Lineman Electrocuted, Accidents Swell Week's Chapter of Mishaps

Man Severely Injured In Fall from Truck

Around 1.30 o'clock yesterday, a Ste. Scholastique resident, Olier Beauchamp, aged between 50 and 55 years, was critically injured when he fell from the back of a truck operated by Oscar Bigras, also of Ste. Scholastique. The accident occurred on the highway near Brownsburg.

Coming into Lachute, the driver hailed the man supposedly riding at the back of the truck, but received no response. He discovered Beauchamp missing from the vehicle, and on making enquiries was told that a man had been found unconscious on the road over which he had just travelled. Bigras returned and brought the victim to Lachute. Dr. R. Percival was summoned to attend him at the Lachute Creamery premises, Water Street. Finding the man critically injured, the physician ordered his removal to the Providence Hospital, Lachute Mills, for observation and treatment. According to latest word, he is now semi-conscious but progressing well.

Gatineau Power Lineman Meets Accidental Death

A 30-year-old lineman, Benoit Lebel, employed for the past five years with the Gatineau Power Company, met his death at 11.30 o'clock yesterday morning while working on a Main Street pole line of 2200 volts, near the western limits of town. According to the verdict of a jury empanelled last evening by the district joint-coroner, Dr. Jules Lafleur, the man met his death accidentally, through electrocution.

Lebel was working at a cross-arm near the top of the pole. A fellow-worker, Roland Gascon, facing him at the other side of the cross-arm, saw Lebel suddenly raise his arms and reel backwards, unconscious. A safety belt prevented his falling. By means of a rope, and assisted by another fellow employee, Roland Legault, who was standing at the foot of the pole, Gascon lowered the victim to the ground and immediately started artificial respiration. A neighboring resident, Mme Legault, summoned help by telephone. The local manager of the Company, Jos. Gosselin, and Dr. Marc Papineau arrived shortly on the scene. Artificial respiration was continued by police officers, and the unconscious man was removed to the Providence Hospital, where oxygen was administered. All attempts to resuscitate him were in vain, however, and at around 2.30 o'clock the efforts were abandoned.

Evidence before the jury was given by fellow employees, eye-witnesses of the incident, and by the attending physician.

After deliberating for an hour or more, the jurors pronounced death accidental, due to electrocution.

Benoit Lebel, married and the father of four children, was a resident of Lachute Mills.

The four names marked (x) signify pupils who took supplementary subjects in which they were also successful last year.

1,400,000 Letters

(Empire Digest)

Perhaps this is the best evidence that the American and the British people reached a good understanding during the time when they shared the island of Great Britain before D-Day.

An announcement reveals that about 700,000 personal letters cross the English Channel each week from American soldiers on the Western Front, addressed to the friends they have made in Britain; and that each week about the same number of personal letters cross the Channel in the opposite direction from British civilians addressed to U.S. soldiers on the Western Front. This is an exchange of 1,400,000 letters a week between Americans and Britons.

It seems inconceivable that personal ties on such a scale can fail to have a permanent effect in making relations closer between Britain and America. Nothing like this has happened between two nations ever before in history.

Inter-Municipal Matters Before Council Meeting

Lachute Town Council held its regular session last evening, with Mayor Leopold Carrière, Aldermen R. A. Dumais, J. R. Paquette, Gilbert E. Ayers, Léonard Bédard, Wilfrid Morissette, Alex Bothwell, Omer Laurin and Stanley Holt in attendance.

Alderman Alex Bothwell was appointed pro-mayor for the next three months, on motion of Alderman Omer Laurin, seconded by Alderman R. A. Dumais.

Residents on Hamford Street North are still complaining about the nuisance created by sewage flowing to the West River in an open ditch, running through Hammond's farm in the Township of Chatham. In the past years many notices have been given to the Council of Chatham to remedy the situation, but to the present date nothing had been done. On motion of Alderman J. R. Paquette, seconded by Alderman R. A. Dumais, it was therefore decided to serve a legal notice or "mise en demeure" to the Council of Chatham to attend to this matter immediately and to take the necessary steps to stop the nuisance.

Building permits were granted to Gaétan Laurin, to erect a house on the corner of Robert and Hugh Streets; to Wilfrid Morissette, to erect a house on Chatham Street; and to the Imperial Oil Ltd. to erect a 12-foot addition to their warehouse.

Accounts for June and July amounting to $5,414.58 were approved, on motion of Alderman W. Morissette, seconded by Alderman Alex Bothwell.

Communication from the Parish of St. Jerusalem enquired the Corporation's terms to connect a sewer from the Parish at the corner of Isabella and Henry Streets.

It was decided to have a "bus stop" zone in front of the Lido Restaurant and to have the proper paint markings executed immediately.

Recent Celebration Of Orange Order Held at Grenville

Grenville—Ideal weather favored the largest Orange celebration ever held in Grenville, on the 12th of July. An estimated 2,000 people gathered to mark the 255th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. Various lodges in the province were represented among Orangemen who marched in the parade. The procession was headed by Scott McLean astride a white horse, accompanied by a traffic police escort, Officer H. Jones. The parade included the Prince of Wales band, from Montreal, and the Black Watch band, of St. Johns, Que., and of Montreal. The Black Watch Highland band comprised four pipers and two drummers, also a Highland dancer. The marchers proceeded from the hall of Orange Lodge No. 58, through the village of Grenville to the consolidated school, returning again to the hall.

Cars then carried the Orangemen and their families to Stewart's Grove, where the picnic was held. Entertainment for the afternoon included music and highland dancing, and a sports program followed the addresses. The Rev. G. T. Spriggs and the Rev. A. E. Hawes were the principal speakers.

An old-time dance was held in the Grenville consolidated school, bringing this successful celebration to a close.

Pair Sentenced on Charge of Entering Summer Cottages

Stiff sentences were meted out to two offenders charged with housebreaking, before District Magistrate D. Lalande at St. Jerome on Tuesday.

The pair — Mme Edmond Deslauriers and Albert Laporte, aged 20, both residents of Foundry Street — pleaded guilty to two charges of entering summer cottages. Goods to the value of $150 and $200, respectively, were removed from the properties owned by R. Campbell and Theron Carpenter, situated on the North River.

Mme Deslauriers, who confessed to having instigated the raids on these homes, received 12 months jail sentence on each charge, the terms to run concurrently. Laporte received six months in each case, terms running concurrently. According to the court these substantial sentences were imposed as an example to curb such crimes prevalent in this district. The judge also authorized that the stolen goods be returned to their rightful owners.

Arrest of the pair and recovery of the goods, most of which had been disposed of, was credited to Det. Leopold Dauphin, district officer, of the Provincial Police. For a month the detective persevered with slim clues, which finally led to the culprits' identity. The pair had gained entry by cutting screening from the cottage windows. The detective told the instance of a taxi operator who recalled having driven a man and woman carrying bulky packages from the direction of one of the cottages. The stolen goods included silver and tableware, bedding and other portable furnishings. D. Villeneuve, town chief of police, had been instrumental in finding some of the missing items in west end dwellings, while Town Constable Aldege Pagé also collaborated on the case. These threads eventually led to the prisoners' arrest.

Georges H. Héon, of Lachute, was prosecuting attorney.

Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from giving us wordy evidence of the fact.

Arundel Electors Vote in Favor of Liquor By-Law

Arundel — Voting on a by-law to provide for the sale of beer and wine in the Township of Arundel resulted in public endorsement of the by-law, to the tune of 81 for, 15 against — according to a report of the municipal secretary, Pierre Cantin.

The referendum was held Monday, July 23, with voting at Stanisforth's Hall, Village of Arundel. The ordinance thus passed by a majority of 66 votes stipulates: "The Municipal Council of the Township of Arundel request the Quebec Liquor Commission . . . to grant permits for the sale of wines and beer. . . . in accordance with provisions of the Quebec Liquor Act."

Procedures of Metal Mining Told To Uninitiated at Rotary Meet

Brownsburg — At the regular weekly dinner meeting of the Rotary Club, held at Carrière's Hotel on Tuesday, July 24, members heard an instructive talk on one of Canada's chief industries, metal mining, by Mr. Clare Baker. Mr. Baker, besides being a mining engineer from the University of Toronto, has had experience at Hollinger, McIntyre, and Belleterre gold mines.

Illustrating his talk with blackboard sketches, the speaker told how the prospector looks for a quartz or other mineral-bearing vein, which, when found, is mapped out and samples taken. If these samples and the area warrant economic mining, then a vertical shaft is sunk, similar to an elevator shaft in a building, except that two elevators or "skips" are used in order to achieve balance.

Horizontal tunnels are next dug out from the main shaft, in the direction of the vein and at various levels, like floors in a building. The actual mining is carried out from these horizontal tunnels.

There are two methods used in the mining of metals, such as gold:

(1) The shrinkage stope method

(2) The cut and fill stope.

The first, being very hazardous, is not used by the larger mines. In this method the first tunnel is blasted out in height, cleared of rock and ore, then heavy cribbing is built to form a safe casing for the 18-inch track and cars placed in the tunnel to remove subsequent rock which is removed above the tunnel. Work of blasting proceeds progressively higher above the first tunnel, as each stope or roof section is blasted down until all the ore is loose, resting on the cribbing of the main tunnel. Only enough ore is removed each time to allow work on the next higher stope.

In the second method, all the loose ore is removed from each stope and sand fill is transported into the space left, before the next stope is started. Wooden chutes are constructed through the fill in order to convey the loose ore to the open tunnel and its cars.

These little cars which convey ore to the shaft and its elevator, operate on 18-inch tracks, carry about one ton of ore and are hauled by an electric battery locomotive.

Mining is done on a system. Usually one shift will do the drilling and blasting and the next will remove the loose rock. Compressed air and water are played on a new blast for some time, to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning as well as dust.

During a question period the speaker gave answers rapidly and interestingly. Figures were no doubt approximate, but gave some idea of the vastness of the industry. Hollinger mine removes about 5,000 tons of ore per day. To a question as to whether more money was put into Canadian mines than came out, the speaker couldn't say, but he mentioned that Hollinger mine had paid out over 100-million dollars in dividends and a similar amount in wages.

For economical mining, ore which assays $10 to $12 per ton, should not cost over $4 per ton to mine.

A peculiarity of mining in depth, is that the temperature falls about 1½° for each 100 ft. of depth down to 1,200 feet. At 1,200 to 3,000 feet, heavy underwear is needed by the workers. Over 3,000 feet down, the temperature rises, and gets very hot at extreme depths.

Water is a problem in mining, and fair sized streams must be continually pumped out of the mines.

To a question of refining gold ore, the speaker mentioned (1) the Cyanide process — as used at Hollinger is not as efficient as

Happy Conclusion To Boys' Brigade Camp, St Andrews

St. Andrews E. — On Friday evening a farewell campfire marked the termination of the most successful camp ever held by the 1st Montreal Company at their campsite on the farm of Albert Dorion. During this gathering, a sing-song was led by Lieut. Alex Upham, followed by entertainment arranged by the boys, and a weiner roast arranged by Mr. Alex Riddell, of Montreal. Capt. J. Howard Richardson, commander of the camp, thanked those who had aided so energetically in catering for the boys, in the persons of Mrs. Albert Dorion, camp hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. Taylor and Mrs. J. Carter. The boys expressed their appreciation in three cheers; and another rollicking cheer went up when the appreciation of officers and boys was accorded to Mr. E. C. Calder, for the many ways he had served the camp. During the past years he has been closely associated with the venture and has become the pal of all Boys' Brigade campers. Capt. Jos. Proctor, who was associated with Capt. Richardson, as well as Lieuts. Cliff Blair, Arthur Hadley, Alex G. Anderson and Alex G. Upham, were also thanked for their share in making the camp so successful.

Awards were presented during the closing ceremony. Winning tent for two week period was that under the leadership of L/Cpl. Alistair Riddell, and books were presented to members of this tent —Ptes. Billy Calder, Lawrence Newman, Gordie McCrady and Tommy Duncan. The highest individual score was taken by L/Cpl. Alistair Riddell with 99% Ptes. Gordon McCrady, Jim Clark and Bill Calder came next in line with 98 and 97% respectively. All received special Brigade crests. Camp Improvement chevrons were awarded to a number of the boys, also.

Lieut. Art Hadley conducted several cycle tours to Lachute, Hawkesbury and St. Eugene during the concluding week of the camp. Lieut. Hadley also conducted services at the United and Presbyterian Churches during the week-end he was here, as well as a number of the camp devotional periods.

The camp was happy to welcome Rev. Dr. W. Stanford Reid, Mrs. Reid and Mrs. H. S. Lee as visitors for a day. They enjoyed their inspection of the camp and were much impressed by the beauty of its location, and the cleanliness throughout.

Capt. Ronald H. Green, of London, England (137th London Company of the Brigade), spent a week-end here and took back some snapshots which will be of considerable interest to his boys, who were bombed out of their church hall three times during the Blitz. Cliff Blair, former member of the 1st Company, as well as an officer, spent the entire two weeks at camp. He was a P.O.W. for six weeks prior to V-E Day, and told some exciting tales of life in a prison camp. . . . The boys greatly enjoyed these features.

Rearguard squad set a record this year in breaking camp. Seven bell tents were taken down and packed in valises in exactly 35 minutes. This is quite a record for B.B. camps and the 1st Company are proud of the achievement. Lieut. A. G. Anderson was in charge of rearguard work.

This coming Labor Day week-end camp will be operated for N.C.O's of both the 1st and 2nd Companies and a large attendance is forecast. Next session, the 1st and 2nd Companies will plan to camp jointly and add more improvements to their present set-up.

Death of Brownsburg Police Chief After Scuffle At Hotel, Pronounced Due to Natural Causes

Chief L. H. Lepine Succumbed to Heart Ailment, Autopsy Shows

Two merchant seamen of Montreal, reported visiting last week-end at a camp here on the North River, were involved in a disturbance at the Carrière Hotel, Brownsburg, in the early hours of Sunday. The pair were removed Tuesday to St. Jerome for arraignment, after being held here under imminence of a more serious charge, following the death of Police Chief L. H. Lepine, of Brownsburg. Chief Lepine, who arrested the young disturbers and encountered resistance in doing so, died a short time after the incident, and there were rumors of injury in connection with his death.

Leon Hormisdas Lepine, well known as a guard at the C-I-L in Brownsburg during the war years, had been employed as police chief of the village for the past month. He was nearly 62 years of age, and his death, although following the encounter, was nevertheless due to natural causes. According to the findings of Dr. Rosario Fontaine, provincial medico-legal expert, who conducted an autopsy on Monday, the man's body showed unmistakable signs of heart failure. He declared that he could hardly credit the fact that the victim had lived so long in his condition. . . . The two young sailors — Kenneth Wallace, 21, of Outremont, and James McGuighan, 20, of Montreal — were therefore exonerated. They were removed from the local police cells to St. Jerome and on Tuesday were arraigned on a lesser charge, namely of resisting police in the exercise of their duties.

Det. Leopold Dauphin, Lachute, and Det. Albert F. Oggier, Provincial homicide squad, investigated the fracas, which had occurred at about 12.30 a.m. Sunday, when attendants of the hotel at Brownsburg had forcibly removed three young Montrealers and lady companions from the premises. Outside the hotel there was an argument with a crowd gathered at the spot, and police were summoned. According to reports, while Chief Lepine and Asst. Chief A. Charron were attempting to subdue the boys, a woman jumped on Lepine's back and dragged him to the ground. The officer, however, is reported to have risen immediately and effected the arrest of the offending seamen.

The two policemen and two prisoners came to Lachute by taxi, and it was not until he had arrived here at the town offices that Lepine complained of feeling dazed. The prisoners were placed in the cell, and Chief Lepine collapsed on a cot. Here he was attended by Dr. Marc Papineau, who later accompanied him to his home. The physician left shortly before 3.30 o'clock, and within a brief time the victim succumbed.

Jules Lafleur, M.D., of Lachute, district joint-coroner, was notified. Viewing the circumstances of the man's death, the case was reported to the attorney general's department, whereupon the homicide squad and medico-legal authorities took up the enquiry. Following the pronouncement of Dr. Fontaine on Monday, the coroner gave his verdict of natural death, and the young men, held meanwhile in the local cells, were exonerated.

Plead Guilty to Charge Of Resisting Officer

Before District Magistrate D. Lalande at St. Jerome the following day, the pair pleaded guilty to the charge of resisting a public officer in the execution of his duty. Marine officials attended on behalf of the service, and the Brownsburg Village Corporation was represented by Georges H. Héon, local attorney.

In consideration of the time the young seamen had spent in jail, and on assurance they would be dealt with in accordance with discipline of the naval service, the prisoners were turned over to their superior officers.

Funeral Yesterday Of Police Officer

After leaving the Provincial Police force in 1928, Chief Lepine, the dead officer, became a Beauharnois Power Company guard and later joined the C-I-L at Brownsburg. He became head of the Brownsburg Police Department a month ago. Chief Lepine was a former police constable in Lachute, before this town boasted uniformed officers.

A large assembly of relatives, sympathizing friends, and members of town and provincial police forces in the district, gathered Wednesday morning for the funeral, held at St. Louis de France parish church in Brownsburg.

Pall-bearers were six police personnel — Traffic Officers A. Legault and H. Jones, Chief D. Villeneuve and Cst. A. Pagé, of Lachute, Cst. Rosario Therrien and Cst. Raoul Brunet, of St. Jerome.

During the ceremonies a solo, "Les Adieux" by Schubert, was sung by L. Dauphin, of the Provincial Police. Also noted among those in attendance were Chief Giroux, Hawkesbury; Traffic Officer G. Nault, Hawkesbury; Chief Latour, St. Eustache; Cst. O. Charron, Brownsburg; Cst. E. Richard, representing the Police Chief of St. Jerome, and other district officers.

Punishment for Nazis Not Listed War Criminals

By FRED KERNER,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — Berlin's four political parties are discussing a program for the punishment of such Nazis as are not wanted for war crimes, it is reliably reported.

It is proposed to purge Germany of remnants of Hitlerism and to make possible a new state on an anti-fascist democratic foundation. The program defines who is to be regarded as a Nazi, of what his punishment shall consist, how he may free himself of the charge if wrongly accused of being a Nazi and when he may again be regarded as a member of decent society.

R.C.A.F. headquarters in London has announced that a force of approximately 8,000 R.C.A.F. men will participate in policing and occupying Germany. Nine squadrons —two heavy bombers, four fighter, three medium transport — will compose the R.C.A.F. occupation force, it was announced at Ottawa earlier this month.

The right temperature at home is maintained by warm hearts, not by hot heads.

Report on Prevalent Pests and Diseases

According to Omer Caron, Provincial Botanist, apple orchards in Quebec are badly affected by scab to the extent that leaves are drying and fruit is splitting even where treatment has been partially given. Unsprayed orchards are a total loss. Fire blight continues to cause damage in the Lower St. Lawrence district. The following survey of pests and diseases is given, as at July 21:

Insects: Potato bugs abound throughout the province, their development having been favored by difficult spraying conditions. Other insects such as flea beetles, aphids and certain caterpillars are also numerous, due to inefficient sprayings. As much as 12 lbs. of poison per acre has been applied whereas had conditions been favorable, 3 lbs. would have amply sufficed. In the Montreal district the striped cucumber beetle is prevalent. Not only does it eat the leaves but it carries diseases such as bacterial wilt and ring rot, neither of which can be effectively checked. The satin moth is continuing its depredations on willows and poplars.

Disease: Diseases on cereals are not making much headway. Diseases peculiar to potatoes are noticeable in all districts. Mildew has put in an appearance but it is not yet prevalent. Apple scab is widespread. In unsprayed orchards, it has developed to the point of having leaves turn brown and fruits are splitting. Apple fire blight seems to have decreased somewhat but it is still a menace in the Lower St. Lawrence.

Weeds: Noxious weeds abound throughout the entire province. Complaints that noxious weeds are not mown along the public highways and other places where they could be cleaned up before seeds ripen and are resown is a serious source of propagation.

Britain Announces Farm Training Plan

London (CP) — Aimed at placing 100,000 ex-service personnel in jobs on farms, Britain has announced a "back-to-the-land" training scheme which applies to all non-disabled men and women returned from the three forces and the merchant navy.

The program will supply a year's training on farms, including specialized farming, with selected committees instructing those who have no previous land experience. For those who successfully complete the year's practical training, courses in agricultural institutes will be made available.

Trainees will be accommodated on farms or in hostels nearby and will receive an unstated salary augmented by dependents' and travelling allowances.

TURN THUMBS DOWN ON LUCKY CHARMS

London (CP) — Two people at least in Britain have no use for lucky charms.

First is Miss Ninnery of London whose garden produces "thousands" of four leaf clovers. This woman who claims the same thing has happened to her garden during the last 60 years said "they are nothing to me except a nuisance as I have to weed them."

The vicar of Risca, South Wales, asked through his parish magazine that brides stop wearing silver-paper horseshoes at their weddings.

In Wales that is all the custom, but the vicar says:

"It is an insult to ask divine blessing on the bride and bridegroom when the former clearly proclaims that she puts her trust more in horseshoe superstitions than in the prayers of the church."

Demand Expanding For British Films

London (CP)—More British films are being shown in Britain at present than ever before, and film makers say the market is continuing to expand.

During the film year ended Sept. 30, 1944, some 9,470,000,000 feet of British film were screened and Board of Trade records prove that British cinemas, compelled by law to devote 15 per cent of their shows to British productions are liking the output so much they have voluntarily upped that percentage to 20 and 25 per cent.

Forecast Excellent Blueberry Crop

An abundant crop of blueberries is in sight in contrast to last year's, which was only 40% up to normal in this province. Moreover, there will be heavy market demand because of the poor showing of other marketable fruits, particularly apples. Americans are very fond of this berry, and will be very good customers. Returns should be profitable to pickers.

This year, as in the past, classification of the berries is a requisite of the law, and pickers are reminded by the officials of the Quebec Department of Agriculture to conform to same as regards quality of the berries, size of containers and the labelling of the boxes.

Each box must carry a label on which must be legibly written the name and address of producer, as well as the quality and weight contained therein. All blueberries will be inspected at point of shipment and anyone found acting contrary to the law will have his goods confiscated and will be subject to a fine.

These requirements may seem severe, but they are essential to guarantee foreign markets with a nationally advertised quality product. This law helps maintain the outside market which takes care of 90% of Quebec's blueberry production.

WAR ON JAP BEETLE

Halifax (CP) — Seven hundred yellow traps for the destructive Japanese beetle have been placed throughout Nova Scotia, in a joint battle waged by the federal and provincial departments of agriculture against the pest.

ROADS WORKER IS KILLED AT PIEDMONT

St. Jerome — Frank Takcas, of Montreal, was killed instantly at Piedmont Friday afternoon. An employee of the Quebec Roads Department, he was working on the side of the road when he was knocked down by a department truck which was backing up. He was crushed under the wheels of the heavy vehicle. A verdict of accidental death was rendered by district coroner Dr. Leon Dugal, of St. Jerome.

CHILD KILLED BY NEIGHBOR'S CAR

Hawkesbury—When she ran off her father's verandah onto a driveway between her home and that of a neighbor, Ann Lemay, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Lemay, was killed by a neighbor's car backing out of his garage. The car was driven by William A. Davidson.

The child was rushed to Notre Dame Hospital but was so badly crushed that she died in a few minutes.

Saturday Time Off First Since 1940

Whitwick, Eng (CP) — For the first time since Dunkerque, miners in this Leicestershire area are taking Saturday afternoons off.

In 1940 these men of Britain's "little coalfields" decided to work full shifts on Saturdays to show the country what they could do. They worked full shifts Sundays, too, except for four a year.

Production records were set all through the war and now that Saturday afternoons are not being worked, the men have promised the management that production will still be at record peak.

A bitter tongue can "burn up" more people than an incendiary bomb.

REHABILITATION

Veterans are being discharged from the services at the rate of 30,000 a month, but the measures drawn up by the government to help them re-establish themselves are operating with all possible smoothness. There were a few complaints, however. Some of the men grumble at regulations governing the securing of land, they complain because gratuity checks sometimes do not come in when they are supposed to. Often they do not think they have been given the right jobs or they feel that the occasional official has given them a bad steer. For such a big program, however, the number of real complaints is surprisingly few. Very often the cause of the complaint is lack of information, and the purpose of these notes is to help the veteran to secure this information, or assist him or her in solving the difficulties which confront them.

Most people said that when the boys get back home the first thing they'll want is a long holiday . . . about three months. They'll act like kids out of school. They'll want to lounge around, doing nothing but eat, sleep and loaf, with no crochety sergeants or brass hats to salute. To a certain extent that was true — but not for three months. After a couple of weeks the veteran found that the things he had so much fun with before he went away, were not the same now that he didn't have the old gang to play with, His friends were now working long hours, or some of them had not come back yet. So it began to pall, and he decided to look around for a job. About 40 per cent go back to their old jobs. Twenty to 25 per cent take up some vocational or university training.

Every serviceman or servicewoman is entitled to free dental treatment after leaving the service if application is made within three months.

Those leaving the armed services may use their Re-establishment Credit to buy tools, instruments or equipment necessary in their civilian trade, profession or business.

Out-of-work benefits are included in Canada's re-establishment machinery.

Veterans may use their Re-establishment Credit to buy, build, repair or modernize a house. They may also use the credit to buy insurance at very attractive rates:

A Fleet at War: Two Million Troop Miles for Canadian Pacific

MONTREAL—Two and three-quarter million miles in Admiralty service — with two million of those miles as troop transports — is the proud record of the Canadian Pacific fleet in the German War, it has been revealed here in a review of the sea miles steamed for Canada and the United Nations up to V-E Day.

These wartime voyagings represent the transportation through enemy-infested waters of three-quarters of a million service personnel and civilians and of three and one-half million tons of war materiel and food.

The 40 million meals served troops and other government passengers during transport service alone outlines the magnitude of Canadian Pacific sea operations, until now cloaked by secrecy.

Special movements have included: Arabian kings and high dignitaries for Mediterranean conferences, 59,000 German and Italian prisoners of war for Canada, 23,000 native troops halfway round Africa at the critical point of that campaign and Newfoundland lumberjacks for a war job in Britain.

The toll among seagoing personnel was 272 known killed and 155 missing or prisoners of war. Eleven vessels, of 193,000 tonnage, were sunk by the enemy while one other, the Beaverhill, was victim of a marine accident in 1944.

Vessels lost represented more than half the 336,000 gross tons made available to the Admiralty in 20 Canadian Pacific ships from Atlantic and Pacific ocean and British Columbia coast service.

Still serving in the Battle of Supply from that original allotment of 20 ships are: Three Empresses — Australia, one of three Canadian Pacific ships which shared the movement of the First Division from Halifax in December of 1939; Scotland, (renamed from Japan), flagship of all peacetime services on the Pacific; Russia, which also served in World War I. Two Duchesses — Richmond and Bedford. One Princess — Kathleen. Two Monts — Montcalm, now converted into a fleet auxiliary repair ship which might well be in a "supply train" in the mounting Battle of the Pacific; and Montclare, both under direct Admiralty operation.

Those sent to the bottom by Germans, Japs or Italians were: In 1940: The 42,500-ton Empress of Britain, largest merchant ship sunk during the war; Montrose, sailing as H.M.S. Forfar, an armed merchant cruiser, at her death; Beaverford, which took up the immortal Jervis Bay's fight in the convoy attacked by the Admiral Scheer; and Beaverburn. 1941 — Beaverdale and Beaverbrae. 1942 — Princess Marguerite, seagoing "troop taxi" in helping line up troop dispositions for Montgomery's Alamein push; Duchess of Atholl and Empress of Asia. 1943 — Duchess of York, sunk by Focke-Wulf bombers off Spain; and Empress of Canada.

Conspicuous service in these actions by Canadian Pacific officers and men had resulted in the award of 74 decorations when the report was made.

CAT OUT OF THE BAG

Most people are of the opinion that this common way of saying that a secret has been disclosed, means a house cat. But it is not that kind of cat at all.

Away back in the bad old days of the British Navy, sailors who broke the rules or were guilty of some other offence were punished by lashes with the "cat o' nine tails", which was a cruel whip with nine thongs. This whip was kept in a bag. When a man was held for punishment his comrades would look around, and on the part of the ship where the punishment was to be inflicted they might see the "cat" lying on the deck. Accordingly, they would go to him and warn him what sort of punishment he was going to get by reporting that "the cat is out of the bag". —St. Thomas Times-Journal

Winnipeg (CP) — Speaking of premonitions, 450 horses here destined to appear on a menu for foxes and minks made a mass escape from the packing plant in which they were confined. Police and plant officials spent several days trying to locate the animals.

Rations and Rations

FOR ANY Canadians who feel disposed to express vexation at the return of meat rationing there is a sovereign mental remedy. It lies in consideration of the food regulations under which the people of Great Britain have lived for more than five years.

The British meat ration is based on value. Each adult may buy weekly meat valued at one shilling and two pence or about 27 cents. It averages out at about one pound; and that includes bone — about two-fifths of average pre-war consumption.

A bare statement of the figures should be enough to evoke in the mind of any Canadian the difficulties British women face in making say, a four-pound roast or joint spin out for a week in a four-member family.

And in Britain there is not the variety of vegetables that we in Canada know. It is true that cabbage and brussels sprouts are plentiful and cheap, and that potatoes, carrots and turnips are usually available in season. But it is not uncommon to see green beans, when they first come on the market, priced at $1.75 a pound, and asparagus at $1.50 — quite out of reach of the average family.

Britons have been healthy on their wartime diet. But it is such simple fare beside that which Canadians have known in the worst of times that it is a matter for contrast rather than comparison.

Add to this one particular situation — food — the inconveniences of transportation curtailed beyond anything we know in this country, clothing worn shabby, scores of amenities not yet restored. Even with the blackout and the bombing over, the average Briton is still living under conditions that would make him think the situation in Canada a foretaste of the millenium.

The Wild and Woolly West

HOW WILD is the Wild West?

Although the march of civilization across the continent may have dampened pioneer ardor, the west can be pretty wild at times, as recent reports from the coast indicate:

Three bears were reported wandering the streets of Giscome, B.C., at night and one of them discomfited Mrs. J. C. Coleman and her daughter by following them from their home into town, where it was later shot.

Mrs. J. A. Dyck of Powell River, B.C., earned a reputation as a crack shot when she killed a bear in her chicken pen with one shot. Unwilling to rest on her laurels, she shot a second bear in the pen a short time later.

A 240-pound cougar terrorized citizens of Hayside B.C., for several weeks before it was shot by Victor Mironko.

And the British Columbia government passed two proclamations permitting cowboys of the Clinton and Crahbrook areas to shoot wild stallions on sight because the wild horse population in the area was making deep inroads into forage meant for beef cattle.

Fishermen reported a sharp increase in sharks in Alberni Canal just off the British Columbia coast. The sharks were damaging nets and equipment, and Duncan Kerk was almost caught in a maelstrom of net and shark as a huge fish fought and slashed loose from the nets.

Fraser River fishermen urged the appointment of an expert seal hunter to reduce the growing seal population along the river. The seals are destroying fish at an alarming rate, fishermen claim.

Henry Splockton, an Indian fisherman, lassooed a 714-pound sturgeon in Fraser River and towed it ashore. A government dredge disturbed the river giant from its resting place.

There may be less rootin', tootin' and shootin' — but the West is still pretty wild!

Swim at the Proper Time

NOW THAT summer is in full swing the number of drowning accidents already tabulated is appalling. Before bathing anywhere it is necessary to be able to swim, and then there are times when not to swim, declares the Chatham Daily News.

Everybody knows that swimming should not be indulged in until at least an hour after eating a meal. But it is done right along and it is a wonder that there are not more casualties. At Buffalo, N.Y., recently, a capable swimmer, aged 42, donned a bathing suit after consuming a lunch, and suffered cramps that caused him to sink with no chance of rescue.

Indigestion will cause cramps and even the most adept swimmers are frequently caught and lose their lives. So that, after learning to swim, the next rule to be governed by is the time and place, depending upon your ability to master the waves.

AIRGRAPH mail overseas to England and European points has been discontinued. Of all the services provided to servicemen during the war, this possibly was the greatest morale builder of them all. A letter from home was powerful ammunition to the soldier at the fighting front. — Elmira (Ont.) Signet

Britons Know What They Want

BRITONS HAVE voted for the Labor party. . . . Most observers agree that Mr. Churchill was in no sense repudiated as a war leader, but he was rejected as a politician and the head of the Conservative party. The Labor party led by Clement Attlee was returned in the general election July 5 with 390 seats, compared with 195 for the Conservatives.

Winston Churchill submitted his resignation to the King, who immediately called on Attlee to form a Labor government, and Britons are now sizing up the men the new prime minister has chosen for key posts in his cabinet. . . .

Ernest Bevin, who organized Britain's productive manpower and womanpower for a long war, was chosen as foreign secretary. The two-fisted Labor minister in the wartime national government declared that the new Labor government intended to speak as "commen men to common men of other nations."

Other labor stalwarts chosen for top cabinet positions included Hugh Dalton, who will become chancellor of the exchequer, and Herbert Morrison, who will be lord president of the council and leader in the House of Commons. Arthur Greenwood becomes lord privy seal, Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade and Sir William Jowitt, lord chancellor.

The British Labor press hailed the new ministers as men likely to give Britain a new deal. The cabinet was expected to give first priority to the defeat of Japan, and the people of Britain have demonstrated that they want fast and definite action on such urgent matters as housing, the repair of war damage, plans for orderly demobilization of such armed forces as can be spared.

The scope of Labor's victory surprised even the most ardent supporters of the party which has not been in control of the government for 15 years. It was the first time in British history that Labor has had a clear majority. The Press Association termed Labor's victory the "most astonishing and significant of the century". . . Britons know what they want, and have expressed their wishes with no uncertainty.

Opportunity Knocks for A Broader Canadianism

THE EYES of all Canadians will be focused on Ottawa as the Dominion-Provincial Conference opens in the near future. The provinces are gathering together to plan for the future of Canada — and it is a momentous thing to have some of the best brains in the country giving time and thought to making our democratic life secure and more nearly perfect. This conference can be a history-making event that may well change the trend of Canadian life.

It will be a success if each province thinks in terms of its responsibilities rather than its rights, and is willing to acknowledge its own mistakes rather than highlight the faults of the others. If it results in neighborliness and a better understanding between the provinces, and a united effort for the good of the whole nation—what an example this might give to a divided, war-torn world.

United provinces mean united people. Every Canadian can have a part. It comes down to how we get on with the fellow we work with and how much we have the welfare of our own little community at heart. It is the spirit of each home, farm and business across the country that will determine the results of this assembly.

We have energy, we have resources, we have men. Our one need is a new spirit — a spirit above party, class, race, point of view or personal advantage. With this, we can build a pattern of industrial co-operation and national unity that will challenge the world and show a way out of confusion.

Church to Advertise

THE CHURCH of England believes in the power of advertising. It has been proposed by the Commission on Evangelism that 4½ million dollars be spent in an advertising campaign to convert great masses of the British people to the Christian faith.

Church dignitaries deplored the "wide and deep gulf" which has developed between the church and those who should be its active members.

The Commission urged that efforts be made to revive the practice of saying grace before meals; daily Scripture reading and family prayers.

That Minute to Spare

Oh, what will you do with the Minute to Spare?
The gay little, stray little Minute to Spare
That comes from the clime
Of old Plenty of Time,
With never a word and never a care.

Oh, what will you do with the Minute to Spare?
Who's only content
So long as he's spent,
No matter however, whenever, or where.

We'd better beware of the Minute to Spare,
The wee little, free little Minute to Spare,
And never refuse
The Minute to use,
That's always so ready some burden to bear.

Papa Pays the Bills

(London Free Press)

While it is generally, indeed almost universally admitted that it is the missus who "runs the home" and is, de facto, the executive chief, some tribute should be paid to papa.

After all it is father who meets the bills; father who cuts the lawn; father who gets up in the night to look for housebreakers; father who shuts the windows when a thunderstorm arrives at three o'clock in the morning; father who gardens; father who looks after the furnace; father who washes the dishes on the night the hired girl (if any) is out; father who pays the taxes; father who is to blame if the kids break the neighbor's window; father who paints the back porch. He can't be such a terrible old ruffian at that.

The plain truth is that it's papa who pays.

Former Physician Here, King Opponent, Sees Himself Doctor for Nation's Ills

Local readers who recall Dr. Richard Monahan's brief residence and practice here, will be interested in the physician's prospects as an opponent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the Glengarry by-election, August 6; they will be interested also in the impressions of a newsman, gleaned in an interview last week-end. The following, by Tracy S. Ludington, appeared in The Montreal Gazette last Monday:

River Beaudette — Two miles from this Quebec border town a 65-year-old doctor who has practised his profession in a dozen countries of the world, with the British fleet and the Royal Army Medical Corps, sat today on the bank of the St. Lawrence and looked across the line toward Glengarry County. . .

Richard Monahan will begin a quick trek around the country touching at its most populous points, speaking over the local radio stations and seek the vote of the workers of Glengarry. Three factors Monahan brings to the by-election: experience, determination, and a keen interest in the affairs of the common man not only of Glengarry and Canada but of the world. The doctor for Canada's ills he considers himself.

Born on Hermine street in Montreal, son of Irish parents, the doctor has a goodly thatch of red hair that waves in the wind like a banner to announce his ancestry, for it is a shade that could only grow on an Irishman He is a graduate of McGill University and is married to Anna Harriet Leonowens, granddaughter of Mrs. Anna Leonowens who was the heroine of the popular novel "Anna and The King of Siam." Her father was a teakwood merchant in Siam who dealt also in elephants at one time owning as many as 200 of the mammoth beasts. The Monahans have one daughter Isabella, aged eight, who is at present at a summer camp for girls not far from Sharbot Lake. Mrs. Monahan is a graduate of McGill in Arts. Dr. Monahan has followed his profession in China, India, Mexico, Italy, Canada, England, Ireland and other countries.

With the British Fleet in the World War, he was a surgeon lieutenant attached to the H.M.S. Canada, at the time one of the greatest battleships in the world. He saw action in the battle of Jutland, the ship fighting alongside Jellicoe's Iron Duke. Mr. King's opponent almost ran in the recent Federal election in Temiskaming

A linguist, Dr. Monahan speaks Spanish, Italian, French, German and English and reads the Bible in all of them. He believes the Sermon on the Mount should be incorporated into the World Peace Charter not as a preamble but right up in the first section. . . .

Dr. Monahan has taken a keen interest in politics in all parts of the world. In the 1935 general election in Great Britain he helped Edward Granville in an electoral battle against Winston Churchill.

He is enthusiastic over the election of the Labor Government in England, remarking as he pulled his white sun helmet over his eyes, "For the first time I as an Irishman feel that I can collaborate with England."

Dr. Monahan is in favor of capitalism, though "a rejuvenated capitalism that will turn production into security for the people." One of the chief planks of the Monahan platform is a Federal Medical Insurance Act for Canada designed after the Wagner Act in the United States. In fact, Dr. Monahan has invited Senator Wagner to come to Glengarry county and explain his theories to the people of the constituency. In response to questions about his plans for the election campaign the doctor summed up: "I want to get away from all the stuffiness and twaddle of the usual election campaign."

Waving his hand to the broad expanse of the St. Lawrence he added: "I am an open air man, a riverman. This is a one man campaign. I have no helpers, no sponsors but the working people of Glengarry constituency. I feel that they will support me at the polls."

ANTI-T.B. PROGRAM

Toronto (CP)—Beginning in mid-October 1,000,000 residents of this city and York County will be offered free X-Ray examinations in a campaign to stamp out tuberculosis, Dr. Gordon Jackson, medical health officer, told the Board of Control.

FIRE, FIRE!

● The sound of the fire engines tearing through the streets of Ottawa awoke me the other night and, as always, I had to run to the window to see if the blaze was on our street. I suppose there is in all our minds a hold-over from the time when we used to love to race to a fire just because it was a thrilling spectacle.

Out on the farm fire takes on much more alarming proportions. After all, on a farm you're isolated. You can't run to the phone and have a fire department racing to your home in the matter of minutes.

That's why the word "fire" must have an ominous meaning to farmers.

I notice that a recent study of farm fires indicates that there are at least 13 common causes for fires in the rural areas. Didn't somebody tell us 13 was an unlucky number!

They are: chimneys of substandard construction; sparks from dirty chimneys; smoke pipes and stoves installed without regard to radiation of heat; seasonal grass and bush fires,; spontaneous ignition of hay through dumping badly cured hay; worn-out shingle roofs; lighted lanterns; mis-use of electrical equipment; threshing operations with gasoline power; gasoline vehicles stored in barns; matches and smoking in outbuildings; trespass by thieves; and lightning.

The recommendations for fire prevention on the farm call for having a roof ladder always at hand. It is also suggested that the farmer keep a few water buckets full and ready for use. Also, it is a good idea to have a few barrels of water on hand for instant use. Keep at least one standard two and one-half gallon soda-acid fire extinguisher on the premises.

FARM WOMEN'S CO-OPERATIVE

● The thought of home-cooked farm food causes the mouths of city people to water. Home-made baked beans, apple pies, chickens, fresh vegetables, sausage meat, preserves . . . well!

The women of Montgomery County, Maryland, in the United States have been running a successful co-operative business to sell just these and other things. When they started 13 years ago their income was $5,000 a year. Now they have a $275,000 a year business, and it is still growing. The women have their market at Bethesda, which is about a mile north of the District of Columbia line. The market attracts shoppers from Washington and suburbs, all eager to by the delicious home-cooked food.

The farm ladies recently made the final payment on a $50,000 mortgage, and they have used their own profits to install new kitchen equipment, get their children educated, and any number of other things.

The women take pride in maintaining a high standard in the products they sell, and all recipes are inspected, and any changes must be approved.

They started their project in a vacant store on the main street of Bethesda, and now they have their own beautiful building.

Quite a success story, isn't it?

Vacationist Group Now 'Lake Louisa Country Club'

NEW CLUB HOUSE ALREADY IN USE

Things have been moving rapidly in the vicinity of Lake Louisa and those visitors who have not been to the lake during the past month would hardly recognize the old building known as Liberty Hall. Particularly is this so of the inside. Partitions have been removed from the main building and a large steel beam now supports the upstairs, which will be used for ping-pong and as executive offices. Paint is always a splendid factor in freshening things up and has been no exception in this case, and the spacious room with hardwood dancing floor is most attractive in its ivory color appearance.

Electric lights have been installed, which for the time being are being run from a private plant owned by Mr. W. K. McArthur. The large shed in rear of the property has been removed, a new wharf has been built, the grounds have been brushed out and altogether the Club premises have taken on a new and most attractive appearance.

The annual meeting was held on Saturday evening when a large gathering was present to show their interest in this new venture.

The name of the newly formed organization is the "Lake Louisa Country Club", replacing the old Fish and Game Club, which has functioned for many years.

In a venture as large as this has been it has been necessary to raise funds, and shares, under the supervision of Mr. S. S. McFaul, are now being sold. Family and single memberships are also obtainable and interest is keenly manifest.

The new president is Mr. L. W. Gatehouse, of Montreal, vice-president, W. K. McArthur, Lachute, and secretary-treasurer, Mr. Cockhill, of Montreal.

Willing workers have been on the job renovating and painting, and particular appreciation is due the ladies, who have worked so hard in raising funds and putting on the finishing touches in this new project.

Donations of money, furniture, or even a piano, victrola, or anything suitable for the new Club will be gladly accepted.

The primary object in this move has been to provide a place for the young folk of the Lake to amuse themselves, as well as having a Community Centre.

Feeling is very strong in regard to the plebiscite to be taken on August 25, as to whether or not alcoholic liquors shall be sold in Wentworth Township, and there is a strong feeling among the Lake residents that it should be turned down.

A regatta is being held on Saturday, August 4, to which all are invited. Events will start at 2.30 p.m., and supper will be served in the club house, by the Ladies' Committee, at moderate prices.

Why not visit the lake and enjoy the afternoon's sports.

Mr. J. P. Lanctôt and son, John, were witnesses for the groom, and Commander McFetrick, H.M.C.S. Donnacona, Montreal, was witness for the bride. Miss Leone Ladouceur was organist. Solos were sung by Wren MacDonald, Mme A. Lavallee, sister of Father Dulude, and Mme Gehanne Dusseau, of New York and Toronto, whose selection was "Ave Maria" by Gounod.

Mme Lanctôt, mother of the groom, was attired in a street-length dress of grey crepe with touches of pink, a pink flower hat, and carried pink roses. Mrs. Parsons, mother of the bride, wore a blue and white printed frock, with white accessories and white gardenias.

Personnel of the groom's naval "ship" ushered and formed the guard of honor, one of whom was Christopher Ellis, a personal friend of the groom.

About 175 guests attended the reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lanctôt, which was planned to be held on the lawn, but owing to rain was adjourned to the house. A family party of 22 sat down to the wedding breakfast.

The bridal couple left on their honeymoon trip to Quebec, Murray Bay and the Saguenay River. For travelling, the bride wore a yellow two-piece silk costume with black accessories.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Hector Lanctôt and son, Mr. Yvon Lanctôt, Mr. Jacques Lemieux, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer, and the Misses Lena and Maria Trudeau, all of Sherbrooke; Mme G. Dusseau and Miss Rita Dusseau, of New York.

Lieut. and Mrs. Pierre Lanctôt will reside in Montreal, where the groom is stationed at H.M.C.S. Donnacona.

RAIN DAMAGES CROPS

Charlottetown (CP) — Prince Edward Island farmers face possible loss of half their grain crop after the wet season when only about 50 per cent of the grain was seeded.

Mr. John F. MacKimmie, father of the bridegroom, and Miss Joan MacKimmie, of Lachute, were present at the wedding.

The bridegroom recently returned from five years' service overseas with the 8th New Brunswick Hussars, having seen action in Sicily, Italy and on the Western Front.

MARSHLANDS FLOODED

Sackville, N.B. (CP) — Damage to haylands in the marsh areas of southeastern New Bruswick was estimated at $15,000 after sea water surged through broken dykes and destroyed large sections of land near the main highway and rail line between here and Nova Scotia.

FORTUNE LEFT TO FELLOW SOLDIERS

London (CP) — Friendships cemented during long and hazardous patrols through enemy territory were remembered when Lieut. Alexander Brown, 29, of the Scots Guards, was killed and left more than $50,000 to be split among the 26 members of his scouting party.

The bequests ranged from $250 to $15,000 — which went to Sgt. Thomas Debham — for each individual man. Fellow officers in the same regiment were also remembered, chief benefactor being Capt. Nial O'Neill who received $25,000.

Loss of Sheep

By Jessie Allen Brown

When you lose two hours sleep at night you require about 25 per cent more calories to compensate, and make up for your lack of energy. I have noticed that when I lost considerable sleep and was very tired the next day I had a craving for candy. I suppose it was the unconscious desire to get those extra calories necessary and sugar makes for quick energy. When we know that we need more calories to make up for that lost sleep it might be a good idea to be sure we get them, and although a little candy might be a good idea it is not the best way to get them. Milk or fruit juices or something equally easy to digest would be a good choice. Most of us have had the experience of losing weight during periods of having to do with less sleep. Now we can understand the reason — but it is not recommended as a way to reduce. One woman who wanted to reduce said all she needed was a good worry! She was being facetious but there is something back of it at that.

"Hometown"

Radio author and actor Bernard Braden looks to Vancouver as his home town, but the "Hometown" he's looking after right now is an odd little Canadian community about which he has written 13 plays. As author and producer, Mr. Braden will present the fifth episode of his series from Toronto on Monday, August 6, at 10.30 p.m.

More Vitamins In Home Meals

Given the same meal served at home and in a restaurant, the chances are that there will be more nourishment in the home-cooked meal, says the Division of Nutrition, Ottawa. It won't cost as much either!

The reason, of course, is that restaurant foods are usually prepared some time in advance and may stand for several hours in a steam table before being served.

There's nothing harder on a vitamin than being kept waiting. The poor fellow just can't take it. So the family who eats at home where meals are well cooked and served immediately, especially if vegetables come straight from the family garden, have a decided vitamin advantage over restaurant eaters.

Special prizes were also given for juvenile costumes: Helen Smith as Newsboy; Marilyn and Jimmy Ward supporting Cigarette Girl and Twins; and Don Thayer as South Sea Island Boy.

Judging of costumes was well handled by a committee of three consisting of Mrs. J. Webber, Jas. Rowe and Peter Watkinson. Assisting with arrangements were Al Gouldsen, Hector Gratton and Jas. McLaughlin.

Roy Studholme's team won the main bowling tournament of the week, and the Ottawa ladies defeated two picked Montreal teams.

The marshmallow roast and bonfire on Thursday night was held under ideal weather conditions and everyone declared it most enjoyable.

The customary Saturday night barn dance found a number of new devotees among the guests.

Shuster and Wayne

Fourteen years ago Sergeants Frank Shuster and Johnny Wayne (shown above in that order) began reversing positions as talker and typist for a complete collaboration in writing comedy, lyrics and tunes. They began early in high school, pursued it through college where they picked up B.A.'s no little fame, and a radio contract. They went overseas as army writers and comedians in 1942, are home and at it again for "The Johnny Home Show." The new serial goes on the CBC Trans-Canada network Fridays, at 9.30 p.m. EDT.

A Home-made Toy

By Jessie Allen Brown

The neighborhood abounds with babies this year. Most of them are on extended visits to grandparents. One of the babies had a set of cans for toys that is such a good idea that the rest of the babies are getting them too. One smart grandmother took six empty cans of varying size, starting from the large juice cans and going down to the can of baby food. The tops had been cut off leaving no jagged edges, then she enamelled the outside of the cans and then put a suitable transfer on them. They are attractive looking and stand plenty of abuse, even to leaving out in the rain as if cans with enamelled linings are chosen they do not rust. The youngsters use them to fit together as they would a nest of blocks — if they could get the blocks. They fill them with stones or anything else handy, and they have a lot of fun with them in the sand-pile. The enterprising grandmother who made the first ones has made quite a few sets of them for bazaars and they have sold like the proverbial hot-cakes. I am passing on the idea and if it is new to you it may prove useful.

16-YEAR-OLD IS EXPERT COIFFEUSE

London (CP) — Fourteen-year-old Pat Abbott walked into an exclusive West End beauty parlor and requested a job.

That was two years ago, and now Pat, daughter of a plumber, has been aclaimed by the country's leading hairdressing experts as the best of the beginners. At a General Association of Ladies' Hairdressers competition she walked off with top honors, winning 100 points in the apprentices' class out of a possible 104. Her closest competitor got 32.

Her employer, president of the association, said: "Today people come from the farthest points of England to have their hair done by her; tomorrow they will come from Paris and New York. One day I hope she will be the greatest figure in the hairdressing world."

Already Pat is creating her own styles, and her employer predicts that in a few years it will cost real money just to consult her. As for Pat, she says: "I've never regretted coming into hairdressing — I love it."

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Do you know Quebec? For example, do you know that the annual cash income to the Province from agriculture amounts to somewhere around $150,000,000? More than 150,000 farms raise a wide range of field crops including, in order of importance, hay, clover, oats, potatoes, mixed grains and fodder corn. Dairy products have become a major industry with cheese reaching a one year record output of 62,000,000 pounds, and concentrated and evaporated milks amounting to 25% of the all-Canadian total. As many as 350,000 hogs have been shipped to the packers in a twelve-month period. Canning factories are kept busy annually, preserving a large and varied fruit harvest. Sugar beets are quickly becoming a big item and 30,000 acres devoted to flax make Quebec top producer in Canada of flax fibre.

About one third of Quebec's population is rural, the love of the soil ingrained in their hearts. At one time, of course, every settler made his living from the land, but the gradual growth of trade and commerce attracted many to the villages and towns which have now become great, bustling cities. Yet, no matter where their homes may be today, the people of Quebec retain a traditional love of outdoors, an appreciation of beauty and a self reliance born of centuries of association with Nature. To these admirable qualities, add ingenuity, happy dispositions and unfailing optimism; temper them with the strain, toil and sacrifice of years of war—and it can be seen that Quebec has a firm foundation on which to plan for tomorrow . . . it can readily be understood why Quebec, with her sister provinces, is destined to have a leading share in the developments and opportunities that await Canada in the days to come.

QUEBEC PRODUCES FOR WAR

To Quebec's already glorious history has been added her wonderful contribution to Canada's war effort. Pulp, paper, native ores and manufactured metals, clothing, chemicals, textiles, ships, foods, petroleum, electrical supplies, to mention only a few products of her mines, mills and factories; $2,703,357,600.00 subscribed by her people in eight Victory Loans; thousands of men in the navy, army and air force who have distinguished themselves on global battlefronts. Thus have her sons and daughters recorded Quebec's part on Canada's wartime honor roll.

SHARING CHILD FREES MOTHER

Being "run ragged" at the end of the day with a carry-over of jobs undone is an experience common to most mothers of two to seven-year-olds. But there is a solution. . . . part time co-operative child care.

A group of mothers take turns supervising all the children for a morning or afternoon. If the other mothers are canning, each puts up one or two extra sealers for the supervising mother. If they are shopping, they shop for her too.

Of course such a project takes a bit of organization at the start and child care experts offer some practical suggestions.

They say there should not be more than eight children in a group and that it is better for them to go to the same place each time. Playthings should be provided but need not be elaborate or expensive. A sand pile, swing, skipping ropes, packing boxes to jump from or play house in, big wooden blocks collected from a lumber yard and planed smooth, and plasticine for quiet play will provide hours of happy fun.

It has been found that there are fewer tears and less disciplining is needed if children do not bring along their favorite toys, which some other child is always sure to want to play with. When discipline is necessary, isolation of the offender for one or two minutes is most effective.

It's much better to be lucky than rich. You might happen to be in the store at the fleeting moment when the bacon or potatoes go on sale.

RELATES HORRORS OF GERMAN CAMP

French Woman Journalist Urges Strict Policy of Non-Fraternization

London (CP) — Dressed in black and speaking in a quiet voice, St.-Clair Le Duc, French journalist and author, told newspapermen a tale of horrors enacted at a German prison camp for women.

Arrested in Paris in 1943 as one of the leaders in the intelligence service supplying information to the Allies, she was sent to Ravensbruck, a camp 12 miles north of Berlin built for 12,000 prisoners and which, when she arrived, held 45,000 women and children.

"The German women loathed us", she said, telling how she worked there for 10 months as a nurse. "The wardresses were as cruel as the men; they used to lash us across the eyes with leather belts with buckles at the end. Many of my comrades were blinded."

"Milk for the babies was drunk by the German wardresses and in the mornings we often found babies fingers gnawed by the rats. Last January about 300 women and children died every day."

Madame Le Duc said she did not want to see the Allies "go easy with the Germans."

She said "these German girls who want to fraternize with the soldiers will make a sixth column if they marry them and get abroad."

An advertisement says that nothing looks better on a girl than a modern bathing suit. But who looks at the bathing suit?

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

WHITE SHIPS

We have become acustomed to seeing all ships painted in their war grey and it is very pleasant now to find the occasional ship coming out in a new white dress. The only ships painted white which we have seen for years have been the Swedish ships which carried grain to Greece, and loaded at the Port of Saint John. It seemed strange to see them lighted at night as all other ships were dark. Islanders are apt to think of freighters as ugly dirty boats, but that is far from true. There are some lovely looking freighters and they are kept spotlessly clean. Before the War the far East boats were always interesting, partly because of their cargoes. Many of tem had Lascars as crew, and as they will eat only lamb freshly killed, you could usually see a sheep or two roaming around the deck, to be butchered when necessary. I noticed an item in the papers not long ago saying there was a shortage of lamb in Vancouver as it had all been bought up for use aboard the ships having Lascar crews.

CENSORED

Friends have written me in surprise to tell me my letters have been opened by the censors. I have not heard of anything which was deleted, because I tried to be careful, but there have been many letters which have had considerable cut out. Every letter going out of Saint John was not censored, but a certain percentage were, as they were from all port cities. Censors were local people and this stirred up considerable annoyance among some of the residents. There were times when they did not want people they knew reading the letters they had written so they waited until an opportunity occurred to have them posted out of town. However that was just a minor annoyance and one of the penalties of living on the coast. There have been so many things which I saw down here that I would have liked to put in my column and I think I leaned over backwards in being careful, so I went by the rule that if it had been printed in our local papers, then it was safe to use it. Censorship has been lifted down here and I am wondering if it still is in force on the West Coast.

USE THE TRAYS FOR MEAT

Advertisements and magazine articles promise great things for home freezing units after the war. I haven't a freezing unit, but it is surprising how much you can use the trays in an electric refrigerator. It is not handy for me to buy meat, so when I get a chance I like to buy enough for most of the week. Chops, sausages and liver fit into the trays easily. If I get ground meat, I have the butcher grind a piece of chuck, and if I want to use it in patties I make them up and freeze them; or if it is to be a beef loaf, I get it ready before freezing; if I plan to use it in some other way, such as mixing it with a can of vegetable soup, I just freeze it as is. If I want to make a stew or a meat pie, I cut the meat into pieces before freezing. We think the freezing usually improves the meat; if we have some of the chops, for instance, the day I buy them and the rest are frozen—we find the frozen ones are more tender. Certainly the use I make of the refrigerator has saved me a lot of time in shopping and has made meal-getting easier.

VANILLA ICE CREAM

1¼ Cups top milk, 2 eggs, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 cup cream or evaporated milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Scald milk. Beat the egg yolks and add sugar and flour. Stir in hot milk and cook over slow heat until the mixture coats a spoon like a soft custard. Cool. Beat the egg whites until stiff. Add salt, vanilla, and fold in egg whites. Pour into freezing tray and freeze until mush. Remove from refrigerator and fold in whipped cream or evaporated milk. Freeze.

JELLIED SALAD

1 Envelope (1 tablespoon) gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup hot water, 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 cup diced cucumbers, 1 cup sliced radishes ½ cup sliced green onions.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add hot water, sugar, salt, lemon juice and stir until dissolved. Chill until syrupy, then fold in the vegetables. Pour into a mould which has been rinsed with cold water. Let stand until set and serve on lettuce or watercress with salad dressing.

BLUEBERRY SAUCE

1 Cup blueberries, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon ¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Mix ingredients and boil 5 minutes. Serve hot on ice cream or puddings.

Q.W.I. Submits Plans For Reconstruction

The committee on Post-War Reconstruction for the Quebec Women's Institutes, in a report to the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada laid special emphasis on the necessity for youth training.

Among their objectives are the organization of more Junior Women's Institutes and the establishment of Youth Hostels throughout the province.

Other aims are the extension of the services of the Victorian Order Nurses and the promotion of all other agencies which will improve living conditions among our population.

SIAMESE KITTENS

Shediac, N.B. (CP) — Visitors flocked to the home of Alphonse Bourgeois to see a local nine-days wonder — two pairs of Siamese twin kittens. The Bourgeois family cat recently gave birth to six kittens — four of which were joined together by their hind legs from the hips down. One died at birth while the other three survived only a few days.

Report Poor Quality

If you have a garment or underwear which you think is poor value for the money spent, report it to your nearest consumer section of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Many of you have Laison officers in the organizations to which you belong, and they will look after it for you. If you have paid enough to warrant getting well-sewn garments and get instead poor seams or even raveled edges, send the label or other identification. You don't have to report the store from which you purchased it. The label will tell the manufacturer and by sending this information you will be helping your retailer as well as yourself. If we send our complaints to the proper place we give them a chance to do something about them. The Standards division have inspectors checking on quality but it is difficult to inspect everything that is made. We would probably kick if a staff large enough for this was employed.

TIMELY TIPS

"The time has come, the walrus said, to think of our food fashions. Of milk and eggs and fish perchance and soon to count meat rations."

With meat rationing around the corner and meat economy right here, make the most of meat . . .

. . . By Proper Storing

"Why of course!", but do you you always remember to cool cooked meat uncovered, then cover tightly before storing in a cold place; to use promptly any stews, meat soups cooked with potatoes or thickened with flour; to use ground meat wheather raw or cooked as quickly as possible.

. . . By Proper Cooking

"I always brown my roasts in a hot oven then drop the temperature a little." The experts say you'll have less shrinkage and more meat per pound if you keep the oven at a steady heat of 325° F to 350°F during the entire cooking.

. . . By Clever Extending

"I use eggs or meat for meatless Tuesdays and Fridays." Good alternatives, but for extending meat use bread and whole grain cereals in meat loaf and meat roll. Use forequarter cuts of beef for Spanish steak with stewed tomatoes making plenty of sauce. With all meats be sure to make ample gravy and let the family indulge its secret longing for bread and gravy.

Labor Exit Permits For Student Nurses

Instructions have been sent to National Employment Service offices concerning Labor Exit Permits to young ladies desiring to go to the United States to take a nurses' training course.

Owing to shortages of graduate nurses in Canada, it is necessary to maintain a satisfactory enrolment in Canadian schools of nursing, so that Officers in Employment Offices are, by frequent consultation with the Registered Nurses' Association, to watch Canadian enrolments closely. Instructions point out this is particularly important during the weeks prior to the enrolment of new nurses in September and January The issuance of Labor Exit Permits authorizing departure from Canada of girls qualified to enter as nurses-in-training, will be restricted where it would threaten to adversely affect enrolment in Canada.

It is pointed out that prospective nurses who lack adequate educational qualifications for admission to Canadian schools of nursing, and who consequently enter American schools which have lower educational requirements, are not, after graduation, eligible for registration as nurses in Canada. . . If an applicant, aware of this regulation, still desires to enter the United States for her course, the Labor Exit Permit will be issued whenever the reason for non-admission to a Canadian school is education, health or age.

Captured Drum Returned to Highlanders

The drum belonging to the 5th Battalion, of Britain's Gordon Highlanders, lost at St. Valery during their retreat in June, 1940, was found by the 10th U.S. Armoured Division when it captured Baumholden, Germany, in March. The drum was returned to the Highlanders with great ceremony in Konigsplatz, Munich. Here, Cpl. Willie Simms faces the drum major as he plays the now famous drum.

Procedures of Metal Mining

(2) the Flotation process. The former leaves 20c per ton in the ore and the latter only 8c.
Wages were mentioned, and the speaker said that in ordinary times a good miner under average conditions will make $9 to $10 per day. He also stated that by experience he knew that "mucking" or shovelling ore into cars was "the hardest work in the world".
Many miners have worked their whole life in the business, others for various reasons leave it after a short period.
Other points were brought up, including ore reserves, "tips on the market" and hygrading.
The speaker was introduced by Hub Tomalty and thanked for his very interesting talk by Dave Schwartz.

"My parrot is a hundred and ten years old."
"He's awfully green for his age."

"Respect of Provincial Autonomy Our Chief Concern" -- Proviso in Duplessis' Collaboration at Conf'ce

Sidelights on the Quebec Scene

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec, Aug. 7 (CP) — Henri Renault, who was Minister without Portfolio in the Liberal government which was defeated in the election of August 1944, has now been nominated by the Liberal organization in Beauce constituency as its candidate for the by-election which will be held to fill the only vacancy in the Quebec Legislative Assembly. The vacancy resulted with the resignation of Edouard Lacroix, Bloc Populaire, who was elected last year. Mr. Lacroix did not sit at any of the sessions of the legislature earlier this year, because of ill health.

Date of the election remains to be set by the present Union Nationale government.

* * *

Before leaving for Ottawa to join in the Dominion-Provincial conference, Mr. Duplessis said that the Quebec government was ready to co-operate in all measures which would lead to progress in Canada in general, and the provinces in particular.

"We will abide by the spirit of the British North America Act, with the respect of provincial autonomy our chief concern."

A reserve of 10,000 cords of wood, piled in the exhibition grounds at Quebec, is expected to relieve the citizens of the provincial capital from an acute shortage of wood fuel next winter. This report came from A. Desmarchais, president of the Quebec Association of wood merchants, who said there was no scarcity of wood in the forests, but that lack of transportation hindered movement of the fuel to the city.

* * *

Australia is seeking to relieve a timber shortage by greater shipments from Canada. This was learned from O. D. A. Oberg, president of the Australian Council of Employers' Federations, who was in Montreal. Before the war, Australia imported 150,000,000 feet of Canadian softwoods annually, but during the war these shipments were reduced considerably. Now Mr. Oberg hopes they can be restored.

The Eastern Townships will send a delegation to Montpelier, Vermont, to study flood control systems on the Winooski river. It is hoped that this system may prove adaptable to the eastern townships area.

* * *

The city of Sherbrooke is going to do a favor for visitors who have often been bewildered by the street-numbering plan used there. For the first time since the community was founded, the numbers will be revised and modernized.

Announcement at Ottawa that the wartime alcoholic beverages order had been repealed, drew the comment from Judge, Edouard Archambault, chairman of the Quebec Liquor Commission, that it would be almost a year before the liquor situation in Quebec Province would return to normal. However, he was very happy to hear the news.

"I hope the supply problem will become easier. However, I don't think that the situation will be normal before a year. The supply problem remains delicate, and it depends almost entirely on the distilleries. We can sell more than they can supply."

He added that there would be no change in the Quebec regulations for sale of wines and spirits "for at least several weeks".

Election Quip

Oxford is a place of some little wit, as well as some little learning. Mr. Quintin Hogg, as is well known, was Conservative candidate for Oxford City. Outside the Oxford railway station there is, or till very lately was, a large poster bearing a portrait of Mr. Churchill, and an inscription, thoughtfully added by some helpful spirit: "Love me, love my Hogg."

The Watchman is on sale at 5-cents a copy at the following stores:

Lachute: Beaton's Pharmacy, Lachute Medicine Store.

Lachute Mills: Harbour Drugstore.

Rehabilitation News

Questions and Answers

By WILLIAM STEPHENSON

"Can I join my husband who is a captain with the Army of Occupation in Germany?", asks a young lady from Brockville, Ont. "I know this is not strictly a rehabilitation problem, but I assure you it is every bit as important to me. We had been married only three months when he left."

I'd like to be able to say yes to a question like this, but the facts just wouldn't bear me out. At the present time, owing to the terrific food and housing shortage in Europe and also to the lack of transportation, it is not feasible for Canadian wives to join their men folk on the Continent, much as Canada would like to see them re-united. As soon as conditions improve, however, an announcement will be made on the subject.

"Are university fees subtracted from a veteran's re-establishment credits?", asks a Sub-Lieutenant in the R.C.N.V.R. at Digby, Nova Scotia.

Yes sir, they are, but it is the length of qualifying service rather than the amount of credit available which limits the amount of training he can receive. If he uses all his credits for training, it only means that he will not be able to apply them to some other venture when his course is finished.

* * *

"I came from Virginia in 1940 to join the R.C.A.F.", says a new repat, formerly tail gunner in a Wellington. "Last week I ran across something good — a fellow wanted to trade his fruit farm near St. Catharines for my place in Virginia, with a little cash on the side. I like the whole idea fine, but if the deal goes through, will I be able to get funds to improve the St. Catharines place? How much can I get and how much do I have to pay back in how long?"

Once you own the place, you can apply to the Regional Supervisor of the Veterans' Land Act for a loan up to $4,400, depending on the value of the land. You cannot borrow more than 60% of the approved value of the property. The money is loaned to you on a first mortgage at 3½%, and is repayable up to 25 years. Now this part is complicated — of the $4400, not more than $2500 of 50% of the approved value (whichever is less) can be used for stock and equipment.

There is one unfortunate aspect to this whole case. At the moment, since this loan is at a lower rate than normal, it must be regarded as a benefit under the Veterans' Land Act, and consequently would bar the use of your re-establishment credit until the loan has been repaid and a compensating adjustment made. As the re-establishment credit is available only for ten years, the total loan would have to be repaid within that time for you to obtain the credit.

I'd like to suggest another way you can finance the fixing up of your place. Under the Farm Improvement Loans Act the chartered banks of Canada will loan farmers money at low interest rates for periods up to ten years, so that they can make necessary improvements. This might be best for you, since it would in no way affect your re-establishment credits.

OLD INSIGNIA BACK

Halifax (CP) — The three maple leaves on a white background which have become familiar as part of the shoulder flash of the Canadian Infantry Corps are to be replaced by the former insignia — a white "Canada" badge, discontinued when the maple-leaf insignia was issued.

FREED FROM K.P.

Winnipeg (CP) — Soldiers training in Manitoba for the Pacific have been replaced in the "battle of the kitchen" by a new novel service, including complete units of cooks, clerks, general duty men and other tradesmen, so that the Pacific-bound soldiers will be "free to devote their entire time to organization and training during the period of concentration," an Army release announced.

Resigns Post in Munitions Dept.

Ottawa, Aug. 6 (CP) — Munitions Minister Howe announced the resignation of E. J. Johnson of Montreal, director general of the Industrial Security Branch of the Munitions Department, and said the activities of the branch were being wound up.

(Mr. Johnson was formerly manager of the Dominion Cartridge Company at Brownsburg, and the father of Edwin L. Johnson who succeeded him as manager of the Dominion Ammunition Division of C-I-L.)

With curtailment in munitions production following victory in Europe and diminishing likelihood of enemy sabotage it was no longer felt necessary to continue the department which, under Mr. Johnson's direction, had performed a valuable service. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police will continue to maintain supervision over security activities of plants whose work is considered of the most vitial importance in the continuing war against Japan.

At the time of his appointment in 1941, Mr. Johnson was manager of the mechanical efficiency department of Canadian Industries Ltd. and was loaned to the government for the munitions post.

Three-Fold Event Boosts Funds of Farmers' Club

Grenville — A three-event evening on behalf of the Grenville Farmers' Club met with a successful outcome last Friday, although the two more spectacular highlights — a modern dance at the Long Sault Grill and a barn dance at the home of Ed Barron — stole the show as far as attendance was concerned. Third item on the program was a social gathering at the Consolidated School.

The object of these events was to raise funds for the extension of the club's warehouse, and net proceeds of $268 were received for this purpose.

The Grenville Farmers' Club is now a thriving co-operative enterprise. A number of distinguised guests were present at the events, including authorities on the farm co-operative movement. Among them were S. V. Deschenes and W. Tawse, of the Co-opérative Fédérée de Québec, R. Campbell, of the Economics branch, Federal Department of Agriculture, besides figures more familiar to this county—the Hon. G. E. Dansereau, M.L.A., Georges H. Héon, M.P., and Alex Bothwell, county agronomist

President of the farmers' group is J. P. Johnson; vice president, Gilbert E. Arnold; and secretary, Howard Crooks.

Minor Damage in West-End Blaze

Prompt action on the part of Lachute firefighters averted the loss of a small frame dwelling on George Street, at the west extremity of Bedard Boulevard, shortly before 9 p.m. last Saturday. The blaze, which started from a defective chimney, occurred in the attic, causing only moderate damage. The property is owned by Alcide Paul and situated at the rear of his home.

Nursing Sister Arrives Home

Having sailed on the Ile de France, Nursing Sister Betty Clunie arrived home here on Monday. "Thrilled to be home" is her enthusiastic verdict, after two years overseas serving with the 2nd Canadian General Hospital Unit, R.C.A.M.C., in England and Belgium.

Nursing Sister Clunie, who has volunteered for service in the Pacific, is enjoying a 30-day furlough at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Clunie.

RATION COUPONS FOR AMERICAN TOURISTS

Regatta, Official Clubhouse Opening At Lake Louisa

On the occasion of the Lake Louisa annual regatta, a factor very gratifying to the residents this year was the convenience afforded by their new clubhouse. Sports events were held Saturday afternoon off the lakeshore at Liberty Hall, newly acquired property of the Lake Louisa Country Club; and in view of the cool weather and high breeze, the clubhouse was especially appreciated for the facilities it provided. The occasion also marked the official opening of the property.

Lady residents co-operated enthusiastically to cater for the crowd, and the dining room presented a cheerful scene. Later the room was cleared for dancing, and the evening frolic was well attended. Presentation of prizes for the regatta events was also made at ths clubhouse during the evening.

Credit is due to the committees, of both ladies and gentlemen, who have lent their efforts to this venture. The Club is an outcome of the old Lake Louisa Fish and Game Club, which has operated, for mutual interest but not for social purposes, for many years. The aim of the promoters is to provide wholesome recreation for the youth of this summer colony — and the number of young people already frequenting the spot augurs well for the fulfilment of this purpose.

Winners of the regatta events are published on page eight.

Autos in Collision

A Robertson taxi driven by Alfred Lemay was damaged Saturday forenoon in collision with another Lachute car driven by Andre Plouffe, opposite the memorial park. Five persons were in the latter car, while the driver was the sole occupant of the taxi. No injuries were suffered.

The taxi driver informed Police Chief Villeneuve that he was misled by the direction of a Montreal car, travelling west ahead of him as if to cross Barron's Bridge; the car veered left around Main Street and the taximan, in swerving to avoid it, met the Plouffe car travelling in the opposite direction.

Evil can speak in any language, but so can decency.

EX-SLAVE WORKERS

The Zoological Gardens at Hamburg, which during the war with Germany had been used by the enemy firm of Blohn and Voss as a camp to house their forced labor, was taken over by the British Military Government for a Displaced Persons Assembly Centre. German authorities estimated that there were 45,000 Displaced Persons in Hamburg, but later the Military Government revised that figure to 120,000. . . . Above, two families, the Klareckas and the Wasteruks, receive a card with their names and Polish addresses at the registration table.

POLICE CHASE RIVALS MOVIE CRIME STORY

In many details rivalling a manhunt in the movie style — the fugitive hurtling from a taxi, swimming the river to escape, and finally being arrested in his under-pants — a chase starting on the Main Street here Monday afternoon was witnessed by many onlookers.

Winner of the event was Police Chief D. Villeneuve, who, though sorely taxed in the wind, proved himself sound of limb and equal in wits to his more youthful quarry.

Cause of the trouble was 21-year-old Fernand Laframboise — who was allegedly crazed with whatever it takes to get that way. Known in these parts, but latterly employed by a Dorval construction firm, he was creating a disturbance in the lunch car on Main Street when Chief Villeneuve was called to the scene. The young man was led away to a taxi. Here he became surprisingly docile; and when the accompanying policeman slightly relaxed his grip, Laframboise broke loose and jumped from the moving vehicle, rolling over and over on the pavement. He then took to his heels, and the officer gave chase, through back lanes and sidestreets, finally losing track of the fugitive on the north side of Main.

Continuing the hunt, Chief Villeneuve was informed the man had jumped into the North River at the foot of Harriet Street and had swum across. On the north bank he had been seen entering a summer cottage. . . . Choosing a less spectacular detour, the officer drove by car west across Barron's Bridge and reached the Staniforth property — now E. K. Wilson's farm — by road, then stealthily approached the camp. . . Having broken in by the front entrance, Laframboise, on discovering he was pursued, broke out by the rear and ran toward the mountain, clad only in his shorts. It was in this unconventional attire he was brought to the town jail — Chief Villeneuve having caught up with the culprit and handcuffed him.

It was found the man had discarded his wet clothes and was searching the cottage for suitable garments. . . . Incidentally, this same property, belonging to Theron Carpenter, was the scene of recent robberies, and the stolen goods had only just been restored to their owner. Mr. Carpenter, who is here on holiday, was absent from the camp when this second entry was made; he was not very happy about the whole affair.

Arraigned before a J.P. at St. Jerome, the prisoner was slated for trial August 28 before District Magistrate D. Lalande, facing three charges, namely, of disturbing the peace, of resisting a public officer, and of breaking and entering with intent to steal — the latter charge being laid by Provincial Police. Bail of $300 was allowed, but having no one to sponsor him for this amount the prisoner was detained in jail at St. Jerome.

Chaplain, Former Pastor at Arundel Died in Italy

Arundel — A memorial service for Capt. the Rev. George H. Wolfendale, M.B.E., chaplain of the First Canadian Corps troops, R.C.E., was held in Grace Church on Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Frank Hughes. Brethren from the Masonic Lodge here, of which the Rev. Wolfendale was a member, attended the service in a body. Mr. Wolfendale was incumbent of this parish for a few years prior to the war and his enlistment in the chaplain service.

German prison-of-war records now in the hands of Allied officials, have revealed that Capt. Wolfendale died in hospital near Perrugia, Italy. He was reported missing on May 15, 1944, and subsequent reports show that he died a month later.

Besides his wife, the former Florence Foy, of Golden Lake, Ont., he is survived by two children, Hope, aged ten, and Glen, aged seven.

Sixty years after, Robert G. Jackson of Indian Head, Sask., survivor of the Indian battles, has just been presented with the Riel Rebellion Medal for his services. . . . Who can match this? Mrs. Edward Letang, 95, showed the folks how to step dance at her birthday party in Arnprior, Ont. . . . Wiarton, Ont., has the most novel animals; the other day folks at the beach were surprised to see a cat amble down to the water, plunge in and go for a swim. . . . The meanest man in the world, claims the P.E.I. WEEK BRINGS SENSATIONAL TURNS IN PACIFIC CONFLICT

Developments in War with Japs

Avid news readers — who, on the termination of hostilities in Europe, speculated what stories might now merit the front page headlines — must have found the Pacific conflict fraught this week with world-rocking sensations. Prime developments of the last few days are reviewed by Canadian Press in these two brief versions, special to the weekly newspapers:

Canada Had Part In Atomic Bomb

The atomic bomb, the most devastating destructive force ever invented by man, rocked Japan this week and in the opinion of many observers may shorten the war by speeding acceptance by Japanese leaders of the Allies' unconditional surrender ultimatum. President Truman announced in Washington that the first atomic bomb was dropped on the Japanese Army Base of Hiroshima early Tuesday. Exact estimates of the damage caused by the new weapon were not available because of the dense cloud of dust which shielded the city from allied observers and the non-committal enemy admission of "great damage" broadcast by Tokyo radio. A second bomb was dropped, with observations giving more accurate indications of the immense damage.

The bomb, in whose discovery Canadian science and Canadian uranium played a part, packs a wallop more violent than 2,000 B-29 Superfortresses normally can hand an enemy city. Its force is said to be equal to that of 20,000 tons of T.N.T. War Secretary Stimson said the potential force of the new bomb "staggers the imagination" and added that it would "prove a tremendous aid" in hastening the enemy's capitulation.

President Truman said in his announcement that the Japanese had rejected the surrender ultimatum issued by the allies at Potsdam. This ultimatum, he said, was intended to spare the Japanese people from "utter destruction".

Because of their removal from scenes of enemy action, the United States and Canada were chosen by the Allies as the scenes of the experiments which culminated in the development of the atomic bomb. A pilot plant in connection with production of the new bomb is nearing completion in the Petawawa area of Ontario. Uranium, basic element in production of the atomic bomb, was ensured by the Canadian Government's expropriation of the Eldorado Mine and refining development near Great Bear Lake.

Russia At War With Japanese

Official and unofficial Ottawa agreed with Prime Minister MacKenzie King that yesterday's announcement of Russia's declaration of war on Japan was about the greatest news since the end of the war in Europe.

There was also an agreement that Russia's entry into the war and the effects of atomic bombs dropped on Japanese cities would hasten the end of the war.

"Next to the announcement Monday that an atomic bomb was dropped on a Japanese city, this is the greatest announcement since V-E Day," Mr. King told newspapermen.

Though Russia's declaration of war on Japan swiftly followed the Potsdam Big Three conference, it was greeted by many London political observers as the triumphant outcome of early diplomatic spadework by former Prime Minister Churchill and the late President Roosevelt.

Foreign Commissar Molotov said in Moscow the declaration was made at the request of "Allied governments." However, there was no direct reference to the Far East in the Potsdam communique, and this led British commentators to say the agreement on Soviet intervention probably was made at a much earlier date.

Tokyo radio said last night that the Soviet army suddenly launched an attack against Japanese forces on the Soviet Manchukuo border early Thursday morning, Japanese time.

A communique released by Kwangtung Army headquarters reported the Soviet army suddenly opened the attack against Japanese forts with its ground forces.

Simultaneously, the communique stated, a small number of Soviet aircraft started bombing attacks on Manchukuo territory.

Irishman Goes Down in Defeat

Dr. Richard Monahan's venture into federal politics was followed with interest in these parts, at least by the many who knew him during his brief practice as a physician in Lachute. The fate of the red-headed Irishman, running as an Independent Liberal against Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the Glengarry by-election, is now a well known story.

Mr. King received a landslide majority in the voting. Returns from the complete 43 polls gave the Prime Minister 4,623 votes against 327 for the Sharbot Lake, Ont., doctor.

Local interest was perhaps intensified by the proximity of the riding, which is across the Ottawa River from Argenteuil County. Following announcement of the results late Monday night, it was reported Dr. Monahan "could not be reached for his comment upon the outcome".

YUMMIE!

Winnipeg (CP) — Winnipeg dogs have developed an embarrassing taste for leg paint. More than one unsuspecting girl has had her pseudo stockings partially licked off by hungry canines here recently.

Sunburn Remedies

(Windsor Star)

There are as many cures for sunburn as there are days in the year. Some claim the best thing to do is get all rubbed up with some sort of salve or grease.

The hardy pioneers claim that only tends to make a person fry in the heat and the real way to beat the sun is to take it and get tanned and then go about and boast to others of your dark skin. Old-fashioned people still cling to the idea tea leaves are as good as anything.

Of course, there is one sure way to avoid the pain of extreme sunburn. That is to pick out a nice shade tree, get a comfortable chair and a long, cooling cooler and enjoy the day out of the rays of the burning sun. Of course that may be too sensible an idea for a vacation.

True religion is not "the opiate of the people," but its very opposite. It produces not a trance but an advance.

APPLE CROP DOWN

Hamilton, Ont. (CP) The late drop of apples from trees has reduced the Ontario crop prospect for this year to less than 20 per cent of normal, R. L. Scott, manager of a local cold storage and distributing company, said following a tour of the province.

Claims Ceiling Prices Some Quebec Farm Products Too Low

Following complaints on the recent scarcity of potatoes in this province, Hon. Laurent Barré, Quebec Minister of Agriculture, made a statement to the press which reads in part as follows:

"Is the scarcity of the popular tuber due to black market activities, hoarding or even wastefulness — as claimed by one newspaper? The answer to such questions must be given by those who hold the levers of food control.

"But, in connection with this abnormal situation, there are certain points I want to touch upon.

"First, it must be known the provincial government has absolutely no direct control on rationing and ceiling prices. Those who have assumed the discretionary power to fix prices without consulting the interested parties must bear the direct or indirect consequences of their decisions. The Minister of Agriculture and the Quebec Government have no responsibility whatever in that matter.

"Secondly, it is obvious that too low ceilings, threatening prosecutions and fines, may obstruct or prevent the sale and distribution of certain products. We must admit that ceiling prices cannot make compulsory the production or sale of any product below cost.

"Thirdly, the majority of Quebec's agricultural products, under the present conditions, have ceilings below the cost of production. . . . . Moreover, ceilings on some Quebec grown products have been applied to the advantage of profiteers, dealers or importers. This holds true especially for hay and cheese.

"As far as hay is concerned, I emphatically state it is impossible to grow, harvest, bale and deliver this forage at the present prices and restrictions without unjustly exploiting the farmer and his family.

"The cheese ceiling is obviously too low. Those who took the authority to fix prices should establish a reasonable price for our cheese, without asking the Quebec Government to tax the people at large to pay a premium which would be nothing else but a gift to consumers outside of Canada."

Late Summer Egg Production

(Experimental Farm News)

To dispose of the bird that has ceased to lay is good practise in mid-summer of the year, but if the culling of the flock is carried too far it may prove to be expensive, says W. T. Scott, Head Poultryman, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

To some extent the overhead investment in labor, buildings and equipment remains the same and when this is not utilized to the utmost, then the margin of profit is proportionly reduced.

The prevailing demand for poultry meat has encouraged heavy culling of the poultry flocks, but the old axiom, "You can't eat your pudding and have it," was never more true than it is in the present situation of good prices and a ready demand for fresh eggs.

A falling off in egg yield is to be expected during the hot season but many birds that moult or cease to lay might continue in profitable production if given a little extra attention during this critical period.

The Growth of An Idea

Londonderry, in Northern Ireland, has long been a port of call for British, Canadian and American warships on North Atlantic transport duty. Lazing on the backwaters of the River Foyle, half a day's run from the sea, it is a haven where sailors rest after arduous days and nights at sea.

But sailors don't rest for long and are constantly searching for new forms of entertainment. So it is not surprising that from Londonderry should come a story of something different in the way of recreation that the sailors started for themselves and that has been backed by the Canadian Red Cross.

Lieut. Ross E. Hamilton, R.C.N.-V.R., of Saskatoon, drafted the original plans for this activity. To some Canadian tars he sold the idea of making things for themselves and he furnished them with the materials — some insignificant items — bits of colored string, pieces of felt and leather, needles and thread. But these five articles now are the basis of a booming recreational business, and Lieut. Hamilton describes the response of the sailors as "terrific".

The boys went back to their ships and started making such things as belts and naval crests. Their shipmates picked up the idea and soon the demand for materials was so great that it could not be met. Canadian sailors were reviving the ancient art of handicraft as an antidote for wasted leisure hours and were getting a big thrill out of it.

An appeal to the Canadian Red Cross brought immediate results. To Londonderry went 26 large packing cases of tools and materials to keep this activity going. And into the picture stepped a trained Red Cross diversional therapist, Miss Gina Raymond.

With little more than an infectious personality and an indefatigable devotion to duty, Miss Raymond went to work to build up an industry with tonic value for seagoing men and by means of which they could fill their idle minutes in a useful and pleasant manner.

Canadian born, she has lived in England since 1930. She joined the Canadian Red Cross in 1942, took her handicraft trainning at schools in Birmingham and London and then went on duty at Taplow and Horley military hospitals. She next moved to London headquarters to start work on diversional therapy for Canadian prisoners of war in Germany and Italy.

This latter work was in the form of a correspondence course system. Parcels containing an average of one sample and material for ten pieces of work were despatched to the prisoners and in one year over a thousand parcels a month were made up.

In Londonderry, with the assistance of Inst. Lieut. George Hart, R.C.N.V.R., Miss Raymond obtained the use of a large storeroom over the dockyard chapel. These two scrubbed and painted the room and opened a handicraft schoolroom that has since been operating six days a week and four nights.

Waste Land Now Scene of Productivity

A long line of tractor-driven binders moves across Britain's biggest wheat field. Formerly "derelict" land, unplowed for 20 years, this 400-acre stretch of the Sussex Downs was reclaimed for war crops. Girls of the Women's Land Army are seen operating the tractors.

Canadian Farmers First To Get DDT. For Insect Control

Canadian farmers are among the first civilians in the world to have the opportunity of buying a DDT insecticide for use in insect control.

Until recently DDT was restricted almost entirely to military use in controlling lice, mosquitoes, flies and other disease-carrying insects in combat areas. Production of DDT in Canada not required for such purpose, has made this new development possible. Priority was given to the use of DDT in the form of a barn spray as being of value in increasing food production, a vital need at the present time.

The Department explains that DDT barn or stable spray is a residual spray and should not be sprayed into the air as an ordinary fly spray, but should be applied to walls, ceilings and other surfaces frequented by flies and other insects, in a fairly coarse spray sufficient to wet the surface without allowing too much run-off. The deposit of DDT left on the treated surfaces after the liquid carrier has evaporated may continue to kill flies and mosquitoes that come in contact with it for several weeks after the application.

The Department says that DDT spray must not be applied to live stock, as the chemical is a poison and in oil solution is absorbed through the skin. Care should also be taken not to spray it on foodstuffs. The person applying the spray should avoid wetting his own skin, as far as possible, by wearing protective clothing and by washing exposed parts thoroughly in soap and water as soon as the spraying is finished.

The DDT barn sprays have been prepared specially for use in farm buildings such as cattle barns, horse stables, piggeries, and are not intended for household use, says the Department.

Our mistakes can only be profitable when we've paid back what they cost the other fellow.

Pupils See Chicks Hatched in School

Chicago (CP) — Bessie, the little red hen at Ray Elementary School here, set for 21 days in kindergarten class until her brood of chicks had hatched.

The 54 children in school fed her and cared for her. When the first two chicks picked their way out, one of the little boys said, "Gee, it doesn't look as though they came out of those shells, does it?"

It was all part of a plan instituted by Mrs. Alva McCormick, kindergarten teacher, to teach her city-reared class the story of "the little red hen".

Her husband went to a farm near Chicago and borrowed Bessie, a Rhode Island Red hen which was ready to set. He prepared a nest for her which was placed in the classroom.

The children sing a song about the little red hen and act out the story. They have honored Bessie by drawing pictures of her and her chicks.

Meanwhile, Bessie and her family are being returned to the farm.

Mrs. McCormick reports that the experiment was a success, for the children learned to love the little red hen in real life.

FRENCH COWS KILLED

Destruction of milk cows has been high in certain parts of France, particularly in Normandy and eastern coastal areas where the fighting was heavy. It is estimated that Normandy lost about 80,000 cows and that 50,000 were killed in the eastern districts.

STINGLESS BEES

Squamish (CP) — Beekeepers in Squamish Valley claim they have found a non-stinging variety of bee, free from disease and producing high quality honey. William Freedman, honey producers' official, said even a child can handle the beehive frames without protection.

If we are out for ourselves first, it should not surprise us if those who represent us in politics do not place themselves last.

CAPTAIN R. W. McMURRAY, formerly manager of the Canadian Pacific's British Columbia Coast Steamships Service, who was recently appointed managing director of the Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited, with headquarters at Montreal. He succeeds Captain Edmund Aikman, R.D., R.N.R., retired.

British Weatherman Has Difficult Job

London (CP) — Britain's meteorologists have come to the conclusion that the only accurate forecast they can make is that it will be colder in wintertime than in summer.

The British Isles, according to Air Ministry meteorological experts, lie in a "no man's land" as far as climatic conditions are concerned. Half a dozen different sorts of weather can swoop down on Britain at any time and "met" experts cannot forecast accurately for more than 36 hours in advance.

"Nearly any sort of weather can crop up regardless of season, except extreme heat in winter or snow in summer," an offical said.

Tuberculosis A Major Problem in Greenland

Tuberculosis is a major public health problem in Greenland, but venereal diseases are well controlled, it is reported in an item in a recent issue of "Public Health Reports" — published by the U.S. Public Health Service.

Tuberculosis has existed in Greenland, as in Iceland, for centuries, and it is suggested that the high incidence among the Eskimos probably is partly due to a constitutional racial weakness; but doubtless other factors, such as overcrowding in family living quarters, are also important in favoring the spread of the infection.

The annual death rate is estimated at approximately 550 per 100,000, about 10 times the Canadian tuberculosis death rate.

However, the report notes that conditions with respect to TB control are much better than in previous years.

On the other hand, syphilis does not exist among the natives due to strict regulations governing visitors. The report says a few cases of gonorrhea are reported scattered along the coast but the disease is not a serious health problem. The natives are co-operative in seeking treatment.

Suspend Inquiry Service In Germany and Austria

The inquiry, cable and mail-forwarding services of the International Committee of the Red Cross are temporarily suspended in Germany and Austria, according to advice received by the Quebec Provincial Division, from Geneva.

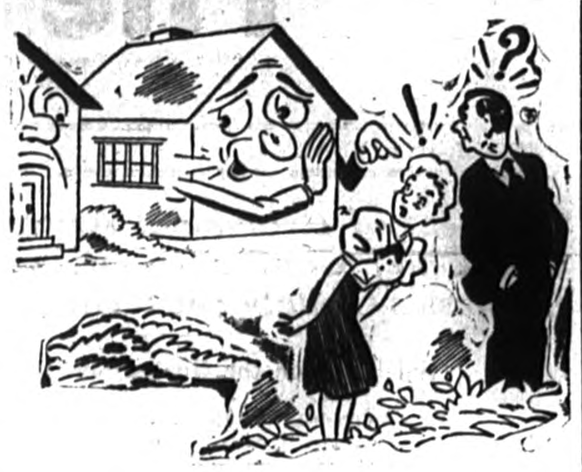

For the time being, all inquiries regarding persons in these countries are necessarily being returned to the senders and it is requested that no more be made. Geneva is keeping close check on the situation and any possibility of its improvement will be announced, through the newspapers, without delay.

Oddly enough, it takes a warm heart to cool a hot temper.

The New Governor-General

THE MAN who forged victories for the Allies on the sands of North Africa and on the plains and mountains of Italy is coming to Canada next spring as the 17th Governor-General since confederation.

Announcement of the appointment of Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander to succeed the Earl of Athlone as the King's representative in the Dominion was made simultaneously in London and Ottawa. Prime Minister MacKenzie King expressed pleasure that the 53-year-old marshal had found it possible to accept the post.

Educated at Harrow and Sandhurst, the son of an Irish peer, the distinguished soldier and stategist of two wars will arrive early next year with 37-year-old Lady Alexander. She is believed to be the youngest wife of a Governor-General since confederation.

Sir Harold was behind Montgomery's victory in North Africa and behind the winning smashes in Italy. His military strategy has always been one of attack but he has known retreats too. It was he who directed the historic Dunkerque evacuation.

As military men put it, his appointment will be most pleasing to those of the armed forces and especially those Canadians who fought under him in Italy.

He's back in Italy now after a recent visit to England, and Canada won't see him until after the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice have left. It is expected there may be a longer interval than usual between the departure of the Earl and the arrival of the new Governor-General.

A Story to Chew On

PRESENT-DAY advancements in medicine will achieve one thing with certainty — that is, to boost the expectancy of life. The only fly in the ointment is the strain of keeping wise to these scientific strides — a danger that, far from prolonging life among those of average intellect, the pace will wear them ragged.

Here's another instance to shock your toothless grandmother. The story is from Britain :

Faulty teeth have been extracted and replaced to grow again by British surgeons of St. Mary's, the famous London hospital and birthplace of penicillin. This new treatment in dentistry has been successfully applied to abcesses and root infection. In one case, the tooth was extracted, the infected ends of the roots were cut off, the pulp canals filled, and the tooth replaced in the sockets, which had been treated with penicillin to receive them. Five months after the tooth had been replaced, bone had reformed round the roots. The tooth was so firm that it was made to carry a missing neighboring tooth on a bridge.

Wake Up to Possibilities

FULFILLING an election promise, Premier Drew has established a new branch of government in Ontario — a Department of Recreation and Tourist Development, which as evidence of its practical procedure is now considering the licensing, regulation and inspection of all tourist establishments in the province.

Having had our fill of regimentation in the recent years, we may justly "view with alarm" any further hint of government controls. Yet through observation in our restricted travels, we have been painfully aware that some system of inspection is called for in summer cabin and tourist developments.

Tourism, as an industry, is as bright and promising as any other in the post-war picture. In fact, fostered along lines of service rather than greed, it is a reasonably certain bonanza in the immediate future of this country. Nor is revenue accruing from this trade confined to the immediate caterers. Its profits are shared by producers and services all along the line. In the words of the Midland Free Press :

"Tourist traffic is merely a sub-division of the goods and services which go to make up the total volume of trade between nations. Many persons have the same difficulty in realizing this as they have in believing that exports of grain from the prairies affect the income of fishermen in Nova Scotia, or that the success of our commercial service in finding a market abroad for products of the factories in Quebec has its repercussion on the welfare of families on the Pacific coast. Not everybody comes into direct contact with the tourist traffic. Everyone knows that hotels, railroads, airlines, restaurants, and curio shops draw part of their revenue from the tourists, but actually the payments made by tourists for services and goods reach down through the whole economy."

Organized hotel and restaurant men are urging a federally appointed minister to concentrate on the tourist business — one who might combine these duties with others, maybe, but who would definitely be responsible. "It is high time that governmental promotion and assistance in attracting tourists was taken out of the distinctly secondary place to which it has been relegated by provincial and Dominion governments in Canada."

As stated above, we shall regard with suspicion any extension of control on private business; but here, in the instance of the tourist trade, we believe some judicious campaigning from a central source might pay good dividends.

Manufacturer's Note

OF INTEREST to long suffering gardeners is a new-fangled potion — a "revolutionary selective weed killer" — for which the manufacturers are making commendably conservative claims. That any such antidote, applied to one's lawn, could leave the grass of velvet green unharmed, while venting its violence on the bindweed, burdock and dandelion, is an idea nothing short of revolutionary, like the figment of a gardener's dream.

This new magic is in production by the same company as DDT, the wartime insecticide which is now coming into civilian distribution and awaiting the verdict of its users. . . . We, personally, have nothing to sell, and it is purely for your enlightenment that we cite the following claims :

"Sprayed on affected areas, this herbicide is absorbed through the leaves of the weeds and carried through the branches into the farthest root tip. Ordinary concentrations do not affect most grasses. Just what happens inside the stem is not known, but apparently it either breaks down the cell walls or paralyzes them so they can't function. Weeds so treated show signs of trouble within a day, and in the course of time wither and die. . . . Up to the present it is known the solution will definitely kill more than 30 varieties of weeds including bindweed, burdock, dandelion, and perennial saw thistle. . . . It is expected to have a wide application for lawns, golf courses, railroad right-of-ways, parks and playgrounds, airfields, dry yards, and as a selective herbicide for small grains. Production of experimental quantities has commenced and these will be available to organizations interested in horticultural and agricultural research, to colleges, schools and societies. It is anticipated the herbicide will be released for general use next spring."

PUBLIC eating places are not prohibited from serving canned "pork and beans" on Tuesday and Friday, meatless days, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced. — Which, as regards the pork in this concoction, would seem to answer that age-old query: if any, how much?

WE CAN'T figure out what will be done to use up gasoline when the war is entirely over. Between the Normandy invasion and the surrender of Germany approximately 5,000,000 gallons of gasoline, oil and lubricants were delivered daily to army depots and air bases on the European continent.

Re-establishment Facts

● It's nice to have the facts straight on any subject, and when it comes to the re-establishment of the men and women who have served their country in uniform in the difficult days that are behind us, and the difficult days ahead . . . well, it's doubly important that we get things straight.

And that is the reason that the Rehabilitation Information Committee, with the assistance of the Wartime Information Board, is putting such stress on booklets dealing with the question of re-establishment.

The first of the booklets, "The Common-sense of Re-establishment", lately off the press is yours for the asking. A copy may be obtained by writing to the Distribution Section, Wartime Information Board, Ottawa.

"The Common Sense of Re-establishment" is just what its title implies — a straightforward, easy-to-read summary of re-habilitation. Its 38 pages contain pretty well everything the ordinary citizen needs to know about the subject. Adding to its appeal are bright, witty illustrations that serve to point up the message the printed word conveys.

• • •

A Quick Glance

● Let's take a quick glance through the booklet. It takes you, step-by-step, briefly through the re-establishment machinery. Having explained this, the booklet tells about "Getting the Old Job Back," "Getting a New Job," educational grants, vocational training, land settlement grants, combining a small holding with commercial fishing, owning your own home, establishing a small business, getting tools or equipment or working capital, government insurance. . . . . in fact, all the phases of rehabilitation.

India's Contribution

● Glancing through another booklet, "India at War," issued by the British Information Services, I learned a good many things about India's war effort. I found out, for instance, that the pre-war strength of the Indian army was 182,000, and today it is more than 2,000,000. For three and one-half years recruitment has been at the rate of 50,000 to 60,000 a month. The personnel of the Royal Indian Navy has increased from 1,200 officers and men at the time of the outbreak of war to nearly 30,000 by the beginning of 1944.

The Indian Air Force has also made wonderful advances. The booklet also details India's industrial effort, which is also surprising.

India has contributed £29,000,000 worth of reciprocal aid to the United States and is a principal supplier of mica. Other important Indian materials exported are manganese, shellac, talc, beryl and kyanite.

Safer Travelling With Radar

● Radar, which has been a priceless wartime asset, bids fair to bring a greater measure of safety into peacetime living. Peacetime uses for radar may prevent airplanes from crashing into mountain sides, reduce shipwrecks and collisions, avert many tragic railway accidents and eventually render lighthouses unnecessary.

It is only recently that the veil of secrecy was torn from radar, the "magic eye" which locates moving targets despite fog, cloud, darkness or distance. Canada has played an outstanding part in making this weapon for Allied nations. For instance, the government-owned Research Enterprises Limited produced radar and optical instruments valued at more than $200,000,000.

The way radar works may be beyond the understanding of us laymen. But we do know that it played an important role in the Battle of Britain; in bottling up the Italian navy; in operations in Italy, Normandy, the Philippines and Iwo Jima.

"It's better to be fifty than forty," said a man just turned that age, "for forty is the old age of youth while fifty is the youth of old age.

A man and his wife hiking in the woods, suddenly realized they had lost their way.

"I wish Emily Post were here with us," said the woman. "I think we took the wrong fork."

The chaplain had just preached a powerful sermon on the Ten Commandments, sending at least one private away in a serious mood. He eventually brightened up, however. "Anyway," he said. "I have never made a graven image."

Lady: You look strong enough to work and earn a living.

Tramp: Yes, ma'am and you look beautiful enough to go on the stage. But we both prefer to lead a quiet life.

A flapper was watching drill. Suddenly a rifle volley rang out. With a scream the girl shrank back into the arms of a private who was standing behind her.

"Oh!" she stammered blushingly,"I was so frightened by the rifle fire. Won't you please forgive me?"

"Most certainly" replied the quick-witted private. "Let's go over and watch the artillery."

SEE WHITE MEN FOR FIRST TIME

Drought Forces Central Australia Natives Into Railway Town

Perth, Australia (CP) — A group of 15 men, women and children in Western Australia recently saw white people for the first time in their lives.

They are uncivilized natives who were forced by the drought to move into Ooldea on the trans-Australian railway, from the unexplored spinifex regions of central Australia.

Ooldea, in the sandhills on the eastern fringe of the Nullabor Plain, is 500 miles east of Kalgoorlie.

When the Ooldea missionary attempted to touch him, one lad in his 'teens fled screaming. Totally naked, the natives had to be taught what clothes were and how to wear them.

All were amazed when, for the first time, they saw houses, horses and carts, water from a tap and a motor truck. They were terrified when they saw the train.

WELCOME HOME

Stettler, Alta. (CP) — Sgt. Patrick, prisoner of war in Germany since Dieppe, will find his farm home all ready for him when he returns to it. Forty neighbors painted his house, cultivated his garden and mowed his lawn in preparation for his home-coming.

Plan, if you can, to avoid telephoning the city during week-ends.

Laurentian resorts are crowded and existing facilities cannot be increased right now to take care of the "peak" telephone traffic which builds up each week-end.

On mid-week calls we suggest you arrange to telephone Montreal before 6 p.m.* or else later in the evening and avoid the daily peak period, 6 to 8 p.m.

*Rates are the same, day and night, from points within 40 miles of downtown Montreal, so it costs no more to place your call before 6 o'clock.

PRICE CONTROL AND RATIONING

DISTILLERS' CORN GOING FOR FOOD

Approximately 250,000 bushels of corn held by distillers have been diverted for use in manufacturing essential food products, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced.

Some of the corn diverted to food processing was in distillers' warehouses and has been shipped to manufacturers of corn syrup, corn starch and other food products.

The Board's "freeze" on shipments and sales of corn by elevators in the specified areas is still in effect so that the policy of diverting remaining supplies to most essential uses can be continued.

TREE FRUIT CEILINGS ANNOUNCED BY BOARD

The price of peaches, plums and pears of the 1945 crop has been set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Only change from the 1944 level is an increase of five cents a basket in the growers' price for No. 1 Ontario grown peaches. The order applies to both imported and domestic peaches and domestic plums from August 6 for imported plums and domestic pears from August 13, and for imported pears August 20.

VETERANS HAVE FIRST CALL ON W.P.T.B.

Veterans of the armed services will have a top priority rating on on the services and attention of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials when seeking advice or guidance in re-establishing themselves in civil life, Montreal region veterans were told at a meeting held between Board representatives and army personnel now being demobilized.

The meeting was the first in a series to be held at the Montreal demobilization centre on Queen Mary Road under the auspices of the Army educational service. The meetings are being held to explain to returning servicemen how the WPTB has functioned during the war and is still operating to guard Canada against inflation. The talk was given by Thomas T. Topping, former war correspondent for AP and a Canadian veteran of the last war.

Questions by the veterans revealed a particular interest in WPTB regulations on rentals and re-establishment in business.

69th Anniversary Of the Canadian Red Cross Soc'y

It is an interesting fact that 60 years ago the Canadian Red Cross flag was first flown in Canada. Since that time the brilliant red swmbol on the immaculate white background has become as familiar to us in our Dominion as our own national flag.

Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, an assistant surgeon with the Royal Grenadiers at the time of the Northwestern Rebellion in 1885, improvised the first Red Cross flag, which is still preserved in the museum of the Toronto Public Library.

Dr. Ryerson, who became a leading figure in Canadian medicine and a leading figure in the Canadian Red Cross, first used the flag to distinguish the spring seat wagon he used for stretcher cases of wounded from the transport vehicles of the Grenadiers.

In the engagements of Fish Creek in April 1885 and later, in May, at the Battle of Batoche, the Red Cross flag was much in evidence.

Now, with the end of actual fighting in Europe, Canadians who have so generoausly supported the financial campaigns of the Canadian Red Cross have the satisfactory reward of knowing that they have oversubscribed each of these appeals for funds. During these war years, throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, a flag, once rarely seen, has become a familiar sight.

This strength of good against the devastation of war is the International Red Cross itself, which was founded in Geneva, Switzerland, eighty-two years ago. The background of history of the organization shows that in 1859 Jean Henri Dunant, a citizen of Switzerland, was by the merest chance an eye-witness to the terrible suffering of 40,000 wounded men left on the battlefield of Solforino where the armies of France had fought the Austrians. Dunant helped as much as he could, with the aid of local villagers, to relieve the unspeakable sufferings of the wounded and, later, appealed to humanity through his short book which he called "Memories of Solforino" and in which he drafted out the original plan for a world-wide organization that would devote its entire work to the care of those who suffered from the ravages of war.

Henri Dunant's personal efforts, through the sacrifice of his own fortune and energies, brought the leading powers of Europe to a conference in Geneva in 1863 and the next year the plan was adopted. The Swiss flag in reverse — a red cross on a field of white — was chosen as the insignia and the dream of Henri Dunant had at last come true. The Red Cross had been born.

As year followed year, more nations became members until today 72 are active members. The original work soon grew to include prisoners of war as well as the care of refugees and the people of devastated areas. Since 1919 the field has again widened to include all people suffering from disasters such as fire, floods, famine in peacetime as well as in war.

Pretty Wedding in United Church

Hamilton - Berry

The marriage of Gwenyth Thelma, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmert Berry, of Lachute, Que., to William Edgar Hamilton, son of Mrs. Margaret Hamilton and the late Mr. Joseph Hamilton, of Brownsburg, Que., took place at 4 o'clock on Saturday, August 4, in the Lachute United Church, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiating. Mr. W. M. Steeves played the wedding music and Miss Mae Gordon sang "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register. Ferns and garden flowers decorated the church.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of triple sheer with lace insertions on long torso lines, with a full skirt, a sweetheart neckline and long, tapering sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a heart-shaped headdress and she carried a bouquet of pink Briarcliffe roses, her only ornament being a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. William Campbell, as matron of honor, and by Miss Margaret Hamilton, the bridegroom's sister, as bridesmaid. Miss Lynda Silverson, cousin of the bride, and Miss Linda Murdoch, niece of the bridegroom, were flower girls.

Sergeant Edwin Hamilton, of the R.C.A.F., acted as best man for his brother, while Messrs. James Murdoch and Campbell Paterson were ushers.

The matron of honor wore a floor-length gown of turquoise sheer with matching hat, and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli. The bridesmaid wore a pink sheer gown with matching hat and carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

The flower girls wore similar dresses of flowered organdy, with bandeaux of flowers on their hair, and carried nosegays of sweet peas.

Mrs. Berry, mother of the bride, wore a heavenly blue dress of façonne crepe with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Hamilton, mother of the bridegroom, wore a flowered mauve silk jersey dress with white accessories, and had a corsage of white sweet peas.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall, the decorations being in pink and white; the bride's table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake. About 75 guests were present

Later the bridal couple left for Quebec City on their honeymoon, the bride travelling in a Chartreuse wool dressmaker suit and brown accessories, with a corsage of gladioli. On their return they will reside in Brownsburg.

Out-of-town guests were from Montreal, Summerstown, Rosemere and Morin Heights.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of organza with sweetheart neckline and long tight sleeves. Her veil of matching tulle illusion was held by white flowers, and she carried a bouquet of pink and red roses.

The bride's attendants were Miss Clare Welden, of Grenville, and Miss Clare Grecco, of Ottawa. . . Miss Welden wore a floor-length dress of dark mauve chiffon with matching headdress and shoulder-length veil, and carried a nosegay of white and mauve flowers, while Miss Grecco wore a pink taffeta floor-length dress with matching headdress and shoulder-length veil; she carried pink roses and baby's breath.

The bride's only cousin, Annabella Dewar, acted as flower-girl, wearing a tight-fitted bodice and full floor-length dress of yellow crepe trimmed with purple bows; she carried a nosegay of purple pansies, and wore a headdress to match.

Gnr. Willis Crooks, R.C.N.V.R., was best man, the ushers being the bride's two brothers, Pte. Rodney Dewar and Mr. Allan Dewar.

Mrs. Dewar, the bride's mother, wore a street-length dress of sand and white crepe with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents. The young couple left for the Seigniory Club, Montebello, later proceeding to Montreal. For travelling, the bride wore a flowered silk jersey dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom is on furlough, after four years' service, and is returning shortly for operational duty in the Pacific theatre of war.

FIGHT TO PRESERVE ENGLISH WAR TOWN

Hawthorn, Eng. (CP)—This Wiltshire community of 5,000 is fighting against the prospect of becoming a "ghost town".

Five years ago Hawthorn was created from nothing when workers and their families were transported to this uninhabited part of the country to work in a war plant which had been established. Now the war work is finished.

The government offers little hope for the town's future. The Ministry of Labor says "there is plenty of work elsewhere" and lets it go at that. The Board of Trade says it can see no prospect of a peacetime industry being established there.

But the padre, the Rev. E. R. Brown, asks: "Why should this young and vigorous community die? Much money has been spent, various developments have been made, social services have been built up — all of which could be turned to good account."

The parish council clerk comments: "If these people go away we shall have a derelict area in our midst. . . . We cannot understand how the government, having spent millions on Hawthorn, is apparently content to let it all go down the drain." He fears Hawthorn may become a distressed area.

MEAT COUPONS

The brown M coupons in Ration Book 5 will be used for the rationing of meat, the Prices Board has announced. Each coupon will have a value of from one to three pounds of meat depending on the type of meat purchased. The individual ration will amount to about two pounds of carcass meat or approximately one and one-third pounds of clear meat per week.

This is the same ration as during the previous meat rationing period, but rationing will be more severe than before because all processed and "fancy" meats will restricted.

Band Concert Held Saturday

A good crowd enjoyed the performance given Saturday evening by Lachute Brass Band at the memorial park. A loudspeaker, loaned for the occasion, was used to announce items on the program — with such good effect that the management now express their intention to purchase a public address system for use of the Band on similar occasions.

Mayor Léopold Carrière and Georges H. Héon, M.P., spoke briefly to the gathering.

It is the intention of the Band to give another concert shortly in the mill section of the west end. They also have other engagements for the near future to play outside Lachute.

President of this organization is Horace Lamarche, and Romeo Legault is secretary. Under Alex Guenette as musical director, the Band has made commendable strides and perfected a good repertoire of selections.

One big reason for the Coke shortage

The reason is that there's a world wide sugar shortage caused by the disorder and confusion of war. And of course the less sugar we get the less Coca-Cola you get. But there's one fact you can count on now and in the future—what Coke there is—is the real thing.

Britain Demobilizes Feathered Couriers

London (CP) — "Dieppe Blue", and scores of other pigeons which carried important messages and photographs during the war, are being demobilized.

More than 300 birds, loaned to the government by people all over the country, are at present in lofts high above the traffic of London's Piccadilly. Soon they will be returned to their owners or to servicemen who wish to breed pigeons.

"Dieppe Blue" brought back the news that the raid on the French port in August, 1942, was unsuccessful and his message brought him his name. Other birds carried messages from underground workers in France and Belgium.

An officer in charge of the lofts said, "We lost very few of them and many have gone right through the war." Wartime offspring of these birds will be presented to the owners as interest on their loans.

Britain Plans Flying Boxcar

London (CP) — Britain's "flying box car" for civilian use will be the Handley-Page Hermes — a cross between the Halifax bomber and the Hermes liner-to-come — which will be able to carry several tons of freight at a maximum speed of 337 miles per hour.

Cruising speed of this air giant will be 240 miles an hour, while its maximum load will be 8,240 pounds. Range is estimated at 3,040 miles. The main freight compartment will be more than 40 feet long and it is thought that such a freight plane will be easily convertible to passenger service.

Tokens Will Assist Small Meat Purchases

Blue discs made of fibrewood and referred to as "tokens" will be used by Canadians for the first time for rationing purposes when meat rationing is introduced later this year. The token will be used to "make change" on purchases of meat so far as ration documents are concerned. Eight tokens will be worth one meat coupon, the brown "M" coupon in Ration Book 5 which will be used for meat rationing. By using the coupons those wishing to make only small purchases need not buy the value of an entire coupon at one time.

The tokens remain valid indefinitely and their value will depend on the type of meat purchased. For instance in Group A which includes mostly pork, one token is worth two ounces. In Group B. including beef, veal, lamb, mutton and pork, the value of a token is three ounces, and it ranges up to a value of six ounces per token in Group E which includes such meats as pork hocks, hearts and tongue.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

RUSSIAN WOMEN DO MEN'S WORK

Russian women have played a vital and enormously important war role for their country. They have stood, shoulder to shoulder, with their men folk on all the grim jobs that are necessary to the winning of a war.

More than a million of them trained as tractor or combine drivers and mechanics. Before the war, of course, they were playing a large role in agriculture, but the invasion of their country by Germany really put them on their mettle.

These Russian women tractor and combine drivers worked out a system. In the Ryazan region, for instance, a brigade of girls working with three tractors set an example of plowing approximately 313 acres for the season per tractor.

But they weren't content to stay by the record they had set for themselves, so they aimed for an even higher mark. In the next year they outdid themselves by plowing approximately 434 more acres than the previous year.

DDT. Employed in Mothproofing Clothes

London—United Kingdom scientists have found a simple means of making clothes permanently mothproof. The agent is D.D.T. — the anti-malarial, anti-typhus powder developed in Britain. In its new role of moth-killer it is dissolved in oil and applied to the wool during manufacture, thus becoming a permanent part of the wool's structure. A minute quantity—.01 per cent of the weight of the wool treated — is sufficient to make the cloth mothproof however many times it is washed or cleaned. D.D.T. can also be used for temporary mothproofing of clothing already in use — i.e., by mixing with the solvents used in dry-cleaning. Clothing cleaned regularly in this way would be nearly 100 per cent mothproof. This application of D.D.T. was developed by research workers of the United Kingdom Wool Industries Research Association.

Hints for Homebodies

WELCOME WEATHER REPORTS

Maybe you have had the weather reports through the war years, but they have been missing in our papers, and it really is a satisfaction to have them back again. We used to tune in regularly to a Boston station every morning to hear their weather report, as the whole Coastal area is somewhat the same as regards weather. Another nice thing is to have the Shipping news back in the local papers. Ships somehow get to feel like friends, even if you have done nothing more than see them over a period of years. Many of the ones we knew best were war casualties but others still come in to port. Many of the freighters are carrying a few passengers and most of these seem to be women and children, and even if a ship brings only ten passengers it helps to add to the number of united families.

GET OUT

The mother who always stays home with her children is not the best mother. There are some women who pride themselves on always staying at home and they feel very virtuous and worthy. Actually it is a great mistake. A woman was a wife before she was a mother and she cannot be a good wife and never go out with her husband. Children need to become accustomed to being away from their mother and not too dependent. It is not good for the woman herself as she must become stale. It is far better to go out and see things and meet people and to come home with new ideas and fresh experiences to bring to her family. The cap of the martyr is not a good one for any woman to wear and when her family is old enough to recognize it she certainly will get no thanks from them.

SHEET SIZES

The right size in sheets is very important. It is impossible to have a comfortable bed if the sheets are not wide enough to tuck in under the mattress, and long enough to fold well under to keep the bed clothes from pulling out. It is poor economy to buy too short a sheet. A sheet 108 inches long will turn back over the bed clothes to protect them.

COTTAGE CHEESE

Cottage cheese is a good source of protein and may be used with both vegetable and fruit salads. Try it sometime with chopped green peppers. Then again you may like it served in the old-fashioned way with strawberry preserve. Many doctors put cottage cheese on a baby's diet at nine months, so perhaps the method of making it may be useful for some of the young mothers. Some babies do not like cottage cheese but most of them will take it if it is mixed with their chopped prunes or other fruit. It should be made from skimmed milk so that means the top of the bottle will supply you with some extra cream. Let the milk sour until it is thick. It must be soured to this point but should then be used immediately. Put the milk in a double boiler and let it stand over hot water, but do not let the water boil. This is important because boiling water will make the cheese tough. Watch it closely and just as soon as the curds begin to separate and the water shows at the sides, pour the milk into a colender and let stand until thoroughly drained. It only takes a short time for the curds to separate and be careful not to over-cook, or this will toughen the curds. Cottage cheese made this way will be light and fluffy. If it is to be used for children nothing more is added. Just store it in the refrigerator. For adult use, mix it with a little cream and add a dash of salt and a good sprinkle of pepper.

PEANUT COOKIES

½ Cup shortening, ⅓ cup brown sugar, firmly packed, 1 egg, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons milk, ½ cup chopped peanuts.

Cream shortening and sugar and add beaten egg. Sift flour, salt and baking powder and add to creamed mixture. Shape into 2 rolls 2" in diameter and chill well. Slice, brush with milk, and sprinkle with peanuts. Bake in hot oven of 400 degrees for 8 minutes.

MINT SAUCE

¼ Cup mint leaves, finely chopped, ⅓ cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon sugar.

Mix the ingredients and let stand for thirty minutes in a warm place to infuse. If the vinegar is very strong dilute with water. When the mint leaves are young and tender I make a quantity of this sauce and bottle it for winter use. It keeps in just an ordinary vinegar bottle.

Q. — Before going overseas my son and his family lived in a house I own. He has been discharged and would like to rent the same house now occupied by other tenants. How long a notice to vacate must I give the present occupants?

A. — After your son is discharged you give the tenants a three months' notice to vacate. The notice must be on a form provided by the Board. Your son must occupy the accommodation for a period of one year from the time at which the tenant is required to vacate.

Q. — How much sugar is allowed breweries and distilleries in Canada?

A. — No sugar is used by brewing and distilling industries in this country.

Q. — Are roadside restaurants (out of the city) allowed to sell hot dogs on meatless days?

A. — No . . . meat conservation regulations apply to all restaurants in Canada whether they are in the city or outside. Hot dogs are meat and restuarants are not permitted to serve them on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Q. — The ladies' group at our church are remaking discarded army coats into children's suits and coats. Would you please send us a copy of your booklet with instructions for remaking clothes?

A. — A copy of the booklet Re-Make Wrinkles has been forwarded to you today. . . . This booklet contains many helpful suggestions and ideas for remaking. Before the end of the year there will be thousands of army coats and other articles of clothing not in use . . . it is an excellent idea to use this fine material for children's clothing.

Kills Huge Python

Ingham (CP) — With a cane knife in one hand and a torch in the other, Mrs. W. E. Biggs, a widow, who lives in the bush outside this North Queensland town, fought an 11ft. rock python and killed it after a 20-minute battle.

Hearing a noise near the fowl yard, she found the snake in the fernery. When she managed to get its head within reach of the cane knife, she dealt it several swift blows. In its death throes it sank its fangs into one of the battens.

The snake was brought into town to verify the story.

This is the eighth python Mrs. Biggs had killed in a month — all at night. None was under 10 ft. long.

She says she is not afraid of snakes, and has killed hundreds.

HOW RED CROSS AIDS WAR BRIDES FROM OVERSEAS

Here is the story of how the Canadian Red Cross Society takes care of the wives and children of Canadian servicemen when they arrive in the Dominion.

But the story really commences long before these new citizens reach Canadian soil. It commences when the British bride is notified at her home in the British Isles that she may join her husband or his family in Canada. When she arrives in London she is met by members of the Canadian Red Cross Corps on duty overseas who take care of her during her stop-over and arrange for her transportation to the port from which she is to sail for her new home. On the boat there are usually two Red Cross Nursing Auxiliary members who help to look after the children and care for any who may become ill.

When the boat reaches Halifax other members of the Corps are on duty to assist in the transfer from the ship to the waiting train. Two members of the Halifax detachment are assigned to travel on this train as far as Montreal. Those brides whose new home is located between these two cities are transferred on the way, the Red Cross having already notified the waiting husbands or the new relatives of the time of their arrival.

When the train reaches Montreal volunteers from all four Sections of the Red Cross Corps — including the Transport Nursing Auxiliary, Food and Office Administration Sections — are on duty at Bonaventure Station ready to receive the new arrivals.

Next of kin — and often the husbands — have already been notified in good time and the station is always packed with new relatives of those who will make their homes in this province.

The Nursing Auxiliary are the first to go into action when the special train pulls in. Accompanied by soldiers from the local military headquarters the nurses go aboard the coaches and bring off the wives and children while the soldiers look after the individual luggage.

As the new arrivals reach the station door they are carefully checked by members of the Office Administration Section who keep a careful record of each, and the name is announced so that relatives waiting in the foyer can easily identify the new member of their family. This is always necessary because, when the husband is not present, his father and mother who are waiting to welcome their new daughter-in-law have no means of knowing the identity of their son's wife.

As soon as this contact is made the group is taken into the Red Cross canteen where members of the Food Administration Section provide hot tea and coffee, milk, sandwiches, cookies and fruit for the weary traveller and also for the relatives, many of whom have been at the station an hour before the train arrived.

When luggage has been cleared and the lunch enjoyed, members of the Transport Section arrange to drive the families to their homes in various parts of Montreal or surrounding district.

Woman War Artist

Canada has recently appointed its first woman war artist. She is Lieutenant Molly Lamb, of the C.W.A.C. She is serving in the historical section of Army records. Lieutenant Lamb studied art in Vancouver, San Francisco and London and has exhibited her pictures in Vancouver, Toronto, and in the 1944 Canadian Army Art Show. She has worked, for the past year, at Canadian Army Show headquarters in Toronto designing scenery and props.

Keen Competition Men's Tournament

A record number of entries were received for the special men's tournament at the Golf Club last week. Keenness of the competition was illustrated by the fact there was a difference of only two points between the six closest rivals who qualified for prizes.

First place honors went to Eddie Jones and Reg Wallace (tied), with a net score of 69. R. B. Elliott was second with a net 70. Three members shared third place honors, each with a score of 71. They were George Leggett, Louis Bolton and N. Somers.

Last week's regular Wednesday evening tournament provided another victory for the Ogilvie family — first place going to Sonny Ogilvie, with R. C. Rogers and R. Stephens second and third, respectively.

An Army cook had just whipped up orders of scrambled eggs for a hungry mob of soldiers. Wearied by his herculean efforts, he sat down by a nearby elm tree, lit his pipe and wrote a note to his sweetheart. "Darling," he began, "For the past three hours shells have been bursting all around me."

Holiday Fare at Mooney's Cabin

Once again the event of the week at Mooney's Log Cabin was the masquerade, and all in costume showed surprising inventiveness and originality. Approximately 35 persons appeared in costume, and there were several "repeaters" from the previous week. Prize winners were as follows:

Impersonation, originality — Patricia Peart as Kaspar Milquetoast and Bob Huxsel as Mrs. Milquetoast; comedy, Female Hick, Bob Binning; A Woman of the Streets, Joe McGarr.

Fancy Dress: group, originality, Anne Bullett and Bernice Mullin as Siamese Twins; individual fancy dress; female, Old Fashioned Lady, Violet Gunter; male, Pedro, a dashing Mexican cavalier, Horace Bedard. Special award, Indian Princess, Rita Ruffo.

Honorable mention was given George Gravelle and Bill Ritchie for portraying Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae respectively.

The task of judging was well handled by Mrs. R. C. Harmer, John Malone and Darcy Jette.

On behalf of the guests, Hector Gratton presented a bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Denver Graham, with a purse of money.

Winner of the weekly bowling competition was Hector Gratton's team of R. Binning, Patricia Peart and Bob Huxsel.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ward and Marilyn placed first in the scavenger hunt; Anne Bullett and Bernice Mullin were runners-up.

At the Saturday night barn dance, Mrs. A. Smith entertained with specialty tap numbers, and Bernice McCann with apache selections.

The Sunday night sing-song was enlivened by monologues by Mary Barnett and Darcy Jette, and Mrs. Smith again contributed to the evening's fun.

UNWELCOME VISIT

Neebing, Ont. (CP)—A bear which carried off a 90-pound pig from John Irwin's farm here, will find a hot reception waiting for him if he comes back for another snack. Irwin chased him off with a baseball bat the first time, but he'll be better armed for the next visit.

CARROTS PREVENT STUMBLES IN DARK

Stumbling down the aisle of a darkened theatre to find one's seat is an unhappy yet common experience. It takes a few minutes for the human eye to become adjusted to seeing in the dark. A lack of vitamin A in the body lengthens this time and eating foods rich in this element will speed up the eye's ability to become adjusted to the darkness. The humble carrot is such a food.

The carrot has long been popular with both young and old, perhaps because of its tenderness and sweet flavor. It is easily digested and therefore is ideal for the family, from baby to great-grandpapa.

The Nutrition Division of the Department of National Health and Welfare states that while more important as a source of vitamin A, carrots also contain some vitamin C. Although good all year round they are at their best just now, especially for eating raw.

WAR'S END IN PACIFIC THRILLS ALLIED PEOPLES

See Possibility World's Permanent Air Headquarters Centred in Mont'l

International Conference Now Under Way

By HAROLD FREEMAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal (CP) — In another of a series of world-important conferences which Montreal and Quebec City have been hosts to in the last few years, Montreal becomes the world's aviation capital this week with the first meeting of the Provisional International Civil Aviation Organization.

The meeting, which brings together representatives of 20 countries, opened Wednesday and is expected to last about 10 days. In general, the discussions will be a continuation of international civil aviation talks begun at the 54-nation conference at Chicago last year.

The interim council comprises members representing Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chili, China, Columbia, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, El Salvador, France, India, Iraq, Mexico, The Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States. The remaining seat on the interim council has been left open for the U.S.S.R.

The provisional organization, established at the Chicago conference as an interim body, is limited in life to such time as a permanent organization is established, with a maximum span of three years.

There is no assurance that the eventual headquarters of world civil aviation will be in Montreal or anywhere else in Canada; but when the provisional institution gets a home established, it is considered likely that the permanent one will remain the world's Air Headquarters.

The Montreal conference has a long agenda, including the working out of world air routes, the establishment of world safety codes and a general unification of world civil air practices.

Sponsors of the new organization look to it to become one of the principal international agencies in the post-war world. They expect it to :—

1. Be an important factor in maintaining peace throughout the world by removing and avoiding needless rivalries, jealousies and occasions for bad feeling due to the operation of aircraft throughout the world.

2. Smooth the path for the orderly development of commercial aviation by supervising aviation facilities and promulgating a set of internationally accepted air regulations on the technical aspects of flying.

The work of the Montreal conference is being carried on largely through three committees.

A committee on Air Transport is studying and will report on recommendations concerning international air routes, the relation of air traffic and the demand of the public for such traffic, and the facilities provided for air traffic.

A technical committee is continuing attempts to provide uniformity and standardization of communications systems and air navigation aids, including ground marks; rules of the air and air traffic control practices, and allied subjects dealing with civil aviation.

The third committee assumes responsibility for continuing the study of and making reports on projected amendments to the international convention which is being worked out to govern international aviation.

In the great struggle now ended, Canada's sons and daughters have played a noble part.

Let History appraise it.

They fought for Freedom — for the right to live as Canadians wish to live.

Their efforts were successful.

Now, out of the abundance of her resources, Canada can afford to ensure that those who fought and the dependents of those who fell shall know a Nation's gratitude.

Highland Reserve Unit Disbanded

Personnel of the "D" Company, Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders (Reserve) from this district were officially disbanded last Wednesday, turning in their uniforms and equipment.

The Lachute contingent, attached to "D" Company centered at Hawkesbury, has been operating for about two and a half years, with over 30 members from this town and immediate district at the peak of enrolment. The volunteers have met regularly for drill and manoeuvres at Hawkesbury, following the lines of active army training.

Gratitude From Bombing Victim

Mrs. George V. Graham, Bedard Boulevard, who early in the war donated a pair of blankets to the Red Cross, has just received a letter of grateful acknowledgment from a bombing victim in England, who received one of the blankets to replenish her slim supply of clothes and bedding. Mrs. Graham, who attached her name and address to the donation, was informed by the recipient, who lives at Croydon, Surrey, England, that she received the blanket after standing in a queue for seven hours. She is the mother of five children, whose household effects and clothing were largely lost as the result of bomb damage. The woman herself also suffered a a severe leg injury during the raids.

To Enforce Speed Limit in Towns, and Bicycle By-Laws

To those who value life and limb, it is welcome news that local police officers are clamping down on traffic violations which have long been a menace to the public safety.

A condition affecting Lachute and towns in the district, namely, the excessive speed of vehicles within municipal limits, is now receiving the attention of highway police in this particular area, according to Traffic Officer Howard Jones. . . . As far as Lachute is concerned, residents will anticipate a slowing of certain traffic, notably including taxis, which has been habitually disregarding the law. Provincial regulations call for a speed not exceeding 30 miles an hour in populated centres. Proceedings against offenders are being taken without warning.

Another factor disturbing to both motorists and pedestrians, is the behavior of numerous cyclists. In the limits of Lachute town, violations of the bicycle by-laws are receiving strict attention on the part of Police Chief D. Villeneuve. The town police are issuing summonses for infractions of the laws which forbid riding on the sidewalks, riding with more than one person on a bicycle, or riding two or more abreast on the thoroughfares. These are dangerous practices, and it is in the general interest that they should be curbed.

GENERAL SATISFACTION

There will be general satisfaction at the appointment of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander as the next governor-general of Canada. Canada will welcome one of the great architects of Allied victory. The quiet-spoken strategist met adversity on the beaches of Dunkerque and triumph in the grim Italian campaign, where the Canadians were among those under his command, with the same calm demeanor. — Picton (Ont.) Anticipating problems for which they are not adequately organized, the local Citizens' Rehabilitation Committee are holding a special meeting in the Lachute council chamber next Tuesday evening, August 21, at 8 o'clock. Representatives from Montreal branch of the soldiers' re-establishment department will be here on this occasion to discuss problems and procedures with the members; and it is urged by the local chairman, James W. Gall, that committees from all the church, club and community groups in Lachute be present at this meeting.

Marine Journal Reviews Career Of Successful Argenteuil Citizen

It is gratifying to note the progress of Argenteuil men in a wider field, as they attain positions of responsibility. The July issue of Canadian Marine and Aviation sketches the career of Captain J. Davison Weir, who, starting as a deckhand aboard ship, has today gained notable prominence in his line of public service.

"Dave" Weir, as he is more familiarly known on the riverfront of this county, received his Master's Passenger Inland ticket at the age of 23, then engaging in towing, wrecking and commercial shipping until 1906. At this time he received his appointment as Master of the Canadian Government buoy and lighthouse tender "Maisonneuve". His personality and qualifications were quickly noticed by his superior officers, and in 1909 he was appointed assistant superintendent of lighthouses for the Montreal district of Marine and Fisheries, and in 1913 became superintendent of construction and lights, in which capacity he is at present carrying on.

The Montreal district comprises the River St. Lawrence as far as Point Platon, the River Ottawa as far as the City of Ottawa, the Richelieu River from Sorel to the boundary, Lakes St. Louis, Two Mountains and Memphramagog. Capt. Weir has supervision of 233 lighthouses, 105 gas buoys, 85 steel buoys and 442 wooden spar buoys. He has some 300 miles of water territory to cover in the performance of his duties.

This route is serviced by a trim government vessel, the buoy tender "Argenteuil" which Capt. Weir was instrumental in having named after this county; he also supervised its construction. The officers, other ranks and helpers aboard, come largely from the County of Argenteuil.

Dave Weir was born at Grenville in 1881, the son of Thomas Weir of Glasgow and Sarah Davison Weir, of Grenville. His first wife was Margaret Edith Davidson, of St. Philippe, by whom there were three children born — Kenneth D., now a 1st Lieutenant in the Montreal Regiment; A. Eileen Weir, who has served with the R.C.A.F. (W.D.); and Robt. S. Weir, still in service with the Royal Canadian Navy. Capt. Weir's second marriage was to Katy Margaret Hartley, daughter of the late S. O. Hartley of Grenville and Margaret Shepherd of Lachute.

—Watchman readers will share our good wishes to Capt. Weir, for many more years of useful public service.

Japanese 'Expendables'

By Josephine Ripley in Christian Science Monitor

Washington — Japanese prisoners of war present a peculiar problem to Allied authorities. Japan doesn't want them back.

The only honorable return from battle, under the stern Shinto code, is the return in spirit of those who died for the Emperor. These "spirits" of the soldier dead are worshipped reverently at the national Shinto shrines.

But for the living dead, as the prisoners have been called, there is no honor. They have violated their oath not to be captured alive. They have failed in the Japanese soldier's highest and only mission —to die for the Emperor.

Japanese prisoners of war are outcasts. For them there will be no joyful return to the homeland, after the war, no reunion with family and friends. If they should be sent back to Japan the only honorable gesture left to them, under the present rule of conduct, would be to commit hara-kiri.

There may be hope among the Allied authorities that a new political regime in Japan might bring about some relaxation of the rigid Shinto code.

Meanwhile, there is talk of the possibility of placing these charges on a Pacific island in a colony of their own.

Yet, despite the harsh penalty for living, thousands of Japanese today apparently prefer it to the prospect of a sojourn with their ancestors. Some of the prisoners taken on Okinawa are reported to have expressed a desire to live in the United States and become naturalized citizens.

It seems hardly likely that such a wish will be fulfilled, but whatever the decision with respect to the future of these men, it will make interesting history. Probably never before, in modern times at least, has a Government been faced with the problem of war-prisoners who, in the eyes of their own nation, were expendable.

God Help Us to Learn!

AFTER ALMOST six years of war, Japan's final acceptance of the Allied surrender terms raised a surge of public rejoicing which will not subside for several days. Once again, as in the proclamation of victory over Germany, a reverent thankfulness to God will supersede all other emotions. The frivolity and rowdyism are superficial. For there remain the grim pictures of jungle warfare in the Pacific, of a brutal foe, and a brand of barbarism not easy to understand. There remain, for Canada, the deeper scars — Hong-Kong, and visions of her manhood, on the other side of the earth, mangled and mown down in battle. How then can there be aught else but gratitude — our thanks to God that it is ended.

For six long years, nerves have been taut to the music of destruction; families broken, homes disrupted; the everyday program keyed to an exciting pitch. Such has been our experience, we in Canada who have felt but lightly the devastation and privations of war.

And so, when the fanfare of triumph dies — what next? . . . An emptiness. A seemingly purposeless routine — working and playing — living, loving and propagating — till the journey's end. . . . BUT NO! In that very pitfall lies the peril of civilization, the menace of still greater, more ominous possibilities. . . . Spare us, of this generation, the godly precept to love our erstwhile enemies. But we have a purpose; let us at least dig deeply and earnestly to the root of all our feuds, and solve the riddle of international strife. Let us direct our lives in the constant realization that, if nations cannot live in peace together, they must face the fury of some holocaust too terrible to visualize.

From all the lofty and memorable sentiments expressed on this occasion, we choose a single thought, from a sermon of thanksgiving by the Rt. Rev. D. T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of All Canada. Let this be our humble prayer — GOD HELP US TO LEARN!

Canada to Get Blitz Rubble

London (CP) — Rubble from bombed villages in Britain is going to Canada and other overseas countries to help in reconstruction projects there.

Britain has more rubble than she can use herself and overseas shipment not only helps to clear up devastated areas but at the same time provides ballast for ships which come here with grain and other food cargoes.

At present Britain has few products available for export and until such time as export production increases rubble likely will help fill the holds of many ships.

Joyful Gathering Takes Part In V-J Day Celebration Here

Representative Crowd at Assembly in Memorial Park; Citizens Comply with Mayor's Request for Orderly Festivity

Two hours after Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain announced to the British Empire that Japan had capitulated to the demands of the four great powers, Mayor Léopold Carrière of Lachute issued a proclamation that a civic holiday would be observed the following day, with a public gathering in the Memorial Park at 11 o'clock.

A representative crowd assembled in the park Wednesday morning, as stores, offices, factories and businesses closed in order to celebrate the advent of peace in the Pacific. The Lachute Band, under direction of Alex Guenette, opened the public meeting with O Canada and God Save the King.

Mayor Carrière was the first speaker. He expressed thanks on behalf of the citizens of Lachute to the men of the Army, Navy and Air Force who had been chiefly responsible for the victory attained. "Let us not forget", he added, "the sacrifices these men have made in preserving the freedom of our country and of the whole world, and let us open our hearts and our homes to them in appreciation of their great service." Mr. Carrière also appealed to the townsmen to celebrate "with dignity as well as with joy."

Speaking on behalf of the local Legion, George Leggett said it was an honor and a privilege to be on the platform, and also declared that a feeling of gratitude should be foremost in our minds to the young soldiers who have been fighting in this world war. Stating that our duty to these men is to help them in rehabilitation, to see that they have a square deal in their readjustment to peacetime life, Mr. Leggett pledged that the Legion would do all in its power to see that returned men were given a fair chance.

The Hon. G.-E. Dansereau, M.L.A., followed; he congratulated and thanked the soldiers, and declared that the spirit of right will always triumph over wrong. Humanity would need a better understanding between the countries of the world, and he appealed for the fostering of this spirit. Mr. Dansereau then thanked the war workers of Argenteuil County, and the farmers, claiming that these men and women had sometimes sacrificed much. Concluding, Dansereau said that the efforts of the farmers would be needed in the feeding of the war-torn world in the immediate future, and he hoped that every effort would be given in this cause.

Called by the chairman to speak on behalf of the Protestant clergy of this community, the Rev. E. Orsborn said: "It was a great and glorious feeling this morning to look out of the window and see the sun shining, and to know that, wherever that sun shone, there was peace in the world".

Saying that the gathering was a representative one of the whole community, Mr. Orsborn added that there were children present who had never known peace . . . that many soldiers who had known the pain and tortures of war were attending, with civilians who had done much in the war effort without receiving any publicity, and all were expressing their joy today. Speaking on the need of a fitting and practical memorial to the men who had fallen, Mr. Orsborn hoped that it would be of useful character, and of value to the community life and betterment of our citizens. In concluding, he emphasized the need of a higher morality in daily living, and appealed to the population to attend their respective churches on Sunday next, the day set aside for personal thanks to God.

The chairman then called upon Georges-H. Héon, M.P. for Argenteuil County. Mr. Héon said that this peace celebration was a rare occasion in history ". . . the first time in 300 years that peace was real the world over". He added that it was up to our governments and statesmen to work for a permanent peace.

Speaking of our great ally, China, Mr. Héon observed that this peace was freeing 200 millions of Chinese from the grips of war, a war they have been fighting since 1934, and he asked that their suffering he remembered. Contrasting the Chinese with the Japanese, the former were a peace-loving nation, he said; they had enjoyed peace for 400 years — while the Japanese were a dominant race, controlled by a militaristic group, who were now seeking pardon from their Emperor.

Reminding those present that they must not forget the soldiers of Quebec Royal Rifles and the Winnipeg Regiment who were taken prisoners of war at Hong-Kong, the speaker added that their sacrifice was made so that we might enjoy the peace now achieved. In conclusion, he hoped that all citizens would "offer prayers and thanks to Almighty God, for He is the one who gives us peace".

Thos. Stewart spoke briefly on behalf of the war veterans of 1914-18, and asked those present to stand in silent remembrance of the men who would never return.

The chairman, Mayor Carrière, thanked all who had assisted in this V-J Day celebration, and announced the Lachute Band would give a special concert in the Ayers park on Saturday evening next.

Victory Parade and Dance

In the evening a mass victory parade was held throughout the town. Units participating were the Lachute Town Band; the Canadian Legion No. 70, Lachute, with veterans of the first and second great wars; the Forestry Corps Unit encamped at Lost River; the Jolliette Regiment (Reserve); Lachute branches of the Scouts, Cubs, Girl Guides and Brownies; and the Loyal Orange Lodge. Mayor Carrière, ex-Mayor J. S. Giles, and members of the Lachute Town Council also participated in the parade.

The Lachute Auditorium was thrown open for the public to enjoy a Victory Dance, and hundreds of citizens jammed the doors in order to take part or to witness the proceedings. Lowe's orchestra graciously gave their services, and an expression of appreciation was given them by Mayor Carrière.

Church Services

Services of thanksgiving were held at St. Simeon's Church and at the Lachute Baptist Church on Wednesday evening, and on Sunday next, all churches in the community will hold special services conforming with the nationally proclaimed day of prayer and thanksgiving.

Farm and Home Property Changes

The farm of William G. Watson, Lachute Road, has been purchased by a Lachute man — Cecil Leishman, who has been employed at the office of J. C. Wilson Ltd. for almost 20 years. Mr. Watson, in turn, has acquired a property in Lachute, a duplex residence belonging to the Filion estate and situated on Harriet Street. Mr. and Mrs. Watson will move to town at an early date and take up residence here.

Other property changes have been noted recently in Lachute. A large residence at the corner of Chatham Street and the Brownsburg Road, the home of the late George Hay and of Mrs. Hay, has been purchased by Jos. Raymond.

A block of land in the east ward has been the centre of interest of late, various subdivisions and transfers having taken place. At its eastern extremity on Main Street, a bungalow is being constructed by George Tattersfield, and this dwelling, of interesting design, is now taking shape. An adjacent lot has been sold by Lemuel Hammond to R. (Dick) Richardson, of Montreal and Dunany, a former Brownsburg resident; while H. Mossman Gall, postmaster of this town, has purchased a lot from John S. MacKimmie in the same section, facing Burroughs Street on the north side of Main.

WANTS FEDERAL ACTION

Numerous sales by the city of reverted lots indicate a substantial building program is in the offing in the near future. . . . But before a loan will be granted, a license or permit must be obtained from Ottawa. And it is here that the federal authorities must take positive action to break the bottleneck that is impeding building throughout the Dominion.

Household Fly Is Pullorum Carrier

Eperiments with the transmission of pullorum disease to poultry have resulted in an interesting feature, states the annual report of Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture. It has been found that the organism may be transmitted by the house fly not only mechanically but in the body of the fly, where the pullorum organism lives for approximately five days. Flies so infected are carriers, and, finding their way among healthy chickens, are eaten by the young birds which become infected from this source.

Paying Big Money For Light Horses

(Ottawa Farm Journal)

Within the past few days we had occasion to see a bunch of horses go begging for buyers and a few more sell at fantastic prices. The difference was that those not wanted were farm work horses and the others were light saddlers and jumpers purchased by city people. Heavy horses are a drug on the market these days while there is the greatest demand in history for good riding horses. Both in Canada and even moreso across the border, city people want horses for pleasure and they are so scarce that prices have practically skyrocketed. But they have to show some signs of style and soundness, not just small plugs. There is a nice market for this type of horse, if the right breeding can be secured.

Chinese Agronomists Make Tour of Quebec

A two-week study trip through Quebec has just been terminated by two delegates from China, Dr. M. Yang and Dr. C. S. Hsieh, both graduates of Cornell University. Following an interview between Dr. W. P. Tsou, Agricultural Attaché of the Chinese Embassy at Washington, and the Hon. Laurent Barré, the preliminaries of this trip were duly organized. Dr. R. Tsang, an expert in Agriculture, accompanied Dr. Tsou.

Accompanied by a representative of the Information and Research Department, they were familiarized with the organization of the Department of Agriculture and also visited the offices of several regional agronomists.

In the course of their tour, directors of several agricultural associations were contacted, and institutions such as l'Ecole Régionale at St. Martine, Macdonald College, the Dairy School, the Fur-Bearing Animal Breeding Station and the Deschambault Farm School were visited. Quebec's farm contests, general agronomic propaganda and co-operative movements were of great interest to the visiting delegates. Upon their return to China in September, they intend drawing an agricultural program which will be adaptable to the particular needs of the vast Chinese Republic.

Work of These Men Has Paid Plenty

Do you know those men at the Dominion Experimental Farms and Agricultural Colleges who have brought and are still bringing new and better cereals, grasses, clovers, tobacco, fibre crops, fruits and vegetables to Canada, asks Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director, Dominion Experimental Farms Service. Many of these plants, such as soybeans, were never grown commercially in Canada until the Canadian plant breeder produced early varieties which would mature in Canada.

The great grain growing industry of Western Canada could not have been, had it not been for the work of Canadian plant breeders producing earlier sorts. Canada would not have been top rank in the world's wheat markets for high quality wheat had it not been for the plant breeders. These men are now producing varieties resistant to all sorts of disease and even to insect pests which have made production in farms and gardens a risky business. A review of the work of all the Canadian plant breeders shows that they have, by their work, paid big dividends to the farmer and the gardener.

FUTURE BRIGHT FOR TROPICAL COUNTRIES

London (CP) — There is no reason why the tropics should not be healthy to live in, Dr. G. MacDonald told the Ross Institute of Tropical Hygiene of which he is director. He forecast a prosperous future for equatorial countries if war-developed methods of disease control were inplemented in the peace years.

In the Nile Valley, Dr. MacDonald said, complete eradication of malaria was being attempted and if successful the "whole picture of life in Upper Egypt would be revolutionized and the country enter on a period of prosperity such as it has not known for thousands of years."

Repetition of the process would be possible in other places, particularly in island territories infested with the same species of mosquitoes. Malaria control, he said, was one of the boasts of the British Eighth Army and the principles they used could be used to advantage in peace.

Another disease which the war had helped eliminate was dysentery and Dr. MacDonald said "sulpha" drugs would ease the ravages of this malady in the future. "Rat control" which became a study in the Far East had also advanced to such a stage that typhus was being beaten.

Norfolk, Eng. (CP) — Norfolk district council has approved the recommendation of the regional planning officer not to build houses where the essential amenities for village life, such as a public house, a telephone, a church and post office, are not installed.

Farmyard Pets Go On Holiday

Worcester, Eng. (CP) — When school teacher R. W. Major went for his vacation this summer, he took his farm with him. Into the lorry taking him to the beach he loaded Bett, the cow, Whendi the nanny-goat, and Heddon Bomb the billy-goat.

"They had to come along," Major said. "There was no one at the school who had learned to feed them."

"In Conference"

THE MULTIPLICITY of conferences, in this day of international and economic adjustments, tends to dull our senses to the importance of the word. There are conferences here, there and everywhere; public men conferring on this, that, and every current problem.

Another such conference, whose initial phase has just concluded at Ottawa, deals with situations which have for years been a stumbling block to Canada's internal well-being; and as such this gathering is a matter of concern to every Canadian subject. It is called the Dominion-Provincial Conference for Reconstruction, and in the "general feeling that this would be no repetition of the 1941 conference failure" comes a certain promise that it may bear fruit . . . Readers will recall the Rowell-Sirois investigation; its costly caravan across the broad Dominion; its mammoth findings — and their fate, namely to be 'shelved'. The failure was no reflection upon the commissioners, but rather on those who opposed and impeded the adoption of their recommendations. . . . . The cost, in millions to the Canadian taxpayers, is a detail now scarcely recalled.

Viewing the sessions held last week at Ottawa, perhaps the most notable thing about the present conference was its spirit of co-operation.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the delegates Canada must go forward to a better social order, "to a more reliable economic structure than we have ever had before". To achieve it would be no easy task.

The Dominion's proposals in brief called for exclusive Dominion collection of personal income, corporation and inheritance taxes; larger federal subsidies in return; limited federal action in social security; the old age pensions and unemployment assistance fields; larger federal grants to provincial activity in health insurance and part of the old age pension field; federal grants for provincial public works when timed to serve in the maintenance of full employment.

There was some disagreement as to procedure. Some provinces were inclined to think the financial end of the Dominion proposals did not go far enough. Premier J. Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island said his province would lose money. But the spirit of co-operation prevailed, and all nine premiers agreed to accept the Dominion proposals as a basis for study, withholding any of their own until the conference convenes again, in November.

From Hand to Mouth

THE UNITED STATES Public Health Service published some time ago a booklet entitled "From Hand to Mouth" — a story about the handling of food. With the tourist season now reaching its peak, it may be both timely and profitable to consider some of the danger sources outlined, in the catering of foodstuffs to the public.

A message to owners and employees of eating establishments, the booklet reveals that "food poisoning" is rarely caused by eating food that has been poisoned. Rather, most cases of food poisoning are really food infections caused by germs. Someone handling the food or working in the kitchen manages to transfer the disease germs to the "eats".

Food can be contaminated by unwashed hands, underdone meats, sores on persons handling the food; by flies; through dishes and silverware handled by a "carrier"; by sneezing, coughing and spitting. Milk, milk products, and water, polluted at the source, may carry dangerous disease germs. Rats, flies and roaches also carry germs. When they feed, they pass the germs on.

Germs on food can cause typhoid fever and other dangerous maladies. Improperly processed home-canned foods can cause botulism; also, it is possible to contract trichinosis, a muscular disease, through the eating of partially cooked pork.

It is emphasized that food prepared for customers must first of all be clean, wholesome, free from spoilage and safe for human consumption. All perishable foods should be stored in a refrigerator at or below 50°F; all pork products should be thoroughly cooked.

Bakery products should come from approved sources, if they are not made on the premises.

Germs are especially attracted to milk and eggs. All milk and egg products should come from approved sources and pasteurized products should be used whenever possible. Unless a special sanitary type of bulk dispenser is used, all fluid milk must be served in containers in which it is received.

Proper storage of foods, drinks, containers, utensils, glassware, dishes and silverware is highly important. Also, says the booklet, there is no excuse for dirty dishes, glassware, cutlery or cooking utensils.

ACCORDING to the St. Thomas Times-Journal, a district school teacher got this letter from an irate mother: "Dere Teacher—You keep telling my son, Ronald, to brethe with his diafram. Maybe some of the rich children can afford diaframs, but how about when their fathers make only $3 a day, and he has got five children to keep? First it's one thing and then it's another thing, and now its diaframs. That's the worst thing yet."

A Way to Pay

MUCH IS BEING said about "the immeasurable debt" we owe to those who have given their lives in the struggle — "a debt we can never pay".

Why can't we measure it? Why can't we pay — at least in part? . . . They gave full measure of devotion to their country. Is there any one of us who cannot raise our measure of devotion and pay in the same terms?

We may not be called upon to make a full down payment as they did. We may not have to pay with our lives. But we can pay through our living, on the installment plan — through all the ways a man can show devotion to his country. Through devotion to his family. Devotion to his friends. Through more active devotion to the principles his country stands for — honesty — unselfishness — fair play.

Here are a few suggestions on part payments, small in themselves, but which all add up:

Pay more attention to the family.

Pay the apology we owe the other fellow.

Pay more visits to the church, not to criticize the minister or set a good example to the children, but to see where we ourselves need to get set straight.

Pay our bills, all of them.

Pay back the money we gypped on the income tax.

Pay a new kind of attention to the other man's complaints; probably we caused them.

Rugular payments such as these will help build a world worth dying for — and such a world is, after all, the only monument worth erecting to those who have given their lives. If we stop talking about an "immeasurable debt" and start measuring up the way we live, we may come much closer to the goal of having "paid in full".

Angling and Peace

FROM TALK in the corner barber shops this has been a great season for anglers — so great, if you listen to the gossip, that it is a wonder some society out for permanent world peace does not aim at a world peopled only by fishermen. If everybody became an angler, nobody would have time for wars.

For example there is the story of the Fredericton man who wanted to join the army but was turned down. He ate his heart out, and then one day a couple of pals showed him six whacking trout, and he badgered them into agreeing with his guess they came from a certain nearly inaccessible pool. They admitted they used a certain little black fly. . . . Our friend could hardly wait. That was back in 1940 and he's been fighting his private battle to get to that pool every chance he gets. He hardly missed not being in the war at all. . . . So far, he will not admit that he has not yet taken fish from the pool, nor will his friends admit they caught the trout with worms from an entirely different water; but it goes to show the stuff of which fishermen are made.

They never give up, and the fellowship is tremendous. In his office the big steel executive may be a holy terror, but in the backwoods with his tackle rigged he becomes a most pleasant, affable guy, who figures he hasn't changed a bit from the farm boy who took trout with an old alder branch and a can of worms.

One of the big troubles in ever getting this "peace-and-good-angling" world organized is the number of misguided folk who don't fish, and some admittedly have good talking points.

There is, among this group, the fisherman's "widow" — the little woman who stays home week-end after week-end while our hero hikes off with his tackle and high hopes. But usually she becomes reconciled and deep inside takes pride in what hubby can do to the fish.

The agnostic is the man for the real conversion job. He won't get up at 5 a.m. He can't see the pleasure in trolling for hours, or paddling or portaging heavy packs, or beating off mosquitoes and black flies and wearing himself to a shadow — just for some fish. — But what fun he misses. And what a lot he has to learn.

A Common Casualty

"JACK always claimed he'd rather have my canned chicken than anything else I make, so now he's going to be overseas for a while yet I'll send him a couple of jars."

It was a blistering hot summer day when Jack's canned chicken arrived at the Base Post Office in Ottawa where all the parcels are sorted for overseas. Everyone on the "parcel floor" knew about his present, for the glass had broken en route and the chicken was announcing its presence by an unmistakable odour. Two cakes were ruined, while a carton of honey that had been added at the last moment added a certain interesting thickness to the mess. They might as well have put that honey in a paper bag as in a carboard carton.

It is hoped for Jack's sake — and all the other boys whose parcels get near his — that hereafter his mother sends her canned chicken and honey and all such eatables in sealed metal containers with the lid securely soldered on.

Back in the Woodlot

● Wood of trees that have died has less value as fuel than wood of trees cut green and properly dried or seasoned. For that reason nothing is to be gained by leaving in established woodlots and shelterbelts trees which are at a standstill, so far as further development is concerned.

The department of Agriculture says that woodlots and shelterbelts should be thought of as farm crops yielding a harvest within more or less definite periods, and, as such, new crops must be started occasionally.

Migration Inside Canada

● Home-ties in Canada are tightly bound up in sentiment and a feeling that permanence is the way of happiness. The sense of security within the family circle is precious to us all, but depressions and wars have their way with us, and change has its way with us, whether we like it or not.

These thoughts come to me as I look over the figures on interprovincial migration. Figures are pretty cold things, themselves, but there are stories that they tell to the imaginative eye. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics a few months ago published some facts about how Canadians were moving about their country between the years 1931 to 1941. So much happened during those ten years.

In 1931, for instance, we were deep into a depression that disheartened all of us, with prices falling with a sickening thud, the winds tearing up precious Saskatchewan soil that needed rain so badly, and with people moving to new places in search of a living. Families had to leave their friends and neighbors and make a new life for themselves. The depression dragged on through the '30's and we were only on the threshold of the 40's when war descended upon us. Many, very many of us, went into the armed services, and others went to the cities to work in war factories.

The Bureau of Statistics figures show that during the 1931-41 period Saskatchewan had the greatest number of people leaving to live in other provinces. As a matter of fact, 188,204 people left Saskatchewan, while only 30,659 came in. The net decrease in the population of Manitoba through migration was 48,478, Alberta 41,841, New Brunswick 10,177, Prince Edward Island 2,672, and Quebec 1,584. On the other hand, the net increase through migration in British Columbia was 82,498, Ontario 77,484 and Nova Scotia 7,848.

I wonder what changes the post-war years will bring.

Exchange Agricultural Students With Mexico

● A plan to exchange agricultural graduate students between Canada and Mexico has been proposed by Federico Sanchez, Dean State of Coahuila, Mexico. He of the Agricultural School of the recently visited Canada to select a herd of dairy cattle for the secretary of the Mexican president. He has made his suggestion to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Farmers Approve Grading

● Recent meetings of Farm Forum radio groups have been stressing something that the Canadian farmer has been feeling for some time. And the thought is that the grading of farm products is an excellent thing.

The Radio Forum groups consider that grading is a prime safeguard against inefficiency in production. They really concede that further improvements in the system of grading might enable producers to meet consumer needs more satisfactorily. They suggest, for instance, that grading practices should be more closely supervised and that standardization should be on a national rather than on a regional or provincial scale.

These radio forums also vigorously repudiate the suggestion that ducts, if accompanied by a system price stabilization for farm proof grading encourages inefficiency Price fluctuations, in the past, they declare, made farmers gamblers rather than efficient farmers.

Psychology of Tipping

(Chatham Daily News)

A well-known hotel man is reported as saying that the tipping system must be accepted as an integral part of modern management.

He is probably right; and it would be unfair to place the whole of the blame on the hotels or their employees. Some people insist on giving tips because they are afraid of being regarded as tightwads; others give because it is the only way of showing their importance.

Many a man who carelessly slips a quarter under a plate in a hotel dining room will plead bankruptcy when his wife wants some small change, or will part with reluctance from a nickel when the collection plate is put under his nose at church on Sunday.

PRESS vs. RADIO

There is a radio nowadays, but it doesn't take the place of the newspaper. You listen to a news broadcast that is sometimes "stretched" for dramatic effect, or it may not be clearly heard, but you cannot go back and hear it over again. The words spoken over the air are irretrievably lost. With the newspaper you have the news fixed before you and there is no occasion for argument over what was said.

Laugh 'n Like It!

Foreman — Excuse me lady, but are you the one that's singing?

Lady — Yes, I was singing. Why?

Foreman — Well, might I ask you not to hang on to that top note so long? The men have knocked off twice already, mistaking it for the dinner whistle.

Professor's Daughter: "Circumstances compel me to decline a marital arrangement with a man of such inferior pecuniary resources."

Student Suitor: "I don't get you."

Professor's Daughter: "That's just what I'm telling you!"

Relief Inspector — Is your wife dependent on you?

Rastus — She sure is, suh. If I didn't find jobs for her she'd starve.

Field officer reporting to general: "The enemy has sent a truce party for a parley."

General: "What do they want?"

Officer: "They would like to exchange two generals for six pairs of felt boots and a case of condensed milk."

"What time is it by your watch?"

"Quarter to."

"Quarter to what?"

"I don't know — times got so bad I had to lay off one of the hands."

There is a sign in a Western city which is well worth reading, remarks Martin H. Herlick of Phoenix, Arizona. It says: "167 persons died here last year from gas — 11 inhaled it, 9 put a lighted match to it, and 147 stepped on it."

"What are you thinking of?"

"Oh, nothing much."

"Don't be so self-conscious."

Belgian Trawlers Take Exiles Home

London (CP) — In May, 1940, Belgian trawlers left Dunkerque, bringing to Britain their loads of frightened women and children. Now the little ships have gone home, this time laden with furniture bought with five years' earnings in exile.

As they left, ships in harbor sounded their sirens in salute to these 150 little craft which had done much during the war to keep Britain properly fed.

During the worst days of the blitz, when ships in the English Channel were being strafed, they continued to fish and brought their catches here.

A PAT ON THE BACK

One day last week a visitor with an observing eye stopped to tell John Lunn, the man who has charge of keeping our streets clean and clear of debris, how nice the Kentville streets looked. . . Said the stranger, "No matter what job you are doing it is important and worth doing well. I like to see a man who takes his work seriously." He passed on, and left a better feeling in the heart of the workman. We are all human, and a word of appreciation makes the world a bit brighter.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

FACING THE TRUTH, SERMON TOPIC BY VISITING MINISTER

In the absence of the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, the pulpit of the Lachute United Church was occupied on Sunday morning last by Rev. J. R. Hayworth, D.D., of Chicago — who with his family, visits St. Andrews East each summer season and is well known to the residents of that community.

Taking his text from John XVI, 12-13, "And He will show you things to come", Mr. Hayworth spoke of having recently attended a large convention where the speaker of the moment was a world traveller, author, lecturer and commentator. He was the son of a Danish father and a Chinese mother, and was a graduate of Oxford. In a great "build-up" the chairman told how the man, out of his knowledge and wisdom, had been able to prophesy certain events in the war which had come to pass. "Then, as we sat expecting him to prophesy again and to tell us when this war would end, he talked about the Chinese instead, and left us feeling a little disappointed," the preacher recalled. . . . "Just now we are eager for prophets of the future, we want to know what is coming. People are consulting fortune tellers to see if they can inform us as to our future, but how many of us would be able to bear it! Personally, I don't want to know; but I do want to have the faith and courage to meet it, though I have no desire to contemplate it.

"Business men and people playing the stock markets might like to know what the future holds, but after the last war there were quite a number of 'casualties' who were caught unprepared. How many prophesied continued prosperity just before 1929; but we had the great depression instead.

"When Jesus was here, His followers would have liked him to forecast events. As a group they were not any more saintly than we are, and they were quite as worldly minded. Jesus was a layman, not a priest, and they looked upon Him as a political leader, advocating a new deal, and they said, 'Where is He leading us?' They never saw till afterwards his spiritual vision for the world — and then some of them died for it. . . . There was a time when He was just another political Messiah, and they would have liked Him to prophesy pleasant things for them.

"The lesson we must learn is that we are not always able to bear the truth if it were told us. 'I have yet many things to say unto you' — but you cannot bear them now', says Jesus.

"If anybody had told Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany in 1914 what would come to pass in 1918, he would not have been able to bear it. If Mussolini had been told what would happen to Italy under his leadership, he would not have been able to bear it. If they had pictured him under the German heel — Lybia gone, Sicily gone — 'It can't happen to me', he would have said. If anybody had told Adolf Hitler, in 1940 when he seemed invincible, that his cities would be bombed, his armies beaten, and that he would crumble and fall, he would have said 'It cannot happen to me.'

"If some prophet were to tell the Japanese leaders even today that they will be hopelessly defeated it would be almost impossible for them to believe it.

"Here is a fact that must be understood. There are times when we are not able to bear the truth or grasp it, because we are not spiritually ready for the will of God and the ordering of Providence. It doesn't agree with our present mode of living and thinking.

"There were things Jesus could have told His disciples and the world. He could have said: 'The great Roman Empire, of which we are a part, is crumbling and soon will be in ruins. . . . The great Jewish temple, the shrine of our fathers, will be utterly destroyed, and will never be rebuilt. . . . The high priests with their pomp, vanity and worldliness will pass. . . . Other empires will come and go as foolish and vain as empires of the past, but out of the ruins will rise a spiritual kingdom which no political emperor shall destroy. I shall be crucified for it, and most of you will be martyred for it who are listening to me now. — But the gates of hell shall not prevail against it!' . . Do you think the disciples were capable at that moment of grasping that magnificent picture of things to come? Jesus knew they were not, so He died for it, between two thieves; and not till after He was crucified did a little handful, out of all the crowd who followed Him for the moment, come to see His dream of things to come.

"In face of this world tragedy, which came out of all the political compromises of the past, is that all the hope we have?

"That was not the conviction of Jesus. He says to all His idealists (and there are more than we think today): 'Some day you will see the truth.'

"Some people think that all the evil and confusion of our time is the result of some unspeakable villain who has created it. Not at all. It is the result of good and decent people not seeing the truth when they ought to have seen it! . . Hitler alone is not responsible for the present holocaust of life. He could have been stopped long ago by the decent and good people of the world if they had had the vision and courage to grasp the truth about him. Because of private desires and interests they allowed him to confuse and divide them. They could not and would not see the truth. . . . The good people are responsible for an evil world. Jesus says little about the Roman Empire, but He says everything about the iniquity of the Church and the dullness of her disciples.

"The responsibility lies with good and decent people, who want a good world but hate to pay the price for it, and are slow to see it coming".

A better world to come, and how it will come, is conceived and growing in the minds of our younger generation, the speaker believed. He threw out the challenge for all to read the New Testament in simple honesty of purpose, and face the truth about life and God, eternity and yourself." . . In the white light that blazes from it, all self-deceit vanishes, and here you will come face to face with the spirit of truth, and the spirit of truth will awaken in you."

JUSTIFIABLE CRITICISM

Many of our townspeople are criticizing local merchants for their catering to the tourist trade, particularly in those commodities that are either rationed or in short supply in their own country. If these merchants are selling these goods to strangers and not keeping sufficient stock to meet their local customers, then our own people have every justification for criticism. — Gananoque Reporter

GARDEN ODDITIES

In a vegetable garden belonging to George Creswell, Lachute, is a potato plant on which small tomatoes appear to be growing on the stems.

Mr. Creswell has another rarity — a plant producing black vegetable marrows, an unusual instance in the run of citrus vegetables. This is the product of his own seed, from a similar plant grown last year.

We will reach common ground only when we all come down off our pedestals.

The marriage of Miss Florence M. Jack, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Jack, of Forester's Falls, Ont., and Mr. Kenneth James Garard, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Garard, of Toronto, took place Saturday, August 4, at the St. James Church, Carleton Place. Canon T. H. Iveson officiated.

The bride was gowned in white crepe with elbow-length veil of white tulle held in place with a white satin coronet. She carried a white prayer-book, with white streamers and rosebuds.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ruth MacIntyre, of Ottawa, wore pale blue crepe with a white Dutch cap.

The groom was supported by Mr. John Jack, Jr.

After the ceremony, the wedding party proceeded to the home of the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. Ross Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson, 12 Joseph Street, where a reception was held on the beautiful grounds, and where refreshments were served to about 40 guests. The numerous and beautiful gifts testified to the esteem in which the young couple are held. The wedding party motored to Toronto followed by the best wishes of all, the bride wearing a beige suit with brown accessories.

Guests from a distance were Mr. Wm. Garard, of Toronto, father of the groom; Mrs. Wm. Garard, Jr., and little son, Billy, of Marmora; Mrs. Norman Drysdale, of Ottawa; and Miss M. C. James, of Lachute.

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Montmorency Falls, Scenic Highlight of Old Quebec. Canadian National Railways Photograph

Do you know Quebec? For example, do you know that it would be impossible to surpass the splendid and varied beauty of landscape of the Laurentians the St. Lawrence Valley, the Gaspe, the Saguenay, the Gatineau, the St. Maurice Valley, Abitibi and Temiscamingue. Lofty mountains, lush lowlands, deep forests, sparkling lakes and laughing rivers . . . these are natural color highlights that stand out from the quieter-toned background of history-steeped sites and ancient buildings haunted by the romantic spirits of Cartier, Champlain, Frontenac, Talon, de Laval, Montcalm. And to frame this lovely picture, there still remain the Old World grace and hospitality, the unspoiled way of life so typical of Quebec.

And in sharp contrast is the functional beauty of Quebec's great cities with towering skyscrapers, huge stores and every modern attraction; complete, comfortable transportation facilities by road, rail, air and water; tremendous industrial expansion, scientific development of natural resources, notable progress in the arts, education and living conditions. This is the new Quebec—the Quebec of today, wrested from the virgin wilderness, cultivated, over a period of more than three centuries by the dogged determination of a race of pioneers and bequeathed by them to their descendants whom environment and upbringing have qualified for the task of carrying on a great tradition.

To know Quebec, then, is to realize how capably her people have borne their trust. To Quebec's long, proud history they have added new pages . . . heroic records of men in the armed forces . . . mighty contributions to the war effort . . . profound consideration of post-war problems. Thus Quebec, through blood, sweat, and tears bound closer to her sister provinces, calmly faces the future ready for the matchless opportunity that lies ahead for Canada.

QUEBEC PRODUCES FOR WAR

To Quebec's already glorious history has been added her wonderful contribution to Canada's war effort. Pulp, paper, native ores and manufactured metals, clothing, chemicals, textiles, ships, foods, petroleum, electrical supplies, to mention only a few products of her mines, mills and factories: $2,703,357,600.00 subscribed by her people in eight Victory Loans: thousands of men in the navy, army and air force who have distinguished themselves on global battlefronts. Thus have her sons and daughters recorded Quebec's part on Canada's wartime honor roll.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

By Jessie Allen Brown

SATISFACTORY APPOINTMENT

The appointment of Sir Harold Alexander as Governor-General is proving to be a very pleasing one. It had been suggested from some sources that a Canadian be appointed to the position. There is no doubt that we have many Canadian men who could grace the position, but I for one am very glad that an Englishman has been appointed. We are gradually severing so many ties that it is good to see this one retained, if for only sentimental reasons. It is a privilege for Canadians to learn to know distinguished Englishmen, just as it is for the Governor-General, his wife, and his staff, to have an opportunity to visit all parts of Canada and to know its pepople.

MEAT RATIONING

No person enjoys having meat rationing, but most of us have felt for some time that we should have less so that other less fortunate peoples should have more. If it were put in force simply to satisfy the clamor from across the Line that would be another matter. Statistics show that as it is we are eating less pounds, (about ten of them) per person, already in Canada than the people in the United States, even though we apparently have much more than they have. The reason for this is that it has been handled better in Canada. It has been an easier thing to do it here because of our smaller population, and because of the comparatively small number of packing houses Black markets have not got out of hand in Canada. Remember that Black Markets are made by the consumer and if we want to be free of them here, it is up to every individual to obey the law and not to try to chisel extra meat. Rationing is not in effect as this is written, but we have always been able to get meat of some kind. Even with reduced meat supplies we still will have plenty to eat.

A TUB FOR TOYS

Here is another baby idea. One of the young mothers arrived with her babies toys packed in a butter tub. It is attractively painted with the outside in pink, and scalloped around the top in a deeper shade, and the inside in torquoise blue. Rope handles are attached. The tub is used to store the toys and her baby has a wonderful time when in the play pen taking them out and putting them back in again. When she goes visiting she puts the folding play pen and the tub of toys in the back of the car and her baby is no trouble at all.

NEW IDEAS

When we are invited out for a meal and besides having good food we get some new ideas to use ourselves and to pass on to others in this column, it seems to be a real event. I was lucky recently and here are three ideas all garnered at the same dinner. First course, canteloupe served with a wedge of lime. I have had lemons with canteloupe but this was the first time for lime and the squeeze of lime juice certainly gave a zip and added flavor to the canteloupe. The next thing was an absolutely new dressing for meat. My friend confided to her butcher that she was having company for dinner and was going to serve dressed pork chops. He asked her if she had ever made her dressing with oatmeal instead of bread crumbs and he assured her she would like it. So she tried it and it certainly was good. She even added a few raisins at his suggestion. The dressing was made exactly the same as usual, just substituting oatmeal for the crumbs. Try it some time. I imagine it would be very good with dressed veal. The third idea was a Wacky Cake and that deserves a paragraph all to itself.

WACKY CAKE

½ Cup flour, 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt.

Sift these dry ingredients into an ungreased 8 by 8 pan. Make three large dents in this mixture with the back of a tablespoon. Put 1 teaspoon of vanilla into one dent, 1 tablespoon vinegar into another dent, and 5 tablespoons melted shortening in the third. Pour 1 cup of tepid water over this and mix thoroughly. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees. Certainly sounds wacky enough, doesn't it? I tried it and believe it or not, it makes a good chocolate cake. To my surprise the cake came out of the pan quite easily. It looked good enough to ice, or as they say in the Maritimes to frost, and as we happened to have some marshmallows, we covered the cake with marshmallows and put it in the oven just long enough to soften them enough to spread. We melted a square of chocolate over hot water and dribbled this over the marshmallows.

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

Most recipes for Refrigerator Rolls tell you to allow the dough to stand for an hour at room temperature after taking from the refrigerator and forming into rolls. When I did this my rolls were not nearly as good as the ones which had not been refrigerated and I did not think much of the idea. However, I did a bit of experimenting and kept the rolls in a warm place until they had doubled in bulk, which takes at least two hours as they are so cold that the action of the yeast is delayed. After they have doubled in bulk then I form the dough into rolls and let it rise again. Since I have been doing this I find that the rolls are as good as those made up directly. Any roll recipe can be used for refrigerator rolls. This doubling in bulk business is a bit vague unless your eye is better on measuring than mine. The touch system is a better one. When you touch the dough and it does not come into place, then you know the dough has risen sufficiently, but if it quickly pops up again the dough needs to keep on rising. When you are shaping rolls if you form a circle with the thumb and first finger of the left hand and slip the roll through this it will help to make a good shaped roll. Rolls are like biscuits. they are better not too thick with flour. Recipes calling for 2 cups of milk will take from 6 to 7 cups of bread flour, and I hate to have to use more than 6½ cups. Flours differ and it is not possible to tell the exact amount necessary but use as little as you can and still be able to handle the dough. If you rub a little butter over the rolls when you take them from the oven it will make a nicer crust, and it takes very little butter.

TEEN-AGERS FIND LIFE IN CAPITAL CAN BE COMPLEX

Social Workers Help Girls Occupying Temporary Civil Service Jobs

Ottawa (CP) — "I haven't phoned my mother for two months!" the 'teen-aged girl from Calgary said happily, and Miss Anne-Marie Fischl, special counsellor at Ottawa's Y.W.C.A., checked off another of her cases as successfully completed.

The girl, fresh out of high school, had come alone to the capital to take a grade one civil service clerk's job, had found unsatisfactory housing, where she was required to cook, clean and care for a large family. From homesickness and unhappiness she telephoned her mother in Calgary twice a week — and worked overtime at the office to pay for the calls.

Worn out with it all, she thought of the "Y", where Miss Fischl ("Mimi" to her friends) helped her out of her difficulties — finding her a new boarding place, putting her on a budget and stopping the work after hours. She joined some "Y" activities and began to make friends.

Two months later she came into Miss Fischel's office, all smiles, to say she no longer needed to lean on her mother or anyone else.

This girl is typical of one of Miss Fischl's most important jobs — helping girls who are temporary wartime employees in the civil service. To most of them Ottawa is a terrible let-down.

"To 16-year-olds used to about 50 cents a week pocket money, a telegram promising a grade one job with $60 a month plus cost-of-living bonus, train fare paid to Ottawa and somebody at the station to meet them, seems pretty wonderful," Miss Fischl said. "But then they find they can't get a nice place to live, the $60 a month doesn't go very far, and there are no men."

Five Problems

Their troubles usually concern one or more of five things: a place to live, their jobs, money, health and the need for friends. The "Y" helps solve the room problem with residence space for 76 girls, and these 76 automatically have half the friend problem taken care of.

Three dances during the year have helped with the other half. Believe it or not, said Miss Fishl, at each dance S.O.S. calls were sent out for more girls. The residence had telephoned several servicemen's organizations and the boys flocked in.

Civil service girls often do not fit into the jobs they are first given to do or they find it hard to get along with someone in the office. In such a case a fresh start in another branch is the best thing.

Another problem was the girl who discovered she had tuberculosis. Miss Fischl found her a job in the Niagara district where the climate was more healthful for her.

Other counselling jobs Miss Fischl has taken on include women discharged from the services and British war brides. Loneliness is the great problem of the war brides and she is helping them make friends through the "Y's" Home Arts Club.

With all this counselling, she is eager to expand her work especially in government departments, only a few of which have trained social workers. "We are here with the service," she said, "Only send us the girls."

MORE WOMEN THAN MEN AFFECTED BY COMMON COLD

Survey Shows Consistently More Colds Among Office Workers Than Factory Workers

The common cold affects more women than men, and hits office employees much harder than factory workers, according to a two-year study conducted by Joseph H. Kler, M.D., of New Brunswick, N.J.

Dr. Kler's report, appearing in a recent issue of Archives of Otolaryngology, published by the American Medical Association, covers basic and detailed facts about the occurrence of the common cold in industry which, he said, is responsible for more than one-third of the total number of days lost in American factories.

The study, among other things, disclosed that:

There is a definite pattern to the incidence of colds, with the highest peak in December and the lowest in July;

There is a definite correlation between temperature and the onset of colds, every sudden drop in temperature being followed in a day or two by a rise in the number of colds;

The highest incidence of colds was found in the age group 20 to 29 years and the lowest in the age group above 50 years. However, the percentage of time-losing colds increased with age;

There were more colds among women than among men;

There were consistently more colds among office workers than among factory workers;

There were fewer colds in air conditioned plants, with the incidence of colds highest in drafty places;

More colds start on Monday than on any other day of the week, this being especially true of colds among men;

Posture is an important factor, with the incidence and severity of colds lowest among those whose work necessitates walking about most of the time;

Smoking apparently has little effect on colds.

Championship Victory Garden Helps Feed Family of 18

NEAR-PERFECT SCORE: The 200 by 50 foot plot (above), which has been adjudged the best victory garden on the Island of Montreal this year, helps feed the eight grown children and eight grand-children of Joseph Totta (inset), section foreman for the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal West. Totta works an hour before going on duty at 7 a.m. and three hours after quitting time at 4 p.m. in growing 22 different vegetables, many of which Mrs. Totta canned or put down, as her share in supplementing the commercially grown vegetable supply needed to alleviate the food shortage in Europe. Judges for The Montreal Star contest which Totta won, called his garden "without doubt the finest vegetable garden ever entered in the competition" and gave him 28 out of a possible 30 points for quality. They looked in vain for weeds and pests and particularly remarked on his four-inch-deep cultivation, a valuable aid to moisture conservation.

Repatriate Servicemen Urged to Confer With Citizens' Committee

Civilian Group Anxious that Veterans Share All Benefits of Rehabilitation

A meeting of the local Rehabilitation Committee was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, when Messrs. Suckling and Michaud, of the Montreal Regional Office, were present to discuss problems. James W. Gall, chairman of the committee, presided.

Mr. Suckling, in a few brief remarks, outlined the benefits to which veterans are entitled. These are five in number, and each veteran on discharge from the services is told about them. . . It may be noted, any veteran who is not clear on what he is entitled to, or who needs advice on how to obtain any of the benefits, should get in touch with the local committee, who are anxious to help.

The Department of Veterans Affairs is capable of dealing with any case which presents any difficulty whatever. All that is required is a written statement of the facts; these will be forwarded to the Department and a representative will be sent to interview the veteran.

It is hoped that the local contact committee will soon function more quickly and effectively. It has been decided to hold a meeting every two weeks, when the case of each returning veteran will be considered, and those who need help will be promptly dealt with. The dates of these meetings will be duly announced.

The Government has set up adequate machinery to look after every returning veteran, and the local committee is anxious to see that the machinery is set working.

In conclusion of the meeting the committee extended their thanks to the visiting representatives. Afterwards, the cases of two local veterans who had come for assistance were considered, and advice given by these officials of the Montreal office.

DISCUSSING THE ATOM

Saskatoon (CP) — Dr. Gerhard Horzberg, research professor of physics at the University of Saskatchewan, said the atomic bomb which utilizes the release of energy locked in the atom may bring about an industrial revolution of the same magnitude as that made by the invention of the steam engine.

Around the Country

John Doig of Listowell, Ont., at 75 years is looking forward with joy to the immediate future when he will be able to walk with artificial legs again; a noted step dancer, he lost both legs five years ago. . . . A town by-law now at Val d'Or, Que., says "Members of the feminine sex cannot longer wear shorts within town limits." . . . . George Stascuik of McElhanny, Sask., 72, swam across Lake Manitou and back before breakfast recently; he is the father of 13, five of whom were in the service . . . STE. AGATHE GIVES ROYAL WELCOME TO REPATRIATES

Met by his father and sister in Montreal, a former Lachute boy returning from overseas had a royal welcome at his home town, Ste. Agathe, on his arrival last week. Gnr. Stephen May, son of the Rev. and Mrs. E. G. May, described to The Watchman this fine example of civic gratitude :

"The town and others were at the station to meet me. The Boys' Band accorded me the General Salute, which, it appears, they do for all repatriates from Gunner to Field Marshal. . . The only unpleasant thing about it was a heavy rainstorm at the time we arrived."

Gnr. May, R.C.A., served in Italy and on the battlefronts of western Europe.

Lost River Boy Wins Medal for Bravery in Action

Lost River — According to an announcement received from Ottawa by his mother, Mrs. Wm. J. R. Beaton, Sapper Buddy Beaton, aged 30, has been awarded the Military Medal for conspicuous galantry in the field, during action in Italy.

Sapper Beaton joined the Canadian Forestry Corps in 1940, going overseas in 1941. He served in Scotland until 1943, when he was transfered to the R.C.E.M.E., with which regiment he served in Italy and Northern Europe. Sapper Beaton is at present stationed in Scotland and it is understood he will receive his decoration when he returns to Canada.

Sapper Beaton's parents and one sister, Mrs. Hattie Morrow, live at Lost River. Another sister, Mrs. Ross Cleland, resides in Dalesville.

One Injured in Highway Collision

Two miles east of Grenville on Route 8, two automobiles collided with considerable force late Saturday night, and one woman suffered severe facial injuries as a result.

An Ottawa car was coming east, driven by Rene Lajeunesse, whose party was proceeding to Ste. Agathe to visit relatives. There were six persons in the automobile. Travelling west, a Montreal car driven by Donat Cayer sideswiped the other machine and both were badly wrecked. Mrs. Armand Lajeunesse, 59, mother of the Ottawa motorist, suffered a severe cut on the forehead; taken to the Notre Dame Hospital, Hawkesbury, she received medical aid. In the other car the driver's daughter, Claire Cayer, aged 7, was slightly injured above one eye.

Circumstances of the accident were investigated by H. Jones, traffic patrolman for the district.

FOUR YOUTHS HELD, SUSPECTS IN CRIME WAVE, STE. AGATHE

Police believe that they have put an end to the crime wave which hit the town of Ste. Agathe early this month, with the arrest last week-end of four teen-age youths on charges of armed robbery, robbery with violence and stealing from automobiles, among other counts.

The four young men are Jimmy Piche, 19, Ken Decarie, 18, Bernard Belanger, 19, and R. Lanthier, 18. Police said the youths were responsible for the wave of crimes in Ste. Agathe since the beginning of August. They stated the four youths, wearing masks and one of them carrying a heavy revolver, attacked a man and a woman around midnight on August 9. They are charged with beating and robbing the two persons. They are also charged with robbing and beating a well-known doctor in similar circumstances.

The youths also face charges of breaking into two Ste. Agathe restaurants where, according to the charge, they stole several hundred dollars worth of merchandise. Police also hold them responsible for the theft of three cars as well as several thefts from parked automobiles.

CAUGHT ENTERING GRENVILLE HOTEL

Taken in charge by Traffic Officer Howard Jones, of Calumet, a 21-year-old St. Philippe man, Gerard Pilon, was handed over to Provincial Police and taken to St. Jerome on a charge of entering with intent to steal.

The arrest followed an incident which occurred around one o'clock last Saturday morning at the Century Inn, Grenville, owned by Oscar Jodion. Roger Jodoin, son of the proprietor, was disturbed during the night by the noise of a door being broken open. He aroused one of the hotel employees and together they came upon the young intruder and grabbed him. Officer Jones was called to make the arrest, and the prisoner, escorted by Det. John Ross of the Provincial Police, was taken to the St. Jerome jail awaiting arraignment before a judge.

Third Place, Merit In Agriculture, to District Farmer

A farmer of St. Remi, Leon Sedillot, has won highest honors in the 1945 competition of the Order of Agriculture, it was announced by Hon. Laurent Barré, Quebec Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. Sedillot wins the Gold Medal and the title of Commander of Agricultural Merit. He took first place with 909 points out of a maximum of 1000. George E. Smith, Napierville, is second with 894.5, and Clifford Oswald, St. Augustin (Two Mountains) holds third rank with 887.5.

Due to adverse climatic conditions last spring which discouraged many farmers, only 38 competitors were in line this year: 5 for the Gold Medal, 29 for the Silver Medal and 3 for the Bronze Medal.

The district covered by the 1945 competition took in the area north and south of Montreal.

Rotary Plans Taking Shape for Carnival Next Month at B'burg

NEW DISTRICT GOVERNOR ADDRESSES MEMBERS ON ROTARY IDEALS

Brownsburg — "Rotary and the Individual Rotarian" was the subject of an inspiring talk by District Governor Douglas Silverston, of Rotary International, to the local club at their weekly dinner meeting on Tuesday August 14, at Carrière's Hotel.

The four objects of Rotary were defined as —

1. The development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service;
2. High ethical standards in business and professions; recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations; and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society;
3. The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business and community life;
4. The advancement of international understanding, good will and peace, through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

These ideals, standing for unselfish service, understanding sympathy and tolerance, are most worthwhile for any member. Each club is autonomous and carries out the ideals to the best of their ability, in a manner best suited to their community and its needs.

Membership carries with it obligations — financial, time and effort — in unselfish service. Real effort will make one a useful cog in the life of the community, a leader deserving of respect and confidence.

Rotary ideals are like skills. They must be exercised to remain useful. By exercising them you build up others and indirectly build confidence and ability in yourself. You learn that the other man's trade, business or profession has worthwhile characteristics as well as yours; that he has his difficulties; his good luck; good ideas and disappointments, just the same as you. Tolerance is gained through personal contact and friendly fellowship. Sympathy for the other fellow comes through a realization that he is a human being like yourself.

There was never a time when there was greater need for friendly understanding in the world, not only among individuals, but also among nations.

If Rotarians will only take up the challenge and set an example, by following their ideals not only to the letter, but also in spirit, much can be achieved toward the type of world we all want to live in. We must follow these ideals, if the world is to survive.

The speaker was introduced by Jim Houlden and thanked very cordially by Charlie Moseley.

Laurier Carrière was inducted by the Governor and welcomed wholeheartedly by the members.

Dennis Staniforth announced the successful completion of a six-week camp term by a local needy girl, who was most appreciative of this opportunity to regain health and vigor. President Sam Ross expressed the thanks of the club to Dennis Staniforth, Edgar Pollock and George Zsombor, who had given of their time and cars to transport the little girl to the mountain resort, as well as look after the purchasing of necessary clothing.

Norm Somers — appointed director of the Rotary Carnival to be held at the picnic grounds in Brownsburg on September 20, 21 and 22 — discussed the plans in some detail and, by the enthusiasm shown among members, Brownsburg and Lachute will have an event to look forward to.

Judging by the recent support of the club's recent draw for an electric washing machine, the efforts for community service are appreciated and much good work can be carried out. At present several needy medical cases are receiving attention.

Guests of the evening included Walter Nesbitt, of the Rotary Club of Montreal; Harold Barrie and Tom Hall, of Brownsburg; and Ross MacAdam, A. E. Ladouceur, S. Rogers, D. Heggie, J. O. Ridge and L. Bedard, of St. Andrews East.

Members of the local club have been travelling far afield and visiting Rotary Clubs in various cities during vacations — Jim Houlden at Bridgeport, Conn.; Sam Ross at Toronto; Sid Stilwell and Hub Tomalty at Ottawa; Wes Freeland at Brockville; Charlie Moseley at St. Jerome (the shortest distance); and Harris Sherwood at Medicine Hat (the farthest point).

"See you at the Carnival" — September 20, 21 and 22.

CORONER PRESIDES, ST. JOVITE FATALITY

Replacing Dr. Alfred Duval of St. Jerome, coroner of the adjacent legal district, during absence from his office — Dr. Jules Lafleur of Lachute, joint coroner for this district, held an inquest in a fatality which occurred under unusual circumstances at St. Jovite, Que. The victim, Claude Huot, 42, was killed instantly when crushed beneath his automobile; the car slipped off some brick blocks while the owner was making repairs.

Occupied during the morning fixing his car, the victim jacked it up on brick blocks. Called to lunch by his wife he failed to answer and was discovered dead by his 12-year-old son. He had been dead about two hours.

The coroner held an inquest after an investigation by Det. Leon Pronovost of the Provincial Police, and rendered a verdict of accidental death caused by a crushed thorax.

Dr. Lafleur was called to two other inquests in the Labelle district — one on the finding of a man's body in the woods near Ste. Anne des Plaines and the other in the death of a girl by drowning.

Plant Employment at Brownsburg Getting Back to Normal Levels

"Now Recognize Those Native 'Burgers Who Became Submerged in War Influx"

(By Our Special Correspondent)

Brownsburg — After a two-weeks vacation period the C-I-L and Canadian Safety Fuse employees have returned to work, and operations are in full swing once again. War orders have been tapering off for some time in Brownsburg, so that at the end of hostilities very little additional cut-back was experienced. The personnel has shrunk to normal levels, so that it is possible now to recognize indigenous Brownsburgers who had become submerged in the influx of war-workers!

Rehabilitation

An important meeting of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Committee was held Monday night, when three officers of the Department of Veterans' Affairs visited and took part in the business of the meeting. Mr. D. Cooper presided and welcomed the visitors. Arrangements were made to deal with the increasing number of returning veterans, and the secretary, M. V. Trayers, reported on the work done during the past month. A very satisfactory state of affairs was revealed. Brownsburg has a Service Roll of 465 names. There are 14 names on the Honor Roll — the names of Brownsburg boys who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Swimming Pool Reopened

After a two-weeks shutdown for repairs, the Youth Welfare Committee have again opened their swimming pool, and the children — yes, and numerous adults too — enjoy themselves in full measure.

Annual Picnic

The ever popular Brownsburg picnic takes place on September 3, and bids fair to rival the best of many a successful day's sport held at the same venue and under the same auspices. An extensive program has been arranged and prizes galore are being offered to the contestants in the various events, win or lose.

Civic Pride

Even though our reference is a little belated, the new road signs erected and traffic lines stencilled along the roadways and streets are justly appreciated. The completion of the tiles along the main was a great improvement, and all in all Brownsburg has the mark of progress writ large, in its buildings, streets and public works, denoting a civic pride and spirit which may well compare with any town of its size in Canada. We are proud of Brownsburg — but then we have something to be proud of.

Archbishop's Visit

Archbishop Vachon, Prelate in charge of the Ottawa Diocese, under whose jurisdiction Brownsburg lies, paid an official visit to the parish on Sunday last. His Excellency administered the sacrament of Confirmation to a large number of the children, and remained overnight to assist at the reading of Mass on Monday.

Earlier in the day Archbishop Vachon read High Mass at St Philippe. There was a large congregation present to hear the sermons in French and English.

"Uttermost Bounds of Evil"

"We have seen war — this greatest of all evils — mount to its maximum, reaching dimensions unknown before with the use of weapons which menace the foundations or human society," Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa said recently. "Perhaps we had to come to the uttermost bounds of evil to realize that war cannot remain the arbiter of our destinies. I hope that with the work we have done at San Francisco, and the atomic bomb, mankind is learning its lesson; that this is the end of war and that a new beginning needs to be made."

Oldest Resident Of Harrington Dies In Her 94th Year

Late Annie Shaw McRae

Harrington — Following a brief illness, death came to the oldest resident in the Township of Harrington, in the person of Annie Shaw McRae, widow of the late Neal McRae, who passed away last Thursday in her 94th year. Active almost to the end of her days, Mrs. McRae lived a busy life, dating practically from the days of pioneering in the Township of Harrington. Beloved and respected, her home was always open to neighbor and friendly visitor. There, the minister was a welcome guest, and the Church held a large place in her life and that of her family; her daughter Sarah is at present organist of the church. The funeral service was held at the home on Sunday afternoon — one of the largest funerals in the history of the community. The service was conducted by the Rev. S. J. Pike, of Brownsburg, who spoke in praise of the deceased and brought comfort to the large family circle. Familiar hymns used included, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "He Leadeth Me, O Blessed Thought"; Mrs. J. McRae, of Bell Falls, was accompanist. Burial took place in the Shaw Cemetery at Harrington, the pall-bearers being Messrs. Dougal McTavish, J. D. Shaw, J. McRae, J. Marshall, Murdoch McRae and Earle McLeod.

Her husband predeceased her 20 years ago.

FARM TOPICS

Farm Workers Will Aid Western Harvest

The transfer of a substantial number of farm workers from Eastern Canada to the Prairie Provinces for the grain harvest will be undertaken again this year by the Dominion Labor Department, according to the Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor. Up to 6,000 farm workers from Ontario and Western Quebec will be involved in this movement.

The Labor Department has been working in co-operation with provincial officials, laying plans for the transfer. Men will be recruited voluntarily in the Central Provinces, and will be moved to distribution centres on the Prairies, from which they will be despatched to local points where their services are required for harvesting.

"The railways have again agreed to give substantial reductions in fares" Hon. Mr. Mitchell said, "so that we will again move the men West free of charge, and require only a nominal payment of ten dollars for the return trip."

It is expected that the departure of men from Ontario and Quebec will start late in August, although the heavier portion of the movement will probably not take place until September, as harvesting in Ontario and Quebec is late. The plan worked out between officials of the Department of Labor and those of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec provides that men will not be removed from any area in these two provinces as long as their services are still required for the harvesting of local crops. In the Province of Quebec it is planned to include in the area for the recruitment of workers to go West, only those counties adjacent to the Hull area, and the northwestern corner of the province.

"Demands for food continue to be insistent and urgent", the Labor Minister said, "so that it is vitally important once again that we harvest everything that our farmers have grown. The men from the farms of Ontario and Quebec make ideal harvesters for the grain fields of the Prairies. Annually since 1942 they have offered in large numbers to assist the western farmer, and it is difficult to see how all the western crops wiuld have been saved except for the assistance of farmers from Ontario and Quebec."

The men going from the East will be paid current harvesting rates on the Prairies, and in other years the Eastern farmer has been able to bring back with him a sizeable sum of money. As last year, farmers wishing to go West will contact the nearest office of the National Employment Service.

Ayrshire Field Day At. St. Hyacinthe

Today (Thursday) an Agricultural rally is under way at the Provincial Dairy School of St. Hyacinthe, which is under direction of S. J. Chagnon, agronomist and president of the Provincial Ayrshire Breeders' Club. The event will conclude with an auction of purebred animals.

Visitors will have the opportunity of visiting a vastly interesting farming project regarding crops with a view to the the management of a good dairy herd. This provincial farm has one of the best operated cowpens in Canada: a herd of over 100 Ayrshires, graded according to type, with numerous subjects classified "Excellent" and "Very Good".

The auction sale will take in animals of various ages, all chosen by a committee of experts, in the best farming districts of St. Hyacinthe, where breeders' clubs, notably Ayrshires, give a strong impetus to the improvements of cattle strains.

Market Low Grade Cattle This Month

Forecasting record cattle marketing this fall, the Dominion Department of Agriculture calls on farmers to prevent congestion in packing plants by marketing their low grade cattle in August. Bulls, dry cows and plain cattle should be marketed this month, and all steers and heifers which have attained good finish by September should then be marketed promptly, says the Department.

By following this marketing plan, farmers will be able to dispose of their old cows of both beef and dairy breeding and younger cattle of undesirable type at more advantageous prices than obtainable on a congested market in the fall. Last October and November poor quality cattle flooded the markets in such quantities that packing plants could not handle them with the result that some farmers lost money in cattle feed bills and in weight shrinkage.

The Department described packing plant capacity as sufficient to handle promptly all cattle offered this fall if marketings are as orderly as suggested. Packing plant labor is said to be fully as plentiful as last year and more storage space is now available.

Claims Weeds Are Worst Crop Thieves

"Weeds are the greatest crop thieves in Canada", says Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director, Dominion Experimental Farms Service. "Inaction on the part of farmers, in difference on the part of municipalities, railroads and others are causing ever-increasing losses through weeds in crops and by increased costs of production among those farmers who are attempting control measures. Diligence and thoroughness are the only sure remedy," he says. "In cultural measures, the use of clean seed and the prevention of the introduction of still worse weeds for which there are no control measures, is urgent. Why take 20 per cent less crop of grains, hay, and pasture, and why use 50 per cent more labor on all the crops if adequate control measures by individuals in communities would save these?" he asks.

VISION RETURNS TO BLINDED VETERAN

Pembroke, Ont, Aug. 17 (CP) — As he walked down a street, sight returned unexpectedly today to Sgt.-Maj. David Dorward, war veteran who suffered the loss of all but 10 per cent. of his vision in an explosion while serving in Sicily more than two years ago.

When Dorward, a member of the Royal Canadan Ordnance Corps who was mentioned in dispatches for gallantry, returned to Canada in 1943 doctors held out no hope for improvement in his condition and for two years he resigned himself to being virtually blind.

Today, while on his way to a novelty shop he has been operating, he suddenly found he could recognize some of the people he met.

Dorward's eyes were not injured in the explosion and his loss of vision was attributed to shock.

QUEBEC EXHIBITION

REHABILITATION

By WILLIAM STEPHENSON

"If I take a small holding under the Veterans' Land Act, may I apply my Re-establishment Credit to the purchase of tools and furniture?" asks an Artificer, R.C.N.-V.R., from Halifax.

For the most part, Re-establishment Credit and Veterans' Land Act are alternative rehabilitation benefits, intended to meet the needs of different people. As long as a V.L.A. loan is outstanding, you can't apply for the Credit. Even when the loan has been completely repaid within 10 years after discharge, benefits received under the Land Act are deducted from the Credit, and in very few cases will there be any credit left over. However, certain limited amounts can be had under the Land Act itself for "stock and equipment" which should include, for instance, essential furniture up to $250, where the small holding costs less than $6,000 (which is usually the case). These amounts become an outright grant after the terms of the contract have been met for ten years.

"How will the gratuities be paid?" writes a former Company Sergeant Major from Brandon, Manitoba. I have heard many versions of this, and am taking this opportunity of writing to you for full information."

Well, it's like this: The clothing allowance of $100 and the Rehabilitation grant of one month's pay of rank are received at the time of discharge. Dependents' allowances that are being paid while you are in the services will be continued for one month after discharge. Your War Service gratuity proper is paid in equal monthly installments which cannot exceed your service pay and allowances, (including subsistence allowance). The first gratuity check should reach you about one month after discharge, and with it will come a gratuity statement. That statement must be presented to the District Supervisor of Re-establishment Credit if you apply for your credit, since the latter is based on your gratuity.

"I am a photographer by profession, and I have spent my five years in the Air Force in that trade," writes a sergeant from London, Ont. "I have been unsuccessful in obtaining a Speed Graphic camera. The question in mind is, can I buy one of these cameras from the R.C.A.F.?"

Equipment that is no longer needed by the services is turned over to the government-owned War Assets Corporation for sale. The Corporation usually disposes of it through normal business channels. We are informed that no Speed Graphic cameras have yet become "surplus." You might want to contact one of the Corporation's branch offices, which are located at Halifax, Moncton, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, London, Port Arthur, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver.

A Plea for Canadian Youth

Part of a recent radio address given by JOHN HUGHES, Chairman, Department of Education, McGill University

I wish you could have shared with me a heart-warming sight, one recent morning. On the steps of the Arts Building of McGill University were gathered scores of young men, back from the wars. They looked fine. It was a sight such as had not been seen for some years, and we hope soon — please God— to see many more back from the East when final victory is won. They looked uncommonly well. They represent Canada's veteran youth — some of the very best of them. They have already given some of the best years of their lives for Canada, and they have the vision and foresight and patience to give still more years, to fit themselves for further patriotic service in peace-time. Further, they have the good sense to see that, in the kind of world in which we are moving, no man can be too well equipped educationally. They have heard and believed these notable words of Winston Churchill's :—

"The future of the world is to the highly educated races. You cannot conduct a modern community except with an adequate supply of persons upon whose education, whether humanitarian, technical or scientific, much time and money have been spent".

In other words, Mr. Churchill insists that there is no bargain basement in education. Modern education is a big business, wholly indispensable to the nation's well-being, and costly. We have to foot the bill. But Canada's youth has proved that it is well worth the outlay: and Canada's youth is far and away the finest of all this Dominion's assets.

Some of the veterans are married men and fathers. They are looking ahead to their children's schooling and are keenly interested in the problem of Canadian education. In between the Canadian veteran student and his child, lies another generation — the children actually in public and high schools today. Some of these are juvenile delinquents, or problem children. Is it at all surprising? Think of the conditions that have made up their environment during their formative years — the wartime strains and tensions and excitement; the domestic changes and upheavals; the fears and anxieties unconsciously conveyed to them by their elders. Take one educational agency alone — the radio. Day in, day out, for nearly six years—the most plastic years of their lives at that — morning, afternoon and evening, they have heard a continuous tale of destruction. In view of these influences, the wonder is not that so many of them are juvenile delinquents, but that so many of them have kept an even keel. With some of them going astray, the demand is heard for guidance — for intellectual, spiritual and moral direction: in other words, for sound education. And if there is one group more likely to press this demand than others, it is the returning men.

I recently heard from a young friend of mine who has now served nearly five years overseas. He writes a chatty letter running into many pages. His identity must, of course, remain a military secret, but I think he would readily forgive me for making him the anonymous spokesman for his comrades. These are some of his ideas, and they seem to be timely and relevant.

"Since I left Canada in 1941, it has been an education to see the various countries of Europe, and one gets to appreciate more and more the advantages that Canada enjoys" . . . "Canada undoubtedly offers the greatest chances in the world today. . . . In resources we are much happier than other countries. . . . We can combine the quality of the British with the mass-production of the Americans, and it seems to me that Canada's destiny in the next 50 years will be unsurpassed. For my part, I am very happy and proud of the part Canada played in the European war". . . . "I think we can make a fairer standard of living for Canadians than almost any other country. Our Canadian people must be educated to spend a reasonable amount of leisure in the enjoyment of the arts, music, literature, languages, travel, handicrafts, after accomplishing that standard of living. . . Discipline and not disaster, liberty and not license. . . . One thing I learnt at McGill was the value of French, however haltingly spoken. . . National governments will have to be international in outlook."

Here is a young Canadian who has gone through some pretty shattering experiences over in Europe, but without surrendering his personal idealism. I quote again from his letter: "Perhaps you think I am dreaming, yet in the long run one must dream of an ideal — to whom better than a professor friend who once on the campus told an undergraduate that nothing was worth while unless it was obtained by hard work".

Well, for my part, I am glad that he has not lost his dreams and ideals, for "Where there is no vision, the people perish", and it is only right and proper that our young men should see visions, and try to fulfil them in practical reality. It was a young law student many years ago who, on leaving McGill University, addressed his fellow students and shared with them his vision of a happier and more united Canada, and pledged himself to lifelong work for better relations between Canadians of French and British origin. Later in life, this same man—Sir Wilfrid Laurier —did much to make that dream a reality. And as my friend Murray Chipman says in a current article, "British Canadians in wartime have learned to recognize, in our fellow Canadians of a different racial tradition, those proud and gallant qualities which have made national unity no problem in the Canadian fighting forces overseas."

On reading my young soldier-friend's letter, it was interesting to note how he had grown simultaneously in two directions: he has become a better Canadian and at the same time a better citizen of the world. He is prouder than ever before of Canada and in the same breath he insists

Time to Diminish Government Controls

ADVERTISING of vacancies for stenographers in the Wartime Prices and Trade Board evoked criticism in a press editorial this week—on the logical assumption it indicated an expansion of staff. There is a widespread sentiment that these war-born departments and branches of government should be showing signs of early break-up and a scrapping of their costly machinery, instead of increasing their scope. With this feeling on the surge, it is understandable that any move to the contrary, such as the supplementing of staffs, should rile the taxpayer sorely.

There is strong agitation among certain people for the disbanding of Selective Service. Yet from the mainsprings of this well-rooted enterprise, there now come plans to retain it in perpetuity as a public employment exchange.

Admittedly, the W.P.T.B., another wartime creation, has done a good job, and continuation of its work may be considered advisable — just as long as distribution, supply and demand, remain out of balance. And that will be a considerable time, if this Dominion carries its full responsibility as a producing and exporting nation to fill the needs abroad.

In other aspects of Canada's economy, however — even before the war private business was already feeling the official demands, restrictions and tax levies too costly, both in time and in money. War has notably accentuated this burden. All private business wants is to operate on honest, conscientious lines — relying upon the competitive system to maintain a high standard of goods and services; relying on the free fluctuation of labor to maintain fair wages; relying on efficiency, to promote safe practices, to provide healthful surroundings — and thus to ensure, voluntarily, all the benefits presumably imposed by government inspection.

Most certainly, any move to extend government controls at this time — and at the taxpayer's expense — will be howled down with no subdued voice.

Clothing War-Ravaged Europeans

A NATIONAL Clothing Collection, in the form of a public drive between the dates of October 1 and October 20 next, is being sponsored for the purpose of securing used clothing for free distribution to needy and destitute men, women and children in war-devastated countries.

The Canadian public will be asked to contribute in this campaign only such serviceable used clothing as can be spared from their wardrobes without replacement. There will be no multiplicity of appeals. This will be the one nation-wide clothing collection for allied war relief to be conducted in Canada in 1945.

Throughout war-ravaged areas clothing is very scarce, or threadbare and worn out. More than 125,000,000 people in liberated European nations are in dire need. Of these more than 30,000,000 are children.

Because Canada is dependent on outside sources for a very substantial portion of her requirements of yarn and fabrics, it would not be possible to manufacture in Canada more than a very insignificant part of the total clothing requirement of these people. This means that needy children, men and women in the war-ravaged Allied countries must depend on the help of the Canadian people through their donations of used clothing which can be spared.

The clothing collection is being sponsored by the Canadian United Allied Relief Fund, the co-ordinating body for a dozen different relief organizations concerned with the welfare of their respective countries. Headquarters are at 130 Queen Street, Ottawa, and William M. Birks, of Montreal, is the national chairman.

REMOVAL of grass from the sides of the town roads has, in some sections, resulted in a promising crop of ragweed — the bane of hay-fever sufferers! In some places the grass was disorderly and out of hand; in others its luxuriant growth was a refreshing sight compared with the dust and weeds evident since its removal. Indeed, much of it was so thickly rooted that it was pounced upon by neighbors to provide turf for their gardens.

No Idle Threat

WHEN JAPAN rejected the Potsdam ultimatum a few weeks ago it was clear that the enemy government failed to take literally the Allied threat of "utter destruction" as the alternative to unconditional surrender.

But the ultimatum meant exactly what it said. It was backed by the Allies' knowledge that in their hands lay a machine of death powerful enough to give terrifying effect to a threat hitherto used only in a figurative sense. The dropping of atomic bombs at Hiroshima and Nagasaki quickly brought home to the Japanese warlords the literal accuracy of the words used in the surrender demand.

Had the Japanese known that the United Nations possessed a secret weapon of such potentialities there is no doubt they would have heeded the warning which was given in an effort to prevent its use.

The atomic bomb marks a turning point in the world's history. Bombs and other weapons used in the Battle of Europe were as toys by comparison. The horror of war has become a matter of human survival.

"We have seen war — this greatest of all evils — mount to its maximum, reaching dimensions unknown before with the use of weapons which menace the foundations or human society," Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa said recently. "Perhaps we had to come to the uttermost bounds of evil to realize that war cannot remain the arbiter of our destinies. I hope that with the work we have done at San Francisco, and the atomic bomb, mankind is learning its lesson; that this is the end of war and that a new beginning needs to be made."

In the development of atomic energy science has harnessed colossal power that, properly used, can be of inestimable benefit to mankind. Improperly used, it is conceivable that it might mean the end of civilization as we know it.

Mercenary Motive

THE COMPLAINT is again heard that some people in this district are trying to woo the American tourist business with the excessive use of American flags. It has been pointed out, time and time again, that most Americans would much prefer to see Canadian and British flags when they come to this country on a holiday and do not appreciate too much fawning. Make them welcome — but let them know we are Canadians, is the best form of reception possible.

Glory Be !

MANY stories are told about the celebration of V-E Day, but the one told to the editor this week is the prize one of the lot. Moreover, the narrator vouched for its being absolutely true.

In one town in this province, the celebration was in full blast, when two men met on the street. One was highly elated and cried out, "Wonderful news! The war is over. Now my son can come home."

His friend, more or less mystified, enquired "Have you got a son overseas?"

"Oh no," the first replied, "He is up in the bush."

A NEW SLANT is given on the current shortage of trained help by The Co-Optimist, organ of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool organization. The Co-Optimist tells of a customer who entered a restaurant and ordered a hamburger. The newly hired waitress placed it before him. "Can I have some ketchup?" he asked. "Ketchup?" responded the girl in a puzzled tone of voice. "Yes, ketchup. The red stuff in the bottle over there," said the customer pointing. The girl went off to get some and the customer turned to his meal. When he looked up, a freshly opened bottle of ketchup with two straws placed in it stood before him. —Newmarket Era-Express

What Hunger Is In Europe

● There has been so much bloodshed, and so much horror during the past few years that at times the ties of the brotherhood of man have worn pretty thin.

Canada, who has been playing a part in the war of which we can all be proud, is also concerned with the great humane task of helping to relieve suffering. One of the agencies devoted to this end is UNRRA. I have been reading the monthly review of the activities of UNRRA, and some of the stories tug at your heart strings. Here's one. . . In Yugoslavia the people have been living with the ever-present spectre of hunger. You are used, no doubt, to seeing a few grains of wheat lying about. A few grains out of hundreds of bushels are nothing worth bothering about, so you think. But, when UNRRA is delivering supplies of wheat to Yugoslavia women eagerly sweep up the grains as they escape from the sacks.

In one district of Yugoslavia the distribution of canned meat and vegetables allowed each person is slightly more than one can. Some cans, therefore, had to be opened and their contents portioned out so that each person could have his or her exact allowance. If the scales wavered slightly over the mark, the weighing official took a spoon and removed one bean so that the scales showed the right amount to be given.

And then some of us in Canada are, perhaps, inclined to feel that there is inconvenience in having two meatless days a week. If we get a mental picture of men and women sweeping up a few grains of wheat, and hovering anxiously over an official as he removes one bean so that the scales will register the exact amount, perhaps we won't be inclined to grumble.

Education To Profit

● I see that Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction, has announced a plan whereby non-profit educational institutions in Canada will receive benefits from the disposal of Crown materials.

Mr. Howe says that a considerable quantity of technical equipment and material which is not easily saleable in its present form, is being declared surplus by a number of federal government departments.

Obsolete airplane motors, for instance, may be recognized as one possible group of equipment which would serve technical education in Canada. While these motors may be obsolete for other purposes, they might still be useful in classrooms to demonstrate the principles of airplane power plants.

It is proposed to initiate a series of consultations with representatives of various non-profit educational institutions throughout Canada to determine the potential scope of the plan. It sounds like a fine idea.

Merchant Seamen Get Compensation

● Merchant seamen have faced death countless times in the performance of their duty, and perhaps the contribution they have made has not been sufficiently realized.

Now, the Hon. Lionel Crevier, Minister of Transport, has announced a scheme to provide workmen's compensation for merchant seamen serving on Canadian ships in home trade and foreign voyages. This is made available by the Merchant Seamen's Compensation Regulations, 1945, effective August 1. The regulations provide for a scale of benefits for injury, disability or death suffered by seamen, in cases not covered by the different provincial Workmen's Compensation Acts.

Great Contribution

Canada's greatest single contribution to the war has been training more than 131,000 air crew personnel under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Of these 72,729 or more than 55% were Canadians. More than 95,000 ground crew were also trained, 93,000 of them Canadians.

PORPY THE SKUNK TO GO LITERARY

Buffalo (CP) — Porpy the Skunk, a sad sack of the animal world and the favorite bedtime story hero of Mrs. Betty Ryan's four daughters, soon will have a larger audience. He's going into print.

Mrs. Ryan, wife of a police inspector, said she used to read stories to the girls. "But they soon tired of the same old plots, so I decided to make up my own."

The children liked best to hear about Porpy. Word spread about the neighborhood and the kids next door came to hear tales of the fabulous skunk.

The pretty brunette author's inspirations are: Dorothy, 7; Grace, 6; Pamela, 4, and Karen, 3. The mother said Karen's frequent mishaps — embellished into fairyland situations — provide most of the background for Porpy's adventures.

Mrs. Ryan, a native of West Hartford, Conn., casually described her creation at a party one evening and a publisher's representative, who was present, asked her to submit a manuscript. The book will be distributed at the Christmas season.

'Ogopogo' Again

By Jim Greenblat

You can't tell G. F. Berryman of Penticton, B.C., there is no such thing as Ogopogo, the sea monster. He was supervising irrigation in B. Karrer's orchard and was called to the cliff edge and saw this "something" monster, 90 feet long, travelling at 30 to 40 miles an hour, alternately curving into a ball, swerving, etc. He and another man saw the thing in the middle of the lake and they were plumb sober. It had a head something like a sheep, according to the story told The Herald.

Shrinking from responsibility does anything but stretch our vision.

that he wants government that is international in outlook. Here is a very timely reminder from the fighting front to all of us who educate — whether through the press, the Church, the universities, the schools, the radio, through service and other clubs and fraternities — a reminder of our double duty to homeland and to humanity. My soldier-friend is right. Isolationism is completely out of tune with the realities of our time. The dikes are down. We are, as Wendel Willkie said, "One world". Here is Canada, with the United States to the south, Russia to the north, Great Britain to the east and China to the west; and we must not, we dare not, be content with looking through the southward window alone — attractive as that prospect may be. The discipline of mutual accommodation in a bi-lingual, bi-racial dominion is invaluable as a practical preparation for world citizenship in our contemporary world. It is not by mere accident that Canada has grown an excellent crop of good ambassadors.

Did you notice my young correspondent's reaffirmed belief in liberty (rather than license)—in discipline—in hard work? Here are some of the permanent values of education. A schooling that is all primrose path is a poor preparation for the realities of life. A complete education must involve moral training and character education. Thrift and industry are always timely and useful qualities. Children must be taught that giving is rather more important than getting. If we are to build a healthy society, our boys and girls have to learn to play the game with their fellows, in school and in later life. Thus alone can we grow a crop of employees who will gladly give an honest day's work for an honest day's wage, and employers who will gladly give an honest day's wage for an honest day's work. Thus too will they learn to co-operate — labor and management — to give you and me, the consumer, a quality article, fashioned from good material by good management and good workmanship on a team basis. Economic efficiency cannot be built except on sound moral foundations. It also demands intellectual training and discipline, the only basis for clear thinking.

In the early years of the present war, the Canada and Newfoundland Education Association appointed a Survey Committee to ascertain the chief educational needs of the Dominion of Canada. Dr. W. P. Percival, the chairman, was assisted by a strong group from various provinces. Their recommendations cover the fields of health (properly placed first), problems of administration, educational personnel, curricula, adult education, voluntary agencies and financial support. The report calls for improved and extended facilities for health, health education, medical, dental, nursing and nutrition services: larger units of educational administration to supersede our antiquated single-unit school-boards; equalization funds; raised school-leaving age; post-war school building programmes; better salaries; more men teachers, and more university graduates in the school personnel; composite high school and deversified curricula; a system of scholarships for gifted children; 150 junior colleges; special educational facilities for returned men and women; central and classroom libraries; audio-visual aids; vigorous development of adult education; library service for adult education to be extended over the whole Dominion; encouragement of voluntary agencies. The members of the Survey Committee are all practical-minded and competent men who have kept their feet firmly on the ground. The programme they outline is strictly moderate and reasonable.

They have squarely faced the problem of school finance. Here are their recommendations: Measures should be taken to free school boards from capital expenditures, so that their annual revenues may be devoted to the main items of teachers' salaries, equipment and maintenance. (This would solve one of the most vexatious school problems): School monies should be secured from all sources where the present wealth of the people is found and not only from levies on real property. Fees, wherever levied, should be abolished from the elementary and secondary schools; the practice of apportioning legislative grants according to need should be continued and extended.

Finally, we are bluntly told that "present annual expenditures for education should be double". In addition to the present yearly school expenditure of $146,832,642 throughout the Dominion, an additional annual expenditure of $144,000,000 and an additional capital sum of $59,260,000 — a total of $203,260,000 — should be secured to make the moderate advances outlined in the report. Though all the money named may not be available at once, the sooner it is forthcoming, the sooner the reforms recommended can become effective. —That is the proposed programme. No impartial, competent authority would deny that the Survey Committee has made out an effective and reasonable case. There is the need: there is the blueprint. If we demand the goods for our Canadian youth, we must foot the bill. There is no bargain basement in this business of education. Let us remember the high cost of ignorance; we have to foot the bill.

The Rev. J. R. Heyworth, of Chicago, was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham on Sunday, conducting service in St. Mungo's Church in the evening.

The social held at the Stone Hall under auspices of St. Mungo's Ladies' Aid was very successful. A short program of local and guest talent comprised duets in song by Katherine Cook, of Cushing, and Hazel Brown, of New Carlisle; piano duets by Miss A. Davidson and Miss J. Genest; Scotch songs by Roy Dobbie; and a recitation, "The Little Boats of Britain", by Marylo Wishart, of Kingston — and to those who had seen the movie of Mrs. Miniver, with the little boats of Britain going out in the darkness, this recitation was very realistic. In conclusion, a splendid program of French and English songs was given by the kindness of Mr. Raymond and party, from Montreal.

Yarmouth Wedding Bride and Groom Known in Lachute

Rothney-Robertson

A wedding of interest here took place Wednesday afternoon, August 15, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Robertson, Yarmouth, N.S., when their only daughter, Audrey Elaine, was united in marriage to George Link-later Rothney, son of Mrs. W. O. Rothney and the late Dr. Rothney, Montreal, formerly of Sherbrooke, Que. The Rev. C. L. Blanchard of Central United Church officiated. Summer flowers and fern made an attractive background for the ceremony.

To the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, the bride entered the room on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Her floor-length gown was of white satin. The full skirt fell from a fitted bodice which had a sweetheart neckline and sleeves that came to a point over the hands. Her full length veil of tulle illusion edged with Chantilly lace, fell from a coronet of seed pearls and was caught at the sides with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of pink rosebuds and baby's breath.

Miss Barbara Robertson, of Shelburne, N.S., cousin of the bride, played the wedding music. The bride's mother was dressed in powder blue crepe with white accessories and wore a corsage of American Beauty roses. The mother of the groom wore a redingote dress of pastel blue and white sheer print with white accessories. Her corsage was pink rosebuds.

At the reception which followed the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake which was topped with a small decorated vase holding baby's breath and pink rosebuds. Pale pink tapers in silver holders completed the table decoration.

The happy couple left on a motor trip through the province. For travelling the bride wore a cocoa brown suit of wool crepe with pale yellow blouse, a flower hat in shades of light green and a corsage of roses.

Mrs. Rothney is a graduate of Acadia University and completed post-graduate work in nutrition at Toronto hospitals. For the past two years she has been Household Science instructress at Lachute High School.

Mr. Rothney, a Bishop's University graduate, was also a former member of the teaching staff here; for the past year he has been on the staff of Lachine High School. The couple will reside in Sawyerville, where the groom will be principal of the Consolidated High School.

Two-Ring Feature In Local Wedding

Dennis - Boyd

At the home of the bride's parents in Lachute, the marriage was solemnized at four o'clock Saturday of Margaret Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman J. Boyd, of Lachute, to Mr. John Delos Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Dennis, of Simcoe, Ontario.

The Rev. E. Orsborn officiated. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Cedric Wheeler, of Brownsburg. Gladioli and other garden flowers formed the decorations.

Mr. Boyd gave his daughter in marriage, her attendant being her sister, Miss Leona Boyd, as maid of honor. Mr. Paul Doig, of St. Andrews East, acted as best man for the groom.

The bride wore a long-sleeved gown of white brocaded satin, with fitted bodice, buttoning down the back, and full skirt terminating in a slight train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by forget-me-nots in heart-shaped effect. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses and baby's breath.

Miss Boyd wore a white floor-length gown of mousseline de soie, with matching Juliette cap and carried a bouquet of pastel sweet peas.

Mrs. Boyd, the bride's mother, wore a figured navy sheer with black accessories and a corsage of pink gladioli, Mrs. Dennis, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of dusty rose figured crepe with white accessories and a corsage of white gladioli.

Later the bride and groom left for a motor trip to the United States, the bride travelling in a gold wool suit and brown accessories, and a dark brown gabardine top coat.

The groom has recently been discharged from the R.C.A.F. after four years' service. The bride is a graduate of the Phillips Training School for Nurses, of the Homoeopathic Hospital, Montreal.

Veteran of Now Famous Campaigns

Among the many boys returning from the services we are pleased to welcome home Andrew (Andy) Montgomery, who was one of the first of the Brownsburg boys to go overseas. Andy joined the R.C.A. three days after the outbreak of war and saw service all through western Europe. He was in the landing at Dieppe, whose third anniversary has been celebrated this month. He returned to England after this glorious failure but was back in France two years later when the liberating armies stormed ashore in Normandy. He was with the 2nd Division through the Ardennes Forest, the last major German offensive in the western front, to Belgium and Holland, and finally Aachen, the city which had the doubtful honor of being the first in Germany's so-called sacred soil to shake to the tread of conquering feet. Andy fought under the command of his famous namesake, General Montgomery, from whose birthplace in Ireland Andy came to Canada 15 years ago. . . We welcome him back, and are pleased to note that he came unscathed through the many campaigns he took part in.

The BANK of NOVA SCOTIA
Over a Century of Banking Experience

"I AM A BANKER, the father of a son, and a policyholder in The Mutual Life of Canada. Many years ago my father, who was also a banker, and who saw directly how life insurance can benefit men and women in many ways, impressed on me the value of life insurance. He obtained a policy for me when I was a child, and when I started to work in a bank in my early twenties I purchased another $1,000 policy with The Mutual Life.

"WHEN I MARRIED I insured again, for a larger amount, to give my wife the protection she needed. I chose 20 Pay Life insurance, preferring that plan because I have to make only twenty payments of the same amount, during my best earning years, and then my insurance will be paid-up. When I am ready to retire I can, if I wish, use the cash value of my insurance to purchase a monthly income.

"Now, from my own experience as a banker, I am realizing the wisdom of my father's advice and am teaching my son the value of life insurance."

Government's New Housing Plans

Extracts from a Recent Radio Address

By J. L. E. PRICE, M.E.I.C., President, The National House Builders' Association

It is indeed gratifying to realize that, at long last, housing is occupying its rightful place at the very forefront of National effort.

At long last, the manpower and materials resources of the Dominion are being actively "mobilized" for an all-out attack on this greatest of all problems now standing in the way of orderly demobilization and rehabilitation — the problem of housing for ex-servicemen.

"Mobilization" arrangements in this sense are already well under way, both as to the supply of materials and equipment and as to the supply of building trades mechanics and labor generally.

To cite a few instances of progress to date in this connection: To cope with the demand for lumber, there are now more men actually at work in the bush than ever before in the country's history: To cope with the brick shortage, there are now as many brick plants back in operation as at any time since the start of the war. In general, manufacturers of materials and equipment intended for homes have been given top grading "A" manpower priorities. Because it is one of the most serious bottle-necks, Soil Pipe has been given an even higher priority, the A (E), which is the very highest rating granted.

As to men for the building trades, you will undoubtedly have read of the steps already taken to facilitate and expedite the release of skilled building trades mechanics from the Armed Forces and to facilitate the transfer of workers from other industries to the building industry.

In addition, Selective Service representatives have been posted at all Navy, Army and Air Force Discharge Depots for the express purpose of recruiting men for the house building campaign. . . . Similar recruiting steps are also being taken by National Selective Service when cut-backs occur in any of the war plants.

Generally speaking, the availability of materials and equipment for the building of emergency housing as a whole is going to hinge almost entirely on the supply of manpower. Once an adequate supply of manpower is available, the production of materials and equipment will increase by leaps and bounds, for there is no serious shortage of raw material anywhere along the line. All the manufacturers need is manpower.

The target for the Government policy governing the "mobilization" now proceeding is properly that of providing — primarily for the exclusive benefit of ex-servicemen — two separate and distinct classes of living accommodation, viz :—

1. Minimum cost accommodation intended to be made available on a rental basis, and
2. Moderate priced homes, in integrated developments, intended for sale.

Two entirely new plans have recently been announced by the National Housing Administration at Ottawa, which plans provide for the creation of living accommodation by private enterprise, on both the rental basis and on the home-ownership basis.

Plan No. 1 covering minimum cost rental accommodation is an arrangement whereby the Life Insurance Companies have jointly stepped into the breach to the extent of contributing to the creation of a 10% equity fund amounting to 5 millions of dollars, making available a total of 50 millions of dollars for the formation of the equivalent of Limited Dividend Rental Housing Corporations under the National Housing Act, in most of the larger urban centres from Coast to Coast. It is expected that this fund will make possible the building of not less than 10,000 separate units of living accommodation.

According to a report in Financial Post, there is some likelihood of this particular plan being expanded to cover a total of 20,000 living units or more, instead of 10,000 only as at present, and it is certainly to be hoped that report proves to be correct.

Plan No. 2 sponsored by the National Housing Administration, is the work of Dr. W. C. Clark, Deputy Minister of Finance at Ottawa, and it holds promise of proving to be one of the soundest contributions yet made to the solution of the moderate cost home-ownership problem.

Under this "share the risk" plan, as it has come to be known, many new safeguards are provided for both the owner and the builder.

The owner will have the assurance that his home is located in a properly planned development, that the land value is reasonable, that the home is well planned and well built in accordance with sound National Housing Administration specification standards, and that the price paid for the home will not in any event exceed the predetermined estimated cost to the builder (which cost will be the "lending value" for mortgage purposes) plus a fixed margin of profit, such profit depending on the number of bedrooms provided.

As an inducement to builders to operate under this plan which is primarily intended to provide homes for servicemen and ex-servicemen at prices within their reach, the Government will offer substantial incentives, the principal of these being:—

1. Government agreement to purchase from the builder at the predetermined cost or lending value, plus carrying charges, any house remaining unsold one year after completion. The expectation is that this agreement will make it possible for the builder to arrange any necessary temporary financing through his own bank.
2. N.H.A. mortgage lending values to be based on estimated present day efficient, mass production costs instead of on some arbitrarily deflated basis.
3. Initial N.H.A. Builder's Loans to be for the full amount available to individual owners under Part 1 of the National Housing Act instead of for that amount less 25% holdback pending sale to individual purchasers.
4. Government agreement to adjust predetermined maximum selling prices to compensate for (1) possible increases in materials price ceilings authorized by the W.P.T.B., (2) possible increases in wage rates authorized by War Labor Boards, and (3) increases in taxes on materials.
5. Government agreement to grant the high A (E) labor priority provided for homes built for veterans, and to otherwise extend to the builder every possible assistance in securing adequate supplies of both labor and materials.

In view of all the necessary formalities involved in launching housing developments under this Plan No. 2, it would hardly appear practical to count on many new houses being made available for occupation under this plan in the present year. Next season, however, there will undoubtedly be wide-spread, large scale activity on this "share the risk" basis of operation.

In addition to these entirely new Plans 1 and 2, respectively, the Dominion Government has announced the intention of converting into temporary emergency living accommodation all available Government-owned existing buildings suitable for the purpose. The inference is that this might include the dismantling of existing buildings elsewhere for re-erection on Government-owned land, and this suggests substantial possibilities. Mention should also be made of Wartime Housing Limited activities.

From all this, it will be seen that the stage is now all set for a nation-wide drive on the provision of minimum cost rental housing accommodation, for the benefit of ex-servicemen. The ball is already rolling and it will undoubtedly gain momentum day by day, as time goes on. Machinery to provide the money, the men and the materials is already in motion and, apparently, all that remains to be decided is the actual construction procedure to be adopted by the Limited Dividend Rental Housing or equivalent Corporations, which will be set up by the Life Insurance Companies in each of the larger urban centres where the rental housing plan will operate.

Reverse Lease Lend

It is interesting to note that three-quarters of the American forces' total medical requirements in Britain from July 1942 to July 1944 were supplied by the United Kingdom under reverse lease-lend. They included blood transfusion sets for paratroopers, 57,000,000 sulphonamide tablets, and 75,000 miles of bandages.

Do Birds and Beasts Carry Radio Sets?

Radio Pioneer Believed They Have Receiving Apparatus in Feet

London (CP) — Have birds radio sets in their feet?

This $64 question was seriously posed and partially answered by Sinclair Pooley, old friend of Signor Marconi, who quoted the great radio pioneer himself.

Writing on ornithological phenomena in — of all things — the motor trade magazine Factor-Salesman, Pooley said Marconi's theory was that birds and beasts all carry special receiving apparatus in their feet and are able to communicate with each other over long distances.

Marconi went even further. He told Pooley that originally he believed that human beings possessed the same power, but that constant use of footwear through the ages had insulated them from the earth, thereby destroying their receptive sensibility.

Pooley said Marconi gave him this answer when he put the problem to him after watching the behavior of frogs in Anatolia. He saw a migratory flight of storks suddenly swoop on to some frogs basking peacefully on a lake. But just before the storks appeared the frogs started croaking and disappeared into the water.

Pooley wanted to know how the frogs knew the storks were coming, and how did the storks know that the frogs were in the lake?

War Brides

We cannot expect that in every instance a war bride will be viewed with enthusiastic favor by her new Canadian relatives any more than we can expect the latter to meet with her full and hearty approval. But if there is an effort on the part of both to understand the other and to make due allowances for changed conditions, solution of the inevitable problems and difficulties will be more easily carried out.

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

LOOKING FORWARD

It has been necessary for me to take several over-night train trips in the last few years, and each journey becomes worse and more uncomfortable than the one before. After having become accustomed to the comfort and cleanliness of the air-conditioned cars, to have to go back to the old dirty coaches is not pleasant. I had forgotten how dirty they could be, but a hot day spent in a coach with ventilators open and cinders showering in made me dirtier than I ever remember being before. We went through air-conditioned cars to get to the diner and the air was positively chilly after the heat we were enduring. By the time we had finished dinner, the ice had apparently melted and the air-conditioned cars were getting to be hot too, and they certainly were smelly. One trip I made was in May and a sudden heat wave arrived. Not enough ice had been provided and the air conditioned car was the hottest place I was ever in. It seems everything must have drawbacks. We can see the special trains carrying the returning soldiers, from where we live, and it takes so many one wonders how there can be any left for civilian use, so we should not complain. Travel, by car or by train, is one of the things to which most of us are looking forward.

BRUSH IT

Our grandmothers had something when they brushed their hair one hundred strokes each night before they went to bed. There is nothing which improves the appearance of the hair like regular brushing. Many women are afraid to brush their hair because they think it will ruin their precious wave. The best hair dressers give the hair a good brush after it is waved before they arrange it. The other day on the bus there were several young girls with shoulder-length hair. They all had good curls at the ends but with one exception the hair itself was rough and unkept looking. The one exception was a girl with beautiful red hair and it was smooth and shining from good brushing. Apparently she was proud of her hair and took the trouble to look after it properly. As a rule you will find that red-headed girls take good care of their hair and are proud of it. How fashions change! When I was a youngster, girls felt sorry for the girl who had red hair. It wasn't exactly a disgrace, but still you felt sorry for them. Now it is a badge of envy. You girls and young women who wear shoulder-length hair just have a look at the others and discover for yourselves that the good looking heads are those that are well brushed. Then check up on your own. No matter how you wear your hair, and whatever your age, brushing is a good thing.

USE A THERMOMETER

A thermometer is the greatest help in making jelly. After you add the sugar you simply boil the jelly until the thermometer registers 218 degrees, and you will have a tender jelly of just the right consistency. It saves all the wear and tear on the nerves of deciding just when the jelly is boiled enough. The thermometer's use will not make the fruit jell of course; to do that there must be pectin in the fruit itself and it should not be dead ripe. It may not be possible to buy a thermometer now, but if you own a candy or a fat thermometer do use it when making jelly or jam, and if you are not so fortunate as to own one put a thermometer on your list of must have's when things get back to normal.

CANNING NOTES

Are you making notes as you do your canning, jam-making and pickling? I haven't always done it but have started to do so since the shortage of sugar and I am finding them the greatest help. Each year I add to them and when the quantities I used last year are before me in black and white, it is much easier to decide what quantities to do and to figure out how I can use the sugar to the best advantage. The notes do not need to be elaborate but they need to be definite; though we know now what a scribbled abreviation means, we will be puzzled by it next year. Most of my notes are on the margins of the cook book I use most during the preserving season. Another thing that is a great help during the winter is to have every jar labelled. It takes time, but if there are children around they usually enjoy doing that little job.

CRISP CUCUMBER SLICES

1 Gallon white wine vinegar, 9 cups brown sugar, 1 cup mustard, 1 cup salt, 1 teaspoon tumeric, 1 oz. ground mixed spice.

Mix the above gredients but do not cook. Pour over sliced cucumbers and stir every day for ten days. These may be kept in a crock. This recipe makes quite a quantity of pickles and these days it may not be possible to use so much sugar. Last year I just made a quarter of the quantity and even that much gave me several bottles.

ORANGE BARS

We are all looking for ways to save sugar and yet provide a sweet for the family. Sometimes I put graham crackers together with orange icing and they are really good and take very little sugar. Grate a very little orange rind, being careful not to get down to the white as that is bitter. Add orange juice to this and stir in icing sugar until the mixture is thick enough to spread. Cut graham crackers in halves and put these together with the orange icing. I have not given quantities but the juice of half a medium-sized orange makes enough icing for an 8 by 8 cake, so less than that quantity may be used and still have enough for a few bars.

McNAIRN COOKIES

1 Cup lard, melted, ¾ cup molasses, ½ cup brown sugar, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1½ teaspoons ginger, 1 teaspoon salt.

Add molasses and sugar to the melted lard. Sift in the dry ingredients and mix well. When thoroughly cold form into two rolls and let stand in the refrigerator over-night. Slice and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees.

Meat Rationing

In a recent letter to Mrs. Cameron E. Dow, rural advisor to the Consumer Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Mr. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, asked her to solicit the co-operation of the rural women in restricting the consumption of meat.

Mr. Ilsley says : "Success in achieving this end rests in the main with Canadian women, the managers of our households."

Particularly until such time as the rationing is introduced does he urge that women do everything they can to reduce consumption.

RATIONING

Dental Health

Dry Socket

Q. — My husband, 44 years old, has had three teeth pulled in the past three years and all have had dry sockets. Can you tell me the cause of this? What is the best treatment ?

A. — The causes of dry socket following extraction of teeth are numerous. Dr. Sterling V. Mead, in his book on oral surgery, writes: "Some of the causes of dry socket are: infection and inflammation of the bone around the tooth root; removal of the teeth in the presence of the acute state of traumatism or pus without proper postoperative dressing or care; long standing chronic infection whereby the bone has become infected; old age of patient; exposure of the tooth socket for any great length of time; presence of saliva and food particles in the socket; failure to remove completely the pathological area and suction on or placing the tongue or finger in the socket by the patient." Treatment varies according to causes. Self treatment is always inadvisable.

On the Corset

"Alaska Highway News" of Fort St. John waxes confidential with this editorial: "It has taken only one generation to polish off the habit of women wearing corsets. For two generations we have been calling them foundation garments. Since the days of Ancient Rome up to the 20th century women found it expedient to hold themselves together in corsets. Physicians, for lack of a better target, blamed many of women's ills on to wearing the corset. Pre-War One had the stays on the run. Post-War One saw them almost extinct The way women are now losing out — divorces, cancer, etc., and the alarming rate of deaths due to heart conditions — proves that the women are not much better off without corsets. A crusade for women to 'hold themselves in' — in more ways than stays — is now due!"

BOON TO HOUSEWIVES

Nottingham, Eng — Utility lace curtains are to be produced on a limited scale, it was disclosed in the annual report of the Lace and Embroidery Employers' Federation.

Vary Old Bequest to Meet War Needs

Plymstock, Eng. (CP) — Rev. Vincent didn't know anything about the problems of rationing when he asked in his will that the interest on £2,000 (about $9,000) be spent annually to clothe 10 poor boys and 10 poor gorls.

Mr. Warren, then vicar of Plymstock, died in 1790 and a condition to his bequest was that one of the garments for the girls must be a "shift" — better know by Canadians as an undershirt.

Trustees of the fund, because of rationing and the shortage of "shifts", were forced to deviate from the instructions in the will. Instead of buying clothes, they gave the recipients vouchers and instructed them to use their own clothing coupons.

Sports Festival at College Playground

In connection with the Catholic playground in Lachute—a successful attempt to boost facilities for recreation of the youthful French-Canadian community — a field day is being held Sunday with all the events, prizes and attractions to make a "super" program for the youngsters. The track and field contests commencing at 1.30 o'clock are for boys and girls of various ages. The program includes the usual racing events, boxing, volleyball, basket ball, tug-of-war and gymnastics, featuring the latest addition to the equipment, a vaulting horse. In the evening the prize-presentation will be held, with band music and community singing.

A routine of supervised play has been carried on at the playground all through the holiday period, which has been a drawing card to many youngsters who would otherwise be aimlessly occupied on the streets. Director of the athletic program has been Marcel Deschamps, while the Rev. P.-P. Desjardins, son of the Lachute hotelman H. E. Desjardins, has been active in supervising the children. Chairman of the sports festival committee is Gustave Joannette.

The festival on Sunday is considered a climax to the season of supervised recreation, and it is expected the support of parents and friends will be evidenced in a large turn-out.

"ARRIVED SAFELY"

Halifax (CP) — Telegraph wires out of this port are kept humming as soon as a troopship docks. When the Ile de France landed 9,700 men recently, more than 6,000 wires were sent to all parts of Canada reading: "Arrived safely. Will be home soon." These standard telegrams are paid for by the services.

VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

Johnny came home from high school, with a bit of newly acquired knowledge. "You know, Dad," he said importantly, "they say that paper can be used to keep a person warm."

"That's right, son," returned the father wryly. "I had a mortgage that kept me sweating 20 years."

Few Dull Moments For Vacationists

The masquerade party of the week at Mooney's Log Cabin again proved a successful event. The judges, Mrs. Ernest Wells, Mrs. R. E. Hanson and Mr. Campbell, had difficulty in awarding the prizes; these were won by the following:

Originality section, group — Eileen Mooney as Rhett Butler and Carlyn Webber as Scarlett O'Hara; honorable mention, Mrs. A. E. Wilson as Miss Tweedleham and Mr. A. E. Wilson as her Worst Pupil. Individual originality — Mahatma Gandhi, H. J. Oliver; hon. men., Hawaiian Girl, Mrs. F. G. Ferguson.

Impersonation, individual—Farmer's Daughter, John J. Smith; hon. men., Chinese Coolie, Margaret Lenfesty.

Fancy section, group — Bridal Party, Sylvia McLaughlin as Bride, Evelyn Anderson as Groom, Nancy Smith as Bridesmaid, Rosemary McLaughlin as Flowergirl; hon. men., Indian Brave, Mrs. Noyes, and Squaw, Mrs. W. Whelan. Individual fancy, Sambo, Marion Lenfesty; hon. men., Chin King, F. G. Kennedy.

Juvenile section winners, Jail Bird, John Hanson; Ghost, James Hanson; Newsboy, Peggy Adams; Gunner Wilson, Nancie Turpie; Pierrette, Helen Smith.

Other costumes noted were — Paper Doll, Beryl Noyes; Veteran's Guard, Mrs. Desroches; Two Old-Fashioned Ladies, Patricia Leslie and Miss M. Booth; Two Geisha Girls, Mrs. H. J. Oliver and Mrs. F. G. Kennedy; Land Girl, F. Fitton; Sweater Girl, Norman Adams; Madame de Camilliers, Mrs. Jamison; Gypsy, Miss K. Murray; Lady Out-of-Retirement, W. E. Whelan; School Girl, Miss M. Armstrong. Marie Gratton won the door prize of the evening.

The team composed of B. Ferguson, M. Armstrong, K. Murray and M. Lenfesty won the weekly bowling tournament. Mr. and Mrs. O. Meloche, Mrs. F. Meloche and A. Gowling were runners-up.

Hector Gratton showed surprising skill during the week with his fishing tackle, having photographs of a fine catch of pickerel and doré to show on his return to Montreal.

The younger set did not confine its dancing to Saturday night, but under the able management of Eileen Mooney sets were danced on week-nights as well.

(Too late for last issue)

A notable event of the week was the scavenger hunt, won by the three-man team of Mary Barnett, Patricia Leslie and Evelyn Anderson. Runners-up were Lois Langill, Violet Gunter and Carmen Huot.

Top bowling prize of the week went to the team captained by Ernie Wells, consisting of Nancy Wells, Marion Cary and Bill Cary.

Honeymoon felicitations are in order to Marion and Bill Cary. Their secret was well kept.

Dispute in Mt'l Draws Interest to Legislation Expected on Education

Athlones to Embark at Quebec City, On Leave Next Month to Homeland

By HAROLD FREEMAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Aug. 28 (CP) — There is something extremely fitting about the announcement that the Governor-General and Princess Alice will sail for home on leave aboard the Empress of Scotland from Wolfe's Cove next month.

For one thing, there is probably no large passenger liner that is more typically Canadian right now than this 26,000-ton giant which in the days of peace was the largest passenger ship on the Pacific. Then too, the Empress will be carrying homeward-bound troops on the trip west, so Canada's wartime first Lord and Lady will travel home aboard a troopship. . . . . The Empress of Scotland was originally the Empress of Japan.

The Canadian Pacific Steamships liner is expected to arrive here about September 9, with thousands of servicemen aboard. It will be her second visit to Quebec City; the first was on her maiden voyage in 1930, when she was bound for the Pacific to take over a regular peace-time run there. Between her two visits, she has steamed 968,000 miles in peacetime, and 482,000 miles under the shadow of war.

The Governor-General and Princess Alice will not be saying goodbye to Canada when they sail aboard the Empress. They will spend a short leave in Britain and then return to Canada in November to resume their duties until shortly before the arrival of Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander next spring.

"All's well that ends well," goes the proverb, but some Montreal residents are just a bit worried about the settlement which assured opening of the Protestant schools of the city this fall.

There was a general sigh of relief among parents when the Montreal Protestant Central School board announced that financial arrangements had been made with the Provincial Government which would assure that the schools would remain open throughout the winter and fall terms. At the same time, there was a realization that the basic problem remained unsolved.

That basic problem is one of finances. No mention was made of details of financial arrangements between the Central Board and the Government, but presumably they consisted of government guarantees on school board bonds. In other words, their settlement means that the board is still going into debt.

In that respect, the board is no different to a majority of similar bodies in the province, but the trouble of the Montreal board during the summer months has focussed attention on the whole problem of education, and of raising the money to provide it. There is more than usual interest, therefore, attached to whatever education legislation is forthcoming at the next session of the provincial legislature. Premier Duplessis has made it clear that he hopes to present an over-all solution to the problem at that time.

Sentence Sequel To Police Chase

In the courtroom at St. Jerome on Tuesday, before District Magistrate Donat Lalande, Fernand Laframboise received a three months sentence on charges arising out of a fracas which occurred here August 6. It is recalled the 21-year-old man led the local police chief a chase rivalling the thrills of movie-drama, with comedy thrown in when he was landed in the cells clad in his underwear, after a swim across the river.

The prisoner faced charges of vagrancy, of resisting a law officer in the execution of his duty, and of breaking and entering. On each count he was sentenced to three months, the terms running concurrently and to include time already spent in jail. The judge also gave the culprit some sound advice on the procedures of the law and functions of its officers.

Vote in Favor of Liquor Permits, Wentworth Tw'p

FAVOR REPEAL OF PROHIBITION LAW ADOPTED 1935

A public referendum on permits for liquor sales within the municipality, was held Saturday in the Township of Wentworth, the vote being decidedly in favor. A majority of 78 in a total of 282 ballots was recorded for repeal of the prohibition by-law, in force since 1935 within this township.

Results furnished by the municipal secretary, E. M. Jones, show the following votes cast in four polls :

	For Repeal	Against
Montfort	69	13
Laurel	27	1
St. Michel	64	6
Louisa	19	81
Majority for Repeal	179 78	101

The total number of votes cast was 282, out of approximately 650 eligible. (There were two spoiled ballots).

The above results show three rural areas with a sprinkling of lake resorts voting in favor, and Louisa, with a more solid and organized holiday population, definitely against liquor permits.

The by-law calling for a public vote on repeal was prompted by a petition circulated in Montfort, where a project is in hand by J. R. Hoyle to build a hotel on the site of the Montfort Club property.

High School Opens Tuesday, Sept. 4

Lachute High School will open for the Fall term Tuesday morning, September 4. Parents are reminded of the health regulations concerning vaccination, which require pupils entering school for the first time to be vaccinated. This law also requires re-vaccination at least every seven years.

The annual prize-giving and official opening of the school will be arranged for a later date.

The principal will be at the school to interview parents and students Friday and Saturday, August 31 and September 1, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Canada's foreign-going Merchant Navy has increased from 37 vessels in 1939 to 178 vessels in 1945, despite loss of 35 vessels as a result of enemy action.

Brownsburg Council Considering Applications for Police Vacancy

Waterworks Situation . . . Echo of V-J Day Celebrations in Community

(By Our Special Correspondent)

Waterworks Extensions

Extension of the waterworks, to take in four outlying areas around the central system, was under consideration at a council meeting last week. The cost was tentatively set at $50,000. Two of the additional projects promise fair to be a remunerative proposition and plans were called for to guide the council in deciding their future.

Police Supervision

The recent demise of the town policeman, the late Chief L. H. Lepine, has created a vacancy for which the council are at present considering applications. At a recent meeting of the council upwards of 20 applications were received for the position. The present holder of the office appears to be an admirable choice but some difficulty may be experienced in keeping his salary within the modest budget at the Council's disposition. The cost of running the council's business is a sizable item, and while this may be a heritage of former administrations, it nevertheless behoves the present incumbents to exercise care in assuming further commitments. Is a full-time policeman really necessary in a small neighborhood such as Brownsburg? . . . If the answer is "yes", then the same considerations which compelled the answer must be used in considering the kind of policeman to be engaged. If we must have a policeman, we should have a responsible and efficient officer, otherwise it would be better not to have one at all.

During the war years the authorities went to considerable expense and planning to provide recreational and refreshment facilities during leisure hours of the large number of munitions workers employed here. The idea was to offer a home away from home — big town facilities on a small town foundation. . . . The need has passed, but some of the facilities remain. Brownsburg is returning to its rustic environment. The era of its night-life has dimmed. There still remains the "hang-over" from its splurge into "big-time"; we must rid ourselves of these unpleasant effects. With their going may perhaps go the need of a policeman. Religious leaders have been proclaiming the need for eradication of these superfluous and dangerous attractions. We must listen and act accordingly.

The V-J Celebration

It has been remarked that Mayor Donaldson, who is always willing to glide through the figures of a square dance, deserved special mention in The Watchman for his efforts in providing and organizing an enjoyable program of dancing, music and singing in celebration of V-J Day. . . . We regret that omission, but would extentuate by reminding the Mayor that pressmen also celebrate, on occasion! However, we pay belated but earnest tribute to the efforts of the Mayor and his helpers in making the event a memorable one. We especially thank His Worship for the arrangements by which the kiddies were given an honored place in the program, and a particular word for the Mayoress for the generous time and effort she gave to make the event a success. Visitors from the adjoining districts were present in large numbers — an appreciation of the merits of the entertainment.

Dieppe Raid Justified as Prelude To Invasion, Speaker's Opinion

ROTARIANS DISCUSS FURTHER PLANS FOR CARNIVAL

Brownsburg—The weekly dinner meeting of the Rotary Club was held at Carrière's Hotel, Brownsburg, on Tuesday evening, August 21.

Major J. McLennan, of Ottawa, gave a few brief remarks on the Canadians at Dieppe, and the Canadian Reserve Army. Being a member of the latter, he pointed out its connection with the active army and its value to Canada in the war. The speaker claimed that "official" reports, which are made up of opinions of all ranks who took part, all agree that the Dieppe action was highly successful — although costly. At that time, fear of immediate invasion had passed, but it was clearly understood that the war could not be won by passively holding out, in England. Dieppe was a reconnaissance for further action. It appeared costly but the knowledge gained made the sacrifice worthwhile by saving lives in the larger, main invasion.

Eighty per cent of the personnel taking part were Canadians, and there were 5,000 casualties. The speaker compared the incident to the value of the atomic bomb. This weapon so shortened the war that a large sacrifice to develop it would have seemed well justified.

In regard to the Reserve Army, the speaker said it grew out of the pre-war non-permanent militia. It has a counterpart for all divisions of the active army except the C.W.A.C. and the National Guard.

They did much to train personnel for active service, the speaker's unit alone having trained and transferred 3,700 men to the active army.

Norman Somers, chairman of the Club's carnival committee, received and commented on reports from the various deputy chairmen. Plans are progressing favorably.

President Sam Ross reported whole-hearted support by the merchants and businessmen of the district for the program advertising. Thanks were expressed to visitor Bill Manson, who is assisting the president in the canvassing effort.

Guests included Leon Harcourt, president of the Hawkesbury Rotary Club; Erwin Bond, Vankleek Hill; H. R. Monty, bank manager, Grenville; Don Titman of The Lachute Watchman; Walter Nesbitt, Montreal, and Bill Manson, Harold Barrie and Romeo Charron, of Brownsburg.

— See you at the Carnival — Brownsburg Picnic Grounds — September 20, 21, 22.

POLICEMAN DOES TALL SLEUTHING

Newlyweds Reunited

The role of a policeman is fraught with possibilities, but an incident experienced this week by Chief Donat Villeneuve, Lachute, has no equal in his recollections.

Around two o'clock Tuesday morning a taxi drew up at the town office on Main Street... Inside the cab was a mysterious fare: the taximan did not know his identity, his place of residence, or his destination. — Neither did the customer himself! . . . Which presented quite a problem.

The Police Chief took the man into his office for questioning, but drew a complete blank. He had "taken a drink", the Chief observed, but was far from being under the weather. The man had completely lost his memory. Searching his pockets, Chief Villeneuve found money, papers giving his name and place of employment in Chapleau, Ont., and — more surprising — a mariage certificate dated at Chapleau the previous day! Questioned on this prime exhibit, the man had recollections of a wedding "some time ago", but was hazy about the whole affair. — But where was the bride? ?

At this point the Police Officer set to work, calling the man's employers at Chapleau. Responding at this unseemly hour, a fellow worker said he knew the man, and that he had been married the day before, but could give no information on his plans, or the partner who was to share them.

Chief Villeneuve noted the wife's maiden name was one familiar in these parts. So he next telephoned residents of that name — again reaching a stalemate, for they knew of no wedding among relatives in this section.

At this point it was an outsider who solved the riddle. . . . A boy employed on a local potato-wagon was on his way home when he heard voices at the police office. With youthful curiosity he stopped to listen, and overhearing the name of the missing bride, immediately connected this with persons of his acquaintance outside the town. He approached the policeman and the stranger, volunteering his information, and then willingly accompanied them in an automobile to the house in question. . . . Here the climax was a happy spectacle. The newly-wed wife, with her sisters whom the honeymooners had come here to visit, had been out in the darkness seeking for the missing groom. The man regained his memory at the sight of his new-found relatives, and the scene of rejoicing amply repaid the policeman and his young aide.

Move Over, Brother--Heed Dates For Duck Hunting in This County

DIFFERENT SEASONS APPLY IN THIS AREA

Announcement of the duck hunting dates for this area again draws attention to a peculiar circumstance, namely—that within a certain period a hunter may shoot ducks, yet, at a point only a few yards distant, the act may be illegal.

The Open Season dates for ducks are September 22 to December 10 for the Southern District, and September 8 to November 26 for the remainder of the Province of Quebec — the anomaly as regards Argenteuil being that these two sections are divided by Route 8 east of Lachute, and by the North River from this point southward.

"Southern District" Defined

Following is the definition of the South District :

" . . southerly along Sherbrooke Street to its intersection with Route 8; thence westerly along the centre line of Route 8 to its intersection with the middle thread of North River at Lachute; thence following the middle thread of North River downstream to its intersection with the middle thread of Ottawa River; thence upstream along the middle thread of Ottawa River to the Interprovincial Boundary opposite Pointe Fortune; thence southerly along the Interprovincial Boundary to its intersection with the International Boundary."

Partridge Season

For partridge, anywhere in the province, the season is from September 15 to November 15. (Five per day per person; possession limit, 15; possession prohibited after December 18).

Dates for Deer

For Zone C, including this section of the province, the dates for deer shooting are September 25 to November 24.

Hunting Licenses

Non-resident : $10.50 for feathered game exclusively. . . $10.50 for all other species of game, except fur-bearing animals, for bonafide members of clubs. . . . . $41.00 for all species of game, excepting fur-bearing animals.

Resident ; $1 for all species of game, excepting fur-bearing animals.

Received M.B.E. From His Majesty

For gallantry in action on the western front, Reg. Sgt.-Major Gerald A. Trottier was awarded the M.B.E., and recently appeared at Buckingham Palace to receive the decoration from His Majesty the King. The recipient of this high honor is known in this community, where his wife and family are now living, on Main Street W., awaiting R.S.M. Trottier's return home. He is at present back in service, in Holland.

R.S.M. Trottier is also the holder of a Long Service Medal and Bar, having previous to the war served a number of years in the volunteer army.

The record for which Trottier received his award is not known to his wife and family here, but he has served with the 4th Medium Artillery through the entire campaign in Western Europe, including such notable engagements as Carpiquet, Escaut estuary, Walcheren, Nijmegen and the Rhine crossing. A number of officers in the regiment won recognitions from the British, French and Polish governments.

At the investiture in Buckingham Palace the King decorated 340 Canadians. Of these, all were commissioned in various ranks, only five being warrant or non-commissioned officers — of whom R.S.M. Trottier was one. In a letter to his wife he mentions His Majesty's' gracious manner, describing how he shook hands and conversed with him.

Traffic Increase, High Accident Toll In Laurentians

With the relaxing of gasoline restrictions there has been a notable increase in week-end highway traffic to the Laurentians, and to resorts and beaches between St. Eustache and St. Placide. With this heavier traffic has come an uptrend in accidents — the following mishaps having been investigated by police patrolmen north and east of this section:

Harold Levine, 21, of Ste. Agathe, was instantly killed on Saturday afternoon when the automobile he was driving crashed into a power pole.

Provincial Police said that the driver was travelling along the old Mont-Laurier Highway when he apparently lost control of the car and crashed into a pole. Levine had left the Trout Lake Inn, of which his father is proprietor, a few minutes before the mishap.

The car was a total wreck, police said, and the body was removed with great difficulty.

* * *

Leo Benay, 14, of St. Jerome, suffered a fractured skull Saturday afternoon when the horse-drawn wagon he was riding collided with an automobile on the outskirts of St. Jerome.

According to Provincial Police, the accident occurred at the intersection of highways 11 and 41. The youngster was taken to the St. Luke Hospital, Montreal, where his condition is said to be serious.

* * *

An automobile travelling between Ste. Rose and St. Elzear smashed into the rear of a parked auto early Sunday morning, throwing the stationary vehicle 96 feet into a field, and injuring its two occupants. The moving auto swerved after the collision, and smashed into a pole 56 feet from the site of the accident, injuring the driver and a passenger. Both vehicles were totally wrecked.

The injured persons were Harold Gunning, Alberta, who suffered a fractured shoulder; Mr. and Mrs. Ned Crepeau, L'Abord a Plouffe, and Robert Parsons, of Montreal. All were treated at the St. Luke's Hospital.

According to a report made by Det.-Sgt. Albert Oggier of the Provincial Police, a car driven by Leopold Smith, superintendent of Belmont Park, and carrying Mr. and Mrs. N. Crepeau as passengers, had parked on the side of the highway due to motor trouble, when an automobile driven by Harold Gunning, a returned veteran, smashed into its rear.

Red and White Day At Ste. Scholastique

At the field day event of special interest to Ayrshire men on Saturday, it is expected that fully 100 head of cattle will be on show at the Ste. Scholastique fair grounds. Among breeders from these parts who will have animals exhibited are — J. H. Black, Erskine Rodger, J. P. Bradley, F. Peterson, A. St. Jacques, Erskine McOuat and J. C. Miller. Another interesting addition will be beasts from the newly formed herd of H. J. O'Connell from his farm at Ste. Genevieve. Much of the foundation stock for this herd was acquired from breeders in the Lachute district.

The field day is being held jointly by the Laurentian Ayrshire Breeders' Club and the North of Montreal Ayrshire Breeders—these two groups having already collaborated in several successful ventures of the kind.

Those who continue to shrink from taking responsibility — continue to shrink.

More Repatriates Welcomed Home

Capt. Dave Campbell, of the 1st Cdn. Base Ordnance Workshop, arrived from overseas last week. Leaving Scotland the previous day, he landed in Montreal around noon on Friday. He spent the week-end with his mother and relatives here in Lachute.

LAC. Lloyd Graham, who has been serving two years in Britain with the 410 ("Cougar") Squadron, R.C.A.F., also arrived home in Lachute recently. LAC. Graham is the son of Mrs. Ruth Graham, Foundry Street.

Townsman Feted By Many Friends

A gathering in tribute to Jos. Dumais, one of the younger citizens of this town, was held at the Golf Club last evening in honor of his approaching marriage. About 125 friends sat down to the luncheon, good wishes were extended in a few brief speeches, and a sum of money was presented as a token of good will.

Mr. Dumais thanked the gathering cordially for their kindness. . . . . His marriage, to Miss Lucille St. Onge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henri St. Onge, Lachute, takes place on the morning of September 4 at St. Anastasie Parish Church.

Que. Women's Institutes To Aid National Clothing Collection

From October 1 to 20 there will be a nation-wide drive to collect used clothing for distribution through the U.N.R.R.A. to the needy people of Europe.

The Quebec Women's Institutes have been asked to help form local committees to lay plans for handling this collection.

The rural women, as in the past, are giving their full efforts to this worthy cause, and are proving that they are as ready to devote their efforts to winning the peace as they were to winning the war.

Home from Service Overseas

Sgt. Albert Noble, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Noble, Mille Isles, who recently arrived home. Going overseas in February 1941, he served in France, Holland, Belgium and Germany.

WINCHESTER HOLDS CIVIC WELCOME FOR REPATRIATES

Winchester, Ont. —

The municipal council, in conjunction with the local branch of the Canadian Legion, tendered a civic welcome to four local and district boys who had recently returned from active service overseas.

The boys were transported to the centre of the town in fire trucks, where the address of welcome was given by Reeve Albert Turner, and the prayer of thanksgiving by Rev. Dr. MacIntosh.

Armistice Car Is Believed Destroyed

Compiegne, France — The famous railway car in which the First Great War armistice and the French-German armistice of 1940 were signed was destroyed by Allied bombers after it was taken to Germany, the Nazis told Compiegne city officials before leaving.

Assistant Mayor Andre Pasille said: "The Germans took the car away during the occupation. They told me later that Allied bombers had wrecked it, but they didn't say where."

He said the car once was reported to have been taken to Berlin.

Canada's trans-Atlantic air service to carry armed forces, mail and official passengers between Canada and the United Kingdom was begun in 1943. At first only one aircraft was in service, but by the end of 1944 five more were operating on a tri-weekly service.

Just pretending to be rich keeps some people poor.

Trial for Theft at Boarding House

Arrested Friday night by Cnst. Aldege Pager after complaints of theft at a local boarding house, Roger Latour, aged 20, of no given address, was arraigned here before J. L. Dumais, J.P., on Saturday and taken to St. Jerome for hearing.

Appearing before District Magistrate Donat Lalande, the man was charged with robbery — the case arising out of thefts of small articles from the home of Mme Telesphore Tessier, 88 Main St. Latour, it appears, had been engaged by Geo. Y. Deacon, but had been found unsatisfactory as a truck driver, in which capacity he was employed.

Hearing the case, the Judge withheld sentence until September 24 pending investigation into the man's previous record. Latour had served for one year in the army.

Around the Country

By "Country Editor"

Walter Quarrie, who farms in West Garafraxa township, Ontario, has corn which grew 114 inches in 60 days, a hybrid variety, seed coming from a farm in Bloomingdale. . . . Disappointed when he shot down with a rifle a silver object in the sky, which he thought was a Jap balloon, farmer Chas. Paubst of Giscome, B.C., sent the meteorological balloon back to Prince Rupert with this note: "Am returning herewith your fake." . . . A silent tribute to returning veterans reaches the height of patriotism at Kamsack, Sask., where the town has a big illuminated sign at the C.N.R. station, "Welcome Home, Veterans," Moose Jaw has the same idea. . . . When V-J Day came, a car locked securely in the garage at the home of A. V. Wallsten, Kirkland Lake, Ont., celebrated as the horn started sounding continuously; it could not have been tampered with, investigation proved; and it also proves truth is stranger than fiction. . . . . In a few minutes' hailstorm at Climax, Sask., 7-inch hail blasted standing grain into the earth, killed turkeys, chickens like atomic bombs; two days after a 6-acre lake stood centering T. Miller's grain fields. . . . Mrs. A. K. McLay of Cape Chin, Ont., has a spaniel which raised a litter of six puppies, all given away but one; she was motherly, went to a neighboring bush and brought back three baby bunnies to place beside her lone puppy. . . . V-J Day at Hanna, Alta., cafe man Chin Lee came out with a pre-war stock of chocolate bars, deciding to "shoot the works" in celebration. . . . At Guelph, Ont., V-J celebrants threw in a couple of milk wagons on bonfires, then an old hearse.

This is a time for greatness among little people.

Neck Rot of Onions

(Science Service News)

Neck rot is a serious disease of onion bulbs, appearing after they have been placed in storage. It is caused by fungi which produces a softening of the scales, beginning usually at the neck. A gray felt-like growth later forms, accompanied by black kernel-like bodies. The disease usually starts in the field, when the tops have been broken down or after they are removed. The reason for this, says R. J. Ledingham, Dominion plant pathologist, Saskatoon, is that the fungi are weak parasites and do not actively attack a growing plant. The critical time, then, is confined to the curing or drying period. This process must be thorough and should not cover an extended period. Proper sanitation is necessary to reduce infection. Onion tops and diseased bulbs left to rot in the field provide an opportunity for fungus spores to be blown around by the wind. The white varieties of onions are more susceptible than the red and yellow ones to this disease. The grower who, through ample watering and fertilizer application produces a crop of large, late-maturing bulbs, must be careful to see that they are well cured before storage. They should be stored in a cool, well-ventilated place where the humidity is relatively low.

Worst Poultry Pest Is Chicken Mite

The worst general pest affecting poultry in Canada is the chicken mite. This tiny insect, which hides itself in crevices of the poultry house during daylight, is a small greyish or red object, about the size of the head of a pin. Chicken mites live away from the birds most of the time and only visit the to suck their blood. They can multiply very quickly especially in warm weather, seriously affecting egg production and preventing the birds from thriving.

Chicken mites can be easily eradicated without much cost or effort. Spray the roosts and walls of the poultry houses with a mixture of three parts kerosene and one part used engine oil. A cupful of creosote mixed with a gallon of crankcase or used oil is additionally effective. It is best to give the poultry houses two applications of the mixture at intervals of two weeks.

With partial meat rationing already in effect and general rationing just around the corner, the demand for eggs and poultry meat is increasing. So there is more money in getting the highest production and controlling chicken mites will help to do this.

Potato Situation Quebec Crop

Mildew, also called late fire blight or scald, has been appearing in the centre of the province since the first week in August. Certain fields are actually burnt out; but generally speaking, due to a period of warm weather without humidity, the disease did not develop to any great extent.

Farmers who have fields free of this disease may apply a bordelaise mixture as a preventative, in case weather conditions change. In fact, the next rains may cause serious damage from mildew. Copper sulphate sprayings, which would burn the foliage as well as destroy mold germs which would infect the tuber, is not now recommendable.

Leaf hoppers and aphids are very numerous; they cause the leaf points to turn brown, which gives them the appearance of having been attacked by mildew. These insects, although affecting the foliage, do not cause potato rot; therefore there is no need to become unduly concerned about them.

Information will shortly be published on how to harvest and keep potatoes; farmers are requested to watch and listen for this timely advice.

Fall Best Time To Cull Pullets

Continuous year-round culling is a necessity in the successful raising of poultry. The autumn, however, when pullets are being removed from the growing range to laying quarters, is the best time to check carefully the young stock with a view to removing what may prove to be unprofitable birds, says B. F. Tinney, Dominion Experimental Station, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Rough handling should be avoided as much as possible and a good catching crate is essential if the work is to be done well and with the least disturbance to the birds.

Cull closely to breed characters, and remove all birds having side sprigs on the comb and feather stubs on the legs or between the toes. Remove coarse birds, as indicated by thick meaty heads, and discard all birds having crooked or deformed toes, and twisted or otherwise deformed beaks.

Remove all small under-developed pullets for it is questionable whether such birds will prove to be economical producers, and be particularly careful to remove any bird showing evidence of unthriftiness — those pale or yellowish about the head or having white, grey or pearly eye, in breeds normally having bay-colored iris.

CANADA AT LAST: Touching Canadian soil for the first time at the Wolfe's Cove dock at Quebec as the Canadian Pacific's Duchess of Richmond came alongside on August 18 with 4,000 returning troops aboard are Pte. James Huntley, Calgary, five years overseas; and Capt. B. Morgan, Leamington, Ont., three years over there. By mid-morning the next day the last C.P.R. troop special had left taking the boys home and on August 20 a civilian boat train arrived with passengers for the Richmond's return passage to the Old Country.

C.N.R. President's Thanks to Public

Montreal — In a message addressed to the Canadian public, R. C. Vaughan, president of the Canadian National Railways, has expressed the System's thanks for the co-operation given it during the war by the millions of train and steamship passengers, shippers of freight and express, hotel guests, and patrons of the telepraph and other services. The Canadian National's ability to fulfill its gigantic war duty, he said, "is due not only to the skill, devotion and zeal of our workers, but in large measure also to the Canadian public who by their generous responses to appeals for help and their uncomplaining acceptances of restrictions and controls, lightened our burden." He made particular mention of those who refrained from travelling needlessly as their contribution to the common cause.

From the outbreak of the war in September, 1939, to V-J Day, Canadian National passenger trains carried more than 153 million passengers, it is estimated. Up to the end of last year, more than four million troops returning home had been transported in 6.540 special trains. The movement of troops returning home from overseas is still continuing, and two-thirds of all troop trains required are being provided by the Canadian National.

The Canadian National hauled more than 491 million tons of freight during the war. Vessels owned and operated by the Canadian National Steamships travelled four and a half million miles in war service and a number were victims of enemy action. Three were converted into fighting naval units and one, "The Lady Nelson", was Canada's first hospital ship.

Hotels, express and telegraph departments all contributed to the nation's war effort. Trans-Canada Air Lines, the Railways' drydock and shipyard at Prince Rupert, and National Railways Munitions Limited at Montreal, all show fine records of service in their respective fields.

In co-operation with the R.C.A.-M.C. the architects' department of the C.N. Rly's designed special hospital cars, which were constructed in the shops of the company. Officers of the system organized wartime censorship and public information back in 1939 and 1940. Nearly 25,000 men and women enlisted in the armed forces, or were on special war duty. Many of them won decorations.

"The surrender of the last enemy has ended the fighting, but it has not ended the war job of the Canadian National Railways," concluded Mr. Vaughan's message to the people of Canada. "The men and women in the Services have to be brought home without delay, and . . . millions of tons of materials must be transported for industrial reconversion. In carrying out these and other extensions of our war job we hope we may continue to enjoy the understanding of the Canadian public."

REHABILITATION

A Column For Service People

By WILLIAM STEPHENSON

"My brother had started on a chemistry course at the University of Toronto before he left to go overseas in early 1944" writes a young lady from Peterboro, Ont., "He is now in Germany with the Army of Occupation, and since there is not much to do he thinks it would be nice if he could continue his studies He says there is a fairly well-equipped University or technical school (I can't tell which) close by, where he could do his laboratory work. Is there any provision being made for this?"

Not yet, as far as we know. The Canadian Legion Educational Services provide correspondence courses in almost every subject under the sun, to Canadian servicemen and women in all theatres of war, but no provision is made for the lab work in Germany. However, quite a number of Canadian undergraduates are attending British universities while still in the service, and it is possible that your brother might be able to arrange something along these lines. In each unit on the Continent there is a part time educational officer, and each group of units has another full time man for this purpose. If your brother were to see either of these men and talk it over with them, it's possible the whole thing might be arranged.

"My husband served in Canada for almost three years before he went overseas in February, but he has still not joined active," writes another lady from Haney, British Columbia, "What I would like to know is this: Will he get any gratuities? Does he receive the regular clothing allowance? If he goes to Germany with the occupying forces, will this affect his gratuity status?"

On discharge, Madam, your husband will receive gratuities at the rate of $15 for each 30 days of qualifying service overseas, that is, 50 cents per day, whether he is active or not. However the fact that he is still NRMA bars him from receiving any gratuities for the time he spent in Canada, and it will also cut off his gratuity benefits the day he arrives back in this country. At the present time service in Germany is considered as qualifying service overseas. As for the clothing allowance of $100 he will get that the day he ceases to be a member of the armed services of Canada.

(If you have a problem, drop us a line to Wartime Information Board, Ottawa.)

Let your spare used clothing, for which you have no need, be your Christmas gift to the war-torn people of Europe and China. Give them to the National Clothing Collection for liberated countries, October 1-20.

Back to School

IN THE MONTH of July, when the outcome of high school examinations hangs in the balance — when the pass-list, like the sword of Damocles, dangles on the slender thread of fate — alas, about that time, of paramount importance to many fretful pupils is the ardor and application which they may (or may not) have given to their studies in the year just past. Have they done justice to their school pursuits — to the classroom periods and the onerous homework, which intruded so annoyingly upon their play, their hobbies and their friendships? Have they been earnest, conscientious, honest in their endeavors? . . . If only they could have foreseen the suspense of this moment, when exam results are due.

The nightmare passes. . . . The holidays have assuaged the wounds of a tortured spirit. . . . . School is about to reopen. . . .

If that same anxiety to succeed could be recaptured now, and held assiduously through the school term when it is most needed — then, when June examinations come again, our young hopefuls would be imbued with greater confidence; there would be less misgiving at these tests and trials which are essential in their training.

Parents can help to instil in their offspring the urge to profit by their years at school. They can kindle the flame, tactfully and unobtrusively, through the year that lies ahead. School Closing — that annual function which, paradoxically, occurs about the time of opening— will inspire new ideals and objectives in its youthful audience. But again, it is to the home and parents that teachers look for earnest year-round collaboration.

Smile Again !

HERE AND THERE, now that the war is over, are great billboards that say, "SMILE." And, to play on words, these billboards are more a sign of the times than any others.

They mean that with the fighting done and the strains of the last six years eased, somebody has at last come around to thinking of how far folk slipped from courtesy to discourtesy during the war.

This return of politeness has been long overdue. Now they can take those seven dreadful words — "don't you know there's a war on" — forget them for keeps. They are out of date and so is the manner that went with them. This is a new era of the smile, when courtesy and not bad manners earns the payoff.

A lot of people unfortunately will not be able to forget entirely the impact of those seven words which typified the days when butchers and bakers and sellers of all things forgot the pleasant business of going about business pleasantly and stood off with harsh words the customer seeking something scarce.

For some customers it will be hard forgetting. Like the young chap who left the Clyde back in 1942 in an old tub of a ship that plowed the North Atlantic all alone because she was so small and so slow and no convoy wanted her. But she made it and the young man, in civvies, went ashore for breakfast. He didn't know it, but while he was away oranges had become scarce in Canada. And when he asked for a double orange juice the waitress froze him to his stool with — "Don't you know there's a war on?"

That's how ridiculous this discourtesy became.

So in the end those surly days may cost those surly people something in custom, and the people who smiled their way through the tough times will find it was the cheapest and best advertising they ever did.

Another Challenge for "Brotherhood of Man"

THE WINTER ahead may be "one of the grimmest in history" for the liberated millions of Europe, warned Herbert E. Lehman, Director-General of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, the other day in London. He told the delegates of 43 member countries, "We stand before the crisis. We must act and we must act now."

The thought of winter brings warm clothing to mind. There is much that Canadians would do if they could. Of manufactured goods Canada has little, but there are millions of serviceable used garments lying in attics and clothes closets which can be spared without having to be replaced. A National Clothing Collection is to be held from October 1 to 20, to reach into every home in Canada for these used clothes. Quick and decisive action is necessary, for Europe needs them next winter. It is now or never.

Mr. Lehman issued a stark challenge, claiming that unless contributing countries supplement their aid already being given, "the name of the United Nations will be a mockery in Europe this winter". He added: "It is inconceivable that the United Nations could abandon the peoples of the liberated areas of Europe at the moment of their greatest peril. They must be brought safely through the following harvest."

These war-torn peoples will be living precariously at the mercy of the elements from October to April. They are as a shipwrecked crew adrift at sea. We have life-saving equipment. We should give them all we can spare — and see that they get it all and get it quickly.

"THANK God they are a very small minority of our population and are not worthy of the freedom they enjoy," writes the Shawinigan Falls Standard, commenting on a group of young men known as the Shawinigan section of "Les Jeunes Laurentiens" who sent the council a resolution protesting the erection of a War Memorial in the city to the memory of those who sacrificed their lives in the war.

PARLIAMENT, it is said, may give us the legal right to the use of the word "Canadian" to indicate our status. That is, the law will make official what has been common usage since at least 1867. — Ottawa Journal

Jolt for Fond Parents

FADS AND FANCIES of the child psychologists are pooh-poohed by most commonplace folk. While reconciled to the modern findings in hygiene and nutrition and indeed enthusiastic about them, few parents give serious heed to the more radical theories of behaviorism.

Every so often the psychologists administer a disturbing jolt to our time-honored beliefs on child upbringing. For instance, the idea that movie thrillers breed bad notions in the young mind, has been reiterated so often as to have become an accepted belief. Now it is stated, however, by a "group of child authorities" in the United States that these diversions are, if anything, beneficial to the normal child; harmful reaction on the child's part would indicate something wrong with his makeup, they say. . . In other words the specialists do concede such thrillers may have a bad effect on the child who is abnormal.

Wild, woolly westerns and spinechillers are good outlets for a child's normal aggressive instincts, and much better than having him punch the kid next door in the nose, it is argued. The psychologists believe the average child can see almost any kind of movie produced today without harmful effects. The normal youngster craves excitement and motion, and fast-shooting films, westerns and even horror pictures are a good vicarious outlet for this craving.

"Of course, if a very excitable child sees a very exciting picture he will grow very excited," says Mrs. Sidonie M. Gruenberg, president of the Child Study Association.

"I never saw a delinquent affected by anything but himself innately", says Dr. A. A. Brill, child psychiatrist. "Any child who goes wrong does so because of his constitutional makeup or lack of home life. Movies can't make a child inherently bad if he's not bad to start with."

Therefore, there's no reason to fret that a couple of gangster films will turn your child into a pint-size Dillinger. It's important for children to have a well-balanced movie diet, just like a well-balanced food diet, Mrs. Gruenberg believes, so that he does not see only westerns, or only horror films, or only sophisticated love stories, which might give him a wrong conception of what real life is like.

Open Season for Antiquarians

IT HAS BEEN assumed that the destruction of many ancient sites in London has paved the way for a more modern metropolis in the post-war building of the city. However, for a certain group in the British Isles the future and its probabilities are a remote concern; right now they are scratching among the ruins for a glimpse several centuries back into the past. . .

A start has been made at Southwark, one of the London boroughs, on a survey to be made by the Council of British Archaeology of bombed sites in London. An Excavations Committee has been formed and volunteers, ranging from soldiers to university students, are helping archaeologists to dig up the history of Roman and Elizabethan Southwark. What lies beneath sites of buildings levelled by bombs is of considerable importance, as Southwark was the bridgehead settlement for Roman London. The first site to be opened up disclosed the fact that there are undisturbed Roman levels within two feet or so of the modern surface. One of the most interesting finds so far is the rim of a Roman mortarium, used for grinding vegetables, with the maker's stamp quite clearly preserved.

Going Fishing

TIME WAS when all a man needed to go fishing was the desire, a handful of stogies or his pipe as the case was, a hank of line and a few worms. But fishing, like most of the other good things of life, has been high pressured so much that nowadays, the Compleat Fisherman has more equipment than an explorer in Tibet and his fishing has only a fraction of the pleasure it once had.

The modern fisherman has hooks of every size and shape. He has every manner of spoons and minnows, some of them costing a small fortune. He carries a dozen weights of line, a variety of sinkers and an encyclopaedic reference on the feeding habits of fish plus a copy of the local game and fish laws (abridged edition). With all his gadgetry, he is able to catch fish, but in the process, the sport has assumed something of the aspect of the statistics surrounding the family allowances.

By the time he has charted his fishing grounds, carefully noted the relationship between the weather and the habits of the fish he is angling for, strung his rod, chosen his bait, calculated the best depth to fish in, and made a hundred and one other adjustments, he has used more energy than Einstein required for his atomic equation. To be sure, he'll bring home a catch that will be the envy of his club but he will have had no pleasure in it. He was too busy catching fish.

One doesn't go fishing to catch fish. To come right down to it, the fish are really incidental to the real business of enjoyment, relaxation, getting out in the sun and breathing some fresh air for a change. If the fish wants to hook himself, that is his business. He will be hauled in. If he wants to be coy and be chased with all the devices that are in the fishing catalogues, then he can forget it. When the desire to catch a fish becomes more important than just going fishing, enjoyment ceases and the work begins. — Newmarket Era-Express

THE PROBLEMS of peace, it sometimes seems to us, are being made more difficult by the assumption that Government can solve most of them for us. We have become so accustomed to Government control in wartime, when our national life has been dominated by a single purpose, that we have not yet been able to visualize a time when we shall be freely allowed to make our own decisions. Perhaps the basic problem of reconversion is how to rid ourselves of excessive Government control. With that big problem solved, the native ingenuity of our people may be trusted to solve the others. — Winchester Press

Women's Ingenuity

Being a mere man, and knowing very little about housekeeping, I've been doing a little worrying. But my wife, who has to do the thinking about such things, is being patriotic and is keeping meat off the menu on Tuesdays and Fridays.

I don't notice my waistline getting any smaller, and my shirts fit as snugly as ever. When she announced that there were to be two meatless days I blanched a little, and had all sorts of visions of unpleasant meals.

But I hadn't reckoned with the ingenuity of woman. There's always some good tasting meal on the table. So I can't -complain really.

I know it's true . . . people are always telling us . . . that Canada hasn't suffered like other nations so far as shortages of food, and bombs dropping, are concerned. But it has always seemed to me that it's a little unfair to blame people because things haven't happened to them. I suppose that if bombs had fallen, and we had to do without all sorts of things, we would have shouldered the consequences as well as anyone else.

At any rate, the women of Canada deserve a vote of thanks for the way they've knuckled down to rationing, insofar as it has affected them.

I've heard very little complaint, if any, about the rationing of meat. Most people say, "Well, it won't do us any harm. It's going to help the other guy. We can do without."

Civil Aviation

● I've been in Montreal helping to look after press arrangements for the Provisional International Civil Aviation Organization. That name is quite a mouthful, but like all other organizations, it has an abbreviation. We just say PICAO. So add PICAO to UNRRA and other abbreviations. It's a word you'll be hearing often.

The press room has been located at the rear of the rotunda of a large Montreal hotel. One day a man came in and wanted to know how long it would take us to "press" a pair of pants. I know this sounds like a tall story . . . but it's true. I have witnesses.

The airplane has captured the imagination of all of us, and the war has intensified this desire to take to the sky. Air travel is due for a terrific expansion. That's why the deliberations of PICAO are so important.

Young China Air-Minded

● China is no exception to the rule of wanting to have a sky career. In a likes-and-dislikes test given to some 1,000 Chungking high school students, 72 out of 100 boys and girls picked flying for a life job.

Friendship in Coal

● "Nor do I want it ever to be said that Americans loved their comforts so much that they did not lift a finger to shield the brave men and women of the devastated countries of our allies from the marrow-chilling ordeal that faces them this winter. We cannot expect a friendly handshake from hands swollen with chilblains," said Harold L. Ickes, Solid Fuels Administrator of the U.S.A., in pledging to send every available ton of coal to Europe. Some of this coal would ordinarily have come to Canada, particularly Ontario and Quebec, and that is one very good reason why we may find ourselves short of coal this winter in spite of the war being over.

Build up your business reputation for competitive days ahead. Distinctive stationery and good printing — from sales slips to monthly statements — will establish the fact you're right on the job. And that's what will count with the post-war public. . . See The Watchman for commercial printing.

From the Shoulder

"THE ATROCITIES"
(Reprinted from Saturday Night)

We doubt whether the vast audiences of Canadians who . . . witnessed with shuddering horror the film records of the Nazi atrocity camps, have had any great appreciation of the extent to which they themselves bear a share of responsibility for these horrors — very minor and indirect compared with that of the supporters of the Nazi regime, but a share nevertheless.

The victims shown in these films were almost all of them persons fallen into the hands of their torturers through being citizens of Germany or of one or other of the countries which Germany overran. They were not prisoners of war; they had no "protecting power" to to look after them as prisoners of war have. They were seized either because they were racially objectionable (that is, they were partly or wholly of Jewish blood) or because they were intellectual liberals, persons likely to afford leadership in the campaign against Nazi racist theories. Some of them at least knew in advance that they were certain to be seized and maltreated when the Nazis got around to them; and some of those who knew it would have tried to escape if they had known of any country to escape to. It will be recalled that at the climax of the pre-war terror shiploads of Jews were wandering around the oceans, vainly trying to find a port which would let them land. If none of these were rejected at a Canadian port it was merely because they knew so well that they would be rejected that they did not even bother to apply. And in rejecting them the Canadian authorities would have had the full support of a probable majority of the Canadian people.

Nor was there in those days any lack of information as to the character of the Nazi "short way with dissenters". There were no moving pictures of living skeletons, it is true, but there was plenty of testimony, including the fact that the bodies of those who were done to death by the torturers were always delivered to their relatives, if at all, in the form of ashes. In the face of this knowledge those Canadians who still maintained that the Nazi government was a good government because it was protecting Europe from the Bolsheviks have also a share of responsibility, for it was they, and their fellows in other countries, who encouraged the German people to believe that the Nazis could "get away" with their policies of ruthlessness both internal and external.

Penicillin for Mental Diseases

London — A British physician, Dr. C. T. Graves, Medical Superintendent of the Rober Hill, Birmingham, mental hospital, reported at a London meeting of the Mental Hospitals' Association on the successful application of penicillin in mental diseases. By means of penicillin injections, prepared by him at the hospital laboratory, he has been able to cure five out of seven patients completely, and to obtain a definite improvement in the condition of the remaining two. "Penicillin is not, perhaps, a complete cure for all mental diseases", said Dr. Graves, "but its use in the future will restore the health of thousands of people whose mental equilibrium has been disturbed owing to infectious diseases".

SOCIAL SERVICE AMONG JUVENILES AND YOUNG PEOPLE

Toronto — While maintaining everything it is doing for adults, the Salvation Army in Canada is increasing the scope of its work among children and young people, according to Col. Arch Layman, newly appointed Chief Secretary for Canada, formerly of San Francisco.

"This expansion trend is aimed at combatting the prevalent juvenile delinquency," said Col. Layman. "More young people's groups, Guides, Scouts, clubs for youngsters and recreational centres for the young are being established."

In asking public support for the coming National Home Front Campaign for $1,500,000, Col. Layman said the Salvation Army could claim efficiency and economy. It lives close to the people and goes down where they are when they are down. The Salvation Army, he said, knows the human material it is dealing with. It knows how to squeeze the last bit of value out of everything.

"In the truest sense, the Salvation Army is a rehabilitation organization, understanding fully that there is no permanent rehabilitation that leaves the character untouched. We know the depths to which people can sink and the heights to which they can be raised."

Britain's Shipyards Still Working at Full Pressure

Britain is maintaining her position in the shipbuilding world, and using new methods of construction. From a shipyard near Hull, general cargo ships (Shelts) are being launched at the rate of one every two weeks. This is made possible by Unit construction at inland factories. The numbered units arrive by road at the yard, where they are hoisted into position by huge cranes and welded together. These ships are mainly for Britain's activities in the Far East. . . . Photo shows tugs towing the new ship into the haven.

SOCIAL HELD BY W.A. AT LAKEFIELD

Lakefield — A successful ice cream social and bazaar was held in the parish hall on August 18. In opening the bazaar the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh stressed special cause for thankfulness for the coming of peace after six years of war.

A record attendance made continuous demands for ice cream, while inside the hall there was a brisk sale for the goods displayed. A special attraction was the gift stall, where the Junior W.A., under the leadership of Mrs. L. Westgate and Miss R. Harper, had many novel and beautiful gifts.

A cushion donated by Miss Harper was won by Miss M. Webster, while a glass baking set donated by Mr. and Mrs. Webster was awarded to Mrs. Gordon Silverson.

The outstanding feature of the evening was the program made possible by a number of artists who gave their time and talent to bring pleasure to the gathering.

The W.A. members wish to take this opportunity of thanking all who gave donations, or contributed in any way to the success of the evening.

• • •

One thing brought to notice by this event was the need for leveling and smoothing the grounds surrounding the church and hall.

This work is at last getting under way. The fund for the improvement of the graveyard and grounds of the church has received generous support from friends of the community. If there are any who wish to donate, contributions in person or by mail will be gladly received by the church warden.

Bumped Off !

A bunch of soldiers stationed in a southern town borrowed a truck to go to a chicken dinner festival. The driver soon discovered that the several brake and clutch pedals were arranged peculiarly, and when he came to a steep hill he stamped about wildly, trying to brake the truck.

His friends in back began yelling, and it was some time before the rattled GI could bring the vehicle to a halt.

"Any trouble back there?" he yelled. There was no answer. There were no soldiers. He'd been operating a dump-truck.

Toronto (CP) — Empire Youth Sunday in 1946 will be observed May 19, F.D.L. Smith, Chairman of the National Council of Education of Canada, has announced. It will come in the season of Empire celebrations, centring around May 24, and will not interfere with school examinations which take place in June.

In South Africa, the Youth Organization, recently established by Major F. J. Ney, executive-president of the council, hopes for a revival of the pre-war exchange of teachers among Empire countries. It is also interested in a proposed affiliation of schools in different parts of the Empire.

SUGAR CANE FIELDS DESTROYED BY JAPANESE

Before Pearl Harbour the world secured a million tons of sugar a year from the Philippines, the sugar distribution authority has pointed out. This year, though the Philippines are now liberated and the war in the Pacific is over, not more than 25 thousand tons of sugar will be produced in the Philippines. The Japanese destruction of the sugar cane fields was almost complete on the islands.

This is a drop in the bucket compared to the American and liberated Europe consumption of sugar food. The missing million tons is part of the huge deficit between world sugar consumption and production which Canada, the United States and Great Britain are trying to cover by restriction of domestic consumption to an equal per capita ration in the three countries.

For Good Roads in Canada

One of the primary items on the agenda is a programme of highway building. Good roads are essential to efficient transportation, and transportation is vital to the country's economic welfare.

All forms of transport — by road, rail, water and air — are necessary and complement one another. Together they form a network of arteries and veins through which flows the national life-blood of commerce, community to community, and promoting improved understanding between remote localities by enlarged contacts.

Highways represent an important part of the transport scheme, because motor travel is the most flexible of all forms of transportation and serves areas that would be isolated otherwise. Canadians, as a people, should take an active interest in the development and improvement of highways for their own benefit.

As a post-war project, extensive building of new roads and modernization of old ones would also be a barrier to unemployment, absorbing many men returning to civilian life and seeking jobs. It should not involve increased taxation because the motoring public, commercial and private, already shoulders the tax load which should be devoted exclusively to road works and not diverted to other purposes.

Good roads in themselves are an economy, because they encourage business while poor roads discourage if not throttle it entirely. The better the road originally built, the better it stands up to wear and weather and the less is the cost of repair and maintenance.

Another factor is cheaper operating costs over a well-designed and well-engineered highway. For example, it is more expensive — from the standpoint of gasoline and oil consumed and of depreciation of tires and automobiles — to operate a motor vehicle on an earth or gravel road than on a paved surface. Tests have shown that it costs more than one cent more per mile to run a car or truck on an unpaved road than on a paved road.

When such factors are taken into consideration — higher maintenance and higher operating costs, and in addition, a higher accident ratio on inferior roads — it is obvious why good roads are for the good of the country.

— Canadian Good Roads Association

Man Bites Dog

When a taxpayers' organization advocates doubling the salary of a public official, that's news!

It is more startling than the old legend which has a hard-boiled city editor telling the cub reporter: "When a dog bites a man, that's to be expected. But if a man bites a dog, that's news."

The Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Associations, with a long record as a forceful, effective, frequently belligerent watchdog over the public treasury, has urged the state legislature to increase the governor's salary from $10,000 to $20,000. The Federation argues that it is not sound policy to pay the head of any organization "doing an $85,000,000 annual business" so little, that no honest man without private income can meet the obligations of the office and that other public salaries in the state or its cities should not be greater than that of the governor.

The arguments are sound. Opposed, of course, is the philosophy that a position such as that of governor should be sought largely as an honor or an opportunity for pubilc service, that salaries of elective offices should not be so high as to be sought for the salary's sake. Yet, with our appreciation of the value of the dollar and the desirability of possessing a few of them, we still seem pretty far from that ideal.

But what of men, able but not wealthy, who are pressed to look after the economic future of their families? Shall we pass them by because their fathers were not rich?

Meanwhile, we wish for more outstandingly able men in public service — and Massachusetts has furnished her share of big men who have gone into public life at considerable personal sacrifice.

— National Municipal Review

Salvage

TO THE CANADIAN PUBLIC
WE SAY

Thank You

DURING the war, so happily ended, the Canadian National Railways, as Canada's greatest transportation system, had a gigantic task to do.

Our ability to fulfill this duty to the credit and satisfaction of the Nation is due, not only to the skill, devotion and zeal of those who are our workers, but in large measure to the Canadian Public who, by their generous responses to appeals for help and their uncomplaining acceptances of restrictions and controls, lightened our burden.

We wish to thank the Canadian Public sincerely for their help — the millions of passengers who used our trains and steamships, the shippers of freight and express, the guests in our hotels, the patrons of our telegraph and other services, and the unnumbered citizens who refrained from travelling needlessly as their contribution to the common cause.

The surrender of the last enemy has ended the fighting but it has not ended the war job of the Canadian National Railways. The men and women in the Services have to be brought home without delay and for that purpose we shall continue to employ all our available passenger equipment. Millions of tons of materials must be transported for industrial reconversion.

So in saying "Thank You" we express the hope that in carrying out these and other extensions of our war job, we may continue to enjoy the understanding of the Canadian Public.

For the Meatless Meal

By Beatty Barclay

No need to worry about meatless meals when your recipe file is well filled with substitutes and extender recipes. Some of these "surprise" dishes may prove more appealing than the steak or roast you "wished you had".

Fish, served in the form of "savories" will prove a welcome treat at any meal. When you use this recipe, you conserve on fat and get the added benefits of iron, niacin and thiamine provided by a cereal with these whole-grain values.

Fish Savories

1 Cup Grape-Nuts Flakes, finely crushed, 1 cup flaked cooked white fish, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, ½ teaspoon scraped onion, 1 egg beaten with 4 tablespoons of milk and dash of salt, 1 cup Grape-Nuts Flakes, slightly crushed.

Combine flakes, fish, salt, pepper, onion, and 5 tablespoons egg mixture, mixing well. Shape in 2-inch cakes. Roll in remaining flakes then in remaining egg mixture; and roll again in flakes. Fry in skillet in small amount of fat, browning both sides. Serve with tatare sauce or lemon slices. Makes 6 small savories.

Some people confuse "I want — I won't — I'm right — and I'll get" with the four freedoms.

By Jessie Allen Brown

WAR HAS ENDED

The war is over, to the great relief of all. Even though war has ended, peace is not here. Many European countries are torn with internal dissensions. In the East, China is involved in civil-war, and so far the troubles in India have not been solved. All is not peace even nearer home, as Canada and the United States have their racial difficulties. It is a period of uncertainty. Industry has a great adjustment facing it. Personal problems are in this period of uncertainty, too. The men who come home and their families will require a period of adjustment. This time of waiting, after the war is over, for home-coming, is harder to bear with patience than the time of danger. Governments need great wisdom to adjust controls to prevent inflation. Many workers on civilian goods are demanding higher wages. If wages go up, costs go up, and if we have to pay higher prices for products, we have the entering wedge of inflation, which can do more harm than war itself. We all crave the things which we have been doing without, but let us have patience and make haste slowly, lest we involve our country in the great perils of inflation. Our returned men are being treated generously, but if we have inflation the value of their money is cut, and the money we have put into bonds will not buy us much. Black markets decrease the value of our money and there can be no black markets if there are not people to buy from them.

VARIETY IN TEXTURE

Sieved baby foods give the child many of the foods it needs and they certainly are a great convenience for the mother. These foods acquaint the baby to a variety in flavor, but they need to become accustomed to different textures, too, as a child often refuses foods that are a different texture than the bland sieved foods. Before the war canned chopped foods could be obtained and as these were very finely chopped, babies usually made the transition without too much trouble. There is a grave danger in using the sieved foods too long a time, as the child may refuse vegetables any other way. Right now this seems to be the complaint of many mothers. Between the ages of eight and ten months babies should be given at least one food daily which is either mashed or finely chopped so that it gradually becomes accustomed to other textures. At first give no more than a taste of it and as this is accepted gradually increase the amount. Rusks, graham crackers, or a piece of toast may be given at this same age in order to teach the child to chew and to give it the necessary variety of texture. Be sure that the vegetables or fruits are very finely chopped and that very little is given at a time until the baby is well accustomed to the change. It is unfortunate that so many babies are having difficulty eating vegetables because of too long use of the sieved foods, which are such useful foods at the proper time. If the child does not eat vegetables it does not get the required amount of vitamins and minerals and is apt to be constipated because of lack of bulk in the diet.

PEPPER PICKLE

6 Red peppers, 6 green sweet peppers, 1 large cabbage, 3 cups sugar, 1 cup salt, 1 tablespoon of mustard seed, 2 table spoons celery seed.

Remove seeds from the peppers. Put the vegetables through the chopper, sprinkle with salt, and let stand over-night. Drain. Add the sugar and seeds, and add white wine vinegar until the mixture almost floats. Heat through, but do not boil. Bottle in sterilized jars and seal.

CUCUMBER SALAD

Pare a large cucumber, and cut in quarters. Remove the seeds. Dice the cucumber, add finely chopped onion to taste, and mix with boiled salad dressing just before using. Good with hot meats.

A DOSE OF CASTOR OIL

New luggage being unobtainable, some of the old looks pretty much the worse for wear. Castor oil is a good thing to use on leather book bindings and leather chair seats and it proves of great value on luggage, too. Dust the leather luggage thoroughly and if very dirty wipe it off with a cloth wrung out of luke warm soap and water. Wipe off again with a cloth wrung out of clear luke warm water and let dry. Let stand until thoroughly dry, then put a little castor oil on a cloth and rub the leather with it. Use as little oil as possible. When the oil has been well rubbed in, wipe off with a dry cloth. You will never know your old luggage.

Ripe Grape Jelly

4 Cups juice, 5 cups sugar, 2 cups light corn syrup, ½ bottle of fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, stem about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add ½ cup water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (Concord grapes give best color and flavor. If Malagas or other tight-skinned grapes are used, use 3½ cups grape juice, and add strained juice of 2 medium lemons.)

Measure sugar, syrup and juice into large saucepan and mix.

Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Parrafin hot jelly at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

BELIEVES WOMEN HAVE BIG PLACE IN THE FUTURE

Mrs. Jessie Street, Australian Delegate to San Francisco, Would Raise Status

New York (CP) — "If women want to serve the cause of peace they must advance the status of women."

That comes from Mrs. Jessie Street, Australia's only woman delegate to the San Francisco Conference, who has since been in New York.

"Raising the status of women would release capabilities which can be of great use in the effort to build a peaceful world," Mrs. Street said. "In completing a United Nations charter we have not finished a job; we have simply begun one. The greater part of the work of the United Nations will be done by the Economic and Social Council because it will deal with the problems which must be solved to remove the causes of war and other injustices which exist.

"Women have great capabilities in these social fields — health, education, housing, welfare and the like. Witness the fact that wherever women have acquired political rights, the social consciousness of governments has developed, and improved social conditions have resulted.

"Although there will be just 18 members on the Economic and Social Council and women might not be appointed to these posts immediately, they could well serve on the commissions which will be appointed by the Council.

"There is a matter connected with the United Nations to which women should be giving great concern," she went on. "It is extremely important that the Economic and Social Council should set up a commission on the status of woman, as recommended at the San Francisco Conference.

To Study Conditions

"The commission would study conditions and prepare reports on the political, civil and economic status and opportunity of women with special reference to discrimination and limitations placed upon them on account of their sex.

"In the advanced countries, where women have received political rights, it is hard for many people to realize that this is needed. But it is. In spite of the advance made by women, there is no country where women have complete equality with men; and in some of the countries women are still kept in harems and sold in marriage.

"Women's organizations should be considering these questions and studying the charter and women's opportunity for service in the United Nations. It seems to me their best opportunities at present lie in the General Assembly, the commissions appointed by the Economic and Social Council and a commission on the status of women."

Mrs. Street, a blue-eyed, brown-haired, young-looking grandmother, is the wife of Kenneth Street, New South Wales supreme court Judge, and one of Australia's most active women. She has travelled widely in America and Europe, was founder and president of the United Associations of Women in Australia and has led numerous deputations to the federal and state parliaments on child endowment, employment and taxation of women and other matters of social interest. She was a foundation member of the League of Nations Union in Sydney and attended the League's Geneva sessions from 1930 to 1938. She ran for a seat in the Federal House of Representatives in 1943 but was narrowly defeated.

RATIONING

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

This column is conducted under the supervision of the Women's Regional Advisory Committee to the W.P.T.B. . . . All enquiries should be addressed to 311 Aldred Building, Montreal, Quebec.

Q. — I've lost my daughter's ration book. It has been lost for a week. Could you please send me another?

A.—We cannot mail your daughter a new ration book. She should apply in person at the nearest Local Ration Board, (if she is of age) where she will be given a statutory declaration. If at the end of seven days from that date, the original ration book has not been recovered, it is necessary to complete the declaration and have it notarized. Then she will be issued a 28-day ration card. If at the end of the 28 days, the lost book has not been found, a new book will be issued.

Q. — Our sugar ration has been cut by five pounds, yet restaurants seem to have plenty. I was in one the other day where the waitress handed me a bowl of sugar, and just left it on the table for me to use as much as I wanted. Is this in keeping with the regulations pertaining to serving sugar in public eating houses?

A. — In the first place, it's against the regulations to have sugar bowls or dishes on a table or any other place accessible to customers. You should report any restaurant that is violating the regulations. But the restaurant is also unwise to be so lavish with its sugar. Restaurants receive sugar rations too, which have been very heavily slashed this year.

Q. — How many meals do I have to serve to members of the Armed Forces on short leave before I can get ration coupons?

A. — The new regulations provide that 12 meals must be served to members of the Armed Forces before application can be made for ration coupons on Form RB - 180. However, if you have any of the old yellow, RB-180 cards, these cards will be honored at the 9-meal rate.

Q. — What were the numbers of the last coupons which were intended for sugar for canning?

A. — P2 to P11 became valid on July 19th. These ten coupons are good for the last five pounds of this year's allowance of sugar for canning.

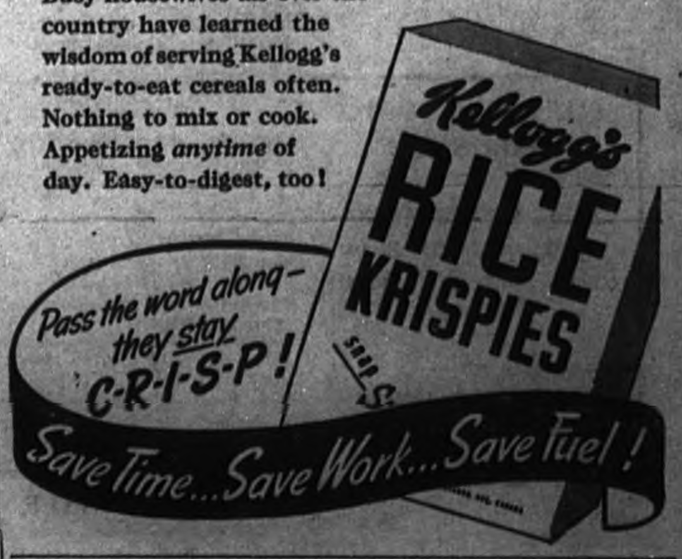

Q. — Is there a ceiling price on canned fruits and vegetables?

A. — Prices for canned fruits and vegetables from the 1945 pack will be the same as in 1944.

"Where's all the Coke gone, anyway?"

The answer, of course, is that there's a world-wide sugar shortage caused by the disorder and confusion of war. And a sugar shortage means a Coke shortage, for Coca-Cola never compromises with quality. Yes, there's one thing you can depend on —what Coke you DO get is the real thing.

To Restore Historic Treasures of London

London — The historic documents and other national treasures removed from Westminster Abbey in 1939 are soon to be restored. The Coronation Stone is buried in the precincts of the Abbey, and its exact location is known to few, other than the dean and the Canadian Prime Minister, who had custody of the plans. Even now the secret is to be kept although the Stone will be uncovered as soon as the labor can be obtained. Other treasures were hidden in various parts of England and Wales.

CLEAN UP ROADSIDES

Our roads are menaced with a plague which if permitted to spread will definitely ruin the picture and bring unfavorable comment from tourists. The plague referred to is the continuous dumping of rubbish along the highway, and the use of public byways and their approaches for a dumping ground for old cars.

Far From Home

London — English buses which have wandered far from their home routes are doing special duty now in the British zone in Germany. Many soldiers rub their eyes when they see familiar English motor coaches rolling along the autobahn. Many still bear their home names and addresses, such as "Maidstone and District" and "Eastern Counties". These are "retired" coaches, rather past their best. The passengers they carry are slave workers and other displaced persons whose transport back to their homes is one of the big problems of the Second Army.

MARINES BUILD LONDON HOMES

London (CP) — When Londoners needed houses they told it to the Marines — and in a year a body of 700 officers and men of the Royal Marines made habitable 8,500 homes. The men of low medical category were drawn from a Marine holding-depot for the work. Their pay was regular service pay with no extras, and side-by-side with their house repairing labors went regular infantry drill and parades.

HUNTERS THIS FALL TO GET AMMUNITION

Rationing of small arm ammunition will be lifted by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board on September 1. This will free centre-fire cartridges and shot shells, which up until that date were only being released to essential users. Rimfire cartridges were released from rationing in May.

Essential users of small fire ammunition who wish to assure themselves of a supply of shells or cartridges have until August 31 to secure their permits and stock their supplies, the Board announcement stated.

Keep the family circle on the square, and there'll be no chance of the eternal triangle.

On Tour

Montreal's teen-age comedian, Frank Heron, who was a gay principal in the CBC show, "The Little Revue," is now overseas entertaining the services in the Canadian Legion Show. The youthful funster began his radio career eight years ago in Toronto and joined the CBC announce staff last year. He will return to Canada and his radio comedy early this fall.

Octogenarian Is Daily Swimmer

Winnipeg (CP) — Peter L. Edie is a strong supporter of the old maxim — "After a meal, don't bathe for at least one hour". He should know, for he has been swimming for 80 years, and has never had a cramp.

Mr. Edie, who will be 89 in October, was born in Dunnville, Ont., and learned to swim in the Grand River there. He came west in 1879, and established a farm near Winnipeg.

When he retired from active farming in 1956, Mr. Edie came to the city to live, but that didn't affect his bathing habits in the slightest. Whenever the weather is warm, he pulls on his trunks, heads for the river-bank, and spends a few minutes swimming in the muddy waters of the Red River.

Unique Fountain Pen

London — A fountain-pen which need be filled only once a year is being produced in the United Kingdom. The pen has no nib but a stylographic point — a wire enclosed in a tube which releases ink — and it is only the size of an ordinary fountain-pen. The pen was invented by Miles Aircraft during the war. It was designed for pilots to write at heights where the air pressure is so low that an ordinary fountain-pen will explode.
