Canada's Contribution "Has Deeply Touched the Heart of the Mother Country" Says Winston Churchill

In World Broadcast Shortly After His Departure from Quebec City

Specially Written for Lachute Watchman
By D'ARCY O'CONNELL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Sept. 1 (CP) — Life in Quebec returned to almost normal this week following the departure of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, his aides and others connected with his conference here with President Roosevelt.

Prime Minister Churchill left Tuesday for Washington and since then life in the city has gradually returned to its regular routine. But still lingering in the minds of the people was the message the Prime Minister delivered in a world broadcast shortly before his departure.

Mr. Churchill said he "looked forward to the day when British and American liberating armies will cross the channel in full force and come to close quarters with the German invaders of France. You would certainly not wish me to tell you when that is likely to happen or whether it be near or far, but whenever the great blow is struck you may be sure that it will be because we are satisfied that there is a good prospect of continuing success and that our soldiers' lives are extended in accordance with sound military plans and not squandered for political considerations of any kind."

The Prime Minister made this statement after expressing hope that he and President Roosevelt will soon be able to meet with Premier Joseph Stalin, and after saying that he did not blame the Russians for ceaselessly asking for a second front.

"We have heard a lot of talk in the last two years about establishing what is called a second front in Northern France against Germany. Anyone can see how desirable that immense operation of war would be. It is quite natural that the Russians bearing the main weight of the German armies on their front should urge us ceaselessly to undertake this task and should in no way conceal their complaints and even reproaches that we have not done it before now.

"I do not blame them at all for what they say. They fight so well and they have inflicted such enormous injury upon the military strength of Germany that nothing they could say in honest criticism of our strategy or the part we have so far been able to take in the war would be taken amiss by us or weaken our admiration for their own martial courage and achievements."

It was at this point of his speach that Mr. Churchill said that when the second front is opened . . . "you may be sure that it will be because we are satisfied that there is a good prospect of continuing success and that our soldiers' lives are extended in accordance with sound military plans and not squandered for political considerations of any kind."

Mr. Churchill said that Russia was not invited to the Quebec conference which was concerned with "heating and inflaming the war against Japan, with whom the Soviet Government has a five-year treaty of non-aggression."

"It would have been an embarrassing invitation for us to send," Mr. Churchill said, "but nothing is nearer to the wishes of President Roosevelt and myself than to have a three-fold meeting with Marshal Stalin. If that has not yet taken place it is certainly not because we have not tried our best or have not been willing to lay aside impediments and undertake further immense journeys for that purpose.

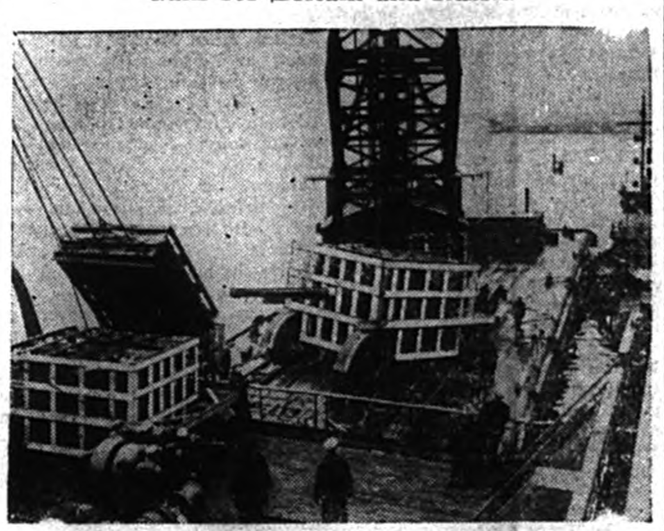

"The leader of the victorious Russian armies cannot at the present time leave the battlefront on which he is conducting operations of vital consequence not only to Russia, which was the object of the ferocious German attack, but also to the common cause of the United Nations. To judge by the latest news from the Russian battlefronts Marshal Stalin is certainly not wasting his time . . ."

He said that as a result of Russian victories and of the Anglo-American campaign against Italy "all the Balkans are aflame and the impending collapse of Italy as a war factor will not only remove from the scene the most numerous of their assailants but will also bring help nearer to those unconquerable races."

The Prime Minister said he was often asked when the war will end. "For myself," he said, "I regard all such speculations as to when the war will end at this moment vain and unprofitable. We did not undertake this task because we had carefully counted the cost or measured exactly the duration. We took it on because duty and honor called us to it. And we are content to drive on at it until we have finished the job."

At the start of his address, Mr. Churchill said that the "contribution which Canada has made to the combined effort of the British Commonwealth and Empire in these tremendous times has deeply touched the heart of the mother country and of all the other members of our widespread family of states and races."

Guns for Britain and Russia

Canada has been supplying vast quantities of tanks, guns, aircraft and other war equipment to Russia and Britain. Half of the Dominion's total war production goes to Britain, either for her own purposes or for the U.S.S.R., and direct shipments to Russia total well over a thousand million dollars. . . . Picture shows heavy guns, built in Canada, protected by specially designed crates, being loaded aboard ship at an Eastern Canadian port for convoy to Britain.

When Roosters Crow Off Schedule

Imbued with a spirit of patriotic enterprise, poultry-keepers have increased in numbers within the town limits to such extent that complaints are heard in all quarters concerning the untimely crowing of roosters.

While the Council has asked co-operation in abating this nuisance, it behooves this newspaper to emphasize a remedy.

Among various solutions to the problem — such as building a low ceiling over the roost to prevent birds raising their heads to crow; or the more drastic, more certain solution of "cutting their throats", as many neighbors have advocated, the most practical remedy as advised by A. Bothwell, County Agronomist, is to keep the poultry house in complete darkness until a reasonable hour in the morning. Lacking daylight, the roosters will have no incentive to crow.

City Fathers Ask Co-operation Of Poultry-Keepers to Subdue Nuisance of Crowing Cockerels

Pass By-Law for Tax Levy, Centre and West Ward Sewer Installations

TO PROPOSE AMENDMENT TO EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW

The regular meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the council chamber last evening with Mayor J. S. Giles presiding. Aldermen W. Morrisette, A. Bothwell, H. Trichard, O. Laurin, A. Ethier, A. Rochon, R. Paquette and A. Guenette were in attendance.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The secretary was instructed to send letters of condolence to the family of W. M. Scott, former mayor of Lachute, bereaved of his wife, who was also the mother of Alderman Arnold Scott, and to the family of the late George Hay, another former mayor of this town.

Accounts were read and approved to the amount of $3,871.70.

Building permits were granted to Messrs. L. Hotte, H. Lamarche and Philias Malette.

A by-law levying special sewer tax for the payment of the West and Centre Ward sewers was adopted.

Owing to many complaints being laid at the town office concerning the nuisance created by the early crowing of roosters, the town secretary was instructed to write the owners asking their kind co-operation in allaying such disturbance, recognizing that while they may have the right to keep poultry, the citizens also have the right to sleep without being disturbed in the early hours by this competitive crowing of birds.

Notice of motion was given by Ald. W. Morrisette that at next sitting of the council he will present for adoption an amendment to the town's early closing by-law.

Late George Hay Last Member of Notable Family

The death of George Hay, at the age of 78, occurred at the Montreal General Hospital, Western Division, on Friday last. His passing came as a surprise to this community, and removes one of the best known of Argenteuil's sons.

He was a man who had filled many offices of trust, having been an elder of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church for many years; a former Mayor of Lachute, and a town councillor for six years; also a past president and active member of the Argenteuil Argricultural Society.

Mr. Hay was the fourth son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, of Chatham, and was married to Miss Annie Margaret Clunie. Only last year they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

He started in business shipping horses to Manitoba, and exporting horses from this country to Liverpool, England. He exported Clydesdales, Shires and Hackneys from Great Britain. Thus, known from coast to coast as an authority on fine horses, his services were in great demand in judging at various shows, which duties took him to the Toronto Exhibition, Guelph Winter Fair, Brandon, Saskatoon, Ottawa, Three Rivers, Quebec and Halifax.

Active as a curler, he was a member of Lachute Curling Club, and some years ago skipped a local rink through to the finals of a Dominion-wide contest for the Lord Elgin Trophy, an achievement to be proud of.

Three brothers — William, John, M.P.P., and James — predeceased him, while his wife survives together with four children; they are Margaret, widow of the late Dr. James MacKenzie, of Toronto, Cameron and Elsie, of Montreal, and Donald Hay, of Sherbrooke, Que. There are also five grandchildren, AC-2 Ronald, LAC. Cameron, and Margaret MacKenzie, also Bobbie Hay and infant sister.

The funeral service was held on Sunday afternoon from his late residence at Lachute to the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, service being conducted by the Rev. E. Orsborn and Rev. W.B. Rosborough. A large number of sympathizing friends and relatives attended.

Honorary pall-bearers were — Messrs. T. Barron, Wm. Murry and H. M. Gall. Pall-bearers, Messrs. Robt. Barron, Sam Morrin, E. Walker, Ian Hay, Jim Hay and Gordon Hay.

Interment was made in the Lachute Cemetery.

Military Career Ends With Death of M. C. Copeland

After an illness of over a year, during which time he was confined to his home suffering from heart trouble, Melvin C. W. Copeland passed away at the Montreal General Hospital on Saturday morning.

He was 56 years of age, the second son of the late William Copeland and Mrs. Copeland, who is still active at the age of 86. A military man throughout his career, he was first connected with the Argenteuil Rangers, which unit later amalgamated with the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars.

In the war of 1914-18 he went overseas as a Captain with the 69th Regt. and served in France. In addition to the Victory and Service Medals he held a long service medal and the efficiency decoration, and at the time of his death held the rank of Major.

He was married in 1913 to Miss Irene Hewitt, who predeceased him in 1935. Two sons were born of this union, Colin, at home on the farm, and Ernie, at present serving overseas with the Royal Montreal Regiment.

Melvin Copeland was a past president of local branch, No. 76, of the Canadian Legion, and was keenly interested in its activities.

One sister, Amy (Mrs. A. Cleland), and one brother, Albert, both of East Settlement, also remain.

The funeral service, conducted by the Rev. E. Orsborn at the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, was largely attended. Members of the Orange Order being present in a body, the following acting as pall-bearers—Amos Kerr, Lorne Dawson, Albt. Tomalty, Nelson Morrison, Arthur Pollock and Alex Pollock. Members of the Legion also paraded, their flags being dipped in token of honor and respect.

Interment was made at the Lachute Cemetery.

Commissioned As Pilot Officer In The Bahamas

News is received of the promotion of George D. Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Boyd, to the rank of Pilot-Officer in the R.C.A.F. P-O Boyd is now stationed at Nassau, Bahamas.

Educated at the Brownsburg Consolidated School, the young man was employed by the C-I-L before enlisting with the Air Force in July, 1941. He trained at No. 1 Wireless School, Montreal, and at the Bombing and Gunnery School, Jarvis, Ont., where he received his wings. He then followed a course of training at Lachine before going to the Bahamas. He has made several flights to Britain and other Empire bases in the course of his service.

W.I. REPRESENTED ON CONFERENCE FOR EDUCATION

Quebec Women's Institutes have been asked to send representatives to the meeting to be held on September 10, 11 and 12 at Macdonald College for Education for Reconstruction. Two representatives have been chosen to represent the Institutes, Mrs. Russell Patterson and Mrs. R. Thomas, present and past convenors of the department of Education and Adult Education for the Provincial Women's Institutes.

FIFTY YEARS IN DISTRICT LODGE OF ODDFELLOWS

Last Saturday was an auspicious day in the life of Robert McArthur, as he attained his fiftieth year of service in Laurentian Lodge, No. 14, Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"Bob," as he is widely and familiarly known, recently passed his 79th birthday, and members of the Lodge felt it to be an opportune time in which to celebrate the dual event.

Accordingly, invitations were extended for a "birthday party" to be held on Saturday and a pleasing feature of the occasion was a visit from the Grand Master of the Province of Quebec and six other official members representing Mizpah and Lansdowne Lodges in Montreal.

The regular transaction of business was carried on with Noble Grand Arthur Campbell presiding who later turned over the meeting to Past Grand Master H. McFayden, of Montreal. After extending good-will greetings he asked the members to form a circle and requested Bro. Allan Paul to accompany P.G.M. Bro. McArthur to the centre, where he shook hands with all members and following a brief address by the Grand Master was decorated with his 50-year jewel.

Bro. McArthur expressed his appreciation at the honor conferred, and related how he had joined the lodge in 1893; the lodge at that time boasted 38 members, with around $300 in the treasury, now the membership was 78 and the funds had accumulated to upwards of $11,000.

A pleasant time was spent around the festive board, where full justice was done to a chicken supper, after which the visiting brethren were called upon for a few remarks. Bro. Tom Anderson favored with a solo, the gathering joining in the chorus.

Mr. McArthur's two sons were present and expressed the appreciation and honor that this momentous occasion had given them. Among the immediate family it was a week-end of celebration — Mr. and Mrs. Walker McArthur celebrating their 20th wedding anniversary on Sunday, the 29th, while Geo. Y. Deacon, a nephew of Mr. McArthur, and Mrs. Deacon were 25 years married on Saturday.

The gathering closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Commends Work Of Scholars In Grade X

CORRESPONDENCE TO THE EDITOR

Lachute, Que.

Editor, The Watchman
Dear Sir:

About a month ago the final results of the pupils in Grade X in Lachute High School were published in your paper.

Before another school term commences may I take this opportunity to congratulate these scholars on the excellent standing they achieved. Twenty pupils passed, three in the first class, with total marks over 800. The marks in Mathematics and Latin were particularly gratifying. Also in English Composition — a difficult subject in any grade — there were no failures, and five pupils obtained over 80 per cent. Grade X is a hard grade to pass, if not perhaps the hardest of the four high school grades, and these results show that both pupils and teachers must have persevered throughout the whole school year.

I am sure the members of the School Board and of the Staff are justly proud of such a fine showing.

WILL CONTEST ELECTION HELD AT MORIN HTS.

A contestation of the recent municipal elections has been taken by three citizens of Morin Heights, on the grounds that 30 persons were permitted to vote at the polls although they lacked the necessary qualifications.

The case concerns the election of Mayor Wm. H. Watchorn, and three councillors, Wm. Dougherty, J. D. Davis and C. Guenette. Plaintiffs instituting the suit are Mme. Jos. H. Bourdon, Alderic Guenette and Geo. A. Boyer. Attorneys acting on their behalf are Messrs. Duranleau, Dupre & Duranleau, of Montreal.

A motion that the plaintiffs furnish particulars, as to names of voters allegedly unqualified, and reasons, was lodged by counsel for the defendants, Messrs. Legault & Legault, of Lachute. This motion was granted by the court, said particulars to be stated within three weeks.

The case is expected to be heard before the District Magistrate at St. Jerome some time in October.

Jewelry Racket In District of St. Eustache

St. Jerome, Aug. 27 — Said by police to be the ringleader of an ingenious racket involving the sale of cheap rings as solid gold in St. Eustache, Maurice Robert Belanger, no given address, was convicted before District Magistrate. Lalande today of illegal possession of a jeweller's die used to stamp gold rings with their karat rating.

Belanger was charged under section 488 of the Criminal Code which states in part, "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence who, with intent to defraud . . . has in his possession any die, block, machine, or other instrument, for the purpose of forging a trade mark. . . ."

According to Det. Albert Oggier, of the Provincial Police, who investigated the case, Belanger and some others bought jewelry rings of the dime store variety, stamped them with a gold karat mark, and sold them at a profit of several hundred per cent.

The die used to mark the rings was found hidden under the dashboard of Belanger's automobile, police said. The accused had pleaded guilty to another charge of selling merchandise without a licence.

Sentence for the major offence was set for September 27 by Judge Lalande. Belanger is liable for a maximum sentence of two years.

Thrilling Nights As Bombers Leave England For Germany; "Women Can Stand Anything"

By MARGARET BUTCHER

Reading, Eng. — Last night I had a new experience. At seven o'clock I got back to my lodgings feeling very sleepy and terribly hungry — and less my half-pint as a 'blood donor.' (Incidentally, I feel fine, except for a bruised arm. This, I believe, is not unusual, so I guess we'll have to overlook that.) So, one of these days, maybe, some fine, husky lad will be going around — in your own town, for all one can tell — with my English blood in his veins. Queer, isn't it?

The business took place in a schoolhouse near here, my friend the doctor having told me how I could be useful in this particular way. A small, but very motley, collection of people had arrived already, and we sat round on chairs: rather gloomily it must be admitted. Occasionally a door opened and a V.A.D. called out three or four names. Through the door one caught glimpses of beds and gadgets.

Like a Rabbit

"Doesn't it all look dreadfully sinister?" I observed to the woman seated beside me; and at that we livened up. My turn came and I stepped blithely in. There was only one man, so far, and he looked surprisingly like a rabbit in an aquarium.

Soon the affair was completed. Another V.A.D. led us into a curtained off space lined with stretchers, and on these we lay down and were given cups of tea. I was rather intrigued to realize that the last time I had been on this spot it was for an amateur performance of that amusing play "Housemaster." Then shortly, one by one, we were promoted to chairs, our arms strapped with plaster, and tender inquiries made as to how we felt. Nobody did. The man didn't look too happy, and one of his worries was that he hadn't worn his shirt with the collar to match.

"Have you really got a shirt with a collar to match?" I enquired. "Well don't talk about it too loudly: you'll be burgled."

Good at Shouting

He was a nice man, and I offered to see him to the top of the hill. In view of our contrasting sizes this was rather amusing. "I shan't be much except moral support," I told him, "but I'm very good at shouting for help." So we set off.

"Don't you feel a bit odd yourself?" he asked.

"Why bless you!" I told him. "Women can stand anything."

He looked all right when we parted, so I hope he got home without incident. As for me, I haven't felt any ill effects, and I shall treasure the neat little "Thank You" booklet they gave me when I came away. Good luck to the lad who gets my half-pint!

I slept so soundly after it that I never heard our 'Alert' in the night. I have done my usual amount of work today, into the bargain and have just had another enormous meal off the Allotment. For the first time in my life I'm having enough vegetables: no more nonsense of two spoonfuls of green peas and then away goes the dish. Now I sit down to a large dish all to myself with a dollup of margarine on the top and a spoon to eat with. That's the way! I confess now that this has always been my private pipe-dream. The dentist (who has been having one of his periodic goes at me) says my gums have never been so healthy and when I told him that I live 'like a peasant, these days' he replied, "Well, there you have the answer". So I fancy that rationing hasn't done us any harm.

Thrilling Nights

These are thrilling nights for us. I lie in bed, reading a bit before going to sleep and, so often there is that endless droning overhead as the bombers pass along. Ours this time! There is a terrific sense of drama in that sound; if I were a poet I should have to do something about it. The other night I looked out before I 'made the blackout', and there they were: formation after formation, at such an enormous height that they looked like tiny birds in the sunset sky — all going off to justify our stubborn hopes at the time of Dunkerque, when we felt so wretched (naturally enough!) but knew, in our bones, that we weren't really licked. I expect many of us in this little country stood at windows or in the roads, peering up with our spirits at the salute. Well, I guess you have to be here to realize just how we feel. We aren't a bloodthirsty people, but you can't bring folks up on a sense of justice and then not expect it to function at a time like this, can you?

Plan Three-Day Trail Ride in Laurentians

K. W. Harrison, president of the Trail Riders' Association, has announced that the association is sponsoring another Trail Ride this year. The dates have been set for Thursday, September 30, to Saturday, October 2, and the ride will go from St. Jerome to Mont Tremblant.

After the successful trip held by the Association last year, Glen Case, honorary secretary-treasurer, said he had received many letters from Vermont, and other distant points asking information on this year's ride. Last September the trip covered the same route as it will this year. Twenty-five riders from Montreal and Vermont enjoyed the three-day outing, one feature of which was the outdoor lunch held at the Laurentian Ski Lodge near Ste. Agathe.

All accommodations are reserved in advance for the riding party, and special arrangements already have been made for the care of the horses at the different stopping points. The trail ride this year will commence at Lapointe's Hotel, St. Jerome, where breakfast will be served. After that the the party will journey through St. Sauveur, Ste. Adele, Ste. Marguerite, Val David, Ste. Agathe to Jovite, over ski trails and country roads.

CANADIAN FINDS LITTE ROMANCE IN NORTH AFRICA

Most of Country Hot, Dirty and Smelly, with Little Attractive to Men of Northern Zone

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Algiers, Aug 31, (CP) — North Africa is a strange land to Canadian troops brought to its heat and dust by the war. They are here in dusty camps waiting an opportunity to move to Sicilly as reinforcements. White-veiled Canadian nursing sisters come with them to tend wounded.

North Africa, with its dark-skinned Arabs living in dirty huts and its sun-baked soil, tropical growths and exotic perfumes, offers little acceptable hospitality. From the Mediterranean, its coastal cities stand out white and clean against blue-green but they don't bear too close examination.

Streets are littered and crowded with military transport, sidewalks are jammed with British, United States and French native troops, and with white people, white and brown, and veiled barefooted women in poorly-laundered white. The whites speak French and Italian and the brown-skinned ones, in bright red headgear or turbans above their rags, shout unintelligibly at one another.

Heat and Flies

With the exception of Algiers, North African towns smell to high heaven and bake in almost unbearable heat. Cafes are poorly aired, unappetizing and buzzing with flies. Out beyond the towns in the hills and plains where the winds blow as hot as furnace blasts, motoring, over bumping twisting roads and through military transport of all descriptions speeding in all directions, is an ordeal rather than mere discomfort.

Arabs astride tiny moth-eaten donkeys swing their filthy feet and belabor their subdued mounts with great sticks. They travel along the edge of the roads in the remotest spots.

Absence of habitation in any direction for miles about makes it difficult to understand where they are bound and on what business. But other Arabs recline in the shade of lonely trees in the plains, likewise miles from anywhere and apparently not the least concerned about it.

View from Air

Seen from the air, North Africa is forbidding. Along the Mediterranean coast between Tunis and Algiers interspersed mountains and plains seem impossible to inhabitation. But then in the greenery of the hills, isolated clusters of straw roofs appear in small clearings. Narrow paths wind up and up to mountain peaks.

Godbout Policy and Future of This Province

That best-seller of a few years ago, "How to Win Friends and Influence People" is perhaps a good example of an everyday guide for those who are determined to succeed in life. A current French proverb offers the same practical lesson: "You can't catch flies with vinegar." In other words, friendly relations are a first condition to a happy, peaceful and prosperous life.

Applying the dictum to a whole people, a Quebec Government release claims that this province adopted a similar policy of co-operation when, in the autumn of 1939, Adelard Godbout assumed the leadership. Since that time, that is for the past four years, the Prime Minister has followed this policy of good neighborly relations — this article states. It has borne fruit, even in a few years; the financial position of the province has been strengthened; our prestige has grown in relation to other provinces, and in foreign affairs; and Quebec has taken its rightful place in the forefront of the Dominion. Godbout has been able to find friends for the province where formerly we may have met with a measure of hositility.

Mr. Godbout said on one accasion: "We want French Canadians to feel at home in every part of Canada." This aspect of provincial policy is far-reaching. At present, French Canadians are actually "at home" in every part of Canada; this is a mere fact. But do they feel at home? Stated in this way, the question may raise a doubt. Possibly, of course, the French Canadian is partly responsible for his present sense of isolation in the cities of Ontario, or Manitoba, or British Columbia; possibly he has not succeeded in winning friends in these places. But the first and most important reason for this lies in the immense size of the Dominion, and also in the fact we have two languages in one nation. These obstacles to a stronger unity have been present from the beginning of Confederation.

Since the start of the war — the article continues — a more immediate misunderstanding might well have segragated French Canada into an unpopular corner. This was the false rumor in circulation that, on the war issue, Quebec was taking a hostile stand. A number of political aspirants gave grounds for this misconception. But the provincial election of 1939, coming as it did at a crucial time, turned the tide of public opinion and led towards a better understanding.

In the course of time, the full significance of this election, at a time when a misleading vote might have done harm to the whole French Canadian minority, will be brought to light. The popular franchise placed a representative of the French Canadian people at the head of the government who, in his private life, his family background, and his political career stood for the fundamental qualities of integrity and tradition which belong to his race. This was the election of Adelard Godbout in 1939.

At the time of Godbout's election, in 1939, the scope of the world conflict had not taken its present dimensions. In this war, Quebec took its place behind its new leader to the full measure of its importance and its available resources. The determined attitude of French Canada on the question of military service was stated definitively on several occasions by Godbout; the statement was understood and respected as the true expression of the Quebec people.

That was four years ago. Since then, Quebec has contributed in every field to the Dominion war effort, to the extent that none can deny the province its full share of credit. The province has disproved those who were hostile to it, and has won many friends by following Mr. Godbout's policy of co-operation with all neighbors.

The results have been considerable, some of them immediate, and others to bear fruit in the future — the Quebec article concludes. Four years are a short time in the life of a people; and in the life of a government they are only a beginning. The policy adopted by Adelard Godbout, it is maintained, has placed this province on the road to a brighter future. The French element in Canada may well look forward to the full development of its French culture in the Dominion, as well as understanding, respect and co-operation from every other group in Canada. As leader of French Canada at war, Mr. Godbout is continuing a policy of immediate utuility which is also important to the larger future of the province.

ADVISE INSULATION FOR FUEL SAVING

Now is the time for householders to install every possible insulation measure, if they expect to be comfortable this winter. Reliable experts estimate that 60 per cent fuel savings can be accomplished through the application of insulation methods to a house not so protected. Conservation of coal, transportation, and the pocket-book are all in the interest of the war effort.

1. Insulate the ceiling of your home. This alone often results in fuel savings of as much as 30 per cent.

2. Insulate the walls as well as the ceiling. This, combined with ceiling insulation, means a saving of 30-40 per cent in fuel consumption.

3. Add weather stripping and storm sashes. These combined, even without ceiling and wall insulation, can mean a saving of 25-30 per cent in fuel consumption.

4. Caulk cracks around door and window frames.

ABANDONED FARMS EASTERN CANADA

(Experimental Farm News)

In Eastern Canada are between 12,000 and 13,000 farms, covering about one and one-half million acres, which have been abandoned and have been idle for some time. This condition exists despite the fact that many thousands of acres of new wooded land have been cleared and settled in some parts of Eastern Canada during the last ten years, states P. C. Stobbe, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Should this abandoned land, which to a large extent has already been cleared of its forest, be used for land settlement purposes instead of clearing new land of its original forest cover? In order to answer this question satisfactorily a very careful survey of each individual piece of abandoned property must be made and the reasons why it was abandoned studied.

Many farms were abandoned because the land was originally sub-marginal for agricultural purposes and no farmer could be expected to make a satisfactory living on such land after the forest resources were exhausted. On other farms the land, although originally of fair quality, has been gradually exhausted by unsound farm practices. Some farms had to be vacated because the acreage of suitable farm land was too small to provide a livelihood for the farmer.

The farms which have been abandoned for the reasons given are almost invariably poor prospects for future settlers. Such land, in most cases, if of greater value to the state and the individual if it is left to revert to forest. In some cases it may even be advisable to assist nature by planting young tree seedlings.

It should be observed that many farms located on good soils have been abandoned for various personal, social and economic reasons. The right type of settler could make a good home and build up a sound, economic enterprise on such land if he had the opportunity and so it would be very much easier to become established on some of these farms than to clear new forest land and bring it under cultivation.

WEST COAST PAPERS GET CALNAN AWARDS

Ontario Weekly Also Named by Judges in Community Service Competition

Toronto, Aug. 30 (CP)—Canada's Pacific Coast almost made a sweepstakes of the A. E. Calan (Picton, Ont. Gazette) community service trophy awards at the recent annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association here.

The Powell River (B.C.) News was awarded the trophy and the runners-up receiving honorable mention were in the following order: Powell River (B.C.) Town Crier; Whitehorse (Yukon) Star; Acton (Ont.) Free Press.

The awards indicate the Powell River papers are strongly competitive in community service — Powell River ought to be a good town to live in right now. The citation of the trophy award to The News says the newspaper's entry depicted "an unusually well-rounded program" in which the paper "initiated and backed many phases of community service and improvement."

This unique and well-contested trophy competition was inaugurated two years ago by Lindley B. Calnan, president and editor of the Picton Gazette, in memory of his father, the late A. E. Calnan, editor of that paper 1913-1936 and president of the C.W.N.A. 1919-20.

OBITUARY

A Native of Lachute, Minister's Wife Brought Here for Burial

Late Mrs. W. T. Keough

Edythe Elizabeth Earle, beloved wife of Major the Rev. W. T. Keough, of Belleville, passed peacefully away at the home of her only daughter, Miss Dorothy E. Keough, of the staff of the Department of Education, Toronto, on Sunday morning, August 29.

Mrs. Keough was born here in Lachute, on October 10, 1869, the second daughter of the late William Earle and Nancy MacLean Campbell, of Belle Rivière. Her life, before her marriage, was spent with her grandmother, Mrs. William F. Earle, Sr. At the age of five she moved, with her grandmother, to Montreal, and from there, at the age of eleven, to Cornwall, Ontario. Her scholastic career was brilliant. After graduation from the Cornwall Collegiate and Model Schools, and the Ottawa Normal School, she was in charge of the Kindergarten Primary department of the Cornwall Model School, which position she held with distinction until her marriage.

On September 2, 1896, she married the Rev. W. T. Keough, of Rawdon, Que. Through all the ups and downs of parsonage life, she labored with unwavering devotion. A severe illness suffered during the Great War, when her husband was overseas, left her with impaired health. This culminated in the condition which brought about her passing.

She is survived by her husband, of Belleville, Ontario, one daughter, Miss Dorothy E. Keough, of Toronto, and one brother, William F. Earle, of Garson, Manitoba.

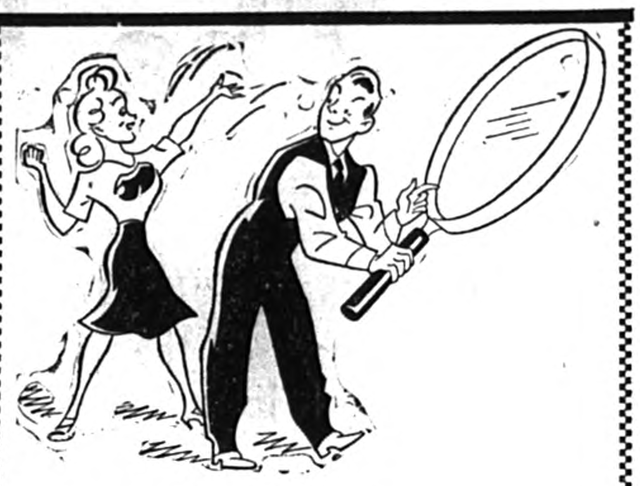

The funeral took place from the home of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Campbell, Lachute. The service was conducted by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, B.A., B.D. Interment was made in her father's plot at Lachute Cemetery.

Mrs. Keough was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, and a life member of the Women's Missionary Society. She proved a most zealous helper in her husband's work during their years in the Montreal and Quinte Conferences of the United Church of Canada.

TO FIGHT BUSH FIRES

Kirkland Lake and Teck Township residents will have added security against the possible menace of bush fires. It was agreed the mines would furnish, without cost, men to fight bush fires should the town be threatened at any time.

A Symbol of Courage

The arrival of Winston Churchill in Canada gave us the opportunity of honoring the leader and symbol of that flaming British spirit so brilliantly displayed, under the impact of falling bombs.

About three years ago, the Nazi War Machine ran rough-shod over Europe. Just a few minutes from the airfields of France, forty-five million people, packed into vulnerable cities on a little island about one-sixth the size of Quebec, were determined to make this a fight to a finish. Churchill talked about fighting on the beaches and in the streets against an invading force. Curious people, these British! Instead of feeling hopeless over the loss of their weapons in Dunkirk, they took courage from the feat of rescuing the bulk of their Army.

This utter disregard for Nazi power; this refusal to submit sensibly, would have to be smashed. Those were the sentiments of the Reich, for to them the outcome seemed a certainty. Did they not possess every advantage?

The rest of the world sat breathless, as the British people reeled and shuddered under a terrific bombardment from the air. When the smoke and flame cleared from the first assault, the cities and villages showed jagged scars, but, the flaming spirit had been increased, not smashed. As the little island held on for a week, then a month, then a year, these stubborn British people started to hit back, and the gaping astonished enemy having failed in its purpose, began to retreat.

If that stamina had not prevailed, or had given way before that superior power, the picture for all of us would have been entirely different.

It is indeed a source of great satisfaction to us, to know that this same spirit and courage has been displayed by our fighting forces while in action against the enemy. Even though we now hold the upper hand, ultimate victory, however, cannot be possible without the loyal support of our men and women behind the lines who are producing and transporting munitions of war. On the home front we have a grave responsibility, no less important than that which faces the people of Great Britain.

Simultaneously with the arrival of Mr. Churchill in this country, appeared the persistent whispering campaigner who seems to travel with every renowned or important personage to every destination and attends all conferences. This unwelcome member of the "unruly tongue society" sets about to distort and confuse, by gossip or lie, any issue or topic that could be linked with that particular assembly.

This important conference at Quebec, was found to be no exception. No time was lost in spreading misstatements and rumors. It was a regrettable shame, that the Prime Minister of Great Britain himself should have been one of the first chosen to have to refute and deny an insidious statement incorrectly attributed to his words. It was a humiliation that will long be remembered by every decent and loyal Canadian, and illustrates only too clearly the dangers of careless talk.

Here are just a few more varied types of rumors which have been bandied about recently, which prove to be worthless, but could be dangerous if not refuted:

Rumor: "There have been a number of escapees from the draft, due to their being registered as farmers when actually they were nothing of the kind, and what action has the Government taken?"

Fact: National Selective Service: "The answer is: Thirteen mobilization boards throughout the Dominion require bona fide evidence that the individual claiming exemption on the grounds that he is a farmer, is in effect a farmer, and entitled to exemption as such. Cases of men securing exemption on misrepresentation of being farmers are not known. If anyone knows of a case, they should facilitate the administration of the law by notifying the nearest divisional registration of the mobilization board."

Rumor: "There is plenty of butter in storage, mildewing."

Fact: Wartime Prices and Trade Board: "This rumor is absolutely false. Every care is taken to safeguard Canada's stocks of butter. It is kept in storage at temperatures ranging from 10 degrees above to 10 degrees below zero and as a result is frozen hard. There is absolutely no truth to this rumor."

In connection with the above, it is interesting to note that stocks of butter on hand at August 1, 1943, were considerably in excess of those on hand last year. These stocks have been built up so that the present ration of half a pound of butter a week per person may be continued throughout the period of low production. Last year this was not done to the same extent with the result that the ration had to be cut.

Stocks of butter on hand today, reduced to a per capita basis, represent a total of less than 5½ pounds a person compared with present ration of 26 pounds per person per year — in other words, a supply sufficient for only 11 weeks.

Rumor: "Each time a Canadian vessel reaches port, hundreds of pounds of butter and remaining stores are thrown overboard to make room for new contracts."

Fact: Naval Intelligence, Ottawa: "An entirely false and mischievous rumor. No food is wasted by the Navy. There have been a few cases where food has been jettisoned, but only when items became unfit for human consumption due to heavy weather damage, refrigeration difficulties, etc. In such cases detailed causes are certified by the Commanding Officer. Also, detailed accounts are kept of provisions received, daily balances, and amounts issued to galley and messes. Stock on hand, and accounts are examined by base supply representative who goes aboard ships at each base, before estimating future requirements."

Rumor: "Nobody, at the present time, is collecting scrap for the war effort as apparently the Government is not in need of it. Many people who have old tires, scrap iron, etc., cannot get rid of them. If the Government was in need of scrap, they would collect the hundreds of tons of scrap iron that is lying all over the province."

Fact: Mr. Roger Charbonneau, Provincial Supervisor, National Salvage: "The rumor is, of course, not only absolutely untrue but very harmful. The need for scrap is greater than ever and local salvage committees, who are working without remuneration to help Canada's war effort, are doing everything possible to secure the greatest possible amount of material so urgently needed for our war industries. Every citizen can help and those wishing to donate materials as contribution to the national war effort, need only contact their local salvage committee where there is one, and in places where there is no such committee, we would appreciate receiving letters from persons who would be willing to form one in their own town."

(Note: There is a law in effect since September 15, 1942, making it compulsory for every citizen to report to the Steel Comptroller all scrap metal they have on hand which amounts to over 500 pounds. Any person wishing to retain such scrap must secure a permit from the Steel Comptroller.)

Chateau Frontenac "Work Centre" of Conference

Framed in this picture by the flags of Great Britain, the United States and Canada, the Chateau Frontenac, world-famed Canadian Pacific Railway hotel in Quebec City, fulfilled its most important role as the "work centre" of the strategy conference of the democracies for which Canada was host. The towering Chateau, seen here from the cannon-guarded battlements of the historic Citadel, housed the technical experts who came to the conference on the staffs of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King (left to right in insets) who themselves stayed in the Citadel. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the British and American experts on foreign policy, lived at the Chateau Frontenac.

We hear a lot about manpower, but what about Canadian womanpower? Well, there are 4,240,000 women over 14 years of age in Canada. Here are some interesting figures about them. As of January 30, 1943, of this number there were 1,152,000 in industry and 255,000 directly or indirectly in war industry. Farm women numbered 830,000; women students 309,000. Tere were more than 31,367 in the armed services (and that figure must be considerably increased by this time). 300,000 are considered unemployable.

Is it all right to lend your ration book to your farmer friend who uses a great deal of tea, while you use very little? The Prices Board says no, and Thelma Craig of the information branch answered me this way: "Rationing is for the equal sharing of certain commodities which are in short supply. It does not mean that Granny, just because she likes the extra pot of tea, should be able to have double the ration of the woman next door, nor does it provide for the swaping of tea and sugar by two neighbors who live across the road from each other." Fact of the matter is the whole rationing system is set up on the basis that the majority will conserve their use of rationed articles to actual and immediate needs.

Harking back to the Order-in-Council which made it an offence to waste coal or heat, owing to the serious fuel situation facing Canada, it is interesting to know that our normal peacetime coal needs are about 30 million tons. This year, geared to such a high war tempo, provision must be made for about 47 million tons. Canadians can be selfish as individuals and sneak excessive heat, more than necessary, or they can play ball for the good of all in Canada. It's really co-operation for national conservation instead of coercion that is wanted.

Talking with a newspaperman back from Washington the other day, he told of trying out a meat shop right close to the main drag which advertises horse meat — choice stuff from "young wild western horses". He bought a roast and thought it quite tasty. Cost less than half the prices of beef. He was afraid, however, that in time they would be ringing in "18-year-old farm horses", or something.

Children in the country, here's a war job for you. The National Research Council needs 100,000 lbs. or more of the common milkweed, for experiments in blending with certain types of synthetic rubber. It will be paid for. Farmers who have goodly stands of the weed can cut with a binder, leaving a long stubble of at least 8 inches and making small sheaves. Dried sheaves shipped collect to Ottawa will be worth $30 a ton. For further information write Dr. Harold A. Senn, Division of Botany, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Having a chat in his office one day recently with Fred McGregor, chief enforcement officer for Canada of the Wartime Prices Board, I had a look at some of the counterfeit gas ration coupons seized when Black-Marketeers of a ring were roped in. Pretty clever imitation they were, but eventually the law caught up with the racketeers. Enforcement in control legislation is a big job, taken on a nation-wide scale.

When you hear of abandoned farms, you think of former drought areas of western Canada. Therefore it might jolt far easterners and far westerners to know that an official release just out shows that in Eastern Canada there are between 12,000 and 13,000 farms, covering about a million and a half acres, abandoned, lying idle for some time. Surveys show, paralleling the western causes much the same, they were abandoned because land was originally submarginal for agricultural purposes; some because of unsound farm practices, etc.

It is amazing the number of people who come in a continual flow, from various parts of Canada and the United States, and visit the Peace Tower. To reach the top and get that wonderful panorama view from the balcony right under the big clock, one has to climb a couple of short series of stairs and ascend by two different elevators — one slow, the other faster. The attendants everywhere are, I find on every visit, most courteous. The Memorial Chamber is worth a visit to Ottawa alone. On the descent one is always given a good view of the famous carillon bells.

They say the cost of living in Ottawa is really high, but how does it compare with things out your way? Here are a few average prices listed by The Ottawa Citizen the day of this writing: sirloin steak 40.8 lb.; round steak 38.8 lb.; prime rib rolled roast 42.2 lb.; ham, boiled, 67.5 lb. and medium bacon 48.1 lb.; grade "A" eggs, 44.3 dozen, creamery butter 38.5; Canadian cheese 33.4 lb.; oranges 40.6 cents dozen. United States anthracite stove coal at $16.75 ton; vegetable shortening 19.1 lb. I do know restaurant eating, piece by piece, is high — but if one shops around off the main by-ways it is possible to dine reasonably, even if not in fancy surroundings.

Simple Diet Plenty

To hear some persons talk, one would suppose that the country is being deprived of the essentials to satisfy hunger. It is those who want six or eight-course meals who complain most. They seem unaware that the bulk of mankind subsists upon a simple diet of bread and greens, with an accasional supplement of fish or meat.

Kentville (N.S.) Advertiser

In Canning Time

There are a number of reports of fruits and vegetables processed at home this year having spoiled due to poor rubber rings. . . . Women who have preserved . . . for years with consistent success attribute failures to the poor quality of rubber used in sealing the bottles. Surely . . . a situation of this kind should never have arisen.

This War At Home

Because it is one of the greatest enemies of public health, the common house fly should not be tolerated in the home or its surroundings, or in shops offering food for sale. Most effective method of control consists in eliminating breeding places and proper disposal of manure and garbage.

Maintaining The Faith

Dr. J. Winfield Fretz, of Bethel College, Newton, Kansas, speaking to Canadian Mennonites told them to retain their traditions. He said: "We have weakened our Christian testimony as Mennonites in that our conduct has been no different than that of anybody else. Too many of our people have been intimately associated with worldly associations."

"I need a quarter to pay Mr. Schultz. I worked for him in his candy store today."

Laugh 'n Like It!

A city business man sends this instance of the sort of posers with which his young hopeful beguiles his leisure hours:

"Daddy, why do you wind up a business when you want it to stop?"

Prof.—Didn't you have a brother in this class last year?

Student — No, sir, it was I. I'm taking it over.

Prof. — Extraordinary resemblance.

The teacher had asked her class to write a short composition on the subject "water."

One scholar seemed to be having difficulty, but finally he turned in his paper, and here is what he wrote:

"Water is a light-colored wet liquid which turns dark when you wash in it!"

Friend — But isn't your son sort of listless, Mr. Moneybags?

Mr. Moneybags — Heavens, no; he has a list of blonds, a list of brunettes, and a list of redheads.

The A.R.P. worker was trying on tin hats, but couldn't get one to fit him.

"What is your size?" he was asked.

"Eight and a quarter."

"It's not a tin hat you want," said his chief, "but an air-raid shelter."

"Chesty is one of the oddest men I ever saw."

"How so?"

"Why, when a fellow borrows a quarter and doesn't pay it back, Chesty finally admits that it is the quarter he cares about, and not the principle of the thing."

Girl: But they can make a girl feel like a chicken.

Former Townsman Suddenly Bereaved

Late Mrs. Percy M. Sanford

Sympathy of many friends in this community is extended to Percy M. Sanford, in the sudden passing of his wife, at Moncton, N.B., last Saturday, August 28, while on a visit with her husband.

Mrs. Sanford, the former Eleen Davis, was a native of Montreal, and had been on the Bank of Montreal staff in that city for 14 years. She was 33 years of age.

Prior to their marriage Mr. Sanford — brother of Fred Sanford of this town — was employed here with T. McOuat & Son for some time, and during his residence here made many friends. He is now Montreal branch manager of the P. B. Yates Machine Company.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon in the Church of the Ascension, Park Avenue, conducted by Rev. Arthur E. Coleman. Interment was made in Mount Royal Cemetery.

Old and Respected Resident Mourned At Rivington

Late Mrs. Robt. Wm. Stewart

Rivington — The passing of an old and esteemed resident occurred Monday, August 16, with the death of Hanna McVicar, youngest daughter of the late Walter Mcvicar, of Harrington, and beloved wife of the late Robert Wm. Stewart. Mrs. Stewart was a lifelong resident and a pioneer of this district. She was born at Dunany, December 14, 1852. Her death followed several years of ill health. She was predeceased by her husband 25 years ago.

She was a generous supporter of the Baptist Church. She was an honorary member of the North Star L.O.B.A. in Harrington. Also when the franchise was granted to women, she was the second lady to cast her vote in Harrington constituency; she had a son, Thomas, then serving overseas in the Great War.

Mrs. Stewart will be greatly missed by all who knew her. She was ever ready to give a helping hand in sickness or distress.

Left to mourn her loss are her daughter, Mary Jane, of Montreal, her sons, Amos, of Lachine, George, of Port Arthur, Thomas, of Lachute, Stephen, of Kilmar, Joe, at the homestead in Rivington, and Albert, also of Kilmar. Another son, David, of Bladworth, died in 1923. There remain 18 grandchildren, two great grandchildren, also one sister, Mrs. Jas. Nixon, of Avoca, and one brother, T. J. McVicar, of Victoria, B.C.

The funeral took place at her late residence, and was attended by many sympathizing friends and relatives. The Rev. Frank Swackhammer, of Montreal, assisted by the Rev. Allan Gilmore, of Rivington Baptist Church, officiated. Pall-bearers were her five sons and her brother-in-law, Walter J. Stewart, of Vankleek Hill. Interment took place in the family plot at Avoca Cemetery. Many floral tributes bore testimony of the esteem in which she was held.

Among those attending from a distance were — Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Moore, of Napanee, Mr. Wm. Moore and son, Harris, of Thurso, Mrs. Sarah Brown and Mr. Jas. McFarlane, of Montreal, Mrs. Wm. Deacon, of Tetreaultville, Mr. and Mrs. Willie McVicar, and Mr. Fred McVicar, of Vankleek Hill; Mr. John Cunning, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Cunning, of St. Eugene.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

Extension of Compulsory Employment Transfers.

To Employers and Employees:

THE 6th Compulsory Employment Transfer Order, issued under authority of National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, requires compliance not later than September 8th, 1943. After that date no employer may continue to employ any man covered by this Order, unless under special permit.

The first five Compulsory Transfer Orders listed occupations, and required compliance by all male employees in those occupations if (a) in an age and marital class designated under the Military Call-up, or if (b) 16, 17 or 18 years of age. The Sixth Order repeats all occupations given in the five earlier Orders, and requires all other men from 16 to 40 years of age (both ages inclusive) to become available for transfer to higher priority jobs, by registering at the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

Details of the Sixth Order were advertised in daily newspapers at the end of August. Copies of the Order may be secured from any Employment and Selective Service Office.

If in doubt as to the coverage of this Order, or the procedure under it, ask your nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

All men, married or single, employed in designated occupations, aged 16 to 40, are now covered by the Orders. To avoid penalties, those who have not yet registered must do so by September 8th, 1943.

Pretty Wedding in St. Simeon's Church

Jones - Milnes

The marriage of Miss Joyce Elizabeth Milnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Milnes, of Lachute Mills, Que., and Mr. Idris Wynn Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Jones, of Asbestos, Que., took place at four o'clock Saturday afternoon in St. Simeon's Church, Lachute. Rev. B. J. Thorpe officiated and Miss R. Todd played the organ. White and pink gladioli formed the decorations in the church.

The bride was attended by Miss Theresa Ellis, of Rumford, Maine, as maid of honor. Mr. Fred Molson, of Asbestos, acted as best man, while the ushers were Mr. Dawson Burwash, of St. Andrews East, Que., and Sgt. Pilot George Leggett, of Lachute Mills.

Given away by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin, the lower part of the skirt being of white taffeta, and a row of white satin appliqued leaves marking the dividing line.

The bodice had a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves forming points over the hands. She wore a finger-tip veil of white tulle illusion, carried an arm bouquet of deep red roses and baby's breath. The maid of honor wore a floor-length gown of Queen's blue jersey and a matching blue halo hat with shoulder-length veil, carrying an arm bouquet of deep pink roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Milnes, the bride's mother wore almond green crepe with brown accessories, and a corsage of deep pink roses. Mrs. Jones, mother of the bridegroom wore dark blue crepe with black accessories, and a corsage of deep red roses.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple left for a wedding trip to the Laurentians. They will reside in Asbestos.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Evan Jones, Mrs. F. Molson, Mr. Clare St. Dizier, Mr. Emil Kendler, Miss Patricia Moxcey, and Miss Janice Moxcey, all of Asbestos; Mr. and Mrs. G. Wilen, of Three Rivers; Mrs. C. Payan, Mrs. S. W. Milnes and Miss Phyllis Eastman, all of Montreal.

The bride, popularly known in this community, is a graduate of McGill University.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Memorial Services In Honor of Late Dr. R. L. Ballantyne

St. Andrews E. — The Presbyterian Church here will observe the 125th anniversary of the founding of its congregation, with special services on Sunday next.

Guest preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. Malcolm Campbell, D.D., past moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The memory of the late Dr. R. L. Ballantyne, onetime pastor of the St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, will also be honored. The unveiling of a memorial window will take place, and a tablet in memory of Dr. and Mrs. Ballantyne will also be dedicated.

Baptist Churches at Grenv'l and Chatham Observe Anniversary

Brownsburg — Sunday, August 22, was a red letter day in the annals of the Grenville and Chatham West Baptist Churches. Favored with excellent weather the churches held anniversary services, at Grenville in the morning and at Chatham West in the evening.

The pastor, the Rev. T. J. Rich of Brownsburg, conducted the services. The guest preacher was the Rev. G. Sherman, of Sparta, Ont., an old and valued friend and one time pastor of both churches, who although he was on vacation, gladly consented to preach.

For the preacher it was a red letter day also, as he was back in the Grenville church where he was ordained. Many were the old friends who warmly greeted him and his beloved wife.

The messages delivered were of an exceptionally high order. Several of the illustrations used were drawn from actual experiences on the field over 20 years ago. The preacher pleaded with old and young to give themselves in absolute surrender to Jesus Christ while opportunity remained.

The Rev. Sherman is this year vice-moderator of the Elgin Association of Baptist Churches.

The soloist at both services was Miss Helen McFaul. Her rendition of "I heard the voice of Jesus say" and "Jesus Lover of my Soul" (to a new setting), was greatly enjoyed. She was warmly thanked by the pastor for her contributions. Miss Shirley Heatley, the church organist, played at both churches.

On Monday evening an anniversary supper was held at the Chatham West church.

After a short devotional period, conducted by the pastor, a musical programme was provided by Miss C. Cook, Mrs. T. J. H. Rich, Mr. J. Heatley, Jr., and Miss Helen McFaul. A trio of little girls also sang two numbers — Verna Tomalty, Shirley Rich and Joyce Tomalty comprised the trio.

The Rev. and Mrs. Sherman were entertained by the Rev. and Mrs. Rich while in the community, and on Monday morning left for Brockville on the first lap of the homeward journey.

Christian Science Lesson-Sermon

"Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 5.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 37: 37. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; (Romans 8: 16, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "A picture in the camera or a face reflected in the mirror is not the original, though resembling it. Man, in the likeness of his Maker, reflects the central light of being, the invisible God. As there is no corporeality in the mirrored form, which is but a reflection, so man, like all things real, reflects God, his divine Principle, not in a mortal body." (Page 305).

Regular Baptist Church At Brownsburg Is Scene of Wedding

Kennedy - Blair

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Lillian Blair, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Blair, of Perth, Ont., to Cpl. Joseph Gerald Kennedy, R.C.O.C., Barriefield Camp, Kingston, Ont., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. L. Kennedy, of Pine Hill, Que., took place at Regular Baptist Church in Brownsburg Saturday afternoon, August 21, at three o'clock, the Rev. Geo. B. Hicks, of Lachute, officiating.

An arch of mixed summer flowers in a color scheme of pink and white formed the decorations. The wedding marches were played by Miss Lorna Tomalty, cousin of the bride, who also played "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Gladys Blair, as bridesmaid. Mr. Graham Kennedy was best man for his brother.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white d'esprit with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her full-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and maiden hair fern, her ornament being a string of peals, the gift of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaid wore a street-length dress of tropical blue rayon crepe, with shoulder-length veil held in place by flowers, and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli with maiden hair fern.

Mrs. Blair, mother of the bride, wore a dress of alpaca weave in congress blue, with hat of the same shade and white accessories, and a corsage of pink Delight roses. Mrs. Kennedy, mother of the groom, wore a dress of Queen's blue figured French crepe with navy accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Merlyn Evans, Lachute Mills, after which the happy couple left on their honeymoon for Ottawa, Niagara Falls and other points.

For travelling the bride wore a petal blue tailored two-piece wool suit, with white accessories and a corsage of pink gladioli.

When his furlough expires Cpl. Kennedy will return to Barriefield Camp, where he is stationed as instructor with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

PRESERVES and SWEET SPREADS ARE RATIONED BY COUPON

The products affected include: Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, Extracted Honey, Comb Honey in Squares, Honey Butter, Maple Syrup, Maple Butter, Maple Sugar, Molasses, Corn Syrup, Cane Syrup, or any blended Table Syrup, Apple Butter or Canned Fruit.

On and after Thursday, September 2nd, 1943, it is unlawful for a consumer to purchase any of the above-listed products, except on the surrender of a valid ration coupon.

Coupons "D" in Ration Book 3 are to be used for this purpose. Coupon "D-1" becomes good September 2nd. Starting September 16th, two coupons become good every four weeks.

These products are being rationed so that there will be an equal sharing of the available supplies. Persons who do not use the coupons for these products may use them to acquire more sugar in addition to their regular sugar ration and canning sugar allowance.

ONE "D" COUPON IS GOOD FOR
Not More Than

Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, Extracted Honey, Apple Butter, Maple Butter or Honey Butter	6 FLUID OZS.
or
Maple Sugar or Comb Honey (in Squares)	½ LB. NET
or
Molasses or Maple Syrup	10 FLUID OZS.
or
Corn Syrup, Cane Syrup, or any blended Table Syrup	12 FLUID OZS.
or
Canned Fruit	10 FLUID OZS.
or
Sugar	½ LB. NET

When purchasing goods in containers, it will not always be possible for the consumer to get the exact coupon value.

EXAMPLE: If you are buying jam in containers—

One "D" Coupon is good for — one 4, 5 or 6 oz. container or two 3 oz. containers.

Two "D" Coupons are good for — one 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 or 12 oz. container, or two 5 oz. or two 6 oz. containers, or three 4 oz. containers.

or any combination adding up to not more than the total value of the coupons permitted.

SUPPLIERS — Separate instructions which are similar to the regulations of applying on sugar rationing are available from any branch of the Ration Administration, for quota users, industrial users and suppliers.

Hints for Homebodies

THE ISLAND

We have just had a week's holiday in Prince Edward Island. The Islanders rave over their Province so much it is almost amusing, but you can't blame them. It is a beautiful country. The land is a gently rolling one with well-tilled fields and little bush. There is a general appearance of comfort. Prosperous looking houses with few shabby, down-at-the-heel ones. Many of the fields are edged with evergreen trees, and the absence of weeds was very noticeable. Talk about potato field! You never saw such large ones. New Brunswick grows a good many potatoes but the fields are not as large or as frequent as in 'The Island'. The people themselves never call it anything but The Island, and the Maritimes, generally, have adopted their name. Part of the Island is red clay and everything is tinged with it. Other parts of the shore are white and there are splendid sand beaches. The bathing is specially good as the water is pleasantly warm. After having lived near the Bay of Fundy, where the water is too cold for good bathing, the warm sea water was a treat. Charlottetown is a very attractive city. It has beautiful trees and gardens, and substantial looking homes, with, of course, the sea always in evidence. The Island has a great deal to offer holiday seekers, and I hope when we Canadians are free to travel again, more of us will see this beautiful Province.

WOMEN ANNOUNCERS

In principle I am all for women announcers and newscasters, but in practise it has not worked out that way. Kay McIntosh of the Halifax station is a welcome exception. She has a clear, natural, pleasing voice, and when she reads the CBC news it is easy to follow and understandable. More power to her! If one woman can do it, there must be others, so perhaps given time, they will be discovered.

FUEL SHORTAGE

Ever since last winter there have been repeated warnings that we would be short of fuel next winter, and Municipalities have been asked to arrange for supplies of wood, as well as the wood individuals obtained. Reports in the papers indicate that very little has been done about it, owing to the difficulty in getting labor. I have read that some farmers are not cutting wood for sale because of the extra income tax, which they would have to pay. That cannot be general. Quentin Reynolds writing in a recent weekly magazine says "Moscow is already thinking of next winter. Every factory, every civil, social and political organization sends selected groups into the country for short periods. There they fell trees, cut trunks into logs and cart wood back to Moscow. There was a shortage of fuel last winter in Moscow, and thousands of apartments had to go without heat. There will be no shortage of wood next winter". The Russians can teach us many things.

QUANTITY MARKINGS

If you have been lucky enough to be able to buy a jar of jam or marmalade recently, you may have been surprised to see marked on the bottle 12 Fluid Ounces, whereas you thought you were getting a pound bottle. Actually, that is what you were getting — a pound of jam. All bottles now must be marked with their content in fluid ounces, and a 12 ounce bottle holds a pound of jam by weight Certainly the consumer is being protected more all the time. Quantity is protected and grades are marked on all canned products. We need to study these grades and quantities and purchase the ones best suited to our needs.

GRAPENUT CUSTARD

2 Eggs, 2 cups milk, ¼ cup of sugar, ½ cup grapenuts, 1 teaspoon vanilla, nutmeg.

Beat the eggs, add the sugar and stir until dissolved. Add the milk, vanilla and grapenuts and let stand for ten minutes. Pour in to a buttered baking dish and sprinkle with nutmeg. Stand in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees until the centre is set. Serve chilled.

Spreads Rationed Today

To prepare for the rationing of honey, jams, jellies and marmalades an order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board suspended the sale of these commodities to consumers from August 22 until September 2 when the rationing goes into effect.

Honey producers were specially notified that all sales of honey to consumer customers was to cease during the period of suspension and that any orders that might have been accepted for future delivery of honey should not be completed during that period. After September 2 these sales will be governed by the new rationing plan.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

TAKING BEAUTY IN YOUR EATS

Good nutrition and plenty of sleep are important to the girl who wants that "fresh as a flower" look — and nutrition doesn't mean just plenty to eat. It is the choice of food that is important in keeping energies up to par.

Very often dry or oily skin, brittle nails, blackheads and other facial eruptions are the results of poor diet. Rich sundaes, gravies, pastries and candies should be completely excluded from the diet of the girl with skin defects.

A wise daily nutritional program should be the eating of one of each of the seven basic food groups each day: A green or yellow vegetable; citrus fruits such as oranges, tomatoes or grapefruit; potatoes; milk; meat, poultry, fish or eggs; bread or cereals and butter.

Here is a menu which should serve as a basic guide for the girl who is moderately active.

Breakfast-Fruit, whole wheat bread, egg, coffee with cream.

Lunch — Vegetable plate or salad, whole wheat or enriched bread, dessert of fruit, pudding or gelatin; milk.

Dinner — Meat, fish, fowl or other protein, 1 cooked vegetable and one raw vegetable; enriched bread, custard or pudding; milk, coffee or tea.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Moscow (CP) — This year the State Children's Literature Publishing House in Moscow has published 40 books in editions totaling 1,000,000 copies.

Busman's Holiday for Wrens

Three former members of the CBC, now in training with the women's division of the Royal Canadian Navy, paid a visit to the Halifax studios recently. Happy as could be in their new service, the trio nevertheless said it was like old times to see the familiar mike. Left to Right: Delores Tingey (National Office), Marie Cronin and Marie Elder (Toronto Studios). The girls are on leave of absence from CBC just like their brothers-in-arms who left radio to go into the forces.

"No Hats" Vicar Gets New Post

Was Church of England Clergyman Who First Lifted Ban on Hatless Women in Church

London, Eng., — Rev. E. L. L. McClintock, appointed Vicar of Wateringbury, near Maidstone, was one of the first clergymen to break with the custom whereby women without hats were forbidden from entering churches.

LUMBER JILLS CALLOUS, PROUD

Queen Charlotte Islands, B.C., Aug. 28, (CP) — Canadian lumber jills are taming the giants of the forest here, as lady loggers solve the manpower shortage.

The girls are doing men's work at a west coast mill where huge spruce logs are being trimmed and readied for use in building Mosquito bombers. The jills do most of the jobs except actual felling of the trees, handling, checking, sorting and planing the 12-foot thick logs.

Husky and willing, they are putting in long days at their jobs making it possible for lumber schedules to be maintained.

It's another woman's job on the home front, tough on feminine hands, but callouses are souvenirs of the girls poling giant sitka spruce through the sorting gap to the mills.

MARINE GIRLS ARE HANNAHS

Auxiliary of Britain's Sea-Going Soldiers Get Their Nicknames Honestly

Portsmouth, Eng. (CP) — The Royal Marines — soldiers who serve on warships — have a women's auxiliary service too.

The girls wear the same blue uniform of the Women's Royal Naval Service, but there's one difference. Instead of a cap ribbon they wear the regimental badge of the corps into which they have been drafted.

It is a brass cap badge consisting of the globe, surrounded by a laurel wreath and surmounted by a crowned lion and crown. Behind the badge is a patch of scarlet cloth. The girls are known as "Hannahs" and there is a wealth of tradition behind that name.

It was in 1745 that Hannah Snell posed as a man and joined the Marines, seeing much service and fighting. At Pondicherry in 1747 she fired 37 rounds of cannon shot and received 11 wounds in her legs. Her sex still undiscovered, she worked her passage home and then, declaring she was a woman, received a pension of $150 yearly.

Troopers Learn to Darn Own Socks

Women in British Southern Area Have Taught Them to Look After Their Socks

Dover, Eng., (CP) — In Britain's Southern Army Command the soldiers are mending their own socks at a regular "sock-darning parade". Heretofore local housewives have been voluntarily doing the mending for the troops. The housewives acted as darning instructors until the men became proficient enough to do it for themselves.

"Thanks very much for the birthday cake. But what's the idea of the electric bulb on it?"

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

EVERY woman knows it's the extra touches that make a house a home. Ice-cold Coca-Cola is something she likes to add . . . to brighten the most important part of a home, the people in it.

Coca-Cola is served with pride. Everybody will be pleased. Its quality carries on, never losing the freshness of appeal which first delighted you.

Call for Coca-Cola by its full name or by its friendly abbreviation, Coke. It's the real thing.

In these days of wartime shortages, there may not be as much Coca-Cola as before. But still enough for many pauses that refresh. It's wise to buy ahead for the home refrigerator.

Dental Health Article

Focal Infection

The strong "he-man" type of individual is loath to believe that a tiny abscess at the root-end of a tooth can seriously affect his health, but dentists and physicians are agreed that such a seemingly innocuous disturbance can be a grave danger to the entire system.

Technically, such nests of bacteria are known as foci of infection. In these days of camera enthusiasts, every one knows what a "focus" is — a concentrated image. The same reasoning can be applied to the concentrated collections of bacteria at the tips of diseased teeth.

The immediate danger of focal infection is that poisonous matter — disease germs — may be fed into the blood stream, and organic ills detrimental to the general health of the individual result.

In the acute or chronic dental abcess, infection is present and the germs are either mixed with the good and swallowed or are absorbed diretly into the body through the blood and lymph streams.

There also occur "pyorrhea pockets" where bacteria are harbored free from disturbance by the oral fluids and under conditions of heat and moisture ideal for propagation and growth.

It is generally accepted that the absorption of materials from decayed teeth and diseased gums tends to lower the resistance of the body to communicable diseases of various kinds. Infections of the joints, heart, kidneys, etc., are in many cases attributable to the presence of focal infection around the roots of one or more teeth.

A tooth may look perfectly normal and give little or no pain, but there still may be an abcess at the tip of a root As this condition may be revealed by the dental x-ray film, it is excellent health insurance to make periodic visits to your dentist for a general dental check-up. It is far better to lose a tooth or two than to run the risk of focal infection.

The Dental Hygiene Commission of College of Dental Surgeons of Province of Quebec, 3632 Park Avenue, Montreal, will be glad to answer any questions relating to this article.

WEST INDIES SCENE OF PLOT, CURRENT THRILLER FILM

Don't judge this RKO chiller by its title — writes Herbert Whittaker concerning "I Walked With A Zombie," which appears this week at the Rex. Seekers after the usual cheap thrills of such epics are liable to find the whole thing a bit on the slow side. People who generally find the boogie-man business a little laughable may be pleasantly surprised.

It is true that it concerns the usual pale lady who floats around in eye-shadow and flowing veils, and that the sound of native drums do clutter up the sound-track, but "I Walked With A Zombie" has more to its credit than this would imply. Its script is constructed with more than a passing bow to possible intelligence in the audience, and its action is always logical, once you get by the original premise of the story.

Another thing in its favor is the effectiveness of its setting, which is a sugar plantation in the West Indies. As is the way of these things most of the action takes place by moonlight, and some very fine effects have been achieved in this, while the atmosphere of the Indies seemed most convincing.

To this plantation comes the pretty nurse, to look after a sick woman. She soon discovers that her patient is a zombie (and doesn't bat an eyelash when the doctor uses the word). She also finds out that the zombie's husband and his brother hate each other, having both loved the zombie. Furthermore she discovers that the zombie's mother-in-law knows more about the business of voodoo than one expects a missionary's wife to know. — Whittaker does not divulge just what the outcome of the situation is, but he recommends the picture as being far superior to the usual run of horror-fare.

Boy Scouts The World Over

The military hospital at Chatham, Ont., has publicly thanked Boy Scouts of the city for a donation of 3,000 medicine bottles collected by the boys.

Fats, so essential to the war effort, were collected by Boy Scouts of Timmins, to the total of 1,040 pounds in one day. In three collections they have netted 3,790 pounds of fat.

Boy Scouts at St. Thomas, Ont., planted 18,000 young pines and European larch trees in a 15 acre field on the Elgin County gravel farm. Scouts have assisted for many years in the city's annual tree planting program.

COLLECT BOOKS FOR FORCES

Boy Scouts, of Windsor, Ont., in a one day drive, collected more than 6,000 books for the armed forces. At one home they netted 30 volumes of "Book of the Month Club" selections. This was the second such drive by the Windsor Scouts, the first drive netting them more than 5,000 books.

SCOUTS RESCUE AIRMEN

Two Boy Scouts, Jack Tipping and Jack Holstead, of Yorkton, Sask., saved the lifes of two English airmen when their canoe upset in the Red River. The Scouts responded to their cries for help and brought them safely to shore little the worse for their adventure.

R.A.F. PERSONNEL HELPS OUT

So many Canadian Scout leaders have enlisted in the armed forces that the problem of leadership has become acute. At Truro, N.S., however the problem has been solved by British Scouts serving at the nearby R.A.F. training station. Twenty-four of them are members of a station Rover Scout Crew, and they give leadership assistance to 19 Wolf Cub Packs and Boy Scout Troops in the area.

WOLF CUB SETS RECORD

Donald Penrose of Winnipeg is only 11 years old, but he has set the record for war services among all Boy Scouts in the Province of Manitoba. This Wolf Cub was recently presented with his 700 Hour War Service Badge. His war work ranged from collecting magazines, paper and fats, to sewing quilts and making doughnuts. His mother is Regent of a Winnipeg I.O.D.E. Chapter.

BOY SCOUTS HELP AGED FARMERS

Boy Scouts of the 3rd Sudbury Troop carried out a unique piece of war service recently. Two of their number on an overnight hike stopped at a well kept farm operated by an elderly couple, who complained of the difficulty of securing farm labor. Returning to Sudbury the boys reported the matter to their Scoutmaster and suggested a bee by the Troop. The Scoutmaster organized a volunteer group of 13 Scouts who journeyed to the farm and spent a whole day, planting the garden, hoeing the fields, and cutting up several cords of wood with an old fashioned hand operated circular saw. Of course they accepted no pay for their work. It was their Scout's good deed for the day.

DOGS GENERAL IN U.S. ARMY, A WOMAN'S JOB

Unique Post in Defence Program, Directs Training of Fighting, Sentry, Scout, Messenger and Casualty Canines

By ADELAIDE KERR

Washington, Aug. 30, (CP) — Mrs. Milton Erlanger's love for dogs has brought her a man-sized war job different from any other woman's.

She is consultant on the dog program to the Quartermaster General of the United States Army. Which means that she is helping train the dogs that are saving soldiers' lives in tropic jungles and Arctic snows. It also means that she has the unusual job — for a woman of being military adviser to the Signal Corps.

Mrs. Erlanger, who is small, blonde and as feminine as lace, seems to have been heading toward that job for the better part of her life. As a child she loved, owned and trained dogs. As the wife of a New York manufacturer she ran a kennel of 200 dogs and collected a flock of silver show cups. So when the war broke out she helped found Dogs for Defence — an organization which has since supplied thousands of dogs for the Army's dog training program.

"We are training five different classes of dogs'," Mrs. Erlanger said in the torrential spill of words with which she discusses her favorite subject "To begin with, of course, there are sentry dogs which accompany a sentry at night. They can scent an intruder whom the sentry can neither see nor hear. And they also guard ammunition dumps and food storage plants.

"Then there are attack dogs, trained to go out on command after escaping prisoners. The main thing in their training is to teach them to stop biting once they begin. We are also training combat dogs. They are particularly useful in jungle warfare. Camouflage won't fool them. They go ahead of scouting patrols and give warnings of ambushes or attempts at infiltration.

"Messenger dogs are another important part of the program. The fifth class we are training is casualty dogs. They work at the front too. They find the wounded, dash back to their master and report them and then lead him to the spot.

GOOD NEWS FOR TEA DRINKERS

So many people in Canada drink tea that there will be a genuine feeling of satisfaction that more of it will be available for home rations after September 2nd. The Ration Board has decided this can be done because the safety of the sea route from Ceylon has so vastly improved. The millions of 'SALADA' lovers have just cause for rejoicing.

Peace needs generalship and basic training as much as war.

Speculations for Fall Session : Abolition of Prov'l Sales Tax, Legislation to Aid Proprietors

Godbout Non-Committal on Elections Next Winter; Says Reports "Amusing"

By D'ARCY O'CONNELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Sept. 8 (CP) — Reports that Premier Godbout plans to call a fall session of the Legislature and a general provincial election next winter were revived in political circles this week, but again drew no confirmation or denial from the Premier or his ministers.

When asked to comment on the reports, the Premier said: "All these reports about elections amuse me very much." His government's five-year mandate ends in October of next year.

The reports that a fall session would be called began last June shortly before the end of the 21st Legislature's fourth session. It was stated unofficially then that the fall session would deal with the financial situation of Montreal. The city's finances were placed under control of the Quebec Municipal Commission in 1940, but no plan has yet been found to provide for defaulted payments on bond issues.

When the reports were revived this week, the speculators in political circles said the Premier planned, during a fall session, to abolish the provincial two per cent sales tax and to pass legislation that would help proprietors in the province.

The Quebec Moratorium Act expired last July and since then proprietors have been obliged to make interest and capital payments on mortgages. They had been allowed to delay the payments throughout the depression period and until last year when the Premier and his cabinet decided that the situation had improved sufficiently to allow the Moratorium Act to expire.

Opposition Leader Maurice Duplessis had no comment to make on the holding of a fall session, but he did have something to say about elections. In a speech Sunday at Longueuil, Que., Mr. Duplessis said that the time "for a general provincial election has come."

"The newspapers say that Premier Godbout plans to call a winter election," he said. "Fall or winter — let them come, we are ready."

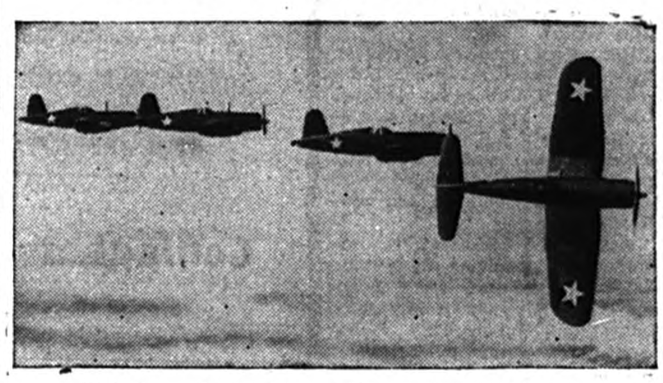

During the speech, another in a series he has made in the province since the beginning of the summer, the opposition leader said that "the time has come when Quebec should have an independent Legislature, which could handle provincial matters and affairs concerning the province without interference from the federal government." He added:

"An end should be put to this system of having a Liberal government in Ottawa and a Liberal government in Quebec, a Conservative government in Ottawa and a Conservative government in Quebec."

One of the things Quebec should be allowed to handle without federal interference, he said, was the sale of beer and alcoholic liquor.

"Quebec will never stand for prohibition. If the other provinces want it let them have it, but Quebec wants no part of it. We can make a law for Quebec that will really encourage temperance".

Responsibility of Parents in Child Education Is Strongly Emphasized

Opening Ceremonies Attract Largest Gathering in Local School History; Overflow Crowd at Civic Auditorium

The 1943-44 school year for "Lachute High" commenced with enthusiasm, surpassing all previous school opening gatherings, as the Auditorium was packed with an overflow of pupils, teachers, parents and friends, many of whom were unable to find seating capacity.

In similar gatherings of the past year or two, the seriousness of the war situation seemed to dampen the feelings of those present, and there was a certain quietness in evidence. But this year, there was a steady hum of conversation among children, friends and families, as though the war outlook had taken a turn for the better — a seeming anticipation of the good news that followed on the morrow, with the surrender of Italy.

Chairman Geo. Y. Deacon called upon the Rev. H. Charlton to open the proceedings with prayer. The chairman then expressed the pleasure of the school board in welcoming some of the "old" teachers back, and gave a greeting to the new ones. He reviewed briefly the progress of the past eleven years since consolidation, and the new plan compelling children from the age of 6 to 14 years to attend school, free of cost.

Mr. Georges H. Héon, B.A., LL.M., was then asked to say a few words. He congratulated the school winners, but added the warning that "it is not always the prize-winners that make the greatest success in later life," and he advised all the pupils to "keep plugging, keep cool and be deliberate", as a guarantee of becoming "good, sound and useful citizens in the future."

The Rev. E. Orsborn was then invited to speak, and he based his message upon the text found in Galations, "that we share one another's burdens". After a brief introduction, he stressed the practical aspect of his thoughts . . . the burdens of the school board in wartime, of how they were confronted with the problems of changing staff, scarcity of teachers, the spirit of restlessness among students with the appealing possibility of earning $1,000 a year at the immature age of 16, and the desire of many to get away from responsibility. Quoting Churchill's words, that "the price of victory is responsibility", he urged the students to remember that fact.

Mr. Orsborn spoke of the condition in a certain theological college, where students were protesting against the teaching of Greek because it was "too hard", and he urged those present "to do things that were difficult" because of their importance in character-building.

The all-important factor of teaching respect was forcibly emphasized by Mr. Orsborn. He suggested to the principal, that if any pupil should lack respect to a teacher, the problem could be easily solved by sending the pupil home for one week, so that the parents could teach him the full meaning of respect . . . and if that proved ineffective, he advocated a "double dose", or two weeks at home; then if lack of respect still persisted, he would advise the pupil to stay home for good.

Mr. Orsborn strongly appealed to the parents to bear their full portion of responsibility; he suggested that there was a great temptation on the part of parents to send their children to Sunday School once a week to learn the better things of life, but to neglect the application of these better principles the other six days.

The speaker decried those advocates of Social Security who placed the government as the sole agency of solving problems. "I like Social Security, but hate social suicide", he said. In concluding he spoke directly to the parents, saying: "You have a job to do; the school board and the teachers need your co-operation, and I hope that they will get it".

A few remarks were then given by Jas. W. McGibbon, M.P., who first of all reminisced about his school days and jocularly disclaimed all the guilt of carved names on the desks, as charged by the chairman. He commended the address of the Rev. Orsborn, and suggested that the parents keep up their interest throughout the year.

Concluding Mr. McGibbon advised the pupils to "keep your work up-to-date, complete your work every night, so that the success of the school may portray the spirit of the community". He closed with the hope that the coming year would be enjoyable and successful.

The Rev. W. Rosborough expressed his pleasure in being present, and welcomed the new teachers to the High School. His brief talk was based upon the thought, "Whosoever compels you to go one mile, go twain", and he claimed that the idea was to change a burden into a pleasure, with the suggestion to school children that they should do all that they could, and more. Mr. Rosborough hoped that the school would have the best year in all history.

Chairman Deacon interspersed a few observations of the County School system, and, extended an invitation to all present to attend a meeting some time next month, when prominent educationalists would be present. He conveyed regrets of the Rev. B. J. Thorpe and of Mr. J. W. Gall, in their inability to be present. Mr. Deacon also reviewed changes made in the school during the past year, with the securing of a radio-gramophone combination for cultural purposes, and improvement in the location of the manual training room.

Lachute High School Honor Roll

Past students of the Lachute High School serving in His Majesty's forces were remembered during the school exercises. The gathering also stood in silent remembrance as seven names of those who have given their lives were read out.

The honor roll now has the impressive total of 185 names inscribed, and the request was made that, if there are others which should be added, relatives would kindly notify the principal, Mr. C. Howard Bradford.

Inspector L. J. King was then called upon. He said that he was happy to assist in the school opening exercises. Mr. King asked that those responsible would instil high hopes and ideals in the minds of the school children. He closed with wishes for a successful year.

The spiritual aspect of Christianity was advocated by the Rev. H. Charlton in his brief message. "Christ was a great teacher", he said, "and He appointed his disciples so that they could fill their minds with the spirit of Christ. That was their education". Mr. Charlton claimed it was necessary to do everything possible to secure the best in education, but added that the command of Christ to "take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me" was all important, so that children would be good citizens and followers of Christ, "knowing of all things of this world and of the things to come".

Chairman Deacon then called upon Principal C. Howard Bradford, B.A., to address the gathering. Mr. Bradford spoke directly to the parents, informing them on various aspects of the school life. He used the simile of two forces, the home and the school, pulling together, so that the load (the pupil) would reach the destination — graduation.

Mr. Bradford gave some insight into the routine of school work, so that the parents would know just what work was required by the students. He advised them that there was a change in the system of exams, that home-work was written on the board every night for pupils to copy, and that an exam, for the means of "stock-taking", would be held every Friday.

Dealing with home-work, Mr. Bradford claimed it was necessary for students in grades V, VI and VII to work an hour and a half each evening, and that in the higher grades, two hours should be devoted to study. He dealt with the proper motive of home-work. . . . the idea of creating a healthy desire to appreciate good books and good music, and the "habit formation" of using leisure time profitably.

Mr. Bradford appealed to the parents to find an ideal place of study for their children, so that conflicting noises or distractions would not divert concentration. He also reminded the students that they could not do their best work, if one ear was "glued to the radio" or their minds were focused on the "corner store".

Before the prize distribution, Chairman Deacon paid a tribute to the late E. H. Wilson, who had been on the school board for 28 or 29 years and had given a great service to the school.

Memorials Unveiled, 125th Anniversary Of Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews E.

ONLY SEVEN MINISTERS OF CONGREGATION IN CENTURY AND A QUARTER

St. Andrews East — The Presbyterian Church was taxed to capacity Sunday morning. The occasion was the observance of the National Day of Prayer, the 125th anniversary of the founding of the congregation, and the unveiling of a memorial window to the late pastor, Dr. R. L. Ballantyne, and a tablet to the memory of Dr. Ballantyne and Mrs. Ballantyne.

The late Rev. R. L. Ballantyne held the unusual distinction of having had a second ministry in three of his four charges. His first ministry at St. Andrews East was for nine years, the second for more than a decade until he retired in 1941. He died at the home of his son-in-law, Rev. Harold Brown, at Ormstown, on April 9, 1942, only a few weeks after the death of his wife.

Friends of the Ballantyne family and former members of the congregation came from far and near. The simple and dignified ceremony was carried out by Dr. Malcolm Campbell, past moderator of the General Assembly, assisted by the minister of the congregation, Dr. Wm. MacMillan and Rev. Charles Peter McGregor, who as a boy attended the Sunday School of this congregation.

Messages of regret at not being present, and carrying good wishes and appreciation of the life and pastorate of the late Dr. Ballantyne, were read. The sermon was preached by Dr. Campbell, who made mention of the historic record of the past, and the sterling character of the late pastor. Dr. Campbell and Dr. Ballantyne had received their doctorate from the Presbyterian College at the same convocation, in 1926.

St. Andrews Church has passed another milestone. Of the ministers who served this congregation, only one is living today. In a century and a quarter the congregation has had but seven ministers. Of these seven, four were doctors of divinity.

The church and grounds constitute the beauty spot of the town. The interior of the church is beautiful and dignified; as one visitor remarked, "This is a shrine!" The surrounding grounds and the manse are all in keeping with this impressive beauty.

The evening service, which was well attended and at which the United Church joined, was conducted by the pastor, assisted by the Rev. Donald L. Gordon, of the United Church, who preached the sermon.

History of the Church

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church is one of the oldest Protestant churches in Canada. Its first recorded document is dated 1816 and its first regular minister, Rev. Dr. Archibald Henderson, M.A., of Carlisle, England, arrived in St. Andrews in 1818. His credentials included a letter from the Earl of Bathurst to the Governor-General, Sir John Sherbrooke. He served this church for 40 years.

The present stone church itself was built in 1819-20 on a site given by the Seigneur, Sir John Johnson, Bart. Unique are its tower with an ornamental iron thistle projecting from its spire, and an historic bell (donated by Sir John), which was cast in Amsterdam in 1764 and was once used in the Mohawk Valley to call the slaves from the fields.

The second minister, who also served for 40 years, was Rev. Daniel Paterson, D.D., of Greenock, Scotland. In succession served Rev. R. L. Ballantyne, Rev. Dr. Ross, Rev. J. Burgess, Rev. Robert Millar, and for the second time, Rev. R. L. Ballantyne, who was minister until January, 1939.

In 1925 the church was gutted by fire, only the stone walls and roof being left intact. It was soon rebult. Mrs. Philip Seipp, of New York, a warm friend and a former member, generously donated all its stained glass windows, a pipe organ, baptismal font of Italian marble and other gifts.

Hon. G. Dansereau Guest Speaker At Lions Club

The Lions Club held an interesting session at their fortnightly gathering at the Lachute Golf Club last evening. Lion President F. Legault was in the chair and had as special guest of the evening the Hon. Georges E. Dansereau, who was introduced by Past President Lion G. Valois and thanked by Lion James McGibbon, M.P.

Mr. Dansereau expressed pleasure at being present and gave a happy, informal talk stressing the fine spirit of harmony evident in the club. He commended particularly the soldiers' cigarette fund, the blood donor clinic, and other achievements in which the members were giving such practical help.

Lion President Legault then welcomed Squadron-Leader Wilson Gall, who in a humorous vein related a number of incidents relating to the early days of flying, and briefly sketched some thrilling experiences encountered.

Thanks to Sqd.-Ldr. Gall were extended by Lion Bill Cottingham and reports on the blood clinic and the cigarette fund were given by Lions Dr. FitzGerald and Gordon McOuat, respectively.

The president announced that next meeting would be held on September 22, at which two new members would be enrolled.

Former Teacher Now Overseas

St. Andrews East — The former pupils of Gerald Taylor, who was a master at Lachute High School for several years and principal of St. Andrews East Consolidated School for a year before joining the staff of St. Laurent High School, will be interested in his military career. At present he is an officer in the R.C.A.F. and while in London has "done the sights" and dined with some of his pupils from this community. He has been posted to India as an instructor.

FIGHT AGAINST FLU'

Adelaide, Australia — (CP) — Research workers here have discovered an influenza vaccine which gives an increase in immunity in at least 50 per cent of cases.

ANOTHER BLACK MARK

London (CP) — Compulsory blood donation is reported to have caused the deaths of 19 of 74 Norwegians from Televaag held prisoner in Germany.

HERE AND THERE

BACK ON THE JOB

London (CP) — Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore who retired from the R.A.F. at his own request in March, 1942, to make way for younger men is back with the R.A.F. as Air Vice-Marshal. He will advise the Air Council on post-war strength of the R.A.F.

HELP U.S. FORCES

Suva (CP) — The British colony of Fiji, once noted for cannibalism among the natives, is granting reciprocal aid to U.S. forces stationed there to the value of almost $30,000,000 annually.

CRIPPS SCORES STRIKERS

Bristol, Eng. (CP) — Sir Stafford Cripps, Minister of Aircraft Production, in an address here condemned workers he said were going on strike or witholding their labor for more wages or better conditions. He said such persons were "saboteurs."

JOINING THE WINNERS

Moscow (CP) — More than 100 soldiers of various nationalities, including Danes, Czechs and Slovaks, have deserted the German army and joined Soviet guerrilla detachments.

FARMERS ON THE JOB

Chelmsford, Eng. (CP) — Home Guards in Essex were excused from week-day parades during August because most of them are farm workers and had harvest work to do.

ITALY'S CAPITULATION HIGHLIGHTS WAR NEWS

The announcement of Italy's surrender to the Allied arms came shortly before noon yesterday — thus eliminating from the conflict a considerable factor in the Axis forces.

Newspaper cartoonists, among others, have already struck a cautious note in this turn of events — a warning applicable to every Canadian community engaged in war work and home-front production. — This further success to the Allied cause must not blind us with exultation, nor detract one iota from our perseverence and determination to win. Italy is not yet taken . . . and it's still a long stride to Berlin and Tokio.

Community Picnic Held at Cushing

Cushing — The community annual picnic dinner was held Saturday in the Stone Hall, where old friends met for a social time. This was followed by a program of sports for the children and an enjoyable session of dancing at night.

Mr. S. H. Beecher, of Lilac Lodge, also of Montreal, was master of ceremonies for the children's program. This was much appreciated, as Mr. and Mrs. Beecher have one son "doing his bit" on the dangerous Italian front, and the other on convoy duty, yet they still had the interest of other people's children at heart.

Prize-list for the racing events was as follows:

Children 5 years and under — Freddie Dorion, Mary Meservey, William Adams.

Girls 6-8 — Myrna Gaston, Myrtle Gaston.

Girls 9-13 — Mona McGain, Marjorie Beecher.

Boys 14-17 — Robert Maw, Gordon Rushton.

Girls' Three-Legged Race — Marjorie Dorion-Geraldine Campbell; Mona McGain-Jean Genest.

Boys' Wheelbarrow Race—James Dorion-Maynard McKiddie; George Dorion-James Dugan.

Consolation Race—Anne Neville, Margaret Dorion.

Social Evening At Lakefield, Que.

Lakefield — A successful bonfire and social was held at the home of Mr. Austin Kyle on Saturday evening, sponsored by the Women's Institute. The weather was favorable and a large crowd gathered to enjoy the program of songs, tap dancing and recitations; Mrs. Churchill was the piano accompanist.

Miss Lilian Riley, of Montreal, held the lucky ticket for a silk quilt.

The Institute wish to take this opportunity of thanking Mr. and Mrs. Kyle for their kindness, also Mrs. Churchill, all the artists — and others who contributed to the success of the evening.

The sum of $52 was realized.

Hunting Seasons And Closing Dates For Fishing

Dates for closing of the fishing season, also for the opening and closing of hunting for this district, are furnished by E. G. Pridham, Provincial Fish and Game Overseer, as follows:

Partridge Hunting

In connection with the hunting of spruce and birch partridge in Quebec, a recent order-in-council lays out the following conditions:

1. No one may hunt or capture more than five birds per day;
2. No one may have possession of more than three days legal hunt;
3. One month after the closing of the hunting season, namely after the 22nd of December, no one may be in possession of partridge.

Silver Wedding of Centreville Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hooker, of Centreville, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding on Saturday, September 4. Mrs. Hooker was formerly Miss Helen Watson, and the couple were married in London, England, during the last war.

The host and hostess entertained their neighbors and close friends at a supper and during the evening a dance was held for the younger members of the party. Many congratulations, and good wishes were received, also gifts of silverware and a purse of silver. Mr. and Mrs. Hooker thanked their many friends.

Cpl. E. W. Hooker, R.C.A.F., the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Hooker, was present for the happy occasion.

Out-of-town guests included — Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peace and daughter, Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Salthouse and Mr. Edwin Kellar, all of Montreal.

Promotion for Capt. L. Morris

Among promotions announced by the Department of Defence at Ottawa this week are included 42 officers and four other ranks of the Canadian Army overseas.

From Military District No. 4 (Montreal), Capt. Leslie W. J. Morris, of Lachute, is now promoted to the rank of Acting Major. Capt. Morris has been serving overseas for a considerable time with the Forestry Corps.

PRICE CONTROL

News and Notes

NEW RENTALS REGULATIONS EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 1

Rentals regulations, effective October 1, make no provision for landlords to apply for increased rentals if the rate charged is less than that generally prevailing on October 11, 1941, for similar accommodation in the neighborhood, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board states.

Landlords having reason to seek adjustments under this provision of the present regulations must make application not later than September 30, the last date on which present rental control-laws are effective.

Since the beginning of national rent control provisions have existed whereby landlords renting properties at rates below prevailing levels for certain specified reasons could apply for adjustment.

NEW ORDER GOVERNS LEASE TERMINATION

The Rentals Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announces that after October 1 tenants of housing accommodation will no longer be able to perpetuate their leases in favor of subtenants of the lease. This provision is contained in the new, recently announced rentals order, which becomes effective October 1.

If the tenant assigns the lease or sublets the entire accommodation for the balance of the term of the leace the landlord is entitled to recover possession at the end of the term of the lease under provincial law.

WOMEN'S CLOTHES TO BE LABELLED

Both manufacturers and consumers will benefit from a new order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board which requires that all women's, misses' and juniors' coats, suits and sport jackets must now carry the manufacturer's identification. This must be either on the garment or on a label attached to it and must consist of the manufacturer's name or his Prices Board licence number or his registered trade mark. It must also bear the style number and size of the garment.

The new move was necessitated by the multitude of fabrics used and lack of uniformity in style and price ranges. The order maintains the style "freeze" announced, last winter.

In 1942 more than thirty-five million pieces of mail were sent to members of the Armed Forces Overseas.

Moisture and Air In Filling Silos

In experiments conducted in the past 20 years it has been found that the moisture content of the crop is the most important factor. The most suitable moisture content is around 65 per cent, but it is possible to make reasonably good silage with the moisture ranging from 5 per cent above or below that amount. Next in importance, is the control of the air in the silage mass. It is undesirable to force all of the air from the interspaces of the cut crop, only a small amount of air being necessary for the functioning of the ensilage process.

To provide the proper amount of air in the silage, the following precautions should be observed: (1) The walls and the doors of the silo should be airtight. See that there are no small holes or cracks; (2) The moisture content of the crop should be about 65 per cent; (3) The silage cutter should be set to cut in ¼ lengths; (4) The silo should be filled as quickly as possible. Holdups over 24 hours should be avoided; (5) The heaviest and wettest material should be placed on top to provide pressure on the entire mass; (6) A limited amount of drainage should be located at the bottom of the silo to prevent waterlogging or accumulation of moisture; (7) Pack solidly, taking care to fill in and tramp well any pockets that may occur near the walls. Even after the silage is settled, it is well to examine the top from time to time to see if any shrinkage from the walls has occurred.

Now Best Time To Plant Peonies

Peonies are general garden favorites in all parts of Canada. They flourish in any good garden soil and under a great variety of climatic conditions. They will not grow well in poor, sandy soil not in a position which is flooded for any length of time in spring.

September is the best time to divide and transplant peonies, but they should not be moved more often than once in five years unless there is some special reason for doing so, says Miss Isabella Preston, Horticultural Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Choose a fine day for digging up the plants and take care not to damage the roots, which in a large plant may go down for a foot or more. The leaves of the plant should be cut off before starting to dig, the loose earth removed from the roots which should be kept exposed to the air for a few hours. Wash off all the soil with water. Examine the root carefully in order to find out where it can be divided with as little damage to the tubers as possible. Each division must consist of a tuber with two or three eyes, but larger divisions are better for the ordinary gardener.

Before planting, the ground should be well dug and some well rotted manure mixed in. The root should be placed so that there is about two inches of soil above the crown. Too deep planting is frequently the cause of peonies not blooming. A mulch should be put on the first year after the soil has frozen, but when the plants are well established no mulch is necessary. The leaves should be cut off each fall and burned in order to destroy any disease germs which might be present.

LONDON FIREMAN NOW MAKES ARMS

London (CP) — The answer to that question, "What became of the London fireman, the hero of the blitz?" is out. He is a munitions worker.

Not in an out-and-out factory but in any one of between 250 and 300 stations throughout London. The firemen and firewomen, confronted with a lull in German air attacks, pitched into the munitions game and are now working 100,000 man hours a month on war production.

Without direct payment, they are continually expanding an output which includes parts for fighters and bombers, submarines, courvettes, tank landing craft, tanks, several types of gun, bullets, shells and mines, equipment for paratroops and commandos, and signal appartus.

"The work," said an official, "is having a tremendous effect on morale. They feel they are contributing something useful to the war effort while standing by in readiness to fight fires".

FLIER RESCUED BY DEAF MUTE

London, (CP) — A deaf mute farm laborer, Kenneth Andrews, has been acclaimed a hero for rescuing the pilot of a British fighter plane that crash-landed and burst into flames near his home — and no one knew about it until the R.A.F. made the story public.

Without hesitation, Andrews rushed to the plane as it fell, kicked in the cockpit cover, tore at the opening with bare hands and hauled the pilot from the cockpit. The pilot was uninjured so Andrews proceeded on his way.

R.A.F. officers paid a call on Andrews to thank him, and only then did the story come out.

PRAIRIE TREES ARE VICTORIES OF LONG BATTLE

Campaign to Bring Shade to Prairie Provinces Reaches 40th Anniversary

150,000,000 Survivors of 200,000,000 Trees

By JAMES McCOOK, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 2 (CP) — A long-range campaign to bring trees to the prairies has reached its 40th anniversary with an estimated 150,000,000 victories on its roll of honor.

Each Victory is represented by a tree growing in soil where the pioneers, after they watched the seedlings they had brought from eastern Canada wilt and die, said none would prosper.

Agriculture department officials said the casualties have been heapy. Since 1903 dominion experimental farms have handed out some 200,000,000 trees to farmers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Drought, soil drifting disease and careleasness have killed 50,000,000.

But, on the halance, officials said they are well-pleased with what has been accomplished. They feel that this year in particular trees will demonstrate their benefit to the plains.

The prairie garden, left at the mercy of all the winds that blow, often turns out badly. Sheltered by a belt of trees, the same garden usually will flourish on the rich soil. Victory gardens being as popular and necessary on the prairies as elsewhere in Canada, interest in trees is expected to increase.

"We can point to so many things that trees have done for the prairies already", one official said, "In hard times a flourishing belt of trees strengthens the farmer's morale. They give shade in summer and shelter in winter. They provide fuel — hard to get these days. They give strength to dam projects under the prairie farm rehabilitation act and for the future they promise that the prairies will have to import less timber.

Trees Save Gas

"This year, because they make good gardens possible, they reduce the use of gasoline and rubber, since farmers with good gardens have fewer visits to towns for supplies".

In dollars and cents, federal authorities estimate that about $1,000,000 has been spent on the tree campaign. They estimate, too, that the value of farms has been increased $15,000,000 by the trees planted on them.

The forest nursery station at Indian Head, Sask., was established in 1903 to produce trees to withstand prairie weather conditions. In 1931, this station became part of the Dominion Experimental Farms organization after another similar station had been established at Sutherland, near Saskatoon.

Deciduous trees are distributed free and evergreens are sold at $1 a hundred. A continuous service is given by the farms organization, helping farmers keep the trees healthy through advice and inspection.

The heaviest losses were suffered in the drought years of the 30's officials said. Reports on one recent year's operations indicated an average survival of 91 per cent for broadleaf seedlings, 79 per cent for cuttings of poplar and willow, 86 per cent for spruce and 76 per cent for pine. In all, more than 10,000 prairie farms have been planted with shelter-belt trees as a result of the distribution policy, and at present another 10,000 farm locations are listed for future assistance in tree planting. Of the latter, about 4,000 are in agricultural improvement associations organized.

A New Perspective

City folks who have been exploring the countryside this summer have viewed the rural scene with both new and renewed interest. Relatively common things, such as the old woodpile, have actually aroused a spontaneous enthusiasm — bordering on excitement. The berry patch has aroused exclamations of delight among more citybreds when they discover large bunches of the glistening fruit. The unearthing of potatoes has been a source of new attention for the wayfaring city dwellers.

The urban people have been getting a "kick" out of the Swiss chard, egg plant, melons, squash, corn, celery and other vegetables at the ripening stage. Former favored haunts, such as the cattle stalls and pig pen, are almost ignored by the visitors from the city in their rush to see what's growing in the long rows. The holidayers gasp when they come upon the neatly-stacked cordwood which is the fuel supply for the coming winter. It's great to live in the small town or country, they say.

But these things have always been here, more or less. It used to be that wood-splitting was burdensome, that weeding the garden was only back-breaking and, as for the berries, you could go and help yourself for all it mattered.

War's disturbances, government regulations, labor difficulties and transportation restrictions have truly brought new meaning to country life and have created new values in the rural setting. The city tells the country that it is lucky to be independent, to have the source of supply for so many necessities, the apparent abundance of fresh eatables and time for some leisure as well.

The word is around, too, that the country general store is in a better position than many of the retail establishments in the city. Pre-war merchandise can still be bought in small-town stores. It wasn't hoarding, either, because the country merchant always did stock up for long requirements.

Yes, the big city has cause to be envious of the little spot on the map, along whose main street the tourists once sped with hardly more than a quick glance. The holiday-seekers now take a much more serious view of the advantages of small-town life. Undoubtedly, the ruralite is entering a new era!

Italy has thrown down her arms! The momentous news came shortly before noon yesterday — thus forestalling our good contemporary, the Granby Leader-Mail, whose editor, without committing himself to prophecy, had set the date at September 30. That was his forecast, at the time Mussolini stepped out of the picture. . . . It is a matter for rejoicing that our friend overestimated Italy's endurance by just three weeks.

Drive Carefully in School Areas

September almost invariably marks an increase in the number of automobile accidents, with the children the victims in most cases.

A child is naturally lighthearted, and somewhat careless or imprudent. Reopening of school after the summer holidays is a source of new distraction and, engrossed in either his homework or play, he leaves home or school and starts crossing streets without thinking of any traffic that may be coming his way. At the call of a playmate he darts across the street without looking to right or left and, should it be in front of a moving automobile, an accident is the result.

Children must be protected. Motorists should do everything in their power to prevent accidents, and should be on the alert at all times. On nearing schools, or anywhere where school children gather, motorists should always slow down keeping in mind the fact that at any moment a child may dart out from the group and fall under the wheels of his car. Even though a motorist may be in no wise responsible for an accident, he who strikes a child with his machine will suffer a remorse of conscience for not having done his utmost to prevent the accident.

Parents and teachers constantly preach caution, and frequently renew their recommendations. But a child forgets easily. Think in his place, and protect him.

Here's Hoping

We are ready for all the would-be prophets concerning conditions in the coming winter. Here is a sample of last spring's forecast for the summer of 1943:

> "Lack of rainfall and prolonged periods of heat are seen probable by meteorological experts, in the coming summer — arousing fears of acute drought, water scarcity and dried out crops."

How dismally that forecast failed, the farmers who suffered so much rain, and vacationists whose choicely timed holidays were marred by cool, inconsistent weather, know only too well. Yes, the prophets may do their worst, but in view of the fuel shortage we're hoping for a short, mild winter — and remembering the horrors of the previous one, we think we well deserve it!

Call for Old Tires and Tubes

Thanks to the splendid response of salvage committees, scrap rubber is no longer wanted as a war salvage item. Old tires and tubes, of which 10,000 tons are urgently needed by December 31 next for military reclaim purposes, are the only rubber items to be collected or accepted by salvage committees after September 30. The Fairmont Company Ltd. (Government company for the purchase of crude and scrap rubber) will discontinue the purchase of all other grades of scrap rubber after that date.

Accordingly, all salvage committees in this district are advised to discontinue collection of scrap rubber after September 30 and to redouble their efforts to collect old tires and tubes. Likewise prompt action should be taken to dispose of any quantity of scrap rubber on hand before September 30.

Labor Day With A Significance

Labor Day, 1943 — celebrated this week with too little thought for its higher possibilities — can be something better, something bigger; it can, indeed, be the beginning of a new and better day. As President Roosevelt said in his Ottawa address, there is a longing in the air not to go back after this war is over to the so-called "good old days" that followed the last Armistice. He and millions of others doubt they were so good after all.

Labor Day, in the "good old days", too often focused the bitter battle between management and labor. Or the date just marked the last holiday before going back to the winter's grind. For only a few did it mean new dedication to the constructive leadership that workers of every kind could give to the nation.

This year more of us are working than ever before. Millions have learned the meaning of labor for the first time. And, with a war to win, there's a new incentive in the air. There's a sense of national purpose that gives zest to the smallest job and makes most of us more than willing to pitch in together.

Will this new sense carry over after victory is won? The return of peace may simply bring the return of fear that next week there will be no pay envelope. It may blow off the lid entirely, bringing riots and revolts.

This must not be. We must go on and not go back. Our boys are dying over there. There's a new world to be born.

Labor Day should have a unifying significance — it should be a focus of the constructive teamwork needed to build a sound future with the wealth and work available to all and for the exploitation of none. It should be the day when all who labor on the assembly line, behind the desk, or in the corn and hay field, become brothers and fighters in the same great cause. The occasion is the common property of the whole nation, to be used for the common good. Not a day to focus on the rights of a particular group, but on the privilege of all to work together in the biggest job Canada has yet tackled. This week is as good as any other, for everybody to join in working for that new and better world, which includes us all, and is much bigger than any one of us, or any one nation.

The old adage "You can't live on love" was confirmed by Sgt. Wilf Barbeau, of the Corps of Military Staff Clerks, and his brand new bride, the former Private Belle McLeod, of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

Off to a quiet cabin on Lake Louise for their honeymoon, tragedy struck that night and temporarily ended the idyllic situation: They'd both forgotten their ration books!

Canada's Part — As Britain Sees It

Following is a fair appraisal of Canada's effort in the cause of freedom. It is a commentary in a British newspaper, published recently at the time of Churchill's arrival for the Quebec Conference. . . . .

No doubt Mr. Churchill's main purpose in visiting Canada just now is to carry a stage farther the organization of victory. But we can be sure, too, that he will welcome the opportunity of renewing his acquaintaince with Canada's contribution to the war effort.

A magnificent contribution it is. The area of Canada approximates to that of the U.S.; but so much of her territory is barely habitable that her population is only about 12 millions. Nor was Canada directly menaced by the Axis bid for power. Yet from the very first the Canadian people have flung themselves into the war effort with an energy and determination nowhere surpassed.

They have given freely: their manpower; their money; their immense natural resources. Canadian troops, after wearisome years of preparation, have played a big part in the reduction of Sicily. The Royal Canadian Navy has been continuously on escort duty.

We have largely depended on Canada for our food supplies. And twice the Dominion has voted immense sums as gifts towards the British and Allied expenses of the war — once a billion dollars and then 1,800 million dollars.

But perhaps her greatest contribution has been by way of strategic co-operation with Britain and the U.S. Of this there are two outstanding examples. The first is the construction of the Alaska Highway, which has made possible the rapid transport of supplies to bases in the Aleutians. The Highway, with its accompanying chain of airports, is a pointer to the ultimate doom of Japan. Canada's free concession to the U.S. of the right to build it is an example of neighborly co-operation which is quite without precedent and of happy omen for the future.

A comparable example of imaginative foresight is the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, of which Canada herself bears half the cost. British, Australian and New Zealand airmen, as well as Canada's own, are trained in the Dominion, where there is plenty of room to learn to fly and complete immunity from enemy interference. Without these facilities we could not, so quickly and surely have attained superiority over the Luftwaffe.

Why, one may wonder, has Canada put so much effort and sacrifice into this business of fighting Hitlerism? She was under no obligation to do so; she had every right to remain neutral, as Eire did, and as South Africa might have done, but for Smuts.

The reason is that Canadians are freedom-loving, as well as forward-looking, people; they could see as clearly as anyone that there is no room in an ordered world for the Nazi philosophy of cruelty and oppression. They could not strike too hard, or too quickly, when the call came to get rid of it.

A WEEKLY EDITOR LOOKS AT Ottawa

Written specially for the weekly newspapers of Canada

By Jim Greenblat

Because statistics show increased butter production in Canada, there are some who complain about the ration allowance. Quite appropriately this week one of the local papers dealt editorially with this matter pointing out "overseas needs" is the answer. One item, for instance, the food parcels going to our prisoners of war — 100,000 of them weekly — each includes a pound of butter, pound of dried whole milk, quarter pound of cheese. That's only a part of the overseas requirements from Canada.

In the office of J. W. G. Clark, director in chief of information for the armed services, the other day I was shown something which your boys in the forces at home and overseas will really enjoy — a series of paintings depicting scenes in various parts of Canada. These were done in oils voluntarily through a committee of Canadian artists and then reproduced in silk screen, framed 30 by 40 inches, with the cost being borne by well-known Canadian business and industrial firms. There are 25 subjects, ranging from a fishing scene in the Maritimes to a winter panorama on the Prairies, and there will be 300 reproductions of each, 7,500 in all. Every "men's" mess (not officers') will get a set or portion to suit space available. A swell idea, and while it will create nostalgia on the part of the boys, will they ever enjoy the homespun scenes. The artistry in each is superb.

Urges War On Ragweed

Dear Sir:

Through the medium of the local paper, I would like to suggest to the public spirited townsmen of Lachute, and to the civic body in particular, the necessity of a concentrated attack upon that obnoxious enemy of public health, the common Ragweed.

This weed thrives unhindered in our community, in all the vacant lots, besides the public streets and even in some cultivated gardens.

The main reason for destroying this menace is to alleviate the distress of all Ragweed allergists, or so called "hayfever" sufferers. Competent medical observers claim that continual hayfever attacks will develop into other serious conditions, such as asthma, so this problem is primarily one of public health.

In some communities it is a civic offence to allow Ragweed to grow on lots after a certain time in July, and this compulsion by local officers is backed by provincial legislation.

The season is too late this year to do anything in this respect, but no harm is done in drawing the attention of those responsible, so that next year some legislation may be placed upon the municipal program.

(A MODERN "ALL RISK" COVER TO PROTECT YOUR BELONGINGS ANYWHERE)

This is a NEW comprehensive form of cover which provides world-wide protection against any loss or damage and further eliminates the necessity of various and separate policies covering different categories of furniture and personal effects. It is the broadest cover of its type being sold today and affords you maximum protection at low cost.

Your property is insured in all situations — at your permanent residence, winter or summer home, while you are travelling locally or abroad, at your place of business, while in the hands of cleaners or laundries, restaurants, theatres, hotels, churches, clubs or elsewhere.

You will, we believe, wish more details of this latest constructive insurance.

Dedication of Honor Roll At Kilmar Church

Kilmar — An impressive service was held in the United Community Church here on Sunday, August 29, when an honor roll was unveiled containing the names of some 14 of the boys who have joined the armed forces from this community. The service was conducted by the Rev. S. J. Pike, of Brownsburg, assisted by his son, Stephen, of the R.C.A.F., Mr. C. Wheeler, of Brownsburg, and Miss E. McCoy, of Montreal. A quartet was rendered by the Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Pike and Mr. and Mrs. C. Wheeler. Mrs. Thomas Fox acted as organist, and Mrs. Wheeler also rendering several appropriate numbers.

The church was comfortably filled for the occasion. A beautiful silk Union Jack, presented to Mr. Pike some time ago to be used for patriotic purposes, adorned the pulpit. Mrs. Leslie Bigelow, who had been active in its preparation, unveiled the honor roll.

Next Sunday, September 12, the communion service will be held, as well as reception into church membership.

Christian Science Lesson-Sermon

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 12.

The Golden Text is from I Corinthians 10: 26. "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:" (Matthew 6: 19).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Sensual treasures are laid up 'where moth and rust doth corrupt.' Mortality is their doom. Sin breaks in upon them, and carries off their fleeting joys. The sensualist's affections are as imaginary, whimsical, and unreal as his pleasures. Falsehood, envy, hypocrisy, malice, hate, revenge, and so forth, steal away the treasures of Truth. Stripped of its coverings, what a mocking spectacle is sin!" (Page 241).

It's because we've cut so many corners that we've got things out of shape. The cure? Go straight. Keep on the square.

HISTORY-SHAPING ROLE

The war of arms in Italy progressing. But the war of ideas is just beginning. For in warfare today, victory in our arms is only effective if it paves the way for victory of our ideas. In the final analysis we are fighting, not to preserve our way of life, but for the chance to recreate and spread it. —Gananoque (Ont.) Reporter

OBITUARY

Funeral of Well Known Dalesville Resident

The Late John Titley

Dalesville, Que. — The funeral of the late John Titley, resident of Dalesville, took place on Monday at the Baptist Church, service being conducted by the Rev. Geo. Hicks in the presence of many sympathizing friends. Interment was made at the old Dalesville Cemetery.

The late Mr. Titley was in his 88th year. Left to mourn his passing are one son, Wibert Titley, of Lachute, and one daughter, Louise, of Montreal. Another son and a daughter predeceased him some time ago. There survive also 20 grandchildren.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

TITLEY — The family of the late John Titley, of Dalesville, tender their thanks for flowers, expressions of sympathy, and to all who assisted in any way in their recent bereavement.

FOOD for FREEDOM

● Canada's sons in the battle lines, and uncounted millions of men, women and children in a war-torn world, look to the "Nations of the West" for supplies of life . . . . . FOOD.

The farmers and other producers who are striving in the face of many difficulties to meet this great need, will find full co-operation and support in the services of The Bank of Nova Scotia. From coast to coast, our branch offices, each maintaining a complete banking service, are taking an active and necessary part in the country's activities.

If it will save time for you, banking may be done by mail safely and quickly. Our nearest branch will welcome your enquiries.

The BANK of NOVA SCOTIA

Established 1832—Over a Century of Service

War calls must come first . . .

which means that we should reduce our non-essential use of the telephone to the minimum. Present facilities cannot be increased; your co-operation is needed if war calls are to go through promptly. ¶ Please remember that the wasteful use of telephone time can hold up war business —and that every second you save counts.

COMPULSORY VOTING

It is becoming apparent that so many Liberals and Conservatives are so stupid and blind to the tornado, which will wipe them out of existence, and will determine upon retaining their identity in the next appeal to the country that compulsory voting would appear the only solution to the present political outlook.

Wed in Brownsb'g United Church

Golden - McIntyre

Brownsburg — A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Saturday, August 28, at 7 p.m. in the Brownsburg United Church, when George Golden, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Golden, of Brownsburg, and Miss Joan McIntyre, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McIntyre, also of Brownsburg, were united in matrimony, the Rev. S. J. Pike officiating.

Mrs. A. Kolosow, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Herbert Golden, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home, where a number of guests were entertained. The happy couple were the recipients of many lovely wedding gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Golden will reside in Brownsburg.

Lower Time-Loss

Since the outbreak of the war a number of changes have been made in the Labor Department's conciliation machinery with a view to bringing about quicker settlements of industrial disputes. A study of statistical information published by the department makes it evident that these changes have resulted in a very considerable reduction in the loss of manpower through strikes.

In 1942, the third year of the war, the number of wage earners in Canada reached the highest peak in all our history. There were about 60 per cent more wage earners in 1942 than there were in 1917, the third year of the last war. This higher number of workers no doubt accounts, in part at least, for the fact that in 1942 there were 113,916 workers involved in strikes as against only 50,255 workers in 1917.

However, in measuring the effects of strikes upon production the important thing is not so much the number of men involved as the number of man-days of labor lost to the nation's productive effort. In 1942 there were more than twice as many men on strike as in 1917. But the actual man-days lost was considerably less than one-half — the man-days lost in 1917 being 1,123,515 as against 450,202 man-days in 1942.

From these figures it is seen that in 1917 the average time each man remained out on strike was 22 days, whereas in 1942 the average for each man amounted to slightly less than 4 days.

While it is not possible accurately to determine all the factors leading up to this very great reduction in manpower lost there can be no doubt that much of it has been due to the improved machinery set up in recent years by the Labor Department for the speedier handling of industrial disputes.

QUANTITY OF MONEY
and volume of credit are matters of high national monetary policy.

Canada's Chartered Banks exist to perform two main services:

1. They receive the savings and other funds of the public, who thus build up bank balances in the form of savings and current accounts.

2. They advance short term loans to persons or enterprises needing money and able to repay within a stated period.

Along with these main functions the banks, through more than 3,000 branches and sub-agencies, render a large number of other important services related to local and national needs—services which have greatly increased as a result of the war.

But the quantity of money in existence in the country at any given time, and the volume of credit, are matters of high national monetary policy. The nation's own central bank, the Bank of Canada, determines them. The Bank of Canada makes extensive use of the Chartered Banks' facilities in giving effect to these policies.

The Chartered Banks' responsibility, clearly established and regulated by the Bank Act, is in the realm of commercial banking—that is, to receive deposits and to serve the needs of trade and industry.

To Prevent Accidents in Walking on Highways

Walk on the left side of the road, facing the traffic on that side, and at night carry or wear something white — a hankerchief in your hand or tied around your arm — recommends the Province of Quebec Safety League.

Motorists also have their share of responsibility and speed should be reduced as well as more attention paid to driving in the vicinity of summer residences and in suburban districts.

Correspondent in England Takes Look Around

MARGARET BUTCHER,
Watchman Correspondent on Everyday Affairs on the British Home Front

Looking through my dairy I find that it is nearly three years since I started writing these news-letters to Canada; and I have never missed a single month. Some have never reached you, I know, but they always started from here. Now and then there hasn't been any news to speak of: just the ordinary chatter of an ordinary body about ordinary things; but I never set out to be a politician or a journalist, did I? Not a lot of news, but a good bit of mixed experience: nights in London blitzes, varied acquaintances, various abodes — and a general lack of comfort and that "living space" we used to hear so much about. But who cares? I wouldn't have it any different. I'd hate to look back, when All This is over, and see myself as one of these unreal creatures whose one ambition was that the war "should not make any difference". The few of these odd creatures who remain are in a bit of a mess already: their old standard of values has been whipped away from them and they haven't formed any new ones. Their minds have dried up.

I have just seen one go down the road, with a cross-grained face under a smart new 'squander-bug' hat. She is off to be arrogant and patronizing to the grocer, I suspect, and to ask him 'when the rations are to be increased'. (A favorite question of hers, I've noticed). Then she will come back to wear herself out with weeding and tinkering among the flower-beds. You know the type: "I must have flowers and nice things round me". When I ventured to suggest that a few rows of peas and a hen-run might be a sensible addition to that garden it was very coldly received. Obviously—so said the chilly blue eyes—I am no lady.

I do hope you don't mind!

More Like Himself

The Gardening Partner, after his long and tiresome illness, is getting better. Now he potters out and does non-strenuous things with a hoe, while I rack my brains privately, on the subject of the autumn digging. I dare say I shall find a solution to the problem by then; and in the meantime he is getting much more like himself, bless him. I knew it for certain yesterday. All this time he has been showing a grim and unwonted cheerfulness, but yesterday I caught him standing on the path, leaning on the hoe and surveying his domain with that old distaste. Suddenly he let out one sharp bitter laugh: a kind of bark.

"I've never seen it looking worse," he said; and at that I knew he was well on the mend. To his secret joy he has found a new kind of spot on the tomato-leaves, and suspects the presence of horrid diseases and hitherto unheard of pests. The fact that I have had all those heaped dishes of peas makes no impression on him. Yes, I'm so glad he's getting better. He is very tickled by receiving a letter from our local Allotments Board, asking him if he would like to enter for a prize. "They tell you", he said, with another horrible laugh, "that even if you don't get a prize you'll get some good advice". His guess is that the judges would advise us to take up Art instead. After that I cycled home with my pack filled with young beans and excellent potatoes, so there are no complaints on my side.

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

A SURPRISING RESEMBLANCE

In the Legislative building in Charlottetown there is a room called the Confederation room, and it houses a valuable collection of historical pictures. Among them is a picture of King Edward VII at the time of his visit to Canada, 1860, I think it was. The Prince of Wales, as he then was, was a very good-looking young man with a sweet gentle expression. The Curator told us that a short time ago a little girl had looked at the picture, and said, "Why is she dressed in men's clothes?" On questioning her he found that she thought the picture of the Prince of Wales was a picture of Princess Elizabeth. Surprisingly enough, there is a very definite resemblance. We have never thought of Princess Elizabeth looking like her Great Grandfather, as she is considered to be very much like Queen Mary.

PAMPER THEM A LITTLE

Children need special care and handling in the first weeks of school. This means not only the small children but the older ones of high-school age. They are having different teachers and different conditions and often are upset over the whole thing, much as they try to hide it. If you ever worked, you know how tense you were when starting to work in a new place. School is children's job and they feel the same way. Their bodies get tired of sitting in school after the weeks of holiday freedom. This is a time when a little pampering as to food might be in order. Give them things you know they like, and have a little something ready for them after school to take away that tired feeling. It is often difficult to get to bed on time after the later hours of summer vacation. They need sleep and it is up to the mother to see that they get to bed on time, difficult as it may be. Nerves are on edge, and parents may have to close their eyes and ears to things they would not ordinarily put up with. The more help the children get, without of course them knowing they are getting it, the sooner will they adapt themselves to the routine of school.

PICKLES

Many of us have been saving a little bit of sugar out of our ration to make a few favorite pickles. Last year some women replaced a part of the sugar with saccharin and report satisfactory results. Small amounts of saccharin are not considered harmful and pickles are not eaten in quantity. Remember we are not allowed to use our canning sugar to make pickles, as the pickles cannot rate as food. I will give some recipes which do not require much sugar.

GREEN CUCUMBER CATSUP

12 Cucumbers, 2 onions

Use cucumbers that are not old and put through the grinder, skin and all, and the onions. Add 1 tablespoon salt and let stand overnight. Drain well.

½ Cup ground horse-radish 1 dessertspoon mustard, 1 dessertspoon pepper, ½ cup sugar, 1 quart vinegar.

Mix these and add to the ground cucumbers. This pickle requires no cooking and will keep without sealing. It is good with Baked Beans, and in salads or sandwich spreads.

TOMATO JUICE

It seems to me that almost every paper and magazine I have looked at recently had a recipe for Tomato Juice. Now I am not going to add to them, but I am going to add a little warning as to methods. Commercially canned tomato juice contains more Vitamin C than home canned, and as Vitamin C is the chief reason for using the juice, we want to destroy as little as possible in the canning. Oxidation, which is contact with air, is the thing that destroys Vitamin C. So when you can tomato juice, use the proper sized kettyle — have it as full of tomatoes as you can. Bring the tomatoes to the boiling point quickly, then put through the sieve as rapidly as possible, and bottle immediately for further processing. Don't use more tomatoes at one time, than you can handle quickly.

School Children Help Boost the Sale of War Savings Stamps

It has been reported that, in the Protestant Schools Section of the War Finance Committee, in the first five months of the school year ending June, 1943, War Savings Stamps had been bought by school children to the amount of $70,233.74. Of this sum $10,968.48 was contributed by rural children in Quebec Province. . . . This work is again being carried on by Quebec Women's Institutes this year in rural schools throughout the province. Mrs. R. Thomson, of Abbottsford, second vice-president of the Provincial W.I., is serving on the advisory committee of the testant Schools Section.

Rules to Prevent Fires in the Home

The prevention of fires at home is a task which should not be forgotten even in the warmest days the Province of Quebec Safety League reminds us and here are a few tips on how to eliminate fire hazards:

1. Don't let rubbish accumulate, particularly under steps and stairs and in closets. Waste paper, greasy rags, and waste should be disposed of promptly. Such material can burn spontaneously.

2. Turn off electrical appliances when you are going to leave the room, even if only for a few minutes. Handle electrical heating pads carefully; it is safer to use the old fashioned hot water bottle, especially in bed.

3. Don't smoke in bed and be sure that the cigarette stub is completely extinguished before throwing it away. Put the lighted cigarette in the ash tray in such a way that it won't fall off when burning.

4. Don't keep gasoline or kerosene in your home and don't stir up or start a fire with those inflammable products, it is extremely dangerous.

5. Be sure a match is out before disposing of it, and it is safer never to throw one into a waste basket. Don't leave matches where children can get them.

6. Don't use gasoline to clean at home at all. There is no practical way to make home dry cleaning safe.

7. Watch electrical wiring for frayed insulation, loose connections, twisted wiring. Attempt home repairs only if you understand approved methods.

John was the son of parents who were sufficiently popular to receive more invitations than they could conveniently accept. In the course of a general knowledge lesson, the teacher said, "Can any boy tell me the meaning of the letters, R.S.V.P.?"

John's hand shot up.

"Well?" said the teacher.

"It means," explained John, "Rush in, shake hands, vanish pleasantly."

Diet and Dental Decay

The exact role that diet plays in the prevention and control of dental decay is not, as yet, well understood. Most authorities agree that dental health can be improved by the inclusion in the diet of the food essentials end by the reduction or exclusion of highly refined carbohydrates.

A simple, well-rounded and ample diet, one that contains a sufficient amount of proteins, carbohydrates, fats, liquids, minerals and vitamins, should be maintained as nearly as possible.

The intake of highly refined carbohydrate foods, such as refined sugar, candy, jelly, pastry and other highly sweetened food, should be kept at a minimum. It is quite possible that America's high sugar bill accounts for many of our national dental ills.

The outer or surface enamel of the teeth is formed during the first thirteen years of life. Therefore, authorities advise that the diet during the tooth-forming period; that is, from birth until early maturity, include a sufficient amount of foods containing calcium and phosphorus, plus an adequate amount of vitamins A, C and D.

FOLKS SHOULD PICK THEIR OWN DOCTORS

London (CP) — A patient's free choice of doctor should be preserved as a basic principle and "it is not in the public interest that the state should convert the medical profession into a salaried branch of central or Local Government service," says the British Medical Association Council in a report in the British Medical Journal.

SWEATER GIRLS WIN U.S. POLL

Soldiers Prefer Skirts, Sweaters Over Tailored Dresses and Other Outfits

St. Louis, Sept. 6 (CP) — If the average soldier's dream girl wants to get her man, she'd better stick to tailored attire and sweaters. This is the conclusion of a recent campus poll of soldiers who are studying at Washington University here.

Results showed that the American soldier prefers tailored dresses and coats, and low-heeled shoes. The Lana Turner sweaters and skirts led the entire voting for favorite feminine costumes among soldiers, with blue as the favorite color. The questionnaire began by asking the soldier to "Think of a girl you know fairly well. She may be your sister or your best girl." Percentage of soldiers who thought of their sisters is unknown, but according to the totals, the majority of the soldiers thought of a brunette, aged 18 to 22. One soldier showed that his girl was doing very well at the career of being a wife, thank you.

POPULATION DOWN

London (CP) — Word from occupied France is that the net decrease in population for 1942, due to the outbreak of tuberculosis and malnutrition is 93,625. Since the outbreak of war deaths have exceeded births by nearly 500,000.

FEED FRENCH CHILDREN

Stockholm (CP) — The Swedish Red Cross providing meals for some 300 children in Marseilles, France soon will start similar work in Lyons and Nice.

Women Build Invasion Barges

Large numbers of British women between the ages of 20 and 30 are working in the shipyards instead of joining the forces. There are also many older women at work in the yards. Electric welding, working the oxygen cutting machine, operating drills, carpentry, French polishing, painting, pattern making, plating, plumbing, riveting, crane driving are all carried out by women. A shipbuilding yard in Scotland, with 64 per cent of its workers women, is turning out Tank Landing Craft at high speed. . . Picture shows a 25-year-old British girl welder at work in the Scottish yards. Her mother also works in the same yards.

LOVE NEST FURNISHING COMES HIGH

Newlyweds Need Bulky Wallet to Get Even "Utility" Fittings Under British Restrictions

By DENISE DALTROFF, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, (CP) — Home is sweet, but the sweetness is rationed nowadays in Britain.

Cupid is doing a roaring business, but unless a fellow is rich or very lucky, couples tripping to the alter are finding themselves married — and homeless. It takes a bulky wallet and a dash of ingenuity to furnish a love nest, even if it is only a bedroom and bath.

Before the war it was estimated newlyweds setting up house could get by on a minimum of $200 if the breadwinner was earning about $15 weekly. The same couple would now pay more than $500, even if they were lucky to have "utility" permits.

Let us go shopping for a modest three-room flat, starting with the bedroom. A utility double bed with mattress sells at $22. If there are any peace-time equivalents about the price is four or five times higher. Two chairs, a dressing chest with a corner fitment, two pairs of sheets, two blankets, a bedspread, pillow cases, bolster and blackout curtains can be had for $112.

Next comes the living room. A utility dining room table costs $25, two armchairs with wooden sidearms another $25 and four hard chairs and a sideboard totalling about $50.

If you inherit a built-in kitchen cupboard, well and good. Otherwise that and a kitchen table in utility plus tables and chairs will cost $40.

Incidentally, linen will cost about $30, five times more than in peacetime and if you want any odd and end pieces of furniture they will run anywhere from $30 to $200, none of them pretentious or stylish.

But what about pots and pans and dishes and plates? About $25 will buy a couple of heat-resisting trays, pan scourer, steel wool, cotton mop, clothes-horse, close-pegs, linen basket, shovel, two pails, boot brushes and flue brush. Before the war the same outfit cost about $5.

A modest set of cutlery, including carvers and bread knife, range from $15 to $30. A 33-piece set of earthenware plates run about $8, but colored chinaware, second hand only, hit as high as $200.

'DARN' GOOD IDEA

(From An English Exchange)

The land around an ATS camp at an Ordnance Depot in the North of England was uncultivated. The socks on the soldiers' feet at the same depot were undarned, and the ATS had a brain wave.

They sent this message to the men: "You cultivate our land and we will darn your socks". The answer was: "That's O.K. by us."

Now, once a week, 25 young women with darning needles at the slope, march to the men's side of the camp and give demonstrations in darning. They also insist on the men learning how to darn in case they are posted overseas or to another camp.

And now from previously uncultivated land about 12 tons of potatoes will be lifted, and 4,000 cabbages and other greens are showing promise of being good winter crops.

In the men's clothing stores the quartermaster cannot understand why issue of socks on payment has fallen so low.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

Busy as it is these wartimes, the switchboard is not the only place that sings with a busy signal. Everybody at work longs for a rest-pause, and that extra something you get in the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola.

Coca-Cola holds all the difference between something really refreshing and just something to drink. You expect ice-cold Coca-Cola to quench your thirst, and it does. But more than that, you welcome the delightful after-sense of refreshment.

A Woman's Privilege

Atchison, Kas. (CP) — A wedding with an unexpected ending: Probate Judge Phill Schrack started reading the marriage ritual to a young couple and came to the young couple and came to the "Do you take this man to be your wedded husband?"

Much to his surprise she said: "I don't!" Of course that halted the ceremony. The girl declined to explain. The judge invited her to come back if she changed her mind.

Three Ways to Save Stocking Expense

Stockings, without a doubt, are about the biggest expense and problem in a woman's wardrobe.

Here are a couple of conservation tricks which make stockings last weeks longer.

Never wear stockings more than once without washing them, for even the slightest perspiration left in the feet has a determinating effect.

Keep the backs of your heels as soft and smooth as you do your hands, otherwise the least little roughness will wear your stockings thin long before they should show signs of wear. A pumice stone rubbed over the backs of the heels and an application of hand loction after your bath each day will do the trick.

And when you find that there are a few odd stockings, none of which match in color to make a pair, dip them in a solution of color remover and then retint them all the same shade.

Finally, in pairing off stockings, make certain they match, for mismated stockings can ruin the effect of your nicest ensemble.

Out of London's Ruins

Where the Germans planted bombs on London in the winter of 1940 - 41 cabbages and potatoes are growing sturdily today. When the rubble of ruined buildings was cleared away from sites acres square, there were left many desolate spaces where houses and offices once had stood. But Londoners, undaunted, set to work putting these bombed sites to good use.

Food Comes First

There is an unwritten rule in wartime Britain that where there are open spaces there must be cabbages, potatoes, carrots, and all the other vegetables which help to increase home-grown food supplies. And where there have been bombs there are plenty of open spaces.

An outstanding example of energy and initiative comes from Bethnal Green, a crowded East End working class borough, which bears heavy raid scars. Spontaneously, residents got together to clear rubble away from their backyards and gardens. They formed themselves into the "Bethnal Green (bombed sites) Producers Association." Today 400 men and 500 children are working plots.

The story of one plot is typical. On a site 150 ft. by 80 ft. there stood houses, shops, and a public house, until they were demolished by enemy action. On this site 17 persons now have allotments, each of which is approximately 9 ft. by 18 ft. In order to make allotments it was necessary to dig as far as six feet into solid foundations, and fifty tons of debris were carted away in lorries. The allotments were started a little more than a year ago. When the Queen visited them a few days ago they were producing potatoes, onions, shallots, turnips, beets, radishes, lettuces, beans, peas, rhubarb, kale and cabbages.

Another bombed site in Bethnal Green has been turned into a farm, boasting two cows, many pigs, rabbits and chickens.

The children of Bethnal Green have taken up the project with all the enthusiasm of town-bred kids, and in the heart of London there has been formed for them a Young Farmers' Club, which gives them spare time training for work on the land, which many intend to take up later on.

Firemen Off Duty

Firemen in the middle of the City have likewise taken to food production. In London there are many fire stations near bombed sites, and these the firemen have adopted, and turned into little farms and allotments. Round the corner from the department stores of Oxford Street there is a firemen's kitchen garden growing on a ruined site, while four pig houses built to standard from bricks and timber collected on the site shelter a herd of 24 pigs. There are too, a dozen hutches of rabbits. In Savile Row, once the tailors' paradise, firemen likewise rear pigs and rabbits on a bombed site.

Fighting Back from the Ruins

Bombed sites are being used too, for direct war purposes. In many London areas semi-demolished houses have become battle schools. Here officers both of the field forces and the Home Guard go through courses of training in street fighting in conditions highly similar to those which would occur either in continental operations or in an invasion of Britain.

Barrage balloons which defend London and many provincial cities soar upwards from many a bombed site, from which the ruins have been cleared. There are anti-aircraft guns, and similar sights, and by far the most familiar of all uses to which the foundations of bombed buildings have been put is the static watertank. All over London and the provinces there are buildings which have lost their walls and retained only their basements; these are filled with gallons of water, and look like miniature swimming pools. They are assurance that whatever fire raids may occur again there will be adequate supplies of water to deal with them.

And Other Uses

Native ingenuity has turned these bombed sites to all kinds of other uses. In the ruins of a big west end department store Government departments hold wartime exhibitions; under the shadow of St. Paul's a site worth fifty million pounds sterling in peacetime is being turned into a miniature sports ground for service men; a much smaller site has been turned into a depot for the sale of hot baked potatoes.

VISITOR FROM THE WEST RETURNS AFTER 40 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Drennan, of Winnipeg, paid a short visit on Wednesday to the former's uncle, Mr. John A. MacGibbon and Mrs. McGibbon, after an absence of 40 years from this vicinity. Mr. Drennan has one daughter, who is married and resides near Winnipeg. Arriving here by bus, he spent a few hours renewing old acquaintances and remarked on the great change which had taken place in town since he left. At the time of his departure he was employed by the late Mr. John Hope, who then conducted a bakery and confectionery business on Main Street in the premises now occupied by H. Pariseau, butcher.

IF

(After Kipling—a long way after)

If you can laugh when others weep,
If you can work while others sleep,
If you can lose and never kick,
But start again and gamely stick;
If you can face defeat and grin
Nor grumble if you never win;
If you can see things go to pot
And never get your collar hot,
But take it all with perfect grit
And scorn to curse a single bit;
If you can bear a heap of pain
And scarcely murmur or complain.
If treachery and lies and such
Can never phase you very much;
And all through life you don't descend
To knife a foe or knock a friend;
If you can keep your life thus high,
Believe me, you will be SOME guy.
And I'll admit quite frank and free,
You'll have an awful bulge on me!

OLD, SWEET SONGS IN "HELLO FRISCO", REX FEATURE

Alice Faye is a sweet singer of sad songs. No matter how banal a song may be, if its lyrics have even the faintest suspicion of a tear, she brims right over. Right in front of you she becomes all misty-eyed, her moist mouth starts to tremble and the man in the seat beside you starts to sniffle. — So writes Herbert Whittaker in his review of "Hello Frisco, Hello", which comes to the Rex screen next Sunday and Monday.

They always put plenty of songs in Miss Faye's pictures. "Hello Frisco, Hello" is just riddled with them, old and new, but mostly old, and mostly sad.

Here they are: Bedelia; They Always Pick On Me; Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly; Gee, But It's Great To Meet A Friend (from Your Home Town); By The Light of the Silvery Moon; Sweet Cider Time, and a great many others. There's one new one, You'll Never Know, which is on the hit list these days but won't last as long as the others have.

And Miss Faye sings most of them. The first time you see her, she and John Payne sing Hello Frisco, Hello, in a Frisco beer-palace and immediately lose their jobs. But they go on to greater things, Mr. Payne being ambitious to live on a place called Nob Hill. He does too, first having to marry a society girl (much hauteur). Miss Faye's chin quivers but she Goes On to knock them dead in London. But sooner or later, after we've been through the American Album of Familiar Music, there is a happy ending, with the two of them singing Hello Frisco, Hello, again, after all those years!

Apart from singing very sweetly, in her tiny soft voice, Miss Faye shows that she can wear those Lillian Russel costumes like nobody else. Give her a great big black hat, with a huge feather and an hour-glass dress (preferably with a train) and get her to singing a sad, sad song . . . well, there just isn't anything quite like it.

Mr. Payne brings some small contrast of mood to the film by registering arrogance and pride from time to time, but for a man of the world he accepts a society lady's proposal with little grace. Lynn Bari is the Nob Hill number, so proud and cruel with her eyebrows arched and her lips curling. And naturally there's a place for Jack Oakie in all this. He supplies the Comedy Relief, using the familiar sledge-hammer touch. He gets his assistance from June Havoc. There doesn't seem to be anybody else in the cast, unless you count Laird Cregar, who runs in from time to time saying the same things over and over again.

What is important is Miss Faye and those old sweet songs of hers.

WEEK-END TICKETS

At the beginning of April last, the Federal Controller of Transport issued an ordinance by virtue of which Canadian railways were prohibited from issuing "week-end tickets", and of granting reduced fares to groups of ten persons or more, and to the public in general in connection with certain holidays.

This ordinance was scheduled to cover a period of four months from April 15 to August 15. It has now been extended by six months, or until February 15, 1944.

The object of this restriction is to lessen non-essential travel by civilians, in order to leave transportation priority to members of the armed forces and to war material.

Once again, the general public is requested to travel only when it is absolutely essential and urgent.

Colors in the cap worn by members of the Veterans Guard of Canada perpetuate the four Canadian divisions which went overseas in the last war.

Then there's the one about the woman whose husband had just died. At the funeral she was standing over the open casket weeping, when one of her dearest friends came up to her and putting her arms around her said in a most sympathetic voice, "Don't grieve so, dear; after all this is only the shell, the nut is gone."

WHY "FLAK"

Many have questioned the origin of the word "flak", wondering if it was derived from the sound made by a bursting anti-aircraft gun shell. "No", says W. Lockwood Marsh, editor of the British Aircraft Engineering. He claims that "flak" is the abbreviation in common German form of the military expression Fleiger-abwehr-kanone (anti-aircraft gun).

Premier G. Drew of Ontario Meets Godbout on Post-War Questions

PLAN COLLABORATION ON MUTUAL PROBLEMS, WHILE POLITICAL PARTIES IN QUEBEC FAN FLAME FOR REPRESENTATION, PROV'L AND FED'L CONTESTS

By D'ARCY O'CONNELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Sept. 15 (CP) — The foundation for further discussions between Quebec and Ontario is believed to have been laid this week when Premier George Drew, of Ontario, and Premier Godbout met for a talk on post-war plans and mutual problems.

Premier Drew, whose government came into power as the result of the recent Ontario elections, held conferences with Mr. Godbout, Hon. Wilfrid Hamel, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Hon. Valmore Bienvenue, Minister of Fish and Game.

Following the meetings, Premier Drew said that "the discussion was highly satisfactory and laid the foundation for future discussions between various departments of both governments on our mutual problems."

Mr. Drew did not say what was dealt with, but he did say that his "purpose in coming to Quebec was to discuss our mutual problems, having particular regard to the necessity for collaboration in post-war plans in which our interests would coincide."

The meeting of the Progressive Conservative premier and the Liberal premier of Quebec was in line with Mr. Godbout's repeated requests for closer collaboration between the provinces of the Dominion for their own good and for that of the country.

On another part of the province's political front, Maurice Duplessis, leader of the opposition, said in a speech that the federal government "is constantly violating the constitution and robbing us of our rights".

Speaking at a political rally Sunday at Montmagny, Mr. Duplessis said that "it serves little to ask us to fight in other lands to assure the carrying out of treaties if the rights of minorities are cast underfoot at home."

He added that he was opposed to "a tendency of the federal government to socialize medicine." According to our constitution, he said, "it is the Quebec Legislature that has the right to legislate for its doctors and its hospitals, just as for all institutions of learning."

At another political rally Sunday at Rimouski, Dr. Pierre Gauthier, member of parliament for Portneuf, said "the Bloc Populaire will have candidates in every Quebec constituency at the next general provincial and federal elections."

He added: "We also plan to be running in several Ontario and New Brunswick constituencies at the next general federal elections."

Dr. Gauthier said that Mr. Duplessis' Union Nationale party "promised to support us if we would not interfere with them in Quebec, but in order to abide by our party platform we must fight both in the provincial and federal fields."

In the meantime Maxime Raymond, leader of the Bloc Populaire and member of the House of Commons for Beauharnois-Laprairie, said in a statement in Montreal that he wished to deny "rumors" that the party would confine itself to the federal field.

New Signs on Town Streets

New street signs have made their appearance in town, greatly facilitating the guidance of strangers and those unfamiliar with the lesser thoroughfares. This work has been creditably executed by H. Prevost on orders of the town Roads Committee. All traffic stop-signs are to be renovated and the long-mooted "Welcome" signs will shortly be erected at east and west approaches of the town. Next measure on this program by the Roads Committee will be numbering of all residences and properties; this, however, is being delayed through inability to procure the supply of metal plates.

London (CP) — The King has granted unrestricted permission for Rev. Arthur Allen, Vicar of Pittington, Durham, to wear the Order of the Orange Nassau awarded him by Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands for "valuable services rendered during the war." Mr. Allen travels more than 1,000 miles a week in Britain looking after the comfort and billeting of Netherlands seamen.

CANADIAN DISPLAY

London (CP) — A collection of pictures by Canadian artists has come to Britain for wartime display. They are reproductions of Canadian scenes which were specially painted to be hung on the walls and buildings occupied by Canadian armed forces.

B'BURG RED CROSS FINDS BILLETS FOR MEN ON LEAVE

Brownsburg, Sept. 15 —

The local Red Cross Branch has billeted 280 service men, navy, army and air force — from June 5, when they assumed the task of doing this, until the last figures have been issued.

It may be important to point out that this figure is a very conservative one, as many of the men have returned to the homes where they were first sheltered without any report being given to the committee in charge of billeting. An Air Force man, whose name appears on the books but a few times, related last week-end that it was his 20th trip to Brownsburg.

The women of Brownsburg have done a splendid job in this connection and deserve every assistance and co-operation that can be made available to them.

Different Dates in County for Duck-Hunting Season

Dates Differ for Two Sections of Province; Dividing Line Route 8, North River

Contrary to dates specified in last issue of The Watchman for the hunting of game birds for this district generally, it should be noted two rulings prevail — one for the Southern District of the province, the other for the remainder of the province — and that the dividing line passes through this county, thus making the two rulings effective here, according to location.

Dates given for Ducks and Geese are as follows:

Southern District, September 25 to December 3.

Remainder of Province, September 11 to November 19.

Dividing Line

As affecting Argenteuil County, the "Southern District" lies south of the following line:

"Westerly along the centre of Route 8 to its intersection with the middle thread of North River at Lachute; thence following the middle thread of North River downstream to its intersection with the middle thread of Ottawa River; thence upstream along the middle thread of Ottawa River to the Interprovincial Boundary opposite Point Fortune; thence southerly along the Interprovincial Boundary."

ACROSS CANADA WITH THE ARMY

Ottawa, Sept. 14 — The last contingent of Belgians trained at Joliette, Quebec, have arrived in England fully trained to fight for the freedom of their country. Baron Silvercruys, Belgian Minister to Canada, saluted his fellow countrymen before they sailed. "You are about to join your predecessors of Joliette, those who are called, in our Army, 'the Canadians,'" he said. "You will give them news from the country which was to them a second motherland and which will always remain in the Belgian hearts as a sister nation."

Soldiers in Alberta are assisting farmers in harvesting the 1943 crop. The latest figures show that 863 are working on the farms under special leave. Special leave has been given, too, to members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps to do their bit.

Recruiting for the Canadian Army would present no problems if all young men were as eager to join as a 19-year-old Saskatchewan lad, Delbert James Polson, the eldest of a family of 12. He rode 28 miles by bicycle from the town of Zehner to Regina, presented himself to recruiting officials and became a soldier on the same day.

Dog-eared science and maths text books are being dug out of musty attic hiding-places across the country these days, as Canadian soldiers keep pace with the Army's stepped-up educational program. Newest development in the education-for-the-troops plan is the appointment of educational officers in all military district headquarters. The new conception of military schooling is already bearing fruit. Off parade study has produced promotions for many education-hungry Canucks, while others are now scholastically equipped to attend officers' training courses.

England's famed General Montgomery is a "man-to-man" leader who believes and practices physical fitness, according to a Canadian officer, now back in Calgary, who served under "Monty" in England. He's Captain J. C. Armstrong, of Toronto, and he tells a typical story of the General:

"We were out on manoeuvres one cold, damp afternoon," he recalls, "and Montgomery watched us as we went through a drainage ditch. We were up to our necks in cold, muddy water and he was definitely impressed. In fact, 'Monty', wearing high, polished boots, came into the ditch himself — boots and all — just to see how cold and muddy it really was".

CANADA'S FARMERS PRACTISE POLICY OF TRUE FRIENDSHIP

Men from the East and the West Show the Stuff that Makes for Nation-Wide Unity

The East and West, as far as Canada is concerned, are concentrating on getting together. Airmen from the Maritimes regard Vancouver as another home. Sailors from Halifax and Esquimalt change land berths with equanimity. And as for the ubiquitous army, its members have been running back and forth across the country from advance training camps to special training posts, until now they are a formidable threat to the Axis — and coincidentally, good trans-Canadians.

Civilians are no exception to the large-scale inter-provincial mixing. And farmers are leading the way. It took a war to bring about the custom of helping a neighboring farmer who lives one or two provinces away, instead of a few concessions. But right now, the custom seems to be established.

Early in the summer, 900 Saskatchewan farmers journeyed to Ontario to help out their hard-pressed brothers of the land. And in August they told Easteners what they thought of Ontario, in a special broadcast presented by the CBC. Ontario farmers reciprocated later in the summer when the men of the prairies needed their help. Some of these Easteners are now going to speak to the radio audience, too. They will be interviewed in a special broadcast from Winnipeg, entitled "Good Neighbors," over the Eastern Network of CBC on Monday, September 20, at 8.30 p.m. EDT.

Temperance Talks Heard in Lachute And B'bg Schools

Under auspices of the Quebec Temperance League, G. Alexander Gordon, secretary of the League, and D. W. Bayley, director of Temperance Education for the Manitoba Government, visited the pupils of Brownsburg Intermediate and Lachute High Schools, in meetings held in the two towns on Wednesday.

Mr. Bayley, who has had much experience in State, School, Church, Business and Labor circles, gave an address, illustrated by use of a blackboard, that was both informative and inspiring, and gripped the attention of every pupil.

The primary pupils learned from experiments how alcohol stunted the growth of plants, chickens and puppies.

The intermediate grades were shown that alcohol acted the opposite way to water. Thus it was useful as anti-freeze, solvent, preservative and fuel. But, inside a human organism, it broke down resistance to disease, slowed up nerve reactions and lessened the power of conscience.

The High School students were most attentive as the speaker showed how their brain developed, from the lower powers of life preservation, through skilled muscular controls, up to the moral and spiritual faculties of judgment, conscience and idealism. The fun of alcohol indulgence arose from the temporary "doping" of their better selves, and thus moral lapses were more likely. Also it was impressed upon them that the new, post-war world depended on voters being intelligent and idealistic.

Mr. Bayley, director of Temperance Education in Manitoba, recently attended the Yale School on Alcohol Problems. He is assisting in a movement to have Temperance Education given an adequate place in Canada's post-war policies. Under auspices of the Quebec Temperance League, of which C. Alexander Gordon is the executive secretary, he is giving a series of talks along these lines in Montreal schools and churches.

"Let Us Not Think War Is Practically Over" — Ralston

"Because of our considerable success in Italy, let us not think that the war is practically over," declared the Hon. J. L. Ralston at the Officers' Training Centre, Three Rivers, which closed its doors after having contributed 1,789 officers in 10 months.

"We are yet a thousand miles from Germany and our adversaries are still strong and numerous. China still has to be freed, Hong-Kong revenged, the Malay Peninsula, Singapore and the Philippines reconquered and the south-west Pacific swept clean of the foe".

The Hon J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, who presided at the last graduation jointly with Mr. Ray Atherton, United States Minister to Canada, declared the Camp was closed because it had accomplished its purpose, namely the creation of a reserve of officers.

Col. Ralston asked Mr. Atherton to convey a message to the American Government. "Express to our American neighbors", he said, "the admiration which we share for the bravery and courage our comrades in Arms are exhibiting on land, sea, and air, in the Pacific and Mediterranean.

Interesting Letter From War Prisoner Sgt. N. Bradley

Tells of Diversions, Food and Routine in Prison Camp; Parcels from Home

The following letter from Sgt. Norman Bradley, R.C.A.F., who is a prisoner of war in Germany, has been kindly handed to The Watchman by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Bradley, Carillon. The details concerning life in a prison camp, and of his own personal welfare, will be eagerly read by his friends in this district.

Stalag Luft III, Germany.

Dear Folks at Home:

I have had quite a few letters lately, some were written in March but mostly in April and one May 9, which is really good service. You seem to have had a severe winter at home and I do hope the coming one will not be as bad. I received my personal parcel and 2,000 cigarettes; as to the smokes, well I was down to my last package and they just came in time. Two cartons were from organizations and the rest from you all, I can only thank you all for what you have down and are doing.

There are only 80 n.c.o.s left in this camp as it is turned into an Officers' Camp, but I am remaining here, in connection with the Red Cross, Wink also; I work a few days a week and it certainly helps to pass the time. Forget about the one letter a week business and send some snaps. Some prisoners came in a few days ago and I was with one of the chaps in England, and he has told me so much of my old pals — facts I have been wanting to know for months.

Time is passing quite well and this letter finds me in the best of health and spirits. My garden is a success. Will have been down a year by the time you receive this, and no one knows how many more will pass the same way. Remember me to everyone, and thank everyone for all they have done. Do not worry about my food as I can cope very well now; it is funny how one can become used to a restricted diet. Wink and I had a few pancakes today and they certainly tasted good (Aunt Jemina's). I am playing a little softball as the weather is fine again. As time rolls on I am also growing older, and sometimes when I am tired I realize I am nearing thirty. I hope Premier King has a good position in mind for all P.O.W.'s. You may have heard about our movement to ensure our livelihood after the war, and a few words in the right place might do a lot of good. We are trying to get our M.P.s to push for our promotions, but what we are all after is the extra money. Your letters, Doug, are a source of constant information and interest to the whole camp; hockey scores and Stanley Cup playoffs were the genuine thing. We issue a small Canadian news-sheet each week, gathering news from each Canadian, and I have been able to really contribute these two weeks. The hockey equipment did not arrive, and only had one week's skating owing to lack of tools to make our rink. By now, you will not be believing all you hear. Thanks again for all your kindness.

—Yours truly,
Norman Bradley.

Victory Loan Headquarters Now Established for Argenteuil County

SLOGAN FOR FIFTH VICTORY LOAN DRIVE APPROPRIATE TO PRESENT STAGE OF CONFLICT — "SPEED THE VICTORY!"

Argenteuil County Victory Loan Headquarters has again reopened in the Lachute Town Hall. Preparations for Canada's Fifth Victory Loan, which commences on October 18, are now in full swing.

As for past Victory Loan campaigns in Argenteuil, W. M. Scott and Clement Tremblay will be joint chairmen of the Unit. W. H. Price has returned again as county organizer.

Prospects for a successful Victory Loan seen very bright. In this fifth year of the war, we are literally on the march. . . . The Hun has been chased from North Africa. Mussolini is vanquished, and Italy has surrendered. Our Russian allies are slowly smashing back the German armies. Our air forces are smashing back with large-scale bombing raids, preparing the way for an all-out land assault on Hitler's fortress. On the Atlantic, the battle against the U-boats is turning in our favor. And in the Far East, Japanese aggression has been halted, with the Allied offensive in this theatre of war gradually gaining in size and momentum.

We are all aware of these facts — they are news of the moment. But, we also know the toughest part of the battle still lies ahead. Let's not fool ourselves. Our progress on world battlefronts gives us renewed spirit to press onward to our goal; but our advances up to now are only a start. It is going to take a lot of hard and bloody fighting to bring Germany and Japan to their knees — to smash their still powerful military forces and make them willing to accept our terms of "unconditional surrender."

To bring this war to a victorious conclusion, we must have — and we must maintain — overwhelming superiority in men and equipment. We must continue our war effort on the home front as on the battle-front — with the same purpose and and determination which carried us through the anxieties and reverses of the last four years.

The slogan of the Fifth Victory Loan is "Speed the Victory". Each of the four previous Victory Loans has been a notable success. The Fifth Victory Loan must be an even greater success — it must be another milestone in our march to Victory.

Everyone can help "Speed the Victory" by buying Victory Bonds. Plan now, and be ready when your Victory Loan salesman calls.

Protest on Changing of Historic Names, St. Andrews and Abbottsford

Editor, Lachute Watchman

Sir: In a recent copy of the Montreal Star there appeared a letter over the signature "Fair Play," in which the writer protested against changing old historic names such as Abbottsford and St. Andrews to names which have no historic association.

In the former instance the name "Abbottsford" is connected with the family of Sir John Abbott, the first native Canadian to become Prime Minister of the country. The name "St. Andrews" has been changed on road signs and automobile directories to "St. André", of which there are surely enough now to confuse the unwary tourist, and we know of some who have been led astray by the change.

Please note the following: St. André (Kamouraska), St. André (Lac St. Jean), St. André (Restigouche), St. André (Avelin), St. André Station (Kamouraska) — in the Province of Quebec alone, whereas there is only one St. Andrews now in Quebec and the name is gradually being changed to another St. "André".

As historians know, the original name was the Scottish one, for there was no settlement there during the French tenure of the seigneury. The d'Ailleboust family of honorable record were granted the seigneury by Count Frontenac, but they lived elsewhere and were not able to develop it.

There is on record in the archives at Ottawa, a pathetic letter from the widow of Sieur d'Ailleboust, in which she laments that the little mill has been burned by the Indians and that the rich land of the seigneury, with its excellent transportation facilities by water, had not been taken up. It seems to have been more bother than it was worth to her, since her income from it was about the equivalent of twenty-five dollars a year.

Major Panet, apparently, relieved her of the burden by taking over the seigneury, but he too lived elsewhere, and though he succeeded in selling farm lands to Scottish, American and a few French settlers, he failed to build the required mills for their convenience. It was not until nearly the close of the eighteenth century, when Major Murray took over the seigneury, that any real progress was made.

Major Murray saw to it that a sawmill, a grist mill and an oatmeal mill were built and a cluster of houses soon appeared on the banks of the North River. In 1807 his efforts were crowned by the completion of a bridge across the river and the little settlement was then ready for a name of its own. He honored it by naming it St. Andrews, after that city in Scotland.

It happened soon after that historic day that a baby boy was born in the family of the pioneer Duncan Dewar, and Major Murray offered to give the child the grant of a farm stretching from the North to the Ottawa Rivers — now a large part of the village itself — if he were christened Andrew to commemorate the occasion. In those days it was customary for Scottish folk to give but one name to a child, and his father, thinking no doubt that a good (family) name was rather to be chosen than great riches, did not accept the kind offer, explaining with Highland pride "His birthright is Duncan. I cannot deprive him of that."

Pedigreed Heifer Shot by Hunter

Cushing W. — Now that the open season for game is approaching, farmers would do well to keep close watch on their livestock, as it appears there are some reckless marksmen in the district.

W. H. Robert, of Monalea, discovered this to his cost last Sunday, when he found one of his valuable pedigreed heifers dead in the pasture. The animal had apparently been killed by a shot fired by duck hunters who had been shooting in the vicinity.

Cases have been known, of cattle being mistaken for deer, but it must be a short-sighted hunter who would mistake one for a duck!

MRS. CHURCHILL'S ACKNOWLEDGMENT TO QUEBEC W.I.'s

The greeting of Quebec Women's Institutes to Mrs. Churchill, wife of Prime Minister Churchill, and Subaltern Mary Churchill on their arrival in Quebec, took the form of a telegram of welcome, and bouquets of flowers. Following is the reply received by Mrs. Charles Smallman, President of the Q.W.I.

Quebec City

Mrs. Charles Smallman,
Members, Quebec Women's Institutes:

My daughter and I want to express our gratitude to you and your members for your welcoming telegram and for the beautiful flowers which you have sent us. We are touched by your good wishes and send you our heartfelt thanks.

—Clementine Churchill.

Relatives Witness Double Christening

The home of Mrs. Geo. Armstrong, Lachute Road, was the scene of a double christening ceremony Sunday afternoon, when two of Mrs. Armstrong's grandchildren were christened by the Rev. W. B. Roaborough, of Lachute United Church. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linton W. Armstrong, Lachute, received the names Beverley Carol, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hartley (the former Doris Armstrong) of Montreal, was named Doreen Elizabeth.

Relatives who were present from distant parts included Mr. and Mrs. Allister Innes and son, of Ottawa, AC. Keith Armstrong, R.C.A.F., of Toronto, Mrs. Elizabeth Hartley, of Cushing, and Mrs. C. Armstrong, of Montreal.

Food Production In Britain Up 70 Per Cent

United Kingdom Paces Canada in Food Output, Result of Effort for Bigger Harvests

By James McCook, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 14 (CP) — Canada, whose agricultural production has increased by leaps and bounds in the war years, has been paced by the United Kingdom in enlarged output of food products, it is disclosed in a survey distributed by the United Kingdom information office here.

"As a result of the total effort, the over-all increase in food output in the United Kingdom is 70 per cent since 1939, measured in terms of calories, a phenomenal growth in view of the heavy demands on manpower for other essential war purposes," said the survey.

The United Kingdom harvest for 1943 is expected to be the biggest yet brought in and is estimated to be 25 per cent greater than the 1942 output.

In the national production plan the British Agriculture Ministry has maintained contact with every farmer. War agricultural executive committees have powers which include that of being able to compel any farmer falling below specified standards to improve or surrender his farm.

Acreage Increased

The Agriculture Ministry has directed an encouraged plowing up of great areas of land. Between 1939 and 1942, the acreage of arable land increased by about 5,000,000, from 13,000,000 to 18,000,000 acres. A further increase of 1,200,000 acres was shown in 1943.

Between 1939 and 1942, the wheat crop increased 36 per cent, oats 72, cerals 66, potatoes 80 and vegetables 55. An additional increase of 25 per cent in wheat production is expected for 1943.

United Kingdom milking herds are greater than ever before, with consumption of liquid milk larger by one-third than in 1939.

While cattle numbers have increased by five per cent, other livestock which make heavy demands on feeding stuffs and can be quickly bred show a substantial decrease since 1939 — pigs being down 52 per cent and poultry 24 per cent.

Huge supplies of Canadian bacon are shipped to the United Kingdom, with a contract for 675,000,000 pounds being met this year. Canada supplies an estimated 80 per cent of the British bacon ration, since hogs can be produced efficiently in the Dominion with its abundant feed supplies.

Feed Imports Drop

British farmers have been encouraged to seek self sufficiency in production of feed. The result has been that in spite of enlarged numbers of cattle, dropped in the last four years.

Extensive research work has been undertaken to facilitate greater production and the results of such studies already have been put into effect.

The use of machines in farming has been extended, with agricultural committees enabled to hire out equipment. In 1939, the number of tractors in use on the land was 55,000. By the end 1943 it is estimated 165,000 will be in service.

About 370,000 farmers plus 700,000 men and women farm workers make up the permanent labor force. They were assisted by more than 50,000 boys and girls, as well as industrial workers and members of the armed forces on holiday. The women's land army is also an important source of agricultural labor.

R.A.F. Daylight Raid on Rotterdam Shipyard

Escorted by Spitfires, Mitchell bombers of the R.A.F. made a daylight attack on the Wilton Shipbuilding Yard at Rotterdam recently. They returned with photographic evidence that they delivered their bomb loads well within the target area. . . . Action picture taken during the attack shows bomb bursts across N.W. Wilton Fijenords Shipbuilding and Machine works. Direct hits are scored on the engine shop (bottom centre). Dock installations and vessels are straddled by further concentrations of bombs in the centre of the picture.

KEEP FEED BAGS MOVING INTO TRADE

Many farmers may know the temptation when mixing live-stock rations to get the feed bag open in a hurry. Instead of opening, they may slash the bag.

It is not only illegal now to destroy or multilate a jute or cotton bag, but it is unnecessary. Bags need not be torn by handling with hooks; they can be lifted by hand. They need not have their fibres weakened through storing in a damp place; they can be well shaken and hung over a wire in a high, dry part of the barn. There they will be kept dry, safe from rats and mice.

But even better than storing empty bags in the barn is to get them back into circulation. Every bag is needed. Farmers are asked to turn in to the trade bags they are not using. Pass the bags along to the feed dealer, who will pay for them and again get them into circulation.

ALMOST ALL HONEST

Folkstone, Eng. (CP) — It figures out that about 95 per cent of England's bus passengers are honest. That's the conclusion reached after receipts from boxes placed on Hythe and Folkstone buses were checked. The boxes were for short-journey passengers to deposit their fare if the conductor was too busy to collect them personally.

GAS STATION AIDS HOUSING

Vancouver, Sept. 11 (CP) — Believe it or not, gasoline rationing is helping solve Vancouver's housing problem. Homeless citizens must put their wits to work if they want a roof over their heads. More than one abandoned service station has been converted into a comfortable dwelling.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Winslow have what might be a three-roomed Spanish style home — complete with patio roof and large bright windows. In fact it's one of the more attractive small bungalows in Vancouver.

When Mrs. Winslow and her husband, who is a sergeant in the R.C.A.F., took over a year ago, it was just a neglected "gas station" which the war had put out of business.

Now four-year-old Bobby Winslow rides his tricycle around the yard that once was a parking lot. A greasy work shop has become a red and white kitchen and nasturtium beds replace the "gas" pumps.

FOURTH FREEDOM POST-WAR AIM

Sheffield, Eng. (CP) — The English-speaking world has achieved three of the Four Freedoms and the fourth, freedom from want, must be the goal when peace is restored, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, said in a speech here.

The Misery springing from want is the indelible disgrace of the two decades between the two wars, he said.

"No man in Britain, the Dominions or the United States," he added, "need fear his religion, politics or his neighbor."

PORPOISES SCARE DESTROYER CREW

London, (CP) — Sometimes in the heat of battle it is hard to tell the difference between a couple of torpedoes and an innocent porpoise.

Sub-Lieut. K. W. Rymer of Edmonton, Alta., who has just returned from the Mediterranean where he served aboard the Royal Navy destroyer Tanatside, told about a "lively incident" which gave the crew a scare.

"Everybody was at action stations and when we heard the lookout's warning the commanding officer swung around, but to our amazement the 'torpedoes' also turned and continued to come straight for us," he recalled.

"We watched the 'torpedoes' come nearer and nearer and we were all getting ready for the shock when suddenly they both stopped, turned and disappeared. They were not torpedoes, but two porpoises which the lookout had mistaken for torpedoes."

Medals Awarded To Allied Women

British, Russians, Czech Women in Action Gain Long List of Awards for Heroism

Toronto, Sept. 14 (CP) — While this war has provided few opportunities for Canadian women to win awards for gallantry, the success of European women on the battlefields indicates what may be expected from Canadian women should they ever be used in action.

A recent survey showed that in Britain, 24 awards for gallantry have been bestowed on members of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, equivalent of Canada's C.W.A.C. The Women's Auxiliary Force has 32 decorations for bravery while the Women's Royal Naval Service has chalked up 10 service awards.

More spectacular service is open to Russian women who win their medals in the field of battle with their men. Yokatorina Tkachenko, 24, received the Soviet medal "For Valor" for her scout work behind enemy lines. When she discovered that the Germans were preparing to send a detachment against Russian guerrillas, she trudged across tortuous mountain passes to warn her people. In the battle that followed Yokaterina acted as intelligence officer.

Sima Dneprovskaya, a sapper scout, won two decorations for valor after she had captured an enemy blockhouse, machine gun and valuable military papers on the Leningrad front.

Eight Czechoslovakian women soldiers won top-flight medals from the Soviets for the fight they put up beside their men on the eastern front. Two of the Czech women received the "Red Star" and the other six the "Medal for Bravery."

Already several Canadian women in uniform have been decorated for devotion to duty. Lt. Mollie Entwhistle, of Toronto, received the B.E.M. after she had rescued 10 other members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps from a burning building in Ottawa.

Cpl. Irma Malcolmson, of Carman, Man., now stationed in Dayton, Ohio, also received the B.E.M. for devotion to duty — in her case spending long hours behind a typewriter. Sqdn. Officer Joan Davey, of Hamilton, R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) medical officer, now in Ottawa, was awarded the O.B.E. for her contributions towards the health of the women in air force blue.

In the last birthday honors list four Canadian army nurses were made members of the Royal Red Cross (1st class) and 11 other associates, Royal Red Cross (2nd class).

Gas Without Coupons Oozes Through Soil

Salem Crossroads, S.C. (CP) — Residents of this mid-state community had a field day when they found gasoline oozing through the top soil.

It all happened after a truck with 3,700 gallons of gasoline overturned in a cornfield. Residents, alert to the possibility of obtaining gas without the benefit of coupons, dug through the top soil and gasoline drained into pits in the hard clay beneath.

Several hundred gallons lost from the truck were "saved," to be carted away in tubs, pots, pans, bottles and pitchers.

GOVERNMENT BANS POLITICAL TOURS

London (CP)—Mrs. Isabel Brown, London Communist leader, has been refused a permit by the Home Office to visit Belfast where she was to have addressed a meeting sponsored by the Northern Ireland Communist Party.

Mrs. Brown said the reason given for the refusal was that the authorities give permits for political missions only when these missions are going on official business connected with some ministry.

"As I was going for political meetings for a party, and the visit was not officially supported by a ministry, they said they could not grant a permit," said Mrs. Brown. "It is apparently a fairly straight line which they take in all cases."

Invest to the Limit

Good news is usually a tonic and in the present instance word of Allied advances has brought not complacency but a nation-wide determination to work harder than ever for victory. Perhaps this is the reason for the encouraging fact that Canadians as a whole do not regard the Fifth Victory Loan as "just another Victory Loan," but rather welcome it as an opportunity to place the Allies still farther along the road to victory and the Axis correspondingly nearer defeat.

Although the need and wisdom of Victory Loan investments are definitely established, there are still those who do not invest to the limit of their ability. It is hard to understand how persons living in the comparative luxury of civilian security can hold back when those fighting for them are willingly giving everything they've got. It is not sufficient to be able to say, "Yes, I bought a bond." Everyone should review his finances right down to the last penny and increase his cash and instalment purchases of bonds accordingly.

There is an Arabian proverb which has more than one meaning in these days of rationing on the home front and hand-to-hand fighting on the war front. It is one worth remembering when the Victory Loan salesman comes calling at your door:

"I had no shoes, and complained —
Until I met a man who had no feet."

The "Army" Carries On

Brass bands marching men off to war may cloak its music with harsher, martial strains, shuffling feet on crowded pavements may muffle its trumpets, many-colored uniforms of half the world now on the sidewalks of Nova Scotian towns may subdue its once unique uniforms — but the Salvation Army band, like the great force it symbolizes in the public mind, still carries on.

In war, as in peace, it summons to Thought; it is the outward evidence of a great work that silently and ceaselessly goes on in the world — among men broken by adversity and their own weaknesses, among children who are waifs, among mothers, the aged, the sick or the despairing.

The Salvation Army is an amazing organization, though today its achievements, no longer unexpected, may often be overlooked. It is backed by no church, but is possessed of faith. It boasts no titans of finance or industry among its leaders, but is built, instead, upon the broad shoulders of common, Christian folk.

Started in a London slum's degradation, it reaches today to the topmost levels of a thousand communities in a hundred countries.

Survivor of one Great War, it finds in this second world conflict new trials yet greater opportunities to serve.

With all it is doing for men and women in the armed services of the United Nations — in enemy lands it is banned because it is Christian and democratic — it has not neglected the field to serve which it began: the meeting of human emergencies, wherever and whenever found, with an understanding and compassion born of experience and with practical measurable help.

The Rumor Menace

Some days ago a man wrote to the Toronto "Globe and Mail" to say that when one of Mr. Walter Zeller's Toronto stores burned down his employees were let out for six weeks without wages; he had "insured his stock but not his workers".

Mr. Zeller has replied to say: (1) He has never had a store in Toronto; (2) the fire referred to occurred in Fredericton, and (3) the employes who were out of work for six weeks were paid their full time.

Thus the danger of listening to rumor — and of spreading it. Unfortunately, there are all too many people who are willing to do the listening and spreading. And the truth, alas, only rarely catches up with the falsehood.

War Morale for Time of Peace

The United Nations have come a long way since 1939. The unconditional surrender of Italy marks the first one of the unholy trinity to crumple under their ever-increasing might. The news of the Italian armistice was received somewhat soberly by the general Canadian public; their satisfaction was tinged by the recognition that the European invasion is merely begun and many harder days are yet to come.

Canadians look forward more or less apprehensively to the end of the war. Then the great problems of peace terms, feeding Europe, rehabilitation and maintaining world order, which even now are beyond the comprehension of the average citizen, will be the responsibility of the United Nations at the conclusion of a conflict which will have demanded their utmost in effort and materials. Unquestionably the inclination will be to get through the aftermath as quickly as possible.

Field Marshal Viscount Wavell, Indian viceroy-elect, in a New Year's message to his troops in 1941, said in part: "Have you ever thought what a world we could make if we put into peace endeavors the same energy, self-sacrifice and co-operation we use in the wastefulness of war?"

A chain is as strong as its weakest link, and the strength of a country and its determination for better things derives from its individual citizens. Should we not resolve now that we will increase for the duration our energy, self-sacrifice and co-operation — and so strengthen these powers that when the war is ended we can carry them over into peace endeavors, and be ready to meet the post-war period with confidence rather than apprehension?

Contrast in Fortitude

A London taxidriver recently contrasted the way in which the Germans have been taking their bombing and the way British took it, and also the changed outlook of people on both sides of the struggle.

He said, "There's a look I notice on everyone's face these days. It's a look of determination, and not only that; it's a sort of look of 'We're going, and we're going to keep going'."

He contrasted their expressions today with the grave look on everyone's face at the time of the collapse of France. But even then there was light relief.

He remembered an incident on one of the worst nights of the 1940 blitz. He was travelling carefully down Bond Street — formerly London's most exclusive shopping centre, but a very narrow thoroughfare. The noise was "like hell let loose — bombs, gunfire, and every sort of bang and crash." Suddenly he noticed a large obstruction. But it wasn't debris; it was two taxicabs stuck right across the road. The two drivers were having a heated argument. They had to shout to make themselves heard above the din. One was asking the other if he thought he'd bought the so-and-so street, and the other was telling him, well, telling him. One of the wartime policemen came up, and waited for a "lull" in order to ask a few questions and take down some particulars. Finally, in exasperation, he said: "Oh, shut up, you two, Let's get this over and have a little peace and quiet."

Churchill Retort

It is interesting to find the Churchill tongue as ready in retort to stock questions about Niagara Falls as to parliamentary enquiries. To illustrate, here is a passage from a story of Mr. Churchill's brief visit: When asked if he had seen the Falls before, Churchill replied: "I saw the Falls before you were born," and explained he first visited the scenic sight in 1900. Asked if the Falls looked the same, Churchill asserted, "Well the principle remains the same. The water still keeps falling over." Hard Road Ahead

We hope that victory is just around the corner, but we mustn't forget the corner is a long way away. Besides there is no easy road to that corner. It is studded with pill boxes and bomb craters. Before we can ever hope to reach it, we have got to continue to support the caravan now on its way. There will have to be continued reinforcements of Money, Materials and Lives. If that caravan is supported to the utmost possible extent, it will take time.

Don't Beat Ourselves

Two things strike us as imperatively important if we must win this war. One is that we must keep our mouths shut on military matters; the other, that we haven't got the Huns licked yet and we must not let overconfidence throw us. —Trenton Courier Advocate

PRICE CONTROL

News and Notes

HOUSING PROBLEM IN SOME AREAS IS ACUTE

The Real Property Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has appealed to all those whose work takes them to "deficiency housing areas" not to bring their families with them.

According to Russel Smart, real property administrator, the appeal is necessary because of the hardships involved in getting family dwelling units.

Deficiency housing areas listed by the administration include Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria. Housing registries in these areas show overwhelming demand for family units and almost no supply.

INCREASED TEA-COFFEE RATIONS ARE EFFECTIVE

The September ration calendar holds two sets of tea or coffee coupons made possible by the increase in the ration and three D coupons for jams, jellies and sweet-spreads which is one more than will become due in the months following.

Since preserves ration coupons will fall due at the same time as sugar ration coupons the number one D coupon was valid to correspond to the number 14 sugar coupon, the complement of number 13 sugar coupon in the old ration book.

EXTRA CORN SYRUP AVAILABLE FOR BABIES

Canada's bumper crop of babies has been given special consideration in the rationing of corn syrup which became effective September 2.

Under the rationing scheme D coupons are each good for 12 fluid ounces of corn syrup, cane syrup or other blended table syrup and two of these coupons become due each month. For infants who need more than this amount arrangements have been made for local ration boards to exchange regular sugar coupons from the baby's ration book for extra D coupons.

The exchange will be on the basis of one sugar coupon for two D coupons so that a maximum of 48 fluid ounces of corn syrup a month, in addition to the regular ration will be available for infants whose diets require a corn syrup rather than a sugar feeding formula. The exchange may be made only for infants of two years or under. The complete ration book must be presented when the exchange is made.

CONDITIONAL SALES ARE NO LONGER ALLOWED

The practice of feed dealers to make the purchase of millfeed conditional on the sale of flour will be eliminated by the recent order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board banning conditional sales.

The order states that a person selling goods must not impose as a condition of selling any obligation on a buyer to purchase more goods than he wishes to get a specified article.

Exceptions are made for any trade practices established by the seller before or during the basic price ceiling period. Hence, a feed dealer who did not, during that time, require the purchase of flour with a sale of millfeed may not now begin the practice. He must also discontinue it if he has started it since the basic period in 1941.

TIME EXTENDED ON CANNING SUGAR COUPONS

Canning sugar coupons will be valid until further notice, it has been announced by the ration administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. It was originally announced that the expiry date would be September 30.

A Song of Valor

For King and Queen and Empire,
Our Faith and Liberty,
Our firesides and our homeland—
To keep them safe and free—
We march to fight and conquer,
O Canada, for thee!

The cries of age and childhood,
And motherhood laid low,
Of helpless youths and maidens,
From fiendish, cowardly blow—
They're calling us to save them.
O Canada, we go!

For these are comrade nations,
Who must again be free.
Their people are thy kinsfolk,
Their fate thine own might be.
To save them is to conquer,
O Canada, for thee.

As knights of old in vigils
Prayed on till morning light
For wisdom and for valour,
So we could pray for sight
To see the path of duty,
And gain the strength of right.

Then Heaven send us valour
To overcome the foe,
To give back hope and freedom
To stricken hearts, and so
Come death, or safe returning,
O Canada, We go!

London (CP) — The world's smallest—and youngest—army serves with the Allied Forces in the Solomons. The army came into being nearly four years ago when the Kingdom of Tongs formed a defence force with a New Zealand soldier as its head. Second-in-command is Lieut. Henry Taliai, a full-blooded Tongan.

"Please try to save my stamp collection, my new smoking jacket, my stuffed moose head and my wife!"

18th Century Prophecy

More than 200 years ago, Thomas Gray, a pre-eminent scholar and poet of his time, uttered a prophecy that is being made to come true. Known more for his immortal "Elegy in a Country Churchyard", he has other works to his credit, notably "Luna Habitabilis" in which he foresees the coming of the day when Britain, then mistress of the sea, would also gain mastery of the air.

The time will come, when thou shalt lift thine eyes
To watch a long-drawn battle in the skies,
While aged peasants, too amazed for words,
Stare at the flying fleets of wondrous birds.
England, so long the mistress of the sea,
Where winds and waves confess her sovereignty,
Her ancient triumphs yet on high shall bear,
And reign, the sovereign of the conquered air.

A Great Change

Germans are grabbing up all the English grammars from the districts bordering the North Sea and the Channel, according to a news report. The idea behind the confiscation is to prevent the people of these localities from learning English and thus being able to help Allied troops in case of an invasion of the continent. Quite a far cry from the confidence of a couple of years ago when the Nazis were studying English in readiness for the conquest of Britain.

INVENTOR RETIRED

London (CP) — Maj.-Gen. H. A. Lewis, inventor of Britain's famed 25-pounder gun, has been retired from the army's reserve list on reaching the age limit of 64. Gen. Lewis envolved the 25-pounder, main artillery weapon of the British army in its conquest of Libya, Tunisia and Sicily, in 1928.

London (CP) — Art treasures in Sicily will be guarded by the Allies and an inventory is being compiled to prevent possible looting, a War Office official said. A British expert is inspecting and listing art works in public collections, churches and galleries of Sicily.

DESTROYER RECORD

Portsmouth, Eng. (CP) — The British destroyer Foxhound has steamed 240,000 miles since the war began and claims this as a record unequalled by any other ship of the allied navies or merchant fleets.

BOMB REALISM

London (CP) — A smoke bomb used at an Air Raid Precautions competition proved so effective that some of the rescue party were overcome, casualties were caused among the spectators and the competition had to be called off.

BOTH RARITIES

Liverpool (CP) — A Liverpool registrar told a turf commission agent at a bankruptcy hearing that "I should think the appearance of a bookmaker in the Bankruptcy court is as rare as a Nazi possessing a sense of humor."

7 CITIES ALLOW CHEAPER TRAM FARES TO FORCES

(CP) — Special concessions to services personnel in uniform in the matter of fares on urban transportation systems have been granted in six Ontario cities and in Saskatoon, Sask., a survey by The Canadian Press reveals.

In Toronto the civic transportation commission allows members of the armed forces to ride free on its urban street cars and buses on Sundays.

In Saskatoon tickets for those in the services are five for 25 cents instead of the regular four for a quarter. At the Lakehead, the urban transportation systems of Fort William and Port Arthur sell services personnel six tickets for a quarter instead of the usual four.

In Peterborough where civilians pay eights cents on the busses, those in uniform pay only five cents. Civilians in Windsor, Ont., buy tickets at three for 25 cents but sailors, soldiers and airmen travel for a straight five-cent fare.

Five cents is the servicemen's fare in Stratford where civilians pay 10 cents.

IN MONTREAL

men of affairs naturally stop at the Windsor because of its reputation for dignified comfort and unobtrusive, courteous service and its convenient location—and because the Windsor is recognized as the proper place for business and social meetings.

Miss Dorothy Halsey, daughter of Dr. Albert Halsey, Carillon, has enrolled in the school for teachers, Macdonald College.

Best wishes go to Jeanette Mabel Wales, second daughter of Mr. C. S. Wales, whose marriage took place in Montreal on September 14, to Leo Roback, R.C.A.F., Mr. Roback received his B.A. degree from McGill in '38 and interrupted further study to join the R.C.A.F. He has recently returned from a year's service in England to take a special course in the Air Force. Two brothers are on active service —one, Major Roback, with the United States Medical Corps.

The Late Hedley Bridge

Arnprior lost a distinguished citizen in the death of Hedley Bridge, in his 83rd. year. He was a native of Loughborough, England, and graduated from London University with a degree in mathematics.

He came to Canada at the age of 21 and was a member of the original staff of professors at Ashbury College, Rockliffe, Ont. He married Ethel Norrie, of Ottawa, who predeceased him three years ago.

He resided in Arnprior for 42 years, serving first as tutor in the McLachlin family, later as teacher, accountant in the McLachlin lumber concern, as musician of note and church organist for a quarter of a century. He was the town's last police magistrate under the former system of local appointees; also he was associated with the public library board over a long period of years as either secretary, chairman or member.

Four sons and three daughters are chief mourners — Noel Bridge, of California, Pte. Willoughby Bridge, C.O.T.C., Brockville; John Bridge, Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, St. Andrews East, Dan Bridge, Arnprior, Mrs. Albert Lamorie and Mrs. Ovila Payer, of Arnprior, and Miss Mary Bridge, of Montreal.

The funeral service was held on Sept. 8 in Emmanuel church and interment took place in Arnprior Cemetery.

Mr. Hedley Bridge spent a month at the home of his son, Mr. John Bridge, here during the past winter.

FAST DESTRUCTION

London (CP) — Three year's work by thousands of Norwegian and foreign workers was destroyed in 10 minutes when American bombers lashed the Nazi submarine base at Trondheim July 24, according to a detailed report reaching the Norwegian government in London.

OBITUARY

Many Mourn Death Lifelong Resident

The Late Richard S. Clarke

Following a lengthy period of failing health, the death occurred on Saturday, September 11, of Richard Salter Clarke, in his 77th year.

The deceased was the last surviving member of a family of eight born to the late Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke, and during his entire life resided on the farm on the Brownsburg Road, formerly owned by his father and on which his grandfather settled as a pioneer in the year 1830.

He was married to Mary Martin of the Seigniory, and together they would have celebrated their 40th anniversary on September 30. Surviving are his loving wife and a family of five; Truman, of Orillia, Ontario; Donalda, of Montreal; Wilhemina, of Drummondville, Lorne and Joyce at home; and one granddaughter, Faye, of Orillia.

The funeral took place from his late residence, Brownsburg Road, on Monday, September 13 and was conducted by the Rev. S. J. Pike of Brownsburg United Church, assisted by the Rev. E. J. White of St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church, Montreal. The pall-bearers were James Ogilvie, James Clark, David Clark, Hugh Morrison, Ivan Boyd and John MacVicar. Interment was made at Lachute Cemetery.

Among those attending from a distance were — Mrs. Truman Clarke, of Orillia, Mrs. Herbert Neil, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fuller, the Rev. and Mrs. E. J. White, Miss L. McCullough, Miss Mary Kendrick, Mrs. James Glen and Mrs. John Buchan, all of Montreal.

Pretoria, S. Africa (CP) — N. J. de Wet is successor to Sir Patrick Duncan as Governor-General of South Africa. Mr. de Wet was chief justice of the Dominion.

Correction

In the prize-list of Lachute High School, published last week, it was reported the special awards for the Fashion Show were donated by Lachute Women's Institute. The School authorities wish it to be known, these prizes were given personally by Mrs. George McGibbon, and not by the W.I.

A Word of Warning and Advice

It always happens that when there is a shortage of a widely used article, there are those who for a cash consideration, will undertake to remedy the deficiency. Especially is this so where intoxicating beverages are involved.

The public cannot be too strongly urged to be on its guard against these individuals. From every point of view they are bad citizens and not fit associates for any self-respecting person. They flout the law themselves, but at least they know what are the legal consequences of their acts, and it is often unfortunate that these consequences are confined to Court sentences — which is not always the case with their customers.

The dangers facing the customer are more varied and numerous. Of necessity, he becomes a partner in the illegal acts and is therefore liable to criminal prosecution and punishment. This of itself should be a sufficient deterrent to any person of sense, and particularly if he wishes to retain the respect and confidence of his family, employees, and friends. Let it not be forgotten that the police are efficient and active.

From the financial point of view, these illegal transactions are only saved from being downright robbery by the acquiescence of the victims. Obviously, to compensate him for the risks he takes, the criminal seller will provide either the smallest quantity or the poorest quality — or both — that he can pass off in exchange for the highest price he can extort. Only the most foolish will deal with him, and he takes full advantage of this.

Morals and finance are, however, not the only matters for consideration. All along the trail of illegal sales are found shocking instances of damage to health, and even of death. They are an ever-present danger in these transactions, and they occur with alarming frequency.

No patron of the criminal retailer can be sure of immunity. Of course he will be told that the goods he purchases are either legally made, probably indeed that they were purchased from the Commission, or that they came from sources which ensure their proper manufacture. What else could he be told considering the price he must pay? Surely, however, even the dullest must realize that no credence can be placed in the word of a person who habitually breaks the law for profit, and who in doing so must necessarily practise deceit as part of his business.

It may be that in some few instances, Commission goods get into the hands of these cunning individuals but not nearly so often as is claimed. When however this does happen, one or both of two things occurs: the pure article is adulterated by the addition of some other liquid containing alcohol or it is reduced in strength and so made to appear larger in quantity. In either case, a ridiculous price will be charged, because of the confidence which the name of the Commission inspires.

It is much more likely that liquor illegally sold comes from an illegal source. Never at any time was it safe to consume even small quantities of the products of the moonshiner, but it is particularly dangerous to do so now. There was a time, when metal and utensils and cereal grains and molasses could easily be obtained and from these, a crude sickening alcohol could be made at little cost in cash. Nowadays, however, almost every article needed to produce alcohol, even impure alcohol, is subject either to priorities, rationing, or is not available. Always the apparatus was of a makeshift nature but in some instances it was reasonably efficient. Now, efficient apparatus is virtually unobtainable with the result that present day illicit distillation strikes a new and dangerous low in quality. It should be absolutely avoided.

There are other aspects as well. Not only are Provincial and Dominion revenues defrauded, but the trade in illicit liquors keeps men employed who should be taking their share of the nation's war-work, while their products imperil the efficiency and well-being of their customers at a time when the good health of every person is of the highest national importance.

Lest any wrong impression be created, it should be stated that there is actually very little law-breaking of the nature described. There should, however, be none at all, and to this end, the co-operation of all citizens is requested.

The Quebec Liquor Commission asks consumers of alcoholic beverages to take a realistic view of the situation. Shortages in these commodities are only a part, and after all not a very important part, of the general shortages which the public is experiencing. This is a time for strict observance of laws which are made to ensure fair treatment to all. Evasion of these laws is unpatriotic as well as dangerous from every point of view.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Thanksgiving Theme in Maple Avenue and Chatham W. Services

On Sunday, September 12, thanksgiving services were held to commemorate the "unconditional surrender of Italy", both at the Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg, and the Chatham West Baptist Church. The pastor, the Rev. T. J. Rich, delivered a message in keeping with the occasion, based on words found in the Psalms: "Let God arise and let His enemies be scattered".

There were good congregations at both churches to greet the pastor on his return to the pulpit from his vacation.

Ladies' Groups in the St. Andrews Churches

St. Andrews East — The regular monthly meeting of the Presbyterian W.M.S. was held in the Sunday School hall, Miss E. Walsh presiding. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Bryson, and Mrs. Jos. Bradley read an interesting letter from a missionary from China, now in Toronto. Arrangements were made for a thankoffering meeting to be held in the church on the second Thursday in October.

United W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of the United Church met at the church on Monday, September 13. The devotional period was taken by the president, Miss M. L. Lamb. Selections from the Blue Book (annual report) were read by members. Sympathy was expressed for Mrs. R. B. Crosbie, who suffered a fractured arm on Saturday.

Christian Science Lesson-Sermon

"Matter' is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 19.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 42:8. "I am the Lord: that is my name: and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions." (Psalms 107: 15, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Which was first, Mind or Medicine? If Mind was first and self-existent, then Mind, not matter, must have been the first medicine. God being All-in-all, He made medicine; but that medicine was Mind. It could not have been matter, which departs from the nature and character of Mind, God." (Page 142).

MINIATURE DESTROYER

East London, Cape Province (CP) —The first ocean-going ship to be built here — a 100-ton "miniature destroyer" — was launched recently.

Protest Change of Historic Names

Little Duncan lived to take great pride in his birthplace, St. Andrews, where he for many years was the village apothecary. I remember his showing me an old sketch of the place with these words underscored "The village of St. Andrews, which bids fair to be the metropolis of Canada". That prophecy was made during the time that Sir John Johnson was the seigneur, when it was a prosperous business community with the first paper mill in Canada in full operation.

To one interested in the history of the early pioneer days it seems an act of vandalism to destroy the old records which are perpetuated in place names. It would be quite unpardonable, for instance, to change Argenteuil to an English name.

The Argenteuil Historical Society has done a wonderful work in helping to establish the museum at Carillon and in preserving so many evidences of an earlier culture. Perhaps it might add to its achievements by persuading this progressive Quebec Government which has shown such interest in education, to protect the ancient and honorable name of St. Andrews by which that beautiful little village has so long been known.

—Hopefully yours,

Pretty Wedding Solemnized Recently In Dalesville Church

Davis - Murdoch

The marriage of Miss Bessie Mildred Murdoch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Murdoch, of Brownsburg, to Morris Charles Davis, Aylmer East, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Davis, of Aylmer East, took place in Dalesville Baptist Church Saturday afternoon, August 28, at three o'clock. The Rev. George Hicks officiated and the organist, Miss Lorna Tomalty, accompanied the soloist, Miss Grace Fletcher.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss E. Tasse, as bridesmaid, by Mrs. Mason Tario as matron of honor, Miss Ruthie Macdonald flower girl, and by Kenneth Macdonald as page boy. Mr. Edgar Jowsey, of Ottawa, was the best man and the ushers were Mr. Walter Murdoch and Mr. George Murdoch.

White embroidered chiffon over white satin was worn by the bride. Her finger-tip veil was arranged with a wreath of white roses and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The matron-of-honor wore pink tulle, over taffeta; her shoulder veil was of a matching shade. She carried a bouquet of roses. Miss Tasse wore a heavenly blue sheer crepe gown over taffeta, with a matching shoulder veil, and carried a bouquet of gladioli. The flower girl wore a yellow sheer voile frock, over satin, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, and the couple left by plane for Niagara Falls, visiting also in Toronto and Windsor. Going away the bride wore a black wool suit with matching hat.

Guests from Ottawa were—Mrs. A. Picard and Mrs. George Crowbar; from Cascades, Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown, Mr. George Cross, Mr. Stephen Cross, Miss Emma Cross, Miss Gladys Cross; from South Hull, Mr. and Mrs. W. Radmore; from Aylmer East, Miss Emily Radmore, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Davis and Miss Alma Davis; from Breckenridge, Mr. and Mrs. M. Faris, Mrs. D. R. Faris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Faris, Mrs. Herbert Davis, Mrs. Emmanuel Faris.

Pretty Wedding at St. Andrews Residence

Boyd - Doig

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. James Doig, St. Andrews East, Que., on Saturday, September 4, at four-thirty, when his youngest daughter, Phyllis Emily, was united in marriage to Mr. Arnold Walker Boyd, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman J. Boyd, of Lachute, Que. The Rev. Dr. McMillan, of St. Andrews East, officiated. The decorations were composed of gladioli, asters and ferns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Leona Boyd, sister of the groom. The best man was Mr. Verner Thompson.

The bride wore a turquoise blue crepe street-length dress, with shoulder-length veil to match, trimmed with orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, gift of the groom. She wore a long corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Miss Leona Boyd wore a beige crepe street-length dress with brown accessories, and a corsage of talisman roses.

Mrs. Norman Boyd, mother of the groom, wore a black crepe dress, with a corsage of red roses.

Miss Mary Doig, aunt of the bride, wore a navy flowered crepe dress, with a corsage of red roses.

The happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to Montreal, Sorel and other points, the bride wearing her wedding dress with black accessories. They will reside in Lachute.

After the ceremony about 40 guests were served supper.

Out-of-town guests included — Mrs. Paul Doig, of Ottawa, aunt of the bride; Mrs. John Boyd, of Montreal, grandmother of the groom; Misses Margaret and Leona Boyd, of Montreal, sisters of the groom; Miss Janet Boa, of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Martin, of Westmount.

A reception in honor of the newly married couple was held Friday, September 10, at MacArthur's Hall, Lachute, where a host of friends gathered to extend good wishes.

Strange Things Done

In Toronto a certain printer is still shaking his head over the strange ways of National Selective Service. He applied for a pressman and got one — only to discover the man had never pressed anything but pants. If the application had come from a newspaper office, we'd have thought Selective Service did it on purpose with a view to tidying up the reporters.

IMPORTANT FACTS ON PULP & PAPER WAR EFFORT

HOW THE PULP & PAPER INDUSTRY HELPS BLAST THE AXIS

IN MAKING HIGH EXPLOSIVES WOOD PULP HAS LARGELY REPLACED COTTON LINTERS. TODAY CANADA MAKES SUCH EXPLOSIVES AND EXPORTS CHEMICAL PULPS TO BRITAIN.

THE EXPERIENCE OF CANADIAN CHEMISTS SINCE 1918 IN MAKING RAYON AND QUICK-DRYING VARNISHES FROM WOOD PULP IS NOW BEING USED FOR WAR. AFTER THE WAR IT WILL AGAIN BE USED FOR PEACE PURPOSES.

THE PRODUCTS OF THE INDUSTRY go into many things besides explosives. Shells, depth charges, land and naval mines, radio equipment, parachutes for dropping flares, all contain paper or paper products. Without paper no war could be fought . . . no country could function successfully in time of peace.

Hints for Homebodies

FARMERS LIVE WELL

A man, who grew up on a farm, spent his holidays helping his brother and his nephews. Two things impressed him deeply. The first was how well the families on the farm lived and how little they realized it. He is a man with a position of importance and a substantial salary, and his wife is a good cook, but they cannot have the good meals they have on the farm. The vegetables, fruits and eggs are not as fresh and good. Then he was appalled by the waste. Perhaps fifteen potatoes would be cooked for three of them and they would each eat one or sometimes two apiece, and the rest went to the pigs. It was the same with other vegetables and foods. So much thrown out. He said more was thrown out than would feed his family. Of course the pigs and the chickens got them and they were not completely wasted. After they started using new potatoes there were six barrels of old ones left in the cellar. He had had such difficulty getting potatoes that he noticed this especially. They could not begin to pick the peas and beans and they were wasted. He picked two baskets of peas and persuaded them to take them in to the city when they went in to shop, and sell them. They hay only been able to buy peas twice in his own home as there had been none for sale. There were more raspberries than they could use and they just dropped from the bushes. Blueberries the same. There were plenty of high-bush cranberries and he picked a few quarts. They told him they would not have been picked if he had not done it. These people are not shiftless people, but prosperous fine farmers. Undoubtedly the shortage of labor has something to do with it, but it seems very wrong that there should be such wastage when there is a great need for food.

A CASSEROLE HINT

Most casserole dishes are baked at a moderate temperature of 350 degrees. Sometimes we need to bake these at a time when the oven is being used for something else and is heated to a higher temperature. In this case, stand the casserole in a pan of water, and when the water gets very hot, replace some of it with cold water, and the temperature will be right for the baking of the casserole.

BRING THE GARDEN IN

Tomatoes seldom all ripen before a frost gets them, and it is always a disappointment. Green tomatoes may be ripened in the house in two ways. The stalks may be pulled and hung in a warm, dry, place, and the green tomatoes will gradually ripen. Another method is to pick the tomatoes and wrap them in paper, putting them as needed in a sunny window to ripen. If you have parsley in your garden, plant a root of it in a flower pot and keep it in your kitchen window for winter use. A root of chives grows well in the house and is very useful for flavoring salads and sandwiches in the winter. Mint stalks may be hung up to dry and the leaves used as fresh mint. If your garden doesn't contain these plants, maybe you could get them from a neighbor. We're going to need all the help we can get in making foods interesting this winter.

MINT SAUCE

¼ Cup finely chopped mint leaves, ½ cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon sugar.

Mix the ingredients and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Let stand on the back of the range, or in a warm place for a few minutes. I have made this in quantity and have bottled it for winter use.

GARDEN WALK PICKLES

1½ Quarts gherkins, 1 qt. small green tomatoes, quartered, 1 pint pickling onions, 4 chopped sweet peppers.

Cover with a brine made in proportion of I cup salt to I gallon of water. Let stand over-night, then drain. Cover with boiling water, and drain.

Boil until half-cooked in salted water, 1 quart green beans, 1 quart tiny carrots, 1 cauliflower, separated into flowerlets. Drain and add to the other vegetables.

Mix 2 cups sugar, 8 cups vinegar, 4 tablespoons mustard seed, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 package pickling spice. Bring this to a boil, add the vegetables, and cook for ten minutes. Bottle in sterilized jars, and seal. Makes 6 quarts.

The Lighter Side of Activities in British "Women's Voluntary Services"

—Virginia Graham, in the "W.V.S." Midsummer Bulletin

Many of you must think of the W.V.S., if indeed this admirable organization comes into the range of your thought at all, as consisting solely of elderly women of uncertain shape, devoting their lives with patent zeal to the most boring activities. Up to a point this is true. We are not conspicuously pretty, or young, and it is true that we play our role on life's stage before a melancholy backcloth of thermos urns and second-hand clothes. As voluntary servants of the local authorities it is natural that we should be handed the baby to carry on every possible occasion, and it is more than ever natural seeing that if we are not handed it we get into the worst possible fantod.

Though most of our work is unglamorous, and demands an almost biblical understanding of human frailties, we also have our moments — moments not so much of splendour, perhaps, as of wonder. The W.V.S. prides itself on never refusing a request for help, and it is therefore incumbent upon the authorities to spend their sleepless, conscience-stricken nights devising improbable scenes and situations in which to place us. They frequently succeed admirably.

At first, of course, we had "feelings." Although we said we would, if we must, collect sheep's wool off the barbed wire, and hips of the wild rose, we intimated that we would do so at our leisure, with dignity, and in gloves. Nowadays the W.V.S. has no dignity except that which comes from honest toil, and it did not so much as quiver an eyebrow when it was asked to dig up acorns for pigs. Only the frailed members dared to ask why in thunder's name the pigs couldn't dig them up for themselves, seeing that their trowel-shaped physiognomies were especially designed for this purpose; but they were immediately hushed, handed a basket, and directed to the nearest oak tree.

Not long ago a W.V.S. centre was asked to collect frogs for research work in a hospital. No, no, they weren't going to be vivisected — a dead frog would be just as acceptable. Repressing the convulsive shudders that shook them, and undaunted by a natural feminine repugnance for such creatures, the W.V.S. members, looking remarkably like frogs themselves in their green coats and skirts, set out carrying various suitable receptacles.

It soon became manifest that it is, of course, impossible to find a frog if you happen to want one. It is all very well to say that frogs sit on lily leaves in the middle of ponds, whamming with their tongues at passing flies, but so few ponds have lily leaves, and ever if, by some extraordinary fluke, there was a lily leaf with a frog sitting on it, what then? How do you separate the two?

One of the women knew a frog, which was very unfair. It lived in a well at the bottom of her garden, and also, as it turned out, in the bottom of the well. Although dragged with a butterfly net for many wearisome hours, the well gave up nothing save an empty tin which had held lentil soup. With the advent of this macabre piece of jetsam, hope died.

All day long the woods and pastures echoed with the feverish cries of the frog hunters. Large recumbent figures could be seen poised on the brink of little streams; others stood, furious and dripping, in ditches, or searched with pathetic hope in the small puddles in the lanes. That they caught any seems miraculous, but six frogs were carried home in triumph and laid on the altar of science. The price paid by the devoted workers was one W.V.S. hat, used as a scoop in a moment of impulse, two laddered stockings, and a certain fraying of the nerve centres.

Quite recently, many of our members took on the hitherto not very distinguished job of beach-combing. They were spread out, in a green string, along the seashore to wait for the wave to wash up the cargo of a wrecked ship. This consisted of thousands of tins of beef roll and thousands of tins of boot polish. The excitement was intense, as can be imagined. With the abominable perversity of inanimate objects, the tins surged toward the shore, winked with tinny joviality, and bobbed away just out of reach.

The women got into a dreadful temper with them, calling them every name under the sun, and eventually removing shoes and stockings and going in after them. They really made a wonderful job of this, and the only thing that tingled with sadness their victory over the elements was the fact that owing to immersion in the sea the labels on the tins had come off, so that it would always be impossible to tell which were beef roll and which were boot polish until they were opened.

No that there is much difference.

Although it would seem from this article that W.V.S. members devote their entire lives to collecting things, we do occasionally lay aside our muster of rats' tails, sphagnum moss, bones and tins. The agglomerating of those incipient war weapons is considered to be in the nature of recreation, and that is why we laugh so uproariously when we fall into dustbins and off haystacks.

Talking about bones, we know a dog which calls every day on half a dozen housewives, collects their bones, brings them home, and reverently lays them on the lawn. This dog, needless to say, has filched the whole idea from its owner, a W.V.S. Salvage Officer, although it imagines it thought of it itself.

The more highbrow amongst us were once given the job of translating German and Danish letters into English for the police. Although quite a lot of people know a smattering of Germans — having spent a fortnight in the Tyrol in 1928 they felt fully qualified to translate Goethe — there were very few Danish scholars among them. A little thing like this though, did not deter the W.V.S. Failing to find any Danes, either great or small, in the vicinity, they purchased dictionaries and grammars, and worked their way, breathing stertorously, through the letters.

Records of every kind are kept by the W.V.S. No list of any description can safely be compiled without their aid. Although about 1% of them are trained in the tortuous art of counting, they attain a really astonishing height of accuracy by the simple if old-fashioned method of counting out loud on their fingers and toes. The more advanced of us, of course, use ready rechoners, but this is thought to be cheating. Local authorities are crazy about lists. W.V.S. less so.

All these little sidelines to our main work, although they give us extra to do, also break the monotony of wartime life. And they are pleasant. To fashion, in two days, make us laugh, which is always a Home Guard uniform for a man with a tummy measurement of 57 inches; to drive a hearse; to escort goats across London from one station to another, are not jobs of vital importance to the war effort, but somebody has got to do them, and the W.V.S. is both humble enough and proud enough to take them on.

The Last One

Just nine o'clock in the morning
And the house is so very still;
A stillness that comes without warning
To settle down drear and chill.
No stirring, no voices, no laughter
Just the tick, tick, tick of the clock.
I start at a step in the street or
The sound of the postman's knock.

Were there times when I chafed at fetters;
Was I ever such a fool
As to think life would be better
When the last one had gone to school?

—Hannah Foster.

RATIONING

Questions & Answers

Q.—I am writing for a ration book for a new born baby. Will you please send it to me?

A.—Sorry we cannot send you the baby's book. By presenting the baby's birth certificate, baptismal certificate or an affidavit on the form provided at the office of your local ration board, you will receive a ration book for the baby.

Q.—A year ago I rented a furnished apartment. A couple of months ago my landlord removed a chesterfield suite. Can I apply for a decrease in my rent?

A.—Yes. Regulations effective October 1, 1943, give tenants cause for a decrease in rentals if there has been a lessening of appurtenances, furniture, furnishings, equipment, fixtures, services or facilities supplied or to be supplied for the fixed maximum rentals. Applications for decreases out-of-line rentals may be made under the new order not later than September 30. Applications for decreases are made to the rentals appraiser who will notify the landlord.

Q.—I spent over three dollars at my grocery store last Monday and then on Wednesday he refused to deliver some goods that were hard to carry because they did not total a dollar in value. Is he correct in doing so?

A.—There is no regulation of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that forces retailers to deliver goods purchased in their stores. Retailers, however, are authorized to deliver articles which are too bulky to carry even if they cost less than a dollar. The fact that you spent three dollars there on one day does not mean that you can arrange for a delivery of other purchases on another day. You must purchase a dollar's worth of goods each time to be eligible for a delivery.

Q.—Am I entitled to tea coupons in the new ration book for my child, 12 years old on August 22?

A.—Yes. As your child will be 12 years old by September 1, coupons for rationed commodities should be included in his new book.

Q.—Are boarders supposed to give their ration books to the people they are boarding with?

A.—Yes, certainly. Unless the boarding house is registered with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board as a quota user, the only way your boarding house keeper can get supplies of rationed commodities for your meals is by using coupons from your ration book. The number of coupons used by the boarding house should of course correspond as nearly as possible to the amount of tea, coffee, sugar, butter and meat you are served (one, two or three meals).

Neighborhood Kids Manage Home Front

Memphis, Tenn. (CP) — The newly-organized "Junior Justice Society of America" is on the job.

The group of six youngsters had taken upon themselves management of the home front in their neighborhood, collecting scrap and promoting war stamp sales.

The folks on their street humor 'em. The kids decided they wanted their own private blackout the other night — so the neighbors cooperated. The street was blacked out for ten minutes.

1,000 SPECTATORS AT FINAL GAME, B'BURG SOFTBALL

Plastics Vanquished Office in Sixth Game of Inter-Departmental Finals

Brownsburg — The interdepartmental softball finals which went to six games, including the first one a draw, saw Plastics take from Office the third, fourth and sixth contests, to become champions of the Men's League.

The sixth and deciding game began in a drizzle of rain Thursday, September 9; the rain turned to a heavy downpour, causing postponement of the contest after two innings. A crowd of approximately 600 turned dismally homeward to hope for better weather next day. . . . On Friday, 1,000 people lined the ropes as the game was resumed. The outcome of this exciting game was Plastics 7, Office 4.

Three star awards for the outstanding three players during the finals should go to H. Prud'homme, Plastics, who led with base hits; to Jack Reid, Office, for his consistent hitting especially at the right time, and his work at second base; and to H. Leroux, Plastics, for his errorless efforts in left field.

The cup and crests were presented to the winners by E. L. Johnson, Works Manager, at the softball dance on September 11. The Softball Committee thanks Mr. Johnson for his assistance at the dance. —From "The Tracer"

MUSIC, ROMANCE IN "REVEILLE WITH BEVERLEY"

Lovers of well known orchestras will need no encouragement to see the Rex Theatre attraction tomorrow and Saturday — "Reveille With Beverley," a Columbia musical movie.

Orchestras make up the most impressive part of its cast and supply a goodly percentage of its footage.

There is Bob Crosby and his orchestra, Freddie Stack and his orchestra, Duke Ellington and his orchestra, and Count Basie and his orchestra. And to spread this out a bit there are Frank Sinatra, who sings; the Mills Brothers, who sing in their own way; and Radio Rogues, who imitate people mostly, but can sing, too.

The problem of how to get all these people into one picture without it looking like a record catalog has been solved here, and with considerable simplicity — writes Herbert Whittaker, Montreal film critic. They simply take for heroine a girl who puts on the records for one of those early morning programs. Then every time she puts on a record, the record disolves in some cute fashion and . . . there is the dance band! When they have finished their stunt, the girl simply takes off the record. (The screenplay is the work of Howard J. Green, who should go far.)

Of course there's a little story worked in. It explains how this girl dreams of being one of those people who puts on records at radio broadcasting studios, how she becomes one, why she puts on these records, and who she puts them on for and, finally, how famous and popular she becomes by putting on these records. There's even a little bit of romance, with the girl (her name is Beverley, after a real girl who puts on records, I believe) falling in love with two young men who suggest that she put on records for soldiers and who pay her for putting on these records.

To the outsider, "Reveille With Beverley" might best be described a short, short Liberty Magazine story combined with a lot of those films about orchestras which sometimes get in between pictures on double bills.

The cast, as they say, is immaterial but does include (in addition to those name bands) Ann Miller, who interprets the role of Beverley. If there's one criticism an outsider may make, it's that one has to wait until the end of the picture to see Miss Miller do a spot of dancing. After all, practically anybody can put on records. If there's another criticism, it would be that even the people who like to listen to the Mills Brothers, do not necessarily want to look at them. But perhaps we're just carping.

THEATRE ARTISTS PLAY NEW ROLES

Actors, Musicians Don Overalls; Bring Glamor to War Industry; Broadway in Production

New York, Sept. 14 (CP) — A harpist's sensative fingers fly — as she sews a parachute. A musician's keen ear is turned — to radio tubes. A dramatic actor learns new parts — parts of an airplane engine.

Thus the glitter and glamor of the theatre are being translated into war work these days through the efforts of Broadway's own manpower commission, the War Production Training Committee of the American Theatre Wing. Since June, 1942, when some 5,000 showfolk from stagehand to star answered questionnaires revealing their potential value to the war effort, Broadway has been on the production line.

More than 100 eastern showfolk are already in overalls, and additional hundreds have been referred to training courses aptitude tests, and war jobs.

Leading her C.W.A.C. band on a coast-to-coast recruiting tour, comely Pipe Major Lillian Grant, of Victoria, B.C., told reporters: "Women make just as good pipers as men."

RADIO TALKS ON THE FUEL CRISIS

Autumn makes her official arrival next week, and with her show of color comes the promise of the inevitable and rigorous Canadian winter.

Everyone now knows that there is a shortage of fuel for beating the approaching cold. And the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is taking part in the effort to provide essential information for the conserving fuel.

Three special talks on "The Fuel Crisis," will be broadcast from Montreal CBC beginning Wednesday, September 22, at 8.45 p.m. EDT. The speaker will be Ethelwyn Hobbes, well-known radio commentator.

Her first talk will concern "How to Run a Furnace," and all the little aids that help to keep the furnace under perfect control. In her remaining broadcasts, Mrs. Hobbes will explain further useful tricks in retaining house heat and keeping oneself comfortable.

The information given in the series is based on material obtained from the Department of Munitions and Supply, from heating engineers, and from furnace manufacturers. Copies of the three talks can be obtained free of charge by writing to CBC, Box 500, Toronto.

Says Provincial Election 'Fight for Life or Death for French-Canadians'

Not Merely A Political Fight, Says Maurice Duplessis at Berthierville

CONTENDS PROVINCIAL RIGHTS AT STAKE; BOUCHARD HINTS FREE SCHOOL TEXT-BOOKS

By D'ARCY O'CONNELL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Sept. 22 (CP) — Two prominent Liberals forecast this week that general provincial elections likely will be held in the spring or early summer of 1944. There was no official comment on the forecasts.

J. A. Francoeur, chief Liberal whip in the Legislature, said Tuesday that latest reports led him to believe that the next session would be held at "the ordinary date early next year" and that general elections would take place in the early summer of 1944. He added, however, that "officially" he knew nothing of Premier Godbout's intentions in these matters.

A few days earlier, F. A. Panneton, general chairman of the St. Denis-Dorion Liberal Association in Montreal, said in an address at a meeting of the association that "we certainly will not have general provincial elections before next April."

"There will be a special provincial session this fall that will last about a month and a half," he said. "There will be another session in January and then elections in April."

Some in political circles were ready to accept the statements on face value, but others said that Mr. Francoeur and Mr. Panneton, like a good many others, were simply trying to put their fingers on a possible election date. The latter group pointed to a section of Mr. Panneton's address in which he said that "we hope there will be no elections this winter." "Winter elections," he said, "are too hard on the people. We have lost some of our friends because of winter elections."

The statements, like previous election rumors, drew no comment from Premier Godbout or other government officials. Only a short time ago, the Premier said that "all these rumors about elections amuse me very much."

But along with the statements came a report that all government supporters would soon be called to Quebec for a meeting similar to one called in Ottawa for the federal government supporters. This report also went unconfirmed.

Another development led some observers to believe that Premier Godbout will not wait until October of next year, when his mandate expires, to call elections. The development was the calling of a meeting Sunday at St. Denis-de-Richelieu in St. Hyacinthe county by Hon. T. D. Bouchard, provincial Minister of Roads.

Mr. Bouchard said that he called the meeting to test public sentiment in his county. The Bloc Populaire party, he said, had held a meeting at St. Denis the week previous and had only a small attendance. He said he was well satisfied with his meeting and with the reception he was given.

The minister reviewed for his listeners what the government of Premier Godbout has done and expressed the hope that the administration will soon find means to make free text books available in the province's schools.

Meantime, the holding of a fall session of the Legislature was urged by Alfred Charpentier, president of the Confederation des Travailleurs Catholiques du Canada.

Speaking at the opening of the 22nd annual meeting of the confederation at Granby, Mr. Charpentier said that "an early fall session of our provincial legislature is urgent to consider new labor legislation, especially freedom of affiliation for organized labor movements." He added.

"We deem it important that provincial laws be adopted before any move is made in that direction by the federal government in Ottawa. In this way, we believe, Quebec views and feelings in labor matters would stand a better chance of being respected by our federal legislators."

While these developments were taking shape, Maurice Duplessis, leader of the opposition Union Nationale party, continued his tour of the province and addressed a rally Sunday at Berthierville. He said that the next provincial elections would not be a political fight, but a fight of life and death for French-Canadians and people of the province.

"If we leave in power the people who are constantly allowing our rights to be taken from us there will be question of our survival," he said.

"Quebec is not asking for charity or for favors. The province has rights and we ask that they be respected."

Holstein Club Holds Meeting

An important meeting of the Lachute Holstein Club was held Monday evening, with about 25 members present. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Honorary president, Amedee Maisonneuve; president, Simon Wilson; vice-president, W. H. Robert.

Directors — W. H. Robert, Simon Wilson, Douglas Clark, Gordon Walker, Leonard Boa, Adam Meyer, James McKenzie.

Auditor, Alex Bothwell.

Out-of-town visitors included Clarence Goodhue, of Raymondale Farm, Vaudreuil, W. A. Hodge, of St. Laurent, and Hermas Lajoie, Field Man, of Montreal.

Mr. Lajoie explained the various activities of other Clubs in the Province of Quebec, and described how "Black & White" Days had been organized at the various County Fairs during the past few months. Mr. Goodhue discussed vaccination against Bang's Disease, and stated that this method of control was becoming very popular among the large breeders of Holstein cattle.

Radio, Film Stars To Support Loan

When Canada's Fifth Victory Loan campaign gets under way on October 18, it will have had the support of a nation-wide radio campaign, designed to get the Canadian public used to the idea of a cash objective of one billion, two hundred million dollars.

In figures it looks like this: $1,200,000,000.

In entertainments it looks like a parade of stars.

Many of the great names of show business — the theatre, the screen and the radio studio — will be on the big broadcasts that radio will employ to tell the Canadian people about the Fifth Victory Loan.

The Victory Loan Hour will present five full hour broadcasts on Wednesdays at 9.00 p.m. EDT, beginning October 6. Outstanding artists in the field of music, comedy and drama will take part in the broadcasts which will be presented from Toronto and Montreal.

For five weeks, beginning October 6, the voices of filmland's most celebrated stars will be heard daily in support of the Fifth Victory Loan campaign.

All through the campaign, and every Monday to Friday from now until it starts, Claire Wallace will be telling Canadian listeners what people tell her about the Loan. The program which has become a national institution under the title "They Tell Me" is a breezy, fifteen-minute feature of stories behind the news directed to Canadian women.

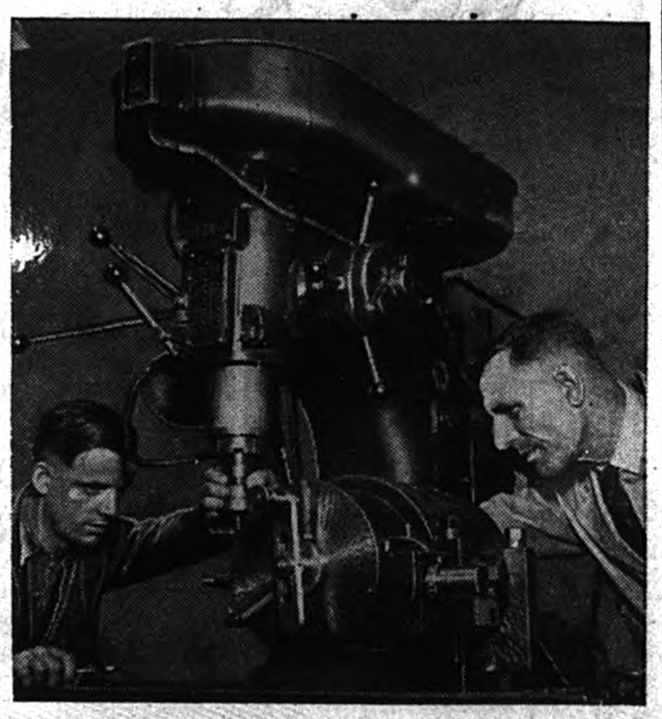

Fourth of the five features is the Great Loan Opening Rally program, scheduled for Sunday, October 17, at 7.30 p.m. EDT, the day before the drive starts. This will be a national inspirational program to speed "The Flying V" on its way.

Finally, there will be the Victory Loan Speakers' series — brief, to-the-point addresses by Canadian personalities, commentators and war heroes, people who know the value of an all-out victory campaign.

Accident Verdict in Ste. Therese Death

Ste. Therese, Sept 21 — A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death following an inquest into the death of Arthur Dusablon, 33, of St. Faustin, who died in the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Montreal from injuries received when struck by a car on the highway at Ste. Therese on Sunday night. The car was driven by Rodolphe Corbeil, of Montreal. District Coroner J. R. Blais presided.

An Underground Bomb-Proof, Gas-Proof War Factory in Britain

In a century old quarry situated in the heart of the beautiful West of England countryside, is a great underground factory which covers an area of nearly three million square feet. Here, 100 feet under the ploughed land, men and machines work day and night producing aero engines for the United Nations. Highly skilled designers, inventors, engineers, men and women, work there in complete security. The underground factory is bomb-proof and gas-proof. . . . Picture shows George Butler setting up an Archdale Vertical Miller in the underground factory. He has had 42 years engineering experience. Three of his sons are fitters, two are millers, and one daughter checks shells.

Glimpse at Post-War Living; Factor of Public Buying Power

Less Purchasing Now, to Avoid Inflation; More Spending in Peace Time to Stimulate Industries and Provide Full Employment

Specially Written for The Watchman by J. M. Price

While thousands of Canadians are fighting abroad in the armed forces, Canadians at home are facing a battle of their own — the battle against inflation.

Next month Canadians will be asked to buy Fifth Victory Loan Bonds. In this fifth year of war, it is more urgent than ever to divert public spending to the purchase of Victory Bonds. The price ceiling is under tremendous pressure, part of which arises from the large excess of spending power over available supplies — from the competitive bidding of the public for limited quantities of goods.

After payment of taxes, Canadians are now earning about $15 of spending power for each $10 of available goods. Unless this surplus is saved voluntarily by the public, a dangerous situation exists and inflation is just around the corner.

The reason for this situation is clear. . . . This year Canadians will earn 7½ billions of dollars as compared with 6.8 billions in 1942 and 4.3 billions in 1939. This is a huge increase in personal incomes within a very short period. Even after payment of personal taxes, total income of individuals this year will reach an all-time high of 6.6 billions as compared with 6.2 billions in 1942. This income will be earned by the 5 million-odd of men and women who are now at work or in the armed forces. Thus there is more money in the hands of the public than ever before — and much less goods than ever before to spend it on!

Today we are developing new skills, new industries, and new knowledge that will enable us to produce, after the war, more peacetime goods than ever before. Our aim in the post-war years will be to promote a healthy, vigorous prosperity, in which all can find useful work. Our ability to reach this goal is directly related to the way we run our country during the war years. If we continue to conduct our financial affairs in ways that avoid inflation, we will help assure a sound basis for post-war production and employment.

The purchase of Victory Bonds by every Canadian is the easiest and safest method of saving for the good years to come. Quite apart from the value of savings at all times as a reserve against emergencies, there will be many things people will want to buy in the post-war years of civilian production. People will be able to obtain a lot of postponed wants and needs which will have piled up during the war years. They will also want to buy the new houses, the new cars, the new radios and all the other things that will have improved in range and quality due to technical advances. They will want to have enough money saved to start up their own businesses, to learn trades, to educate their children, or to travel.

The spending of wartime savings in the years following the end of hostilities can have very important results. The demand for goods financed by these savings will stimulate production and thus give peacetime employment to our fellow-Canadians now in the armed forces, in war industry, and in other phases of war work.

The widespread ownership of government securities thus has a direct connection with the stability of our national life. The purchase of Victory Bonds today is a personal declaration of faith in the future of Canada. It is an expression of confidence in our form of government and in our way of life. The greater the number of people who have a stake in their country in the form of Victory Bonds, the stronger will be the foundation for our social and economic structure in the future.

NON-METALLIC LICENSE PLATES FOR QUEBEC CARS

Quebec, Sept. 17 (CP) — J. P. Dubois, head of the Provincial Automobile Bureau, announced today that license plates will be issued to Quebec automobilists again this year.

Mr. Dubois said as the use of metal was prohibited in Canada, a substitute will be used. It was announced in Ontario recently that motorists will keep their 1943 license plates and that stickers for rear windows will be issued.

More than 35,000,000 pieces of mail were sent Overseas to Canadian troops in 1942.

L.O.B.A. Meeting Attended by Que. Grand Mistress

Grenville — A joint meeting of Avoca, Harrington and Grenville L.O.B.A. lodges was held in No-Surrender Lodge No. 210, Grenville, on September 15. Also present were visitors from Lachute and from Cassburn, Ont., to welcome the R.W. Grand Mistress of Quebec, Mrs. C. McHarg.

Mrs. S. Campbell, W.M. of "No-Surrender 210," was in the chair and Grand Lodge honors were conferred on the Grand Mistress and other Grand Lodge officers. A new member was initiated and the work was exemplified in an efficient manner.

The Grand Mistress gave a sincere address on Orangeism of yesterday, today and especially of tomorrow. Remarks were also given by R.W. Mrs. Holt, of Lachute, also R.W. Stanley Holt, Montreal, and Stanley Allan, from Cassburn.

After the close of the meeting a banquet was served to the gathering, which numbered around 60.

No-Surrender Lodge has five honorary members — Mr. James Stewart, who is 80 years of age, Henry Trineer, who is 84 and has been 66 years an Orangeman, as well as Mrs. Trineer who is hale and hearty at 74. Mr. and Mrs. Lesley Bates, of Avoca, are also honorary members of Grenville Lodge, No. 210.

ONE DEAD, THREE INJURED IN DISTRICT'S WORST HIGHWAY ACCIDENT THIS SEASON

STAGE SET FOR BLOOD CLINIC MONDAY, OCT. 4

Second Visit of the Red Cross Mobile Blood Donor Unit

Arrangements are complete for the second blood clinic, to be conducted in Lachute on Monday, October 4, by the Red Cross Mobile Blood Donor Unit. The first venture of this kind was held August 9, when over 150 volunteers answered the call from this district, and the procedure was efficiently handled by technicians accompanying the Unit and a staff of local helpers.

The clinic will again be held in the basement of Lachute Auditorium, but the hours have been changed, namely, from one o'clock to 5.30 in the afternoon, and from 7 to 9 in the evening — this latter session being arranged particularly to accommodate working people.

Eight weeks having elapsed since the initial clinic, donors will be solicited from among the original volunteers, and from those who offered their donations but were not called to the August clinic. In addition, it is hoped that many more will come forward from other communities which have not so far participated.

Advice Concerning Meals

From experience gained in the August clinic, the matter of diet is stressed in a special advice from the local committee. It was observed that many donors on that occasion had taken too literally the request to refrain from eating fatty foods; in many cases they had not eaten at all for several hours, thus depriving themselves of the reserve energy desirable at time of the blood-giving. The request of the committee is that no fats be consumed for six hours prior to visiting the clinic. Before the six-hour limit, however, there should be a hearty meal without restrictions; and, within the six hours, the donor should take nourishment, as much as desired, but avoiding fats and eggs. . . . Donors should follow this advice, in their own interests.

GLENGARRY COUNTY HAS HONOR ROLL OF 1,000 NAMES

Alexandria, Sept. 19 (CP) —Mrs. Alfred Bedard, of Alexandria, who has seven sons in the armed forces, today unveiled a roll of honor bearing the names of all those living in Glengarry County when they enlisted, or who are natives of the county. More than 1,000 names appear on the list, and others will be added.

J. A. Laurin was chairman and speakers included D. B. Macdonald, warden of the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, Msgr. W. J. Smith, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Alexandria; Dr. D. D. McIntosh, Mayor of Alexandria, and Lionel Devaux, Williamstown, Ont.

Aircraft Crashes In Lake Near Buckingham

Buckingham, Sept. 20 (CP) — Air Force police tonight were guarding a sunken R.C.A.F. training plane which crashed in Big Blanche Lake, 13 miles from here, early Saturday. An instructor and student pilot aboard the plane were rescued by Joe Ross, caretaker of a summer home, and others who used power boats to reach them.

The fliers, after being revived, were conveyed to Buckingham village and transferred to St. Eugene, in an R.C.A.F. ambulance. Names of the men were not released by air force authorities. It is understood an investigation into the cause of the crash will begin when the plane is salvaged.

Postpone Inquest Pending Recovery of Driver in Brownsburg Road Fatality

FOUR LACHINE MOTORISTS REPORTED ON FISHING EXPEDITION TO LAURENTIANS

One of the few highway accidents to have occurred in the district this season, a mishap on the Brownsburg Road two miles from Lachute at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, cost the life of one passenger, seriously injured the driver and inflicted lesser injuries to the remaining two occupants. The quartet were residents of Lachine, reported to have been on their way to Lake Louisa for a week-end of fishing.

Alexandre Desrosiers, who suffered the most critical injuries including fracture of the skull, succumbed Monday morning in St. Joseph's Hospital, Lachine. Desrosiers, according to reports of those who arrived earliest at the scene, was in the back seat of the car. Also gravely injured was James Campbell, owner and driver of the automobile—a sedan. Campbell is now a patient at the Montreal General Hospital.

Henry Coleman and Harry Danny, two other occupants of the car, are at the Lachine Hospital suffering severe lacerations and fractures.

Following the accident, and until they reached Montreal in the two ambulances which conveyed them from Lachute, none of the victims was sufficiently conscious to recall the mishap, in which their car hurtled into a tree at the roadside, telescoping the body and hurling the engine 20 feet away. There were no witnesses to the occurrence. First to arrive on the scene was a bus driver. Traffic Officer Albert Legault, of Brownsburg, investigated. Det. Sgt. M. Valiquette arrived from Montreal headquarters of the Provincial Police. Lacking eyewitness accounts, there were various theories as to the cause of the crash, one being that the western sun may have temporarily blinded the driver and that his car ran to the left of the road into the tree. The scene of the accident was near the Gordon Hay farm, where there is an unexpected curve in the highway.

Passers-by quickly gathered to render assistance to the injured men. Dr. L. P. Sauvé arrived from Lachute and the four were conveyed to the Providence Hospital, Lachute Mills, where medical attention was given and the victims were later conveyed to Montreal and Lachine in two local ambulances. The automobile was a complete wreck. The engine shaft had broken and the entire motor had been wrenched from the chassis by the force of the impact.

Inquest into the death of Alexandre Desrosiers will be held as soon as the driver and fellow passengers are able to give their testimony. James Campbell, 42, is still reported in a serious condition, while Henry Coleman, 38, and Harry Danny, 50, are making a satisfactory recovery.

Lions Welcome New Members

The Lachute Lions were favored with a fraternal visit from District Deputy Lion Henry Emo, of Verdun, accompanied by Lion C. E. Fayle, for the Club's regular semi-monthly gathering last evening at Lachute Golf Club.

The meeting was presided over by Lion President Fernand Legault, who expressed great pleasure at welcoming four candidates in the persons of Jos. Martin and Dr. A. R. Cote, of Brownsburg, E. K. Wilson and Geo. F. Calder, of Lachute, who were introduced by Lion Leopold Carriere. The initiation was carried through by Past President Phil Roy.

The new members were addressed by Mr. Roy, who said in part as follows:

On behalf of the Membership Committee and the members of this Club, it is my pleasant privilege to extend to you the cordial hand of fellowship and hearty congratulation of every Lion. We congratulate ourselves in being able to claim you as a part of this organization, and we sincerely believe from our own experiences that as time passes on, you, with us, will find daily great cause for self-congratulation.

To explain fully to you what Lionism means and stands for is not within the possibilities of a little talk of greeting such as this is meant to be. I doubt very greatly that it is even within the possibilities of any spoken words, as the deepest understanding and knowledge of Lionism springs from the heart and not from the tongue. We learn Lionism as we live it. We gain our idea of what it means from the examples of what it does.

We stand on a broad platform. We are organized for the purpose of developing through friendship and fellowship, that force which makes for unselfish service, broad charity, square business relationships and the achievement of high standards in matters affecting our community, province and country. Generally speaking, this is our objective. We feel that we have no cause for shame in our record as far as it has been written. In its further inscription, now that you will become of our number, we are definitely counting on your assistance.

We hope that you will like your association with us; we are glad to have you here, we want to know you better and we want you to share in our fun and to participate in our achievements. We expect you to make good Lions and we feel that you will.

District Deputy Lion H. Emo heartily congratulated the Club on their marked success in connection with the Blood Donor Clinic and also the Cigarette Fund for the lads overseas. . . . On request of the president he presented Lion J. S. Giles with a 100 per cent attendance pin.

Town Lady Injures Her Back in Fall

Mrs. H. M. Gall, a well known resident of this town, suffered a misfortune last Thursday in a fall at her home in the East Ward. Injuring her back, she was given an X-ray examination which revealed vertebrae broken in her spine. Mrs. Gall was taken to the Montreal General Hospital Western Division and, brought home by ambulance on Tuesday, she is now confined to bed. A host of friends wish her steady progress and a complete recovery.

Wolf Packs Plague Gatineau Farmers

Maranders Have Killed Cattle and Sheep in Barn-Yards; Some Losses Severe

Bouchette, Que., Sept. 17 (CP) — Farmers in this upper Gatineau County district are plagued by roving packs of timber wolves which already are reported to have slaughtered more than 300 head of sheep.

Reports from the surrounding countryside indicate the attacks on livestock, going on sporadically all summer, have grown during the past months, with the packs becoming increasingly bolder. In a few cases, fully-grown cattle have been slain in the fields while attacks on sheep have occurred within the sight of homes.

Some individual losses have been severe, one farmer reporting the slaughter of 16 of his sheep and another reporting 13 killed; four head of cattle were killed on adjoining farms.

There have been some attempts at trapping and poisoning, and some talk of organizing posses of hunters, but thus far the defensive measures have resulted in destruction of only two wolves in the immediate district.

Michael Richard, an old-timer in the district, said he never had seen wolves so bold. "Over on our side of the Gatineau River they appear to be in packs of about a half-dozen and we hear them howling at all hours of the night," he said. "They often come right up within an acre of my house."

The region affected lies between the upper reaches of Blue Sea Lake and 31-Mile Lake, which are about five miles west and east, respectively, of the Gatineau River.

NAZI "HOSPITALIZATION"

London (CP) — The Norwegian Telegraph Agency said the "by order of the Germans, sick prisoners in Ullevaal hospital, largest in Oslo, are being chained to their beds by their wrists."

Editor Presents Weeklies' Trophy

Winnipeg, Sept. 21 (CP) — The Dominion Textile Trophy, awarded for the best editorial page conducted by any Canadian Weekly newspaper this year, was presented here recently to Alfred W. Hanks, editor of the St. James Leader, at a dinner given by St. James Citizens.

The trophy was presented by F. J. O'Malley, managing editor of the Winnipeg Tribune. Mr. O'Malley said that a community-minded paper should be one that identified itself with the life of the community so closely that the paper becomes a local institution, understanding the people who make up the community.

"This is what I believe Mr. Hanks has achieved in a very large measure," he added.

Replying, Mr. Hanks declared a great deal of the credit was due to the efficiency of his staff.

MONT'L HIGH SCHOOL PREPARING FOR ITS 100th ANNIVERSARY

Seek Names and Addresses of All Former Pupils

Montreal — Former pupils of the Montreal High School are being traced by a large committee of prominent Old Boys, so that they may join in a fitting celebration to be held November 26, 1943. Plans are well advanced and include among other things the compilation of a Book of Remembrance, containing the names of all who have ever attended Montreal High School. This is to be installed in a Memorial Room to be constructed after the war, in honor of Montreal High boys who gave their lives for Canada in the last and present wars. Scholarships are also to be set up in the names of the fallen ones. The complete project will be presented at a dinner to be held in Montreal on November 26. Throughout the week of November 21 to 27, special events will be held at the school and in Montreal on the occasion of the 100th Anniversary of the founding of the School.

Heading the general committee is Hon. Mr. Chief Justice W. L. Bond, B.A., B.C.L., D.C.L. Other well known Canadians are serving on the committee.

The school is anxious to obtain the present address of all those who attended, at any time, and it is suggested that former pupils write to Thomas Sommerville, M.A., Rector, High School of Montreal, 3449 University Street, Montreal, Que.

STANSTEAD COUNTY APPROVES UNIT OF 11 SCHOOL BOARDS

Following the movement for larger administrative units, which is spreading throughout the province on a voluntary basis, Stanstead County has organized a unit which will serve 11 local boards.

At a meeting held recently in Ayer's Cliff, the following were appointed to the county board: Rev. C. M. Stewart, Stanstead; S. Low, Coaticook; A. Slack, Ayer's Cliff; Dr. C. Harris, Magog; and M. J. McKay, North Hatley.

Special speaker at the organization meeting was Dr. W. L. Shurtleff, of Coaticook, a member of the Protestant Committee, who urged the Stanstead County Protestant school boards to try out the idea of the larger unit.

Members of Canada's Veteran Guard have distinguished World War One records. One corporal has the Military Cross and was a Major in the Imperial Army in 1914-18.

Little Guesswork In Air Assualts

Unseen Labor and Skill Behind Air Raids Is Stupendous

By ALAN RANDAL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — The unseen labor and skill back of any air assault is something stupendous. Nothing is left to chance these days and there seems no end to the detailed preparation preceding Allied air raids.

It must be so because the Nazis, as Canadians have found out in Sicily at first hand, are masters in the art of deception and camouflage. The British are just as artful at catching on. If the outsider could listen-in on a briefing session for aircrew before they go out this would be quite apparent. There are few details the intelligence men fail to find out.

For instance on one recent raid big bombers were sent out in daylight to attack an airplane factory in enemy-occupied territory. It encompassed a score or so of buildings but the intelligence was able to say, "Bomb this one and the raid will be a success."

That factory was the key building in this particular industrial set-up but it was well hidden by camouflage. In fact the Germans had built a replica a considerable distance away in the hope this fake building would attract bomb-aimers.

Good Intelligence Work

Here again intelligence was able to say: don't bomb that building. You'll be able to spot it because of this clump of trees near the right hand corner. The building we want destroyed looks the same but it has no trees near it."

So the bombers went out and came back. Then the photo reconnaissance plane went out and came back. And their pictures showed the building with the trees still there. The other? It had disappeared in the bomb blasts.

For the great dam-busting raid on the Ruhr last spring there were weeks of secret preparation by the aircrews picked for the job. This followed long months of experiment and testing to see what could be done to destroy these dams.

Another example of detailed preparation is the work done prior to the great raid on the Ploesti oil installations in Rumania August 1.

Preparatory Work Praised

Twenty-six-year-old Sqdn. Ldr. George Charles Barwell, loaned as a gunnery expert to the American 9th Bomber Command, went along on the raid. On his arrival in England he said he had never known such care before an attack.

"We all had every conceivable detail available and a picture-by-heart impression of the targets," he said. "We knew beforehand such small details as what the town and country policemen would be dressed in and that one carried a revolver and the other a carbine."

Before that the picked air crews put in 11 days practising bombing a full-sized replica of the Ploesti installations which was built in the desert.

Questionnaire on Subject of Thrift

Judged by results of a Canada-wide survey just completed for the National War Finance Committee, the Fifth Victory Loan would appear to offer an excellent opportunity for any Canadians to increase their savings as a guard against eventualities.

In order to determine the approximate length of time that the Canadian public could get along on their present savings, the following question was designed and submitted to a cross-section of the Dominion's population:

"If the war were to end tomorrow, and you lost your job, for how long a period of time could you get along on your present savings?"

Replies show that 15.6 per cent could get along for less than a month. Possibly in this class too would fall most of the 31.8 per cent who failed to express any definite opinion. If such is the case it indicates that 47.4, or nearly half the population, has little or no savings on which to fall back in event of emergency.

Complete results of this aspect of the survey were:

Could get along for	Per Cent
Less than 1 month	15.6
From 2 to 3 months	12.9
From 3 to 6 months	13.4
From 7 to 12 months	9.1
From 1 to 1½ years	2.7
From 1½ to 2 years	4.3
From 2 to 3 years	3.8
For over 3 years	6.4
No opinion	31.8

A second interesting question was this:

"What are you planning to do with your accumulated savings after the war?"

Worthy of note are the facts that 83.8 per cent of those approached have definite post-war ideas, and that 17.3 per cent, or the largest single-minded group, plan to retain their savings as such.

Use of War Savings:	Per Cent
Keep as savings	17.3
Purchase a home	13.1
Furnish the home	8.4
Travel	5.8
To get married	4.7
Education	4.2
New automobile	4.2
Insurance, pensions, etc.	3.5
Clothing, finery, etc.	3.1

FUEL CONTROLLERS FOR THE PROVINCES

Ottawa, Sept. 19 (CP) — Plans looking to the appointment of deputy coal and wood controller, for each province now are under consideration here, it was learned tonight, in an effort to relieve the fuel situation throughout Canada.

It is understood that the controllers, whose names have yet to be announced, will serve without remuneration.

More than a quarter of Canada's dentists are in the armed services.

Biggest-Yet Assault Exercises in Britain — Full Scale Battle

Troops stationed in Britain carried out their largest-yet offensive exercise over the English countryside. Two armies, "Southland" (comprising large forces of Canadian and British troops), and "Eastland" (representing the Germans), fought with a resolution which augurs ill for the Axis. Civilians were questioned, their identity cards were checked, and all the background security measures brought into operation. The exercise represented a full-scale battle, complete with field newspapers produced on the spot. . . . Picture shows a British-built "Churchill" tank reaching the roadway after a cross-country journey during the operations.

Hen Lives After Month's Burial

Morristown, Tenn. (CP) — Egg production has been resumed by "Rick," a hardy hen which survived 28 days buried under the full weight of a filled hay loft.

Lea King Donaldson said the fowl was covered when a load from the carrier dropped on her nest. Thinking she must have perished, farmers putting in the hay made no effort to save her. Nearly a month later, said Donaldson, the hen was found weighing but about a pound, her bill grown to two and a half inches, her claws so long she could not stand up and her comb bleached to a pure white. She recovered fully.

WAYS TO PREVENT SOIL WASHING

(Experimental Farm News)

Soil washing or sheet erosion is the most common form of soil wastage from the sandy loam soils in Eastern Canada. Heavy rain falls on cultivated soil cause a down every slope. The steeper the movement of fine particles of soil slope the more rapid the movement of surface water from either rain or melted snow, says J. A. Clark, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Farm, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

By ploughing and cultivating across the slope of the land or by following contours the movement of water is delayed so that it soaks into the ground or moves more slowly to lower levels. The ridging up of land along the contours in the autumn prevents washing. On moderate slopes the sowing of fall rye immediately after digging potatoes will retain much soil that otherwise would have been carried away. This rye can be pastured in the spring, plowed down as green manure for another crop, or harvested for grain.

Steep slopes should be kept permanently in grass or planted to trees to retain the fertile soil. Such land when valuable enough to be retained in crop production can be terraced to retard the movement of water down hill. The spillways from the terraces should remain in tough fibrous rooted grasses and be so made and kept that the soil is protected against free running water. These spillways should be graded so that the water will flow down them and avoid any steep descent, removing the surplus water by uniform slope to a stream or outlet.

Briefly: Stop soil washing by slowing up the movement of surface water. Locate contours and work along them. Use grass and trees to retain the surface soil, the nation's most valuable possession. Stop all gullies in the making by diverting small streams with snow, earth or other materials or direct the water by terracing and spillways. Prevention of washing away is the cheapest method of preserving soil fertility.

Huge Ship Hawsers

Dartmouth, N.S. — There is in this town a famous rope works which has been turning out coils of the largest rope made in the Dominion for three generations and which has been owned continuously by the same family. Rope eighteen inches in circumference comes from the looms in great coils ready to be loaded into Canadian National freight cars for shipment to distant places in the Allied war effort. Heavier rope than this has been turned off from the looms of the company, some four inches greater in thickness. Great machines have taken the place of the old hand looms and rope walk, and in these war days women are taking over from the men, there being an increasing number of women employed in the plant.

TO PAY SUBSIDIES TO MILK PRODUCERS

Hon. Jas. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, announces that the Government has decided to revise the subsidies on dairy products because of increased costs brought about largely through the feed grain failures in whole milk and cheese producing areas.

Begining October 1, 1943, and continuing until April 30, 1944 subsidies will be paid to dairy producers as follows:

1. Fifty-five cents per hundred pounds to producer-distributors of fluid milk and of such milk bought by distributors for fluid milk consumption as the Agricultural Food Board may direct;
2. Thirty cents per hundred pounds of milk used for cencentration purposes as the Agricultural Food Board may direct;
3. Thirty cents per hundred pounds of milk used in the manufacture of cheddar cheese.
4. Eight cents per pound of butter fat until December 31, 1943 and 10 cents a pound butter fat from January 1, 1944 to April 30, 1944.

It is expected that these subsidies, together with the prices at which milk sells, will make it possible for farmers to produce sufficient milk to provide the fluid milk, canned milk, cheese and butter necessary to feed the civilian and armed population as well as supply our allies with cheese and canned milk in considerable quantities.

ADVOCATES "CAT"

London (CP) — Rev. F. H. Cooke, Vicar of Hooton, Cheshire, believes that use of the "cat" would stop bicycle thefts in Britain. Writing in his parish magazine, he said: "Bring the cat into action. Fining is no use; imprisonment is a waste of time and money."

OWN HAY LOADER MADE BY FARMER

Slater, Ia. (CP) — Luther Severton, who farms 400 acres, figured that, with the shortage of labor and time, he needed some method of getting his hay in in short order. With the help of his wife's father, Oley Storing, he made his own loader of an old binder bed and an old corn elevator.

The new loader operates from the side of the wagon instead of the rear, the standard method. Among the advantages of side loading, Severton says, are: the wagon doesn't run over the hay; the loader, by means of a coupling, may be placed at any position beside the wagon, saving repitching of the hay from the back to the front; it is easier to unhitch wagons in the field as the loader never has to be shifted when wagons are swaped.

HORSES IN FAVOR

Athens, Tenn. (CP) — Old times, it seems, have returned. At a recent camp meetings at the rural Mount Cumberland Presbyterian Church, the wagons and buggies outnumbered the autos by a big majority. One of the wagons, equipped with hay frames, made a round trip of 16 miles to bring 20 worshippers to the service.

Over Two Thousand Orphans in Britain

One of the most important items of the work of the Queen's Canadian Fund is with British children who have been left parentless through enemy action, the majority as the result of enemy air raids.

Some 2,071 British children have lost both parents in this war. Of them, 511 belonged to members of the services, 288 to the mercantile marine personnel and 1,272 to the civilians.

The fund is confident that its participation in this scheme to help the children of Britain has brought benefits which it is impossible to estimate to children who could otherwise suffer seriously from war conditions.

Matter of Taste

The distillers want to start making whisky again. Some of their opponents argue that our grain supply is needed for more important purposes, particularly for feed.

These opponents remind us of Zeke in the old story —

Two loafers in front of a Kentucky courthouse noticed an acquaintance passing by. One lounger, shifting his quid, philosophized to the other as follows:

"Thar goes that wuthless Zeke Brown. Two loaves of bread under his arm, and not a drap o' whisky in his house.

Interprovincial Understanding

The war has given Canadian interprovincial understanding a boost unequalled since the days when easteners by the thousands travelled to the western plains to participate in harvesting operations. Today we have this movement and its counter equivalent — western farmers travelling East to extend a neighborly helping hand to their hard-pressed fellow farm toilers.

One of the unique results of this interprovincial fellowship is the insight it gives widely-separated landowners throughout the nation into the problems and ways of their countrymen — an insight that is bound to bear fruit in post-war understanding.

The acceleration in knowledge of how the other fellow lives is evidenced in other ways through war conditions.

French-Canadian and Maritime servicemen have been sent all over western Canada and prairie and Pacific coast troops have taken up posts on or close to the shores of the Atlantic. Similar movements have taken place between Ontario and Quebec and other provinces.

Here and there throughout the country groups of workingmen and women have migrated to other parts to ease labor conditions and, incidentally, increase their knowledge of other sections of Canada.

These and similar migrations, temporary though they are, should have a profound effect on Canadian thinking in the after-war period. If you've wrestled at first-hand with the other fellow's problems you're going to be chary of dismissing them without a second thought when they are encountered in the press, in parliament or wherever citizens gather.

Then, too, much publicity has been given war enterprises in various parts of Canada. War-conscious citizens, eager to read anything with a bearing on Canadian capacity for making battle have lapped up eye-witness accounts of the enormous oil deposits in the Fort Norman sands, the difficulties of pushing through the Alaska Highway, the iron ore deposits at Steep Rock, Ont., the Shipshaw power plant in Quebec and many other developments.

Importance of Little Things

A young woman of our acquaintance works in a war plant. In order to save money to buy Victory Bonds she takes a lunch pail to work instead of going to the canteen. The other day she told us the reason why.

"Johnny," she said, referring to her husband, "is in the Merchant Marine — just for the duration. After he left, I decided to give him all the backing I could, so I went to work in the plant. I was very happy to do so. It gave me a sense of my own importance in the war effort.

"Johnny often writes to me, but he never did bother me with the details of his experiences, some of them (as it turned out) pretty hair-raising. I found out about some of them, though, when Dick, his pal, came home for a rest cure, after having been torpedoed in mid-ocean. 'Johnny was on the raft too,' Dick told me. 'He pulled through a bit better than I, but we all had a rough time. You see, we drifted for four days. Others have drifted much longer, I know—but four days is like a century when you have to go through it. . . . We were saved by what might appear a small thing. We were off the regular sea lanes, and it was muggy weather. On the second day we thought we saw a ship, but whatever it was it didn't see us. Couldn't, in that fog, and being so far away. But on the fourth day one of our planes spotted us, and rescue followed. . . . But', he continued 'what I can't get over is the nature of that rescue. The plane had no reason to be looking for us. As a matter of fact it was on a totally different mission. It was a very long way away. But just at that moment there was a lifting of the fog, and somebody aboard the plane happened to have amazingly sharp eyes. A series of little things, you might say — but our lives hung on them!' "

Relating this, the young woman paused. "It all goes to show," she said, "what the extra ounce of effort may do. It adds up to something very big. Up to then it had been hard for me to see the importance of my little Victory Bonds in the mighty war effort. But now I can see that the big effort is made up of many little efforts. What's more, the big result we're all out to achieve is made up of many little results — like rescuing my Johnny. Yes, I can see the war in my own terms now much more than before. And gosh, what does it matter to me if I cut out a few little luxuries?"

A Noble Work

Who are criminals? Where do they come from? . . Criminals can be you or I in our weakest moments. Not only from poor, degenerate backgrounds come all the criminals; but regardless of their origin or status, a great humanitarian organization, the Salvation Army, opens its heart to these broken citizens. Doctors, lawyers, technicians, ministers, accountants, and many others who have fallen through weakness and temptation, have been re-instated back into society through the efforts of the Army of Mercy.

In a single year 2,662 ex-convicts were helped back into a better way of life by the Army; many were restored to their homes; others went back to their old jobs; and for others, new jobs were found. Instead of going to jail, 1,502 men and women were committed to the Army's care; 6,715 prisoners were met on their discharge; 6,774 beds and meals were supplied to ex-prisoners; 9,573 received material assistance; 6,818 visits were made in the interests of prisoners to their families or prospective employers, 2,668 religious services were held in penitentiaries.

These figures tell countless stories of hope rekindled; of awkward and unfamiliar prayers rising from unaccustomed lips; of paths being diverted into useful and profitable ways; and all through the help of the Salvation Army, which believes that none have fallen so low that they cannot be reborn.

With your generous help, this work must go on. When you support the Salvation Army Home Front Appeal, aimed this year at a national objective of $800,000 — you are answering the prayers of the would-be enemies of society, giving them a chance to start life anew.

Things have been speeding up lately in the Income Tax Inspector's office. During the past few weeks we have received not only a receipt for our 1940 tax (paid in 1941), but a bill for additional dues on the 1941 tax (paid in 1942). — That's quick work in any (government) department.

Post-War Insurance

It didn't take a threat of rationing to start millions of people buying Bibles. The fact is that the demand has been so great in the last two years that, despite a huge increase in output, the principal publishers have announced they will ration the Book of Books, beginning October 1. Retail outlets will be permitted to buy on a quota basis of previous sales.

Who has been buying all the Bibles? That question is not as important as, Who is doing all the increased Bible reading? The answer is that it is the men in uniform mainly — and that includes some of the hitherto hardest-boiled newspaper correspondents who have seen action and been in it. Every now and then a boy will write in from Sicily or New Guinea or India or the great garrison that is England, that it's no uncommon thing to see a lad sitting quietly in his bunk, or in the shade of a hut or a tank or a plane, reading his Bible. And no one snickers any more, or dares to call a Bible-reader a "sissy."

The boys — and their loved ones at home — who cling to their Bibles after the war, and to what they have gained from reading them, will find themselves better prepared for post-war problems. And the fruitage of wartime reliance on spiritual truths should be abundant.

The Future on the Farm

A popular song in the year 1918 was "How're ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Paree?" Indeed it proved a problem to get returned men back on the farm and to keep the rising generation upon it as well, rural depopulation through migration of young people to the cities being a universal experience. The problem is quite an old one. It arose in Britain in Gladstone's time, and one of his ministers was probably near the truth when he said: "The farmhands want circuses." It was not only entertainment they needed, however; they needed relief from the burden of work.

The question of rural depopulation should not be such a serious one after this war, or at any time in the future. The pattern of farm life has changed much since the last war, and is changing for the better every day. First of all there is the radio, which brings to the remotest farm or homestead, music, plays, talks and news of the day and sport from all parts of this continent, and even of the world. The rural dweller is quite as well off in that respect as the resident of Toronto or New York. And some day in the near future there will be television.

Transportation is also vastly better. It has given the agricultural producers a wider market to which they can carry their own products without selling to a middleman. Twenty-five to 30 miles is an easy journey, and not many farms are that distant from a small town or city. There again, entertainment enters into the picture. The farm people can run into town to see a movie show any evening. There is no need for circuses; there are fewer circuses today anyway.

Thousands of farm youths have learned to pilot 'planes, and some of them may even have their own 'planes after the war. The extensive criss-cross of air services will be a great boon. Air transport will supplement the car for marketing, and another instance of the value of the 'plane is afforded by the case of a farmer who urgently needed a new part for a harvesting machine that had broken down. He telephoned to a town 60 miles away, and half an hour later the wanted part was dropped on his farm in a crate.

There is no doubt electrification of farms will be increased, and it is going to add enormously to the comfort and simplification of rural life. Some of the farm machinery will be run by electric motors. One of the greatest advantages is the home-freezing unit, keeping all kinds of food in condition all the year round.

The farmer is going to get a lot of attention in the near future. He will get services that will add to his physical and material well-being. That is fortunate, because food production is going to take a larger part in national economy than ever before. —St. Thomas Times-Journal

Missed the Real Point

(News of Norway)

A few days ago the Quisling newspaper, Fritt Folk, posed this question to its readers: "Who made the cheapest trip across the North Sea?" The answer supplied was: "King Haakon, because the entire trip cost him only one crown." The next morning an unidentified man telephoned the editor and said he had enjoyed the little joke but added that the newspaper had missed the real point. "What is that?" asked the editor. "Well", said the man, "when the King returns he will get the crown back, and then he will have made the entire round trip without it having cost him anything!"

A WEEKLY EDITOR LOOKS AT Ottawa

By Jim Greenblat

At 12.20 p.m. on September 8, in the Prime Minister's office in the East Block your representive was among those gathered at one of the most momentous press conferences since the outbreak of war. The text of statements to be broadcast ten minutes later by General Eisenhower to the world telling of Italy's exit from the war, to be followed by Mr. King's radio statement to the Canadian people, were announced to the little gathering, mainly members of the press gallery. From that office, redolent of Canadian political history and haunted by shadows of Macdonald, Laurier and others — went the gladstone tidings to you out on farms, ranches, fishing smacks.

The news came little more than a day after Finance Minister Ilsley's announcement of Canada's Fifth Victory Loan opening October 18th with a minimum cash objective of $1,200,000,000. Thrilled with the dismemberment of the Axis, realistic newsmen present at the conference, nevertheless, commented they hoped Canadians wouldn't let the news lull them into any false sense of security insofar as the war is concerned, and affect their contribution to the objective's attainment. They as well as the government are convinced that a severe and costly struggle still lies ahead.

The other night, late, I passed the National Research Council Building. Lights were glowing in windows. Geared to much hush-hush war research, this outfit gets little publicity these days but those who know say a very tremendously important job is being done within those grey walls, and much of it by young men and women who grew up in rural areas. Only some of the results attained are given out, about things which will affect our post-war living. For instance, in connection with Irish moss (seaweed) a processing method has been developed producing odorless, tasteless, light colored preparation giving a strong jelly in canning. Several million pounds of Irish moss is harvested on the east coast annually. In drying pork they found ways of getting an excellent product retaining 75% of the natural B 1 vitamin content after cooking and drying. Astounding things they have evolved in aircraft production, leather substitutes, plastics, too.

Have seen a reproduction of the new sticker which in future will go on all shipments of goods from Canada to the United Nations. It is in gold, blue and red, centered by a maple leaf and the word "Canada" in English, also in Chinese and Russian. Very attractive. In connection with the new Canadian Mutual Aid Board, it is understood that Canada's allies will furnish Canada with supplies or services in return if they can, or may assure the return after the war of any supplies or equipment which may appear to have post-war use. Meanwhile, there will be no piling up of huge war debts by the sale of supplies to the United Nations for payment after the war or the institution of indefinite and uncertain post-war obligations.

Not gone and not forgotten! Dr. J. H. He said that in the Atlantic Charter we have the promises of idealism to be worked out in years to come — that the League stands for just that.

Army Public Relations gives an idea how troops in Canada are looked after to keep them from getting too bored in off hours. Such organizations as the Canadian Legion, Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army and Knights of Columbus do a grand job in this direction. During the first week in August, for instance, 69,804 books were in circulation, 65,277 magazines and 10,948 papers were distributed; 1,464 motion pictures were shown in camps, with an attendance of over 380,000 men. In July they had more than 400 dances for the lads, with an attendance of 150,000. There are about 175 civilian concert parties on the go and more than 4,000 individuals giving one or two nights a week to assist them — which all goes to show that that even if the boys are "a-weary-in' for you" they do and see things.

The Canadian cost-of-living index was up 118.2 to 119.2 in July, the sixth consecutive month with a rise, which is not viewed with satisfaction in official circles. This affects cost-of-living bonuses for workers in most industries and if continued bonuses would have to be increased effective November 15, if October's index had a rise of this nature. The bonus is adjusted quarterly, based on the index. Increased cost-of-living does not run parallel with the best tenets of price control.

HERE AND THERE

VETERAN CLERGYMAN DIES

London (CP) — Oldest clergyman in Britain, Rev. William Longhurst died at Budleigh Salterton within a week of his 105th birthday. He was the oldest Old Boy of Marlborough College and was honorary canon of Worcester for 26 years. He became Canon Emeritus at 97.

FAMILY REUNION

Dunlap, Kas. (CP) — Ralph Hayes, farmer, sold his favorite team of mules last February just before he entered the Army. The other day on Guadalcanal he heard a familiar hee-haw and, going to the source of the sound, found his mules. They also are working for Uncle Sam on Guadalcanal.

DETESTS TOBACCO

London (CP) — Miss Louisa Alley, of Trowbridge, celebrated her 100th birthday and to emphasize her dislike of nicotine told interviewers that "if the Creator meant people to smoke he would have placed a chimney on their heads." And as for women smoking, well — "If I had my way shops would not be allowed to sell cigarettes to women."

Births, Marriages and Deaths

Births, Marriages, Deaths, In Memoriam, etc., 50 cents each insertion; 5c a line extra for verse with In Memoriam.

BIRTHS

BELL — At Dr. Smith's Private Hospital, Hawkesbury, Ont., on September 18, 1943, to Sgt. Joseph Bell (Overseas) and Mrs. Bell, of St. Andrews East, Que. — a son.

THORBURN — At the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, on September 21, 1943, to Mr. and Mrs. Victor Thorburn (née Enid Kirby) — a son.

IN MEMORIAM

CLARK—In fond and loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Jennie Grace Marshall, who passed away September 18, 1941. — Ever remembered by her husband, Salter, daughter, Bella, and son-in-law, Ralph.

"Beautiful memories are all we have left
Of one we loved and will never forget."

FLETCHER — In loving memory of our dear brother, Ernest W. Fletcher, who departed from this life September 27, 1942. — Ever remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Don Fletcher, Lachute.

We little knew when we woke that morn
The sorrow the day would bring,
For the call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one we all loved so dear.
Peacefully sleeping, ever at rest,
World's earthly sorrows and troubles are past,
Till God has taken him home to His breast,
Sleeping so peacefully, ever at rest.

Bride and Groom in Air Force, Wed in A London Church

Millar-Kendall Marriage of Interest in St. Andrews Community

St. Andrews East — The wedding in St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, London, England, of S-O. Elizabeth Anne Kendall, R.C.A.F., (W.D.), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney V. Kendall, of Montreal and St. Andrews East, and Wing-Cmdr. David Dewar Millar, R.C.A.F., son of the Rev. D. D. Millar, of Ottawa, took place on Saturday, September 18.

The Rev. I. A. Norris, R.C.A.F. Chaplain, officiated. Standards of bronze and gold chrysanthemums were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Sir Norman Birkett, K.C., wore a gown of white chiffon flecked with silver, fashioned with a round neckline and puffed sleeves, and having silver embroidery on the hemline of the very full skirt. Her finger-tip length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and baby's breath. Her only attendant, Mrs. J. C. Emory, of Montreal, was gowned in a floor-length frock of ice blue crepe, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations and wore a cluster of the same flowers in her hair.

Wing-Cmdr. John E. Fauquier, D.F.C. and Bar, D.S.O., R.C.A.F., Ottawa, was best man for the groom. The reception was held at Claridge's, Brook Street, where Sir Norman and Lady Birkett acted as host and hostess.

Later, Wing-Cmdr. and Mrs. Millar left to spend their honeymoon in Ireland. The bride's travelling frock was of beige wool and she wore a jacket of sheared beaver and brown accessories.

LET'S ALL DO MORE TO WIN THE WAR

BEFORE THE WAR: Betty used to dash around in her Dad's car. She loved being at the wheel.

TODAY: Betty is in the Army—driving a Jeep. She is really doing something to help win the war.

THE MORE WE'RE IN IT THE QUICKER WE'LL WIN IT!

Women are needed in the Army, Navy and Air Force . . . desperately! And it's a grand life. Good meals, plenty of exercise, interesting things to do on and off duty. You'll meet new friends, see new places, learn new work. And when it's all over you'll have the pride of knowing you did your duty. Enlist now . . . take your place beside the gallant women of the United Nations.

"The Rumor Clinic"

— Prepared by The Canadian Column —

Step by Step to Victory

Word of the unconditional surrender of Italy filled us all with pride — pride because of the part the Canadian people have played in bringing about this step toward Victory.

The people of Canada striving in many varied ways toward one goal have proved what such unity of purpose can accomplish. Without ignoring the dangers of complacency, and fully recognizing the long hard pull ahead, Canadians can still rejoice at the results thus far obtained.

The choice of the ancient city of Quebec as the seat of the gathering of our Allied leaders for the recent conferences, exemplifies the position Canada has won for herself in the eyes of her fellow men. With a war production record second to none, to back them up, our armed forces have proven themselves on land or sea and in the air; our leaders have earned the respect of our Allies and kept the morale of the country at a high level. Yes indeed, Canadians can be proud.

Admittingly we have an arduous task ahead; the vicious war machine that still confronts us, is one not easily conquered; nevertheless the oppression and persecution of the unhappy peoples of Europe can and will be stopped, and the oppressors punished.

Having concrete evidence before our eyes, of the results brought about by all our united efforts, we can now go on, secure in the knowledge that our unflagging efforts will bring about the final victory.

Confidence in ourselves and in our leaders, plays an important role in defeating the ends of enemy propagandists who are continually launching mis-information to undermine this confidence. Here are a few examples of the latest rumors emanating from the loose-tongue societies.

Rumor: "The Royal Canadian Air Force has thousands of cars at its disposal in Canada. You often see them being driven about the streets of our cities with one or two passengers in them when they could hold five. Is there any need for R.C.A.F. personnel to be driven about from building to building when they could get there almost as fast walking? Is there any check on the use of these R.C.A.F. cars?"

Fact: Wing Commander I. C. Cornblat, Assistant director of supplies, R.C.A.F., states: "There are approximately 6,000 motor vehicles with the R.C.A.F. consisting of all types, running from sedans, trucks, different types of trucks, ambulances, re-fueling tenders, trailers, tenders — every type of equipment required for the operation of the service. They serve the whole air force in Canada under the British Empire Training Programs, including the home war commands. Operating costs and mileage records are carefully checked each month. A considerable reduction in operating costs has been achieved due to the work of the supplies administration branch.

The use of M.T. vehicles at units must be approved by the commanding officer, who is made responsible for the use of all vehicles allotted to him and it is his duty to see that they are not unduly used. In addition to this, there is a branch of M.T. directorate at command headquarters and they make frequent and regular inspection of units, checking on the operation of vehicles, the state of repair of the vehicles and the operation. These officers are responsible to A.F.H.Q. for the efficient and economic use of M.T. at units. These inspections and other check-ups revealed that there was no unnecessary use of vehicles for purely "small" purposes as has been suggested.

We are endeavoring to pool vehicles wherever possible. For example: in Toronto, we have quite a few air force units, each with its own M.T. establishment. As an economy trial measure we have pooled these vehicles. We have taken all the vehicles away from the individual units — and there are about six or seven of them in Toronto — and placed them on the establishment of one unit, No. 1 Manning Depot. The latter supply the vehicles required for each of the other five units. That has affected a considerable economy."

Rumor: "There is a great waste of foodstuffs at Army and Air Force Camps."

Fact: In so far as the Army is concerned, this rumor has been categorically denied in this column on previous occasions. However, in respect of the Air Force, Wing Commander Cornblat states: "Messing officers in all R.C.A.F. units pay very strict attention to the amount of food used and consumed. The men are asked to "take what you want, but DO NOT WASTE". Such signs are displayed in the dining halls. Each unit has a contract for the disposal of swill and garbage and such swill and garbage is checked to see that good food is not being thrown out. In respect to the proper preparation of the food to avoid waste, in preparation and cooking, each unit has its dietician messing officers. Early in the war, it was found that there was considerable loss and waste in respect to the handling of containers, such as potato bags, etc. These were being thrown out. Following a check, all such waste was stopped and useable containers, bags, etc., were saved and disposed of properly."

Rumor: "Too much attention is given in the Royal Canadian Air Force and in the Empire Air Training Plan activities to the matter of shining buttons, polishing shoes, etc., etc. The men have to go through ceaseless ground drills although everyone knows that they are supposed to be taught how to fly planes and fight in the air. A lot of this routine is unnecessary and takes up valuable time that might be put to better use."

Fact: The Royal Canadian Air Force has always prided itself on the discipline of its men. This also goes for the other Empire air forces, thousands of whose men are trained under the Empire Air Training Plan. Recently, in addressing a group of graduating airmen, Group Captain A. Raymond, officer commanding the Uplands Air Training School, said: "I cannot emphasize the 'spit and polish' discipline too strongly. You are going to be leaders. With leadership there comes added privileges, but there is also added responsibilities to be shouldered. It is in the 'spit and polish' descipline which you have received and reacted to with mixed feelings that will aid you in the future. Unless attention is paid to these small details, the efficiency of the whole system lags and suffers.

This seemingly foolish descipline which brings about so much criticism from all parts of Canada is the main reason we have such a successful air force. People say: 'This is not winning the war. Let's get on with the job.' I say, let's fight any such remarks, as this system of discipline has already proven itself."

You can help. Don't repeat rumors — report them. Write to the Canadian Column, Transportation Building, Montreal.

Christian Science

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 26.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 64: 4. "Since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God." (Psalms 42: 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Become conscious for a single moment that Life and intelligence are purely spiritual, — neither in nor of matter, — and the body will then utter no complaints. If suffering from a belief of sickness, you will find yourself suddenly well. Sorrow is turned into joy when the body is controlled by spiritual Life, Truth, and Love." (Page 14).

Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul Is Scene of Fashionable Wedding

Soper - Bulloch

The marriage of Isabel Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ross Bulloch, to Mr. Warren Young Soper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Soper, took place Saturday afternoon at half-past four o'clock in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, the Rev. George H. Donald, D.D., officiating, Mr. F. L. Newnham, A.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., organist and choir director, played the wedding music. Standards of white gladioli formed the decorations in the church.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white satin fashioned on princess lines, with a square neckline, long sleeves ending in points over the hands and the full skirt falling into a long train. Her veil of tulle illusion, reaching beyond the hem of her train, was held by a scalloped Juliet cap of braided satin. Her bouquet was of bouvardia and purple orchids.

The bride had four attendants: Mrs. W. F. FitzGerald and Mrs. A. S. Baxter, sisters of the bride, Miss Anne Soper, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Lois Johnson, who were gowned alike in frocks of delphinium blue crepe styled on the same lines as the bride's, with three quarter-length sleeves. They wore hats to match, and carried bouquets of purple, mauve and pink chrysanthemums.

Lt. Philip Ross, R.C.N.V.R., was best man for his nephew, and the ushers were Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, Mr. Ross McFarlane, Chief Officer A. S. Baxter, PO. Walter Soper, R.C.A.F., and Lt.-Com. Alfred Bethune.

Mrs. Bulloch, the bride's mother, wore a French model of Royal blue velvet with a powder blue beaded yoke, a hat of Royal blue ostrich feathers with velvet to match, sable furs and a corsage bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Soper, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in star blue Rosamba crepe with a yoke of blue marquisette, a hat to match, blue fox furs, pink accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

A reception was held in the Prince of Wales Salon, Windsor Hotel, where autumn flowers were used to decorate, multi-colored cosmos being arranged on the bride's table.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Soper left for the Laurentians and Ottawa, the bride travelling in a brown wool suit with hat to match and wearing alligator accessories and a corsage bouquet of orchids, and carrying a camel hair coat.

Mr. Soper is a graduate of McGill University, Arts '42.

Guests attending the wedding from this district included Dr. and Mrs. F. W. FitzGerald, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph FitzGerald, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gordon, PO. Ian Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. George Tatterfield, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Richey, Mr. and Mrs. George Leggett, Miss Shirley Leggett and Miss Marjorie Leggett, of Lachute; Mr. and Mrs. William King and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Holden, of Brownsburg.

Married Recently At Guelph, Ont.

Tremblay - Peplow

The marriage of Marguerite Ilena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Peplow, of Guelph, to LAC. Hubert Tremblay, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clement Tremblay, of Lachute, took place recently in the Church of Our Lady, Guelph, Ont., the Rev. J. A. O'Reilly, D.D., officiating. Sister B. Dorothy, of the Loretta Academy, played the wedding music. Summer flowers were used as decoration in the church.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory slipper satin appliqued with roses and lover's knots. Her veil of tulle illusion, reaching to the hem of her gown, was held by a spray of white violets, and she carried a bouquet of cream roses and baby's breath. Miss Rita Sweeney, as the bride's only attendant, was in a frock of pale rose sheer wool, and she wore a hat to match and black accessories. Cpl. Raoul La France, R.C.A.F., acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Frances Sweeney and Mr. Albert E. Peplow.

The reception was held at Cutten Fields Club, where white gladioli were used to decorate, the bride's table being arranged with low bowls of pink roses and tapers.

Mrs. Peplow, the bride's mother, was in a two-piece gown of brown and Mexican gold crepe with matching hat, and she wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Tremblay, mother of the bridegroom, wore an ensemble of dark green wool embroidered with soutache braid, a black hat and a corsage bouquet of roses.

Later LAC. and Mrs. Tremblay left on their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a suit of Iceland blue wool and wearing red grape accessories.

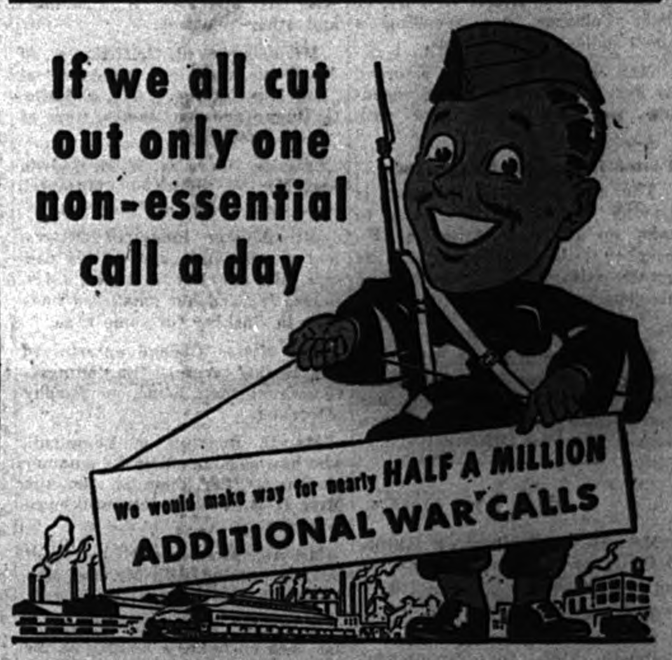

Capt. Dave Campbell Returns to Britain

News concerning arrival of one of the largest Canadian troop contingents, came yesterday from Britain. Among Montrealers in the draft was Capt. Dave Campbell, who was recently renewing acquaintances in Lachute while on a mission from overseas. This is Campbell's third sailing to England on military service — twice in the present war and once in the last war.

Green Light

Montreal — Many green signal lights, symbolic of safety, surety and confidence, are to be seen at the principal street intersections of all Canadian cities, but none of these outshine in point of usefulness the one in the Canadian National Central Station here. Situated over the exit on the south side of the concourse, this green light has been the subject of much conjecture as to its utility and just where it fits into the busy life of the station.

"It is a convenience to the travelling public," said O. A. Trudeau, general passenger agent, Canadian National Railways. "For instance, a passenger placing his baggage in charge of a redcap on arrival, is informed that it will be available in the concourse, if he will wait at the green light."

It is fast becoming the unofficial meeting place of citizens who wish to join friends arriving or departing.

Canadian artists have donated prints of their paintings to dress-up Army canteens, mess halls and lounges.

War Eliminates Moonshine Boys

Knoxville, Tenn. (CP) — The war has done something the United States Internal Revenues agents couldn't — eliminate mountaineer moonshining.

Investigator Homer A. Smith, of the Alcohal Tax Unit, gave these explanations:

The hill-billy who once made the stuff is more likely to be found today in a war plant. The moonshiner's copper still has gone to the scrap heap, and the rationing of sugar and other sweeteners didn't help at all.

Britain has despatched a substantial number of her best locomotives to help the Russian Army, and has done fine engineering work in opening up transportation through Persia on the southern route to Russia.

Autumn

Curled dead leaves beneath my feet,
Fading rays down barren street,
Parks and gardens but a mass
Of papers, butts and dying grass;
Birds departed for some land
Of summer skies and blue-edged sand;
Children play nor here nor there,
Loneliness hangs everywhere.
But ah! There's wood-smoke in the breeze,
Misting blue the tired trees;
Dusk and soon the lights of home
Will gently lull the call to roam;
My heart is still — its only quest
To find a place in winter's rest.

— Ernest Merrick Bennett.

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

A SICILIAN STORY

A woman who has made many trips to Sicily told of the transformation in pre-war days of a Sicilian village. The village was dirty and so were the children, with many infections and runny eyes. To help the young girls and women, an Industrial School was started. The woman at the head of it, with the aid of the Sisters, revived and taught them an old form of embroidery. Their work was well done, but the material was so dirty it was unsalable. She promised them a much higher price, if they turned in clean linen. In order to keep the linen clean, they had to wash their hands. This was not enough, so to keep their hands clean, they cleaned their houses. The clean houses showed up other things and gradually, the barns, the gardens, and even the streets were cleaned. Cleanliness reduced infection and the health of the people was greatly improved.

INFLATION

Inflation is a real danger. Conditions in Canada under the able Donald Gordon have been far from perfect, but they are very much better than in the United States, which is the country comparable to ours. Those of you who can remember the last war will remember that the highest prices of all came after the war was ended. To avoid inflation, we must all do our best. Increased labor costs and higher prices for uncontrolled commodities, which are foods mostly, will tend to bring inflation. One way women can help is by spending as little as possible and investing in War Bonds or Certificates. Higher food costs reduce the incomes of many, but there are others who have more money to spend than ever before and these are the people who have the greatest temptation to spend. All cases of unwarranted increase in prices should be reported to the Wartime Prices and Trade Broad. Remember your name will not be mentioned, and each case will be investigated. Be sure of your facts before you complain.

RATIONING IS FAIR

Rationing is in greater favor all the time. People see its fairness. It is a good thing that jam etc., have been rationed. There have been the usual greedy ones who have scoured the stores trying to get more than their share. Then there have been some who have not been able to get any, if they did not happen to be on very friendly terms with some grocer. Merchants have done a good job generally of self-rationing, but it is only human nature to save their favors for their best customers, and the small family with fewer purchases often lost out. It has always been my policy to deal with one grocer and to do very little shopping around. Once more it has paid dividends because I have had a fair share of scarce merchandise. Rationing is the fairest method. Ration coupons are a lot of work for the merchant, but on the other hand it saves him headaches in trying to distribute his wares equally and prevents him losing customers who become disgrunted because they feel they have been discriminated against.

PRECIOUS EGGS, BUTTER, MILK, FLOUR SAVED WITH MAGIC

Costs less than 1¢ per Average Baking

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

A GENEROUS FILLING

Sandwiches made for a lunch should be of a much more substantial nature than those for refreshments. When made for a tea, for instance the bread is cut thin and just enough filling is used for flavor. When lunch is made for a working person or for a school child more is required than just flavor. Enough of the cheese, or meat, or egg, or what have you, to give the necessary protein. Protein foods are the only ones which will rebuild waste tissue expended in work and it must be supplied.

CREAMED CUCUMBERS

Pare cucumbers, quarter them and remove the seeds. Dice and cook in salted water until tender, from ten to twenty minutes. Cover with Cream Sauce.

BUSY WOMAN'S PICKLES

1 Gallon vinegar, 1 cup salt, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup mustard.

Mix the dry ingredients and mix with a little of the vinegar and rub until smooth. Add the remaining vinegar and mix well. Do not heat. Add cucumbers to this mixture. This is a good pickle for use when there are a few cucumbers ready at a time, in the garden, as they can be added as available.

THAR'S GOLD IN GRANDMA'S BUTTON BAGS

War, Shortage of Metals, Have Combined to Give Collectors of Buttons Added Incentive

By CYNTHIA LOWRY, Associated Press Writer

New York, Sept. 20 (CP) — It took a war and a metal shortage, but Grandmother's button bag has come into its own.

There are plenty of button collections around but today there's a new crop of devotees picking up rare antique buttons in the belief they stack up with gems, Persian rugs and stamps as a hedge against inflation.

And then there is the boom that started when the manufacture of those gaudy, metal buttons halted as war came. Designers are using old buttons to brighten up the L-85 silhouette; the gals are turning them into lapel pins.

So, says Mrs. Jack Partridge, dealers are flooded with business born of war.

She became a button fancier at about the time in life little boys start their stamp collections. She became a dealer in old buttons as a result of one of those giddy impulses common to a true button addict.

Opened Button Shop

"I picked up a collection of 10,000 buttons for a song," she said. "I had to get rid of some of them, so I opened a shop."

The shop tucked away in mid-Manhattan, has the atmosphere of an old curiosity shop, with a quota of rummagers among the cards and jars of buttons. Mrs. Partridge, who makes no effort to sell the buttons, chats informally with her customers.

"You can't sell collectors items," she commented, "all you do is get the buttons in a central location and then let them find them."

Many men are ardent collectors, she said, and most of them specialize in military buttons or buttons with hunting scenes, animals or likenesses of famous people on them.

"To give you an idea, a brass button issued for George Washington's inaugural and bearing his likeness is worth the price of a good winter coat," she remarked.

The most expensive buttons she ever saw were a set of pencil sketches on paper and under glass which a Russian princess made. The price set by the auctioneer was in the thousands.

Old Buttons Valuable

"Take a look in the attic," she advised. "Those brass buttons on Aunt Lulu's funny old dress — the one children love to dress up in — they may have pictures of Little Red Riding Hood, the Pied Piper or William Tell. Any one of them is worth the price of a war bond."

Attics, sewing baskets and button bags sometimes are bano fide treasure troves — or the start of a button collection, she said.

"You might find some real Wedgwoods, or Dresden china, Battersea or a pearl button with a hand-painted design," Mrs. Partridge said, "and don't ever forget that those buttons on Grandfather's uniform make swell earrings.

MATTER OF TECHNIQUE

A Western Ontario soldier complains he is afraid of the girls in North Africa, because, with their faces covered, he cannot tell whether they are 16 or 60. And some persons who never have been out of North America can point to a similar bafflement.

Faulty Parcels

Somebody with an elementary knowledge of refrigeration baked a meat pie the other day and sent it in a wrapper of thick brown paper to a soldier overseas. When the pie reached the base post office it was in "an advanced state," and went farther, despite the postage of 36 cents.

During July there were 1,132 parcels addressed to soldiers overseas sent on to the postal repair branch to be fixed up; in June, 1,209 parcels were rewrapped, and in May, 1,256. There are fewer glass jars being sent to soldiers as a result of so many parcels having been destroyed by broken contents.

Postal officials say: "Don't send meat pies across the ocean; use receptacles that won't break; keep inflammables out of parcels."

SCHOOL AND HOME IN SEX EDUCATION

A seventy-six per cent favorable vote on the proposal to offer sex education courses in secondary schools of this country, as reported by the Gallup Poll, coincides with an even more favorable public attitude toward dissemination of information about venereal disease. The Health League of Canada reports a constant flow of requests for sex hygiene literature, coming from parents who accept a responsibility for the instruction of young people, adolescents themselves, and prospective brides.

Educationists have already given much thought to the subject of sex education, and it is generally conceded to be a difficult subject. There is no provision in most curricula for such instruction and few teachers are equipped by training, aptitude and temperament to undertake the work.

Educationists would be well-advised to consider sex hygiene instruction as part of teaching family and community relationships. Most young people acquire some information about sex before they reach high school age. The place of sex in the life of the individual, his home and his community is an aspect which needs emphasis.

Church authorities are showing increased interest in pre-marital health examinations, and pre-marital instruction also needs attention.

Neither the school nor the church can meet the primary responsibility for the instruction of youth, which is that of the home. The family circle, in which children acquire their attitudes and habits early in life, is still the place where in diverse ways children may be taught to use the gift of procreation usefully, wisely and happily.

SILK RELEASED

American women are doubtless glad that Washington officials are so particular. For instance, 450,000 yards of silk, rejected as unfit for parachutes, has been released to underwear manufacturers.

Mrs. Churchill

If anyone were to draw a picture of what the perfect wife of a statesman should look like, and then describe her qualities of mind and spirit, the result could hardly turn out to be anything but Clementine Hozier Churchill.

She's intelligent, tactful, a brilliant conversationalist with a sense of humor. She devotes her life to making home life pleasant and easy for her notedly tempestuous husband. She is without personal ambitions for the limelight, but is no shrinking violet, either. She can make a snappy speech if necessary.

She's mistress of six languages, a hostess par excellence to the many foreigners whom it is part of a Prime Minister's routine to entertain.

She's beautiful — tall, white-haired and distinguished-looking, with grey-green eyes and strong, classic features. She has a talent for dressing fashionably, becomingly and appropriately.

Her husband, in his autobiography, paid tribute to what is probably her greatest quality.

"What can be more glorious," he asked, "than to be united on one's way through life with a being incapable of an ignoble thought!"

Did you know that, in action, every soldier must be completely re-equipped from the skin out, every seven days? That means you must buy War Savings Stamps and Certificates regularly.

CANADIAN WOMEN HAVE IMPORTANT POSTS IN BRITAIN

Fourteen months of service in Britain by the fifteen trained children's workers sent overseas by the Queen's Canadian Fund has abundantly justified this plan. Officials in England speak highly of their work and express deep gratitude to the fund. They say that they wish they had more trained Canadian workers.

After some months making tours of observation in schools and welfare centres, the workers were posted to different centres in Britain.

Gertrude May Burger, of Hamilton, is now Welfare Officer for the County Borough of Bournemouth.

Mrs. J. Chaisson, Montreal, is now at Oxford dealing with evacuee children.

Miss Hilda Dullege, Montreal, is posted to a school in Hammersmith.

Miss Margaret Hincks, Toronto, is attached to the Birmingham Department of Public Health.

Miss Joyce Cornish-Bowden, Toronto, is attached to the Birmingham Department of Public Health as a superintendent of city wartime nurseries.

Miss Ruth Houston, Regina, is attached to the Downderry School, Catford.

Miss Marion Slater, of Galt, Ont., working with evacuated children in Cornwall.

Miss Eileen B. Griffin, St. Anne de Bellevue, is now County Welfare Officer, Isle of Wight.

Miss Vesta Foster, Allison, Ont., evacuation Officer in Surrey.

Miss Fay Miles, Thornbury, Ont., attached to a London School.

Miss Lulu B. Johnson, Moncton, N.B., attached to St. George's School, Battersea.

Miss Isabel H. Munroe, Edmonton, attached to the Devonshire County Council.

Miss Rowan Paterson, Toronto, now working on the Welsh Board of Health.

Miss Catherine Steele, Toronto, attached to a London Emergency Central School.

These women have the expert knowledge of the principles of child care as developed in Canada and the United States. The results of their work will be felt in England long after the war is over and they have returned to Canada.

Q.W.I. ASSISTS NAVY LEAGUE

An appeal has been received by Quebec Women's Institutes from the Navy League, for donations to the fund for which the League is raising for hostels and other war services. This appeal is under consideration by the executive of the Q.W.I., and meantime the Branch Institutes in the province have undertaken to fill about 280 ditty bags for sailors before the end of the year.

GENTLER SEX

London (CP) — Two sisters, reprimanded by a woman porter for creating excessive noise in a railway station at Watford, were said by the porter to have:

Sworn at her, kicked her, torn her stockings, hit her over the head with an umbrella, smashed her glasses, banged her against a wall and left her unconscious on the platform.

They were fined $11.25 each.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

RUNNING rationed homes, housewives know that a babushka adds extra style to everyday appearance. It takes extra care and thought to plan the family larder, too. A few bottles of ice-cold Coca-Cola, shopped for in advance, come in mighty handy at home.

Everybody welcomes the life and sparkle of ice-cold Coca-Cola. Here is the extra goodness of a drink that more than quenches thirst; it adds refreshment, too. A drink made the quality way, with a delicious taste all its own.

Nothing is more welcome when shopping than the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola. Enjoy it whenever you can.

The best is always the better buy!

Removing Stains From Mottled Enamel

Mottled enamel is a development defect of teeth resulting from drinking water, and perhaps eating foods, containing excessive quantities of fluorine during the period of tooth calcification; that is, during childhood.

Mottled enamel develops only in the teeth whose crowns are still in the process of formation. Fully developed teeth will not become mettled. It has been shown that the presence of fluorine in drinking water in concentrations of one part or more per million is capable of causing this condition.

The affected teeth are usually glazed on the surface. They may be paper white and void of translucency, or have areas of yellow or brown in any shade, or even black on a paper white background.

If the mottling is serious enough to render the enamel chalky and flaky, the tooth no longer retains its normal glaze and luster.

In some cases, the mottled teeth are as resistent to dental decay as any normal tooth. In other cases, they are very soft, chalky and flaky.

Because of an increasing prevalence of this condition in the teeth of children in various sections of the country, and because of the seriousness of the problem, the American Dental Association urges village and state officials to be on the alert to guard community water supplies against fluoric contamination.

Persons in outlying sections who sink wells for drinking water should have the water tested — a much easier and safer thing to do than to go blindly ahead and run the risk of having their children's teeth disfigured for life.

There are more than 14,000 women in the Canadian Women's Army Corps, now in its third year of service.

FARSIGHTED householders are seeing the urgent need of preparing their homes now against this winter's coal shortage. They are acting now!

HEATING SYSTEMS MUST BE EFFICIENT: HOMES SHOULD BE ADEQUATELY INSULATED.

Here are some jobs you should be doing NOW!

1 Have your entire heating system inspected. Order necessary repairs.

2 Have your furnace thoroughly cleaned by a competent man. Insulate furnace and pipes where necessary.

3 Be sure that you have sufficient storm windows and that all windows and doors fit tightly. Have cracks in walls repaired. Weatherstrip wherever it is necessary. Consider seriously the insulation of ceiling and walls.

Many homes waste as much as 60% of their fuel through inefficient heating equipment, inadequate insulation and other heat losses. Winter is just around the corner. Prepare NOW!

TRIBUTE TO BLOOD-PLASMA SERVICE IN PACIFIC WAR FILM

Grim Reality and Romance Intermingled in "So Proudly We Hail"

"So Proudly We Hail" carries conviction in its rapid-fire alternation of romance and duty under Japanese fire. The film, appearing next Tuesday-Thursday at the Capitol Theatre, starts off with a dedication to the nurses of Bataan, but it goes further to give you a graphic picture of the kind of thing those American women went through.

Nor has Paramount tried to pull any punches about the situation on Bataan and Corregidor. The film opens with the arrival of eight nurses in Australia, then flashes back to show they made their escape in the teeth of Jap victory. This is one picture in which the marines do not arrive.

And on top of that there are some pretty gruesome scenes. One of them, the bombing of a Red Cross hospital, is the kind of sequence that should leave you breathing heavily. In another scene a nurse finds her son with his legs amputated. In yet another, one of the girls sacrifices herself by walking into the hands of the Japs with a grenade under her coat.

"So Proudly We Hail" does not pussyfoot its way through contemporary history, picking out the bits that audiences are sure to recognize as entertainment — says Herbert Whittaker in an impartial review of this film.

That dedication in front of the picture really means something. The thought of nurses who went through such scenes as this, and others far more terrible, pervades the film from the opening. It links the crowded incidents into something close to saga-like proportions, and welds the innumerable cliches of movie-making employed into a high-colored semblance of warfare today.

Not the least of its achievements, from the audience point of view, is the way the human element is retained throughout the hell of bombing and strafing. These nurses seem like real people; more, it is true, than they seem like trained nurses, but other treatment would have made the picture unbearable.

The cast is large and competent. The three stars carry much of the action but there is little time spent on exploiting their individual and familiar glamor.

Claudette Colbert turns in the kind of job she has done on occasions before in a solid emotional role. She is here revealed again as a highly expressive player, one who can read lines so well that you are never conscious that it is into her mouth that are put the film's many messages. A tribute to the Red Cross supply of blood plasma, a plea for the world to come, and a protest against isolationism — these themes are introduced without fanfare but with telling effect, largely because of the way Miss Colbert handles them.

Paulette Goddard carries her comedy gifts high as another of the nurses and contributes a leavening of necessary lightness. Veronica Lake also fills a prominent role.

Wood Fuel Shortage Averted in Larger Urban Centres of Quebec; 125,000 Cords for Winter Use

Eased by Efforts of Legislature and Clergy to Encourage Wood Cutting

Lt.-Governor Appeals for Forest Protection

By GUY GAGNON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Sept. 29 (CP) — A firewood shortage in Quebec, a province noted for its forestry resources, seems to have been avoided, at least in large urban centres.

Germain Castonguay, assistant under-controller of firewood, announced here last week that 125,000 cords of two-foot logs would be available in Quebec during the winter. Meanwhile, reports from Montreal said the firewood situation was normal and that no winter shortage was expected.

A shortage of firewood in the province — and especially in Quebec City — had been expected for the last six months.

The matter was even discussed in the Quebec Legislature during the last session and Hon. Wilfrid Hamel, Minister of Lands and Forests, told Opposition members who urged that something be done about it that the provincial government "will neglect nothing to help the people overcome the shortage."

He agreed the shortage was due to a lack of manpower but said the provincial government would attempt to meet it by speeding the granting of permits to farmers and colonists who wished to cut firewood on crown lands.

Joseph Begin (Un. N. Dorchester) said there was a shortage of 200,000 cords in the province alone and of 500,000 cords in the whole of Canada, adding that "unless the authorities concerned do something about it, we can expect misery and discomfort next winter."

Then Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, issued a pastoral letter September 9, urging the clergy to help the government in its drive for increased production of firewood.

"It is important that all our farmers who can do so should accelerate their production of firewood," the letter said. "It seems the government is striving to assure that such increased production brings a reasonable profit to farmers while at the same time protecting the citizens — particularly the less fortunate — from the afflicting consequences of fuel scarcity."

The Cardinal's letter also said the provincial government was of the opinion that 65 per cent of the farmers of the province should be able to produce 10 to 25 cords of firewood besides their own supply.

Two weeks ago, the manpower bureau of the provincial department of agriculture called upon farmers who could leave their farms without impairing production, to do so to help in cutting of wood this fall. It said 3,000 men were needed.

The same day, Lieut.-Governor Sir Eugene Fiset appealed for the protection of the forests.

"I am confident that every man, woman and child in Quebec will become the champion and protector of our forestry riches," he said. "It is a wise post-war policy that will earn the gratitude of the coming generations."

Meanwhile, provincial and municipal authorities met with representatives of the firewood commission and later issued a request that forestry enterprises cut more firewood during the autumn and winter. Officials of some forestry companies met later in Quebec and Elliott Little, general manager of the Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Company, announced that companies had agreed to cut 10,000 cords.

An announcement from Roads Minister Bouchard this week brought hope of further relief. Mr. Bouchard said the regular winter circuit will be kept open by his department as usual and added that "certain country roads" around large urban centres also will be cleared of snow.

It is expected this will enable firewood dealers to transport larger quantities of wood during the winter season to further decrease the possibilites of a shortage.

CHAMP COMES IN TO SETTLE BILL

It was a happy little dog — a Cocker by the name of "Champ" — which visited The Watchman Saturday to settle the bill for a Lost Notice which restored him to his master. And at the other end of the leash was R. Davidson, a Brownsburg resident who thinks a lot of Champ, and who appeared equally happy about the whole thing.

It was recounted how a week previously Champ had strayed from a hunting party at McFaul's Flats near Pine Hill, all the way to Rawcliffe, where a youngster took charge of him and in response to The Watchman ad returned him to his owner. . . . And we hear, for a country lad the reward was big money!

Another Victory Loan?

The budget for the financial year ending March 31, 1944, calls for a total outlay of $5,544,000,000. This amount is equal to $1.30 a day for every man, woman and child in Canada. It is 11 times the size of pre-war budgets.

Direct expenses for war are forecast at $4,890,000,000. . . . Total cost of the war of 1914-18, including demobilization costs, was $1,696,000,000. Up to March 31, 1943, our total outlay in this war was $7,767,000,000.

Savings by individuals in Canada have increased from $650,000,000 in 1939 to $1,800,000,000 in 1942. In spite of two War Loans and four Victory Loans, savings in the Chartered Banks are now higher than ever before.

Costs of Launching Campaign, And Other Facts of Interest

Costs of all kinds in connection with the three Victory Loans amounted to only about 1 cent for each $1 of Bonds sold. Costs in the Fourth Victory Loan were less than 1 cent for each $1 of Bonds sold. . . . These costs include preparation and delivery of Bonds; office stationery and supplies; salaries; travelling expenses; advertising and publicity; organization expenses, including payment to investment dealers and brokers who give up their regular business and devote full or part time service to the committee; remuneration for the services of banks and trust companies; and commissions to salesmen.

Commissions? Yes, they are paid to salesmen who generally give up their regular jobs during the period of Victory Loan campaigns. The money they receive as commissions replaces the money they otherwise would make at their regular work — although in many cases the amount earned as commission is less than the man's regular income.

These salesmen do much of the hard work of selling Victory Bonds in small amounts, to individuals and small business firms, by door-to-door canvass in urban and rural areas. Commissions are not paid on orders from large investors such as Insurance Companies, wealthy individuals and corporations; nor on bonds sold to employees in medium and large-sized business organizations.

Expenditures on advertising and publicity amount to only about 1 cent for each $10 of Bonds sold.

Yes, another Victory Loan! A Victory Bond is proof that you have loaned dollars to your country to help win the war. This Bond is your country's promise to return your money to you — and, in addition, to pay you interest on your money every half year until it is repaid. This promise is backed by all the wealth and resources of Canada, and by your country's record for paying every obligation in full.

Victory Bonds can be sold at any time. There is always a ready market for them. But, when you buy Victory Bonds, you are helping to win the war — you are making it possible for Canada to get the men and materials needed for war — and, in addition, you are helping to fight the home-front battle against inflation. When you sell Bonds, you are withdrawing this help. Unless it is absolutely necessary to sell your Bonds, it's your patriotic duty, and in your own best interests, to "Keep Your Savings in Uniform" for the duration.

From time to time rumors are circulated that the Government will prevent people from selling their Victory Bonds or cashing their War Savings Certificates. They are sheer nonsense. No restrictions on the sale of Victory Bonds, or on the redemption of War Savings Certificates, have been considered by the Government at any time.

But, why sell, anyway? Victory Bonds are the best security for a loan you can hold. They earn double bank interest and are acceptable by all banks as security for a loan, at a reasonable interest charge.

SPEED THE VICTORY! Your Victory Loan salesman is doing his part. When he calls, will you do yours?

Historical Society Acknowledges Bouchard's Decision to Restore Original Names of Municipalities

All Officers and Directors Re-elected At Society's Ninth Annual Meeting

Held Saturday at the Carillon Museum

St. Andrews E. — The ninth annual meeting of the Historical Society of Argenteuil County was held Saturday in the Museum at Carillon. In the absence of the president, Dr. H. B. Cushing, through illness, Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring presided. Reports were received showing a satisfactory season, in spite of adverse conditions. The thanks of the Society were extended to all who had helped to make the Museum a success.

Judge Surveyer, an honorary patron of the Society, and Mr. Archibald Kains, honorary president, both expressed pleasure in seeing the remarkable advances the Society had made in recent years.

Many expressions of regret were voiced concerning the illness of the president, and a message hoping for his speedy recovery was sent to him from the meeting.

The guest speaker, Miss Maysie MacSporran, M.A., principal of Miss Edgar's and Miss Cramp's School, then gave an inspiring address pointing out that museums and historical societies can do much to make people conscious of our glorious history. She went on to say that our Dominion has long played an important part in history, has grown much in importance, and can now play an even greater part by forming a link between the Americas and other nations.

It was unanimously resolved that the Society write to the Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Quebec Minister of Roads, expressing its appreciation of the decision of his Department to restore original names of municipalities in the Province of Quebec, and expressing a hope that the maps and road signs will be corrected in the near future.

Attended Montreal H. S. With Oldest Living Graduate

Pictures in the Montreal daily press recently showed two of the oldest living graduates of the Montreal High School, Dr. W. Bell Dawson and W. D. Lighthall, K.C., who have carved for themselves distinguished careers and are both widely known for their achievements. The portraits were published in connection with the approaching centenary of this institution of learning.

It is interesting to note that here in Lachute there is a contemporary pupil of Dr. Dawson, in the person of William A. Leggo. Mr. Leggo has spent the past years in the United States and with relatives in this community — being a brother to the late Mrs. Henry Hammond, Chatham.

Speaking of Dr. Dawson, Mr. Leggo states: "As a boy I attended the old Montreal High School with him. My recollection places him and a boy named Adams as two of the brightest members of the classes I was in for over two years. . . . Our headmaster was Henry Aspinwall Howe, LL.D., a charming gentleman, whose lunch I frequently procured from nearby Joyce's confectionery. . . . Our folks moved to Lachute shortly after the end of my school days."

A prize won in the third form is still treasured by Mr. Leggo. It is a book published in 1867 entitled "Wanderings of A Naturalist in India", and its inscription suggests this young pupil himself displayed a rare scholarly brilliance. It states, "William A. Leggo, Dux of 3rd Form, 1st in Greek, English, French, and in Conduct; 2nd in Latin, History, Arithmetic and Writing. — Session ending June, 1871."

To Start Work On Widening of Brownsb'g Road

Engineers have been busy surveying for widening of the Brownsburg Road — a highway much used by bus traffic and commuters since the outbreak of the war, and a route which presents unusual difficulties to traffic after heavy snowfalls. Snowclearing last winter was severely hampered by narrowness of the road, and difficulties of transit during those months are still vividly recalled. It was this situation, primarily, which persuaded the Roads Department, through efforts of the Hon. G. E. Dansereau, to undertake the work this fall.

It is understood the job will be started on Monday. Preliminaries are now under way, the government having acquired a width of land from four properties adjacent to Barron's Bridge — namely, the United Church manse, the Cluniè property, the Anglican rectory and Mrs. Geo. Hay's — to ease the curve at the approach to this bridge. From this point northward, it is reported, a strip of 30 feet will be expropriated on the east side, to make a right-of-way 66 feet in width.

The sharp curve in this highway, 1½ miles from Lachute, will be removed by means of a direct cut through the Patterson farm to a point beyond the Ayers Orchard.

Inter-Scholastic Field Day Here Next Saturday

Forty-two events have been arranged for the second annual inter-scholastic sports meet, to be held at Lachute Exhibition Grounds on Saturday, October 2.

Athletes from Brownsburg, Grenville, Lachute, Ste. Agathe and St. Andrews East schools will compete, and prizes are being awarded to point winners in the respective classes.

To encourage and interest the younger scholars in field events, a "midget" class has been added to the program, which will enable youngsters of 12 and under to enter into the competitions.

The first event of this kind, held last year, was a big success; although there was tense competition between the athletes taking part, a fine spirit of sportsmanship prevailed.

It is hoped that citizens from the various communities will give this venture their full support and encouragement.

Two Airmen Die In Plane Crash At River Rouge

A mass of twisted framework and metal fused by intense heat, was the salvage of a Harvard twin-engined aircraft which crashed early Friday afternoon at River Rouge, near St. Andrews East. The wreck, loaded onto large Air Force trucks, passed through Lachute Tuesday, on its way to Uplands airfield near Ottawa. The plane, with P-O H. O. Farner, of Hogsback, Ont., and W-O (2nd Class) A. E. Fraser, of Edmonton, Alberta, aboard, came to grief through causes unknown, during a training flight. The crash occurred when the craft, at low altitude, struck trees on the Fournier farm and plunged headlong into the ground, killing both men. The airplane immediately burst into flames.

R.C.A.F. headquarters at St. Eugene was immediately notified by persons from the neighboring farms who had witnessed the crash. An officer and doctor arrived shortly at the scene. P-O. Farner, senior member of the plane crew, was identified by a wrist watch he was wearing.

Personnel of the Air Force mounted guard over the wreck after removal of the bodies. Large numbers gathered from the surrounding district to view the evidence of the tragedy.

KILLED BY TRUCK NEAR STE.ADELE

Ste. Adele, Sept. 23 — Alfred Taylor, 72-year-old resident of Lac Millette, two miles north of here, was instantly killed by a truck on Highway 11 Thursday night.

Taylor, a retired farming man, was hit by the vehicle as he crossed the highway to greet a friend. The driver, Lucien Menard an employee of a truck transport operator, stopped immediately after the mishap and went to the aid of the victim.

BLOOD CLINIC HERE ON MONDAY NEXT

From indications at this stage, the committee in charge feel confident the second visit of the Red Cross Mobile Blood Donor Unit here, next Monday, October 4*, will meet with success. It is not too late for volunteers to enrol for this clinic, by handing their names to Gordon McOuat, Lachute, or other committee members.

Arrangements have been made for transportation of Brownsburg volunteers to the clinic. A station wagon will convey donors from that community, leaving the Social Hall in groups for the appointed hours.

A.T.S. IN TRINIDAD

Port of Spain (CP) — Trinidad's newly-formed A.T.S. made their first appearance in uniform at services in connection with the National Day of Prayer.

Before the days of Lend-Lease, the British Government poured about £375 million ($1,665,000,000) into the American Aircraft Industry, and spent some £43,250,000 ($192,030,000) directly in capital assistance to American corporations making aircraft, tanks and guns.

Varied Topics at W. Inst. Meetings For September

The following W.I. Branches have reported meetings for the month of September:

Brownsburg had an attendance of 20. Flower slips were exchanged, and the making of jams and jellies discussed. Two quilts have been made by members for the Red Cross.

Lachute — A lengthy meeting was held and plans made for winter work. A visit was paid by Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh, the county president, who gave a short address A very pleasant hour was spent around the tea tables welcoming the old and new teachers. Greetings were given by Mrs. Geo. McGibbon and replied to by Principal H. Bradford.

Frontier had 18 members and three visitors present. Eight ditty bags have been filled by members. A demonstration on bandaging was given, also a talk on what to do in cases of poisoning accidents. Two brides received gifts of silver.

Jerusalem - Bethany had 12 members at their meeting, the topic being Education, papers on this subject being read by the convenor. Plans were made to hold a card party.

Lakefield, with nine members and three visitors, held their meeting at the home of Mrs. Geo. Evans. Arrangements were made to send boxes to all local boys serving overseas; $57 was the amount realized at a hot-dog social and quilt raffle, held at the home of Mr. Austin Kyle. Two ditty bags have been filled.

Morin Heights realized the sum of $16.10 by the drawing for a quilt, which was won by Mrs. Milner. Mrs. P. Lower was named convenor of War Services. Mrs. Downie was enrolled as a new member.

Mille Isles had an attendance of 12. A musical play and concert was held, by the Boy Scouts at Camp Tamaracouta. Mrs. Kuhring addressed the meeting on Parliamentary Procedure. The sale of War Savings Stamps amounted to $6.25.

Pioneer had 18 members and several visitors. Mrs. Baugh gave an account of the Board meeting; $2 was donated towards the cost of lighting the hall. Two ditty bags were filled and another has been applied for. Articles on Victory Gardens were read by Mrs. Smith, who also conducted a contest. An amateur program is being arranged by this branch.

Upper Lachute - East End had 12 members present. Mrs. E. Smith was appointed as War Services convenor. Six ditty bags were filled. Christmas parcels are to be sent to eight boys serving overseas.

Publicity secretaries are asked to note the following change of address: Mrs. W. Y. Shearsmith, Box 423, Lachute.

Winged 'V' 5th Victory Loan Slogan To Be Widely Used During Campaign

The form of the winged V is the emblem of the Fifth Victory Loan.

As shown in the illustration, the wings are carried at the tips of the two arms of the capital V. They signify the fact, fervently believed in by all Canadians, that the tide has turned in our favor; that we are winging our way to victory.

The motto completes the idea. It is "Speed The Victory!" That is we are winning, but we must do our utmost to win fast. We must exert ourselves to the utmost to avoid the horrors of a long-drawn-out war. That means that all men, women and children must buy all the Victory Bonds they can.

The winged V will be even more in evidence than was the familiar "IV" sign of the Fourth Loan. It will be used as the lapel insignia for bond-buyers; posters will carry it, so will newspaper advertisements. According to present plans it will be stencilled on windows, just at the "IV" insignia was, last campaign. Besides this there will be several dozen new uses, some small, some big, and all ingenious and pleasantly surprising.

A plea to storekeepers and others to remove Fourth Victory Loan posters from their windows, in order to make room for posters of the Fifth Loan now being made available, was made at provincial headquarters of the National War Finance Committee.

At the same time it was asked that the signs stencilled upon windows during the fourth campaign be removed now.

Thanks are expressed to all storekeepers and others who in the past have co-operated by their window displays and other means, in publicizing the Victory Loan.

Meet to Discuss County School Board System

All members of school boards in the Counties of Argenteuil and Two Mountains, and all citizens of the Protestant community interested in Education, are urged to attend a public meeting in Lachute Auditorium next Tuesday, October 5, at 8 p.m. to discuss the County School Board System — which is a matter of concern to every school board and ratepayer, and which is particularly intended to benefit the smaller schools.

This meeting will be addressed by Mr. A. S. Johnson, of Thetford Mines, who organized this system in Megantic County on a voluntary basis, and who has assisted in the organization in several other counties. Mr. Johnson is very enthusiastic and well posted on this subject.

Salvage collected in Great Britain up to September 30, 1942, amounted to 3,467,665 tons — the equivalent of 793½ shiploads of 5,000 tons.

Second Victim of Auto Accident Dies of Injuries

Injuries suffered by James Campbell, 42-year-old Lachine resident, in a car accident Saturday afternoon, September 18, on the Brownsburg Road, caused his death early last Thursday at the Montreal General Hospital. Campbell was driver of the car, which crashed into a tree at the roadside two miles west of Lachute, causing injuries to all four occupants — one of whom, Alexandre Desrosiers, died two days later at St. Joseph's Hospital, Lachine.

The other two victims, Henry Coleman, 36, of Lachine, and Harry Danny, 50, of Ville La Salle, according to reports are still in hospital receiving treatment for their injuries.

No arrangement has been set, thus far, for inquest into the deaths of Desrosiers and Campbell.

Brigade Alert to Local Aspects of Fire Prevention

In connection with the National Fire Prevention campaign to be stressed next week throughout Canada and the United States, the local fire brigade is taking steps to impress the theme and enlist the full co-operation of this community.

The inaugural display will be held Monday evening, with the usual parade of fire equipment, fittingly decorated, through the town streets. Fire Prevention films, in both English and French, will be featured in the theatres at Lachute and Brownsburg during the week.

Looking back on Lachute's excellent fire record in the past year, Chief Geo. Y. Deacon urges the populace to continue their vigilance in order to maintain this good showing. No fire hazard should escape attention, whether in the home, factory or place of business. The Town Corporation has taken measures to inspect and clean all chimneys on local properties, and it now is up to the householders themselves — states Mr. Deacon — to see that stovepipes are equally clean and heating installations made safe for the coming season.

As early as November 10, 1941, the 1,000th freight car built by the Southern Railway Company in Great Britain to carry supplies to Russia through Persia was sent on its way. Working all day and night, men and women finished the work in ten weeks, with the co-operation of other railway companies which helped with materials. In peacetime, the same output would be scheduled for twelve-months' work.

Roads Department Makes Several Improvements

Berry Street, a new roadway directly "north of the tracks," is now in steady use. The road is gravelled, with a good surface, giving direct access to the C.P.R. station from the west, and thus diverting a portion of the traffic which hitherto has congested the two approaches from Main Street. Another advantage is a virtual enlarging of the station yard, since many motorists are now using the west side of the station building, when meeting trains.

Berry Street is being completed, with drains and sidewalk, as a through street from Bethany to Barron. The lane at Campbell's, which has provided one of the two private entries from Main Street to the station, is now blocked with a concrete wall, and the closing of this road, with adequate draining, will prevent the washing of dirt and cinders down into the Main Street shopping section.

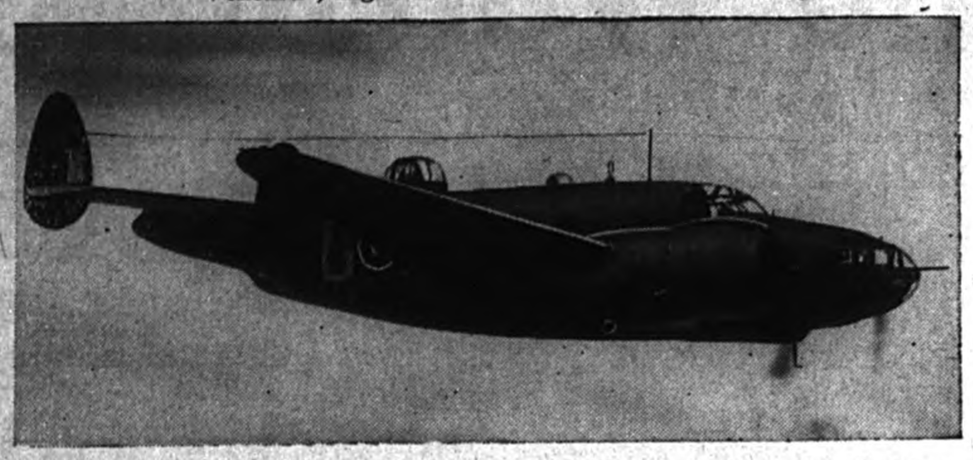

Another distinct improvement in the town roads is the surfacing of an intersection at Water Street and Main. Here, due to a steep incline, rainwater has constantly drained from Main Street to wash away the gravel surface. The new concrete grade now makes a better approach from the side thoroughfare.

QUEBEC HONORS DR. E. S. ARCHIBALD

Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director, Experimental Farms Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, and J. E. Montreuil, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, L'Assomption, Que., were recently made Commanders of l'Ordre du Merite Agricole. This honor, the highest agricultural award in the gift of the Province of Quebec, was conferred by Hon. Adelard Godbout, Premier of Quebec at a banquet, attended by members of the Quebec Government, of the Opposition, clergy and provincial and Dominion Agricultural officials.

The awards to Dr. Archibald and Mr. Montreuil were for long and conspicuous service to Canadian agriculture.

Ventura , Light Bomber of the Lockheed Family

Lockheed "Ventura" light bombers were first officially mentioned as being in service with the R.A.F. after the heavy daylight raid on the Philips Radio Works at Eindhoven, Holland, last winter. The "Ventura" is a development of the Hudson — first American-built aircraft to go into operational service with the R.A.F. in this war — but it is faster and has several points of difference. The most characteristic feature is the design of the underpart of the fuselage, the rear of which is stopped up rather like that of a flying boat. It has two Pratt and Whitney twin Wasp engines and carries a heavier bomb load than the Hudson. It is manned by a crew of four.

CHARGE FRUITS ARE SOLD ONLY TO HIGHER-UPS

London (CP) — The ministry of supply and some of its employees are involved in a controversy over grapes and peaches grown in a hothouse that came with a house rented by the ministry and had to be kept in condition in accordance with a lease.

The employees charged the grapes and peaches were sold well below prices for street sale of fruit but that the ministry's fruit was made available only to high officials of the department.

The employees took the matter to the Civil Service Clerical Association which issued a statement "deploring the fact that public funds are being used to subsidize the cost of production for the benefit of a selected coterie of officials."

Gives Impressions Of Alaska Highway

Toronto, Sept. 28 — The story of the Alaska Highway, its world importance, and what it looks like to a visiting Englishman, will be presented in a special half-hour documentary drama by the BBC writer and producer, Geoffrey Bridson. The program will be heard over the CBC Mideast Network, on Wednesday, October 6, at 11.30 p.m. EDT.

"Alaska Highway" has been designed especially for a British audience, and recording of the program will be flown by bomber to London for broadcast in the BBC home service. It is the second in a series of programs prepared by Bridson on a North American tour to capture impressionistic scenes of the New World for listeners in Great Britain.

Mr. Bridson is now in Edmonton, where the broadcast will originate. With him is the well-known Canadian author, Gerald Noxon, who is aiding the British director in the preparation of background material.

FARM CASH INCOME AT A HIGH POINT

Cash income from the sale of farm products in Canada for the first six months of 1943 is estimated preliminarily at $538.3 million, compared with $428.7 million in the corresponding period of 1942, and $356.8 million in 1941. The 1943 increase was common to all provinces except Ontario, and was most marked in the Prairie Provinces where substantial sales of wheat and other grains were made from the large 1942 crop. The greatest increase in 1943 was in Saskatchewan which was the only province recording a decline in the first six months of 1942 as compared with 1941. Increases in farm cash income occurred in all three Maritime Provinces, Quebec, and British Columbia, although the change in Nova Scotia was of a minor nature.

Income from the sale of wheat increased substantially from the relatively low figure of 1942, but the greatest percentage increase occurred in the receipts from marketings of oats and barley. For Canada as a whole, receipts from the sale of oats amounted to $27 million in the first half of 1943, compared with only $6.3 million in the corresponding period of 1942. The sale of barley increased from $4.3 million for the six months of 1942 to $19.6 million in 1943. Other substantial increases were recorded in income from the sale of hogs and dairy products, the income from the sale of hogs totalling $106.2 millions for the six months, and $110.3 million from dairy products.

BRITISH FARM OWNER BECOMES A WAR HERO

Borough Green, Kent, England, (CP) — Nobody in this Kent farming district was greatly surprised when word came along that Sgt. Robert Ellingham had made a hero of himself in Sicily.

The 35-year-old owner of two of Kent's finest farms fought an ammunition fire which, if it had exploded the dumps, would have been a disaster equivalent to a battle lost.

When war broke out Ellingham sat up all one night getting out a long treatise on the art of farm management. His plan covered every possible detail. His aim was two crops a year from every acre.

He handed it over to his father and foreman with the statement, "there's the target. It's up to you to hit it. I'm going to join the army."

Thirty Land Army girls are toiling now to gather the harvest of his farms, both singled out for praise by Food Minister Lord Woolton. A report on the crops will go to the sergeant in Egypt where he is in hospital getting over wounds suffered when one of the shells he was trying to save exploded.

Since he joined up similar reports have followed him to France, India and Iraq.

FOREST LOSSES CAUSE CONCERN

Men of the Trees Want Large-Scale Reforestation

London (CP) — The Men of the Trees, expressing concern over war's ravages of woods and forests throughout the world, resolved at a meeting that there must be reforestration on an international scale to help "heal the scars of the earth as well as those in the hearts of men."

Attended by representatives of the Allied Governments in London and held in the Chelsea home of Whistler, the Artist, the meeting agreed that the work of reclaiming waste lands and stemming the growing deserts of the world provided tremendous tasks for all countries.

Richard St. Barbe Baker, founder of the Men of the Trees of which Sir William Mulock is a prominent member in Canada, told the assembly "it would be disastrous to wait until after the war."

Montreal High School "Remembrance Book" to List Former Scholars

Montreal — A large committee is attempting to trace the present addresses of all who attended Montreal High School. Plans are under way to compile a Book of Remembrance to be installed in a Memorial Room to be constructed after the war, in honor of those who fell in the last and present wars. Former scholars are asked to send their names and present address to Thomas Sommerville, M.A., Rector, High School of Montreal, 3449 University Street, Montreal, Que.

VETERAN FARMER SAW FOUR WARS

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept 25 (CP) — The vital necessity of food production in wartime is an old story for "Uncle" Joe Vandergriff — he's been at it for over three-quarters of a century and through four wars.

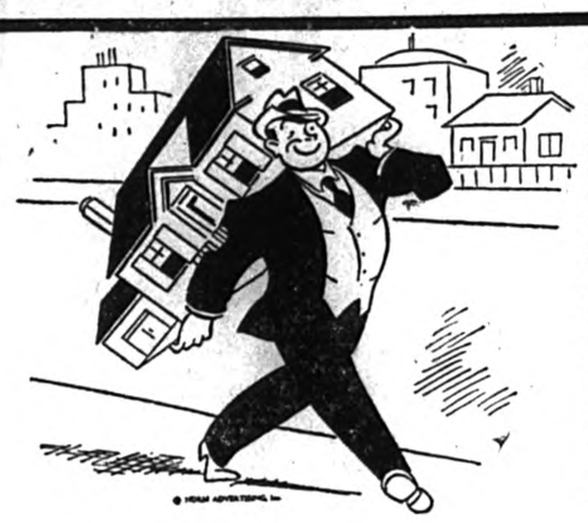

Now 97, Uncle Joe operates his own 25-acre farm and thinks nothing of 10 hours work in the fields. He remembers helping his father on a farm back in the days of the of the War Between the States.

NEW WATER SCHEME FOR PRAIRIE FARMS

Regina, Sept. 27 (CP) — An irrigation system covering 35,000 acres from Buffalo Pound Lawe, north of Moose Jaw, eastward to the Saskatchewan river at the Manitoba boundary, will be one of the main projects of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration during the coming year.

Officials of the P.F.R.A. said the project, when completed, will insure people growing crops on valley flats and hillsides, of feed for stack, and will facilitate the increase of vegetable production.

The P.F.R.A. also plans a land utilization program to show the farmer how to use water now stored at strategic points along the Qu'Appelle valley. The water, stored by dams will enable him to grow things besides grain, that he can eat, sell, or feed to something he can sell.

More Blood Donors Needed

Col. Ralston, recently home from England, has issued an appeal "to those who have not done so to register at the nearest clinic and offer their blood that others may live." Canada, as the Minister of Defence points out, is one of the most fortunate of the fighting countries, having suffered no bombings nor any of the physical ravages of war. Civilians often feel they should be doing something personal to help their less fortunate associates in the war, and Blood Donor Service opens an opportunity to most adults.

"Your blood," says Col. Ralston, "may be the means of saving a life."

We cite the Defence Minister's words at this timely juncture as the local Red Cross committee calls for volunteers for the second blood clinic to be held in this community, next Monday, October 5. And we are confident the response will make this clinic an even greater success than the last.

Do Centenarians Worry ?

We've been looking over some of the statements given out by those oldsters who have reached the incredible span of 100 or more years and one thing they all seem to agree on as a recipe for longevity is that they don't worry.

Now, in common with most people we know, we've always had a hankering to belong to that select class — the centenarians — and always will have it until we finally shuffle off this mortal coil.

But that point about not worrying stumps us. Were it not for the fact that the longest-lived Canadians, proportionately, seem to come from the farm, this would be a stickler. Farmers worry about the weather, the condition of the crops, keeping the place and equipment in repair and innumerable details.

Everybody knows, of course that worrying leads to high blood pressure and kindred ills and yet where is the human that permits this to deter him from worrying? Centenarians are human too, don't forget.

Nowadays, people — especially businessmen — laugh at any mention of not worrying. They cite the numerous complications of war such as government regulations, labor disputes, equipment and manpower shortages. Yet farmers also have these worries — and many more besides.

Getting down to earth it seems most probable that those who live to a great age have extraordinary constitutions, bequeathed to them by plain-living, hard-working forbears. This view is supported by the number of farmers who cheat Time's scythe until they are ready to go.

However, another important reason for longevity is the cultivation of an inward serenity — a snug spiritual harbor where a man's soul can dwell, untroubled by the swirling storms of a lifetime passage.

A Sound Program

Orchids from American columnists don't very often fall into the laps of Canadian weekly newspapermen. Recently, however, a widely read American column highlighted the convention speech of C. V. Charters, managing director of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

Emphasizing the magnificent part that reporters and editors are playing in the war zones and at home, this columnist stated: "On almost every battleground, ideas as well as armies have fought it out. Events have been complicated by the struggle of world ideologies that prostitute words and hide behind well meaning phrases."

"More than ever in this war," he continues, "there have been problems of interpretation. Newsmen and readers alike have needed a basic yardstick as a guide to clear thinking and reporting."

Such a yardstick, this columnist claimed, was offered by Mr. Charters in a straightforward five-point program given to all delegates of the C.W.N.A.

1. Restore for the country the great bulwarks of teamwork, home life and faith in God.

2. Plant absolute moral standards as the yardstick for both public and private action to forearm the nation against a post-war moral landslide and consequent economic collapse.

3. Fight for national unity by spotlighting what is sound and constructive and by teaching the public to discern what inflames and divides.

4. To show the nation that the war of arms is only one phase in the fight for a Christian civilization against materialistic ideas.

5. To enlist every reader to build in his home, office, factory or community the pattern of the new world we all want.

The correctness of this across-the-border evaluation of C. V. Charters' five points will lie, surely, in how quickly and sincerely Canadian readers and editors start to put them to work.

A Short Nap May Mean A Long Sleep

Fighters are careful about their sleeping habits. They do not doze while they are facing their opponents, for example. At least the winning kind do not. Both box-fighters and warriors get to be champions and stay champions because they know it is not safe to relax before the opposition quits or is knocked out.

Supposing the Nazi propaganda master, Goebbels, handed out a new dish — his theme that Canadian troops were losing interest in the war. Let's say his fancy story ran something like this: Canadians in the Navy, the Army and Air Force are becoming weary; they are more interested in getting back home than in pressing an attack; their aggressiveness has noticeably deteriorated.

What would happen to Goebbels' propaganda in this country? Why, in every big and little town people would laugh it down! We would know the story was a pack of lies. Nothing that the German lie-masters invented could destroy our faith in the determination of our men to win, no matter what the cost.

But suppose that Goebbels tried his hand at such tactics in reverse. Let us imagine that he planted the following story among Canadian troops overseas: the folks at home are becoming weary of the war; production is dropping noticeably in plants throughout the country; absenteeism is growing into a major problem; young and old are spending more and more money for selfish purposes and are becoming less interested in Victory Loan drives.

Would our men overseas in such a situation have the same confidence in us and the same scorn of such a rumor-story as we would show against the reverse propaganda? We think the answer would be "yes." We believe that our troops have confidence in the home front. We have given them every reason for such faith in the past three years. But if we are to be champions in our field as our men in uniform are champions over there, we will remember that even a slight relaxation can prove our undoing. This is particularly applicable to our present task of making the Fifth Victory Loan campaign an outstanding success.

"I've Got Insurance — So What ?"

"Don't bother me," said Johnny Smart,
"With Fire Prevention stuff;
To me it's just a lot of tripe,
It's just a lot of guff.

"I pay insurance money out,
So if I have a blaze,
I'll get good dough for what I lose,
Prevention's just a craze.

"To heck with all your do's and don'ts
And your Fire Prevention bunk,
I'll put hot ashes where I like,
I'll store a lot of junk.

"I'll leave my draughts on if I want
In winter or in fall,
Electric wiring frayed and worn
Won't bother me at all.

" 'Now when you're cleaning hardwood floors
Don't e'er use gasoline,'
Now how the heck do they expect
I'm going to get them clean!

"I'll do just what I like," said Smart,
"I'm covered, so why worry;
In putting in the fire call
I would not even hurry."

So Johnny did just what he liked,
Ignoring all he'd read,
Until the night a blaze broke out
When he had gone to bed.

Now Johnny, being Mr. Smart,
Got out himself O.K.
But to garb himself in daytime clothes,
He would not even stay.

Yes, Johnny got his dough all right
For furnishings anew,
But he got some dough he did not want,
HIS FAMILY'S LIFE INSURANCE TOO.

A WEEKLY EDITOR LOOKS AT Ottawa

By Jim Greenblat

This column, which goes out to far and hindermost reaches of Canada, feels it cannot over emphasize the appeal to the "small investor" to think of the contribution he or she is going to, or should, make to the forthcoming Fifth Victory Loan. Everywhere, in all the towns and villages — they tell me at headquarters here — great preparations are being made by local committees to top local objectives. You know the fellows — your banker, your baker, your merchant, your school teacher, your farm community leader, your ordinary guy working behind the counter, will be appealing to you to "Speed Victory." The hundreds of releases which go through this office from army, navy and air-force, telling in piecemeal of the epic deeds, the sacrifices of your boys over there impels me to keep this subject "hot" before you and to try and convey the idea of the tremendous urgency of sending your spare dollars to strengthen muscles of our war effort.

A former weekly newspaper man, now associate editor of publications for the Boy Scouts Association of Canada, Bert Mortlock, came to this office the other day and mentioned a little thing he'd like a "plug" on nationally. That's "Apple Day" carried out by the Scouts in communities across the country at various dates next month. A hundred thousand strong, the Boy Scouts seek to raise money for summer camp equipment, a hundred and one other activities. It's not a little thing, but a big one. These are the boys whom we'll depend on to "Carry On, Canada" when the still visionary days of peace come; our future citizens, workers, business men, statesmen. Sure, the folks aren't going to turn the Scouts down on Apple Day in any community.

Christmas trees supply will be short owing to transportation and manpower exigencies. Even the type of twine used for binding them is in short supply. Maybe folks will have to improvise as in other things. . . . Don't start construction of a dwelling or other project without a license, warns Munitions Minister Howe. Because of the scarcity of materials a policy of drastic curtailment is now in effect. . . . Present personnel of the Canadian Navy, including some 3,700 Wrens, is about 70,000 officers and men; it was less than 2,000 when war began. . . . A full blooded Micmac Indian Clarence Blode, of Digby County, was working on the new Tribal destroyer "Micmac" as a rivet heater. . . . The boat was launched September 18 at Halifax. . . . Besides politicians Ottawa is beginning to be famous for former world boxing champions; the second to appear here in as many weeks as a referee is Jack Sharkey. . . . Answering an urgent appeal nearly 600 Ottawa women, including some grandmothers registered here one night in the registration of half-day help for the Civil Service.

One of the greatest of all discoveries in bacteria killing drugs, pencillin, a miracle for war wounds, and which will also be invaluable in peacetime, is to be produced in Toronto and Montreal in Dominion government financed plants, employing 250 men and women. The initial contract is for 26 billion units largest single order for medical supplies placed by Munitions department. The plants will be in operation by February, 1944, and by mid-April a weekly average production of 500 million units is expected. Pencillin has certain qualities superior to sulfa drugs. It is produced through growth of a mould, similar to that you'll find on cheese. When you hear of billions of units, don't think there will be enough right away to serve all humanity, I am told that in difficult cases it takes between two and three million units of pencillin, so figure it out that way.

It's hard to realize that our 1943 production of scientific instruments for war purposes totalled 250 million dollars. We have 1,110,000 workers engaged in munitions work turning out 55 million dollars worth a week. Since the war started the Dominion has expended on war construction and production 6½ billion dollars. Why, Canada has built two of the largest blast furnaces in the British Empire, this summer turning out pig iron at the rate of two and a half million tons a year.

Getting less publicity than the Navy, Army or Air Force, but nevertheless worthy of the highest praise and respect of the people are Canada's Merchant Seamen. They are a numerous lot too, judging by the fact that 40,500 are certified to date in the central registry in Ottawa. Casualties from merchant ships of Canadian registry alone: 660 missing and presumed dead; 147 captured by the enemy and now prisoners of war.

There are three or four fundamentals in the recently announced plan for the reorganization of the operational formation of the Canadian Army in Canada. There will be no let-up or medification in the Overseas program. All men fit for combat service are retained in the Army. Many of those who are medically unfit or overage for combat duty will be transferred to highly important but less active duties in the various units which are necessary for the support and training and servicing and supplying of operational forces. Those in still lower medical categories or otherwise unsuitable for service in less active roles within the Army will be discharged and made available for essential war work in civilian capacities. "Disbanding" the 7th and 8th and part of the 6th Divisions does not mean that Canada will be without defences for her two coasts. Far from it. The places of the Divisions will be taken by hard-hitting, more compact brigade groups. There will be fewer men doing the coastal defence job, but owing to the elimination of the medically unfit, the smaller units should be, man for man, more efficient. It is also important to keep in mind that the reduction in size of the operational units is the result of the improved stragetic situation. The possibility of an enemy invasion of this continent — which was very real for a while when the Japs were occupying Kiska, for example, — is now once again regarded as remote.

Interesting note to farmers: A ton of timothy hay contains about 18 pounds of nitrogen, 6½ pounds of phosphoric acid, and around 30 pounds of potash. This is rather more than would be returned to the land by a ton of ordinary green farmyard manure. If no fertilizers were applied, continuous crops of timothy would rapidly deplete the soil, the same is true in a general way of other grasses, the Department of Agriculture states.

"Little Men"

J. A. Coté in "The Tracer"

Remember the little rhyme?—
"Last night I saw upon the stair
A little man who wasn't there".

A press correspondent in quest of news tells us of a number of little men he met who weren't there. It was at the Bureau of Information that he met them, little men who had never been there at all.

On the first floor he ran right smack into an "informed quarter", a substantial personage. They chatted and this one seemed more optimistic about the war than any "informed quarter" he had ever met.

Wandering into the conference room where newspaper men receive guidance on the Allied view of what is happening at the fronts, he got a good unobstructed close-up of a "military source". He was seated on a dais discussing the campaign in Burma in the serene conviction that the thousands of words his opinion would inspire never would be attributed to him by name.

Coming out he bumped into "Political Circles", a rather tall, reedy person. He authorized the correspondent to say that "Political Circles" found everything satisfactory at the moment. He said, however, that he would be glad when the war ended and he could see his name in print again.

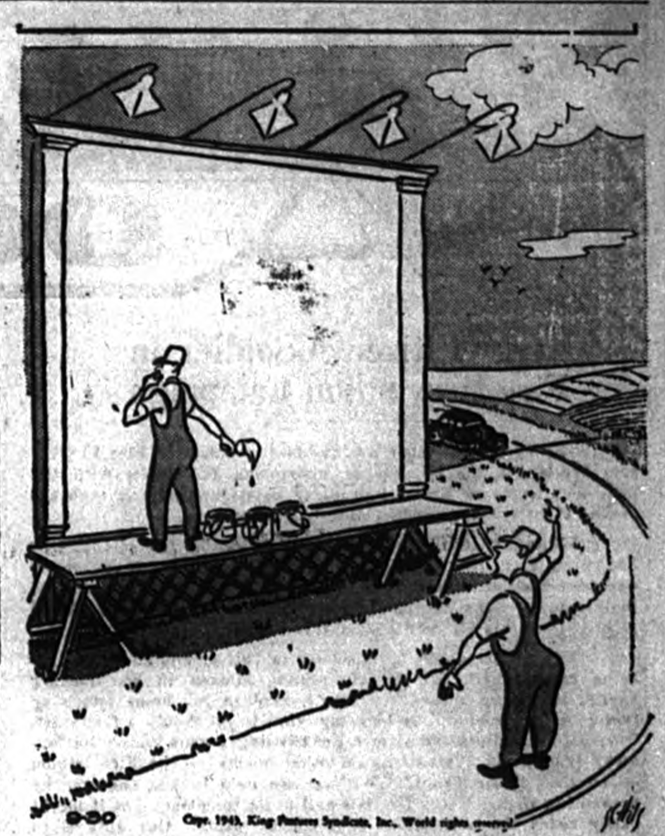

Much the same plaint came from a titled gentleman who is often referred to as "authoritatively", whose sphere is in foreign affairs. He stated that it could be said "authoritatively" that the allied cause was booming.

The pressman had no time to get around to "unimpeachable", who is quite unapproachable anyhow, or "sources close to", who are seldom to be found in their offices; or "good authority", who was in conference.

He took it for granted that they, to , were "confident", and shortly after had his opinion confirmed by "consensus" whom he met on his way out.

PADDLE STEAMSHIP ACTIVE

London (CP) — One of England's most illustrious war workers is the paddle steamer Royal Eagle, which used to carry holidaying Londoners to seaside resorts. Since the start of the war it has been in action against aircraft 52 times, has saved 24 lives at sea, has destroyed two enemy planes. In addition, at Dunkerque, it made three crossings, brought home 3,000 troops, was divebombed 48 times.

The Canadian Japanese

There are good Canadian citizens of Japanese descent. . . . We do believe that some Japanese . . . believe in Canada and all that it stands for, and are loyal to it in mind and heart. Many of the Canadian Japanese would be willing to fight and die for Canada in this war if allowed to do so.

Something To Be Proud Of

Canada's army has expanded since war started to more than 100 times its pre-war size; ships in the Royal Canadian Navy are more than 33 times as many as before the war and the Air Force is more than 200 times as large as in 1939.

The scarcity of seed potatoes last spring didn't stop Mrs. Ernie Moore from including a few spuds in her Victory Garden. From a half-dozen peelings taken from spuds prepared for dinner, Mrs. Moore has harvested a crop of the finest potatoes to be seen in this district. Some weigh nearly a pound.

One of the few remaining pleasures of bygone days is the annual fair. In earlier times the fair was the annual event in the country people's lives. It is to be hoped that it will remain so.

Importance of Education

When there is a shortage (of teachers) the demand naturally raises the salary, and if the schools affected must have a teacher they may as well shut their eyes to that fact, and go ahead. After all an increase of $100, or more, is comparatively nothing, but the education of our youth is all important.

WRITE OFTEN TO BOYS OVERSEAS SAYS CHURCHILL

Faced with the task of moving more Christmas mail to more Canadians in more corners of the world than ever before, the Post Office Department has announced the deadline for parcel mailings will be November 1. But it is far better that a parcel be mailed early in October, for then it will be sure to be delivered in time. It is expected that approximately ten million pounds of Christmas mail will be sent overseas to Canadian servicemen and women.

"Mail is a munition," but the sorting and handling of it is not considered an essential industry, and the General Post Office is feeling the pinch of the labor shortage. It is to ease this situation that Mr. A. M. Gibson, the Toronto District Director, has urged that Torontonians co-operate with the Post Office by putting their own postal district number on every city letter. These letters will receive preference in sortation.

The new Air Graph forms (known as V-Mail in the United States) have also cut down the time and effort needed to handle overseas mail. The forms, which are obtained free from any post office and can be mailed anywhere, are sent when collected, to the Canadian Kodak Company in bundles of 1,700. They are photographed, 1,700 to a reel and are flown overseas. As an added precaution against loss, a master reel is always kept at the post office until delivery of the first reel is assured. If the reel is lost an extra print is sent overseas. In passing, it may be noted that though the cost of mailing has recently risen, it is still possible to send printed matter in an unsealed envelope for one cent.

From no less a person than Winston Churchill comes this advice on what to write to the boys overseas.

"Write often, keep the family bonds strong enough to cross the Atlantic, send pictures of the family, neighbors and street. Pictures warm the hearts of men away from home. Fill your letters with the homely, everyday happenings that make your soldier know he is still part of the home."

Keep 'em happy with mail!

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK
OCTOBER 3-9

Every Citizen A Soldier in Fire Prevention Campaign

The week of October 3-9 has been proclaimed Fire Prevention Week, for the purpose of impressing the public with the enormous waste of life and property occasioned by fire, and the means to be taken to reduce this tragic wastage.

When it is considered that Canada's loss by fire in 1942 was 304 lives and over $31,000,000 property damage, it is easily apparent that something must be done about it. Fire is a disease that annually saps our national wealth and every citizen should resolve to do his bit to wipe out this menace.

Every citizen can be a soldier in this campaign by simply being careful with fire, by disciplining himself in his smoking habits, by seeing that every fire hazard in his home, store or factory is removed and by knowing what to do should a fire start. Our soldiers, sailors and airmen are battling a grim enemy on far-away fronts. Let us battle that other enemy — the Fire Demon — on the "Home Front." We too can help to win the war by preventing fires. Every fire is small in its incipiency but it might easily reach the proportions of a conflagration. Our duty is to see that a fire does not start.

Next week, in the press, over the radio, in theatres and from the platform, John Q. Citizen will be exhorted to use every care with fire, not only during Fire Prevention Week but every week in the year. It would be well for him to take this advice to heart and to make Canada a fire-safe country in which to live. We need only to call to mind two holocausts which have occurred during the past year in order to show the tragedy which can follow in the wake of fire. These are the Cocoanut Grove Night Club fire in Boston, in which 491 people lost their lives, and the Knights of Columbus Hostel fire in St. John's, Newfoundland, in which 99 lives were snuffed out. WE CAN'T BE TOO CAREFUL WITH FIRE.

IN MEMORIAM

HOOKER — In loving memory of dear Grandmother, Mrs. George Hooker, who passed away September 30, 1942. — Howard, Helen and family.

KILPATRICK — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Kilpatrick, who left us four years ago today.—Always remembered by his wife and family.

It's not the tears that are shed at the time,
That tell of the hearts that are torn,
But the bitter tears in the after years
And the loneliness silently borne.

KILPATRICK — In loving memory of my dear father, George Kilpatrick, who passed away October 2, 1939. — Lovingly remembered by his daughter, Phyllis.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear Dad,
That I do not think of you.

MONCRIEFF—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away October 1, 1940. — Ever remembered by his daughter Carrie, and family.

A day of remembrance sad to recall,
The loss of a father, best friend of all,
One of the best that God could send,
A loving father and a faithful friend.

TOMALTY — In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Elizabeth Jane, who departed this life October 4, 1942. — Always remembered by her husband and family.

Dearer to us than words can tell
Was the wife and mother we loved so well.
We do not forget her, nor never intend,
We think of her daily, and will to the end.

TOMALTY — In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life October 4, 1942. — Always remembered by Myrtle and Lyall.

Today brings back old memories,
Of that sad and bitter day
That was cast upon our homestead,
Just one year ago today.

No pen can write, no tongue can tell
How sad our bitter loss,
But, God alone has helped us well
To bear our bitter cross.

She is singing with the Angels
On that bright and happy shore,
And some day we'll meet our loved one,
Who is not dead, but gone before.

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear sister, Elizabeth Jane, who passed away October 4, 1942. — Ever remembered by her brother, Wallace.

The dearest sister and sweetest friend,
One of the best whom God could lend;
She was loving gentle, thoughtful and true,
Always willing a kind act to do,
It is not tears at the moment shed
That tell how belov'd is the soul that has fled,
But tears through many a long night wept
And loving remembrance fondly kept.

Three-Year-Old Boy Dies of Injuries Received in Fall

Brownsburg—The death of Eden Kenneth, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Stewart, occurred on Wednesday, September 22, at the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal, after a comparatively short illness following spinal injuries sustained in a fall some two months previously After a number of visits to hospital by the parents, relatives and friends, with bright hopes for his recovery, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were summoned there on Tuesday evening, September 21, when an operation seemed inevitable as result of a decided change in the lad's condition. The operation was decided upon, after further consultation, but without avail. He passed away soon afterwards.

The remains were brought to his home here, where the funeral service was held to the United Church on Friday. A large number gathered to pay their loving respects and condolence, which, with the many beautiful floral tributes, indicated heartfelt sympathy with the grief-stricken parents. Little Eden's popularity with his neighbors was beautifully demonstrated in an exquisite wreath to which all the neighbors' names were appended. The service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. S. J. Pike, assisted by the Rev. J. T. H. Rich. A junior choir of the school pupils, permitted to attend the service by the principal, led the singing of the hymns "When He Cometh to Make Up His Jewels" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," accompanied by the organist of the church, Mrs. C. J. Wheeler. Mr. Frank Steere rendered a favorite selection, "That Beautiful Land". The pall-bearers, uncles of the deceased, were Jack and Douglas Stewart and Paul and Albert Roy.

Those attending from out-of-town included Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lamour, Mr. Alex McCulloch, Miss Marion Stewart, R.N., Messrs. F. and J. Roy of Montreal.

The community extends deep sympathy to the sorrowing parents in their bereavement.

PRICE CONTROL

Questions & Answers

Q—When a buyer is found for the property, am I entitled to six months notice from the buyer, to vacate?

A—Yes. Under the new rental order No. 294 effective October 1, you are entitled to six months notice prior to April 1, (the end of your lease).

Q—Unless the buyer wishes the house for his personal use or that of his immediate family, could I be compelled to move?

A—Yes, there are other reasons listed in Part 2, sections 12 to 16 of Order No. 294, which if the landlord could justify — would force you to move. Included in these reasons are: default in payment of rent for 15 days or longer, obnoxious tenants, landlord's plans to sub-divide the house. . . . We have sent you a copy of the order. For further particulars, consult the rentals officer at the nearest Board rentals office.

Q—I understand that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has now banned conditional sales. Just what does this mean?

A—A conditional sale is one in which the seller will agree to sell an article only if the purchaser will buy something else with it. The procedure is now illegal.

Q—My address does not appear below my name on the cover of my Ration Book 3. Should I fill this in?

A—Yes. Your name and address should appear on the cover, and as well, each page of coupons should be signed and the address added.

Q—How will I be able to know the new maximum markups for beef that the Prices Board announced the other day?

A—Your butcher will have a chart posted in his store listing the maximum prices for all cuts.

Applicants to the Canadian Army suffering from "remediable defects" will be accepted, cured by operations or treatments and receive full Army pay and allowances.

Poster Contest Is Announced By Fire Chief

At the Lachute High School this morning fire drill was held and the pupils made an orderly exit from the building in 2½ minutes — which was considered by local fire authorities to be an exemplary performance.

Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon took occasion to announce a Dominion Fire Prevention Assn. poster contest, open to children of high schools throughout Canada. Prizes of $25, $10 and $5 are awarded in each province by the Association, for the best poster idea to publicize the Fire Prevention theme. There is also a grand award of $50 for the best poster selected from entries from all Canada. It is interesting to note that the official poster used by the Association in the current campaign was the grand prize winner submitted by an Ottawa girl in the last competition.

Giving added local incentive, the Lachute Fire Brigade is offering three prizes, of $3, $2 and $1, to the pupils of Lachute High School and also of the Convent. The contest has been duly announced to pupils in the latter institution.

KNOCKED HOLE IN HOUSE

Cape Town (CP) — During recent heavy rains in Basutoland a house on the slope of a hill became so full of water the owner had to knock a hole in the back to allow the water to drain away.

Closing Exercises, Kilmar Int. School

Kilmar, Que. — Kilmar Intermediate School closing exercises were held Monday evening in the senior class-room and keen interest was shown by the large attendance of pupils and parents.

Guest speakers were the Rev. S. J. Pike, of the United Church, of Brownsburg and Kilmar, the Rev. Mr. Hawes, of the Anglican Church, Grenville, Jack Parry, works manager of Canadian Refactories Limited, also Robert Whinfield, representing the Grenville School Board.

Grant Baker, assistant manager of Canadian Refactories, acted as chairman, and impressive talks were given by the speakers — stressing to the pupils that the Battle of Life lay before them and that they could equip themselves for this battle only if they applied themselves conscientiously to the three main requisites of school life, namely, attendance, attention and, as a result, attainment.

Distribution of the prizes was made — the following being the list of prize-winning pupils:

Grade VII — Helen McMeekin, successfully passing her Entrance examinations.

Rev. H. Cousens New Moderator, Presbyt'n Synod

Rev. Henry Cousens, of Brockville, and formerly minister of the Lachute and Brownsburg charge, was elected moderator of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, at the annual meeting held at the Presbyterian Theological College this week.

He succeeds Rev. Dr. W. Orr Mulligan, of Melville Presbyterian Church. Those nominated for the position of moderator in addition to Rev. Mr. Cousens were Rev. G. S. Lloyd, of Cornwall, Ont., and Rev. Robert Good, of Ottawa.

In a sermon delivered during the service before the opening of the meeting, Dr. Mulligan outlined what he felt to be the position of the Protestant Church in the world today.

The present generation was drifting increasingly out of touch with religion, he said. Some felt that they were being caught up by fate and were powerless to influence their destiny, while others adopted the philosophy of "eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die."

The church must fight against the modern tendency in society for the individual to count for less and less, while that of group and mass as a whole became of increasing importance, Dr. Mulligan declared.

United C.G.I.T. Activities

The first meeting of the Lachute C.G.I.T. for this season was held Monday in the hall of the United Church.

The meeting was opened with a recital of the C.G.I.T. Purpose. Prayer was led by Mary MacArthur, and Kay Langille read the scripture.

During the business meeting Miss Robertsen was elected leader of the senior group, and Mrs. Percival was elected leader of the juniors. Officers appointed were—president, Freda McVicar; secretary, Joan McMahon; treasurer, Lillian Fraser.

The girls concluded their meeting by the singing of "Taps," after which the program was arranged for the ensuing year.

United Church Scene Of Brownsb'g Wedding

Tilsley - DeMings

Brownsburg — A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening, September 15, at the United Church, when Miss Ella Suzsan DeMings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John DeMings, of Carleton, N.B., was united in marriage to Mr. Albert Tilsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tilsley, of Brownsburg. The bride was attended by Miss Ruth Garrett, while Mr. George Castle supported the groom. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. J. Pike. A reception was held at the home of the bride and groom, where a large number of guests were entertained. The many useful gifts gave indication of the esteem in which the couple are held, especially by their associates.

Mr. and Mrs. Tilsley — to whom this community extends congratulations and best wishes — will make their home in Brownsburg.

BLACK BEARS NABBED

Richmond, Va. (CP) — Police received a call from an irate resident who demanded that they captured a bear engaged in robbing his cornfield.

"Who's there?" they demanded as they reached the cornfield.

When the answer came back, "nobody but us bears," the police said they arrested three Negro boys.

Christian Science Lesson-Sermon

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 3.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." (Romans 8: 1, 2)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Every law of matter or the body, supposed to govern man, is rendered null and void by the law of Life, God. Ignorant of our God-given rights, we submit to unjust decrees, and the bias of education enforces this slavery." (Page 380).

Edwin C. Pollock Takes Bride in Montreal Church Ceremony

Pollock - Cox

At 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, September 18, at the St. Cyprian's Anglican Church, Montreal, the marriage was solemnized of Ivy Rebecca, younger daughter of Mr. Ernest Cox and the late Mrs. Cox, of Montreal, to Edwin Calder Pollock, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cleveland Pollock, of Hill Head, Lachute. The Rev. Mr. Warner, rector of the church, officiated. Mr. Kent, organist and choir director, played the wedding music, during the signing of the register Mrs. Waugh sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly".

The church was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers, the altar being banked with multi-colored gladioli and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor-length gown of white lace over heavy satin, fashioned on Princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a full skirt. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a halo headdress of tulle. Her bouquet was of dark red and cream roses and ferns.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Gladys Rozell of Montreal, who was attired in a frock of brocaded organza in turquoise blue, with shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion to match. She carried a bouquet of blush pink roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. George Robertson, of Montreal, and the ushers were Mr. Royle Cox, only brother of the bride, and LAC. Linton Tomalty, of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., cousin of the groom.

The bride's only sister, Mrs. Docherty, wore a two-piece suit of Air Force blue crepe, with hat and accessories to match, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Pollock, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of olive green crepe with brown hat and accessories to match, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Pollock left for the Laurentians, the bride travelling in a turquoise blue suit, brown hat and accessories with a corsage of deep pink roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace of pearls, and the bride's present to the groom a Waterman pen and pencil set.

Following their return from the honeymoon, a reception was held for the newly-wed couple on Friday evening, at the home of the groom's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollock will reside in Montreal.

FEARS ARE HOME-GROWN HANDICAP IN CHILD'S LIFE

Toronto, Ont. — "Children should develop many cautions, but few fears," S. R. Laycock, Ph.D., educational psychologist at the University of Saskatchewan, and educational director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene (Canada), says in an article contributed to "Health," the publication of the Health League of Canada.

Writing on the subject of "Children's Fears," Dr. Laycock says "Fears are a handicap in modern life."

Fears are not inherited, but home-grown, and result from experiences in home, school and community, according to the author. Some fears result from associations. Fears are built into some children by ghost stories and other frightening yarns. Many parents, Dr. Laycock regrets, deliberately build fears in their children to control them. It is a bad practice, he says; as bad as the practice of mothers using the father as a threat to control children.

Children are apt to "catch" the fears of their parents, too. Investigation has shown there is a definite correspondence between the fears of parents and their children.

Feelings of incompetence and weakness and of emotional insecurity are other causes of fear. If a child's basic needs for affection, belonging, independence, social approval, self-esteem and achievement are not met, he is likely to have fears.

Scolding, punishment or ridicule will not help children get over fears, Doctor Laycock says. He counsels parents to set an example of fearlessness, improving children's self-reliance and their skills and knowledge.

"Don't forget that fears are often a general symptom of a child's lack of emotional security at home," the author cautions. "Be sure his basic needs are being satisfied."

Homes break up, not because husbands and wives start fighting with each other after marriage, but because they stop fighting for each other on their wedding day.

Arvida Recreation Centre Officially Opened

(Above) The Recreation Centre at Arvida where the Inauguration Ceremonies were broadcast to the CBC French Network. (Lower left) "The Arvida Quartet", under the direction of Sylvestre White, who in their first appearance were heard over an entire network. (Centre) Private Leclair, whose ambition has been to sing on the air, realizes that ambition by singing with Allan McIver, a top-name band, on a provincial-wide network. (Lower right) The Slovak Choir, under the guidance of Marie-Louise Tremblay, the only organization of its kind in the Province, made their debut in this provincial-wide broadcast.

At impressive inaugural ceremonies recently held at Arvida, the new modern recreation centre built by the Aluminum Company of Canada, Limited, was officially handed over to the Arvida Athletic Association, Inc.

Designed by Fetherstonhaugh and Durnford, this centre is one of the finest in Canada. It contains an auditorium seating 500, a well-equipped stage and dressing rooms, reading, meeting and game rooms, a restaurant, bowling alleys, pool and billiard hall, curling rink and lounge, dressing rooms for hockey teams, and general skating, and a band room all fully equipped. It has a splendid public address system. Radio or programmes of records can be played throughout the building.

The Arvida Athletic Association, Inc., will now operate this community centre in the interests of the several thousand members who for 50¢ a year enjoy all the privileges of membership. The centre will be the focus for some 70 different community organizations, such as the Arvida Curling Club, the Arvida Concert Association, the Arvida Amateur Dramatic Society, the Arvida Bowling Club, etc.

Gaston Dufour is President of the Arvida Athletic Association. The centre is managed by Stanley Rough, Secretary of the Association, and widely known throughout Canada for his experience in sports and community organizations.

The opening ceremonies were broadcast over the French network for one hour, local talent supported by Allan McIver and a top name band. The occasion marked a number of 'firsts' in Arvida history. It was the first time that the Arvida quartet and the Slovak Choir sang on a provincial network, or for that matter on radio at all. Private Leclair of the local garrison realized a long standing ambition to sing on the air and did so splendidly for the first time with Allan McIver's band, the entire network as his audience.

Marcel Sylvain and Roger Baulu from the CBC announced the programme and interviewed a number of workers.

TO CONCENTRATE ON JAPAN

Johnnesburg (CP) — The South African Minister of Transport, F. C. Sturrock, said in a speech here that the country's industrial war effort "is now directed chiefly against Japan and it is the union's duty to see that Allied armies fighting in the Far East do not lack anything the union can supply."

"Our contribution to the European war will consist of our fighting men with all they need in the way of equipment," he added.

Cushing Lady Given W.C.T.U. Life Membership

AT ANNUAL MEETING OF PROVINCIAL UNION

Cushing — At the annual provincial meeting of the W.C.T.U. held last week in Montreal, Mrs. W. Usher, elected for the fourth term to the office of president of the Provincial Union, was presented with a provincial life membership and accompanying pin — the presentation being made by Mrs. G. Blake, of Granby, 1st vice-president.

Mrs. Archie Graham was also re-elected to the post of editor for Quebec Province of "White Ribbon Tidings." Mrs. Graham has already held that office for over 11 years.

Miss C. Sifton of the Quebec Temperance League was honored with a life membership from the Province and Mrs. W. McKenna, Sr., of Magog, elected world's life member.

Mrs. G. F. W. Kuhring, a lady well known in this county, was elected provincial treasurer of the W.C.T.U.

Record of Achievements; Interesting Speakers Heard

As this was the 60th anniversary of the forming of the Provincial Union, Mrs. Archie Graham gave a resume of its work and accomplishments for that period of time, and many will be surprised to hear that rest rooms, and other considerations for women in factories and stores, are due to the efforts of the W.C.T.U. Playgrounds for children, Saturday half-holidays, better jail conditions, the banishing of fermented wines from the communion table, curtailing of unsightly liquor signs along the highways and the sale of liquors on fair grounds, etc., are due also to W.C.T.U. appeals and agitation. The Union has also achieved much for temperance education in the schools. Some of these benefits have been in force so long that the work of those to whose efforts they are due, has been forgotten; as Mr. W. D. Bayley, a recent temperance speaker in our schools, aptly states: "We who are pioneers must often take a back seat as far as credit for our work goes."

Mr. Bayley was guest speaker the first evening. Among his observations were the following:

"Every boy and girl in Canada should be given education in scientific temperance". . . . "Temperance education should permeate Sunday Schools, day schools, the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, and every institution; and in the reconstruction plans there should be a place for temperance education sponsored by government departments."

Another eminent speaker, Mrs. Owen Reade Campbell, deplored the increase in juvenile deliquency due to neglect of children, through parents both working in munition plants. She said: "It is nothing short of a crime for women, who have the privilege of being mothers, to leave children from 6 to 14 on the street, some of them with the house key tied around their necks, so that they may be free to make money. . . . What," she asked, "shall women be expected to do after the war? Such women are not going to be content to stay in the home where they belong, after these years of excitement and money-making! . . . There will be many voices in the air and one especially will be 'the voice of discontent'."

Another interesting speaker was the Rev. Ritchie Bell, who eloquently stressed the need for continued temperance work, and outlined some of the forms it might take; he thanked the W.C.T.U. for kindly co-operation with the Temperance League.

Argenteuil and Vaudreuil Union, sometimes called Cushing and Pointe Fortune, were winners of a prize of $10, for the increase of 17 members over the membership of the previous year.

Hornets Helped Apples on Tree

If an apple a day keeps the doctor away from his wife, what will a hornet's nest do to an apple tree?

Walter Shearsmith of Brownsburg claims he has the answer. Throughout the summer a hornet's nest in the apple tree beside their home kept everybody at a safe distance. But when the apples ripened to a luscious red, and Walter thought it was munching time, he had the nest removed.

The following night a band of young marauders stripped the tree of all its fruit!

"Son, why don't you play circus? It's great fun. First you make a sawdust ring —"

"But where would I get the sawdust, dad?"

"Here's the saw. Just cut some of the firewood into fireplace lengths. And you can have all the sawdust you make."

An Interesting Document

Following a suggestion by the Montreal Ex-Naval Men's Association — that the Nelson Monument at Bonsecours Square be moved from its present site to a more prominent spot in Dominion Square, and that it be rededicated as a memorial to Canadian seamen who have given their lives in this war — Dr. W. H. Atherton, a Montreal historian, has written a sketch concerning this monument. Dr. Atherton cites the contents of a document in the Chateau de Ramezay, the original bill of lading, March 10, 1808, for shipment of the stonework from the Port of London to Montreal. The document, a curiosity in itself, reads as follows:

"Shipped by the Grace of God, in good Order and well-conditioned by Inglis, Ellice and Co. in and upon the good Ship called the "Everetta" whereof is Master, under God for this present Voyage Alexander Patterson, and now riding at Anchor in the River Thames, and by God's Grace bound for Quebec and Montreal with Convoy.

N. No. 1/17 — Seventeen Cases containing Ornamental Stone Work for a pillar to be erected at Montreal to the Memory of Immortal Nelson, being marked and numbered as in the Margin; and are to be delivered in the like good Order and well-conditioned, at the aforesaid Port of Montreal.

(The Act of God, the King's Enemies, Fire, and all and every other Dangers and Accidents of the Seas, Rivers, Navigation of whatever Nature & Kind soever, excepted).

Unto Messrs Forsyth, Richardson and Comp. or to these assigns.

Freight for the said Goods being paid here with Primage and Average accustomed. In witness whereof the Master or Purser of the Said Ship both affirmed to three Bills of Ladings, all of this Tenor and Date; the One of which Three Bills being accomplished, the other two to stand void.

And so God send the good Ship to her desired Port in safety. Amen.

Dated in London, 20 March, 1808.

POLISH SUB ACTIVE

London (CP) — Polish naval authorities recently announced their submarine Dzik torpedoed a 5,000-ton enemy tanker and a 6,000-ton passenger vessel in the Adriatic. Both were considered probably sunk. The feat gave the Dzik a record for sinkings among Polish submarines operating with the Royal Navy.

OBLIGING PARTRIDGE

Aberdeen, S.D. (CP) — H. F. Jorgenson, manager of a department store, wonders if South Dakota hunters aren't making too much of a fuss about the wartime shortage of shotgun shells. A sight-seeing pheasant walked into his store and was caught by hand.

"A bird in town is worth two in the bush," he said.

LET'S BE DOING
...while we're planning

● Everybody is thinking a great deal about the future these days . . . planning . . . getting ready for the period to follow the war. All realize that the war may bring surprises—but the tide is turning in our favour.

Chemists and engineers, producing things needed for war, are making discoveries which will mean comforts and conveniences for all of us when peace comes. New methods of making things, new processes, new materials, now being filed away in blue prints and formulae, will bring us many new and useful articles. Many things not available now will be replaced by better models and designs.

You may have plans for a new home, remodelling your present home, new home furnishings. If you are a farmer you will need new and improved equipment and machinery.

Now, while you are thinking and planning, you can do something to insure that your plans can be carried out. Victory Bonds—which can be bought on convenient instalments, with money as you get it—provide a means of keeping your savings intact, earmarked for things you want.

Most Canadians are saving money. Most of us are buying Victory Bonds and when we buy Victory Bonds we are helping to win the war. We are helping to speed the day of victory and we are doing something that will benefit ourselves.

WHAT IS A VICTORY BOND?

A VICTORY BOND is the promise of the Dominion of Canada to repay in cash the face value of the Bond on the date of maturity with half-yearly interest until that time. A Victory Bond is the safest investment in Canada backed by the entire resources of the Dominion. Canada has been issuing bonds for 75 years, and has never failed to pay every dollar of principal and interest when due. A Victory Bond is an asset readily marketable at any time.

Hints for Homebodies

LIFE WITH FATHER

There are books which are a delight to own and to read and re-read, until they are as familiar as old friends. Clarence Day's books on his Father and Mother are such books. I have read parts of them in magazines and in the separate books, but now the three books are in one volume and we have just acquired it. Clarence Day is a marvelous writer and has made his Father and Mother come so alive you feel you really know them. He tells most intimate details and makes you chuckle at them, but he never makes them cheap nor is he disrespectful. One of my tricks in getting on with trying people is to think of them as characters in a book. When they are especially annoying I try to figure out just what they will say and do. It affords me considerable amusement and saves a lot of wear and tear on the temper. But to get back to the Days, if they are not already friends of yours, you really should get to know them. Life with Father has been made in to a play and has been running successfully for some years, and now it is coming in the Movies. I hope they do right by them.

CONDITIONS HAVE CHANGED

When the ban was put on making marmalade with canning sugar, it seemed reasonable, as the idea was to preserve all our native fruits. The situation has changed since then as it is impossible to get fruit, and sometimes when obtainable the price is so high it is prohibitive. It seems to me that ban might very well be lifted now and if we have sugar left we should be permitted to use it in any way that will provide us with food for the future. Prices in other localities interest me, so you may be interested in the prices we paid for fruit in New Brunswick. Strawberries 28 cents a quart; Raspberries 27 cents a pint, Blueberries 35 cents a quart; peaches 1.69, and plums 1.21, a six quart basket. The only cherries I laid eyes on this year were 65 cents a pound.

TELLING THE TRUTH

When children do not tell the truth it is wise to try to find out the reason for it before you do much about its correction. Fear is very often the cause. Children are frightened of the consequences, and they lie to get out of punishment of scolding. A desire to please their parents sometimes makes them give the answer they know will please. Trying to make a child confess often leads to a denial. If you know a child has done a thing, don't ask 'did you do this', and tempt him to lie. If you do not tell the truth yourself you cannot expect your child to. Most of us agree the social lie is sometimes necessary. If it has been told to further your own interests the child is quick to recognize this. If it has been told to spare someone's feelings, the child can be made to understand this. Parents are often unnecessarily worried over the stories a small child tells. At one stage the imaginative child is full of them. Recognize them as imagination at work and go on from where he left off and help him tell bigger and better ones. It will help him distinguish between imagination and truth and will help him realize you know he is only fooling. Truth telling is so desirable that intelligent care should be given to fostering it.

BLAH

Have you had a perfect stranger knock at your door to tell you how much she admired your white wash, and how do you get it so white without bleaching? You haven't! Well, you must be slipping. That is what happens in the radio advertising. Honestly, don't they dish out the worst drivel in some of the radio advertising? They wouldn't dare put it in print it is such blah. Much of it is an insult to the intelligence. Newspaper and magazine advertising is a much solider basis and receives more respect.

BAKED CORN AND TOMATOES

2 Cups cooked corn, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 cup fresh bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons fat.

Mix the seasonings with the corn and tomatoes and pour into a greased baking dish. Spread the crumbs over the top, dot with fat, and bake in a moderate over of 350 degrees, for one-half hour. Left-over tomatoes and corn may be used.

JELLY CORN-MEAL MUFFINS

1 Cup corn meal, 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons shortening.

Sift dry ingredients, add beaten egg, milk, and melted shortening, and mix only enough to moisten dry ingredients. Fill greased muffin tins ¼ full, put a teaspoon of jelly on each and cover with more batter. Bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees for 25 minutes.

ALL THE LEMON PIES YOU WANT !

By Betty Barclay

Lemons play a leading role these days for they help through their numerous household uses and cooking aids, to make work lighter for busy wartime homemakers. There may be many food shortages but the lemon crop promises to meet all fall and winter demands. Every member of the family can have his fill of lemon pie and all the other lemon flavored delicacies of which he is fond.

Perhaps in all groups the favorite of favorites is the Lemon Meringue Pie, and by taking three tiny precautions, every cook can be sure of serving such a pie with a flaky crust, a fragrantly fresh filling, and a tender, easy-to-cut meringue. First, be sure to add lemon juice and egg to the pastry mix; second, cook filling first, then add freshly squeezed lemon juice after removing from the stove; third, add a little lemon juice to the meringue.

Here's the full recipe:

Lemon Meringue Pie

3 Cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup shortening, 1 slightly beaten egg, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, ice water.

Sift flour and salt together. Cut in shortening. Add egg, combine with lemon juice. Add gradually just enough ice water to bind dough together. Roll pastry out thin and line pie plater. (This recipe makes three 8-inch single pie shells. Keep unbaked dough in refrigerator until needed.) Bake in hot oven (475 degrees F.) for 15 minutes.

For filling, use:

1 Cup water or milk, ¾ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, 5 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup cold water, 2 well-beaten egg yolks, 2 well-beaten egg yolks, 1 tablespoon butter, 6 tablespoons lemon juice.

Bring water or milk, sugar, salt and lemon peel to a boil in saucepan on direct heat. Add cornstarch, blended with ½ cup cold water. Cook over low heat, until thickened (about 5 minutes), stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add separately, mixing well after each addition, the egg yolks, butter and lemon juice. Pour into baked pastry shell.

When filling is cool, top with a meringue, made from:

2 Egg whites, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Beat egg whites until frothy. Add sugar gradually. Continue beating but only until egg holds its shape in peaks. Fold in lemon juice. Brown pie in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) for 15 minutes. (Makes one 8-inch pie.)

BUY AFRICAN SARDINES

London (CP) — The ministry of food has purchased the whole of the season's production of the North African sardine canning industry, reopened with the allies' occupancy. The purchase amounts to from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 quarter-pound tins.

AS A GIRL, SHE HATED MILK; NOW ADVOCATES USE

Has Spent Nearly Quarter-Century Proving its Value in the Human Diet

By ADELAIDE KERR, Associated Press Writer

New York (CP) — When Harriet Campbell was a little girl, she wouldn't drink her milk. Since then she has spent 24 years in scientific experiments which prove that one-third of man's diet could well be milk.

To reach that conclusion slender little Dr. Campbell has had to handle thousands of pounds of powdered milk. And she has had to observe 100,500 rats whose combined life span, she says, corresponds to 1,500 years of human life.

Thus the fate of little girls who won't drink their milk.

But it is a fate which led to renown in Dr. Campbell's case. For the work she has done in collaboration with Dr. Henry C. Sherman at the Chandler Laboratory of Columbia University here is credited with having a big influence on the diet recommended for many humans today.

Dr. Campbell went to work in that laboratory when she was getting her M.A. degree at Columbia and she has been there ever since.

Experiments With Rats

"I began with the first generation of rats," she told me. "And now I am working with the 55th generation. The rat comes closest to the human of any animal which is inexpensive and practical to use. There is one specific difference. The rat does not require vitamin C; the human does.

"We are trying to find out what mixtures of ordinary and relatively inexpensive foods will produce the best results and length of life. Working with whole wheat and milk powder for a basis, we found a one-third milk and two-thirds wheat best."

Dr. Campbell is now conducting experiments adding calcium, cod liver oil and green beans to the whole wheat-milk mixture. But as yet she has no startling findings to report.

Ambition Was To Be Scientist

Dr. Campbell, who was born in Ashburnham, Mass., determined to be a scientist when she was a girl. After she had graduated from Mt. Holyoke she taught awhile in her father's school in Connecticut and then came to Columbia.

Since 1919 she has conducted her experiments in the laboratory, spending hours checking on feeding and temperature.

Food Value Remains After Dehydration

Regina, Sept. 27 (CP) — Miss Isabel Daw of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration said experiments have shown that foods can be dehydrated without loss of fool value or flavor.

Miss Daw said she used a dehydrator constructed by the Saskatchewan Industrial Development Board and experimented with potatoes, tomatoes, carrots, peas, beans, beets, respberries, blueberries and apples.

These dehydrated foods take up only one-tenth of the space required by the original foods.

Halitosis

Bad breath, or halitosis, is a disagreeable topic for discussion, but its actual presence is even more objectional. Most of us at some time or another suffer from this unpleasant condition, which, unless checked, is a serious detriment in our social and business relations.

Of ever greater importance is the fact that halitosis can be regarded as an indication of serious trouble. Many people seem to have the idea that the causes of bad breath lie wholly within the mouth, an erroneous impression. Here are several causes of halitosis:

1. An unhealthy, diseased or uncleanly condition of the mouth.
2. A diseased condition of the membrane in the nose.
3. The presence of chronically infected tonsils.
4. A diseased condition of the sinuses.
5. Certain diseases of the lungs.
6. Digestive disturbances, temporary or chronic.
7. The cause of alcool and tobacco.

One of the most frequent causes of bad breath is a diseased or unclean mouth. Certainly, a mouth that contains decaying or abscessed teeth or diseased gums can hardly emit a breath that is not objectionable.

The presence of food particles about the teeth or a coated tongue is also a cause of halitosis. Coating of the tongue is recognized by dental authorities as a common cause of bad breath.

It is apparent, then, that if we are to eliminate the mouth as a source of this condition, it is necessary that the teeth and gums be in a healthy condition and that the teeth and tongue be kept clean.

If bad breath persists after the mouth has been placed in a healthy condition by the dentist, a visit to the physician is next in order. He can determine whether the trouble is due to disease of the nose, tonsils, sinues, lungs or the digestive tract.

BAN POTATO ICE CREAM

London (CP) — Potato ice cream, advertised for sale in Sunbury, was banned by the local food council. The recipe was to pass mashed potatoes through a seive with water flavored with lemon essence, sweetened with liquid sweetening, then frozen.

ENGLISH WOMAN THANKS CANUCKS

Glad They've Gained Wish for Action — Grateful for Help in Britain's Dark Days

London (CP) — This letter was written by Mrs. Annie Rees, of Ealing, Middlesex, and published in the London Daily Telegraph:

"I am glad for their sakes that our Canadian boys have now been given an opportunity of hitting the enemy on land as, since the beginning of the war, many of them have already been hitting on the sea, in the air, and, of course, at Dieppe. . . .

"It is up to all of us to try, as I have done, to make them realize that the time they have spent among us has been neither wasted nor unappreciated; their very presence here has been a source of confidence to us. Can we ever forget how, in our darkest hour Canada assured us we were not alone but that she would be with us to the end. Never can any assurance have been more generously carried out."

Q.W.I.'s Sponsor School Fairs

Miss Barbara Fletcher, recently appointed demonstrator - secretary for Quebec Women's Institutes, has been kept busy during the past weeks attending the School Fairs sponsored by the Institutes in the rural schools of the province. Miss Fletcher acted as judge at several of these Fairs, activities of which included exhibiting flowers and vegetables grown by the pupils, sewing, public speaking and sports, with prizes in every section.

Miss Fletcher is co-operating with Miss Laura Pepper, chief of the Consumers' Section, Ottawa, in a nutrition campaign intended to promote healthful diets.

NEW SCHEDULE

PRESERVES RATIONING

EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 30, 1943

Preserves rationing gives the consumer a number of choices both of products and sizes of containers. Because of the wide range of container sizes and the variation in buying habits across the country it was necessary to put the system into operation and then make adjustments on the basis of experience.

Now that preserves rationing has been in effect for several weeks, it is possible to made some increases in coupon values. The new schedule is announced below and is effective September 30th.

The new doubled ration allowances for molasses, extracted and comb honey will enable consumers in areas where consumption of these products is heavy, to buy more and still leave enough for districts where the total demand is light.

The increased ration allowances for corn, cane and blended table syrups and maple syrup are adjusted to bring coupon values more closely into line with the great variety of container sizes now in use.

ONE "D" COUPON IS GOOD FOR
Not More Than

Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, Maple Butter, Apple Butter or Honey Butter	6 FLUID OZ.
or Comb Honey (in Squares)	One Standard Section
or Cut Comb Honey	1 LB. NET
or Extracted Honey or Maple Syrup	12 FLUID OZ. (1 LB. NET)
or Maple Sugar	½ LB. NET
or Molasses	20 FLUID OZ. (1 PINT)
or Corn Syrup, Cane Syrup, or any Blended Table Syrup	14 FLUID OZ.
or Canned Fruit	10 FLUID OZ.
or Sugar	½ LB. NET

Coupons D-4 and D-5

NOW BECOME VALID SEPTEMBER 30th

The validity date of these coupons has been moved forward from the original October 14th to September 30th.

This has been done to accommodate purchasers of some items which at this season of the year are normally bought in large units.

Coupons D-6 and D-7 will become valid on November 11th and the original schedule will be continued from then on, with two coupons becoming valid every four weeks.

"MR. BIG" PORTRAYS YOUNG AND CARE-FREE GENERATION

"Mr. Big", a Rex Theatre booking for this week-end, represents a triumph in the life of young Donald O'Connor as his first starring picture, but to audiences there is little difference between it and the other ones that this bright youngster has been brightening.

If you are out of touch with the younger generation, and fail to comprehend its language, or its passion for swing, or its strange gyrations on the dance-floor — don't try this. It'll only irritate you. But if you like kids for their own sakes, and don't expect them to live up to the things you did when you were young, you'll get a kick out of "Mr. Big."

As to young Mr. O'Connor, well, he undoubtedly has a lot of talent. After seeing this you realize that he's one lad that's ready to step into Mickey Rooney's shoes. He's brash, comic, muggs like Rooney, is a good clown, can sing surprisingly well and dances a blue streak. If these are the attributes of screen success (and are they not!) then Mr. O'Connor has what it takes.

Perhaps Mr. O'Connor's rise to the theoretical ranks of Bette Davis, Gary Cooper and Ginger Rogers, et al, has escaped you. Long ago, as these things are counted, Donald O'Connor made a hit in "Sing, You Singers," a Bing Crosby film in which the Groaner introduced a number called Small Fry. Donald was Small Fry. His star twinkled momentarily and then he vanished again. You may have seen him in the floor-show at the Tic Toc between then and now. Now he is Big Fry, rising head and shoulders out of a junior cultural society known as the Jivin' Jacks And Jills. Agile, scrawny and likeable, Donald has arrived. Whatever his future may be, his present is bright.

"Mr. Big" is about a crowd of youngsters who put on a school show. You'll recognize the theme, without a doubt.

R.C.A.F. HONORS SCOUT TROOP

Boy Scouts of the 1st Bedford, Quebec, Troop were recently presented with a shield by the R.C.A.F., in recognition of their plane which crashed in a swamp. The Scouts located the plane and removed a survivor to safety. The survivor was present for the presentation.

CANADA'S BIGGEST SCOUT

The honor of being perhaps the biggest Scout in Canada goes to Chief of Police Horace E. McLeese, of Saint John, N.B. The Chief stands well over six feet and weighs upwards of 230 pounds. He was invested as a Scout by Chief Executive Commissioner John A. Stiles, of Ottawa, while the latter was on toun of the Maritimes.

HENRY FONDA PLAYS CANADIAN SOLDIER IN WAR PICTURE

"Immortal Sergeant" may be the first of what is likely to be a series of fiction pictures dealing with the Libyan campaign which ended this year in a victory for the British. It comes in after the factual "Desert Victory" and stands up remarkably well, all things considered. The film will be shown on the Rex screen next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The theme is the familiar one about a lost patrol. In this instance the story is the character study of a Canadian corporal in the Imperials who suffers from a bad case of shyness and timidity, but who finds his real, aggressive self in leading a British patrol back home through the desert, skirmishing with the Eyties and having a real pitched battle with the Nazis.

Heading the patrol until he is knocked out is an old regular sergeant. It is his belief in the young corporal that enables the latter to take over leadership and become a hero after the sergeant has become a casualty. The study of the youngster's character is aided by flashbacks showing a hesitant romance between himself and an English girl.

The story is plainly told, without frills, and with a verisimilitude that is astonishing considering it was made five thousand miles or so from where it is supposed to take place. The California desert country makes a realistic background, not at all unlike that of some scenes in Desert Victory.

The film is materially aided by the quality of the acting. Henry Fonda is admirably cast as the Canadian corporal, doing a restrained, sincere job all the way through. Thomas Mitchell is splendid as the tough old sergeant, Irish to the core. Allyn Joslyn, Melville Cooper and Morton Lowry are well contrasted as the surviving members of the patrol who put up the great fight against a German-held oasis under the corporal's leadership.

Maureen O'Hara is attractive as the girl in the case and Reginald Gardinar does neat work as the corporal's rival for her love.

Hunters Warned By Safety League

The Province of Quebec Safety League issued a warning to hunters week that, with the hunting season in full swing, they should take added precautions to prevent accidents.

The statement said that all hunters should see to it that they are dressed in a conspicuous way so they may not be taken as some piece of game; to be sure all rifles are fitted with safety catches, and to keep all sporting guns open to avoid any injury should a shot go off through a hunter falling or the trigger being pressed down by a hanging branch.

CBC PREVIEW OF SCHOOL PRODUCTS

Toronto, Sept. 28 — Believing that Canadian mothers and fathers want to know all there is to know about how their children are being educated, the CBC has arranged a novel school broadcast preview for its National Network listeners, to tell them the part radio is playing in preparing the Dominion's future citizens.

On Friday, October 8, at 10 a.m. EDT, CBC's audience will be invited to listen in upon a meeting of the Home and School Club of Dumbarton, Ontario, a typical rural centre, where it is decided to see a school program in the making.

With Mrs. Chris Campkin, president of the Dumbarton Home and School Club, and her two school-age children, the audience will then pay a visit to the Toronto studios of CBC to learn at first hand how school broadcasts are created. Mrs. Campkin, her family and the listeners will be welcomed by R. S. Lambert, supervisor of school broadcasts for the CBC, who will guide them on their tour of the broadcast studios.

The script writer, Horace Brown, will show how a program looks on paper, and how a story is converted to its dramatic form. He will explain, too, the use made of research, the assistance given by education authorities and other specialists, who are responsible for each school program presented over the networks of the CBC.

Then they go to the Traffic Department, where they follow the scheduling of the broadcast, and the requisitioning of studio rehearsal times, sound and production facilities. The visitors meet the producer. He takes them into the studio, where he has gathered together the actors, musicians, conductor and sound-effects man. And finally, in the control booth, they see the pieces of the program put together in rehearsal, under the practised direction of the producer.

The broadcast closes with Mrs. Campkin's return to Dumbarton, convinced that the introduction of radio into the schoolroom is a part of the educational curriculum that she wants her children and all the children of her community to enjoy.

It is not organized labor that management needs to fear, but disorganized labor.

DETECTION CORPS IN FRASER VALLEY HAS 98 OBSERVERS

Volunteers Man First Post in Aircraft Warning Service

Whonock, B.C., Sept. 25 (CP) — High on a Fraser valley hill, stands the first Aircraft Detection Corps post built in British Columbia. Redently completed, it already has a volunteer force of 98 observers.

This new establishment is an important first step in a comprehensive plan to organize the interior of British Columbia into aircraft detection corps. It will provide more complete aircraft warning service and will further guarantee the safety of friendly planes.

Women are doing most of the daytime watching while men take the night shifts, said Chief Observer Fred Rolley. Boys and girls share the vigil with adults.

Have Important Job

"Volunteer observers have a very important role in aviation," declared Sqdn. Ldr. R.E. Slinger, R.C.A.F., who is senior aircraft detection officer, Western Air Command. "They have already saved many lives in B.C. coastal areas."

He told the story of an observer who reported a ship which was found to be 100 miles off its course. The pilot was notified just in time to get back to the home field before his gasoline supply gave out.

Watchers maintain constant vigil by sound and sight. They are given instruction in methods of identification of aircraft and other necessary details. They report every aircraft seen or heard. The type of plane, its exact whereabouts and its direction of flight are flashed to R.C.A.F. operational headquarters by telephone.

The air force provides watchers with binoculars and aircraft information.
