Mother, Four Children Burned To Death in Farmhouse Blaze

Tragedy in Quiet Countryside Shocked Surrounding District

Fate struck swiftly Sunday evening in Grenville Township, snuffing out the lives of a young mother and four children and leaving only the husband, dazed and bewildered by a tragedy which bereft him of his home and family. The woman and youngsters were burned to death in a blaze which swept their log farmhouse at 9 p.m. on Sunday. The victims are :

Mme Evangeliste Desabrais, 25, formerly Yvonne Dumoulin, of Chatham; her two daughters and two sons — Florent, six; Aurore, four; Jacques, two and a half; and Huguette, aged 13 months.

The Desabrais home is situated just north of the Montreal-Hull highway, about 10 miles west of Lachute. Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon of Lachute, who happened by on other business soon after the occurrence, stated there was no water or facilities to combat the fire even had there been organized aid. (Contrary to press reports, there was no call for assistance to the local fire brigade). The family had moved into the place three weeks ago, the father having only recently bought the farm. They were early risers, and in consequence retired to bed at an early hour.

Sleeping in a single upstairs room, the family had retired at 8 o'clock. The father, smelling smoke an hour later, went downstairs to investigate. He opened the doors at back and front and went outside to look around, but meanwhile the draft caused a burst of flame in the house which completely enveloped the upper storey. His wife called for him to aid in rescuing the children, but a sheet of flame barred the stairway and the victims were trapped. The distracted father ran to summon a neighbor living across the highway, and when the pair returned, Desabrais again attempted to climb the stair. The neighbor stopped him, however, and together they broke the upstairs window hoping the inmates might jump to safety. But from the broken window there leapt a flame 30 feet high, and it was apparent no one could have survived the smoke and heat upstairs.

In a short time the roof and interior collapsed into the stone basement, an inferno of burning debris. Local and provincial police officers including Det. L. Dauphin, Lachute, were on hand to assist, but it was not until Monday morning, on arrival of the coroner, Dr. Jules Lafleur, Lachute, and Sgt. Det. Albert Oggier, of Provincial Police headquarters in Montreal, that the bodies, or their scant remnants, could be removed.

At an inquest held in the Dansereau School at Grenville, around noon on Monday, the jurors heard the story of the tragedy, as here narrated. Verdict of the jurymen in the cases of all four victims was one of accidental death, attaching no blame or responsibility.

Evidence of Evangeliste Desabrais, the 39-year-old father, showed there had been no fire in the downstairs range since late afternoon. There was no electricity, no loose matches, to cause a possible outbreak, and conclusions pointed to a defective chimney and embers smouldering between the beams earlier in the day.

Following the inquest, the remains were released for burial, and interment took place immediately in a single grave at the Grenville-Calumet Catholic Cemetery. The religious rites were held next day in the Grenville parish church.

NORTH RIVER FORUM RESUMES MEETINGS

The North River Farm Forum met Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lummis, with 24 persons in attendance. Discussions took place and new officers were appointed, after which games of "500" and euchre were played. Dainty refreshments were served.

This was the first meeting of the group in the current season, and the gathering were unanimous on its success.

BRITAIN USES BARTER SYSTEM

London (CP) — The barter system, where money doesn't mean a thing, has come to Britain from the Continent.

Main centers of activity are the north-east coast ports where Danish fishermen are getting the goods they want by exchanging eggs they bring with them.

So much of this is going on that people on Tyneside, Wearside and Teesside are blaming it to some extent for the shortage of cigarets in their shops.

The Daily Mirror says that more than cigarets are exchanged for the preserved eggs brought by the Danish fishermen. Coffee, cocoa, salt and cycle parts also find their way to Denmark.

A packet of 20 cigarets is worth 20 eggs to the Danes. In Denmark these cigarets will fetch £1 ($4.50) and cycle tires are worth anything from £5 ($22.50) to £6 ($27) when the fishermen get home.

A police official said the trade was being widely carried on and that as far as he knew it could not be stopped.

More Repatriates Welcomed Home

Sgt. Fred Pring has arrived home after four and a half years overseas, with the 17th Huzzars. He was met in Montreal Sunday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pring, and was welcomed by a gathering of friends Monday evening at his home in Lachute.

• • •

Pte. Antoine Belanger, 3rd Battn., R.C.E., arrived home Monday in Lachute, having crossed from Britain on the Ile de France. Pte Belanger, who enlisted in 1941, has been three and a half years overseas, having served on the Western European front. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jos Belanger, Sr.; his wife, residing here, was formerly Miss May Noble.

• • •

Sgmn. Allan J. MacRae, son of Mr. and Mrs. John MacRae, of Harrington, Que., was welcomed home this week after three years of overseas duty with the 21st Can. Arm'd Regiment in France, Holland, Belgium and Germany.

• • •

Lieut. Allan Harder was among servicemen to arrive from Britain last week-end, and is now visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Ord Anderson, East Ward, where his wife and family have been residing. Mrs. Harder and two children will accompany her husband next week to Manitoba, their home province. . . . . Lieut. Harder, R.C.E., went overseas in September, 1943, and served in the Western European campaign, being severely wounded in Holland.

(Items concerning the return of many servicemen in this county appear in the district news columns elsewhere in this issue.)

Residents Here in News Pictures

Five Generations

In the Montreal Daily Star recently, a group photograph showed five generations of a family whose homes are in the Avoca district of this county. The group includes — Mrs. Elizabeth Nixon, 87; a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Young; a granddaughter, Mrs. Harry Young; a great-grandson, Nelson Young; and a great great-granddaughter, two-year-old Melba Young.

Mrs. Nixon, whose resemblance of feature may be noted throughout the entire group, has 13 children, 88 grandchildren, 127 great grandchildren and six great great-grandchildren.

Ocean Setting

In a picturesque setting more reminiscent of a Hollywood scene F/O Sidney Drew, Air Force officer of this town, stars with a gay young member of the women's services, looking towards Canada aboard the liner Brittanic on their homeward voyage from Britain. The servicewoman is Corporal Vivian Drew, of Coaticook, Que.—no relation, however, to F/O Drew.

QUARTERMASTER'S STORES

A quartermaster is probably the stingiest man in the world. . . . he squeezes everything he issues. He just hates to let it go. You would think, by golly, that every battle dress and pair of boots he gave you came out of his own pocket.

All-Girl Revue For Victory Loan Packs Auditorium

Although needing no impetus in way of spectacle or entertainment, the Argenteuil Victory Loan campaign received the boost of a more enthusiastic community spirit, through the T-N-T Revue presented here Tuesday evening — a talented all-girl troupe which has given commendable service in entertaining the armed forces at various training centres.

The Auditorium was packed (and the ventilation quite inadequate — a condition deserving future attention of the civic authorities). Philippe Valois, co-chairman of Public Relations, presided and opened the program. He introduced Georges H. Héon, K.C., M.P., who spoke in commendation of the T-N-T troupe and on behalf of the Victory Loan campaign, stressing some of the urgent needs for which new public investments were required. . . . The chairman also presented S. J. Smart, works manager of C-I-L Ammunition Division and prominent in the campaign committee at Brownsburg, who reported progress and reactions in his canvassing division.

Mr. Valois then voiced a cordial welcome to the entertainers and turned the program over to their charge. Opening with a spectacular dance routine, the numbers proceeded, with no let-up in enthusiasm, through many well-applauded turns. Dance and chorus presentations in glamorous costume, involving complex routines, gave evidence of tireless rehearsal. One of these, a nautical scene, featured the trademark of Player's Cigarettes, indicating support of the makers in sponsoring this show. Hilda, the magician; Elsie, the guitarist; Lila, with song selections both popular and operatic; the master of ceremonies, Margaret Weir, singing an old troop-show favorite, "You'll get used to it" — these were only a few of the more notable turns. The crowd responded well to a community song-leader, and a mirth provoking act involved several young men from the audience in an unusual contest —with an unusual prize—Damasse Audette, of Lachute, being considerably embarrassed by the full-troupe kissing demonstration which followed. . . . Piano accompanist throughout was Willa Schlosser.

Thanks of the audience, and of the Argenteuil 9th Victory Loan Committee, were expressed by Philippe Valois. During the proceedings special reference was made to the lady manager, Hilda (Mrs. Peter Riordon), who has had two sons overseas on active service.

Carillon Farmer Dies Suddenly

The death of Gaspard Lapierre, 53-year-old resident of Carillon, occurred suddenly on Sunday evening while he was tending his animals in the barn near his home. Having left the house at 7 o'clock and failed to return, his wife became anxious and sent her son to call his father. The boy found him dead, where he had suffered a heart attack and fallen near a horse stall. Dr. Jules Lafleur, district joint-coronor, was summoned from Lachute, and pronounced death due to natural causes.

The Lapierre home is on the highway between St. Andrews and Carillon, near the grove known as The Pines.

HAS EIGHT LEFT

Has a cat nine lives? . . . The cute little kitten that plays about the office of Shea's Coal Yard got caught in a heavy door of the office safe, gave a few kicks and plopped over, apparently as dead as they make 'em. The body was taken outside and left for burial later, but in a half hour, what should be playing around the yard but the supposedly dead kitten.

Thermometers Too Hot, Bulletin Boards Too Short - Phenomenal Stride in Brownsb'g Victory Loan

Civic Improvements in Streets, Sidewalks

"IN BROWNSBURG" (Specially Contributed)

The Victory Loan drive has gone so far over the top with the present Brownsburg effort, that several of the progress indicators were found wanting. Thermometers got too hot. Bulletin boards got too short. Percentages ran out of figures — and even some of the salesmen ran short of application forms.

Civic Improvements

The Brownsburg Council is proceeding with the laying of sidewalks on all the streets. Great progress has been made during the last few weeks, and Mayor Donaldson is to be highly commended for the fine results shown. Quite an improvement has been made in the Malacket corner, which has been both a danger and an eyesore for years past. The Mayor is, however, disappointed that the new fire station has to be completed without the proposed hall on the second floor. The promised government assistance — like "Herbie" of the Maple Leaf — was both elusive and uncertain.

Silent Revolt

The difficulty of procuring firewood, and in many cases the impossibility of paying the price, has resulted in householders installing oil-burners in larger numbers than was thought possible a year ago. While admitting labor to be scarce and costly, and work of a more congenial nature plentiful, nevertheless the wood salesmen about the district may find their market gone when normal prices rule again.

Community Centre

We are requested to correct a misunderstanding — having last week linked the Community Council plans for a skating rink, swimming pool and playground with the idea of a war memorial. . . . The building of youth centres to embody "living war memorials" is favored by the federally-sponsored physical welfare movement — and it was in this broader sense we referred to the local project. Actually there has been no definite proposal here to establish a community centre identified as a war memorial.

Clothing Collection

Reports from provincial headquarters of the National Clothing Collection are now to hand, covering the work of the Brownsburg committee, under the energetic chairmanship of Mr. Sam Rose. Calculated per capita, 2½ lbs. of clothing was collected from every man, woman and child in Brownsburg.

To the humorous salutation of one of the collectors entering a house where three women were seated at a table "Any old rags or bones today?", the woman of the house said "Come in, I have a parcel all ready." Picking up the parcel the collector looked expectantly at the second woman, who also produced a parcel all tied up and ready. Being of a persistent nature the collector turned to the third woman and assuming an appealing tone, said, "What about you, lady?" but was met with the reply, "I haven't got a thing. Everything I can spare I give as alms to those whom I know need it."

"Speaking of 'alms' ", said our persistent collector, "you know that word has a strange effect on me. Did you ever consider it has no singular?". The lady replied, "Well, no, I never thought of that." "Oh yes", said the collector, "that is to teach us that a solitary act of giving doesn't deserve the name — we should give again".

The lady immediately took her coat from the rack and handed it to the collector, who later returned with some personal effects which were found in the pockets.

New Consolidated School in Rosemere

Principal Was Former Teacher in This County

A new consolidation of Protestant schools has been effected in Rosemere combining the one-room schools of Ste. Therese and Commonwealth Plywood District, and the children of Ste. Rose who were formerly conveyed to Montreal.

On Saturday afternoon last, the new school — with three classrooms, a fine auditorium, library, teachers' rest room, and janitor's living room, bedroom and kitchenette — was formally dedicated by the Rev. G. A. Norman of Ste. Therese in the presence of a large and interested audience.

Among the speakers were A. Kirk Cameron and Geo. Y. Deacon, of the Protestant Committee, and the Very Reverend Malcolm Campbell, chairman of the Montreal Protestant Board of School Commissioners.

Mrs. McCaig, the principal of this new school, taught for several years in the Bell school at Harrington.

Accidental Death Verdict at St. Remi

Accidental death was the coroner's verdict in a fatality following a mishap last April at St. Remi d'Amherst. A resident of that community, Arthur Brisebois, on April 17 fell while climbing over the side of a truck, and was believed to have struck the back of his head on his lunch pail, which had fallen to the ground. Brisebois, 55 years of age, was taken to the Neurological Institute in Montreal, suffering from a broken neck, and he had been almost completely paralyzed since his admittance to the hospital, where he succumbed to his injuries on Wednesday, October 24.

Detective Maurice Valiquette, from Montreal headquarters of the provincial police, investigated the circumstances of the accident, and Dr. Jules Lafleur, of Lachute, district joint-coroner, conducted an enquiry Saturday, returning a verdict of accidental death.

YOUNGSTER KILLED AT HAWKESBURY

Hawkesbury — Struck by an Imperial Oil truck shortly after 7 o'clock Tuesday night while running across the road with three companions, Maurice Menard, eight-year-old son of Lorenzo Menard of Hawkesbury, and the late Mrs. Menard, was killed instantly. An inquest will be held this afternoon in the town hall.

When the three youngsters dashed across the road, the Menard child was struck by the right front fender of the heavy truck, driven by Dennis Goulet, local distributor for the Imperial Oil.

This was the second fatality of its kind in Hawkesbury within two months.

Lachute Leads, Brownsb'g Second; Industries Go Well Over the Top

Reports from Victory Loan headquarters in Lachute this morning show that Argenteuil has attained 84 per cent of its $1,075,000 objective for General Sales and Payroll Savings.

Following are the percentages for the nine canvassing districts in Argenteuil County:

Lachute	111
Brownsburg	109
St. Andrews East	84
Grenville	71
Calumet	43
Morin Heights	35
Arundel	33
Weir	11
Huberdeau	10

Employees of Ayers Limited, Lachute, have subscribed 103.6% of their objective. At C-I-L Plastics Division in Brownsburg, the final results were 193%, and at C-I-L Dominion Ammunition Division, 176%. Employees of Canadian Safety Fuse in Brownsburg have reached 127%, with the canvassing still incomplete. The canvassing at Dominion Shuttle Co. and Canadian Refractories Ltd. is making steady progress, Dominion Shuttle having reported 90% of its quota attained this morning.

Argenteuil is the fourth unit in the Northwestern Region at the half-way mark of the campaign. Local officials are confident that this position will have substantially improved before the Loan finishes, and are hopeful of finishing in first place.

Remembrance Day And Poppy Sales

Armistice Day, in solemn remembrance of men who died in the First Great War, and to honor all those who in the second conflict have fallen in freedom's cause, will be observed again this year.

As November 11 falls on Sunday, it has been decided the usual morning ceremonies at the Auditorium and Cenotaph in Lachute will be held instead during the afternoon— which will thus detract in no way from memorial devotions at the morning church services.

The ceremony at the Auditorium will commence at 3 p.m. — veterans to parade outside the building at 2.45 o'clock.

Schools to Close Monday

A notice from the Quebec Department of Education, addressed to the school teaching staffs, states that on Monday, November 12, all schools in the province will close. The letter, signed by Dr. W. P. Percival, director of Protestant Education, states in part: "In order that pupils may remember the day and its purposes, I hereby declare, in accordance with the authority given me, that Monday, November 12, will be a holiday for pupils of all the Protestant schools in the Province of Quebec."

Poppy Sales

Again this year the poppy campaign will be sponsored in Lachute by the Legion branch, and young ladies will assist in the sales. In soliciting public support to the effort, the public are reminded these emblems are made by veterans disabled for other forms of occupation. They are purchased from the Vetcraft Shops, and profits from their distribution accrue to local Legion funds, which are again solely for the aid of needy veterans and their dependents.

Hospital Record Cited at Soirée, Benefit Card Party

About 200 persons attended a benefit card party last Thursday at Lachute Auditorium, in aid of the Providence Hospital, Lachute Mills.

In welcoming the patrons and thanking them for their support, Gaetan Valois gave a brief report, which conveyed some idea of the role this hospital is filling in the community.

Since the institution was opened July 1, 1943, under supervision of the Sisters of Providence, there had been a total of 1700 admissions. These included cases of the following classifications :

442 Obstetrical; 392 childbirths; 74 general surgery; 371 tonsilectomy; 175 general medical cases; 75 accident cases; 163 dental extractions; 530 X-rays, exclusive of hospital patients; 75 laboratory analyses.

The above summary was a record of activities up to October 22 last.

A mink stole offered as the evening's prize was won by Mrs. Léopold Carrière, while another prize, a handsome blanket, was won by Mrs. Hervé Filfe.

HIGH SCHOOL SOCCER

Young Airman's Death Confirmed

A memorial service is being held Sunday morning at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lachine, in tribute to the late Flt. Sgt. Donald MacVicar, R.C.A.F. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos MacVicar, formerly of Lachute, Donald was born here and is related in the county.

His parents, residing at 618 St. Joseph Street, Lachine, were recently informed that their son, who was missing and presumed dead, is buried at Saarwerden, Alsace Lorraine. This confirmation was gleaned from German documents seized since capitulation of the enemy.

The late Flt. Sgt. Donald MacVicar followed in his father's footsteps as an employee of the Bell Telephone Company, in which Mr. MacVicar holds a supervisory position. Besides his parents, the young man is survived by three sisters.

Prize Distribution, Grenville School

Grenville — The assembly hall of the Grenville Consolidated School was completely filled by children and their parents and friends, on Friday evening last, when prizes for the work of 1944-45 were awarded.

The Rev. A. E. Hawes, chairman of the board, presided. The pupils provided several items of entertainment and Inspector L. J. King, of Lachute, was guest speaker.

The consolidation of eight rural elementary schools a few years ago made possible this fine new building in Grenville, and such interesting events as that witnessed at the school on Friday evening.

WIDELY QUOTED

It is always interesting to study the comments and news which have been reprinted in other papers. Recent returns from a press clipping service show that among the editorials in the Leader-Mail which have been widely reprinted, one which called for early abolition of the National Selective Service was reprinted in many papers from North Sydney, N.S., to North North Battleford, Sask.

Townsman, Veteran Honored by Friends

Honor was paid to Mr. Mac E. Walker, by a large number of his friends who gathered Friday evening at Lachute Golf Club to extend good wishes and congratulations on the occasion of his approaching marriage.

Supper was served, presided over by James W. McGibbon, after which a toast was given to the King, proposed by E. M. Jones, president of the local Legion.

L. L. Legault, K.C., an old friend of the Walker family, was then called upon, and after referring to past and present friendships, proposed a toast to the bridegroom-elect. A toast to the bride was proposed by Gavin Walker, and responded to by Bob Cairns.

On behalf of those present and many well-wishers, Alex M. Vessie then presented the honored guest with a handsome travelling bag and brief case, with a sum of money. Surprise and appreciation were expressed by Mr. Walker, who cordially thanked his friends.

The Belanger brothers, recently returned from overseas, and others, provided entertainment, after which the gathering joined enthusiastically in community singing.

Farmers Show Keen Interest in Methods of Managed Milking

Far removed from the slipshod methods of earlier generations dairy farming has become a modern science. Biology, physics, a smattering of chemistry, a spice of human understanding—all these enter into the calling today, whether or not the farmer is conscious of having acquired such knowledge. — How this has come about, while the twice -a-day drudgery of hand-milking has given way to assembly line methods, was shown in an informal talk and demonstration last Friday by Dr. Geo. H. Hopson, D.V.M., a graduate of Cornell and life-student of all factors, pathological and scientific, involved in milk production. His address was an understandable attraction to to dairymen of this district, and the meeting proved one certain fact — that these men are keen — alert to meet the strict requirements of their industry — anxious to maintain their business on efficient lines. The attendance gave ample evidence of these facts.

The conference, held at McArthur's Hall, Lachute, was sponsored by the De Laval Company Ltd. Chairman of the evening was an authority on local aspects of the milk business, Linton W. Armstrong.

Milk, to the dairy farmer, is not "just another crop", said Dr. Hopson. Hay, grain, silage—these are harvests only subsidiary to the principal revenue-producer, milk. Yet, for generations, the process of milking has been a drudgery, a dread to farm youth, and "the reason for thousands of good bankers, lawyers, professional and tradesmen who left the farm at an early age for more attractive lines of business". Today we live in a mechanical age, and in the dairy business, mechanical milking is ipse facto.

How man had influenced the evolution of the cow was strikingly told; the fact was illustrated with figures comparing milk output in a championship cow, 90 years ago and at the present time.

The term "fast milking", an ideal in good milking practice. was actually a misnomer, he stated. It did not apply to actual milking speed, but rather to the animal's preparation and "let-down". It was the speed-up to ensure quickest and fullest response of the animal. Mechanical milking, Dr. Hopson claimed, was the nearest substitute for calf-feeding, with its injurious factors eliminated. The time check for successful machine milking should be between 2½ and 3½ minutes for the average cow.

The speaker, obviously familiar with his subject from the rudiments up, recommended immediate machine milking at the very commencement of lactation. First-calf heifers — extremely "interesting" animals — should be the subject of special consideration and instruction; cows were creatures of habit, he stressed, and should be started off correctly. The practice of feeding cows while milking, was strongly discouraged. Nothing should be allowed to distract the animals in this process, even the act of feeding — besides which, oderiferous foods would taint the milk. The speaker also recommended machine stripping, save in exceptional cases.

Mastitis — "udder inflamation caused by injury, either mechanical or bacterial" — was discussed at length, for it is the most costly casualty factor in dairying, and one demanding constant vigilance of the cattleman.

Generally speaking, cows purchased from a dealer have been "unloaded" by some previous owner due to dissatisfaction or defect. This was a logical but not readily accepted fact. Dr. Hopson expressed himself strongly in favor of breeding and rearing to dairy age, but in the alternative of buying dairy stock, he gave some sound advice and illustrated his points with screen photographs showing defects and deformities. The lantern pictures also illustrated good cow-barn practices.

A demonstration was given of machine milking, with special emphasis on correct care and cleaning of equipment. In cases of one-man milking, two machine units were preferable to three, saving much in time. . . . To the layman this demonstration revealed the old chore of milking as a systematized job, proceeding with clockwork precision and assembly line technique. It was a process in which any machine-age youngster could display pride and enthusiasm.

A question period raised further queries on decontamination and maintenance of the equipment, among the fast-growing number of local cattlemen to whom mechanical milking is the only way in successful dairying.

The speaker and his assistants were cordially thanked by James Black, of Mabel.

Seasonal

Winter Overhaul Of Farm Machinery

Late fall and winter are generally the most convenient times to adjust and repair agricultural machinery, and much reconditioning can be done with tools available on the farm. Repairs that cannot be done on the farm should be taken to the blacksmith or other repairman as early as possible, so that the work of the repairman may be evenly distributed throughout the winter. After the fall work on the farm has been completed, many farmers make a point of drawing up a list of parts of machinery which should be replaced and repaired, and in the case of parts that cannot be repaired but happen to be available under present conditions, orders are placed well in advance of actual need, so that in the event of delays the parts may be on hand when wanted.

In overhauling machinery, all bearings, axles, and similar parts subject to wear should be taken apart and examined carefully. Parts that are not likely to work well for another season should be replaced, if possible. Other parts should be thoroughly cleaned, care being taken to see that the lubricating parts are working well. Parts that work in the ground, such as cultivator shovels and discs, should be checked and those that are cracked or badly worn should be replaced. Other parts may require sharpening to ensure best results for the following season.

The protection of farm machinery during the winter time is not always a simple matter. Most farms have room for the storage of machinery but often it is difficult to house heavy machinery. However, if equipment has to be left in the open, the extra care necessary in finding efficient means of protection against the weather will add years of usefulness to the machines.

End War Control on Milk and Cream Sale

An announcement of interest to milk and cream producers and the trade is in the statement that the Agricultural Food Board has removed its stabilization restrictions on the purchase and sale of milk and cream. Beginning November 1st, farmers will be free to sell these products to any creamery, condensery, cheese factory or dairy and the trade will be free to buy, subject to provincial regulations, from any producer.

The Board was authorized to impose the restrictions two years ago to ensure creameries sufficient cream to maintain the butter ration and cheese factories sufficient milk to fill the cheese contract with Britain and generally to prevent unnecessary diversion of milk from one use to another.

Now at the close of a favorable season for milk production it is apparent that cheese requirements can be met and with the quantity of milk now going into various products more or less in line with the demand for these products, the emergency regulations appear no longer necessary, said the Board.

The Board warned, however, that farmers should continue selling cream or milk to their regular buyers until the end of October in order to continue receiving the producers' subsidies on milk and butterfat.

Garden Clean-Up

Most insects hibernate out-of-doors in one stage of development or another. In the Canadian climate, protection of some sort is essential to enable them to survive the sub-zero temperatures. In some cases this protection is provided by the insects themselves and takes the form of thicker cocoons, impervious coverings to egg-masses, woolly coats (on caterpillars) and so on, says Alan G. Dustan, entomologist, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

In many instances, however, the insects must rely on insulating materials quite apart from their own bodies, and probably the most commonly used is plant refuse in fields or gardens. When winter approaches, insects seek cover beneath these as a protection from the cold. Some species are far-sighted enough to lay their eggs or spin up their cocoons on garden plants, depending on these to provide suitable cover when they wilt and die down in the autumn.

By raking up and burning all dead leaves, old grass, wilted plants and other sources of shelter, a large percentage of insects hibernating in the garden will be at once destroyed or will die of exposure during the autumn, winter, or early spring months. Burning over weedy areas adjacent to the garden will also kill many eggs, cocoons, hibernating caterpillars, some adult forms, such as butterflies and beetles — all of which will be found helpful. If this practice is neglected, a large proportion of the insects which inhabit the garden in the fall will pass through the winter successfully to emerge in the spring to seriously damage the new crops breaking through the soil.

THE WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD
FARMERS' BULLETIN

FARM MACHINERY OFF RATION LIST

All rationing controls have been removed from sales of farm machinery, and restrictions on the production or importation of such machinery have been lifted.

Price controls remain. Generally, maximum price for farm implements is the price at which such items sold during the basic period, August 15—September 11, 1941. Quoted prices do not include cost of delivery to the purchaser.

Under Consumers' Credit Order No. 225, section 10, terms of sale for farm machinery are: 1/3 of quoted price paid in cash; the balance of the credit price to be paid within two years of the date of the contract in stated amounts at specified dates. Any allowance for a trade-in is to be deducted from the unpaid balance.

Despite the lifting of production restrictions, it is expected that the shortage of components such as malleable castings and sheet steel will limit the maximum output of farm implements during the year July 1, 1945, to June 30, 1946, to a 24% increase (on tonnage basis) over the output in the preceding 12 months.

Farmers' Poultry Prices

Farmers selling all types of poultry, except turkeys, direct to consumers are permitted a 25% markup over the wholesale ceiling prices established for the zone in which they are located. Turkey producers are allowed a 20% markup over the wholesale level.

Potato Storage Allowance
(Order A-1560 now in effect)

A storage allowance of 5c per 75-lb. bag of potatoes and 7c per 100-lb. bag is allowed on November 1. Another 5c per 75-lb. bag and 6c per 100-lb. bag may be added on December 1, and another 5c per 75-lb. bag and 7c per 100-lb. bag on January 1, 1946. There will be no storage adjustment for February but monthly increases will be resumed on March 1.

FARMERS' RATION COUPONS

Coupons covering farmer sales or farm household consumption of meat and butter, and sales of preserves must be forwarded to Local Ration Boards in primary producers' envelopes (RB-61). Reports for November should reach the Local Ration Boards not later than December 10.

Following are the valid coupon dates for November:

	MEAT	BUTTER	SUGAR	PRESERVES
November 1.....	M 9	128	..	..
" 8.....	M 10	..	..	..
" 15.....	M 11	129	66, 67	P 20, 21
" 22.....	M 12	130	..	..
" 29.....	M 13	131	..	..

Farmers are required to send in "M" coupons to the Local Ration Board for meat they consume, and meat they sell to farmer neighbours at the rate of 4 lbs. per coupon. Farmers who slaughter meat need not turn in at the end of the month more than half the valid meat coupons in the ration books of their household. Farmers who purchase meat from other farmers must surrender to the selling farmer one meat coupon for every 4 lbs. of meat purchased, even if this means surrendering coupons not yet valid.

FARM SLAUGHTERERS

Farmers who slaughter for their own household consumption or for the consumption of their farmer neighbours, are not required to hold a slaughter permit. Any excess of farm slaughtered meat over the farmer's or his neighbour's needs may be sold only to the holder of a regular slaughter permit in quantities not less than a quarter of Beef or a side of Pork. Sheep, lamb or calves slaughtered by the farmer for his own or his neighbours' use may not be sold into the meat trade.

Licensed slaughterer's quotas for cattle have been temporarily suspended and until further notice a licensed slaughterer may slaughter all the cattle needed for his requirements.

Rationing is your assurance of a fair share. is a protection against waste . . . shortages . . . inflation. That is why farmers are asked to continue to collect and turn in coupons to their Local Ration Boards—once a month—in the RB-61 envelope.

For further information apply to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Something to Ponder

AT A SCHOOL closing ceremony in this town, Prof. W. H. Hatcher of McGill University left this thought-provoking remark with the parents among his audience : "Children are naturally honest — they learn dishonesty from the grown-ups".

District Governor Doug Silverston, speaking recently on Juvenile Delinquency before the Rotary Club of Brownsburg, said : "No child is born either honest or dishonest; he is trained that way. When a child steals, he is not a thief. A child lies before he becomes truthful. He steals before he becomes honest. Teach a child self-discipline. Do not lose sight of the fact that our prisons are inhabited by people who learned self-expression but not self-discipline".

And finally, coming to practical cases, D. Archie MacDonald of Montreal tells of his enquiries into the background of the Lauzon gangsters, now standing trial. (His discourse was a radio address on the same subject of Juvenile Delinquency). "I questioned the boy", he said, " — he is hardly old enough to vote; and he freely confessed eight bank hold-ups with close to a half-million dollars of loot. I talked with the mother of his pal — the latter was shot as he tried to cash a stolen bond. Neither of these boys was born bad. Something happened along the way. — What was it ?"

Something happened along the way. — It is a terrifying thought, that parents today have, in the making, the decency of the future generation and the peace of the future world. — Or conversely, its crime and filth and lawlessness. On their guidance and example, such slender threads as these, depends the molding of human lives. . . It is a responsibility to be taken very seriously.

Death-Dealing Souvenirs

TRAGEDIES that are doubly distressing because they are avoidable, are following in the wake of war as veterans of the fighting in Europe bring weapons to their Canadian homes as souvenirs. Several persons have lost their lives and more will die or be maimed unless people can be taught that pistols, even the "unloaded" ones, are death-dealing.

The danger was emphasized dramatically in the case of an army officer who returned to his home bringing an automatic pistol, a trophy of the fighting on the Continent. A careful father, he showed his 12-year-old son the automatic, pointed to a loaded cartridge clip in a drawer and explained it must never be touched.

Next day the boy stepped to a window to answer a chum's call and show him the automatic. A moment later his playmate was dead with a bullet through his head. Somehow a cartridge had reached the firing chamber.

There is another danger — that souvenirs will fall into the hands of criminals. A police officer died in Ottawa this week, fatally wounded by a weapon stolen from the war museum.

Federal officials are considering tightening controls, but tragedies will continue as long as firearms are left within reach of any except those most experienced in handling them. Boys who have been playing with toy guns for years will automatically point a real one. Inexperienced adults are never really certain there isn't a cartridge in an automatic pistol.

The law provides that revolvers and pistols must be registered each five years. This regulation does nothing to offset the dangers inherent in indiscriminate possession of firearms, but police find it valuable in tracing stolen guns. Even this regulation is not being kept. Of the 233,217 pistols and revolvers previously registered, only a third have been re-registered this year as the law requires.

The prudent person with a new souvenir or any sort of small-arm can insure himself against tragedy only by following the advice of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and turning it in to the police for destruction.

"Bad Time to Build"

WITH THIS assertion from the lips of every kibitzer at a building site, it is surprising that there should be so much private construction these days, wherever one turns.

From certain angles, the critics are right. Many of the delays in building caused through scarcity of materials, and annoyances occasioned by unqualified help and the lack of skilled tradesmen — these will doubtless disappear as the situation becomes adjusted. However, as regards the costs, it is but false optimism to look for any early improvement. In this respect it will be a "bad time to build" for a long while yet. Authorities in Montreal — and there are many who share the opinion — state that the cost of housing materials and of labor will be "as high 15 years hence as they are now."

SIGN of the times : In the classified ads of a Montreal daily this week, a prominent space advertisd the needs of a departmental store for a man — plump, jovial, pleasing personality — to play Santa Claus.

"How old now would be a person born in 1898?
"Man or woman?"

Builders of the Future

UNIVERSITY corridors echo this autumn to the strong, steady tread of Canada's sons back from the wars. For many it means the return to studies and memories that kept them firm and purposeful during years in the services.

The Dominion drew immense strength from her universities. Thousands of this year's crop of male students and many co-eds wear the general service button or are attending classes in uniform while awaiting discharge. They are back preparing themselves to give of another strength in the bloodless battle of the future.

The problems these young people face in their return to college life are of prime importance to the whole of Canada because their future success is as important as the battles they won. It is not an exaggeration to say that the last 25 years might have been different had not Canada lost the cream of a generation in the First Great War. The comparatively light losses of the war just ended are encouraging if this line of thought is followed. But, unless returned students, and indeed the whole of the great body of returned men and women, can solve the problems of civilian life, the country will have suffered a blow equally as tragic.

One of the hardest of the immediate problems facing the soldier-student is the necessity for steady, unexciting plodding that must be done to force brains which are out of practice to absorb the flood of facts presented at every lecture. This will not be easy after years of training in the art of war and the easy camaraderie of life in the forces. The urge to take it easy will be hard to overcome.

For a student back from the war success is important — it's imperative. Canada and the world will be making ever-increasing demands on this generation to which they even now owe so much. A high level of education is as much a part of this country's wealth as her rich ore bodies and vast timber tracts. This form of wealth will become more and more valuable as peacetime activities expand. Canada must have this wealth as she must have her physical resources, if she is to build on the position she has attained in the march to victory.

Bingo !

THE WEIGHT of argument seems generally opposed to J. O. Asselin, executive chairman of the Montreal City Council, who — in discussing organized gambling, stated that a charity bingo, or taking a chance on a raffle, was in principle a breach of the law comparable to playing barbotte.

It is an argument of some interest in Lachute. Barbotte dives have flourished here. And, on the more wholesome side of the comparison, bingo games have been conducted by churches, service clubs and charitable organizations. And also on this subject there has been much good natured argument — everyone joining in — and everyone, pro and con, buying a ticket, if so disposed, for the next performance. Like most good natured arguments too, there has been no knock-out decision.

Public opinion seems more definite, however, on Mr. Asselin's contention and its fallacy. The general view is aptly crystallized in a reply by J. H. Laframboise, a fellow councillor at City Hall. Folks play bingo more to amuse themselves than to make money. "No one", he says, "has ever seen a man ruin himself and his family financially through sitting in at a church bingo game or taking a ticket on a raffle for a car".

He might have added — around the bingo game or charity drawing, there is not the entourage of prostitutes and dope-peddlers who exploit the gambling centres for their tawdry living.

It's A Fact

SINCE the beginning of the war publishers of weekly newspapers have faced the greatest demand in history upon their space and service; and with the manpower and equipment shortages, they have literally worked night and day to meet these extraordinary demands. Few, if any, business or professional men have been asked to contribute more of their time, products and personal efforts to the winning of the war on the home front. — Salmon Arm (B.C.) Observer

"If ——"

If you can keep your head and calmly ponder
How silly spending drives the prices high;
If you can save the cash you'd like to squander
And only buy the things you need to buy;
If you can do your part to fight inflation
By simply being thrifty with your pelf,
You'll do a vital service to the nation
And — furthermore — you'll benefit yourself.

Post-War Plans for Veterans

● The post-war plans of veterans were dealt with recently by Veterans Minister MacKenzie. Mr. MacKenzie revealed that less than one-third of the fighting forces released to civilian life are actually hunting for employment.

In July there were 23,845 pre-discharge interviews by officers of the Department of Veterans' Affairs at release centres . . . a sharp increase over the June total of 15,754. Only 32.4% of those interviewed are in quest of employment. Nearly half the veterans have jobs, farms or businesses to which they are returning and about one veteran in seven has a new job available.

University and vocational training and settlement on the land absorbs the remainder. Keenly aware of the need for specialists, 12.4% of July dischargees sought further educational training. Less than 3 per cent chose farms or farming, while 7 per cent are undecided as to their future.

Britain Continues Control

● Begun in Britain almost six years ago, price control and controls over production are to continue for at least another five years, according to provisions of the Supplies and Services Bill, introduced recently by the Government. The Bill also provides for further indefinite extension of these controls year by year should it be necessary.

Mechanized Farming For China

● The future of China, which has been through so much in the past few years, is of vital concern to the world at the present time. The farmers of Canada, who have been doing such a magnificent job of keeping the food basket of the world reasonably well filled during the war, will be interested to learn that the experts in China are giving increasing thought to the agricultural needs of their country in which farmers comprise three-fourths of the total population.

I have been reading an article by Shen Tsung-Han, Deputy Director of the Chinese National Agricultural Research Bureau.

China's agriculture can, and should be mechanized, he says. The use of animal and human labor is too expensive, Shen Tsung-Han notes. Farm animals in China are, as a whole, too weak to work properly. To improve them, better feeding and scientific breeding are necessary.

He also notes that farms in China are too small for the economical use of agricultural machines. The first remedy is to enlarge the farms. The second remedy is to put the ownership and operation of agricultural machines on a corporate basis. He wants to see the formation of agricultural machine companies to render service to individual farms at charges based on the area of land sown. To prevent the evil of monopoly, individual farmers should be given the privilege of becoming shareholders in these corporations.

ANGELIC FACED CHILDREN

PTE. CLAIRE TO MONTEBELLO UNDER SAIL

— By A. H. Thompson —

Under the heading of Junior Activities in CRL News (employee journal of the Canadian Refractories Ltd., Kilmar) A. H. Thompson tells his experiences on two occasions navigating a sail-boat without auxiliary power up the Ottawa River to Montebello. From that viewpoint the writer recalls an impression of the Argenteuil riverfront which is perhaps new, certainly interesting, to residents along the Ottawa shore.

"GRENVILLE CANAL ONE OF PRETTIEST STRETCHES OF WATERWAY IN CANADA"

In 1937 and again in 1942 I took my little sailboat "The High Tide" from Pointe Claire to Montebello without the benefit of any auxiliary power. By water this is a round trip of 120 miles, 60 miles of it all upstream against, in some places, a rather stiff current, so we had to pray for a good strong east wind to push us. Besides the current, we had to sail through three small canals.

The first canal is at Ste. Annes and this is only a little fellow with one lock. The lockmaster is quite familiar with sailboats since numbers of them go up the river every day in the summer to sail on the Lake of Two Mountains. We had no trouble getting through the Ste. Annes lock, and enjoyed a fine east wind all the way to the Carillon locks. The lockman here ordered us to take down our sails and motor through; he was amazed when we told him that we had no engine and would have to sail through. He said that no boat had sailed upstream for 20 years. We pushed on through under sail at a good clip, but as we headed out into the river again the wind dropped completely. This was an anxious moment because there is a big weir across the river behind the canal at Pointe Fortune and we were only a few hundred yards above it and our boat out of control. However, we threw out an anchor which held us until more wind came up and we finally edged our way to the shore, where one of us jumped to take a tow rope.

Our next canal was the old Grenville Canal built many years ago by the Royal Military Engineers, and still in very good repair. It has very high lock gates and when the water was out, our mast, which is 28 feet high, barely reached the top of the canal bank. Again we had to convince the lockmaster that we could sail through before he would open the gates.

The Grenville Canal is one of the prettiest stretches of waterway in Canada. At most places along its seven miles length the water level is only an inch below the bank. We often stepped out of the boat and ran along the banks disturbing fat old turtles basking on the flat stones. Since few people use this canal, it has turned into a bird and animal sanctuary. We frequently came upon wild duck, mostly Blacks and Mallards but with the occasional Butterball and Sheldrake, while in the shallows of the canal, and later in the open river, we saw many blue herons, commonly called cranes, standing on one leg with their dagger-like bills ready to skewer any unsuspecting frog or fish. Chipmunks and squirrels scampered along the shore and in the over-hanging trees complaining that we were disturbing their solitude.

We had a dangerous time at the mouth of the Rouge River when a very bad thunderstorm forced us ashore. The hail stones were so big that they sounded like a load of firebrick being dumped on our deck. Later on as we were sailing upstream we ran up on a log boom. This scared the daylights out of us; it was 2 a.m. and black as pitch! We were right in the middle of the river and never expected to find anything out there so low in the water. Finally we sailed into the cove at the Seigniory Club, again at 2 in the morning, cast out the hook and slept for a good 12 hours — our first sleep in four days.

Bell Falls

Special Union Service

A service long to be remembered by those attending, was held in the Campbell Hall on Sunday afternoon last. It was another of the union services of the Avoca, Harrington and Kilmar United charge. The Rev S. J. Pike, of Brownsburg, conducted the service. Young people formed the choir, and Mr. Frank Steere, of Brownsburg, rendered two beautiful solos — "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling" and "He Lifted Me," accompanied by Mrs. C. J. Wheeler. Mr. C. J. Wheeler also brought greetings.

The guest speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Dr. W. S. Reid, of Montreal, son of the Rev. Dr. W. D. Reid, who was student-pastor on the charge 55 years ago. Mr. J. D. Shaw read a message of greeting sent by him for the special occasion.

Dr. Reid delivered a stirring message on the text: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto everyone that believeth". The Gospel, the Power of God and the Types of Believers, were the points with which he dealt. Singing of the old hymns also added much to the spirit of the service. A special offering was taken for the Honor Rolls fund of the three appointments in this charge.

The services next Sunday will be held in the various churches — Avoca at 1.15, Harrington at 2.30 and Kilmar at 3.45.

Hon. J. S. BOURQUE, Minister Lands and Forests Quebec

A Special Message to Quebec FARMERS and FARM WORKERS

Reconstruction at home and the needs of ravaged Europe require an intense effort on the part of our forest industries. To meet the situation, our forest production must be maintained. This necessitates more workers in the woods. Thousands are already there. But to meet the challenge, we still need the help of more and more men.

During the coming months there will be less need for men on our farms. Farmers and farm workers can meet a national need and supplement their incomes by working in the woods.

I urge all who can do so to help in harvesting the forest crop. Well-paid work awaits every able-bodied man. For our own progress and prosperity we need more workers in the woods.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Fitting Observance, Anniversary Of United Church at Brownsburg

Brownsburg—Marking the 104th anniversary of the church in this community, the 93rd of the first building, and 37th of the present structure, the gatherings of the Brownsburg United Church on Sunday and Monday last were, in the opinion of those who attended, the best yet to be held.

On Sunday morning the guest preacher was the Rev. Dr. W. S. Reid, of Montreal, who delivered a stirring sermon on "Building the Church of God." Dr. Reid came on a dual mission, for in addition to being preacher at Brownsburg, the minister, Rev. S. J. Pike, had arranged for him to preach at the union service of the Avoca, Harrington and Kilmar charge, where his father, the Rev. Dr. W. D. Reid, labored as student-pastor 55 year ago with such signal success. This service was held at Bell Falls on Sunday afternoon, in the Campbell Hall, with a large audience.

Special music was also rendered at the Brownsburg church on Sunday morning by the choir, and the male quartet was also heard to good effect. The evening was of a high order — the Young People's Union, who had withdrawn their meeting on Monday evening, also taking an important part. The president, T. Carpenter, rendered a solo very acceptably. The minister conducted both the morning and evening services.

On Monday evening the auditorium of the church was again comfortably filled, to hear Sq. Ldr. the Rev. A. O. Lloyd, of Ottawa, a former assistant minister. A program of selected musical items was also presented, given largely by members of the Lachute United Church choir under leadership of Mr. C. Duncan. Their selections included a mixed quartet, Miss E. Ness, Mrs. A. Taylor, Messrs. C. Duncan and O. Todd, in two numbers. Miss Ness also sang a solo, "The Holy City," and Mr. Todd sang, "Bells of the Sea." Mrs. W. King, of Brownsburg, sang "God Remembers and the World Forgets" and "The Home Land."

Another special item on Monday evening was given by Miss Jessie Pitkethly, of Ottawa, elocutionist, in three renderings — two English and one in Scots dialect.

Sq. Ldr. Lloyd, guest speaker, gave a very vivid picture of his chaplaincy overseas, in which he touched on the black-out in England, as well as the rationing of commodities. The "Faith of the boys" — their confidence in being "held" as they went into battle — struck a deep note in the hearts of his listeners. His address was also punctuated with strange as well as humorous anecdotes.

Of his 13 years at Bell Street United Church, Ottawa, Sq. Ldr. Lloyd served four and a half years in His Majesty's forces, two and a half of which were overseas.

Meeting old friends of former days, Sq. Ldr. Lloyd added many more in his visit and message to this community. As a former associate, the Rev S. J. Pike, who acted as chairman for the evening, spoke in glowing terms of Mr. Lloyd's work as minister of Trinity United Church, Montreal, and was glad to renew their intimacy of the past. The Rev. W. H. Leaton, of Maple Avenue Baptist Church, and the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, of Lachute, brought messages of greeting.

Following the gathering, which was closed with singing "Blest Be the Tie Which Binds" and "The King", refreshments were served by the ladies, in the newly decorated church hall, where a friendly visitation terminated with "Auld Lang Syne" and the Benediction.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The weekly meeting of the Presbyterian Y.P.S. was held on Thursday evening last, President Cecil McFaul and the Rev. E. Orsborn, leading in the worship service.

Following a short business session, at which the November 15 supper was the main item of discussion, and for which plans are being rapidly completed, the program took the form of an open discussion with Mr. Orsborn as chairman. The subject was "Woman's Place is in the Home". In summarizing the arguments put forth, Rev. Orsborn stressed that in Christian living each one should take his place where his talent will do most good for fellow men, and cannot be bound by steadfast rule.

The meeting of this week, being held tonight, is a Hallowe'en party; that of next week, on Wednesday, November 7, will be a worship program conducted by Ruth Orsborn.

'Christ and His Kingdom' Crusade Inaugurated Here by Rev. T. W. Jones

The Rev. T. W. Jones, minister of Calvary United Church, Montreal, inaugurated the campaign and "ignited the spark" with the hope of "setting the United Churches on fire with the spirit of Christ and His Kingdom", in this northern region of the Presbytery of the United Church of Canada.

Opening his remarks with the challenge, "Lift High the Cross of Christ", Dr. Jones defined the hope and ideals of the early Crusaders, who fought to free the Holy Land from the infidels. "We in the United Church are also called upon a crusade", he added, and described the plans of the Moderator and the committee working on this campaign from coast to coast.

"The crusade came out of need", said Mr. Jones, "and not of any effort of one or two individuals, for we must be crusaders if we want to build a better world . . . and accomplish glorious things."

Speaking of the part that church organizations have to play in the crusade, Dr. Jones asked Sunday School teachers to "see in every child a disciple for Jesus Christ", and to help them to follow "a high and consecrated life". He outlined several ideas for members of the Y.P.U., and of the necessity of contacting ministers in Montreal when members leave to live in the city, so that they will be encouraged to continue in the church. The speaker pleaded for youth to make a stand for Christ, though it may mean hardship.

Dr. Jones appealed for understanding on behalf of returning veterans, especially to the businessmen who will be asked for jobs, and he also entreated a tolerance for the war brides from Britain, who will make excellent citizens.

Challenging the group to "go active for Jesus Christ", the speaker said "Look at the good that could be done if the 600,000,000 Christians in the world 'went active'.

The crusade is calling every department of the church, and according to the last census there are half-a-million more people registered as United churchmen than there are on the church rolls. . . "There is your work", challenged Dr. Jones; "go after that half-million and bring them to Christ". Concluding, the speaker charged his audience to build a "kingdom glorious" and to be "builders all".

The meeting was under chairmanship of the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, and the group was also addressed by the Rev. Harry G. Tuttle and Mr. Guy Tombs, of Montreal.

Two spiritual solos, "His Precious Name" and "Stranger of Galilee", were sung by the Rev. Dr. Katsunoff, of the Church of All Nations, Montreal.

County Couple Wed in Lachute

Campbell - Younge

A pretty wedding took place in the United Church manse at Lachute, on Saturday afternoon, October 20, when Miss Sadye Florence Younge, second daughter of Evan Younge, of Kilmar, Que., was united in marriage to Mr. Vernon Kenneth Campbell, of Harrington, Que., son of Roderick Campbell, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a grey tailored suit, navy hat and matching accessories, with a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

Miss Ruby McNeil, of Bell Falls, Que., was bridesmaid, wearing a lime green suit with brown hat and matching accessories, and a corsage of roses.

Mr. Gerald David Younge, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

After the wedding a reception, largely attended, was held in G. R. Campbell's Hall at Bell Falls. A three-tiered wedding cake centred the bride's table. The hall was very prettily decorated. The couple received many beautiful and useful gifts, also a sum of money.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left for Lachute and Ottawa, followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

Annual Meeting of Bible Society Branch Held at United Church

The annual meeting of Lachute branch of the Bible Society was held in the United Church last Sunday evening. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough welcomed the guest speaker, Rev. M. W. Booth, B.A., B.D., who has recently been appointed district secretary for the society. His subject was, "The Bible in These Times".

The Rev. Booth told of many personal experiences with people who were enthusiastic for the work of the Bible Society and its printing of the scriptures, and yet when questioned as to their reading of the Bible, they had to shamefully admit that they did not read it! He emphasized the privilege that was ours, by comparing the present time with Biblical days when there was only a scroll, kept locked in the church.

He told of the many great Christian martyrs, including William Tyndale, who was determined to translate the New Testament into English, but, when refused aid in London, left for the continent in 1524. There he translated the scripture into English in 1525, and it was immediately carried to England. Later, Tyndale was burned as a heretic.

The Bible today is translated into 1,066 different languages and dialects, but there are still 972 tongues in which it has to be translated.

The Rev. Booth went on to speak of the Bible and its influence on the future.

(1) The Bible teaches the humility of Grace. It is hard to teach people who are strong and mighty, he said. We are of a nation who are victors, and unless we look to God for guidance in the settling of world affairs, we may well look to the future with little hope.

(2) The Bible abounds in a message of hope and comfort. A call has come from U.N.R.R.A. to the Bible Society for 2,000,000 copies for the suffering peoples of Europe.

(3) We think of the Bible as a "directive for life". Statistics show that more and more of the world's population are learning to read. The question is, what are these people going to read? Are we going to make it possible, through the Bible Society, that they have a Bible as their guide?

The Rev. Rosborough thanked the speaker for his address, and the Rev. G. T. Spriggs closed the meeting with the benediction.

The total proceeds from collections amounted to $379.50.

Church of England Diocesan Conference, Three-Day Session

Montreal — Six young Anglicans — three married and three unmarried — will participate in a panel discussion of the Town Meeting type in the auditorium of the Montreal High School on Tuesday, November 6, as a feature of the coming diocesan conference on the subject, "The Church and the Family — The Fight for Christian Homes." The Lord Bishop of Montreal, Rt. Rev. John Dixon, will act as chairman. This particular session is being planned especially for the young people, to indicate where both church and home influence may be at fault in failing to solve the problems that beset today's younger generation.

The three-day conference will be attended by delegates from 125 of the 140 parishes in the diocese. Arrangements are being made to house out-of-town delegates in the homes of Montrealers.

Services of Holy Communion in the Cathedral will precede daily meetings in the Synod Hall, while the evening sessions are planned for the High School, University Street.

Married Saturday At St. Simeon's

Richardson - Neill

The marriage of Miss Joyce Isabel Gladys, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. S. Neill, to Mr. Thomas Richardson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Richardson, of Fort Erie South, Ont., took place Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute, the Rev C. W. P. Baugh officiating.

The organ was played by Mrs. Baugh, and Mrs. Arthur Trickey sang "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden". Potted plants decorated the church.

Mr. Ross Neill, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Mr. Albert Gauley, cousin of the bride, and Mr. T. Monroe, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a floor-length dress of white sheer over satin, with white finger-tip veil, and carried a bouquet of pale pink 'mums. Her only ornaments were a gold locket and ear-rings to match, the gift of the groom.

The bridesmaid was Miss Jean Mason, of Montreal, cousin of the bride, who wore a floor-length dress of pale yellow sheer over taffeta, with veil and slippers to match, and carried a bouquet of bronze 'mums.

Mrs. Neill, the bride's mother, wore a dress of Burma rose crepe with hat and gloves to match, and a corsage of white roses. Mrs. T. Richardson, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gold sheer dress with brown redingote, a brown hat trimmed with gold sequins, and a corsage of yellow 'mums. Mrs. F. Fulton, grandmother of the bride, wore a black moss crepe dress and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bracelet, and to the groomsman a smoking set.

A reception was held in the Lachute Auditorium, where supper was served to 180 guests. The bride's table was centred with the wedding cake, white tapers in tall silver candlesticks, and with bouquets of white 'mums. The happy couple left by motor for a week's honeymoon at Grey Rocks Inn, St. Jovite. For travelling, the bride wore a fuchsia crepe dress, black hat with fuchsia velvet flowers, black accessories, and a Hudson seal coat, with a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will reside in Montreal.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. Richardson, Mrs. F. Kritico, of Fort Erie, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe, Mrs. Rankin and daughter, Mr. Alex Rankin and Miss Francis Lawson, of Montreal.

Hallowe'en Party at United Y.P.U.

Hallowe'en was celebrated early by members of the Y.P.U. of Lachute United — with appropriately clad figures and an eerie atmosphere permeating the church hall Monday night. Decorations also fitted the occasion, arranged by Mary Scott and Elva Ness, while the refreshment convenors, Norma McClenaghan, Doris Leroy and Jean Tomalty had prepared a splendid meal, served on a suitably decorated table.

Recreation was in charge of Donald Hooper and Martin Albright, who had planned a program of diversified amusement. During the "grand parade" of costumes, the judges, Mrs. Gordon Dobbie and Mrs. R. A. Giles, chose the prize winners — Helen Stewart, depicting "Victory Loan Number 9", and Edith Clark, who represented the well-known comic character Mama Yokum.

After a full evening of entertainment, the party sat down in the candle-light and enjoyed refreshments. The various convenors for the evening were thanked by the president, Jack Gorman.

The program next week will be in charge of the Citizenship convenor, and it is hoped that films of interest will be secured for the occasion. The meeting will be held on Wednesday, November 7.

Marriage Rites in Danish Tradition

Paulsen - Jensen

A pretty wedding, following the Danish custom, took place here Saturday afternoon at the United Church, when Stella Jensen, daughter of the late Mr. Hans Jensen and of Mrs. Jensen, Bell Plains, Saskatchewan, became the bride of Mr. Anders Paulsen, son of Mr. Julius Paulsen and the late Mrs. Paulsen, of Denmark.

The ceremony was conducted in the Danish tongue by the Rev. H. Beck, of the Danish Church in Montreal, with the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, United Church pastor, in attendance. Two Danish hymns were sung during the ceremony.

The bride, given in mariage by Mr. Hans Jacobsen, wore a brown crepe dress with shoulder-length veil caught up with white flowers. She was attended by Miss Kirsten Jacobsen, who wore a green wool dress with brown accessories. Povl Jacobsen was best man.

After the wedding a supper, also in the Danish style, was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Paulsen will reside in Lachute, where the bridegroom is in business partnership. He is at present on leave of absence from the armed forces.

School for Forgers Revealed in Britain

Plymouth, Eng. (CP) — "Schools" where budding forgers can learn how to defraud the post office savings bank, exist in the United Kingdom, said W. E. J. Major, prosecuting for the postmaster-general in a case against a sailor charged with obtaining $50 by forging a post office bank book.

Mr. Major said that when one person had perfected the secret of forging to secure money from the bank, the system — which he did not reveal — was taught to friends at private classes. The sailor was fined $45.

Corrects Rumor On Victory Bonds

The following statement is from W. H. Price, Argenteuil County Organizer for the National War Finance Committee:

"A vicious and completely inane rumor is being circulated by certain irresponsible parties in Argenteuil County to the effect that Ninth Victory Loan Bonds cannot be cashed in for a period of two years. I could quite freely give my own opinion on this subject and, if so, at length, but instead am content to quote two great Canadians, the Honorable J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, and Mr. Graham F. Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada:

" 'It will be of the greatest importance that we maintain, indeed assure, a ready and stable market for all these millions of Bonds that have been sold. We have now the monetary and financial machinery and we have developed the methods for accomplishing this, and we will therefore be able to deal with any situation which may develop in a way which will keep faith with the millions of investors who are supporting the Savings program in this national emergency.' — Hon. J. L. Ilsley.

" 'Government Bond prices reflect the level of interest rates. A decline in bond prices could happen only if interest rates were to rise. In my opinion, the needs of the future will require and enable the kind of monetary policy which has brought about the current level of interest rates. Continuance of this policy means stability in Victory Bond prices.' — Graham F. Towers.

Mr. Price continues: "I can only point out, in addition to the above, that all two War Loans and eight Victory Loans are selling at, or well above, their original offering prices."

They had FAITH in Canada's Future!

Nine Good Reasons for Canada's Ninth Victory Loan

1. To feed, clothe and pay our occupation troops.
2. To repatriate our combatants and reinstate them in civil life.
3. To care for, hospitalize and cure the war's sick and wounded.
4. To pay our fighting men's war bonuses.
5. To pension the dependants of those who have died for their country.
6. To train our veterans for peacetime work.
7. To re-establish our markets in order to create permanent jobs for all.
8. To help fight famine in the devastated countries.
9. To prevent inflation by savings and investment.

The men and women who made this land of ours were people of faith. That faith brought them across the dangerous seas, beckoned them into the golden West. They faced many dangers, endured many hardships; many of them died, before the things they had worked for, dreamed for, fought for, came to pass. We have entered into the inheritance they built for us.

At the end of the greatest war in history, in which Canadians have played a worthy part, this great Dominion faces an opportunity for further greatness and prosperity — such as no other nation under the sun has ever been afforded.

We must have faith in the future and we must translate that faith into action. Every dollar invested in Victory Bonds is an active affirmation of our faith. We have fought a good fight — now let us reap the reward of our Victory by investing in Canada's future.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

POOR PRODUCTS

The time has come when I would like to get the worth of my money for a change when I buy fruits and vegetables. It has been so long since I have seen a head of lettuce that is not partly rotten that I have almost forgotten we ever could get good lettuce. Celery is rusty and often partly rotted, so that about the four centre sticks are all that are really good in a bunch. Cabbage is wormy and at times it has rotted too. A large part of almost every head of cauliflower has to be cut away and very often the worm comes out to greet you. This fall there has never been more than one onion to a pound that was without rot. Yes, I know we are lucky to have all the food we have. I know, too, that the farmers have had difficult times what with the severe shortage of labor, and unseasonable weather. The point is that the retailer who sells me these products, and the man who grows them expect the money I give in payment to be good, not fairly good, nor partly good, but perfect. Why then haven't I a right to expect the products which are bought with that perfect money to be in good condition when a top price is taken for them? The consumer has been taking a lot of pushing around and a good many of them are getting fed up.

A PEACHY STORY

Fruits have been poorly packed and graded, but this year Ontario peaches have been nothing short of a disgrace. The first basket I bought was a basket of early peaches, and they were slightly green but not too bad as they ripened fit for us in a day or two, and they were as good a flavor as can be expected of early peaches. The next basket looked something wonderful under their red netting. When the basket was opened they were green and hard and only the top layer were large. They rotted before they were ripe, but I salvaged enough of them to grind to make peach marmalade, and the oranges and cherries added compensated to a degree the flavorless peach. Then hopefully I bought another basket to can. By comparison, these were so green that the other basket seemed almost ripe. Every single peach in that basket rotted before it was possible to make use of it for any purpose. Being by nature an optimist I got a fourth basket, but I did manage to look under the camoflage and saw that the peaches were reasonably ripe. There were only two peaches in the basket that were not wormy. It was not possible to can them, but I did manage to salvage some for slicing. It is time the red netting was removed from the peach baskets and let the buyers see what they are getting. There are undoubtedly honest peach growers, but they have to suffer by the practices of many of the rest of them. Apparently it was not possible to control the worm in peaches this year, but it certainly is possible to allow peaches to ripen to the proper degree before picking. Peach growers had to contend with insufficient and inexperienced labor, but even so that is not sufficient excuse for the condition of the peaches marketed. There was a time when a number one Ontario peach meant something. Perhaps next year it will be possible to employ sufficient inspectors to see that it regains its former positiion.

COTTAGE CHEESE

Cottage cheese is a valuable food for small children, as indeed it is for adults too. By the time the baby has arrived at the eighteenth month stage he should be having his cottage cheese. Try giving just a taste of it at first until he becomes accustomed to it. The two year old I know best was not keen about cottage cheese alone, but ate it eagerly when mixed with prunes or apple sauce for his breakfast. Sometimes for a change he got it at another meal as a sandwich. Cottage cheese spread on one slice and jelly on the other, then when he took it apart, as he invariably did, there was something good on each slice. To make cottage cheese, the milk should be soured until it is thick, then put in the double boiler and the water underneath never allowed to come to the boiling point. Just as soon as the whey can be seen around the sides, turn it into a colander and let drain several hours until dry.

INDIAN PUDDING

⅛ Cup cornmeal, 4⅛ cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ cup mollases, 2 tablespoons butter.

Mix the corn meal with ⅛ cup milk. Scald the remaining milk and add the corn meal to this, stirring carefully. Cook over low heat for 20 minutes. Add the remaining ingredients and bake in a slow oven of 325 degrees for 2 hours. Serve warm with cream.

SUET DUMPLINGS

1 Cup bread flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ⅛ cup chopped suet, about 3 tablespoons water.

Sift the dry ingredients and add the suet which has been freed from skin and finely shopped. Mix well and add enough water to moisten. Drop by spoonfuls on top of a boiling stew, and cook for 15 minutes.

WOMEN RESCUING MANY HOMELESS IN GERMAN AREAS

Bring Back Displaced Persons From Districts Now Under Russian Control

Berlin (CP) — Young Belgian and French girls, under 25 years old, have been travelling deep into Russian-occupied Germany to bring back displaced persons for repatriation. Not only do they bring back their own nationals but American and British subjects too, and they have gleaned much information on missing displaced persons for authorities.

Members of Team Number One, of the combined French and Belgian Red Cross in Germany, have been where no other voluntary and few non-Russian allies have been permitted to travel since the capitulation.

In their mess in Berlin (which had the gay atmosphere of a smart Parisian finishing school more than headquarters of team workers who have done tremendous work in the Belsen horror camp), Commandant Wenceslas Coppee, peacetime engineer from Brussels, described some of the girls' work.

"It is these young girls who do everything," he declared and looked around benignly at the chattering group, two of whom were dancing a mad fandango in a corner.

"But we have to thank these women for getting us this privilege of going into the Russian zone," Coppee went on. "It was Madame Helene Wittiuck who arranged everything and who by her wonderful spirit keeps the morale of these overworked girls as high as this."

Married to Belgian

Madame Wittiuck is a slim, dark, chic Russian-born woman married to a Belgian from Brussels. Energetic and full of charm, she has been a dress designer in New York and Paris as well as a journalist. [illegible] said the relations of the teams with Russians were most cordial and the latter are always helpful in providing each convoy with a Russian officer as guide when they enter the Russian zone.

The Belgian team has four drivers and three nurses, the French seven drivers. The girls, who were brought up in pampered circumstances, drive convoys of heavy ambulances and trucks which they use to bring the sick back from camps in eastern Germany. They all know first aid, and all have had to turn their hands to anything from changing heavy spare wheels to tending the desperately sick displaced persons.

They usually sleep inside the trucks and ambulances on the road. They hold the heavy vehicles on the blasted, corrugated roads, although the captain of the French team, Janine Ivoy, of Paris, looks as though she could not turn a steering wheel. She is five feet tall, with close cropped blond curls and is a veteran French Red Cross and underground worker who has been evacuating displaced persons from Belgium and Germany since France's liberation.

BRITAIN PLANS PEACE PROGRAM FOR ITS WOMEN

Margaret Hickey, American, Finds War Has Made British Women Confident and Adaptable

New York — Uncle Sam sent Margaret Hickey to Great Britain to study John Bull's system for the re-employment and re-training of women war workers and veterans.

Miss Hickey, chairman of the Woman's Policy Committee of the War Manpower Commission and president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is back now with these observations:

"The great lesson Great Britain has learned out of the war is the importance of the human resources of a nation. England has made a human approach to human problems that surrounded demobilization.

"For instance, they have resettlement advice centres all over England — every community has one. These are not placement bureaus. They are attractive, well furnished centres where people who were allied with the war effort can sit down in a homey atmosphere, talk over their problems and get advice on what track to take in future. There is less emphasis on filling out forms and more on getting at the problems."

Miss Hickey set aside a brief case stuffed with memoranda and went on with her observations:

"Britain is determined to get back her place in the sun on trade. The country is in a radically constructive mood. The goals are: (1) Jobs for all who want to work. (2) A steadily rising standard of living. (3) Greater technical efficiency.

Plan Modern Machines

The British plan to scrap old machines as fast as possible. The higher appointment service founded to fill top-rank vacancies — especially those in science and engineering — gets jobs for people, but it is also careful to place people for national interest.

"Finally, there is close co-operation between government and industry and between government and the workers, through committees and boards. In the cotton industry there is the cotton board; on the other side the trade unions. Both work with government."

Miss Hickey, dark-eyed, white-haired and fresh-skinned, spoke earnestly. She is one of the few key women in America who are in touch with virtually all types of working women. She was born and educated in Missouri, is a member of the Missouri bar and now heads Miss Hickey's Training School for Secretaries. She founded the school during the depression.

She says that Great Britain is encouraging its women to stay in industry and has opened jobs by the thousand to them in expert industries manufacturing textiles, boots, shoes, cutlery, etc.

"The war changed the whole complexion of life for British women," Miss Hickey said in conclusion. "They are more politically minded, more astute economically.

FIRST IN CANADA: This is one side of the Canadian Pacific's "railway within a railway", introduced for the first time in Canadian train service at Windsor Station, Montreal, to save time for both those who make sleeping and parlor car reservations and those who take them. Mounted on ball-bearing wheels and an elevated track this mobile filing cabinet makes accessible to seated operators all diagrams of sleeping and parlor cars in regular and extra line service which they are asked for over direct telephone lines from all ticket clerks in Montreal. Lined up by W. C. Wainwright, reservations supervisor, after intensive study of arrangements in effect in principal American cities, it was built at the C.P.R.'s Angus Shops in Montreal.

A saga of womanly initiative and courage: Mrs. Katharine Marston, editor of the Elora, Ont., Herald, awarded the Lorne Eedy trophy for the best editorial page in smaller weekly newspapers, was widowed four years ago when her farmer-husband died leaving her with four young children. She bought the Herald. Her children helped with the housework while she reported the news, wrote editorials, added to circulation. She deserves every success in life.

Home of Her Own

The girls in khaki and blue have their hearts set on a home of their own rather than a career, it would seem.

The re-establishment credit of 85% of the girls discharged from the services up to the end of August, a sum totalling $79,670, has been used to buy furniture and household equipment. None of the girls has yet used her credit to purchase a business.

Hayrick Burned Up, Also Farmer White

Corsham, Eng. (CP) — When Farmer A. G. White discovered one of his hayricks ablaze and called the fire brigade, he didn't expect to be left as burned up about it as the hayrick.

This is his story of what happened: The call-bells would not work, having been out of action for a month.

When the firemen arrived they could not find the hydrants or the static water tank.

When they found the hydrants, there was no pressure of water. The static tank was locked and no one had the key.

A tender was sent to fetch water, but the lights failed and the tender had to crawl along while a man with a lantern walked in front. Meanwhile the hayrick burned down.

DISCHARGED PERSONNEL
MAY RETURN TO OLD JOBS

The Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act, passed by Parliament in 1942, sets forth conditions under which employers MUST REINSTATE their former employees in their employment after discharge.

This Act and its Regulations are administered by the Dominion Minister of Labour, through the National Employment Service. Reinstatement Officers are available in the National Employment Offices to answer inquiries, and assist in adjusting cases.

Employees — either men or women — are to be reinstated if:

(a) they worked for their employer 3 months immediately prior to enlistment, and were not replacing another employee who has since been reinstated;

(b) they left their employment to join the Armed Services, the Merchant Marine, or the Fire Fighters Corps;

(c) they apply to their employer for reinstatement, verbally or in writing, within 3 months following discharge in Canada or 4 months if discharged Overseas.

Provision may be made for extension of time if the employee's health prevents him or her from returning within the specified three months. In this event, the employer must be advised within the 3 or 4 months, as the case may be.

The following points in the legislation are also important:

1. Discharged men and women upon reinstatement are to be given conditions not less favourable than would have been enjoyed had they continued in employment instead of joining the Forces.
2. The period of time spent with the Armed Services is to count for seniority rights, pension rights, vacations with pay, and certain other benefits.
3. Discharged personnel who cannot perform their former duties are to be reinstated in the most suitable employment available, at which they are capable of working.
4. If an employer dismisses a reinstated employee within 6 months, he must be able to prove in court that he had reasonable cause for so doing.

ALL EX-SERVICE MEN AND WOMEN ARE URGED TO USE THE FACILITIES OF THE NATIONAL EMPLOYMENT SERVICE WHEN LOOKING FOR WORK.

Impressions of War Correspondent, Service Club Speaker Here, Point To Dangers of Complacent Attitude

Marcel Ouimet of CBC Heard by Large Audience, Lions Club Members, Guests

Lachute Lions Club were hosts to the Brownsburg Rotarians for a fraternal visit at their regular supper meeting Tuesday, held at the Lachute Golf Club quarters. The guests were cordially welcomed by Lion President Leopold Carrière, and during the business session Lion Jack Giles, District Deputy Governor, presented lapel pins to Past Presidents Fernand Legault and F. W. FitzGerald, in recognition of their full attendance during the year.

Following the business session the meeting was opened to numerous guests, both ladies and gentlemen, to hear the speaker of the evening, Marcel Ouimet, CBC war correspondent recently home from the European battlefronts, a speaker familiar to radio listeners in this province.

Again under the chairmanship President Leopold Carrière, and, after an interlude of community singing, Lion Fernand Legault was called upon to introduce the speaker. Marcel Ouimet, he stated, has been his former classmate at the University of Montreal. In his career as war correspondent he had followed the Allied campaigns through the Mediterranean, Sicily and Italy, then from D-Day on, through France and the western European fronts, finally to Berlin. . . . At the conclusion of Mr. Ouimet's interesting talk, he was ably thanked by Vice-President Lion Gordon McOuat, and the meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Following is a resume of Mr. Ouimet's discourse :

The last four months of my assignment overseas were spent in Belgium, in Holland, in Germany and in France. It was my good fortune to come into close contact with the populations of the liberated or occupied territories, as well as with the soldiers of the United Nations who had just fought the war to a victorious end. — These men may have known the mud, the harassing fatigue, the perils of war, yet their attitude is not based on sentiment! It stands rather as the expression of sound and realistic thinking.

"We", they say, "we, the United Nations, have won the war. . . . Are we winning the peace?" . . . "Some of us", they remark, "got into this war because we felt attracted by adventure. Others, because they cherished certain ideals. Are these ideals to be set aside, to be forgotten now that we've done the fighting and entrusted others with the working out of peace?"

And others say : "What was all this talk about democracy opposed to totalitarianism, about the rights and privileges of the small people?" . . . In contrast with their fathers who fought the long and murderous battles of the Great War, soldiers of this generation are not so sure that they've taken part in the last of the major conflicts.

This may not sound optimistic! — But my observations in Europe have convinced me that, while our generation may be spared the horrors of another catastrophe, unless a workable formula is attained in the next few years, another world crisis can develop whose victims, this time, will be our children, the children of today's soldiers.

Of course the Germans have been literally beaten to the ground. But they, as all other former major powers, can recuperate!

Our Soviet allies are a young nation that has just found out its strength, and it's up to us to be realistic and make them understand that there's place for everybody under the sun.

What about the United States? They too have no territorial ambitions! Yet they too might make the error of feeling drunk with power.

So, with England nursing her wounds, proud despite the sombre years ahead; with France reeling under economic and political disruption; and with Italy, once an artificial major power, now the most ravaged country in the hemisphere — that is the hangover left by war.

I would like to speak about the French, the British, the Americans, the Belgians, the Dutch, the Italians, as I've known them in the last few years. Time doesn't allow me to do so. But I can tell you of the Germans and the Russians as I saw them, the men who fought perhaps the most savage battles of all times.

* * *

In one of Berlin's swank suburbs, I had a long conversation with the owner of a comfortable home where I had been billeted.

This man was a manufacturer. Once the owner of 14 buildings — all but one destroyed by the Allied blitz; yet outside of the German political prisoners in the concentration camps, he was one of the only few sincere Germans that I had the pleasure to meet.

He confirmed the story of the rise and growth of Nazism. He was an anti-Nazi. A former Hauptman (Captain) in the German Imperial Army, he talked of the last war. He showed me photographs of his son, in his earlier years — whose absence around the house, as well as that of any later photograph, were conspicuous.

"My son," he explained one night, "I just want to forget about him. Ever since he was ten he hasn't been mine. The State took him away. A Hitler youth, when the war came he'd just turned 19. Like all those of his age he was overjoyed. . . He joined the Luftwaffe, served in the battle of France.

W.I. Members Hear Handicraft Topic

Thirty-five members and several visitors attended the Lachute Women's Institute meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Miss Frances Wren, of Macdonald College, being the guest speaker.

Miss Wren gave a brief outline of the history of some of the handicrafts and arts, and showed samples of the work done in the Handicraft Department at Macdonald College. She spoke of pottery as being the oldest of the arts, and how ancient history had been learned from the discovery of old pottery. Woodcraft, also an ancient art, was well known to the Indians of the Americas. Miss Wren described the different kinds of weaving and leather work and showed examples of beautiful articles which had been made by ex-servicemen in hospital at Ste. Anne's.

Plastic, one of the newer developments of science, has no history behind its origin, she said, but although it is only in its experimental stages it has great possibilities as a handicraft medium.

Ceremonies Sunday, Remembrance Day

Lest there be any confusion between the Remembrance Day observance here and the school holiday announced for Monday next — readers are reminded that the regular Armistice service in Lachute Auditorium will be held at 2.45 o'clock Sunday afternoon, November 11, followed by the usual laying of wreaths at the cenotaph. . . . Veterans are requested to parade in front of the Auditorium at 2.45 sharp. Dress — mufti or uniform.

Huberdeau Leads County, Lachute 2nd

Hope Unit Will Pass Grand'Mere, Joliette

Argenteuil Victory Loan officials announced this morning that the County had already exceeded its $1,075,000 objective for General Sales and Payroll Savings by 44%.

The Special Names objective for Argenteuil of $425,000 has been exceeded by $175,000 and now stands at 140%.

Only two districts in the Province of Quebec — Grand'Mere and Joliette — have exceeded Argenteuil's percentage to date. Before the campaign closes it is confidently expected that Argenteuil will end at the head of the list.

During the past week, Huberdeau provided the major fireworks, now having obtained 247% of its objective. Lachute stands at 198% and indications point to at least 200% here. St. Andrews East and Grenville are running neck and neck, with 157% and 152% respectively, Brownsburg is the only other canvassing district to exceed its objective, and now has 122%. Calumet with 90% and Arundel with 89%, are both knocking at the door, Morin Heights with 60%, and Weir with 25%, are lagging, but indications are that both objectives will be reached.

Among the industries, Ayers Limited have increased their sales to 119%, Dominion Shuttle Company to 111%, Canadian Safety Fuse Co. Ltd. to 138%, and Canadian Refractories to 70%.

Employees of Boyd's Lachute Express have passed the 125% mark and are aiming at 150%. Reports are not yet in from T. McOuat & Son and Lachute Creamery Ltd.

While the campaign will officially close this Saturday, as in previous Loans applications will be accepted for one additional week, or until November 17. There are still many citizens who have not bought their Ninth Victory Loan Bonds. They are urged to do so immediately through any accredited salesman or through any bank in the County.

"The Last Shall Be First" is Argenteuil's motto. We know we were last in the Northwestern Region during the Eighth Victory Loan. Today, in the Ninth Victory Loan, we are in third place, having passed Shawinigan Falls during the week. Let's pass Grand-'Mere and Joliette during the limited time that is left and fulfill our motto! —

SIGN YOUR NAME FOR VICTORY !

For The Fallen

They went with songs to the battle, they were young,
Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow.
They were staunch to the end against odds uncounted,
They fell with their faces to the foe.
They shall not grow old, as we who are left grow old,
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.

NEWSPAPER SERVICE

Now that the war is over, newspapers will continue to give their readers the same service they have in the past, and will endeavor to interpret the ebb and flow of an ever-changing world, always with the aim of helping to make this world a better place in which to live. —Pembroke Bulletin.

Clothing, Salvage For Salvation Army

The Salvation Army social service department will send trucks to Lachute on Monday, or early next week, to collect gifts of salvage or useable goods. Anything that can be sold as salvage will be acceptable; also clothing, repairable furniture, books or magazines which can be used in the homes of the poor.

Cards were left yesterday among householders of Lachute, and those having goods to be called for are asked to display these signs where the Salvation Army collectors will see them.

Town Purchases Artillery Tractor For Snowplow

Lachute Town Corporation has recently acquired a field artillery tractor, a surplus army vehicle, from the War Assets Corporation. This heavy and powerful machine was bought to serve the purpose of a snow plow, and will be used on the local thoroughfares this winter. It has four-wheel drive and weighs over four tons. It is also equipped with a winch.

At the last regular meeting of Council, Mayor Leopold Carrière was authorized to make this purchase for the town; he met with considerable difficulty, however, in filling the order. The cost of the vehicle was $280.

Victory Dance Held At Weir to Welcome Returned Veterans

(By Our District Correspondent)

Weir, Que. —A "Victory Dance" was held in the church hall here Friday evening to welcome the boys who have recently returned home from active service. Among those from Weir who were present were — James Bates, Gilbert Colquhoun, John and Clifford Mountain, George Owen, Murray and Bradley Morrison. Also noted noticed among those present were three of the Arundel boys, John Dubeau, Clarence Dubeau and Leonard Moncrieff. An enjoyable evening was spent, and refreshments were served by the ladies of the W.A. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of God Save the King.

Pair Arraigned For Tire Thefts

Five auto tires and wheels stolen in Lakefield have been returned to their owners, and as a result of these thefts, two men were arraigned before a judge at St. Jerome yesterday to stand trial at a later date.

The pair — Edmond Larocque, 23, and his brother Gilbert Larocque, 21, both of Ottawa — were arrested in St. Jerome on Tuesday by Det. Leopold Dauphin, district officer of the provincial police. The young men, who had been working in the bush in a district north of the scene of the robberies, were lodged in jail pending their appearance in court.

On October 21 Ross Evans, storekeeper, William Woods and Jas. Thompson, all of Lakefield, were victims of the thefts, each having a tire and wheel stolen from his car. On October 31, the culprits revisited the farm of Jas. Thompson, stealing two more tires — making five in all. These were all recovered by the detective and restored to their owners.

ROBBERY EPIDEMIC REACHES DISTRICT OF MORIN HEIGHTS

(By Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — In common with various communities in this district, several robberies have been reported recently in the area of Morin Heights, thieves having broken into several homes. From the Racine cottage at Lake Echo, a refrigerator, electric stove and several other electric appliances were stolen last week.

Wear A Poppy For Remembrance

Argenteuil branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., has its campaign for poppy sales well organized through the communities of this county, and the public are urged to give a cordial response when young ladies make their canvass with these emblems.

Although these poppies are associated with memories of a previous conflict, the First Great War was a fight for the same beliefs and ideas as the last. And out of its aftermath came an organization of veterans, whose obligations are as conscientiously borne today as in the post-war of a quarter-century past. Those obligations are to care for sick or destitute war veterans, or their dependents, wherever the need arises.

Public support of the poppy campaign lends material aid to the Legion in its efforts. The canvass is of short duration, but the Legion's work is year-round, and demands upon its funds are continuous.

Money received from this source is put into a special fund and cannot be used for any other purpose than aiding worthy veterans.

To Unite in Devotions Sunday for The Observance of Education Week

Features Here to Link with National Campaign and Special Radio Programs

The week of November 11-17 has been selected as Education Week throughout Canada, and it is to be observed locally in the following manner:

On Sunday evening, November 11, at 7.30 o'clock, a special church service will be held in the Lachute Auditorium, with the local clergy assisting. This will be joined by congregations of three churches, United, Presbyterian and Anglican. The Glee Club will act as choir and the special speaker will be Miss Catherine MacKenzie, former principal of the Montreal High School for Girls. As the school children will not be going in one group, and as the meeting will be conducted as a regular service of worship, parents are asked to have their children accompany them, if it is their desire that they should attend.

On Friday afternoon, November 16, parents and friends are invited to inspect the school between the hours of 2 and 3.30 o'clock. The school will be in session as usual and parents will be given the opportunity to see the children in their respective classes.

The theme for Education Week is — "BETTER EDUCATION — BETTER CANADA."

The Mayor reported that following instructions of the Council he had purchased a truck, a field artillery tractor, four-wheel drive. The truck is being put in readiness for snowplowing.

Alderman Omer Laurin gave notice of motion that at the next sitting of the Council he will present for adoption a by-law to levy 1946 taxes.

A building permit was granted Messrs. McAdam, Albright and Watson to erect a building on their lot on Main Street purchased lately from D. G. McRae; and also to Mrs. Léo. Carrière, for two houses to be erected on a lot at the corner of Wilson and Millway.

Discussion took place on various angles of the proposed building by-law. The work and preparation involved being very elaborate for a complete by-law; it was suggested that the best way would be to appoint a committee of three members. Aldermen were requested to think the matter over and to suggest names at the next meeting.

In connection with building, the Mayor mentioned that the cadastre of the Town is in a very poor condition owing to mistakes having been made in the past by the various property-owners, to such an extent that whole streets are completely out of line with the original plan. There is apparently an urgent need to correct this situation as soon as possible. Alderman Omer Laurin gave notice of motion that he will present a by-law to have a new cadastre made for the Town of Lachute.

OPENING OF NEW STE. ROSE BRIDGE FOR DECEMBER 1

The $1,000,000 Plessis-Belair bridge, over the Mille-Isles river, between Ste. Rose and Rosemere, will be open to the public December 1, but the inauguration ceremonies will not take place for several months, it was announced this week by Hon. Romeo Lorrain, Minister of Public Works, and the Dufresne Construction Company, the contractors. This will be two months ahead of the date fixed for the completion of the bridge.

The new structure replaces the old Plessis-Belair bridge, which may be maintained for some time to handle the lighter traffic.

Accident Verdict In Fatal Shooting, Lakefield Highway

William Reilly, a well known resident of this town, was found dead in a sandpit along the Lakefield Road on Saturday morning with a rifle wound in the head. The discovery was made at around 9.30 o'clock by George Neill, with whom the 49-year-old victim had been working not far from the sandpit. Reilly, driving his car, had passed Neill on the road, but when the latter started working in the bush Reilly had not turned up. George Neill heard a single shot, and assumed his fellow worker had left his car and gone hunting in the woods. Later, going to investigate, he found the man dead near the car, with the discharged rifle at his side.

An inquest was held at the town tall in Lachute Saturday afternoon, with the district joint-coroner, Dr. Jules Lafleur, presiding. Jurors heard the evidence of George Neill and provincial police investigators who had visited the scene of the tragedy. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death. . . Hale's sandpit is roughly six miles from Lachute on the Lakefield highway.

Mr. Reilly, a widower, is survived by a son, Donald, in the armed forces, and a daughter, Olive; also his father Henry Reilly, and two sisters, Mrs. S. Berry and Mrs. E. Tomalty, the latter residing in Montreal.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from St. Simeon's Anglican Church, the Rev. C. R. Lang officiating. Burial was made at Lachute Cemetery.

Circumstances of the death were investigated by Det. Leopold Dauphin, Lachute, and Det. L. Pronovost, Montreal, both provincial police officers.

Farm Forum Meeting

The second meeting of the North River Farm Forum group was held this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bradford. The discussion centred around, "Will a surplus of food mean inadequate return for the farmer?"

After card games, refreshments and a sing-song, the national anthem brought the evening to a close.

Keeping Meat Fresh for Europe

2,200 CARS SINCE V-E DAY was the record of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal up to the end of October for icing the refrigerator cars which transport perishable food for export to Europe. Of these cars, 95 per cent were loaded with meat, as seen in the refrigerator car (above) which keeps its valuable cargo at low temperature by having up to a ton of crushed ice (lower left) and salt (lower right) added to its bunkers daily.

Councillor Deplores Burial Distinctions

Warwick, Eng. (Reuter) — Criticizing the provision of first and second class burial ground at Warwick cemetery, Councillor A. Faulks told the town council that it would be no good for people to ask St. Peter or the devil if their first-class tickets had arrived, because they would be told all class distinction had ceased.

Ald. H. N. Forbes replied that some parts of the cemetery were nicer than others and it was felt that people choosing the nicer parts should pay for them.

Seek Secrets of Germany's Lagers

London (CP) — Eight British experts soon will visit Germany hoping to secure some of the secrets of famous lager beers which were increasing in popularity among British light beer drinkers before the war. They will investigate brewing and brewing machinery.

A Birtish brewer said it was accepted that German lager was better than British. The quality and production of British bottled beer must be improved as more bottled beer would be drunk in the United Kingdom.

Boy Scouts The World Over

The Kinsmen Club of Winnipeg has presented a cheque for $18,000 to the Boy Scout Association for the development of their summer camp site.

The Scout wristlet identification owned by the late Wing Commander Guy Gibson, V.C., the noted "dam-buster", has been presented to the Boy Scouts of Canada. Wing Commander Gibson wore the wristlet on all flights over enemy territory except the one on which he was killed.

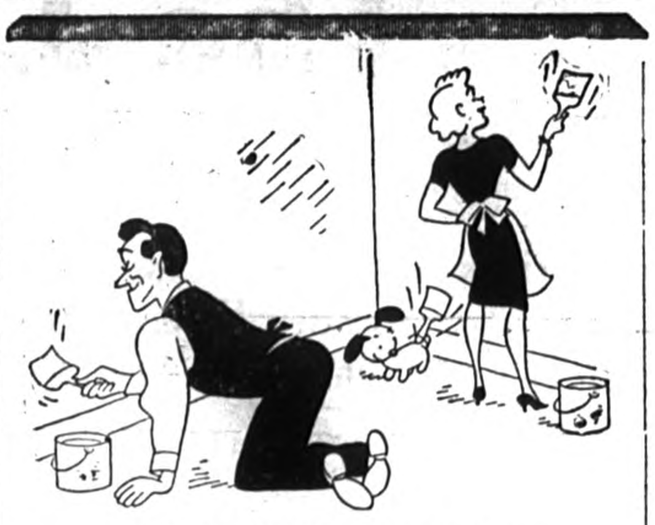

When Flt. Lt. Tony Pierce, D.F.C., was a Boy Scout at Bracebridge, Ont., he attended the Boy Scout Forestry Camp at Angus. Here his interest was aroused in Forestry as a career. Now under the government rehabilitation plan Flt. Lt. Pierce in entering Toronto University to take the course in Forestry.

WASTE PAPER DRIVE HUGE SUCCESS

The Boy Scouts of America, in a two-month drive for waste paper collected 302,000 tons. The goal of the drive was 150,000. The campaign was named the General Eisenhower Campaign and each Scout collecting 1,000 pounds or more of waste paper was awarded a medallion bearing the likeness of Gen. Eisenhower. Over 20,000 Scouts earned the award.

BOY SCOUT TRAINING SAVED HIS LIFE

A Canadian soldier, captured by the Japanese at Hong Kong, credits his training as a Boy Scout with saving his life. While trying to escape the Japs on Christmas Day, 1941, Pte. Leslie Canivet, R.C.O.C., of Ottawa, with six other Canadians tried to swim across Repulse Bay, stripping off their heavy uniforms and boots as they went. Four of the men drowned, weighed down by their uniforms and equipment, but Canivet made it safely. In an enterview he said: "That's the advantage of being a Boy Scout. I learned how to take my clothing off when I took swimming lessons with the Scouts as a kid." Canivet was a member of the 1st. Ottawa Troop, which met at Government House, Ottawa, and later of the 19th. Ottawa Troop at Britannia.

Jeeps Cost Too High

Three new, shiny commercial farm jeeps arrived at the Central Experimental Farm from the U.S. for testing, writes the Ottawa correspondent of the Financial Post. Two were glistening green, one was a sleek fawn shade. All of them were liberally trimmed with yellow and orange wheels, etc. They had a host of new and alluring gadgets to entice prospective farm purchasers and win rural post-war markets.

One immediate question was: "How much do they cost?" The answer: If it's a truck — $1,800. If it's a farm tractor (which are duty free) — $1,200.

Apparently Ottawa's present ruling is that a jeep is a truck and therefore must pay truck tariff rates when imported into Canada. So long as this ruling stands, the price of the jeep in Canada looks high, if not prohibitive, to most Canadian farmers. No jeeps were made in Canada during the war. They were all imported from the U.S.

400 'Reefers' Each Month Canadian Pacific Record

MONTREAL: Pouring in a load of ice, adding a giant-size dash of salt and mixing well is the recipe the Canadian Pacific Railway follows to help provide meat for Europe.

This formula, carried out daily on refrigerator cars full of food for Europe, enables the C.P.R. to send off approximately 400 carloads of perishables monthly for export from Montreal. Of this supply, 95 percent is meat.

To pour up to a ton of crushed ice daily into each of 150 "reefers", which is the daily servicing average in the Canadian Pacific yards here at Outremont, a system has been developed which makes it certain that the cars will move on time.

The ice is loaded through bunker openings by means of a shuttle track which carries the ice upwards from a crushing machine and slides it into the bunkers. Sack-loads of salt poured into the bunkers intensify the cooling.

For the 2,200 carloads of perishables for Europe which had been handled by the C.P.R. in its Montreal yards from V-E Day to the end of October more than 9,200 icings were undertaken. On a recent occasion more than 200 cars were iced in one day.

There were 1,000 anchors required to hold in place the "Mulberry" floating harbour that was used in the invasion of Europe.

A NATIONAL FLAG

There is no cause for alarm in the proposal for a distinctive Canadian flag. This is true even of those who desire the most zealously to guard every tie which binds the Dominion to Great Britain. Both political parties have had leaders who were anxious for this change and have suggested it in the House of Commons. Canada is a nation in its own right, and there is no good reason why it should not possess its own flag as other nations possess theirs.

Measuring Gratitude

ON ARMISTICE day we remember those who have given their lives in two world wars. Is this two minutes' silence long enough for us to think of our friends and relatives who have died for us? For twenty-one years 10,000,000 Canadians celebrated Armistice Day before this war: 7,000,000 hours of gratitude for courage and sacrifice. The gratitude felt in this silence challenges us to use all our energies of heart, mind and spirit to build a sound and lasting peace.

As the days go by, events happen which mould the future. They may be small events — a prejudice which is caught up and built upon by the next person until it becomes a government policy, a natural powder keg. Every man, woman and child in Canada is moulding the future of our country. How slow we are to realize — "That means me!" When we do see it, we can fight to create that mould out of our strengths— courage, honesty and hard work; not out of our weaknesses — prejudice, greed and fear.

How can we do this? We can put an end to personal wars. We can keep our hearts open and let affection for lost loved ones be used for those around us. As one Canadian mother whose husband fell at Dieppe writes:

"I'll thank the Lord who made him fearless,
Though valor claimed his life.
Like him I'll be a fighter ever,
And conquer in the strife.
I may not raise a cross of stone
To hallow the place he fell,
But for his sake I'll fight to build
The land he loved so well."

We can live as we want our nation to live. We can begin to make the other fellow, the other nation, great.

Then Canada will have an inner strength, a dignity and authority as she takes her place among the nations. Her dealings will be fair because Canadians are fair. Her policy will be for the good of all nations because Canadians have learned to care for each other. She will be honest because Canadians have nothing to hide. Canada, clean, strong and free — a country whose people have discovered "the things that belong unto peace".

Canada's Prestige

THE VISIT to Britain of Mr. Mackenzie King in his dual capacity as Canadian Prime Minister and Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, points up the fast developing influence of this Dominion in international affairs.

The evolution of Canada as a world power began long before the Statute of Westminster in 1931 formally acknowledged the independence of the dominions within the British Commonwealth. The enactment of the statute made Canada's nationhood an established fact, a momentous milestone in her history. But the average citizen has perhaps lost sight of the statute's significance in the maze of world events in the last 14 years.

The Canadian prime minister went to the United Kingdom with the avowed purpose that "Canada should not merely be consulted but that there should be a clear recognition of Canada's rights to effective participation in the great decisions where questions affecting the general ordering of the future peace of the world are under consideration." Canada's world prestige was underscored by the announcement that Mr. King will soon confer in Washington with Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and President Truman of the United States concerning the future of the world-shaking discovery of atomic energy and other topics of world rather than purely national interest.

There is another phase of the Dominion's relations with other countries that emphasizes her international position. The number and rank of her representatives abroad is steadily increasing. Canada had a high commissioner in Britain in 1880. The appointment of resident diplomatic representatives to foreign countries developed after 1918, until in 1943 the ministers exchanged between Canada and the United States assumed ambassadorial rank. France, Russia, Brazil, the Netherlands and several other countries now receive ambassadors.

The world-embracing complexities of current events tend to obscure these significant steps as a result of which Canada has the right to expect effective participation rather than mere consultation in major decisions affecting the post-war settlement of the world.

Education Week

EDUCATION WEEK is being observed throughout Canada from November 11 to 17. The purpose of the week is to focus attention upon the schools for a seven-day period in order to promote fuller understanding of the objectives of education.

Few would question the important part played by the school in our national life in normal times. Now, with Canada passing through the critical reconstruction period, the responsibility resting upon the shoulders of educators is doubly great. It is only insofar as the schools produce citizens possessing a balanced national and world point of view that peace and prosperity will be assured in the years to come. Teachers call for wide support in the achievement of their objective.

Lachute's participation in stressing this vital theme will commence with a special Sunday evening gathering at the Auditorium, and other local aspects of the observance many be gleaned from an article on the front page of this issue.

Don't Worry About the Boys

WE HAVE heard considerable doubt expressed about the manner in which veterans of this war will react to their return to civil life. The comments have ranged from one extreme to another, from fear of civil turmoil to fear of military dictatorship; in many cases, they have been prompted by wild statements from the odd serviceman.

At a recent gathering, we saw proof of how baseless such fears are. At the gathering were young veterans of this war, two who had been in the R.C.A.F., two who had been in the army, and one who had been a navy lieutenant. They were all young. They had all seen action. They had all experienced events that had matured them far beyond their years.

The gathering was in the nature of the first joint social event they had shared since their high school days, yet despite the war years in between, there was little difference between then and now. The conversation was more intelligent, the interests more widely diversified. There was more poise and social consciousness than shown before. They played bridge when before they had played spin-the-bottle. Only the changes that time might normally have brought about were noticeable. Except for the occasional reference to their service, it was as if the war had not occurred.

All were going back to school or planning to do do so, counting on their service gratuities to see them through. They were enthusiastic about their chances on the rugby team and very disparaging about each other's schools. They were full of plans to farm, to prospect, to do research, to set up their own businesses. They were full of hopes and ambitions. There was still a tenseness about them, some nervousness, a restlessness, but it disappeared as they laughed and talked.

It shows a lack of faith in the democratic system and a misunderstanding of its values that there should be doubt about the return of the veterans. They were taught the deadliest ways by which to kill. They exercised that knowledge on the foe. They did so, however, not because they wanted to but because it was the only way to maintain the values which they cherished.

They killed with deadly seriousness because they were realists. They knew that in order to maintain the dignity and respect for human values on which democracy is founded they must first destroy the forces that menaced it. The job done, they ask now only to live by those tenets they fought to preserve.

CERTAINLY, no police officer should be rated according to the number of arrests he has made, or the number of convictions he has brought about. He should not look for trouble; he should endeavor to anticipate and prevent trouble. It is much more valuable to society if the policeman can dissuade people from doing wrong, than it is for him to apprehend them after the wrong is done. — Chatham News

UNITY MEANS STRENGTH

United provinces mean united people. Every Canadian can have a part. It comes down to how we get on with the fellow we work with and how much we have the welfare of our own little community at heart. It is the spirit of each home, each farm and business across the country that will determine the far-reaching results of the Dominion-Provincial conference.

Summerside (P.E.I.) Journal

JUST THE SAME

A returned man said to us the other day it was most surprising to him the few changes that had taken place here during his five years' absence overseas. Although it was not his inference, yet it indicates that things have pretty well stood still during the war years. We need have no regrets in that fact, yet at the same time we do hope that the same condition will not remain for another five years. Jarvis (Ont.) Record

GOOD ROADS

So much depends upon the development of really good roads, that this province can do no less than undertake an all-out program the like of which has never been seen before. We are far behind and have a long way to go in a short time. Pressure of tourist travel is already upon us — and we are found wanting.

GLEANINGS FROM OTTAWA

By FRANK MORRISS

● On November 11 we are observing Armistice Day . . . the end of World War I. And thus, in a year of victory, we are remembering another year of victory.

But we will be remembering November 11, 1918, not with happiness, but with solemnity. Many of us will recall vividly the wild celebrations that took place on that 1918 day . . . the flag-waving, the shouting, the sound of automobile horns, and the crowds of happy people.

For we thought in our optimism and our innocence, that we were sounding the death knell of wars, and that the spectre would never rise again in our time. But it did rise, and we had not the moral conviction, perhaps, or the foresight, to slay it before it could get completely out of hand.

But we have learned, from 1939 to 1945, something new. World War II taught us that the follies of peace are the follies that lead to destruction. In World War I we thought that once the war would be over it would be over.

In World War II we fought with our eyes to the future. Even while the battles were raging we did not lose sight of the fact that once victory was won we would have to knuckle down and pay for it with vigilance and wisdom

I hope we are keepin that lesson in mind.

Madame Chiang Kai-shek voiced some thoughts on this very thing in her V-J Day Victory Message. I think they bear repeating at this time.

"But what of tomorrow? We must do our utmost through practical measures to assist the maimed, the wounded and the displaced. And out of the destruction and desolation of this battlescarred and broken world around us we must so build a future as to justify the suffering and loss of life which this war has brought. Out of this soul-searing experience we must learn that omission to prevent war is just as culpable and disastrous in the end as commission to foster war in the beginning. Only in this way can we even repay in a measure the debt of life that we owe to those who have died."

These are the thoughts we are thinking as we observe the anniversary of the end of World War I. May we never have a World War III. And this will have to be more than just a pious wish. It will be something we will have to work hard to prevent.

A New World . . Made by People

The foreign ministers of the great powers that have worked together for victory have failed in one of the first major attempts to bring settlement of post-war issues. We may well ask, "What hope is there of peace?"

Failure of the conference in some of its major aspects was confirmed by State Secretary Byrnes of the United States in one of the most forthright discussions of international issues. "Peace must be based upon mutual understanding and mutual respect. It cannot be secured by procedural manoeuvrings which obscure from the people the real and vital issues," said Mr. Byrnes, who declared "it must be a people's peace".

There is hope, too, in the fact that Britain and the United States stood firm on the principles at stake, and did not yield so that they would be able to announce an "agreement" of expediency. There has been some advance at least from the spirit of Munich.

What is a people's peace? . . The British Prime Minister, Clement Attlee, stated in a recent speech to the Trade Union Congress in Blackpool, England:

"Real peace in the world cannot be established by the force of great powers, however overwhelming.

There must be a change of heart if peace is to be something better than an uneasy interval between wars. . . . A new world cannot be made by governments, but only by people".

And President Truman said recently, "Let us not fail to grasp this supreme chance . . . to create an enduring peace under the guidance of God."

Thus, two great leaders have pointed out this way of greater living. It is the change of heart that comes when we turn to God and find a new attitude towards others which results in wholesome and peaceful relationships. This change in our habits of feeling and thinking will not be easy. But as we learn this secret within our nation — in home, industry and government — we will contribute to the real "people's peace".

AMONG THE CHURCHES

"Missionary Caravan" of Anglican Church Visits Neighboring Parishes

The "Missionary Caravan" of the Church of England Diocese of Montreal visited this parish last Thursday, and many people through this means learned more of the missionary activities which call for constant support. During the early afternoon teams of special speakers visited the Protestant schools in Brownsburg, St. Andrews and Lachute, imparting to about 550 children some idea of the missionary work of the Church.

Following the afternoon session, the Lachute Auditorium was filled with children to see the many interesting exhibits from the missionary fields of India, China, Japan, the Arctic and Jewish missions. And again in the evening, this display was on view to the general public and members of the Caravan explained the various exhibits. Interesting motion pictures were shown, interspersed with talks on many aspects of the missionary's life and work.

The Rev. Canon P. S. C. Powles, M.A., B.D., of Montreal, acted as director of proceedings.

The Rev. C. R. Lang, of St. Simeon's Church, Lachute, expressed the thanks of the parishioners to the Canon and his co-workers, for having brought to the people of this community an insight into the work of the church in distant lands.

The Caravan has also made visits to the parishes of Lakefield and Grenville, giving similar programs during the past few days.

"Quebec's Shocking Tuberculosis Record" Discussed at Y.P.U.

Films Depict Battle Against Disease

The meeting of Lachute United Church Y.P.U. was under the direction of Citizenship convenor Jack Gorman, who chose for his subject, "Quebec's Shocking Tuberculosis Record".

Prior to the showing of films, the convenor gave a short paper reviewing conditions in Canada, and the Province of Quebec in particular, regarding tuberculosis.

A few salient facts given were—that the rate per 100,000 deaths of Tb. in Canada was 47.7, while in the Province of Quebec the rate was 74.9. Two provinces were given credit for waging a splendid battle against the disease, with Saskatchewan as leader with a rate of 26.4, and Ontario with 26.8.

"The main reason why Quebec's record is poor", continued the convenor, "is because the public does not realize the seriousness of the situation. It is not generally realized that positive cases have to wait four or five months, or even longer, for beds — and until pressure is placed upon our Provincial Government, this problem will not be settled".

One of the chief reasons given for Saskatchewan's showing was the fact that there was no waiting list for beds; positive cases were able to go immediately to a sanatorium.

"In Quebec", added the convenor, "we have 3,276 Tb. beds, while we should have, at a most conservative estimate by Dr. L. Phelps of Ste. Agathe, at least 5,300, with Montreal needing another 1,500 alone".

The group were informed that there were 1,861 cases of Tb. in Canada between the ages of 15 and 29; 1,023 of these, or 54% were in the Province of Quebec.

Quoting official statistics to illustrate that "poverty breeds tuberculosis", reference was made to industries offering 25c. and 35c. an hour to returned veterans. "I hate to think of the effect this low wage will have on the future health of Canada", added the speaker.

Figures for Argenteuil and Lacute were given, with 12 positive cases found in the county in 1939 and 45 in 1944, while it was pointed out that there was also an increase in population during that time. In Lachute, cases had increased from 6 in 1939 to 12 in 1944, and 16 to date this year. The death toll, though, had been reduced in Argenteuil from 12 in 1939, and 14 in 1942, to 6 in 1944; and credit was given to the County Health Unit, with its efficient staff, who are doing a splendid anti-Tb. job.

Suggestions were made for the solution of this problem — that the Quebec government should put on a high-pressure educational campaign and that the people should respond to the educational drive by insisting that at least three new sanatoria be built in Quebec; that X-rays should be taken of all employees of factories and offices; and that every community, including Lachute, should have an anti-tuberculosis organization with the Christmas Seal funds used for educational purposes in the community.

Films were shown to illustrate how tuberculosis is being fought; these were entitled, "Behind the Shadows" and "Good-bye, Mr. Germ", besides other subjects.

The meeting next week will be under direction of Edith Clark, Missionary convenor.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The regular weekly meeting of the Presbyterian Young People's Society was held last evening. Considering the inclement weather, there was a fair attendance.

Ruth Orsborn conducted the worship service, leading in prayer, and in a few well chosen words spoke inspiringly on the Sacrifice of Attainment.

The business meeting which followed was devoted mainly to plans for the supper scheduled for Thursday, November 15. In view of limited seating space, it is planned to serve the supper in relays, commencing at 6 o'clock, and it is hoped in possibly three such relays to accommodate all present.

The Society will meet as usual on Wednesday next. All members are requested to make a special effort to attend.

Temperance Theme by Lady Speaker at Brownsburg United

Brownsburg — At Brownsburg United Church it was the annual Women's Missionary Society service last Sunday morning for the autumn thank-offering, and the Society should be congratulated for the success which attended their efforts. The minister, the Rev. S. J. Pike, took the first part of the service, assisted by Mrs. T. G. Pasco, who read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. T. Izzard, who led in prayer. Mr. T. G. Pasco sang a solo, the choir joining in the refrain. The guest speaker, Mrs. Wm. Usher, of Cushing, was introduced by Mrs. S. J. Pike — who also thanked Mrs. Usher for her splendid address, which was strictly along temperance lines, tracing the increase in the consumption of liquor from pre-war days to 75 per cent — from $200,000,000 to $350,000,000. Despite the great increase in the liquor traffic, Mrs. Usher cited some of our greater leaders who were total abstainers and were the hope of the nation and world. Other facts were cited by Mrs. Usher — that the manufacture and sale of liquor is responsible for 70 per cent of our criminals, 50 per cent of the inmates of our insane asylums, 80 per cent of the inmates of our poor-house institutions, 90 per cent of our tramps, the destruction of homes and the corruption of votes. "You may smile at 'prohibition for safety's sake', but you cannot laugh off the accidents caused by drink", said Mrs. Usher, who also warned against alluring cocktail parties, and beverage rooms for women. Cigarette smoking among women and girls, as well as boys, came in for no slight condemnation; also smoking in places where others resort, who have to endure it whether they like it or not. Quoting Connie Mack, "We do everything in our power to discourage the use of cigarettes among our baseball boys, knowing the great harm tobacco has done to those in the habit of using it" Mrs. Usher closed her informative address on a high note of citizenship, clean, pure and worthy of our best national life.

Mrs. Usher is provincial past-president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and a member of the executive of the Montreal Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church. Her address was much appreciated by the congregation.

Mrs. Pike concluded the service with the Mizpah Benediction.

St. Andrews East—The Women's Guild of the United Church met at Miss M. L. Lamb's home on Wednesday afternoon, October 31. Mrs. Lawson Taylor and Mrs. Douglas Rodger were tea hostesses. Hallowe'en decorations made the tables festively gay.

The W.M.S. of the United Church held the autumn thankoffering service on Sunday evening, November 4. Mrs. Nickerson conducted the service, and Miss M. L. Lamb was organist. The Girl Guides formed the choir, with their leader, Mrs. Wilde, and sang an anthem accompanied by Mrs. Nickerson. The offering was received by Mrs. Robt. Robinson and Miss Elsie Dorion. Miss Edith McCausland, who went from Ireland in 1937 to serve several years as missionary in Manchukuo, China, was guest speaker. She contrasted the slow unchanging methods of the Chinese farmers with modern stores and railways built by the more progressive and (as time revealed) possessive, Japanese.

Two Bostons

Four centuries ago King Henry VIII made Boston (Lincolnshire, of course) a 'free borough,' and the centenary celebrations that were held recently could not fail to bring under review many of the changes that time wrought in the fortunes and the features of the eastern port of England. A salient item of the charter anniversary was the conferring of the freedom of the borough upon Mr. Allan Forbes, of Boston, Massachusetts, in appreciation of his untiring efforts to foster the ties between the city of Boston, Massachusetts, and the English borough, and particularly of his great work in connection with the restoration of the parish church.

Casket of 15th Century Oak

Mr. Forbes (unable to be present) was represented by his wife's cousin, Lord Huntingfield, K.C.M.G., ex-Governor of Victoria, and ex-Acting Governor-General of Australia. . . . On the present occasion the Council's resolution, engraved on vellum, was presented to Lord Huntingfield in a carved casket made from fifteenth-century oak taken from the parish church.

Origin of Boston

Other proceedings included reading of extracts from the Charter by the Town Clerk, C. L. Hoffrock Griffiths, and an address by Mayor J. Henry Mountain, who remarked that "During the centuries the fortunes of Boston have waxed and waned, but it is probably true to say that never has the civic spirit of the borough been higher. Its industries are flourishing, its people happy and prosperous, while its record of service during the years of war has been excelled by few towns of comparable size."

Commercial Beginnings

The origin of Boston was commercial, rather than ecclesiastical or royal, and by the end of the twelfth century there had grown up an enormous trade in the export of wool from all over the Midlands and the North of England — no fewer than 20 great monasteries had their storehouses in the town, and the Italian dealers at Stamford were closely in touch with them so as to ensure that contributions due to the Papal exchequer were made in the lucrative form of wool.

By 1545 the monks had disappeared from their wool-stores, the friaries had been sold and largely pulled down, and the stones were being used to build river-walls through the town. Then on May 14 of that year the king signed a Charter by which the town became incorporated as a borough, and a Council was nominated, with a Mayor, 12 Aldermen, and 18 Common Councilmen, and a swarm of officers, to their great pride and satisfaction. Many of them had been officials of the Guild, and the Charter laid down that they were to observe all feasts and fasts of the Church on pain of imprisonment, and empowered them to levy noney for the repair of the church.

What was more, the Council in this same year became rectors of the church and possessors of the greater tithe — from which in some fashion the town still derives an income. And until the Municipal Reform Act of 1835 forbade it, the Town Council selected the Vicars of Boston — which to a large degree accounts for a local anomaly whereby the Vicar nominates one of his staff as Chaplain to the Mayor.

Heights of Vision and Enterprise

Now and again Boston seems to rise to great heights of vision and enterprise. Once it set itself to build a great church, still the pride of all who live within its shadow. In the seventeenth century it was a group of prominent local townsmen who really took the lead in the foundation of Massachusetts and the larger Boston across the seas. Towards the end of the next century a spirit of adventure swept Bass, Banks, Flinders and others to the discovery and exploration of Australia. — Municipal Journal, England

Tree Cathedral

Western Australia has a unique cathedral — a cathedral of trees with space to seat 3,000 people. It stands in the grounds of the University of Western Australia at Crawley.

Conceived 16 years ago by Dr. William Somerville, chairman of the University Grounds Committee, the outer walls of this large arboreal auditorium are formed by thickets of Western Australian peppermint gums. Within these thickets are rows of pine trees, now 15 to 30 feet high. The general design is that of a cathedral in the Gothic style.

The Adult Education Board recently held the first of two "Everyman's Music" recitals in this delightful setting. The public response was interesting. The 750 reserved chairs were rushed immediately booking opened; on the night, all available seating accommodation was sold.

The Board wishes to test out its belief that the public really want first-class music presented by first-class artists; to ascertain whether under congenial conditions the people will react favorably to outdoor entertainment of this kind; and to put into active use the "cathedral" which was planned when the University was in its early stages.

The Politician Defined

The trouble with some of us is that perhaps we have used too harsh terms in describing this professional politician. Perhaps some one should coin a new word to describe the politician who is able, competent, honest and qualified. That would be much easier than to try to reform some of the people now known as politicians in our country. Something should be done to identify and classify the two kinds of politicians and to get a new name for either one or the other.

1885 SIXTY YEARS OF PROGRESS 1945

A Dream Come True

When, on November 7, 1885, the last spike was driven linking the rails of the Canadian Pacific Railway, developments only dreamed of that day were to follow.

Soon ships flying the red and white Canadian Pacific house flag were plying the Pacific . . . then the Atlantic. There followed a chain of hotels . . . resorts and lodges . . . coastal and inland steamships . . . express and telegraph services—the whole forming an all-Canadian system stretching more than half way round the world.

In 1939, this vast system was dedicated to the winning of the war. Since then the Company's rail lines alone have handled more than 128 billion ton miles of freight—and 11 billion passenger miles. All ocean steamships have been on active service—many have gone down fighting.

Now the Canadian Pacific faces the future. Plans have been completed for the construction of new, improved locomotives and coaches . . . sleeping cars . . . parlour cars . . . diners; for the renovation of stations and hotels; and for the building of a new fleet of ocean vessels.

In a world at peace the Canadian Pacific will do its part in providing modern, efficient transportation by land and sea.

Rev. C. MacGregor Honored in U.S.

At a dinner of the trustees of New Hampshire Council of Churches, held in Nashua on Columbus Day, the Rev. Charles P. MacGregor was presented with a purse in appreciation of his 20 years of service; and on behalf of the New Hampshire Council of Religious Education was presented, the same day, with a book of testimonial letters, bound in the MacGregor plaid, expresing the sentiments of people from all over New England who had known of his work in this council ond other organizations.

The two groups having voted to merge, the Rev. MacGregor, who had planned to retire on October 15, was asked to remain until the end of this year. Mr. MacGregor has served the council as general secretary since 1925, the first five years while he was still pastor of the First Baptist Church, Manchester, and during a 14-year pastorate of the First Baptist Church, Penacook, from which he resigned a year ago.

—The Rev. Chas. MacGregor is a member of one of St. Andrews' oldest families, and a brother of Norman MacGregor, resident of that community.

Social Evening and Presentation Held by St. Simeon's Members

In the Margaret Rodger Memorial hall recently, the congregation of St. Simeon's Anglican Church gathered to express appreciation for the efforts of R. E. Reynolds as churchwarden and treasurer, in which capacity he has served for the past few years, and to signify regret at Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds' departure from this community.

The function was under the direction of George E. Leggett, warden, and Ralph FitzGerald. Community singing, games and social intermingling contributed to the pleasure of the evening.

The Rev. C. R. Lang, rector, conveyed thanks to Mr. Reynolds for his loyalty in the work of the church; the sentiment was accompanied by a tangible token from the congregation, in the form of a sum of money, accompanied by good wishes to the Reynolds family in their move to the Province of Ontario. . . The Rector announced that Mr. Ralph FitzGerald would be taking over the duties of warden and treasurer.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the church.

Missionary Retires After Long Service, Home from India

(By Our District Correspondent)

Grenville — Friends of Miss Melissa Morrow were delighted to renew her acquaintance in this community, following her retirement after more than 39 years as a missionary in India. Miss Morrow, who visited here recently, expects to make her home in Boston, Mass., but hopes next summer to make a longer visit in Canada, her native country.

It was feared by friends here that, owing to her indifferent health and war conditions, she might never be able to return. However, leaving Bombay on July 5 last, she sailed on the Gripsholm, the Swedish vessel which brought many repatriated Allied prisoners of war from Japan.

Went to India in 1906

Miss Morrow's first trip to India was in 1906, sailing on the steamer Devonian from East Bostoh. There were many missionaries aboard, all from the American Baptist Mission Society; their destinations were Burma, South India, Assam, China, Africa, and the Philippine Islands.

Miss Melissa Morrow has served under the American Baptist Missions all this time in the Telugu District — continuing five years after her retirement age, to help in the shortage of workers. She has crossed the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans several times, having returned home on furlough on different occasions.

Her sister, Miss Sarah E. Morrow, died in India several years ago, after serving many years as a missionary.

Last Voyage Home

Describing her voyage home aboard the Gripsholm, Miss Morrow states there were 1200 passengers, of 22 nationalities. These comprised mostly missionaries, a few business people, 300 Chinese, including students and families, and 100 Indian students. Many of the missionaries were from China, some from Persia and Arabia.

The Gripsholm stopped at Athens, Greece, where it took on 300 Greek-Americans who had been detained in that country with the advent of war.

Landing at New Jersey on August 2, members of the missionary party were conveyed by Red Cross buses via the Hudson River subway to New York — Miss Morrow later proceeding to her Boston headquarters.

It is better in the end to tell the truth in the beginning.

BAD POSTURE CAN UNDERMINE HEALTH

Poor posture is ugly, fatiguing and damaging to the health, Dr. Jerome S. Peterson, of the New York City Department of Health, says in an article in a recent issue of Hygeia, magazine of the American Medical Association.

"Poor health, depressed mental attitude and bad posture seem to go together," Dr. Peterson says. "Bad posture will throw the body out of alignment and may do serious damage to the internal organs as a result of unnatural compression."

The writer's formula for improving the posture is:

"Stand correctly; stand as tall as possible without rising on your toes. Get your feet a few inches apart and point your toes forward. Hold your head up, bring your chin in. Your chest should be up. The lower abdomen should be in and flat, but don't strain yourself and don't become stiff. Let your hands hang loosely at your sides. Be conscious of your posture, but try to be relaxed at the same time."

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

BE A BABY SITTER

How about friends, neighbors and relatives rallying around and doing a little job of plain and fancy baby-minding? Men are coming home, and they and their wives are young and need to get some good times out of their systems to make up for some of the times they have lost recently. Much as they love their children there are times, as as every parent knows, when it is a heavenly relief just to get away from them for even a little while. Now is your chance to do your daily good deed; be a baby-minder for a change. Good baby-sitters are hard to find and wouldn't these young people love to find a good reliable one for even an evening. I have thought several times I must tell you about a baby-sitter out-of-the-ordinary, and I know I have never got around to it, so here's my chance. A church women's organization planned to raise funds by having each member contribute talent money. The president of the organization felt she had no special money-making accomplishment, but she did like children. Her own are grown up and as there were several young mothert as her were several young mothers among her neighbors, she turned her talents to baby-sitting. She made the extra money she required, and the young mothers were able to go out and know their children were having the best of care. Don't you think that is really a good talent-money idea?

CONTROL ANXIETY

Young people, and even children, come in sometimes later than their parents expect. Frequently they are anxious for fear something has happened, or maybe just plain mad because they have not obeyed, and before there is any chance for an explanation, the poor child is in for a blowing-up. Very often it may be well deserved, but there are times, too, that the lateness really could not be helped. Most parents have had the experience of feeling they have said too much, too soon. It is a good idea to learn from this lesson and wait until the child has his say, and if the reason is a good one, you will be glad you have held your tongue. If it could have been avoided, then your words will have more effect because the child first has had a chance to have his say. Sometimes parents expect too much. I remember hearing a woman, whom I thought a very sensible one, tell of her annoyance with her 17 year old son. He had been told to be in at 11 o'clock on Sunday evening and had not come in until almost 12. He and his girl had been invited out after church and there were several adults there as well as the young people. The hostess had served refreshments and although they had left immediately afterwards, by the time he took his girl home, the earliest he could get in was about 12. His mother's contention was that when he was told to be in at 11, nothing should have prevented, and he should simply have walked out. That, to me, was too much to expect of any lad. There are social obligations which one must learn, and he had obligations both to his girl and to his hostess. So don't expect too much and learn to hold your tongue until you hear the explanation. As your children grow older, there will be many a time you will be glad if you have learned to do this.

AN EGG A DAY

Eggs are too important a food to miss, and yet there many children who do not like them, and I would hate to force a child to eat an egg. Sometimes they will eat them in sandwiches. Devilled eggs may be eaten by a child who does not like them otherwise. These are a valuable addition to any child's lunch box. Even the very young may enjoy a poached egg, if it is served with toast cubes, which can be used for dunking. Most children like desserts, and it is an easy matter to use plenty of eggs in them. If the child likes the meringue on a pudding, such as bread pudding, use an extra egg and see that the child gets more than his share. Custards and souffles should be made frequently. Cheese dishes made with eggs, as English Monkey, Cheese Fondues, or Cheese Puddings with eggs, too. An occasional egg-nog may be relished, although raw eggs are not as easily digested as cooked. It might be just as well to call the egg-nog by some other name, such as milk shake, or a vanilla soda. Each child should have an egg a day and each adult at least four a week. Do a little arithmetic and if you are not using that many, better put on your thinking cap and think up some new ways to add eggs to your diet.

SCALLOPED EGGS

2½ Cups milk, 5 tablespoons of flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 hard cooked eggs, ¾ cup grated cheese, ½ cup fine dried bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon of butter.

Make a sauce with the first four ingredients, rubbing the flour smooth with a little of the cold water. Heat the remaining milk and add slowly to the flour mixture; add the salt and butter and cook slowly until thickened, stirring steadily. Add the grated cheese. Cut the hard cooked eggs in halves and arrange in a buttered baking dish, then pour over the sauce. Melt the tablespoon of butter and stir in the crumbs. Sprinkle this over the sauce and bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees until the crumbs are browned.

WOMEN FARMERS URGED TO STAY IN LAND ARMY

British Gov't Plans Holidays for Girls Willing to Cont'nue Work on the Land

London (CP) — Members of the Women's Land Army, who helped garner British harvests when men had gone to battle, are being allowed to claim their release from service although the need for their help is as great as ever.

Tom Williams, minister of agriculture, said in announcing the release plan that as an incentive to keep women in the land army all who have served for two years or more and who are prepared to serve for a further year will receive a holiday with pay at the state's expense. The holiday will be a week for those with two years' service and an additional three days for every additional year of service.

W.L.A. membership rose to a peak of 80 000 in mid-1944 and there has been some decline since, with an enrolment of 43,000 in England and Wales in June, 1945. Scottish and Northern Ireland enrolments for the 1945 harvest are not available as yet.

Mr. Williams said that W.L.A. members had undertaken to serve for the period of the war and provision would be made for their release, if desired, beginning on December 1.

The loss of considerable numbers of W.L.A. workers in the coming months would cause great difficulties for farmers for whom they had been working and would have a damaging effect on food production at a time when the world food situation still was critical.

Stagger Releases

But some members for good reason would wish to claim the release to which they were entitled. To give farmers reasonable opportunity to replace the women workers, releases would be spread over a four-month period, all members having four years' service being entitled to claim release in December and those with less than four, in January. The remainder may claim releases in February and March, those of 30 years and over being released first and the others according to length of service. The scheme will not apply to women who have joined the service since the end of the war in Europe, and who have undertaken to serve for two years.

"Women released from the W.I.A will be subject to any general labor controls applicable to other women of the same age, but I understand that no woman who has been away from home for three years or more would be required to undertake work which involves her leaving home again," Mr. Williams said.

"Perhaps I may add that members of the W.L.A. who decide to remain on the land in response to my appeal, and new recruits, can be assured that their services will be urgently required for another three years, if they wish to remain. It is my intention that the W.L.A. organization should remain in being to look after their interests for as long as it is required and the number of members justifies it."

The secretary of state for Scotland, Joe Westwood, had agreed that similar release provisions for W.L.A. workers should be made in the north.

COLORADO WOMAN HAS UNIQUE JOB

Mrs. Rose Rathbone Keeps State Cattle Brand Records

Denver, Colo. (CP)—Cattle branding is a man's business, but keeping the records of 42,000 brands from getting botched up has been a woman's job in Colorado for 18 years.

The woman is Mrs. Rose Rathbone, brand clerk in the state brand inspection office. Old timers in the cattle business say she knows brands as do few others in the state. Besides keeping the record straight, she dreams up some 2,500 new unduplicated brands every year for people taking up ranching. Yet Mrs. Rathbone has never seen a cow branded.

Here, form Brand Inspection chief Harry Bierne and State Brand Commissioner Fred Beuck, is some incidental intelligence about brands:

There's been cattle branding in Colorado as far back as 1846. All single-letter brands date back to the trail-herd period.

Back in the early days some ranchmen who couldn't read or write signed legal papers by inscribing their registered brands, which were recorded then with county clerks.

BROADCAST TO CANADA

Lady Baden-Powell, Chief Guide of the World, and widow of the Founder of the Boy Scout Movement, and Lord Rowallan, recently appointed Chief Scout of the British Empire, are scheduled to broadcast from England to the Scouts and Guides of Canada early in the New Year. Both Lady Baden-Powell and Lord Rowallan are expected to visit Canada during 1946.

Villagers Queue For First Movie

Newquay, Wales (CP) — Fishermen, farmworkers and housewives all dressed up in their Sunday best after tea to join in their first real queue. They turned up for the opening of this Cardiganshire village's first movie theatre with a seating capacity of 400, programs three nights a week and films long since forgotten in the larger towns of England.

The villagers loved it. The premiere, more exciting than the annual Hunt Ball, went without a hitch — or nearly. The whole apparatus fused once, but that only made the evening more exciting.

THEY WANT A CHEF'S TALL HAT: For the first time in this country an apprentice cooks' school, established in the Canadian Pacific's coast-to-coast hotel chain, is giving Canadian youth an opportunity to learn the art of cooking. It opens up to them a chance to enter a profession which will not be overcrowded for years. Their practical training will allow them to assist in kitchens, thus releasing experienced cooks for other duties, such as staffing the C.P.R. summer hotels, when those resorts re-open. Under the direction of Ernest J. Wetli, (lower left) catering supervisor of Canadian Pacific hotels, 14 young men have begun the two-year course at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto with 10 of the embryo cooks who are undergoing training shown above. Mr. Wetli is now organizing the school at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec and will line up similar courses in C.P.R. hotels at Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Victoria in their turn.

MEAT MATTERS

Are you trying to budget your meat coupons to allow a roast for a special occasion? Have guests upset your meat calculations for the week? Don't worry, say the home economists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, serve unrationed meats such as kidneys, oxtails, tongue or heart. Here are some excellent ways to use them.

Braised Oxtails

2 lbs. Oxtails, cut in pieces, ¼ cup flour, ¼ cup fat, 1½ cups hot water, 1½ cups canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8th teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon celery salt, 4 whole cloves, piece of bay leaf, 4 medium carrots diced, 2 small onions chopped.

Wipe meat, trim off fat and roll pieces of oxtail in flour. Saute in the hot fat until well browned. Add water, tomatoes and seasoning. Cook five minutes, stirring well. Pour into casserole, cover and bake in a slow oven, 325°, for 1½ hrs. Add vegetables and continue baking, covered, for ½ hour longer. Uncover and cook an additional ½ hour or until meat and vegetables are tender. Six servings.

Kidney Creole

1 Beef kidney, 2 tablespoons of flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, pepper, ¼ cup fat, 1 large onion minced, 1 medium carrot diced also 1 medium potato diced, 1½ cup tomatoes, 2 cups boiling water, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire or other spicy sauce, 6 slices toast.

Remove fat, tubes and membrane from kidney. Slice and dredge with seasoned flour. Brown in hot fat. Add tomatoes and water and allow to cook slowly for about ½ hour. Add diced vegetables and more water if necessary, and continue cooking till vegetables are tender. Serve on toast. Six servings.

War Correspondent Is Club Speaker

"When I ventured to cast a doubt upon the justice of our cause or the eventual outcome of the war, I was laughed at," the industrialist continued. "My wife and I were told that our generation were untrue to the ideals of the Fuehrer, that we had a defeatist complex."

"In January, he was posted missing. His last letters showed that he was still as fanatical in the face of defeat as when victorious".

The young generation. The Hitler youth, the SS, the members of the Nazi party. — There's the the problem in Germany! And there lies the reason not to relax our vigilance for the next 20 or 25 years, so long as the German youth of today is not too old to bear arms.

I remember expressing, before a group of trade and labor leaders in Germany, my surprise that Hitler had allowed so many of the German cities to be wiped out and Berlin itself to be destroyed beyond repair. "Why didn't you revolt?" I asked. "You knew you didn't have a chance."

"Overthrow Hitler and his gang?" was the reply. "You forget there's nothing gallic about us. Revolutions don't start overnight in Germany. Moreover, none of us were left to start an uprising. We'd all been jailed since the first days of the war."

"But why didn't you act in the years previous to the war?" I rejoined. There, from what we could call good Germans, I got the usual answer, which, in part, can't be contested:

"We had", they said, "but a superficial knowledge of Hitler's aims. The Italians had been fooled by Mussolini, we were fooled by Hitler, so were some of your own statesmen."

I had been to Germany in 1938, just for a short while. I remembered the impression that those five days in Hitlerland, as a youth of 22 years of age had left upon me. The devilish system had created order by force, but there was order! So much order that a year later we were to start spending 68 months to break it down.

Anyway, today Germany from east to west, from north to south is a complete shambles. Berlin's devastation itself surpasses imagination. The once "magnificent city" is no more. It's been wiped out as completely as Nagasaki and Hiroshima.

Those of you who are interested in statistics might learn that before I left the German capital, after 21 days, a German engineer told me that to clear Berlin alone of its debris would require no less than a hundred trains of fifty cars each daily, and that for fifteen years.

* * *

Now let's discuss the Russians!

When we got into Berlin, in July, the Russians had had a great amount of work done about the place. Streets had been cleaned of debris, electric light and gas were available in certain districts, some tramway and subway lines were being operated in parts, a polluted water supply also was available.

Three million people were still about. While we insisted that they be fed from an agricultural radius 50 miles around the city, the Russians insisted that we bring food from our own occupational zones of Germany, or wherever we could find it, to feed the million and a half Berliners in our sectors of the German capital.

Our Allies claimed that they were giving the Germans 2,000 calories a day, which was 1,000 calories more than we were able to give the French, or the Belgians. Whether this ration existed more than on paper was never ascertained. But I know that a can of corned beef in the early days of our entry into Berlin would fetch you a fair camera, and the people of Berlin were ready to sell most of their worldly possessions on the black market with the hope of getting allied occupation currency. They had lost faith in the Reichsmark!

It seemed, according to the version that I got from a captain of the United States Army who spoke the language, that the Soviet soldiers, having received a lot of back pay after the fall of Berlin, were intent on spending it. And why? Because knowing that their government does not "specifically encourage savings" they preferred paying exorbitant prices for objects knowingly scarce in the Soviet Union rather than give it back to the State. Even the Soviet soldier, it seems, had been inoculated with the virus of capitalism: the human instinct of holding on to what one possesses.

What were our relations with the Soviet army men? On the whole, I would say they were extremely cordial, despite the language bar. . . . We and they are not alike. Our temperaments, our ways of life, our conceptions of freedom often clash.

So far as the army itself is concerned, far be it from me to cast any reflection upon its magnificent record. But, unless there had been a purposed withdrawal of material, I must say that I can understand the Soviet's extremely high losses. Never have I seen units so poorly equipped. And never was I more convinced that the Russian High Command, and this is to their eternal glory, used uncovered breasts, millions of them, where we threw in masses of tanks and planes to support our highly mobile units.

The Russian soldier is a happy-go-lucky individual, intensely attached to his native land. But those in positions of authority are not as easy to deal with. . . Our convoys were delayed for hours on the way to Berlin because some junior officer refused to let us through at the Anglo-Russian demarkation line without consulting Marshal Zhukow. . . And on the arrival of President Truman and Premier Churchill at Gatow airfield, just outside Berlin, for the Potsdam conference, we still remember how the Grenadier Guards, who were part of the guard of honor, had to force their way through a Soviet sentry post.

Correspondents haven't forgotten, either, how the arrival of Marshal Stalin was uselessly shrouded in secrecy. It was obvious that when Russian army men, armed to the teeth, were being posted on guard every 50 feet or so along the main railway line leading into Berlin, that it wasn't to salute departing leave trains! . . . But that's the way they do things and we must take it for granted.

Colonel Bert Coffin, O.C. of the Canadian Berlin Battalion, taught me two short Russian words, something like "Polkavknik Kanadski", and they worked like a charm. Whenever officialdom barred my path I would just yell these words at the top of my voice and I'd get through. — They meant, "Canadian Colonel"!

I met the Russians in Berlin, and I met them under more auspicious circumstances on the Elbo River, where General Jadow's Fifth armoured Russian army and General Hodges' First United States Army made their historic link-up. . . . A banquet provided by the Russians three days later, helped me to forget about the lack of cooperation. . . . In fact after that I may say — seldom have I been so ardent a Stalinist, so ardent a Soviet — so utterly alcoholized! . . . And the same went for my confreres.

* * *

I would leave you on this rather hilarious note, if it were not that I and many others, believe that to reach an entente with the Soviet we will need more than a few friendly banquets.

Soviet Russia, the men that govern her, the men who have made her great, in my estimation are no idealists. Communism seems to have been a means of bettering the lives of the masses, but also the source of a new leading class, of an elite of hard and fast realists.

Who cares whether the atomic bomb or the entrance of Russia into the war were responsible for Japan's defeat? . . . For the time being, let it be our lot and our job to prepare world peace in a business-like way, as equal partners, driving a hard bargain when necessary — for we have seen the results of appeasement policy!

Now, this is where Canadians can do their part. . . We are part of the council of nations. And as such we must refuse to let the biggest powers carve the world according to their own interests or their own needs.

War gave us the opportunity to develop our national consciousness. The time has come now to develop our international consciousness. . . Canada has been bold in war, let her now be bold in peace!

Public Ceremonies Held Here, Observance of Armistice Day

Remembrance Day falling this year on a Sunday, the ability of more people to attend the annual ceremonies resulted in a far larger gathering than in previous years. Lachute Auditorium was well filled for the Armistice service, held at three o'clock in the afternoon, and the presence of a larger turn-out of ex-servicemen evidenced a reverent tribute to those who had given their lives not only in World War I but in the more recent conflict. The occasion might be judged to indicate that the sacrifices of these two wars will be lastingly linked in memory. — Which is as it should be, the ideals of Canada's participation in each case having been identical.

• • •

With Mayor Leopold Carriere as chairman, those on the platform included members of the Protestant clergy — the Rev. P. R. Stote, L.Th., of North Clarendon, the Rev. T. Hall, of Ottawa, and the Rev. Geo. T. Spriggs, of Lachute— also the speaker, Georges H. Heon, K.C., M.P., and R. A. Giles, chairman of the local poppy campaign.

The Rev. Spriggs gave the invocation, and two minutes' silence was observed while the audience stood at attention. A scripture passage was read by the Rev. Stote, after which the chairman called upon the speaker.

Mr. Heon, addressing his audience in both English and French, came briefly to the theme and subject of public meditations on this day of remembrance. "Although it is autumn, and gold leaves swirl at our feet — although the sunsets are bronze on the frost-nipped fields — it is for us solemnly to reflect, whether the sacrifices of those whom we honor today were in vain, or whether we have made ourselves worthy of the immolation of their lives. It remains to be proven that their death guaranteed the achievement of the object for which they set out. . . . "

The speaker quoted an observation by Winston Churchill, that now, after the Second World War, there appears none of that confidence, which prevailed among men after 1918, that they and their children will never see another world conflict.

"Seeing that Germany and Japan have been definitely defeated, why should that be so?" he asked. "Unfortunately, we are not in accord, as we should be, to ensure continued peace. Britain, America, Russia — the great powers today are facing each other in armed might".

In memory of those who so valiantly fell, the speaker pleaded earnestly for the pledge of all loyal Canadians, "to labor constantly that this world shall become, and remain, God-fearing, united, free and peace-loving".

Robert A. Giles spoke on behalf of the Argenteuil Legion, thanking the public for their support to the poppy campaign and explaining that the proceeds each year were devoted strictly to the aid of needy veterans and their families.

Wreaths Laid at Cenotaph

The Rev. T. Hall gave the prayer and benediction, after which the veterans with their colors paraded from the hall to the nearby Cenotaph. Here also the various adult and juvenile groups assembled — the Brownsburg Legion Auxiliary, the Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs, the Girl Guides and Brownies — encircled by the general public.

At the monument, with Mayor Carriere again presiding, representatives of organizations and clubs were called upon to deposit their wreaths. Besides these there were several personal tributes of remembrance, deposited by the Paul family, the Ward family, the Cruise family, and by AB. Donald Duncan, R.C.N.V.R., and Bdr. Edwin Duncan, R.C.A., "in memory of their comrades, Pte. Russell Ward and Lt. Geo. Gleadall."

Address to Children

Following the usual custom a brief talk was then addressed to the children. Reminding them that they stood today "under the proudest and most glorious flag in the world", Mr. Heon compared the good fortune of Canadian children with those reared under less happy circumstances — in the dictator countries where, before the Allied triumph, the younger generation had been regimented, deprived of freedom to choose in matters of religion and education, or to follow independent trends of thought. He asked his young listeners to pray God, with all earnestness, for a lasting peace and preservation of their liberties.

"Taps" was sounded by a trumpeter, Gordon Anderson, of Brownsburg, and the ceremonies closed with the national anthem.

Local Couple Severely Hurt In Auto Crash

Gordon A. Brown, his wife and young son, Hugh, were injured in a highway crash at Grenville Bay on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Brown, well known local garageman, and his wife were seriously hurt and admitted to hospital for treatment, and their three-year-old boy was treated for cuts and bruises, later being taken home. These were the only occupants of the car.

Other victims of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Provencal, their daughter Leona, aged 10, Mrs. Arthur Gervais and two daughters, Rita and Georgette, occupants of a car from Fassett driven by Mr. Provencal.

Gordon Brown, driving a coupe, was coming east on Route 8 when he collided head-on with the other car, which was proceeding out of Route 29 into the main highway at Chantal's corner.

Officer Howard Jones, of the provincial traffic police, investigated the accident. The victims were conveyed by taxi to hospitals in Hawkesbury.

Gordon Brown was taken to Dr. Kelly's Hospital suffering from a severe cut in the throat which narrowly missed the jugular vein; also injured knees and four fractured ribs, suffered when he was jammed against the steering wheel of his car.

Mrs. Brown is also in Dr. Kelly's hospital with a broken right ankle, cuts above and below the eye, lacerated scalp and severe body bruises.

According to reports last evening, Mr. and Mrs. Brown were progressing favorably, although still confined to hospital.

Mrs. Provencal is in Dr. W. T. Smith's private hospital in Hawkesbury suffering from a fractured nose, fractured left leg, cuts about arms and legs and a severe cut over the left eye. Her daughter is in the same hospital with injuries to one eye.

Mrs. Gervais and her two daughters were treated at Dr. Smith's hospital and allowed to return home.

Mr. Provencal received minor injuries in the accident but was not detained.

"COLOR FROM COAL" TOPIC OF ADDRESS BY RESEARCH CHEMIST, BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

PROGRESS OF DYE MANUFACTURE INTRIGUING STORY; WARTIME PROBLEMS MET BY CHEMISTS

Brownsburg — The regular dinner meeting of the Rotary Club was held at Carriere's Hotel on Thursday, November 8, with President Sam Ross in the chair.

Members and guests were entertained by an interesting talk and demonstration by Capt. A. E. Ames of the Chemical Warfare Department, National Research Council, Ottawa, assisted by Sgt. C. Thompson of the same department. "Color from Coal", was the subject of the address.

The demonstration included a display of fluorescent dyes under ultra-violet light; and dealt with the manufacture of various brilliant hues, and their practical application to various fabrics.

According to the speaker only "Princes and Potentates, Emperors and Kings" could afford to wear robes of Royal Purple 2,000 years ago, which now the poorest person that lives can have, if such be his choice.

This is the story of the great revolution in the dyer's art which brought rich, brilliant, beautiful colors within the reach of prince and pauper alike. — This is the story of "Color from Coal".

That the art of dyeing is an ancient one, with its beginnings in the misty unstoried ages of long ago, is shown by the finding of yellow mummy bandages (4,000 years old) in the pyramids of Egypt. But the ancients used natural colors extracted from wood, flowers, insects, snails, and many other sources which yielded only small quantities of weak, dull colors after long and arduous labors. Thus Tyrian or Royal Purple, extracted from the bodies of millions of little sea snails which lived on the shores of Crete, was only for the very rich.

Later on, as the dyers passed down their secrets from father to son, their knowledge and their range of shades was extended to embrace bright reds, blues, good blacks and greens, but still they used the dyes that nature grudgingly provided and applied them from crude, smelly vats by rule of thumb.

But in 1856, a young unknown student working in a cellar laboratory in England was, by his experiments, to lay the foundation stone for a new and tremendously important industry which was to change dyeing from an art to a science. This student, William Henry Perkin, was attempting to make quinine when he noticed that the product of one of his reactions was a mauve color, which he isolated and found to be superior in brightness to any then known dye. After consulting with a well known firm of dyers, Perkin decided to manufacture his "Mauve" on the commercial scale and at once formed a company into which he persuaded his father to put his life savings. Overcoming tremendous difficulties in obtaining suitable equipment and raw materials, in 1857 he put on the market the first "Color from Coal" . . . Since that time, literally thousands of coal tar colors have been developed running through all the hues of the spectrum, and with many different properties from which the dyer can take his choice. From this great store of dyes, the colorist can match any shade which nature can

"Welcome Home" Party for Veterans At Morin Heights

SPONSORED BY W.I. BRANCH PRESENTATIONS MADE BY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Morin Heights — Thirty-five servicemen were guests at an enjoyable event at Morin Heights on Friday evening, November 9, when members of the community turned out in large numbers to a "Welcome Home" party held in Davis' Hall, in honor of members of this municipality who served in the armed forces.

The party was sponsored by the local branch of the Women's Institute in collaboration with the Municipal Council. The Institute arranged the party and provided effective decorations for the hall and an abundance of appetizing refreshments, and on behalf of the community the Council presented each returned veteran with an engraved signet ring. Ladies' rings, engraved with the initials of the boys who made the supreme sacrifice, were presented to the next of kin of those boys to whom the joy of homecoming has been denied.

Community singing, commencing with O Canada, with Mrs. R. J. Seale at the piano, opened the proceedings, following which all stood and observed a period of silent remembrance for fallen heroes, then joined in singing God Save the King. Short, but eloquent and appropriate addresses of welcome were delivered by Mr. J. E. Seale, ex-Mayor W. H. Watchorn, Councillor Oscar Forget, the Rev. Sydney Rowe, minister of the United Church, and Georges H. Heon, K.C., M.P. The mayor, Charles Campbell, made the presentations, and Cpl. W. R. Bell, of the R.C.A.F., on behalf of the guests expressed thanks for the sincere welcome, and for the tangible evidence of that welcome which they had received, and the pleasure of all at being home once more.

After refreshments were served, and all had enjoyed a session of visiting and renewing friendships, the hall was cleared and many joined in an old-time square dance.

Oddfellow Given 50-Year-Jewel

Allan Paul, a Lachute townsman and member of Laurentian Lodge No. 14, I.O.O.F., received a signal honor in the Oddfellows Order when he was presented with a 50-year veteran jewel, at last week's meeting of the lodge. The jewel was presented by W. K. McArthur, acting in his capacity as Provincial Grand Warden.

Mr. Paul, member for half a century of the same lodge in which he first enrolled, is the second Oddfellow from this group to have merited the 50-year award. The late Robert McArthur received a similar honor some months previous to his death in November, 1943.

Success Attends Annual Poppy Sale

The annual Poppy Day campaign has again been most successful, and although results are not all in as yet, it is believed that last year's collections will be surpassed.

It is encouraging to know that, even though the war is over, the public realizes that Remembrance Day will always remain and that it is perhaps more necessary than ever that they support the sale of poppies and wreaths, in order that funds may be raised and maintained for assistance to needy or disabled veterans.

Special thanks are extended to the young ladies who worked so willingly to make this campaign a success, and to the public for their generous support.

A detailed report will be given as soon as outside returns have been received.

Veterans Attend Armistice Supper

A large assembly of veterans of both wars, over 60 in number, gathered at the Orange Hall on Saturday evening on the occasion of the 2nd annual Armistice dinner. This idea was inaugurated last year and proved so successful that it was decided to make it an annual event.

Comrade Wm. Blakely was again in charge of arrangements, which could be termed nothing less than perfect.

Legion President E. M. Jones was chairman, and after a fine meal served by the ladies of the Orange Lodge, George Heon, M.P., addressed the gathering. Among other visitors were Leopold Carriere, Mayor of Lachute, and Comrade Harold Mason, President of Brownsburg Legion, No. 71, both of whom expressed appreciation at being present.

Major Dave Campbell and Major Dan Tremblay also gave interesting talks, while Comrade John MacKimmie added to the entertainment with a recitation.

There were happy reunions as many of the boys met after several years' absence, and the experiences related in little groups were varied and interesting. Others gathered around the piano to join in the old songs of the Great War, and the newer ones of the last conflict, all seeming to spend a most enjoyable evening.

New Cargo Ships for Canadian Pacific

The first vessel of the C.P.R.'s post-war cargo fleet, the 10,000 ton turbo-electric vessel Beaverdell, was launched recently from the shipyard of Lithgows Ltd., Glasgow, Scotland. The ship was named by Mrs. D. C. Coleman. Photo shows the Beaverdell going down the slipway at the launching ceremony.

Sunday Gathering Gives Impetus to Education Week

FORMER MONT'L PRINCIPAL GUEST SPEAKER FOR INAUGURAL HERE

A special Education Week service was held in the Lachute Auditorium Sunday evening, November 11, with the congregations of the United, Presbyterian and Anglican churches participating. The Rev. E. Orsborn opened the service with a short prayer which was followed by a minute's silence in memory of former students of Lachute High School who gave their lives in the two wars. This was followed by the singing of the hymn, "O Valiant Hearts", and reading of the lesson by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough. The congregation was led in prayer by the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, and the school Glee Club, under direction of Mr. Earl Morrison, sang two anthems.

The guest speaker of the evening was Miss Catherine Mackenzie, former principal of the Montreal High School for Girls. The speaker urged parents to visit their schools during Education Week and suggested that by showing interest in the work of the pupils a better understanding would result between the home and school, inasmuch as parents would realize that modern methods of teaching are worthwhile and not inferior to the older concepts of learning. The teaching of geography was used to illustrate how the modern approach to a subject may develop an increased knowledge and at the same time have a more practical value to the child.

The fact that education must imply more than book learning was stressed by Miss Mackenzie, who felt that the development of an appreciation for music, for good reading, and the cultivation of social contacts, should be included in the curriculum of every school.

The guest speaker was thanked by Principal H. G. Bradford, who appreciated the sentiments with which Miss MacKenzie had started the people of this community well on the way to Education Week; he also reminded parents they were invited to visit the school on Friday afternoon, between the hours of two and two-thirty o'clock.

PROPOSE BIG ZOO

Montreal (CP) — City council is studying a report recommending establishment of a 100-acre zoo to include only Canadian fauna. The Quebec government likely will be asked to contribute to the cost of the zoo, which its supporters say would be of educational and tourist advantage to the province.

Weir Now Heads Canvassing Districts

Latest reports from Victory Loan headquarters here show that Argenteuil has obtained 197% of its $1,075,000 objective for General Sales and Payroll Savings.

Following is the standing of the various canvassing districts :

In the General Sales among Units of the Northwestern Region, Joliette leads with 229%, followed by Argenteuil with 216%. These two Counties are, in fact, the first two in the Province of Quebec, which is composed of four regions.

The Special Names objective of $425,000 has been well exceeded, sales now totaling $608,000.

Weir jumped from last to first place during a week which saw every district add considerably to its total. Morin Heights, the only other district below its quota last week, now has 125%.

It is interesting to note that five of the nine canvassing districts in Argenteuil have exceeded 200% of their objectives.

C-I-L Plastics Division	193%
Canadian International Paper	175
C-I-L "Dominion" Ammunition Div.	173

Ayers Limited	139
Canadian Refractories Ltd.	115
Dominion Shuttle Co.	105

Employees of Boyd's Lachute Express reached 150% of their objective in the Group Payroll Section.

Local Victory Loan officials are still hoping to overtake Joliette in the race for the General Sales Cup presented by the National War Finance Committee. Time is running out, but applications will be accepted until Saturday. All who have not yet purchased their Ninth Victory Loan Bonds are urged to do so immediately. Those who are in a position to buy more will help their County greatly if they do so without delay.

Our motto was "The Last Shall Be First". We have run a good race, but with the finish line in sight we still have one hurdle to cross. Let's do it, folks. —

Livestock Ration Topic at Meeting Of Holstein Club

The annual meeting of the Lachute District Holstein Association was held last Thursday evening in McArthur's Hall, a large gathering of members and friends being present. Both in its business and social aspects, the event was judged a complete success.

The president, Simon Wilson, called upon Alex Bothwell, county agronomist, to introduce the guest speaker, Dr. E. Crampton, of the animal husbandry department of Macdonald College, who spoke on the feeding of dairy cattle.

Hermas Lajoie, provincial fieldman of the Holstein-Friesian Association, also addressed the meeting, stressing the importance of the herd sire for overall improvement of the dairying stock. He told of the recent selective registration campaign carried on by the Association throughout Canada, and urged the improvement of dairy cattle as regards both type and production.

W. A. Hodge, of Saint Laurent, provincial president of the Holstein-Friesian Association, was present and expressed greetings to the local club.

Dr. Crampton's address was on the topic of animal nutrition, giving valuable advice on the Total Digestible Nutrients (T.D.N.) in some of the more common farm grain mixtures. He instanced the fact that a 1200-lb. cow giving 40 lbs. of milk a day at 4% butterfat, required about 9¼ lbs. of digestible nutrients for maintenance and about 13½ lbs. of total digestible nutrients for production, making a total of 22¾ lbs. T.D.N. — 10 lbs. of which should be supplied in the meal ration.

He showed by means of graphs the relation that exists between per cent total digestible nutrients and weight per quart of feed, following approximately a straight-line equation; or, in other words, as the percentage T.D.N. increases, so the weight per quart increases, or vice versa.

Therefore the logical procedure for the practical feeder who feeds by measure rather than by weight, is to compare the weight of the feeding stuff whenever he contemplates a change of meal mixture.

Following these helpful and constructive talks, dancing was enjoyed by the large gathering. Members of the St. Jerusalem-Bethany Women's Institute had charge of the refreshments and — in the words of one observer, "provided a balanced ration, with all digestible nutrients required for the strenuous swing-to-right and swing-to-left which continued till the early morning hours".

OLD HOCKEY PLAYER, NOW SPORTS ORGANIZER COMES BACK TO OPERATE THE LACHUTE ARENA

NEW DIRECTORATE PLANS ROLLER-SKATING FLOOR, ATTRACTIONS FOR YEAR-ROUND USE OF BUILDING

Ownership and control of the Lachute Arena recently passed into the hands of a new directorate headed by John H. Dunne as president and general manager, with Jerry M. Sauve as secretary-treasurer and Edouard Latreille as director.

John Dunne, a former resident of this community and employee of Ayers Ltd. for four and a half years, was an athletic figure around here in the days of Ben and Bidou Patrie, Jim MacKimmie, Jim MacGibbon, Roland Giroux, Ed Blackburn, Omer Gagne, the late Kenny Campbell and others. He recently severed an 8-year connection with the Montreal Forum, and is well known to the Montreal press and public. This experience will enable him to serve the best interests of the public in the way of sporting attractions. He is also the owner of the J. H. Dunne Disinfecting and Deodorizing Co.

Jerry M. Sauve, another former employee of the Forum and well-known Montreal sports figure, is well grounded in hockey organization work as past president of the Montreal Commercial League and other athletic activities.

Edouard Latreille, although not so well known in the sporting world as in business, is an amateur enthusiast of all sports. His experience will be invaluable in renovations now necessary to the rink and in plans for future expansion to the building.

Mr. Dunne, as general manager and spokesman of the group, sets forth the program on which the Arena will be conducted in the future:

Firstly, he contends, sports being close to the seventh largest industry on the continent, must necessarily be treated and conducted as a business. This business is to foster sports on a closely competitive plane, financially advantageous to both parties, i.e. the backers or promoters in order to meet expenses of equipment, and to the Arena for maintenance purposes. None of the three gentlemen in the group will be connected to any one club or any league, except in an advisory capacity to all, if desired — with one exception, however — Mr. Dunne offering his coaching services to both English and French speaking schools in this county.

Secondly: Assets from the rink will be used for repairs, renovations, and possibly a new Arena in the not too distant future. Mr. Dunne will remain a permanent resident of this district, and Mr. Sauve will also reside here when he winds up his business affairs in Montreal.

Thirdly: Hockey games, skating and all other attractions will start on scheduled time. In order to treat the public fairly, no delays will be tolerated, as at present the lobby is hardly adequate to provide so-called "shin-heat" for a capacity crowd. This will be definitely remedied by next season.

Fourthly: Plans are now in formation for a roller-skating floor next spring. This surface will also be used for dancing, vaudeville shows, wrestling, meetings, boxing and other sports.

Lastly: The Arena will in time be known as the "Argenteuil Arena", as it will be conducted from now on for the furtherance of sports and attractions on an unbiased basis to each and every community in this county.

Around the Country

By Country Editor, Jim Greenblat

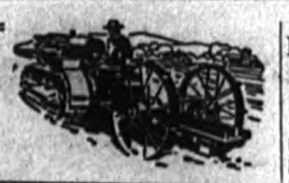

What's happening around Canada: Victim of a prank at the age of four when a piece of string was placed in her ear, a Kirkland Lake lady, now 22, had it removed by a doctor after severe pain. . . . A. C. Winder's barber shop last week closed up as the oldest in North Battleford, Sask. . . . the late owner started it in 1908. . . . Benjamin Corkum of LeHave, N.S., lived to 90, was killed by a truck at the rise of a hill. . . . Little Florence Hennigar of Dawsonville, N.B., gathered a pullet's egg that has a clock dial design on its surface, exact in all detail. . . . There was excitement and windows in the area had to be closed when a skunk found refuge under the grating on the sidewalk of the Walkwell Shoe Store in Gananoque, Ont.; two soldiers in their cups tried to dislodge it; as the crowd gathered, J. Butler was struck by a car, knocked down, and fun was had all round. . . . Thomas H. Fuller died in Warwick County, Ont., in his 83rd year, lived his entire life on the farm where he was born. . . . Johnny McGuckie, aged three, was fatally injured by a freight engine at Wayne, Alta., when he rushed on the tracks to save his puppy which had wandered onto the right-of-way. . . . How d'do was the greeting at the counter of the City Gas & Electric Corporation offices in Three Rivers, Que., when a truck loaded with cement blocks crashed through the big glass window and its radiator wound up facing the clerks.

RAPID RECONVERSION: Where weapons of war were being forged two short months ago, workmen at Ogden Shops in Calgary now are repairing powerful Canadian Pacific locomotives. The gigantic crane, largest in Canada, is seen lifting the first engine to enter the shops since they were turned over to munition work in March, 1941, even while huge machines used for the manufacture of naval rifles and artillery were being loaded onto flatcars for shipment in the lower picture. The C.P.R. repair plant will soon be back on its pre-war schedule of turning out 28 engines each month, after setting up a record of producing munitions worth $25,544,680 during the past four and a half years.

Feed Poultry After Four p.m. in Winter

Warmth is an important factor in egg production. Correlated with warmth is feeding and the time of feeding. Nature has equipped poultry with ample storage space which includes the crop, gizzard, and stomach. The gizzard with its strong muscular walls may be likened to a power-plant. It generates heat in the bird when the crop is full of reserve feed. Thus the bird is kept warm and the feathers keep the cold out. But the internal heat is dissipated during the night and in the case of poultry not fed after 4 p.m. the store of fuel is exhausted before the time it is most needed during the coldest hours of the night in the early early morning.

Late feeding is a good system. An example is quoted of a poultryman, who with only a medium flock, was able to maintain good egg production by feeding late. He had no electric light in the poultry house but the birds came down to feed by the light of a lantern. Late feeding of hard grains in conjunction with the use of light in poultry houses stimulates poultry to produce more eggs.

5,387 Easterners Joined Harvest Excursion

In a final report on the Western Harvest Excursion, Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Minister of Labor, pointed out that once again Western harvest needs have been met. In all, he said, 5,387 workers were despatched through the National Employment Service from 63 employment offices in Ontario and Western Quebec, to assist in farm work during the western harvest season.

Men from farms were represented to the extent of 4,620, while a total of 555 men from industry were included. It was also noted that 212 women, who had come originally from Western farms, took part in the Excursion.

Free transportation for the workers was provided on the outgoing journey and, through a special agreement with the railway companies, a substantial reduction to the Department in the fare from East to West was made effective. For the return trip each man was required to contribute only $10 towards the price of his ticket.

$10,050 Paid for Quebec Yearling Holstein Bull

Quebec breeders were prominent both as buyers and sellers at the All-Canadian Holstein Sale held at Oakville, Ontario, on October 31.

W. A. S. Ayerst, Ormstown, was the principal buyer. His outstanding purchase was $10,050 for a yearling bull offered by H. L. Guilbert, Vercheres, Que. Mr. Ayerst also bought a three-year heifer from Mr. Guilbert for $3,500; a five-year cow at $1,200 from Mrs. A. Law, Hudson, and an eleven-months daughter of the noted "Sovereign" for $1,300 from M. W. Miller, Brome.

A. L. Guilbert paid $2,200 for a seven-months heifer calf from M. J. Tamblyn, Orono, Ont., $1,200 for a two-year heifer from Bert Thornton & Son, Thamesford, and $2,150 for a "Sovereign" daughter from Fred M. Snyder, Waterloo, Ont. Brown Corporation, La Tuque, secured a seven-months-old "Sovereign" daughter at $1,750 and sold a two-year heifer and her baby bull calf for $5,150 and a yearling heifer for $1,900, all to Franlo Farms, Hopkins, Minn.

Macdonald College received $1,080 for a bull calf purchased by the Waterloo County Artificial Breeding Club. Estate of Chas. Hodgson, Hudson Heights, secured $1,250 for a bred heifer from Albert Seiling, Elmira.

New Canadian record prices were set, both for bull and female.

Meeting of Poultry Co-operative Assocn.

A general meeting for the organization of the Quebec Poultry Co-operative Association — formerly the Quebec Federation of Certified Hatcheries — is being held today (Thursday) at the Queen's Hotel, Montreal. The Poultry Co-operative Association has been legally convoked in virtue of the Agricultural Co-operative Associations Act and notice of its organization was published in the Official Gazette on October 27 last.

Co-operative and private hatcheries linking themselves with this provincial organization will choose directors, nominate an auditor and, if judged necessary, a delegate to the general meeting of the "Co-opérative Fédérée de Québec."

Canada needs at least one Trans-Canada highway which would link east and west with a road of today's modern standards. A national highway has an importance far beyond its mere travel uses. It is essential for national unity and progress.

Rocquefort Legend

The Poquefort type of cheese is now made in many parts of the world, but it is named for a cave in France where it is supposed to have originated. The story is that a shepherd boy tending his flock in the vicinity of Roquefort caves placed his lunch of barley bread and native cheese in the cool of one of the caves until noontime. However, his flock wandered afar and several weeks passed before it returned to the spot. Remembering the lunch, the shepherd was surprised to find the barley bread covered with black mould and the cheese variegated with veined green mould. He tasted the cheese and, finding it delicious, placed the lunch he was carrying that day in the cave for further investigation.

His discovery was noted by the Conques monks of that region and they are given the credit for developing Roquefort cheese through the use of mould from this cave.

Dutch Bulbs for British Market

London (CP) — Dutch bulb-growers are hurrying to be first in the British market. People who bought their bulbs from Holland before the war are already getting catalogues through the mail.

English bulb growers are not allowed to distribute catalogues through the mail unless they have first been asked for them. A catalogue received here from P. de Jager and Sons, Heiloo, Holland, contains a preface thanking the "courageous, steadfast people of Britain".

They also thank British authorities for allowing the importation of £725,000 ($3,262,500) worth of bulbs.

HOSPITABLE FARMERS

The sturdy (farm) inhabitants about our community have shown exceptional hospitality to the Victory Loan salesmen. It is no longer necessary to bring a lunch; it's only necessary to stop at the first farm house.

Avoca Lady, 96, Was Well Known, Highly Regarded

Mrs. Joseph Arthurs, Sr.

Avoca, Que. — At her home in Avoca on October 24, Mrs. Joseph Arthurs, Sr., passed to her reward. She was in her 97th year and one of the oldest residents of the district. Born in Avoca, her maiden name was Marian Jane Young. Her husband predeceased her over 25 years ago.

The remains were laid to rest beside her husband in McNeill's Cemetery on Saturday afternoon, October 27, after services in the home and at the Baptist Church in Avoca. The great number of people who called at the home to express their sympathy with the bereaved family was a fine tribute to one who was held in high honor by the community in which she had lived so long. The church was filled to capacity with relatives and friends who came to pay their last tribute of respect.

Mrs. Arthurs is survived by several brothers and sisters as well as by five daughters and six sons, who were all present at the funeral. (One of her daughters died in infancy and another, Mrs. Dougal MacArthur, passed away at Bruce, Wisconsin, a few years ago). Two of the sons, Johnnie and Wyman, came from Dauphin, Man. The eldest of the family, Mrs. John Seale, of Dauphin, had been caring for her mother for the past 11 months. The other members of the family are — Samson Arthurs, Josey Arthurs, and Mrs. Sandy Bates, of Avoca; Mrs. J. J. Bates, Hawkesbury, Ont.; Albert Arthurs, Port Colborne, Ont.; the Rev. Wm. Arthurs, Wheatley Ont.; Mrs. (Rev.) E. T. Newton, Stamford, Ont.; and Mrs. (Rev.) C. R. Duncan, Stratford, Ont.

The deceased will be remembered in a kindly manner by the many Baptist ministers who enjoyed the hospitality of her home while they were student pastors of the churches at Avoca and Rivington. A much appreciated letter to the family from the minister of the United Church in the community, was an indication of the fact that her sympathies and interest in the work of God's kingdom were not confined to the Baptist Church, of which she was so loyal and devoted a member.

She is mourned not only by her children but by a great host of grandchildren and relatives in the younger generation, to all of whom the memories of their association with "Grandma Arthurs" will always be happy ones.

By request of the family the funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. R. Duncan, a son-in-law, who is minister of the Ontario Street Baptist Church at Stratford, Ont.

Canada's Dykelands

For many years the marshlands forming the shore of the Bay of Fundy in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had been protected by dykes. Over the years, many of them have fallen into disrepair. After the formation of the Maritime Dykeland Rehabilitation Committee in 1942, an extensive survey was made and in 1944 the Dominion Govermnent agreed to contribute a specified sum to cover the costs of repair work, the two provinces agreeing jointly to match that sum, while one-third of the total cost of any project would be contributed by the men who owned the marshland.

Some of us are afraid to search our souls, for fear that we will find a heel.

300 Veterans in Cenotaph Parade At Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury — More than 300 veterans of both wars marched Sunday afternoon to the Cenotaph in Hawkesbury to participate with thousands of residents in the Remembrance Day ceremonies.

Headed by the Hawkesbury Air Cadets' Bugle and Drum Band, the parade started from the east end of the town and marched to the Cenotaph, with Hawkesbury residents lining the streets. In the parade were representatives from all local civic bodies and clubs.

Mayor C. E. Lafrance addressed the gathering in Franch and English. Others who spoke were the Rev. F. Bricault and the Rev. Crawford Scottt, former R.C.A.F. chaplain.

A poppy wreath was placed at the foot of the Cenotaph by Mrs. A. Berthiaume, mother of the late P/O G. Berthiaume, R.C.A.F., representing the motherhood of Hawkesbury bereaved by war. Another wreath was placed by S. E. McGibbon, whose son, P/O McGibbon, R.C.A.F., gave his life in this war.

Prayers were offered by both Rev. F. Bricault and Rev. C. Scott, following which the Last Post was sounded by Air Cadet buglers. Mayor Lafrance then called for two minutes silence.

FORMER BUSINESS MAN IS BEREAVED

Dr. Malcolm Beaton, radiologist, whose death occurred recently in Montreal at the age of 55, was a brother of Edward Beaton, now Group Captain Beaton, R.C.A.F., of Ottawa — a former Lachute business man.

Besides his wife and daughter, the late Dr. Beaton leaves another brother in the medical profession at Blackville, N.B., also his sister and parents, the Rev. and Mrs. L. Beaton, in Toronto.

BUCKINGHAM LAD, AGED 16, KILLED BY CHUM WITH RIFLE

Buckingham — While out hunting Saturday afternoon, Marquis St. Amour, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Honore St. Amour, Buckingham, was accidentally shot by a chum and died in a local hospital that evening.

St. Amour and his friend, 21-year-old Emerius Desjardins, decided to go hunting. Desjardins was at the top of a small hill and St. Amour at the bottom. Desjardins started to descend the hill and when about 40 or 50 feet from his chum he stepped into a small hole. He grabbed his .22 calibre rifle for support. The rifle discharged, the bullet striking the right side of St. Amour's throat.

Desjardins ran a mile through the woods to the Buckingham Ski Club for assistance. Four workmen returned to get the injured youth. They carried him to the Ski Club, from where he was rushed to hospital.

Dr. W. J. Costello, coroner from Buckingham, pronounced death accidental. An autopsy revealed that the bullet had broken the boy's spine.

Horror on the Highway

FIRE, generally speaking, is one of the most dreaded hazards, and for this reason its ominous possibilities command respect. But there are a few appalling instances of fire occurring in travel or transit, which impress upon us that this form of disaster is particularly horrible.

The tragedy which occurred not far from here last Sunday, on a familiar section of the Laurentian highways, brings home the awesome outcome of accidents of this type. An everyday automobile collision occurred — fire broke out — and the toll was eight victims, who died on the spot, trapped in an inferno of flame.

This was the simplest form of accident — one passenger car crashing into another which was slowing down to turn off the highway. From its simplicity there is little to learn, for it is the sort of contingency against which every motorist is, or should be, constantly on guard. The sudden, tragic sequel, however — an explosion of the gas tank, caused supposedly by the damaged headlight circuit of the rear car — gives us something new, fantastic, almost unbelievable, to contemplate. The evidence stands out, that swift and unexpected disaster may hinge upon the slightest disregard of safety rules. Some time, some place, a similar outcome may result from an automobile swerving into a ditch, or from hazardous driving which may cause some other motorist to leave the road.

Such tragedies cannot be foreseen. There is no law or calculation to forecast results. But the least we can do, in the interests of our personal survival, is to be constantly alert to danger, to see that our cars are safe, and our practices sane. Still much will remain in the hands of fate; but with these provisions, we will have done our part.

Aftermath of War

SCIENTISTS, economists and statesmen are waging a Battle of Europe of even more terrifying significance than the struggles which preceded peace. This time the battle is to keep the ancient continent, which cradled western civilization, from total collapse — a collapse which might threaten that civilization as really as the schemes of Europe's masters of the past totalitarian decade.

Allied leaders face the primary task of impressing this fact on a world where the words "collapse" and "chaos" have been used so freely during the war years as to have lost their meaning. The rapid dissolution of the greater part of a continent into a formless mass of people drifting toward destruction by starvation and disease is what confronts the world today, they tell us.

Drastic, artificial shifts of population — started by the Germans themselves — now threaten to break the heart of the continent. The forced transfer of millions from Russian, Polish and Czech territories has created a mammoth problem for the occupation authorities of western Germany — a problem whose severity will not be fully realized until winter comes.

Nazi leaders have made good their threat to leave behind them anarchy, and it is into this anarchy that their helpless followers now are plunged. Occupation leaders are racing against time to achieve effective collaboration on the feeding and housing of these millions of displaced persons before epidemic ravages, which do not stop at frontiers, have broken out.

In the midst of the shattered administrative and civil structure of Europe, the Allies have on their hands 70,000,000 Germans — and on the other side of the world 70,000,000 Japanese. The scope of the problem is dwarfed by all but the scope of the problem which faced them a year ago when the major task was still to bring these peoples to unconditional surrender.

Presses Keep Rolling

THE WAR is over, but newspapers and newspapermen are as busy as ever — busier in fact. For them the war's end meant chiefly a readjustment of new values and the replacement of war headlines and war news by more extended reports of affairs in keeping with a peacetime world.

There are no longer reports of great victories on land, sea and in the air, sinkings or thousand-plane raids or atomic bombs, which have monopolized front pages for six years and relegated secondary news to the inside of the daily paper. Most papers, as the materials of publication become less restricted are actually planning an expansion of effort, directed toward better post-war coverage and presentation of today's big news — international relations, foreign and domestic politics, and current happenings and events.

For the truth is that news is a state of the human mind rather than a collection of stories on newsprint. As long as people have a curiosity to learn what is happening somewhere else, the newspapers will never run dry. And that curiosity, in most humans, is a fairly standard factor. During the war, it is too concerned with momentous events to pay much heed to what is going on at home, or to any non-war topics. But in less turbulent times, that curiosity may fasten itself almost as avidly on what is happening in the next town or in the neighbor's backyard.

The salutation, "I guess you're not very busy now that the war is over," may fit the case of a munitions worker, but certainly not the newspaperman. Your journalistic friend is working at top speed, tuning his mind to and reporting the latest trends — in short, helping to fit the newspaper to a new world.

Pro and Con

THE MODERN method of letting children have a free hand in the belief that they will eventually fit themselves into their proper niche may have its virtues — but on the other hand the stern parental discipline of a generation or so ago developed some fine upstanding citizens, who, to say the least, were capable of exemplifying a respectful attitude towards society. In those days the razor strap hung on the door nob. It was used not often, but effectively.

Chicken Pie Social

I guess you know how a fellow tries to think of something pleasant when he's sweating out a trouble (he said, reaching for a third piece of pumpkin pie). Well some think of one thing and some another, but for my money it was mainly a chicken pie social.

Odd, eh? I saw it just about the way it is here. I figured on more butter and sugar than we have tonight, and more fruit, too. Notice there aren't any apples this year, or apple pies? And a good many of the old gang I used to go around with haven't turned up. Some aren't back yet, and some won't be coming back. The general setting is the same, though—the church cellar with the table set up on sawhorses, and the girls hustling good! More coffee? Sure —thanks, Jean. There's a feeling — a kind of glow — to a chicken pie social. It's more than just the eating, though that's important. I suppose partly it goes back to harvest festivals away before they took to writing about what went on. It stands to reason there's likely to be a feeling of satisfaction when you get into the groove with real old customs.

Anyway, I've kidded myself time and again in Italy and Holland with the idea of sitting up to this long table and looking at these decorations of leaves and feeling easy with the people I knew. Away down deep I didn't really believe I'd get to doing this again, but it sure helped to think about it. And if some more of the old gang were here it would be right up to what I remembered, in spite of the food. There's a kind of glow to a chicken pie social, at home.

For A Succesful Education Week

(Specially Contributed)

This is Education Week in Canada.

The idea of a particular period of time, be it an hour, a day or a week, set aside to commemorate some event, subject or initiation, has been borrowed from the Church. From its earliest teachings certain events or personages had their birthdays venerated by a feast or celebration. In one or two instances where special significance became attached to the death or departure of the subject, the anniversary of both events was celebrated.

Down the centuries movements of fateful promise or rich portent became included. Still later, the two minutes' silence, one hour of remembrance, Mothers' Day and Education Week were among the many added.

The celebration of Education Week takes many forms. Parents visit the schools. Teachers hold "open house" and discuss the problems, local and national, which confront them. Non-academic bodies take a practical interest in education and sponsor some action to elevate the value of a particular school or education in general. The Citizens' Forum, as an instance of the latter kind, have set the subject, "Should education fit people for jobs," for discussion and report among its thousands of groups throughout the country.

Co-operation between parents and teachers is necessary for the sake of the welfare of the children and the efficiency of the schools. This co-operation is also necessary to prevent schools becoming too impersonal — institutions of learning, so to speak — where children are regimented into a mold producing educated automatons, devoid of the personal touch, lacking individuality.

The definition of a University as, "Mark Hanna sitting at one end of a log and a pupil sitting at the other end", has some merit. Education is not derived from fine buildings and monumental halls or costly equipment. All these would be useless without first-class teachers.

Teachers, too, need a re-awakening to the concepts of their calling. An Anglican Bishop in England, discussing education and the role of the teacher the other day, said that the powerful National Union of Teachers in that country acts "as if it believes that the primary purpose of education is to give employment to teachers". This is an unhealthy development. There is no indication of such a trend in our Canadian system of education.

Teachers appreciate the interest parents take in their work; an even greater manifestation of interest by parents is necessary. Let this week be your reminder to display that interest and make this a successful Education Week.

The Lighted Schoolhouse

● By JOHN A B. McLEISH,
Principal of Gault Institute, Valleyfield, and National Chairman of Community Standards of the Canadian Federation of Home and School

THERE IS NO more tragic symbol of wasted opportunity in our nation than the dark schoolhouse, locked away night after night from the use of its own community . . . mute evidence of an almost criminal neglect to develop the talents, enrich the fellowship, and build up the democratic stature of its community folk.

Now if a school is to be a community school . . . that is, a school which is alive to its community responsibilities and open to community folk programmes . . . it must have a community-minded staff. It is perfectly possible to operate a school with a minimum of interest in the activities, the dreams, the difficulties, and the failures of the surrounding area from which the children of the school are drawn; but such a school cannot command the love, nor in time to come will it command even the respect of its community folk. It is no accident that community-minded schools provide thorough medical examinations for their students, institute special nutrition programmes and hot lunches, sponsor vocational trips, encourage parent-teacher relationships, and operate recreational activities and interclass sports after school hours up to suppertime at night. To the community-minded principal and his staff, the students are not merely names in a register or faces behind school desks, but children of the community who cannot be dealt with without relation to it and to their homes, and whose highly intricate personalities require sympathetic guidance beyond the realm of mere book-learning.

Now, it is this same community-mindedness which reflects itself in a lively concern for the whole personality of our students, and a service to them out-reaching the time-limits of the closing bell, which is producing throughout Quebec and Canada the kind of school which can be called "the lighted schoolhouse". It is a form of folk school, and its programme and its objectives are as warm and rich as the fine terms "folk" and "community" themselves are.

Indeed, when the great Danish educator, Frederick Grundtvig, founded his first folk school about a century ago, that primitive Danish institution from which have flowed the subsequent streams of community education, he based it upon two of the noblest motives which can inspire human activity: first, a burning conviction, religious in its intensity, in the individual worth and potentiality of every man and woman; and second, a fervent patriotism, confined however to love of his native land, and the desire to make her people . . . not bystanders on the streets of democracy, nor the empty and idle receptacles for all sorts of political propagandas . . . but worthy and active participants in her life and growth.

It is startling to contrast the achievements of the Danish folk schools with the facilities which existed in the early days of Grundtvig and his disciples. The brutal defeat of Denmark by the armies of Bismarck in 1864 and the seizure of Sleswig-Holstein had left the Danish people exhausted and dispirited. The folk schools rekindled the fires of true patriotism, and restored the national confidence of Denmark in her history and her destiny. Economic disaster faced the Danish farmer as the great wheat fields of America drove Danish grain from the English markets. It was the spirit of national co-operation growing out of the folk school movement which enabled the ordinarily conservative Danish farmer quickly to convert his efforts to the production of eggs and bacon, and to found a co-operative economic system which remains a landmark in the co-operative movement. The national ideal of physical fitness which has consecrated thousands of young Danes to the principle of bodily grace and perfection was born in the folk school of Niels Bukh. During the recent occupation of the country by the Nazis, it was the folk school movement more than any other single factor which was credited by the quislings and Nazi occupation commanders as being the source and centre of an indestructible anti-German sentiment. A remarkable school near Elsinore has even anticipated the objectives of modern idealists in seeking a co-operative world order. Twice a year, in winter and summer sessions, it welcomes students from all countries to a residential programme built upon the conviction that those who work, play, study, sing and live together must learn the spirit of racial co-operation and understand the essential humanity of our fellow-men.

Yet all this was begun with the plainest of equipment and the simplest of ideas.

A remodelled cottage or farmhouse, an old barn, a dilapidated manor, and a staff of two or three teachers who performed the daily chores in an atmosphere of Spartan simplicity, were the centres about which grew the Danish folk school movement. The teachers might or might not be university men. To Grundtvig and his great associates the important thing was that a man knew his subject thoroughly, and that he could present it in a lively and interesting manner. An active intelligent Dane in his sixties who had travelled widely and knew thoroughly the natural life of Denmark might act as instructor in nature study, though himself a layman in teaching who perhaps had never gone beyond elementary school. The courses were built on discussion . . . discussion that lasted eagerly into the dormitory at night until one after another fell asleep. The early courses were of a cultural rather than a purely vocational nature, though today model farms and shops surround many of the folk schools; and then as now there were no examinations. The farming folk who attended were to be stirred up to a new faith and knowledge of their country, to discover in themselves new interests and capacities, and to use these for the benefit of their communities and themselves.

As the folk movement developed it reached out more and more to men and women of all ages and occupations, into the field of what we call nowadays "adult education". Many thousands of townsfolk and farmers attend short eight-day residential courses providing current events, singing, handicrafts, folk dancing, dramatics, games, trips, public speaking, and a wide choice of other subjects at the eighty folk high schools. During the year community school nights are held weekly at the schools for townspeople who wish to learn crafts, study better methods of farming or business practice, join discussion groups, and engage in folk dancing and recreational activities.

It is this last phase of activity, the week-night community school, which has reached the schools of Canada, and which is making certain of them the "lighted schoolhouses" which many more could and should be. Six years ago under the field direction of Mr. Max Sim and with the aid of Carnegie funds, a remarkable community centre

Specially contributed to The Watchman

Brownsburg — The Federal Government decided that Remembrance Day this year would commemorate the joint sacrifice of two wars. It is just and appropriate that this should be so. The aim of both wars was the same, there should be no difference in sacrifices. Both wars were fought to defend Christianity from a pagan concept of life. The lives that were lost in this last struggle to save our civilization were the lives that their fathers fought to save in the previous war. It was but a continuation of the same effort. The sacrifice of our fathers who fought to make possible the way of life we enjoyed during the interim, should not be blacked-out by the renewal of the struggle which we were called upon to undergo in the the present conflict. . . . . The torch was handed down from bleeding sire to son.

It was also appropriate that the commemoration should happen on Sunday. The number attending the Cenotaph ceremonies at Brownsburg was larger than in other years. A very impressive service was conducted and many beautiful wreaths were laid by the various organizations at the foot of the Cenotaph. The crowd lining the streets stood bare-headed in reverent silence during the two-minute period to the "Last Post".

We need to be mindful of our debt to those departed ones in our hour of victory.

A Near Thing

During the course of operations in mixing cement to build the sidewalks, a workman employed on the job had his clothes caught in the gears of the mixer. As he was being slowly dragged into the meshed gears he made frantic efforts to tear himself free. In the struggle he ripped the coat off his back, and rent his overalls to shreds. His cries attracted a fellow workman, who reached the moving machine just as it coughed into silence.

Veterans' Night.

It was Veterans' Night in Canada at the Citizens' Forum discussions last week, and in Brownsburg a large number of veterans and returned men attended to hear the discussion. The Lighted School group procured the services of a Counsellor from the Department of Veterans' Affairs for the evening, and an enlightening and authoritative review of the Rehabilitation scheme was presented. During question period many veterans availed themselves of the opportunity to ask information relative to personal problems. The discussion group were well pleased with the general merits of the program and displayed a keen interest in the benefits offered to veterans.

Mr. J. A. Lalonde, an official of the Department of Veterans Affairs, was in attendance.

Oddly enough, we will never win the human race unless we stop trying to get ahead of each other.

It is not a question of the "haves" and "have nots", but of what we do with what we have.

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Do you know Quebec? For example, do you know that Quebec has a cuisine all her own? Though reminiscent of its French origin, it has acquired through the years, a distinctive savor that turns gourmets into gourmands! To illustrate, let's sharpen our appetites by considering just a few of the many delectable dishes that are helping to make this Province world famous for food: Soupe aux Pois à la Canadienne, Ragoût de Pattes (pig knuckles), Fèves au Lard (pork and beans) cooked in burning ashes or sand, Morue-Homard (Gaspé codfish and lobster), Tourtière (meat pie), Pré-Salé (salt-marsh lamb), Saumon (Salmon from La Cote Nord'), Tarte à la Ferlouche (made with molasses and raisins) and Fromage d'Oka (made by the Trappist fathers).

It was inevitable that food should become an important factor in Quebec life, because our hard working forefathers learned soon that they couldn't hew timber, till the land, hunt and fish on an empty stomach. But only a race who appreciated the finer things, could have created such art in its preparation and serving. That Quebec folks maintain the highest standard of living is evident, not only in the matter of satisfying the palate, but also in the appointments and comforts of their homes, in the convenience and attractiveness of their cities, and in the prompt adoption of all advancements having to do with the most good for the most people.

Thus Quebec has come far in the 300 odd years of her history. Rich natural resources are being wisely exploited, industry has grown and prospered. The full significance of this "coming of age" is indicated by her tremendous contribution to Canada's war effort—by her prominent place in the Canadian picture. For now, the dawn of a new era is near. Quebec looks forward to even greater triumphs as she prepares to share, with her sister provinces, the glorious future that awaits the Land of the Maple Leaf.

QUEBEC PRODUCES FOR WAR

To Quebec's already glorious history has been added her wonderful contribution to Canada's war effort. Pulp, paper, native ores and manufactured metals, clothing, chemicals, textiles, ships, foods, petroleum, electrical supplies, to mention only a few products of her mines, mills and factories: $2,703,357,600.00 subscribed by her people in eight Victory Loans: thousands of men in the navy, army and air force who have distinguished themselves on global battlefronts. Thus have her sons and daughters recorded Quebec's part on Canada's wartime honor roll.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Presbyterian Y.P.S.

The Presbyterian Young People's Society met last evening — the devotional service being conducted by President Cecil McFaul, with Evelyn McFaul also participating in the worship.

Final arrangements were drawn up for the supper, being held this evening; interest shown in this project would appear to be high, and with the prospect of a fine evening, the attendance should be very good. The committee reports many generous offers of assistance and contributions of supplies; these have been gratefully received, and indications would point to a successful venture.

Next week the Society will have as guest speaker the Rev. C. R. Lang, Anglican rector; members are asked to make every effort to attend.

Challenging Topic by Missions Convenor At Lachute Y.P.U.

The regular meeting of the Y.P.U. of Lachute United Church was held Wednesday in the church hall, with Jack Gorman presiding and Vivian Rick recording the proceedings. A scripture lesson from St. John was read by Allan Hammond, and Jean Tomalty offered the prayer.

The program was under direction of Edith Clark, missions convenor, and her address was entitled "Christianity or Destruction", which embodied a timely message and challenge to the young people of today. Many instances were given to show how mankind had progressed scientifically but lagged behind morally; how implements of war were developed by inventors who thought they were using their talents to prevent all war, and instead greater destruction than ever was heaped upon humanity.

The convenor spoke of the potential of utter destruction in the creation of the atomic bomb; and the possible annihilation of civilization if some counter-action is not brought into being. The only alternative, the speaker believed, was the development of the Christian religion, with its high precepts . . . and a challenge was given the youth of today to meet this alternative.

A very fitting current event was read by Douglas Gordon, "Post-War Religious Trends" from the "Review of World Affairs", which dealt with the revival of the spirit of Christ.

The meeting next week will be held on Monday, with Elva Ness, Fellowship convenor, in charge.

GERMAN WAXINGS SOLD IN LONDON

Refugees Brought Pre-War Records of British and American Artists

London, Eng. (CP)—Gramophone records of British and American artists manufactured in Germany now are on sale in second-hand stores in London's "Tin Pan Alley," Charing Cross Road. They are believed to have been brought to London by refugees fleeing to England from Germany.

The records have German titles on the labels appearing over the names of such artists as Bing Crosby, Gracie Fields, Jack Hylton Paul Whiteman and George Formby.

"There was a big sale in Germany for records by British and American star performers before the war," one storekeeper said. "Master recordings were sent to Germany so that copies could be manufactured by German labor".

The public life of any nation depends upon the private lives of those who run it.

WHAT LINCOLN SAID IN 1865 :

The following excerpt from Abraham Lincoln's second inaugural address is just as timely today : "Let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan —to all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves, and with all nations."

W.I. Demonstrator On Meatless Dishes

The Argenteuil County Women's Institutes sponsored a demonstration on Meatless Dishes by Miss Evelyn Walker, provincial W.I. demonstrator, in Lachute High School last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Walker, who was introduced by Mrs. G. Smith, county convenor of Home Economics, demonstrated Cheese Vegetable Rarebit, Cheese Bean Roast and Spanish Rice, and pointed out the nutritional value of these foods. Although we generally associate protein with meat, the ingredients in such dishes provide the necessary amount, she stated — and with meat not always available we can keep our families well fed and also add variety to our menus.

About 40 members enjoyed this demonstration. The speaker was thanked by Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh in a few well chosen words.

Arundel Couple Married Here

Champagne - Hinves

The marriage of Miss Elsie Hinves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinves, of Arundel, to Mr. Joseph Champagne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Champagne, also of Arundel, took place recently in Lachute United Church, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiating.

Mr. Angus McFaul gave his cousin in marriage and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. Leslie Harding, as matron of honor. Mr. Leslie Harding, brother-in-law of the bride, acted as best man.

The bride wore a floor-length dress of white satin, with shoulder-length veil, and carried a bouquet of red roses. The matron of honor wore a floor-length dress of pink sheer and a matching veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Hinves, the bride's mother, wore a plum crepe dress with navy accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Champagne, the groom's mother, wore a plum sheer dress with brown accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

A reception was held in Staniforth's Hall, Arundel . . . The bridal couple are residing in that community.

Three-Act Comedy For Church Fund

A rare brand of amusement is promised in the farce to be presented Friday evening by the St. Simeon's dramatic group, at Lachute Auditorium. The play, "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick", is described as "a clean rural comedy, in three acts"; the plot portrays a crooked speculator with designs to ensnare good rural folk whose wits, however, are not as verdant as the village green. The author is Lieut. Beale Cormack.

Listed on the cast are: Messrs. H. Maslin, H. Smith, W. Shearsmith, Mrs. I. Wade, Mrs. G. Cruise, Miss J. Stansfield and Miss L. Millar.

The presentation is an effort in support of the St. Simeon's building fund. (See "Coming Events").

Because as a class they are unorganized, the farmers are unaware of their potential power on national policy, and are the only basic industry that cannot strike to obtain better conditions, remarks the Gananoque, Ont., Reporter, adding: "It does seem unfair but until the farmers rise up in righteous wrath there isn't much that can or will be done to better their lot. If the farmers get a real political Moses to lead them out of their enforced wilderness then labor unions the world over might get a terrific shock — which undoubtedly would do them a powerful lot of good."

Vancouver (CP) Grain shipments out of the port of Vancouver in October reached the highest total for any month in 13 years. The grain went to every part of the world and indications are that the shipments will reach even higher levels.

"...SO NOW WE'LL HAVE A BANKER IN THE FAMILY!"

"Well, Bob has finally decided! When he's finished school he wants to go to work in a bank. And I'm glad—for a lot of reasons..."

He'll get a thorough training, and can even receive university instruction in banking and economics while he is working. Banking isn't learned in a day, but he'll get lots of help—and every opportunity to move up as he proves himself. The road to the top is wide open, and offers:

SECURITY AND PEACE OF MIND

Social security is a phrase prominent in public discussions these days, but the practice of it is not new. Consider the banks and their employees:

1. Pension Funds, to which, with their employees, banks themselves contribute substantially, make it possible for employees to devote all their business lives to banking, sure of an income for life when they reach the age of retirement.
2. Annual vacations with pay.
3. Ordinary sick leave with pay, and special sick leave arrangements in special cases.
4. Group life insurance contributed to jointly by banks and employees.
5. Good working conditions.
6. Unlimited opportunity for enterprise and advancement.

Banks and their staffs, in co-operation with each other, have made it possible for the latter to enjoy a well-founded sense of permanency and security.

New Automobiles To Have Old Prices

Prices for new cars will be held at 1941 levels, E. R. Birchard, Wartime Prices and Trade Board administrator of motor vehicles, stated in announcing a new procedure for establishing maximum retail prices for motor vehicles. Under an order which becomes effective on November 19, manufacturers and importers must secure a maximum price from the administration and notify the dealer before the vehicles are sold. The price will include all charges, transportation, and profits or commission.

"The order will not mean increased prices for new passenger cars" the administration announced.

WHEN THE BOYS COME BACK TO THE FARMS

They'll probably want telephone service, if they didn't have it before. War has taught a lot of those in uniform — and their parents, too — to rely on telephones more than ever.

Our plans are ready to make rural telephone service in Ontario and Quebec available to a greater number of users in the post-war period.

Much of the preliminary work already had been done when war interrupted the program extending rural telephone service. We intend to resume it as soon as the necessary materials and manpower are available.

movement was begun in the Eastern Townships of Quebec. A leaders' training school was opened at Lennoxville, attended by people from a forty-mile radius. They were taught the elements of public speaking, amateur acting, handicrafts, community music, and how to plan and lead a programme of their own. With these folk as initial leaders and with the co-operation of community-minded school boards and principals, week-night community schools commenced operation, increasing from two in 1940 to thirteen in 1943. Today many hundreds of people in scattered high school centres throughout southern Quebec attend week-night programmes consisting of sound films, community singing, voluntary study sections featuring handicrafts, current events, public speaking, agriculture, mechanical work, cooking, and French, and usually with a key speaker of national stature dealing with a subject of national concern. Community libraries, supplemented by books from the McGill Travelling Library, have been established by these centres and provide a reading nucleus for the members of the community centre. Macdonald College, with its Vice-Principal, Dr. W. H. Brittain, has been the jumping-off point for this remarkable folk programme, which is further buttressed by the Canadian Farm Forum Groups and a rural film circuit which brings the latest releases of the National Film Board to several hundred communities.

Ormstown High School, which began its own community centre programme in 1939, is another good example of the "lighted schoolhouse" in action. The Valleyfield Forums, begun by Gault Institute in 1941, are an interesting example of the attempt one community-minded school is making to provide adult education leadership, not in a farming centre but in a small industrial city. There the community centre is built about a series of general forums on questions of current interest, with question periods from the audience, introduced by a sound film period, and supplemented by community singing and a community library. Sectional forums provide music appreciation and parent-teacher discussion periods.

More might be done: we would all wish residential folk school courses, but they will come in time. Nor is government assistance to be ruled out, since Denmark has shown that the state will provide money yet leave the direction of the community programmes untouched.

It is important to note that, although anticipated in Denmark, the development of community schools in Canada is a home-grown movement. Its leaders in each community, and in many cases its teachers, are drawn from the folk in the surrounding community, many of whom never anticipated that they would be sharing their talents and interests with others. It is a Canadian movement, as Canadian as the great maples that sway on the winter roads down which our folk go to their community schools, or as the clear cold air out into which they come singing at the end of an evening. It is an experiment in learning about and loving Canada more and making oneself more able to serve her; and to be a more informed, richer and more wholesome personality.

To the familiar Danish complaint that community schools flourish better in the smaller centres than in the great cities, it is quite possible that the fast growing Home and School movement has the answer. Community activity springs readily from the aims and nature of a Home and School Association, and last year one or two outstanding associations led the way by establishing parent libraries, holding square dances, and study classes. In one west-end area it was surprising how swiftly these activities generated a sense of community fellowship.

Indeed, at a time when the home under modern conditions seems to be disintegrating, and when youth movements and centres are drawing the children away from their parents with systematic efficiency, it may well be that the "lighted schoolhouse" with its programmes of interest both to parents and children, and open to all regardless of creed, may provide the answer. Says the great Danish authority, Holger Betrup:

> "The folk schools of the people really have in view a great social object, namely to uphold the cause of home life and to teach people that the whole social fabric must go to pieces in the world struggle for existence if it is not founded upon home life . . . if it does not preserve the influence of home and family life so that the life of nations and humanity becomes permeated by a spirit of fellowship."

The school that our nation needs, the school from which our only chance of a truly democratic process of control springs, is the community-minded school . . . the "lighted schoolhouse" which exists to house and serve the cultural and creative spirit of its community. My readers would perform a real service to Canadian education and Canadian life if they would use all the influence at their command with friends and organizations to promote the cause and activity of the "lighted schoolhouse".

Ever See an EXPORT Dollar?

No, export dollars are not a different shape or colour, but they are especially important to Canada. Next time you, a pulp and paper employee, open your pay envelope, think of this: Foreign countries, in all parts of the world, paid 85 cents out of every dollar you receive.

In other words, 85 tons of pulp or paper out of every 100 you made ARE SOLD ABROAD! Because Canada has great manufacturing capacity and only a small population, we make more goods than we can use. These goods must be exported or else we must stop making them and that means fewer jobs.

In peacetime world trade, pulp and paper are Canada's main export commodities, except gold: greater than wheat; far greater than nickel. Pulp and paper production is a mainstay of Canadian employment.

BRITISH ADVANCE IN BRAIN SURGERY

London — A new technique likely to revolutionize the treatment of brain diseases is being practised by surgeons of Saint Mary's Hospital, London. The patient is injected with a solution of malachite green dye. The effect is to turn the diseased tissue in the brain green. The normal tissue remains white. So well defined is the area of unhealthy tissue that the surgeon is able to remove it without damaging the brain as a whole. The London Sunday Express reports that the consulting surgeon to the hospital has so far carried out twelve operations with the aid of this dye. He is convinced that it will reduce the death rate in brain operations not only by ensuring the complete removal of the diseased part but by preventing a recurrence of the trouble. The dye method opens up a new approach to the investigation of epilepsy, the cause of which is still unknown.

From the Woodstock (N.B.) Sentinel Press: "Whatever else the war has brought to pass there can be no doubt of the increased fields which have opened to women generally. Women have always shouldered their responsibilities in wartime, but never have they assumed responsibilities so great as in recent years."

Dental Health

Answers to Frequent Questions

Child's Teeth

Q: Why should decayed teeth be filled, specially a child's first teeth, which will be shed later?

A: From a financial standpoint alone, it is much cheaper to have small dental cavaties filled than large cavaties. Decay, once it attacks a tooth, becomes progressively worse unless it is corrected by a dentist. This applies to the first teeth just as much as to the second teeth. In fact, the first teeth are more liable to decay that the second teeth. Furthermore, decayed teeth in small children's mouths often affect the general health by interfering mith mastication and consequently with nutrition. From early childhood, frequent dental examinations should be made in order to find small cavities and care for them promptly. It is also advisable to have X-ray pictures made of the teeth at intervals to determine whether there are hidden cavities or any other abnormalities that are not easily detected. It is not an exaggeration to say that the cost of a simple amalgam or silver filling in a child's tooth is one twentieth of that of replacing a lost tooth.

Growth of Teeth

Q: Why do the molar teeth tometimes come much too early, the second molars coming before the fourteenth year of life and the last molars (wisdom teeth) coming shortly after the sixteenth birthday? Has this anything to do with diet é

A: Usually the third molars or wisdom teeth erupt between the 17th and 21st year. Occasionally, for no known reason, these teeth may erupt slightly prior to the 17th year and sometimes after the 21st year. Occasionally, the third with diet?
molars are impacted and do not erupt at all. We doubt that diet has much to do with this condition.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

ABSENCE MAKES THE HEART!

Have you noticed in the engagement and marriage notices in the papers how seldom both bride and groom came from the same place? This is probably natural considering the way the young people of the armed forces, both men and women have been stationed all over Canada. Then besides the Canadians who are marrying other Canadians there are the thousands who have married in England or Scotland. All this is a good thing. Canadians are too apt to be provincial and this will help the younger generation, at least, to know something about other parts of the country. Few of us know enough of our own land and it would be a fine thing if special arrangements might be made to encourage Canadians to travel at home.

STUFFED ANIMALS

Have you seen the stuffed animals made from table oilcloth instead of the usual cotton material? They are very attractive and have the added virtue of being easy to keep clean, no small thing with the usage the toddler gives them. A horse made from white oilcloth was promptly called Silver, and a very perky looking horse it is. To make them, a small seam is made, the stitching being done on the sewing machine. The edges are not turned in, but are overcast in colored wool to match the mane and tail, which are made from wool. The wool is fine and the stitches small, and it was overcast twice using a different colored wool for each. The elephant had ears and trunk of contrasting color. This particular one had fine striped ears and trunk — like nothing ever seen in Nature but very attractive. It may have been because they were carefully made, but these particular animals seemed to stand better than the usual stuffed animals.

KIPPERS

A good subtsantial breakfast is the kind to give the family. Bacon being on the missing list makes that a bit harder to accomplish. Do you ever have kippers for breakfast? People across the sea are very familiar with them, but somehow here in Canada we seldom see them. I find that even in the Maritimes few people use them. There seems to be an up-surge in popularity and there are more fish packing houses putting out their particular brand of kippers, than I have ever seen. Most of them provide recipes for cooking on the package, and most of them include onions in the recipe. That doesn't do for breakfast. You may cook them in the frying pan on top of the stove or in the oven. I like to broil them. Be careful not to overcook as they really need to be not much more than heated through. it is a bit difficult to get the taste and smell of the kippers off the pan, although it can be done by adding some vinegar to water and letting it boil. I keep an old baking pan just for kippers so don't have to worry about it. Kippers need not be kept only for breakfast use as they make a good hearty supper or luncheon dish.

DAFFODIL CAKE

There are occasions such as a home-coing, a birthday, an anniversary, or a celebration of some sort, when we want to have something special. This cake might do very well for such a time, as it is a large cake and attractive looking as well as very good to eat, and although it would be too extravagant of sugar for ordinary use at present, some of you might be able to save up the necessary sugar. Fortunately, it requires no butter.

Whites of 9 eggs, 1¼ cups sugar, ½ cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon of cream of tartar, 6 egg yolks, ⅔ cup sifted flour, ½ teaspoon lemon juice.

Beat whites of eggs until frothy, add cream of tartar and beat until stiff, fold in the sugar and vanilla. Divide mixture into two parts. Beat the egg yolks until thick, fold in the lemon juice and half the white mixture, then fold in ⅔ cup of flour sifted before measuring. Add ½ cup of flour sifted before measuring to the white mixture. Put in pan by alternate spoonfuls. I use an angel cake pan which has never been greased for this cake, but if this is not available any large cake pan can be used. If the pan has been used at any time, then butter it lightly for this cake. Bake at 325 degrees for about ¾ of an honr. If inverted and let cool it should drop out of the pan.

GILDING THE LILY

This cake is good enough without icing. You may like to dust it with icing sugar and if it is sifted over a paper doily the result is more festive. If you feel you really must have an icing, an Orange Icing is the one I have always used when sugar was plentiful, and it takes very little sugar. Grate a little orange rind, being very careful not to grate any of the white. add the juice of a medium-sized orange, and thicken with icing sugar. Do not make it too thick or it will crack when cut. just enough sugar so that it will not run.

MILK FOOD VALUES NOT DESTROYED BY PASTEURIZATION

No Basis of Fact for Arguments Heard Against Compulsory Pasteurization

No municipality would seriously consider drinking contaminated water merely because of doubt by certain individuals as to whether the addition of chlorine affected its value, or because pure water was more expensive than impure water. Yet year after year the health of thousands of Canadians is imperilled on claims concerning unpasteurized milk which are just as admissable.

It is a fact that milk — the finest of all foods — is a most favorable medium for the spread of disease and that numerous epidemics have been caused by use of unpasteurized milk, but the proposal to place compulsory pasteurization on a Dominion-wide basis is still meeting with opposition.

The Health League of Canada's drive for compulsory pasteurization in the eight provinces outside Ontario, only one of the nine which has such a law, is still bringing forth the old arguments which have no basis of fact.

The opposition centres around claims that many present-day oldsters never heard of pasteurized milk in their youth, yet they reached their present ages without much trouble. They fail to mention, however, the number of persons who today have deformities, many of them crippling, suffered as a result of contracting milk-borne diseases. They also fail to mention the number of their own generation who died from those same infections. They may have survived themselves, but there are survivors after all epidemics.

Then there is the argument that some food values are destroyed by pasteurization. Medical authorities state that none of the essential ingredients in milk is adversely affected by the heating process.

There is no evidence that pasteurization destroys any food element of which raw milk has an adequate supply — remembering that even milk is not a complete food. Pasteurized or unpasteurized, it is deficient in Vitamin C: that is why infants are fed orange juice or tomato juice.

Pasteurization affects neither the limited Vitamin D content, which likewise requires supplementing, nor the content of Vitamins A and B. The mineral salts are not affected.

The protein is rendered more digestible by heat, and the fat globules are more finely divided. Studies by the United States Public Health Service on large numbers of children show that those who are fed on pasteurized milk thrive just as well as do those to whom raw milk is given.

24-HOUR JOB IS PUBLIC NURSING IN ALBERTA PROVINCE

Public Health Nurses Deliver 300-400 Babies Yearly, Need Pioneering Spirit

Edmonton (CP) — Between 300 and 400 babies are delivered each year in Alberta, by provincial public health nurses stationed in isolated sections of the province. Their task is described by Miss Helen McArthur, their superintendent, as "a 24-hour-a-day job demanding a touch of the pioneering spirit and a liking for outdoor life".

Of the 50 nurses, 35 are located in remote areas of the Peace River country. In districts cut off from doctors and hospitals by as much as 75 miles, they represent the sole medical aid for lumbermen, farmers and their families of these communities.

The province pays the nurse's salary and provides her with office equipment, a small dispensary and drugs, which, unlike other nurses, she is allowed to handle. The community provides a house, fuel and water.

Nurses have from 200 to 300 office calls a month, during which they give free consultation service for medical and surgical cases and public health advice. The only charge is for dressings and medicines. The nurses are not called upon to perform operations or to take over the duties of a doctor but are under orders to give the best possible emergency treatment they can in serious cases and then to move the patient to the nearest hospital as quicky as possible. Rigorous weather conditions sometimes thwart this plan, so that they frequently deliver babies.

Always On Call

Home visits average between 40 and 50 a month, for each nurse calls regularly on the blind in her district, reports cases of neglected children or needy families and investigates T.B. cases. Each nurse is on call day or night, winter and summer, in a country where travel is rarely easy. The customary winter conveyance is a horse-drawn "caboose," closely resembling an elaborate doghouse on runners.

Each spring the nurses, most of whom are graduates of the University of Alberta, travel to Edmonton for their annual refresher course. But apart from this trip and the occasional day "outside" every three or four months, they spend all their time at their stations. Once in the service they rarely leave it. One nurse, Miss Amy Conroy, this year celebrated 25 years in public health work—16 of them in the community of Pendryl, west of Wetaskiwin.

The environment in which the nurses work hasn't the glamor Hollywood associates with nurses but the last three nurses sent to the Worsley district have married and settled there. One advantage of this, Miss McArthur is quick to point out, is that "pretty soon I won't have to worry about keeping a nurse there. Half the housewives in the district will be former public health nurses!"

STEAMED PUDDINGS AGAIN

London (CP) — Limited supplies of puddings for steaming will soon be available for housewives, after a war-long absence from the stores.

Another reason the alphabet is such a handy thing is that without it we can't get one vitamin from another.

"Color from Coal" Intriguing Topic

produce or the fashion designer dream up; with a fastness ranging from colors for evening gowns, which will almost fade on exposure to moonlight, to the very fastest used in dyeing military cloths.

That coal, the very negation of color, should give rise to the thousands of beautiful dyes and pigments now at our disposal, would appear a modern marvel to the uninitiated. Coal is not transformed directly into color by the enterprising chemist, but is distilled into its component parts, some of which are called "intermediates" by the technical man. These are then treated in various ways to form dyes.

To the chemist, there are many types of coal tar dyes, but to the dyer, who is after all the person mainly concerned, they fall into two large groups, those which are soluble in water and those which are not. The first class has by far the largest number of members and are most extensively used. The two groups overlap slightly.

Water soluble dyes are divided into further groups as follows:

(1) Wool dyes which are applied to fibres of animal origin, (i.e.) wool, silk and feathers. These dyes are also called acid dyes because they are usually applied by boiling the material in a water solution of the dye with sulphuric or acetic acid, to force the color into the fibre. The uses to which wool dyes are put are evident to even the most casual observer, but some of the less obvious uses are for felt hats, and bunting for flags.

(2) Cotton dyes suitable for coloring cellulosic materials such as cotton, certain types of rayon, wood, etc. Certain of the cotton dyes can be used from a water bath simply with the aid of common salt to make them go on the material, but with other types, a more complicated process is required.

(3) Special dyes for celanese. When celanese rayon was first invented, one of the main obstacles to its use as a textile fabric was the very small number of dyes which could be used to color it. However, research has resulted in a good range of colors of satisfactory brightness especially adapted for use on celanese. One peculiarity of such dyes is that they will not dye cotton but will often give good shades on wool, while nylon is almost exclusively dyed with selected celaniese dyes.

It is a fortunate circumstance for the dyer that he has at hand so many different shades and types of dye, for when the designer presents him with a new color to be matched, he must take into account two things. First, he must know the kind of material to be dyed, whether it be cotton, wool, silk, nylon or rayon, for then he will be able to select the correct class of dye for his use. But just as important, the dyer must know what the ultimate use of the cloth will be, for by this he can judge the harships to which his dyes will be subjected and will make his choice accordingly.

The four great enemies that a dye may encounter during its useful life are light, water, washing and perspiration.

Dyers from the beginning have been faced with the general truth that the brighter the dye the less fast it is, particularly to light. But through scientific research, great strides have been taken to combine brilliance of shade and resistance to fading.

The importance of "Color from Coal" in our everyday life cannot be overestimated, for it enters into every one of the factors which add to our comfort, safety and convenience. In fact, it could almost be said that "by dyeing do we keep alive".

Some of the unusual problems which have been solved by the dyemaker are the coloring of gasoline; dyeing of airmen's helmets and scarves with a brilliant yellow so that when they fall into the sea they can easily be seen; the preparation of dies suitable for use in colored signal smokes for the Armed Forces; and the development of colors which will, like foliage of trees, reflex infra red rays for camouflage purposes. During the invasion of France, one of the gasoline pipelines across the English Channel was fractured by a storm, but the ends were easily located by pumping a brilliantly colored dye through the broken pipes and observing the colored area in the water.

The speaker was introduced by Secretary Wes Freeland and thanked by Rotarian Hub Tomalty.

Visitors included LAC. Rodney Izzard, Mr. Charles Stephens, Mr. Geo. Clark, Sgt. Lyle Kirby, Pte. Victor Raymond and Cpl. Sidney Seary, of Brownsburg; Bert Rigg, of Lachute; and Sgt. C. Thompson, of Ottawa.

"Should Education Fit People for Jobs?" Theme before Local Group

NATIONAL QUESTION UNDER DISCUSSION AT CITIZENS' FORUM IN BROWNSBURG

Specially Contributed — by M. V. Trayers

The Citizens' Forum set up this question last week so as to direct the thoughts of its members to the subject of education. There was a very large attendance at the Brownsburg Forum and a very keen interest in education was manifest. The source material prepared by the Citizens' Forum says "that education should prepare people to meet the demands of the world in which they live. And that means two types of demands —those that life makes upon everyone, and those society has a right to make. The upheavals of the past two decades have changed or enlarged these demands. The young citizen of 1945 must make his way and take his place in a very different world from the one his grandfather faced. He must equip himself to earn his bread and butter under conditions of strenuous competition, in an increasingly specialized and technical economy. If society is to advance, he must learn to be a useful member of his community and an intelligent citizen of his country and the world. The school has a huge task. It must produce a man as well as a breadwinner."

Education is the apprenticeship of life, a human being is not, in any proper sense, a human being till he is educated. The aim of education should be to teach us rather how to think, than what to think — rather to improve our minds, so as to be able to think for ourselves, than to load the memory with the thoughts of other men. The highest function of the teacher consists not so much in imparting knowledge as in stimulating the pupil in its love and pursuit. Scratch the green rind of a sapling, or wantonly twist it in the soil and a scarred or crooked oak will tell of the act for centuries to come. So it is with the teachings of youth, which make impressions on the mind and heart that are to last forever.

Change in Area Covered by New Phone Directory

More than 11,300 copies of the new telephone directory for the Laurentian region are now being distributed, about 1,500 of them being assigned for subscribers in Lachute.

The Laurentian region has now so many telephones that it requires a directory all its own. This edition contains sections for exchange areas in the Laurentians only, and no longer includes communities in the lower Ottawa valley, such as Buckingham, Hawkesbury and Vankleek Hill. The change indicates the confidence of the telephone company in the continued development of this popular resort area.

Among the names with the most listings in the Lachute section, the Lemays lead with 13, followed by the McGibbons and Gordons with 12 each.

It is easy to keep up with the Joneses in Lachute. There are only three listed in the telephone directory.

According to J. J. Morrin, Bell Telephone manager for this area, the new book contains nearly 4,000 listings new and changed since the last issue, including a number in the Lachute section.

"It is important to consult the new directory carefully before placing calls, and to bring desk lists and memo pads up to date," Mr. Morrin said. "Avoiding unnecessary calls to wrong numbers helps us to serve you better."

It is hoped that on receiving the new books, telephone users will contribute the old ones to the regular salvage collection, paper being still in great demand.

Describes Counsel Service to Airmen Leaving Forces

An interesting session of the Lions Club was held in the recreation hall of the Lachute High School on Tuesday evening, under presidency of Lion Leopold Carriere. A brief business meeting followed the usual dinner, during which, at the president's suggestion, it was agreed to extend an invitation to members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion and others who have served overseas, to be their guests on Tuesday, December 18, for a homecoming welcome. A committee comprising Lions G. McOuat, F. Legault, G. Muir, L. Rozon and W. M. Steeves were appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

The speaker of the evening was Flt. Lieut. Denis F. Mildon, whose war service is distinguished and covers a very wide range. He served as an Air Force pilot on the North Atlantic convoy routes; spent a year on reconnaissance duties during the Aleutian campaign; and on completion of a tour of operations overseas he became an instructor, and later, officer commanding the R.C.A.F. Personnel Counselling School, being responsible for the training of Personnel Officers to assist in the rehabilitation of discharged men and women.

The speaker was introduced by Lion W. M. Steeves . . . Flt. Lieut. Mildon mentioned that the R.C.A.F. was the first service to inaugurate a scheme of Personnel Counselling for post-war civilian occupations. By June of last year, 125 trained Personnel Counsellors put this program into operation in stations across Canada, and within a few months the service was extended to overseas stations as well.

"The young men and women in our services today are thinkers; second only to their task of winning this war has been their desire to plan intelligently a secure and useful future.

"Over 45,000 R.C.A.F. personnel were counselled during the first five months of this year in Canada and overseas. That bears out the point I made previously about servicemen being thinkers; they are not only interested in their future, but are making an honest effort, and a successful one, to put their plans into action.

"Although its purpose is not job placement, the Personnel Counselling program has been followed with keen interest by employers generally, for they too will benefit during the critical period of transition through the creation of this pool of skilled help from which they can draw. With 76% of the male population of the R.C.A.F. being under 31 years of age, this pool of skilled help becomes all the more attractive.

"The Personnel Counselling program to date has been a sincere and honest attempt on the part of the services to help its personnel in their return to civilian life. It is not an attempt to repay in full for for the sacrifices that these men have made for our country. . . .

"Should we not, as true Canadians, welcome back these veterans, not in any attitude of tolerance, but rather with a clear knowledge and understanding that in them we see the Canada of the future, a united, a strong, and a God-fearing country. The answer is YES!" concluded the speaker.

For his highly instructive address, from which the foregoing are brief extracts, Flt. Lieut. Milden was thanked on behalf of his listeners by Lion G. G. Mitchell.

Fire at Convent Near St. Andrews

At the Sisters of Providence convent, situated between St. Andrews East and Carillon, a minor blaze occurred before 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Dense smoke permeated the lower floor, and on sounding of the alarm, the nuns and inmates, numbering 83 young boys, left the building in an orderly manner carrying their clothing and effects. Some of the furniture was then carried out to safety.

Summoned from Lachute at around 8 o'clock, Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon and members of the local brigade rushed their equipment to the scene. The fire was discovered in the beams and flooring above the furnace room, but was wholly confined to the basement. Cutting through the floor of the dining room, the firemen applied a hose and soon extinguish-the flames.

EDUCATION WEEK SERVICE IS HELD

(By Our District Correspondent)

St. Andrews East—"Education," was the theme of a fine address by the Rev. Dr. MacMillan at the evening service in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday, November 18—in line with the general observance of Education Week. The Girl Guides paraded to church in uniform and took a special part in the service. Miss Lorraine McOuat read the New Testament lesson. The troop repeated the special Girl Guides' prayer in unison, and also sang a sacred song. The Boys' Brigade members were present, also a good adult attendance.

Rotarians Hear Reminiscences in Sales Travels

Brownsburg—On Thursday evening, November 15, at their regular dinner meeting at Carriere's Hotel, the Rotary Club were entertained by story-telling Dave Brash, of Lachute. Soon to leave on the Queen Elizabeth to take up again the work of his lifetime — selling — Dave told of a few of the amusing incidents which had happened in his travels as a salesman.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, and apprenticed to a firm of importers and shipbuilders, the speaker travelled through Highland Scotland on stage coach, where the trail was rough enough to require four horses but only wide enough for one. Selling under such conditions that, in order to save time the customer climbed on the coach, did business and disembarked while it was still in motion, indicated a precarious and somewhat colorful calling.

Dave claimed that his profession was the oldest in the world bar none — that it was both romantic and exciting.

At one time he was involved with a ship manned by a superstitious Mulatto "pressed" crew. He escorted this crew part way on its journey to Japan, where the ship was to be delivered. The speaker disembarked before it departed from its final British port, never to be heard of again (— we mean the ship). That was in 1897.

In 1907 Dave came to Canada. Here he has been representative for several British textile firms and at one time operated the largest custom tailoring house in Canada as "Brash the Tailor".

For a good part of the war, with three sons in the services, Dave did war work at "Dominion" Ammunition, Canadian Industries Limited, in a supervisory capacity on production, and latterly on personnel work where he made a host of friends and did considerable to boost good morale among war workers.

Besides being an excellent story-teller, it is known that Dave is proud of the fact that he was the only amateur member of the greatest British football club, the Glasgow Rangers. He played centre-forward when they won the Scottish Cup.

The speaker was introduced by George Zsombor and thanked by Romeo Charron, who also expressed the good wishes of the club for a happy and successful business voyage.

Cliff Armstrong, of Lachute, and Bob Roberts, of Brownsburg, were guests.

The Watchman is on sale at 5-cents a copy at the following stores:

Lachute: Beaton's Pharmacy, Lachute Medicine Store.

Lachute Mills: Harbour Drugstore.

Brownsb'g: J. S. Thompson's.

Child Critically Injured in Home

Seriously injured in a mishap which occurred yesterday in his home, Douglas McKenzie, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George McKenzie, Foundry Street, was taken by ambulance to the Neurological Institute, Montreal. . . . Unobserved by his mother, he was swinging on the wringer of a washing machine. The washer overbalanced, crushing the child's head as it fell The little boy, his face deeply gashed near the eye, was taken to the Providence Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. F. W. FitzGerald and Dr. Jules Lafleur. Suffering from concussion and a probable skull injury, he was later conveyed to the Neurological Institute for closer observation.

Dramatic Show By Church Group Well Received

A capacity audience at the Auditorium last Friday greeted the dramatic group performing on behalf of St. Simeon's Anglican Church. A three-act comedy, "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick", by Lieut. Beale McCormack, was presented in a setting as rustic as its title. The play ranked high in humor, and drew warm approval from the crowd.

Principal characters were—Mrs. I. Wade, as an Oklahoma widow; Miss Lulu Millar, as a tomboy with unbridled inquisitiveness and the candor of youth; Mrs. Grace Cruise, as a city girl unwise to rural ways; Miss Joan Stansfield, as a glamorous metropolite; Mr. H. Maslin, in the title role, and lacking nothing in its portrayal; Mr. W. Shearsmith, as a big-time speculator on a vacation-time job; and Mr. H. Smith, as a mysterious young man later revealing himself as a sleuth.

The plot generously unloads the laurels on the country-dwellers — this rural element, through the perspicacity of Neighbor Slick, outwitting the speculator on all sides. The final scene, in a Chicago cabaret, unfolds the denouement, and the romance concludes happily in this sophisticated setting.

The cast was coached by Mrs. G. A. Leggett, and without exception the actors did full justice to the characters they portrayed.

Miss Elsie Earle, pianist, entertained with popular music during the intermission.

The Rev. C. R. Lang expressed appreciation for the public support to this effort, which was in aid of the St. Simeon's building fund.

A period of dancing was enjoyed following the performance.

We're nonplussed

— not to say Annoyed! Two of our newer advertisers, when contacted by phone recently, were almost too busy to talk to us. One of them credited the rush to his Watchman ad. The other hadn't time to mention it, but his case was similar.

• • •

Granted, demands for goods and services are at a peak; but it's the wide-awake tradesman who lets people know HE's the one they're looking for. 'Cause some day, when supplies catch up and competition enters in, he'll be glad he kept his name before the public.

Another advertiser was good enough to let us know he had received enquiries from a reader of The Watchman in Smith Falls — quite a distance away.

300-Pound Bear Shot at Arundel

Montreal — Arthur Fowter, who returned home from overseas not long ago, had a unique experience near Arundel. . . . He and three pals, all returned men, went hunting birds — and returned with a 300-pound bear.

The four young men disturbed the bear as they walked through the bush. In addition to his bird gun, Powter had along with him a 30-30 pump action rifle which had been used by a member of his family in the Home Guard back in 1914. Powter fired six shots at the bear. He hit it five times. The boys dragged the carcass for eight hours to get it back to the camp. It measured five feet six inches and was about three years old.

It's not enough to have an answer to the problems of today. We've got to BE the answer.

Visitors to Quebec More Numerous

Statistics compiled at the customs ports of Lacolle, Cantic and St. André for the last two weeks in October reveal that, despite a normal dropping off in the number of cars entering Canada at this time of the year, tourist activities are still on the upgrade in this province. The figures reveal that for the last half of October the number of cars entering Canada through the above-mentioned customs ports was nearly double the number registered for a corresponding period last year.

Automobiles entering the province for forty-eight hours or more, during the October 16-October 31 period were as follows:

	1945	1944
Lacolle	398	225
Cantic	1140	594
St. André	496	252
	2034	1071

UNVEIL HONOR ROLL, ST. ANDREWS SCHOOL

(By Our District Correspondent)

St. Andrews East — On Thursday evening, November 15, a parent-teacher assembly at the Protestant Consolidated School witnessed the unveiling of an Honor Roll of former pupils who served in the armed services. Mrs. Arthur Gates, whose three sons served overseas, had the honor of pulling the cord. The Rev. Dr. Wm. MacMillan dedicated the roll, which contains 40 names.

It's the division between parents that adds up to problem children.

1. The number of men employed at this camp has varied. Originally there were one officer and sixty seven other ranks but as of October 27, 1945, there were one officer and 47 other ranks.
2. Since July 10, 1945.
3. Of the present strength of the camp one officer and two other ranks have been overseas.
4. The work of the army personnel has included the transportat on and construction of all buildings, roads, waterworks and sewerage at this camp as well as the cutting of wood. They have cut approximately 400 cords of wood.
5. None. It will be handed over to the Department of Munitions and Supply.
6. Regulation army pay and allowances.
7. Department of National Defence.
8. The Department of Munitions and Supply has two financial arrangements with A. D. McGibbon and Sons Ltd.:

(a) to pay the usual stumpage which is $1.50 per cord of 128 cubic feet for wood cut on patented lands and $1.20 per cord of 128 cubic feet for wood cut on licensed lands. Included in this without additional cost to the government is the use of some old camp buildings on the property;

(b) to pay a rental of $75.00 per month for 3¼ months (June 15 to September 30, 1945) for the use of a shed in the town of Lachute. This shed was used for the temporary storing of supplies and equipment being transferred from the former Canadian Forestry Corps wood fuel camps to this new camp.

Wm. S. Johnstone, Builder of Bridge Had Varied Career

Well known to the people of Avoca, Bell Falls and the Rouge River communities, William S. Johnstone died November 9 at Hawkesbury, at the advanced age of 87.

Born at Hawkesbury, educated in that town and at McGill University, he travelled widely in Canada, the United States and Europe. He built the Bremner Bridge spanning the Rouge River, which he operated for many years as a toll bridge, and in this connection was widely known throughout the district. He was actively interested in plans for a water conservation scheme which would have affected wide areas surrounding the Rouge Valley and its source — having made representations to Quebec legislators to advance this plan.

Mr. Johnstone lived a colorful life. He was the son of John Johnstone and Jane Bremner. In 1897, leaving a clerical job in Montreal on account of ill health, he proceeded to the Klondyke, via Edmonton and the trail of the North West Mounted Police, mining and assaying in the Dawson and Skagway area. His recollections included standing on the summit of White Pass, January 1, 1900 — the White Pass & Yukon Railroad then being under construction — and, by way of contrast, being on the same date one year later at the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, California.

Returning to Montreal he travelled in chemical and surgical lines, representing his firm in Germany for some time. . . . Construction again lured him into the mining districts, and subsequently he worked on the construction of storage dams around Kirkland Lake. . . In 1915 he joined the Hawkesbury Electric Co., and while with this concern he built the Bremner Bridge, at his own expense. This bridge is now government owned.

A Presbyterian by faith, he was a keen student of the Bible. Among his friends and acquaintances he was known as a man of kindly Christian character.

The late Mr. Johnstone is survived by his wife, residing at Hawkesbury, also a brother and three sisters.

The funeral, held at Hawkesbury, was conducted by the Rev. Crawford Scott, assisted by the Rev. H. A. Carson, of Rock Island, Que.

Farm Forum Meeting At North River

On Monday evening the North River Farm Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bradford, with a large attendance.

The radio broadcast included an interesting talk by Mr. R. Alex Sim, of Macdonald College. The topic for this occasion was "What do Forums think about Farming?"

An enjoyable evening was spent, cards being played and refreshments served.

Gen. McNaughton Stops for Gas

On duty with a customary smile at the Duncan and Brown Service Station, Jim Duncan blinked momentarily when, on Friday last, his eyes lit upon a visitor who approached in a strange car. The customer was General A. G. L. McNaughton, who was en route from the Seigniory Club, Montebello, to Ste. Adele. Duncan — one of six brothers who saw service overseas — respectfully engaged the General in conversation, and was impressed with his friendly attitude.

Grateful for Gifts Of Blankets from This Community

A letter from Great Britain addressed to 'The Community Group', Lachute, Que., has been delivered to The Watchman. Its contents are published herewith, so that the particular organization deserving credit may be informed of the writer's appreciation :

13 Tyne Street, Aldgate,
Stepney, London, E.1.

Dear Friends:

Hope you will pardon me for writing to you, but I could not let this pass without thanking you all for the kind gifts of blankets and quilts, given me by the Stepney W.V.S. for people who had suffered during air raids on London during 1944-45.

It cheers one up so much to know that, through all our trials and sufferings, there are such people as yourselves ready and willing to help those who have suffered. We hope that this gesture of friendship of people to people will always prevail. Will you please accept my grateful thanks and may God bless you all.

I remain, very sincerely,
Mrs. H. Power.

Rehabilitation Talk Before Legion 70

Filling a double engagement here Tuesday evening, Flt. Lieut. Denis F. Mildon, R.C.A.F. Personnel Counsel official, followed his address at the Lachute Lions Club by a visit to Argenteuil Legion, Branch 70, in session at the Victoria Hall for their regular monthly meeting.

Paying tribute to the veterans of the first Great War, who endured more personal hardship than those who fought in the more recent conflict, Flt. Lieut. Milden commended the Legion as a logical intermediary in the civil rehabilitation of servicemen. With that purpose in view he also urged loyal support to the Legion. "As individuals we can do little", he said, "but as an organization the Legion can accomplish much". He instanced how the Legion had been instrumental in improving the lot of servicemen's families urgently in need of housing. Temporary accommodation and board had been obtained at a reasonable cost.

Speaking of legislation on rehabilitation, the speaker asserted Canada was making better provision for ex-service personnel than any other Allied country. He elaborated on the allowances, gratuities and credits, and on various measures opening the way to further education, vocational training and land settlement.

A sound recommendation to veterans was added, with the slogan "Before you invest, investigate".

The speaker was introduced by Comrade W. M. Steeves and thanked by Comrade G. G. Mitchell.

During the evening 15 new members were initiated into the branch.

FARM TOPICS

Animal Health Service Under Quebec Provincial Agriculture Department

In line with the reorganization of his Department, the Hon. Laurent Barré, Quebec Minister of Agriculture, has established a new administrative and technical branch, that of Animal Health, with Dr. J.-M. Veilleux, V.D., in charge.

Mr. Barré explains that the Animal Health Branch will replace the Veterinary Medicine Division, which has been part of the Animal Husbandry Branch. Main objects of the new branch will be the control of livestock diseases, the checking of animals attacked by contagious diseases and the improvement of the sanitary condition of herds, preliminary and necessary conditions to the progress of livestock improvement and public health.

Dr. Veilleux is an experienced veterinarian, having practiced his profession in Beauce County before becoming Professor and Director of Studies to the Oka Veterinary School. In 1937, he was appointed Chief Veterinarian of the province, and has since been campaigning for improvement of the sanitary condition of herds, organizing systematic control of tuberculosis and contagious abortion, poultry diseases, hog pasteurellosis, etc.

No Let-Up on Farm

Discharges from the armed forces at increased rates, labor released from war plants to peace time production, and unrationed farm machinery — are factors tending to ease the farm labor situation, states the Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada. The high levels of agricultural production achieved during the war years through the efforts of Canadian farmers with insufficient labor and machinery have been phenomenal. With sufficient labor and machinery, their efforts cannot be relaxed now that hostilities have ceased, says the Review. Food must be provided for the people of Europe until their own farms are able to produce the necessities of life.

MILK IN DISGUISE

Ghi, or butter clarified by boiling, is an article of commerce in India and neighboring countries. Koumiss, the fermented milk of mares, is a favorite drink among certain nomadic tribes in central Asia and is regarded as a remedy for tuberculosis. For the same reason, an imitation koumiss is made in other countries from asses' of cows' milk.

Report on Operations of Buckingham Co-operative

The Buckingham Co-operative Association recently held its first general annual meeting. A financial report of the first 14 months of peration was presented to the members, in English, by Mr. J. W. Delaney, District Agronomist, and in French, by Mr. Marcel Ste-Marie, District Inspector of the Co-operative Associations.

During the course of that period, sales and purchases amounted to $218,207.96 and $136,426.33 respectively, leaving a surplus of $7,785.49. Immoveables are valued at $24,965.83.

The Buckingham Creamery made over 358,000 pounds of butter; the Association sold $71,300 worth of feeds and other goods, and organized a daily system for collecting cream and delivery of merchandise on a 100-mile route, using three trucks.

TREE HARVEST BIG

Kentville, N.S. (CP) — Nova Scotia will export 1,000,000 Christmas trees to the United States before Dec. 15, according to the estimate of a New York buyer. The Christmas tree industry, a profitable sideline for Nova Scotia farmers for years, this year is expected to return $500,000.

FELL TRICKY TREES IN WARTORN BERLIN

Logs from Gruenwald Forest Tested For Shell Fragments

Berlin (CP) — What probably is the only sawmill in the world where logs first are inspected with mine detectors for shell fragments, is operating in Gruenwald forest in Berlin.

Parts of this forest, once the Hohenzollerns' hunting grounds, are being thinned out to provide lumber for occupation forces and for the coal-short civilians.

Hundreds of Germans of all ages — kids in sweaters to women in fur coats — from Zehlendorf and other suburbs, tramp daily into the woods with axes and handsaws to cut branches and haul them home in hand-drawn wagons. They swarm over trees felled by German loggers supervised by soldiers.

Civilians are allowed only to trim off branches. The trunks are trucked away to a roadside sawmill where prisoners of war cut lumber for occupation forces to use in building barracks and for other purposes.

More than 200 logs a day are processed in the mill. But before each runs through, a prisoner of war blankets it surface with a mine detector to search for shell splinters, relics of the battle for Berlin.

Power-saws fell the trees, and when the word is given civilians swarm over the fallen tree to hack away at its branches.

Whole families turn out for the daily woods chore. Some bring sister will push handsaws and their lunches. A mother and older wield small axes while the children load the wood in wagons.

LUXURY CABIN AMAZES SEAMAN

British Shipping Company Plans Topnotch Quarters For Crew Members

London (CP) — Salty tars used to the crowding and discomforts of the fo'c'sle — traditional crew's quarters in ocean ships from time immemorial — gasped with great amazement at the quarters in the new 540-ton motor vessell Stork here!

When Able Seaman Bob Smith joined the Stork he expected to find the usual dark and narrow fo'c'sle, with hard wooden benches and rows of three-tiered bunks.

Instead he had a cabin to himself, with upholstered seating, a radiator, modern ventilation, a comfortable bunk, a basin with hot and cold running water, a writing table and a steel locker.

Said Bob, "It's wonderful to find all this in a small ship. We even have fresh-water showers and a drying cupboard. Any seaman would want to stick by a ship where the accommodation is so good. Meals are good too.

Said a director of the General Steam Navigation Company: "Such improvements in living accommodation we have put into the Stork cannot be made to all ships yet. Provision of a cabin for every man means a slight loss in cargo capacity, but it will be well worth it."

Anaemia of Horses

In the past infectious anaemia of horses has given rise to great economic loss, states the annual report of the Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture. The disease was at one time confined to Western Canada but in later years has made its way into the Eastern Provinces and become important, particularly in the lumbering districts of northern Quebec. There are many features of interest concerning this disease, says the report, and from time to time attempts have been made to immunize against it. Using newer methods of study, attempts have been made to propagate the virus under artificial conditions but it appears to be one of those which does not lend itself to this purpose. Newer methods of preparing specific vaccines have been employed and these vaccines are at present under critical study to determine their potency.

The Embarrassing Atom

THE PEACE-LOVING nations of the world applauded the announcement that Britain, Canada and the United States would share their atomic secret with the United Nations if all who would share in the knowledge would renounce its use as a weapon of aggressive warfare.

The world applauded the announcement as a generous offer by three countries in possession of a secret which may well change the material course of modern civilization. And the world applauded an astute compromise between factions who would unleash the full force of the momentous discovery of the world at once or on the other hand would jealously guard it as a sword of Damocles to hold over the heads of other nations.

The value of the atomic secret in the latter role had been largely exploded by statements of numerous scientists that it would be only a matter of time before other nations could piece together the knowledge they have already and duplicate or improve on the discoveries of our scientists. And the possession of such dangerous knowledge had already aroused suspicions in the ranks of the non-possessors.

A clause stipulating the pooling of scientific knowledge under the peace-seeking eye of the United Nations Organization would assure the inheritance by all mankind of the full benefits of the discovery while at the same time ensuring that another Hiroshima will never be necessary.

Success of the compromise arrived at in the councils of Prime Ministers Attlee and King and President Truman last week depends on acceptance by the rest of the world of this pooling clause which would open up a new era of international co-operation.

The "If" in the question is whether Russia, the only nation outside of the United States and Britain materially capable of making immediate strides in atomic investigation, will accept that clause and open her jealously-guarded frontiers to Allied scientists and investigators.

A Worthy Cause

THE ANNUAL Salvation Army "home front" financial appeal in the Montreal area opened on Monday, to continue until December 4. . . . In peace or war, the Salvation Army fashions its program to meet the immediate need. Its capital is in its personnel rather than in its equipment — an organization that deals in humanity, seeking to make valuable again that which seemingly has no value. To carry on this work the Salvation Army is asking for $100,000 during the current campaign, which will be used for police court and prison work, fresh air camps, metropole work (for homeless men), emergency family relief, women's social service for unmarried mothers, Catherine Booth maternity hospital, "Eventide Home" for old people, Red Shield auxiliary work (relief for Europe), and a host of other important enterprises.

More than ever before, the "Army" requires public support to give a helping hand where badly needed — always seeking the grain of good in every human soul, even until the poorest heart takes new courage and new hope.

— There will be no personal canvass in this community. Printed appeals have been sent, however, to those who gave support in previous campaigns; to these The Watchman adds its commendation — the appeal deserves a generous response.

There's A Law Against It

THE FOLLOWING paragraph, culled from one of our exchanges, might apply with equal aptitude to this town :

"Despite the attention given the subject by the town authorities, children going home from school persist in riding two on a bicycle and ignoring the stop signs entirely. These reckless cyclists are not only risking their own necks but those of others. We saw a driver swerve to avoid a careless cyclist and, in the effort, almost knock down a pedestrian. Unless there is some immediate action, there will be a serious accident."

— While this comment refers particularly to children it should be noted that, in Lachute, there are adult riders who commit the same hazardous practice, of carrying one and sometimes two youthful passengers on a bicycle. It shows disregard not only of the law but of all commonsense rules of safety.

Relaxing the Controls

DO WE REALIZE that Canada's cost of living has risen less than that of any other country? Canadians are the best fed people in the world. Because of everyone's co-operation, our government was able to subsidize essentials such as milk and oranges, making the necessities available to all. One hears on all sides: "The war's over now. Why doesn't the government get busy and remove these controls?" But are we, the people of Canada, ready for the lifting of controls?

"Aw, Dad," begged Jimmy, "let me have the car all by myself, just once." His dad yielded to him. He got the car. What a wonderful feeling of power to have his hands on the wheel and no one to check him! But Jimmy raced the car into a gully — Jimmy is in hospital — a mechanic towed away the wreck — and dad pays the bill.

Are we mature enough to have unrestricted buying power put into our hands? Have we the inner control necessary? Or will we indulge in an orgy of spending, speed into the hazard of inflation and land up in the hospital — Depression? A sound economy depends on sound people, people who give honest measure whether in weight or work, who care about their neighbors, whose policy is not always to "grab" and "get".

To quote Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board: "In the reconversion of our economy each segment of the economic structure has its part to play and every citizen will have to bring all his intelligence and realism to bear on the task". How long the controls will last will depend "on the degree of restraint shown by the public in the use of accumulated purchasing power".

Through disciplined use of controls comes our opportunity to show that our patriotism is not a feeble flame but a burning passion. Our dollars properly spent can help to build confidence, enterprise and national security. So shall such a spirit grow within all Canadians that, when controls are relaxed, there will be bred in us the consciousness of an individual responsibility in our country's economy.

Housing the Veterans

IN CERTAIN COMMUNITIES where branches of the Canadian Legion boast their own buildings or headquarters, the housing shortage has given rise to difficulties. In desperate cases of homeless veterans and their families, the Legion has provided accommodation in these premises— with the result that, until a suitable dwelling could be found, the Vets were minus a meeting place. In one town we note the Legion offering a reward of $25 for "information that will enable them to obtain housing accommodation for the tenant now occupying the Legion Memorial Hall Building".

Canadian Toys

FROM A NATION almost wholly dependent on toy imports, it is interesting to note that Canada in two years has become nearly self-sufficient in supplying toys for her three million children.

Of these Canadian toys sent in to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for pricing, over 40 per cent are made of wood. Improved skill of the Canadian manufacturer shows up more in this line than in any other. Little men tumble down ladders, clowns turn somersaults, ducks propelled on wooden sticks flap across the floor and bulldozers operate by a simple twist of the wrist.

Makers of stuffed animals have produced large numbers of teddy bears, puppy dogs of every breed and cats. Pressed canvas has replaced starched fabric in the more durable doll faces.

Replicas of the munitions of war are disappearing from the market. In the place of tanks and guns there are all kinds of mechanical toys. Plastic doll house furniture, as well as plastic telephones and automobiles, are also ready for the Christmas market.

There is every indication that the children of Canada will not be short of toys when Santa Claus comes 'round in 1945.

SHOULD EDUCATION FIT PEOPLE FOR JOBS?

It is a great mistake to regard the aim of education — to fit people for jobs. A little thought will enable us to understand there are reasons which precede this; to help us to think clearly on the problems of life; to help us to understand complicated modern society and the responsibilities of a citizen, and to discover and develop our abilities and interests. As an illustration just ponder for a moment on the advent of the atomic bomb. We had a job to do in bringing a terrible and catastrophic war to a successful conclusion. We poured out our life and treasure without stint on the only means we knew of gaining victory. We built tanks and bigger tanks, ships and bigger ships, planes and faster planes, bombs and bigger bombs, armies and greater armies. All this time a relatively few scientists were quietly working in the seclusion of their laboratories. As a result of their work they produced two bombs which stopped the conflict with a suddenness that left the world agape with awe and fright. The job we thought so important a moment before was no longer necessary. We spent years educating ourselves to do that job in the factories and the battlefields. Now we are confronted by the problems of life and the experience and education we gained in no way helps us to meet them. Therefore we learn that the ultimate basis of education is the respect for truth. "This is a function that even the most matter-of-fact person dare despise, because scholarly study so remote from ordinary affairs as to be "out of this world" leads with impressive frequency to practical applications which change the ordinary pattern of our lives. Tyranny always has been sustained by deception and by the suppression of truth. War is the forsaking of truth and reason in favor of an appeal to force. In the last analysis education for democracy is education for truth itself." Despite our recognition of this fact we have spent ten years in war, death and destruction and six in depression, misery and suffering within the span of a young life. If we were really determined to educate ourselves and our children in truth we would have avoided the second world war. It was our responsibility and we failed. It is now our responsibility to educate the coming generation of young Canadians. Are we going to fail again? If we drift back into the difference that characterized our attitude during the period between the two wars we are certainly going to fail again. And in this atomic age the cost may well be more than we can bear.

At the present time we are not too badly served in the number of High Schools which we possess. Over all the accommodation is adequate. We may not have sufficient to accommodate all the pupils in the more populous centres but the national picture is good. During a period when the population of Ontario increased by sixty per cent, the numbers in elementary schools increased by twenty per cent, but the number in secondary schools increased almost five hundred per cent. Over the forty years from the beginning of the century the number of pupils receiving a High School education increased threefold. Taking Canada as a whole we progressed from one in five in 1900 to about three in five today. This is a record we may be proud of. But increased attendance is not the answer. We are like a man going to buy a Ford in the old days when they were all of one color, we can have any color we like so long as it is black. Our secondary or High School education is of a type that only fits the pupil for University. Not one in ten go to a university, yet we persist in the old discarded "leaders and followers" type of education which was in vogue a hundred years ago or more. This "out of a mold" system has inspired some educational thinkers to pin their faith to a different type — the vocational schools. The vocational school trains pupils for jobs commercial, technical and in lesser number agricultural. But it has been found that vocational schools are even less successful in retaining pupils beyond the compulsory attendance age than the purely academic school. Advocates of the academic type aver that vocational training of young pupils is a waste of time and effort and in truth the facts support this view. During the war, Emergency Classes were successful in turning our semi-skilled men and women in a matter of weeks, and "in a study of over 2,200 occupations it was found that for more than two-thirds of the jobs no education beyond elementary school is required; and that as far as specific vocational training is concerned, more than three jobs in four require only a month's preparation or less".

In a later article we intend to discuss the question of a new High School Program in Canada.

ALLIES KNEW NAZIS PLANNED BUZZ BOMB

Washington (CP) — The Allies had a tip-off that the Germans were preparing to launch robot bombs at least six months before the first buzzer was aimed against London and a defence was planned.

This information is contained in a scientific report dealing with the development of the VT or proximity fuse for anti-aircraft shells and other missiles. . . The VT — a miniature radio set which causes a projectile to explode automatically when it gets within 70 feet of a target — is credited with a large share in the defeat of the buzz bombs.

"Late in 1943," says a report by the Applied Physics Laboratory of John Hopkins University, which was prominent in the development of VT fuses, "Allied intelligence reports revealed that the Germans were preparing to launch robot bombs against southern England from enemy-held areas in France.

"From the outset, the seriousness of this prospective attack was recognized and plans for the defence of London were started as early as December, 1943."

The plans included the use of anti-aircraft fire. Since navies had previously demonstrated the effectiveness of the VT in anti-aircraft fire, the fuse was included in the preparations.

Thus, as early as January, 1944, plans were under way in scientific laboratories for testing special fuses against "mockups of buzz bombs expected momentarily to be introduced by the Germans."

The first buzz bomb was launched against London in June, 1944, but three months prior to that time shells containing the fuses were issued to 90 millimetre anti-aircraft batteries in England in preparation for the attack.

The fuses saw only limited use in the early stages of the attack, a navy report says, because of "various limitations to anti-aircraft firing or the safety of civilian population."

But their use was gradually stepped up — working in conjunction with improved radar and improved gun-directors until finally, as a report from an army observer declares :

"The result of the advent of VT fuses was truly sensational increases in 'kills.' "

CENTURIES OF PEACE BROKEN BY BULLETS

Postling, Eng. (Reuters)—Residents of this tiny Kent village for centuries considered it one of the quietest places in England, but military training with live ammunition changed all that.

A protest to military authorities brought a reply that it is not possible to relinquish the rights to fire over the Postling area as training with live ammunition still continues.

Maj. J. Baker White, member of parliament for the district, has been asked to make a protest to the War Office.

"Make it short and snappy," cried the city editor. "Boil it down."

CALLS FOR CIVIC PRIDE

There is nothing sadder than the sight of a community where citizens show little or no interest in municipal affairs. Such a town or such a municipality soon becomes what its citizens make it, retrograde in progress, and in the rear of the march of progressive areas. —Deloraine (Man.) Times.

PLANNING for EXPANSION OF RURAL TELEPHONE SERVICE

To keep step with farm progress and to extend service to more farm families, the telephone industry is working on important new devices and methods.

Plans are already under way for resuming the rural telephone expansion program suspended in 1940, when equipment and material became urgently needed for the armed forces. Surveys are being made to determine the needs and to provide the facts for carrying out plans to expand farm telephone service.

The goal is to bring the telephone to the greatest possible number of farm families.

"It's not the tears that are shed at the time
That tell of the hearts that are torn,
But the bitter tears of the after years
And the loneliness silently borne;
Morning and evening and all the day through,
Someone is thinking, dear Dad, of you.

BIGELOW — In loving memory of a dear father, who passed away November 22, 1939. — Lovingly remembered by his son, Ernest.

"With tears we watched you sinking,
We watched you pass away,
We tended you with loving care
But could not make you stay;
We watched beside your bedside
As the lonely hours passed
And how our hearts were broken, Dad,
When we saw you breathe your last!"

BIGELOW — In loving memory of dear Dad, who died November 22, 1939. — Always remembered by the ones who thought the world of you, Margaret and Leonard.

"Six lonely years have passed away
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that day
We still remember well.
We never knew what pain you bore,
Although we saw you die,
We only knew you passed away
And could not say good-bye.
Your name we oftentimes recall,
But only left to answer
Is your picture on the wall."

You didn't say goodbye."

Agricultural Soc'y Elects Directors At Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society was held here November 16, with a large attendance of members. The following directors were elected for the year 1946:

J. H. Black, C. Tremblay, Gilbert Arnold, Amedée Maisonneuve, Ross McAdam, W. M. Cottingham, Theo. Murdoch, Jas. McKenzie, Jas. MacKimmie, Stuart Armstrong, Simon Wilson, Erskine Rodger, Albert Stewart, E. K. Wilson and the County Warden.

The financial statement and auditors' report showed the Society to be in a sound financial condition.

Fitting reference was made to the loss of two members during the past year; the honorary president, Mr. W. H. Ayers, passed away in the month of June, and the office staff lost a valuable worker in the person of Mrs. Bothwell, who died about a month ago.

The publishers of this newspaper again request that news items and advertising be handed in as early as possible in the week. speaker. Describing some of the handicrafts, she showed samples of the work done at Macdonald College. Miss Wren described pottery, woodcraft, weaving, art work, linoleum prints, metal work, and also plastic, one of the newer developments of science.

Lakefield held their meeting on November 6, at the home of Mrs. A. Kyle, with an attendance of 10 members and six visitors. The roll-call was "Ideas for Inexpensive Christmas Gifts". An apron parade was held, also a cake naming contest; winners were — 1st, Mrs. A. Ward, Mille Isles; 2nd, Mrs. A. Kerr, Lakefield; consolation, Mrs. J. Ward, Mille Isles. Mrs. Wilbert Sherritt was welcomed as a new member. Mille Isles branch was represented at this meeting to hear Mr. Geo. Logan. of the Blue Cross hospitalization plan. Mrs. C. Baugh introduced the guest speaker, and Mrs. H. MacDonald moved a vote of thanks. It is hoped that in the near future both branches will adopt the plan. Roads permitting, a card party will be held early in December.

Frontier held their meeting on November 6 with 22 members and three visitors present. A publicity paper, "Editors, Editions and Editorials" was given by the convenor, Mrs. A. Graham. The roll-call was answered with the name of a popular cartoonist. A guest from Hanna, Alta., a one-time member of the W.I., expressed her pleasure at being present. A woollen quilt was made and donated to the Red Cross. A contest, "Know Your Country" was won by Mrs. McFaul, president, 1st prize, and Mrs. L. Fuller 2nd.

Pioneer meeting was held on November 9, with an attendance of 10 members and several visitors. The members stood in silent tribute to a late member, Mrs. R. Bradley, who was one of the early presidents of this branch, and also a county president, and filled other offices in both the branch and the county W.I's. Five dollars was donated to the Queen's Canadian Fund in memory of Mrs. Bradley. A letter was read from Mrs. Mortimer, dealing with National and International Relations. An article was read on the Palestine Problem, and discussion of Fair work occupied members. An apron parade was also staged. The Self-Denial Fund was closed and $21 was sent to the Fund. Plans were made for the December meeting, with a gift exchange. An interesting address on coal mining was given by the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, of Lachute, who took his listeners on a trip to the mines of Cape Breton.

Novel Viewpoint on Missions Emphasizes Personal Obligation

Christian Endeavor Topic Last Monday

At the Margaret Rodger Memorial hall on Monday Mrs. E. Orsborn led the Christian Endeavor Society in its monthly Missionary meeting.

Various members of the group, as usual, took part in the meeting as called upon, the prayer being given by Mrs. George McGibbon, the lesson reading by Mr. Harold Orsborn and the topic by Mr. Robert Cairns.

The topic for the evening was on Missions and the speaker chose a somewhat unorthodox approach. He remarked that immediately upon the mention of Missions, our thoughts usually turn to those in distant countries — whereas practically all ministers leave their home surroundings and go to a strange community to witness for Christ, thereby establishing themselves in the same manner as missionaries.

This being the case, they should receive the complete support and co-operation of their congregations, and we should be perturbed at the shortage of active ministers, and even moreso at the lack of candidates for the ministry.

This latter condition can only be corrected by our example in church attendance, family worship and faithfulness to "Him", thereby inspiring our children and creating in them a desire to witness for "His" cause.

Following the talk, a hymn and the benediction brought the meeting to its close.

It was the considered opinion of those present that the final thought expressed in the topic should be of vital importance to all Canadian communities. Let every one of us therefore examine ourselves in the light of the question, "What example are -WE setting our children?"

The meeting of Monday next, on a "cultural" theme, will be conducted by Mrs. A. M. Vessie.

Christian Fellowship, United Y.P.U. Theme

The weekly meeting of the Lachute United Church Y.P.U. was held Monday, with Harold Deacon acting as chairman.

The program was in charge of Elva Ness, Christian Fellowship convenor, who gave a well-prepared paper entitled, "What Jesus Sees in People."

A current event was read by Sonny Ogilvie, the prayer by Bernice Gordon, and Roland Maxwell read the scripture.

The meeting next week will be under direction of Mary Scott and Doris Leroy, the Culture convenors; the guest speaker will be the Rev. S. Burman, of Cushing, who will give an illustrated lecture on "The Land of the Southern Cross."

It's not what I possess, but what possesses me.

Views Youth Diversions Compared with Those Of Grandparents' Time

Speaking before the Presbyterian Young People's Society last evening, the Rev. C. R. Lang commented forcefully on how the mature years of life are moulded and shaped by practices of younger years, especially the early-twenty age. Comparing the modern youth of today and the youth of our grandparents' time, he pointed to the various types of amusement and entertainment then unknown but now prevalent, some of which are of demoralizing nature, and which are apt to entice and beckon the modern young folk. However, in summing up, Mr. Lang emphasized that if we follow the teachings of Christ and apply these to our daily living, a solid foundation will be laid upon which to assure happier years in maturity.

The speaker introduced by President Cecil McFaul, was thanked by Mrs. Raymond Underhill, following the devotional worship, in which Harold Orsborn and Bob Reynolds participated.

The supper report was read, showing gratifying financial results. The Society wishes to thank the Presbyterian Church ladies and members for their support in this venture.

The next meeting will take the form of a "newspaper"; a large and varied "editorial" staff indicate that this will prove both interesting and entertaining.

In support of the Salvation Army Red Shield Home Front Appeal, the Society voted a $5 contribution to this canvass.

VETERANS FILL BREACH

Halifax (CP) — Almost two hundred schools in Nova Scotia which were without teachers in September have opened with teachers released from the armed services. Between 25 and 35 schools are still without teachers.

SLOWEST CROSSING

Sorel, Que. (CP) — A hundred French-Canadian sailors are making an unusual Atlantic crossing, manning two tugs and four dredges, now being towed to France. They are going from Sorel to St. Nazaire and probably will make the slowest Atlantic crossing in modern seafaring history.

HAND WEAVING TAUGHT

Baddeck, N.S. (CP) — Nova Scotia's Foundation has started its post-war program for the development of the home woollen industry in Cape Breton. Three community schools in which hand weaving will be taught have been opened.

CEMETERY "VASES" UPSET KENT VICAR

Shoreham, Eng. (CP) — Pickle and jam jars are useful substitutes for vases in decorating graves, but the labels are offensive and should be removed, says Rev. Paul Gliddon, vicar of Shoreham, Kent.

"To go to a grave and find that the first words you read are 'plum' or 'chutney' or 'mixed pickles' is to have a severe strain put upon your sense of reverence," he wrote in the parish magazine.

Build up your business reputation for competitive days ahead. Distinctive stationery and good printing — from sales slips to monthly statements — will establish the fact you're right on the job. And that's what will count with the post-war public. . . See The Watchman for commercial printing.

Repats' Dream Meals Come True

SEE THEM SMILING: These hardy warriors of Italy and Northwest Europe, accustomed to a mess tin at meal times, have good reason to smile as they sit down to Canada's most popular breakfast — bacon and eggs — and their first since arriving home. The waiter, also a veteran, followed the first tasty dish with the repats' dream meals of steak and roast chicken at the next two sittings. Menus like these from choice beef, (lower photo) make Canadian Pacific dining car crews the men of the year to tens of thousands of repats who have been served more than one million meals on C.P.R. trains between V-E Day and November.

8,000,000 C.P.R. Meals Served Troops During War

MONTREAL: In six years of war, Canadian Pacific dining car crews have served more than 16 million meals, of which well over half were placed in front of Canada's service personnel.

Currently these dining rooms on wheels are feeding repats, both British and Canadian, arriving at Vancouver from the Orient, and Canadians at the East Coast arriving from Europe, and the stewards and staffs have yet to hear a complaint. They anticipate the desires of the returning fighting men and offer menus that cover all the main features of meals dreamed up in the slit trenches overseas.

The cuisine offered the repats includes such meat courses as roast beef, roast ham, veal, steaks and roast chicken and fish also adds variety to the menu.

Just to make the joy of homecoming complete, when the repats check with the stewards they are assured that mutton, "Australian beef" to overseas personnel, will not mar these "fatted calf" banquets.

Milk, butter and eggs are all favorite items with the veterans for all are scarce overseas. One steward ordered 100 gallons of milk to start a trip with repats from the Ile de France. When that same vessel docked within a week of the troop carrier Niew Amsterdam in September the special trains provided by the C.P.R. loaded half a ton of butter and more than 26,000 eggs to start their journey.

Canadian Pacific trains from the first docking of the Queen Elizabeth as a troop carrier to Canada served 33,889 meals to hungry repats and on the one train that went through to Vancouver the veterans polished off 7,092 of the total.

Quebec Provincial Police Equipped for Three-Way Radio Communication

Claiming the first provincial police radio set-up in the country, citizens of Quebec Province are now assured a speedier method for catching criminals, a quick means of rushing medical aid to highway accident victims and other routine police work.

With the main transmitter located in the Chalet on top of Mount Royal in Montreal, 815 feet above sea level, the new system was installed by the Northern Electric Company and is the latest thing in "frequency modulation" transmission. This three-way communication—station to car, car to station and car to car—now gives Quebec one of the best radio systems on the continent. The main transmitter is left unattended and is remotely controlled by ground wire from Provincial Police headquarters on Notre Dame Street in the heart of downtown Montreal.

Sub-stations are located at all bridge outlets around the Island of Montreal and, in the event of a hold-up or other serious crime, a virtual 'net' can be thrown around the whole Island a few seconds after the crime is reported. This makes Mr. Holdupman's getaway possibilities unique—for the police.

Details of the new radio system were made public by Police Director J. P. Lamarche at a recent press conference. Newsmen were given the opportunity of travelling in police cars, each car taking a different route, and maintaining radio contact with each other and the various sub-stations and main station.

"Canada must adopt a policy of developing machinery and equipment for export. That while we should cling with the left hand to our historic markets, with the right hand we must reach out to grasp the new markets which are demanding machinery and equipment and which combine to form the greatest potential market in the world of tomorrow". A. R. Lawrence

It must be kept in mind that the citizen is ambitious for his community, he wants to take a pride in its appearance, in its facilities and its progress. He may growl a bit when the bill comes in but in the lasting benefits and enjoyment of the work, the cost is soon forgotten. He will pay without flinching when he knows he will get value for his money. . . . We have yet to hear anyone speak with pride of his town or suburb only because it has a low rate. Towns with low rates are usually low rate towns.

Seaman's Village

A new village, first of its kind in the world, is to be established in Surrey, England. Its inhabitants will all be former Merchant Marine seamen and their families.

Living accommodation will be provided at first for 250 families. Besides a community centre, there are to be two theatres, a swimming pool, tennis courts, and a nursery school. A neighboring farm has been purchased and a small factory started to give various types of employment to the men.

The idea of the village originated with the Secretary of the National Union of Seamen, C. Jarman, as a centre where disabled Merchant Marine men could regain their health in ideal surroundings. Mr. Jarman explained his idea to an official of the Seamen's Union in South Africa, who passed it on to the local Navy War Fund Administration. Already they have sent $200,000, and as much more is promised.

As South Africa's tribute to the courage of British Merchant sailors during the war, it has been named Springbok Village.

VICAR DERIDES INANE HYMNS

Shoreham, England (CP) — The words and tunes of some hymns were described as "inane" by the Vicar of Shoreham, Rev. P. Glidden.

"The words of some of the hymns are so ridiculous that if the congregation read them carefully they would strike against their use," the Vicar said.

"But often we do not notice the inanity of the words because they are coated in music every whit as inferior. Many tunes emanate from what may be described as the 'antimacassar academy of music."

The tramp entered the bank in the grand manner. In his hand he held a cheque for sixpence. He approached the cashier and presented the cheque with a flourish.

"Here, my good man," he said loftily, "you will please cash this for me. And, mind you, I haven't all day to wait."

The cashier glanced up. He took the cheque, examined it, then reached into the change drawer.

"How will you have it?" he asked, "heads or tails?"

Wisdom Teeth

Q: What is wrong or lacking in a person who never grew any wisdom teeth? Is he more stupid or deficient than the average ?

A: No. Sometimes teeth, including wisdom teeth or third molars, fail to develop. The cause or causes of this condition have not been fully determined. Frequently, what is spoken of as absent wisdom tooth is really an impacted tooth. This is a tooth which has developed but which has failed to erupt because of its improper position in the jaw, lack of space or other impediment.

In order to determine whether a wisdom tooth is absent, impacted or delayed in eruption, an examination by the dentist is required. The X-ray is necessary in this examination.

There is no known relationship between intelligence and the presence or absence of wisdom teeth. Apparently the notion that such a relationship exists is based on the fact that the wisdom teeth generally come into place in the jaw at an age when mental powers are fairly well developed.

PARENTS' "COURT" FOR DELINQUENTS

Omaha (CP) — The Rev. Joseph Micek, assistant at St. Francis Catholic Church, has put the juvenile delinquency problem into the laps of the parents in his parish by setting up a board of four fathers and four mothers to bring reports of misdemeanors to the attention of the violators' parents.

The parents are then given the opportunity to take the violators and the punishment in hand. Although the parish board has been in operation only a short while, Father Micek says it has proved effective.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

FISHING IN NEW BRUNSWICK

We have just had a trip through New Brunswick, following a good part of its coast-line. Naturally, its fishing industry was very evident. Along the Northumberland Strait the oyster raking was in full force. The men fish from small boats not very far from shore and they use rakes to get the oysters. Some of them use two rakes fastened together like a pair of pincers and they have a small net fastened under them to help catch the oysters. There was oyster fishing, too, on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the Bay of Chaleur. Apparently oysters and lobsters abound in the same waters, because almost every place they were raking oysters, there were great stacks of lobster pots piled on the shore, and in many places the lobster boats were pulled up. Lobster fishing is out of season now. Up around Caraquet they were catching smelts; there and at Shippegan, cod is the greatest catch. At Shippegan we saw a factory for making cod-liver oil. It is expressed there, and then sent in tanks to Montreal for refining. Off Shippegan Island there were oyster beds which had been planted. These are privately owned but the natural beds are not reserved. Various places there were truck loads of herring. There are new co-operative canning factories in different sections of New Brunswick. They look neat and well cared for with their white paint, in contrast to the dilapidation of most of the other canneries. Lobster is the most important fish canned. At Cocagne they were fishing for mussels, and these were later canned at Cape Bald. Fish prices have been good these last few years and the resulting prosperity is plain to be seen in the fishing villages. There are quite a few new houses being built, many others are being repaired, and plenty of them are getting much needed coats of paint.

DO NOT UNDERESTIMATE YOUR INFLUENCE

Women have a very important role to play now in preventing inflation. Unfortunately, inflation is a very real danger. How can you and I prevent it? We can help by not buying. Now that the war is over, we all want to get some of the things we have been doing without, which is but natural. Wearing apparel has not been too bad, but household furnishings and equipment have been scarcer and we have had to do without. It isn't a case of just wanting, we actually need these things. We have needed them for some time and have managed, so let us try to do without just a little longer. Household supplies are in great demand because there are so many new homes being started and the supply is still low. Too great a demand is most apt to shoot prices up. If your memory goes back to the last war, you must remember the outrageous prices newly married returned men had to pay for furniture and other household equipment. We, who are established in our homes, let us try to give the young people a break, and do without until supplies are greater. Do not underestimate your influence and think if you buy something it will not matter. Your neighbors and friends see these things and it helps break down their resistance. It made it a lot easier through the war to do without because everyone else was doing without too. Misery loves company.

TEA FOR TWO

A good cup of tea is a simple thing to make and yet we get so many poor ones. Part of the reason is because people do not know how to boil water. I mean that. Sometimes they think that when a kettle begins to steam, the water is boiling. Water is not boiling until the bubbles break on the surface and water begins to steam some time before this. To have a good cup of tea the water must be actually boiling and it must be freshly boiling, because if it has boiled for even a minute or two the tea will not be as good. Watch carefully for just the right moment, then do not let the water get off the boil while you are making the tea. In other words bring the teapot to the kettle not the kettle to the tea-pot. The tea-pot should be heated by having some hot water poured in it and let stand long enough to heat the pot thoroughly. Then after the tea is made it should stand for five minutes to steep. Plenty of good tea is spoiled by being served in a silver tea-pot which has a stale taste. After you have washed and dried your silver tea-pot, let it stand for a short time and then dry it again as water which remains in the spout will have dripped down. Then open up the lid and let the pot stand open for several hours so that every trace of moisture evaporates. Use your best tea-pot often and you will have less trouble keeping it sweet.

SCOTCH SCONES

2 Cups flour, 2 tablespoons of sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, 1 egg yolk, ½ cup cream, 1 egg white.

Sift the flour, salt, baking powder and 1 tablespoon sugar. Rub in the shortening. Beat the egg yolk and add the cream, and mix with the dry ingredients. Roll out to ½" thickness on a lightly floured board. Cut in 2" squares and cut these across into triangles. Beat the egg white slightly, and brush on triangles, then sprinkle with the remaining sugar. Bake in a very hot oven of 450 degrees for 15 minutes.

Home Freezing For Producers Seen Possible

Expert Believes Farmers Can Have Freezing Equipment; Price Only Problem

Guelph, Ont. (CP) — Quick freezing equipment for farmers which would give them fresh vegetables and fruits in their homes the year 'round is technically possible, according to Dr. J. H. L. Truscott of the Ontario Agricultural College. The only problem yet to be solved is production of freezing units at a cost the farmer can pay.

In a review of refrigeration research at the O.A.C. and the possibilities for its application throughout Canada, the Ontario Department of Agriculture quoted Dr. Truscott as saying:

"The question I am asked most often today is whether it is possible to give the farmers home freezing equipment. The answer is that technically there are no obstacles, as the principles of insulation, installation and refrigeration have all been established. The whole question revolves around providing it at a cost the farmers can afford to pay."

The department review said that the farmer, as a producer, has become keenly conscious of the fact that modern marketing methods demand scientific refrigeration. And the farm housewife is learning that the freezing of fruits and vegetables is less back-breaking than canning.

Another indication of public interest in frozen storage is found in the development of locker plants. There are now 250,000 Canadian families renting lockers for the storage of food products so that they can have fresh strawberries in December and fresh green peas in January.

Refrigeration Research

The Department's review said refrigeration research started at the O.A.C. 10 years ago has provided the basic knowledge of which fruits and vegetables can be frozen and of the most successful methods. Use of this information is not confined to Ontario as other provinces are using it as the starting point for investigations they are now undertaking.

The researchers found while there are dozens and sometimes hundreds of varieties of each fruit and vegetable, only a very few of these varieties are so unsuitable as to be practically inedible after they are frozen. During the past five years, most of the commoner varieties of fruits and vegetables have been tested. For the information of commercial locker plant operators and housewives, an authoritative list of varieties, graded as to their keeping qualities has been compiled. This list places varieties in five categories, to indicate those which will not freeze satisfactorily, and rating those that will in four groups.

For instance, out of 19 varieties of cherries tested, only 10 are satisfactory for freezing and only one variety, the Early Richmond, is given top rating. Of 20 varieties of grapes, only six are suitable for freezing. Seventy-one varieties of peaches were tested, and only seven froze satisfactorily. Three out of 24 varieties of plums, two out of 23 varieties of respberries, apd five out of 54 varieties of strawberries were found to have satisfactory freezing qualities.

Among vegetables, a much higher proportion of varieties were frozen with successful results. In some vegetables, such as asparagus, beets, broccoli, cauliflower, egg plant, soy beans, all varieties tested proved satisfactory. But in corn 19 of 40 varieties tested were successful, although none rated higher than the second grade. Forty-five varieties of peas were tested and only nine passed the test..

SPURNS UNRRA JOB TO CONTINUE WITH CIVIC FEDERATION

Jessica Allen Has Been With Canadian Mayors' Federation Since It Was Formed

By ENID NEMY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg (CP)—Pert and charming, Jessica Allen of Montreal is making an unprecedented success in a position that formerly was "for men only".

Miss Allen, petite and convent-bred, first entered a man's world 10 years ago when a friend telephoned and asked if she'd like to help organize relief work for the federation of mayors. Two years later, when the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities was formed, "I was part of the machinery and I don't suppose they could have got rid of me even if they had wanted to".

Now an executive director of the federation, the only woman ever appointed to that position, she admits, "I'm so accustomed to working with men now I can't even make comparisons as to the merits of men and women in business."

She says quite candidly the matter is not one of sex but of personality. " Women and men each have a particular contribution to make. The women easiest to work with are those who make their contribution as women—not pseudo-men".

Recently she was offered a position with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association "It really was a temptation," she smiles, "but my job in the federation is more than just a job to me".

Started As Stenog

The only person who has been continuously with the organization since it started, Miss Allen started her business career as a stenographer "because that was the quickest thing." She worked in a Montreal legal office for two years and then during a visit to the New England states, accepted a position there.

"However, my old boss wired me and I was becoming homesick so I returned."

Shortly after came the telephone call that was to launch her in a field hitherto untouched by women.

Her job is a busy one. There are four executive meetings a year, trips to Ottawa and an annual conference in a large Canadian city. In addition to this she is building up a research department on municipal affairs and also edits an informative bulletin called "The Listening Post", which is issued twice monthly.

Travelling is of prime importance because "you learn so much about the fundamental attitude of know them a bit".

As for career women, Miss Allen believes they have both virtues and faults. "Jobs become more than that to them, which means they can't be as detached, but then again they can put more enthusiasm and zest into it."

Attended Joint Meetings Of Women's Institutes And 'Cercles Fermières'

Miss Evelyn Walker, Q.W.I. demonstrator who was in Lachute a week or so ago, had been recently visiting the branches in the Gaspe Peninsula. She was accompanied by Mrs. C. E. Dow, representing the Q.W.I., and Madame Chas. Gosselin, president of the Federation of the County of Lake St. John for les Cercles des Fermières. Through the co-operation of the county presidents of Gaspe and Bonaventure joint meetings of the two organizations were arranged in several sections. Enthusiastic reports have come from those gatherings, the exchange of ideas proving both helpful and stimulating. It is hoped other districts in this province will be able to arrange similar meetings in the near future. This is surely a concrete example of what the women of rural Quebec are doing to help promote knowledge and understanding of their common problems.

Girl Guides

The regular weekly meeting of the 1st Lachute Girl Guide Company was held on Monday in the basement of the Lachute High School.

The girls worked on their Tenderfoot test, first-aid and Morse Code. The meeting closed with the singing of "O Canada".

Boy Scout Troop At Brownsburg

Brownsburg — The Patrol Competition has just been completed in the 1st Brownsburg Scout Troop — Wolf Patrol, under Joe Izzard, again taking the pennant.

At the last meeting, Cubs Harry Moseley and Arthur Morrison graduated to the Scouts. Parents of both boys were on hand, Arthur's father being Cubmaster. Both boys are "two star" Cubs and are expected to be enthusiastic and aggressive Scouts. Scout Leaders Barry Elliott, Jim Murdoch and Wes Freeland accompanied the troop.

At an earlier meeting Keith Quinn, Bryant Prosser, Gregory Mason and Jim Hazel were all inducted into the Scouts from the Cub pack, with Field Commissioner Frank Hicks attending the ceremony, along with Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Quinn and Charlie Prosser. . . . On this occasion Mr. Denis Staniforth treated the boys to some entertaining movies, and refreshments were served.

With the assistance of Barry Elliott, of Lachute, a former King's Scout, the boys are showing considerable enthusiasm. Jerry Izzard, Lorne Brewer and Gerald Fletcher completed their Second Class at the last meeting (the latter with three proficiency badges) and this week Bryant Prosser and Gregory Mason completed their Tenderfoot and are well started on Second Class.

George Bourne, St. John's ambulance instructor, has started a group on First Class Scout's first aid, while Barry Elliott has started a group on First Class signalling. The progress chart is showing real life.

The citizens of Brownsburg recently helped by packing their waste paper for the Scouts, who, assisted by Mr. Sam Rose and Mr. Camille Mailhot, made a salvage collection to aid the funds.

Joint Chairmen Express Satisfaction In Final Standing, 9th Victory Loan

208.9% of Quota to County's Credit As Books Close for Last Accounting

Final accounting for the 9th Victory Loan campaign in Argenteuil brings the county's subscription up from 205% (reported last week) to 208.9% of its $1,075,000 objective for general sales and payroll savings. This compares with 108.7% in the 8th Victory Loan.

Less marked but equally appreciable was the increase in special names subscriptions — from 101.2% of quota in the 8th, to 143.5% in the 9th campaign.

In a letter to committee members, the joint chairmen of the Unit, Clement Tremblay and W. M. Scott, express keen gratification; their satisfaction with the outcome is shared by the Unit organizer, W. H. Price, and other officials who played an active part in the sales campaign. Argenteuil's effort to attain top position among Units of the Northwest Quebec region were frustrated by unexpected last-minute developments, but the outcome here is nevertheless a credit to all concerned. To Unveil Plaque, Veterans' Welcome At St. Andrews E.

St. Andrews East — An event of community interest is being held Sunday, December 9, at 2.45 p.m. in the St. Andrews East town hall, when all sections and denominations of the citizenry will unite to welcome the returned servicemen and women of the village. A memorial tablet will be unveiled and a presentation made to each veteran, signifying the gratitude of the populace to those who fought in freedom's cause.

For the interest of friends residing in Montreal, it is noted the C.N.R. train leaves the city at 10 a.m., and returns from St. Andrews at 8 p.m., thus affording an opportunity to attend this afternoon function. Admission is by ticket, procurable from E. A. Ladouceur or E. C. Calder, local storekeepers. Secretary of the civic committee is the Rev. Wm. MacMillan.

Ownership of the Lido Restaurant, which was taken over some time ago by Robert Hadley, has reverted this week to Mrs. S. Adams and her family.

Good Hunting At Harrington

Visiting the farm of Rory MacTavish at Harrington — where according to a spokesman of the party, they were cordially received — four Lachute townsmen made a successful deer-hunting trip last week, returning with three good-sized does.

The group included Dr. Jules Lafleur, Thos. Ayers, P. E. Leger and Lucien Savard. Their trip extended over two days.

The oldest home in Liverpool, N.S., the Slynvanus Cobb house, built in 1759 with timber shipped from Plymouth, Mass., continuously occupied ever since, was destroyed completely by fire. . . . Although ratepayers at Alameda Sask., didn't turn up to the annual rate-payers meeting in force, Mayor Slack was able to announce there were no liabilities and a handsome credit balance on hand. . . . Picks raspberries in November; yes, the Prince Edward Island Farmer shows a picture of Arthur Barker, Lakeview, munching some picked from his own garden. . . . and at Carleton Place, Ont., Albert Leach picked a dandelion on a plot of grass on main street. . . . Ralph Gamble of the Ratner, Sask., for a prank called on Henry White of the Brooksby district, posed as a Mountie looking for illicit spirits, and wound up in court. . . . Unusual things in an unusual country, thinks Mrs. Alice Broadbent, of the Blindman River district in Alberta, whose cow gave birth to a sturdy bull calf in January; put in a pen to be sold for beef, the willing cow presented her owner with triplet bull calves, all doing fine, thank you. . . . While drilling for water on J. Erickson's farm, eight miles south of Shell Lake, in northern Saskatchewan, the drill at 90 feet struck a deposit of an oil substance which shot sand and gravel 40 feet into the air. . . When Mrs. H. Smith of Avalon, Alta., visited her niece, Mrs. Dyer, in North Battleford, she was joined by a sister, Mrs. J. Hartley of Toronto; they had met last in England in June, 1902.

LABOR'S DEMANDS

There is no doubt in the minds of many as to the good which is expected from the demands for more money and shorter working time. These demands do not indicate the ushering in of the new world which was so widely spoken of as being certain to follow the recent war.

Served on Pacific Coast Patrol

A/B Claude Lafortune, R.C.N.V.R., who arrived home Saturday from Halifax after completing a trip from Esquimault, B.C., via the Panama Canal to Canada's east coast. The small vessel on which he served, engaged in minesweeping patrol along the Pacific Coast, was manned by a volunteer crew of 19 men for the homeward voyage. Many stops were required for refuelling and water; they also encountered a hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico — the entire trip taking about 75 days.

Claude Lafortune, only 20 years of age, has served three years in the Navy. He is now at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Lafortune, on 28 days' leave pending his discharge.

Farm Forum Group At North River

The reular Monday evening meeting of the Farm Forum was held this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Bradford, North River. The discussion title was "Poor soil produces poor food".

A card game was played and refreshments served.

Snowmobile Here For School Route

A snowmobile bus, for conveyance of children from Thomas' Gore to Lachute High School, arrived in Lachute and was unloaded at the C.P.R. siding on Tuesday. The vehicle is a smart-looking turnout, with streamlined body finished in black, and porthole windows. It has a seating capacity for 25 children, and is propelled by a six-cylinder Chrysler motor installed at the rear. The interior is adequately heated.

The snowmobile bears a trade name "Auto Neige Bombardier", and was manufactured or assembled at Valcourt, Que. It is in readiness for operation as soon as road conditions require.

The cost of this machine is $2,560.20; and according to Dr. W. F. FitzGerald, school board chairman, the board has already received a grant of $1,920 as the Department of Education's contribution. Actual cost to the Protestant ratepayers here, allowing for freight and incidentals, will be $670.45.

ANNUAL AYRSHIRE MEETING TONIGHT

The annual meeting of the Laurentian Ayrshire Club is being held this evening, Thursday, at McArthur's Hall. Dr. Chas. Mitchell, of Hull, resident official of the Department of Agriculture, is to be guest speaker. Bryan White, editor of the Ottawa Farm Journal, and F. Napier, secretary of Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, are also expected to be present.

W. Erskine Rodger, of Lachute, a director of the Canadian Ayrshire Association, assisted recently in organizing an Ayrshire Club for the breeders of Pontiac County.

Missionary Priest Extols Charms of Quebec Hinterland

Displaying qualities of a nature unexpected in his calling, the Rev. Louis-Roger Lafleur conducted a film presentation at Lachute Auditorium on Tuesday evening which delighted the large attendance.

The event, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, was managed entirely by the Rev. Lafleur, who is a missionary of the Immaculate Mary Order, widely travelled in his native province, and versatile in his interests. His films picturing the little known hinterlands of Quebec were especially intriguing since they were photographed by himself, in beautiful Kodakrome color, and well described to his audience in the two languages. . . . The Rev. Lafleur, incidentally, is a native of Lachute — a son of Louis Lafleur and brother of Dr. Jules Lafleur.

Films showing fishing and hunting activities in the Kipawa district revealed many beautiful scenes and, in their repeated showings, must have favorably publicized the sporting attractions of this province — for these films have been widely exhibited.

A documentary film gave an intimate glimpse into the life and customs of the Indians at Grand Lake, Victoria, showing many phases of activities among these people — their industry, their social, home and religious life. Victoria is a section of lake and wood-land west of the Mont Laurier-Senneterre highway, and the natives there typify the 7,200 Indians living in primitive circumstances in this province — as distinct from those in reserves and closer to civilization. Among their their crafts was shown the fashioning of a birch-bark canoe — a replica of which, made by the same group, now appears at the Bedard Limited store in Lachute, brought here by the Rev. Lafleur in connection with his visit.

These film studies have been in wide demand. The lecturer has exhibited them at Washington under auspices of the National Geographic Society, and has been booked to present them next spring in Philadelphia.

In the past seven summers the Rev. Louis-Roger Lafleur has journeyed 35,000 miles in the course of his work — on photographic expeditions and exhibiting his films. He is familiar with all modes of travel in this province.

WINTER AMUSEMENTS CLUB TO OPERATE SKATING RINK THIS SEASON

"IN BROWNSBURG"
By Our Special Correspondent

Brownsburg — We regret to note the death of William Donaldson, brother of Mayor James Donaldson, which occurred during the week at Winnipeg, Man. The late William Donaldson was an old resident of Brownsburg, and was last on a visit to these parts in 1930. His son, George, also resides here, and to him as well as Mayor Donaldson we offer our sincere condolences.

Houses

The subject under discussion by the Citizens' Forum this week is "Where are the houses coming from?" . . . If the discussion was in Cote St. Paul, it could be readily answered they are coming from Brownsburg — as over 40 houses have been removed to date from the number built here by Wartime Housing during the war years. Fifty houses are remaining here for the present.

Indiscriminate Shooting

A horse, the property of Mr. Legault, was shot through the jaw while tied to a tree here last week. Mr. Legault had taken the horse to get some wood home from the bush. While preparing the load he moved some distance from where the animal was tied, and when he returned he found the animal bleeding profusely from a shot wound in the mouth. It is possible a stray bullet may have injured the horse, but it is also possible it may not have been a stray bullet. . . .

Some houses belonging to C-I-L were broken into recently and windows which were securely boarded up from damage on the outside, were wantonly smashed. Investigation proved that some destructive individuals shot the locks off the doors to gain entrance to the empty houses and then smashed the windows.

Skating

The Winter Amusements Committee held their first meeting on Friday night, when arrangements were made to operate the Skating Rink for the coming season. It was decided to form a Winter Amusements Club, of which Mayor Donaldson is president and Mr. G. H. Quinn secretary. Membership tickets will be issued for a fee of $1 per member, which will entitle the holder to use the rink for skating during the whole season. Family tickets will be issued at $3 each. Refreshments will be available on the premises and special facilities are being arranged for children. The rink will be floodlighted at night and musical numbers broadcast. The present undertaking is the outcome of proposals initiated by the Lighted School Group, who conducted the negotiations which led to securing the rink.

A Novel Competition

The Winter Amusements Committee is sponsoring a novel guessing competition to obtain funds for operating the Skating Rink this season. The "Stop-Clock Guessing Competition" operates something like this: A large chimes clock has been purchased and exhibited in the window of a leading jeweller in Brownsburg. On the evening of December 24, Mayor Donaldson will wind, seal and set going the clock, which will be on full view during the time it is allowed to run down. After the clock has stopped the holder of the ticket which contains the figures of that time will be declared the winner. Forms on which times are printed are available from committee members at 25 cents each. You guess which ticket is printed with the time the clock stops, and you win the clock or its equivalent value. The minute on which the clock stops is the one which wins.

Shot 400-lb. Bear At Rawdon, Que.

Clifford Oswald, a Ste. Scholastique farmer well known in this community, bagged a 400-pound bear while on a deer hunting trip to Rawdon recently. The animal was shot at 30 yards range with a single bullet through the head.

Mr. Oswald was informed the bear had been molesting sheep in the district for some time past. . . The carcass, hoisted on a pulley beside a barn wall, measured seven feet in length — Watchman representatives having seen a snapshot verifying this fact.

MORE REPATRIATES ON SAILING LISTS

In the latest sailing list issued for M.D. 4, of servicemen due on the Empress of Scotland docking yesterday at Halifax, are two soldiers from this town in the Maisonneuve Regiment — Pte. W. Ambeault, Lachute Mills, and Pte. E. Carriere, Lachute. . . . The name of L/Cpl. O. O. (Oswald) Carriere is deleted, suggesting he was due to sail but was not eventually among the contingent.

Two others to have arrived home, according to reports from local sources, are — Gnr. Alvin Young, who was royally welcomed among his friends at Avoca, and A/B Ken Walker, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Walker, Bethany.

Action in Pacific

A/B Walker saw action aboard the cruiser Prince Robert in the Pacific theatre of war, latterly being at Hong-Kong for the repatriation of liberated prisoners. Walker is only 19 years of age. He joined the Navy in August, 1944.

On Furlough from Occupation Army

Weir, Que.—Lieut. Pay A. Craig arrived aboard the Queen Elizabeth last week, and is now spending a 40-day furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Craig, at Weir.

Lieut. Craig has spent five years and 10 months overseas. He saw action on the Western European battlefront, and is now engaged on occupational duty with the Canadian forces at Wilhelmshaven, Germany — to which place he expects to return in January.

Brownie Enrolment Brownsburg Pack

Brownsburg — The enrolment ceremony of the Brownsburg Brownie Pack was held recently in the basement of the United Church. In absence of the District Commissioner, Mrs. Earle, the Pack was enrolled by Miss A. Zimmer, (Brown Owl) and Miss D. Steere (Tawny Owl). The Brownies were in uniform for the first time.

A short program and refreshments followed the enrolment.

Witnessing the ceremony were the mothers of the Brownies, Mrs. W. Leaton, Mrs. S. J. Pike, the Girl Guide committee, Guiders, and Brownie committee.

Radar's "Magic Eye"

With the aid of radar, Allied bombers were able to pinpoint their targets and bomb with maximum accuracy through cloud or in complete darkness. This apparatus relies for its operation on the principle that a beam of short-wave electric energy is "echoed" back to its point of origin in varying degrees of intensity by objects on the ground. Water gives no echo; and the strongest echoes come from built-up areas such as towns and cities. From the aircraft, a beam is transmitted, the returned "echo" passes through various stages and finally appears on the face of a cathode ray tube in the form of a map. How accurate these "echo maps" are is shown by comparing the ordinary map section with the map recorded by the radar apparatus.

Rotary Club Treated to Instructive Talk, Demonstration, on Telephone

Bell Company Expert Speaks on Sound Devices as Applied to Human Speech

Rotary Speaker

S. W. MAJOR,
special information representative, Bell Telephone Company of Canada

Brownsburg — The regular dinner meeting of the Rotary Club, held at Carriere's Hotel on November 22, brought forth some fascinating displays and an interesting lecture on sound and sound devices, particularly as applied to speech and its application to the telephone.

Seeing a bar of special magnetic steel float in mid-air; hearing a watch tick like a huge clock; seeing a steel bar waved into position and increase music volume at least double; as well as hearing a person speak with two voices simultaneously, by the use of an artificial larynx — were a few of the interesting experiences enjoyed with wrapt interest by the group.

"Your voice does not sound the same to you as it does to others," declared S. W. Major, special information representative of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, speaking on "Your Voice as Others Hear It".

To prove this point, Mr. Major had members of the audience listen to their voices as recorded on the Mirrophone, a magnetic-tape recording device which enables the recording to be reproduced immediately.

Describing how sound and speech are produced, Mr. Major demonstrated the artificial larynx, a device developed for those who have had to have their vocal cords removed. In this apparatus, a reed takes the place of the vocal cords, and the sound is moulded into speech by the mouth.

Connecting various telephones to the public address system, Mr. Major showed how greatly the telephone transmitter has been improved since Alexander Graham Bell constructed his first instrument in 1875.

The modern telephone, he said, transmits all the personality of your voice with great fidelity, but to exclude room noises which might interfere with the conversation, it is designed to give best results only when the lips are less than a quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

Dealing with the problem of transmitting the voice over a telephone line, Mr. Major pointed out that the energy produced by the average voice is measured in "insect power". Six million persons talking all at once would generate just enough energy to light an ordinary electric lamp, he said.

In transmitting a voice from Halifax to Vancouver over the Trans-Canada Telephone System, he said it might be necessary to amplify the original current one thousand duodecillion times — or whatever one-followed-by-75-zeroes is called.

Introduced by James Morrin, secretary of the Rotary Club of St. Jerome, and thanked by Rotarian Herbert Graves, the members were most appreciative of the fact that both the speaker and Mr. Merrin had braved the snowstorm and bad roads with a small truckload of equipment to give this most interesting talk and demonstration.

Guests included Rus Summers, Ed Cribb, Frank Stilwell, Ray Davidson, Paul Villard and Yvon Cyr, of Brownsburg, James Morrin, of St. Jerome, and D. Beaudry, of Montreal.

C.P.R. STATION AGENT GOES TO WESTMOUNT

Joseph Gignac, who for the past 12 years has been the efficient agent of the C. P. Railway here at Lachute, left on Saturday to take over his new duties at Westmount. This was a move of his own choice. During their sojourn here Mr. and Mrs. Gignac have made many friends — who, while regretting to see them go, wish them every success in their new sphere.

Guest Night Held By Masons Proves Popular Event

Friday evening was "Ladies' Night," sponsored by Argenteuil Masonic Lodge No. 67 — the event being held in Lachute Auditorium.

It is some years since a gathering of this kind has been held, and from the large and appreciative attendance it would appear that this will now be an annual event.

Over 175 sat down to an appetizing meal, prepared by Jack Roberts of Brownsburg.

Chas. Duncan, Worshipful Master of Argenteuil Lodge, presided at the head table, at which were also seated his principal officers. After extending a hearty welcome to all present the first toast of the evening was proposed by himself to the King, after which he called upon A. Talbot to pay tribute to Grand Lodge. This was responded to by Rev. W. B. Rosborough, District Deputy Grand Chaplain. L. J. King spoke in tribute to the ladies present, mingling his remarks with considerable humor. C. Rodgers then concluded the list with a toast to the visitors.

No time was lost and a splendid program of entertainment was started, supervised by Allan Murray, versatile and popular member of the famous Dumbells concert party which made such a hit in the First Great War and which did so much in keeping up the morale of the troops. During the recent conflict Mr. Murray has been doing his bit in the organization of concert parties and in rendering his own services as an entertainer.

First on the program was Edgar Assens, blind pianist, who favored with a piano selection. Seldom if ever has Lachute been favored with such a splendid pianist, and the audience sat spell bound, marvelling at his great ability under such misfortune. Appreciation was expressed by repeated applause, to which Mr. Assens responded with further selections.

Juanita and Juan (Miss Jeanne Rodier and Desmond McDermott) were most graceful in several selections of Spanish dances and were called back for encores. They make an excellent team.

Harry Brown gave a number of very fine songs, which were well rendered. His fine baritone voice and the ease with which he sang were specially noted.

Jack Roberts, an old trouper, of Brownsburg, gave a couple of songs which were well received.

Terry Goodwin, a young Scotch laddie wearing the kilts, gave a splendid exhibition of tap dancing, and also sang and monologued to the delight of the audience. He was repeatedly encored.

Allan Murray favored with several humorous selections which drew loud applause.

At the conclusion, Mr. Duncan expressed his appreciation to the group for their splendid entertainment and paid special tribute to Mr. Assens, who though incapacitated had become so talented and was indeed an inspiration to all.

A Brownsburg orchestra supplied the music for dancing, which was enjoyed by the many who remained for several hours.

The committee in charge is certainly to be congratulated on the success of this fine gathering and it is to be hoped that next year will see another such event.

CANADIAN CITIZENSHIP

Greater pride in themselves is seen for Canadians as a result of Parliament establishing Canadian citizenship. The act is designed to fill a real need, removing confusion and placing citizenship on a sounder and more satisfactory basis. Since Confederation we have really had no citizenship.

ENEMY WEAPON: A German one-man submarine, the first to arrive in Canada, is pictured being carefully loaded on a Canadian Pacific flatcar at Montreal, for shipment to Ottawa after its arrival in the Dutch ship Blommersdyk. Along with an extensive collection of captured enemy weapons it will be used for research purposes and later will form part of Canada's projected World War II museum. Experience gained through war years in handling cumbersome munitions shipments ("high and wide" loads to the railroader) enables the C.P.R. to transport safely these prized trophies of war.

Diabolical Plans of Hitler Revealed in Nuernberg Trial

By A. E. FULFORD,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Brutal words that Hitler spoke before the invasion of Poland, came out of the past to startle the 20 language." The record showed that Herman Goering, one of the 20 Nazi defendants at the Nuernberg trial and shock a world that believed the worst of Hitler and his henchmen had been heard.

In a secret speech delivered to his close followers 10 days before the invasion in 1939, Hitler said he had given orders "to kill without mercy all the men, women and children of the Polish race or Nuernberg defendants, was so delighted with his Fuehrer's words that he leaped on a table "and danced like a savage."

Other secret documents showed Hitler told his followers of his plans to attack the Netherlands, Belgium, France, Britain, Poland and Russia months and in some cases years before the attacks actually took place. Evidence also was introduced telling of a promise by Hitler to the Japanese eight months before Pearl Harbour that Germany would accept the consequences "if Japan would get involved with the United States."

One of the secret documents disclosed that Hitler in May, 1939, told his general staff that Britain was the "driving force against Germany" and that he planned to slice Britain off from the remainder of Europe by cutting her food supplies. He demanded the immediate destruction of the British fleet after the outbreak of war.

Hitler's speech on Poland, the documents revealed, was made the day before the announcement that Russia and Germany had concluded a non-aggression pact. That Hitler regarded that pact as only a temporary device was indicated in these words:

"And besides, gentlemen, in Russia will happen just what I have practised with Poland. After Stalin's death — he is seriously ill — we shall crush the Soviet Union."

FEEL STRIKE'S EFFECTS

Edmonton (CP) — Edmontonians are feeling the effects of the three-week strike of coal miners against meat rationing. As temperatures dropped to 16 below zero, fuel dealers said they were able to provide their customers with only part of their requirements.

Modern Breeding Reduces Disease

London (CP) — Agriculture Minister Tom Williams disclosed that artificial insemination of cattle had greatly reduced trichomoniasis, a breeding disease, in a two-year test made in the Vale of Clwyd, Denbighshire.

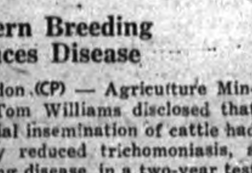

"It would be quite wrong to claim that artificial insemination is the answer to other breeding troubles, but in the case of this disease the results are definitely encouraging," he said.

"This particular experiment can, therefore, be said to be approaching a happy conclusion. It has been decided that the Ministry shall continue to operate a service in that area to pursue the more intensive or more high technical aspects of artificial insemination research."

Eire Poultrymen Meet Competition

Leitrim, Eire (Reuters) — Leitrim City committee of agriculture was told by an inspector for the Eire agriculture department that Danish and Dutch producers soon would enter into competition with Eire to capture egg and poultry export trade.

This particular trade was worth £12,000,000 ($54,000,000) to the small farmers of Eire and should be fostered and encouraged, he said.

Paper-Backed World

THIS WORLD has never stood so badly in need of the interchange of ideas and differing views. If peace is to continue, citizens of every country must learn the views of the other fellow, learn that he isn't necessarily an enemy because he has a different concept of government.

Ideas, if they are to reach across the seas and the continents, must travel on paper. And the world which sees democracy at work in Canada looks also to the Dominion for a great part of the raw material of world understanding — paper.

Canada produces a third of the world's supply of newsprint, the stuff on which this newspaper is printed, the stuff on which the smallest and the largest newspapers in the world are printed.

Worth more than Canada's exports of wheat, gold or any other commodity, Canadian pulp and paper sells abroad in a normal year to the value of about $150,000,000. Most of it is taken by the United States and Britain but as democracy, popular education, a free press and economic progress extend, countries throughout the world are bound to make increasing demands on Canadian forests.

Nine-tenths of our forests are publicly owned and licensing, research, transport and taxation policies have much to do with the way the woods are worked. Farm wood lots are important sources of wood for pulp and paper — and of cash to farmers. Public policies which will discover all the main facts about our forests, and then encourage the scientific application of these findings in the light of experience in other countries will do much to ensure the leadership of Canada as a paper country.

That leadership is important to all Canadians. Nearly one quarter of all the things we buy abroad — china from England, oranges from California, sugar from the Caribbean and so on —we get in exchange for Canadian forestry products.

Farmers' Ideas on Strikes

HOG-TROUGH ORATORS — designating, with no intended disrespect, the spokesmen of the agricultural class — seem to have taken a hand this week in arguments on the industrial strikes.

It was Patrick H. Ashby, Social Credit member for East Edmonton, whose speech — "had not members been able to read it later in the always sane and sober Hansard, they might have thought they had been 'hearing things' ". In discussing the Ford strike at Windsor he said the workers had "broken out of the pasture", and continued with the homily: "To show you how farmers would deal with this strike problem, let us imagine we are on my farm. The hogs have broken out of the pen, and I am standing in the kitchen waiting for a couple of doughnuts my wife has been frying . . . " — Which may be all very simple, and in the elementary form most suited to some of our parliamentary representatives. . . Mr. Ashby's argument, however, was for Social Credit as the logical solution; and we will leave it at that.

* * *

Of more practical interest are the views of a farmer's wife, expressed in a letter to the Canadian Countryman. The gist of her remarks we quote herewith :

"Apparently the only large group in the country not in a striking mood is the farm population. The farmer seems to be satisfied. He is enjoying a position of economic parity — a position in which his returns for a 12-hour day (plus the hours contributed by his wife and children) are equal to the returns of the industrial laborer for his eight-hour day.

"Let us assume that all these groups have a moral right to 30 per cent wage increase and a 40-hour week. Do they not concede to all non-striking groups the same right? Let us be fair and square and increase the income of every person in the country by 30 per cent and cut their working hours to 40 per week. Are we any better off?

"Even a moron could see that we would be in a worse position. Our export trade would suffer if all prices were increased by 30 per cent. The non-farming population would most certainly be half-starved if the farmer worked 40 hours per week instead of the 100 hours which he (and his family) spend on the farm work at present.

"If industry were able by more efficient management, up-to-date machinery, increased output, etc., to offer a pay increase, it would be much better and fairer to reduce the price of all manufactured articles, thus benefitting the consumer. This would be helping every man, woman and child in the country. If a product is lowered in price, the demand for it is increased, exports are increased and the entire industry stimulated."

Committees

WHAT the Yorkton, Sask., Enterprise thinks of committees:

"Without committees, it is altogether probable that the work of the world would never get done. They are a useful invention of those practical people, the English. The fact that they have been around for some 350 years implies that they are fulfilling their function.

"In spite of that, committees are not popular. Some would go so far as to believe that they were invented by an infernal imagination for the express purpose of inflicting misery on a hapless humanity".

The Value of A Cigarette

"THE CIGARETTE has taken over in many European countries as the common medium by which goods are priced", remarked A. E. Powley, CBC overseas representative, on his return recently from Europe. "Inflation destroys a nation's currency. Money just about ceases to be a medium of exchange. Value is thought of in terms of cigarettes or of any item in great demand. The generally quoted value of cigarettes in Holland was one guilder each, which is two shillings or roughly fifty cents," he elaborated.

Mr. Powley said that "the loopy mathematics of inflation" were all too readily comprehended by the average man, who realized quickly that if the price of goods was tremendously inflated then he would have to sell his goods or services at high prices to be able to afford to buy. As a result, "The spiral of inflation shot skywards like a giant firecracker going off."

"There seemed to be one craving above all others in Holland after its liberation," Mr. Powley stated, "and that was the craving for cigarettes. When people are deprived of a lot of things it is oddly enough the luxury deprivations that hurt the most. It is the loss of the little things that seems to count more than anything else.

"I suppose it is the difference between hunger and starvation. A merely hungry man wants food above everything else, but it is reasonable to think that when he has been systematically starved for years, hunger has become endemic while the prospect of a cigarette calls up a more immediate appetite.

"I saw little of Europe after the liberation," Mr. Powley said, but one sight that could get very familiar was the loosely-milling crowd in any sidestreet of a town. More than likely it was just the local black market in operation.

"Shortly after the liberation of Brussels I asked a leading Belgian banker why something wasn't done to stop these black markets. He said black marketing was, after all, one of the virtues of the resistance. "When a man's been at it four years", the banker said, "knowing he'd be shot if caught, he isn't going to be deterred by the threat of a small fine or a week in jail. The only cure for the black market is an adequate supply of food."

Views on Bomb-Dropping

"THE ONLY DEFENCE against atomic bombs is the creation of a world in which no one has the slighest desire to drop atomic bombs on anyone else." This statement appears in a National News Letter by Stephen King-Hall, condensed in the November issue of Reader's Digest. No truer or clearer statement on the question has been made.

But what of the conclusion given — "World Government or World Destruction?" Would putting the nations under a world government give them less desire to drop bombs on each other than they had before? Has any other form of formal union — marriage — articles of incorporation — the Government of the Dominion — made people any less self-willed and antagonistic?

If married people never threw plates at each other — if workers and employers never staged strikes or lockouts — if we were not now upon the verge of a new conflict over the control of industry — we might think that a union of the nations would really unite them and give the answer to atomic bombs.

Until we find the answer to divorce, however, to bitterness in industry, and to mud slinging in Parliament, a proposal for world government just dodges the real issue. The real question is not "Union Now", but union — how?

The tragedy is that this question HAS been answered, and goes unrecognized. Men have found the answer to disunion and friction when, together, they follow Christian principle and find a sudden, unexpected freedom from the selfishness which caused their differences. Men who have found this real unity, can make their example so revolutionary and appealing that it sweeps across the world. Then no one will want to drop bombs on anyone else.

To A War-Torn Garden

Do you wonder, struggling beauties,
Where the loving hands have gone,
And the face that smiled upon you
From the tulip-bordered lawn?

Hands that carried cooling waters,
Cast out weeds that boldly pressed,
Plucked your buds, whose opening beauty
Made her clasp them to her breast.

Do you wonder why the children
Come no more to dance with glee,
O'er the path of flaming petals
You had scattered full and free?

E'en the stream that gurgled by you
Sings no more its pean of praise,
Choked with dust and scattered debris,
It has turned to other ways.

Weeds grow tall and rank about you,
Yet you struggle, undismayed,
Fling your fragrance high, toward heaven,
And of Life seem not afraid.

Teach us, oh courageous blossoms,
To retain the Upward View,
And in faith and hope go forward
Dauntless, trusting, tried and true.

Who Should Control the Atomic Bomb?

Specially Contributed by M. V. Trayers

The atomic bomb is too dangerous to be loose in a lawless world. So says President Truman. The world is in grave peril today, in greater peril than after Pearl Harbour, or after Stalingrad or after Dunkirk. At those times a part of the world was in danger, but today the danger is universal. Then, democracy was in danger; now all mankind is in danger of extermination. What can we do about it? So great are the implications created by the atomic bomb that nothing in politics remains unchanged. The whole picture of peace, security and social well-being has been altered — now we have universal insecurity. Armaments are now no good, military strategy is of no avail. Armies are no good, navies are no good. One bomb can destroy them. There is a new new alignment of powers. Only the great powers can at present make the bomb, so that the great powers have become greater and the small powers have become smaller. There is a new conception of the haves and the have-nots — those who have the bomb and those who have not.

There is therefore a new urge for democratic government. The world cannot afford to tolerate a dictator who may become "heady" go "berserk", and ruin civilization or blast it into oblivion.

Mr. Churchill believes that we have only three years to meet the problem posed by the bomb. Today the United States is the only nation which has complete knowledge and technical experience in manufacturing the bomb. The Smyth report recently released by the U.S. War Department relates that the United States has told other nations along what road they must travel to reach the same result which the U.S. discovered. Any group of scientists can follow along this road and reach the same result. The Smyth Report also said that three independent groups of scientists had been working and experimenting in the utilization of atomic energy. The three worked independently, one group did not know what the other two groups were doing, yet all three arrived at the same result. All were successful. Therefore there can be no doubt other groups of scientists working with the same general information will also be successful. Anywhere the mind can work there is a possibility the bomb can be made.

In the event of another war among the great nations, the use of atomic weapons would decide the issue in a few hours. There is therefore a new urgency in establishing control of the atomic bomb, and this control must establish, once and for all, world peace. To have world peace, the type of control must be some form of world government; and with the present disorganized state of world affairs, the erection of the machinery of world government looks like a hopeless task. We may have three years in which to form this government; we may have 10 or 20 years, we do not know — but we do know the need of a world government exists.

We must set about the task of educating the minds of the public so that a wider conception of citizenship can be attained. We can no longer sit securely behind our national boundaries, we must become world citizens.

We have the alternative of building up a large stock of atomic bombs, as we were wont to do in the pre-atomic age when we built up large armies and large navies equipped with huge armament. But we can't build a durable peace on a pile of atomic bombs. We need some kind of universal agreement, an agreement not to use the atomic bomb. To be effective we must control its use. Everyone agrees there must be control. We can't have control without power. To have power we must have a body to exercise it, to govern it. Therefore we must have a government — a world government.

Behind the international scene today there is a mad scramble to obtain possession of the scientific knowledge necessary to produce the atomic bomb. Other important atomic knowledge has been obtained and by-passed in the search for the bomb. Not only the danger that the bomb will be used, but the fact of not knowing what other nations are doing, leads to fear of the worst; and distrust increases. Any agreement for control of the bomb must therefore include provisions to inspect the work of atomic energy being carried on within a country. This of necessity entails the surrender of sovereignty to some extent. It also entails the surrender of the right to secede from any world organization set up to control the use of the bomb, as otherwise such an organization would be as ineffective as the League of Nations, from which Japan and Germany withdrew when a crisis arose. We now belong to a world unit; true, it is a very unorganized unit as present day conditions reveal. Nevertheless there can be no two powers henceforth. There can be no power greater than the atomic bomb. If we have two powers exercising control over the bomb, each would be as strong as the other. There would then be the danger of a a clash and we would be no better off than we are at the moment.

Norman Cousins, editor of the "Saturday Review of Literature", has said: "Man today is similar to a person who is at the edge of a canyon with a forest fire raging behind him. He cannot retreat; he cannot go forward because there is a sheer drop of several thousand feet, but (and this is a big "but", even though the canyon is only ten feet wide) if he can jump across that canyon he can make the other side. It so may happen that this particular person may never have been able to jump ten feet before. There is nothing in his experience to indicate that he can jump ten feet, and yet the longer he waits the less space he will have in which to make that running leap. So, the thing for him to do is to make the leap right away, just as fast as he can. — Unless we recognize the nature and imminence of the peril, fire will creep up on us, and we will have to jump from a standing position, or perhaps we may have to try and step across".

Ration Books Show Population Increase

A substantial increase in the population of Canada and of the Province of Quebec is reflected in the figures issued by the Ration Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board on the number of ration books issued up until October 1, 1945.

Though the Ration Administration points out the figures are far from a complete total of the Canadian population — as they do not include those still in the armed services, that section of the population in the far north where rationing is not in effect and the large number of single people in cities who never bother to obtain ration books — the total number of books issued is 153,278 above the 1941 census returns.

OBITUARY

Weir Citizen Dies In City Hospital

The Late Albert Woods

Weir — This community was shocked to learn of the passing of Albert Woods on Sunday morning, November 18, at the Royal Victoria Hospital — where Mr. Woods had been a patient since suffering a severe stroke at his home here ten days previously. From that seizure he never regained consciousness.

The funeral service, which was largely attended, was held in the Church of the Redeemer, Weir, on Tuesday afternoon, November 20. The Rev. C. R. Lang, rector of Lachute Anglican Church officiated — assisted by the Rev. S. J. Pike, minister of the United Church at Brownsburg.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Henry and Douglas Williams, A. J. Kerr, Wilfred Morrison, Marvin Davis and Roy Smith, all of this community.

Left to mourn his passing — besides his widow, formerly Lucy Bates — are two daughters, Mrs. Alex Williams (Ethel), Mrs. R. H. Weldon (Muriel), and one son, Homer, all residing in Weir. There remain also six grandchildren, LAC. Victor Williams, at Debert, N.S., Royce Williams, of Weir, Hazel, Ronald, Earl and Wade Woods, also of this place.

Attending the funeral from a distance was his brother, Thos. Woods, accompanied by his daughter Edna, of Brownsburg.

Many floral tributes bore silent testimony of the esteem in which he was held.

Interment took place in the family plot at Arundel cemetery.

Orangemen Attend Funeral of Late David G. Steele

The death of David Geo. Steele, beloved husband of Lottie May Thompson and a resident of the farming community west of Lachute, occurred on Wednesday, November 21, after a prolonged period of ill health, which latterly became acute — the kindliest care and medical aid being unavailing to avert his passing.

The funeral service was held at the Brownsburg United Church on Saturday afternoon, conducted by the minister, the Rev. S. J. Pike, who spoke feelingly for the bereaved and words of commendation of the deceased. Of a quiet and kindly nature, the late David Steele had made a host of friends, and many were the visitors to his home, especially during the latter weeks of his illness. He was also a member of the Loyal Orange Association, members of which attended the funeral in a body. Burial took place in the Lachute Cemetery, Pall-bearers were Messrs. Stanley Holt, Roy Dixon, Everett McGibbon, James Hay, Roy Mott and Edward Thompson.

Graham), of St. Catharines, Ont., Gertrude (Mrs. J. McLeod), of Caledon, Ont., and Mary (Mrs. Cecil Moncrieff), of Cayley, Alberta.

Resident of West Related in District

The Late Wm. A. Donaldson

Brownsburg — The death of William Albert Donaldson, of St. James, Manitoba, occurred on Friday, November 23, at the age of 60 years. Mr. Donaldson was a former Brownsburg resident, and an employee of C-I-L before leaving 35 years ago to make his home in the West.

Well known as a builder and contractor, he was also active in several fraternities — the Oddfellow and Rebecca orders, and the Orange Lodge, in Winnipeg.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Edith Martin of Brownsburg; three daughters and two sons, Gladys (Mrs. D. Laidlaw), Edna (Mrs. W. Bell), Stella (Mrs. R. Place), all of Winnipeg, Earl Donaldson, also of Winnipeg, and George, of Brownsburg. There remain also three sisters and two brothers — Mrs. Bertha Cafferty, of Ottawa, Mrs. H. Gardiner, of Brownsburg, Mrs. F. McCool, of Toronto; John Donaldson, of Chatboro, and James Donaldson, of Brownsburg; and his step-mother, Mrs. John Donaldson, also of Chatboro.

The funeral took place at St. James, Man., on Tuesday, November 27.

"Laurentian Winter" — Oil painting by Marc Aurèle Fortin

Do you know Quebec? Do you know, for example, that many of Canada's most talented artists are native to our province? Nor is this surprising when one considers the inspiring beauty and colorful history of Quebec. Krieghoff—Gagnon—Lemieux—Fortin—Philippe Hébert—Suzor-Côté—and many others are represented in The National Gallery and important private collections. Younger men and women of outstanding ability already tread in their footsteps and students are given every encouragement to develop their skill.

In addition to painting and sculpture, Quebec's gifted sons and daughters have contributed much to the other arts . . . architecture, music, literature, and science. Not only do their accomplishments bring pleasure to their fellow citizens, they help to break down the barriers of language and misunderstanding. They give to the other provinces, and, in fact, to the world at large, accurate impressions of Quebec and its friendly people.

Briefly, they play a vital part in establishing the national unity which will eventually mean greater happiness and prosperity for all within our wide-flung borders.

QUEBEC BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE

In 1608 Champlain brought the first colonists to Quebec. Since then, Quebec has grown and prospered. Today, her population is 3,000,000, her retail trade $800,000,000.00 per year. Quebec leads all the Provinces in the production of hydro-electric power, textiles, lumber, newsprint, boots and shoes, processed tobacco, asbestos and aluminum. Natural resources—agriculture in all its forms—and transportation are being developed wisely. And now, Quebec, her people deep-rooted in the love of their homeland, prepares to share with her sister Provinces, Canada's bright and glorious future!

Baptists Make Gesture In "Crusade for Christ And His Kingdom"

Brownsburg — On Sunday last, the Maple Avenue Baptist Church took the initial step in its part in the nation-wide "Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom" now engaging the attention of the four major Protestant denominations. This was a generous response to the appeal for relief made on behalf of the Baptists of continental Europe.

In his morning sermon the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Leaton, pointed out that there are approximately 2,000 Baptist churches in Europe exclusive of the British Isles and Russia, with a total membership of 300,000. These churches are distributed throughout every country but two, Luxembourg and Monaco. It is the aim of the Baptist Federation of Canada to send $134,000 to their relief immediately.

"This gift is motivated", the pastor said, "not by sentimental but by practical considerations. As far as we are concerned, Europe is a foreign mission feild needing to be evangelized — and our evangelists are already there, the European Baptists. It is our task and privilege to set them on their feet materially and spiritually. Through this aid coming from a foreign land, they should know that God has not forgotten them but has put it into the hearts of his servants to help. It is hoped and expected that (in the words of Neh. 2:18) they will 'rise up and build' and 'strengthen their hands to this good work' ".

The Value of Personal Testimony Discussed At Christian Endeavor

The monthly "cultural" meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society was held Monday evening in the Sunday School hall of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. M. Vessie.

The Rev. C. R. Lang gave the topic of the evening, entitled "Ye Shall Be Witnesses". The essence of Mr. Lang's talk was, that the interjection of personal testimonies of our experience of Christ into church activity, could possibly be a real factor in strengthening the church.

In the discussion that followed, it was apparent that the members were in accord with Mr. Lang's thesis. It was felt however that a serious danger in "witnessing for Christ" lay in the possibility of irresponsible persons giving insincere or false testimonies, one such testimony being sufficient to nullify the value of many true ones. However, some means of overcoming such a danger could undoubtedly be found. It was felt that each and every one might expend some thought on the matter, to the profit of the individual and of the churches.

The meeting of Monday next will be under the chairmanship of Harold Orsborn.

The weekly meeting of the Young People's Union of the Lachute United Church was held Wednesday evening, with Jack Gorman presiding and Vivian Rick recording the minutes.

Psalm 90 was read by Doug Gordon and the prayer by Jean Tomalty. An interesting current event was given by Edith Clark describing remarkable first-aid efforts and healing powers in the animal kingdom. The program was under direction of the Christian Culture convenors, Doris Leroy and Mary Scott.

A nomination committee composed of Vivian Rick, Doug Gordon and Cliff Armstrong was appointed to arrange a slate of officers for 1946. It was decided to attend the meeting at St. Andrews East on December 6, when Miss Olive Sparling, of the W.M.S., is to be guest speaker.

The meeting was to have heard the Rev. S. T. Burman, of Cushing, but a series of mishaps and blockade of the St. Andrews East - Lachute Road finally compelled the speaker to abandon the trip and return home.

The meeting next week will be under direction of the Citizenship convenors.

Why VICKS VAPORUB Is So Good For Relieving Miseries of Childrens Colds

More than two generations ago—in grandmother's day—mothers first discovered Vicks VapoRub. Today it is the most widely used home-remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds. And here is the reason . . .

The moment you rub VapoRub on the throat, chest and back at bedtime it starts to work two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours—to ease coughing spasms, help clear congestion in cold-clogged upper breathing passages, relieve muscular soreness or tightness. It promotes restful deep. Often most of the misery of the cold is gone by morning! That's why VapoRub is so good to use when colds strike. Try it!

In Memory of Seaman

Flowers displayed in St. Simeon's Anglican Church last Sunday were placed by the Hibbard family in memory of Arnold Ashly Hibbard, who was lost at sea a year ago.

Visits Legion Member

While in Toronto recently, R. A. Giles, having a few hours to spare before train time, dropped in to see one of the Legion comrades, Walter Cross. It is over two years since Mr. and Mrs. Cross left Lachute and they are now nicely settled in a business of his own — a cigar and confectionery store. Needless to say there was a happy re-union as different ones were asked about and changes mentioned that had taken place since they left. Young Eddie Morgan, their grandson, over six feet tall, who has been in the services for over two years, was also present, along with Mrs. Cross. All are looking well and wished to be kindly remembered to their many friends in Lachute. Mr. Cross is now receiving The Watchman again and will be better able to keep in touch with the old home town, which to both he and Mrs. Cross will always be "home", at least on this side of the Atlantic.

Interest-Appeal in Financial Report; Bank of Montreal Departs from Custom

Strong Position of Canadians Seen in Record Deposits, 1,400,000 Accounts

Over 100,000 Citizens Get Personal Loans at Bank in 12-Month Period

Montreal — Evidence of the modern trend in banking methods is seen in this year's annual report of the Bank of Montreal which — issued in the form of a well-illustrated, easily-understood financial story — is lifted out of the class of the conventional bank statement.

Departing from all precedent, the B of M tells its 1945 story with illustrations which interpret financial developments of the past year in terms of people — not in terms of the banker but in the language of the man in the street.

The story is one of record deposits, all-time high resources and a breakdown showing just how the bank contributes to the economic life of Canada through its services to well over a million customers.

In the old "assets" column — now appropriately labelled "Resources which the B of M has to meet its obligations" — are explanations, in simple language, of the various items of the balance sheet —cash, money, investments, stocks, call loans, quick assets, resources and liabilities.

The B of M has more than one billion dollars invested in government bonds and other highgrade securities which have a ready market.

Heavy War Financing

Investments of this kind account for $1,117,604,000 of the bank's resources, indicating how heavily the bank has shared in the financing of the government's war effort.

Other "liquid resources" include cash of $161,907,000, money which other banks owe the B of M totalling $124,063,000, and call loans — loans payable on demand — of $60,417,000.

Total resources are given as $1,715,934,000, which is a new peak in the 128-year-old history of the bank.

The "liabilities" of the bank, now described simply as "What the B of M owes to others", are highlighted by deposits of $1,613,428,000, another new high which reflects the general prosperity of the country. These deposits — savings and current accounts of manufacturers, merchants, farmers, fishermen and private citizens — have risen by some $200,000,000 during the last year.

An illustration, accompanying the statement, shows how business firms and private citizens borrow hundreds of millions of dollars every year from the B of M and how these loans — now $220,000,000 — oil the wheels of commerce and industry, create employment, and help Canadians in their day-to-day financing.

Personal Loans Over 100,000

More than 100,000 individual Canadians, in all walks of life, turned to the bank during the last year for a personal loan when extra money was needed, and the statement adds that 94 people out of every hundred who applied for loans got them. Another illustration shows how money deposited in the bank is loaned out to Canadians engaged in every sound pursuit.

A brief "profit and loss account" shows that profits for the year totalled $5,719,681 before provision for income and excess profits taxes. Estimates of such taxes, however, cut the profit almost in half, leaving $2,934,681 out of which dividends were paid to shareholders totalling $2,160,000. It is noted that shareholders received 60 cents for each $10 share of the bank.

The net amount left after deductions for taxes and payments to shareholders totalled $774,681, representing the balance of profits for the year.

BANK OF MONTREAL "MY BANK" TO A MILLION CANADIANS B of M Reports—

More than a million Canadians keep their money safe at the B of M. Each of the Bank's 1,400,000 deposit accounts is an expression of trust in this 128-year-old institution. The money on dep sit, totalling $1,613,000,000, is being constantly employed for the financial needs of the nation, of business, and of citizens in every walk of life.

Business firms and private citizens from the Atlantic to the Pacific have, during the year, borrowed and repaid many millions of dollars from the B of M. Now standing at $220,000,000, the Bank's loans oil the wheels of commerce and industry . . . speed their expansion . . . create employment . . . and help Canadians in their personal day-to-day financing.

Well over one hundred thousand individual Canadians—plumbers and postmen, truck drivers and trainmen, doctors and dentists, business men and business women—turned to the B of M during the last twelve months for a Personal Loan when extra money was needed to take advantage of an opportunity or meet an emergency. Ninety-four people out of every hundred who asked for money got it.

To buy seed, to market crops, to improve their farms . . . grain growers, cattle and poultry raisers, fruit growers and fur breeders—farmers in every line of agriculture—borrow at the B of M. Money which farmers borrow not only brings comfort and prosperity to agricultural communities, but, by enabling farmers to produce more, contributes to the prosperity and welfare of the whole nation.

In financing the needs of government and of business, the Bank shares heavily by investment in government and other bonds and debentures. Throughout the war these investments have increased tremendously and today they amount to well over a billion dollars. The majority of these are gilt-edge securities, maturing at early dates, and are readily marketable.

RESOURCES WHICH THE B of M HAS TO MEET ITS OBLIGATIONS:

CASH . . . The B of M has cash in its vaults and money on deposit with the Bank of Canada amounting to . . . $ 161,907,891.42

MONEY in the form of notes of, cheques on, and deposits with other banks (payable on demand or at short notice) . . . 124,063,250.42

INVESTMENTS: The B of M has well over one billion dollars invested in high-grade government bonds and other securities, which have a ready market. The majority of them will be paid in full at early dates. Listed on the Bank's books at a figure not greater than their market value, they amount to . . . 1,117,604,002.86

STOCKS of industrial and other companies form but a small part of the Bank's holdings (actually only 1/33 of 1% of all its investments). Valued at no more than the market price, they amount to . 333,993.69

CALL LOANS: The B of M has call loans (loans payable on demand) which are well protected by quickly saleable securities. These loans amount to . . . 60,417,105.51

QUICKLY AVAILABLE RESOURCES: The resources listed above, all of which can quickly be turned into cash, cover 89.44% of all that the Bank owes to its depositors and others. These "quick assets" amount to . . . $1,464,326,243.90

LOANS: During the year, millions of dollars have been loaned to business firms, to farmers, to fishermen — to citizens in all walks of life, and to Provincial and Municipal Governments and School Districts. These loans now amount to . . . 220,264,341.15

BANK BUILDINGS: In hamlets, villages, towns and large cities from coast to coast the B of M serves its customers at 470 offices. The value of the buildings owned by the Bank, together with furniture and equipment, is shown on its books at . . . 10,571,610.18

OTHER ASSETS: These chiefly represent liabilities of customers for commitments made by the Bank on their behalf, covering foreign and domestic trade transactions, totalling $16,895,827.58. . . . 20,772,125.26

TOTAL RESOURCES WHICH THE B of M HAS TO MEET ITS OBLIGATIONS . . . $1,715,934,320.49

WHAT THE B of M OWES TO OTHERS:

DEPOSITS: Business firms, manufacturers, merchants, farmers and private citizens, numbering well over a million, have money on deposit with the B of M. These deposits amount to . . . $1,613,428,705.56

BANK NOTES: B of M bills in circulation, which are payable on presentation, amount to . . . 6,619,026.50

OTHER LIABILITIES: Miscellaneous items, representing mainly commitments undertaken on behalf of customers in their foreign and domestic trade transactions, totalling $16,895,827.58. . . . 17,144,653.99

TOTAL OF WHAT THE B of M OWES ITS DEPOSITORS AND OTHERS . . . $1,637,192,386.05

TO PAY ALL IT OWES, THE B of M HAS TOTAL RESOURCES, AS SHOWN ON THE LEFT SIDE OF THIS STATEMENT, AMOUNTING TO . . . 1,715,934,320.49

WHICH MEANS THAT THE B of M HAS RESOURCES, OVER AND ABOVE WHAT IT OWES, AMOUNTING TO . $ 78,741,934.44

This figure of $78,741,934.44 is made up of money subscribed by the shareholders who own the Bank and, to some extent, of profits which have from time to time been ploughed back into the business to broaden the Bank's services.

• • •

PROFITS: After making provision for contingencies and after providing $579,840.48 for depreciation of Bank premises, furniture and equipment, the B of M reports a profit for the twelve months to October 31st, 1945, of . . . $3,719,681.58

Taxes under the Income and Excess Profits Taxes Acts are estimated at 2,785,000.00

Leaving a net profit of . . . $2,934,681.58

Of this amount, shareholders (paid dividends at the rate of 60 cents a year for each $10-share of the Bank) received or will receive . 2,160,000.00

Thus, the net amount to be added to the balance of profits from previous years' operations is . . . $ 774,681.58

Balance in the Profit and Loss Account at October 31st, 1944, amounted to . . . 2,413,821.32

Leaving the balance in this account at October 31st, 1945, at . . . $3,188,502.90

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

NO CHEERS

Lady Byng in her book 'Up the Stream of Time' wonders why it is that Canadians will cheer with great gusto at a hockey or baseball game, but will stand on the sidelines and watch a military parade with not a cheer out of them. We thought of this when we were at the station when a New Brunswick regiment arrived home. There was a great mob of people and when the train arrived a Colonel was trying very hard to get the crowd to cheer the men, but with scant success. Everyone was glad and excited but they certainly did not make much noise about it. We are a self-conscious race. Look how hard it is to get a crowd to sing. Some of the attempts at a picture show are pitiful.

GOOD FISHING

Wherever we live we have found certain foods, peculiar to that locality, which are at their best. One would expect to get good fish in New Brunswick, and we certainly do. Right now we have two trays of scallops frozen in the refrigerator, there being more than we could use fresh, and we find they quick-freeze successfully. The crisper is full of clams ready to steam. We have oysters in the shell from Buctouche and from Shippegan. We have a case of canned lobster; canned quahags, mussels, and sardines; and a case of smoked kippers. Now if we just had some canned salmon we would be satisfied. We have never had canned mussels before, and for that matter I have never tasted fresh ones. I made a stew to try them and the flavor of the mussels themselves was delicious and they were very tender, but the broth was a bit strong. Next time I will use only a small part of the juice and more milk, instead of half and half. We use a lot of canned clams for stews and chowders. Fresh clams cannot be shipped. Steamed clams are something to dream about. The clams are steamed until the shells open, the broth is poured into cups and placed in the centre of a dinner plate, then the clams are piled around — and I mean piled, because you can eat more of them than you ever think possible. Melted butter is put in another dish, then you dunk your clam first in the broth and then in the butter then down the hatch. And are they ever good. Using plenty of fish, canned, smoked or fresh, is a good way to spare our meat.

PEANUT BUTTER

Peanut butter is a good food and fortunately most children are fond of it. It supplies protein, fat, and vitamin B1. Children from 1 to 12 years require 200 units of vitamin B1 a day, and those from 12 to 20 require about 700. Each tablespoon of peanut butter contains about 40 units and if you make sandwiches with whole wheat bread you will add about 25 units for each slice used. Four slices of bread made into peanut butter sandwiches will supply practically a day's need of vitamin B1 for a child up to 12 years old. Peanut butter needs something with it to cut the stickiness. Thinly sliced sweet cucumber pickles covering the peanut butter are good. Spread one slice of bread with peanut butter, and cover it with shred head lettuce, then spread the other slice with salad dressing. I have never tried finely shredded cabbage, but it probably would take the place of the lettuce successfully, and it is more readily available. Grated carrot mixed with the peanut butter is good. Many like a sweet mixed with peanut butter, orange marmalade, jelly, or sliced bananas are good. I know one mother who frequently serves peanut butter for her children's breakfast. It is not a usual breakfast food but the children love it and it certainly is good for them.

OATMEAL MEAT LOAF

We are advised to use plenty of whole-grain cereals, and most of us think of using them for breakfast. That is certainly a good place to use them, but it is not the only way. Cookies and breads can use considerable. Meats can take a share too. I tried oatmeal in a Meat Loaf and it was very successful. It sliced very well and when it was cold it was hard to tell which was meat and which was dressing. I have made it without using the dressing and find it slices better than when made using bread crumbs. The dressing in the meat loaf makes a small amount of meat go a long way.

2 Lbs. ground meat, ½ cup oatmeal, 1 beaten egg, ½ cup milk, ½ onion, finely chopped, 1½ teaspoons salt, dash of pepper.

OATMEAL DRESSING

2 Cups oatmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sage, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, beaten, ¼ onion, finely chopped.

Mix the ingredients for the meat loaf and put half the mixture in a greased baking dish. Cover with the dressing, which has been made by rubbing the butter into the dry ingredients, then mixing with the egg. Cover this with the remaining meat mixture. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for 1½ hours.

CREAM FILLING

⅓ Cup sugar, 3 tablespoons of flour, few grains salt, 1 egg, 1 cup milk 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix suar, flour and salt. Scald milk. Add slowly and cook over hot water or on slow heat stirring constantly. Beat the egg and pour hot mixture over eggs and cook for 3 minutes. Cool and add vanilla. This makes enough for two 9" layers of cake. Sometimes one can buy a good plain cake which can be split and filled, if sugar is lacking to bake one.

Examples of Co-operation Between Rural Women

Last week, mention was made of the successful joint meetings of the Women's Institute and Les Cercles des Fermières in some district sof this province. Now comes word of another opportunity for an exchange of ideas, this time with our neighbors to the south. The Liaison Committee of the Home Bureaus in the U.S.A. has asked the Institute to exchange plans and programs. They would also like to have joint meetings whenever possible. The provincial president, Mrs. W. C. Smallman, will send addresses to any group wishing to avail themselves of this opportunity and it is believed all branches near the border will enthusiastically support this project. . . . These are practical examples of real co-operation between rural women.

The salesman talked eloquently about the vacuum cleaner, but the village housewife wasn't impressed. She suggested that he talk less and show her what the machine could do.

Beaming broadly, the man lifted up the cleaner, thrust his arm into the chimney of the open fireplace and brought out a handful of soot which he scattered over the carpet.

He then shovelled some ashes from the grate and sprinkled them on the rug.

"Now", he said, smiling triumphantly, "I'll show you what this vacuum cleaner can do. You'll be surprised, madam. Where's the electric switch?"

"Switch?" echoed the surprised woman. "We use gas!"

50 HOURS WEEKLY SPENT ON CHORES

London (CP) — Nine million British women do all their housework unaided, averaging a 50-hour week on household chores, says a report prepared by Political and Economic Planning, which recommends production of cheap, labor-saving devices as essential to raise the standard of living.

The survey entitled a "report of the market for household appliances," was begun in 1943 at the request of the Board of Trade and provides estimates of the probable demand for various types of equipment during the 10 first post-war years.

Eighty-five per cent of the British national income is earned by families with incomes below £500 ($2,250), the report said, and those in lower income groups could not finance expensive fixtures. A family earning less than £160 ($720) a year could not spend more than one shilling a week on household equipment, whereas even at 2s 6d. it would take five years to pay for a £25 refrigerator.

In suggesting that homes without electrical wiring or carpets had little use for vacuum cleaners, the report showed that before the war only one in three homes of families earning less than £300 a year had piped water supply, and among families earning less than £160 the ratio was one in four.

DESSERTS

Dessert is something which we all anticipate at the end of a meal. It is the climax or special treat. A dessert must complement the meal. If the main course is substantial, then choose a simple dessert, but if the main course is light, then round out the meal with a nice rich steamed pudding.

Actually the word dessert comes from the French word meaning "to clear the table". The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, offer the following suggestions to improve your everyday dinners:

Chocolate Pudding

1 Tablespoon gelatine, 2 cups of milk, 6 tablespoons or 1½ squares grated unsweetened chocolate, 2 egg yolks, 3 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoons sugar, a few drops of peppermint flavoring.

Soak gelatine for 5 minutes in ¼ cup milk. Place remaining milk in top of double boiler and scald. Add soaked gelatine, grated chocolate and stir until chocolate melts. Beat egg yolks with 3 tablespoons sugar and salt. Pour hot chocolate mixture gradually over egg yolks, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler and continue cooking until mixture coats a spoon. Chill until partially set, about 45 minutes. Beat with rotary beater until light and fluffy. Beat egg whites until stiff and add the remaining 2 tablespoons sugar and flavoring. Fold into chocolate mixture and pour into a moistened mould. Chill until set and serve with cream. Six servings.

Orange Bread Pudding

4 Slices white bread, 2 tablespoons butter, ¾ cup orange sections or slices, 3 egg whites, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind. 3 egg yolks, ½ cup milk.

Spread bread with butter and cut in cubes. Place in greased baking dish and arrange oranges on top. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff. Gradually beat in the sugar and add the orange rind. Beat egg yolks; add milk and fold into beaten egg whites. Pour over bread mixture and oven-poach in a moderate oven of 350°F, for 40 minutes. Six servings.

Oat Peel Pudding

1 Cup rolled oats (quick cooking), ½ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup raisins (optional), ¼ cup peel, 2 eggs well beaten, ½ cup light molasses, ⅔ cup water, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice (½ lemon).

Mix rolled oats with soda, salt, cinnamon, raisins and peel. Combine the eggs, molasses, water and lemon juice, Add to the dry ingredients and turn into top of double boiler, lightly greased. Cook over boiling water, about 1¼ hours. Six servings.

You can't put the clock back in your married life, but you can put your hearts back in it.

HOUSEWIFE RAISES MINK AS SIDELINE

Edmonton Woman Keeps 100 Mink in Yard, Kills and Pelts Animals With Scalpel

Edmonton (CP) — As a cure for boredom and a way to make a little extra money, Mrs. Doris Dowell, a young housewife with a three-year-old daughter, is raising mink. That isn't so unusual for a woman these days but she also does the killing and pelting — which is unusual.

Before moving to the edge of the city seven years ago, Mrs. Dowell knew little about mink raising, but careful study of books and pamphlets has overcome that handicap. Her husband, an Edmonton office worker, helps her but she does most of the work herself.

The little mink farm is situated right in their back yard. At one time she had about 700 of the valuable animals in pens in the yard but shortage of help has forced her to cut down, and now just a little more than 100 are raised.

It was several years before Mrs. Dowell would undertake to kill and pelt the mink. She has no qualms about it now and with a scalpel or sharp jack-knife can skin a mink in a few minutes.

The feeding is somewhat of a problem and involves about 100 pounds of horse meat, cereal, dry bone and vegetables. All the ingredients are ground and the whole mixture placed in a wash tub on an old baby carriage which Mrs. Dowell propels to the different pens.

Fresh water must be in the pens at all times and in hot weather this means going the rounds four times daily. The pens must be kept clean and the sick mink looked after immediately, for they are delicate as well as valuable.

CHILDREN'S UNDIES TO BE SCARCE FOR SOME MONTHS YET

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, said this week that Canadians must face the fact that, though manufacturing output is higher than before the war, demands for children's underwear, sleepers and other nightwear cannot be fully satisfied for some months yet.

Commenting on shortages in these particular items, the Prices Board chairman noted he had repeatedly warned that dislocation of Canada's manufacturing resources could not be immediately overcome when the war ended.

The Prices Board had taken steps to overcome any "cases of actual hardship", he said. In such cases it had been arranged that if local offices of the board were informed with details of the circumstances involved, immediate efforts would be made to assist any person whose position required attention.

"In the main, however, it is just a question of doing the best we can for the next few months. While our position is not exactly comfortable, we have at least the satisfaction of knowing that we are probably better off than any other country in the world and it seems to me that we should accept the situation with patience.

"Some comments have also been made about the appearance of such things as luxury rayon negligees and so on. The manufacture of such articles does not involve a serious reduction in the supply of utility garments, as flat fabrics are not substitutes for knitted underwear.

"For underwear we need knitting yarns and this is a scarce item of textile supply the world over. Despite that, Canadian manufacturers, by good management and through our directed programs, are making more children's underwear than ever before in our history."

A protest was recently despatched to Mr. Gordon from the Ottawa Local Council of Women regarding the shortage of children's underclothing and the general lack of essential garments for men and women.

Boy Scouts The World Over

The first Scout meeting held in Tokyo since the conclusion of hostilities was staged by Rover Scouts of the crew of H.M.S. Indefatigable.

Wing Commander Len Birchall, known as the Saviour of Ceylon because he gave the warning of the approach of the Japanese fleet, was a Boy Scout in St. Catharines, Ont., as a boy.

The Boy Scouts Chins-Up Fund, originated early in the war to help Scouts in Britain and Europe, on November 15 had reached the total of $56,899.67. Monies from this fund are now being used to provide Scouting handbooks for the Scouts of European countries.

NAMED VICE PRESIDENT

John A. Stiles, Chief Executive Commissioner of the Boy Scouts Association in Canada, has been named Vice-President of the Intra-American Scout Committee which represents all the Scout organizations on the American continent. The organization is planning to meet at Bogota, Colombia, early in the new year.

SEEDS FOR BRITAIN

For the third year in succession Canadian Boy Scouts will sponsor a Seeds for Britain Fund. This fund provides hundreds of pounds of Canadian garden seeds for British Boy Scout victory gardens. Imperial Headquarters of the Movement reports remarkable crops from the Canadian seeds.

JOINS BOY SCOUT STAFF

Lt. (SB) L. L. Johnson, of the R.C.N.V.R., former Provincial Secretary of the Boy Scouts Association in New Brunswick, has joined the staff of Dominion Headquarters of the Boy Scouts as an Associate Editor in the Publications Department. Prior to his five years service with the Navy, Lt. Johnson was a city official at Saint John and a former city editor of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

CHIEF JUSTICE RETIRES

Mr. Justice J. B. M. Baxter, Chief Justice of New Brunswick, who since 1935 has been President of the Boy Scouts Association in that province, has retired and has been succeeded by Mr. Justice W. H. Harrison of the Exchequer Court. The new President is also Honorary Counsel for the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association.

They stepped into a church and were made one. Nowadays the question is — which one?

H.S. Grads to Enter Team in Argenteuil Hockey League

The Laurentian Hockey League will hold its final meeting Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Windsor Hotel. This should be a very strong league and a tentative schedule has already been drawn up, which will be duly published in The Watchman. The season should open on Saturday, December 15.

The Interprovincial League is all ready to go and a meeting will be held early next week to draw up the final schedule.

The Argenteuil League held a conclave at the Windsor Hotel on Monday night, at which Ayers Ltd. were represented by Mr. Gravel, Knights of Columbus by Mr. J. Raymond, St. Philippe by Mr. Tessier, and a new team composed of Lachute High School Grads by Mr. R. H. FitzGerald. Brownsburg have stated their intention of entering a team in this league, and should be represented at the next meeting, Friday evening, at 10 o'clock in the same place. It is possible that Mr. Duhamel will enter a team from St. Andrews East if a few minor difficulties can be ironed out.

Geo. Bedard remains president of this League; John Dunne and Jerry Sauve as usual represented the Arena at the meeting.

John A. MacKimmie, termed one of the best players ever produced in local hockey, has accepted the role of coach to the Lachute Grads, a team composed for the most part of present and former players of Lachute High School.

Renovations, Plans At Lachute Arena

The present lobby of the Lachute Arean is not adaptable to oil heating, according to an authority, but if present plans materialize this method of heating could be put into effect next spring. The ice surface has been decreased five feet at the entrance end, to enable the public to enter and leave quicker by this promenade — also because promenade reserved seats are being installed on the south, east and west sides. Special reserved seats will also be placed in a balcony overhanging the south side. Complete repairs have been made to all the old flooring and additional standing room facilities have been added by cleaning out the northeast and west corners of the building.

Ice should be available early next week if present weather continues, and there will be free skating on the first two nights.

Weekly activities at the Arena, with prices and hours, will be advertised in The Watchman starting next week, and the sports-minded public may be guided by these announcements through the season.

Contrary to false rumor, the price of skating for children will remain the same as in past years. The youngsters will be allowed to skate from 7.30 to 9 p.m. only. Hours for adults will be 7.30 to 10.30 p.m. every evening of skating.

The Arena management has strictly insisted at all meetings that games be definitely started on scheduled time, under penalty of a fine; that referees, once given the authority by any league to arbitrate, will be respected and protected by the Arena; that jumping on the ice or undue disturbance of the peace by spectators will be subject to prosecution. John Dunne believes that he voices the sentiments of all fair-minded hockey enthusiasts in these provisions.

Parson: "So you think you would have run through all your money had it not been for your wife!"
Villager "I'm sure of it." . . .
Parson: "And my good man, how did she stop your spending it all?"
Villager: "She spent it first!"

DOING HER BIT

Edgar Doane of South Caradoc has a York sow that has produced three healthy litters of pigs in 10 months, which must be some kind of a record. The first litter of 10 was born on the first day of the year. On May 28 she presented her owner with a second litter of eight piglets and then was back on the job again with another nine healthy little fellows on the first day of November.
