Worth of Boy Scout Movement Is Revealed in Terms of Citizenship

Remarks of Brownsburg Rotarian and Former Scoutmaster, of Real Concern to Parents

Brownsburg — The Boy Scout Movement was the subject of a talk to the Rotary Club at its weekly meeting at Carriere's Hotel on Wednesday, May 29.

The speaker, Wes Freeland, secretary of the local club, was introduced by Mr. Douglas Silverston, governor of this Rotary District.

Mr. Freeland was born in Palmerston, Ontario, educated in Toronto, where he graduated in mechanical engineering, and worked with General Electric, Rogers Majestic Radio, Flogaze Paint and Swift Canadian Company. From 1933 until two years ago he worked on ammunition production with Canadian Industries Limited, Brownsburg, at which time he was transferred to their engineering section.

He served as Scoutmaster of the Brownsburg No. 1 Troop from the summer of 1943 to the end of 1945, when Rotary duties became too onerous for the continuation of both activities. . . Besides being still very interested in the Scout organization, the speaker likes all sports, especially rugby, badminton, basketball and swimming. Other interests are bridge, chess and stamp collecting.

In commencing his talk the speaker enquired how many Rotarians had formerly been Scouts. The showing was good, and the speaker assured these members that they were much more qualified to speak on the subject than himself. He regretted the fact that he had never been connected with the Scouts as a boy, although he had been a cadet officer and a Y.M.C.A. member. The recent contact, however, had made him a strong supporter of the Scout organization and of the idea.

"What is the idea?" he asked "What is Scouting?"

The following definition was proposed by Mr. Freeland. An organization designed to give the boys fellowship, a feeling of confidence and responsibility, as well as knowledge of subjects useful in service and self preservation — or, briefly, to build health and character in boys. . . So it is to "build" boys.

What is the organization? Is it religious? Is it political? Is it secret? Is it military? It is definitely none of these, except religious, and then only in a broad sense and non-sectarian.

The best way to answer these questions is to see what the boys are asked to accept as their code of ethics. — Upon becoming a Scout, he individually promises, "On my honor I promise to do my duty to God and King, help others at all times, and obey the Scout laws."

Everyone does not think that boys need "building", as indicated by this story of a famous Greek of ancient times. . .

"My boy", Themistocles, the soldier and statesman, once said to his young son, "you are the most powerful person in all Greece".

"How can that be?" asked the lad.

"Because" answered Themistocles, "the Athenians command all Greece; I command the Athenians; your mother commands me; and you command your mother!"

The Scout Law

1. A Scout is trustworthy; he does not deceive; he tells the truth; he plays the game.
2. A Scout is loyal to the King his country, his officers, his parents, his employers, and to those under him.
3. A Scout's duty is to be useful and to help others.
4. A Scout is a friend to all and a brother to every other Scout.
5. A Scout is courteous.
6. A Scout is a friend to animals.
7. A Scout obeys orders of his parents, patrol leader, or Scoutmaster without question.
8. A Scout smiles and whistles under all difficulties.
9. A Scout is thrifty.
10. A Scout is clean in thought, word and deed.

Could any person follow a better set of rules? — The golden rule in just another form, in greater detail.

These rules were drawn up by Lord Baden Powell, who was a major general of the British Army, with much service in South Africa.

In 1908 the Boys Scout organization was formed by this great soldier-leader of boys and men.

Lord Baden Powell was first Chief Scout of what became a world organization of nearly three million Scouts. (He formed the Girl Guides shortly after, and Lady Powell became first Chief Guide). The organization started in Canada the next year and today there are almost 100,000 Canadian Scouts.

Civic Holiday for 12th, Afternoon of Vice-Regal Visit

COUNCIL ESTABLISHES A RESIDENTIAL ZONE IN EAST WARD

The regular session of Lachute Town Council was held last evening. Mayor Carriere, Aldermen O. Laurin, W. Morissette, Alex Bothwell, Henri Trichard, Stanley Holt, L. Bedard, Gilbert Ayers, J. R. Paquette and D. G. MacRae were in attendance.

Mr. Clement Tremblay appeared before the Council on behalf of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, asking for the usual grant. Upon motion of Ald. J. R. Paquette, seconded by Ald. Stanley Holt, the sum of $150. was voted as a grant for 1946. . . Various accounts were also approved.

A residential zone was established following a petition of property-owners in part of the East Ward. This zone will be comprised within Burroughs Street and the Town limits, and within the C.P.R. tracks and the North River — the Council reserving its right to revoke such decision should it appear in the interest of the Town to have an industry established in this district.

On the occasion of the coming visit of the Governor-General, on June 12, a civic holiday was declared for the half-day.

Notice of motion was given by Alderman H. Trichard that a by-law will be presented for adoption to issue loans to extend waterworks and sewer lines in the Town of Lachute, also for paving of streets.

The firm of Ayers Limited offered the Town to supply all material necessary for the erection of a protecting fence on Princess Street, from the Wilson paper mill to St. Julien Church, the Town to attend to the installation. The Council willingly accepted this offer.

Monthly Meeting Of Red Cross

The regular monthly meeting of Lachute Branch of the Red Cross was held in the town hall on Monday, June 3.

Rer Cross supplies of wool and sewing were given out to representatives of the different groups — this knitting and sewing to be completed by September.

Headquarters announced that a complete re-organization program is being prepared for the fall.

The Campaign Committee gave their report to date. Full particulars of the drive will be published later, as reports are not complete.

Auxiliary Police Unit to Hold Church Parade

A contingent of between 40 and 50 Frontiersmen — members of the Corps of Imperial Frontiersmen, mostly from H-11 Squadron, Verdun — will visit Lachute on Sunday for their annual church parade, attending the morning service at Lachute United.

The Frontiersmen, with whom perhaps few in these parts are familiar, are an auxiliary police unit 2,500 strong in Quebec Province. All are qualified for police duties, versed in the Criminal Code, and the organization has filled a useful purpose on many occasions when special officers are in demand for traffic or preservation of law and order. During the war they served as patrol in many vital spots for home defence of war industry and transportation.

A Lachute resident, E. Emmett of Bethany Road, formerly of Verdun, is provincial commander of the Corps, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. Mr. Emmett has been instrumental in bringing the unit to Lachute. He will review the parade on leaving the church, and will play host to his colleagues afterwards.

Wed 52 Years

In the words of an old subscriber and one intimately associated with this county, Mr. Alfred Walford: "Fifty-two years ago this very afternoon, I formed one of a family party which left Montreal for Lachute for the purpose of attending the wedding, next morning, of Miss Phoebe McOuat and myself, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McOuat, Brownsburg. I have never ceased to thank God for that marriage".

The note, dated June 4, is incidental to the enclosure of a subscription renewal to The Watchman. The publishers, and many acquaintances in these parts, extend cordial congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Walford, who reside at 4089 Westhill Ave., Montreal.

Hand Cut as Jar Explodes

Calumet — An unusual accident happened to Miss Bunny Robinson on Saturday morning. While taking a jar of marmalade (which had been opened and used previously) from the refrigerator to the table, it exploded in her hands, cutting her right wrist badly. She was taken to hospital in Hawkesbury, where it was found necessary to have three stitches in the wound.

European children who have survived the horror of invasion and the squalor of life under enemy occupation, are clad in rags. These pathetic victims of war's aftermath are in desperate need of clothing. To relieve their misery an urgent appeal is made to every Canadian family to ransack their attics, wardrobes and trunks, and contribute every serviceable garment that they can spare to the National Clothing Collection. Local depots will be announced shortly.

Feted by Friends After Long Service As Town Secretary

Germain Filion, who served as secretary-treasurer of Lachute Town from 1929 until his recent resignation from the office, was feted by a number of friends and fellow workers on Monday evening. The happy occasion took place at the grill of Desjardins Hotel, which business was latterly acquired by Mr. Filion in partnership with Paul Lefebvre.

Mayor Leopold Carriere acted as chairman, and there were about 40 persons in the gathering, including former and present office holders in Lachute Council, town employees and business friends.

The guest of honor was presented with a self-winding wristlet watch, suitably inscribed, with sincere good wishes expressed on behalf of the gathering by the chairman. Brief speeches and social interchanges filled an interesting hour, after which refreshments were served.

West-Ender Is Seriously Injured Hit by Automobile

Nelson Gibeault, of Chatham Street, Lachute Mills, is in the Neurological Institute, Montreal, with a probable fracture of the skull, after being hit by a car near his home last Friday. The accident occurred early in the afternoon, when the victim, stepping out behind a bus, was unable to see the approaching car. The automobile travelling towards Lachute, was driven by Donat Lafleur, of St. Philippe, who was accompanied by Ovila Lamarche, also of St. Philippe and owner of the car.

Nelson Gibeault, aged 65, was given first aid treatment by Dr. R. Percival, who happened to pass the scene. Later, attended by Dr. Jules Lafleur, he was sent unconscious to Montreal for hospital observation and treatment. Latest reports indicate his condition appears more hopeful.

Det. Leopold Dauphin, local officer of the Provincial Police, investigated the accident.

Incidental to this mishap another crash occurred when Walter Wert, of Brownsburg, driving eastward, collided with the rear of a car belonging to Aldege Bedard, of Ste. Rose, which was halted at the scene of the accident. Mr. Wert's car was slightly damaged.

Former Resident Laid to Rest in Local Cemetery

Late Mrs. Alex S. Robertson

It is again with a sense of personal loss that we record the death of a former resident, Mrs. A. S. Robertson, sister of the late Mrs. J. S. Giles, which occurred Friday, May 31, at a nursing home in Montreal, after several weeks of illness. The former Miss Gertrude R. E. Titman, she was married in 1938 to Mr. Alex Robertson and made her home in Tetreaultville, a suburb of Montreal, returning with her husband each season to occupy their summer home at Lake Louisa. She was in her 78th year.

Mrs. Robertson came to this country in 1917 from London, England, and resided in Lachute with Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Giles until her marriage. During the 21 years she spent in this community, she made numerous friends, among whom she was specially solicitous for the sick and the aged. She sacrificed a business career in her earlier years to care for her ageing parents, and devoted a fair portion of her lifetime to this same kindly, unassuming role. She was also fondly devoted to children.

The late Mrs. Robertson is survived by a sister and brother in England, Mrs. C. Pledge and Mr. Thos. Titman; also a sister, Mrs. S. Berry, in Manitoulin Island, Ont.; a stepdaughter, Mrs. T. Gardiner, besides many relatives in the Old Country and those associated with The Watchman in Lachute.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon in the presence of a large gathering of friends and sympathizers at St. George's United Church, Tetreaultville. Service was conducted by the Rev. Wm. Lister, assisted by the Rev. Wm. Hood, of Hampstead. The remains were afterwards brought here for interment, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough of Lachute, and the Rev. Wm. Hood, conducting the brief committal service. Many friends and townsfolk were present at the graveside to pay their last tribute of respect.

The pall-bearers were her two nephews, R. A. Giles and T. D. Titman; her grandnephew John D. Giles; Arthur Burnett, Thos. Gardiner and Jas. Elder, of Montreal. Others who accompanied the cortege from Montreal were Mrs. T. Gardiner, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. MacVicar and Miss Shirley MacVicar, Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Davis, Morin Heights, were also among those present from a distance.

Lachute Fair, 120 Years 'Young', Reflects Ambitious Spirit of District Agriculturists

History Unfolds Interesting Story of Growth; Characters Highlight Milestones of Progress

By COLIN A. GRAVENOR

Born in 1826, and "going stronger than ever" — the Argenteuil Agricultural Society's Lachute Spring Fair now has 120 years of ambitious, self-sacrificing work behind it.

On the borders of Lachute, but actually in Chatham Township; the 20 acres of Fair Grounds spread out their permanent setting. And any day from June 12th to 15th next, one may witness on this site a busy and exciting scene. There may be harness racing going on, a band playing somewhere, the rails around the track are crowded, and the grand stand may well be filled to capacity.

The stables and exercise rings are full of hunters, jumpers, harness and other horses. They will occupy the spotlight at night during the Horse Show. Elsewhere the heavy horses are being judged, the finest in cattle, swine, sheep, rabbits, poultry are being exhibited, while young farmers are in competition with their exhibits.

Just as important to many is the merry carousel, the rides, and "catch pennies", the pink lemonade, hot dogs, games of chance and "Fun o' the Fair", sending to the skies a gay cacaphony that helps make the spirit of fair time remembered and treasured from childhood.

* * *

Thousands of visitors throng the grounds. Some are very, very important people and in the world's spotlight. Others are modest and unassuming, but important in their own quiet way in their help in feeding the starving millions in this war ravaged globe.

There are exhibitors, spectators, reporters and radio announcers, buyers, sellers, merchants and hangers on, fair folks, and horsemen, townsfolk, farmers, horse and cattle dealers, professors and "gentleman and lady" farmers All the world is in cross-section at the Lachute Spring Fair.

— And the 1946 Fair is very special because of the acceptance of the invitation of His Excellency the Governor General and Lady Viscountess Alexander to honor the opening with their distinguished presence. . . The farmers of Argenteuil County take this as a salute to all of the farmers of the Dominion of Canada.

* * *

Behind this success today is history and hard work "yesterday".

A hundred years before radar or atom bombs were dreamed of; when the "war" then referred to, was the war of 1812; and when a single county — York — embraced what is Argenteuil, Terrebonne and Two Mountains today—James Brown and James Murray thought of the old Highland Society at Scotland, extracted five shillings each from a handful of farmers, arranged some cattle contests, a score of plowing matches and then officially formed the York Agricultural Society. That was in 1825, and on February 2, 1826, at St. Andrews, the Society came into being with James Brown as first president and James Murray as the initial secretary.

Only members of the society, who had paid their five shillings, were practical farmers and who observed the rules of the Highland Society, could compete in the events of the Society. It has been estimated that the first receipts of the Society were well under 8 pounds a year. By 1870 they had climbed to $113.00 in receipts. (Contrast this with the estimate of more than $40,000 in 1946).

The early shows moved from Lachute to Muddy Branch, then to Carillon and St. Andrews, and rotated time and again. However, by 1870 the "growing pains" of the Fair caused a demand for a permanent home.

Popular sentiment favored St. Andrews, where the Fair was born, but in 1887 came the answer when over 15 acres of land were secured from the late Henry Hammond in Chatham Township, just outside Lachute, the present Exhibition site. A track, and permanent buildings began to go up. Later more acreage and more buildings were added.

Those most active in this period include Felix Hamelin, John Hay, William Copeland, A. D. McGibbon, W. J. Simpson, James Henderson, Robert Black, Gavin Walker, John McMartin and George Fraser.

"They were a wonderful lot of men and worked very hard and sincerely for the Fair", says A. D. McGibbon, the only surviving member of the group, now in his 86th year. "Any differences were always settled at the Fair, and then as now, it was the biggest event of the year for everyone".

"The Fair played a very important part in the growth of this part of Canada" says W. J. Rodger, the oldest living farmer who served on the board for over 30 years and is today an honorary life member. "Improving the calibre of cattle, horses and of farm skill is not a simple or short term task. The Fair was one of the biggest factors in this and it never has failed to influence the quality of the stock and farms of this county".

In 1917 the "golden age" started when the late John T. Ayers became actively interested in its development. More land and buildings were added and the September date was changed to June, a policy which has proven very popular and will be permanently maintained. His key supporters at this time included Sir George Perley, Lady Perley, John and George Hay, J. W. Gall, Harry Ayers, Major George Mitchell, Col. Jos. Seale.

"It is proper and fitting that Lady Perley, James W. Gall and George Mitchell, the three surviving public spirited members of this group, will be prominent in receiving the Governor General on the occasion of their visit," said Jack Black, president. "This is but another tribute to the long terms of service they, and the deceased associates rendered the Fair".

* * *

The growth of Lachute Spring Fair, since "Jack" Ayers took such a personal interest 30 years ago, has been steady. There is another group of key men today following in the same footsteps of the farmers who went before. — They are headed by J. H. Black, president, and include Clement Tremblay, vice-president, Stuart Armstrong, E. Kilgour Wilson, Theo Murdoch, Gilbert Arnold, A. G. Munich, Albert Stewart, Erskine Rodger, Simon Wilson, Amedee Maisonneuve, James McKenzie, Ross McAdam, James MacKimmie and Wm. M. Cottingham.

"We must not fail to pay due credit to three great secretaries the Fair has had. Gavin Walker held the post for 45 years, J. W. Gall for 19 years, and today we have in Alex Bothwell one of the most conservative, conscientious and competent men possible for the wellbeing and success of the Fair," says Jack Black, who knows the myriad of details and problems going through the hands of the hard-working nerve centre of the annual affair.

Few annual events anywhere are more "for the people, of the people and by the people" than the Lachute Fair. It is democracy in the working process. It is a product of the farming community, not for profit, not for aggrandisement, but for mutual pleasure, education and betterment.

Scores Hole in One At Local Golf Course

An enviable feat was performed by a Lachute golfer, Jack McIndoe, playing over the local course this week, when he scored a hole in one at the 160-yard 8th hole with a No. 4 iron. This is a par-3 hole — and it is stated by members of the club that no such achievement has been recorded here in the past five years at least.

Brownsb'g Legion Memorial Drive Opens June 10

The Brownsburg Canadian Legion's campaign to provide a "Living War Memorial" for Argenteuil will open officially on June 10. The minimum objective is $35,800., and while this might appear to be high, it is felt that nothing really substantial can be done for less. Payment of pledges can extend over one year. The campaign will close on July 1. All communities of Argenteuil will be invited to place their Rolls of Honor for the two World Wars in the "Shrine of Remembrance" of the building. Construction of the edifice will not commence until 1947.

The question has been asked as to why the campaign for an Argenteuil Memorial should emanate from Brownsburg. This is easily answered when it is remembered that Brownsburg actually was the focal point for Argenteuil's war effort. In the dark, early stages of the war, before the Dominion was able to get into its stride the production of vital war materiel, sufficient ammunition was produced in Brownsburg to assist in repelling the tremendous effort of the enemy to conquer Britain by air. In addition, personnel trained in Brownsburg formed the nucleus for the manufacture of ammunition in much larger quantities in other centres of the Dominion, where the facilities and available help could provide a quicker production solution to the tremendous demands of war. Nevertheless, Brownsburg in those days was a boom town and continued to maintain maximum effort right up to the successful conclusion of the war. Thousands of residents of Argenteuil were employed in its factories, and they in turn carried a wave of prosperity throughout the County.

It does not seem illogical, then, that the call for a memorial should come from Brownsburg. Apart from the patriotic motive all of Argenteuil's people, whether business men or otherwise, have benefitted in some way or another from the operations carried on in Brownsburg. Bearing this in mind, there is every reason to hope that the whole County will respond to Brownsburg's appeal that the War Memorial be erected within its environs. From Brownsburg and district alone, upwards of five hundred enlisted. Add to that figure those who enlisted from every other town or village of Argenteuil, and the number runs into thousands. The chance to express thanks to these veterans for a "job well done" is now given to the people of Argenteuil, and it will not fail. The record of Argenteuil's generosity during wartime is high; surely it will respond equally well to the call for a Memorial and Shrine to perpetuate for posterity the deeds of its sons and daughters.

For identification purposes, all canvassers will carry authorization cards signed by either of the co-chairmen, Georges H. Heon or David Cooper.

Annual Meeting Held at Lachute United Church

The annual meeting of the Ottawa Valley Section of the Montreal Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church was held in Lachute United Church on Friday, May 31.

Mrs. Rupert Bradford, sectional vice-president, and president of Lachute auxiliary, occupied the chair.

The morning session opened with a hymn and devotional period, conducted by Mrs. A. E. Wilfong, of Arundel.

Mrs. Bradford then extended a hearty welcome to the members of the Montreal executive, and also to the visiting auxiliaries and affiliated societies, stressing the need for leaders, and to go forward in conjunction with the current Crusade for Christ campaigi.

Minutes of last year's meeting were read and approved, after which Mrs. Bradford called on the president, Mrs. Wm. Yeudall, of Montreal, to introduce the members of her executive who had accompanied her to the meeting.

Mrs. Curtis, press secretary, Miss Carden, Missionary Monthly secretary, and Mrs. Fitzgerald, literature secretary, gave brief talks on their departments.

Following these, Miss Janet McOuat, of Lachute, sang a solo, "Prayer for Thanksgiving", which was greatly appreciated.

Greetings were then brought from the W.C.T.U. of Montreal, as well as of Argenteuil and Vaudreuil Counties, by Mrs. W. Usher, of Cushing. Mrs. Usher spoke of the need of co-operation in temerance and religion amongst all women.

FARM TOPICS

Keep the Profitable Hen, Cull the Drone

(Experimental Farms News)

One of the most important factors in reducing the cost of producing eggs is the elimination of the drones in the flock, says W. T. Scott, Head Poultryman, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

Culling should be almost a continuous practice throughout the year, with a final and exacting selection just before the next mating. If the selection is thorough it is the surest method of establishing health and vigor, and no flock can be profitable without these essential features.

The unprofitable drone in the flock is a liability that should be wiped out at the earliest possible moment that she can be detected, and though the trap-nest is a more reliable indicator of egg production there are certain visible characters that distinguish the poor layer at this season.

Providing the condition has not been brought about by disease, poor feeding practice, depluming mites or a deficiency in the ration, the bird that sheds her feathers early in the summer is most likely to prove unprofitable and the persistently broody hen is a grave liability.

At this season — when a good layer should show some evidence of bleaching in legs and beak and carry a full, waxy bright red comb, a bright alert eye, soft velvety skin covering the abdomen, a large moist vent and a good spread between the pubic or lay bones — the bird with the reverse of these characters may be readily distinguished as a poor layer.

Culling the flock while the birds are in production is an operation that should be carried out with as little excitement as possible. The birds should be driven quietly behind a screen and handled individually. By running the palm of the left hand along the breast bone and grasping the thighs close to the body the bird will rest comfortably and may be turned in any direction without releasing the hold and the right hand can be used freely to make any examination that is desired.

Excepting the trap-nest there is no method of culling that is infallible, but few mistakes will be made if the examination is carried out carefully along the lines suggested.

Expect New Weed Killers for Lawns

During recent months there has been considerable interest in the amazing new weed killer commonly known as 2,4-D. There is no doubt that this is the most promising selective weed killer yet developed for many lawn weeds such as dandelions, plantains and several other broad-leaved turf weeds. Undoubtedly new preparations, even better than those based on 2,4-D, will soon be produced. Any of the 2,4-D products on the market may be used and it is recommended that the manufacturer's recommendations and warnings be followed very closely, says J. H. Boyce, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

What is often overlooked in using selective weed killers is that it is useless to kill the weeds in a lawn unless steps are taken to make desirable species of grasses grow in the spots where the weeds are killed. If the bare areas are not taken over very quickly by the grass they provide admirable seed beds for more weeds and eventually the lawn may be weedier than it was before the weed killer was used. A dense, vigorous growth of grass, on the other hand, discourages the encroachment of weeds. The development of such a turf depends on following suitable cultural practices such as fertilization, in some cases liming, seeding with adapted species, watering, and mowing. Circulars on the construction and care of lawns are available from the Division of Forage Plants at the Ottawa Experimental Farm.

NEIGHBORLY SPIRIT

Maple Creek, Sask. (CP) — The old western spirit of neighborliness was demonstrated here when residents brought tractors, cultivators and seeding equipment, and worked on the farm of Leo McDougall who is ill. Women did chores and cooked meals while the men cultivated and seeded 160 acres of crop.

Rotary Topic, "Boy Scouting"

Besides the promise and laws, which have been altered only in slight detail since, Baden Powell gave them a motto. "Be Prepared" and a slogan, "Do a good turn every day."

The system at present divides the boys into three age groups. (a) Wolf Cubs, boys 8-12 years of age. (b) Boy Scouts, boys 12-17 years of age. (c) Rover Scouts, young men over 17 years of age.

Boys gain promotion within a group by developing leadership and learning worthwhile hobby-handicraft work, useful in good citizenship, as well as skills for later life in some cases. Transfer to a higher age group comes automatically.

The Scout troop, as it is called, is divided into patrols with a maximum of eight boys each, including the patrol leader. Each patrol leader has a second, or assistant. One of the boys is appointed or chosen as troop leader, and guiding the group is the Scoutmaster, who is chosen by the "group committee" — a body of unselfish, public spirited citizens who act somewhat like a school board, being responsible for Cubs, Scouts and Rovers, also their property and activities.

Assistance is given by a field secretary who travels to each troop once or twice a year. The group committee reports to a district or provincial commissioner.

There are two Cub groups and two Scout groups now established in Brownsburg. One Cub pack is under the leadership of Miss Lorraine Lavoie, the other under Hugh Morrison, assisted by Ross and Les Keatlie and Bert Potter. One Scout troop is under Scoutmaster Lionel Lavoie (a brother of Miss Lavoie); the other under Barrie Elliott. They are all doing excellent work. The latter is the Brownsburg No. 1 troop with which the speaker was connected. Lachute has a splendid troop under Charles L. Duncan, assisted by Mac Walker and John Heatlie, Jr.; and a Cub pack under Angus Taylor, assisted by Bill McMartin.

The Scouts gain promotion — passing through Tenderfoot then Second Class, when they begin studying to gain proficiency badges for various craftsmanship skills. Next comes First Class and more proficiency badges. A King's Scout must be a First Class Scout and be qualified for four of eleven special proficiency badges, Ambulance Man and either Pathfinder or Coast Watchman being obligatory. These badges are chosen for their particular value in good citizenship, as indicated by Fireman, Rescuer, Public Healthman and Ambulance Man.

Skills are developed, both by study, actual experience and in playing games. It is here that the value of the patrol system is shown. . . According to Baden Powell, the group or gang is the natural unit among boys, whether for play or mischief, and the boy with the most character among them generally comes to the top as leader. Thus the Scout patrol, under their own leadership to give them responsibility, forms the best means of developing character.

Lt. Col. Paul Brosseau, recently in charge of the large military camp at St. Jerome, has stated that a leader will always emerge from any group of men given a task to do without detailed instruction.

"I would like to stress the value of the patrol", the speaker said. "To my mind it is what distinguishes the Boy Scout organization from a Cadet corps; a Y.M.C.A.; or a Hitler youth group. The first and last of these depend upon strict regimentation; obedience to specific orders with no opportunity for individual initiative. The Y.M.C.A. while doing good work, nevertheless tends to develop champion athletes — but individuals — with little thought for the less expert, or the interdependence of the members of a group, which is so necessary for good citizenship."

The value of this group training both for efficient action and esprit-de-corps was clearly shown in the commando work of the recent war. A Commando is just a grown-up Scout trained for destruction; trained to look out for himself and the members of his patrol; trained to meet unknown conditions as he finds them, and overcome obstacles with God-given initiative. No goose-stepping regimentation could stop such group spirit and action.

Thus with the Scout troops throughout the country, we have a natural unit for developing vast power; and with the commendable Scout code of laws, much good can result.

The boys of today are the world leaders of tomorrow. With less talk about youth and more action about keeping the boys (and girls) busy at the things they like to do, but channelled into constructive crafts and skills that may strike a responsive chord and lead the boy to continuue his useful activities as he takes his place in the adult community — our problems will be simplified.

In order to better understand what the boys do learn, the speaker pointed out what they must do to qualify for the First Class badge — qualifications which amply illustrate that a First Class Scout has a good ground work for resourceful citizenship.

There are as many as 76 proficiency badges which can be won by good Scouts. These range from Auto Mechanic and Angler, through Debater, Gardener, Plumber, Photographer, Surveyor, to Winter Sportsman and the badge of World Friendship. The last-named has all the requirements for building the very best of international good will among Scouts.

It is the aim of Scouting that boys graduate through the ranks of the troop, and as they become older, gain responsibility of leadership suitable for the office of assistant Scoutmaster and finally Scoutmaster. Thus the troop well established becomes an independent force for good, in perpetuity.

The speaker made mention of the Scout camps. Montreal and district Scout camp is "Tamaracouta", comprising 350 acres on the shores of Lake Dawson in the

A Safe Vacation

THE HOLIDAY season with its joys and pleasures will soon be in full swing. For most people it will be a time of happiness, the children especially. Canada with so many outdoor attractions and scenic beauties is a natural playground. The hundreds of lakes and streams offer ideal vacation spots. . . But many families will experience tragedy through some loved one meeting death by drowning — fatalities which often need not occur, if proper precautions are taken. We urge vacationers to use common sense while boating and bathing. If you cannot swim, do not go into the water unless there is adequate supervision. If you are in a canoe or boat, do not act the simpleton with antics which might endanger other people's lives. If you are a parent, see that your child learns to swim. If you are unable to give the instruction, there are organizations such as the Boy Scouts and the Girl Guides which operate camps where your child can learn to swim. Let the summer be a jolly time — and with a minimum of drowning deaths.

Small Towns Are Good Bets

A CANADIAN prospector who had "struck it rich" in the mining country of Northern Quebec, went back to his home town of Campbellford, Ont., a year ago with his fortune and decided to settle down. Ernest J. Ayrhart was 45, filled with vigor and vision, and to him settling down meant no retreat to armchair and slippers but rather a campaign to bring prosperity to his community.

Within a few months he owned a tourist camp, a hardware store, timber interests, a lumber mill and a construction company. He put $350,000 into capital investments and new life into Campbellford. The town hummed with activity, employees shared profits of the new projects and Ayrhart realized interest on his investments. Real estate values went up 40 per cent. Elected mayor, the man who gave Campbellford a new lease on life recently predicted that within the next five years its population would jump from the present 3,000 to 10,000.

Not everyone has a third of a million dollars to invest, but Ernest Ayrhart's experience is an indication that money wisely spent in Canada's small towns will yield dividends in monetary profits and satisfaction in helping communities to prosper. It costs less to start a business in a small community than in a big city, and the odds favor its success.

A business founded with a war veteran's gratuities plus a small loan, or a small company in which several young men pool resources and their enthusiasm, has an initial advantage in that its proprietor is usually well known in his home town, and enjoys from the outset valuable goodwill which it would take years to accumulate in a big city.

Every thriving business is an asset to a small town, just as every successful small town businessman usually is a staunch supporter of all community projects and a leader in civic life. Many small towns offer opportunities for tourist camps, radio repair shops, laundries, bakeries and small industries. They need more young businessmen who will help to build community rinks, new schools and other public buildings, support the churches and serve on town councils and school boards.

To the young man considering investment of gratuities or warplant earnings and to the older man looking for a way to set up a son or son-in-law in business, small towns offer many of the best opportunities in Canada today, together with a way of life that combines city comforts with more leisure and satisfaction than the urban dweller ever can hope to achieve.

Strange It May Seem

WHITSUNTIDE, heralded by a fete of religious significance next Sunday, reminds us of the holiday spirit associated with this season in Old England. There are old customs and traditions, too, observed in the lighter vein. For centuries Whitsun has been the occasion for lively outdoor celebrations throughout the English countryside.

A cheese-rolling contest, free ale for villagers and a flitch of bacon for the happiest married couple, are some of the old rites of the Whitsun festival.

The cheese-rolling contest is held on Cooper's Hill above the village of Whitcombe in Gloucestershire, where 400 years ago villagers rolled cheeses down the hill to maintain their common grazing rights. Every year a cheese is sent spinning down the steep slope and half-a-dozen youths chase after it. The winner receives a prize of 4 shillings ($1).

At the little village of South Harting, Sussex, Whitmonday is known as Harting Club Day, and 72 gallons of ale are distributed free among the villagers.

At little Dunmow, Essex, a flitch of bacon is awarded each Whitsun to any recently married couple who, in solemn oath before the prior and townsfolk, swear they have "not repented of their marriage, sleeping or waking, in a year and a day."

Britain's Richness

WE ARE GLAD the Canadian Parliament saw fit to approve almost unanimously the loan to Britain. We are glad because it has become tiresome to hear so many people say Britain is done, losing her grip, that the Empire is falling to pieces.

Britain is poor materially, that is true. But she became poor because of tremendous losses during the war, when she stood alone for the freedom of the world. The bomb-scarred towns and cities, the strict rationing of food, the shabby appearance of her people, are evidence of her great contributions.

Britain is poor in many respects, and she is ashamed at having to borrow. But she has a richness many people see, and that is the indomitable spirit of her peoples in time of adversity. It is the will never to admit defeat, the determination which grows stronger in the darkest hours.

Britain will come through, never fear. The present generation is a hardy one. It will succeed with a resourcefulness surpassing that of its fathers.

Merchant's Viewpoint

WARTIME experience was salutary for a certain type of individual — the kind who believed the customer is always right, who was overbearing and offensive. . . It must have been startling to such when the pendulum swung to the point where it might have been said, the customer is never right. —Somewhere between these extremes there is a happy mean.

COMMUNITY PROJECTS IN THE BROADER VIEW

THE ROLE OF THE COMMUNITY COUNCIL

Specially contributed to The Lachute Watchman by M. V. Trayers, Brownsburg

Since the war ended over a year ago there has been a resurgence of activity in Brownsburg, sponsoring projects of so many kinds that one has a difficulty in keeping abreast of the times.

Recreational activities, skating rinks, tennis courts, service clubs, ski-tows, swimming pools, municipal halls, Legion halls recreational halls, community centres and endless other suggestions — projects and "just dreams" — have been projected before the public mind like the reflection of drifting clouds mirrored on the surface of a placid lake — and in many instances just as ephemeral.

Incoherent activity in community affairs, no matter how appropriate a particular project may be in itself, becomes incongruent when viewed as an incorporate part of the picture as a whole The "ole swimming hole", the corner lot ball park, and the cross roads dance hall of other years, were spread on the canvas provided by mother nature, and became a product of the times; but those times are gone, and we must accommodate ourselves to the present.

Sectional projects — that is, projects for a purely sectional interest, which require the support of the community as a whole, should have the sanction of an over-riding council representing the community, and an endeavor made to fit the need or requirement of such service, facility or project for the greatest common good.

A council representing all the elements and interests of a community is democracy at work in the place where you live, work, and rear your children. All residents of a community are in direct or indirect contact with one another. Communicable diseases are not a problem of any one section, but of the whole community. Juvenile delinquency makes the successful rearing of children difficult, and lowers the moral of the whole community. Ignorance on the part of some of the electors may mean bad government for all. — In short, we recognize that in a community we live together—that most of our problems are indivisible, and that many of our needs have a common basis. The obvious conclusion is that we must learn to work together in peacetime as we do in times of war.

To allow a community to grow without any kind of long-term planning results in slums, misplaced factories, inadequate play space for children, poorly located schools, dead-end streets and a general hodge-podge of confused organization.

In all communities some action in regard to social welfare is being taken. Some needs are met, others entirely ignored. Too seldom there is a group which objectively studies the community to ascertain its most important needs, and on this basis develops a program of action designed to improve communal life gradually but scientifically. — And yet we know this must be done.

Most of us recognize something of this struggle. We call upon the government to provide us with all kinds of services; at the same time, we do not want a government to plan our leisure time, our social or economic lives, completely. We know also that there are certain local or community problems which only we ourselves can solve. We may need help and guidance from the government, but we want to meet some of our own problems, to plan our own lives, to regulate our communities in our own way.

These are some of the factors which lead in our minds to some sort of community organization.

The unit of family life was the nucleus around which aggregated our traditions, customs, culture — even to that still intangible but infinitely greater thing called nationality, of which we pride ourselves today. From the cluster of families which denoted the hamlet, to the villages, to the towns, and to the cities, this unit of family remained the most potent particle of that which forms our nation. In the family is contained the complete organized and co-operative means of providing for the necessities, the recreations and, if you will, the luxuries of life. Some people argue that that in itself is the ideal set-up to provide for man both socially and materially. A lot may be said for this viewpoint.

The future parents direct their first efforts to the erection of a home wherein they will spend their future years. To create that indefinable essence that distinguishes a home from a mere house, they cultivate a garden. Inside the home they build up a library, they put in a piano or a music room, according to their circumstances. The children are provided with games for their amusement and desks for their education, and other musical instruments for their accomplishments. The years pass along and the sewing room is fitted out; and the "old man" has his den — perhaps a "bar". Children from the neighbors' homes come to participate in the games, or an impromptu concert or dance. . . .

Into this picture project the club, the grill, the tavern, the dance hall — become modern, and you inject the virus from which springs all the disrupting evils with which our social life is beset; you open the door to juvenile delinquency, the "tippling" father, the divorcee mother. Home becomes a byword, the family no longer a unit.

The widening influence of the advancing years requires accommodation outside the confines of the home, and it is in this transition, from the protection of the family to the varying influences of the community, that the comprehensive function of a Community Council proves its worth. The Community Council is an organized and co-operative effort on the part of the community, through sound planning, to conserve, improve and make use of all material and human resources of the community. There need be no overlapping of the facilities provided by the home, its function should be towards supplementing these facilities and providing for the recreational and physical needs of the community.

It involves tasks which supplement and often go far beyond those of an elected municipal council, which is primarily concerned with the administration of civic affairs.

A Community Council has a larger appeal than that of churches, and private social agencies or clubs or societies, which are primarily concerned with the special needs of a segment of the community's population. While the Community Council has a function apart from these other bodies, it must secure the cooperation of these groups, which have many similar interests and concerns about the community as a whole.

In fact, the prime purpose of a Community Council is to be able to draw together the multiplicity of individuals, groups and institutions of the community in a united, co-ordinated effort to improve the community as a whole — and having done this the Council should fulfil the trust reposed in it, through active interest in all things pertaining to the welfare of the people.

Lifelong Resident Of St. Amedee Was Related Here

The Late Alexander Sutton

St. Amedee, Que. — Deep sorrow was occasioned in this community by the death of one of its most respected citizens, Alexander Sutton. Although failing in health for some time, his sudden death, which occurred May 23 at his residence in St. Amedee, caused a shock to all.

The funeral service was held on Saturday afternoon, May 25, in St. John's Anglican Church, St. Amedee, which was filled with relatives, friends and neighbors — many having come from a long distance to pay their last respects. The service was conducted by the Rev. Owen Prichard.

Born at St. Amedee in 1876, the late Mr. Sutton spent his entire life in the community, taking a keen interest in farming. He was the eldest son of the late Thomas Sutton and Mary Morrison, of St. Amedee.

In 1909 he married Miss Edith Rogers, of Lachute, of whom were born three children — one son, Earl, and two daughters, Greta and Vera. Besides his loving wife and family he leaves to mourn one brother, John Sutton, of St. Amedee, and two sisters, Mrs. James Curran, of St. Amedee, Mrs. T. A. Patterson, of Lachute. Another sister, Mrs. Wm. Elliott of Lachute, predeceased him in 1918.

The late Alexander Sutton was a man of upright character, highly esteemed by all who knew him. He had been a lifelong member of St. John's Anglican Church, having acted for a number of years as church warden. He will also be long remembered as a faithful and devoted husband and father.

The large number of people who followed the remains to their last resting place at Papineauville Cemetery, and the many beautiful floral tributes, showed the high esteem in which he was held, and the wide-felt sympathy for his family in their bereavement.

Mourn Resident Of Thomas' Gore

The Late John Kirkpatrick

The death of John Kirkpatrick, of Thomas' Gore, occurred on May 22 at Cote De Liesse Road, Montreal, where he had been a patient for the past year.

The son of the late James Kirkpatrick and Mary Holly, he was born at Cote St. Gabriel on April 4, 1891. He came to Thomas' Gore in 1904, and in 1919 married Olive Lyster, who predeceased him 14 years ago.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving father and brother are his son, Gilbert, of Vancouver, B.C., three daughters, (Irene) Mrs. Campbell Paterson, and Vera, both of Montreal, and (Iona), Mrs. Robert Jackson, of Mount Maple; two sisters, Mrs. Elmert Berry, of Lachute, and Mrs. Jack McCullough, of Morin Heights, and two grand-children.

The funeral, largely attended, was held May 24 from the home of Mr. Elmert Berry to the Lachute United Church. Interment was at Lachute Cemetery. Service was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough. Hymns sung were favorites of the deceased, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus", "He Leadeth Me" and "Abide With Me".

Pall-bearers were his two nephews, Murray Lyster and Lyster Conley, Thos. Noble, Thos. Grey, Orlando Hodge and Lawrence Silverson.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Sectional W.M.S.

A new feature of the meeting this year was the brief reports of their activities given by the various auxiliaries and affiliated groups.

The morning session was brought to a close with a prayer by Mrs. Jamieson, of Morin Heights.

The ladies then adjourned to the church hall where a dainty lunch was served by the ladies of Lachute auxiliary, after which the Rev. W. B. Rosborough gave a brief talk.

The afternoon session opened with a devotional period led by Mrs. Shearman, of St. Eustache. Mrs. Yeudall gave an interesting talk on the work of the W.M.S. and its growth, saying that this was a year of anniversaries, it being the 100th anniversary of missions in Canada, also the 50th anniversary of the sending of trained workers into the mission field. She stressed the need for continued activities, as well as increased giving.

At this point an impressive "In Memoriam" service was conducted by Mrs. Robinson, of St. Andrews East. The names of nine members who were called to "higher service" during the year were read, followed by a moment of silent prayer.

An appropriate solo was rendered by Mrs. Kenneth McOuat, of Lachute, "Just for To-day".

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Miss Ruth Churchill, of Home Missions. She gave an outline of her work in Kirkland Lake, where she was later followed by Miss Evelyn Matthews, so well known in this community. Miss Churchill, now in Montreal, is at St. Columba House, dividing her time between there and the Hungarian Church in Montreal. This latter is the first non-Anglo-Saxon Church to become self-supporting in Canada.

The singing of the national anthem and prayer by Mrs. S. J. Pike, of Brownsburg, brought a very successful meeting to a close.

Frontiersmen to Attend Divine Service

One of the Montreal squadrons of the "Corps of Imperial Frontiersmen" will attend divine service in Lachute United Church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Lt. Col. E. Emmett, Commanding Officer for the Province of Quebec, will inspect the men after the service, outside the town hall.

Women Workers At Lachute Fair Need Volunteers

It is intimated by workers on the catering committee for the coming Spring Fair, that more help will be needed in this enterprise. Lachute Women's Institute, as a community group, would be very appreciative if any young girls or ladies of the town would volunteer to assist in the dining room or at the lunch counter during the days of the Exhibition. Transportation to the grounds is being provided for the workers.

This appeal is issued on account of the depleted list of helpers who have undertaken the work in previous years. Any who may be able to assist, are requested to communicate with Mrs. T. Bishop, telephone 686, Lachute.

Mr. Douglas Drysdale, of Plainville, Conn., who has spent the past 10 days in Lachute visiting relatives and friends, left for his home on Monday.

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Do you know Quebec? Do you know, for example, that our province is considered an angler's paradise? Atlantic Salmon, Sebago Salmon, Ouananiche, brown, rainbow, speckled, sea, red and grey trout, bass, dore, Muskalonge and Northern Pike . . . these fighters abound in countless lakes and streams within Quebec's four hundred million acre area!

Such superlative fishing is the gift of a bountiful nature plus a keen sense of trusteeship on the part of the people of Quebec who, by far-seeing legislation and individual example, practice true conservation.

Quebec is developing her many other rich resources with equal shrewdness. She leads in lumbering, pulp and paper, electric power and many essential industries. Agriculture, stimulated by scientific education is expanding quickly. Canada depends on the people and facilities of Quebec as a source of the kind of co-operation that will make Canada great!

QUEBEC BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE

In 1608 Champlain brought the first colonists to Quebec. Today, Quebec's population is 3,000,000, her retail trade $800,000,000.00 per year. She leads all Provinces in the production of hydro-electric power, textiles, lumber, newsprint, footwear, processed tobacco, asbestos and aluminum. Natural resources, agriculture and transportation are being developed wisely. And now, Quebec, her people deep-rooted in the love of their homeland, prepares to share with her sister Provinces, Canada's bright and glorious future!

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

FOUR PERFECT HANDS

There is something like a billion to one chances of getting four hands in bridge, each consisting of one suit, but that is what happened recently in Saint John. There was no funny work because here is what happened: The cards were dealt and one of the women said she had only twelve cards, so, the cards were gathered up, shuffled, cut and re-dealt. The dealer could hardly believe her eyes when she found she had thirteen clubs. She quickly bid a grand slam in clubs, and the second hand bid a grand slam in hearts, the third followed with a grand slam in spades. There was the poor fourth with thirteen diamonds in her hand and not even able to bid. Naturally, there was considerable excitement. (n fact, I played bridge with some of the players the next week and they were still thrilled and excited. I have played cards all my life and I have yet to see even one perfect hand, but four all at once is almost unbelievable.

ONE FOR RUBE GOLDBERG

When we were away the time of the sudden snow-storm, we left our key with a neighbor who was going to water our plants. The night we left they looked up at our house and saw a light in it, so they thought they'd better investigate. Fortunately a light in the cellar had been left on by mistake. Our neighbor found out that the high wind had blown in a cellar window over the set-tub. This in falling had hit the tap and turned on the water. Luckily, the plug of the tub was out so the water flowed away, but the well had been emptied and the electric pump was working over-time and vainly trying to get the pressure up. If we had not carelessly left on the light this might have gone on for days.

SAVE A SLICE

There is not one of us who does not want to help feed the starving people of the world by our own personal contributions. One of the best and simplest ways is to use less bread. Instead of that extra slice let us try to fill up with something else. A slice of bread saved does not seem much of a contribution and in itself it really isn't, but if each person saves a slice then that does amount to considerable. One slice of bread saved by each person in Canada is enough to increase the ration of 900,000 people 1000 calories a day. Even if each household saved a slice a day it would amount to 117,000 loves, that is, 634 barrels of flour or 2,800 bushels of wheat. So you see that single slice of bread you can save really does amounty to something. At present our family consists of just two and I must confess considerable bread was wasted because it got stale before we could finish the loaf. Now I watch it like a cat. The bread goes on the table at the last moment and immediately we are through the meal, I take it off the table and wrap it closely in waxed paped. This carefulness pays because now it stays fresh enough and we use it to the last slice. We always have put the bread board on the table and cut the bread as required. If you are not in the habit of making Melba Toast, try it sometime and see if your family does not enjoy it It has the added advantage of being palatable without butter.

USE BOILING WATER

There are times when we like to get the most for our money. One way of doing this is to conserve the vitamins in our foods. Do you always put your vegetables in boiling water to cook? If you start them in cold water or even in warm, you are wasting your vitamins as there is a greater cooking loss than if they were popped into boiling water. Use as little water as possible. Vegetables do not need to be drowned, as they will cook by the steam from a small quantity of water just as well. It is a good trick both for flavor and food saving to use the vegetable water to make the gravy.

CHOCOLATE CREAM

1 Envelope (1 tablespoon) gelatin, 2 cups milk, 1½ squares chocolate melted, ⅓ cup sugar, a few grains of salt, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites.

Soften gelatin in a little of the milk. Heat the milk, sugar, salt and melted chocolate. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Beat the egg yolks, and add the hot milk slowly. Cook over very low heat or in the double boiler, until the mixture is slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Cool, add vanilla, and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a large or individual moulds and chill until firm.

COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

1 Tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup of water, 2 cups cottage cheese, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, ⅛ cup thick salad dressing, ½ cup cream or top milk.

Soften the gelatin in cold water then stir over hot water until dissolved. Mix cottage cheese with remaining ingredients, then stir in the gelatin. Turn into mould and chill until firm. This may be served with either fruit or vegetable salad.

JELLY FROSTING

⅝ Cup tart jelly, pinch of salt, 1 egg white unbeaten, a few drops of lemon juice.

Put the jelly, egg white, and salt in the top of a double boiler over gently boiling water. Beat with a rotary beater until free of lumps. Remove from the heat and beat until the mixture will stand in peaks. Add the lemon juice. This frosting is best eaten the day it is made. Currant or grape jelly is a good choice. If apple is used increase the amount of lemon juice to make it more tart.

Prom Violinist

Patricia Travers, American-born violinist, is to be guest star with the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra for the "Prom Concert" broadcast over the CBC Dominion network, on Tuesday, June 11, at 9 p.m. E.D.T. The 18-year-old artist gave her first concert at the age of six. She is now widely known to concert and radio audiences.

Rotary Topic, "Boy Scouting"

Laurentians. The camp supervisor, or "factor" as he is called, is Cyril J. Dendy, a fine personality and a born leader of boys, widely experienced in boys' work and in Scouting.

Troops may use Tamaracouta camp sites, which have wood floors and canvas wall tents, cooking their own breakfast and lunch, completing the day with dinner in the large dining hall, able to seat 500. An evening program takes takes place before an open fireplace in a large recreation hall. Individual Scouts may camp in mixed groups, taking all meals in the dining hall.

Here, in a literal paradise of nature, and under well qualified supervision, including a resident doctor, the boys learn swimming, boating, resourcefulness, co-operation, team-play and consideration for others. Proficiency badge instruction plays an important part.

For individual Scouts the cost is $15 for a two-week period, including transportation from Montreal, or allowance if the boys are transported by the parent. All the boy must provide are his personal clothes, towel, soap, toothbrush and blankets.

Under camp conditions the patrol and the troop remain the unit or organization and the friendly competitive spirit is utilized. Programs are planned with the aim of full participation of every boy, not just the experts.

" — Briefly", concluded the speaker, "Here is a tool right at hand, of inestimable value for good in our community. . . Hitler has shown what can be done with youth when trained for destruction. The challenge is ours. What are we doing with youth for construction?

"What can you do? — May I make just a few suggestions — some of which are of course obvious. As a parent, you can make it possible for your boy to attend Scout meetings, Scout hikes and camps. You can encourage him to earn money to obtain Scout uniform and equipment. You may show interest in his progress; become more familiar with the Scout badges and keep alert to the aptitudes of your boy. — Help him in his hobby badge study, aiding him to obtain materials, literature or plans that might gain a fuller knowledge. — Guide him to choose studies that suit his personality and aptitudes. Be friendly to his friends. — Encourage him to have his patrol hold meetings at your home. Assist the troop by instructing Scouts in the badge that deals with your business, trade or profession (and you will find more than one where your knowledge and experience will help in those 76).—Better still, assist the Scoutmaster at the regular troop meetings where assistants are needed. Another way you may help is by acting on the Scout committee, which meets once a month. You can also act as examiner for the passing of badges at your own home. Instruction, of course, can also probably be carried out in your own home.

"May I beg that your interest shall not cease with your boy becoming a young man", the speaker pleaded. "Whether you be a parent or single, you can help with most of these aspects of Scouting. In addition, you can help to dignify the position of leaders and the organization. Always speak well of them, and give them all the credit possible. Unfortunately today our teachers do not get the credit they deserve.

"We appreciated the youth of our nation during the great fight — when the going was tough. They did not let Canada down. Don't let them down through lack of leaders or lack of interest on our part now. To help the boy to help himself, should be our aim always. Don't do it for him, rather make it possible for him to do it for himself.

"Thus it will be seen that the only way to help Scouting is not necessarily by signing a cheque."

Mr. Freeland mentioned also that various Rotary Clubs have furnished Scout camp sites, buildings and equipment.

In closing, the speaker quoted Baden Powell's last message. After his death, amongst his papers was found a message to Boy Scouts. Here it is in part.

"I believe that God put us in this jolly world to be happy and enjoy life. Happiness doesn't come from being rich, nor merely from being successful in your career, nor by self-indulgence. One step towards happiness is to make yourself healthy and strong while you are a boy, so that you can be useful and so can enjoy life when you are a man. . . . But the real way to get happiness is by giving out happiness to other people. Try and leave this world a little better than you found it and when your turn comes to die, you can die happy in feeling that at any rate you have not wasted your time but have done your best. 'Be prepared' in this way to live happy and to die happy — stick to your Scout Promise always — even after you have ceased to be a boy — and God help you to do it.

* * *

Guests introduced by President Sam Ross, included Rotary Governor D. Silverston and J. Roney, of Aylmer, Que.; J. Connelly and G. H. Quinn, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the Brownsburg Boy Scout Committee; H. Morrison and Angus Tayor, leaders of the Brownsburg and Lachute Cub Packs, respectively.

Rotarian John Chalmers was congratulated and was busy passing cigars. Reason — a son.

The Only Remedy for Hunger is FOOD!

The most efficient way in which we can send increased bulk shipments of WHEAT, MEAT, CHEESE and EGGS to needy countries is through the Canadian government food Boards. These increased bulk shipments can only be made providing we reduce our own consumption. Here are five important ways by which we can make greater quantities of food available for export:

(1) BUY AND USE LESS BREAD, FLOUR AND OTHER WHEAT PRODUCTS, MEAT, CHEESE AND EGGS. SUBSTITUTE VEGETABLES, FRUIT AND FISH WHERE POSSIBLE.

(2) KEEP YOUR HOME STOCKS LOW — BUY ONLY ENOUGH FOR IMMEDIATE REQUIREMENTS.

(3) AVOID ALL WASTE.

(4) GROW A VICTORY GARDEN AGAIN THIS YEAR. PLANT MORE THIS TIME IF YOU CAN.

(5) DONATE ANY MEAT COUPONS YOU CAN SPARE. ENQUIRE AT YOUR LOCAL RATION BOARD.

Share with the hungry!

Fans Have Opportunity to Witness To-day's Greatest Mat Sensation

"Legs" Langevin claims that he can defeat "Iron" Talun, the 6' 8½" Polish giant who weighs over 300 pounds. "Legs" will be outweighed 50 lbs, but he will rely on speed to overthrow the wrestler who is at present the current attraction among matmen. Langevin's showing in Lachute will determine whether Eddie Quinn should give him a chance against Talun in the Forum ring, and wrestling fans can rest assured that they will witness a real battle royal in the final — which goes on at 10.15 p.m. —two out of three falls to a finish. John Dunne, Arena manager, claims to have seen almost all the wrestlers in the last 15 years and he has yet to see a bigger and better developed wrestler that this same "Iron" Talun — but he needs experience as yet and that is one thing that Langevin will bring into the ring tomorrow night.

Wrestling fans will certainly remember last year's Badman in the Forum ring — Henry "The Face" Kulkavich. He has recently returned from California wrestling wars, and is a truculent blond who features a sort of rubbit punch. He served in the U.S. forces during the war and saw service in the South Pacific. He will be matched against tough George Cagney of Quebec City, last week's conqueror of the disqualified Jimmy Austeri. Kulkavich claims that Cagney will be a push-over for him, but the Quebec City champion has other ideas, and will try and force "Kulky" to the limit. This will be one fall — 30 minute limit.

The preliminary will open at 9 p.m. sharp, and features Bob Lortie, a part-time resident of Lachute, against Al Tucker, of Montreal. Bob looked very good against Larry Poirier in the first show here, and is fast becoming a very polished ringman.

Danny Murray will be the referee, and no further introduction is necessary as he is well remembered for his honest handling of all major hockey games here during the past season.

Special Note

Due to the Lachute Exhibition, next week's wrestling show will be held on Wednesday evening, June 12, instead of Friday evening, the 14th. The starting hour will be the same, 9 p.m., and the card will be announced at this week's show, and on posters this week-end. Eddie Quinn has also promised to send Yvon Robert up to Lachute as soon as possible, and hundreds of fans can rest assured that not only he, but Larry Moquin, will appear here in the local ring.

Governor General Officially Opens Lachute Spring Fair

"Never Before Has Such Serious Or Solemn Responsibility Rested Upon Those Who Till the Soil"

Governor General Salutes the Farmers of Canada, through Those of Argenteuil

By COLIN GRAVENOR

"Your Excellency the Governor General, Sir. Your presence to officially open the 120th Lachute Spring Fair we accept as a salute, not only to the people of this great Argenteuil County, but to all farmers of Canada. In the words of your Excellency, 'Team work won the war and it will win the peace'. Our share of winning that peace is to grow food and more food, farm produce and livestock, on which a portion of this world depends desperately for sustenance," said President J. H. Black in welcoming Lachute's distinguished visitor yesterday at the Fair Grounds.

"May you, and all others be assured that Canadian farmers will not shirk or delay in this important duty. Six score years ago this Fair was born. A great farming tradition has been handed down from one generation to another and will be handed on to those coming. Here, once a year, we compare our best and strive for better. Welcome, Sir, to the 120th Lachute Fair".

A few moments later Clement Tremblay repeated in French a similar greeting of welcome, and then Viscount Alexander rose to speak.

Speaking in both English and French the Governor General addressed the gathering. He first referred to the fact that he was born and raised on a farm, and that wherever he went in the world he found in farmers a philosophy, a dignity and a generosity duplicated by no other single group. He referred briefly to his boyhood in Ireland and his dream that when someday he retires, to return to the life of the soil.

Then, with a more serious mien, he stated: "Never before has such a serious and solemn responsibility rested upon those who till the soil, bring forth the produce of the farm and raise the livestock. While millions through the world starve, Canada recognizes her duty and carries it through, accepting the 'quotas' as goals to be exceeded, knowing that disease and death may be kept away from millions through the efforts of the men, women and even the children who till Canadian soil".

"All the fun of the Fair . . the 120th in this case — is all the more important if it means returning to work with rekindled interest, greater enthusiasm, and the determination to produce all that this bounteous land will provide.

"To the farmers of Canada, through those of Argenteuil County, I salute you".

Then, in a rambling mood for the moment, the Governor General said, "I was tremendously impressed with the amazing blending in this community. A moment ago I met J. H. Black, your president and a Scotsman, with the French-Canadian mayor of this community, Leopold Carriere. Then there was another name, Arnold, matched up with Tremblay, and Cottingham, and Maisonneuve. The Wilsons and the Rochons, the Murdochs and the LeRoys prove that this is a community where Scottish ancestry, or French ancestry makes no difference in simple, single Canadian spirit."

Guests on the platform included Messrs. J. H. Black, Clement Tremblay and James W. Gall and Major George G. Mitchell. Others were Georges H. Héon, K.C., M.P., Hon. Georges E. Dansereau, Mayor L. Carriere, Mayor Adrien Rochon, Mr. A. Gaston Munich. Accompanying the Governor General was Air Vice Marshal Frank McGill, and Capt. Lloyd Thomas of London, England, aide to His Excellency.

Frontiersmen Here, Give Evidence of Smart Efficiency

The contingent of Imperial Frontiersmen from Verdun who visited Lachute for their annual church parade last Sunday — attending morning service at Lachute United Church — gave the impression of a well-trained and precision-drilled squadron. Smartly uniformed, they paraded on Main Street after the service, and were reviewed by Lt.-Col. E. Emmett, of Lachute, who is provincial officer commanding. Afterwards they marched past, Lt.-Col. Emmett taking the salute.

During the church service, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough welcomed the men to this community, and for the benefit of the congregation outlined the history and formation of this unit.

* * *

The Corps of Imperial Frontiersmen was founded in 1904 by Capt. Peacock and Col. Driscoll, of the Driscoll Scouts in the South African War. These men now specialize in auxiliary police duties, helping the police in various towns throughout the whole Dominion of Canada.

In the First Great War, the 25th Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers was raised by the Frontiersmen; they also fought in East Africa under Col. Driscoll. One of the squadrons from Manchester were with the first British troops in action with the 3rd Belgian Lancers in 1914, and, incidentally, Lt. Col. Emmett was attached to the English Lancers and fought alongside the Belgian Lancers at the same period. There were over 600 Frontiersmen from Canada who served with the Princess Pat's Canadian Light Infantry, and only 20 survived.

The Corps has commands in India, East, West and South Africa also Australia; they served in the South African Rebellion in 1922, on which occasion General Sir G. Smuts warmly commended the men and enrolled with them as a trooper; eventually he became Prime Minister of South Africa. Frontiersmen who died in the first Great War numbered over 9,000.

The Grand Council is composed of the Duke of Portland, the Earl of Derby, Gen. Sir G. Smuts, Major Gen. Sir E. Perceval. The Commander for the Dominion of Canada is Brig. M. L. Fitz Gerald, and the Commander for Quebec Province Lt. Col. E. Emmett.

* * *

Following the review and marchpast, the squadron proceeded by foot and by bus to Brownsburg, and, escorted by the corporation police both in that village and in Lachute, made an inspection tour of the two centres. Later they were guests of Lt.-Col. Emmett for lunch and at his farm on Bethany Road, before returning to Montreal.

3 Boys Drowned, Ottawa River Near Interprov'l Bridge

First of the season's drowning tragedies in this district occurred Saturday near the Perley interprovincial bridge, when three Hawkesbury youths were thrown into the Ottawa River as their light rowboat capsized, and were swept into the rapids. The victims were — Gaetan Madore, 17; Raoul Poulin, 18; Ernest Poulin, 18.

The three lads, all residents of Hawkesbury, had been fishing around noon on Saturday, at a point below the "Cave", a stretch of swift water leading into the rapids. Persons passing over the bridge watched helplessly as the trio struggled in the water to disappear finally from sight.

An immediate search was begun for the bodies.

WORK ON HIGHWAY HAWKSB'Y - OTTAWA TO BE COMPLETED

A $2-million program for general improvement of the Ottawa Valley highways, planned for this season by the Ontario Department of Highways, will include work on No. 17 Route between Hawkesbury and Ottawa — it is indicated in the general outline of these works.

The plan is designed to accomplish more than overtaking the arrears of work accumulated during the war years. It will also make a substantial start on long range plans to bring Eastern Ontario highways up to standards pertaining in most other parts of Southern Ontario.

Some years ago, two diversions were graded on No. 17 highway near l'Orignal to eliminate dangerous curves. During the coming summer, these diversions will be surfaced, it is announced.

Progress of B'burg Arrangements for Vets' Reception

Brownsburg — A meeting of the committee to organize a civic reception for Brownsburg's returned men was held under chairmanship of M. V. Trayers. Other members present were Messrs. Norman Somers, Charles Wheatley, Jules Lemay, Mrs. N. E. Smillie and Mrs. W. Fletcher.

Mr. Trayers, as chairman, declared the purpose of this meeting was to arrange the groundwork for a civic reception for veterans of the the Army, Navy and Air Force.

"This should be a pleasant duty, but for some reason the arrangements thus far have not been as spontaneous as we would wish", said the speaker "This is to be a civic reception, and as such should be undertaken by the elected representatives of the Brownsburg corporation. The Corporation has of course performed the task of getting the present committee formed, and this committee is entrusted with working out the details of a plan for the reception, to be submitted to the Corporation for approval, after which we will be given powers to carry out the function planned." †

When the chairman learned that he had been elected to preside over the deliberations of this committee, he doubted the wisdom of accepting. Later considerations caused him to accept the task rather than shirk the responsibility of offering some recognition of the tremendous debt owed these boys. In the course of his work in rehabilitating many of them through a government agency, he had gathered information that would be of great use to this committee, and he now intended to see the thing through and see it done well—he declared.

The chairman called attention to the fact that the French representation was not adequate and it was decided to co-opt at least two more members to round out the committee.

Qualifications of a Recipient Of Civic Welcome

There was a full discussion on this matter and it was eventually decided that members of the Active Army only would be eligible.

The area of residence was also discussed — and a suggestion that veterans whose National Registration Certificate showed Brownsburg as the place of residence, with approved exceptions, would be taken as coming within the terms of eligibility.

Two further matters, the form of reception and the method of financing, were discussed, and final decision left until next meeting, Monday, June 17.

The committee are anxious that the people of Brownsburg cooperate in making this function a complete success. They will therefore welcome any suggestions or assistance which will serve this end.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF PSYCHOLOGY AIM FOR BETTER LIVING, SAYS SPEAKER

Science of Behavior Holds Answer To Misdirection and Maladjustment

Brownsburg — Psychology and its practical application, was the title of an interesting talk to the Brownsburg Rotary Club by Mr. F. T. O'Reilly-Hewitt, recently taking post-graduate study in that subject at the University of Toronto.

Born in Sherbrooke, Que., educated in private schools and later at McGill, where he received a Bachelor of Commerce degree, the speaker worked for some time at Brownsburg. During the war he joined the R.C.N.V.R. as lower deck. Later he received a commission and at the time of his discharge was serving as communications officer in H.M.C.S. "Fennel" on mid-ocean escort duty.

Psychology, according to the speaker, although now classified as one of the biological sciences, was until comparatively recently in history considered a branch of philosophy, and during the ancient Greek civilization was referred to as the Science of the Soul. Later it was called the Science of the Mind. This was changed once more to the Science of Consciousness, but greater understanding and knowledge, in addition to clinical and laboratory work, forced another change. Psychology is now called the Science of Behavior.

Why do you become angry? Why do you laugh or cry? How are these emotions controlled? Can your body be taken apart and the root of an emotion be found? The many whys about ourselves in this connection, are the purpose of the study of psychology. It is therefore called a biological science, since it must take into consideration the body, nerves and muscles as well as the mind.

Some phases are startling to consider. The individual's action or reaction is different in a mob than at home alone, or with his family. Why is this? All these and many more questions, psychology is trying to answer.

Psychology is studied under various classifications. One of the most interesting, according to the speaker, is —

"A" — Social psychology. This deals with your reactions to another person known to you. People are often heard to say, "That is none of your business". Actually, it was pointed out, everything is your business that occurs within your orbit of activity. Every person you speak with or contact; every experience, however minor, becomes a part of you, regardless of whether you wish it or not.

Social psychology can again be sub-divided into various sections, e.g.: (1) Competition — many of our actions are the result of this phase. The clothes you wear, the car you drive, your home and some of your actions are the result of competition with your neighbors, your friends. You will "lose face" if you don't consider the actions of others who are doing similar activities. A singular factor about such competition is that it is conducted according to certain understood rules. This is the subtle difference between competition and conflict.

(2) Conflict, on the other hand, constitutes two directly opposing forces, and its aim is the total annihilation of one of those forces. This social re-action is seen at an early age among small children fighting for a toy. Unless an adult should intervene, the fight would go on until one child or the other was in possession of the toy. Conflict obtains in all age groups, and is found in all stages of civilization.

(3) Accommodation forms the next aspect. It appears to be a law of nature that two forces of equal strength cannot exist together without one becoming dominant.

This occurs among groups of peoples or nations.

Closely allied to accommodation is (4) compromise. This is the way of politics. One party wants one thing, and the other, something totally different. The result is that, through negotiation, each receives some part of the total demand.

"B" — Genetics, the study of children, their behavior and their training, forms the next major grouping. Dr. Blatz of the University of Toronto, one of the foremost authorities on child psychology, believes, for example, that children should be reasoned with rather than suffer corporal punishment as a means of discipline. There are many who disagree, but the fact remains that children are often punished for things which the adult cannot understand. The

Representative Citizens and Womenfolk Of County Presented to His Excellency

Fine weather and a smooth procedure of their plans favored the Argenteuil Agricultural Society directorate for the Lachute Fair opening yesterday. The arrival of His Excellency Viscount Alexander, Governor General, at 4 p.m. — auspicious highlight of the day — assured the mammoth crowd of spectators, and those more anxiously engaged behind the scenes, that the success of this day would give impetus to what promises to be a record-breaking Lachute Spring Fair. . . (Unsettled weather greeted this morning's opening, the second day, but the forecast was more optimistic).

Participating in the King's Birthday "Victory Parade" in London, Canada's 17th Governor General was in Great Britain earlier in the week before attending the ceremonies here on Wednesday.

Arriving by automobile with his party, His Excellency was immediately escorted to the reception stand in front of the packed grandstand. Here, after the playing of God Save the King and O Canada, His Excellency was greeted by the reception committee and publicly welcomed by President Jack Black, on behalf of the Agricultural Society. Clement Tremblay, vice-president, spoke briefly on behalf of the French-speaking community, and His Excellency, after voicing his pleasure, cut the ribbon across the race track and officially declared the Exhibition open.

At this point the veterans of World War I and World War II marched past the Governor's stand. They were followed in a long procession by the Boy Scout and Wolf Cub troops of Lachute and Brownsburg, the Girl Guides and the Brownies, all smartly uniformed.

A representative list of county folk, among whom had been selected members of the professions, community organizations, municipal bodies, denominations of the clergy, the press, farmers, officers of the Agricultural Society with their wives — then filed past the Governor General, shook hands, and were graciously received by His Excellency.

Viscount Alexander then inspected the veterans and the juvenile groups, who had re-formed in parade order after their march past. He also spoke briefly to the two groups of schoolchildren, English and French-speaking, who had received an honored place on this great occasion. His Excellency stayed for a brief word with several of the young or older citizens encountered on his tour.

A showing of light and heavy horses and selected cattle was then paraded before the Governor General's booth — and, having completed a full program in the limited time at his command, the distinguished visitor took his departure amid the cheering of the crowd.

The Governor General's car was escorted by police, who were under direction of Officer H. Jones from the interprovincial bridge to the exhibition grounds.

Memorial Fund Campaign Makes A Good Start

Brownsburg — While, up to the time of going to press, no details have been received concerning individual subscriptions, it is known that canvassers in the Legion Memorial Campaign are meeting a very good reception. In Brownsburg, the honor fell to David Black, the postmaster. Initial efforts are being concentrated on Lachute and Brownsburg, but the groundwork is being laid for canvassing other communities in Argenteuil. In this latter connection volunteers will be welcomed, and they are asked to communicate with David Cooper, co-chairman, in Brownsburg.

Que. Farm Forums Convene June 22 At Macdonald

Resolutions dealing with the pressing problems facing the farmer, especially the price of dairy products and the recent rise in price of farm machinery can be expected, on June 22 at Macdonald College. Quebec farmers will convene that day to review the year's work of the Quebec Council of Farm Forums and the activities of the 98 Farm Forums which are organized in the English-speaking sections of the province.

The president of the Council, Allan Crutchfield, of Huntingdon, will preside. R. Alex Sim, as secretary-treasurer, will report on the affairs of the Council, while the report of the activities of the Forums will be given by Joseph Galway, secretary of Farm Forums.

Besides the business of the Council, important speakers will be heard, and a number of tours and demonstrations of the College will be arranged by the Field Day committee.

This year 98 Forums were registered. Argenteuil and Chateauguay counties have the largest number, with a total of 15 each. The total number of meetings held by all the Forums in the province was 1,245.

A total of 21,049 people met in Forum discussion groups during the season. Huntingdon led all others with the impressive figure of 3,124.

This is the first year Farm Forums have operated in Megantic County. They were unable to get started until well on in the season.

Main Building

An early survey of the main exhibition building reveals displays by one or two visiting companies and a number of local distributors.

Farmers' Supply Company of Lachute has been instrumental in bringing a display of Sherwin-Williams paints and varnishes, and the up-to-date lines of insecticides and fungicides which this company handles. Mr. K. A. McKenzie is in charge.

Vic Bin Canada Limited has a line of products of particular concern to cattle men, with wheat germ and vitamin oils.

Crop Report for Argenteuil Co.

Crop Report No. 1 issued by the Quebec Department of Trade and Commerce, gives the following report for this district, including Argenteuil, Two Mountains, Labelle and Terrebonne:

Grain seeding practically completed. Work for truck crops progressing rapidly. Meadows suffered no damage by late frost and have good appearance. Owing to cold weather, vegetation is slow and pastures are only average, but milk production is at 95% of normal level.

Agricultural Pests

In the eastern part of the Province as well as in the northern districts, vegetation is only starting and the ordinary agricultural pests have not been noticed with the exception of some of them which show up in abundance every year. Among the insects, white worms are in evidence, also cut worms, and tent caterpillars in the orchards, as well as ornamental trees. Among the diseases, it would seem that that apple blight and apple scab have made their appearance, the development of the latter is at present advanced by weather conditions.

Record Price for Canadian Bull

H. L. Guilbert, Vercheres, and W. A. Hodge, St. Laurent, paid the Canadian record price for a bull of $15,200 for Raymondale Yalta, at the National Holstein Sale held May 29 at Oakville, Ont. This 11-months-old bull was consigned by Hon. D. Raymond, of Vaudreuil, Que.

$195 Average Price For Holstein Heifers

$7,000 for 34 Heifers

The St. Hyacinthe-Vercheres Holstein Club held its first auction of heifers at St. Hyacinthe recently with over 200 breeders present. Organizers of this sale, Donat Girard, President, Domina Fortin, Secretary, and Louis N. St. Pierre, field man, were more than pleased with results obtained.

Thirty-four purebred heifers, mostly descendants of Johanna Rag Apple Pabst, were sold at an average price of $195 per head. Chambly Echo Sylvia, raised by Maurice Monty of St. Basile Le Grand, brought the highest price, $460.

How Farmers Use Money they Borrowed

Figures prepared by the Canadian Farm Loan Board show the purposes for which loans have been made in the year 1945-46 as compared with 1940-41. These figures indicate that of the amount loaned in 1940-41, a total of 77 per cent was used to retire debts as compared with 53 per cent for that purpose in 1945-46. This trend was noticeable in every province.

In the same five-year period nearly 9 per cent of the amount loaned was used for purchasing land in 1940-41 while in 1945-46, 35-6 per cent was used for that purpose. This trend prevailed in all the provinces excepting one.

Of the amount loaned in 1940-41, two per cent was used to buy livestock and equipment while in 1945-46, the percentage used for this purpose was 3.6. Here again the trend was the same in all of the provinces excepting one. There was a reduction of .3 per cent in the expenditure for building in 1945-46 as compared with 1940-41 but as building material becomes more readily available a larger percentage will be used for this purpose.

The Canadian Farm Loan Board is authorized to make loans to farmers for the following purposes: To consolidate debts; to assist in land purchase; to erect buildings; to make improvements thereon, and to buy equipment and live stock, etc.

WOULD CURB ARDOR OF MINING ROOKIES

Former Mine Owner Warns of Prospecting Hazards

Winnipeg, June 12 (CP) — Hundreds of ex-servicemen, intent on becoming prospectors, are pouring into the mining district of Red Lake, Ont., and many of them are quite prepared to set off into the bush and find gold mines for themselves. But G. W. Campbell, a former mine owner, says that's just not the way it's done.

Mr. Campbell reports that although 50 per cent of the people on Red Lake streets are veterans, few of them have any real experience in the hard labor and strange ways of a mining town.

Most of them find, sooner or later, that they must forego the prospect of making a fabulous strike and settle down to work in the mines on an interest basis of five per cent. That way, they can make about $150 a month plus board and expenses.

Soccer Makes Bid For Popularity

"Sports Camera"
By WILF GRUSON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Soccer, long overshadowed by hockey and rugby in the Canadian sports scene, is experiencing a post-war revival that holds bright prospects for the future.

The game may not attain the stage of popularity reached in the United Kingdom, Northern Ireland and other European countries, but you'll find it difficult to convince die-hard soccer fans on that point. This year's boom is an indirect outcome of the war when thousands of Canadian fighting men in Britain had the opportunity of seeing soccer played by some of the world's best players.

Many became enthusiasts and Canadian soccer officials, in planning for the future, are banking on their interest being carried over to the sport in this country. The game was also popularized by matches between Royal Air Force personnel stationed in Canada.

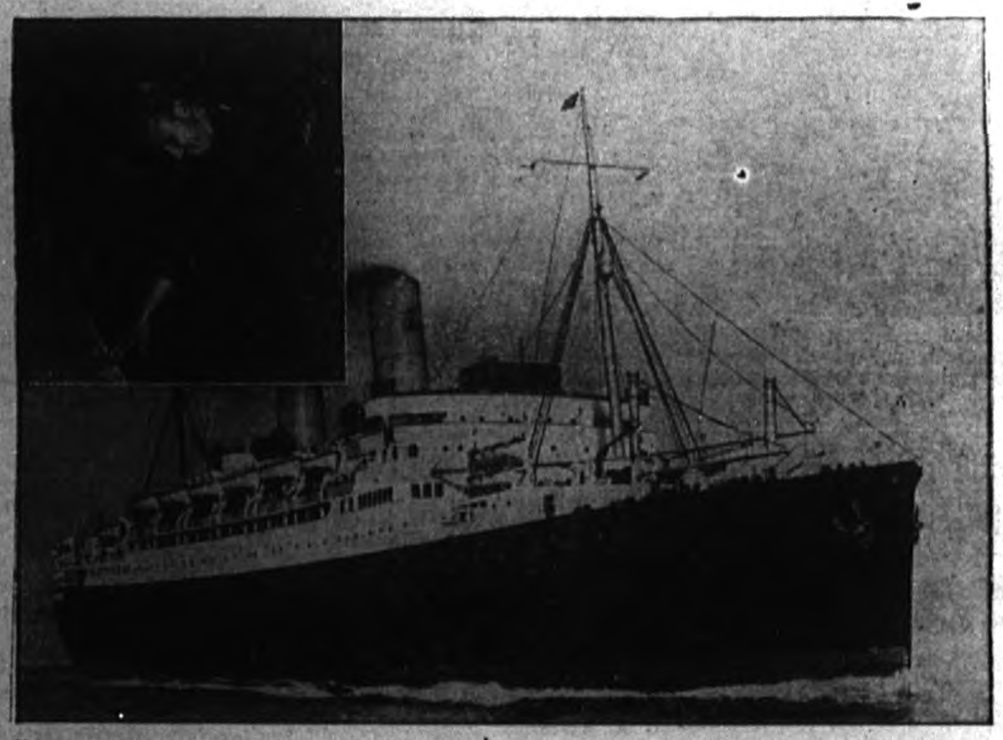

Soccer in the Dominion will always have many handicaps to overcome, principally the climate. Here football is played between May and October and midsummer heat is not conducive to good soccer because it is primarily a running game.

Sun-baked pitches work against scientific passing plays as developed in Britain where the game is played in winter, usually on heavy grounds that are ideal for ball control.

No longer do Canadian teams depend on former Old Country players as their bulwarks. Through the years the game has been popularized in the schools, especially in Ontario, where a number of good players have been developed.

"The efficiency of these players is a revelation," says Tom Holland, president of the Toronto and District Football Association and a former president of the Dominion Football Association. "All the teams now have a good number of Canadian boys on their rosters. They have learned the finer points of the game and they play splendid soccer".

Soccer followers will watch with interest Canada's entry in a newly formed United States professional soccer league. If the team — Toronto Greenbacks — is able to attract good crowds and operate successfully, the move may well lead to more entries from the Dominion.

RETURNED TO C.P.R.: First Canadian Pacific passenger liner to be released from war and repatriation service the 20,022-ton Duchess of Richmond has been returned to her owners by the British Ministry of Transport. Upon completion of the reconditioning and modernization necessary after five years as a troop carrier she will resume her peacetime run for Canadian Pacific Steamships between Liverpool and Montreal or Saint John, N.B. The Duchess of Richmond last docked in Canada at Quebec City in August of 1945, landing 4,000 Canadian repats including the two touching Canadian soil, (inset). From January of 1941 until her last voyage on the Liverpool-to-Bombay repat run she carried 170,000 passengers and steamed 437,189 miles in the war service from which she is now honorably discharged. Still in that service are the Duchess of Bedford, Empress of Scotland and Empress of Australia, of the ocean fleet, and the Princess Kathleen of the British Columbia Coast Steamships Service, owned and operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Of the 22 ships Canadian Pacific turned over to the Admiralty from its two-ocean C.P.S.S. fleet, its B.C. coastal service and the Canadian Australasian Line, in which it is a partner, 12 were sunk, two lost and two taken over permanently by the Admiralty.

Grace Moore in Starlight Opera for Montreal, July 10

When Grace Moore stars in Montreal as Mimi in La Boheme — the initial production of the Montreal Festivals in their new outdoor series, Grand Opera by Starlight, to take place at the Molson Stadium on Wednesday, July 10 — it will be the celebrated diva's first role since her return from a record-breaking tour of post-war Europe. Miss Moore is singing in Puccini's opera at the Lewisohn Stadium in New York on June 24 and 25, and will bring the same cast and production with her for the Montreal show.

Miss Moore was acclaimed in major cities of France and Italy where she was a favorite from her long sojourns as one of the great European opera singers in the pre-war period. The highlight of the tour, certainly for Miss Moore, was an impromptu appearance on the balcony of the Opera Comique in Paris. Here she sang for a huge crowd which packed the Place de l'Opera, one of the principal public places of the French capital. She felt this to be one of the great moments of her career, for it was at the Opera Comique that she made her first great success in the title role of Charpentier's Louise.

As Mimi, in Montreal, Miss Moore will be supported by an all-Metropolitan cast including Eugene Conley, Mack Harrell, Christina Carroll, Hugh Thompson and Gerhard Pechner. Maestro Resigni will conduct and Armando Agnini, stage director of the Hollywood Bowl, will be in charge of the production.

A man has credit because he isn't in the habit of living on it.

One of us

Champion First-Aider

Friendly, popular Alvin McKenzie, 45, is a wiry Scot who can treat an injury faster than you can say "pulp and paper." Mac has been "one of us" for nearly two decades. He is a back tender in a pulp and paper mill at Kapuskasing, Ontario, where he started as a fourth hand in 1928. He is a crack first-aider, has been one for 12 years. Five times a member of provincial first aid teams, he captained the winning Ontario team in 1935, was on the runner-up team in 1941. Mac plays in the local band of which he is secretary, sits on the executive committee of the Credit Union, is active in the Brotherhood, loves snowshoeing, hunting, fishing, card playing, and woodworking . . . He is a busy man in and out of the mill.

"In my opinion the paper industry is well organized. For the most part the companies are large and well-financed and have a steady, stable payroll with good wages. The employers on the whole treat the employees with consideration and tact — much more so than in other industries with which I am familiar."

Singing For Fun

ONE OF THE pleasantest of our screen myths is the freedom with which the average person tends to burst into song. If we can believe Hollywood (in its more musical moods) any telegraph boy or business executive buffeted by an unkind fate or simply enjoying a fine technicolor spring day will probably give vent to his feelings in a pleasing baritone.

Possibly the real-life counterpart of this type of celluloid character exists. Perhaps he plies his melodious trade on the canals of Venice, the pampas of the Argentine or the steppes of Russia, but he is conspicuously absent from the Anglo-Saxon world.

It may be one of the drawbacks of a scientific age that the average Canadian prefers his music ready-made by experts and declines to do his own singing, except in his bathtub or, infrequently, from the anonymous shadow surrounding a summer camp fire. He will raise his voice lustily enough in a church choir or community songfest but seldom for his own pleasure. It has even been found necessary to organize a society for the protection of that dying institution, the barber-shop quartet.

If Canadians are ashamed of their voices their shame is not justified. The opera and concert stage have more than their share of Canadian singers and new talent is constantly being discovered by music teachers, schools and radio stations. But we have come to look upon singing as a profession rather than a means of relaxation and decline to compete with the experts unless we have voices to match theirs.

Even children, naturally less selfconscious, are soon taught that they should be seen and not heard and spontaneous musical expression is squelched by silent disapproval of their elders.

Perhaps most Canadians do not know what they are missing. Their own singing may not stack up against Paul Robeson's but it can provide entertainment that is just as enjoyable and not nearly as expensive. All that is needed is the ability to carry a simple tune — and to relax.

Recognition to Our Veterans —"Let's Do It Well"

WHEN THE BOYS went overseas and the heat of war propaganda was focused upon us, when the danger of invasion and servitude was before our minds, we made many promises as to how we should treat those boys when they came back — if they came back; and if the duty now devolving upon us had been undertaken at that time there would have been no hesitation and no difficulty in providing a fitting welcome. Now with the fear of danger passed we are apt to forget the debt we owe or be slow in liquidating it.

It is our duty to welcome those boys and pay tribute to their worth. We sent them forth to fight for us and we hid in fear and trembling behind their strength. We of this generation "ran the world" since the First Great War, and a sorry mess we made of it. We alone got ourselves into the mess; and when we could go no further and the whole edifice threatened to collapse on top of us, we called upon those boys to go out and save us. It's all very well to laugh at our fears now, but they were real, damnably real, then. We made frantic efforts to get young men to save us. They answered our call. They went forth to battle and made a good job of it. Some of them gave all in the effort, and never can come back; but some came back, and with their coming we resumed our old confidence, and again stand at the helm steering our course in world affairs.

We are back at our old tricks, and if present indications serve as a forecast of things to come, we are on the way to make an ever greater mess of it this time. It may not come within the time we are guiding affairs, as the next generation is on the way up, but we must bear in mind that when we hand over the reins it will be to those very boys and girls whom we are arranging to welcome home. Our future destinies will then lie with them, and in our declining years, when we can no longer fend for ourselves, the example which we set in carrying out our social amenities may be the precedent upon which may be judged our social services. — If we are to do this job at all, let's do it well.

* * *

— This extract is from a report by the chairman of the Brownsburg committee. Entrusted with the arranging of a civic reception for returned veterans, it appears the committee has encountered a certain public apathy — which situation is possibly experienced by committees in other municipalities of the county. It is on account of this widespread application that the remarks of the Brownsburg chairman are aired in this column (with his approval), for more general consumption. They deserve serious attention.

The Brownsburg Memorial Hall

ALONG THIS line of thought, we also commend to our readers the appeal of the Brownsburg Legion, whose campaign opened this week for a fund of $35,800 with which to erect a memorial hall.

This is a recognition of a more substantial and permanent nature than the civic reception discussed above. It is also a project of deepdown community interest, for it is planned to embody in this memorial not only a monument to the valor of those who fought and suffered and died for our liberties, but also a centre for the constructive pursuits of young people and the development of local talents. It is for this particular role we find the memorial fund most worthy of support — for an impassive thing of stone and bronze, though it may immortalize the beauty and the glory of self-sacrifice, can contribute nothing to those practical ideals of democracy for which the sacrifice was made. A "living memorial" will fill that role.

Together with this function of a youth and community centre, of course, comes the prime purpose of the Brownsburg Legion Memorial — namely to provide a hall and meeting place for that organization. . . The Watchman has had close contact with the Legion in this community; we have seen it unobtrusively functioning during the "forgotten" years between the two Great Wars, when many veterans of the first world conflict met ill health and misfortune. We saw the Legion officers giving their personal time and effort to lend a helping hand, and the local fund opened to deserving cases where, through hardship, sickness or death, the dependents were in sorry straits. . . Then in a broader sense, we saw the Legion as a factor of considerable weight in the affairs of this Dominion, a voice in matters where patriotism seemed at stake, or where inequality and unfairness threatened. . . And all who are familiar with this record of the Legion must realize it is in the interests of every branch to maintain a permanent and creditable meeting place.

It may be noted in the appeal, it is hoped the Brownsburg Memorial Hall may serve as a depository for all the honor rolls of Argenteuil communities and organizations. In this manner the entire county may regard this edifice as a central place of tribute to its glorious dead.

— We feel confident the current appeal will receive a generous response from the public.

Editor Receives High Honor

A WEEKLY newspaper editor joined two generals and a poet on a university platform to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Western Ontario. He was Hugh Charles Templin of the Fergus, Ont., News Record, and his companions included Gen. H.D.G. Crerar, former commander of the Canadian Army Overseas.

Mr. Templin received the degree in recognition of his work as an editor, as president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association and for his advice to the university in its establishment of Canada's first course in journalism.

One of a number of Canadian newspapermen chosen to make a wartime tour of Britain, Mr. Templin's observations of the British war effort appeared in more than 500 Canadian papers.

He has been equally active in the affairs of his community and an editorial campaign in the News-Record was largely responsible for control of floods on the Grand River and developments of the river in the Fergus area.

Mr. Templin is the second weekly newspaper editor to be honored by an Ontario university in recent years. The late David Williams received a similar award from the University of Toronto in 1941 as publisher of the Collingwood, Ont., Enterprise-Bulletin.

LOSING A FRIEND

It is sad to see the gradual disappearance throughout the country of the rail and stump fences, which have so long sprawled across the fields in lazy fashion. It is like losing an old friend. An invention born out of necessity, they are giving way to the more efficient, but so impersonal, wire strands and steel posts.

Flying Guinea Pigs Aid African Medicos

Freetown, Sierra Leone (CP) — Four consignments of experimental guinea pigs have been flown here by a British Overseas Airways Corporation air liner for use in the campaign against sleeping sickness in Nigeria, Uganda, Kenya and other African territories.

The guinea pigs are being inoculated in Africa with the sleeping sickness virus and flown back to the United Kingdom, together with the tsetse fly parasites responsible for carrying the disease. They will then be sent to the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine, where experiments with new drugs are being carried out in the hope of controlling the disease in men and animals.

Both the native populations and their cattle are suffering from the ravages of the tsetse fly, causing a serious human and economic problem in the territories concerned.

TO THE EDITOR

Takes Exception to Auction Practices

CORRESPONDENCE

Dunany, June 1, 1946

The Lachute Watchman.

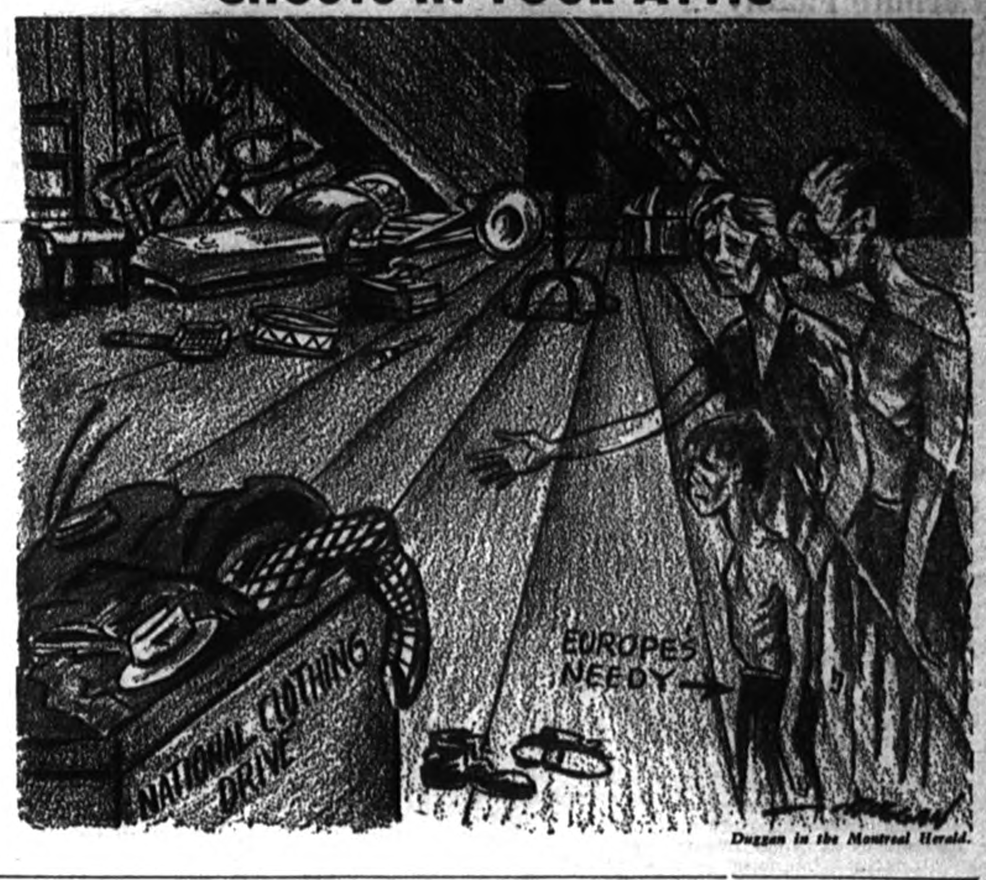

Dear Sirs: Would you care to discuss in your paper the legality of certain auction sale practices which are a great annoyance and expense to the public.

I refer to advertising certain articles and bidding them in after a just and fair price has been bid by genuine buyers. At a recent sale, a car was listed for sale and doubtless many others as well as the writer, lost a day and travelled many miles to try and obtain same. The public ran it up to three times its true value, and I am told nobody got it as it was bid in by the original owners. Probably 50 honest buyers lost a day and travelling expenses for an article which actually was not to be sold. If this mean practice is within the law, it is high time the law was revised. A frank discussion of this subject would, I am sure, interest many readers who have been thus victimized.

Your truly,

H. J. Hammond.

How 12¼-Million Pounds of Wearables From First National Clothing Drive Was Despatched and Disposed Of

RECORD OF A HIGHLY ENCOURAGING CAMPAIGN

How the 12,228,000 pounds of clothing contributed by the Canadian people in the first National Clothing Collection, sponsored by the Canadian Allied Relief, was collected, and how it was disposed of, may be of interest in view of the opening of the second campaign next week, June 17.

In the first drive there were 1,969 local committees, and the clothing delivered to the warehouse was separated into 16 classifications. Bales containing woollen goods were moth-proofed with naphthaline flakes. Each bale contained 100 pounds of clothing, and this was protected by waterproof wrapping and the whole encased in burlap hessian and contained by four strips of ⅝th inch steel strapping. Large maple leaf emblems were stencilled on the outside cover.

Uniforms that were sent in, had their insignia and buttons removed and were dyed in accordance with National Defence regulations. Of the total shoes that were sent in, the vast majority of them were well tied together in pairs with string, the result being that only .69 per cent could not be matched and forwarded. Shoes were shipped in grass coffee bags. Furs were placed in wooden boxes, and waterproof liners were provided and they were steel strapped.

The general standard and quality of clothing received was high, being clean and having been well packaged by contributors.

Twelve overseas shipments were made during November last year of the bales of clothing that had been collected in October, five more followed in December, and the remainder in the early part of January, as shipping space became more available. They went to Belgium, to China, to Czechoslovakia, France, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Yugoslavakia, Russia, Greece, Italy and other countries — an actual total of 12,288,617 pounds of good, serviceable used clothing.

This worked out at 1.13 lbs. per capita. British Columbia and the Yukon had the highest per capita figures of 1.51 lbs., but Ontario provided five-twelfths of all the clothing collected, or 1.37 lbs. per capita. In Quebec the total collected represented .57 lb. per person.

For the second drive, during the last two weeks of this month, provincial chairmen are setting their objectives as high as the achievement of last October — in some provinces there is a determination to considerabliy improve the total, through more complete organization than was possible last fall because of weather and other conditions which made collections difficult. But everywhere the same enthusiasm to help the suffering people of Europe promptly, by giving the used clothing that will be so much of a blessing to them before the winter again sets in, animates the local committees in every community. Co-operation by every member of every family, is all that is required to ensure the success of the second drive.

Says Frenchmen Anxious to Come

French War Correspondent Against Migration to Dominion

Montreal (CP)—Two French war correspondents, Jean Henri Servier of the Paris Liberation and Jean Henri Debarge of the weekly Paris publication, Carrefour, arrived here recently to study the Canadian style of living, for articles for their respective papers.

Although France is at present greatly interested in Canada for economic, cultural and immigration reasons, Mr. Servier said he did not approve the fact a great number of French people are anxious to migrate to Canada, because France now needed her population for reconstruction.

Mr. Servier, prior to being attached to the French Lend-Lease Mission in Washington, served as a tank officer in North Africa, Italy and France. He also served in the Tunisian campaign where he joined the United States army as a liaison officer.

Mr. Debarge was a war correspondent from the Island of Elbe in the Mediterranean to the south of France, and from the Vosges to Alsace, Holland and Denmark. In Holland, he was with the Canadian Army for some time.

23-YEAR-OLD CHIEF

Lachute Family Suddenly Bereaved

Late Mme J. A. Gosselin

The sympathy of this community is extended to Joseph A. Gosselin, Gatineau Power Company manager, and his family, in the shock occasioned by the sudden death of Mme Gosselin last Monday. Having worked at her household duties earlier in the day, Mme Gosselin suffered a seizure and passed away that evening.

The former Mlle Therese Barbeau, she was a native of Laprairie, Que. She was married to Jos. Gosselin 32 years ago, and they have resided in this town since 1925 — Mme Gosselin taking an active part in the interests of her church and parish.

Left to mourn, besides her husband, are four sons and two daughters — Bernard, Guy, Roland, Pierrette, Jean (formerly Warrant Officer in the R.C.A.F., having served overseas), and Jacqueline — all of whom are residing in Lachute.

The funeral mass, held this morning (Thursday) at Ste. Anastasie Church, was attended by many relatives and a large assembly of friends. Music was chanted by a choir from Montreal with Gustav Longtin, soloist, and Paul Duyon, organist. A profusion of flowers bore evidence of sympathy on the part of numerous friends and associates. Interment was made at the west-end Catholic cemetery.

PLAN MOVING MILLION LONDONERS TO SATELLITE TOWNS

Lewis Silkin, Minister for Town and Country Planning in Great Britain, has announced plans under which 1,000,000 Londoners and many industries would find new homes in satellite towns within 20 to 30 miles of London's centre.

Implementation of the plans rests in part upon comprehensive legislation for land control which the government will introduce in parliament.

The persons and firms to be moved would be accommodated mainly in a few towns and in selected towns surrounded by open country. Mr. Silkin said this was the key to the government's plans for restraining the growth of London as part of a general policy of achieving a better balanced distribution of industry throughout Britain.

To do as you would be done by, is the plain, sure, and undisputed rule of morality and justice.

Civic Apathy

Communities are entitled to no better administrations than they elect. Where the majority of electors do not bother, one day a year, to exercise their selective rights, they can find little cause for complaint if the municipal government which formally represents them takes courses to which they are opposed. If the issue rested there, it might have no serious effect. But apathy, such as that shown by municipally-enfranchised citizens throughout Canada, could easily create the breeding ground for improper practice. A clever machine, forced to deal only with a small minority of voters, could easily swing an election and put into office men whose interests were more personal than altruistic. That good fortune has allowed so many cities to escape such an eventuality is no guarantee for future safety.

USE FOR WARTIME CLUBS

London — During the war, the United Kingdom Government provided at its own expense a chain of social and recreational clubs throughout Britain primarily for war workers transferred from their own homes. The Government constructed or specially adapted a number of premises, and also lent equipment and furniture. The Ministry of Education recently announced that these clubs with their equipment and furniture will be transferred free to local authorities for use as Community Centres. Such Centres are a notable feature of all reconstruction plans for Britain's urban areas, and 15 months ago the Ministry of Education published a report emphasizing the urgent need in all rehousing plans for providing by means of Community Centres for the wise use of leisure, especially for lower income groups and those who lack tradition in leisure occupations. The Government's gift of these wartime workers' clubs will greatly assist the realization of a Community Centre within easy reach of every worker's home.

NOW THE LID IS OFF

SECRETLY, in the early and dark days of the war, a $3,000,000 plant, the Stormont Chemicals Limited, was built on the outskirts of Cornwall, Ont. No one knew what it was for except those who were responsible for its construction, the workers and the two or three top freight department officers of the Canadian National Railways who arranged for supplies to be transported into the plant. It was one of Canada's biggest and best kept wartime secrets.

Canada remembered the suffering and death of her soldiers in the first world war, when the enemy sneak-attacked with gas. More than 3,000 tons of the most potent deadly mustard gas ever produced in the world was manufactured at Cornwall and the plant was set to go into mass production instantly. So powerful was the lethal gas that if it were sprayed on a Canadian city, a chemical warfare officer says, no one could venture outdoors for a month or longer, while decontamination squads, rushed into the city from outside, cleaned it up.

But the Germans didn't use gas and when the war ended, the Chemical Warfare and Smoke Branch of the Department of National Defence faced the problem of safely disposing of the gas. The best and surest way to remove it from harm's way was to dump it in the Atlantic.

Then officers of the Canadian National Railways were called in to work out the problem of transporting the biggest mustard gas movement ever handled by rail. Special anti-gas paper had to be used to line the floor of each car, on top of which two inches of dehydrated charcoal was spread. To hold the drums, each containing more than a quarter of a ton of gas, securely in place, more than 540 feet of lumber was needed for each car. With each carload of gas, a member of the Army decontamination squad was sent along on the 900-mile trip.

In the upper photograph, a steel drum of mustard gas is being rolled into one of the 197 C.N.R. cars needed for the big movement. The lower photograph shows the drums spread over a mile-square field almost as far as the eye can see. To transport these 10,219 drums of gas to the east coast, five C.N.R. special trains were required.

Scientists Make Farm Life Easier

Chicago (CP) — Some of science's new developments to short-cut drudgery and make farming easier are being exhibited in Chicago by the United States Rubber Co. Among new agricultural chemicals and rubber products on display are:

A new chemical spray that smothers the weed crop and destroys it. The chemical can be used on lawns and in fields to eliminate such broad-leaved plants as bindweed, Canadian thistle or dandelion.

A new seed treatment designed to protect planted seeds against decay and harmful soil fungi until fickle weather can get to work and start growth.

A larger version of the pad is available for hotbeds, placed beneath the soil where it creates heat to germinate seed.

A new textile permanent starch treatment that is invisible on fabric and unaffected by laundering and dry cleaning.

A tea towel for drying dishes that is made with 20 percent asbestos fibre. The fabric is said to have great absorbency, quick polishing minus lint, and resistance to fire.

The future of democracy depends on whether it is able to depend on us.

Crow's Feet Bounty

So much so, that the Alberta Government has found it expedient to encourage the killing of predatory birds, including crows and magpies, so numerous in Alberta that they by providing for the payment of a bounty of 5 cents per pair of feet. At the present time, a summer campaign for the destruction of crows and magpies is being conducted by the Alberta Fish and Game Association which has been empowered to pay the bounty from funds allocated to it by the Alberta Government.

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Noranda, one of Quebec's Major Copper and Gold Mines — Photograph Courtesy Canadian Pacific Railway

Do you know Quebec? Do you know, for example, that during the past thirty years, mining has expanded from $18,000,000 to over $100,000,000 per year! From important non-metallic raw materials like asbestos, to copper, gold, silver, nickel, zinc and other metals!

With an eye to the future, the Government of Quebec maintains a training school for miners at Val d'Or; has added more experts and geologists to its Department of Mines; plans extension of geological mapping and study of new districts.

Although bauxite is imported from South America, Quebec is now a world centre in the smelting of aluminum. She is a major producer of asbestos. Significantly, nearly all the metal mines are located within a 6,000 square mile area —and Quebec covers 703,635 square miles! The surface has only been scratched.

The same careful development is evident in her other natural resources . . . agriculture, fisheries, lumbering, hydro-electric power, etc. For these are the life and work of the people. On them Canada depends for many of the materials so essential to a great, united nation!

QUEBEC BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE

In 1608 Champlain brought the first colonists to Quebec. Today, Quebec's population is 3,000,000, her retail trade $800,000,000.00 per year. She leads all Provinces in the production of hydro-electric power, textiles, lumber, newsprint, footwear, processed tobacco, asbestos and aluminum. Natural resources, agriculture and transportation are being developed wisely. And now, Quebec, her people deep-rooted in the love of their homeland, prepares to share with her sister Provinces, Canada's bright and glorious future!

COMMUNITY FUNDS PAY FOR CENTRE

Features Year-Round Sports, Recreational Facilities

Winnipeg (CP) — Determined to pay for their memorial to Second Great War dead through community funds only, residents of suburban Weston are going ahead with plans for a year-round community centre on a former soccer ground here.

The 1,000 families of Weston are asked to contribute $10 each to the initial fund to develop the grounds. An honor roll including 1,400 names of enlisted men and women from the district will be the first step.

Further plans include a clubhouse to house five sheets of curling ice, concert hall, gymnasium, bowling alleys and dancing auditorium.

Shale tennis courts and six bowling greens will be ready for use this summer. Softball and hardball diamonds have been laid out. And a football and rugby field is included in the plan. The playing field is expected to be girdled with a track for foot racing. A hockey rink and speed skating track are also planned.

President of the community organization, A. W. Cooney says it may take three to ten years to complete the plan.

SHIPYARD BUILT IN WILDERNESS

Build Steel Barges, Tugs for Use on Fort Nelson River

Fort Nelson, B.C. (CP) — In the heart of the wilderness 400 miles from Pacific tidewater and hundreds of miles from a railway, a shipyard has been set up on the Fort Nelson River by a crew of 30 shipbuilders. Early last month it launched a steel tugboat and three steel barges.

The tugs and barges were prefabricated at yards in Victoria, hauled 1,650 miles overland and assembled and welded on the frozen shores of Fort Nelson River. The contract called for building the yard and launching the four units within three months.

The little band of shipbuilders had to utilize the railway, the Alaska Highway, carve out of the wilderness a new 35-mile-long road and erect a yard where only virgin timber stood, working in 35 below zero temperatures.

Yellowknife Transportation ordered the vessels, to be delivered at headwaters of the Nelson River early in May. The prefabricated steel was hauled by rail to Dawson Creek, then by trucks 350 miles up the Alaska Highway, when the 35-mile road was cut through to the launching site. The men worked on 10-hour shifts daily.

SCHOOL OFFERS 10-CENT FACIAL

Favorite Beauty Treatments Available to Models at Cost Price

By KAY REX,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto (CP) — For 10 cents, any housewife may treat herself to a facial. For another 10 cents she may even indulge in a shampoo and fingerwave. And if she has been saving for a complete re-do job she may order a cold wave — for $3.

The lineup continues to grow at the Hairdressing School, now being conducted for men and women veterans at the Ontario Training and Re-establishment Institute, but the students need customers upon whom they may may practice. Anyone willing to model for the class may have all her favorite beauty treatments at cost.

"We're waiting for four shampoo chairs which have been held up because of the steel strike in the States," said Miss Rieka Barnour, Toronto, one of the instructors. "In addition we've been having such a time trying to accommodate all who want to take the classes that beginning with next month we're opening a special night shift."

Believe it or not, men outnumber women students, and for many of the former the course is entirely new.

Building aircraft is a long jump from hairdressing, but that's what Fred Johnson, Vancouver, was doing before he joined the Army. Now he's hoping to learn all he can about beauty treatments before returning to Vancouver to go into business.

J. Huska, Winnipeg, was a hairdresser before he went into the army, but is taking the course to get new ideas.

Paul Le Blanc, Shediac, N.B., was an electrician in pre-war years, but said he will go to New York . . . "just as soon as I get my course and pick up a little experience."

NURSERYMAN SPECIALIZED IN GLADIOLI, WINNING MANY TROPHIES AND AWARDS

Previous to this, flowers had been but a hobby with Mr. Ogilvy — with the exception of gladioli, in which he had specialized for the market. In August 1935 the first exhibition of the Province of Quebec Gladiolus Society was staged at the Ritz Carleton Hotel, Montreal; Ogilvy's entries won him the Amateur Sweepstake on this occasion. The seven following years added seven successive Sweepstake prizes, in competition with all comers. Twenty-one trophies and medals were also won for specimens and new originations, during this time.

His membership in several gladiolus and florist societies has meanwhile provided many opportunities to study the make-up technique of leading florists in Montreal. Today this firm has connections with florists and nurseries which enable them to supply the best quality flowers and growing stock and also to apply the up-to-date methods of landscape work and pest control.

The return of the overseas member of this family, Douglas Ogilvy, has added more strength to the business — allowing the addition of a good line of perennials, shrubs, ornamental trees and small fruits, available this fall, and making personal selection a convenience to all customers. Every effort is made to give the best in floral designs and decorations for all occasions.

The publishers of this newspaper again request that news items and advertising be handed in as early as possible in the week. The Watchman cannot do justice to news, correspondence or charitable appeals when they arrive in quantities too formidable to handle just before press time. . . . This applies particularly to events happening several days before, the report of which may not be forthcoming till press day or the night preceding. In this manner our typesetting facilities are overtaxed and space is often lacking.—Please co-operate.

Practical Aims Of Psychology

adult cannot remember why he often lied as a child and told fantastic tales. The grown-up does not realize that all children go through such periods. Sometimes very minor things can cause children to dislike one parent or the other. A child's imagination should be allowed for, as a natural part of development. Psychology indicates that parents are too anxious about their children's development.

Actually children vary considerably in their rate of mental and physical development, and there should be little need for concern unless the child's lack of mental development is very obvious, whereupon a psychologist should be consulted.

"C" — Criminal psychology is the section which studies the cause and cure of crime. The Borstal system is a practical application of psychology which recognizes the fact that criminals are all human beings in need of sympathetic attention. They do not desire to be different and their condition may not be their fault.

"D" — The psychology of sex forms another important category. Dr. Freud pioneered in the field of sex as an explanation for social behavior; Drs. Kraft-Ebbing, and latterly, Dr. Walter Henry have contributed notably — Henry with an attitude of genuine interest, enquiry and sympathy and his warning to use with very special care the word 'abnormal' when dealing with sex.

"F"—Mental hygiene, a section which has been and still is much misunderstood. Insanity is a legal term designating a person not capable of taking care of himself or not responsible for his acts — yet everyone, at some time or another, has been in such a state that they felt incapable of "taking care of" all the troubles that beset them. Then, what is normal? Who is to say?

It is now recognized that what was formerly called insanity is really a mental illness which, in the majority of cases, can be cured with proper care. Nor is it any longer considered a disgrace to have someone in the family who is mentally ill. This attitude was a throwback to the medieval ages when an abnormal mind was considered to be one possessed of the devil.

Comparative psychology is a most interesting field. It is one in which the behavior of animals is compared with the behavior of human beings. Pavlov was the pioneer in this field, and his work on salivation is probably the basis for all study on conditioning, which involves association of thought, and is one of the factors of Learning and Remembering.

Vocational Guidance is a very worthwhile application of psychology. It is well known that students spend years in gaining knowledge in a trade or profession that they never follow. This is a waste of public funds, and the person's time — if not his life happiness, in some cases. Competent psychologists in schools, is a modern trend that will have inestimable value with the young people who must take on the job of civilizing our civilization.

In this connection it is interesting to note that, what you have learned to date is your ability; and what you are able to learn, plus your present ability, is your capacity. Employers hire people for their ability and invest in them in proportion to their capacity.

For estimating ability and capacity there are mechanical aptitude tests, clerical, musical and mental or I.Q. tests. Some of these are used for industrial hiring or placing of personnel.

Fatigue and its study is another modern field of enquiry. What makes people become fatigued? Is it physical, mental, spiritual or just boredom? Industrialists are interested to learn whether it is noise, ventilation, light, heat, color, hunger and many other conditions which result in fatigue and what and how the optimum conditions can be set up for workers. Laboratory tests have been carried out on many angles, including the use of music, a change of rate of work, companionship, a change of job, serving food, comfortable rest rooms and giving varied rest periods.

Psychology, it will be seen, is a highly interesting study — with many problems to be solved.

Our mechanized civilization is complex. Progress in the mechanical field has received more attention than man himself — unfortunately to his detriment, as the war has just shown. Psychology is endeavoring to bring us up-to-date.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by Rotarians Harold Barrie and Dennis Staniforth, respectively.

White and pink snapdragons and potted plants formed the decorations.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Burgess, as maid of honor, and Miss Bernice Ogilvie, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, while little Gail Mitchell and Jean Ogilvie were flower girls. Mr. Jack Olgivie was his brother's best man, with Mr. J. A. Mitchell and Mr. Robert Ogilvie as ushers.

FOUNDS ORPHANAGE IN HER OWN HOME GETS $1,000 GIFT

Sara Murphy Shelters and Teaches Waifs 15 Years in Georgia Hills

Cedartown, Ga. (CP) — Surrounded by children to whom she has given a home, a placid Negro woman is dreaming of the time when she can offer them, and others like them, a college education at their doorstep in these north Georgia foothills.

"I'm glad I spent my life as I have," said Sara Murphy, founder of an orphanage where she has housed a half hundred charges during the last 15 years. "I've been dealing in human lives. What could be better?"

Hers is a story of slender resources, strengthened by faith. "She's a wonderful woman and a fine Christian influence in her community," commented Kankakee Anderson, Polk county school superintendent under whose direction Sara runs the two-room school she founded. "She — and her children — have a fine record."

Sara moved into the Grady community, six miles south of Cedartown, in 1920. She was the bride of Marion Murphy, cement plant worker and part-time farmer. Behind her was a record of constant struggle to establish schools for Negro children in her home community seven miles to the east where she taught for several years.

"There was no school here and people told me I'd never build one — that I'd never get the land," she said. "But I taught school in the church building and kept praying for the land."

She got it: two acres, from men to whom she had made a gesture of friendship with an offer of flower seed from a plant they had admired.

Cared For Orphans

I 1931 Sara was called to the bedside of a neighbor woman who died shortly after giving birth to her sixth child. There was no one to care for the orphaned children so Sara and her husband took them in. That was the start of what she terms "the work I was called to do."

In 1934, the year in which Sara's only child died, they made room for another six; in 1935, still another. In 1935 Sara was granted a state charter for the Sara Divina Murphy Home, named for the lost daughter.

Now there are 49 in the home, the youngest five months old. Eight of the girls have married. Three of the boys were in the armed services. Only one of the children has died.

"I've taught 'em all to work," Sara said, "in the fields or making quilts or bottoming chairs. We chop or pick cotton, we gather berries or we pick peas — all of us. If the field is close enough by, even the littlest ones go along to do their bit."

Sara recently was given a $1,000 bond as a "good neighbor of the year" by the Breakfast in Hollywood radio program. That, she said, is strictly a building fund, to be held until an expansion can be undertaken.

For Sara, nearing 50 and only slightly grey, has plenty of plans. "First of all, I want to see some decent dormitories for my children. Then a better school and then — why can't I found a college right here? I'm praying about it."

"Me? Oh, I expect to find my reward in heaven!"

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

KEEP THEM IN CANADA

Canadian radio artists are beginning to get some recognition as evidenced by various awards and the dinner proceedings being broadcast. It is a good thing as artists require not only money but they need to be appreciated to do their best work — who doesn't?

Anyone doing creative work needs it most of all. Rumor has it that CBC is paying artists and writers more money, as are some of the privately owned stations. This is as it should be, because if we hope to keep our best artists in Canada we must come at least within striking distance of the money they might earn across the Border. Lorne Green has been presenting actors and actresses from his Radio School in a series of broadcasts. In ending, he says, "same day you may see their names in lights on Broadway, Hollywood, or London". Never a word about seeing them in lights in Canada. How could he? We have plenty of native talent in Canada and it is time something was done about giving them a chance at home. Conditions are improving but much too slowly.

LESSEN REFRESHMENTS

We all enjoy the sociability of a cup of tea after a meeting, but many women feel conscience-stricken when they see the abundance of food served and often such quantities left over. When a meeting is of indeterminate size it is almost impossible not to have food remaining as committees in their anxiety to be sure to have enough, ask for more than is required. This wastage might be lessened if sandwiches were eliminated completely. Left-over sandwiches are a waste. They take bread and we could very well do without them at present. If cake or cookies are supplied in too great a quantity they still can be used as they will keep. An organization to which I belong has a picnic supper meeting each June. The member in charge of the supper has told me her plans and they are so good I would like to tell you about them. She plans to have sliced tongue, which is a meat that cannot be shipped. Then there will be potato salad, and a green salad of lettuce and other vegetables available, one of which will be home canned green beans. A small roll will accompany this. Dessert will be crushed strawberries served on meringues. This meal requires flour for only the roll; the only butter used will be to butter that roll; the dessert requires neither butter nor flour; and the meat is one which could not be shipped. If women really try they can have very very good meals and still save foods which can be shipped to hungry people.

A REAL WASTE

I am often struck with the way the same idea seems to turn up several times about the same time. I was listening to a radio program which gave household hints, and one of them recommended as good household management, to prepare the vegetables immediately after breakfast and to allow them to stand in water until time to use them. This advice horrified me because many of the minerals and some of the vitamins are soluble in water and if the vegetables are put in water for hours these would be dissolved and the loss of nutrients would be great. A day or two afterwards one of my neighbors happened to say she always prepared her vegetables in the morning, because she could go out in the afternoon and still get dinner ready quickly when she returned. I told her about the loss of minerals and vitamins and she was appalled to think of all her family had lost over a long period of years as her children are about grown-up now. She said she never again would waste food like that. I was out for lunch and remarked on the crispness of the celery. My friend said she always kept it in water; she knew she was loosing nutrients but she didn't care just as long as her celery was very crisp. You can have crisp celery without keeping it in water. After it is washed enough moisture clings to it to keep it crisp if stored in a cool place.

EGG WHITES

When we beat egg-whites we often beat them too much in our enthusiasm. An egg white is made of cells that are elastic and really just like small balloons. As we beat them we fill them with air and they stretch in size. If we beat them too long we will stretch them until they burst. If they are to be heated, the heat expands the cells and if they are too full of air they will break. When a recipe says to beat until stiff but not dry that is exactly what should be done, because then there is still room for expansion by heat and the resulting mixture will be lighter than if beaten until dry.

MARMALADE TRICKS

Even though there are many things we cannot get, Orange Marmalade is always available. I have had it served in several interesting ways recently. First I had it as a topping for chocolate ice cream, and the flavors blended very nicely. The dessert at a dinner party was Spanish Cream with a little orange marmalade added. I think it would be best to stir it into the hot custard after it thickened. I have had it in muffins, tiny ones with a spoonful of marmalade put in the centre of the batter before baking. These were served for tea and did not require butter. Here is the recipe for a sauce that may be served hot with a pudding such as a Cottage pudding, or cold with ice cream or a chilled milk pudding.

MARMALADE SAUCE

⅓ cup corn syrup ⅓ cup of unstrained orange juice, few grains salt, 1 teaspoon butter, 3 tablespoons marmalade.

Mix the corn syrup, orange juice and salt in a small saucepan, and bring to the boil, then simmer gently for five minutes. Add the butter and marmalade and stir until the butter is melted and the marmalade thoroughly stirred through the sauce. Serve hot or chilled.

Columnist Reports

Margaret Aitken, Toronto Evening Telegram columnist, presents a daily three-minute commentary of news from the woman's point of view over the CBC, Monday to Friday, at 4.15 p.m. Miss Aitken's news precedes the regular 4.18 p.m. talk programs arranged especially for Canada's homemakers.

BILINGUAL STENOS EXPEDITE BUSINESS

Buenos Aires (CP) — Giving evidence of the increasing number of foreigners coming here to investigate trade possibilities, an enterprising woman has set up a bilingual secretarial agency for "travelling executives".

Rates of $1.25 per page are quoted for shorthand in either Spanish or English, with secretaries available by the day at $7.50. The agency also offers girls with commercial French knowledge for European exporters.

8 POINTS TO TAB 'N KITCHEN PANS

Baton Rouge, La. (CP) — Buying a pan or kettle can be a science, and one that pays off, reports the Louisiana State University agricultural extension department.

Before investing in aluminum or stainless steelware, the department advises housewives should check on eight points:

1. Balance — between pan and handle, to avoid spills.
2. Surface — the fewer the cracks the easier to clean.
3. Bottom — flat for faster heating, economy in fuel.
4. Sides — straight ones save both fuel and space.
5. Handles — should be "comfortable" and heat-insulated.
6. Cover — close-fitting is essential for many processes.
7. Thickness — the thinner the cheaper, but less durable.
8. Metal — steel more durable, aluminum cooks more evenly.

Girl Cyclists Tour Continent

Melbourne (CP) — Seeing Australia cheaply is the object of two Melbourne girls who have set off to tour the country by bicycle. With two sturdy bikes and not very much money, Shirley Duncan, 21, and Wendy Law, 19, plan to cross the continent from Melbourne at its southern tip to Darwin in the far north.

When they complete that little jaunt the girls plan to see the rest of the world in the same way.

The girls aren't too proud to do a little hitch-hiking once in a while and accept odd jobs along the way to keep themselves financially solvent. Their last job was in a fruit cannery in Victoria.

FASHION HINTS

At home in the country, smart in town, is about all one can ask of a dress, and this one meets the test. Of navy crepe, it has a jacket cut in a curved, cut-away line, with four self buttons for the double-breasted effect. The navy and white polka dot silk scarf simulates a pulled-through effect terminating in a looped bow at one side.

NEWS ITEM HELPS SAVE BABY'S LIFE

Sydney, Australia (CP) — A cabled item from New York newspapers may have helped to save the life of three-year-old Raymond Muller of suburban Arncliffe. Raymond was dangerously ill with nephritis, a kidney infection. Doctors at Camperdown Hospital expected him to die.

His mother remembered reading of a similar case of a New York patient who had responded to being fed with a broth made from watermelon seeds. She asked the doctors to try it. They did and Raymond began to improve. He's now home, but his condition is still causing some concern. The broth treatment is being continued. Just what part the water-mellon broth has played, doctors don't know yet.

Girl Friend

Alice Hill began her acting career with the Hart House Players and in summer stock. Now a principal among Toronto's radio actors, she plays frequently in CBC's "Stage 46", and as Rosemary, the "girl friend", is heard every Friday night in "The Johnny Home Show" on the CBC Trans-Canada network, at 9.00 p.m. EDT. Alice has a wedding coming up in one of her roles, for Janis Craig, a role Miss Hill created, is being married during the interlude with "The Craigs" on the daily farm broadcast of Friday, June 21, at 1.45 p.m. EDT, over Ontario and Quebec stations of the CBC Trans-Canada network.

KATE SMITH STILL TOPS ON THE AIR

New York (CP) — Because she sounds like the girl next door, Kate Smith, radio singer and commentator, has stayed at the top in radio for 15 years.

That's the best explanation the experts have been able to arrive at for the unprecedented and sustained popularity of this hearty, wholesome star who is heard each week by 42,000,000 persons. Her contralto voice is rich and pleasant, but not of Metropolitan Opera calibre. Neither her face nor her figure would take any beauty prizes. But she puts on no frills, and she regards all those listening millions as just "folks and friends".

Kate Smith (christened Kathryn Elizabeth) was born May 1, 1909, the daughter of a newsdealer in Washington, D.C. She began singing in a church choir, sang for soldiers around Washington during the First Great War and then began turning up regularly for amateur nights at local movie houses. After training briefly to be a nurse, Kate came to New York, got a singing part in a show, "Honeymoon Lane," and at 17 was singing the comedy lead in "Flying High."

But Kate was a fat girl and wasn't allowed to forget it. Critics poked fun at her. Audiences giggled. Then one Ted Collins, sales manager for a phonograph recording company, heard Kate one night and asked her to make some records. From then on things happened. In 1931 Kate made her debut in radio, over CBS, with Ted Collins as her manager. The combine has lasted through the years. The two are partners in the corporation "Kated," sharing all profits with mutual harmony and enthusiasm. Says Kate:

"I am proud of those 15 years. I am proud and happy — not because of any laurels and success that may have come my way, but because of the many friends who have been so kind and the many happy associations since my first broadcast in 1931. A long time ago Ted Collins, my mentor, told me that the people listening in were "just folks and friends. I'll keep right on singing for those friends, as long as they want me to".

THEY'RE PRECIOUS

Too many parents allow their children to play on the roads. One accident, however slight, can cause a lot of grief to the child, the parents and the operator of the car who was unfortunate enough to have the accident. Children are worth a little attention.

—Carberry (Man.) News-Express

CHARGE IT TO OVERHEAD

Women will buy anything in the way of a hat — the crazier the topper the more they'll pay. There's no logic in it, but there is a profit — and loss — to the family pocket book. Father may groan, but he has to laugh a little too. No use charging it to clothing allowance. Put it under entertainment and amusement, and let it go.

Vancouver (CP) — A five-passenger Anson aircraft is exjected to solve the post-war problems of a group of R.C.A.F. fliers.

The machine has been converted for use in photographic work and the association has been named Aero Surveys Limited. The new company will undertake to make aerial scale photographs of any portion of the province's terrain from any altitude. Such maps are already in demand by logging companies, mining groups, civic organizations, real estate firms and town-planning commissions.

It also plans an ambitious motion picture program, with color documentary films of British Columbia and her industries for the nation's movie screens.

Lewis Williams, a newsreel war correspondent, is the originator of the idea. Other veterans associated with him are Pilot Harold Ollis, battle of Berlin veteran; former Ski-Trooper A. L. Gray, and Navigator Paddy Benson.

It is cheering, this talk about the atomic age a-coming and how it will mean that we shan't have to burn coal any more and be continually supplicating heaven to soften the heart of John L. Lewis. But who can guarantee that the plutonium-passers at the Atomic Power Stations won't affiliate with the United Mine Workers and follow in their train? Fission is wonderful, all right, but we still feel, as we have felt ever since we hauled coal dust home from the railway siding on Junior's sled in the bitter winter of whenever-it-was, that the only truly happy man in this world is the one who has an open fireplace, a good strong back, a good sharp axe and a forty acre self-sustaining woodlot.

Previous Records Exceeded as Lachute Fair Directors View Successes in All Departments

Weather Factor Turns the Trick for Triumph of A Well Prepared Program

To do justice in describing the 1946 Lachute Spring Fair would require a new stock of superlatives, a new line of epithets, and compliments which might be more appropriately voiced by an outsider. And the visitors have stinted nothing in their praise — the newsmen and reporters having been especially generous.

One or two of the most notable aspects — and one or two angles untouched by other commentators — may be mentioned here in the space at our command. The general impression has been well conveyed in news stories and pictures published prior to this date.

The visit of the Governor General on Wednesday, to perform the opening ceremonies (reported last week) was a gesture cordially appreciated by the directors and the public in general. This function gave impetus to a program which, from the start, seemed destined to achieve great triumphs.

Although every preparation had been made to ensure the success of the occasion, still one unpredictable factor — the weather — remained uncertain. And in this respect something happened which has never happened before, in the days since Lachute Exhibition was a fall fair with exhibits of golden corn, pumpkins and grandma's preserves. — The rain held off. In this instance alone, Lachute Fair 1946 was phenomenal !

Despite the premium set on fees for late entries, the horses were coming in on Wednesday, as usual. But for the first time on record, a number of livestock entries were refused. There was hardly room for another cow or horse in the barns. There were many new exhibitors this year.

Up till yesterday noon, complete admission figures were not available. However, it is estimated that over 40,000 people passed through the gates during the four exhibition days. On Friday, the big day of the Fair, the admissions numbered between 15,000 and 17,000 — an all-time record for any single day in the history of this exhibition.

Says Bryan White —

In the words of Bryan L. White, editor of the Ottawa Farm Journal, whose attention missed few details (and whose opinions, as an impartial observer, are keenly valued)—

"Friday at Lachute was something to see. By mid-afternoon the cars were lined up for a half mile outside the main gate and there was no parking room left inside the grounds. For a time the directors considered closing the grounds to further cars, but this proved unnecessary. Eating places ran out of food and the thousands went into the town seeking a meal. Every vantage point from which anything could be seen was crowded with humanity. For the night horse show the stand was packed again; people stood ten deep round the big ring.

"By Saturday night President J. H. Black, Manager Alex Bothwell and all the directors were beaming with pleasure and pride. . .

"There were other records, . . . Lachute is essentially an agricultural show and the dairy cattle and heavy horse exhibits were well worth going a long way to see. The dairy show could have been out in any ring in Canada and the Ayrshire exhibit, always the feature of Lachute Fair, had 186 animals entered. This was the largest number ever shown at Lachute and classes of up to 33 animals paraded before Judge R. O. Biggs.

"Norda Farms, of Vankleek Hill, took the grand championship in Holstein and were well up in other classes. It is likely that next year will see a much larger Holstein exhibit at this fair."

(There were over 100 Holsteins on exhibit, four herds of Jerseys and a good showing of Shorthorns . . . Grand champion Ayrshire bull was a newcomer to the show ring, Smithston Ivanhoe Inys, a two-year-old imported and owned by J. H. Black. J. P. Bradley of Lachute took the grand champion female).

"Nowhere in Eastern Canada can better heavy draft and breeding horse classes be seen than at Lachute", continues Bryan White. "If anything this year's show was larger and better than previously. In agricultural draft harness classes some very fine turn-outs were seen in the ring at night. A pair of almost black draft Clyde geldings shown by George Watson and Son of Leonard, attracted a deal of attention. The breeding classes were not so well filled but some fine horseflesh was on display".

Stars in Horse Ring

The stellar attraction for the crowds at night was the light horse show. Excellent jumping featured the card but the hackney ponies, with a big entry, were also a big attraction. The Cardy entry of 11 jumpers gave the crowd many thrills over difficult jumping courses.

Among the many excellent classes in the light horse show was an outstanding team of roadsters shown Saturday night, owned by E. E. Foster. This pair of perfectly matched black roadsters, driven by Mr. Foster himself, put on a show seldom seen anywhere.

Another star entry in the horse ring was the grand champion Percheron stallion, Jason, owned by Gilbert E. Arnold of Grenville. It was the first time this horse has ever appeared on exhibition.

Horsemen are agreed that Mr. Arnold has in this animal a worthy successor to his famous "Old Doc", which died a short time ago, and that this young stallion is on his way to becoming a national champ.

With over 6,000 fans jamming the stands and enclosure Mrs. A. O. Mackay and Miss Helen Ferguson triumphed over the leading men riders by winning the Open Jumping Stake and the Green Hunter Class — two of the most notable saddle-horse events.

There were also some outstanding Green Hunter performances, with Mount Vernon Ranch winning their fifth hunter class with Helen Ferguson on Cardolina. Mrs. Mackay was second on Tiplin, and Mrs. Dillingham third on Melody.

Over the high jumps, Mrs. A. O. Mackay on her Meadowbrook Farm entry, Question, fought it out with Noel Beauchamp on Topper for second and Percy Knott on O'Connell's Harmony for third.

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS SPONSOR "SALUTE TO AGRICULTURE"

A Timely Echo to High Spot In This Community's Calendar, Argenteuil Annual Exhibition

With Creditable Wartime Record, Farmers Turn Their Thoughts to Post-War World

The "SALUTE TO AGRICULTURE" — initiated by weekly newspapers across Canada during the current week, June 17-22 — is inspired by genuine appreciation of the wartime job performed by Canadian farmers. . . In this community it comes as a timely gesture, with Lachute Spring Fair, highlight in the rural calendar hereabouts, still vivid in our recollection.

The Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association has a keen interest in farmer organizations. The average weekly editor is very close to the people who make a living from the soil, and generally speaking he has an understanding and appreciation of their problems and their way of life. It is therefore fitting that the Canadian weeklies should be the medium and the mouthpiece of this national salute.

Believe the Stability of Agriculture Requires Floor Prices on Products to Prevent Inflation

In 1940, with many thousands of young men and women leaving farms to join the armed forces (a total of 450,000 left the farms during the war to enter the services or to go to war industry), the farmers were faced with the stupendous task of producing a large volume of the food required by the allied nations for their armies and navies and air forces. That the farmers of this Dominion accepted the challenge and met it nobly is amply evidenced by the records — writes H. H. Hannam, President, Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

During the five years from 1940 to 1944 inclusive the farmers of Canada exported overseas more than two million tons of bacon, beef, dairy products and poultry products for the use of our own and allied armed forces to feed the beleaguered people of Great Britain.

Having given their best efforts to the task of food production for wartime, farm people are turning their thoughts to the post-war world. They believed that we fought for an opportunity to build a better kind of security and freedom for all men than we have had heretofore.

They want to see stability for agriculture on an economic plane that will make it possible to maintain the fertility of the soil and insure a decent livelihood for the number of families required to man our farms and farm them well. Farm people believe that if we were able to apply a general price ceiling in wartime to save us from disastrous inflation, we can equally well apply a general floor price under farm products to save us from the disasters of deflation. They do not believe it is necessary that the bitter experiences of the 30's have to be repeated. If regulations and controls are necessary to give security and stability to rural life, our farmers are willing to accept them. But better still, they would like regulations self-imposed as far as possible, and administered largely by officials selected from among themselves. That is what democracy means to them.

'Helping Teacher' Named for Schools In This District

By Order-in-Council dated June 12, Mrs. Donald McCabe, of Rivington, has been appointed a "Helping Teacher". Her duties will be to visit under the direction of the Department of Education, Protestant schools in Argenteuil and neighboring counties, spending as much as a week with a teacher if necessary, to assist with organization, management, teaching methods, preparation and other phases of instruction. Beginning teachers will be given such advice and assistance as may be required.

Mrs. McCabe served for some years in Montreal, but has also taught in the rural elementary schools of Harrington and Rivington. She is at present principal at Kilmar, where her services are highly esteemed.

Recover Bodies of Two Boys from Ottawa River

Hawkesbury (CP) — Bodies of Ernest Poulin, 13, and Gaetan Madore, 17, both of Hawkesbury, were recovered from the Ottawa river Saturday after eight days of dragging. The youths were two of three lads who drowned June 3 when a rowboat from which they were fishing was swept into the Long Sault Rapids.

Poulin's body was found on the Quebec side of the river; Madore's on the Ontario shore a few hours later. No trace has yet been found of Royal Poulin, 18, a brother of Ernest, who also was drowned at the same time.

Only witness of the triple drowning was Miss Jeannette Rochon, of Grenville, who while crossing the interprovincial bridge, saw the trio swept into the rapids. By the time Miss Rochon was able to summon aid, no trace of the youths could be seen.

High School Issues Its 13th Annual

The Student Council of Lachute High School has published the 13th edition of the school "annual", and copies are now on sale.

Those in charge of publication were — Joan McMartin, editor-in-chief; Ernestine Cooper, Graduates' section; Betty Brown, Social section; Audrey Heatlie, Literary section; Lois Bennett and Morris Prosser, Sports section; Kay Moseley, Doris Hadley and Pete MacGibbon, Art section; Colin McOuat and Ken Dawson, Advertising.

The "annual" is dedicated to the principal of the school, Mr. C. H. Bradford, who has been on the staff for four years and is leaving for teaching duties in Montreal.

The cover of this booklet is printed in the school's colors, blue and gold, and the 80 pages are illustrated with many pictures, drawings and articles describing the year's activities among the pupils.

Plane Overturns While Landing in Farmer's Field

Circling over the town for some length of time around the noon hour last Friday, a Norseman transport plane landed in a field belonging to E. Kilgour Wilson on Lachute Road, and after a fair landing proceeded 400 feet and nosed down, overturning completely. The plane belonged to Rev. Fr. A. Cartier, of the Oblate Order, who uses the craft in his work on the Hudson Bay mission field. Father Cartier, at present on furlough from the North, was piloting the plane from Cartierville airport, accompanied by his assistant, Ray Bertrand. Both miraculously escaped injury, although the craft was badly damaged.

The crash occurred about a quarter mile off the highway. It had been the priest's intention to visit friends around here, and the presence of his yellow-painted craft over Lachute in Exhibition time aroused considerable interest.

Incidentally, Lachute Fire Brigade, notified of the mishap, arrived at the scene of the crash in short time, accompanied by a police officer. The alarm was given when a girl's voice broke into a conversation on the party telephone line, summoning help after she had seen the accident occur near her home. . . The two airmen paid tribute to the firemen and police authorities for their co-operation. The plane is being dismantled by a repair crew from Fairchild Aircraft at Longueuil.

B'burg Memorial Campaign Shows Good Progress

Brownsburg—Despite difficulties experienced in contacting prospective subscribers due to the Exhibition and other affairs, returns to date in the Memorial campaign are encouraging. The regrettable and untimely passing of George Prosser, a well-known and popular member of the Brownsburg Legion, also was a deterrent factor. In this connection the Branch and its Auxiliary turned out in strength to pay final respect to its erstwhile comrade on Saturday, June 15.

The objective of $35,800 can only be achieved by the co-operation of all — by those who did not serve and those who did — those who profited from the war in some way and those who did not. The servicemen themselves are setting a fine example in the size of their contributions.

Canvassers report, so far, overwhelming support for the project. There are as usual, of course, a few who are withholding subscriptions for the time being. Some of these wish to have the situation clarified; others want to see what others are giving; a negligible few try to find excuses (they will not give under any circumstances to anything); a number are endeavoring to change the plans. There are a few, too, who are willing but cannot afford to give. Unfortunately, there are one or two who are vociferously hostile, but it is gratifying to note, they are meriting no attention.

To those who would like to have the plans changed and a hospital, a skating rink, or a swimming

The Appeal for Clothing

Through pressure of other matters, no community campaign appears to have been planned so far in behalf of the National Clothing Collection. But it would be regrettable if, through lack of such organized effort, the appeal should pass unheeded here.

The National Clothing Collection opened its campaign on Monday, to continue until June 29. For centres where no collection has been planned, the appeal is clear and explicit — namely, that parcels of good, used clothing be securely tied and left at the nearest post office, or at the mail boxes for collection by rural mail drivers. The postal staff and couriers are accepting this extra task, and it is hoped all town and country folk will respond with equal generosity — contributing good clothing, shoes, blankets, bedding, and even cloth remnants.

On enquiry by a local W.I. officer to headquarters, it is also learned that new clothing will be acceptable. In the case of used garments, the only request is that they be washed, if necessary; they need not be ironed. Shoes should be tied in pairs.

The need for such contributions calls for no further emphasis. Press stories and pictures have left a convincing impression of the suffering in Greece, Italy and other war-ravaged lands, through lack of warm and adequate clothing.

Let the local response be, once more, a credit to this community and a testimony of our humane sentiments.

Old Resident of Farm Community Dies at Geneva

Late John Jas. Fraser

One of the cheeriest and best known personalities of this countryside, John James Fraser, passed to his reward last Monday. Attaining the ripe old age of 84, Mr. Fraser had lived an active life until six weeks previous to his passing, when the advancing years took toll of his health. He died at his home on Lachute Road, the old Geneva Settlement, where his family had settled 82 years ago when John James Fraser was but an infant.

He was a son of Scottish parents. The Fraser immigrants settled on a farm in the north of Montreal, where St. Lawrence Main now bustles with industry and population. They sold their farm and moved to this settlement, travelling by the speediest transport of those times, with team and wagon.

John James Fraser was educated at the little Geneva School, which was demolished only this spring. He stayed home on the farm, being married to Miss Lillian Flowers of St. Andrews East, a talented musician. Two children were born of their union — (Norma) Mrs. J. J. Kelly, of Montreal, and John G., successor to the family homestead. — Besides these survivors he is mourned by his three grandchildren, Lillian Fraser, of Montreal, Frances and George Fraser, Lachute Road.

Predeceased by his wife, the late John J. Fraser married again, to Miss Frances Marion DeHertel, of nearby Centreville. She too predeceased her husband, in 1942, leaving no children.

The late John Fraser was a member of the Masonic order, a churchman and warden for many years of Christ Church (Anglican), and for several terms served as parish councillor. In politics he was a staunch Conservative. He was a member of the Laurentian Ayrshire Club, having inherited from his Scottish ancestry a favor for the breed. His special fancy, however, in his younger years, was for horses. He was always a keen and industrious farmer.

A quality for which he was widely appreciated in this countryside was his happy gift of entertainment. As a singer of Scotch songs and a versatile performer, he was frequently in demand for gatherings of all kinds.

The funeral, held Wednesday afternoon from his home, was very largely attended. Service was held at Christ Church, St. Andrews East, the Rev. Geo. T. Spriggs officiating, assisted by the Rev. T. W. Ball. A long cortege of sympathizing neighbors and fellow citizens then accompanied the remains for burial in the family plot at Lachute.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Robt. Todd, Wm. Watson, L. M. Hooker, Jas. Thompson, Stanley W. Rodger and Ewan Albright.

Christopher Ellis, Literature Authority and Radio Personality, Proves Brilliant Speaker

Brownsburg—Rotary Club members, with their ladies and guests, the Lachute Lions Club and their ladies, were fortunate in hearing an outstanding address — a tribute to an outstanding leader, Winston Churchill — by Christopher Ellis, radio commentator and book consultant for the T. Eaton Company of Montreal.

An informal dance, singsong and general good time followed the talk, continuing until a late hour.

Harold Barrie acted as Master of Ceremonies as well as assisting Paul Courville with the music. Paul Jones dances, a square dance along with some novelty numbers, kept the party rolling at a merry pace. The Lions quartet (of about seven voices) acceded to a request to sing a number, and then challenged Rotary to do better. This the Rotary quartet (of about seven and a half voices) proceeded to attempt, with much merrymaking.

President Sam Ross presided, and Harris Sherwood president-elect, welcomed the guests. Mayor L. Carriere of Lachute, president of the Lions Club spoke a few words on behalf of the visiting club, mentioning the good-will and spirit of co-operation which existed between the two service clubs. He also spoke highly of our esteemed Governor General, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander of Tunis and Erigal, whom he had had the honor of receiving in Lachute the previous day.

A personal tribute to the Right Honorable Winston Spencer Churchill, the highlight of the evening, was presented with some spark of that never-to-be-forgotten Churchillian eloquence by Christopher Ellis, himself a fellow countryman and staunch admirer, if not worshipper of the man he praised.

Born in London, England, near the start of the century, the speaker was educated at Westminster School and entered the bookselling business with Hatchard's on Piccadilly, booksellers to Their Majesties the King and Queen. He later served Brentano's in Paris, before coming to Canada where he continued his bookselling. He became interested in radio broadcasting in 1931.

His present service with the T. Eaton Co. Limited, of Montreal, was interrupted by three years with the Royal Canadian Navy, which he joined as a lieutenant, being demobilized in 1945 as a lieutenant-commander.

Referring to the late President Roosevelt's description of the Rt. Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill—that he was "the world's greatest citizen" — the speaker stated that the title was most appropriate. Churchill's life has been such that one might say it was "out of this world" — it couldn't happen, if we didn't know that it had happened, and in this world.

Vice-Royalty's "Salute to Agriculture"

Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, snips the ribbon which officially opened the 1946 Lachute Spring Fair. Seen in the above picture are — Clement Tremblay, vice-president of the Fair; Major G. Mitchell; J. H. Black, president of the Fair; Air Marshal Frank McGill; Georges H. Heon, K.C., M.P.; the Governor General; Hon. Georges E. Dansereau, M.L.A.; James W. Gall, Adrien Rochon, mayor of Chatham, and A. Gaston Munich, Warden of Argenteuil County.

Sudden Deluge Floods Cellars

A rainstorm on Monday evening, of severity experienced only at rare intervals in these parts, taxed the capacity of storm sewers and flooded cellars in many sections of town. Electric power service was also interrupted in certain areas, while in some places garden and field crops were washed out by the heavy rain.

The storm occurred the same evening as the tornado which caused death and havoc around Windsor and Sandwich, Ontario.

$100 Average Price for Ayrshire Heifers at St. Hyacinthe Auction

The Ayrshire Breeders Club of St. Hyacinthe held an auction sale of purebreds on June 8, in which 40 animals were sold, of which five were young bulls, at an average price of $107. per head. The average price of heifers was $100., that of bulls, $161.

Animals were all purchased by breeders from Quebec, with the exception of five head which were acquired by Ernest Robert, of Carleton, Ont.

The best heifer, Bonin Francette, raised by Emile Bonin of St-Denis, was bought by J. -A. Hébert, of Montebello, at $205.

IS FARMING BAD?

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

There are very many people on farms who do not know how to farm. There are too many amateur farmers who start off with insufficient capital and are unable to afford machinery, or to buy the best seed and sound livestock.

But on the whole, we do not think farming can be as bad as it is painted, else there would not be so many people in the business.

Clover Hay Good For Poultry Feed

Part of the nutrients and part of the cost of feeding poultry may be met by using clover hay, according to poultry authorities of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Hay, like the grass, is a good conditioner and helps keep poultry in good health and plumage. Coarse, tough, over-matured hay is of no use for poultry. They cannot eat much fibre.

To be suitable for poultry clover hay must be cut early and specially prepared. The hay should be cut when buds appear and before blossoms show, two or three weeks before normal cutting time. The procedure is — cut in the morning and leave in swath until three-quarters dry; bring in and spread over dry hay in the mow to a depth of one foot; stow when dry but reduce handling to a minimum because the leaves tend to fall off.

Some farmers cut the hay in the morning, put it up in small cocks, open them up the next morning, and in the afternoon take in the hay. Others use tripods, and the extra labor entailed is justified by the special quality of hay obtained.

For poultry, all free tendrils and leaves should be retained and coarse fibre kept to a minimum. Hay thus matured, may be fed in bulk, being the simplest and least expensive method.

ON SOME FARMS

(Farmers' Advocate)

They say farming is a way of living as well as a business. On some farms it is obviously a way of living badly, for right here in Ontario there are farms without a decent fruit tree or a berry bush. Yes, and thousands without what could be truthfully called a garden. That is self-inflicted punishment.

The Garden-Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Canadian

Cut flowers from your garden will last a long time if given simple preliminary care.

Some flowers — those with gummy or milky juices in their stems, like the poppy, hollyhock, heliotrope, mignonette and hydrangea need their stems flame-sealed at the time of cutting.

The stems of such flowers should be well charred in a hot flame, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This treatment will keep such flowers fresh for several days instead of a matter of hours.

Land plants react better to burning while water plants prefer the boiling-water treatment. This latter calls for plunging an inch and a half of the stem of each flower into boiling water for half a minute. After the stems have been sealed by flame or boiling water place the flowers in cold water. Only the stems should be in the water, not the foliage. Decayed foliage promotes bacterial growth. These bacteria are detrimental because they obstruct the water-absorbing cells of the stem.

Flowers which wilt easily should be cut only in the morning or evening. The early morning hours are particularly favorable, since the plant tissues hold more fluid at that time.

The dahlia, a flower which wilts easily, does not usually respond to either singeing or dipping in boiling water. When wilting it can be revived, however, by placing in water as warm as the hand can bear and permitting the water to cool off.

Chrysanthemums are often benefitted by splitting the stems, but as a rule do not react to other stem treatments.

Sidelights of Alexander's Visit to Exhibition

By COLIN A. GRAVENOR

The general concensus of opinion following the Governor General's recent visit, was that he had scored a great hit in the two hours he spent at Lachute Spring Fair.

* * *

Among the sidelights of his interlude with the folks of this community was Viscount Alexander's interest in Private J. E. Hale, who was under his command in Italy, and who returned to Canada deaf but has since recovered his hearing.

* * *

He chatted with Dave Cooper, officer accompanying the Canadian Legion Branch 71, and told Mrs. Irene Wade, leader of the Girl Guides and Brownies, that Viscountess Alexander was busy attending a function of the Guides that day.

* * *

Percy Maitland, with whom he talked, disclosed that he had lost a treasured medal, and Viscount Alexander had Capt. L. Thomas, his aide, take down the details to make sure of its early restoration. From Adelard LaVerne, of Lachute, he learned that this Boer War and World War I wounded veteran has missed several pension cheques lately. This again was noted by the aide on the Governor General's instructions.

* * *

He chatted for five minutes with the Mother Superior of Ste. Anastasie Convent, also Charles L. Duncan about the Cub and Scout activity in this district.

* * *

Smiles came when, in talking to Vernon C. Cardy, Canadian horseman, they discussed the Irish background of two of his chestnut thoroughbreds and was invited to "have a leg up anytime", to which His Excellency replied, "And wouldn't I just like to."

The man who suffers most from this rise in the cost of living is the so-called white collar worker. He is not, as a rule, a member of a labor union and his salary has been frozen at a certain level. If it were luxury goods that were affected by the price advance he could manage nicely but the essential commodities have been affected as well and he finds it difficult to make ends meet.

ERNEST W. JACKSON, prop.

"... swords into ploughshares ..."

But the Ploughshare WAS your Sword of Battle...

No one worked with stouter heart or stronger arm than the Canadian farmer to win World War II.

Through six long years of war, while half a million farmers left their ploughs to take up arms in combat or make them on the home front, men and women on the farm laboured from dawn till dusk — and after — to supply food for war . . . in millions of tons.

The ploughshare was the sword of battle . . .

And now, with peace so dearly won, the farm people of Canada are turning their energies to lighten the suffering of war-torn and famine-stricken lands — toiling to hold and even raise production — still fighting to build a better world for all men.

Proudly, the Bank of Montreal salutes these men, women and children of Canada's army of agriculturalists, who now turn their sword of battle to the tasks of peace.

Salute to Agriculture

A HAPPY symbol of Canada's "Salute to Agriculture" is the Montreal Star photograph presented on our front page, showing the Governor General performing the ceremony which officially opened the 120th Exhibition of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society last Wednesday.

Viscount Alexander's words on that occasion will bear repetition, for his sentiments aptly convey the theme of the weekly newspapers in their special "Agriculture" editions this week. His Excellency's remarks were vibrant not only with tribute to the farmers, but also with a consciousness of the responsibility that still rests upon them for the salvation of war ravaged peoples. . .

"Never before has such a serious and solemn responsibility rested upon those who till the soil, bring forth the produce of the farm and raise the livestock. While millions throughout the world starve, Canada recognizes her duty and carries it through, accepting the 'quotas' as goals to be exceeded, knowing that disease and death may be kept away from millions through the efforts of the men, women and even the children who till Canadian soil".

". . . Your Lachute Fair — the 120th, in this case — is all the more important if it means returning to work with rekindled interest, greater enthusiasm, and the determination to produce all that this bounteous land will provide.

"To the farmers of Canada, through those of Argenteuil County, I salute you."

That Alluring Vacation

VACATION TIME is here with all its attendant joy — but tread gently and warily, all you vacationists, because the hazards that threaten holiday happiness are tremendous.

They have no limit and range, from that little three-leaved plant, poison ivy — and good old-fashioned sunburn — to hay fever, and the more delicate similar ailment known as a "rose cold".

The latter is supposed to descend on those allergic to roses, and leaves them sniffling and sneezing, while in the mind the rose assumes a frightsome appearance. There are some doubts about the rose cold, whether it is not just a toney name for ordinary hay fever.

Actually, poison ivy is much worse as a despoiler of holidays. But catch the infected spots fast with a paste of vaseline and cornstarch, so stiff it barely spreads with a knife, and its effect won't last long. Another good way is to avoid poison ivy altogether. Both these remedies are old-fashioned; both were developed in Poplar Point, one of Manitoba's progressive farm communities in the Portage Plains.

Even the most vigilant must have been caught at some time or another by sunburn. The trouble is, so many never learn. The pale-faced city tenderfoot gets to the beach resort and sees all the chocolate-colored folk who've been there for weeks. He strips off his clothes, gets in the sun — and repents painfully for days after he's been burned to a crisp.

Remember that after the Canadians had been training outdoors for years and toughened to battle conditions, Field Marshal Montgomery warned them against the sun when they went to Italy. And even Farmer Brown wears a straw hat — not to keep off the rain.

Then there are mosquitoes, and black flies, and fish flies, all the creatures of bugdom . . . it's too much. The best thing to do is take the deck chair to the back yard and pretend you're on a trip to Bermuda!

CANADA, already exporting tremendous quantities of grain and other products, must send still more if stark tragedy and wholesale death are to be averted in Europe. Every garden, regardless of how small, will release some food to be used in the present emergency.

— Salmon Arm (B.C.) Observer

Amity — Domestic and International

A HUSBAND stormed bitterly into his den. "Of all the wives I could have picked," he fumed. Then his eye fell on a newspaper clipping sent him by a friend. "Why not try a new life before a new wife?" he read. "If conditions are unbearable at home perhaps you are the bear. And, if two people can't learn to live together and like it, what hope have we for the world's two billion?"

Something broke inside the man. He went back into the room where his wife was mutely sitting. "I am really sorry," he said.

When self-interest in two people strains marital relations, they will break their legal union fast enough. The married state alone does not hold them together. But common loyalty to the ideals of marriage, and of what it can mean to the world and to democracy, will help the match to survive.

When sixty different national interests strain international relations, the legal union of an organized world state will not hold them together. It will take wholehearted loyalty to some great common ideal. One nation — one world — indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

This really could be made the state of the world, if inspired in other countries by a people who enjoy this state themselves. By a nation indivisible because it is made up of indivisible families. Free because, through common loyalty, they have found it possible to trust each other. Just because they live to give instead of to grab. Here are the foundations for a world state held together by bonds stronger than any treaties or laws.

Advertising in the Weeklies

E. A. SEABORN, of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, has just reported that during the month of January advertisers used more than 3,000,000 lines of space in Canadian weekly newspapers. In February an increase of twenty-four per cent was added, with a further increase of fifty-one per cent over that during March.

The figures prove that advertisers are beginning to comprehend the real value of the weeklies as an advertising medium. They are beginning to learn that by using the weekly they are able to get "closer" to the rural consumer than by any other means. They are beginning to realize the tremendous buying power of farming communities.

Too Much Assistance

CANADA enjoys a well-deserved fame among the destitute of Europe through her many benefactions, both in war and peace. It has long been both our public duty and our private pleasure to come to the aid of those of the world's unfortunates. We are by nature a charitable people, and by geographical circumstances a prosperous people.

It is unfortunate, however, that in beginning our charity at home we have let it ride riot over the bounds of common sense.

Our measures to assist the unemployed have long lost any rhyme or reason. We offer now a weekly income to those who are unable to procure "suitable employment", and pretty well leave it to the applicant to decide what may be "suitable employment" to him. We are staying and comforting the idler, and smiting the taxpayer right where he lives. A man who has previously made a living by picking oranges could live on the Canadian dole indefinitely — or at least until the climate changes materially.

It is time to change our unemployment legislation, or we shall wake some day to find 11,000,000 retired orange-pickers living in gilded idleness while the other 1,000,000 of us work making out their cheques. —Granby Leader-Mail

Two-Week Guests To Give Coupons

Guests who stay at summer hotels or boarding houses for two weeks or more are reminded by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that they must take along their ration books. For each two-week period the management will remove one butter coupon, one sugar preserve coupon and two meat coupons.

Guests staying less than two weeks need not surrender any coupons. Ration book holders are warned by the Board that hotels and boarding places are not entitled to any canning sugar from transient guests and are advised to see that only the proper coupons are collected.

ENLIGHTENED VOTERS

The good old days, when government was as simple as everyday living, are gone forever. Government today must be based on knowledge — knowledge not only possessed by government leaders but also by citizens in a position to sit back and advise or criticize intelligently and not through personal whims or prejudices . . . government demands an enlightened electorate.

Farm Forum Goes Rolling Along

National Secretary, National Farm Radio Forum

If you saw one of your farmer neighbors starting his car or hitching his team to the sleigh on a snowy Monday evening, and if you asked him where he was going, he would probably tell you that he was going to attend the Farm Radio Forum meeting. He would probably invite you to go along too. Certain it is, that a large number of Farm Radio Forum meetings were held in Canada during this season — a much larger number than in any previous year.

If you are not familiar with Farm Forum, you should attend a meeting at the earliest opportunity. This will be when the meetings begin again next November. Essentially a Farm Forum is a small group of people who meet Monday evening in a home or a school to discuss some vital problem related to agriculture and rural living. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation produces a broadcast especially for these groups. After the broadcast the group leader starts a discussion based on material provided by the National Farm Radio Forum office. The conclusions of the group, known as Farm Forum Findings, are sent to the Provincial Farm Radio Forum office for tabulation and summary. The following Monday night the Provincial Secretary has four minutes of the broadcast time to report the general concensus of opinion to the groups.

Farm forum is unique in that it combines a radio broadcast, printed material, group discussion and written reports from the groups. The more enterprising Forums see that their local weekly newspapers receive a report of the discussions. By carrying the discussion to its wider circle, the weekly newspaper makes the Forums a much more useful institution. The result is a thoroughly democratic, Dominion-wide adult education project.

The members of Farm Radio Forum become most enthusiastic about the Forum method of discussion. "Farm Radio Forum makes the community a better place to live," says a Forum in Prince Edward Island. "It broadens our outlook on many different subjects", writes one in Quebec. And from one in Alberta comes, "It creates a sense of unity among farmers". Radio does provide an opportunity for consolidation of farm opinion that never existed in previous generations. National Farm Radio Forum is really a neighborhood meeting, but a neighborhood meeting on a national scale. It is so conducted that every person in every Forum has the opportunity to make his or her opinions known and to exert a real influence on the conclusions reached.

Nor should it be thought that Farm Forums just talk and nothing more. Forums are not slow about recommending action when they think something should be done and they are not slow about taking action themselves when there is something they can do. Over a hundred different types of action projects are being carried on in Forum communities across Canada. At any given moment almost half of the Forums in the country are actively engaged on some local task which they consider important. Projects range all the way from a campaign for the control of the warble fly, or clearing snow off the road, to the organization of a Credit Union, or a larger area of school administration. The plan of organized Veterinary Services which is in operation in parts of Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Northern Ontario, began as a Farm Radio Forum action project in Hants County, Nova Scotia.

This year National Farm Radio will begin on November 4, and will continue for five months as usual. Subject matter of some of the series will be Scientific Advances in Agriculture, Agriculture and International Affairs, Farm and Industrial Labor Relations, Rural Living Standards.

National Farm Radio Forum is sponsored by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Canadian Association for Adult Education the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Do you know Quebec? Do you know, for example, that our province is considered an angler's paradise? Atlantic Salmon, Sebago Salmon, Ouananiche, brown, rainbow, speckled, sea, red and grey trout, bass, dore, Muskalonge and Northern Pike . . . these fighters abound in countless lakes and streams within Quebec's four hundred million acre area!

Such superlative fishing is the gift of a bountiful nature plus a keen sense of trusteeship on the part of the people of Quebec who, by far-seeing legislation and individual example, practice true conservation.

Quebec is developing her many other rich resources with equal shrewdness. She leads in lumbering, pulp and paper, electric power and many essential industries. Agriculture, stimulated by scientific education is expanding quickly. Canada depends on the people and facilities of Quebec as a source of the kind of co-operation that will make Canada great!

QUEBEC BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE

In 1608 Champlain brought the first colonists to Quebec. Today, Quebec's population is 3,000,000, her retail trade $800,000,000.00 per year. She leads all Provinces in the production of hydro-electric power, textiles, lumber, newsprint, footwear, processed tobacco, asbestos and aluminum. Natural resources, agriculture and transportation are being developed wisely. And now, Quebec, her people deep-rooted in the love of their homeland, prepares to share with her sister Provinces, Canada's bright and glorious future!

Tremendous Cost of War to Canada

What Could Have Been Done With $15-Billion ?

Up to March 31, 1945, World War II had cost Canada alone over $15-billion. This amount, says Canadian Information Service, would pay for — a house for every second family in Canada, costing $8,000, and house repairs for every other family up to $210. In addition, it would provide for every family, a car, a refrigerator, a washing machine, a radio, a vacuum cleaner, a sewing machine, a cooking stove, and new furniture worth $200. — Canadian Business

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Church Groups at St. Andrews East

St. Andrews East — The sectional rally of the Montreal Presbyterial of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church will be held in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, Lachute, on Wednesday evening, June 26, at 7.45 o'clock. Dr. Wilkie, of Stanley Presbyterian Church, Westmount, will be guest speaker.

• • •

The June meeting of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church was held in the church hall on Wednesday afternoon, June 12. The Rev. Dr. MacMillan gave an enlightening talk on the Church of Christ in China.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by Mrs. O'Brian and the Misses Walsh, hostesses for the day.

The W.M.S. of the United Church met on June 11 at Miss Pitcairn's home. The devotional reading was taken by Miss J. G. Wales.

Notes on the sectional meeting at Lachute, and the ministerial conference at Montreal, were given by Mrs. J. S. Nickerson. Miss Lamb gave some impressive highlights of the Dominion Board meeting of the W.M.S., at Toronto. At next meeting she will give more intimate notes of people and doings she encountered at this meeting. A letter from Miss Elizabeth Read, dated April 4 at Angola, Africa, was read by Miss Lamb.

ST. SIMEON'S PICNIC

St. Simeon's Church Sunday School and Parish picnic will be held on Saturday, June 22, at B. Hammond's grove on the Montreal highway. A truck will be at the church leaving at 1.45 p.m. to convey the children, and others without cars — everyone to provide their own supper. -1x

Margaret Rodger Church Exceeds Financial Quota In "Advance" Appeal

The financial response to the Presbyterian Advance for Christ and Peace Thankoffering, made by the congregation of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, has been one of satisfaction to the committee in charge of the local appeal.

The objective set for the Lachute and Brownsburg Presbyterian Churches was $2,400, and this amount has already been well oversubscribed.

W.I. Appreciates Assistance Given in Catering at Fair

Special thanks are extended to friends and non-members of the Institute who offered their services and helped in the Dining Room and Lunch Counter, all who baked cakes, cooked hams, and those who so generously gave their time and the use of their cars for transportation to and from the exhibition grounds.

A trade journal mentions a woman carpenter who can drive nails like lightning. And lightning, they say, never strikes in the same place twice. — Punch.

Bishop of Montreal Included Three Parishes In Visit Here Sunday

The Rt. Rev. J. Dixon, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Montreal, made his visitation of the parishes of Lachute, Brownsburg and St. Andrews East on Sunday, June 16. Large congregations assembled at each church to extend him a welcome. The Bishop administered Holy Communion at Brownsburg and confirmed 22 candidates at Lachute; in his addresses, all most helpful and suggestive, he took the opportunity to thank the people for their wholehearted support of diocesan work, and congratulated them on doing so splendidly in the recent Anglican Advance Appeal. The diocese has at present reached 98 per cent of its objective.

Wed Yesterday At St. Julien

Leclair - Lamarche

At St. Julien Parish Church, Lachute, on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, Mlle Therese Lamarche, daughter of the late Alexandre Lamarche and of Mme. Lamarche (and niece of Mme H. M. Lavigne, Lachute) became the bride of Gaetan Leclair, son of M. and Mme Romeo Leclair, of Lachute. Monsignor the Reverend Joseph Charbonneau pronounced the nuptial blessing. The chancel of the church was decorated with a profusion of gladioli, ferns and spring flowers.

M. R. Leclair was witness for his son, the bridegroom.

pool built — it is pointed out that these are jobs for all sections of the community, and the Legion will be glad to assist with such projects. In any case, no consideration can be given to such proposals now, as the Charter provides that the money must be used for the specific purpose for which the campaign was authorized. The fund administrators are responsible for this, and not the Brownsburg Legion. This will also answer those who are genuinely withholding their subscriptions on sincere motives. To these it may be said that the boys and girls who volunteered did so to protect the "way of life" for all citizens of Canada, whatever their personal opinions and attitudes. These youngsters did not tie any 'strings' to their voluntary act. If they were honorable enough to be willing to fight, then they will be honorable enough to serve the peace and interests of the community just as well. They can be relied upon to do the right thing by the people of the county.

It is reiterated, the primary purpose of the campaign is the Memorial aspect, and all communities of Argenteuil will be invited to use the Shrine of Remembrance in this building as its centre for honor rolls. The Charter also allows the building to be used as a community hall, and the basement for youth recreation. This portion may also be used by Boy Scouts and Cubs, and the Girl Guides and Brownies. A restaurant is also authorized — a necessary adjunct for recreation of the 'teen-agers. The building will, of course, be used as headquarters of the local Legion. . . . The program was developed with the thought in mind of competing as little as possible with business or other activities. There is no thought of making money on the project, although it is necessary, naturally, to meet the expense of upkeep. The Legion does not wish to go into business. Prospective subscribers are asked to pay no attention to customary rumors, which circulate with every campaign; if further information or assurance is desired, they can get it from any campaign official.

The subscription list is headed by the assignment of $1,000 from Branch funds, and Brownsburg Municipality has donated $100. A partial list of subscribers follows:

Eloquent Tribute To Churchill, by Radio Personality

His very beginning was ominous. Birth — being more mysterious and more adventurous, anyway, than death — was still not mysterious or adventurous enough for Churchill. He arrived on a dark November morn in the 1870's — ahead of his time, literally and figuratively. He was a seven-months baby. It was said that he was in a hurry. He has been in a hurry ever since.

The son of Lord Randolph Churchill, a famous Englishman, and Jennie Jerome, daughter of a New York publisher, he was all boy. He was unruly, conceited, loathed school and studies, and was a little devil generally. Nevertheless, at an early age his courage, determination and will power displayed itself. When nine years old he jumped from a bridge rather than be captured by two "palefaces" while playing cowboys and Indians. Landing on rocks a considerable distance below the parapet he received serious injuries, which left permanent effects.

Although the "blue-bloods" of England attend Eton, father Randolph chose "Harrow on the Hill" as better situated for his boy with not-too-good health. He soon showed his lack of interest in formal education by quickly arriving at the bottom-but-two of his class. This was soon remedied by the expulsion from school of the two boys below him.

Fortunately for Churchill and the world, Harrow possessed a headmaster who had that rare talent which discovers human "diamonds in the rough" and then develops them into powerful personalities. Beneath the dirt, laziness, poor scholastic record and unruliness, he recognized a spirit, a flame, an enthusiasm and spark which indicated a hidden mine of power. In effect, he believed the boy "had something". He set about finding the lad's interests — found that history, geography and literature set him afire with enthusiasm. And so it was that Dr. Weldon, with special coaching, opened up a new world for the boy, and saved a new boy for the world — the world which was to need him so badly. He was found unbeatable in his subjects.

After leaving Harrow, it was not to be that he should attend Oxford or Cambridge or any university. When his father asked him what he wanted to be, the answer was immediate and definite — a soldier. Many boys have said the same — but Churchill really meant it.

He was sent to the Royal Military College of Sandhurst. Here, there was no stopping him. He was not just an outstanding student, he was the most brilliant cadet that ever entered. It is said that no military strategy puzzled him.

His sense of humor and ability to speak his mind in forceful, penetrating terms, made him a sought-after guest at social gatherings. He became the social lion of west end London, Mayfair society.

Not content to be an armchair strategist, he read in the paper while on school vacation, of a first class revolution taking place in Cuba. He convinced a friend that they should spend their vacation in Cuba. It was a fight against Spanish rule. The revolution over, Churchill returned with a row of medals in time for the next school term. It was his first baptism of fire.

He next volunteered for service in Afghanistan, and simultaneously did news reporting for two London papers. Besides being active against the enemy, his pen turned out much startling news. He dared to speak his mind and criticize inefficiency among the leaders, regardless of their rank. The war office looked with disdain upon this upstart who dared to criticize general so-and-so for losing so many men, as he thought, needlessly.

The war in Egypt took the headlines and Churchill again wished to be in the thick of it. His request of appointment was turned down by Kitchener, who was head of the London War Office and wished to be rid of this outspoken individual. Churchill's mother "pulled some strings" and her son turned up in Kitchener's camp as major. He distinguished himself, especially at the battle of Onderman. His courage and daring were outstanding. Whatever the situation, and the more hazardous, the better he liked it.

He was captured by the Boers, while acting as war correspondent of the "Morning Post" during the South African war. After a hectic escape he returned to England — a hero.

Many friends advised politics. After some consideration he decided to lay aside his sword and uniform and follow in his father's footsteps. His first attempt met with defeat, which was followed by victory the next year.

On his maiden speech, this stooped (for he was stooped even then), slightly red-headed Britisher, showed signs of carrying on father Randolph's heritage, the Randolph who had "thumbed his nose" at the great Gladstone. His wit often confounded his opponents. He was both admired and hated.

First a conservative, he was a man of his own strong convictions. When he found his party going too far on the important question of tariff reform, he changed to the liberals. Again, when he could not agree with his party he rose in the House and haughtily strode across to the opposition benches. Such action by a young member made Arthur Balfour, his party leader, literally boil. He beckoned the entire party from the house in protest of such insolence. Churchill's new party rose as a body, cheered and welcomed him. "Even the enemy disappear before this young man", they said.—Such changing might have been the death of any other young politician.

The speaker recalled Mr. Churchill's visits to Hatchard's Book Shop in London. He requested detective stories, "the bloodier the better". One could not wish to talk to a more interesting person. To talk with the man was to smell gunpowder and visualize adventure.

It was said by Lord Grey, of this man who held more offices in the British government than any other man since the government was formed — that he might have been prime minister long ago if he had not been so brilliant.

— Christopher Ellis gave further interesting details of the great man's life, but recalled that Churchill no doubt impressed Canada and Canadians most when he was Briain's prime minister, and the hour was dark, and the way uncertain. His radio speeches bolstered many a weakened spirit when there were few to speak words of encouragement and none to speak to them with confidence, fire and inspiration as only Churchill could.

He was introduced by Harold Dando and thanked by Wes Freeland.

Guests of the evening included His Worship Mayor and Mrs. Carriere, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Smart, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Quinn, Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Cote, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Tattersfield, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Steeves, Mr. and Mrs. Reg Courtien, Mr. Phillip Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lamarche, Gordon McOuat and Miss Mary Fisher, F. T. CASH MONEY —and some of it may come your way!

Yesterday Farmer Neilson got over $800 cash when he sold his grain. Through the processes of trade and commerce, some of that money may come to you. Banking service enabled him to obtain his money quickly.

The farmer doesn't have to wait for his money until his grain reaches the consumer . . . this is important to you, no matter where you live or what your work.

Farmer Neilson, and thousands like him, spend money for household and farm equipment, food, clothes, radios, paint and a hundred other things. This helps keep people busy all over the Dominion.

Your bank advances credit also to help farmers plant, cultivate and harvest crops of all kinds, to buy and raise livestock. Banking service is something like the good oil in fine machinery, you never notice it. But it is a prime factor in your prosperity . . . in the Canadian way of life.

GOOD MARITIME BROADCASTS

There are some excellent broadcasts originating in the Maritimes, and there are three specially good ones which are on only the Maritime system. I feel sorry for the rest of you that you cannot hear the Maritime Gardener. The material in the script and the broadcasting itself are tops. His information is practical, and very interesting, even to those who have no garden. I wish his scripts would be put into book form. Then this winter they started giving a Fisherman's Broadcast daily. It gives detailed information about the weather and nothing can be of more importance to the fisherman. It tells about the markets, and the amount and varieties of fish being shipped to Boston, and the current price. It tells whether bait and ice can be obtained at the various harbors and whether it is only for local use. When the ice was going out it gave detailed information as to what waters were open. The boats that have come in are mentioned and that must be good news for the families at home. Then there is general news and information that would be of interest to fishermen. The whole script is so well done it is of general interest and it must be of definite value to the many who earn their living by fishing. Last but not least is Joan Marshall's program Joan is the Regional Women's Commentator and by the way, Joan is only her broadcasting name. She herself is tall, dark and very attractive. She is very much alive and so interested in everything. This is apparent in her broadcasts, and how she finds so many interesting things to talk about in a place the size of Moncton is beyond me. We all do a lot of complaining over CBC broadcasts but we get a lot of good ones and those we never think to talk about.

HOSPITAL FLOWER CONTAINERS

Hospitals are frequently short of flower containers, as it takes so many for the flowers of the patients. Very satisfactory ones may be made by painting tin cans. All sizes are useful from the large grape fruit juice cans down to the small ones. Ivory, or a soft green or yellow, are suitable colors to choose for paint. They may be left plain or a transfer may be put on to provide a bit of pattern. Copper lined cans are the best as they do not rust. A nested set of painted cans make a grand toy, so save your suitable cans and get out your paint brush. The modern can-openers cut the tops so smoothly it always seems such a waste to have to throw out the cans.

GOOD POSTURE

Mothers have plenty of tricks up their sleeves and here are some one mother used to encourage good posture in her children. She made a game of having them walk about the room with a book on their head. The children had no idea they were doing this to help them straighten up but it was just a game to see who could keep the book on longest and they had fun doing it. Often she would get them to back up to a door-jamb, and have them stand so that the back of their head, their shoulders, and heels were all touching the door jamb. The game was to see who could walk longest holding this position. This would be a good trick for any of us to try several times a day to help us improve our posture. Sometimes when the children were getting ready for bed she would have them try to pick up a marble with their toes. This is an excellent exercise for strengthening the muscles of the feet and ankles. The important point is that the whole thing was fun and not something that was good for them.

VEGETABLE PLATES

A vegetable dinner can be a very attractive one and this year when we are trying to save food we should use as many of the perishable foods as possible. Onions in some shape or form give flavor and character to a vegetable dinner. Later in the season when they are more plentiful, boiled or creamed onions may be served. If you have plenty of green onions they are good boiled and served with cream sauce on toast, or even alone with a vegetable dinner. Use tops and all. A chopped boiled onion added to cream sauce makes a good onion sauce. A few fried onions added to the vegetable plate are good. An onion gravy may be made by frying an onion and adding some left-over gravy, or failing that a cube of beef-extract and a little water. There are some poor unfortunates who do not like onions but for those who do, a little onion is a welcome addition to the vegetable dinner.

POTPOURRI

Gather roses before the sun is hot, then spread on brown paper, sprinkle lightly with salt (do not use iodised salt), and place in a sunny spot until dry, turning lightly each day. Other sweet blossoms may be added if desired. When the rose leaves are perfectly dry, put them in a jar, and sprinkle with a little nutmeg, cinnamon, cloves and allspice. When the jar is filled, and this may be done in installments as the leaves are available, pour a tablespoon of your favorite perfume over them. Keep tightly closed.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING

¼ Teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon of mustard, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ cup of sour cream, ¼ cup vinegar, ¼ cup of water, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon butter.

Mix the dry ingredients and stir smooth with the water. Add the vinegar and beaten egg. Cook over hot water, until thick, stirring steadily. Add the butter. Cool and stir in the sour cream.

"Opera by Starlight" Brings Grace Moore, Metropolitan Cast

"Our purpose in this new operatic venture is exactly the same as it has always been, and that is to bring the best in music to as many people as possible". This is how Madame Athanase David, president of the Montreal Festivals, summed up that organization's newest undertaking, Grand Opera by Starlight, which is to begin with a production of La Boheme at the Molson Stadium on Wednesday, July 10. The complete Metropolitan cast will star Grace Moore, accounted by many critics the greatest Mimi of her generation.

The Molson Stadium is considered one of the ideal spots in North America for the production of outdoor opera. It will seat over 12,000 people. Experiments made in the visual capacity of the huge stadium prove that arrangements can be so planned that everyone from the most expensive to the cheapest seat will have a clear view of the stage. Sound is being taken care of by installation of the latest acoustical equipment.

Madame David stressed that opera at the Molson Stadium will be an exact replica of the Metropolitan production given at the Lewisohn Stadium and other great outdoor music centres in the United States.

Heavy Horses

Arnoldwold Farm entries dominated the Percheron championships entirely, and the champion Belgian mare. John Heatlie's Lady Solitaire was the grand champion female Clydesdale, and A. T. Cleland won the grand championship in stallions. (These two local exhibitors won the same honors at Quebec last fall).

MacKimmie - MacTavish Win County Race

Another major attraction at the Fair was the horse races, well-managed under direction of Jim MacKimmie. Among the many records broken at the Exhibition this year was one on the race track, when, on Saturday afternoon, the mile was run in 2.08¼, a new mark for Lachute. The racing, on the whole, was considered the best ever seen in these parts.

The county race, on Thursday afternoon, always a popular event, was won by Miss Volo Guy, owned by MacKimmie and MacTavish, driven by Delbert MacTavish.

Junior Judging

Saturday winners had to judge a class of horses and cows. Douglas MacKechnie, of Wyman, Ont., came first with 177 total points. Isabel McOuat and Pierre St. Jacques were next in order with 158 and 154, respectively.

John Heatlie was the best horse judge, but did not take part in the other competition.

Week's Activities At Golf Club

In the 18-hole tournament for men, at Lachute Golf Club on Sunday, Jim Foley and Jack McIndoe tied for first place, Geo. E. Legget Sr., came second, and George Tattersfield third.

The mixed team competition got under way last week, with good rivalry in the play and a pleasant social aspect to the inauguration of the contest.

Pro Sets Record On Golf Course

Jack Archer, the local "pro", set a new course record for the Lachute Golf Club this week when he posted a card of 32-34-66, six under par, for the nine-hole layout. Par is 36. Previously, J. Huot, Laval-sur-le-Lac, held the mark with a 68.

Archer, who before entering the Canadian Army was professional for two years at the Municipal course, scored eagle threes at the fourth and seventh holes on his first trip, and had no fewer than five birdies on his round.

Archer was playing with Dick Stevens, Rolland Legault and Bobbie Ogilvie when he broke the record.

Taught Indian Tribe to Read and Write Their Picturesque Language

There has come to our notice an article in The Vancouver Sun written some time ago by J. H. Stewart, of Vancouver. The writer tells an intriguing story concerning a pioneer among the Indians of the West who adapted their language to a written form and taught it to the tribe. The inventor and tutor was the son of an immigrant sea captain who settled his family in this community — and whose descendants are doubtless numerous in these parts. Following is the author's story :

Engineers on the Alaska Highway were perplexed on finding some of the Northern Indians communicated with each other by means of a strange script — a series of hieroglyphics that was foreign to anything they had ever seen before.

In the 1840's a Captain Evans, from England, sailed a ship that carried on trade with Russia. He had moved his family to La Chute, Quebec, which was a more convenient stop for him on his journeyings.

His son, young James Evans, had been training for a teacher and became much interested in the wandering tribes of Indians in this new land. He went out among them as they passed up and down the river and became even more interested in their customs, habits and their languages.

One year he went down with a party of Crees as far as the Saskatchewini River. By this time he could understand their speech and was so intrigued by the beautiful thoughts they expressed so casually to each other, that he thought it unfortunate they didn't have some kind of a script wherein to preserve their unusual and fanciful utterances.

He succeeded even sooner than he hoped, in finding a means of transcribing the language, but there was still the difficult task of teaching the Indians to write it themselves.

He hit on the idea of inviting the chiefs to gather all their people together and he would "make the trees talk to them".

They consented rather dubiously, but on the set date they were there — man woman and child — to hear the "trees talk."

James Evans had discovered that there were only 27 syllables in the Cree language. Each of these he represented by a simple symbol. Words were formed merely by putting the symbols together. Combined in different ways, these formed their different words and sentences.

After drawing some of the symbols on trees several times and repeating the syllables after them, he began to combine a few simple ones to make brief phrases and sentences. . . Eyes began to sparkle — a light was dawning. One after another of the brighter ones began to laugh and thump their legs in merriment as they realized how the trees were talking to them.

It didn't take the whole tribe long to learn to write this simple way. They wrote on the sand. They sent messages on birch bark, and they themselves often used the trees to give information to their bands. They still write their script.

* * *

In these days of mass education it is unfortunate that these historic events are not given a more prominent place in our history books — concludes the writer, J. M. Stewart—for teaching a whole tribe to read and write their language can be considered nothing less than an event.

James Evans went farther; from lead of the tea packages and old parts of a printing machine, he made a press and printed a good deal. Since then whole books have been printed in the Cree syllabic.

It was the messages and letters written in this syllabic that aroused the curiosity of the Alaskan road engineers.

Tag Days Held For Hospital

"Teens and 20's" Club Inaugurated At Brownsburg

Brownsburg — An experiment undertaken by the Brownsburg Social and Athletic Club, has created some interest among the young folk of the village and vicinity. The first activity of the youth group, termed the Teens and 20's Club, got under way three weeks ago with Saturday night dances announced as the "Saturday Night Stomp Series". Recorded music, styled for the younger generation's dancing pleasure, is featured at these dances. Provision has been made to serve free chocolate milk and doughnuts as refreshments.

The main idea of the club is to provide clean, wholesome entertainment for the younger folk who are interested in dancing and generally having a good time with others in their own age-groups. Boys and girls in the high school and just-out-of-school ages will be welcomed, from the Lachute as well as the Brownsburg area.

Late F. Brosseau 45 Yrs. Postmaster At Huberdeau

Huberdeau — The death of Ferdinand Brosseau, aged 86, a former general merchant of Huberdeau, occurred on Sunday, June 23.

The late Mr. Brosseau was born in St. Jerome in 1860. On the instigation of Cure Labelle, then commissioner of colonization for the Laurentian area, he came to Huberdeau in 1884 as a pioneer in the settlement, and started a business which flourished for 40 years under his direction. He was also postmaster of the village for 45 years, and in recognition of his loyal service was decorated with the King's Medal.

He is survived by eight children — three sons, Elzear Brosseau, merchant at Lac des Ecorces and warden of Labelle County; Aristide Brosseau, dentist; Edouard F. Brosseau, merchant, and mayor of Huberdeau; and five daughters, Mme Viateur Bariteau (Flore); Eugenie, wife of Dr. Brosseau; Mme Ed. Plessis-Belair (Marie-Louise); Mme Thomas Leblanc (Alice); Mme Paul St. Georges (Simone), also 22 grandchildren.

Baker Burned By Explosion

Francois Ladouceur, of St. Andrews East, employed as assistant baker at the Lachute Bakery, was badly burned at his work during Sunday night, in an accident which occurred as he was lighting the furnace beneath the oven. The young man, 22 years of age, was thrusting a lighted newspaper into the furnace to ignite the heating unit — a new bakery oil-burning device which might best be described as a flame-thrower. It is thought that an accumulation of gas in the furnace caused a blast of flame, which caught Ladouceur in the chest and arms.

The explosion occurred at around 2 a.m. Dr. Jules Lafleur was summoned to give first aid, and the victim was later conveyed by the Menard ambulance to Ste. Jeanne d'Arc Hospital, Montreal. He is reported to be recovering satisfactorily.

National Clothing Drive

Collection in Lachute Town Friday Afternoon, June 28

While no announcement regarding an organized canvass could be made last week, arrangements have since been completed for the handling of the National Clothing Collection in this community.

Under chairmanship of Philias Chabot, the collection of parcels will take place in Lachute tomorrow afternoon, when householders are asked to have their contributions bundled, securely tied, and placed in view of the collectors when they call.

Assemble all the usable discarded clothing you can spare — men's, women's and children's garments, underwear, outdoor-wear, hosiery, etc. Boots and shoes, tied in pairs, will be specially acceptable; also blankets, bedding, and even cloth remnants which can be used in sewing.

Millions of people in the wartorn countries abroad are in the direst need. This is your chance to — "Give that they may live next winter".

Morin Heights — On the site of the old Bellevue Hotel which burned in February, 1945, one of the best hostelries of its kind in the Laurentians has now been erected to the stage of completion. At a function last evening the proprietors, John Basler and Sons, were hosts to a substantial gathering to mark the official opening of their establishment.

Work on the new Bellevue Hotel was started just over a year ago, and the building was in use last winter on demand of its large clientele of winter sporting folk. Work has been continued, and the hotel, with 30 rooms and dormitories, can now handle a capacity crowd. There were no fewer than 100 guests last week, in addition to the staff and family, who also occupy the hotel building.

Structurally, the new erection is practically fireproof. The exterior is of brick siding and asbestos shingle. Inside the main floor is solid concrete. The sidewalls contain a six-inch depth of mica insulation, and the interior walls are soundproof.

As work continues on the surroundings of this hotel, provision will be made for a tennis court, swimming pool and bowling green.

Mr. Basler was congratulated by many friends who attended the opening banquet. The gathering included representatives of the Canadian National Railways, the Swiss Consulate, Quebec Hotels Association and Laurentian Resorts, besides many Argenteuil communities.

No race or nation can see eye to eye with us, if we look down upon it.

Military Honors Friday for Late Lt. Robt. Miller

The death occurred at Ste. Anne's Military Hospital on Tuesday, June 25, of Lieut. William Robert Miller, R.C.E., youngest son of the late Robert Miller and of Mrs. Louisa Miller, of Lachute.

Born here at Lachute on March 26, 1916, he attended the local Academy and, graduating in 1934, was employed by Cottingham Supply Company. He worked with this company as salesman until he joined the Royal Canadian Engineers, June 28, 1940. He belonged to the local troop of Boy Scouts, and at the time of his enlistment was Cub Master.

Following training at Camp Borden he went overseas in August 1940. He was stationed at various posts in England until he took his officer's training at Newark, Notts. Upon graduating in October 1943, he went immediately to the Italian front, and while there he was Mentioned in Dispatches for gallantry in action. In January, 1945, he left Italy and served in France, Belgium and Holland. In March, 1945, he was sent to England to take charge of a Mine School, where he remained until he entered hospital on April 28. He returned to Canada on the Letitia, arriving in Montreal just over a year ago. He was hospitalized at the Ste. Anne's Military Hospital.

The late Lieut. Bob Miller was married on July 6, 1940, to Hazel Tibbits, of Bondville, Que. Left to mourn, besides his wife, are his mother, two sisters, Lulu, of Lachute, and Catherine, of Montreal. One sister, Ann, predeceased him in 1936, and one brother, Charles, in November, 1943.

The funeral, with military honors, is being held tomorrow (Friday) at 2.30 p.m., with service in St. Simeon's Anglican Church, and burial at Lachute Cemetery.

War Veterans Are Prime Concern In Two Major Undertakings Now Engaging Brownsburg Citizenry

Headway in Plans For Reception And Presentation

Brownsburg — A meeting of the committee to organize a civic reception for Brownsburg's returned men was held under the chairmanship of M. V. Trayers at the Social Club on Monday evening. Other members present were Mrs. N. E. Smillie, Mr. Charles Moseley and Mr. Jules Lemay.

It is recalled that, at the previous meeting, it was decided the qualifications for a recipient would be service in the Active Army and the area of residence Brownsburg, with chief credit the National Registration Certificate issued from Brownsburg Electoral District. . . The minutes of this assembly were approved, and the adjourned business brought before the meeting.

After considerable discussion the committee decided that each returned man and woman would be presented with a gift writing pen of the "long life" type. It was estimated that a sum of $4,000 would be required to defray the cost of the presentation and tentative proposals were made whereby this sum would be raised by public levy on all residents over 21 years of age. By this means the cost would be equitably distributed, everyone in Brownsburg would have the proud privilege of partaking in the welcome on an equal footing, and the reception would be genuinely "civic" in form. The levy would be purely nominal in minimum, and provision would be made to facilitate those anxious to contribute in greater measure.

The question of having the presentations made by some high-placed personage connected with the war effort of Canada, was also considered, and it is expected that an announcement on this matter can be made at a later date.

The committee referred to its legal advisor the question of setting up the machinery necessary for the collection of the levy. Next meeting was set for Wednesday, July 3.

Extend Campaign Period for Legion Memorial Fund

Brownsburg — It has become apparent that the time estimated for a complete canvass for the Memorial Fund was insufficient, and the campaign therefore will be extended to ensure that all prospective subscribers are contacted. Most of the canvassers are returned men who have given their time voluntarily. They are therefore inexperienced in this type of work, and calls take a little longer than anticipated. Another thing which delays the canvass is that often subscribers have not made up their minds regarding the amount they are going to contribute. This requires two and often three calls. It will assist the committee greatly in speeding up the collection if the subscriber will be in readiness to indicate what his contribution will be when the canvasser calls. It is somewhat discouraging to some canvassers to have to make several trips to the one place.

The committee is also concerned with a malicious rumor that still persists, to the effect that the building will contain a tavern or a grill. This is definitely not true, and, inasmuch as such rumors are harmful to the cause, the committee has decided that action should be taken against any people who disseminate such rumors.

Boys' Brigade to Camp Again at St. Andrews East

Montreal — The 1st Montreal Company Boys' Brigade are once again looking forward with keen anticipation to their annual summer camp on the farm of Albert Dorion, St. Andrews East, from July 13 to 27 next. This year's camp will be staffed by a number of former boys and officers returned from the services. Capt. J. Howard Richardson will be Camp Commander, and will have associated with him the Rev. Clifford A. Selby, former Dominion President of the Boys' Brigade and now rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Flint, Michigan. He will take complete charge of the waterfront. He plans that every boy who comes to camp as a non-swimmer, wins his Beginner's swim certificate. Capt. Conway Prindiville, of the 6th Montreal Company, will be present as a specialist in telegraphy and photography, two subjects which will receive a large following. Lieut. Alex Upham will be camp registrar, and Lieuts. Sam Hallum, Arthur Campbell and A. G. Anderson will also take part in the program of instruction.

This year, the Company have decided to permit a number of their Life Boys, junior organization of the Brigade, to attend camp. To many of these boys it will be their first experience at camp. Hadden Whitelaw, outstanding boy soprano soloist, will be among them, and a number from the Life Boy choir in the Town of Mount Royal.

Several of the officers spent the Monday holiday in preparing the waterfront and doing other odd jobs, to save the last minute rush. Seven tents will again be seen on the campus, each filled to capacity. The camp will have seniors separated this year so as to give them more freedom. The Rev. C. A. Selby will conduct a very active as well as instructive program for them.

2 Cushing Schools On Auction Block

RESIDENTS VIEW CHANGE WITH MIXED SENTIMENTS

(Our District Correspondents)

Cushing—"The old order changeth giving place to new" was a proverb well proven in Cushing last Saturday, when the two Cushing schools were sold by public auction—the stone school to James Duncan, of Montreal, and the brick school to Leodas Fournier, of Lachute for dismantling and removal. On the grounds where the brick school now stands — a site rich in sentiment to parents and grandparents of the riverfront, who were tutored there under a stern old-fashioned schoolmaster—it is expected the purchaser will erect a summer cottage in its place.

* * *

Cushing W. — A great deal of interest was shown in the auctioning of the old stone school, as was manifested by the quite considerable gathering which assembled Saturday afternoon to witness the "doings" in connection with the sale. Mr. J. Black, of Mabel, chairman of the School Board, made an efficient auctioneer, and after a lot of spirited bidding, which began with five dollars and ranged all the way to $975, it was finally knocked down to Mr. J. Innes, bidding for a Montreal buyer who wished to acquire it on account of earlier associations of his family with this old "seat of learning". — Among those present were a few older members of the community who grew quite sentimental in recalling old days and "vanished scenes and friends".

No. 1 School was also auctioned, the brick building and grounds being sold to different parties. In the case of the stone school (No. 2), both were included in the same sale.

Pastoral Blessings for Co-operative Grist Mill

Rev. Father J. A. David, of Dorion, Father V. Carriere, of Ile Perrot, and Father A. Patenaude, of Vaudreuil blessed the new farm co-operative grist mill of Vaudreuil-Ile Perrot. About 200 farmers were present.

Situated in the village of Dorion, this grist mill will serve the three towns, as practically all farmers of these parishes are members of this co-operative.

The necessity of greater co-operative effort was stressed by various speakers. This movement should start within the family circle first and foremost, and extend into the social world through public relations as a whole. Henri C. Bois, manager of the Co-opérative Fédérée suggested that pressure be brought to bear upon Federal leaders to avoid excessive taxation on co-operative undertakings, especially as concerns central co-operatives.

The new grist mill has an invested capital of $40,000. The members who make up the Farm Co-operative of Vaudrauil and Ile Perrot already had on hand a prosperous butter factory and egg candling station.

Good Draft Horses In Demand at Sales

In the first few months of 1946 there was considerable activity in connection with Canadian horses. At the principal horse sales in the Prairie Provinces in March and April, big, well-broken draft horses in good condition were in demand and brought higher average prices than were realized at the sales in 1945. Top prices for a single was $350 while several other individual horses brought over $200. The high price for teams was $500 and more than four teams were purchased at $400 and over. As in former years, unbroken horses and those in poor condition brought low prices. A considerable number of riding horses were sold at the Calgary and Regina sales, the highest price paid for any kind of horse being $1,000 for a Palomino stallion at the Regina sale.

Since the beginning of 1946, up to the end of May about 2,500 Canadian horses purchased by the French Horse Purchasing Mission have been shipped to France.

DDT to Control Potato Pests

DDT has proved so effective against potato insects that growers are advised to use this insecticide in preference to any other, states W. G. Matthewman, Entomogist of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. DDT has given excellent control of the Colorado potato beetle, the potato flee beetle and the potato leafhooper, while, particularly in spray form, it has given good results against potato aphids.

DDT should be mixed with a fungicide to control potato blight. As a spray, DDT may be combined with bordeaux mixture, with any of the fixed coppers, or with the newer organic fungicides at the rate of one pound of actual DDT to each 100 gallons liquid. As a dust, DDT is used in three per cent strength combined with a fixed copper and a suitable filler. DDT should not be used in the old copper-lime dust because the lime in this combination greatly reduces the toxicity of the poison.

DDT is available on the market in dust form, with or without fixed copper, completely mixed and ready for use. It may be obtained also in spray form, either as a spray powder or as an emulsifiable liquid, the percentage of the insecticide being indicated on the container.

Apply the insecticide as soon as the yellow eggs of the Colorado beetle start hatching. Three applications probably will be sufficient for the Colorado beetle, but to control leafhoppers, flea beetles, and blight, the plants should be sprayed or dusted with DDT and a fungicide throughout the summer.

A MESSAGE FOR THOSE WHO NEED TRAINED WORKERS

I recommend to you CANADA'S VETERANS . . .

To take full advantage of the great future possible for Canada, Canadian business will need men of courage and initiative — purposeful men of sound judgment. I know where such men may be found for I have worked with them, lived with them and fought with them. They are Canada's veterans and I am confident that the loyalty, initiative and unflagging determination which made them the best troops in the world, will also be the qualities so essential in Canada's business life.

Many are already skilled tradesmen, and many have a sound foundation of skills on which wise employers may build. I know of no better man-power supply in the world than the men and women from Canada's armed forces.

H. D. G. Crerar,
General

CONSIDER THESE SERVICE SKILLS

ARMY TRADE FITTER
Only one of 216 army trades, the trade fitter was trained to make and fit new or reworked parts of guns, power trains, gearing units, valves and machine tools. He had to follow simple sketches and blueprints, and among other duties, make parts from metal castings, forgings and stock. A knowledge of the working properties of steel and non-ferrous metals was essential. He typifies thousands of veterans available to industry today.

ELECTRICAL ARTIFICER
In the navy, this man maintained electrical navigation equipment, lighting systems, telephone switches and was a specialist in many naval electrical installations. He was a skilled machinist, qualified for general machine work and for manufacturing and repairing electrical equipment. With on-the-job training he would be capable of house and industrial wiring.

STATIONARY ENGINEER—R.C.A.F.
His duties were the installation, operation, overhaul and repair of all heating equipment used by the R.C.A.F. He had a knowledge of steam fitting, valves, pumps of all types and underground and overhead distribution systems. He holds a current provincial first, second or third class certificate. This is only one of the many specialized trades in the R.C.A.F.

Employers— USE THESE BOOKLETS

Many Canadian employers have these booklets. The National Employment Service and Department of Veterans Affairs offices will interpret them, and assist you in choosing veterans for your post-war jobs.

The Eloquence of Gratitude

THE GRATITUDE of the people of Holland for clothing that was sent from Canada last winter, is expressed in scores of letters received by headquarters of the National Clothing Campaign, and should be a spur to Canadians to be equally generous in the present Collection. There are thousands of families, all over Europe, who are in dire need, and it is because of this that the Dominion Government has initiated the second appeal for serviceable used clothing, bedding, shoes and other things.

The sincerity of such a letter as the following, written evidently after much study of a Dutch-English dictionary, is apparent: "In our place at Nyeveen the people were very glad at your many gifts and therefore thank you and the other people for. I became a pair of very fine shoes, from whom I become this I do not know and to whom I write this letter I do not know also. . . . But I hope that whom this letter receive will write me also. Then I shall write you once more and tell you more particulars from our village and my home. . . Now I finish but once more my upright thank for your gifts and that your boys have delivered us from the German troops."

From Arnhem many letters of thanks were sent to the headquarters of the Netherlands Red Cross addressed simply: "Canadian United Allied Relief Fund, Ottawa." and were forwarded to headquarters. They contained such phrases as this: "Herewith I express my great thanks for the underwear I received. Through this it is possible that my son can be taken up in hospital." Or this: "We have received from you one lady's mantle and a frock and we cannot leave off to express our thanks and satisfaction. All our goods had been stolen, and this was the first thing we received."

From Mynheer, another letter of gratitude tells its own story: "A short time ago I came back with my wife and little son from our evacuation place. Our home had been burnt down. Poor and without anything, we had to begin again. My wife and I are very thankful for the way in which we have been helped by you to the most necessary clothes."

In answering the second appeal, donors of clothing are permitted to include a personal letter of good wishes and encouragement to the recipients, and if they put their name and address on it, they will no doubt receive personal letters of thanks. There are millions of people in Europe who face the coming winter with dread, not only because of the lack of food but of clothing of all kinds. A suit, a coat, a skirt or a blouse, socks and stockings, boots and shoes, will do more good for them than they will do for you if you leave them hanging in your clothes cupboard. Prepare your bundle now, and help make this second drive a success.

Costs More to Retire Now

UNTIL A FEW years ago scores of thousands of Canadians could contemplate secure retirement on life savings of $10,000 to $20,000," points out The Financial Post. "A farmer could sell his farm, or a small merchant his store, invest the proceeds at 6 p.c. and this income plus that from what he had already saved would allow him to live in comfort the rest of his days.

"He can't do that now and with interest rates still declining he will be in greater difficulties tomorrow.

"Twenty thousand dollars invested in good securities gave a man an income of about $100 per month before the war. To get the same income now requires an investment of $40,000.

"In the meantime," continues The Post, "those planning retirement face a double squeeze. The tremendous increase in income tax makes it more difficult to accumulate savings and the sharp rise in the cost of living makes a greater income from those savings necessary.

"Hardest hit is the middle class, farmers, small businessmen and salaried people. With their own security plans menaced by high taxes and low interest, they are asked to contribute the bulk of the billion dollars a year Ottawa is now spending on social legislation largely to benefit somebody else."

REPORTED in Colliers Magazine, is the invention of a new giant type shears which cuts off trees at their bases as easy as cutting the stem of a rose with a pair of scisors. It is mounted on a special tractor and exerts a pressure up to sixty tons, so that a tree two and a half feet in diameter can be cut down in ten seconds. . . . Such a machine may be alright in the United States, but we doubt if it would be much good in some parts of Canada, British Columbia especially, where trees any less than five feet in diameter are referred to as shrubs.

BRITAIN'S tremendous war effort is more readily realized by the official publication that 357,116 Britons were killed through enemy action, 60,595, or one-sixth, being civilians.

World Security

WE SPEND far too much time debating whether world security can best be achieved through organizations, alliances, armaments, treaties or commissions. No one of these is more effective than any of the others. We may need to arm for self protection. But let us realize that this is only a stop-gap till we work out the real solution. — And then get immediately to work upon that real solution.

Is there a way to end fear, hate and greed in the world? We have heard people say they used to be fearful and are not afraid any more. We have heard them say they used to hate and now are sorry. We have heard them say they were out for all they could get and are living now to see what they can give. And their actions bear out their words.

This change is usually the result of finding reality in religion. They find that atomic energy is not the only universal force that can be tapped. And when they "cut-in" on the energy known as the "power of God", they find it does things to their courage, to their sense of responsibility for other people and to the aims they had set for themselves.

To cut everybody in on this same great Force would produce the moral world which, and which alone, can bring lasting world security.

Lack of Proper Guidance

THE QUESTION arises, in the light of so much juvenile crime recently, as to whether or not a great many parents are qualified to raise children, and to provide the proper home atmosphere so necessary during the formulative years of a child's life.

Too many people are prone to lay the blame for juvenile crime on movies, adventure fiction, radio programs and newspaper stories, yet we have not heard a single case where the evidence in juvenile court has shown newspapers or radio programs were contributing causes to the misdemeanor. The factor most responsible for children turning to crime is lack of parental interest. Children are allowed to roam about uncontrolled, sometimes even forced onto the streets by neglectful parents. What result other than wrong-doing can be expected when there is no home life?

Too many citizens with pious countenances remain oblivious to these human tragedies. The secretary of the Evangelical Sunday School Association of Canada recently stated that more than a thousand Protestant Sunday Schools were closed in Canada during the war years, a situation which he attributes directly to lack of interest by parents. He reports further that a survey of one community reveals that 30 percent of the school children have never attended Sunday School; 30 per cent attend seldom, and 20 per cent are irregular attendants. Only 20 per cent attend regularly. The survey was made in an average Canadian school, and no doubt a simiiliar situation exists in most communities.

Perhaps the churches are partly to blame for not effectively impressing upon parents the necessity of early religious training for children. If this important fact could be realized, and if public-minded citizens would ensure recreational facilities, we would not need so many juvenile reform schools.

Helping Out Cupid

WE AGREE with the official of the Canadian jewellers' association who complains against the twenty-five per cent luxury tax on engagement and wedding rings. Most certainly an engagement ring is to be regarded as a necessity rather than a luxury, inasmuch as it has become a custom which signifies the promise of love made by an engaged couple.

Marriage should not be regarded as a luxury, but should be viewed in the opposite light, something to be encouraged and desired, rather than restricted. This is especially so in Canada, when the need is for greater population. A young couple about to be married have expenses enough, without having to pay this additional tax.

June is the month of romance, so we say, let's give Cupid a hand by removing the tax. Give the youngsters a boost, instead of a knock. Encourage marriage, rather than put on restrictions. The tax is justified on non-essential jewellery such as necklaces, bracelets, wrist watches and various types of costume jewellery. But the engagement rings, No Sir! Remove the tax.

Surely there must be one or two sentimentalists in Ottawa, or are they all bachelors like Mackenzie King?

THE NOISE made by wedding processions is bad enough, but the vehicles are frequently driven with total disregard to traffic regulations and it is the rule rather than the exception for them to travel at high speed through a busy street, seemingly oblivious to or careless of the rights of other people using the thoroughfare.

Brief Chronicle of the Beginnings Of Education in Argenteuil County

Contributed by Dr. G. A. CLUNIE, Secretary-Treasurer of the Lachute Protestant School Board for the past 35 years

The first settler arrived here in 1797, named Hezekiah Clarke. A short time after began an influx of United Empire Loyalists from Jericho, Vermont, prominent among whom were John S. Hutchins and his brother, Benjamin. The settlement was made along the North River, and since the newcomers were anxious that their children should have an education, they soon obtained an order from the Lieutenant Governor to build a school a mile and a half above the falls. They procured the land from a farmer named Joel Bixby, and the school was built in the year 1810 on a plan from the Royal Institution of Learning, the same Institution that gave McGill permission to build.

They then looked for a teacher, and finally secured John D. Ely, of Beech Ridge Settlement on a salary of fifty pounds a year with board, washing and mending. (The pound was then $4.00). The following is a copy of the original, well worded contract:

This indenture made this twenty-sixth day of September A.D. 1811 between John S. Hutchins of Argenteuil, La Chute Settlement party of the one part and John D. Ely of the aforesaid Argenteuil Beech Ridge Settlement on the other — witnesseth —

That I, the said John D. Ely on my part have covenanted and agreed with him the said John S. Hutchins and hereby do engage and firmly bind myself to teach a school in the School House at the La Chute Settlement for one year, the next ensueing the date of this instrument under the Superintendency of the said John S. Hutchins — and I the said John S. Hutchins on my part have covenanted and agreed with him the said John D. Ely and hereby do engage and firmly bind myself my heirs and asigns to give him the said John D. Ely his board, washing and mending, during the time of his teaching the said school, and also to pay or cause to be paid unto him the said John D. Ely Fifty Pounds Ten Shillings, Halifax Currency, as a compensation for his services in teaching said School; said money to be paid one half at the expiration of six months from the commencement of said School and the other half at the expiration of one year from the time said School commences —

And I John S. Hutchins further engage to insure him the said John D. Ely a commission from the Government which shall authorise him a Master to Teach our Public or Free School provided that the Governor and officers of Government have or will approve of him the said John D. Ely for a Public School Master and I the said John D. Ely engage that on receiving such commission or authority from the officers of Government to teach said School during the satisfaction of the parties herein concerned. Provided nevertheless that Government should disapprove of the nomination of John D. Ely for a Public School Master and consequently refuse to give out a commission in his name or to authorise him to the office of Public School Master — then I the said John D. Ely agree to give up and quit said school at any time after teaching it Six Months from the time I commence it by receiving a compensation agreeable to the foregoing tenure of this bond —

To the foregoing and above we firmly engage and bind ourselves by cheerfully subscribing our names and fixing our seals this twenty-sixth day of September A.D. 1811 at Argenteuil in the Province of Lower Canada in presence of —

(Signed) John D. Ely
John S. Hutchins

Now later it was decided to build a larger school in the centre of the town, and in 1856 what was known as the Industrial School of Argenteuil was built, and some of the professional men assisted in teaching. This old school was then sold to Mr. Gavin Walker, for seventy-five pounds, in 1862.

Futhermore, in this new school there were three teachers with 75 pupils and it was later known as the Lachute Academy, which name was carried until consolidation, in 1932, when the present name of Lachute High School was adopted.

In 1885 the Town became incorporated, taking in the school and leaving the Parish of St. Jerusalem without a school. This latter Parish rented the old school from Mr. Walker, and paid rent until consolidation in 1932.

The outstanding principal who raised the Elementary School to the first Academy in the province, was C. S. Holliday, a master of languages who could read English, French, Latin, Greek, Hebrew and German. His salary was $900. per year. Much credit is due to the many principals and members of the school boards who have worked to advance education in Lachute from the days of the first school, with 40 pupils, to the present day High School, with 445 pupils and 17 teachers.

The writer graduated from the school under Mr. Holliday in 1883 and matriculated to McGill.

An Australian tried to enlist for service in the army but was refused because of bad feet. Next morning he presented himself again before the doctor.

"It's no use, I can't take you, as you couldn't stand the marching," said the medico. "But why are you you so insistent?"

SEAWEED INDUSTRY GROWING ON COAST

Feed and Drugs Are Among By-Products Produced From Rich Harvest

Victoria, B.C. (CP) — Seaweed promises to become an important industry on the British Columbia coast. Increased interest has been shown in kelp-harvesting.

A large company capitalized by $1,000,000 has been formed in Vancouver to harvest, recover, process and treat kelp. It is authorized to manufacture by-products, set up research laboratories, and operate mines and shipping services.

Licensing and control of kelp was decided upon by the British Columbia legislature at its last session in anticipation of increasing interest in the rich marine resources of the province.

In the meantime, another firm has employed the B.C. Research Council to determine if sufficient red seaweed is available on this coast to warrant development of an industry. This firm is more interested in the red seaweed which produces agar than in kelp.

Youth Hostelling

By DR. ROBERT NICHOLLS,
Assistant Professor of Chemistry at McGill University and Past President of the Canadian Youth Hostels Association.

May 19th to 26th was National Youth Hostel Week — during which, thousands of youth hostellers across Canada inaugurated another summer season of hostelling and initiated a campaign for new members.

I am often asked, "What is Youth Hostelling?" To which I reply, "Youth Hostelling is Travelling". Then I hasten to add that youth hostelling is travelling in a special way — an inexpensive and carefree way. Because hostelling permits one to travel across Canada and into foreign lands for as little as a dollar a day, it has an especial appeal for teen-age boys and girls, and young men and women. What is the secret? Well, youth hostelling is inexpensive because hostellers travel "under their own steam", that is, by hiking, cycling, skiing, canoeing or riding. It is carefree, because the organization provides its members with hostels, where at the end of the day one can spend a restful night.

There are more than a hundred youth hostels in Canada, and several thousand throughout the world. All are at the disposal of a hosteller on the presentation of his pass, which is a sort of international passport. In Canada, youth hostels are usually farmhouses, chosen to be about 15 miles apart and to form links in chains. Most hikers think nothing of walking 15 miles in a day; cyclists of biking two, three or four times that distance. Our idea is to make it possible for young people to travel throughout their own and neighboring countries without difficulty and without expense. Naturally, youth hostels, like resort hotels, vary as to the accommodation offered. But all are neat and clean. All provide separate dormitories for boys and girls, separate washing facilities, a common kitchen and dining room, and cooking facilities. Bunks, mattresses, blankets and cooking utensils are at hand and and need not be carried. The last issue of "Hostel Trails in Canada", the hostellers' handbook, indicates that Douglas Park Hostel, near Victoria on Vancouver Island, is the largest in the Dominion, providing accommodation for 20 boys and 20 girls. We would like all our hostels to be of this generous size, if not larger. House-parents don't like to turn hostellers away from the door.

What are house-parents? House-parents are the resident supervisors of our hostels. They have been carefully chosen by the Association and all are responsible persons with a lively interest in young people. They are usually the farmer and his wife, who have placed a part of their home at the Association's disposal. They act as chaperons, provide much needed equipment, and are helpful in a thousand different ways. For their trouble they receive a small overnight fee of 25 cents per hosteller.

Anyone of good character is welcome as a member of the Canadian Youth Hostels Association. A modest annual fee is charged. There are no barriers of age, creed or color. Upon joining the association each member is given a membership pass. This pass is presented to the house-parents whenever he arrives at a hostel, and it is signed and returned when he leaves — provided everything is in order. Should there be cause for complaint the house-parent may retain the pass and report any irregularity to the Executive Committee. I am pleased to report that in the ten-year history of youth hostelling in Canada, unfortunate occurrences of this kind have occurred very rarely. This speaks well for the sense of cooperation and responsibility among hostellers. We have a saying, "Leave the hostel better than you found it".

Youth hostels had their first vigorous growth in the province of Quebec. It is appropriate then that the most extensive chains are to be found in that province. A hosteller can start out from Montreal, say, and travel the hostel trail to Sherbrooke, meeting a youth hostel every 15 miles, and can return via Newport, Vermont, after encircling beautiful Lake Memphremagog. A wonderful two-weeks' holiday! Or he may travel the north-shore trail to Ottawa, or along the St. Lawrence to Quebec City. One of the most popular trails among both Canadian and American hostellers is the trail around the breath-taking Gaspe Peninsula. For those who wish to travel farther afield there are hostels in the provinces of Nova Scotia, Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia, throughout the United States, and in more than 20 European countries. I have never hostelled in Europe, but I have been told that, before the war, it was possible to hike from Norway to South France and be certain of finding a youth hostel at the end of each day.

It is difficult for me to describe a typical day on the hostel trail. No two days are alike. New sights meet you over every hill — new friends await you around every curve. You start from home with your pack on your back and a dollar in your pocket for every day you plan to be on the road. Light-heartedly you travel along, at peace with the world. You may start out alone but soon you meet other hostellers going your way and you join up with their party. The forming and reforming of parties on the trail is one of the more pleasant features of hostelling. By sundown, 15 — 30 — 45 miles have passed by. The familiar Green Triangle of the C.Y.H. appears affixed to a farmhouse beside the road. There's the hostel! Tired but happy you walk up the drive to the house, your home for the night. The house-parents greet you with kindly smiles and cheering words. You surrender your pass and your quarter and stake a claim over a bunk in the dormitory. It is spick-and-span, like the rest of the hostel. You make your way to the kitchen to prepare the "makings" of an evening meal —

AIRBORNE SERUM FIGHTS DISEASE

Will Be Flown to Isolated Epidemic Areas

Regina (CP) — Life-saving serums, vaccines and other medical supplies will soon be available to combat epidemics in hitherto isolated areas of Saskatchewan. The supplies will be dropped by parachute from the Saskatchewan government's flying ambulances.

The need for getting the emergency supplies to outlying districts was seen by Dr. Henry S. Doyle, director of the communicable diseases division of the provincial health department. A graduate of the University of Toronto, Dr. Boyle did public health work in the army and R.C.A.F. before joining the department.

Pilot of the 600-horsepower Norseman which will do the work is Keith Malcolm, former R.C.A.F. flyer. Malcolm worked with Dr. Doyle in perfecting the new technique.

What I SAY carries a lot more weight if what I DO is on the same scale.

VETERAN BUILDS MERRY-GO-ROUND

Home-Made Machine Costs Westerner Only $3.50

Weyburn, Sask. (CP) — Daydreaming of merry-go-rounds was not the general occupation of men in the Canadian army overseas but one veteran admits that he has recently made the dream come true by building one for his children for $3.50.

April and Joyce Geeves, aged five and three respectively whirl merrily for hours at a time on the home-made merry-go-round built by their father Jack. He is waiting to start training on an electrical course at Moose Jaw and has used his spare time and some odds and ends to build the contraption.

Parts of the merry go round include an old washing machine motor, two 20-foot two-by-four, an old wagon wheel small pulleys, a few bricks and a few strands of wire.

The motor drives the pulleys which in turn drive the wagon wheel which runs on a circular board, pulling the complete apparatus with it in a 60-foot circle.

The merry-go-round travels at a speed of 10 miles an hour and has two safety devices. The operating switch on the seat must be held up to operate the machine. If a child falls out the switch is released and the motor stops.

The second safety factor is connected to the safety bars on the seats, similar to those on a ferris wheel. When the bars are open the circuit is cut.

"The youngsters sit for hours and hours in the seat going round and round," said Mr. Geeves. "And they don't get sick either."

or to the recreation room to meet the "folks". The food is good — the talk is good — seasoned with the Great Outdoors. . . After a gab-fest or a sing-song, early you seek your bed in the bunkhouse. Another day arrives and the Open Road beckons. But first there is breakfast to be made ready, the hostel to be made ship-shape, the house-parents to be told good-bye. These duties performed, you are off through the towns, the villages, the country-lanes — your pack is light — your heart is light. Why worry? — a youth hostel awaits you at the end of the day.

I have been asked by parents, concerned for the welfare of their children, whether youth hostelling is dangerous. I can answer categorically No. Risks are reduced to a minimum. Hostellers are urged to travel by lightly-travelled byways and not by heavily-travelled highways. The handbook, which every hosteller carries, is full of helpful hints about clothes and equipment, hiking and cycling. Sponsored tours under the guidance of experienced leaders are organized at frequent intervals to acquaint new members with proper hostel customs. In this connection I should like to quote the reassuring remarks of a well-known Canadian social worker, herself the mother of two teen-age girls who are ardent hostellers: "Youth takes naturally to the hostelling idea. The young person, contemplating hostelling, hears from hostellers of the good times that are had, the interesting things one sees and hears on hostelling trips, the new and different experiences one may expect day after day, the deep satisfactions gained by being on one's own and having to solve unexpected problems independently. . . . The parents listen, while the adolescent with bright, sparkling eyes, reviews all he has seen and heard, shows the printed material he has collected about hostelling, then waits confidently for parental approval. Usually the adolescent's enthusiasm is so infectious, the general information so adequate that parents cannot help but respond with immediate interest and approval. And then they start thinking! . . Jim is only fifteen and has never done anything like this — can he look after himself? Just a small packsack for clothes, towels, sleeping sack, and so forth — that means washing on the way: Isobel has never washed out a thing in her life. Pete and Mary are not very strong — can they keep up with the others? . . . These and other questions are of legitimate concern to parents. They should and can be satisfactorily answered, and any parent may rest assured that no unreasonable risks are involved in youth hostelling".

I have worked with youth hostellers for ten years and more. Without exception, I have found them to be a fine crowd of youngsters, boys and girls from school, young men and women from college and business, eager to know their country and their countrymen better, cheerful and helpful — and intensely loyal to and proud of their organization, the Canadian Youth Hostels Association. And well they may be proud of it. It is their organization. They created it, they govern it, and in large measure they finance it with their annual dues. Not long ago they were granted a Dominion charter. Last year they operated 72 hostels in five provinces, which provided more than 9,000 overnight accommodations and more than 3,000 meals. And they have plans for the future, ambitious plans. I have before me a brief presented by the Canadian Youth Hostels Association to the federal and provincial governments, soliciting their support. It is a general plan of development for the next ten years. It envisages more than 200 hostels distributed from the Atlantic to the Pacific, so as to serve the scenic and historic parts of each region, and some 10,000 members.

Travel needs no recommendation as a means of recreation and character-building. It is inevitable that, if one is widely travelled, one is a good citizen. Indeed, some sociologists have blamed juvenile delinquency in large measure upon the overcrowded condition of our cities. In the past, few people have been able to indulge in the luxury of travel. With the advent of hostelling, most young people can afford the benefits of travel. If they can allow a dollar for each day of their holidays, all can travel the youth-hostel way. It is true that, primarily, youth hostels are a facility for travel. But a multitude of other benefits follow one down the trail — good companionship, abounding health, love of country, contentment of spirit, and tolerance. Youth hostelling is a 20th Century "Pilgrim's Progress".

It Doesn't Make Sense

One thing that's needed to make this country a better place in which to live is a radical overhauling of our municipal building laws.

Here we are in the midst of the worst housing shortage in history, yet in many Canadian communities you cannot legally erect a prefabricated or factory-built house, despite the time and money it may save. Where archaic building laws still rule you cannot:

But surely it's time we realized a house wall doesn't have to be made of bricks laid one by one simply because that's the way they did it in the time of the Pharaohs. — Maclean's Magazine

Winnipeg — If Alderman Hilda Hesson has her way, Winnipeg will do something about its signboards. "They are disfiguring the city," she told the city council.

The fact that some trees were cut down to make way for a billboard near the Osborne St. bridge was mentioned. The new billboard advertises milk and has a cow which nods its head at passers-by.

'JUST DROPPED IN', DELIGHTED TOURIST STAYED IN CANADA

Former Bicycle Racer Is Now Chief Booster of Saskatchewan Village

Findlater, Sask., (CP) — Proof of Canada's allure to United States citizens is 63-year-old Harry Felt, one-man chamber of commerce who came up on a hunting trip in 1910 and has made his home in Saskatchewan ever since.

A former professional bicycle racer and telegraph operator from Mason City, Iowa, Mr. Felt visited the Canadian Rockies on a hunting expedition and on his way back to the U.S. stopped at Saskatoon to see some railwaymen friends.

He expressed his pleasure with Canada and was asked if he would like a job here. Within five minutes he was working at a telegraph key.

For 34 years he has lived at Findlater, population 60, about 30 miles north of Moose Jaw, where he is station agent for the Canadian National Railways.

Carrying on a personal game conservation program, he estimated he has spent some $500 out of his own pocket for crows' and magpies' eggs and legs for which he gives one cent each.

From 1920 till 1939 he supervised the hunting expeditions of six U.S. millionaires who brought their private railway car to nearby Buffalo Pound Lake. The last of the millionaires died about two years ago and now Mr. Felt runs a lodge at the lake.

MATTER FOR PARENTS

Several irate citizens have asked the Optimist to "put a warning in the paper to young boys about the evils of killing birds and breaking street lights with sling shots and air guns." But small boys don't read papers—even the Optimist—which seems to place the matter squarely where it should be placed — on the shoulders of the parents and mentors of these young boys. — Wawanesa Optimist

FAIR ENOUGH

On one hand we are insisting on regulations which we believe protect us from skyrocketing prices. If we expect the government to take a strong hand in these matters we must expect control of our labor or management or agriculture — and not just control of the other fellow. — Chilliwack (B.C.) Progress

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Do you know Quebec? Do you know, for example, that during the past thirty years, mining has expanded from $18,000,000 to over $100,000,000 per year! From important non-metallic raw materials like asbestos, to copper, gold, silver, nickel, zinc and other metals!

With an eye to the future, the Government of Quebec maintains a training school for miners at Val d'Or; has added more experts and geologists to its Department of Mines; plans extension of geological mapping and study of new districts.

Although bauxite is imported from South America, Quebec is now a world centre in the smelting of aluminum. She is a major producer of asbestos. Significantly, nearly all the metal mines are located within a 6,000 square mile area —and Quebec covers 703,635 square miles! The surface has only been scratched.

The same careful development is evident in her other natural resources . . . agriculture, fisheries, lumbering, hydro-electric power, etc. For these are the life and work of the people. On them Canada depends for many of the materials so essential to a great, united nation!

QUEBEC BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE

In 1608 Champlain brought the first colonists to Quebec. Today, Quebec's population is 3,000,000, her retail trade $800,000,000.00 per year. She leads all Provinces in the production of hydro-electric power, textiles, lumber, newsprint, footwear, processed tobacco, asbestos and aluminum. Natural resources, agriculture and transportation are being developed wisely. And now, Quebec, her people deep-rooted in the love of their homeland, prepares to share with her sister Provinces, Canada's bright and glorious future!

Every Young Husband

Were the EXPENSES of starting your home greater than you expected? In most cases the answer is "yes." Probably there is a mortgage and other debts. Given time, you can pay them! But they could be a burden to your wife, if something should happen to you. That is one reason why you should have adequate life insurance protection.

Does it matter which COMPANY you insure with? Yes! Life insurance companies are much alike as to policies and rates, but actual long-term results vary widely. Evidence of the satisfaction of Mutual Life policyholders is furnished by the fact that whole families and succeeding generations have entrusted their life insurance programs exclusively to The Mutual Life, and each year approximately 35% of its new business comes from policyholders. Ask your Mutual Life representative to explain the special features of this Company.

Paints that must be better!

We carry a complete line of C-I-L Paints because we are satisfied that the unparalleled chemical knowledge of that great Canadian firm must enable them to make finer paints for every purpose than any other manufacturer. — Won't you discuss your paint problems with us?

JOHNNY USED TO HAVE FUN blowing dandelions, but the pay-off came later when he had to dig out Mr. Whiskers' offspring from the lawn. Now, thanks to C-I-L and chemistry, he has his fun without work. His dad simply eliminates the new dandelions with a new hormone spray called "Herbate" 2, 4-D.

YES, DANDELIONS, plantain and many other weeds can be made to disappear, leaving the grass to take over unmolested. "Herbate" is one of the newest of new chemical products that make life more enjoyable . . . for grown-ups as well as small boys.

Looking Ahead

Here's a new brush that looks something like a question mark. But there's no question about it—its nylon bristles will outwear by many times the bristle of the Chinese Hog. This particular brush is for cleaning coffee makers. It is only one of hundreds of new-type nylon brushes now coming on the market.

"All that they want" is the modern farmer's principle when it comes to providing salt for his livestock. With salt blocks or salt boxes in stables, fields and pastures, animals now help themselves, free choice, and grow faster, sturdier because of it. It's just another of the advances in animal nutrition that mark our times.

Durable water repellents that won't come out in washing or dry cleaning will soon be common in many outer garments. Not only will these give protection against showers, but clothes won't spot as easily. These products, such as "Velan" from England and "Zelan" from the United States, are becoming well known to the people who are making textiles for your new clothes.

Fruit that falls prematurely means waste to the orchardist. But chemistry knows a way to keep fruit on the tree until it's ready to be picked. With a hormone spray called "Parmone", which strengthens the stem of the fruit, "windfalls" can be almost eliminated.

Further information on any of these products is obtainable by writing "Looking Ahead", C-I-L, P.O. Box 10, Montreal, P.Q. 1/W-46-4

"With All My Worldly Goods . ."

By Edna Jaques

Remember the marriage service where the man says, "with all my worldly goods I thee endow". . . Sometimes it means a million dollars—sometimes it means a little house on a quiet street; but if love is there, it's all right no matter what the location.

In Europe these days "all my worldly goods" might mean a crude one-roomed house built from salvaged lumber and stones on a rubble-lined street.

It might mean a place in the country where men and women harness themselves to home-made plows trying to get a little piece of ground in shape again, as happened times without number this spring, or it might mean — if they were very lucky—a cottage that had escaped ravages of war.

There is one thing that is certain — no matter where the new home is in Europe, there will be a shortage of clothing. Over six years of war (with no production of textiles at all), the household goods have all disappeared. No new curtains or bed quilts, no new wedding garments. . . no towels. . table linen of any kind. So Canada is putting on a clothing drive to gather up more clothing for these unfortunate ones who twice in their lifetime have seen war go by and take nearly everything they possessed.

By having this drive in June the clothing can be sorted, packed in bales and shipped in plenty of time before cold weather sets in. Europe is in the same latitude as Canada and the wind blows just as cold from the Arctic sea there as it does over us.

Every woman in this country has a coat or suit or dress that she knows in her heart she'll never wear again. She hates to give it away — after all, it has lots of wear in it yet. Sure — but let someone who really needs it get the good out of it. Ship it across the Atlantic, it won't sag on a hanger over there.

Every man has an old suit or overcoat that he once thought he looked pretty nice in, so he hangs on to it for dear life . . let anyone touch it . . . if they dare. We've heard this story a hundred times.

Well mister, someone in Europe might not only look pretty nice in it but feeel warm and comfortable for the first time in years. He NEEDS it, NOW! Winter won't wait and those cold winds are as sure to come as death and taxes.

The children's clothes that are packed away in boxes in Canada would make a mother in Europe weep for joy. Bill's old knickers and long wool sox that he used to play hockey in his long underwear that he'll never wear again—so help him — the windbreaker that is six inches too small for his fine young body. It will fit a boy in Europe who never saw such clothes in all his terror-filled life. It will mean more to hime than just a new suit . . it will mean a new lease on life.

Before you go on your holidays, see that these clothes are sorted and tied in secure bundles, then go away and enjoy yourself twice as much as you would with a guilty conscience. Here are the things most urgently needed:

Put in a friendly word of greeting; their hearts are sore indeed. Sharing our own good fortune is a pretty nice way of saying, "we share your troubles".

Hints for Homebodies

By Jessie Allen Brown

GOOD WORK

Canadians may well be proud of their Post Office Department and its reliability. We live in East Riverside but as the Renforth Post Office is nearer and more convenient we use Renforth Post Office. Renforth and East Riverside are in the ribbon of settlement which runs along the river to the village of Rothesay. Most of our mail goes to Renforth but frequently some goes to East Riverside. Occasionally mail is sent to Rothesay and once in a while to Saint John. Eventually we get it. There has always been a slight confusion between Renforth and the better known Renfrew. Lately a lot of mail has gone to Renfrew, Ont. Some of it is intercepted by some mail-clerk who recognizes the mistake but some goes to Renfrew and is then forwarded to Renforth, N.B. Not long ago I got a letter addressed to Mrs. Geoffrey Allen, Renforth St., Saint John, New Brunswick. Of that whole address, only the Province was correct. But I got it.

COOKING FOR TWO

Cooking for two always seems to be difficult but I am getting more questions about it than ever. Probably because there are more brides, and more parents left alone. I can view the situation with understanding because I am doing just that myself these days. A plaintive plea comes in from one bride who wants to know what she can do about meats, as they get so tired of a roast, and they even get tired of a chicken. Here is what I did with a chicken this week. I cut off the legs and wings and fricaseed them. Browned them in dripping and then added water and simmered them slowly until they were tender — about two hours. The gravy of course had to be thickened with flour rubbed smooth with cold water. The next day I stuffed and roasted the remainder of the bird. It didn't look so beautiful minus legs and wings but it tasted just as good. The next day we had cold chicken with canned corn as the vegetable. There was still enough meat on the bones for another meal, so I diced that and mixed it with a half-can of mushroom soup and a little milk, and baked it for a half-hour. The remainder of the can of corn was mixed with a beaten egg, and a half-cup of milk, seasoned with salt, pepper, and a suggestion of scraped onion, then baked in a moderate oven of 350 degrees until the custard was set, about a half-hour. The creamed chicken and baked corn combination was a very good one. That left a half-can of mushroom soup for the starter of another meal. Roast beef for a two-some is pretty difficult, so I usually wait until we are having company for that. Lamb, veal and pork are easier, as for them I buy a small loin roast, somttimes as small as 2 or 2½ lbs. Frequently I cut off a couple of chops and freeze them in a tray of the refrigerator to keep until required. Chopped beef patties can be made and frozen and a beef loaf made with the remaining meat.

CREAMED CHICKEN

Creamed chicken is apt to be a very insipid dish if great care is not taken with the seasoning. The sauce made with milk alone is rather flat, so I try to make a little stock with the chicken bones and use half stock and half milk for the sauce. A little onion helps and so does a dash of lemon juice. The chicken and sauce need to cook together for some time so that the flavors mingle properly. It is much easier to use the mushroom soup as suggested above, and the finished dish has more flavor. Baking for a half hour gives creamed chicken made either way a chance to have the flavors developed. The soup basis is a good way to use up left-overs of any fish or vegetable.

NEW COLORS

Good linens are hard to come by these days and our old ones are wearing out; others we get tired of looking at. The dye pot is a good solution. I have a luncheon set of crocheted warp that has seen many years service and is still in good condition. After all this time it has lost its glamor so I dyed it a pretty shade of green and it gave it a new life. It is surprising how many washes it will stand before losing its color, because I just used one of those simply used tints. Some of these days I will strip it of color and dye it another shade, maybe a yellow. I have some very good bridge cloths and tea cloths of white linen that are old-fashioned now. Those are going to blossom out in a new color and they will be nice for use out-of-doors in the summer. Our bedroom curtains have a frequent change of color just to vary the monotony.

STRAWBERRY JAM

Somebow I have a guilty feeling when I give recipes for jam as they take so much sugar, Probably it is a fooljsh way to feel as we are each given the same amount of sugar to use as best fits our needs or preferences. Some families do not like canned fruit but do like jams; others have no proper place to store canned fruits but can keep a few bottles of jam. In either case it would a waste of sugar to can fruits. The following Strawberry Jam recipe is asked for each year and I am always glad to repeat it as it is an especially good one.

4 Cups strawberries, 4 cups of sugar, 2 dessertspoons water.

Heat slowly and simmer ten minutes exactly. Be careful not to boil hard. Turn out on large platters and let stand until morning. Bottle in sterilized bottles and seal with wax. If a teaspoon of butter is added before the mixture begins to boil there will be no scum.

BARBACUED FRANKFURTERS

½ Cup chopped onion, 2 tablespoons dripping, 2 tablespoons of vinegar, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 2 tablespoons Worcester Sauce, Frankfurters, 1½ cups caned or fresh tomatoes, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper.

Brown onion in dripping. Rub mustard smooth in the lemon juice. Add all the remaining ingredients to the onions and simmer for 20 minutes. Add the Frankfurters and simmer gently for 20 minutees with the pan covered.

YOUR DRUGGIST OF THE FUTURE MAY BE WOMAN

Jobs Available for Women Invading What Was Once All-Male Field

Edmonton, June 26 (CP) — When you drop into your corner drug store sometime in 1950 don't be surprised if the druggist is a woman.

With more and more females becoming interested in pharmacy — once considered chiefly a man's field — Dr. Mervyn Houston, acting director of pharmacy, University of Alberta, says it's more than just a possibility.

Not all the girls are interested in running their own drugstores. Many plan to become workers in hospital dispensaries while others hope to specialize in Cosmetology.

But whatever branch of Pharmacy they choose, it doesn't look as if they'll have to worry much about getting jobs. There are definite opportunities for women who are trained in pharmacy, Dr. Houston said.

At the recent session, the University of Alberta had 13 girls in first year Pharmacy, 14 in second year and one in third year. If facilities were not crowded by the backlog of returned men and women, there would have been many more.

To become a registered pharmacist, the student must complete a three-year university course leading to a Bachelor of Science degree and serve a two-year apprenticeship in a drug store under a registered pharacist.

Returns to Lachute As Auto Dealer, Wide Experience

Appointed district agent for the Mercury and Lincoln line of the Ford Motors Company, D. D. Mitchell, of Montreal, has leased the former Fournier Garage on Bethany Road. Better known to this community as "Del" Mitchell, the new dealer has many friends in Lachute, where he was born and raised. His background covers a varied experience both in civilian life and war service.

Attending the Lachute Academy, Del enlisted at the outbreak of the first Great War, serving three and a half years in France. He then transferred to the British air force and saw active flying on the Dover Patrol. Returning to Canada in 1919 he was employed here by E. F. Ayers Motor Sales, the first local Ford Motors agency, and later was in the employ of Ayers Limited. Leaving here in 1926, he became sales manager in eastern Canada for Fada Radio, then sales and development manager for Imperial Oil Company, until 1941.

At this time he was again called to the Army, to assist in organizing mechanical maintenance for the Atlantic Command, covering Greenland, Bermuda, Labrador and Newfoundland. Following this service he remained at Halifax headquarters as mechanical adviser, then — in view of his long military experience — he was loaned to the Department of Veterans' Affairs as casualty rehabilitation officer until the present year.

The announcement of Mr. Mitchell's appointment as Mercury and Lincoln dealer here appears in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

New Ring for Wrestling at Lachute Arena

July 12 is the date of the next wrestling program at Lachute Arena, in a series which have drawn the interest of many fans during the recent weeks. In the meantime John Dunne, managing director, has a new wrestling ring under construction, to be in readiness for this event. In view of defects in the 'moveable' equipment, which hampered the performance towards the end of last Friday's final, this innovation will convince the customers that the Arena is out to provide the very best. In addition to the new ring and mat, seats will be installed to replace the ringside benches, and a platform to cover the sand floor for ringside spectators.

Although the card of performers has not been arranged at this date, John Dunne promises a slate of interesting star professionals for the three bouts to take place on July 12.
