Clash at Quebec as Duplessis Charges Issue of Extravagance Is Misrepresentation of Fact

Adopt Bills to Raise Teachers' Pensions And Protect Property of Men on Service

First Reading of Clause Enabling Towns To Levy Tax on Machinery as Immovable

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, June 2 (CP) — Opposition Leader Maurice Duplessis and Provincial Treasurer Arthur Mathewson clashed when Mr. Duplessis expressed the belief that an independent audit of the province's books should be made to "give a true picture of the financial situation and to disprove charges of extravagance laid against the Union Nationale government" which was in power from 1936 to 1939.

Mr. Duplessis made the suggestion in the Legislative Assembly before it adjourned until June 8, because of the King's Birthday and Ascension Thursday.

The Liberals, he said, misrepresented the province's financial situation during the election campaign of 1939, and when they claimed that the Union Nationale government was bankrupt and could not find money on the financial markets. "As a matter of fact, the government obtained $30,000,000 on American markets one month before the general elections. That showed conclusively that the province was solvent and well administered."

Mr. Mathewson said that an independent audit of the province's books was made in 1939 when the present government came to power. "The audit showed that the Quebec debt was increased from $209,000,000 in 1936 to $420,000,000 in 1939. The audit showed that the administration of the Opposition Leader accumulated huge deficits from year to year, up to the point where in 1939 they were more than $60,000,000.

"Our policy has been to abolish new loans and to administer the province on a cash and carry basis. That is why deficits have been replaced by surpluses and the debt, instead of increasing, is being reduced. The present government is reducing the debt by $100,000 a week. It has also decreased the annual budget from $110,000,000 to $90,000,000."

The argument over the province's finances came at the end of a busy week in both houses of the Legislature. The Legislative Council, 24-seat upper house, finally adopted the bill that will make education free and compulsory for children between six and 14 years of age.

Several Bills Adopted

Shortly after the adoption the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Eugene Fiset, gave royal assent to the bill and its provisions will come into force next July 1. Only cripples, children who live far from schools or children who have been ejected from schools will not fall under the clauses of the law.

The Council also adopted a bill that will authorize the setting up of a provincial civil service commission somewhat similar to the federal civil service commission. In future the government will hire candidates who have passed civil service examinations. The appointments will be made by the provincial cabinet on the recommendations of the commission. Dismissals will have to be authorized by the three-man commission.

The Assembly, 86-seat lower house, unanimously adopted a bill that would protect the homes and farms of men on active service who cannot meet their mortgage payments. The members of the forces may delay their payments on interest or capital, if they can show before a judge of the Superior Court in chambers that their service prevents them from meeting their obligations. The delay would last until one year after the war or until one year after the member of the forces has been discharged. The delay would also be granted to the member's dependents.

Mr. Duplessis urged that the bill be amended to protect from seizure furniture bought on the instalment plan and salaries which some members of the forces still receive from their former employers. His recommendations were not acted upon. Hon. Oscar Drouin, Minister of Municipal Affairs and sponsor of the bill, said that the government had studied the legislation of other provinces and felt that the bill as drawn up was the best solution.

Also adopted was a bill aimed at increasing the pensions of school teachers in the province. Minimum pensions, which are now between $200 and $275 annually, would be increased to between $240 and $300 according to the number of years of teaching. The pension would be based on the 10 instead of the 20 highest paid years. The existing ceiling of $1,500 on pensions would be abolished. Contributions to the pension fund would be increased from three to five per cent for bachelors and from 4½ to five per cent for married men teachers. The contribution of women teachers would remain at three per cent.

To Tax Machinery As Immovables

Among bills given first reading was one that would authorize municipalities governed by the Cities and Towns Act to tax machinery as an immovable. Several municipalities have asked for such authority. On one occasion the Assembly granted it, but the Council reversed the decision.

British Trawler Sinks Italian Sub off North Africa

During operations off North Africa the British trawler, H.M.S. "Lord Nuffield" (skipper Lt. D. S. Mair, R.N.R.) detected an Italian submarine — later identified as the "Emo" — and went in to the attack. About to drop depth charges, the crew saw the submarine's periscope breaking surface a few yards away. The "Emo" which mounted heavier gun armament and had a higher speed than the Lord Nuffield, crash-dived but was forced to the surface. The British trawler opened fire with every gun she could bring to bear, scoring a succession of quick hits on the conning tower and causing a number of casualties among the Italian crew. There was panic aboard the submarine. The ammunition party deserted their posts, firing ceased and many of the crew hurled themselves into the sea. Later the submarine sank by the head and survivors were picked up by the Lord Nuffield. The trawler's casualty list was only one man slightly wounded. . . Picture shows the dramatic moment when the Italian submarine crew ran along the deck to jump into the sea in panic.

25-Year-Old Citizen Victim of Drowning Accident on Sunday

Trio Fishing at Isle aux Chats, Boat Caught in Swift Current

Rene Paul Raymond, well known butcher of this town, lost his life Sunday afternoon on a fishing expedition at Isle aux Chats, about six miles downstream on the North River. Raymond, 25 years of age, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Raymond. Two companions, Romeo Giroux, 30, and Raymond Lalande, 27, also in the butcher business here, had a narrow escape as their boat was caught in the swift current and washed over crumbled masonry into the tail-race of a disused power plant.

The scene of the accident was at the west side of Isle aux Chats, about 1½ miles above St. Andrews East, where the trio, after fishing during the afternoon, were crossing the river to return home. Evidence suggests they rowed their boat too close to the ruined dam and were caught by the swift current, which swamped the craft and swept it downstream. Giroux jumped into the water and clung to a pier of the dam; his two friends went down as the boat filled. Lalande managed to scramble ashore by catching a broken wire. Rene Paul Raymond is said to have caught the wire also, but was drawn in the undertow and relinquished his hold. It was reported he was last seen clinging to the drifting boat, which was later found half a mile down the river. Dragging operations have been carried on to recover the victim's body, but so far without success.

Airplane Broke High-Tension Wires

Earlier in the afternoon a low-flying plane from the St. Eugene flying school struck three 26,000 volt cables over the river, breaking the wires and causing a streak of flame. An attendant from the nearby Gatineau Power sub-station appeared on the scene, and told the three fishermen there was no danger, since the power had been switched off. This incident gave rise to rumors that the crashing wires had caused the accident, but it was some time later, at 5 p.m., that the three men got into difficulties with their boat. It was the broken power line which was instrumental in saving Lalande from drowning. . . . It was learned later that the plane had landed safely without damage after striking the cables.

The victim, Rene Paul Raymond, operated a butcher shop established by his father, opposite Lachute Post Office. He is survived by his wife (formerly Miss Cecile Bergeron, of Calumet), and an infant son, his parents, two brothers and two sisters.

The regular meeting of the French-speaking section of Lachute Branch was held last Monday at the new Wartime Prices and Trade Board regional office here. Several matters were discussed, and the meeting resulted in election of the following ladies:

Mrs. Geo.-H. Héon, as chairman (Mrs. Héon was already a member of the committee); Mrs. Roland Rinfret, Mrs. Reginald Courtien and Mrs. Roméo Legault, as new members of the Committee.

The meeting was adjourned until July 12.

The French-speaking ladies of this town are invited to report any claims they may have to the Committee, who will communicate them to the Local Board.

TWO HURT AS AUTO CRASHES INTO STORE AT VANKLEEK HILL

Hawkesbury — Pilot Officer Douglas Dent, flying instructor at St. Eugene Training School, and Kenneth McKenzie, were both seriously injured in an automobile accident Sunday evening, and were taken to Dr. E. P. Kelly's hospital, where Dent was found to be suffering from a deep hole in the right shoulder as well as cuts above the face and body, and McKenzie a badly injured left leg and serious head cuts.

According to police, both men were standing outside Mr. McKenzie's store in Vankleek Hill, engaged in conversation, when a car driven by Frederick McCrimmon, of Dunvegan, Ont., pulled up to park directly in front of the store. Something went wrong and the car crashed into the store, striking both men.

Considerable damage was done to the storefront and plate glass window. Constable Stewart, of Vankleek Hill, and Provincial Constable Arnold Gilmour, of Hawkesbury, investigated.

Salvage Collection Saturday, June 5

The regular monthly salvage canvass will be conducted by the civic authorities in Lachute next Saturday. Citizens are reminded of their dual obligations, in both national patriotism and community pride; at this season they should dispose of all salvagable waste for the war effort while cleaning up and beautifying their properties — the latter especially in view of a likely influx of visitors for Lachute Fair Week.

Youths assisting the truck drivers will call at all local homes; but to save delay, householders are urged to have their materials — waste paper, metal, rubber, bottles, etc. —in readiness, and in view for the collectors.

Coupons for Bagpipes

A news item from Edinburgh reports that purchasers of bagpipes will be required to surrender a coupon and a half from the clothes ration because of the tartan covering of the bag. That means, no doubt, that the pipes, already scarce since the outbreak of war, may be comparative rarities in the land o' the heather, for the duration. But they will not become extinct. Far from it!

County W.I. Conference Hears Talks on Compulsory Schooling And Central School Board Idea

Splendid Reports from All Departments Though Weather Impeded Winter Work

Officers and Convenors of Activities Are Elected for Argenteuil County Institutes

The annual convention of the Argenteuil County Women's Institutes was held in the Lachute High School on Saturday. There was a large attendance, all Branches being represented with the exception of Morin Heights. Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh presided.

Excellent reports on activities of the various departments were given by all convenors, a marked increase in war work being shown. The need for more "ditty bags" was stressed, and Mrs. Baugh urged that all Branches support the Self Denial Fund, which money is used only for war work. The activities of some Branches, it was reported, had been greatly impeded due to transportation difficulties during the past stormy winter. Mrs. Baugh, in her usual humorous manner, gave a very amusing account of her experiences in this respect and stated that she hoped to visit all Branches this year before the snow returned.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. A. Bothwell and to Mr. J. S. Giles, for their co-operation at all times.

Mr. H. Bradford, principal of Lachute High School, and Mr. Geo. Y. Deacon were present at the afternoon session.

Mr. Deacon spoke on the Compulsory School law and the abolition of fees, also of the proposed organization of a central board to comprise representatives from the different communities in the county. He explained the need for such an organization and the benefits to be derived therefrom. Some of the W.I. members expressed the opinion that women should also be allowed to serve on such a school board.

Mr. Bradford, in his remarks, stated that the purpose of this Central School Board would be to ensure an equal and just education for all children, whether attending the small or larger schools. He gave angles both from a financial and administrative point of view. The pooling of funds, he said, would be a decided advantage, when dealing with the question of fuel, equipment and supplies, and make available to the pupils of the rural schools, good teachers and the newer equipment, which otherwise could not be afforded.

Mrs. Archie Graham introduced Mrs. W. C. Smallman, of St. Agnes de Dundee, Que., provincial first vice-president, who read a letter from Mrs. Cameron E. Dow, provincial president, dealing with matters of interest in all departments. Mrs. Smallman spoke of the hardships now being endured by the Russians. She also mentioned that the growth and success of the Women's Institutes depended on the efforts of the individual members. Mrs. W. Y. Shearsmith expressed the gratitude of the members to Mrs. Smallman for having come so far to attend this convention.

Mrs. J. Leslie Hodges, chairman of the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Consumer Branch, of Montreal, was then introduced by Mrs. Geo. McGibbon. Mrs. Hodges gave a general outline of the price control policy, explaining why it is necessary, how it has developed and is being appied. The entire nation, she said, is enlisted in this battle to defeat inflation. Mrs. Hodges also dealt with the conservation of food, clothing and particularly energies. Food, she said, would win this war, and the country women are the backbone of this country. Mrs. G. Leggett thanked Mrs. Hodges for her very instructive address.

Owing to the rationing of sugar and other commodities, the Fair Work Committee decided not to have the usual home-cooking contest this year. However, if possible there would be a display of handicraft and Red Cross work.

The following officers and convenors were elected for the coming year:

Hon. President, Mrs. G. Armstrong.
President, Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh.
1st. Vice-President, Mrs. L. Wilson.
2nd. Vice-President, Mrs. W. Seale.
Secretary, Mrs. N. E. Smillie.
Treasurer, Mrs. Stanley Smith.
Agriculture, Mrs. A. Graham.
Health & Welfare, Mrs. Lawson Kennedy.
Education, Mrs. G. Leggett.
Home Economics, Mrs. G. Smith.
National & International Relations, Mrs. John Gordon.
Publicity, Mrs. W. Y. Shearsmith.

In spite of rationing difficulties, credit is due to St. Jerusalem and Bethany Branch, who provided an excellent luncheon.

Foresee Acute Fuel Problem Next Winter

By DOUGLAS REEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Specially Written for Lachute Watchman

Ottawa, June 2 (CP) — One of the most urgent problems facing Canadian communities next winter will be that of obtaining sufficient fuel to meet their requirements in the face of a labor shortage created by wartime demands for manpower.

An indication of the concern with which Canada's chief magistrates view the fuel question was afforded by the appointment of a special fuel committee of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, estblished at the Federation's sixth annual conference here.

Before the war, sawdust was widely used as fuel in British Columbia, but the enlistment of loggers in the forces made this by-product of the mills extremely scarce, and J. W. Cornett, Mayor of Vancouver, no doubt had this fact in mind when he suggested to his fellow mayors that wages in the woods should be increased and men from the forces diverted to bush operations.

Measures Suggested

It is evident, however, that the heads of municipalities consider that the shortage of fuel next winter will be Dominion-wide in scope. The suggestion has been made that the federal government establish wood-cutting camps on public lands and draw upon prisoners of war, conscientious objectors, evacuated British Columbia Japanese and forestry battalions of the Canadian Army for the necessary labor.

Early this year, Donald Gordon, chairman of the Prices Board, asked the municipalities to estimate their fuel requirements and arrange for wood-cutting, and Munitions Minister Howe asked farmers, the principal source of the pre-war fuel wood supply to cut as much wood as they could and announced that the government would pay producers a bonus to encourage output.

Sugar Beet Bonus

A resolution of special interest to growers of sugar beets, who last season have encountered great difficulty in obtaining labor to harvest their crops, was passed by the Federation when it recommended to the federal government that a survey of Canada's sugar situation be undertaken to ascertain if production could be increased, if necessary by the payment of a bonus to beet growers.

Producers of sugar beets in Western Ontario, as well as in Alberta and other provinces, some time ago asked National Selective Service authorities if some arrangement could not be made for the employment of British Columbia Japanese in their areas, but difficulty was encountered in inducing suitable Japanse to leave the coast.

Since then, one old-established Ontario sugar refinery has closed, unable to operate this season for lack of beets.

Markets for Surplus

Outlets for Canada's agricultural surplus have an "important place" in the post-war search for world markets, in the opinion of the national board of directors of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which in a brief presented to a joint meeting of Commons and Senate reconstruction committees, suggested that the Canadian government's first concern after the war should be to make possible "a resumption of world trade in foodstuffs and raw materials".

In its brief, the Chamber forecast that upon the success with which this trade can be resumed depend the possibilities of improving Canadian agriculture.

"Since the purchasing power of our farmers is necessary to maintain full Canadian industrial activity, the future of the whole of our Canadian economy thus is indirectly bound up with the question whether and how soon a world market for such products can be restored", the brief said.

Christian Scientists Ask Exemption in Health Insurance Plan

Montreal, June 1 — On the grounds of religious freedom, Christian Scientists in Canada today requested a special parliamentary committee to exempt them from the operation of the proposed Dominion-wide National Contributory Health Insurance plan.

The request was presented by Reay C. van der Voort, of Toronto, Christian Science Committee on Publication for Ontario, and James W. Fulton, former Committee.

The exemption requested is substantially the same as that incorporated in the British Columbia Health Insurance Act of 1936. Mr. van der Voort said that Christian Scientists do not oppose social security legislation as such. He pointed out, however, that in order permanently to improve human conditions, legislation must respect religious liberty and the right of freedom of the person. Citizens should not be compelled, he said, to submit to a form of treatment contrary to their concientious religious principles.

Hon. A.W. Roebuck, M.P., on inroducing Messrs. van der Voort and Fulton, stated that although some of the worthiest of experimental social security endeavors may eventually prove so costly as to be uneconomic, the Christian Science Church is not concerned with "debatable economics, but with undebatable religious principles."

Mr. Fulton called attention to the fact that Christian Science has been esablished in Canada for over half a century; that its claims to heal disease, want and fear, as well as sin, through prayer or spiritual means,, have been verified in the experience of thousands of men and women and substantiated in the courts; and that the practice of Christian Science has long been recognized by law.

Today It's "Mum's the Word" with Canadian Soldiers

The people of Britain really are security conscious, according to Sgt. G. W. Wilson, a Saskatchewan soldier who returned to Canada recently after service overseas.

He discovered that when he missed a turn on a road devoid of sign-posts and drew up a convoy of four lorries and a motorbike at a hamlet to seek directions.

He asked three dear old ladies to point out his position on a map. They refused, saying they couldn't read a map.

"If you'll just tell me the name of this hamlet, I can locate it myself", Sgt. Wilson said.

"Get along as best you can", they told him. "You'll get no information from us".

"But why?" Sgt. Wilson continued, "We're Canadians".

"Makes no difference", one old lady replied, "Maybe you are Canadians, but we're taking no chances".

Sgt. Wilson finally located his position, but after thinking it over he decided the old ladies were right. "We could have been fifth columnists", he said.

"The average Canadian soldier in Britain used to talk quite a bit, but that's all changed now. You can't pry information out of our boys. Dieppe helped a lot to change that, and woke us up to the fact that we were pretty loose tongued", Sgt. Wilson went on.

"On my arrival back in Canada folks wanted to know where I had arrived, how many were on the ship and how long the trip took. I refused to tell them and collected enough dirty looks to last a lifetime . . . but here's the point: If the name of a ship and the date it left Britain and docked in Canada is revealed , it gives 'Jerry' two items of extreme interest to his U-boat commanders. He knows the length of time it took to come over and with the ship's normal speed, which he already knows, he has a fair idea of the course followed.

"He already knows where the ship docked, and assuming it takes a certain number of days to refuel and take on cargo — the enemy knows plenty".

BE READY FOR THE HAY CROP

(Experimental Farms News)

With the harvesting of the hay crop near at hand, many farmers are concerned as to how they are going to manage with such a shortage of available manpower.

Before starting haying operations mowers, rakes, tedders, waggons, hayloaders, sweeps, slings and forks should be carefully inspected and all broken or worn parts renewed or repaired. Careful attention should be given to ropes, cables and pulleys in order that there will be no stoppage or breakdown when operations get under way. There is only a limited amount of new equipment available and those in need of new equipment should shop early and avoid disappointment, points out R. G. Newton, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Prince George, B.C.

It may be necessary to revise some of the present practices, such as curing the hay in the cock and follow windrow - curing. Where weather is tricky it may be advisable to utilize tripods for the early haying operations. Eearly cutting means the hay will be higher in protein though it may lack a little in bulk. By commencing haying operations early it will compensate to some extent for the manpower shortage. Where large lofts are available it may be possible to spread out and salt the hay. Full advantage of the long days should be taken and the work arranged accordingly. Daylight saving hours do not work to the farmers advantage as it is usually well on towards noon before the dews are off. By co-operating with neighbors a program that will be mutually beneficial to all concerned can be worked out.

Rural Revival

City dwellers may be irked by that government request that Canadians take their holidays in mid-week and do everything possible to ease the burden on public transportation facilities, but they will grin and bear it as a necessary war measure.

It makes little difference to rural residents. Their travel and recreation already have been truly circumscribed by gasoline rationing but perhaps after all that won't be so bad. It may, in fact, see the small town returning to its own.

In the good old days before coupons, the world was at the door of the rural resident — if he had the money for gas and expenses and the time for the trip. Now, about all he has is the money.

Those were the days when small town merchants, particularly those dealing in wearing apparel, had to resign themselves to the sight of fellow townsmen sporting the latest city-bought clothes and other commodities that seemed more up-to-date. They were easy to get. A trip to the nearby city didn't take long. But now, with every gallon of gas precious, it will be hard to neglect the home town product.

There is another benefit from this enforced immobility. And perhaps it will be far-reaching. The small town people will have to learn again to make their own fun — instead of dashing off in their cars to sample city entertainments.

It may mean more of those old-time holiday functions — harness races, baseball games between nearby communities and socials — which were so well-patronized once because the people couldn't go to far-off places in the horse-and-buggy age. Admittedly, many of these functions survived the automobile age but the community itself didn't flourish as it once did.

Now, things may be different. And the change will be to the good. Small town life is too precious to vanish, as it showed signs of doing in the roaring, carefree 30's.

Beware the Female of the Species

You've met up with Mr. Mosquito again this year, of course. What you are probably hankering to know is some way to avoid meeting him again.

Well it's a bigger job than one might be led to believe. First of all, there's a woman in the case. But all great men have owed their fame or notoriety more or less to the tireless efforts of some dauntless female and here we see history repeating itself. In this instance the woman behind the scenes is no less a person than Mrs. Mosquito herself. She is the one to keep your eye on. Frankly, she's no lady — she bites! One of those oh so tender but awfully tough characters you read of, but never expect to encounter.

While her meek little husband satisfies himself with sucking plant juices, "Mrs." goes out after the big game. She'll brazenly attack the Mayor, his gardener, or the man in the street — she's no respecter of persons. Some mosquitoes find man distasteful and confine their diets to the blood of domestic or wild animals and birds. True as this may be, it is a difficult job to convince the average person that any mosquito, large or small, male or female, finds him unpalatable.

Mrs. Mosquito, while she may be a perfect wife, and a doting mother, is none the less a disgraceful drunkard. On any one or all of her escapades she can be counted on to drink at least her own weight in the life blood of man or beast. What's more, investigations show that it only takes her about 90 seconds to become fully gorged, and under favorable conditions, may live for several weeks or even months on this liquid diet.

What's to do about it? Well, authorities say that although there are over 2,000 species of mosquitoes, only about 65 of them make Canada their home. All mosquitoes pass their early life stages in water. Because this is so, it is possible to control them by eliminating the breeding places by drainage or filling, or by applying an oil film to the surface of the infested water.

For personal protection from the pests, oil of citronella, spirits of camphor, oil of cedar and oil of lavender are recommended as being particularly offensive to mosquitoes, Mr. and Mrs. alike. Panama has made a great success in mosquito control.

Lachute Spring Fair is to be held on June 9, 10, 11 and 12, this year, and it has been held annually, despite the directors being dubious as to whether it would pay its way. It has so far proved successful and it has been decided to carry it on each year. It has been carried on with fearless courage and determination to make it a success, and it has proved to be so.

No Respecter of Persons

The regrettable death of Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, at the age of 49, after a short illness with undulant fever, proves once again that disease is impartial as to whom it strikes down. It shows that even those who may assume to have the best of medical care cannot afford to take a chance on raw milk and milk products.

Somewhere, somehow, this wealthy industrialist, who was probably meticulous about his diet and generally enjoyed a protected life, was infected with the organism responsible for Bang's disease in cattle, which is transmitted to humans in unpasteurized milk, butter and cheese.

The danger of infection of humans is particularly grave in summer, when people who are ordinarily careful about their milk supply and live in communities where pasteurization is enforced, go for their vacation to summer resorts, beaches, farms and other places where milk is sold raw. The same danger besets young people who go to the farms to help out in the present labor emergency.

While milk is a body-builder and a necessary food, it can be dangerous in its raw state. Vacationists should boil their milk if it has not been pasteurized. Not only undulant fever, but also tuberculosis, typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria and septic sore throat organisms are transmitted in raw milk products.

Parliament's Indifference

While Air Minister Power was giving the House of Commons on Friday afternoon the glorious story of the Royal Canadian Air Force —remarks The Ottawa Farm Journal—there was only "a handful" of members present. At one time in his speech just 23 members were present nine Liberals, 14 from the Opposition groups.

No doubt many more members were within call—ready to rally 'round should the division bell ring. But, being a Friday afternoon, many others had gone home for the week-end. Not even this most important war review could keep them in Ottawa on Friday afternoon.

Parliament did not cover itself with any glory in this case. It was, we suggest, a shameful and shocking thing, that out of a house of 245 members less than ten per cent were sufficiently interested in the story of Canada's air war to follow throughout the thrilling story the Minister had to tell.

The previous day, when a debate on the War Information Board held the floor, there was a good attendance of members. The House of Commons need not be surprised if the public draw the inference that its primary interest is with its political fortunes — concludes the Farm Journal editorial.

No Price Ceiling Here

The Tara Leader records that an old hay loader, manufactured in the old Gerolamy Foundry in Tara 40 years ago, which sold originally at $35.00, recently sold at an auction sale in Arran Township for $60.00, after being in use for 35 years. This item seems to be typical of sale prices all over the country. Stoves are also listed as bringing high prices, far over their original cost. These facts should serve to impress us with the necessity and virtue of taking care of any machinery, vehicle, furniture, stoves, etc., in our possession. We can all remember driving through the country and seeing farm machinery left in fields and barnyards, which if it had received proper care would have been useful and valuable today.

Today, it is next to impossible to keep one's ears inviolate. In almost every restaurant or other place open to the public for eating or relaxation, a blaring radio, or even more blaring juke box holds forth, rending the air with incomprehensible swing.

Sometimes we think nature was remiss in equipping only the eyes with lids. Imagine what a godsend earlids would be!

Why should not draftees who have no intention of going overseas to fight for Canada be placed in farm labor battalions? Canada's food needs are in great danger of being in short supply. There is little sense in training men to be soldiers who have no intention of fighting, but they could be mighty useful on the farms.

BABY LIGHTNING

— Paul W. Kearney —

Static Electricity is a common phenomenon. Grandpa demonstrated it by scuffling across the parlor rug and lighting the gas jet with a spark from his knuckle. Most of us encounter static as nothing more than the tingle from a metal doorknob in a carpeted room. Yet static is dangerous.

A Maryland physician, responding to a midnight call, donned a fur coat and rubber boots and hastened to his garage. When he touched his car a spark from his finger exploded fumes of leaking gasoline and blew him through the door.

An Illinois woman was rubbing a spot on a rug with a cloth soaked in gasoline when the air about her "suddenly lit up in a flame" as she described it. She died of burns.

Static is a critical threat wherever any volatile liquid such as benzene, naphtha or gasoline is used or where the air is laden with dust. But what is static? The Bureau of Standards calls it "electricity that is standing still" as contrasted with "dynamic electricity" or "electricity in motion." Strictly speaking, when we become aware of it, it is static no longer, but has started to go some place in a hurry.

Static was once thought to be generated only by friction between two unlike substances, but modern theory holds that it is likewise generated by the substances formerly in contact, resulting in a surge of electrons and protons within the objects. Thus the action of your shoe coming off the rug or a silk blouse coming out of a pail of cleaning gasoline contributes toward building up the electrical charge.

Day and night, summer and winter, static is always with us. It has been detected in snow and sand-storms; in the dust over a volcano; in the mist under waterfalls. In the Rocky Mountains, sharp boulders have been seen spitting static discharges during a thunderstorm. You can see the same thing on New York's Empire State Building — spectacular "brush discharges" from the metal trim of the tower.

In Dry Air

But static is more dangerous in dry atmosphere than damp air. A poor conductor allows static charges to build up to a voltage which finally, as a spark, jumps to some nearby object. It requires about 20,000 volts to produce a one-inch spark; a person may store up 10,000 volts by walking across a room on a thick rug.

Trucks and buses commonly build up 40,000 volts or more, and industrial belts and pulleys have produced five-foot sparks, indicating voltages of more than a million.

Water is a good electrical conductor and so moisture in the air tends to drain off the charge before it accumulates to the sparking point.

One rubber manufacturer had 122 static fires in three years. Then he began to moisten the air in the plant with steam. That stopped the mishaps. The dry-cleaning industry, once beset by static, also solved the problem through humidification.

Gasoline flowing through a hose sometimes builds up a charge of 500 volts. Most attendants have learned to keep the metal hose nozzle in contact with the metal fuel tank and thus prevent a charge from accumulating. Also oil companies have designed nozzles which it is hard to use wrong. Nevertheless, a truck driver was replenishing the tank of a California filling station when a ball of fire bloomed on the end of the nozzle of his hose. In the ensuing explosion nine persons were killed and 41 injured, some of them 200 feet away. Leaves were burned from trees 85 feet distant.

Hospitals Careful

Hospitals take elaborate precautions in operating rooms, for anesthetic vapors are highly explosive. In moving about, people or apparatus must pass over grounded plates; no wool blankets are allowed on the operating table; there are strict rules against removing the face mask quickly or even covering the anesthesia apparatus while the patient is still in the room. Yet only a few months ago the explosion of anesthetic apparatus killed a patient in a New Jersey institution.

Few barns are actually hit by lightning but many are burned from the "spillover" of pent-up static. During a storm great charges of static build up in the clouds and when the tension is great enough, the spark jumps earthward; that is lightning. This cloud discharge is likely to cause a surge of electricity in the earth directly beneath. The pent-up electrons in some metal object jump the gap to some other metal object. And if this "induced discharge" encounters hay in its path, a fire is almost inevitable.

In Spokane, in Providence and in New York, sparks from a cat's fur caused explosions in the lethal gas chambers used for killing stray animals.

Common in Cars

Static is common in running automobiles. Drivers and coin collectors at toll booths used to get shocks until someone devised the vertical wire that projects from the pavement, brushes and underside of the car and grounds the charge. Many a motor-cycle cop has got a shock that rattled his teeth when he put his hand on the car of an apprehended speeder.

CORRESPONDENCE TO THE EDITOR

"The Watchman" Gets Around

R.C.A.F. Detachment,
Ucluelet, B.C.,
May 24, 1943.

Editor, Lachute Watchman,
Dear Sir:

For the past few weeks I have been happy to receive a copy of your paper. Modesty must have forbidden you and yours to inform me that it was a gift on behalf of the staff of your paper, as up until a few days ago I was ignorant as to just who was my beneficiary.

As every Thursday rolled around The Watchman arrived as punctual as the clock, and through it I began to look forward to Thursday's mail boat with quite some anticipation.

We here are far from the realms of civilization and its many benefits, and a newspaper such as yours is received with open arms by all. So after I have read my favorite columns, namely Sketches from the Early History of Argenteuil, the Editor's Column, and of course the ever popular Social and Personal section, the paper is passed on to someone else. On it goes from hand to hand, until it is well thumbed, re-read, and finally ends up days later, quite a dejected and shop-worn article, upon someone's bunk. Where it goes from there remained a mystery to yours truly until the other day I happened in on the library, and there upon the rack, which holds newspapers from coast to coast, was my Watchman still holding its own among such noteables as The Vancouver Sun, The Daily Colonist and The Daily Times.

At present I am taking a course in journalism from the Newspaper Institute of America, needless to say your paper has been of assistance to me and my studies along these lines.

Please accept my sincere thanks, and as long as you back there keep sending your paper to us out here, we'll endeavor, as the saying goes, to keep 'em flying on the West Coast.

—Yours truly,
William Thomas Fish (LAC.)

FOLKS MIGHT TRY THIS SUPER-DIET

Recommended by British Medical Man But Isn't Available in the Old Land

London (CP) — A super-diet to add 10 per cent to the average life span has been advocated by Dr. E. H. Milligan, Medical Officer of Health for Glossop, Derbyshire., writing in a medical journal. It might be alright in Canada.

So far as Britain is concerned the doctor's suggested diet might be all right in time of peace and plenty, but it isn't possible nowadays here. He advocates milk, eggs, butter, fish, meat, onions, and mayonnaise. About the only things on his menu obtainable in sufficient quantity in Britain today are potatoes and bread.

The Farmer's Lantern

Using as its text the story about an East Grey farmer who was severely burned when a sick cow he was doctoring switched her tail and upset the lantern, igniting the straw, the Owen Sound Sun-Times advices farmers to hang up the lantern on hooks so that it cannot be accidentally or carelessly upset. This advice, as the Owen Sound paper points out, has been handed out for years, even, we might add, before the famous kick of Mrs. O'Leary's cow set the city of Chicago ablaze. Yet lanterns keep on falling over or are being kicked over, with consequences great and small.—St. Thomas Times-Journal

"What's the matter, my little man?" asked a sympathetic stranger of a small boy whom he saw crying in the street.

"Please, sir, my dog's dead", sobbed the boy.

"Well," said the man, "you mustn't make such a trouble of it. My grandmother died last week, and I'm not crying."

"No," said the boy, "but you didn't bring her up from a pup".

Counsel was cross-questioning a witness in an important case. He asked: "And on July 11 you say you called upon Mrs. Murphy. Now, what did she say?"

"I object, my lord, to the question," interrupted the opposing counsel. Then ensued an hour's fierce argument between counsel; and in the end the judge allowed the question.

"And as I was saying," continued counsel, "you called upon Mrs. Murphy. Now, what did she say?"

"Nothing—she was out," was the reply.

Death Claims Member of A Well-Known Family

News was received by relatives here recently of the death, at her home in Calgary, Alta., of Mrs. John Lurges, formerly Miss Mamie Derrick, younger daughter of the late Jos. Derrick, of Stonefield. She was married in 1916 to John Lurges, of Calgary, also a former resident of this locality. He predeceased her in 1934. Her passing appears to have been quite sudden as she had shortly before announced her intention, to friends here, of coming east next month. — She leaves a family of two daughters and two sons, one of the latter being a member of a western regiment overseas.

Mrs. Lurges leaves many old friends in this locality, where before her marriage she was very popular. Her sister, Mrs. Jennie Kahala, is now the only surviving member of the once-well-known Derrick family. — Mrs. J. Derrick, of Stonefield, is a sister-in-law and the late A. M. Derrick, superintendent of canals, who passed away some months ago, was a brother.

HEART TROUBLE IS CAUSE OF 5,661 DEATHS IN QUEBEC

Man lives just as long as his heart continues to beat. The heart works constantly without any respite and therefore it should not be over-taxed. Fortunately, it has great resources. Medicine can often improve a heart condition, but a doctor is helpless when faced with certain affections of the heart. The best means of preserving this organ from disease are hygiene and preventive medicine. Illness, violent exercise and emotions modify the pulsations of the heart and are among the most important factors which attack the physiology and anatomy of the heart.

The infecticus diseases of the heart, such as pericarditis, inflammation of the membraneous sac which envelops the heart, acute myocarditis, inflammation or chronic degeneration of the cardiac muscle; endocarditis, inflammation of the inner membrane, are among the most harmful. The best way to prevent these ailments is to avoid excesses of any kind, overexertion and strong emotions, and to follow the doctors orders rigidly.

Embolism, caused by a clot of blood obstructing an artery; palpitations, caused by abuse of stimulants and sometimes by anaemia, hypertrophy, frequent among obese persons and alcholics, are much more difficult to cure than to forestall and in some cases are incurable. There are any number of other affections of the heart, but the ones mentioned are sufficient to remind every one how important this organ is. In 1942, heart trouble caused the death of 5,661 persons in the province — a rate of 168.3 per hundred thousand.

And breathes a sigh of regret —
For you are ours to remember
When others are apt to forget.

PLAN YOUR SUMMER VACATION TRAVEL FOR MID-WEEK DAYS

MORE COMFORTABLE — LESS CROWDED

ACCOMMODATION IS VERY LIMITED DURING WEEK-ENDS

Be wise! Be patriotic! Plan your summer vacation so that you can travel on MID-WEEK days!

Canada needs your help in her wartime transportation problem. The Government has asked employers to begin holiday periods in mid-week. Where that is not possible, please adjust your own plans to the situation.

Please do not try to travel on week-ends in wartime. Make your trip any day from Monday to early Friday.

We thank you for understanding that Provincial Transport coaches must do their war jobs FIRST. General travel services are permitted only on routes judged essential by the Federal Transit Controller. There are no new coaches to be had. "Extras" cannot be provided. So, for your own convenience and comfort, please make it a rule in wartime to

1. Travel only on MID-WEEK days.
2. Travel with the least possible amount of luggage.
3. Procure tickets and information well in advance—avoid last-minute crowding of terminals.
4. Travel in the non-rush hours of the day —not when commuting workers are going to or from their jobs.
5. Holiday close to home . . . and make just one round-trip for your vacation.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday next, June 6.

The Golden Text is from Ecclesiastes 3:14. "Whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it".

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind". (II Timothy 1:7).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We must learn that evil is the awful deception and unreality of existence. Evil is not supreme; good is not helpless; nor are the so-called laws of matter primary, and the law of Spirit secondary. . . There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause". (Page 207).

Don't trust to a frayed cord or to a partly burned out electric element. What is now a small repair job can be a big one if it is allowed to wait.

Go over your electrical appliances today. Are you getting from them all of the service you should? Check up on your iron, your toaster, your hot-plate. Most electrical appliances are hard to replace — some parts are scarce, others unobtainable. Your local electrical service dealer is at your call, to put right anything that may be wrong.

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

CANADA'S FOOD OBLIGATIONS

When we are told that Canada is producing more food this year than ever before, we may well wonder why there are scarcities. When we know Canada's obligations it is not hard to understand. Our civilian population is eating more and better food, because many are earning good wages, who have not had money enough to buy sufficient food before. Then the Armed Forces require a large quantity of food. Any of you who have had a boy home on leave, or have entertained them, know what prodigious quantities of food these men can eat. We have sent, and are sending large quantities to England. This year's quota of bacon alone is 680,000,000 pounds, and then there are other pork products beside. Ship's stores have taken large quantities of food. So much that they had to be separated from civilian supplies in port cities, to keep civilians from running short. The Alaskan Highway workers, army and civilian, have turned out to be a big business. When you are tempted to grumble about not being able to get exactly what you want, just stop and ask yourself which of these would you be willing to ask your Government to cancel in order to give you more.

BRAN

Most of us are trying (at least if we are not, we should be), to get more of the whole grains in to our diet. The outer layers or bran are too often discarded. Many people use considerable bran. There are doctors who think bran alone is too coarse a food and that it irritates the lining of the digestive tract. They advise mixing bran with other foods as in bread or muffins, or porridge, and not to eat it alone. There are some people who cannot use it even when mixed with other foods. People with ulcers in the digestive tract, those with colitis, and other similar conditions are not allowed to use bran or other coarse foods at all. To the average person, bran gives added minerals and vitamins, but is best used with other foods.

DEHYDRATED APPLES

Have you tried the new dehydrated apples? They are a far cry from the old dried apples, both as to flavor and vitamins. They need to be soaked three or four hours and then can be used just as you do fresh apples. Of course they are not as good as an early apple, but they have more flavor than the ones you can buy at this season — if you can find any to buy. A little lemon juice added to them is a decided improvement. I have used them for apple desserts, such as apple crisp, batter pie, apple snow, and of course apple pie. They made delicious apple sauce for a roast of pork. Do not use too much water for soaking. In making the apple-sauce all the water was absorbed in cooking. I found that the first desserts I made were rather dry, so after that I drained the apples in the colander, but did not let them drip until dry. When a neighbor started to make an apple pie, she found she had no lemon juice, so she used a little vinegar, and it was all right as to flavor. Lemon juice is better to use as it adds vitamins.

APPLE SNOW

1 Egg white, lemon juice, 1 cup sweetened apple sauce.

Beat the egg white until stiff, but not dry, add the apple sauce gradually, and continue beating until the mixture is stiff, and the apple sauce thoroughly blended. Add lemon juice to taste. Serve with custard sause. Serves three.

CUSTARD SAUCE

1 Egg yolk, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¾ cup milk, ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Beat the egg yolk, add sugar and milk, and cook over a slow fire or in the double boiler, stirring steadily, until the mixture begins to thicken. Add the vanilla and chill. If the custard is cooked over too much heat or cooked too long, it will curdle.

BATTER PIE

Unsweetened applesauce, ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1½ cups flour, ½ cup milk, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with a thick layer of apple sauce. Make a cake batter with the remaining ingredients and pour over the apples. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees. Serve hot with caramel sauce.

WOMEN PATRONS OF TATTOO ART

Service Women and Others Like Their Numbers Inked in For Lifetime

By ALLAN RANDAL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — Geo. Burchett and his little needles are working overtime, faster and oftener than they worked even during the First Great War. Mr. Burchett is a tattoo artist. His sign, pointing to a tiny back room in Waterloo Bridge road, says he has been tattooing for more than 50 years, right in this same back room.

Before this war women rarely had themselves tattooed but it is frequent now, particularly among women in the services. They like to have their regimental number put on in colored inks or sometimes want a design that obviously has some sentimental significance.

Parents with children about to be evacuated also bring them in to Mr. Burchett to have them tattooed with their national registration numbers and sometimes their blood group in case a transfusion should be necessary in a sudden emergency.

Burchett started his tattooing career by odd and rather raggedy jobs on school friends with the aid of an ordinary needle and colored inks. He told of a sergeant-pilot who arrived for a "sitting" and wanted an old tattoo design in the form of a dragon on his wrist "repaired." A hit by ack-ack splinters had seared the flesh and taken with it the dragon's tail. "That," said Mr. Burchett, "was a satisfying job."

Tinfoil Teeth

A letter from Germany to the London Daily Mail tells to what remarkable uses the British soldiers put the wrappings and packing which come with their Red Cross parcels.

With the cord and twine off the parcels some of the boys make rope soles for their slippers, and even complete slippers, while others manufacture wigs and grass skirts for camp theatricals.

Empty tins are made into pannikins and teapots, and the packing gets stuffed into pillows. Parcels from Canada are in ply-wood cases which later get made into armchairs.

Top marks for ingenuity go to L/Cpl. A. Lewis, an Australian at Stalag XX, who melted down tinfoil from packets of cigarettes and not only can supply any man with a first-class reproduction of his regimental badge, but made himself a set of false teeth.

OH, BOY — ORANGES!

London (CP) — Shipments of African oranges have arrived in Great Britain. It is the first of the new season's crop and is being rationed to children.

CEILING ON PRAMS

ANIMALS, HUMANS THRIVE ON OATS

Meat Stretcher Helps Hungry Canadians and Their Pets Survive Rationing

Meat rationing is now in effect across Canada and, most people are finding out, it is not as bad as they expected. One of the reasons why it hasn't been such a blow is the fact that ample warning was given and food experts spent weeks developing meat extenders and new recipes that would provide all-out food value without increasing household budgets.

Most popular meat extender for both humans and their animal pets are rolled oats. For humans oats are used to make beef loaves, wartime meat cakes and variety of other tasty dishes. And for pets, officials at the S.P.C.A. animal shelter in Montreal, have dished up appetizing rolled oats meals that keep both dogs and pets equally happy. Oatmeal, according to W. N. Dunlop, manager of the Montreal S.P.C.A., provides a nourishing substitute food for dogs and cats. Oats are not cooked but simply mixed with hot water or a little milk. Thus served, it made a big hit with the shelter's 129 inmates.

Expert dietitians have been working on special recipes to keep up family health and strength despite meat rationing and in one experimental kitchen in Montreal a number of fascinating new recipes have been developed. Two of them follow.

Simple Fruit Pudding

I cup rolled oats; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg and cloves; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 cup raisins; 1 tablespoon honey or 2 tablespoons brown sugar; 1 teaspoon soda; 1 cup thick buttermilk.

Mix dry ingredients with raisins and honey or sugar; dissolve soda in buttermilk, add to first mixture and blend until smooth; pour into well greased pudding mould, ⅔ full, cover tightly with waxed paper and steam 1 hour. Serves with honey foamy sauce. Serves 4 - 5.

Baked Corn and Tomatoes For Meatless Days

1½ Cups canned corn, drained, or cooked fresh corn; 1½ cups strained canned tomatoes; ¾ teaspoon salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; 1 tspn. sugar; ½ cup rolled oats; 1 tablespoon dripping; ½ cup grated, strong cheese.

Mix first seven ingredients in baking dish; sprinkle grated cheese on top and bake in a moderate oven (360°F.) Baking time, 20 minutes. Serves 4 - 5.

This dish combines good nutrition and good flavor. Serve it with cream soup, stuffed egg salad and a baked rhubarb cobbler for dessert.

CARPETS FOR GLASS

Zurich (CP) — In Germany the government has confiscated all carpets from wholesalers and retailers. The official reason is that supplies of glass are insufficient to replace windows smashed in R.A.F. raids and carpets are used as draught preventers.

FOUR-TIME DRESS MARKED DUCHESS' VISIT TO GOTHAM

"One-Dress Wally" is Coined by Fashion Editors after Windsor's Wife Appears at Four Functions in Same Gown

By DOROTHY ROE, Associated Press Fashion Editor

New York, June 1 (AP) — The Duchess of Windsor may now add to her title of "best-dressed woman" the sub-head "One Dress Wally".

During her recent visit to New York, the Maryland girl for whom a king gave up his throne, made several public appearances in what seemed to be a succession of different costumes, all sleek and sophisticated.

On close scrutiny, however, the varied costumes turned out to be all one dress, with different accessories.

The basic dress, which is Mainbocher's answer to the problems of wartime economy and possible clothes rationing, is a slim black silk crepe with a high round neckline, short sleeves and a zipper down the back — unadorned ultimate in clothes simplicity.

Basic Dress

The Duchess, who knows her clotheslines, made a bee-line for her favorite couturier on her arrival in New York, and snapped up the basic dress, which had been fitted beforehand to the dress maker's model of her figure in the salon. Thereafter she appeared in four versions of the costume, and undoubtedly has further changes tucked handily away in her trunk.

To the circus the Duchess wore the basic dress as is, without adornment.

To the reception for the Bolivian president and the tea at the Women's Military Services Club, she wore it garnished with a black capelet scarf and a "glamor belt" bedecked with huge corsage of mixed artificial flowers.

Belts Helped

For luncheon at a smart Park Avenue restaurant, she wore the informal accessories — a red and white print scarf with belt and gloves to match.

For an informal dinner she wore a second "glamor belt" which is made in the form of a brief apron of black crepe and not alternately banded in vertical stripes.

With such a wardrobe Wally will no longer need a dozen trunks, and will prove that she can budget as any good wife does when her husband announces, as did the Duke: "We haven't many dollars."

DOES YOUR HAIR LET YOU DOWN?

Writer Discuses Matter of Good-Looking Heads and How It's Done

By GRACE MARTIN

Have you ever thought how much your hair can do to make or break the regard of your friends?

If you haven't thought, you'd better check up on yourself and see whether you are guilty of any of these:

Do you hit your hair "a lick and a promise" in the morning and arrive in your kitchen or place of business with a scrambled effect which others have to look at all day?

Or do you go to the other extreme, put every curl in place and then keep rearranging it every few minutes till everybody around you is conscious of your coiffure?

Do you have the nervous habit of fiddling with one curl while you talk?

Are you one of the proud possessors of a glamor bob, who is possessed to commit the horror of combing your hair at table?

Or are you guilty of regaling your friends with tales of the trouble you had with your hairdresser and what you said to him?

If you have to admit to many of these, you can be sure that your locks—whether lovely or not—are jeopardizing your diplomatic relations.

Meatless Tuesdays

The regulation prohibiting the serving of meat dishes in public eating places on Tuesdays is not restricted to rationed meats. No meats of any kind may be served.

Consumer Meat In Lockers

Before June 30 all consumers (including farmers) who store meat in lockers must declare in writing to the nearest Branch of the Ration Administration, the quantity of rationed meat they have in storage over and above 8 lbs. per person in the household. Declarations must be accompanied by sufficient Coupons from the ration books of the locker holder and his household, to cover the quantity of declared meat at the rate of 1 Coupon for each 2 lbs. of meat in regulation rationed groups.

The number of Coupons to be detached by the locker holder need not exceed more than 50% of the total meat Coupons in the possession of himself and his household. Locker users may retain for retail purchasing one of each similarly numbered pair of Coupons.

Kosher Meat

The same regulations governing the rationing of other meats apply also to kosher meats.

Commercial Quota Users

Quota users who have already registered with the Ration Administration on Form RB 117, and who have been allotted a Quota Reference number, need not re-register for meat.

Most quota users will have received a tentative quota for meat and therefore are in a position to issue meat ration cheques. Any quota user who has not received a tentative quota for meat, or who needs a supplementary authorization, should get in touch with the nearest branch of the Ration Administration.

Small Arms Ammunition Now Restricted To:—

(a) Licenced trappers, police officers and others officially engaged in the protection of life and property. Applications to purchase must be made to suppliers on special forms (RB-203) already in regular suppliers' hands. These forms require the applicant to declare his right to purchase and the use to which the ammunition is to be put.

(b) Rifle, revolver, or gun clubs and defence units other than those authorized under the Militia Act. Authority must be secured by written application to the Director of Small Arms Ammunition, Victoria Bldg., Ottawa.

(c) Prospectors; those who rely on the shooting of wild life for food; and persons requiring ammunition to protect live stock. Applications must be made to the Local Ration Board on special forms (RB-202) already in their hands. Applications must be approved by the Local Ration Board before purchase from regular supplier can be made.

Persons other than the above who feel a supply of small arms ammunition is essential, should make written application to a Branch of the Ration Administration, giving full details.

Rationed Commodities for Temporary Help

Applications by rural residents for additional rations for temporary helpers or labourers such as, harvesters, fruit pickers, sheep shearers, etc., should be made to Local Ration Boards. Applications must state the specific nature of the extra work and estimate:

(a) The number of workers
(b) The number of days they will be employed
(c) The total number of meals to be served.

Applications for less than 12 meals will not be considered.

"Somewhere I'll Find You", Clark Gable's Farewell Picture

Metro producers have done handsomely by Clark Gable in his farewell picture, the one he made just before he gave up his triumphant movie career to join the United States Army Air Force. "Somewhere I'll Find You" — appearing next week at the Rex — follows familiar Gable patterns with the war as a background. It also sets off the star in the type of role in which his fans have adored him for years.

Gable began his screen career as a villain (records Thos. Archer, Montreal screen critic). Later, demands from the box-office turned him into a hero. But Metro, in its profround wisdom, continued to feature the star as a hit of a scapegrace, a rough neck, not always particular about his methods, but always with a heart of the purest gold. Dangerously handsome, cool, self assured, Gable could never be an Errol Flynn under the best of circumstances.

In "Somewhere I'll Find You", Pandro S. Berman has achieved a near miracle. Gable has always chased the girl. This time, the girl chases him. She is Lana Turner and she is promised to Gable's younger brother, Robert Sterling. But she loves Gable. He on the other hand, first believes she is no good, then that he must nobly step aside to protect his brother who has always been his special care in life. But he has not the slightest intention of letting anyone know that. So he just acts tough.

Gable and Sterling are a team of newspaper correspondents who have just returned from Berlin. But the picture doesn't even intimate that they have written a book about it. Miss Turner is also a reporter. She gets an assignment in the Far East, buts wants to stay in New York because Gable is there. He turns her down flat, so she goes.

In the Far East she gets lost. The paper sends Gable and Sterling to Hanoi to look for her. And from there it goes on. He is unwilling; she is desparate to capture him. In the end she does get him—on the Bataan Peninsula where he has just returned from a last stand and is dictating his colorful despatch at a rate and in a style belonging, not to realistic coverage of the news, but to the picturesque imagination of motion-picture people.

It is a star vehicle, if ever there was one. But it is unquestionably a highly successful picture. It is no contribution to the film arts, but it has romance, even if the romance is not of a very high calibre. Moreover, the Bataan scenes are magnificently done. If Metro can make a picture with heroes like the sergeant-machine-gunner who dies blasting a Jap plane from the air, then that studio will contribute a great war film to the few that have been made to date.

In private cars, tire static is generally a harmless nuisance. In heavy trucks and buses, however, it is dangerous. A husky, six-foot freight handler in Omaha was knocked flat by a static discharge when he touched a truck as it backed into the loading platform. There are now elaborate grounding devices for all trucks and supply tanks. Rubber impregnated with substances that make it an electrical conductor is used in tires and supply hoses. The familiar dangling chain is still much used although its value is a subject of controversy. Our armored tanks would be virtually impotent but for the grounding devices employed on rubber track treads, to eliminate radio interference.

The dirigible Hindenburg was destroyed at Lakehurst when static exploded its hydrogen. Ground crews of blimps get shocks when they grab the lines tossed outside in landing operations.

One air liner is believed to have been wrecked by static. In distress and preparing for a forced landing, the pilot dumped his reserve gasoline. Static exploded it.

Rain or Snow

Some years ago "precipitation static," so-called because it seemed to be caused by rain or snow, would at times blot out radio reception on planes and seriously interfere with de-icing equipment, both of which effects probably contributed to several crashes. Then in 1936, United Airlines equipped a plane with a great array of technical apparatus, manned it with a staff of scientists, and sent it up to fly 600 hours in the foulest weather that could be found, including 50 thunderstorms.

The investigators eventually traced seven causes of static generation on a plane (not one of them fitting the original theory), decided it could not be prevented, and that therefore the only thing to do was to try to dissipate it as fast as it forms. Since static tends to flow off from a point or a sharp edge, planes now are equipped with a wire which trails out behind, its diameter smaller than that of radio antenna wires, propeller edges or any other point on the plane. This trailing wire becomes the easiest means of escape for a static charge, and bleeds it off harmlessly.

In at least 50,000 industrial plants the presence of dust and static in large volume presents a constant risk — notably in flour mills and cotton gins. The National Fire Protection Association estimates losses from fires caused by static generated by belts and pulleys in all factories at $3,000,000 a year. In many plants employees entering dangerous areas have to cross steel plates or open a metal gate; these are connected to the ground, to discharge the individual's pent-up voltage.

Farm Machinery

Farm machinery can make trouble, too. During the last war there were 300 fires around threshing machines in the Northwest. Sabotage was suspected, but government investigators proved it was static, because the season was so dry. Grounding the threshers stopped the fires.

Industrial records are replete with cases of "human spark plugs" who apparently store up greater voltages than their fellow workers. Watch factories test new employees to see that they do not build up charges sufficient to magnetize the delicate watch movements. In a California factory one woman accounted for seven fires before she was transferred to a safer job. An oil company driver burned up three trucks in a few days, with no negligence on his part whatever. And the Factory Mutual Record cites the case of a woman at the Endicott-Johnson shoe plant whose job involved the use of rubber cement. Five times in one winter fire burst out in her cement pail. The fifth time she was laid up for three weeks. No one else doing similar work had any such experience and the girl who took over her machine during her absence had none. Yet 15 minutes after her return to the job, the "spark plug" had another fire.

Then there was the apple grower in Yakima, Wash., who sprayed his trees one windy day and got his clothes well saturated. The clothes dried in the breeze as he walked home, and static that he generated set his pants afire.

Such incidents make static something more than an amusing experiment in high school physics; for this baby lightning is the cause of hundreds of deaths and many millions of dollars in damage every year. —National Safety News

TRAVEL TIPS FOR HOLIDAY SEASON GIVEN IN BOOKLET

Civilian Travel on Week-ends Discouraged in Interests of War Effort

In co-operation with the Department of Munitions and Supply and the Federal Transport Controllers, the Provincial Transport Company is bending its efforts towards making the public fully aware of the necessity of reducing civilian travel at week-ends.

With the summer holiday season approaching, the situation is more acute than ever, according to Mr. R. G. Perry, Passenger Traffic Manager, and it is absolutely essential that as much civilian travel as possible be diverted to mid-week days.

Official requests have already been made by the Federal Controllers and other authorities that as many employers as possible set mid-week days as the beginning and end of holiday periods for their personnel. Where that is impossible, individual travellers are asked to do their patriotic best to modify their own travel plans to avoid making a trip during a week-end, or on a public holiday.

Canada's present transportation flow has assumed proportions far surpassing anything previously known here, especially in the use of motorcoaches for the movement of war workers to and from their jobs and for other war tasks, Mr. Perry pointed out. These essential services must receive first consideration, and first preference must be given on week-ends to members of the uniformed forces, both men and women, and to war workers.

Civilians, for their own comfort and convenience in addition to other considerations, are therefore advised to travel on the less crowded days, from Monday to early Friday, choosing the hours when commuting workers are not going to or returning from their jobs. They are asked also to holiday near home, and to make only one trip to and from their destination, as this is the only way in which to ease the heavy traffic, inevitable in wartime.

To assist civilian travellers, the Provincial Transport Company has issued a special leaflet of advice "How to Travel Comfortably in Wartime." This is now available at terminals.

Sharp and Blunt

An army officer named Blunt found it necessary to get in touch with another officer, whom he did not know personally. As it happened, this officer's name was Sharp. "Hullo", said the first man into the telephone, "is that Captain Sharp speaking?" "It is", came the voice at the other end of the wire. "Well, this is Lieutenant Blunt", continued that worthy. "Look here", Sharp cut in, "I don't want any funny stuff about names." "But I'm not being funny", protested Blunt. "That is really my name." Eventually the other officer was convinced, and carried on their conversation.

Naming Committee to Study Health Insurance, Bill for Grants to Large Families, Matters Before Legislature

Immediate Study on Act to Permit Municipal Tax Levy on Machinery

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, June 9 (CP)—The Legislative Assembly, reconvening after an 11-day adjournment, is scheduled this week to begin study of a bill that would authorize municipalities to collect a tax on machinery in industries.

The bill which is expected to provoke lengthy debate, would allow municipalities to tax all machinery, whether movable or immovable, and to fix the tax rate.

The Legislature has twice been called upon to study such a tax, but this year is the first time the government has sponsored a bill that would authorize collection of a levy on machinery.

The town of Lasalle on the outskirts of Montreal has twice asked the Legislature for permission to impose the tax. Both Houses refused the request last year. This year, however, the Assembly, 86-seat lower house, decided to allow the municipality to collect the tax. The decision was reversed by the Legislative Council, 24-seat upper house. Shortly after the Council rejected the request the government, through Hon. Oscar Drouin, Minister of Municipal Affairs, Trade and Commerce, brought in its bill that would grant the taxation powers to all municipalities.

The bill must receive three readings in the Assembly before going to the Council. The Council may stick by its guns and refuse to adopt the measure. The Assembly on the other hand might insist that the bill be adopted. Should such a situation arise it would probably mean that the measure would die between the upper and lower house before prorogation which is expected to come about June 19.

Health Insurance

A flurry of last-minute legislation is expected to be presented to the houses for study before the prorogation. Among the measures still to come is one that would authorize the formation of a commission to study a health-insurance plan for the province.

Establishment of a health insurance plan was recommended to the government last year by a commission set up to study hospital conditions.

The government may also decide to bring in a bill that would authorize the payment of family allowances to help large families in the province. Payment of such allowances was urged recently by the Superior Council of Labor, set up to study labor legislation, working conditions and salaries.

A bill that would authorize the government to spend $10,000,000 on the setting up of colonization villages before colonists move in, also is expected to be presented. Plans for such a program were announced in the throne speech at the opening of the Legislature on February 23.

Measures aimed at helping the farmer increase his agricultural production may also be introduced. The government is expected to take some steps to encourage cheese production, which has fallen sharply since the payment of government premiums has ceased. Ontario has restored payment of the premium.

RECALLS MONTREAL IN WINTER OF GAY NINETIES

Montreal — Prior to the decade termed the "gay nineties" winter was just plain winter in Montreal. No one had capitalized snow as a tourist attraction, consequently when it fell on Montreal streets in the eighties the "beautiful" settled there until trampled into paths and left to a benevolent sun to later clear it away. Winter transportation was in horse-drawn sleighs with plenty of straw on the floor to comfort the feet of travelling patrons. In those days H. A. Baker, then in his teens, set to work with the original telegraph company of Canada, now part of the Canadian National Telegraphs. A nickel for a sleigh fare was extravagance and when snow fell heavily young "Bert" put on his snow shoes and padded down to the office in St. Francois Xavier, the Canadian Wall Street. From that same building Mr. Baker left the other day relinquishing his post of Chief Operator after a service of almost fifty years.

London (CP) — Admitting that health of the young is important to any nation, Dr. Percy Stokes, London medical statistics officer, says much more attention should be paid to the people who are over 50. "They are vital in winning the war," he declared.

INQUEST HELD ON DROWNING

Victim's Body Recovered A Mile From Scene Of Fishing Tragedy

VERDICT ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Inquest into the drowning mishap which claimed the life of Rene Paul Raymond, 25-year-old Lachute citizen, at Isle aux Chats on May 30, was held Saturday morning at the Joly undertaking parlors here. Dr. A. R. Coté, of Brownsburg, conducted the inquiry as district coronor, and the jurors, after hearing the evidence, returned a verdict of accidental death.

Testimony was heard from Romeo Giroux and Raymond Lalande, of Lachute, who had accompanied Rene Paul Raymond on a Sunday afternoon fishing trip to the North River at Isle aux Chats. Evidence was heard also from Georges Montpetit, attendant at the nearby Gatineau Power substation, and from Adelard Castonguay, Carillon, who had recovered the body at 7 a.m. on the day the inquest was held. Castonguay told how he and another resident, Donat Ouimet, had found the victim floating near the shore at Renaud's Creek, about a mile downstream from the scene of the tragedy . . . Wire nets had been strung across the river at two points, and dragging operations had been carried on continuously, but it was not until this time that the body was found.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon. Deep sympathy of the community was evidenced for the bereaved, in the large attendance at the ctremony held in Ste. Anastasie Church. The remains were interred in the Catholic Cemetery.

CBC News Service Ready for "Push" Newsmen Waiting for the Big Break

"Flash! — London — Headquarters announces invasion of Hitler's European fortress has begun." . . .

That's the flash the world is waiting for these days; the flash that means the big push is under way.

Newsmen the world over are waiting for that flash, and the editors of CBC News Service are no exception. 'Round the clock, seven days a week, in newsrooms across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver, and in the newly-established bureau in London, the CBC newsmen are on the job, waiting for the big break.

Under D. C. McArthur, the chief editor, the News Service has made preparations for full and authoritative coverage of the opening of another European land front.

In addition to having the world-wide facilities of The Canadian Press, British United Press and United Press at its disposal, the CBC news organization has a staff of Canadian-trained men in London prepared to supplement the spot news from the wire services.

Plans for direct broadcasts from the front line with the Canadian troops were announced early in April by the CBC management.

A. E. Powley

A. E. Powley, a Toronto newspaperman with wide experience, was transferred from his job as senior editor in the Central Newsroom at Toronto to take charge of the London bureau, and he is now in London, completing the organizational setup.

Among Powley's staff men will be the former Canadian newspaper war correspondent Matthew Halton, who is to join the CBC London bureau some time this summer.

Already on the job are Andrew Cowan and Peter Stursburg, whose commentaries have been coming through from London on the National News Bulletin for the past few weeks.

French listeners, too, will be able to get first-hand reports from the war front. The senior editor of the Montreal newsroom, Marcel Ouimet, is being transferred to London, with a staff of French-language reporters. Benoit Lafleur and Paul Barette are also going over from the Montreal bureau.

Set Hearing in Bank Hold-Up

St. Jerome, June 8 — Before District Magistrate Donat Lalande, preliminary hearing was set for June 29 in the case of Rosario Bourget and Georges Gagnon charged with attempted holdup in connection with the theft last September 9 at St. Hermas of $2,800 and a revolver from a branch of Banque Canadienne Nationale.

Rodger Chartrand, 21, of Montreal, was committed by Magistrate Donat Lalande for trial in Court of King's Bench on a charge of having stolen $1,850 at Terrebonne last February. Two alleged accomplices of Chartrand, who are being held in Montreal on other charges, have been sentenced to six months imprisonment for the Terrebonne robbery.

Wood Placed in Oven Takes Fire

A fire call was turned in during the noon hour Tuesday when neighbors reported smoke issuing from the window of a dwelling occupied by Mrs. R. Doig, at 118 Main Street West. Firemen, finding the premises locked, broke in and discovered the rooms full of dense fumes. The source of the smoke was traced to the kitchen stove, where fuelwood placed in the oven to dry had caught fire. The flames were easily extinguished and no damage occurred.

Chief Warns Against Practice

In regard to the above incident, Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon states the danger of this practice is too easily overlooked. If fuelwood is placed in a stove to dry, it should not be forgotten or left unattended. The possibilities of fire under such conditions cannot be too strongly stressed.

Entries Fewer -- Indication Quality Not Sacrificed in Curtailment of Herds Since Farm Labor Shortage

Glamor, Amusement as Usual, But War's Effect Seen in Many Phases

The advent of Lachute Spring Fair 1943 affords, for many, an occasion to meet old friends and enjoy a brief respite from the season's labors. To others concerned in its successful operation it implies, on the contrary, four days of rush, bustle and hard work. And for the younger generation it spells a Big Time, a phase of glamor and excitement which for many local youngsters comes but once on the year's calendar.

Seen at close range this annual show may appear remotely affected by wartime trends of Canadian life, but viewed analytically, such trends are soon apparent. In the fewer livestock entries, horse fanciers and cattle breeders readily recall that farm stock has been depleted, through the scarcity of labor and consequent elimination of surplus animals. Yet the enthusiasts will note that more exhibitors are on the scene this year — a fact which would safely suggest that the quality is there, and competition is as keen as ever.

In the busy midway concessions an observant visitor may remark there is no stagnation of currency this year. Cash is plentiful and, some may think, too freely spent. But — "c'est la guerre"; what's next to distract frenzied workers and provide excitement! . . . Behind the scenes in the dining quarters, wartime has presented its problems to the caterers, hard-working members of the Women's Institute and other volunteers — whose efforts, incidentally, will accrue to the benefit of local war services. . . And again, in the commercial display, one sees the evidence of shortages; gone the days of plenty when the stands were full of shining refrigerators, home devices and gadgets for sale. Today the industrial show lays stress on conservation, on agricultural production. But still there is plenty to interest spectators, wherever their interests may lie.

Old Friends and New Among Exhibitors

In the list of exhibitors appear many familiar names. Besides regular entrants from the immediate district whose cattle, fine draught horses, trotters or carriage steeds are known and admired in this countryside, the fanciers are welcoming once again such keen enthusiasts as Cecil Acres from Osgoode, Ont., Robt. Agassiz from St. Eustache, Cumming Brothers from Lancaster, L. C. Lefaivre from Vankleek Hill, D. D. McKinnon from Dunvegan, E. J. McEwen from Russell, Ont., J. Walter Nesbitt and the Montreal Riding School.

But there are newcomers, both from this section and from distant points. Glen Urquhart Farm, Barrington, Illinois, has entered some fine Ayrshire exhibits.

Judges deliberating on the merits of horses and cattle at this year's Fair are:

Light Horses — Dr. W. R. Fowler, Guelph, Ont.
Heavy Horses — John S. Torrance, Markham, Ont.
Ayrshire Cattle — R. O. Biggs, Dundas, Ont.
Holstein Cattle — Mort. Butchers, Allison, Ont.
Beef Cattle — Donald McPhee, Vankleek Hill, Ont.

21 ENLIST WITH RESERVE ARMY

Regt. Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Second Battalion

HAWKESB'Y HEADQUARTERS

At the regular drill session of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders second battalion, in Haykesbury last Tuesday, 21 recruits appeared from this section, passed the medical examination, and were accepted for enrolment. The number includes several Great War veterans.

The first battalion of this regiment is on active service overseas. The second battalion is a reserve unit which, according to report of the new recruits, is shaping into an efficient body of men. Officers in charge are Capt. E. J. Howard and Lieut. W. R. Hall, and drills are conducted at Hawkesbury, centre for the three counties, on Tuesday and Friday evenings of every week.

Uniforms will be issued to the new members from this district tomorrow, and the group, many of whom have awaited this opportunity to link up with the Ontario regiment, feel they have made an effective start in giving useful service with the reserve.

FRENCH ON RAMPAGE

London (CP) — The Independent French News agency reported French patriots wrecked a German train between Paris and Pontoise, killing 23 enemy troops. It said another band killed seven Germans by throwing a bomb at a big hotel at Nantes.

Hero in Ottawa Bank Robbery

Brownsburg —

Henry Quesnel, who was employed at Brownsburg last summer, passed as somewhat of a hero when he almost prevented a bandit from making a dramatic getaway after robbing a bank in Ottawa recently. As it was, he helped the bank recover all but $105 of the $1,900 loot by landing a hefty punch that jolted loose the money from the robber's pocket.

Quesnel caught the bandit at a six-foot fence behind the fruit store and grabbed his foot, using that as a bracer to hit him on the jaw. The bandit wriggled free and fell over the fence, nearly $1,800 falling from two envelopes to the ground at Quesnel's feet, the wrong side for the bandit.

Had Quesnel's grasp been tighter he might have shared in a standing $5,000 reward. Instead he got only bruised knuckles.

RACING PROGRAM FOR SPRING FAIR WELL PLANNED

An enthusiastic crowd of horsemen are gathering at the Fair Grounds this year to help make the 1943 program of light harness racing a big success.

First of its kind in the northern part of the province, this year's Lachute Fair three days, three-event-a-day card, should produce some of the finest early season racing seen in Lachute in many years.

The grounds and race track are in splendid condition and good time should be posted.

The two annual features have been retained on the program — the county race, for horses owned in Argenteuil County by residents since May 1, and the ever popular free-for-all pace.

No less than seven entries have been received in the county race, and what a "shot in the arm" the fans will receive — when St. Genevieve Girl, owned by D. R. MacTavish of Lost River, Polly All Strange owned by J. MacKimmie, of Lachute, Hopeful Volo, owned by H. M. Lavigne, of Lachute Mills, Black Jinnie, owned by L. St. Jacques, of Lachute, Calumet Amoret, owned by P. Fournier, of St. Andrews, Louisa and Cecil owned by the Dupré Brothers of Grece's Point, meet to win the coveted trophy and purse.

The free-for-all pace will see in action Brady Hanover, who took a record of 2.02¼ in the States last summer and won at Saratoga in 2.03½; Iola Grattan, who made such a race to Signal Hanover at Kingston last week; the idol Bert Patch, owned by Sted Craig of Kingston, last year's winner of the Canadian Derby at New Hamburg, Ontario. FUR MARKETING BOOMS AT COAST

It's Spring in Vancouver, but Basic Cold Weather Skins Make Big Sales

Vancouver (CP) — A shake of a pencil or flick of a cigar may mean the transfer of thousands of dollars as some shrewd fur manufacturers' man from Seattle, Chicago or New York sees what he wants and bids.

With a royal share of the booming fur-trade funnelled through Vancouver, raw fur sales agencies in the city are enjoying busy days. Auctions — held once a month — often find as much as $250,000 in furs awaiting sale.

A fur warehouse is a fabulous place, redolent of cured skins. On display are racks of silver fox, frost-white pelts of the little Arctic fox—sheaves of mink and muskrat, bundles of silky lynx and dusk-hued fisher. Then comes Friend Beaver with his hide stretched like an oval doormat.

Buyers first visit the agency's warehouse. Pad and pencil in hand they size up various lots and note the prices they are prepared to pay.

These 30 or 40 men then take their seats in the auction room. Before them is a "pulpit" fitted with brackets or two sets of cards. One set names the variety of fur up for auction, the other gives the number of the lot. Buyers flick open their pads, poise pencils and stare like hungry wolves at the auctioneer as he rattles off prices in steady monotone, nursing his gavel the while. Beside him an assistant recognizes each bid with a sharp-barked "Up". The bidding continues, rising by 25-cent pegs, until top figure is reached. Then the gavel comes down and Old Man Beaver is ready for the next lap of his odyssey.

WEEKLY'S NEWS BURNS UP AXIS

Quotation from Montgomery in Canadian Home-Town Paper Gets Wide Circulation

Arthur, Ont., June 8 (CP)—Watch for world news in those letters to the hometown from the boys overseas. The Arthur Enterprise in a letter from LAC Philip Ptasmore in North Africa, told how Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery said to a group of airmen the Allies would bomb Italy "until we blot them out and they scream for mercy". That WAS news. The Canadian Press picked it up for its coast-to-coast wires and relayed it to the Associated Press who carried it all over the United States. And there's no doubt it has burned the ears of Hitler and Mussolini long before now.

To Visit Lachute Spring Fair

Honourable John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, who plans to attend the Lachute Spring Fair Friday afternoon and evening, and on Saturday morning. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Bracken. During his recent visit to Lachute, Mr. Bracken met many citizens of this town and agricultural community. His visit to the Fair speaks well for the impressions he received here, and is further evidence of his keen interest in agricultural progress.

SKETCHES FROM THE EARLY HISTORY OF ARGENTEUIL

Specially Selected by J. E. McIntosh

That Township known as The Gore, in Argenteuil County, is bounded on the north by Mille Isles, on the east by the Seigniory of Two Mountains, on the south by the Seigniory of Argenteuil, and on the west by Wentworth. It contains over twenty-three thousand acres and the usual allowance for highways. It has many beautiful lakes and much fine scenery.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Gore is a rough, stony township, containing very little level land, men have settled here and become well-to-do farmers, and there are very few of them that are not the proprietors of at least one hundred acres, with the buildings and live-stock which supply them with the comforts of life. Wonder at what perseverance has accomplished in other localities here grows into astonishment when we learn that, little more than half a century ago, the inhabitants of Gore were struggling with poverty and all its attendant hardships. But they were a hardy race, giants in strength, and gifted with almost superhuman endurance; the well-authenticated accounts of feats of labor sometimes performed by individuals, and the privations they endured are almost beyond belief.

The carrying of hundred pound loads on the back from Lachute to the different homes in the Township was a matter of so common occurrence that it caused little wonder or comment. It was only in drawing a parallel between hardships of which their children complained years later, and what they themselves endured in the first ten years of their pioneer existence, that these incidents were mentioned and so kept in memory.

The following true story is related of a man who lived in a remote part of Gore: He was one day carrying home on his back from Lachute a sack of flour weighing one hundred and twelve pounds, expecting that his sons would meet him about half way and relive him of his burden. He had come within about two miles of his house however, before the boys made their appearance, and so angry and indignant was he at them for not coming to his help sooner that he refused to put his load down until he had reached his own door! Anyone familiar with the distance from Lachute to the back concessions of Gore will realize the strength and determination of the man.

Hard labor, with scanty and poor diet, was the lot of many; potatoes often being the only food some of them could obtain for days, or even weeks. It is said that a man living in Mille Isles named Robert Carruthers sometimes related a feat he accomplished —and which noone doubted. He said that he chopped and burned enough wood to make two barrels of potash, having nothing during that time in the way of nourishment but potatoes and water. The timber required to make these two barrels of potash was one hundred and twenty maple trees of large size, and when we consider the amount of chopping and other work this task involved, it seems almost incredible that his strength could be kept up sufficiently long on such diet. (Note: There is something here for our present-day "nutrition experts" to think over!)

A family named Rogers, who had lately arrived from Ireland, remained over-night at St. Andrews on their way to Gore, and at this place an addition was made to the family by the birth of a son. On the third morning afterward, the mother took the child in her arms and walked the entire distance of twenty miles to Gore, that same day!

For a long time the only horse in Gore was one which belonged to a pioneer named Hazlitt Hicks — and not many other horses have become as famous. His services were not so much required in clearing the land, as men then performed much of this labor that was in later years done by horses and oxen, but in conveying grists to and from the mill this particular horse was of priceless value, not only to his owner, but to all the neighbors. So many were the loads of corn which he drew to the mill at Lachute that he began to be called "Cobby", and the name is as well-known today in Gore, and nearby localities, as that of Sir John A. Macdonald! The price of "Cobby" for a day's work would probably be about twenty-five cents, and many a dollar did he earn for his master during the thirty years he is said to have lived.

It is a subject of regret that the great strength of the pioneers of this section was not always used

Canadian Pacific Spitfires Take Toll of Hun 'Planes

The two Spitfires presented to the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas by officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway from the proceeds of their novel Golden Aircraft Fund have had "very remarkable careers", according to the R.C.A.F. News Service. Pilots flying them have shot down at least seven Hun 'planes, damaged nine and chalked up two probables, and, in addition, Canadian Pacific I and II were the "personal" ships of two Canadian aces when they won the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The two fighter 'planes, pictured on the upper right of the layout above, were paid for by the sale of old gold donated from all over the Canadian Pacific to a fund originated by Miss Gladys Gowlland (upper left), of the treasury department in Montreal, who is shown rolling the sinews of war out of the barrel and into a model C.P.R. train.

The pilots who "got their gong" while flying the C.P.R. Spitfires are Squadron Leader D. G. (Bud) Malloy, D.F.C., of Halifax (left), who made 46 sweeps with Canadian Pacific II; and Flight Lieutenant G. B. (Scotty) Murray, D.F.C., also of Halifax, who destroyed one enemy aircraft, damaged four and had two probables in 27 sweeps with Canadian Pacific I.

NEW PRESIDENT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WAS EARLY MEMBER

Annual Meeting of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Held at Boston

Boston, Mass., June 7 — The Christian Science Board of Directors today placed "prayer" at the top of the list of defensive and offensive weapons that free—thinking peoples are counting upon to win the global war against oppression and suppression.

In a statement to the annual meeting of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, the Directors first emphasized the word "prayer", then followed with the term "miracle of deliverance" which is to be accepted, they said, as the logical answer to righteous prayer.

"Christian Science teaches," the statement continued, "that this is an hour of miracles. In the Christian Science textbook, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures' (p. 591), the following definition of miracle is given: 'That which is divinely natural, but must be learned humanly'. So it is divinely natural to expect and witness the answer to righteous prayer. The miracle does not come through wishful thinking, however, but through the preparation of the heart, through steadfast, radical reliance on God."

The Directors announced the election of Mrs. Daisette D. S. McKenzie of Cambridge, Mass., as President of The Mother Church for the ensuing year, succeeding Mrs. Elizabeth F. Norwwood, of Brookline, Mass.

The new President first became interested in Christian Science in 1887 during the very early days of the movement. Hence, Mrs. McKenzie became instrumental in the pioneering of this region in the city of Cleveland. She served ultimately as Reader in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Cleveland, as a member of its board of directors. In 1898 both Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie were called by Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, to become members of her last class taught in November of that year.

PEACE TO ENSURE THAT NEVER AGAIN SHALL HUN RAVAGE

British Post-War Policy Group Declares For Full Control of Germany and Wipe-out of War Industries

London, (CP) — Setting up an inter-Allied Council of Control of Germany was proposed in a memorandum on post-war policy published by the Post-War Policy Group of members of parliament and peers of which Sir John Wardlaw-Milne is chairman. Main point is that conditions of implementing the terms of the Atlantic Charter must be such that none of the Axis powers shall ever be in a position again to launch an aggressive war.

Unconditional surrender must be followed by effective occupation of Germany, the setting up of the Inter-Allied Council of Control, and a peace treaty. The latter, it was suggested, would not materialize for several years owing to the many difficult questions to be settled.

Put on the Screws.

The group considers that among first duties of the Council of Control would be: Dismantling of the aircraft industry and control of Germany's war potential; arrest and trial of persons alleged to be guilty of war crimes, such trials to be conducted by military courts constituted by the government of the state whose nationals have been victims.

Measures would be taken to ensure the efficacy of steps which should have been taken to prevent escape of those accused to neutral countries; securing that no body or person in Germany shall undertake military or pre-military duties; carrying out by stages within six months of surrender and complete demobilization of all German services.

The group included the following in points considered essential to peace terms: Germany to be occupied by an Allied Army and Air Force until such occupation can safely be terminated; East Prussia, as geographically and historically a separate entity from the rest of Germany, not to form part of Prussia or Germany; The Rhineland, to be made an independent German state.

Germany would be allowed no army, navy or air force and no civil aviation or aircraft industry until the Allies decide otherwise; the return of all loot or payment of compensation; Germans to pay occupation costs, the prohibition of private loans to Germany and measures to prevent her flooding the world with her products by manipulated inflation. The Allies would determine the curicula of university and school studies.

It's the Trickle that Counts

War, so big that it spreads into almost every part of our world, is won by the organized little efforts of individuals. The monotonous left and right turns on the drill field, the collection of fats in the kitchen, the unvaried motions beside a lathe, the added work of feeding larger numbers of live-stock and the extra number of daily taps on the typewriter, flow into and make possible the great stream of war effort destined to overwhelm Hitler and his shady colleagues.

While this is true, many of us fail to appreciate it sometimes. Our humdrum job can appear to be so remote from our idea of war as something exciting and important. It is fair and accurate, nevertheless, to say that the flood which will take proper care of the enemy depends entirely on the trickling flow of individual effort from all of us.

With that conception of our part in the job of war, we see more clearly the reason why individuals should buy War Savings, no matter how small; why each war worker cannot afford to stay away from his shop unnecessarily, and why even in the simple matter of making an income tax return, the co-operation of the individual is vitally important.

Money which goes into the Dominion Treasury from the income tax returns made by more than two million Canadian citizens is just as necessary as the money received through the sale of Victory Bonds in shaping the military machine which is to be poured into the fields of Europe. When each individual jumps to meet the request of the Department of National Revenue for prompt completion and return of the income tax form, he is making a vital contribution to the efficiency of his country's war job.

Hands Across the Acres

One of the problems of our Canadian civilization in the past 20 years has been the widening breach between country and city. During the war years, however, urban young people of school age are going back to the farms for summer work.

The primary object is, of course, increased agricultural production, but the results cannot be measured entirely in bushels and hundredweight. For every effort that the town youth put into their summer work there is a corresponding personal return.

The good food, fresh air, regular physical work in daylight hours though tiring at first make for physical improvement. Summer muscular exertion compensates winter mental effort. Though they may not realize it, their education is continuing — with nature as the teacher, the field, the barn and the bush as classrooms. They learn that plants, beast and man are bound by the fundamental laws of nature. If these laws are observed, success follows; if they are broken the inevitable penalty is failure.

The youth of the town and country are thrown together with a common purpose on the home territory of the latter rather than of the former. The city youths after a week have sincere respect for country boys' knowledge and skill in handling implements and animals. Their endurance, heartiness and perseverance are all born of a job that cannot be hurried. The tempo is dictated by sun and season, not by power and machines. Nature cannot be speeded up.

The youth of the country will marvel at the gaps in the city boys' knowledge, but at the same time they will take keen interest in another way of life and in experiences that have been out of their range.

As this generation grows up there will be a better understanding of two ways of life. Summer labor and its resultant friendships will go a long way towards engendering closer contact between city and country.

Just A Pill Point

Hugh Templin, who writes "The Inside Page" of the News-Record, is responsible for this one: "A passenger train was coming down from the North," Mr. Templin records, "and an elderly lady kept asking the conductor to be sure to tell her when they came to Drayton. He kept assuring her that he would not forget, and as the train came close to Drayton he kept his word. After the train started again, the conductor was dismayed to find the old lady hadn't gotten off the train. He pulled the communication cord, and had the engine back up while he hurried to the passenger. 'You didn't get off at Drayton after all', he said. 'That was Drayton we just passed'. By this time the train was back at the Drayton platform. 'Oh, I didn't want to get off', the lady explained. 'When I left home, the doctor gave me two pills and told me to take them when the train got to Drayton' ".

Helping the Salvation Army

The election of Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., as chairman of the Salvation Army National Advisory Board to succeed the late Sir Edward Beatty, serves once more to show how the work of this great organization is appreciated by men of discernment in all walks — says an editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail. Sir Edward gave unstintingly of his time to assist the worthy cause. Air Marshal Bishop has been a member of the national and Ottawa advisory boards for years, and it is fitting that a distinguished soldier should become national chairman.

In its early days the Salvation Army met violent opposition from both the ignorant and the intolerant, but today it stands not only as a monument to the sincerity and energy of its leaders, but as evidence of the newer spirit of human brotherhood. It was launched primarily to lend a helping hand to the humbler folk who were treated so generally with disdain by the more fortunate. It took to them the text and spirit of the Gospel, and offered them the hospitality and companionship they could not find in the churches. Today the Salvation Army, still working on the fringe, and beyond, of church society, in a very large field, has won the admiration of all classes of people. It has carried on well a greatly needed crusade, and it is gratifying that the interest of able business men is readily enlisted in behalf of the cause so ardently pursued for humanity's sake.

Canada Needs Canadians

Prime Minister King is of course giving good advice when he warns against the dangers of using our energies now in wrestling with the problems of the post-war period. It is obvious that if we do not concentrate strongly on the war there may not be any post-war period to worry about for some time to come. However, it is natural for us to want to have some sort of goal. After nearly thirty years of buffetings in war and booms and depressions and more war, these generations of Canadians cannot be kept from trying to find some solid principle of assurance.

One principle we can be sure about is that Canada's greatest post-war need is going to be Canadians. Where they will come from and how we shall get them here and insert them into our economy with a minimum of friction are items that we shall have to think about very hard. Greatly adding to our population while maintaining the identity of our country will take more skill than we have so far shown, but the decision that our population will increase is not going to need a large amount of thinking, for that decision has been made for us by the fact that we are about twelve million people thinly occupying a vast area of tremendous resources. We are like a man driving alone through the rush-hour crowds in a seven-passenger automobile; if there isn't room on the street cars, somebody may ask us for a ride; and if it is a rainy day in a tough neighborhood and we are stopped by a red light, several strong-looking fellows may simply open our doors and climb inside.

That is why Canada needs a good many more friendly, strong people to ride in the car and discourage others from taking it away from us.

A House for $1,200 ?

Dr. Cyril James, principal of McGill and chairman of the Government's Advisory Committee on Reconstruction, says there is a new building material "which would make it possible to erect a house for a family of five at about $1,200 and make a profit". He could not give more details at this time.

Building methods and materials have altered but little, in this era of mass production, and many predictions that the world was on the verge of revolutionary changes have failed to be proved by events. Every house continues to be an individual project of stone, brick, wood, plaster, cement, or a combination of them.

No doubt researchers are giving thought to the question, and if the development of which which Dr. James speaks proves itself the social and economic consequences would be far-reaching. If a good house could be put up for the price of a medium motor car the effect on housing would be sensational. We should expect slums to disappear and the general living standards to be raised — the effect on the values of existing buildings would be quite another story.

But such things have been predicted before, and nothing has come of them. Dr. James may be sure of his ground, but the person planning a house in the old-fashioned way will not want to wait for this new material and system.

Greek Appeal for Financial Help

Canadians will have an opportunity this month to subscribe to the Greek War Relief Fund which is conducting a national campaign the intolerable conditions existing in that enslaved country. The to raise $500,000 to help alleviate money raised by the fund, which is authorized by the Federal Government, will be used to buy food, medical and other supplies. Purchases will be made by the Canadian Red Cross. A joint commission composed of representatives of the Swiss, Swedish and Greek Red Cross Societies, in collaborawith the International Red Cross, will arrange for distribution of these supplies in Greece.

Thousands of children and adults in Greece are literally dying of starvation. Today in that unhappy land little children, hardly more than skeletons, fight over garbage cans in search of a mouthful of food and dispute their booty with one another. Entire families beg together. Skeleton mothers, with infants at their dry breasts and two or three phantom children, stalk the cities crying and shivering for want of food. Everywhere can be seen abandoned babies and young children.

The campaign is being organized on lines similar to the recent "Aid to Russia" Fund, that is to say, most of the subscriptions will be received through the mails and from every other source throughout the country.

Ahoy !

Proving the value of the direct approach, the following story comes from a Canadian corvette.

The skipper, a hard-bitten exmerchant seaman, was inclined to eschew the formalities. His second in command, or, as corvette crews prefer to call him, "Jimmy The One", had been a school-teacher in less vigorous days ashore.

One bright day in convoy a signal reached the corvette from a destroyer instructing her to haul alongside a Norwegian tramp and order her to retrieve a too-conspicuous silver baloon she was flying as added protection against possible attack by enemy aircraft. When within hailing distance the Jimmy called through a megaphone across the intervening waters: "Retrieve that balloon, forthwith".

There was immediate interest shown by the two officers aboard the tramp. They regarded each other in evident puzzlement, and following a brief conversational exchange, one called back:

"Fort'wit'?"

The Jimmy bristled. "Yes," he repeated. "Forthwith!"

Again the two officers looked at each other in bewilderment.

This time the other one queried: "Fort'wit'?"

Again the Jimmy raised his megaphone, but found himself rudely jostled aside by the Old Man who cupped his hands and bellowed:

"Haul down that bloody balloon!"

Down came the balloon.

WITH THE ARMY

Ottawa — National Defence Headquarters at Ottawa has denied reports that Canadian soldiers serving overseas for more than two years are being permitted to return to Canada on leave. After receiving numerous enquiries from wives, relatives and friends of soldiers overseas, Headquarters stated that no such arrangement exists and none is contemplated at present.

A relatively small number of men return from overseas each year. Some return for instructional duty, some on escort duty and others for discharge owing to medical reasons. Only a very small number are granted compassionate leave.

* * *

Soldiers proceeding to an unknown destination overseas may have their mail addressed to Post Restante, Postal Corps Headquarters, Canadian Army Overseas, to be forwarded to them later. The mail should bear the soldier's number, rank, name and unit. When the soldier reaches his destination, he should inform Post Restante and his mail will be forwarded. Mail must be applied for within 60 days, or it will be returned to the senders in Canada.

"I get wonderful recipes over the radio", gushed the bride, who was entertaining her family for the first time. "I got one for Egyptian stew, and one for a never-fail stain remover this morning".

"Which is this?" asked little Willie, tasting the stew with which he had just been served.

The Vicar was taking one of the young men of his parish to task.

"William", he said gravely, "I hear that you have been raising false hopes in several maiden hearts. Rumor says that you're engaged to one girl in the village, another in Little Mudard, and a third in Ditchley. How can you do such a thing?"

With an uneasy grin, William replied:

"Well, sir, I've got a bicycle".

"You look like a sensible girl, let's get better acquainted".

"Nothing doing. I'm just as sensible as I look".

The boxer who knew practically every trick in the game finally met his match. In the third round he found himself on his back, listening to the referee counting over him.

"One," roared the referee, "two, three, four, five, six, seven".

The fighter reached up and grabbed the referee's wrist.

"I'm a little hard of hearing," he interrupted. "Would you mind repeating that?"

"Have you been to any other doctor before you came to me?" asked the grouchy doctor.

"No sir", replied the meek patient, "I just went to a druggist".

"You went to a druggist?" exclaimed the doctor. "That shows how much sense some people have. You went to a druggist! And what idiotic advice did the druggist give you?"

"He told me to come to see you", replied the patient.

Church Appoints Women To Home Mission Fields

United Church Training School to hold Summer Course

Three young women students of the United Church Training School, 214 St. George Street, Toronto, have been sent out by the Home Mission Board of the United Church to Student Mission Fields in Saskatchewan. They will assume all the duties expected of full-time ordained ministers, and will serve communities that otherwise would be without religious supervision. They will preach, do pastoral work, hold Vacation Schools, Sunday Schools and camps. Their training has fitted them for this work.

More Qualified Workers Needed

The work of the Church in wartime communities is growing steadily, and in order to meet the desperate need for women workers, a Summer Training School will be held from June 14 to July 23, during which time a special group of women will be trained. These students will give a year's serivce.

Miss Gertrude L. Rutherford, Principal of the United Church Training School, declares that at the present time it is impossible to meet the demands for qualified women for community leadership and congregational work. Looking forward to the still greater demands of post-war work in Canada, she is calling for more and more students to enroll and become qualified to take up the heavy responsibilities that will challenge women in both church and community.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 13.

The Golden Text is from Proverbs 18:10. "The name of the Lord is a strong tower: the righteous runneth into it, and is safe".

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And the Lord said unto Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark; for thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation". (Genesis 7:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Ark. Safety; the idea, or reflection, of Truth, proved to be as immortal as its Principle; the understanding of Spirit, destroying belief in matter. God and man coexistent and eternal; Science showing that the spiritual realities of all things are created by Him and exist forever. The ark indicates temptation overcome and followed by exaltation". (Pg. 581).

MEMBERSHIP ANALYSIS

The 1942 total membership of the Boy Scouts Association in Canada is now 85,729, a slight reduction from the previous year. This reduction is due largely to a shortage of leaders. Total number enrolled as Scouts was 37,744, while 39,351 were listed as Wolf Cubs. The balance of the membership is made up of Rover Scouts, Sea Scouts, Lone Scouts and leaders.

For incomes not over $3000 get two (2) copies of simplified Form T. 1 Special.
For incomes over $3000 get three (3) copies of Form T. 1 General.
Income Tax dollars are not ordinary dollars . . . they are Victory dollars . . . necessary dollars to help win the war. Income Tax is fair to all. All are taxed in proportion to their ability to pay.
Under the new system introduced this year, Income Tax is now on a pay-as-you-earn basis. The reduction of the 1942 Tax made this possible.
In most cases the larger part of the reduced tax will have been paid by the 1942 tax deductions or instalment payments. One-third of any balance must be paid by 30th June and the remainder on or before 31st December, 1943.
You must file an Income Tax return and pay any balance to establish your right, after the war, to the refund of the Savings Portion of your tax.
If you are a salary or a wage earner, your employer can probably supply you with Income Tax Forms—otherwise, they are available at your local Post Office or the office of your District Inspector of Income Tax.
Over 2,000,000 Canadians will be filing returns and paying taxes . . . avoid the last minute rush. If you wait, illness or other unforeseen circumstances may prevent you from getting your return in on time. Avoid penalties by sending in your return NOW!
FARMERS
You must attach to your return on Form T. 1 Special or Form T. 1 General either a statement of your gross income and expenses, or completed Farmers T. 1 Supplemental. The T. 1 Supplemental itemizes all forms of farm receipts and expenses, and is a guide for determining your actual net income. Forms may be secured from your local Post Office or District Inspector of Income Tax.

To help you fill out your Income Tax forms a booklet ("Farmers' Income Tax Guide, 1942") has been prepared to cover the special conditions which apply to farm operations. It can be obtained free on request from your District Inspector. If you don't know his address, just mail your letter to "District Inspector of Dominion Income Tax."

The Old Inns Of England

By WALTER R. LEGGE

Following the competition of the Bomber Press series of articles, some readers have enquired why there was not one article about the old inns the party visited.

Such an article really has little to do with the war effort, so that it could not properly belong in the Bomber Press series. However, the old inns play a most important part in the life and history of England, and we naturally visited a number of them.

Nearly every settlement of any size in England possesses at least one ancient inn well worth a visit, with an interesting history and picturesque architecture.

Probably the most famous, to Canadians at least, is the Old Cheshire Cheese in Fleet Street which dates back to 1667. It was a haunt of Dr. Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, James Boswell, and many other famous men. It has been badly battered in the raids on London, and its famous dish, beefsteak pudding, is cut, probably for the duration. It was serving beverages when the Bomber Press was in London.

One of the first that we visited was "Skindle's Hotel" at Maidenhead, which is not a very old Inn but is quite famous, and was very popular before the war on account of its superb location on the Thames. Our party can testify that an excellent meal is still being served there.

Our home for many days was the "Old Ship" Hotel at Brighton, one of the best known of the numberless hotels at that seaside city. It was here that Dickens spent ten days in 1837 when he was writting "Oliver Twist", and he described his quarters as "a beautiful bay-windowed sitting-room, fronting the sea". (Could it have been the same room that was occupied by Messrs. Charters and Legge while there?) This was far from the only time that Dickens stayed at the Old Ship, and he wrote from this hotel to George Cattermole who was illustrating the "Old Curiosity Shop". Dickens is known to have made many trips to Brighton and probably was often at this old hotel.

It did not take us long to discover that the best meals in England in wartime are to be found in some of the smaller old inns, and two of the best meals we had while there were served at the "White Hart" at Lewes, only a few miles from Brighton.

At this inn, the carving is done in the dining room by Mrs. Walton, wife of the proprietor.

The building is a very old one dating from the fourteenth century, and was the home of the Pelham family, from which family came the Dukes of Newcastle and the Earls of Chichester. The mansion was turned into an Inn about 1717, and since then has entertained many celebrities.

After our second meal there, Mr. Walton took the party through the wine cellar of the Inn. This cellar is reputed to have been used to confine prisoners during the Commonwealth period, and is referred to in this connection is "Ovingdean Grange" by Harrison Ainsworth. There is some very fine oak panelling of the Tudor period in the two drawing rooms.

Another fine meal at a small Inn was enjoyed in the same district at the Roebuck Inn at Wych Cross, the junction of two old Roman roads. This Inn is not an old one, although it is made to look antiquated.

Grantham, in Lincolnshire, has two famous old inns, the "Angel" and the "George". The latter, at which we had a delicious lunch, proudly displays a brass plate setting forth the phrase in Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby" which reads, "Twenty miles further on, two of the front outside passengers wisely availing themselves of their arrival at one of the best inns in England, turned in, for the night, at the George at Grantham." The George dates from 1780, but does not look as interesting as the Angel goes back to the fifteenth century and one lodged Richard III.

Bristol has many fascinating old inns, probably the most interesting being the "Llandoger Trow" which was built in 1664, one of a block of half-timbered houses by the Welsh Back quay. The quay is cobble-stone, and the mooring posts are ancient ships' cannon. It was from here that the "Hispaniola" of Stevenson's "Treasure Island" set out and the Llandoger Trow was probably the "Spyglass". Bristol was one of the most famour pirates' haunts in the world, and some of the most notorious pirates came from there, such as Capt. Edward Teach, (Blackbeard, as he was called), Capt. Bartholomew Roberts, and the pirate woman, Mary Read.

The cellars of the Llandoger Trow were used as temporary prisons by the Press gangs, and also for rum running, and one passage leads to the Welsh Back quay, and another to the Theatre Royal.

Many famous people have been entertained at the Llandoger Trow, including Henry Irving, Wilson Barrett, Kate Terry, Beerbohn Tree, and Judge Jeffreys. In it Defoe met Dr. Selkirk, the original of Robinson Crusoe.

The ceiling of the bar is now a shiny black, but it is said that originally, it was covered with excellent paintings of scantily clad ladies, but some 200 years ago a fascinating widow who kept the Inn had them painted over with black because the seamen admired the paintings instead of her.

Another Bristol Inn which looks as if it might have a romantic past is the "Hatchet". This was first pointed out to us one moonlight night as we were returning from an evening of the Savages' Club. In the deserted street by the eerie light of the moon it appeared as if anything might happen there, but on a subsequent visit in the daytime, it seemed to lodge nothing more sinister than a dart game.

These dart boards are tremendously popular in England and may be found in almost every hotel.

An inn which will be remembered by most Canadians who were in the last war is the Royal Anchor at Liphook. One of the features of this hotel is that all the rooms are named after famous people who have occupied them. This Inn dates from 1745. It is famous for the immense and very old chestnut tree in front of it, and also because it was a haunt of Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton. It has to share that fame with a great many other places, because I concluded that there are as many places in England where Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton sojourned, as there are places in America where George Washington slept.

Salisbury, which some of us visited one Sunday has a number of famous old Inns. We were strongly recommended to get our lunch at the "Haunch of Venison" but found that it did not serve meals on Sunday. This is believed to be the inn described in Dickens' "Martin Chuzzlewit" where Tom Pinch went to meet Martin Chuzzlewit, and also where Tom returned after his dismissal from Mr. Pecksniff.

Another hotel in Salisbury which figure in the same book is the White Hart, where Tigg and Jonas came on the night of their disastrous ride from London. The White Hart is quite a large hotel with the figure of a white hart on top of the front. This white hart can be seen for some distance down the street.

We were not able to get lunch at either of these hotels and went to the County Hotel.

Another interesting old inn at which we stayed was the Saracen's Head at Lincoln, but we could not learn it had any special history.

The inns mentioned above are some that we visited or stayed at, but we passed lage numbers of other picturesque ones. With the various restrictions now in force, most of them are closed for a good part of the day.

One other inn was worthy of mention, the Northgate Arms, an old inn which is in beautiful condition, and at which we were served a splendid meal. It is situated a few miles from Bath and stands entirely alone.

There are no end of inns in England called "The Marquis of Granby," but the Marquis of Granby kept by Mrs. Weller in "Pickwick Papers" was an entirely mythical inn. We passed a great number of them, one of the largest being in London on the Old Kent Roard.

The other hotels we stayed in in England were more or less modern ones, and have been mentioned in other articles.

Posies Were Fashion On Wedding Rings

A market shortage of even the nine-carat utility wedding rings is said to be daunting prospective brides and bridegrooms, though if it be true that "love will find a way" it should be capable of raising a ring of some sort. At least there will be no need nowadays to worry about devising a "posy" or inscription for the inside of the ring itself. Round about the sixteenth century such inscriptions, on the lines of "In thee, my choyce, I do rejoice," were popular, but their devising was never regarded as a very high form of versification. Twenty and more years ago A. A. Milne had a story of a husband who was requested by his wife to provide such an inscription for the ring she already possessed; all he could think of was the explanatory legend "Wedding Ring", on the analogy of the "Bath Mat" which so often adorns the towelling obviously intended for the bathroom floor.

But even that would be better than the unpromising posy attributed to John Thomas, an eighteenth-century Bishop of Lincoln, who is said to have given his fourth wife a ring with the inscription. "If I survive I'll make them five" He did not survive, so he missed his chance.

FAT IS AMMUNITION!

Fat and bone conservation begins at home and ends in the firing line

- DO YOU KNOW -

One pound of fat supplies enough glycerine to fire 150 bullets from a Bren gun.

Two pounds of fat will fire a burst of 20 cannon shells from a Spitfire or 10 anti-aircraft shells.

Bones produce fat and aircraft glue.

If we saved fat at the rate of one ounce per person per week this would mean 36,000,000 pounds per year, enough to produce 3,600,000 pounds of glycerine for explosives.

OUR FIGHTERS DEPEND ON YOU

"Every householder who delivers to a retail butcher, collector, or Salvage Committee, any rendered or unrendered fats or bones shall be entitled to receive from the person to whom they are delivered 4 cents per pound net weight for rendered fats, and 1 cent per pound for unrendered fats."

The above paragraph is a direct quotation from Order A-642 of The Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

"Rendered fat" means fat melted down and strained to remove solid matter. It includes drippings and strained pan grease resulting from the cooking of meat.

"Unrendered fat" means raw or partially cooked fat free from lean meat and bone, but not fully rendered.

"Bones" means raw or cooked bones of cattle, sheep and hogs.

MEAT RATIONING AN EDUCATION

Education is going to be one of the by-products of meat rationing. Women who have never known the different cuts of meat are going to have to learn them, willy-nilly. Butchers are going to have to learn how to cut meats better. When you asked for a four-pound roast you were just as apt to get anything from a half-pound to a pound more. If they cut them that way now, they are either going to lose a part of their coupon value, or they are going to have to cut off some and put this more expensive meat in for hamburg or stewing meat. It is my guess we are more apt to get under the weight asked for, while rationing is in force. We are privileged to have that weight made up in sausage, hamburg, bacon, or any other meat we can get. We are going to need to have considerable patience. It is hard for us but it is even worse for the meat-dealers. If we try to have understanding, it will be easier for everyone.

A MAKE-DO

To make do is the order of the day. Here is how a young mother extended the life of a sweater for her small son. He had a sweater suit, the top being a daffodil yellow, and the pants brown. The suit got too small for him, so his mother washed it, and stretched the sweater sideways so that it was big enough to go round. This left both the sweater and sleeves too short, so she cut bands from the brown pants and used these to lengthen the sweater. Result: one good sweater from a useless suit.

HOME-CANNED BAKED BEANS

Do you remember a reader asking about the home canning of baked beans, and I said I had not done it but did not see why it could not be done? I have just had a helpful letter from a Maritime woman who tells me she has canned her surplus beans for years very successfully. Being a Maritimer she uses a bean crock and has them Saturday night for supper. Her family is small so they do not use all the beans. She puts the surplus beans, while they are still hot, into jars, and processes them in the hot water bath, just as for any other canning. For the hot water bath, the jars are put in a pan, on a stand or on folds of newspaper, to allow the water to circulate, several inches of water is added, the pan covered, and the water boiled from 60 to 90 minutes, depending on the size of the jar. The tops should only be partly tightened, and then fully tightened when taken out of the water. Many women, who do a quantity of canning, have a rack made for their boiler. A roasting pan, or a preserving kettle with a cover, may be used for a smaller quantity. If the water bath method cans beans successfully, the oven canning should be equally successful. It is good to know we may can baked beans for summer use, and I certainly intend to try it. Thanks for the information.

VEAL HEARTS

2 Veal hearts, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons flour 1 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons vinegar, 2 teaspoons sugar ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 cups water, 1 onion chopped.

Clean the hearts, removing membrane and large veins. Cut the hearts into ½ in. cubes. Brown the flour in the fat, and add heart and other ingredients. Cover and simmer for 1½ hours or until tender.

BAKED BEANS

1 lb. beans, 1 dessertspoon salt, dash of pepper, ½ onion ⅓ cup brown sugar, ⅓ cup molasses, ¼ lb. salt pork.

Soak the beans overnight. Drain, cover with water and boil until the skin will crack. Put the beans in a bean-crock or casserole, and add the salt, pepper, sugar and molasses. Cut the pork in inch pieces and add to the beans, leaving a few pieces on top. Bury the onion in the centre. Cover with water. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees from five to six hours, adding water if necessary. Uncover the last half-hour to brown the beans. There are some places where it is impossible to get salt pork, but fresh fat pork, or bacon dripping may be substituted.

YEARS AND WEIGHT NO LONGER SACRED

British Housewives Must Tell All, to Help With Wartime Statistics

London (CP) — It has come at last. None of this personal information, such as weight and age, which a woman cherishes, is sacred in wartime.

Woman's age, of course, became government property long ago with national registration. But weight? The government wants that now too. Housewives are being asked by the government to weigh themselves as a wartime experiment to help the Food Ministry discover how the wartime diet affects people.

Persons selected at random will be given cards with which they will be required to report every three months to a local drug-store and be weighed and make their returns. They are to continue eating what they would eat normally.

"The scheme is in its infancy", a food ministry official said, "but we intend to start it all over the country. Wartime diet affects people in different ways — some lose weight, others become corpulent."

The Teeth and Beauty

It is practically impossible to pick up a newspaper or a magazine without finding some reference to improving or maintaining the personal appearance. The fashion magazines and the women's sections of our newspapers are filled with more or less valuable hints on how to dress, how to apply cosmetics and how to harmonize colors, and other miscellaneous information.

It is important to note that all of these directions and all of these hints start from the base which nature has provided for each individual.

The teeth are especially important to the personal appearance because they play such a conspicuous part in speech and are always more or less visible in talking or smiling. In conversation, the centers of attention are the eyes and the mouth. A defect in either of these is immediately noticeable.

It is remarkable how greatly our impressions of people are influenced by their personal appearance. Stained, decayed and irregular teeth are often responsible for the formation of unfavorable opinions. On the other hand, clean teeth and firm pink gums are powerful agents in promoting favorable impressions.

The cleanliness and good health of the teeth can be assured without expenditure of large sums of money if the teeth are cared for in time. It is expensive and unwise to delay the care of the teeth. Take your problems to the dentist as soon as they arise.

Good teeth are a health asset. They are a personality and beauty asset. Their care requires some effort, but that effort is assuredly worth while.

WOMEN CAN SHOW FARM HIRED MAN SOME GOOD WORK

Head of Uncle Sam's Land Army Asks Farmers to Let City and Town Women Prove What They Can Do on Farm

Washington, June 7 (CP)—Florence Hall, head of the American Women's Land Army, has written for the Associated Press a special feature article on the need of women's help in the production of crops this year. She deals with many aspects that run parallel with the Canadian situation:

If you ask the ordinary farmer how many Land Army women he wants to help him with his crop, he asks:

"What! A city gal help me! What can she do down here? I can't afford to let her break up my machinery. Why, she couldn't even do that!" And he points to a muddy barnyard where his 8-year-old son is rounding up the cows for milking.

"Yes, and she'd expect me to wait on her", chimes in the farmer's wife. "We had a city boarder last summer, and I know".

I wish I could take you farmers to visit women taking a few weeks' intensive training for farm work in the Women's Land Army. I should like to have you meet Dorothy, whose husband is in the fighting services, perhaps in the same regiment as your son. Dorothy has just completed her course and makes no reservations as to what she will do and where she will work, just so we will put her to work growing food for the boys. Her training has given her muscles some conditioning so she can start right in with the farm work. She won't do quite so well as that treasure of a hired man that got the big-paying job at the munition works, but you'll be surprised the ordinary routine work she can do.

Factory to Farm

And here is Helen. True, five feet, one inch, is small for a hired man, but look how she goes to it—the concentration with which she tackles the intricacies of the tractor. The school director says of her: "That girl is going to win the war with her own two hands". She has just left a job in a factory at $65 a week to train for farm work.

We are not asking the farmers to take us entirely on our good intentions. City women have already made good as helpers on the farm. Last year I visited a similar training course given at the University of Maryland. I attended the poultry laboratory course and was, I confess it, not much impressed with the city women who were evidently afraid to touch the chickens. I thought to myself: "It's pretty hopeless; look at that typical club woman over there gingerly approach the chicken".

They Make Good

This year I asked the school authorities: "Can't you refer me to one of last year's graduates who made good?" They sent me to a poultry farm where 1,200 eggs are often gathered in a single day. What, to my amazement, should I find but my typical club woman, the same one who was so timid with the chickens. She owned, managed, and did most of the work for her business.

Several big truck farms where girls were used last year have already put in their orders for help from the Women's Land Army. A Conneticut farmer says of his city-bred dairymaid: "Her gentleness with the animals is a lesson to my hired man."

A New York farmer says: "Frances is fine. She works right along with my own daughter. She doesn't handle the tractor just right, so I have Betty do that; but Frances is fine with the milking and is willing to do anything that needs doing". The two girls seem to make at least one first-class hired man. Frances has four brothers in the armed forces, and this is her field of service.

CHINESE WOMAN JAPS' DOCTOR

Mends Ailments of B.C. Enemy Evacuees, While her Husband and Daughters Missing

Vancouver, June 5 (CP) — Ironical fate put Dr. A. S. Tsai, Chinese woman physician, in charge of Japanese patients evacuated from the British Columbia coast at Slocan.

Somewhere her son and daughter, Tsien-Liong and Hui-Bi are victims of the Japanese invasion of Shanghai. For two years she has heard no word of them. Her husband was reported missing in the Sino-Japanese war.

Because she headed her own hospital in Formosa, Japanese province, for more than 20 years, Dr. Tsai was employed by the British Columbia Security Commission as a doctor for Japanese evacuees in Slocan.

Dr. Tsai, who studied at Harvard University, hopes to re-establish herself in her profession at Vancouver after the war.

MEATLESS TUESDAY SAVES MUCH STOCK

Ottawa reports that Canada's first meatless Tuesday saved enough meat to stock a large British battleship for five months at sea, or to keep an army division in meat for well over a month.

About eight per cent of the meat used in Canada is eaten in restaurants, hotels and other public eating places. At this rate, each meatless day saves 350,000 pounds of meat.

SHE CAUGHT HIM

Uxbridge, Eng. (CP) — "Excuse me, I want to catch a burglar," said Mrs. Edithh Turner, as she grabbed a bicycle from the hands of a woman who stood talking in the street. She leaped on the cycle and caught her quarry, a man who had just robbed her house.

COUGH DROP BOMBS

London (CP) — Latest of the "explosive machines" claimed by Rome to have been dropped by the R.A.F. are cough drops. "As soon as a person sucks the cough-drops they explode in the mouth," says Rome Radio.

RATIONING

Questions & Answers

Q.—We are considering buying a house which is already rented. How much notice would the present owner have to give the tenant, if we buy the house for ourselves?

A.—If you buy the house, you, not the present owner, would be required to give the tenant 12 months notice from the date of sale.

• • •

Q.—What is the ceiling price on government certified Irish cobbler seed potatoes? In our town they are selling for $4.50 a bag.

A.—Certified seed potatoes are exempt from maximum price regulations, but must be sold and used only for seeding purposes.

• • •

Q.—My son, who is in the Army, has stored his car in a garage for the duration. Recently the landlord who owns this garage raised the rent from $2.50 to $3.00 a month. Is there no ceiling on garage rentals?

A.—Indeed there is. Landlords may not rent a garage at a higher rate now than they were charging on the basic date, October 11, 1941.

• • •

Q.—I have always paid my grocer 70c a bag for coarse salt, plus 10c. for delivery. Recently I bought two bags and he charged me $1.70. Wouldn't this be considered as breaking the price ceiling?

A.—Yes, and you should report the details to your Prices Board Office; unless, of course, your dealer was charging the higher price during the basic period, September 15-October 11, 1941.

• • •

Q.—Kindly inform me if I would be allowed enough sugar for a wedding cake and also for the icing. I am being married next month.

A.—Any sugar for your wedding cake would have to be taken from your own rations. As to the icing, you could make your own from your rations or could have the cake iced at a confectioner's store.

• • •

Q.—Is wool by the skein rationed?

A.—No, but it is supplied on a quota basis to merchants, who in turn may restrict quantity sales to their customers.

HOSTESS EXEMPTIONS

London (CP) — Exemption from war work will be granted by the Labor Ministry to women who consent to give land workers and members of the Women's Land Army lodging in their homes.

Meat Charts

Housewives are urged by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to be on the lookout for the meat coupon value charts which are being distributed to every household in Canada. These will simplify shopping for meat under rationing. The charts are being delivered by mail. A householder who fails to receive one may secure one from the nearest Local Ration Board.

On the reverse side of the coupon value chart is a practical guide to the housewife in the buying and cooking of rationed meats, prepared by the Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture.

Voided Meat Coupons in Ration Cards

If the Spare "A" Meat Coupons in your temporary Ration Card are voided by horizontal black ink lines, you must secure new valid Coupons in order to purchase meat. The only temporary Ration Cards to which new meat Coupons will be attached are those whose life extends beyond May 27, 1943. Applications should be made to Local Ration Boards, and must be accompanied by present Ration Cards.

Lost Ration Books

If you find a lost Ration Book you should mail it at once to your Local Ration Board. When you turn in the found Ration Book be sure to state that you found it.

Damaged or Destroyed Ration Books

If you loose your Ration Book, or damage it so that it is no longer fit for use, you should report the fact to your Local Ration Board at once. In such cases arrangements are made to issue a temporary Ration Card good for 30 days, pending investigation and issuance of a new book.

Meat Allowance for Medical Cases

Extra meat rations will be provided for diabetics or coeliac cases only on the recommendation of a doctor. Applications, along with doctor's certificate, should be sent to the nearest branch of the Ration Administration. Diabetics who have already surrendered to the Ration Administration, sugar Coupons from their ration books need not present a second certificate from a doctor when applying for extra meat rations, providing the amount required is not in excess of the maximum allowed.

Meat Ration Charts

Be sure to take your Meat Coupon Value Chart with you when you buy meat. It saves time . . . makes buying easier. If you have not received one, or have lost your copy of this chart, apply to your Local Ration Board for another.

Merchants requiring additional Meat Coupon Value or Wholesale Meat Value Charts may also secure these from their Local Ration Board.

Play Fair With Your Grocer—for your own sake.

Housewives are urged to see that the correct Coupons — and the right number of them — are taken by the delivery boy for any rationed commodities she buys and has delivered to her home. If a grocer does not get the proper Coupons to cover his sales, he can't buy the proper amount of replacement supplies — and therefore will be unable to take care of his customer's future needs.

IMPORTANT FACTS ON PULP & PAPER WAR EFFORT

HOW PULP & PAPER HELPS THE RATIONING OF FOODS

OVER HALF A MILLION POUNDS OF PAPER WERE USED IN PRINTING THE RECENT FOOD RATION BOOKS. 13,000,000 WERE PRODUCED.

RATIONING OF FOODS MEANS FAIR DISTRIBUTION TO ALL. WITHOUT PULP AND PAPER WE COULD HAVE NO RATIONING.

FOR GASOLINE RATIONING another 466,000 lbs. of paper were used to produce 5,580,000 books and 10,000,000 application forms. Without paper the fair distribution of goods—the rationing of butter, tea, coffee, sugar and gasoline—would be impossible. This is just another essential use of paper in time of war.

in the wisest manner, nor for the promotion of good. Especially was this the case when they attended "bees", cattle fairs and elections, where a free use of liquor usually led to quarrels and the settlement of old grudges by pugilistic encounters! So well-known was the fact that the cattle fair always resulted in drinking and fighting that it became a custom with one of the ministers of Gore to preach a powerful temperance sermon on the Sabbath preceeding the fair. So often was this sermon heard that one of the young men of retentive memory used to rehearse it for the benefit of his companions. Although done in a humerous way the results may have been good, as such sermons seem no longer to be so vitally necessary in Gore.

Great, indeed, is the change that a third of a century has brought to the social and moral condition of the people. The evils of intemperance are so well understood and abhorred here as in any township of the Province. Even those still adhere to the custom of taking a social glass when away from home do it with that regard for decency and economy which prevents their absence from their families an unreasonable time. A higher degree of intelligence is now found among the people; sobriety has taken the place of intemperance; prudence has supplanted recklessness, and the many dwellings in which a family altar has been established proclaim that the people of Gore understand and are trending toward the higher life, without which existence is nonentity.

In Lovell's Gazetteer of 1881 we find this: "The men of Gore are a sturdy, loyal class, mostly descendants of settlers from the north of Ireland. They are nearly all Orangemen, and are famous for the fine appearance they made when, as part of the Argenteuil Rangers, they hastened to the front to repel the Fenian invasion".

The Municipality of Mille Isles, which is very irregular in shape, is bounded on the north by Morin and the County of Terrebonne, on the east by Morin and Terrebonne, on the south by Gore and the county of Two Moutains, and on the west by Wentworth and Howard. Like the other townships of Argenteuil, Mille Isles contains a number of small lakes, attractive in appearance and well stocked with fish. A small stream known as Cambria River flows through Mille Isles near the centre, into the North River. The first settlers in Mille Isles were John and Henry Hammond. They lived in the north part of the parish for some time after other settlers came in, and used to break out the roads with their yoke of oxen after every heavy snow-storm for the convenience of their neighbors — an instance of the friendly spirit of the early pioneer.

The old settlers of Mille Isles all have their stories of hard work, performed in winter's cold and summer's heat, and of course on short rations of the coarsest fare. All the old methods of getting grists to the mill and home again were here repeated. John Hammond, not having a horse, once bought a grindstone weighing eighty pounds all the way from Lachute on his back — a distance of twenty miles! A man named James Good, nicknamed "Little Jim" to distinguish him from another man called "Big Jim", once started to carry two bushels of corn on his back to the house of a man who had offered to take it with his own grain to the mill at Lachute. It was a long distance to his neighbor's dwelling, but "Little Jim" carried his load of one hundred and twenty pounds two miles to where he had to cross a stream on a log. By some slip the well-filled bag fell off his shoulder into the water, and of course all the poor chap could do was to fish it out and carry it back to his home.

Another of the early settlers of Mille Isles tells of having to go all the way to Lachute, for years, every time he needed to get a horse shod. This man was James Hammond who cleared one hundred acres of land, almost all of it alone. His loads to town were drawn on what they called a slide-car", a very primitive style of conveying goods, and probably similar to what is now known as a "stone-boat". Although an old man, Mr. Hammond can still perform an amount of labor in a day which would be more than most young men would care to undertake.

Morin Flats is the name given to a part of the Township which more nearly approaches a level than any other portion, but with the exception of a few acres which border the stream flowing through it, th land is quite the reverse of flat. As it recedes from the stream it rises more or less abruptly in almost every direction and is broken by hills of various degrees of height and irregularity of surface. The sail, however, is good, and the herds of cattle which graze on the hillsides, and the number of commodious barns in view, shows the energy of the settlers has not been expended in vain.

The Montfort Colonization Railway, which is to be constructed through Wentworth to Arundel, passes through Morin Flats, and will be of inestimable value to this whole section of the country.

The Township of Arundel is bounded on the north by De Salaberry, on the east by Montcalm, on the south by Harrington, and on the west by Amherst and Ponsonby.

Up to 1857 Arundel was what might be called an "unknown country". Not a man had located there for the purpose of making a home. The only individuals who had penetrated its wilds were hunters and trappers, or lumbermen driving their logs through the many turns and over the cataracts of the Rouge.

Stephen Jakes Bevin is said to have been the first white man who came into this township, and he lived so long with the Indians, and followed so closely their mode of life that he was generally looked on as belonging to the red men, rather than to the Anglo-Saxon race. He was born in England, but came very early to this country with his father, and in some way become so familiar with the Indian tongue that he was employed by the Hudson Bay Company as interpreter and clerk. While in this position he had opportunity to see the large profits made by those who traded with the Indians, and thinking that he might enjoy a share of these profits he left his employers, started business on his own account,, but still keeping on with his regular profession as a hunter and trapper. In 1882, he first entered what is now the township of Arundel, proceeding up the Rouge and building a shanty and storehouse which served as his Trading post at the junction of the Rouge with the creek which now bears his name. The place is now the site of the mills of the Oblat Fathers.

Bevin's object in locating her was to intercept the Indians as they came down the Rouge with their furs; and being far from civilization it gave him a decided advantage over other fur-traders. Game of all kinds was also abundant here, and his location seems to have been well chosen.

The stream known as Bevin's Creek is the outlet of Bevin's Lake, a beautiful body of water six miles long and about a mile wide. Bevin died in these parts in 1886, at the age of 87.

With the exception of some French families, and one or two from the United States, the early settlers in Arundel were of Irish and British origin. Many of those who went directly into the bush on their arrival in Canada found reason to repent the step they had taken, as the hardships they met with were greater than they had counted on. Had they possessed the means, many of them would have returned to their native Ireland and Scotland, whose blessings and advantages they were now comparing with their prospects in the woods of Argenteuil. Many of them no doubt felt a genuine sympathy with Sir Walter Scott when he penned the lines to his native land:—

"O Caledonia, stern and wild—
Meet nurse for a poetic child;
Land of brown heath and shaggy wood,
Land of the mountain and the flood.
Land of my sires, what mortal hand
Can e'er untie the filial band
That knits me to thy rugged strand?"

The difficulties they had to encounter were many and great. Their means were scanty, prices for food were high, and the work to be done was heavy. However, as the years silently but surely rolled along they were enabled to carry their burdens and they not only came out of the struggle none the worse, but greatly benefited thereby. Those who helped themselves were in some way helped, and became prosperous. They now have fine properties, comfortable homes, and can live in a state of comparative independance.

So it is and always has been, and this story of the old Pioneers of Argenteail has been re-written with this one object in view — to recall in a time of difficulty and danger for our country, the courage, faith and perseverance of our ancestors in their struggle to make Canada a land in which their children could grow up enjoying the advantages of a freedom, education and prosperity which they, themselves, had realized only in part. They have, at least, left us an example we need not fear to follow!

Youth Hostels in Quebec Province

Cycling has become exceedingly popular since gasoline rationing and other restrictions have deprived a large number of people from indulging in any lengthy automobile trips. The bicycle is an economical means of transportation, can follow a narrow lane if necessary, takes one where one wishes to go with a minimum of physical effort, and its effects are only beneficial.

With the object of helping cyclists engage in their favorite sport under the best possible conditions, the Canadian Youth Hostel Association has established some 30 hostels where youthful travellers may find low-cost meals and accommodation. These hostels are grouped by circuits, along some of the more popular highways. At the present time they may be found between Montreal and Ottawa, between Montreal and Newport, Vt., around Lake Memphremagog and on the south shore of the Gaspé Peninsula. Plans are under way for the opening of similar hostels between Montreal and Quebec.

The Canadian Youth Hostel Association has its headquarters in Montreal.

TRIO MAKE GOOD TEAM IN "PRIDE OF THE YANKEES"

Sam Goldwyn, the producer with the highest batting average of home-runs, wins another pennant with "Pride Of The Yankees," a film which will make the passing of Lou Gehhrig seen like a personal loss to a lot of people who never heard of him — writes Herbert Whittaker.

Linked with Goldwyn in this triumph are two other champions; Sam Wood, who not so long ago was wringing our hearts with "Goodbye, Mr. Chips", directed this one, and Gary Cooper is its star.

The teamwork of this trio, with valuable assistance from the real Mrs. Gehrig and her screen impersonator, Teresa Wright, makes "Pride Of The Yankees" something of an epic. Not, however, an epic of baseball, but an epic of idealized American domesticity.

Goldwyn has wisely subordinated the professional career of Gehrig in his home life. This way it might disappoint a few baseball fans but it will certainly reach the hearts of a lot more people. "Pride Of The Yankees" may not turn film-goers into baseball fans but it might well convert a lot of baseball fans to the beauties of a happily-married life.

—"Pride Of The Yankees" is a Rex Theatre booking for June 15, 16 and 17.

LACK OF SUPPLY HINDERS PERMITS

Although farmers are allowed to purchase small arms ammunition to protect their livestock and their crops from predatory animals and birds, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board points out that it is no guarantee that they will get their ammunition.

Because of the heavy use of metals for war purposes, small arms ammunition has become a scarce commodity on the Canadian market.

Floods Cause Damage as Deluge Sweeps District

Roads Under Water; Sawmill Swept Away, with Heavy Loss

A deluge of rain, accompanied by fierce lightning and thunder, swept this coutryside Tuesday night, flooding farm lands and turning idle creeks into noisy torrents which washed out many culverts and smaller bridges.

Heaviest damage reported in this area is the loss of the Lepine sawmill, a busy industry and familiar sight along the Brownsburg Road. The offices, sash and door factory of the mill, with valuable finished woodwork and supplies, and 25,000 feet of lumber were swept away when the rising torrent undermined the foundations of the building. The plant, owned and operated by Dorius Lepine, Mayor of Brownsburg, was completely demolished and the loss may be estimated at well over $25,000.

At around three o'clock Tuesday morning Mr. Lepine, from his residence nearby, heard unusual sounds above the roar of the stream. He donned his clothes and went out into the mill yard just in time to see the building topple and collapse into the water.

The Dalesville River, tributary of the West River which flows into the North River at Lachute west end, rose rapidly after the evening rainstorm, to such an extent that it left its course and began to sweep around the east end of the Lepine building. Apparently this undermined the supports, which gave way, and the current was so swift that it smashed the structure and carried it downstream in pieces. It is reported that a heavy steel safe was found over half a mile below the bridge. Both banks of the river were strewn with wreckage. The flood waters cut a channel about 40 feet wide and 15 feet deep past the east end of the dam, and where there formerly existed an old coffer dam. The new dam was not damaged.

A very small portion of materials may be salvaged, but for the most part it is a total loss. The planing machine appears — lying on its side in the middle of the stream, and other pieces of machinery may be seen along the banks. So far as is known, the loss was not covered by insurance.

Bridge Washed Out

At Brownsburg, the company dam on the West River was also threatened for a time, when the torrent washed a hole in the river bank.

A bridge on the river road east of Hammond's Mill, Hill Foot, was washed out during the night. The bridge crosses a creek, which was little more than a trickle of water when the last spring freshets subsided.

The North River here rose several feet during Tuesday night, and lumber and debris could be seen drifting down the current.

Motorists Encounter Flooded Roads

Many rural roads were washed out or flooded by the terrific downpour. The Brownsburg Road could be navigated only with extreme caution. On the Montreal highway between St. Hermas and St. Eustache, several stretches of the road were under water, where swamped farm lands drained across the road to a lower level. Motorists on this highway encountered worse difficulties, however, in approaching Montreal. The subway at Cartierville was flooded, a big transport from Mont Laurier and several cars having stalled in the tunnel where there was a depth of about two feet of water. The subway south of the race-course, on the same route, was also flooded.

Farm Crops

The wet season having delayed the seeding of grain on many farms, this heavy storm adds further difficulties to the lot of district farmers. The hay crop, it is stated, may have benefitted by the unusual rainfall, but seeding in some cases may now have to be abandoned. Rooted crops now under water may not be seriously damaged, but on many sloping fields the seed grain has undoubtedly been washed out. The same experience has befallen many gardeners whose crops had not grown sufficiently to withstand the rain.

High School Annual 1943 Is Published

Publication Resumed After Lapse of Three Years

The graduation class of Lachute High School has published the 1943 school annual, the first since 1939, when suspension of the year book was recommended due to war restrictions.

The publication comprises 64 pages, with an attractive cover in blue and gold featuring the school crest.

The pages of dedication honor the old students who have served or are serving in His Majesty's forces. Seven past members of the Lachute High School have paid the supreme sacrifice in the present war, namely — Garfield Clark, Harry H. Pibus, George Prosser, Charles Theoret, Howard Doig, Bill Murdoch and Ray Boyd, and 174 of the school's sons and daughters appear on the Honor Roll.

A graduation class of 21 pupils is registered in grade eleven, though a few have left for war work, and the marked progress of the school in recent years is evidenced by the present enrolment of 424 pupils.

WANT HOMES NOT STATUES

Glasgow (CP) — No statues, no cenotaphs or other war memorials, except good houses for ex-servicemen is the plea of social welfare organizations. They sent a petition to City Council asking a prohibition on building of any new war memorials.

Optimism of Directors Justified in Achievement

High Acclaim for Horses Exhibited

The heavy rainstorm on Thursday afternoon put a stop to all judging for the remainder of the day. An inspection of the horse-ring on Friday morning revealed there was still four to six inches of water on the field. Consequently judging was resumed on dry ground between the main gate and the grandstand. During the early afternoon traffic became such a problem that another change had to be made. A site between the stables and the midway was chosen, and although greatly handicapped in many ways, all the afternoon classes were disposed of.

A novel feature of Friday and Saturday evening programs was the fact that the horse show took place on the race track immediately facing the grandstand. This was so successful that it is generally conceded the practice will be followed in future years.

Two capacity crowds witnessed a splendid exhibition of horses on Friday and Saturday evenings. There were tiny ponies under twelve hands, and draft horses, saddle horses and carriage horses. Due to the fact that many of Thursday evening's classes had to be shown on Friday evening, judging was continued until after one o'clock a.m.

Amongst the heavy horse exhibitors, Gilbert E. Arnold, of Grenville had a large number of entries. He won a long list of prizes and championship ribbons with his Percherons, Belgians, Canadians and others. Other leading exhibitors included Albert Cleland, John Walker, McOuat Bros., Leonard Boyd, John Heatlie, Albert Stewart, Smith Bros., Ross MacAdam, Kilgour Wilson, Theodore Murdoch, T. E. Kettyle, L. Ouellette, A. Graham, F. Hungerbuhler, C. Tomalty, G. A. Lowe and others.

Lachute Spring Fair 1943, despite many wartime difficulties, may be reviewed with pride for its successful outcome, and with due credit to all who took part in its planning.

The prime note of this exhibition, namely its agricultural aspect, lacked nothing — save perhaps a few long-standing friends who were absent this year among the exhibitors. The standard of livestock, however, was still higher, reflecting an increasing credit on local quality. In this notable improvement, the Lachute Spring Fair has again fulfilled its purpose.

The annual exhibition of Argenteuil Agricultural Society cannot be adequately reported, in all its phases. Time and space limit The Watchman in this important function. Authentic appraisals of exhibits in the two chief branches of livestock, namely horses and cattle, are however given, with other sidelights of the Fair. (A promised resumé of the horse-racing events, a major item of entertainment, has not been received at time of going to press). Considerable space is also given to the list of prize-winners, on pages 2 and 3 of this issue.

In the Exhibition Building

Curtailment of displays through wartime shortages, was most pronounced this year in the industrial building. It is to the credit to the firms of Cottingham Supply Company and R. McArthur & Son that they appeared in their traditional stands, the former with the most ambitious exhibit on the floor. The Department of Agriculture, Alexandor Furs, a novelty booth and an agency for insecticide sprays also put up a creditable show. . . . Upstairs, the handicrafts exhibit of the Women's Institutes attracted feminine interest. There was also a display of Red Cross work from Montreal headquarters.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture showed a colorful layout emphasizing the need for large scale production. The display stressed the fact that 675,000,000 pounds of bacon and 63,000,000 dozen eggs are required by Great Britain in 1943. A table of figures showed the production for each year since 1939 and the percentage of increased production since that time. The exhibit featured models of practical labor-saving devices for the farm that can easily be built in any farm workshop. . . . This display was in charge of C. L. Morley, of Hurdman's Bridge, Ont.

W.I. Catering

James McGibbon, M.P. for Argenteuil County, arranged with the food controller to have the ladies of the Women's Institute supplied with the necessary foods that are rationed. Many favorable comments were heard on the quality of food served by the W. I.

Mr. McGibbon also assisted in securing the 75 ladies who composed the C.W.A.C. pipe band. This entertainment feature was much appreciated by the fair-goers.

Show-Ring Under Water

The inevitable electric storms which attend this seasonal event, came late Thursday afternoon and the resulting mud, besides putting the main ring out of commission for the horse judging and displays, swamped the terrain beyond the fences — a popular site for spectators to park their cars and watch the events. A tractor and teams were engaged to haul out many vehicles bogged in the mud. This storm, however, was the only serious handicap the elements inflicted in the Fair program.

Superb Quality In Cattle Breeds

Following are some of the notable exhibits of Ayrshire cattle:

Glen Urquhart Farm, Grand Anse, Que., and Barrington, Ill., owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fowler McCormick. Mr. McCormick is president of the International Harvester Company, Chicago, and their herd is founded from a large breeding stock of Ayrshires, much of which was acquired right in this district. Recent purchases by Mrs. McCormick, through the assistance of J. H. Black, Argenteuil Agricultural Society president, and animals entered in the exhibition here, were — four females from Cumming Brothers, Lancaster, Ont., all sired by Glengarry Sir Berton, a bull which made history in the States, selling for the highest bid of $3,600 at public auction; also two heifer calves from the Springlea herd of C. J. Miller, Lachute; and a 2-year-old heifer from the Woodlea Farm of W. Erskine Rodger, Lachute.

Following the judging, Mrs. McCormick purchased from Erskine Rodger the prize winner in 2-year-old heifer class, and another 2-year-old to complete a group, which won second prize in "senior get of sire" class. Her own entry won first in this class.

J. P. Bradley and Son, Brookview Farm, Lachute, had their usual fine exhibit of Ayrshires, 16 head, nearly all of their own breeding. Their herd sire is offspring of a high priced bull of the Burnshire Ayrshires at Howick, Que., Connell Coronation Charmer.

Cumming Brothers, Lancaster, Ont., showed their newly acquired herd sire, Cherry Bank Brown Bomber, a high priced animal from Dr. Bruce and Son's recent sale in Toronto.

W. J. Rodger, Lachute, exhibited a herd sire in the 2-year-old bull class.

J. H. Black, Lachute, displayed a fine exhibit of five Ayrshires.

Clifford Oswald, Ste. Scholastique, showed, in the aged bull class, his herd sire, Willowhough Lone Ranger.

John McLennan, Martintown, Ont., brought to the show his Sunny Dale herd including 14 head, 11 of which were offspring of Annandale Morning Star, renowned Ayrshire sire and former prize winner at many of the leading fairs. Two of Mr. McLennan's male exhibits, incidentally, remained here in Lachute to head the herds of two discriminating breeders, W. J. Rodger and Ross McAdam.

The Woodlea exhibit, owned by W. Erskine Rodger, included 10 head of cattle mostly home bred. Sire of this herd is Campbell Omar.

Also among the exhibits were the herd sire of Morrin Brothers, Lachute, Sunny Dale Rising Star, a promising yearling, and the herd sire of William Todd, Lachute, Willowhough Omar, a 2-year-old. C. C. Miller, Springlea Farm, Lachute, had three head of Ayrshires, bred on the farm, and F. M. Connell's herd from Lancaster, Ont., was represented by a good exhibit of 12 cattle. The junior sire of this herd is Glen Campbell Sundial.

A herd from Hermitage Farms, owned by E. L. Ruddy at Pickering, Ont., appeared at Lachute for the first time. The herd was represented by the joint senior sire Cold Coin, Imported; Killock Kitty, Imported; Bois de la Roche; Cherry 34th; Annandale Perfect Lady, top price female at the recent Annandale dispersal sale, and a number of other outstanding animals. Hermitage Farms comprise about 760 acres, and the herd numbers over 200 head. William Ness, a native of Quebec and well known in this district, is chief herdsman; and Robert Ruddy, manager of the farm, accompanied the exhibits.

It is stated that the dam of Sycamore Gold Coin, Byreholme Grace Imp., has recently gone over the 150,000 pound mark in the production of milk. She has also been graded as excellent in type classifications.

There were still other exhibits in this popular dairy breed — and one may judge by the foregoing that competition was keen.

Jerseys and Aberdeen Angus

The only exhibit of cattle in these breeds was shown by Dr. G. R. McCall's North River Farm (N. MacGeorge, manager), with 10 Jerseys and 7 Aberdeen Angus.

BLOOD SERUM CLINIC WORK IS EXPLAINED

Delegates to Lions Club Zone Meeting Told of Organization

TO ESTABLISH IN LACHUTE

In view of the undertaking by Lachute Lions Club, to solicit donors for a blood clinic to be established here by the Red Cross, an address on this subject given at the annual zone meeting in Montreal last week was heard with special interest by delegates who attended from this town.

The speaker was Paul Vaillancourt, honorary secretary of Quebec Division, Canadian Red Cross. Incidentally, a representative of the Society is expected in Lachute this week to select a site and arrange for establishment of the clinic here.

Following are extracts from Mr. Vaillancourt's address:

There are now over 60 clinics in operation across Canada in connection with which every province is represented. The gradual expansion has been necessary to bring to light the difficulties which had to be overcome. Events have justified this caution. The expansion in the Province of Quebec has been slow but satisfactory and at the present time there are clinics established at Montreal, Shawinigan Falls, Quebec City, Angus Shops and Lachine.

The objective set for all Canada for 1943 is 12,000 donations a week and the quota for Quebec will be 1,500 a week. The record week this year for all Canada, was May 2 to 8th, 1943, with 9,955 donations. Quebec this year is producing an average of 1,100 donations per week.

Processing at the Montreal University will be done as soon as machinery is received and installed. The Montreal Clinic was opened on the 17th of November, 1941, and during the year 1942, clinics were opened at Angus Shops, City of Quebec and Shawinigan Falls. On the 27th of January a clinic was opened at Lachine.

Sherbrooke and Three Rivers will have their own clinic in a very short time, having already secured the necessary premises. The Red Cross also have under consideration the question of placing Mobile Clinics on the road.

Quite recently an accident occurred on the East Canadian Coast which involved several of our gallant sailors. The men were rushed to a hospital where they received transfusions which were prepared from this Dried Serum. The medical reports show that three of the men are very definitely alive today, because of these transfusions.

Immediately upon receipt of news of the fire in Newfoundland the Canadian Red Cross Society rushed by plane 200 packages of Dried Serum to the scene of the disaster. After the necessary distilled water was added to the Dried Serum it was administered in the form of transfusion to the victims of the fire. The medical reports testify to the fact that there would have been twenty-two more deaths if transfusions had not been administered.

Dried Serum from Canada is similarly helping to alleviate suffering in practically all the Empire theatres of war.

The question has been asked if Dried Serum is as good as a direct transfusion. In many cases it is much better. No blood typing is necessary and since it will keep for many years it can be stored until required.

Another question that has been asked is how often are blood donations made. They are made no less than every two months.

Who are eligible to donate blood? All men and women in good health, between the ages of 18 and 60.

How do I know whether I am physically fit to donate my blood? When prospective donors arrive at a Blood Donor Clinic they are interviewed by a physician. If the donors are found to be under par they are advised to consult their family doctor.

How much blood do I donate? 420c.c. which equals about ¾ of a pint.

Is it very painful to donate blood? No. The area from which the blood is drawn is anaesthetized.

How long does this take? It takes only a few minutes for the donation to be given, but the person remains on the couch for about five minutes. Tea or coffee is served with toast and cookies in the refreshment room. Usually it is possible to leave the clinic within 45 minutes.

BRACKEN HERE FOR TWO DAYS VISITS EXHIB'N

National Leader of Progressive Conservatives Shows Interest As Agriculturist

COMMENDS HIGH QUALITY

Fulfilling a promise made here during his visit last winter, the Honorable John Bracken, leader of the National Progressive Conservative Party, paid a visit to Lachute Fair on Friday and Saturday, and as an authority on agriculture expressed commendation on the quality of the livestock, which he inspected with the interest of a connoisseur. He termed the show one of the best exhibitions in rural Canada.

Arriving Friday morning from Montreal, Mr. Bracken was a guest of the Agricultural Society directors at an informal luncheon in the public dining hall at the Fair Grounds, and during his tour of inspection he was introduced among the people by J. H. Black, president of the directorate, and Clement Tremblay, vice-president.

Mr. Bracken was accompanied by Mrs. Bracken, John A. Mann, K.C., and Mrs. Mann., and Paul E. Lafontaine, Quebec secretary. Friday night the party were entertained by Mr. Mann at his summer residence on Lake Margaret, north of Calumet.

Returning to Lachute Saturday morning, Messrs. Bracken, Mann and Lafontaine, accompanied by W. M. Cottingham and Maurice Paquin, of Lachute, proceeded to Oka later in the day. They were cordially received by Mayor H. Husereau, who is also warden of the County of Two Mountains, and met a number of the county's leading citizens, after which a visit was paid to the farm, monastery and agricultural college at La Trappe.

Receives Wings And Commission

Douglas Gordon, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie B. Gordon, of Dunany, Que., received his wings and commission as Pilot Officer on Friday at the Uplands, Ont., training school of the R.C.A.F.

P/O Douglas Gordon attended Dunany School and Lachute High School, and before enlisting was employed in the C.I.L. Main Office at Brownsburg. In May, 1942, he entered training with the R.C.A.F. at Lachine, and has since taken instruction courses at Moncton, N.B., Victoriaville, Que., St. Eugene and Uplands, Ont. He is 20 years of age.

Among those present to witness Friday's ceremony were his mother, Mrs. Archie B. Gordon, Miss Jean Gordon and Mr. Bobby Gordon, of Dunany, Mr. Hugh Cunningham, of Lachute, and Miss Frances Smith, of Flint, Mich.

Seek Farm Homes for Schoolboy Helpers

The Boys' Bureau of the Federation of Catholic Charities is interested in finding farm homes for a number of English-speaking Catholic schoolboys, to assist farmers during the vacation season. Any farm reader desirous of obtaining help through this means, is asked to communicate with The Watchman. A representative of the Bureau will revisit Lachute next week to arrange for the placement of boys under this plan.

Post-War London Will Be Faster, Cleaner, Better

Planners Talk of 100 M.P.H. for Cars, and No Accidents; Main Arterial Roads, "Fly-Over Bridges"

By ALAN RANDAL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — The things they hope to do to London after the war are a caution. If they actually do them, London should be a better, cleaner, faster place in which to live.

The plans are the work of London's Regional Reconstruction Committee and are the result of two years work, the expression of the reconstruction ideas of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

They visualize a London where automobiles will travel 100 miles an hour without killing a single child on the roads; where planes will bring passengers to land five minutes' travelling time from the city; where industrial sites will be curtained by trees and open spaces. The whole plan is shown on a large relief map at the first exhibition of the Regional Committee at the National Gallery and was based on the theme "protect the people from the chaos of an unplanned future."

Rapid Transit

The planners had themselves a field day. They have surrounded the new London by a great "no speed limit ring road" into which trickle all the main arterial roads from the provinces. A slower, but still fast, ring road nearer the outskirts of the Metropolis will enable transport of goods and passengers from suburb to suburb.

The intersection dangers are taken care of by "fly-over" bridges and all roads will carry separate "fast" and "slow" lanes. For the new airport the planners planned runways more than a mile long, approached by incoming planes flying above the Thames or down the Lea Valley. Always safety first, in these plans, so no planes will fly low over houses or industrial buildings.

The airfield is near the docks by the Isle of Dogs and passengers from the Continent will be able to step from the plane and be in the city in five minutes on a fast through road. The old London docks, scattered up the Thames, are displaced and the Isle of Dogs becomes a remodelled dock capable of dealing with vast traffic.

BE PREPARED FOR CUTWORM ATTACK

By B. Leslie Emslie

The Victory gardener is likely to improve his knowledge of entomology before the season is far advanced and learn that warfare must be waged against insects which attack his plants, if the fruits of his toil are to be realized and the food crops saved for human consumption.

As in land, sea and aerial conflict, the method of attack on insect pests varies according to the defences of the enemy and his vulnerable points. The life history of insects generally is divided into four stages, namely: egg, larva, pupa and adult.

Biting and chewing insects, such as certain beetles, caterpillars, grasshoppers and slugs, can be controlled by stomach poisons which include arsenates of lead and lime, cryolite, Paris Green and nicotine, whereas sucking insects have to be attacked by contact poisons such as nicotine sulphate, derris, pyrethrum, oil sprays, lime sulphur and thiocyanates. These act on the respiratory system or by their caustic effect.

One of the most troublesome and elusive pests in the garden is the cutworm, a caterpillar that buries itself during the day and "cuts up" at night during warm weather. Given freedom of action, these insects may now down cabbage, corn, tomatoes and other young plants as fast as they come up or are set out, severance being usually at ground level.

Cutworms are plump, smooth-bodied, gray to brownish caterpillars, fully one and a half inches in length when full-grown. They usually hide in the soil by day and do their dirty work by night. When disturbed, they coil up into a semi-circular attitude, feigning innocence and demonstrating that even a worm may turn.

Cutworms can be destroyed most effectively by means of a poison bait prepared by mixing thoroughly one quart of bran with a teaspoonful of Paris Green or sodium fluosilicate and then adding about a pint of water sweetened with two teaspoonsful of syrup or molasses to make a moist but not sticky mixture. This should be scattered lightly around or near the plants shortly before the worms emerge to feed. Since these baits are poisonous, they should be used with due caution and stored beyond the reach of children, poultry (even your neighbor's) and domestic animals.

Promotions and new appointments were the order last month in the CBC Farm Broadcasts Department. This is A. R. Kemp, who took over the duties of Harry J. Boyle when the latter moved to the National program office in May. Mr. Kemp is Farm Commentator for Ontario and Quebec and he's right at home in this role. He was born on a Saskatchewan farm but moved east to Forest, Ont., where his father farmed. Graduate of the Agricultural College, "Ab" later wrote on agricultural matters for the Sarnia Observer.

Insulation Is A Double Investment

By insulating right now, you can enjoy a more comfortable summer, and with all of us working harder, that's important. Then when winter comes along, you'll save fuel and THAT'S important because it saves transportation for the war.

JOHNS-MANVILLE Insulation will keep your home up to 15 degrees cooler in summer, and will save you up to 30% on fuel. And you can pay by the month.

WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES, TOO, ARE A DOUBLE INVESTMENT — NOW FOR YOUR COUNTRY, LATER FOR YOURSELF!

We can tell you in sixty seconds just what your precise rating is—and what it allows—new tires, used tires, retreads, repairs. And you can bank on this—regardless of how you stand with the regulations, we'll see you through with an intelligent tire conservation program that will keep you rolling on rubber to the very last ounce of vitality in your tires.

FARMERS Saving MONEY

Farmers and their families, today, are patriotically saving both money and materials—to provide for their continuing usefulness as suppliers of food to the United Nations, to provide for their own future financial independence AND to buy Victory Bonds and pay Income Taxes.

In common with other Canadians, farmers are carefully saving and salvaging EVERYTHING, because in this total "survival war" all things must be conserved, especially money. Determined, systematic saving by every citizen is part of the national price of VICTORY.

You have our co-operation through the services of Savings Accounts and Banking by Mail (which saves time of coming to town—saves gasoline and tires).

A Savings Account for every member of the family is a sound idea, especially in war times. Write for our folder, "How to Bank by Mail".

A WARTIME "SWITCH"

Before the war the long hair in the switch of the cow's tail was used to filter for the air conditioning in railway cars and for civilian upholstery. Cheap enough to be bought with War Savings Stamps and Certificates, it is now being used for war purposes — in corvettes, destroyers and battleships.

TRAVELLING FOR HONEY

Supports Move to Acquire Schoolhouse For Servicemen

N.D.G., Montreal, Que.,
June 10, 1943.

Editor, Lachute Watchman

Dear Sir:—In the May 20 issue of Lachute Watchman, I noticed with interest the suggestion that a vacant schoolhouse near Louisa, Quebec, be taken down and moved near the water's edge at Curran Lake, Dunany.

The old school would make grand quarters for boys in the Services on their leaves. I have spent several summers in the Lachute district and in my humble opinion there is no other place to compare with its varied and beautiful scenery — especially that part around Dunany. Surely there are enough patriotic citizens who would band together to see that this project is carried out successfully. May I suggest, sir, that you undertake, or appoint a capable person to organize a committee to have this building moved to Curran Lake.

This noteworthy scheme is given added favor by the fact that the Service Club of Montreal has agreed to outfit the place with furniture, beds, etc. Let it be hoped that the citizens of Lachute and district will see the value of this plan and that it is carried out to a successful conclusion.

—Yours very truly,
Joan E. Duncan.

Daughter of Historian Writes Appreciation

Editor, The Watchman

Dear Sir:—Not long since, a friend from St. Andrews sent me two copies of The Watchman containing articles compiled from my father's "History of Argenteuil and and Prescott".

My brother, Arthur Thomas, who gave a great deal of help to my father in obtaining the necessary data, passed away four years ago, and only my sister and myself are left. But we most certainly appreciate the fact of your publishing, and Mr. McIntosh writing, the articles. My father put a great deal of conscientious work into his preparation for the History.

Please say to Mr. McIntosh that my sister, Mrs. G. Beaman, and I, are very grateful to him.

—Very sincerely yours,
Sarah C. Thomas.

51,321 individual shareholders own Canada's Chartered Banks. The average holding is 28 shares. Most of these shareholders are Canadians.

The wide distribution of bank ownership is indicated by the fact that 36,574 individuals, living in all parts of Canada, hold shares in the Chartered Banks of Canada. Of the remaining shareholders, 8,987 live elsewhere in the British Empire.

Some further facts about Canada's Banks:

There are 4,369,740 savings deposit accounts in the Chartered Banks of Canada, averaging $391 each. Safeguarding the funds of depositors is a primary function of commercial banking. Banks keep themselves in such a position that anybody going to the bank to withdraw his savings can get his money. Banks, like any other business, exist because they provide service which a community needs and is willing to pay for at a rate which will yield a reasonable return.

Every day, bank loans are helping Canadians in all walks of life and in all parts of Canada to profit from their individual enterprise and industry.

Royal Canadian Academy and Handicrafts

Armorial Bearings of Canada

For the first time since the Royal Canadian Academy was established, in 1882, space in the Annual Academy Show for 1943 will be allotted to Handicrafts. These will be assembled at Montreal from all over the Dominion by the Canadian Handicrafts Guild for the Guild's own Show, and a selection will be made by an Academy Jury for the Academy's own Show which will be held in October at Quebec and then transferred to Montreal in November. In addition to the usual crafts, special prizes are being offered by the Guild for a Victory Banner, suitable for display in churches and reproducing the Armorial Bearings of Canada in embroidery, applique, painted silk or woven tapestry. At the suggestion of the Academy, a new category has been introduced of Corporate Exhibits which may be submitted by such corporate bodies as ecclesiastical orders, convents and schools of art and handicraft administered under provincial authority and like institutions, the exhibits to be submitted by the head of the institution or school. These corporate exhibits may include designs for craftwork as well as executed works. The Canadian Handicrafts Guild, which has its headquarters in Montreal, was incorporated in 1906 and has branches or affiliated Societies in each of the Provinces of Canada. It was delegated last year by the Interdepartmental Committee of the Federal Government at Ottawa to assemble an Exhibit of Canadian Handicrafts for the Women's International Exposition of Arts and Industries at Madison Square Garden, New York. A number of the craftworkers in Canada have won international recognition, such as Geneva Lent, of Calgary, for her embroidery; Doris le-Cocq, of British Columbia, for glazed pottery exhibited at the Royal Academy in London, and Kjeld and Erica Deichmann, potters of Moss Glen, New Brunswick. The Canadian Guild of Potters had an excellent exhibition of the work of its members recently in the Toronto Art Gallery. The Province of Quebec has been a strong supporter of the renaissance in handicraft, and has organized weaving in rural districts so extensively that there are now 60,000 looms and 100,000 spinning wheels in use in that Province.

● The annual wage bill is now twice what it was in 1939. This is partly because of the increase in the amount of employment but also because the average hourly earnings of plant employees (cost of living bonus included) have increased 42.2% since the outbreak of the war.

● Income taxes today are more than 3,000% above 1939. But the company's 3,188 shareholders get the same dividends as at the start of the war.

● This record is typical of Canadian business enterprises engaged in war production.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

By Jessie Allen Brown

DON'T BE GREEDY

Rationing an article does not necessarily mean a scarcity, it may just be a means of assuring equal distribution. If we women do not behave ourselves we are going to have a lot more rationing to put up with. A buyer in a large store spoke of his difficulty in getting babies' and children's necessities. He said the situation was further complicated by the greediness of many women. When supplies did come in, they bought more than they needed, and bought for future use too, thus creating more shortages. If everyone would buy a little less there would be plenty for all. The scarcity of molasses has been a serious thing in the Maritimes. I think I have heard more complaining about that than any other thing. Now since last summer only a pint has been sold at a time — if and when they had it. A little molasses has come in recently. I heard a woman say that she dealt with three different stores, and she had got a pint of molasses from one of them, and she was going to try to wangle a quart from each of the others. There is no use denying it, it is women who are doing the buying and trying to get the extra amounts. When things are scarce, it is a temptation to buy just the little extra. Don't do it. Buy just for your immediate needs and take your chance on getting some another time.

OVEN CANNING

Canning has been the subject of several enquiries, so I am going to write about it early in the season, and I would suggest you cut this out for further reference. Oven canning is a simple method, and I have found it very successful — last year I did not have a single bottle of fruit spoil. As we have no garden I have not canned vegetables. It is most essential for canning by any method to have perfect bottles, so examine the bottles and the tops carefully. Wash the bottles and tops well and rinse. It is not necessary to sterilize them. Choose firm, sound, fresh fruit, and do not try to can bruised or over-ripe fruit. Cover the fruit with the hot syrup and let stand until it is cool. This improves the color of the fruit, prevents shrinkage, and keeps the fruit from rising to the top. Fill the jars with fruit to within ¾ inch from the top and add syrup to within 1½ inches from top. Place on the rubber ring and top and partially seal. Place the jars an inch apart on a pan covered with several thicknesses of paper to catch any overflow of syrup, and place the pan on the shelf on second rack from the bottom of the oven. Have the oven at 275 degrees for berries and at 300 for all other fruits. Leave the jars in the oven for an hour for quarts and 40 minutes for pints. Remove the jars and seal. DO NOT invert, nor add syrup to fill the jar. During the processing period the syrup expands, fills the jar, and drives off the air. When the syrup cools it contracts and leaves a vacuum, which should not be destroyed.

CANNING VEGETABLES

Vegetables, with the exception of tomatoes, are non-acid and are more difficult to can. Do not attempt to can vegetables that are not perfectly fresh, and before using any home-canned vegetables, with the exception of tomatoes, heat for fifteen minutes before tasting or eating. Cook vegetables from 5 to 10 minutes before putting in the jars and use the water to fill up the jars. Fill the jars to within ½ inch of the top and fill with liquid to within ½ inch of the top. Corn and peas should be packed to only 1 inch from the top to allow for swelling, but fill with liquid to ½ inch from top. Process the jars in an oven of 300 degrees for 3 hours for quarts and 2 hours for pints. A mixture of vegetables for soup may be done in this way.

BISCUIT MIX

6 Cups flour, 4 tablespoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, ¾ cup shortening.

Sift the dry ingredients and rub in the shortening. Store in a covered tin can in a cool, dry place. Use as required for biscuits or desserts, adding milk to make the dough. This mix is a time-saver.

FRENCH MUSTARD

1 Egg beaten, 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons mustard, 1 scant cup vinegar.

Mix the sugar and mustard, add a little vinegar and rub smooth, adding the remainder of the vinegar lowly. Stir in the egg, and cook in the double boiler until thickened.

ROTUND TOMATOES SHOULDN'T DRESS AS STRING BEANS

Women Ought to Study Their Types in Choosing Clothes, Reminds New York Expert, Telling How It's Done

By Dorothy Roe,
Associated Press Fashion Writer

If you're the string-bean type, don't try to look like an artichoke.

If you're a round tomato, don't spend time envying your willowy sisters — just dress to suit your type.

That's the gist of the advice to off-size females offered by Fira Benenson, top-flight Now York designer, whose job is to play up her customers' good points, minimize their bad ones.

I cornered the talented Fira for a recent lunch-hour, and over our salad plates she divulged a few secrets for figure flattering clothes. Said she, with that touch of Russian accent which seasons her speech:

"Tall girls should not try to look short. It can't be done. They should play up their height — dramatize it. Fat girls can't look thin, but they can have clothes that will put their figures in proportion. Short girls shouldn't depend on platform shoes — if they watch their clothes they won't look dumpy, even standing on the ground."

Miss Benenson holds the human figure should be considered as a square — from the dressmaker's point of view. A woman with narrow shoulders and wide hips must have her shoulders built out to conform — so that a straight line can be drawn from shoulder-tip to hip-line.

A girl with a large, round face should choose a wide, square neckline instead of the usual V-neck This minimizes the size of her face, balances the areas.

A girl who looks well in severly tailored clothes shouldn't try to go frilly, and the dainty, ultra-feminine girl should stick to her type, and not yearn for mannish tailleurs.

GUARDING RATION BOOKS

London (CP) — The British Government isn't taking any chances of a new issue of identity cards and combined food, personal and clothing ration books getting into the wrong hands. Special security measures have been adopted to guard the documents and supervise their distribution.

REMAKE CLOTHES? BRITONS HAVE TO

Side-line Dressmakers Right Out in Public Shops These Days, and Plenty of Work

London (CP) — The little dressmaker who once worked almost secretly at home for a few shillings a day, is doing much better right out in public shops as British women are forced increasingly into remade clothes.

The work-at-home seamstress had plenty of jobs for poor pay before the war. The vicar's daughter, the colonel's daughter or even the duke's daughter might have "home-made" dresses. But it was seldom that their best friends knew it because it didn't do to have it known that the debutante's gowns didn't come from a smart courturier or that her ladyship was bulging a bit and her Paris models had to let out.

But now all classes come to the little dressmaker for help in stretching war-weary wardrones and even complete for her services.

Gifted

Marcelle Barthe had the distinction of setting the pattern for women announcers on the Canadian air, and a very chic model she is. Mlle. Barthe has now attained new honcrs in broadcasting, having been appointed recently to the production staff of CBC's Montreal studios — but she continues to announce several programs directed especially to women listeners. She joined CBC in 1941, her hobby is history, she speaks several languages, is a proficient pianist, and can present a song in highly acceptable manner.

"Mallocclusion" Of the Teeth

Malocclusion is a technical term used to designate the abnormal occlusion of the teeth. When teeth do not come together properly, they are said to be malocclucded.

There are many different kinds of malocclusion. Some are characterized by crooked or irregular teeth. In some cases, the lower jaw is underdeveloped and the lower teeth are too far back. In other cases, the lower jaw and teeth are too far forward. There are many variations of the types mentioned, some of which are accompanied by a marked facial deformity.

Malocclusion of the teeth is much more common among civilized races than it is among the more primitive and uncivilized tribes. It is believed that the difference in diet may be partly responsible for this. Primitive people eat course, rough food that requires thorough chewing, which contributes to normal growth of the jaws.

Rickets may likewise cause deformity of the jaws and malocclusion. Other deseases of childhood, such as scarlet fever, measles, chickenpox and smallpox, may hinder jaw development in the child.

Some of the other more common causes of malocclusion are thumb and finger sucking, lip and tongue biting, mouth breathing and the presence of enlarged tonsils and adenoids.

The premature loss of the baby teeth and the early loss of the first permanent molar teeth are also frequent causes.

Retaining the baby teeth on their roots long after they are supposed to be shed may cause malocclusion. Deformities are becoming common. Many of them could be avoided by proper food habits and especially by the systematic care of the baby teeth, which should be preserved not only because of their importance in mastication, but also because of their function in preserving the proper form of dental arch.

ARMLESS HEROINE RUNS SWITCHBOARD

Girl Who Lost Limbs in Nazi Raid on Britain Is Back on Job

London (CP) — An 18-year-old telephone operator who lost both arms and was badly burned during an air-raid three years ago is going back to her old job at the switchboard — manipulating calls with the aid of artificial limbs.

The amazing story of her heroic fight through 20 operations was told recently by Dr. H. B. Morgan, who attended her. The girl's name and address were not disclosed, however. She was determined to return to work, but physicians as well as her employers said it seemed impossible.

Finally a solution was found. An artificial limb manufacturing expert studied the type of work she was doing and after months of experiments devised a special extension fitting for her right arm and a miniature "billiard cue rest" for the other.

Now she can plug in telephone cords and operate dial buttons as well as ever.

WOMEN BRASS HATS

London (CP) — The Auxiliary Territorial Service has invaded the last jealously guarded preserve of the army, the General Staff. More than 20 A.T.S. "Brass Hats" have replaced army officers in third-grade staff jobs.

POTATO UPLIFT? OLD TIMER GLAD

On Same Plane Now as Oranges and Apples; Post-War World Will Be Better, He Says

By The Canadian Press

This war is going to change our notions about a lot of things remarked Old Timer at the market the other day. Before it's over we're going to realize that things we used to look on lightly because they were common were a heap more important than we thought. He had in mind potatoes.

"Now whoever would of figured the spud would be something hard to get, with a steep price on it?" Old Timer went on.

"Now I don't know how much the black market plague had to do with it, but the fact is a body can't lay his hands on a good spud nowadays lest he's got money and influence.

"But you know in a way I'm kind of glad about it. We had took on awful satisfied ways about the potato. You could buy 'em by the sackload anywhere. We scalloped 'em, we fried 'em, we boiled 'em and we baked 'em. If they was any left over the chickens got it. The place was simply running over with spuds, and we paid no more mind to 'em than we do the neighbor's kids.

"But now the potato is on the same plane with the orange and the apple, both in price and social standing. Well, that's the way it should of been all the time.

"A post-war world with a better respect for the spud is bound to be a better world."

W.A. Meeting

At a recent meeting of the ladies of Trinity Church W.A. it was decided that a fund be started for the endowment and maintenance of the graveyard. It is hoped this movement to honor and perpetuate the memory of the pioneers will meet with the support necessary for its success. The historic old church is already in good order; but the condition of the cemetery leaves much to be desired, and the ladies are hoping that their efforts may result in the churchyard being in keeping with the rest of the church property.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. P. Mount have returned to Foster, after a short vacation spent at their cottage here.

The storms and heavy rains have delayed farmers and gardeners here in their spring work.

Mr. Davies has sold his cottage to Mr. Nichols, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Bindon with their two children, and Miss Bindon are at their residence here for some time.

Mrs. Abner Kingman, of Montreal, was the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. Allan E. Mount and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Legg last week.

The visit of the Health Unit clinic to our school is awaited by the pupils with mixed feelings.

The rationing of gas and tires are a handicap to many of the cottage folk. With the absence of our young men at munitions, or on military duties, this little community promises to be quieter than usual.

Morin Heights

Ladies' Guild Meeting

The Ladies' Guild of Trinity Church met at the home of Mrs. H. G. Baugh on Thursday afternoon.

A beautifully embroidered luncheon set in cross-stitch, donated by Mrs. H. Jekill, of Montreal, was displayed to the ladies, and it was decided to auction this at the birthday tea being held on July 7.

It was agreed that a strong effort be made to improve the appearance of the local cemetery, and the members pledged their full support.

The epidemic of measles is gradually subsiding, and the local folks now feel much freer to circulate in the village.

The "Army Movie Show", held in Davis' Hall on Wednesday evening under the auspices of Trinity Guild, was well patronized.

The Late Alice Smale

The death occurred on Wednesday, June 9, of Alice Shaw, beloved wife of Frank Smale, of Morin Heights, in her 63rd year.

Funeral service was held on Friday afternoon in Trinity Anglican Church, with Mr. H. G. Baugh officiating. . . , Mr. Smale is the sole survivor.

UNCENSORED !

For several months we've been speculating on the whereabouts of a friend of ours who is an officer in the Canadian Army . . . We've just received a letter, written at Christmas, which makes everything quite clear (?). Strangely enough, it was passed by the censor without deletions, so it is undoubtedly O.K. to reproduce it here.

Christmas, Somewhere with the Canadian Army.
Date: See Your Calendar.

A Christmas Hello:

I undertake to forward my Christmas Greetings only after having checked with the rules and regulations relative to censors and censorship as are in effect here. In keeping with the restrictions our letter unfurls itself as you shall read in the subsequent paragraphs.

First of all allow me to put you at ease by stating in clear, undeniable truth, that we arrived here safely, as do all people who reach here.

Before we left where we were, for here, we hadn't the slightest idea that our trip would ultimately find us arriving here from there. However, after we had left where we were, in what we left by, and after travelling a given number of days — that cannot be confused with the number of nights — we found ourselves arriving here and our transfer completed.

The weather here is just as it is today, in fact, the weather is as it should be at this time of year in this country. Now, that means this is quite unlike the weather where we were just before we came here.

Without being imprudent and divulging the exact location of our assignment, the land and air here are just the same as they would be in the part of the merry hemisphere where we were formerly.

The mention of distance is taboo but may your anxiety be relieved in the knowledge that from there to here, one way, is exactly the same as it is from here to there, one way. Isn't that coincidental?

Concerning our clothing: We were obliged to bring along all that we wear here, as what is worn here we never wore there, and what is worn here takes the place of what we wore there. Yes, you are correct in concluding that you people there and we people here are at present wearing clothing that is not similar.

This time here, is the same time that we had there, only it differs somewhat. That is to say, the time we left there was like the time it was here, but it is not the same time. I mean of course, at the same time.

I might say that the inhabitants here understand the language they speak very well. Their mode of dress is just the thing that you would see if you were to see them in snapshots taken here. But no photography is permitted, so no pictures. Their homes are not like the homes we left behind us but here we shall remain until we go elsewhere.

Well, now that you know that we are where we are . . . safe and in good health. Hoping you are the same and that yours shall be a —

Herd sire of the Jerseys at this farm is North River Lady's Knight, a grandson of the famous bull, Standard of Oaklands; on his grandmother's side this fine beast traces back to the renowned Lord of the Isle.

The Aberdeen Angus stock are all from the C.P.R. herd of Coaldale, Alta., which was recently dispersed. These mostly trace back to Middlebrook Prince 33rd. The sire of Dr. McCall's herd here is Middlebrook Prince 91st.

New Trophy for Ayrshires

A new trophy for Ayrshire exhibits was donated this year by Mrs. Fowler McCormick, who was here in person to attend the fair, and the only American exhibitor. The award is known as the Glen Urquhart Trophy, and will become the property of the exhibitor winning it three times at the Fair.

Other Breeds

Geo. McGibbon, Lachute, was the only exhibitor of Dairy Shorthorns, while Donat Roy, St. Jerome, brought the only entry in Canadian cattle.

Holsteins Well Represented

There were several good showings in the Holstein classes, Wilson brothers being the leading exponents from this community. Their beast took Junior Champion, Senior Champion and Grand Champion in female classes, and second for bull — their herd sire being Prince Posch Bonhear, bred by Hopkins Brothers., Ottawa, and grandson of the noted Montvic Pathfinder.

J. Vaillancourt, Glen Roy, Ont., was winner of the Junior, Senior and Grand Champion male in this breed, while P. A. Munroe, Maxville, Ont., took awards with several fine groups.

Other exhibitors in this breed were G. W. Allman, Carillon, L. C. Lefaivre, Vankleek Hill, and John Meyer, Lachute.

FINE PORTRAYAL BY BETTE DAVIS IN 'NOW, VOYAGER'

Bette Davis has excelled herself as Charlotte Vale in "Now Voyager," which appears at the Capitol, Brownsburg, next Sunday and Monday. Her acting is a psychological study of rare intelligence and beauty.

Miss Davis sets out to portray the role of a neurotic Boston spinster, the victim of a tyrannical mother. The story concerns the odyssey whereby Charlotte Vail threw off those shackles and became a normal and attractive woman again.

Of course it is done by way of love. But this is no ordinary love. What happens is that Charlotte consults a psychiatrist, who first makes her improve her physical appearance, then ships her off on a cruise. Aboard ship she meets Jerry Durrance, who is unhappily married. The romance takes place amid the beauties of Rio de Janeiro and Charlotte is a changed woman.

But Jerry cannot desert his wife, so Charlotte finds her ultimate salvation in making over his child which his wife doesn't want, adopt her and convincing herself that thus she and Jerry have found the great thing they have in common. It may sound unconvincing on paper, but it is very sincere and touching as acted out by Miss Davis, Paul Henried, Bonita Granville and Gladys Cooper.

It is Miss Davis' picture from start to finish. She begins by using makeup, and it isn't pretty makeup either. But even when she is "beautified" she still manages to convey a sense of premature age and frustration. That in itself is a feat. As the picture proceeds, Miss Davis by facial expression and attitude gives you Charlotte becoming gradually younger, handsomer and more vigorous.

Welcome in peace... more welcome in war work

WAR production needs are pressing. No time can be wasted on the job. Rest-pauses planned and timed are the efficient way to make every minute count. They lessen tension, break monotony, and increase output. Add refreshment to a rest-pause and you promote worker-contentment.

Ice-cold Coca-Cola is refreshment that does more than quench thirst. Drink it and you feel and enjoy a refreshing after-sense. Its clean, exciting taste always pleases, never tires. Coca-Cola offers that extra something for contentment.

* * *

Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things . . . a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.

You work better when you are contented on the job. Remember, contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

The best is always the better buy!

Bill Adopted to Lower Age Limit for Driver's License

39-9 Vote for Bill on Sugar Beet Industry, Follows Marathon Debate

The Week at Quebec

By D'Arcy O'Donnell,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, June 23 (CP)— Quebec's 21st Legislature headed toward prorogation today of the fourth wartime session after an opposition filibuster prevented completion of the session work last week.

The filibuster ended when the House passed, by a vote of 39-9, a bill that would permit the creation of a corporation to handle the affairs of a sugar-beet factory which the government plans to operate at St. Hilaire, about 25 miles east of Montreal. The Opposition fought against the bill for three days and during a marathon sitting of more than 37 hours.

Study of the bill began last Thursday and immediately the fight was on. Opposition Leader Maurice Duplessis said there were "irregularities, scandal and illegalities" in the government's organization of the sugar-beet industry. "This scandalous scheme," he said, "which was to have cost $150,000 originally, has already cost $1,025,000 to date and will have cost more than $3,000,000 by the time it is finally finished."

Premier Godbout said that "there is absolutely no scandal about this venture, which was carried out, at all times, as economically and honestly as possible." When completed, he said, the factory will cost about $2,500,000 and will have a capacity to handle between 140,000 and 150,000 tons of beets per year. The factory will cost less than similar factories built in peacetime in Ontario and Manitoba, he said.

The government, the Premier added, wished to create a corporation to handle the affairs of the factory until it could be placed in the hands of a farmers' co-operative. Sugar refineries, he stated, are opposed to the building of the factory, and farmers, unaccustomed to business transactions, might not know how to meet competition from the "sugar trusts." The government wished to assume all risks until the factory was running smoothly.

These arguments did not satisfy Mr. Duplessis. He fought the bill tooth and nail through Thursday's sittings. Friday the House began sitting at 11 a.m., E.D.T., and except for brief breaks it did not adjourn till after 12.10 a.m. Sunday. Throughout the sitting the opposition blocked passage of the sugar beet bill.

Mr. Duplessis remained at his seat throughout the filibuster and spoke almost 50 times during the marathon debate. One of his speeches lasted two hours. About 11 Opposition members rallied around him and gave him breathers by reading anything they could find dealing with sugar-beets. The members, however, took turns in going to the legislature cafe for snacks.

Premier Godbout and his government supporters had things a little easier. They let the Opposition carry on the debate and just listened. Enough government supporters were kept in the House to defeat the Opposition should a vote be suddenly called. Some managed to get in a few hours sleep and return to relieve others. By midnight Saturday all admitted they were worn out and that they had heard enough about sugar-beets.

When the House resumed its sittings Monday the bill came up again but after another debate of several hours it was adopted. The bill was then sent to the Legislative Council, provincial upper house, where it had to receive three readings before it could be given Royal assent.

Before tackling the sugar-beet bill, the Houses adopted a bill to clarify the rights of municipalities governed by the Cities and Towns Act to impose a tax on immovable or movable machinery. The bill will not affect Montreal or Quebec or any municipality governed by the Municipal Code.

Also adopted was a bill authorizing the government to set up a three-man commission to study a health insurance plan for the province. Premier Godbout said the plan will be submitted to the Legislature at its next session and then the commissioners would be asked to administer the plan.

"The commission will be created," the Premier said, "because the government wants to adopt a plan that will really meet all the needs of the province. It will be created because we don't want the federal government to come and impose on us a plan that will not meet the needs of the province where we have large families in abundance."

Still another bill adopted would reduce from 18 to 17 the minimum age at which a car driver's licence may be obtained. Licences will be given to 17-year-olds who obtain the written permission of their parents and who pass a driving test. The same bill would regulate bicycle traffic on highways. It would force cyclists to keep in bicycle tracks where they exist and to the side of the road where they don't exist.

Final reading also was given a bill aimed at encouraging the employment of the blind. The government will assume the greater part of any compensation that would have to be paid to a blind workman who suffers an accident. The government would pay any compensation exceeding $50 to an injured blind man who was working in a position approved by a recognized institute of the blind.

The bill to protect the property of members of the armed forces from seizure also was adopted.

Canvassing in B'burg For Appeal of Greek War Relief Fund

Brownsburg — At a meeting of citizens held Friday evening at the Social Club, the campaign of the Greek War Relief Fund was organized locally. The canvassers of the 4th Victory Loan offered their services as collectors for this needy and urgent appeal. The meeting extended the deadline of the campaign to next Monday evening, when final reports will be made by the canvassers at the Social Club rooms.

PREMISES FOR BLOOD CLINIC IN AUDITORIUM

To Partition and Equip Rooms in Basement for Purpose of Clinic

LIONS SOLICITING DONORS

Definite steps toward establishing a local blood donor service for the Red Cross Society were taken at a meeting held in the town hall last Friday afternoon.

Those present included the following representatives of Lachute Red Cross — Mrs. Geo. Y. Deacon, president, Mrs. Geo. H. Héon, Mrs. A. Bothwell, Mrs. F. A. Brennian, Mrs. G. G. Mitchell, Mrs. R. Courtien, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham; and Dr. W. FitzGerald, Gordon McOuat and J. S. Giles representing the Lions Club.

Major D. J. Corrigall, D.S.O., M.C., who is commissioner for the Quebec Division of the Society, was in attendance and gave the necessary information and instructions. A visit was afterwards made to the Auditorium, the basement of which will be partitioned off into rooms suited for the purpose of a blood donor clinic.

Members of the Lions Club have sponsored the enrolment of donors and will immediately proceed with their work in securing names of those who will donate their blood.

The service presents an unusual opportunity to give service for our brothers-in-arms. There is no more dramatic sight than to see a man who is at the point of death brought back to life by a transfusion — but it takes the blood of five individual donors for one such transfusion.

AT CONFERENCE OF FARM FORUMS

The third annual conference of the Quebec Council of Farm Forums was held at Macdonald College on Saturday, when representatives gathered from all districts where Farm Forums met during the past winter — Chateauguay-Huntingdon, the Eastern Townships, Argenteuil County, and the Ottawa Valley. Those attending from this section were Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bothwell, Mrs. Bruce Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Armstrong.

The idea of the sessions was to evaluate the past season's program and to make plans for the future. Officers were elected, and following a helpful series of discussions, a tour was made of Macdonald College grounds and properties.

AIMS OF PRICE CONTROL TOLD TO MERCHANTS

W.P.T.B. Official Gives Some Helpful Views and Ideas for Retailers

MEETING HELD TUESDAY

A meeting of special interest to merchants was held in the Auditorium here Tuesday evening.

The speaker was Mr. J. Provost, who dealt with matters pertaining to the work of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and urged methods for the elimination of waste, simplification of stocks, reduction of credit sales, conservation of electricity, pooling and minimizing of deliveries, reduction of store hours, installation of self-service, analysis of advertising and the keeping of adequate records.

The history of the W.P.T.B. was also briefly reviewed, and the purpose for which it was formed, namely to combat the wartime evil of inflation. This, of necessity, involved price control; but such controls inevitably proved upsetting to distribution, and as a result some measure of supply or distribution control had to be developed as a second function of the Board.

The speaker said the Management Service acts as a liaison between the retailer and the Board.

The purpose of the meeting was to impress retailers with the necessity of adjusting their course of business in order to survive the national crisis.

The meeting was presided over by Mayor J. S. Giles, and following the address an informal discussion proved highly profitable. In this discussion Mr. Jules Perrault, Consultant of Management Service, Montreal, also took part.

Boys' Brigade to Camp at B'burg

Brownsburg — A contingent of the Boys' Brigade, under Capt. Lough and Lieut. Robinson, of Montreal, will arrive this week for two weeks' under canvas, on the farm grounds of Mr. Frank Vowles. The boys of the Brigade, together with the local troops of Boy Scouts and Cubs, will attend service at the United Church next Sunday morning. The Brigade will hold a drum-head service at their camp grounds on Sunday evening following the services at the churches. The public are invited to attend.

The great man is intent upon his work; the little man upon his reputation.

Final Returns Given on Argenteuil Fourth Victory Loan Campaign

Over Million-and-Half Dollars Subscribed in County Districts

Comparison With Previous Efforts

The following communication, released today to committee members of the 4th Victory Loan Organization for Argenteuil, gives a gratifying report on the campaign in this section. The final figures, with a comparison of previous Victory Loan records here, make interesting reading:—

Dear Sirs: We are pleased to submit final statistics of Argenteuil's part in Canada's 4th Victory Loan Campaign.

Through the sincere efforts of its salesmen and committee members, Argenteuil once again exceeded its objective. Our county, in fact, led all 23 units of the north-western region in General Sales volume. We all may be justly proud of such an accomplishment.

Your attention is drawn to the increased participation from the 1st through the 4th Victory Loan by the citizens of Argenteuil — from 1,546 to 5,783 subscribers. Many small subscriptions add up to an impressive total, and that is the secret of our success.

On behalf of the Argenteuil County Executive Committee we wish to thank most sincerely everyone who contributed to the success of the recent campaign in Argenteuil.

(Signed) Clement Tremblay,

Bishop of Montreal Attends Unveiling Ceremony, Christ Church, Mille Isles

RESIGNATION OF PASTOR, MR. H. G. BAUGH, ANNOUNCED WITH REGRET; LEAVING DIOCESE FOR NEW BRUNSWICK

Mille Isles — The Right Reverend John Dixon, Bishop of Montreal, was guest preacher at Christ Church on Sunday afternoon, when the municipal roll of honor was unveiled and dedicated. Chief Justice Bond, of the Supreme Court, and Chancellor of the Diocese of Montreal, officiated at the unveiling ceremony, while a guard of honor from M.D. No. 4 Recruiting Centre, under Lieut.-Col. Walter H. Scott, was in attendance.

The Bishop praised the Mille Isles people for their loyalty to the church, and expressed profound regret at Mr. H. G. Baugh's decision to leave the diocese. He made official announcement to the effect that Mr. Baugh would preach his farewell sermon at his various churches on Sunday, July 18, in order that he may assume his new work in the Province of New Brunswick on August 1. In addition, His Lordship referred to the magnificent work done by Mr. Baugh during the last few years. The Bishop's staff-bearer was his son, Peter. The scripture was read by the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, of Lakefield, and evening prayer was said by Mr. H. G. Baugh.

Another gift dedicated was the organ, a donation by Col. G. M. Strong, D.S.O. Organist for the occasion was Mrs. Allan Buxton, and the soloist was Mrs. T. Buxton.

Camp Tamaracouta was represented by various Boy Scout leaders from Montreal, while many prominent municipal and county officials, and Army and C.W.A.C. representatives attended.

Highway traffic was effectively handled by two special traffic officers despatched from Montreal. The large crowd was unable to find seating accommodation in the church, but the weather was favorable and many were able to hear the service through the open windows.

A profusion of peonies, spring flowers, and Empire flags decorated the church.

Following the service a reception was held at the home of Col. and Mrs. G. M. Strong, in Cambria. Mrs. K. S. Barnes presided at the tea table. Among those attending were the Bishop and his son, Peter Dixon, Chief Justice Bond, Lieut.-Col. Walter Scott and Mrs. Scott, Mrs. A. K. Huguessen, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Baugh, the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Watchorn and daughter, Barbara, Mr. J. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. G. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Patterson, all the members of the guard of honor, and many other friends.

D.F.M. Awarded to Hawkesb'y Airman

Sgt. Larry M. Holtby, son of J. W. Holtby, Hawkesbury, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal while serving overseas, R.C.A.F. headquarters announced last week.

The following citation accompanied his award: "As bomb aimer Sergeant Holtby has done exceptionally good work. He has taken part in many operational sorties attacking such heavily defended targets as Hamburg, Essen, Mannheim and Cologne. This airman's keenness and determination have always been of the highest order while his courage and devotion to duty in the face of heavy opposition have set a splendid example to all other airerews."

He was among those mentioned as taking part in a great two-pronged aerial offensive against Berlin and objectives in the Ruhr during the night of March 29.

—A sister of Sgt. Holtby, Miss Faith V. Holtby, is attached to the Bank of Montreal staff in Lachute, while his father is well known to local curling enthusiasts.

BOMBER PILOT HOME, INJURED IN AIR ATTACK

Flt. Sgt. Claude Therrien, of the R.C.A.F., well-known local boy, is back from overseas, and is enjoying a well-deserved leave before entering hospital for a major operation, necessitated by wounds suffered while on a bombing expedition over Stuttgart, Germany.

While he was serving as co-pilot on a Halifax bomber, Therrien's craft was hit in a banking operation; the plane somersaulted and Therrien's head struck the top of the cockpit, causing severe head injuries which rendered him unconscious.

Fortunately his co-pilot, Sgt. Green, from British Columbia, who later was decorated with the D.F.M. for his exploit, righted the plane at 800 feet altitude, and the bomber finally reached England minus one motor. Therrien was picked up in an ambulance at the landing-field, and recovered consciousness three days afterwards, comfortably installed in a base hospital where he received the best of specialized medical care and attention.

Flt. Sgt. Therrien was sent back to Canada to regain his health and submit to a head operation which is recognized by medical authorities to be serious in character. He travelled on a fast passenger-liner and the trip was uneventful.

Therrien's record of operational flights covers such well-known enemy territory as Berlin, Kiel, Essen, Dusseldorf, Stuttgart, Florence and Turin.

His many friends here will wish him a speedy recovery.

MILL OWNER TO REBUILD PLANT AT BROWNSB'G

Business Men Have Sponsored Trust Fund to Assist Mayor J. D. Lepine

APPRECIATION FOR HELP

Mayor J. D. Lepine, of Brownsburg, who met with heavy loss last week when torrential rains flooded the Dalesville River and swept away his sawmill and factory, has expressed a desire, through the medium of The Watchman, to thank all those who rallied to his assistance in this misfortune. Mr. Lepine voiced a sentiment to the effect that it was "almost worth going through such an experience" to fully appreciate his friends and their ready help and sympathy in emergency.

Soon after the incident suggestions were advanced to circulate a subscription list, but with commendable pride Mr. Lepine discouraged the idea, stating that "he was yet a young man in full vigor and health, his devoted wife and family had been spared to him, while so many in the war zones had suffered much greater losses."

While appreciating this kind gesture on the part of his fellow citizens, he felt he would like to start anew and rebuild his business.

Fully appreciative of this spirit, a committee of responsible citizens from Brownsburg and Lachute worked out another plan, by which a select list of business men have been pleased to furnish a trust fund, now on deposit in the Brownsburg bank, which will enable Mayor Lepine to carry on with reconstruction.

—It is suggested, it would be a further gesture of co-operation if those indebted to Mr. Lepine would call and settle their accounts without further solicitation.

Echoes of Storm In These Parts

Following is a news report from Hawkesbury dated Thursday, June 17:

Children were swimming on one of the streets of this town tonight as flood conditions resulting from four days of almost continuous rain appeared to be becoming more serious. In Hawkesbury's east end, residents are using boats to get to and from their homes.

Sewers have been unable to handle the heavy rainfall. Laurier Avenue is under 3½ feet of water, and children have been using the thoroughfare as a swimming pool. Three blocks on Main Street are flooded, and several families have moved to the second storeys of their homes.

Laurentian Railway Lines Blocked by Washouts

At Le Cordon and St. Antoine ranges, north and south-east, respectively, of St. Jerome, 75-foot washouts resulting from Tuesday's rainstorm halted C.P.R. service through St. Jerome, although service from Montreal to St. Jerome continued in operation. One daily local was run between Shawbridge and Mont Laurier.

The washouts also halted road travel on Route 41, leading to Ste. Sophie, and both old and new highways 11, but Provincial Police said passage was being made on another, older highway to get by the danger points.

It was expected rail schedules would be restored early on Sunday.

Keeping the Mediterranean Supply Routes Open

Hoisting out the Oropesa float on board a British minesweeper in the Mediterranean. In clearing the Mediterranean routes of mines to make a way for Allied convoys and supplies, the crews of these small ships are doing one of the most important and most dangerous jobs of the war.

Ruling on Claim, Ste. Rose Bridge

The Quebec Public Service Board after a long hearing, reached a decision which awarded the Plessis-Belair Bridge Company an idemnity of $109,899 for the bridge, which crosses the Mille Iles River near the village of St. Rose.

The bridge, formerly a toll bridge, was expropriated by the Quebec Government July 1, 1940, and the company was offered $109,389 for the structure and approaches thereto. The company, however, demanded the sum of $2,387,093.

Action to recover the amount resulted in the Superior Court referring the issue to the Public Service Board.

Judgment, signed by the President, authorizes payment to the company of $109,899 which is $501 in excess of the Government's offer and $2,279,194 less than the company asked for in the first instance. In addition, the Board granted $2,500 as costs for the experts who gave evidence before the Board.

CLAIM OUT-DATED LAWS AGGRAVATE HOUSING SHORTAGE

Horse and Buggy By-Laws Prevent Building of Firesafe, Attractive Homes

Horse and buggy by-laws still enforced by many Canadian municipalities are responsible at least in part for the serious housing shortage in Canada today, in the opinion of building experts. These ancient pieces of legislation, adopted back in the horse and buggy days when modern low-cost materials were not available and when fire protection was inadequate, have been kept on the books because of prejudice and, in some cases, self-interest.

A complete revision of prejudiced by-laws and obsolete building codes is needed in Canada, Lionel Scott, director of tenant relations for Wartime Housing Limited, the government company responsible for construction and operation of emergency houses for war industries, declares. And, he adds, "the law which insists on the use of steel in many buildings in Toronto, for instance, and prohibits the use of wood, even though statistics prove that proper wood construction has a lower fire hazard than ordinary brick construction — this regulation is due to successful 'lobbying' by interested parties."

In communities such as Montreal, Verdun, London, Ont., Kitchener, Stratford and many others, authorities point out, building codes prohibit frame construction with exterior application of insulated sidings which are entirely firesafe. Sometimes by-laws call for use of brick or brick veneer, when asphalt sidings would be much safer and much more efficient.

A summary of some of the more ridiculous by-laws in Canadian municipalities is now being made in an effort to break this chain of codes which is restricting building to a considerable degree and contributing to the present housing emergency.

No Time to Relax

It has been said by many great national leaders that they were at their best at the time of their countries' need. It has been very evident in this, the greatest crisis we have yet been called upon to face, that we have been blessed with brilliant and great leaders.

No one knows better than these same leaders that it is not only stirring words or valiant deeds that give us that essence to carry us to victory.

The man on the street has shown that he is completely clear in his mind about this one fact — that he would rather die as a free man than live as a slave.

Our civilians, sailors, soldiers and airmen have revealed a fortitude and courage that is a pride and inspiration to many peoples, and we have proven that we are equal to the challenge of stress or emergency.

With the progress of the war now forming a definite pattern, and the ways and means of ultimate victory becoming clearer day by day, there is a natural tendency to relax.

In a total war of the type that we are now engaged in, such action is fatal, as it is only by a sustained all-out effort on the part of every citizen that the forces against which we are set can be reduced to terms of unconditional surrender.

Anything that would hinder or destroy this unanimity must be removed. It is for this reason that this, the latest crop of rumors set to confuse our thoughts and lower our morale, are exposed.

Rumor: "Rationing is just a device used by Cottrelle to put all the other gasoline companies out of business and leave a clear field for Imperial Oil."

Fact: Hon. C. D. Hode, Minister of Munitions and Supply: "The Oil Controller is not now and never has been an official of an oil company. Further, he has not now and never has had any financial holdings in an oil company. Further, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, with which Mr. Cottrelle has been associated for many years, has not now and never has had an account with an oil company. The administration of gasoline rationing does not favor one oil company as against another, but affects all in equal measure."

• • •

Rumor: "At the Arsenal at St. Malo, Que., the necessary gasoline will be given to employees who spend the summer in the country, even if their country home is at 20 to 40 miles from the city and they can travel by rail or bus. It would appear from this that gasoline is not scarce. Then why do they refuse workmen who need gasoline to earn their living?

Fact: Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply: "Gasoline rationing is administered on the basis of individual need. Transportation to and from a country home is not regarded in any sense as coming within the category of a need. Accordingly, no allowance is made by the rationing officers for such purposes. No arrangement has been made at the Quebec Arsenal for the issuance of coupons to persons who have country homes. All ration books are issued by the regional controllers, and in no case by the Arsenal or other war industries."

Rumor: "I understand that smuggled American cigarettes and radios are destroyed by the Customs Department and the R.C.M.P. Couldn't some use be made of these?"

Fact: H. A. R. Gagnon, R.C.M.P., Montreal: "Smuggled American cigarettes and radios are not destroyed by either the Customs or R.C.M.P. This practice was followed before the war with respect to cigarettes because the duty and taxes ordinarily payable would make the American cigarettes far too expensive, and therefore unsaleable.

Most smuggled radios do not meet with the requirements of the Board of Electrical Examiners, such radios not being equipped with a condenser, thus making it dangerous from a fire prevention viewpoint. Any radios that did pass the requirements were offered for sale by tender.

Since the war, neither cigarettes nor radios have been destroyed. The Department of National Revenue has instructed, that all cigarettes be forwarded to the Red Cross who in turn, send the cigarettes to our troops overseas. Likewise, the Department orders that smuggled radios be handed over for instructional work of the Armed forces; in the Montreal area, for example, all radios are donated to the R.C.A.F. Wireless School on the distinct understanding that the sets are immediately dismantled and the parts used in the Laboratories only."

GROWING GRASS TO COW'S TASTE

By B. Leslie Emslie

Whether grazed or cured as hay, grasses are more palatable and nutritious when their fibre content is low. This means management of the grazing and cutting of the hay crop before it becomes too mature and fibrous. If under-stocked pastures get out of control and the grasses become so tall and woody that stock avoid them, the mower should be run over the field. Young, succulent shoots will then spring from the roots. During the flush of grass in June it is often desirable to reserve a portion of the pasture land for hay, take an early crop and graze the aftermath.

The composition and palatability of grasses was the subject of an interesting study begun at the Massachusetts agricultural experiment station in 1931. The grasses selected for the test were Kentucky bluegrass, orchard grass, redtop, timothy, Rhode Island bent, sheep fescue and sweet vernal grass. There were also two legumes: white Dutch clover and Ladino clover. Two areas were used in the trials, one for determining composition of the grasses, the other for the palatability tests. A high state of fertility was maintained by the application of a suitable fertilizer in the spring of 1934, 1935 and 1936.

Samples of the herbage were analyzed monthly during the season, and assays of the vitamin A (carotene) content were made on all the grasses. Very slight variations in the nitrogen or protein content of the grasses were found. The clovers were naturally higher in this constituent. Orchard grass was highest in phosphorus, possibly because this grass may be able to utilize large quantities of the element when it is abundantly available in the soil. The clovers, being higher in moisture content, were the most succulent. Next in order stood sweet vernal grass, orchard grass and timothy.

The manner of conducting the palatability tests was to "clock" the time the cows spent in grazing on each individual plot in the series. In this respect timothy was given definite preference, while Kentucky bluegrass proved inferior to all except sheep fescue which was almost entirely neglected. In general the cows preferred grasses low in fibre but high in carotene qualities in the highest degree, especially in carotene content. The popular esteem in which timothy has been held for so long is fully justified by these disclosures.

Your Home Town and Mine

One of the most democratic institutions in modern Canadian life is the small town Main Street. IT IS an institution for it never changes — a few shiny store fronts, theatres and even traffic lights may modernize its surface, but the great, generous kindly heart of it beats as steadily today as it did 50 or 100 years ago.

The even tempo of small town life sometimes confuses city visitors. It takes an effort on their part to understand that the comparatively leisurely way of doing business on Main Street is not inefficient. They rarely realize that the merchant wouldn't sell a nickel's worth if he did not take time to manifest his genuine interest in the state of his customers' family, garden and health.

The Main Street community is quite unconscious of class distinctions as the world knows them. All classes, rich and poor are accepted into the circle. The qualifications are merely that the members feel a sense of belonging to the small town brotherhood, joy in their neighbors' success and sorrow in their failures.

This sharing of emotions is what confuses the city folk on Main Street. The slower pace of small town life gives time for the kindness at the bottom of every human heart to rise to the surface. Main Street, in this respect, is a close approximation of Rousseau's natural state. Here is the communal feeling of the French philosopher's natural man, the simple virtue that he eulogizes.

The boys and girls in the services have something behind them which no city-dweller can fathom. The Main Streeters in His Majesty's uniform know their personal sacrifices are appreciated in the home town, that their places will not be filled in a month or even a year, and that in case they fail to return, Main Street will grieve and in its heart will never cease to mourn the sons forever gone.

Main Street is the very hub of democracy, the essence of what the United Nations are defending. Main Street is within itself a way of life that is good and simple and kind. And if its steadfast heart should ever cease to beat, the Freedom we claim for Canada would be a dead and lifeless thing in the community.

Do It Now !

Making 1942 income tax returns well before the June 30 deadline should appeal to 2,000,000 Canadians for patriotic as well as personal reasons, because every cent of the estimated $1,824,000,000 accruing from this source brings final victory nearer.

The cost of collecting income taxes from all sources in the fiscal year 1939-40 was $1.85 for each $100, and in 1942-43 dropped to 40 cents. This year, although the amount derived is greater than the total from 1915 to 1939 inclusive, the cost may be further reduced — if returns are made promptly. A single cent on each $100 collected means a total saving of nearly $2,000,000, or $1 for every taxpayer.

Those who secure the proper forms from employer, post office or district inspector now will know just what information and receipts are needed. While the forms have been greatly simplified it would be folly for anyone to put the matter off until the last few days. Worth heeding, too, is the warning that returns not in by June 30th incur a penalty of 5 per cent., not just of the balance owing at June 30th but of the full tax.

In shaking off the old "catch-as-catch-can" for the new pay-as-you-earn plan, Canadians have welcomed cancellation of one-half of the 1942 tax liability on earned income. This means that most taxpayers will have a comparatively small balance to pay with their 1942 return. Many, in fact, will find they have an amount to their credit, in addition to the portion which will be refunded after the war with 2 per cent interest.

Sprinkle generously with War Savings and Victory Bonds. Bake in 90 degree temperature in summer and let cool below zero in winter. Serves 11,500,000 people.

The Essential Difference

His Grace the Anglican Archbishop of Toronto, Primate of Canada, is reported as saying to the synod that if there is enough money to finance a war there is enough to finance a peace. Probably the most frequent question coming from people who contrast war activity with a well-remembered industrial slump, is why we cannot find work for people in time of peace when we can find it in time of war.

Strange as it may seem, we, too, have thought about this. We think we have known the answer all along; our thinking has been an effort to find an illustration which makes the difference plain even to an archbishop. Isn't the difference that a good citizen will spend all his wealth and risk his life to save his home from destruction? Many a man who cannot raise $76.99 to have his home painted by the lowest bidder will count it cheap if he spends a great deal more to keep it from being bombed.

—The Printed Word

A sign in a General Motors plant:—"According to the theory of aerodynamics and, as may be readily demonstrated through wind tunnel experiments, the bumblebee is unable to fly. This is because the size, weight and shape of his body in relation to the total wingspread make flying impossible. . . . But the bumblebee, being ignorant of these scientific truths, goes ahead and flies anyway—and makes a little honey every day."

Vest-Pocket Farming

The battle between that doughty warrior, Jupiter Pluvius, and Old Sol has ended — in a knockout decision for the latter we hope — and Canada's victory gardens may be expected to bring forth their fruits in due season. Up and down the land, gardeners, amateur and otherwise, are doing a splendid job and if enthusiasm counts for anything, the harvest will be great.

All honor to the regulars, those hardy tillers of the soil whose efforts through the years have brought Canada to such a proud position in the world of agriculture. But today in wartime emergency we also take off our hats to the great army of mechanics, clerks, factory-workers and professional people who in the past few weeks have been digging so laboriously for victory.

Taking their cue from the workers of bomb-blitzed Britain, Canadian men and women in towns and cities point with pride to blistered hands when the engrossing topic of victory gardens comes up on the street, in the store or on the street-car. Not a grouch in a thousand such meetings, but broad, expansive smiles as our amateur digger spreads himself on the grand showing of lettuce in his back-yard or, often as not, in the waste plot across the road that he rented for the season for 25 cents.

We know flower gardens where the haughty lily and the delicate pansy vie for living space with the utilitarian "spud" and the honest cucumber. It's quite on the cards that the delphinium in your neighbor's front lawn border is ringed about with two or three tomato plants.

All of which goes to show that when there is a real job to do, the Canuck family goes at it in a big way. While young Johnny shoulders a rifle overseas in democracy's cause, his "old man" digs for victory at home, helps the government over a tough spot and incidentally gets a big kick out of it.

Conquering the U-Boat

The New York Times publishes a striking cartoon of the shade of Von Tirpitz looking down upon a dejected Hitler and saying to him: "I, too, counted on them." And certainly the U-boat's story takes on more and more resemblance to what befell them in 1917-18. This was, in 1917-18, when it looked as though old Tirpitz and his subs would win the war for Germany. Even Jellico at the Admiralty feared that the end had come, and the dauntless Lloyd George had his doubts. Yet by the middle of 1918 the convoys had beaten the subs, and sinkings fell off speedily.

History seems to be repeating. That is seen even by German claims since the first of the year. Thus:

January	522,000 tons
February	576,000 "
March	851,000 "
April	415,000 "
May	372,000 "

"You build them, and we'll sink them", Lord Haw Haw used to boast, the boast beamed to America. The boast is heard no longer.

"Aware of Things"

A barge skipper in his forties, who emigrated from Norway fifteen years ago, landing penniless in the United States, has just received a Bachelor of Science degree from City College, New York. He has studied while working as carpenter, glazier, ditch-digger, and freight pilot on the East River. And what deserves commendation in addition to his earning of his degree is his attitude toward education.

He says, "I don't ask the royal road to success from my education. I just want it to show me how to understand and be aware of things, that's all."

What an improved world this would be if all people saw in education, as its high reward, the ability "to understand and be aware of things", rather than a weapon to give them the edge on their fellows, or establish them socially, or earn them dollars.

If all institutions presented education in this light it would restore it to its fundamental position, dispel an exaggerated sense of academic routine, and decrease all the allure of the college course for those interested in material advantage alone.

While factual knowledge is useful it does not alone constitute education. What is infinitely more important is to become "aware of things," to desire to understand the rest of humanity and the world in which it lives.

Many Skills Required

Who said that farming is unskilled labor? To farm a man has to have at least a hundred skills. He has got to know as much as all the agricultural colleges' professors put together. He must know, not only how to milk a cow, but how to feed her so she will give milk. He must not only know how to act as midwife to a litter of 10 pigs, but also how to grow them into selects. He must have a working knowledge of machinery, from climbing 40 feet in the air to desqueak a windmill, to lowering himself 50 feet into the well to find out why the darned thing isn't delivering water into the trough. At ground level he must be a motor mechanic, a blacksmith, a carpenter and a good hand with the shotgun. He must fight a long line of enemies, from bacterial blight of potatoes to the coyotes, or even wolves, which want to feed on his turkeys and calves. He is expected to be able to quote the Bible, vote intelligently, serve on the council or school board, and in some cases get himself elected to parliament. He's got to be quite a man.

Below the Headlines

To repeat a well-worn word of caution: Don't glance at the headlines only, and then proceed on the assumption that you have kept up with your reading of the war news. As has been pointed out so often, even the most ingenious of heading writers on the daily newspaper staff have only so much space and so many letters to work with, and it stands to reason that it is not always possible to tell a complete story.

Intelligent appreciation of the news, whether it be concerned with a battle, a campaign or the price of some domestic commodity, must depend upon reasonably complete and intelligent reading thereof.

Dr. Marsh and Social Security

By R. J. DEACHMAN

I have just finished reading the Report on Social Security for Canada, commonly called the Marsh Report. I had read the summaries but the book is much better than the summaries.

It would be interesting to know how many have done the same. A Gallop Poll, recently taken, revealed the fact that most people have a rather hazy idea in regard to the whole matter. That is not in the least surprising. This, after all, is a busy world. Men as a rule mind their own business and it takes most of their time. Few find opportunity to consider matters of general interest — some, there are, who would not understand if they did.

It's a good document, well written, and logical. Once one accepts the premises, there is an inclination to believe. That is the highest tribute to good writing. I doubt if any other person in Canada could have written a better one. There is depth of conviction in his method. He has always believed in it. The story is that it was written in two weeks. Lucid thinking and clear statements do not flow so readily even from gifted minds. Perhaps it was put on paper in that time — it was written, in the mind of Dr. Marsh, over decades.

I do not agree with it. It is contrary to things I value in life. Rightly or wrongly I accept the idea that a coddled race will not go far. It may have been tough on Adam and Eve when they were kicked out of the Garden but we have a thousand things today we could never have developed if the human race had still been in Eden — perhaps we would never have missed them!

National Income

We do not need Social Security. There is a better and a wiser way. In the last chapter, dealing with "Financial Considerations," Dr. Marsh counts the cost. On page 117 appears this statement:

"The application of the 12½ per cent ratio to the Canadian national income as a whole would produce $1,000,000,000 or less, according as it was assumed that it will be possible to maintain present levels, or that some reduction from possibly war-inflated figures must be calculated for the first post-war years."

This assumes a national income of $8,000,000,000. On the same page appears this item:

"The national income which average around $3,800,000,000 in the twenties and thirties is nearer $8,000,000,000 today. Even if some temporary reduction is to be anticipated on the grounds that unit-costs of war goods are higher than those of peace goods, it would be reasonable to assume levels of post-war national income which are more than twice as high as those of the years of depression: 10 - 12½ per cent of these levels for social security disbursements would be a reasonable commitment."

I find it difficult to assume a real national income of anything like $8,000,000,000. The highest previous peacetime income was $4,718,000,000, in 1929. We enter a war, we spend our labor and resources in destructive effort, and come back after four, five or more years of war with say ten or twelve billion of debt and the assumption by Dr. Marsh of national income $4,200,000,000 more than the average of the 1920's and '30's. Unbelievable!

What's our past record? A brief table will show the changes:

National Income — Sample Years
1926	$4,080 million
1929	4,718 "
1933	2,632 "
1937	3,814 "
1940	4,411 "

If we are to run from figures like these to $8,000,000,000, then, in a financial sense, the war was a jolly good thing! Do not believe it! If we had gone on a spending spree it might have done us as much good! Is that possible? Does it seem believable that with less resources than we had in the thirties and four or five years of war we can double our income? If so, Hitler has taught us more than we ever knew and I would hate to think that, in time, we would feel grateful to that night-marish monstrosity because he had helped us to make money.

American Experience

The U.S., after the last war, went forward as fast as any nation. In 1913 the national income was $35 billion, in 1929 it was $82.9 billion, then it took a nose-dive and went down to $40.1 billion in 1932 — a level which was far lower than 1913 if adjusted for changes in population and cost of living. Even in 1929, in terms of goods and services, the total was far from double the level of 1913, and in the ten years, 1929 - 38, in terms of goods and services, it was probably below 1913. If calculated on anything like the present price level the estimate is one never even approached in peacetime.

However, Dr. Marsh believes it, he really does — with reservations which he states, quite frankly! Now let us examine this closely. In 1929 we were rather prosperous. I want to take the new Marsh estimate of $8,000,000,000 for post-war years, and the 1929 income by way of comparison, and see what we get with an $8,000,000,000 income, distributed on the 1929 basis.

Here is the story:

	1929 Million	1945 Million
Salaries and Wages	$2,900,5	$4,920
Agricultural Income	691,4	1,168
Investment Income	548,5	928
Private Enterprisers	456,0	776
"All Other"	122,2	208
	$4,718,6 million	$8,000- million

All I have done is work out the percentage distribution of 1929 and apply it to the anticipated income of 1945 which I have assumed as one of the early post-war years.

Real Prosperity

If this could be brought about, what need is there for Social Security? It would be here for anyone who wanted it. A simple form of compulsory insurance might be adopted if we deemed it necessary. We could take care of the accidents of life and it would still leave with us the system which has been the driving power behind the progress we have made. Even a steady national income of $8,000,000,000, fairly distributed, would put the nation in pretty good shape. Dr. Marsh assumes that the enormous taxes which would have to be imposed would be equitably distributed. There is not a chance in the world that this would be done. In a democratic country it is probably impossible.

Frankly, this is what worries me. During the last few years we have ventured into a new world, and yet the thing we seek eludes us. We take the income of all the people of the nation, pass a hand over it, and say — there is the national income.. Now let us redistribute it. But I tell you it's not there! What we have before us is a national income brought about by the present distribution, and if we change the percentages going to the different partners in production the income may not be there in anything like the same volume. That is, as I see it, the difficulty which will confront Dr. Marsh.

Then what should be done? My own personal belief — and it is only an expression of opinion — is that under freedom with private enterprise, we should, in a sane world, be able to develop a national income of $8,000,000,000 per annum, at present price levels. I think we should first prove that possible, instead of accepting it as already proven and cutting our cake on that assumption. Besides, social security, so called, will not be needed — at least not in that fashion on an $8,000,000,000 income. But it's an interesting book. The price is 50c. It is obtainable from the King's Printer, Ottawa. Get it. Read it with an enquiring mind. Only the enquiring mind can be intelligent!

It may be true that Musso has never ridden a donkey; but it's about time he got onto himself!

IMPORTANT FACTS ON PULP & PAPER WAR EFFORT

HOW THE PULP & PAPER INDUSTRY HELPS BLAST THE AXIS

IN MAKING HIGH EXPLOSIVES WOOD PULP HAS LARGELY REPLACED COTTON LINTERS. TODAY CANADA MAKES SUCH EXPLOSIVES AND EXPORTS CHEMICAL PULPS TO BRITAIN.

THE EXPERIENCE OF CANADIAN CHEMISTS SINCE 1918 IN MAKING RAYON AND QUICK-DRYING VARNISHES FROM WOOD PULP IS NOW BEING USED FOR WAR. AFTER THE WAR IT WILL AGAIN BE USED FOR PEACE PURPOSES.

THE PRODUCTS OF THE INDUSTRY go into many things besides explosives. Shells, depth charges, land and naval mines, radio equipment, parachutes for dropping flares, all contain paper or paper products. Without paper no war could be fought . . . no country could function successfully in time of peace.

Christian Science Sunday Services

"Christian Science" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, June 27.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 60: 1. "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire: And he had in his hand a little book open:" (Revelation 10: 1, 2).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "This angel or message which comes from God, clothed with a cloud, prefigures divine Science. . . . This angel had in his hand 'a little book' open for all to read and understand. . . . Mortals, obey the heavenly evangel. Take divine Science. Read this book from beginning to end. Study it, ponder it. It will be indeed sweet at its first taste, when it heals you; but murmur over Truth, if you find its digestion bitter. (pp. 558, 559).

SUMMER WORK FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS

Mr. J. R. Charron, manager of the Local Employment and Selective Service Office, states he has received special instructions originating with Arthur MacNamara, Director of National Selective Service, that special efforts must be made to absorb school teachers into farming or other essential work during the summer holidays.

"Honorable Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, recently issued an appeal to school teachers to engage at farming or other essential work during the summer time", Mr. J. R. Charron said. "The Minister appealed to teachers not to regard the closing of the schools this year as a holiday, but rather as an opportunity to aid directly in solving Canada's wartime labor problems."

Mr. Charron said that the Local Employment Office will give special attention to registering teachers, either for work in this district, or for essential work in their home locality or even elsewhere, depending upon where work is available.

It is not the intention of Selective Service, Mr. Charron pointed out, to keep teachers away from the special summer courses which they are sometimes required to take. Moreover, it was emphasized that teaching itself is a very high priority occupation, and that the present intention is to get teachers to accept jobs for the summer only, after which they will return to the teaching profession.

Heroes of "Lucky 13" Submarine, "Thrasher", Home After 40,000 Mile Patrol

Ton of Shipping Sunk for Every Mile

The British Submarine "Thrasher" has returned to port after a patrol of 40,000 miles, every mile of which meant a ton of enemy shipping sunk. Her "score" for the patrol was 11 merchant ships torpedoed and sunk, four supply ships and one tug sunk by gunfire —a total of 40,000 tons of shipping. H.M. "Thrasher" has a record for decorations: 2 V.C's; 1 D.S.O.; 6 D.S.M's and 13 mentions in dispatches. She is known as "Lucky 13" submarine because she was commissioned on April 13, 1941, and sank a 3,500 ton supply ship on April 13, 1942. She sailed for her double V.C. patrol on Friday, 13th February, 1942, and has completed 13 patrols. SENDING THE LOCAL PAPER OVERSEAS

There still seems to be uncertainty about sending of the local paper overseas, and The Watchman therefore offers a further explanation.

This office was sending subscriptions to many local boys overseas gratuitously, but a government order was passed forbidding this practice and decreeing that all subscriptions must be paid for.

Private individuals are not permitted to send newspapers overseas, but can, by paying the subscription, have the local paper sent direct from this office.

While our regular subscription is $2 a year, a special rate of $1.50 is given for those serving overseas. The boys like to get the news; it is like a letter from home. So if you want to pass on a little pleasure to a relative or friend "over there", let us put their name on our regular mailing list.

LACHUTE FARM BOYS AND GIRLS AID FOOD PRODUCTION IN HOURS BEFORE AND AFTER HIGH SCHOOL

— By R. S. Kennedy —

Article and illustrations by courtesy of the Family Herald & Weekly Star

Fresh from the Food Front lines I am writing this brief despatch on the great work Canadian youngsters are doing there. I hope reading about any aspect of war is more interesting than doing it!

War, ninety per cent of the time, is a dull, laborious, unpleasant thing for the fighter. For the soldier it is mostly dirty. For the airman it is mostly boring. For the sailor it is mostly cold and wet.

Young Canadians who have buckled down to produce the food our fighters and munitions workers would otherwise be producing should remember that. Their jobs may not be glamorous, they may be tiresome, they may be dirty. But it's the same for the fighter, once the novelty of being in uniform is over.

The particular sector of the food front which I visited was Lachute, a fine little town on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River. I wasn't particular where I went for this particular despatch, as I knew I would have found the same conditions around any rural centre in Canada.

Alex Bothwell, County Agronome, acted as "Press Liaison Officer" to drive me round the front, and C. Howard Bradford, principal of the Lachute High School, might be considered Officer i/c Reinforcement Depot!

It was to his school I went first. I wanted to look over the recruits before they got into uniform. There were plenty of them — too many for my camera, which is small, and for my photographic skill, which is even smaller. So, after disrupting the routine of two grades with my focussing and flashlights, I had to come back with a real photographer some days later. It was embarrassing, and a nuisance to the teachers, and principal and myself — to everybody in fact, except the "recruits", who did not seem very gravely annoyed at the double interruption to their studies.

Grade 8 had several empty desks, belonging to boys who had left school early to work on their fathers' farms, and several other boys who go into the Food Front line before and after school.

Lachute is a good dairying district and has been hard hit, not only by the large number of enlistments but by the drain of farm workers into the big D.I.L. munitions plant at nearby Brownsburg. On those farms, with from 10 to 20 milking cows, youngsters can and do make a wonderful difference to production. Many of the farms simply could not carry on without them.

Between the High School and the farms around there is a most direct tie. A large proportion of the pupils come from farms, and five school busses make the two daily trips radiating from school to the farming districts. Naturally I could not follow all those routes, but wherever I did go, there were boys and girls from the school working on their farms.

14-year-old Harold Bradford, one of the Grade 8 boys—so neat and quiet in the schoolroom, looked a different fellow when I saw him in the uniform of the Farm Front, doing a man's job, with a man's skill. His father, Rupert Bradford, has a big retail milk business and 18 cows of his own to milk. Another son, Chief Petty Officer Kenneth Bradford, is out on the Atlantic in a destroyer, so Harold's work on the farm is important — not only to the farm but to Canada.

Donald Hume, to whom belongs one of the empty seats in Grade 8, was discing on the farm of his father, W. D. Hume, when I snapped him. His oldest brother is working in the Brownsburg munitions plant; another brother, Harold, is in the army, and could just be seen far across the fields, helping to get the spring work done while enjoying a short leave. There are 270 acres on the Hume farm, 175 cultivated, 1,200 maple trees to be tapped, 16 cows to be milked and 12 pigs to be fed. It is a pity Donald's school seat is empty, but I can sympathize with his urge to get up into the Food Front line.

Not far from the Humes' is William P. Pollock's farm with 15 milking cows, mostly registered Ayrshires. I had seen and photographed 11-year-old Margaret Pollock with other young Front Liners in Grade 5, but when I went to the farm I found her brother as well, 14-year-old Keith, from Grade 9, working in the barn. Both these youngsters milk from 4 to 6 cows before and after school, while Keith, strong and interested in his "war work," does lots of other farm work at week-ends and in vacations. Their sister, Mary, shares the household jobs with her mother. Two other younger sisters, Barbara and Bertha, are also kept busy, though they are at the age when a cow looks intimidatingly big! It is regrettable that there is one drone in this fine and busy family. Baby Hugh, aged 1 year, is a consumer, and nothing but!

Out from Lachute in the other direction, I came on another sector of the Food Front where I found two recruits from the high school in the line. Their father, Kenneth MacDougall is in the army, and Mrs. MacDougall with the help of a man and these two members of the Youth Corps carries on the food production job on their 110 acre farm. Both Donald and Ian are full time workers — out of school. They milk and feed the cows, — 15 of them, — stook, pitch hay, feed the chickens and do all the rest of the never ending chores which, on hundreds of thousands of Canadian farms, result in food for our fighters and strength for our allies.

I could have gone into any of the upper grades in the Lachute High School and found plenty of other youngsters whose time, whenever school is "out", is devoted to filling the manpower gaps of Canada at war. I could have gone out to the farms of any of them and photographed them at their small but tremendously important parts in the Total War for Freedom. I could have gone to any rural High School in Canada and found the same young farm workers and the same empty desks. Here I have just given a sample.

Boys and girls who live on farms may sometimes envy their friends from the towns. But with Canada at war they have a great honor and privilege which other children have not. They have a more direct and important part to play in winning this war than any other large group of Canadian youngsters. They are in the ranks just as their brothers and fathers are. And they are not raw recruits. Their life on the farm, their bothersome chores, have given them skill and strength. They are trained soldiers of production, and right up in the Food Front lines.

Ian MacDougall waters "Roxy" before milking his 3 cows daily, feeding the hens and assorted chores.

Neuralgia

There are some fortunate people who may not know what neuralgia is: It is a pain usually in the side of the face or the head, in most cases more severe than neuritis or sciatica, and more common than either of these conditions.

Neuralgia is rather common because the sensitive fifth nerve, which supplies sensation to the side of the face, is also distributed to the sinuses and teeth, wherein the disease condition often lies.

It should be pointed out that neuralgia, like most pains, is a sympton, not a disease. It is nature's warning that something is wrong and you should visit your dentist or physician, or both, at once so that worse complications can be avoided and the neuralgic pain be abated.

It is very difficult to determine the cause of neuralgia because its pain is quickly reflected over a large area. Very often, the pain in a decayed lower tooth is reflected to the upper jaw or to the temple.

Dental X-ray pictures are usually extremely helpful in locating the cause of neuralgia. The cause may be an abscessed tooth, a hidden cavity, an overhanging filling, an enlarged root or an impacted tooth. Other causes of neuralgia include systematic disorders, nervous disorders and the ingestion of various poisons.

The severest type of neuralgia known is "tic douloureux", which is characterized by a spasmodic pain, like an electric shock, which is almost unbearable. It has no known cause. Treatment usually is by alcohol injection directly into the nerve trunk or by complete severance of the nerve trunk.

In conclusion, it should be borne in mind that neuralgia can be the sympton of danger. Accordingly, when suffering from it, you should not be content with taking pain-killing medicines and waiting for the pain to disappear. Neuralgia requires the immediate attention of your dentist or your physician, if you wish to avoid more serious ills.

Hints for Homebodies

QUIT GRUMBLING

I am about fed up with women grumbling and complaining over high prices and shortages. I don't like paying high prices, or scarcities better than anyone else, and I certainly hold no brief for the Government, but I do think that Mr. Ilsley and Mr. Gordon are doing a great deal for us. We are fortunate in having such men. Mr. Ilsley has the respect of the Canadian people generally, regardless of their party leanings. Mr. Gordon hasn't everything under control, but he is doing a good job in a difficult situation. Many of the high prices are for imported articles, over which there can be no control. Head lettuce, for instance, is 35 cents right now, and the smallest pineapple I ever saw is 45 cents. We can do without those things. Meat, butter, and potatoes are all higher than they were when war started. These are farm products and the farmers need a break. Women are frightened over the possibility of a rise in prices of fish, eggs and poultry. They want something done to control these prices. As this is written there is no control, but who knows but what there will be, as the authorities are even more aware of the situation than we are. Most of the complaining is done about articles over which there has been no control, so that surely shows that Price Control has worked to a considerable extent. I have an account book I used in the last war, and I find I paid 26 cents a pound for sugar, eggs were a dollar a dozen, and bacon 90 cents a pound. Our greatest danger is inflation and we must give the authorities our greatest co-operation to help them prevent it. If you have any specific complaints about high prices, take them to the liaison officer of some organization to which you belong, or take them direct to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. They want to know these things and you can help. Your complaint will be investigated and your name will not appear. In the meantime quit grumbling except to the proper authorities.

EQUAL OPPIRTUNITIES

There is supposed to be an equal opportunity for education for all children in Canada. There is anything but. What chance has the pupil in some of the rural schools to get a modern education? Some of them are so poorly equipped they haven't even blackboards, and others have such poor ones they might as well not have any. The Provinces need to take a much greater share of the financial burden. Small, poor school districts are not able to pay enough to have proper schools and efficient teachers. There are some well paid teachers in Canada, but too many of them are on starvation wages. There are teachers who were paid as low as $20 and $30 a month last year. The medium salary of teachers in Canada ranges from $6.12 a week in the lowest paid Province, to $25.40 in the highest paid, and in all Canada the median salary is $15.04 a week. That is just the median salary, and there are 49% of the teachers getting less than this. No wonder teachers are leaving their schools to go into better paid work. Urban schools have more adequately paid teachers, but the salaries that many rural teachers are paid is a disgrace to the country. We want the best for our children, and we cannot give it to them if we do not pay teachers enough to attract the best kind of people into the teaching profession. A real-estate municipal tax is not the proper one for our schools.

USE THE SHELL

Even egg shells are being used to advantage these days. Dogs need calcium in their diet just as do their masters, and egg shells have plenty of calcium. Place the egg shells in a slow oven and dry out until they are crisp. Use the rolling pin on them and sprinkle the finely rolled egg shells over your dog's food. Maybe your dish towels or other white things have come through the winter and are not as white as the driven snow. Egg shells again to the rescue. powder the egg shells, tie them in a bag, and boil with your towels. A harmless, cheap, bleach. Probably some of you have put empty egg shells back into the cardboard containers, filled them with earth, and then planted seeds, for early transplanting. They are easily handled as you just plant shell and all.

HAMBURG GOULASH

Brown a pound of Hamburg in a little fat, add a can of vegetable soup, and a little water. Cover and simmer slowly for an hour. Thicken with a little flour moistened with cold water and rubbed until smooth. This is equally good served with potatoes, rice, or marconi. This has been one of my pet dishes to serve for a hungry crowd in the summer, at a time when you did not know just when they might be ready to eat, as it can be heated at a moment's notice.

EVERY FRUIT CAKE

3 Cups pastry flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup raisins, ½ cup currants, ½ cup candied peel, ⅔ cup dripping or shortening, 2 eggs, ⅔ cup milk, ½ teaspoon each, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg.

Sift the dry ingredients and rub in the shortening as for pastry. Add the sugar and fruit, then stir in the well-beaten eggs and the milk. This will make a rather stiff batter. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees from one to one and a quarter hours.

BUCKETS OF COINS IN VICTORY BONDS

Derbyshire Couple Had About $10,000 in "Chickenfeed" for War Investment

Derby, Eng. (CP) — Many old people in Derbyshire villages still keep fortunes in tin trunks, under the bed or in stockings and suring a Wings for Victory campaign in one Peakland village a couple were seen entering the village bank carrying a bucket between them.

The bank manager counted the coins of every denomination which it contained and found the old villagers had $4,500 to invest in war bonds. But the old folk weren't satisfied. A recount produced the same result. Then the wife, who with her husband had spent the previous night counting the money, turned on her husband: "Tha's brow't the wrong bucket, tha fool."

So they went home and got another bucket and brought it to the bank too. It contained $5,000.

British Women Want Utility Stockings

London (CP) — Britain's women folk don't care much for seamless stockings. Wholesalers and retailers report a glut of them, that they have supplies of this type of stockings which they simply cannot sell. The Board of Trade said it believed women were keeping their clothing coupons for sales of utility stockings which are semi-fashioned.

HONOR PHONE GIRL CALM UNDER FIRE

King Bestows British Empire Medal on Operator in Dover Bombardment

By Denise Daltroff, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — "Number?" The voice was that of Miss Edith Agnes Muttett, 47, and one of Britain's front line women in those grim days of 1940.

After her query of "Number?" — Miss Muttett is a telephone spervisor in Dover, nearest town to the enemy — the caller could hear the whine and thud of cross-channel shell fire.

It went like this: "Number?" . . . (the high pitched sound of a high velocity shell and then the thud of its explosion) . . . "please" . . . "yes" . . . (once more the noise of fast-travelling explosive despatched from the French channel coast) . . . "I'll connect as soon as I can" . . . (and again the whine and carumph-ph of big calibre ammunition.)

In those days the shelling went on, and on. It might last an hour. Two hours. At any moment a shell might blast the telephone exchange where Miss Muttett worked, but she handled calls, answered queries and carried out the vital duties of a communications supervisor despite the Germans. At one time the German kept up the bombardment non-stop for five hours. But not for a single minute of those 300 minutes was Miss Muttett away from her post.

Her Reward

Now she has her reward, the British Empire Medal for courage and devotion to duty.

At her home in Dover, after she learned her award had been the subject of a London Gazette announcement, Miss Muttett said, "I would still rather be in Dover than anywhere else in England." She has the greatest trait of the British fighting man — modesty, and added: "After all, it's much easier to carry on when you have a job to do, others working with me did just the same. I was terribly surprised to get the B.E.M. I think it really belongs to the other girls."

Offers Six Eggs To Rush Divorce

London (CP) — The war brings something new every day. Girls, listen to this court comment from Mr. Justice Pilcher of the Divorce Court: "This is the most unusual letter. Here is a wife who writes to her husband trying to instigate him to get on with the divorce proceedings by promising to send him half-a-dozen eggs."

(P.S. At the time of writing the egg ration in Britain was one egg per person per week.)

Inside Story of Women's Hats

Even the least observant must have wondered at the bizarre trend in women's hats these last few years; must have wondered too just how such vogues come into being. Well the secret is out.

Gustave Lamartine was head of the French Academy of Design in 1934. At an International Conference he stated that fashion is not intrinsic but dependent upon psychology and public relations technique. His words were challenged by Max Gerhardt, famous Austrian designer who claimed that it would be impossible to popularize any style that did not have real intrinsic beauty and appeal.

A private wager of 50,000 francs followed that Lamartine could design a preposterous head covering for women and have it universally accepted.

For the next week, he worked at the creation of a fantastically shaped and atrociously decorated hat. It was not even a head covering, was almost flat and had to be pinned to the top of the head. On this grotesque creation, he applied unrelated feathers and flowers.

The design was duly announced and received enthusiastically by the leading milliners of Paris, London and New York who hailed it as the birth of a new style.

During the year the designer produced 84 variants of the original, each one more monstrous than the last; in every one, there was a deviation from all known canons of artistic harmony; there were decorations protruding from decorations, colors clashed, feathers a foot long bristled over the head, others cut off the wearer's vision completely.

In 1935, Gerhardt paid off his bet and appealed to Lamartine not to revert to creations of true esthetic value. The latter was all for tackling the problem of straightening out the headdress of the world; milliners however feared economic repercussions and the secret was kept. In desperation Lamartine resigned from the Academy and went in for landscape gardening.

Now impelled by two very worthy motives, he has divulged the momentous secret. He wishes the writers and historians of the world to get the record straight, moreover the funny hats eat up a lot of war materials, countless wires, millions of long pins, huge tonnage of glue, untold quantities of rubber and elastic bands, miles of lace, etc.

So now at last we know, we know also that without hats, with hats or even in spite of hats, our Canadian women are just as charming as ever, and so everything is all right. —From "The Tracer"

RATIONING

Questions & Answers

Q.—We are thinking of hiring temporary help for work on our farm. Is there any way in which rations can be secured for such help?

A.—Yes, provided you expect to serve this temporary help with at least 12 meals. Please make application to your Local Ration Board estimating the number of workers you are going to hire, the number of days they will be employed and the number of meals you expect to serve to them.

• • •

A.—Certainly not!

• • •

Q.—Does a farmer get only 10 pounds of canning sugar for the family or 10 pounds for each member of his family?

A.—If the local ration board in your community has allocated rural dwellers 10 pounds of canning sugar, that would mean 10 pounds a person depending upon the number of ration books in your household.

• • •

Q.—What is the highest price for seed potatoes which are not certified?

A.—Since June 7, seed potatoes are no longer regarded as seed potatoes and come under the same maximum price regulations as table potatoes.

• • •

Q.—My husband and I have planted a Victory garden and we find that we need a wheelbarrow. De we require a permit from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to purchase one?

A.—No. Wheelbarrows and certain other farm implements may now be purchased without a permit.

Childhood Memory

To the imagination of childhood, there was a fearful fascination about Mr. Hawkins. As the town butcher, he had direct relations with death, sharing this distinction with the family doctor and the undertaker; but Mr. Hawkins looked his part. Off duty, the doctor was a friend of the family, while nobody could be a more cheerful person than the undertaker, when he was performing his secondary function of selling golden-oak furniture.

Recollection of Mr. Hawkins brings no picture of him off duty. He is inseparable from his shop. There he could be found, early or late, except on the mornings reserved for slaughtering. He was a burly man, with a black mustache, arms that would have done credit to a village blacksmith, and a white apron streaked with the blood of his victims. A small boy gave his order to Mr. Hawkins respectfully, for one never knew that he might not try the edge of his cleaver on a human neck, if he was annoyed.

Actually he was a kind-hearted man. The custom was that an odd copper in change belonged to the child doing the errand and Mr. Hawkins always saw that the odd copper was forthcoming. Otherwise, the art of computation was for him a toilsome task. The deftness that he displayed with his knife was not transferred to the stubby and frequently moistened pencil with which he figured out the cash side of each transaction.

Peace to his ashes! Gratitude for many an all-day sucker and liquorice stick makes one of his former customers thankful that Mr. Hawkins never had to struggle with the intricacies of the test charts provided for the guidance of retail butchers by the wisdom of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He could understand the diagrams of a side of beef, but the instructions for calculating prices and percentages would have broken his spirit. One can picture him reading again and again the sentence: "The test chart is based on the formula that per cent. x cents per pound equals $ per hundredweight." He scratches his head, pushes back his derby hat, studies the chart again, looks towards the polite representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board who is trying to explain it to him. Then Mr. Hawkins' hand reaches for his cleaver, and the curtain falls. —The Printed Word

THEY CAN'T TAX PEACE OF MIND

Don't Let Summer's Work and Rationing Worries Get You Down; Be Happier

By Grace Martin, Associated Press Writer

This summer is going to be different from any other you have lifted.

You are sure to have more burdens — more work, anieties and taxes. And you will likely have less fun — less motoring, travel, play, meat and sugar.

How are you going to stand the test? Are you going to feel abused because you work longer hours, dwell in thought upon your fatigue, pity yourself because of your anxieties, and tell yourself a hard luck tale because of your taxes?

Are you going to be glum because gasoline rationing has cancelled those week-end jaunts, blue because you haven't so much time to play any more, and sore over this butter and sugar business?

You don't have to. It may surprise you, if you have not thought of it, but the one thing you can be sure of right now is peace of mind, provided you are willing to put up a fight for it.

All you have to do is live one minute at a time — and refuse to let it snow you under. After you have passed a certain number of them and find you are still alive, you will get the habit. And not only will you be happier, but so will everybody who lives with you.

MEAT RATIONING

Meat rationing contains geographical problems. Two-thirds of Canada's beef is produced west of the Great Lakes and two-thirds of the consuming population reside east of Fort William.

Lawn Bowling

A sport that is gaining in popularity year by year is the ancient game of lawn bowling. One of the most healthful recreations, fascinating and interesting, it has gained great favor in Guelph, where it is now enjoyed every summer by hundreds of enthusiastic citizens who find an hour or so on the greens heartening and stimulating after the business worries of the day. It drives away the heavy thought of care and provides the necessary exercise under the most favorable conditions to keep a man in tip-top shape and right on his toes.

AIR FIELD CHART AIDED PRODUCTION OF 'THUNDER BIRDS'

The luck of a location company is invariably bad as far as weather goes, but the 20th Century-Fox troupe shooting Thunder Birds at Thunderbird Field, in Arizona, found an unexpected silver lining.

For weeks the skies above the field where American, British and Chinese cadets are trained for combat flying, reflected perfect weather. But the moment the motion picture cameras were set up, the skies darkened.

An English flight commander suggested sympathetically to Director A. Wellman that he take a glance around the chartroom at the port.

"They do some marvellous things nowadays," he said.

The trained Englishman in the chart room swiftly discovered that there would soon be a brief break in the weather. Instantly, Wellman gave his orders. Gene Tierney, Preston Foster, John Sutton and other members of the cast began intensive rehearsals. The crew waited.

The sun broke through almost exactly on schedule. Actors took their positions, and the cameras began to grind.

One hour and forty minutes later the sun disappeared and the cameras stopped shooting. But in that short space of time, Wellman had put nine perfect scenes on celluloid.

Miss Tierney is starred in this film — which comes to the Rex theatre next Sunday and Monday. Featured are Preston Foster and John Sutton, with supporting roles handled by Jack Holt, Dame May Whitty, Richard Haydn and Reginald Denny.

Fish 10,000 Feet Up

Now, here's a really tall story for you — and it's perfectly true. Colonel H. J. Orford, of the South African Medical Corps, has caught two fish 10,000 feet up in the air! This is what happened—he was flying over Egypt, when a very large bird crashed into the plane. Nothing was left of the bird but a few drifting feathers and two small fish — eight inches long — were left sticking to one of the wings. The Colonel brought down the machine with the fish still intact — and he claims the record for the tallest fishing story ever.

'CASABLANCA' IS STORY OF INTRIGUE

"Casablanca" — appearing at the Rex Theatre June 29-30 and July 31 — is a film that has nothing to do with the Casablanca which hit the headlines recently. The city of the title is pre-invasion Casablanca, a jumping-off place for Lisbon and the new world, and therefore a hot-bed of intrigue — writes Herbert Whittaker in a Montreal film review.

Into a setting which may prove reminiscent of that of another film, "Algiers", Warner Brothers have placed one of the season's most distinguished casts, to play the strange conglomeration of refugees, parasites and representatives of various governments. They all enter into a game of chance, the prize being two visas to freedom.

The sentiments of the picture are exactly up to date. The anti-Nazi and anti-Vichy cracks are plentiful and much appreciated by the audience, while there are also a couple of smart comments in Italy's standing in the present conflict.

The world situation also gives the film its peak emotional moment, which comes almost as a side-issue of the plot. We are shown some Nazi officers singing their national songs in a Casablanca cafe. At the instigation of a Free French underground leader, the band strikes up La Marseillaise and the guests, joining in, drown out the German voices. It is a moving scene.

The main thread of the story gives Rick, an American cafe-owner, possession of the two precious visas and has as leading contestants for them, the woman he once loved in Paris and her husband, the Free French leader. Romance and intrigue are nicely balanced before the final ending on a note of sacrifice.

In the hands of the three featured players, Humphrey Bogart, Igrid Bergman and Paul Henried, these roles get the attention one would expect. Bogart turns in another of his Sphinx-like strangely expressive performances as the cafe-owner, and is given a little more romancing than usually falls his due. Miss Bergman plays sensitively as ever, alternating between one of the screen's loveliest women and one of its prettiest. Henried is excellent, although his role is one of understatement throughout.

UP THE UNION JACK!

Belfast (CP) — Some arrangement whereby the Union Jack would appear in all school books "as in Canada," was suggested in the Northern Ireland House of Commons by Rowley Elliott, who declared that too many Ulster schools were "afraid to shake the Union Jack" on the King's birthday and Empire Day.

Wartime Tenements

If the city is to progress in a proper manner, present and future property owners must be protected from unrestricted building of undesirable houses. Owing to a shortage of places at present, there is an inducement for property owners to turn good houses into cheap tenements and without some protection such a practice will become a commonplace.
