated with lights and Chinese lanterns, made an attractive setting for the function and the weather was ideal, though clouds looked threatening several times during the afternoon. While the home-cooking table was not as plentifully supplied as in former years, for obvious reasons, everything was sold.

The program included items by the Morrison Trio, accompanied by the Hadley Sisters on guitars; the Hadley Sisters sang several selections, playing their own accompaniments; Mr. Clayton Rogers gave enjoyable mandolin solos; the Louisa Ministrels contributed generously with "darkey" songs and jokes, recitations, dancing and mouth-organ duets. The evening was closed with a selection by the Morrison Trio, followed by the singing of the national anthem.

The members of the church are grateful to Mrs. Rutherford, who generously allowed the use of her grounds for what turned out to be an extremely successful social, and also to those who provided the entertainment.

Women's Organizations in St. Andrews Churches

St. Andrews E.—The July meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held Wednesday afternoon, July 15, in the church. The president, Miss Mary L. Lamb, who led the devotions, was assisted by the past president, Mrs. J. Esdon. Members of the C.G.I.T. formed the choir, and received the offering. They also assisted in serving tea during the social time after the meeting. The guest speaker was Mrs. Wm. King, of Cushing, who recalled with happy fervor her ministry to the patients (men, women and children) of the Hospital for Tuberculosis at Shanghai, China. She told with quiet joy many instances of the gospel truths being received and retold to other patients and to relatives and neighbors. Mrs. King asked repeatedly that these new Christians be remembered in prayer, especially since the prayers of her Chinese friends had resulted in her safe arrival in Canada after a perilous journey.

Women's Guild Entertains

The Women's Guild of the United Church entertained the ladies of the sister congregations of Pte. Fortune and St. David's, at a tea-party on Monday afternoon, July 20, on the manse lawn; 17 visitors from across the Ottawa River and several guests of members of the local church were present.

Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg

Brownsburg — The evening discourse at Maple Avenue Baptist Church last Sunday evening, by the recently arrived minister, the Rev. T. J. H. Rich, was expositary in nature, and dealt with "The Four Last Things" mentioned by Paul in I Corinthinians 15.

The new ministry will be largely expositary in character, according to the Rev. T. J. H. Rich who believes that "God's children need to be aroused to a fresh and deeper interest in the 'Word of God' as God's message to man, and wherein He makes known His plan and purpose for the times we are now in and for those that are to come." Strangers will be heartily welcomed by the pastor, and a special invitation is given to young people.

The Maple Avenue Baptist Church residence is being thoroughly renovated, and when the work is complete, will be occupied by the minister who is now but temporarily housed.

The July meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of the Chatham West Baptist Church will be held at the home of Mrs. Griffith, Chatham St., Lachute, this Friday evening at 8 p.m. The newly appointed minister, the Rev. T. J. H. Rich and Mrs. Rich, expect to be present.

CORRESPONDENCE TO THE EDITOR

Urges Preparedness with Home Guard, C.P.C. and First Aid Units

Lachute, Que., July 22, 1942.

Editor, The Watchman:

Obviously the humble cause of the C.P.C. is in the doghouse, under the present placid conditions of city and countryside as evidenced by lack of public co-operation and the slight appreciation for efforts extended over some two years, by public welfare authority and voluntary personnel subsidiary to that worthy cause. Unless authority makes some drastic move, the present placid conditions are likely to remain so, until, as elsewhere, comes Boom !.! or Blast ! ! from the sky, or sabotage, or other disaster. Then, as elsewhere, the C.P.C. Tin Hat proves to be Top Hat, and friends for life, for the services they rendered; similarly the organized Home Guard, with their seemingly purposeless practicing, in cities and surroundings.

Also the civic outposts of the farmlands, probably lacking equipment, may be suddenly confronted by subversities which could happen overnight even among the hills, the dales, the streets, the back alleys; with sticks and stones or hayforks as the only weapons of the good old community Home Guard. The butt of humor, and unsung — until — there come the silent chutes dropping from the sky. Or maybe the undetected (or detected) saboteurs—Niagara, the arsenal, bridge, rail sidings, munitions works—saboteurs from subs, planes, resident traitors, or what have you.

These are possibilities to be taken care of, even while the community sleeps. It can't happen here? Don't let us fool ourselves. There are those who KNOW. Officialdom does not urge to prepare for improbable purpose. Hundreds of bombers are crossing and re-crossing oceans on our own account. Equally so, hundreds of bombers can cross against our account. Some within return range, others for premeditated loss or capture. All with bombs for large cities and works, and excess baggage of spies, saboteurs or armed crews to be parachuted into outskirt and rural regions. So silently they come to earth, with the plane by that time miles distant, either to return or to be destroyed. Maybe all this is just a nightmare — and maybe NOT.

Even granted that it is not, the C.P.C. and Home Guards are essential, particularly under the present movements of explosives—by rail transit, through communities, sidings, munition centres, etc.—All normally safe, but under present conditions subject to devastation through inadvertence or traitorous intent. These are factors to reckon with as everyday possibilities. However, due to rigid safeguards, precautions and government inspection in accordance with the Works Explosives Acts, conditions in the vicinity of explosives are normally less hazardous than in other communities. Yet the human factors of inadvertence, mishandling and carelessness are possibilities that can lead to disastrous results. But such is remote, where due human regard is taken to the safeguards provided.

The writer in course of past occupational duties had access to arsenals and explosives magazines, powder dens and hutments, with their various processings, handlings, fillings, chargings, etc.—from small time-fusings to huge field and naval shells. Sometimes amid black-outs, Zeppelin bombings and consequent concussions; amid the possibilities of subversive elements, static and operational hazards. Yet, due to reasonable care under the safeguards provided, only some half dozen explosives mishaps occurred over many years, and these of localized character, causing small loss of life and casualty. Subsequent government investigations as to causes (with electrics and statics always the bugbear of suspicion) showed that five of the mishaps were due to the human factor, and one to static inadvertence. Safeguard measures were fully exonerated. Thus, reasonable care ensures little hazard in the handling of explosives.

Meanwhile, the local Home Guard, St. John's Ambulance Corps, Women's First Aid (equivalent of the C.P.C.) — standbys of the bench, machine and office — continue winning badges and banners, practicing on dummies, two nights a week . . . Then! near noon, one particular day, Calamity! . . . as actually happened. Works harbour front; a huge swinging crane suspends with load over river. Barge, loaded with tons of lyddite, passing. Crane accidentally drops load on barge. Reason unknown . . . No crane, no barge, no collected senses for some time within a large adjacent area; fallen debris; huge steel-frame workshops bent and broken; casualties of all degrees; women and children cut by glass in shattered homes; clamoring outside works gates—watching for faces.

. . . And the good old C.P.C., the Home Guard, and Women's First Aid, all prepared and immediately to hand. Quickly come, their services rendered, quickly gone. Work resumed where possible . . . That's that.

And so it could be possible anywhere, in these hazardous times; from sky, on transit, on sidings, at munition centres. Yes, there is real reason and necessity, everywhere, for the Home Guard, the C.P.C.—their patient training and practicing for emergencies.

Thanks, Editor.

Young Lady Popular in Brownsburg Is Bride in Pretty Church Ceremony

Paton - Jones

The wedding of Miss Hilary Vivienne Jones, only daughter of Mrs. Hilda M. Jones, of Brownsburg and Montreal, to Mr. James Forrester Paton, son of Mr. James N. Paton, of Montreal, and the late Mrs. Paton, took place at 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, the Rev. E. H. Maddocks conducting the ceremony. Gladioli and roses adorned the altar, while at the chancel were placed standards of gladioli, the guest pews being marked with these flowers and baby's breath.

Mrs. Thomas McBride was matron of honor and Miss "Pinky" Mitchell, of New York, Miss Katharine Hillgrove, of Brownsburg, and Miss Isobel Bulloch, of Lachute, were bridesmaids. Mr. Charles Deslauriers acted as best man and Mr. Thomas McBride, Mr. Herbert Storey and Mr. Leonard Winchester were the ushers.

Major William Parsonage, R.C.A.S.C., gave his cousin in marriage. She wore a gown of faconne over ivory bridal satin fashioned on princess lines, the skirt terminating in a short train, the sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her veil of appliqued silk net extending beyond her train, was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white gladioli and adiantum fern.

The attendants wore floor-length frocks made alike of Swiss embroidered organdy over taffeta, with shoulder length veils held in place with small velvet bows. Mrs. McBride wore pale green; Miss Hillgrove and Miss Mitchell, pastel yellow and Miss Bulloch, powder blue; all carried colonial bouquets of sweet peas and roses.

Mrs. Jones, the bride's mother, wore a floor-length gown of powder blue sheer over matching satin, with a hat of small rose and blue flowers and a corsage of pink delight roses.

A reception was held in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, where gladioli and larkspur formed the decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Paton left later for their honeymoon, the latter wearing for travelling a powder blue crepe dress with hat and gloves to match and pigskin shoes and purse. They will make their home in St. Jerome.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. C. Louttit, Mr. O. A. Petersen, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. O. D. Byrnes, Mr. and Mrs. George Lefebvre, Miss Francis Cloran, Miss Dorothy Taylor, Miss Isabella Philip, Mr. C. W. HIGH SCHOOL LADS TO PLAY BIG PART IN GRAIN HARVEST

With Bumper Yield Forecast West Canada Takes Steps To Meet Labor Shortage

By DENT HODGSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, July 20 (CP)—School children in the rural areas of the prairies may play a history-making role in Canada's war effort during the next two months.

By substituting for normal harvest labor in the grain fields of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, they may prove the biggest single factor in averting wastage caused by the combination of acute farm labor shortage and one of the biggest crops the west ever produced.

With the harvest season rapidly approaching, all three provinces have reported unprecedented labor shortages,, caused by drainage of men from the fields into the armed services and war industries. Some 200 rural municipalities in Saskatchewan alone have reported a need for more than 300,000 field workers, and the situation, similar in Alberta and Manitoba, is growing more acute.

Western farm leaders on whom the responsibility for procuring the additional labor supply lies, are faced with only limited possibilities, and it is becoming apparent that they must recruit the bulk of this supply from the civilian population in the urban centres of their own provinces.

Federal authorities have offered little hope of Dominion government assistance, so the prairies are looking to their rural schools.

Keen on Farming

Too young to don uniforms and serve their country in the armed services, teen-aged lads may yet prove to be the west's "ace-in-the-hole." Hundreds of them in all districts are already ardent agriculturalists, having attained a practical knowledge of and keen appetite for farming through their work in boys' and girls' clubs.

Both Saskatchewan and Alberta governments are considering proposals that rural high school students be released during September to substitute for farm labor. In Manitoba, a recent announcement revealed schools are already scheduled to open a week later than usual, and Manitoba laws provide for the release of high school boys should harvest conditions make it necessary.

Other labor for harvest help may be drawn from Indian reservations or from conscientious objectors now engaged on other labor projects. Also, the situation may be eased by greater co-operation between individual farmers, doubling up on outfits and transporting labor over comparatively short distances where necessary.

But by all indications, the bulk of the extra work in harvesting the huge crop, recently forecast at more than 1,000,000,000 bushels for all grains combined, must rest with teen-agers.

THE CHEERFUL GRIN

It is easy enough to be pleasant,
When life flows like a song,
But the one worth while,
Is the one who can smile,
When everything goes dead wrong.
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it grows on with the years,
So the one who is worth
The praises of earth
Is the one who can smile through the tears.

Buy Coal Now

A plan enabling consumer employees to make their coal purchases and so overcome the possibility of a fuel shortage this winter is contained in a recommendation issued by the Coal Administrator, Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Faced with a scarcity of coal this winter, due mainly to transportation difficulties, employees are urged to purchase their solid fuels during the summer and provide storage to the normal capacity of their bins. This is a proposal of the Federal Bureau.

The urgency of the situation has caused the government to develop a plan that will aid the financing of this matter. By the terms of the plan and for those unable to make immediate payment, the chartered banks will discount notes given by customers whom the dealers can recommend as satisfactory credit risks. The note must not be less than $50. nor more than $250. All fuel must be delivered by August 31 next, except where the dealer is unable to obtain sufficient supplies, in which case, delivery may be extended to September 15.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

By Jessie Allen Brown

AN EXPERIMENT IN NUTRITION

Animals have always been more intelligently fed than human beings. It has been possible to experiment in feeding live-stock as could not be done with people. This war has made great progress in nutrition possible. In England they took 834 would-be recruits, who had been rejected for physical reasons, and with a regime of rest, work, and proper food, 83% were so much benefited that they met their physical requirements for the army. This is only one of many such improvements. Yet there still are people who do not think it matters what they eat, so long as they get enough.

GET THEM NATURALLY

I heard a woman say she was not going to bother about the vitamins in her foods — a doctor's wife at that. Her idea was to take vitamins in capsules and then eat what you wanted. In the first place it is an expensive method. But that is the least serious objection. Those who know most about vitamins are the first to say that the field of vitamins has only been scratched and there is so much that is unknown and they feel sure there are many vitamins still undiscovered. So if you depend on capsules you are taking only some of the known ones and dear only knows what you may be missing. That is where the Canadian Medical Association did such a wise thing in insisting that our flour be fortified with the natural vitamin and not by synthetic B1. In this way they are adding the complex B vitamin and not only B1 which is just a part. Granted a very important part but we need them all. If I am not mistaken Canada is the only country which is fortifying their flour with the natural vitamins and not just the synthetic B1. How about it? Are you getting the fortified flour and bread? Unfortunately, we haven't started to get it down here yet. I have seen almost magical changes in energy and endurance with increased Vitamin B1 and it is hoped we soon will get it in our bread.

LET THEM EAT ALONE

It is a mistaken idea that parents always enjoy being with their children, or that children always enjoy being with their parents. Parents, mothers especially, will be much better if they get away from them occasionally. The kids need a break, too! Through the holidays why not let the children eat by themselves for the evening meal. Serve them first and have it over with. If they are older serve them and let them eat their meal wherever they like — providing it is not at the table with their parents. They may take it out on the lawn or on the veranda, or even up to their bedroom where they keep their books and toys. It is surprising how much more children will eat if they are left to themselves. Pop will get a well-deserved rest, too, if there are no children at the table.

HINTS FROM THE LAUNDRY

When ironing table napkins, hankies, or anything which is folded, do not bring the edges together exactly, but put the top edge one-eighth of an inch back of the under edge. When it is folded again the material creeps forward and the edges will be even. When laundering anything with a zipper, or even when only pressing, be sure to close the zipper. If you do not keep it closed some of the teeth may be thrown out of alignment and the zipper will be ruined.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM

20 Marshmallows, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup whipped cream, few grains of salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Heat marshmallows in milk until melted. Mix cocoa and sugar and add to hot mixture. Stir until blended and chill. Add vanilla to the whipped cream and fold into marshmallow mixture. Freeze until firm.

VEAL BIRDS

Cut thin slices of fillet of veal in pieces about 4 inches. Spread each piece with dressing and roll up like a jelly roll, and skewer or tie them. Brown each bird in the frying pan in hot fat and season with salt and pepper. Add a little boiling water, cover, and simmer for an hour. Remove the meat, and season the gravy, thicken it with a little flour rubbed to a smooth paste with cold water.

CARAMEL DATE PUDDING

Make a syrup of ½ cup white sugar, ½ cup brown sugar, and 1 cup boiling water, and boil five minutes. Cream 1 tablespoon of butter, and add ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup dates sliced, and 1 cup flour sifted. Mix and pour in a buttered baking dish. Pour the syrup over it and bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees until golden brown. The syrup makes a sauce.

No Sugar, No Dessert? That's Ridiculous!

By Betty Barclay

The sugar shortage will undoubtedly change our eating habits —probably for the better. Rich pastries and puddings, calling for large quantities of sugar, will be taboo. Recipes will change so that honey, maple syrup and other sweeteners will be substituted for part or all of the sugar included in the old recipe.

But sweet, tasty flavorful salads and desserts may still be served. The natural fruit sugar will make these wartime desserts sweet enough. And these new desserts will prove so desirable that they will live longer than any war. Try the following samples:

South Sea Fruit Cup

2 Cups orange sections, 1 cup of fresh pineapple cubes, 1 cup orange juice, 2 teaspoons grated orange peel, 1 teaspoon diced, preserved or candied ginger.

Combine orange sections, pineapple, and coconut. Add juice and peel and ginger. Serve cold. May be used as an appetizer, salad, or dessert.

Ambrosia

6 Oranges, ½ cup grated coconut, cherries.

Peel and slice oranges. Arrange half the slices in a serving dish. Sprinkle with half the coconut. Cover with the remaining orange slices, and top with coconut. Garnish with cherries, strawberries or mint sprigs. Serves 6.

Note: Ambrosia is a favorite dessert of young and old, east west, north and south. In some sections the oranges are cut into small pieces and shredded fresh coconut is mixed through them. Syrups or fruit juices are sometimes poured over the Ambrosia.

Orange Arabian: Substitute ¼ cup chopped almonds and ¾ cup shredded dates for cocoanut.

Mrs. G. Kuhring Spends Summer at Lennoxville

Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring, Provincial Convenor of National and International Relations for the Quebec Women's Institutes, Westmount — formerly of Lakefield, Que. — is spending the summer months at Lennoxville, to be near her husband who is in charge of the work of the Refugee Camp at Sherbrooke.

"I just couldn't resist the temptation to wear my new hat!"

When Company Comes

Here is an unusually good dessert that will appeal to your most fastidious friends.

It is easy to prepare and most of the work may be handled in the morning before your guests arrive.

It's economical too. Glance over the list of ingredients and surprise yourself. It calls for only two teaspoons of precious sugar—and no eggs. No baking or boiling is necessary. The dessert is particularly healthful and ideal for a children's gathering. What more could be desired? Attractiveness? Well, it has that too!

Maraschino Rennet-Custard

1 Rennet tablet, 1 tablespoon cold water, 2 cups milk (not canned), 2 teaspoons sugar, ¼ cup maraschino cherry juice, ½ cup maraschino cherries, coarsely chopped.

Drop the chopped cherries into 4 or 5 dessert glasses or custard cups. Crush and dissolve rennet tablet in cold water in a cup. Add maraschino juice and sugar to milk and warm slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When comfortably warm (110° F.) not hot, remove at once from stove. Add dissolved rennet tablet and stir quickly for a few seconds only. Pour at once, while still liquid, into individual dessert glasses. Do not move until firm — about 10 minutes. Chill in refrigerator.

Topping

4-5 Maraschino cherries, ½ cup whipping cream.

Slit a cherry three ways from top to almost the bottom and then spread. Top each rennet-custard with a cherry and place swirl of whipped cream in the centre of each cherry. Serve.

Hong Kong Romance Resumed in Britain

Couple Travel Opposite Directions to Meet on Other Side of the World

A British Port (CP) — After escaping from Hong Kong and travelling half way round the world in opposite directions a young Scottish naval officer and an English girl arrived in this British port within a few hours of each other.

Immediately the couple, Miss Rachel Lockhart Smith and Lieut. Alexander Kennedy of Glasgow, announced their engagement which took place in Hong Kong.

Miss Smith left the island in a passenger liner to sail home via Australia and the Pacific shortly after the Japanese attacked Hong Kong. Kennedy was in a party led by a one-legged Chinese admiral which journeyed 3,000 miles by river, barge, train and lorry to Rangoon and finally to India and then home by boat.

Women Will Learn Household Repairs

More Than Ever, Place is in the Home; British Women Are Taught Men's Jobs

London (CP)—Women throughout Britain are to be taught how to do odd jobs in the home, hitherto the almost exclusive duty of the man of the house.

A national school for the training of women as teachers is being opened in Bradford and selected members of the National Federation of Women's Institutes will take instruction there. They will be chosen from all parts of the country and after passing the course will return to their home areas to pass on their knowledge to the women of their home town.

Instruction includes how to read gas and electric meters, wallpapering, painting, tap mending, simple plumbing, door bell fixing and kindred small things which need doing around any household.

The original teachers have been supplied by the Bradford Education Committee.

The Soft Answer

Evidence of the increasing public interest in economy appears in a letter received by a department store from an indignant housewife. She had included a tin of corn syrup in her grocery order, and when it was delivered it was wrapped in paper. Why this waste of paper, she demanded when our country is at war?

Ever mindful of its public relations, the store sent one of its trouble-shooters to call on the lady and give her a simple explanation. Goods for delivery are sent to the shipping room through a spiral chute. An unwrapped tin of syrup is a hazard, because, if the lid should come off, not only would the syrup be lost but a great deal of other merchandise would also be ruined. The wrapping is cheap insurance.

The lady accepted the explanation, and the trouble-shooter was taking his leave, satisfied with his work, when she stopped him.

"Do you mean to tell me," she said, "that you used tires and gasoline coming all the way our here to tell me this?"

Perhaps the recording angel did not make too black a mark when the man answered that he had merely happened to be in the neighborhood on some other business.

HOUSEWIVES' ARMY GROWS IN BRITAIN

Members Help A.R.P. Wardens and Use Homes For Talks on Problems

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — Three quarters of a million women now are helping the war effort from their own homes in Britain as members of the Housewives' Section of the Women's Voluntary Service. They have undertaken to be "on call" day and night to help anyone in their street.

Each member of the section displays a card in her window announcing her membership and her home is used for small informal talks on first aid and simple A.R.P. work as well as being a clearing house for wartime troubles.

The housewives take the nightly census for their local A.R.P. wardens, make hospital arrangements and "mutual-aid" pacts between friends and neighbors.

One of the main jobs of these women is helping to keep up the morale of the people in towns and villages throughout Britain by organizing their women friends for various kinds of work including collection of salvage, national savings campaigning, arranging billeting, working in canteens and looking after the aged and infirm and infants during and after air raids.

These housewife workers receive official ranks and can qualify to become "Key Street Representative," "Post Area Representative" and "District," "Divisional," or "Group Representative."

Their uniform is a green tweed suit.

SMILING FACE AID TO BEAUTY

New York, July 14 (CP) — "Keep smiling" is more than a basic slogan for wartime morale; it is also a beauty tip. Smiling does more than face creams in counteracting the harsh lines caused by worry and fatigue. It then should be wise beauty insurance to make the best of your smile by following regularly the exercises professional singers use to relax their lips.

Silent counting in front of your mirror is one of the exercises recommended by Jean Tennyson, the opera and radio star. On the count of three your teeth should show and your lips be brought backward in a full smile.

Other lip exercises practiced by Miss Tennyson include: singing "Ah-h-h-h" with relaxed lips: saying "Oh-h-h-h" with pursed lips and blowing a balloon in the air.

Enters Service of Her Adopted Country

Edmonton Woman in C.W.A.C. Once Held Commission in Austrian Army

Edmonton, July 20 (CP)—In the First Great War, her husband was a major-general and she was a lieutenant, and this war finds her again in uniform, this time with her two sons. She fought side by side with her husband in the Austro-Ukrainian army in the 1918-1920 campaign against Russia.

She is Mrs. Shaskevich, grey-haired, is a member of the Alberta Women's Service Corps, and this month is going on active service with the Canadian Women's Army Corps. She was lieutenant in the Austrian army, and is an expert horsewoman.

Her eldest son, John, is a radio technician instructor in the Royal Canadian Air Force in eastern Canada.

A younger son, Edward, is a member of the Edmonton Air Cadets, and is waiting for the day when his age will permit him to join the R.C.A.F.

BIRDS, NOT BOOKS IN NOVEL LIBRARY

Kalamazoo Man Believes Warblers Work Wonders For Invalids

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 21 (CP) —A library that moults and eats bird seed?

One actually exists—the Free Bird Library—and to shut-ins it's an institution of cheer, relieving pain and loneliness.

The library is operated by J. Edward Reed, a firm believer in the curative effect of song and that a canary can be almost as successful in restoring health as surgery and medicine.

Reed's trim bungalow resounds from dawn to dusk with the constant twittering and warbling of several hundred canaries awaiting shipment to invalids.

A former interior decorator, Reed was incapacitated by a fall from a ladder six years ago. The tedium of convalescence was lifted by a canary. Thinking of others like himself gave Reed the idea for the unusual "library".

Reed started with a pair of canaries. Other mating pairs were obtained and soon he had canaries by the dozen. Reed loaned them to invalids in Kalamazoo and before long they were being sent to nearby cities.

Today the library has clients in 15 states and wants more. A postcard to Reed brings a canary into the sick room in several days. The recipient merely must be a responsible person, pay express charges, provide the cage and return the bird when its "job" is completed.

Of 500 birds, only one has been lost through carelessness or neglect.

Reed finances the "library" on $18 a week he receives in workmen's compensation. The chief expense is seed. The canaries eat 50 pounds a week.

"Sure it's a lot of trouble," he says, "but you ought to see the letters I get from people whose lives are made happy by canaries or whose recovery has been aided by them. When one is flat on his back or propped up in a wheel chair, there's nothing like a feathered prescription to drive pain and trouble away."

"Ball of Fire" Billed For Capitol Theatre

Barbara Stanwyck, the girl who danced her way to film fame and who has remained on top through her brilliant acting ability, has the title-role as a night club singer in "Ball of Fire," Samuel Goldwyn's new romantic comedy showing at the Capitol Theatre on July 28-29-30.

Gary Cooper is co-starred with her in the gay film as a professor of English who is intrigued by her command of slang and brings her home to study her store of underworld idioms.

Dana Andrews, Oscar Homolka, Allen Jenkins, Tully Marshall, S. Z. Sakall and other noted players are also cast, under direction of Howard Hawks.

A RUBBER SALVAGE MOVIE MATINEE

Some three tons of rubber salvage was handled by Boy Scouts at a Saturday morning "Rubber Matinee" given by the Capital Theatre of Vernon, B.C. The "rubber scrap admission" was a wartime application of the established "one toy admission" of the Boy Scout Christmas Toy Shop Matinee given by many movie theatres for a number of years.

JUNIOR TENNIS AT SEIGNIORY CLUB

Seigniory Club — An outstanding junior tennis event will take place here at the Seigniory Club on August 22 and 23, when a Junior International Invitation Tournament will be held on the Seigniory courts.

Five junior Davis Cup players who had not reached their eighteenth birthday at the first of this year, will be selected by the American Lawn Tennis Association, who will base their selection on the juniors' showing in earlier tournaments this year; similarly the Province of Quebec Lawn Tennis Association, which has granted official sanction for the tournament here, will follow a similar practice of selection in Canada, choosing five young players whose performance up to the time of the tournament has been particularly satisfactory.

The Seigniory Club's annual international tennis tournament which in the past twelve years has always provided a splendid opportunity for Canadian and American players to meet competitively, will not be held this year, since enlistments and war work have made deep inroads into tennis talent both in Canada and the United States.

The bus was, as usual, crowded, and the party of five W.A.A.F.'s found themselves strap-hanging. Presently one bright member of the company said loudly to her friend: "I wish that smart, good-looking man would give me his seat."

Almost before she'd finished five men stood up to offer their seats.

B'BURG ALL-STARS BEAT ST. JOHN AND VERDUN TEAMS

Brownsburg, July 21 — On July 12 the local All-Stars met St. John's of Montreal. St. Johns, who won their league last year and are at present on top, are comprised of a group of youths to whom softball is the answer to all one's spare moments. The weather conditions were perfect, and a happy throng of about 300 watched the contest.

St. John's batting first, scored one run in the first inning on a steal from third. Brownsburg went ahead on scoring 2 runs in the second, and picked up two more in the fourth to make the score 4-1. In the fifth inning Hewitt had a tough time when St. John's were able to bunch their hits to get 2 runs, raising the score to 4-3, and making it anyone's game. The score was not increased until the eighth inning when St. John's got another single which evened the count. Brownsburg were usable to capitalize in their half of the eighth, and St. John's fared no better in their first half of the ninth. In the second half silence reigned supreme when Castle, first up for Brownsburg, stepped beside the plate. He got a single, followed by a single by Hewitt. Two on, and no one out, and all the fans felt that here was the Burg's chance. However, when the next man flied out to be followed by an out at first base tension settled on the crowd. With two away and two on base, K. Simpson stepped up, and the pitcher working coolly and cautiously had a two and two count on him, when Ken smacked out a winning two bagger, driving in two runs and making the score 6-4 for the 'Burg.

Bill Hewitt for Brownsburg, pitched his usual steady brand of ball. He was only in danger once, in the fifth inning, when two runs were scored and it looked as though they had found the answer to his speedy spinning rising ball. But he pitched himself out of this spot, and from then on his control was excellent, and his speed never diminished. Wetherly of St. John's also had good control with his slow deliveries. He had great variety depending on his drop, knuckle ball, and corner cutting curves to fool the batters.

The St. John's team sparkled in the field, their snappy pickups and fast accurate pegging showing the value of practice.

The all stars are to be heartily congratulated on winning their first contest and we hope that they will continue to keep their new record intact for their remaining games.

* * *

On July 19, before a large crowd, the Brownsburg All-Stars were hosts to the Verdun All-Stars. It was a hot day, with more than usual humidity, and a possibility of thunder showers, which did materialize into a brief period of rain in the seventh inning. With the backstop repaired and more benches for the spectators, diamond No. 1 has assumed a more prosperous appearance.

Brownsburg got off to a good start by knocking out 3 runs in the last half of the first, which made the score 3-0. Then both teams settled down to play airtight ball. In the fourth Brownsburg gathered another run, and the score remained 4-0 until the end of the sixth inning. Winchester, the Brownsburg pitcher, lost his usual steady control for a brief period in the seventh, and this, coupled with outfield errors with filled bases, resulted in 6 runs for Verdun. This made the score 6-4 in their favor, and it was not until the eighth inning that any increase was made. Then Brownsburg, with two out and a man on first and third, had their batter allowed the first ball to pass while the man on first jogged slowly from first to second, thereby hoping to tempt the catcher into a throw which would give the runner on third a chance to steal home. However, Verdun's catcher refused to take a chance on a put-out at second, returning the ball to the pitcher. But the 'Burg were not to be denied, and the next seven men up hit safely, which coupled with a series of errors brought in six runs, to give the home team the lead. In the ninth Verdun could do nothing, which made the final score 10-6.

Pitching honors went to L. Winchester, who had 9 strike-out victims. McNamara, of Verdun, while making only about half that number, had excellent control; always smiling and not easily rattled, he pitched an excellent game which might have easily resulted the other way.

This is the All-Stars' second straight win, against no defeats. Let's hope they keep up the good work.

Save the Forests Is Radio Theme

Every forest fire is a front page story and every Canadian citizen worthy of the name will take a silent pledge this year to protect with his life if need be, the priceless treasure of the forest. For now as never before, wood is wealth and in Canada's forests is a large part of our victory. On Monday, July 27 at 9.30 p.m. EDT, the CBC will present "Fire on the Home Front", a drama by Alan King, written and presented in defence of timber. Wood has a very particular value in national economics at any time; in wartime its uses are many and its value vital. Today, because fire rangers from every area have volunteered to meet the hazards of active war service, there are fewer seasoned guardians of the forest; their places must be taken by the newly trained. Citizens hundreds of miles from timber lands as well as those close to the forests may prevent disaster. Moreover, the smoke that rises from burning timber may "ground" planes and upset railway time tables, and these are services that must not be interrupted in a country striving to meet total war with a total war effort.

HEATED EXCHANGES BETWEEN KING AND HANSON IN DEBATE

Conscription Bill Passes Third Reading; To Form Paratroop Battalion in Canada; Move to Lift Ban on Communist Party

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 29 (CP)—Members of the House of Commons looked forward this week to their first real respite from sessional duties since the historic sitting started, January 22.

Behind them were six months debate on subjects as momentous as any Canadian parliament ever faced. Ahead lay a number of loose ends and considerable unfinished business, auguring further stormy discussion for the fall months, inside the House.

The fuse was still burning, for instance, on so contentious a subject as the government's conscription bill. Prime Minister Mackenzie King has declared that he will ask for a vote of confidence in the ministry before overseas conscription is enforced and that may touch off another sharp debate.

In his final speech in the conscription debate—perhaps his most animated address of the session—the prime minister charged Conservative House Leader Hanson with deliberately seeking to destroy Mr. King and to destroy confidence in the ministry. He also assured the chamber that he is willing to "go before the people" at any time. And "if that vote carries no one will leave office more quickly than your humble servant."

Exchanges between Mr. King and Mr. Hanson were more vigorous than usual and at times the crowded Commons caught the sense of an old-fashioned political free-for-all. After Mr. King's final reply, the House gave third reading, in almost anti-climatic fashion, to the Conscription Bill. The vote was 141 to 45.

New Clashes

One feature of this week's debate on the Hong Kong Commission report was announcement by Defence Minister Ralston that a battalion of Canadian paratroops has been authorized and that training will be started soon. Co-operation with the Royal Canadian Air Force on paratroop training is being arranged.

Col. Ralston told the House that retirement of Maj.-Gen. E. J. C. Schmidlin, Quartermaster-General of the Canadian Army, was partly due to adverse criticism of the Quartermaster-General's department in the Duff Commission report. He said there had been many other changes, virtually reorganizing the department.

The Minister was defending the report which came under fire from a number of opposition members.

On Tuesday night the House by a vote of 130 to 34 rejected an opposition motion that reorganization of the Defence Department was required in the light of the evidence submitted at the Hong Kong inquiry.

Another political development which may bring a clash in parliament is the recommendation of the Commons' Defence of Canada Regulations Committee that the ban on the Communist party of Canada and seven other organizations should be lifted. Within the committee itself, there was apparent divergence of opinion with reports that the vote cut across party lines and that Fisheries Minister Michaud resigned as committee chairman rather than table the recommendation.

The report, urging that "changed conditions" since the ban was imposed made an amendment to the regulations desirable, was tabled by H. B. McKinnon (Lib. Kenora-Rainy River)—enough to substantiate the report that Mr. Michaud had resigned.

Another report tabled in the House praised operations of the Canadian Wheat Board and "unwarranted attacks" on it were termed "harmful." The report said there appeared no other course than to leave the Winnipeg Grain Exchange open in line with British wishes. Brokerage fees paid by the board were checked and certified correct, said the report.

If the report of another House committee is endorsed, Canadians will be able to receive certain honors and decorations which do not involve titles.

The honors and decorations committee recommended establishment of a purely Canadian order and removal of restrictions on awards which don't carry titles. Acceptance of the recommendations would make it possible for Canadians to receive such as the Order of the British Empire, Companion of St. Michael and St. George, Companion of the British Empire and British Empire Medal.

Heavy Loss as Farm Building Razed by Fire

EASTERN OUTSKIRTS OF ST. PHILIPPE VILLAGE

A large barn, including horse stables and cow shed, on the farm of Adelard Laurin just east of St. Philippe village, was completely destroyed by a fire which occurred at one o'clock Tuesday morning. The barn, 200 feet long, contained the season's hay crop. An adjoining silo was also destroyed, the buildings being razed to the ground.

The horses were safely removed from the stable, and no livestock was lost. Fortunately the wind was blowing away from the farmhouse and nearby buildings. The Lachute Fire Brigade, summoned to give assistance, pumped water from a well onto the dwelling and outhouses, and these escaped damage from flying sparks. A stationary engine in the yard was warped and damaged by the fire. The glare of the blaze lit up the surrounding countryside and was visible from a considerable distance.

The loss, estimated between $5,000 and $6,000, is only partly covered by insurance. Laurin had acquired the farm this spring from its former owner, Alex St. Onge.

Lightning had occurred in the district during Monday night, but the cause of the outbreak in the early hours of Tuesday could not be determined with certainty. The alarm was given by a lady passing on the highway, who noticed the flames and aroused the occupants of the farmhouse.

Boys Terminate St. Andrews Camp

BRIGADE REAR-GUARD ARE HOSTS TO LOCAL LADS OVER-NIGHT

Montreal — After spending a pleasant two weeks in camp, the boys of the 1st Montreal-Westmount Company Boys' Brigade set out for home over the week-end. The officers and boys deeply appreciated the kindnesses extended to them by Mr. and Mrs. Dorion and their daughters, and returned home feeling they had enjoyed one of the finest camps on their record.

During the last two nights of camp, an invitation was extended to boys from St. Andrews to join in the camp program and remain overnight with the rear-guard, and a considerable number of boys took advantage of this offer. Friendly games of baseball were played between the Brigade and the lads, the results of which were two out of three games won by the Brigade. These were always followed by the evening camp-fire, where good fellowship prevails amid the singing of camp songs and portraying various phases of Brigade work. These usually ended by a story narrated by Captain J. Howard Richardson.

Two tent leaders ranked highest in personal points earned at camp and were awarded achievement medals at the camp-fire. These were Corp. James Wright and Lance-Cpl. Robert Eastwood. The cup for the tent having attained highest points will be awarded to the 2nd tent, led by Cpl. James Wright.

The Boys look forward to camping again at St. Andrews and will endeavor to organize several week-end expeditions before the season closes.

Taxi-Drivers Want To Pick Their Fares

Drivers in London Make Suggestions for Their Own Business Conduct

London (CP) — London's taxi drivers — they still are legion — want to be allowed to choose their fares, giving priority to uniformed men and women in the forces. This was one point in a memorandum drawn up by the Cab Section of the Transport and General Workers' Union, which also suggested taxis should be taken over by the War Transport Ministry for emergency service in the event of a breakdown in other passenger transport.

"The Russia We Did Not Know"

Delegate Reports on Lions' International Convention

— By J. S. Giles —

"The soul of Lionism is service; and I am so glad that it has a soul which will live on in the hearts and lives of men, a medium to help humanity build world friendship and world fellowship — a spirit to create and maintain a better understanding." —George R. Jordan.

• • •

With purple and gold edged caps, fancy jackets and gleaming silk cloaks, the Lions from every State in the Union, Canada, Cuba and Puerto Rica, gathered in Toronto, the capital city of Ontario, and Mayor F. J. Conboy extended warm welcome to the visitors at the formal opening of the 26th Annual Convention of the International Association of Lions Clubs, held at the Royal York Hotel.

The sessions were held in the Maple Leaf Gardens and the spacious auditorium was most colorful with the varied costumes worn by the different countries. With rousing cheers the delegates numbering several thousands, rose in their seats and paid fervent homage to the flags of the nations borne through the audience and presented on the platform, heralded by a flourish of trumpets, and roll of drums, accompanied by young ladies in national costume and soldiers with bayoneted rifles. Great applause greeted the flag of China, waving behind a serious faced Chinese girl, but the climax came when the Stars and Stripes, and last of all the Union Jack, followed golden-haired young ladies dressed in white gowns and silver-spangled crowns. It was an inspiring sight, one long to be remembered as the flags flared out and the organ pealed forth the strains of the appropriate national anthems.

It was the writer's privilege to have been selected as the local representative and while in the course of years we have had the pleasure of attending many conventions of varied kinds, we can truthfully attest that never before have we experienced such a depth of sincerity and earnestness that characterized each session of the program.

Keyed to a high patriotic fervor by a ringing call to faith in the ultimate triumph of freedom's cause Lieutenant-Colonel Hyer, Past-President of the International Association said that Lionism was built on high idealism and they had made many things come true in shaping a better life for the underprivileged of our communities. Now we are called upon to evolve an idealism that will create a mighty faith in our cause, our future, and the Victory that we are determined, with American tenacity, to win. Right may be crucified today upon a cross, it may be in a new tomb tomorrow, but the third day it rises again, rises in Poland, in Norway, in Belgium, yes in France, rises to lead its captors captive and to fling again its free banner to the breeze.

"I am glad", he said, and the audience lustily cheered, "that the nations whose flags grace this rostrum today have committed themselves not to lay down the sword until those enslaved people are again free indeed."

A prayer of invocation was offered by Flight-Lieut. the Rev. J. E. McHenry, and a wonderful ovation was given to the aged secretary-general Melvin Jones, the founder of Lionism, whose heart has been gladdened as he sees the wonderful returns from his great humanitarian work. His record of achievement is seen in the report distributed to the membership.

The extensive program gave ample scope for recreation and lighter entertainment during the evenings, but the day sessions were dignified and of a very high order that lent help and inspiration to the delegates as they returned to their homes, so widely spread, to carry on the task in their individual communities. As an evidence of stressing the spiritual the morning session of Wednesday closed with a wonderful Memorial Service which took the form of a tableau in memory of the stalwart Lions who have passed on.

GIVE OLD FOR NEW

GERMANY SHOWS FEAR OF A 'SECOND FRONT'

(CP War Commentary)

In the face of widespread Allied clamoring for a second front, Berlin is showing signs of nervousness. From Switzerland has come the report that German SS (Elite Guard) troops, said to be from the Russian front, paraded through Paris July 29 on their way to new posts along the English Channel.

The German press and radio discussed coastal defences to some length and claimed that 200,000 skilled workers "have used 500,000 tons of concrete monthly for fortifications".

These tricklings of information may indicate that the Nazis are hoping to maintain a skeleton defence and bluff the Allies out of an invasion attempt, or that they are genuinely alarmed and are rushing preparations to meet the feared cross-channel attack.

Organize Here To Boost Sale of Savings Stamps

TO ENLIST CO-OPERATION OF RETAIL STORES

Appointment of Clement Tremblay and Wm. M. Scott as joint chairmen for this area is announced by the National War Finance Committee.

This appointment covers the County of Argenteuil and includes jurisdiction over all those branches of the National War Finance Committee's agencies, namely the distribution of War Savings Stamps, War Savings Certificates and Dominion of Canada Bonds through periodical campaigns.

Last evening Wm. M. Scott, joint chairman, called a meeting of a few representative citizens of Lachute at his home, to discuss the distribution of War Savings Stamps through the county, and the Town of Lachute in particular. Stanley B. Kimbur, the District Organizer of National War Services addressed the meeting, and expressed the need of an immediate drive to sell War Savings Stamps through the medium of retail outlets.

It was decided to form a committee to confer with all retailers of Lachute and enlist their co-operation, with the object of having stamps available in every retail establishment.

James McGibbon, M.P., expressed his approval of the plan and reminded the gathering that the purchase of stamps and their ultimate conversion into certificates is not only a patriotic move on the part of the buyer, but his investment, being free from income tax, is no small consideration in these trying days.

H. Mossman Gall, postmaster, informed the meeting that he can now issue certificates immediately at the post-office, thus avoiding the necessity of correspondence with Ottawa.

James McGibbon, M.P., Mayor H. Lamarche, H. M. Gall, Geo. H. Heon, F. A. Brennian, and J. S. Giles were appointed the Lachute local committee, with Germain Filion acting as secretary.

Throughout the county similar committees will be set up, with Major G. G. Mitchell acting as county secretary.

Lakefield Rector At 70th Milestone Spends Busy Day

Lakefield—The Rev. C. W. P. Baugh passed his 70th birthday on Sunday, July 26, in doing a good day's work for the church. Up bright and early in the morning, he made his way over to the Boy Scout Camp (Tamaracouta) in Mille Isles for a celebration of Holy Communion at 7.30 a.m. Then he returned to hold morning service in Lakefield, after which he left for afternoon devotions at Louisa. His evening service was in Dunany.

Mr. Baugh, in marking this birthday, also completes fifty years of faithful service to his church. He has never taken a holiday in his life — nor can he be persuaded to take one. His motto is: "The time is short—use it, waste it not."

Impressions on Book "Mission to Moscow"

The Rev. J. R. Heyworth, of Chicago, who is a seasonal visitor at St. Andrews East, occupied the United Church pulpit here last Sunday, and in his evening discourse gave some interesting impressions on the book "Mission to Moscow", a new volume which ranks high in the estimation of readers on wartime topics. Following is a digest of Mr. Heyworth's remarks:

• • •

"Mission to Moscow," by Joseph E. Davies, is another great and important book, one which may be classed with "Berlin Diary", "Days of Our Years" and "That Day Alone."

It is important for certain reasons: Firstly, because it is about one of our Allies—the Russians—who are beating Hitler at his own game. Secondly, because it is written by an unusually clever person with an exceedingly fair mind. Thirdly, because it presents a picture of Russia that may be new to some of us.

First let us look at the Ally who is checking Hitler. Russia is the only power to do it, and it was not just the Russian winter. Russia is holding Hitler because she spent years in preparing, years in training, and is using Hitler's own tactics. She is the strongest hope of the Allied forces. But we haven't liked Russia. Communism has been the "big bear" of the last 20 years for all capitalistic countries. The fear of communism was the excuse. Russia was the big, bad wolf of all the nations, and we have been afraid of her influence.

I recall my own revulsion at the brutality and oppression of the Soviet upheaval, the introduction of collectivism, the purging of every vestige of the old Russian regime which stood in the path of the new proteletariat order. These things shocked me; they made me afraid of Russia and her methods.

Yet there were the groups and individuals in the United States who justified these brutal methods for the ends in view; and they wanted to have America patterned along the same lines.

All the capitalist nations have been afraid of Russia. Many people said they would rather have Hitler and his national socialism than Russia and her international communism . . . I, personally, never went so far; but I have indeed hated and preached against that revolutionary socialism which would destroy our American freedom. I linked Hitler and Stalin, with their bloody minds and violent methods, when they signed their mutual non-aggression pact. And when Hitler turned on Russia, and Russia was on our side, I asked myself, "Do we want her on our side?" . . Yes, against Russia and her socialistic experiments I have been as prejudiced as any person could be . . .

And that is why I am glad this book, "Mission to Moscow," has been published. It is an eye-opener. This, indeed, is not the Russia I have been thinking about, reading about and harboring hatred against, for her revolutionary ways.

The violent excesses — revolt against the dogmatic superstition they called religion — the political purges; these must be admitted. But whatever we have to admit that is not our way of life, the Russia you will read about in this book is something you cannot hate; in many ways it is something you must admire. It is the Russia we must understand, if we are to count her an ally in this struggle.

Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, author of this book, is fair minded, unusually clever. As a lawyer in the United States, he made a fortune. He belonged to the capitalist class. Yet so frank and engaging was his personality, so fair was his judgment, that in Russia he was permitted to see and hear more than others in the diplomatic sphere. And what he gives us is truly a new slant on Russia.

President Roosevelt knew his man. He trusted him. He sent Ambassador Davies to Russia to gather the facts. From 1936 to 1938 Mr. Davies kept a careful diary, made careful reports from Moscow. Upon his reports America based her foreign policy and friendly attitude to Russia . . . And I, for one, am glad that in the present hour Russia and America are friends.

Now — I am not afraid of Russia, or of communism. My conviction, after reading Ambassador

MORIN HTS. COUNCIL STUDIES MUNICIPAL WATER PROJECT

Existing Sources Inadequate, Some Unsafe; Object to Absorb Private Systems into One Efficient Community Enterprise

(Special to The Lachute Watchman)

Morin Hts., July 21—Considerable interest has been aroused in the village and vicinity of Morin Heights regarding the water supply. For some years this has been the subject of some thought and discussion on the part of the Council and a few of the householders whose supply of water was sometimes inadequate. Appeals have been made to the Public Service Commission, and the County Health Unit has urged improvements from time to time, but up to the present nothing of importance has been done.

The question was brought to the attention of all local residents recently when officials of the County Health Unit posted notices in public establishments to the effect that the water supplied by the main system was considered unsafe for drinking, and ordered that it be boiled.

Investigation by the County Health officers of the three systems serving the Village showed that one was considered safe, another doubtful and the third unsafe.

Coming at the height of the season when the community is filled with summer visitors, the order of the Department of Health created something of a panic among the hotel and boarding-house keepers. Local residents who have been using water for many years with no apparent injury to health are inclined to be complacent and to minimize the danger of using the water, particularly at this time of the year when the source is less subject to contamination by surface water, but tourists and summer residents, for whose welfare the Provincial Health Authorities are deeply concerned, find in the order and its implications cause for both worry and inconvenience.

Direct action on the part of the Council was urged by a petition which had been signed by many interested parties and by a resolution passed at a public meeting on Monday evening, July 20, and the Council, which had been assembled in special session at the same time, took the whole matter under consideration.

From the point of view of the Council many obstacles have to be faced. In the first place the Village of Morin Heights is not incorporated but is part of the rural Municipality of Morin (South Part), and as there are numerous water systems within the municipality, some of which are quite extensive, it is difficult for the Council to single out one section for its attention. Secondly, the Village is served by three systems, all of which would doubtless have to be bought out or closed up were a municipal system to be installed. Thirdly, the question of a source is hard to determine. That of the present system, where sufficient head and volume is available, is not acceptable to the Health Officers, and the other two lack both elevation and supply. Then there is the question of finance and whether or not Ottawa would sanction the spending of the money, and the very real question of the difficulty of obtaining the necessary material and labor for a project of this kind in wartime. It is felt that nothing should be done which might in any way detract from the war effort. The cost of a municipal system has been variously, and unofficially, estimated at from $10,000 to $40,000.

The decision of the Council was that it would investigate the possibility and the advisability of operating a municipal waterworks. With this end in view an area was defined comprising the village and the immediate vicinity now supplied by the present systems, and certain other adjacent properties, all of which could be served by a single system, which would be operated by the Council for the defined area and at the charge of the proprietors of that area, but separate from the affairs of the municipality as a whole.

A letter was written to the Minister of Municipal Affairs at Quebec to determine whether or not his approval would be granted to finance and carry out such an undertaking. An official petition was drafted and arrangements made to have it circulated within the defined area to find out if the required two-thirds of the proprietors in that area favor the proposition. The feeling of the Councillors seemed to be that if a municipal system is established the present ones should cease to exist as such. Therefore, if the majority of the ratepayers are favorable, the next step would seem to be for the Council to endeavor to acquire the three systems from the respective owners, namely, Mrs. A. Stapleton, John McCullough and Joseph E. Seale. Qualified engineers would have to be engaged to examine and report on possible sources, and prepare plans and establish costs, all of which would have to receive the approval of the provincial authorities before any actual work could be done. The officers of the County Health Unit have promised to co-operate in the matter of making tests of the water from the source that may be chosen, and giving their advice on questions relating to public health — the idea being to co-ordinate the whole into one efficient system which will provide for all an adequate supply of good water, and a measure of fire protection to the village.

Kilmar District Contributes to Salvage Drive

CREDIT TO EFFORTS OF MRS. FRANK FIRTH

Kilmar, Que. — The salvage campaign here has progressed very favorably, due to the commendable efforts of Mrs. Frank Firth, who personally organized the drive, supervised collection and offered her own shed for storage of materials. As soon as a load was ready, Mrs. Firth contacted Alex Siversky, of Hawkesbury, who in turn collected the salvage and transported it from Kilmar; he appraised the material, for which he offered a fair and just price. A total of $148.31 has been raised since June 4 1942.

It was decided to donate the proceeds of the last two loads to the Christmas boxes for district soldiers, as a considerable sum is needed to cover this enterprise.

Mrs. Firth's splendid work is an inspiration to all who desire to do their share in the war. Regular donations of salvage are anticipated, which can realize more money to swell the funds of the local Red Cross branch.

Sawmill Blaze At Ste. Agathe

TRAIN-WHISTLE SOUNDS WARNING IN NIGHT

Ste. Agathe — Prompt action against fire which broke out on the premises of Ste. Agathe Lumber Company in the early hour of Sunday, was credited as being due to a warning given by the whistle of a Montreal-Ste. Agathe train, from which the blaze was seen as the train headed into Ste. Agathe station.

Believed due to combustion, followed by an explosion, in the company's cement boiler room block, the outbreak caused some $4,000 damage, but was checked by fire-fighters before it could reach any other parts of the premises.

The C.P.R. train, due at the station at 2.30 a.m., gave the warning blasts as a trainman spotted the fire from a distance. Police, hearing the warning, investigated immediately. The watchman at the lumber yard was out to lunch at the time.

Ste. Agathe Lumber Co., located several hundred feet west of the C.P.R. tracks, near the station, is the property of L. E. Parent, former M.P. for Terrebonne county.

A SOIL CHEMIST IN NOVA SCOTIA

The report of the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture for the year ended November 30, 1941, contains an interesting account of the work carried out by the Soils and Fertilizer Division, under the direction of Professor L. C. Harlow who resigned the position of Provincial Chemist in October. Of even greater interest to those who have followed Harlow's career is an appendix to the report, entitled "Review of 1902 to 1942," which records chronologically the progress made in the study of soils during an eventful period of 40 years.

The review is in the nature of a valediction. It is written concisely and in the unassuming manner typical of Harlow whose zeal for the betterment of agriculture in the Maritime Provinces has been entirely devoid of selfish motives. Although his work has been conducted with what seemed almost like a studied desire for self effacement, the remarkable results he has achieved have been widely acclaimed.

Foreseeing that chemistry was destined to play an important role in Canadian agriculture, Harlow took post graduate work at Cornell University and in 1902 returned to his native province to become science teacher in the Normal College, Truro. When the Nova Scotia Agricultural College was opened in 1905 he was appointed part-time instructor in chemistry there. In 1908 he commenced the analysis of soils, and that was in the days before the rapid soil-test methods had been discovered. In 1910 the work was extended to the study of marsh soils in the Truro, Amherst and Gasperaux areas.

In 1914 Harlow resigned his position in the Normal College to become full-time professor of chemistry in the agricultural institution and received the title of Provincial Chemist. During the years of the first world war we find him active in establishing plot and field experimental work with lime and fertilizers, manures and seaweed, etc. In 1927 he turned his attention to solving the problem whether fertilizers alone could be relied on for the rejuvenation of old hay land or if it was necessary to plough, fertilize and reseed. This work was developed further in 1928, a year that is memorable because of the publication in the Maritime Farmer of an exhaustive article by Harlow on "The Pasture Problem", which constituted the first report based on chemical soil tests of pasture land.

The record of the years since then is one of "something attempted, something done" — and well done. Between 1936 and 1941, it is noted, 3,851 farms were visited and over 22,000 soil samples from these tested. Harlow pays tribute to his assistants in the work, and several who now hold important positions in the field of agricultural science owe much to him.

Macdonald College Is Carrying On

Army Training Centre Expansion Will Not Cripple Educational Program of College

The Canadian Women's Army Corps has decided to expand the Training Centre at Macdonald College to the point where it will be possible to train 1,000 volunteers a month. This expansion, from a permanent population of about 400 to one of 1,300, including instructional staff, has naturally not been accomplished without the loss to the College of still more of its buildings and equipment, but all the essential work of Macdonald College will still be carried on.

The Degree courses in Agriculture and Household Science will be continued as in the past. The Diploma Course in Agriculture, the practical course designed especially for farmers' sons, will still be available, and the Community School and Farm Forum Programs will not be affected. The College plans to intensify its extension work among farmers, and research and investigational projects will continue to be a major effort on the part of the staff.

The only dislocation of the normal program of the College is the cancellation, for the duration, of the one-year "Homemaker" course in Household Science. The cancellation of this course was brought about by the necessity of curtailing residence accommodation; there will be room in College residences for all other students.

There will be no diminution, but rather an expansion of all college activities, designed to utilize to the full all the facilities of the institution to further the war effort in this particular field.

MODERN RAILWAYMEN USE STRANGE WORDS

Montreal — "Catenary" and "Pantagraph" may appear strange terms in a railwayman's vocabulary, but they belong to the common everyday language of men engaged in the electrified section of the Montreal terminals of the C. N. Rlys. Catenary refers to the overhead structure which holds the electrically charged trolley wire. The pantagraph is a collapsible jointed frame attached to an electric locomotive or passenger car to collect electric current from the overhead wire.

CZECH FLIER DEALS DEATH IN DARKNESS

Karel Kuttelwascher Bags Nazi Planes by Hovering Over Enemy Airdromes at Night

London (CP)—The Czech ace, Karel Kuttelwascher, who has what colleagues call the "uncanny knack of smelling out nomeward-bound German bombers," is recognized by Air Ministry officials as Britain's best night fighter.

Week after week the stocky, fair-haired flier, 27, is mentioned in Air Ministry bulletins for night fighting exploits. Sometimes he reports shooting down one, two or three German planes on lone night patrol, sometimes only breaking up a raid by inflicting damage.

In ten days he was credited with destroying seven bombers at night and has an official bag of 15 destroyed at night, six in daytime.

Fellow pilots like the quiet, unassuming Czech and call him "Old Kuttel," envy his gift for finding Germans at night.

Has Welsh Wife

Since his arrival in England he has married a Welsh girl. On leave, he putters around in the garden at his Mill Hill (London) home.

But flying a four-cannon Hurricane, he is reckoned a deadly killer. Other pilots in his squadron say he'll look at a map in the operations room, point to perhaps a small, unimportant German airdrome and say: "I'll go there tonight."

It's odds-on, pilots say, that the Germans will be using that airdrome that night and that "Old Kuttel" will relieve the Luftwaffe of a plane or two.

His tactics are simple. He developed them himself, but now they are widely used by R.A.F. "intruder" pilots.

He hovers high over a German airdrome waiting for landing lights to be switched on, then pounces on a German bomber when it is only a few hundred feet high, preparing to land. The German plane, it is reckoned, will crash even if not badly damaged because of the low altitude. Defending guns are unable to open up on him because they might hit their own plane.

INDIAN TAKES ONE LOOK — HEADS BACK TO BUSH

Farland, Ont.—This community is on the main line of the C.N.R. near Minaki, one of the most delightful holiday spots in the country, but passing trains never tempted Joe Strong, 62-year-old Indian guide, to climb on board and go see a city. But recently he decided to visit a grand-daughter living in Winnipeg. Newspapermen asked him his impressions of city life. "Too many people in too much of a hurry," was Joe's comment. To that he added "Too noisy, pavements too hard, hurt feet."

Joe saw the trading floor and wheat pit of the Grain Exchange and the scene baffled him. "I never heard anything like it in my life." Politeness restrained him but the thought wild animals had more dignity than city folk, and he thought businessmen looked better on hunting trips. As fast as he could Joe took a train home to the wilderness quiet and a pair of nice, soft mocassins.

"THE RUSSIA WE DID NOT KNOW"

Davies' book, is that Russia — the new Russia that has come into existence since the last war — will play a major part in the making of a new world.

• • •

She owns eight million square miles of land.

She covers an area two and one half times greater than the entire possessions of the United States.

Vladivostok is farther from Moscow than is Portland, Maine.

In 1933 she had a population of about 166 million souls.

For every square mile of land there were only about 12 people or over, against 41 in the United States.

You could put the entire population of the world in Russia, and even then she wouldn't be as crowded as either England or Germany.

This is the size of the country that Hitler set out to conquer.

Reviewing her resources . . . we find Russia is equally enormous. She cannot be starved out. She does not need the rest of the world. Under Stalin and his brilliant young technicians, Russia leads the world in agriculture . . . In minerals, in industry, in many lines of production, Russia today is more self-sufficient than any nation in the world.

• • •

What of her present government? After the revolution came civil war, and Russia reached the lowest ebb. Poverty, starvation and other evils followed. Lenin brought in his New Economic Policy. He still attempted to retain communism as a principle of government, but actually communism was shelved in practice before Stalin came to power. Private ownership and the profit-making privilege came back. Individual initiative and ability again held sway. Pure communism was dead, from that time on.

After Lenin came the struggle for power between Trotsky and Stalin, the theorist and the realist. Trotsky was eliminated. He kept up the agitation for world-wide communism, from Mexico. He plotted against Stalin and his government. Hence came the bloody purges, in which the world judged Stalin as a fiendish villain. But Joseph Davies says that is not the true picture. Stalin had to "liquidate" his opponents or be "purged" himself. Stalin, he says, is a strong, kindly, intelligent leader. The children like him. The people trust him. His victims were actually men who plotted to overthrow the government. They negotiated with Hitler in their treason. Davies says they were the "fifth columnists of Russia." They were given a fair and open trial, and they confessed their guilt. There was no "third degree." The Russian people regarded them as traitors and acquiesced in the verdict.

Now that, in this struggle, we can see what has happened to the countries that allowed themselves to be divided first — Davies asks the question, "How can we blame Stalin, who saw what was coming, because he rid his army and his government of those who were prepared to sell it out?"

The non-aggression pact was difficult to understand . . . Davies had left Russia, in 1938 . . . Stalin, through the struggle, has had to preserve the revolution, the social development of the last 20 years, from traitors within and powers without. And Stalin was really afraid. . . . Ramsay McDonald, Stanley Baldwin and Neville Chamberlain, exponents of the appeasement policy, played fast and loose with Russia. They lost whatever friendship Russia might have felt for Britain. Russia played an out-and-out honest policy. She would have sided with England and France, says Davies, if they had come out openly to help Czecho-Slovakia. Yet up to the fatal moment they would have "sold Russia out" and let Hitler fight her, in the hope that both would be exhausted. And Stalin knew it . . . They made the mistake of not trusting Russia. Stalin, turning to Germany, also made a mistake (which I think he has seen), of trusting the pledged word of Hitler.

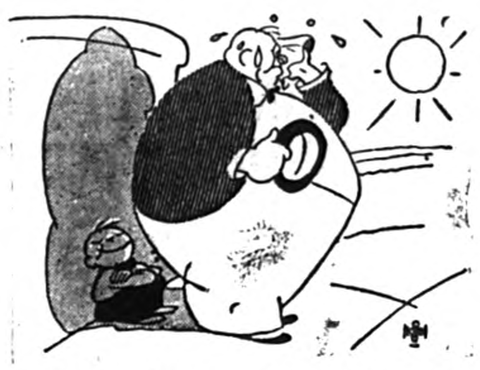

When Hitler saw he could not blitz England into submission, and could get little help from Russia, he then turned on his ally for the resources to carry on a long war with England and America.

Strange what politics will do! The "assinine" politics of three prime ministers in England, along with the isolation policy of the United States, lost the peace . . . Nobody has to agree with my own particular point of view, but I am beginning to wonder if, in his foreign policy, Roosevelt hasn't been a wise leader. He cultivated friendship with Russia when it was considered dangerous politics. He sent an open-minded capitalist as an Ambassador to gather the facts. And in this critical hour, I wonder if we are not glad that one of the most powerful nations of the world, the only one that has stopped Hitler so far, is fighting on our side.

To Ambassador Davies, in his "Mission to Moscow", we owe this picture of the Russia we did not know. We can, and do, disagree with some of her theories, but in her social and humanitarian practices we have much with which we can agree. We have far more in common with Russia today than we have with Hitler and Japan and Italy.

Do not burn or destroy this publication. Sell it or give it to a salvage organization. It is needed for victory.

We Advocate . . .

We advocate . . . two matters this week for consideration of the appropriate council committees of this town.

One complaint concerns the reckless manoeuvring of taxis through the thoroughfares of Lachute. Certain operators of liveries display a familiarity with every corner and short-cut in town — a familiarity which has bred contempt of traffic by-laws and public safety. There is unnecessary speeding on Main Street, a jamming of brakes and screeching of tires at the points of destination — with resultant waste of gasoline and usage of rubber. There is a prevalent disregard for stop signs, and, generally speaking a sense of special privilege among a few taxi drivers which should be curbed by the authorities immediately.

Our second observation is that, although some time ago it was voted to donate the guns in Lachute Memorial Park for salvage purposes, nothing has so far been done about it . . . These Great War trophies are regarded with personal significance by many families in the district to whom the last war brought grief and sacrifice, but there is none who would not gladly part with them to greet Hitler with new armaments and speed an Allied victory. We have been informed the weight and size of these field-pieces has hindered their removal; that they are too bulky to transport other than on a railway flat-car. If this is the reason they are not at the moment on some munitions scrap-pile destined for active service — then, we advocate they should be dismantled, even at the town's expense, and put into the war effort without delay.

Thoughts on a Pile of Scrap Metal

"Discarded Scrap would make Axis Green with Envy" — reads a current headline. Maybe so, but that is most decidedly an over-simplification of the picture, says an editorial in the Ottawa Farm Journal.

Canadian soldiers cannot forthwith arm themselves with discarded metal beds or the axles of scrapped motor cars and proceed with zeal and despatch to beat the daylights out of the enemy. This old iron becomes a factor in the war effort only as it is transformed into the weapons of war, into ships in which men and their arms can be transported to places where the enemy can be found. And all this is a process taking time, involving danger, using up much manpower, so the steps from the scrap pile to the business of killing Germans and Japs are many, long and arduous.

Moreover Mr. Jap, if he could see these heaps of scrap, might be scared almost to death but also he might chortle with malicious glee. Speaking of scrap, he might say, you gave us the cream of the crop! And it is the sad truth. Back in 1937 Canada shipped to Japan 46,948 tons of scrap iron, sent 41,033 tons in 1938, and 46,866 tons even in 1939—that in less than nine months, because on Sept. 20 of that year the Canadian Government prohibited further shipments except under permit and nothing since has gone to any country but the United Kingdom and the United States. But Japan in 33 months before Germany launched a war in which Japan was to participate at the appointed time had been able to buy 134,847 tons of Canadian scrap iron—to build warships and aircraft, guns and tanks, for the slaughter of Canadian and British soldiers, of Dutch and Americans and Chinese.

So let us not be complaisant about these heaps of scrap. It is highly important that these resources go back into industry, go into our war machine, but collection of scrap is just the first stage—and we did give the Japs great help in setting up their own machine which now it is our formidable task to break.

Choosing Post-War Vocations

Statistics of the British Army's educational scheme throw light on what service men and women want to do after the war. The figures are taken from enrolments for courses which soldiers, sailors and airmen can study in their spare time. Engineering tops the list, there being more than twice as many candidates for this as for any other subject. Banking, estate management, accountancy and the legal profession have each attracted very large numbers of men, but scarcely 300 can be found who want to be grocers when the war is ended. Such things as estate management, forestry and agricultural science are very popular, and reflect the desire of many young soldiers — hitherto working in offices and factories — to continue with an open-air life when peace comes again.

Pity Mr. Ilsley!

How cumbersome a thing is the machinery of government is illustrated when Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, protests about R.C.A.F. administrative officers, who had never intended to leave the solid earth, flying as passengers with real fliers so that they may gain exemption from income tax through more than 100 hours a year in the air. Bravery, what climbs are committed in thy name! "That, to me, is scandalous," says Mr. Ilsley.

Mr. Ilsley also tells of civil servants in the department of national defence taking a commission and putting on a uniform, apparently also to gain income tax advantage. Mr. Ilsley says that he has fought a losing fight, apparently in cabinet council, against this form of heroism. Mr. Ilsley says: "The arguments are that they are going to work with men in uniform and they must have authority. Considerations of discipline are involved."

The picture is of the minister of finance, the man who decides what the taxes are to be, seeing men in the government employ, men right under his nose, dodging taxes and himself powerless to do anything about it. Government is cumbersome.

Mr. Ilsley tells of other injustices arising out of income tax regulations. Because married women were quitting work when they found that the government was going to get a substantial share of what they were earning, Mr. Ilsley had to amend his recent income tax proposals. He says: "The person who has the grievance now is the single woman, who sees working beside her a married woman who has a husband to support her, and whose husband is getting an allowance on the assumption that he has a home and is supporting his wife when actually he is not supporting her, because she is working. We cannot help it. We have to get these people to work and keep them at work."

The patriotism of individuals who leave war industry for such reasons is no greater than the patriotism of the firms who at the beginning of the war would not, according to a minister of the crown, work for a five per cent profit. And when they are the wives of men on active service their patriotism and willingness to sacrifice compares unfavorably with the patriotism of their soldier-husbands. — Newmarket Era.

It's the Truth

Those boys of ours who are overseas have but one purpose, to lick the enemy and get back home to a happy normal life. The rest of us at home in Canada cannot match that singleness of purpose as long as expenditures for war savings certificates, stamps and bonds take second place to expenditures for personal comforts and pleasures. —Perth Courier

WAR -- TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

By W. J. ARMSTRONG, Canadian Press Staff Writer

THIRD BATTLE OF YPRES BIG PHASE IN ALLIED OFFENSIVE IN BELGIUM

Continuing operations to divert pressure from French armies to the south, Sir Douglas Haig threw the main weight of the British offensive against German forces in Belgium 25 years ago in the First Great War. This drive cut deep into enemy manpower and became known as the Third Battle of Ypres.

Opening on July 31, 1917, the offensive was maintained through the late summer and autumn. The climax was reached in November when Canadians in the costly but triumphant battle of Passchendaele, advanced Allied positions about Ypres and secured domination of a portion of the Flanders plain.

Diversion of British operations followed the successes on the Arras front where the Canadian Corps opened the drive with the victory at Vimy Ridge in April. The Dominion soldiers carried on in this area until early in October when they were sent north to the Ypres sector.

The important point about the campaign that followed was that it kept up pressure on the German front, and prevented attack on the French forces in the process of reorganization after the unsuccessful offensive at the Aisne earlier in the summer.

The line of battle extended in an arc about Ypres and was anchored at Steetstraat in the north and at Deulemont 15 miles to the south. Here the Allies successfully encountered General Erich Ludendorff's new system of "elastic defence" by which he made little effort to hold the front lines, but withdrew from the most heavily bombarded zones to rely on machine guns operated from strong "pill box" forts.

During the first week of August the British met with success south, east and north of Ypres. In the latter area St. Julien and Pilken were captured, depriving the Germans of the ridge dominating Ypres.

Along Menin Road

Later Langemarck was recaptured and the battle resumed along the Menin Road. Weeks of fighting resulted in the Germans being cleared from Polygon Wood, and Zonnebeke was taken and held despite severe German counter-attacks. It was then that the attack on Passchendaele was planned and carried out with such remarkable success.

The Third Battle of Ypres secured for the British an excellent defensive position in Belgium between the Yser and Lys Rivers. But the German hold on the Belgian coast remained virtually unchallenged and little intended progress was made with British preparations for a subsequent advance on Ostend and the plains north of the Lys river.

CORRESPONDENCE TO THE EDITOR

W.C.T.U. Cheque for Mobile Canteen Is Warmly Acknowledged

Cushing, Que., July 20, 1942.
Editor, The Watchman:

As president of the Quebec Provincial Women's Christian Temperance Union, I had the privilege last October of sending a cheque for $500, subscribed by our members, to Lady Reading, chairman of the Women's Voluntary Services for Civil Defence (W.V.S.) in London, England.

This money was sent to purchase a small mobile canteen, or as it's called over there, a "Snack-Bar Trailer", to carry hot meals to air-raid victims and others. Since then I have received numerous letters of appreciation, from their organization to ours in Quebec Province, and thought the following extracts might prove of interest to your readers. We are raising funds for a similar gift this year.

From Mrs. Elsa Dunbar, head of Overseas Department, W.V.S., London, England:

"We have found that mobile canteens of the most immense value, not only during the emergencies which arise after air-raids, but also in the most intervening times, for feeding evacuated school children who otherwise could not have a hot meal at mid-day, also to take hot food during the cold winter months to the land workers. Now that all supplies of food are strictly rationed, it is very difficult for these land workers to take anything really substantial out with them to the fields. There are no more hunks of bread and cheese or cold meat. They cannot even manage sandwiches, because of the butter rationing and jam also being on the list of rationed foods, So the W.V.S. is helping everywhere with a "hot pie" service, and special arrangements have been made by the Ministry of Food for the release of meat for making the pies. Without the help of the mobile canteen, it would not be possible to get the hot pies to the workers."

From Kathleen Dickson, B.Sc., Group Administrator of the W.V.S.:

"I wish to tell you how very grateful we are to you for your wonderful gift of a snack-bar trailer. This trailer has been sent to one of our Riverside Boroughs, where it will be thoroughly appreciated and used to the full. I wonder whether you all realize how much your kind thoughts mean to us, and the encouragement it gives us to know how well you understand our needs. We want you to know what comfort this canteen will bring after a bad air-raid, and how welcome a cup of steaming hot tea or cocoa will be to the homeless, waiting to be reclothed and re-housed".

From the Central Organizer at the Old Town Hall, Greenwich High Road, London, comes the following:

"I am writing to thank you for the gift of a snack-bar trailer, which this Borough of Greenwich has received from the Quebec Provincial W.C.T.U. We are most grateful for your generous gift, which will be of inestimable help to the W.V.S. in bringing refreshments to Civil Defence workers and homeless persons, during and after air-raids . . . Your gift has made yet another link between Quebec and Greenwich, for it was here that Wolfe lived and is buried, and in our Park stands his statue which was unveiled ten years ago by a direct decendant of Montcalm".

Other letters were received from Mrs. Churchill, Lady Reading, and from Miss Agnes Slack of the World's W. C. T. U.

Yours truly,
—Amelia E. Usher

Study of Black-out Procedure, Industrial Collaboration in C.P.C.

Lachute, July 28, 1942.
Editor, The Watchman:

Further to my correspondence on the Home Guard and C.P.C., a matter of community welfare for which you generously allotted space in your last issue . . .

Since last edition, Mr. Gadboury, regional commissioner, warns that some form of compulsion may be necessary to ensure public co-operation with Home Guard and C.P.C. services. He also expresses gratification on the report of six newly formed divisions of St. John's Ambulance Brigade, and nursing sisters, from outside townships, and urges more of such.

At the Police and Fire Chiefs' Convention in Montreal this past week, Director Bigaouette said: "The Police and Fire Chiefs face a very difficult task in the coming year. The enemy is here! Too many people entertain a certain complacency which only helps the enemy. There are even some people that are unaware that there is a war going on, that it has now reached our continent" (unquote).

Assuming such dangers to be imminent, the first and foremost requisite for community safeguard is preparation for widespread black-out. Many large and smaller surrounding areas are fully organized and have already practiced such black-outs to good effect. Many other outer townships are not so well equipped, as between Town Council, Industry, Civic, and Power Companies; thus, in emergency, the only expedient (pending further collaboration) is to quickly organize, and utilize whatever resources that are to hand.

For instance, respective Town Councils to issue proclamations to the effect that:—following specified (fire siren) air raid alarm, householders, stores, and business premises must (pending light screen compulsion) immediately extinguish all lighting. (Power Company controls blanket street lighting.) The Town Hall, on receipt of alarm warning from outside authority, to immediately and simultaneously relay such warning to Siren Station, all community works plants and mills, and Power Company also. All works plants to have shift telephone attendant, responsible for operation of master switch, controlling the works (quickly installed), chain of siren horns into noisy workshops, and works Hooter Station, (to blow a prescribed alarm signal); at which alarm, specified key men (beltmen and operators) would ensure orderly stoppage of plant within prescribed minutes of time. Plant substation attendant, via meters, notes the power reduction, and opens works main lighting switch, leaving only prearranged screened pilot service in operation for essential purposes.

Thus simultaneously — from the town siren alarm—all works, mills, houses, (each neighbor a next-door warden), business premises, street lighting, etc., undergoes orderly procedure towards a blanket black-out, over extensive area within practiced 10 to 15 minutes of time. This is a quickly organized emergency black-out system, tried, tested, and successful, that in the past has safeguarded hundreds of square miles including industrial areas in actual air raid conditions, as the writer has experienced and been connected with in the past.

We, the community public, the usual victims of disaster, lacking preparation may reasonably ask: Why should not respective power companies black-out the whole threatened area from some main source, as sometimes occurs in an electric storm? Storm conditions are unavoidable; and such power interruptions usually disorganize industry, causing possible harm to machines and operators. Similarly, so would sudden power interruption, by human agency, be disruptive. Furthermore, even under black-out conditions, power and domestic supply must be maintained, to serve essential screened industry and other utilities. Therefore, procedure towards black-outs must be accomplished by simultaneous co-operation between industry, the public and the power utilities.

Regarding our own local situation—Brownsburg being a munition area and thereby the focal point of any likely attack—geography determines that we, also, of the surrounding districts are within that war-termed regional zone, and like Brownsburg, subject to——? That particular plant is no doubt organized in preparation for plant black-out, and also fortunate in its provision of guardsmen, First Aid services, and resources to cope with emergency in plant and surroundings. But such protection would be of little avail if, through lack of organized black-out co-operation, Brownsburg, Lachute and surrounding centres were to act as guiding lights pointing directly towards the munition plant. Hence the necessity for black-out preparation over a wide surrounding area.

Also pending formation of district Home Guard and C.P.C. services (probably under existing leadership of Legion Vets, women's and girls' societies, etc.,) urgency would suggest that Brownsburg plant with its mass labor concentration, could extend these civic services to larger proportions through a recruitment drive among employees. Such possible inducement as by placing existing advisory resources of plant (viz, marksmen, Home Guard, and First Aid personnel) at disposal of employees who join up for leisure-time training.

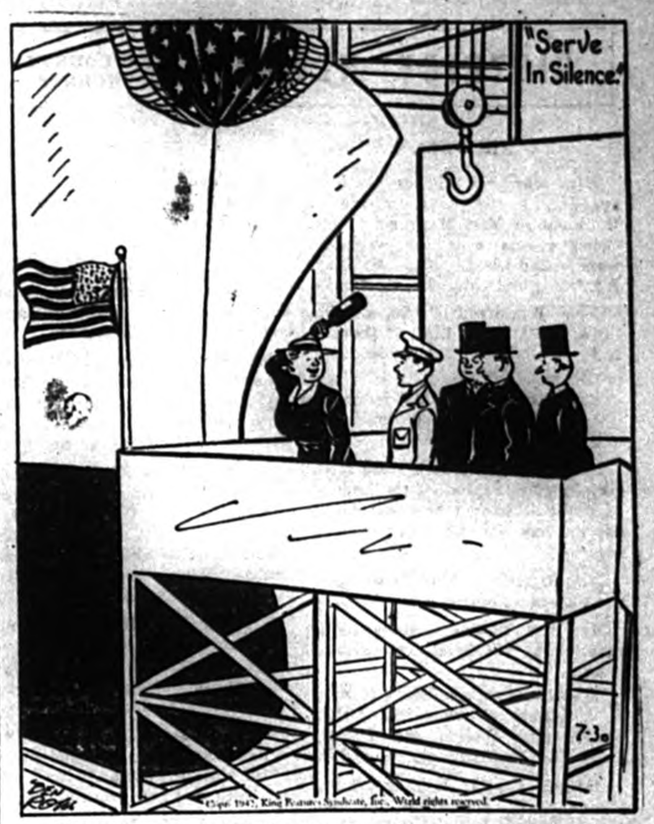

Possibly such advisory services, extended to voluntary groups that may be organized from surrounding districts, would be helpful.

The main structure of A.R.P. is collaboration between civic and industrial authority, firstly as to immediate community interests, then extending to adjacent townships, thence connecting to large city regional black-out zones.

Thanks, Editor.

— The Writer.

P.S. — Present "Provincial Advisory Councils" are at the advisory disposal of vulnerable municipalities (their mayors, commissioners, etc), relative to organization and equipment. Pending such organization, the council advises municipalities to utilize existing alarm resources (fire, mill and factory hooters); also to mobilize and recruit presently disconnected first aid, fire and medical personnel, to be ready for the day when the siren alarm system may sound the "imminent danger" signal.

"How hard must I hit it to knock it in the water?"

"Tell me, please, how I should go about getting a start in the great game of business?"

"Sell your wrist watch, and buy an alarm clock."

"It's quite simple to keep cool," writes an expert. "Don't look at the thermometer, and, above all, don't imbibe alcoholic beverages." On the theory, of course, that you'll look at the thermometer, see two of 'em, and feel twice as hot. —Exchange

Realistic Battle Training for "Commandos"

British "Commando" troops, such as those who took part in the daring raids on the French and Norwegian coasts, go through a realistic school of training. Actual battle conditions are produced as nearly as possible. Live ammunition is used and skilled marksmen, taking the part of defenders, fire as near to the Commandos as they can without causing casualties. The trainees literally go through fire and water . . . The picture shows: Fit smiling and ready for anything—a typical British "Commando" soldier at the end of a gruelling day.

VETERANS GUARD FILLING THE GAP

By Hal Miller

Ottawa — So well have ex-servicemen who met the Hun in the Great War done the various Active Service jobs assigned to them in the Veterans Guard of Canada, thaht 2,500 more men are being accepted by the unit, Col. H. R. Alley, Officer Administering, reveals.

The Veterans Guard of Canada has men overseas and it has been assigned to such important duties as protection of coastal areas and the guarding of prisoners of war.

Col. Alley points out that veterans must not be over 50 years of age to be accepted in the Veterans Guard of Canada. He believes that their previous service makes them especially valuable.

"They had re-ordered their lives for 25 years, were bringing up their families, establishing homes, working in town and city and country," Col. Alley said, "Yet, when war broke out, they clamored to get back into service.

"They had no illusions about themselves; they knew that they were older, slower, less vigorous.

"They had no illusions about war; they knew that much of it was a dull business — hard-slugging, steady, relentless effort, without glory or thanks.

"There are many dull jobs in war, most of which do not require the physical agility that belongs only to youth. These call for method, doggedness, discipline. Such jobs have not the glamor of adventure nor do they hold out any hope of glory or honor to be gained.

"The Veterans Guard of Canada has taken over the 'dull jobs' of the Canadian Army. Not only in Canada, but in Britain and in various parts of the Empire the Veterans Guard of Canada is doing the jobs that call for method, doggedness and discipline.

Gather SCRAP METAL

MORIN HEIGHTS
H. G. Baugh, Preacher
August 2

Morin Heights 11.00 a.m.
Mille Isles 8.30 pm.

In the confusion of today we haven't the foggiest idea of what is going to happen tomorrow. Our forefathers foresaw the future of their country many years ahead. We call it "lack of imagination." They would have called it "vision." We rely on what we call cleverness. They sought a Wisdom higher than their own.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Girl Guides' Service At Trinity, Morin Hts.

Morin Heights — Over one hundred persons attended the Girl Guides' service held in Trinity Anglican Church on Sunday evening. A large unit from the Guide camp paraded to the church with the camp leaders, and lined up outside the church entrance until the service began.

The service was conducted by Horace G. Baugh, missionary-in-charge of the church, who based his sermon on the text, "Ye Cannot Serve God and Mammon." In addressing his remarks particularly to the Guides, he stressed the responsibilities and burdens they would be expected to bear in a wartorn world, and without a secure religious life they could never hope to make a success of their ventures.

Suitable music for the occasion was under the direction of Mrs. R. J. Seale at the organ.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"Love" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 2nd.

The Golden Text is from II Corinthians 13: 11. "Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another; . . . Be of the same mind one toward another." (Romans 12: 10, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "It should be thoroughly understood that all men have one Mind, one God and Father, one Life, Truth, and Love. Mankind will become perfect in proportion as this fact becomes apparent, war will cease and the true brotherhood of men will be established." (Page 467).

Church Needs Permit To Engage Pastor

Alexandria, Ont. — Without a minister since the death of Rev. Dr. D. M. MacLeod, some months ago, the congregation of the Alexandria United church now have discovered that they cannot secure a clergyman until they obtain permission from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

The church board appealed to the Commission in Ottawa some time ago and were informed that for the present clergymen the same as any other individuals were required to have permits from the commission upon entering or changing employment.

This information, as information is in a small community, was broadcast and reached the ear of a number of school teachers who had contemplated changing their schools. Soon the office of the commission in Ottawa was flooded with inquiries from the floating pedagogic population. "Does this effect us?" they wanted to know.

A letter covering clergymen, school teachers and others was finally despatched to Alexandria by J. R. Laframboise, manager of the unemployment insurance commision office here. It reads as follows:

"Regarding your query, we may say that at the present time, as no general exception appears to have been contemplated when the control of employment regulations were made, we believe clergymen will require a permit to change employment in the same manner as any other individual."

"Possibly the director of national selective service may issue regulations pursuant to authority given him under order-in-council P.C. 5238 excepting certain occupations from the provisions of the control of employment regulations, dated June 16, 1942. Until such regulations are made we believe it will be necessary for clergymen to be covered by permit the same as any other person entering or changing employment."

All this is still pretty mysterious to the good folk of Alexandria who are still looking for clergymen and school teachers.

Expert Stands Up For Battleships

Nothing Yet to Show They're Obsolete, Writes Editor of Brassey's Annual

London (CP) — Writing in the 1942 edition of Brassey's Naval Annual, Comdr. H. Pursey, Royal Navy, contends nothing in this war has justified the argument that the battleship has been rendered obsolete by the advent of aircraft. "Despite the general idea to the contrary — it is a failing of the British public to remember enemy successes and forget our own — the British Navy has, first, countered or defeated more aircraft attacks than have been successful, and, secondly, has scored more successes with aircraft than the three Axis Powers combined," Cmdr. Pursey wrote.

Workers Entertained At Carillon Residence

Brownsburg—Again on Sunday afternoon about 75 munitions workers enjoyed an outing, when they were entertained at the summer residence of the Pesant Bros. at Carillon. The crowd spent an enjoyable afternoon around this historic spot, visiting different places of interest and swimming at the locks. Lunch was served on the lawn at 5.30 p.m. These Sunday afternoon events are becoming very popular.

Pleasant Summer Days at St. Andrews by the Sea

WITH physical fitness a requisite in every field of wartime endeavor, and Canada's foremost seaside resort at St. Andrews, N.B., so admirably equipped to promote that fitness, the famed Algonquin Hotel is anticipating plenty of action this summer on its sea-girt golf course, sandy bathing beaches, tennis courts, bridle paths and tumbling blue waters where yachtsmen can sail before salt-laden breezes on Passamaquoddy Bay, one of the Atlantic's loveliest inland arms.

Surrounded by emerald green lawns, flowering shrubs, and gardens, the charming Canadian Pacific hostelry is but a few minutes' stroll from the famous 18-hole golf course whose rolling fairways literally meet the sea, and whose fame in this country rivals that of its namesake course in St. Andrews, Scotland.

Also within easy distance of the Algonquin lies the golden expanse of Katy's Cove, where hotel patrons can indulge in their favorite aquatic pastimes on floats, diving boards or on the beaches of sun-drenched sands. The beach, complete with dressing rooms and showers, borders a sparkling land-locked cove where the waters maintain an evenly moderate temperature.

Other attractions at the Algonquin, which remains open this year from June 27 to September 8, include fishing for trout, bass and landlocked salmon in nearby lakes, cycling and motoring over picturesque roads that seldom lose sight of the sea, tennis on the hotel's fast, modern courts and dancing at the Algonquin Casino.

Not the least of St. Andrews attractions is its accessibility by Canadian Pacific Railway lines from principal cities of Eastern Canada and from large eastern centres in the United States.

Marriage Solemnized in Morin Heights Church

Martin - Woods

The marriage of Miss Jessie Victoria Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woods of Morin Heights, to Private Adelard Armedee Martin, of the Huntingdon Training Camp, took place in Holy Trinity Church, Morin Heights, on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, assisted by H. G. Baugh. Mrs. Moss played the wedding music. The church was decorated with delphiniums, phlox and hydrangea.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a delph blue sheer dress of street length, with a pillbox hat to match. Her bouquet was of blue delphiniums, fern and white baby's breath. Her only attendant was her sister Violet, who wore a beige pleated-silk dress, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of delphinium and fern.

Mr. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Martin, of Montreal, was attended by William G. Vine.

Mr. Martin returned to Camp early this week.

Wedding of Interest To Kilmar Community

MacDonald - Kenny

The marriage of Muriel Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Kenny, of Kilmar, Que., to Dr. Owen R. MacDonald, son of the late D. R. MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald, of Montreal, took place at the Shrine of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, St. Ann's Church, on Saturday, July 18.

The Rev. T. F. Kenny, C.S.S.R., of Kansas City, Mo., uncle of the bride, officiated. Mrs. W. Galarneau, sister of the bride, sang Roseweig's "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register. Mr. Sheldon MacDonald attended his brother.

The bride, unattended and given in marriage by her father, was dressed in a frock of gardenia white silk jersey, with softly shirred basque bodice and full skirt, her shoulder-length veil being held in place by a floral halo. She wore a shoulder garland of Better Time roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Kenny, the bride's mother, was gowned in a navy blue ensemble, with white accessories and wore a corsage bouquet of Talisman roses. Mrs. MacDonald, mother of the bridegroom, wore a redingote of navy blue sheer over powder blue, with white and blue accessories, and had a cluster of blush sweet peas as a corsage.

A reception for the immediate families and friends was held following the ceremony, at the Queen's Hotel, where the bride's table was centred with a four-tier wedding cake, with pink and white snapdragons used as decorations.

Later the couple left for the Laurentians, the bride travelling in a beige linen suit with green and beige accessories.

Guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. John Kenny, of Kilmar, and Miss Cecile Brigden and Mr. R. Lemay, of Calumet.

His Will Depends On Bread Prices

Flying Officer Looked Ahead to Fifty Cents for Four-Pound Loaf

Belfast (CP)—The price of bread governed conditions of the will of Flying Officer Arthur P. Holmes, who died on war service. He bequeathed certain property to his wife and the residue was to be placed on trust for her. But if the price of a four-pound loaf of bread reached more than 50 cents, she was to receive the entire estate. Since the start of the war, the price of a four-pound loaf has been "pegged" at 15 cents.

Woodsmen Need Bilingual Horses

Mont Laurier, Que.—With the shortage of gasoline, the horse is coming back into his own in the woods operations of the pulp and paper industry, but bringing in his train a problem in linguistics. The majority of the horses used are shipped from western Canada while many of the teamsters are French-Canadian. The horses simply do not understand the expressions used in the woods here.

A further complication is the large and sometimes colorful variety of different injunctions, commands and exhortations used by the teamsters.

A move is on foot to try to standardize the commands and thereby reduce the mental wear and tear on horse and driver alike. This was one of the many subjects discussed last week at the instructors' course for woodsmen held at Venne Depot, 50 miles northwest of here under the auspices of the Woodlands Section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Berne (CP) — Candles are so scarce in Germany that their use in churches has been banned for the duration, it is learned here. Communion wine also is mostly unavailable.

Artificial Respiration For Drowning Victims

Frequently, artificial respiration will restore breathing after it has been stopped by drowning, and as swimming is a prevalent pastime at this season, a few pointers are pertinent. Apart from drowning, electric shock, gas poisoning, suffocation and other injuries stop breathing. It is important that artificial respiration be begun at once, as delay is dangerous.

The prone pressure method consists in laying patient on his stomach, one arm extended overhead, the other bent at the elbow with his hand under his cheek. The first move is to straddle the patient's legs, place palms in the small of his back with little finger just touching his lowest rib. The arms should be kept straight so that the full weight of the body should bear on the patient. At the end of the swing, the eyes should be directly over the thumbs. Don't bend the elbows. Release the pressure of your hands quickly and swing back. After two seconds swing forward again. Pressure should be applied for about two seconds and the release should last equally long. The entire movement of pressure and release should be applied rhythmically and unhurriedly, 12 to 15 times a minute.

Rules for Success

There are certain rules conducive to success that should be borne in mind: Continue resuscitation without interruption until natural breathing is restored. Don't give up for at least two hours, or until a doctor pronounces the patient dead. Keep patient warm with blankets, both under and over the body, and with hot water bottles. Plenty of heat is important. Someone should loosen the patient's clothing, but don't interrupt resuscitation to do it. Do not give liquids by mouth until the patient is fully conscious or they may strangle him. After he revives, give warm tea or coffee as a stimulant —not alcohol. To avoid strain on the heart after patient revives, keep him lying down. Do not allow him to sit or stand up. A return of natural breathing does not mean patient is out of danger. Watch closely and if breathing stops, resume artificial respiration. Operators may be changed during resuscitation, but don't interrupt rhythm.

Hints for Homebodies

A CONTRAST IN BEAUTY

When you return to a place you see it with new eyes. I have just returned from a month's trip to Ontario, and I have been struck with the beauty of the lawns and the gardens. I am sure they are nicer than I ever saw them before. The Horticultural Societies have done good work in encouraging gardens. It was a good year for roses and the number and the beauty of the roses between Niagara Falls and Hamilton is beyond description. We have just had some visitors from Ontario and they thought they had never seen such beauty as in New Brunswick. It is hard to compare them. As a rule, you can see more beautiful scenery in an hour's drive in any part of the Maritimes than you could see in a day's journey in most of Ontario. The beauty of Ontario is mostly man-made whereas the beauty of the Maritimes is the natural beauty of the sea, the rivers, the lakes, and the hills. It is a pity we Canadians do not know more of our country. The Provinces differ so, and they all have something. Our Armed Forces have been stationed in so many different parts of the country that after the war it is most likely there will be more travelling in our own land.

FARM FORUM BROADCAST

I hope you heard Ethel Chapman speak on Nutrition on a recent Farm Forum broadcast. She is a graduate in Home Economics and as editor of the women's department in a farm magazine is in close contact with farm affairs. Whatever Ethel Chapman has to say is authoritative and good common sense. Although her talk was directed to the farm women it was almost as useful to any other listener. Farm women are like other housekeepers — there are good cooks and poor ones among them. When they are good cooks they are grand as they have the best of everything to work with. Unfortunately they do not all use the products of the farm and the garden for home consumption. The only time in his life that one of our sons has not had at least a quart of milk a day was one summer he worked on a farm. A small pitcher of milk to use in the tea was the only milk put on the table — the rest of the milk was fed to the pigs.

NO NEW RECIPES

Usually, when I have been away on a holiday I can bob up with plenty of new ideas about foods and some good new recipes — but not on this holiday. I had good meals but they were plainer meals and women were not trying out new elaborate recipes, they were sticking to the tried and true. The general concensus of opinion on the substitution of corn syrup or honey for sugar was that it was too expensive for general use. Lack of sugar is certainly going to make a change in our eating habits.

HUNT UP THOSE COLLAPSIBLE TUBES

We are falling down on the job. Only about 25% of the collapsible tubes are being turned in. Go through the dresser drawers and the bath-room cabinet and see of there aren't any empty tubes around. You may think one tube doesn't matter much, but it does. Canada produces no tin and when Malaya and Dutch East Indies were lost our supply of tin was cut off. Drop whatever you are doing right this very minute and look and see if you can't find some empty tubes. Then get them to the drug store or wherever it is you buy your toothpaste, ointments, and such. Last year 725,000 pounds of tin were used in this country to manufacture collapsible tubes, and they estimate that there is at least a half-million pounds of it to be salvaged. That is a lot of pounds of tin to come from those little tubes and they never will get it if you, and you, and you, do not get busy.

JELLY ICING

½ Cup tart jelly, 1 egg white, unbeaten, 4 tablespoons sugar, a few grains of salt.

Place the jelly in a bowl over hot water and melt it. Add remaining ingredients and cook and beat with a rotary egg beater until it stands in peaks — about 3 minutes. Remove from the hot water and continue beating until stiff enough to spread. Spread on the cake and garnish with jelly.

CUCUMBER SALAD

Pare cucumbers, then quarter and remove seeds. Cut in small dice, add a little finely chopped onion, and mix with boiled salad dressing. Do not mix too long before using as it gets moist quickly. This is one of the few salads that is good with hot meat.

MOLASSES GLAZE

Boil ½ cup molasses and ½ cup water to a firm soft ball when dropped in cold water. Spread on a dark cake and decorate immediately with raisins, cherries, or nuts, if desired.

ARMS AND THE BABY

(CP)—Carrying banners bearing the slogan "You want arms—we want a nursery" and pushing their perambulators, mothers in a London suburb marched to the Town Hall to demand use of premises as a nursery again so they may work in war factories.

Kitchen Aromas at Ottawa Tell of Experts Busy Making Recipes to Fit Restrictions

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 28 (CP) — When the Department of Agriculture puts out recipes with the tag "Tested by the Consumer Service" those recipes are just that.

When they say you can make jelly with three-quarters of a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit, a corps of experts has proved it can be done, in the smart Department of Agriculture kitchen in the basement of the Confederation Building.

That very white streamlined kitchen looks a bit out of place in the midst of government offices and steel filing cabinets. The place is full of the grand, homey smell of cooking.

Laura Pepper, director of the consumer section, says the kitchen is concentrating on fruit these days, with the emphasis, of course, on how to make the best jams, jellies and preserves with the least sugar.

Getting Just Right

When the Canadian Press dropped in, half a dozen jars of preserved strawberries stood on a table by the window. On their sides were labels—"Experiment 4" or "Experiment 7"—giving the date the fruit was preserved, the exact method, amounts of ingredients, and cooking temperature.

"We were trying to find out the best way to can strawberries to prevent the fruit floating," said Marion Casselman, the Kitchen Supervisor. Right enough, some fruit was floating while some was distributed evenly through the syrup. Miss Casselman is a Vancouver girl, a graduate home economist, who has been travelling Canada for the consumer section but now is anchored in Ottawa to turn her knowledge to the use of Mrs. Canadian Housewife.

She has two assistants, Ruby MacNeill of Acadia University and Ruth Jackson of Macdonald College.

Check Recipes

The kitchen staff doesn't start from scratch. It uses recipes issued by manufacturers and other authorities, but checks them carefully for sugar amounts. As the first of any fruit appears on the market the kitchen starts its experimenting, and by the time the fruit is at its season's height the tested recipes have been sent all over Canada.

There were large bowls of raspberries, gooseberries and red currants sitting ready for cooking.

"We're working on those now," said Miss Casselman. "We're trying to work out the best canning method when there is only half a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit. We changed the strawberry canning recipe eight times before we worked out one we could recommend."

The kitchen was established in 1939 just before the war but it has been turned to war uses.

"Canadian women seem to appreciate us," said Miss Casselman. "We get hundreds of swell letters —and lots of women send us recipes. If they sound good we try them out—and pass them on if they work."

BUSINESS GIRL HAS HER OWN PRIVATE "VICTORY BUDGET"

Jacqueline Sprung, 18-year-old Toronto city hall switchboard operator, has the solution to the problem of how to meet the greatly increased income taxes. Her answer is a "Victory budget."

Miss Sprung, who says she always tries to live on a strict budget, has designed one to absorb the increased "take" out of her pay envelope. Her salary is only about $14.40 a week, but her tax for 1942, according to her figures, will be $79.50.

Like hundreds of other working girls, Miss Sprung has already given up silk stockings. She wears none at all, not even painted ones, to work. "It was a little embarrassing with bare legs at first", she said. "But most of the girls are doing it now, and it saves worry about runs, as well as money." She saves leg paint for dances and parties.

Here is her victory budget, for a salary of about $14.40 per week.

	Present Budget	Victory Budget
Board	$5.00	$5.00
Lunches	1.25	1.00
Car fare	.75	.75
Clothes	4.00	3.70
Cosmetics	1.10	.90
Taxes	.80	1.54
Entertainment	1.00	.76
War Stamps	.50	.75
Total	$14.40	$14.40

Sacrifices on Cosmetics

The increased tax, Miss Sprung met by "stealing a little" from entertainment and cosmetics. Not satisfied with this contribution to the war effort, patriotic Miss Sprung stole another quarter from lunches and tacked it on war savings stamps, an item which has been in her budget ever since they were offered for sale.

Clothes, the largest item in Miss Sprung's budget, outside of board, suffered relatively slight injury. "I think it is our duty to keep presentable," she said. "We can't go around looking frowsy; that wouldn't help keep chins up."

IN SAILOR TALK GIRLS "TIDDLY" IF "SHIPSHAPE"

Sailors on Leave May Spring Some New Ones if You're Not up on Navy Jargon

By ROBERT JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A West Coast Canadian Naval Base (CP)—Girls, if your sailor boy-friend whispers that you look "tiddly" or "sharp," don't be alarmed. He's just paying you a compliment in the nautical jargon of the men who go to sea.

In a sailor's language, "tiddly" means "shipshape" or looking one's best. "Sharp" means the same thing. They're just two of the scores of phrases spoken unconsciously by navy and merchant marine sailormen who have a lingo all their own—usually to the utter bewilderment of the landlubbers.

When a sailor says he's going to sling his "mick" and get some "kink," he's just telling you he's going to sling his hammock and "turn in" for some sleep.

If your navy man is a plain ordinary sailor—the kind with bell-bottom pants, a middy and round sailor hat—he's a "round rigger" in the jargon of the navy. If he wears a peaked cap, narrow-bottomed trousers and a double-breasted coat, he's known as a "square-rigger".

Here's Some New Ones

Many nautical phrases like "bow" and "stern," "port" and "starboard," are well known, but did you know that in the navy a wharf is always a "jetty," a "killick" is a leading seaman, a cook is known as a "slosh" and his shipboard kitchen a "galley."

Or did you know that when a sailor says "let's go and scoff," he means "let's go and eat?"

And girls, if your sailor happens to be an officer who tells you proudly that he came "up through the hawse-pipe," don't stare at him aghast.

Just smile and pretend you knew all the time that he meant he was promoted from among the ratings —seamen and petty officers.

Children in the War

— By Ruth Adam —

Hitler spoke the truth when he said that children were a part of total warfare. Even in the safe areas of Britain, children are in the war. We can only consider how we, personally, can defend them mentally and physically, from this world catastrophe that has swept over their childhood years.

They have been sent to the safest places. Their food is the first consideration of the Ministry. Grown-up people must drink milkless tea so that every child may have an adequate ration. Oranges are saved for the children. Any mother may go to the local food office and find the card she signed long since, when her baby was born, lying on the table there beside a weekly supply of black-currant juice and codliver oil.

The best gas-masks are given to every family where there is a baby. There are special meals at feeding-centres for schoolchildren, special clinics all over the country, special maternity homes and nurseries. All the "nannies" have been swept in by the Government to look after the nation's children.

The question of the nervous strain of war upon children is partly solved by the physical precautions. Anyone acquainted with children knows that their chief need is the feeling of security. However, children feel insecure, not because they know life is hazardous and death always close by, but only when they doubt their parents and guardians.

The children of Britain are hourly conscious that they are watched over and cared for. At school, the teachers see that they get their morning milk, make sure that their gas-masks are in perfect condition and rehearse their places in the air raid shelter. The school clinics keep records of their health and send them for treatment when necessary. The war news is explained to them daily over the radio.

They know they are guarded as the nation's most precious possession. They know that they are not being kept in the dark about the course of the war. And it is not so surprising in the circumstances, to find that the health of the school-has not deteriorated, but in many cases actually improved during the years of war.

Lunch on the Job For War Workers

Here are some attractive suggestions about keeping Dad well nourished and pleasing his palate even though war work may force him to take his lunch on the job. He can't be a good war worker unless he's well fed, especially at lunch time, according to food experts. What follows has been endorsed by leading dietary experts, including Dr. E. W. McHenry, chairman of the Nutrition Division of the Health League of Canada.

Invigorating Sandwiches:

Minced beef with salad dressing.

Peanut butter with lettuce and marmalade or jam.

Minced liver with salad dressing.

Salmon loaf with salad dressing.

Chopped egg with salad dressing.

Grated cheese with salad dressing.

Cabbage and carrot salad with salad dressing.

Grated cheese and peanut butter with salad dressing.

Cottage cheese with marmalade.

A fruit paste made from raisins or dates.

(Confidential P.S. — Spread the fillings thick and don't hold back on the butter — and spread a little wheat germ on peanut butter sandwiches: he won't notice it and it'll do him good. Wheat germ has the "Z" or "Zip" vitamin.)

Fruit—Oranges, apples, prunes, dried apricots, or any fruit you have handy. Put in lots of it.

Vegetables—Raw carrots, crisp and clean, prevent night blindness. Or celery if you can't sell him on carrots.

Milk—At least a half pint in a handy container.

Nicknack—End on a high note with something he really goes for, such as a piece of cake or a slab of pie.

Clip this article for reference. Write to the Health League at 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, for a free vitamin chart suitable for framing in your kitchen.

When they ration trousers Ottawa bureaucrats should remember that women wear them too.

It's Patriotic

to conserve all things which will require industry and manpower to replace.

Let this thought be ever present in your home . . . The consideration which, in normal times, was just logical economy — that care is now a patriotic duty insofar as it affects wear and tear on your domestic appliances. Keep electric devices clean and friction free; keep them oiled where necessary; follow instructions carefully; save undue strain on flexible cords . . . and finally, call for advice on any slight defect which may presage a breakdown.

Threshing Gang Sugar Watched by Board

Montreal July 27—Although the sugar rationing regulations permit farmers' wives to purchase extra supplies of sugar for the feeding of threshing gangs and certain other groups of farm workers by means of purchase vouchers obtainable at retail establishments, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board urges that reason should govern these applications and that, wherever possible, sugar so obtained should approximate the ordinary individual ration allowance for the number of men concerned.

It has been found that in certain instances applications have been made for sugar for such feeding in unreasonable and excessive quantities. In these cases the suggestion is being made that, in view of the desirability of sugar being conserved by every means possible, the estimate of prospective consumption should be reduced to reasonable quantities.

In cases where the "gang" consists merely of a number of neighbors who combine to carry out farm work, ration officers suggest that any sugar required to feed them should be made available from their own rations.

It is further pointed out that any individual making us of the purchase voucher for the purpose of supplying harvesting gangs may later be required to justify the use which has been made of supplies so obtained. All of these purchase vouchers will be carefully scrutinized with a view to detecting possible abuses.

As the ration office views the matter, the provision in the rationing regulations permitting farmers' wives to apply for extra sugar to feed threshing gangs cannot be seized upon as an excuse to obtain excessive supplies, part of which may be used for other purposes, and a careful check is being made to prevent such an abuse of this concession.

F.W.I.C. Health Program

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada are giving a prominent place on their programs to the study of health conditions in Canada. The war and its demands for physical fitness have shown that the health record in Canada is not very good. The F.W.I.C. have set out to find the reason, and to encourage such legislation, both Federal and Provincial, as will seek remedies for the prevention and spread of diseases, and their cure.

Howard Richardson carried on by narrating a war story. The evening ended with the usual camp closing exercises.

Boy Scouts The World Over

A total of 12 tons of salvage rubber have been gathered and shipped by the Boy Scouts of South Porcupine.

PAID HELP NEEDED FOR AURORA SCOUTS' SALVAGE DEPOT

So successful have the Boy Scouts of Aurora, Ont., been in their systematized salvage collections that a permanent employee has been placed in charge of the town's salvage depot. Out of the financial proceeds to date the Scouts have made donations of $25 each to the Red Cross, Salvation Army Red Shield fund and the Baden-Powell Chins Up fund for British Scout war sufferers. A $50 Victory bond also has been purchased.

A CAMP CALL TO BOY SCOUTS

A call to Boy Scout leaders across the Dominion to overcome the wartime problems involved and secure a fortnight's camping for their Scouts this summer has been issued by the Executive Board of the Boy Scouts Association. The object is to ensure both the camp training that has proved so valuable a feature of Scouting, and the health benefit of changed surroundings and the full outdoor life, particularly for the new and younger Scouts. Older Scouts not otherwise employed will be working on farms. For these are recommended camps in locations from which the boys can go to their farm work, thus combining farming and some Scouting. For the young Scouts, where transportation is a difficulty, near-home hike-distance camps are recommended. It may be possible to locate such camps on farms where the boys can help with berry picking and other lighter farm work. Chairmen of Scout Group Committees are called upon to do everything possible to arrange camps, and to secure the needed camp leaders.

Delivers Fourth Script

"Fire On The Home Front" is his latest and was produced from Toronto for National network listeners on Monday, July 27.

Overloading Is Strain On Automobile Tires

A policy of conserving auto tires through better care and sounder driving habits becomes essential as the country's rubber situation grows more serious. Its true gravity will perhaps not be impressed upon motorists until they are faced with the obligation of procuring new tires. Then they will be made acquainted with the fact that all the rubber-growing areas are in the hands of the enemy and that the supply has been cut off.

Certain recommendations devised by the Engineering departments of D.I.L. are advanced for the conservation of industrial rubber equipment as well as automotive.

Motorists are counselled not to overload their tires because this diminishes mileage rapidly. "Overloaded tires, if normally inflated, mean over-flexing and heating. If tires are over-inflated to compensate for the overload, the resulting increase causes faster wear."

They say: Keep correct air pressure in tires at all times; shift tires from wheel to wheel every 3,000 miles to equalize the tread wear on all tires, including the spare; whenever a tire is changed, check the air pressure after a few miles; slow down on the turns; avoid sudden stops and quick starts; be careful when approaching curbs; never exceed 40 miles an hour; check wheel alignment, front and rear; check tires regularly for cuts and bruises; wipe up the oil on garage floor; park car in shade whenever possible.

"They Flew Alone" Is Epic of the Mollisons

A tall tough-looking seaman of the Royal Navy, who walked on to the floor at Denham Studios in London where Herbert Wilcox was directing Anna Neagle in They Flew Alone was revealed to the uninitiated as Robert Newton, Star of Major Barbara and Hatter's Castle. He had been signed to play Jim Mollison opposite Miss Neagle in the dramatization of the life of the woman flier, Amy Johnson Mollison . . . The picture is billed for the Capitol Theatre, Brownsburg, on Aug. 11-12-13.

And from his naval capacity, an ordinary able bodied seaman in the Navy, he had just returned from a hazardous trip, "somewhere in the Arctic" on a minesweeper when he heard he had been granted a special release by the Admiralty to play in the film.

Herbert Wilcox, considers Newton, not only the biggest personality among Britain's new generation of screen actors, but the one man ideally fit to "put over" the role of Jim Mollison.

The character study of Jim Mollison is that of a man likeable, and yet erratic, who dared great things for flying, and who is doing some of the finest work today as ferry pilot for the RA.F.

The Mollisons made history, and whenever, in the future, men and women speak of aviation and the way it brought the nations of the world more closely together, none will forget them. Individually their flights were epics of endurance, courage and determination. Together their amazing Atlantic "hop" won them the admiration of the people of all countries.

How Jim and Amy started their spectacular careers, the ambition that spurred them on to ever greater feats, their romance meeting and marriage, these are events that motivate the picture.

Edward Chapman and Joan Kemp-Welch re-create the roles of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, the heroine's parents. Lord Castleross wrote the original story.

"Forty years in the show business and I've never told a risqué story in my life."

Horror Takes Holiday In "The Mad Doctor"

Those who like their drama laid on thick and heavy will enjoy "The Mad Doctor of Market Street," showing on August 11-12-13 at the Rex Theatre; it has plenty of action, suspense and thrills with a liberal dash of comedy. Lionel Atwill is seen in the title role, that of Dr. Ralph Benson, a medical practitioner seeking to perfect his experiments in suspended animation. Due to the death of his human guinea pig he faces a charge of murder and so flees to Australia, but the ship catches fire and Dr. Benson and five companions reach a tropical isle. The natives are about to burn them when the doctor restores the life of the chief's wife and so becomes a "God of Life" to the natives. He then holds the other survivors, the attractive Pat; her Aunt Margaret; the former's boy-friend; White, petty officer from the ship, and Red, a prize fighter, prisoners on the island so that he can experiment on them. How they finally escape from his clutches forms the balance of the film.

A man who gets a great kick out of gate crashing, when he is kicked out gets a great kick out of that too.

"Twin Beds" Makes Hilarious Film Story

A slick comedy cast, headed by such stars as Joan Bennett, George Brent, Mischa Auer, Glenda Farrell, Ernest Truex and Una Merkel is responsible for the gayety, fun and hilarity which highlight the swift-moving action of "Twin Beds", to appear at the Rex Theatre next Sunday and Monday.

Based on the Broadway hit farce of the 1916-17 theatrical season, "Twin Beds" tells a laugh-getting story of a young married couple, consisting of Miss Bennett and Mr. Brent, who become involved in a whole series of crazy complications because the heroine goes about daffily doing good deeds where they always have the worst possible effect.

Miss Bennett's enthusiasm for good causes finally brings her harrassed husband to the end of his rope and he skips town. When he returns, on a mission of reconciliation, he is greeted by a surprise that is more than any man in his right mind is willing to accept. From there on the story gambols madly to a bright finish.

One of the funniest sequences in "Twin Beds" got there accidentally. Brent, attired in robe and pyjamas was supposedly having a running quarrel with his screen wife, Miss Bennett. As he dashed around the end of their bed his foot caught in a bearskin rug and he landed heavily on his knee and one shoulder.

The spill looked so funny as it was caught by the camera that Director Tim Whelan ordered the take printed and rewrote the sequence to include it. "Twin Beds" also introduces to the screen the technique of "Cossack's Kisses," something entirely new in love-making as originated by the remarkable Mischa Auer.
